Jubilant Scene, Impressive Tribute, at Coronation Beacon Fire Ceremonies

Uniformed Contingents Form Mass Parade To Boy Scout and Civic Commemoration

Until the evening hours on Tuesday, the Coronation Day holiday was observed quietly in Lachute, most residents following with interest the radio commentaries from London or viewing the glamor and pageantry of this great, historic occasion by television; in both cases the reception was excellent, conveying the deeply impressive and spectacular scenes in realistic manner.

Early in the evening, however, Lachute came to life in a big way — crowds assembling on Main Street, in parked cars and on the sidewalks, to view the parade preliminary to the celebrations in the High School grounds.

By another route a parade of decorated bicycles and fire equipment toured the streets, arriving earlier at the High School.

The procession proper got underway at the Legion Hall around 7.45 p.m. and the assembled groups presented a really creditable turnout. Ayers Band, in their colorful red tunics, led the way with martial music, immediately preceded by town and provincial police escort. Following were contingents of smartly uniformed Boy Scouts, Wolf Cubs, Girl Guides, Brownies, a large attendance of Legionnaires, and the Highland Cadets bringing up the rear.

The parade marched to the school grounds via Harriet Street, and formed in cordons around a roped section centred by the beacon fire.

The ceremonies were primarily a Boy Scout demonstration, and District Commissioner Linton W. Armstrong was chairman of the program. O Canada and God Save the Queen, played by the Ayers Band, opened the proceedings. The chairman proclaimed the Scout Council Fire ceremony underway, and Scoutmaster Basil Riddell set light to the beacon fire.

From the platform there were brief speeches by public representatives — Secretary-Treasurer Antonio Laurin extending a civic greeting on behalf of Mayor Dr. Jules Lafleur (unavoidably absent through sickness); Philippe Valois, M.P., giving a suitable message on the significance of Coronation and Commonwealth ties; and ex-Mayor Léopold Carrière representing W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., who "although absent in the flesh was present in spirit with this gathering". (Mr. Cottingham was also absent by reasons of health.)

Following two selections by the bandsmen, Gerard Lefebvre, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was called upon to announce winners of the contest for decorated bicycles.

Queen's Scout Scott Taylor read a biographical sketch of the Queen's life and accession to the throne.

Cubmaster Howard Jones took the microphone to lead the Cubs in their Promise, as part of the program in this nationewide Scout observance. Scoutmaster Basil Riddell similarly led the Scouts in their Promise, and President Doug Ogilvie, on behalf of Legion Branch 70, affirmed the veterans' allegiance and loyalty to the Queen.

The immense beacon-fire spread a cheery light on these ceremonies, which were interspersed with prayers for the Queen's reign. The chairman announced the conclusion of the program and Mr. Shirley McKyes led the singing of "God Save the Queen".

From a vantage point at the mountain look-out, in prominent view from the school grounds and the entire town, a spectacular fireworks display terminated this fine demonstration. A street dance on the playground was enjoyed by a number who remained for this diversion. Music was provided by Wayne Riddell at the piano, Frank Boyd and Glen Copeland, instrumentalists.

Much credit for the smooth operation of this mass gathering is due to Lieut. Gordon Tabrett of the Highland Cadet unit, who was coordinator and organizer of the demonstration, and marshal of the parades.

Winners of Prizes For Decorations

The Chamber of Commerce awards for decorations were won by the following:

Bicycles — Gary Cruise, André Dumant, Kent Ascala, Paul Lamarche, Brent Phillips, Bryan Noble.

Best-Decorated Store Window — F. E. Earle, Main St.

Best-Decorated Homes

Mr. and Mrs. M. Peters and Mrs. L. Nymark, living in adjoining homes at 326-328 Bedard Blvd. (These decorations, illuminated at night, will remain over the week-end for public view.)

Among those deserving special mention for decoration of premises are: The Misses Hampton, R. H. Morrison, E. M. Jones, Mayor Dr. Jules Lafleur, Post-Office, Dominion Stores and Lachute Motors Sales.

Souvenirs

Souvenir buttons were handed out to children, by courtesy of Legion Branch 70, and in the local schools previous to the Coronation, special souvenir medals, sent out from Ottawa, were distributed to all children in commemoration of the occasion.

CRIME COMICS

In spite of laws governing this type of literature the flood of "lurid comics" depicting crime and sex continues to fill the newsstands. The laws of the country should be enforced and this type of literature banned from publication and distribution.

St. Andrews Country Club Reopen Saturday

The official opening of the St. Andrews Country Club will take place this Saturday.

The Club, which is located on the scenic peninsula at St. Andrews East, was originally opened around 1930 and was the scene of many popular golf tournaments until it closed down three years ago.

Such ideal golf terrain was, however, not to be denied keen competitors for long. A group of gentlemen from Montreal and this vicinity, headed by Antoine Paré, Advocate, took over the Club last fall and completely reorganized it. The reopening of the St. Andrews Country Club is welcome news to golf enthusiasts in this area.

Mr. Paré has announced the following program for Opening Day:

The course will be open for play at 9 a.m. Jim Seeney, the club professional, will be on hand to greet everyone and to provide a few "tips" for those who have never matched their skill on the course. Special prizes will be awarded to the players turning in the best scores.

A motor launch will be available to take visitors on short cruises around the peninsula. The Club property has over six miles of frontage on the Ottawa and North Rivers, so that the cruise will enable visitors to appreciate the attractive locale of the Club.

A buffet supper will be served from 6 to 9.30 p.m. Paul Dandurand, owner of "Drury's" and "Café Martin" in Montreal, is chairman of the House Committee and is in charge of arranging the supper. Music will be provided during supper and afterwards for dancing, by Bryan Shea and his orchestra.

Miss Ruth Bradley, of St. Andrews East, has been appointed receptionist at the Club House.

The Opening Day activities are open to members, their guests and all prospective members, but those intending to stay for the buffet supper are requested to advise the chairman of the House Committee.

Loaded Autobus Crashed Into Truck Transport

Considerable damage to an autobus in the local service, owned by Adrien Roy and driven by Claude Forgette, 24, both of Lachute, resulted when the brakes on the bus failed to hold. The bus collided with a parked truck owned and operated by Boyd's Lachute Express. There was no damage to the truck.

The accident occurred on Princess Street near the J. C. Wilson Paper Co., where the truck was unloading. Nineteen people were treated for minor cuts and bruises. Police Chief D. Villeneuve investigated.

General Meeting Of Morin Heights Ch. of Commerce

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The Chamber of Commerce general meeting was conducted by President A. Basler. The Chamber Council members present were Messrs. I. Allard, Lacken, St. Denis, Kneeland, Fitzpatrick and Cameron; and regular members, Messrs. Wade, K. Binns, Wirthmiller, Green, J. Basler, and Mrs. Partridge.

In a discussion on the lake project, there was a lengthy debate as to the necessity of gauging the flow of water into the proposed lake. It was felt, however, that this would not be necessary, as the overflow of the lakes running into this area would be sufficient once the lake level was reached. A meeting of property owners on the proposed lake site was planned for May 27.

A public meeting is also to be held June 8 at 8 p.m., in the Bellevue Hotel, for discussion of the Business Tax.

Mr. Wade reported having inserted an advertisement in the Canadian Medical Journal, and he was authorized by the meeting to handle all correspondence and details with regard to obtaining a resident physician for this community.

It was reported, by the committee assigned to this detail, that the Welcome sign had been duly erected.

Mr. Kneeland gave a report on the preparations being made for Coronation Day. He stated that there would be flag decorations for the municipal building, flags for the children, medals for the school children and some for sale to the public, and a fireworks display at night. There will also be a parade to the school and, if it can be arranged, a movie for school children, in the theatre. Mr. St. Denis offered to haul the wood for the bonfire, and Chas. Baumel, Ted Seale and A. Pagé were appointed for special police duty on this occasion.

H.S. Year Book Now Published

1953 Lampada Is Creditable Edition

The 1953 edition of Lampada, annual publication of the Lachute High and County Schools, is just off the press and is now on sale to the public.

The excellent quality of this magazine during the last few years is again evident this year. The coverage of activities at the Lachute High is complete, with several special features added. The County School Section is even larger and more inclusive than last year.

The pictures include graduates of all schools of the County, as well as every important organized group.

All in all, the 1953 Lampada provides a record of much that has been going on in the schools of Argenteuil and Two Mountains during the current school year, together with interesting articles, facts and pictures.

This magazine is a credit to the students and teachers who have worked and planned for months to produce it. Its educational value and interest are such that a copy should be in every home in the community.

The 1953 Lampada, with its attractive blue cover, is now on sale at various places in Lachute and in all the schools of the County, and the public are invited to support this valuable student project by purchasing a copy.

Moose Seen On Highway

A large moose was sighted on the Brownsburg Road Tuesday morning by Elmer Bazinet and three men engaged in building his new house. The animal came down from the Sinclair Road, a gravel montee on the north side of the highway, and the clatter of hooves sounding on the pavement attracted the workers' attention. They looked up expecting to see a stray horse. Just then a car approached on the highway, and it is reported the moose leaped a fence into Gordon Hay's farm land.

Identical Cars In Collision

Hawkesbury, June 1 — Two 1953 model steel-bodied station wagons of identical make and color were completely wrecked and two men painfully injured in an accident on McGill Street in Hawkesbury Saturday night.

Admitted to Notre Dame Hospital were: Cleridain Filion, 20, and Maurice July, 19, both of Hawkesbury. Filion suffered a bad shaking up and deep head cuts, while Joly was treated for a broken arm and fractured ribs.

The accident occurred Saturday evening on McGill Street. Filion apparently lost control of his vehicle and crashed into an identical station wagon parked in a laneway. The owner of the parked vehicle, Danise Gauthier, of Hawkesbury, was not in his car at the time.

Stage Set for Bumper Exhibition

Heigh-ho! Come to the Fair

(Contributed)

Although the cultural influence of a Fair may be rudely ignored by many, the fact that our County Fair has been steadily growing since it was first established on its present site in 1877, and now plays, during Fair period, to a gross attendance of some 35,000, must at least affect the tastes and attitudes of some.

It is not strange that the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, which has the heavy duty of operating the Lachute Spring Fair, has the promotion of Agriculture first and foremost in its mind, for sage men have long realized the importance of Agriculture to any nation. Johnathan Swift, too, must have thought along these lines when over 200 years ago he wrote that 'whoever could make two ears of corn or two blades of grass to grow upon a spot of ground, where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind and do more for essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together.'

The Argenteuil Agricultural Society goes all out to make our Fair just as splendidly big and noisy and uninhibited as any Fair could be!

As Lachute Spring Fair goes, so goes the people's willingness to step right up and win a kewpie doll; buy the soda pop, floss candy and midway hamburgers; resist sunstroke and fallen arches; endure the midway band playing those absurdly loud stereotyped tunes that we all know but can never identify. Yes, and even the young and the old love and laugh at the clowns who perform mad and improbable doings.

By tradition, the chief drawing card of this great event, the glossiest item in its show window, is the varied displays to be seen from the grandstand. Who can resist watching the cattle parade,

2 Police Cases Over Week-End

Albert Doré, a 36-year-old Cornwall, Ont., resident, was placed under arrest by Chief D. Villeneuve and Cst. W. Lepine, after attempting to molest a seven-year-old girl in Mountain View last Saturday.

Doré was chased and captured by the father of the girl and two neighbors, and turned over to the local police who had answered the call. He was later placed in charge of Det. A. Graham, of the Provincial Police Morality Squad.

Clement Obertin, 28, of Montreal, was taken into custody Saturday, for selling without a permit. He was later released on $20 bail, which was forfeited when the man did not show up in court.

When arrested, Obertin was selling religious pictures — claiming their sale was to finance his last year at college.

Special Meeting Of Town Council

A special meeting of the Lachute Town Council was held Wednesday, May 27, all members being present with the exception of Ald. W. S. MacKimmie.

Messrs. Joseph Constantineau, Cyprien Durocher and Charles Meighan were appointed assessors for the town.

A $50 contribution was granted to the Lachute Legion to be used for decorations and fireworks for Coronation Day. Free fire protection was granted to the Township of St. Jerusalem for June 2 only, as a precaution against any fires that might be started by the fireworks.

It was moved by Ald. H. G. Beaulieu, seconded by Ald. D. G. MacRae, that the street bearing cadastral No. 2091 be named Cloutier St. in memory of the Rev. Father Cloutier.

Aldermen Beaulieu, Cousineau and MacRae were authorized to hire the necessary men to take the town census.

It was moved by Ald. W. Cousineau and seconded by Ald. R. Morrissette that tenders be called for auditing the town books.

The financial report for the year 1952 was accepted by Council.

Beacon Fire And Ceremony At Brownsburg

Brownsburg — In keeping with the suggestion that beacon fires be lit wherever there were Boy Scouts throughout the British Empire, a committee headed by John Connelly was responsible for the ceremony in Brownsburg community, held at the rear of the Consolidated School.

Guides, Brownies, Scouts, Cubs and members of the Legion Branch, including the Ladies' Auxiliary, paraded to the site.

The beacon fire burned throughout the proceedings, and a fireworks display concluded the event.

D. U. Findlay acted as m.c., while the Rev. N. H. Brock, the Rev. S. J. Pike and Mr. King Amos also took part in the ceremony.

Fire Chief A. W. Robbins and his men were on hand, but had to restrain their desire to put the fire out. Police Chief Parent assisted by controlling traffic.

RALLY HELD AT FAIR GROUNDS BIG OCCASION IN PROGRAM OF DISTRICT SCOUT-GUIDE ACTIVITIES

Probably the most successful event in the five Rallies held successively each year at Lachute Exhibition Grounds, brought together last Saturday a large turn-out of Scout, Guide, Cub and Brownie groups and leaders, with various provincial and divisional officials, to prove the movement vigorous and thriving throughout the Laurentian Division. It was the largest Rally here on record. The campsites were a credit to orderliness and good housekeeping, the displays evidenced some original and ingenious ideas, and the craft routines showed skilful performance — behind all of which was the patience and enthusiasm of sound leadership, which deserves unstinting tribute for its achievement among community youth.

Groups were present from — Brownsburg, Lachute, Grenville, Shawbridge, Laval West, St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, Ste. Rose and Rosemere.

The organized competitions were not lacking in that element of showmanship to make them interesting to the well-filled grandstand of spectators. The program was carried out expeditiously, with a public address system for announcement and commentary on the afternoon events, for which Barrie Elliott, of Brownsburg, was the Rally Marshal. The Montreal Boy Scouts Band gave a fine performance at intervals from the bandstand.

District Commissioner Linton W. Armstrong, of Lachute, introduced the guests and visiting officials seated on the platform, some of whom spoke briefly, extending congratulations and voicing greetings to the District Scout Movement. The introductions included:

Clarence Blake, Asst. Provincial Commissioner (who has been in Scouting about 35 years, formerly Commissioner of Sherbrooke District, and awarded the Silver Acorn by Viscount Alexander, then Governor General).

Robert Simons, Commissioner of Scouts in San Francisco (holder of Silver Buffalo, a Scout for 20 or 25 years, and now a member of Quebec Provincial Council).

Cyril Dendy, Executive Provincial Commissioner.

Mrs. T. E. Pattison, Laurentian District Guide Commissioner.

Miss E. D. Young, Provincial Records Secretary and Chairman of the Montreal Camp Committee.

Mrs. MacDougall, Divisional Commissioner of the Viewmount Division, Montreal.

Miss Josephine McGillivray, Divisional Trainer, Montreal.

Mrs. V. Bray, Divisional Trainer, Montreal.

James Reid, vice-president of Laurentian District Council.

Barrie Elliott, Brownsburg, Rally Marshal.

Antonio Laurin, representing the Mayor of Lachute.

The Rev. G. T. Spriggs, former Provincial Commissioner of P.E.I.

Scout and Guide Commissioners took the salute in the March Past, which was an impressive prelude to the afternoon's proceedings.

Ringing Sincerity In Service Club Toast to Queen

Police Chief D. Villeneuve Gives Occupational Talk

The regular ritual of toasting the Queen took on a note of special sincerity at the Lions Club on Monday, the eve of Coronation, at the Legion Memorial Hall. Ex-President Phil Roy was toastmaster on this auspicious occasion, and eloquently stressed the significance of the Crown in uniting people of the British Commonwealth with a mutual bond for strength and good. The clubmen responded with fitting sincerity.

Lion Bertrand L'Heureux presided, and Police Chief Donat Villeneuve gave the occupational talk of the evening. He recalled humorous sidelights in his experience as chief of the town police force since 1944, paying tribute to those who had advised and assisted him. Police duties, he stated, were particularly gratifying insofar as they afforded ceaseless opportunities to extend a helping hand, especially to the younger citizenry. He deplored the lack of suitable playgrounds for the kiddies. During the summer season the playgrounds of both local High Schools had been barred to the children; and he suggested, as a worthy club project, the employment of a recreation supervisor in each case, so that these grounds might be kept open during the summer vacation.

In criminal work, Chief Villeneuve had become reconciled to defence lawyers, whom he had considered "an abomination" in his earlier court cases. Counsel for the accused was essential in the interests of all-round justice and fair evidence, he had found. . . In traffic offences, he considered the policeman's role as that of a persistent educator. Even traffic "tickets" were a means of education, rather than a penalty, to those who were slow to heed a warning.

Chief Villeneuve's prize was won by Ernest Snadden, who will be next candidate for this instructive feature in the club's program.

Leopold Carrière, committeeman, reported progress on ticket sales for the golf tournament and car drawing. The Lions will be on hand at Lachute Spring Fair to boost this project, and they anticipate the public's generous support.

Willard M. Steeves and Don Titman were appointed official delegates to the Lions International convention in Chicago.

ATLANTIC BRIDGE

London — What is perhaps the only bridge over the Atlantic Ocean is nearing completion. It stretches from the Isle of Lewis to Great Bernera, both in the Outer Hebrides, across Loch Roag — an arm of the Atlantic. It has been built chiefly to enable the islanders of Great Bernera (population 500), a lobster fishing centre, to get their lobsters to market swiftly. The bridge will also help in pasturing out the sheep, as part of the Island's grazing lies on the mainland of Lewis and in the past the sheep had to be taken across in boats, while the cattle swam.

Teachers' Assn. Hears Topic on Child Adjustment

The Argenteuil and Two Mountains Teachers' Association held the final meeting of the school year in the Lake of Two Mountains High School on Thursday, May 28. Many teachers who had not previously visited this school had the opportunity of seeing and admiring its modern equipment and well-appointed rooms.

The most important item of business was the election of the following officers for the next term:

President, F. H. J. Royal.

Vice-president, Miss E. Stanton.

Secretary-treasurer, Miss R. Primmerman.

Chairman of Athletic Committee, P. Grant.

Chairman of Program Committee, Mrs. V. Armstrong.

Delegates — Mrs. C. French, G. Langille, D. Potts.

After the business meeting, Principal King Amos introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Skitch, Assistant Medical Superintendent of the Verdun Protestant Hospital, who gave an enlightening address on "Mental Health and the Child in the Classroom". Dr. Skitch, a graduate of the University of Alberta, taught school for a short time early in his career. He later studied in London and Vienna and is well-qualified to discuss problems of child adjustment. The speaker also showed an excellent film depicting some of the difficulties of the shy child, and illustrating ways of helping to overcome his abnormal behavior so that he may grow up to be a well-adjusted member of society.

Miss Kidd thanked the speaker and expressed the sincere appreciation of all for an interesting and instructive talk.

After the meeting was adjourned, the staff of the Lake of Two Mountains High School served refreshments in the school cafeteria.

Gatineau LINES

Changing Fuses

Everyone should know how to change a blown fuse but there are certain safety rules to be observed.

1) Pull the main switch so that all power is cut off. Use a flashlight or lamp until the power is restored.

2) A blown fuse is usually identified by its blackened face.

3) Remove the dead fuse and read the number on it. This tells you the current capacity of the fuse.

4) Put in a new fuse of exactly the same current capacity. If you don't have one of the same capacity, use one with a lower capacity until you get the right one. Otherwise you run the risk of allowing more current on the circuit than it was built to take.

5) Push the main switch again to restore service.

Gatineau Power Company

Shortcut for Cuttings

There's an easy and improved method of starting roots on branch cuttings from ordinary plants. Horticulturists who have tried it are keen on the results.

All you do is take a small sheet of polythene film about seven inches square. You can buy sheet polythene in dry-goods stores or, easier still, use that which is appearing more and more these days as wrapping for fruits and vegetables.

Squeeze a handful of wet sphagnum moss lightly to remove water and place it on the polythene film. Make your cutting in the usual manner and nestle the base nearly to the bottom of the moss. Bring up the side of polythene and place a rubber band around them so as to enclose the ball of moss. The upper portion of the branch and the leaves are not covered by the polythene, of course.

Now place the wrapped plant in high humidity and keep the temperature about an even 70 degrees Fahrenheit. No watering will be needed during the two or three weeks required for foot formation.

Major advantages of this method are these: The time of rooting and quality of the roots can be seen easily through the polythene and the cuttings will root a little faster than bench cuttings made at the same time. Another is that disease is less likely to occur in the plants.

Here is another use of polythene in horticulture: Before you go away on vacation this summer, wrap a sheet of polythene around a flower pot and bring the ends together, securing them with an elastic band at the base of the plant. This way, the plant can go for more than two weeks without watering.

Seasonal Farm Topics

Maintaining Yields Of Hay Crops

Ottawa — The results of a project carried on at the Experimental Farm at Nappan, Nova Scotia, are of value to the farmer who is planning a grassland program, states E. T. Goring, Agronomist at that Farm.

In this project stands of timothy and red clover were established and harvested for a number of years. Some plots received no treatment, others four hundred and fifty pounds of a 4-12-6 fertilizer, and still others 12 tons of manure per acre. Applications were made every third year.

Top dressing with the manure maintained yields at a satisfactory level for six years, but the production where fertilizer was applied was only about midway between the manured and the untreated plots and was not satisfactory.

Another important finding of this project was that after four years of hay, the composition of the vegatation changed quite rapidly from timothy to less desirable grasses such as brown top and blue grass. The change was slowed where the manure was applied, and most rapid on the untreated plots.

This shows that on seedings of mixed hay of the species most commonly grown, the yield of hay crops can be maintained with top dressings of manure for four years without any marked deterioration in the kind of hay produced.

The recommendations of the Nappan Experimental Farm — the practice that has been followed there with excellent results — is to apply fertilizer and lime if needed, to the grain crop that is seeded down. This is followed with a top dressing of manure at about 12 tons per acre on the clover in the autumn after the grain has been removed, and again two years later.

A planned program of this kind will go a long way in maintaining satisfactory yields of hay crops.

Safeguard Yourself Against Poison Ivy

Are the immune to poison ivy? Don't be too sure! E. G. Anderson, Division of Botany and Plant Pathology, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, says a person may work in or with poison ivy for years, or even handle the plants, without ill effects. Sooner or later, however, these apparently immune individuals usually become susceptible.

You can safeguard yourself and your family by learning to recognize it and by knowing what to do for any one who accidentally comes in contact with it.

Mr. Anderson has prepared a circular that tells how to identify the plant — it is the only native Canadian plant with a three-parted leaf and white fruit. He tells where it grows, how poisoning occurs, precautions to prevent the poison taking effect, and what to do for a person who has developed a rash from it. For this, he recommends a five-grain tablet of potassium permanganate dissolved in one quart of water. Apply the solution freely to the affected part and cover large areas of rash with gauze or cheesecloth kept moist with the solution. For the face and hands, to avoid staining them with the permanganate solution, he recommends applying calamine lotion with one per cent of phenol added to relieve the itchiness. Oily or greasy substances are likely to dissolve and spread the trouble.

Better than treatment, however, is to get rid of the plants, and methods of doing it are described in detail. Small patches can be dug out. For larger areas, or where digging is not practical, some of the commercial weed sprays are effective. The ester of 2,4-D Ammate at the rate of one pound per gallon of water for each 100 square feet of foliage, or sodium chlorate mixed with a fire retardant will give control if persistently used.

Send for your copy of "Poison Ivy", publication 820, to Information Service, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

FARM CAREERS

There have been growing misgivings among statisticians that the average Canadian farmer is getting too old, the assumption being that youth is fleeing the farm for better opportunities in urban centres. The fact that boys nosed out veteran growers for the world's highest wheat honors last year indicates there are rich opportunities for youth on the farm.

Good Entry List At Ormstown Fair

Ormstown, Que. — Entries in the Ormstown Fair this week are near the 500 mark, including 129 Holsteins, 88 Ayrshires, 86 Jerseys, 77 Canadians, 12 Shorthorns and 59 calves in the junior farmers' show. Beef cattle entries, a new feature this year, include Herefords, Polled Angus and Beef Shorthorns. Ayrshires and Jerseys will be shown June 4, the other classes June 5.

Draft and breeding horse classes have attracted large entry lists, including several six horse Belgian and Clydesdale teams. Sheep and swine entries total more than 200 head. Harness horses will show their paces in three races, with nine heats, on each afternoon, June 4, 5 and 6.

The 65-event horse show lists 150 entries ,including many of the best hunters, jumpers, roadsters and saddle horses and ponies in eastern Canada and northern New York.

Dr. G. R. McCall, Lachute, and L. T. Porter, St. Andrews East, are noted among exhibitors in the horse show.

Improved Judging Of Holsteins

The last of six judging conferences for stock judges held in Ontario and Quebec and aimed at unifying the ideas of those judging this breed at shows in Eastern Canada, is being held at Macdonald College on July 17. Some twenty-five judges will work out their ideas on classes chosen from the college herd. These meetings have been organized under the auspices of the provincial Holstein Fresian Associations.

When Cutworms Threaten Garden

Practically all field and garden crops are subject to attack by cutworms in the spring, says H. McDonald, Entomologist, Insect Laboratory, Saskatoon.

Spring cutworms are fleshy, soft-bodied, dull-colored, hairless caterpillars that usually curl up and remain motionless when disturbed. When full grown they are about 1½ to 2 inches long. The upper half of the body is generally a darker shade than the under half and may vary with the different species from nearly colorless to almost black.

Most damage is caused by cutworms feeding on the stems or shoots at or just below the soil surface.

Poisoned bran bait is the common material used in controlling most spring cutworms that come to the surface at night to feed. The bait to easy to prepare and apply, and when properly used is very effective.

A satisfactory bait is prepared as follows:

Bran, 1 gallon; Paris Green, 2 tablespoons; Water, to moisten, about 1½ to 2 pints.

Mix the dry bran and paris green thoroughly. Then while stirring the poisoned bran, slowly add water until moisture will ooze between the fingers when a handful of the bran is squeezed.

Experiments in Saskatchewan indicate that chlordane and chlorinated camphene are better poisons than paris green for the red-backed cutworm, and baits are easier to prepare. Dr. McDonald believes they should be just as satisfactory in other parts of Canada, and probably for any species for which the paris green bait is recommended.

With this bait, paris green is replaced with chlordane, 40 per cent emulsion, not less than 3 tablespoons or 1½ fluid ounces. Or, if chlorinated camphene is used, the quantity is 4½ tablespoons or 2¼ fluid ounces of a 50 per cent emulsion. Mix the water and liquid poison together thoroughly and then stir into the bran as desbribed above.

The fresh bait should be spread just before dark on a warm evening when the temperature is 60 degrees F. or higher. If temperatures are suitable, baiting soon after a rain or an artificial watering has soaked in is especially satisfactory. Cutworms come to the surface more readily when it is damp than when the soil is loose and dry.

Bait should be broadcast thinly and uniformly over the area. The quantity given will cover about 400 square yards of graden. When spread in this way and without lumps, there is no danger to livestock, poultry or pets.

Monreal, June 1 — Harris M. Sherwood has been appointed sales manager of the ammunition division of Canadian Industries Limited, it was announced today. He succeeds John Francis who has been appointed sales manager of the polythene division.

Mr. Sherwood was graduated from the University of Alberta with a B.Sc. degree in chemical engineering. He is a member of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy and of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

His first position with the company was as a metallurgist at the Brownsburg ammunition works. He held a number of supervisory positions there and was in charge of production planning and work simplification prior to his transfer to the Brownsburg plant of Defence Industries Limited.

He was appointed superintendent of the Brownsburg D.I.L. works in December, 1940, and left this position a year later to become assistant works manager of the Brownsburg ammunition works of Canadian Industries Limited. In July, 1946, he was appointed works manager and held that post until April of this year when he was appointed assistant to the division manager.

Norm Somers Receives New C-I-L Appointment

Montreal, June 1 — Norman D. Somers, formerly assistant manager of the Canadian Industries Limited ammunition works at Brownsburg, has been appointed mechanical development manager for C-I-L's explosives and ammunition department.

A native of Newcastle, N.B., Mr. Somers studied civil engineering at the University of New Brunswick and joined C-I-L in 1934 as a maintenance engineer, transferring to D.I.L. in 1939. He returned to the Brownsburg works in 1944 as works engineer and became assistant works manager in the following year.

Mr. Somers was placed in charge of the mechanical development program for the ammunition division last autumn. This new appointment will result in a broadening of his activities to include mechanical development projects for the explosives division.

The Crown A Symbol of Unity

THE SOLEMN ceremony in Westminster Abbey was the focal point of the Commonwealth's Coronation observance. But the great show of Commonwealth unity lies in the Coronation celebrations held in towns and villages from Australia's "outback" country to Canada's northland.

White, black and yellow-skinned people, half a world away from London, joined in expressions of their loyalty and devotion to the crown.

Crowds attended the national observance on Parliament Hill at Ottawa where the Governor-General was the central figure. Festivities in many parts of the country however had their own peculiar flavor for thousands who a generation ago or less, owed allegiance to another ruler.

Immigration, after two world wars, brought thousands of Eastern and Central Europeans to Canada. The fact that these people joined in the celebrations is indicative of the unifying force of the Crown.

The observance in Toronto was a good example. Special Coronation masses were held in such places as St. Vladimir Ukrainian Catholic Church, St. George's Macedonian Church and St. Elizabeth's Hungarian Church. All the national groups met later in the day for an ethnic group celebration in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, with dancing and singing of folk songs.

Similar celebrations took place across the country, other groups, arrayed in national costume, singing and dancing in honor of the Queen and the freedom they have found in their adopted land.

French-Canadians, whose forbears once fought against Britain, celebrated the day with customs as old as Canada. Montreal's thousands of church bells ushered in the day and soldiers fired a feu de joie at the height of the observance.

Art Exhibition

THERE IS a growing Art consciousness in this community, the retarded outcome of several efforts to conduct instruction classes over the recent years. We feel this town is now ripe for a public exhibition of amateur and professional Art works.

Our attempt, some years ago, to stimulate such an exhibit at the Carillon Museum met with no success. St. Eustache, under auspices of the Art Guild of Two Mountains and inspired by Miss Irene Adshead, has held two successful annual shows. Latterly a one-man display of professional paintings was organized by a church ladies' group in St. Andrews East; the event was cordially supported.

Lachute, it appears, has the talent and material, and the organizational resources to handle a project of this kind in a big way. An Art exhibition would be a cultural step in community life, and would encourage progress in this fascinating interest. The Watchman has planted the seeds of inspiration in a likely quarter, and we hope the idea will materialize before long.

Stores Fell Short

FOLLOWING exhortations to the public to decorate for the Coronation — voiced editorially, also by the civic authorities, and by the Chamber om Commerce through this journal — it was disconcerting to find the local stores in very short supply. Residents complained on Monday that no stores in the Main Street shopping section seemed to have anything to speak of, to meet the demands of would-be purchasers. We heard of some cases where shoppers had bought their decorations in Hawkesbury.

It's one of those things — an unfortunate circumstance in which one cannot wholly blame the merchants for lack of foresight. Lachute was late in organizing, there was no great evidence of public enthusiasm beforehand, and the market was problematical.

WHEN enough industrial workers, miners, farmers, fishermen, merchants, manufacturers, bankers, business men, self-employed operators, recipients of government cheques, taxpayers, professional people and politicians, practice the golden rule there will be peace and unparalleled growth, spiritually and materially. "Seek ye first" applies to each individual, and through each to all — says John Atkins in The Rural Scene.

The Mounties and Organized Crime

THE MOUNTIES generally get their man, but they would rather prevent crime in the first place. That's why the RCMP — becoming public-relations minded — has called for public resistance to a possible growth of gangsterism — syndicated crime.

In a revised edition of its book, "Law and Order in Canadian Democracy", the RCMP says Canada may well expect an influx of criminals from the United States. New and stronger laws may be needed to fight this situation, the Mounties say, but their effectiveness will depend in the final analysis on the public.

Two factors behind a possible move of U.S. gangsters to Canada are the current anti-crime drive in the United States, which may chase criminals north, and Canada's growth of population which could provide rich pickings for the underworld.

"Canada may expect increasing crime problems to parallel at least the rapidly-increasing population", the RCMP says. "And so long as there is crime, there will be attempts to build controlling syndicates."

That's where the public comes in. . . The all-important fact to remember, say the Mounties, is that the law cannot be changed any faster, or enforced any better, than the general community changes its opinions and beliefs.

"Given only a lowering of the standards of legislative bodies, courts and police; given the slightest leeway for corruption; and, above all, given a falling-off of public vigilance and morality, the vicious elements that create the problem could and would be a very real and firmly-entrenched threat to our national well-being."

Kitchen Narcotics

The RCMP has another warning too — this one about new synthetic drugs which can be turned out wholesale in any kitchen and which could seriously affect the fight against Canada's illicit narcotics traffic.

"Any unscrupulous chemist, possessing the known formulas and working in a basement laboratory, could produce large quantities of these drugs for the illegal traffic", the RCMP says.

Up to now the police attack has been directed at narcotics peddlers, more than at drug addicts. But this cannot end the problem. The fact that one illicit factory alone could turn out enough synthetic narcotics to supply the entire continent's underworld traffic "drives home a realization that the drug problem cannot be solved unless it is tackled at its very source — the addict himself", the Mounties say.

Cure, not punishment, is the way to cut down the number of addicts, the RCMP book says. The only way the problem can be stamped out is through a nation-wide plan aimed at "the roots of the problem" — the ending of drug addiction through cure and post-treatment control of the addict.

Lights in the Nights

ONCE AGAIN the suggestion has been made that freightcars should carry some sort of reflectors to warn motorists approaching railway crossings at night.

Something like this could be done at very little expense. Simple and cheap glass reflectors or special paint would be all that is necessary, thinks The Financial Post.

In a large number of crossing accidents, it it not the train that hits the motor vehicle but the other way round. And when one comes suddenly on a long freight sliding across a lonely road on a dark night, it is easy to understand why. After the engine has passed there is usually no more light at all until the caboose comes along sometimes a mile behind.

BOSSINESS in high places is due to take a beating in Denmark, where a national referendum will shortly be held to amend the constitution to allow appointment of "ombudsmen" to investigate complaints about bureaucrats who behave like autocrats.

A few "ombudsmen", strategically placed at various points in Canada where the concentration of bureaucrats is thickest, would be appreciated by the populace and could probably be arranged without amending the BNA Act. There would be plenty to keep them busy.

MONTREAL – MAELSTROM AND MILLSTREAM

By GEOFF.

"A MOST INGENIOUS PARADOX"

June 1 — How wrong can some people get? Well, take the case of Stanley Marchant and the aspiring choir boy, for example.

Almost 30 years ago, an ambitious British mother entered her seven-year-old son in the voice trials for choristers at St. Paul's Cathedral, London. The boy took his tests before Stanley Marchant, then the organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's. Known to his examiner only as "Candidate 17" the youngster was rejected. And the rejection slip, signed by Marchant, noted that "the boy's voice shows no signs of promise".

Any other woman might have accepted the decree of the organist. But not the mother of this particular lad. There were other Cathedral Choir Schools in England. Accordingly, the boy was entered for the trials at Hereford Cathedral. Here, he passed and was accepted.

From the moment of his entry into Hereford, the young choirboy began to confound the findings of Stanley Marchant. He showed great promise, so much so in fact that, before his voice broke, he had passed through several noted choirs to become chief soloist of the Royal Chapel of the Savoy. At the age of 15, he was appointed assistant organist of St. Matthew's Church, Oakley Square, in Camden Town. But that was just the beginning!

Upward and Onward

At the age of 21, the youthful organist took the examinations for his Bachelor of Music degree at the University of London. By a strange coincidence, the number assigned to him for the purposes of the exam was "Candidate 17". He passed with flying colors. And the man who first rejected him because he showed no signs of promise, affixed his signature to the sheepskin admitting the rejected choirboy to the degree of Bachelor of Music. Marchant, now Sir Stanley, had been dead wrong. But the chorister was ready to confound him even further.

Having acquired the title of Associate of the Royal College of Music, in addition to his Mus. Bac., the young man took the exams for the degree of Fellow of the Royal College of Organists. (Sir Stanley Marchant signed his name to that degree, also.) He became organist and choirmaster of St. Martin-in-the-Fields Church, London. And there, during the 1939-45 war, he came into touch with the officers and men of Canadian Military Headquarters.

Through his association with CMHQ, the organist became interested in Canada. When, therefore, the post of organist at Metropolitan United Church, Toronto, became vacant in 1946, he applied and was accepted. While in Toronto, although he was directing his own choral society and choir, he found time to lecture at the University of Toronto and passed his Doctor of Music exams as well.

In three decades, the lad with no promise has had a very promising career. Long since a polished musician, teacher, conductor and composer, he is still looking ahead to greater things. . . And his name? Sorry, I thought I'd mentioned it earlier. . . It's S. Drummond Wolff, organist and choirmaster of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal.

Weeds !

Weeds, Weeds, beautiful Weeds! Please stand aside while I put in my seeds. You got here first, I am forced to admit, nevertheless I don't like you a bit. You rob the carrots and peas that I cherish. I'm goin' to cause you to dry up and perish.

How can you thrive without any attention, reaching at last a gigantic dimension, waving your leaves of superior grade, putting my turnips and beets in the shade? Why should you think I am willing to pardon all of the damage you do to my garden?

Sheep-sorrel, Mullein and Dandelions, listen! You and the other weeds soon will be missin'. I'm goin' to pull you all up by the roots — big weeds and small weeds with soft, tender shoots. Creepers that creep to St., Paul and Sedalia, roots that extend down to Melbourne, Australia! I'll dig you out without begging your pardon if I just catch you infesting my garden.

Vetches and Milkweed, you're not wanted here. Out you go, all of you! Isn't that clear? This is my final and very last warning. Goin' to start weedin' first thing in the morning!

Be seein' ya!

Getting Back To Freedom

By Lewis Milligan

Lloyd George was a name to conjure with in British politics in the early days of the present century. Long before the First World War the little Welsh lawyer flashed into the political arena as a "stormy petrel" with his trenchant attacks on the aristocracy, and especially on Joseph Chamberlain who had left the Liberal Party over the question of Home Rule and was a leader in the Union Government. At that time no one would have supposed that the fiery Welshman would one day be Prime Minister in a Union Government, and would himself become a member of the aristocracy in the House of Lords.

These reflections were prompted by the sight of a picture of Mr. Lloyd George, Minister of Food in the Churchill Government. The picture appears in Westminster News, published by the Conservative and Unionist Central Office. The resemblance of the son to the father is striking, and what he is quoting as saying to the British people has the old Lloyd George forthright ring about it, thus:

"Of all the freedoms which the people want restored, not the least is freedom to buy what foods they like when they like, without my permission or anybody else's."

Canadians had some experience of food rationing during the war, but it was abundance compared with what the British people had to endure. With the end of the war in 1945 they naturally expected some relief from wartime restrictions, and to make sure — as they thought — they voted a Labor Government into power by an overwhelming majority, on the promise that Socialism would provide plenty for everybody. Rationing was to be abolished in a year by government economic planning and trading. Nationalized industries would eliminate the capitalist and the "profit motive". Utopia was just round the corner. But they never reached the corner.

When I visited Britain in the early summer of 1946, a year after the election of the Labor Government, I found people complaining that the rationing of food was more strict than during the war. A friend, who was an ardent Socialist, expressed to me his surprise and dismay at the situation. "We were told", he said, "that rationing would be stopped in a year's time, and now I hear that the government has ordered the printing of ration cards for next year!" Ration cards were printed for six years after that by the Labor Government and food became scarcer and scarcer. Millions of food parcels were sent from Canada to relieve the shortage.

The Churchill Government has been in office for a little over a year. In his address to the people as Minister of Food, Mr. Lloyd George gives an account of his stewardship. "Despite all the difficulties", he says, "we have tried to do away with rationing and give you an opportunity to spend your money as you like. As a result people are getting more red meat and bacon. Cooked gammon, ham, tea, eggs, sausages and sweets are off the ration. Real white bread again soon. The biggest move was the decontrol of cereals, freeing 20 trades. We believe that one sure way to kill a black market is to establish a free market."

In confirmation of these claims, I have received letter from friends to whom I have been sending food parcels regularly. In reply to my enquiry, one of these friends, a pensioner, writes: "Well, I think that people here look a lot more contented. There are more articles in the store and less queueing than there was a year ago. I was down town today and one has a job to get through the crowds that are shopping. The big stores were packed. Where is the money coming from? They say trading is falling off with other countries and that there is more unemployment. You would not think there was anyone out of work by the number of people shopping."

The British people may not yet be "out of the woods" economically, but they are seeing the light.

BANKING OFFERS CAREER-SEEKERS A SOUND FUTURE

Today, ambitious young men are finding that banking, as a life work, offers greater scope than ever before.

In recent years, leading banks like the Bank of Montreal have almost revolutionized the working conditions of their staff members. An increased use of mechanical aids has banished much of the dull, routine work.

Opportunities for promotion comes to promising young men far more often than it did to their forefathers. Finally, banking salaries now compare favorably with those in most other occupations. An even more favorable comparison can be made for the bank's pension plan.

That banking can be a satisfying vocation is emphasized by Donald Hay, manager of the Lachute B of M. "Good bankers", Mr. Hay points out, "get plenty of opportunity to be of real service to the community in which they live."

If you are interested in banking as a career, drop in for a chat with Mr. Hay tomorrow. He will be glad to outline the B of M picture for you and answer any specific questions you may have.

OBITUARY

Sherbrooke Lady Was Native of Louisa, Que.

Late Mrs. Edward Winslow

One of Sherbrooke's highly respected residents, Mrs. Isabella Matthews Winslow, wife of Edward J. Winslow, passed away at the home of her son, Douglas E. Winslow recently. She had been in failing health for nearly three years, and for the past six months was confined to her bed.

The funeral was held at the Johnston Funeral Home, Sherbrooke, on May 12, with the Rev. R. C. Tait officiating. The service was largely attended by relatives and friends. A special solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul", a favorite of Mrs. Winslow, was rendered by Mr. Fred Sangster, of Sherbrooke. The bearers were H. Griffith, B. Cote, J. Tomlinson, C. Gorden, J. Mitchell and T. Molyneux. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Interment took place in the family plot in Westbury Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Winslow was born in 1877 at Louisa, Argenteuil County, the third daughter of the late Thomas Matthews and Sarah Boyd Matthews. She spent the early part of her life in Louisa, until 1903, when she moved with the members of her family to the Eastern Townships. There she lived for the remainder of her life except a few years spent in Nashua, N.H., and Amesbury, Mass. On June 29, 1910, she was married at East Angus to Edward J. Winslow, of Nashua, N.H.

Mrs. Winslow leaves to mourn her loss, her daughter, Marjory Winslow Walton, of Port Hope, Ont.; a son, Douglas E. Winslow, of Sherbrooke; a daughter-in-law, Helen Winslow, and son-in-law, Frank Walton; and eight grandchildren. She leaves also five sisters and one brother, (Annie), Mrs. Thos. Campbell, Thos. Matthews, Jr., (Lottie), Mrs. William Rogers, (Lily), Mrs. Gilbert Crosbie, (Sadie), Mrs. Cecil Gilbert, and (Inez), Mrs. William Murphy. There remain also several nieces, nephews and cousins. Her only surviving aunt is Mrs. Stewart Boyd, of Lachute.

Mrs. Winslow was a woman of sterling character and fortitude, she will be sadly missed by her family and friends.

"We watched you suffer,
We heard you sigh.
We could do nothing,
But just stand by.
But when you left us,
We suffered too.
Because you did not deserve,
What you went through."

Come to the Fair!

or help admire the light and heavy horses step to the accompaniment of Ayers Band. We cannot help think, too, of how each owner has gone all-out to make this the best show yet. All will be watching eagerly to see the Belted Galloway cow and calf, the only two of this breed in Canada. The roller-skating acts by Mac and Mitzie, bicycle acts, acrobatic stunts — plus the horse races and the unpredictable antics of the two clowns, are sure to bring collective sighs of anticipation, cheers and roars of laughter from the crowd.

The many attractive and informative demonstration booths are always worth seeing; and a trip to the Fair would not be complete without viewing the handicrafts and show of luscious home-cooking in the main building. Here you will be able to view the Open class, Women's Institute and Cercle des Fermiere exhibits.

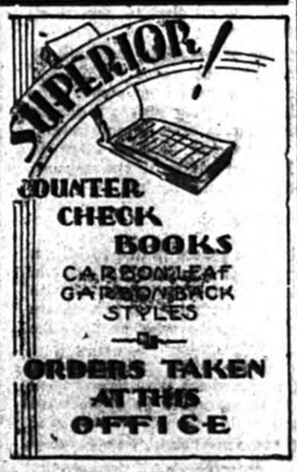

So, from June 10 to 13 it's — "Heigh-ho! Come to the Fair".

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Confirmation and Dedication by Bishop, Grenville Parish June 10

Grenville — The Rt. Rev. John Dixon, Lord Bishop of Montreal, will visit the Parish of Grenville on Wednesday evening, June 10, at 7.30 o'clock. The one service held in the parish during this visit will be the rite of Confirmation, the "laying on of hands", at Holy Trinity Church, Calumet.

Seventeen candidates will be presented for confirmation by the rector, the Rev. P. R. Stote. The Rev. Mark Beaufoy, rector of Montebello, will also present a candidate.

Dedication of Memorials

The Lord Bishop at the service will dedicate a handsome polished brass alms basin and a red burse and veil, in memory of the late Ida Dakin.

Extensive repairs and renovations are underway at Holy Trinity Church and it is expected that the major part of the work will be completed before June 10, the date of the Bishop's visit.

The members of the three congregations, St. Matthew's, Holy Trinity and Kilmar, and visitors, are heartily invited to attend.

Coronation Services In Mille Isles Parish

Morin Heights — A special service was held at Trinity Anglican Church, Morin Heights, on Coronation Sunday, and the Sunday School members, with their teachers, attended as a group. The rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, explained the importance of the religious part of the Coronation, and urged the people to serve God in a humble and consistent way.

