Lower Response to Blood Donor Clinic

Decrease of 108 Blood Donations From Last Year's Record Total

A smaller response from several local industries and business firms lowered this year's Argenteuil Blood Donor Clinic results by 108 donations from last year's record — according to figures issued following the clinic. The Red Cross collected 424 bottles of blood in Lachute and 166 in Brownsburg, for a total of 590.

A noticeable increase in donors from St. Andrews East, Ayers Limited, Lachute Lumber and Millwork Ltd., and Farmers' Supply Co. was evident, while Lachute's individual donor list was down only 32. St. Andrews East and district, which showed an increase of 33 donors, was canvassed this year by Mrs. F. A. Hungerbuhler.

There were a total of 438 applicants from Lachute, 14 of whom were rejected for medical or other reasons, while only two rejects were found in Brownsburg's 168 donors presenting themselves at the Thursday clinic.

The Lachute Committee takes this opportunity to thank the members of the Lions Club and all other organizations who assisted, and Police Chief Laurent Ducharme, as well as the following volunteer helpers and donors of food or equipment:

Lachute, October 6, 1954

To All who Assisted so Generously by Giving Their Blood and/or Time and Effort to the Blood Donor Campaign:

On behalf of the Lachute and Brownsburg branches of the Canadian Red Cross and their Blood Donor Committees, we wish to thank all those who, through their assistance and co-operation, helped to fill 590 bottles of life-giving fluid. It is impossible to mention everyone by name, but we wish particularly to thank the clergy, the municipal, federal and provincial authorities, service clubs, the press, business firms, women volunteers and all those who loaned their cars for transportation, and the nurses and doctors who were in constant attendance at the clinics.

The ability of Red Cross to render free aid to those needing Blood Transfusions is made possible because of public interest and support. This service now covers 88 hospitals in Western Quebec. Volunteer donors keep this vital fluid flowing into the veins of those who need it in the hospitals. Through your help you may save the life of a neighbor, relative, friend or even someone whom you have never met. For this we are proud to congratulate all those who helped in the Argenteuil Blood Donor campaign.

It was a pleasure, too, to meet again all those who attended the Clinics last year, and to welcome new donors.

Once again, thank you all for your assistance — with sincere appreciation.

Early Report on Canvass For Blind Institute

A total of $328 has been handed over to Miss Lulu Miller, local secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, in a good start for this year's $2,500 objective. The campaign continues all next week, and any who have not yet been approached by the canvassers are requested to send or hand their donation to Miss Miller, Lachute.

Demolition on Auditorium Front For New Civic Hall

The project of modernizing the Auditorium frontage and at the same time erecting a new town hall, commenced last Friday with partial demolition of the front wall of the present building.

It was remarked on Friday that the large stones adorning the roof practically fell unaided — the cement and mortar was found to be extremely dry. The stone blocks, which were of more public hazard than was realized, made some work on the building necessary. . . Many will benefit from this construction project, in finding off-season employment.

Latest construction on this building dates back to 1934, when fire destroyed the nine-year-old structure which had been erected at a cost of $41,900. It is recalled that the fire, which gutted the building, was fought by local firemen in 30-below-zero weather. In June of that year, repairs costing $8,300 were made by one of the present aldermen, Alcidas Laurin, as contractor.

At the present time, the authorities have $50,000 at their disposal and are constructing without benefit of a contractor, under the direction of Stanislas Laurin. The present demolition is employing only six men, but an additional number will be needed when actual construction commences.

For the duration of construction, the Council meetings will be held in Victoria Hall (the present town hall), on the second floor.

Town Parade Gives Impetus to Annual Fire Prevention Week

Sirens screeched through the murky streets last Monday night — as Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon and a good turnout of the volunteer firefighters, officers of the local and provincial police, and interested citizens, reminded the citizens that this is Fire Prevention Week. The observance is held every October in commemoration of the Great Chicago Fire of October 9, 1871.

It has been some time since the fire alarm has sounded over the rooftops of Lachute, although members of the brigade have answered calls both in and outside the town limits. The last time a fire hose was laid in town was at a blaze on May 22 on College Street. Although fires have not been too numerous, a total of $16,344.43 has been paid by insurance companies during the first five months of the current year, according to a report recently received from the Fire Commissioner's Office.

Chief Deacon and his assistants have done a job in the past 36 years that cannot be equalled. Nor would it be impossible to estimate how much property they have saved indirectly, and how much tragedy averted, by this annual effort — educating the children, visiting local schools, clubs, and civic organizations, and explaining that the best way to combat fires is to prevent them before they start.

Children in the local schools have been taught the proper manner in which to leave school and other public buildings in event of a fire. Whether they will keep as calm and cool in an actual outbreak is something no one knows, but at least preparedness should forstall a panic.

Former B'burg Manager Appointed to New C-I-L Textile Plant

Harris M. Sherwood, who will be works manager of the $20,000,000 "Terylene" plant at Millhaven, Ont., being purchased by Canadian Industries (1954) Limited from Imperial Chemical Industries of Canada Limited. A native of Medicine Hat, Alberta, Mr. Sherwood was graduated from the University of Alberta with a B.Sc. degree in chemical engineering. Joining C-I-L in 1935 as a metallurgist in the company's ammunition plant at Brownsburg, he became works manager in 1946. In 1953 he became sales manager of the ammunition division and, later that year, was loaned to I.C.I. on the "Terylene" project.

On Literary Jaunt With Able Speaker At Lions Club

Authentic Portrait by Family Associate of Robt. Louis Stevenson

The Lions Club topic on Tuesday evening was an unusual treat for the literary-minded and for those who enjoy worthwhile enlightenment. The visiting speaker, G. B. Clarke (besides being General Secretary of the Family Welfare Association, Montreal) is a personal link with the author Robert Louis Stevenson.

Mr. Clarke was born in Samoa, a group of South Sea islands, where his father was a missionary in close friendship with Stevenson and his household. The speaker's reference to this noted Scottish author; a personal knowledge of his life, family and background; and scenes projected on a screen showing intimate glimpses of his home and the Samoan surroundings — these provided interesting fare for attentive listeners. Through Stevenson's biography ran the influence of a great father — Thomas Stevenson, the eminent engineer who perfected revolving navigation lights to safeguard shipping — the vivacious mother — a literary trait which handicapped young Stevenson with a certain effeminacy — a kindliness, tenaciousness and will to succeed, despite the lifelong handicap of ill health — and the romance and the partnership of a loyal helpmate. The life of Stevenson, author of "Treasure Island", "Kidnapped" and other adventure stories which today rate as classic literature, proved a very human story as told by this able narrator.

Mr. Clarke, father of Keith Clarke, local business man and member of the Lions Club, was introduced by Gordon McOuat and thanked by Gordon Davidson. President Roger Regimbal chaired the meeting, which included various items of club business.

Lion Leopold Carrière, Blood Donor campaign chairman, reported favorably on the outcome of this community effort. Celebration of the local Lions Club's 20th anniversary, November 13 next, with a dance at the Golf Club, was discussed by Committeeman Ian Gordon. Civic traffic lights and signals also came under discussion, and Lion Geo. Y. Deacon, in his capacity of Fire Chief, brought his perennial message for Fire Prevention Week.

50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George Gunn, Lachute couple who marked their golden wedding anniversary recently, and who were fittingly honored at a celebration at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McRae, Mount Maple. Mr. and Mrs. Gunn, married September 7, 1904, at Hawkesbury, Ont., have six sons, three daughters, 25 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Defence — "No Reason For Complacency"

A warning about the state of the western world's defences came from Ottawa last week. Senior defence officials said the west is losing ground to Russia in developing nuclear weapons and jet aircraft.

One top offical put it this way: "We have no reason for complacency. The Russians are gaining or perhaps are ahead of us in the fields they choose to concentrate on, such as atomic weapons and aircraft."

In a speech at Vancouver, Dr. Gordon R. Shrum, a member of the defence research board, said that in five years jet bombers and fighters will have been made obsolete by intercontinental guided missiles.

Dr. Shrum indicated the Russians are far ahead in rocket development and years ahead in production of jet bombers.

The number of housing units built in Canada during 1953 reached an all-time peak of 96,839.

Fills Position as W.I. Demonstrator

Miss Janet McOuat, long associated with the Lachute W.I. and a successful demonstrator for district branch programs on several occasions, will assume a position along these lines with the Quebec Women's Institutes in the near future. Miss McOuat leaves next Tuesday for the Q.W.I. headquarters at Macdonald College, where she will make her residence, and will serve as Handicraft Technician. Travelling to different branches in the province, she will lecture and demonstrate this subject, which has been one of her particular interests and hobbies.

Former occupant of this Q.W.I. office was Miss Ida R. Bruneau.

Argenteuil-Two Mountains Teachers' Association Held Opening Meeting

The Argenteuil and Two Mountains Teachers' Association held its first regular meeting for the year 1954-55 at Lake of Two Mountains High School, St. Eustache, last Thursday evening. The meeting was well attended in spite of the inclement weather, and many items of business were discussed.

Dr. J. S. Astbury, former principal of Baron Byng High School in Montreal, was special speaker for the evening, and he delivered a very interesting address on "Merit Rating of Teachers". He told of how a merit rating system had been put into effect in some schools in the United States and of the advantages and disadvantages of such a system.

Following the adjournment of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Rotarians Visit Marelan Plant

The scene of last week's Rotary meeting was shifted to the King Edward Hotel in Hawkesbury, due to the Brownsburg Blood Donor Clinic, which was utilizing the Legion Hall. After the dinner, the Club was treated to a tour of the Canadian Refractories plant at Marelan.

Guests of the club, in the persons of Lorne Duncan, Art Thompson, Mervin Bolstad and Dennison Swail, did an about-face and hosted the club during the tour. Mr. Duncan spoke on the operation and function of the plant, after which the members were divided into four groups for their tour of inspection. Each phase of the operation was expertly explained by the guides, after which an informal discussion was held.

Mr. Duncan was introduced to the club by Linton Armstrong and thanked by Wes Freeland.

Vice-president Art Lapp, in the chair, dispensed with the usual business in order not to delay the trip to Marelan.

Officers Elected For Boy Scouts' District Council

The annual meeting of the Boy Scouts Association Laurentian District Council was held in Lake of Two Mountains High School at St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac on Monday of this week.

The election of officers resulted in the following appointments for the coming year:

W. W. Freeland, Brownsburg, re-elected president.

J. E. Reid, Rosemere, re-elected vice-president.

J. G. Wilson, Laval West, elected vice-president.

B. A. Jenkins, Lachute, elected vice-president.

H. D. Jones, St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, appointed treasurer replacing D. M. Hay, Lachute, who felt obliged to resign owing to pressure of business.

G. H. Quinn, Brownsburg, re-elected secretary.

Growing Prosperity of Historical Soc'y "Reward for Years of Hard Work"

Officers Elected; First Woman President Mrs. Geo. McGibbon Succeeds Benj. Howell

Encouraging Reports at 20th Annual Meeting Held Saturday at Carillon Barracks-Museum

By Julia Grace Wales

The 20th annual meeting of the Historical Society of Argenteuil County, held last Saturday, was one of outstanding interest. According to precedent, the meeting was held in the library of the Carillon Museum, the room being well filled. The president, Benjamin A. Howell, was in the chair.

Reports of activities of the year were highly encouraging. The treasurer's report, read by Miss B. Robertson, showed a healthy state of finances. The president pointed out that the growing prosperity of the society was the reward of long years of hard work by those who had its interests at heart. The report of Mr. Lund, custodian, read by the president, showed a steady advance in the popularity and usefulness of the Museum. There had been 2,622 visitors during the year. Fourteen schools, a party of Boy Scouts, a Women's Institute from Cassburn, Ont., a party of 37 Montreal teachers (about half of them from Great Britain) made group pilgrimages to enjoy the exhibits. Many gifts had been added, including a very old bicycle, old chests, embroideries, potteries and costumes. Despite an upswing in interest, Mr. Lund felt that there should be an increase in organized advertising. He suggested that a folder be prepared for tourist bureaus, since visitors say, "Why don't you advertise more? The Museum is too interesting to be left in semi-obscurity!"

The president spoke of the losses sustained by the Society in recent weeks. The late Mrs. W. J. Pitcairn was a charter member and long a faithful director, and had made a great contribution through wise counsel and untiring devotion. The late Miss Edith Simpson, despite frail health, had carried on conscientiously for a number of years the heavy and important duties of treasurer. The members stood for a moment in tribute to the memory of these valued officers.

The report of the nominating committee was read by its chairman, Mr. Russell Graham, and the slate was unanimously adopted. Warm tributes were paid to the work of those retiring, among them Miss Beatrice Robertson, who had given distinguished service as secretary for 16 years. The new officers are as follows:

President, Mrs. George McGibbon; first vice-president, Mr. Fraser Watson; second vice-president, Mrs. Norman Holland; secretary, Mrs. A. F. Bothwell; treasurer, Mr. Leighton York. Added to the Board of Directors were Miss Beatrice Robertson, Mrs. J. B. Rutherford, Mrs. Ralph McOuat, and Mr. A. Talbot. The retiring president was given honorary office.

On completion of the business an original and delightful program was offered by Mrs. Phoebe Erskine MacKellar — an episode in the life of Jeanne Mance. Presented in the form of a dramatic monologue, it made the heroic figure of Jeanne Mance come alive as a charming human personality with power to influence her contemporaries to noble action and bring great events to pass. The 17th Century setting in both Canada and France was brought out in a way clear and easy to follow even for those of the audience whose knowledge of history could do with a little brushing up.

Finally, Mrs. MacKellar described the towns in France which she had visited recently, backgrounds of the youthful days of her Canadian heroines. . . Many of her listeners were glad to learn that she has more monologues in preparation; they are a fine fruit of study and travel, of deep interest to all who love the rich bi-lingual Canadian heritage.

Mr. Howell called on the new president, Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, who made a brief, graceful address and expressed the enthusiastic thanks of the audience to the speaker of the day.

After lingering to enjoy French views displayed about the room, the members adjourned to the ground floor, and to the accompaniment of much good talk did justice to a sumptuous tea provided by the ladies of the Margaret Rodger Memorial W.M.S.

Hon. W.M. Cottingham Visits Two Mining Areas In Current Week

In his busy routine as Minister of Mines, the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A. for this constituency, has two inspection tours on his immediate program, but expects to be here in Lachute for business of local concern in the interim. Following are his engagements for this week:

Leaving for Ungava yesterday (Wednesday) Mr. Cottingham expects to return here for next Saturday, October 9.

Leaving again for Chibougamau Wednesday, October 13, to return to Lachute Saturday, 16th.

Farm Cannery Scene of Blaze Saturday Night

15,000 Live Poultry In Nearby Building Unharmed by Fire

Lachute firemen battled one of the most stubborn blazes in their recent experience last Saturday night, when a vat of chicken oil caught fire at the establishment of D. J. Rodger & Son, East Settlement. Firemen were called to the scene shortly after nine o'clock.

Mr. Rodger stated he had left the oil to be rendered, and upon his return some time later, found it blazing. He tried to subdue the flames with two small extinguishers, and when this failed, he poured water on the fire. This caused the flames to flare higher, igniting the walls and ceiling, and the blaze had eaten through the roof when the crew of local volunteer firemen arrived with the auxiliary truck.

It is believed that the fire cut off the power supply almost immediately, thus making the electric water pump useless. The fire truck arrived on the scene some 20 minutes after receiving the call. They immediately hooked up a line of hose to a cistern under the nearby homestead, while another crew directed the limited water supply from the truck's booster tank on the blazing building in an attempt to slow down the blaze. When the cistern ran dry about an hour later, the truck and suction hose was moved to a creek behind the house, where water was pumped until shortly after four a.m. Sunday.

Close to 15,000 live birds survived; the large chicken barn in which they were housed did not ignite, although separated from the burning shop by only a narrow driveway.

The Food Lockers refrigerated truck conveyed about two tons of frozen chickens from the refrigerators which were housed in the burning section of the building, and stored them in their Lachute plant.

Little damage was caused to the canning machinery, although all motors were burned and a considerable supply of cans and boxes were destroyed. The building will have to be remodelled throughout, but the proprietors hope to be in partial operation early next week.

The seven volunteer firemen received appreciated assistance from a number of the onlookers. Before returning to the Lachute station, the fire crew was treated to a chicken dinner by the Rodger family.

Newly Appointed Employment Office Manager Here

G. A. Downing has latterly been appointed manager of the office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission in this district. He fills the vacancy caused by the death of the late J. G. Lamontagne. Mr. Downing, in taking over this post, will be responsible for the operation of the National Employment Service and Unemployment Insurance throughout Argenteuil County.

This new manager has had extensive experience in the field of Unemployment Insurance, as well as the selection of suitable workers to fill the needs of employers in the district.

The office is operated here for use of the general public, in the matter of employers who seek employees, and vice versa, persons who seek employment. Anyone requiring assistance in such matters is invited to make free use of this service.

Affairs at Special Council Session

Stanislas Laurin was engaged as Town Hall building foreman at a special session of the Town Coucil, held in the Auditorium last Wednesday. Mr. Laurin was engaged by the hour, and is in charge of the men, and of checking the purchased supplies; he was also authorized by Council to purchase required building materials.

The secretary read a letter from B. Bourbonnière offering his Main Street building to the municipal council for $25,000. It was moved by Ald. MacRae, seconded by Ald. R. Desjardins, that an offer of $17,000 be made, good for 15 days only, subject to approval of the ratepayers.

Building permits were granted to Pierre Paul Pichette, Arthur Parisseau and Fernand Lagarde, the latter contingent upon an ordinance from the Minister of Health concerning sewerage and prolongation of the street in question.

A letter of thanks was voted to J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, bottlers, for the recently erected school zone signs by courtesy of Coca-Cola.

SOFT APPROACH

The type of advertising to secure recruits for Canada's armed forces has been the subject of criticism in many quarters. There is too much namby-pamby stuff in such advertising as "join the army to learn a trade," or some other supposed attraction or inducement.

HOUSE HEATING BY ELECTRICITY

This Company has been consistently urging the use of fuel for space heating.

It has done so believing it to be in the best interests of those it serves, as customers depending entirely upon electricity for heating are taking a grave risk during the winter months.

Notwithstanding many improvements, it is impossible to protect the consumer against interruptions resulting from matters beyond the Company's control, such as bad weather, storms and highway pole accidents.

As well, the use of electricity for heating presents a very real problem to those engaged in the supply of electricity. Such heating loads reach a maximum during the months of December and January — when peak load demands occur on a power system.

The time is not far off when all commercially available hydro sites will have been developed and be in use, even without electric heating.

Therefore, the Company advises those it serves to avoid electric space heating, in their own interest, and because it is uneconomic use of electricity, which should be conserved for the industrial development of our country.

Brownsburg Blood Donor Clinic 'Checkerboard of Pride and Shame'

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg can be justly proud and at the same time ashamed of its showing at the recent Blood Donor Clinic. As far as the organization was concerned there is nothing to be ashamed of. The citizens donated a lavish supper for the clinic organizers and operators and really created a good impression with their spread. The buffet for donors was equally well run, and all in all, the clinic operated like clockwork.

The citizens who were responsible for such a big success, of course, don't expect individual thanks, although they deserve it. The merchants gave with the same motive — just to help out — but maybe we should note that Mr. Etienne Gagnon installed the two TV sets, that Messrs. Chevrier Fils, and J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, of Lachute, donated the soft drinks, and the buffet provisions were donated by Maitland's, Hardie's, Courtien's, Lemay and Lowe's.

What Brownsburg must be ashamed of is the more important side — the blood. What happened to everybody? Of a district population of about 5,000, only 169 people gave blood, or rather offered to give (2 were rejected.) That accounts for 3% of the population. Some of the others of course may be unable to give, but it's ridiculous to say that all these people were either scared or unfit.

No, the reason must be that they said, "Oh, they'll make the target easily. I won't bother to give this year." It's to be hoped that some other community will make up for Brownsburg's and Lachute's shortcomings; 300 bottles a day are needed and Argenteuil collected 600 in three days.

Commentary

The Mayor and Police Chief, together with the local committee, met the Unit at the town limits, from where they paraded through town with the mobile PA system, blaring to all and sundry that here was their chance to give blood. At the Legion Hall the parade ended, and in a short time the clinic was set up.

Johnny Morrow, of Dalesville, was the first to give blood, at about 2 o'clock. It was a good thing there was television to help the nurses while away the time, for by 5.30 only 60 donors had passed through the clinic.

About 5 o'clock, though, there was a very interesting scene. Rivard Demers needed two transfusions last week and his workmates were all set to take an afternoon off work, drive down and replace the blood, when someone informed them that the Red Cross would replace it free. So right after work on Thursday the same crowd, six of them, came down to give their share.

At 6 o'clock came supper for the clinic workers, and a pleasant affair it proved to be, with Mrs. Donaldson serving as maitresse d'hôtel. Sidney Seary, the chairman, thanked the women who made such a fine job of the supper.

From 7 to 8.30 came the real rush — but not enough. At 9.30, after only seven donors in the last hour, the clinic reluctantly broke camp and Brownsburg's day of honor ended, a checkerboard of pride and shame.

Anthony Zapleski provided a pleasant musical interlude in the afternoon. Mrs. N. E. Smillie, president of the Red Cross branch, introduced the blind pianist and gave a plug for the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, of which he is a very active worker.

Ch. of Commerce Meets for Business And Pleasure

A social and business meeting of 23 directors and members of Lachute Chamber of Commerce was held at the summer residence of the past-president, R. A. Giles, at Lake Louisa last Thursday evening. The outgoing president took the opportunity to present and turn over the administration to his successor, André Lefebvre.

Following a buffet supper, a business session was held and the following were named committee chairmen:

Industrial Promotion — Gerald Walker.
Commercial Promotion — Gaetan Leclair.
Publicity Committee — Fernand Berthiaume.
Civic Affairs — Paul Laliberté.
Membership Committee — Miville Trickey.
Social Welfare — Dr. Roger Lavigne.
Tourist Committee — Bertrand L'Heureux.
Reception Committee — Gérard Lefebvre.

Jean-Guy Joanette was named assistant secretary.

President Lefèbvre presented a request on the part of Jean Jacques Dupré, of the local hockey club, for a donation for their program. It was decided, after considerable discussion, that the Chamber should write to Mr. Dupré assuring moral support to the team, but reminding him that financial aid in such matters was not within the aim and purpose of this organization.

Messrs. Gerald Walker and Paul Laliberté agreed to represent the local Chamber of Commerce at the Quebec C. of C. Congress to be held in New York City Thanksgiving week-end.

Record Rainfall Causes Costly Crop Toll

Reporting last week-end to the Montreal Star, D. M. McFarlane stated that Quebec farmers are facing near catastrophe, and the city householder higher prices for agricultural products, particularly potatoes and other root and vegetable crops, as a result of phenomenal rainfall of the past 35 days.

Unharvested grain is rotting in the fields. Potatoes are unharvested and are deteriorating rapidly. Other vegetable crops are menaced. The fruit crop was poor.

Lack of forage crops, which spoiled before it could be put into barns, together with pasture flooding, the impossibility of plowing operations, have all menaced the position of the farmer.

Milch cows are contracting diseases, such as mastitis, due to the wet and cold.

Last month there were 5.45 inches of rain. This followed immediately on the heels of 2.67 inches of rain, which fell on August 31. The two added together means that Montreal received within the span of 31 days, one-fifth of the yearly quota of 41.5 inches.

The average tax paid at the factory on a new passenger car in Canada last year was $424.

South Africa Takes N.B. Fish, Potatoes

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — A favorable South African market for New Brunswick sardines and seed potatoes has been reported by K. F. Noble, Canadian trade commissioner at Johannesburg. All fish products have been admitted freely since July 1.

Of importance to Canadian producers, Mr. Noble said, is inauguration of the new Central African Federation, comprising the former territories of Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland. The large area depends almost entirely on imported food.

The balance of trade between South Africa and Canada is heavily in favor of the latter, the commissioner said. Canada sold $13.50 worth of goods for every dollar's worth sent the other way.

Since 1948, shipments to South Africa had changed from primarily consumer goods to raw materials, components for assembly and durable products.

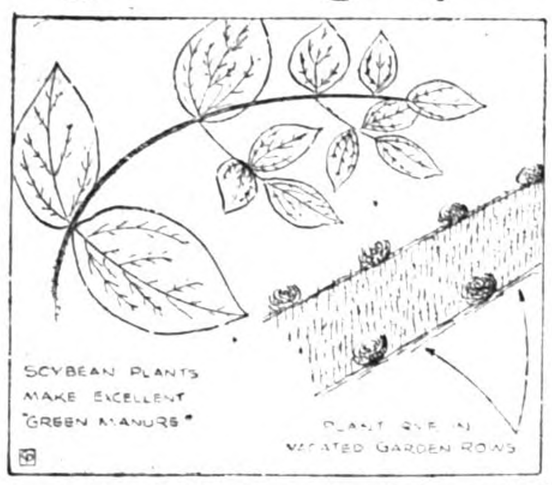

Plant Affiliates With National Research Council

Bertrand L'Heureux, proprietor of the well known dry-cleaning firm, L'Heureux Reg., has been accepted as a member of the Canadian Research Institute of Launderers and Cleaners, which is under authority and supervision of the National Research Council at Ottawa.

One of the purposes of the group with which L'Heureux is thus affiliated, is to encourage highest possible standards of efficiency in members' laundry and cleaning plants. Test orders of various fabrics and materials are submitted from Ottawa, and from these samples, the Research Council reports its findings on the work of the member's plant. The member also contributes information through which the National Research Council fosters the advancement of trade practices.

Garden-Graph

You can have a better garden next year if you plant cover crops this fall for the purpose of improving the soil.

Cover crops when turned under are beneficial to the soil in many ways. They add humus and plant food to the soil as they decay after being turned under.

As a matter of fact, young cover crops when dug in give back to the soil much of what this year's vegetables have removed from it, thus preventing the soil from becoming depleted.

Soybean plants make a splendid soil-improving crop. A leafy soybean stem is shown in the accompanying Garden - Graph. When returned to the soil soybean plants turn into excellent "green manure."

Soybeans are not difficult to grow, but when they are planted for the first time it is advisable to inoculate the seed. A well-inoculated crop yields more than one untreated. Buying certified seed also is good practice.

Soybeans when grown for "green manure" should be turned under while young, for when a legume crop becomes seedy the nitrogen is already on its way out. Roots and stems of overmature crops are also more fibrous and tough and require a longer time to decompose when turned under.

Many gardeners plant rye between garden rows that are vacated during September. It grows rapidly, as illustrated, and can be sown any time before freezing weather arrives. Rye can be sown fairly thickly and then raked lightly into the soil.

Tariff Board Told Plight of Textiles In Ottawa Valley

Seek Higher Levy on Wool from United Kingdom

Ottawa — The Canadian wool cloth industry is in jeopardy and higher tariff protection is necessary against competing wool cloth from Great Britain, the Tariff Board was told in Ottawa last week.

The discussion, expected to continue for two weeks, opened in Knox Church Hall with a large attendance and with a six-man British delegation on hand to oppose any proposal for a boost in duties.

Effect of reduced tariffs on British wool cloth on Ottawa Valley towns was cited as follows: Almonte has dropped 215 people; Renfrew has no woollen mills running and 250 wool textile workers have lost their jobs; Carleton Place also has no wool cloth mill operating, 170 workers have been discharged.

A. L. Code, of Perth, president of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Association, warned the board was working on a deadline and must report to the Cabinet by the end of the year on the Association's request.

Other Association personalities included Clement Tremblay, OBE, of Ayers Limited, Lachute.

Chairman Hector B. McKinnon said that the hearing would continue for two weeks, then adjourn for a month for a final hearing on argument.

Canadian mills are getting less business and at a loss, while British mills are getting more business at a profit, said Mr. Glassco, spokesman of the Association.

The 50 cents duty on British wool cloth had resulted in a rapid downtrend in output and employment at Canadian mills, by the loss of capital and by the closing of mills. The jeopardy of the Canadian industry exists in spite of able management and a high degree of efficiency.

"It is the change in the share of the Canadian market secured by the Canadian industry that the evidence of damage can be found," Mr. Glassco declared.

The shareholders' equity in 23 wool cloth companies in Canada has been reduced materially since the end of 1950 from a total of $19,876,000 to $14,215,000 at the end of 1953.

The implications of the situation for the Canadian economy was illustrated by an estimated payroll loss in Hespeler with 530 woollen workers, Brantford, down by 320 employees, Almonte, Renfrew and Carleton Place of a total of $3,800,000 a year.

The Assocaition's brief is being opposed by the British Woollen and Worsted Traders Federation headed by G. E. Birkeshaw, the Canadian Garment Industries and the Canadian Clothing Manufacturers Industry. Representatives of all these groups will be heard from during the sessions.

Oct. 5 (CP) — Tariff Board hearings continued this week. Mayor Leo Cappiello of Huntingdon, Que., said that "without exaggeration" his textile town is in danger of dying. T. F. Barnet of the Renfrew, Ont., Board of Trade, said unemployment in his town is "pathetic".

Farm groups say the move may strike at Britain's ability to sell in Canada and thus at her ability to buy Canada's exports, such as farm produce. The Retail Merchants Association of Canada last week said the Canadian industry should try to improve its efficiency, rather than seeking higher prices for its goods.

The board chairman, Hector McKinnon, at one point suggested that some of the industry's woes may be due to growing competition by synthetic textiles, instead of merely British competition.

Automatic knitting machines were first used in Canada, at Ancaster, Ont., in 1858, although hand machines had been in use for some time.

Your stake in the search for Better Health

Everyone has a vital interest in science's efforts to help us live longer. But life insurance policyholders have a special stake in this work.

You see, certain important medical research projects are supported wholly or in part by funds from all the life insurance companies in Canada and their millions of policyholders. As a result, skilled scientists in many Canadian medical research centres can carry on their task of attacking some of mankind's deadliest enemies. Their names: cancer, heart ailments and virus diseases.

Other vital studies are supported in a similar way. These focus on obesity, blood clotting, nutritional and intestinal disorders, hardening of the arteries and glandular diseases, to mention but a few.

Will all these efforts help you and your family to live longer, healthier lives?

Yes! Thanks chiefly to the advance of modern medicine, babies born today can expect to live about 20 years longer than those of 50 years ago. Many dread diseases have been banished or controlled. Ahead lies further progress that will surely benefit you and yours.

And, if you are a life insurance policyholder, you also have the satisfaction of knowing that you have participated in this program designed to bring the blessings of good health to all!

AT YOUR SERVICE!

A trained life underwriter — representing one of the more than 50 Canadian, British and United States life insurance companies in Canada — will gladly help you plan now for your family's security and your own needs in later years. Rely on him!

Thousands Never Listened

THIS IS Fire Prevention Week. Posters — news articles — club talks — demonstrations — special school fire drills, all combine to make us well aware of the occasion. But fanfare and public speeches won't make Fire Prevention Week a success. That takes "action"!

