Opening of New, Modern Addition To Namur School

Namur School was the scene of an enthusiastic gathering last Thursday afternoon, when citizens, parents and visitors gathered for the official opening of the addition to their school building. Two new classrooms have been added, with such conveniences as large windows, sloping blackboards, fluorescent lighting, modern plumbing, pressure water system and hot air heating.

Guests on this occasion included — Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education, Quebec; Mrs. R. Self, Toronto, representing the W.M.S. of the United Church; the Rev. McCraig and Dr. Davidson, Ottawa, representing the United Church Board of Home Missions; the Rev. J. Bouchier, principal, Pointe-aux-Trembles School; Geo. Y. Deacon, member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education; Inspector L. J. King and the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, Lachute; A. Leslie Perry, architect, Montreal.

After visiting the school, the gathering assembled at the United Church, where the Rev E. Gouin acted as chairman and Dr. Percival gave the official opening address, followed by several other speakers and a number of song selections by the children.

Dr. Percival presented the School Board with a cheque for $9,250, as part of their grant, and said he hoped the new snowmobile, which the Department was giving Brookdale to bring their children to Namur, "would be here before it was needed". . . (The complete text of Dr. Percival's address is published on page 6.)

QUESTION OF LEGALITY

Halifax (CP) — Reading of a quotation from the Bible by a trial judge during a criminal case was cited as an error in an appeal filed in the Nova Scotia Supreme Court on behalf of two men convicted of robbery. Their counsel, O. R. Regan, said the judge had erred in reading to the jury from the Bible "which is not part of the common law of Nova Scotia".

Lions Club Topic, Description of a County Industry

Members of Lachute Lions Club gathered at Desjardins Hotel for their regular meeting Tuesday evening, with President A. G. McOuat in the chair. Following a brief business session Mr. Grant Baker, general superintendent of Canadian Refractories Limited at Kilmar, told an interesting story on the mining of magnesite.

The speaker briefly outlined the history of the Kilmar magnesite deposit from the days it was known as the "White Rock Mine" in 1916, to the present. Prior to this date, the magnesite used in Canada was all imported, mostly from Austria, where a very high grade product was obtained. As a result of considerable research by the National Research Council, a way was found to utilize the lower grade ore at Kilmar. Today the mine has sunk shafts as deep as 700 feet and has more than three miles of stopes.

Besides numerous types of refractory brick of different shapes and forms having specific purposes, the plant manufactures various cements for bonding the bricks together.

Three films were exhibited, showing sidelights on the mining and processing of magnesite.

The speaker was cordially thanked for his address.

Members are requested to keep Tuesday, November 19, open, when a film will be presented entitled "Rivers of Paper". Further details next week.

Premier to Officiate At Inauguration of Gatineau Industry

In the neighboring county of Papineau, Gatineau Village—which will shortly be elevated to the status of a town — will play host on Saturday, November 16, to Premier Maurice Duplessis and members of his cabinet. The occasion will be the official opening of International Plywoods Ltd., a subsidiary of Canadian International Paper; the new industry when in operatios will employ around 200 workers, male and female.

Following the inauguration and tour of inspection, a public rally will be staged during the afternoon at the International Plywoods Ltd. plant.

35 Pupils Enjoy Educational Trip To Agric. College

A group of 35 Lachute High School students visited Macdonald College on Saturday last. The day's program provided a tour of the Handicrafts and Household Science departments for the girls, while the boys tried their hand at judging cattle, also visited the extensive cattle stables and returning to the main building for a half-hour inspection of the Handicrafts.

After an enjoyable dinner at the college hall, the Horticulture division was visited. Here the pupils witnessed the grading of apples, and saw the refrigeration rooms, display counters, implements and vegetables, besides a beautiful array of flowers in the greenhouse.

Next the party were shown the Animal Nutrition laboratory, where Vitamin C experiments are being conducted with guinea pigs, as well as nutritional studies on wild rats.

The Poultry department was included and its features were the laying pens, varieties of S.C. Barred Plymouth Rocks, S.C. White Leghorns and New Hampshire pullets, modern incubators, chicks on experimental tests, a plucking machine, egg cooling and egg candling facilities.

The Rural Workshop was inspected. This is a scheme under the Canadian Vocational Assistance plan for veterans. The shop had machine lathes, grinding, arc and electric welding, motor mechanics, forging and metal work.

The college officials who acted as guides were Professor Ness, of the Animal Husbandry department, Mr. Ludwig, Mr. Nussey, of the Horticulture staff, Mr. Ewing, of the Animal Nutrition lab, and Mr. Mackie, of the Poultry division.

The educational and recreational value of this outing — under supervision of E. H. Peters, B.S.A., of the High School teaching staff—amply repaid the nominal charge met by each pupil for transportation and dinner. The party made the 100-mile trip by school bus.

First Spade-Work In Organization for Spring Fair 1947

The annual meeting of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, held here last Monday, was attended by 33 members, who reviewed with satisfaction a year of marked progress and discussed the preliminaries for an exhibition of still higher standards in spring, 1947. June 11 to 14, inclusive, were dates mentioned tentatively for the next Lachute Fair.

The financial statement and auditor's report were adopted. Records of the past year showed the largest volume of business in the Society's history. A total of $10,000 had been disbursed in prize money for the 1946 exhibition. Owing to considerable repairs to grounds and properties found necessary during the year, only a slight surplus appeared on the Society's books.

The meeting was under chairmanship of the president, J. H. Black. Election of directors for the ensuing year resulted in the following appointments:

The County Warden, A. G. Munich; Gilbert Arnold, J. H. Black, W. M. Cottingham, Clement Tremblay, S. Armstrong, A. Maisonneuve, Theodore Murdoch, Ross McAdam, James McKenzie, Albert Stewart. E. K. Wilson, Jas. MacKimmie, Erskine Rodger, Ernest Emmett.

Council Receives Large Petition for Water Filtration

Major items before the Town Council last evening, at its regular monthly session, included the passage of a new business permit by-law, No. 172.

A petition signed by a large number of taxpayers was presented by O. J. Desjardins, requesting the Corporation to install filtration equipment in the town's water system. In view of the complaints on unclean water supply, the Mayor promised consideration to the request of Mr. Desjardins and his delegation.

A petition was also presented on behalf of local taxi operators, asking Council to set a limit on the issuance of permits, and to establish rates for operation of taxis within the town limits. The Council agreed to submit the matter for legal advice.

Alderman A. Bothwell gave notice that at next meeting he will present a by-law for levy of the necessary taxes for 1947.

Named Secretary To School Board

At a regular meeting of the Protestant School Board held on Tuesday evening under chairmanship of Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, applications were considered for the position of secretary-treasurer, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mac E. Walker. Four applications were received, and the appointment was extended to Angus Taylor, a well known townsman of Lachute.

Other business of a routine nature occupied the attention of the commissioners.

Victoria (CP) — A Church of England prayer book and a Bible printed in 1610 and 1615, respectively, have been loaned to the provincial library by John Ward of Kamloops, B.C., owner of the ancient books.

"Many casualties on the field . . ."
"Seven of our bombers missing . . ."

EDUCATION WEEK

By M. V. TRAYERS

This is Education Week in Canada.

Canadians are asking today whether Canadian educational policies are geared to the demands of the post-war world. If we are to cope with the problems which lie ahead we shall require the same unity which saw us through the war. Now, with this sense of urgency removed, we realize once more that Canada is a federation, the product of many compromises, and one of the hardest countries in the world to govern.

Regionalism. — A major threat to national unity has its root in our geography. We have an immense country, so huge that if it were folded back at its eastern edge, it would cover the whole of the Atlantic Ocean and the continent of Europe as far as Poland.

Racialism. — Our small population, less than 12 millions at the time of the last census, is composed of two major strains. About four million of French origin concentrated largely in Quebec, Northern New Brunswick and Northern Ontario, form a wedge in the heart of an English-speaking country. The French-Canadians united by bonds of common language, culture and religion, are resolved at all costs to maintain their identity, to preserve their way of life, to hold and practice their religious beliefs against the encroachment of the larger civilization. As the descendants of the first European settlers, the inheritors of the achievements of the early colonial period, the French-Canadians have a deep and abiding devotion to Canada.

As a result of successive waves of immigration there are now more than two million people of continental European origin in Canada. Thus the English-speaking people of British stock are in a minority. It therefore becomes imperative that our schools attempt positive and constructive action against racial intolerance.

In classes in literature, history, music, art and science, the contributions of all races and nations to the sum of human accomplishment must be stressed. Children of minority groups must be taught to have pride in the achievements of their people. Teachers of the dominant group must show that men of all colors, creeds and tongues have created the world in which we live. The core of the teaching is that all peoples can share in the building of society in this continent.

An indifferent or insensitive teacher may succeed in emphasizing racial difference and in making the child unduly conscious of national origin. The school is only one aspect of the child's life. He has many and intimate contacts beyond its walls. Attitudes he may meet in his home, on the street, in the playground or at camp should be met by the immunity injected by wise and considerate teaching in the school.

Twilight of the Little Gods

There is a growing feeling everywhere that the school curriculum should bear a closer relation to the realities of life. That courses in history are inadequate and unrealistic if they bring no understanding of the forces at work in the society of our time. There is too much of a tendency to discredit the past and glorify the present. "God created man to His own image and likeness, and man promptly returned the compliment". There is no description more apt for the growing coterie of destroyers in our midst — those pompous "little gods" who sit in judgment upon everything and everybody except themselves. They are born in self conceit, weaned on the heady wine of over-publicity and flourish in the spotlight of a too credulous people.

They arrogantly assume all the omnipotence that belongs only to the Almighty God. Their avowed purpose is to lay waste all the glorious traditions of yesterday and despoil all promise of tomorrow. They would create a new, mean little world wherein all would adopt the credo of a mangy mongrel pup. No pride in ancestry and no hope of posterity.

These little gods wage war along all social and economic fronts — but mainly against spiritual beliefs.

Ayrshire Men Discuss Business, Appoint Directors

The annual meeting of the Laurentian Ayrshire Breeders' Club, held last evening at McArthur's Hall, was enthusiastically attended. The president, Melville Smith, occupied the chair, and F. A. Hungerbuhler, secretary-treasurer, reported favorably on the year's activities and finances.

A brief tribute of silence was paid to the late Jack Fraser, who had been present and contributed his talent of entertainment at many previous assemblies of the club.

The members decided to hold a barn rally, a calf sale and the Red and White field day, as features of the next year's program.

On the suggestion of Kenneth Sly, it was decided to contribute certain sums as prize money to the Boys' and Girls' Calf Club.

S. J. Chagnon, president of the Quebec Ayrshire Breeders' Club — scheduled as guest speaker of the evening — was unable to be present. It was explained that Mr. Chagnon was engaged in transacting a large sale of Ayrshire cattle to Mexico. As this friendly republic to the south is obliged to import most of its quality livestock, the importance of the current negotiations, and their future possibilities, were appreciated by the gathering.

Directors elected for the ensuing year were — Clifford Armstrong, Grant Beatty, Albt. Dixon, Roger Fournier, Theo Murdoch, F. O. Peterson, Melville Smith, Arthur St. Jacques, Allan Walker and Stewart Walker.

On conclusion of the evening's business, supper was served by the Jerusalem-Bethany Women's Institute, and dancing was enjoyed, to the music of Edgar Jackson and his musicians.

Turnips, Not For Sale

The merits of "mixed retailing" have long been debated among small-town merchants. Turnips appearing this week in the window of Wilson & Gordon, Main Street, may suggest that this firm is selling fruit and vegetables along with its regular line of hardware. — Such is not the case. The two turnips, each weighing 20 lbs., are exhibits of special interest to farmers who patronize the store. These unusually large specimens were grown on the farm of Harvey Millar, St. Canut.

MODEL TENANT

St. Thomas, Ont. (CP) — "Have you a house to wreck? If so, I have the manpower to do it." This was the beginning of a rather unorthodox advertisement for a home issued by a newcomer to St. Thomas after using the usual means without success. He added that his two small sons were expert in smashing windows and that he drank, smoked and used bad language.

Great Northern Highway Preparing for Motorists

One of the first pictures of the world's most famous highway in peacetime dress. The great Alaskan highway, most sensational road-building job in all history, is now being readied for all-out traffic. At present it is opened only to restricted civilian traffic. Costing $125,000,000, the 1,600-mile long Alaskan highway was started in 1942, finished in October 1943 — actual construction time 7 months. The road opens up one of the richest mineral areas in the world. Motoring along the gravel surfaced highway is excellent from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska — 1,600 miles. Some of the thrills that await the anxious visitor to the north country are virgin trout fishing, hunting for bear, caribou, moose, elk, deer and wolves, in a country that doesn't know what a 'keep off' sign looks like.

Plan $150,000 Outlay, Expansion Of Plastics Plant at Brownsburg

Division of C-I-L Catering to Demand for Nylon Filament; Works Manager Forecasts Remodelled Plant in Operation Next Spring

Brownsburg, Que., Nov. 6 — Due to increased manufacturers' demands for tapered nylon brush bristle, Canadian Industries Limited will spend an excess of $150,000 on expansion and improvement of its plastics plant here — according to an announcement by H. S. Dando, Works Manager. The Brownsburg works is the only one of its kind in Canada turning out nylon monofilament.

Present plans include the installation of a completely new combination spinning machine capable of producing both tapered and level monofilament. Three modern cutting machines to reduce continuous tapered monofilament into bristle lengths will also be added. The increase in accommodation will enable the setting up of a rest and lunch room for employees. An addition in plant staff is likely, the announcement states.

Of frame construction, the new building will be insulated with mine and industrial siding. The contract has been awarded to J. L. E. Price and Co. Ltd., Montreal. The remodelled plant is expected to be in operation next spring.

At the moment tapered nylon brush bristle is being imported from the United States, where it was developed in war years to avert the threat of a hog-bristle shortage for brushes. It was found so superior to hog-bristle that most brush manufacturers have acclaimed it as the best bristling material for paint and certain industrial brushes.

Level monofilament has been produced in Brownsburg since 1941. Because of its durability and other favorable properties, it is being widely used in numerous varieties of industrial, household and hair brushes. Other uses include nylon-bristled tooth brushes, and nylon leaders for fishermen. Tennis, badminton and squash rackets are now strung with nylon monofilament. Even violin strings are being made of this versatile plastic.

Death Ends Era of Merchant Pioneers At St. Andrews E.

STORE BUSINESS OWNED BY WALES FAMILY SINCE 1832

St. Andrews East — With the passing of Charles Stowe Wales, merchant of St. Andrews East, which occurred unexpectedly on Saturday—a name associated with the mercantile, social and educational life of this old village and parish for the past 114 years, is now ended.

The Wales business was founded in 1832, although its predecessor, Blanchard's, was doing business in St. Andrews many years earlier.

The late C. S. Wales was a grandson of Charles Wales and son of Charles Treadwell Wales who, over this long period of years, ran a wholesale and retail business continuously. The name appears on many of the early records of the Montreal merchants who have served them; for example Cavehill & Learmonth have them listed as their oldest customers.

Mr. Wales was highly respected, devoting himself to his business and community, as well as being active in the affairs of the United Church of St. Andrews. He leaves four daughters and a sister to mourn his loss.

Red Cross Hears Grateful Sentiment of Britishers

The regular monthly meeting of Lachute Red Cross Branch was held yesterday. Among other business, the financial statement of the "Swimming and Water Safety" fund showed a balance of $425, now in hand.

The president, Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, gave a résumé of the inside story of one phase of war work by Canadian Red Cross — as told by Miss Brierly, Women's Warden of the Dockland Settlement of Great Britain. Miss Brierly lived through the worst of the terror bombings and blitzes, working under the direct patronage of the King and Queen. She described a typical day in a blitz, a tragic story, but one which sparkled with the speaker's sense of humor.

The purpose of her visit was to tell Canadians just how much the British people appreciated what they had done for them. Much had been said of the morale of the British people, but she was sure that — had they not known we were there to help them — their spirit could not have withstood such great hardship. This realization, she said, gave them courage to go on. She spoke of the patchwork quilts made by the Canadian women. The men preferred the heavy ones tied with yarn, the women the gayer prints. Many Canadian afghans were to be seen on English prams, she said.

Miss Brierly told of an old couple who had been buried in their shelter but were not badly hurt. They were fitted out with some of the clothes sent from Canada. They were very happy, but lacked one thing. The old gentleman asked if they had any false teeth; his wife had left hers on the mantle and they had gone up with the house. The Canadians had not sent any with the clothing. — This, she said, was the "only time we had let them down". The clothing shipments, she added, had been a godsend, and she wanted the Canadian people to know they had gone to the right places and filled the most emergent needs.

The English boys who had come to Canada in course of their training, had returned home with the most glowing reports of this country and of the kindness of the Canadians, she said. For this and many other acts of kindness, Mrs. Brierly expressed the heartfelt thanks of her countryfolk.

Dr. W. P. Percival Replies to Queries On School Extens'n

Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education, visited Lachute High School last Thursday on his way to open the new two-room extension to the Namur Intermediate School.

Dr. Percival, along with several members of the board, visited classrooms in the local school, and noted that every corner of the building was being utilized — 22 pupils being crowded into the library, which is now serving as a classroom, and 80 in a room in the basement, with poor blackboards, inadequate lighting and poor ventilation.

Dr. Percival answered questions regarding an addition to the school. He explained that if the local board built an addition for Lachute only, the grant from the Department would be 20% to 30%; if as a consolidated High School, it was customary to give a 50% grant; but as a composite High School for the education of pupils of the Argenteuil and Two Mountains, the grant would likely be two-thirds of the cost. He explained the proper procedure would be to prepare plans, have them approved by the Department and call for tenders; the Department would then state the exact amount of the grant.

Other School Communities

Following this discussion of school costs, it is relevant to note the experience of other Quebec centres which have faced the necessity for expansion. . . At the last meeting of the Protestant Committee, it is recalled, a grant of $75,000 was voted to Cowansville for an addition to their school, and $100,000 for an addition to the Hudson High School — the sums in each case being one half of the total cost.

Knowlton has just completed the first composite High School, to which the Department gave a grant of $150,000; the sum of almost $50,000 was raised by public subscriptions, so that the new school at Knowlton cost the board no more than the outlay for an ordinary school.

New High Schools are being built at present in Three Rivers and Buckingham.

Cat and Kittens Shanghaied by 52-Inch Owl

(Our District Correspondent)

Calumet — An unusual happening was reported at the residence of Col. and Mrs. H. White last week, when one of their Persian kittens disappeared. The next day the second one was also missing, followed by the disappearance of their mother, "Smoky", on the third day. About that time Col. White's son Robert noticed a huge owl close to the house with the body of one of the kittens. The owl was killed, and the wing-spread measured 52 inches.

Feeding of Dairy Cattle

RULES FOR STABLE FEEDING DAIRY COWS IN MILK

Feeding Roughages:

Feed daily for each 100 pounds live weight: 1 lb. hay, 2 lbs. roots and 2 lbs. silage; or 1 lb. hay and 3½ lbs. silage; or 1½ lbs. hay and 4 lbs. roots; or 2 lbs. to 2½ lbs. hay.

Feeding Meal Mixtures:

1. Feed daily 1 pound of meal mixture for every 3 to 4 pounds of milk produced daily.

2. When feeding alfalfa or clover hay, with or without silage or roots, use a meal mixture containing 15 per cent to 17 per cent total protein.

3. When feeding timothy or grass hay, with or without silage or roots, use a meal mixture containing 17 per cent to 19 per cent total protein.

General Rules:

1. Feed according to the individual requirements of the animal.
2. Feed at regular hours each day.
3. Avoid sudden changes in kinds and amounts of feed.
4. Supply sufficient fresh water.
5. Provide salt and minerals.

FEEDING DURING DRY AND FRESHENING PERIODS

Feed the dry cow well. No time should be lost in getting a cow back on feed as soon as she is dry. High-quality roughage should form the basis of the dry cow's ration.

If a cow is in good condition at the commencement of her dry period, feed approximately 4 pounds of grain daily. On the other hand, if a cow is thin, it may be necessary to feed up to 10 pounds.

Home-grown grains are reasonably satisfactory for conditioning, although some protein supplement is necessary if the hay is of poor quality. The following grain mixtures are recommended to fit cows for lactation:

1	Oats	200 lbs.
	Barley	100 lbs.
2	Oats	200 lbs.
	Wheat	100 lbs.
3	Oats	300 lbs.
	Barley	100 lbs.
	Wheat	100 lbs.
4	Oats	300 lbs.
	Buckwheat	100 lbs.
	Wheat	100 lbs.

The above mixtures can be improved by the addition of a small amount of bran, linseed oil meal, or soy bean oil meal.

Previous to and immediately after calving, cows should be fed a meal mixture possessing laxative and cooling qualities. The following meal mixtures are suggested:

1	Oats	200 lbs.
	Linseed Oil Meal	100 lbs.
	Bran	100 lbs.
2	Oats	100 lbs.
	Linseed Oil Meal	50 lbs.
	Bran	100 lbs.

Do not feed heating, constipating feeds, such as barley, corn, rye or cottonseed meal, at freshening time.

Feed a warm bran mash immediately after freshening.

Farm Machinery — Care of Tools and Implements

Proper Care Will Increase Machinery Life

The care of a farm machine for the most part consists of three items: 1, protecting the machine from effects of exposure to weather, or Housing; 2, protecting the working parts from wear, or Lubrication; and 3, adjusting or replacing parts subject to wear, or systematic Repair.

Lubrication

Adequate lubrication consists of having a lubricant of sufficient body and quality to keep the surfaces separated. Some method of application is required that will ensure a supply of lubricant at all times, and provision to retain the lubricant and exclude the dirt and grit.

Repair of Farm Machines

A study of the care of farm machine repairs indicates that more machines are discarded before the end of their useful life through a failure to repair than any other cause. When you are repairing machinery, oil or grease the working parts and paint the wooden and fixed metal parts. Have a plan, indicate and do repairs to two or three machines per month. This method will assist in spreading the cost of parts and labor.

Housing

There are many parts of farm machines subject to rapid corrosion or deterioration when exposed to heat and rain. Housing is generally conceded to be important, although oiling and painting may offer protection to a steel machine. Many different designs of implement sheds are offered by Agricultural Colleges; however the best plan is one which includes a workshop in combination with an implement shed. A serviceable workshop (when heated) may be built from timber used in old log cabins or discarded buildings. Do not leave costly machines outside; drive them onto the barn floor, as a last resort. Electricity enables one to work on repairs during those short winter days.

How to Reduce Costs

First way is to extend the annual use of the machine and the other is to lengthen the life of the machine. In general, farm machines do not wear out — they rust or rot.

Insurance

Have you adequate protection (at least 75%) through insurance in case of loss through fire, etc.?

Tools

Select carefully those tools which you require. Use tools for the jobs for which they were designed. Clean and oil all tools after using them. Tool racks and cabinets are aids in prolonging the life of tools and are labour saving devices. The old Scottish saying, "A place for everything and everything in its place", has considerable merit.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

"Harvest Gold" — McColl Frontenac.

Definitions

Deterioration — To make or grow worse.

Depreciate — To diminish in value.

Explanation — A new machine costs $300. Its serviceable life is estimated at 10 years, when its junk value is $30. Annual depreciation is $300 minus $30 divided by 10, which equals $27 annual depreciation. Depreciation is also expressed as per cent, i.e., 100 divided by 10 equals 10%. Farm machinery may depreciate because it is out-of-date or out-moded; examples, steam tractors replaced by oil or gas-burning tractors.

A Poppy for Remembrance

THE LOCAL branches of the Canadian Legion are making their annual Poppy Day appeal. The Poppy Fund is now a recognized institution wherever the Canadian Legion exists in Canada and it serves a two-fold purpose of much merit. The money which is raised by the distribution of the Poppy — the symbol of sacrifice — is used entirely to relieve unusual distress among war veterans of the last war and the recent conflict, and their families. At all times it has been found that the veterans, in view of he fact that many of them have disabilities and handicaps, suffer even more than others who are out of employment, since many of them require special care which they are unable to provide. This is where the Poppy Fund, raised through the sale of Poppies by the Legion, steps in and provides relief for the situation.

There is another reason why every citizen should wear a Poppy for Remembrance Day. These Poppies are manufactured in the Vetcraft shops of Canada, workshops in which handicapped veterans are given sheltered employment, and in which they manufacture the hundreds of thousands of Poppies which are distributed every year at this time. By wearing a Poppy, citizens can find much satisfaction in knowing that they are helping these handicapped veterans to obtain a livelihood.

This two-fold appeal should find a ready response in the hearts and minds of the people of this community, which has always been ready to make the way easier for those of its citizens who served in the Great War and in this recent conflict. We commend it to your sympathetic consideration, in the hope that you will respond generously and thus help to hold the torch flung to you by those who did not come back.

A Word to the Wise

IT IS LATER than you think. The mercury is dropping in the back-porch thermometer — and it's high time you were dropping into the nearest department store to get a line on your Christmas gifts.

That astronomical figure of shopping days before Christmas that some wag was quoting last July, has shrunk to the point where a little over-all planning is called for. Unless, of course, you care to risk life and limb in the last-week scramble for the meagre left-overs from which the tardy customer must choose.

There is variety enough for the provident shopper. Shortages and strikes have not prevented the return to the market of many fabulous items that many of the youngsters have never seen and their older brothers and sisters can barely remember. Imported electric trains, newer and shinier than ever, electric mixers for the harried housewife, and electric razors, are available — if you hurry — and a little research may even uncover a man's shirt or a few pairs of nylons.

Turning from the nylon to the ridiculous, mechanical toys for sub-electric-train-age children — and this includes about all of them but father — are back this year. Little men that play unlikely-looking musical instruments and dance complicated fandangos atop musical boxes, vie with dolls' diapers and "little genius" tool sets on the toy counters.

There's candy to be considered — the long, luscious red-and-white peppermint canes that look so tempting hanging amid the lights and tinsel of a Christmas tree.

And of course, they have been busy again designing neck-ties even more hideous than the ones you were given last Christmas. But if you tell your wife to do her Christmas shopping early, maybe she'll pick out a neck-tie left over from the summer trade — and then it will be a Merry Christmas.

UNIVERSITY of California scientists are said to have developed a chemical which can regulate the size of an animal. Farmers will be among the first customers, so they can fatten up their stock on record time.

IT IS APPARENT that if rural students are to receive anything close to the same standard of instruction, and to work with facilities on a near-level with students in cities, responsible bodies will need to work out an entirely different plan of school financing than that of a tax on real property. — Minnedosa (Man.) Tribune

The Public Taste

THE PUBLIC taste in newspapers these days has drawn a factual comment from the Ottawa Journal. It is remarked that the London News of the World, a weekly which "deals with life's lights and shadows, but mainly its shadows", has attained a circulation of more than 7,000,000 — the largest circulation of any newspaper in history.

Here is food for thought, states the editorial. People tell us continually that newspapers go in too much for triviality, that they would be liked better and read more widely of they stressed politics, literature, art, philosophy. We wonder what such complainants have to say to this repartee of the News of the World, with its 7,000,000 readers? For the News of the World isn't much concerned with politics, literature, art and philosophy. Lord Riddell (so created by Lloyd George) gave it its real start in life by noting shrewdly that it was, as somebody said, "sex o'clock", and that more people were more interested in what went on in the divorce courts than before the Privy Council. The News of the World became the organ of what the intellectuals called the "proletariat".

The fact is that there are vastly more people who want "entertainment" in their newspapers than there are of those who demand serious reading prepared by thoughtful persons. And if most of our newspapers have played down crime and sex, and have spent great sums in bringing people world news that is important, it is not because of wide support from the public.

Western Freight Rates

ONE OF THE most hopeful signs in Western Canada is the attitude of the press towards the application of the railways for higher rates — comments our Ottawa philosopher, R. J. Deachman. Western Canada knows that if this application goes through it will be more harmful to Western Canada than to any other section of the country. The West has the long freight haul. The Maritime Provinces and the Province of Ontario have water communication, so has British Columbia. This, to some extent, determines freight rates, though shipment by water will probably be held up for some time to come. You can't smash the shipping of the world by war and have a return to normal rates in twenty-four hours.

But the West is treating the question sanely (continues the writer); there is a desire to find out the facts. An article appearing recently in the Weyburn Review stated as follows:

"We all remember when the Canadian National system was registering deficits every year that had to be met by the Dominion as a whole, and when the Canadian Pacific was passing its dividends. No person in his senses would want to see the two great systems revert to that sort of thing. But at the same time there is a feeling that Western Canada is being penalized. The present is a mighty good time to revise the whole structure."

All this is to the good. What we need in this country is the wisdom which will face our problems without hysterics, with common sense and a willingness to realize that proper balance is absolutely necessary to our economic life — that is, if we are to have a prosperous country.

