2-Day Conf'ce on Industrial Safety

Regional Gathering Held Here

Opening Assembly at Golf Club Under Chairmanship of Clement E. Tremblay

The Quebec Association for Prevention of Industrial Accidents held a regional Safety Conference here last Thursday and Friday. The opening meeting took place at the Golf Club chalet at 6.30 o'clock September 26, and approximately 75 persons representing industries of this town and district were present.

The opening session was under the chairmanship of Mr. Clement Tremblay, secretary-treasurer of Ayers Limited. The following were seated at the head table:

Arthur A. McOuat, president, T. McOuat & Son Ltd.; Philippe Roy, manager, Dominion Shuttle Co. Ltd.; Hon. C. J. Arcand, ex-Minister of Labor (Montreal); Mayor Leopold Carriere, president, Lachute Lumber Co. Ltd.; Clement Tremblay, (chairman) sec.-treas., Ayers Limited; Paul A. Cooke, representing Col. Arthur Gaboury, general manager, Quebec Assn. for Prevention of Industrial Accidents; Geo. H. Héon, K.C., M.P.; Gilbert E. Ayers, president, Ayers Limited; J. A. McIntyre, superintendent of personnel, C-I-L (Brownsburg); W. R. Pollock, director J. C. Wilson Limited; R. Thomson, manager, St. Andrews Woollen Mills Ltd.

In his opening remarks the chairman thanked the Association for having included the town of Lachute in important industrial centres of this province; he hoped that Lachute would continue to be featured on that list, and was sure that every year the population would benefit by a progressive educational program for accident prevention.

His Worship Mayor Carriere, after extending a cordial welcome, said that local industry was vitally concerned with reducing accidents, and paid high tribute to the work done by the Association under the guidance of its general manager, Col. A. Gaboury.

He was sorry that Col. Gaboury had been unable to attend, but he was glad to see that he had delegated "two of his best lieutenants".

Curb Illegal Hunting

Quebec (CP) — Game wardens, Provincial police and highway traffic patrols will be mobilized to put an end to "a veritable epidemic" of illegal hunting in Quebec Province through use of jacklights, Dr. Camille Pouliot, Minister of Fish and Game, told a press conference.

He said it was probable that at the next session of Quebec Legislature there will be legislation to take the use of flashlights out of the orbit of game law disobedience and to rank it as an offence punishable by imprisonment without option of a fine.

BOOST FOR SQUIRRELS

Prince Rupert, B.C. (CP) — Timbermen and trappers of the Queen Charlotte Islands are urging propagation of the busy and thrifty little squirrel, which they regard as one of the greatest re-foresters. Squirrels open tree cones and leave the seed on the ground to germinate.

Rotary District Governor Has Message On Practical Ideals for Service Club

4-LANE HIGHWAY OF SERVICE — "THE WORLD WANTS MEN, LARGE HEARTED AND MANLY MEN"

Brownsburg — On the occasion of the visit of Harry Yoder, Governor of District 170 Rotary International, the Brownsburg Rotary Club were hosts to their wives and friends at a supper and informal dance on Thursday last September 26, at the Carriere Hotel, Brownsburg.

The meeting, under the chairmanship of President Harris Sherwood, was highlighted by an address by Governor Yoder entitled "Rotary and Your Club". The Governor was introduced by Secretary Wes Freeland, who spoke of him as a keen and enthusiastic Rotarian. He was born in Auburn, N.Y., and has been interested in Rotary ever since joining the Syracuse Club 26 years ago. He has been an active member for 24 years of the Watertown Rotary, which now comprises 150 members, and has held all the executive offices in that group. Besides being a good Rotarian, he is interested in all forms of community service. He is president and director of the Y.M.C.A. and a member of the Chamber of Commerce, as well as being vice-president of two companies and a director of the Watertown National Bank.

Harry J. Yoder
Rotary District Governor

On this, his first visit to the Brownsburg Club, the Governor brought greetings from Rotary International. The speaker then outlined the necessity of each man doing his part. In any group or club aimed at promoting a better world, one comes in contact with certain individuals who have developed a sense of futility over the state of world affairs. "What can one man do?" they ask. "This is dangerous psychology", Governor Yoder said. The success of any club such as Rotary is dependent on each and every member. "What I can do, I ought to do", should be the watch-word.

A successful club also requires careful planning and allocation of duties. Rugged individualism under certain conditions is an admirable trait but not in a service club — one must have complete co-operation and participation of all members. "Use me or lose me" is a truism that should never be overlooked. Programs should have variety if they are to be appreciated. A club succeeds or fails as the weekly programs succeed or fail. . . . The speaker then gave a number of valuable suggestions based on his wide experience in Rotary. He recommended the holding of open house whenever a speaker with a special message of interest to the community is scheduled. He also proposed the holding of meetings to do honor to those who have given honorable service in the community.

Club service, vocational service, community service and international service were aptly termed by the speaker as "Rotary's four-lane highway of service"—the functions and responsibilities of each being succinctly defined. The development of men, responsible, community spirited, internationally minded and with high ethical standards in business, was never of such paramount importance as it is today. "This world wants men — large hearted and manly men" he said. The great hope of society is individual character.

Stuart Jones extended thanks to Governor Yoder on behalf of the club. Dennis Staniforth, chairman of the club's community service committee, gave his report of last year's activities in the Lachute and Brownsburg districts. The extent to which this group were able to assist underprivileged children of the district was particularly gratifying to the members and friends. Mr. Staniforth outlined their tentative program for the coming months, which included — in addition to the club's present activities of assisting in the medical care of underprivileged children — milk for needy families, school prizes, and an award for the best exhibit by youth at the annual Lachute Fair.

A conducted tour of the capital's Parliament Buildings, Museum and Art Gallery is also planned for certain grades in the Catholic and Protestant schools of Lachute and Brownsburg.

Distinguished guests included Mr. Georges Héon, K.C., M.P., and Gordon McOuat, president of the Lions Club, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Palmer; Mr. Alfred Ladouceur visited from Montreal, and the Rev. S. J. Pike's brother from Rhode Island.

Churchman and Old Resident of Beech Ridge Dies

Late Jas. A. Drew

A resident well known to this community and surrounding countryside, James Alexander Drew, died Sunday in the Montreal General Hospital.

Born at Beech Ridge on June 25, 1872, James Drew was a member of one of the pioneer families in Beech Ridge settlement. His parents were the late William Drew and his wife Elizabeth Pollock, to whom three daughters and five sons were born — a sister of the deceased, Miss Jessie Drew, being now the only surviving member of that family. Of the others who predeceased him, a brother, the late Dr. J. M. Drew, was best known to the citizenry of this town where he practiced many years.

The late James Drew was educated at Beech Ridge and at Lachute Academy. He was twice married — to Marion Elizabeth Boa, and latterly to Grace Wilson, who survives him. Besides his wife and sister, he is mourned by his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Noble, of Beech Ridge, and one granddaughter.

For 40 years he served as an elder of his church — first of the Presbyterian and later of the United congregation. . The funeral was held at the latter church, yesterday afternoon, and his pallbearers were all members of the Church Session — Dr. G. A. Clunie, Messrs. A. A. McOuat, Geo. Paul, Lemuel Hammond, E. Morrin and Clarence Rodgers. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough conducted the service, which was attended by many churchfolk, neighbors and fellow citizens who came to pay their last tribute of respect. Miss Helen McFaul sang an impressive selection, accompanied by the organist Mr. J. F. Gorman. The remains were borne to their last resting place at Lachute Cemetery. There were many beautiful flowers.

Among those attending from out of town were — Mr. and Mrs. Lem Wilson and Maurice Wilson, of Hudson; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wilson and Robert Wilson, of Vankleek Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Galbraith, of Verdun; Miss Alma Wilson, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Boa, Mrs. Edgar Boa and Mr. Heber Robinson, of Pte. Fortune; Mr. Sidney Drew, of Montreal.

Council Protests To Dairy Comm. On Milk Increase

A regular meeting of the town council was held last evening in the council chamber, with Mayor Leopold Carriere in the chair and a full attendance of the councillors.

Accounts to the sum of $6,069.51 were approved for payment.

Notice of motion was given by Alderman Alex Bothwell that at next council meeting he will submit a new Business Tax by-law for approval.

It was moved by Alderman H. Trichard, seconded by Alderman J. R. Paquette, that the Council of Lachute Town register its protest to the Quebec Dairy Commission against the increased price of milk.

Miss Beatrice Smith was re-engaged as assistant secretary, in place of J. A. Rochon who had given his resignation.

Contract for the sweeping of chimneys in town was given to Leo Lefort, of Lachute, at a price of 38c per chimney, the work to proceed immediately.

Motorist Strikes Bear on Highway

Ottawa, Oct. 1 (CP) — George A. Rich, Ottawa contractor and sportsman, just missed getting himself a new front-room rug last night. Motoring with his daughter near Lachute, he ran over a big black bear. Before he could capture it, however, the injured animal had lumbered off into the dark.

Farm Forums Open Season

Staples and Harman to Speak at Rallies

On October 28 the Farm Forums will have their first national discussion, on the subject, "Are Farm Living Standards High?" This will be the beginning of fifteen national discussions on such subjects as "Is Research Meeting Farm Needs?" and "Agriculture Is a Risky Business".

The Farm Forums season will be launched in the Province of Quebec by a series of rallies in the counties where Farm Forums have been organized. Two outstanding speakers have been chosen for these meetings: Ralph Staples, national secretary of Farm Radio Forum, and Leonard Harman, executive secretary of the United Farmers Co-operative Company.

Not only are the members of the 1,000 families in Quebec linked with Farm Forums expected to attend in large numbers, but the prospective members of the 90 new groups slated for organization in the month of October, are also expected to participate in these rallies.

"New Management"

To meet more practical ends, The Watchman has enlisted the aid of E. H. Peters, B.S.A., to conduct its weekly Farm column (page 2). Mr. Peters, a graduate of Toronto University and an ex-officer in the forces, is now instructor of agriculture and manual training at Lachute High School.

Dealing with practical and seasonal topics, Mr. Peters this week presents some authoritative hints on plowing. . . It is hoped that farm readers will derive greater benefit from this column in the future.

See Satisfactory Growth of Central School Units

Impressions of the Protestant Committee of the Quebec Council of Education relating to the progress of the Central School idea, are of interest to this area where the system is now in effect. A meeting of the committee was held in Montreal last Friday under chairmanship of J. A. Kirk Cameron.

The members formally approved of two grants, one of $100,000 for a large addition to Hudson High School, and the other for $75,000 for the building of an addition to the Cowansville High School. Cost of the extensions is to reach $200,000 and $150,000 respectively — the grants being 50 per cent in the case of these consolidated schools.

Central school boards have now been established in Stanstead and Compton Counties. The majority of boards in Papineau County have petitioned in favor of a central board.

Members of the committee noted with satisfaction that seven central school boards, of the 18 originally planned, should be in operation shortly. In addition to the ones mentioned, there are central boards for Richmond-Drummond - Arthabaska; Chambly; Argenteuil-Two Mountains; and Brome.

Dr. W. P. Percival, director of Protestant education for the province, in presenting his report, stated: "These central boards are effecting vast improvements in the educational systems of their counties."

Terms of Commissioners

Dr. Percival recommended that the terms of office in Central Boards be staggered so that there would be a complete change in the board every four years. This was referred to the legislative sub-committee.

George Y. Deacon, a member of the Committee, attended the meeting from this communiy.

Orange Parade to Arundel Church

Members of the Orange order from Arundel, Dalesville, Shrewsbury and Harrington met last Sunday in the lodge room at Arundel and, headed by the Union Jack and banner, paraded to the United Church. R.W. Bro. Wm. Cooper, Provincial Grand Lodge auditor and organizer, acted as marshal. County Master Hugh Merrison was also present to take part in the proceedings.

The Rev. A. E. Wilfong, pastor of the church, conducted the service and the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, Past G.M. of Prince Edward Island and Deputy Grand Chaplain of Quebec, preached on the word "Beware" (II Peter, 3.17). He showed how God all through the Bible called his servants to walk carefully and ever beware of dangers, both among their enemies and among their friends. He illustrated his message with references to Eve, Gideon, Moses, Judas, the Wise Men, etc.

Historical Society of Argenteuil Fulfilling Ideals of Its Founders

Annual Meeting Marks 12th Milestone, With Gratifying Progress and Promising Outlook

Under chairmanship of the president, Dr. H. B. Cushing, the annual meeting of Argenteuil Historical Society, held Saturday at the Carillon Museum, revealed a satisfactory state of finances and affairs within the organization. Favorable weather graced the occasion, and the reading room of the Museum was well filled with interested members and friends. Two speakers added zest to the proceedings, — Edna Jaques, a Canadian lecturer and litterateur: and Georges H. Héon, M.P. for Argenteuil, who is a good friend and honorary patron of the Society. Following the meeting, tea was served on the spacious veranda overlooking the Ottawa River.

Miss Beatrice Robertson, secretary, read a report of the year's business, and Dr. Cushing reviewed the financial report — commenting upon both. As regards attendance at the Museum, there had been a marked increase, nearly 4,000 paid admissions having been recorded in the six-months season. Mention was made of the Dollard Day influx at Carillon, when 1,000 visitors had flocked to the Museum. Many new exhibits had been added during the year; the president mentioned particularly the loan exhibition of paintings by Mrs. Vivian Walker, and a number of valuable and interesting old clocks, one of which had been brought across the Atlantic by Jedediah Lane, of local fame, in the eighteenth century; its workings were made entirely of wood. Dr. Cushing, in his brief dissertation, proved himself well informed on the subject of ancient timepieces.

The president made honorable mention of several members who, during the year, had passed to their reward. He spoke particularly of the late Mrs. Ida Douglas, to whom the Society was immeasurably indebted; she had been a generous supporter of the work since inception of the organization, and had it not been for her assistance during the war years, the Society would have faced a critical situation.

Another welcome presentation was handed in at this meeting by Mr. Benj. Howell, of Montreal and St. Andrews East. It consisted of the family record of Jedediah and Phoebe Lane, early landowners of this countryside and of the famed "Lane's Purchase", written on paper over 150 years old, also old plans of the East Settlement, and a record from 1853 concerning the establishment of a brass band in St. Andrews — papers which had been unearthed recently at the donor's home in that village.

All officers of the Society were unanimously re-elected.

One of World's Richest Men

MOTHER RECEIVES CABLE STATING HE EXPECTS TO RETURN SHORTLY

Dr. John Thorburn Williamson, native of this county and now one of the world's wealthiest men, following his discovery of rich diamond-bearing deposits in Tanganyika.

* * *

Dr. Williamson's exploits and rise to fame have been headline news during the past week or so. Through the medium of the press, his early education at St. Andrews East and Pte. Fortune, his university successes, and his life-work in geology, are now a familiar story to local readers — who take a not unnatural pride and interest in the distinction won by this young Canadian scientist.

It is learned from his mother, Mrs. B. J. Williamson, that her son John ceded a third-interest in his mine to Percy Williamson, his brother. The transfer was made while the latter was serving overseas, and due to rigid restrictions on exchange, he has not been able to draw dividends on his share. Percy Williamson is at present living in Malartic with his wife and two small daughters.

Mrs. Williamson received a cablegram here Monday stating that her son Dr. Williamson, although "very busy", definitely expects to return home soon.

Generous Prizes For Competition At Plowing Match

The Argenteuil Plowmen's Association is offering a very large prize list for the match to be held October 9 on the farm of George Morrison, near Lachute. The Provincial Department of Agriculture, through the efforts of Georges H. Héon, K.C., M.P., has granted $200, and Argenteuil Agricultural Society has also voted $200; the County Warden has subscribed a large sum, as well as silverware offered by T. Eaton Co. and the Robert Simpson Co., while the Plowmen's Association is offering a trophy for the best plowed ridge in the field.

Special prizes will be offered in each class for the best crown and the best finish.

TAKE IT EASY, BOYS

Val d'Or, Que. (CP) — Val d'Or Police Chief G. Girouard says the boys will have to tone down those noisy stag parties in future. He suggests that those pre-wedding celebrations be confined to a hall or hotel room, eliminating the practice of leading the bridegroom about the streets hitched to a wagon or tied to the back of an automobile.

Moseley Horse Wins $500 Stake, St. Jerome Meet

Brownsburg was well represented at St. Jerome last Sunday — the attraction being a match race between Charles Moseley's "Brown Derby" and G. Bouvrette's "William Direct", harness racing ponies. The match was an outcome of a close finish race at Lachute between these two ponies two weeks before. On that occasion Moseley's "Brown Derby" took all three heats of a Free for All, with "William Direct" coming a close second in each heat.

The match race at St. Jerome was for a consideration of $500 and a distance of one mile. The result was another win for "Brown Derby" which took the first two heats, thereby clinching the race without the necessity of a third heat. In both heats "Brown Derby" led all the way and won handsomely — the time being 2m. 13 secs. and 2 m. .09 secs.

At the conclusion of the race Mr. Moseley announced over the public address system that he expected a second meet would be held at Lachute on October 14, when his pony would be available to race over certain distances less than one mile for any stake arranged between the owners. Mr. Moseley stated that his challenge was open to any pony in Canada.

There were three other races at Sunday's meet — each of three heats, as is usual in harness racing. In the 2.23 Class, there were five entries and all three heats were won by "Todd Makallop", (H. Perreault, Laprairie). The other placings were — "Lady Direct" A. Rochon 3.2.2; "Red Gentry" 2.4.4; "Lady Patch" 4.3.5; "Atomic Grattan" 5.5.3.

In the 2.22 Class Mr. Perreault's "Elena Grattan" captured all three heats, with "Billy Peter" running 2.2.2 and "Del Iroquois" 3.3.4.

The two mile run in 4.38½ was won by "Lilian Peter", with "Sir Henley" 2nd and "Black Peter" 3rd.

WANTS HANGMAN'S COURSE

Edmonton (CP) — An unnamed veteran of Italy and Northwest Europe is giving rehabilitation officers a bit of concern. He wants to be trained as a hangman. Administrators said it was difficult to find where he could be apprenticed in Alberta.

Fire Prevention Week — October 6 - 12 inclusive

"AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION"

There is more to fire prevention than reporting the gory details of death and destruction that result from carelessness and neglect. Fire Prevention can only be brought about by the individuals responsible for fire hazards. So this brings the question of fire prevention right down to the home and place of business of every person.

A furnace, for instance, when properly installed, is provided with insulation to eliminate overheating inflammable surroundings. The same applies to the electric or gas water heater. Even the electric iron has safety devices, but individuals are responsible for their use. Electric wire is made as nearly foolproof and fireproof as possible, but again the human element can render its safeguard valueless by carelessness or neglect.

A guest in a hotel feels much safer sleeping in a room if he knows a sprinkler system is ready for instant use in the event of fire. Every home and building cannot afford a sprinkler system, but the occupants of such places can refrain from using pennies or other metal objects in place of fuses. The occupants of such places can see that all wiring and heating systems have the required attention, and they can clean up trash, dirty rags, paint cans, paint brushes, oil, etc., which are all potential fire hazards.

The same rule applies for fire prevention as for health — "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." And nobody but the individual whose life, property and health are at stake can, in most cases, provide the "prevention" that will forestall calamity.

WHAT CONSTITUTES GOOD PLOWING

Good granulation. Maximum granulation of the furrow slice is usually sought when plowing is to be followed relatively soon by seeding. In fall plowing preparatory to spring seeding, coarser granulation is advisable from the standpoint of good soil practice, especially if the soil be "heavy" or disposed to puddle.

Complete covering and mixing of trash. Trash should be completely buried; no trash should appear even in the creases between the furrow slices. Unless the main object of plowing is to reduce a very tough or virgin sod, the trash should if possible be well mixed with soil rather than laid down as a heavy mat on the plow sole.

Uniform consistency throughout the depth of the turned furrow slices. A layer of finely granulated soil on top of a layer of clods does not necessarily mean that the field is well plowed, although the surface alone might so indicate. A reverse condition is not objectionable, providing the clods in the surface do not interfere with trash covering.

Good conformation of surface. The crowns of the turned furrow slices should be smooth, of equal height and of equal curvature. The degree to which the slices are turned varies with custom and with types of plow bottoms, but there should be uniformity through the length of any slice and across all slices in the same "land".

Uniform depth and width of furrow.

Straight furrows.

Low, even, clean back-furrows, and shallow, clean dead-furrows. In some localities, rather deep dead-furrows are considered necessary for draining purposes. But no dead furrow should show spots of newly turned subsoil unless the operator is purposely increasing the depth of the plow sole.

Even, clean furrow ends.

Excluding such considerations as the ability of the plowman and the kind of soil, good plowing depends upon the major factors of: (a) plowing when the condition of the soil is right; (b) the type and shape of plow bottom; (c) the relation between the depth of plowing and width of plow; (d) the correct width of furrow slice for the plow at hand; (e) keeping the plow bottom in normal position with relation to the furrow slice; (f) speed; (g) previous surface treatment, and (h) the proper care, set, and adjustments of the plow.

The normal plowing speed of horse plows is about two miles per hour and that of many tractor plows about 2¼ or 2½ miles per hour. Special speed bottoms have been designed for tractors, operating at four miles per hour.

COMMON TRACTOR PLOW TROUBLES

(By Archie A. Stone)

1. Incorrect vertical hitch (too high).
2. Incorrect horizontal hitch (causing excessive side draft).
3. Loose plow bottom.
4. Bent or worn plow bottom bolts.
5. Rear wheel incorrectly adjusted.
6. Worn coulter bearing.
7. Sprung jointer shaft.
8. Sprung plow frog.
9. Bent beam.
10. Power lift not working correctly.
11. Axles sprung out of alignment.

Ed. Note: Fifteen agricultural engineers employed in New York State to help farmers repair and adjust their farm machinery, reported the most common tractor plow troubles they encountered were as above.

HOW TO ADJUST A PLOW

(From "Wallace's Farmer")

To determine whether a plow share has the right amount of suck, place a straight-edge first alongside and then along the bottom of the land-side. There should be from one-fourth to one-half inch of clearance between the straight-edge and the land-side, about midway between the point and the back end.

Sometimes farmers instruct the blacksmith to give a share too much suck, when the difficulty of keeping the plow in the ground is really caused by a hitch that is too low.

For best results with a rolling coulter, have one large enough and so adjusted it will cut from one-third to one-half the depth of the plowing. The centre of the coulter should come just above the point of the plow and not ahead of it.

When plowing, the back end of the plow draw-bar should be slightly lower than the front. If the draw-bar adjustment on the plow is set too high, it causes the plow to run on its nose, and this makes the depth lever difficult to handle when the plow is running through the ground.

If the draw-bar is too low, it is difficult to get the plow to go into the ground easily, and it also causes the plow to run unevenly, leaving a poor furrow bottom.

For covering, attach a chain five to six feet long or a wire ten to twelve feet long to the coulter shank.

At 12th Milestone Of Argenteuil Co. Historical Society

1834 Jacques Cartier, landing on her virgin shores, planted a cross; and under this omen Providence had blessed her progress to maturity. Mr. Héon spoke fervently of the need to preserve the country's history and lore. He commended the Society's effort in this respect and hoped that the spirit might be more ardently instilled in younger patriots. "The younger generation are forgetting the higher values of life, of which our history is among the most essential". — And this immediate territory was particularly rich in historical lore, he reminded his listeners.

Mr. Héon cited an incident in his recent experience. A court case in which he was engaged as legal counsel two weeks ago, concerned the nearby Carillon Island and rights of passage insofar as river-shore residents were involved. A deed invoked in that dispute was one contracted in the year 1687, signed by the Comte de Frontenac, which document is now reposing in the archives at Quebec. Mr. Héon had requested that a photostat of the deed be forwarded to this society as a museum exhibit.

* * *

A lecturer, poetess and columnist for the Consumer Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Edna Jaques (Mrs. Jamison) came from Ottawa to address the meeting, and in the brief time at her disposal gave a colorful impression of her visit to the Alaska Highway. Her quiet mastery of oratory and subject merited the chairman's tribute to her discourse, as "one of the most vivid and eloquent addresses" he had ever heard.

Edna Jaques introduced her topic on a note of contrasts. . . . . Coming from the West, where they "had no history", she found herself now in these richly historic surroundings. And on the Alaska trail, where she had discovered so much of newer interest, they had literally "made history within 24 hours", she remarked.

Sixteen hundred miles from Dawson Creek at the end of steel, through muskeg, mud and snow, the mosquitoes and blackflies, rock and bushland, and a "terrifying" silence — this was an epic of trail building. In 1940 Canada and the States were "living in a fool's paradise", said the speaker, with 10,000 Japs ready to strike along Kiska alone. Then Washington and Ottawa moved in history-making strides, blazing this trail "over the bulge of the world to the valleys of Alaska". In such poetic terms the speaker portrayed the grim realities of this task, the building of the Alaska Highway. Her anecdotes from personal experience and observation were sidelights to the mighty project, and they lacked nothing of human interest.

Her impression of the rail journey to Dawson, and of the "rip-roarin', hell-raisin'" characteristics of that town, which had sprung from a population of 350 to 75,000 in two brief years, were vividly recounted. Over the railway which previously had brought two trains a week across perilous contours and sinuous bridges, trains had proceeded as close as 20 minutes apart, bearing labor battalions from the deep South — with all the supplies and accoutrements, the engineering and administrative forces, involved in construction of the highway. . . Many awe-inspiring and touching sights this traveler had seen: 12,000 trucks halted at the Peace River, where ice had undermined a bridge and one lone ferry faced a major task of transportation: the population of a little town waiting anxiously for water, as the well driller struck 600 feet and the rock bottom of their community purse. . . Such incidents were told with pathos and a poetic turn of phrase.

Edna Jaques gave full rein to her humor, describing the vicissitudes of a lecturer on tour in the Northwest communities. These were a chapter in themselves. The talk was interspersed with three poems from her collection — "My Daughter", "Above the Timber Line" and "What Is This Freedom for Which Men Die" — the author preluding each recital with a description of the circumstances and surroundings in which they were written.

The speaker was warmly applauded for her address.

SOME PLANNING NEEDED

Even though a planned economy is repugnant to many Canadians this is a time in world history when it must be accepted insofar as it is necessary to negotiate the perilous path of transition from the regimentation that was necessary during an all-out war.

OBITUARY

'Old-Timer' Dead In Brit. Columbia

The Late John R. Walker

Funeral services for the late John R. Walker, styled a "grand old-timer" of the West, were held in the community hall in Burns Lake, B.C., on September 5 last — the Rev. Ficko, of Vanderhoof, officiating. "Many friends throughout the district gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to this much revered man, whose charity of soul and personal integrity had endeared him to all", records the Burns Lake Review. The floral tributes were many, and Mr. Walker's favorite hymn, "The Old Rugged Cross", was sung as a solo during the service.

HARD TO BEAT — THIS BEATER BOSS!

IT was on his 18th birthday that Eddy Lazure first went to work for a Montreal paper-board mill. Today, after 28 years with the same company Eddy is a Beater Boss. Although he's had experience in many different jobs, Eddy has always made time to take a generous part in company activities. He's a member of the Safety Committee, treasurer of the Social Service Club, a leading organizer of the annual picnic, and vice-president of the local union. Eddy is proud of his fine family of five — two of his three boys are already rarin' to get started with their Dad's company!

"You ask me why I work in the Pulp and Paper Industry . . . the answer is easy. First, in all Canada, it is the industry that employs the largest number of men, and I figure this means I have a better chance for steady work. Second, I have always had fair treatment, and the wages paid are well above the average paid in Canada."

"Slaughter of the Innocents"

YES, ONE MIGHT almost come to that conclusion after studying the loss of life among children due to fire — as contained in the Report of Fire Losses in Canada, 1945, by the Dominion Fire Commissioner.

It is not implied that parents deliberately slaughter their children in this way, but the results are the same. Over a ten-year period 1936-1945, 1,231 children have lost their lives by fire in Canada. In 1945, 146 suffered this cruel fate. Twenty-one died when their homes caught fire in the absence of their parents. Ten died as the result of playing with matches. Seven were burned to death when their clothing ignited from stoves. Eight received fatal burns when gasoline was used to light the fire, and 14 when kerosene was similarly used. Fourteen died when trapped in burning buildings and 10 more by smoke and gas suffocation. And the gruesome story continues, to the total of 146.

Who are the responsible parties in this "Slaughter of the Innocents"? Fire preventionists point an accusing finger at the parents: if they had been more careful with fire, if they had taught their children the elementary principles of fire prevention, if they hadn't gone out and left little children alone — in fact if they had applied plain common sense or fulfilled their responsibilities as parents should — most of these children would have been alive today. Granted that "accidents will happen in the best regulated families", there is no need for this appalling loss of life among helpless children. Let us hope that Canadian fathers and mothers will awaken to their responsibilities and put a stop to this march of death.

History Grows in Little Places

RECENT excavations of Indian villages in the vicinity of Waubaushene and Orillia, Ontario, are focusing the attention of archaeologists and people generally on early life in Canada. The discoveries will throw more light on a period of history about which comparatively little is known because surviving records are few and at times inaccurate. Reconstructing history from ruins is a painstaking task and at best lacks much of the detail a written account could furnish.

Even so, these districts will from now on draw many visitors who can be directed to a concrete answer for the frequent question, "What is there to see in your town?" All places are not fortunate enough to have the nation's past unearthed at their doors, but many have their spots of historic interest well and prominently marked.

Perhaps an old fort recalls the days of frontier fights with the Indians or the rivalries of old trading companies; some monument commemorates an incident in the war of 1812-14 or territory formerly in dispute between Canada and the United States; large cities erect statues of their founders; the whole basin of the St. Lawrence River has the marks of history and human interest stamped upon it.

All this sounds romantic, and it is romantic, But every place where pioneers settled has a human story to be preserved. Fight for survival in the backwoods and on the prairies threw into relief deeds that make good telling and are reason for local pride. The facts should be recorded before time blots them out. The building of the first commercial boat, the erection of the first church, the site of the first meeting to organize local self-government should be appropriately marked and careful records kept in town archives to supplement the necessarily brief public tablets.

The Historical Sites and Monuments Board of Canada plays a big part in the selection of important national and international sites, but the history of our country grows as much in little places as in better known centres.

— It is gratifying to know that, thanks to the founders of Argenteuil Historical Society, this community is doing its share to preserve and publicize the intensely interesting chronicles of our past.

On the Warpath for Peace

PRIME MINISTER Stalin has deprecated the prevalent fears of renewed warfare — Bevin, British Foreign Secretary, has registered agreement with the Russian leader's viewpoint — U.S. State Secretary Byrnes has expressed marked optimism to the press — and all this, coming out of the Paris Peace Conference, points to a new mood in diplomacy which observers will watch with interest.

Stalin's views, that there would be no new war, came after Paris observers already had noted a softening in Molotov's attitude toward his colleagues at the foreign ministers' meetings and in the general conference assembly.

Mr. Bevin's remarks carried even more weight than usual; they were made in an informal address to a group of the worker constituents to whom the minister has to answer on election day. There was no mistaking his sincerity when he agreed with Stalin that the present international situation was not likely to set the world in flames again, but that the current "war of nerves" would have to end before the peacemakers would get down to cases.

Mr. Byrnes confined his remarks to the solution of the United States foreign policy situation by the resignation of Commerce Secretary Wallace and the consequent restoration of unanimity within the cabinet. . . But his listeners read more than just that into his words. They noted his cheerful attitude toward the conference situation. His air was one of confidence and optimism, and well in harmony with Stalin's and Mr. Bevin's remarks.

Synthesis of the situation lay perhaps in Mr. Bevin's closing dictum: "I go back to the conference — to a new approach and a new attitude of mind. The acid test is not in speeches made by statesmen, but it is the approach in the conference room to actual problems we are discussing, that matters. It will be there that we shall discover whether or not the United Nations have the co-operation which will make for the unity of mankind."

Need for Pace-Makers

IN THESE DAYS, with problems being raised rather than solved at the Peace Conference, the democratic nations of the world need to find a common mind and a common heart. They need to know what they want and then to fight for it with a determination, skill and unity that is more than human.

It is not a question of being forever "put on the spot", and of having to say "yes" or "no" to the carefully planned manoeuvres of other powers. That was the way that Hitler, and not the democratic nations, came to be the pacemaker of world history. As peacemakers, we need to take the initiative and ourselves become the shapers of history in this decade.

The fact often impresses itself that this is not "peace" but an ideological war that we are in. The only way to avert a third world war of arms is to triumph in this war of ideas. And the way to win is not to take up a gun and say "We're right!" It is to take up our own idea and set the pace in a way of life that wins others to it. This is the only way to find peace and to make peace.

Plain Truth

IN A DIMINUTIVE journal, The Review, published at Burns Lake, B.C., we came across this maxim, appended to a letter of protest on the laxity of fulfilling government promises:

"When it comes to getting action from our elected representatives, putting the merits of the case before them doesn't help much. What you have to do is wear 'em down".

TIMES have changed. The provincial normal school of New Brunswick is now running two sessions each year to try and keep up with the demand for teachers. There are teachers still living, The Hartland Observer comments, who can remember paying 10 per cent of their salary to an agency for procuring them a school.

With the Weekly Newspapers Ass'n On Maritime Tour

On Friday a real treat was in store — a trip to sea. A hundred and fifty were accommodated on the destroyer "Nootka" and fifty followed on the Minesweeper "Middlesex". Some went aboard rather doubtfully, remembering the peculiar feeling they had experienced on the ferry, but fortunately it was a calm day and no one was sea sick. We were shown through the ship and saw the gun crews in action. Two fleet arm planes conveniently appeared and dove at the ships, making it all seem more realistic. As we slipped through the harbor, it made us realize more and more what a tremendously important place this was during war time.

Presentatitons were made at the the Association dinner Friday evening to the retiring President and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Templin, Fergus, Ont., Mr. George James, of Bowmanville, retiring chairman of the advertising committee, and Mr. C. V. Charters, of Brampton, who had been managing director for twelve years. Mr. W. R. Legge of Granby presented Mr. Charters with a new Pontiac car on behalf of the Association in appreciation of his long service. The dinner was followed by a dance in the ballroom of the Nova Scotian that was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Early Saturday morning some of the party left by train for Charlottetown, P.E.I., the remainder of the party waiting to fly over later in the day. For many it was a first flight and a real thrill. We boarded our huge shining plane, which carried twenty-seven passengers, shortly after lunch, and after fastening safety belts, took off with a roar of engines skimming along just below the clouds at about four thousand feet. Looking back we could see the surf breaking along the shore of Nova Scotia; it was very beautiful. In forty-five minutes, we had landed in Charlottetown and found a bus waiting to take us to the hotel. In the evening the rest of the group arrived by train and ferry.

