Trade Conditions An Important Problem When 21st Parliament Opens Debates

Liberals Will Overflow Into Opposition Benches, With Big Government Majority

By LORNE FRAME

Ottawa (CP) — With election-day tension spent, life at Ottawa is easier. The capital is enjoying a situational lull which will be shattered in late September — expected opening of the new parliament — if not earlier.

When the 21st parliament does meet, Liberal members will be all over the House. With the total number of seats split evenly, half on either side, Liberals will have approximately one-third of their strength sitting on the opposition side of the chamber. That's how big the government majority is.

Most of the capital activity in Ottawa seemed to centre around trade. As though all minds were on one track, announcements concerning trade came from various sources.

A commonwealth conference of finance ministers was called for London this week as an attempt to solve the currency problem — vital to trade activity — for everyone concerned, which means just about everybody. Canada's position is uncertain. Dealing as she does in dollars — "hard" currency as opposed to "soft" sterling currency—there may not be much Canada can do to help.

Our own trade picture, which received much emphasis during the election campaign, is brighter this year compared with the same period last year, according to the Bureau of Statistics.

One aspect, however, was not so good. April showed the biggest monthly deficit in trade with the United States since emergency restrictions were imposed in November, 1947. There was a $65,000,000 gap between imports from and exports to that country.

But the value of exports to all countries was up 12 per cent in that month and up one per cent in the first four months of 1949 compared to the equivalent periods in 1948.

Imoprts from Britain were at their highest since the war — worth $30,120,000 — a result of the drive to increase imports from Britain to help her buy more from Canada and to reduce Canadian reliance on the U.S.

Tourists, especially American tourists, are being counted on to help the dollar situation. Last year Canada gained $150,000,000 in hard-dollar currency and this year expects to do even better. . The $3,000,000 trade deficit for the period January-April, 1949 — the first for that period since 1935 — is exclusive of tourist dollars.

An increase of 13 per cent in the first five months of this year over the same period last year is noted in the number of motor permits granted U.S. travellers. On June 7 a record total of 6,015 letters, telegrams and personal calls came pouring in to the tourist bureau to shatter the previous high of 5,657 set May 25.

New Cabinet Possible

In his first press conference after the election, Prime Minister St. Laurent would not say whether cabinet changes would be made before the next session of parliament. No arrangements have been made yet to fill the 14 vacancies existing in the Senate.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government has not considered any new approach to the problem of Dominion-Provincial relations. The government expected to confer with the provinces with which it has taxation agreements — all but Ontario and Quebec — one year before the end of the agreements. This date might be advanced.

Although the federal government had announced a month ago that it was ready to consider housing proposals put forward by provincial and municipal governments, no housing plan has been considered on the cabinet level.

The prime minister said no consideration had been given to another loan to the United Kingdom. A 1946 loan of $1,250,000,000 now is quickly running out. The last $250,000,000 was frozen by Canada in 1947 when she herself was running short of dollars. Britain, since then, has been allowed to draw only $10,000,000 monthly.

He answered "No" when asked if he foresaw unemployment developing as a result of the U.K. dollar crisis. There was a French saying that "to govern is to foresee", he said. The result of the election indicated that his government will have to look ahead for some time. It will take, he said, such action as will be best for the country over a long period of time.

Minister Inducted at St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac

Induction of the Rev. S. Wendell Atcheson, B.A., as minister of Community United Church, St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, took place on Wednesday evening.

A former Moderator of the Montreal Presbytery, the Rev. Dr. G. Campbell Wadsworth, officiated.

Mr. Atcheson is the son of the Rev. W. S. Atcheson, minister at Cornwall, Ont. He is a graduate of McMaster University, Hamilton, and of the Montreal United Theological College. He was ordained last month at the Montreal-Ottawa Conference of the United Church, held in Ottawa.

School Boards Personnel; Election At Brownsburg

The Argenteuil-Two Mountains Central School Board underwent a slight change in a recent redustribution of membership. Mr. Carl Seale of Morin Heights is replaced by Mr. M. Pat Reilly, of Brownsburg, this being in effect the only change in the five-man personnel of the board.

The Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, of Lakefield, is re-elected as member representing the local boards of Arundel, Dunany, Mille Isles (Nos. 1, 2 and 3), Montcalm and Morin Heights.

The Rev. A. E. Hawes, of Grenville, is re-elected member representing the local boards of St. Andrews East, Grande Fresniere and Pte. Fortune.

Mr. M. P. Reilly (chairman of the Brownsburg board for the past term) is elected to represent Brownsburg, Rouge River and Harrington No. 2.

Messrs. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., and Jas. W. McGibbon are again elected representatives of the Lachute school commission.

Appointment of the Central School Board chairman takes place at the next meeting; Mr. Cottingham has filled this office during the past term.

Brownsburg School Board

With the formation of a Protestant School Commission in Brownsburg last year, it became necessary this year to draw lots for retirement of two members, so as to ensure the continuity of the board. Accordingly, those retiring are the chairman, M. P. Reilly, and R. Wesley Mason.

At nomination proceedings on Monday, both these citizens were renominated, and two others, namely, William V. Prosser and John MacVicar. An election contest will therefore be held in Brownsburg next Monday for two school commissioners out of four candidates.

In Lachute

In contrast to the competition of recent years for the local school board representation, the one vacancy occurring this year — that of the chairman, James W. McGibbon — has been filled by his acclamation. Mr. McGibbon was the only nominee for whom papers were deposited on the oppointed date last Monday.

Won Automobile In Charity Draw

Several Lachute residents were fondly favored when Lady Luck dispensed the prizes at Hawkesbury's annual Dominion Day fete, at which a "penny sale" was the prime drawing-card and evening attraction. Many attended the event from this district, last Friday.

J. G. Lamontagne, popular manager of the National Employment Service branch in Lachute, was winner of the grand prize, a 1949 Plymouth 4-door sedan, fully equipped. . Fernand Dion, distributor for Imperial Oil Co. here, won a handsome bedroom suite. . Mme D. Daigneault held the ticket winning an electric razor.

Other prizes, including a piano and refrigerator, are reported to have come this way, but the winners' names have not been ascertained.

Pro, Amateur Tourney July 22 On New Course

Added Attractions Planned

Although local Golf Club members have been battling the hazards of the new and improved 18-hole course since June 24, most of the district professionals and high-ranking amateurs will tour it for the first time on July 22, for which date an invitation pro-amateur tournament has been arranged.

Tee-off time will be, approximately three o'clock in the afternoon and spectators will have an opportunity to see some of Canada's leading golfers in action from then on, into the evening hours.

A buffet supper will be served in the club chalet and will be followed by added attractions, including a fashion show of the latest in sportswear, a golf clinic conducted by Stan Horne, Jules Huot and Bill Kerr. The management of the club is attempting to procure some interesting films of golfers in action to round out what should prove to be a most enjoyable afternoon and evening's entertainment.

Plans are being laid for the annual open tournament to be held in late August. No less a personage that the famous Dr. Cary Middlecof, this year's winner of the United States Open, will be on hand to entertain.

Annual Air Show At Hawkesbury

For readers interested in aeronautics, and who were not privileged to witness the recent air show presented by the Hawkesbury Flying Club, the following description is reproduced from an Ontario exchange:

Well over 3,000 people gathered to watch this exhibition of aerial activities.

The Glider Council of Montreal gave a demonstration of aerobatics in a motorless craft and performed loops and rolls before landing. This was followed by a demonstration of aerobatic flying by one of the club's own Cornells, and a demonstration by an R.C.A.F. Harvard trainer which thrilled the spectators with some low flying.

Throughout the afternoon about 150 people availed themselves of the opportunity to fly as passengers in planes made available for this purpose during the afternoon.

One of the greatest thrills came when two R.C.A.F. Vampire jet fighters arrived, flying in perfect formation and travelling about 600 miles an hour. These jet fighters made about eight sweeps of the field, finishing with a beautiful display of twin rolls.

Throughout the afternoon a 41 piece R.C.A.F. band was in attendance.

Finally a second glider arrived by trailer from the Buckingham Glider Club. This demonstration was quite different as the glider was towed into the air by an automobile and gave a very fine exhibition.

Finally, winding up the show, the parachute jumper made an extremely fine leap. He was carried to over 3,000 feet above the field when he jumped from the aeroplane. He then deliberately delayed opening his parachute and dropped very rapidly for at least 1,000 to 1,500 feet before opening his "chute". He then worked his cords and body until he made a perfect landing in front of the assembled crowd.

It was announced that the Hawkesbury Flying Club has been accepted as an approved training school. This means that any Canadian citizen wishing to learn to fly there will be assisted by a government grant of $200 to pay for his flying training. The Club invites everyone interested to make inquiries.

New Thames Water Buses

The first of the new and larger Thames water buses, specially designed for service during the Festival of Britain, made its trial run recently. The vessel is 80 feet long, carries 250 passengers, most of them under cover, and has a speed of 12 knots. . . The new large-type "Prefect" water bus is seen leaving Charing Cross pier, London, at the start of her trial run.

For Town Improvement

REGARDLESS of the noise and hubbub inflicted upon our residents in the summer season — especially on Main Street — the taxpayers of this town feel they may reasonably expect to enjoy a quiet and peaceful Sabbath. Several times recently, however, loudspeakers have been heard cruising the principal thoroughfares on Sunday to announce some special amusement event.

This loudspeaker nuisance is a penalty of modern living which people grudgingly tolerate around election time, but as an everyday diet, it should be ruled completely out. Least of all should it be permitted on Sunday, to intrude upon the reverence of the day and disturb the quietude of our residential sections.

A COMPLAINT may be justly levelled at the provincial roads authorities responsible for the relaying of Barron's Bridge. Having delayed this operation beyond reasonable time, and initiated the job just at the peak of the traffic season (it was first commenced during Fair Week), it might be expected the Department would now push completion of the work with the least possible delay. Not so, however. According to spectators daily passing this spot, speed appears to be the factor of least importance. It has been described as a slow-motion project which — were it not so seriously inconvenient to general traffic and business — would be something of a joke. Indeed, a casual inspection by the uninitiated, suggests this undertaking may occupy the work crew, at their present rate of progress, a few more weeks.

This is the height of the tourist season; it is no time for meandering on a job of such importance, causing long tie-ups in holiday traffic such as occurred last Sunday evening, besides obstructing local transit. . . Attention of the authorities is respectfully directed to this matter.

Death Closes Long Record of Activity In Church and Educational Sphere

LATE DR. G. A. CLUNIE PRACTICED DENTISTRY HERE; ESTEEMED AS CITIZEN AND FRATERNITY MEMBER

In the United Church here on Sunday afternoon, many townsfolk paid last tribute to one who had long been linked with the progress and affairs of that church — the late Dr. George Andrew Clunie. His administrative ability through the years had been equally shared in the sphere of education, and in his devotion to these interests he had earned the esteem of the entire English-speaking community. . Dr. Clunie succumbed to a brief illness, last Thursday in the Montreal General Hospital.

The son of George A. Clunie and Margaret McPhee, he was born in the settlement of St. Martin, Que., July 13, 1866, and moved to Lachute with his parents in 1868. Thus, his association of four-score years in these parts garnered a wealth of local fact and information, and Dr. Clunie was rated a reliable authority on the early annals of the district.

Graduating from the Lachute Academy in 1883, he spent two years in Montreal. Next, his adventures sought the pioneer scenes of the Pacific Coast — in 1886 he travelled by the first C.P.R. train to enter Port Moody, thence proceeding by boat to Vancouver. The following year the railroad link was established to the coast, and George Clunie saw the first Canadian Pacific train pull into Vancouver.

He then spent several years in Montana; he studied dentistry, and graduated from Chicago College of Dental Surgery in 1904. Returning to his native province, he practiced the dental profession in Lachute for many years, until his retirement several years ago.

The late Dr. Clunie served as secretary-treasurer of the Presbyterian Church (and later the United Church) for 40 years, and as secretary-treasurer of the Protestant School Commission for 35 years. He was a member of Argenteuil A.F. & A.M., a 32nd degree Mason and 52 years in the fraternity. . . His long records of service, his professional role and his lodge affiliations, stamp him as a figure of sterling worth in the development of this town.

Married in 1908 to Miss Ethel McOuat, he is mourned by his wife, two daughters, (Kathleen) Mrs. W. E. Cummings, of Gardiner, Maine, and Miss Betty Clunie, in the nursing profession at La Tuque, Que., also two grandsons.

The Rev. W. B. Rosborough, minister of the United Church and a close friend, paid fitting tribute to the departed and his contribution to the worthwhile things of this community. A profusion of flowers bore testimony of widespread sympathy and esteem. The remains were laid in their last resting place at Lachute Cemetery; pall-bearers were — Messrs. Melville Smith, Lemuel Hammond, Simon Wilson, Erskine Rodger, F. A. Brennian and A. G. Talbot.

Youth Drowned in Lake of Two Mountains

Jean Marie Dion, 16-year-old youth of Ville LaSalle, drowned Tuesday evening while swimming in Lake of Two Mountains near St. Eustache. His body was recovered an hour later. Provincial police said the youth, who was attending a summer health camp for children near St. Eustache, apparently had suffered a cramp.

Brownsburg Annual Picnic Complete With Dancing and Shooting Contest

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Strange as it may seem, fine weather was the cause of a small attendance at the annual picnic at Brownsburg on July 1st — it was too fine. During the course of the field events, only a small crowd assembled to witness the races. The heat from the sun was so intense that the truth of the old saying, "But mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the noon-day sun", became very apparent.

There were other attractions in nearby localities which may have accounted in part for the sparse crowd; however, when evening came, and the cool shades cast their mantle of comfortable air around the delightful bower which is the picnic grounds, a vast throng gathered along the hillside to enjoy the musical and pyrotechnic portion of the program.

The dance platform was the centre of attraction from the moment the well known CFRA (Ottawa) "Fiddlers' Fling" orchestra mounted the rostrum and Bill Sheppard struck up "Turkey in the Straw". The show was billed as an old-time square dance party; and a square dance it was, none of your modernistic rhumbas or jitter-bug hops, but a real down-to-earth square dance. The gifted announcer, Frank Ryan, said the crowd were the most "dancingest" crowd he ever had the pleasure of calling for, and he wished it could go on and on. There was no let-up after the first few hesitant bars were danced, and it took three m.c.'s to call the many squares which were danced. The only break that came in a continuous whirl of steps was to allow Albini Carriere and Emmanuel Parisien to trip through a series of taps, which heightened the enjoyment, adding a zest for more.

The softball game between Brownsburg Village and C-I-L Head Office was an interesting exhibition, and exciting at times. The Montreal aggregation took the short end by 11 to 6.

There were the usual side-shows — in amateur hands, to be sure, but conducting affairs with a professional flourish.

Brownsburg without a shooting competition would hardly be Brownsburg. Tom Dwyer took top honors by winning the championship trophy.

The fireworks display was of a spectacular nature, bigger and better than ever before. From a spectator's point of view the event was a great success, and a most enjoyable day's outing.

The various sports events and winners are listed on page 10.

School District Has Construction Projects in Hand

Operations commenced Tuesday on the long discussed building extension to Lachute High School. The general contractors, J. S. Hewson Ltd., are on the site, and excavation and carpenter work are now in progress.

Although by far the most important school project in the Argenteuil-Two Mountains Central Board area this season, there are other enterprises in different stages of advancement, one already in course of construction — all in this geographical county.

At Arundel Intermediate School the contractor, Conrad Forget, of St. Jovite, has the work well in hand for the addition of five classrooms and an assembly hall.

Gratton Thompson, architect, is now preparing the working plans for a four-room extension and assembly hall in Brownsburg, and for a new school building of six rooms and assembly hall at Morin Heights. . Leslie Perry, architect for a four-room addition to Grenville Consolidated School, is also busy preparing the working drawings for this job. . In all three cases, the preliminary plans were approved and passed by the Department of Education at Quebec.

These developments — all under the administration of the Argenteuil-Two Mountains Central School Board — represent a sizeable building program in keeping with the needs of pupil-accommodation and with modernization of schooling facilities in this district.

George Arida, Sr., a British-born Middle-East industrialist and philanthropist, bought the ship from the British admiralty. He will exhibit it in North America for the benefit of various charities. The yacht was built with funds donated by the German people as a token of admiration for "Der Fuehrer".

Youth Rescues Brownsburg Girl And Companion

NEAR-TRAGEDY OCCURRED IN RIDEAU RIVER

Among those who consider themselves extremely lucky with the great number of recent drowning accidents is Ruth Carpenter, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Carpenter, of Brownsburg.

In Ottawa, where she has been employed for some time, Ruth with a companion, Beverley Elford, also of Ottawa, had gone for a "dip" to escape the sweltering heat of last Sunday. Both girls were out some distance in the water of the Rideau River at the foot of St. Joseph Street, when Beverley Elford, who was just learning to swim, got into difficulties. Ruth went to her assistance but was dragged under water by her companion, who had become panicky.

Maurice Cameron, a cool-headed youngster of 14 years, quickly sized up the situation, and being a strong swimmer, was soon at their side. Freeing the Elford girl's hold on her companion, he smartly brought her to shore, and without hesitating a moment, went back to the aid of Miss Carpenter, also assisting her to shore.

The Elford girl was quickly revived. Neither she nor Miss Carpenter suffered any ill-effects from their experience. The circumstance was quite a shock, however, to both girls, and Ruth is at her home in Brownsburg for a rest.

Witnesses of Cameron's courageous act had high praise for the boy, and it was remarked, "He acted like a veteran. There is no doubt of it — that boy saved those girls' lives". Cameron thought nothing of his heroic role, and appeared quite unconcerned.

It is recalled that a brother of Miss Carpenter was drowned six years ago at almost the same spot as this unfortunate incident last week.

Injured Diving In Shallow Water

Lionel Rendell, of Verdun, Que., a summer camper at Upper Lachute, plunged from the bank of the North River into shallow water, striking his head on the bottom and suffering a neck injury which necessitated his removal to hospital.

The incident occurred Sunday on the property of Allan E. McLean, where Rendell's parents had rented a camp for the season. The young man, 25 years of age, struggled to shore after striking the river bottom, but then collapsed. Dr. J. Castagner, of Brownsburg, was summoned to give medical aid, and at the local Providence Hospital an X-ray examination revealed a cracked bone in the spinal column. The victim was later taken by his family to Montreal, and admitted to hospital for treatment.

Gatineau LINES

"Using" Water

It is sometimes said — without too much thought being given to it — that a power company "uses" a natural resource belonging to the people and converts it into something which it sells to the people.

In some ways, that is exactly what happens. A power company such as Gatineau does get rights to use a river or rivers to manufacture electric power which all its customers need. It spends millions of dollars developing its dams and power stations and transmission lines — and as a result of all this, it sells electric power.

The farmer "uses" the land to do exactly the same thing. The lumbering company "uses" the forests to do the same thing. The miner "uses" the rocks to get the minerals we all need. In each case, the land, the trees or the water is practically without value until somebody spends the time and money necessary to "use" it so that all may benefit.

Actually, the farmer, the lumberman, the miner and the power producer are all fellow-pioneers — spending their efforts in order to make Mother Earth give up something she would not otherwise surrender. By these efforts, they all contribute to the prosperity of the country; and for these efforts they all are paid by having the right to sell what their labors have produced.

But the parallel between the farmer, the lumberman, the miner and the power producer goes much farther than that. Each takes something, but each does his best to put back what he takes.

The farmer does not continually take his crops off the land, without taking steps to restore its fertility each year. The lumberman does his best to replant the forests as he goes along. The miner can't replace what he has taken from the earth, but he does the next best thing — he spends time and money searching for other parts of the land which contain the same things hidden beneath the soil.

The power company, of course, actually replaces the thing it "uses" faster than any of the others. It takes each drop of water, lets it fall over the waterwheels which turn its generators—and then restores it—unchanged in any way—within a few seconds. In effect, the power company has merely "borrowed" that drop of water for a second or so — but during that short time the water has played its part in producing the electricity for which man has found so many vital uses.

Did You Know?

Gatineau Power uses millions of gallons of water every second to bring you electric power. Then the water is returned to the river as pure and fresh as before.

Management of The Laying Flock

Careful observation and attention to the many details involved in handling laying flocks requires patience, fondness for the work and vigilance at all times. Profit or loss is determined by results obtained.

In the management of laying houses, says R. A. Sansbury, Dominion Experimental Station, Saanichton, B.C., it is essential to provide good ventilation and comfortable temperatures as these are important factors in the health of the flock. Ample roosting space for all birds should be provided. Feed hoppers should be placed to make the feed accessible and so arranged that they can be filled with a minimum amount of walking. Oyster shell and grit should be available at all times. A constant supply of clean, fresh water is necessary. A properly installed water system is important in keeping the litter dry. One eight-foot community nest is recommended for each group of 50 birds. Several different kinds of material such as peat moss, straw, shavings or sawdust make satisfactory litter. The type of litter selected for use will depend upon the cost. The litter in some parts of the pen, around the drinking fountains or under the windows, becomes damp. It should be removed and replaced with dry material.

Artificial lighting is necessary to maintain maximum egg production during the fall and winter months. The length of the feeding day should be kept at about 13 hours. Keep a close check on feed consumption and egg production during the lighting period. There is a relationship between the amount of feed consumed and the number of eggs laid.

To secure the most satisfactory egg production a feeding program must be established which will maintain the body, stimulate growth and development, support egg production and encourage maximum feed intake at all times. The weight and condition of the birds should be checked every two weeks. This is best done by checking the flesh on the breasts of a few birds in each pen while they are on the roosts at night. If the birds are losing flesh, feed a wet mash daily. A constant culling program helps to maintain low production cost.