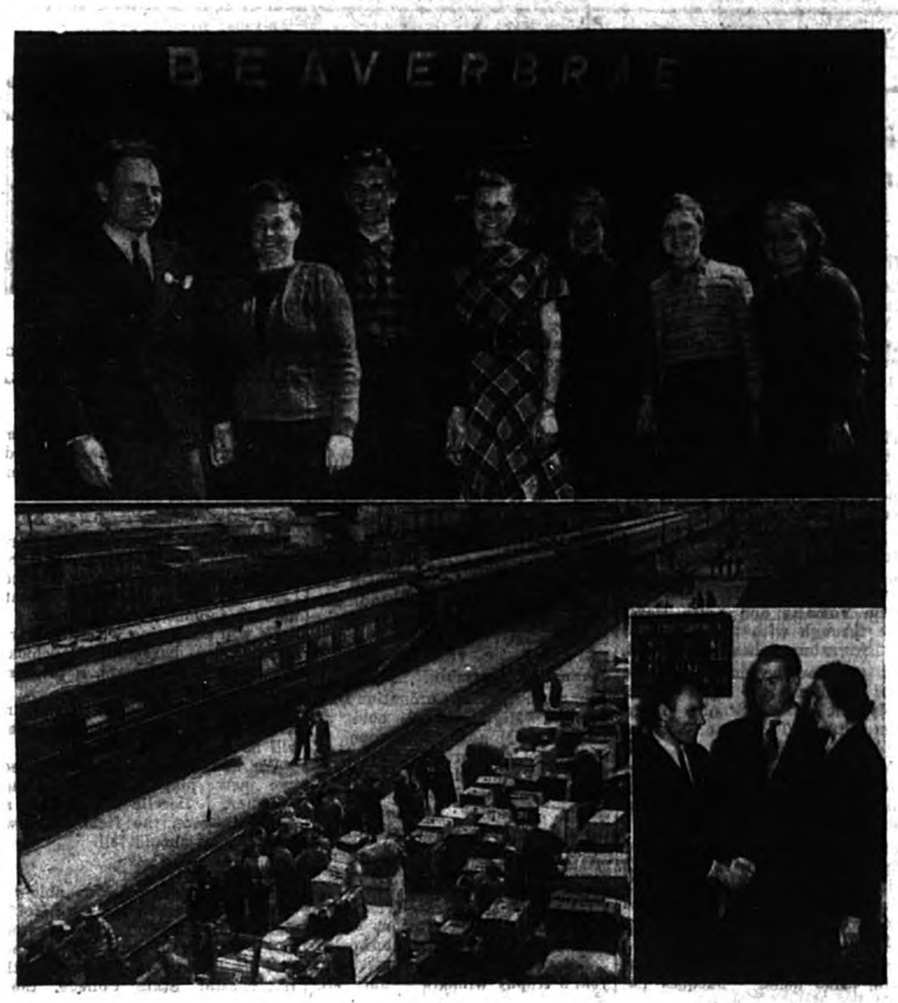

The Church of St. Francis in St. Sauveur was beautifully decorated last Sunday with Royal banners, recently brought from England and loaned for the Coronation service.

A large number attended the morning service, and in the afternoon a baptismal service was held, when the two sons of Cpl. James Stobie and Mrs. Stobie, of Piedmont, were given the names David Andrew and Robert William.

At Christ Church the rector spoke on the subject "Robed for a King", stressing the spiritual significance that could be taken from the Coronation.

PRAISE ZIONIST

Montreal (CP) — More than 1,000 men and women at a banquet here paid tribute to Samuel Schwisberg, Q.C., as "one of the driving forces in Canadian Zionism". The guest of honor, ill in hospital, received the words of praise by telephone and tape recordings.

LONG VOYAGE TO A NEW HOME — Just one of many thousands of Europeans who have emigrated to Canada for re-settlement in the post-war years is Alexander Holz, but he was also the 30,000th cleared through the Canadian Christian Council for Resettlement of Refugees. He is shown here (top photo) with his wife and five children just after disembarking from the Canadian Pacific's 9,000-ton immigrant vessel Beaverbrae at Quebec City following a trans-Atlantic voyage from Germany. The Holz family, who made the trip with about 800 other immigrants, then boarded a special Canadian Pacific train which is shown arriving at Lethbridge, Alta., almost the last stop on their long voyage to their new home at Coaldale. On the trans-Canada trip, there was a happy meeting in Winnipeg, Man., as Mr. Holz was introduced to Elisabeth Eck, who was the 10,000th immigrant to come to Canada under the auspices of the C.C.C.R.R. Miss Eck, who arrived in Canada in 1949, was introduced to Mr. Holz by Rev. C. L. Monk, of Winnipeg, executive secretary of Canadian Lutheran World Relief. The three principals in this little drama are shown in the picture at lower right.

Coronation Preview

By Willis Young

(Part IV)
(Conclusion)

The Coronation is now over — that great day to which the whole Commonwealth looked forward with such warm anticipation.

The Queen, in her Coronation message, said she could find no words to express how she felt about her subjects' loyalty and devotion to her.

There were many parts and procedures in the Coronation Ceremony. When the Queen entered the Abbey, following the long procession of dukes, duchesses, prime ministers, earls, viscounts, and page boys, she went to her Chair of Estate. The service started with the Recognition, the Queen standing beside St. Edward's chair while Dr. Geoffery Francis Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, turned to the Peers in the four transepts and said:

"Peers, I here present unto you Queen Elizabeth, your undoubted Queen. Wherefore all you who are come to do your hommage, are you willing to do the same?" Each time the Peers answered, "God save Queen Elizabeth"! and the Queen curtsied to each reply.

The long ceremony continued. The Queen received and kissed the Bible, and signed her name for the only time in her life that would mean she was making — as we may say, — a written contract with her peoples. Then there was the anointing, a rite considered too sacred even to be televised.

Elizabeth then began to receive the crown jewels — the emblems of her sovereignty. The robe and stole weighted with gold; the orb; the jewelled sword; the bracelets, which have been omitted for 300 years; the ring known as the "wedding ring of England"; the glove of white kid ornamented with the orders of the Garter and the Thistle; the septer; and the rod.

In the crowning of Elizabeth II, the climax of this great ceremony, the Archbishop first blessed the crown at the altar — and as I watched him place it on the Queen's head, I wondered if she was thinking of that other Coronation in 1937, when she saw this same St. Edward's Crown placed on her father's head.

And as she proceeded slowly up the nave, she surely, as she thought of the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret watching her from the Royal Gallery, must have recalled herself 16 years ago, then 11-year-old Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor, tugging at her mother's sleeve and saying, "Poor Margaret! I do hope she won't disgrace us all by falling asleep in the middle. After all, she is so very young! . . ."

All this must have revived old memories to the Queen Mother, thinking of herself and her late husband, together, receiving those emblems of monarchy.

Following the crowning, came the Act of Homage in which the Archbishop, the Duke of Edinburgh and the Dukes of the blood-Royal swore to be "thy leige lord of life and limb". The Archbishop kissed her right hand, while the Dukes kissed her on the left cheek and touched her crown.

The Communion, in which only the Queen and the Duke participated, took place before they entered St. Edward's Chapel.

After all this had ended, the peers and the peeresses filed slowly down the Abbey's nave. The Queen retired to the Annex for a rest and refreshment — before starting her five-mile return journey to the Palace.

As she appeared on the Palace Balcony later, she must have thought again of her younger self, a little girl waving to the crowds who cheered her Royal father and mother.

She then re-entered the Palace rooms, her Coronation message was broadcast; and her long tiresome, glorious day was over.

The Bells ring out in loudest tone;
The music sounds o'er all the land;
And we, the subjects of the Queen,
Do hope that she will keep her stand.

Now, since the Coronation's o'er,
The Queen her duties will resume;
With dignity excelled by few
She will go on — pierce future's gloom.

And, now, the thought of Monarchs gone —
The changes that they all had seen —
Induces us to say once more:
"Reign for long years! Long live the Queen!"

Wool Industry In Australia Worried About Synthetics

The wool industry in Australia, remembering what rayon did to the silk market, is now becoming anxious about plans being made in the United States, Britain, and other countries to increase the production of synthetic fibres. Despite assurances that "there is no substitute for wool", responsible persons in the industry are not treating the matter lightly.

Concrete evidence of their concern — and the resolve to do something about the threat — is a Bill introduced into the Federal Parliament about two months ago. The Bill provides both for "improving the production and increasing the use of wool". At the same time, £2¾ million has been transferred to the Australian Wood Board, now to be known as the "Australian Wool Bureau", to be used in promoting the use of wool. This money represents unexpended balances in various funds administered in connection with the wool industry.

Hope for the Dead

In an immortal soul? Or in a resurrection? What does the Bible say?

Doubtless everyone of mature years has lost one or more loved ones to the great enemy Death. May we entertain a hope for such? And if so, is that hope based upon man's having an immortal soul or upon a resurrection from the dead? As Job asked: "If a man die, shall he live again? (Job 14:14).

The greatest teacher of all time, Christ Jesus, said of the Bible: "Your word is truth". We shall therefore go to it for the answers to our questions. The Bible shows that Jehovah God, the great First Cause, created all things, including the earth and man; that he placed the first human pair in a beautiful garden and commissioned them to be fruitful, fill the earth and subdue it, and to have dominion over the lower animals; and that as a test of appreciation God commanded them not to eat of the fruit of a certain tree. Man, being perfect and a free moral agent, was fully able to obey that command. — Genesis 1: 1, 26-28; 2: 15-17; Deuteronomy 32: 4; John 17: 17.

Man and woman, lacking in appreciation, disobeyed and were sentenced to death and in course of time they did die, returning to the ground from which they had been taken. (Genesis 3: 1-19; 5: 5).

What Is Man's Hope?

That man's hope for life after death lies in his having an immortal soul is a belief as ancient as it is widespread. According to Herodotes, a pagan Grecian historian, the pagan Egyptians were the first who held to this belief.

By far the greater number of those professing to be Christians likewise hold that man's hope for future life lies in his having an immortal soul which at death goes to heaven, purgatory or hell-fire. Scientists have been unable to discover any evidence whatsoever that man has an immortal soul. There is absolutely no tangible proof to that effect. Admitting this, its advocates reply that they have Scriptural proof. But, we ask, does the Bible teach that man has an immortal soul?

In the Scriptural account of creation we do not read that man received a soul, but rather that upon creation man "became a living soul".

Since both man and the lower animals are souls, and since both die, it must follow that souls die; and that is exactly what the Bible unequivocally states. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die". (Ezekiel 18: 4, 20). Let my soul die the death of the just". "Every living soul dies in the sea." (Numbers 22: 10 and Apocalypse (Revelation) 16: 3, Douay).

If man is conscious after death, would not those who were awakened from the dead, such as Lazarus, who was dead four days, have had something to say about their unusual experience? But in death man is not conscious: "The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not anything" because "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in Sheol", the grave. — Ecclesiastes 9: 5, 10.

"THIS MEANS EVERLASTING LIFE"

Would you like to live forever under perfect and righteous conditions? If so, then the Bible study aid "This Means Everlasting Life" will interest you. Comes in beautiful red cover, gold-leaf stamped, and may be had on a contribution of 50 cents. — Watch Tower, 40 Irwin Ave., Toronto 5, Ont.

All Celebrations Excelled at Golf Coronation Event

Club Member Scores Golfers' Dream, Hole-in-One at Ninth

A hole-in-one by Dick Stevens helped celebrate the Coronation festivities at the Lachute Golf and Country Club in a two-ball mixed Coronation Tournament held Tuesday. There was an excellent turnout for both the tournament, which commenced in the morning, and the buffet supper later in the day.

Steward R. Jobin, Chef Jean Paul Guay and his assistant put on a spread unexcelled in local Golf Club celebrations. The buffet table extended the length of the ball-room and was elaborately decorated with various ice carvings, including a crown on a cushion and a large basket of flowers. These, as well as the general decorations and entire set-up, did credit to the Golf Club staff.

President Gilbert E. Ayers opened the buffet at 8.30 p.m. with appropriate sentiments in a toast to the Queen. The orchestra rendered music throughout the supper hour.

After playing the local course for many years, Dick Stevens' "golfers' dream" came true when he played a hole-in-one with a 7 iron at the ninth hole.

Winers in the tournament were:

1—Mrs. Norma Rogers and Mr. Ted Pirie.
2—Miss Joyce Tingley and Mr. Jim MacKimmie.
3—Mrs. Leonard Ayers and Mr. Frank Johnson.
4—Miss Helen Bedard and Mr. Glen Copeland.
5—Miss Mary MacKimmie and Mr. Royal Carrière.
6—Mrs. Gilbert Ayers and Dr. A. Kalfas.

Dick Stevens was presented with six golf balls for his hole-in-one, while the "most honest golfers" were Mrs. Claude Lamarche and Mr. J. Huggau.

SPORTS AND JUVENILE ACTIVITIES

High School Sport And Activities

By Anne Dwyer

Softball

Last Friday afternoon the Lachute softball team, coached by Mr. J. Martin, journeyed to Brownsburg after school, to defeat the Brownsburg team by a score of 13-11. The game was umpired by Mr. J. C. Hawes, replaced later by Mr. A. Peterson.

The only run for Lachute in the first inning was made by Bernard Golphin. However, Brownsburg came ahead with three points for themselves. Reggie Mason made the score 3-2 by the second inning.

John Roger tied the game in the top half of the third inning but Brownsburg's Jacques Leveillé, Melvin Tomalty and Keith Hazel came through with three runs to put Brownsburg ahead again, 6-3.

In the fourth inning Lachute made a comeback. Bill Cribb, Sandy McGibbon, Stanley Alexander, Stuart Thompson, Bernard Golphin, Bob Warwick and Jack McMartin shot the score up to 10-6 for Lachute. Brownsburg could not make a hit against Cribb's excellent pitching.

Stuart Thompson and Bernard Golphin made runs in the fifth inning for Lachute. Brownsburg's Keith Hazel, Brent Steele and Mander Gardiner brought the score to 12-9.

In the sixth Bill Cribb, of Lachute, came home. Jacques Leveillé and Melvin Tomalty came in for Brownsburg. Neither team was able to make any headway in the last inning. If it had not been for an excellent catch by Sandy McGibbon of Lachute, however, Jacques Leveillé might have upped the score for Brownsburg.

The Lachute team defeated Hawkesbury on Saturday afternoon, the final score being 24-12. The runs for Lachute were made by Jim Murdoch 4, John Roger 5, Bernard Golphin 3, Bob Warwick 4, Jack McMartin 2, Bill Bribb 1, Reggie Mason 1, Trenton Boyd 1, Stanley Alexander 3.

Lavalle 2, Hoffman 3, Parisien 2, Durocher 2, Charlebois 1, Turpin 1, and Shannon 1, scored the 12 points for Hawkesbury.

In observance of Coronation Day, Lachute High School held an assembly Monday afternoon in the school auditorium. Principal F. H. J. Royal led the assembly in prayer for the newly crowned Queen. McKyes, were sung representing various countries of the British Commonwealth.

Later Mr. Royal announced the year's trophy winners — Jack McMartin, hockey; Marilyn Mitchell, basketball; and the Maple Leaf Team, midget hockey. Mr. Bailly took the opportunity to distribute activity bars which had been purchased by the Students' Council.

None other than Andrew Herchick, scout for the St. Louis Cardinals, will immediately replace Len. Andrew is the man who sent us that famous Fred Hoffman.

He will also bring with him Barlow, a 3rd baseman; Rapchick, a pitcher, and Ricciani, a pitcher who also plays outfield.

Ted also announced that John Kraul, who pitched for Syracuse, will be in town shortly.

We had an opportunity to see two new players, Decelle and Hoffman. Decelle is certainly a good hitter in the field. A few more games should tell.

Fred Hoffman

Sunday morning I was able to talk to our new pitcher, Fred Hoffman, who seems to be well pleased to be with the Tigers. He stated that he learned his baseball with Westchester State College, then played with Cayuga, a Philadelphia Club. The crowd Saturday night was 100 per cent behind him for his wonderful performance against the famous Lachine hitters. He struck out 14 of them — even if Lachute did lose 10 to 9 . . Fred, the fans are all anxious to see you pitch again.

Not only a good pitcher, Hoffman took first base Sunday replacing Pearson and he showed that he is tops as an all-round baseball player.

Fred Bourbeau

Bourbeau, who was last year's pitcher for the Tigers, seems to maintain his reputation to date, for in four starts he has won four, for 1,000%. We're all cheering for Fred to hold the lead as best pitcher in the Laurentide League, especially as he is a product of our own province.

Fatter Purses in Harness Racing Game

SPORTS CAMERA

By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ontario and Quebec harness racing drivers are turning their love of the sport into a paying proposition around New York tracks. Night racing, with its larger attendance and consequently higher purses, is the lure.

All agree that Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceway, two harness layouts in the New York City area, are gold mines compared with their home tracks. Canadians are also doing right well at the Hamburg, N.Y., course near Buffalo.

There are at least a half-dozen topnotch Canadian drivers at Yonkers, for example, along with some good trotters and pacers from the Dominion.

Bill Harvey, whose 10 horses are regularly in the money, explained the big attraction south of the border.

"Around Norwich, Ont., where I come from, harness racing might be described as more of a hobby than a business. The biggest purses are $300 and you can't live on that."

Fatter Purses

At Yonkers an average card has purses ranging from $2,000 to $4,500. That's big money in the harness racing game.

Harvey, sold on the advantages of U.S. competition, has taken out his first papers for citizenship there. He expects to return to Canada once in a while to race, but only because Quebec has turned to night racing — with its larger purses.

Harvey thinks Canadian owners are crazy to stay in the Dominion with the kind of money that's being offered around New York.

Like most propositions, though, there's an "if" attached.

"Of course, you've got to be pretty sure you have good horses or you're murdered", he warned. "Quite often Canadians are forced to depart from New York before the season is completed. At least they can eat at home."

Perhaps the best Canadian horse at Yonkers is M.C. Rose, an eight-year-old trotter owned by Garnett Rowntree of Weston, Ont. Driven regularly by Harvey, it has been in the money more often than not.

Best known Canadian driver and most successful on U.S. tracks is Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont.

Seems he's in the sulky more often than out of it. He has 25 horses and drives for six owners.

Clint's brother, Dalton, also competes at Yonkers. Other Canadians there include Cecil Champion of Chesterville, Ont., Del MacTavish of Lachute, Que., Phil Dussault, of Ste. Marie, Que., and Lucienne Dionne of Drummondville, Que.

Dussault, 43-year-old veteran of the dirt tracks, has been driving standard breds for 27 years., Dionne, incidentally is a second cousin to Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets.

CURRENT SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Scouts and Guides Held Rally at Fair Grounds

The pioneering display and the badge parade were perhaps two of the most interesting presentations on the program before the grandstand — the latter giving scope to an originality which brought forth some intriguing costumes and ideas. In addition there were contests and displays pertaining to various Scout crafts such as semaphore signalling, camp fire lighting, and various games of intelligence in which the young groups are taught resourcefulness and teamwork.

The prize ribbons were afterwards presented by Asst. Provincial Commissioner Clarence Blake and Dis. Guide Commissioner Mrs. T. E. Pattison. District Commissioner Armstrong made a special presentation to troop masters and leaders in the area, as follows:

Rover Leader's Plume to Robert Herron.

Scoutmaster's Plume to H. Newmark, of Ste. Rose.

Asst. Scout Master's Plume to G. Lavallee, of Ste. Rose.

Asst. Scout Master's Plume to Peter Craske, of St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac.

Cub Master's Badge to Larry Bayly, of Rosemere.

Commissioner Armstrong cordially thanked all those who had assisted in the culmination of this successful program — the leaders, the group committees and numerous helpers, and the visitors. Angus Taylor, Rally committee chairman, Scoutmaster Basil Riddell and District Cubmaster Paul Villard, especially, had devoted much time and effort to the preparations.

It was a full day of activity for the youngsters and their leaders, who arrived at the grounds at 10 a.m., many travelling by chartered bus from the out-of-town centres. Campsites were established. At the noon hour, light refreshments were provided by the Brownsburg W.I. to supplement the children's lunches. Flag Lowering and the concluding ceremonies took place around 5 p.m. before the groups dismissed.

Craft Displays At High School

Many parents and friends visited the crafts displays at Lachute High School last Friday afternoon and evening, and were much impressed by the quality of work in Industrial Arts, Household Economics and Fine Art achieved by the pupils in these departments (including in the latter group a number of pictures by adult Art students).

In the school playroom were exhibits of carpentry, cabinet making and tinsmith work fabricated under guidance of the manual training teacher, K. Dixon. These included decorative and utility pieces with inlaid woodwork, lathe-turned lamps and metal lamps. Many visitors showed interest in the Industrial Arts room adjoining, with its many hand-tools and power-tools to afford a thorough groundwork in the subjects taught.

In the Household Economics room Miss B. Vrooman, the instructor, was on hand and received favorable comment on the many articles made by her pupils in dressmaking and needlecraft.

The Music Room was devoted to the display of 119 crayon, water-color and oil-color pictures my Miss Irene Adshead's school pupils and adult class, many of which presented interesting subjects and creditable talent. A number of prizes were awarded for children in this department, donated by Lachute Women's Institute, St. Eustache Home and School, and two scholarships to Miss Adshead's classes. Winners were:

Brownsburg — Louise Freeland, Victor Suthern, Jeannette Gagné.

Lachute — Serge Labreche, Bryan Noble, Frank Karch, Jeanne Marie Gertch, Ian Vessie, Elaine Wilson, Iris Lang.

St. Eustache — Kenneth Robinson, Chas. Rae, Ross Jurand, Richard Wright, Terry Froggatt, Robt. Renaud, Brian McCaffrey.

Ch. of Commerce At Morin Heights

The annual general meeting is to be held June 16 for the election of new officers. A nominating committee was appointed.

The proposed look-out was then discussed. The president suggested that a space be cleared at the top of the mountain and signs placed to indicate the direction of the spot. Mt. Stapleton was suggested as a favorable site. The secretary was instructed to write Mr. Lawson Kennedy enquiring if he would have any objections to the Chamber cutting a trail to the top of Baldy Mountain for a tourist look-out. It was resolved to pay $10 toward clearing a trail to the top of Mt. Stapleton, and Mr. Wade offered to contribute double this amount for the project.

It was moved that the secretary write to the Council asking them to clean the streets, also suggesting that lights be installed on the new bridge near the station.

Mr. J. W. Green was instructed to look into specific complaints regarding the bus service.

There was a short discussion on prices of foods varying between the different stores. It was decided to leave this question until the June 8 meeting, when all the business people will be in attendance.

It was suggested that the Chamber write to the Legion asking them to have the boards taken down on the rink.

U.K. LIFTS RESTRICTIONS

London — The U.K. Government has lifted restrictions on the amount of foodstuffs which may be imported as personal effects without an import license by overseas visitors. The Customs Officer at port of arrival must be satisfied that the quantities of foodstuffs are reasonable and that they are for personal use and not intended for sale.

Tops on Rollers

Mile-a-minute thrills on roller skates are presented by Mack and Mitzie, to appear here in the vaudeville bill at the coming Lachute Spring Fair. The act features Mitzi passing her body through an 11-inch hoop while being twirled in a breath-taking manner; a death-defying neck-to-neck swivel spinning at a tremdous rate of speed; a double blindfold trick in which Mitzie lights a match held in her mouth on the floor while both skaters are legitimately blindfolded, and other startling tricks. Mac and Mitzie are described as "Master and Mistress of the Miniature Wheels".

Between 1947 and 1951 the number of motor cars per mile of surfaced road in Canada increased by almost a third.

The archives of Canadian Boy Scout Headquarters, Ottawa, have been enriched by a copy of Volume 1, No. 1, of "The Scout", the British Scout magazine which was founded by Baden-Powell. The gift came from T. W. Foster, of Edmonton, Alberta, a Rover Leader and former District Commissioner. Dated April 18, 1908, the edition contains 24 pages and the first article is "How I started Scouting" by General Baden-Powell.

Radishes, Leaf Lettuce And Green Onions

The vegetable stalls are colorful these days with the first arrivals of Summer. Crinkly, delicate looking leaf lettuce, dark shiny green onions and bunches of red radishes are displayed in great profusion. The prices of these items are within reason and everyon can enjoy them now.

Bright, green leaf lettuce is a summertime treat. It is very perishable and must be used quickly. Often leaf lettuce is sold in cone shaped containers. Leaf lettuce has loose, flat leaves which do not form a head like the Iceberg type. When buying leaf lettuce, be sure that the leaves are fresh, young and tender. Avoid dirty, dry, yellow leaves or those which have big midribs up the centre.

Lettuce is a natural salad in itself if several leaves are served, whole or shredded, with a favorite dressing. Many families have never tasted that old-fashioned favorite, wilted lettuce. This is the recipe from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture. This amount should serve six.

6 Slices chopped bacon, ½ cup chopped onion, ⅓ cup to ½ cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar (optional), 10 cups leaf lettuce (2 quarts) broken in large pieces, salt and pepper to taste.

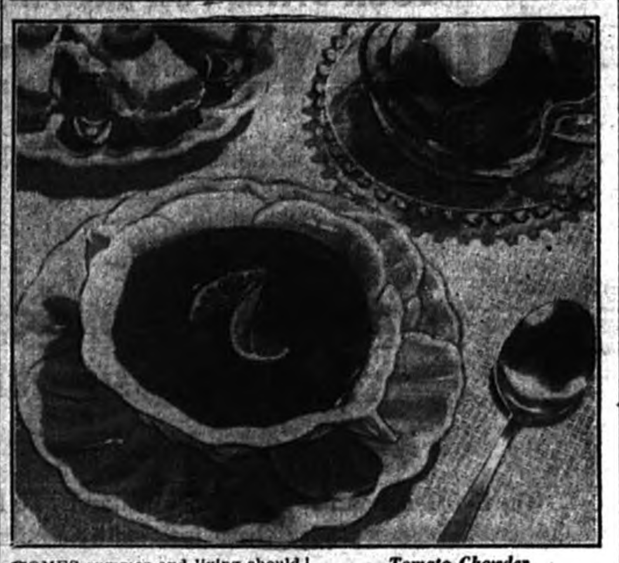

Cook the chopped bacon until it is crisp and brown. Add the chopped onion to the hot fat and sauté the onion until it turns yellow. Then add ⅓ to ½ cup of vinegar, depending on how tangy you like it, and add the sugar, if desired. When the vinegar is heated, add the leaf lettuce broken in large pieces, cover the pan and cook until the lettuce is just wilted. Season with salt and pepper and serve hot. It may be that the family does not like the lettuce wilted too much. In that case, instead of cooking the lettuce in the hot vinegar, pour the hot mixture over the lettuce in a bowl and then toss together using two forks.

The season has started for young, tender green onions and you will find this family favorite on many supper tables in all parts of Canada. When buying green onions, look for those which have fresh green tips and be sure that there is at least two or three inches of white stem above the roots. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, suggest mixing chopped green onions with cottage cheese for a tasty salad. They also mention that if you sprinkle a little chopped green onion on top of tomato soup or bouillon, the onion will add extra flavor to the sauce. Omelets are a popular luncheon dish. If a little chopped green onion is added to an omelet, the onion will give the omelet a look and flavor that is really special. The home economists also mention an onion sauce which they say is wonderful served on new boiled potatoes. It is very simply made by adding ½ cup of finely chopped green onions to 1 cup medium cream sauce.

The homemaker need never be stuck for a garnish so long as she can buy radishes, for they may be used whole or sliced or they may be cut in a variety of flower shapes. Radishes are plentiful and are inexpensive to buy. When buying radishes, be sure that they have fresh, green leaves and firm roots. Store the radishes in the crisper of the refrigerator, but if the refrigerator does not have a crisper, they may be stored in a refrigerator bag made of cellophane or plastic film or in a glass jar with a lid.

The home economists of the Consumer Section tell us not to forget to add sliced radishes to salads. They add a faint peppery flavor and most important of all, they add color and eye appeal.

Families Eat Well—Easily—In Summer

COMES summer and living should be easy. So go the thoughts of many homemakers who wisely serve light easy meals.

Families eat pretty much the same in summer and winter, surveys show. But during warm weather, combinations like sandwiches, soups and salads appear at more meals than ever. There's good reason for this with the delightful eating variety that's possible with little effort.

Easy meals are important in the summer because the woman who "mans" the kitchen doesn't find her work letting up. As you know, there are often more noon meals to serve at home at this season when children aren't in school. And you're likely to have more guests at lunch or supper as friends come visiting on vacations.

For variety in summer meals, the whole array of condensed soups, hearty sandwiches and crisp-fresh salads offer much to select from. All you do is open and heat a favorite flavor of soup. Then quickly toss a salad or put sandwiches together.

—SOUP SCOOPS—

Beef Goes Far In Pinwheels: The last bit of roast beef turns into a generous main dish with this Biscuit Pinwheel recipe. You'll need a can of beef gravy for it. First blend ½ cup chopped cooked beef with seasonings (1 small onion and small clove garlic, both minced and cooked in butter; plus salt and pepper). Stir in ¼ cup of the beef gravy. Now prepare biscuit dough with 1 cup of packaged mix and ⅓ cup milk. Roll soft dough on lightly floured board so dough forms a rectangle and is about ¼-inch thick. Spread meat mixture on dough; roll as for jelly roll; cut into 4 slices. Bake on cooky sheet at 450° F. for 15 minutes or till lightly browned. Serve with remaining hot gravy. 4 servings.

Snack On Juice And Tidbits: Scarlet bright vegetable juices taste like a "garden in a glass". Keep cans of the juice well chilled for snacks on warm days. And have cheese and cucumber kabobs to nibble as you sip. For kabobs, string chunks of cheese and slices of cucumber on toothpicks.

Fruit Pies for Summer

By Jane Ashley

The calendar tells us it is time to bring out our recipes for fresh fruit pies — those luscious desserts that are good eating to the last crumb. Try these three excellent recipes, made with summer's favorite fruits.

Rhubarb Pie

1 Recipe pastry for 2-crust pie, 1 pound rhubarb (about 4 cups, diced), ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons corn starch, ¾ cup corn syrup, 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine.

Use ½ the pastry; roll ⅛ inch thick. Line a 9-inch pie pan. Wash rhubarb and cut in 1-inch lengths. Place rhubarb in pie shell. Combine sugar, salt and corn starch. Add corn syrup and butter; mix well. Pour over rhubarb. Roll out remaining pastry. Cut in narrow strips. Arrange lattice of pastry strips across top. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) 15 minutes; reduce heat to moderate (350°F.) and bake 40 to 45 minutes longer.

Fresh Cherry Tarts

½ Cup sugar, 4 tablespoons corn starch, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup light corn syrup, 3 cups fresh sour cherries, pitted, ¼ teaspoon almond extract, 6 baked tart shells (3½ inches).

Combine sugar, corn starch and salt in top of double boiler. Add corn syrup and mix well. Add cherries. Place over boiling water and cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens (about 10 minutes). Cover and continue cooking about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Add almond extract. Cool. Pour into baked tart shells. Chill. Just before serving top with whipped cream, sweetened to taste, if desired.

Strawberry Pie

1 Envelope unflavored gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 2 egg yolks, ¾ cup light corn syrup, 1 cup crushed strawberries, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 egg whites, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¾ cup heavy cream, whipped.

9-inch baked pie shell.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Beat egg yolks slightly in top of double boiler. Add corn syrup. Cook over boiling water, about 5 minutes, stirring constantly, until mixture is slightly thickened. Add gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool slightly. Combine strawberries and lemon juice and add to gelatin mixture. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites and salt until stiff but not dry; gradually beat in sugar. Fold in strawberry mixture; then lightly fold in whipped cream. Pile into baked pie shell. Chill thoroughly before serving.

Que. W. Inst. Held Successful Course in Leadership Training

The Leadership Training Course at Macdonald College last week was one of the most successful yet held. Sponsored annually by the Quebec Women's Institutes, since its inception five years ago, this project draws together members bent on bettering their own skills and techniques in the interests of improving the whole operation and effectiveness of the Q.W.I.

What is the matter with our programs? How to conduct our business meetings? What to do about recreation? How to get the most out of group discussions? How should we keep our financial records? All this was on the agenda in addition to practical instruction in various crafts. To this should be added the vigorous discussions, planned and otherwise, on the actual problems which crop up in the operation of any Institute, with the Q.W.I. president, Mrs. G. E. LeBaron, North Hatley, present in the role of resource person.

"What will WE do with this training when we return home?" was the last question discussed at the closing session. It was on a not of definite action outlined and commitments made that the five days of work, study and fun came to an end.

Fashions

Pastel or navy, crease-resistant linen makes a straight line dress with good proportions for dressing either up or down. Matched satin piping points up the banded V yoke which just about covers the shoulders, achieving the current sleeveless look. Satin is used for the belt above the slim, peg-topped skirt. Incidentally, the satin trimming is evidence of a revival of this shining fabric for use during summer.

Singer Dressmaking Contest for Young Seamstresses

Local seamstresses, from 12 to 17 years inclusive, will compete for a new Singer Sewing Machine and scores of other prizes valued at approximately $2,000, by proving their skills in a Junior Dressmaking Contest — states Roger Martel, manager of the Singer Sewing Center here.

The contest is open to girls in the Counties of Argenteuil and Two Mountains exclusively. "To win the top prizes, entrants do not have to compete with thousands of girls all over the nation, Mr. Martel states. "And all entrants can make garments of their choice to their own measurements. Tailored suits and coats are the sole exceptions", he added.

Judging will be done at three levels, with first and second prizes to be awarded at each. Girls enrolled in classes in the local Singer Sewing Center (or all city Singer Sewing Centers) will be eligible to compete for prizes and take part in a fashion show after September 12, closing date of the contest.

The top entry from each sewing center will again be judged to pick the best two at the district level, where additional prizes will be awarded. Winning district entries will be judged again to pick regional winners. The region includes Quebec Province. The top award is the world's newest sewing machine, the desk model cabinet and stool. (The combination sells for $305.). Second place winner will receive the Singer Featherweight Portable Sewing Machine and table ($187.00 value). First and second place winners in the six districts will receive sewing cabinets and first place winners in the local Sewing Center will be given a set of matched scissors with a fitted sewing box for the runners-up.

Judging of all garments will be based on co-ordination of design and fabric, construction and workmanship, fitting, and finishing.

Rules and entry blanks are available at Singer Sewing Center, 86 Water Street, Lachute.

Ways to use apples are endless. Make slits in the fat of a roast of pork; then, before roasting, insert pieces of tart apple. You'll be proud of the flavorful gravy it makes. Another idea is to add raw grated apple to a hash mixture as it fries.

Planting Gladiolus

Ottawa — One of the most popular of our many garden flowers is the gladiolus. While the gladiolus prefers a rich sandy loam, a well drained clay loam will produce good plants. Whatever the soil type, the location must be a sunny one as gladiolus do not like shade, says D. F. Cameron, horticulturist at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Some people plant gladiolus corms among groups of other plants in the perennial or annual flower border, but gladiolus never seem to do well in such a location, as the competition with other plants often prevents them from making strong sturdy growth. It is much better to grow them in rows, where they can be cultivated, fertilized and staked if necessary.

First class spikes may be grown from corms with a diameter of ¾ inch or greater, but every year a great number of people are disappointed with the corms they purchase at bargain prices. These are often only about ½-inch to ¾-inch in diameter, and while some of the larger corms will flower the first year, most of them will not bloom until the following season.

Corms should be treated for thrip — a small insect which can easily ruin a crop of gladiolus spikes in a very short while. If the corms have not been treated when purchased, they should be soaked in a solution of Lysol for six hours using one teaspoon of Lysol in one quart of water.

In marking out the area to be planted, allow a distance between rows of at least 24 inches for hand cultivation and 36 inches or more if a garden tractor is available. It is a good idea to apply a complete fertilizer such as 5-10-13 at the rate of one pound to 25 feet of row, and dig it in well before planting the corms.

The corms should be planted about 5 inches deep and 6 inches apart, staggered so as to make a double row. Some sort of support will be required, especially if the soil is light. A satisfactory support is easily made by stringing 2 wires, at 18 inches and 30 inches from the ground, on either side of the row, about 6 to 8 inches apart. These wires are fastened to cross arms on stout posts driven into the ground every 25 to 30 feet along the row.

During the growing season the rows must be cultivated and watered as required, about once a week during spells of dry weather. When the foliage reaches a height of 9 to 10 inches, a weekly spraying with a DDT flower spray is required.

Eggs have always been considered a valuable food, not only from the standpoint of nutrition, but of versatility. They can appear as garnish, main course or dessert. Sieved hard-cooked yolk or chopped hard-cooked white add interest to a clear broth or consomme. Omelettes, souffles, croquettes, or creamed eggs are filling and satisfying as a main course. Fluffy fruit whips, airy meringues, and tender angel and sponge cakes are only a few examples of the important role of eggs in dessert.

Food Recommendations For Overseas Travellers

London — Sir Andrew Jones, Food Adviser to the U.K. High Commissioner, does not advise Canadians visiting the United Kingdom to take food with them for their own use, unless they are going to make an extended stay and do their own catering. But, if they are thinking of relations and friends, the following items would be most acceptable: Meat — in the form of back bacon or Wiltshire bacon. Processed meats or stews containing vegetables are not worth taking; Cheese — a five-pound round or a smaller quantity of Canadian cheddar; Fats — shortening to make cakes; Dried Fruits — which are in very short supply in the United Kingdom; Cake Mixes; Canned Salmon.

Five items of food still remain under ration control in Britain; they are, with quantities each week, as follows:

Bacon, 5 ozs.; Fats, 9 ozs.; Meat, 2 shillings worth; Cheese 2 ozs.; Sugar, 12 ozs.

Cheese from the Continent, such as Gruyere and Camembert, and canned ham, are freely available and unrationed.

Canadian textile mills now supply approximately 70 per cent of domestic needs.

VACATION JOBS

— By NANCY CLEAVER — (Copyright)

"I want to get a job this summer!" how many adolescent boys and girls make this announcement to their parents as holiday time approaches.

Teen-age boys and girls must plan early for summer employment. They know that the competition is keen for vacation jobs and that the "last minute" searcher may easily get left behind! Adolscents are eager to earn as much as they can. Parents realize the character values of working. They should also encourage their children, if possible, to seek experience in the kind of work they want to do when their schooling is completed.

The vocational guidance departments in many schools are doing a fine piece of work in helping scholars find their niche in life. Every public library has reference books on Vocations. Such books as Young Canada Goes to Work, by J. H. Stewart; Careers for Women, by Miller; Careers for Women in Canada, by Cairiere; Beyond High School, by Benett and Hand are useful stores of information.

Principals and teachers in Collegiates, librarians, teen-town councellors, and other friends of youth are willing to take time to discuss possible jobs with boys and girls.

In some centres there is an unofficial placement bureau sponsored by the collegiate staff and the Home and School Club. Co-operative citizens give willingly of their time for interviews by job seeking teen-agers. This helps boys and girls to think realistically before graduation, about the labor market in their own home town and about their own qualifications.

Parents should be enthusiastic about such schemes. Unfortunately mothers and fathers are often too eager to influence a son's or daughter's choice of a particular vocation. They have put so much loving care in the raising of a child, they have invested so much in clothes, food, shelter and education, that they feel their advice should not only be listened to with respect, but should be accepted. Often the parent's favorite profession is one they themselves would like to have followed, but they did not have sufficient education, or they had to start work at the first job which was vacant to help out with the family finances at an early age.

Parents can help, not by imposing their wishes but by discussing the possible kinds of work with a son or daughter and with their teachers. Often men and women who are good friends of the family are willing not only to talk over their own kind of work with a young person, but let them catch a glimpse of the job being done.

A girl has the chance to visit an aunt who holds an important position on a hospital staff. During her stay the girl not only sees over the institution, but has the opportunity to quitely observe the nurses at work. A boy has an idea that he would like to farm. In the summer vacation, although he could live at home and make more money from a job in his own town, his parents encourage him to seek employment on a farm through the government placement plan. Thus he gains practical experience in farm work.

When there is an adolescent boy or girl in the family, if at all possible, the summer vacation should be not only a holiday period from school work, but a time when in a new environment a boy or girl gets first hand knowledge of a possible vocation. Being away from home, earning money and making one's own way are all steps to emotional and economic maturity.

To Recent Correspondent, On Teachers Riding In School Buses

I read in this paper that the bus drivers were glad to have the teachers drive in the school bus to help keep order. This would make you laugh — as the local teacher gets off the bus about the second stop; so of what help are they to keep order?

Wake up, parents and taxpayers; it's for their own benefit, as the Insurance company does not include them with insurance. No one is supposed to ride the bus but the pupils, I am told. Give our children a chance to sit!

Local Couple Wed Saturday in Home Ceremony

Fraser - McCulloch

The marriage of Marjorie Elizabeth, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. McCulloch, to George John Fraser, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Fraser, all of Lachute, took place on Saturday, May 30, at four o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiating.

Mrs. B. H. Robertson, of St. Andrews East, played the wedding music.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a floor-length strapless gown of white taffeta, with lace bodice extending into a very full double skirt of nylon net, with matching lace bolero, having long sleeves finishing in points over her hands. Her fingertip-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a band of matching tulle and forget-me-nots and she carried a bouquet of red roses and carnations.

The bride's mother wore a street-length dress of navy blue crepe with white trim, and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's mother wore a two-piece navy blue dress with navy and white accessories, with a corsage of red roses.

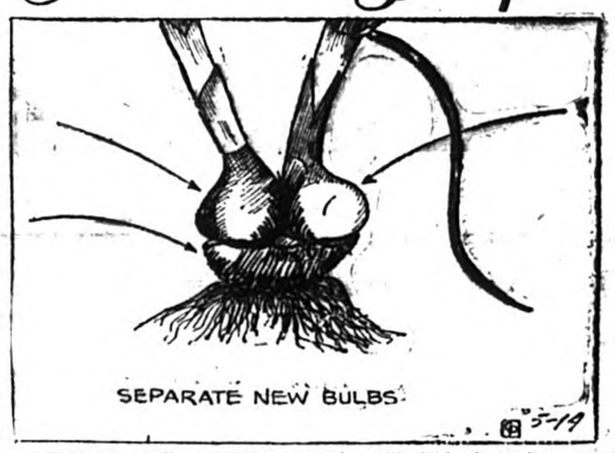

A reception was held at the bride's home, which was decorated with pink and white carnations, sweet peas and roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Fraser left on their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a grey wool gabardine suit with powder blue and navy accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

Out-of-town guests included a number from Montreal, Three Rivers and Wilmington, Vt.

Garden-Graph

Crocuses will continue to bloom from year to year with unabated beauty if encouraged with a little care and attention. If left entirely on their own they gradually will die out.

After the spring blooms have withered, don't cut off the foliage. Crocuses, like other bulb plants, need to have the foliage keep growing after the blooms have gone, in order to manufacture food to keep the bulbs underground strong for another season.

Every two or three years, crocuses should be lifted and replanted, otherwise they gradually will work themselves up too near the soil surface. As shown in the accompanying garden-graph, crocuses, like gladiolus, form new bulbs on the top of the shriveling old or parent bulb. If not lifted and separated, and then replanted, the new bulbs not only will find themselves too near the soil surface, but will suffer and eventually die from overcrowding.

The time to take up the bulbs is when the foliage turns yellow and dies down, but while it still is rather firmly attached to the bulbs.

Some gardeners prefer to wait until mid-August to divide the bulbs. At that time, however, with no foliage showing the location of the bulbs, digging them up becomes hazardous.

Replant divided bulbs four inches deep. Make certain, however, that you do not leave an air space beneath the bulbs. The base of each bulb should rest firmly on soil.

Crocuses do best in well-drained, fairly moist soil. They are benefited by the addition of leaf-mold or peatmoss to the soil. They need to be in full sun to open their flowers wide.

MARITIME MINING BOOM

It's a new sort of mining boom they are having in New Brunswick. A Financial Post staff correspondent writes from Bathurst: "This lumber town turned mining camp is a far cry from the rip-snorting boom towns of history.

"It's perhaps the first time in Canadian mining annals that a major find has been opened up near an already well-established community. Bathurst citizens are cautiously optimistic over what the boom on their doorstep may mean.

"If, as and when the promised multi-million dollar development crystallizes, a rich, new, unsurpassed era is seen in prospect.

"The boom has already made Bathurst the most expensive place in the Maritimes to live."

$300-Million to Hospitals Since '45 Says Duplessis

By Bernard Dufresne

Quebec (CP) — The Federal Government's grants towards construction of new hospitals represented "a minute part" of their cost, Premier Duplessis said at his regular press conference last week.

In Quebec, the Provincial Government was doing "at least 20 times more" than the Federal Government. Provincial hospital aid since 1945 amounted to $300,000,000, he said.

He said "Ottawa propaganda" designed to show that it is Ottawa which has made all the reforms in hospitals was "an error".

"The contributions of the Federal Government represent only a small fraction, a minute part, of the cost of building new hospitals and represents nothing, or almost nothing, in the cost of their upkeep."

"This is in no way criticism of Federal policies", he said, "it is only said to establish and ascertain the facts."

At the same time the premier announced a $2,000,000 grant for construction of a new wing at Notre Dame de l'Esperance Hospital in Ville St. Laurent, a suburb of Montreal.

Mr. Duplessis said the government's policy is to build small hospitals in many parts of the province to serve the needs of their areas. Thus, sick persons will not have to travel great distances for treatment in large metropolitan hospitals.

He urged persons suffering from minor illnesses to accept treatment at home so that hospitals will be less crowded.

* * *

Quebec's Royal Commission on Federal-Provincial taxation matters probably will not hold public hearings this summer if there is Federal general election campaigning, Premier Duplessis announced.

"The problem (to be studied by the commission) is too serious to be used for partisan considerations", he said.

The Provincial government may present a memorandum of its own to the Royal Commission, whose chairman is Judge Thomas Tremblay of Quebec. Copies of two memoranda sent to the Federal government and copies of a "considerable" correspondence between Mr. Duplessis and the Federal government will be submitted for the commission's consideration.

Airmen Match Wits To Keep Odd Trophy

Portage La Prairie, Man. (CP) — A Royal Canadian Air Force tradition is developing around a trophy with its history shrouded in the mists of the Pacific.

The prize is a Japanese fish net float, round and about 16 inches in diameter. It came into RCAF hands by undisclosed means but the story is whispered from mess to mess that 426 Transport Squadron may have been in on it.

The first recordable history of the float was its appearance in the officers' mess at station Calgary where it remained until December 8, 1952. That night a group of officers from station Winnipeg, headed by Group Capt. L. H. Randal, spirited the trophy away and it shortly turned up in the Winnipeg officers' mess sporting a new base and a shiny plaque proclaiming it the Randal Trophy.

The unwritten rules say the trophy can be liberated by any regular RCAF mess provided members of the mess holding the trophy are present. No violence or bloodshed is permitted so the contest resolves itself to a battle of wits.

Recently airmen from Portage were spotted in strategic positions in the Winnipeg mess. At a given signal the coveted prize was seized and passed swiftly from hand-to-hand, carried out the back door and off the station with all speed.

A new plaque will be engraved and Portage airmen have announced the trophy will be available for liberation after May 14.

"Should Winnipeg or any other mess have the spirit and audacity to attempt to secure our trophy, their attack will be suitably welcomed", said a Portage officer.