An interesting program had been lined up for Sunday, but we woke to find it raining heavily, so part of the tour had to be foregone. Following lunch, we were entertained at Government House the guests of Lieut. Governor Bernard, after which we drove to Summerside. The rain had let up considerably allowing us to enjoy the scenery. Everyone was impressed by the red coloring of the clay which is a characteristic of the island. At Summerside we visited a government fox farm and saw beautiful specimens of black, silver, and white fox, all of which seemed as interested in us as we were in them, with their eyes fixed steadily on us until we left. From the farm we were taken to the Coyle Restaurant, where an exceptionally good sea food dinner was served before returning to Charlottetown.

Six o'clock Monday morning saw us eating breakfast in the dining room somewhat sleepily prior to starting the trip home on the Canadian National Railway. We spent Monday on the train, resting and talking over the wonderful time we had had. Service, comfort and courteous treatment, was also a noticeable and commendable feature of this railway line and we were interested in the change of scenery experienced on the going part of our trip. Catching a last glimpse of the sea after crossing the ferry, we moved inland and passed through miles of charred forest that had been burned out in the sweeping fire, recently.

A rollicking sing-song took place in the observation car before turning in and we awoke in time to have breakfast on board before pulling into Montreal.

And so for us, one of the most successful conventions to date had come to an end, and we said goodbye to our friends for another year, as they travelled on westward with happy memories of the Maritimes.

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Do you know Quebec? Do you know, for example, that Quebec moose have been known to weigh as much as 1,400 pounds and have an antler spread of six feet? Not only is our Province considered to be the best range in North America for moose, white tail deer are plentiful; black bear roam the woods; partridge, ducks, geese, wood cock and jack-snipe offer the wing shooter a varied bag.

Sport and recreation are thus abundantly supplied for our own people and for our thousands of visitors. The entertainment of tourists brings us an annual income of $50,000,000—helps to round out a balanced economic picture.

Richly endowed by nature, wisely administered and peopled by friendly, hard-working men and women, Quebec is destined to be a vital factor in Canada's development as a nation.

QUEBEC BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE

In 1608 Champlain brought the first colonists to Quebec. Today, Quebec's population is 3,000,000, her retail trade $800,000,000.00 per year. She leads all Provinces in the production of hydro-electric power, textiles, lumber, newsprint, footwear, processed tobacco, asbestos and aluminum. Natural resources, agriculture and transportation are being developed wisely. And now, Quebec, her people deep-rooted in the love of their homeland, prepares to share with her sister Provinces, Canada's bright and glorious future!

BE PROUD OF YOUR QUEBEC—IT IS PART OF YOUR CANADA

This message is one of a series being published so that you may know and appreciate the greatness of Quebec and its important role in Canada's wonderful destiny.

Nuptials at Weir

Labrosse — Johnson

The Church of the Redeemer, Weir, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, September 21, when Mrs. Isabel Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McColl, of Greenock, Scotland, was united in marriage to Mr. Lionel C. Labrosse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donat Labrosse, of Weir, Que.

The Rev. E. C. Royle officiated at the ceremony and the wedding music was rendered by Mrs. W. Morrison, assisted by the choir. Three hymns were sung — "Gracious Spirit, Holy Ghost," "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us", and "Oh Perfect Love". The church was very prettily decorated with autumn flowers and leaves.

The bride, given away by her father-in-law, Mr. A. H. Johnson, of Montreal, wore a floor-length dress of white satin; her veil of tulle illusion was worn with a halo of white baby mums, and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Lorraine Labrosse, sister of the groom, who was dressed in pink and carried a nosegay of pink gladioli and maiden hair fern, also Miss Elpha Miller, of Wilkie, Sask., who was dressed in blue and carried a nosegay of red gladioli and maiden hair fern.

Mr. Edgar Labrosse acted as best man for his brother and the ushers were the Messrs. Lindon Miller, of Montreal, and Ernest Purcell and John Campbell, of Weir.

Immediately following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the groom, where the groom's mother received and was wearing a powder blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of white gladioli.

The couple left immediately by car for their wedding trip to Kingston, Ont., the bride travelling in a grey dress with pin stripes and a three-quarter length jacket of powder blue chinchilla. On their return they will reside in Weir.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Keyes, Mrs. Raymond Rumbolt, Mrs. E. Lefebvre, Mr. Claude Lefebvre and Mr. F. Lenington, of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Labrosse and Mr. J. Labrosse, of Bark Lake.

NO MORE REDUCED FARES FOR TROOPS

National Defence Headquarters has announced that reduced railway fare privileges enjoyed by members of the Armed Forces are now terminated, as of September 30.

The concessions granted early in the war, have meant a considerable saving to a great number of service men and women and for a long time now service personnel have been entitled to travel from their station or camp to their bona fide home on leave for a nominal cost not in excess of $15.

These reduced fares have been the result of an agreement between the Canadian Passenger Association and the Department of National Defence whereby the individual making the journey pays only 1-3 of a one-way ticket but no more than $15, and the Department pays 1-3 of a one-way ticket and anything in excess of $15.

The Rev. George Darby officiated at the ceremony, and the wedding music was played by Miss Marjorie Summers. Mr. Clarence Smith sang "O Perfect Love".

Marriage Is First Ever Solemnized in Avoca Bap. Church

Purdy - Arthurs

The marriage of Ferne Emma Euphemia, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arthurs, of Avoca, to Argyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Purdy, of Ashton, Ont., took place Wednesday afternoon of last week at the Avoca Baptist Church. The Rev. Wm. Leaton, of Brownsburg, officiated. The ceremony was the first wedding to be held in this 50-year-old church. An arch of evergreen formed the decorations, while baskets of gladioli, asters and other fall flowers were attractively arranged. The wedding marches were played by Miss Joyce Bates, who also played, "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of net over satin with a fitted bodice and brocaded yoke, having a sweetheart neckline. Her veil of white tulle illusion fell from a halo of orange blossoms. She carried American Beauty roses and wore a gold locket, a gift of the groom.

The Minister of Finance announces

A NEW BOND ISSUE FOR PEACETIME SAVINGS

Canadians are thrifty people. Their record in war financing will stand for many years to come.

Through six years, millions saved and invested in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates in a way no one thought possible. Many thousands learned the convenience of regular, systematic saving, whether in small monthly amounts or by larger cash investment. As a result they have accumulated substantial personal reserves with all that means in increased future security and satisfaction.

Because suggestions and requests have come to me from all parts of the country that facilities for this kind of saving be continued in peacetime, the Canada Savings Bond has been created.

The issue of War Savings Certificates and Stamps to the general public will be discontinued on September 30th, and final instalments on the last Victory Bond issue will have been completed in the near future. Canada Savings Bonds, therefore, will provide an opportune means for citizens to carry on their regular savings habits without interruption.

The general public should note that this time there will be fewer salesmen than in the case of Victory Bonds. Although the new Canada Savings Bonds will be sold through banks, authorized investment dealers, stock brokers and trust or loan companies, these agencies will not be able to approach every individual Canadian. This means that for the most part it will be left to Canadians to assume the responsibility for their own purchases of Canada Savings Bonds. If they wish to grasp this opportunity, they should act for themselves without delay.

Canada Savings Bonds are designed to be the finest investment available to the public today. I recommend them to you as a safe, profitable and convenient investment for personal savings.

I now announce the terms of the new Canada Savings Bonds, which will be offered commencing October 15th.

2-Day Conference In Interests of Industrial Safety

The main address delivered at this 127th Regional Industrial Safety Conference dinner was given by Paul A. Cooke, entitled "Let Us Declare War Against Accidents".

"Safety is the foreman's direct responsibility", said the speaker. "In this, he must seek to develop qualities of leadership which will enable him to capitalize on the opportunities which his position creates.

"Safety promotion is not a one-man job but rather a co-operative effort on the part of management, supervisory personnel and workers, and it is most essential that we have leaders in industry to create, maintain and stimulate interest in safety work.

"Statistics have a cold way of telling the truth. During 1945 although there was a slight reduction as compared to the previous year, industry as a whole in this province, registered with the Workmen's Compensation 82,724 industrial accidents.

"This total does not include hundreds of thousands of minor injuries. The year 1945 ended with a couple of hundred fatalities leaving behind widows and over a thousand orphans.

The district of Lachute, with 89 employers, contributed 152 medical claims and 89 lost-time accidents, or a total of 241. In 1944 with approximately the same number of employers 211 accidents had been reported.

"One important feature is that, at the end of 1945, eleven employers showed an accumulated deficit of $21,392.00.

"What do these figures represent? Are we to believe that industry in this district has not properly organized? If so, it is my duty to point out a better way to safety. . .

"It is primarily top management's responsibility to promote safety. There must be a joint responsibility between management and supervisory personnel. Top management must provide adequate guarding, adequate first aid, safety equipment, and have a definite safety program.

"As it is almost impossible for the president, owner or manager of a company to look for safety hazards, this responsibility is automatically transferred to the superintendents, foremen and supervisors. The foreman is a key man, and it becomes part of his regular work to promote safety in his department. In daily contact with the workers, it is he who tells them what to do and how to do it.

"It is essential to mobilize a force within the plant. It is necessary to maintain employee interest and by having a safety committee, to discover and correct accident hazards, principles of safeguarding against mechanical hazards, providing safe working conditions, training in the handling of materials, supervision for proper clothing and use of protective equipment, through thorough inspection of the plant.

"Workers should be invited to submit their ideas and suggestions. Workers are actually performing a job; they are the ones exposed to the danger, they are the ones to get hurt. It is therefore logical that the workers can detect hazards which might otherwise be overlooked. . . The Association is now giving a certificate of appreciation and a lapel button to anyone thus rendering valuable service in the prevention of accidents.

"Let us declare a real war against accidents!"

The next speaker, Hon. E. J. Arcand, gave some telling facts on the consequences of accidents, from both the humanitarian and the social aspects.

Geo. H. Héon, Member of the Federal Parliament, who was invited to thank the speakers, gave his impressions on these talks and developed an interesting thesis.

In thanking both speakers he alluded to the instructive and practical features of their addresses, and added that the safety message they had given to Lachute would remain and bring results.

"Our distinguished visitors have preached safety always, and the safeguarding of human capital. This reminds me of a special meeting we had on political economy. What we term as 'capital' is divided in three important sections — money, resources and labor. Neither money nor resources can progress without labor. All three must work hand in hand — and human capital is the most indispensable to industry".

The Hon. Mr. Arcand and Mr. Paul A. Cooke had made an earnest appeal, added the speaker. "— You have awakened a new sense of responsibility. You have pointed the way to safety in order to reduce accidents, and I believe I am expressing the desire and wish of the entire population, in assuring you of our entire co-operation here in Lachute.

Other speakers were Messrs. Gilbert E. Ayers and J. A. McIntyre. In his closing remarks the chairman mentioned that the ancient Romans were most concerned with mishaps and accidents and considered these as a sign of greater evil to come. "Since these people of ancient times believed in safety, we, in these modern days, should be more alert and safety conscious," he concluded.

WORKERS' SAFETY RALLY

This two-day convention was closed by a large workers' rally held in the Auditorium. Among those present were Mayor Carriere and Mr. George Héon.

The Hon. Mr. Arcand and Mr. Paul Cooke again delivered "pep" talks" on the safety theme, following which motion pictures were presented by Messrs. E. Fontaine and C. Toupin, technicians in charge of the Safety Association's Ciné-car.

This convention was organized by E. E. L'Abbé, Safety officer and district organizer for the Association.

Honey Eases Pressure On the Sugar Bowl

"How doth the busy little bee improve each shining hour?

We might paraphrase the answer to that well-known line and say that he must have been searching for nylons for his queen this summer, because he doesn't seem to have been working as hard at storing up honey in eastern and central Canada as he might. However, with the honey which is available it can still help to relieve the pressure on the sugar bowl, say the home economists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture's Consumer Section. They suggest different ways honey may be used.

Granted one sugar is being substituted for another, but there are some advantages in using honey. It doesn't remain undissolved in the bottom of the cup when used to sweeten beverages as sugar often does. Liquid honey, warmed slightly and spread over the morning cereal adds flavor and sweetness. It makes an excellent sweetener for fresh or cooked fruits. For example, mixed with a little cloves or cinnamon it adds a new note to baked pears or apples.

Part of the sugar may be replaced with an equal quantity of honey in baking. Cookies and cakes retain their moisture longer when honey is used; not because of this hygroscopic property of honey, that is its ability to absorb and hold moisture, it should not be stored in the refrigerator or in a damp place. It will absorb moisture and gradually become diluted to the point where spoilage will occur. Honey should be stored covered in a dry place. The pantry shelf is as good a place as any.

If granulated honey should start to ferment, it may be reclaimed by heating slowly over hot water or by setting the container (if waterproof) directly in hot water, until honey is completely liquified. Skim and cool as quickly as possible. It is a good idea to give this treatment to any honey which is to be stored in any quantity for a length of time.

The recipes for today feature honey, and it is suggested that any one of them would make a nice addition to the Thanksgiving menu.

Apple Squash Scallop

4 Cups squash cut in ½" slices, 3 medium apples sliced (about 3 cups), ¼ cup honey, 1 tablespoon water, 1 cup soft stale bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon fat melted, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, pepper, 1½ teaspoon salt.

Place alternate layers of squash and sliced apples in a greased casserole. Drizzle each layer with honey, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add water. Top last layer with crumbs which have been mixed with the melted fat, poultry seasoning, salt and pepper. Bake in a moderate oven 350°F. for 45 minutes or until squash and apples are tender. Six servings.

Spanish Cream

1 Tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, 2 egg yolks, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons honey (liquid or granulated) 2 egg whites.

Soak gelatine in cold water. Add salt to milk and heat in double boiler. Beat egg yolks slightly and pour hot milk slowly into them, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened, about ten minutes, or until mixture coats a silver spoon. Remove from heat, add vanilla and gelatine and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Chill until mixture just begins to thicken, then fold in meringue made by beating honey and egg whites together until stiff. Pour into mould rinsed with cold water or lightly greased, and chill until firm. Six servings.

POOR HAUL OF SEAL LIMITS FUR SUPPLY

Anchorage, Alaska (CP) — The scientifically-conducted fur seal harvest in the bleak Pribilof Islands has been completed for 1946 and there won't be many Alaska seal coats available — even for women who can afford such luxurious apparel.

Latest unofficial reports give 64,523 as the number of seals taken this year from the Pribilofs — St. Paul and St. George Islands — in the Bering Sea.

Dr. George Prefontaine of Montreal University, one of the first Canadians to visit the Pribilofs since 1914, reported the kill was smaller than expected due to later migration of the seals. Last year the take was about 78,000 and in 1943 it was 117,000. None was taken in 1944 because of the war.

Last year's census of the seal population, Dr. Prefontaine said, revealed there were nearly 3,000,000 in the island rookeries. This contrasts sharply with 1912 when the herd numbered only 130,000 and extinction was threatened. Next year the U.S. bureau of fisheries took charge and increased the herd by scientific management.

Teachers Curtail Annual Convention

Owing to the epidemic of poliomyelitis which prevented many schools from opening on September 3, the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers has decided to curtail its annual convention — according to a notice sent out yesterday by Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education.

The first day of the teachers' convention, originally planned for October 10, was intended as a school holiday to allow teachers to attend. Owing to curtailment of the convention, however, October 10 has now been declared to be a full teaching day.

Guy Navion of Lachute Creamery rolled 285 for high single in the Commercial League, breaking his brother's record of 282, while Jacques still holds the record for high triple. Bédard Ltée and Albert Malacket are the only two teams with no losses, and are equal in the lead. Malacket took three straight against T. McOuat & Son Lt'd., while Bédard Ltée. beat Esquire Shop. Both losing teams played with tough breaks and ran very close until the decision. As the schedule progresses, many surprises are expected from the under-dog teams.

Ayers Inter-Departmental League started with a boom Friday night, Cotton and Spinning both leading with a three-straight victory against Shipping and Drying. Weaving and Fulling came out with a four-all decision while Cloth Weaving and Cloth Finishing also reached a draw. Roger Gravel rolled the highest of the evening with a score of 261, with J. Desrosiers rolling 258, 180 and 235 for the high triple of 673.

In the Wilson Inter-Departmental League, R. Cairns (Office) now holds the lead for the average, with 190, closely followed by Leon Gibeault with 182. Office and Machine Shop took three straight against their opponents, Shipping and Factory. S. Noble and R. Cairns both rolled 213 for highest single of the night, closely followed by H. Lightbown with 212. Highest triple of the night was scored by R. Cairns, 620.

Next Sunday at 2 p.m. the Bolodrome ten pins team will be hosts to the Brownsburg Bowling Academy team. Enthusiasts are cordially invited to witness these games.

The following leagues are now in full swing at the Bolodrome — Commercial League Sections A & B; Service Clubs League; Girls' Commercial League; Ayers Inter-Departmental, and Wilson Inter-Departmental Leagues.

The Lachute Mixed Bowling League and the Married Couples' League are expected to be in operation by next week.

LACHUTE COLLABORATING THIS WEEK IN NATIONAL THEME OF 'FIRE PREVENTION'

Precaution Stressed in Many Phases of Annual Observance

Talks, Drills and Demonstrations

With commendable zeal, Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon has seen to it that Lachute as a community measures up to its full responsibilities in the observance of Fire Prevention Week — proclaimed this year for October 6 to 12, inclusive. This national occasion, timed to coincide with the advent of winter heating in homes and buildings of the nation, is designed to impress the need of constant care, so that loss of life and property from this dread cause may be radically curbed.

Addresses Service Club

At the regular Lions Club meeting last week, Fire Chief Deacon took occasion to press the subject of Fire Prevention in a brief talk. It was the duty of Lachute Fire Department to keep losses of this town to a minimum, he said, citing figures from the record. . . In 1944 the fire loss for Lachute was $7,380; in 1945, $13,395. The average per capita loss over a five-year period had been $2.31. In Montreal, by comparison, the figure for the same period was $3.81, and for the whole of Canada, $3.

At the rate experienced in Canada, and based upon an official population of 5,335, this town would show on annual loss averaging $16,000. But Lachute had a more favorable record than this, Mr. Deacon pointed out. However, the total this year stood now at $9,000, and it was very apparent that care must be exercised to keep Lachute in its preferred standing. . . The 1946 records included one major fire loss, at the Malacket store, West End, where the insurance claim amounted to $7,264. There had been altogether 57 fire calls this year, with no others of any serious consequence.

While the Fire Department considered this matter of fire losses constantly in terms of figures, and resultant insurance rates — it behooved the public to accept their responsibility and keep Fire Prevention always uppermost in their considerations, Mr. Deacon said.

Many Phases in Observance Of Fire Prevention Week

Besides this discourse to the Lions Club, Chief Deacon also addressed the Boy Scout meeting last evening, and during the week has spoken in simple but forceful terms before all the schools of the community — assisted in the French-speaking institutions by Police Chief D. Villeneuve. Fire drills have also been held at these schools. On Tuesday at Lachute High School a satisfactory performance was marked up by the 460 pupils in attendance — who vacated the building in an efficient and orderly manner in one and a half minutes flat. Drills at the Catholic Schools were held the following day.

The opening salvo of this national week was heard from the church pulpits last Sunday. On Monday evening, the usual parade of fire equipment, with illuminated Fire Prevention banners, was held through the town thoroughfares.

In addition to these demonstrations, posters have been liberally displayed around town, and at least two store windows have been devoted to a display on the Fire Prevention theme — those of Geo. Y. Deacon and R. McArthur & Son, both on Main Street West.

Red Cross Tackles Sewing Quota, Europe Relief

The October meeting of Lachute Red Cross was held in the basement of the United Church — as an outcome of which, an urgent appeal is being made for the loan of sewing machines to complete the quota of sewing for Europe.

Contributions amounting to $300 were received from Lachute Golf Club for the Swimming Pool and Water Safety project.

A letter of appreciation was read for the services rendered by the Red Cross to war brides and their relatives on arrival in Canada.

A presentation of Red Cross pins was deferred until the lists are completed.

Bulletin news included a reference to plans now being made by Red Cross headquarters to establish blood donor clinics on a peacetime basis across Canada.

Two Arson Suspects Held at St. Jerome

St. Jerome, Oct. 7 — Two arson suspects, sought for the setting of 13 fires in the St. Sauveur - Ste. Marguerite area last winter, are under arrest by the Provincial Police at St. Jerome.

A series of suspected fires, in one of which a Montreal lawyer died, struck the lower Laurentians late last winter. Hardly a week-end passed without one or two of the more pretentious summer and winter mountain cottages being razed. The fires even spread to the mid-week.

For a long time, in view of arrangements made by cottage owners with local farmers to have fires burning in the cottages for their arrival, the blazes were believed due to sparks from fireplaces burning under forced draft, or from overheated stove pipes. Some owners whose cottages burned were under that impression. Other fires, however, were definitely set, it appeared from evidence.

Working on the case through the spring and summer, Det. Legault, stationed at St. Jerome, traced the activities of a number of persons and finally took two suspects into custody.

One confessed to setting a fire at St. Sauveur, it was reported, while both gave information concerning 12 other blazes, including the one in which J. H. Audette, Montreal lawyer, died. It was believed at the time he had suffocated from the fumes of a mattress set afire by a dropped cigarette.

The names of the suspects are withheld by the police pending further investigation.

Forums' Rally to Stir Enthusiasm For Active Season

LACHUTE MAN PRESIDENT OF QUEBEC COUNCIL AND COUNTY COMMITTEE

The Farm Forums of this county are meeting in a rally at the Lachute High School on Tuesday, October 15. Headline speaker for the event is Leonard Harman, general secretary of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, Toronto. Mr. Harman is an outstanding authority on farm problems, and will deal with the urgent question of the post-war period that farmers are facing.

Mr. Harman is spending most of a week in Quebec and will address rallies at Knowlton, Farrellton and Bristol, as well as Lachute. He will be accompanied by Stuart Armstrong, of this community, who is president of the Quebec Council of Farm Forums, and Joseph Galway, secretary of Farm Forums in Quebec.

Stuart Armstrong, president, informs this newspaper that the County Committee of Farm Forums is putting on a drive this fall to organize still more Forums in Argenteuil. Last year 15 Forums were registered — at Ogdensburg, North River, Mabel, Lachute Road, Jerusalem-Bethany, Hill Foot, Harrington, Geneva, East Settlement, Crystal Falls, Avoca, and four in Arundel area.

At a recent meeting the Council made plans to extend its work into new areas.

Wolf, Bear and Moose in Hunters' Assorted Haul

From the district come reports indicating that hunters are reaping a heydey haul this autumn. Quantity is surpassed only by the variety of game. The duck and deer shooting have produced good results, while a large bull moose was shot recently at Brookdale, near Rivington. The party sharing this experience included F. and R. Currie, of Gramont, Dave Smith, Rivington, and a fourth member of the group from St. Emile.

Numerous instances of predatory animals attacking sheep, have been reported from northern sections of the county, and these specimens have also been shot in various neighborhoods. Two bears are reported to have been bagged near Arundel, while D. J. Bates, of Lachute, shot a cub at Avoca. In the vicinity of Rainbow Lake, beyond Lake Louisa, Syd Drew of Montreal shot a young wolf last week-end. He was accompanied by Henry Dion, of Lachute, who states they sighted two wolves together at this spot, but the larger one got away.

SALE ADS REACH DISTANT READERS

A regular user of the "Want and For Sale" column in this paper, reports this week having received enquiries concerning local property from two distant readers — one in Saskatchewan and the other at Pembroke, Ont.

Besides proving the effectiveness of this form of advertising, it is gratifying from these indications to find that local real estate is in good esteem, and Lachute well favored as a residential spot.

Another Lachute Man A Scientist In Important Role

DR. GEORGE BAIN WINS U.S.A. GOLD MEDAL FOR "EXCEPTIONAL SERVICES"

The recent acclaim of an Argenteuil man among the celebrities of science (we refer, of course to Dr. John T. Williamson, discoverer of a rich diamond mine in Tanganyika) — reminded many hereabouts that this community claims yet another brilliant geologist, Dr. George W. Bain, who has risen to the forefront in international affairs and won notable recognition.

Geo. W. Bain, B.A., M.Sc., D.Ph., was recently awarded a gold medal by the U.S. War Department in recognition of "exceptional services". A professor of geology at Amhert College in Massachusetts, the particular "services" referred to, demanding much of his time and scientific skill, are a matter concerning which he will not talk. Regarding the international aspects of his work, and the frequency of his trips abroad, his relatives here know little.

Dr. Bain, in Montreal last week-end while attending the 25th anniversary of McGill faculty of Applied Science, was met in the city by his mother, Mrs. John Scott of Hill Foot, his sister Mrs. Leslie Gordon, and an uncle, Chas. McFaul.

Born and educated here in Lachute, he proceeded to McGill University for his higher studies and the degrees of B.A. and M.Sc., about 25 years ago. He took his Ph.D. from Columbia University, and has been a professor of geology at Amherst College since that time.

Over 200 Listed for Presentation and Civic Reception

COMMITTEE TO CLOSE LIST OCTOBER 31

Many townsfolk have been questioning as to progress of the plans for a civic reception to Lachute's veterans. Work of the committee was necessarily suspended during the summer, but a meeting was held last Friday to press their plans to a conclusion.

The first requirement to ensure success and general satisfaction in this gesture, is that the list of recipients be complete, with no eligible ex-service personnel omitted. To achieve this end, it was decided by the committee to publish the list as it stands to date, while appealing to the public to co-operate in submitting any names so far overlooked. The committee's appeal, together with the list, appears on page four of this issue.

(It will be noted, the end of this month is deadline for any additions; readers are therefore urged to act promptly.)

There are well over 200 ex-servicemen and women who will participate in the reception and expression of this community's gratitude — including the number who made the supreme sacrifice, and on whose behalf their relatives will be accorded fitting acknowledgment. The total of Lachute Town veterans of the recent war now reaches well over 200.

Two Held For Garage Thefts

The garage thefts which reached epidemic proportions around these parts a few weeks ago, gave evidence of a new outbreak this week. At the Cyr garage and service station on Maple Avenue, Brownsburg, thieves entered the premises last Friday night and made off with goods valued at $500. The haul included car batteries, accessories and a radio. . . . Again, during Tuesday night of this week, a garage was broken into at Weir and loot was removed to the reported value of $1,000.

Det. Leopold Dauphin, provincial police officer in Lachute, is investigating the two robberies.

* * *

A lively session is reported by Police Chief D. Villeneuve and Cst. A. Page last night, when two men were apprehended on suspicion of intending to rob the Cayer Garage, Main Street West. The men separated when the police arrived at the scene — leaving their car, with tell-tale evidences and instruments of their trade. One, Lucien Larose, 23, was taken in charge shortly before 3 a.m., and his partner, Fernand Chartrand, 30, was arrested half an hour later. Both are from Montreal.

Suspicion points to participation of this pair in several previous garage robberies here. A detective arrived from city headquarters to place them under arrest, and they were promptly removed to Montreal.

Discovery and Production of Gems Provides Topic of Timely Interest

Angles of Subject by Lovell Baker, Gemologist, Have Bearing on Recent Diamond "Find"

Brownsburg — "Twenty-three thousand miles in search of diamonds" was the appropriate, in-the-news subject of a talk to the Rotary Club of Brownsburg at their last meeting, by a certified gemologist of the Gemological Society, Mr. Lovell Baker — who is also vice-president of Henry Birks and Sons.

Some of the interesting highlights, as described by this world traveller, were most educational as well as amusing.

London, to him, presented a grim picture. Standing on the steps of St. Paul's, one sees practically nothing but empty cellars. The food conditions in England, the speaker found on a recent trip, were still very poor. "Yes, there is food", he said, "Fish, fish and more fish, and bread is considered one of the courses of the meal". Housewives must queue up for meagre and monotonous fare.

In contrast, Brussels could supply any food you could pay for — but at what prices!

Entering Africa through Cairo, the traveller is amused by the health officer who boards the plane and vigorously fills the air with a disinfecting powder. You must then produce or obtain a yellow fever certificate, and the speaker was amazed at the speed and efficiency of the British doctor who inoculated him and delivered such a certificate, all in 2¾ minutes.

In Cairo, East truly meets West. Here you see the most modern Cadillacs, Packards and other luxury cars, along with ancient-looking carriages, donkeys, camels and even wagons pulled by humans.

The pyramids impressed Mr. Baker, as they no doubt do every person who has observed their vastness — with 25-ton building stones, yet with mathematical precision that baffles solution.

Flying across Egypt, one can see the fertility brought to the desert by British engineers. The green growth stops at the end of irrigation as if cut with a knife. The dry useless desert then starts, and stretches as far as the eye can see.

Travelling south into the diamond country — Tanganyika, the home of the present great "find", appears from an airplane like a dense tropical forest. The difficulty of making a diamond discovery under such conditions, can be imagined. The possibility of it being a sensationally great discovery, may be somewhat modified by the fact that to date there have been 124 diamond mines discovered. Of this number, only 25 produced enough to pay the expense of mining, and of these, only 12 paid dividends to their owners. At present there are only two mines producing. The DeBeers Mining Corporation control all the African mining to date. The "cartel" control the price of diamonds, rather than the output. The fact that only 5% of all stones mined are suitable for gems, and of these, only 1% are of first-class quality, is an important factor.

It was interesting to learn that there is no surplus bank of diamonds. Output is sold as it is produced.

Mining is so costly that some of the large mines, closed during the war, will not be reopened.

Man has never been able to produce diamonds on a commercial basis.

Thanks of the club were expressed to the speaker by Harold Dando.

For Thursday of this week the Brownsburg club has accepted the invitation of the Montreal-Westward Rotary Club to visit them in Montreal, at a combined meeting.

St. Jerusalem to Honor Servicemen Friday Night

It is expected that the function tomorrow evening (Friday) honoring 75 servicemen and women from the Parish of St. Jerusalem, will be attended by a large gathering representative of the entire community.

Considerable planning and canvassing by the "Veterans' Reception Committee" under chairmanship of Mayor E. W. Smith, has brought this public gesture to the stage of realization. The program arranged provides for an expression of the community's earnest tribute to its veterans, with a banquet and presentation, besides social diversion and dancing to round out the celebration.

The presentation — to which the vast majority of homes throughout the parish have proudly contributed — will take the form of a signet ring to each of the 69 men, and an initialed gold bracelet to the six women, who served in the forces from St. Jerusalem.

The banquet, tendered to the ex-service personnel and their parents, will take place in the hall of Lachute United Church, with Stuart Armstrong as M.C. and toastmaster. The gathering will then adjourn to the Auditorium, where they will be joined by the community at large, and the presentations will be made with Mayor E. W. Smith as chairman. Lowe Bros. and Edgar Jackson will provide music for the session of dancing to follow.

(The time, and further particulars of this event, are advertised on page 7.)

CHAIRMAN HERE STRESSES APPEAL IN RED SHIELD DRIVE

The Salvation Army "Red Shield Drive" — the public appeal for funds to carry on the Army's vast charitable work — needs no fanfare of commendation to the local people. The Army campaigners are concentrating, this week particularly, for a generous response to their appeal. Chairman for the drive in this community is Mr. Eric A. Hibbard, manager of the Bank of Montreal in Lachute. Any citizen who desires to contribute — and regular subscribers who have so far overlooked the matter — may kindly hand their donations to Mr. Hibbard or forward them by mail.

FIJI AND EDUCATION

Suva, Fiji (CP) — A new centre for the Fiji Governmental Training College will be established at the site of the former Queen Victoria School at Nasimu. The site was used as a military hospital during the war and some of the hospital and school buildings will be incorporated in the new centre. Accommodation will at first be planned for 180 but on expansion will hold 240.

Caught Turtle Weighing 60 lbs.

A 60-lb. turtle caught recently by Gordon Boyd, of Lachute, is a rare prize — even though it may be rated a doubtful asset around the camp at Port Lewis, Que., which he is at present occupying.

Mr. Boyd, who was posted to the Bell Telephone office here this spring, has been vacationing for the past two weeks at Port Lewis, Huntingdon County. While on a duck hunting expedition, he espied a movement in the weeds and thought at first it was a fish. Upon investigation he discovered it was a big turtle, and grabbed it by the tail. Later he tied a rope on it and fastened it to the boat. While he was tying it to the boat, the turtle started to pull the craft through the weeds. Later he got it secured and dragged it behind the boat to the shore. "The turtle weighs 60 lbs. and is quite a powerful animal — or whatever you like to call it," the Huntingdon Gleaner, reporting this unusual catch, "No one can say how old it is, but turtles are known to have lived for a hundred years and it is just possible this fellow is quite old too. Mr. Boyd has the turtle tied up at the lake at present, but intends to let it go shortly and enjoy its freedom."

That learning is most requisite which unlearns evil. — Antisthenes

New British Aircraft Will Carry Out Tests in Manitoba

Following its participation in a paratroop display at the International Air Show at De-Havilland Airport, Toronto, Britain's new aircraft now touring Canada and the United States, the Bristol Freighter, is to be tested by the Canadian Army and the R.C.A.F. The big aircraft left Toronto just recently to carry out these tests in Manitoba. The Bristol Freighter unloaded jeeps and a field gun in support of paratroops attacking enemy gun positions in the display. Two jeeps and a field gun were unloaded from the aircraft in two-and-a-half minutes.

Bears Preying On Livestock

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — Bears are becoming a nuisance to livestock in this district, several sheep having been killed on the farm of L. Rathwell last week. Two bears already have been killed, one by Messrs. S. Swail, W. Craig and L. Rathwell, and the second by W. M. Proudlock and Victor Craig.

Wolf Cub Pack

The fourth meeting of the 1st Lachute Wolf Cub Pack was held last night, with a full attendance of 37 boys. Two new sixes were organized, the Green six, with Billy Steeves as "sixer", and the Black six, under Wayne Riddell. The main interest of the evening was the planning of a party for the evening of October 12, which will be the big event of the season for the Pack and their new leader, Quentin James, of Lachute.