Egg Quality

(Experimental Farm News)

The maintenance of high egg quality is a problem which, every year at this time, is forced on the attention of everyone concerned with the poultry industry. Methods of retaining quality are continuously emphasized, and yet eggs of inferior quality are sold in great numbers on the summer markets. The high proportion of quality eggs which are shipped by the more efficient producers is ample evidence that the difficulty can be solved by efficient management, says A. S. Johnson, of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The problem of retaining the original quality in eggs rests mainly with the primary producer. Eggs should be gathered frequently, preferably 3 or 4 times a day, and should be cooled immediately in an egg room, cellar or ice well, to a temperature as much below 60 degrees as possible. An egg cabinet with a burlap curtain soaked in cold water will help to lower the temperature. A plan of such a cabinet is available from the Information Service, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, on request. Ask for Agricultural Engineering Circular No. 17. Eggs kept under these conditions should be marketed preferably twice a week.

A great deal of labor may be avoided by producing clean eggs. Frequent changing of the litter in nests and its plentiful use is the best answer to such a problem. Washed eggs are considered to be unsatisfactory for storage purposes. On the other hand eggs having any dirt or stains are lowered in grade resulting in smaller returns.

Blood spots in eggs are another factor which causes reduction of profits. Information now available indicates that the tendency to produce blood spots in inherited to a certain degree and that strains can be developed which are relatively free from this character. This is a job for the experienced breeder or research worker. Of similar importance are egg shell quality and interior albumen quality, both of which can be influenced by selection.

Consumption of green feed in quantity by birds results in darker colored yolks. Unless extreme, this does not directly affect quality but it does cause a lowering of grade due to a more prominent yolk shadow in candling. Therefore it is advisable to restrict pasturing of birds to the afternoon.

The efficient producer is the one who has these different management problems in hand and knows that he is getting the most out of his flock. His margin of profit will be indicative of his success.

High Interest in Poultry Foreseen by Officials Of Ottawa Exhibition

Visitors to the Central Canada Exhibition, to be held at Ottawa on August 22 - 27, are going to see one of Ontario's outstanding Poultry Shows, directors of the fair have reported. Interest in the Poultry Division has reached a high level, and advance enquiries indicate that entries will be heavy in all classes.

As one of the features of the Poultry Show, plans are underway to install a duck-pond, complete with ducks, ducklings and suitable landscaping effects.

The general classification for poultry will take in all the well known breeds. There will also be the full quota of Bantam classes. Judging will be held for turkeys, geese, pigeons and, of course, the ducks. Adding color to the Poultry Show will be the exhibits of pheasants, guinea fowl, doves, etc.

Provision is being made for the canary and cage bird entries, which have always been a feature of Central Canada Exhibition shows. There will be ample accommodation for rabbits and cavies.

The closing date for entries in the Poultry Division is August 1. All exhibits must be in coops at Lansdowne Park before 10 o'clock Monday morning, August 22. The Exhibition management will provide the coops and will feed and care for the poultry.

Apart from games and game bantams, all specimens must be exhibited in their natural condition. All exhibits will be judged by comparison. The revised American Standard of Perfection shall be the guide of the judges.

A Time-Honored Art, Mowing With Scythe

Half a century ago Grandfather used to tell stories about haying before mowing machines became common. In early morning while the grass stems were still moist, men went forth to mow. Each man took a swath across field or meadow; each left an even windrow of wilting grass and as the sun rose and dried the dew the fragrance of the making hay was sweet in the air. The raking was done by hand with big bullrakes; the hay was cocked, pitched on and pitched off by muscle power.

There aren't too many men who can handle a scythe well today. It is an art to swing the twisted snath with its razor-edged scythe. It does not require much know-how to hack down grass along walls and fences where the machine cannot reach. Of course, young, young men who have to turn the grindstones feel there is still much hard work in haying and that hedgerows should be allowed to grow for wildlife protection. Fifty years ago older men were proud of their ability to mow by hand.

It reqiures a craftsman skill and an instinctive sense of rhythm to be a good mower. The countryman can remember Grandfather's diricetions, "Keep the heel down; keep the point down. Don't bend over or you will grow tired quickly. Don't try to cut too wide a swath. Take it easy and slow.

In the long ago days when men took quiet pride in their craftsmanship it was a pleasure to watch Grandfather work around the field, cutting a swath of timothy and clover before Father started around with the big Percherons. His swing was slow and even; at each swing he moved ahead with short, rhythmic steps; one could almost feel his pride in doing a good job. Today the countryman on his one man farm uses the scythe to trim out around the buildings and along the borders. It doesn't give a man much opportunity to practice straight-ahead mowing.

We are in favor of mechanized agriculture. But sometimes when one stops on an early Summer day and sees the grass rushing toward maturity, he can hear the clang of whetstones of long ago and see men going forth at dawn to mow by hand.

High Building Costs... Have Raised Our Costs Too!

WE'VE HAD TO BUILD or enlarge 100 telephone buildings in the last three years. We were obliged to do this at a time when building costs were about double pre-war costs. Yet, up to now, despite rising costs on all sides there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 22 years ago.

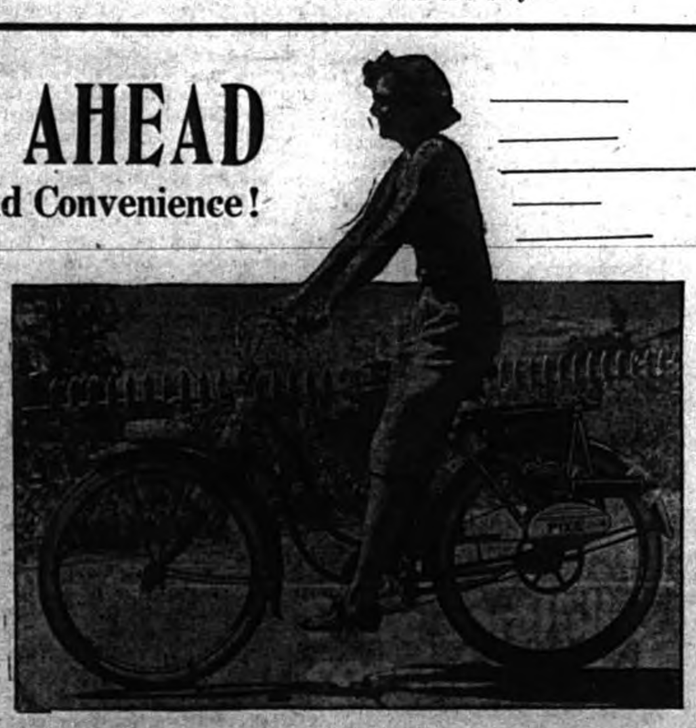

To meet unprecedented post-war demand for more telephones, our expansion and improvement of service have of necessity taken place in a period of rapidly rising costs. Most businesses have offset their higher costs by higher prices for their products. We have not yet done so.

You can be sure we will keep on doing our best to provide you with adequate and constantly improving telephone service — and to provide it at the lowest rates consistent with a fair return to our investors and employees.

Dilapidated Road Signs

WHILE critical of the unsightliness and the hazards which we encounter on our highways, these observations also stir a sense of personal shame . . for, despite our ineffectiveness to remedy such matters, we still feel a proprietary interest in our surroundings. Especially in this fair County of Argenteuil.

All the rusty, battered and illegible highway signs that meet the eye in this locality are nothing short of a disgrace. It is unbelievable that a progressive Department of Highways could tolerate this state of dilapidation, over two months after the opening of seasonal traffic. We are bitterly conscious of the impression this unsightliness must give to strangers. With so much work in progress to improve our trafficways, and so much costly propaganda to entice the tourist trade, such neglect of orderliness and good appearance is contrary to common-sense.

Napoleon Started Something

THE ORIGINATOR of the dictum that "an army marches on its stomach", offered 12,000 francs to any Frenchman who could discover a method of preserving food for his fighting men. Napoleon may thus be said to have given first impetus to the canning industry. However, it probably would have arrived without him — remarks Edith Elliott of the Consumer Section at Ottawa. . . A partial answer came in 1809 when Nicholas Appert succeeded in preserving food by cooking and packing in glass bottles with tightly driven corks. These bottles were, of course, breakable and heavy, and to a large extent unsuitable for the rough-and-tumble of the battlefield.

Years later another Frenchman, Peter Durand, obtained a permit for making a tinplated cannister for packing food products. But later, when one Thomas Kenneth applied for a patent for these tin cans in the United States, it was not granted as the authorities considered it a joke. In 1860, however, the manufacture by hand of tin cans began in the United States. In 1878 the first Canadian canning factory was established at Grimsby, Ont.

Machine-made cans were soon used, but the tops were soldered on. In 1910 soldering was dispensed with and the modern type of can adopted. These are made of steel with a coating of pure tin. Special enamel-lined tins are used where any discoloration of the contents might occur, or chemical action corrode the inner surface of the can.

Today, both can and contents must live up to the exacting specifications laid down by Government to protect the health — and also the pocket — of the consumer.

What Price Justice

A SATURDAY columnist in The Montreal Gazette tells a story reminiscent of highwaymen and sea pirates — the main difference being that, in that enlightened era, justice was applied with a ruthlessness befitting the crime; it was not simply a thing to be out-smarted. . .

Driving home from a suburban golf club late one evening, a man and wife were flagged down by two men on the road, backed by red lights. The wife, a cautious soul, had the window on her side rolled up. The pair came alongside the car and attempted a holdup, but the couple escaped by gunning the car. The nearest Provincial Police post managed to arrest one of the pair still loitering about. He was identified by the intended victim, who was told to appear against him in court Tuesday morning. Tuesday he found the man had been released because he (the complainant) had not posted security for costs in case he was acquitted. . . What price justice?

Do Not Ask!

IT IS ALL RIGHT to ask, "Are they keeping you busy?" People are seldom offended in these days at the implication that they must work for a living. It is even reasonably safe to query "How are you?" althought the hypochondriac may use up twenty minutes of your time in his reply. But few venture to inquire about a person's emotions. "Your emotions in good shape?" This is not generally asked.

Yet most of us spend the bulk of our time wrestling deep in the dust with our emotions. Our spirit, our soul, the far inner recesses of ourselves, take up all the time we can get. Making a living, leading through strength, changing the baby — these are important matters; but in the midst of such occupations the spirit stirs, and the boss, the bid and even the baby become like dreams.

It is the spirit that is reality. That is man's strength. It is so much his only strength that he carries it sheathed like a sword in a scabbard, lest the breath of idle conversation tarnish and rust it. Never ask a man, "How is your soul?" He and his soul have no time to spare for you.

LOCAL TAX RATES

Municipal councils complain, and with good reason, that they have control of the expenditure of only a comparatively small amount of the money which they levy in taxes. Four of the five largest items in the budget for general purposes are for matters which are quite beyond the control of the council, but for which the county must pay.

WITHOUT A NAME

THE MULTITUDE OF UNKNOWN STARS

By M. V. Trayers

On a beautiful starlit night, who hasn't wandered across the green sward of the earth and looked up at the night sky seeking some familiar star such as Jupiter or Venus, or the Milky Way or even the moon itself—and wondered at the multitude of little stars which practically nobody knows the name of; if they have names, very few beyond the astronomers know them, and only the few versed in the science have heard them.

If you want to compare the feeling of mystery and loneliness which your quest into the lights of the sky casts over you, consider the stars of the literary "sky" and the multitude of minor lights which passed and are passing almost unnoticed, but which contribute so much to the general picture that their absence would be a distinct loss.

After all, if the heavens were but to hold only those stars with which we are acquainted by name or association, what a poor display the canopy of the sky would present. And if we were to find our literary heavens confined to quotations from the major stars such as Shakespeare (great as his contribution is), Shelley, Voltaire, Dickens, Johnson, Wilde and the others — how uninteresting and poor would be the glory reflected.

But what of the minor stars who have occupied a place in the firmament and shone a ray of light beautiful to behold, but of whose identity mankind is unaware or indifferent. Like the many who sing and appreciate "Silent Night" and know nothing of the little priest who wrote it, Father Mohr. If you were asked who wrote or first expressed the thought, "Laugh and the world laughs with you", or "Oh to be in England now that April's there", or "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn"—you no doubt could answer correctly. Why, you learned that in your "literature" at school. But what about "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home"? No, it wasn't Stephen Foster. He wasn't even a poet, he was an actor, and never had a home of his own. He wrote an opera that very few know about, "The Maid of Milan". In it he included a "hit" song, and it was a hit the very first night it was played at Covent Garden Opera House in London. It was called "Home, Sweet Home", and the writer was John Howard Payne. . . Or if you were asked who wrote the "Marseillaise". Yes, it is the French national anthem. But who wrote it? Well, he was just a soldier without any literary or musical pretensions. He was quartered at Strasbourg, and one night he composed this father of all anthems. His name? What does it matter. Rouget de Lisle — it will be for ever among the stars.

A contestant in a "quiz" show was asked who wrote "Annie Laurie". She replied she was Scotch and of course she knew who wrote it, Robbie Burns. Well, she was wrong. Robbie is a "major" star, but he didn't write "Annie Laurie". It was written by an almost unknown "minor", William Douglas.

Who first said "Don't sell America short", or "Adversity introduces a man to himself", or "Bread is the staff of life", or "He who fights and runs away will live to fight another day"; and —

"God and a soldier all people adore
In time of war, but not before;
And when war is over and all things are righted.
God is neglected and an old soldier slighted."

You don't know? Well, don't feel too badly about it. They were the rays given off by the multitude of unknown stars whose light we enjoy but of whose presence we have no knowledge. One thing we do know; those heavens would not be so splendid, their beauty would not be so entrancing, if it were not for the "minors" and the unknowns.

Dealing with this thought, Liebman, in his profoundly fascinating book, "Peace of Mind", has this to say: "A few geniuses are able to achieve immortality in the creation of an unforgettable symphony, a priceless painting, an imperishable book. Most of us, however, have to be content with humbler contributions to the thought progress of the world. Our little fragments of ideas become part of the anonymous culture of the world. Our living immortality is found more concretely in our children, in our children's children.

We may not be sculptors, able to hew immortal statues out of immobile rock. Most of us, however, have the infinitely greater privilege (which we take too much for granted) of molding the spiritual life and destiny of the generations that come after us. Men and women whom we influence by the example of our lives, the children who are touched by the flame of our spirits — it is in them that we live on and find our eternal significance.

IT'S HEALTHY—OUT IN THE SUN

With good weather ahead and vacation time here, it's going to feel nice to lie on the beach and soak up the sun. Some people are bound to overdo it—as they do every year. Make sure you're not one of them. Start off with a few minutes daily and gradually increase the dose. Sudden exposure for long periods can be painful—sometimes dangerous. It's in your interest to enjoy your vacation. It's "Good Citizenship" to keep healthy!

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

Appreciation to the Electors

I thank the voters of Argenteuil - Two Mountains for their support, specially those whose devotion and personal effort were responsible for our success.

I make special mention of my fellow-citizens of Lachute, and the citizens of Brownsburg and Grenville. I appreciate particularly this mark of esteem, coming from those to whom I am best known.

Again may I repeat — I am at the service of all the citizens of this constituency; I will do my best to deserve the honor accorded to me, and to discharge to the best of my ability the duties entrusted in this office.

Je le répète: je suis au service de toute la population sans exception, et je ferai de mon mieux pour me montrer digne de l'honneur que l'on m'accorde et pour accomplir les obligations inhérentes au mandat que j'ai reçu.

To Buffalo With The Weekly Press

By R. A. GILES

Ontario-Quebec members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association held a joint convention with the New York Press Association at the Statler Hotel, Buffalo, just recently, and it was a happy break from the strenuous time which publishers had just come through with election work. Attendance was smaller than usual on this account, but in all there were 150 present who mingled happily together exchanging ideas about various conditions in Canada and the United States.

Registration took up most of the afternoon and by 6.30 p.m. all were ready for the "Dutch Treat" Dinner, followed by Open House at which refreshments were served and several movie films shown. The first of these "Utility Unlimited" was presented by the Bell Aircraft Corporation and featured the Helicopter, showing the many advantages it has in farming activities and how easily it can be manoeuvred while landing and taking off in remarkably small space.

"Type Speaks", the second film, gave the audience some idea of the exactness required in making type faces, and the patience necessary in preparing the first drawings and castings.

"The Home Town Weekly" followed and was greatly enjoyed. This film was taken in Vernon, B.C., and is the story, in brief, of the production of a newspaper from start to finish. This showing was new to most of our American friends who were greatly impressed.

A radar demonstration through courtesy of the New York Telephone Co., was made most realistic by presentation of a small ship travelling to New York and passing through the narrows. On its journey, the outlines of near land and various objects were easily viewed on the illuminated chart, exemplifying the wonderful aid this new discovery is to travel.

A wake-up breakfast on Friday morning was well attended and started off a business session at which Presidents J. H. Strong, Jr., and C. Bond presided. For several hours the gathering talked "shop" and helpful ideas were exchanged as to plant workings on each side of the border. Among topics discussed were the handling of Photo Engravings, Banking and Training of Apprentices.

While the men were in session, the ladies were entertained to a book review by Mrs. Patrick J. Ben-Fonte, which proved most interesting and instructive.

Practically everyone attended the delicious luncheon, where various awards were made in the newspaper competitions. These were won as follows:—The Legge Memorial Trophy for the best editorial page, Fort Erie Times Review; E. F. Stephenson Memorial Trophy, for the best front page, eligible to papers in towns of 4,500 and under, Bowmanville Statesman; Joseph T. Clarke Memorial Trophy, for the best all-round newspaper published in towns or villages of 1500 or less, Stouffville Tribune.

Following this, the gathering was addressed by Lieut. Governor Joe. Hanley, whose subject was "Whither Democracy". Urging publishers to take their profession seriously, he said, "The profession or business that doesn't grow, dies. It is foolish to stand in the way of human progress". Editorials do have a power", he declared. "Keep on writing them, whether you think people read them or not. You must remember that papers are subscribed for and actually the editor is an invited guest in the home of his readers. He wields a greater influence than he thinks". He stressed the fact that we elect those who preside over us and that government belongs to the people and not the people to government. He paid tribute to the people of the British Isles who had played such an important role in the recent conflict and commended them for their many sacrifices.

Most of our members had visited Niagara Falls on the Canadian side which in our estimation provides a much better view, but still this wonderful sight is one which is ever new and two large buses conveyed our party from Buffalo, escorted by State Motor Cycle Police who gave us right of way privileges over all other traffic. Here we were entertained to refreshments and took in the famous boat trip on the Maid of the Mist.

Returning to Buffalo our next event was a cocktail party, dinner dance and floor show at the Town Casino. Here we were entertained by Marilyn Maxwell, direct from Hollywood, a most charming movie actress and singing star. The famous All Star Esquire Magazine Combo and 8 piece negro orchestra supplied a variety of tunes that called for repeated encores while the audience contented themselves by partaking of a full course and delicious dinner. To those visiting Buffalo this spot at 681 Main Street should not be omitted from their itinerary for a night's fun.

Saturday was set aside for individual meetings when at our session we inducted our new president Mr. Mel Southcott of Exeter, Ont. and conducted business relative to our own Association.

After lunch we were able to visit our friends Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carpenter. It was nice to see them again for Bob and I served overseas together and not having seen each other for 12 years had plenty to talk about. Their family of two fine boys were also present and our stay though short was most enjoyable. Leaving for home in the afternoon we called up Mrs. Hodge (Gladys Cruise) at Niagara Falls and chatted for a few minutes only, as the train took on luggage and passengers.

Sunday morning we were back home again. Yes, good and tired, but pleased with the change and delighted with the wonderful hospitality shown us by our American friends. Their United States is a wonderful country but so is our Canada and it is our hope that in the near future we will be honored by having them visit us. To them all we say "Thank You", and our sincere appreciation to our C.P. and C.N. Railways for transportation courtesies extended our members.

World's Biggest Plate Glass Window

The largest plate glass window in the world, 1,000 feet long and 50 feet high, has been erected along one wall of the great assembly hall where the "Brabazon", Britain's giant airliner, is being built at Bristol. As well as housing the "Brabazon", this hangar is being used for servicing the aircraft of British Overseas Airways. The window is built to withstand 80 miles per hour Atlantic gales which sweep up the Bristol Channel. A system of double glazing has been used. . . The design is tested to stand wind velocities up to 150 miles per hour, and since no putty and no painting is necessary, the upkeep cost is very low. . . Picture shows one section of the plate glass window. A B.O.A.C. aircraft is being serviced in the foreground.

Anything A House In Oil Boom Town

Redwater, A Hamlet of 200, Suddenly Swollen to 2,500

Redwater, Alta. (CP) — Only a short time ago this was a quiet, peaceful hamlet of about 200 population but now it is a town swollen in size by the influx of 2,500 persons living in almost every type of accommodation.

This is the new Redwater, latest oil boom town in the Edmonton district. Redwater is about 35 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Along what once was a small town street where horses and carts were peacefully tethered, now is heard the steady drum of carpenters' hammers, the churn of cement mixers and the noise of new construction everywhere.

Soon to adorn that once slumberous main street will be a new $100,000 hotel, theatre and modern stores and business establishments. Meantime, however, a light, prefabricated and discarded army hut moved into town has been converted into a cafe.

It is a business that grosses $10,000 a month. There are two other cafes which also do a roaring business.

There is nothing fancy about Redwater. It is a boom town in the rawest form. Trailers, one-room garage-type huts are being hauled into the town and left at the most convenient sites. They arrive day and night as the number of oil employees and construction workers multiplies.

There are homes but only a few new ones and most of the better dwellings were in Redwater before the flow of oil was brought to the surface by Imperial Oil at its discovery well late in 1948.

But a town of trailers and huts isn't the ultimate fate of Redwater. Efforts are being made to give the town, now managed by the municipality, legal status of a town and, it is believed, with such a development a more systematic settlement may be conducted.

A 10-year program will electrify Sicily's railways.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

New Names in the NORTH

MARATHON and Red Rock, Terrace and Heron Bay—new names in Ontario's bushland north of Lake Superior all tell the same story: New towns have arisen, old ones expanded. Only five years ago on the site of Marathon, for example, there was nothing but bush; today a new community beside a new pulp mill is contributing millions to Canada's export trade.