Each year, there are hundreds of thousands of people for whom Fire Prevention Week is a failure. They are the victims of this country's 60,000 yearly fires. Many of them lose their homes, or their jobs, over 500 of them lose their lives!

Human carelessness is responsible for most of our fires. The people who cause fires are probably exposed to just as much fire prevention talk as the rest of us, but it doesn't seem to "take". Matches and smoking are still the top causes of fires, and have been for years. An old story — but thousands have evidently never really listened!

In public places fire safety rules are enforced by law. But you and I alone have the authority to enforce safe living in our homes. Only if it inspires us to do that, the year around, will Fire Prevention Week be a success.

Don't Burn Those Leaves

WE'VE HARPED upon this theme before. Seldom has a reader remarked on it, or voiced approval. But this week came an old subscriber to suggest we re-iterate the thought, plus the conviction of someone who ought to know. And here it is — from Tobe, the Niagara horticulturist, in a bulletin published for his customers:

"Soon the leaves will begin to fall from the trees and from coast to coast folks will be busy sweeping and raking them into piles. . . From these smouldering fires smoke will rise to the skies and cause a haze over the landscape.

"Not a leaf should be burned. If man's natural instinct won't tell him what's good for him, then the law must step in and, believe me, I am not joking when I say that the day will come when there will be a law that will prohibit the burning of leaves. There are too many laws now but one more won't hurt. Besides, they can drop some piddly one and add this good one.

"The love of tidiness can be stretched too far and I believe that is the chief reason why the leaves are burned. However, it is even easier to have a compost heap — a box or hole or some kind in which these leaves can be piled.

"Every man, woman or child that burns a leaf is taking civilization one step closer to starvation, hunger and famine. You think I'm sentimental or perhaps I'm overdoing this. Well, read your history. Go back to the marvelous civilization right here in our own America. The potent contributing factor to the downfall of the Mayan civilization was the waste. They made no attempt whatsoever to put anything back into the soil that gave them such wealth and abundance.

"You say it can't happen here, but it did happen here . . . just a couple of thousand miles farther south . . . and it can happen here a lot quicker because we don't have the heat and the luxuriant rains that they had down there."

Wise Words from Labor

FROM ONE of their own national leaders, labor unionists heard a warning that management and consumers have been voicing for months. Labor, said A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, can price itself right out of work by pressing for higher wages.

That is plain, common sense — declares The Financial Post. It's to be hoped, in the interests of everybody, and of labor in particular, that it will be heeded.

Since the end of the war, Canada has become a high-priced country — in some lines, very high-priced indeed. That's a grave enough handicap at any time for any country, but for one that is as dependent on foreign trade as we are, it just doesn't make sense at all.

At this time particularly, labor must realize that still higher wages mean still higher prices, fewer sales, smaller production and fewer jobs.

JUST WHAT does your boy do at night when he's not at home? That's a timely question that should interest any person. Most parents whose youngsters are caught after committing any crime invariably say "I can't understand why he'd do such a thing." — Shaunavon (Sask.) Standard

Notable Anniversary

UNITED NATIONS Day on October 24, anniversary of the date its charter came into force in 1945, affords a chance for stocktaking.

What with the cold war and the fighting wars since the end of the Second World War, perhaps the most significant fact is that the United Nations still is in being.

It is still a forum for the nations, even if the delegates divide into blocs when they get there. True, the Indo-China fighting was stopped by a conference in Geneva, and when a crisis arises like the failure of the European Defence Community project negotiations are started again by foreign ministers making the rounds of the various capitals.

But the value of the United Nations is summed up by General Romulo of the Philippines, one of the most colorful personalities at the UN in recent years, in this fashion:

"Kill the United Nations and you kill the last organization where the two sides in the world maintain a daily diplomatic and political contact which in itself is a force for peace. Kill the United Nations and you blow up a dam that has already prevented four local wars from spreading — Korea, Indonesia, Kashmir and Palestine — and could do the same in the future.

"Kill the United Nations and you convince the millions now receiving from it medicine, milk and plows that there is no hope for the hungry and homeless except perhaps in communism. Kill the United Nations, and you increase tremendously the chances that man will one day wipe himself off the face of the earth."

That may seem an extreme view. But Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson told the new session of the UN general assembly:

"As I see it, one of the most vital of our purposes at the United Nations is to keep open and to develop these channels of communications so that some day, and may it be soon, when both sides are willing, they may be used for conciliation and eventual agreement."

Everyone can echo those words — "may it be soon."

Being What We Are

ONE OF THE fascinating things about culture is that it is indefinable. It partakes too much of the spirit of a people to be put in wordy chains.

Some persons think culture is something one has, rather than something one is. To others culture is fragmented into music, poetry, sculpture, painting, and many other arts and crafts.

A culture for Canada will include arts, crafts and customs, reinforced by tradition and beliefs. It will take into account our material resources, our scientific knowledge, our religious practices, our family and social systems and our government: the practical things of life as well as the graces. Culture is a pattern of all these and the other ingredients of living expressing the present day life force of our people.

We can't be "cultured" now and again, when we get specially fixed up for it. Culture is a constant state of becoming. We Canadians have not yet (and we are glad of it) reached our fullest development in art, religion, education, and intellectual growth. There is, for a nation which takes the beaver as its emblem, more satisfaction in working toward something than in merely possessing something.

If Canada is to endure as a nation of consequence our cultural progress cannot be looked upon as something incidental, something that takes second place in importance to any of its ingredients.

Culture cannot be accepted as a fixed code, by which to live. It is not stagnant, but dynamic. It gives us wide realms to explore. Perhaps the best recipe for a culture for Canada is just to have the courage to be what we are.

Rule of the Proletariat

By Lewis Milligan

In a recent article I traced the history of Socialism in Germany to show that it was the direct cause of the two World Wars, and predicted that if there were a third world war it would be due to Socialism as represented in Soviet Socialist Russia. The social system and the aggressive international policy of Russia today are based upon the Communist Manifesto, which was devised and published in Germany by a fanatical materialist, Karl Marx. He regarded human beings, excepting himself, as material for vivisection experiments by means of class warfare and world revolution. Marx's Socialism was anything but sociable; it was violently intolerant and, far from setting up a new social order, made for the disintegration of human society.

Throughout the whole of Marx's writings, and particularly in the Communist Manifesto, he is repeatedly referring to the "bourgeoisie" as the bugbear of modern society. Originally that term was applied to citizens of towns, especially independent merchants, artists and professional men. Marx applied it to industrialists, tradesmen and employers generally, as distinct from their employees whom he calls the "proletariat". The latter, according to the Manifesto, must wage "more or less veiled civil war, within existing society, up to the point where that war breaks out into open revolution, and where the violent overthrow of the bourgeoisie lays the foundation for the sway of the proletariat."

Strangely enough, with all his hatred of the bourgeoisie, Marx pays it the following glowing compliment: "The bourgeoisie, during its rule of scarce one hundred years, has created more massive and more colossal productive forces than have all preceding generations together. Subjection of nature's forces to man; machinery, application of chemistry to industry and agriculture, steam navigation, railways, electric telegraphs, clearing of whole continents for cultivation, canalization of rivers, whole populations conjured out of the ground — what earlier century had even a presentiment that such productive forces slumbered in the lap of social labor?"

Marx, of course, attributes that wonderful development to the breaking away from the old feudal system, but it is nevertheless a fine tribute to capitalist and free enterprise, which the Manifesto sought to abolish — for why? Because, says the Manifesto, "modern industry has converted the little workshop of the patriarchial master into the great factory of the industrial capitalist. Masses of laborers, crowded into the factory, are organized like soldiers. As privates of the industrial army they are placed under the command of a perfect hierarchy of officers and sergeants. Not only are they slaves of the bourgeois class, and of the bourgeois state; they are daily and hourly enslaved by the machine, by the overlooker." That is a perfect description of the Communist industrial system as it operates in Soviet Russia today, and it is in accord with the Manifesto's ten proposals for setting up the Socialist state.

Those proposals include: "Extension of factories and instruments of production owned by the state. . . . Establishment of industrial armies, especially for agriculture."

That is exactly what has happened in Russia. The proletariat, who were supposed to be "raised to the position of ruling class," are regimented into "armies" of forced labor, officered and commanded by an upper class of taskmasters, snooping overlookers and a hierarchy of bureaucrats. That may be the best system for Russian workers, but it is the reverse of the promised "rule of the proletariat" who are more than ever the "under dogs" of the social order. There is no regimentation of labor under industrial free enterprise, but there is danger of it in the growing strength and dictatorship of some Socialist-minded labor union leaders.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A lad riding a bicycle "no hands", swerved suicidally toward my car then veered away just in time to save his left leg from amputation.

"Look, Ma, no teeth," I snarled toward the window.

"Yeah," said the friend who was riding with me. "Look, Ma, no head."

The lad shot me a sour look, as if I had tried to run over him.

But as I mumbled about the idiot behaviour of the young generation in traffic, a swarm of memories buzzed up and stung me in the conscience.

I remembered another lad who used to ride his bicycle with no hands and also (for a few seconds at a time) with no feet. It was me.

I wasn't among the most skillful in our party of morons on wheels. But for silly exhibitionism and lack of judgment I had few rivals.

The whole lot of us were silly enough, to start with. Sometimes we would see how many people we could get on one machine— riding the carrier, the saddle, the bar and the handlebars. I forget the record, but I think it was five, or four-and-a-half.

Sometimes we would scream down a precipitous footpath that had a crest on it, like a ski-jump, launch the bicycle into mid-air, and roll on down the path into a street, going much too fast to stop if a car should turn the corner.

We rode in the dark without lights, keeping a lookout for policemen. Sometimes we made "bug lamps" out of a candle in a tin. (Visibility about four feet ahead.) We hitched on the back of trucks.

My crowning idiocy was to ride a bicycle facing backwards, seated on the handlebars.

Years later, when I was supposed to be grown-up, I remembered the trick and performed it on a borrowed bicycle while I was waiting for a girl to get dressed. (I was waiting outside the house, by the way.)

This took place in England where I stayed for a time during the war at the taxpayers' expense. It was an unsophisticated neighborhood, and the small boys there had never seen anyone ride a bicycle backwards. They watched with awe. I heard later that all the little monsters in the district were trying to do the same thing, and same had fallen off their bicycles in the process.

Some of them may have lurched into the paths of buses while learning this skill. So it is likely that I did a little to relieve the overcrowding of Britain, without gaining any credit for my work.

Well, the boys of my generation did things on bicycles that were just as goofy as any accomplished by today's crop of young meatheads.

But if a grown-up frowned at us, we were scared. We didn't give him a cold insolent look as if he was wrong and we were right. Perhaps that is the difference between these youngsters and us.

C.S.B. BEST INSTALMENT BUY IN 1954 — SAYS BANKER

Donald M. Hay, manager of the Bank of Montreal at Lachute, is a pretty conservative person, but he was certainly bubbling over with enthusiasm when we dropped in to see him this week. "What's it all about?" we asked him.

"Canada Savings Bonds", he replied tersely. Already orders are coming in and he was more then usually busy preparing for a regular flood of them.

"Yes," said the bank manager, "the new Ninth Series will keep me hopping for a while. You see, they are a first-class investment, and one attractive feature, apart from the 3¼ per cent interest rate, is the fact that they can be purchased on the instalment plan as well as for cash. Only 5% down — $2.50 on a 50 bond or $5 on a $100 bond.

"Not only that," he continued, "but the government undertakes to redeem them for the holder at full face value without loss at any time, plus interest to the end of the previous calendar month.

"Thus," said Mr. Hay, "you have a golden opportunity to carry on a personal savings program without fear of loss, and end up next year with a nice little nest-egg after paying the balance in easy monthly instalments. Take my tip . . . Canada Savings Bonds are the best instalment buy in 1954."

Whether you buy for cash or on the instalment plan, it's as easy as falling off a log to purchase these bonds at the B of M. Mr. Hay invites everyone interested to drop in and discuss their needs with him.

POULTRY MANAGEMENT

Many have their birds housed already; to them this does not apply — that is, if they made a good job of cleaning and disinfecting the house before they put the birds in. They should be O.K. unless THEY or SOMETHING ELSE slips. . . What do I mean by "slips"?

Well you may have done a perfect job of cleaning and disinfecting. Then you can walk from some other contaminated ground or place into the clean house and spread eggs and germs from your boots into your clean house. Or pigeons, birds, rats and mice can also carry disease to your house. When you have gone to the trouble to clean up, take an old bag and saturate it with insect oil, put it at your poultry house door and wipe your shoes on it, and see that all others who go into the house do likewise and keep out vermin.

For those whose birds are still to be housed, we advise you to clean out the old hens first, and then clean the house — and I mean CLEAN, for disinfectants cannot kill germs under dirt; so CLEAN and scrape all dirt out. Sweep down the ceilings and walls; cobwebs can carry germs as well as anything else. If you have wood floors, they require a scrubbing with lye to get them clean. Then sprinkle the walls 2½ feet from the floor and all the floor, nests, boxes and roosts (if they are made of wood), with PURINA INSECT OIL. The ceiling and rest of the walls disinfect with PURINA DISINFECTANT. Why? Germs float around and will light anywhere, so use Purina Disinfectant to kill them, it kills on contact — but there is no contact under dirt.

Worm and coccidia eggs are different, they are heavier and stay near the ground; they have a hard shell or coat that disinfectants cannot penetrate. Insect oil will penetrate and kill them. If you have earth floors, Purina Insect Oil will disinfect them for you perfectly, easily and cheaply. Purina Insect Oil is a wonderful wood preservative too, will make your building last longer and will keep out lice and mites for at least a year. Treat your fence posts with it; they will last much longer. . . Call in or phone us for your disinfecting supplies soon, also for your PURINA CHOWS.

Thankfulness

— By Ethel Kettyle —

Let us be thankful, Lord, for little things —
A tree, a brook, a little bird that sings,
A country free from tyranny and fear.
Not thankful on just one day of the year.

But every day let us give thanks for all
That pregnant gardens yield in early fall,
The mellow fruit that hangs upon the trees,
The maple leaves that scatter in the breeze.

For sunlight flooding through a window pane,
For rainbows coming after wind and rain,
For friends who gently knock upon the door,
For all these things — what could we ask for, more?

For home and fireside's warmth, and love, and care;
And when at night we kneel to say a prayer,
A prayer of thankfulness — oh, let it be,
For little things that every day we see.

OBITUARY

Morin Hts. Lady Mourned By Wide Acquaintanceship

Late Mrs. Joseph E. Seale

The community of Morin Heights was shocked to learn of the death of Mrs. Joseph E. Seale, of Morin Heights, who passed away at the Ross Pavillion, Montreal, last Friday in her 75th year. Taken ill suddenly, she was removed to hospital on Sunday, September 26, and despite medical aid succumbed a few days later, on October 1.

Mrs. Seale (the former Sarah Letitia Cameron and known by many friends as "Dolly") was born in Dewitville, Que., where she made her home until her marriage to Mr. Joseph Seale, in 1900. Since that time, Morin Heights has been her place of residence. Among her numerous activities in community affairs, she was a life member of the Women's Institute and a member of the United Church.

Her husband, Lt. Col. Jos. E. Seale, predeceased her in 1951; the couple had celebrated their golden anniversary in previous year. For the past 17 years, they had spent the winter seasons in Florida.

Left to mourn the passing of a loving and devoted mother are two daughters, Mrs. Melvin Dey (Olive), of Morin Heights, Mrs. L. G. Hollingworth (Grace), of Lachine, and a son, Carl, of Morin Heights, as well as seven grandchildren. Three sisters also survive, Mrs. E. A. Seale, of Knowlton, Mrs. A. H. Dawson, of Huntingdon, and Mrs. H. A. Paquette, of Montreal.

The funeral was held Sunday, October 3, from the Morin Heights United Church. Service was conducted by the Rev. Robt. Blair, who made kindly reference to the deceased and gave words of comfort to the large gathering of relatives and friends who were present to pay their final tribute of respect. There was a profusion of flowers, giving silent testimony to a life well spent.

Interment was made in the nearby cemetery, five nephews being among the pall-bearers, who comprised Colin Cameron, of Morin Heights, Gordon Cameron, of Montreal, Cameron Paquette, of Montreal, Arthur Paquette, of St. Lambert, Bernard Dawson, of Montreal, and Harold Brown, of Baie d'Urfe.

Friends and relatives were present from Detroit, Boston, Sarnia, Ottawa, Montreal, Sherbrooke, the Eastern Townships and Grand' Mere.

McPHEE — At Vancouver, B.C., on Sept. 28, 1954, Samuel McPhee, in his 70th year, brother of Allan and of Mrs. Thos. J. Young (Catherine), Avoca, Que.

SEALE — At the Ross Pavillion, Montreal, on Friday, Oct. 1, Sarah Letitia (Dolly Cameron), beloved wife of the late Lt. Col. J. E. Sale, of Morin Heights, in her 75th year. Funeral service and interment held Sunday, Oct. 3, in Morin Heights.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

BLACK — The family of the late Mrs. Robert Black wish to thank their many friends for floral tributes and kind messages of sympathy received during their recent bereavement.

SEALE — The family of the late Mrs. J. E. Seale wish to express their appreciation for floral tributess and the many kindnesses shown them in their recent sad bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

BRACELAND — In loving memory of a dear brother, Peter, who passed away Oct. 5, 1953. — Always remembered by Alice, Bob and family.

"We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
The blow was great; the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near;
And only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting, the word farewell'."

FULTON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away Oct. 10, 1950. — Sadly missed by daughter, Agnes, son-in-law, Philippe, and grandchildren.

"The evening star shines on a grave
Of a father we loved and could not save;
God gave us strength to bear the blow,
But what it was to lose you, Dad,
No one will ever know."

MUNRO — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Clarence W. R. Munro, accidentally killed October 12, 1952. — Lovingly remembered by wife and children.

"Remembrance is a golden chain,
Death tries to break, but all in vain,
To have, to love and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together."

Old Resident, Mrs. R. Black, Died in Mabel Community

Mabel — The death of Ellen McOuat, widow of the late Robert Black, occurred at the home of her son, John Black, at Mabel early Wednesday morning, September 29, after a lengthy illness.

The late Mrs. Black was born September 4, 1874, at Hill Foot in this community. She was a daughter of the late James Pollock and Alexandrina Walker. Following the death of her father she grew up at the home of the late Mrs. John MacArthur at Dalesville, until the time of her marriage, when she came to live at Mabel, in the house in which she passed away.

The deceased leaves to mourn her passing four daughters, Mrs. Ed. Murphy (Isabelle), London, Ont., Mrs. Russel Warwick (Sarah), Brownsburg, Mrs. John Mahon (Mary), Calumet, and Mrs. M. Murphy (Annie), Long Branch, Toronto, two sons, Dave, of Brownsburg, and John, of Mabel, 10 grandchildren and five great grandchildren, also three sisters, Mrs. Albert Scott and Miss Anna Pollock, Lachute, and Mrs. Archie Graham, Cushing. She was predeceased by her husband in 1920, and by her youngest son, James, in 1946.

The funeral was held Friday afternoon in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church at Lachute, conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid assisted by the Rev. Geo. Hicks; interment was in Lachute Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Allan Graham, Donald Jolley, W. Horner, Raymond Warwick, Douglas Clark and Keith Lowe.

Those attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Murphy and Donald Jolley, from London, Ont., Mrs. M. Murphy, Toronto, Mrs. Orville Bolland, Ottawa, Miss Stella Warwick, Montreal, LAC. John Graham, St. Hubert, Que., and Mr. Ian Mahon, Ottawa.

Late John Mackie, Lachute, Was Prominent Figure In Financial Circles

Funeral Held Here On Wednesday

The funeral for John M. Mackie, prominent Montreal business man and member of one of Lachute's oldest families, was held Wednesday afternoon from the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church. Mr. Mackie, 86 years of age died Monday at his residence in the east ward.

Born and educated here in Lachute, he was the son of the late Rev. John and Agnes Dunlop Mackie. His father was minister of the old Presbyterian Church, which was one of the first places of worship in Lachute, being situated within the present entrance of Lachute Protestant Cemetery. Across the way and a little closer to town was another church, known as Henry's. . . His mother officiated at the laying of the cornerstone of the present Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Mackie retained the old homestead and spent most of his spare time there among the well-kept flowers and lawns, which with many gorgeous trees made it a beauty spot.

He was well known as a curler, being a member of the local Club, to which he presented for competition two trophies in memory of his father. They are contested for annually and are known as the Senior and Junior Mackie Memorial Trophies.

In 1911 the late John Mackie became treasurer of C. Meredith and Company Limited and was appointed manager in 1913. Later he was made president of United Financial Corporation, serving at the end of the First World War as president of the Bond Dealers Association of Canada and vice-chairman of the Dominion Executive Committee on Victory Loan Campaigns.

At the time of his death, Mr. Mackie was chairman of the board of the Brinton-Peterboro Carpet Company Limited, of which company he had formerly been president. He had been at the executive head of numerous companies in Canada and the United States.

He was a member of several Montreal clubs.

Mr. Mackie is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Norman McGillis, of Morrisburg, Ont., and Miss Ethel Mackie, of Montreal. His wife, the former Charlotte Irish, of Montreal, died a few years ago.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid with many friends and relatives attending. Interment was made in Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. N. M. Scott, Montreal, J. A. Scott, Ottawa, R. Mackie, Glendale, Mass., D. McGillis, Morrisburg, Ont., H. L. Featherstonehaugh, Montreal, W. J. McGowan, Ottawa, and J. M. McGillis, Montreal.

Also present were, Mrs. N. McGillis, Morrisburg, Miss Ethel Mackie, Montreal, Mrs. P. Redpath, Montreal, Mrs. G. Blakeney, Ottawa, Mrs. H. E. Bateman, Cornwall, Mr. J. Featherstonehaugh, Montreal, Mrs. R. Mackie, Glendale, Mass., Mrs. N. M. Scott, Montreal, Mrs. J. McGillis, Montreal, Mrs. H. Featherstonehaugh, Montreal, and Miss Mary, of Ottawa.

Current Problems Under Discussion At B'burg Council

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — At the council meeting this month Fire Chief A. Robbins reported 3 fires, one at the home of Mr. Giroux which started in a mattress, with $50 damage; cause was traced to a match. The other two were minor fires involving $10 damage.

Police Chief Parent reported 47 speeding offences, 3 red light violations, 2 parking tickets, 9 accidents and 18 complaints.

In amusement tax, 3,000 tickets were returned from one movie theatre and 2,000 from another.

The Chief asked for the requisition of a filing cabinet and a winter overcoat.

A sidewalk is to be built on St. Joseph, from St. Lawrence to Gil Kennedy's on the opposite side to the existing walk. The sidewalk at the United Church to the English school will be repaired. A check-up was to be made on the quality of concrete used.

Sand for the winter road-sanding was the next topic, and it was decided that T. P. Hall, who is a taxpayer and has offered to match the best price, be given the first chance to provide the sand. There was some conjecture about using salt instead, but when Councillor Sam Rose reported that the plant intended to try it this year, it was felt the municipality should await results of the company's experiment.

An interesting point arose out of a question from Mrs. Lloyd Roberts. Should agents for the same company require independent licenses or would one, held by the company, cover several agents? It was ruled by the meeting that so long as the agents were working in opposition to one another on a competitive basis, they must pay individual levies.

Mayor Donaldson reported that a hazard on Oak Street would be removed by patching the fence on Bill King's property.

Omer Legault asked permission to travel at 40 m.p.h. in town near train time and requested that a fine imposed on him for speeding on Maple Avenue South be revoked. He was ordered to pay the fine and refused permission to disregard any speed limits.

On the sidewalk at his garage Mr. Cyr had placed a board advertising gas. Pedestrians in walking around this were required to step into the roadway. The police officer was instructed to move the sign.

It was decided by the committee that "No Parking" limits be made on Oak from Kent to Bill King's property, as this was a dangerous section of road.

In the financial report by Sec.-Treas. Emile Hebert, among other things were the $700 paid the Fire Brigade for chimney cleaning, and the waterworks payment of $800 capital and $185.25 interest.

The meeting ended with a debate on the advisability of purchasing a sewer cleaning device to obviate damages in the sewer system. It was decided to send a delegation to the city to watch a demonstration of one of these cleaners, the cost of which Councillor Rose estimated at $1,000.

Bell Falls

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fox were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Scott, of Falconbridge, Ont., Miss Susan Young, of Washington, D.C., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLean and daughter, Janey, of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Mrs. Wm. J. Fox, of Calumet.

Mr. W. H. Warren spent the week-end at his home here; he was accompanied by his son, Stewart and wife, and his brother, Jack Warren and Mrs. Warren.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

D. J. Rodger & Son wish to thank all friends and neighbors, the members of the Lachute Fire Brigade, and Lachute Food Lockers Limited, for assistance received during and after the fire which destroyed their chicken cannery last Saturday.

Dr. Percival Raps Schools Outside City, For Teacher Shortage

Protestant schools outside Montreal may face a teacher shortage in the future unless there is an increase in the number of candidates for teacher training schools, Dr. W. P. Percival, director of Protestant education for Quebec, said recently.

Of 279 applicants this year to Macdonald College's school for teachers, 194 were from recent graduates of Greater Montreal schools. Schools outside Montreal had only 64 applicants. Twenty of 48 schools outside the city were without an applicant.

"If all these rural schools can produce only 64 candidates for teaching, one wonders how they will be able to obtain a supply of future teachers," Dr. Percival said in his annual report, issued in Quebec City.

He said 1,300 teachers were employed in schools outside Montreal and their salaries compared favorably with those in the city.

Textbooks had been changed considerably since 1944. Of the 300 books authorized for Grades I to XII, 70 per cent had been changed in 10 years.

More than $8,000 had been spent in the last fiscal year on movie films in education programs. The department now had 251 films available for circulation in Protestant schools.

The World Is Sound Asleep

The atomic age asleep? Yes, man is really asleep to the lateness of the time. Does the world's flood of woes mean anything to you? It does if you're awake. It means we are in the "last days" foretold by the Bible. Jesus foretold many events that would signify his second presence. Are you awake to the sign, or asleep to these perilous times?

A few of the things he foretold at Matthew 24 and Luke 21 are: (1) many false religions, (2) world wars, (3) widespread famines, (4) an unusual number of earthquakes, (5) increased lawlessness, (6) earth-wide tribulation, (7) perplexity of nations, (8) men stricken by fear, (9) increased pestilences and (10) the world asleep to the significance of it all. Also foretold as indications of the "last days" are: (11) moral degeneracy in public and private life, (12) mounting juvenile delinquency, (13) love for pleasure rather than for God and (14) a general scoffing when the warning concerning the "last days" is sounded. Do you scoff? Are you asleep with the world? If so, "now it is high time to awake"! (Rom. 13: 11). The semi-monthly magazine Awake! will help you get awake and stay awake by showing how the happenings of our time constitute the sign of Christ's second presence. Try it for one year, at the subscription rate of only $1. — Watch Tower, 40 Irwin Avenue, Toronto 5, Ont.

Legion Auxiliary October Meeting

The October meeting of Branch 70 Ladies' Auxiliary was held Monday evening at the Legion Hall, with the president, Mrs. J. Coney, in the chair.

Plans were made to hold another "military whist" the last Wednesday in the month, also to cater for the veterans' Armistice Dinner to be held in November.

There being no further business the meeting concluded, and refreshments were served by the hostesses of the evening, Mrs. J. Coney and Mrs. V. Elliott.

(Any ladies wishing to join the Auxiliary may contact the president, Mrs. J. Coney, by phone or letter.)

AMONG THE CHURCHES

At Ministerial Assocn. October Meeting

The Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association met on Monday morning in the Lachute Baptist Church, with the Rev. N. H. Brock, president, in the chair.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid was unanimously elected president for the year, and the Rev. G. T. Spriggs was re-elected secretary-treasurer, an office he has occupied since 1949.

The Rev. D. C. Merrett introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. E. S. Kerr, of Galt, Ont. Mr. Kerr made reference to interesting up-to-date facts he had learned, during a visit to Greece, concerning many places included in the missionary journeys of St. Paul. The speaker took as a subject for the devotional period three characters of the New Testament, namely, Demas, Diotrephes and Demetrius, citing each in turn as an example of the type of persons met with today by most ministers.

In conclusion, at the request of the ministers, Mr. Kerr spoke at length on Sunday School organization and activities that are proving a great success in the field of Christian Education.

A very sincere vote of thanks was tendered to the Rev. Mr. Kerr by all present.

Illustrated Address On Missionary Work

On Friday, October 8, at 8 p.m., a missionary meeting will be held in St. Simeon's Church hall, Lachute, when Canon A. H. Davis, field secretary of the Missionary Society of the Canadian Church, will give an illustrated address on a trip through some of the frontier areas in the Anglican missionary dioceses in Canada.

This is a regional meeting for the Deanery of St. Andrews, and all who are interested in missionary work are cordially invited to attend.

Deanery W.A. Meeting Next Thurs. at Lakefield

The annual meeting of the St. Andrews Deanery Women's Auxiliary will be held in Holy Trinity Church, Lakefield, on Thursday, October 14, at 11 a.m. The Rev. H. G. Baugh, of Morin Heights, will be guest speaker.

At the afternoon session, Mrs. Geo. Foster, the diocesan president, and officers of the Board, will speak on their work. Canon Davis, M.S.C.C., the guest speaker, will tell of his work in Western Canada. . . A good attendance from all branches is hoped for.

GILL - MORRISON

In the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, Lachute, the marriage took place Saturday, Sept. 25, at three o'clock of Eileen Janet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royden Morrison, of Lachute, to Mr. David Gill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gill, of Grenville.

The Rev. Dr. W. Harold Reid officiated and Mrs. Robert Blakely was organist and soloist. Baskets of white and red gladioli and white lilies were used to decorate.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a waltz-length gown of white Chantilly lace over white satin. Her finger-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a matching lace cap, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Thelma Williams, as maid of honor, was in a waltz-length gown of bronze taffeta; she carried a bouquet of yellow mums.

Mr. Charles Albright was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Vernon Martin, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Robert Hoare.

A reception was held following the ceremony, in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Gill then left for the New England States, the bride travelling in a charcoal grey wool suit with pink hat and gloves, black patent leather accessories, and a corsage of white gardenias.

British Chaplain-General Finds Troops Are "Intensely Religious"

Maj.-Gen. Victor Pike, chaplain-general of the British armed forces and honorary chaplain to the Queen, arrived in Quebec to begin a tour of Canadian cities. Maj.-Gen. Pike said he finds British troops are intensely religious and there are not enough Anglican chaplains to fill the needs of the armed forces.

He said it is probable that the second World War, by inflicting terrible "losses of material things" on the British people, made them turn to spiritual things in compensation.

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

Who was the teacher who got such a hostile reception when he returned to his own home town after he had been away, although his fame went out through the whole region? He taught in the church school and according to his usual custom on the Sabbath day he went into the Synagogue. When he stood up to read from the Scriptures, he searched for verses from the prophet Isaiah.