WE HAVE SHIED away from offering suggestions or discussing school matters with the teachers and the members of the school boards, when actually this would have been of great help to all concerned. It seems that the only time we approach the schools is when we have a complaint or a grievance and then we approach them in a bad mood.

Treating Pupils As Individuals

By F. H. J. ROYAL

(A series of articles on "Guidance", an endeavor which has recently been introduced into the Lachute High School. Some of the credit for these articles must be given the "School Guidance Worker" published by the Vocational Guidance Centre, Toronto, and the booklet, "Treating Pupils as Individuals", by the Illinois Association of School Boards.)

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE ?

With the seven viewpoints in mind regarding the nature of the guidance program in the school system, it is well to take the next step of examining a particular school organization to see who should be responsible for the program. This varies according to size of the school and nature of the community, but can be defined fairly well by examining the function of various kinds of people in the school organization.

The Administration

The superintendent, principal and other administrative assistants in smaller systems become key persons in carrying on an important part of the guidance program. In other instances they become resource people to be called on for statements of policy and for action with respect to special types of cases. In all instances the administrative officers must provide a sympathetic understanding of the student-guidance work. They must also exercise initiative in promoting and extending this service. Without such initiative and sympathetic understanding, it is impossible to organize any guidance program. This takes for granted, therefore, that everyone in the school system has a part to play but that administrators are in a peculiar key position in that they can make or break the program of the school which aims to take care of individual needs.

At this point also it must be remembered that the school board members, as a phase of their responsibility for all administration, must have a constructive point of view, a sympathetic understanding and knowledge of the guidance program in the school or schools for which they are responsible. They must help to provide the facilities, finance, and personnel required.

Faculty

All teachers have a part to play in the guidance program. It is felt that this bears repetition in defining who is responsible for carrying on the guidance program. Teachers must be something more than subject teachers. They must be guidance minded. If they are they will recognize that they are teaching individuals and in so doing will adapt the subject to the individual needs and pecularities of each student. It means that all teachers assume a responsibility in understanding insofar as possible the home life of each student in the room. When this is done they become better teachers; at the same time, they are more efficient guidance workers.

The good teacher knows his subject field, but, in addition knows how to treat individual needs of students as they arise, which, in many cases, involves referral to other people in the school who are resource persons and able to take care of special needs not formerly considered a phase of the work of the subject teacher. In this connection it is urged that in-service training programs be instituted for those teachers who have had little training in the place and function of guidance in the school system. There are the basic considerations which might very well be discussed at a series of well-planned faculty meetings for in-service training purposes.

It must, therefore, be recognized that the responsibility of each teacher in the adequate functioning of a guidance program is extremely important and no school board member should feel that he has fully provided for such a program in the school when he has voted for the assignment of one special person who has special responsibilities in the field of guidance. If all teachers do not recognize their part in a guidance program, one added person on the staff can do little to make it function.

Specially trained personnel is desirable to provide services beyond those available through teachers. In many instances certain subject teachers could be so trained. In all cases the problems involved in keeping of adequate records go beyond what can be accomplished by subject teachers. The psychological testing program, likewise needs of students with respect to physical, social and vocational adjustments — it again becomes evident that trained counselors are needed in all schools.

Emphasis should be made on the part of the administration which sets up a procedure whereby subject or room teachers use these specialists. This should be done in order to avoid the tendency on the part of some regular teachers to ignore special services and attempt to handle cases themselves that really require the services of the assigned counselors.

These counselors must be trained to carry on their responsibilities. In some cases, they may teach several classes and be assigned to the guidance work the remainder of the day. In other cases they may devote most or full time to the responsibilities involved in the guidance work. In many instances, also, certain subject teachers who meet the qualifications through training and experience to carry on these special functions may be reassigned to this kind of work and relieved of some of the subject classes.

It becomes evident from the above that it is necessary to evaluate each school and to determine what constitutes the best kind of guidance organization within that school. Everyone is a part of it, from the nursery school or kindergarten teacher, the principal, to each member of the school board and to each member of the student body. Each has a part to play, but the part varies because of the size of the school, the needs of the community or rural area, and the financial and building facilities provided.

It is good forest practice to cut mature timber stands. Such stands show little new growth and disease reduces the value of the timber.

OBITUARY

Late Chas. Wales Highly Esteemed In St. Andrews E.

St. Andrews East — Funeral service for the late Charles Stowe Wales was held Tuesday afternoon, November 5, at the United Church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. S. Nickerson.

Paying tribute to the just, kindly and faithful dealings of the departed, the preacher took as his text, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." The large gathering of relatives, neighbors and friends evidenced the esteem in which the late Mr. Wales, a native and lifelong resident, was held in this community.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Albert Dorion, Stanley Rodger, Douglas Rodger, L. M. Hooker, Clarence Brown and Ross MacAdam.

Mr. Wales' death, which occurred unexpectedly on Saturday, November 2, at the Montreal General Hospital, came as a great shock to his family and the community. He had always enjoyed good health and seemed to be recovering satisfactorily from a recent operation. He was 67 years old.

The late Mr. Wales was a director of the Protestant Cemetery Corporation and had served for many years as chairman of the Protestant Consolidated School Board. He was an elder of the United Church and a member of the choir.

His wife, formerly Miss Mabel Bishop, of Bishop's Crossing, Que., predeceased him in April, 1937; also his sister, Miss Hattie Wales, several years ago. The chief mourners are his daughters, Misses Elizabeth and Freda Wales, Mrs. D. Shugar and Mrs. L. Roback; two granddaughters, children of Mr. and Mrs. Roback; and his sister, Mrs. Harold Cairns and Mr. Cairns, who was associated with him in business. The C. T. Wales & Sons general store is a veritable landmark of this village.

The Rev. Nickerson conducted the interment service at the family plot in the local Protestant Cemetery.

The race advances only by the extra achievements of the individual. You are the individual.

Thanks of the teacher and pupils are extended to all who supported this effort.

How Big Is A Farm ?

Sounds like a silly question, doesn't it? Farms are all sorts of sizes. But a farm is only as big as its production.

Take a look around you. Ask yourself whether any of these things could make money for you by increased production — in other words, make your farm a bigger farm . . new improved implements or equipment; new livestock to build up your herd; new buildings, repairs or extensions; a new electrical system; light, heat or water systems; electrical aids such as cream separator, refrigeration pumps, motors, milking machines, etc.

But all of these things cost money, you might well say. So they do, but that is where the Bank of Montreal comes in. It is the Bank's business to lend money where money will make money.

Money wisely borrowed at the right time has made many of Canada's small farmers big farmers.

Eric Hibbard, manager of the Bank of Montreal, knows a lot about the farmer's problems. He is eager to help you get your full share of the rewards that lie in increased agricultural production. He makes loans in as simple a manner as the general storekeeper sells his wares.

Every Veteran

...should answer these questions:

"What is MOST important in my future?" SECURITY, perhaps you would say? You have won the right to plan your future! Plan it with life insurance . . . the strongest force to assure continuation of your present security . . . for yourself . . . for your loved ones . . . in the years ahead!

"Does it matter WHICH life insurance company I choose?" Yes! Life insurance companies are much alike as to policies and rates, but actual long-term results vary widely. We invite you to compare The Mutual Life of Canada's record with that of any other company.

Evidence of the satisfaction of our policyholders is furnished by the fact that whole families and succeeding generations have entrusted their life insurance programs exclusively to The Mutual Life of Canada, and each year approximately 35% of its new business comes from policyholders. Ask your Mutual Life representative to explain the special features of this Company.

50 YEARS A PAPERMAKER

AT 71, Ed Shultz is as keen a paper maker as any of them. He has been running paper machines in the same mill at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, since 1912, longer than any other man in the plant. In fact he started to work in the pulp and paper industry before the end of the last century. Few can boast a longer record of service or a longer membership in the Brotherhood of Paper Makers. "Old Ed", as he is called to distinguish him from his son who works in the same mill, is really "one of us". He is a fine, upstanding citizen-worker, truly representative of a great industry and of the men who made it great.

Though he is an ardent fisherman and baseball fan, Ed considers paper making his real hobby and takes great pride in his work. He is proud too of his fine family of nine, five daughters and four sons, but glories particularly in the fact that three of his boys saw active service in World War II.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

W.M.S. of St. Andrews E. Presbyterian Church

St. Andrews East — The W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church held their meeting on October 30 at the home of Mrs. Charles Hyde. The president, Miss E. Walsh, was in the chair. Mrs. Webster conducted the devotional period, and Mrs. W. Y. King led in prayer.

Following the usual business period, Mrs. Westnidge, who spent 2½ years in an internment camp in Shanghai, China, recounted some of her experiences there. Through all her discomforts she had felt the presence of Christ her Saviour and Protector, she avowed; He had never failed her nor forsaken her, and had brought her through without the permanent injury to her health which so many are still suffering.

Mrs. Charles Hyde was presented with a life membership in the W.M.S. by Mrs. J. A. Bradley, to which she made a fitting response.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served tea, giving all an opportunity to meet and visit with Mrs. Westnidge and Mrs. W. Y. King, their guests.

Voice Protest on Electricity Service In St. Andrews E.

St. Andrews East — At a meeting of the council of St. Andrews East on Monday night last, one of the main items was presentation of a petition signed by 75 residents, protesting the continued bad service provided by the Gatineau Power Company.

In a discussion which took place, the farmers present admitted that they found difficulty in operating their milking machines and other equipment bought with the purpose of using electric power. The school board had equipped the school with an oil-burner that needed electric power and it was observed some houses were also using this type of furnace. The Mayor stated he was having difficulty with his electric refrigerator equipment in keeping meat and other food stores.

A small manufacturer stressed that the council should realize the whole community was suffering; he claimed that after checking other communities, the service here was very much worse than he himself had ever encountered before, and no other community in the zone of other larger power companies was apparently on as bad a footing as those serviced by the utility company here.

The council passed a resolution to be sent to the Gatineau Power Company and other sources, and it was agreed unanimously that the matter should be followed up by every means in the power of the people. . . The resolution follows:

"That the Council of St. Andrews East hereby joins with those residents who have emphatically protested the frequent interruptions of the electric light service provided by the Gatineau Power Company, and hereby requests that Company to take immediate steps to provide an adequate service for the farmers and residents of the community who have installed electric milking machines and oil-furnaces, etc., which have need of constant electric power to operate them."

Wedding in Saskatchewan Of Local Interest

Holmes - Funk

A quiet wedding took place in the United Church manse at Speers, when the Rev. J. Ludford united in marriage Annie Margaret Funk, youngest daughter of Mrs. Augusta Funk and the late Mr. F. Funk, of Hensall, Ont., to Harold Holmes, eldest son of Mrs. Jessie Holmes and the late Mr. G. Holmes, of Speers, Sask.

The bride wore a blue crepe dress with matching hat, with white accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. She was attended by Ethel Holmes, sister of the groom, who wore a pink dress and brown accessories, with a corsage of red roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Archie McDonald, of Richard, Sask., as best man.

A reception was held at the home of Mrs. Jessie Holmes, mother of the groom, and in the evening a dance was held in the Speers Hall.

The newlywed couple will reside on the farm northwest of Speers, Sask.

Remembrance

"Come that thunderous dawn and zero hour! It was the memorable dawn that was to link forever Canada and Vimy Ridge — a flaming murderous dawn that leaped from the dark and seemed to rip the universe asunder.

The great advance was on! Men swung 'over the top' and fanned forward into that raging inferno, into the very core of that rising crescendo of destruction. . .

Two figures stood etched against that red dawn: a battalion commander and a private by his side. Suddenly a blistering hail of death spurted their way. But swifter still was the leap of that buck private, to shield the body of his commander with his own.

'Why did you do it —why, why?' reiterated the officer as he held his horribly mangled savior there in no man's land.

'Because good colonels are mighty hard to find', whispered the other, before merciful unconsciousness overtook him. . . .

He died the other day in one of our great military hospitals. And as he witnessed the piling up of war clouds athwart the world horizon, it must have occurred to him that good colonels, in peace as in war, are still hard to find".

Thoughts on Remembrance Day

Far away there's voices calling,
Phantom notes on my heart are falling
And shadows of the past they roll away.

Then my children are around me,
Little voices glad and free,
And I listen with sweet rapture in my heart.

But I wake with bitter pain
As I realize once again
That there's one of them I'll see on earth no more.

In a land beyond the sea
There's a plot just six-by-three,
But my heart and all my hopes are buried there.

For it holds my only son,
He whose life had scarce begun
When he volunteered to fight and marched away.

Where the poppies blow and nod
He is one with foreign sod,
And in dreams I often wander to his grave.

Then my eyes with tears grow dim
But I'm, oh, so proud of him,
For his name is with the honored of the land.

Modern Addition to Namur Int. School

Dr. Percival's Address

It is my pleasant duty this afternoon to convey the greetings of the provincial Department of Education to the chairman and members of the School Board and to the Protestant tax payers of the municipality at the official opening of this new addition to the Namur Intermediate School.

Thanks to the generous grant received from the Provincial Government it has been possible to add two classrooms, a basement, a new furnace and new toilet facilities and to remodel the old school building so as to make it more suitable for our present-day requirements. The old school with only two classrooms could not accommodate all the pupils of Namur, but the present extension provides room not only for all the Protestant pupils of Namur but for the children of St. Valerie de Ponsonby, who are being conveyed here by bus and will during the winter months be transported by a thirty-passenger snowmobile for which the most formidable snowdrifts will be no impediment.

The education of Protestant children in this vicinity traces its history back to the common school board erected for the old Suffolk municipality in the pioneer period of the eighteen-seventies. On the ten acres where work was started three-quarters of a century ago there now stand the church, the school and the manse with its dormitory facilities, and it is hoped there will ultimately be added a community hall. Since its erection in 1935 the Board of Protestant School Commissioners for the municipality of Namur has labored to consolidate and extend the educational facilities of earlier days, and the rapid completion of this new addition to your school building marks what is so far the most important achievement to the credit of the municipality.

The primary objective in planning a new school building or in remodelling an old building is to provide adequate facilities for growth and development in a healthful environment. It is not enough to insist upon architectural style and structural impressiveness. . . . Functional planning includes not only the provision of the required rooms economically arranged but extends to proper lighting, proper heating, proper ventilation, and the use of proper materials for various parts of the building so as to provide a safe, sanitary, and easily maintained structure. Your school board is to be congratulated on having secured the attainment of this primary objective. You have borne in mind that the most essential consideration in planning the school plant is the child. Who is he? Where will he live and work? What needs must be met by the environment in which we install him? First we must place him where he can do individual academic work. Sitting at his desk or at his movable chair, which is the modern substitute for the old fashioned desk, he needs abundant shadowless light in any position and should be able to adjust his position in several relations to the other pupils in the room. The room must also be adapted so that the children can work happily together as a compact group when they are listening to a story or planning a project or engaged in some other activity not as a number of isolated individuals but as a closely united little assembly. The ideal school will provide yet another kind of special accommodation — it will have a place for the individual child to busy himself with his own projects without disturbing or being disturbed by his fellow pupils, who are perhaps happily absorbed in some totally different enterprise. This ideal stage has not, of course, yet been reached, but before very long I think we shall reach it.

You will forgive me if I do not limit my remarks this afternoon to mere felicitation. A modern school building is a fine thing, but it is a fine thing only to the extent that it is used in the proper way and for the proper purposes. In congratulating you upon what you have done, I have stressed the value of such a building for conserving the health of your children and protecting their physical welfare, without which mere mental development is but a snare and delusion. Teachers and administrators must be ever on the lookout for correcting undesirable conditions as they reveal themselves, whether it be in regard to lighting, sanitation, seating, relaxation or eating. The provision of proper handwashing facilities, for example, is a matter requiring constant vigilance. Reducing dust and litter and keeping the school clean and attractive is a cooperative enterprise that should form part of the health education program in every school. Good posture is impossible unless the right kind of furniture is adjusted to the needs of individual pupils. To cope with the requirements of children from a distance, the teacher must be a dietitian, cook, and health educator all in one if the school lunch is to make its contribution to healthful living. And ideally the pupils and the staff and the school board and the whole community should constantly be on the watch for any undesirable physical conditions in the school environment or for any needs of any of the children that are not being adequately filled. Our aim must be to promote healthful school living; by that we mean the provision of a wholesome environment, the organization of a healthful school day, and lishment of such a relation between teachers and pupils as will make a safe and sanitary school, favorable to the best development and living of the entire school population.

And now, Mr. Chairman, may I again congratulate the school commissioners of Namur, Mr. Perry, the architect, and all those who have shared in the responsibility for increasing the capacity and usefulness of this building and for extending the educational opportunities of those who are to spend within it the most critical years of their lives.

The Story of Brownsburg

By M. V. TRAYERS

PREFACE (Continued)

There was rejoicing at Quebec when the steamer Royal William, which was built there, crossed the Atlantic Ocean from Pictou in Nova Scotia to England. Montreal became incorporated as a city and the Bank of Nova Scotia first opened for business. . .

John MacDonald came to Brownsburg in 1836, and the following year the first railway in Canada was opened, from Laprairie to St. John's. About this time, too, gas lighting was first used in Montreal. Lord Durham, the Governor in Chief in Canada, was censured in the English parliament and resigned. The Act of Union was passed in 1840 and Kingston was made the capital. Four years later the capital was changed to Montreal.

We have no record of events in Brownsburg during this period, nor until 1845, when the McGibbon name began to appear. Alexander McGibbon married Jane Brown, daughter of the founder of this village, in that year. He was appointed postmaster nine years later. During the intervening years there was rioting in Montreal and the Parliament Buildings were burned there. The year 1851 saw the introduction of the uniform postage rate; in that year also, postage stamps were first issued.

In 1854 the name BROWNSBURG was officially adopted as the name of the village when the post-office was first opened under charge of Alexander McGibbon, as already stated. The MacNab-Morin ministry were in office at the time. Ottawa was incorporated as a city, and the Grand Trunk Railway from Montreal to Toronto was opened. It was also the period when the J. A. Macdonald-Cartier administration came into office — the birth of the Conservative Party. They joined with the leaders of the Moderate Liberals, Baldwin and Lafontaine, to form the Liberal-Conservative party under J. A. Macdonald. Queen Victoria came on a royal visit to Canada, and in the course of the royal tour Her Majesty selected Ottawa as the future capital of Canada.

Others of the group attended as visitors clad in frightening garb and well disguised. At the close, refreshments were served. Future meetings will be held on Tuesday evenings.

'Upper Crust' Pies Now Out of Fashion

Socially speaking, the "upper crust" refers to folks who imagine themselves superior to others, and the expression has become synonymous with "high quality". The "upper crust" referred to here by the Consumer Section's home economists, however, implies the "high quality" top covering of a well-made pie.

In pie language, the upper crust may be out of fashion nowadays with fats still scarce, but the bottom crust can still be of top quality, tender, crisp and good enough to eat to the last crumb.

To prevent the bottom crust from becoming soggy and tough when baking an uncooked filling such as a custard, the Consumer Section suggests pre-cooking the crust for ten minutes before adding the custard, then baking the pie at a moderate temperature until the custard is set. With fruit pies, the illusion of an upper crust can be given by using the trimmings of dough and criss-crossing them over the filling.

The fillings for both the lemon cream pie and the chocolate topped pie, may be served as desserts instead of being used to make one crust pies.

Chocolate Topped Pie

1 Baked 9" pie shell, 1½ cups milk, 1 enpelope plain unflavored gelatine (1 tbsp.), ¼ cup cold water, 2 eggs, ⅓ cup granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg (optional), ½ teaspoon vanilla extract, 2 tablespoons grated chocolate.

Scald milk in top of double-boiler. Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Beat egg yolks with sugar, salt and nutmeg if used. Add milk gradually then cook in top of double-boiler until thickened, about 10 minutes. Remove and stir in gelatine and vanilla. Chill until partially set. Then beat with rotary beater and add to stiffy beaten egg whites. Pour into the baked pie shell and sprinkle with the grated chocolate. Chill until set.

Lemon Cream Pie

⅓ Cup sugar; 2½ tablespoons cornstarch or 5 tablespoons all-purpose flour; ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups milk, 2 egg yolks well beaten, ¼ cup lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 baked 9-inch pie shell, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Combine sugar, cornstarch, or flour, salt, milk, and beaten egg yolks and cook in top of double boiler until thick, stirring frequently. Add lemon juice and rind. Cool custard slightly. Fill baked pie shell. Top with a meringue made from the 2 egg whites and 2 tablespoons sugar, and brown in a moderate oven 325°F. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

Butterscotch Apple Pie

¼ Cup brown sugar, 1 deep uncooked 9" pie shell, 6 to 8 medium apples, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon mild-flavored fat, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk.

Sprinkle ¼ cup brown sugar over the bottom of the uncooked pie shell. Peel apples and slice thinly, fill the pie shell, heaping apples slightly in the centre. Cream 3 tablespoons brown sugar with the fats and the flour until well blended. Crumble the mixture over the top of the apples. Pour the milk into the pie and bake in a hot oven, 400°F., until top is brown and apples are tender, about 45 minutes. Cool and serve.

Poppy Production Full-Time Job for Disabled Veterans

By DOUG SMITH

That little red poppy which makes its annual debut on November 11th, that little flower of lacquered muslin and silk, has an intriguing background.

Manufactured in Montreal and Toronto at Vetcraft shops, the work is done by the skilled hands of disabled veterans who are unable through their disabilities to compete on the commercial market. Some work in the shops while others too handicapped to leave their homes do the job propped up in bed.

A simple looking thing that poppy, but each individual one is shaped and produced by skilled workmen.

Said one old sweat of nigh three score years, "There was a time when I hated the sight of that Flanders poppy, we saw 'em when they were real, but to us they represented a graveyard flower. Now, bless 'em, they are the means of my livelihood."

And this is true. To quite a number of ex-servicemen this is the only form of income. The horrors of war reach far into the years and the body and brain of man can stand only so much punishment.

Many of the veterans discharged, apparently physically fit in 1910, began to crack up in later years. That Jerrie "whiz bang" which exploded so close to Mons; it didn't seem to do much damage then. Those nights of sleeping in bone-chilling mud, a tot of rum seemed to fix things up at the time. But as time and age crept on, it took its toll. It wasn't a thing that one could pin down and prove for a pension, but it was there just the same.

And so in 1923 under the Soldiers Civil Re-establishment set-up the first Veteraft shop bloomed and blossomed forth poppies, so that the people of Canada could contribute and help these men and their dependents.

During the depression years the demand upon the Canadian Legion from destitute veteran families for assistance became terrific. The sale of poppies in these trying 30's naturally suffered, but somehow the Legion carried on and many a family managed to see it through thanks to the Poppy Fund.

During the war years the Vetcraft plants found that they too were caught in the shortage of material. Precious rubber used for our mechanized armies became unobtainable and so the windshield poppy which depended on a rubber suction centre disappeared. Now things are brightening up and this year the familiar large poppy will be found on thousands of auto windows throughout Canada.

The stamen centre of the small poppy which was purchased exclusively in Czechoslovakia disappeared when the brittle concrete heel of the Nazis invaded that country. The Vetcraft switched to using green fibre, solving thereby that problem.

Lycopodium which is similar to twitch grass faded from the market and so nothing daunted, the veterans switched to using magnolia leaves imported from Florida. This year a limited quantity of of lycopodium is showing up again and it serves to make a more attractive looking wreath.

The metal shortage presented a grave problem because the wreaths were based on wire rings, but again they came up with a specially made wooden ring and the work was carried on.

"It was tough going," said T. E. "Tommy" Smart, foreman of the Vetcraft plant on Munro Street in Toronto, and who has been supervising and making poppies for 13 years.

Greatest thrill that the workers in the Toronto shop got was in the making of a special wreath for the King and Queen during their visit to Canada in 1939. Said Tommy, "Everybody in the shop had a hand in it and it was made especially from oak leaves which is the way they make them in Great Britain. We were certainly proud of that one." And so that its memory may linger for posterity, a large colored photograph of the wreath hangs in a frame in a place of honor in their office.

In the Montreal factory on Pine Street West P. J. Bush, who hails 72 active years and is affectionately known by the veterans as "P.J.", has been supervising the job for 16 years. Belying his age P. J. said, "I get down here every day, summer and winter, and I hope to keep on doing so, but just in case one of these days I'm not able to make it," and he shrugged his broad shoulders suggestively, "I have with me a young fellow that I breaking in, and he'll carry on."

Appreciating that the cost of living has risen considerably the veterans in both plants were recently given an increase in wages.

Meantime the plants maintain their all year round schedule and while all the orders are filled for the 1946 delivery, they are now busy making others for 1947. In 1945 nearly 4,500,000 poppies were sold; this year in anticipation of still greater sales, they have stepped up production by twenty per cent.

Operated under the supervision of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, the Vetcraft shops play a large part in maintaining needy cases. The Canadian Legion while undertaking no responsibility in the financing of these shops nevertheless has been entrusted with the business end of poppy sales. The sales of these poppies go only towards taking care of those destitute, irrespective of whether they are Legion members or not, and all work is voluntary in this respect, without any remuneration.

O Canada!

Some British girls who came to Canada as war brides are returning, bitterly disappointed, to the other side of the Atlantic. Plain incompatibility is the reason some of the marriages have gone on the rocks, while others have been wrecked by homesickness and by our well-known housing shortage.

In still other cases, the attractions of our fair Dominion were over-sold by love-smitten servicemen, whose partners, on arrival, found themselves in surroundings which did not tally with their dreams. As an instance of this a correspondent writes us about two London-bred war brides who paused briefly at the railway divisional point, one of Canada's larger, more prosperous and most pleasant communities. They had to wait there for a bus to a bleak, windswept fishing village. As they swung aboard the bus, one of them remarked, "Thank heaven we're going to Blankville, and don't have to remain in a God-forsaken little hole like this." The Printed Word

Dunne Preparing For Bright Season At Lachute Arena

ORGANIZING HOCKEY AND COMPILING ANNUAL PUBLICATION

It is stated by John H. Dunne of the Lachute Arena that he will call a meeting shortly for the purpose of re-organizing the Laurentian Hockey League. The Belle Riviere squad were declared champions last year, and they also have one leg up on the McColl Frontenac Trophy. The St. Jerome Army club have naturally retired, but a few other towns are anxious to replace them in this circuit. Next week's Watchman will give further details pertaining to this league.

Ayers Ltd. Inter-Departmental League were the first organization to enter contract with the Arena for this season. They will play every Sunday afternoon, and will feature a "dimanche après-midi" double-header. An enterprising committee, headed by Mr. Thomas Ayers, expect the fullest support from the employees of this, the largest industry in these parts, and also from all other sports enthusiasts.

The Arena Booklet

The second Lachute Arena Annual should be ready around the first week of December, and John Dunne promises one of the best brochures ever associated with sports in this area. There will be included sports articles from the leading Montreal English and French sport editors; a bilingual supplementary directory of all advertisers; a calendar; a past history of one of the oldest closed rink sites in Canada, and many other features.

Advertising requests from Lachute and Brownsburg industries, trades and retail establishments have met with close to 100% approval. To all present advertisers, John Dunne takes this first opportunity to publicly thank them for their support, and trusts that any would-be advertiser who has been overlooked will be contacted by the Arena in the near future.

'Prelude to Strong Man'-- Speaker Points to Threat on Democratic Way

Attributing Higher Standard of Living to Strikes and Unions, Is Branded Fallacy; Barrister Gives Thought-Provoking Talk

Brownsburg — At their regular weekly meeting, November 7, at the Carriere Hotel, the Rotary Club of Brownsburg were treated to an interesting and thought provoking talk entitled "Prelude to the Strong Man" by Mr. Archie MacDonald, well known Montreal barrister. President Harris Sherwood was in the chair.

The speaker dealt with the various problems existing today in Canada, including labor-management disputes, rising cost of living, the housing crisis, and crime, all of which are slowly and inexorably driving us toward disorder and chaos unless good leadership is forthcoming. The day is not far distant if we proceed at our present pace, wherein the cry will go up for "a strong man to take over".

"We have not been vigilant", said the speaker, "we have been too quick to say 'Let George do it' or 'What can I do?' or 'Things are not too bad, why get all worked up about the problem of life; everything will turn out all right.' And thus we have strikes, because few have had the intelligence to realize where strikes are leading us and no one the courage to tell labor the truth". Strikes result in the upward spiralling of prices, with losses for everyone and gains for no one.

Labor leaders, some in the best of faith, point to the improved standard of living of the worker today as evidence of the value of strikes and unionism. This is a fallacy. The increase in real wages is due to increased production of goods and services, which have been brought about through technological improvements by man's inventive genius. This results in a rise in the standard of living of about 2% per annum. This is a fact that every worker must come to realize if we are to achieve a reasonable prosperity. "The greatest enemies of the worker", said the speaker, "are not shortsighted employers, of whom there are unfortunately too many, but the political hack and the union rabble-rouser who refuses to disclose the true picture."