Largest single group of income taypayers in 1950 was employees; their average earnings were $2,676 and they contributed two-thirds of all federal income tax revenue that year.

CNR INTRODUCES UNIQUE BOX CAR

Montreal — The use of a "picture window" box car is planned by the Canadian National Railways to reduce loss and damage claims.

One entire side of a standard steel-sheathed box car is being made of plexiglass. On its completion in the Pt. St. Charles Shops of the railway in Montreal, the car will tour the C.N.R. System. It will be used in visual demonstrations to train and yard crews and to freight personnel to show the affects of normal and over-speed coupling on its "dummy" lading.

The car will also be used to show shippers improved methods for packaging, crating, loading, bracing and securing.

Q. I would like to know how many regular benefit days, before being entitled to supplementary benefit, a person, who has to his credit 200 stamps in the last two years, can receive?

A. It is not possible, from the information given, to state the number of days you could draw regular benefit or if you could get any regular benefit at all. Assuming that you were entitled to regular benefit then you must draw all of it before becoming eligible for supplementary benefit. Supplementary benefit is paid in the period January 1 to April 15, both dates inclusive, to a claimant who cannot qualify for regular benefit. To be eligible for supplementary benefit a claimant must have at least 90 daily contributions since the previous March 31 or his benefit from a previous claim must have run out since that date.

Q. If I exhaust my benefits, will 60 days work give me another claim? If so, for how long can I draw benefit?

A. Not necessarily. To qualify for further benefit, following exhaustion of a previous claim, a claimant must have at least 180 contributions in the last two years. Sixty of these contributions must be in the last year or since the start of the claim that was exhausted (whichever period is the lesser), or 45 of the contributions must be in the last six months or since the start of the claim that was exhausted (whichever period is lesser).

STOP "APPLE-POLISHING"

We require a changed attitude toward the tourist, and particularly the American tourist. We should stop waving the Stars and Stripes at him and telling him how much we admire the United States. We should be proud to tell everyone this is Canada and we are Canadians and stop the "apple-polishing".

UP NORTH, moose have the habit of using snowplowed railway lines as their personal promenades. OK until they come to a bridge; then Mr. Moose is likely to get caught between the ties, break his legs and otherwise gum things up. So the railways lay what they call "moose carpets" of aluminum between the rails and over the ties at spots where His Lordship may need safe footing.

It just goes to show how aluminum's combination of lightness, strength and resistance to weather comes in handy in the most unlikely places . . . And to explain why, in 1954, our aluminum capacity will be boosted to over a billion pounds a year. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

No Elaborate Opening Ceremonies -- Lachute Exhibition Bids Fair to Excel

COUNCIL HEARS PETITION, PROTEST ON SATURDAY P.M. STORE CLOSING

By-Law to Regulate Public Dance Halls Liquor Sales and Hours of Business

The June meeting of Lachute Town Council was held in the Civic Auditorium June 3, with all members present.

A petition signed by a majority of the town storekeepers was presented by Guy Lafortune, and the Council was requested to draw up a by-law for the closing of stores at 7 p.m. Saturday nights.

A protest was voiced by M. G. Assaly, who stated that the majority of the businesses on Main Street were remaining open, and it was their wish to carry on business as usual. He added that closing the stores on Saturday nights would send shoppers to the neighboring towns, and Lachute would lose considerable business and money.

Ald. H. G. Beaulieu informed Mr. Lafortune that the petition was not addressed to the Council, and that the heading on the petition made it an agreement among the businessmen who had signed it. He requested that Mr. Lafortune present a petition to the Council duly addressed to this body.

One tender was received, from T. McOuat & Son Ltd., to supply 20 gallons of white traffic paint in five gallon cans at $4.45 a gallon. It was moved by Ald. E. Pollock, seconded by Ald. Réal Morrissette, that this tender be accepted.

Three tenders were received for the construction of concrete sidewalks. A. Desjardins and Masson Bros. both entered bids of $1.50 a running foot, and John Lemay's tender was $1.45. It was moved by Ald. D. G. MacRae, seconded by Ald. Judes Charlebois, that the lowest tender be accepted. The work is to start immediately, to be finished by July 1, and be declared satisfactory by the town officer.

A by-law to regulate public dance halls, presented to the Council by Ald. H. G. Beaulieu, was accepted with two readings. All were in favor with the exception of Ald. Alcidas Laurin.

The by-law goes into effect 15 days after publication, and states that "a municipal permit must be obtained yearly from the Council for the sum of $200; the seating capacity must satisfy all regulations concerning public safety; the dance halls must have suitable exits; no rooms serving as a public dance hall shall be equipped with compartments, divisions, partitions or any other obstruction to prevent a full and complete view of the interior of the dance hall by every person present. All public dance halls falling under the jurisdiction of the town may open their doors at 8 a.m. and shall cease to operate and close their doors at midnight, every day of the week, and shall be closed completely all day on holidays. The following are considered holidays for the purpose of this by-law — Sunday, New Year's Day, Christmas Day, Good Friday, Epiphany, Ash Wednesday, All Saints' Day, Ascension Day, and Conception Day.

"It is strictly forbidden to admit any minors under the age of 16 in any public dance halls where alcoholic beverages are sold except when accompanied by one or both parents. Further, it is strictly forbidden to serve, directly or indirectly, any alcoholic liquor in such public dance halls to a person who has not reached the age of 20 years.

"Any person specially appointed by the town to that effect, an officer of the town or a member of the Council, shall at all times have access to the said halls, room, or rooms, to see whether or not this by-law is observed."

It was moved by Ald. H. G. Beaulieu and seconded by Ald. Réal Morrissette that a vote of thanks be expressed to Provincial Traffic Officers Howard Jones, Albert Legault and Roger Massie for their co-operation with the town officials and police officers on Coronation Day.

A list of accounts to the amount of $10,151.33 was accepted for payment.

Building permits were granted to Geo. Y. Deacon for alterations on Main Street West, and to Ross Muir and René Desormeaux for house construction.

The sum of $200 was donated to the Argenteuil Agricultural Society.

The meeting was adjourned sine die.

A mass pilgrimage of English-speaking Catholics to the Notre Dame de Lourdes shrine on Brownsburg Road, is planned for next Sunday. A special train carrying approximately 1,000 persons will pull into Lachute at 10.55 a.m. and special mass will be held at the grotto at 11.45 o'clock.

Most of the religious exercises will be conducted in English, concluding with the benediction of the Holy Sacrament at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Grenv'l Taxi-Man Hold-Up Victim

At 12.30 o'clock last Thursday morning Léopold Pilon, 42-year-old Grenville taxi operator, picked up two passengers who asked him to drive them to Calumet, a few miles west of Grenville Village. At the intersection of the Calumet road and Route 8, the customers threatened Pilon and ordered him to stop and switch off his lights. The taximan complied, and jumped out of his car, whereupon the fares took possession of the taxi and drove away in the direction of Hull.

Det. Maurice Lamoureux, of Lachute, was notified and police officers west of Calumet were warned to keep watch for the stolen car, a black Dodge sedan, 1952 model.

Laurentide Bar Library Association Elects Officers

The Library Association of the Bar of the Laurentide District held its annual meeting Sunday at the Court House in St. Jerome.

After having settled important decisions regarding the installation and the exploitation of their legal library, the lawyers adopted a by-law for lawyers practising in the City of St. Jerome, to the effect that all the lawyers' offices will be closed for the entire day each Saturday during July and August.

The report of the treasurer showed a bank balance of $2,063.83.

This Library, when completed, will comprise about 2,000 volumes, and thanks to the generosity of the Provincial Government, it will be installed in one of the large halls on the third floor of the Court House.

The election of officers resulted in the following appointments:

President: Joseph Fortier, Q.C., St. Jerome.

Sec.-Treasurer: Guy Mathieu, LL.B., St. Jerome.

Counsellors: Paul Larose, St. Jerome; Fernand Legault, Q.C., Lachute; Lucien Thinel, Q.C., St. Jerome.

1953 Spring Show Has Livestock, Handicrafts, Trade Exhibits with All-Round Amusements To Exceed Expectations of Annual Fair-Goers

The 1953 Lachute Spring Fair — 127th milestone in the history of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society's Exhibition — is well on its way to being one of the best. For the first time in recent years there will be no elaborate opening ceremonies, but the grandstand show will be bigger and better, with the horse shows featured throughout the evening. Another new attraction will be an eight-horse team of Clydesdales, owned by Claude Young and Sons, of Bristol, Que. This team will be shown Wednesday and Saturday nights only. The eight well trained horses will be hitched as four pairs, an eight-horse team, and this hitch will be shown in the big ring. There will also be several four and six-horse hitches.

All the buildings on the grounds, including the grandstand, have been repaired and painted for the occasion, and the barns and stables have been whitewashed and disinfected.

Additional entertainment before the grandstand will be provided by an excellent vaudeville bill. The midway concession has been granted to Model Shows of Canada, and they are here with many old, as well as a few new innovations in entertainment.

The popular County Race will be held Thursday afternoon on the track, which is in excellent condition. Other harness races are billed for Friday and Saturday.

Numerous local dealers have excellent displays of cars, trucks, farm equipment and just about everything else, to give the Fair what it needs to make it the best all-round show on record.

Handicrafts

Just about everything under the sun is on display in the handicraft department in the Main Building. Lachute High School will be well represented with the better exhibits from both Industrial Arts and Household Science students. There will be numerous articles from the County schools in this display also. Among the articles on exhibit are desks, cedar chests, coffee and end tables, as well as many other useful articles. The Household Science department will feature dresses, skirts, aprons, and all kinds of needlecraft.

The Women's Institute handicraft display is one of the best yet. There is no one article that merits special mention, but all classes are filled up. Some of the more notable exhibits include crochet work, shopping bags, hooked rugs, afghans, all types of fancy work, as well as home-cooking and horticulture.

Livestock

Beef classes are filled beyond expectation and there should prove an added attraction, including, as they do, the only Belted Galloways in Canada.

Calf Club members from Lachute, Arundel, Thurso, Vaudreuil and St. Hermas will show their calves at the Lachute Fair on Saturday afternoon. The judging competition for the Calf Club members will take place in the morning.

Granby Party Welcomed Here Today As Guests of Chamber of Commerce

Public Urged to Take Advantage of Anti-TB X-Ray Clinic in Main Exhibition Building

Industry and Commerce in Lachute

Contributed by Lachute Chamber of Commerce

In this bulletin (handed in too late for publication last week) the Chamber of Commerce draws attention to the visit of its Granby colleagues, taking place on Thursday, June 11.

The Granby Chamber of Commerce is one of the most active in the Federation, and the visit is esteemed by the local group which was so cordially received by them at Granby last year. We appreciate the favorable publicity which this visit may reflect upon our town, and a suitable program has been arranged for the entertainment of these visitors. In this regard, we acknowledge the fine co-operation of Lachute Town Council and of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society. The Council will extend a civic welcome to the party at Lachute Golf Club this forenoon, and the Agricultural Society will be their hosts later in the day.

Following is the program: Reception at Golf Club. Luncheon at Legion Hall. Tour of Lachute Town. Visit to Dominion Shuttle Company Ltd. Visit to Lachute Fair and Exhibition Grounds. . . . It is anticipated that a large representation of our members will join this group at the luncheon hour and on their various visits.

The Laurentian Anti-Tuberculosis League, Argenteuil Section, is conducting its X-ray clinic again this year in the Exhibition Building. Our Public Health Committee, under chairmanship of Dr. L. Turcotte, appeals to the surrounding population to take advantage of this clinic, which is conducted by a competent staff with the most modern equipment, furnished by the Montreal Anti-Tuberculosis League. The progress made in recent years in the fight against tuberculosis is in great measure attributable to the League's efforts. It is up to the public to take advantage of this free and confidential service, to have an X-ray chest examination in the interests of their own health and for the safeguard of the community in general.

STILL JULY 1

To settle any confusion which might exist, Dominion Day will be observed as a holiday on Wednesday, July 1, and not on the previous or following Monday. Possibly that will help to cut down on the accident rate which seems to swell over every long week-end.

Top Honors in Junior Judging at Ormstown

Ken McOuat, a St. Andrews East member of the Lachute Calf Club, took top honors in the Ormstown Fair Judging Competition last Saturday. Ken was awarded the Family Herald and Weekly Star Trophy, as well as the top prize money.

Out of the 99 judging in the 11 to 21 age group, McOuat was the only contestant from this locality. He judged a total of 12 cattle, four each of Holsteins, Ayrshires and Jerseys. His total score was 281 out of a possible 300.

$2,500 Objective in Appeal for Blind Institute

As a feature of the second annual appeal for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (Lachute - Brownsburg District), Léopold Carrière, ex-Mayor of Lachute, is seen above presenting to Robert Cairns, chairman of the local advisory board of the Institute, a cheque representing his donation to the appeal. . . Also appearing in this picture are Anthony Zaplaski, of the Institute, Police Chief Donat Villeneuve, member of the local board of the C.N.I.B., and Maurice Campeau, also of the Institute.

Lions Club Stand, Automobile Prize, At Fair Grounds

Not the least of the annual attractions at Lachute Spring Fair is the Lions Club stand, which is established again at its customary place, with a retinue of helpers and embryo "barkers" appealing to the passing crowds with the gusto of born salesmen. Star attraction at this spot is the sparkling Chevrolet 1953 car, to be drawn for on September 13 at the annual District Lions' Golf Tournament, La-Salle Golf and Country Club. A television set and 20 other attractive prizes are offered.

In connection with this charity fund-raising effort, which is one of the Lions Club's major appeals each year, it is interesting to note that local subscribers have held the winning tickets for two recent years — a young Bell Telephone man from Weir, Que., and a young lady from St. Andrews East, having won the new automobile.

In addition to these prizes, there is also a special for subscribers whose ticket stubs are turned in here before Saturday — a Crosley 17-inch television set, to be drawn at the Fair Grounds on the closing evening of the Exhibition.

This is a community project, for community betterment, and all purchasers of tickets may feel they have a stake in the Lions Club welfare program.

Change of Policy by Central Board, Budgeting by Local School Commissions

Delegates to be Appointed to Replace Present Membership of Central Body

The monthly meeting of the Central School Board was held in Lachute High School last Monday. The chairman, Mr. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., attended this meeting unexpectedly and officiated as chairman — this being his first official function since his sojourn in hospital.

Important items of business were discussed at this meeting, particularly with respect to a change in policy which the Board is obliged to adopt in the financing of its operations. Since the formation of the Board about seven years ago the general policy has been that resources of all local boards, forming a part of the Central Board, have been pooled. This was satisfactory so long as all boards agreed to operate in this manner. Now that a local board has objected to collecting more taxes than were actually needed for the operation of its own particular school, it has become necessary to adopt a different system of operation; it has consequently been decided that each local board will balance its own budget. As a result of this change of policy, certain local boards believe they will be obliged to reduce the standard of education they have been offering their children for the past few years. For example, the local board of Rouge River met a few days ago and decided they would be obliged to re-open the remainder of their rural elementary schools. Certain other boards, however, will not be greatly affected. This applies to the local board of Lachute, which has been able to balance its own budget each year.

This change of policy necessarily involves the problem of school tax arrears throughout the two counties. For the most part, school taxes have been paid fairly promptly. In other cases, however, there have been delays. The former local board of Morin Heights resigned several months ago. Some time elapsed before a new board was elected. The result is that no taxes have been collected by that board to date. The local board of Lake of Two Mountains was also delayed, with the result that their tax bills have just recently been mailed to the taxpayers. This has meant that the Central Board has been obliged to finance these two local boards throughout the entire scholastic year.

Now that each board is obliged to balance its own budget each will

J. L. Van Camp Addresses Club on Rotary-Sponsored Tree Farm Project

The Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club held its meeting at the Hotel Marquise last Thursday evening following the regular dinner at which several visitors were in attendance.

At the close of the routine business, the guest speaker, Mr. J. L. Van Camp, of the Canadian Forestry Association, was introduced by Rotarian Art Lapp.

Mr. Van Camp's subject pertained to the boost which private forest lands are to receive, in a nation-wide program designed to aid millions of acres of marginal land.

Canada's many private forest lands are to be marked by special insignia, under this new Canadian Forestry Association, headed by the National Tree Farm Committee.

The National Tree Farm Committee, comprising the forest industry, business and government leaders, will head programs to improve millions of acres of submarginal forest land. Increased production and income will benefit the private forest owner, the forest industries which depend on wood for their business, and logically, will also benefit local communities. The work, which will centre on local committees, is coordinated with forestry industry and forest services.

Catholic Parish of Grenville Celebrates 100th Anniversary; Progress Through Years Under Four Successive Dioceses

His Excellency Bishop Emilien Frenette, St. Jerome, Honored Recent Observance of Anniversary

The Parish of Grenville, which now belongs to the Catholic Diocese of St. Jerome, has latterly been celebrating its 100th anniversary. Last year actually marked the centenary of the establishment of the Parish of "Notre Dame des Sept Douleurs" in this Ottawa Valley village; but due to circumstances beyond control, the celebration was postponed until May 24 last, when His Excellency Bishop Emilien Frenette celebrated pontifical mass in gratitude for the occasion, and impressive religious observances were attended by a large crowd of parishioners, friends and visitors at the parish church.

The Rev. Eudore Thériault is priest of the parish, and the Rev. Gaetan Vinet is vicar. Clergy from many neighboring parishes and from the Ottawa Diocese also took part in the services, and the church was beautifully decorated with flowers given by Mr. and Mrs. Georges-E. Dansereau, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Desforges, and other members of the parish.

The Rev. Curé E. Thériault, after extending a welcome to His Excellency in both French and English, gave a stirring address. The Bishop in his sermon touched chords of reverent gratitude, and gave inspiration to his listeners for still greater achievement in the future.

Past History

It was in the autumn of 1852 that Monsignor Eugene Guiges, the Bishop of Bytown, sent L'Abbé Michael Byrne to assume the first pastorate at Grenville — following repeated requests from the residents, who, although boasting a church of their own, had no permanent cleric.

Traffic Offenders And Drunks Occupy Town Police

Frontiersmen Engaged to Augment Local Force During Fair Week

Approximately $500 damage resulted from a collision at Barron Avenue and Robert Street around 1.40 a.m. Sunday, when a car driven by Henri Galipeau on Robert Street rammed a panel truck driven by Fernando Carrière. The truck, thrown 27 feet, remained upright. No one was seriously injured. Constable O. Sabourin investigated.

No traffic accidents were reported on Coronation Day, although the traffic was heavy throughout the day and evening. The local traffic officers assisted the town police force for the day, as well as for the parades in the evening.

The police were busy both Friday and Saturday nights with several drunks causing a disturbance. One offender spent the night in the cells but was released the following morning.

Close to 50 traffic tickets have been handed out in the past week, all netting fine of $5 apiece. The majority of these tickets for speeding have been meted out to local citizens, it is reported.

Four additional police officers have been hired for town duty during Fair Week. These are members of Lt. Col. Ernest Emmett's Imperial Frontiersmen, but are operating in the town and will be under chanrge of Police Chief D. Villeneuve. Lt. Col. Emmett has an additional force of his Frontiersmen for police duty at the Fair Grounds and to keep traffic as much under orderly control as possible.

Dual Accident, One in Hospital With Skull Fracture

Four Lachute Boys Involved When Car and Truck Plunged from Highway

Four young citizens of Lachute came to grief in a dual highway accident last Saturday night at Weir. All were shaken up, one being critically hurt—Jim Campbell, of Main Street, having been rushed by ambulance to the Neurological Institute, Montreal, where he underwent an operation on Sunday. The sight of one eye is also threatened as the result of his injuries.

Others in these separate mishaps, in which two vehicles plunged off the highway, were Grant Riddell, employed in Montreal, who suffered minor cuts, also Tom Jamison, Mountain View, who sustained a severe cut on the forehead, and Howard Cottingham, who escaped unhurt.

The four boys had been visiting acquaintances at Macdonald Lake during Saturday afternoon. Later in the evening they proceeded in the direction of Weir, turning onto the 16 Island Lake highway and heading for the Air Force Station at Lac St. Denis near Morin Heights.

Howard Cottingham, driving a one-ton delivery truck with Tom Jamison, noted that Campbell and Riddell, in a small roadster, had dropped behind. They returned back along the highway, and found the roadster had catapulted down a steep embankment, striking a rock and injuring the two occupants. It is apparent that this accident was caused by faulty steering. Campbell, thrown out of the car, had suffered grim head injuries. Cottingham and Jamison placed their two companions in the truck and headed for Arundel to seek medical assistance. Jim Campbell was bleeding profusely from his head injury, and hurrying to reach a doctor in time, Cottingham missed a curve approaching the railroad crossing at Weir, and the truck ran off the road, crashing into a tree. No serious injuries resulted from this accident.

Assistance was soon at hand, and Dr. Jean Gareau, of Huberdeau, who was summoned by Cottingham, gave first aid treatment, rushing Jim Campbell, accompanied by Cottingham and Riddell, to St. Jerome. Admitted to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Campbell was later conveyed to Montreal by ambulance, accompanied by Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, of Lachute, his family physican. Friends and relatives drove from Lachute and brought the other two boys from St. Jerome, and Jamison from Weir, where he had made his way back to Macdonald Lake.

Reports at this date indicate that Jim Campbell is holding his own following his operation last Sunday at the Neurological Institute.

Safety First

It would probably be pretty hard to think of a more valuable and efficient servant than electricity — but it has to be handled with care. There are a few safety rules that should be observed or electricity can cause serious injury or even death.

1) Don't touch electric wires — they may be live.

2) Don't throw water on an electric fire.

3) Don't work on wires or appliances until you have thrown the main switch.

4) Always replace a blown fuse with one of the same current capacity.

5) Don't work on circuits or use appliances if your hands are wet or if you are standing in a damp place.

Red Clover Flourishes In Quebec Province

Professors Olsen and Steppler of Macdonald College report, after a tour of the Huntingdon-Ormstown district, that new red clover seedlings in that area have wintered well. Sclerotinia root rot is scarce there in contrast to its prevalence in the College plots. Clover on poorly drained soils everywhere has suffered badly as it always does.

Dates Announced for Closing of Entries, Ottawa Exhibition

Closing dates for entries in the various departments of the Ottawa Exhibition, to be held at Lansdowne Park, August 22-29, have been announcel by H. H. McElroy, General Manager.

For horses, horse show, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, handicrafts, Hobby Show, and Square Dancing, entries must be received by August 3.

The closing date for entries in the Women's Institutes section is August 6. For Junior Agriculture, agricultural and horticultural products, dairy and other food products, and Highland Dancing, the deadline is August 10.

August 12 is the last date for those wishing to place entries in the Dog Show and Obedience Trials.

Entry forms and prize lists are now being mailed out. Extra copies may be secured by writing or visiting the C.C.E.A. offices at Lansdowne Park.

The increased and improved accommodation at Lansdowne Park has enabled the C.C.E.A. to establish many more classes in all divisions. Over 60 classes alone will be held in the Horse Show which will go on nightly during Exhibition Week, and an excellent range of prizes has been planned.

Provision has been made for harness horses, roadsters, ponies, jumpers, saddle horses, etc.

The cattle show will cater to Holsteins, Jerseys, Shorthorns, Herefords, and Guernseys. Over 200 classes are scheduled in the cattle division.

An expanded swine show is anticipated with entries to be placed in the Yorkshire, Tamworth and Berkshire groups. Special classes will be held for export bacon hogs.

Keen competition is expected in the sheep section, which lists classes for Shropshires, Oxford Downs, Southdowns, Leicesters, Hampshires, Suffolks and Cheviots.

The Poultry Show at the Ottawa Exhibition is the outstanding event of its kind in Eastern Ontario and Quebec. This year again there will be the usual heavy quota of classes with ample accommodation available in the Poultry Wing of the Coliseum.

Displays of agricultural, horticultural, dairy and other food products will be given full prominence at the 1953 "Ex." and a number of new features are contemplated.

No less popular are the displays by the Women's Institutes, the Hobby and Handicrafts Shows and Highland Dancing. Interest to date indicates there will be a record number of entries in these classifications.

Another new attraction at the Exhibition will be the Square-dancing competition sponsored by Canada Packers Ltd. which will feature $1,000.00 in prize money. Anyone may enter this competition but the C.C.E.A. warns that the earlier the entry, the more certain it will be accepted.

As in past years, the outstanding Ottawa Exhibition Dog Show will be held with classes and excellent prize money for many breeds of dogs. In addition, special Obedience Trials will be held.

New Yeast From Quebec Apples

Mr. D. S. Clark, graduate student in bacteriology at Macdonald College has isolated a new species of yeast from Quebec apples. He calls it "Candida malicola". Mr. Clark and Professor Wallace of Macdonald will report on his work and on soil microbiological research at Macdonald at the third annual meeting of the Canadian Society of Microbiologists.

Animal Fats Surplus Serious Problem

Professor E. W. Crampton, chairman, Department of Nutrition, Macdonald College, says, "It is a strange situation when experiments are being conducted to determine how much beef and pork fats can be incorporated into the rations of swine and dairy cattle to relieve a surplus of such material created by unnecessarily feeding livestock to excessive fatness." Dr. Champton has just returned from a tour of several United States experimental centres including; Cornell University, the University of Wisconsin, the University of Minnesota, Iowa State Agricultural College, the University of Tennessee and Purdue University. At the last mentioned he attended the Meetings of the Institute of Animal Agriculture. He discussed with many workers investigations under way on the nutritional properties of butterfat. The problem is really one of all animal fats and is a national one in both the United States and Canada where it should receive careful attention from producers, consumers, and economists alike.

Cattle may be seriously injured by swallowing small pieces of metal left around the stalls or fields.

Rotary-Sponsored Tree Farm Project

Mr. Van Camp spoke at length on private forestry, but referred in particular to local conditions and prospects, as follows:

This territory, centring on Brownsburg and Lachute, will be historic because of the fact that the first Tree Farm under the National Tree Farm program was certified for the Argenteuil Agricultural Society. Therefore, in five years or ten years it will be suitable to have another ceremony in this territory to record the development of this tree farming program from the start made here.

While tree farming has been in operation for over 10 years in the United States, it has just started in Canada under that name. However, a great many farmers and woods owners in Canada, and especially in Western Quebec, are doing tree farming by the good management they are giving to their timber.

The requirements for qualifying as a tree farmer are comparatively simple, but even this simple management will produce surprising results in the way of dollars and cents in the pocket of the owner. The Argenteuil Tree Farm Committee will select those tree farmers who are doing much better than average and will honor them periodically at public ceremonies and by the presentation of signs and certificates.

It is the hope of the local committee that this territory will continue to maintain this distinctive position in tree farming which has been achieved by the receipt of the first national tree farm award. Argenteuil County has better than average markets for both pulp products and logs, and in addition, has the ideal combination of good farming interspersed with land which is best suited to permanent tree growing under Tree Farm management.

Tree Farm Requirements

1. Owner agrees to maintain land for growing forest crops.
2. Agrees to protect land adequately.
3. Agrees that cutting practices will be satisfactory to ensure future forest crops.
4. Agrees to allow Committee's foresters to inspect the tree farm.

The meeting was then thrown open for questions and discussion, which proved most profitable.

The speaker was ably thanked by Rotarian King Amos.

A local committee was named, and it is hoped that this project will receive full and adequate support.

Due reference was made to the coming Wild West Rodeo, being sponsored by the Rotary Club, to take place on Lachute Fair Grounds July 24-25. Special admission tickets are now on sale at $1 each, which include 10 chances on a Champion television set.

Grenv'l Celebrates 100th Anniversary

Grenville, however, had long been established in the semblance of a village. In 1775 the spot was occupied by English troops garrisoned there to subdue marauding rebels from across the frontier. In the wake of the military occupation, colonists arrived in greater numbers, and in 1807 Grenville Township was established under charge of a veteran English statesman, Baron Windham Grenville.

Around 1820 the military engineers undertook the formidable task of constructing the Grenville Canal, as a link in the system to circumvent the Ottawa River rapids and permit navigation from Montreal to Ottawa and Kingston. The barracks erected to house the troops at that time are still standing in Grenville, and although these have undergone a transformation with the years, they are a historic monument to that time.

Nearby, on a commemorative plaque, one may read: "Grenville Canal — planned and built by Engineers of the English Army. Commenced in 1819, completed in 1832, enlarged 1871-1882. One of the canals linking Montreal with Ottawa and Kingston, via the St. Lawrence, Ottawa, Cataraqui and Rideau Rivers."

Thus was established the Parish of Grenville, which grew under the jurisdiction of four successive dioceses, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, and finally St. Jerome.

Grenville Today

Under the Rev. E. Thériault and his vicar, the Rev. G. Vinet, the parish is experiencing a steady growth. These devoted clerics, conducting their ministry in the two official languages, have contributed notably to the spiritual and material development of their charge. The Catholic population numbers around 1,400 souls, of whom approximately one-third are of English tongue.

A large portion of the local labor is engaged either in the lumber operations of George Dansereau & Fils or at Canadian Refractories Ltd.

The Dansereau Mill, operated by the three sons of the late Georges Dansereau — Georges-Etienne, Stanislas and Gaetan — is the community's most time-honored industry, having passed its 50th milestone last year. Not only is this the oldest established industry in Grenville, but it ranks as the largest private enterprise of its kind in Quebec processing commercial lumber for markets throughout Quebec and Ontario, and in the United States.

The Dansereau School at Grenville was so named in honor of this eminent industrial family, and in recognition of the large part they played in its construction. This school has a notable distinction — having been the first in Quebec Province where 300-odd pupils, boys and girls, regardless of their origin, receive instruction in the two languages, under tuition of the "Filles de la Sagesse" and lay instructors.

Municipal affairs in Grenville are directed by Mayor Patrick S. Cavanagh, Secretary-Treasurer D. Daviau, and Councillors Etienne Larocque, Alex McPhee, Henri Lessard, Guy Forget, David Vallée and Victor Sarazin.

Summer Playgrounds

VACATION plans are absorbing the interests of many workaday folks around this time. School children will soon be free for the long summer days and evenings — but the lot of most of them who live in town, is to spend their playing hours on the streets or in the backyard, if they have one. This, apart from the family two weeks' spree, or — if they're lucky — a week at camp, is the outlook for the large majority of school kids around town this summer.

It's a regrettable fact that last year the two most commodious playgrounds in Lachute — at the Catholic and Protestant High Schools — were locked during the vacation season. It is the suggestion of Police Chief D. Villeneuve that for the safety and enjoyment of our children these grounds should be kept open. The question of a caretaker or supervisor entails expense, and the Chief rates this as a worthwhile project for the sponsorship of some local club or service group.

It is hoped that, with the co-operation of the school boards, one of our town organizations will investigate the possibilities of keeping these playgrounds open all summer.

Silent Partner

HOW IRRITATING is the man who waits till a discussion is over and then starts to say his piece. He sits right through in profound silence, apparently nodding approval to everyone. Then, when the whole thing's settled and done with, he corners one or two friends and starts to pour scorn on his enemies because they hold views conflicting with his own, and on his friends because they didn't argue with sufficient force. Exasperated, a friend is liable to complain, "Then why on earth didn't you say all this at the time?"

This type, familiar to many of our community groups, is interestingly analyzed — and fittingly condemned — in a current bulletin, "Industry", issued by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

There are excuses for this man — it is contended. The chances are that he's not an experienced speaker. Maybe his words dry up as soon as he's on his feet; maybe confusion clouds his thoughts and plays havoc with his grammar and maybe his mental processes do not work as quickly as those of some other people. He may need all his concentration to digest what the speakers are saying and cannot rapidly marshal his own thoughts and arguments.

But, though others excuse him, he must not be so generous to himself. Why is he invited to sit in on discussions? For his life-long experience and the thoughts which that experience must have bred in his mind. But silent thought is useless to a discussion — it must be vocal or he might as well go fishing.

It is the duty of such a man to take some pains to overcome his disabilities. Shyness is a monster only until it is resolutely attacked. Once a man stands up to it with determination, it disperses as swiftly as smoke in a breeze. And with shyness go all the other devils of public speaking like inarticulation and confusion. No great words can ever issue from the mouth of a mute.

Stifling the Big Sneeze

IN A FEW weeks a great sneeze will be heard across the country. It will emanate from thousands of Canadian hay fever victims who dread the advent of the balmy August-September weather when the pesky malady is at its height.

Almost all cases of hay fever are caused by an allergy to tiny pollen grains of the ragweed plant prevalent in most provinces. Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia claim freedom from this weed, and therefore are comparatively free of hay fever sufferers. New Brunswick has had a province-wide campaign against ragweed for the last few years and the pollen count has been reduced to such an extent that its tourist bureau is using "ragweed free" as its chief enticement in its promotional literature this year.

The City of Montreal has had its ragweed destruction program in operation since 1946 and a notable decrease in the pollen count has been effected. One important factor noticed in the Montreal campaign is that, even if one municipality is free of ragweed, the air may still be thick with pollen from adjoining municipalities. The willingness of bordering municipal governments to co-operate with Montreal to control the pollen-bearing weed was largely responsible for the lowered pollen count in the city itself.

The most effective weapon against ragweed is the herbicide 2,4-D, now available in unlimited quantities. There remains only concerted action by municipalities or by the provincial governments to make the latter months of summer enjoyable for everyone. The big sneeze can be stifled, and it's not too late to do it this year.

The Fat and the Lean

THERE'S a campaign on against the fat man. Insurance companies and medical authorities alike view with alarm the increased strain on the heart and arteries and warn of the dangers of being overweight.

The corpulent ones, who long have taken refuge behind such euphonisms as "pleasingly plump", now must come into the open to defend their corporations. It will take some doing.

For those who care to consult them there are lengthy tables of statistics pointing a finger of doom at those who carry excess poundage. That finger may well strip away much of that poundage.

But can our national disposition afford it? The fat man, like Old King Cole, traditionally has been thought of as a merry soul. Now, it seems, it no longer is sufficient to be fat and jolly; you must be jolly without being fat.

Is it possible? The mind's eye conjures up legions of food-loving fat men suffering daily as they deny their bay windows their natural form of expression. Think of the mental anguish involved in this form of self-repression! Will they snarl at their families and business associates?

And what of the possible danger to the national economy? Will bakers go bankrupt when no one buys their pies, their tarts, their cakes? Will long lines of unemployed form where once stood ice cream factories, confectionery firms and delicatessens?

We think not. Human nature being what it is, these industries are not in much danger. The fat man, once thinned, will fatten again as his sense of danger relaxes. And there are always those who care not a fig for statistics.

They just enjoy themselves and let the fat come with the lean.

Maybe, in spite of the campaign against the fat man, they'll live longer that way.

Play Safe!

WHEN black flies and mosquitoes have had their fling around the old swimmin' holes — it will be time to heed more ominous perils. We note the more civilized man-made bathing spots are opening soon for business. At the same time, the lakes and streams and unsupervised beaches will be springing to life with humanity seeking recreation. . . Danger lurks!

It is timely to review and memorize the following suggestions from the Water Safety Service of the Canadian Red Cross, as circulated by the local committee of the Red Cross unit:

Safe Swimming

Don't swim alone.

Don't swim at unsupervised swimming places.

Don't dive into unknown water. Rocks and branches may be hidden.

Don't swim after eating. Wait at least two hours.

Don't swim when overheated. Cool off gradually first.

Don't swim when overtired.

Don't swim too far from shore. Swim parallel to the shore.

Don't swim until you become exhausted, particularly if the water be cold.

Don't swim after dark unless thoroughly familiar with the swimming area, unless you know it is safe, and are accompanied by a "buddy". Stay close to shore.

Don't panic if you should get into difficulties. You must think clearly if you are to do the right thing.

Don't "duck" or push bathers into water. Playfulness may cost a life.

Safe Boating

Don't go out in a small boat unless you are a swimmer or are wearing a life preserver.

Don't overload any boat, large or small.

Don't use any boat that is not completely seaworthy.

Don't go out in a boat in stormy weather.

Don't stand up in a boat or canoe. Learn to handle watercraft.

Don't change places in a small boat.

Don't leave the boat if it capsizes. Cling to it until rescued.

Don't attempt to swim to shore.

Don't use home-made rafts or logs as boats.

MONTREAL – MAELSTROM AND MILLSTREAM

By GEOFF.

Teeth are a snare and a delusion. First of our appendages to decay in life, last to crumble in death, they are a source of pain and tribulation through life without constant care, they keep a numberless host of dentists busy across the face of the globe.

I've never cared much for dental practitioners, not since I first entered the dusty recesses of a dentist's office in Ottawa a quarter of a century ago. Even though techniques have improved immeasurably in those 25 years, I still don't trust the men. The memory of that Capital City session is too firmly fixed in my mind.

I suppose I went to the dentist in the first place because something was wrong with my teeth. But, even if there wasn't anything the matter, that old fellow made sure he found something to fix.

"Ah, hah!", he cried, leering at me. "What have we here?"

That, I considered a foolish question and wished I could give him an equally foolish answer. However, he had filled my mouth with his hand and a gleaming steel crow-bar. I was in no position to answer. I writhed under his probing, hoping he might stop but he carried on relentlessly.

"Now this won't hurt you a bit", he continued as he removed his hand and attacked me with the drill.

I sat in the chair cringing while my head shook and rattled under the drill. To this day, I don't know what that man did. One thing is certain, however, whatever he did didn't hurt him one bit, but I hit the roof. On the way down, I bit solidly upon his finger with all the teeth he wasn't using at the time. The doctor screamed with pain and made several nasty remarks about my ancestry. But from that moment on, we understood one another and he took greater care not to offend me.

Last week, my present dentist summoned me to appear before him for the bi-yearly check-up. We have had several bouts already, this dentist and I. He won the last round with seven fillings that caused me excruciating pain. So it was with some reluctance that I entered his office last Saturday.

"Hmm", he mused, as he gazed into my open mouth. "I think we'll clean them up first and probe later."

Within minutes, my teeth gleamed as never before. Then came the probe. Portside, topside, starboard, aft, he picked and prodded. He found nothing wrong, the enamel held.

"I'll X-ray", he said, "just to make sure."

I waited, tense and perspiring, for the verdict.

"Come back at Christmas", he declared finally. "Nothing to do today."

A wave of relief swept over me. No drilling, no pulling, no pain. I'd won the round hands down and I was free to go. But as I left the office and rang the bell for the elevator I had the distinct feeling that somehow, somewhere, I'd been gyped.

It cost me seven dollars to have my teeth cleaned.

Across the Country

Kidded by his conferes in Wiarton, Ont., council, Alderman Karl Hillgartner smiled and said, "I paid", after it was reported the police chief had pinched him on a parking violation; Hillgartner is head of the committee in charge of the police department. . . . Farmers put on a bee at Weyburn, Sask., helping local oranizations prepare to establish a Coronation Park. . . . Mrs. Ed. Fisherman's Luck

A friend of mine who is a very keen and experienced fisherman, once took his next door neighbor along on a fishing trip. The neighbor knew nothing at all about the Piscatorial Art, owned no tackle, and had very little enthusiasm. Anyway, he was persuaded to go along.

On arrival at a small river somewhere in Argenteuil County, my friend supplied a rod, line, sinker, bait and a conspicuous green and red float to the greenhorn, placed him on a projecting rock and told him to let out enough line to enable the float to reach a quiet pool a little farther downstream. Then he walked a short distance upstream and began to fly-fish for trout.

A few minutes later the greenhorn hailed him. "What did you call that green and red thing you tied on my line?" he shouted.

"That", said my friend, "was a float."

"How much is it worth?"

"Oh, about a quarter."

"Well then, I owe you a quarter. The darn thing just sank!"

When evening came they erected the tent, laid out the two camp cots, and after a good bean supper eventually retired. During the night it rained. The greenhorn couldn't close an eye. It was a new experience for him and he simply wasn't having a good time. But it was old stuff to his companion, who snored all night and was up at daybreak. The rain had stopped and the sun was dispersing the clouds. My friend took one look outside the tent and was spellbound with the prospects of a good day's fishing. He shook the greenhorn awake (he had just dropped off to sleep from sheer exhaustion) and led him outside to share the beautiful sunrise.

"Gee! What a day!" he shouted in glee. "I slept like a baby last night!'

"Yeah", answered the greenhorn. "My bed was wet too!"

Looking over a large display of multi-colored casting-plugs one day I asked the salesman: "Are those things really supposed to catch fish?" "No", he replied. "They're supposed to catch fishermen. If you had a piece of wood, shaped and painted to represent a pork-chop, would you eat it? Gimme a live minnow or a night-crawler any time."

I'm often inclined to think that fish have more sense than men.

Be seein' ya!

Malenkov's Dilemma

By Lewis Milligan

A Chinese philosopher, I forget which one, said that once you set out to reform mankind you are entering upon a task that will have no end. The Chinese have had a much longer experience of human life than we of the Western world and in their earlier centuries they no doubt tried out all kinds of methods of reforming one another. Judging by their latter method of dealing with delinquents, social and political, they evidently have given up trying to reform them. They line them up in a public place or their knees, with their hands tied behind their backs, and cut off their heads with a sword. The idea being, I suppose, that this quickly disposes of the delinquents and also of the endless task of trying to reform them.

Our forefathers used similar methods of disposing of political delinquents. They chopped off their heads with an axe, but they did not do it on so wholesale a scale, and they confined it chiefly to delinquent kings and high-placed politicians. King Charles the First lost his head that way, but he had lost it in another way some time before by assuming that he had the "divine right of kings" to dispose of parliament. Parliament refused to be disposed of, and after trying in vain to reform the wayward king, disposed of his head. The operation was successful in reforming his successors to the throne.

Reformation by the guillotine proved effective in the French Revolution, and by various other means in the Bolshevist Revolution in Russia. It might have reformed Germany and prevented the Second World War if it had been applied in time to Hitler. There were plenty of would-be reformers in Russia before the Revolution, but they were for the most part, wild-eyed idealists in a hurry, not only to reform Russia, but the whole of mankind. As far back as 1880 Dostoievsky made a speech on "The Mission of Russia" in which he said: "To become a true Russian is to become the brother of all men, a universal man. Our future lies in Universality, not won by violence, but by strength derived from our own ideal — the reuniting of mankind." Most of the characters in Dostoievsky's novels are incredible demon-ridden creatures of the underworld, while others are incredibly pure and meek. These latter, the author believed, would bring about the salvation of the world.

But the meek did not inherit the authority of the Kremlin; that was taken over by the wild-eyed fanatics of the underworld who proceeded to torture the meek into submission, liquidate them or spirit them away to life servitude in labor camps.

Revolutions may have been the only means of disposing of the feudal system in Russia, and in time the Russian people may work out their own salvation. The Soviet leaders have been liquidating each other, and time itself has disposed of the chief leaders of the Revolution in the deaths of Lenin, Trotsky and Stalin.

The apparent change of attitude on the part of the new occupants of the Kremlin may be an indication that they have suddenly realized that they have enough to do in working out their own salvation without interfering with neighbor countries, much less in seeking to dominate the world. Perhaps it is too much to hope that this is the case, but time and mortality have an effective way of disposing of despots and subduing the ambition of their successors to power.

Stalin bit off much more than his successors can chew, and they and the Russian people must be suffering from indigestion. Maybe, in studying Chinese, Malenkov has come across the saying of that Celestial philosopher, and has decided that in trying to Communize the rest of mankind the Soviet has entered upon a task that can only end in disaster.

COLORFUL CUSTOM PASSING

Another colorful custom will disappear next year when treaty money will no longer be paid in cash from money piled on the Indian agent's desk. The appearance on the scene of a "cold" cheque will doubtless take away some of the true meaning of the event and give it too much of a commercial aspect — something bought and paid for.

FOR LOWEST-COST PERSONAL LOANS, SEE THE B OF M

Such Loans Can Be Obtained For Worthwhile Purposes

"There are many uses for Personal Loans", Donald Hay, manager of the local Bank of Montreal points out. "These may be secured for emergencies such as illness, or to buy some worthwhile asset. In the latter case, your purchase increases the value of your estate. And, too, you enjoy the benefit of it while you are 'saving' for it with your monthly loan repayments."

The interest rate on a $100 loan is only one half of one per cent per month. This means just 27 cents per month, when the loan is repayable in monthly instalments over a period of one year. And the interest charge remains the same in proportion, whether more or less is borrowed, for longer or shorter periods.

Basically, the B of M makes its personal loans on just one principle — that you are able to repay without straining yourself financially.

If you need money for some useful purpose, why not drop into the B of M to discuss your loan requirements with Mr. Hay? You will find that he will be pleased to assist you in any way that he can. And, if your proposition is sound, you'll find that there is money for you at the B of M.

The sad and untimely death of Joseph McAndrew occurred in the Royal Victoria Hospital on May 30. In his 67th year, Mr. McAndrew had been in failing health for several months.

He leaves to mourn his passing a brother, James, and a sister, Mrs. Ellen Hall, of Seattle, Wash., and a number of nephews and nieces.

Funeral service was held in the Brownsburg Catholic Church, where Solemn High Mass was said. Interment took place in the Grenville Cemetery.

At Hartland, N.B., the Board of Trade planned to send the first salmon caught in the pool to the Prime Minister; the Observer proudly ruminated that after the gift becomes an annual event, tourists will always say, when arriving, "Why this is the place where the first salmon always goes to the Prime Minister."

Two sets of twins were included in the 11 children baptized by Rev. Ellis King at St. Paul's United Church in Estevan on a recent Sunday. . . The first grandson after the consecutive births of 10 granddaughters brightened the life of the Harry Daniels, at White Rock, B.C.

Cen. School Board Change of Policy

have to take immediate steps to prepare their collection rolls for the new school year, in order that taxes may be collected as soon as possible to provide funds for the schools to re-open in September.

All these problems have been submitted to Dr. W. P. Percival, as the Director of Protestant Education, for his advice and guidance. It has already been acknowledged that certain amendments will have to be made to the Central Board Act, as the problems at present confronting this Central Board are common to all Central Boards throughout the province. The Legislative Sub-Committee of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education is at present studying the matter, but some time is likely to elapse before definite action is taken.

It was reported at this meeting that almost all the teaching staffs in schools throughout the Unit were complete for next year. It is expected that the few vacancies that remain will shortly be filled.

It was reported that an election for school commissioners is to take place in Arundel on Monday, June 15, on instructions from the Superintendent of Education. Seven ratepayers were nominated last Monday for the five positions to be filled.

It was also reported that the meeting of the delegates to appoint members to the Central Board will be held next Monday evening. This is due to the fact that the terms of office of the present members expire the end of June. The basis of representation of local boards has been changed as compared with former years, on the recommendation of the Protestant Committee. The local board of Lachute appoints two members to Central Board, the Lake of Two Mountains Board appoints one, and the remaining local boards are divided into two groups, each of which is to elect a member to Central Board.

Instructors Learn Latest in Flying

Brantford (CP) — A refresher course for 30 men and one woman, all flying club instructors from Manitoba to Newfoundland, ended here recently.

The department of transport sponsored the course, which aims at providing a uniform pattern in civilian pilot training and increasing safety. It was held at the Brant-Norfolk Aero Club, one of the best of its kind in Canada, where thousands of pilots have been trained.