Burnt Creek and Knob Lake, Goodwood and Eclipse — new names in "New Quebec" tell of the development of one of the richest, purest deposits of iron ore the world has ever known.

Such spectacular advances in the north are matched by continuing industrial expansion in the older established communities. Throughout Canada today ever-widening avenues of opportunity await the enterprise of young Canadians.

"Canada is a land of opportunity . . . There is a field for almost anything one can think of, and anyone with a willingness for hard work has a good chance to achieve success", says Donald J. Smith, President of Hornet Industries Limited, Guelph, Ontario.

Hornet Industries Limited, which was founded in 1945, has in this short time achieved remarkable success in the manufacture of chain saws and combustion engines. More than half the production of the plant reaches markets outside Canada. From a staff of only a half dozen men in 1945, Hornet Industries Limited has expanded to three plants in Guelph, employing 296 workers.

GOOD LEADERSHIP BIG REQUIREMENT FOR GIRLS' WORK

Patience and Understanding to Cope with Problems in Girls' Clubs

Saskatoon, Sask., June (CP) — Miss Ruth Bentley, a social worker at the Regina Mental Hospital, has classified the types of girls found in most girls' clubs.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Girls' Club Week here recently, Miss Bentley said there were many "shrinking violets". These girls, she said, are self-conscious, quiet and ingrown. They might never be leaders but found it necessary to meet people and take part in homecraft clubs.

The "Jo" types are filled with boundless energy and brag and bob up on all occasions. They are the "gay" type, she said, and are constantly looking for excitement. These girls are defiant and are not dependable.

Miss Bentley named a third type the "headachey type". They are full of whines and excuses, always complaining about rheumatism or other make-believe illnesses. When one of these girls is asked how she feels, she usually answers, "Oh, as well as can be expected, I guess".

Another of "the types" is the fat girl — the one who eats too much. Miss Bentley did not elaborate on her.

Patience Necessary

While these are exaggerated examples, the social worker said, club leaders usually can depend on having several of these types in her group. They are a problem, she said, but can usually be handled through patience and understanding.

Miss Bentley also analyzed some leaders. The first type is the "compeller" who dominates, who works her fingers to the bone, leaving her group regimented and utterly dependent. Another is the "sugary" leader who uses flattery to get what she wants.

Another common leader is the "ostrich". She is a perpetual optimist who doesn't face realities — just lets things drift. The "worrier" is the fussy, jittery leader who is unable to work under pressure.

The ideal leader, Miss Bentley concluded, should have a deep liking for people, a mature outlook, a sympathetic understanding and a sense of humor. She should be resourceful, a good listener and, above all, one who works with the group, not for it.

"Climate Factory" For Crop Research

Super-Greenhouse with Weather And Soil Controls

By Ralph Dighton

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — A new world of agriculture, in which plants that never see the sun nor feel the elements produce crops of incredible size and flavor, awaits just over the horizon.

Between that world and this, scientists say, lie only a few years of experimentation — in a new "climate factory" at the California Institute of Technology.

It's the Earhart Plant Research Laboratory — a super-greenhouse with built-in weather and soil controls. Every kind of climate in the world which will support plant life can be reproduced in this $400,000 nursery. It was built with funds donated by the Earhart Foundation of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Known as the "Phytotron", this laboratory will artificially recreate or eliminate all but one of the known factors in plant growth such as soil, climate, insects and sunlight.

The one factor which the phytotron will not be able to control is cosmic radiation. These are the myterious rays which come from somewhere out in the universe, constantly bombarding the earth and sometimes changing the evolution of living things upon it.

"We don't know any way to protect our plants or ourselves from these radiations", says Dr. Frits Went, director of the laboratory. "But we hope, by controlling all other factors, to learn exactly what effects these radiations do have.

"Strangely enough, we already know more about the effects of radiation — through X-Ray experiments — than we do about the effects of weather. Experts have bred strains of fruit and vegetables for one characteristic or another through generations, and have never known which effect was due to breeding one year, or to weather the next.

"If we can tell in advance what plants will grow best in what climate, we should be able to increase the world's food supply even under current farming methods.

"Eventually, we may find it feasible to grow all crops in such laboratories. The increase in yield and flavor may well justify the expense. It already is true in the case of orchids."

As the word "Phytotron" suggests, it is not so much a greenhouse as a huge instrument for the study of botany.

Its various rooms produce temperatures ranging from 35 to 88 degrees. Humidity can be reduced to 10 per cent, simulating desert air. Rain, fog and even smog (smoke and fog) can be created by the turn of a valve on the huge instrument board in the director's office.

Travel the World On A Shoe String

Toronto (CP) — Travelling the world on a "shoe string" is a tough grind. But to Elizabeth Stephenson and Joan Dilnot of Kent, England, it's fun.

In fact, the two young girls are planning a bicycle tour to the Rocky Mountains soon. They arrived here recently for a brief stop-over. The girls take various jobs to earn spending money. Elizabeth does automobile driving chores while her companion delves into the advertising field. They hope eventually to get to New Zealand.

"My mother was even keener on it than I was", said Elizabeth. "You had better start out to see the world now or you never will", she said.

Local Couple Wed At United Church

Morrison - Thompson

The marriage of Mildred Jessie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Thompson, of Lachute, to Mr. Earl Stanley Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Morrison, of Campbellton, N.B., took place at 3 o'clock last Friday afternoon in the Lachute United Church. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiated.

The church was tastefully decorated with orange blossoms, peonies and snapdragons. Mr. J. Gorman played the wedding music.

Given away by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Beadoria satin with long sleeves terminating over the hands. Her full skirt ended with a fan-shaped train, and her long net veil formed a cap effect with ruchings of satin and a wreath of lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and pale pink roses.

Miss Audrey Thompson was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a dainty long gown of pink taffeta with pink headdress and shoulder veil of dotted d'esprit net, with matching mitts. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

Mr. J. Morrison acted as best man for his brother. The ushers were Mr. Garfield Thompson, brother of the bride, Mr. Leslie Kerr and Mr. Murray Templeton.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall. After receiving the good wishes of their many friends, the happy couple left for their wedding trip to the Maritimes. For travelling the bride wore a rose-beige suit with white accessories.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were — Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Morrison, of Campbellton, N.B.; Mrs. Neil Price and daughter Carol Ann, of Ottawa; Mr. J. Morrison, of Toronto; Miss Lois Robertson, of New Richmond; Miss Pearl Heatlie, of St. Lambert, and Mr. Peterkin, from British West Indies; Miss Ruth Orsborne, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, of Verdun; Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, of Templeton, Que.

Ambitious Youngsters Find Good Opportunity In Banking Profession

EARN, LEARN AND TRAVEL AT SAME TIME

A progressive career as an officer of Canada's first bank lies within your reach, of you're a go-ahead young fellow with junior matriculation or its equivalent. Girls, too, find increasing opportunity in the Bank of Montreal.

Because of the tempo of business today, promotion is steadily becoming more rapid. Senior B of M positions are filled by staff promotion. Tuition fees, with a special bonus, are returned to juniors who pass banking courses.

Earning while learning, the young banker is trained in a variety of duties of increasing importance. His training also gives him the opportunity of serving in various parts of the country.

Some of the benefits of service in the B of M are a pension, group insurance, and special allowances and bonuses, and the B of M officer need not fear unemployment in bad times.

Like other professions, banking is not a quick means to a high income. But the banker's lifelong professional standing and security compare well to the ups and downs of most men who want a high salary in a hurry; and besides, bank salaries have risen substantially in recent years.

If a Bank of Montreal career interests you, see Mr. B. G. Foreman, acting manager of the B of M branch at Lachute, tomorrow. He'll gladly tell you more.

ROLLER SKATE HOCKEY POPULAR IN BRITAIN

London (CP) — The roller-skating craze is back in Britain. The kids are playing hockey on school playgrounds. Roller skates practically disappeared during the war. The metal was needed for other things.

In some London schools roller-skate hockey has been made a recognized sport. Races and figure-skating are seen on play streets.

Roller-skating rinks are mushrooming. In Yarmouth, an area kept as a lawn for 50 years is being converted to an open-air skating rink.

At the beginning of his lecture tour, a clergyman asked a young reporter not to publish any of the lecture, as it might detract from the attendance at the other meetings.

Accordingly, the reporter's story read as follows: "'The vicar gave a very interesting talk, but unfortunately his stories cannot be printed.

The Play Must Go On

In summer time, the homemaker seems to be swamped in the endless tide of duties, both inside and outside the house. Three times a day, 21 times a week . . nearly a hundred meals a month must be on the table, on time.

Whatever happens she wants to be proud of the food she serves, so if she can find a short cut or a simple dish that looks elegant, she is delighted. Best of all, she may accept the compliments of family and guests without letting them know how easily the dish was made.

One-dish meals are often surprisingly attractive but quickly prepared. Simple custards or whips, served in sherbet glasses, or moulded gelatine desserts garnished with a few fresh berries look much more complicated than they are.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, offer some suggestions which may be helpful in planning and preparing summer meals and also some recipes that pass the time test.

Meat and Potato Casserole

1 lb. Ground raw beef, 1 medium onion chopped, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 5 medium potatoes, 1 cups peas, fresh or canned, 1½ cups canned tomatoes, ½ cup buttered bread crumbs.

Mix meat, onion, salt and pepper. Place a layer of sliced raw potatoes in the bottom of a greased casserole, cover with half the meat mixture, add a layer of peas. Repeat layers. Add tomatoes and cover with bread crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderately hot oven 375°F., for 1 hour, then uncover and bake about 30 minutes longer, until potatoes are tender and crumbs are browned. Yield: six servings.

Refrigerator Bread Pudding

2 Tablespoons gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 4 slices white bread (½" thick), 1¼ cups milk, ½ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1 cup crushed fresh fruit, 2 egg whites.

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Remove crusts from bread and cut centres in one-inch dice (should make two cups). Heat milk, sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Add softened gelatine, stir until dissolved. Pour over well-beaten egg yolks. Return to double boiler and cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and pour over bread. Let stand 5 minutes and fold in drained fruit and stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a wet mould and chill until firm. Serve with cream or additional fresh fruit. Yield: six servings.

Praline Topping

½ Cup brown sugar firmly packed, 2 teaspoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon water, ½ cup chopped nuts.

Mix all ingredients, spread over a hot 9" x 9" cake, return cake to oven and bake 5 minutes in a moderate oven, 350°F. Yield: enough for a 9" x 9" cake.

Keep It Long and Lovely

It's time someone told Canadian girls that they look awful with their hair short.

They've been trimming it nearer and nearer their pretty heads for six months now and it's got to the stage where some are wearing what they called a "boyish bob" when we were a lad. They look almost as bad after they've had a home permanent as they do when the ghastly job is going on.

Only one who went through the horrors of the '20s when the boyish bob was in style can cry out adequately against the new trend.

The b.b, in case you don't recall, was achieved by "shingling" the back of the head until it made a girl look like a man needing a haircut. A little was left on the sides but not enough to cover the ears.

It came in a few years after women first started bobbing their long locks and it was natural, perhaps, that they should go to extremes. There was a quick return to longer bobs and, a few years later, the attractive and flattering shoulder-length cut.

Now the shorter-and-shorter school is in full cry. Ears which are meant only to be glimpsed under concealing curls are out again in all their nakedness. Necks are bared and soon the hair stylists' clippers will be making them as ugly as they were in the '20s.

Short hair undoubtedly is cooler in summer. But will girls spoil their good looks just to be cool? Not if they realize no woman looks as well with a few stringy curls and a cropped neck as she does with a good head of hair framing her face.

Warnings like this are never heeded but when we see disaster ahead we must speak out. The compulsion is terrific when the subject of impending doom is the beauty of Canadian girls.

Keep it long and lovely, honeys.

HOW TO SPEND A HAPPY YEAR $64 QUESTION

With $10,000 and Only One Year to Live, "Mrs. Heart" Has Not Yet Found Answer

By WILLIAM PEART

Oklahoma City (AP) — Almost anybody can tell you what to do with $10,000. But almost nobody seems able to tell you how to spend a year happily.

Oklahoma City's "Mrs. Heart" has more than 12,000 letters, telegrams and telephone calls to prove the point. They were the replies to her question.

"What would you do if you had only a year to live and $10,000 to spend?"

The woman, whose true identity remains a secret, told the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman her doctors had informed her that she would probably die in one year of a heart ailment.

Letters, telegrams and phone calls started pouring in by the hundreds. The overwhelming majority tell Mrs. Heart how to make others happy by giving them all or part of her money. Some ask for themselves. Hundreds seek aid for relatives, or friends or institutions.

"Loan me $400", a typical letter said, "then I can pay my bills and you'll have the satisfaction of knowing you made an old woman happy."

In all seriousness, an Oklahoma woman suggested that $10,000 should be spent publicizing her patented flea powder. She thought that would make thousands of dogs and cats happy.

Letters Sympathetic

Most letters — from practically every state and several other countries — did offer the 51-year-old widow sympathy.

Most of the letter-writers ignored or overlooked the explanation in news stories that Mrs. Heart already had provided in her will for her charities.

But there were a few hundreds of well-wishers who concerned themselves solely with the widow's own plight. Dozens wrote and telegraphed that they had been living on borrowed time for years and still had no intention of dying soon.

A Milwaukee woman wrote: "I wouldn't have any theories about how to spend $10,000. But I would have a definite theory how to go about living and enjoying life. . . I certainly would want to live — not die — and I would investigate every avenue that would help in that direction."

It was the letters from other heart sufferers, still living despite warnings such as she had received, that made Mrs. Heart elect to "see some more doctors."

She got a lift from such letters as the following: "For shame on you for looking at this wonderful life in such a negative way. Why, if I were told I had only a year to live I wouldn't think of throwing it away on anything so sterile as a fling.

"I would be thinking that each day might be the very day when the cure for MY ailment would be discovered. I sincerely hope I may read about you again in about 10 years — healthy and happy. And I really think that I will."

W. Ross Macdonald Likely Speaker On Opening of Parliament Session

Cost of Living Hit New Peak in May. . . Britain's Dollar Troubles Seen Due to Lag in Production

"The Week at Ottawa"

By LORNE FRAME

Ottawa, July 12 (CP) — With the elections over, Ottawa is looking ahead to the first session of the 21st parliament, expected in late September.

Some 80 new members will sit in the Commons. Liberals are most numerous among them. The government has added 25 new members from Ontario, 16 from Quebec, 11 from Saskatchewan, British Columbia has added seven, Newfoundland five, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick three each, Prince Edward Island and Yukon-Mackenzie one each.

There may be some confusion. For example, there will be four members answering to calls for Mr. Gauthier. They are all Liberals.

Despite widespread speculation regarding possible Senate appointments, only one has been named. Hon. J. N. Barbour, minister of public works and highways in the Prince Edward Island government, was appointed to fill the lone vacancy for that province. His appointment reduced the total number of vacancies to 13.

W. Ross Macdonald of Brantford, Ont., likely will be appointed speaker of the Commons when the new parliament meets for its first session. Mr. Macdonald served in the last Commons as deputy speaker. Members usually accept the nomination placed before them by the government, although technically the speaker is chosen by the Commons as a whole. Traditionally, English-speaking and French-speaking speakers alternate with each new parliament. Dr. Gaspard Fauteux, Liberal member for Montreal St. Mary, was Commons speaker in the last parliament.

Dollar Shortage

Announcement by Sir Stafford Cripps of the British government's decision to cut imports from dollar areas didn't ruffle trade officials at Ottawa.

But the announced restrictions may mean the end of Anglo-American food contracts up for renewal in 1950. The contracts are worth $400,000,000 a year in Canadian cheese, wheat, eggs, bacon and salmon.

The wheat agreement will be superseded by the new international wheat agreement and would have expired anyway.

Ch. of Commerce Asks Completion Of Road Paving

At an executive meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last week, under chairmanship of the new president, J. Romeo Charron, the uncompleted improvement of the Lachute - St. Canut highway; and resultant handicap to tourist traffic between the Laurentians and the national capital, were discussed at some length, and it was decided to urge government action in this matter. The secretary was instructed to write Mr. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., respectfully suggesting that, with co-operation of the deputy for Two Mountains, completion of this work in the near future would benefit the entire district as regards both tourist and commercial transit.

Mr. Charron offered the services of his office on Main Street to the Chamber of Commerce, as a tourist information bureau during the summer season.

Maurice Lapointe was named treasurer, and Fernand Legault, B.A., LL.B., was appointed legal adviser to the Chamber of Commerce.

Hold-Up Attempt Papineauville Bank

Suspected of the attempted hold-up of the Banque Provinciale at Papineauville on Tuesday of last week, two Ottawa men were said to have been detained, and later a report from Hull stated one of them, Cleophas Givoque, 18, had pleaded guilty to an attempted armed robbery charge. He also pleaded guilty to a second charge, that of stealing two watches and $10 in cash from bank manager Medard Lalonde.

The men, described as a pair of Mutt-and-Jeff bandits, were foiled in an attempt to hold up the branch of the Banque Provinciale at Papineauville last week.

The two bandits — one tall, the other short — set fire to a two-storey chicken house at the other end of the town to draw attention from their attempted hold-up of the bank.

They mauled the wife of the bank manager after holding the two at gunpoint for a half-hour threatening them with death if they failed to open the bank vault.

The would-be hold-up men fled when the manager's daughter, pretty Claudette Lalonde, came home and found her father, Medard Lalonde, being held with a gun to his stomach, and the second bandit struggling with her mother.

Claudette ran out into the street to spread the alarm, and the bandits ran across the freshly-painted front porch. Police later took plaster-of-paris moulds of the prints.

Two youths gave chase to the fleeing bandits, but the thugs sent bullets whistling near their heads. The pair made their getaway in an automobile parked near the bank.

Quebec police, who investigated the attempted hold-up, said the smaller bandit had been seen near the chicken house shortly before it was set afire. Most of the townsfolk left their homes and were at the scene of the fire when the two men concealed themselves in the apartment at the bank.

When the Lalondes returned they were confronted with guns. The manager was ordered to open the vault. He stalled for time, telling the bandits he couldn't open it without another key, held by the accountant. The bandits said they were prepared to wait all night until the accountant arrived for work. After a while they became impatient and threatened to beat Mrs. Lalonde if the vault wasn't opened immediately. Seeing his wife threatened, Lalonde gave the bandits all the money he had along with his watch.

This didn't satisfy the thugs, however, and one of them began to pummel Mrs. Lalonde. Shortly after Claudette arrived. Seeing what was happening from the doorway, she rushed back outside to call for help. The bandits became panicky and one of them slugged Mrs. Lalonde across the face before they ran outside. She staggered out of the home and collapsed on the street. Given medical treatment, her injuries were found to be not serious.

Drowned at Laurel, Que.

Two-year-old Serge Paradis, of Laurel, while walking at the edge of a lake near his father's home on Tuesday, slipped and fell into the water. His body was recovered in a few minutes by his parents but he was dead. A verdict of accidental death was returned by Dr. Jules Lafleur, the district coroner.

Accident Victim Was Known Here

Robert Agassiz, 55-year-old Swiss farmer, was killed instantly by a thrown pitchfork on his farm at St. Eustache last Friday.

Police said that Agassiz and his wife were returning from his fields with a wagon-load of hay when the accident occurred. Mrs. Agassiz, who had helped in the loading of the wagon, was standing on the vehicle, while her husband, who was walking beside, drove the horse into the barn.

Mrs. Agassiz noticed that a pitchfork on top of the load was in the way of the barn door, so she picked it up and threw it toward the ground. She failed to see her husband and the implement struck him in the chest, piercing his heart, and lungs.

Dr. P. A. Pagé, of St. Benoit, coroner, ruled the death accidental.

The victim was well known to many farmers in Lachute and St. Andrews districts, and had been a frequent exhibitor at the agricultural exhibition here.

First Function in New Rotary Year Is 'Family' Affair

Brownsburg Rotary started a new year of activity at its meeting last Thursday with Linton W. Armstrong in office as president, Harold Barrie vice-president, Keith Rutherford secretary and Harold Dando treasurer. The occasion was a distinct digression from the regular proceedings, for the members en masse attended a garden supper staged by the Ladies' Guild of St. George's Anglican Church, at the home of Mrs. Frank Barnes in Brownsburg. The quality of fare provided, measured fully up to the expectations of the club men, and to the reputation of the ladies in catering for these church events.

The occasion was also a son-and-daughter reunion affair, a diversion from the routine meetings, featured annually by the Rotary Club. Members were accompanied by their youthful offspring as guests, and the element of fun was happily interjected to provide high interest for the young folk.

Rotarians are putting a hefty shoulder to the wheel, to complete the preparations for their annual carnival, which opens this Friday evening at the Consolidated School grounds. For friends and supporters in Lachute, another special evening is being planned for November; this will also be the occasion of the Rotary drawing, for which tickets are now being sold — the first prize being a Meteor DeLuxe car, the second a radio, and the third a bicycle. Public support to both these projects will enable the Club to carry on its program of welfare work.

"IN BROWNSBURG"

Specially Contributed

Brownsburg — The school commissioners are at present working on an addition to the present school buildings. The cost is expected to reach $150,000 and comprises a large "gym" with four classrooms overhead. The provincial government, through the agency of W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., is expected to provide two-thirds of the cost, the remaining one-third to be raised by taxes.

Much surprise is expressed at this additional structure, as taxpayers were expecting economies would be effected when the board joined the Central School project. Now it is stated that, even with the additional provision being made for teaching facilities to the Lachute school, sufficient space will not be available to accommodate the number of pupils at first slated to be transferred there. It is therefore necessary to enlarge the Brownsburg school — which contradicts the "central" idea in general aspect.

The Louisa Road

Very considerable improvement has been made to the serpentine trail which leads to Lake Louisa. Most of the dangerous corners have been removed, and in some parts a new roadway has been cut. If funds sufficed, it might be a good idea if some more new cuts were also made, as there is still room for improvement. The work was under the direct supervision of Mayor Jas. Donaldson of Brownsburg, who must be complimented on a good job well done. His committee, Walker K. McArthur and Don G. MacRea, can take an "assist" in the commendation — most likely it will be condemnation, such as most of these efforts receive. The work of surfacing is now proceeding, and when packed, should stem a lot of criticism of which this road has been the subject.