"This country", continued the speaker, "with a relatively few people stretched over an area of thousands of miles, is the most over-governed country on the face of the earth. Two legislative bodies at Ottawa, one in each of the provinces, with one province having two — and having more commissions to the square inch than sands on the seashore — we have developed bureaucratic red tape to a fine art. Our civil service was tremendously over-staffed during the war, and while we all hoped that with the cessation of hostilities there would be a reduction, we are told that while there have been some transfers there will be no reduction but rather an increase in some departments. The people not only have to bear the cost of such inefficient over-governing, but also the additional cost of graft and other forms of dishonesty — the speaker asserted.

Our democratic way of life is dependent upon the party system of government. No better form of government has yet been devised, and there is no form of government more capable of reflecting the public will. At the present time, we observe in Europe the lines are rapidly being drawn between Christian and other quasi-religious parties on the one hand, and communist on the other. If we do not want these conditions to arise in Canada, all of us must take a greater interest in the choice of our government. The right to choose our rulers was won at the cost of centuries of struggle and if we are gradually losing that right, where does the blame lie?

Bilingual Flavor, Remembrance Day At St. Andrews E.

(Our District Correspondent)

St. Andrews East — Remembrance Day was observed here by a memorial service in front of the post-office, where the memorial plaque is hung. Pupils of the French School and the Protestant Consolidated School attended in a body with their teachers.

The Rev. J. S. Nickerson called the meeting to order, speaking in both French and English. A verse of "O Canada" was sung in English and French. Prayer was then offered by the Rev. Father Dulude in French, and the Rev. Dr. Wm MacMillan followed with prayer in English. A short talk in the French tongue was given by Father Dulude, followed by a brief discourse in English on the theme "Lest We Forget" by the Rev. Mr. Nickerson. Then followed the reading of the roll of honor and observance of two minutes' silence.

After the singing of "God Save the King", the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Father Cloutier.

Church Has Cure For World's Ills, Claims Canon

MISSION WEEK IN PARISH OF ST. SIMEON'S

The church was well filled for the first service of the Mission at St. Simeon's on Sunday morning. The Missioner, the Rev. Canon Powles, opened his series of addresses with reference to the world and universe in which we live, showing the beauty of the Creation Story and the truth enshrined in it of the ultimate goodness of Creation. "God saw that it was very good." He referred to the statement of the late Sir James Jeans, that we could look out into space now with our instruments a distance of 30 million light-years. Any school-boy could multiply out how far that is. It gives one at least a conception of the grandeur and size of God's creation. He referred also to the minuteness of Creation now brought under our observation in a new form in the study and use of nuclear energy, an absolutely new field of God's richness of creation. The operation of instinct also was discussed and the relation of man's intelligence and reason to the works of creation. Man was the crowning piece of God's creation, and God saw that it too was "very good."

The definition of man's goodness lies in his ability to work with God; but alas! how often he works for a little while with God and then, inflated with pride, he sets God aside and decides to work by himself, only to bring destruction upon himself. In his illustration the preacher referred to the statement, often made, that the next war would be a push-button war. This he stated would be illustrative of the way in which man treated his Creator. God became a "push-button" god, rather than a creator or fellow-worker. How many of us treated God in that way, when in stress of circumstances we thought we could push the button and summon God to our aid! Such was the littleness of our minds in interpreting the grandeur of God. Hence the need to revise our ideas and the methods of our religious life, if we wished to remain a co-partner with God. Anything less than being a co-partner with God was not consonant with God's dictum that His creation was very good.

Comrade Veterans, Dead and Living, Paid Homage in Remembrance Day Ceremonies

Large, Representative Gathering Attends; Wreaths Are Deposited at Cenotaph; Speeches Stress Post-War Obligations

If this community may be considered typical of cross-country sentiment, Armistice Day,"the eleventh day of the eleventh month" of the year, is assured in posterity as an annual occasion of tribute to the nation's fallen. Since the last World War there have been agitations to observe this celebration on D-Day, VE-Day or some other milestone in the more recent conflict. But November 11 is publicly accepted, and will publicly remain, the day of Remembrance and Resolve to steel men's hearts against the curse of war.

Argenteuil Legion No. 70, its ranks greatly increased by repatriated veterans, held the spotlight in Lachute's observances last Monday. Led by two Scots pipers of the Glengarry Highland Regiment, the members paraded from centre-town to the Auditorium. With their colors they proceeded into the hall, where a fair crowd of citizens took part in the order of service.

Alderman Alex Bothwell, pro-mayor, acted as chairman in the absence of Mayor Leopold Carriere. On the platform were members of the Protestant clergy, Georges H. Heon, K.C., M.P., and Philippe Valois, representing the Hon. Georges E. Dansereau, M.P.P. Guest speaker was Flt. Lieut. the Rev. Dr. McMillan, of Dunvegan, Ont., who spoke in straightforward terms of the meaning and obligations of this great day.

The chairman called for observance of the two minutes' silence, during which the audience stood with bowed heads in reverent remembrance.

The Revs. C. Maclean, C. R. Lang and Geo. T. Spriggs led the devotional sections of the program. The Rev. W. H. Britton, pastor of the Baptist Church, was also on the platform.

R. A. Giles, as chairman of the Poppy Fund campaign, spoke from the platform, thanking the public for their support in this canvass, and also the young ladies who had graciously given their services as vendors. The poppy emblems, he emphasized, were made by disabled veterans, and in some cases provided their sole means of livelihood. Proceeds above the purchase price of wreaths and poppies accrued to the local funds, and were used exclusively to aid veterans and their dependents in time of need, he stated.

Retiring from the hall, the Legion procession was joined by the Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs in uniform, flying the colors of their troops. They marched to the adjoining park and encircled the cenotaph, where children of Lachute High School and the St. Viateur College were assembled with their teachers. Girl Guides and Brownies, also in uniform, added to the colorful scene.

At the cenotaph Mr. Héon was called upon to address the juvenile members of the gathering, after which wreaths were deposited by representatives of local firms, organizations, churches and also on behalf of three local families who had suffered bereavement through the recent war.

In conclusion, the Dead March was played on the bagpipes, and the exercises closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Hope to Have Names Commemorated

During the course of his brief remarks, Chairman Alex Bothwell referred to the cenotaph in the Memorial Park, with its list of names commemorating the sacrifice of Argenteuil men in the first World War. He hoped that the names of fallen heroes of the more recent conflict, would be recorded on a suitable plaque, or possibly on the same monument, to preserve their memory in this comunity.

Guest Speaker

The Rev. Dr. McMillan in his discourse referred to the general opinion formed at the Canadian Legion convention, that November 11 should be retained as Remembrance or Armistice Day. . . The fact of the younger veterans conforming to this decision was significant, he said; it was paramount to regarding the two great wars as one conflict, for one purpose and ideal — which was indeed the case.

More than 100,000 Canadian warriors — nearly 63,000 in the first, and over 41,000 in the second war — were being revered in memory this day, in one manner or another, across the entire Dominion.

"How can we best honor our war dead?" the speaker asked. . . "He gave all that men can give —" reads the inscription on the tomb of the unknown soldier at Westminster Abbey. But there is another inscription — somewhere on the Rock of Gibraltar, dating back 250 years to the lifting of the siege.

"God and the soldier all men adore
In days of war, and then no more;
When war is over and all is righted
God is forgotten, the soldier slighted".

In his duties as a chaplain, the speaker had many times discussed with his men the plans for their rehabilitation. All were agreed that, if Canda's plan materialized,

Legionnaires Celebrate Armistice Date With Annual Banquet; 120 in Attendance

Speaker Narrates Prison Camp Experiences

Approximately 120 veterans of Legion Branch 70 gathered Saturday evening at the Auditorium for the annual Armistice banquet. In the absence of John MacKimmie, chairman of the committee, Wm. Blakely occupied the chair. A turkey supper was served in the downstairs hall — ladies of the Orange Order having charge of the catering.

Grace was said by Chas. L. Duncan, and after a toast to the King, all present stood for a moment in remembrance of their fallen comrades, to whom James Duncan paid fitting tribute.

Highlight of the program was a discourse by Capt. F. H. J. Royal, who told some of his experiences and observations as a prisoner of war at Hong Kong. (To Capt. Royal, now principal of Lachute High School, Legion Branch 70 expresses its appreciation for having made this talk possible on such an appropriate occasion.)

Among guests of the evening were Ward Moncrieff, acting-president of Brownsburg Legion Branch 71, and S. H. Stilwell, zone chairman of Provincial Command.

Following the supper, the gathering adjourned to the Auditorium for a social gathering and entertainment.

Capt. F. H. J. Royal, serving with the Royal Rifles of Canada, spent four years in internment at North Point Camp, Hong Kong. . . He opened his remarks with a quotation by Woodrow Wilson, expressing his difficulty in preparing this talk.

"We were hurried to Hong Kong, I believe, to get as far from the fighting as possible. . . There were two possible reasons for sending Seaforce to Hong Kong" continued the speaker, (Seaforce being the name given to this expedition). "One, was that it may have been an advance force intended to protect Hong Kong; two, that it may have been sent to call the Japs' bluff. . .

"Later we realized that we were on our own, as the sinking of the Prince of Wales and other large warships in that area made the fact apparent that we could expect no aid from the Navy", asserted the speaker, when mentioning some of the reverses suffered by the expedition.

Capt. Royal stated that when questioning Jap officers and Chinese at a later date they confirmed the fact that the Canadians, by their valiant stand, had inflicted casualties on the Japs at the rate of three to one. "However, December, 1941, brought the beginning of the end for us."

Regarding the food of the camp, Capt. Royal had this to say: "For the first month we had our own rations which weren't too bad, but after that we had rice and only rice — our food ration was 15 ounces a day — boiled rice for breakfast — rice cooked with greens for dinner — rice again for supper. The men complained at first that they were not receiving enough food, which was only natural. . . . The first rice we received was clean, then gradually it became dusty, and eventually contained worms, weavils, broken glass and stones! The doctors told us that weavils only meant added vitamins, and that apparently the glass did us no harm.

"Finally the camp refrigeration equipment broke down. This was a break for us; for a time then the Japs fed us quails, pheasants, turkeys and ducks".

Perhaps the happiest time for the prisoners, other than actual liberation, was the arrival of Red Cross parcels.

At this point Capt. Royal dealt briefly with the diseases encountered in the camp. Diphtheria, beri-beri in different forms, dysentery and diarrhoea, were most prevalent. At one time, the speaker remarked, out of 1400 in the camp there were some 500 cases of diphtheria, among which there occurred 130 deaths.

(Editor's note: Concerning the disease Beri-Beri, Webster gives the following: "A malignant Oriental disease, usually caused by eating polished rice: it is characterized by paralysis, dropsy, muscular debility and painful rigidity of the limbs.")

Capt. Royal was profuse in his praise of the medical staff for their supreme efforts to help the sick while so handicapped with the lack of drugs and medicines.

"When we arrived in Hong Kong the Chinese were living in the streets and on sam-pans (house boats)," he said, referring to the terrible living conditions. The Chinese were so poor that they would beg and steal garbage for food. However, the fine weather which exists throughout most of the year was a great help to the prisoners. "The weather was ideal except for about two months of the year during which about 120" of rain fell, or the equivalent of approximately three times our annual rainfall". However, the speaker stressed the fact that the climate was not too warm considering that they had only a loincloth to wear.

Capt. Royal said that the men occupied themselves by studying—everything from A.B.C's to the most difficult calculus — also by preparing and presenting band concerts and variety shows. Most of the music had to be written by hand, from memory, yet Capt. Royal said that he heard some of the most difficult airs by famous composers, played perfectly.

Speaking of the Jap cruelty, he said: "Some accounts are exaggerated, but in most cases they are true. The men worked part of the day, often when too sick to be at work. In one instance prisoners tried to escape, their boat became caught in a submarine net, and we were told later by the Chinese that they were tortured to death. In the meantime our ration of rice was cut to 8 ounces a day. We then realized that it was futile to try to escape".

"The Jap mentality", said the speaker, "is hard to understand. They are a nation of followers and copyists; they are childish in many respects."

"Pain to them is amusing", he added; here the speaker recalled having seen a Chinese fall off a streetcar, killing himself, while Japs stood around laughing so hard they had to hold their sides.

Capt. Royal had with him a few poems which some of the men had written. He explained that at the Saturday night concerts the best poem submitted by the men during the week was read, and the author given a prize of five cigarettes, which was the only means of currency.

When questioned at the conclusion of his talk, as to where the men obtained the musical instruments for the concerts, Capt. Royal replied that the Japs later turned over the instruments belonging to the regiment. After hearing the music, they became so enthused that they even dug up other instruments for their use, and attended many of the concerts.

Description of New Buckingham School

Last issue of the Buckingham Post shows an architect's drawing of the fine new school being erected in that Papineau County town. The description accompanying the picture reveals the following facts:

Replacing a building erected in 1890, and which has proved for many years to be inadequate to meet present day requirements, this modern new educational institution is being erected for the Buckingham School Trustees at a cost of approximately $220,000, including a grant of $100,000 obtained from Quebec Government by the local Provincial Member, the Hon. Romeo Lorrain, Minister of Public Works.

The plans are by Luke, Little and Mace, architects, of Montreal. The general contractor is M. Sullivan and Son Limited, Arnprior, Ont. The new High School will be the first in a Quebec Protestant school to feature glass blackboards. Other features will be a windowless air-conditioned gymnasium-auditorium; germicidal lamps; a library which, like the gym auditorium, will also serve the community; domestic science room; manual training room to be equipped with larger than usual woodworking machines.

The building is two storeys, 132 feet by 66 feet, reinforced concrete frame and slab construction, and brick walls. It is expected to have the building ready for occupancy about Easter, 1947. It was hoped that the beginning of January would see the opening of the new school, but the prevalent lack of building materials and skilled workmen has delayed completion of the handsome edifice.

Garbage Collection A Matter of Current Interest to Brownsb'g Village Taxpayers

"In Brownsburg" — by M. V. Trayers

Garbage

Since the Corporation took over the collecting of the garbage, undue hardship has befallen a number of people because of its effect upon them. The old man who called into the yards and helped the householder to collect any extra rubbish, and generally did a good job of cleaning up, has been put out of a job, or his source of revenue so depleted as to make his efforts not worth while. Householders who are unable to lug a garbage can to the roadside, are forced to employ someone to do this for them. Others with private incinerators who dispose of their own, and have done so for years; truckers who cart their garbage and other refuse in their own trucks — all are commanded to pay for the removal of their garbage, whether they put it out or not, or whether they have any garbage or not.

The question has been so much discussed that I shouldn't be surprised if it were an issue at the January elections.

Dogs

Judging by the number of complaints which have been conveyed to this correspondent, Brownsburg has as many dogs as Hamelin had rats, and no less distasteful. There is no piper in this village, "pied" or otherwise. The chief manufacture is ammunition — not bad either. There is some connection between the garbage and the dogs, but the difficulty is, the dogs just scatter the garbage. Of course, the corporation taxes both garbage and dogs.

Cenotaph Ceremonies

The "Two Minutes Silence" was observed here with fitting reverence. Possibly owing to the non-observance of the day as a holiday, there was a small turn-out at the cenotaph. Several wreaths were deposited at the base of the monument, and the Rev. S. J. Pike conducted the religious ceremonies.

Safety First

The employees of the Canadian Safety Fuse Co. Ltd. having reached of the pinnacle of safety achievement, were awarded the Company's prize at an informal get-together last week.

Mr. J. B. Chalmers, manager, distributed the various selections made by the employees from a number of useful articles offered by the Company, with a warm handshake and a few words of encouragement to continue the good work. The Safety Fuse employees have no further fields to conquer in the matter of graduating value in prizes, but they have the same field to traverse with the same glittering reward to crown their efforts.

CBC Governor

G. Douglas Steel, M.A., LL.D., principal of Prince of Wales College, Charlottetown, who was recently appointed to the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. A Prince Edward Islander by birth, Steel has for many years been a leading educationist in the Maritimes.

Bradford Shows Fine Performance, Macdonald Sports

At the Macdonald College annual sports, held recently, Doug Bradford of Lachute again won the highest aggregate points — a triumph which he also achieved at last year's meet. Bradford, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bradford, North River, is a sophomore in Agriculture.

"None of the 500 spectators left the field without being impressed with the spectacular performance of Lachute's dashing Doug Bradford", reports the Macdonald student publication. "He gathered exactly half of his class' score. His best race was when he romped home at the head of the pack in the 880. He missed the the track record in this race by two fifths of a second. He also had to his credit first place in 440, the mile, the three mile, and second place in the broad jump."

Special Attraction for Lions Club Meeting

Lions Club members are reminded of the special feature attraction at next week's meeting— Tuesday, November 19, at Desjardins Hotel.

On this occasion the film, "River of Paper", will be introduced — through the kindness of the Powell River Company Limited, of Vancouver, B.C., and of Mr. G. Harold Fisk, eastern representative of that Company and of Pacific Mills Limited, both being large manufacturers of newsprint on the Pacific Coast.

This is an industrial film above average, of full sound and color, and following a recent introduction of the film at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, the Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto made the following comment:

"Perhaps because of the British Columbia scenic background, or because of the grandeur of the forests there, or perhaps because this film was made at relatively high cost, this is certainly a model industrial film — portraying not only an industry and an industrial process, but company and community working and living conditions as well. It is exceptionally well taken photographically."

Annual Meeting Of Bible Society

The annual meeting of Lachute Branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church last Sunday evening. The Rev. M. W. Booth, the district secretary, gave an interesting and informative illustrated address on "The Open Bible", which, he said, is the basis of the code of all international law. He told of those to whom we owe our gratitude for having the Bible translated and having it an "open book" — Saint Jerome, Caedman, the Venerable Bede, Alfred the Great, John Wycliffe, Wm. Caxton, Wm. Tyndale and Moffatt. He spoke of these great men using the Bible as their directive, and urged that we too should use it as our guide. During the past three years the Bible has been translated into three more tongues. "The Bible is our heritage, so let us read it and share it", the speaker urged.

Minutes of the last annual meeting, and a report of the year's progress, was given by the recording secretary, Mrs. Geo. McGibbon. During the course of the meeting reference was also made to the time and devotion given in the interests of this branch by the late Thomas Barron, who had served many years as president. The gathering paid tribute to his memory.

The total collection in this community amounted to $258.15.

Officers for the ensuing year are as follows:

J. S. Giles, president; Robert Cairns, vice-president; Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, rec. sec.; Miss G. McMahon, cor. sec.; W. M. Steeves, treas.

Family Stranded in Halifax

A British war bride, Mrs. Albert Martin, of Bradford, Yorkshire, with her two children, Allan and Frances, no sooner landed in Halifax when two catastrophes struck. First her husband did not show up to meet her, and then her eight-month-old son, David, died in a Halifax Hospital. Mrs. Martin stated that her husband had threatened to stowaway to England to see David, whom he had never seen, and it is believed that the missing father might have done just that. The Canadian army traced Martin from Montreal to Halifax, where the trail ended. Meanwhile, Mrs. Martin plans to settle in Canada and go to work.

Extract on Poultry Nutrition

Poultry ration requirements for protein nowadays is for amino acids; you must have the correct amino acids regardless of their source, i.e. plants or animals.

Blood Meal consists of 80-85% protein and is low in isoleucine; further, it is slightly deficient in glycine. However when Blood Meal is fed with Corn Gluten Meal you get exceptionally good results. Gluten is high in isoleucine and glycine, but is low in tryptophane and lysine, which are found in blood; thus both these feeds are complementary.

Soybean Oil Meal is exceptionally good feed for chickens, containing 20% protein, and supplies all the essential amino acids except methionine and cystine; however Sesome Meal supplies this lack. Sesome is low in lysine, which is supplied by soybeans.

Sunflower Oil Meal and Soybean Oil Meal is an excellent complementary mixture of amino acids.

Prior to this war poultry rations contained fish meat, which is a good source of arginine and glycine, and milk powder, which is deficient in arginine and glycine. Note, if one attempts to supply all the amino acids from 1 or 2 sources, some amino acid will be supplied in excess.

Moulting — Increase methionine and cystine to shorten moulting period and to bring back egg production. Feathers are high in cystine, which comes from body tissue, therefore an increase of cystine intake will cause feathers to grow more rapidly.

Eggs are low in glycine and lysine. Alfalfa meal and yeast are good sources of lysine.

Nictinic acid deficiency is caused by a high corn diet. It is also produced when arginine and glycine are fed in excess (known as black tongue; symptoms are, tongue and mouth inflamed, and brittle feathers); however, it is overcome by feeding trytophane or niotinic acid itself.

Protein Requirements — In the production of broilers it was formerly considered impossible to feed high protein diets. It is now possible and feasible (if feed available) to feed 30% protein in the diet for one week only at the age of 8 to 10 weeks old, then protein is decreased to a normal level of 19%. This high protein gives broilers a good start in the grand period of growth, thus the cost of feeding is reduced. If one attempts to get greater gains by feeding high protein for longer than one week, the balance of protein will be upset.

Laying Mash. — Any poultry ration below 18% protein does not contain enough protein. A laying mash should not be lower in protein than a hatching ration. Birds will deplete body tissue for eggs. Start to feed heavy grains to bring up body weight. One must feed amino acids to bring back egg production and weight. Chick growth and hatchability are dependant upon the correct essential amino acids.

Practical Use of Wet Mash — It will make chickens eat more grain and dry mash. Feed it once or twice daily. Molasses (if available), when fed in drinking water, tends to stimulate appetite of poultry.

Protein Analysis of Feeds.

Corn contains 10% protein chiefly zein; deficient in lysine.

Barley contains 11.5% protein as hordein.

Oats contain 12.2% protein.

Oat groats contain 15.2% protein; hulless oats similar % protein.

Ontario winter (soft) wheat, 12.3% protein.

Western (hard) wheat, 14-15% protein.

Remembrance Day Speeches Impress Post-War Obligations

it would be superior to any projected among the other countries. . . . But after two years, there had been certain failures, certain disappointments. The inadequacy of housing was a foremost example. And in these deficiencies, the responsibility was Dominion-wide; in short, each and every one had a responsibility, to a greater or lesser degree. Labor unrest, black markets, inflationary trends — these invoked the conscience and clear-thinking of every one, even to the veterans themselves.

"What can we do, to honor those who paid the supreme sacrifice? — Their destiny is not in our hands. We can remember them, in ceremonies such as these on Remembrance Day. But the best, most practical way, is to live and fight for the things they died for. 'Take from failing hands the torch, and hold it high'. . . And the first, most logical place in which to perpetuate their ideals, is in the home, Dr. McMillan believed. Not only in its material surroundings, but in its moral and spiritual outlook, the home must be the cradle of idealism. The conflict now is ours — and the secret of endurance in this great struggle comes from faith in God", concluded the speaker.

Message to Children

At the proceedings in the park, Mr. Georges H. Héon had a forceful message, in both French and English, to impart to the hundreds of schoolchildren gathered at the cenotaph. If there had been confusion in their minds as to the meaning of the ceremony, this brief discourse made it clear beyond doubt.

Referring them to their lessons in scripture and history, Mr. Héon reminded his listeners that war had existed since the earliest chronicles of the human race. "War is a scourge, a punishment. War implies the eternal conflict of Right and Wrong — and in defence of democracy's ideal, war requires the soldier — the warrior, of which this monument upon the cenotaph is a lasting symbol. This is a symbol of your ancestors, your fathers, who fought on the side of Christianity and decency in the conflict of 1914. Once they, like you, were schoolchildren. They learned the lessons of good citizenship and courage, and when duty called, they remembered what they had learned; they enlisted and took arms — they fought — and died. All over the Allied world today, in London, Washington and Ottawa — in New Zealand and South Africa — in tiny hamlets as well as mighty cities, people today are remembering the little crosses in Europe's cemeteries where these heroes sleep.

"If you understand this ceremony today — if you are worthy of those who paid the sacrifice — you too, should such circumstances arise, will be ready to serve and safeguard the freedom for which they died", concluded Mr. Héon.

How to Protect Your Garden

There are a few last jobs to be done in most gardens against the onslaught of winter, and Bob Keith of Richmond Hill, the Ontario Gardener, will enumerate the most important of these on his broadcast of Sunday, November 17. He will be heard over Ontario and Quebec stations of the CBC at 10.20 a.m. following Andy Clarke's broadcast of "Neighborly News."

A Solid Front

THE PEOPLE of the United States "marched to the polls" last week. Infected with post-war restiveness and eager for a change, they marched with such determination that they all but threw their government out of office. They couldn't do that in 1946, under their constitution, but they did the closest thing to it: a complete turnover of their elected representatives.

In an ordinary election — in any year prior to the war — the world would have stood on the sidelines with no special interest in the outcome. In 1940 and '44, the world took an interest in an American general election only because of a man, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the epitome of all that a free world stood for in its fight against Nazism.

The world was interested, too, in last week's elections. For it well remembered what occurred in the United States after the other war, and looked for an indication of its course in this year of uneasy peace following a greater war. Would the United States again refuse to accept its obligations as a great power, and turn its back upon a world seeking American leadership?

There were some in other countries who thought they had the answer, when the electorate put the Republican party in control of congress. They could not understand that this election was fought largely on domestic issues; that the opposing political groups, Democratic and Republican, saw eye to eye — speaking generally — on foreign policy.

But from the man who could be president of the United States in 1948 if the political swing to the right continues, Michigan's Republican Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, the world got a contrary answer. The senator declared: "I reassert, with whatever authority I possess, that, regardless of what political regime sits in Washington, you can count upon the wholehearted cooperation of the government of the United States in striving against aggression, and for organized peace-with-justice in a better, safer and happier world."

Those ringing words from a leading Republican made clear that the United States, this time, willy nilly, will not turn away from the world. It will not again go "isolationist."

Dull Matter and Grey Matter

THOUGH there is always room for improvement, Canada now supplies its children with educational facilities which compare favorably with those to be found almost anywhere else in the world. But one of the troubles with education — as the Windsor (Ont.) Star remarked in a recent editorial — is that boys and girls do not always realize the opportunities that are theirs during school days.

Students who shirk their homework and feel school is a drudgery imposed on them by an unfeeling society are not necessarily lazy, but they are mistaken. From the vantage point of extreme youth, there seems to be plenty of time for just about everything, and no particular hurry necessary in the dull matter of learning.

But the short, formative school years are soon over and a student who has not picked up a sound background of education is not apt to continue into high school and past that into university — or if the student continues he will find himself operating under a handicap in the upper strata.

Students, again, may argue there's no financial advantage in spending years in school that could be employed delivering parcels to make pocket-money. That's another short-sighted view. Many employers nowadays demand high school or even university diplomas.

Every effort, therefore, should be made to impress on the young child the value of the education he is receiving and the long-range advantage of the work involved.

Thousands of servicemen — many of whom never graduated from public school — are back at high school and college desks this post-war semester. They realized what they had missed and were wise enough to take advantage of the government's offer to give them another opportunity for study.

But for most generations of school children, there is no second chance.

"Free Publicity" Racket

ONE REASON for high taxes is indicated in a few paragraphs here reproduced from the Granby Leader. In a forceful editorial, our contemporary lambasts the legion of agencies now sponging upon the press for free publicity. One such instrument, the people's government, gaily disregards the expense involved; besides its utter imposition upon the publishers, it cost the taxpayer a tidy penny. . .

The number of organizations which have sprung up for the purpose of trying to chisel free publicity in the newspapers, and the amount of material they send out, is unbelievable — says the Granby Leader. . .

The worst offender in trying to get free publicity is the Dominion Government. Nearly every department of the government wastes huge sums in maintaining staffs to send out masses of articles which endeavor to show how necessary that department is and what a fine job they are doing.

Now that natural rubber is slowly coming back on the market, the National Film board sends out pictures and stories about the government owned synthetic rubber plant and its products.

The labor department sends out reams of articles designed to show what a fine job that department is doing in settling strikes, and finding jobs for the jobless, and employees for the employer, etc.

Is it any wonder that many editors acquire a dim view of what the government is doing? It looks to them as if the main object of many of these departments is to chisel as much free space as possible. (The writer here refers to numerous offenders in the commercial field.)

It may be mentioned, however, there is sometimes a fine line of distinction between publicity and news. Where local interest and helpful information cease, just there The Watchman has always drawn the line of elimination. In such manner, the bulletins of certain government departments have "made" the pages of this paper — such as seasonal hints from the Department of Agriculture, which afford real help to farmers and housewives. . . And there are other clear-cut exceptions — charitable appeals and local projects for the public welfare. To which may be added, the free reading matter which we have featured occasionally for regular buyers of our advertising space. These are the "customers" who help keep our enterprise on a paying basis.

Beyond these favored exceptions — well, right now our commodious wastepaper basket is crammed deep with plugs and handouts.

Our Versatile Veterans — A Banker's Impression

OUR VETERANS have been in public prominence this week (Remembrance Day honors the living as well as the dead) — and it is gratifying to take stock of their circumstances: here, at least, in the smaller centres where the housing problem is less critical, we find our ex-servicemen generally satisfied and happy in their lot.