Most of the pilots were chief instructors. The only woman was Felicity Bennett, 23, an assistant instructor at the Kingston Flying Club. She is one of the few women instructors who make a living at it and was formerly a teacher at the Ontario School for the deaf at Belleville.

Two others were Tommy Wong and Al Mah, Chinese-Canadians who have logged about 10,000 flying hours each. Both flew for the Chinese Nationalists during the war with the Communists.

Mah is an instructor with the Montreal Flying Club and Wong is chief instructor with the Curtiss-Reid Flying Club of Montreal. Among other pilots who attended were John Galashan of Welland, Ron Sturgeon of St. John's, Nfld. Sturgeon, a former RAF pilot, won his wings in the United States and flew in India during the Second World War.

The group attended lectures by experts, some of them from the department. Each man did 20 hours flying and had hours of ground work. At the end of the course they received certificates.

He does not believe that does not live according to his belief.

Ch. of Commerce Has No Part in Store Closing

Good Publicity

In connection with the visit of Granby here today, it will be noted that it has been the Chamber's endeavor to learn as much as possible by visiting outside centres, and by bringing others to Lachute to observe our progress.

We have frequently been broadcasting over the airwaves, and Lachute has received much publicity via the radio. As a further step this visit from Granby has been televised, and with other pictures of Lachute Fair will be on the screen Friday evening, June 12.

* * *

Early Closing

For some time there has been discussion and considerable misunderstanding as to the closing of the stores on Saturday evenings, and in this regard the Chamber of Commerce takes no sides. We have merely stated, in this column, that a group of merchants (members of the Chamber of Commerce) had organized in favor of closing their stores. Another group, also members, are opposed to this idea and feel that the stores should remain open. We, the Chamber of Commerce, respect both opinions and their right to freedom of action. It has never been the idea of the Chamber to decide upon this question, and all that it can wish is that the matter be settled by the merchants themselves, harmoniously and to the best advantage of all. This campaign, whether for closing or remaining open, is being conducted by merchants, some of whom belong to the Chamber of Commerce, but it is entirely outside the Chamber's jurisdiction, and we have no active part in the course to be taken. Neither has the Chamber any connection with the publicity, in the form of posters and handbills, which are now being distributed.

In the year ending January 15, average wages of male farm help increased by one dollar per month: $87.00 per month with board, $122.00 per month without board.

RIDGWAY ARRIVES IN OTTAWA TO "PAY HIS RESPECTS"

A cordial welcome is extended by defence minister Claxton to General Matthew Ridgway, Allied commander in Europe, following latter's arrival in Ottawa in the company of his wife. Recently named chief of staff of the U.S. army, General Ridgway is in Canada to discuss military problems with Claxton and his chiefs of staff and to pay his respects to government before returning to Paris to give up his NATO post. He will also take time out to enjoy his favorite pastime, fishing, in the Laurentians. For 30 years, Ridgway said, he has been coming to the Canadian woods, and for 30 years "the big one" has been eluding him.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Induction Service For New Pastor at Dalesv'l Baptist Church

An induction service was held in Dalesville Baptist Church on Thursday of last week. A good number of members, friends and adherents gathered for the occasion, and the Rev. D. C. Merrett latterly from Toronto, was formally inducted as the pastor of the church.

Words of greeting were brought by the Rev. N. H. Brock on behalf of the Ministerial Association; by Mr. J. Richards, whose ministry this church much enjoyed when it was without a pastor; the Rev. B. Ward, of St. Laurent Baptist Church; and the Rev. J. Armstrong, of Snowdon Baptist Church, Montreal.

The Rev. J. Armstrong spoke very effectively on a text from I Thess. 5: 12, 13: "And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labor among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; And to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake, and be at peace among yourselves." It was a charge to pastor and people, solemn and challenging. The Rev. B. Ward brought the main address, speaking on the subject of revival — its need, its pattern, its reality.

The fellowship of the service was carried into the after-meeting, when refreshments were served by the ladies of the church.

Barbara Ann Bradford Bride in Pretty Ceremony At Lachute United Church

Cass - Bradford

Miss Barbara Ann Bradford and James Edward Cass repeated their marriage vows on Saturday afternoon in Lachute United Church. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough performed the ceremony before a background of iris, chrysanthemums and peonies.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce H. Bradford, of Lachute, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Cass, of l'Orignal, Ontario.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Kenneth McOuat, and Mr. Shirley McKyes was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white satin and net over a crinoline. French lace covered the round-necked bodice, flaring into three panels on the full skirt, with tight-fitting lace sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. Her Juliet cap of net and pearls held a fingertip veil of tulle illusion and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of blush pink and white carnations centred with an orchid.

Mrs. Grant Wilson, matron of honor, and little Miss Linda Bradford, flower girl, attended their sister, with Miss Phyllis MacDougall and Miss Gloria Cruise as bridesmaids. All three senior attendants wore, over crinolines, gowns fashioned after that of the bride, with dropped puff sleeves of French lace, in delicate shades of lilac, blue and yellow. They carried semi-cascade bouquets of tinted carnations, chrysanthemums and sweet peas toned to blend with each gown. The little flower girl wore a full-length gown of apple green nylon taffeta and net, over a crinoline, and carried a tiny basket of pastel sweet peas.

Lewis Cass, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Ushers were the bride's brother, Robert Bradford, and Mr. S. Henderson.

The mother of the bride wore an afternoon suit of navy crepe trimmed with sequins on white, with white accessories and a corsage of blush carnations. The groom's mother wore a gown of delft blue crepe with French lace bodice and navy accessories, and a corsage of deep rose carnations.

Following a reception in the United Church hall, Mr. and Mrs. Cass left for a honeymoon trip to Florida.

For travelling the bride chose a grey and white flecked linen suit, a small veiled straw hat of navy trimmed with mauve accents, and navy accessories. Her corsage bouquet was a mauve orchid.

Out-of-town guests included friends and relatives from Ottawa, l'Orignal, Montreal and the Eastern Townships.

The Rev. W. B. Rosborough performed the ceremony and Mrs. K. McOuat, church organist, played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Miss Eleanor Fox. Mr. James Tomalty, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Glendon McNeil and Mr. Robert Tomalty, brother of the groom.

Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of lily of the valley, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

The bride travelled in a pink-grey English worsted suit, with navy and pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Tomalty will take up residence in Lachute.

Hope for the Dead

IS A SOUL IMMORTAL? IS THERE A RESURRECTION? WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY?

If man is conscious after death, would not those who were awakened from the dead, such as Lazarus, who was dead four days, have had something to say about their unusual experience? But in death man is not conscious: "The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not anything" because "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in Sheol", the grave. — Ecclesiastes 9: 5, 10.

There is not one text in the Bible which states that the soul is immortal. Indeed there could not be, for such would contradict the above texts, and the Bible does not contradict itself. Jehovah God is immortal and incorruptible and so is His Son, Christ Jesus, since his resurrection. The doctrine of the immortality of human souls is based on Satan's first lie, "Ye shall not surely die." — Genesis 3: 4.

Instead of man's hope being in his possessing an immortal soul, the Bible shows that it is in a resurrection because of the ransom provided by Christ Jesus. Paul's entire argument in I Corinthians, chapter 15, is to the effect that Christ Jesus was raised from the dead and that since that is so, there is also hope for others who have died. He further shows that if there were no resurrection of the dead, then those fallen asleep in Christ would have perished, and that Christians would be of all men most miserable. But if at death man went to heaven, purgatory or some other place, then the apostle's argument would be pointless. — Matthew 22: 29-32; John 5: 28-29; Acts 24: 15; Corinthians 15: 1-33.

In view of the foregoing, it is not at all surprising that such religious authorities as Dr. S. D. McConnell, one-time rector of All Soul's Church, New York City, and Professor Frederick Palmer, A.B., D.D., onetime member of the Harvard Divinity faculty, tell that the Christians of the first two centuries after Christ did not believe in an immortal soul and that the idea was brought in by Grecian converts and gradually became a part of the so-called Christian religion.

The Bible is reasonable, clear and consistent on the matter of what constitutes the hope for the dead. It shows that man's hope lies not in immortality of the soul, but in a resurrection, an awakening from the dead.

"THIS MEANS EVERLASTING LIFE"

Would you like to live forever under perfect and righteous conditions? If so, then the Bible study aid "This Means Everlasting Life" will interest you. It presents sound Scriptural basis for this hope, a hope held out for even those in the tombs awaiting the promised resurrection. The volume contains 320 pages, has 30 chapters and a scripture index. Comes in beautiful red cover, gold-leaf stamped, and may be had on a contribution of 50 cents. — Watch Tower, 40 Irwin Ave., Toronto 4, Ont.

Dog Receives Two Wolf Cubs Into "Family Fold"

—Central Press Canadian

A pair of young wolf cubs taken from their den by a farmer after their mother was fought off with an axe, have been "adopted" by a dachshund dog owned by Newt Kincaid of Madoc, Ont. Showing little interest in the two timber wolf cubs when they were first brought to her door to be "mothered," the dachshund, who recently lost her own litter of pups, did a right about face and now accepts the cubs as her own much to the approval of John Rankin, left, and Ross Empey.

Attics May Conceal Valuable Pipe Music

Vancouver (CP) — Some Canadians may have a priceless book of Scottish music stuffed in a trunk in the attic. It is Gesto's "Collection of Pipe Music".

Pipe Major John MacLellan of the Seaforth Highlanders, touring Canada, said the book, published in 1826, was supressed because of lyrics containing derogatory remains about the church. One copy is known to have been taken to Canada.

He said many other sheets of pipe music are in Canada that may be in the hands of owners who do not know their value.

After the defeat in 1745 of Prince Charles the Pretender, he said, piping and Scottish dancing were banned and music was taken to Canada by successive groups of emigrants.

Pipe Major MacLellan said that piping is enjoying its greatest wave of popularity since the golden age between 1500 and 1750. He said the standard of technical performance in Canada is excellent but that the art of expression is declining as older men who learned piping in Scotland are dying out.

Grenville Consolidated School News

— By Elva Fowler —

On Friday, from 5.30 to 7.30 o'clock, a mother-daughter banquet was held for the Guides and Brownies and their mothers. About 100 persons were present. Since some of the mothers were unable to attend, the girls "adopted" mothers for the occasion.

A delicious supper, provided by the girls' mothers, was served. Toasts were proposed to the Queen, by Penny Foreman, and to the Mothers, by Mrs. Dixon, to which Mrs. Whinfield replied.

Four Brownies and their mothers played a guessing game, while four Guides and their mothers staged another interesting game.

Ten Guides put on the "Mock Quarrel Dance", while the Brownies demonstrated their "Soldiers' Joy Dance".

After the girls had formed the customary horse-shoe, Mrs. McGerrigle awarded Tenderfoot pins to Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Cowan and Mrs. Whinfield.

The pleasant evening closed with the singing of Taps, the traditional ending of a Guide meeting.

Lady Golfers In Swing of Season's Activity

Lachute lady golfers opened the season with a White Elephant Tournament on May 20, each player bringing and winning a prize.

After the tournament players and social members enjoyed tea in the Catalogne Room. Mrs. George Leggett, president of the Ladies' Committee, introduced Mrs. A. L. Collinge, Handicaps Manager for the C.L.G.U. in Montreal, who gave an interesting and informative talk on rules and golf etiquette, and said how much she enjoyed playing Lachute's beautiful course. Mrs. Collinge also welcomed the junior golfers and stressed their importance to competitive golf.

Mrs. Leggett urged as many members as possible to turn out for the Wednesday morning 18-hole tournaments, which start at 9 a.m. sharp. Nine-hole tournaments, for beginners and for those who cannot play 18, are also held on Wednesday at 1 p.m. The Business Girls' tournaments are held every Tuesday evening.

Eighteen-hole tournament winners for the past three weeks are as follows:

May 20 — Mrs. Gilbert Ayers.
May 27 — Mrs. George Leggett.
June 3 — Mrs. Howard Watson.

Miss Marthe Lafortune won the Business Girls' tournament.

Mrs. J. Dagenais and Mrs. Robt. Liyle, of Montreal, were recent visitors at the Lachute Golf Club when Mrs. Dagenais, Pars Manager for the C.L.G.U., played the course and gave the ladies a new par of 72.

On Thursday, June 4, six lady members from Lachute Golf and Country Club — Mrs. René Coté, Miss Fleur-Ange Carrière, Miss Cecile Ethier, Mrs. Jack Reade, Mrs. J. P. Martin and Mrs. Philippe Valois — attended the C.L.G.U. Inter-sectional match tournament at St. Lambert Country Club and won third place with 8½ points.

The second out-of-town C.L.G.U. tournament was held June 8 at Kanawaki for one to 24 handicaps. Three from Lachute attended — Mrs. Philippe Valois, Mrs. René Coté and Mrs. Jack Reade.

To help swell the ladies' prize-giving funds, card tables have been set up in the Tartan Room at the Club and members are urged to come and bring their friends every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock to play bridge, canasta, etc., at the cost of only 25 cents per person. Mrs. Leggett announced that two prizes are given for lowest scores.

Bar-B-Q

That sportsman Armand Bilodeau, owner of Chez Armand Restaurant, Main Street, offered a barbeque dinner at last Sunday's game to the first Tiger to hit a home run. The prize was won by Goulet. He also extended the offer to the first pitcher to win a game for Tigers. . . . Thanks, Armand — your encouragement is appreciated.

Manager

Yes, it is true that Len Pearson, ex-manager, was released by Ted Vachon, Business Manager of the Tigers. We will have to see a few games before we can give an idea of the present Tigers, for the new manager brought with him a couple of new pitchers. By this time the newcomers should have shown what they are able to do. Let's hope for the best; and as I stated earlier this season, the Tigers still seem to be the club to beat for the championship.

New Players

From Philadelphia a lefty pitcher, Severino; from the same place, Michetti, a 3rd baseman. To these and the other new players, welcome to Lachute, and Good Luck!

Ted Vachon

Ted Vachon was seen Sunday morning paying for drinks (soft) at Chez Armand. The same Ted found it strange last Saturday night to close early and have a free evening for his family.

Lionel Laurin

The president of the Association was in very good humor when he learned that all the new players were in town ready to see action; stating his own words, "Before long the Tigers will be where they belong, at the head of the Laurentide League, and the sick players will be in ship-shape to hit the ball again all around the grounds, and many a time over the fence."

Home and School Notes – Heard at the Convention

(Special to The Watchman)

"Perhaps the worst feature that has crept through our North American civilization today is a toleration of evil. We don't shudder at evil as we did many years ago. We are apt to be a little too tolerant. You see, we are living in what one might call a 'So what' age. . . 'All right, they did this or they did that, so what?' It is a very dangerous policy."

Good Old Days — Bunk!

"We speak of the 'good old days' when — there was no income tax, no cigarette tax, no road tax, no sales tax, no luxury tax, no — tax.

"There was no old age pension, no health services, no social welfare; only the poorhouse. Girls of 14 were strangers to lipstick, and were girls of 14. Crippled children remained crippled, the blind knew not Braille, and orphans were strays in the storm". . .

So you see there are always two sides, and the answer is always somewhere in the middle.

The Age of Squat and Look

"Trade your piano as a down payment on a television set. Try to tell a boy or girl about the delights of a taffy-pull, and you will be looked at as though you were slightly queer. Go on to tell them what fun you had on long walks through the countryside — and they will know you are queer."

Recreation

"Intensive competition, the desire to win, and gate receipts, are masking our vision as to the more important functions which sprout and which recreation should serve. It is our responsibility to see that the many thousands of boys and girls who want to play for the love of it, have the opportunity to do so. It is our obligation to see that participation receives its proper emphasis, rather than passive observation or 'spectatoritis'. That would be sanity in sport. The values of sport are no longer values unless they live with us in all our relationships. The rules of the game are the rules of life.

"And what about hobbies? J. B. Priestley, speaking over the radio the other day, said that you can take any little English village and you will find more hobbies in it than you will find in the whole North American Continent — excluding French Canadians. 'Most likely that is true', someone is going to say; 'so what!' Dr. Anderson says she has a hunch that is what took Britain through the blitz; their ability to enjoy the simple things of life. The battles of Britain may have been won on the playing fields of Eton, but I am dead sure the blitz wasn't won there."

Responsibility

"Another terribly important thing that we have to bring back is this business of the sense of responsibility. You know we are living in an age of hand-outs. It is appalling what is handed out to youngsters today. If they are not able to stand on their own feet, that is the reason. That is the reason too for much of the vandalism in our parks. People don't destroy what they build with their own hands or pay for out of their own pockets. We have to get back to the state where people did and made things for themselves, appreciated them and took care of them."

The Three R's

"Just at the moment 'the three R's' is taking an awful bashing about. They used to be reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic. Business executives say secretaries can't spell. The three R's isn't such a good example of orthography. Secretaries and graduates say they should be Rhythm, Recreation and Refreshments. These are all right in their place, but to make a success in life you will have to replace them with Recreation, Responsibility and Revival — a revival of all that is worthwhile in life.

Introspection

"What has all this to do with you individually? Where do you fit in? Obviously, if you aren't yourself enjoying a richer, fuller life, you can't pass it on to the children, can you? There are so few people today enjoying life. If there weren't so many people in the world today who obviously hate their jobs. That is pitiful. What should you do? Make a sensible budgeting of your time. It is not at all to your credit to stand up and announce that you are hurried from morning to night; that you have no leisure. That is not creditable. It is just bad budgeting. Medical science has presented you with 15 added years from that which you might have lived 100 years ago. If you don't budget your time sensibly so that you relieve the wear and tear, and not expend yourself ruthlessly and needlessly, you won't stand up — and you won't be able to stand up and enjoy those 15 years in the twilight of life, because you probably won't be here."

Whither Goest Thou?

"If the intent of education is to prepare man to experience happier, richer, more contented living, freedom from worry and want (and surely this is a reasonable ambition), then by present-day standards something has failed.

"In the science of human relationships (judged by world conditions today) we have been a dismal failure. The best and finest human intellects are failing to find a common ground for mutual trust and understanding, and as a result, we are all poised on the edge of the Unknown. Men were never so clever, yet never so bankrupt in human confidence and understanding. Mankind is better equipped to destroy itself than ever before, and every nation is frantically striving to improve its readiness for the job. Man seems to have control of everything but man. Think what could be done for human comfort and happiness if the products of men's minds and hands were used in the cause of human welfare, rather than for human destruction. We are completely surrounded by man's ingenuity and enterprise, yet it would seem the whole world is going in the wrong direction. The wars that have tortured two generations must not be repeated. Mark Twain once said: 'Man is the only animal that has the power to blush and is the only one that needs to'."

The Two Sides

"Open my ears to music; let Me thrill with spring's first flutes and drums —
But never let me dare forget
The bitter ballads of the slums.

"From compromise and things half done,
Keep me, with stern and stubborn pride,
And when at last the fight is won,
God, keep me still unsatisfied."

Free Chest X-Rays In Industrial Building

The Argenteuil Health Unit, with Dr. L. Turcotte in charge, will again be represented at the Lachute Spring Fair, offering to all comers the free X-ray TB test.

These chest X-ray examinations, performed by the Laurentian Anti-Tuberculosis League in co-operation with the local Health Unit, serve not only to detect TB but also to uncover evidence of other maladies arising from heart conditions, tumors or other chest diseases.

Public response to the Christmas Seals Campaign has been instrumental in making this examination free to all residents. Everyone is urged to have an X-ray at the Fair, and in this manner protect their homes and families against possible TB infection. The test you had last year is not good enough for this year, and it may not do you any good to postpone it until next year — so, get your free chest X-ray in the main building at the Fair.

Coronation Day Celebration at Morin Heights

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The Coronation committee headed by Councillor Edwin Holgate completed their arrangements. With Comrade Green acting as Parade Marshal, members of the Legion Branch 171, Morin Heights, and a detachment from the RCAF Station, through the kindness of the Commanding Officer, Wing Commander Jackson, held a very impressive parade through the Village to the Protestant School. At this point all the school children, both French and English, had formed in front of a platform to be presented with medals donated by the Legion and other organizations in Morin Heights, and also to be presented with the Federal Government medallions commemorating this special occasion. Speakers for the occasion were Mayor Chas. D. Campbell, Wing Commander Jackson, who was accompanied by his adjutant, F/O W. MacDowell, the Rev. Father Viau, of St. Sauveur, Col. Garnet M. Strong, chairman of the Protestant School Board, the Rev. Robt. Blair, chaplain of the local Legion, the Rev. H. G. Baugh, assistant chaplain, and the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh of Lakefield. Flags were also presented to the school children.

At night a grand fireworks display took place, with Comrades Cameron, E. Kneeland and Basler acting for the committee. Councillor Holgate thanked all organizations of the municipality for the splendid co-operation which he had received in making the arrangements.

St. Andrews Regatta Planned for July 26

One of the most ambitious regatta programs in St. Andrews East is being organized for July 26 by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Prize donations last year amounted to $500, and it is expected this amount will be exceeded for the coming Regatta contests. It is stated the entries from Canadian and U.S. enthusiasts already exceed 30 in number.

The St. Andrews lay-out is rated by the Quebec Racing Boat Association as well suited — due to its calm, protected stretch of river — for hydroplane and speed events to be featured on this program.

New Talent

During the past few months several new names have cropped up on the playbills of CBC dramatic productions. The majority of these new radio voices are Canadian, but there are a few like Patrick MacNee (above) who are making a new life for themselves in Canadian radio after gaining experience in England. MacNee has been able to show his acing abilities on a variety of programs including stage 53, CBC Wednesday Night, and Ford Theatre. Bruce Belfrage, Barry Morse, and Catherine Blake are a few more of those who have made a name for themselves in radio, films and television in Britain, and are now adding their talents to those of Canadian actors and actresses.

Sportsman Prince Expected to Attend Brit. Empire Games

News that H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh hopes to accept the invitation to attend and officiate at the British Empire and Commonwealth Games in 1954 has been greeted with tremendous enthusiasm by the people of Vancouver, the Pacific Northwest area and the whole of Canada.

Sports fans in Canada were particularly elated with the announcement because they will remember Prince Philip's carefree enjoyment at the sports events he attended during the Royal Tour of Canada in 1951.

The British Empire Games Committee is fortunate that their distinguished Royal Visitor is not only a great supporter of all sports, but brings with him a background of athletic achievement and accomplishment. He has won several trophies for track, cricket, polo and yachting and is famous as a great competitor in many other games.

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

Cookery Terms

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture are constantly receiving letters from homemakers who need help with cooking problems. Many young homemakers want to know what the various meat cookery terms mean. One rather bewildered bride wrote that she was having great difficulty trying to figure out what was meant when the terms "simmer", "boil" or "pot roast" were used in recipes. The home economists quite understood her predicament because some such terms are misleading. Take for instance the expression "boiled beef". Beef is not "boiled" by good cooks today, neither are eggs "boiled". Instead, these foods are "simmered", that is, they are cooked in water just below the boiling point. The reason for the lower heat is that protein foods are toughened by the high heat of boiling. Whenever you see the word "boiling", referring to meat cookery, it really means to "simmer" the meat or to cook it in water just below the boiling point.

"Braising" and "pot roasting" are two terms used when speaking of cooking meat by moist heat. Generally the word "braise" is used in referring to cooking small cuts of meat and pot roasting to larger cuts. When meat is braised or pot roasted, it is usually browned first in a small amount of fat, then liquid is added and the meat is cooked covered until tender, either on the top of the stove or in the oven.

The liquid from meat which has been braised or pot roasted should always be served with the meat. It may be thickened and served as a gravy or in some cases where the liquid is tomatoes or tomato juice, it is served as a sauce with the meat. The word "dredge" often appears in meat recipes. To "dredge" means to coat, usually with flour and the easiest way to do this is to put a small amount of flour in a paper bag. Then add the meat and shake well. The dredging helps to brown the meat and to thicken the gravy.

One interesting letter that the home economists received recently came from a young girl who planned to practice housekeeping for her summer holidays. She had never taken home economics in school and so she had to start from the beginning. The home economists sent her a complete set of their consumer bulletins and then they explained to her what the many terms used in recipes meant. One word they explained was "sauté". To "sauté" meat for example, brown it quickly on both sides, in a small amount of fat, in a pan. Then reduce the heat to a moderate temperature and cook the meat uncovered, turning occasionally, until it is tender. Actually many of us use the term "fry" instead of "sauté" — either is correct but the word "sauté" is the more modern term. "Deep-fat frying" is another type of frying but it refers to cooking food in a large amount of fat which has been heated to a definite temperature. With this method, meat, for example, is cooked completely at the one temperature. There can hardly be a discussion on meat cookery without explaining what "roasting" is. "Roasting" is a method of cooking in dry heat. The meat is cooked in an oven in an open shallow pan with no liquid added, at a specified temperature. This differs from pot roasting when roasts are cooked covered and water is added.

Broiling is another type of cooking by dry heat where the food is placed on a rack in a broiling pan and is cooked under the direct heat of the broiling unit. Broiled foods are becoming more and more popular and there are certainly many suggestions for using this method of cooking in cook books today. Most electric or gas stoves have broiling units, but the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture say that many homemakers are not too sure how to broil. Thick cuts of meat which take quite a long time to broil are usually placed further away from the broiling unit than thinner cuts. In electric stoves, the broiling unit is usually the top element of the oven. In gas stoves the broiler may be a separate set of jets under the oven or it may be a unit level with the top of the stove. Before starting to broil, be sure to read the manufacturer's directions for broiling in the booklet supplied with your stove.

Let's Eat

BY

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Your dessert looks delicieux, madame," observed the chef. "Is it a new kind of chiffon pie?"

"No; it's a duplex lemon snow pie. The bottom layer is rhubarb-raisin gel; the top a very fluffy lemon snow. The garnish should be colorful—such as these halved strawberries, or one could use red cherries. Are you ready to taste?"

The chef cut himself a piece and critically taste-tested. "It is rich, but would not have too many calories. Its slight tart flavor would be perfect after a baked ham, chicken or fish dinner. It is inside the budget, and at the same time glamorous."

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Hot or Chilled Tomato Juice
Tuna a la King
Flaky Potatoes
Spinach au Gratin
Lemon Snow Rhubarb Pie
Coffee Tea Milk

All Measurements Are Level
Recipes Serve Four

Spinach au Gratin

Clean and chop 2 lbs. fresh spinach, or use 1 (14-oz.) pkg. frozen chopped spinach. Cook without adding water. Season with 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. mono-sodium glutamate and a few grains nutmeg. Add ¾ c. soured cream. Spoon into buttered ramekins. Cover with coarse enriched bread crumbs mixed with melted butter or margarine. Brown in a hot oven, 425 deg. F.

Lemon Snow Rhubarb Pie

Bake a pastry shell. When cool, spoon in 1½ c. partly thickened rhubarb-raisin gelatin. Top with partly thickened lemon snow; refrigerate 2 hrs., or until firm enough to cut.

Rhubarb-Raisin Gelatin: Soften 1 envelope unflavored gelatin in 2 tbsp. cold water. Add ¾ c. boiling hot juice from well-sweetened stewed rhubarb; stir until dissolved. Then add ¼ c. moist raisins and 1 c. of the stewed rhubarb itself.

Lemon Snow Topping: Soften 1 envelope unflavored gelatin in 2 tbsp. cold water 5 min. Add to ¾ c. boiling water; stir until dissolved. Add ⅓ c. sugar; then cool. Add 2 tbsp. lemon juice and refrigerate 30 min., or until the consistency of an egg white. Beat 1 egg white stiff; add to the gelatin and whip until "light as snow." Refrigerate a few minutes until beginning to thicken. Heap on the pie and finish as directed.

PLATTER ARRANGEMENT FROM THE CHEF

Mesdames: No matter how simple the meal, present the dishes with importance. For today's main course, place the flaky whole potatoes in the centre of a deep, heated platter. Spoon over the tuna a la king, and garnish the edge with parsley sprigs. Et voila!

Pork Recipes

Midget Pork Pies

1 12-ounce tin pork luncheon meat, 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup finely chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped celery, ½ cup milk, pastry using 2 cups flour, 1 cup tomato sauce.

Mince the pork. Add the flour, pepper, onion, celery and milk and blend well. Roll out the pastry into a rectangle 12" x 18". Cut into 6-inch squares. Form the meat mixture into 6 patties. Place one patty on one half of each square and fold over the other half to form a triangle. Press edges together with a fork. Bake on a baking sheet in a hot oven, 425°F., for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve with tomato sauce. Yield: six servings.

Potato - Pork Roll

1 12-ounce tin pork luncheon meat, 6 tablespoons dry crumbs, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, ⅓ cup milk, 1 cup mashed potatoes, 1 cup mashed peas, 1 cup mushroom or tomato sauce.

Mince the pork, add the crumbs, pepper, egg and milk and blend thoroughly. Place on a sheet of waxed paper and press out into a rectangle ¼ to ½ inch thick. Spread half the surface with mashed potatoes. Spread the other half with peas. Roll the meat firmly, jelly-roll fashion, starting at the potato end. Place the roll on a baking sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°F., for 25 minutes or until browned. Serve with mushroom or tomato sauce. Yield: six servings.

You can't judge a book by its cover any more than you can judge an egg by the color of its shell. Whether brown or white-shelled, the flavor of the contents depends upon the feed the hen has received and the quality or freshness of the egg. The Government grade mark is the assurance of quality but the color of the shell is only an indication that the egg was laid by a certain breed of hen.

Resolutions Passed By Consumers' Assn.

The Quebec (English-speaking) Branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers, meeting in Montreal recently, registered its disapproval of coupons and premiums as a form of advertising; requested that in future potatoes be sold in bulk or pre-packaged in such a manner that customers could readily examine the contents; sought relief from sales tax on clothing for children up to the age of 16 regardless of size labelling; and asked that the Quebec Government enact legislation requiring that the effective annual rate of interest be shown on all loan or credit sales contracts and in all advertising.

Mindful of the problems of the Canadian farmer, the Quebec C.A.C. asks the promotion of the sale of vitaminized apple, tomato and grape juice as an economical source of Vitamin C from Canadian products.

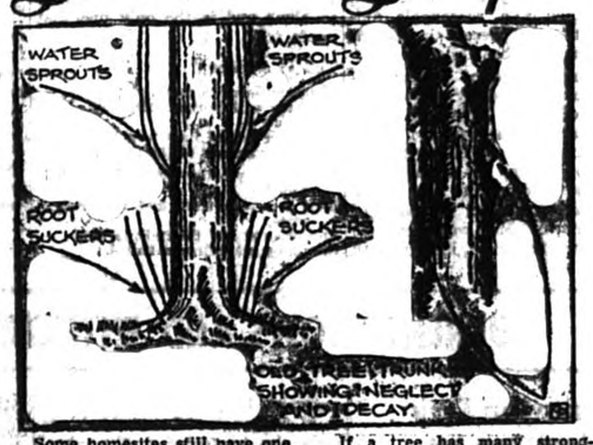

Formed by the sponsorship of 56 national women's organizations, the Canadian Association of Consumers considers one of its most important functions, increasing consumer understanding of economic and other problems of production and distribution, and acquainting producers with consumer desires. The Association speaks for about twenty thousand individual members, and through its affiliation with other national women's groups represents hundreds of thousands of other women in Canada. Representation on the national board by 15 national women's groups guards against the Association ever becoming the tool of a subversive group. The Canadian Association of Consumers is non-political, non-sectarian, and membership is open to every woman resident in Canada for a very small annual fee. Monthly bulletins are published by national headquarters, and quarterly newsletters go out from the Quebec Branch as well. Information about membership or help in forming a group can be obtained by writing Canadian Association of Consumers, 150 Sun Life Bldg., Montreal.

CANADIAN POULTRY IN DETROIT

The Detroit market absorbs quantities of Canadian poultry products annually. The Michigan Department of Agriculture reports that total receipts of Canadian poultry products in Detroit during 1952 were as follows: shell eggs, 29,343 cases; dressed poultry, 20,345 pounds; live poultry, 2,010,714 pounds.

Garden-Graph

Some homesites still have one or two old apple trees which, for sentimental reasons, have escaped being chopped down. Many such trees have been so neglected that they produce little worth while fruit. Nevertheless, even if the trees are 30, 40 or 50 years old, they can be given a new lease on life and made to produce good fruit as their contribution to the home garden.

If you happen to have one or more old apple trees, check them for root suckers and water sprouts. Both are illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The root suckers are those growths pushed up from the ground at or near the base of the trunk. Water sprouts make their appearance on the trunk and main branches of an old tree.

If a tree has many strong-growing root suckers or water sprouts it indicates that the tree is healthy, has a sound trunk and, therefore, is worth renovating.

If the trunk of a neglected apple tree shows signs of abuse, wrong pruning and decaying stubs, as illustrated, it is not worth spending time or money in trying to give it a new start in life. In such cases it is better to cut down the tree and thus make room for the planting of a new one.

If you plan to renovate an old apple tree, it may be done at any time after the leaves drop in the fall. Pruning done in the fall can be followed by spraying with miscible oils to clean up San Jose scale and other insects that may infect the tree.

FOR PARENTS ONLY...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Nature Lore

— By NANCY CLEAVER — (Copyright)

"Summer in a-comin' in". . . So goes the old song — and the holiday season is a wonderful time to encourage a child's interest in nature lore. What mother has not listened to questions like these:

"See the big white clouds like giant cream puffs. What kind are they?" . . . "Listen to that bird whistling two long notes and then several short notes. Do you know his name?"

The important thing in a Nature Lore hobby of any kind is for a parent to stop and share a young child's enthusiasm in the discovery of a flower, a butterfly, a frog, or whatever arouses his interest, at the time he comes running to tell of his new "find". A boy or a girl who is "put off" with no response on a parent's part, or with a promise of help at some future time, is disappointed and discouraged. To a child, there is no time like the present! Ignorance need be no hindrance. Parent and child can seek the information they wish together in a good guide or reliable handbook. There are many different types of Nature Lore projects but the following are popular with boys and girls because they are linked with a child's love of activity. Most of them are carried out in the open air, but some of them, such as drawing an animated map, can be fitted into the bed-time hour or into a long rainy day.

A tadpole aquarium is an excellent venture. Use a large glass bowl, a big glass fruit jar, or even a wash tub, and build up a miniature aquarium with sand, stone, and green water plants. Collect some frogs' eggs and catch a few tiny tadpoles. Put them into their new home, change the water once a week, feed the tadpoles (but don't stuff them). They like oatmeal or cornflakes — and just watch their legs grow and their tails disappear!

Make an animated calendar for either July or August. Get a large sheet of white cardboard. Rule it off like a page of a calendar, placing the name of the month, and the names of the days on the top and small figures of the numbers of the days in the upper right hand corner of each square. Have someone in the family assigned for each day in turn, who will fill in the square for that day with a small drawing, colored with crayon, of some fascinating Nature Lore discovery which has just been made — a magnificent clump of ostrich fern beside the trail, a pitcher plant near a swamp, a loon's nest on an island. Have the animated calendar placed back on the wall with its new drawing at bed time each night (with a little praise for the picture drawn by that day's artist!)

Make a special study of the types of clouds and of the weather. Practice forecasting the weather and tise forecasting the weather and weather signs as a ring around the moon, the sun "drawing water", a mackerel sky, or the wind shifting to the East.

"My heart leaps up when I behold a rainbow in the sky". Who has not echoed Wordsworth's lines? A rainbow is something not to miss! Next time the sun comes out, when it has been raining, turn your back to the sun and look for a rainbow. See if you can distinguish all seven of its colors. Explain to a child how the sun's rays falling on the drops of rain are bent and reflected different degrees and thus produce a rainbow.

An interest in Nature Lore can begin very early and last all through life. Share this happy leisure time activity with your child!

Executive Meeting of Quebec Women's Inst.

An executive meeting of the Quebec Women's Institutes is being held this week in Montreal to make final plans for the provincial convention. This will be held June 23-25 at Macdonald College and will be preceded by the annual board meeting, which will open Monday, June 22, at the same place.

Topics connected with the coming conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, in Toronto, August 12-23, will also be discussed by the Q.W.I. executive. Overseas delegates, who are not taking the western tour, will be the guests of the Q.W.I. for a few days at the close of the conference. The Montreal Council of Women is assisting with arrangements while the visitors are in the city and two and three-day tours are being planned to cover some sections of the Laurentians, points south of Montreal, and the Eastern Townships, before the delegates leave for Quebec City, where they will be guests of Les Cerles des Fermières for a day before proceeding Country oWmen of the World, in August.

Apples sold in any containers are graded: Extra Fancy, Fancy and "C", in order of quality. Right now, Gravenstein apples are in good supply, and McIntosh and others are also on the market.

JOB FOR PARENTS

While we think most comic books are tasteless, inept and boring in the extreme, we can't see why they should be legislated against. Parents should not expect to have the laws do what the home authorities should be doing.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Bennett and family visited Mrs. Bennett's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Taylor, of Lachute, last week.

It was omitted to mention in last week's news that Miss Dora Trineer, of Calumet, won the door prize at the "military whist" held recently in Grenville School.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Copeland, of St. Hermas, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cousins and family.

Mrs. Fred Kelly, of Hawkesbury, held a Tupper-ware demonstration at Mrs. F. Cousins' last Thursday evening. The event was largely attended.

"I don't like to criticize", said the English visitor, "but I do think our way of answering the telephone is better than yours."

"Oh? What do you say that's so much better?"

English visitor: "Well, instead of saying 'Hello', we say 'Are you there?' Then, of course, if you're not there, there's no use going on with the conversation."

Good Progress on Lake Project at Morin Hts. Meeting

Views of Land Owners And C.N.R. Representative

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — A special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held recently under chairmanship of A. Basler, the president, with a considerable attendance of members and property holders to discuss the community lake project.

The president explained that much work had been done on preliminary plans for this lake. He stated that a lake had been discussed several years ago in Morin Heights but that it had not materialized, and now with the co-operation of everyone in Morin Heights he thought there was a very good chance that an attractive lake could be developed in the village. He then called on Geo. Binns to give his ideas on the plans.

Mr. Binns said that the place for the dam was well chosen, as there would probably be a very good natural foundation. It would be necessary to determine what kind of a dam would be necessary — concrete or earth-fill.

Paul Baumel, chairman of the lake project committee, said that this meeting was called only to get the reaction from the property owners on flooding rights. He pointed out that business would increase, property would be higher in value, and that the property around the proposed lake now is only swamp, useless for farming or building.

Mr. Kay, for the C.N.R., spoke at length about the railway tracks and trestles in relation to the lake levels. He advised that the piece of land used for the lake running along the C.N.R. property would have to be surveyed by a Quebec land surveyor and submitted to the railway company; this should be the first consideration on the proposed lake. After having received the approval of the C.N.R., the rest of the work could be proceeded with. The C.N.R. would request a plan of the dam. Mr. Kay offered to come here the day the surveying for the C.N.R. would be done, and he could explain exactly what the railway requires on the plans.

Carl Seale gave his opinion that the lake would be a very good thing for Morin Heights, and that he would surrender the necessary land for flooding rights.

R. J. Seale also stated that he would give flooding rights for all that was needed on his property.

Jos. Brown stated that the water would cover over half of his land and that he would want remuneration for same.

T. E. Seale said that he was in favor of the lake and would give flooding rights to the extent necessary.

P. Moss advised that, as his land was under D.V.A., he would have to consult the department for proper procedure.

A. Hamilton stated that he was in favor of the lake, but that he wanted at least 3 feet of water at the edge. He said that if everyone reclaimed their own land he would do the same, but otherwise he would go half on the cost with the Chamber of Commerce.

Max Baumel stated that, although he now owns a piece of property on this project, by the time negotiations were completed he did not expect to have the proprietorship of same.

Mr. Denis and his brother, who own a considerable piece of land on the project, stated they would accept another piece of land to surrender theirs. They advised that if this land was on a good location around the lake they would want only good building lots; but that if the land was in a poor location they would want a larger lot.

Paul Baumel expressed satisfaction with the meeting, and now that the Chamber of Commerce has the majority of the property owners in favor of the lake they can go ahead with further plans.

President Albert Basler suggested that the reclaiming of the land on individual properties would be quite an expensive proposition, so he suggested that when the time came to do this, perhaps the Chamber could hire a bulldozer and then rent it out to individual property owners at a lower rate than they could rent one themselves. He also advised that it might be a good idea to flood the land before any bulldozing is done and see where the lake will cover, then to drain the land and do the necessary work. This will all be discussed at a later date.

THE NINE ORPHANS

By Edgar Kennedy

Ed. Note: Mr. Kennedy, author of the book, "Mission to Korea", served for eight months with the Unified Command in Korea as an expert on refugees, a subject he learned thoroughly during extensive work in Europe for the United Nations after World War II. In his efforts to aid Korea's war victims he frequently found himself depending upon CARE for essential supplies. In his present post with the Refugee Survey Group, an independent body set up by the UN, he has offered his services as a lecturer and writer to help stimulate public support for CARE's Korean relief program.

The Koreans have a phrase to describe their weather. They say: "Three warm days followed by four cold ones." It was during a bittrely cold spell that I first heard of the Nine Orphans.

Taejon, the capital of the province of North Chungchong, saw capture by the communists and recapture by the United Nations forces. When I arrived there the buildings were shattered and little remained of this once-thriving town but a heap of rubble. Word came to me that nine orphans had been collected by some kindly GIs and brought by truck to the provincial hospital. What remained of the hospital was a wall and a roof. There were no doors, no windows, no heating and needless to say, nothing even vaguely resembling furniture remained. What shell-fire and bombing had left, the communists had looted.

I made my way up a narrow stairway on which were seated or lying patients too ill to move. On the second floor I was led to the room where the Nine Orphans were. They were huddled on the floor under a window from which the glass had been blown out. One blanket covered the emaciated bodies. Five of them had the inflated bellies and gixed stare of the famished. The others were in various stages of undernourishment and two had been badly burned. Four of them were naked. This poor, pathetic group was one of the many tragic results of the fighting then taking place at Chonan. There was little to do but to move them to the overcrowded Buddhist orphanage, where at least they would receive a thin rice gruel and be partly protected from the bittrely cold blasts which moaned despairingly through the draughty corridors.

At that time relief from UNCACK and Korean sources consisted of three hops (about a pound and a half) of rice a day — when available, and the only hope of saving the lives of these orphans was by appeal to a voluntary agency, for the badly needed extras which were not available from any other sources.

I have often wished that the anonymous donor of a CARE package could have seen the result of the gift. Its effect was far wider than saving the lives of nine orphans in a remote land. It gave a sense of being remembered to those who might otherwise have believed themselves abandond and forgotten. The staff of the orphanage — two women and one man, to care for some 90 children — told me how the gift of a few bars of soap enabled them to have the children and a few bits of clothing really clean for the first time in over a year. The cloth in the CARE package was used for the Nine as they were, at that time, the most badly off.

In the bitter winter I followed closely the progress of the Nine Orphans, in whom I had a proprietary interest. The increase in strength of the Nine marked also the increase in good-will towards the Americans which the CARE package had promoted. The Koreans had seen mostly tanks and aircraft as smybol of Western might and for the first time in this orphanage they saw an example of America's warm sympathy through CARE.

Donations in any amount to provide $10 food or clothing packages for Korean orphans, refugees and other destitute civilians can be sent to CARE, 73 Albert Street, Otawa.

Police Radio Considered for Morin Municipality

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The usual monthly Council meeting was held with Mayor Chas. D. Campbell presiding and with Councillors Max Baumel, R. E. Jamieson, Edwin Holgate and Andre Legault forming a quorum. J. W. Green filled his customary role as secretary.

Paul St. Denis placed before the Council a suggestion that the police car be fitted with a two-way radio and he would use his taxi station as a means of contact for any police calls. This suggestion was well received, with assurance that the Council would give it due consideration.

The monthly reports of the Fire Chief and the Police Department were read by the secretary. In accepting the reports the Council voted expenses for the Fire Chief to attend the annual Fire Chiefs' convention at Quebec. The financial statement as prepared by the Auditor, J. H. McMahon, was also read by the secretary, and Councillor R. E. Jamieson expressed great satisfaction as to the financial standing of the municipality. Councillor M. Baumel also stated that the secretary-treasurer deserved a great deal of the credit for the financial standing, and it was then moved by Councillor Jamieson, seconded by Councillor Baumel, that the annual statement be accepted, with the complimentary remarks recorded in the minutes.

A hospitalization card was accepted in favor of a local resident, and the mayor was authorized to sign same.

A Curfew by-law bearing No. 61 was presented and read. This was unanimously adopted, and the secretary was ordered to have same posted for the period as required by law.

A resolution was passed authorizing acceptance of plans for a new bridge at the outlet of Lake Echo, Range I, on the Lake Echo Road near W. J. Seale's, and authority given to the secretary to have Gatineau Power Company replace a pole in that area.

The meeting then adjourned until Monday, June 15, as the remainder of the Council business could not be completed at this session.

GOOD OLD PICNICS

In the good old days the regular picnics on Sunday were very much looked forward to by young and old. Nowadays the old-fashioned picnics seem to be on the wane.

"The Week at Ottawa"

By Leslie Wilson,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 8 (CP) — The heart of Canadian dedication to the Queen flowed from Ottawa last week where 100,000 persons paid homage to the young sovereign in her hour of glory.

They lined the city's downtown streets to cheer the procession of 7,000 of the Queen's troops. They cheered the horse-drawn landau which bore Governor - General Massey to Parliament Hill in his white-plumed, black cocked hat and gold-braided ceremonial dress.

They thrilled as some 100 warplanes swept the skies overhead in a flypast which was climaxed by the creation in the sky of "E II" by a flight of Sabre jets and the 10,000-foot climb of three more Sabres which simulated by their vapor trails the three plumes borne by Princes of Wales for 300 years.

They listened quietly and soberly when the Queen's voice came over loudspeakers as she spoke by radio from London to her subjects overseas.

Festivities went on far into the night. Ottawa's Chinese population — less than 1,000 in numbers — celebrated the Coronation in their own way. In a period of less than an hour and in an area a block long and ½-block wide, they exploded 200,000 firecrackers.

Strange Armada

In Ottawa also, the world's strangest armada marked the Coronation — also in its own way. Ottawa's city councillors donned their ceremonial robes and piled into a 44-ton cabin cruiser which led a flotilla of 30 craft 3.8 miles down the Rideau Canal from Dow's Lake to centretown Ottawa. The idea was Mayor Charlotte Whitton's. She herself was in London attending the Coronation. But the council sang jaunty seasongs, danced jigs and waved to the crowds which lined the banks of the canal.

In another part of Ottawa, the Governor - General received 700 guests at Canada's first state ball in 40 years. It was a gay and sophisticated affair. There were diamond tiaras a-plenty with ball gowns from London and Paris and Rome, and exotic saris and kimonos.

Comet Jet Transport

The RCAF gave the press and radio a round-trip to New York in its latest acquisition — a $1,200,000 British Comet jet transport. The 900-mile flight took less than three hours and the Comet banked over Manhattan 57 minutes after it took off from Ottawa's Uplands airport.