He found a striking passage in which it was written, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has annointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

Then when the teacher explained these verses with gracious words, everyone listened. He spoke with authority, but his audience would not hear him. They could not forget that he had grown up as a boy in their own town. When he perceived that they would not receive his message, he said. "No prophet is accepted in his own country." Then he mentioned the widow who fed Isaiah during the great famine, and the Syrian, Naaman who was cured of his leprosy.

But these reminders of people long ago who did God's bidding did not lessen the anger of the congregation. Everyone in the Synagogue was filled with wrath. They all rose and thrust him out of the city, whose streets he had walked as a lad.

The angry mob led him to the brow of a hill, high up, on which the town was built. They were determined to throw him over the cliff because he had dared to explain to them God's word so fearlessly. But the mob was prevented from carrying out their evil design.

The teacher passed through the midst of them, and no one dared lay hands on him. Unmolested, he made his way through the throng and out of the town and travelled on to another city, Capernaum. There he began to teach and his hearers were astonished at his doctrine for his word was with power. This story and the name of this teacher is found in Luke, Chapter 4, Verses 16 to 32.

Women's Inst. Entertained With Travel Scenes

The monthly meeting of the Lachute Women's Institute was held in the Legion Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

The guest of the occasion, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid, delighted his audience by showing numerous colored slides of scenes taken on a holiday trip around the Gaspé Peninsula and in the Maritime Provinces. Some of the most picturesque shots were views of the Bird Sanctuary at Percé Rock, of sunsets at various stages of his journey, and finally of the autumn foliage around Lachute.

Dr. Reid was cordially thanked by Mrs. C. L. Duncan for his display of interesting and enjoyable pictures.

During the business session, plans were discussed for the holding of a Charity Auction under auspices of the Institute, in aid of retarded children in the community.

Facets of Quebec, Intriguing Province

By George Frajkor

Quebec, Oct. 5 (CP) — When Premier Duplessis throws a switch October 10, electric power will flow for the first time through submarine cables in the St. Lawrence River from the north shore Manicougan Power development to Lac Les Boules, 260 miles east of Quebec.

The initial 59,000 horse-power will come from the Manicougan site, but in two years 100,000 horse-power will come from the 1,250,000 horse-power Bersimis river development project. The four cables will carry Bersimis power 32 miles under the river, then a system of land lines will take it 142 miles to copper mines opening up in the Gaspé peninsula.

Eight Quebec bushland towns that decided to build their own highway into the Lake St. John area have asked the Roads Department to help finish it.

The towns — Desbiens, St. André, St. Francois de Sales, Lac Edouard, Lac Bouchette Parish and Village, and Chambord Parish Village — started last June to build an 88-mile highway from La Tuque on the St. Maurice river to Chambord, near St. Jean.

They said they've already paved four miles of new road, improved many other sections and put up a 60-foot bridge. New work is running into difficulty and government help is needed, they said.

The villages said the highway is so vital to the Lake St. John area's economy they decided to build it themselves to save the roads department money and get an early start.

They raised money for the road by holding dances, card parties, "highway night" and raffles, as well as voting money from municipal treasuries.

Former Brownsburg Girl Wed in Hawkesbury

Owen - Gilmour

Miss Lida Leta Gilmour, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William George Gilmour, of Montreal, formerly of Brownsburg, and Casper W. Owen, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William B. Owen, were married Monday, September 27, by the Rev. Dr. A. Carson, of Hawkesbury, Ont.

The bride wore a blue-grey taffeta gown. Her rose-mauve velvet hat matched her corsage and toned in with her gloves, gun-metal patent shoes and bag.

A small reception was held at the Bridge Inn at Hawkesbury. For travelling the bride wore a purple velvet suit with accessories toning.

Dr. Armand C. Archambault, brother-in-law, of Barre, Vermont, gave the bride in marriage, and Mr. Edgar Pollock was best man.

Previous to the marriage Mrs. Gordon Elliott, cousin to the bride, of Lachute, entertained. Also friends of the bride entertained in Brownsburg at the home of Mrs. Joseph Cumbers.

Mr. Owen graduated from Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, in Agriculture and does research work as plant breeder at the Harrow, Ont., Federal Experimental Farm. They will reside in Harrow.

Let us no more contend, nor blame
Each other, blamed enough elsewhere, but strive
In offices of love how we may lighten
Each other's burden in our share of woe.

SPORTS AND JUVENILE ACTIVITIES

Six Teams Likely In Quebec-Ontario Hockey League

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The first meeting of the season of the Quebec-Ontario Hockey League was held Tuesday evening at the King Edward Hotel, Hawkesbury.

A rider to the rules stating that teams would lose the game if they did not arrive by 9.30 was rescinded. It was decided that a better ruling would be obtained before the start of the playing season.

Messrs. Beaulieu and Dunne notified the meeting of their resignations from the offices of president and secretary respectively. Ronald Hebert, of Brownsburg, was nominated as president for the coming year and was unanimously elected. Mr. Beaulieu, of l'Orignal, was elected as 1st vice-president and he accepted this position. The positions of secretary and 2nd vice-president were left open until the next meeting. It is expected that these will come from Lachute and Hawkesbury.

It was decided that a six-team league be sought this year, and in view of the number of requests for admission it was felt that such a circuit could be easily attained It was decided to extend invitations to Alexandria and Vankleek Hill to send representatives to next Tuesday's meeting in Brownsburg Legion Hall.

It was good to see that the animosity which somewhat marred last season had somewhat abated, and on the subject of publicity there seemed to be more cohesion among the teams. Jean-Jacques Dupré, of Lachute, expressed the opinion that the league as a unit should try to make people hockey-conscious right from the first face off, and Dr. E. Mongeon, also of Lachute, put forward a plan to run a knock-out competition for a cup in early December. This seems to be a very good plan, and the league seems set to accept this proposal.

Lachute High Wins Inter-School Track and Field

The annual track and field meet sponsored by the Argenteuil-Two Mountains Teachers Association was held in Lachute last Saturday. Around 200 pupils from six of the district schools participated. The schools represented were Arundel, Brownsburg, Grenville, Kilmar, Lachute and Morin Heights.

Although many of the events were closely contested, Lachute finally came out on top to win the meet with a total of 217 points — Brownsburg having 163 points and Grenville 143 points to qualify for second and third places, respectively.

In the Intermediate Girls' races Beverly McDonald from Lachute was a standout and it is considered on a real track she would have a good chance against the best girls from Montreal. Also Ronnie Prophet from Grenville, in the Senior Boys' races, and Garth Hazel in the Junior Boys' events, were very good.

Altogether it was a successful meet and all present enjoyed themselves.

It is only hoped that L.H.S. some day will have a real track, because not before will we hear girls and boys from the Argenteuil and Two Mountains making provincial or Canadian records.

Local Boys to Montreal, Guests of Kiwanis Club

A number of boys were guests of the Kiwanis Club of Montreal on Thursday of last week. The group included André Caron, Wayne Bradford, Lawrence McGibbon, Gaston Raby, Rejean Mongeau, Gerald Dawson, Gaston Thibodeau, Jacques Thibodeau.

From 10 a.m. to 12 noon, the party were conducted on a tour through the Redpath Sugar Refinery on St. Patrick Street. This four had been organized by the Kiwanis. The young people were very much interested and asked many questions concerning the procedure of refining sugar.

At noon the group, with the secretary of the Kiwanis Club, proceded to the Mount Royal Hotel for the Youth Harvest Day luncheon, where there were about 200 guests. There the officers of the Club and other civic dignitaries were introduced to the group. Three silver cups and other gifts were distributed to the boys and girls. André Caron, one of the group, recieved the first trophy. Lawrence McGibbon also received a gift. After the President had congratulated the boys and girls he then introduced the Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, of Ottawa, who spoke on the subject "My Souvenir of the Farm". After the luncheon Mr. Gardiner conversed individually with the boys and girls. The President then thanked the speaker and the boys and girls for attending the luncheon.

The boys were very pleased to have attended this luncheon and all enjoyed the day immensely. They were accompanied to the city by Erard Séguin and Irenée Paré, agronomes of Buckingham and Lachute, respectively.

Pleasant Function Ends Season For Lady Golfers

The closing dinner and prize presentation was attended by 75 lady members of Lachute Golf and Country Club on Tuesday evening.

Individual tables were arranged around the head table in the ballroom, and the prizes were attractively displayed on a simulated green complete with C.L.G.U. flag which decorated the stage.

The awards were presented by Mrs. Gilbert Ayers, ladies' captain.

Jockey Won 3,000 Races

SPORTS CAMERA
By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Toronto-born jockey who had done virtually all his campaigning in the United States has joined the select group of riders who have won 3,000 or more races.

Ted Atkins passed the 3,000-mark in early September and became the fourth person in racing history to reach that elite figure. The others are Sir Gordon Richards, Johnny Longden and Eddie Arcaro.

Sir Gordon retired recently after suffering a riding injury in England. He and Longden — who also was born in England but grew up in Taber, Alta. — are far and away the top saddle artists with more than 4,000 victories apiece.

Arcaro, an American, booted home his 3,000 winner two years ago.

Atkinson, now 38, moved from Toronto to Brooklyn, N.Y., with his parents as a child and didn't break into racing until he was 21. He worked for a time as a glassmaker and at other jobs until one day in Brooklyn he was introduced by chance to jockey Silvio Coucci, who persuaded Atkinson to try his luck with the thoroughbreds.

His first victory came in May, 1938, when he steered Musical Jack home in front at Beulah Park in Ohio. Wins came fairly regularly after that and up to the end of last year his mounts had earned $12,183,031. This season he added approximately $900,000 to that score.

Atkinson rode into the winner's circle 36 times in his first season and by 1940 when he invaded the better-class New England tracks his total stood at 95. He rode his first stakes winner the next year, getting War Relic home in front of the great Whirlaway in the Narragansett Special.

Ted is a contract rider for the big Greentree Stables outfit in the U.S. but returns to Canada occasionally to ride in this country's top turf event, the Queen's Plate at Toronto.

Fine Horses Injured

Bowed tendons, which usually mean curtains to a race horses's career, have struck an unusually high number of animals during the last year or so and hit particularly hard at four of the brightest stars of Harry F. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy stable in the United States.

Within 10 months, Dark Star, Black Star, once owned by the Aga Khan, Turn-To and Big Crest, were crippled. Big Crest, a hopeful for the Kentucky Derby last May, was the stable's last casualty.

Experts say a bowed tendon is the most common and most serious of the various locomotive disabilities that can strike a thoroughbred The tendon is at the rear of the leg, running from the knee to the fetlock. The tendon is covered by a sheath and when this is broken — usually from strain or a blow from a hoof — the tendon pops out and bows.

A bowed tendon can happen almost anytime, even when a horse is standing in its stall or when the bandages are wrapped too tightly. When the injury strikes, it can be disastrous. Few horses come back to win again.

Bear Cub Shot At East Settlement

A 49-pound black bear cub was shot by Leonard Boa, of East Settlement, a short distance from the home of Delmar Copeland on Monday afternoon, shortly after 4 o'clock.

The animal crossed a nearby pasture and was at first mistaken for a dog by Mrs. Copeland, who later informed her husband and Mr. Boa that it was a bear cub Mr. Boa shot the animal with an automatic 22 calibre rifle

District farmers have not reported any loss of livestock.

New Ontario Record For Rainbow Trout

—Central Press Canadian

A joy to any fisherman's eye is this record Ontario rainbow trout, caught in the Sturgeon river by 17-year-old Bob Edgar of Toronto. Pat Pierdon holds the monster, which weighed in at 15 pounds, seven ounces. The previous record was 14 pounds, four ounces.

City of Ottawa Issues School Tour Booklet

A "School Tour Booklet" has just been issued by the Tourist and Convention Bureau of the City of Ottawa, by authority of the Board of Control and approval of City Council. The purpose in this venture is twofold — "to arouse among young Canadians of secondary school age a greater interest in their Capital as the symbol of the life and service of their country, and to encourage them, through their own initiative, to plan and make a visit to Ottawa, and the scenes and institutions of the Dominion's unfolding story."

RCMP, Quiet Warriors Against Crime

So much has been written, filmed, said and sung about the Royal Canadian Mounted Police that they have become almost legendary in their own time. The true story of the modern Mountie, is however, ever more exciting. The RCMP's relentless war against crime is not a succession of gunfights and 70 m.p.h. car-chases; most of their work is done quietly in laboratories such as the one above, showing two fingerprint experts in this Malak photo. A new series by the CBC, aptly titled "The Quiet Force", will bring listeners to the Trans-Canada network an insight into the RCMP of today, where science, perseverance and brainwork are their main weapons. The scripts for the series were checked by the RCMP for technical accuracy, and their verdict was: Excellent!

French-Canadian Family, The Plouffes, Come to English TV Audience

A new all-Canadian show, "The Plouffe Family," written by Roger Lemelin, will begin on the CBC-TV network Thursday, October 14, 8.00 - 8.30 p.m. It will be seen weekly on all Canadian TV stations.

The scripts are based by Lemelin on his own book of the same title. They are to be used during the 1954-55 season both for a French-language TV serial and for the English productions.

The Plouffes' first appearance before the Canadian public was in Roger Lemelin's best-seller "Les Plouffe", described by some critics at the time of its publication in 1948 as the most important Canadian novel yet written. The publication of the book in France, and later in Toronto in an English translation, introduced the family to a vast, and highly receptive, audience far beyond the borders of its "native" Quebec. Recently there has been talk of a Japanese translation.

In 1952 the bok was adapted as a French-language radio serial and introduced on the CBC French network with conspicuous success.

Author Lemelin has pointed out what he believes are the reasons for the popularity of his Plouffe family: "There are the multitudes of episodes, inspired by the contrasting characters — the sportsman, the opera-lover, the spinster, etc.; but the most important thing is that in spite of their apparent differences, they form a very tightly knit French-Canadian family of the wage-earning class."

He adds that the setting might be anywhere, in any urban centre of the province of Quebec. "And as much as possible I try to describe the ways of living of a French-Canadian family at home — their ideas, their feelings, their loves and their sorrows. This is the kind of home in which I myself was brought up, and I am proud of it."

For those who haven't read the book, it must be said that the Plouffe family consists of a father and mother and their four adult children, all unmarried. Theophile, the father, is a plumber by trade and a cycling enthusiast; he never lets his family or his friends forget that he was once a champion. He is too good-natured to wield much authority at home. Josephine, the mother, is a warm-hearted and affectionate woman who bustles about the house, watching over her family like a hen over her brood. Her kitchen and her children are her entire world.

Of the children, Ovide is a sort of Don Quixote. He loves the arts, especially opera, but has the misfortune to fall in love with the beautiful Rita Toulouse who thinks that crooners (particularly Bing Crosby) represent the last word in art. Napoleon is a hero-worshipper and loses contact with the realities of life in his passion for sports. Handsome Guillaume, the youngest of the three, is the active athlete and lets himself be governed by his trainer-brother Napoleon's creed that championships and women don't mix.

Cecile, the daughter, is 38 and is regarded as an old maid. She still dreams of romance and marriage, but with certain strings attached, the chief of which is independence. She saves every cent she can, keeping her money in a piggy-bank. Her present beau is a bus-driver who has contributed to the Plouffe balcony a seat from the first public conveyance he ever operated.

Those who know the book will find that Lemelin has taken each character right out of the novel. "The only difference is that through radio and TV, I have come to know them even better, since I have had the opportunity to make a deeper study of each one." One the other hand, the episodes are new. Lemelin speaks of them as stories that were within each character but left untold in the writing of the book because of the limitations of space.

Canadian-Indian Culture On Display

London — A rare display opened on September 27 in the Imperial Institute in London, under the title "Arts and Crafts of the British Columbian Indians". The collection belongs to Sir Alfred Bossom, a noted figure in London business, political and social life, who made his first contact with the British Columbia Indians some fifty years ago. Sir Alfred estimates that the collection contains between sixteen and seventeen thousand objects.

Toby Tarnow

Teen-ager Toby Tarnow is a pretty and talented young Miss, who, while still attending school, is developing into a professional actress with a very bright future. Currently she is playing Anne in a CBC Trans-Canada adaption of "Anne of Avonlea", the second volume of L. M. Montgomery's famous "Anne of Green Gables" series.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

October 10, 1879 —

Harrington — The potato crop in this township and those near, is suffering severely from rot.

The weather today is as balmy and warm as in the month of August, the thermometer ranging about 78° this week. Two weeks ago we had very heavy frosts that killed almost everything vegetable.

50 YEARS AGO

October 7, 1904 —

St. Andrews East — The Mayoralty and the Law evidently don't agree. . . Telephones are being put up for a local service through the village. St. Andrews is booming and our councillors, anyway, can't stop the telephone bell from ringing.

Lakefield — We are sorry to report that some of our village residents are violating the law by catching herring out of season.

25 YEARS AGO

October 11, 1929 —

Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon and Firemen Wm. Deacon, George Graham, W. S. MacKimmie, W. K. McArthur and Harold McFaul gave chase to two post-office burglars, upon a summons from Postmaster Gall. The two got as far as St. Hermas, then, seeing their pursuers rapidly gaining on them, abandoned their car and took to the bush. Mounted police were notified and a description of the men was given all station agents. The following morning, Saturday, the two men boarded the train at Ste. Scholastique for Mile End, where the Mounted Police, having been notified, took charge of them on their arrival.

London Schoolchildren Learn About Canada

London — An innovation at London's Imperial Institute this term are classes for school-children to learn about Canada and other Commonwealth countries. In the Canadian Gallery children wander about freely among exhibits illustrating Canada's wealth, people and industrial development. Afterwards there is an assembly where a lecturer will answer questions, and where actual Canadian products are on show.

SEE FIRST TRAIN

Forty-two Boy Scouts from St. Pierre-Miquelon, the French possessions in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, paid their first visit to Canada on a two-week camping trip last summer. Many of the Scouts had never seen a train before, and another first for most of them was a baseball game.

A passenger on his first airplane flight was being comforted by a fellow traveller.

"You have nothing to worry about," said his pal. "If your time has come, you can't do anything about it."

"That's O.K.," he answered, "But what bothers me is, suppose the pilot's time has come and mine hasn't!"

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

"October Plentifuls"

Now that fall is with us, the home economists of the Consumer Section thought it would be a good idea to give homemakers a little resumé of what Canadian fruits and vegetables they will be able to buy in the shops during the month of October.

In the fruit line there will be apples, pears and grapes, and in some markets there will still be a few peaches, some cantaloupe and some plums. As for vegetables there will be a very good selection of beets, brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, potatoes, onions, turnips and parsnips, and there will still be broccoli, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, radishes, peppers, spinach and tomatoes on many markets. Mushrooms, garlic, parsley, and watercress should be found on every market because they are usually available all year around.

If Mrs. Homemaker tours around the market stalls or visits the vegetable counters at the stores she is sure to notice that there is still a good stock of fresh Canadian vegetables available. True, during the winter months she has to depend on many imported vegetables or on canned or frozen vegetables, but right now every homemaker should be using Canadian vegetables. Cauliflower, the white headed flower of the cabbage family, is one vegetable which should not be passed up in this week's shopping. There is plenty available in almost every size. Generally size has if any relations to quality. Fine quality in cauliflower is indicated by white or creamy, clean, heavy, firm curds or buds. These words "curds" or "buds" to describe cauliflower may be new to many homemakers, but they are the white flowerets you eat. Age in cauliflower is indicated by the yellowing of the leaves and a spotted curd. Shoppers will do well to avoid cauliflower that has dried leaves and yellow spots on the head.

The best and most popular way to serve cauliflower is to boil it in a small amount of salted water and serve it with butter, grated cheese, or a variety of sauces. However, many people love raw cauliflower buds in salads or raw cauliflower just marinated and served as an appetizer. Incidently these raw caulifower appetizers can be very colorful on an appetizer tray if they are just brushed with a little vegetable coloring, perhaps, some green, others yellow. The colored flowerets look very different and of course the vegetable coloring is quite edible.

Pears

One fruit which homemakers seem to neglect is pears. The home economists are not sure why homemakers do neglect pears, but they feel that it may be that pears come on to the market when the fresh fruit season is well advanced and most people have satisfied the intense desire they have earlier in the summer for fresh fruit. Then, too, some pears are definitely canning pears and others are good eating pears. And, sometimes a homemaker is a little confused as to just what variety of pear she wants to buy. However, the home economists want to point out that shoppers should not neglect Canadian pears for they have eye appeal, they are juicy and full of flavor, and they are on the market from August until February.

Most of the pears grown in Canada today actually originated in Europe and were brought to North America by our first settlers. Many varieties are grown now, and there is sure to be one that will suit both the family and the purpose for which the homemaker wants to use it. Generally speaking the first varieties to appear on the market are eating pears while the later ones are good for eating and preserving. The late winter pears are eating varieties also.

Right now the Flemish Beauty pears which are on the market are good for both eating and preserving. In Ontario there is also the Anjou, but it is mainly an eating pear. Later on British Columbia Anjous and Winter Nelis pears will appear on all markets. These are definitely winter eating pears for they store well and stay in fine condition in cold storage until almost Springtime. Homemakers will do well to look for fresh Canadian pears this winter for, along with apples, they are the only fresh Canadian winter fruits that can be bought.

Cinderella Aprons

PARTY APRONS of nylon sheer are making fashion news. Most sophisticated are often black like the one at left which features pockets twinkling with star-shaped pieces of mirror. White nylon sheer at right is embroidered with a huge black and gold colored bumble bee. Both are as washable and sturdy as their kitchen counterparts.

Canada "Wonderful" To European Doctor

Montreal (CP) — Dr. Karolina Goldberg, a Polish doctor now serving her internship at Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hospital, says Canada to her is something "wonderful".

The middle-aged doctor, here since 1951, said in an interview that Canadians do not appreciate the freedom and liberty of their country.

"I don't begrudge them what they have but I am envious and would like them to realize how valuable liberty it," she said, recalling her own wartime experiences.

Dr. Goldberg said she had just begun to practise as a skin specialist in Poland when the war started in 1939. She lost her first husband, also a doctor, to the Russians. Her second husband, a Polish lawyer, now is with her in Montreal.

During the interview the doctor burst into tears when she recalled her experiences. She apologized explaining: "I lost my whole family during the war. The Germans killed half . . the others were taken by the Russians."

After the war Dr. Goldberg and her husband went to Palestine and in 1951 they obtained passports to Canada.

With another year of internship still ahead of her, Dr. Goldberg said she may serve longer because she feels her English is not good enough for her to pass her medical examinations.

Women's "Inter-County Leadership School"

Dates of an "Inter-County Leadership School", for counties around Cowansville, have been announced. These are October 18-23, with the "school" held at the home of Mrs. Hilton Smith, Sweetsburg. The entire cost is only $12 per person and it is hoped there will be a large attendance from counties in that vicinity.

This Leadership School is a joint project of all organizations in that district, with plans co-ordinated by an over-all planning committee under the chairmanship of Mr. R. Miner, Cowansville.

Sub-committees have now been set up and leaders secured. On this list are such well known names as Mr. H. R. C. Avison, Director of the Adult Education Service, Macdonald College, Mr. K. Russell, also of the College, and Rev. and Mrs. Alex Cameron (née Roberta Ridley), Sawyerville.

Inquiries relating to this project are welcomed and should be addressed to Mrs. J. Ossington, R.R. 1, Granby, a member of the planning committee.

This experiment is something new in the history of Adult Education in this province. High hopes are held for its success and the wish expressed it may encourage other districts to undertake similar projects, which should be of benefit to all organizations engaged in this field of service.

Fashions

The coat is king of the fashion parade this season. Not in many years have there been so many delightful designs, so many novelty trims, such a wide variety of new and beautiful fabrics. And the fur trims are exquisite. Magnificent tweeds play a super role in the coat excitement and this one is fashioned of flecked black and white tweed that is set off by an interesting collar facing and cuffs of rich off-white woollen.

Girls Can Expect To Live Longer

Girls born today can expect to live 8¾ years longer than girls born 20 years ago, according to the Bureau of Statistics.

Male babies have a life expectancy of 6 1/3 years longer than those born two decades ago.

The bureau said that life expectancy at birth was 66.3 years for boys and 70.8 years for girls, according to a survey made for the year 1951.

DENTAL DECAY

From the outside civilization may look like a garden of roses, but there are thorns on the roses. Alcoholism, for example, is peculiar to advanced civilization. So is polio. But the most costly and most recurrently painful of the thorns in the rose garden is dental disease.

Tooth decay is rare among savages. Farther back in the evolutionary scale, when teeth were weapons of combat, it would have been fatal. A carnivorous quadruped with decayed or missing teeth stands as much chance of survival as a popsicle in a Turkish bath.

* * *

Question:

"All my life I have had trouble with my teeth. I believe every tooth in my head has had to be drilled and filled at least once, and some more than once. I am not a heavy eater of sweets, although I do eat my share of candies, cakes, etc. What puzzles me is that my cousin who lives on my block eats as much candy as I do, seldom brushes his teeth, and yet he has had only two fillings in 35 years to my knowledge. Is it possible that sweets aren't the answer to what causes tooth decay?"

* * *

Answer:

Sweets in themselves do not cause tooth decay, but they are esential to the bacteria which are primarily responsible for it. The bacteria in the mouth thrive on high concentrations of sugar which they convert into destructive acids. This is the reason that toooth decay is almost unknown among primitive people who do not know how to refine sugar. The concentrations of sugar in natural fruits are too low to do any harm, though dried figs and dates are exceptions.

As for your cousin, he is probably one of those people who was fortunate enough to be born with non-susceptible teeth. Heredity may have something to do with this. Dental research will be able to claim a major victory when it comes up with the full answer to the question of why some teeth are naturally less susceptible to decay than others. The morphology or shape of the tooth appears to be an important factor. Susceptible teeth have more pits and striations in them than non-susceptible teeth.

In the meanwhile it is known that fluorine, in proper quantities, can make growing teeth non-susceptible to decay. This chemical incorporates itself into the enamel of young teeth and makes them resistant to acid-etching. The time will come, in the not-too-far future, when the public water supplies of all civilized communities will be "fluoridated", and if it is any consolation to you, your grandchildren will probably not have to undergo the suffering and expense you have had to endure.

Since you are past the age when fluorine can have any effect on your teeth, your best bet for prevention of further decay would be severe restriction of sugar consumption, plus a regimen of tooth brushing as soon as possible after eating, to remove carbohydrate debris. Dental laboratories are now investigating tooth pastes which will make a direct attack on the bacteria which turn sugar into acid. If those bacteria can be eliminated from the mouth there can be no tooth decay. This is something you can look forward to.

A Thankful Heart

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"So once in every year we throng
Upon a day apart,
To praise the Lord with feast and song
In thankfulness of heart."

Arthur Guiterman wrote these words in his poem "The First Thanksgiving". Many families do attend church on this special occasion to "give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth forever."

But unfortunately many parents who want to give their children the best of everything, fail even at this time to sit in a pew with them. They are willing enough to send their youngsters off to Sunday School, but they have wonderful alibis for staying at home from church themselves!

Their lives are so much poorer for this pagan way of living. There is something very thrilling and satisfying about a congregation singing "Come ye thankful people come." There is a wonderful sense of uplift and new power in corporate worship.

This hymn, known as "Harvest Home" was first called "Harvest". It was written a hundred and ten years ago by an Anglican clergyman, Henry Alford who later became Dean of Canterbury Cathedral. He longed to visit the Holy Land but never managed to do so. The inscription on his tombstone reads: "The inn of pilgrim travelling to Jerusalem."

In the modern world few people wish to be reminded that this life is but a beginning of life eternal, and the abiding values are spiritual ones. This attitude contributes to a materialistic attitude which places emphasis on money and possessions.

George Herbert a rector who was a friend of Isaac Walton, the famous fisherman, once spoke out against folk who acted as if God's blessings had "spare days." He wrote "Our Prayer" which begins with these two lines.

"Thou that hast given so much to me,
Give one thing more — a grateful heart."

Thanksgiving Day reminds us of the importance of a grateful heart which recognizes that every good gift comes from God. Our lives are dependent on Him. We owe the Great Creator both gratitude and praise not just once a year but every day. How often believers are urged in the Bible to express their thanksgiving! A much loved grandmother used to quote on a beautiful sunny day as well as on Sunday morning, this 24th verse from Psalm 118, "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it."

In another home grandparents were coming a long distance to visit their married son and make the acquaintance of their only grandchild Jackie a little boy of five years. The father felt a little uneasy when he remembered in the home where he had grown up, a meal was never commenced until "Grace" was said.

He was relieved when Jackie came home from Sunday School with a copy of this little grace":

"We're thankful for the many things
Our heavenly Father sends:
For love, and faith, and radiant health and these four lines which can be sung to the Old Hundredth tune.
For home and food and friends."

"Be present at our table, Lord,
Be here and everywhere adored.
Thy children bless and grant that we May live in fellowship with Thee."

Jackie showed his parents his page with these verses typed on them. "Teacher said maybe we had a favorite grace, but we might like to use a different one. Bobby told her that his family don't say prayers at the table. But he's going to ask his Mum if they could start. Why don't we start too?"

If grace before meals is not a regular custom in your home, what better time to begin it than on Thanksgiving Day? If this "Thanks to God" is said in a hurry, without each member of the family entering into the spirit of prayer, perhaps it would be a good thing to use a new grace, such as:

"God is great, and God is good;
And we thank Him for our food.
By His bounty we are fed
By His love we all are led."

We can express our love and thankfulness to God at any time and in any place. But for the sake of the children growing up in our homes, each day before we partake of food, we should pause a moment and thank God.

Prettiness An Asset In Hospital Nurses

Winnipeg (CP) — Nurses should be pretty and attractive.

That's the opinion of Miss Sheila Nixon, newly appointed director of nursing for the Winnipeg Children's Hospital.

Miss Nixon was commenting on a Montreal story which said Quebec doctors would like to see nurses wear garments "loose and black."

"We'd never have a nursing staff if we tried to put that over on the girls," she said. "The effect on the morale of pretty nurses is well known. I think even children notice it."

The English-born director deplored what she termed "the rather casual attitude" some nurses have developed toward their profession.

"I don't know what causes it," she said. "Maybe we are taking them into training too young. Or maybe they haven't developed a sense of responsibility."

Miss Nixon finds working with children particularly interesting as "there's always so much hope in children."

MOOSE BEATS CAR

Whitney, Ont. (CP) — Blake Bolt of the lands and forests department and Philip Ruddy were driving through Algonquin Park when they hit a moose. The front of the car was badly damaged; Ruddy's head was knocked through the windshield. The moose, thrown over the top of the car, ambled off, apparently unhurt.

Apple pie... coming up

A KING-SIZE apple pie weighing over a hundred pounds was recently baked for the Washington State Apple Blossom Festival. The specially built aluminum pie pan — the largest ever made — measured eight feet across.

Made us wonder how big a pie you'd get if all the apple pies baked in one day on regular-size aluminum pans were put together. And that brings to mind all the different aluminum cooking utensils used today in homes and hospitals and restaurants . . . No wonder Canada is stepping up her production of this light, bright metal to one and a quarter billion pounds a year! Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Dollar-Cost of Carelessness

Fire Prevention Week is being observed October 3-9, to focus public attention on the ever-present need for fire safety and protection.