At the conclusion of the two world wars within our memory, a supposition was pronounced quite frequently, that our fighting men could 'never settle down' to their old prosaic pre-war occupations. The aftermath of the first war proved this statement false. And again — only this week, the viewpoint of a Canadian banker adds evidence to prove our veterans are generally happy and content to be back on the job.

B. C. Gardner, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, in the course of an address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Bankers' Association, of which he is president, observed that of 8,600 Canadian bank employees who entered the armed services during the war, 677 gave their lives and nearly 6,000 have returned to work in the banks. Some await demobilization and others are in military hospitals. . . These men and women, now returning to peacetime jobs, are no problem, quite the contrary, said Mr. Gardner. "Their experience in the service of freedom seems to have heightened their competency, broadened the sum of their knowledge, and added confidence to their bearing. Their work, I am sure, will enhance the relations of the banks with customers and public."

Treating Pupils As Individuals

By F. H. J. ROYAL

(A series of articles on "Guidance", an endeavor which has recently been introduced into the Lachute High School. Some of the credit for these articles must be given the "School Guidance Worker" published by the Vocational Guidance Centre, Toronto, and the booklet, "Treating Pupils as Individuals", by the Illinois Association of School Boards.)

IMPORTANT GUIDANCE PROCEDURES

It becomes the function of every school board member and parent to understand the most important procedures which are involved in the operation of an effective guidance program. As these are considered it is possible to define the part which the school personnel should assume. A number of such procedures are common to all schools regardless of size or nature of community. They need to be adapted and assigned only after a fair evaluation of the personnel who will be asked to assume the duties. Seven such procedures are important.

A Comprehensive Record System

Student Guidance is built upon the foundation that teachers and counselors have an intimate knowledge of their students so that they may help the students to have an understanding of themselves. A comprehensive cumulative record of each student in school beginning with his first years in grade school is therefore needed. This record includes a history of any physical, academic, or social phases of the student's development which affect his educational and vocational growth. Specifically, it should include health records, extra-curricular activities, a record of all tests taken, attendance, employment history on an after-school or summer basis, results of home contacts, teachers' informal comments, and scholastic achievement in school. All of these data make it possible to be of maximum help to the student, but should be used cautiously and with understanding.

Information in this record is used during the school life of the student when trying to help him in his educational, vocational, personal, and social growth as a citizen. It is used by teachers or counselors when attempting to help the student make elective choices. It is used by the teacher or administrator when contacting parents. It is used by special counselors when attempting to give vocational advice regarding placement in employment or further education.

A live record system is important. One that is not used becomes a waste of time of those who assembled the record. The efficiency of a guidance program is in direct proportion to the thoroughness and comprehensive nature of the record system and the extent to which it is used by a guidance-minded faculty in helping students individually.

A Thorough Testing Program

An important phase of the student record and of the student-guidance program includes the giving of a variety of tests. These tests should be given at well-planned intervals throughout the school life of each student and should begin when entering the elementary school. The test record should be a part of the personnel record and used by all teachers, administrators and special counselors as need arises. This need arises often if the school has a well-organized guidance program.

Here again it is extremely important that each school system have someone who knows something about tests and what they are supposed to do for individuals. In most school systems today, either some member of the administrative staff or the faculty has had training in the field of tests and measurements. It is these people who should be used in seeing that a thoroughly scientific job is done in the giving of these tests.

Many tests are of a group nature; others are given individually. They vary in their nature and include general intelligence tests given to children in kindergarten and given at intervals throughout the school life of the child, special achievement tests in subject areas such as reading, general achievement tests in all areas of school work, aptitude tests involving the discovery of special abilities, and interest inventories. Any one or all may become a part of the testing program of the school in order to do a thorough job in trying to help individuals.

The extent to which these tests should be used is dependent entirely upon how intelligently they can be interpreted by people who use them and how efficiently they can be executed and made a part of the school record of each child. No school board member should become fanatical in urging the growth of the use of tests, but should rather be a firm believer in their use if he has assurance that they can be properly executed, interpreted and used.

An Individual-Counseling Program

A good record system and a good testing program mean very little if they are not accompanied by a comprehensive, individual-counseling program. Each student in a school should be assured he can receive individual attention when he or his parents desire it. A great deal of informal counseling, good and bad, is carried on in all school systems by class sponsors or advisors, specially-assigned counselors, regular classroom teachers, or members of the administrative staff. Much of it is not organized. It should become an informal but accepted phase of a school's activity, with the warning that good individual counseling aims merely to help students to help themselves and not tell students what they must do.

In addition to this informal counseling, however, there should be a planned counseling program which aims to schedule students at strategic points in their school years so that they are made aware of decisions which they need to make and in which they may need help. This type of scheduled counseling should begin in elementary grades and continue on through high school. The problems which may be considered are most often vocational, educational or social in nature. This same counseling, however, should be available to students at any time when they want to come to someone for help.

During his high school years, the student should make a rather close analysis of his own interests and desires which should be weighed against his own abilities and aptitudes. Close contact with senior advisors, special counselors or other responsible persons should be used in scheduling and carrying out this type of individual counseling. This may very well develop into actual placement at work in the kind of job for which the student is best fitted. The planned individualized counseling program, both formal and informal, is what helps to bring about this kind of placement. It is accomplished best only when the cumulative record of the student is used intelligently and when the course of action was chosen by the student himself after proper counseling.

(The four remaining procedures to follow in next week's edition.)

Lifetime Resident Dies in 83rd Year

Late Miss Helen Murray

Four-score years in the life of a community brings many changes—and of such developments in this vicinity, the late Miss Helen Murray, an east ward resident aged 82, was intimately conscious, for she had spent her entire lifetime hereabouts. Her death occurred at her home on Sunday, following a short period of illness.

The daughter of Alexander Murray and Elizabeth Drew, she was born at Hill Head. She was a member of the United Church. For the past 20 years she had resided in Lachute, living with her sister. The latter, Miss Margaret Murray, and a brother, William Murray, also of this town, survive her besides numerous nephews and nieces. The late Miss Murray was predeceased by two other sisters and a brother.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough and the Rev. C. Maclean officiating. The remains were laid in the family plot at Lachute Cemetery. Pall-bearers were—Messrs. Murray Lyster, Gordon Hay, Guy and Harland Smith, William and Jas. Murray. Many relatives, neighbors and old friends were present to pay their last tribute, and a profusion of flowers bore testimony to their esteem.

Those attending from a distance included Dr. W. Murray and sons, William and James, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Lyster, all of Montreal.

BEAR HUNTERS BUSY

Haliburton, Ont. (CP) — Tom Roberts, veteran Haliburton bushman and bear hunter, bagged seven large bears in 10 days and other hunters reported successful kills as the animals were reported frequenting district lumber camps in search of food. One bear was caught in the act of devouring several apple pies and eight pounds of butter.

IN MEMORIAM

HUTTON — In loving memory of my dear husband, George, who entered into rest November 21, 1945. "In my thoughts every hour, every day". — Mary.

"In our bright Home Eternal
With many mansions fair,
He waits for that glad morning
When we shall join him there."

PROPHET — In loving memory of my dear brother, Victor, who passed away November 15, 1945 — Always remembered by his sister Maude.

"One year has passed,
And my heart's still sore
As time goes by
I miss him more,
His memory is as fresh today
As in the hour he passed away."

WOODS — In loving memory of our dear Granddad, who passed away November 18, 1945. — Sadly missed. Victor, Marge and Ken.

"Sleep on, dear Grandpa, for 'tis true,
You suffered much and told but few."

WOODS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Albert Woods, who passed away November 18, 1945. "Till we meet again." — Ever remembered by Muriel, Richard and Wade.

"Times have changed for us, dear Dad,
Since you have gone away;
And though we smile and seem carefree,
No one misses you more than we.
How often do we tread the path
That leads us to your grave,
Where rests the one we loved so dear,
But whom we could not save.
At night when all is silent
And sleep forsakes our eyes,
Our thoughts are on a lonely grave,
Where our dear loved one lies."

Remembrance Day — the Eloquence of Silence

Contributed by M. V. Trayers

There is nothing so vocal as silence. When we stand in silence before the cenotaph there is nothing in this earth we could say or do which speaks so eloquently, or carries so far, or is so pregnant with meaning, as the two minutes' silence. As the great throb of civilization hushes and the busy doings of our everyday tasks become enveloped in the vast stillness which pervades our senses, our minds exercise the command which marshals us into line with the untold legions of every village and town in Canada, with every State in the Union — yes, and across the sea we stand beside the columned millions in Europe, in Asia and the other continents. We form line with Germans and Japs. Our thoughts are not of enemies, or war, or conquest; we are units of the Great Command. In our ranks there also stand the disembodied spirits of all that have gone before. The smiling, happy, carefree boys and men who went and did not return. Our lines stretch far, but they are in the ranks hushed and silent as we are. They do not speak to us, for we cannot speak. What is the need for speech? Our communion with the dead has ever been thus. What of the gaudy outward display of pomp and ceremony? What matter where we stand, the soil we trod has been sanctified by the blood of countless thousands who have fought and died. We may not see serried lines of comrades shoulder to shoulder before the wreath bestrewn cenotaph. We may be many, or we may be alone. No matter where we be, we stand mute and silent. We are awaiting the notes of the bugle. We shall hear its call, but there are numberless millions for whom its tones shall be muted. What shall be its call? For us it shall sound the "Dismiss" — for a time. To the others "who shall not grow old" its muted notes will sound "The Rally" — The rally.

"Come home. Come home.
Red night o'er the dead in the valley.
They are lying around, face down to the ground,
And they can't hear me sound the 'Rally'
But they'll hear it again in a grand refrain
When Gabriel sounds the 'Last Rally'."

HAVE YOU ANY RUPEES IN YOUR PURSE?

Mrs. Blair has been talking for months about buying a real Indian shawl. But wouldn't she be surprised if she found it priced in rupees! That it isn't, is due in large measure to the services rendered by your bank.
When you buy imported goods in Canadian stores, you pay in Canadian dollars—but the people who made them were paid in Indian rupees, British pounds, French francs . . .
It is the same in reverse with exports. You may be one of the three out of every eight Canadians who make their living through goods sold abroad. If so, you receive your wages in dollars, but your products are sold in all sorts of foreign currencies.
Arranging the complicated exchange and transfer of foreign funds in such transactions is but one of your bank's many services enabling Canadians to buy and sell abroad.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Mission Week in St. Simeon's Parish

Monday evening the Missioner dealt with the Misuse of God's Gifts, in the realm of the material, personal and spiritual.

He reviewed the series of civilizations outlined by Arnold Toynbee in his recent Studies in History, and referred to Toynbee's evidence that militarism was the malady which brought most of these civilizations to their death. At the moment this malady was threatening our Western civilization, and everything looked ominous. Still our civilization possessed a blessing in Christianity which should bring us out of the sickness, if we but applied the medicine. To look at it another way, Christian faith was a key to the door of a hospital. Still so many men preferred to throw the key into the garbage-can, as the neglect of our churches at the moment would lead one to think. This was evidenced on all sides too by the lust for power in both personal and national terms.

Our increase of comforts of a scientific kind seemed to throw us off from God, through man's misuse of them. Modern cars did not make for more crowded churches or deeper spiritual values.

The greatest creation of God, man's physical body and personality was also being so misused that it cost the government 8 million dollars to finance a venereal disease campaign in the Army for one year. These were just a few illustrations the speaker used.

What were we going to do about this malady of mankind? Had we any solution? The Church certainly has, even if government or the man in the street has not.

The Church stands for redemption from sin and holds the cure.

Baptist Youth Rally

The Rev. W. S. Whitcombe, professor in Systematic Theology at the Toronto Baptist Seminary, will be guest speaker at the coming Saturday Night Rally in Lachute Baptist Church. Mr. Whitcombe will be addressing a French-Canadian Youth Rally in their native tongue on Friday night in Montreal.

Hearty congregational singing and a Bible quiz are other features of this program. — The whole family are welcome to attend.

Private opinion creates public opinion. Public opinion overflows eventually into national behavior and national behavior, as things are arranged at present, can make or mar the world. That is why private opinion, and private behaviour, and private conversation are so terrifyingly important.

The Story of Brownsburg

By M. V. TRAYERS

PREFACE (Continued)

We thus weave the threads of Brownsburg's history into the fabric of Canada; but from 1857, when the population is known to have numbered about one hundred souls, for a period of a quarter of a century very little can be told of the growth of the village or the lives of its people, with any certainty of accuracy. This was the period of the discovery of gold in Fraser River valley and the change-over from the "pounds, shillings and pence" of the English currency to the "dollars and dimes" of our American neighbors. King Edward VII, who was then Prince of Wales, visited this country and laid the foundation stone of the present Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. The population of Upper Canada was then 1,396,691, Lower Canada 1,111,566, with the other provinces accounting for about a million more. It was also the period of Confederation — 1867 — when Canada blossomed into full nationhood. The struggling provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, united to form the Dominion of Canada; and in succeeding years Manitoba (1870), British Columbia (1871), Prince Edward Island (1874) and the great North West Territories (1886) entered the growing Commonwealth.

The outbreak of Riel's second abortive rebellion in 1886 was indirectly responsible for the formation of the Dominion Cartridge Company and its manufacture of ammunition at Brownsburg. It was also the year in which the last spike of the Canadian Pacific Railway was driven at Craigellachie — the beginning of the industrial era in this country.

Thus the foundations of Canada's future were securely laid. The determination and vision displayed by the Fathers of Confederation was well founded. Canada was on the threshold of greatness. It was also the end of the romantic period of pioneering and exploration — the end of the unknown, the uncertain. The past was written. Its imperishable deeds and glorious heritage was the birthright upon which our future was founded — and in the fertile, productive years ahead, lies our destiny to march forward towards the preservation of the mighty achievements of the past, to safeguard the integrity and the unity of our Dominion, and the peace, happiness and prosperity of our people.

(Next week we continue with The Story of Brownsburg.)

HE HAS SERVED WITH DISTINCTION

51-YEAR old Alf Hansen has an enviable record of service both in his capacity as a Boss Machine Tender in a mill at Powell River, B.C., and in the first great war, where he won the Military Medal for conspicuous gallantry. In his 34 years with the company, Alf has been a leading union man, and was first president of local 142 of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers. He was one of the original committee members of the Employees Sick Benefit Society which was responsible for the splendid employees' hospital. Alf is also an able all-round sportsman and sports organizer, and an expert on hunting and fishing. He is married and has two grown-up boys.

"The things that I like about Powell River are its location; and the co-operative and community spirit of the people. It is highly improbable that one could find another plant where the management is so considerate of the welfare of the employees and their families."

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

School Lunches for Keen Young Appetites

Many mothers wonder how they can possibly prepare a lunch box that will satisfy the hearty appetites of their school-going children. They worry because they are not able to put in the lunch box the same quantity of food that the children consume at home. The point to remember when preparing carried lunches, is that quality must replace quantity, which means that the small amount of food in the lunch box must give that well satisfied feeling.

Certain schools have cooking or at least warming-up facilities; this eliminates the problem of keeping something hot for lunch. Thermos bottles, now easily available, can be used when these facilities do not exist. In these, soups, marcaroni or spaghetti, baked beans, chowders, stews, hash, etc., may be kept hot and ready to eat. If the child knows that the stay-at-home will be having the same lunch, it makes him feel more satisfied with his lot.

The home economists of the Consumer Section at Ottawa suggest recipies which will prove good either at home or at school.

Docker's Bake

2 Tablespoons fat, ½ pound minced beef or left-over cooked meat, 1 onion sliced, 2 cups grated raw potato (4-5 medium potatoes), 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 cup rolled oats (quick cooking), 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon poultry seasoning.

Melt fat in frying pan, add minced meat and onion and brown. To the grated potatoes add the remaining ingrediants, then add the cooked meat. Blend thoroughly. Press into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees, for 1¼ hours. Six servings.

Hamburg Vegetable Chowder

¾ Pound ground beef, 3 tablespoons fat, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 2 medium carrots, diced, ½ cup celery, diced, 1 medium onion, chopped, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ cup barley, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1½ quarts water, 2 cups potatoes, cut in cubes.

Brown meat in fat. Put all ingredients except potatoes in large kettle and simmer slowly one hour. Add potatoes and continue simmering an hour longer. Serve with toast or crackers as a main dish. Serves 6 to 8.

Lunchbox Cheese Sandwiches

2 hard boiled eggs, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 2 tablespoons melted butter, ¼ cup top milk, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ½ pound cheese, grated, salt to taste.

Separate whites and yolks of hard-cooked eggs. Mash yolks, and blend with other ingredients. Add egg whites, finely chopped. Makes 1½ cups filling.

Chinese Girl Likes Canada

Student at Sask. University Likes to Cook Chinese Meals

Saskatoon (CP) — Helen Chen, University of Saskatchewan graduate student in biochemistry sleeps in a double-decker bed in the girls' dormitory — something that was never necessary when she was a student at the West China Union University which housed four other universities driven from the coastlal cities of China during the war.

But she is not complaining about the "good fortune" which brought her to Canada last July via San Francisco and a tour of the United States including New York.

The president of the West China University — a Canadian — arranged for Miss Chen to continue her biochemistry research following her graduation in China.

Residence life in this Canadian University she finds not unsimilar to that in China despite the gaudy wall decorations and coffee parties here.

However, she does not drink coffee now. When she first arrived in America she drank so much she has become allergic to the drink. It could be obtained only once a month in China.

Miss Chen likes to visit homes of colleagues where she can prepare genuine Chinese dishes. She said that food in Chinese restaurants here hasn't got quite the right taste.

It lies with the common man — and is due to the sheer indifference and apathy of John Citizen. We take little time to study the program of the respective parties, the background of the opposing candidates, their views on the leading questions of the day. How often does John Citizen follow up the candidate he has elected, and express directly and unequivocally his opinion, favorable or otherwise, of proposed legislation.

"It is for the man in the street to find a way to make his voice heard and his influence felt in the councils of the nation," Mr. MacDonald concluded.

K.C. Council Now Largest Between Montreal, Ottawa

INITIATION CEREMONIES HELD HERE SUNDAY

Last Sunday at Lachute Auditorium, the local Council of the Knights of Columbus held what is stated to have been the most successful initiation ceremony since its foundation, when 70 candidates were inducted in the three degrees of the order.

Officers of the Lachute Council, under chairmanship of Gaetan Cousineau, G.K., assisted by Brother J. E. Dumais, Lomer Carriere and Horace Lamarche, conferred the two first degrees of the order — Brother Gaetan Valois playing most prominent part in the conferring of the second degree.

The conferring of the 3rd degree was presided over by J. H. Filiatrault, district deputy, of Ste. Therese, assisted by Dr. J. E. Lalande, district deputy having jurisdiction over the local Council.

An attendance exceeding 700 in number, and representing K. of C. Councils from Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, New Brunswick and New Haven, Conn., witnessed the ceremonies.

Among guests of honor introduced to the gathering were Geo. H. Héon, K.C., M.P., who will give the main address to the newly-inducted candidates at a meeting and banquet in their honor on November 26 next; René Charbonneau, ex-district deputy; J. Daignault, G.K., Ste. Therese Council; Dr. A. Perrier, G.K., Hawkesbury Council; Leopold Carriere, mayor of Lachute, and delegates from Alexandria, Mont Laurier, Ste. Agathe, St. Jovite, Hull, Joliette, St. Jerome, Longueuil, St. Johns and St. Eustache.

Lachute K. of C. Council with its new members now has the largest active membership (800) and may be considered the most influential branch, between Montreal and Ottawa.

Late W. J. Rodger One of County's Leading Farmers

DIED AT HIS HOME NEAR ST. ANDREWS EAST

After an illness of several months, William J. Rodger passed away Friday morning, November 15, at his home on Lachute Road.

The late Mr. Rodger was born at East Settlement in December 1872 and moved to his late home in his early twenties, where he purchased his uncle's farm. He married the late Mary Elizabeth Armstrong, who predeceased him ten years ago.

During the past 53 years the late Mr. Rodger was known to be one of the outstanding dairy farmers of Argenteuil County. A large herd of Ayrshire cattle has always been maintained on the farm as well as a number of heavy draft Clydesdale horses. He was always known as a faithful tiller of the soil, cultivated his farm well and particularly admired good plowing; as a younger man he won prizes in local plowing matches. During his lifetime he was also a keen exhibitor of dairy cattle and horses at Lachute Exhibition.

Mr. Rodger entered his farm in the Agricultural Merit Competitions for Quebec Province and won the Silver Medal in 1905. He competed for the Gold Medal in 1920, 1930, 1935 and 1940, and won awards each of these times, being placed second in 1930 and 1940.

Mr. Rodger took an active part in community work, having been a member of the local council, local school board, a presiding elder of the St. Andrews East United Church, past president of the Laurentian Ayrshire Breeders' Club, past director of Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, and director of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society for 30 years, and at the time of his death he was an honorary life member of that Society.

The funeral was held from his late residence Sunday afternoon to St. Andrews East United Church, service being conducted by the Rev. J. S. Nickerson assisted by Rev. John Macaskill of Ramsayville, Ont., a former pastor of that church, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The remains were laid to rest at Lachute Cemetery with Masonic rites. Pall-bearers were his neighbors — Messrs. J. P. Bradley, C. J. Leishman, J. G. Fraser, James Thompson, L. M. Hooker and W. G. Watson.

He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, Stanley W. and Douglas A., of Lachute Road; four daughters, Mrs. Geo. B. Gagnon, Westmount, Mrs. Ross MacAdam, Lachute, Miss M. E. Rodger, Montreal, Mrs. Stewart MacAdam, Brownsburg; one sister, Mrs. J. H. Black, East Settlement, and 11 grandchildren.

Fire at St. Andrews

(Our District Correspondent)

St. Andrews East — Fire destroyed the upper flat of a two-apartment frame house owned by George Legault on Saturday evening. The occupants, Roderic Legault and family, were out at the time. Furniture stored in the lower storey was removed undamaged; this flat was unoccupied. Thanks to the assistance of Lachute Fire Brigade the lower half of the building was saved. It is reported the loss was covered by insurance.

Lachute Veteran Meets Death on Duty at Canal

Around 9 o'clock last evening while on duty at Lock No. 4 at Grece's Pt, John Raymond (Jock) Cunningham, a 37-year-old war veteran, lost his life when he fell from the lock gate into deep water. Fellow employees threw a lifebelt, but Cunningham, who was floating at the surface, appeared unconscious from a blow on the head and was unable to grasp it. He was brought to the bank by members of the canal crew — R. Hampton, lockmaster, R. Sylvester and W. Murdoch — who applied artificial respiration, but without avail. He had been about half an hour in the water.

Dr. A. L'Allier was summoned from St. Andrews; he pronounced the victim dead, whereupon the coroner and provincial authorities in Lachute were notified.

Jock Cunningham had served with the 1st Batallion Black Watch, being overseas for one and a half years before his discharge through ill health — suffering an asthmatic condition. Since his return he had been employed as a guard at the Bouchard D.I.L. plant and as an attendant on the canal.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham, of Barron Avenue, he is survived by his brother Hugh, of Lachute, and four sisters — (Beatrice) Mrs. J. B. Smith, of Flint, Mich.; (Bella) Mrs. A. B. Gordon, Lachute; (Barbara) Mrs. M. Nason, Verdun; and (Gertie) Mrs. P. Lamarche, Hawkesbury.

It is stated Jock Cunningham and employees on the canal were terminating their duties next week, and the victim had secured a job in Lachute for the winter season.

The coroner's inquest is being held this afternoon at Lachute Town Hall.

The funeral has been arranged to take place Saturday at 2.30 o'clock from Lachute United Church.

Sympathy of the community is expressed to the bereaved family.

A Bear Chase

Mabel — A bear was seen wandering through the open fields near Staynerville station on Friday last. Several hunters gave chase and Noël Lemay succeeded in killing it after many futile shots had been fired. The animal weighed 200 lbs.

Pep Treatment for Satd'y Night Hops

The nucleus of a long felt need — organized recreation for this town — has been established in the Saturday Night Hops promoted by Lachute Women's Institute to captivate the interest of young people. But unfortunately, the attendance has been under-par — the 'teen-ages and twenties are not so easily captivated — and the organizers, undaunted by this poor response, are facing the problem anew.

At the young folks' dance this Saturday, to be held at the usual hour in Lachute Auditorium, two or three representatives will be on hand from the various youth organizations around town, to get down to the brass tacks of the situation. The immediate need is to stir enthusiasm in these dances— the longer-range project, to establish a youth organization with a complete, supervised, attractive program.

It is urged that the chosen representatives make every effort to attend this dance and meeting; likewise, any who have a constructive interest in youth welfare, are urgently invited to be present and air their views.

Chatham Ratepayers Debate Project of Consolidation with the Lachute Protestant School Municipality

Rural Schools Now Closed, and Pupils Attending Larger Educational Centres

The awakened interest in education is making itself apparent in various ways and various places. A meeting of taxpayers in School Municipality No. 1 of Chatham, held Friday evening at the community hall in Cushing, gave evidence of a keen interest in that area. Over 50 citizens and a handful of womenfolk attended the meeting, under presidency of Jas. Black, school board chairman, to discuss the question of consolidation with the Protestant School Commission of Lachute High School.

Three members of the Lachute Board, Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, chairman, W. M. Cottingham and Geo. F. Calder, with their secretary A. Taylor, were able to attend on the invitation of the Chatham Board (— they were present in a consultative role, Dr. FitzGerald being emphatic that any advice they imparted was purely an expression of individual opinion); and also from Lachute, Geo. Y. Deacon, of the Quebec Council of Protestant Education, and L. W. Armstrong, secretary of the County Central School Board.

A misapprehension in terms was apparent among several who joined in the discussion — the "County Central School Board" and Lachute Consolidated School area being often confused. Chatham No. 1 is already a component in the County Central Board, but it is still however a separate school unit, not consolidated with, or "annexed" to, Lachute School Commission (local board).

Outcome of the discussion along these lines was, in brief, the circulating of a petition, directed to the educational authorities at Quebec, requesting their approval to the consolidation plan. Well over 90 per cent of the taxpayers present signed the document. Although far short of the complete voters' list, the assembly might be considered as representative of the township. There were residents from Ogdensburg, Chatboro, North River, Centreville and along the riverfront. Granting of the consolidation would require petition of a majority of the Protestant taxpayers — that is, a majority in respect to number, not valuation.

Many of the arguments, both for and against, were well founded. The chairman reviewed the difficulties of the past years within the municipality, leading up to the present situation. The Lachute commissioners, questioned at frequent intervals, made it clear that they were not urging Chatham to consolidate with Lachute, but it was generally implied the annexation would be to advantage of both municipalities. Mr. Deacon pointed to the favorable attitude of the Department of Education and the generous grants accorded to such measures of advancement.

Two prime objections voiced by spokesmen of the various districts were — first, the likelihood of increased taxes, and second, the difficulties of winter transportation. . . . To the first objection Dr. FitzGerald and Mr. Calder replied that the County Central School Board is the tax-levying authority and could raise or lower rates on the present Chatham School Municipality at their discretion, but if Chatham became part of Lachute School Municipality, the tax rate of Chatham could not be different from Lachute. And inasmuch as Lachute bonds had been taken over by the Quebec Municipal Commission, the Lachute tax rate could not be changed without the Commission's consent. . . . There was a general understanding that Lachute school, now overcrowded, would be faced with the need for expansion, regardless of proposed inclusion of the Chatham area. The expense of this must be incurred in part by Lachute board and in part by the Department of Education. . . But to the implication of higher taxes in Chatham, Chairman James Black parried with a convincing argument; the alternative to "annexation" he said, was the remodelling and reopening of Chatham's condemned schools, or the building of a new school, central to the area — in either case a tax increase would be inevitable.

To the objection on transportation Mr. Cottingham cited the case of Hill Head and Thomas' Gore, where snowdrifts presented a major difficulty. The problem had been effectively overcome by the use of a snowmobile, he said — also mentioning the cost, towards which Quebec had contributed generously. Moreover, it was stated that pupils were placed in schools most convenient to their location. Some in Chatham attended the Grenville school, others went to St. Andrews. This arrangement would continue if advisable, and transportation would present no more of a problem than under the present set-up.

From other Chatham ratepayers there came emphatic approval to the consolidation plan. — That of Douglas Bradford, North River, may be considered representative of a large segment of the population: in his particular community there could be no argument, he said — no other consideration could outweigh the advantages derived from educating their children in Lachute, of rural children having the "square corners rounded off" through broader school contacts, better facilities and better instruction. . . Among sentiments expressed by the Lachute visitors, this was affirmed in a cordial word for the present High School staff.