Average speed on the first leg of the trip was 473 miles an hour. It was about 50 miles better than on the 57-ton giant's delivery flight to Uplands May 29. On that occasion the Comet made the trans-Atlantic crossing at about 420 m.p.h., in 10 hours, 20 minutes.

The Comet can fly 600 miles an hour.

The 40 press and radio men on the trip sat in comfortable relaxing chairs in a forward cabin or walked about in a blue-and-grey-decorated cabin aft. The plane was remarkably steady. One man balanced a pencil on end on a table. Another balanced two five-cent pieces on edge.

Hog Cholera

Agriculture department officials announced that they may shortly reduce the 50,000-square-mile hog cholera quarantine area in Southwestern Ontario. Dr. Thomas Childs, veterinary director-general, said the virus disease is being contained in a well-defined area.

He didn't make clear just how the reduction would be made but other officials said there have been no outbreaks reported recently in such eastern Ontario counties as Durham, Ontario, Northumberland, Peterborough and the district of Muskoka.

A total of 2,227 hogs have been destroyed on 37 farms since the disease was first reported May 15.

Canada's Economy

Government officials had happy news for Canadians.

The statistics bureau announced that the country's economy took new strides in the first quarter of 1953, expanding in terms of production, retail sales and labor income.

And Laval Fortier, deputy immigration minister, said he thinks the country's population which stood at 14,692,000 on March 1 may reach 15,000,000 by the end of the year, due to immigration.

The statistics bureau said the index for industrial production based on 1933-39 equals 100, climbed to 247.0 in March from 222.2 last year. For the first quarter it averaged 240.3, compared to 217.7 a year ago. The index covers output of key products.

The bureau gave these other figures: average weekly earnings, $56, up from $52.50 a year ago; monthly retail business, $834,300,000, up from $771,500,000 last year.

Living Costs

The official chart of living costs declined during April for the sixth month in a row. The Consumer Price Index figure announced last Friday was down 1/5 of one point. The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, had reached its peak of 118.2 in December, 1951. At the end of April, 1953, the latest figures, it stood at 114.4. There were indications however of a rising trend in the future. The wholesale industrial commodities index was edging upward, and prices of farm products also showed gains.

Says Mining Firms Should Contribute to Road-Building Costs

Quebec — Premier Duplessis said recently that mining firms should make "reasonable" contribution towards the cost of building roads for the development of mining districts.

He made the statement to a delegation from the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of Abitibi, who asked that a road be built to link the town of Senneterre and the Opemisca mining region, 150 miles northeast.

The group said the road is needed to develop the area, near Chibougamau mining district.

Referring to mining firms' contribution for new roads, Mr. Duplessis said: "Those who are helped must help themselves."

He said the government will study the request because a new road in the area seemed justified. However, he said, the government has to spend money for the improvement of all areas in the province.

Have You A Question ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. I have been working at the same job for the past five years. I never missed a day. A month ago I had to take a rest on the advice of my doctor. When I left I asked my employer if he would take me back when my period of rest was over. He told me that he would. This week I went back on the job but he told me that he would prefer to take me back later on. He could not do so at the moment. In the meantime I am not earning any money. Do you think I can claim benefit or would I be refused?

A. Provided that you are now recovered from the illness that forced you to leave your job and there is no employment available to you, you would be eligible for benefits.

• • •

Q. Can a claimant lose his right to benefit if he refuses to accept employment offered when the salary is lower than that which he was formerly being paid and when the new job is quite different from his previous employment?

A. Yes, after a "reasonable" period of unemployment provided that the wages offered in the new job are fair wages for that type of employment.

Lachute Spring Fair Attendance Exceeds 1952

Fine Weather Contributes to Success; All Aspects of 127th Annual Show Gratifying to Agric. Society Directorate

Excellent Displays of Livestock, Crafts, Agricultural Equipment and Local Trades

The Lachute Spring Fair closed its four-day and four-night run with the paid attendance up 214 over last year. Wonderful weather prevailed throughout the length of the Fair, with the exception of several cool evenings.

Along with the weather, the 127th annual exhibition was perhaps one of the best ever held in this community. Entries were heavier than for many years in some classes, with record entries in several instances.

Trade Shows

The trade and industrial section, which covers the exhibits of farm machinery, farm equipment, cars and trucks, household appliances, etc., was much larger than in previous years. Most of those in charge of these exhibits were pleased with the public interest displayed and felt that some business was bound to result from them. Model Shows of Canada, who had the midway concession, presented the usual games of (slim) chance, with rides and amusements for young and old alike.

In Main Building

A drawing card for the Main Building was the Argenteuil Health Unit free X-Ray examinations for TB. An all-time record figure of 1,354 people were X-Rayed during the four days of the Fair, and will have their reports within a month or so.

Excellent displays of Women's Handicrafts were also on show in the Main Building with all local branches of the Women's Institutes, as well as the Cercle des Fermières from Brownsburg. Similar exhibits from the local schools were also shown, while an excellent display of woodwork was exhibited from Lachute High School as well as many of the County schools. (Winners in these exhibits are published on page 9.)

Service Clubs

Both the Lions Club and Rotary Club were out in force selling tickets for their respective drawings in aid of community betterment. Winner of the Lions' television set was Mrs. Alexandre Joly, Lachute Mills; the car and the Rotary TV set are to be drawn for later.

Before the Grandstand

One of the main attractions of the Fair, this year's horse show will rate among the best yet; an excellent display was presented at all performances. The talented vaudeville performers also added to the interest of these grandstand shows. Main points of interest besides the Jumpers, Hunters and Saddle Horses were the four, six and eight-horse teams. Entries in the saddle horse classes were down from previous years, but the agricultural classes were up.

Rare Breeds

Entries in nine breeds of cattle were shown, as well as numerous breeds of sheep, swine and poultry. First at the Fair included an exhibit of Belted Galloways, as well as Tunisian and Karakul sheep. All these were exhibited by H. Gordon Green, Ste. Therese.

Trotting Races

Six horses took part in the County Race on Thursday with Leon St. Jacques' "Mr. King" taking first place in both heats. Second place went to Peter B. Gratton, owned and driven by P. Malette. Both these contestants reside in Lachute. The first heat was run in 2.21 while the second took two seconds less. Over 75 trotters and pacers were entered in the three-day racing program.

Calf Show

Saturday forenoon, the bleachers at the cow barns were filled to overflowing for the juvenile farmers' special. Donald G. Robertson, Federal Fieldman, Alex Bothwell and Irénée Paré, agronomists, Keith Russell, district school agriculture specialist, with tutors, parents, guardians, photographers, and others interested in the youngsters' progress, were all on hand to do justice to the calf show and the judging contest. There were 161 contestants in the judging contest, down 26 from the record high last year. There were 45 exhibits in the calf class, this being also 12 fewer than in 1952. It was evident from the enthusiasm in this department that the young farmers and farmerettes are not taking a back seat to anyone at the Lachute Spring Fair. (Results on page 9.)

Increase in Attendance

The attendance figures this year are interesting, showing an increase of 214 over last year but still not exceeding the all-time record of 25,698 set in 1948. Had there been an elaborate opening ceremony, as there has been in previous years, this record might have been broken. Following is the paid attendance:

	1953	1952
Wednesday	851	837
Thursday	4,643	4,425
Friday	9,621	10,080
Saturday	6,569	6,121
Totals	21,684	21,470

(The increase of 214 is more than accounted for by the weather, which was highly favorable to the succes of this event on all four days.)

Edward M. Jones New Lions' President; Clubman's Sidelights on Textile Trade

Flashing "Slow" Signals Purchased, Will Be Erected on Town Traffic Approaches

There was a full agenda at Tuesday's meeting of the Lions Club, held in the Legion Hall, this being the last gathering of the club year, with reports heard on the various service projects, finances and general business of the club.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year, as follows:

President, E. M. Jones; 1st vice-president, Roger Regimbal; 2nd vice-president, Ian Gordon; 3rd vice-president, Jos. Dumais.

Secretary, Phil Tremblay; treasurer, W. M. Steeves; legal advisor, Fernand Legault.

Directors — Jas. Lowe, Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, Rod Carrean, R. Desjardins, Bob Dixon, Léopold Carrière, H. Lamarche, Geo. Y. Deacon, Donald M. Hay.

Lion Tamer, Phil Roy; tail twister, Dr. R. A. Dumais.

Treasurer W. M. Steeves gave a satisfactory report on the club finances.

President Bertrand L'Heureux, before relinquishing the chair to the president-elect, gave an inspiring review of the year's work, interspersed with a note of personal enthusiasm and philosophy on the ideals of Lionism. He paid tribute to the committees and members who had co-operated wholeheartedly during his term. . . The retiring president was commended on his address and thanked for his loyal and sincere services by two past-presidents, Phil Roy and Dr. F. W. FitzGerald.

Thanks and tribute were also extended to André Lefebvre for his devoted service as secretary and to Ernest Snadden for his creditable work as bulletin editor.

President-elect Ed Jones thanked the members for electing him to the presidency; he hoped for a still higher attainment in attendance, and pledged his utmost efforts to the progress of the club.

Committeemen L. Carriere and Ian Gordon gave encouraging reports on sales for the annual drawing, and Roger Regimbal outlined plans for a dance at the Golf Club on August 1.

Buttons for 100 per cent attendance were presented to no fewer than 22 members — some of whom have earned these emblems for three and four years in succession.

Lion Jos. Dumais, as delegate to the recent district convention in Hamilton, gave a report on this gathering. Lachute, hereafter, will fall within District 8-A of Lions International, he stated — a division comprising almost exclusively Quebec branches of the club. District Governor is Paul Chaput, of Quebec City.

President-elect E. M. Jones announced the district service clubs' tournament at Dunany Golf Club on July 15.

Lion Roger Regimbal reported the Lions-sponsored "Little Major League" progressing satisfactorily, and there was considerable discussion on playgrounds or recreation facilities for youngsters this summer — to which aid will be extended at discretion of the club directors.

A new array of flags decorated the head-table — a gift to the club from the retiring president, Bertrand L'Heureux.

Talk on Textile Weaving

Ernest Snadden, delegated as occupational speaker for this meeting, gave a humorous but informative talk on his trade, namely, textile designing. He recalled his five years of apprenticeship in a Scottish mill with hand-looms, where he learned the elements of the trade inside out, under "experienced, hard-drinking weavers", advancing in his fifth year to the position of assistant designer — all at an average salary of 75 cents a week. . . The old apprenticeship system was fondly commended, from the speaker's personal experience.

In those years of the late '20s when depression made competition keen, his mill was beset with an ideal which Snadden adopted as an intuition — that it takes fabrics new and better, to win the market. . . . The young designer continued his trade in Yorkshire for six years before emigrating to Canada, and with his present employers, Ayers Limited, the same progressive ideal prevails, namely, each year to produce a weave and fabric better than the year before.

Lion Snadden gave interesting sidelights to the guide in consumer demands. In the men's fabric trade, London's West End is a sure sign-post to the popular trend, while in the women's trade, Paris traditionally sets the fashion. In the New York displays one looks for these imported indications of demand — not to U.S.-produced fabrics, however, for mass production in the American industry obviates those original creations which emanate from the smaller mills of Europe and Great Britain.

This brief comment gave indication, once again, of the mine of interest behind Lachute's major manufacture — on which the Lions Club hopes to hear still more in future. The speaker was cordially thanked. Lion Snadden's prize was won by Don Titman.

Police Chief D. Villeneuve, who displayed one of the flashing traffic signals purchased by this club, gave indication that two of these signs, bearing the Lions Club crest, would be erected immediately at the town approaches to check traffic speed in the interests of public safety.

A vote of appreciation was extended to Roland Paquette for his excellent catering during the past season.

Eight-Horse Team Draws Interest at Show

One of the main evening attractions on the grandstand was the eight-horse hitch, owned and exhibited by Claude M. Young and Sons, Bristol, Que. The eight well-trained horses, hitched as four pairs, were shown Wednesday and Saturday nights only. This eight-horse outfit can be cut down to a six or a four-horse team, as the horses are trained for the various changes.

Success Story — Lachute Academy Graduate of 1892

Rev. Chas. McGregor, Born At St. Andrews, Waited 40 Years for Opportunity; Receives Doctorate at 80

Penacook, N.H. — In the cap and gown of a Doctor of Theology, the Rev. Charles P. MacGregor stood in line with other candidates for degrees young enough to be his great-grandchildren, at Boston University commencement exercises recently.

The Rev. Mr. MacGregor was born in St. Andrews East in 1871, and graduated from Lachute Academy in 1892. It appears that he waited 40 years to begin work on his doctorate. Not until retirement from the active ministry released him at the age of 80 from pastoral duties did he start his studies for a fourth academic degree.

In 1899 Mr. MacGregor received his first degree, Bachelor of Arts, from McMaster University. In 1907 he completed qualifications for a Bachelor of Divinity degree at Union Theological Seminary in New York. A year later he became a Master of Arts at Columbia University.

Over the year, parishioners and friends have given the veteran minister the courtesy title of "Doctor MacGregor". After the commencemen exercises, his doctorate became an academic fact. He was one of the oldest students ever to earn a degree from an American university.

Bicycle Mishap At Montfort, Que.

René Genest, Montfort, received head and facial injuries Monday, when the chain came off the bicycle he was driving, and his bike crashed into a pile of rocks. The youth was on his way to 16 Island Lake from Montfort when the accident occurred. He was rushed to Hotel Dieu Hospital, St. Jerome, and returned home Tuesday evening.

New Hampshire Hen Produces in Big Way

A New Hampshire Red hen presented its owner, W. Erskine Rodger, Lachute, with a complete double egg on Tuesday. The outside egg was complete including the yoke, and measured 8½ inches the long way around and 7 inches in circumference. Inside this was a smaller edition about the size of a pullet's egg.

Keith Russell Elected Secretary-Treasurer of Quebec Farm Forums

Mrs. Gilbert Telford, Shawville, was re-elected president of Quebec Farm Forum Association at the annual meeting at Macdonald College.

Among other newly named officers was Keith Russell, Agriculture specialist for Lachute High School and County schools, who was appointed secretary-treasurer. Mr. Russell was raised on the family farm near Amherst, Nova Scotia. He has had considerable experience with Farm Forums in New Brunswick and Argenteuil County. During this time he was principal of the Salisbury High School and Agriculture teacher for schools in this area. He was educated at the Nova Scotia Agriculture School and graduated from Macdonald College in 1948. Mr. Russell replaces J. T. Davidson, who has been secretary for three years and has taken a position at Macdonald College.

Plans were made for a good representation of Forum menbers at the Macdonald College Farm Day June 20. The main feature will be a tractor safety competition. Charles McInnis, president of the Ontario Hog Producers, will be the speaker.

The Council named delegates to attend the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Federation in Winnipeg July 29-30.

It was agreed the feed grain study should be widened to include protein concentrates; information should be gathered on the reasons for the high cost of fertilizer; concern was expressed over the increase in restrictions on farm products entering U.S. markets.

Home Teaching Service Offered to the Blind

Home teaching for the blind person who has retained a fair amount of health, and a bit of initiative, may mean the beginning of an interesting life, such as she had never dreamed of living again.

The specially trained teacher will help the blind person to regain confidence in herself, in teaching her to be useful to herself first, and to others to a certain extent. The expert teaches the reading and writing of the Braille system; this provides for the mind in keeping occupied. The learning of leatherlacing, weaving and other handicraft works will help to keep the hands busy and develop the person's initiative and touch. Even housewives can learn to cook and keep house. If the blind person tries to do something to help herself, she will overcome her feeling of inferiority and will be on the way to a sure rehabilitation.

Home teaching service is given along with other services in this district, and it can be continued only in extending a friendly welcome to the voluntary canvassers of the local board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, or by sending your contribution to the Bank of Montreal, c/o Miss L. Miller.

Triplet Kids

Nature took its course one day last week when a five-year-old female goat gave birth to triplets. This rare occurrence took place at a small goat farm on the outskirts of Lachute. The mother is one of a herd of 14 owned by Andrew Cleland, Lachute.

Saanen Roe, a white purebred sired by Toggenburg Buck, a mottled white and brown purebred, gave birth to a pure white buck and doe, and a black doe with white markings. All are alive and healthy.

The mother gave three quarts of milk a day last year and has had pure white twins yearly for the past three years. In the goat world, one offspring is odd, twins are usual, triplets are rare, and quads or quints are almost unheard-of.

Not to be outdone, the farm cat gave birth to quadruplets the same week. The kittens are not purebred, however!

$184 in Traffic Fines Over Week-End

The Police Department took delivery of two traffic lights this week, for installation at the town approaches — one of which will be in the vicinity of the Golf Club and the other on Route 41 near the Protestant Cemetery. These signs are in the nature of slow-down signals, each with two flashing red lights. They have been presented to the Town by Lachute Lions Club as another measure to discourage speedy and hazardous driving. It is hoped that similar signals will be installed later on the west and south approaches.

Police Chief Villeneuve, reporting on this new equipment, also gives assurance that his force is relentlessly pressing its campaign against dangerous driving. Fines of $184 were levied last week-end for a variety of traffic law violations.

CHANGING TIMES

Lachute Lady Wins Lions Club TV

High interest centred on the Lions Club stand at Lachute Fair Grounds, when the winner was drawn for a television set, one of the prizes in this annual ticket-selling campaign for community service funds. The drawing took place around 5.30 o'clock Saturday, when the president of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, George McGibbon, drew the ticket from the transparent drum, and the winner was announced as Mrs. Alexandre Joly, Wilson Street, Lachute Mills, who was among the crowd to witness the climax.

Leopold Carrière, chairman of the Lions committee, was on hand with his energetic workers to thank the public for their support. The automobile on display at this stand, with numerous valuable prizes, will be won by other lucky winners at the final drawing, September 13 at LaSalle Golf and Country Club.

The 1952 immigration total of 164,498 was 30,000 below the 1951 figure; highest yearly total was 400,870, achieved in 1913.

Record for Free Clinic at Fair, 1,354 X-Rays at Health Booth

X-Ray Service Arranged For Brownsburg Next Tuesday, June 23

The X-ray clinic in the Industrial Building at Lachute Fair was a great success, and the organizers wish to thank all who contributed to this outcome. In all, 1354 people were X-rayed, 300 more than the maximum in previous years.

This is the fourth consecutive year that the Anti-Tuberculosis League, in co-operation with the Argenteuil Health Unit, has offered this service free to visitors to the Lachute Fair, made possible by the Argenteuil Agricultural Society who placed a generous space at the disposition of the League free of cost.

During the next three weeks two machines will cover the County of Argenteuil, making available to the residents of each municapality the advantages of a pulmonary X-ray.

Next week, X-rays will be taken in the industries, but two days will be reserved for the public — Monday, June 22, for the residents of Lac St. Denis and the members of the Royal Air Force stationed there, and Tuesday, 23rd, for the people in Brownsburg. In Brownsburg the X-ray machine will be installed at the Social Club, and the public are invited to attend from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p.m.

The annual X-ray is one of the principal means of defence against tuberculosis, and it is encouraging to note that the public is aware of this. An X-ray picture taken by the League is a simple, easy matter — it is not necessary to disrobe, the procedure takes less than a minute, it is free, and a personal report will be sent to everyone X-rayed.

Quebec Govt. Interest In Suggested Seaway For Richelieu River

By Bernard Dufrense

Quebec, June 15 (CP) — Quebec Government's interest in the building of a seaway on the Richelieu River has been mentioned informally to two members of the international joint commission, the body that rules on the use of Canada-United States boundary waters.

Premier Duplessis, who has often expressed his governments' interest in the plan, said he mentioned the Richelieu propect when Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commission chairman, and Lucien Dansereau, commissioner, visited him.

"It is a problem that concerns the Province of Quebec, the Federal Government and the United States", said Mr. Duplessis.

But to Quebec, it has always appeared that turning the Richelieu into a seaway, located as it is entirely in Quebec and leading to entirely American communications, would not lead to international problems raised by the St. Lawrence Seaway project."

The Richelieu River, a stream of some 125 miles, links the industrial town of Sorel, on the St. Lawrence River, to Lake Champlain and the Hudson River. Only small, shallow-draft vessels now may sail on the Richelieu.

"Construction of a seaway along the Richelieu would be of great advantage to the St. Johns, Que., area and to Montreal", Mr. Duplessis said.

The Premier said he spoke of the propect when Gen. McNaughton and Mr. Dansereau made available to the Quebec Government information about a $250,000,000 hydro-electric project on the Saint John River, in New Brunswick.

Mr. Duplessis expressed willingness to co-operate in the propect with New Brunswick and United States authorities.

Quebec now is being consulted because parts of Temiscouata County will probably be flooded by construction of dams on the Saint Joohn River.

Mr. Duplessis said any decision would come after "the opinions of the people, religious and civil authorities of Temiscouata, were known."

FOREST WEALTH

Prince Albert, Sask. (CP) — A newly-completed forest inventory of the Prince Albert Area showed 4,000,000 acres of productive forest lands, it was reported by provincial director E. J. Marshall.

Delegates Elect Members to Central School Board

Col. Garnet M. Strong, of Mille Isles, and M. P. Reilly, of Brownsburg, were unanimously elected as members of the Central School Board at a meeting held in Lachute High School on Monday evening. Col. Strong was elected by the delegates appointed by the local boards of Dunany, St. Andrews East, Montcalm, Morin Heights and Gore. Mr. Reilly was elected by the delegates of the local boards of Brownsburg, Grenville, Harrington No. 2 and Rouge River.

A recent Order-In-Council passed by the Provincial Government changed the distribution of the local boards to a certain extent. This was necessary due to a number of annexations of local boards which have taken place during the last few years, and the fact that the Lake of Two Mountains School at St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac is now a High School. No change was made in the case of Lachute, which has always been represented by two members on the Central Board. This local board recently re-appointed the same two members, W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., and James W. McGibbon. The change in distribution granted the right to the Lake of Two Mountains Board to appoint a member to the Central body. At a meeting held last week this board appointed Maj. D. Watts, of Fresnière. Therefore the new Central Board which will come into office on July 1 will consist of W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., James W. McGibbon, M. P. Reilly, Maj. D. Watts and Col. G. M. Strong. The board will elect a chairman at its first assembly, to take place early in July.

Electricity on the Farm

Electricity has helped to raise living standards everywhere and particularly on the farm. In addition, electricity not only pays for itself in easing the work but also in increasing production in many cases.

Electricity in the brooder means better chicks and electricity in the henhouse means greater laying. Electric milk coolers help to bring higher grades on milk and a tremendous saving of time in cutting and drawing natural ice. One kilowatt hour churns 100 pounds of butter or separates 2,000 pounds of milk or cleans 100 bushels of grain. A couple of kilowatt hours will grind 100 pounds of feed; spray 500 square feet of paint; help incubate half a dozen chicks or milk a cow for a month. On the farm, as elsewhere electricity is indeed a Most Valuable Servant.

GREEDY FARMING

The tale of western farming is that much grievous damage has been done to our land through greedy farming. Planting of trees will not replace the essentials that have been lost, but it is a minimum step in that direction, adding beauty and some home comfort.

News and Views On Grass Silage

Toronto — To provide farmers with the latest news about grass silage, the CBC Farm Broadcasts Department has prepared a special half-hour broadcast for Wednesday, July 1, at 12.30 (noon) on Trans-Canada network stations in Ontario and Quebec.

Seven farmers representing a cross-section of farming types — beef cattle, dairy cattle, cash cropping, etc. — will discuss silage experiments. Norn Garriock, CBC farm broadcast commentator, will talk with some men who are thinking of trying grass silage, and with others who have tried it for anything from one to 25 years.

Taking part in the program will be five Quebec farmers: J. G. Lang, of Brysonville; Wilbert Gruer, of Aubrey; John Earl Ness, Howick; Dr. Ernest Mercier, superintendent of the Lennoxville Experimental Station; and M. T. Stenson, Sawyerville and Sherbrooke; and two from Ontario: Murray Galbraith, Renfrew; and Ross Parks, Bloomfield. For this occasion the regular market reports and the visit with the Craigs will be cancelled.

Tariffs on Dairy and Agric. Imports to U.S.

Ottawa (CP) — Announcement of possible tighter American restrictions on the import of dairy and other agricultural products into the U.S. drew prompt — though unofficial — comment in Ottawa.

President Eisenhower set standby import quotas on dairy products such as cheddar cheese and on such other products as flaxseed and linseed oils, to go into effect July 1 if the U.S. Defence Production Act is allowed to lapse.

It can't be told whether the act will be allowed to lapse but if the quotas go into effect — they will make very material cuts in Canada's cheddar exports to the U.S. — they will be sharply protested from Ottawa.

A responsible authority said Canada might consider withdrawal of certain tariff concessions granted to the U.S. in the years following the Second World War if the quotas went into effect. This was not to be considered a retaliation; it would rather involve renegotiation of agreements by which import concessions were granted certain U.S. products.

Hectance Charpentier, with 13 head, was the sole exhibitor in the Canadian breed.

A comparatively new breed at the Lachute Fair is the Guernseys; these appear to be assured of a spot in the Fair's of the future. This year there were four exhibitors with a total of 27 head. Exhibitors were A. J. Billingham, Remi St. Jacques, Jean Philippe St. Jacques and Black Bros., with awards for championships being fairly evenly distributed.

Exhibitors of Dual-Purpose Shorthorns and Red Poll cattle were A. D. McGibbon & Sons, Mrs. Peter Williamson, Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, and Kilwin Farms, with a total of 33 head.

POULTRY

There were 18 poultry exhibitors, led by Dougall A. Cumming with 87 birds and J. Edmund Sproule with 56 birds. Extra pens had to be borrowed from Vankleek Hill due to the heavy entry list.

SHEEP

This year's sheep show featured a display of Caracul and Tunis sheep exhibited by D. J. Greene, St. Hermas. The Tunis breed is the oldest in the world, having been well established in 100 B.C. The Caracul is famous for the pelt of the newborn lamb, which when dyed and processed is the well known Persian lamb that the ladies find so warm and comfortable. In the more common breeds there were seven exhibitors:

Slack Bros., Lloyd Ayre, Hectance Charpentier, Harold Skinner, R. B. Glaspell, Dougall A. Cumming and W. E. Burton.

Champions were:
Oxfords — ewe, Ayre; ram, Skinner.
Shropshires — ram, Skinner; ewe, Slack.
Southdowns — ram, Ayre; ewe, Ayre.
Suffolks — ram, Slack; ewe, Ayre.
Cheviots — ram, Slack; ewe, Ayre.
Hampshires — ram, Slack; ewe, Glaspell.
Leicesters — ram, Slack; ewe, Cumming.
Saxe: ewe, Cumming.

SWINE

A last-minute entry was made by W. E. Burton, of Vars, Ont., who was uncertain of the effect of the hog cholera restrictions on his entry, and this herd took both male and female championships with its Yorkshires. Three herds of Berkshires were exhibited by J. E. Sproule, C. J. Tomalty and Norman Leblanc. Tomalty and Sproule also showed Tamworths and split the prizes evenly.

RABBITS

Rabbit exhibits were down from previous years, with only 18 shown this year by a total of six exhibitors.

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

Early Closing

THE IMPASSE among local storekeepers on the subject of early closing Saturday evenings, has aroused ill feeling in certain quarters for which there should be no excuse. Due to the different varieties of business catering to different classes of the public, it seems that there is difficulty in reaching an accord on such matters. But if there can be no complete agreement, at least our merchants should agree to disagree amicably on this measure. It appears that some in favor of early closing have circularized the town in such all-embracing manner as to indicate that Lachute, commercially, will be closed tight at 6 p.m. Saturdays — disregarding those who wish and intend to remain open. Whatever the merits of either side, the random distribution of handbills is unfair and hardly ethical.

The Chamber of Commerce has publicized the views of both sides, but it seems there are such diversified interests that the Chamber at large can foster no accord in this controversy. It would appear that the logical road to agreement on such matters as concern our merchants first and foremost, is for each and every retailer to join and stand behind the Chamber and make it an official voice of the merchants, through a committee all their own. There are better solutions than petitions, individual campaigning and the anonymous distribution of circulars.

Echoes of Jack Miner

OVER 30 years ago, the late Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist, when addressing a capacity audience of nearly four thousand in Massey Hall, Toronto, said he stood for more education and less legislation, and advocated teaching conservation in the schools. For years he preached this philosophy across the continent, both from the lecture platform and in his writings in the press as well as in his books. In 1952, he gained the full support of Father Crowley of the Roman Catholic Church in Sault Ste. Marie, but little was done about it until recent years, when the Ontario Fish and Game Department has inaugurated an educational program by sending members of its staff to the schools of Ontario with motion pictures, slides and educational material.

Manly F. Miner, eldest son of the late naturalist, commenting on this, said, "I wish my father were alive to see this provincial educational program that he suggested being inaugurated in the schools, because I am sure he would not only have given his time but would have personally helped promote the same."

Election Date

ALTHOUGH it cannot be remedied at this stage (the public had no say in the matter anyway), we feel there is some justification for this protest on the choice of the Federal Election date, as expressed in the Toronto Globe and Mail. An editorial in that journal says, in part:

"Canadians are to elect a new House of Commons on August 10, a little less than two months hence. No acceptable explanation or excuse for this choice of date has been given. During July several million Canadians will be on holiday, while several million others will have important farm duties to attend to. The whole population will be sweltering in midsummer heat and not particularly inclined to take an active interest in public affairs. Since 1872, for these reasons, there has never been a Dominion election in August; and the voters have reason to be annoyed, even indignant, that custom and public convenience have been ignored on this occasion."

Weekly Papers in Canada

THE MIDLAND Free Press Herald points out that in 137 Federal constituencies — about 53 per cent of the total — the weeklies are the only newspapers published. An additional 48 constituencies are served by both weeklies and dailies; whereas in only 66 constituencies, or about one-quarter of the total, the home newspaper is a daily. Throughout Canada the only home newspapers in over half the Federal constituencies are the local weeklies. The sound common sense of our Canadian weekly papers is a powerful reinsurance against Collectivist nonsense.

WORDS are the dress of thoughts, which should no more be presented in rags, tatters and dirt than your person should. Lord Chesterfield

Profitable Venture

THIS could be one of the biggest tourist seasons in Canada's history. The holiday-makers are already flocking to favorite spots from coast to coast.

A valuable by-product of the summer invasion is the sale of distinctive products of the various holiday regions. Such things as Quebec's hooked rugs and British Columbia's famed Indian blankets, with a host of others, earn additional thousands of dollars every summer.

Organizations and private citizens who realize that quality products are the best dollar-earners will be interested in an experiment by which eager customers are brought within easy reach of distinctive handicrafts.

Down in Mexico City there's a "museum of popular arts" where visitors may purchase any article, and the origin and history of any particular product is courteously explained. It has become a veritable show-place of the handicrafts made in some 2,000 Mexican villages.

Practically every article there is the specialized work of families who mainly work at home, as their parents and grandparents did before them. There are such things as hand-woven garments, adorned embroidery, delicate vases of blown glass, bizarre pottery, handmade jewellery, toys.

An interesting point for Canadians is that the museum is a co-operative effort formed by village craftsmen and humble workers. It was established by combined funds of the Mexican National Indian Institute, the National Institute of Anthropology and History, and a group known as Patrons of the Popular Arts.

According to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization — which fosters such projects in many lands — the Mexican museum from the start "captured the interest of Mexicans as well as foreign visitors."

They don't handle tawdry or highly-colored imitations bearing a foreign stamp. They give advice and instructions and do considerable research to aid village groups producing fine handicrafts in the same fashion they were produced centuries ago.

For Private Home-Building

CANADIAN private builders could provide 125,000 homes a year. That they are not doing so is largely because adverse influences, evolving from rising taxes, are placing home-ownership beyond reach of an increasingly large section of the population. . . This thought-provoking platitude is voiced by the Canadian Federation of Property Owners Associations. Toronto.

A brochure entitled, "Which — Home Ownership or Political Housing?", issued by the Federation, refers to political housing as an illusion. "It is frightening to consider the stagnation or complete elimination of private house building in other countries — and then watch the illusion of 'political housing' advancing in this booming Canada", it states.

The booklet declares that, by increasing taxation, political housing (commonly called public housing) is itself an important factor blocking home-ownership and thus limiting the aggregate number of new homes built.

In spite of this, the booklet states that by the only infallible yardstick the percentage of the national product devoted to home building — Canada leads even the United States.

"In the period 1941-1952, Canada devoted 4.2 per cent of its total production to housing, the U.S. 3.4 per cent; and the United Kingdom, where the Socialist Government's vaunted subsidized housing scheme was in operation during most of the significant years, only 1.7 per cent of total production went into housing, despite the critical shortage caused by war destruction.

"The simple fact is that Canada is doing just as well as any other country with a comparable problem, and a whole lot better than those countries which have gone in for subsidized housing on a big scale.

"We could do better, but the answer lies not in more subsidies but in elimination of subsidies altogether; not in more regulations and more red tape, but in relaxation of present regulations and elimination of red tape."

OUR civilization can readily be geared to an economy of peace. If panic does not prevail, there are so many things to be done for the welfare of humanity, at home and abroad; but don't run away with the idea that the Communists are doing more for humanity, or as much, as we capitalists. Statistics and observations will not support such a theory — says the Camrose (Alberta) Canadian.

St. Jerusalem Council Publishes Letter, States Position on Taxpayer Complaint

Municipality to Call Referendum on Large Outlay For Sewer and Waterworks Installations

The Municipal Council of the Parish of St. Jerusalem held an informal meeting at which all members were present to discuss ways and means of settling problems confronting them, particularly sewers and water in that part of the municipality south of Lachute, approaching and including the Golf Club.

Mr. Aldéric Tessier, owner of property in this district, recently addressed a letter to the Mayor, which the Council decided to publish herewith, to indicate this ratepayer's point of view:

The Mayor,
Parish of St. Jerusalem, Que.

Dear Sir: —

As we could not obtain any satisfaction from the Council after many requests, leaving us in complete ignorance of the projects or steps taken in regard to our interests, we are obliged to proceed as we are asked to do.

It looks as if there will not be any work done this year, and somebody even told us there won't be anything done before a year hence.

Two months ago Mr. Robert in my presence asked the Council for the cleaning of the ditch in the rear of his property on a length of approximately 150 feet. He was told that if this portion was done they would have to do the rest, and that they could not compromise themselves. Meanwhile, Mr. Robert has to endure the smell of Bethany Street and others. He is not the only one to complain, without any satisfaction.

For myself, it is impossible to sell any lots situated within 100 feet of this creek. Thus, it is necessary that I proceed without any help.

First I shall advise the people living on Bethany Street, and others, not to throw the residue of their closets into the ditch. I shall then be forced to advise the Health Bureau.

Up to now, I have co-operated with the Council. In return I have received only promises, that were not performed. A number of lot owners to whom I have sold are anxious to build because they all bought on my promise that they would have sewer and water. How can I explain to them what the Council tells me; a yes or a no, so that I can tell them the truth. Instead of that, is it right of the Councillors to say, "Why do they build in a swamp?"

It seems to me that if the councillors feel that this is unsanitary, or a hole — it is their job to act, not to talk. It has been long enough since we asked that this ditch be cleaned to eliminate the smell and permit us to circulate in its vicinity.

Even so, they proceeded fast enough with tax increases before these works, sewers or other promises, had begun. In all comparison you, Mr. Mayor, have been increased 40%, but your rents keep on coming. The Golf Club has been increased 100%, and everything still works. As for myself, I have been increased from $2,100.00 (always accepted before) to approximately $60,000.00, which is not 300% but 3,000%. Therefore, do you think I am right to ask you for an explanation, or continue to make me pass as a blind man or a liar by the people who bought from me and cannot build.

Two months ago I asked Mr. Laliberté the level of the sidewalks and the offset of the houses in other sections, in order to comply with the by-laws which were not in force. I was forced to do it myself and for others, too, who are building now. They could not obtain satisfaction from the Secretary. It's not after the house is up and is in straight line, that the person appointed to do so should come on the job. When a person wants to build we should be there the next day, not three months after, otherwise the by-laws would be useless. It would hinder construction instead.

On Mary Street there are already seven houses existing, to which I gave entire sewer and water satisfaction to help construction. Am I obliged to make the same expense without reimbursement and maybe void in the future?

If you want to refer to my letter of January 28, 1952, maybe if you had followed my idea (which many have) to spend approximately $40,000.00, today you would see many houses built or under construction. Taxes would certainly have been lower, and more would have been done.

To pay my taxes (which the Council will not delay asking for and even insist upon) I have to proceed immediately in the best way possible without co-operation, against my will. I have already waited four years to close the closets of Bethany Street.

I don't know if we are going to have the sewers or not. But it is impossible to cross this creek without any culverts; this means heavy expense. Be assured that I do not intend to shovel the residue of the toilets of Bethany Street and others; furthermore I was forced last week to spend $100.00 for a bulldozer on Barron Avenue, and as much on other streets up to the creek — unnecessary expense, because I was refused purchases on account of that smell. Furthermore, the expenses I made last year are useless, because there is no means to cross the creek, which should have been in the sewer by this time.

For the month of May, I had organized a publicity campaign, a trailer at the theatre, etc. The new plans were not ready; thus the landscape architect who would have helped me, is now busy. If I had had the plans I would have passed them on to this very good man I know, and it would have helped the development of the whole district. the publicity which was made by the council, that there won't be any sewers before two years — in regard to this, what kind of summer do you think I'll have in construction? But the Council is sure of its taxes.

I have to tell you that I shall do my utmost to open up this district and without delay, because I am forced to get revenue to pay my taxes. If I keep on passing as a liar, I shall be forced to publish these letters in the Lachute newspapers to let the people judge for themselves. I ask you what will I answer my clients on this question of sewer and waterworks; when can I say these promises will fulfilled?

Yours truly,
(Signed) J. Aldéric Tessier

When the Council decided to have the most recent valuation made according to law by competent valuators in the persons of Erskine Rodgers, Jas. Robertson and E. W. Smith, who with their own knowledge and information obtained from experts, proceeded with the valuation, this was homologated by the Council after taking oath according to law. Every taxpayer had an opportunity to complain before the collection roll was prepared.

Regarding sewers and water, the Council has had the opinion of engineers, and finds that for the present up to $175,000.00 may have to be spent to satisfy needs for the immediate future, and they hesitate to spend this money even with an ordinance from the Board of Health.

It has been decided to call for a referendum of interested parties to determine what should be done.

Should mony be spent in this area for sewers and water, it will have to be paid for by those who will benefit. However, the loan will have to be guaranteed by the Municipality as a whole.

The Council is publishing this in order to acquaint the public with what is taking place, and would appreciate any comments or constructive suggestions. Send your letter marked "Suggestions" to P.O. Box 2, Lachute, Que.

MONTREAL – MAELSTROM AND MILLSTREAM

By GEOFF.

Someone asked me the other day if I'd seen any college magazine salesmen. Not the type that sell college year-books — but the type that's only equipped with one line of opening conversation: "I'm working my way through college". Well, I had to admit that I hadn't seen a door-to-door magazine pedlar for a dog's age. What's happened to them, I don't know. Strangely enough, I do not meet any at all, but no doubt they're still around.

Which reminds me of another true story.

During the 1939-45 war, the Canadian Government used to pay a soldier his full pay while at home. Overseas, however, he received part of his pay and the remainder was withdrawn against a rainy day. What the theory was, all but the serving soldier knew. Anyway, there were ways of getting at it. You could assign the pay you couldn't get to your mother. And, if she didn't need it, she could always send it back to sonny or hubby at the front.

Well, it seems this young fellow in the story worked this assigned pay business early in the war. Mother got the cheque and kept the money at the bank until the boy's next leave came up. Then she got the bank to send it over, and a good time was had by all.

One time, however, mother got sonny's request for his nest-egg of $150 before the Government got around to sending the money to mom. And, as she stood perusing his demanding telegram, the doorbell rang anew. When the good woman opened the door, there was a strapping young fellow, about the same age as her son, standing with a broad grin on his face and a sheaf of magazines under his arm.

"Good morning, madam", he said. "I'm working my way through college . . . "

"Oh, is that so", retorted the mother, waving her son's telegram under the young man's nose. "Well, I'm working my son's way through the Army."

And she slammed the door in the startled salesman's face.

Last Sunday, I hung my choir cassock in the cupboard of the church vestry, grabbed a couple of chocolate bars and headed for the Avenue Theatre in Westmount. There, they are showing the pictures of the Coronation, in Technicolor. It was about 12.30 p.m. when I got there, and the show had been running for half an hour. The auditorium was filled, except for a few seats in the gods, and within ten minutes the S.R.O. sign was put up.

For some time now, I have seen little else but British-made movies. Ever since J. Arthur Rank took over in England, Hollywood has been running a very poor second. And J. Arthur Rank was the person responsible for the Avenue's presentation of "A Queen Is Crowned". As a result, this film is a masterpiece.

As I sat in the dimly-lit theatre watching the pageant of Coronation unfold upon the screen, I had the distinct impression that I was in the Abbey itself, a part of that beautiful and solemn rite. The color was superb; the narration, by Sir Laurence Olivier, the acme of dramatic art. I was carried away entirely. But that was natural, for I could say, after seeing that film, "I've just come from Westminster Abbey. I went to see them crown the Queen."

I know you'll feel the same way, too, when you see it.

"OLD MACDONALD HAD A FARM" — AND STOCKED IT AT THE B OF M

Everyone knows the song about Old MacDonald and how it goes on and on about the animals he kept on his famous farm, ducks going "quack-quack", pigs going "oink-oink", and so on. By the time the song is finished, Old MacDonald is well set up with livestock.

This particular Mr. MacDonald may never have been a customer of the Bank of Montreal. But thousands of other farmers regularly use its services, just as Old MacDonald might have done, to help build their farms with first-class livestock.

Do You Need Livestock?

If you would like to increase your profits in this way but lack the ready cash right now, maybe a B of M Farm Loan is the answer. The cost is so small that the minimum profit you are likely to get on the new stock will considerably outweigh the low interest charges. And repayment can be arranged in instalments to match your peak-income periods.

Next time you are in town, drop in and discuss the matter in confidence with Donald Hay, manager of the Lachute B of M. You can count on him to help in every possible way. Borrowing from the B of M is good business — a sound, inexpensive way of building up your herd.

Best Wishes, Uncle Walt!

A note from Uncle Walt, our regular contributor on this page, informs us that he is in hospital for an operation. The Watchman extends good wishes for his health and hopes to see him back in good form before long.

OBITUARY

Late Rev. E. G. May Was Former Anglican Cleric At St. Andrews East

The funeral of the Rev. E. Geoffrey May, retired Anglican clergyman, was held Wednesday afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral in Montreal. Mr. May died Monday, after a brief illness, at Sweetsburg Hospital. He was in his 84th year.

Born in London, England, he was educated at Elstree and Clifton College and later won his M.A. degree at Cambridge, before entering Wells Theological College.

In 1895 he came to Canada as assistant to the late Rt. Rev. J. C. Farthing, then rector of Woodstock, Ont., and later Bishop of Montreal. He later became assistant to the Very Rev. J. Norman, Dean of Quebec.

Mr. May returned to England in 1899, and went to St. Nicholas Church, Brighton. He came back to Canada in 1911 as rector at Wiarton, Ont., and two years later accepted a call to Christ Church, St. Andrews East, in this county.

He was appointed rector of St. James Church, Hull, in 1919, and in 1912 was named Rural Dean of Clarendon, a post he held until he went to Ste. Agathe in 1934. He retired in 1950 after 56 years in the ministry. While serving at Ste. Agathe, he was chaplain of Royal Edward Laurentian Hospital.

He is survived by a son, Stephen, of Montreal, who was educated in Lachute and has numerous friends here; two daughters, Mrs. S. E. Rider, of Bedford, Que., and Miss Barbara May, of Toronto; and two grandchildren.

Sympathy is extended to the family of the late Rev. E. G. May, who is favorably remembered in these parts.

Thousands Taught To Live Off Land In Northern Bush

Survival School Provides Tough Course for Airmen In Wild Alberta Area

Edmonton (CP) — A question asked by a senior officer at Ottawa led to formation of a survival school for RCAF aircrew in the wilderness of the McLeod River district, 175 miles west of here.

The officer called in one of his experts, a former RCMP officer and northern bushman, and asked if aircrew could survive a crash-landing in the bush. The expert, Sqdn. Ldr. Scott Alexander, asked for five men to find out.

The RCAF had its anwers 10 days later. Had the five survived a crash in bushland they would soon have died of exposure and starvation.

A survival school was set up in 1949 with Sqdn. Ldr. Alexander as its head. Classes now are being pushed through in assembly-line fashion, handling about 2,000 students a year.

Alexander recalls the first five men who tried to fend for themselves. All that the five were told before leaving on a flight for a remote northern lake was that they would be flying over bush country.

"I was disappointed from the start", Alexander says. "They appeared in ordinary battledress uniform, wearing low oxfords and thin socks. I knew right then it was going to be tough."

Lacked Initiative

Alexander stayed with the men until their "rescue" and told them nothing until they had exhausted their own ideas. He found they knew little about bush survival. They fished clumsily and if they did catch something they didn't know what to do with it.

"One of the men was successful in shooting a partridge and he brought it into camp beaming", says Alexander. "I looked at it and told him it was an owl. He threw it away. When I picked it up again and told him it was a partridge he nearly blew his top."

Alexander and his adjutant, F/O Leonard Beasleigh, still have trouble with "tenderfeet". But if they find a willingness to learn, they know they can impart enough knowledge to give the flier an even chance after a bush crash.

The school has no failures, but it does send men back when they lack the proper attitude towards the training. Although it's tough, most men actually enjoy a chance to get into the bush and learn how to battle the elements.

The odd visitor to the school will find white and red-striped parachute tents with sleighs, bows and arrows, crutches and slingshots hewn from trees with hunting knives.

As schooling progresses, trainees are sent for a week or more into heavy timber, thick with big game. Alexander says a huge grizzly bear once raided a survival camp and dragged a tent full of trainees 50 yards into the bush before being killed.

Northern Ontario has 20,000,000 acres of fertile, unoccupied farm land and Alberta has 30,000,000 acres.

Chamber General Meeting Next Monday Concluding Season's Program

Industry and Commerce in Lachute

Contributed by Lachute Chamber of Commerce

The assembly next Monday, June 22, will be the last general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce before vacation time, which usually extends through the months of July and August.

This gathering will be a special and important one, since it will include nomination and election of officers for the coming term.

Those elected, however, will not act immediately but will take over their duties during the month of September.

This method of procedure is somewhat new, and is adopted with the idea of having the new executive work in with the old, and so familiarize themselves with their respective duties.

It is therefore most important that every member should be present. Supper will be served at the usual time, 6.30 p.m., at the Legion Hall, Lachute. Remember the date — Monday, June 22, and let's have a good turn-out!

The Granby Delegation

We would like to officially thank all those who participated in the visit of our Granby friends last Thursday. The visit from start to finish was a complete success, and an occasion which reflected creditably on our town. At the reception tendered by Lachute at the Golf Club, a warm welcome was extended by Mayor Dr. Jules Lafleur, and this function also permitted our visitors to view and enjoy for a short time the clubhouse and grounds, which to the best of our knowledge are the finest in Canada.