Despite the constant efforts of many organizations, hundreds of fires occur every day, from the small ones in rubbish to the large, spectacular fires.

Statistical figures bring to light that greater care must be exercised in order to reduce the economic waste. Millions of dollars go up in smoke every year, and unless time is given to analyse the figures, one does not realize the tremendous amount of money involved, the number of lives lost and injuries to persons.

On an average between 55,000 and 65,000 fires are reported every year, or over 150-170 fires every day. These losses account for anything from $65,000,000 to $80,000,000 per annum. The average for the past five years is approximately $75,000,000.

This tremendous sum of money is lost, chiefly through carelessness. For instance, in 1952 smokers' carelessness and matches caused approximately 40% of reported fires, misuse of electricity 9%, stoves, furnaces, boilers and smoke pipes 10%, defective and overheated chimneys and flues, hot ashes and open fires 7%.

The above are the chief causes of reported fires and it leaves little to the imagination, how many are caused through just carelessness.

Fire is a man's most useful force, but it is never completely servile. A moment's carelessness, a brief lack of respect for it can cause a lifetime of grief.

The high level of fire losses is a drain on the resources of the country and must be controlled.

Large as the fire loss is, the current relationship between losses and property subject to damage points up the efficacy of the means now available to control this national fire waste.

Scouters' Conf'ce This Week-End At North Hatley

The 19th Provincial Scouters' Conference will be held this week-end at North Hatley, and it is expected that most of the 24 Scout districts will be represented by some 200 leaders of Wolf Cubs, Boy Scouts and Rovers.

G. Robley Mackay, Provincial Commissioner, will be general chairman and will open the Conference at dinner at 6 p.m. on Saturday. Evan McCormick, Assistant Provincial Scout Commissioner for Manitoba, will give the Conference address.

Sunday's program will open with divine services at 8 p.m., to be followed by a Scouts' Own at 10 o'clock conducted by the Rev. Robt. Gardner, a Scouter from Jamaica who is now attending McGill.

For the purpose of these sessions the leaders will be divided into a dozen or more groups; and they will discuss, first, the Church and Scouting, then the Group Council (composed of the leaders within each Scout Group), and finally, the 8th World Scout Jamboree. Their findings will be summarized on Monday morning after which there will be a question period when the Chairman, Mr. Mackay, will get the opinions of those he thinks best qualified to answer.

Lt.-Col. G. E. Simmons, MBE, Executive Commissioner for Administration at Canadian Scout Headquarters, Ottawa, will address the Conference at lunch-time on Sunday on the subject of Jamborees. In the afternoon, he and J. Barry Cale, Assistant Provincial Commissioner for Training in Quebec, will take charge of the afternoon session dealing with that subject. On Monday morning, C. J. Dendy, Provincial Executive Commissioner, will speak on the principles of Scout financing and its application down through the Pack and Troop to the boys.

Following lunch on Monday, Mr. McCormick as the visitor and observer will give his impressions of the Conference so that the delegates can take away an outside opinion of their deliberations with which to compare their own impressions.

Wedding of Interest To Cushing Community

Nicholls - Nicol

The Rev. W. Skelly officiated Saturday, September 25, at the wedding of Dorothy Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nicol, to Mr. Gordon George Nicholls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percival G. Nicholls, which took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Thorold, Ont., against a background of pink and white gladioli and ferns.

Mr. Keith Calder was the organist and Mr. Roy Cairns was soloist.

The bride was attended by Mrs. D. W. Hevenor and Miss Melissa Munro. Mr. Robert Welch was the groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Norman Young and Mr. William McMillan.

The bride wore a gown of white embroidered taffeta and tulle. Tiers of tulle at the back of the bouffant skirt extended into a slight train and the picture neckline of the little fitted taffeta jacket showed the scalloped bodice of her gown. Her veil fell from a coronet of pearls and she carried a a bouquet of orchids, stephanotis and a sprig of heather.

Mrs. Hevenor's gown was of rose satin and net, the satin fashioning the bodice, also her little bolero; rose-colored leaves cascaded down one side of the bouffant net skirt. Her headdress was a coronet of white chysanthemums and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Munro's gown was of similar design in dusty blue. Her headdress was of yellow chrysanthemums and bronze and yellow chrysanthemums fashioned her colonial bouquet. Following a reception at the Refectory, Queenston Heights, the bride and groom left for the New England States and on their return will live at 100 Townline West, Thorold. For travelling the bride wore a rose suit and hat with matching stole, trimmed with white fox.

Capt. and Mrs. Thos. Weir, of Cushing, aunt and uncle of the groom, were among guests attending the wedding from a distance.

Gossips With Ghosts?

—Central Press Canadian

A friend for many years of the late W. L. MacKenzie King, Percy Philip, seen above, former New York Times correspondent, is reported to have had a conversation with the former prime minister, who has been dead for four years. In a CBC radio talk, Mr. Philip, now 68, who represented the New York Times in Ottawa for 12 years, said the conversation took place on a park bench last June near Kingsmere, Que., where Mr. King had his summer home. It ranged from politics to international affairs. "But there was no pessimism, no warning of catastrophe in his comment on human affairs," he said. During his lifetime the late Mr. King was a believer in spiritualism, having claimed to have held conversations with his dead parents, Abraham Lincoln and other notables in history. Mr. Philip added that he was not a spiritualist.

Salesman Has A Way With Fish, Animals

Montreal (CP) — Howard Lees, an insurance salesman, had collected 2,500 tropical fish before his doctor decided the hobby was getting out of hand.

Following doctor's orders, Lees sold the fish last year — but he plotted a sly comeback. Now he's collected 250 budgie birds, two monkeys, a macaw, a mina bird and a chow dog.

"I have a way with animals", he admits.

There is no word about what the doctor thinks of the new hobby, and with good reason. The last time he gave an opinion, Lees paid him with a sooty Mangabev, or white-eyelid monkey.

About 30 years ago Lees bought the first goldfish of what was to grow into one of Montreal's largest tropical fish collections.

"The fish kept me out half the day looking for bugs on rivers and lakes," he says. "I bred waterbugs and salt water shrimp in the basement. Then there were also my champion chow dogs to take care of. The doctor said it was killing me, and I knew it was."

After the fish came the budgies. "They really aren't any trouble. I order a bushel of birdseed and the rest is just a matter of cleaning cages."

He sells his surplus budgies to local pet shops but keeps a prize breeding stock. The birds and animals are kept in the roomy loft of his apartment workshop. Recently, Lees donated a valuable pair of monkeys to the up-and-coming zoo at Granby, Que.

A happily married college president concluded a graduation address as follows: "Gentlemen, many of you will marry. Let me entreat you to be kind to your wives. Be patient with them. When you are going out together, do not worry if your wife is not ready at the appointed time. Have a good book nearby. Read it while you wait. And, gentlemen, I assure you that you will be astonished at the amount of information you will acquire."

By-Elections in Six Constituencies Set for Nov. 8

By Alan Donnelly,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Oct. 1 (CP) — For the second time since last year's general elections, federal political parties will square off at the polls on Monday, November 8.

That date was announced recently for by-elections in six constituencies to fill vacancies in the House of Commons.

Five of the ridings had been held by Liberals and one by a Progressive Conservative. They are the three Ontario constituencies of York West, Toronto Trinity and Stormont, the Montreal ridings of St. Lawrence - St. George and St. Antoine - Westmount, and Selkirk in Manitoba.

As the contest shaped up last week, Liberals and Progressive Conservatives will have candidates in all ridings and the CCF in at least two — Selkirk and York West.

Marler Seeks Seat

Three of the ridings involve seats formerly held by cabinet ministers and most of the interest centred on one of these — Montreal St. Antoine - Westmount — where Transport Minister Marler, appointed to the cabinet July 1, will seek to enter the Commons for the constituency formerly held by Finance Minister Abbott, now a Supreme Court justice.

Mr. Marler, former Quebec Liberal leader, was named successor to Transport Minister Chevrier, who gave up his Stormont seat to become president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. The Montreal St. Lawrence - St. George seat was vacated by Defence Minister Claxton to become an insurance company executive.

The other three vacancies were created by deaths. The York West member, Progressive Conservative Rodney Adamson, was killed in an April 8 crash at Moose Jaw, Sask.; Lionel Conacher, Liberal member for Toronto Trinity, died at a Commons softball game last May; and Selkirk was made vacant by the death of Robert J. Wood, a Liberal.

Setting of the date for November raised speculation that the recent practice of holding a fall session of Parliament may not be followed this year.

The by-elections will be the second test of strength since the Liberal party was swept back into power in the August 10, 1953, general election. Last March 22, four by-elections were held in which Liberals retained two Quebec seats and the Conservatives held two Ontario ridings.

Besides local questions, the national issues in the by-elections are expected to be taxes, unemployment, immigration, defence and the state of the country's economy.

SCOUT SAVED TWO

The death toll in the tragic accident at Point Aux Carriers, Quebec, when 12 children were drowned, might have been worse had it not been for Sea Scout David Tagieff, 12 year old member of the Montreal West End Sea Scout Troop, who rescued two children from drowning.

Minister of Mines Feted at St. Andrews In Joint Civic Dedication and Reception

Gala Affair – Blessing of New Building and Banquet Honoring W. M. and Mrs. Cottingham

Monday, October 11, will stand out as a red letter day for the Village of St. Andrews for two special occasions — the dedication of the new fire hall with office and council chamber included, and a civic reception for the Hon. and Mrs. W. M. Cottingham.

New Civic Equipment

The building, of a most attractive appearance, is situated on Main Street and houses a modern fire truck with 550-gallon auxiliary water tank, which can be used immediately on reaching the scene of a fire, throwing a stream 40 feet high and lasting, with use of the fog spray, for a half hour or more in a steady flow.

Fire Chief E. Monette and Deputy Chief A. Cousineau were on hand and gave a demonstration of the speed and force with which water could be applied in the event of a fire.

On the first storey of the building were gathered a number of invited guests, including Hon. and Mrs. Cottingham, the Rev. Father Dulude, the Rev. J. R. Watson, Mayor L. Charlebois, and Councillors A. Dorion, P. McCullough, J. Proulx, A. Roy and L. Fournier.

In a prayer of dedication and service, Father Dulude blessed the new building and equipment, trusting that it would be used as a place of justice and order in administration of the law and good citizenship. The Rev. J. R. Watson expressed a similar wish in English.

Banquet Speakers

After a few words of appreciation from the Hon. Mr. Cottingham, adjournment was made to the Monette Hotel, where a turkey dinner was served. Some 60 persons representative of different branches of town organizations and welfare were present, later assembling at the Roman Catholic School, which is also a most up-to-date building and a credit to the community.

On the platform were the Hon. and Mrs. Cottingham, Curé Dulude, the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Watson, Mayor and Mrs. L. Charlebois, Mr. S. Moderie, Mr. and Mrs. S. Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. E. Monette, Mr. and Mrs. L. Pilon, Mr. H. McOuat and Mr. and Mrs. E. Raymond.

Mr. Donat Fournier, as master of ceremonies, gave an address of welcome to the honored guests, congratulating Mr. Cottingham on his recent appointment as Minister of Mines.

A presentation of roses to Mrs. Cottingham, and an attractive pen and pencil set to Mr. Cottingham, was then made by two charmingly dressed young ladies, the Misses Manon Lalande and Lise Roquebrune.

On behalf of his wife and himself Mr. Cottingham thanked the gathering for this kindly gesture. He expressed regret that his recent appointment had prevented him from doing as much visiting as he wished, but gave assurance that the people of St. Andrews and district were not forgotten and would be seeing more of him later on.

Insight Into Quebec's Mineral Development

The speaker then proceeded to give a brief outline of some of his trips to northern parts of the Province of Quebec, and gave special

According to the agricultural scientists farming will soon be faster and better. Some of our basic tillage tools were designed for horse speeds and to make full use of the tractor's speed would throw the soil into the next county. Problems of tillage tool design are being studied and these same men should have better designs shortly.

Bear Shot in Tree At St. Andrews East

Victor Potier, well known St. Andrews citizen, received a considerable jolt last Friday morning on finding a 100-lb. bear in a tree near his home. Not customarily carrying a gun on his person, he could do nothing but look; then he hurriedly notified Mayor Léopold Charlebois of his experience. The latter, busy at the time, called Jacques Paquette, who went to the scene and proudly bagged the marauder with a rifle shot.

Police Report Shows 147 Calls In Two Months

Sentences ranging from 2 to 4 years were received by six persons responsible for thefts totalling $1,000 in the months of July and August — according to the Police Report submitted to Council at its regular meeting last Wednesday.

Stolen automobiles with a total value of $12,600 were recovered.

A total of 147 calls for the police were received, while 19 arrests were made. Damage from the 17 automobile accidents reported, was estimated at $2,620. Fourteen animals were destroyed.

Sixty-one traffic tickets were handed out, the larger number being in the month of September. There were 17 reported thefts.

The statement was submitted by Police Chief Laurent Ducharme.

Motion, Amendment and Sub-Amendment As Council Debates Gasoline Purchases

Other Purchases, Tenders and Grants Discussed at Regular Town Session

The subject of a gasoline discount was thoroughly discussed and settled at the regular meeting of Town Council, held in the Victoria Hall last Wednesday evening. A full membership was in attendance.

Opening the discussion, Ald. Réal Morrissette moved that all gas be purchased at a 4 per cent discount at the Murdoch Bros. and Cayer garages. It had previously been pointed out that only one tender had been received and this one had been called back. Ald. L. Gibeault seconded the motion.

It was moved in amendment by Ald. D. G. MacRae, seconded by Ald. R. Desjardins, that the gas be bought at all tax-paying garages in the town limits as before, as "it would look small of the Council to try and create a price war."

Ald. W. Cousineau, seconded by Ald. R. R. Muir, moved in sub-amendment that the matter be tabled.

A vote found Aldermen Cousineau and Muir in favor of the sub-amendment; Aldermen MacRae, Desjardins and Pollock in favor of the amendment, and Aldermen Morrissette, Gibeault, Charlebois and Laurin in favor of the main motion, which was carried.

Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon once again requested further equipment, comprising a Siamese coupling, two nozzles and 300 feet of 1½ inch hose. Chief Deacon mentioned that the equipment was first requested in February of this year, and it could have been used several times since then, especially at the Rodger fire last week. Ald. R. R. Muir, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock, moved that Chief Deacon be authorized to purchase the equipment as soon as possible, at a cost of approximately $800.

Mr. Deacon informed the Council that it had been necessary to replace the pump on the auxiliary truck, as it had burned out at the Rodger fire.

Rent for the fire station was increased from $75 to $100 a month, with a one-year lease, provided that the town have the full use of the station. This was granted.

A request of a $2,000 donation from the corporation to the St. Justine Hospital Building Fund was turned down, as Mayor Dr. Jules Lafleur stated, "We are still hoping for the badly needed hospital promised for Lachute three years ago, and our money is being kept for the building."

"I am sure", he added, "that at least 90 per cent of our French children go to hospital in St. Jerome, and a similar percentage of the English to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal.

"The Provincial Income Tax was levied last January for schools and hospitals, and it is my opinion that the money obtained should go to buildings and projects such as this, so as the organizations will not have to ask various municipalities for assistance," the Mayor concluded.

According to figures received, the hospital gave approximately 1,000 days of hospitalization to people from Argenteuil County in 1953.

The police report for August and September was read (published elsewhere on this page).

A request from Bell Telephone Company to move a pole from Muir Bros. Service Station to Bethany Road, and to lay an underground cable from this pole to the new post-office was accepted, under the supervision of the Road Committee.

A letter was read from the Canadition National Institute for the Blind expressing appreciation for the use of Victoria Hall as a campaign headquarters. It was moved by Ald. D. G. MacRae, seconded by Ald. Alcidas Laurin, that the C.N.I.B. Association be granted $100 towards its objective.

It was decided to ask for more demonstrations from various companies before purchase of traffic lights be further considered.

It was moved by Ald. Réal Morrissette, seconded by Ald. L. Gibeault, that sidewalks on the St. Andrews Road be made as soon as possible.

It was decided that a registered letter be sent to Jean Lemay, contractor, ordering him to open the ditch in front of his house on Evelina Street within seven days, or else it will be opened by the town and charged to him.

Tenders for electric installation, heating and plumbing, and windows for the new civic building were called for, the tenders to be in the hands of the secretary-treasurer as soon as possible.

A representative of the Sicard Motor Company was present at the meeting with an 8-ton Sicard truck costing approximately $15,350 with all the equipment needed. It was moved by Ald. MacRae, seconded by Ald. Réal Morrissette, that tenders be invited from local garages, to be in the hands of the secretary-treasurer within 10 days.

Simon Valois presented a plea on behalf of Ayers Limited, requesting approval to reduce the width of a projected street from the regulation 66 feet to 57 feet — the street to be built from the rear of the Ayers houses on Brownsburg Road to the main thoroughfare.

Following a thorough discussion, it was moved by Ald. D. G. MacRae, seconded by Ald. W. Cousineau, that the matter be tabled.

It was decided to obtain legal advice in the matter of Roland Denault, who, not having received a building permit, refused to halt construction on his house.

Waterworks

Plans for Roy Street, Grace Street and the Carrière development are to be sent to T. O. J. Lafrenière Health Department engineer, for approval — after which, the Council will look into the borrowing of money for the projects.

It was moved by Ald. J. E. Charlebois, seconded by Ald. A. Laurin, that the Council approve a subdivision bearing No. 2277 belonging to the Lachute Lumber and Millwork Ltd. Four building permits were also granted to this company, the sewer and water pipes being already installed in that area.

Accounts totalling $9,269.97 were approved for payment.

The meeting was adjourned sine die.

Blood Clinic Committee Takes Stock, Makes Notes for Procedure in 1955

The final committee meeting of the Argenteuil Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic was held at the home of Lachute chairman, Léopold Carrière, last Thursday evening, with representatives from Brownsburg and Lachute present.

Suggestions for the improvement of the 1955 Clinic were the main topics of discussion — the committee deciding to stress personal contact throughout the County rather than the mailing of folders, as less than 2 per cent of the cards were returned this year.

"In order to do this, we are going to need an army of organizers to contact the people in their homes," said Mr. Carrière. "With these canvassers, we will be able to break up the town and surrounding district and, in this manner, exploit the competitive angle of the campaign."

It was decided to try and enlist these district organizers early enough so as they could be given an instruction course in Lachute or Brownsburg, and possibly visit the Montreal Red Cross transfusion headquarters.

It was decided that the donor cards would be simplified, and handed out and collected personally, as was done in St. Andrews East by Mrs. F. A. Hungerbuhler this year.

The suggested opening of a campaign headquarters, where all citizens could obtain more information and where a preliminary blood donor demonstration could be given, was approved by all present, as were other minor items.

Several names were mentioned for the 1955 chairman, with a proposal that the next year's campaign be held a little later in the year.

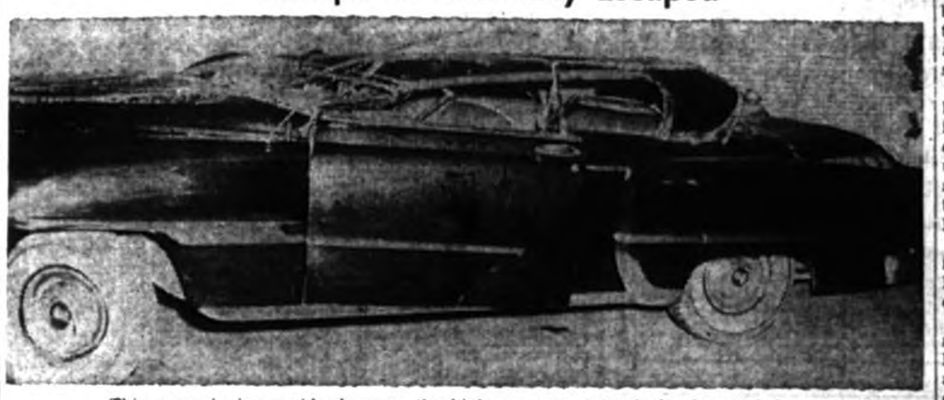

Mrs. Howard Watson, on behalf of the Lachute Red Cross Unit, of which she is president, conveyed a vote of thanks from the organization to Mr. Carrière and his committee, for a good job well done.

In closing, and thanking his committee, Mr. Carrière read the following telegram:

"Sincere felicitations for your wonderful clinic, and pass on my thanks to all who contributed.

— (Signed) General E. J. Renaud."

Occupants Narrowly Escaped

This car, spinning upside down on the highway, was extensively damaged last Saturday evening en route to Montreal. The occupants, Mrs. René Laurin and Mrs. Raymond Laurin, of Lachute, escaped with a shaking but no serious injury. Occupants of another car, with which it collided, also escaped unhurt. — Photo by Syd Drew

Car Upside Down Spins Like Top On Highway

Hockey-match plans for two local residents came to an abrupt end Saturday evening, when a 1954 DeSoto coupe, driven by Mrs. J. René Laurin and owned by her husband, went out of control on Route 8 several miles east of Lachute.

According to Traffic Officer Howard Jones, who investigated, the car was headed towards Montreal, where the occupants, Mrs. René Laurin and Mrs. Raymond Laurin were going to the Montreal-Boston hockey game.

The car swerved out of control into the ditch just past Cleland's corner, veered back onto the wet, slippery pavement, then turned over and spun a considerable distance along the highway on its top, which was crushed practically level with the hood.

Another driver, Lionel McMartin of Hull, accompanied by his wife and two children, was approaching. When he saw the car spinning like a top on the highway he pulled his car completely off the road on the right hand shoulder, where it was hit by the Laurin car, which turned it over on its side. Occupants of both vehicles escaped injury.

The McMartin car was damaged to an extent of $125, while damage to the Laurin car is estimated over $2,000.

Charges of residing and operating a motor vehicle in Quebec, the vehicle bearing Ontario plates, failing to carry his registration, and failing to have his car transferred, were laid against the Hull driver.

Series of Robberies At Morin Heights

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — Three robberies have been reported to Police Director Charles Baumel, of Morin Heights, who commenced preliminary investigations, turning the cases over to Provincial Detective Maurice Lamoureux, of Lachute.

The three houses entered were occupied by Mrs. M. Urquhart, Charles Shafter, of Montreal, and M. Cramer.

GOOD WALKER

Toronto (CP) — Mike Chambers, 74, walked from Toronto to Oakville and back — 60 miles — just to prove he could do it. Arriving home after the two-day trek his only comment was: "My feet are sore."

DAIRY DEMAND

Calgary (CP) — Recent district sales showed the demand for good dairy cattle continues in southern Alberta, including both purebreds and grade animals.

Kilmar - Marelan Employees, Local 145 Held Successful Banquet and Dance

Over 350 members and their wives, of the Kilmar Magnesite Workers' Federal Union, Local 145, attended a banquet and dance at Montana Inn on Saturday, October 2. Gib Pearson, president of Local 145, acted as chairman. Local 145 is affiliated with the Federal Union of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada.

Among guests at the head table were the Hon. Wm. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, and Mrs. Cottingham; Réal Bastien, an official of the Trades and Labour Congress, from Ottawa, and Mrs. Bastien; Mayor Gilbert Arnold and Mrs. Arnold, from Grenville; Mayor Stanley Cavanaugh, of Grenville, and Mrs. Cavanaugh; Clifford Perry, General Works Manager of Canadian Refractories Limited, and Mrs. Perry; Pierre Perrault, secretary-treasurer of Local 145, and Mrs. Perrault; Roger Leblanc, Recording Secretary, and Mrs. Leblanc; Dr. Roger Seguin, Company doctor at Kilmar, and Mrs. Seguin; Gerald Carrière, vice-president of Local 145; Mr. and Mrs. Linton Armstrong, of Lachute; John Campbell, storekeeper at Kilmar, and Mrs. Campbell; Mr. and Mrs. Laurent Brunet, of Calumet; and M. MacTavish, plant steward at Kilmar.

Other guests included Mervin Pearson, Leo Ralston and Claude Pousson of Local 880, the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers International of Bryson, Que.

C-I-L Hosts to Technical Group At Brownsburg

Montreal — Some 35 members of the Montreal section, American Society for Quality Control, visited the C-I-L ammunition plant at Brownsburg last week to study its statistical quality control system.

During the seminar following the plant tour, Harold Barber, industrial engineering supervisor, Brownsburg works, said that "S.Q.C." — statistical quality control — plays a vital role in many industries today particularly in the manufacture of articles like ammunition where the end product must be perfect in every respect.

Mr. Barber recalled the important part statistical quality control played during the last war when "S.Q.C." demonstrated dramatically how it could save lives by assuring the quality of materials used by our armed forces. Its performance during this crisis ensured its post-war acceptance by industry.

Basically "S.Q.C." takes figures such as measurements or weights at each stage of an operation and translates them immediately into graph form so that a continuous and almost instantaneous check is available on all operations in the factory.

The graph is not unlike a cardiograph of the human heart. "S.Q.C. does for a factory what the family doctor does for you", Mr. Barber said. "It keeps it in good shape and indicates when corrective measures should be taken to prevent trouble."

At the dinner at the Lachute Golf and Country Club following the tour, John Pringle, chairman of the Montreal section of the American Society for Quality Control, expressed the group's appreciation to C-I-L and to L. W. Thompson, works manager, for the opportunity to examine a full-scale statistical quality control program.

Lady Speaker On Men's Topic, At Rotary Club

It is an infrequent occasion when the Brownsburg Rotary Club has the pleasure of hearing a lady speaker, especially one who can speak with authority on the subject of Agriculture. But such was the occasion last Thursday, when Mrs. George McGibbon was introduced to the audience by Mac E. Walker.

Mrs. McGibbon, well known locally for her activity in community affairs, presented a picture of the farmer generally, as the most important figure in a world of continual food shortages.

In opening her topic, Mrs. McGibbon went back to the days of our ancestors, explaining that in most cases farming was not their vocation, but rather their "way of life", that few of them had been farmers before coming here, and knew little of it; that in many cases starvation had been the deciding factor in bringing them to our shores. This lack of knowledge of farming, said Mrs. McGibbon, had caused our farms to be exploited — the soil robbed — the forests ruthlessly cut — the lakes and streams emptied of fish — yes, even our maple forests have been cut to the extent that our maple syrup industry is fast disappearing.

Mrs. McGibbon proceeded to explain how the farmer today had a big job on his hands. He had to get his land back into a state of fertility, to guard against erosion, carry out a reforestation plan, and improve his pastures.

The speaker went on to say that food is our greatest weapon today — that if we are to fight Communism, Democracy means nothing to starving people. "We are proud," she said, "that Canada's production ranks among the highest in the world, and we know we have surpluses of grain and dairy products, but we must remember that the history of civilization and agriculture show that due to war and weather the margin between want and plenty can wear very thin." . . "Canada cannot remain an island of prosperity in an ocean of adversity." The speaker then went on to explain how we must help other countries to help themselves.

Many people look on our farmers as the care-free, pampered citizens of Canada, but the speaker here explained some of the unpleasant things the farmer had to face up to; he must learn to take the good with the bad and bury last year's disappointments with the spring break-up.

Mrs. McGibbon said she was proud to have been a farmer's daughter, and to have been brought up on a farm. She cited some of the mistakes of present-day farming and stressed that each day there was something new to be learned. Farming today, she emphasized, is a highly competitive, scientific business.

In closing Mrs. McGibbon remarked: "May the farmer continue to plant in hope — cultivate in faith — and, even though failure is his lot, may he start over with greater hope and stronger faith; for who knows, it may be written in the book of Destiny that we Canadian farmers, by supplying food for the hungry, shall play a major role in the salvation of world civilization."

Mrs. McGibbon was thanked by Norm Somers.

Other guests, in the persons of Mr. A. F. Hanley and Mr. George McGibbon, were introduced by Jack McKimmie. President Fred Royal was in the chair.

Moose and Bears Seen at Avoca

(Our District Correspondent)

Avoca — The family of Hugh Bates had the thrill of seeing a moose quietly grazing with their cattle last week. The animal soon disappeared into the woods when it discovered it was attracting attention.

Another strange incident occurred at Pointe au Chêne when Allan Brown picked a bowl of lovely wild strawberries, and shortly after his return to the house, two bears came along to enjoy the remaining strawberries and blossoms.

* * *

Firemen Battle Stubborn Blaze In Hay Barn

For 10 hours through Tuesday night, firemen poured water on the blazing barn of David Harrington, Willows Farm, on the St. Jerome road (R.R. 3, Lachute) in an attempt to douse the smouldering hay stored in the loft of the large building.

The call was received at 3.40 p.m., and the truck and a crew of men arrived on the scene a short time later, followed by other members of the brigade.

Water was directed on the burning building until almost 2 a.m. Wednesday, the supply being drawn from a large swimming pool just a short distance away.

The farm is under the management of Russel Silverson, who, along with the other employees, managed to remove all livestock from the building before the blaze became too fierce. Two streams of hose were laid from the main line, by means of a Siamese coupling. A good section of the building was saved.

The fire crew answered another call to the same place around the same hour Wednesday, following another outbreak in the smouldering hay. They remained on the scene for several hours.

Gatineau LINES

Lights Out?

WHAT SHOULD YOU DO? . . . FOLLOW THESE STEPS EACH TIME:

1. Find out if your neighbors' lights are out too. If they are not, it is quite likely that the trouble is in your own wiring.

2. Pull the main switch and examine the fuses. If a fuse is burned, look for the cause. It may be due to too many appliances on the same circuit or due to defective appliances or the cords. It may be due to a short circuit in the wiring. Be sure to find out the cause as a burned fuse indicates trouble somewhere.

3. If there is lightning or heavy winds in the district and your neighbors' lights are out, it is probably due to trouble on the Power Company lines.

Wait for a few minutes to see if the power is restored; if not, call the local office of the Power Company and report the trouble.

4. If it is a clear day, the Power Company may be working on the lines, a car may have struck a pole or someone may have felled a tree over the lines. Wait for a reasonable time to see if service is restored. If it is not, please report your trouble to the local office of the Power Company.

By reporting directly to the Power Company you are taking the most effective method of correcting the trouble.

"I see you telephone people always use wood preservative on your poles. Think I should do the same thing when I build my fence?"

"Yes, it's a good idea. We've found at Bell that it saves us plenty on repair and replacement costs. That's why we treat telephone poles against rot; why we keep our trucks clean and in good repair; why we put up exchanges and offices to last.

Says Rural Priests Should Attend Agric. Course, Give Farm Leadership

London, Ont. (CP) — Young men training for the Roman Catholic priesthood should spend a year at an agricultural college if they are destined for rural parishes, said the associate director of the extension department of St. Francis Xavier University, speaking in London, Ont.

Before 250 delegates attending the Catholic Social Life Conference in the Catholic Culture Centre, Alexander Laidlaw, of Antigonish, N.S., said that the rural pastor must give leadership in farming communities.