Mr. Armstrong cited the experience of St. Jerusalem Parish, which faced a similar decision in 1932. The same questions of taxes and transportation were debated (— and in Geneva, particularly, the snowdrifts were formidable, he added). However, consolidation with Lachute had been effected, and throughout the parish today there was no doubt whatever concerning its benefits.

After this free discussion of the pros and cons, a concensus of opinion was evident in favor of the consolidation idea.

War Services Completed, Servicemen Honored, Arundel O'seas Parcels Fund Closes Chapter

Gives Creditable Report of Activities

Arundel — After being in operation for over six years, the Arundel Overseas Parcel League has finally completed its task. Following is a résumé of the group's activities:

During the war parcels were sent regularly to every man serving overseas in the armed forces, and cigarettes were also sent to each one on an average of once a month.

The committee organized a dance and reception to welcome each of the boys on their return to Arundel, but added to this it was decided to give some more permanent reminder of the appreciation of the community for their splendid service. The 31 men who returned have now been given each a suitably engraved signet ring.

On Remembrance Day a silver brooch, engraved in her son's memory, was presented to each mother whose boy had given his life overseas — Mrs. Harry Boyd, in memory of Walter; Mrs. Wm. Davis, in memory of Wesley; Mrs. Jas. May, in memory of John and Hector; and Mrs. Charles Staniforth, in memory of Norman Craig.

The following are the names of those who have received rings — Jas. Bates, Arthur Batty, Arthur Bennett, Harwood Bennett, Thos. Bishop, Edgar Boyd, George Cooke, Howard Cooke, Stanley Cooke, Edgar Courte, Carl Craig, Leslie Craig, Stanley Dobbie, Alfred Dubeau, Clarence Dubeau, John Dubeau, Edgar Evans, Harold Gordon, Bert Graham, Alcide Labelle, Drennan MacArthur, Angus McFaul, Russell McMahon, Leslie May, Ross Moore, Murray Morrison, Kenneth Ronalds, the Rev. Community Rink For St. Andrews

(Our District Correspondents)

St. Andrews East — Through the initiative of the Rev. Father Cloutier, a community skating rink has been started. The Council voted money for lumber, and Father Cloutier organized a labor "bee" for the construction work. The Protestant and Catholic School Boards voted cash towards the upkeep. As the rink is situated on Euclid Ladouceur's land adjacent to the post-office, it is near the Protestant School, whose pupils have free use of the ice from 11.30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m. The Catholic scholars have the afternoon hours from 4 o'clock. A charge will be made for evening skating, hockey matches and masquerades.

Observations on Brownsburg Parish Census . . Denouement of the Hunt . . Road Improvement

"In Brownsburg"— by M. V. Trayers

A recent church census revealed that there are 515 Catholic families with 2,200 church members in the parish of Brownsburg. A surprising feature of the yearly census is the fact that, while the number of Catholics in Brownsburg is several hundred less than during the war years, the number of established families is 15 more than the previous year. The total population of the village, according to the municipal records, is slightly over 3,600.

Too Far Afield

Two of our enthusiasts of the chase while out hunting recently had a rude awakening on the deficiencies of their woods-lore. Sandy and Elmer (which isn't their right names), preparing for a day's hunting went along in their car as far as Green Lake. This well-known loading-up place provided them with a suitable parking spot wherein to pull the car off the road — from whence they proceeded on "Shanks mare" — afoot, to you. After a long and weary trudge through the bush with never a wing or tail on the sights, they returned dispirited and empty-handed. Sandy was particularly disappointed, as his determination to repay the slight of receiving a deer by mail the previous season, was still rankling (it was a cartoon). Elmer on the other hand had some hope left, and while his companion was starting up the old jalopy and securing the weapons of the chase, he said he would try the little grove ahead of where the car was parked. "I may get a partridge", said he. Judge his amazement when, on entering the little grove not 50 yards from the car, up sprang two handsome deer and sped away unhurt by Elmer's hasty shot. Returning to his companion, who had also seen the deer but alas out of range, their chagrin was complete when they found the deer had been grazing all around the car whilst they were miles through the bush looking for them!

Preparing for Spring

For a number of years we had been plagued by washed-out roads rutted by the spring rains. When asphalt surfaces replaced the old gravel streets, economy, or the habit of doing things by instalments, or pure cussedness, designed a gravel channel between the asphalt surface and the concrete sidewalk. The surface water coursing along tore this channel and undermined the asphalt and in some cases the concrete sidewalk.

Last week the local council on the representation of Coun. Norm Somers were enabled to remedy this dangerous and costly defect with the aid of a grant obtained from the Dept. of Roads, through the good offices of Georges Héon. Asphalt mixture has been laid along the roadside for several yards on the Lachute and Staynerville roads leading from the village.

It was pretty rough for a time, but everything has been smoothed over now. Verb. sap.

Arnold Triumphs, Many Exhibitors At Toronto Royal

A CP Canada-wide despatch on Toronto Fair livestock successes, dated last Friday, gave wholehearted acclaim to Gilbert E. Arnold's horse entries. The item stated:

The great Canadian-owned stallion "Dock", from Grenville, Quebec, proved his ability to transmit his quality to his progeny here, when Gilbert Arnold of Arnoldwold, Grenville, watched the judges award him first for his get in the grand champion Belgian mare, reserve in the grand champion stallion and first in the yearling stallion.

The Belgian classes were the feature of Thursday's heavy horse program at the Fair.

Arnold won with "Arnoldwold Docette" the senior champion and grand champion mare; then he took the reserve and senior and reserve grand champion stallion with "Waterloo Dan" and after that the first prize and reserve junior champion with his yearling stallion "Arnoldwold Docantel".

What was less important, but pleasant, was his win in the senior and grand champion standard bred, with "American Hal". The major "sweep" in honors in the Belgian class for Gilbert Arnold was most impressive as he was in competition against the great Dodge stables of Michigan, recognized as purchasers of the finest Belgians, at any price, if they can get them, as well as Mrs. Wilson, who has won 17 out of 19 of the U.S. State fairs in which she has competed.

"I guess good old Quebec province can still stay ahead", said 6ft. 3 inch Gilbert Arnold when the verdicts were awarded to his Belgians over the cream of the great horses from all over Canada and the U.S.

In addition to these triumphs, Mr. Arnold's successes with his famed Percherons and other exhibits make an interesting story.

Numerous Local Entries

Many other exhibitors have been placing Argenteuil in prominence, contending for the honors with livestock from this district. Full reports of their successes are not available at the time of printing. Those representing the immediate district of Lachute include —

E. K. Wilson, with Shorthorn cattle.

J. P. Bradley, Robert Morrison, R. S. Walker, Morrin Bros., J. H. Black and C. J. Miller, with Ayrshires.

John Heatlie, Ogdensburg, with Clydesdale horses.

L. T. Porter, St. Andrews E., with saddle horses.

Scenes Illustrate Immensity of Pulp And Paper Industry

The regular Lions Club supper meeting, held Tuesday evening at Desjardins Hotel, was attended by numerous guests from Lachute and Brownsburg (including many members of the Rotary Club), to witness an impressive color film on the newsprint industry.

Lion President A. Gordon McOuat was in the chair. The guest speaker, G. Harold Fisk, was presented by Lion Clement Tremblay — who, as secretary-treasurer of Ayers Limited, linked that firm and the community of Lachute with the vast ramifications of newsprint manufacture, since Ayers produce on their looms the felts used on paper-making machines across the entire Dominion. Mr. Fisk, who is eastern representative of Powell River Company Ltd., Vancouver, sponsors of this excellent film, "Rivers of Paper", had much of interest to tell his listeners concerning the paper-making industry. In conclusion of the presentation, he was thanked on behalf of the gathering by Lion Philippe Roy.

"Rivers of Paper"

Mr. Fisk introduced the film with a brief description and relevant remarks. "Of course, everyone knows what newsprint is", he observed. "Most of us buy the newspaper every day — yet few of us understand the importance of newsprint in respect to Canadian economy. Canada leads the world in producing newsprint, with 4¼ million tons a year — an output four times greater than any other country.

"How many people realize that, of this production, 94% is exported! . . Yet the 'drop in the bucket', the remaining 6% is actually a substantial amount of paper. . . Suppose it were loaded into 1-ton trucks and the trucks were placed bumper to bumper; the parade would stretch nearly a 1,000 miles.

"Canadian newsprint goes everywhere; it is shipped regularly to more than 40 countries and, wherever you are, in a large city like New York or in the smallest country town, in Canada, in the States, in Australia, in South America . . and you buy a newspaper, a daily or a weekly . . the chances, 8 times out of 10, are the newspaper you hold in your hand is printed on Canadian newsprint.

"The manufacture of newsprint requires an extremely heavy capital investment; a single large newsprint machine costs, in all, as much as $2,000,000. The industry as a whole has over 700 million dollars invested in plant and equipment.

"Then there is the question of wood supply. In the case of Powell River Company, a substantial part of the wood comes from the famous Queen Charlotte Islands, the home of big timber. Some of the shots in the film show "spar" trees as high as a 20-storey building. In the West there is no pulpwood as we know it here in the East. It is all big timber. Single logs sometimes weigh as much as 60,000 pounds, and to handle these big logs it has been necessary to design special trucks and trailers.

The speaker here gave a glimpse of forest protection, noting that pulp and paper production accounts for only 22 per cent of current depletion — far exceeded by fire, insects and disease, which account for 29 per cent. . . Another interesting phase of the industry lies in the impressive harnessing of hydro-electric power.

"Newsprint is important to Canada, yet few of our national leaders know sufficient about it. This film", said the speaker, "has been conceived and produced to make them, and others, better informed. True, in doing this, Powell River is publicizing itself, but it is also attempting — and attempting very sincerely — to do a real job for Canadian newsprint industry as a whole".

Accident Verdict In Highway Death

Walking eastward along Highway No. 8 at the outskirts of St. Philippe late Saturday night, Lionel Laurin, 51-year-old resident of that village, was struck by a westbound passenger car and died within a short time, of a fractured skull. Driver of the car was Claude Seguin, 23, also of St. Philippe, who was approaching the village from the direction of Lachute. Giving testimony at the inquest, he stated he was driving at a reasonable speed when he saw the victim walking on the asphalt road-surface 20 or 30 feet ahead, in the path of his car. He clamped on the brakes and swerved to avoid him, but Laurin was struck by the door-handle of the machine and hurled to the roadside. The accident occurred around 11 p.m. Saturday.

On authority of the coroner, Dr. Jules Lafleur, of Lachute, the body was brought to the Menard Funeral Parlors, where an inquest was held Sunday evening. The jurors gave a verdict of accidental death, attaching no blame to the driver of the car.

Lionel Laurin, unmarried, was a builder by trade. He was a brother of Omer and Alcidas Laurin, of Lachute, who are also engaged in the contracting business. There remain also three other brothers— Stanislas, of Carillon, Conrad of St. Jerusalem, and Arthur, in Chicago.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the Church of St. Philippe to Lachute Catholic Cemetery.

Albert Legault, traffic patrolman, of Brownsburg, and Det. Leopold Dauphin, of Lachute, investigated the fatality.

Speaker Gives Recollections of Wartime England

Brownsburg — At their regular weekly meeting, held November 14 at Carrière's Hotel, the Rotary Club of Brownsburg enjoyed an extremely interesting talk by one of its own members, Stuart Jones, well known Lachute business man. Vice-President George Zsombor was in the chair.

Mr. Jones, who served as a major in the Royal Rifles of Canada, was born in Lachute and received his primary and high school education there. After graduating from Macdonald College, St. Anne de Bellevue, he taught in Quebec City for a number of years. When war was declared in 1939 he enlisted for active service with the Royal Rifles of Canada. He later proceeded overseas.

Mr. Jones' remarks concerning his impression of the Old Country were particularly interesting. He spoke of the railroads, the speed at which they travelled, with trains following one another in close order. In one station in London alone two thousand trains arrive and depart daily. This is as many as the new central station in Montreal handles in a matter of months. The fact that there were so few accidents under black-out conditions attests to the efficiency of the system.

The fortitude of the British particularly impressed the speaker. When he arrived in England the V-1 and V-2 buzz bombs and rockets were just beginning to cause considerable damage and casualties. In spite of the horrors which had been inflicted upon them in previous years by aerial bombs, these new devices still failed to dismay them — even when their loved ones were killed or seriously injured and their entire worldly possessions, saved after many years of toil, had been utterly destroyed.

The speaker was introduced by Alec Gordon and thanked by Tom Hall.

FARM TOPICS

Edited by E. H. PETERS, B.S.A.

The Farm Workshop

Location.—The farm workshop on a modern farm should be located midway between the barn and the house. Often it is built alongside or near the implement sheds. Sometimes the workshop may serve as a garage, or may be built adjoining the garage and implement shed. The approaches should be made sufficiently wide to permit the backing of wagons and vehicles into or out of the shop.

Size—Determine the floor-space required for each tool and plan a shelter large enough to cover all of them.

Foundation — Foundations set on firm soil are generally satisfactory. Concrete mixture of one-six of cement and fine gravel is commonly used. Posts, when used, should be set in concrete placed in a barrel or nail kegs, below the frost line.

Floor. — A gravel floor filled to to 6-8 inches above ground level will suffice if building is situated on well drained soil. A concrete floor of the same formula as the foundation is desirable whenever the costs of materials will permit.

Walls. — The walls need only be heavy enough to support the roof, yet strong enough to give rigidity to the building. Vertical boards and battens on a 2" x 4" frame may be used. An inexpensive insulation can be provided with planer shavings mixed with lime, at the rate of ½ lb. hydrated lime per bushel of shavings. An exterior covering of tar paper or imitation brick asphalt sheathing will add to the appearance and make it weatherproof. The walls may also be constructed from many other types of material, including logs used in old log cabins, and lumber from dismantled buildings.

Roof. — A peak roof has an advantage of shedding snow readily, as well as the additional factor that it may serve as a storage place for lumber set on the cross-pieces. Wooden cedar shingles will last for at least 25 years, therefore are very economical roofing.

Windows. — A workshop well lighted, either by plenty of windows or by the use of electricity, makes the task of repairing equipment much easier.

Doorway. — A double doorway opening outwards is the simplest and best design available. Use heavy hinges which will support the weight of doors. A board hinged to the door acts as a door stop.

Layout. — Two wall benches 2' 6" - 3' 6" by 4' - 6", at a height 2' 6" to 3 ft. should be built. A tool rack or cabinet should be provided and secured (immediately above the bench) to the wall. A forge and anvil are often found very useful on a general farm. A piece of railroad rail can be utilized for rivetting materials.

Essential Woodworking Tools.— A jack plane, Stanley or Bailey; wooden mallet; chisels; socket type, ⅜," ¾", 1"; rule (when available); tri-square, 6"-8" blade; rip hand saw, Diston; a cross-cut hand saw; hammer, bell-faced claw type; a bench brush or whisk; a bench hook (for cutting small boards on); chisel board (home-made); nail sets; draw knife; a ratchet brace and bits, set of 13; screwdriver; a countersink; monkey wrench, 8"; pair of combination pliers, 6"; oil can; steel bar; carpenter clamps (2); steel framing square; combination India oil-stones, 6" x 2" x 1"; assorted sizes of nails and wood screws, and a home made chest of drawers to keep them sorted by sizes; a portable tool box or chest made of masonite board would be useful whenever repairs have to be made on the spot — another alternative is to make a canvas bag to carry tools to and from the field.

Cleaning Saws. — Use punice stone, water and elbow grease to remove rust.

Essential Harness - Repairing Tools. (Tools listed can be utilized in Leathercraft). A leather punch (one with rotating assorted punches); three cornered file; a jack knife with awl blade; bit-stocks, wood and metal; hollow punches; awls; shoemaker's wax; beeswax; harness thread; pricking wheel — while a creasing tool and edging tool will add a professional touch to home shop repairs.

Power Machinery (where electricity is available). — An electric power drill, bench type, taking ½" bit; circular saw; machine jointer; planer; belt sander; bandsaw and jig saw. A grindstone fitted with a pulley and a portable ¼ to ½ h.p. electric motor will be found very handy. Note, a grindstone does not burn mower and binder knives, although it takes longer than an emery wheel.

Navigation Employees Pay Sincere Tribute to Capt. Davison Weir, M.B.E., on His Retirement

A sincere tribute to Capt. J. D. (Dave) Weir, M.B.E., on his retirement after 42 years' service superintending navigation lights and buoys on the St. Lawrence waterways, was evidenced at a gathering in his honor tendered by the employees of that department at Sorel, Que. The occasion is described in "Le Sorelois" as follows:

Capt. J. D. Weir, M.B.E.

This fall, the Sorel Buoy Depot's annual oyster party had a very particular object — the retirement of Capt. J. D. Weir. . . Over 250 employees and many friends gathered on the night of the Hallowe'en to greet Capt. Weir. Léonide Robidoux, chairman, welcomed the guest of honor and expressed the employees' gratitude for all he had done for Sorel. Jean Paradis, his successor, then addressed Capt. Weir in the following terms:

Dear Captain Weir — The employees of the Department of Transport . . . have gathered here tonight to express their esteem . . . and to wish you a Happy Send-off.

Great changes have been effected in the St. Lawrence River since that day of September 1535, when the first steamboat, with a 20 ton capacity came up the river to proceed no farther than Hochelaga. Due to the invention of steam, and to good workmanship at Sorel; due to their dredges and their skilled navigators, a channel was dug through rock and sand which allowed twenty-thousand ton steamboats to reach the Metropolis of Canada and made Montreal a seaport. The lot of our century was to light up this magnificent watercourse, so as to make it safe night and day.

This major task was given in 1904 to a young man 23 years old who had just received his Captaincy. Born in Grenville, County of Argenteuil, from a family of navigators and son of a sea-going captain, young J. Davison Weir soon got acquainted with the waters of our majestic river. With very little schooling, he started work at the age of eleven on Public Works and later in the timber towing business. On joining the Department, his superior officers soon noticed his ability and his personality, with the result that five years later, in 1909, he was appointed Assistant Superintendent of Lights for the Montreal district, and promoted Superintendent of Lights and Construction in 1913.

From then on, Capt. Weir, all your efforts have been centred on the one object, to make the St. Lawrence River the best marked channel in the world — and God knows the grand success you have had! . . So much so, as to confirm this slogan: "The sun never sets on an unlighted buoy in the St. Lawrence River". During your 42 years, there has not been a major accident in the river due to faulty Aids to Navigation. These marvelous results, Capt. Weir, are due to your executive ability and your untiring labor, which brought you the name of "The Silent Worker"; you owe them also to the "bonne entente" and co-operation you have always preached to and practised with the employees of the Sorel Buoy Depot.

Now the time of your retirement has come, after half a century devoted entirely to the improvement of this waterway, which you have made "the finest and safest in the world". . . . From your Montreal office on the waterfront you will no longer hear the clanging winches and the whistling of steamers. We will miss you in Sorel, but your memory will be with us forever. . . ."

—Your Friends and Employees of the Sorel Buoy Depot

This address was accompanied by a gift of $1,000 presented upon a silver tray. Visibly touched, Capt. Weir addressed his friends in French and then in English. He thanked his employees and friends and made brief comments on his life and the many happy incidents of his long career.

Memo for Motorists

THE HAZARDS of motoring still take far too great a toll of human life. Level crossings take their share. Wet days account for other tragedies. Holiday week-ends, eagerly looked forward to by so many people, are no pleasure for the police or hospital authorities. They just mean more trouble.

And yet, the causes of accidents remain the same. A few accidents, it's true, result from mechanical troubles beyond any reasonable responsibility of the individual driver, but only too often it is the human element that is at fault.

The rules of safe driving are so simple, and have been reiterated so often, that it is indeed surprising that so many accidents result from disregard of commonsense precautions.

Obviously the most important rule of safe driving is to keep your eyes on the road ahead. What is happening on the left or right may be interesting, but its interest is not a matter of life and death. A moment's inattention may be.

Often after an accident, a motorist has said: "I just took my eyes off the road for an instant." Yet in that instant a life, perhaps, was lost.

Another important phase of driving, especially now that the days are so short, is night driving. More than half the cars now on the road are equipped with the new sealed-beam type headlights, but there are still a large number of older model cars on the road. Most motorists will have noted that the drivers of older model cars more frequently dim their headlights when approaching another car. But the owner of a newer automobile often doesn't bother to dim his lights. This means that the oncoming driver is travelling blind for a distance of perhaps a hundred feet or so. He knows where the road is, but can't see ahead. The pedestrian walking along the road hasn't a chance.

There are, of course, many other common accident causes. But by far the greater percentage of accidents stem from these two causes — a momentary inattention at any time while driving, or a careless disregard for others on the road.

Expenditures -- Public Interest

INDULGING his whims in the idle art of reminiscence, our Ottawa contributor, R. J. Deachman, has a happy recollection of the old-time municipal meetings — to which he adds an observation on more modern trends . . .

"In the old days in the Province of Ontario, municipal meetings were extremely lively. I have seen town halls at municipal meetings as full, then, as picture theatres now are. They wanted to know how every dollar had been spent. If a nickel were lost, they sent out a search-warrant for it. The same thing happened in the wider field of politics. Public meetings for the discussion of provincial and federal matters brought great crowds. The people knew something of the issues and were quite strong in their convictions.

"These days can never be re-claimed, they are gone forever. The average voter now has a different conception of government expenditures. In federal or provincial fields he is often on the side of bountiful spending in the hope that he will get something out of it for himself".

Elsewhere, Mr. Deachman remarks: "We have had all kinds of suggestions in regard to bonusing people for doing nothing. We are spending millions for that purpose, 'Family Allowances'; 'Old Age Pensions'; 'Unemployment Insurance'. Some of these things may be alright, but there's a limit. Will people who read, and editors who write, let us have suggestions that will increase the national income?"

IN THE small town, the personal contact between the policeman and the individual citizen often makes it more difficult for the officer to perform his duty, than is the case with the city officer who performs his work like a machine and actually knows few of the people over whom he has jurisdiction. — Hanna (Alta.) Herald

The 'Price Control' Picture

DONALD GORDON, Prices Board Chairman, has been delivering a series of nation-wide broadcasts on various aspects of controls—and he held out no prospect of relaxing these controls, in the two speeches he gave during the past week.

Speaking on rents, Mr. Gordon said that a boost in the rent ceiling or any easing in lease provisions in favor of landlords, would cause distress to many thousands of householders. This problem, he declared, was the biggest single headache of the Prices Board.

Some quarters professed to read between the lines of his speech an intention to work out some sort of a rise in rents other than a general one. But the board, asked by the Canadian Press about this, said nothing of the sort was in the wind except that it is continually reviewing all controls with a view to eventually revising or lifting them.

In his final speech, Mr. Gordon told the Canadian public that it was the "final arbiter" on whether Canada was to continue rent and price controls. Without the support of the Canadian people, he said, they could not be carried out.

On prices generally, the government view at Ottawa is that the climbing consumer costs in the United States are not going to land with a very heavy impact on the Canadian buyer. Before the ceilings on U.S. commodities were taken off, the move had been anticipated in this country, and several agencies had been busy building cushions and insulations against the effect of this move on the Dominion's economy.

More and More for Less and Less

("Pull Together Canada")

THERE was once a time when we thought that freedom was all we needed for democracy. Then we decided we needed freedom plus an education. And then freedom, plus an education, plus some pretty stiff anti-trust laws. Today, in England, they've decided they also need nationalization of basic industries. What can we do next to make democracy workable — and still keep democracy?

The truth is that, with freedom, more and more people tend to take less and less responsibility for their country. Under these conditions democracy can't work. What we need is people willing to take more and more responsibility for their country. And this willingness is something that education, law and nationalization do not seem to supply.

Only three things rouse this willingness and fan it into anything like eagerness. One is a common danger. The second is the promise of reward in money, power or position. The third is, plainly — love of God.

When their country is in danger men still volunteer to take responsibility for it. But we don't want to start another war to make democracy work.

Pay men a high enough salary or promise them a powerful position and they'll take responsibility. But bribing men to be responsible can't make democracy work.

There seems to be but the third alternative. If we want to keep a nation and a world free from compulsion we must rouse in men again that love for something bigger than themselves. Something which makes them willing and even eager to serve their fellows and their country when there is neither threat of danger nor the promise of reward.

LACK OF HOUSING should not be an excuse for the construction of so many of those little shacks that are going up along the main highways and other prominent locations. Steps should be taken at once to stop the construction of these buildings. They are not only an eyesore, but they are a menace to health, morals and morale. — Digby (N.S.) Courier

Treating Pupils As Individuals

By F. H. J. ROYAL

(A series of articles on "Guidance", an endeavor which has recently been introduced into the Lachute High School. Some of the credit for these articles must be given the "School Guidance Worker" published by the Vocational Guidance Centre, Toronto, and the booklet, "Treating Pupils as Individuals", by the Illinois Association of School Boards.)

Group Work

There can be an economy of time and effort if common information which is likely to become a phase of any individual counseling is brought together and presented to groups. This includes important educational and vocational information which governs the decisions and activities of the students and is not normally a part of subject teaching.

An analysis of the school program, school regulations, elective choices, extra-curricular activities available, educational requirements to enter higher institutions, and occupational information; all of these and others represent areas of information which are good for all students to have and would consequently not be the kind for which individual counseling time should be taken to give them. . .

Every opportunity is taken to present occupational information on an extensive basis. This is done in the assumption that the time at which young people make occupational decisions varies. It is necessary therefore to provide a continuing group program which gives occupational information. Good economy in a school guidance program demands that the common elements of a counseling program be presented on such a group basis.

Follow-up

A follow-up of students who have left school also becomes a part of the guidance program. This should be done at intervals on a comprehensive basis in order to be able to evaluate what the school has done and is doing. School board members should be particularly interested in this phase of the guidance work since it is not only a distinct part of the public relations program but also because it provides specific clues with respect to the good features of the school as well as to those phases that may need improvement. Such follow-up studies must be well planned and should aim to accomplish a specific purpose. Here again many schools can be accused of conducting such studies without any intention of using the results.

Co-operation With Community Resources

It must be understood that in order to help individuals in a school situation, the school is not able to fulfill all of the needs required by students. This means that all community and area agencies which may be used as resources in helping the student should be organized in such a way that the schools may use their services. Guidance workers should know how to evaluate them and use them. Community or county clinics, welfare agencies, libraries, scholarship organizations, recreation facilities, churches, service clubs, employers, and employment agencies; all of these and many others within the urban community or rural area are a part of the guidance program of the school and should be used in the educational growth of the student. In fact, the community as a whole with all these agencies may be a much greater total educational factor than formal schooling alone.

The school cannot do the job alone. It is a community program in which the school, as one agency, works with the entire community in carrying out its educational responsibilities in the interest of the child. School board members and parents probably often fail to recognize this aspect of the guidance program. This type of co-operation with other resources in the community makes it possible for a school to go beyond its own walls in guaranteeing a maximum educational development of each young person.

We can, therefore, say with reasonable confidence that a school system that has and uses a comprehensive cumulative-record system, an individual-counseling program carried on by the teaching staff as well as special counselors, a well-organized group-counseling program which aims to give important information throughout the school life of the student and which provides for opportunities to develop personal and social relationships, an intelligent use of other community agencies, and a program of placement, follow-up and in-service training — has the elements necessary to build a good guidance program.

In-service Training

Since many aspects of the guidance program as it has been previously discussed are comparatively new and changing quite often, it is necessary and wise that each school system plan an in-service training program of the school. This should be done at regular intervals and special effort should be made to bring in specialists who will not only tell about recent developments but will conduct discussions with the faculty, school board members, and parents if possible. It is only as this is done that a wholesome and consistent growth on the part of the entire school system is made possible. Special courses taken by certain individuals of the faculty are good, but often tend to create some negative attitudes on the part of those of the faculty who have not had such courses.

One of us

THE COOK WHO FEEDS MILLIONS OF CANADIANS
YES, he's an important man in our industry. Hundreds of thousands of our woods workers have heard the bang of his spoon on the frying pan and his welcome "come and get it".
His name? Well, it might be MacNair or Jolicoeur or Karowski — it's not important. What is important is that his "come and get it" echoes, not merely in our logging camps throughout the country, but in the household of every Canadian.
Why? Because his work — our work — produces expenditures of $300 million yearly by our industry. These benefit every worker in Canada. Amongst all Canadian manufacturers, pulp and paper stands first in employment, first in expenditures, first in exports, and first in net value of production. Thus our industry is the greatest single factor in Canada's prosperity.
Every Canadian has a stake in the success of our work.

Funeral of Lifelong Avoca Resident

Late George Bates Kelly

A lifetime resident of Avoca, George Bates Kelly, husband of Christine McIntyre, passed away November 7 and was buried at the cemetery in that community on November 9. He was a lifetime resident of Avoca, where he was born in December 1873.

IN MEMORIAM

STEELE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, David George Steele, who passed away November 21, 1945.