Following lunch, which was served at the Legion Hall, a tour of the town was made and a visit to the plant of Dominion Shuttle Company, after which the next attraction was Lachute Spring Fair.

This visit from the Granby Chamber of Commerce has brought substantial publicity to Lachute, and thanks are due to all who helped in making it a success.

To put Lachute more prominently on the map, and through the efforts of this Chamber of Commerce, CBFT took numerous camera shots during the day, which will impress outsiders that we have a really progressive and attractive town.

Awake From Sleep

IS TODAY'S WORLD AWAKE? OR IS IT ASLEEP
TO THE MOST VITAL NEWS?
CRITICAL TIMES NEED YOUR NOTICE!

It has become a byword to say, "It is later than you think!" But bywords are, too often shoved aside or taken for granted. It becomes too easy therefore to laugh off a weighty truth. Our times are generously heaped with scoffers anxious to ignore critical conditions. They feed on propaganda aimed at proving the permanency of man's rule. International crises are disregarded; moral collapse is passed with a wink. But nineteen centuries ago a warning was sounded against such sleepy attitude: "You know the season, that it is already the hour for you to awake from sleep, for now our salvation is nearer than at the time when we became believers." The writer was the inspired apostle Paul; the citation is recorded in the Bible, at Romans 13: 11.

Showing that he had in mind a time future from the date of writing, the same apostle wrote to the young Christian overseer, Timothy: "But know this, that in the last days, critical times hard to deal with will be here. For men will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, self-assuming, haughty, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, without gratitude, with no loving-kindness, having no natural affection, not open to any agreement, slanderers, without self-control, fierce, without love of goodness, betrayers, headstrong, puffed up with self-esteem, lovers of pleasures rather than lovers of God, having a form of godly devotion but proving false to its power; and from these turn away." — 2 Timothy 3: 1-5.

Upheavals Since 1914

Even the most careless glance at current newspapers convinces that the multiplied recurrence of these acts of violence against a background of world upheaval has caught up with our times. None who have lived through the period will deny the sweeping changes overtaking human society since the outbreak of World War I in 1914. Total war, food shortages, pestilence, mighty 'quakes. While such surface violence multiplied from 1918 until 1939, men paid lip service to peace while preparing for war. Then the holocause exploded that was destined to dwarf World War I. Its after-effects have affected man's whole life.

Have these events found you fast asleep or on the alert? Furthermore, when the offspring of World War I, the League of Nations, died under the guns of World War II, were you shaken? Now that its successor, the U.N., has plunged madly to the brink of a yet uncertain cataclysm, do you hear the alarm? When you read of murders without motive, juvenile delinquency, unnatural hatred of children for parents, sexual immorality and perversion, does it stir you? When crime probes unveil trusted political heads as base conniving criminals; when bribery is found corrupting college youths, do you wince? Are you moved, excited, awake — or do you sleep on, gripped by the sedatives of propaganda for a fairer tomorrow?

AMONG THE CHURCHES

18 Candidates Confirmed By Bishop Dixon at Trinity Church, Calumet

Calumet — Holy Trinity Church — with its newly painted white exterior, with a welcoming glow from its new cathedral glass windows, and tastefully decorated with summer flowers — was well filled last Wednesday evening for the visit of the Lord Bishop of Montreal, who confirmed 18 persons.

Those presented for confirmation by the rector, the Rev. P. R. Stote, were — Sanford Crooks and Lloyd Morrow, of Grenville; Rolly Dowd, Norman Mack, Floyd Mack, Lyla Mack, Mrs. Russell Mack, Mrs. Austin Young, Marilyn Young, Dorothy Beavan, Ann Campbell, Eileen Purcell, of Kilmar; Mrs. Pat Dinelle, Mrs. Jim Trineer, Jas. and Mrs. Trineer and Miss Kermit Smith, of Harrington.

Miss Lois Row, of Montebello was presented to the Bishop by the Rev. Mark Beaufoy, rector of that parish.

It is interesting to note that among those confirmed were two mothers and their daughters, another mother, her son and daughter-in-law.

In speaking to the candidates the Bishop asked two simple questions, which have far reaching answers: "Who are you? And how are you — from Christ's point of view?"

In his address to the congregation he outlined the growth of the church in this Diocese, noting the new churches and new parish halls built recently, and expressed his appreciation to the people for their support in this growth. The Diocesan Theological College, and the aid that the Diocese is now able to give new clergy, especially in assisting them to procure suitable cars for their work, were also referred to.

After the address a handsome alms basin in polished brass, and a red bourse and veil, were dedicated "to the Glory of God and in loving memory of Ida Dakin."

To accommodate new arrivals to Canada, the Canadian Pacific Railway has in service a restaurant counter car, designed especially to feed immigrants while en route from east coast ports to points across the Dominion.

W.I. Branches Report Activities, Month of June

Pioneer W.I. branch reports 16 members and one visitor present at the June meeting. A report was given on the Convention. The sum of $5 was voted to the Service Fund, $5 towards prizes for W.I. displays at the Exhibition, $5 towards High School prizes and $5 for the School Fair.

Frontier Branch heard a Health talk by the school nurse, Miss Lois Bennett, R.N. This branch is catering for a golden wedding, in aid of funds. Scrap-books are being made for convention delegates. A golden wedding gift was presented to the W.I. Publicity convener, Mrs. Archie Graham.

Upper Lachute - East End members voted $10 to the Service Fund, with more to be contributed. The Health and Welfare convener read a report on what could be done at home in case of illness before a doctor was available, telling how important it was to describe the actual symptoms when telephoning a physician, also giving do's and don'ts that could be very important in the care of a sick person. Reports from the County Convention were read. A contest was held, to make as many words as possible out of words "Queen Elizabeth Second". A white elephant sale is to be held at the next meeting; $10 was sent to the Service Fund.

Lakefield members answered the roll-call with "An ambition of your youth". Plans were made for a military whist in July, and for a sale of home-cooking later on. A report was given on the County Convention. A note of appreciation was read for an Easter box of groceries. A donation of $5 had been sent by this branch for Fair prize money.

Jerusalem - Bethany had as their roll-call "An interesting item durthe childhood of our Queen." Three contests were held on the Coronation theme.

At Brownsburg Branch, Mrs. C. Stephens gave a talk on her trip to Florida last March. The Ever-Ready Institute, from Vankleek Hill, Ont., was entertained, and Mr. Zaplaski, a speaker from the Blind Institute, also briefly addressed the ladies, then played piano selections.

Lachute W.I. had 38 members to answer the roll-call with the name of a river. A report was given on the County Convention held in May. Mrs. J. G. Lamontagne and Mrs. F. McGibbon gave an enthusiastic report on the Leadership Training course which they had attended at Macdonald College; they urged others to plan to attend next year. . . Mrs. George McGibbon, convener of Agriculture, invited the Lachute W.I. to her country home at Dalesville, where they also visited the fish hatchery operated by Mr. Angus Morris. Delicious refreshments were served later by Mrs. McGibbon.

Mille Isles had seven members present. A report was given on the County Convention. The annual community picnic, with prizes for sports, is to be held July 4, with a sale of food and hand-made articles. The Service Fund was supported with a contribution from this branch.

Arundel had 20 members and one visitor present. Mrs. Robt. Allan, convener of Health and Welfare had as guest speaker Miss Lois Bennett, R.N., district school nurse, who spoke on TB and problems in the schools. The roll-call was answered by donating cotton materials for the Cancer Society.

Publication Issued On "New Quebec"

Quebec's northland, whose immense iron deposits have been making headline news, is described in a timely publication just released by the province's Minister of Mines, the Honorable C. D. French. Appropriately entitled "Northern Quebec, A New Mining Area", this publication was compiled for the Geological Surveys Branch of the Quebec Department of Mines by geologist Dr. J. E. Gilbert.

The volume meets a popular demand for information on this region that has been drawing world-wide attention. It is a compilation of the knowledge built-up over a period of years by several workers in the vast territory of more than 300,000 square miles that, under the name of New Quebec or Ungava, extends east of Hudson Bay and northward from Eastmain River to Hudson Strait and Ungava Bay.

A brief and easily readable description is given of the geographic features, climate, rock formations and known mineral deposits of a country that, until recently, was peopled by only a few Indians, Eskimos and fur-traders. It contains more than 50 of the leading articles, reports and volumes that, over the years, have been written about the region or parts of it.

Adding to the interest of the report are 56 photographs showing the landscape in different parts of the region, some potential water-power sites, trading-posts, and some of the people. A map of the known geological features and another showing the locations of fining exploration and development accompany the volume.

SPORTS AND JUVENILE ACTIVITIES

The Attributes Of An Athlete

SPORTS CAMERA
By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

What makes up an athlete? A number of attributes — willpower, determination, physical condition, muscular co-ordination and a competitive spirit.

Perhaps determination is better described by the athletic word "guts". We heard of a fellow recently who personifies just what the word means in its truest sense.

Monroe Roland is a handsome 23-year-old with a fine, well-muscled body — from the waist up. But he has two almost useless legs, locked stiff like a pair of stilts.

They signify that the curly-haired student at the University of Michigan survived a devastating bout with dread osteomyelitis at the age of six.

The bone disease dominated Roland's life — for a while. But somewhere along the line his great abundance of willpower began to show results.

Played on Crutches

After he was on crutches for a while, he just "forgot about circumstances" and began to take part in sports.

Crutch and all, Roland played sandlot baseball and got into basketball. "I don't know when I started. Long ago as I can remember."

He went on doing the things he would have done normally.

Came college and the day when he was invited to try his luck at gymnastics. He concentrated on the side horse, an exercise requiring tremendous arm and shoulder power for manipulating the body around and over a padded "horse".

"Some of his falls were terrible", recalled Newt Loken, coach of Michigan's gymnastics squad. "But he perservered."

How well Roland persevered was shown when he took third place in the event during an inter-university meet.

And there was no sympathy factor in the verdict.

Said one of the meet's three judges: "Your inclination is to credit him for his courage. But in fairness to the other competitors, you try to ignore that factor and as a result you probably wind up being extremely critical of his performance."

Does Roland ever feel the sympathy factor?

"No", he said. "I don't recognize my crutches. Far as I'm concerned, I'm just like anybody else."

He hasn't decided yet on a career. He is trying to make up his mind whether to go into coaching or accept an opportunity to learn physical theraphy. He says he leans toward coaching because "I enjoy working with kids."

If he follows his leanings, some youngsters will learn some valuable lessons from associating with a guy who refuses to recognize a handicap.

Boy Scouts The World Over

PLAYED THEIR PART

Coronation films were rushed from movie cameramen to waiting despatch riders by 60 British Boy Scouts in London on June 2nd as part of the plan which speeded films to Canada.

From coast to coast in Canada, Boy Scouts lit beacon fires on Coronation night, as did Scouts throughout the Commonwealth.

SIR IAN BOLTON TO ATTEND JAMBOREE

Sir Ian Bolton, Bt. O.B.E., President of the Scottish Boy Scout Council, will represent the Scouts of Great Britain at the Second Canadian Boy Scout Jamboree, Connaught Camp, Ottawa, next July 18 to 26. Sir Ian, who is County Commissioner for Stirlingshire, was a welcome visitor to the First Canadian Rover Moot at Blue Springs, Ont., in 1951.

ADVENTUROUS CLIMB

It wasn't exactly a Mount Everest expedition, but 23 Scouts and Rovers from Alberni and Victoria, B.C., recently had an adventurous week-end climbing the 5,380-foot Mount Klitsa. Snow was encountered at the 3,000-foot level and at the summit it was estimated to be 20 feet deep.

WINS "CORNWELL" BADGE

Stricken with a spine ailment, Queen's Scout Raymond Floryn, 17, of the 28th Toronto Troop, has been awarded the "Cornwell Scout" Badge by Canada's Chief Scout, the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, C. H. Raymond, who had an outstanding record, "has had pain and discomfort as constant companion for upwards of two years, but his spirit is undaunted."

DEAF SCOUTS

Two Scouts of the Halifax School for the Deaf will attend the Second Canadian Jamboree at Ottawa, next July. They, and nine others of the same troop of 28, recently earned St. John Ambulance First Aid Certificates. It will be the first time a Deaf Troop has been represented at a Canadian Jamboree, it is believed.

RAISING CHICKS

In O'Leary, P.E.I., the Scout Troop recently bought six baby chicks for each Scout in the Troop to feed and raise. When fully grown the chicks will be dressed and marketed for Troop funds.

HIS POCKETS

I turned his pockets inside out —
It was our washing day,
I found a multitude of things,
A curious array.

I found a piece of colored glass,
A spool, a knife, a nail.
A bottle full of bumble bees,
A frog, a hook, a snail.

Some cherry pits, an apple core,
A piece of broken wing.
A top, a screw, a tack or two,
A ball of colored string.

I placed them on the shelf with care,
The treasures of my boy.
I knew too soon such things as these,
Would fail to bring him joy.

Too soon he'll hear the wander call
And journey far away.
O let me treasure things like these,
His treasures, while I may.

Stops Fish Planting In Mountain Streams

Calgary (CP) — Hon. Ivan Casey, minister of lands and forests, says the Alberta government has given up its program of stocking mountain streams and rivers with young fish.

"We have found that a lot of young fish moved from fish hatcheries do not survive in the mountain streams", he said recently.

Unfortunately for the fisherman, Mr. Casey said, civilization was creeping into all parts of the country. Some of the trails to select fishing spots which used to take three weeks' travel now could be negotiated in three hours.

"Today when you go into the mountains you are lucky if you find parking space, and the next thing we shall find up there will be parking meters", he said.

The tide of civilization meant that many rivers and streams were being denuded of fish. Like the stocking campaign, the policy of closing streams had proved unsuccessful for this led to too great a fish population for the amount of food available to them.

For the players of distinction in Lachute Tigers, there is no change from last week. So, after you sport fans have voted, I will give a standing when I return from my summer training.

Baseball Notes

Gus Ogilvie died at 63, and with him goes a figure well known in sport for 25 years past. He was once associated with the Montreal football club in Big Four, known at the time by the name of Winged Wheelers, and later The Bulldogs. For many years he was also manager of the Royals, Quebec Senior League. He was appreciated as much by his fellow men as by the players, for his moderation and his genial disposition. His death leaves a gap not easily to be filled. Our deepest sympathy to every member of his family. . . The Legion won't look the same without Gus.

Arthur Prince, famous baseball referee for many a year, passed away suddenly last week. Many a time I argued with Arthur on a decision at the plate; but just the same I think he was one of the best, and the Laurentide League will miss him greatly. Our deepest sympathy to his family.

Murder in Baseball — On May 24 in a baseball park in New York, a man of 42 stabbed a young woman while she was attending a game with another man. The spectators got mad and tried to kill the murderer with a baseball bat. Ernest Barbosa and Sam Uster, two referees, saved the man from the angry crowd until the police came and got him. . . As I remarked, in baseball anything can happen, and usually does!

Well, the best of luck to the Tigers while I am away, and let's hope that when I come back the Lachute team will be where they belong, up in the first two places.

Celebration at Dealer's, for Ford 50th Anniversary

Excellent Program Viewed On Television

On Monday evening many customers and friends gathered in the showroom of Deacon Motor Sales Ltd. to witness a gala two-hour cavalcade of entertainment commemorating the 50th annvirsary of the Ford Motor Company.

The television show, coming directly from New York, proved to be an exciting panorama of real-life history, thrillingly depicted in music, song, dance, comedy and drama. It featured many of the greatest stars of stage, screen, radio and television as well as famous figures from the worlds of science, industry, business and government who have played major parts in the history of the last half-century. The large TV set at Deacon's showroom was kindly loaned by North River Motors Ltd. so that all might have the opportunity of witnessing this special performance.

Refreshments were served after the show, and the highlight of the evening came when a huge three-tiered birthday cake, covered with 50 glowing candles, was carried in. Many of the guests carried home a piece of this birthday cake to put under their pillow that evening and dream of the new Ford in their future!

Toronto Bay Resort Regains Popularity

Toronto (CP) — Toronto Island, ravaged by floods last year, is making a comeback and is bidding to become once again the city's best holiday spot.

The island's 3,200 permanent residents are sprucing up their cottages and stores and lawnmowers are rolling over picnic areas which were covered with muddy water last year.

The Toronto Transportation Commission is putting on more ferry services from the city to the island and hopes that big crowds will visit the lagoons, beaches and parks.

Parks department employees are planting about 15,000 flowers. The Inter-Island Council, fights off suggestions that the island should be turned into docks and prepares for a paint-up, clean-up campaign.

Many feel that the beaches which have appeared since the three-foot sea wall was erected last year are the final touch to bring back the visitors.

Residents say every measure should be taken to keep Lake Ontario's level down to prevent flods. They also say that more money should be spent to develop the playground in Toronto's front yard.

One of them said: "The island could become one of the biggest assets the city — or the metropolitan area, for that matter — has. It is already a priceless recreational spot, easy to reach and cheap to use."

Montreal (CP) — Major-General Howard Kennedy, noted forest engineer, in a statement issued by the Canadian Forestry Association here, called for severe punishment of those who start bonfires in Canada's forests. He said vast forest areas are destroyed by "a relatively small group of irresponsibles."

There are daily trips out from the North River and up the Ottawa to the foot of the Long Sault Rapids — waters made famous by French explorers and later by Ralph Connor in his lumber story of the Sault. The skipper is prepared to give much information on the historical past of this district — a trip worth taking. -1c

CBC Coronation Coverage Viewed by Record TV Audience

The Coronation of Queen Elizabeth is now a cherished memory, but television audience ratings released today by the CBC showing that more than two million Canadians had seen the CBC's TV coverage add to the Coronation's stature as the biggest event in the history of mass communication.

Television viewers in Toronto and Montreal went almost solidly for the CBC's coverage of the event. During the afternoon telecast from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., CBLT, Toronto, and CBFT, Montreal, averaged a total audience of one and a half million. As the evening wore on, more sets were tuned to the Toronto and Montreal stations, until the total number of viewers in the two cities passed the two million mark.

The figures are based on an average of six people watching the sets in the more than three hundred thousand television homes in the CBLT and CBFT areas.

The total CBC network television audience for all of Canada would have to include about eight thousand television homes within range of CBOT, Ottawa, and the thousands who viewed the Coronation on sets placed in more than one hundred schools in the Ottawa and Hull areas. The sets were placed in the schools as the result of a plan worked out by the CBC and the Radio-Television Manufacturers Association of Canada.

The figures add up to show that the CBC's television audience in the Toronto and Montreal areas on Coronation Day was by far the largest ever recorded in Canada tuned to any television program. No estimate is available of the many millions who saw the Canadian production in the United States, where the National Broadcasting Company and the American Broadcasting Company carried the first two hours of the CBC's telecast.

Figures resulting from the surveys in Toronto and Montreal are for Coronation Day only and do not take into account the many thousands of Canadians who watched repeats of the highlights of the original Coronation program.

'Devil and Daniel Webster' On CBC Folk Opera

The first performance in Canada of the one-act folk opera, "The Devil and Daniel Webster", will be heard over the CBC's Trans-Canada network as the major work on "CBC Wednesday Night" of June 24. The book is by Stephen Vincent Benet, well-known American poet, and the music by Douglas Moore, head of the Music Department of Columbia University.

Direction will be by Nicholas Goldschmidt of Toronto and the program will originate in Vancouver, where Mr. Goldschmidt is currently giving a summer course in concert and opera literature at the University of British Columbia.

"The Devil and Daniel Webster" is laid in New Hampshire and concerns the case of one Jabez Stone, who has sold his soul to the devil, and the defence of Jabez in the face of the devil by the great New England hero, Daniel Webster. When Webster demands a trial for Jabez, the devil sumons from the Pit a jury of famous American traitors and renegades and the hanging judge who presided at the Salem witch trials.

Webster wins the case by his powers of oratory and rescues his unfortunate client. The neighbors, who had forsaken Jabez when they learned of his bargain with the devil, then rush in and drive the devil out of New Hampshire.

Duplessis Reiterates Quebec Ban on Open-Air Cinemas

By Ken Stewart

Quebec (CP) — Premier Duplessis warned promoters of an open-air cinema in Caughnawaga, an Indian reservation near Montreal, that this type of entertainment is banned in Quebec. He said violators of the ban will be punished.

He said newspaper stories about the project implied that because Caughnawaga is an Indian reservation, the ban adopted in 1947 did not apply.

"It is common sense and elementary that a reservation cannot be used to break the laws of a province.

"The government will tolerate neither in Caughnawaga, nor anywhere else within its territory, transgression of its laws.

"Those persons", he said, "who have been ill-advised, should take this as a warning."

Exhibitors wishing to stage open-air showings must obtain a permit limited to one performance only.

Promotors of the project said at Caughnawaga they plan to go ahead despite Mr. Duplessis' warning.

Around the Country

A book, now long out of print, written by a former Minnedosa man, Rev. E. A. Gill, is being sought for historical research in Manitoba; the book was entitled, "Love in Manitoba."

The mother cat owned by Eric Wooley at Chesley, Ont., lost her kittens, but a neighbor Cliff Clarke found a baby raccoon, so he gave it to the Wooleys and now the cat is nursing it, and the two animals get along like old friends. . . When Father Bernard Schaeffler, pastor of Bruno's Church at Bruno, Sask., celebrated his golden jubilee in the priesthood, it was also a happy reunion as his brother came for the occasion from Freising, Bavaria; they hadn't met for 27 years.

Summer Documentaries

The radio documentary, informing people about their neighbors and the affairs of their country, will enter many new fields during the summer months with a series prepared and presented by top CBC actuality reporters Bill Herbert (left), Norman McBain (centre), and Thom Benson. Through their eyes, Canadians from coast to coast will be able to examine some of the industries, institutions and people of Canada. Bill Herbert spent several months covering the Korean war for the CBC before returning to documentary broadcasts. Norman McBain didn't miss the opportunity to fly in a jet while preparing a broadcast on Canada's aircraft industry for the present series. The three reporters will cover a variety of subjects, including shipping on the Great Lakes, music festivals and trans-continental train travel in the series, which is heard regularly on CBC Trans-Canada network.

Alexa Boycun, 23, daughter of a Hungarian-born market gardener of Fort William, Ont., will be the bride of millionaire movie director Alexander Korda, 60, according to news received by her father, Mike Boycun. The marriage is to take place "somewhere in Ontario" in a couple of months.

Hémon, Author, Claimed Unappreciated in Quebec

Citizens of Quebec don't appreciate Louis Hémon, the French journalist who immortalized the Lake St. John country in his novel "Maria Chapdelaine", Margaret K. Zieman charges in the current issue of Maclean's Magazine. Mrs. Zieman contends that in the heart of the Maria Chapdelaine country Hémon is referred to not as a first-class writer but as a third-rate farmhand.

"He is remembered there mainly as the worst hired man ever seen north of the lake, the halfwit who harnessed a horse backward reversing his collar, who coudn't cut a straight shingle or drive a nail without crushing his fingers", the Maclean's article says.

On his arrival in Canada in 1911 thirty-one-year-old Hémon was hired by Peribonca farmer Samuel Bédard, Mrs. Zieman explains. He was hardly worth his wages of eight dollars a month. "Old-timers still tell stories of his incredible awkwardness, of his uselessness at heavy tasks like clearing and stumping", the writer points out. "But the very tasks that Hémon made such a mess of, he describes so realistically in his book that readers literally strain and sweat with Samuel Chapdelaine, his three sons and hired man, as they wrestle with the stubborn stumps on their primitive bush homestead."

M. Bédard, astonished to hear that his helper had produced a classic, explained, "I never knew he had so much popularity. He did not look it."

But Bédard and his Peribonca neighbors were quick to capitalize on the tourist value of the book and Mme. Bédard's sister claimed to be Hémon's model for Maria. "Among Lake St. John people today, fact and fiction are so inextricably confused that Hémon's boook has been lost in the shuffle", Mrs. Zieman says.

Three million immigrants came to Canada in 1897-1914, one million of whom came from the United States.

The total number of passengers travelling on the Canadian National Railways in 1952 increased by 8.7% to 18,832,815.

At Drumheller, Alta., The Mail felt that C. Combes, RCMP, was of the opinion that officialdom had been premature in abandoning the use of the horse — after he had dismounted from his prowl car to chase two cows out of the city. . . At Rosetown the local paper discovered that there are 14 people living in the town who arrived since July, 1948, and all come from the same town in England, Liverpool.

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

Meat Salads and Picnic Lunches

Between the years of 1935-39, Canadians ate just about two pounds of canned meat per person per year. But in 1952, each Canadian ate almost seven and a half pounds of canned meat. There are of course several reasons to account for the increase in the consumption of canned meats. One reason is that there are more types of canned meats available and another reason is that more and more people want food which is quick and easy to prepare. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, feel that the main reasons for this increase is that more and more homemakers are using canned meats because they are always of good quality, are reasonable in price, and are ready to serve at a moment's notice.

Salads are the foods we enjoy most on hot sultry summer days and you can make literally hundreds of different kinds from all sorts of ingredients. The home economists feel that the tossed salad is by far the most popular member of the salad family. For a hearty, substantial tossed salad, why not add thinly cut Julienne strips of canned pork luncheon meat to the greens. It is easy to make the Julienne meat strips by simply cutting the meat with the kitchen scissors. If you do not have a pair of scissors, you can grate the meat on a coarse grater. When this tossed salad is served with a spicy French dressing, the family will be completely satisfied. The second place favorite in the salad family is probably the potato salad. Meat can be added to the potato salad too. It does not matter whether the salad is made with diced or mashed potatoes, if pork luncheon meat is added, it will improve the appearance and flavor as well as the food value of the salad. To add a slight "nip" to the flavor of this meat-potato salad, mix a little extra mustard into the salad dressing which is used.

As soon as summer week-ends, roll around, housewives are planning what to put in the picnic basket. On Monday mornings, neighbors exchange stories on how good this was or how easy that was to prepare, or perhaps what happened to something else.

Canned pork luncheon meat is ideal for picnics. It is an excellent buy right now, it is quick to prepare and the can packs easily into a picnic basket. Luncheon meat makes a perfect sandwich spread if it is mashed and moistened with mayonnaise and mixed with chopped hard cooked egg and a little onion, or with minced olives or pickles or even with apple sauce. Some people prefer plain sliced meat to meat fillings in sandwiches. If this is the type of sandwiches that you take on picnics, then just pack a can or two of pork luncheon meat in your basket and take along such things as lettuce, tomatoes, dill pickle and cucumbers. At lunch time, all that has to be done is to slice the luncheon meat and put it on a plate. Everyone can then make their own sandwiches.

Picnic-style meals are served at every summer camp and in many homes. The latest thing to serve at these meals is pork-cheese burgers. To make them, pan-fry slices of canned pork luncheon meat and place them on half of a heated hamburger bun. Put a thin slice of cheese on top of the meat and heat until the cheese has melted into the meat. If hamburger buns are not available, the meat can be cut into fingers, thin slices of cheese placed over the top and the meat and cheese put into a weiner bun. The weiner buns should be heated in the oven the same as hamburger buns. From recent Monday morning discussions in the Consumer Section, it would seem that it would be a good idea for each Canadian homemaker to buy several cans of pork luncheon meat for it is the answer to many meal time problems.

Solar stove

IN INDIA, scientists have worked out a way to cook food by sunpower. A polished aluminum bowl suspended above a cooking pot directs the sun's rays to a mirror, which reflects the heat to the bottom of the pot. It sounds a bit complicated to us — but the fact is that the solar cooker turns out a meal as fast as a 300-watt electric stove.

It's just one more indication that food and aluminum go together — in containers, utensils, foil and in the equipment used by the dairying and food processing industries. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan)

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Summer's the time I like best to prepare meals." It was a chic-looking matron talking with a friend at the table next to mine in a tea room. I frankly eavesdropped.

"The vegetables are so fresh and pretty. The fruits have such lovely colors; you can fix such gay-looking salads and cold platters. I always plan substantial dinners, but I do most of the preparation early in the morning when the kitchen is still cool."

Stops for Coffee

"I'm so tired all the time I can't manage to get going that early," remarked her friend. "Can't eat breakfast, and by half-past 10 I'm so dragged out I have to stop for a cup of coffee."

"And a piece of cake," her friend laughed. "I used to do that, too. But I got tired with feeling tired. So I decided on a cure. It was very simple. To bed every night at 9 o'clock, until one day when I got up and realized I was completely refreshed and rested.

"Then and there I made a solemn promise to myself to eat breakfast, and skip that 10.30 feeding that spoiled my appetite for lunch. For the first week I stopped to rest with my feet up, 10 minutes out of every hour. Now I do this regularly, but only three times a day, and it's a wonderful help.

Use Enough Salt

"An electric fan near the ceiling keeps my kitchen cool. And I keep myself cool by drinking plenty of cold water, but not iced; and using enough salt in my food, especially in hot weather. You can carry that salt-free diet too far, my doctor says—too little salt causes too much perspiration and can make you feel tired."

"You certainly look radiant," her friend remarked with an overtone of self-pity.

"Oh, you needn't envy me," smiled the radiant one. "You can look the same—if you have the will to do it."

Tomorrow's Dinner

Deviled Ham Hors d'Oeuvres
Boston Baked Beans
Brown Bread
Baked Tomatoes
Rhubarb Upside-Down Cake
Coffee Tea Milk

All measurements are level. Recipes serve four.

Deviled Ham Hors d'Oeuvres

Cut two tomatoes in four slices each. Top with the contents one (2¼-oz.) can deviled ham mixed with two tablespoons salad dressing, ¼ cup minced cucumber and one fine-chopped hard-cooked egg. Serve two slices to each person on lettuce.

Rhubarb Upside-Down Cake

Cream together ¼ cup shortening, one cup sugar, one well-beaten egg and one teaspoon any flavoring desired. Sift together 1⅔ cups already sifted enriched flour, two teaspoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add alternately with ½ cup milk to the first mixture.

Oil an eight-inch square pan. Put in a ¼-inch layer of well-drained stewed sweetened rhubarb. Spoon in the cake batter. Bake 25 minutes in a moderately hot oven, 375-400 degress F. Serve warm with lemon sauce.

Trick of the Chef

When baking whole peeled tomatoes, to keep the shape, place in deep oiled muffin pans containing a little hot water.

Clip This Recipe for Strawberry Season

By Jane Ashley

Families rate fruit shortcakes "tops" for dessert! And since we will soon be coming into the strawberry season, every homemaker should save this recipe for a rich, easy-to-make shortcake.

Strawberry Shortcakes

2 Cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, ⅓ cup salad oil, milk, strawberries (sweetened to taste), whipped cream.

Mix and sift dry ingredients together. Add egg to salad oil in measuring cup. Pour in milk to make 1 cup total liquid. Then pour all at once over entire surface of flour mixture. Mix with fork to make a soft dough. Shape lightly with hands to make a round ball. Place on wax paper and knead lightly ten times or until smooth. Pat out to ½-inch thickness or roll between 2 squares wax paper (about 12 inches square). Remove top sheet of paper; cut shortcakes with unfloured 2½-inch cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Split shortcakes with a fork, while still warm. Spread fruit between layers and on top. (Use any fresh, frozen or canned fruit, as desired.) Serve with sweetened whipped cream. Makes 8 shortcakes.

Ever try a little grated Cheddar Cheese on top of hot cream soup? It is extremely good. If you like a stronger flavor crumble a little blue-vein Roquefort type on top of the soup.

SPICY DISHES

Guelph, Ont. (CP) — Among new industries here is one started by a group of immigrants from Hungary, who obtained a provincial charter to establish a food processing plant canning specialty foods. Their products are such Hungarian dishes as goulash and paprika chicken.

PRICE OF BUTTER

All Canadians have sympathy for the dairy farmers in their efforts to compete with margarine and other vegetable oil products. But their sympathy does not go to the length of making them willing to pay twice as much for butter as they are asked to pay for a suitable substitute.

Careful Fitting Needed In Buying Child Shoes

A proper shoe is essential for foot health. Poorly fitting shoes are not only uncomfortable but they wear out more rapidly and they may result in deformities of the foot. Such is the warning sounded by Dr. Louis Starr, Brooklyn orthopedic surgeon, in the Journal of the American Medical Association. He emphasized that proper fitting shoes are particularly important for young children.

An infant should start to wear shoes as soon as he gets about to any considerable extent outside his play pen; and if the infant has weak feet he should wear adequate shoes as soon as he is able to draw himself up to a standing position, Dr. Starr writes.

High shoes are preferable for infants as they are easier to keep on. Older children should be fitted with low shoes because they are cooler and dryer and afford adequate protection.

"Shoes should not be bought from a mail order house or off the counter", he declares. "A good fit is difficult to obtain in this way. A shoe store should not have a fluoroscope. No regulations can make a fluoroscope safe. A competent shoe salesman can achieve a good fit without resorting to shoe fluoroscopy."

Shoes should not be bought by size, as different lasts and makes may require different sizes. When purchased, a new pair of child's shos should be one-half to three-quarters of an inch longer than the foot and should fit snugly all around the foot.

In Dr. Starr's view, walking barefoot indoors should be kept to a minimum, although walking barefoot outdoors on sand and grass provides good exercise for foot and toe muscles.

Cleopatra bathed in milk, we are told; but many a beauty of ancient times followed a beauty treatment still popular today . . the egg shampoo. For short hair use one egg, for longer hair use two. Beat egg with two-thirds of a cup of lukewarm water. Strain and use in place of your regular shampoo. Wash the hair twice, using half the egg mixture each time and rinsing thoroughly in between applications of egg. Rince hair two or three times or until water is clear. Be sure to use only WARM water, not hot or the egg will coagulate. This shampoo leaves the hair soft, glossy and easy to manage.

Nuns from Dominica Study Rural Welfare

Toronto (CP) — Two nuns from the Island of Dominica, B.W.I., are here on a United Nations fellowship to study rural organizations, social welfare and educational services of interest to their work.

Rev. Mother Mary Adele and Rev. Mother Mary Alicia, missionary sisters and social workers, are members of the Missionary Canonesses of St. Augustine. Natives of Belgium, they were educated in Brussels and in the United States.

In Canada for five months, they like everything they have seen "especially the Canadian people, they are so friendly."

The nuns have completed a short course at St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, N.S., on the co-operative movement and credit unions in the Maritimes. They also attended a conference of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario at Guelph where they met many of the 1,000 delegates.

Other tours are planned for them.

Mother Mary Adele said: "We are about 100 years behind the times on the island. There just is no comparison between here and there."

Firewomen Brigade In Lumber Community

The Town of Lachute has something outstanding in its volunteer fire brigade, but so far we are at least a couple of steps behind Great Central, B.C. . . .

One windy day last month this mountain community of 69 homes, a sawmill and general store would have been wiped out by fire but for the quick and courageous action of 14 housewives.

They are members of Canada's only women's volunteer fire brigade, a "daytime home guard" formed last July to protect the village while their lumberjack husbands are out on woods operations — too far off to hear the siren's wail when tragedy strikes.

Up here in the tall timber country, 170 miles north of Victoria, backwoods dwellers live in constant fear of fire — their biggest threat to survival. But men of this lumber company settlement need no longer fear for their wives and children when they leave each morning.

They were assured of this on the morning of April 14 when the women firefighters abondoned their household chores to battle a blaze that threatened to level the entire community of closely-huddled frame homes.

The fire broke out in an overheated stove in the home of Mrs. Terrance Dixon, a member of the brigade. Fanned by a strong north wind, the flames ate through the dewlling in minutes.

On Way Within Seconds

Within seconds of the siren warning from on top of the white-painted fire hall, the big red truck with Mrs. Thelma Gray at the wheel was clanging its way to the scene.

Down the road it roared with several of the women clinging to the sides, their dresses flying as it swung around corners at breakneck speed. Exactly two minutes later, the ladies were assembling hose lines to hydrants and suspending ladders to the roof of the blazing building. Youngest member of the brigade and newly elected captain, Mrs. Isabel Gill fearlessly climbed a ladder and began to play her water line on the burning roof. Others, dressed only in household attire, ventured into the blazing, smoke-filled house to save what furniture and effects they could.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Dixon didn't stand idly by. She's assistant chief of the proud brigade and she helped her superior, Chief Eva LaBelle to concentrate on saving adjacent houses after it was decided her own was doomed.

Bill Gray, forestry officer for the MacMillan-Bloedel (Alberni) Lumber Co. which owns the settlement, and chief of the men's brigade, said he was "flabbergasted" to find the blaze so competently handled by the firewomen.

Chimney Fires Easy

Chimney fires are easy, the women say. On many occasions, even in their pyjamas, they've been called out to fight that type of fire.

There would be nothing to fear at this settlement had the company sawmill not closed down last spring. Until then there was always a force of about 400 men available to fight a fire. Now this responsibility is entirely the women's during daylight hours.

The chief, deputy chief and other officers were chosen in a "fair-and-square" election a few weeks ago. Mrs. Dixon put up a vigorous campaign for chief, but she was beaten by a few votes by Mrs. LeBelle. Mrs. Dixon, accepted the position of deputy-chief, however, and the brigade functions as smoothly as the men's.

Top Rate Speakers for Q.W.I. Annual Conf'ce

"The Future of Dairy Farmers in Canada" will be discussed by Mr. Gilbert McMillan, president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, at the Wednesday morning session, 11 o'clock, of the annual provincial convention of the Quebec Women's Institutes, to be held at Macdonald College, June 23-25. Mr. McMillan is well qualified to speak on this problem, which is of such vital concern to country and city dweller alike, not only in virtue of his position with that national body but as one actively engaged in the industry, operating a large farm in Huntingdon, one of the leading dairy sections of this province.

Other outstanding speakers have been secured for the two days of the convention. Wednesday afternoon, at 3.00 o'clock, Mr. Chas. J. Woodsworth, editor of "The Ottawa Citizen", well-known for his frequent broadcasts over CBC "Week-end News", and one of the leading authorities in Canada on the Far East, will be addressing the delegates on, "Ideas in a Hungry World".

Mrs. D. L. MacFarlane, of Macdonald College, will show the place which singing should have in any community. With much experience in this field, Mrs. MacFarlane plans a practical demonstration for the benefit of Q.W.I. delegates, showing what can be done from small beginnings. This will be heard Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

Canadians everywhere are talking and reading about Mental Health as never before. Dr. A. W. MacLeod, Assistant Director of the Mental Hygiene Institute, Montreal, will spearhead a proposed Q.W.I. project with a talk Thursday morning, at 11 o'clock, choosing the title, "The Value to a Community of a Mental Health Program".

All sessions of the convention are held in the Assembly Hall of the College, with these periods open to the general public, as the topics presented are of concern to all thinking Canadians.

Urges Housewives To Organize Work

Expert Says Women in a Rut In Menu Planning and Other Jobs

Winnipeg (CP) — Madame, if you take more than one hour to prepare that full-course dinner, you're in a rut!

That is the opinion of Mrs. Elsie Clay Rodgers, internationally known household economist and a housewife herself.

Mrs. Rodgers conducts a cooking school and she says most of the women who attend are in a rut in planning menus and in their general living pattern.

What the average housewife needs is more to do outside the walls of her own home, she says. "There isn't an average house or apartment that has enough work in it to keep a women busy eight hours a day, or even four hours a day."

Mrs. Rodgers claims business women make better cooks because they learn to organize their time and not waste odd minutes. She says a full-course meal including chicken-in-a-bag, two vegetables, salad and a fresh-iced cake can be prepared in an hour.

"And if I'm a minute over the hour, I'm not a good organizer when I cook that meal", said Mrs. Rodgers.

She says learning to cook is like learning to sing — you must start with something simple first, as the singer starts by learning the scale. Then it is a matter of building up a repertoire of dishes.

Recommended for the cooking attention of the new bride: pie . . because men like it: hot breads and rolls because everybody likes them; a good stew . . because it's cheap and nourishing; six of the many ways to prepare minced beef . . because we would starve without it.

"Roasts are actually the easiest things in the world to cook but first find out how that man of yours likes it — well done or just crippled a bit and dragged to the table."

Combine left-over cooked meat and vegetables with a well-seasoned cream sauce. Serve hot on baking powder biscuit, waffles or thin pancakes.

THE COMFORTS OF HOME

FAMILIARITY is apt to delude us with a false belief — that our "Home, Sweet Home" is the ideal of cosiness and convenience. . .

But honestly now, how comfortable IS your home? We mean in those particular details of heating and sanitation — even to the kitchen and bathroom, the plumbing and fixtures, that may be causing continual annoyance, adding to Drudgery instead of contributing to the Comfort of your home.

Now is a good time to take stock of these things — things so inseparably related to the Art of Living.

SPECIAL FOR FATHER!

— By NANCY CLEAVER — (Copyright)

"You had an exceptional father. Some day I wish you would write about him!" an old Fergus friend who had known our family for years, said recently to me. "The man in the house in this day is so often pushed around or laughed at! But your Dad was respected by the whole community and he really worked at being a father!"

There were four children in our family and it never occurred to us that our dad "worked at being a father". Boys and girls, at least while they are in Public School, more or less accept their parents as they are. We did know that father shared his leisure time with us and he was always good company.

What fun we had hiking in the maple sugar bush in the Spring or searching for beech-nuts in the Autumn! Dad was an ardent fisherman and a Saturday afternoon fishing expedition with him was a great treat.

He loved all animals, but horses were his favorites. We considered ourselves very lucky if it was our turn to go to one of the nearby Fall Fairs when father showed his standard bred, "Fairy Winkle".

For almost two decades we lived in a big manse with lots of ground around it. "There never is an end to cutting grass!" we sometimes grumbled. We knew right well that father expected us to do a good job. He had no use for slipshod work.

Long before we started to school we were allowed to help father put in the garden. As we got older he toiled with us on caring for the plants. We had quite a struggle with twitch grass getting into the strawberry patch. But every June we had a family celebration over our first big "feed" of strawberries. Father always quoted, "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did."

We lived quite a distance from the school and so there was not much time for the noon meal. But supper was more leisurely and we all looked forward to the conversation as well as the food. Father insisted that only one person speak at one time. We had some wonderful discussions on all kinds of topics. One winter father encouraged each of us to read the daily newspaper and tell briefly the piece of news which intersted us most at the supper table.

After the evening meal was over, Father asked for "The Book" and we had family worship. Sometimes we sang a hymn. Occasionally we children had a turn in reading from the Bible. I can recall my father's musical voice as he read aloud from the Psalms or some of the other fine passages in the St. James version. We kneeled when father prayed — and even the youngest of us realized that this was real prayer.

Anyone who came into our home was aware that father and mother were happy in their married life. They didn't take time to talk much about members of a family being considerate and loyal. They lived out their faith in home being a little island of love and security set in the wide ocean of life.

Father never showed any favoritism. When we were naughty, our punishment was fair, even if sometimes it seemed severe. But we never doubted our father's affection. Nor did he ever seem to waver in his faith in us that we would grow up to be useful citizens.

The salary he received was less than two thousand a year. He and mother must have scrimped in order to give us a higher education. But he never mentioned this being a burden.

One lovely June day father watched three of his children graduate, one in theology, one in medicine, one in arts. An acquaintance at the Garden Party remarked, "Those youngsters of yours must have cost'a pretty sum! I expect you're relieved that their college days are over?"

"Not at all', father answered quickly. "I'd be glad to live them all over again. — This is the proudest day of my life!"

Prison Warden: "Any complaints?"

Prisoner: "Yes, Warden. I've been studying architecture here, and I find the prison walls aren't built to scale."

TOO MUCH ADVICE

Unquestionably there is entirely too much overlapping and duplication in the preparation and issuance of agricultural advice and recommendations. Under the deluge of the mass of material printed and sent out by radio, the farmer must indeed be a subdued and cowed individual.

Success car of the season!...

FORD

Right across the country the trend is to Ford! Ford's stepping ahead everywhere because Ford is ahead in all the things car-buyers want most . . . because Ford is worth more when you buy it . . . worth more when you sell it.

Ford's acclaimed from coast to coast for its great Strato-Star 110-Hp. V-8 engine, delivering the same kind of power that you find in the most expensive cars—smooth, lively, dependable V-8 power.

Ford's applauded in every province for its wealth of fine-car features, including the choice of three ultra-modern transmissions—Fordomatic*, Overdrive* or Synchro-Silent shift.

Ford's admired by everyone because it's such a beauty—inside and out—and because it offers such a satisfying choice of colours, trims and fabrics.

Yes, there are plenty of reasons why the steady, continuing trend to Ford has made it beyond any doubt the success car of the season. You'll discover all those reasons when you test-drive Ford.

POWERED with the finest...PRICED with the lowest!

Have You A Question ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. How can I find out how many stamps were in my old book which was turned in by my employer?

A. Apply at your local office. They will obtain the information for you.

* * *

Q. Do I have to pay unemployment insurance if I work for a few weeks at an agricultural exhibition?

A. If you do not ordinarily depend for your livelihood on insurable employment — for example, if you are self-employed or a student or housewife — your employment at an agricultural exhibition is not insurable if it does not exceed 15 weeks in the course of a year. However, if your ordinary employment is insurable you must be insured while working at the exhibition also. If the employment at the exhibition is for more than 15 weeks, you must be insured regardless of your ordinary occupation.

Q. Can a farmer who works outside his farm and who pays insurance contributions draw benefit if he becomes unemployed? It is understood that this farmer has only five or six cows that he milks before and after working hours. His farm income is not sufficient to support him.

A. It depends on whether this person's main occupation is that of a farmer or an industrial worker. If mainly an industrial worker he may be entitled to benefit. If, on the other hand, he is mainly a farmer, he may be restricted to receiving benefit for the period of the farming off-season (October to March) or be entitled to no benefit at all if it has not been his custom to work during that off-season period.

CITY'S LOAD

There will be scant satisfaction for this city's property owners in the knowledge that the circumstances which have led to a thumping increase in taxes were beyond the control of the city council. There is something radically wrong with a system which makes a city bear practically the entire cost of educating children from outside its boundaries.

WHARF DAMAGED

St. John's, Nfld. (CP) — When something went wrong with her steering, the Canadian oil tanker Spruce Branch collided with two small Spanish trawlers here, and one of the trawlers was pushed under the Wyatt coal and salt wharf. Damage to the wharf was considerable.

P.M. Announces General Election For August 10

Dissolution of Canada's 21st Parliament

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA
By Leslie Wilson,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 15 (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent has answered the big question which has been in the minds of most Canadians. The general election will be held Monday, August 10.

After a day-long cabinet meeting last Friday he announced the dissolution of Canada's 21st Parliament, which in its four years of life thrust Canada along the last few steps to full nationhood, enlarged her activities and influence in international affairs, and broke new legislative ground on the domestic front.

The prime minister's announcement ended months of speculation among political observers. For many weeks now those "in the know" and those who claimed to be, have said August 10 would be the date. This time they were right.

Mr. St. Laurent said he will start off his election campaign with a speech at Windsor, Ont., on June 22. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, announced his intention of starting his campaign in his home town of Guelph, Ont., June 19.

But M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, had the jump on both the chiefs of the older parties. He headed West by train last Thursday night, before Mr. St. Laurent made his announcement, to start his campaign Monday in the Saskatchewan riding of Maple Creek.