Farmyard Manure Serves Best on the Land

By Prof. G. N. Ruhnke and Prof. Henry G. Bell
O.A.C. Soils Dept. (Bulletin 426)

Manure Piles Suffer Loss Of Nitrogen and Potash From Seepage

What Is Best to Do With Manure

Get it out on the land! On most farms there will be more time to haul manure in winter than in the busy crop season. Spread it by hand or machinery.

Never leave manure in small piles; this is very important. It is estimated that 40 per cent of the soluble plant food is lost by storing manure in barnyards.

When manure is spread on the land, soluble plant food washes into the soil, where much of it is retained for next year's crops.

The rotting bedding of straw or other litter has absorbed much of the liquid manure — hence it is full of valuable plant food.

Litter forms valuable humus for the soil, increasing its water-holding capacity, improving its aeration, and constituting a home in the soil and food for bacteria and other soil organisms.

Over half the nitrogen and potash is quickly available as plant food. The phosphoric acid is largely in organic form (in straw and solids of manure). This becomes available with the disintegration of the straw or bedding.

Manure Comparisons *

A ton of manure of various farm animals compares as follows:—

	Nitrogen	Phosphoric Acid	Potash
Horse	12 lbs.	6 lbs.	15 lbs.
Cattle	12 lbs.	6 lbs.	10 lbs.
Hogs	15 lbs.	10 lbs.	15 lbs.
Sheep	27 lbs.	10 lbs.	23 lbs.
Poultry	22 lbs.	17 lbs.	11 lbs.

* Data compiled from various sources. (Recommendations for for Soil Management and Use of Fertilizers).

Don't Let Manure Deteriorate in The Barnyard, Spread It on the Fields Daily or Weekly

Where Should the Manure be Applied?

Some good farmers favor manure on land that is to grow corn or roots next spring. These are deep and abundant-rooted crops which probably make the best use of manure.

It is common practice also to spread manure on lighter soils and knolls where other cultivated crops are to be grown.

Some farmers prefer top-dressing meadows with manure, to increase the hay yield.

Fortunately it is often convenient to top-dress meadows when other fields cannot be treated.

How May Losses of Manure be Prevented?

(a) Loss of liquid manure.

If liquid manure is carelessly allowed to run away, either in the stable or in the field, there is tremendous loss of valuable plant food. All liquid manure should be absorbed by abundant bedding with straw or other litter.

(b) If manure is piled underneath the eaves of the barn so that every rain or melting snow washes through it, there is very great loss of nitrogen and potash in the streams that run away from the barnyard.

(c) If manure is piled loosely in the barnyard or in the field, bacterial action in the interior part of the pile is increased. Nitrogen is lost as ammonia is given off.

Fire-fanging causes a breaking down of the straw or litter with liberation into the air of the gas carbon dioxide; hence the humus of the manure is destroyed. If piling is necessary, fire-fanging can be avoided by keeping the manure pile packed fairly compactly.

How Should Manure be Applied?

Several leading experiment stations report that larger returns per ton of manure are realized from moderate light and frequent applications than from heavy and infrequent dressings.

General experience indicates that when manure is spread moderately thin and supplemented by phosphates or suitable combinations of phosphate and potash, its power to produce increases is greatly enhanced, as is also the profit from the entire investment.

Where an excessive amount of straw is found in the manure it is good business to apply at least 100 lbs. per acre of a nitrogen carrier, such as Cyanamid or Sulphate of Ammonia, broadcast on top of the spread manure just before it is plowed into the soil. This additional nitrogen gives immediate food to the bacteria which cause the rotting down of the straw.

Is Phosphating Manure A Profitable Practice?

Realising that there is a considerable loss of nitrogen from manure as it is handled from the stable to the pile, many farmers are finding it good practice to use phosphate, sometimes called "stable phosphate," in the stalls. Super-phosphate is scattered over the lower part of the stall and in the gutters at cleaning time at the rate of one-half pound per head per day. It absorbs much of the escaping ammonia, thus accomplishes a definite saving in the nitrogen of the manure. It also builds up the phosphoric acid of the manure and makes manure a better balanced plant food, especially for cereal crops. The superphosphate is a drying agent and to some extent a deoderant. Farmers who have conducted careful comparisons of phosphated manure vs. manure without phosphate find that the former manure is stronger as a plant grower and produces larger yields of plumper grain.

Don't Sell Manure!

Some farmers, in order to increase their cash income, are selling manure piles from their farms. This manure has been gathered from the livestock that fed on products of the land. Surely the fertility that was taken out of the soil belongs to the farm from which it was taken. As well might one sell the foundation stones from his house or barn as to sell manure from the farm and expect to keep it a going concern. Manure is an essential part of the production program of the farm.

Manure Prevents Soil Erosion

From many of the knolls and upper lands of rolling fields not only is plant food washed out, but the surface itself is in many cases washed to lower levels and frequently far from the farm where it originated. The primary cause of this erosion is the destruction of organic matter or soil humus. Strawy manure is one of the richest sources of humus for soils; hence it can be made a factor of first importance in preventing soil erosion.

Mobile Recruiting Unit for R.C.A.F. Here on Saturday

The Air Force has openings in all ground crew trades such as — Air Frame Mechanics, Electricians, Radio Operators, Radar Mechanics, Clerk Accountants, Clerk Administration, and many others.

Young men wishing to enlist without previous experience must be over 18 years of age and under 26. They normally should have Junior Matriculation, but full consideration is given a young man with Grade X and with civilian experience in a trade.

R.C.A.F. veterans applying for re-enlistment will be advised as soon as possible regarding the rank they will receive on re-appointment. Army and Navy veterans applying for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. will be given full consideration for their service time and experience.

Skilled tradesmen, without previous experience, will be accepted up to age 30, whether married or single.

The peacetime R.C.A.F. offers all young men the opportunity to travel, the finest training in all skilled trades, free medical, dental and clothing service, recreational facilities and the opportunity of competing in competitive sports, liberal allowances for married men, adequate pay and a substantial pension at the end of 20 years service.

All enlistees accepted by the Recruiting Officer are given free transportation to No. 1 Air Command, Trenton, or nearest recruiting centre. There they go through all the details of enlistment. Then they are posted to No. 1 Manning Depot, Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, for basic training and from there are sent to a trade school to commence training in the service trade they have selected.

The mobile recruiting unit has made a complete tour of Quebec so that every young man may have the opportunity of presenting himself for enlistment.

Graduates of business colleges, high schools and technical schools are seriously advised to consider the peacetime R.C.A.F. as their future career.

All young men not able to contact the Recruiting Unit here in Lachute may, by writing to No. 1 Air Command, Trenton, Ont., receive full particulars on enlistment.

A PRIZE "BEEF"

Lots of farmers are pretty good sticks but — no doubt about it — they have built a monument to themselves for their ability to grouse and grumble. If there's anything worth beefing about, the farmers will beef. Best example we ever heard of the lengths to which a farmer will go for a beef goes like this: a city feller was enthusing away to the farmer about how well things looked for a bumper crop. "Don't like it," said the farmer, "bumper crop always takes the strength outa the soil". — Russell (Man.) Banner

Britain Expedites Farm Mechanization

London (CP)—Making haste with the mechanization of agriculture, a process encouraged by war, the United Kingdom produced 13,298 agricultural tractors in the first half of 1946 compared with 10,049 in all 1938.

In addition, 6,710 market-garden tractors were produced against 650 in 1938.

Tractor production boomed during the war years — 15,600 in 1939; 19,000 in 1940; 24,000 in 1941; 27,000 in 1942; 25,000 in 1943 and 23,000 in 1944 and 1945.

Production of tractor-drawn plows rose from 5,156 in 1938 to 12,882 in 1945 and 9,000 in the six months of this year. Four combine harvesters were produced in 1943 and 107 in 1945.

Home production of farm machinery was supplemented by extensive imports from Canada and the United States during the war.

PLAN BOYS' TOWN AT JOLIETTE, QUE.

Joliette, Que. (CP) — Chances of Quebec having its own permanent "Boys' Town" in this municipality 16 miles from Montreal, are good, "if all goes well," according to Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal.

Occasion of the statement was a recent address by Mayor Houde to some 60 youths, aged eight to 18 who have been living for some time at a camp for youthful delinquents founded and directed by Rev. Albert Roger of Montreal.

Father Roger first conceived the idea in 1940 as a method of keeping the delinquents from being sent back to the environment that had produced them. Four years ago, the present camp was built by funds from several organizations and delinquent youths are taken there for several months to enjoy the varied recreational life and self-government which the camp affords.

Under the system, funds for juvenile penal institutions will go toward building a camp that will operate similarly to the famed "Boys' Town" of Father Flannagan in the United States.

In the present camp, the boys have their own mayor, courts of peace and of order.

We don't have to be good at everything, but everything we do should be good.

STOLEN STEER

Alvinston, Ont. (CP) — A hole cut in the fence and a few corn stalks in the corner of his field were all Stanley McLachlan found when he went to look for his 600-pound steer one morning. Signs indicated that the animal was loaded onto a truck after a struggle.

Thanksgiving — 1946

A FAR from flattering likeness has emerged from a recent spate of articles and letters to editors purporting to explain Canadians to themselves, analyze the national character, delve into the influences which have made the people of this country what they are.

These outpourings typify the Canadian as a chronic worrier. Secretly, they say, he's proud of his native land; publicly, he'd like to see it returned to the Indians. He's immature in that he's quick to criticize other lands and peoples; indignant if, in return, foreigners venture mildly to criticize those features of Canadian life which differ from their own.

The Canadian, writers of these analytical articles continue, lives in the fairest land on earth — but he doesn't know it. He's fearful, tortured with doubts; he deprecates the achievements of his fellow citizens, yet shakes his head sorrowfully over those expatriates — and they are numerous — who have attained eminence in the United States and elsewhere.

No doubt the mood of introspection induced by such writing is salutary — in moderation. But we cannot think of a season more appropriate than Thanksgiving in which to evaluate the factors on the assets side of the National ledger.

True, Canada is plagued with housing and material shortages. Industrial discord has been widespread; amity as between province and province, the provinces and the Dominion is, to say the least, not all it might be.

Leave to the poets the description of the autumnal glories of this Dominion — the tang of burning leaves, the tapestry of color with which nature dapples the landscape at the fall of the year — but let us remember that to hundreds of thousands of people merely to live in and enjoy the bounty of this land is a privilege almost too good to be true.

Think, for instance, of the little Scottish war bride, en route to Saskatoon from her native Aberdeen, who shyly confided to fellow passengers on a westbound train that every time she had a meal in the diner — a boring rite to others — she felt guilty because of the wartime hardships her family had undergone.

Let's be humbly thankful we live in this favored, untouched country — and properly proud of it.

The New Savings Bonds

CANADIANS who learned the value of saving money during the war when they were asked to do it for victory will soon have an opportunity to carry their thriftiness into peacetime.

The peacetime version of Victory Bonds is known as Canada Savings Bonds, and goes on sale at chartered banks October 15. The new bonds have one main difference from the victory variety in that they are not intended primarily to raise money, but to keep Canadians from spending it.

With Canadian consumer purchasing power greater than ever before, and consumer goods still scarce, there is a great danger of inflation, and the government wishes to encourage Canadians to save their money instead of competing for scarce goods and thus driving prices up.

So, where insurance companies and banks formerly shouldered a large burden of a victory bond drive, the new bonds are limited to the small investor — to $2,000 in individual purchases. And in order to enforce this restriction on holdings, all bonds must be registered and will be non-transferable and non-assignable.

The bonds will bear an interest of 2.75 per cent by annual coupon, and Canadian workers will be able to obtain them through their employers, as before, on the payroll savings plan. An attractive feature is that they may be cashed at any time at any bank in Canada, although their normal term is from Nov. 1, 1946, to Nov. 1, 1956.

Finance Minister Ilsley, announcing the terms, pointed out they were at least as favorable as any investment available at the time of issue.

The only investment which could be compared for security was other Dominion of Canada bonds. Of these, the three per cent Canada bonds maturing in 1959 and callable in 1956 had a current theoretical yield of approximately 2.43 per cent, plus the feature of redemption on demand at any bank at 100 per cent, "makes the new security more attractive than any similar investment available today."

There is one stickler; you may have to go and buy them yourself. Where Canada employed some 13,000 salesmen to sell the victory bonds, the new issue is available only through banks, authorized investment dealers, stock brokers or trust or loan companies, or through employers on the payroll savings plan.

New Deal for the Farmer

INDUSTRIAL workers during the past hundred years have waged a bitter fight towards the improvement of labor conditions, with one of the most controversial issues being the number of work hours in a week. The pre-war accepted was 48 hours, six days of eight hours each, and some provinces have passed laws that workers must not work longer without special overtime pay. The general trend now, however, is towards the 44 hour week, five days of eight hours, and unions have been sponsoring a strong campaign to bring this into effect. Many plants have already signed agreements and the 44 hour week will probably become general within the next year or two. Unions are keen on shortening the working time since such a reduction means employment for more men, and the ultimate aim of labor is said to be a 30-hour week, five days with six hour shifts.

The move towards less work is being observed with increasing interest by the Canadian farmer. When he compares his financial return for a 10-hour day or longer with the working conditions and pay of the factory man, the farmer begins to wonder if he is being cheated, or just plain foolish to work so hard. A farmer is a highly skilled man, yet in most cases he receives less per hour than a non-skilled factory worker. The farmer works 65 or 70 hours a week, sometimes longer during the busy seasons — conditions which the industrial worker cast aside 50 years ago.

The farmer is beginning to realize that he is holding the heavy end of the stick. He has taken a long time to get aroused, but now that he has sensed the circumstances it is more than likely that something will be done to correct them. There is no reason why a farmer should not enjoy an eight-hour day, even if it means hiring more men. There is no reason why the remotest farm house should not have present day comforts such as electric lighting plants, indoor water systems, plumbing fixtures and central heating, none of which can be classed as a luxury. Of course, it will mean that the farmer will have to demand higher prices for his produce, but the rest of Canada must accept the fact and pay. It is time the farmer had a new deal, and the present trend emphasizes that he means to have it.

"Home Helps"

THE AMERICAN publication, Pathfinder, warns not to wash walls from the top down, but rather from the bottom up, and it reports that the information comes from Columbia University, where janitors can now take a course designed to make cleaning a science rather than a chore. The theory behind washing from the bottom is that when you tackle a wall from the top down some of the dirty solution dribbles on the soiled wall below, leaving a streak even after the wall is cleaned. But if you start from the bottom and some of the solution runs down the wall, it's easy to rinse off, and won't stain.

While we have never attended a course at Columbia University on the science of cleaning, we have often been persuaded by our good wife to do considerable work around the home. In fact, our experience allows us to speak with some authority on the subject, so much have we done that we are tinged almost with professionalism.

In the beginning, our advice to the husband whose wife asks him to scrub the kitchen walls, is — do everything possible to avoid it! Put on the storm windows, repair the garage roof, dig up the garden bulbs — do anything which will save you handling a scrub-brush inside the house.

But if, after exhausting every excuse, your determined spouse is still demanding action, pursue your labors with great reluctance. Display a hurt indignity. Gnaw at her conscience. Get in the way, slop water over the kitchen floor — in short, be a general nuisance.

If such tactics fail, then be resigned to the job, knowing that your wife has the greater will power and you are a member of that ever-growing organization, the Society of Hen-Pecked Husbands. — Shake, pal!

HOMO SAPIENS

Man is a wonderful fellow, learning from the other animals the way he does. He studies the hawk and the vulture and flies through the air with the greatest of ease. He learns from the crab with its shell and the skunk with its tear gas. He considers the ways of the squirrel and becomes a hoarder; the ways of the snake in the grass and goes in for espionage. He observes the caterpillar and the hippopotamus, the shark and the crocodile, the mole and the hedgehog, and makes himself terrible on land and sea and underneath both. Finally he took a lesson from the bat and invented a radar buzz-bomb that automatically pursues and nails its fleeing prey. We cannot forget him, we loved him so dear —
His mem'ry grows sweeter, year after year."

"There's an open gate at the end of the road
Through which each must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see,
Our Father claims his own.

And there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best."

Lachute Citizens' Veterans' Reception Committee

Appeal for Co-operation of the Public

Due to circumstances beyond control, the Citizens' Veterans' Reception Committee in Lachute had to suspend activities during the summer.

However, a meeting was held Friday, October 4, in Lachute Town Hall to resume the activities of this committee towards the final completion of their undertaking.

The main element of success is that no names shall be omitted from those to be honored by the community in this project.

The committee therefore publish below the list of names they now have on hand, and they request the public to communicate to the secretary, Mr. Fernand Legault (tel. 60) the names of any omitted in the present list.

Eligible are "those from the town of Lachute, including any who were residing or working in Lachute at time of enlistment or who are residing in Lachute at present or working here, who have joined in the active service or have served overseas".

It is to be noted that those who have been the recipients of a similar reception in the neighboring communities are excluded. After October the 31st, no new names will be added to the list.

The committee asks the cooperation of the public to see that no names are omitted.

INTERRUPTED ROUND-UP

Champlin, Sask (CP) — Riding herd on his cattle with a two-ton truck, Steve Fedranko of this town, about 100 miles west of Regina, drove into a weed-covered open basement. He was uninjured but the car repairs cost $100.

SCHOOLBAGS WANTED

Calgary (CP) — Return of the schoolbag was recommended by the Calgary public school board, perturbed by wear and tear on board-issued textbooks. "If it were fashionable to use schoolbags, they'd use them," the board was told by teacher-adviser Miss H. B. Tillotson.

REPLANT FORESTS IN SASKATCHEWAN

Kamsack, Sask. (CP) — Man can't make a tree but Indian crews are doing the next best thing in rearing seedlings to be transplanted from the forestry station at nearby Madge Lake to the burnt-out areas of northern Saskatchewan.

Seedlings planted at the provincial government station 130 miles northeast of Regina include white and blue spruce and Jack Pine. They come from the Meadow Lake and Prince Albert areas. Last year 130,000 were planted at the station.

The seedlings are first planted in protected beds and then when a few inches high are transplanted to rows. Indians tend the plants in the beds, which are constantly watched and weeded.

LADY NELSON'S CAREER VARIED

Servicemen's Families Find Real Welcome On Former Hospital Ship

HALIFAX (CP) — The liner Lady Nelson, one of the last of the white "Lady" boats which ran in peacetime between Canadian ports and the British West Endies, recently passed the 200,000-mile mark in her voyages as a hospital ship and repatriation transport.

Of theCanadian National Steamships; "Lady" boat fleet, only the Lady Nelson and the Lady Rodney remain. The Lady Somers, Lady Drake and Lady Hawkins were lost by enemy action.

The Lady Nelson herself bears scars of war. A German U-boat fired a torpedo into her while she was moored at a pier in St. Lucia in 1942.

Salvaged and repaired, she became a hospital ship and as such carried some 25,000 wounded servicemen through the sumarine-infested waters of the Atlantic and the Mediterranean.

Once in the Bay of Biscay, she slipped through a cordon of German destroyers which later were routed by a task force of British and Canadian fighting ships.

When most of the wounded had been brought home, her hospital wards were turned into nurseries and play rooms for Servicemen's children, who, with their mothers, now are coming to Canada.

QUEBEC POPULATION

Quebec (CP) — Population of Quebec City now numbers 186,615 persons, according to a recent survey within the city limits.

Specially Written for The Watchman

By FRED KERNER

Not being much of an old salt, or a guy who'd sleep on a catboat at night to watch the sun come up, we arranged to see Harold Wilson and talk about speedboat racing. For if there's anyone in Canada who knows speedboats, it's the Ingersoll, Ont., racer who owns the famous Miss Canada powerboats.

Harold is reticent when it comes to talking of himself, but he admits he is just as fascinated with driving the powerful craft as are the people who crowd to watch them race. We've seen the little water bugs bouncing and leaping at terrific speed over the waves and it's hazardous, make no mistake about that.

These men put glory ahead of possible death every time they pull out the throttle. But we learned from the Miss Canada driver that while the spectators are awed and impressed by the drama, the wives and sweethearts of the drivers don't feel that way.

A special grandstand used to be set up for these gals, but the women were not interested. They wanted to be at the race pits when the boats came in. The boat gets the trophy, but the woman has her part in speedboat racing.

Mrs. Wilson, for instance, jeopardized her life in a Gold Cup race some years ago when she held down the broken cover of the engine hatch of Miss Canada to keep it from flying into her husband's face.

She hasn't raced since, for there are little Wilsons to be looked after. But she still spends time in the boat yard sitting near her husband as he readies his racer. Of course, Wilson had bad luck this year when his engine broke down after he led for the first three laps of the Gold Cup event.

The Cup itself was won by another Canadian-born driver, orchestra leader Guy Lombardo, who is famed for his fast boats and slow music.

But waiting is really the hard way for the women, since few get to race as did Betty Carstairs with her Estelle boats when she risked her neck in the Harmsworth Trophy races against the king of racers, Gar Wood.

Miss Carstairs was a plucky racer and she came back time and again to try and beat Wood. She achieved one distinction when she finished the 1930 race far behind the American driver, to become the first challenger up to that time ever to finish in a race with Wood.

Probably the worst spill she ever had was in 1928 when her Estelle II took a nose dive in the swell of a river ferry, went out of control, overturned and sank.

Records shatterered when Magistrate K. M. Langdon heard 100 cases in police court at Port Credit, all from Port Credit and Toronto Townships. . . None the worse was 14-year-old Victor Ewasuik, who went swimming in Minnedosa (Man.) lake, was swept over the spillway of the big dam for a thrilling ride. . . Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Barter, of Hartland, N.S., and Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Barter, of Avondale, made the trip by car to Vancouver in nine uneventful days; not even a flat tire. . . . When Mrs. R. McGillicuddy of Watford, Ont., was hanging out the washing she saw a skunk slip under the colony house where 300 pullets were housed. A neighbor brought a rifle and six shots brought the death of six skunks. . At Fesserton district in Ontario, J. Braithwaite has some potato plants behaving like grape vines, with spuds both on the vine and in the ground. . . On the farm of R. B. Langford, 21st Concession, Keppel Twsp. in Ontario, caught alive were two rare albino groundhogs. . . At a dance in Peace River, Alta., R.C.M.P. had to stop at Donnybrook, when four young men stopped the orchestra from playing "God Save the King", demanded "O Canada" instead; then the fight started. . . Only because it was in the Hanover (Ont.) Post would we believe this; even Ripley would be skeptical: "Mrs. Clifford Speer, Mr. Walter Dalgarno of Hanover, and Mr. Bert Pfohl of Durham, were visiting at the summer cottage of Mrs. N. St. Clair at Port Elgin and they decided to play a game of bridge. They played for one and a half hours and during that time grand slams were bid and made five times holding 13 club tricks each in the five hands."

Telephone Calls Have "Shot up" too!

TELEPHONE CALLS and Junior have a lot in common . . . both have grown at a breath-taking pace. And a switchboard is even harder to get than a new suit for Junior. That, in brief, is why the operator is often unable to answer you promptly.

Equipment is being added just as fast as the supply situation will permit. THEY'RE BACK...

TO SERVE YOU

When you visit your bank these days you are likely to see faces you have long missed — members of our permanent staff back from active service. Almost five thousand are "back on the job" while others are recovering from wounds and others are still with the forces.

These gallant men who left the banks to enlist and have come back have shown themselves to be alert, self-reliant, eager to get on with the business of living.

Some of them have been away for five years or more. Many have won distinction. All have acquitted themselves with honour. All are welcome back.

In your bank these men find appreciation, security and opportunity for advancement. Our plans for them express our sincere desire that, in banking service, they may find ample scope to make their further contribution to this nation's security.

"COUNTRY STORE"

By Edna Jaques

Remember the little country store at the cross-roads where mother and dad used to drive Saturday mornings, the back of the democrat loaded with eggs packed in sawdust and fresh rolls of butter wrapped in a clean cloth, and covered with rhubarb leaves to keep them cool?

Once inside the store door you entered an enchanting world where barrels of ginger-snaps and red apples sent out a heady odour, that you were to remember as long as you lived. On the shelves were jars filled with bright candy sticks and there were heavy overshoes and work clothing, warm mitts, and bolts of bright calico, fancy combs and pins for mother and the girls to admire and perhaps buy if the butter and egg money lasted long enough.

After the rolls of butter had been weighed and eggs counted, they were given the worth of them in trade. . Sugar — tea — turnip seed — baking powder — flour — a couple of yards of print for an apron — candy for a little boy.

That was what the little store held for them — TRADE. Exchanging the fresh good produce they had in abundance for other commodities they needed to keep their little world going.

In the larger world in which we live TRADE is more important than ever. Without it, we could not survive. Canada is a vast wheat and cattle country. We produce millions of bushels of wheat more than we can use. Without export trade, our stocks of hogs and cattle would swamp us in no time. We'd bog down in a mountain of eggs unless we could export them. Our warehouses would burst with our surplus stocks if we couldn't sell them on the markets of the world.

Not only that — we couldn't buy the merchandise we need unless we sold our own. Money works two ways you know; trade works exactly the same.

For instance: For the first seven months of the present year our export merchandise amounted to $1,251,480,000; imports for the same length of time were valued at $1,141,490,000.

Wheat flour production this year has reached an all time high a little above two million barrels a month. The fruit crop estimate is also higher than the ten-year average. The apple crop is estimated at over 15 million bushels, 109 per cent higher than the 1945 crop.

Pears have staged a come back with an estimated 816,000 bushels. Plums and prunes 642,000 bushels, peaches are 60 per cent higher than the 10-year average, cherries, grapes, apricots have all made an all-out effort to beat their own record. Fowl recently shipped on S.S. Manchester totalled 425,000 pounds. In the first seven months of 1946, forty-five million pounds of beef were sent to Britain alone with three million pounds for the Netherlands. Besides this, thirty million pounds of beef was used in the production of canned meat. These exports represent the product of 167,000 head of cattle. The good ship S.S. Corrales also loaded 58,000 cases of eggs for Britain last month.

That's the story of trade. A few dozen eggs, a few pounds of butter, a couple of dressed chicken, traded in at the little country store for sugar and spice, multiplied perhaps a million times into a nation's foreign trade. But the idea is the same, exchange of goods to the mutual satisfaction of all concerned.

SHORTAGE KILLS FARMER'S HOBBY

Can't Display Butter Moulds Without Supply of Butter

Reading, Pa., (CP) — Former farmer Addison F. Siep has just about given up demonstrating his rare and prized collection of butter moulds.

He has 72 of the discs, used to decorate the homemade product when butter churning was a routine matter in almost every rural home.

"I used to like to show my friends how they work," says Seip, "but I can't get the butter now."

The retired Berks County farmer started collecting the unique moulds many years ago when he sold and bought antiques as a hobby. Each disc has a handle which the buttermaker held while the golden spread was patted on top to make the impression.

Early settlers, especially in the Pennsylvania "Dutch" areas, went to great pains to fashion the wooden discs. The "sheaf of wheat" design is the most common.

YOU'RE TOPS in the family's estimation when you serve delicious Maxwell House Coffee. It's bought and enjoyed by more people than any other brand of coffee in the world.

TOWN & DISTRICT BUSINESS REVIEW

The value of the home-town weekly is measured not in terms of sensationalism, nor in the volume of its contents. It is counted as a reliable informant on the community's progress, and a purveyor of its news — accurate, yet considerate; truthful, yet fair; constructive in its criticisms.

And sharing the same respect and sentiment with its readers, are the local advertisers — men who quickly recognize this avenue of contact with the homes and consumers of the neighborhood.

— To readers in the Lachute, Brownsburg and St. Philippe trading area, The Watchman recommends the merchants and tradesmen listed on this page.

MANY QUEBECERS ENJOY ADDED COMFORT IN HOMES INSULATED BY THE BLOWER METHOD

HEAD OFFICE FOR QUEBEC ORGANIZATION IS SITUATED IN LACHUTE

Serving Quebec Province from the borders of Maine State on the south, to Maniwaki in the north, and beyond Shawville westward, the big yellow trucks of the Canadian General Insulation (Quebec) Company have become a familiar sight to many thousands of Quebecers as they have been for many years to the populace of Eastern Ontario, which is served by the parent company at Ottawa. Particularly during the past ten years, insulating of existing houses has attained a highly important status and was rated on a high priority during wartime because governments recognized it as a business devoted essentially to conservation in a great range of materials and labor.

Of course, today, no competent architect permits his client to build without including in his building specifications rock-wool or other insulating material of equivalent value, but the vast majority of existing buildings were erected prior to recognition of insulating as the only means by which, in addition to possession of heating equipment and fuel, a reasonable degree of heating comfort and economy could be attained — regardless of what type of building might be concerned.

We learn that the Lockhart Brothers, by whom the group of "Canadian General Insulation" was founded in 1938, were the first independent Canadian operators of the blower method of insulating. Prior to the date stated, a monopoly in blowing of insulating was attempted by a foreign-controlled organization, but the patents held by the monopolists were recognized as invalid by the Lockharts, who, then entering the field, were followed by many other contractors in other parts of Canada, with the result that insulating is now being done at rates, despite generally higher prices of commodities, at which savings in fuel and labor effected by insulation rapidly pay the cost of the insulating work.

Many householders in Lachute, Brownsburg, Ste. Therese, Hawkesbury, St. Philippe, etc., can attest to the efficacy of the work done by the Lockharts and also as to the experience which these people display in executing their work. The Canadian General Insulation (Quebec) Company has its head office in Lachute and has branches in Montreal, Plage Laval, Sherbrooke, Granby, etc. The manager for Quebec is Fred R. Lockhart, of this town.

Double Wedding At Lost River United Church

Richie - Rowe
Eigner - Richie

The United Church at Lost River, tastefully decorated with autumn flowers, was the scene of a pretty double wedding on September 28, when Miss Mary Christine Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rowe, of Lachute, became the bride of Mr. Gordon Richie, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Richie of Lost River, and Miss Elsie Mary Richie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richie became the bride of Mr. Felix Eigner, son of Mr. H. Eigner and the late Mrs. Eigner, of Prince Rupert, B.C.

Both brides were unattended — each couple witnessing for the other. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Cecil Royle, of Arundel, Que., The wedding music was played by Mrs. E. Morrison, also of Arundel.

Miss Rowe, given in marriage by her brother Mr. Perry Rowe, wore a floor-length gown of white triple sheer with Tuscan lace yoke and long sleeves, the skirt falling from a wide band; her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms, and she wore white lace gloves, carrying a bouquet of American Beauty roses, baby's breath and ferns. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond lapel pin.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue crepe dress with powder blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Miss Richie, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a floor-length dress of white taffeta with short sleeves, a tight fitting bodice and full skirt. She wore long lace gloves and her embroidered veil was held by a wreath of orange blossoms. She also wore a plain gold cross, the gift of the groom.

The bride's mother was in a black crepe dress trimmed with sequins and accessories to match, and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Percy Richie was usher.

The wedding supper, attended by the immediate relatives, was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Rowe, Lachute, following which both couples left by car for a wedding trip visiting points in Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Richie will make their home in Lachute, while Mr. and Mrs. Eigner will reside at Lost River.

Why VICKS VAPORUB Is So Good For Relieving Miseries of Childrens Colds

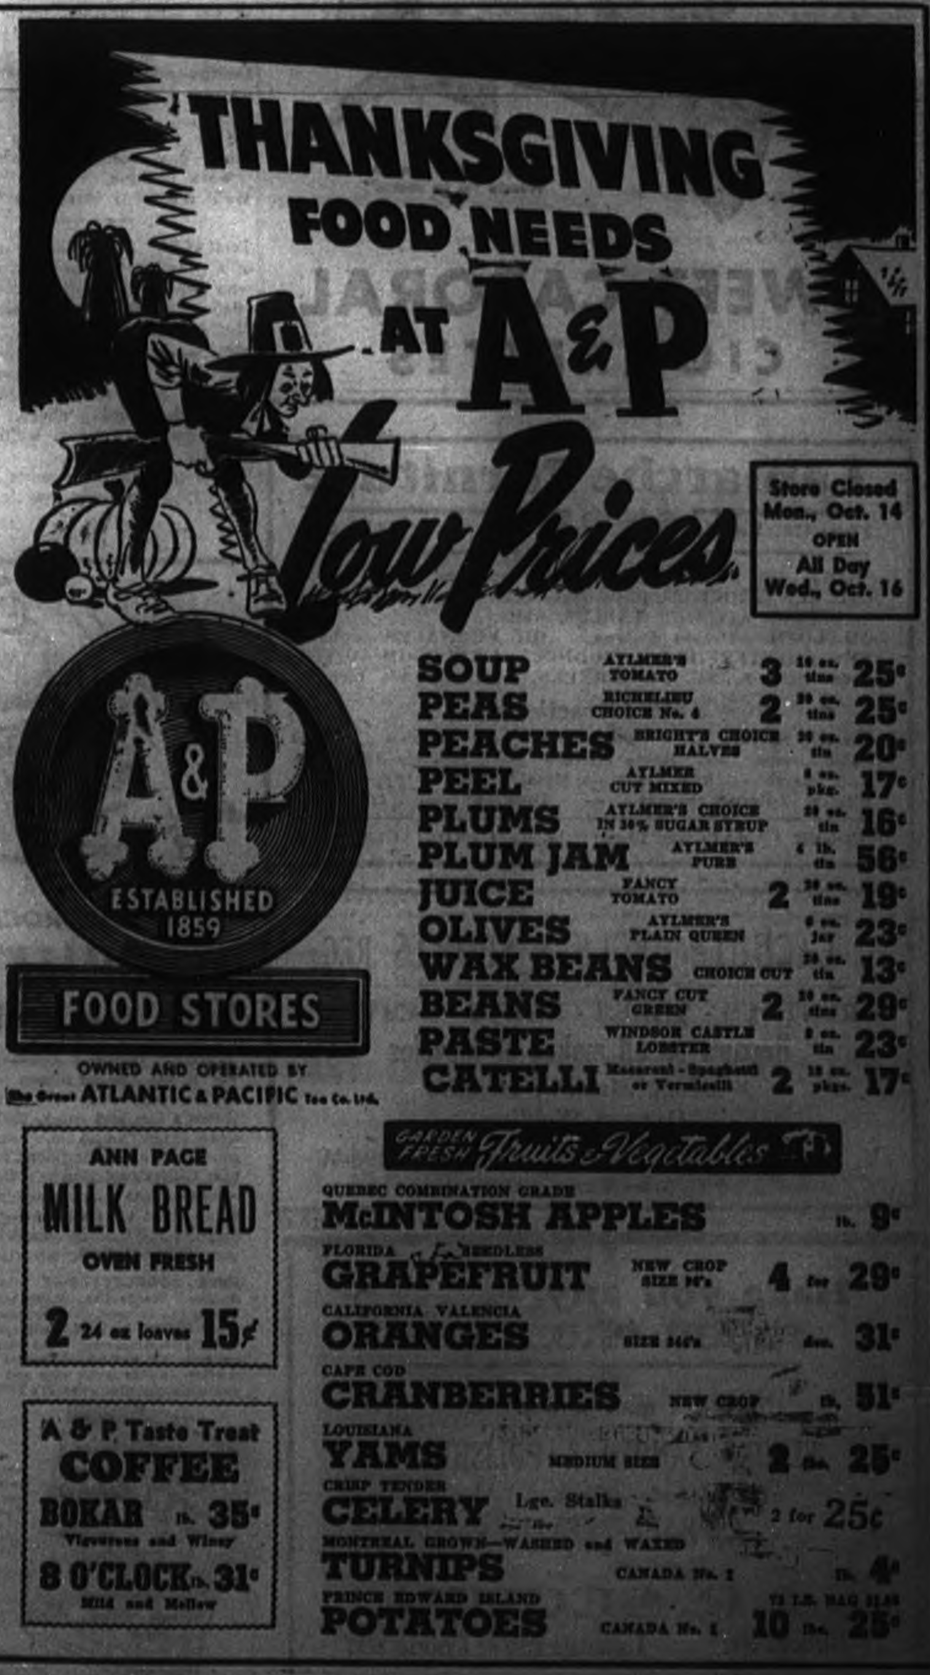

More than two generations ago—in grandmother's day—mothers first discovered Vicks VapoRub. Today it is the most widely used home-remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds. And here is the reason . . .