"In heaven there was a vacant seat,
An empty crown was there,
The Angel's eyes were turned to earth
In search of one the crown to wear.
They fell on one too good for earth,
On one we loved so dear,
And took him to his heavenly home
And left us lonely here.

"We should not grieve so, this we know,
But our dear Daddy, we miss you so;
Your cheery smile, your thoughtful ways
That used to gladden all our days.
Often to the graveside we wander,
And picture your face so dear,
In sorrow we stand and whisper
'We are lonesome for you, Daddy dear'."

Loved and longed for by Mama and Violet.

STEELE — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law, who passed away one year ago today. — Ever remembered by his sister-in-law, Ethel and family.

STEELE — In loving memory of our dear brother, David George Steele, who passed away November 21, 1945. — Ever remembered by his sister, Mabel, Bill and family.

"You were upright and just in all your ways,
Faithful and true to the end of your days,
In silence you suffered, in patience you bore,
But God has called you to suffer no more
Rest in peace, dear brother, thy cares are ended
Rest in peace, dear brother, thy work is done.
You are gone, but we who loved you
Are coming one by one".

STEELE — In loving memory of David Steele, who passed away November 21, 1945. — Sadly missed and ever remembered by his sister, Gertrude, brother-in-law John, nieces Vivian, Marjorie, and nephew Douglas.

Wind Tunnels Boost Butter Production

Increase Vitamin Content of Specially-Treated Hay

Melfort, Sask. (CP) — Aeronautics scientists haven't anything on agriculture experts at the Melfort experimental station. They, too, have their wind tunnel.

The tunnel is set up in the hay loft of the barn on the experimental station here, about 100 miles northeast of Saskatoon. The hay will be dried by air pumped through the width of the loft.

Drying of hay under cover affects vitamin count of butter yielded by cows fed the fodder prepared under this method. Hay dried out of doors loses much of its vital content.

M. J. MacPhail, superintendent of the station since its inception 10 years ago, says that it has been proven that there is four times the amount of vitamin in butter from cows fed hay with "good color" compared with butter from cows fed "weathered" hay.

Another angle to be tested with the artificially dried hay is the effect of proper feeding on cattle breeding problems now being experienced.

Tests with fertilizer at the station have shown a marked increase in yield for lands so treated. On a six year average, summer fallow fields fertilized showed an increase in yield of six bushels per acre. Barley grown under similar treatment increased nine bushels an acre on a five year average.

Mr. McPhail, emphasized the need for good farm practice, pointing out that in this Carrot Valley district, this spring was the first time that reseeding was necessary due to soil drifting.

He said that as long as land continues to produce, most farmers are not inclined to look beyond the next year or two. But soil damage is like tuberculosis.

"It is something that creeps up slowly and when you have one good dry spring, you learn how sick the soil is."

Industry will be either the cradle or grave of post-war democracy.

"THE BLUE GOOSE"
Based upon a picture painted for Carling's by T. M. Shortt, the well-known Canadian Ornithologist and one of a series of subjects on the conservation of Canada's natural assets.
† COPYRIGHT BY CARLING'S, 1946

"Thank You, Jack Miner!"

Northward in the spring to the vast solitudes of the Baffin Land breeding grounds, southward in the fall to Louisiana, the Blue Goose wings his way across the uncounted years.

He remains part of the bounty which nature has bestowed upon Canada, only because such men as Jack Miner of Kingsville, Ontario, set up game sanctuaries, and because wise game laws were devised to protect all migratory waterfowl against the tragedy of reckless slaughter.

The Blue Goose is part of the vast heritage of natural beauty . . . of Nature Unspoiled . . . to which every Canadian falls heir and which each one of us must help to conserve. This we can do only by improving our knowledge of what to do . . . and when and how to do it.

Conservation is not just a doctrine to be preached to hunters and fishermen. It is a vital part in the continuance of our national economy, and must, of necessity, fail if its measures do not receive the full support of all Canadian citizens.

Urge Fallen Heroes of Later War be Named On 1914-18 Memorials

That memorials erected in memory of those who paid the supreme sacrifice in World War I should be modified to include those who fell in World War II, is included in a resolution sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King by the Dominion Executive Council of the Canadian Legion.

This is similar to the change made in England recently when His Majesty unveiled the Cenotaph showing a plaque with World War II dates added.

The Legion voices an appeal to all Dominion, provincial and municipal authorities throughout Canada that where memorials connected with the Great War of 1914-18 have been erected, they take steps to add suitable wording, and where the names of those who paid the supreme sacrifice in World War I are mentioned, the names of those who fell in World War II be added.

Sodalite Deposit Near Ontario Town

Bancroft, Ont. (CP) — The world's largest and richest deposit of sodalite — a semi-precious mineral used in the costume jewelry trade — is reported near this Hastings County town about 50 miles northeast of Peterborough.

Thomas Morrison, part owner of the mine which has lain idle for nearly three decades, said a great wealth of minerals lies in Peterborough, Hastings and Haliburton counties, other stones include garnets, amazon stones, perthite molybdenite, nephelite and dolomite, besides marble and granite.

Morrison came to Canada from his native Scotland in 1905 with a commission from Sir Charles Allom, decorator for the royal family, to stake a claim for sodalite, which Princess Mary — now the Queen Mother — thought an excellent material for interior decoration.

He found a blue sodalite formation three miles east of Bancroft and operated it under the name of "Princess Quarries", for two years, shipping 150 tons of the mineral to London in blocks and loose fragments. The Queen Mother had clock cases made from it as well as several mantelpieces in Buckingham Palace.

Some of the mineral was sent to Germany, where it was made into beads, tiny elephants and ashtrays.

Echoes of Legion's 1946 Dominion Conference

The following report of the 11th Dominion Convention of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, held last May in Quebec City, is a graphic account by W. Stuart Jones, official delegate of Argenteuil Branch 70, presented at a subsequent meeting of that body. Mr. Jones' impressions are still in timely accord with the enthusiasm and growing prestige of the Legion, and his account will be presented for its public interest, in two or three instalments commencing with this issue.

The trains from Montreal to Quebec carried many lively groups of veterans, from many parts of Canada, going to the Ancient Capital to study the problems of all veterans in this vast country of ours. The way the old and new veterans got together on the train was a sure forecast of how successfully they would work together at the convention.

On Sunday morning registration of the 1137 delegates took place. At 2 p.m. a great parade was formed up on Dufferin Terrace. It was a great sight — old veterans, their chests bedecked with medals, "fell in" with a smartness that belied their years, and new veterans were so proud to have earned a place in their honored ranks. First came the color parties of branches of the British Empire League from the United States — some of them having come all the way from California — next, Canadian color parties; then the U.S.A. delegates; next the delegates from each of the provinces, with Quebec last, as we were hosts this year to all the other provinces; and bringing up the rear were contingents of the regiments of Military District No. 5. The parade was led by the Band of the Royal Rifles of Canada.

The parade was called to attention and we marched off. The streets were lined with cheering crowds to welcome us. Wreaths were placed on the monument to the fallen in the South African War, and at the Cross of Sacrifice to the fallen of the first Great War. On arriving at the Plains of Abraham we were formed up for a special "Drumhead Service". This was short but impressive, with short messages both in English and in French. On the return march "The Salute" was taken at the Cross of Sacrifice, and the parade was dismissed at Dufferin Terrace.

On Sunday night the official of the 1,137 delegates took place. place in the Palais Montcalm. Any who know this building will agree how suitable an auditorium it is for such an occasion. What a scene — row after row of happy veterans, in berets of many colrs. The stage was banked with huge flags, and lining each side wall were many provincial police with blue uniforms, white helmets and white Sam Browns. While waiting for the Governor-General and party to arrive, the crowd spontaneously gave forth in song. Never were "It's a Long Way to Tipperary", "Pack Up Your Troubles", "K-K-K-Katie", "Roll Out the Barrel", "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" and "Old Soldiers Never Die" sung with more volume and gusto than they were by that huge audience! The boys were happy — they had something to celebrate, and they did just that, as only a group who have known heartaches, trials and troubles, and together have come home triumphant.

"Attention!" rang out. Everyone sprang to attention. Down the aisles marched His Excellency Field Marshal the Right Honorable Viscount Alexander of Tunis, G.C.B., Governor-General of Canada. His Excellency took his place in the front row and we all stayed at Attention while the Act of Remembrance took place. (Every meeting of a Canadian Legion Branch is opened and closed with this tribute to fallen comrades). This Act of Remembrance was one we never will forget. The lights were turned out, and on a screen on the flag-banked stage was thrown the scene of a graveyard, somewhere in Europe, with the rows of neat white crosses stretching as far as the eye could see. The huge assembly was hushed and tense — the organ quietly gave forth "Abide With Me" — a voice from the darkness, quietly but firmly recited a verse from Binyon's Immortal Lines — then a bugler with muffled bugle sounded "The Last Post"; as the last note seemed to die away a choir of male voices without accompaniment sang "O Valiant Hearts". In conclusion "Reveille" was sounded, the lights came on, and the Act of Remembrance was over — but, we were left as if in a spell by its impressiveness.

The opening ceremonial continued with the introduction of distinguished guests. This was followed by a Tribute to New Veterans, and was replied to by Capt. Allan Piper, of Cornwall, Ont. — a veteran who lost both hands in this war and who is a member of the Dominion Command. Next followed the presentation of a life membership to His Excellency the Governor-General. In his short speech, His Excellency's main points were his plea for "strength and unity" of old and new veterans, pointing out that it was the duty of new veterans to step into office alongside he old veterans, and it alongside the old veterans, and it show the new veteran "the ropes" in the organization and then to carry on "shoulder to shoulder". His Excellency closed by stating that we belonged to the "most exclusive organization in the world" because nobody could buy his way in — the one requisite being "that a man or woman has willingly served his country under arms". We all left the Palais Montcalm with the conviction that this convention had surely got off to a start on "the right foot".

Radar vs Smugglers

London — Hardly a month passes without some new adaptions of radar in Britain, birthplace of this scientific wonder. United Kingdom revenue cutters are now being fitted with radar for the purpose of combatting smuggling around the coasts of the United Kingdom. The first cutter to be so equipped - she bears the significant name of "Vigilant" — has her headquarters in the Thames estuary at Gravesend, and she will patrol between south-east England and the Continent. It is common knowledge that radar penetrates the thickest fog and it should therefore prove to be a very valuable weapon in the fight against smugglers and their methods.

If you don't want to fight again, fight to carry out the principles you fought for.

AMATEURS BUILD STURDY TUGBOAT

Five Youths Beat Shortages To Launch 42-Foot Craft

Vancouver (CP) — Five young amateur boat builders who disregarded the advice of experts today have a sturdy 42-foot tugboat launched and ready for use, despite shortages of materials and tools.

Armed with little more than a power bandsaw and their own perseverance, the young men started last December to build the vessel on the beach at Hopkins Landing, B.C., on the shore of Howe Sound, about 25 miles north of Vancouver.

The hull of the vessel is made from fir logs sawn on the spot. Her ribs are of yellow cedar, and cabin fittings of mahogany. Practically all of the ship's chandlery is hand-made.

The tug, named the Big Horn, was built in an open cradle and launched with the aid of a tractor. Builders and owners of the tugboat, valued at $20,000, are Ted, Dick, Don and Joe Pool and George Walsh. None of the young men is a professional shipwright, although Walsh had worked in shipyards in Toronto. All came to Vancouver about three years ago from Eastern Canada.

Sea Fish Fattened by Aid of Fertilizer

Scientists Claim Chemicals Increase Weight of Catch Five-fold

Edinburgh (CP) — By fertilizing the sea, four Edinburgh University scientists claim to have grown fish as much as five times their normal size and have approached British authorities to support a project for cultivating larger fish in the open sea.

Using one enclosed and one open Scottish lock with access to the sea, the professors began in 1942 by dumping quantities of sodium nitrate, superphosphate and ammonium sulphate in the water. They found it was distributed throughout the locality by the sea but was not carried away by the tides. Growth of plankton — tiny organisms essential to fish life — was stimulated five times.

The result was a corresponding increase in the size of the fish. Plaice increased in weight from three to five times the normal, while flounders averaged four times.

Specially Written for The Watchman By FRED KERNER

When sports fans gather for a chin-wag, the question often comes up, what is the prime factor to be considered when it comes to figuring sports from the fans' viewpoint. That is, from what sport does the spectator get the best return for the money he invests?

A bit of figuring of cost, added to the excitement, thrill and satisfaction derived, brought this breakdown:

1. For a World Series baseball game the cost of a reserved seat is $5.50.
2. A Stanley Cup hockey playoff seat would run to about $5.
3. For a top-notch football game — say a Grey Cup semi-final or final — seat cost is about $3.50.
4. A lacrosse Mann Cup final would take about $3 for a seat.
5. Entrance to an open golf contest is approximately $2.
6. An international polo match would cost about $5.
7. Championship basket b a l l game seats cost in the vicinity of $2.50.
8. Dominion tennis finals tickets are about $2.50.

One day's events at the Olympics took about $3.

10. A box seat for the King's Plate or any other top horse race event runs under $5.

Then the obvious question is why should seats at title boxing matches sell at anything from $10 to $100 when generally the contestants involved are far below the average skill of the baseball, hockey, football, golf and other sports stars.

Outside of Joe Louis, one of the greatest champions of all time, boxing has few contestants who even come close to the ability of men who star from month to month on the diamond, the ice, the gridiron or what-have-you, in sports which call for just as much speed, skill, stamina, nerve, courage and brains as boxing demands.

Yet Billy Conn drew more than $300,000 for less than 24 minutes' work against Joe Louis not so long ago, after almost five years of inactivity. Tami Mauriello netted himself more than $100,000 for exactly two minutes and nine seconds against the heavyweight champ, during which time he landed one good punch.

That is far more money than any of the baseball greats ever made in an entire season, and in many cases over the whole of their careers. It is far more money than other sports stars make during a lifetime — and we mean stars who are hustling month after month, season after season.

The only answer to the question why these men seem to rate more mazuma for their second-rate abilities is that the public is willing to pay.

The sports public, in some cases, apparently isn't very smart. No law exists anywhere which forces a person to pay far more than a show is worth. The public itself is the only agent that can handle the situation.

How is a TOOTHBRUSH

...They're both made of nylon... the toothbrush bristles from sturdy, wear-proof nylon monofilament and the stocking from nylon yarn... two different applications of the same chemical substance. Both are telling examples of the manner in which chemistry, through ceaseless pioneering and research, develops new materials and shapes them to widely varied uses. From basic substances the men of chemistry continue to evolve new products of greater beauty, utility, efficiency and economy to bring you better living.

Looking Ahead

with death for mustard weed...deodorized manure... and light that bends.

Death for mustard weed: "Blasting a path of hope across weed-infested grain fields" is the way in which the Calgary Herald front-paged experiments made with C-I-L "Herbate" 2-4,D. Just ten days after spraying the test field, a mass of moisture-stealing mustard weed completely withered and died leaving the grain to grow unmolested.

Fortified manure: Barnyard manures need no longer be deficient in phosphate content. The chemical product known as C-I-L Stable-Phos, economically fortifies the manure, preserving valuable nitrogen and at the same time has powerful deodorizing properties which makes its use most desirable.

Light that bends: That wonderful, crystal-like plastic, "Lucite", has many desirable properties, not the least of which is its ability to conduct light around corners. When you bend a "Lucite" rod the light actually bends with it and shines out of the end. Thus "Lucite" is invaluable for dentists' instruments and is being used increasingly for interior lighting effects and for ornaments.

Further information on any of these products is obtainable by writing "Looking Ahead" C-I-L, P.O. Box 10, Montreal.

Missionary Speaker at Brownsburg W.M.S. Thank-Offering Service

Brownsburg — The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church at their annual thank-offering service last Sunday morning had as their speaker Mrs. Alice Westnidge, of St. Andrews East, now a year back from China where she spent some 38 years in missionary work, first under the auspices of the Door of Hope Mission, to which she had gone with her husband the Rev. Harry Westnidge, from England. Since the death of her husband in 1941, Mrs. Westnidge had been with the China Inland Mission, except the last two and a half years, which period she spent in a Japanese internment camp. Mrs. Westnidge gave a thrilling account of their experiences under Japanese camp treatment, but pointed out the difference between their internment and that of the Prisoners of War. This formed an interesting prelude to the missionary story, which testified that all the miracles of God's love and power were not confined to either Old or New Testament times. And whether it was amid the difficulties of missionary work or confined to an internment camp, Mrs. Westnidge's recollections rang with the "buoyancy of faith and joy that God had never left Himself without witness".

The service was conducted on Sunday morning by the president, Mrs. T. G. Pasco, assisted by Mrs. R. B. Johnson, who read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. H. Zimmer, who offered prayer. The minister, the Rev. S. J. Pike, introduced the speaker and closed the service with the benediction.

The Y.P.U. concert, scheduled for Friday evening, December 13, is not by any means clouded in superstition, for the items being arranged bespeak one of the most successful entertainments yet held. The Lachute High School Glee Club, under leadership of Earle Morrison, will have a major role, and other artists will contribute to the program, apart from the talent of the Y.P.U. itself.

Farewell Presentation To Rev. E. C. Royle on Leaving Weir Parish

Weir, Que. — On Friday evening, November 15, the congregation and friends of the Church of the Redeemer, Weir, together with Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Henry of Arundel, gathered in the church hall at a farewell party for the Rev. E. C. Royle, who leaves this week to take up his duties in his new parish at Hudson.

A supper was served by the ladies, after which Mrs. E. Schippel called upon Dr. Henry, who in an appropriate speech expressed the regret of the people at Mr. Royle's departure. He then presented Mr. Royle with a gift of $50 as a slight token of remembrance and appreciation for his services rendered during his stay in the community.

Mr. Royle thanked the people for their generous gift, and said he already had two very treasured gifts from this congregation, namely, the watch and stole which were presented to him at the time he entered the armed services — and remarked that with this gift of money he hoped to purchase two additional stoles, which he had long been wishing for.

The Rev. Royle came to this parish six years ago, but during this time he spent two and a half years as chaplain in the armed services, being padre to the Black Watch Regiment in action. He returned to the parish again early in February of this year.

Dr. Henry expressed regret that Mrs. Royle and children could not be present at this gathering, but owing to a recent bereavement Mrs. Royle had been called away to her home in Montreal.

The good wishes of their many friends will accompany the Rev. and Mrs. Royle and family in their new parish.

S.A. Citadel Band Special Feature for Baptist Saturday Rally

In addition to many group numbers, there will be piano accordion, cornet and vocal solos.

Major Hartas, a dymanic speaker, will bring the message.

Last week there was a record attendance at the Baptist Youth Rally. Everyone is advised to come early if they would be sure of a seat. This service is open to the general public.

Special Services for Sunday, Anniversary of Lachute United Church

The seventh anniversary of the opening of the present church building, and the 114th anniversary of the founding of the congregation, will be observed by special services in Lachute United Church next Sunday. The guest preacher at the morning service will be the Rev. D. M. Grant, B.A., the popular and talented minister of St. Andrew's United Church, Westmount. In the evening the minister will preach on, "A Man Sent from God".

An anniversary congregational social will be held on Tuesday, November 26, at 8 p.m. A short program will be rendered and refreshments will be served.

Kilroy Was There Till Whistle Blew

Absentee Virginia Mule Knows When to Quit

Richmond, Va. (CP) — The Old Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, seeking to add a pastoral touch to the drab surroundings of Bell Isle under the arches of Richmond's Robert E. Lee bridge across the James, planted sweet corn between two mill buildings. They brought in Kilroy.

Kilroy is a mule and as a corn-cultivating instrument he was adequate. He had one shortcoming — he interpreted the blast of a whistle as knock-off time.

Trains aplenty puff along the industrial James and Kilroy's absenteeism became chronic.

General Manager A. A. Adock, ordered Kilroy penned when not shepherded by a plowman. A three-sided enclosure fronting the James was built. Kilroy dug under and bellied through. The fence was strengthened, but Kilroy dove into the the water and swam barrier free land.

Inspiring Week of Mission Devotions

The "Mission of Preaching and Teaching" closed at St. Simeon's Church on Sunday evening, 17th. It was an interesting experiment, fully in accord with the spirit of the age, to examine the things of old and test their worth. This testing was attempted in a real spirit of co-operation between Missioner and people. The attendance kept up steadily throughout, and although the church was never full except on the Sundays, the intent listening, hearty singing and interesting questions raised, indicated an eagerness on the part of all to make good use of the Mission.

The Rev. Canon F. S. Powles, M.A., B.D., was special Missioner for this week of devotion and meditation.

The program of teaching followed an outline of the Apostles' Creed, and the theme for each service was reinforced by psalms, hymns and prayers. Each night there was a meditation upon the Lord's Prayer.

The themes considered were as follows — The Goodness of God's Creation; Man's Misuse of God's Gifts; Sin, Man's Disregard of God's Will; The Gift of Jesus, God's Cure for Sin; The Cross in History and our Lives; The Power of the Resurrection; and finally, at the Sunday services, Loyalty to Jesus, and Our Heritage in the Church.

The peak of the Mission was reached on the Sunday, with celebration of Holy Communion. The sermon in the morning was devoted to the meaning of the Oath which was taken as a soldier of Jesus Christ in the "Sacramentum" of Baptism and Holy Communion. The Missioner drew attention to the life of our Lord as a demonstration of the sacramental system which He afterwards instituted in His Church — He being born of Mary and of the Holy Spirit. He noted the use of sacraments in the healing mission of our Lord. Just as Jesus offered the Passover bread and wine, so we too offer our bread and wine for His use, and they represent before Him our toil and suffering in His cause; that as we receive these treasures of His body and blood, so we test our loyalty before and by their reception, using the words of St. Paul, "Let a man examine himself and so let him eat of that bread and drink of that cup" (1.Cor.11vs.28); and in this reception we test our loyalty to the grand conception of the Church Universal, where race hatreds sink to nothing and color becomes no bar. We all share His life.

On the Sunday evening the Missioner showed how our Lord founded His Church on the Twelve Apostles, each representing a tribe of Isreal and so carrying forward the heritage of the Chosen People and their part in divine revelation. The Christian ministry inherited the same sacred principle and mission. All of the first apostles and martyrs were Jews, a debt we should never forget at any time, but particularly in these times of anti-Semitism. We have a debt towards the Jewish people to pay back in honest missionary effort for their well-being. Then of all the figures under which the Church is portrayed by St. Paul, the Missioner emphasized that of the Body, as the one which showed our necessity for unity, mobility, and loyalty one to another and to Christ. This was the active aggressive principle which we must bear in mind as being the Heritage of the Church. A Church which lived and worshipped to itself was a dead limb in reality, and if our influence does not reach beyond the confines of our parish, we come under that condemnation. The building of a new Church was a necessity for our local life, but if it meant only brick and stones, even its beauty and benefits would be of no effect. "The spirit quickeneth", said Jesus, and that spirit so evident in the past of the Christian Church must be, and is, ours today if we will use it.

Because of the continued and unavoidable shortages of various materials, production of new cars and trucks has remained behind our expectations. As a result, shipments of new cars and trucks to dealers for delivery are still far below the level we and the factory had hoped to attain by this time.

We know that General Motors is doing everything possible to step up its production totals — to ship more and more cars and trucks to us and to its hundreds of other dealers throughout Canada . . . and we know, too, that we are assured of getting our full proportionate share of the current and future output.

Of this you may be sure: We shall continue to make deliveries of cars and trucks to our customers as fast as we receive them; we regret delays as deeply as you do; we thank you for your friendly patience and understanding; and we promise you a new high motoring experience when you do take delivery of your new General Motors car or truck.

Keep Your Present Car or Truck Running

Meanwhile, may we suggest that you safeguard your transportation by bringing your car or truck to us for service now and at regular intervals. Let us help you to keep it in good running condition—to maintain its performance, appearance and resale value—until the day when your new General Motors car or truck comes along.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Housewives Can Choose Meats for Tasty, Thrifty Menus

It is commonly thought that, to have meats which are tender and flavorful, choice cuts selling at top prices must be used. However, the thrifty home-maker knows that the tougher cuts, when correctly cooked and judiciously seasoned, give tastier results at a considerable saving.

Anyone can broil a steak, but it takes an artist to brew a stew. Stews go by many names in many countries. They have a popularity that knows no international boundaries. The Hungarian goulash, the French ragout, the English beef stew and American meat pie are all stews, with that delicious flavor which comes from long, slow cooking using moist heat. A touch of garlic makes a good seasoning and the liquid may be either tomato juice or the juice from cooked vegetables. A potato topping for meat pies is an excellent substitute for the pastry crust we miss these days.

Another good old favorite on Canadian dinner tables is the pot roast. When the vegetables are cooked with the meat, it makes a complete main course, that requires little attention while cooking. A "bouquet" of herbs, such as thyme, bay leaf and parsley, tied in cheesecloth, points up the flavor. Other seasonings which may be used, are horseradish, Worcestershire sauce, garlic, chili-sauce, or such spices as cloves or mustard. By basting a pot roast during the cooking with the spiced liquid from pickled fruits or vegetables a pleasing flavor is achieved.

If the meat, either in a stew or pot roast, is braised first, a rich color and flavor is given to the meat and gravy. The Consumer Section at Ottawa gives the following rules for braising:

Season meat with salt and pepper. Dredge (or sprinkle) with flour — if desired. Brown meat on all sides in hot fat. Add only a small amount of liquid, replenish as it cooks away. Cover tightly to retain moisture. Cook at simmering temperature (below boiling point) on top of range or in a slow oven, until tender.

Savoury Pot Roast

4 lbs. Beef (blade, chuck, short rib, round or rump), 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons fat, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1½ cups boiling water or tomato juice, 1 teaspoon suicy meat sauce, 1 bay leaf, 1 onion, 4 raw carrots grated, 1 sprig parsley, 3 sticks celery.

Dredge meat with flour. Brown in hot fat in heavy kettle or Dutch oven. Add water, meat sauce and bay leaf. Grate carrots and chop other vegetables together until very fine. Add to meat, cover and simmer until meat is tender, about 2½ to 3 hours. Add additional boiling water during cooking if needed.

Note: Veal or lamb may be used, instead of beef. Six servings.

Lamb Ragout

2 lbs. Lamb (breast or shoulder), ¼ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, dash of ground cloves, 2 tablespoons fat, ½ cup onion, chopped, 3 cups water, 6 medium carrots quartered, 1 cup celery chopped, 1 tablespoon spicy meat sauce, 1 teaspoon salt.

Cut lamb into 1-inch pieces. Remove as much fat from lamb as possible. Dredge meat with flour, to which has been added the salt, pepper and a dash of ground cloves. Brown the meat with the onions in hot fat. Add water and simmer in covered pan until tender. Skim off fat, add vegetables, sauce and salt. Cover and continue cooking until vegetables are tender. Serve with dumplings. Six servings.

HEED SCHOOL PATROLS

School traffic patrols are again on the streets and they deserve the full co-operation of pedestrians, both adults and students, as well as that of all drivers of vehicles, whether they be of the two or four-wheel variety.

FASHION HINTS

Peplums and curved and cut-away hems are some of the garnishings that add interest to the tunic or long torso jacket that marks so many of the current crop of suits. Light, creamy tan woollen is used for this very urbane suit, its long torso jacket decked out with a double peplum. It features high placed pockets outlined with decorated seaming that describe deep triangles on the bodice which uses black jet buttons as a smart color contrast. A high-necked black satin blouse is worn with the slim-skirted suit.

Plan All-Home Team for Lachute Hockey Set-Up

"AT THE ARENA"
By John Dunne

The Lachute Hockey Club for the big league has been completely re-organized for the coming season. There will be one club to represent Lachute and Lachute Mills. Only players who reside or work in these centres will be invited to turn out for the team. The new slate of directors will be —

Hon. pres., Georges H. Héon, K.C.; pres., Philippe Roy; vice-pres., W. S. MacKimmie; manager, Georges Bédard; head coach, Joe Berniquer; asst. playing coach, Ronald Hebert; asst. playing coach, Jerry Donnelly; physical training instructor, Del Mitchell; secretary, Guy Gosselin; financial adviser, John Dunne.

Players who are being invited to turn out include the following — Frank Bédard, Gordie Boyd, Ronald Hebert, Jack MacKimmie, Maurice Beauregard, Colin McOuat, Basil Riddell, Rolland Gervais, Réal Desjardins, Gaston Millette, Jean Millette, Dick Muir, Kenny Dawson, Rolland Prairie, Owen Riddell, Real Landriault, Maurice Campeau, Jerry Donnelly, Romeo Gauthier, Paul MacFarlane, Pitou Girard, Sonny Ogilvie, John Wilson, Laurent Brasseur and Jack Ogilvie. Any other player interested is invited to telephone Georges Bédard, 653-J, or John Dunne at the Arena.