Outlining the church's role in immigration and land settlement, Mr. Laidlaw said that if the church neglects rural areas, Christianity will be delayed thereby, in fulfilling its destiny.

He refuted the "too common belief" that most immigrants should be settled on the land. "If we settle all our newcomers on the land, we are only investing in grief and discontent.

"We need artisans and tradesmen, doctors and professional men, industrial experts, especially for smaller industries." He went on, "We need all these before we need more on the land."

One in every four newcomers goes on the land at present, he said. This is too great a proportion, he claimed. One in five would be better.

Mr. Laidlaw debunked the poetic view of life on the land, held by many. "The truth is that the farmer has, in times of war, generally been up against it. A survey in the United States recently showed that only 34 cents of the consumer's dollar goes back to the farmer."

Referring to the food surplus, the speaker said it was good to send food to starving nations, but "you can't solve the problem of a hungry India by putting more people on the land in Canada. Nor can Canadian agriculture solve centuries of social injustice in other lands."

A tractor is not designed to do stunts. Safe driving is more important because of the high centre of gravity and reduced manoeuverability.

Watch Out For Fluorine Poisoning

At the recent annual convention of the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association held in Ottawa, Dr. D. G. Dale of Macdonald College presented a paper on Fluorine poisoning of dairy cattle. The information was the result of a study conducted during the past year by Dr. Dale of the Department of Animal Pathology and Dr. E. W. Crampton of the Department of Nutrition.

Veterinarians were advised to be on the look-out for symptoms of this type of poisoning which can result from the feeding of mineral supplements that contain too much fluorine. The authors have discovered a number of affected herds in the Province of Quebec, and feel that the problem may be more widespread than is at present realized. They suggest that the solution to the problem may be the enactment of legislation that limits the amount of fluorine present in animal feeds.

The more easily recognized symptoms of chronic fluorine poisoning in cattle are a marked staining and pitting of the incisor teeth frequently accompanied by recurring attacks of lameness.

Farmers would be well advised to consult their veterinarians if such symptoms are present in their animals.

Plowing Match Abandoned Due to Continued Rain

Annual Dance Planned, With Square Dance Competition

The directors of the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association, at their last meeting on October 11, decided that, in view of the continued wet weather it is no longer possible to continue with plans for a match this year.

The directors regret having to postpone the match, but they see no possible way to hold a successful match in the face of the weather obstacle this year, to say nothing of the physical difficulty in trying to operate so many tractors and teams in one field, with the ground in such wet condition as it is in this region.

The directors wish to thank Leslie Tomalty for offering his field this year, in spite of the fact that it would have been badly cut up had it been used in such wet weather and unfavorable conditions.

In spite of the cancellation, the Association is planning to hold a dance in the Lachute Legion Hall on Friday, November 5, where it is hoped that all will be present and forget the wet weather for one night at least.

In connection with the dance, a square dance competition is to be held, and all sets wishing to compete are requested to leave the name of their set captain with any director, or with the secretary, Robert Douglas, preferably before the night of the dance.

Anyone wishing further information about this competition may contact a member of the dance committee — Bud MacGeorge, Watson Berry, William Brass, or the secretary.

Int'l Plowing Match On Television

At the 41st International Plowing Match which opened Tuesday, October 12, on the farm of John Randall at Breslau, just south of Kitchener, two CBC television cameramen are on the grounds to record the happenings for CBC-TV viewers, and CBC radio is carrying actuality broadcasts direct from the CBC booth to October 15, the closing day.

The TV cameramen are covering events throughout the Match for the CBC News and Farm departments. The film for the Farm department will be used on the new television program for farmers, scheduled to begin at the end of the month.

The radio productions have been arranged to include two performances by "The Craigs", (October 13 and 15), while farm commentator Norn Garriock conducts interviews daily with visiting plowmen and reports the result of events.

CBC International Service has its microphones at the Match as well, recording interviews and reports for transmission overseas.

First Chute Jump Saves Pilot's Life

—Central Press Canadian

First parachute jump in the career of RCAF Flying Officer Daniell Grummett of Thornbury, Ont., was made when his Silver Star jet plunged earthward from 7,000 feet near Portage La Prairie, Man. He pressed his ejection seat button and was thrown into the air. Falling through space was no sensation at all, he says, but when he found his parachute had not opened, he began to worry. He managed to release his parachute and floated to earth unharmed. A student pilot in the plane jumped safely ahead of Grummett.

Appeal for Food Donations For Orange Prot. Home At Rosemere, Que.

Once again the L.O.B.A. 943 are issuing their annual appeal to the farmers and citizens of Argenteuil County for donations of food for the Orange Home at Rosemere, Que.

This Home is kept up by donations sent to the Home Committee by various organizations and individuals. Every fall its supporters hold what is called "Pound Day", which this year is being held October 23. On this day it is aimed to supply the Home with potatoes, vegetables and canned foods, etc., for the winter months.

If any readers feel they could spare a bag of potatoes or vegetables, or some of that good food they canned from their garden, anything in the line of edibles that children might like — please advise the Orange ladies before October 23, and such donations will be gladly accepted.

The L.O.B.A. wishes to thank all who have generously donated in the past, and it is hoped that this year the appeal will go over bigger and better than before.

Any who wish to donate something to this worthy cause, kindly telephone 359, Lachute.

Canada's first highway was the road between Montreal and Quebec, built early in the 18th century.

emphasis to the richness of the land, rivers and lakes which were in the process of development. It was pointed out that we had more power than all the other provinces put together, which was a great asset and would mean more and more industries in the future, besides those already settling in the province.

In all this mining development there have been many hardships endured, for all equipment had to be flown in and much of the heavier machinery transported through snow before reaching its final destination. At Milady the ore is mined and by diesel engine and modernly-equipped cars shipped to Seven Islands, where it is weighed, graded and automatically switched. After being dumped it passes through a roller crusher on to a travelling belt, which carries it to the boat ready for shipment.

University graduates are being used along with experienced geologists and engineers, and while living conditions are not to be compared with ours — with little vegetation, some caribou moss and very few trees — yet towns are starting up and progress of lay-out and future development is well under way. All of this comes under supervision of the Ministry of Mines.

In transporting copper, zinc and pyrites at Chibougamau the ore is kept warm to prevent freezing by passing the exhaust through the box — another new idea.

The Johns Manville Company have immense interests in asbestos mines, and are now working on a three-year project to drain Black Lake, under which there are valuable deposits.

Millions of dollars are being spent by different companies, gambling on the finding of valuable ores in this northern district, and steady progress is being made in development.

Summing up, Mr. Cottingham thanked all present for the kindly reception and expressed satisfaction that the County of Argenteuil is having a part in the development of the Province of Quebec.

Mr. S. Rodgers, in thanking Mr. Cottingham for his presence and inspiring address, paid tribute to his talents and congratulated him on his appointment. Reference was made to former leaders with whose names his would now be added — men who had given service for our county — they were the names of Abbott, Perley, Dansereau and McGibbon.

Refreshments were served, and a pleasant hour was spent in renewing acquaintances.

TEARS DOWN HOUSE, FINDS RARE COINS

Barney's River, N.S. (CP) — Anything's likely to turn up when you tear down a house and when J. R. Johnstone tore down an old family home here he uncovered two old coins under one of the window sills.

The first was a penny token of the Province of Nova Scotia, dated 1832 and the other was a St. Helena halfpenny dated 1821.

The home Mr. Johnstone tore down was built by his great-great-grandfather Ferguson back in 1849. The family had emigrated to Nova Scotia shortly before then and settled here.

The St. Helena coin is especially interesting in that it is dated the same year Napoleon died on the island.

"He charged nothing for his call . . . but it saved me lots of hard cash over the years"

"When I first thought of life insurance, I looked only at the size of the premiums I'd have to pay. Then a man from The Mutual Life of Canada said: 'Premiums aren't everything. A well-managed company pays its policyholders good dividends. Premiums less dividends — that's the real cost of your insurance.'

"I studied the dividend record of The Mutual Life and decided to take all my insurance with that Company. It has certainly paid me. That helpful young man charged nothing for his advice — but it has saved me lots of hard cash over the years."

Such Weather

IN THE WORDS of one facetious forecaster, "we are threatened" with an interval of sunshine as these lines are written. But too late; for once the editor feels himself on safe (if soggy) ground in roundly condemning the weather.

Things may indeed change for the better, they usually do, when this column ventures a comment 24 hours before press time. Nevertheless, everyone is thoroughly disgruntled. The farmer whose crops are still ungarnered, kernels sprouting green ere they reach the thresher. The holiday-maker who met disappointment, in July, August or September, regardless of his considered selection of the most promising date. The builder, the lumberman, the gardener — all whose pursuits and hobbies are practiced outdoors. The picnics postponed, the field days abandoned. And now the last straw comes with the cancellation of the annual plowing match — that usually pleasant interlude for farmers, 'twixt harvest and winter chores, in the mellow atmosphere of a crisp, sunny autumn day. Such fantasies!

Little use to complain. No doubt the continued rain will bring its compensations. But we may be pardoned for a glump and a gloop in cheerless accord with the season. Our keenest sympathy is with the farmer, may he contrive to take things philosophically.

Your Newspaper

THE EARLY Roman forum was a public place or a market place in a city, the centre of judicial or public business.

Its modern-day counterpart is, of course, your newspaper, in whose columns the minds of many men converse, and where an equal number of ideas are debated.

Through this means of mass communication, many ideas gather followings, becoming championed ideals, and sometimes liberties.

While your free press, symbolized here by your newspaper, has aided in the birth of the many liberties we call freedom, it serves also to protect these liberties by exposing those who would curb or destroy them.

The free press — your newspaper — is certainly freedom's forum.

But, as we liken this newspaper to the early Roman forum, we must go a step beyond and credit those who have made it possible for our modern counterpart to play such an important role.

The early forums were supported to an extent by the tariffs or rents paid by the merchants who displayed their wares there. Today's merchants aid in the financial operation of a newspaper through their purchase of advertising space.

Besides these similarities, we would fail to recognize the full importance of these forums to our liberty, were we to neglect our standards. Yes, uniform standards are fundamental to the successful commerce and industry that has helped to guarantee our freedom.

It was in the Roman forum where uniform standards for weight and measurement were first evolved. Newspapers, too, have played an important role in establishing uniform standards used in auditing, reporting and measuring circulation audiences.

In 1914, newspapers joined with advertisers, advertising agencies and periodicals in establishing a bureau of circulation standards — the Audit Bureau of Circulations — for the advertising and publishing industry.

The Lachute Watchman plays an active role as an A.B.C. member in voluntarily upholding and maintaining these circulation standards which are so important in our relations with our advertisers. Important, also, to the editorial quality of our paper.

The Watchman is proud of its part, in association with other newspapers, in earning the slogan, "Your Newspaper — Freedom's Forum."

Unemployment Here Lowest Since 1952

ACCORDING to figures released by G. A. Downing, manager of the local National Employment Office, the number of persons seeking work here, is at its lowest point since June 1952.

Latest available reports show that, at the end of September, only 272 persons were registered as seeking work, among whom are 96 women. These favorable statistics reflect the fact that poor weather has delayed many construction projects and builders are rushing completion before colder weather sets in.

A number of our farm workers have been directed to the prairie districts where a shortage of harvesting hands is experienced every year at this time. The harvesting of western grain is an extensive operation. Huge machinery such as combines, powerful tractors and trucks commence early in the summer as far as southern Texas and carry on reaping northward, following the ripening of various crops, and end up in the northwestern part of Canada. As a shortage of workers develops in each area, experienced farm hands are moved in to help with the work. Some of our local men have benefitted from this factor and are presently at work in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Those who were directed by the National Employment Service were allowed part of their fare to Winnipeg and further passage was wholly subsidized.

The Watchman gives emphasis to an observation by Mr. Downing, the local manager — that many suitable young ladies could be placed as maids in private homes, but for one reason or another have not realized that their services are in great demand by congenial families. With winter approaching and less income, large families will consider advising daughters to enter this type of work, which turns out to be profitable in the long run.

Voted as Free Men

WHEN auto workers at Studebaker's big South Bend, Indiana, plant were asked by management to take a pay cut to avoid the necessity of shutting down the plant, they bluntly rejected the proposal.

A few days later the same employees voted overwhelmingly in favor of accepting the reduction in pay in order to enable the plant to remain in operation.

Why?

There are a number of possible explanations for the change in attitude. The most significant, however, is that while the first vote, rejecting the pay cut proposal, was taken by a show of hands, the second was the result of a secret ballot in which voting machines were used. The vote in favor of continued employment with a reduction in "take home" pay was 5,371. Only 626 employees voted to reject management's proposal.

Experience at the Studebaker plant at South Bend is compelling evidence of the good judgment of trade union members when they are free from the fear of invoking the wrath of their union bosses.

". . . and don't forget to buy Canada Savings Bonds."

Mr. Mosher Talks Sense

By Lewis Milligan

President A. R. Mosher, in his presidential address to the Canadian Congress of Labor, gave some commonsense advice to his fellow labor leaders. He warned them against the folly of excessive wage increase demands which he said could only result in pricing industrial workers out of employment. Mr. Mosher has held a prominent position in the labor movement for many years and should know from experience what he is talking about, but his advice was rather belated. If it had been delivered only a few months or weeks previously it might have dissuaded certain unions from insisting on their annual demands for wage and other increases at a time when high costs and prices had led to a general decline in sales of their products. Even a schoolboy with a knowledge of simple arithmetic could have told those union leaders that an increase in costs and prices would result in a further decline in sales, a curtailing of production and fewer jobs for union members.

But the convention over which Mr. Mosher presided declared that "wage increases expand markets, production and employment." That is utter nonsense on face of it, for it is tantamount to saying that if we could only raise the costs of production we could produce and sell cheaper. Higher wages would increase the cost of production, followed by higher prices, which would in turn cancel out the increased purchasing power, and would certainly reduce the selling-power of the products in both home and foreign markets. And that is what Mr. Mosher meant when he warned against pricing itself out of employment by excessive demands.

In the last analysis, the only way to maintain and increase employment is to maintain and increase trade. Merely to increase purchasing power by means of higher wages or by government subsidies would lead to inflation, which in the end would devalue the purchasing power of all wages and savings. We have seen the effect of inflation during and since the war when wages and prices were doubled and trebled, until the hundred-dollar Victory Bond and the thousand - dollar insurance policy are today not worth, in buying power, half of what we paid for them ten or fifteen years ago. That is one of the casualties of war from which we cannot recover, so far as the value of the pre-war dollar is concerned. But we can do our best to stabilize and even increase the value of our present incomes and savings by sensible co-operation between organized labor and industry.

The CCL convention called attention to the unemployment situation, but its recommendation for a reduction of working hours with the same take-home pay would not provide work for the unemployed; it would at once increase production costs per man, since an industry would have to pay for thirty hours work the same price it was previously paying for forty hours. This extra cost of labor would inevitably put more men out of employment.

Moreover, while the convention was urging the government to do something about unemployment, many of its local unions were threatening and preparing to put thousands more out of work by means of strikes. Whatever may have been the rights and wrongs of those labor disputes, the workers were employed, and the purchasing power of their wages, to say the least, was sufficient to provide for their needs. By ordering a strike a union creates an unemployment situation, depriving its members of all purchasing power. Mr. Mosher might have given some good advice on that point, but refrained.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

October 17, 1879 —

The boys around town are patiently awaiting the approach of Hallowe'en, while spotting out the good places to secure cabbages and other vegetables.

Advertising is a good thing — but, when a prominent grocer recently carried to a funeral an umbrella on which was painted conspicuously the business of his house, and held it over the clergyman's head while he read the prayer, the bystanders thought he was overdoing the thing.

Dr. H. J. Burwash, of St. Andrews East, after receiving all possible degrees in his profession in England, sailed from Liverpool on Thursday to make Canada his future home.

Mr. Sheefer, of Ottawa, was down this week for the supposed purpose of choosing a site for the proposed new post office. It is a speculation as to whether the building will be erected at all, as there is much controversy as to the position.

At the Liberal convention held in the Court House, Lachute, on Monday last, Mr. Thos. Christie was unanimously chosen as the candidate to represent the Liberal interests in this county for the Commons.

On Tuesday last, the Liberal-Conservative Association met in the Victoria Hall and, by a standing vote, proclaimed Mr. G. H. Perley as the unanimous choice of the county to represent the Conservative interests in the present campaign.

Both meetings were well attended.

Two of our town boys are now in St. Jerome pending trial for an assault committed on Mr. Geo. Therrien, hotel keeper, last Saturday night. It is alleged they struck Mr. Therrien in an endeavor to secure his money, which fortunately had been handed over to his wife a short time previously.

The family of Mr. J. D. Lemay received a great scare on Saturday when, at one o'clock in the morning, they were awakened by two men prowling around their premises and acting in a strange manner. Mr. Lemay fears burglarious intent, as this is not the first occasion.

ALL ABOARD
With G. E. Mortimore

Travellers like to remember where they have been. Sometimes they like other people to know, too, without boasting aloud. So they leave the steamship labels on their suitcases, or fasten stickers on their car windows to inform the home town they have stared over the edge of Mosquito Canyon, got soaked (pool and cash register) at Tepid Springs, and trailed a line in Nofish Lake.

In some tourist resorts, the proprietor fixes a placard on your car bumper advertising the place, without asking your leave. He is trading on your desire to show people where you have been.

One way to retaliate would be to say nothing at the time, but to send him a bill when you reached home: "Displaying one bumper card on car for 600 miles at 10 cents a mile, $60. Advertising accounts must be paid promptly. Please remit by return mail."

But nobody forces the traveller to put on window stickers. They are campaign medals which he awards himself. And they stick in place through the winter, bright souvenirs of warm days. A real enthusiast will keep them on his windows until he sells the car. In some cases a collector may try to steam them off and transfer them to his new car.

The only difficulty about window-label collecting is that you have to leave some space to see through when you drive, and that interferes with the hobby to some extent. You don't have to leave much space, of course. Some collectors believe that four square inches of clear glass in the windshield directly in front of the driver, and none at all on the rear or side windows, is more than enough.

"Well, judge", a traffic offender might say in his own defense, "there was a grizzly bear coming at me from the left, a buffalo charging from the right, a covered wagon on my tail, and a mountain peak directly ahead. It wasn't until I had crashed into the parked car that I remembered that these things were just pictures on window-stickers."

Once all the windows of the car are filled with stickers, it might be wiser to treat the car like a scrapbook on wheels, and keep it permanently in the library at home.

Thinking Back 57 Years in Local Living Conditions

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — I was talking to one of the original settlers in Brownsburg recently, and he pointed out how we moderns take our conveniences for granted. He was thinking back 57 years to the time his aunt was being buried in Lachute. He said it took the horses an hour and a half of slipping and sinking on the mud road to travel the 3½ miles between the villages. And he pointed out that you can drive the distance lawfully in five minutes today, yet half the populace try to make it in two minutes.

Henry Graves was the old-timer in question, and he went on talking about electric stoves, refrigerators, oil furnaces, radio and television, and the necessities of this modern age that previous generations just had to do without.

"You take building a house," he said. "When I was a boy, it took a year to build a decent house. Nowadays, they put up a house, yes, and with an automatic heating system and all the kitchen cabinets and gadgets, in a few weeks."

He went on to recall working in the bush in the nineteenth century when a good man would cut a cord of wood in a day, then the horses would haul it at 2 miles an hour. "Today," he said "you can cut it with a chain-saw, put it on a truck and deliver it in three hours. — Aye, and take the horses along for the ride."

Next time you reach for the phone, step into your car, or turn on your TV — spare a thought for the inconvenient life of our predecessors.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THIS GOOD BUY: YOU CAN'T GO WRONG ON THIS ONE

"Most people have an eye for a good buy," said Donald M. Hay, manager of the Bank of Montreal's Lachute branch, "but just the same, there are probably some who will miss the best buy of the year." He was referring, of course, to the new issue of Canada Savings Bonds, now on sale at his office.

"Once in a while a man will make a poor buy — it happens to us all," Mr. Hay continued, "but you can't go wrong on a Savings Bond. Not only do the bonds carry a good rate of interest — 3¼ per cent in fact — but the government guarantees to redeem them for the holder at any time, at full face value, without loss — plus interest to the end of the previous calendar month.

"You just can't ask for anything fairer than that," Mr. Hay said. "Furthermore, the bonds can be purchased by instalments if you haven't the ready cash. Only $2.50 down for a $50 bond, $5 for a $100, and the balance in easy instalments over a year."

If you want to end up next year with a nice little "nest-egg", this is a safe and sure way of achieving it. Mr. Hay invites you to drop in and arrange for yours at any time. But don't leave it until too late — you can't afford to miss out on such a good thing.

WHEN SHOULD YOU START FEEDING A PIG?

Many breed their sows, feed them barley or oat moulie, middlings, shorts or what-have-you on the farm, and wonder why they get a poor or small litter!

That is just the same as giving a man so many boards and telling him to build a barn; he can build some sort of a small barn with boards, but to build one that will be of any use he must have more than boards. The same with your sow. She has to have lime and phosphorous to build bones; proteins to make muscles, blood, hair, hooves, etc.; fat to make flesh; vitamins for growth, etc. If your sow doesn't get enough of all these to farrow ten pigs, she just doesn't! She reabsorbs those that she cannot feed. You get only what you fed her to produce. If you fed her well, you will get a good litter of large pigs; if you haven't you can expect a small litter or small pigs.

At the Purina Farm, from records of 1,100 pigs of same breeding and living conditions, where weight at birth was the only difference, they found that — of pigs weighing up to 2 lbs. at birth 52% died before weaning time and the survivors averaged 31 lbs. at 9 weeks. Those weighing 2½-3 lbs. at birth were 86% alive at 9 weeks, and weighed 37.4 lbs. Those weighing 3.1 lbs. or more at birth were 89% alive at 9 weeks and averaged 40½ lbs. each.

IT PAYS TO FEED YOUR SOW FROM BEFORE SHE IS BRED UNTIL AFTER THE PIGS ARE WEANED. Feed her SOW AND PIG CHOW complete or supplement, depending on your home grains, if you want good litters of big pigs; and feed the litter PIG STARTENA from 2 weeks of age on. . . Order your needs today; we deliver.

KELLY — In loving memory of a dear mother, Minnie Kelly, who passed away Oct. 21, 1950. — Sadly missed by Harry, Euphemia and Jonathon.

" 'Tis sweet to remember a mother so dear,
Though absent from us, she is ever near;
Unseen by the world, she stands by our side,
And whispers, 'My loved ones,
Death cannot divide'.
This day we do remember,
A loving thought we give,
To one no longer with us
But in our hearts still lives."

KELLY — In loving memory of a dear mother, Minnie Kelly, who passed away Oct. 21, 1950. — Always loved by Lorna Gordon.

"Those we love we never lose,
For always they will be Forever near, forever dear,
In cherished memory.
We often think of bygone days
When we were all together;
The family chain is broken now,
But memory lives forever."

LANGILLE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, who passed away Oct. 12, 1934. — Always remembered by Mother, Dad, sisters and brothers.

"Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all."

McLEOD — In loving memory of dear Mother, Hannah Andrews, who passed away Oct. 18, 1949. — Ever remembered by the family.

"Five lonely years have passed away
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that day
We still remember well.
We never knew what pain you bore,
We did not see you die,
We only know you passed away
And couldn't say goodbye.
We think of you so often,
Your name we oft' recall,
But all that is left to answer us,
Is your picture on the wall."

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Gordon R. Tomalty, who passed away Oct. 14, 1945. — Ever remembered by his loving wife and family.

"We cannot know God's purpose,
But there will come a day
When God will make us understand
Why you were called away."

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Gordon Robert Tomalty, who passed away Oct. 14, 1945. — Ever remembered by his mother and sisters.

"Oh, what a meeting there in the skies,
No tears nor crying shall dim our eyes.
Loved ones united eternally;

$125 ZENITH HEARING AID BETTER BUY THAN AIDS AVERAGING $268!

SCIENTIFIC TESTS PROVE that the Zenith—priced at less than ½ as much—offers equivalent performance for ½ the average operating and upkeep cost!

United States Testing Company, Inc.
(America's foremost private, independent testing laboratory)

ZENITH "ROYAL-T" $125.00

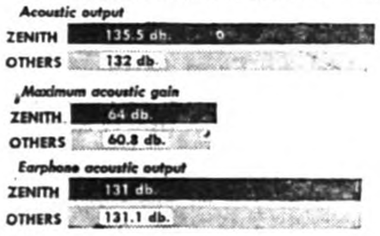

BRAND "A" BRAND "B" BRAND "C" BRAND "D" BRAND "E"

$268.00 average price of these other five makes. Individual prices range from $229.50 to $295.00!

ZENITH has always said you can pay up to $300 or more but you can't buy a finer hearing aid than a Zenith. To support this statement, Zenith requested the United States Testing Company to purchase on the open market two Zenith Hearing Aids and two of each of America's five foremost competitive brands of transistor hearing aids, and to test them thoroughly.

Each of the instruments was subjected to a series of rigorous tests for quality, performance and economy. The results, contained in Report No. E-9158, dated September 13, 1954, tell us:

1. Despite the huge difference in price, U. S. Testing Company reported, "The Zenith 'Royal-T' was equal to the other 5 brands in design, choice of materials and components, and in workmanship."
2. Here's how Zenith compared with the average of the other five brands in bringing you a full measure of acoustic power performance:

3. The 3-transistor Zenith "Royal-T" cost $18.93 less to operate per year than the average of the other aids tested.
4. The Zenith "Royal-T" registered less objectionable noise due to clothing rub than any of the other five brands.
5. Based on a five-year overall cost projection—involving initial price, battery replacements, etc.—the $125 Zenith "Royal-T" will serve you for substantially less than ½ the cost of the average competitive aid.

You can try the "Royal-T" at home, work, church, theatre, anywhere, on Zenith's famous 10-Day Money-Back Guarantee. One tiny 18c battery operates the "Royal-T" for 30 days.

And here's important news! Zenith has recently introduced the smallest, lightest hearing aid in its history—the tiny, tubeless, 3-transistor "Royal-M." Only $100! Same power and performance as the "Royal-T." Prices include ear conduction receiver and stock earmold.

For a free demonstration, see your nearest Zenith Hearing Aid Dealer. He is listed in the classified phone directory. Or write for free literature and local dealer list: Zenith Radio Corporation of Canada, Ltd., Dept. 1165 Tecumseh Rd., East, Windsor, Ont.

You are cordially invited to become a regular reader of THE WATCHTOWER.

A magazine with a circulation greater than any other religious magazine in all the world! The amazing number of 1,825,000 copies of each issue in forty languages are distributed and eagerly read. And why do people, regardless of religious affiliation, obtain and read it? The answer is found on considering

The Purpose of The Watchtower

Literal towers in Bible times were elevated vantage points from which watchmen could observe happenings, warn of danger, or announce good news. Our magazine figuratively occupies such a vantage point, for it is founded on the very pinnacle of wisdom, God's Word. That elevates it above racial, national and political propagandas and prejudices, frees it from selfish bias. It is not bound by any traditional creed, but its message advances as the light on God's purposes and works increases.
— Habakkuk 2:1-3.

It sees things Scripturally. When it observes this generation afflicted with greed, delinquency, hypocrisy, atheism, war, famine, pestilence, perplexity and fear, and persecution of unpopular minorities, it does not parrot the old fable about history repeating itself. Informed by Bible prophecy, it sees in these things the sign of the world's time of the end. But with bright hope it also sees opening up for us just beyond these woes the portals of a new world.

Thus viewed, "The Watchtower" stands as a watchman atop a tower, alert to what is going on, awake to note signs of danger, faithful to point out the way of escape. It announces Jehovah's kingdom established by Christ's enthronement in heaven, feeds his kingdom joint-heirs with spiritual food, cheers men of good will with glorious prospects of eternal life in a paradise earth, comforts us with the resurrection promise for the dead.

It is not dogmatic, but has a confident ring in its voice, because it is based on God's Word. It does not privately interpret prophecy, but calls attention to physical facts, sets them alongside prophecy, and you see for yourself how well the two match, how accurately Jehovah interprets his own prophecy. In the interest of our salvation, it keeps sharp and faithful focus on Bible truth, and views religious news generally.

"Be watchful in these perilous times", God admonishes. So keep on the watch by regularly reading "The Watchtower".

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the Jewish nobleman, cupbearer to the King of Persia, who received permission from this ruler to go and direct the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem? This nobleman asked some of his countrymen who had come to the Persian court about the Jews and their beloved city. They replied, "The survivors there who escaped exile are in great trouble and shame. The wall of Jerusalem is broken down and its gates are destroyed by fire."

On receiving this sad news, the nobleman wept and fasted and prayed. He asked God's forgiveness for his people's failure to keep the commandments of Moses. Then he pleaded with God to help him.

The King of Persia perceived that all was not well with his cupbearer, and he asked the nobleman, "Why is your face sad, seeing you are not sick?" The nobleman told the King about his sorrow over the state of the walls of Jerusalem. Then the King answered, "For what do you make request?" Then, with a prayer in his heart, the Jewish nobleman asked the King to let him go back to rebuild the walls there. The King not only granted him leave for a definite time, but he also gave him letters requesting safe passage to the governors of the provinces through which he would have to travel on his long journey of almost a thousand miles. The ruler also gave him timber for the beams of the gates and for the walls and for his house.

The nobleman at last reached Jerusalem. At night, when everyone slept, he mounted his horse and rode all around the city to examine its ruins. Then when he knew the extent of the rebuilding needed, he gathered the discouraged Jews in around him. He inspired them with enthusiasm for the rebuilding project, telling them God had heard his prayers. The people responded and got to work at once.

Their enemies round about mocked them, and later threatened to attack them. But the nobleman directed them to take their arms with them to the place where they worked on the walls. If the trumpet blew, they were to gather to fight. Some workmen toiled with a sword at their side and others held a spear in one hand and mortar in the other. The impending danger speeded them at their labor. In fifty-two days, the walls were rebuilt, the gates were hung, guards were stationed, Jerusalem was now in a position to rise from weakness to strength. The nobleman called all the Jews throughout the whole land to assemble in the open place before the Temple to be enrolled and to worship the Lord. Read the story of this nobleman in the first seven chapters of Nehemiah.

Old Brownsburg Resident Succumbs to Illness

Late Mrs. John Anderson

Death came after a lengthy illness to Lillie Anderson, at the Power Convalescent Home for the Aged at St. Philippe d'Argenteuil, on Saturday, October 9.

The late Mrs. Anderson was born at Uckfield, Sussex, England, on January 7, 1883, and she emigrated to Canada in the year 1915. She was married to John Anderson, then resident of McMasterville, Que., at Montreal in October, 1915. She moved with her husband to Brownsburg in 1923, where they have resided to the present date.

The funeral service was held on Monday at St. George's Anglican Church in Brownsburg, the Rev. C. B. Lang conducting. Interment was at the Brownsburg Protestant Cemetery in Lachute. Pall-bearers were David McCulloch, John McCulloch, Gordon Todd, Andrew Montgomery, Ernest Castle and Sid Stilwell.