Rotary Carnival

The Brownsburg Rotary Carnival opens this week, Friday and Saturday evenings, and under the promotion of Jim Finlayson is billed to be bigger, brighter and better than ever. The Rotary Carnival is an event in the seasonal fun-fests of Brownsburg. Patronage of its whirl of night-life is a social "must". Participation in its entertainment makes everyone win, because the attainment of its objective is a social duty. We wish it success.

Catholic Devotions

During the course of extensive repairs and alterations to the Church of St. Louis de France, mass is celebrated in a specially consecrated portion of the Brownsburg convent. It will be some months before the services will be transferred to the church again.

School Election At Brownsburg

Brownsburg — Last year the Brownsburg Protestant School Board was changed from three to five commissioners in a reorganization of the board of control. Two of the five commissioners drawn by lot were up for election this week, M. Pat Reilly and W. Mason, to fill the offices declared vacant. Nominations were also received from W. Prosser and John MacVicar who contested the election. The secretary-treasurer, Jeff Scudamore, acting as returning officer, presided at the counting of the votes Monday night and declared the following result:

M. P. Reilly 100; W. Mason 93; W. Prosser 79; J. MacVicar 75.

The two outgoing members of the board were therefore re-elected.

Interest in the election was something in the nature of an anti-climax after the hard-fought contest of last year. Of the 267 voters on the list, about 65% cast their vote.

Late Robt. Barron Well Known Notary And Church Worker

A funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon, at the family residence in Lachute, for Robert Hugh Barron, well known Montreal notary for more than half a century, who died at his home here Saturday following a long illness. He was in his 78th year.

A son of the late Thomas Barron and Grace Henry, he was born and educated in Lachute and obtained his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Law degrees from McGill University. Entering into practice in Montreal in 1895 he followed his profession first with the Cushing and Dunton notarial firm, which later was known as Barron, Cushing & Pratt. Mr. Barron was considered one of the outstanding English-speaking notaries of Montreal.

A past-president of the Montreal Thistle Curling Club he was the oldest playing member of the club just prior to his death. Mr. Barron was active in Erskine and American United Church, and was for many years clerk of the session. He belonged to the Rotary Club of Montreal, and was a member of University Club and Montreal Luncheon Club. Unmarried, Mr. Barron is survived by his five sisters.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, assisted by the Rev. Chas. Maclean.

Pall-bearers were — Dr. J. E. Christie, Messrs. A. Arthur McOuat, Geo. F. Calder, H. M. Gall, J. R. Charron and Mac Walker.

Members of the session of Erskine and American Church, also many professional and business friends, besides a number of relatives, were present from Montreal.

Local Legion Branch Holds First Meeting in New Memorial Hall

What seemed a year or so back only a fond hope, has now become a realization, and the Legion Memorial Hall, while not yet completed, was used officially for the first time on Wednesday evening, for the regular monthly meeting of Branch No. 70.

With splendid co-operation, the work has progressed quite rapidly and workmen are now engaged in finishing the main floor.

Just three months ago the first sod was turned starting the excavation, and it is hoped that the building will be entirely completed by early fall.

To date all expenses have been met, but funds are running low. Donations continue to come in, but there are no doubt many who still would like to contribute. To those who have not yet given to this worthy object — now is an opportune time to help finish the job, and pay tribute to those who did so much for so little.

TAKE IT EASY

Spring and summer are dangerous seasons on the highways for the birds and animals of field and forest. This year, take it a bit easy, Mr. Motorist. Drive carefully and save wildlife — and maybe your own life.

Autobuses to Use Off-Street Terminal; Building Permits, Decorating of Town Premises and Routine Council Affairs

At the July council session, held under presidency of Mayor Leopold Carriere and with all members present, building permits were granted to the following applicants — Arthur Gagné, for extension to his house; Edmond Charron, for a bungalow on Hamford Street; Lachute Protestant School Board, for school extension — all these undertakings to be with approval of the Roads Committee.

The Town of Lachute denied (disclaimed right of thoroughfare, etc.) on that part of land which is the continuation of Meikle Street as shown on the present cadastral plan between Harriett and Bellingham Streets — said land being at the site of the High School construction.

The council approved acceptance of the fire ladder truck and equipment, consisting of 600 feet of hose and other accessories — all of which was found to be entirely satisfactory on delivery.

Accounts to the amount of $10,377.73 were approved for payment.

The mayor read a copy of a letter addressed to Mr. Germain Filion from Provincial Transport Co'y, authorizing him to proceed with necessary construction and facilities to provide for a bus terminal at the rear of the Laurentian Hotel — the company understanding Mr. Filion's site for this terminal would be available in the course of the next ten days. (The site referred to is the restaurant at corner of Berry Street).

The mayor also read a legal letter from the firm of Héon & Lagarde claiming $111.10 against the corporation on behalf of their client, Richard Bonenfant, taximan. (The claim related to alleged damage to his automobile when removed by the town from a non-parking area). The council forthwith rejected this claim, feeling that the town had no responsibility in the matter.

Tender was received for linoleum flooring for the secretary-treasurer's office, as follows: Gaetan Blais — Inlaid Marboleum No. A $3.85 square yard, laid; Battleship AA $4.25; Battleship A $3.95.

Tenders were received for painting of the said office and the Victoria Hall, as follows: Henry Provost, $360 (for labor only); Emile Belanger, $810 (for labor and material).

The meeting then adjourned to the secretary's office for consideration of the tenders. Gaetan Blais' tender was accepted for laying Inlaid Marboleum No. A at $3.85 a square yard. Regarding tenders for painting, it was decided the bids were not specific as to detail, and that new tenders be called for consideration at next general meeting of the council, August 3.

The present assembly was adjourned until July 20.

Two Sudden Deaths In This County

Two sudden deaths were reported in the northern sections of this county last week-end. Verdicts of natural death were returned.

To Enforce Curfew for Juveniles, Council Decision at Brownsburg

POLICE APPOINTMENT, GARBAGE COLLECTION AND FIRE SERVICES DISCUSSED AT MONTHLY MEETING

Brownsburg—The usual monthly meeting of the Brownsburg Council was held Monday evening, with Mayor Jas. Donaldson in the chair. Councillors Somers, Denault, Wilson, Lafleur and Moseley were in attendance.

The secretary-treasurer, Emile Hebert, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were duly adopted.

Sidewalks

Donat Tassé came before the meeting to question the decision of a former meeting, which confined the right of making sidewalks to the council's contractor. Tassé claimed that he had purchased some materials to provide for construction of the sidewalk, and would be at a loss in not using them.

The mayor explained, the council decided that in future all sidewalks be constructed by the contractor. This was not done without due consideration and prolonged notice to all concerned. There was a reason for doing so that had been explained a dozen times, and published in reports of the council proceedings almost as often. They could not allow a private citizen to make his own without first rescinding the minute of the council, and he saw no useful purpose in reopening the matter. During the course of the meeting this question came up again, when Euclide Carrière referred to it, and on the suggestion of the secretary, the mayor was directed to submit the by-law governing this matter to the council's legal adviser for an opinion as to its soundness in law.

Garbage Collection

Archie Galbraith and James Devine complained to the meeting that garbage and refuse accumulating about their premises had not been collected for a considerable time. They had spoken to the collector and he promised to "be right up" to collect it, but had not done so. Galbraith finished by saying he would give the council but 24 hours to have it collected or he would inform the Health Office. Councillor Somers thought that was the right idea. The mayor said, "for years back we got along without water or sewerage. At considerable expense we put in a partial scheme, intending to progress slowly and within our means; now everyone wanted to get into the act at the same time. . . The man who collects the refuse has not done so, then we have to get someone else."

From Old-Time Economy To "Pitching the Millions"

By R. J. Deachman

I wonder if any person came anywhere near guessing the actual results of the recent election. We are influenced by the discussions we hear. We sway somewhat violently from one side to the other. Afterwards, we feel that the picture was perfectly clear — if only we had enough sense to see it. I know one woman who guessed that the Liberals would have 180, and I know a man who wanted to bet that the Conservatives would win over 65 seats in the Province of Quebec and I didn't know enough to congratulate that woman on the wisdom of her judgment until after the results came out and I didn't know enough to take the bet on the results in Quebec although he offered odds.

After listening to all the radio talks and attending some of the public meetings I am convinced that the best type of meeting was the kind we staged at municipal elections in the country, in the days of long ago. The people watched with keenest interest the spending of every cent. They were annoyed beyond the power of words to express if any municipal official let half a dollar slip away in the wrong direction. This would always bring forth a protest from some old Scot who knew everything there was to know about economy. I wonder what these old boys would say now about the way we pitch the millions around and how people everywhere are urging governments to spend more and still more.

$1,500 Robbery Committed At Shawbridge Post Office

Montreal — Safecrackers blew open a large vault of the post office branch at Shawbridge Monday night and escaped with cash and stamps totalling about $1,500. The manager, Henri Blondin, said is was impossible to determine the exact amount of loot until an inventory has been taken. The larger part of the haul, however, was in stamps and money orders.

Blondin stated the thieves had smashed their way into the building by the front door.

Boy Scouts Leave For Ottawa Jamboree

A group of five Boy Scouts from the Brownsburg and Lachute troops left yesterday for a preliminary week-end camp at Cartierville. Following a two-day training period for the Quebec contingent, they will proceed Saturday morning to Ottawa to attend the National Jamboree, making the trip by autobus.

Those attending from here (all eligible to attend the big Jamboree by virtue of their qualification as 1st Class Scouts) are — Bruce Mason, Bob Warwick, Bernie Golphin and Ernie Zimmer, of Brownsburg; and Robt. Giles, of Lachute.

The boys were escorted to Montreal in two private automobiles by Scoutmaster Arnold Waller, of Brownsburg, and R. A. Giles, of the district committee.

Questions Please!

For over 15 months now, Gatineau Lines has been a regular weekly feature in this newspaper. Its job has been that of keeping our customers advised as to what was going on in the world of electricity in general and within the Gatineau Power system in particular.

Speaking electrically, we have passed through interesting times since Gatineau Lines was born. Service has been expanded to unheard-of peaks, and the whole appearance of the Gatineau system in rural areas has changed, with new power lines, new transformer stations, new voltages — and the expansion program is still in full swing. On the other side of the ledger, we have had critical shortages of water which meant emergency measures to keep the power flowing to our customers, and it is quite possible that the days of water shortages will return.

Throughout it all, when the news was good and when it was bad, Gatineau Lines has tried at all times to give our customers an accurate, honest report of what the situation was and what the plans were for the future. Throughout it all, too, we have tried to tell our customers about the things in which we felt they would be most interested.

All of which brings us to the main purpose of this particular issue of Gatineau Lines. We still have plenty of things to talk about. There still is much to tell you. But now we would like our readers to let us know what they would be most interested in, insofar as their electric power is concerned.

So if there is a question in your mind, why not let us know about it? We'll answer it as best we can, either through the column if it seems to be of general interest, or by personal communication. With your questions as a guide, we are sure there will be many things which we can talk about which would interest you; things which are so close to us that we overlook them entirely.

Just address your letters to Gatineau Lines, care of this newspaper.

Did You Know?

There is still the threat of a water shortage all over Quebec and Ontario. The best way to avoid electricity cuts next winter is to avoid waste of electricity now.

How Weeds Winter Over

It is well that a farmer should know the different kinds of weeds in order to be able to combat them. When growth is checked in the fall of the year, the interesting question arises as to what becomes of the various weeds at that time. What provision is made for the survival and renewal the following year? This should be known so that suitable opportunity may be taken to attack and exterminate them, says Geo. A. Elliott, Seed Laboratory Services, Ottawa.

Weeds are commonly classified as annuals, biennials and perennials. Annual weeds are those that germiate in spring or early summer, grow and reproduce before winter, dying naturally or when caught by autumn frosts, and leaving their progeny tucked away within seed coats capable of withstanding winter's adversities. For the annual, therefore, it is the seed that holds the strategic position, and its importance is well attested by the abundance of its seeds as compared with other weeds. For most annuals, any practice which will hasten spring germination is all to the good. Most annuals are thus started before any crop is in the way of their destruction. Winter annuals are able to survive the winter as seedlings. They are soon too sturdy to be easily uprooted and some are in bloom by the time other vegetation is starting. Winter annuals include such weeds as shepherd's purse, stinkweed, tumbling mustard, false flax, and chess.

Perennial weeds, while also producing by seed, maintain themselves from year to year by their strong root systems, which may be creeping like those of Canada and perennial sow thistles or short and fleshy as with docks and dandelion.

For weeds generally it cannot be over-emphasized that a regular, short rotation of crops is the best insurance against weeds. In addition, enough should be known of the life history of each weed to be a guide in the best method of control.

Tractor Accidents Rank High on Farm

Tractors account for 28 per cent of farm machinery accidents in the United States according to official figures; and most often it is while cranking the tractor that farmers get sprained or broken wrists or arms. Next most frequently reported are accidents that happen while attaching other implements to tractors, being struck or run over by tractors that tip over or rear, and jumping or falling off tractors.

Combines and threshing machines account for about a third as many accidents as tractors, and corn pickers and corn shellers account for six per cent of machine accidents. Home machinery used chiefly by women accounts for only three per cent of all machinery accidents.

Though these figures apply to farms in the United States there is no reason to assume that machinery accidents are less frequent in Canada. More careful handling of farm and home machinery will prevent many aches and pains, or accidents of a more serious nature.

Dairymen and D.D.T.

Though DDT is no longer recommended in the United States for use in dairy barns or on dairy cattle, no ban has yet been placed on its use in Canada. In most areas it gives as good fly control as ever. Only wettable powders or dry dusts should be used. Do not use oil solutions, especially on animals. Do not get any DDT spray or dust into drinking fountains, feed boxes, pails or feed. It is poisonous if taken internally and if eaten by cattle is known to turn up in the milk. Wash the udders of cows after spraying and before milking. It is also probably best to spray the animals outside.

English Cattlemen Favor "Red Poll"

Saffrom Walden, Eng. (CP) — Though other breeds may outnumber and outshine him, the Red Poll rates top with East Anglian cattlemen.

They are dual-purpose cattle, good for either milk or beef. Long ago the breed's popularity dwindled in Canada, but in Britain they have served well in a changing agricultural economy.

They kept the dairy pails full during and immediately after the war, when the emphasis was on milk production. Now, with milk plentiful and a permanent end to milk rationing believed less than a year away, the Red Poll's beef-producing propensities are answering the public cry for more meat.

In East Anglia the Red Polls are regarded as particularly suited for the dry conditions prevailing in those Eastern counties. It was there the breed originated, in a cross between horned Norfolk cattle and the polled (hornless) Suffolk strain.

WOULD KEEP ASSIZES

Durham, England (CP)—Durham Corporation opposed a proposal that the assize court here should be moved to a town not yet chosen. Durham has been an assize town since the 12th century. Judges and lawyers complained accommodation for them was gloomy and uncomfortable.

In Manitoba, in 1947, over 23,000 acres of land were devoted to the commercial growing of sunflowers. Oil from its seeds ranks close to olive oil in texture and color; the rest of the plant has many industrial applications.

With 'The Craigs'

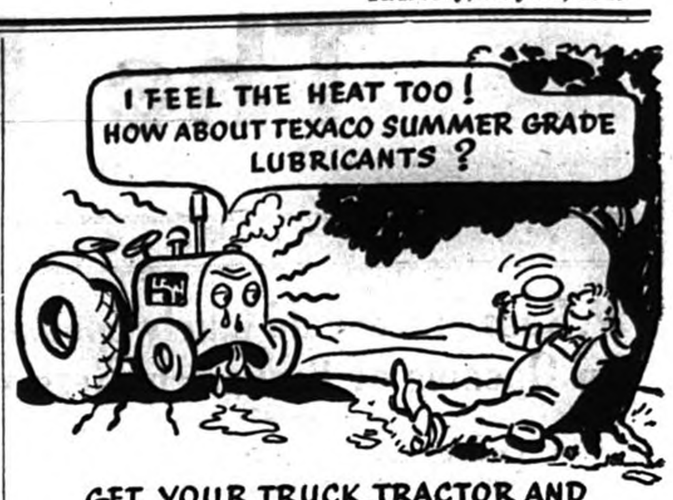

George Murray, of Toronto, is a CBC artist with a varied bag of tricks that has put him in demand for a wide assortment of network programs since he moved east from Winnipeg a little over ten years ago. He sings (tenor), acts and, on occasion, obliges with sound effects — his original forte. In Toronto his big job has been with The Craigs, the C.B.C's Ontario and Quebec farm broadcast family.

THE REAL VALUE

In the final analysis the only asset of a farm is the soil. If the soil becomes unproductive, the farm is useless. The soil cannot be too well cared for, and part of that care is to keep it on the farm.

HUNGRY FOR IRON, the world's steel industry looks to Ungava as the immense new source to supply its increasing needs. There, in the wilderness of rocks and stunted trees stretching north to Ungava Bay, lies one of the richest, purest deposits of iron ore the world has ever known.

The vast area is now being actively explored. Already over 300 million tons of ore have been outlined; camps have arisen; airfields and roads have been built, and the route is being surveyed for a 350-mile railway from the St. Lawrence at Seven Islands. In another section, inland from Havre St. Pierre, what promises to be the world's richest source of titanium has been discovered and is being developed. Our one-time wasteland proves to be a treasure-house.

This new northern expansion is but one of many examples of Canada's tremendous modern development. Never before, here or elsewhere, have there been such opportunities as those which await the energy and initiative of young Canadians in our own country today.

"NEW OPPORTUNITIES..."

"Never before have there been so many new fields and opportunities for young Canadian men and women who, through hard work and persistence, will be able to achieve success and prosperity in the years to come. The continuing development of our industries will be due in large measure to the true spirit of progressiveness of the young Canadian of today", says LUCIEN BOUGIE of Montreal.

Chip Potatoes

THE "Town Improvement" editorials appearing in these pages from time to time never fail to provoke public comment, mostly in a favorable vein. Three such articles last week — the first concerning dilapidated road signs; the second on loudspeakers violating the sanctity of the Sabbath, and the third pointing to desultory progress in the repair of an important bridge — all have drawn a measure of commendation. Two of these, incidentally, were front-page editorials, and it seems ironical that such special focus should be needed on matters of prime community concern. Indeed, these pressing needs should be reiterated on all sides with such weight of citizen-protest that action would soon be forthcoming.

The Watchman could continue with these editorials indefinitely. There is so much room for improvement in our civic surroundings . . yet, be it said, there is equally much which deserves our approval; nor is such commendation overlooked in the editorial quota.

A criticism this week may be directed at a state of affairs around the Memorial Park, where a chip potato wagon appears to have a permit to establish its stand on Main Street. The result is a disgraceful mess of discarded containers strewn around the park benches, on the lawns, and even in the fountain pool. The fault is largely with the offending public, who appear to lack all sense of pride in this beauty spot. The authorities, however, should see that the litter is regularly cleaned up — and as an incentive to public co-operation, the town should install waste-paper containers at strategic spots, around this park and near the restaurants — a suggestion which has been voiced by this newspaper on several previous occasions.

The Problem of Dollars

WORLD TRADE problems tend to become obscured by such terms as "dollar-shortage" and "non-covertibility".

When we say that countries are short of dollars, we mean that they are getting more goods from countries which use dollars, chiefly the United States and Canada, than they are selling to those nations. Accordingly they are not earning enough dollars to pay for what they are buying.

Why is it that other countries need more North American goods than North America needs from them; or, indeed, than they can at present supply? Partly because North America hasn't been directly ravaged by war, and partly because, along with this, it has developed tremendous production power.

That condition has made the United States so wealthy as compared with the rest of the world that its dollar has a supreme value; it is virtually the same as gold. If you have a United States dollar you can buy a dollar's worth with it almost anywhere. You can turn it into pounds in Britain, into francs in France, and so on. That is convertibility.

But let us say you are in Britain and have £100. A pound is said to be worth $4 and so you might think you could take your £100 to a bank and get $400. Not at all. The bank would tell you that Britain needs its dollars for essential purchases and can't give them to you to spend as you will. That is non-convertibility.

That restriction on the way you can use your money will slow you down in the things you try to do; multiply you by millions of people and you have quite a brake on world activity.

What would happen if Britain decided at present to make her pound convertible? All over the world people with sterling would scramble to turn it into dollars, and then Britain really would be out of dollars fast.

The cure, of course, would be for Britain to recover a strong enough trading and financial position that people would have confidence in her pounds and wouldn't bother to change them into dollars.

WE KNEW the comic book craze had really caught on, but we never knew how the germ could grip a man until a few days back. The Val d'Or fire siren went. A few seconds later the fire truck came howling down the street. One fireman, with one hand gripping a handle, held in the other one an open comic book, which he was reading avidly. — Val d'Or (Que.) Old-Age A Social Query

SOME PROGRESS has been made in the way of economic security for Canada's aged people, but actually little is being done to fulfill the natural desires of older people for companionship, social and recreational interests, and opportunities for participation in the life of the community. The need is discussed by H. Cecil Rhodes in the current issue of "Health", official journal of the Health League of Canada.

"This isn't an easy matter to solve", says Mr. Rhodes. "It is one of the most complex of all social problems. It involves a variety of economic circumstances, educational and cultural backgrounds, lifetime habits, health and other complicating factors. But let's suppose a community says 'O.K.! We're going to tackle this problem. Where do we start?' . . . "

The first step is to gather facts — where and how these people live; their health and economic status, and what resources are available to meet their needs. Study will disclose that any community has four classes of elderly citizens — the active, semi-active, inactive and senile. If it's a large centre, they will be found in rooming houses, institutions, living with relatives or in their own homes — very much in that order, with the majority in single housekeeping rooms.

In less than 50 years, Canada's 60-plus population has jumped from 400,000 to 1,500,000 — and is continuing to out-distance general population gains because of lower birthrate and the fact that we live longer than our ancestors did.