The moment you rub VapoRub on the throat, chest and back at bedtime it starts to work two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours—to ease coughing spasms, help clear congestion in cold-clogged upper breathing passages, relieve muscular soreness or tightness. It promotes restful sleep. Often most of the misery of the cold is gone by morning! That's why VapoRub is so good to use when colds strike. Try it!

"We do not need a special day
To bring you to our minds,
The days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find".

CRAIG — In loving memory of a dear son, Tpr. Norman, killed in action October 15, 1944. — Sadly missed and ever remembered by Mother.
"They say that time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But time so far has only proved
How much I miss you yet
God gave me strength to fight it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you dear Norman
No one will ever know."

CRAIG — In loving memory of a dear brother, Tpr. Norman, killed in action October 15, 1944. — Ever remembered by Bella, Bob and Ronnie.
"We lost a loving brother with a heart of gold,
He was more to us than wealth untold,
The sorrow we felt we cannot explain,
The ache in our hearts will always remain."

SILVERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George H. Silverson, who passed away October 7, 1944. — Always remembered by his wife and family.
"The month of October again is here,
To us the saddest of all the year,
The blow was hard, the shock severe
To part with one we loved so dear".

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Gordon Robert Tomalty, who entered into eternal rest October 14, 1945. — Always remembered by his wife, Mina, and family, Norma, Alvin and Francis.
"We miss you, Gordon, a thousand times
Along life's weary way,
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.
Two loving hands are resting,
A voice we loved is still,
One we loved is waiting
For us just over the hill.
You left us all so quickly,
You never said good-bye, (ing
But we know that you are watch-
From your beautiful home on high.
In tears we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
God knows how much we miss you,
Words can never say.
We often stand before your grave,
And seem to hear you say
'Don't cry for me, I'm happy here,
I feel no hurt, no pain.' "

TOMALTY — In loving memory of our dear brother, Gordon, who passed away October 14, 1945. — Loved and remembered, Alma, George and nephew Robert.
"Away on the beautiful hills of God,
In the valley of peace so fair,
Some day, some time when our work is done,
We'll meet our loved one there".

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Gordon, who departed this life October 14, 1945. — Ever remembered by Mother and Edith.
"We loved him, yes, we loved him,
But Jesus loved him more,
And He has sweetly called him
To yonder shining shore.
It is sweet to know we'll meet again
Where parting is no more,
And that the one we loved so well,
Has only gone before."

Swine for Britain

Montreal — Ten thoroughbred Tamworth pigs arrived in Britain from Canada recently marking the first shipment of such breeding stock to that country since before the war. The British importation was made under the auspices of the National Pig Breeders Association, London, Eng., and the shipment and collection of pedigree documents was handled through the Canadian National Railways colonization and agriculture department.

The pigs, all bred in Ontario, came from such points as Georgetown, Craigville, Gormley, Woodville and Mitchell. Previous shipments of Tamworth pigs to Britain were made in 1929 and 1935.

Bank Shortens Farmers' Hours

Low Cost Loans Make Farming Easier

New labor-saving devices, new farm machinery and new appliances, designed to shorten working hours and lighten farm chores, are now appearing on the Canadian market. With them are coming such modern comforts and conveniences as inside plumbing, hot running water, washing machines and other devices to lighten the housewife's burden.

Many of these improvements have already found their way to Canadian farms and homes. The Bank of Montreal has played an important part through its farm improvements loans in making this post-war equipment immediately available. If the problem of financing is preventing you from getting your share, a B of M loan at low interest rates may be the answer.

Eric Hibbard, manager of the Bank of Montreal, will be glad to review your plans with you. He will show you in a practical way what is meant when he says, "When you ask for a loan at the B of M, you do not ask a favor."

Triennial Conference, Associated Country Women of the World

Plans are already underway for the triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World. This will be held in the Netherlands in September, 1947. The agenda will include amendments to the constitution, resolutions and election of officers. Another important item will be a discussion of general international questions.

The Quebec Women's Institute should take a real interest in this forthcoming important meeting as the province is entitled to five votes on all questions.

Questions and Answers

GENERAL

Q What are Canada Savings Bonds?
A Canada Savings Bonds are the successor to Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. They are your country's promise to return your money to you at any time and to pay you interest at an attractive rate.

Q Why are Canada Savings Bonds being offered?
A Because during the war, millions of Canadians learned the savings habit by buying Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. A recent survey shows that 82% of them want to keep on saving by a similar plan.

Q Is the Government selling Canada Savings Bonds just to raise money?
A No. Borrowing needs of the Government can be met by other types of loans. The main purpose of the Canada Savings Bond is to provide Canadians with a convenient way to continue this kind of saving and investment in peacetime.

Q Is there any limit to the amount of Canada Savings Bonds that one person may hold?? If so, why?
A Yes. There is a limit of $2,000 for each individual, but each member of a family may hold bonds up to the limit.

Q What is the price of Canada Savings Bonds?
A 100%. That is, a $100 bond costs $100. If payment is not completed on or before November 15th, 1946, interest will be added to the purchase price.

Q In what denominations are Canada Savings Bonds available?
A $50, $100, $500 and $1,000.

CASHING OF BONDS

Q Can I cash my bond at any time before November 1, 1956?
A Yes, any branch in Canada of any chartered bank will cash your bond immediately at full face value, plus interest at 2¾%, upon your identification as the registered holder.

Q Can Canada Savings Bonds be assigned or transferred?
A They can be cashed, but not assigned or transferred. This is necessary to prevent any individual from acquiring more than the authorized limit.

INTEREST COUPONS

Q What interest is paid on Canada Savings Bonds?
A 2¾%—payable yearly on November 1st from 1947 to 1956, by coupon cashable without charge at any branch in Canada of any bank.

Q Are interest coupons registered?
A No. They are payable to bearer.

REGISTRATION PROTECTION

Q Why is it necessary to register Canada Savings Bonds?
A Registration gives protection in case your bond is lost, stolen or destroyed. It is also the simplest way to ensure that individuals do not hold more than the $2,000 limit.

Q In whose name can Canada Savings Bonds be registered?
A They can be registered only in the name of one individual, adult or minor, up to the amount of the authorized limit.

Q Can Canada Savings Bonds registered in the name of a child be cashed?
A Yes. Banks are familiar with the necessary regulations.

Q Can Canada Savings Bonds be disposed of when registered in the name of a deceased person?
A Yes, any bank will supply the necessary information.

Q Can I replace my Canada Savings Bonds, if they are lost, stolen or destroyed?
A Yes. It is wise, however, to keep Canada Savings Bonds in a safe place, as you would any other valuable documents. In case of loss you should immediately notify the Bank of Canada, Ottawa, of the circumstances.

HOW, WHEN AND WHERE TO BUY

Q Where can I buy Canada Savings Bonds?
A At any branch of a bank or from an authorized investment dealer, stock broker, trust or loan company — or through the payroll savings plan if this is in operation at your place of employment.

Q How do I pay for Canada Savings Bonds?
A In any of the following 3 ways:
1. By payment in full at time of purchase.
2. By monthly instalments through a bank, trust or loan company.
3. By regular deductions from pay, where employers operate the Payroll Savings Plan.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

GLAMOR DELIVERY FOR EDMONTONIANS

Edmonton (CP) — Edmonton's tired business girls are getting something new in make-up service these days — a facial at home.

An Edmonton beauty culturist firm has begun the new service, with four culturists who visit the homes of customers on request to turn them into glamor girls in a quiet hour in their own parlor.

Appointments are made in the afternoons and evenings, a boon to business girls who can thus escape rushing to a beauty parlor in an already over-taxed lunch hour.

The four visiting culturists go to the homes of customers armed with a little black bag crammed with various shades and types of creams, lotions, powders and lipsticks.

The Edmonton firm offering the service said the culturists are trained beauticians who choose the right blends of powder and rouge to match individual complexions and records are kept of various types so a girl may order her correct make-up at any time.

Timely Suggestions for Thanksgiving Menu

Thanksgiving day has been celebrated ever since the early settlers, after suffering many privations and hardships, had their efforts rewarded by a bountiful harvest promising food for all.

Poultry, either chicken or turkey, is usually the meat served at the Thanksgiving dinner. If you have a nice fat chicken for the occasion, there will be quite a bit of fat to take out when it is being cleaned. This chicken fat, after it is rendered, as well as the fat saved during the cooking, is excellent for baking. Excess fat should be poured off while the chicken is roasting, leaving only enough in the pan for basting and for making gravy. With the scarcity of fats in general, it is a wise homemaker who saves all the chicken fat she can, it has the texture and richness of butter, but like other unsalted fats, requires the addition of a little salt to the amount asked for in the recipe.

The home economists at Ottawa suggest a simple menu with recipes for the Thanksgiving dinner.

Tomato Eggplant Broil

Medium eggplant about 5 to 6 inches in length); 2 tablespoons of fat melted; 3 to 4 large tomatoes; salt, celery salt and pepper to taste; grated nippy cheese.

Slice eggplant in ½ inch slices and peel. Brush slices on both sides with melted fat. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Preheat broiler to 400°F. Place slices on rack and broil on one side until lightly browned, about 5 minutes, turn and broil on other side until tender. Top each slice with a thick slice or tomato, sprinkle with celery salt and a teaspoon of grated cheese. Return to broiler and broil until cheese melts. Serve at once. Six servings.

Grape Neapolitan

1 Tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup of cold water, 4 cups blue grapes, 2 cups boiling water, ¾ cups sugar, few drops of green vegetable coloring.

Soak gelatine in cold water. Wash grapes and press pulp from skins. Add 1 cup boiling water to the pulp, cook 5 minutes. Rub through a sieve to remove seeds and to the pulp add ½ cup sugar and soaked gelatine; stir until gelatine is dissolved and add green coloring. Cool until it begins to set. Beat until light, turn into a mould and chill until firm. To the skins add 1 cup boiling water; cook 5 minutes and add ¼ cup sugar. Cool. To serve, unmould the jellied pulp. Serve with the sauce made from skins. Six servings.

HOME-MAKING ON SCHOOL CURRICULA

London — On a recent occasion, opening the conference on "Homemaking for All", Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Minister of Education, said that thousands of teachers are now being specially trained to give homecraft instruction to school children, young people about to be married and to husbands and wives. Eleven special training colleges providing three-year courses are packed to overflowing, while 5,500 in the past year have attended local refresher courses. Home instruction starts in the nursery schools. The aim in secondary schools is to give each girl a long weekly lesson for at least two years before leaving school.

Forum Rally Here Attended by Class From Macdonald

An enthusiastic crowd attended the Farm Forums rally Tuesday evening at Lachute High School, when over 100 members from different branches in the county listened to constructive topics related to the Forum movement and of general interest to the farming community. The meeting was under chairmanship of Stuart Armstrong, president of the county organization, who is also president of the Quebec Council of Farm Forums.

The guest speaker, S. Harman, general secretary of the United Farmers' Co-operative of Ontario, spoke of co-operatives, and matters at present under study in the movement, namely, improved methods of purchasing and marketing, as well as better all-round business methods. The speaker felt that the producer had a certain "responsibility" towards his goods beyond his own gateposts. . Mr. Harman, incidentally, was one of the original founders of the Farm Forum.

Alex Sim and Joe Galway, organizers of Quebec Farm Forum activities, also addressed the audience, giving an outline of what is being done throughout the province.

A feature of the evening was the presence of Prof. H. Avison, of Macdonald College, and a class of 20 students who are studying extension methods in the teaching of Agriculture. These students were from Quebec, the Maritimes, and one from Jamaica.

Industrial Film Viewed by Lions At Tues. Session

The Lions Club of Lachute, at their regular session Tuesday evening at the Golf Club chalet, were treated to a colored film presented by district representative H. J. Manering of the Firestone Company. The manufacture of a tire — from the gathering of the sap in Liberia, to the finished product — was depicted in such graphic manner that the spectator felt he had actually been through the plant. Lion Geo. Deacon introduced the speaker, and thanks were extended by Lion Gaetan Valois.

The next meeting is to be held at Desjardins Hotel.

A ping-pong table was donated to the Women's Institute, who superintend the weekly Saturday night dances in the Auditorium for young people.

Motorcyclist Has Skull Fracture

A motorcycle rider and pillion passenger came to grief on a curve near the farm of L. M. Hooker, Lachute Road, about 5.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The pair were riding towards Lachute when the spill occurred and the machine went into the ditch. The driver, Paul Henri Gagnon, of 8198 St. Denis Street, Montreal, was thrown clear, suffering only minor scratches. His passenger, Gaston Rouleau, aged 24 or 25, of 688 Iberville Terrace, Montreal, was however severely hurt.

Dr. Jules Lafleur, of Lachute, was notified, and a cleric from St. Andrews East gave the man the last rites of the church. Brought to the Providence Hospital, Lachute, an X-ray examination revealed the victim had a severe skull fracture. He was later conveyed by Menard & Menard ambulance to the Neurological Institute in Montreal.

The accident was investigated by Cst. Albt. Legault, traffic patrolman, of Brownsburg.

Brownsb'g Couple Celebrate Their Diamond Wedding

Brownsburg — A happy occasion took place in Brownsburg on Saturday, October 12, when Mr. and Mrs. John Graham celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Graham, the former Emily Vary, is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vary, Mr. Graham being the elder son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch Graham.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham's four sons and one daughter — Mrs. Jordan of Brownsburg, George, of Lachute, Charles of St. David's, Ont., Bert and Russel of Brownsburg — were all present; also their six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Graham had "open house" for the occasion, and over 100 friends and relatives came to congratulate the happy couple.

Mr. Graham's four sisters — Mrs. W. H. Morrow, Mrs. W. J. Tomalty, Mrs. W. J. Morrow and Mrs. J. L. Kennedy, and brother W. J. Graham — were present, and had been present at the wedding 60 years ago. A sister, Mrs. Derbyshire of California, was unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham appreciate very much, and take occasion to thank all their friends for the many good wishes, cards and flowers which they received.

Besides friends from Brownsburg, Lachute and surrounding district there were present — Mrs. Kilgour, of Rosemere, and a cousin of Mr. Graham's, Mr. Walsh, with Mrs. Walsh and Miss Grace Walsh, of Montreal.

Open Polio Fund, Parade of Dimes

At the regular monthly meeting of Argenteuil Branch No. 70, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., arrangements were made to get the local "Parade of Dimes" under way. Comrade Keith Clarke was chosen chairman of a large committee to canvass the Lachute area as part of the Canadian Legion's province-wide attack on polio (infantile paralysis). It is hoped that full support will be accorded the veterans, as the defeat of this dread disease is of utmost importance to every family in every community. All proceeds are being devoted to the fighting of polio. A few collection boxes have already been posted, and others are on the way. Support the veterans — back their drive in this latest attack — put your change in the boxes — respond generously when they canvass you. Who knows, this campaign may provide the knowledge and equipment that will save you or your children from permanent impairment — and even death. . , Help others to help you! — Give generously.

Romance, Sask. (CP) — Mechanization is 100 per cent on the nearby farm of Julius Foster. Besides using his tractor instead of horses for general work, he can be seen any evening zig-zagging the machine through his pastures — rounding up the cows.

From a reader in Harrington district, this newspaper has received a snapshot testifying to the haul of two fine buck deer by a hunting party somewhere in that rugged community. The photograph, although not clear enough for reproduction, shows the two bucks "almost identical in size and antlers, which appeared in a field together". The note accompanying the picture lists the following hunters in the party — Baptiste Larocque and Percy Welburn, Brownsburg; Melvin Dewar and Bob Welburn, Kilmar; and Duncan McCullough, Harrington.

Returned Veterans Resent Being Patronized, Says Speaker, David M. Legate, Analyzing New Outlook

Brownsburg Rotarians Attend Inter-City Meet Held at Montreal Westward Club

By WILF BURNLEY

A new slant on the mental process of returned veterans — their outlook on life through broadening experiences of the horrors of war, contact with people of other nations, and new perspective of Canada and Canadians gained by service overseas, was given in a fascinating address, "Looking Forward and Backward", by David M. Legate, to a special inter-city meeting of Montreal Westward and Brownsburg Rotary Clubs last Thursday evening at Montreal West Town Hall.

Mr. Legate, introduced by Rotarian Fred Grant, was prior to the war assistant Literary and Dramatic editor of the Montreal Daily Star. During the war he was Deputy Overseas Commissioner of the Red Cross, and was second in command to Major General C. B. Price. He is now back with the Montreal Daily Star on special duties.

The speaker gave a bold glimpse of the war as seen through the eyes and adventures of a comrade he called "Bill" — telling how his friend held a routine job which he left to enlist on the outbreak of war, with no clear reason why he joined, whether from patriotism, the slant of adventure or merely as his duty. They went overseas together on the same boat, with the First Canadian Contingent and got about England a good deal, beginning to see Canada in perspective for the first time.

During the blackest hours of the war, in June 1940, when France collapsed, the Low Countries were overrun and England remained the sole hope for all that was held good and right, and 15,000 Canadians wondered "What next" — and it was anybody's guess—came news of the success of the British cruisers at the River Platte, like a ray of sunshine.

It was then that Bill, in common with everybody else, suffered from the war of nerves. It was then the British struck a new note with the Canadians — nearly licked but didn't know it — wouldn't give up anyway — and the darker months that followed when an armada of planes tried to bash England into submission — made not a whit of difference, said Mr. Legate. The Hun didn't make it, but it was in this period that seemed like ageless years, Bill got to know this people with centuries of tradition and character behind them.

Traces History

Mr. Legate traced Bill's history at Dieppe. While not wounded, he returned to England suffering shock, questioning the value of the operation with the Second Division. Bill went to Italy with the First Division, went through the thick of it, observed conditions under Fascism and noted cause and effect of dictatorship. He saw the lassitude of the people, saw why they needed a Mussolini to whip them into concerted action and decided for himself that dictatorship, under certain circumstances, was not to be decried — though holding no brief for Fascism.

Bill returned to England when Invasion preparations were under way, said Mr. Legate, and then Bill really began to appreciate English character and noted in spite of the reputation of Canadians and Americans for "getting things done", the British knew how to do things thoroughly. Only those who actually saw Invasion preparatioins knew the miracle they were. Mr. Legate traced Bill through Normandy, told of his reaction to various peoples and their attitudes under given conditions, and showed how it affected Bill mentally and added to his outlook on life, in Belgium, and in Holland.

These things caused Bill to wonder, to acquire a deeper sense of value of things, and a finer appreciation of Canada, continued Mr. Legate. Bill is back in Canada this year, he and his counterpart, and daily they are hearing the benign comments of employers and receiving the pat on the back as being told they are good boys, etc. — which, emphatically declared Mr. Legate, is absolutely a false approach to veterans — to Bill and his kind. They not only left Canada and fought, they solved various problems of life for themselves, they returned with a breadth of vision wider than of those left behind; and they don't want the fraternal approach and a pat on the back, Mr. Legate asserted.

Should you want a new alderman, a School Board executive, a man for the Provincial Legislature, a Federal Member of Parliament, don't say to the veteran, "We would like to give you a chance", but say, "Here is your chance, to do what we are less qualified to do!" Mr. Legate concluded.

Mr. Legate was warmly thanked by Past-President T. Willard Mace on behalf of both the Brownsburg Club and Montreal Westward.

Warmly Welcomed

The Brownsburg Rotarians were given a cordial reception in a brief address from President H. Gordon Hatcher, of Westward, and President Harris Sherwood of Brownsburg responded.

Mr. Sherwood told how Brownsburg Rotary Club, though one of the youngest in the district, was already doing valiant work, had already held two successful carnivals, proceeds of which were used in social welfare, and how the Club was in a healthy condition with members enthusiastic for the varied programs outlined.

Mr. Sherwood issued an invitation to the Montreal Westward Rotary Club to return the visit and hold an inter-city meeting of the two Clubs at Brownsburg on Thursday, October 31, when G. H. Héon, K.C., M.P., will speak on important aspects of the United Nations Organization. He complimented Rotarians Palmer and Ladouceur on being instrumental members of the Westward Club, in making this fine meeting possible by carrying the suggestion back from a visit to the Brownsburg Club.

Entertainment

Chairman H. F. Brewerton, of the Fellowship Committee of Westward Rotary, and Rotarian Les Kirby were responsible for splendid entertainment given by Miss Drouin, CBC first harpist, and Norton H. (Buddy) Payne, pianist, who is also chief organist for the CBC. Selections from both were roundly applauded and fellowship singing, led by Hal Brewerton, was thoroughly enjoyed. The meeting was closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

Motorist Is Victim Of Heart Seizure

A 55-year-old Montrealer, Cecil Thompson, of 42 Finchley Avenue, Hampstead, suffered a heart seizure at the wheel of his car, while driving towards Lachute from Lakefield last Sunday evening. Brought to Lachute, the victim was examined by Dr. M. Papineau, who pronounced him dead.

The incident occurred at 6.15 o'clock, about midway between Lakefield and Lachute. Mr. Thompson was returning to Montreal from his summer home at Lakefield. He was accompanied by his son, Maynard Thompson, aged 18. After passing a car on the highway, the motorist swerved into soft gravel, then righted his car on the road surface. About that time the young man saw his father slump over the wheel; he managed to disengage the gear and to halt the car without mishap.

Albert Boa, the driver whom they had just passed, noticed the Montreal car in difficulties, and stopped to enquire. With the driver apparently unconscious, and the younger occupant unnerved by his experience, Boa brought the automobile to Lachute and sought the assistance of a physician.

Advised of the circumstances, Dr. Jules Lafleur, district coroner, ruled the fatality due to natural causes.

Youth Dances To Be Resumed By Lachute W.I.

At a meeting of the Lachute Women's Institute on Wednesday, it was decided to re-commence the so-called "Saturday Night Hops" for young people of the town — a venture which was conducted successfully last winter, and provided wholesome entertainment for young citizens, many of senior school age, and also ex-service folk.

The committee plans to hold these affairs along lines similar to the previous dances, between 8 and 11 p.m. They are limiting the age, however, to persons from 15 years up. There will be refreshments, and a nominal charge for admission. The first dance will be staged at the Auditorium next Saturday, October 19.

A development in this season's undertaking will be an endeavor to enlist the young people themselves in management of the dances. They will be invited to meet and organize for this purpose, and thus it is hoped the venture will stimulate a more active interest among those most immediately concerned.

Hit by Automobile

In a rain storm which obscured visibility for both motorists and pedestrians on the local thoroughfares, Helen Stewart, aged 20, of Gilbert Street, was struck by a car on Main Street last Saturday evening around 8 o'clock. Miss Stewart, with her younger sister Heather, was crossing the street opposite the post-office. Driver of the car was Douglas Matthew, who was entering Main Street from Bethany.

Suffering concussion, and with several teeth broken, the victim received medical treatment at the office of Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, and was afterwards conveyed to her home. She is now reported practically recovered from her mishap.

Parish of St. Jerusalem Pays Homage to Its War Veterans

"We Will Remember", Theme of Tribute

Banquet, Presentation and Dance Feature Notable Occasion in Life of Community

As remarked by one of the committeemen of the St. Jerusalem Citizens' Veterans' Reception organization, "It is impossible to express in word or in token, the gratitude we owe the boys and girls who gave their services in the Second Great War" — but the Parish of St. Jerusalem made a splendid effort on Friday last to express a deep feeling of thanks of all her citizens, when a banquet and presentation was tendered to the men and women who had served on active duty in the Canadian forces.

Seventy-seven names were on the Parish active service list, including four women. A minute's silence hallowed the memory of four sons who did not return to their native soil, as 400 citizens with bowed heads remembered their supreme sacrifice.

Banquet in Church Hall

The occasion opened with a banquet in the hall of Lachute United Church, where the veterans, their families and guests partook of an excellent supper given by members of the Jerusalem-Bethany and Upper Lachute Women's Institutes.

The toastmaster at the banquet was Stuart Armstrong, who, after proposing a toast to the King, called upon David Black, ex-mayor of the Parish, to propose a toast to St. Jerusalem. Mr. Black extended greetings and good wishes to the returned men, then briefly reviewed the progress of St. Jerusalem during his "three score years and ten" in the community. Reminiscing over the early days of the Parish, Mr. Black recalled the laying of the C.P.R. line through the settlement and the benefits derived by the community through this modern means of transport; he spoke of the policy of better roads in the province. In conclusion, Mr. Black claimed that St. Jerusalem had much to offer the returned men if they desired to settle in the community.

Replying to the toast, Mayor Ted Smith said, "On behalf of the council, it is an honor and privilege to extend greetings to the boys and girls who have returned home, after serving on every front — afar and at home". He expressed the hope that all would do their utmost to make the lives of the returned guests happy and prosperous.

Quebec Province was next on the toastmaster's list, and he called on Mr. Melville Smith to sponsor the toast. Mr. Smith touched upon the vast natural, industrial and potential resources of the province, and of the tremendous exporting power now evident. He paid tribute to the educational institutions of Laval, McGill and the University of Montreal, and of the need of fostering better relations between the two great peoples of the province.

In the absence of the provincial member of parliament (the Hon. G. -E. Dansereau), the reply to the toast was given by Mr. J. W. McGibbon, who said he felt honored to be present at the gathering. Mr. McGibbon said that Quebec was the best known, most talked-of province in Canada, and that the "wonderful situation the province finds herself in today is due to the sacrifices of the men and women here present". He stressed the opportunity of both English and French citizens of the province to work for a common good, and to show the rest of Canada that amicable relations are possible. "Unity and good feeling are most important", added Mr. McGibbon, "and our future depends upon the co-operation of the French and English."

50 Years Member Of Masonic Order

At the convocation of Masonic Grand Lodge in Montreal last week, a local veteran of the Order, Rt. Wor. Bro. G. A. Clunie, received his 50-year-jewel — symbol of half a century in the membership of Masonry.

Dr. G. A. Clunie joined Argenteuil Lodge 67 here at Lachute in the year 1896. Members at that time were N. T. Truell, H. M. Gall (Sr.), J. W. Raitt, W. H. Garrettsee, Hary Slater, John Hope, J. D. Campbell, Wm. Drennan and others. This brief list of citizens long deceased, would indicate that Dr. Clunie was in good company among community-builders of the time.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Clunie was Master of Argenteuil Lodge in 1907 and District Deputy Grand Master of the Ottawa district in 1916.

He is cordially congratulated by members of the fraternity and fellow citizens, on his distinguished record.

Presentation Dance Held for Returned Veterans at Weir

Weir, Que. — An enjoyable evening was spent in Weir church hall recently when a presentation dance was held in honor of the boys who joined the active service. The hall was decorated with flags, red, white and blue streamers and colored maple leaves. Dancing was the main feature of the evening.

Mayor A. G. Munich gave an inspiring address, after which he presented each of the boys with a pen and pencil set. Each soldier as he was called came forward and received his gift, then standing in the centre of the hall till all had been called. The audience thereupon joined hands and sang "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne".

The Rev. E. C. Royle thanked the Weir Parcel Fund for the gifts and also for their untiring efforts to make the party such a success.

Dancing was again resumed, till 11.30 p.m. Then supper was served by the ladies. The singing of the National Anthem brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

The veterans who received gifts were as follows —

Business Site of Historic Interest Changes Hands

(Our District Correspondent)

Cushing — An important change of property took place on the riverfront here recently, with the purchase of the "Cushing store" by H. V. Elliott.

The Cushing store has been owned by members of the Cushing family for almost 100 years. Thomas' History of Argenteuil speaks of James Brock Cushing entering his father's store in 1856, and names of clerks who worked there, long since deceased, are still to be seen written in lead pencil on the walls of one of the upstairs rooms.

In 1891 (according to Thomas' History) Mr. James Cushing, who was then operating the store alone, moved to Montreal and the building remained unoccupied for a number of years, until it was rented and re-opened as a place of business by Chas. McFaul, now of Lachute, who at that time owned and operated a general store just across the Ottawa in Chute à Blondeau, Ont. When Mr. McFaul decided to close the Cushing store it was immediately rented by George W. Elliott, formerly of Vankleek Hill, who had been in charge of the establishment for Mr. McFaul. And the store has been operated by the Elliotts ever since — H. V. Elliott having taken over when owing to ill health his father, since deceased, was unable to carry on. Friends in this section wish Mr. and Mrs. Elliott every success as owners of the building and proprietors of whatever new business they may plan for this time-honored property.

It's the moral weaklings who become the political Quislings.

The pH of a soil, or the degree of acidity or alkalinity developed in the soil solution has a definite bearing on the crops that grow in that soil. For example, rye will tolerate a soil with strong acid reaction, while alfalfa does best on a soil with a pH of 6.2 to 7.8.

The Fahrenheit scale is a scale of heat degrees which measures the intensity of heat or cold. The pH scale illustrated here is a scale of acidity or alkalinity degrees which measures the intensity of acidity or alkalinity of the soil.

An important point to note is that thermometer degrees of heat differ by one unit only, while the differences between any two adjacent degrees of pH, (e.g. 6 and 7) differ by 10 times. pH 6 is 10 times more acid than pH 7. The purpose of applying lime is to adjust the reaction of the soil so that it will be more favorable for the crop. The further purpose of adding lime is to supply Calcium or Magnesium as plant nutrients.

It has been found that it takes considerably more lime to change clay soil from pH 5 to pH 6 than it does to change sandy soil of pH 5 to pH 6. This is on account of the presence of such a quantity of minute particles of clay and humus in the colloids of clay. This colloidal matter retards the neutralizing action of lime. Sandy soils carry little if any colloidal matter surrounding their soil particles, and therefore respond to much less lime than do clays.

Most authorities agree that an addition of 1000 to 2000 pounds of ground limestone once in the 4-year rotation is sufficient to maintain optimum pH range in most agricultural soils.

Not all soils need lime. Before using lime, the soil should be tested for acidity. The test indicates the degree of acidity and recommendations can then be made as to the amount of lime to apply.

For best results lime should be fairly fine.

Dolomitic lime or lime containing magnesium is preferred for soil that is low in magnesium. Lime may be be applied at any time during the spring, summer or fall. It is best broadcasted and worked into the top soil by harrowing or by disking and harrowing.

Nitrogen-fixing organisms function most effectively in a soil approximately neutral in reaction. Lime has a beneficial effect on acid or sour clay soils. Not only does lime correct the acidity, but it improves the structure of the soil.

St. Jerusalem Pays Tribute to Veterans Of Community

Toast to "Canada"

Mr. Armstrong then introduced the Rev. Chas. Maclean, minister of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, who proposed a toast to "Canada". Mr. Maclean said he was proud to be a Canadian, especially after serving overseas with the Canadian soldiers. Speaking from personal experience, he claimed that Canadian soldiers were well received in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany, and that they were "good ambassadors wherever they went" He paid tribute to their fighting qualities. "There are no greater fighters than the Canadians; they were always in the vanguard when important battles were on", he said.

Mr. Maclean believed that Canadians overseas had a high sense of duty. Some of course, had joined the forces for adventure, some because of lack of work, but most because they HAD to do their duty. "There is a job in the world to be done", added Mr. Maclean," "and we need the spirit to serve in civilian life, that we had during the war. There is a great future, if we ask 'What have I to give Canada?' ". Concluding, he said, "We have the resources, we have the men . . what can stop us?"

The federal member for Argenteuil, Geo. H. Héon, K.C., was then asked to reply to the toast of "Canada". Expressing gratitude on behalf of Mme Héon and himself, he congratulated the promotters of this banquet and presentation ceremony and said that it is a moral duty to recognize the efforts of all combatants who upheld Canada in the great struggle.

Terming Canada as a "God-given country . . a he-man country . . a real country . . a land richly blessed," Mr. Héon pointed out that Canada was a land of rich resources, precious metals, an unfathomable wealth of lumber, and yet a land of comparatively small population of divers nationalities, and "a land where another war may be fought".

"Your Canada — and mine — a country seeped in British fair play, British tradition and yet becoming more Americanized as time goes on . . Canada — a land of many churches, and many empty pews, but nevertheless living practical Christianity . . where the balanced scale is found in the most humble law court . . blessed in representative government, though less than 30% of her people go to the polls . . a friendly nation to all friendly nations, a lover and apostle of international peace . . a good friend but a tough enemy".