A meeting of the executive and players will be called for sometime next week in order to explain the policy of this club, and nightly practices will take place when ice is available at the Arena, in order that all aspirants will have an equal chance to make the team. Practices will also take place two and three times weekly throughout the season. The old saying that "practice makes perfect" should assure the Lachute public of a strong, well balanced club, made up 100% of young fellows who live in these parts.

Laurentian League Meeting Tomorrow

"A meeting will be held Friday evening, November 22, at nine o'clock in the Windsor Hotel, Lachute, of the representatives of the Laurentian Hockey League. These will include — Messrs. Leo and Alfred Laurin for the Belle Riviere club, last year's champions; Dr. A. Perrier and Charles Berthiaume, for Hawkesbury; representatives from St. Jerome, and Georges Bédard and Joe Berniquer for Lachute. The Arena will be represented by John Dunne.

All games may be played in the Arena, and a complete schedule will be drawn up by the writer subject to approval of the above mentioned representatives, and published in the forthcoming Lachute Arena Annual. Details and officers of this league will be listed shortly in The Watchman.

School League

Lachute High School is entered in a newly formed school league; the team will again play their home games at the Arena, on Saturday afternoons. Mr. E. H. Peters, of the H.S. staff, is a real sports enthusiast and it is forecast he should produce a strong club to represent the school in a league comprised of Hudson, Shawville, Buckingham, Aylmer and Lachute.

Digby town council at their regular meeting passed a resolution calling for immediate and decisive action to wipe out the use of punchboards in the town.

Kilroy Was There At Brownsburg Teens-20's Dance

Brownsburg—Climaxing a week of feverish activity by the Teens and 20's committee, during which time the ordinarily sedate town of Brownsburg was "blitzed" with signs and posters — the Sadie Hawkins Dance, held recently, provided one of the most entertaining events of the year. The success of the venture was due in part to the novel nature of the dance, where, according to Lil Abner tradition, the girls reigned supreme and the men for the night were the under dog-patchers. Brownsburg's teen-agers and young adults rose happily to the occasion, with the males sporting corsages ranging from horse-radishes to baby rattles, and enjoying all the privileges usually extended to the fairer sex.

Highlight of the evening came when Sam Rose, armed with oversize calipers and a witty tongue, proceeded to evaluate the finer points of the male contestants competing for the corsage and "beauty" contest. The four female judges finally picked the orange and apple-peel corsage worn by Johnny Assad for the most original creation, and Réal Brunelle dressed up as "Hairless Joe" for the "beauty" contest winner. Most of the crowd wore dog-patched clothes of one sort or another, with Jean Damant taking top honors for the best girl's outfit. Don Reid's popular orchestra and an excellent set of square dances proved riotous entertainment for the participants, and it seemed that newcomers continued to jam the Social Club until the night ended at 1.15 a.m.

This dance was the Teens and 20's first big effort to give publicity to their laudable activities, and the large number of young adults present gave ample proof of the potentialities of the organization. Their support of the regular bi-weekly dances held at and sponsored by the Brownsburg Social and Athletic Club, will help to ensure the continued success of the Brownsburg Teens and 20's club.

Variety of Topics At W. I. Meetings Held This Month

Interest Keen in All Branches of Organization

Arundel — There was an attendance of 19 members and three visitors at the meeting of this branch. Two new members were welcomed by the president. A "military whist", held on November 6, proved a social and financial success. A "nearly new" table of articles donated by members netted the sum of $3.95. A flag was donated to the Institute by Mrs. Bulley.

Brownsburg had 23 members and one visitor present at their meeting. Mr. Georges H. Héon, K.C., M.P., gave an interesting talk on "Legal Protection for Women in Quebec". Members visited the pasteurization plant of Adrien Lacasse, afterwards being entertained to tea.

Frontier branch had 28 members, two visitors and five children present. The roll-call caused much merriment, being answered by a joke. An interesting current event was read, also a paper on "The Power and Freedom of the Press", given by the publicity convener, Mrs. Graham. A word-making contest was held, with prizes given.

Jerusalem-Bethany.—There were 20 members present at this meeting. A paper was read by the convener, "What is Canada ? What is a Canadian?" Plans were made to hold a card party. Names were exchanged for gifts, also plans made to serve lunch to the Laurentian Ayrshire Club. The sum of $5 was voted to the Salvation Army, and $5 for the county scholarship for Lachute High School. Another parcel was sent to England, under the "personal parcel" scheme.

Lachute branch had 33 members present. This branch is sending a 20-lb. parcel to a needy family in England, also donating the cost of a power-driven saw for Lachute High School manual-training. Another fine selection of books from the McGill Library has arrived. Eleven brides from overseas were presented with an overthrow, the presentation being followed by a musical program and afternoon tea. A letter was sent to the M.P. of the constituency, regarding inflation.

Lakefield meeting was attended by 11 members and one visitor. Blue Cross fees and Service Fund moneys were handed in. Fruit had been sent to a member who was ill. Names were drawn for an exchange of Christmas gifts at the December meeting.

Mille Isles had an attendance of five members and one visitor. Flowers were sent to two members in hospital. The convener of Education read a paper on nursery schools. Service Fund money was handed in.

Morin Heights had a large gathering of 25 members and five visitors. The "military whist" held recently netted the funds $14.95, and a sale of home cooking $5.05. A life membership pin was presented to Mrs. Wesley Doherty in honor of her 25th wedding anniversary. In Education Week, Miss Ashton, principal of the school, invited parents and friends to visit the school to see how the work was progressing. Mrs. Aldom, president, read a paper entitled "A White Queen of the Desert, the Lady Hester Lucy Stanhope".

Pioneer branch had 19 members and four visitors present. The roll-call was "Imports and Exports". A life membership was presented to Mrs. J. P. Bradley by the president, Mrs. George Armstrong. Mrs. L. M. Hooker, convener of National and International Events, had as her speaker Mrs. Angus Taylor, of Lachute, who gave an interesting paper on UNRRA.

Upper Lachute-East End had 14 members and two guests present. Gifts were presented to two brides, also a gift to a member in hospital. Current events were read. The guest speaker was the Rev. Chas. Maclean, who spoke on "Education in the Home".

Business Change, Calumet Village

Calumet — The property formerly known as Brannan's Store has once again changed hands. It was previously occupied by Foreman Bros. & Murphy, but has now been taken over by Leo. Graubart, of New York, who is operating a plant for the manufacture of wood coat-hangers and other wares. Associated with Mr. Graubart in the business are Mrs. Sievers and Miss Sievers, also of New York. A number of local men and girls have been engaged in their employ.

There are two ceilings to human progress — "I won't" and "I can't".

Forums Advocate Research on Farm Costs and Prices

Report of Week's Gatherings in This District

Hillfoot Farm Forum members held their meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Scott, with 12 present. A discussion was held, followed by a social hour and refreshents.

Mabel meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Clark, with 16 present. An interesting discussion was broken up by a call to a fire in Dalesville, so the ladies carried on. A social hour and refreshments followed.

Ogdensburg. — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Slade were hosts at this Forum meeting; 14 members were present and three visitors. Refreshments were served.

Lachute Road branch met at Mr. and Mrs. A. Parker's with 10 members present. An interesting discussion was followed by a quiz. Refreshments were served.

Staynerville Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Murdoch, with six present. A social hour was enjoyed and refreshments followed.

All Forum branches agreed that more research was needed on farm management, and farm costs and prices. Staynerville group felt that farmers were not familiar enough with the benefits of research. Everyone was agreeable to higher taxation for research if the farmers would really benefit from it, also that city people should help bear this burden, since they, as well as the country people, would benefit by the results.

Many at Funeral Of War Veteran

Widespread sympathy for the relatives of the late John Raymond Cunningham was evident in the large gathering which attended his funeral, Saturday afternoon at the Lachute United Church. "Jock" Cunningham, a veteran of the 1st Battalion Black Watch with one and a half years' service overseas, lost his life at the Grece's Point canal on November 21—a coroner's jury pronouncing his death accidental.

Members of the Argenteuil Legion Branch 70 formed a guard of honor at the church, attending the service in a body and also marching in the cortege to the local cemetery.

There were many flowers from relatives and sympathizing friends.

Pall-bearers were — Ken McDougall, Gerald Berniquer, Gordon Townsend, Melvin Wilson, Fern St. Onge and Chas. Rapson. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiated.

Three Mishaps on Hull Highway

Calumet — Around 9.45 o'clock Sunday night at a spot half a mile west of Pte. au Chene, a motorist heading in this direction skidded on the slippery surface of Route 8 and his car overturned several times before landing upside down in the 6-foot ditch. The driver was Chas. A. Miller, of Montreal, who was accompanied by his wife. Both suffering severe shock, they escaped serious injury, however, and extricated themselves from the wreck by breaking the windshield of the car. They spent the night at Hawkesbury, proceeding to Montreal next day.

Patrolman Howard Jones, of Calumet, investigated the mishap.

* * *

Poor visibility in a snowstorm caused injuries to four persons in two separate accidents on Tuesday.

At 4.20 p.m. Bunny Rubenstein, 18, of Hawkesbury, suffered lacerations of the scalp and concussion when the truck he was driving collided with another driven by Anthony Angel of Grenville, on Route 8 near that village.

Rubenstein was taken to the Dr. Smith's Hospital.

Less than an hour later, three persons were injured when a car and a truck loaded with monuments crashed on the highway near St. Philippe.

Victims were Rev. Albert Routhier, parish priest of Calumet, who suffered serious head injuries; Onesime Routhier, also of Calumet, and George Terrault, of Montreal. The injured were treated at the Providence Hospital in Lachute.

The accident occurred when a truck driven by Eugene Coté of Montreal, in which Terrault was a passenger, collided with a car driven by Rev. Daniel Routhier, parish priest of Carlsbad, Ont. All victims, except Terrault, were passengers in the car driven by the cleric, which was travelling from Calumet to Brownsburg.

Traffic Officer Howard Jones investigated both accidents.

Personnel Study, In Mobilization And Repatriation

Ex-Army Officer Heard At Rotary Meeting

Brownsburg — The Rotary Club was addressed at its last meeting by a member of the Lachute High School teaching staff, Mr. Burton Miller, French specialist. Personnel Selection in the Army, was the subject he covered in a very interesting manner, telling of the difficulties of a peaceful nation being forced by Hitler's hordes to turn its civilians into soldiers — for a mechanized war — at breakneck speed.

The speaker was born in South Durham, Que., and received his education close to home, concluding with his M.A. degree in Education, from Bishop's College. After some teaching and being a school principal for seven years, he joined the Army and served for a short time as assistant adjutant and legal officer in the Canadian Armoured Corps. Folowing this, he spent a considerable period with the Directorate of Personnel as army examiner.

Since the war was one of a technical nature, the job of changing over half a million civilians to do jobs they were not familiar with (as well as the fact that there are many army trades or skills that have no counterpart in civilian life), was a herculean task.

It was necessary to use every man, regardless of physical category. There were many jobs that the physically low-rated could perform — but how to determine who would fit where, was the question. The first attempt was the Intelligence, or M test. Although helpful, it was the speaker's opinion that the test was inefficient to perform the task required. The fact of having these personnel examiners at the recruiting end only, was also found wanting. Each corps had its quota to meet. Some of the men were communicative in the counselling, while others were not. Getting the right man into the right job was most difficult, and often — it was just not done.

It was then that examiners were sent to all training centres, both at home and in England. Study had led to doubt about many of the shell-schocked or psychiatric cases in the last war. Perhaps it was because the men had been doing the wrong job, one for which they were not psychologically fitted.

The old military theory seemed to be, train a man to obey orders — promptly, and strictly to the letter — and he will do anything he is told.

The new thought was that he might do so, but if he were not fitted for the work, mistakes would result and extra men had to be carried to cover up these errors. There were no men to spare in this program.

All men had to take the same basic training and the aim was to try to segregate them into groups, doing work in which they had interest and aptitude, by the time basic training was completed. If such were achieved, much maladjustment would be prevented. It was realized by these examiners that each man is an individual; some would never make front line fighters, while others would never be content to remain in the rear. Some had home troubles, while others were born complainers. Discussing the personal problems of the men, the examiners won their confidence and became the intermediary between the men and the commanding officer. The confidence of the C.O. was also gained, and items such as leaves on compassionate grounds, social service cases, or problems dealing with men's personal activity, were referred to the examiners. Much good work was achieved in allocating men for active service.

In 1944 men from Canada going overseas, just about balanced those returning. The question of rehabilitation was a logical one for the army personnel section. Examiners became counsellors and were located on board ship and at the repatriation mustering-out depots.

Explaining the serviceman's credits — how to use them; his rights; treatments; and a multitude of questions arising from the upsetting of men's lives through war — was the new job to be undertaken. The many unusual cases described by the speaker were found very amusing.

In conclusion Mr. Miller, while he explained that he was no expert on the subject of personnel in industry, and knew nothing about the local companies, said that he felt it was a very important factor under present conditions. "There is need for a go-between. . . . There are faults on the side of both management and labor, in most cases", he said. Good personnel work, he felt, would often have prevented strikes.

The go-between must be someone who is impartial. A good personnel man must have time to contact the worker; time to get to know him and gain his confidence. He must get to know them and appreciate them as individuals.

Records must be kept so that everything of importance is known about each employee, in order that the conditions which trouble him, either at home or at work, can be considered and corrected where possible. The personnel department is the one to explain the company policy to the employees. Its head must not be a "yes man". He must have unbounded loyalty to his company, but still never forgetting that his first loyalty is to his profession as a personnel man and the welfare of the individual.

Mac Walker introduced Mr. Miller, and he was thanked on behalf of the Club by Herbert Graves.

Guests included Andrew Hardy, of Brownsburg, Linton Armstrong, Ross MacAdam and Gavin Walker, of Lachute.

Tonight the Rotary Club of Brownsburg is playing host to the Montreal-Wesward Rotary Club, at Carriere's Hotel, Brownsburg, when Georges H. Héon, K.C., M.P., will speak on the United Nations.

Elect Board for New Papineau Central School

A step in the organization of a new county central school board in Papineau took place on Monday evening at Buckingham, with a meeting of delegates from the component municipalities to elect members of the central board.

At the request of Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education for Quebec, Inspector Lewis J. King of Lachute filled the role of chairman for the meeting. The delegates were on hand from Buckingham, High Falls, Namur, Portland West, Ste. Angelique, St. Remi d'Amherst and Ponsonby. (Two other municipalities included in the centralization are Mulgrave and Derry, and St. Sixte).

Municipalities which petitioned for exclusion from the central board are — Lochaber, Montebello, Templeton East, Templeton West and Templeton North. However, certain members of these local boards were present as visitors at the meeting and witnessed the proceedings.

Those elected by the delegates were — John D. Daugherty and Dr. Edgar A. Filby, Buckingham; Percy Ross, Buckingham R.R. 2; J. W. Bonsall, Poltimore, and Wm. Myers, Brookdale.

Similarly to the procedure followed in Argenteuil and Two Mountains, a meeting will be called shortly by the Director of Education, at which time the board will name their chairman and arrange the appointment of a secretary.

George Y. Deacon and L. W. Armstrong accompanied Mr. King from Lachute to attend the meeting.

Form Ministerial Association Here

On the initiative of the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, a meeting of the Protestant ministers of Lachute was called on Monday at the home of the Rev. C. R. Lang, for the purpose of forming a ministerial association.

It was decided by the ministers present that such an association should be formed, and a slate of officers was drawn up and approved. The president for the coming year is the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, and the secretary-treasurer is the Rev. Charles H. Maclean.

During the meeting it was suggested that the other ministers in the surrounding districts of Brownsburg , St. Andrews East, Lakefield and Grenville might be interested in joining this fellowship, so efforts are to be made to this end, and it is hoped the ministerial association may grow and be useful in these communities.

Plans were also drawn up for the observance of the World Week of Prayer which comes during the first week of the New Year. The local ministers were unanimous in their support of this project, and announcements are to be made later as to the meetings and the speakers for them.

In Brownsburg

Specially contributed to The Watchman

By M. V. TRAYERS

About Town

A much needed improvement was the removal of a sharp corner approaching Terrace Hill from Bank Street. The widening of the road at this point increases the view of traffic coming from the direction of the C-I-L factory, and lessens the danger of accident among vehicular traffic. . . The village is indebted to Mr. Malacket who provided the land, at the request of Mayor Donaldson, as a benefit to civic improvementt.

The asphalting of gravel patches at the Catholic Convent schools and along the outside of sidewalks on Maple Street, is now completed and is also worthy of favorable comment.

Parking

For some time, Mayor Jas. Donaldson has been personally active in endeavoring to regulate the arrangement of cars on the public streets, and very considerable improvement has been effected.

Brownsburg, as a village, is not the result of planned effort; like Topsy, it "just growed", and very little can now be done to modernize its lay-out.

Parking of cars followed custom from the traditional hitching post, and many a snarl of traffic has thereby resulted.

Some time ago Mayor Donaldson obtained a very suitable parking place from Mr. MacVicar at a moderate cost, but the Corporation was not ready for such modern advancement and turned down the proposal.

Several streets have now been confined to one-side parking and a much easier flow of traffic can be noted. It now remains to prohibit parking on the south side of Main Street and complete the free access for pedestrians from road to business houses along the three blocks from Lepine's Garage to the bus terminal at Mr. Gagne's.

Juvenile Training

The Youth Welfare Committee, under the able leadership of Rev. Fr. Monseau, C.C., held a supper last Sunday evening to provide funds for the winter sports activities conducted under control of the Committee.

It is expected that this season even greater facilities will be available for youth welfare, and that in addition to skating several other winter sports will be undertaken to build healthy bodies and clean minds through the medium of wholesome enjoyment.

Vanishing Landmarks

One of the oldest names, that of one of the original pioneers in Brownsburg, was erased last week when the property of the late John MacDonald was sold to Napoleon Denis.

The MacDonald name appears in the early history of Brownsburg—even before the name Brownsburg was adopted. The original MacDonald house, which was built on the property of Major George Brown a few years after Brown had built his sawmill in 1816, was on the opposite side of the road. The one now sold, which was built many years later, is to be torn down to make way for a modern, up-to-date residence which Mr. Denis plans to erect.

Sees Need of Carillon Developm't To Boost Ontario's Power Supply

Ottawa Newspaper Voices Sentiment of Neighbor Province on Long-Debated Issue

(An editorial in The Ottawa Journal, issue of November 26)

Power From Carillon Is Needed

The statement from the Ontario Hydro Commission that the time is fast approaching when this province may be short of electric power and some form of rationing may be necessary brings up again the necessity of developing power sites readily available in the eastern part of the province. Work is underway at Stewartsville, and will be soon on the huge development above Pembroke, but it looks very much as though most of the power to be developed there is destined for the Toronto area, where the immediate shortage is acute.

The Journal on several occasions has pointed out the huge amount of water going to waste as far as its power possibilities are concerned, at the Carillon site on the Ottawa River below Hawkesbury. It is a curious thing that, despite the need for cheap power in Prescott and Russell counties, and in nearby Glengarry, and the almost total lack of industries in the area, there has been almost no public demand for development of this site from those most concerned. The apathy is hard to understand. Hawkesbury, for instance, needs industry badly, but how it hopes to attract any without cheap power, is something that should concern leaders in that community, but apparently has not, so far.

Legally this Carillon site now belongs to Quebec, was traded by the Hepburn government for complete rights in the Upper Ottawa site for Ontario. It is stated that Quebec has no immediate use for this power and the present good relations between the Drew and Duplessis governments should help reopen negotiations so that the site could be developed in the interests of the two provinces. It is understood that lack of interest in the locality to be served has held Hydro or the Ontario Government from any move on this project to date.

Canal Traffic and Ferry Halt Operations

(Our District Correspondent)

Cushing W. — Employees on the Carillon and Grenville canals have been released from duty for the season. Also the Cushing ferry has ceased operating — much to the disgust of some travellers bound for here last Sunday, who came down the Chute à Blondeau hill only to discover that the ferry boat had been taken out. They were obliged to return and proceed by the Hawkesbury bridge, which lengthened their journey considerably.

Synod Appoints Anglican Clerics

Rev. A. E. Hawes Appointed Dean of St. Andrews

Two appointments of interest here were announced this week by the Anglican Synod. The Rev. A. E. Hawes, rector of St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, was named rural Dean of St. Andrews, and the Rev. B. J. Thorpe was pamed incumbent of the Church of the Redeemer, Cote St. Paul. Mr. Hawes succeeds the Rev. W. J. Ellis, rector of the Parish of Rawdon, as Rural Dean, and Mr. Thorpe, who was rector here before serving in the chaplaincy, now succeeds Rev. T. E. R. Nurse, who has resigned to become rector of St. Paul's Church, Knowlton. For the past few months Mr. Thorpe has been in charge of the Parish of Valleyfield, during the illness of the incumbent minister.

Youth Club to Manage, Operate Sat. Night Hops

Organization Launched — Now Seeks Appropriate Name

At the regular "Saturday Night Hop" last week at Lachute Auditorium, representatives of youth organizations in the town held a meeting under chairmanship of Mrs. Geo. E. Leggett. The discussion was called in an attempt to improve the attendance and stimulate interest in these weekly dances for the young people.

It was decided that a club be formed and conducted along lines similar to the High School student council. A president and council will be duly elected by the group, and the council will select members each month to serve on various committees; in this way it is designed that all the members shall have an active participation in the club.

A temporary committee headed by Bill McMartin was appointed to get the idea into working order, pending an election of officers.

Meanwhile suggestions are invited for an appropriate name for the organization, and all interested, both young and old, are asked to drop their suggestions, along with their name and address, into one of the boxes stationed at the school, the Lido Restaurant and the post office. Two free admission tickets to the Rex Theatre have been donated as a prize for the best entry.

As the Auditorium is not available this week, it is hoped to stage the opening dance on the following Saturday — particulars to be announced in The Watchman.

During the coming weeks, the younger townsfolk may be asked to purchase a membership card. All who are thus approached are urged to join this new club, which is solely in the interests of Lachute's young citizenry.

Induction Service, Arundel Parish

The Ven. Archdeacon J. F. Morris officiated at the induction of the Rev. L. N. Temple-Hill, to the Parish of Arundel, in Grace Anglican Church on Wednesday evening.

The Rev. C. R. Lang, of Lachute, read the mandate and license of the Bishop of Montreal, and the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, also of Lachute, read the scripture portions in respect to the various duties of the clergy and congregation.

The wardens of the parish presented the keys of the churches to the new rector.

The Rev. P. R. Stole, of Charteris, Que., preached the sermon, taking as his text, "Let these grow together", emphasizing the desire of God that the rector and congregation should grow spiritually in the Kingdom of God.

WEEKLY EDITORS PRESENT CAR TO RETIRING OFFICER

OATS

Oats have been used to feed cattle and horses for many years, and are the safest of all grains for animal feeding. They are not laxative, heating or constipating. Oats are not as good fattening feed as barley, being low in protein. They form a bulky feed and are low in Total Digestive Nutrients. They are in a class by themselves, and form the basis of Canadian farm feeds. Oats are the richest cereal grain in fat content, approximately 4%. Oats are the lowest cereal in T.D.N. (74%, to light oats 60%); most of this low T.D.N. is due to the high fibre content. It is a cheap feed, easy to grow, with a good yield; ease of cultivation and harvesting — these are some of the reasons why oats are grown extensively. Formerly, oats were used as a basic concentrate for horses; they are now becoming basic feed for dairy cows. There is a swing from excessive hot feeds — such as too much corn, or too much wheat, or too much barley. In beef cattle, oats are supplemented for barley, and it is good for breeding and calves.

Oats are good feed to weanling pigs and whole oats are also a satisfactory feed for sheep.

Oat straw has a high place in feed when wintering stock.

Oat Varieties of Recent Introduction

Beaver is a cross between Vanguard and Erban, and it combines to a rather excellent extent the stem rust and leaf rust resistance of its parents. It ripens earlier than Erban, and fairly evenly, with long straw and plump, well filled heads. (This variety did not lodge as badly as other oats at Ontario Agricultural College).

Vanguard was developed at the Dominion Rust Laboratory, Winnipeg, from a cross between Hajira and Banner. It has high resistance to stem rust, is susceptible to leaf rust, and has a moderate resistance to loose and covered smut.

Here are other particulars — grain white; moderately low in percentage of hull; ripens three to four days earlier than Banner; straw medium length and quite strong; kernel size similar to Banner; high yield; recommended for stem rust areas, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Quebec.

Erban. — This variety was produced at O.A.C. from a cross of Early Ripe and Banner. It is resistant to oat smut; susceptible to stem rust.

Characteristics — white grain, moderately low in percentage of hull; ripens earlier than Vanguard; straw medium length and strength; kernel relatively large; high yield. Recommended where leaf rust is prevalent.

Mabel. — This was developed at Macdonald College, from a cross between O.A.C. 72 (M.C. 214) and Early Ripe (M.C. 213). It has moderate resistance to leaf rust, some resistance to covered smut, and is susceptible to stem rust; good size grain, slight tinge of brown; compares closely with Alaska and Cartier in percentage of hull and in days required to ripen; straw medium length and strength.

This variety stood up well at O.A.C. in 1946. It has a higher yield than Alaska and Cartier, particularly where earliness and leaf rust are important factors.

Lasalle — was selected from a cross between Siberian 2107 and Joanette 1207, at Macdonald College. It is similar to Banner in maturity and length of straw, but lower in hull percentage, thus giving a greater kernel yield per acre. It is susceptible to leaf and stem rust, has some resistance to smut. This variety is recommended in the Province of Quebec as being superior to Banner.

Old Established Varieties

Alaska (O.A.C. 157). — This was introduced from the U.S.A. in 1900. It is an excellent early variety of particularly high quality, 20% hull; long strong straw.

Banner. — A medium late variety introduced from the U.S.A. by O.A.C. in 1890. Straw good length and fair strength; stem and leaf rust resistant; good yield; has been very popular for many years, but is now being replaced by earlier varieties.

Cartier, developed at Macdonald, is the result of cross between Alaska and Early Triumph; it has plumper kernel than Alberta, and because of similar characteristics and higher yield, it is replacing Alaska.

Victory. — A medium to late maturing variety of Swedish origin, producing straw of good length and strength. The grain is medium short and has proven an excellent exhibition oat.

The foregoing are the principal varieties. . . . In conclusion, this is a stem and leaf rust area, and we should grow varieties such as Beaver, Erban, and Vanguard which have been bred to resist these rusts.

— This address will be continued next week with favored varieties of barley.

DEFINITION

T.D.N. — Total Digestible Nutrients, include all the digestible organic nutrients — protein, fibre, nitrogen-free extract and fat. Fat is multiplied by 2¼ because its energy value in feeding animals is approximately 2.25 times that of protein or carbohydrates. Therefore, percentages of T.D.N. represent the approximate heat or energy value of the feed.

Echoes of Legion's 1946 Dominion Conference

By W. STUART JONES

Chateau Frontenac — the ballroom — time, 9 a.m. Monday, May 20. — The great assembly of delegates got off to an early start. Delegates were arranged at tables by provinces; the overflow lined the side and end walls and filled the gallery. This was some gathering! Each table was supplied with a microphone through which the delegates could carry on the debate.

The eagerness to cope with the many problems was very apparent. President Alex Walker in his remarks said that the large number of new veterans present and the way they spoke showed they were cognizant of the situation and problems of today. He said this was very satisfying and proved that the Canadian Legion's effort to keep the returned men properly informed had been most successful.

The customary resolutions of Allegiance were quickly approved. Then commenced the presentation and debate on 65 other resolutions. The business was set aside for a short time and all the delegates of the Ladies' Auxiliaries, who also were holding their convention in the Chateau Frontenac at the same time, filed in and a report was read by their president. This report drew very heated arguments before it was adopted. The Auxiliaries were granted power to continue their sessions and they marched out, accompanied by hand-clapping on the part of the men.

It is impossible to report on all the business debated at the week-long convention, but here is an interpretation of some of the main problems. . . .

Housing

The Rehabilitation Committee's report listed the "Housing" difficulty as the nation's No. 1 problem from East to West. In drafting our resolutions to the Canadian Government it was felt that we could only use general terms, and not lay down any details as to how to go about creating a new housing scheme. There is no satisfactory housing scheme functioning and the "small-holding" scheme was not the answer to the urban or town problem, yet it is the nearest solution to a veteran's need for a home. But how can a veteran in a town or city find two acres near enough to schools and his work, let alone pay for the land and have enough of his $6,000 grant left to build his home?

The convention went on record as being against municipalization of control of the various housing projects of the "small-holding" category. It was felt that a plan of subsidization was the answer, with the Department of Veterans' Affairs working directly with the veteran and thus having no intermediary control.

It was said that in general it was difficult to get a contractor to build a $5,000 home for a veteran, because the contractor could not make enough profit out of such a low-priced contract.

Another problem was that in some localities the taxes were too high to suit the requirements of the Veterans' Land Act. We were told that this was overcome in some towns by the Council deciding to grant the veteran a lower tax which would be acceptable by the Veterans' Land Act.