Keeping older people active in mind and body, and helping them to retain their usefulness as citizens, is a complex and urgent problem. Taxpayers are footing a heavy bill for social services. . . and it will be a great deal heavier, remarks Mr. Rhodes. "if we want to set up security measures which will make tolerable the old age of present-day middle-agers."

The Month of July

IN SUPPORT of a contention by Margaret Cook in her "Sunnyacres" column this week, we reproduce the following from our contemporary, The Huntingdon Gleaner:

July gets a poor shake from the poets and the literary gentry in general. Bartlett's Familiar Quotations mentions it three times, but only one of these references is laudatory. In comparison, April is favorably noted twenty-eight times and May gets thirty-eight pats on the back. This is unfair. What's the matter with July? What's the matter with poets? What's the matter with people?

July is the best month. The all-around best month, in Canada anyway. For one thing, it is a good month for getting no work done. Another advantage is that you don't need clothes or much food, so work is unnecessary. People are away so you don't have to talk or listen to them. There's no question about July's being the best month. Its only rival, August, is apt to have frost towards the end, except is some favored spots in the Dominion. June is out, of course, because of the mosquitoes; but in spite of them Bartlett has fourteen kindly references. Even March is praised more often than July.

The fault is not July's, but with the poets and everybody. We live in anticipation and don't appreciate a good thing when we have it. Bartlett lists fifty-eight honorable mentions of Spring and only sixteen for Summer. Yet Spring is merely the promise of Summer. When the promise is fulfilled we lose interest and complain about our clothes sticking to the chair, the poison ivy Willie got into, the odd ways of tourists, the auto traffic, the crowds on the trains, the slice, the thrice-putted green, the stones on the beach, the umpire's patent bias — and how fast the Summer is going.

WE BELIEVE that it is time that all citizens stopped repeating unfounded rumors about their neighbors and save themselves later embarrassment by adopting the time-honored maxim "Live and Let Live."

British Youngsters Emigrate

By Larry Smith,
Kemsley Scholar in Journalism

London —

Every few months, of late, there has been a small children's party at the Overseas League headquarters in London's West End. It is a gay little party, on the surface, but there are undertones of heartbreak, financial disaster, and the high courage of parents wishing to give their kiddies a chance in life.

These parties are farewell occasions for young British children being sent to Australia and New Zealand, not merely for visits but to live there the rest of their lives, under legal guardianship until they reach the age of 21.

It might almost be termed another of the wide range of British exports, except that in this case pound-and-shilling or balance of trade considerations are entirely replaced by elements of humanitarianism, human grief, and a new chance for unfortunate youngsters who face no future here.

Already 175 children between five and 17 have been sent to Australia, while 18 have gone to New Zealand and there are 250 homes in that Dominion waiting to be filled. The scheme has not yet been developed for Canada and South Africa, mainly because of a lack of sympathetic response, officials here say.

The scheme, administered by the Overseas League in co-operation with the government involved, really stems from the great success met in evacuating children to the Dominions during the war.

Cyril Bavin, kindly, gray-haired administrator of the Overseas League migration service, looked after wartime refugee children sent to Australia. He decided there was a place for a similar scheme, but on a permanent basis, after the war, and the experience since 1947 when the operations commenced has proven him correct. In the years before the war Mr. Bavin had had wide emigration service with the Y.M.C.A.

As I listened to Mr. Bavin, familiarly known as "Granddad", explain the fast-growing scheme, my immediate reaction was: From what areas and what types of homes do these human exports come? And how can any parents send their children away to a distant land for life, abandoning all parental claims?

For these children are not orphans, as I had at first presumed. They do not go out for adoption, except in a few cases, but are merely under a legal guardianship. They go into private homes and are brought up in the family circle. At 21, they have a free start in life on their own, after having education and job training.

A small number of the children do come from broken homes, where there has been desertion by either father or mother. In these cases, one or more of the children might be sent out, after a thorough screening and investigation by social workers into both the family background here and the home selected in Australia or New Zealand.

But the startling aspect of the whole scheme is that the majority of the children come from homes where financial difficulties have become almost insurmountable and the prospect for the child is bleak. The parents, up against a wall of despair, are willing to face the torture and sacrifice of sending several of their children out to the Dominions where they will find good homes, and a far better start in life than that offered by a British slum.

I wondered whether these parents were really sincere in their sacrifice, or whether they were merely trying to get rid of unwanted children.

"I'm convinced they are sincere", replied the man who daily hears tales of human despair across his desk, and often sees the despair change to hope.

He read me a letter written by parents on the first anniversary of the sailing of three of their four kiddies to new homes in Australia. It was enough to make a strong man weep. The father wrote of the yearning for his children, but said the letters and pictures made him and his wife feel that the present life and future chances of the kiddies almost filled the aching void left by their absence. His only bitter note came when he referred to his own country which had allowed such a situation to develop.

One little lad, actually adopted by a rich farming couple in South Africa, has now been made heir to the estate and is receiving a first-class education. Coming from tragic circumstances at home, the young boy has been lifted into an entirely new world, with wide horizons facing him.

The Overseas League, through its Canadian branches, has been making enquiries about introducing the scheme in Canada, so generous in opening homes to war evacuees. Majority of the replies indicates the the wartime response was a purely patriotic move, and that there was little likelihood many homes would now be available. Neverless, Mr. Bavin is still carrying on negotiations and still holds hopes.

Meanwhile, in Australia and New Zealand the plan is working happily and efficiently. The joy of children has been brought to many childless homes, several hundred kiddies are receiving a fine upbringing and the two countries are gaining, on a long-term basis, solid new citizens.

Stocks of creamery butter in nine Canadian cities on April 22nd, 1949, amounted to 5,264,000 pounds — over three times as high as last year's 1,708,000 pounds.

THE TASK OF LEARNING

Going to school is a job. Students of today need education to a greater degree than ever before in history. . . Students should forget the 50 per cent standard and give their best effort and their full attention to their job of securing an educational background for life.

On Compulsory Voting

By R. J. Deachman

There was some discussion recently on compulsory voting, it turns up periodically so I sent out some letters and asked for opinions; they ranged all over the field. Some were opposed, some believed it would be helpful and there were some who suggested other means of directing the rising generation on the duties of citizenship.

Here are a few samples. The first came from an editor in Saskatchewan. He is very brief:

"I'm 'agin' compulsory voting. You cannot legislate virtue. Voting is a citizen's moral obligation, a duty of social importance. Let's educate 'em, not force 'em."

Some of the wisest suggestions were along educational lines. One wanted the children to be taught more about our system of government, and a man who knows more about the schools of Ontario than any other person I know, told me that they were doing it now. Their little organizations are elected by ballot and the children are taught something about the organization of government, and how under a democratic system the people have an opportunity to express their opinion at the polls.

This interesting letter came from a keen-minded gentleman in the City of Toronto:

"The question of whether to vote or not is a matter of morality, and matters of morality, as such, are things which the law should leave alone, since persons with different consciences can come to quite different conclusions about them . . But if the question of voting is a matter of morality it follows that it is up to the politicians and the party organizers to persuade the voters to get out and support them, just as it is the duty of preachers to persuade their congregations to lead the good life rather than to lobby for legislation that will make compulsory the observance of all the laws to be found in Exodus and Deuteronomy."

If any of those who read this story are interested I will be glad to send them a copy of the article entitled, "Should We Have Compulsory Voting?"

Outlines Methods to Reduce Drownings

Capt. G. Diseur, who for the past 13 years has been head of the training school for the Montreal Police Department, believes that as many people as possible should be acquainted with methods of rescuing the drowning. He describes these methods as "relatively simple".

In the first place, says Capt. Diseur, when undertaking a rescue, a person should act quickly and calmly, wasting neither time nor energy, both of which are necessary in the rescue itself, he says.

Boots and heavy clothing should be discarded if possible before diving in to the rescue, and when the depth of the water is uncertain and a leap has to be effected from a height, it should be made feet first. Also: it is best to swim in the direction of the current.

Capt. Diseur warns that the belief that a drowning person must rise three times before finally sinking is a fallacy.

To avoid exciting the person in trouble or being clutched by him, the captain suggests that the rescuer approach him from behind. The Hollywood-inspired formula of knocking out the drowning person with a jab on the chin should be discarded as impractical in deep water.

Capt. Diseur further suggests that if the rescurer is clutched around the neck by the drowning person, he should take a deep breath, lean well over the person, place one hand in the small of his back and with the other pinch his nostrils and press the palm on the chin pushing his head away. When tackled around the body and arms, the rescuer should lean over the drowning person, take a deep breath as before and push the person away in the same manner. If the person persists in holding on, a knee pressed against the lower part of his chest should shake him loose.

When a person is not struggling but seems likely to if approached, the rescuer should turn him on his back, Capt. Diseur continues. Then placing a hand on both sides of the person's face, the rescuer should swim with the back stroke. If the person struggles, he should be turned on his back and a firm hold taken on his arms just above his elbows. The arms should be drawn at right angles to his body and the rescuer should use the back stroke.

"When the drowning person is difficult to handle", he said, "the rescuer should place his hands under the armpits and on the person's chest or around his arms. The elbows of the person should be kept well out on either side while he is being carried through the water since this position helps expand the person's chest, inflating his lungs and adding to his buoyancy.

"When the insensible person is brought ashore, artificial respiration should immediately be applied without taking time off to undress him. The person should be stretched face downwards on the ground and the rescuer should place himself astride, facing the person's head, and kneeling on both knees. The hands should be placed flat over the lower part of the back on the lowest ribs on each side. The rescuer will produce the needed pressure by throwing his weight gradually forward on his arms, which he must keep straight at all times and slackening the pressure — also gradually. The pressure must be put on and slackened gradually and not violently. This movement should be produced every four of five seconds until natural respiration is resumed."

Judges Too Lenient, German Guests Say

London (CP) — Twenty-five German law students, now visiting British courts of justice at the invitation of the Foreign Office, are impressed by the "kindly manner" London magistrates adopt to even the most hardened type of offender.

"They treat everyone with courtesy and I think most of them err on the side of leniency", said Hans Steifl, a young Duesseldorf student.

All speak highly of British high court judges and "the masterly ways" in which they sum up complicated law cases.

"They have a genius for interpreting English law in simple language that a child could understand", said one of two German women students in the party.

The Germans spend four or five hours each day in every type of law court. They also attend lectures arranged by the Law Society at the request of the Foreign Office.

A number of parties are being brought over for this purpose", a spokesman for the Law Society said. "The idea is to give them a favorable impression of British justice while they are still young enough to be acceptable to new ideas."

B of M TO HAVE DRIVE-IN BANKING FIRST IN CANADA

Shank's-mare takes a beating at the new building planned for the Bank of Montreal's Broadway and Granville street branch in Vancouver. Featuring drive-in banking facilities — the first at any chartered bank in Canada — the emphasis at the new building is on streamlined banking service for customers on wheels, even to an inside parking area for baby-carriages.

Busy customers will drive up to the special outside teller's wicket, sit in their cars while being served, then drive on — in a fraction of the time taken for shank's-mare customers.

Mothers, bothered with the baby-carriage parking problems in the teeming west-coast metropolis, will wheel baby right along with them to the bank, and leave him in the B of M's special pram-parking area while they do their banking.

Drive-in banking has been successfully tried by a number of U.S. banks in recent years. South of the border, bank clients have taken to the new idea enthusiastically, but the B of M is the first chartered bank to try it in Canada. Baby-carriage parking, more common in large chain and department stores in this country, is still an unusual convenience in banks.

SPANKING IS OUT IN JUVENILE CITY AS CHILDREN RULE

Self-Contained Community Of 800 Children Under Moose Fraternity

By Edward S. Kitch

Moosehart, Ill. (AP) — Kids in this child city are never spanked.

The 800 children of the Loyal Order of Moose, sponsor of Mooseheart, live under a system of self-government. The 850,000 members of the fraternity have poured more than $28,000,000 into the project, set up to care for the dependent children of deceased members.

Malcolm R. Giles, executive director of Moose affairs, said that since Mooseheart was established in 1913, not one of its 2,000 gradutes has run afoul of the law. More than 5,000 children have lived in the city. One-third of the graduates have gone on to college.

Founding father of Mooseheart was James J. Davis, U.S. senator from Pennsylvania from 1930 to 1944. He took over leadership of the fraternity in 1906.

Davis envisioned a place where fatherless, motherless or orphaned children of Moose members could be cared for until maturity. Members have supported his plan to the tune of $1,500,000 annually.

Mooseheart represents a $7,000,000 investment in property. The 1,200 acres with 100 buildings is a city by itself. Its 840 acres of rich farm land produces 65 per cent of the food used. A prize Holstein dairy herd provides a quart of milk a day for each child.

Located 37 miles west of Chicago, Mooseheart is on the west bank of the scenic Fox river. The model city has its own schools, stores, hospital, post-office, homes.

All Ages of Youth

The population ranges from infants to young men and women. They are taught co-operation, self reliance, thrift and industry. The only uniforms at Mooseheart are those worn by band members and athletic teams.

Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains live in the child city. They guide the spiritual life of youth along religious paths followed by the children's parents. The children are not available for adoption.

Some 56 teachers in six departments train the boys and girls in separate groups. The same courses of study given in public schools are provided. Vocational training is emphasized.

The "spare-the-rod" training for the 800 children is based on a system of self-government. Infractions of rules and regulations are recorded as demerits.

Too many demerits by the few who misbehave send them to "west farm". This is an isolated farm house two miles from the centre of Mooseheart activity.

A short stay there usually is enough to convince the student that ill-behavior doesn't pay.

Angling may be said to be so like mathematics, that it can never be fully learnt.

MUSIC APPRECIATION

There is a definite place for cowboy and hill-billy lyrics, and they are worthy of their fair share of appreciation. However, it does seem a pity to let them crowd out such a great wealth of superior music — and the better brand is by no means confined to opera or to the classics.

Won't Stop Work, Plow Team's Age Totals 100 Years

Winter Season of Idleness Sends Farmer David Pierce Back to Tilling the Soil

Ottawa (CP)—Within the boundaries of suburban Westboro is a team with a combined age of 100 years tilling the soil.

The team is David Pierce and his horse Gerry. Mr. Pierce is 78 years old, Gerry is 22. As ages go both are old for their work.

"When a man stops working, why he just dies", says the 78-year-old plowman, explaining his activity. "I'm making sure that I live as long as I possibly can."

He admits that he can't do as much as he could in his younger days, "but I can still manage a good day's work in the fields, and I don't intend to quit for a while yet."

Mr. Pierce doesn't farm his own land. He retired from the family homestead at Pierce's Corners, 20 miles south of Ottawa, 10 years ago. Generations of his family had dwelled there for 115 years.

"We were the first Pierces to actually move out of that house under our own steam", chuckles Mr. Pierce, referring to his wife and himself. "All the rest were carried out, and they just moved a short piece down the road to the cemetery."

Mr. Pierce and his wife moved to Westboro with the idea of spending the remaining years of their life in retirement. But one winter of idleness was enough for farmer Pierce. He returned to the land in the spring.

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

— IV —

Random Writings on the Rural Scene

By Margaret Cook

Now that the much over-rated month of June is past, we can enjoy lovely July. The poets do not seem to bother with July. "What is so rare as a day in June?" queries the poet, and goes on to assert "Now, if ever, come perfect days". Obviously he did not know about our June days with their extremes of heat and cold, their various flying pests, their examinations, and weddings. September is enshrined forever by Keats' "Ode to Autumn", and here and there, a poet deigns to note August in passing, but I can recall no reference to July. Like the middle of a series, it is ignored. Having written that, my mind perversely whispers, "What of Browning and his 'O to be in England, now that April's here?' Isn't April a middle too?" It is always foolish to make generalities of a few known facts.

At Sunnyacres, July is the month of small fruits and roses. We begin with strawberries, progress quietly to red currants, which are followed by black currants and gooseberries. Toward the end of the month, raspberries are abundant. Blueberries are variable; some years they are at their best in July, other years not till August. Now, early in July, they are still pale green or light pink.

We are in residence for the summer and have plunged at once into our annual orgy of strawberries. We pick wild ones in all our spare time. A half-cupful on dry cereal makes even that abomination quite palatable. At our mid-day dinner, we have them made into shortcake, heavily dressed with whipped cream, and I hope none of my readers (and I now know of five!) commits the awful crime of putting good strawberries between layers of cake and calling the result strawberry shortcake. Strawberry shortcake is made with a rich tea biscuit dough, split and buttered when hot. Lots of fruit between the layers and lots more on top, and plenty of cream, plain, whipped or clotted, complete a dish fit to set before a king. At suppertime, if we have not developed hives, we eat strawberries again. But for jams and preserves, we go to the open market at St. Jerome and get a crate of cultivated berries. With strawberries I revert to the open-kettle method of preserving, but with all other fruits, I use a cold pack with hot syrup, the whole processed in the oven. By this method, not only is the fruit preserved but also the housewife, for no extreme heat is necessary, 225-275°F. being customary, and the sterilizing of jars is obviated. The oven heat is sufficient to kill any germs still remaining in the well-washed jars.

As well as fruit, the earth is beginning to produce fungi of different kinds. The neighbors refer to all fungi contemptuously as toadstools and are always expecting to find three corpses at Sunnyacres because we eat puff-balls. All puff-balls, if still firm and white inside, are edible. But just now the commonest mushrooms are the Orange Amanita and a species of Boletus.

The Amanita is one of the few poisonous fungi hereabouts. When it first appears above ground it looks like a rather yellow egg sitting in an egg-cup. This is because the whole is enclosed in a sac or veil. As the fungus grows (its growth is very rapid) the veil ruptures and a handsome orange parasol unfurls with remnants of the veil like little bits of eggshell on the cap and as a little frill around the stem. Very pretty it looks against the green of the grass — but admire it and pass on! The egg-cup remains just below ground. This bulbous end is typical of many poisonous fungi, and is one good danger-sign. Another species of the Amanita family is pure white and is called the Death Angel.

In some parts of Russia, an infusion of Amanita Muscaria (the orange one described above) is drunk on festive occasions to produce intoxication. H. G. Wells has written a hilarious account of the effect of eating a poisonous mushroom, in a story entitled "The Purple Pileus". It is to be found in a book collection of Wells' short stories called "The Plattner Story and Others".

The Boletus is as handsome as the Amanita but its color scheme is more subtle, being dusty-pink on top, fading through cream to sulphur yellow at the base. The Boletus family is the only one to have a spongy underside to the cap, rather than gills. It is a pretty thing and there are several edible species.

As for roses — we have quantities, but nothing exotic, you understand. First appear the tiny, creamy tea-roses. There is something ethereal about their looks, and their perfume is pervasive. It tells of wooded dells and limpid water slipping over mossy stones. It is a cool rose, the tea-rose, but not so the other three varieties at Sunnyacres. One is a large pink rose, crimson at the centre, another is a delicate pink throughout, and a third is a lovely, deep carmine. They all flaunt themselves in the sun.

My brother-in-law once referred contemptuously to these as cabbage roses and said I should curb their growth, cultivate them and produce a few really worthwhile blooms. I listened courteously, because he is a notable gardener, but I remained unimpressed. Better for me a bushel of happy roses than one perfectly nurtured darling. Beyond a good pruning in the Fall, and a bedding down with leaves and manure, which is the tax I gather from the neighbor's trespassing horses and cows, I do nothing for my roses. A recent guest asked me who looked after my flowers when I was away, and I replied "God does". After a startled look, she hastily changed the subject. It is queer how embarrased a Protestant is by any mention of the Diety outside a church! To a Roman Catholic "le bon Dieu" is always about and is referred to often. And two races, the Irish and the Jewish, have always a sense of the omnipresence of God, but nearly all Protestants shun His name from reverence, and thus, I fear, forget His presence.

It is cool up here at night, which makes any heat in the day bearable. Nice, long, hot days—filled with strawberries, roses, walks and swims. I do like July.

"What is so rare as a day in June?"
Quoth the poet, to which I reply,
Many things are rarer, and
finer, and fairer,
In truth, I prefer the days of July!"

You are right — merely Cook, not Shakespeare; with apologies to Keats, Browning et al.

Boys' Brigade and Scouts At Brownsburg Service

Brownsburg—The Boys' Brigade camping at Half-Moon Lake attended the service in the United Church last Sunday morning, with their leader, Capt. Alex Lough. They were also accompanied by a troop of Boy Scouts under the leadership of Scoutmaster Arnold Waller.

Capt. Lough gave a short talk on behalf of the Boys' Brigade, as did also Col. MacFarlane and Mr. McFadgen, their First Aid attendant. Mr. Black was also present. Scoutmaster Waller read the Scripture lesson. The Rev. S. J. Pike, minister, who welcomed both troops on behalf of the congregation and board of the church, gave a brief inspirational message.

The Week at Ottawa

Confidence was expressed by trade officials that Canada can help the United Kingdom overcome her currency trouble that led to the import restrictions but they would not say how this might be done.

Trade officials say the reason for Britain's dollar troubles is her inability to meet competitive prices in dollar countries, coupled with a lag in production.

Cost of Living

Cost of living in Canada hit an all-time high during the month of May, the Bureau of Statistics reported. The cost of living index had remained more or less steady for several months.

Food was the sole cause of the rise which sent the index up a full point from 159.5 to 160.5. The cost of living index is based on the period 1935-39 equals 100.

A seasonal rise in meat prices was chiefly to blame, the bureau said. A number of other food prices increased as well, chiefly fresh vegetables and oranges.

Five categories of goods and services make up the index. Two showed decreases — home furnishings and services and light and fuel. Rent remained unchanged, clothing stayed at its all-time high, and the miscellaneous category was unchanged.

Trade

Canadian trade with pre-war small dealers is increasing.

Trade with the South African country of Colombia is four times what it was before the war, Canada's trade commissioner to Colombia, H. W. Richardson, said at a press conference. He added that there is no limit to the possibilities of expansion.