Parliament's Record

The longest constitutional advance achieved by the 21st Parliament probably was the designation of the Supreme Court of Canada as this country's final court of appeal. Removal of the old power of appeal to the judicial committee of the Privy Council at London set Canada completely on her own except for the intangible tie to the Queen.

Another constitutional advance was the appointment of a Canadian governor-general. Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey succeeded Lord Alexander as the Queen's representative.

On the domestic side, the 21st Parliament set up some important milestones.

It used its powers in the summer of 1950 to order 150,000 railway employees back to work during a rail strike which was slowly bringing the country's economic machine to a standstill. It signed up Ontario in a tax-rental agreement. All provinces except Quebec now are involved in federal-provincial tax plans. It increased its own number of seats from 262 to 265 in a redistribution based on the latest census.

The Economy

The statistics bureau last week had a piece of heartening news for hard-pressed householders — the consumer price index fell one-fifth of a point during April, from 114.6 to 114.4. It was the sixth monthly decrease in a row.

Finance Minister Abbott disclosed that Canada opened the 1953-54 fiscal year with a budgetary surplus of $74,426,000. However, the finance minister warned that the figure for April "cannot be taken as indicative of the probable results for the fiscal year as a whole."

Trout Fingerlings Make Record Growth

Medicine Hat, Alta. (CP) — Cavan Lake, a small landlocked irrigation reservoir, 15 miles east of this southern Alberta city, has produced a record growth of rainbow trout from an experimental planting 11 months ago.

The colorful trout — 18,000 of them — were planted as fingerlings of less than an inch in length in late May, 1952. Today the lake is filled with fighting beauties six to 12 inches in length and weighing up to one pound. In another six months the largest are expected to measure 16 to 18 inches and weigh two pounds or more.

Game warden Henry Bertelson claims it is one of the outstanding fisheries phenomena of Alberta.

Many fisheries officials had declared at the outset that the scheme was doomed to failure. The lake is fed by spring runoff waters from the Cypress Hills, but for 11 months of the year is virtually stagnant except for irrigation withdrawals.

Bertelson attributed the rich food gathered by spring supply waters coursing over the open prairies as responsible for the record growth of the game fish during the winter. He estimates more than one-half of last year's planting survived, and that the lake is capable of carrying up to 50,000 mature trout.

The fingerlings were obtained from the Calgary fish hatcheries. Application is being made for another stock this year.

Bertelson says the artificial like, established just two years ago, will have to be stocked every year. The trout will not propagate in Cavan Lake, with no spawning grounds available.

Application will be made for an open season this year at the lake. President Bill Clark of the Medicine Hat Fish and Game Association says it could become a mecca for anglers from all over Alberta.

Owners of the irrigation lake, a co-operative water users' association, have indicated fullest co-operation with the fish and game association in developing the area for resort and fishing purposes.

HOME PROCESSING

The voice of the press in Canada is growing stronger for support of government policies that will demand the processing of Canada's natural resources in Canada. It just doesn't make sense to send such things as iron ore out of Canada and then buy steel from the United States at U.S. prices.

Saskatchewan Men Learn Prospecting

Lac La Ronge, Sask. (CP) — The lure of uranium and other top-priority metals brought 25 students to Saskatchewan's prospecting school which recently concluded its first session here.

The bustling settlement of La Ronge, about 175 miles north of Prince Albert on the southern brink of the highly-mineralized precambrian shield, is becoming more important every day. Many discoveries of new uranium and mineral deposits in the northern part of the province have been reported.

Dr. A. J. Budding, principle geologist of the newly-formed Saskatchewan department of mineral resources, was in charge of the school.

Students not only were presented with the idea of prospecting but gained practical knowledge as well. They were all Saskatchewan men, from a great variety of trades, but almost all with some bush experience.

They ranged in age from 18 to 52 and included some treaty Indians and Metis. Only 25 were picked from 80 applicants from as far away as British Columbia, Oregon, Ontario and New York.

The first phase of the school included a general introduction to minerals and geological structure, and techniques of prospecting. Students learned how to read maps, to make use of aerial photography, to stake and record claims, and safety regulations.

The second phase was practical. The group was taken into the rough country surrounding La Ronge where they learned to locate contact and fault zones, and to trench, blast, make camp and handle a canoe.

The department now is placing the graduates with mining and exploration companies in Saskatchewan.

Snakes Eat Pests But No One Grateful

About this time of year some of nature's most maligned creatures have emerged from several months of uninterrupted sleep to start doing favors for Canada's farmers and gardeners. And in return they are likely to get nothing but abuse.

The snake population is usually awakened by the first warm days of spring. When these reptiles come out of hibernation they are lean, and hugry, and sometime a bit dazed. But that doesn't stop them from doing the right thing. First act of many of them will be to devour a few field mice or insects that have been plaguing the human population of the province.

But that won't stop the gardeners from swinging at them with spades, hoes or rakes. Nor will it stop the farmers from trying to crush their skulls beneath their heels. For snakes are about the least understood and most disliked little creatures on the face of the earth.

With the exception of a few rattlers and copperheads Canada's snakes are of the non-venomous variety. And even the poisonous ones cause little damage. As long as no one seeks them out, they are seldom seen. Usually they keep to themselves, go their quiet way and mind their own business.

In spite of this, humans, with few exceptions, have had a high disregard for the serpent ever since one of them got involved with an apple.

Sins of the present-day snake in this province, however, are few. Now and then they consume a few frogs, which isn't good, or even the odd songbird. But most of them are content with insects, mice, rats and a few coarse fish, such as suckers. That is good.

And, strangely enough, most varieties are easily tamed. They make quiet, well behaved pets, although they can't be housebroken. A snake that is offered a few encouraging tidbits will become semi-domesticated and stay around a house or garden indefinitely, paying for its keep by eliminating mice, rats and insects.

Quebec May Become Major Uranium Producer

By Ken Stewart

Quebec (CP) — Quebec may become a major producer of uranium if finds by prospectors turn out to be deposits of the mineral used in the manufacture of atomic energy.

Premier Duplessis told his weekly press conference samples of the mineral have been seen by prospectors in the riding of Portneuf, Saguenay, Charlevoix, Bonaventure, Abitibi and Gatineau.

The samples appear to indicate there are deposits of uranium in the widely-separated areas where prospectors have been searching for the mineral since 1945.

Reviewing Quebec's phenomenal mining development in the past eight years Mr. Duplessis said production jumped from slightly more than $90,000,000 in 1944 to $267,000,000 last year. Quebec was "very rich" in minerals of all types, including gold, silver, zinc, copper, manganese, iron ore, titanium and asbestos.

The Premier said the prospecting season was just getting underway and promised to be the most active ever seen. Demand for permits was up 40 per cent since January 1 over the same period in 1952.

"Experts of the mines department", he said, "are of the opinion that finds to date are encouraging and may lead to discoveries which will place Quebec in the forefront of uranium production in Canada."

Dept. of Health Says North River Contaminated

Warning Issued Against Bathing — Applies Specially to Children

(Montreal Daily Star)

While lakes and streams in the Laurentian area flowing into the North River are suitable for bathing, the North River itself is contaminated from Ste. Agathe down to the Lake of Two Mountains and should not be used for bathing purposes.

The Quebec Department of Health made this statement, declaring: "The waters are contaminated, not to the degree of being considered dangerous but certainly they are not clean."

This statement has been made privately to persons inquiring from the department about the condition of North River waters. It was released to The Star after the newspaper was flooded with calls from anxious mothers.

The recommendation against bathing in North River waters, the department said, applies especially to children.

The department said that contamination was worse this year than any other because of sewage. "Towns along the river discharge sewage without treatment, and the population of these towns has increased", the department pointed out.

The department said modern policy is not always to require sewage disposal plants but rather to install swimming pools where the waters can be controlled and maintained to the same degree of purity as drinking water "which is impossible to attain in a river."

The department cited the examples of Verdun and Montreal, which have built large swimming pools, the latter at St. Helen's Island, instead of installing beaches along the St. Lawrence River.

In a less official tone the department said use of contaminated waters for swimming purposes raised an important economic question. Officials wondered whether municipalities should be forced to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars for the building of expensive sewage disposal plants, and tens of thousands of dollars yearly for maintenance "so that people can swim in the North River."

The department said there was no agreement among members of a special committee formed by the American Public Health Association as to how many colibacilli were required per 100 cubic centimeters of contaminated water to make it dangerous.

There was agreement, however, that no bathing should take place in a river in the immediate area where sewage waters are being discharged.

One Dead, One Injured in Crash on St. Jerome Road

Car Leaves Highway in Grim Mishap, First Local Fatality of Summer Season

Joseph A. Gonthier, 26, of Lachute, died with a fractured spine at 6.10 a.m. Sunday after his car left the St. Jerome highway several miles east of Lachute. The accident occurred at 4.10 a.m.

A passenger in the car, Jean Gauthier, 33, also of Lachute, suffered cerebral concussion and an arm fracture. He is in Hotel Dieu Hospital, St. Jerome, where he was rushed after receiving treatment at the Providence Hospital, Lachute.

Gonthier was employed by the Shurly-Dietrich-Atkins Co. Ltd., Lachute, and both men served as waiters at St. Onge's Hotel in their off-time.

The car, heading for Lachute at considerable speed, went out of control and sped along the shoulder of the highway before entering the ditch, where it turned over. It then slid into a house owned by Albert Nichol causing approximately $25. damage. Both occupants of the car were thrown clear before the car struck the building.

The auto, a complete loss, had been bought by Gonthier only 14 hours before the accident.

Det. Maurice Lamoureux and Traffic Officer Albert Legault, of the local Provincial Police detachment, investigated.

The inquest will be held when Gauthier is able to testify.

New Officers Elected for Local Ch. Commerce

R. A. Giles President-Elect; New Executive to Take Office Next September

Industry and Commerce in Lachute

Contributed by
Lachute Chamber of Commerce

The closing meeting of the Chamber of Commerce for the summer months was held Monday evening at the Legion Hall. The attendance was not as large as usual, owing to the oppressive heat, and the fact that there were several other functions taking place the same evening. Dinner was served to upwards of 50 members.

Business mainly concerned the formation of a Senate for the organization, and the presentation of a slate of officers for the ensuing term, to assume their duties next September. The names as suggested were unanimously accepted; these are as follows:

President, R. A. Giles; 1st vice-president, André Lefebvre; 2nd vice-president, Paul Lalliberté.

Secretary, Pat Carrière.

Treasurer, Donald M. Hay.

Directors — Herbert Graves, Gerald Walker, Germain Filion, Philippe Pharand, Armand Brisson.

Legal Advisor, Fernand Legault, Q.C.

Gérard Lefebvre, the president, thanked the gathering for the support given him during the past year, and stated that he would have a full report of the year's accomplishments for the September meeting.

At the close of the election of officers, Robt. A. Giles, who was named the in-coming president, thanked the gathering for the confidence placed in him and gave his assurance that he would do his utmost for the organization.

A grand rally of the Laurentian District Chambers of Commerce is to be held in Lachute during September, of which particulars will be given later.

Cars Crash on Riverfront Highway

Two automobiles met almost head-on in a collision at 9.30 p.m. Saturday on the riverfront highway between Stonefield and Grenville. One man was injured, receiving a cut over the eye, but the major toll was in damage to the cars, amounting collectively to around $2,500.

Fred Cousins, of Grenville, was driving east accompanied by Paul Hartley, of Hawkesbury; the latter suffered the forehead injury, being treated by a Grenville physician and taken to a Hawkesbury hospital. Driver of the other car was Gilles Leclair, of Alfred. Cousins' car was damaged to an estimated cost of $1,500, while the Ontario automobile received damages of around $1,000.

Traffic Officer Albert Legault investigated.

Canada is assumed to need a population of 30,000,000 by 1975 to absorb her own industrial production, meet responsibilities of defence and to fill a framework of government four times too large for the country.

At Edmonton, Alta., Karl Jacobs, 16, paid $35 for kissing a girl, 16; his auto crashed into a truck and he admitted he was kissing her while he was driving.

Man Drowns in Attempt to Rescue Brother-in-Law

Zephyrin Gauthier, 46, of St. Bernardin, Ont., was drowned in the Rouge River near Bell Falls, Sunday, at 2 p.m., while attempting to rescue his brother-in-law, who had called for help. The brother-in-law, Jean Lalonde, swimming in the river, was pulled to safety before Gauthier lost his balance, falling into deep water. His son, Maurice, 18, attempted to rescue the victim, but failed.

The body was recovered by two strangers, who attempted to revive Gauthier by means of artificial respiration. Their attempts were fruitless, however, and they left the scene of the fatality without revealing their identity.

Gauthier is survived by his wife and seven children.

Accidental death caused by drowning, was the verdict given by Dr. Jules Lafleur, of Lachute, following the coroner's inquiry.

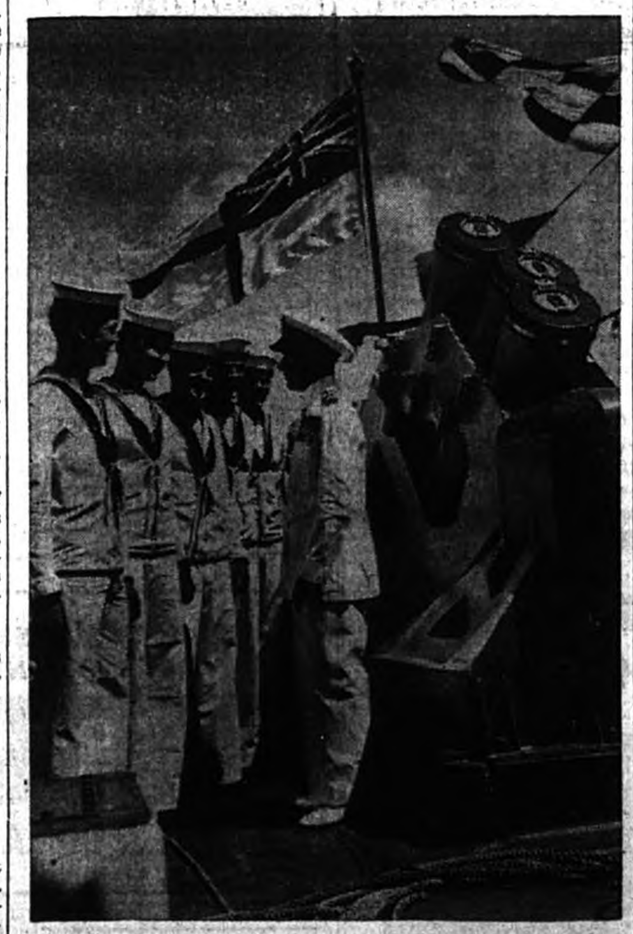

Det. Maurice Lamoureux investigated.

Community Concert Member Campaign Was Successful

The recent campaign for Community Concerts Association membership met with success, a total of approximately 525 subscribers having been enrolled. This is considered gratifying inasmuch as Lachute lost a number of members to Hawkesbury with the inauguration of a Community Concerts Association in that town. The local president, Miss Juliette Rodrigue, and her directors wish to thank all who in any way contributed to the success of this campaign.

Dates for next season's programs, and the artists selected, will be announced by the Association in September.

Bass Fishermen Fined, Ignored Season Dates

Montreal — Several bass fishermen in Montreal district who "jumped the gun" and caught these fish before the legal season opening date, have paid fines for doing so; others in Montreal and other sections of Quebec are advised by the Fish and Game Department that all bass fishing areas are being closely checked by wardens.

J. F. Bourque, Superintendent of Montreal District, said that his officers have been instructed to be severe with offenders against fish and game laws. "We have to get tough with those fellows", he said, "and that is what we are doing."

It is illegal to fish for smallmouth or large-mouth bass in the Province of Quebec before July 1. The only exception is that this year, for biological reasons, restrictions are lifted on bass (in lakes only) in the Counties of Terrebonne and Argenteuil. Elsewhere in the province, the legal fishing season is from July 1 to October 15, inclusive; the minimum legal length, 9 inches. The daily catch limit, and possession limit for bass in Brome County (Lake Memphramagog excepted) is 6 fish per day. Elsewhere in the province an angler may take 10 fish or 15 pounds.

CRITICIZES TV

Continue Efforts To Curb Speeding

Traffic speeding on the outskirts and in town is not yet "a thing of the past", but with the town officers still on the job handing out tickets to offenders, prospects are good that this happier condition will be achieved in the not too distant future, says Police Chief D. Villeneuve.

Liberal Convention Set for July 1 at Ste. Scholastique

It is learned that a Liberal Convention for Argenteuil-Two Mountaines representation is to be held at Ste. Scholastique, on July 1 at 2 o'clock p.m. The meeting will be held at the Municipal Hall under chairmanship of the Hon. Alcide Coté, Postmaster General, for the purpose of choosing the official Liberal candidate.

From usually reliable sources of information, it is also learned that Philippe Valois, lawyer of Lachute, whose term of office has just expired, will be again the official Liberal candidate and will be endorsed by the Convention.

Duplessis Outlines Plans For Development of Quebec Natural Resources

By Bernard Dufresne

Quebec, June 22 (CP) — Premier Duplessis last week announced plans in connection with the development of natural resources in various parts of Quebec, including Ungava, Chibougamau, the St. Maurice River and the Eastern Townships.

In Ungava, work on the iron ore development has so far advanced that the Hollinger North Shore Exploration Company asked Mr. Duplessis that a municipal corporation be set up at Knob Lake, centre of the mining operations. No details were given.

The Premier said he was informed 144 miles of a 360-mile railway from Sept Iles to Knob Lake are completed and another 110 miles almost completed.

In Chibougamau, the Opemiska Copper Mines (Quebec) Limited will build soon a $4,000,000 processing plant. Campbell Chibougamau Mines Ltd. next year will build a similar plant at a cost of $7,000,000. The Opemiska plant will have a capacity of 400 tons or ore daily.

The Shawinigan Water and Power Company is planning to expand production to 240,000; Rapide la Trenche's production will jump from 325,000 horsepower to 390,000; Latuque's output will be increased from 222,500 horsepower to 267,000.

At Thetford Mines, because present asbestos mining operations threaten to cause landslides, three firms will move the sites of their open pit work. The move by Asbestos Corporation, Bell Asbestos Company and Johnson Mines, Limited, will cost an estimated $6,000,000 for a new road and relaying of a railway line.

Rev. Eug. Cloutier To Be Honored, Priest for 50 Years

The local Knights of Columbus will honor their chaplain, the Rev. L'Abbé Eugène Cloutier, next Sunday marking his 50th year in the Catholic priesthood. In consideration of his advanced years, the occasion will be observed without undue fanfare — the Rev. Cloutier celebrating mass at 8 a.m., followed by luncheon at the St. Julien presbytery, to be attended by friends and fellow clergymen from nearby parishes, also by the curé's brother, the Rev. Father Marcel Cloutier, parish priest at St. Vincent de Paul.

In the evening there will be a public gathering in the College assembly hall, where the 90-voice juvenile choir will sing, under direction of the Rev. Brother Lamonde, c.s.v. The K. of C. will present their honored chaplain with a television set as a tangible mark of appreciation for his services since the Council was inaugurated 20 years ago.

Voters' Lists

The first act in the machinery of election is the preparation of voters' lists. Enumerators are now on the rounds taking the names of all those over 21 years who have resided in the country for one year prior to the election polling date. On July 23 the lists will be closed, so before that date it is the duty of each voter to see that his or her name is properly entered. July 23 is the day set aside for revision of rural lists. On that day offices will be open throughout the constituency, where application can be made for entering or correcting names on the lists. In the urban area of Lachute, revision takes place between July 23 and July 25.

Street Arabs

There are a number of young boys who frequent the streets, principally the back ones, day and night, out of control of parents, guardians and truant officers. Those boys have broken into numberless stores, homes, and even schools, in a rampage of petty thieving and robbery; and in spite of apprehension for questioning they continue to disregard priest and minister, law and convention. Police find themselves at a disadvantage in formulating charges or corrective measures because of an absence of juvenile court officers. Their parents and guardians disclaim responsibility because of their inability to control, but receive government allowances based on school attendance where no attendance exists. So the boys pursue their mischievous way, to the annoyance and loss of the general public. . . What is the remedy?

Campers Flee Flies

So annoying was the attention of the Nova Fly (blue bottle or green bottle) hereabouts, that a rumor of importation by plane (some plane) to combat the caterpillar hordes, gained some currency. Campers at the water resorts, particularly Louisa, found conditions so unbearable that a number sought the air-conditioned comfort of their homes. Those along the more breezy reaches of the Ottawa relaxed in comfort, as the pests do not appreciate running water.

Route 31

This highly publicized highway is now in a state of change, which makes driving most interesting. Above Dalesville, where more detours than open highway are available, some evidence of the finished contour can be noted. It is a tremendous scene of excavation, but with a little patience a beautiful scenic highway will emerge one of these days. The present cut leads to a bridge at Dixon's, a bridge which is not yet built. The serpentine turns along 31 are being eliminated — no need to remain alert for the unknown factor around the bend. It is a truism that "death rides the straightaway". We wonder how the new Route 31 will fare.

The show starts at 9 o'clock and seating accommodation should be reserved by contacting the Skating Rink Association in order to avoid disappointment. This promises to be delightful entertainment.

Red Cross Blood Clinic Set for Sept 30th, Oct. 1st

Two-Day Session Is Innovation Here, Aiming at Higher Quota to Meet Needs

Aiming at an increased quota of 500 blood donors and a two-day clinic September 30 and October 1, the Red Cross Blood Donor Committee held its preliminary organization meeting last week, under chairmanship of Horace Lamarche.

"Let's make this an Argenteuil effort", Mr. Lamarche said. The chairman reported that Mr. L. M. Poitras, Provincial Director of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service, who was in Lachute recently, praised last year's well-organized and well-attended clinic, and when asking if an increased quota would be possible, announced that over 80 hospitals are now under contract with Red Cross in the western section of the province. These hospitals, of which the Lachute Providence is one, get all their blood from Red Cross and administer it free to patients. To serve them adequately the Society must collect from 1,200 to 1,500 bottles of blood every week, and the provincial objective for 1953 is a minimum of 70,000 bottles. Can Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East and the surrounding district supply 500 bottles? To reach this quota the Blood Donor Clinic will be held over a two-day period in the Lachute Auditorium, instead of one day as it was last year.

With representatives from St. Andrews East and Brownsburg, as well as Lachute, the Red Cross Blood Donor Committee, as it now stands, is as follows:

Horace Lamarche chairman; Dr. L. Turcotte; Geo. Y. Deacon; Bob Giles, Jr. publicity; Mrs. D. Schwartz, secretary; Sydney Seary, Brownsburg; Mrs. C. E. Prosser, Brownsburg; Miss Beatrice M. Hadrill, R.N., St. Andrews East; Mrs. Leonard Ayers, Mrs. R. Cairns, Mrs. J. MacKimmie, Mrs. G. Tattersfield, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham.

As committees are formed to look after different phases of the campaign, more names will be added, and it is hoped that those who gave such able assistance last year will rally again in the fall to make this year's clinic a success.

C-I-L Workers Win Another Safety Award

Brownsburg, June 25 — Employees of the Brownsburg ammunition works of Canadian Industries Limited received individual awards today — this plant having been presented with the Board of Directors' award for attaining a record of 1,763,900 consecutive man-hours without a lost-time accident. This is the equivalent of one man working 880 years without injuring himself.

At a mass safety rally in the plant, works manager Leslie Thompson, introduced the guest speaker, S. J. Smart, manager of the ammunition division, who made the formal presentation of the prize. In his address, Mr. Smart congratulated the employees on their achievement and expressed the hope they would be successful in winning their next award this autumn. He pointed out that since the inception of the C-I-L no-accident record plan in 1930, the employees of the Brownsburg works have received 27 safety awards.

Boy on Bicycle Struck by Taxi

Bernard Marion, local taxi driver, struck a 14-year-old cyclist at Bethany Street and Grace Street on Monday. The lad was taken to the Providence Hospital and treated for minor injuries. The victim, Lorenzo Lalonde, is the son of Mrs. Hormidas Lalonde, Lachute.

Police Chief Donat Villeneuve investigated this mishap, as well as several other minor accidents over the week-end.

Fire Official Criticizes Quebec Municipalities Lax in Protection

By Bernard Dufresne

Quebec, June 22 (CP) — An official of the Quebec fire commissioner's office last week chided municipalities which do not give adequate consideration to their fire departments.

Speaking at the annual convention of the Municipal Finance Officers' Association, J. C. A. Laforest said:

"Municipalities of less than 25,000 population attach little or no importance to the recommendations of their fire committees."

Often, he said, the chairman of a municipal fire committee is the youngest or least experienced councillor. Firemen are the butt of jokes and jeers.

Town councils take the attitude that "the fire department brings no cash revenue."

However, he said, fires in 1951 cost 153 lives and damage was estimated at almost $26,000,000.

The best means of fighting fires is fire prevention, he said.

"If we want to prevent fires, we must, in all necessity, remove all causes of fires through eternal vigilance."

Mr. Laforest said municipalities should remember that "firemen are more than men who just bring out their hoses and throw water haphazardly on a burning building."

He said municipalities should see to it that their firefighting equipment and alarm system are up-to-date and in a good working condition; that water systems are sufficient to provide water to fight a fire for 10 hours and that permanent and volunteer fire brigades are well organized.

Rotary Playground, Community Park, Opens Friday

Brownsburg — Starting Friday, June 26, the Community Park operated by the Rotary Club of Brownsburg, at the rear of Brownsburg Lumber Co., will be supervised daily from 1 to 6 p.m. until Labor Day.

As in the past two years, the Rotary is fortunate in having Principal King Amos to take charge each week day. Rotarian volunteers, or a relief supervisor, will be on duty Sundays.

Any co-operation the public can give to this project for the children will be much appreciated. Helping to keep the grounds clean; taking care of the buildings (which have been broken into for the last two years, in the spring, with locks broken and volleyballs, softballs, bats and other equipment taken); care in driving past on the highway, or driving into the grounds — will all be appreciated by the community generally.

Close to $4,000 has been spent in providing this park and maintaining it for the past three years, in addition to much personal effort by Rotarians and citizens who have been enthusiastic supporters — digging, fencing, building, painting, pulling stumps, cleaning up and helping to make it really worthwhile for the kiddies.

Thanks are also due to Brownsburg Lumber Co., who have been very helpful in keeping the water level up by control at their power dam.

Further assistance can be given by the public (the park is free) by supporting the Rotary Club television raffle and Wild West Rodeo to be staged at the Lachute Fair Grounds Friday night, and Saturday afternoon and evening, July 24 and 25. This George Hamid Show, consisting of 72 head of cattle and 35 riders, is being brought to the district to raise funds for welfare work and the Rotary Park project.

In Alberta, a husband cannot pour a drink before dinner for his bride, if she is under 21 years of age; must get a doctor or dentist or one of her parents to pour it. The Hanover, Ont., Post comments that possibly the lawmakers believed that husbands needed to be restrained from leading their wives astray by plying them with drink.

At Gananoque, A. E. Godfrey inserted an ad in The Reporter, offering $50 reward for information on those who damaged his summer property; result, 10 youngsters, all minors, appeared before the Chief of Police about it and they came from some of the better families.

Don't Throw Stones

Now that school is out, schoolboys have a lot of time on their hands for fishing and for the games that boys have enjoyed all through the centuries.

One type of game that is particularly attractive is shooting with an airgun or simply shying rocks at a target. One target that is almost irresistible is the glass insulator on transmission lines.

Much time may be lost in locating an insulator broken or chipped by a thrown rock and, meanwhile, many customers will have been deprived of the services of their Most Valuable Servant. So, if you see someone throwing a rock at an insulator, you will be helping yourself and doing us a service by pointing out the inconvenience that might result.

You can make pipe from a great variety of materials; Vegetable or mineral fibres, for instance, pressed into a mass, can produce a pipe that has strength and can be coated or treated to resist moisture and indicate permanence.

But sewage is more than moisture. By code definition it is "a liquid containing vegetable, mineral and animal matter". It may form corrosive gases that have an injurious chemical action. A sewer pipe must be tough to resist this chemical attack.

VITRIFIED CLAY PIPE is of the nature of glass; and glass is impervious to corrosion by acids and alkalis. This hard, vitreous pipe is produced by heat, which gives it permanence. "Bonded by fire", it is able to resist chemical action—permanently. That is what makes VITRIFIED CLAY PIPE the best buy for all sewer purposes.

Picton Holstein Men Visited Quebec

Thirty-five members of the County Holstein Club of Picton, Ont., along with Agricultural Representative Donald Taylor, made a bus tour of some points of interest in Eastern Canada. They visited Macdonald College, where they saw the college herds, under the guidance of Professor Ness, and the investigational work under way on field crops, under the guidance of Professor Braun. The following day they went on to the Raymondale Farm and made a visit to the Linn Farm at Vankleek Hill on the way home.

Optimistic on Ravages Of Tent Caterpillars

The oaks, wild apples and a few other favored trees are almost completely defoliated as the forest tent caterpillars go into their cocoons for 1953. Dr. Morrison, of Macdonald College, says that, before anyone can say what next year will bring, it will be necessary to make a large collection of cocoons and record the number parasitized then later on in the fall to make a survey of the egg masses which spend the winter on the twigs and branches of the trees. General observations, however, show considerable disease among the larvae and numerous parasitic flies about on the foliage. Since healthy deciduous trees will survive defoliation for two or even three successive years, it seems probable that nature will take care of this pest before much damage more serious than temporary unsightliness and personal inconveniece has been caused.

Hurdle Fences For Chick Rearing

Ottawa — Sanitation in rearing chicks is essential, and the common recommendation is that they be reared on new land each season. From the standpoint of the control of internal parasites, particularly, this is excellent advice that appears to work effectively. But there is the problem of providing chick-tight fences for each different area used during the rearing season. Woven wire fencing of a type that will turn the chicks is quite expensive and a considerable quantity would be required if the chicks were reared, say, in four different areas over four succeeding years before they were returned to the original piece of land. To overcome this difficulty the Experimental Station at Sharlottetown, P.E.I., has used for a number of years a hurdle type of fence that has proved efficient and economical.

Two-inch mesh poultry netting used without support proved short-lived. This material is now used in the construction of a wood-framed hurdle readily movable to any site required. The hurdles are constructed of 1 x 5 rough boards 12 feet long, three being placed horizontally, to a height of about 4 feet 8 inches. They are placed truly square and parallel on a jig made from 2 x 8 to which they are tacked temporarily. Four-foot two-inch mesh poultry netting is then stretched on these forms, it being quite possible to stretch the wire to a height slightly greater than the original 48 inches. The wire is tacked to the 1 x 5 boards, using short galvanized poultry staples. After tacking in position the correct length is then cut from the roll. Three uprights of the same 1 x 5 material are then placed vertically and nailed into position, preferably using 2 or 2¼-inch clinch nails. The entire hurdle is then released from the jig and turned over. The clinch nails are then bent down tightly and the wire stapled to the uprights.

Steel posts have been used at Charlottetown for the erection of these fences, says B. F. Tinney, and if all the hurdles are of a uniform length, the post line can be measured and set before the hurdles are set out in place. Hurdles are wired to the post with baling wire and, in the autumn, after removal of the chicks from their rearing yards, the hurdles are removed for winter storage. After the posts are withdrawn the entire yard can be ploughed and worked conveniently. If the hurdles are stacked compactly and covered with boards or tar paper they will last for many years. A number of these in use at the Charlottetown Station were constructed over 15 years ago and are still in good condition.

Retailers' Problems

THE DISAGREEMENT between local merchants on store hours for the summer season, prompted a suggestion in this column that close co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce, and formation of a Retailers' Committee within that body, is a logical means of ironing out such difficulties as concern the retail business; and such difficulties exist in every thriving community.

A booklet published by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce (which we requested as a source of information on this subject) deals specifically with the details of organizing, and strengthens our conviction that Lachute would benefit greatly by a retailers' organization. These questions, cited in the brochure, are strikingly pertinent to the experience of our local storekeepers:

"Do we offer a sufficiently wide range of goods at a price which will persuade people to buy at home rather than from outside retail stores?"

"Have we a parking problem, and what can be done about it?"

"Are solicitations for donations getting out of hand?" etc.

Further paragraphs on the functions of a Retailers' Committee include the following:

All retailers in the community have a vital interest in the activities undertaken by the Retail Merchants' Committee, and these activities can be successful only if they have widespread support. It is wise, therefore, to have regular meetings of all retailers to discuss their problems, hear experts speak on subjects of particular interest to them, and lay plans for future activities.

It should be borne in mind that the Retail Merchants' Committee is just one part — however important — of the larger Chamber organization. The Committee is set up to represent retailers, to bring them together, and to promote their best interests, but it is still part of a larger organization, dedicated to serving the whole community, and the policies and actions of the committee should never digress from the principles and policies of the Board or Chamber.

School's Out!

PROMISING relief to both parents and children, the summer exams concluded this week. Friday the result of the year's study, teaching, and example, will be summed up in a prosaic slip of paper, called the Report Card. Percentages, for what they are worth, will estimate the result of the year's work — for some boys and girls providing the gateway to the unknown outside, from the happiest period of a sheltered existence. The future now becomes theirs to do as they can, though most likely not as they wish. Catholic schools are expected to re-open on September 1, which falls on a Tuesday. Protestant schools do not re-open till September 9, two days after Labor Day. The extra day this year is to provide for the rush home from summer camps, and to allow families to travel on (possibly) less crowded roads.

Graduates Want 'Opportunity'

"TODAY'S college graduate doesn't give two hoots about security. He hardly ever asks about pension plans when he looks for a job. It's opportunity he's after", claims a university placement officer.

An industry representative, who interviewed 1,500 applicants this year, said "only about five were really concerned over pension plans and holidays instead of the kind of job they could do."

Another told The Financial Post that an average of one student in 15 seemed to rate security more important than opportunity. But he felt some of this is because pension plans are now taken for granted and the student looking for a job never questions their existence.

Being Ourselves

THE CAMPAIGN waged over the last few years to eliminate toadying to United States tourists seems to have produced results as this tourist season swings into high gear.

Gone are most of the fly-specked "Americans Welcome" signs, along with the bedraggled American flags that used to decorate almost every hot dog stand.

Canadians are learning that Americans don't cross the border to visit an imitation United States but to find something new in a friendly but foreign country.

Not so long ago Americans couldn't be blamed if they thought of Canadians as a nation of inept apple-polishers dedicated to the buttering-up of tourists so they would part more easily with their money.

The sad part of it was that the apple-polishing was almost always ineffective. Americans didn't like to see their flag flown for commercial purposes and the signs in some places telling them they were welcome seemed to suggest that they weren't welcome in others.

A minority of Americans liked to see their flag flown in Canada. They said it made them feel at home. But to the great majority flying the Stars and Stripes on a hamburg stand or a hardware store was like waving a red flag before a bull. They'd drive miles to keep from patronizing such a place.

Happily these inept tourist lures now are few. It will be the task of tourist and civic authorities to see to it that they are entirely eliminated.

Americans come here for something different and as long as we're ourselves they'll find it. Fly the American flag on the Fourth of July if it seems appropriate, but keep it out of sight at other times. Fly the Union Jack or the Canadian Ensign.

And tear up any of those "welcome" signs that are still around. Americans should know by now that they are welcome everywhere in Canada.

Dietetics

THE CANADIAN Dietetic Association held a three-day convention and the dietitians attending heard a lot about fattening foods.

Dr. E. Neige Todhunter, dean of the school of home economics at the University of Alabama, told the convention there is no such thing as a fattening food. She said overweight is a problem of calorie imbalance and neither a "seven-day diet" or a "milk-and-banana diet" or any other spectacular dietary formula will reduce weight and maintain health at the same time. Overweight persons should endeavor to eat a balanced diet at a correct calorie level.

Another dietician told the convention that overweight is caused simply by overeating. Dr. Rachel Beaudoin, director of the dietetics institute at the University of Montreal, said one-quarter of North Americans are overweight and are endangering their lives by their eating habits. She suggested as a remedy a high protein diet, well-distributed in three meals a day.

Dr. E. Gordon Young, director of the Maritime regional laboratory of the National Research Council at Halifax, had a more conservative estimate of overweight. He suggested that in this country a fifth of the population over 30 are too heavy. That would be about 1,250,000 people, of whom 420,000 would be classified as obese. . . Are you one of these?

Demands on Royalty

THE PUBLIC demands upon the Queen and members of the Royal Family are unfair and unbearable — says The Rural Scene, in a striking editorial.

Privacy is the first essential of family life. The Queen, her husband and their children have a right to lead their own lives in their own way.

State duties, official functions and public appearances combine to make a burden of work and strain that would break the health of most of the Queen's subjects.

In the afterglow of the Coronation, the governments of the Commonwealth and Empire should make it possible for the Royal Family to live as normally as the affairs of State may permit.

In Her Majesty's richest realms, those who are called workers get a more comfortable livelihood, including automobiles, than Kings and Queens knew a century ago, in return for attendance at places of employment for less than one-quarter of the worker's time.

Surely royalty has a right to an eighty-hour week — says the writer, in conclusion.

THE INCREASED traffic accident rate is going to bring with it harsher methods of meeting the problem. Yet all it needs is a little common sense and courtesy on the part of the car driver as the best method of reducing the carnage — observes the Melfort (Sask.) Journal.

Where Is Canada?

By Lewis Milligan

Driving through Indiana about twenty years ago in a car with an Ontario license plate, we were parked on the main street of Fort Wayne. Several passers-by stopped to look over the car and one of them asked, "Where is Ontario?" To us, as proud Ontarians, that was like asking, "Where is Canada?" On another occasion a small town hotelkeeper refused to accept my Canadian money, which he said was "No good". I immediately went to the local bank and was referred to the manager. He was a courteous young man and he smilingly asked, "Where do you come from?" I told him, Toronto. "So do I", he said and gripped my hand with a brotherly greeting. He exchanged all my Canadian money at par. While on that trip I was told of a Canadian visitor who was having his hair cut, and when the barber learned that his customer was from Canada he said, "You speak pretty good English for a Canadian."

Such cases were no doubt exceptional even at that time, but when an American senator recently suggested that Canada should be turned over to the United States in payment for British war and other debts, it does seem as if ignorance of the status and people of Canada is still pretty widespread. This form of isolationism has, however, been broken down to some extent of late by elaborately illustrated articles in American magazines. That enlightenment was recently added to by Mr. H. G. Hilton, President of the Steel Company of Canada, in an address before the American Iron and Steel Institute, in which he presented a graphic picture of Canada's political and industrial development against its historical background. The title of Mr. Hilton's address was, "Canada — Your Dynamic Neighbor", and when he was through he left his audience in no doubt as to where Canada is — and was. Reviewing the past, he said that most Americans had taken their ideas about Canada from the movies, or from highly colored stories about our Mounted Police. This amused Canadians generally and they were "often surprised to see the sort of conutry in which they were supposed to live — a barren land of perpetual snow where wolves and huskies, and Eskimos and Indians were about the only signs of life."

Some of the facts about Canada presented by Mr. Hilton to his American audience may come as a revelation to many Canadians. Here is a resume of them: The area of Canada is exceeded only by that of China and Russia. We are the world's largest producers of newsprint, nickel, asbestos and platinum. We are the world's largest producers of aluminum, gold, uranium and electric power; and important producers of cobalt, lead, zinc, copper, oil and gas. Almost daily we are finding new and hitherto unsuspected mineral wealth. Steel consumption per capita is second highest in the world, and we rank seventh in output amongst steel-producing countries. In addition to these spectacular devolopments of natural resources there has been widely diversified expansion of manufacturing industries.

Canada has been greatly assisted in these developments by United States' venture capital, but Mr. Hilton pointed out that by far the major part of our capital expansion in the past five years has been financed from Canadian resources. "It seems probable", he said, "that the amount of our national production we have ploughed back into the economy in the past five years constitutes something of a world record." Canada's agricultural exports last year were valued at one and a quarter billion, out of a total export of goods valued at four and one-third billion.

"What worries some of us in Canada", said Mr. Hilton, "is the degree to which our costs of production are being loaded with costs of welfare and other government expenditures", and he wondered "what will happen to our economy, which derives 24 per cent of its national income from export goods, if we succeed in pricing ourselves out of foreign markets." Above all, he said, Canada needs more people to secure a domestic market large enough to employ mass production and distribution methods on a very substantial scale.

Employers' contributions to unemployment insurance, workmen's compensation, pensions and welfare amounted to $360,000,000 in 1952.

Those "Texas" Flies That Plague You

Contrary to rumors which supposedly started hereabouts in Dunany (where a resident is said to have seen an airplane releasing clouds of those flies — which bother-you-but-don't-bite) — these pests are a natural thing, according to Dr. Gustave Prevost, head of the laboratory section of the University of Montreal's biological department, who has made considerable studies in insect control.

These flies have infested the whole Laurentian area for the past week or so — but they are merely a manifestation of the balance of nature. When there is a pestilence of tent caterpillars these flies, Sarcophagia Aldrichi, make their appearance for the express purpose of preventing the caterpillars from taking over the bush. They come naturally, and have not been released by the government — a fact checked by Dr. Prevost with both provincial and federal entomological authorities.

The flies lay eggs on the caterpillars. These eggs hatch into larvae in 24 hours and the larvae quickly consume their hosts. The grey flies also lay eggs on the cocoons of the caterpillars and the fly larvae then attack the chrysalis of the caterpillar.

Brother Robert, University of Montreal emtomologist, says that while the caterpillars may be beaten for next year, there is a real likelihood of even more grey flies. For their larvae, after waxing fat upon the carcasses of the caterpillars old and young, with hatch to stamp around upon you and tickle you and cast reflections upon your cleanliness in increased numbers next year. Brother Robert says the grey flies should disappear in about two weeks — not too soon, for already they have driven many would-be vacationists from their camps and cottages.

There is room in the Tourist Literature rack of the Bartlesville, Oklahoma, Chamber of Commerce for literature about Canadian tourist attractions.

R. S. Bedford, secretary-manager of the Bartlesville Chamber writes, "We could use . . vacation material covering famous fishing and recreational spots throughout Canada."

Secretaries in tourist-conscious Canadian communities might like to take friend Bedford up on this — suggests the current bulletin of Canadian Chamber of Commerce. The address (is adds) is 121 West Frank Phillips Boulevard, Bartlesville, Oklahoma, U.S.A.

Super-Stacks

THE S.S. "UNITED STATES", new speed queen of the Atlantic, boasts the largest stacks ever built: the forward stack is 55 feet high, 60 feet long. Made of aluminum, they are assembled with 65,000 aluminum rivets. Reputed to be the safest vessel ever built, the liner contains more aluminum than any other single structure on land or sea. This light, strong, fire-and-weather-resistant metal is used for lifeboats and bulkheads, decks and elevator doors and a hundred other items.

In naval vessels, too — such as the fourteen minesweepers now being built for the Canadian Navy — aluminum is being used more extensively than ever before. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

DRAMA FESTIVALS

Discovery of talent is only one of the by-products of drama competitions. Good sportsmanship is also taught. A small group stepping into a competition for the first time finds it has to grin and bear it when someone else wins the coveted award. Young actors and actresses learn to "take it" in the same spirit as which it is given.

PALEFACE TOTEM POLE

(with a very important man at the base!)

KEY TO FACES:

Top: This man represents The Spirit of Building — especially the building of homes, schools, roads, power plants and other developments often financed by invested life insurance dollars.

Second from top: Here is The Spirit of Health, as promoted through medical research projects aided by life insurance companies. These projects support science's war against polio, cancer, heart disease and processes of ageing.

Third from top: The Spirit of Employment is symbolized by this worker. He might be any of the thousands of workers with good jobs in some of Canada's new factories, which life insurance dollars have helped create.

Base: The Spirit of Life Insurance, represented by a policyholder, is put here because in a certain sense all the others depend upon him. It is money from his premiums, invested by his life insurance company, that so often helps them serve you in all these useful ways.

So, if you are a life insurance policyholder, remember — you are more than a good provider for your family. You're also a Very Important Person who's helping to make Canada a better land to live in!

AT YOUR SERVICE — A trained life underwriter, representing one of the more than 50 Canadian, British and United States life insurance companies in Canada, will gladly help you plan for your family's security and your own needs in later years. Rely on him!

Lighthouse Keeper Ends Long Service

Halifax (CP) — John Howard, 68, says he and his family always managed to keep busy during his 26 years as keeper of the light at lonely Owl's Head, about 50 miles east of here.

Mr. Palmer was guest of honor at a party marking his retirement from department of transport service, and among those who travelled down the shore to pay their respects was S. R. Balcom, Halifax M.P.

The Owl's Head light is located on a rocky point of land accessible only by a land route which is seldom used, and juts far out into the Atlantic.

Not once during the 26 years did the Palmers permit the light to go out and never in that time was there a shipwreck in the Owl's Head area.

"Tending the light always kept one of us busy", Mr. Palmer says, "and then we brought up a family of seven girls and a boy while at Owl's Head."

Much of Mr. Palmer's spare time was spent at his favorite hobby, woodwork, turning out furniture with elaborate hand-carved fittings and decorations.

Bell Service Meets the Challenge of the Tornado through SARNIA'S worst night...

Truly there are times when no price can measure the value of your telephone service — ready when you want it most. Such a time came to Sarnia on May 21st when the tornado ripped through the downtown area. That night, Bell equipment — the telephone building itself — built to stand up in emergencies, came through one of the toughest tests.

An emergency power unit kept building and equipment alive. Dial mechanism, properly housed, remained undamaged. Light from the Bell — shown above streaming through the building's shattered doorway—was for hours the only electric light in downtown Sarnia. It became a beacon that told of service working for nearly all of Sarnia's 12,000 customers. Less than 1200 telephones were put out of action and by the end of the next day all but a few of these were back in service—thanks to telephone men from Sarnia, Windsor and Chatham. Outside wires suffered little damage because they were either underground out of harm's way or overhead in rear-lane areas, safer from falling trees.

When the tornado hit, window glass, dust and debris blasted into the room where operators were working at the long distance and information switchboards. Some of the girls were cut by the flying glass; all were ordered to another floor where it was safer. Even before they were asked to go back, Marna Levan (left above) and Pearl Roberts (right) returned on their own to their switchboards.

Chief Operator Alice Edwards (shown here directing an off-duty volunteer to her post at the switchboard) found all but those more seriously cut anxious to go back to their switchboards, and when the room was made safe by plant men, they did. In addition, girls off duty came in without being called, and rendered first aid, gathered food, cooked meals, and refused to leave until they were no longer required. One girl from Quebec on vacation in Sarnia came in to help. As one newspaper columnist wrote, "the Bell operators were the heroines of the Sarnia disaster".

Farewell Gathering And Presentation To Rev. Guy Case

St. Andrews East — The Rev. and Mrs. Guy Case were guests of honor at a social evening held in the hall of the United Church on Friday evening, June 19. Representatives of the congregations of Grenville, Cushing, Calumet and St. Andrews East gathered to express their sincere appreciation of the Rev. Mr. Case's services to them for about two years, and keen regret at his departure at the end of this month.