Those from out of town attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. James Harper, of Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. George Izzard, of Drummondville, Mrs. Elsie Beeching (niece), of St. Hilaire, and Mrs. Violet Sheel (niece), of McMasterville.

W.I. Plans Auction

The members of Lachute Women's Institute are once more displaying their interest in social welfare. On learning that plans are being made for the formation of a local branch of the Association for the Help of Retarded Children in the Province of Quebec, Inc., the Institute members decided to raise funds for this worthy cause by organizing a "white elephant auction sale", to be held on the premises of E. W. Albright & Sons Reg., 440 Main Street, on Friday, October 22.

A number of interesting articles have already been donated for this auction. The Institute are eager to make this event an overwhelming success, and all material (other than clothing) suitable for sale will be greatly appreciated by the Finance Committee. It is also hoped that as many people as possible will attend the auction.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Thanksgiving Service At Lachute United

Despite the holiday week-end, there was a good congregation at Lachute United Church for the annual Thanksgiving service on Sunday, October 10. The church was very tastefully decorated with fruit, flowers, corn and vegetables.

The choir, under the direction of J. F. Gorman, gave a very effective rendering of "Thou, O God, art Praised in Zion", with Miss Janet McOuat as soloist. Wayne Riddell was at the organ, and the minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, delivered an appropriate Thanksgiving message.

After the service, gifts of fruit, flowers and vegetables were distributed to the sick and shut-ins, by Mrs. Albert Giles and Mrs. Wilson Bridge.

Thanksgiving Hymn

For the bounteous harvest, Lord,
Thy great Name should be adored.
For Thy goodness, Thee we praise,
Songs of thankfulness we raise.

In the lovely Autumn time,
When the landscapes are sublime,
With Thy wonders we are thrilled
And our hearts with joy are filled.

All around us we can see
Visions of Thy Majesty,
Hills and trees and fields and glade
Magnify the One who made.

In the silent atmosphere,
Thy melodious Voice we hear.
And our hearts are tuned to sing,
Unto Him Who is heaven's king.

Telling forth Thy wondrous power,
The Rouge River hour by hour
At Arora's waterfalls,
For our worship loudly calls.

Unto Thee, the living God
By Whom good gifts are bestowed,
We our grateful voices raise,
Singing songs of thankful praise.

Significance of Harvest Stressed in Thanksgiving At St. Matthew's, Grenv'l

Grenville — The Harvest Thanksgiving service at St. Matthew's Church last Sunday morning was attended by over 86 people.

Members of the congregation had been thoughtful in sending the "pick of the crop" in fruit and vegetables, which were heaped in front of the altar rail. The harvest of the bush was also represented by specimens of soft and hard woods, a display of rayon cord, cellophane, dyed rayon and sponge, along with pulp for paper, which come from numberless loads of pulp wood which cross the Perley Bridge from this district. (These two excellent forestry exhibits were kindly loaned by the C.I.P. Company.) On the altar itself were homemade bread and dark blue grapes, the last gladioli of the season, and tiny sheaves of oats.

The rector in his address pointed out the significance of the harvest of the field, the bush, the mine, the dairy, the flock, as well as the hive (for one parishioner had given a generous gift of honey). "A true sense of thanksgiving to God for the many fruits of the earth is a necessity today, for many seek material things for their own use only, and are often spoiled — themselves as well as their goods. But Christians realize that all material things, as well as themselves, belong to God and, in the long run, can be used happily for God's purpose only."

Reference was also made to our most precious harvest — our children, our family connections, our friends and neighbors, who read what we are rather than what we say, and absorb our attitude to God and to material things by what they see in us.

Joan Copeland, Lachute, Weds Gerald Boone

Miss Phyllis Joan Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Copeland was married at her home, Fraser Avenue, Lachute, on Saturday, October 9, at 3.30 p.m., to Mr. Gerald William Boone, son of Mrs. J. S. Boone and the late Mr. Boone, of Grand'Mere.

The living room was decorated with standards of pink and white gladioli, the fireplace mantel having a low arrangement of matching glads with white candles on each side.

The Rev. C. R. Lang performed the ceremony, and during the signing of the register Mrs. Robt. Blakely sang "O Promise Me."

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a strapless gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over taffeta, cocktail length, with long-sleeved matching bolero. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a handmade petal cap of matching lace. She wore a wrist watch, the gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Mary Lou Prosser was bridesmaid, wearing a strapless gown of peacock blue nylon net, cocktail length, with a matching short-sleeved bolero and a small peacock blue feather hat. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The best man was Mr. Fred Crooks, of Grenville, Que.

Mrs. Copeland, mother of the bride, wore a cocktail-length gown of dawn grey imported lace over smoke rose taffeta, with grey accessories to match and grey fur stole, her corsage being of deep pink roses. Mrs. Boone, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in a dress of minktone taffeta. She wore dark brown accessories and a corsage of bronze Talisman roses.

The reception was held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club, where standards and baskets of multi-colored gladioli were used for decorations.

Following the reception, the newly-wed couple left by car for Washington, D.C., the bride travelling in a charcoal grey woollen suit with pink feather hat and navy accessories — wearing a corsage of pale pink Sweetheart roses. On their return they will reside in Hawkesbury, Ont.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Andrews and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Andrews, of Montreal, uncles of the bride; Mrs. R. G. Andrews, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Harding and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Harding and family, Mrs. J. Williamson, all of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bubie, of Shawinigan Falls, Que.; and Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Tierney and family, of Cornwall, Ont.

Brownsburg Girl And Lachute Airman Pledged Vows Recently

Scott - Tomalty

On Wednesday, October 6, at 7.30 p.m. in the Brownsburg United Church, Beverley Lillian, daughter of Mrs. Howard Tomalty and the late Mr. Tomalty, was united in marriage to LAC. Roland Manly Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Scott, of Lachute.

The Rev. G. W. Bruce officiated at the candle-light ceremony, and Mrs. Cedric Wheeler played the wedding music. The church was decorated with baskets of multi-colored gladioli, the guest pews being marked with white satin bows and gladiolus blooms.

Escorted by her uncle, Mr. K. W. MacGibbon, the bride wore a white ballet-length gown, the full skirt of nylon tulle over taffeta, and the bodice of Chantilly lace with three-quarter length sleeves. A lace Juliet cap held her fingertip veil of tulle illusion, and she carried a white Bible covered with red Sweetheart roses with streamers of white satin and white sweet peas.

Miss Marion Mason, as maid of honor, wore a blue ballet-length gown, the full skirt of nylon tulle over taffeta, and a matching lace jacket with long sleeves. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations and wore a headdress to match.

Miss Brenda MacGibbon, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, wearing a floor-length gown of white embroidered organdy over pink taffeta, with full skirt, and with a ruffled neckline and deep pink velvet sash. She carried a nosegay of blue carnations, and wore a headdress to match.

Mr. Robert Duncan, of Lachute, was best man. Mr. Melvin Tomalty, brother of the bride, and Mr. Clifton Scott, brother of the groom, were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a turquoise blue corded silk suit, black velvet picture hat, black accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a grey and rose corde silk taffeta dress, small black velvet hat, black accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

Closing Tourney, Prize Presentation At Golf Club

The season's closing tournament at Lachute Golf and Country Club was held Saturday followed by a well attended dinner, concluding the organized golf activities.

Sixty-eight of the 85 entries turned out in the rain for the Mixed Two-Ball championship over the 18-hole course, the following coming out with the best low nets:

1 Mrs. B. Legge and Roger Gravel; 2 Mrs. A. R. Cote and E. Mueller, tied with Mrs. Shirley Reid and L. C. Thompson.

A gathering of 175 members and guests attended the dinner, followed by the presentation of prizes to the winners of the closing tournament, as well as replica trophies to the Club champions for the different classes.

Club Handicap Championship — Art Lapp, presented with a replica of this trophy (a painting of the 14th hole). Runner-up, Oswald Carrière.

Club Championship — W. J. Thompson, presented with a replica of the trophy (a barometer). Runner-up, Laurier Carrière.

Winner of the Junior Championship, a new trophy donated by Mrs. Leonard Ayers — Marcel Raymond. Runner-up, Bruce Cairns.

In making the presentations, Royal Carrière made mention of the Ayers Cup and Ladies' Section Championship won by Bernice Ogilvie, and the Drew Trophy Handicap Championship won by Jean Ogilvie. The latter trophy has been won three years by the same family, Bobby, Bernice and Jean Ogilvie, respectively.

The annual closing dance will be held Saturday, October 30 — dancing to commence at 9.30 p.m.

Badminton Club To Reopen Activities

The Lachute Badminton Club will start its playing season next Tuesday, October 19, in the High School gymnasium, at 8 p.m. The old stand-bys and enthusiasts will welcome new players.

"CORDIAL" TAX TALK, SAYS DUPLESSIS

—Central Press Canadian

At the end of a conference with Prime Minister St. Laurent in Montreal, Premier Duplessis evaded a direct answer to the question: "Will there soon be good news for the taxpayers of Quebec?" He said the meeting had been cordial and would lead to "satisfactory results." Belief is that the rebate on Quebec's provincial taxes by the federal government may be increased from five to seven and one-half per cent., which could be the first step in revising the entire tax agreement between all the provinces and Ottawa.

SPORTS AND JUVENILE ACTIVITIES

Hockey League And Sports Projects In B'burg Spotlight

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Sports activities were in the news this week in Brownsburg. In bowling at the Social Club, it was announced that René Laurin, of Lachute will award weekly merchandise prizes and seasonal prizes of $50 to the Men's and Women's high singles, on behalf of Dow Breweries. He will also provide the Club with a scoreboard.

The Social Club this year intends to back a basketball club for members and sons of members. Jim Labelle and his associates intend to organize a clinic for youngsters and a team for teen-agers and up, to enter in local competition.

* * *

The ice company intend to lay the pipes this week-end at the rink, and the machinery will be installed in the very near future. There seems little doubt now that Mayor Donaldson's campaign will provide a concrete floor right at the outset. The opening date is expected to be early in November — not too far behind the October 20 date which was tentatively scheduled.

* * *

In hockey, a league meeting was held at the Legion Hall. Ronald Hebert, of Brownsburg, was installed as the new president, and Gaetan Malacket, of Lachute, as secretary - treasurer. Mr. Lafrenière, of Hawkesbury, who was not present, was designated as 2nd vice-president.

Hawkesbury asked permission to employ six instead of three imports. Their plea is that their players don't want to play for them, preferring to play for L'Orignal or Vankleek Hill. It was considered by the League that their problem was at present strictly domestic, and in the meantime the request was rejected.

L'Orignal asked to have three players, who live in Hawkesbury, but who have become identified as L'Orignal men, considered as such. This gives them freedom to employ four more from Hawkesbury and four imports. The League, recognizing the difficulty of operating a team in a town of 690, granted the request on condition that the four new Hawkesbury players be obtained only after the pre-season series.

As regards the formation of the League, representatives from Alexandria, Vankleek Hill and Maxville were present, and indicated their interest in joining. However, their own league, which is on the verge of collapse, will decide their future on Monday, October 18, and they stated they would give a difinite "Yes" or "No" answer at next Tuesday's meeting.

A pre-season series was tentatively drawn up, and J. J. Dupré of Lachute promised to donate a cup to the winner of this series. The games will be run off in late November. If there are only four teams in the league, names will be drawn and two best-of-three series will be arranged. A final best-of-three series between the winners will decide the resting place of the cup. In the event of a six-team league, two series would be played. Three teams would play at Alexandria and three at Brownsburg, each team playing each other in the section once. The winners of the two series would meet in a home-and-home total-points contest.

Canada's population increased by 201,000 in the first six months of 1954. Immigration in the period amounted to 85,765.

Week-End Events By Ski Club At Morin Heights

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The turkey shoot held under auspices of the Morin Heights Ski Club last Sunday afternoon proved a decided success, both from a financial and entertainment point of view. All prizes were donated by public-spirited citizens of this locality.

Winners were as follows:

1st Shoot — Don Steele, H. Fish, J. Rolland.
2nd Shoot — F. Wade, C. MacDonald, C. Fair.
3rd Shoot — B. Murdoch, F. Wade, J. Bourque, R. Trick.
Ladies' Good Luck Target — B. Cameron, Pat Moore.
Bellevue Trophy — W. Darrold, B. Lightbound.
Men's Good Luck Target — C. Fehr, C. Ellis, A. Tabbitner, E. B. Murdoch.

The main shoot, which included a 1954-55 membership to the Morin Heights Ski Club, also provided 15 prizes for men and three for ladies. Winners in order of merit were:

Men — Don Steele, P. Baumel, W. Darrold, H. Fish, B. Newcombe, F. Kneeland, A. Basler, J. Bourque, D. Page, K. Andrews, R. Basler, P. Rolland, J. Askerman, J. Basler, R. Trick.
Ladies — Betty Cameron, Doreen Elder, Susie Smith.

The first race of the season will be a cross-country this Sunday, on foot from St. Sauveur to Morin Heights. Transportation to the starting point at St. Sauveur will be available at the Bellevue Hotel, at 1 p.m.

Immediately following the finish of the race, there will be a general meeting of all club members with members of the Viking Ski Club, at which time an executive will be elected from both clubs to work jointly during the coming season under the name of the "Viking Ski Club of Morin Heights". Time of this meeting is 3 p.m., at the Bellevue Hotel.

Veteran Official Retires from Hockey

SPORTS CAMERA
By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Art Ross, the man generally credited with making hockey a big-time sport in the United States, has ended his active association with the game.

Manager and guiding genius of the Boston Bruins since they entered the National Hockey League 30 years ago, Ross at 69 officially handed over the job to Lynn Patrick, who will also continue as coach until veteran Milt Schmidt ends his playing career.

Ross, one of Canada's outstanding players in the early 1900s — was named to hockey's Hall of Fame some years ago — and later an official, was enticed to Boston by the late Charles F. Adams when he organized the Bruins, first U.S. team in the NHL.

Had Many Good Players

That was in 1924 and four years later Ross produced the first of his three Stanley Cup winners. Holding the dual post of manager and coach, the fiery mastermind welded together a club that had such stalwarts as Cecil (Tiny) Thompson in goal, the great Eddie Shore and Lionel Hitchman on defence, and such forwards as Dit Clapper, Cooney Weiland, Dutch Gainor and Cy Denneny.

Ten years passed before the Bruins again captured the Stanley Cup. Only Shore and Clapper remained of the hard-checking club of a decade earlier. The 1938-39 champions had Frankie (Zero) Brimsek in the nets, Jack Crawford and Flash Hollett among the defence corps and Bill Cowley and one of the finest forward trios ever porduced — the Kitchener line of Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart — spear-heading the attack.

That club stayed virtually intact for the next two years and tucked away the Stanley silverware in the 1940-41 season, downing the Detroit Red Wings in four straight games in the final.

Ross, known affectionately as "Uncle Art" to the Bruins organization guided the club to the play-offs in 24 of the 30 years he was at the helm.

His successor, Lynn Patrick, played for the New York Rangers for 10 years and became the Ranger coach in the 1948-49 season. The Bruin management lured Patrick away from the New York club the next season with the promise of eventually replacing Uncle Art.

Patrick, 42, will continue the onerous chore of manager-coach until Schmidt — at 36 the oldest player in the league — decides to hang up his skates. The way he has been cavorting the last few years, he may go on for years yet.

The Kitchener, Ont., product is heading into his 16th season with the Bruins and still is the team's top centre and sparkplug. He holds down a regular pivot spot and can still handle extra duty on power plays when his team has an advantage in manpower.

Schmidt has been told the coaching spot is his when he wants it. As long as he stays in good shape physically, his fighting spirit will probably keep him in the playing ranks.

Sports and Social News From L.H.S.

By Jackie Murdoch

Basketball has started again at Lachute High School. Last week the different teams were chosen and practices are being held each afternoon after school. It appears as if it will be another good year in basketball for Lachute. The senior girls have a strong team and the senior boys' team is the best that has ever represented L.H.S. The senior boys played an exhibition game on Saturday against the De LaSalle junior basketball club, at the Mount St. Louis gymnasium in Montreal. Although they lost 60 to 48, it was a very close and exciting game. Melvin Tomalty was top scorer with 26 points, also Wayne Berry played a very good game at guard. Brent Steele and Ken MacTavish worked very hard and both of them displayed some excellent ball handling. On the whole the team played a good game considering they had very little practice together.

A reminder to all sport fans. You do not have to go to Montreal to see good basketball. Here in your own town you will find top-rate basketball players, and we hope that everybody will be out to see the teams when they play.

The season opens with the two Intermediate teams playing league games with Hudson, Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill. The senior teams will be playing exhibition games until Christmas, after which they will enter a league with Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill and St. Eustache.

Most home games will be played on Friday night — the double-headers starting with the girls' game at 7.15 p.m.

CURRENT SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

American Pianist, Joseph Battista, For Community Concert October 25th

Joseph Battista, brilliant young American pianist whose successful career was launched by a series of prizes, will appear here on the first Community Concert program of this season, October 25 at Lachute High School.

Born in Philadelphia of parents who had come to this country from Italy, he started winning prizes at school and kept right on. He won a scholarship for the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music, his first contact with Olga Samaroff who, until her recent death, was his teacher, guide and friend.

Finally his biggest chance came and, oddly enough, through Columbia Concerts. With a record of awards and fellowships, Joseph Battista spent two months in 1941 touring Brazil as musical emissary of his country. His success was outstanding everywhere. The Diario de Noticias reported: "He has honorably accomplished the mission that was confided to him."

On the threshold of international recognition, the pianist returned home. Pearl Harbor came, and before too long Battista was in uniform. At the time of his discharge he was Corporal Battista, Music Director at Camp Lee, Virginia.

In 1952 Battista returned to Brazil for a triumphal tour, when a cheering public hailed him as "a truly noble and great pianist."

Battista is a concert favorite of two continents. His most recent New York appearance, in the spring of 1954, led the New York Herald Tribune's Paul Beckley to write, "Joseph Battista's playing was quite brilliant and easily the most convincing performance." Harriett Johnson of the New York Post said, "Names like Joseph Battista spell an artistic standard. . . Battista was by far the most exciting artist, earning some well-deserved bravos. . . "

Farm and Garden Show Planned Soon for TV

In the near future, CBC-TV will inaugurate a weekly show on interconnected stations in Ontario and Quebec, devoted entirely to the interests of farmers and gardeners in this region of Canada.

To be seen at midday on Sundays, the show will be the forerunner of a CBC-TV farm and garden service which will eventually serve the whole country with regional programs concentrating on regional interests. By the end of the year, it is hoped to extend the service to the Prairie and Pacific regions, and by next spring to the Maritimes.

It will be a half-hour show divided equally betwen farm and gardening interests. The commentator on the farm section will be Norn Garriock, already well-known to CBC radio listeners as the farm commentator heard each weekday in the CBC's noon-hour farm radio show for Ontario and Quebec.

Garriock will present a variety of regular features on every show, leading off with a visual presentation of the weather, pointing up meteorological information of particular value in farm operations. The "meat" of the farm telecast will be a feature of the "how-to-do-it" variety — employing films or studio demonstrations to explain new techniques and describe scientific advances in the field of agriculture. After that there will be a bulletin of farm news, highlighting information on farm activities in various parts of Canada, as well as in the U.K., the U.S. and other countries. Finally, there is to be a farm market report presented in such a way as to help the farmer understand and appreciate the variations in quality or grade of his products, in relation to the market as a whole.

The second half of the show, for gardeners, will be a studio production introducing different gardeners who will deal with the practical side of their work. Demonstrations and films will be used, in relation to seasonal activities in the garden. For the first 13 weeks, the gardener will be Earl Cox of Toronto.

Addressing a recent Farm Forum gathering in Quebec, Keith Morrow said "TV offers almost ideal conditions for the promotion of agricultural practices."

GHOST VILLAGE — By Ethel Kettyle

Many times we may have read or heard of "Ghost Towns". These towns are usually thought of, or actually are, towns with empty houses and tumbled-down buildings, left deserted after a "boom" of some sort. But this village was not a boom village. It was just a friendly little valley, where people had lived and worked, had raised families and educated them, had attended church, and lived much as people do today.

This short article might be called a "flashback", for many years ago this little place came into being. It was situated about four miles off of the main North Shore highway, between the cities of Ottawa and Montreal. Of course, at that time the highways were not paved as they are today, and naturally there was not the incessant stream of traffic, for then there were no cars.

Lying between two ledges of the Laurentian Mountains was the little hamlet, with the Nation River (tributary of the Ottawa River) flowing through its very centre. A part of the river was calm and tranquil, while the other part flowed over huge rocks and stones, making it into a roaring cataract which afforded marvellous water-power, and here, a century or more ago, mills had been built . . . and the appropriate name of North Nation Mills had been given to the place. There was erected a large general store and post-office combined, and finally, a school, blacksmith shop, creamery, a boarding house and a number of residences, and in later years, a church.

Practically all the buildings were owned by the one company, namely the W. C. Edwards Company. The people were interested in a happy social life, as well as their work, and skating and hockey were favorite pastimes in the winter, as well as parties and the annual Christmas tree.

In summer, the younger folk played softball, swam and rowed on the river. The annual picnic and lawn socials were also events looked forward to. The white church on the hill was responsible for a great deal of the social life, as well as the religious life of the community.

Then, in the past half-century, people from surrounding farms began to sell out and move away. The W. C. Edwards Company sold out completely to the Singer Company, and finally the Singer Company sold to another company; and in the past quarter-century, the village people also moved out, so eventually the village, with its marvellous water-power, was deserted.

The mills had previously been burned down, and finally the bridge, which joined the two parts of the village, had been swept away by spring torrents. Then the houses, one by one, were sold, torn down and moved away. The village was indeed a "Ghost Village". Only the roaring cataracts and the hills, which were wooded with pine birch, spruce and maple, were left in their primitive state. But one lone building, "the church", still stood brave and alone on top of the hill, overlooking the valley. Probably people were reluctant to tear down this one building, because it had played such an important part in the lives of the residents.

As years went by, some of the former inhabitants went back to the old home place, during holidays, and one night a startling little event took place.

The church, having been emptied of all interior equipment, was now occasionally used as a summer shelter for old home-loving campers. On this particular night a number of people, who had made the empty church comfortable with camp-beds and other furniture, were entertaining other friends who had come back. It was a bright, moonlight night, with only the chirping of the crickets and the roar of the waterfall to be heard, and the place almost seemed haunted, if not by ghosts — by memories of the past.

The moon shone through the church windows, and the interior, with its shadows and patches of moonlight, gave one an eerie feeling. An owl hooted weirdly from a tree-top and made the shivers run up one's spine. Apparently more than one person lay awake, and thought of the past — and into this reverie came the figure of a woman, seemingly robed in white, slowly and silently making her way up to where the altar had formerly stood. With faltering footsteps she pressed on, and when she finally reached the front of the church, she slowly raised her arms and apparently removed some object from the wall, which she seemed to wrap into something which she carried. Was it a ghost? . . . Or was there no such thing? . . Was it some one from the past?

In the morning as the group sat in the open, one lady guest casually remarked that the ticking of the clock had kept her from sleeping, so she had made bold enough to remove it from the wall and had wrapped it in her sweater. No one spoke, but went right on eating the hearty breakfast which had been prepared for them. The mystery of the "ghost" had been promptly solved!

Recently many former residents have motored back to what they thought of as their old homes, and found that there was not one building standing, for finally even the church was sold and torn down. Not a sign of even a foundation could be seen, with the exception of a few bricks and stones where the creamery had stood beside the river. Grass and trees had grown up, and the place seemed like a wilderness in its primitive beauty. But for those who had lived there, memories came flooding back, and they thought of friends and neighbors who were scattered, and of many who had passed on. Because of the verdant growth along the river, they could not even locate where their own homes had been, or where the sidewalks had been built.

However, now in the year of 1954, one may go back and see a new gravelled street, and a new, modern concrete bridge over the mighty falls, built recently by the Provincial Government. And again we realize the work of man — tearing down, and building up. Will there ever again be homes and life in that little valley, where now only the birds sing, and the squirrels leap from branch to branch, and the woodchucks burrow into the hills?

Two diplomats, a Frenchman and an American, dropped into one of London's most popular French restaurants, and the chef told them his trouble in trying to get British customs to release a shipment of Burgundian snails intended for his establishment.

"Why don't you declare them as horned animals?" the French diplomat suggested.

The American, even better versed in Customs proceedings, said, "Maybe they could go as prefabricated housing; then you won't have to wait for foot-and-mouth inspection."

TEACHERS TOTAL HIGHER IN N.B.

Fredericton (CP) — New Brunswick's superintendent of education, Dr. F. E. MacDiarmid, says that while the province's schools have more students this year, the teacher shortage has eased somewhat. He hopes for further improvement next year.

The number of local licensees (persons without a regular teaching license) is slightly less than during the last year because 260 recent graduates of Teachers' College now are employed in the schools. Nearly 400 student teachers are being trained at present, indicating an even better situation for next September.

FAMILIAR BELL

St. Michel des Forges, Que. (CP) — A bell cast in 1875 that rang from the belfries of St. Jospeh church and the convent of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary in Maskinonge, has been moved to the new St. Therese chapel of this community near Trois-Rivières.

Cheese Festival Month

This is Cheese Festival month in Canada, and homemakers have probably seen all the beautiful magazine advertisements there are for cheese. No doubt they have heard about it on radio programs too. But, it seems that Canadians need to be told over and over again that they should eat more cheese. It does seem strange that here in Canada we produce two products which are said to be among the finest in the world — cheddar cheese and fish — yet our consumption of both is very low. Probably it is just the old story of not appreciating what we produce at home. One of the home economists of the Consumer Section went to visit a large Eastern fair this fall and she was amazed at the huge displays of imported cheese. Do we have to import cheese to get our own people to eat this good dairy product? Let us hope not, because our own cheddar cheese is excellent. Why do we seem to be ignoring it? Naturally we have to import some cheeses, for some of the foreign types are not made in Canada. However, when shopping let us consider our own cheese first and buy it as a regular staple.

At this same exhibition that the home economist visited the Department of Agriculture was featuring "Cheese 'Round the Clock". There were three large clocks and two small clocks. One large one was set at 8 a.m. for breakfast, a second at 12 noon for lunch and a third at the dinner hour, 6 p.m. The two small clocks were set at tea time and at snack time. Below each clock was featured a variety of cheese dishes that could be served at the meal. Homemakers were certainly interested in this display and they crowded around to look at it and to get ideas. They all complimented the home economists and said, 'What good ideas you have given us!" Now you probably never really thought of cheese as a "round the clock food," but it is you know.

If you conscientiously feel that you would like to use more cheese in your familys' meals, here are some ideas from the home economists for serving cheese at every meal. Let us start with breakfast. So many people ignore breakfast or else just have juice and coffee, that we wonder why? Naturally, time is often a factor, but could it be that many adults have become tired of breakfast. In so many homes breakfast is the same everyday, probably cereal, juice, fried or poached egg, toast and a beverage. If we had the same lunch or the same diner every day we would indeed get tired of it too. That is why the home economists are trying to help homemakers put variety in their breakfasts, and cheese is right there to do its part. They suggest a cheese omelet — it is easy to make and very tasty. Or perhaps an open-faced egg, bacon and cheese sandwich made by simply placing a fried or poached egg on top of a piece of toast, sprinkling with plenty of grated cheese, then topping with some diced bacon and slipping under the broiler for a couple of minutes until the cheese melts and the bacon broils. Then too a little grated cheese added to scrambled eggs give a different flavor. Cheese pancakes are another favorite with most of us.

Cheese fits in with the toast or rolls too. If you really love cheese then of course there is no need to mention how good it is spread on breakfast toast and topped with jam or marmalade. Cheese muffins or cheese tea biscuits are also good for breakfast and a welcome change from the usual toast.

When the clock strikes twelve many a worried homemaker is thinking — what can I serve for lunch? Having to prepare different meals every day can be quite exhausting at times — exhausting especially where ideas for menus are concerned, and luncheon or supper seems to be the greatest headache. Have you ever tried using this idea — the home economists of Canada's Department of Agriculture mention that they find it helps many a harried housewife. There are seven luncheons to prepare each week and there are seven, shall we say "types of luncheon foods". First there are the hot dishes made with eggs, secondly those made with cheese, thirdly those made with meat, fish or poultry and fourth those made with vegetables. Then you also have salads, sandwiches and soups. If Mrs. Homemaker will just try and base her luncheons around any one of these each day of the week, she should not have any trouble. There are literally hundreds of ways you can prepare each of them. Look at any cook book and you will find there are all kinds of egg dishes such as souffles, omelets, French toast, eggs à la king, scrambled eggs with diced meat or vegetables and a host of others. Now to see what luncheon dishes can be prepared with cheese! Of course, it must be remembered that each of these main foods can be combined with one or two of the others. For instance the omelet mentioned might be a cheese omelet, or the eggs might be in a cheese sauce rather than a cream sauce. Considering the real cheese dishes, there is always the old standby macaroni and cheese. Then there is cheese puffit, cheese souffle, cheese, fondue, cheese rarebit, cheese casseroles and toasted cheese rolls. There are also some of the well known foreign cheese dishes like Lasagna, Gnocchi, Ravioli and so on. Recipes for many of these dishes can be found in almost any good cook book. Then too there are the soups that make excellent luncheon dishes, onion soup with parmesan cheese sprinkled on top and potato and cauliflower soups with cheese in them.

Now to think about cheese for dinner — to start with — the appetizer. What could be easier and tastier than little crackers with cheese and icy cold tomato juice. It is simple enough and there is such a variety of Canadian made cheese that a different one can be served everyday of the week. Then the main course — the vegetables might be served with cheese sauce or the main dish may be a casserole topped with cheese. The side salad could be made with cottage cheese or cream cheese or it may have diced cheese in it. And for the dessert what could be better than cheese cake or rosy red apples with cheese, or some juicy pears and need we remind you — with cheese.

Cheese Puffit

12 Half-inch slices stale bread, ½ pound cheese (sliced), 4 eggs, 2 2/3 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and paprika.

Arrange slices of bread in alternate layers with cheese in greased baking dish. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and seasonings and pour over the bread. Cover and keep in the ice box until ready to bake. Place in a pan of hot water and ovenpoach in a moderate oven, 350°F., until set, about 45 minutes. If thoroughly chilled before baking, the puffit will puff up like a souffle.

Yield 6 to 8 servings.

Cheese Bread

2 Cups liquid (water, milk or potato water), 1 cake compressed yeast OR 1 tablespoon fast-rising dry yeast, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespon salt, 6 cups all-purpose flour, 3 tablespoons shortening (melted), 2 cups grated cheese.

Seald liquid, then cool to lukewarm. Soak yeast in ¼ cup of the lukewarm liquid. Dissolve sugar and salt in remaining liquid and add to yeast mixture. Add 1½ cups flour, beat well and add melted, but not hot, fat, blending thoroughly. Add remaining flour, mixed with the cheese, making a stiff dough. Toss on a floured board and knead well. Place in a large, greased bowl and let rise until double in bulk. Knead slightly, shape into loaves, cover and set in a warm place to rise until double in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°F. about 1 hour. Yield: 2 1½ lb. loaves.