Trade with Colombia now amounts to $16,000,000, split about evenly between imports and exports. Green coffee makes up practically all Canadian imports from that country.

Canada has been a rugged believer in free trade but now Ottawa is wondering whether she should venture into the field of barter trade.

Recent barter trades, however, with countries having insufficient dollars to provide, have been almost disastrous.

Typical is the case of British Columbia apples bartered for Brazilian oranges. With the arrival of the oranges, United States growers began undercutting the price of the Brazilian product, which went unsold, the cheaper fruit being preferred by consumers.

No orderly system can be planned so long as we have unruly morals.

Receives Greetings on Her 89th Birthday

Attaining the ripe old age of 89, Mrs. Dan MacRae at her home on the Bethany highway received the good wishes of many relatives and friends last Tuesday. She was specially honored with a bouquet of flowers from radio station CJAD — a tribute sent to the oldest recipient of the day's birthday greetings.

Mrs. MacRae — who has a host of relatives including grandchildren to the number of 34 — is in good health, alert in her faculties, and keenly interested in everyday affairs.

Brownsburg Council

Councillor Somers doubted very much if it was the responsibility of the council to remove the refuse. They had always done it, it was true, but they only provided the man and means of removing it, and the contract for payment was between the parties themselves and outside the responsibility of the council. If a man creates refuse about his own place, it is his responsibility to clean it up. He can be made to do so by law, and it is to his interest to do it.

Councillor Denault was of the opinion this would not have arisen if the garbage collector had been paid for the work he did. All he got was not worth working for, and even at that some people did not pay the old man. In some cases he cleaned up the whole place after the winter, several loads, and all he got was fifty cents. If another man is now got he will have to be paid more, in the councillor's opinion. The matter was handed over to the appropriate committee.

To Enforce Curfew

It was decided that a nine o'clock curfew for children under 16 be enforced, and that the by-law pertaining to air rifles be amended to prohibit their use.

Business Tax

Mr. Alfred Gagnon appeared before the council to resist payment of a demand for business tax for the selling of cars. He stated that he advertised three cars for sale in "The Watchman", but the cars were his own, and he was not in the used car business or any other selling line.

The secretary said he saw that a number of cars were offered for sale and he concluded that Mr. Gagnon was in the business of selling cars. Three cars seemed like a business!

Mr. Gagnon explained how he had three cars offered for sale. They were his own. When he got the council's letterhead he thought it was "the belated letter of appreciation for his services as fire chief" which the council moved to write him but which he never got. Instead, he was billed for a tax he did not owe! . . The claim was cancelled.

Fire Services

Fire Chief Robbins reported that for the past two months there was no call upon the services of his brigade, which he thought was remarkable. He had now procured the necessary engine to do the chimney cleaning, and was ready to start if the council furnished the men.

On the suggestion of Councillor Denault the council decided to contact a man named Joly who was recommended as suitable for the job.

The Fire Chief asked if there was any information on the new fire truck. The secretary read a communication from the Fire Commissioners' office saying that Mr. Ahearne's report had come to hand and was being considered. A reply would go forward in due course. It was decided to await a definite assurance that the provincial government grant of 50 per cent be forthcoming.

The Fire Chief requested that exemption from tax be granted for their picture show held to augment their funds. The secretary said he would make the usual application, and expected the usual reply, "that no exemption would be granted unless all parties concerned in the promotion of the show give their services free, and that the hall be also free". This was not the case; as a charge of $60 was being made for the theatre, it was expected that no exemption would be granted.

Paul Filion stated that his street was now ready to be taken over by the council. Some of the members were of the opinion that the street was not completed, and the mayor was delegated to visit the property and decide whether it would be taken over.

Councillor Lafleur moved the monthly vouchers be paid; these included a sum of $910.68 for sidewalks. Councillor Denault seconded the motion.

Police Chief

Police Chief Foucault of Weir, applied for the position of police chief in Brownsburg, and was before the council to advance his claim and present his credentials. Being experienced at police work and detective duty in Montreal, he was at present employed at Weir. . . Mr. Foucault was temporarily appointed until mutual satisfaction was reached.

Customers' — Corner —

A good food store must be a clean store.

We believe our customers are entitled to top quality food at low prices, served in clean, healthful surroundings.

That's why we train and instruct our employees to keep all trays and cases and scales scrubbed and sanitary; to keep refuse and packing cases out of the aisles and off the sidewalks; and to keep floors and grocery racks clean and orderly.

Sometimes during rush periods it's hard to keep a store as neat as it should be. But that's our job, and you will be doing us a favor if you will let us know if your A & P store ever fails in any way to measure up to our high standards of cleanliness. Please write:

Lawn Social

On Wednesday evening, July 6, an entertaining lawn social was held on the parsonage grounds of Grace Anglican Church. A large attendance enjoyed the entertainment, which was in the form of moving pictures. The various booths were well patronized, and an oil painting, executed by the Rev. G. Barnett, was auctioned — being sold to Mr. Mac Walker, of Lachute. The weather was ideal, and the proceeds (over $125) were gratifying to the ladies of the W.A. under whose auspices the social was held; one and all felt that their work to make the evening a success had been well repaid.

OBITUARY

Lady Resident Mourned, Life Member of W. Inst. And Missionary Society

Late Mrs. John Gordon

This community lost one of its most respected and esteemed citizens when Mrs. Elizabeth MacQueen Gordon passed away at her home early on Saturday morning, July 9. While Mrs. Gordon had not enjoyed good health for many years, few realized that her death was imminent.

Born November 15, 1882, she had spent her entire lifetime — with the exception of a few years teaching in Beech Ridge and Richmond, Que. — on her farm home, which had also been the home of her parents.

Bereaved of her husband in 1921, she accepted the challenge of bringing up her young family of six children with a courage and determination that won the admiration of all who knew her.

A devoted church worker, she taught for many years the Bible Class of East Settlement United Church Sunday School. Active also in the Women's Missionary Society, she served as president and was made a life member. Mrs. Gordon was deeply interested also in the work of Quebec Women's Institute, and was president of her local unit for several terms, and following a four-year term as county president, was made a life member.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sons and two daughters, Walter, Herbert, Keith and Marjorie (Mrs. Edward Armstrong), of this community, and Carl and Jessie (Mrs. R. Robson), of Montreal; also three sisters, Jean (Mrs. James Robertson), Mary Florence and Alice, of Lachute, and one brother, John, of Grand Rapids, Ohio.

The pall-bearers were six nephews — John, Walter, Edwin and Donald Robertson, Leslie and Ernest Gordon.

The Rev. W. B. Rosborough conducted the funeral service, which was held Monday afternoon from her late residence. The many floral tributes, and the large number attending the service, testified to the high place she held in the hearts of the community.

More Telephone Workers...
AND HIGHER WAGES HAVE GREATLY INCREASED OUR COSTS
IN THE PAST five years the number of employees has doubled and our payroll has gone up from 20 million dollars to over 50 million dollars. Yet, up to now, despite rising costs on all sides there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 22 years ago.
To meet unprecedented post-war demand for more telephones, our expansion and improvement of service have of necessity taken place in a period of rapidly rising costs. Most businesses have offset their higher costs by higher prices for their products. We have not yet done so.
You can be sure we will keep on doing our best to provide you with adequate and constantly improving telephone service — and to provide it at the lowest rates consistent with a fair return to our investors and employees.

Popular Canning Bulletin Ready

A bulletin which will prove timely to housewives who missed the last printing, is "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables", prepared by the Consumer Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture. This is a reprint of the bulletin of the same title first published some two years ago which has proved so popular.

It might well be described as an A.B.C. of canning, dealing as it does step by step with the subject, from the selection of the fresh fruits or vegetables, through to the finished product. All methods of processing are included and a processing time-table adds to the value of the publication.

And as many people often leaf through a book from the back to the front, it might pay to do so with this, for the last three pages contain a "quiz" which could well be read first — even before starting to can. For here will generally be found the answer to many puzzling reasons as to why last year's jelly was not quite clear, why the berries floated, why the peas were cloudy, and a host of others.

The bulletin may be obtained by writing the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Ask for Publication No. 789.

Summertime Recipes

By Betty Barclay

Summertime is the right time for fruit desserts so as to get the full benefit and enjoyment out of the array of tempting fruits and berries that will be coming along now in quick succession.

Fruits and berries are delicious served plain, but some members of your family may feel that fruit alone isn't really a dessert. That's when a recipe like this Fruit Tapioca comes to the rescue. It is almost as easy to prepare as a dish of fruit or berries. You use packaged tapioca pudding, you see, which means that in little more than five minutes you have a wonderful, tempting dessert ready to chill and serve with its seasonal fruit topping.

Fruit Tapioca

1 Package prepared vanilla tapioca pudding; 1¾ cups fruit juice and water; 1 cup cut or crushed fruit, well drained and sweetened if necessary; 1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Turn pudding mixture into saucepan. Add fruit juice and water and mix well. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. (Mixture will be thin. Do not overcook). Add fruit and lemon juice as needed for tartness. Cool, stirring once after 15 to 20 minutes. Mixture thickens as it cools. Chill. Serve plain or with cream. Makes 5 servings.

Jell-O Lime Freeze

¾ Cup sugar, 2 cups water, 1 package Lime Jell-O, 1 cup water, 1 cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine sugar and 2 cups water and boil 2 minutes. Dissolve Jell-O in hot liquid. Add 1 cup water and fruit juices. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. When partially frozen, turn into cold bowl and beat with rotary egg beater until blended and fluffy. Return to tray. Freeze 30 minutes longer and stir; then freeze until firm. Freezing time: 5 to 6 hours. Makes 1½ quarts.

Short and Sweet

If the long-time cooking, and endless heating that many candy recipes require, make you cross candy right off your list of activities for the summer, just put it right back on again and go to work on these Marshmallow Cooky Bars. They are grand — not only to eat, but to make.

Read the recipe and you will see for yourself that with a special candy-making chocolate, they can be tossed off in no time — and with so little effort it isn't worth mentioning.

These luscious little bars are a wholesome candy, and they are also especially good as an accompaniment to an afternoon cup of tea or coffee, or with a refreshing summer beverage. They also make an attractive cooky to serve with ice cream or pudding.

Marshmallow Cooky Bars

1 Cup broken vanilla wafers; 8 squares (1 package) candy-making chocolate, 8 marshmallows, cut in pieces.

Line bottom of 9 x 4 x 3-inch loaf pan with waxed paper, letting paper extend in 2-inch tabs at each end. Arrange broken wafers evenly in pan.

Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted. Add marshmallows and stir until partly melted and evenly distributed throughout chocolate. Pour chocolate evenly over wafers in pan, using fork to distribute chocolate throughout. Let stand in cool place to harden. Run a sharp knife around sides of pan and lift out candy with paper tabs. Cut in 2 x 1-inch bars. Makes 18 bars.

Every Day Is Sundae

At least it would be for the youngsters, if they could enlist your cooperation in providing the mouth-watering combinations of ice cream and toppings that parade under the name of "sundae". And why not, when it's so easy to make your own sundaes at home! That isn't going to complicate your life half as much as you may think. You buy the ice cream and keep it in your freezer or in the freezing unit of your refrigerator. Then you make, and keep on hand, several toppings — chocolate sauce, crushed berries, mixed fruits, and for a really "super" butterscotch sauce, use packaged pudding as suggested here. Wonderfully quick over puddings as well as ice cream, you can also "fancy it up" a bit, if you like, by sprinkling with shredded coconut or chopped nuts.

Butterscotch Sauce

1 Package prepared butterscotch pudding; ½ cup granulated sugar; ¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed; ¾ cup milk; 2 tablespoons butter.

Combine the pudding powders, sugars, and milk in saucepan. Mix well. Place over low heat and cook until all the sugar is dissolved, stirring constantly. Continue cooking until mixture comes to a full boil. Boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat and add butter. Serve warm or cold on pudding or ice cream. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

Montreal Wedding of Interest in County

Marshall - Phoenix

The marriage of Eleanor Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew J. Phoenix, to Mr. Reid George Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Marshall, of Arundel, took place recently in Westminster Central United Church, Montreal, the Rev. J. S. Nickerson officiating. Mr. D. MacPherson played the wedding music and Mr. J. Dagenais sang during the signing of the register. Mixed summer flowers were used to decorate the church.

The bride, given away by her father, was in a gown of white brocaded satin, the bodice having a yoke and small collar of lace and sleeves ending in points over her hands. Her veil of embroidered net extending to the hem of her gown, was held by a heart-shaped halo and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. E. Bowen, aunt of the bride, as matron of honor was in a gown of lavender brocaded taffeta with a matching bolero and she wore a large picture hat of the same color and carried a cascade bouquet of multi-colored sweet peas.

Miss D. Bowen, the bride's aunt, and Miss Louis Mitchell, as bridesmaids, were in frocks of yellow brocaded marquisette with an off-the-shoulder neckline and a deep flounce at the hem. They wore matching heart-shaped hats tied with tulle bows and mittens of the same color, and carried cascade bouquets of mauve sweet peas.

Mr. Stanley Moore acted as best man for Mr. Marshall and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Phoenix, the bride's brother, and Mr. Stewart Hewlitt.

Mrs. Phoenix, the bride's mother, was gowned in midnight blue faille and wore a navy blue hat and accessories and a corsage bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Marshall, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy blue crepe ensemble, with a grey hat and accessories, and a corsage bouquet of red roses.

The reception was held at the Montreal West Town Hall, where pink and white carnations were used for decoration.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left for Grey Rocks Inn, St. Jovite, the bride travelling in a grey print crepe frock and wearing a navy blue hat and accessories.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. Bazinet and Mr. and Mrs. E. Laurin, of Lachute; Mrs. E. Fowler, Miss E. Phoenix and Mrs. H. Fischer, of New York.

Need for Continuance W.I. 'Personal Parcels'

A total of 131 names have been taken and 1,017 parcels valued at $7,600 sent overseas under the Personal Parcel Plan — said Miss Joy Guild, Demonstrator - Secretary, at the recent annual convention of the Quebec Women's Institutes. This project is still receiving unqualified support from the branches throughout the province and the many real friendships that have sprung up across the sea as a result of these efforts is a record in itself.

A letter received from the Women's Voluntary Services, of Montreal, which was read at the convention, said in part, "We would like to ask if it would be possible to stress the continuing need for Personal Parcels to Britain. We hear the meat situation is very poor, that sweets are 'off the ration' but unobtainable, that fats of all kinds are greatly needed and that sugar is a good thing to send at present as advantage can be taken of the fruit season with a little extra sugar. With many thanks for all the W.I. is doing for the names on our lists."

The lowering of transportation costs was good news and will be an easing of the burden of postage charges to the faithful senders, many of whom have said, "I cannot eat my own abundant food unless I send parcels too."

FASHION HINT

Here is a mix match duo that should find itself in good company at the beach or in the country. The cotton shirt ties under the bustline in a careless knot, and has a plunging neckline, flaring collar and turn-back cuffs. The color is a bright yellow, a nice contrast with the brown and white of the corded cotton shirt. It has front gathers and two nice big pockets. The back fastens with a zipper.

Log House of Old Settler Still Occupied

Made of Hand-Hewn Timber
Kildonan House Repaired
Little in 75 Years

Winnipeg (CP) — A log house in the suburb of West Kildonan, older than Winnipeg itself, remains a memento of one of the movements out of which both the city and the province of Manitoba were developed.

The old Fraser home was built by Selkirk settlers. It has been occupied for the last 28 years by Mr. and Mrs. F. Murray, both of whom came to Winnipeg around the turn of the century.

The house has stood for more than 75 years without substantial reconditioning. Apart from a few partitions inside and the changing of moss chinking in the logs for cement, there is little difference.

Special oak logs, about 12 inches square, were floated down the Assiniboine River from Portage la Prairie, Man., for its construction.

Axe marks in the outside walls show the logs were hand-hewn. These logs were dovetailed and pinned together with wood to make the frame. The house has no basement; it rests on a stone foundation.

Trees For Poles

Mr. Murray recalls installing the first telephone in the house several years after he came to Winnipeg. At the time he was a cable man for the telephone system. And he recalls that the line was strung along trees rather than on poles.

Mr. Murray came from Wolverhampton, England, about 1903. His wife came from Edinburgh about the same time. He now is 72, his wife 74.

Mr. Murray caught his first glimpse of Winnipeg from a hospital bed.

"I caught typhus coming here, probably from the drinking water, and spent my first six weeks in the hospital", he says.

His clearest recollection of the Winnipeg of those days concerns the wood blocks on the street around the old Canadian Pacific Railway station.

"Every time you stepped on a block on a wet day, mud would squirt up your pant leg."

The first electric railway line in service in Canada ran between Windsor and Walkerville, Ontario. It was established in July of 1886.

A SEASON'S HIGHLIGHT, MAYOR'S TOURNAMENT

Under pressure of previous commitments the two-ball mixed foursome, bingo, etc., planned for July 23 has been postponed until further notice. July 22 is the pro-amateur invitation tournament with added attractions in the evening, and July 24 will see a really gala event over the course when Leopold Carrière stages the Mayor's Tournament. We are told this competition is open to one and all, with some very attractive prizes to be won. Play will be followed by a buffet supper and distribution of prizes at the clubhouse. Let's have a real turnout for this show, which should be a highlight of our golf year.

We said farewell to Frank Rossiter, our popular and accomplished barman of the early part of the season. An old leg injury has laid Frank up temporarily, and it is with reluctance that he finds himself forced to take time out to rest and recuperate. During his short stay with us Frank made a host of friends among members and visitors to the club. We feel sure we speak for them all when we wish him a speedy recovery and the best of health and success for the future.

We take this opportunity to welcome Frank's successor, Ernest Engel, sometime with the Chanticler Inn, Ste. Adele, before coming to us.

We disclose that a deposit of some value is to be discovered adjacent to and in the vicinity of the east wall of the new dining room. We are not sure whether or not this deposit has anything to do with recent excavations for new building. Resident Engineer on the property is Ralph Fitz-Gerald, and by the fences and signs posted around, he has struck something all right. The management is generously allowing members to stake claims, in fact urges members not to lose out in the fierce race for wealth! Get your claim stakes at the bar! Remember, the year '49 is one to remember in the annals of mining.

"Howja do on the new course?" we ask in perfectly civil tones . . and then have to duck for cover. A man who has just lost his last golf ball is not a creature to be spoken to, civilly or otherwise. And what's this we hear about players who skip a ball across the water and up onto the green? Are there no rules? . . But it really is a beauty, isn't it?

Last Sunday at Upper Lachute the Tigers defeated White Rose 18 - 14 in a very slow contest. At Lachute, Boyd's made it two-straight, upsetting Wilson's 4 - 2, which resulted in a pitchers' duel all the way.

By this win Boyd's are now tied for third place with White Rose.

Next Sunday at the French College, Tigers vs Boyd's, and at Upper Lachute, Wilson's vs White Rose. Both contests start at 2.30.

Pro-Amateur Tourney Officially Opens New 18-Hole Golf Course

Leading Golfers Rank Lachute With Best

Top-ranking stars from Montreal, Ottawa and district, both pro and amateur, teamed up with the local players last Friday afternoon to give the new Lachute course its first official baptism of fire. The new 18, which has already administered some severe beatings to members, had all the better of the play, only the veteran Ernie Wakelam of Ottawa and Canadian Open brilliant Bill Kerr of Beaconsfield coming close to regulation figures. Each shot one over par, 73.

The layout evoked favorable comment from all the visitors, many of whom, playing it for the first time, expressed amazement at its sheer beauty and championship qualities. Kerr called it one of the best he has toured, and Stanley Horne of Islesmere declared the long, hazardous 14th hole unequalled by any he has seen. Jules Huot, the perennially popular pro from Laval-sur-le-Lac, predicted that the mighty Middlecof and Alexander would take no more than 68 to get around it come August 28. This, more than a few people would like to see.

The same inimitable Jules conducted a golf clinic at No. 1 tee when the play had concluded, and he and Horne teamed up to entertain the crowd later with demonstrations of the golf swing. Bill Kerr delighted the audience with his portrayal of the Sunday morning golfer.

Feature of the evening's show was the fashion parade sponsored by Irving's of Montreal, with Ron Maurice of CJAD at the microphone.

Among the professionals Bobby Alston of Ottawa tied for second spot in the prize money with Jules Huot. Both shot 74's. Stanley Horne took third with a 76.

Roland Brault, St. Hyacinthe, and Melville Rogers, Ottawa, were low gross amateurs, each with 77. Joe Poulin, Marlborough, took the sweepstakes with low gross, and Hugh Kerr, Lachute Club captain, had low net with 71.

Prizes were also won by C. Kelly, Ottawa, with low net of 70 in the tournament, and Pete Malcolm, Ottawa, in the special division.

Normand Pesant Hits Long Hole-in-One

Second Ace Within Month At Local Course

On Saturday afternoon, July 16, with no fewer than five witnesses nearby on the green and Mozart Carrière watching on the tee, Normand Pesant lined up a brassie shot on the 215-yard No. 17 hole and hit it into the cup for the longest probable ace on the local course.

This is the second hole-in-one in less than a month of play over the new eighteen. Two other hole-in-one club members, Jack McIndoe and Jack Reade, were on the 17th green when Pesant scored his perfect tee shot.

Record Number in Mayor's Tourney

Fine Weather Enhances Gala Event

Some 150 golfers took part in a tournament over the local course last Sunday afternoon as guests of Mayor Leopold Carrière of Lachute. This event, one of the highlights of the season, proved eminently successful under brilliant sunshine and near-perfect weather. All participants reported a most enjoyable time, and although scores ranged from this to that, there were a few surprised prize-winners at the day's end.

An excellent buffet supper was served at the clubhouse in the evening, after which there was further entertainment, and the distribution of the prizes on the sun deck.