Mr. Héon listed an impressive number of facts relating to Canadian business and manufacturing power in world affairs, a country being first in production of newsprint, nickel, asbestos, platinum, radium, second in wool, gold and silver, and third in many other enterprises and in exports to other lands.

Concluding the toast to "Canada", Mr. Héon said, "During the war, we all heartily sang 'There'll Always be an England', and rightly so; but we can also sing 'There'll Always be a Canada' ".

Ceremony at Auditorium

The gathering then assembled in Lachute Auditorium for the purpose of presenting a token of gratitude to the veterans of the Parish of St. Jerusalem — the women receiving each a gold bracelet and the men a gold ring.

Mayor E. W. Smith was chairman, and after the singing of O Canada, he called upon the Rev. W. B. Rosborough for a brief message.

"This is a proud and happy event", said Mr. Rosborough, "an event we have been looking forward to for many years; and we are indeed proud of the efforts of St. Jerusalem". The speaker referred to the secure and stable foundation made in the Confederation of Canada and the happy blending of racial streams in the land.

Speaking particularly to the veterans, Mr. Rosborough said, "we are especially proud of you, who responded in the hour of your country's need to suffer and to even die". He spoke of the magnificent service rendered, and of the gratitude that so many had been spared to return home. "Our joy, though, is tempered in regret that four of your boys did not return. We are deeply humble in the tremendous sacrifice, and we name them in our hearts".

He then read the names of the four St. Jerusalem men who died while on active duty; they were — Harold Nicholl, Mervin McOuat, George Gladall and William Jones. . . . Calling for a minute's silence, Mr. Rosborough added, "We cherish their memory, in the land that gave them their birth; though their bodies lie in distant parts we will remember them". Concluding, the speaker read the famous words of Lawrence Binyon.

For the Fallen

They went with songs to the battle,
They were young, straight of limb,
True of eye, steady and aglow.
They were staunch to the end
Against odds uncounted, (foe.
They fell with their faces to the

They shall not grow old,
As we that are left grow old,
Age shall not weary them,
Nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun,
And in the morning
We will remember them.

Presentation

The presentation of the remembrance gifts was then carried out, and the returned men and women came forward to receive their rings and bracelets, each warmly applauded by the 400-odd persons assembled in the Auditorium.

The names of those honored in the community presentation were—

It is to be noted that R. O. MacLean, listed above, was a member of the Parachute Division and one of the very first Canadians to set foot on French soil on D-Day.

Dance

A happy atmosphere prevailed in the Auditorium as both young and old joined afterwards in the modern and square dances, to the music of Lowe's orchestra and fiddle of Edgar Jackson — the music being gratuitously furnished for this auspicious cause.

The co-operation of Lachute Town Council in providing use of the Auditorium, and Lachute United Church for the use of the church hall and tableware was deeply appreciated by the organizers.

The Citizens' Veterans' Reception Committee, the mayor and council of the Parish, and the officers and members of the two Women's Institute branches who co-operated towards the success of this occasion, are to be commended upon their fine efforts.

Women on the Farm

THE SHORTAGE of farm labor this year would have been much more acute had it not been for the unselfish efforts of many women workers who volunteered to help gather the crops. Women assisted in harvesting the fruit yields, in reaping the grain crops, in gathering garden produce and doing all sorts of jobs about the farm. Many have done the work of a man, toiling day after day in the fields. Some have driven tractors, others have tended to animals. But whatever their tasks, they performed them well.

In considering the work to be done on the farm, one generally thinks in terms of what is done by the man. In reality, however, the job of the farmer's wife is as difficult as that done by the farmer, and oftentimes more so. Most farm women help with the milking, they tend to the fowl, and care for the kitchen garden. In addition they do the household duties, a full-time job in itself. The school-book story of the farmer who wanted to trade jobs with his wife for a day, and the difficulties he got into, holds as true today as it did years ago.

We admire the industry of Canadian farm women. Many farmers would not be nearly so successful were it not for the inspiration and help provided by their wives. The farm wife is deserving of much greater recognition.

Tomorrow Never Comes

MANY an executive famous in the field of business has had a motto hanging on his office wall carrying the words, "Do it Now" . . . Others for whom each day is crowded with work, make a practice of listing each item to be looked after during the day, and each listed item is ticked off as it is accomplished.

Such defensive steps to defeat that bugbear, "Procrastination", are found necessary by most men and women who realize that so often the duty put off until the morrow is never done.

For the average citizen in Canada, buying a Canada Savings Bond is a proposition much different than was the purchase of a Victory Bond in war days. Because of the vast sales organization behind Victory Bond issues, very few people in the Dominion were left to buy entirely on their own initiative. Sooner or later a salesman turned up — and extended his fountain pen for the signature.

Salesmen will call on a number of Canadians in behalf of the Canada Savings Bond, but thousands of those who buy this time will have to make up their own minds and act on their own. — And for these people, the old-fashioned motto, "Do it Now", will serve in good stead.

Glory Overflowing

October, with a lavish hand, now spills
Her wine of flame and gold upon the hills:
It splashes on the slopes and blends into
Rich colorings of almost every hue:
Deep red and russet, orange, yellow, jade,
Grape-blue and green and brown of every shade.
And in the valley hang, like filmy mist,
Her veils of opal, blue and amethyst,
Rose-gray and violet, until it seems
All earth is drowsy with the wine of dreams.
I think that somewhere up around the Throne,
God's cup of glory must have overflown.

Canadian Characteristics

CANADIANS have a distinctive personality, we have been informed by an English friend touring Canada to write articles for a British newspaper. In comparing Canadian characteristics with those of other nationalities, our friend says we are friendly, well-mannered and basically honest. This visitor explains further, we are not so forward as the people in the United States, nor are we as reserved as the English. It seems we are a happy medium of the two nationalities.

Our friend had this to say about entering Canada after a month's visit in the United States: "From the minute we crossed the border there was a difference. The clean, wholesome look of a Canadian! The manners and polite consideration of the customs officials was so much like one is accustomed to (in England) that it almost unnerved me. The customs officers did not even ask for my bags to be opened. I played fair. I really had nothing to declare, but the point is they believed me."

It is pleasing to know that visitors like us, that they appreciate the courtesies shown by our officials, that the Canadian method of doing things is a pleasant one. However, we must not become satisfied with ourselves, but rather should strive to make ourselves more pleasant to our guests and to keep Canada the kind of country people will want to visit.

Incidentally, our English friend was surprised at the number of tourist encampments which dot the highways. Cabins for tourists are not seen in the British Isles, mainly because the distances are so short there is no need for them. Our visitor found great delight in reading the roadside advertisements and came to the conclusion that Americans and Canadians know all there is to know about advertising. The sign which caused the most laughter was a rather ambiguous one which read:

"Eat and Sleep with Davis"

— Poor Mr. Davis!

Over Forty

THE VERDUN Guardian goes to bat, now that the war is over, for men and women who have "passed forty" and who are being given the run-around by business and industry in favor of the "youngster". Only their age is against them, claims the Guardian, and many employers with "disregard of humanitarian issues involved are taking on only young men in their twenties". The paper thinks that if the practice keeps on there should be government intervention, though it views with distaste the government mixing in matters any more than it is at present.

VARY your chores. Unrelieved application to one phase of labor makes for dullness and falling efficiency. The health experts declare that, while work probably never killed anyone, a change is as good as a rest, and there should be variety to add spice to everything in work and play.

Bank Loans Aid Farm Improvement

"It is a recognized fact that without the use of up-to-date equipment your farm cannot give you all the profit it should," said Eric Hibbard, manager of the Bank of Montreal, in discussing farm financing.

Modern farm machinery, materials for extensions and repairs, pumps, motors, and milking machines, adequate electrical facilities — these are the things, he said, which are absolutely necessary for maximum farm profits.

"The purchase of these profit-making aids may seem to be beyond your immediate financial resources," Mr. Hibbard continued. "If so, the Bank of Montreal would like to help you, for our farm improvement loan plan has been designed to meet just such circumstances.

"Taking advantage of our low-interest plan will enable you to own any of the modern appliances designed to increase the profits of your farm." -1c

Heirs Are Penalized

(Edmonton Bulletin)

Near Galt a bachelor farmer willed his farm to the county. He explained: "The average farm goes on until someone dies. Then the estate needs money and a contractor is allowed to come into the wood lot. He slashes his way through and leaves a barren area. With the timber gone the farm is ruined. I don't want this to happen to my farm."

A similar situation arises when a non-farmer dies. Succession dues have to be paid, paid in cash, and paid within a limited time. To raise the money a home may have to be sold, stocks or bonds realized on, perhaps when prices are away below par. That is not fair. It is not strictly honest. It does not even make sense when the estate is small and the widow needs all she can salvage after meeting medical and funeral expenses.

This is the way succession tax laws have operated generally in Canada. They should be amended in some way to avoid imposing needless sacrifice on those who inherit what the law sees fit to allow them. A man's heirs should not be treated as though they were criminals.

TORY RETORT

A teacher in a London school was instructing a class of strongly labor-minded youngsters in government. To discover how much they had taken in, she asked some questions:

"Who supplies our food?"

"Mr. Strachey" (Minister of Food), came the prompt reply from a little boy.

"Who supplies coal?"

"Mr. Shinwell" (Minister of Fuel), answered another child.

Then, switching the subject to test their acuteness, the teacher asked who supplied the flowers.

"God," was the quick response from a little girl at the back.

"Shutup, you little Tory," came an audible whisper from the boy behind. (Selected)

French-Born McGill Professor Had Colorful Career in British Army

Montreal (CP) — Recently appointed chairman of the department of romance languages, McGill University, John L. Launay, the only Frenchman to hold a general staff appointment in the British Army, has a history which reads like fiction.

Wartime experiences of the 33-year-old professor, who fought under Lieut.-Gen. Sir Neil Ritchie, included a 20-mile ride in a British brigadier's staff car through an advancing column of German tanks, and evacuation twice from France by British boats.

Launay served 22 months in the ranks of the British Army at the same time hunting for a birth certificate, necessary for a commission. Finally an Army Council decided that despite regulations, the lack of a birth certificate should not hold up his military career.

Little did Professor Launay realize while playing as a boy on the Normandy beaches, that his intimate knowledge of potential landing sites would one day be of critical importance in planning the invasion of his native France. As a staff officer he helped select the invasion site and played a significant role in its operation.

"Anything I can do to foster better relations between France and Canada will give me great pleasure," said the youthful professor, who taught French in England, English literature in France and now will teach French in Canada.

A YOUNG OLD-TIMER...

Although only 30 years old, Gordon "Chubby" Barrett has already been "one of us" for 11 years — as an Electrical Maintenance man with a pulp and paper company at Thorold, Ontario. Chubby is a keen sportsman. He bowls for the mill team, and is an active organizer for the Amateur Athletic Association. He's served three years as a Town Councillor of Thorold, and has also been a member of the town Police, Fire and Publicity Committees. Chubby is married, and is justly proud of his wife and 5-year old Brian. In the war Chubby worked his way up from private to lieutenant in the Canadian Infantry Corps.

"You've got to like a job a good deal to stick at it for 11 years . . . I think this Pulp and Paper Industry is going to be pretty important during the next few years. It offers a basis for large scale permanent employment on which to build a normal peacetime prosperity for the country."

Lachute Citizens' Veterans' Reception Committee

Appeal for Co-operation of the Public

Due to circumstances beyond control, the Citizens' Veterans' Reception Committee in Lachute had to suspend activities during the summer.

However, a meeting was held Friday, October 4, in Lachute Town Hall to resume the activities of this committee towards the final completion of their undertaking.

The main element of success is that no names shall be omitted from those to be honored by the community in this project.

The committee therefore publish below the list of names they now have on hand, and they request the public to communicate to the secretary, Mr. Fernand Legault (tel. 60) the names of any omitted in the present list.

Eligible are "those from the town of Lachute, including any who were residing or working in Lachute at time of enlistment or who are residing in Lachute at present or working here, who have joined in the active service or have served overseas".

It is to be noted that those who have been the recipients of a similar reception in the neighboring communities are excluded. After October the 31st, no new names will be added to the list.

The committee asks the cooperation of the public to see that no names are omitted.

Every new Wage Earner

. . . should answer these questions:

How MANY 'earning years' are you looking forward to?
Right now you take pleasure and pride in that job of yours! But later in life, retirement is going to seem pretty attractive too. Years slip by quickly. You should, accordingly, SAVE through Mutual Life of Canada insurance which will provide for your retirement and protect your dependents . . .

Does it matter WHICH life insurance company you choose?
Yes! Life insurance companies are much alike as to policies and rates, but actual long-term results vary widely. We invite you to compare The Mutual Life of Canada's record with that of any other company. Evidence of the satisfaction of our policyholders is furnished by the fact that whole families and succeeding generations have entrusted their life insurance programs exclusively to The Mutual Life of Canada, and each year approximately 35% of its new business comes from policyholders. Ask your Mutual Life representative to explain the special features of this Company.

SAVED FARMER'S LIFE BECAME FARMER'S WIFE

Shepherdswell, Kent, Oct. 8 (CP) — Two years after she saved farmer Hillhouse Weir from being gored by a bull, Norah Jennings became his bride.

A weaver before the war, Miss Jennings joined the Woman's Land Army in 1941 and was posted to Mr. Jennings' farm. Injured in the struggle to save him from an enraged bull, she won the British Empire Medal.

NOT ALL ESKIMOS LIVE IN IGLOOS

Aklavik Colony Even Suffers Heat Waves

Peterborough, Ont. (CP) — There are Eskimos who have never even seen an igloo, let alone lived in one — just ask Mrs. Donald Marsh, wife of the Archdeacon of Aklavik in the Northwest Territories, now visiting here.

"Aklavik Eskimos live in houses just as we do," Mrs. Marsh said. "How could they know what an igloo looks like?"

"It will probably surprise many people to know that we had a heat wave just before I left in June," she continued. "The thermometer had reached a high of 87 and the sun just spun around in a circle overhead 24 hours a day." She explained it was the season when there was continuous sunlight.

Aklavik is about the size of an average Ontario village and boasts a mounted police barracks, meteorological office, two missions and a number of trading companies.

"Don't ask me what I think of the outside world," laughed Mrs. Marsh. "Down here I have been unable to buy either soap flakes or shortening. — If I had known it was in such short supply, I'd have brought some with me."

Specially Written for The Watchman

Sports headlines invariably are made up of the moment's heroes. A championship won, a record set, some spectacular feat — these fleeting glories make the athletic world go round.

Hidden behind the perpetrators of these athletic accomplishments are men—who from the fans viewpoint — take secondary roles. But indelibly printed on now-yellowed pages are the records of these "secondary role" people when they too were heroes of the minute.

The lack of glory in being, let us say a trainer, is probably a far cry from the part this person played in years gone by. For instance, one rarely sees mentioned the name of Clarence (Buck) Tahamont who trains this year's outstanding football team, Montreal Alouettes.

Buck—he dislikes his given name vehemently—is a full-blooded Abenaki Indian and is proud of the culture of that tribe. Not so many years ago the sports headlines were his. The boys on whom he now spends hours of patching, doctoring and conditioning were in knee pants then.

Buck starred at baseball, lacrosse, hockey, tennis, golf, basketball, football—even excelled at billiards But his active career ended at Winnipeg in 1921 when his jugular vein stopped the front end of a skate while he was playing hockey and he spent 23 months in hospital. After that he gave all his time as an official, executive, coach or trainer.

Buck then went to Montreal where he was trainer for the Montreal A.A.A. hockey team that won the Allan Cup in 1930 and played for the same club's grid squad a year later when they took the Grey Cup.

Today his role is looking after injuries with the ability of an M.D., rubbing out muscle kinks and making a specialty of getting rid of charlie horses.

When the war came along, big Buck—he weighs well over the 200-pound mark and tops six feet — joined the Provost Corps. There again he made headlines, though he is modest about it and refuses to tell stories of incidents such as the time he crawled under a railroad car at Montreal's Windsor station to capture an escaped German prisoner-of-war.

War duties done, Buck is back in the sports battle — behind the dressing-room door.

Now that the baseball season is all but over, just a parting thought.

Baseball Commissioner Happy Chandler has not shaken off the Mickey Owen headache as easily as he thought. In announcing his intention to enforce a five-year suspension on the ex-Dodger catcher for his having skipped to the Mexican League, Chandler left unanswered Owens' status under the United States GI Bill of Rights which makes every discharged serviceman entitled to his old job.

Besides which, may we point out that Chandler quit a $10,000 a year job as a U.S. senator for the State of Kentucky in order to take a $50,000 job with baseball. That's the same thing he's punishing Owens for — taking a better job!

A Stalwart Umpire

One of the last baseball stories of the year concerns one Paul Hilliard who played for a minor loop team in Radford, Va., early this year. Then when there was a shortage of umpires in that league, friend Hilliard donned the working blues.

At Radford, the left field fence is so far from home plate they say it's a good drive in an automobile, but Hilliard has managed to park the ball over that wall twice. One day since he became an ump, a major league scout asked the team's manager if any player ever hit that far. The reply was "no one but the umpire there," referring to Hilliard.

"What kind of league is this?" the scout asked. "The umpire bats and he's the only one who clouts them over the wall."

The manager's explanation is un recorded.

"Brother, It's All Yours!"

You may never have gone fishing, hunting, or camping—you may not even have a garden—yet, as a citizen of Quebec you are heir to the vast wealth of our forest lands; to a heritage of beauty unparalleled in the world.

Many thousands of Quebec men depend upon the forest for a livelihood. Every day more and more varied uses are being found for forest products. Great lumbering and pulp and paper industries have been built from them.

But—is this great asset inexhaustible? This is a leading question. And the answer is thought-provoking. Without fire prevention, timber cutting control and research to cut down insect depredations —and above all, without your understanding support of every conservation method, our forests could vanish!

Every Canadian, as a shareholder in Canada's natural wealth, has a vital interest in the conservation of this heritage. Conservation is not just a doctrine to be preached to hunters and fishermen. It is a vital part in the continuance of our national economy, and must, of necessity, fail if its measures do not receive the full support of all Canadian citizens.

"SPIRIT OF THE PIONEERS"

The Story of Lord Selkirk

By SOPHY L. ELLIOTT

Thomas Douglas, Fifth Earl of Selkirk, was a scion of the noble clan of Douglasses, noted for their valor since the days of the crusades. This man, despite his lofty place in society, was a humanitarian with a very soft heart. The early days of the nineteenth century introduced the machine age in Britain. It became fashionable for the wealthy classes to purchase property amidst the attractions and advantages of city life. Then, week-end hunting and fishing parties of the lairds of Scotland and the squires of England called for large tracts of sparsely cultivated land. The tenant farmers had to go. Machinery replaced the hand-woven fabrics of wool. It was a double misfortune for the common farmer and his family. Ruthless bailiffs burned down the ancient homesteads. At one place in Scotland some three thousand tenants were cast out of their homes to wander aimlessly across the bleak and barren moorlands of Scotland. Lord Selkirk hated the whole thing. He planned to move the unhappy people to Canada. He was director of the Hudson's Bay Company and knew the Red River district very well. He was well aware of the fertility of the Red River Valley. This lord of Scotland was a very wealthy man. He was married to the daughter of Colville, one of the heaviest shareholders in the Hudson's Bay Company. Lord Selkirk eventually, with his family, owned the greater part of the stock.

Lord Selkirk knew Montreal in those early nineteenth century days. He attended the Beaver Club banquets held in the sumptuous private houses of the hearty Nor'westers. What tales he heard of hardship versus adventure in its most alluring form. Doubtless he heard the songs of French-Canada, as shouted from the lusty lungs of Johnny Canuck while he shot his birch-bark canoe over the silver waters of Canada's broad-bosomed lakes and rapid-ridden rivers. Space does not permit the story of Lord Selkirk's settlers coming to Canada and the hardships they suffered. But come they did, at his expense, and although only a few lived to take up permanent residence in the lush land of the Red River Valley, the effort he made eventually developed into the greatest migratory movement ever known to the human race. Through his efforts and at his own expense eight hundred Highlanders were brought from Scotland to take up residence in Prince Edward Island. This colony developed into one of the most noted literary centres in North America. It has provided the world with some of the finest intellects on record.

Selkirk's settlement on the banks of the Red River saved Western Canada from the encroachment and possible absorption by American migration. But Lord Selkirk beggared himself trying to perform miracles with men. He was an idealist with vision a hundred years before his time. Eight years of strife, battling for his Scottish colonists in Canada, had told on the health of one of Canada's most illustrious noblemen. He had squandered his entire fortune in his benevolent endeavors. Harried and weary beyond expression, he went to France for his health. On November 8, 1820, Lord Selkirk died. That same year was born in Scotland the next leader of men in Canada's vast western expanse, namely Donald Smith, who lived a great part of his time in Canada. He became famous in the role of Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, and his benevolence was an outstanding feature of his career.

My Lord Selkirk was the friend of famous men (like his predecessor, Pierre Radisson.) Sir Walter Scott was a great admirer and friend of Selkirk, as the following words quoted from Scott's own pen indicate: "I never knew in my life a man of a more generous and disinterested disposition than Selkirk, or one whose talents and perseverence were better fitted to bring great and national schemes to successful conclusion."

The Tourist Industry

Next to agriculture and mining, it is said that Canadians could make the tourist business Canada's greatest source of income. That this tourist business involves every other line of business is shown in the following survey made by the American Hotel Association, showing how the tourist's dollar is spent. Here is the breakdown:

Retail Stores	31 cents
Hotels	23 "
Restaurants	18 "
Garages	10 "
Miscellaneous	10 "
Theatres	8 "

The tourist traffic is not something that just happens. Tourists want good roads, comfortable living quarters, excellent food and entertainment. No country has a monopoly of the things that attract tourists, and the industry is highly competitive.

Pipes Laid Without Road Disturbance

London — A British invention that attracted much attention at the Acton Industrial Exhibition recently was a thrust borer to facilitate underground pipe and cable installation without road disturbance. This machine can be operated by one or two men and guarantees accurate alignment of each thrust tube. It has a pilot lamp which enables the operators to confirm that the intended level and direction are being maintained.

Vancouver—"Discretion" was the term used by City Solicitor A. E. Lord when the question arose at a meeting of the Official Traffic Commission of whether an ambulance speeding on an emergency call with its siren blaring, should pass through a busy intersection at 50 or 60 miles per hour. The commission stated it would be impossible to set a top speed for ambulances which would be applicable in all emergencies.

ANCIENT "374" NEEDS A HOME

Historic Engine Pulled First Train From East Into Vancouver

Vancouver (CP)—Old Engine 374 which pulled the first passenger train from eastern Canada into Vancouver 59 years ago is standing in the Canadian Pacific Railway yards here awaiting a permanent home.

The railway company gave the ancient locomotive to the city and the question of finding a suitable location for it has so far baffled civic authorities.

The Parks Board has been wrestling with the problem. First Pioneer Square, a small downtown park, was suggested and rejected. Then authorities considered placing it in Kitsilano Park, a bathing beach, in the middle of a streetcar loop. It was found that was not feasible because it would leave only two feet of clearance for streetcars.

Now the board is studying other possible locations.

Old 374 was built in Delormier Avenue shops of the Canadian Pacific railway in June, 1886, the year Vancouver was incorporated. A year later it "wood-burned" its way into Vancouver, gaily bedecked with bunting, streamers and signs. On its tender was a photograph of "Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria".

EDUCATED WHEEL

Orangeville, Ont., (CP) — Business is literally rolling into the garage which Barclay Harris, a returned serviceman has just open-here. A wheel from a passing automobile flew off, rolled 100 yards down the street, turned into the service station, crashed right through a plate glass window and knocked over a soft drink cooler.

A friend Jack Philips swished across mountains and prairies from Vancouver on a motorcycle.

And from Denver, Colo., by car came cousins, Mr. and Mrs. A. Maguire.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Parish Mission To Be Held at Weir Church

Weir — The coming week will witness a unique event in the history of the Church of the Redeemer, Weir. For the first time in this district a "Church Mission" will be held.

A Mission is an attempt to face the problems of the present age in the light of the eternal verities of the Christian gospel The Church, as always, has a vital and relevant message to deliver; but religion, like everything else, requires attention and study. A Mission in one sense is a school of religion, and to this end eight successive services will be held, every night at 7.30 from Sunday, October 20 to Sunday, October 27.

The leader of this Mission will be the Rev. Kenneth C. Bolton, newly appointed rector of the Church of St. John the Divine, Verdun, and formerly at Knowlton and Shawville.

In a letter to the residents of Weir, inviting their support of the Mission, the Rt. Rev. John Dixon, Bishop of Montreal, says, "We make our contribution to the world's life where we live. . . . As Church life develops in Weir . . . so our Church becomes a greater instrument in our Lord's hand."

TOWN & DISTRICT BUSINESS REVIEW

The value of the home-town weekly is measured not in terms of sensationalism, nor in the volume of its contents. It is counted as a reliable informant on the community's progress, and a purveyor of its news — accurate, yet considerate; truthful, yet fair; constructive in its criticisms.

And sharing the same respect and sentiment with its readers, are the local advertisers — men who quickly recognize this avenue of contact with the homes and consumers of the neighborhood.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

WOMEN'S INVASION SCORNED BY SCOTS

Edinburgh (CP) — The revival of the traditional Scottish highland gatherings culminating in the Royal Braemar gathering attended by the King and Queen, has stirred up a lively war between the sexes in the heather-clad highlands.

The Braemar gathering of the clans has had a special place on the calendar ever since Queen Victoria put the seal of royal approval on this picturesque meeting in the Deeside mountains.

From this highland fastness at Oban, Atholl Robertson fired a broadside charging that highland gatherings have for too long been infested with small, predatory females, masquerading in male dress, and covered with as many medals as there are scales on a salmon — "an eyesore and a heart-break to anyone with the interests of highland dancing at heart".

In the old days, he says, the dances were the prerogative of the male, and served to demonstrate the warrior's agility, endurance and lightness of foot. No woman, says this authority, can perform them properly, and highland ladies in the old days had the good sense and good manners to realize that.

Counter-blasts from the women have so far been mild. Miss Winnstanley Brown, principal of the Edinburgh School for Dancing, says they have been doing it now for many years and have scored many successes.

Canning Poultry

After a busy season of canning fruits and vegetables, of making jams, jellies and pickles, the homemaker is now counting her chickens for another canning bee.

Canned chicken or fowl is so convenient to have when, at a moment's notice, a special meal has to be prepared. Besides being convenient to have, it makes very good eating. What better way is there to make use of those chickens that insist in jumping over the fences, etc., with the result that they have a slight physical defect that will prevent their getting a good grading and consequently a good price on the market. Those fowls that are not attending to their duty, that is laying regularly, may be canned also.

The home economists of the C.S.D.D.A. give the following recommendations and directions for canning chicken or fowl:

Chicken or fowl should stand for 24 hours after killing, then they may be canned either raw or precooked. For either method, they should be drawn and thoroughly washed.

For Raw Canning

Skin and excess fat are taken off. Then the chicken or fowl is cut in large pieces (drumsticks, thighs, breast, back and wings.) All pieces should be boned except the drumsticks, then the raw meat is packed in clean jars or in plain tin cans, leaving ½ inch headspace. A drumstick is placed in the center of the container, this allows heat to penetrate more easily to the centre of the containers during processing and will also improve the flavor of the meat. Salt is added during the packing, allowing one teaspoon to a quart sealer or 28-oz. tin can. Other seasonings in the form of 1 carrot and 1 small onion may be added to taste. No liquid should be added. Glass sealers are then partially sealed and tin cans completely sealed for processing.

Glass sealers and tin cans are processed for one hour in the pressure cooker at 15 lbs. pressure, or in the boiling water bath for 3 hours, counting the time from when the water begins to boil, that is a good rolling boil. The glass sealers are sealed a soon as they are removed from the pressure cooker or the boiling water bath and cooled in an upright position. Sealers should never be inverted to cool. Tin cans must be cooled immediately and rapidly in a cold water bath or under cold running water.

For Pre-Cooked Canning

Excess fat should be removed but skin left on and the chicken or fowl cut up in pieces. The pieces are then put in a kettle, with water. To a fowl of about 4½ lbs. 1 pint of water is added and the fowl boiled for one hour in the closely covered kettle. For a chicken of same weight, 1 cup only of water is added and the boiling time is cut in half. After fowl or chicken is pre-cooked, the skin and bones are removed and the liquid strained through a cheesecloth and then cooled. The surplus fat should be removed when liquid is cold. The cooked meat is then packed in glass sealers or tin cans with one teaspoon of salt per quart sealer or 28-oz. can. The liquid is then brought to the boil and added to cover the meat, leaving ½ inch headspace.

Glass sealers and tin cans are processed for one hour in the pressure cooker at 15 lbs. pressure, or in the boiling water bath for 3 hours, counting the time from which the water begins to boil, that is a good rolling boil. The glass sealers are sealed as soon as they are removed from the pressure cooker or the boiling water bath and then cooled in an upright position. Sealers should never be inverted to cool. Tin cans must be cooled immediately and quickly in a cold water bath or under cold running water.

One chicken of 4 to 5 pounds will approximately fill one quart sealer and one pint sealer—or one 28-oz. can and one 20-oz. can.

UK. Firm Claims "Perfect Stocking"

London—A United Kingdom firm claims to have produced the perfect stocking: fully fashioned, silk, and completely "run-proof". Miss Caroline Haslett, chairman of the Government Hosiery Working Party, which recently published its report, describes these stockings as "very, very good". She says, "I could not tell the difference between them and pure silk fully fashioned stockings made in the ordinary way. I satisfied myself that they were really run-proof and I think it is a tremendous development in the hosiery industry". Production at present is only in the experimental stage and it cannot be stated when the stockings are likely to be on the market. The firm took the patent for them in 1939 but the war held up research and production.

Women in Civic Affairs

By MONA RAVENSCROFT, M.A.

Too often in the past women have made the mistake of refusing to take an interest and responsibility in the vital sphere of public affairs. They have allowed the burden to fall on the shoulders of men, with the excuse that affairs of government are "dehumanized," too technical and difficult for their understanding. This has been an easy way out, but it is not an honest one.

It is my firm conviction that no matter your age or disposition, no matter where you work — on the home front, the industrial or professional fronts — there is no excuse for not caring about the community in which you live. This apathy on the part of women has infected the morale and intellectual fibre of their menfolk. Especially at the present time, when so many families have paid on the dearest terms the demands of war, there is a deep urge to withdraw from the community and live within the four walls of the home. This is a tragedy which will stalemate the future of our nation. The pioneer spirit of this young country is suffering an early death. Unless we can re-fire that surge of hope and belief in ourselves as a community of people, we will slide into defeatism and depression.

In the last count, whenever we find community progress, it always originates from one or two courageous people who are able to carry the initial burden of inspiring the rest. Your confidence in the people of your community, and in the women in particular, will be the best selling point of the human element in local politics. I have noticed how women change when they come to grips with practical problems in various committees, and how they learn to stand on their own feet and drive for things they believe in. I am thinking especially at the moment of country towns where women's committees are planning community centres, child clinics and other facilities. They are starting in a small way, with a gymnasium or small hall, and gradually they gain confidence with each successful step, and draw in behind them the support of all kinds of groups and individuals. Women are highly successful as co-ordinating sectional interests and uniting a community for the progress of the whole. No-one can deny that women have a universal love for the human element, and it is this love which can make us co-operate together.

OCTOGENARIAN STILL ACTIVE

Aurora, Ont. (CP) — At a reception in honor of her 83rd birthday, Mrs. Hariett Chapman received guests in the wedding dress she made for herself 66 years ago.

Despite her age she still spends most of her time at her favorite hobbies — painting in oils, and making wreaths from wool, hair, fruits, vegetables and flowers. One wreath, known as a "farmer's wreath" has been valued at $1,500. It is a broken circle, three feet long, and made from popular farm products.

Mrs. Chapman told friends she will invite them for another reception on her 90th birthday — after all she comes from a family known for its longevity. Her mother lived to be 94, her father 88, and a sister in Chatham, Ont., is 96.

'Objectives of Education' Speaker's Topic at Women's Inst. Semi-Annual

Argenteuil Convention Is Attended by Large Gathering — Delegates from All Branches Discuss Matters of Group Interest

County Conveners Report on Departments

The semi-annual convention of Argenteuil Women's Institutes was held in Lachute High School on Saturday afternoon, with a good attendance of members and delegates.

Mrs. R. McFaul, county president, occupied the chair, and the meeting opened with a salute to the flag, singing of the Ode and recital of the Women's Creed. This procedure was followed by business details of the meeting.

Mrs. N. E. Smillie then introduced in a few well chosen words the guest speaker, Dr. J. S. Astbury of Montreal, who spoke on "Present Day Objectives in Education".

The speaker stated he was very much impressed by the Creed repeated by the members at this meeting, and believed that if all mankind would live up to its tenets, this would be a grand world to live in. He emphasized the fact that Education had made great strides, and gave many amusing illustrations of the changes it had undergone. Education today was likened to a well-planned kitchen, in which many steps were saved and partitions removed. The simile could be applied to our educational system. Knowledge is power, but power must be subjected to control and linked with character, he said. Competition should not be stressed. Rather, character should be built first, and scholarship later. Money objectives may be easily reached, but moral objectives are not so easily attained, he said.

Present-day educational objectives imply more work for the teachers, Dr. Astbury remarked. But the teaching profession is endeavoring to make the schools into "service stations", not mere "filling stations". It is impossible to co-operate too much with school enterprise or encouragement of the teaching staffs. Teaching is a highly "spiritual" profession. The speaker compared teaching to the parable of the tares and the sower, saying that it is necessary to be very careful in the screening process.

The speaker was thanked for his most interesting talk by Mrs. Geo. Armstrong.

Mrs. D. Clarke, of Frontier Branch, who was in charge of the program, called on Miss Shirley Heatlie to lead a singsong. This was enjoyed by all present, especially the number, "Three Gray Pigeons".

The county conveners gave brief reviews of their work. The publicity convener urged that all reports be sent in as soon as possible after the meetings — the 15th of the month being the deadline date for the provincial publicity convener to receive reports.