As the chairman, Mr. Percy Hall, remarked, "Our loss is Three Rivers' gain, and all good wishes go with him and Mrs. Case to their new home and the duties of a larger sphere including many young folk." Mr. Hall presented Mr. Case with the congregation's gift of a bedside communion service. Miss Lamb presented Mrs. Case with a piece of costume jewelry in the form of a bowknot.

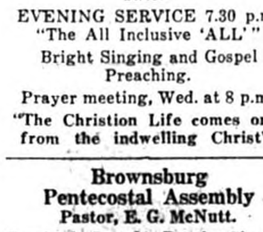

There was a program of community singing, with vocal solos by George Taylor and a whistling solo by Mrs. Clyde Clattenburg. Accompanist was Miss A. L. Wales. Then all adjourned to the basement for refreshments.

BLAMES "WATER HOGS"

Montreal (CP) — Montrealers who "hog water for lawn hosing purposes" in the early evening hours were blamed when a home in Montreal North was burned to the ground. TRAFFIC COINCIDENCE

Sydney, N.S. (CP) — Two cars were damaged in a head-on collision at nearby East Bay. The drivers were both Glace Bay lawyers — Neil Ferguson and his brother Will.

Awake From Sleep

IS TODAY'S WORLD AWAKE? OR IS IT ASLEEP TO THE MOST VITAL NEWS? CRITICAL TIMES NEED YOUR NOTICE!

Science offers the atomic bomb as the weapon to make war unthinkable. Instead, it makes it all but unavoidable and "peace" unbearable. Similar attempts to quiet the restless sleepers come from the schools, the newspapers, newsreels, radio and television.

World news agencies are good reporters. An event occurs in a remote corner of the globe. In seconds it is on the wire; in minutes it is international news. But these sources choose to ignore news of modern significance from God's Word. Concerning the "last days" of violence, Jesus Christ told his disciples to look for nation and kingdom rising against one another, food shortages, pestilence, earthquakes, global political organizations and widespread fear along with the announcement of God's established kingdom. — Matthew 24; Mark 13; Luke 21.

Do Not Be Blinded to Christ's Presence

Rose-colored propaganda, ignoring these facts while consoling human schemes, forwards the blindness about which Paul warned: "If, now, the good news we declare is in fact veiled, it is veiled among those who are perishing, among whom the god of this system of things has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, that the illumination of the glorious good news about Christ, who is the image of God, might not shine through." — 2 Corinthians 4: 3, 4.

World events make up a part of the visible sign of God's presence. But scoffers still bleat that history is only repeating itself, and never do see the light. Referring to those in his day that heard and refused to believe, then contrasting them with his true disciples, the Master said:

"This is why I speak to them by the use of illustrations, because, looking, they look in vain, and hearing, they hear in vain, neither do they get the sense of it. . . However, happy are your eyes because they behold, and your ears because they hear. For I truly say to you, many prophets and righteous men desired to see the things you are beholding and did not see them, and to hear the things you are hearing and did not hear them." Matthew 13: 13-17.

Now the facts can be matched to prove the truly significant news of this age, that the Lord has been enthroned, that he reigns! To appreciate this, the ears must be kept tuned to properly understand. This great truth must be segragated from the tides of propaganda that flood the world.

Now, indeed, it is 'later than you think'! It is much later in this world's allotted lifetime than it dares realise. Such is the proper conclusion to draw from comparison of the foretold sign with modern news reports. It is a sure sign of finish to the old system of things that cries peace, but is stricken with wars; professes godliness, yet reeks with immorality; boasts of wakefulness while it is sound asleep. Observe all these world happenings, then, "as these things start to occur, raise yourselves erect and lift your heads up, because your deliverance is getting near." (Luke 21: 28). Learn the good news and be truly awake to the times!

Fyfe-Rutherford Nuptials Held At Presbt'n Church

Standards of white gladioli formed the decorations in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute, for the marriage Saturday afternoon of Jocelyn Scott, daughter of the late J. Bulmer Rutherford and of Mrs. Rutherford, of Montreal and Lachute, to Mr. Stewart Fyfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Fyfe, of Regina, Sask., and Kingston. The Rev. Dr. W. Harold Reid, D.D., performed the ceremony, which took place at 4 o'clock; Dr. H. L. Tracy, of Queen's University, Kingston, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Andrew S. Rutherford, the bride was attended by her two sisters, Mrs. Peter C. Wang, of Brockville, and Mrs. William J. Stauble, with little Miss Susan Wang, of Brockville, niece of the bride, as flower girl.

Mr. John Chance, of Kingston, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. John Fyfe, brother of the bridegroom, and Dr. William A. Young.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of embroidered white Swiss organdy over taffeta, the fitted bodice styled with a picture neckline. Her full-length veil of tulle illusion forming a slight train, was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of tiny all-white gladioli blooms with stephanotis.

The senior attendants were dressed alike in circular skirted frocks of shot blue organza having picture necklines with pin tucking. Their coronets and bouquets were of yellow pom-poms. The little flower girl, in a frock of white Swiss organdy over yellow, carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Mrs. Rutherford, mother of the bride, gowned in grey blue crepe and lace, wore a close fitting blue feathered hat with a shoulder spray of pink freesia. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Fyfe, chose a frock of navy blue sheer with which she wore a navy blue hat, with a cluster of cornflowers, with Sweetheart roses pinned to her handbag. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. William Rutherford, wore a hand-blocked grey and black silk print frock with a Burgundy velvet trimmed dusty pink hat.

Following the reception at the summer home of the bride's mother, at Hill Foot, Lachute, the couple left by motor for the New England States on their wedding trip, before taking up residence in Kingston. For travelling the bride wore a pastel blue pleated summer frock with a white ribbon hat and white accessories, her corsage being a bouquet of pink carnations.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Queen's University.

Pretty Wedding At Brownsburg United Church

MacKiddie - Lawton

The United Church in Brownsburg was decorated with spring flowers for the marriage on June 6, at four o'clock, of Evelyn Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lawton, to Mr. William John MacKiddie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace MacKiddie, of Ogdensburg.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her niece, Miss Doreen Elliott, of Montreal. Mr. Donald MacKiddie acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Arthur Keatley and Mr. Ken MacKiddie.

The bride wore a gown of nylon tulle over satin, with a tight-fitting bodice of Chantilly lace. Her headdress was of pleated lace, held in place by her fingertip veil of French illusion, and she carried a white Bible covered with red Sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore a gown of yellow nylon tulle over taffeta and carried a nosegay of mauve sweet peas.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of dusty pink with navy blue accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of navy blue with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations.

The reception was held in the Legion Hall at Brownsburg.

For travelling the bride wore a dress of powder blue taffeta with navy blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Later the couple left by car for a trip to Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Duties of Nurses In Remote Areas Call for Courage

Edmonton (CP) — Accepting responsibilities far beyond that of nurses in urban hospitals is only part of the challenge for 33 Alberta district health nurses whose work takes them to remote areas of the province.

Tales of adventure and courage in spite of sometimes heavy odds are told modestly when the nurses gather for conferences.

At Slave Lake, 180 miles north of Edmonton, Laura Attrux serves as doctor-nurse-consultant in a district that is nearly 50 per cent Indian. The nearest medical doctor is 80 miles away.

One day Miss Attrux answered a call to a lumberjack who had his leg amputated through the knee in a logging accident. She treated the man for severe shocks, checked the bleeding, administered blood plasma and then accompanied her grateful patient 80 miles to the nearest hospital.

Miss Attrux recalls a dark, murky spring night when she raced the stork to a home isolated by impassible roads and a raging river.

She set out with a villager in a horse-drawn buggy and hadn't gone far when the mud-coated buggy separated itself from the horses, tossing the nurse into the ditch. Recovering her dignity and the horses, she continued to the swollen Athabaska river.

After crossing the river in a small boat, the nurse and villager had to climb 300 feet up a steep hill to her destination. "We beat the stork", Miss Attrux said with a smile.

"My first patient was a sick cow", laughed Margaret Smith, district nurse at New Brigden in southern Alberta.

One stormy winter day she brought an ailing 17-year-old boy 25 miles to a hospital over roads drifted high with snow. A tractor, a truck loaded with her patient, and a school van filled with seven men armed with shovels and Miss Smith were the unusual caravan that brought in the youth.

After another "blizzard call", Miss Smith rode 4½ hours on a chilly railroad speeder behind a CNR snow plow to visit a patient seriously ill.

Another nurse, Edna Carveth, has been called upon to act in the capacity of a veterinarian. She once saved eight of nine purebred Labrador pups which had been grotesquely bloated by poison.

While much of the work of district nurses is teaching the community to prevent disease and sickness, they must also make calls, conduct well-baby clinics and frequently be guest speakers at community functions.

They reside alone in what is usually a five-room combination of office and living quarters.

Lachute Girl Wed in Hamilton

Hall - Stansfield

In the Church of St. Peter, Hamilton, Ont., on May 30, at 4.30 o'clock, at an altar decorated with white snapdragons, the Rev. W. A. Filer officiated at the wedding of Margaret Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stansfield, of Lachute and Montreal, to Mr. Walter Theodore Hall. Mr. Reginald Britton played the wedding music and Miss Beverly Firth was the soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a three-quarter length gown of nylon net and a Chantilly lace redingote made with sweetheart neckline and Peter Pan collar. Her lace-trimmed nylon net fingertip veil was caught to a headdress of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley and she carried lilies-of-the-valley with white carnations. Her maid of honor, Miss Jean Lavis of Lachute, wore yellow taffeta styled with nylon net overskirt, a matching stole and net mittens, while Miss Patricia Stansfield of Lachute, niece of the bride, as junior bridesmaid was attired in yellow brocaded satin, the dress with sweetheart neckline, brief sleeves and full net skirt. Each wore flowered headdresses in yellow and carried bouquets of bronze-tipped carnations. Mr. Douglas MacDonald of Oakville attended the groom and the ushers were Messrs. Fred Stansfield of Lachute, and Reginald Warren, of Hamilton.

SCHOOL FRILLS

In some city schools, and towns too, insistence has been laid on large auditoriums as well as extensive recreation facilities, and too little thought has been given to the fundamental needs of teaching. Schools should serve their purpose as places of learning — not glorified "holiday" resorts for the inept or those too lazy to learn.

SPORTS AND JUVENILE ACTIVITIES

Wrestling Bouts For B'burg Arena

It is learned that a series of wrestling programs have been arranged by the Brownsburg Community Rink Association, at the Arena, through management of a Montreal promoter — the first of which is billed for next Wednesday, July 1, at 8 p.m.

The mat program for this initial engagement will be three preliminary bouts and a final, matching two three-man teams. Participants in this main bout, a tag match, will be Jacques Trudeau, Bull Hocoma and Tony Raski vs. Flash Gordon, Georges St. Louis and Bob Lachance.

It is anticipated that this experiment will attract keen interest among the sports-minded folks of Brownsburg and the neighboring centres.

OUTSIDE INFLUENCES ON CANADA

Is Canadian business less vulnerable to outside influences than a generation ago? The Financial Post asked a group of Canadians.

Opinion varied, but was fairly evenly divided.

Those who see vulnerability to outside influences diminishing cite these main factors compared with a generation ago:

— Larger population; greater managerial know-how; more balanced economy; greater diversification of product; improved international bargaining position; greater development of resources.

As against these, it is argued that our prosperity depends on maintaining our export position, that the fundamental facts of the economy have changed little in the generation — capital is relatively scarce; heavily on external markets.

One respondent sees considerable benefit from outside influences in new ideas and new techniques.

'Rumor Season' for Big-Time Hockey

By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Big-time hockey's rumor factory, which goes into operation periodically during the off-season, has been working at a production line pace the last few weeks.

Nine times out of ten the rumors aren't worth a darn. Often they come from "well-infromed sources" but the tag doesn't fit.

One of the big ones involves defenceman Bill Gadsby of the Black Hawkes, who is rumored joining the Maple Leafs in exchange for a bundle of players similar to the Max Bentley deal of a few years back.

The rumor had just nicely got on its way when coach Sid Abel of Chicago threw cold water on it. Checked at a hockey meeting at Montreal, Abel said he wasn't trading his all-star rearguard for anyone.

"I think he's the best defenceman in the National Hockey League and I would sooner part with my right arm. "We need speed up front but we aren't giving Gadsby away to get it."

Sawchuk's Future

Then there were reports that goalie Terry Sawchuck of Detroit would be wearing a New York Rangers uniform next fall.

The Red Wings have a fine young netminder in Glen Hall, last season with Edmonton of the Western Hockey League, and rumor had it he would be called up — leaving Sawchuck as a valuable piece of trade bait.

Later came "inside information" that Sawchuck wasn't definitely going to Rangers but was up for sale to the highest bidder.

That's when general manager Jack Adams of the Wings stepped in. "The gossip boys are always trading Red Wings", he said with a chuckle. "We haven't decided on any player changes yet."

Most likely rumor of the lot involves Doug Bentley and New York Rangers.

The word is out that coach Bill Cook won't be back at the Rangers helm next season. Bentley has done a fine job with Saskatoon Quakers, a New York farm club, the last two years and the Manhattan job is reported his if he wants it.

Doug may accept if he can take brother Max along. However, Max's contract is owned by the Maple Leafs, who say he'll play for them or no one.

There are a few plums in the New York lineup that the Leafs could use in a trade for Bentley. If the Rangers want Max badly enough, don't bet he doesn't end up there.

Husband-Wife Tournament at Local Golf Club

Ladies Take Part in Outside Contests

A busy week at Lachute Golf and Country Club was highlighted last Sunday by the popular Husband-and-Wife tournament, which was won by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ayers with 65½ low net. Despite hot and humid weather a record field turned out for the event.

Runners-up in this contest were — 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. J. Huggins (66 low net); 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leggett (68 low net).

Mrs. Roy Fraser won top honors at the Ladies' Day tournament, Wednesday, June 17. This was also first round for the President's Prize. The June 11 Eclectic tournament was won by Mrs. Howard Watson.

Congratulations to Mrs. Philippe Valois, who with 99 gross won through a large field to be one of the top four winners in C.L.G.U. tournament at Summerlea Golf Club, June 19, and returned to win the Richelieu tournament on the home course with 97 gross the following day. Others at Summerlea from Lachute were Miss Fleur Ange Carrière, Mrs. Jack Reade, Miss Cecile Ethier, and Mrs. J. Martin.

Three members from Lachute in the 19 to 24 handicap division, Mrs. René Coté, Mrs. Philippe Valois, and Mrs. Jack Reade, also attended a tournament at Kanawaki. Special prize in this division was won by Mrs. Jack Reade.

This week's golf event, the Montreal City and District Tournament at Laval, will draw a large field, and Lachute will be represented by Mrs. Norma Rogers, Miss Cecile Ethier, Mrs. Philippe Valois, Mrs. Jack Reade and Miss Fleur Ange Carrière.

Mrs. George Leggett, president, announced that the Thursday night bridge in the Tartan Room will be discontinued owing to the hot weather.

Warm and weary golfers are finding solace these days in the lovely air-conditioned Catalogne Room where Montreal's well known Connie Marsland plays soothing organ music — to help them forget those scores which could have been.

Lachute TIGERS

By J. C. PETITCLERC

Sorry fans, but for two weeks you will be without news from the Tigers. Being a member of the Canadian Reserve Army, I have left for summer camp. While I am away, you may be interested in a biography of our Association president, as written in French by Gaby Valois:

Lionel Laurin was born in St. Hermas June 22, 1901, and went to rural school, then to Ste. Scholastique.

He came to Lachute in 1924 to establish the first local transport enterprise, named Laurin Express Ltd.

Lionel immediately became known for his interest in, and his great generosity to local sport.

Around 1931 hockey seemed to be his prime interest, for he contributed to the local league and Brownsburg.

Old-timers can remember that notable club managed by Wilfrid Jolicoeur and the late Charlie Walker under the banner of Ayers Ltd., the Lachute Independents, under Jos. Raymond; the L.A.A.A., with Rodolphe Beaulne; the Blues and the Reds of Brownsburg, under Aldege Carrière and Aurel St. Onge; and, last but not least, the Laurin Express team, under Maurice Navion.

And many remember those happy excursions by train or bus, organized by Lionel or Jos. Raymond, to Joliette, St. Jerome and Ste. Agathe.

Lionel Laurin was the pioneer of winter roads between Lachute and Montreal, Ste. Agathe, Montebello. With 22 trucks Lionel did all the transportation of materials for construction of the famous Lucerne-in-Quebec (now the Seigniory Club), and one of his other big contracts was for the entire transport of Montreal Stop & Shop goods.

In 1940 Lionel entered the big family of National Breweries Ltd. for Lachute territory, replacing none other than the late Paul Lahaie, another notable sports figure. Being successful in his new enterprise Lionel found renewed enthusiasm in a sport which he wanted to bring back to Lachute, baseball, once so popular here in former years. The efforts of a few enthusiasts—J. Belanger, L. Gibeault, L. J. Joly and A. Ouellet — resulted in the formation of our Association, "L'Association de la Jeunesse de Lachute Inc." And for the fifth time Lionel has been re-elected president. With him, Baseball and Progress are synonymous for this town. He was named vice-president of the Laurentian League, a position which he retained in the present Ligue des Laurentides.

His past experience in sport has helped not only locally but in other quarters of this league, for Lionel is ready to give a hand anytime he can.

Many a time at the season's end, local sport has landed financially in the red, and Lionel has to see to it from his own pocket, keeping Lachute's name in fair repute.

In 1950, he had to ask the younger generation to give a helping hand. Everybody knows who that helping hand was — the younger Mr. Ayers, who is also ardent for sports in Lachute and Ayersville.

So that, sports fans, is the biography of Lionel, alias "Ti-Claque" Laurin, president of the Association.

Lake Louisa Fish Story

The current issue of "Contact" reports a fish story of humorous interest. The incident occurred to two Brownsburg C-I-L employees.

Walter Peloquin, tool shop, was fishing at Lake Louisa. Since the fish weren't biting too well, he set his rod on the springboard and returned to his car, where his children were.

The reel began to whirr and there was a splash. Line, rod and reel disappeared in the cold Louisa waters.

The same evening, Theodore Gagné, production checker, was casting from the same wharf. He hooked something. A light pressure on the line brought up a rod and reel.

Retrieving the line, he felt action. He landed a 2¼ pound grey trout.

June for Brides and Sentiment; Saturday Night in Suburbia

"EXILE FROM SUNNYACRES"
By Margaret Cook

"Our heart is in the highlands" but our unwilling body remains in suburbia. We are feeling a little bitter about this after having just lived through another suburban Saturday night. It seems to be an unwritten law that one must make whoopee on Saturday night, although almost everybody now has Saturday off, so Friday should be equally good for purposes of jollification. But no, it is on Saturday night that one, having retired at a chaste eleven, has to listen to assorted parties breaking up and good-nights being said in two languages. Of the two, in this neighborhood at least, the French is less raucous. Two or three hours later, we are treated to boogie-woogie on a car radio as the youth of the next house return home. Meanwhile, assorted groups have gone home vocally from fairs, movies, dances, etc.; this generally disturbs the delicate nerves of the dogs, which feel constrained to mark their protest. Aeroplanes drone overhead from a nearby airport, and Diesels on the railway add their quota to the cacophony. The railway had an agreement with the local council that no engine shall whistle in the city limits; the engineers scrupulously keep this rule; they seem to take great pleasure in long drawn-out shrieks just at the boundary. Add all this up and it will be understood that one arrives on Sunday in something less than a religious mood. So much so, that one suspects that the men who noisily propel lawnmowers at an early hour are pointing a moral as well as cutting the grass. The thought that keeps us from going quite beserk (lovely word, that!) is that two weeks today we shall be at Sunnyacres, where the Saturday night noises are initiated by the whippoorwill and the brook.

• • •

As we have mentioned before, the month of May and the month of Brides are not our favorites. Every housewife knows what transpires in May, and the press and the jewellers rejoice in June. We understand about housewives and May but few, except tutors, really know the potentialities of June. As we get older and older, the youth of this great land tend to get dumber and dumber, or — as our doctor neighbor craftily suggests — we get wickeder and wickeder and youth gets callower and callower. Whatever it is, the translation of the French, "Qui aime un menteur?" by "Who loves a monitor?", does not so much amuse as irritate. The world of School appears to our jaundiced eye to be rapidly resolving itself into two camps; everybody is either a Sport or a Greasy-grind. If you are a Sport, you revel in running races, in broad jumps, and in all games, and you refer to Shakespeare and lesser lights as Junk. If you are a Grind, you refer to the others as Muscles and are very quiet and meek all year, but on Report Day, you triumph and swiftly pass Muscles, who is slow to take the awful news home to Father! The idea of a well-rounded personality is evidently quite passée. After a bout with the pupil, we pick up the latest Nash for consolation. For the sentimental, we give you:

"Beneath the shimmering bridal veil
Tomboys look demure and pale,
Hoydens turn into paragons,
And downy ducklings into swans.
I wish the Archbishop of Westminster
Would make a bride of every spinster."

For the tougher-minded, Mr. Nash has this:

"An elderly bride of Port Jervis
Was quite understandably nervis,
Since her apple-cheeked groom,
With three wives in the tomb,
Kept insuring her during the service."

In the realm of Art, Montreal is to have a real treat at the end of the month — Sir Ernest Macmillan and Lois Marshall on the same program, two Canadians who have made good in a big way — and, in one case, against great odds. Miss Marshall's voice, we are assured by those who should know, is one of the great voices of the world, quite equal to that of Patti or of Albani. All this from a young Toronto girl of moderate circumstances and handicapped by a physical defect that the critics were sure would automatically debar her from public life. But genius burns brightly even in airless surroundings. Rumor has it that Miss Marshall is oblivous of her audience, so much so, that the noise of hundreds of pages being turned as the audience followed the script of an aria, once "awoke" her and made her falter momentarily. We mean to turn our tutoring money into an hour with Macmillan and Marshall.

We are writing under an apple tree which was deleafed by the caterpillars. To our great joy, it is sprouting new leaves and once more we can rest or work under its green canopy. Across the yard, we have a tomato over an inch in diameter, and another half its size. As these belong to a species which never grows very large, it is quite possible that we shall have a ripe tomato before we leave for Sunnyacres. The asparagus has been good eating for many weeks now, and the evening primrose, together with the yellow loosestrife, are gay against the red Maltese cross blossoms of a plant whose name we have never found out. There are pinks, too; it really is not a bad backyard, for a city. . . But still we long for the other home.

We hope you will be interested to know that the floor at Sunnyacres is now painted, the loveliest shade of green, just a little warmer than an apple green. When we go in two weeks, the contractor assures us that the new kitchen and porch will be complete. Next time we'll tell you all about it.

That Maze of Wires Under Your Radio Chassis

New Method Simplifies Assembly, Cuts Manufacture Time

Engineers in the Appliance-Electronics Division of Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited in Hamilton have ben experimenting with the new technique in 'printed wiring' circuits for some months, and J. D. Campbell, general manager of the Division, announces that following satisfactory tests, this new process will be incorporated into regular fall production of receivers. These important developments in radio and television manufacturing, the first major changes in recent years, will eliminate the human error factor from main assembly stages, and result in greatly increased production.

The maze of wires which make up the underside of a radio or television set will be eliminated by this new assembly method known as "printed wiring". With the present conventional methods, each of the hundreds of wires must first be cut to length, and then soldered at each end to connect it into the circuit. This is a difficult operation requiring considerable skill and time, with the ever-present chance of human error.

With the new prefabricated wiring, these hundreds of soldering operations will be eliminated by replacing the complex wiring with a pattern of thin copper foil. This is done by bonding a sheet of the metal to a plastic base and using photographic negatives and an acid etching solution to print the desired circuit on the base. Excess metals is removed by the etching method, and the remaining pattern appears as a winding path of copper on the thin base.

Connecting the various components, such as tubes and resistors, completes the circuit. This is accomplished by drilling holes through the base and mounting the components on the opposite side, so that their leads connect to the pattern.

Next manufacturing step ordinarily would be to hand solder the many connections between the components and the printed wring pattern. However another new development being used at Westinghouse termed "dip soldering" makes it possible to complete all these connections in one operation. The side of the base bearing the printed wiring is dipped in a bath of molten solder and in one rapid process the many leads extending through the base from the components on the opposite side are firmly joined to the pattern.

This dip soldering is ideally suited to an atomatic assembly process. A number of machines have been designed to handle a large number of units in rapid succession. A more uniform product results, and the hazard of improper conections is almost entirely eliminated.

Westinghouse engineers think that the day will not be far off when these two new processing methods will make it feasible for repairmen and dealers to simply discard an unserviceable wiring plate, and replace it with a new one.

Tourists to Minnesota Are 'Guests for A Day'

A young Winnipeg couple motoring through Crookston, Minnesota, looking for the restaurant at which they had dinner during their honeymoon last year, had the surprise of their lives.

Corporal Arthur J. Smith, who is stationed with the RCAF at Gimli, Man., and his wife Leona, not only found the restaurant, but were chosen Crookston's "Guests for a Day" by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Smith tells it this way: "We were driving slowly through the town looking for the place, when we noticed that the police were following us.

"After that it was wonderful. We were taken to the Chamber of Commerce office, where the Mayor presented us with a huge cardboard key to the city. We toured the stores and were given gifts. Then we were treated to dinner and a round of the night clubs.

"On Sunday we were interviewed over the radio by the Mayor.

"It was all such a surprise — and so much fun."

In Cuban Style

Rhythms with a hot tamale flavor are dished out on Tuesday nights by Chicho Valle, a Cuban singer-musician-conductor who broadcasts "the music with the bumps" at 11 o'clock, on the CBC Trans-Canada network. With his Cubanos, who play and sing as a background for his Latin-American style singing, he has been entertaining Canadians for six or seven years. Nearly every year he returns to Cuba to add to his collection of peppery tunes.

Western Entry In "Miss Canada" Event

Current Confusion In Movie Business

Hollywood's current confusion over three-dimensional films may soon give a boost to Canada's imports of Continental movies, already at a record level, says The Financial Post.

Hollywood's movie-makers have a wide choice of three-dimensional systems, including Natural Vision, Cinerama and Cinemascope. But expensive alterations and equipment are necessary to adapt a theatre to the showing of any 3-D system — and no two systems use the same equipment.

Until U.S. producers reach some measure of agreement on films-in-depth, the output of Hollywood films is being reduced by some 50%. This means that British and foreign producers, still turning out two-dimensional or "flat" pictures, have an opportunity to enlarge their share of the North American market during the next year or so.

Ask Mayor Whitton to Open Dance Contest At Ottawa Exhibition

Ottawa — Square-dance enthusiast Charlotte Whitton will be asked to open the Ottawa Exhibition square dancing exhibition to be held at Lansdowne Park, August 24-29, The Citizen has been informed.

The competition, open to sets from anywhere in the United States and Canada, will feature $1,000 in prize money.

On several occasions Mayor Whitton has demonstrated her skill as a square-dancer, one time tripping the light fantastic with Agriculture Minister James Gardiner at a big Lansdowne Park affair.

It is now planned to have Her Worship open the Ottawa Exhibition by leading off the first dance. Nothing has been said yet about Mayor Whitton's partner — diplomacy dictating a discreet silence until after the federal election.

Ottawa Exhibition officials expect to have a huge entry list in the square-dancing competition, for those between 10 and 18 and noons and evenings on a special platform in front of the bandstand.

Anyone is eligible to participate and entry forms may be secured by writing or visiting the Exhibition offices at Lansdowne Park. All entries must be received by August 3.

There are two divisions in the square-dancing competition, junior and senior. The junior division is for those between 1 0and 18 and the senior section for those over 18.

U.S. Looks to Quebec To Aid Teaching French

Miss Marguerite Eriksson, of the Jacobs L. Devers School in York, Pennsylvania, writes, "The success or failure of a foreign language program in York will depend upon the help that I receive under Dr. S. C. M. In most schools outside of Quebec, French teaching begins in High School. Miss Eriksson will attend the annual French Summer School at Macdonald College July 6 to August 8 this year.

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

The Berry Season

From now until well on into July, berries will be around and one old nursery rhyme keeps coming to mind "you shall sit on a cushion and sew a fine seam and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream". Sounds as though the gallant Romeo who said that pretty speech was really putting on a persuasive campaign, doesn't it? Modern maidens definitely appreciate feasting on strawberries or raspberries and cream, and now is the time to do so because the season is short, but sweet.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, say that berries are one of the most perishable foods on the market and for that reason, they are packed carefully and transported quickly. The best flavor is found in berries which are plump, firm and uniformly ripe. With strawberries there should not be any white, green or hard black tips. Keep berries cool and dry until they are to be used, but be sure that they get plenty of air. Do not pack them tightly into a jar. The home economists suggest storing them on a tray or shallow pan. This will avoid bruising. Raspberries need only to be carefully picked over before they are used unless they are dirty. Then, of course, they must be washed. When washing, either strawberries or raspberries, put the berries in a large bowl of cold water — with strawberries wash before hulling. Let the sand and soil sink to the bottom, then lift the berries gently from the water with your fingers spread apart slightly to act as a strainer. Do not let the berries stand in the water long, for they are apt to lose their color and flavor.

Probably because the berry season is short, we never seem to be able to get quite as many as we would like. The home economists suggest that this year homemakers should make the most of the strawberries that they get and try serving them different ways. There are all kinds of berry specialties. First of all, just berries and cream, then shortcake topped with lots of whipped cream or ice cream, berry pies served with ice cream or cream cheese, ice cream sundaes with fresh berries, and frozen berry desserts. Jelly roll filled with fresh berries and iced with whipped cream is a recipe which many homemakers have never tried. It is very simple to do. Simply fill a jelly roll with fresh berries which have been crushed and mixed with sugar. Then ice the roll lavishly with whipped cream and decorate with a few whole berries.

Raspberries, sweet, juicy and delicious are so well liked that most people want to make jam or can some of this luscious fruit for use later on. This is the recipe for raspberry jam from the Consumer Section. It is a very good recipe and it is easy to do.

8 Cups crushed raspberries (about 4 quart boxes), 6 cups sugar.

Bring the 8 cups crushed raspberries to a boil and pre-cook uncovered for 15 minutes. Add the six cups sugar, bring to the boil and boil uncovered to the jam stage. This will take from 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: 7 cups raspberry jam.

The homemaker who owns a home freezer or a locker will want to do plenty of frozen raspberries this year because they are really a treat in the winter. Frozen raspberries are simple to prepare. Simply pick the berries over carefully and wash them, only if necesssary. Then pack in dry sugar using 16 cups fruit to 2 cups sugar or you may pack them in a cold, moderately thin syrup, that is, syrup made with 1 cup sugar to 1½ cups water. What an easy way to store food! No cooking, no processing in hot water and no handling of hot fruit jars.

Prize-Winning Hairdresser

Out of 42 contestants in the recent test for hairdressing held at the Central School in Montreal, Miss Annie Cattelan, of Lachute, took first award. Miss Cattelan is shown above holding the trophy which was presented to her on this occasion.

New regulations now require "substandard" hosiery to be stamped as such. This practice covers not only all Canadian hosiery mills but extends to U.S. mills exporting to Canada. Under the new regulations "substandard" hosiery no longer can "mix with quality", unknown to the purchaser. A substandard sticking is generally accepted as one with some flaw, such as a thick thread, but whose wearability or appearance is in no way impaired.

"Let's Eat!"

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"It makes me feel sad when I hear of many ladies who spend so much time cooking in the summer", sighed the Chef. "If they will only learn how to make a variety of tossed salads, this one dish alone can save hours of time.

"I'm frequently asked, too, how to make a 'Chef's Salad', Madame. It does not seem to be commonly known that tossed salads take their name from the garnish used, or from the ingredients added when tossing an otherwise plain salad."

The Chef's Rules for Tossed Salads

Use only fresh crisp salad greens, carefully washed, drained and refrigerated until crisp in the hydrator, or in polyethelene bags tightly closed and placed in the refrigerator.

Tear or shred the greens into bite-sized pieces.

Select a dressing that not only tastes good in itself, but that will compliment the other salad ingredients and the various foods in the meal. French dressing or one of its deratives harmonizes with any menu.

Tossed Bowl Salads

To mix this salad, select a bowl that is very large, so the greens will not spill out while being tossed. Turn into bowl one heaping quart of mixed lettuce, young spinach and tender chicory, all cut in bite-sized pieces. Measure into a big salad spoon ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate. Almost fill the spoon with olive oil and stir in the seasonings. Pour over the greens. Add two more tablespoons olive oil and toss gently with salad fork and spoon. Slowly add one tablespoon vinegar, wine vinegar preferred. Toss gently again, until the oil and vinegar have been completely absorbed and blended. No dressing should be left in the bowl.

Seashore Fish and Clam Stew

Dice 2 oz. fat pork; place in a heavy three-quart saucepan and slowly fry until the fat begins to run. Then add ½ cup chopped onions; saute one minute. Add two cups small-diced white potatoes, one cup medium-diced celery, ¾ cup small-diced carrots and ¼ cup small-diced green pepper. Slow-saute three minutes. Stir in 1½ cups canned tomato, 5 cups boiling water, 1½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and ¼ teaspoon thyme or tarragon. Cover and boil 25 minutes.

Then add 1 lb. fresh or frozen fish fillets cut into one-inch cubes. Turn in (10½-oz. can) chopped clams with the liquid. Simmer 15 minutes, or until the fish flakes and is fork-tender. Then stir in one tablespoon enriched flour blended with two tablespoons tomato juice or tomato ketchup, and boil three minutes. Serve in bowls. Garnish with minced parsley.

Trick of the Chef

When preparing cucumber salad, make the French dressing with a little tarragon vinegar.

W.I. Send-Off for Lady Tweedmuir

Mrs. R. Thomson and Mrs. H. Ellard, of the executive of the Quebec Women's Institutes, were on hand to bid "bon voyage" to Lady Tweedsmuir as she sailed on the Empress of France after a brief visit in this country.

A bouquet of iris in the Institute colors was presented to her, and a small cake of maple sugar.

Lady Tweedsmuir took a keen interest in the Women's Institute during her stay in Canada as wife of a former Governor-General, and has continued this by sponsoring the Tweedsmuir Competitions, held every two-year term of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

Mrs. Ellard also represented the F.W.I.C. at a tea in Ottawa, given by the Ontario W.I. in honor of Lady Tweedsmuir.

Ovens and rack holders can be cleaned with a bottle brush that has been dipped in a solution of ammonia. Make the solution by diluting the ammonia with the same quantity of lukewarm water.

Drowning Is So Permanent!

— By NANCY CLEAVER — (Copyright)

"There are far too many swimming fatalities", John Smith remarked to his wife as he finished reading aloud the account of a boy losing his life in an accident when two motor boats collided in the middle of a lake.

"I am going to check over the water safety rules posted up at our local swimming pool with our son. I don't want him taking any crazy chances this holiday!"

Drowning is so permanent! This is a good idea — and another plan is to read aloud in the Family Council these Swimming regulation which have proved their value. Discuss the reasons behind these rules and mark the ones you consider most important.

Don't go swimming until one-and-a-half to two hours after a meal. On a hot day, cool off a bit before plunging into the water. Never go swimming alone — always have a companion or "buddy". Swim if possible where a life guard is on duty, and the bathing area is known to be safe.

Obey warning signs. If a sign says "Danger" it means just that! Don't dive into unfamiliar water; you do not know the depth or whether there are sharp rocks, glass or jagged edges hidden on the bottom. When swimming a distance, always be accompanied by a row boat — and climb into it if you are exhausted. Be careful when playing on a raft or a dock surrounded by deep water. It is easy to fall off, and not nearly so easy to climb out of the water!

When beginning to swim, wade out to the deeper water and swim into shore. In a race, always swim to shore or parallel to the water's edge and not far from land.

Avoid silly stunts in the water. Don't attempt a swim or a dive beyond your skill or strength on someone's foolish "dare". Don't do a lot of yelling, or pretend you are in danger. Remember the boy and the "Wolf! Wolf!" story.

Stay out of a canoe until you can swim. Non-swimmers should wear life belts for a trip in any boat, or have life preservers handy. Act in a responsible way in a boat, not rocking it or changing seats, etc. If you are tipped out of a boat, don't swim for the shore. Cling to the boat and call for help.

A boat is no place for fooling or wrestling. Act sensibly. Obey water traffic rules to prevent bumping into another boat. Help keep the boat level from side to side on an even keel from bow to stern. Refuse to go in an overloaded boat — overloaded either with freight or passengers. Leaning over the side too far is inviting a misshap — so is standing up in a boat!

If a sudden rain storm comes up, or an unexpected "blow", keep calm and don't get in a panic. If someone near you needs assistance in the water, don't jump in and attempt a rescue unless you are a goood swimmer and know how to go about saving a life. Call for help while looking for an inner tube, a rope, a plank, or some other buoyant article for the person to grasp.

If you don't know how to carry out arificial respiration — learn it! With knowledge and practice you may be able to save someone's life some day.

Water Safety! It's up to you in swimming and in boats! If an accident should happen, you don't need to panic. You know what to do! Don't take ANY chances — "Drowning is so PERMANENT!"

Pet Lamb's Fleece To Make New Coat For Princess Anne

London (CP) — Princess Anne is to have a coat spun from the fleece of Linda, a sheep adopted when an orphan lamb by the boys and girls of the Invalid Children's Aid Association home in Oxfordshire.

Linda is a month or two older than the princess. Her fleece has been hand-spun in Kent and now is being hand-woven by Miss Mary Kerr, 24-year-old teacher at the Cathedral School of Weaving, at Canterbury.

The Queen asked that the wool should be left in its natural shade of white, so no special bleaching or coloring process has been used. Moreover much of the wool is lost during the de-greasing, cleaning, spinning and weaving processes, so that the Princess coat will not take the entire fleece, but there will be more than enough to make her a smart little garment.

Miss Kerr, who has been weaving since she was 10, is working on the cloth in the school's old oak beam room where hand-weaving has been done since the days of the Huguenots — the Protestant refugees from France who introduced their own technique of weaving into England, and groups of whom settled in Canterbury nearly 300 years ago.

You can't go "ALL-OUT" If you feel "ALL-IN"
These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

Fashions

The stole is doing quite a job this season, appearing with suits, with dresses and on its own. It is attractively shown with a pretty dress of printed cotton that makes much use of tucking. This detail is used strategically on the bodice where it alternates with stitching to give a firm, snug look. The low neckline is supported by shoulder straps which are of solid black as is the piping on the bodice. The tucking is repeated at the hips from which unpressed pleats give fullness. The stole is lined in black and is reversible.

International Interests Of Country Women

Now country women the world over can take a more active part in international work will be the theme of the seventh triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, August 12-23, it has been announced. Delegates are expected to attend from 25 different countries.

Since its beginning more than 50 years ago in the small Ontario Village of Stoney Creek, the Women's Institute idea has spread around the world. Now the international organization of rural women, the A.C.W.W., which was formed in Stockholm in 1933, has grown from being a group of women informally promoting world-wide goodwill and friendship to being the responsible spokesman at the United Nations for more than five million women around the world. The agenda during the 10 crowded session-days in Toronto will spotlight this modern role of the Association.

Round-table discussions will deal with the problems and programs of rural women in less developed areas, technical assistance programs for rural women, education of rural youth to a better world understanding, and ways and means of spreading information about the U.N. and its agencies.

Recognizing that the production of food is agriculture's particular contribution to peace, delegates will study the economic problems of people living on the land. Other sessions will deal with conservation, adult education programs, and the wide-spread international exchange programs fostered by the A.C.W.W.

Annual Prov'l Conference Of Quebec Women's Inst. Held at Macdonald

Mrs. G. E. LeBaron, North Hatley, president of the Quebec Women's Institutes, presided at the opening session of the annual provincial convention of that organization, which opened Tuesday evening, June 23, at Macdonald College. On the platform with Mrs. LeBaron were Dr. W. H. Brittain, vice-principal, who welcomed the delegates, Mrs. W. A. Maw, president of the Macdonald Women's Union, and Mme. P. C. LeBeau, secretary, Home Economics Division, Department of Agriculture, Quebec.

Representatives of other groups associated with the Q.W.I. were also present. These included Mrs. H. S. Van Patter, Montreal Council of Women, with whom the Q.W.I. is federated, Mrs. W. V. George, Canadian Association of Consumers (Quebec English Branch), Prof. H. R. C. Avison, Adult Education Service, Mrs. N. Telford, Quebec Council of Farm Forums and the Canadian Handicrafts Guild.

Mrs. E. C. Irvine, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, was in charge of the musical part of the evening, which included two numbers by the local Girls' Choir, Mr. H. Duckworth, Lachine, Director, and a solo by Prof. A. Banting, Macdonald College.

A demonstration, "Decorating Delights with Wallpaper", by Miss Marie Frèmont, Demonstrator and Consellor, Canadian Wallpaper Manufacturing Company, was held during the afternoon. Miss Frèmont, who has had much experience in teaching Handicrafts and Interior Decorating before entering her present position, showed how to fit your wall paper into those tricky places around pipes, window corners and other trouble spots, and told what goes with what. Slides and samples of rugs and drapes were used to illustrate her talk. "In this" said Miss Frèmont in announcing her demonstration, "I stress economy as well as originality and ease or care". Which should appeal to the thrifty housewife.

Both the demonstration and the evening program were open to the public.

FARM SAFETY

Statistics show farming to be one of the most dangerous occupations. We are all too prone to be careless. We believe accidents can happen to our neighbors, but not to us. One moment of inattention, one little "chance" we take, may be the cause of our death or that of one of our children. Is it worth it?

X-Ray Clinics Being Held at County Centres

Tuberculosis deaths in the County of Argenteuil have dropped 22.2% in the period between 1926 and 1950, according to Dr. L. Turcotte, County Health Officer.

"Chest X-rays have played an important part in this decrease", Dr. Turcotte added, "and although we have several people under treatment, there could be many more that have the disease and the only way to find out is to have a chest X-ray. These X-rays not only detect T.B. but also show certain types of tumors and some forms of heart disease."

Beautiful KEM-GLO

Garden-Graph

By the use of stakes it is possible to grow more plants in less space. This applies to both flowers and vegetables.

Tomatoes, for example, if permitted to grow at will and sprawl all over their section of the garden, must be planted not closer than three by four feet. If, however, they are trained to grow upon stakes they can be planted two feet apart and three feet between rows.

The procedure when using stakes is simple. When tying a plant to a stake make a loop of the tape or soft cord around the stake first, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Then loop the tape or cord around the stem of the plant, as illustrated, and bring it back to the stake. This double method of tying furnishes a loop in which the plant can stand upright without being bruised or pinched. The knot should be tied against the stake, not against the plant's stem.

Do not bunch the foliage together when tying up a plant. Allow room for additional stem growth of the plant. Do not use wire or hard twine for tying purposes for fear of cutting the soft stem of the plant. Tape, soft twine or raffia are the best materials to use.

If you plan to use stakes as space savers, place them before you plant the seeds or set out the young plants. Otherwise, the roots of the plants may be badly injured if the stakes are driven into the ground after the plants have become established.

Pledged Vows at Avoca Un. Church

Fox - Nixon

In the United Church of St. Andrew, Avoca, Que., on Saturday afternoon at 3.30, the marriage of Marion Jean, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Nixon, of Avoca, to Mr. Lawrence Fox (Larry) of Harrington, was solemnized by the Rev. S. J. Pike. Mrs. A. McPhee played the wedding music, assisted by the choir, who sang the wedding hymn, "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Emmett, was attended by her sister, Catherine, as bridesmaid, while the groom's younger brother acted as best man. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers.

The bride wore a ballerina length gown of white satin, the sleeves tapering to points at the hands. Her three-quarter length veil fell from a coronet of pearls, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bridesmaid wore a floor-length dress of pink moire with overdress of net and cape sleeves, a pink veil with bandeau of white roses and pink nylon gloves. She carried a bouquet of roses with mixed flowers.

Mrs. Nixon, mother of the bride, was dressed in pink with white accessories, while Mrs. Fox, mother of the groom, was in navy crepe, with hat and gloves to match.

A reception was held at the home of Mrs. S. Tomachevsky. The gifts were numerous, expressing the sincere good wishes of all their friends. After a short honeymoon the young couple will reside in Montreal.

Social Service Office for Diocese Of St. Jerome

Realizing the misfortunes and distress which occur outside the influence of the church and its authorities, and that these are therefore denied the benevolence of parish organizations, a Social Service has been founded in the Catholic Diocese of St. Jerome to extend aid where needed, regardless of the circumstances or the religious faith of the afflicted.

This organization, "Service Social du Diocèse de St. Jerome", was inaugurated by Bishop Emilien Frenette of St. Jerome, and is directed by the Rev. Father Paul Manseau, who is well and favorably known in these parts.

Father Manseau, communicating with this newspaper, points to the fact that, far from remedying the maladjustments and adversities of our fellow creatures, the advance of science and invention has contributed more, perhaps, to moral and material complexities of our day. This area is not exempt from social afflictions and evils so rampant in our day. And it is to extend aid in these quarters — not conflicting with other established charities but augmenting their effort — that the Social Service has been set up in this diocese.

The Service tenders financial aid where needed and is aimed to give professional guidance in troubles of family relations; rehabilitation to abandoned, neglected or orphaned children, together with a measure of care and affection lacking in their lives. It aims to succor the infirm and handicapped, to aid prison inmates and delinquents, who all too often have gone astray through lack of understanding; also unmarried mothers, as well as others misled and unfortunate.

The scope of this organization is a considerable undertaking. It is pledged to extend its Christian service wherever the need may arise — and it deserves public sympathy and co-operation in this worthy aim. It is mentioned that any person desirous of adopting a child into a good home, may communicate with the diocesan organization.

The office of this agency is established at St. Jerome (mail address — P.O. Box 275; telephone 7352).

Sawdust Pollutes Water for Game Fish

One of the first conditions essential for keeping trout in our streams is to have clean waters — it was remarked recently by the Hon. Camille E. Pouliot, M.D., Minister of Game and Fisheries, as the Game Wardens reported 10 cases of water pollution in the Quebec area. Ten saw-mill operators were fined $360 for dumping the sawdust from their mills nearby into these waters. It is a well known biological fact that sawdust deposits at the bottom of the lake or river, kill all vegetation and deprive trout of their food.

The Minister also pointed out the fishing regulations as applicable to Provincial Parks, such as the Laurentide Park, are to be enforced if our stock of wild trout is to be maintained at its present level to meet the increased demand of the public. Fly fishing only is allowed in the Laurentide Park; and over the last two week-end, 36 anglers paid a total of $476 for using worms as bait instead of the legal artificial flies.

Less than one-quarter of Canada's known hydro-electric resources are now in use.

"My hair is falling out", admitted the timid man to the chemist. "Can you recommend something to keep it in?"

"Certainly", replied the obliging chemist. "Here's a cardboard box."

The Scotsman went into a store and bought a suitcase.

"Shall I wrap it up for you?" asked the clerk.

"No, that's all right; just put the paper and string inside."