"IN BROWNSBURG"

Specially Contributed

Brownsburg — The new police chief, R. E. Foucreau, assumed office last week and lost no time in becoming acquainted with the extent and limitation of his territory. Traffic conditions in Brownsburg are bad. Parking is a problem which has not been properly controlled by the council, in spite of sporadic efforts to bring some sort of order out of the prevailing chaos. Some time ago a committee was formed and instructed to make a survey of this difficult question, but the report is a long time in coming. Now is the time to make some definite rules governing both speeding and parking, and what's more important, making those rules stick. With co-operation and good will, a little good government will go a long way. Visitors to Brownsburg are welcomed and treated with hospitality and consideration; if in return a little consideration is shown for the other fellow's point of view and convenience, the outcome could be a very happy one for both.

• • •

Curfew

"The curfew tolls the knell of parting day" at nine o'clock each evening, and at that time all good boys and girls must be within their own homes. For the present the Catholic Church bell announces the time, but a siren is to be erected at the police station in the near future. Enforcement of this law has been frequently requested by the inhabitants, and now that this has been put into effect it is hoped parents and others will co-operate in seeing that it is obeyed.

• • •

Roads

The Louisa road has been finished for the present, and short of a macadamized surface, is quite satisfactory, being a vast improvement on the road as it existed a month ago. Progress along Route 31 is of necessity slow, but considerable headway has been made in the cut now under construction.

• • •

The usual two weeks' vacation granted by C-I-L to all its employees takes place from August 1. A general exodus from the 'Burg is expected to take place, with holiday seekers spreading all over Canada and the States.

• • •

The yearly negotiations for a working contract between the Workers' Union and C-I-L are now in progress. It is not expected that much can be concluded till after the holidays.

Plans for New Catholic School

Two New Members Elected to Commission

On the expiry of office in two seats of the Catholic School Commission, Henri Trichard and Remi Ledoux, who had served for 13 and 11 years respectively, resigned from the membership and were replaced by Dr. R. Lavigne and Albert Legault, both of Lachute Mills, who were elected by acclamation. . . At the first meeting of the board, Fernand Legault was re-elected chairman.

Architect for the proposed new school building, Maurice Champagne, is completing plans for the structure, and it is hoped to have a modern and commodious school in readiness for September next year. The school, on the site of the present St. Viateur College, Grace Street, will contain 26 classrooms and a gymnasium-assembly hall.

Dental Assoc'n Organized for Laurentian Area

A new professional group, the Laurentian District Dental Society, was formed recently at St. Jerome. Members of the profession from Ste. Therese, Lachute, Grenville, St. Eustache, St. Jerome, Ste. Adele, Ste. Agathe, St. Jovite and Mont Laurier laid the basis of the new organization.

Dr. L. A. Dionne was unanimously elected honorary president, Dr. Charles Contant president, and Dr. J. A. Lacasse vice-president. Dr. Jules Pagé will be secretary-treasurer, and Drs. R. A. Dumais, P. A. Liboiron and J. Larue will complete the directorate.

The new association numbers 24 dental-surgeons from various centres in the Laurentian area.

The speaker of the evening, Dr. C. Godin, from Three Rivers, explained the aims and operations of identical societies in the province. Dr. Godin is virtually the godfather of many groups throughout the country, and has served as president of the Three Rivers group, which is now 27 years in existence.

Killed by Autobus Near St. Philippe

Odille Mallette, 68-year-old laborer of Grece's Point, was struck by an autobus on No. 8 highway one mile west of St. Philippe yesterday afternoon, and died within a short time after the accident.

The man had spent the day in St. Philippe. Walking westward along the highway around 4.30 o'clock, it is reported he stepped into the path of the bus and was struck from the rear. The vehicle was a chartered bus from St. Clet, Soulanges County, carrying 35 passengers who had made a pilgrimage to the local shrine. Driver of the bus was André Laframboise, son of the owner.

Last rites were given to the victim by a priest riding in the bus. Dr. F. W. FitzGerald was summoned from Lachute and pronounced the victim dead from a compound skull fracture and other injuries. Traffic Officer Howard Jones made the investigation.

An inquest was opened at the Menard & Menard funeral parlors here last evening, and will be resumed at Lachute town hall Friday at 9 p.m., under presidency of Dr. Jules Lafleur, coroner.

Gore Township Votes Prohibition

The Municipality of the Township of Gore voted by ballot July 16 on the sale of alcoholic liquors within the municipality, and the vote showed an overwhelming sentiment in favor of prohibition. The results as furnished by Geo. Peet, secretary-treasurer, were as follows:

For Prohibition by-law	119
Against	34

Considerable enthusiasm was evident in this question, and besides the township residents many seasonal cottagers recorded their votes. The balloting on Saturday was followed Monday by the election for mayor, so there was no lack of interest in civic matters that week-end.

Bush Fire Occurs At Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg —

Despite all the warnings issued from so many sources on the conservation of our woodlands, a party of picnickers (it is presumed) started a fire on the property of Mr. Vowles and allowed the blaze to get out of control, with the result that several acres of land was swept by bush fire. As the land is adjacent to several properties recently occupied by residences, it is possible the fire could have done much damage, but no such disastrous happening occurred. The change to rain in the afternoon of Wednesday assisted in putting out the fire.

Rotary Club Hears Impressions of District Conference at Brockville

Gathering Had "International" Flavor

Brownsburg — Secretary H. W. Rutherford reported recently to the Brownsburg Rotarians on the District assembly at Brockville, Ont. — at which he and Linton W. Armstrong (local president) were in attendance as representatives of the branch.

The conference was held in the Mannitonna Hotel overlooking the St. Lawrence River. District Governor Rae Brunet, of Hull, presided over the gathering reprerenting no fewer than 44 clubs from western Quebec, eastern Ontario and northern New York State.

Following, in brief, are impressions of the assembly as reported by Secretary Rutherford to his fellow members:

Governor Rae's opening statement was to the effect that the purpose of this gathering was to give the Presidents and Secretaries of all Clubs in the District a broader aspect of Rotary.

A welcome address was given by Mayor Reynolds of Brockville, in which he said that he believed Rotary District 250 was on the eve of one of the greatest booms in its history. Mayor Reynolds said that it was the duty of every person to boost the section in which they lived, particularly when visiting in other areas. He remarked that the St. Lawrence River united Canada with the United States; it did not act as a dividing line. He commended the work of Rotarians in their service and welfare work and paid tribute to the members of the Brockville Rotary Club, who had contributed in many ways to the development of the city.

As a contribution to aid in world problems, the Mayor used the analogy of the stone in the pool. To the Rotarians, as men of affairs, he said, "Let the stone of influence of your life be thrown into the life of the world; the bigger the stone, the bigger the ripples".

Governor Rae Brunet complimented the members of the Brockville Club in charge, and thanked the town officials for their hospitality.

Greetings from the capital city of Ottawa were expressed by Mayor Eddie Bourque, who is also President of the Ottawa Rotary Club.

At the Governor's Dinner, Dr. M. M. MacOdrum, President of Carleton College, Ottawa, was the speaker.

In considering world problems, the speaker said that it must not be forgotten that this is one world of men and that the fellowship of service clubs should be applied to the world at large. "We must pass along to others, the message that Rotary gives us, 'In our every day walks in life'."

Even though formal education has spread rapidly (U.S. universities' registration had jumped from 108,000 in 1900 to 2,500,000 at the end of World War II), this was not enough to have world-minded citizens in changing times. The whole generation is too eager to be modern, said Dr. MacOdrum, while it is necessary to know and remember past struggles which made possible the rise to present standards of living, young people expected certain rights now that once had been considered privileges. "They do not realize how hard-won our present position is".

People must be educated to a fuller realization of democracy, a more expert understanding of international affairs and a creative imagination in the administration of affairs. Nations must learn to work in harmony, both in trade and culturally. Rotary could, and was, working in this aim to a great extent.

Other interesting speakers were heard during the conference.

The lighter aspects of this period of fellowship were also happily recalled by Rotarian Rutherford in his report.

Anglican Clergyman Still Active at 76

Good wishes are extended to a well known member of the Anglican clergy in this county, the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, of Lakefield, who celebrated his 76th birthday on Tuesday, July 26.

The Rev. Mr. Baugh's accomplishments merit warm congratulations, for at this ripe age he still faithfully carries on his duties as incumbent to the Parish of Lakefield as well as in the Parish of Morin Heights and Mille Isles, whose congregations cover altogether a wide area.

Anglican Lawn Social Successful Event at Weir

(Our District Correspondent)

Weir — The annual lawn social held on the Anglican Church grounds here July 16, was a decided success and had the largest attendance for years. The various booths were well patronized and the sum of $369 was taken in. The ladies of the W.A. feel proud of this accomplishment, and are grateful to everyone who helped to make the social a success.

An attractive program was presented in the hall, where the four drawings of the evening were conducted, with the following results: Miss D. White, of Montreal, won the beautiful oil painting; Mrs. J. Aldridge, of Verdun, the quilt; Mrs. Berry, of Montreal, the hand-dressed doll; and Mrs. Geo. Brown of Montreal, guessed the correct weight of the cake.

Contributing to the program were three pipers in attendance from Montreal, Hugh Wilson, Ken Ireland and Wendell MacLean, also Miss Lorraine Grant of Montreal, and the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schippel, Diane and Sandra, who performed several dances.

W. Inst. Lawn Social Held at Arundel, Que.

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — On Friday evening, July 15, the Arundel Women's Institute held a lawn social on the grounds of the United Church. The various booths were well patronized, especially the midway. The raffle booth was a popular table, especially just before the drawing of tickets for the three patchwork quilts and other prizes. All of these articles were donated, and thanks are extended by the ladies to those generous friends who helped to make this drawing so popular.

During the evening, a program was given under direction of Mrs. Gordon Cooke. Little Audrey Cooke, of Montreal, delighted the audience with her dancing and her unique costumes. Mr. Smart kept the crowd amused with his parody song on local residents, and some of the old favorites. A vocal trio comprised Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bulley and Edgar Davis. Mrs. Gordon Cooke sang two songs, which were much appreciated. The program was opened and closed by a chorus of girls, whose singing in harmony was much enjoyed.

The thanks of the Institute are extended to all who helped to make the evening such a cussess. The sum of $220 was realized, which will be used to promote the School Fair, to be held some time early in September.

Friends Fete Townsman On Coming Marriage

Mr. Leonard Armstrong was guest of honor at a "stag" gathering last Thursday in Joly's Hotel, Lachute Mills, where between 50 and 60 friends gathered to wish him well on his approaching marriage. Halifax Observes Its Bicentenary

Impressions from the Authors' Convention

By JANET GRAHAM

Halifax is at present celebrating its bi-centenary. Three whole months of celebrations — because as Mr. Fraser, representing Mayor G. S. Kinley, told the Canadian Authors Association meeting in Halifax early in July, "they not only wanted visitors to the town to have some fun, they wanted to have some fun themselves". And their lengthy program of events certainly means fun for a great many, but it also means work for a great many, as well as trade in souvenirs, curios, books too we hope, and an influx of tourists from many parts of the Dominion, United States and also from abroad. Notables whose ancestors helped build what Mayor J. C. Watson of Calgary speaks of as "the city that has written a proud chapter in Canada's history".

Other comments include those of Premier P. J. Johnson of B.C., who writes that "Halifax has a dignity that we all respect"; also of Mayor Lucien Borne of Quebec City, who calls Halifax "Queen of the extreme East". . . Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent too, in speaking of Halifax in the Halifax Mail-Star and Chronicle-Herald Bi-centennial edition, says, "The City of Halifax is one of the greatest of North Atlantic ports, and the key place in North Atlantic Nations community."

Halifax as a port has been a vital link between the Old World and the New for 200 years, and Mayor Bourque of Ottawa, while greeting Halifax in the name of the people he represents, says that "throughout the years Halifax has been the eastern gateway of this great Dominion"; also "One cannot think of Halifax without remembering it is the portal through which thousands of our service men and women moved, on their way to war, and that more than once it suffered the casualties of war itself. At that time Halifax hospitality excelled itself in behalf of all the services. But at all times Nova Scotian hospitality and friendliness are inexhaustible and famous."

Members of the Canadian Authors Association meeting in convention can bear witness to the truth of Mayor Bourque's statement regarding the hospitality of Nova Scotians, and in particular the Haligonians, as the people of Halifax call themselves. From Premier Macdonald himself down to the hotel bell-boys, all seemed doing their utmost to make the delegates feel at home. Even the great T. Eaton Company extended a greeting to the authors by having a boutonniere of roses presented to each one as they entered Convention Hall for the first session. In fact, the slogan "Say it with flowers" was exemplified quite frequently during the days of the convention. One florist shop provided red roses to decorate the tables for the luncheon given the authors by the City of Halifax in the Nova Scotian Hotel. Another company presented each one with three lovely carnations in Cellophane wrappings so that they might have a corsage to wear when attending the banquet tendered them by the Town of Annapolis Royal in their Community House, when the post-convention tour arrived there. The presentation of carnations took place in Haliburton House, famous for having been the one-time home of Judge Haliburton, the author of Sam Slick. This house is now a museum and has a room for authors' books (the Authors' Room, it is called), as well as rooms of antique furniture and dishes, even the old coach-shaped carriage used by Judge Haliburton.

We must have unity within the nation if we want it between nations.

Gatineau LINES

THE MOST GOOD

In many parts of the electrical system of Gatineau Power, construction crews are working at top speed these days, improving service in some parts, expanding it in others, installing it for the first time in still others.

These crews don't work haphazardly, or according to their own whim. Every step in the building program of a power company has to be carefully planned in advance to make sure that it fits neatly into the pattern of necessary steps before and after it. In fact, the whole expansion plan of Gatineau Power for this year was laid out in detailed planning months ago.

Now, the one trouble about all this is that customers and soon-to-be customers all are inclined to expect that the particular job in which they are directly concerned should be done first. This is a natural feeling, especially when it appears on the surface as though that particular job is a simple one that could be done any time — but things just don't work out that way. Once a building program is completely planned, each job must follow the one before it in logical order or the whole project bogs down.

It's the same as building a house. The house builder can't put the roof on before the foundation is in, nor can he put the windows on before there are walls. The power company can't run the last few feet of wire to bring electricity into any one spot until it has made sure that the lines and transformers already installed are ready to take care of the additional load.

In planning its program, the power company must take all these things into consideration. Beyond that, it lays its plans to bring the most good to the greatest number of customers — and it is on that basis which it must operate.

Relating all this to the present building program of Gatineau Power, the situation is simply this: Gatineau is engaged in the greatest expansion program in its history: every job is being proceeded with according to schedule and right on schedule; and this will continue until every step planned has been completed. There will be no relaxing until everything promised for this year has become a reality. But, by the same token, a job scheduled for September can't be finished ahead of the job scheduled for August. As much as we might like to, we can't condense a full year's work into a month or two — but we are living up to every promise made for 1949.

Did You Know?

Gatineau Power has more than 125 different projects underway in its 1949 program. Every one of them is arranged so as to bring the most good to the most people at the earliest possible moment.

Plan Annual Regatta At Lake Barron

The third annual community regatta at Lake Barron is being held August 6, on the site of "Sugar Plum Cottage" at the western end of the lake.

This regatta, commencing with a handful of canoes and community enthusiasm in 1947, has developed in its three years of operation into one of the larger aqua events in the Laurentians, and Lake Barron residents may well be proud of this progress.

The cups and prizes this year will number well over 100, and the organizer, Tommy Brown, has not forgotten the visitors to the event, by the inclusion of a number of open races for this purpose. Emphasis too has been placed on the loan of equipment by lake residents to visitors, in order that they may enjoy the fun.

Races in canoes and rowboats will number about 14, together with a war canoe event. But the main feature will be the selection of a queen to reign for the day of the regatta. This has attracted a number of beauties from the community, and the crowning of the queen will be held with fitting ceremony.

Prizes will be awarded in the evening at Brown's Community Centre, situated on the lake. All are welcome to attend this event.

Picnic for Families of Brownsburg Veterans

The Brownsburg Legion co-operated with its ladies' auxiliary in staging one of the most successful outings in its history. A bus, a truck and several cars were necessary to transport nearly 100 adults and children to Lake Macdonald on Sunday, July 17, for a day beside the water. At Dewar's beach the sandy shore-line and shallow water provided comfort and safety for the children.

When the party arrived about noon Kenneth Dewar, owner of the property, proved most co-operative in providing ice and a large cooling-receptacle to hold milk and soft drinks, and also later in the afternoon made the tea for the crowd at his farmhouse.

The children, even the little tots, had a happy time in the warm water, and were taken for several boat rides by Jack Seary. Races on the sands were organized by the Auxiliary president, Mrs. Reg Bell, with the following results:

3 Years and under — 1 Susan Seary, 2 Bruce Stilwell, 3 Claude Gagné.

5 Years and under — 1 Brian Gagné, 2 Caron Martin, 3 Heather Martin.

6 and 7 Years — 1 Jimmy Martin, 2 J. Seary, 3 W. Gagné.

8 and 9 Years — 1 Elaine Stilwell, 2 M. Hebert, 3 K. Carpenter.

Veteran Railroader and Army Engineer Died Recently at St. Thomas

Major W. J. Chisholm Was Native of Lachute

Major William John Chisholm, resident of St. Thomas, Ont., died unexpectedly at his home on July 19. Although he had been feeling "under the weather" for a few days, there was no hint that his illness was serious.

Major Chisholm had lived at St. Thomas since 1933, settling there to spend his years of leisure after retiring from a long career in railway engineering work for the Canadian National Railway, for the most part in northern Ontario.

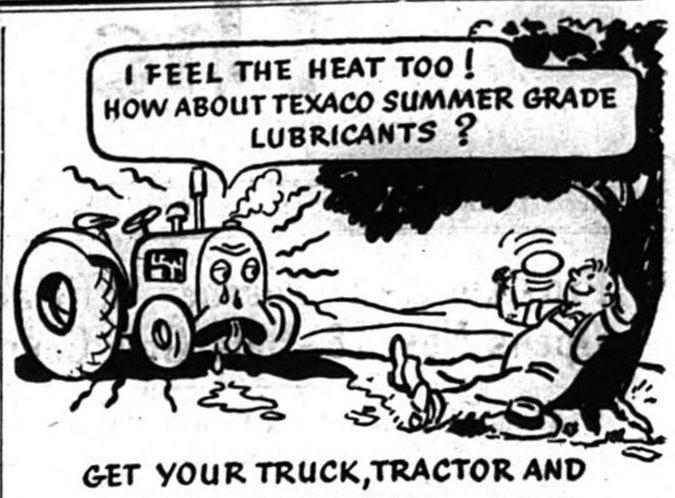

A native of Lachute, Major Chisholm was born here 71 years ago, a son of Hugh and Catherine Chisholm. For several years before World War I, he was engaged in engineering construction work for the C.N.R. in northern Ontario, but on the outbreak of the war, enlisted with the 85th Highland Regiment. Later he was transferred to the Royal Canadian Engineers because of his training and experience in civil life, and for a time was engaged in Army railway and construction projects.

Still later in the war, he was engaged in work on British airdromes. He returned to Canada and was discharged from the Army in 1920, thereafter residing in Ottawa and again taking up his work with the C.N.R. until he retired.

Major Chisholm is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hazel Davis Chisholm, and by one sister, Mrs. F. B. A. Chipman, of Halifax, also a number of nieces and nephews.

Strength in Difference

THE DAY after Louis St. Laurent was chosen leader of the Liberal party, a reporter met a French-speaking member of parliament. The M.P. was still obviously quite moved by what had happened when roaring thousands had acclaimed the successor to William Lyon Mackenzie King. "You know", he said, "I couldn't believe they'd let us have it (the leadership)."

But they had, overwhelmingly. And more recently "they" — the English-speaking Canadians — have given Mr. St. Laurent an equally overwhelming mandate to run the government.

Maybe now we'll listen to what he himself says about this perennial French-English question. He says — he said it repeatedly on the hustings — that "There is no doubt we are a united nation today".

Let's go on from there, he says. Let's not keep probing fearful fingers into the potential causes of division. Let's accept our differences, glory in them and let them make us a broader, deeper people. In our different cultures, our different languages, our different heritages, lies our real strength. They are not frailties but the springboards to a race and society of breadth and varied interest.

"We are a young people, barely on the threshold of the future destiny seems to have marked for us", Louis St. Laurent has said again and again to the people. And isn't there much in what he says? Haven't we spent too long consulting our fears? Isn't it time to recognize that there are certain things the French will always be, certain things the English will always be, and there is plenty of room for both?

To any observer in the proceedings of our federal parliament, this soon becomes obvious. Among the representatives of the two races in this forum of the nation, there is a characteristic tolerance and respect, understanding and give-and-take. . . As Walter Tucker said when he resigned his seat to lead the Saskatchewan Liberals: "There is a spirit here I'm going to miss".

We Shudder!

RETURNING from a holiday trip to distant scenes, we were keyed to the thrill of homecoming last Saturday. Having feasted our eyes on the well-kept countryside of New York State and the Province of Ontario — having soothed our souls in the velvet softness and historical charm of the Niagara valley — we were at peace with the world, glad to be home, and happy to overlook the material shortcomings of our little town. It was in this frame of mind that we approached Lachute. . .

Alas, we shudder — to think that strangers approach this town and receive the same unsavory jolt imparted by those road-signs! Indicators set to guide and safeguard the tourist — these tell-tale manifestations of our civic attitude stand rusted, unpainted, almost illegible.

Our editorial criticism was directed some weeks ago at these same offending eyesores. And viewing them from a new mental angle last week, we experienced a feeling of personal shame. Both street signs and highway markers are equally neglected, and if our civic and provincial authorities have any sense of local pride, the fault should be remedied immediately.

"THE FINANCIAL reputation of a man or a community is as delicate as a woman's reputation," says the Financial Post. The best way to get the funds our development needs is to make sure we have and deserve the reputation we want and need.

"What we Canadians must do if we are to get the foreign risk money we want is to make sure we are doing everything in our power to demonstrate that we conduct our stock promotions in a sound, fair-for-all way and that whatever our past sins may have been, we are not now harboring stock racketeers."