Fruit Perfection

1 Teaspoon gelatine, 1 tablespoon cold water, 1 4-oz. package cream cheese, ¼ cup salad dressing, dash of salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 cup whipping cream, 2 cups diced fruit (drained).

Soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Mash cheese with fork and beat until smooth. Beat in salad dressing. Add dissolved gelatine, salt and sugar. Whip cream and fold into cheese mixture. Add fruit, pour into moulds and chill or freeze until firm. Serve on crisp lettuce. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Let's Eat

BY

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"This service of chicken a la king is both unusual and attractive," remarked the chef when we were lunching out one day.

Flaked Chicken

"The chicken evidently was sliced thin, then flaked into bite-sized pieces. There are plenty of mushrooms, just enough green peppers and pimientos, and the sauce is not pasty, but has a real chicken flavor. It was made partly with chicken stock.

"I especially like the way the chicken a la king is served in the heated low casserole, with a nice hot, rich baking powder biscuit in the centre, and a sprig of parsley on top.

A La King Sauce

Melt 3½ tbsp. butter in a quart saucepan. Add ½ diced green pepper, and ½ cup shredded canned or fresh mushrooms. Saute until softened.

Then stir in 2 tbsp enriched flour, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. monosodium glutamate, and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Gradually stir in ½ cup chicken broth, and 1¼ cup homogenized milk or 1 cup milk and ¼ cup cream. When boiling, reduce the heat.

Beat 1 egg yolk; add 1 tbsp. sherry favoring, and stir into the sauce. Add 1 diced pimiento.

French-Fried Eggplant

"This French-fried eggplant is perfect, madame, cut in finger-lengths, egged, crumbed, fried in deep fat and well drained."

"And the cinnamon custard pie on the menu looks good," I added. "Sounds much more enticing than plain custard pie. I understand most of the delegates like properly spiced foods, an art many North American cooks have yet to learn."

Tomorrow's Dinner

Minestrone
Chicken a la King with Biscuits
Spinach
French-Fried Eggplant
Cinnamon Custard Pie
Coffee Tea Milk

All measurements are level. Recipes are for dishes popular at the United Nations restaurant, and serve 4 to 6.

Cinnamon Custard Pie

Line a 9-inch pie plate with pie pastry. Over the bottom and sides lightly press in 1 tsp. fine dry bread crumbs.

Beat 3 eggs, adding ½ cup sugar, ¼ tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. cinnamon. Pour in 2 cups cold whole milk. Pour into the crust-lined plate. Dust with ⅛ tsp. cinnamon.

Bake 10 minutes in a hot oven, 425 degree F. Reduce the heat to 350 degree F.; bake 30 minutes, or until lightly browned on top, and a knife, when inserted near the centre, comes out clean. Serve cold.

Trick of the Chef

Add a little tomato juice and a touch of dried basil when cooking spinach.

Question Box

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

A Public Education Service of

THE HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

111 Avenue Road, Toronto 5,

In co-operation with this newspaper.

RARE DANGERS

One of the main troubles with a successful preventive medicine campaign is that after it has nearly achieved its purpose of wiping out a certain disease, the public becomes complacent and the disease begins to regain lost ground. This seems to be happening with syphilis in the United States, for example. People began to assume that the disease was (a) practically non-existent, and (b) easily curable; so they ceased worrying about it. As a result, the disease is on the increase, and it was never as easily curable in all stages as some people seem to have thought.

The diseases preventable by immunization have continued to decrease in Canada, thanks to continuous public education. Every year the Health League of Canada sponsors a nation-wide Immunization Week (September 26 through October 2, this year) in co-operation with public health departments. Through such promotional activities as this the public is not permitted to become apathetic, and diseases such as diphtheria and whooping cough come actually closer to the vanishing point. Smallpox has already reached that point in Canada. However it is conceivable that if the League were to relax its activities in that direction for just one year, the incidence of these diseases could jump up to the level of ten or twenty years ago.

* * *

Question:

"It seems to me we put our children through enough, without adding unnecessary unpleasantnesses onto it. I suppose it is all right to immunize them against diphtheria and whooping cough, since there are still a few children dying of one o fthe main trouble with a those diseases every year. But why on earth make such a fuss about tetanus and smallpox. I don't remember that there ever was a case of tetanus in this neighborhood. From all I hear it's very rare anywhere. And as for smallpox, we've got it licked; so why not admit it and forget about it. There hasn't been a single case of smallpox in Canada for years. How can anyone get smallpox when there's no one to catch it from?"

Answer:

There are many areas of the world where smallpox is still prevalent. Some day your children or anyone's children may be obliged to travel to one of these areas. Also, with modern air transport, people from these areas can bring the disease right to your back door very quickly. You may say, why not wait until the danger is imminent and then vaccinate? The answer to this is that small children react better to vaccination, and subsequent vaccinations in the face of imminent danger are more likely to be uncomplicated and fully effective if the subject has been vaccinated in early childhood. Not too many years ago, a small epidemic of smallpox flared up in New York, as the result of the visit of an infected person from another country. A number of people who were indifferent to vaccination were "caught short." The epidemic would have been worse if more people had been indifferent to smallpox on the mistaken assumption that we've got it licked."

As for tetanus, it is not an extremely common disease by any means, but it is one of the most vicious of all killers. Its germs are widely distributed in the soil. The child who has the bad luck to get it undergoes severe agonies and often dies. It would be small consolation to you to be told, "This is a very rare disease" if your child were dying of it. Immunization against it is a simple matter now. Many doctors combine tetanus, whooping cough, and diphtheria toxoids into a single injection.

Official Announcement
Miss Janet McOuat's New Role with Q.W.I.

The Quebec Women's Institues officially announces the appointment of a new member to its staff, Miss Janet McOuat, Lachute, who has accepted the position of Handicraft Technician and has now taken up her duties, thus ensuring no lapse in the service.

The position became vacant upon the resignation of Miss Ida R. Bruneau, who has been away from the Q.W.I. on a year's leave of absence, serving with the Red Cross in Japan and Korea. Miss Nellie Hazel, who has been with the Q.W.I. during this interim period, will be leaving shortly for her home in the West.

Both Miss Bruneau and Miss Hazel have given valuable service in this field and their departure will be keenly regretted by W.I. members in all parts of the province. Crafts form an important part of the Institute program and the Q.W.I. feels it is fortunate in securing Miss McOuat to carry on with this work.

So Little for the Mind

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Have you read Dr. Hilda Neatby's "So Little for the Mind"? Here is an excellent basis for discussion in a Home and School group or as a text for homework for parents.

This book was first printed a year ago October and what a furore it created! Now that some of the clamour caused by its first impact has died down, it is still a volume well worth reading. The author, who is on the teaching staff of the University of Saskatchewan, chose its title from a sentence by Cardinal Newman: "Any self-education in any shape, in the most restricted sense, is preferable to a system of teaching which, professing so much, really does so little for the mind."

This is a disturbing book. If even half its condemnation of our Canadian educational system is well-founded, mothers and fathers do well to take a more searching look at their child's schooling. They should decide whether or not the Canadian educational system is "morally flabby, intellectually cloudy and creatively sterile!"

Dr. Neatby condemns, in no uncertain terms, progressive education and asks for a return to the traditional type of teaching. She believes that our Canadian schools are to a large degree failing to do a good job on their main task of conveying useful knowledge and the capacity for using it.

The charge against progressive education is that it is anti-intellectual, anti-cultural, and anti-moral Is this an accurate appraisal of some progressive institutions of learning? Surely a great many teachers walk "a middle road" in their attempt to use the best ideas from the progressive school founded on John Dewey's ideas, combined with the proven methods of long-established British educationalists.

Quite possibly, a number of parents will admit their own uneasiness about the attitude in many Canadian collegiates which label a pupil who excells in his studies, as "a bit queer" or "a brain" Dr. Neatby claims that in not a few schools the atmosphere is "frankly anti-intellectual"

In her opinion, "the world of today demands a hard and selective discipline that will fit every individual to make his utmost contribution to a society in which with all our effort, life for many will probably still be "nasty, brutish and short." "Too often the choice of a vocation is made not on the basis of the greatest service an individual can give, but on the salary which can be earned. Dr. Neatby reminds her readers that "the idea behind education is not to make money but to produce a trained mind."

Dr. Neatby's sweeping statements might have ben moderated a bit if she had done a little less work on printed books and pamphlets and had mixed a little more with teachers and with pupils. There are some references to the reaction of individual teachers but her case would be a stronger one if her contacts had been more numerous with them and their pupils in different areas.

The picture of Canadian schooling is not all black' Any observant parent can see that the methods in some subjects, such as the way to read, are a vast improvement over those used in their childhood.

The clock cannot be turned back in education or any other field. The traditional pattern used several decades ago cannot meet the needs of today. Teachers, as well as parents, must consider the whole child, his emotions and physical frame as well as his intellect. Is it not quite possible that the traditional type of education has been a contributing factor to the appallingly large number of adults in our mental hospitals?

One of the greatest of Greek thinkers described himself as a gad-fly, stinging his associates into thinking. Dr. Neatby has taken over this role. If she has pinpointed our complacency about our system of education, she has done us good service. At the same time, Dr. Neatby cannot have all the truth on her side. "So Little for the Mind" is not "light reading" — but it is a fine choice for Home-work for Parents'

Missionary Talent Aids Outpost Nurse

Montreal (CP) — Eve M. Merleau, provincial director of nursing services for the Red Cross Society, says a "missionary with her RN" is the type of nurse best suited for work in Red Cross outposts.

"They certainly have to have a missionary spirit to undertake the job," said Miss Merleau in an interview. She spent the summer visiting the Red Cross' five outpost nursing stations on the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Gaspé coast. There are a total of 73 such outposts in Canada.

"Roughing it," she said, is not unusual for these nurses, signed on for a year. They often travel many miles over rough roads, through snow and mud, to visit patients.

However, an indication that many of the girls enjoy their work was the number asking to have their contracts renewed.

Outpost nurses are on call 24 hours daily. They must care for emergencies and illnesses, keep a watchful eye on the health of the community as a whole, conduct an elementary course to teach women and young girls of the community how to care for the sick at home.

They also maintain their own dwellings.

Miss Merleau says the fact these nurses are doing a valuable service can be seen in improved health conditions in the outpost regions.

"People have become more conscious of nutrition and pay more attention to their diet," she said.

Urges More Women In Public Affairs

Edmonton (CP) — Women are urged by Nazla L. Dane, Toronto insurance official, to accept the responsibilities that go with rights secured in recent years.

"Women are very diffident and self-conscious about their abilities," she says. "They have to be pushed into any position of public responsibility when, after all, it is their duty to accept such responsibilities."

Miss Dane, head of the women's and educational division of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' association, addressed a meeting of the Women's Canadian club here. She also spoke of free enterprise, modern youth — and insurance.

Taken for Granted

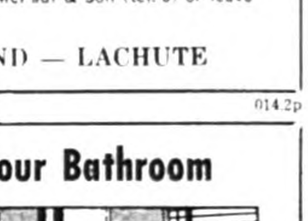

Canadians are taking for granted too many of the advantages of the free enterprise system and many are "fuzzy-mindedly" asking for more and more from government, she said.

"I have found that if I accepted the theory of dividing equally among all it would take from me one of the things I value most — my freedom of choice."

Miss Dane said she is amused, but confounded when young people today say there are no new frontiers to push back.

"Perhaps there are few of the kind our ancestors knew but there are other adventures, other frontiers for them in science, medicine, education, politics, industry, business and finance," she said.

Horse-shoes by TIFFANY'S

AROUND THE END of the last century, when aluminum was practically a precious metal, a famous racing stable had one of its thoroughbreds shod with racing plates of the weight-saving material. They were made at Tiffany's, the famous New York jewellery house.

Nowadays it is standard practice for race horses to run on aluminum shoes. Since the turn of the century the price of aluminum has been reduced to the point where it is now one of the most economical of all materials, extensively used for things like barns and boats and bus bodies. Don't Put Your Future in a Firebox

Your home is usually your family's most valuable financial asset. Householders are amazed when they discover how insurance, not brought in line with today's higher replacement costs, fails to adequately cover their home and its contents. That's why we say "Don't put your future in a firebox." Be sure fire and burglary insurance completely covers higher replacement costs and recent purchases . . . at present day prices. And you'll be glad to know that in many cases, General Accident's premium rates, unlike most things, have not gone up. You can probably completely insure your home at less than pre-war rates.

To facilitate making a complete up-to-date listing of your home furnishings, we have produced a Household Inventory book that includes many items frequently overlooked. We would be glad to send you a copy with no obligation to yourself. Fill in the coupon.

We have so much to protect

This Canada of ours — is ours to enjoy at a price — the price of constant alertness.

We cannot take for granted our freedom to worship, to vote, to educate our children, or to order our home life as we please. All these freedoms are ours only as long as we are willing to do everything necessary to maintain and defend them.

All honour then to the Canadian Soldier — the steadfast guardian of all our free institutions. Without men like him, the Canada we love might cease to be.

We have so much to protect. Let us all do our part, without let-up, whatever way our duty lies.

Garden-Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Canadian

A simple method of obtaining new peonies is by dividing your old plants. However, this applies only to peonies which have been in the ground from three to five years. In addition to giving you new plants it does the old ones good.

Dividing is best done from September to November, and the earlier the better.

After digging up an old clump, cut back the stem to four inches. After dividing the old clump, each section should have a piece of root attached to a portion of the crown and three to five eyes or buds, as shown in the accompanying garden-graph. Dust the cut surfaces with sulphur before replanting.

Good blooms can be expected the second year after planting and with care and feeding, the plants should continue to thrive for a dozen years or more.

New peonies can also be had by layering the lower stem of an established plant, as shown in the garden-graph. This, too, is best done in the fall. The layered and rooted stem may be severed from the old plant by the following fall, but it is safest to leave it attached to the parent plant for two years.

Peonies can be grown from seed by the home gardener, but they will not "come true" to the parent plant in form and color.

Peonies can also be grown from cuttings, but the process is slow and uncertain and is generally not recommended.

Magnesite Workers Held Successful Banquet, Dance

Mr. Bastien, chief speaker of the evening, congratulated the local union on their excellent record during the last few years, and mentioned the fine relationship which existed between employer and employee. He gave a brief history of the progress of labor unions and stated that it was not so very long ago that many employees were forced to work for as little as 50 cents a day. He also reviewed the improvements which had been made in working conditions and working hours per week.

Mr. Cottingham thanked Mr. Pearson and the executive members of the Union for inviting him to be present. He spoke of the importance of their work and of Canadian Refractories in the industrial life of Canada. He said he had found that their products were used in many of the other mining manufacturing plants throughout the province, and that they were making a very real contribution to the general progress of the country. He mentioned the great strides which mining was making in the province at the present time, and that it was a tribute to the people of Argenteuil that their elected representative had been appointed to the important post of Minister of Mines.

Mr. Arnold also complimented the workers and Canadian Refractories Limited and stated that, while on a trip to one of the mining sections in Northern Quebec, he was interested and pleased to learn that the brick they used were manufactured at Kilmar.

Mr. Perry thanked the Union for inviting him to be present and complimented the men for their loyalty to the Company. He said that Canadian Refractory products were now being shipped to many distant parts of the world and that they used ores of various types which had to be imported from far-away countries.

Mr. Stanley Cavanaugh expressed his thanks also, and entertained the gathering with a number of Scottish and Irish songs.

The head table was decorated with bouquets of gladioli. An excellent meal was served, and the members later danced to the music of a four-piece band especially engaged for this occasion.

Dr. L. Turcotte Addresses Medical Conf'ce in Ottawa

Dr. L. Turcotte, Argenteuil County Health Officer, was one of the main speakers at the convention of French-speaking physicians of Canada, held in Ottawa during the recent Immunization Week.

The delegates, medical officers and health inspectors of a number of Quebec Health Units, were given details of the new Quebec provincial health laws concerning meat and milk. Col. Ernest Emmett, Argenteuil County Health Inspector, was among the delegates.

Dr. Turcotte, in his talk on the Control of Scarlet Fever, stated that although this is a minor disease, and its form is becoming increasingly milder, it should be dealt with seriously on account of possible complications.

"The disease is now called Scarletina, but it is the Scarlet Fever germ that causes this, as well as Strep Throat, and in fact, a sufferer of the latter complaint can spread Scarlet Fever to others."

He pointed out that the disease is difficult to recognize, even for doctors in some cases, as it has changed its form so much in recent years. In many cases it is not as severe as it used to be, and it is consequently difficult to control as it is hard to get the family to admit that the disease is Scarlet Fever in its full or even in a mild form."

He made it clear that, in his opinion as in the opinion of many others physicians, the treatment for the disease should be intense and sufficiently prolonged, since, although the rash may have disappeared, the germ may still be present. Dr. Turcotte pointed out that after taking sulfa or penicillin, the patient is free from germs and becomes negative rapidly, but a few days after the treatment is finished, he becomes contagious once again.

"To prevent the further spread, I recommend that the patient get the proper treatment, and then in five or seven days after the end of the treatment, be given a dose of sulfa — as well as eliminating all possible source of infection from the house.

"Although some medical authorities do not approve of the use of sulfa, I feel that the amount given is so small, and of a different type than is commonly used, that there should be no after-affects provided it is always used under supervision", he added.

"We have used sulfa on contacts of the disease in schools where isolation is almost impossible, and it has stopped the spread of the disease. In other instances, we have tried isolation and the disease is momentarily stopped, but breaks out again several weeks after the infected patients are supposedly cured. Of course, the best solution is both isolation and the use of drugs, not forgetting the re-infection period approximately a week after the patient is 'cured' and free from the disease."

Local Business Group Visits Mine Sites Chibougamau Northern Quebec Area

Guests of Mines Minister W. Cottingham And H. J. O'Connell on Three-Day Tour Travelling by Plane, Rail and Auto

By R. A. Giles

While mining prospectors have been at work for quite a number of years in the northern district of Quebec, it is only recently that there has been real activity in the formation and development of companies which after expenditure of millions of dollars in drilling and preparation are now in full operation, bringing from away down valuable ore containing copper, silver and gold.

As a result of all this work and looking to the future, the town of Chibaugamau already has a population of 600. Its mayor is Mr. G. B. Laflamme, a young and energetic business man who along with the town's citizens is rightfully proud of the progress already made for at present there are, a Roman Catholic Church, two banks (Royal Bank and Bank of Commerce), a recreation club where movies are shown, a curling rink operated by the Campbell Chibougamau Mining Company, numerous stores, and a hotel. There are 225 houses, with more in process of construction, and a brilliant future is foreseen for this thriving town with its modern and up-to-date layout.

Delegation Visits Mining Area

It was both a privilege and pleasure for the party comprising some 40 persons representative of various places of business and industry, including members of both clergy and social organizations, to visit this mining area.

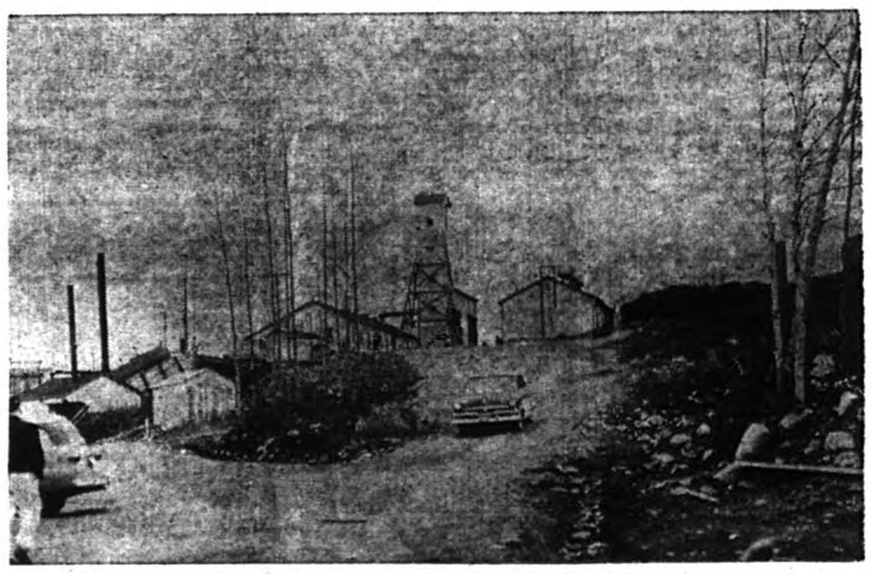

Leaving Lachute on Tuesday afternoon in a downpour of rain, the like and length of which has seldom been seen in this district, Messrs. F. Touchette, H. Gordon, D. Leishman, E. McOuat, H. Carson, Dr. J. Lafleur, W. Cousineau, L. Armstrong, M. Paquet, R. Charron, R. Giles, D. Bradford and A. Lefebvre were met at Central Station by Mr. P. Vezina, purchasing agent for the H. J. O'Connell Company, who looked after us in excellent style attending to our every want and making us feel most welcome. His duties were made much lighter, however, by our occupying the private railway car of the vice-president of the Canadian National, which comprised seven compartments, each with private clothes closet, wash basin, toilet and upper and lower single beds. At the rear of the car was a small kitchen where sumptuous meals were prepared to be served in the lounge dining room. Mr. Vezina, who has been with the O'Connell Company for a number of years, was a fund of information and willingly answered the many questions put to him on this occasion. It was somewhat of a thrill to know that we were occupying the same car as had been used by Princess Alexandra and her retinue during their recent visit to Canada.

During the night we had travelled 289 miles through Joliette, Shawigan Falls and Grand'Mere, passing along the shores of beautiful Lake St. John to St. Felicien, where after a hearty breakfast we disembarked for this was practically the end of the railway line in this northern section.

Note on Accommodation At Community Concerts

With the reopening of the Community Concert season next week, the president, Miss Juliette Rodrigue, takes occasion to remind local members that they are expected to be in their seats at the High School auditorium by 8.15 o'clock. This applies to the initial concert next Monday and to others during the season. Seats are held for the Lachute membership until 8.20 p.m., after which vacancies in the hall are made available to guest members from Hawkesbury or neighboring Community Concert centres.

Invasion at Dalesville 'Seafaring' Pigeons

A flock of branded pigeons, described as between 30 and 60 in number, settled down on Campbell's mill pond at Dalesville one day recently.

Although pigeons are not known to be at home on water, it is vouched for by observers that the birds were of this species, or something closely resembling it.

Youths of the neighborhood took shots, and Danny Morrow bagged two birds — killing one and winging the other, which he has kept alive at his home. Taking note of the ciphers on the band, his family wrote to various authorities (including Frank Ryan, of CFRA) hoping to receive information on these birds, their habitat or movements. It is believed they were all banded, and they appeared similar in color.

Accept Blind as Humans With Normal Reactions, Emotions

Plea by Spokesman of Sightless Citizenry At Service Club Meeting, Shows Fallacies And Misconceptions Among Public

Help the blind in a practical way, but waste no time in commiseration; the blind no not want pity, and coddling to their needs is damaging to the morale. . . Such was the gist of Lloyd McClintock's remarks to the Lions Club, combing the psychology of the sightless, and raking the attitude of the "sighted", in a lively talk Tuesday evening at the Legion Hall. The audience was indebted to this speaker for an enlightening and highly amusing address.

Around 45 Lions and friends were in attendance, with President Roger Regimbal in the chair. Besides the speaker, guests included his confrere, Tony Zaplaski, and their escort, Mr. Lemay; John Chalmers, president, and Bob Cairns, past-president of the Argenteuil Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind; and Ord Anderson, a member of the campaign committee. Lion B. Massicotte and Lion André Lefebvre, other members of the Board, were also at the head table; the latter introduced the speaker.

Lloyd McClintock, administrative secretary of the CNIB and a Law graduate of McGill University, lost his sight and one forearm in an explosion. Having suffered these handicaps at an early age, and adapted his life to their limitations, he may be considered an authority in his work and in the topic of his discourse.

To the question, "What is the greatest burden inflicted on the blind?" the speaker gave a considered answer that idleness is the severest hardship. Idleness enforced by a long period of adjustment, or by rejection from useful employment, is a discouraging factor — one which the CNIB in its rehabilitation program sets forth to overcome. One of the major difficulties in the way is the attitude of friends and relatives, reluctant to allow blind folks to do for themselves, refusing to part with a sightless child to attend school and become educated in the ways and crafts and resources of the blind — so that it may learn to live.

The approach of the blind person, while accepting his limitations, is to endeavor "to work to the best of his capacity with the tools God has seen fit to leave with him." The Institute, once having instilled this philosophy, feels that a sightless sufferer is on the right road.

With further reference to the public attitude, Mr. Clintock asserted that sightless citizens are a cross-section of average humanity. They include the good, the bad, the wise, the foolish, and so forth. They cannot be pigeon-holed in any definite pattern. The tendency of employers to blame one or two failures on the misfortune of blindness, and to judge the sightless generally on such examples, is a fallacy. Similarly, among blind women as among normal sighted women, there are good housekeepers and bad housekeepers.

Another fallacy is the public belief that a man bereft of his sight becomes automatically gifted with other talents in compensation. (Mr. McClintock here convinced his listeners that he was a flop as a musician!)

Equally unfounded is the assumption that blind people are lacking in other faculties; that they are deaf and need to be shouted at; that they are dumb and require intermediaries or spokesmen; that they are ill-balanced and about to fall down at any moment.

With these humorous misconceptions, and impressions cited from actual experience, the speaker administered some painful truths in painless form. "Educating sighted people in a proper attitude towards the blind" is a mission which he can most happily fulfill.

"Most of us want to live average, normal lives. We do not want to feel that we are living on charity or on government pension," said Mr. McClintock. The pension referred to — $40 a month, "not big enough to live on, not small enough to die on", is a help if nothing else. It is one reason why the CNIB has to supplement its resources by appealing to the public — in order to enable it to extend its assistance to the 20,000 sightless, and the 50,000 or 60,000 threatened with blindness in Canada.

The speaker answered several questions of interest, and was cordially thanked by Lion Bernard Massicotte, Doctor of Optometry.

Mr. Zaplaski — one of the sightless exceptions more specially gifted — played a classical selection at the piano and was warmly applauded.

Youthful Foursome Become Lost in Woods

Four young people from Hawkesbury — Carmen Lalonde, 17, Claudette Groulx, 16, her brother Maurice, 14, and Lionel Aubuchon, 13 — were missing in the bush in the Avoca area for over six hours last Sunday.

The four left the summer cottage of Henri Lalonde, Avoca, around 1.30 p.m. on a picture-taking hike through the woods, and on their return journey, became lost.

Det. Maurice Boucher and Traffic Officer Albert Legault were called to the scene, but the foursome had meanwhile been located—on Route 8 near Pointe au Chene shortly after the supper hour.

Hold-Up Staged In Branch Bank At St. Andrews

Bandits Flee With $2,800 But Three Promptly Arrested Entering City

Prompt arrests in Montreal followed a district-wide search for three men last Thursday after a $2,800 hold-up at the Bank of Nova Scotia in St. Andrews East. The three suspects were in custody less than four hours after the robbery.

Two of the suspected bandits were arrested as they were entering Montreal by way of Viau Bridge during the rush-hour, and a third was arrested a short time later in an east-end tavern. A fourth man suspected of conspiracy in the robbery is still being sought.

Arrested and lodged in Montreal police cells were Fernand Sevigny, Leonce L'Heureux and Jacques Mailhot, all of Montreal. Police said two of the suspects were ex-convicts.

The robbery occurred shortly before 3 p.m., according to Traffic Officers Howard Jones and Albert Legault and Det. Marcel Bouchard of the Lachute office, all of whom were called to the hold-up scene. (Det. Bouchard was relieving Det. Maurice Lamoureux at the time.) It was reported that two of the robbers armed with revolvers marched into the bank, forced the manager, teller and ledger-keeper to lie on the floor and then used linked shoe-laces to tie the arms and legs of the 18-year-old teller, Jean Gratton. Ledger-keeper Ronald Seary, 17, was similarly treated.

The intruders then asked bank manager Ernest Doran to open the safe, but he informed them that one door was operated by a time lock and could not be opened. (It was not locked at the moment however.) The bandits then cleaned out the cash drawer containing $2,800 and fled. Manager Doran ran out of the door a short time later and fired two shots to attract attention.

Witnesses state the bandits escaped in a car parked about 250 feet from the front door of the bank, which is situated on Main Street. They used two other cars to make good their escape.

Police said some $1,500 had been recovered, although they are still searching for the fourth suspect and the revolvers used in the robbery, as well as a pistol removed with the money from the cash drawer of the bank.

Traffic Officers Jones and Legault found a trench coat used by one of the bandits on the Beech Ridge Road.

Det. Nick Anderson, accompanied by Det. Champagna, of the Provincial Police, were assigned to the investigation.

Two of the three suspects, L'Heureux and Sevigny, as well as two other men, were allegedly involved in a $14,600 robbery at a west end Montreal tavern late in September, according to a recent police statement.

Swift Justice

The three were sentenced in St. Jerome court on Tuesday, just five days following the hold-up. Appearing before Judge Eugene Lafontaine, Fernand Sevigny was condemned to 10 years, while Leonce L'Heureux was sentenced to five years in penitentiary.

Jacques Mailhot was sentenced to two years for the part he played in the St. Andrews East bank hold-up and a concurrent two-year term for a hold-up committed in St. Hermas. René Ryan was also sentenced to two years for his part in the St. Hermas hold-up, which occurred some time ago.

Commissioners' Court

Commencing November 1, the Commissioners' Court office will be at 539 Grace Street.

Court is presently held the first Monday of every month in Victoria Hall, Lachute, at 7 p.m.

Rotarians See Kitimat Film

The film "Prelude to Kitimat" dealing with Northern Canada development, was the highlight of the Rotary Club meeting last Thursday. This is a highly educational and interesting film, which completely held the interest of those present. Secretary Dudley Boal introduced the film, while King Amos manned the projector.

Past-president Keith Rutherford, as chairman of the Watertown Committee Convention, urged as many as possible to attend, and outlined the program.

Visiting Rotarians Nat Cohen, C. R. Westgate of Medford, Mass., and Bob Wyse of Lachute, were welcomed to the meeting by Jack MacKimmie, and Mr. Boal and Mr. Amos were thanked by President Fred Royal.

A delegation of Edgar Pollock Keith Rutherford and Sid Stilwell attended an Inter-Club meeting in Pembroke on Monday, on the invitation of the Pembroke Rotary and returned to report an excellent meeting followed by a visit to the new silk plant there.

President Fred Royal was in the chair.

Current Picture on Local Labor and Employment

G. A. Downing, manager of the local office of the Unemployment Insurance Commisison, notes that during the fiscal year commencing April 1, 1953, $354,540.45 was paid to claimants in unemployment insurance benefits. Persons receiving payments filed a total of 2,706 claims and continued receiving cheques for various lengths of time.