A considerable discussion took place on the county scholarship, and it was decided for one year only, to give the sum of $50 to the pupil taking highest marks for entrance exams at Lachute High School — whether under the Central or a rural school board.

Mrs. Clarence Dixon, Fair Work convener, read a list of proposed exhibits for the 1947 Fair, and felt it was necessary to have more money for the prize list; therefore each branch has been asked to donate $5 to this fund.

The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem. Mrs. S. S. Campbell was pianist for the afternoon.

Drag River for Missing Man

The disappearance of Magloire (Mack) Villeneuve, 50-year-old resident, from his home on the Brownsburg Road, has prompted the authorities to drag the North River in search of his body — but operations so far have been fruitless.

The man, well known around town as a painter for the past 40 years, had been in ill health and mentally deranged. He disappeared from his bed shortly after midnight last Sunday, clad only in his underwear and socks. His wife, who had fallen asleep for a brief time while tending the sick man, promptly reported his disappearance to the police. When a search of the district revealed no trace of him, dragging was started next day in the pond off the North River at the rear of his home. Yesterday dynamite was exploded at this spot, and in deeper water off the old C.N.R. pier, but all efforts to locate the man have been unavailing. The belief is held that in an unbalanced state of mind he jumped into the river.

'DIAMOND KING' WILL DONATE TO McGILL MEMORIAL

Montreal — McGill University's war memorial campaign will receive a boost from the "diamond king" graduate, Dr. John Thorburn Williamson, it was revealed at the annual meeting of the McGill Graduates Society, held last week.

Retiring president Eric Leslie, in commenting upon the campaign's report presented by Col. D. Stuart Forbes, said that a McGill dean had told him of receiving a letter from Dr. Williamson, in which "the world's wealthiest man," had said he would contribute "a substantial sum" to the cause. — But what "a substantial sum" means in Tanganyika, McGill doesn't yet know.

School Children To Enter Poppy Essay Contest

As a means of encouraging children to learn about the symbolic meaning of the poppy which is worn on Remembrance Day, the Quebec Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League is sponsoring an essay contest on the subject "The Poppy, A Symbol of Remembrance". This contest carries two prizes, a $50 Victory Bond in each case, one for the best essay in French and the other for the best essay in English. The contest is open to all school children up to the eleventh grade in the Province if Quebec. The schools of Brownsburg and Lachute have been contacted in this connection, and other schools in Argenteuil are asked to take the necessary steps on reading this announcement.

Essays are not to exceed 750 words, and school parcels must reach the Regional Chairman, S. H. Stilwell, Brownsburg, not later than November 1. Arrangements will be made for the winners to be taken to Montreal, all expenses being paid, in order that they may broadcast their essays over the radio.

Boyd's Transport Rolls 3,094 Miles On Tennessee Trip

Something spectacular in highway transportation was achieved last week by Boyd's Lachute Express Ltd. — in a 3,094-mile trip to Chatanooga, Tennessee, with one of their trailer-trucks. Walker Scott and Howard Ward, both of Lachute, were the pair who made the trip.

After crossing the international boundary with a large load for Concord, N.H., the route to Chatanooga traversed 12 states of the Union, including New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia.

Picking up a load of heating equipment at Chatanooga consigned to Canadian Vickers Corpn. at Montreal, the transport on its return trip gathered 18 more cases at Wallingford, N.J., making a total load of 9½ tons. The Bear Mountain Trail in this state was one of the most arduous climbs of the trip.

The advertising display on the trailer carried the name of Lachute to spots where it had never been publicized before. The transport tractor consumed 375 gallons of gas and six quarts of oil on the long trip.

Walker Scott, arriving in Lachute on Saturday, appeared glad to be back home. Oldest driver in the employ of the company, he is now in his 18th year with Boyd's Express. Howard Ward is the second in seniority; it is 10 years since he joined the staff — five years of which were spent on service overseas.

Decline in Traffic Of Oil Steamers On Ottawa River

(Our District Correspondent)

Cushing W. — There has been a very noticeable falling off of traffic on the Ottawa River recently, occasioned by the oil-carrying steamers which have plied between Montreal and Ottawa for the past number of years and have now changed their route, going up the St. Lawrence to unload their cargoes at Morrisburg. The boats affected by this change are the "Brittamette," the "Super-test", the "Ottawa-lite" and the "Rideaulite". It has also considerably lightened the duties of the canal employees, as these vessels made almost daily trips between the two cities.

Ammunition Works' Chief Chemist Addresses Brownsb'g Rotary on 'Fire and Its Prevention'

INFLAMMABLE VAPORS . . SPONTANEOUS IGNITION

Brownsburg — The Rotary Club, at their weekly meeting on October 17, heard an interesting and instructive talk on "Fire and Its Prevention" by H. C. Barrie, chief chemist of "Dominion" Ammunition Plant of Canadian Industries Limited at Brownsburg. President Harris Sherwood was in the chair.

"Fire losses are on the increase", said the speaker. "In 1945 the fire losses were the highest in 16 years, and represented a 30% increase over those of 1942. . . It is said that only 40% of industrial properties that burn are ever rebuilt. What a loss to the community, if an industry on which it depends for its existence is one day reduced to ashes. Whether these fires occur in Vancouver, Montreal or Halifax, they eventually affect every citizen's pocketbook in higher prices, higher taxes, etc., no matter where he lives. It has been truly said that 'fire is the silent partner of inflation'. In these days when food supplies are so badly needed by the starving populations of the world, fires in food and allied plants, such as flour mills, are a double calamity. In one flour mill alone sufficient flour to provide a daily ration for 6,000,000 people was destroyed. ."

"The loss in life due to fire is appalling. More than 10,000 people are killed annually, or one every 50 minutes, on the average". The speaker reviewed briefly several fires of the last six years which accounted for a large toll of life. These included the Cocoanut Grove fire in Boston — 492 lives; the Hartford, Conn., circus fire — 168 lives; and the La Salle Hotel fire — 61 lives. The fact that these fires were so disastrous was due, in the main, to negligence. The speaker outlined the main causes of the La Salle Hotel fire, which included highly combustible interior finishing, open stairways and unsprinklered corridors. He mentioned a well known Montreal hotel where unsprinklered corridors and open stairways created a definite hazard. It is imperative that some way be found to legally require those owners who will not willingly follow good practice on their own, to make their properties safe for the public, he stated.

The speaker quoted Percy Bugbee, general manager of the National Fire Protection Association: "The public thinks too little about fire until it is too late. Right now, because of three disastrous hotel fires and explosions which occurred in June, the N.F.P.A. is being deluged with requests for information on how to prevent hotel fires. After the Hartford circus fire two summers ago, public officials all over the country asked us for information on how to prevent circus fires. An extensive investigation and clean-up of hazardous conditions in many clubs occurred countrywide, after the Cocoanut Grove fire in November 1942."

"The real lesson of these disasters has somehow failed to reach the public consciousness", the speaker claimed. "Fire and panic may take its toll of lives in any place where people congregate. Must we wait for a huge loss of life to occur in the bargain basement of a big department store during the Christmas buying rush, must we wait for a large disaster in a church before we investigate the protection of people in these public places?"

"Locked exits, obstructed exits, inadequate exits, lack of automatic sprinklers and fire alarms, inflammable decorations and hangings, needless accumulation of inflammable material, promiscuous smoking in hazardous areas, and other obvious factors, can all be taken care of, in all places where large numbers of people congregate — before and not after, fire strikes. An aroused, intelligent public opinion is what is needed to see that all such places are really made safe for the men, women and children who flock to them trusting that someone else has made sure that at least they have a reason-

The Story of Brownsburg

By M. V. TRAYERS

PREFACE

The story of Brownsburg is a microcosm of the story of Canada. The boldness and daring of its first settlers; the hardships, trials and sufferings of their establishment in a rugged desolate wilderness; their struggle to wrest from nature a living and a competence; their hopes, fears and aspirations, their ultimate joys, rewards and successes, . . These are the chapters which make up this story.

The first settlers came from many lands. They struggled with undaunted courage against the untamed forces which providence in riotous abandon made part of the country they had adopted as their own. Their victory was the glorious prospect of peace, freedom and contentment, which they reaped or won even within the compass of their own generation and the bright heritage of future greatness which they bequeathed to their sons and daughters — their homeland — Canada.

We who have succeeded them look back with pride on their accomplishments. In retrospect we view the events which mark the progress of the years since our story began. The delineation of our community when backgrounded by the larger canvas of our country, reveals in clearer and more comprehensive perspective the picture as a whole, enabling us to visualize the birth, growth and form of this land of ours.

Milestones along the way mark the journey from then to now. . . At the time Captain Johnson Smith settled in the township of Chatham, settlers were being sent by Lord Selkirk to Prince Edward Island. The population of Upper Canada was then 70,718, and of Lower Canada 250,000. Two years later Simon Fraser was exploring the river which now bears his name, and the first Canadian steamer ran from Montreal to Quebec. Dan Dale, from whom Dalesville was to derive its name, was yet in his native Ireland; and George Brown, whose name was to be perpetuated in Brownsburg, was serving his apprenticeship to the Milling trade in a little water-mill among the quiet lakes of his beloved Northumberland, when the United States declared war and sent her armies across the Detroit River under Hull. Brownsburg did not exist, and was uninhabited except for nomad Indians or as a hunting ground of bears and wolves, when Laura Secord's timely warning caused the capture of an American force at Beaver Dams.

— Mr. Trayers' narrative will be presented in brief instalments in the following issues.

To Reorganize Cadet Corps at Lach. High School

The High School cadet corps will get into action again in the near future, with an enrolment of approximately 100 boys between the ages of 12 and 18. Uniforms are being issued this week, and the first drill will be held next Monday.

Capt. H. Jassard, special instructor from Cadet Services, under the Department of Education, will be engaged on this venture as before, and four ex-officers now on the teaching staff — Capt. F. Royal (principal), Capt. Bert Millar, F/O. A. E. Thompson and Lt. E. H. Peters — will instruct the boys, all being qualified for this role in virtue of their active service.

The disciplinary factor was an incentive to the school board in reorganizing the cadets, and the instructors are confident their program will maintain the youthful enthusiasm. It is planned to include minor tactical schemes and map-reading instruction on Saturdays.

To coincide with the scheduled drill periods, it is also hoped to arrange physical training classes for the girls.

Roll Call . . .

A series of articles on the school "guidance" program commences in this issue (page three), from the pen of F. H. J. ROYAL, M.A., principal of Lachute High School. The ideal of personalization and individual character-moulding in school pupils, as an adjunct to their formal instruction, is dealt with in a constructive manner. These articles are commended to the attention of all parent readers.

Our seasoned columnist the Fighting Irishman, is back again (camping and gardening having absorbed his interests during the summer). M. V. TRAYERS, of Brownsburg, has chronicled the settlement and growth of that village, in a running narrative for The Watchman — which is introduced on this page. His usual wit and philosophy add spice to the story.

Fulfilling a promise to discuss matters of seasonal and practical value, F. S. PETERS, B.S.A., editor of our Seasonal Farm Topics feature, has a subject this week which will prove interesting to home gardeners as well as profitable to our farm readers. To the latter group it is suggested that these articles be clipped and filed, as a compendium of helpful hints.

DUCK HUNTING ON THE ST. LAWRENCE

A hunting party of four local citizens — Arthur Cousineau, P. E. Leger, Dr. Jules Lafleur and Almanzor Marchand — spent a few days at Batiscan, on the St. Lawrence River near Lac St. Pierre. They report the duck hunting very unfavorable, since the general migration to the south appears later than in other years; residents of the district also remarked on this circumstance. The party however sighted numerous flocks of geese, "outarde" or Bustard variety, on the wing to warmer climes.

Reports on Scholastic Progress and Material Growth Heard at Opening Exercises and Annual Prize Distribution

D. E. Cameron, Noted Psychiatrist, Guest Speaker

The official Lachute High School opening and distribution of scholastic awards was held in the Civic Auditorium on Friday last, when a keen audience of pupils, parents and interested friends gathered to listen to annual reports and to applaud the prize-winners.

The meeting was under the direction of Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, chairman of School Commissioners, who gave a brief report of progress during the past year. After extending a welcome to Mr. J. W. McGibbon, new commissioner, and to the Central School Board, he touched upon facts pertaining to the school. He strongly emphasized the problem of overcrowding, which had necessitated arrangements this year to hold a class in the basement of the school building.

The addition of two endowments, in memory of the late Principal C. McBurney and of the late G. F. Calder, Sr., one-time chairman of the commissioners, was mentioned.

Dr. FitzGerald spoke commendingly of the new principal, Mr. F. H. J. Royal, briefly reviewing his career and background. . . Concluding, the chairman said the commissioners would welcome suggestions to improve the school, and he extended congratulations to the successful pupils.

Principal's Report

After musical numbers by the Glee Club of the school, the chairman introduced the new principal. . . . Mr. Royal mentioned the fact that, when previously visiting Lachute and passing the Auditorium, a townsman said to him "this is where the school prizes are distributed and where the people get a slant on the new principal", and he hoped that the slant would "not be too far forward or backward".

Again the need of expansion was stressed, as Mr. Royal described the lack of accommodation and proper playroom. Enrolments were highest in the history of the school, with 469 this year compared to 456 last year.

Reviewing the scholastic year Mr. Royal gave statistics on the percentages passed, and remarked they were higher than the provincial average. He mentioned the "guidance program" for pupils, so that no effort would be wasted and pupils would have advantage of the subjects necessary for their vocation. . . In conclusion, the principal thanked the people for their interest in the school.

Commissioner Geo. F. Calder was called upon to give an insight into the endowment fund and its benefactors — referring particularly to bequests in the name of those who have passed on — the Bellingham, Meikle, Henry Giles, E. H. Wilson, J. T. and W. H. Ayers, Gavin and Ernest Walker, McBurney and G. F. Calder Sr., endowments. All these names are notably associated with the historic past and progress of the school.

In conclusion, Commissioner Calder expressed the thanks of the board for the continued support of many donors.

Sentiments of the guests were appropriately expressed by G. H. Héon, M.P., as he extended congratulations to the commissioners, staff and pupils for the high standards attained. He stressed the need of social responsibility and practical Christianity, and referred briefly to the Citizenship Week, which is being sponsored by the Federal Government in the new year.

Dr. Cameron, Psychiatrist, Gives Impression of Liberty

The guest speaker, Dr. D. Ewen Cameron, professor of Psychiatry at McGill, widely renowned for his work in psychiatry and for his recent European visit to examine Rudolph Hess — was introduced by Dr. FitzGerald.

Dr. Cameron expressed pleasure at being invited to attend this gathering. He spoke on the need of liberty and responsibility, saying that many do not appreciate their liberty until they have either lost it or nearly so.

He spoke of a visit to Nuernberg, and of talking to the family of a prisoner lodged in goal — who, according to his wife and sons, had been "a decent kind of father, brought up to appreciate the good things of life", but had evidently done something to warrant his arrest. . . This man was Julius Streicher, Jew baiter of the Hitler regime, who met his death last week by hanging.

Dr. Cameron described the plight of Mrs. Streicher, who deprived of her home and privileges, eventually landed in the Jewish General Hospital as a helper — an ironic fate for the partner of this notorious Jew-exterminator.

The speaker urged his audience not to trade-in their freedom or responsibility, to retain the feeling of community spirit and neighborliness.

Arundel Minister Named to Hudson

Arundel — The Bishop of Montreal has announced the appointment of the Rev. E. C. Royle, of Arundel, to the Parish of Vaudreuil (Hudson), effective on December 1.

Mr. Royle succeeds the Rev. Canon John J. Willis, for 24 years Rector of Vaudreuil, who is retiring from active work in the parish. Mr. Royle first went to Arundel in 1940, leaving to enlist in the Army in 1942. After serving overseas with Nos. 4 and 11 Canadian General Hospitals, R.C.A.M.C., and in North West Europe with the First Battalion, Black Watch of Montreal — he was re-appointed to Arundel upon his return early this year.

Mr. Royle will conclude his ministry in the Arundel Parish at the regular services on Sunday, November 17. The Bishop has informed the wardens of the parish that a successor to Mr. Royle will be named immediately.

Entertain 'Brides' From Overseas

Lachute Women's Institute on Tuesday played hosts to 11 overseas war "brides" — from England, Ireland and Holland — wives of ex-servicemen now living in Lachute community.

A welcoming address was given by the president, Mrs. G. E. Leggett, followed by a program of entertainment, arranged under the convenership of Miss Kate McLeod.

Two selections were sung by Miss Helen McFaul, and a pianoforte rendition by Miss Joan Percival — which were heartily applauded by the audience. Mrs. Lamontagne contributed two recitations, followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. R. A. Giles and duet by Miss Elva Ness and Mrs. Giles, which were also appreciated by those present.

An expression of thanks was tendered the convener and those taking part in the program, by Mrs. W. Shearsmith.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the presentation of an Ayers blanket to each of the war brides, the recipients coming forward as their names were read out by the president.

A social time was spent as tea was served.

The guests honored at this function were — Mrs. Carl Demerse, Mrs. Douglas Hay, Mrs. M. Elkington, Mrs. W. Laroche, Mrs. Laframboise, Mrs. L. Cox, Mrs. Geo. Sutton, Mrs. L. Ward, Mrs. H. Miles, Mrs. S. Berry and Mrs. L. Hodge.

Canadians "consumed" 244 pounds of paper per person in 1944. U.S. consumption was at the rate of 286 pounds per person.

FARM TOPICS

Edited by E. H. PETERS, B.S.A.

Service !

The objective of the editor of this column is to present the best available Agricultural information from Canadian, American and British sources, as applicable and timely — therefore to be of real practical service to Watchman readers. These articles are based on proven experimental methods, i.e. methods which pay cash dividends, and they are recommendations of outstanding Agricultural authorities in their various fields of endeavor. If you request an answer to any of the many perplexing problems of present-day farming, I shall be pleased to do a little research, and to publish or mail you the reply. Just state your request on a postcard addressed to "The Editor, Seasonal Farm Topics", care of this paper.

The program for future issues will include — "Feeding and Management of Dairy Cattle" (Oct. 31); "Farm Machinery, Care of Tools and Implements" (Nov. 7); "Extracts on Poultry Nutrition" (Nov. 14); "The Farm Workshop" (Nov. 21); "New Varieties of Cereals" (Nov. 28). The December program will be based on your requests.

Secondly, in the spring of 1947, the writer hopes to organize 30 to 50 co-operators in Cereal Tests "Replicated Rod Row Plots", throughout Argenteuil, to demonstrate the value of new varieties of Cereal grains, soil testing and fertilizers. Pasture improvement is another project by which members of rural communities can improve their financial returns as well as improve the fertility level of their farms. The aid of 10 enterprising farmers in this locality is requested to prove that better grass management means more milk production, consequently more money in the bank. More complete details will be sent to those who request.

"Agricultural Information Please!" — This feature will be presented to direct our readers where one may obtain recommended texts, references, pamphlets, bulletins, etc., on Agriculture. . Another feature, "Definitions", will explain technical terms, words, and their meanings.

WINTER PREPARATIONS FOR FLOWER BEDS, SHRUBS, TREES AND LAWNS

By E. H. Peters

Due to the fact that most of the leaves have fallen, and this natural phenomenon is an excellent indication that winter is almost upon us, this article is presented one week earlier than it was scheduled.

Flower Beds

These should now be covered with clean straw six to eight inches deep and the straw covered with branches to prevent it from blowing away. Annuals should be removed.

Shrubs and Rose-bushes

Earth may be banked around the roots and two or three inches of lower portion of the stem, and the whole bed or plant covered 14-16 inches deep with evergreen branches. In the case of individual plants, bank the roots, cover with straw and wrap with burlap sacking, matting, etc., and tie securely with cord. The latter instructions also apply to less hardy types of plants and vines. Ornamental evergreen shrubs may be protected from the hot sun of early autumn and spring, by a screen of burlap tacked onto stakes.

Trees

Mature trees require very little attention except to place a mulch of well rotted manure around their base. This area should be as far out as the branches extend. . . Pruning may be done now or whenever the flow of sap lessens. Saw a cut about 10 to 12" out on the underside of the limb, approximately half way through it; then 3-4 inches farther out on the limb, on top side, cut through until the branch breaks off. Next, remove the stub, which is useless, unsightly and also a potential source of disease, by sawing flush to the tree trunk. Use care with the last few saw strokes and hold the stub so the the cambium (young growing) layer is not injured. Cover all wounds and saw cuts with a paint containing a creosote base, or just paint.

Young trees require the same treatment as individual rose bushes or ornamental plants; however, they should be firmly staked and secured in three or four places to the stake by means of wire or cord passed through a piece of old hose. The use of hose prevents burns and destruction of the bark; also remember that autumn gales, ice and frost cause much damage to unprotected trees.

Lawns

Leave the grass uncut. Rake off all branches, twigs, stones, etc., and mulch 2-3 inches deep with rotten manure just before the first snow falls. This timing factor will help keep down smell of rotten manure around the home. Use well rotten manure because there is less danger of importing mature weed seeds.

N.B. In general do not use leaves to cover plants, because they mat together with rain and freeze solid, thereby causing more harm than good.

Definitions

pH—means potential Hydrogen, or the degree of acidity or alkalinity of the soil solution as shown by means of a soil test method. Note, it is always written or printed with a small letter p and a large H.

Aerate — Expose to mechanical or chemical action of air; charged with carbonic acid gas (formerly called fixed air). Therefore the noun aeration, derived from (f.l. aer air + -ate).

(Explanation) The soil is not one solid mass but it is composed of aggregates around which are films of water and interspaces filled with air and soil solutions.

The Lesson of Nuernberg

THE NUERNBERG trials have become history. Hermann Goering and 10 confederates paid for their guilt with their lives. Seven others have begun to serve long prison terms, and the three men who were acquitted by the International Tribunal still face a reckoning with the German people.

The Nuernberg verdict has not closed the case of the United Nations against Nazi Germany. There are still thousands of German war criminals, large and small, who have not yet answered for their crimes. Some will be tried and sentenced in due course. Others, no doubt, will escape justice.

Opinions differ on the tribunal's findings. It has been said that the death penalty was unjustified, that no nation or group of nations has the right to pass judgment on the leaders of a defeated enemy. Others have claimed that all of the defendants and many others should have been found equally guilty and should have joined Ribbentrop, Keitel and the others on the gallows.

But the significance of the trials does not consist of a roster of the men tried, found guilty and punished, nor is their failure measured by acquittals, by men left unpunished or by the number who managed to cheat the gibbet by committing suicide.

The trials have established that any man or group of men who plunge the world into war must take the responsibility for their actions. No longer may an aggressor feel secure in the knowledge that in case of defeat he can spend his declining years plotting revenge on a remote island or chopping wood on a Dutch farm. The lives of one or 10 or 100 guilty men are a poor compensation for the lives of millions of innocent war victims, but a measure of justice has been done.

Few would be fatuous enough to believe the Nuernberg verdict will bring about the end of world wars. But an important first step has been taken.

Boost for the Sports Fan

THE ANXIOUS student of this world's gloomy state, may stand aghast at the apparent frivolity of his sports-minded confreres, who turn first to the hockey standings and second to the front-page story with the foreign dateline. — But let us reconsider. . . Post-war problems cannot be relieved — indeed, they may be aggravated — by nervous tension. To fret over the implications of pressure diplomacy, and to worry because a diplomat 1,000 miles away is rude to a diplomat 2,000 miles away, will remove neither pressure nor rudeness.

A sense of perspective is what we all need in helping the world out of its troubles, and an interest in sports — the sports of your hometown as well as those much publicized events that catch the headlines — will assist in gaining that perspective. When your nerves are taut over Trieste, or tattered over Timbuktu, give them another sort of stimulus by seeing a good game. It's exciting, but it's relaxing too.

Sports crowds are happy crowds, by and large, out to see a good game first and cheer for the home team second. — And sportsmanship could be used much more widely than it now is in settling the world's affairs.

OFTEN a clean and dressed-up Main Street leads to the inspection of the whole town, and when it does, the town gets some free advertising and some good publicity that travels far. On the contrary, no matter how pretty other streets of a town may be, or how beautiful the residences on them may be, if Main Street is dirty and run-down, the rest is forgotten, and Main Street alone gets the publicity that is not helpful, but harmful and travels far.

Co-operation

THIS YEAR a group of young war veterans joined together in a farm co-operative enterprise and through the help of the Saskatchewan government opened up 2,500 acres of virgin land on a site 50 miles north of Swift Current. Initial problems and setbacks prevented them from seeding more than 340 acres, but next year gives every promise of real success, with a realization of the hopes and dreams of the resourceful veterans. The good wishes of farmers everywhere in Canada go out to the group, because they are providing a lesson to the entire Dominion by demonstrating what can be accomplished through co-operative efforts.

Farmers in most communities are generally helpful to each other, and assist each other by lending labor, machinery and animals. It is seldom that a farmer turns down a request from his neighbor, and this friendly spirit is one of the great features of country life. There is reason to believe, however, that this spirit could be greatly increased and that farmers would enjoy greater prosperity if they engaged more in joint action. A planned system of community effort could step up farm methods to a state comparable to the efficiency of an automobile assembly line.

The veterans in Saskatchewan have shown they realize the importance of efficient methods. When they were restricted to three tractors to plow their 2,500 acres, they worked in double shifts from 3 a.m. to 10 p.m. in order to get the most use of their machinery. Such direct action is just ordinary "horse-sense", but it is the kind of good judgment which makes for more money on the profit side of the ledger.

Community co-operation should be encouraged. We can do with much more of it.

Observation and Moral

I READ this paragraph the other day — writes R. J. Deachman, commentator to this newspaper :

> "Despite the fertility of the Nile soil, the average annual income of the Egyptian agriculturist is only 20 pounds, as compared with 27 pounds for a Palestinian Arab and 60 pounds for a Palestinian Jew."

That is an extraordinary comparison. The Jews have never been farmers in this country, at least not to any marked extent, but they have made a success of agriculture in Palestine, a remarkable success. The difference between the Jews and the Egyptians is that for some reason or other the Egyptians do not like to work — and only work, faithfully performed, can give a high income to agriculture in any country in the world.

"Quote from Yesterday"

Man is his own star; and the soul that can Render an honest and a perfect man
Commands all light, all influence, all fate.
Nothing to him falls early or too late.
Our acts our angels are, or good or ill,
Our fatal shadows that walk by us still.

— John Fletcher

THE GREAT majority of us are quite content to let our community run along in whatever particular groove the town fathers have chosen for it, with little beyond an occasional backbiting comment in the way of interest from us. No amount of effort on the part of the council will be appreciated until there is a definite surge of interest on the part of every citizen to make our community a better place to live in.

Treating Pupils As Individuals

By F. H. J. ROYAL

(This will be a series of seven articles on "Guidance" which has recently been introduced into the Lachute High School. Some of the credit for these articles must be given the "School Guidance Worker" published by the Vocational Guidance Centre, Toronto, and the booklet, "Treating Pupils as Individuals", by the Illinois Association of School Boards.)

Students in our school cannot be pigeonholed or poured into molds. Each one is different. On this premise schools have built guidance programs.

Most school board members who have taken their responsibilities seriously have at some time or another been confronted with the question of whether or not the school or schools under their jurisdiction have a guidance program, and if they do whether it is a good program. Many hesitate to give the most intelligent answer, "I don't know," because they feel that they should know. This summary statement is being made to give both school board members and parents a conception of a guidance program as it operates at both elementary and high school levels.

WHAT IS GUIDANCE?

Probably the simplest definition of guidance as it relates to schools is that it is that part of the educational process which emphasizes and deals with the individual needs of students.

Guidance assumes that individual students differ in their problems, abilities and interests. It assumes further that because of those individual differences, each should receive the required personal attention. The student with a great capacity to learn quickly and easily should expect different treatment than a student who does not have this quality. The boy who enjoys working with his hands should be provided with an outlet in the school situation as well as the boy who enjoys reading and work in the library. Students have a right to be stimulated to think and study with a view to what they, as individuals, are going to do later in life. The student with weak eyes or weak heart can and should expect some type of special consideration in a school program.

Parents want their children to be something more than just part of any classroom mold which may be inflexible. They expect the school to assume those responsibilities which meet the individual as well as the group needs of their child.

This effort on the part of the schools to try to understand students as individuals as well as part of a school community has led them to develop guidance programs which, over the past years, have become a significant part of modern education. All school board members and parents need to understand this development. As it is examined more closely, two important items should be noted.

First, practically all schools provide some guidance services without necessarily calling them that. Any good teacher from the beginning of time took care of the individual needs of students as well as providing for mass instruction. This is still true even in our largest educational institutions. They often provide guidance services without being conscious of it. It is only as the need for more individual treatment by more teachers arose as a result of social and economic developments, that it became necessary to think in terms of a conscious approach to an organized guidance program.

Second, the guidance program is not something that is superimposed upon a school as an additional course of study or complex organization. It rather grows from within as a result of student needs. It is a program of the entire school which involves a viewpoint and an attitude of mind on the part of all teachers, special assistants, supervisors, administrators, and school board members.

PRACTICAL

J. B. Priestly, on his return from a visit to Russia, and a number of England's other writers were asked one evening what book they would prefer to have with them if they were ever stranded on a desert island.

"The complete works of Shakespeare," replied one literary without hesitation.

"I'd choose the Bible", decided another.

"And how about you?" Mr. Priestley was asked.

"I would choose," the author of 'The Good Companion' replied emphatically, "Thomas' 'Guide to Practical Shipbuilding'."

Young people and, in fact, all people, need talking with — not to.

Animal War Vets Feature London Show

London (Reuters) — Animal veterans of the Second Great War featured in a show staged recently by the People's Dispensary for Sick Animals. Dogs, police horses, pigeons, all of which saw war service in Britain and abroad were entered.

Among them was Judy, a pointer dog which was taken prisoner by the Japanese after being wounded and bombed, and who still bears a two-inch scar as souvenir of an encounter with a Singapore alligator.

Mercury, a blue hen racing pigeon, considered by the R.A.F. to have made the most outstanding operational flight — 480 miles from Denmark to Ipswich, England in 1942 — was on show, as were three Alsatians, rescue-workers during London's blitz, who put on a demonstration of stunt-jumping and retrieving.

OBITUARY

Former Citizen Dies in Toronto

Late Walter Cross

The death of a former resident, Walter Cross, occurred suddenly yesterday in Toronto, where he had made his home for the past few years.

Mr. Cross, coming from the County of Kent, England, in 1928, was manager of the Ayers Orchard here for many years — a member of St. Simeon's Anglican Church and of the Argenteuil Legion, having served with the British forces in the first Great War. On leaving Lachute he and his wife spent a short time in the Eastern Townships, prior to taking up residence in Toronto, where they conducted a small store business. They have many friends and acquaintances in this community.

The late Mr. Cross is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Olive Morgan. Sympathy is extended by friends in their sudden bereavement.

Farm Blaze at Mille Isles, Que.

A fire, believed to have been caused by children playing with matches, resulted in the loss of barns, stables, feed, a number of pigs and 65 hens at the farm of Douglas Dawson, Mille Isles. The outbreak occurred at 4.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The fire was discovered by Messrs. Seale and Patterson, neighboring farmers, who rushed in to save the horses, some of the other live stock, and harness. Raising the alarm, they rounded up several helpers who fought the fire and prevented its spread to the house and other buildings.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Dawson were away at St. Jerome at the time of the fire. The damage is estimated at $5,000, with no insurance to cover the loss.

School Exercises

Speaking of his work in psychiatry, Dr. Cameron observed that it was only a few years ago people looked upon psychiatrists as "peculiar quacks", but now they were realizing the need of mental assistance.

Addressing the graduating class, Dr. Cameron urged the necessity of children making their own choice in adolescent years, to be free of maternal or paternal ties . . . "Some never do, even when married!" he added.

The importance was emphasized of being free from "ideas, especially on social and political changes which are taking place today", and the importance of racial understanding with other peoples.

The speaker was thanked by Mr. J. W. McGibbon.

A bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. D. E. Cameron, who graciously expressed her thanks.

Distribution of Prizes

The distribution of prizes was then proceeded with, and the children had an opportunity to relax, as they hailed the recipients with loud applause.

One of the outstanding achievements of the year was the winning, for the third year in succession, of the prize for the highest percentage in Grades VI, VII and VIII; this distinction was won by Miss June McArthur.

(Prize-winners in the High School grades are listed on page seven. Lack of space prevents publication of the complete list.)

Music by School Choirs

During intervals on the program, choral music was rendered by the High School Glee Club, under direction of Earl Morrison, B.Sc., and by the Junior Choir, directed by Miss Elva Ness — both organizations being warmly applauded.

Amherst, N.S. (CP) — The Amherst fish and game association will attempt to introduce wild turkeys into Nova Scotia. Several settings of eggs will be purchased and sportsmen farmers in the county have agreed to take care of the birds.

...because he hears again!

HE had nothing to be thankful for. Or so he said. He was deaf. And as his deafness worsened, life for him seemed to shrink. How he missed the old intimacies of his friends. Even the companionship of his family wasn't what it had been.

All that was left for him—was to be resigned. Resigned to a life shut off from the laughter of his children, the banter of his friends, the music he had loved.

Bitter? Of course he was—until his physician urged him to investigate the Acousticon "Super-Power" Unipac*, world's smallest, lightest, most powerful hearing aid.

He's wearing an Acousticon today. And never was happier. Never more thankful. For he found what he thought he had lost—his hearing.

If you are hard of hearing—or if you know someone who is—be sure to attend this free demonstration of the Acousticon "Super-Power" Unipac*, the hearing aid that can promise you more in comfort and satisfaction. The all-in-one hearing aid that's as easy to carry as a spectacle case.

If you cannot attend the demonstration, plan to have one in your own home. Just telephone the Acoustician at the above address. Remember, there's no obligation—yet it might mean a new life for you . . . or for someone you love.

So Insignificant!

● You can wear an Acousticon "Super-Power" Unipac* without embarrassment or discomfort! Its natural-colored plastic earpiece and cord are hardly noticeable. And because of its trifling 7½ oz. weight, it's as easy to carry as a spectacle case. Message of Moral Re-Armament at Home Gathering

Last Saturday evening, a party of Moral Re-Armament workers, headed by Mr. and Mrs. F. Foster of Ottawa, paid a friendly visit to Lachute, and were entertained by Mr. J. S. Giles at his home on Foundry Street.