Two street cleaners were talking politics — they worked in a tough area — a vacancy had occurred in a much better district. "I hear", said one, "Bill's likely to get the job". "Maybe" said the other, "Bill's alright — he's good enough for straight sweeping but he's not much on corners".

— R. J. Deachman.

Many municipalities are faced with the problem of slum-housing on the outskirts over which they have no control. In many places, especially in the Eastern Townships, the lovely countryside is spoilt so that the words of a hymn are brought forcibly to mind: "Where every prospect pleases, and only man is vile."

— Granby Leader-Mail

Disillusioned

ALL THE skepticism on post-war flying missiles, especially that brand so broadly described as "flying saucers", seems substantiated in the international "incident" which held a recent spice of interest for this area.

"A New York radio station reported that an unidentified round object, probably belonging to a foreign power, had been sighted high over Manhattan Island. While thousands of the citizenry peered upwards, fighter planes shot the invader down. Police cars roared to the scene of the crash and a thorough investigation was undertaken. . . "

The narrative extends to several graphic paragraphs worthy of the script of a Hollywood thriller — but it all boiled down to a balloon from Hyman Singerman's woodshed on the Laurentian Highway. A number of small wartime blimps were stored at his summer camp; Singerman painted them to advertise a Jewish charity event in Ste. Agathe, and tied them to his fence. One got loose, and floated far away over Manhattan.

Is It Sacrilege?

THE END of a glorious era for gourmets is threatened in a disturbing report from Des Moines, Iowa.

It seems that a certain Peter H. Baumann has succeeded in developing a breed of chickens without wings. He claims that these mutilated birds can provide an unbroken expanse of plump white meat for the uninhibited operation of carving knives.

The subtle attack on a great North American tradition will doubtless be acclaimed by many thoughtless people. If the new breed can be produced in commercial quantities there is no doubt it will meet with a good response.

The narrow interests of children have always centred on the more prosaic drumstick and white meat. The new creature would also be a boon to older folk in large families, who have hitherto been forced to content themselves with wings and necks after the small fry have been served more tempting portions.

But some last-ditch defence must be made for the winged chicken against this formidable competitor.

Those with more discriminating palates — a minority in the toothpick brigade — have always argued the supremacy of the luscious, browned wing, fresh from the pan. Those who hail the demise of the chicken wing, if they are honest, must admit that they are, at bottom, lazy — that they don't care for the effort of chewing the tasty meat from a bent, awkward wingbone. But it has been said by great philosophers that the best things in life never come without effort.

Let us take you to the barnyard for our final argument in favor of chicken wings.

The family sentiment of people has always warmed to the sight of a mother hen, covering her brood under protective wings from all dangers. Now imagine those little chicks, fleeing from an approaching menace, only to find their mother can offer them no shelter.

It mustn't happen here. Write your member in Ottawa about this.

THESE are the days when those still cooped up in office and plant have that great longing to get out in the open air. But business must continue just the same, as most of us like to eat.

— Barrie (Ont.) Examiner

THE TIME has come when place names, like firm names, should be registered and approved before they are adopted by a community. There are too many towns and villages in Canada with the same names, with the result that mails and other things get mixed up.

Halifax Celebrates Its Bicentenary

The carnations were presented by the Loomers of Dartmouth. Mrs. Loomer, herself a poet, was decidedly helpful to wandering authors seeking the different rooms where sessions were shifted to and from at various times. . . Reading her poem recently published in the Nova Scotia Book of Verse (Halifax Bi-centenary Edition) and noting the title "God Enthroned", one felt that her calm, gracious thoughtfulness could easily have been helped to the fulness of its consummation by living so close to a garden where beautiful blooms certainly could not help speaking of God to one who worked among them, and especially in Dartmouth, which looks out on an expanse of water towards Halifax and must be crossed by ferry unless one wished to take the long way round.

Dartmouth ferries have been operating for 197 years, from the first primitive ferry with oars, to the more up-to-date ones of today. In the very early days Sunday ferry traffic was only for churchgoers. An old history of Dartmouth sets down as a fact that the ferries were only to operate on Sundays to allow members of Halifax churches who were residents on the eastern side of the harbour to attend divine service. Passengers had to assure the captain of the craft that they were en route to church!

Church attendance in those days was thought necessary for the good of the community, and for the personal lives of every man and woman, as a law was enacted in Halifax by the First House of Assembly in 1759 as a Sabbath Day Observance, that provided for fines for non-attendance at divine worship, also made provision for the police to prevent "looseness and brawling on Sunday".

It would seem that in those days as the title of Mrs. Loomer's poem puts it, that "God was enthroned in all sincerity". When we hear people speak of "the good old days" they must of a surety be referring to that period of time.

City of Interesting Churches

"No city in Canada can boast of more interesting places of worship than Halifax", according to Major Borrett, author of "Historic Halifax", who classes the ancient churches of that city as venerable Canadian landmarks.

The oldest church building in Halifax, and in fact the oldest Protestant church in Canada, was built in 1730. It was built by Crown funds and under Royal Foundation. Sir Thomas Masterman Hardy, who served as captain to Nelson at the Battle of Trafalgar, was married in Saint Paul's Church in 1807. So famous is this old church considered, that the present rector speaks of it as the "Westminster of Canada".

Among other famous old churches is the church that was built in a day; 2,000 men headed by their bishop met and marched to Massey Hill previous to the actual building of the church, and prepared the ground by uprooting rocks, trees and whatever lay in the way of levelling the ground and laying the foundation. This work, like the building of the church itself, was completed in a day. With all in readiness again on August 31, the same volunteer band of men returned and raised, roofed, boarded, lathed, shingled and painted the Dolor Church with its Gothic-style windows and door, bearing witness to the truth of the old proverb that "many hands make light work".

Among other historical churches we might mention the old Dutch Church, the second oldest in Halifax; also the Round Church, the shape being inspired by the Duke of Kent, father to Queen Victoria.

In 1870 Halifax had only 23 places of worship, today it has 53. In 1880, church records claimed that the churches were generally well filled. . . Could the same be said of the churches all over our Dominion today?

Indian Legends

Indian names and Indian legends are incorporated in the ancient history of Halifax. An old Indian legend relates to the bridge between Dartmouth and Halifax, which few of the residents of today remember, and which disappeared in the night about 50 years ago after it had been rebuilt for the second time — bearing out an old Indian prophecy that it would be destroyed by a storm first, that the second bridge would disappear, and that the third bridge (which is yet to be built) would be death — in what form that is to appear, the Indian is not supposed to have stated; but the first two prophecies have already come about some years ago.

Halifax Harbour was named by the Indians long before the coming of the white man — "Chibouctou", meaning the great harbour. Champlain later termed it "the safe harbour". The Northwest Arm of this harbour, so called, was named by the Indians "Waegwoltic", an Indian name which stands for end of the water, according to one translator, while another gives its meaning as "salt water all the way up". This name is still retained by a sports club — and to the Canadian authors was extended the free hospitality of its club room, bathing facilities and other water sports which they cared to enjoy.

Order of Good Cheer

The book "Historic Halifax, Tales Told Under the Old Town Clock", by W. C. Borrett, was presented to every author as a gift from Mayor Kinley and his council. Another book of poems, by Mr. Andrew Merkel, was also presented to quite a number of the poetry writers by Mr. Merkel. This book is a tale in verse of The Order of Good Cheer, and the time when it was formed by Champlain.

Membership certificates in the Order of Good Cheer were presented to every gentleman in the party of authors who were entertained at the closing banquet given by Annapolis Royal. The Order of Good Cheer is supposed to be strictly a gentlemen's Order and confined to that district. The Province of Nova Scotia, on the contrary, has branched out to include ladies as well, and differs slightly in form of certificate as well as name. Certificates in the Order of Good Times are usually handed out to what are considered celebrated visitors to the Port Royal Habitation. Through some mistake in the time of visiting there, Col. Eaton and others who performed this pleasant duty, were not present to meet the authors, and those of the ladies who had not received certificates ten years ago were slightly disappointed.

Having accidentally "barged into" The Habitation (to use a common description of happening) a week earlier and getting mixed up with a party of American editors and newspaper people, several of us had afternoon tea with them, and had the pleasure of hearing Col. Eaton telling them something of the history of the place and presenting each one with a certificate of membership in The Order of Good Times.

The certificates of Good Cheer presented the gentlemen authors, were presented by Mayor Hall of Annapolis Royal, who had but a few hours previous,, in company with his good wife, entertained the entire party to afternoon tea.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP
is a lot of little things

GIVE OUR KIDS THE "BRAKES"

We can't expect little children to avoid traffic dangers unless we train them to do so at home—and at school. It's our job as parents to see that they learn and practice all the rules of safety. It's our responsibility as motorists to drive carefully at all times—but particularly in residential areas and near schools. Let's give our kiddies the "brakes" and help to reduce the accident toll! To save a life—or a lifetime of suffering is one of the most important aims of "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

After an absence of 39 years, it is needless to remark on the great improvements evident since that time. Again I say thanks to one and all of those who have made me most welcome; their kindness will always be remembered.

The Secret of Sauces

Sauces are used to enhance the flavour and appearance of the food with which they are served. Sometimes the sauce adds food value to an otherwise incomplete dish. Poor food cannot be disguised by the most perfect sauce, but a simple food may appear elegant and glamorous when accompanied by the right sauce.

One of the five basic recipes the trained chef must master is the white or cream sauce. It is sometimes called "mother sauce" because so many different sauces are evolved from it. The homemaker who makes perfect cream sauce has the base for dozens of sauces, sweet, sour, piquant or rich as the occasion demands.

A chopped hard-cooked egg, a little grated cheese, chopped celery, chopped parsley, chopped pickle or a few drops of spicy meat sauce will change plain white sauce into something special.

There are a few special sauces which are easy to make but are quite different in consistency and method.

For example a sauce that lends the right zip to spinach, beet greens or green beans is made by blending a little prepared mustard and vinegar with softened butter before adding to the hot vegetable. As for sweet sauces to serve on fruits, honey as a base is excellent. A little grated orange rind added to the honey makes an excellent dressing for fruit salad. Whipped cream sweetened with honey will stay up longer than when sugar is used.

Here are several recipes for something different in sauce, suggested by the home economists of the Consumer Section at Ottawa:

Mint Sauce for Fresh Fruit

1 Cup fresh mint leaves, 1 cup boiling water, ½ cup corn syrup, ½ cup honey, 1 lemon, grated rind and juice.

Chop mint leaves and pour boiling water over them. Add other ingredients and let stand in a cool place for two hours. Strain and serve over fresh fruit. Yield: six servings, about 1½ cups.

Cucumber Sauce

2 Tablespoons shortening, 1 tablespoon flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 egg, ½ cup of finely chopped cucumber (peeled), few grains of cayenne pepper.

Melt shortening, stir in flour and salt. Slowly blend in milk and cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from heat and stir in the vinegar. Beat egg until light and slowly pour the hot sauce over egg, add cucumber and pepper. Return to double-boiler and cook, stirring constantly, for 1 minute. Remove from heat and serve hot. Yield: six servings.

Serve with fish, meat loaf, omelet or string beans.

Raspberry Sauce

1 Egg white, pinch of salt, ⅓ cup of sugar, 1½ cups raspberries, 1 teaspoon vinegar.

Beat egg white until stiff, add salt and sugar. Crush berries add vinegar and mix into egg. Chill and serve on pudding. Yield: about 2 cups.

County W.I. Meetings For Month of July

Arundel W.I. branch had an attendance of 33 members at the July meeting. A sewing-machine demonstration was given, and the ladies of this branch assisted with the Health Clinic for the people of the community.

Twenty-nine members of Brownsburg branch answered the roll-call, "Why I joined the W.I." The meeting was held in the school basement, through the courtesy of Mr. D. Staniforth, who showed the film "Let There Be Light". Members were able to see the story of the beginning and growth of the W.I., and also the future there is in this work. A "personal parcel" was sent to England, and a report of the Provincial Convention was heard. One new member joined the group. On August 27 the members are to be guests of Mrs. Geo. Connelly at her cottage at Clear Lake, Dunany, when a picnic will be held.

The July meeting of Jerusalem-Bethany branch was more of a social than a business meeting. Contests were held in which all members took part. An interesting and instructive talk was given by one of the members, Mrs. E. Emmett, on Institute work in the Maritime Provinces. As Mrs. Emmett had toured these provinces in the early summer, all her information had been received first-hand. Her talk, also the literature which she had relating to Institute work in these provinces, were very much enjoyed by the meeting.

Pioneer branch heard a report of the Provincial Convention, to which two delegates had been sent and two more had gone by bus for one day. Recipes were exchanged among the members, and the branch has completed a quilt. Plans were made for a lawn social to be held later in the month at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smith. One new member was welcomed to the branch. Twenty-three prizes were awarded members of this branch at the Handicraft exhibit at the Lachute Fair, and a suggested list of articles for next year's list was sent to the convener.

Nineteen members and four guests attended the meeting of Upper Lachute and East End branch, when Current Events were read. Miss Hanna Smith, delegate to the Provincial Convention, gave a splendid report on all activities, especially mentioning the Handicraft Exhibit, Ascot Bank, History Contest, Penal Reform, Adult Danish Schools, Cancerphobia and the "New and Old" Fashion Show put on by the Ste. Anne's branch. A gift was presented to a newly married couple in the community. Members catered to a wedding supper early in July and the proceeds from this were used to augment the general funds.

Random Writings on the Rural Scene

By Margaret Cook

Life assumes its regular summer pattern. . . . We get up at eight o'clock or thereabout, and the man of the house makes the fire and prepares breakfast while I get into my two or three pieces of clothing, the number depending on the temperature. Mentally I brace myself for the day, not being one of those who rise full of vim and cheer. My husband belongs to that class, and his morning attitude was one of the unhappier surprises of married life. I often ponder on the marital adjustment the husband of that loathsome little Pippa must have had to make. Imagine a wife who was able to carol at seven a.m. that all was right with the world! And anyway, how did she know, with the day all untried?

But I see I have digressed; and digression, said my journalistic tutor, was the unpardonable sin. Moreover, my articles abound in words of more than one syllable, another journalistic crime. Also, seldom do I remember that the great reading public is overwhelmingly moronic; on the contrary I feel it is probably smarter than the writer. Aha, an inferiority complex, fun and games for a psychiatrist!

To return . . after breakfast we busy ourselves about the place. Household routine, gardening, forestry, sewing, fence-making and baking occupy our hands. It is during this time that these chronicles are shaped in my head, while my hands are about their tasks. Betty imitates one of her parents, or invents complicated games of her own, often involving trips over deserts on camels (the hammock), with witches riding alongside on broomsticks. As I write, she is sitting with her feet in a basin of cold water (the thermometer says 86 deg.), while she reads "Little House in the Big Woods".

Most days at noon we sally forth to Amos' boarding-house, where for an hour we rejoin the world and have our dinner. All the usual types are to be met there. Age, enjoying the mountain air; Youth, busy with sports or love; Motherhood, trying to find rest if not peace; adventurous Childhood, bronzing in the sun; Middle-Age essaying all these. In short, Shakespeare's Seven Ages are all visible — well, no, perhaps not the Seventh. My editor being a circumspect person, we'll pass on, but even he cannot object to my philosophizing on the passing crowd. If Socialism brings in a brave new world, where everyone has more money and leisure — and if our schools pursue our present trend of teaching more and more practical subjects — with what will our leisure be filled? Even bridge and swimming must eventually pall. I leave the problem with you.

The afternoons are filled with siestas, more work, and tea. The work is nearly always fruit picking, so that when the fire is laid for tea, the syrup can be made. Then the fruit is processed in the oven after supper while the fire dies down. Between tea and supper, we swim or drive over the many beautiful mountain roads. Sometimes the drive ends in a supper cooked over an open fire, beside some lake or stream, with the curious squirrels protesting each mouthful. Driving home, it is not uncommon to be obliged to stop the car while a partridge shepherds her chicks to the side. Very tame they are all summer. But in September, lo, there are no partridges! One of the funniest things I ever saw was a partridge sitting on a stump, happily watching two hunters eating their lunch. Around them were stacked their guns, red caps and all the usual gear of their avocation. When the partridge took flight at the sight of our car, he did so noiselessly, a feat I had always supposed impossible for a partridge.

In the long summer dusk, I like to walk about our acres, visiting beloved haunts or checking on the berries and flowers. Just now all the small fruits are beginning to ripen. In two weeks we shall be very busy. Meanwhile, the roses are rioting and the bed of foxglove reminds one of those pictures of English gardens, all mauves and pinks. The bergamot near them is just coming into its prime. "Bergamot, Oswego Tea, Bee Balm", says my herb book, "is used industrially as an oil in perfume, hair-tonic and pomade to mask odor of iodoform, napthalene and other evil-smelling chemicals". It has medicinal uses as well, and in the index is listed under Herbs for Tea, Fragrant Herbs of Canspicuous Foliage, Herbs for a Bee Garden. It is certainly conspicuous, not to say fantastic. It always reminds me of pins stuck in a red pincushion. Just when one becomes accustomed to that, another blossom rises on a little skinny support above the other. Bruise the leaves, and a subtle blend of sage, mint and camphor is released. Altogether, an intriguing plant

As I return to the house I often meet Haile Selassie on his evening prowl. He may greet me affectionately, or he may give me an aloof look and melt away into the shadows, for dusk is a cat's hour of enchantment.

Thus the days glide by, with occasional visitors coming and going, and a weekly trip to Lachute to vary the routine. When September comes, only the thought of the many week-ends before snow comes, keeps me from sobbing noisily as we lurch down the mountain road toward the smoke-pall of Montreal and the other delights of urban living.

W.I. Scholarship in Home Economics, Macdonald College

In memory of the late Mrs. Alfred Watt, M.A., M.B.E., past president of the Associated Country Women of the World, the Quebec Women's Institutes are planning a scholarship in the School of Home Economics, Macdonald College. At the recent annual convention of the Q.W.I. the decision was made that $50 would be awarded annually to a deserving student from the rural district of Quebec. Full particulars on raising the necessary fund are being sent to all county organizations of the Q.W.I.

Mrs. Watt, the Canadian woman who took the Women's Institute to Great Britain in 1915, from where it spread throughout the Commonwealth and many countries of Europe, was later responsible for uniting these groups, and similar ones in the United States, in an international organization, the Associated Country Women of the World. She became its first president in 1933, resigning that office at the last triennial convention in Amsterdam, 1947. She was ever keenly interested in the problems of rural women and made it her life's work to promote every agency which would help raise the standard of living for country women the world over. The Q.W.I. feel their proposed scholarship will perpetuate, in some small measure, this unfailing concern of Mrs. Watt, and her earnest desire for improvement in rural living.

ALONG THE FAIRWAYS

Lachute Golf Club
Special Commentary

Much has happened along the fairways in two weeks, most of it covered elsewhere in this issue.

Congratulations are due here and there. To Normand Pesant for his terrific hole-in-one on the 215-yard 17th. To Jack McIndoe for his consistently good golf and win in the Purvis Cup finals here. To Jack Archer for a bang-up round of golf in the Rawdon Open last Sunday and a 74-tie with Bill Kerr of Beaconsfield. To Roger Gravel for his business-like finish in the Pro-Amateur here last Friday. Roger did it under strong pressure from a bunch of kibitzers and then tossed his ball into the gallery with professional nonchalance. And we had been watching Bill Kerr!

Congratulations also to our pro, Jack Archer, and our captain, Hugh Kerr, for a good show that Friday afternoon. The pros found the course a bit on the tough side, but had nothing but praise for its sportsmanship.

* * *

Plans are well under way for The Tournament on August 27-28. Jules Huot predicts 68's for Middlecof and Alexander and there is doubt in some quarters that they can do it. We'll give Middlecof 71 and Alexander 70. They might hit their 68's if they played a second round, which they won't, of course. Come out and see the best golf that can be seen anywhere. These boys play nowhere else in Canada this year. More news of them later.

* * *

Ladies are respectfully requested to play the nine not in use for sweepstakes on Thursday evenings. Please check at the pro shop to learn where the 'stakes are being played, and then start on the other half of the course. We thank you.

* * *

Did you stake that claim in Bonanza yet? The stuff is there all right, and claim registration fees are low. Enquire at the bar. Surface exploration is well under way and shaft sinking should commence soon. Another Quemont?

* * *

The club would like to see a big turnout for the inter-club matches with Islesmere next Sunday. C-I-L Ammunition Division holidays start next Saturday, and many of our members will likely be hitting the trail for distant places. Turn in your name to the match committee.

* * *

And make a date for the mid-summer dance August 6; a good time assured.

And always smooth that sand!

At Mooney's Log Cabin

The main event of the week at Mooney's Log Cabin was a masquerade, with the following prize-winners in the various classes:

CHILDREN

Most Original — 1st Judy Abbott (Fairy Queen); 2nd Rosemary McLaughlin (Little Bo-Peep).

Comic — 1st Larry Abbott (Defeated Chump); 2nd Elaine Franklin (Daisy Mae); 3rd Carol Hyde-Clarke (Huckle-Berry Finn).

* * *

Bowling winners were Betty Marks, Alice Franklin, Hector Gratton, and Bill Huxsel, (capt.).

One big inning proved the downfall of Mooney's in the two men's softball games with Colford Lodge, the latter winning by scores of 15-7 and 21-16. But Mooney's girls won 10-7.

* * *

At the masquerade party, Alice and John Franklin were honored during the grand march on their ninth wedding anniversary.

The Virginia Reel, Cokey-Okey and Bumps-a-Daisy have become popular additions to the Saturday night barn dance frolic. A weiner roast was included last Saturday night.

* * *

The addition to the main lodge is nearing completion and will add materially to the accommodation for guests.

(Doings of the previous week-end appear on page two — no edition of The Watchman having been published last week.)

CARLING'S CONSERVATION CORNER

Canada's national animal, the beaver, is one of nature's most energetic conservationists. The dams they build help to hold back the rushing waters in the spring, storing them up for the dry summer months. Beavers and the dams they build should never be molested by unauthorized persons.