It seemed to be all too true — that material for building could be obtained for big projects but when the individual veteran wanted supplies for his little home he could not get them. These and other difficulties confronted by the veteran who wanted a home, were all incorporated in a resolution to be presented to the government.

Employment

It was felt that a good vigorous housing scheme sponsored by the government would go a long way in providing the necessary work to absorb the vast numbers of servicemen being discharged from the armed forces.

It is a known fact that many veterans have been criticized for not accepting jobs in the northern woods of Ontario and Quebec and preferred work in cities. The following are several reasons presented as to why veterans are unwilling to take up this work:

1st — They would again have to be separated from their families, after having been away for up to five and six years in many cases.

2nd — Standards of living, although reportedly improved, were not such as were available in the urban districts.

3rd — If you took your families to small settlements near these lumbering areas, you were unable to give them the standard of schooling every child should receive.

4th — Veterans had been stranded from many social facilities and now craved to enjoy privileges and contacts which they had been denied. In most cases these were not available in the outlying lumbering districts.

Thus it was felt that, if the public looked at the problem from a veteran's point of view, there might not be any further criticism on this count.

Approach to Youth

"TOO LITTLE attention is paid today to the young people in the churches. There is nothing to attract them if they go. A sermon is preached on the evil doing of the younger people and what will happen to them if they do not stop attending movies and going to dances or going out on parties and so forth."

This paragraph, from an editorial in the Huntingdon Gleaner, might with equal aptitude have appeared in many other community papers. In fact, it is the echo of a sentiment heard many times in this town — but often, we believe, voiced without fair justice or deliberation.

Looking over the local scene, with organized activities now back in their seasonal swing, we may feel to the contrary, that the youth of Lachute are well served with social and other diversions insofar as the churches are concerned. In Catholic and Protestant denominations there are youth gatherings now drawing an enthusiastic attendance — not to mention the efforts of non-religious organizations, in Brownsburg, Lachute and elsewhere, devoted to the wholesome interests of young people.

The complaint in Huntingdon and similar centres — perhaps applicable also to Lachute — is that the churches are not reaching the youthful class that evidence the greatest need for entertainment. The lack, the deficiency, however, is not necessarily with the churches . . it lies in the over-sophisticated tastes of these young people. They are hard to please — too often because parental apathy has driven them to misguided pastimes. In these cases, and generally speaking, the inadequacy of youth organizations may be traced back to — the inadequacy of home life.

Agriculture Research Identified With Farmers' Interests

THE DOMINION Experimental Farm Service celebrated its diamond jubilee this year. In sixty years, the Experimental Farm establishments have grown extensively.

Great changes have taken place in Canadian agriculture during this space of time. The amount of land used for farming has increased fourfold. Land sown to grains such as wheat, oats and barley has increased from 15 million to 57 million acres. The number of hogs on farms is now about seven times what it was in 1886.

This tremendous growth in agriculture was given many a push forward by the research work of the Dominion Experimental Farms. Through the discovery of Marquis wheat — early maturing and hence frost-evading — the prairies were enabled to become the "Bread basket of the world." Later wheat varieties — Renown, Apex, Thatcher, Regent, Redman — have the same hard quality of Marquis but in addition are rust-resistant. Now there is also a sawfly-resistant wheat called Rescue.

But wheat has been only one of the fields of activity of the Experimental Farms. They have also developed suitable varieties of hybrid corn, tobacco, sugar beets, soybeans. They have done a great deal of valuable work on varieties of fruit, on poultry, on soil conservation, on animal breeding and animal nutrition, on weed control and insect pest control, and many other problems of agriculture.

Other agencies besides the Dominion Experimental Farms are active in agricultural research. Some of these are Dominion — the National Research Council, the Economics Division and the Science Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Some are Provincial — the Experimental Farms of Provincial Departments of Agriculture and the Colleges of Agriculture. And some are private organizations and commercial firms, such as the canning companies.

Immigrants Are Human

BOTH THOSE who advocate a policy of increased immigration for Canada and those who oppose it betray, at times, a tendency to forget that immigrants are people. . . Through our regulations, we can exert a measure of control over the ages, general health and occupations of those we admit; but we can do little about such intangibles as good character, intelligence and adaptability. We may take it for granted that the immigrants will include a number of misfits, morons and crooks. These are not unknown among our native Canadians. We are also justified in hoping that some of the newcomers will be men of outstanding merit. . .

The advocates of immigration are too hopeful if they think that immigration by itself is going to solve the farm problem or the labor problems. Nobody can guarantee that the immigrants will stay on the land or that they will even go to the parts of Canada most in need of settlement. They will come here with their own ideas about what they want to do, and are no more likely to accept good advice than anyone else.

What we can hope to see among the immigrants when they arrive, at least, is a will to establish security for themselves, even if they have to work more than forty hours a week to do it. They will come to Canada not entitled to relief, to unemployment insurance benefits, to baby bonuses. The only way they can find security is through their own efforts.

It is understandable that organized labor should be alarmed at the thought of foreigners coming in to work at jobs the natives will not take. The unioneers can foresee that, if the immigrants turn out to be good workmen, they will soon be in line for promotion. They will be competing for the skilled jobs, and perhaps competing successfully. They may bring with them such revolutionary ideas as doing an honest day's work for a day's pay. They will be used to paying heavy taxes, but they may not immediately grasp the idea of paying taxes to support voluntarily unemployed.

What the opponents of immigration rightly fear is the influx of a mass of people who will look on Canada as a land of promise and who will have the contempt of the pioneers for the shirkers. If enough immigrants are admitted, work might even become fashionable again.

TWICE this summer an automobile has succeeded in travelling from Atlantic to Pacific over Canadian roads. Each valiant journey has been marked by great fanfare. It is truly a feat taxing human and mechanical endurance to pass from one side of this nation to the other over Canadian roads.

Treating Pupils As Individuals

By F. H. J. ROYAL

(A series of articles on "Guidance", an endeavor which has recently been introduced into the Lachute High School. Some of the credit for these articles must be given the "School Guidance Worker" published by the Vocational Guidance Centre, Toronto, and the booklet, "Treating Pupils as Individuals", by the Illinois Association of School Boards.)

Meeting Specific Needs

There are, however, phases of these procedures which must be considered in greater detail because there are critical points in the school life of every student which should be specially considered. The needs of students vary. However, when the need is expressed or indicated in any way, the seven procedures previously indicated should operate almost automatically. Some of these particular needs of students deserve special consideration. School board members make an effort to determine whether these needs are met in the schools for which they are responsible. There are eight such needs.

Individual Problems

Individual problems may arise at any point in the school life of the student from nursery school on through college. The guidance program of the school should be so organized as to be ready to assist in the solution of such problems. The kinds of problems to be met are many. Some involve physical care where the school discovers the need for physical treatment and helps to provide for its fulfillment. Helping to provide glasses for a given student often means the difference between completing high school successfully or dropping out of school at an early age, supposedly a failure. Likewise, audiometer service may reveal a hearing condition which has been a distinct handicap to the successful educational life of the student. Providing a special schedule for a cardiac case, so that few stairs are involved, may mean the difference between life and death or successful school years versus continued absence in defeat. Posture studies at appropriate times may affect later health and poise. A visit to a home may bring about a new tolerance with the student because of greater understanding on the part of the school.

The implications of this are many. The shy or socially backward student even in the early elementary grades needs the help of the guidance program of the school. All the procedures previously mentioned should be brought to play when seeking an adjustment.

Other problems involve class work or educational or vocational decisions which need to be made. The entire school system should be geared so as to find and treat these individual problems as they arise. This may go so far as to require the organization of some remedial classes for special students or of some enriched classes for unusually gifted students.

Transition Points

Transition points, such as entering school for the first time or advancing from one school to another, should receive the special attention of those responsible for this phase of the guidance program. As students enter a new school they require orientation to the new school program. In order to make the educational growth easy and unhampered by the difficulties involved in the change of environment, associates, and school program, it is necessary to assign personnel who have specific responsibilities to facilitate this transposition.

Decision Points

When students reach decision points with respect to elective choices, they should receive the help of specially assigned personnel. This may mean teachers, special class counselors, or others designated by the principal. This involves any longer-term planning which students make at intervals throughout their school experience. Many schools in this regard have a special form which aims to develop educational plans which are reviewed each year and altered when necessary. The future welfare of many students is determined as such plans and decisions are made. This is especially true of decisions affecting the vocational future of the students. Mere drifting should not be tolerated. Too often decisions are made with an inadequate foundation of facts which should be supplied by the people assigned to this guidance function of the school. Again the cumulative record, including test results, serves a purpose as the student is helped on both group and individual-counseling basis.

Leaving School

No student should leave school before graduation without using the counseling services of the school.

If the need for leaving school is urgent, it means that good educational and vocational counseling should be provided to help the student in his out-of-school adjustment and, if possible, IN HIS FURTHER EDUCATION. Too often schools "wash their hands" of any obligation to help the student after he leaves school or even when contemplating this move. is the guidance service which emphasizes that education does not stop even in adult life and that satisfactory vocational adjustment is a phase of good education.

(The four remaining "particular needs" to follow in next week's edition).

THEY COULDN'T LOSE

Shelbourne, Ont. (CP) — Grade Nine pupils of Shelburne High School recently challenged the teaching staff to a softball game. It was agreed a victory for the students meant three nights without homework, while a loss meant a double dose of the same. The students won, 22-21.

URGES NEW TIMBER STANDS

Geraldton, Ont. (CP) — Adequate timber stands should be set aside on the nearest watersheds to the Geraldton district for the exclusive use of the mining industry, A. E. Cave, manager of Little Long Lac Gold Mines Limited, told the Ontario Royal Commission on forestry.

FIGHT DAMAGING WEED

Winnipeg (CP) — The Manitoba government's weed commission has opened a program to bring the sow thistle, one of the most damaging and dangerous of the noxious weeds, under control next year.

Like Billy, Mr. Clark started in business delivering papers. He collected Fridays, settled with his publisher Saturdays and placed a portion of his profits in his savings account at the bank. That was 40 years ago. Mr. Clark has been using his bank regularly ever since.

Whether it was delivering papers, working week-ends at the corner store, or doing chores on the farm, you will always remember how proud you were of your first job, your first pay and your first bank book in your pocket. All were earned by your own initiative.

Today, as in the past, young people whose ambition is to get ahead, put their savings in the bank. It is the first step towards an association which can well be vital to business and personal life.

Congregational Social At Lachute United

On Tuesday the congregation of Lachute United Church gathered in the church hall with adherents and friends, for their annual social evening.

An hour's program, featuring a singsong led by Chas. L. Duncan with Earl Morrison at the piano, soprano solos by Mae Gordon, pianoforte selections by the Misses Joan Percival and June McArthur, and a girls' choir from the Lachute High School Glee Club, under direction of Earl Morrison, rounded out the entertainment.

A cordial welcome was extended to those present by the minister, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, who also expressed appreciation to those contributing to the evening's entertainment.

A table of refreshments, attractively arranged with color and candles, added charm to the evening; the ladies' "Rummage Sales" committee were responsible for this feature of the social.

Though the snowstorm prevented many from attending, there was a very good representation present.

History of Church Music — Interesting Topic at United Y.P.U.

The regular meeting of the Lachute United Y.P.U. was held last evening, with president Jack Ogilvie in the chair, and Margaret Hammond recording the minutes.

The conveners for the evening, Messrs. Earl Morrison and A. Ariano, conducted the devotional period, and their program was based on the history and appreciation of church music.

Beginning their discourse with the psalms, the conveners traced the development of music to the Catholic Church, then to the introduction of the Gregorian chants, an example of which was played on the piano by Earl Morrison.

The reform of music with the period of Martin Luther was then dealt with, the group attempting an unfamiliar hymn by this courageous reformer. The music of Calvin and the Wesley brothers was then portrayed, as well as the oratorios of Handel and Bach. Selections of Handel's "Messiah" and a chorale by Bach were played on the recorder.

The story of the writing of "Holy Night" was read by Earl Morrison, and the group closed this part of the program with the singing of this Yuletide hymn.

The president thanked the conveners for their efforts.

Saturday Night Rally, Lachute Baptist Church

There has been a steady and enthusiastic growth in attendance at the Saturday Night Rallies held in the Lachute Baptist Church. Last week the number exceeded previous records, the entire church auditorium being almost filled. Many parents and young people have expressed appreciation for these weekly programs. Delegations of young people from other communities have been a source of real encouragement to those responsible for the weekly program. It has been interesting to note that young people representing almost every Protestant denomination are in regular attendance at these gatherings.

This Saturday night's special features will be — the Rev. Herbert Britton, pastor of Onward Gospel Church, Verdun, a popular speaker among youth; and the Onward ladies' trio of Verdun, who will provide special singing. An interesting Bible Quiz will be conducted. Both young and old are welcome to share the pleasure of these gatherings.

Couple Feted on 25th Anniversary

Brownsburg — Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacAdam had a pleasant surprise Saturday evening when a party of their relatives and friends gathered in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Graham extended best wishes to the happy couple and presented them with a set of silver flatware from the gathering. A social time followed, after which refreshments were served, including a wedding cake which was cut by the "bride".

Anglican Young People Organize Group

The young people of St. Simeon's Anglican Church gathered at the Margaret Rodger Memorial Hall during the early part of November to discuss the organization of an Anglican Young People's Association. There were 25 prospective members present, and if the enthusiasm and interest displayed at this meeting are evident throughout the year, the group will definitely be a success. An executive committee was elected with Bories Arran as president, Kenneth Pitcher vice-president, and Shirley Leggett secretary-treasurer. Freda Parker, Edith MacCallum, Margaret Stansfield and Allan Dawson are attending to the entertainment and Ann Townsend, Jean Lavis, Diane Pitcher and Joan Copeland were elected for the refreshment committee. Plans were made for a Christmas program at the annual Sunday School Christmas Tree. A social evening followed the discussion of these plans.

Special Services Held Marking Anniversary of Lachute United Church

At the Lachute United Church special services were held last Sunday commemorating the seventh anniversary of the building of the present church, and the 114th milestone in the history of the congregation.

During the morning service, the guest preacher was the Rev. D. M. Grant, B.A., of St. Andrew's Church, Westmount, who delivered an inspiring sermon on "What is God?".

The supreme quest of the ages had been the "Quest for God", Mr. Grant said, and the world will not be satisfied until He is found.

Defining God as the "infinite", whereas human beings are finite, the speaker said that man had turned to nature, human nature, philosophy, theology, science and astronomy in search of the ultimate truth, but their answers were so technical that only the technically trained could understand. "Man may mar the beauty of this earth, but God remains," observed the speaker.

"What do they think who know Him best?", asked the Rev. Grant. The answer was summed up with the practice of knowing the bible, studying great biographies, and seeking knowledge. The need of prayer, to listen to the "still small voice", was also a requisite in the quest for God.

"There is a life-size picture of God in Jesus. . . . God has revealed Himself, all that humans need know", said Mr. Grant, and His spirit is found with the example of Jesus in His life upon this earth. That God is manifest through good works of man was also graphically stressed by the preacher.

Ex-Serviceman And English Bride Wed at St. Andrews

Hooker - Vickery

On Saturday afternoon, November 23, the United Church at St. Andrews East was the scene of a pretty wedding ceremony, when marriage vows were exchanged between Marguerite Alderman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Vickery, of Hampshire, England, and Leslie Edgar, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hooker, of Lachute Road. The Rev. J. S. Nickerson officiated, and Mrs. Nickerson played the wedding music. Ferns, potted plants and bronze 'mums formed the background.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. S. S. Campbell, of Lachute, wore a floor-length gown of aqua blue silk with shoulder-length veil of blue net, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and white heather. The matron of honor, Mrs. A. B. Tait, sister of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of old gold silk, a garland of flowers in her hair, and carried a bouquet of gold and bronze 'mums.

The groom was attended by Mr. Arthur Phillips, of McMasterville, Que., who was a member of the same unit, the 81st Battery, heavy artillery, 14th Field Regiment, while overseas.

The ushers were Mr. Harry Hooker, brother, and Mr. A. B. Tait, brother-in-law of the groom. A buffet supper was held at the home of the groom's parents, after which the happy couple left for a honeymoon trip. The bride's going away costume was a Copen blue wool suit over which she wore a muskrat coat, the gift of the groom. Her accessories were black. They will reside in Lachute.

All good wishes are extended from this community for their future happiness and prosperity.

Yorkton, Sask. (CP) — A recent spell of warm weather had ducks — usually headed south at this season — doing a "wrong way Corrigan" act. Dr. Harry Swallow, president of the Yorkton branch of the Fish and Game League, said the ducks were heading back north to open water because of warm weather.

The Story of Brownsburg

By M. V. TRAYERS

"A load of logs to be milled", says one,
But ever within I sigh,
Oh, do not belittle them so, for in truth
They are giants passing by.
Could the cutting axe sever knowledge of years?
Could the circling saw draw from growth a cry?
No! — Far above the touch of such things
Are these giants passing by.
What if they do seem to helpless lie?
For ages ago they breathed the sky:
All of me reverently, meekly bows
As Giants go passing by.

— Flora Lawrence Myers.

"A load of logs to be milled" aptly sums up the thought which must have entered the mind of George Brown, as he discovered the gurgling stream with its tumbling waterfall, on that September afternoon. He had started out that morning from Lachute, to follow a trail through the woods which he had previously noted during his many walks about the district. Today he had come farther than he had ever trekked before; and now he stood on the bank of his potential water-power supply. It was the end of his journey. The realization of a vision he had cherished for years. A dream come true. Here he would clothe his vision with the realities of life. Here he would build the home he had dreamed about . . . his very own . . . the home of George Brown — Brownsburg.

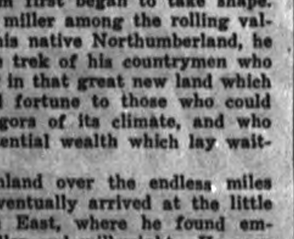

As he stood there and watched the volume of water cascade over the falls, his mind travelled back over the years to the time his dream first began to take shape. After learning his trade of miller among the rolling valleys and emerald lakes of his native Northumberland, he left England and joined the trek of his countrymen who crossed the ocean to pioneer in that great new land which was offering adventure and fortune to those who could withstand hardships and rigors of its climate, and who could harness the great potential wealth which lay waiting within its boundaries.

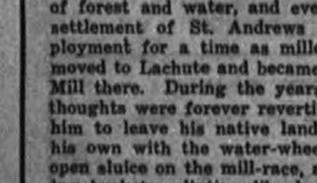

He worked his way inland over the endless miles of forest and water, and eventually arrived at the little settlement of St. Andrews East, where he found employment for a time as miller and millwright. He soon moved to Lachute and became employed at the Seigniorial Mill there. During the years he worked at the mill, his thoughts were forever reverting to the vision which drove him to leave his native land. The vision of a home of his own with the water-wheel tossing around before the open sluice on the mill-race, a fine spray from its revolving buckets, glinting like beads of gold in the sunlight.

HUMAN FACTS BEHIND THE FIGURES

Merchants, businessmen and people in every sort of enterprise borrow a lot of money from the B of M. One of these was Mr. P. R. B., an expert baker, who, after service with the Forces, wanted to own a small wholesale bakery again. Lacking the ready cash, he came to the B of M, obtained a $500 loan, and is now running a profitable little business. Thousands of business men —with big enterprises and little ones—use B of M loans to help them in their financing. The dollars they borrow oil the wheels of commerce and industry, facilitate production and create employment.

B of M Personal Loans helped no less than 157,020 people during the past year—people like Mr. A. L. T., who needed money to help him finish constructing his own home. He got three B of M Personal Loans, totalling more than $600, over a period of 18 months, and he has paid them off regularly in monthly instalments. Now his home is in fine shape and the loans are repaid. Interest cost of loans: $32.53.

Over 500 people from every walk of life come to the B of M every business day to borrow for personal needs.

"MY BANK" TO A MILLION CANADIANS B of M

Reporting

BANKING is not the mysterious business some people are inclined to think it. In its fundamentals, it is no more complex than any other type of business.

The chief difference is that, instead of dealing in goods, your bank deals in money . . . money which belongs mainly to you and to the many other Canadians who deposit their funds with the bank.

At the B of M, for instance, well over a million people have placed on deposit close to one and three-quarter billion dollars.

This money doesn't stand idle . . . it works to earn its keep.

This is why, as you will see here, some of the dollars left at the B of M are lent to merchants, businessmen and manufacturers to assist them in their operations, while others are used to finance the needs of governments. Some enable farmers to improve their farms, buy machinery and market crops. Many others go out to help citizens in their day-to-day financing — in meeting emergencies and in taking advantage of opportunities.

The sum total of all these transactions makes interesting reading, not so much on account of the figures themselves, but because of the human stories behind them.

At the close of the B of M's business year, it seems a good thing for these dollars to show what they have been doing and for the Bank to report on the transactions which it has undertaken for its customers from coast to coast.

Farmers all across the Dominion use the B of M to finance their needs in buying seed, cattle and machinery—in marketing crops—and in improving their farms generally. This means more prosperous farming communities — and bigger agricultural production to meet the urgent needs of a hungry world. Typical of these go-ahead farmers is Mr. R. B. L., who wanted to clear and break 50 acres on his farm. The job would cost $325, but his ready cash amounted to only $125. With the aid of a B of M farm improvement loan of $200, he completed the job and has considerably increased the production and profits from his farm.

To municipalities, school districts and governments, the B of M is constantly lending money for undertakings that benefit the whole community.

Take the case of an Ontario town, which—to pay for a new sewage system—was selling debentures amounting to $305,000. The Bank of Montreal bought 44% of the issue, a total of $134,000, which is now being used by the town to complete the undertaking.

Many municipalities use the B of M's facilities to finance community improvements and to handle their financial transactions generally.

If you are a B of M depositor, then it may be your money which assisted Mr. P. R. B. to buy his bakery—which helped Mr. A. L. T. finish constructing his home—which enabled Farmer R. B. L. to make his farm more profitable—and which helped finance the new sewage system for the Ontario town. That working money of yours is part of $1,700,000,000 which well over a million Canadians have deposited at 498 B of M branches from coast to coast. Each one of the 1,551,658 B of M deposit accounts is an expression of trust in Canada's first-established bank, which has been working with Canadians in every walk of life for 129 years.

WHAT THE B of M HAS IN RESOURCES TO MEET ITS OBLIGATIONS:

The B of M has other bonds, debentures and stocks, representing to some extent the extension of credit to industrial enterprises for reconversion from wartime to peacetime production, and for expansion of productive facilities in established fields. Valued at no more than the market price, they amount to		56,022,926.42
CALL LOANS: The B of M has call loans which are fully protected by quickly saleable securities. These loans amount to		59,391,558.13

These loans now amount to		301,659,974.44
BANK BUILDINGS: In hamlets, villages, towns and large cities from coast to coast the B of M serves its customers at 498 offices. The value of the buildings owned by the Bank, together with furniture and equipment, is shown on its books at		10,575,688.13

BANK NOTES: B of M bills in circulation, which are payable on presentation, amount to		5,512,707.50

TOTAL OF WHAT THE B of M OWES ITS DEPOSITORS AND OTHERS		1,764,729,301.59
TO PAY ALL IT OWES, THE B of M HAS TOTAL RESOURCES, AS SHOWN ON THE LEFT SIDE OF THIS STATEMENT, AMOUNTING TO		1,843,985,587.40
WHICH MEANS THAT THE B of M HAS RESOURCES, OVER AND ABOVE WHAT IT OWES, AMOUNTING TO		$ 79,256,285.81

This figure of $79,256,285.81 is made up of money subscribed by the shareholders who own the Bank and, to some extent, of profits which have from time to time been ploughed back into the business to broaden the Bank's services.

* * *

PROFITS: After making provision for contingencies, for depreciation of Bank premises, furniture, and equipment, the B of M reports a profit (including an adjustment in United Kingdom Taxes 1938-46) for the twelve months ended October 31st, 1946	$	10,263,782.91
Provision for Income and Excess Profits Taxes		5,776,000.00
Leaving a net profit of		4,487,782.91
Of this amount, shareholders (paid dividends at the rate of 80 cents a year, plus an extra distribution of 15 cents, for each $10-share of the Bank) received or will receive		3,420,000.00
Thus, the net amount to be added to the balance of profits from previous years' operations is	$	1,067,782.91

"B of M" Statement Crystallizes Figures Into Facts and Trends of Human Interest

Montreal — Maintaining the modern trend in bank statements which it initiated a year ago, the Bank of Montreal today publishes its annual report, covering financial transactions with more than 1,500,000 customers, in a well-illustrated and readily-understandable story of 1946 operations.

The story, told simply and clearly, is one of record-breaking deposit figures, all-time high resources and an indication of the general prosperity of Canadians during the year. As the B of M puts it, the annual statement shows the "Human Facts Behind the Figures" in examples of individual transactions that make up the statistics of a record year of financial operation.

In many ways this report of Canada's senior financial institution reflects conditions as they exist in Canada today. Deposits, for instance, now stand at $1,736,000,000, highest in the bank's history and more than $100,000,000 above last year. While indicating that Canadians generally are better off financially than they have been for a number of years, the same increase provides reassuring proof that the citizens of the nation are themselves wisely safeguarding against runaway inflation through their personal financing.

Assets at Peak

Total assets, or "What the B of M has in resources to meet its obligations" now stand at $1,843,000,000 — the largest assets figure in the 129-year history of the bank. Included with the figures contained under this heading are explanations, in simple language, of the various items of the B of M's balance sheet.

Wide Use of Facilities

Illustrations accompanying the annual statement show how business firms, private citizens and governments use the many facilities of the bank not only to deposit their money for safekeeping, but to borrow for the financing of new enterprises, the repair and construction of homes, and for municipal and farm improvements.

With these largely expanded operations, the profit figures are substantially above those of a year ago, and in addition to the increased business, a factor affecting profits is certain abnormal revenues accruing during the period under review.

Special Services Held

"A Man Sent from God"

The evening service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, B.A., B.D., who took his text from St. John 1:6, "And there was a man sent from God". He described the many fine qualities of John, and of the great decision that he had to make in sacrificing worldly wealth and power for the service of mankind in the ministry of Jesus.

Giving many fine examples of tremendous sacrifices made during the ages for the service of mankind, Mr. Rosborough cited the experience of Dr. Livingstone, who could have been one of the leading medical men in England, but sought to give his services to exploited and downtrodden humanity in Africa.

The need for enthusiasm and humility by church members was also stressed — three characteristics being found in St. John and all great missionaries. . . . "God grant that many men and women will emulate the character of John the Baptist, and go out into the world and do their part as forerunners for the Kingdom of God. . There was a man sent from God. — God give us men like him today", concluded Mr. Rosborough.

Special Music

During the morning service, the choir rendered the anthem, "But the Lord is Mindful", by Mendelssohn, and at the evening service Miss Janet McOuat sang "The Plains of Peace". Mrs. S. S. Campbell was at the organ.

Hockey Squad Opens Training With P.T. Class

"At the Arena"
By John Dunne

The initial meeting of the Laurentian Hockey League was held last Friday, at which time representatives from St. Jerome, Belle Riviere, Hawkesbury and Lachute were in complete agreement regarding rules and the schedule submitted by the Arena. Tomorrow at 9 p.m. another caucus will be held at the Windsor Hotel to complete final arrangements prior to the League opening on December 14 — featuring Lachute vs. Belle Riviere. (Rules and schedule of the league will be listed in next week's "Watchman", space permitting.)

* * *

Lachute has agreed to play two exhibition games with the Hawkesbury Club on their open air rink during the season. This is being arranged to encourage the Hawkesbury Club and its supporters. All League games, however, will be played here at the Arena.

* * *

St. Jerome has lined up a strong club and should more than replace the Army Club, which represented that town in the league last season.

* * *

Players unavoidably absent included Jerry Donnelly, Maurice Beauregard, Pitou Girard, Gaston and Jean Millette, Maurice Miron, Rolland Prairie and Alex Nicholl.

General opinion expressed at this meeting was that — with physical training, nightly practices at the Arena, and a "bon esprit de corps", Lachute should have a strong representative club in the Big League. The first P.T. class under Major Del Mitchell took place last evening at McArthur's Hall. Fundamentals of hockey were also stressed by the coaching board. The next P.T. class will be held tomorrow night, when the exercises will become a little tougher. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays are scheduled evenings for these tougher-uppers, in order that injuries will be reduced to the minimum when the regular ice practices begin.

* * *

Some of the material for the 1947 Lachute Arena Annual is now in the hands of the Watchman Press, and any would-be advertisers who have not been called upon are asked to contact the Arena (phone 529-J) and the writer will drop around to see them. It will be an excellent sports periodical, bilingual, and with enough sports information included to assure it will be retained for reference by the customers. The Watchman can be counted upon to do a fine job on the printing of this book.