The visitors brought with them a film which was produced at "The Island Home" at Mackinac Island, Michigan. This is the training centre of the M.R.A. where gatherings of several hundreds live and work as one large family, as they seek providential guidance in following the four attributes of "absolute Honesty, Purity, Unselfishness and Love". The picture depicts the life of 'teen-agers seeking the world's pleasures as they lead to dissipation, and later shows the true happiness obtained as they submit themselves to God's guidance in seeking to "give" instead of "get".

The visitors formed their own choir, and an enjoyable time was spent as they brought their message of the "changed life" to the local friends.

Special Services, Anniversary of B'bg United Ch.

Brownsburg — The anniversary services of Brownsburg United Church were held last Sunday — marking the 105th milestone of the community's religious life and the 94th year of the first church building. In connection with "Church Union", setting this congregation apart from the parent body of Lachute in the United Church of Canada — T. J. Anderson, secretary of the official board, read an extract from the minutes of the meeting when the new Session was elected 20 years ago. Those remaining of the charter members are — Messrs. G. I. McFaul, T. J. Anderson, Erskine McOuat and Leonard Wilson. Other members at this time include — Messrs. Frank Hazel, F. G. Kettyle, J. S. Stewart and C. J. Wheeler. Those removed by death were Messrs. Jas. Chambers and William Cameron; Mr. H. R. Beckingham has moved to Kingston, Ont.

Capacity congregations attended the services on Sunday. In the morning devotions Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kettyle, of Montreal, formerly of Brownsburg, sang several gospel songs, while the choir led the choral parts of the service. The Rev. Sydney G. Garland, of Rosemount First United Church, Montreal — a chaplain recently from overseas — delivered a stirring message on "The Failth of Our Fathers", the basis of his sermon being, "They without us, as we without them, cannot be made perfect." Capt. Garland went overseas from Newfoundland after ten years as Dean of the United Church College at St. John's — serving with the Railway Operating Group, No. 9 Canadian General Hospital, and later with No. 12 Canadian General Hospital.

At the evening service, rather more informal in nature, a talented ladies' quartet from Montreal, with Mr. Wallace Robertson as leader, were heard twice in two sets of selections each. The group included Mrs. Robertson, Misses B. Wallace, Mary Moon and Olive Skeith. Mr. Robertson gave a touching address on "The Ministry of Music", based on the 150th Psalm — "Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord." Mr. Andrew Hamilton, also of Montreal, brought a Layman's Greeting — this being Layman's Sunday in the Presbytery — enlarging on the place woman, as well as man, has in the Church of Christ, and the part she is taking.

It was another great occasion in the history of Brownsburg United Church. The minister, the Rev. S. J. Pike, conducted both services, and did honor to all concerned who had contributed to the inspiration of the services. . . The financial objective for the anniversary is oversubscribed.

80th Anniversary Of United Church At Arundel, Que.

Arundel — Sunday, October 20 was a memorable occasion in the history of the Arundel United Church, when the 80th anniversary of the church was observed. Guest speaker for the occasion was Rev. C. Gardner Ward, of Chalmers Church, Verdun. His subject was "The Challenge of the Church, and the Church Challenged". He traced the Church from its very earliest beginnings when the disciples of Jesus were said to "have turned the world upside down", to the present, laying particular emphasis upon the value of the Church to the world. Art, Music and Architecture all reached their peak in the Church in the Middle Ages. During the Dark Ages, it was in the cloisters of the Church that the earlier learning was preserved. Education, hospitals, social service and reform in labor laws are among the many services which the Church has inspired.

In concluding, Mr. Ward challenged church members to rededication of their lives to Christianity.

The solo, "Bless This House", was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Sevigny.

The supper and program of the previous evening were most succesful. Friends were present from Shawbridge, Morin Heights, Lachute, Lakeview, Gray Valley, Rouge Valley, Kasil and Montreal. The Rev. S. Rowe conveyed greetings on behalf of his congregations at Shawbridge and Morin Heights. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough of Lachute gave the address of the evening. He spoke of the rich natural resources of Canada, reminding the gathering that these were of little abiding value unless the people of our nation carefully preserved and cultivated their spiritual heritage.

Mrs. Sevigny was the soloist of the evening, while Mrs. Melvin Graham gave an organ recital and a piano solo.

A brief history of Arundel Church from its beginning in 1866 as a Methodist congregation, when the first church in the community was built, up to the present day, was given by the pastor, the Rev. A. E. Wilfong. It was interesting to learn that Union of the two congregations — Methodist and Presbyterian — took place here as early as 1916.

Saturday Night Rally

There was a record attendance at the Baptist Youth Rally last Saturday night. This Saturday the special speaker will be Mr. Elton M. Britton, of Toronto, who will relate many of the interesting experiences he had while in the armed forces. A Bible Quiz and special singing will also be features of this program. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Ex-Chaplain, Hong Kong Prison Camp, Will Address Men's Supper

At a men's supper meeting to held in the hall of Lachute United Church on Wednesday, October 30, the principal speaker will be the Rev. Uriah Laite, of New Westminster, B.C. Mr. Laite accompanied the Winnipeg Grenadiers to Hong Kong as the only Protestant chaplain, and spent 44 months in a Japaneses prison camp. Those who have heard him, report that he has a thrilling and fascinating story to tell.

Rally Day Service At Morin Heights

Morin Heights — The Sunday School of Morin Heights United Church held it annual Rally Day service last Sunday afternoon; the occasion was well attended by parents and other interested members of the congregation. Mr. J. D. Davis, superintendent of the Sunday School, led the service and Mrs. Stapleton played the organ. (On Rally Day, and also at the Mother's Day service, all members of the Cradle Roll Dept. are especially invited to attend.)

The entire school sang two selections. Eric McCullough and Peter Hannah read the scripture readings, also Barbara Brown and Lillian Monger read selected passages. Doreen Seale recited the 23rd Psalm. Ann Brown and Marilyn Dey also sang; Richard McCullough and Peter Hannah took up the offering. . . The Rev. S. Rowe gave the address.

At this service the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. E. Brown was baptized, and was thereupon received as a member of the Cradle Roll by Mrs. Stapleton, superintendent of that department.

The order of service followed was that prepared and issued by the Board of Christian Education for use of Sunday Schools on Rally Day.

Discussion at Y.P.U. Meeting

An interesting discussion was presented as the main theme for the Wednesday night meeting of Lachute United Young People's Union. The questions studied by four separate groups were: How should a Christian act in a community? How should a Christian behave towards different racial and religious groups? How should a Christian behave towards an enemy?

At the conclusion of the meeting the various sections reported their findings, and several common conclusions were reached: that a Christian must set an example to the community through kindness, courtesy, honesty, generosity, love, faithfulness and respect; that a Christian should be an active member of a church; that a Christian must assume his rightful place in a community. They stressed that tolerance towards, and an attempt to understand different racial and religious groups should be practiced. Suggestions as to how prejudices in our local community be overcome were suggested by some members.

The evening was concluded by refreshments. The president, Jack Ogilvie, presided over the meeting.

KNOW QUEBEC BETTER...

Do you know Quebec? Do you know, for example, that Quebec moose have been known to weigh as much as 1,400 pounds and have an antler spread of six feet? Not only is our Province considered to be the best range in North America for moose, white tail deer are plentiful; black bear roam the woods; partridge, ducks, geese, wood cock and jack-snipe offer the wing shooter a varied bag.

Sport and recreation are thus abundantly supplied for our own people and for our thousands of visitors. The entertainment of tourists brings us an annual income of $50,000,000—helps to round out a balanced economic picture.

Richly endowed by nature, wisely administered and peopled by friendly, hard-working men and women, Quebec is destined to be a vital factor in Canada's development as a nation.

QUEBEC BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE

In 1608 Champlain brought the first colonists to Quebec. Today, Quebec's population is 3,000,000, her retail trade $800,000,000.00 per year. She leads all Provinces in the production of hydro-electric power, textiles, lumber, newsprint, footwear, processed tobacco, asbestos and aluminum. Natural resources, agriculture and transportation are being developed wisely. And now, Quebec, her people deep-rooted in the love of their homeland, prepares to share with her sister Provinces, Canada's bright and glorious future!

BE PROUD OF YOUR QUEBEC—IT IS PART OF YOUR CANADA

APPLE A DAY KEEPS CHILDREN AT PLAY

Chicago Woman Uses Fruit to Make Heads for Dolls

CHICAGO (CP) - Re-discovery apples, a folk secret dating back of a way to make doll heads from 125 years, has given Mrs. Alice Daye an interesting hobby.

The doll heads carved from real apples are preserved bythe same method used when dolls were provided at Christmas-time for many children of early American days.

Seeing a prize collection of porcelain dolls three years ago when visiting a friend, Mrs. Daye decided she would like to acquire dolls of her own. But the ones she liked were to expensive. Her mother then revealed how she learned to preserve an apple doll head when a child.

Mrs. Daye uses an ordinary apple. She peels it, carves the facialfeatures and packs the result in alum, where it is kept for a period of six weeks. As soon as weather permits, she puts the apple heads in te hsun to dry.

The heads do not shrink. They retain their original shape and can be moulded like clay when she is ready to create a doll.

In constructing her dolls, Mrs. Daye uses navy beans for eyes, colors the face and hands of apple with oil paint and finishes them by applying a coat of lacquer. She uses theatrical crepe hair for realisctic effect.

Her caricatures are as authentic as she can make them. She conducts research to work out costume detail by visiting the public library. Most of the 20 figures in her personally-made collection were inspired by real-life people.

She makes the bodies of wire ea and paper, and tailors the clothing herself. If the character sits in an old-styled rocking chair, she makes it, complete to decorative detail.

St. Andrews East

Mr. Allan Murray, of Montreal, occupied his cottage over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney V. Kendall, of Montreal, stayed several days at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Lloyd Lilly, of Montreal, were guests of their mother, Mrs. V. F. Lilly, recently.

Mr. Chas. S. Wales is recuperating from an operation at the Montreal General Hospital. The community wish him a speedy recovery.

Among the week-enders noticed here were — Mrs. Wylde, of Chateauguay, Messrs. Edgar Hooker, M. A. Snowdon and Robt. Robinson.

Misses Norma, Mary and Iris Jardine, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carr. Mrs. Phillip Dery has returned to Montreal after a two weeks' stay at the Carr home.

Mr. Euclid Ladouceur and his brother spent a week's vacation at his island camp at La Baie.

Burial at St. Andrews

The interment service for the late James Randall Westcott Papineau was conducted by the Rev. Dr. William MacMillan on Saturday afternoon, October 19, at the Protestant Cemetery, in the plot recently purchased. Among the mourners were his brother, Mr. Louis Papineau and Mr. and Mrs. Christie, of Montreal.

Communion service will be held Sunday morning, October 27, in the United Church. The two recently appointed elders are Messrs. Albert Dorion and Kenneth McAlister, replacing Mr. Chas. Pease, deceased, and Mr. Ross MacAdam, who moved to Lachute.

The hard frost of Saturday night killed the remaining flowers in gardens of this community. The earlier light frosts had given warning that house plants must be taken care of — but zinnias, marigolds, portulacas, petunias, morning glories continued to make a brave show. Some varieties of roses continued blooming, and the hardy pansies that greeted the early spring.

R. C. Stevenson, Chairman of the Dominion Executive Board of the Boy Scouts Association, has been awarded the O.B.E. in recognition of services to the Sea Cadet Movement.

able chance to get out alive if an outbreak of fire occurs."

The speaker outlined the main causes of fires in Canada, after stating that nine out of ten fires are preventable. The major cause of fire is the misuse of electricity — followed by fires due to stoves, furnaces and boilers. Carelessness of smokers is the third main cause. Fires due to petroleum products, defective chimneys and spontaneous ignition rate fourth, fifth and sixth respectively. " We would never think of handling dynamite in our homes; yet many people handle gasoline and naptha, which are much more hazardous substances, with complete disregard of the consequence, and ignorant of the fact that their vapors can be readily ignited by a static spark a fraction of a millimeter in length. Such sparks may occur by merely rubbing two pieces of fabric together or by touching a radiator under conditions of low relative humidity. The arc produced by a light switch has also caused explosions in the home where gasoline was being used as a cleaner. Vapors of gasoline and naptha, being heavier than air, can travel a considerable distance downward, such as to the cellar, where they become ignited by the furnace and flash back to the source. Unfortunately people who use gasoline and naptha in the home for cleaning purposes seldom get a second chance to profit by their mistakes after an accident occurs.

"The danger of spontaneous ignition is not well appreciated by everyone," the speaker continued. When organic substances oxidize or decompose, heat is produced. If this heat is not dissipated the temperature of the material rises and the rate of oxidation increases until the ignition point of the material is reached and fire occurs. Vegetable oils, such as linseed, are particularly prone to oxidation, and hence oily paint rags should always be kept in a metal container complete with metal cover. Old newspapers, printed posters, due to the oil contained in the ink, have been known to ignite spontaneously". The speaker also mentioned a case where oil had seeped out of cotton seeds which still remained in the stuffing of a mattress, finally igniting it spontaneously. This was an unusual case, however, and was mentioned only to show the extent to which spontaneous ignition may occur. If the average householder keeps his attic, cupboards, closets and basements free of old clothing, oily rags, newspapers and other refuse, he has little to fear from spontaneous ignition. "A clean house seldom burns".

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Armand Bourgon and thanked by Rotarian Edgar Pollock. Guests included Mr. Douglas Dixon, of Brownsburg.

$25,000 NATIONAL BARLEY CONTEST

Sponsored by
THE BREWING AND MALTING INDUSTRIES OF CANADA

FINAL JUDGING BEGINS LOCALLY NOVEMBER 4th

Contestants Reminded to Have Minimum of 40 Bushels Ready for Inspection

EACH contestant who scored 60 points or more during the summer inspection will be visited by judges on or shortly after November 4th. A warning has been issued by the National Barley Contest Committee reminding all contestants that each must have at least 40 bushels cleaned and ready for inspection.

In every case, the judge will note appearance of the barley seed and then take samples which he will forward to the Plant Products Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture for purity and germination tests and for grading. Final results for the regional contest will be out by the end of December.

Winners of the regional contest will compete for bigger cash prizes in the provincial contest about the middle of January, 1947. Judges for this will be named by the Dominion and Quebec Departments of Agriculture and also by members of the malting industry.

For the inter-provincial finals, the four Quebec winners and the four Ontario winners will compete for the Inter-Provincial Grand Prize. The judging for this will be done at the Annual Meeting of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association, to be held in Toronto during the first week of February.

The National Barley Contest is being sponsored by the brewing and malting industries of Canada in an effort to encourage the growing of improved quality seed and malting barley.

Importance of Refractory Products To Steel & Copper Industry Shown

Grant Baker Enlightens Rotarians on Research and Development of Key Industry

At their regular weekly meeting, October 24, at Hotel Carriere, the Rotary Club of Brownsburg enjoyed a talk by Mr. Grant Baker, General Superintendent of the Canadian Refractories Limited Plant at Kilmar, Quebec. His subject was "Refractory Products". Vice-President George Zsomber presided. Mr. Baker, who is originally from Ottawa, received his Bachelor of Science degree in 1933 at Queen's University. After doing a year of post graduate work he joined the Canadian Refractories Limited where he has since been employed.

Most people are either totally ignorant or just vaguely familiar as to what a refractory is and what industrial importance it possesses. The word "refractory" means "stubborn", and that is just what a refractory is — a material that is subborn to heat, that is, it possesses certain qualities which permits it to withstand attack by heat. Such a substance is used as lining for furnaces in diverse industries including glass, cement, steel, aluminum, etc. While the refractory business is relatively small as compared to the steel, cement and glass industries, it is of major importance to them. If refractories were suddenly eliminated, the time before the steel and copper smelters would be compelled to shut down could be estimated in days. Industrial chaos would result if refractories were suddenly cut off.

What are they made of? The material used in the manufacture of refractories are not confined to any one country or continent; for instance South Africa, Turkey, Austria, Canada, Russia, and Greece, all produce various types of material used in the manufacture of refractories. The speaker outlined the three types of refractories, namely, acid, neutral and basic. The latter type which has as its base magnesia, is the grade that is manufactured at Kilmar by Canadian Refractories Limited. The deposit of magnesite at Kilmar is the only known deposit in Canada at present being worked.

The magnesite which is mined at Kilmar comprises 38 to 40% magnesia or magnesium oxide existing as magnesium carbonate, together with calcium carbonate and alumina. The first operation after mining the ore is to grind it by means of crushers, ball mills and tube mills to a fineness of 95% passing a 100 mesh screen. The material is then calcined in a rotary kiln at 3000° which drives off the carbon dioxide. In this process, pulvarized coal is used as the fuel. The black inert material produced from the kiln is called "klinker", some of which is sold in bulk without further processing for use as hearth linings.

After cooling, this black klinker is ground and crushed to produce a powder with varying grain size — 20 in all depending on the type of brick that is required. The powder is then mixed with water in a wet pan which is similar to a dough mixer and then pressed into the desired brick size at a pressure of ten to fifteen thousand pounds per square inch. To remove the moisture the bricks are passed through a drier, the cycle lasting 16 hours. Such bricks are used where they will not be subjected to any great load such as for the roofs of reverberatory furnace in steel manufacture. Bricks requiring greater strength are put through a tunnel kiln, a 150 ft. long oil fired oven which operates at a temperature of 2850°F.

Besides numerous types of refractory brick of different shapes and forms having specific purposes, the plant manufactures various cements for bonding the bricks together.

Mr. Baker pointed out that the manufacture of refractories was a highly technical trade necessitating continuous control 24 hours a day. He further emphasized the importance of research, the results of which have been evident in the quality of the product being produced from Canadian magnesite, a feat that was not thought possible a relatively few years ago.

The speaker briefly outlined the history of the Kilmar magnesite deposit from the days it was known as the "White Rock Mine" in 1916 to the present. Prior to this date, the magnesite used in Canada was all imported, mostly from Austria, where a very high grade product was obtained. As a result of considerable research by the National Research Council, a way was found to utilize the lower grade ore at Kilmar and two companies, the Scotish Canadian Magnesite Company and the North American Magnesite Company were formed. In the year 1933 they amalgamated under the name of Canadian Refractories Limited. Today the mine has sunk shafts as deep as 700 feet and has more than 3 miles of stopes.

The talk was followed by a very well produced and interesting motion picture showing the various operations in the manufacture of refractories from drilling to the finished product. The speaker was introduced by Howard Tomalty and thanked by Tom Hall.

Guests included Charles Giroux, Montreal and Andrew Hardie of Brownsburg.

Quebec Council of Community Schools At Cowansville

"The future of Community Life in Quebec" will be the theme of the Annual Meeting of the Quebec Council of Community Schools to be held in Cowansville, on November 1st and 2nd.

Delegates are expected from Sawyerville, the three centres of Rock Island, Derby Line and Stanstead, North Hatley, Lennoxville, Sherbrooke, Asbestos, Bury, Richmond, Magog, Howick, Ormstown, Buckingham, East Angus, as well as Cowansville, itself.

The Council, formerly concerned with the organization of adult night schools in co-operation with the Adult Education Service, Macdonald College, has expanded its program to include other enterprises such as community centres and community councils.

David C. Munroe, president of this provincial-wide council, will preside over the conference at which special commissions will be established to consider handicraft activities, dramatics, public affairs programs, as well as finance, publicity and membership.

A Cowansville committee is in charge of local arrangements. A recreation program after the Friday evening session will be arranged. On Saturday morning a panel discussion led by R. Alex Sim of Macdonald College will deal with the question "Tasks Confronting the Community".

The executive in calling this Annual Meeting expressed the belief that Community leaders must face the necessity of creating wholesome recreation, stimulating citizenship programs, and that the facilities must be secured, and leaders trained to make these efforts effective.

The Council is concerned with planning these programs, and with establishing the services needed to aid local efforts: speakers' pool, literature depot, libraries, films, listening groups, and leadership training.

Representatives have also been invited to the meeting from Huntingdon, Hemmingford, Dunham, Bedford, Granby, Waterloo, Knowlton, Mansonville, Lachute, Grand' Mere and Shawinigan Falls.

GOVERNMENT FOOTS BILL

Kentville, N.S. (CP) — Claims for $1,456 for damage to five Kentville business establishments during VE-Day disorders involving soldiers from nearby Aldershot military camp, will be paid by the national defence department, town council has been informed.

Skeleton at Buckingham Studied by Police Experts

The skeleton of a woman believed to have died at least 15 years ago, was transferred Monday from provincial police headquarters to the office of Dr. Rosario Fontaine, medico-legal expert for a medical report on the case. The skeleton was found on Saturday in the woods near Buckingham, Que.

The police were seeking clues as to the identity of the woman. Their main clue is a string of beads found around the skeleton's neck.

Sgt.-Det. Albert Oggier in a preliminary report, said that the body might have been washed to a dam which later burst. He believed that the woman might have met death by drowning. However, other theories were being checked.

New Hardware Store On Hamford Street

Citizens of Lachute Mills in the vicinity of Hamford Street will no doubt welcome the opening of a new hardware store, which will be operated under the name of Tessier Reg'd.

This new enterprise is being operated jointly by J. A. Tessier, well-known businessman of Lachute, and his brother Laurent, and they offer a complete line of hardware, kitchenware and useful items for the home.

Growing Pains In Lachute

There is no doubt to the casual observer, that Lachute has growing pains. Development of commercial and housing enterprise during the past few years has been stupendous, and though handicapped by the lack of material and trained craftsmen, progress has gone on unabated.

Now that materials and merchandise are rolling off the machines in every factory in the Dominion, and management-labor problems have finally settled down to a somewhat normal temper, there is no doubt that every wide-awake community in Canada will be offered a wonderful opportunity to 'go ahead'.

Lachute can heed the signal. A visit to the neighboring towns in Quebec is quite educating, when one can see how many new industries have been added recently within their orbits. Most of these towns have not had as many benefits to offer as Lachute, yet, through organized effort and co-operation of citizens, new factories have established themselves.

The City of Granby has never been able to offer the excellent railway and road service that we have in Lachute, and yet, over thirty major industries are doing tremendous business there, and the 'made in Granby' exhibit in the attractive City Hall, shows the divers articles made within the city limits.

One reason for civic progress can be traced to an active Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade. Lachute did have an organization years ago, but somehow it died a painless death.

The growing pains of Lachute should be harnessed, and used to develop a better and greater community. Improved lighting throughout the town is one necessary quality for good advertising, and positive action by a progressive Chamber of Commerce would soon reap benefits.

Monthly Report Of County W.I.

The W.I. reports for the month of October feature many diversified subjects studied throughout the County. The following brief summary was received from the county secretary.

Brownsburg — Twenty-seven members and two visitors were present. A parcel was sent to England by four members. This is being done every month. A bracelet was presented to the new baby of Mrs. S. Seary. Fourteen prizes were donated to scholars of the Brownsburg School. Everyone enjoyed a talk by Mr. D. Aitkins, who is a Western University graduate, about his trip to Australia, where he was demonstrating the manufacture of ammunition.

Frontier — There were fourteen members present. A letter was read from a lady overseas in acknowledgment of a personal parcel sent to her. There was also a letter read introducing a bride from another branch. Dr. Drummond Smith, of Hawkesbury Hospital gave a talk on "Polio".

Jerusalem-Bethany — Seventeen members answered the roll call with causes of accidents in the home. The Convener of Health and Welfare read a paper entitled "They Get Up and Live". A box was packed for the Personal Par-

Sale of Poppies Sponsored by Lachute Vets

Members of Argenteuil Branch of the Canadian Legion in Lachute are again sponsoring the selling of poppies for Remembrance Day, November 11.

The public is urged to support their efforts, not only as a gesture of remembering the sacrifices these men made during the two world-wide wars, but because thousands of disabled veterans are using their maimed and deformed hands in the manufacture of these little red emblems. This handicraft is the only means they have of supporting themselves and their families. . . . so buy a poppy.

The Remembrance Service

The annual Remembrance Day Service will be held as usual in the Lachute Auditorium at 10.45 a.m. The service and laying of wreaths at the cenotaph will follow the pattern of former years.

The guest speaker for the occasion will be ex-Chaplain, the Rev. Donald L. MacMillan, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., of Dunvegan, Ont. Rev. McMillan enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in December 1940, spent one and a half years in Canada on Service Training Schools at Moncton, N.B., and St. Hubert, and then went overseas for the next three years, being promoted to Honorary Squadron Leader in 1943.

Ammunition Plant Stands High in Safety Records

Brownsburg — The honor of having won the highest number of safety awards of any C-I-L's 27 plants from coast to coast was attained by the Brownsburg ammunition works of Canadian Industries Limited. This fact was revealed at a recent presentation of group managers' prizes to employees of both the ammunition and plastic works at Brownsburg.

While the public has always connected the manufacture of ammunition with danger, the C-I-L plant has built up a remarkable safety record. To date it has won seven group managers' prizes, three presidents' prizes and two board of directors' prizes.

According to the National Safety Council, the Brownsburg works' achievement ranks third among a total of 11 plants producing small arms ammunition in Canada and the United States. The average accident frequency in these plants was 8.6, while the works here averaged only 3.7.

At the plastics works no time was lost through accident since August 26, 1944. If the plant work force consisted of only one man, he would have to work approximately 183 years without an accident to achieve this same result.

Lachute Masons Hold Annual "At Home"

The annual Masonic "Ladies' Night" sponsored by Argenteuil Lodge No. 67, was again a successful affair as was proved by the large attendance at the Auditorium on Thursday evening last. More would probably have been present had it not been for several other functions being held on the same evening.

An appetizing meal was served by Jack Roberts of Brownsburg, to whom hearty thanks were extended. He was assisted by the Brownsburg Girl Guides, who proved themselves proficient in this new venture.

The Worshipful Master, Bro. G. Rodger extended a welcome to all present, and congratulated Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr. G. A. Clunie, who had recently received a token of esteem for his 50 years membership in the Order.

The toast to Grand Lodge, proposed by Bro. A. Talbot was responded to by District Deputy Grand Master Rt. Wor. Bro. F. A. Brennian, who explained some of the workings of the parent body. His appointment to this high office is a distinct credit to Argenteuil Lodge, and he too was duly congratulated.

The ladies were not forgotten either, and W. Bro. R. C. Rogers paid due respect to them.

A splendid program, under direction of the well-known artist Al Murray, who during the first war, made a name for himself as an entertainer in the "Dumbells" concert party, was thoroughly enjoyed, and when it was learned that the blind pianist had again accompanied him, enthusiasm ran high. His selections were most impressive, appreciation being freely expressed by requests for encores, and it may truthfully be said the audience was moved to tears and marvelled at his ability.

Mr. W. McCallum was well received, his fine baritone voice doing credit to several difficult selections.

Two dancers the Misses Mary and Nancy Saunders added much to the program with their dancing act and were called back repeatedly.

At the close of the entertainment, chairs were moved aside and both young and old enjoyed dancing for several hours to the music of a three-piece orchestra from Brownsburg.

Dave Campbell May Coach Lachine

It was reported in the Montreal press this week that Dave Campbell, formerly of Lachute, may be the hockey coach of the Lachine Rapides in the Provincial Senior Hockey League. Dave has had many years experience in professional and senior hockey circles, and his knowledge of developing players and instilling the spirit "to win" will be of tremendous help to Lachine Rapides.

Paul Haynes, formerly of the professional Canadiens, was the coach last year, but due to added business pressure he has been compelled to relinquish the post.

The world moves ahead, not through men who push themselves forward, but through those who pour themselves out.

Very Much Alive Claims Reader

The Editor of this paper received a correspondence during the week, which pointed out a fact that all historians possibly know . . . "look to the four winds before publishing an item of the past".

In our issue of October 17 we featured a story of the presentation of a 50-year Masonic jewel to the Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr. G. A. Clunie and said "Dr. G. A. Clunie joined Argenteuil Lodge in 1896 . . . members at that time were N. T. Truell, H. M. Gall, Sr., Jas. W. Raitt, W. H. Garrettsee, Harry Slater, John Hope, J. D. Campbell, Wm. Drennan and others. This brief list of citizens long deceased".

Our source of information was one that is usually sound . . . but we are happy to publish part of a letter received from one of the aforementioned persons who is very much alive!

Newton T. Truell, of Los Angeles writes as follows:

Dear Mr. Giles:

I have received a copy of the Watchman of October 17 and I want to congratulate you on the general up-to-the-minute appearance of your fine paper. It is a long way from the Watchman you took over nearly fifty years ago.

But I should like to make a correction. In your article recording the honor conferred on Dr. Geo. Clunie, you list me among the past masters of Argenteuil Lodge No. 67 who have long since passed to the "Great Beyond". This is to advise that although past the four score mark, I am still alive and in the best of health, better than for several years.

I am living with my daughter Marjorie and her husband, Oskar W. Davidson, formerly of Peterboro, Ont.

Padre Describes Hong Kong Prison

A sense of deep humility was in evidence at the annual rally of representatives of the United churches of this circuit as they gathered last evening in the United Church hall, Lachute, to listen to the thrilling account of Rev. U. Laite as he recorded his experiences as prisoner of war at Hong Kong.

The Rev. (Capt.) U. Laite, of New Westminster, B.C., expressed his thanks and said what a great honour it was to visit Lachute in the interest of missions. Rev. Laite said that he had been in the States for the past few weeks, and that he had come to Lachute to tell of his experiences along the Pacific coast and of his 44 months in a prison camp in Hong Kong.

He described his experiences in the Pacific along the coast around Vancouver Isle, where he travelled in a 50-ft. boat with a crew of one (the engineer) and in six weeks he had covered 600 miles along the northern section and 200 miles along the Bernie Canal visiting logging and mining camps, prospectors and isolated people along the coast. He visited one man who had not been away from his small shanty since 1887 and that was when he visited San Francisco for the first time. When Rev. Laite asked him why he didn't stay in San Francisco, the man replied "there were too many mosquitos".

Rev. Laite worked with almost every nationality while on the Pacific trip and his boat was in many uses, visiting homes, picking up drifting boats, helping with motor accidents and hospital emergency trips.

After four years in the Pacific mission, Rev. Laite enlisted on active service in October 1941. He did not enter into active service, he said, "because he was a fire-eater", but because so many of his men had enlisted and he felt that he should be with them. Rev. Laite was with the Royal Rifles of Canada and the Winnipeg Grenadiers, and landed in Hong Kong on November 16, 1941. The officers and men were immediately engag-

Stork Visits Family Thrice on Same Day

An unusual coincidence happened to Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bates of Avoca, when the 'Stork' decided to make them grandparents in a big way, and dropped three "bundles from heaven" on October 4.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Bates, of Harrington, and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bates of Avoca. On the very same day, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacLean of Humberstone, Ont., were blessed with the arrival of a daughter.

A double co-incidence also was evident, for these heavenly bundles happened to arrive on their grandfather's birthday. Congratulations to all four branches of the Bates family.!

Generous Donations to Hospital Inspires Workers to Greater Effort

Need for New Hospital Speeds Plans for Larger Building — Card Party Successful

Plans for the new Lachute Providence Hospital are now well under way, according to the report issued by the Ladies' Organization of the hospital.

A generous donation of $12,000 from Ayers Limited, and contributions from the three service clubs in this vicinity, namely, Knights of Columbus ($100), Lions ($50), and Rotarians ($50), as well as many other substantial amounts of support, proves encouraging news for those who are working for this worthy enterprise.

The present Providence Hospital has been of tremendous benefit to the community, and though often over-taxed to capacity has always done its best to serve the community with kindly attention. During the past year, the need of a larger building has been evident, especially for maternity care, for on occasions patients were turned away because there was insufficient accommodation.

Three hundred citizens of the community patronized the card party in the Lachute Auditorium on Tuesday night of this week, held for the benefit of the new hospital, and receipts of $837. were realized, the total amount going to the hospital fund.

Interest was keen in the drawing for a mink stole, which was won by the Knights of Columbus organization, which brought $100. of tickets. Two door prizes, a lamp and frying pan were given, and many valuable prizes for winners at cards.

The Ladies' Organization of the hospital appreciate the generous support of the following, who contributed prizes for the card party.

INEXCUSABLE PRANKS

Only too often, Hallowe'en has been made the excuse for unbridled vandalism by irresponsible youngsters, but pranks which cost money and destroy property — especially these days when many things are impossible to obtain — are not to be excused on the plea of high spirits and youthful exuberance.

Youth Council Encouraged by Lachute W.I.

The Saturday Night Hops are continuing in the Lachute Auditorium, under the sponsorship of the Lachute Women's Institute. These dances are especially for the teenagers and there is growing evidence that the young people are appreciating these efforts on their behalf. They start at 8 p.m., and conclude at 11.30 o'clock.

The W.I. is keen to encourage the formation of a Youth Council or Forum, so that the youth of Lachute and surrounding districts can plan and prepare their own program, and help teen-agers constructively in this good work. Initiative of the teen-agers in other towns in developing community recreation centres, hostels and forums is an inspiration to those who have seen the benefits derived, and the local W.I. is willing to assist financially or in any other way the formation of such a council.

The Lions Club has donated a ping-pong table for the use of the young people at the Auditorium, and with the co-operation of all those interested, this humble beginning can develop into a wide-awake youth centre.

The Lachute W.I. extends an invitation to any who would like to assist in the running of the Saturday night 'hops', or in furthering the plans already under way for the youth of this town.

The split home is a destructive thing — like the split atom.

County Central School Board Draws Criticism Regarding Fees

Justice

A very large panel of citizens were summoned to attend the St. Jerome Criminal Sessions for jury duty on an attempted murder case. The charge was subsequently reduced to "illegal possession of firearms" after which interest abated somewhat.

Education

Considerable disappointment has been engendered by the raising of school fees by the Argenteuil and Two Mountains High School to Brownsburg pupils. Pupils outside the school area expected that in a matter of such grave importance to the State that petty discrimination of local prejudice would be transcended by the higher objective. Whatever justification there may be for an advance in school fees surely there is no justification to raise the fees to over 400%. In his advocacy of Central School Boards, Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education stated that under the previous system "much personal sacrifice is often involved because parents must not only pay the fees charged to pupils in areas in which the school is built but must pay the outside fee also. . . . . in many cases it may be as high as five dollars a month, (if Dr. Percival thought five dollars too high under the old system, he should worry about those who dig up twelve dollars under the new system). Dr. Percival is further quoted as saying "The county central school board bill has for its purpose the remedying of such conditions an inequality of taxation. . . . No child should be deprived of the possibility of going to school because his parents cannot afford to pay for his education or because adequate school facilities are beyond his reach or for any other reason". Since these words were spoken the Provincial Government took over the huge accumulation of debts with which the schools were burdened. But then Brooklyn never liked New York. Dem Bums.

Hunting

A local farmer fired four shots at a bear in the Daleville district, but the animal just ambled away, unhurt. The farmer took such a ribbing over his marksmanship that Bruin returned next day and gave up the ghost at the first shot. Compassion.

Power

Mr. Van Koeghnet, Field Engineer of the Provincial Electrical Board has been for the past three weeks making a survey of the Quarry district as a preliminary to the electrification of the area. Mr. Georges Héon M.P. who was instrumental in pushing the project is keenly alive to the necessity of having the work completed.

Transport

It has been decided to build a new line of highway from Montreal to meet No. 8 outside Lachute. Plans have been completed to start work as soon as equipment and materials are available.

FEEDING AND MANAGEMENT OF DAIRY CATTLE

COMPOSITION OF FEEDS

Feeds are composed of many substances, each having a specific function. The more common substances are water, protein, carbohydrates (which include the easily digested starches and sugars and the more woody-like fibre), fat or oil, mineral or ash material and vitamins.

Water. Feeds vary greatly in moisture or water content. For example, oats and barley usually have from 8 to 10 per cent, while silages, roots and green feeds have from 70 to 90 per cent.

Proteins. Proteins are complex substances used to build tissue, promote growth, maintain and stimulate milk and fat production, develop the unborn calf and supply the protein in the milk secreted. A cow producing 25 pounds of milk per day must receive 2.5 to 3 pounds of protein in her ration.

Carbohydrates. Starches, sugars (nitrogen-free extract) and fibre (woody material) are classified as carbohydrates. They constitute the principal source of heat and energy, form body fat and the sugar and fat in milk. Starches and sugars are easily digested; fibre is not, hence is a less valuable source of energy.

These are more or less interchangeable terms for that portion of the feed extracted by ether. Fats supply over twice as much heat and energy as carbohydrates. Feeds vary considerably in fat content.

Mineral Material or Ash. Minerals are essential for the growth of the skeleton and for carrying on nearly all body processes. The more important ones are calcium, phosphorus, iodine, sodium, chlorine, magnesium, potassium, iron and copper.

Vitamins. Vitamins are accessory food factors that play an essential part in the feeding of all classes of live stock. Not all is known of the chemistry of vitamins, but certain nutritional diseases, such as rickets, develop in their absence.

DEFINITIONS OF FEED TERMS

1. Concentrates

Concentrates are feeds low in fibre and supplying large amounts of nutrients. Cereal grains, oil meals and milk powders are examples.

2. Grain Grades

Definite standards are set up under The Canada Grain Act. The following table serves to illustrate in an abbreviated form the minimum standards for some of the grades of Western grains commonly fed to live stock (showing in first column of figures, under Lbs., "Minimum Weight per Bushel"; and under %, "Maximum Limits of Seeds, Wild Oats and Other Grains"):

No. 2 C.W. Oats	36	3
No. 3 C.W. Oats	34	6
No. 1 Feed Oats	34	12
No. 1 Feed Barley	46	4
No. 2 Feed Barley	43	10

3. Protein-rich Feed — Protein Supplement — Protein Concentrate

These are more or less interchangeable terms used to describe concentrate feeds or mixtures of concentrate feeds containing a high percentage of protein.

4. Ration

A ration is the amount of feed fed to an animal over a period of 24 hours.

5 Balanced Ration

A balanced ration is one which furnishes the several nutrients — protein, carbohydrates and fat — in such proportion and amount as will properly nourish a given animal for 24 hours.

A balanced ration should be made from suitable and palatable feeds, have the proper bulk, the correct proportion of roughages and concentrates, contain a variety of feeds and be economical.

6 Roughages

Roughages are feeds relatively low in total nutrients and usually high in fibre content. Succulent feeds, while not high in fibre and usually having a moisture content of over 70 per cent are also classified as roughages. The following classification will show the kinds of feeds included under roughages:

Roughages

Dry — Hays and straws, corn stalks, millet hay chaff and oat hulls.

Succulent — Green Crops — growing grass, green hays, green corn, rape, kale.

Root and Tuber Crops — mangels, turnips, sugar beets, potatoes, carrots.

Total Digestible Nutrients

The term, total digestible nutrients, includes all the digestible nutrients — protein, carbohydrates (fibre and nitrogen-free extract), and fat (the latter being multiplied by 2¼ because the energy value is greater than that of protein or carbohydrates) in a feed stuff or ration. It represents the approximate heat or energy value of the feed.

Examples of meal mixtures containing 17 per cent to 19 per cent protein, suitable for feeding with mixed or timothy hay, with or without silage or roots:

1	Oats	400 lbs.
	Barley	300 lbs.
	Wheat Bran	100 lbs.
	Linseed Oil Meal	200 lbs.
2	Oats	500 lbs.
	Wheat	100 lbs.
	Corn and Cob Meal	200 lbs.
	Soy Beans	100 lbs.
	Linseed Oil Meal	100 lbs.
3	Oats	500 lbs.
	Barley	200 lbs.
	Wheat	100 lbs.
	Linseed Oil Meal	200 lbs.
4	Oats	500 lbs.
	Barley	200 lbs.
	Wheat	100 lbs.
	Soy Bean Oil Meal	200 lbs.
5	Mixed Grain	700 lbs.
	Commercial Dairy Concentrates (32%)	300 lbs.
6	Mixed Grain	500 lbs.
	Commercial Dairy Concentrate (24%)	500 lbs.

Add 3 pounds of a mineral mixture suggested below to every 100 pounds of meal in mixtures 1 to 4 inclusive.

Suggested Formula for 24% Dairy Concentrate

Bran	200 lbs.
Gluten Feed	200 lbs.
Dried Brewers' Grains	200 lbs.
Linseed Oil Meal	200 lbs.
Soy Bean Oil Meal	150 lbs.
Mineral iodized salt	20 lbs.
Mineral bone meal	30 lbs.

Suggested Formula for 32% Dairy Concentrate

Bran	100 lbs.
Gluten Feed	100 lbs.
Linseed Oil Meal	400 lbs.
Soy Bean Oil Meal	300 lbs.
Mineral iodized salt	30 lbs.
Mineral bone meal	70 lbs.

SUGGESTED MINERAL MIXTURES

1 Equal parts — Feeding Bone Meal, Di-sodium Phosphate, Iodized Salt.

2 Equal parts — Lime, Di-sodium Phosphate, Iodized Salt.

3 Equal parts — Lime, Feeding Bone Meal, Iodized Salt.

4 One-third Bone Char or Feeding Bone Meal, two thirds Iodized Salt.

Many feeders mix 2 pounds of feeding bone meal and 1 pound of iodized salt with each 100 pounds of meal mixture in lieu of mineral mixtures suggested above. All cattle and calves require minerals. Commercial mineral mixtures should be fed as directed by the manufacturer.

18,000 Acres More In Tomato Crop

Hamilton, Ont. (CP) — With Canadian food processors receiving 40% more tomatoes from growers than they did last year, housewives are now finding improved supplies of both canned tomatoes oes and tomato juice on their and tomato juice on their grocers' shelves.

The total pack may result in production of 56,000,000 more cans of tomatoes and tomato juice this year than in 1945, it was estimatedby E. R. Coulson, sales division manager of the American Can Company in Canada.

Packers across Canada contracted for 53,740 acres of tomatoes in 1946 — enough to fill nearly 199,000,000 cans — as compared to the 1945 total of 38,610 acres.

Mr. Coulson recalled that thousands of tomato plants were destroyed in Western Ontario this storms, but said most of the land was replanted and growers were able to harvest the crop before cold weather. Last year, growers in Ontario and Quebec suffered considerable losses due to early forst.

The Canadian tomato growing industry is centered chiefly in three provinces, Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia.

GENTLE DYNAMITE

The Garden-Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Canadian

You can have indoor blooms until Easter, if you plant your first narcissi now and continue to make plantings at three week intervals until March 1.

The paper white narcissi or the golden yellow, Soleil d'Or, are the only ones for indoor planting. These will bloom seven weeks from the time of planting.

The bulbs can be forced by growing them in bowls or saucers of pebbles and water. Place the bulbs so their tips are level with the rim of the bowl, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Press the pebbles firmly around the bulbs, covering shoulders but leaving the tips exposed. Keep the water level over the roots, as illustrated. But do not have the water quite touch the bulbs, for when it does slime or decay will develop.

Bulbs placed in water and pebbles should be put in a dark closet where the temperature is cool but there is no danger of freezing. This is necessary to stimulate root growth. Although the plants will flower if kept in the light, the results will not be as good as when the roots are allowed to develop first. Leave the bulb in the dark until the roots are two to three inches long. Then place the bowl in the light, but not in strong sunlight. After the tops have become entirely green, the plants can be placed in a window in full sunlight.

Decorative containers for the plantings can be found to match any color scheme. Pebbles also can be in mixed colors.

FIRESIDE

THIS IS the time of year to go over the bookshelves and lay in a stock of books for winter. Just as the canny housewife lines her cupboards with preserves for use when the whole outdoors seems hushed with frost, the wise book-lover will take thought now for days ahead.

Who cannot thrill to tales of heroism in far off places while he lounges with pipe and slippers in an easy chair before a cheering blaze? Let the frost brush lacy patterns on the window panes, let the wind mourn in the spruces and the cold bite like a polar fang — we'll face Captain Bligh with the Bounty mutineers, watch Madame Defarge at her fateful knitting in revolutionary Paris, or follow Sherlock Holmes straight to a rogue's hideout.

Immortal classics have their place of honor on the shelves but beside them the book-lover will place novels of the present day — Canadian, American and British authors; a few biographies of great men and women for inspiration; one or two works of reference for information; half a dozen volumes of travel, and two or three of history. Every reader can pick his own favorites, and look forward to winter nights of quiet comfort and the joy which only the fireside adventurer knows.

It's Halowe'en !

THIS IS Hallowe'en, the evening before All Saints' Day. The celebration traces back to the Romans, who always seem to come in for the biggest share of blame in these matters. They held this festival around November 1, in honor of Pamona, the Goddess of fruit trees. In Britain, at about the same time, the Druids also celebrated in honor of the Sun God and in thanksgiving for harvest.

When the people became Christian (so the story goes) the early church fathers wisely let them keep their old feast but gave it a new meaning, holding it in honor of all departed souls. Thus the eve of the festival became All Hallow E'en, the name coming from the old word Halowe or Holy.

Many beliefs grew up concerning this feast, one being that on this night the spirits of the departed should be made welcome in their own homes. In many homes the rooms were carefully swept and cleaned, the table was made ready and food left out for those who should return.

Hallowe'en has always been eagerly looked forward to by the young folk. Many plays have been built around the theme and whether or not spirits of the departed do come back, Hallowe'en is a welcome break in our daily round.

"Quote from Yesterday"

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheerful words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them.

Boys and Girls — Yesterday and Today

WE BELIEVE most parents wish their children to grow physically, mentally and spiritually, and to do this they must be active, they must use their bodies and minds — said an editorial some time ago in The Barrie Examiner, increasingly realized, and acted upon, in our Canadian communities . . .

In the early days of this country (the editorial continues) most boys and girls had to work to assist the family budget; they matured earlier than they do now. Religion had a stabilizing influence on their lives and there were few delinquents in those days. Then child labor laws forbid children to work, and rightly so, because selfish people exploited them, stunting their growth and deadening their minds. But nothing was given to boys and girls in place of this work; they had to find some activity themselves and too often they did things detrimental to their mental and spiritual growth — most schools are concerned only while children are in school, and there, its books, dates, rules and examinations. Too many homes and too many school systems are set against the tide of children's growth.

Boys and girls are confused between the needs of their natures and what we offer them, and when in their ignorance they strike out after what they instinctively feel they should have, they get into trouble and are called delinquents. If boys and girls are to grow up with clean, healthy bodies and minds, they must have active employment or recreation out of school as well as in school, under wise, understanding direction.

Food-Freezing Possibilities in Market Gardening

NEW METHODS of food preservation, notably the freezing and packing of fresh vegetables, are bound to have a great effect on market gardening procedure in Canada, with the promise of a great expansion of the industry. In future, growers will not only have a summer market, but also a winter one, a factor which should force a tremendous increase in garden produce acreage.

It is quite probable that many growers in the future will install their own freezing plants, in which case they will not only be producers, but also processors. Imports of fruits and vegetables from the United States during off-seasons may possibly suffer, but the main result will be more money in the pockets of Canadian growers.

Another feature of the new methods of food preservation will be to cut spoilage which has been one of the difficulties in fruit and vegetable marketing in the past. Huge quantities of produce have been lost when sales lagged and there was not sufficient refrigeration to protect. In future, there will be less chance of foods rotting, and producers will be assured of greater financial returns for their work.

Treating Pupils As Individuals

By F. H. J. ROYAL

(A series of articles on "Guidance" an endeavor which has recently been introduced into the Lachute High School. Some of the credit for these articles must be given the "School Guidance Worker" published by the Vocational Guidance Centre, Toronto, and the booklet, "Treating Pupils as Individuals", by the Illinois Association of School Boards.)

SEVEN BASIC VIEWPOINTS

Guidance Is Not Dictatorial

The best kind of help is that which gives information and has a counselling viewpoint by trying to aid each individual in such a way that he can help himself better. This means that he is aided in evaluating all pertinent information and in making intelligent decisions. This is an important viewpoint because many teachers and adults have the feeling that young people should be "told what they must do".

All Students Are Included

It is not only special problem cases that require individual attention. Each student in the school system should have made available to him the counselling help of the guidance program of the school, since all students need help. It means, further, that physical handicaps are recognized and treated accordingly; remedial classes are provided when necessary; special vocational training is provided for those students who display particular talents which can be developed through training provided in the school. No one of these is a problem child; today it includes all students and all normal, everyday problems with which students become concerned.

It Has Cumulative Aspects

The help provided for an individual does not stop suddenly after it has been given. It is cumulative. In fact, it never stops. The guidance program in the school is built on the premise that helping students individually is a continuing process in which help given previously needs to be followed up. On this basis the help a student receives should continue with him into employment. The personnel office in industry should continue the guidance process on into adult life. In this connection, evening schools or other adult organizations in industry are usually anxious to work closely with the schools in developing the best kind of co-ordinated relationship with respect to the students who enter their employ.

The schools' place in this growth process is therefore extremely significant. It is near the beginning of a cumulative process. Continuous evaluation and follow-up are consequently important.

All Resources Needed

In order to provide the necessary individual help needed by students, all community resources must be used instead of only those available within the school. A guidance program consequently may need to go outside school walls to use clinics, various kinds of social agencies, industry and labor, public libraries, hospitals, courts, individuals representing all types of occupations, employment offices, departments of labor, and all other similar agencies in urban or rural areas. Each of them has a part in performing the functions of a guidance program. A good school system, therefore, aims to organize these resources in such a way as to use them for the welfare of individual students. A special file is often set up for this purpose. This file usually includes the name, address, telephone number, contact person, and the function for each respective agency or organization listed. This becomes extremely useful.

Specialists Are Used

In larger school systems it becomes necessary to assign people who are especially qualified to carry on certain functions of the guidance program. This becomes necessary because many of the individual cases needing attention involve the services of a person especially trained who has the time and skill to carry on the necessary responsibilities in helping individuals. This means that the teachers and administrators in the school use this person as a resource specialist. In the smaller schools the principal or a capable teacher may act in the capacity.

Building Facilities Required

Building facilities should be provided in order to carry on the guidance program on both large and small schools. The traditional classrooms and assembly halls serve adequately to take care of group instruction. However, in order to carry on the individual aspects of this work it is necessary to have available individual counselling facilities for teachers and specially assigned people. In larger school systems it is desirable to provide for a special personnel unit located near the administrative offices.

Research Program Advisable

Another viewpoint takes for granted the fact that in order to do a good job in helping the individual it is necessary to keep up to date in the fields of tests and measurements, records, occupational information, trends in higher education, trade training, community needs, etc. The implications of this are evident. It means that school systems should be responsible for the organization of a research program which aims to provide through occupational and community surveys the necessary information and data which the high schools seldom can answer adequately.

BUILD WEATHER STATION

The Pas, Man. (CP) — A Dominion meteorological station will be built next summer at Baker Lake, N.W.T., Rev. W. J. R. James, veteran Anglican missionary, said here on return from his station in the area, 225 miles inland from Hudson Bay.

Abraham Lincoln, while practicing law at Springfield, Illinois, to a New York firm inquiring as to the financial standing of a fellow townsman: "First of all, he has a wife and a baby; together they ought to be worth $500,000 to any man. Secondly he has an office in which there is a table worth $1.50, and three chairs worth, say, $1. Last of all, there is in one corner a large rathole, which will bear looking into. Respectfully, A. Lincoln." —Emil Ludwig, Lincoln (Little, Brown)

Blind Proofreader

Checks Braille Messages and Designs on Christmas Cards

New York (CP) — When Christmas rolls around, the nation's blind will be able to select their own special greeting cards.

Designed to give pleasure to both the sighted and the sightless, these unique cards combine a Braille and printed message, and are decorated with raised designs which the blind can "see" with their sensitive fingers.

Each design and Braille message is approved by William Schenck, blind proofreader on the staff of the New York Public Library of the Blind, who also checks the accurary of the group's transcriptions of whole volumes.

The cards are the newest work undertaken by the Women's Conference of the Society of Ethical Culture, an inter-religious fellowship, and are made by 40 volunteers who meet at the society once a week to transcribe and bind books for the blind. Some 300 cards for birthdays, Easter and Christmas have been produced in the last six months.

The volunteers hand-letter and Braille the cards, and then paint some sort of decorative design. The ornament is then covered with shiny sprinklers, which give an embossed effect.

"We try to include in the message some clue as to what the design is," explains Mrs. Jos. Davis chairman of the Braille committee. "For example, here's one with an orchid on the front - and the Braille message reads 'orchids to you on your anniversary.'"

The cards are sold at cost, about seven cents each, and orders have been received from places as far as England and India.

There is no real leadership in those who would rather lead than serve.

Escaped P.O.W. Starts Business

Melbourne, Australia (CP) — Ronny Leimbach, a German internee, escaped from Tatura internment camp last December, went to the country and got a job as a farm hand.

He worked hard and saved hard. When he thought he had enough in his pocket, he set himself up in business making leather brief cases — a trade he learned as an internee — and persuaded the landlady of his boarding house to go into partnership with him.

She did all the buying and selling, and the business thrived — until the other day when detectives arrived and took Leimbach to his internment camp.

.....LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

Harry Hookings first learned the elements of paper making under the expert guidance of his father. Now, after 35 years in a fine paper mill at Merritton, Ontario, he has followed his father's footsteps to become Mill Superintendent. Harry has always been a prominent Union man, and for eight years acted as Shop Steward. In spite of his busy mill life he has served as a town Alderman, and still finds time to raise chickens and to bowl an occasional string. He has that intimate knowledge of paper making that comes from a lifetime of effort and study.

In 1913 while Harry was a machine tender, and his father superintendent, the mill at Merriton turned out the first glassine and greaseproof paper ever made in Canada.

Aged Harrington Lady Passes

The Late Jessie McRae

Harrington community suffered a great loss on the 12th of October as death claimed one of its highly respected residents, Miss Jessie McRae, who was in her eighty-sixth year. She, with her brother, Murdock, lived together on the home farm which was a popular resort for friends far and near. Thirty years of Miss McRae's life were spent in the city of Boston, where she served as a dietitian, returning to Harrington on the death of her sister, to keep house for her brother, who now mourns her loss.

The funeral was held from her late residence on Monday, October 14, the service being conducted by Rev. S. J. Pike, of Brownsburg, Interim-Minister of the Avoca and Harrington charge. Burial took place in the Shaw Cemetery at Harrington.

Respected Citizen Of B'burg Dead

The Late Peter John Hanson

A respected citizen passed away at Brownsburg on October 12, in the person of Peter John Hanson. Mr. Hanson arrived in Brownsburg some thirty-five years ago, having been transferred from Halifax by the Canadian Industries Limited as one of their reliable and trustworthy representatives. Retiring some years ago, Mr. Hanson enjoyed good health up to a few weeks before his death. During his illness he was under the care of his two daughters, the Misses Anna and Eleanor at their home which he built before his retirement.

The funeral was held from his late residence on Monday, October 14, the service being conducted by Rev. S. J. Pike. The hymns sung were "Come Ye Disconsolate", "The Lord's My Shepherd" and "Jesus Savior Pilot Me", the last being a tribute to his sea-faring life before he became connected with the C-I-L.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. T. G. Pasco, F. G. Kettyle, Manly Gardiner, Gerald Quinn, Jonh McVicar and William Moseley. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family. Mrs. Hanson predeceased him some thirty years ago. The many and beautiful floral tributes bespoke the wide connection of Mr. Hanson's friends and acquaintances, and the very great esteem in which he was held. Interment was made in the Brownsburg lot of Lachute Cemetery.

Improvements to Lighten The Farmer's Burden

Only a farmer can appreciate the degree of skill, ingenuity and labour involved in keeping a farm running and producing successfully. Only a farmer can understand the long hours, the thought and the constant care necessary to make a farm operate at a profit.

But, today, modern science is doing much to lighten the farmer's burden and to increase his profits. Functional machinery, time-saving appliances, new methods of stock-breeding and raising, electrical aids to lighten the housewife's duties—all these things are now available to the farmer, to help him make his farm a 'go-ahead' concern.

Farmers who wish to take advantage of such improvements will find a ready ally in the Bank of Montreal. The Bank's farm improvement loan plan makes it possible to own all the equipment required to make a farm pay profits.

A visit to the local branch of the B of M, and a talk with the manager, Eric Hibbard, may prove this low-interest repayment plan meets your particular needs. You will find his sympathetic understanding of your financial problems can help make your burden lighter.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

On December 7 after church, everyone was called out and they went into battle, and until Christmas Day, when they surrendered, they took everything the Japanese could give them, planes, shells and hand-to-hand fighting. They were under fire continuously and during this time Rev. Laite cared for the wounded until at last at Wunachung Gap, his small party were forced to surrender. He was the only officer standing and he had 37 wounded officers and men to take care of.

There were never any complaints from the men while they were in battle, Mr. Laite added, though they were not fully trained in battle operations. One man asked about God and I told him that God was as near in battle as he was at home One officer came to me weeks later and said "Do you remember that night in the thick of battle? Well, I'm not very good at praying but I prayed that night and I felt better for it — I've made contact with God".

They were prisoners in a Japanese camp from December 25, 1941, until August 15, 1945, 44 months altogether and they ate rice continually for the 1300 days. Unclean rice that rats had walked through and the rice was cooked with worms floating in it. After 44 months of bad food and inadequate medical care, the morale of the men was still good and the Japanese wondered how it was. It was through Christian faith, claimed the speaker. Only 7 Red Cross parcels were received all the time they were there, he said.

In season the prisoners sometimes were able to make their own gardens, but most of the time they had the regular prison food — rice, and when the captors sent their pigs into the prison to eat leftovers, even the pigs refused to eat a prisoner's dinner, it was so bad.

A sense of comradeship was found among the men, he said, as the Anglican communion service was taken by United Church padres, and United Church communion service solemnized by Anglican Padres. Everyone felt they were bound together by faith.

Concluding, Rev. Laite said that experience had taught him to speak from his heart and not merely from a book and to satisfy himself that he was speaking the truth.

The Story of Brownsburg

By M. V. TRAYERS

PREFACE

Towards the end of 1813 French-Canadian troops under de Salaberry scored a striking success at Chateauguay, and British forces stormed Fort Niagara and burned Buffalo. The following year the ebb and flow of battles continued up to September when the British were defeated at Plattsburg on Lake Champlain and three months later the Treaty of Ghent ended the war.

In Canada, during this time, the growing pains of a nation under development were felt in spasmodic turmoil and constructive development were lengthening and early settlers were showing a faith in their ability to carve out a great nation with an assured future.

It was now in the year that George Brown first stood on the banks of the West River and visualized the future Brownsburg. He had come to build not to destroy. This was the year the Red River settlement was destroyed for the second time and Governor Simple killed. The following summer the first treaty with the North-West Indians was signed and Lord Selkirk restored the settlement. An era of peace followed and great strides were made in the development and progress of the country. The Bank of Montreal was opened and the first note issue made public. Dalhousie College was founded in Halifax and Franklin set out to conquer the Arctic with an overland expedition. The population of Lower Canada was now 427,465 and that of Upper Canada 150,066. The Lachine Canal was opened to traffic and Bytown which we now know as Ottawa was founded.

The next date of importance in our Brownsburg story, 1829, marked the coming of the Brown family to the home George Brown had prepared for his wife and two daughters. There were by now a few other families established here and settlers were busy clearing off the lands they had obtained from the government. The Methodist Church of Canada separated from that of the United States (the first church in Brownsburg was a Methodist Church). This was also the year the first Welland Canal was opened and McGill University founded in Montreal.

Lake Keatley

Miss Doris Roberts, of Montreal, was a week-end visitor at the home of her mother, Mrs. Stephen Bigelow.

Mrs. Willie MacVicar, of Vankleek Hill, and Mrs. Nellie Marshall, of Harrington, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David MacVicar.

Principal and Mrs. J. G. Bennett and son Gordon spent the week-end at "Echo Valley Camp".

Mr. C. Watson, Mr. G. Watson, Master Allan Watson and Master Malcolm Grant, all of Montreal, spent the week-end at their cottage on Lake McLeod.

Miss Jean Graham, of Montreal, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. White for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Brown and family spent Sunday at their cabin on Lake Keatley.

Mr. Ken Ford and Mr. Fred Parent spent the week-end at "Oak Bend" here.

Officer and Mrs. H. Jones and sons spent Friday at the home of the latters parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. MacVicar.

Mrs. W. Young, of Lachute, spent last week at the home of her sister, Mrs. Dick Young.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Dick Young on the birth of a son, "Winston".

Arundel W. Inst.

Arundel — Members of the Arundel Women's Institute held their October meeting in the United Church hall, Mrs. Gordon Cooke presiding. The roll-call was answered by 19 members, each one telling a joke. Three visitors were made welcome.

Mrs. Percy Staniforth, secretary, read a letter from Miss Walker, offering to visit this branch to give a talk.

A favorable report of finances was given by Mrs. W. Graham.

It was decided to hold another "military whist" party, on November 6. This was left in charge of Mrs. Alfred Morrison. The matter of hot lunches to be served to school children was discussed, and it is hoped this will be arranged in the near future.

Mrs. Edward Craig, convener of Agriculture and two members of her committee, Mrs. Percy Gordon and Mrs. Alvin Graham, gave very good articles and demonstrations on "potting and care of bulbs" also "Dressing a Fowl".

The members exchanged seeds, plants and bulbs.

FIRE ON THE MOUNTAIN

Sparks streaked skywards from a roaring fire on the heights of Caux above Lake Geneva. Scores of other beacons glowed from other mountain peaks. Switzerland was celebrating 654 years of uninterrupted freedom.

Six and a half centuries of freedom — and inward peace! Why could not the flame of that idea spread across Europe — across the world? Political freedom, perhaps, is not enough. Free nations still make many selfish demands upon each other. Peace cannot be made that way. The nation which would spread world peace must first give the world a new type of being, the man who is free from demand.

This perception kindled a new fire in the hearts of hundreds who gathered at Caux. It led them to take over Mountain House, and equip it for the task of welding a world family capable of rearing this new type of being.

Many sold their own homes — gave everything they owned — to acquire the property. Hundreds worked for weeks, sometimes starting at 4.00 a.m. and working till midnight, to clear up the debris left by war refugees who had occupied the hotel. In terms of cash the cost of this new home for freedom was no greater than the cost of a bombing plane. But in terms of sacrifice, the cost was total giving over of every private hope and plan. The fire kindlers at Caux thus showed the way to the freedom from demand which they sought for world statesmen. "There is some reason for the success of this particular gathering of people from all over the world — something that keeps them together", said a British statesman at Caux. "The same thing can keep the world together and bring us peace."

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Our Good Friend — The Potato!

Because the potato is a homely vegetable and because it is a familiar part of the meals all their lives, many people are inclined to give it very little attention and consideration. Many vegetables come and go during the year but the potato is always there, our faithful and good friend.

The people who love potatoes, who could eat them three times a day and often do so, are not much interested in the way they are prepared, they like them any way. But there are others who do not have such a love for this lowly vegetable and get tired of boiled, baked, mashed, scalloped and even fried potatoes. The home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture offer tested recipes which will find favor with all groups of potato consumers.

Potatoes, French Peasant Style

2½ Cups cold cooked potatoes cut in 1-inch cubes, ¼ cup bacon fat, 1½ cloves, garlic, 1½ tablespoons chives or onions chopped, 1½ tablespoons parsley chopped, 1½ tablespoons chopped celery leaves, 1½ tablespoons of flour, 1½ cups milk (or ¾ cup stock and ¾ cup milk), ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Sauté potatoes in bacon fat until brown on all sides. Remove potatoes and keep hot on back of stove or in warming oven. Crush garlic with the blade of a knife and fry in fat with chives or onions, parsley and celery leaves. Add flour and gradually blend in milk. Add salt and pepper and cook over low heat until the sauce is thick. . . about 4 to 6 minutes, stirring constantly. Add potatoes and reheat. A little minced ham may be sprinkled over top of potatoes. — Six servings.

Potatoes in Green Peppers

3 Large green peppers, 2 tablespons fat, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 cup grated cheese, 3 cups diced cooked potatoes.

Wash peppers, cut in half lengthwise and remove seeds. Parboil, uncovered, in salted water until tender but not soft. Drain. Melt fat, add flour and blend well. Stir until cheese is melted. Add potatoes and heat over low heat until hot. Serve in green pepper cases. Six servings.

Bologna Cups with Hot Hot Potato Salad

2 Cups diced cooked potato, 2 sweet pickles chopped, 1 hard cooked egg chopped, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 2 tablespoons vinegar, salad dressing to moisten, salt and pepper, 6 slices large bologna.

Combine everything but bologna. Heat in top of double boiler. Do not remove casing from bologna, which should be cut a little thicker than usual. Heat in a little hot fat in frying pan until edges curl up to form a cup. Fill with hot potato salad, garnish with parsley.

Creamed vegetables may replace hot potato salad.

FASHION HINTS

The suit that is at home in or out of town, so long as it is complemented by the right accessories, is a pretty useful affair for the town and country child. Here's such a suit, a neat affair of striped woollen in muted tones of taupe and brown. Smartly detailed, it has high placed revers above a single-breasted closing. The patch pockets are buttoned down by a tiny connecting tab from the waist. The slim skirt has a slit in the centre front.

B.C. DAFFODILS RIVAL HOLLAND

Toronto Floral Expert Predicts Big Future for Bulb Industry

Regina (CP) — A forecast that British Columbia would one day be the world's greatest bulb producing region, surpassing even the Netherlands, was made here recently by Max Shirley, a Toronto floral artist.

Attending a one-day school of floral design of the Allied Florists and Growers of Canada, Mr. Shirley said B.C. bulb growing made tremendous strides during the war when no bulbs were imported from Europe. He said B.C. daffodil bulbs were as fine as those from Holland.

The Toronto man thinks there is nothing to compare with the flower industry.

"Each season brings a new change of flowers with which to work. A florist meets interesting people and becomes involved in their joys and sorrows."

He said that great advances have been made in the growth and variety of flowers in the past few years. Science is increasing the number of varieties available and lengthening the period in which blooms can be grown.

Florists would like to see women wear fewer flowers at a time but wear them more often.

"A corsage should be a part of a woman's outfit and should not stand out either in color or size. She should wear just a touch of flowers and they should harmonize with the gown.

When flowers are arranged in a bowl all stems should point towards an imaginary spot below the bowl.

Mr. Shirley said the rose is still Canada's No. 1 flower.

"It has a depth and richness of color possessed by no other flower."

It is the treating of the commonplace with the feeling of the sublime that gives to art its true power. — J. F. Millet

REFINE SEAL OIL FOR COOKING USE

To Utilize South Africa Seals For Fur, Food and Fertilizer

Capetown (CP) — South African housewives who have always admired seals for their skins may soon be doubly grateful to these graceful aquatic creatures for what they can produce to supplement the reduced supplies of edible cooking oils.

As a result of investigations carried out here, a pilot plant is being installed in the new sealing vessel Gamtoos to extract a refined oil from the blubber of seals.

Up to the present seals have been valuable chiefly for their pelts, and many have been caught by the men who visit the government Guano islands annually to collect fertilizer. Besides skinning the seals they have produced a low-grade oil after boiling the seals' blubber on the islands.

It is intended to evolve equipment that will enable a high-grade seal oil to be refined on board the Gamtoos. This oil would be suitable for the manufacture of margarine as well as for cooking purposes.

It is also hoped that a process will be found for reducing the seal's carcasses to cattle feed or fertilizer. At present all the carcasses are returned to the sea.

Men become fit for freedom when they unite for what is right, not when they divide over their rights.

New Father Reports Shortage of Names

Syracuse, N.Y. (CP)—Now there is a shortage of girls' first names, according to the father of a three-week-old Liverpool, N.Y., girl, who returned a name form to the county unfilled.

In a letter to Bernard M. Mitchell, county registrar of vital statistics, the father wrote:

"We have not named the child yet and have no reason for believing we will do so soon. The fact is we spent some time getting a name. The child turned out to be a girl and we could not use the name we spent so much trouble getting. Times being what they are, shortages of everything — it will be impossible to get a name within a reasonable time".

Mitchell said it was the first time in the history of the department that a supplemental name form had been returned without the necessary information written in.

Valleyfield, Que., (CP)—Creation of a new Roman Catholic parish of St. Esprit, with the Rev. Frederic Amyot as parish priest has been announced here. The new parish comprises 400 families.