An increase in the number of claims filed since April 1 of this year has been noted; already 1,308 claims have been filed and $158,532.15 has been paid since that date by the local office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. The current average rate received by claimants is $19.22 per week.

A temporary shortage of skilled bricklayers is felt locally but this is due to the fact that contractors are rushing all their projects before inclement weather sets in. The local office has succeeded in locating several skilled tradesmen in other districts to alleviate this situation, and is continuing its efforts to help employers requiring such assistance.

Lachute Business Man Dies Instantly In Auto Crash on Brownsburg Road

Grim Mishap Occurred late Tuesday Night, Two Injured Receive Medical Treatment

Jean Lemay, 44, well known building contractor of this town, was instantly killed at 11.22 p.m. Tuesday when the car he was driving leaped over the guard-rail on the Brownsburg Road, a short distance this side of the Brownsburg Consolidated School. Lemay, heading towards Lachute in his 1954 Buick, crashed into another car before leaving the highway. The occupants of the other car, a taxi, were severely, though not critically injured.

According to police and witnesses, the cars collided in the middle of the 22-foot highway. The Lemay car, headed towards Lachute, went out of control and over the guard-rail, falling approximately 30 feet onto a pile of rocks. The other car, a 1951 Buick taxi owned by Léon Larocque and driven by Roger Thibault, 32, of Lachute Mills, remained partially on the road.

Miss Rita Fortier, 32, of Brownsburg, a passenger in the taxi, was taken to the Providence Hospital by car. She is suffering from injuries to the chest and legs, and a cut on the forehead which required 21 stitches, as well as shock.

Thibault is suffering from shock, and a deep cut on the ankle as well as a severe cut on the chin.

Both were treated by Drs. A. R. Coté and Jacques Castagner, of Brownsburg, who were called to the scene.

The Lemay car was damaged to the extent of about $3,000, while damage to the taxi was estimated at $1,800. Both cars are considered a total loss.

Traffic Officer Howard Jones investigated, assisted by Traffic Officer Roger Massie. Det. Maurice Lamoureux was also on the scene.

According to District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur, an inquest will be held when the witnesses are sufficiently recovered to give testimony.

The funeral of the late Jean Lemay will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, from Ste. Anastasie Parish Church. The remains are resting at the Menard Funeral Home.

Sympathy is expressed to the bereaved relatives of this well known townsman — to his wife, the former Blanche Laurin, and two young sons, Robert and Claude; his father, Jean Lemay, Sr., sisters (Yvonne) Mme Donald Mallette and (Flore) Mme Polydore Pagé, and brother, Paul Lemay, all of Lachute.

YOUNG PLOWMAN

Spencerville, Ont. (CP) — The 1954 champion plowman of Eastern Ontario is 17-year-old Joe Beehler of Crysler, Ont. Skilfully guiding his tractor-drawn plow through rain-soaked sod on a farm near here, Joe beat out 28 competitors, many of them with a lifetime of experience.

The Sullivan mine at Kimberley, B.C., produces gold, copper, silver, tungsten, iron ore, coal, lead and zinc; it is one of the world's leading producers of lead and zinc.

Argenteuil W.I.'s Report Meetings For October

Arundel W.I. had 20 ladies present, answering the roll-call with "A sewing hint". A demonstration of hat making was given by Mrs. Lamothe. The compiling of the village history is nearing its final stages.

Jerusalem-Bethany branch heard a talk on Education by Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, "How Common is Common Sense?" This group is to help financially, and otherwise, in forming a local organization to help retarded children. The following donations were voted: Progress prize to Lachute High School, $5; wedding gift to members' children; Salvation Army, $5; Service Fund (Quebec) $10.

Lachute had an interesting travelogue given by the Rev. Dr. W. M. Reid, on his trip to the Maritime Provinces and Gaspé.

Lakefield branch reports 11 members and six guests present. The roll-call was, "Name a distinguished Canadian". Red Cross work was discussed. The county president attended the meeting and gave a talk on W.I. work. A former member brought greetings from Sutton branch. A report of the Board meeting was read, and a gift was sent to a bride.

At Mille Isles, reports of the Board meeting and annual convention were read. Subscriptions were voted to the C.W.W. Fund, Service fund and Educational fund.

At Morin Heights, Education Night, the teachers were welcomed by Mrs. W. Seale, convener, who gave a short talk on Education. Miss Shirley Dey was awarded the branch scholarship. A quiz on current affairs proved very interesting.

At Pioneer branch there were 16 members and two guests. A talk on Lachute Chamber of Commerce was given by Mr. Paul Laliberte, followed by a questionnaire. This branch, with two other W.I. groups, is entertaining the Brownsburg W.I. in the Legion Hall on November 9.

Plan Armistice Parade At St. Andrews East

St. Andrews East — An Armistice parade has been planned for Sunday, November 7, in St. Andrews East, to the post-office, where the service has been scheduled to start at 2 p.m. All veterans and their friends are invited to attend.

Further details will be made public prior to the parade.

Campaign for Blind Institute Near Completion

John Chalmers of Brownsburg, chairman of the local Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, reports that the district canvass has been practically completed and returns to date, $538, are approximately $28 higher than last year. One or two possible donations from corporations and industries are anticipated. There remains also one district adjoining Lachute to be canvassed; it is expected that volunteers will undertake to visit this particular section.

Any who have not been approached in this campaign may still tender their contributions — to Mr. Chalmers in Brownsburg, to Miss Louise Millar (treasurer) in Lachute, or any member of the Advisory Board for this district. All such gifts will be gratefully received.

The ten provincial governments had net general revenues of $1,314 million in 1953, about 29 per cent of Ottawa's total revenue that year.

Crash Narrowly Averted, Heavy Float on RR Track

A close call for the Montreal-bound C.P.R. passenger train was witnessed by a number of Lachute residents Monday morning as a 65-foot semi-trailer float became stalled on the Main Street crossing near the Memorial Park.

Efforts to move the vehicle off the track proved fruitless, until the heavy steam shovel on the float was removed. The track was cleared at 11.13 while the train was due at 11.05.

Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon, who happened to be on the scene, flagged down the oncoming train, and following a quick inspection of the loosened track, the train crew continued their run to the station and to Montreal.

Organized for Aid of District Retarded Children

A meeting of the "Lachute and District Association for the Help of Mentally-Retarded Children" was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cairns last week. The meeting was attended by interested parents and friends.

It was decided to retain this name until the proper affiliation is agreed upon.

Col. E. Emmett was appointed president, Robt. M. Cairns, 1st vice-pres.; Mrs. Geo. Leggett, 2nd vice-pres.; Mr. Foreman, secretary; and Mrs. R. M. Cairns, treasurer. Others present were elected to the Board.

Since the last meeting, the committee has been encouraged by the offers of help that have come in — of financial aid from W.I.'s and other organizations, furnishings, also volunteers to help with the children — all of which is greatly appreciated.

It will be uphill work, but with the continued interest and active support of the public, it is hoped the Association will eventually realize their ambition of providing a school, playground and facilities for the mentally-retarded children who are unable to attend their own High School.

A sale, in aid of this worthy cause, is being held on Friday, October 22, at Albright's Store, also a dance at Silver Leaf Hall on Saturday next.

Police Lay Charge Of Impaired Driving

Charges of driving with abilities impaired and driving under the influence of liquor were laid against Lawrence D. Capron, of Ottawa, following an accident at Grenville after which two persons were treated at the Smiths' Clinic.

The incident occurred Saturday, when a truck owned by Harold Capron and driven by his son, Lawrence, swerved out of control and hit a taxi in charge of Hermas Guindon, of Grenville. Damage was estimated at $800 to the car and $150 to the truck.

Injured in the accident were Leslie Dowd, 46, of Calumet, suffering a fractured left leg and lacerations to the face; Roger Raffery, 21, of Vankleek Hill, lacerations to the face and minor cuts to both legs. Both were hospitalized, Raffery being released later.

Hermas Guindon, driver of the taxi, and W. Bennett, of Calumet, were treated on the spot by Dr. G. C. Bowes, of Grenville.

Traffic Officers Albert Legault and Howard Jones investigated.

School Ceremonies, Prize Distribution, At Brownsburg

The annual school opening ceremonies at Brownsburg Consolidated School were held in the school auditorium last Friday evening, with an excellent turnout of parents and citizens.

Two new scholarships were presented for the boy and girl with the highest average in Grade X. Presenting the Legion Scholarship to Robert Golphin was Hector Steele, president of the Brownsburg Legion, while Bill Brown, representing U.M.W. Local 13148, presented the Union Scholarship to Lorna Clark. Both scholarships were for $50.

Mr. Steele also presented a cheque on behalf of the Legion to Melvin Tomalty, who was unable to write the final examinations in Grade X due to illness.

The School Board Scholarship of $24 to the pupil with the highest average in Grade IX was presented to Brent Connelly, by School Board Chairman Jack Golphin.

Prizes for Grades I to V were presented by Mrs. Lloyd Roberts, vice-president of the Brownsburg W.I.; and by Robert Sugden, president of the Brownsburg Home and School Association, to Grades VI to X.

General remarks were heard from Chairman Jack Golphin and Principal G. King Amos, who presented his report.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

(Proficiency, attendance and progress prize-winners will be found listed on page 9.)

There are nearly one thousand weekly newspapers in Canada, with a combined circulation of about 4,000,000.

Gatineau Power Company

Saving Electricity

Rainfall and hydro-electric power are closely related. Water is stored for use during the months when runoff is normally low.

Electricity wasted requires water from storage. If the water now in storage is depleted through uneconomic use or waste of electricity, it won't be available later when the normal runoff is insufficient to generate all the electricity required for normal use.

You can do something about this:

People go out and leave lights on; radios are allowed to play when there is no one in the room, and electrical appliances are allowed to stand running although they are not being used.

Don't waste your Most Valuable Servant!

Business Men Visit Mine Sites in Chibougamau

With baggage all transferred to autos we were soon on our way heading still farther north over roads which had been cut through the forest and in many cases ran perfectly straight for miles and miles. Some 15 of these brought us to the opening gates of the huge reserve, another large tract of land which has been set aside by the Government to become in later years a provincial park for the protection of fish and game. Before entering and leaving, passes must be shown to officials, and strict tab is kept on those who come and go. Before reaching the closing gates we had covered 90 miles over a hard packed gravel road which apart from being bad for tires is quite comfortable to ride on. To reach our temporary home a further 40 miles was travelled bringing us to the camp site of the H. J. O'Connell Company.

Opemiska Copper Mines

After our 145 mile auto drive, dinner was served at "The Camp" and we were again whisked away by car to the Opemiska Mines, where previous to inspection, we met arrivals on the "Gilbert Ayers" a DC 3 plane, beautifully designed both in and out, capable of carrying 14 passengers and fitted with all modern luxuries even to a television. Travelling by air were Messrs. G. Ayers, P. Roy, W. Steeves, H. Cottingham, F. Legault, D. Hay, L. Carrière, L. Bédard, G. McOuat, S. Drew, R. Regimbal and J. Bédard.

Organization

This mining company was organized in 1930 to explore the copper-gold veins which were discovered in the west of Campbell Lake. In October 1951, financial arrangements were made to permit resumption of operations suspended since 1937. In midsummer 1953, the Opemiska branch of the Chibougamau highway, 21-mile road was completed to the mine. Late in 1953, construction of the 400-ton mill and of the mine plant was completed. Opemiska Copper Mines (Quebec) Ltd., was the first producer for Chibougamau district, having started production on a regular basis on January 1st, 1954.

Development

The developed ore at Opemiska is contained in eight veins or zones. Five of these strike east-west and are roughly parallel.

In previous development a three-compartment shaft was put down to a 550-foot depth. Cross-cutting and drifting on the 150, 275 and 525-foot levels has resulted in estimating these veins to contain 283,000 tons of ore, yielding 7.4% copper, 0.13 oz. of gold and 1 oz. of silver per ton. Further extension and new location have given an increase of "probable" and indicated" ore from 283,000 tons to 1,054,000 tons averaging 4.82% copper and 0.07 oz. of gold per ton.

Production

From the start of milling in December until June 1st, 1954, the mine produced 5,829,600 pounds of copper, 2,851 ounces of gold and 31,780 ounces of silver. The average grade of ore milled during the first six months of 1954 was 5.82% copper, 0.066 ounces of gold and 0.71 ounces of silver per ton. The concentrates recovered 92.1% of the copper 75.8% of the gold and 78.6% of the silver. The concentrates are being transported by motor truck the 160 miles to the railhead at St. Félicien and thence to Noranda for smelting.

Outlook

A hydro power available in July 1955, and a railway line from Beattyville to Chibaugamau, scheduled for completion in late 1956 will greatly reduce operation, production and transportation costs and will facilitate any expansion in operation. Preparations are now under way to deepen the shaft and at least three new working levels will be established at the 675, 825 and 975-foot levels.

New Townsite

At the present time there are 32 families living in comfortable quarters on the property, but a new townsite is now being planned and surveyed two miles east of the mines, which will be modern and up-to-date and looking forward to greater and larger developments.

The Mill

As can be noted from previous information, the proportion of copper, gold and silver per ton of ore is very small, which means that countless tons of the heavy mixture must be first dug out at the various levels then brought to the surface by hoists. The ore is then carried up and dumped into huge hoppers where it passes through crushers bringing it finally to a powder from which a certain amount of mud and waste is extracted leaving the more valuable metals to be sent to Noranda for smelting after which it returns to Montreal for refining. The natural question which arises is why not have a smelting and refining plant close to the mine. The answer is simply the matter of cost for both of these operations run into the 10 million dollar status.

Over 275 men are employed at this plant, which of course has to supply its own power for all workings. Over 1,000 gallons of oil are used daily for the diesel engines which generate the necessary power to keep things moving, and when repairs are needed they are done right on the spot in an up-to-date machine-shop. Work is progressing favorably and within a year hydro power is expected to be available for use at the plant.

Campbell Chibougamau Mines Ltd.

Our next call was at the above mentioned mine which owns copper-gold properties in the central part of Merrill Island and in the area to the north of the island under the waters of Doré Lake.

The Company is the successor to Consolidated Chibougamau Goldfields, which put down a shaft on the Cedar Bay group about 15 years ago. After five years of an intense diamond drilling program and development work, Merrill Island Group and leased claims are being prepared for production, scheduled to start early in 1955, in concentrator, with a 1,700-ton daily capacity.

Location of this mill is made very attractive by the addition of a causeway through the lake and built largely from rock, discarded when building the mine road.

Employees are well looked after in this new development, where the huge building contains showers, recreation rooms, canteens and everything to make life worth living and to keep employees in a happy frame of mind.

It is expected that this company will be in operation next March when the underground, development work on all seven levels will have been completed and the huge mill will be ready for operation. Shaft operation here requires 7,500 cubic feet of air per minute and there will be an output of five tons per minute of ore. Cost of this plant will possibly reach the ten million dollar mark, and the whole situation seems all the more remarkable when known that when building operations started in 1952 the present site was nothing but dense bush.

Chibougamau Explorers Limited

This Company, our third to visit, holds a group of 35 claims, and in 1950 started exploration work on its copper-gold property. Development was rapid and in 1952 many buildings at the mine were erected. During 1953, all surface buildings required for the operation of the mine, with the exception of a mill, were completed and an all-weather 12-mile road was build. In 1954, pouring of foundations for the 500-ton mill was started.

Early in 1951, a geophysical survey was completed outlining a shear zone that crosses the property from east to west for over 4,000 feet in length. This zone was confirmed later by diamond drilling. In 1952 a three compartment shaft was sunk to 595 feet in depth. Stations were cut at the 150, 300 and 450 foot horizons, and a total of 29,151 feet of diamond drilling done during the year 1952. During 1953, lateral work was started on the 150, 300 and 500 foot levels. Underground development operations have confirmed the surface drilling so that in 1954 the shaft has been bottomed to provide new levels at 600, 750, 900, 1050, and 1200 foot horizons.

On the basis of previous work down to a depth of 750 feet, an indicated 561,369 tons of ore averaging 0.29 ounces of gold and 0.73% of copper per ton has been estimated.

Cost and Selling Prices

It is expected that production will reach 500 tons per day or 182,500 tons per year with cash results as follows:

54,750 oz. gold per year at $35	$1,916,250
3,07,500 lbs. copper per year at 30¢	$930,750
182,500 tons value	$2,847,000
Gross per ton	$15.60
Est. mine operating cost per ton	$7.00
Est. copper handling and smelting per ton	$3.60
Total estimated cost	$10.60
Est. net profit per ton	$5.00
Annual estimated earnings	$912,500

The H. J. O'Connell Camp

The name O'Connell is well known in the district of Argenteuil for we see it on many large transportation trucks as they pass through town, and on all kinds of road and construction machinery and as we drive over the highways we are again reminded of this firm's activity in road building. In the Laurentians also there is the Mont Gabriel resort so popular with those who travel northward and then of course the stables at St Genevieve — in fact everywhere you go this name O'Connell stands out prominently. And so it was on this short but adventurous trip, for as we headed by car for Chibougamau we learned that much of the

Bishop Supports St. Justine Campaign

Msgr. Emilien Frenette, Bishop of St. Jerome, sent the following letter to St. Justine's Hospital Building Fund officials for the Laurentian district:

Mr. Lucien-G. Rolland,
St. Justine's Hospital
Building Fund,
3087 Cote St. Catherine,
Montreal, Que.

Dear Mr. President:

It gives me much pleasure to accept the position of honorary president of the St. Justine Hospital campaign for this district.

In spite of the many projects planned or under way in our diocese and in spite of the urgent need to help our Hotel-Dieu in St. Jerome, we must not forget that many children from our diocese are being cared for by St. Justine's.

Besides, charity spreads in ever-expanding circles and therefore has no beginning nor end.

With all my heart I give my benediction to this campaign, to our district president and all his volunteer helpers and to our benefactors at St. Justine's.

Please believe in my trust and devotion to this cause.

Bishop of St. Jerome

Man Killed by Tractor Near Alfred, Ont.

Hawkesbury— George Lalonde, an Alfred, Ont., farmer, was fatally injured Wednesday night of last week, when the tractor he was driving toppled into a ditch near his home on Highway No. 17. The victim, about 45 years of age, was found crushed under the tractor by a passer-by, who noticed the tractor's lights shining from the ditch.

Rushed to the Smiths' Clinic in Hawkesbury, the victim was pronounced dead on arrival by Coroner Dr. Arcade Perrier of Hawkesbury. The coroner said that death was due to a fractured skull. No inquest was held.

New Home for Aged Opened at l'Orignal

L'Orignal — Ontario Public Welfare Minister W. A. Goodfellow opened the new Prescott and Russell Home for the Aged at l'Orignal last week, in the presence of members of Counties' Council, clergy and many others.

The old section of the Home has been renovated and the new building contains three wings, the central or hospital wing accommodating about 12 beds.

There is a spacious sun parlor and single and double rooms, a few containing four beds. Large verandahs have been provided.

The old section of the Home has a dining room on the ground floor which will accommodate 60 persons. The central portion contains the administration block, and the chapel, while the second floor is reserved for staff quarters.

The Home is operated by the Counties' Council and administered by the Grey Nuns.

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

One Born Every — — 1 Minute 15 Seconds

MORE NEW babies arrived in Canada in 1953 than in any other year. The tots came into the world on an average of one every 75 seconds. A Canadian died on the average of one every four minutes.

And Canada appeared to be gaining in its battle against death-dealing diseases, the 1953 death rate dropping to a record low of 8.6 persons for each 1,000 of population, placing Canada among the world's healthiest people.

These and other trends were reported by the Bureau of Statistics. It estimated that Canada's 1953 death rate was lower than the 9.6 per 1,000 in the United States.

During 1953 Canada's population increased to 14,756,000 from 14,405,000 in 1952, notwithstanding the rise in volume of deaths to 127,381 from 125,950. The baby crop did the trick.

The number of babies born increased to a peak 416,825 from 402,527 in 1952, with the birth rate, based on 1,000 of population, rising to 28.2 from 27.9 in 1952 and the highest since the post-war peak of 28.9 in 1947.

With science providing improved maternity care, the number of infants who died before their first birthday dropped to 14,746 from 15,603 in 1952. The rate of deaths in this category dropped to a record low of 35 per 1,000 live births, down from 38 in 1952. This compares with a high of 103 in 1923.

And mothers fared better in 1953 than at any previous time. The number of deaths in childbirth dropped to an all-time low of 324 from 374 the previous year, less than one-quarter the 1,440 who died in 1930. The rate of these deaths per 1,000 live births dropped to .8 from .9 in 1952 and the high of 5.8 in 1930.

Marriages in 1953 rose to a high of 130,837 from 128,301 in the previous year. However, the marriage rate per 1,000 of population stood at 8.9 unchanged from 1952, down from the post-war high of 10.9 in 1946 and the lowest since the 8.5 in 1944.

United Nations Day

OCTOBER 24 is United Nations Day. This year it will mark the ninth anniversary of the coming into force of the Charter of the United Nations.

United Nations Day is a date dedicated throughout the world to make known to the peoples the aims and achievements of the United Nations and to gain their support for its work.

Throughout the Organization's brief existence, the peoples of the world have become increasingly conscious of United Nations Day. Last year the day was observed in 74 countries. This year, observances are expected to be even more widespread and in some countries will take novel forms.

October 24 falls on a Sunday, and as a result, a number of churches in many nations — from Liberia to Australia — will dedicate their sermons to the theme of world peace and the role being played by the United Nations in preserving it.

The first widespread commemoration of the founding of the United Nations took place in 1947, when the second anniversary of the signing of the Charter (June 26) was observed in many countries. The success of the celebrations prompted the United Nations General Assembly to set aside one day every year to be dedicated to explaining to the peoples the aims and work of the United Nations. Two dates were considered: June 27, anniversary of the signing of the Charter, and October 24, the day it came into force. The Assembly chose the latter date which has been known since as United Nations Day.

Since then, United Nations Day celebrations have become increasingly widespread and in many countries today, the original idea has been expanded so that the entire week of October 24 is now observed as United Nations Week.

THOSE WHO "never read the newspaper" shouldn't be surprised if their government fails them either at home or on the international scene. A government at the town council level or the federal level is certainly more likely to remain alert and do a good job if it is prodded by well-informed citizens. It is everyone's duty to keep well-informed.

Preparedness

THOSE familiar with the Weston-Woodbridge-Etobicoke area of Ontario, so tragically hit by Hurricane Hazel last week, saw no earthly reason to anticipate that disaster should strike where it did. Perhaps the deep ravines of the Don and Humber — a peculiarity of contour for which the territory is noted — invited the gush of gale and rain which left such havoc in its wake. Then again, this factor may have had no bearing.

The moral of this costly experience is that it might happen elsewhere — Halifax, Vancouver, here or anywhere. Specially prone to inundations are the valley settlements. Lachute and the Ottawa Valley communities are not immune. Flood has lapped the lower areas of this town not infrequently, with the spring break-ups. A tornado, within more or less recent memory, has swept perilously around the foothills of our adjacent Laurentians. The question is — are we the least prepared for any major emergency?

The Red Cross has a committee concerned with this contingency — known as Disaster Preparedness and Relief. To what extent this department is organized here in Lachute, we cannot say. It deserves commendation for its awareness of the need. But beyond this, we know of no other provision to cope with large-scale emergencies hereabouts.

Bluenose Sails Again

"BLUENOSE" has been chosen as the name for a new $4,000,000 ferry being built at Lauzon, Que., for the Canadian National Railways. She will be christened in November by Mrs. St. Laurent, wife of the prime minister, and next summer will start sailing between Yarmouth, N.S., and Bar Harbor, Maine.

There must have been much serious consideration before the famous name was attached to a prosaic ferry. The original Bluenose of international repute was the queen of Nova Scotia racing schooners.

Her graceful likeness is impressed on the reverse side of Canada's 10-cent coins and, had she been sent to a worthy retirement in her home port of Lunenburg, she might have become one of the main tourist attractions in the Maritimes.

But Bluenose, Nova Scotia's proudest product, could not afford to be retired when her racing ended. She earned her keep for a while as a coastal cargo ship until she finally was wrecked in 1946 on a reef off Haiti in the Caribbean sea.

The name "Bluenose" died with her. Now it is to be reborn as the name of CNR's new ferry.

Thus, for the lifetime of another ship at least, the remembrance of the first Bluenose's international racing prowess will be kept. It will be a poor Maritimer who hears the ferry Bluenose mentioned without thinking first of Captain Angus Walters' 154-ton fishing schooner, "the fastest and most graceful thing that ever moved among the north Atlantic fleet."

But in a different way, the new Bluenose can do the job for Nova Scotia that the old schooner might have done if she had not sunk in southern waters. She has space for 150 cars and 600 passengers and will make a daily round-trip across the mouth of the Bay of Fundy. She will eliminate several hundred miles of driving around the bay from north-eastern United States.

In time her sleek modern lines may be as familiar to American tourist thousands as the old Bluenose was to an earlier generation.

It is a merchant marine practice to hand down the names of famous ships. May the new Bluenose become as illustrious as her ancestor in sail.

CANADIANS are becoming more and more aware of outside appearances and are realizing the pleasures and benefits to be derived from lush lawns and landscaping outside their homes and factories, notes The Financial Post.

There is a long list of new equipment available now to take the backaches and work out of lawn care. Newest items include the "aerifier" which punches two-inch holes in lawns to let food and moisture down to strangled roots. Also popular, especially at this time of year, is the lawn sweeper powered either by hand or by motor which brushes leaves and other material off the lawn and into a large canvas container.

Pacing the growing awareness of Canadians in greenery is the industry that furnishes them with equipment and supplies for their outdoor areas. From a total estimated at about $3 millions in 1948, dollar volume has climbed to approximately $15 millions this year.

• Geoff's Journal •

"RED CAPS"

This is the season of red caps. This is the time when Nimrod, the mighty hunter, stalks his prey in forests — and ends up with a bullet through his heart. And the fault is due, quite often, to the fact that the red cap is not always on the head but, rather, in the hunter.

Now I have no special desire to malign one brewery in particular, especially the one which goes all out to promote conservation. The hunter may have any one or all of the brands of hops and malts now available, at his beck and call. No, the fault is with the hunter. He is the man who decides that he cannot hunt successfully without the aid of liquor. He is the man, too, who must accept the consequences.

It's not so very long ago that I stood in a small country store in Ontario on the day before the hunting season opened. While I waited to be served, a rough-hewn group of hunters entered the shop. Being friends of the grocer, they elbowed their way to the counter and bawled out their order. They were four in number and all were half-seas over.

Being a pal of theirs, and noting their condition, the storekeeper prudently left his other customers to wait on them. Their order was brief.

"Fix us up with some vittels, Jim," said the leader. "Coupl'a cans a soup, smitch'a salt pork, bread, butter, jam, an' green tea. We got most'a what we need in the truck."

I had a good idea as to what they had "most'a" in the truck. While Jim was rustling up the "vittels". I retired outside to investigate. There, I found a half-ton open truck, whose floor was completely covered with various brands of beer. A quick count revealed that they had eight cases per hunter on board — one case per man per day and, as they put it, "two fer Sunday".

When their purchases were complete, the quartet rolled out of the store and into the truck. Their provisions for the week were carelessly tossed into the back of the vehicle and made a pitiful showing against the stack of wares from the Brewers' Retail.

"Thanks, Jim," they bellowed, "be sheein' ya'."

And with a roar of the engine they were away.

There is a providence that cares for drunks and fools, it has been said. So it was that the foursome returned unharmed at the end of their trip. An innocent bystander hadn't fared as well, unfortunately.

"No, we didn't bag a bloomin' thing, Jim," they crowed in the grocery store, some ten days later. "leastways, not in the crittur line. Jack, here, managed to pop one at young Ben Peterson, though. He was so drunk, the blamed fool thought the young'un was a deer."

And they shook the store with their guffaws.

"Doc says Ben ain't hurt too bad, though. Should be back on his feet before Christmas. But he's only got himself to blame. What's a young squirt like him want to be out in the woods for anyways?"

I heartily subscribed to that last remark. What, indeed, does anyone expect to find in the woods but trouble when drunken maniacs set out to hunt? Why would anyone, young or old, want to play target to a bunch of fools? And why, pray tell, do game wardens continually issue licenses for the commission of forest mayhem? Frankly, it baffles me — and it should baffle you as well.

We are slowly, very slowly, beginning to realize that alcohol and gasoline don't mix at all. Must we wait another thousand years to discover that a mixture of alcohol and gunpowder is ten times more lethal?

Let's hope not!

Adjourn Textile Hearing Until November

Ottawa Oct. 18 (CP) — After more than two weeks of hearing evidence both for and against an increase in the Canadian tariff on British wool cloth, the tariff board adjourned the hearing, likely until November, while both sides prepare final argument.

The Canadian wool textile industry seeks an increase in the present 50-cent-a-pound maximum duty on imports of the British product. It blames unemployment in the industry on the British inroads into the Canadian market and it told the board the Canadian industry can't compete with the British because costs, such as wages, are higher here than in Britain.

The British industry replied that there are fewer automatic looms in Britain than in Canada, where one man operates as many as eight, while non-automatic looms require one weaver to a loom.

The British, supported by the Canadian clothing manufacturers, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Interprovincial Farm Unions Council and others, told the board in opposing the tariff increase that a slackened demand for woollen products, and not British competition, was to blame for any hardship the Canadian industry might be suffering.

ALL ABOARD
With G. E. Mortimore

Just off the Hook of Holland as the ship steamed home in clear weather, a great explosion ripped her amidships, and killed the second officer.

The ship was towed to port on fire, a delayed-action victim of the 1939-45 war. Ten years after the surrender of Germany, she had struck a floating mine.

A funny-looking metal thing served a farmer for years as a gate-stop, and boys were in the habit of giving it an idle kick at they walked by. One afternoon several boys thought it would be a smart idea to throw stones at the funny-looking thing, and they must have been good shots, because they hit it square. It blew up.

They could have lost their sight or their lives. As it happened, one of them went to hospital with an injured hand. He had been in his cradle when the peace treaty was signed, but now he became a minor casualty of the war. The funny-looking thing was a live mortar-bomb, brought home and forgotten by some souvenir-happy soldier.

A brave mine disposal expert of the Royal Canadian Navy lost his life disarming a Japanese mine on the Pacific Coast. A French peasant and his old horse were blown to bits when their plough struck a buried explosive device. The war was over, but they were war victims.

Sometimes the delayed consequence of war is an explosion of the human spirit. Children lost homes and parents and had their minds seared by death and hunger, or in luckier countries they were merely left without discipline when their fathers were at war and their mothers at work.

When these children are grown up, or half grown, the spiritual bombs planted in them may explode in crime or unbalance of the mind.

Some people assert that war did us good: levelled slums, thinned populations, destroyed outworn beliefs and taught boys to be men. However, any of these aims that were worth accomplishing could have been gained more slowly in peace, without the loss of one innocent life.

The best that can be said of war is that it prevented something worse.

A delayed-action blast of explosives warns us that the world goes on paying for a war for years and generations. It warns our soldiers to be strong, and our statesmen to be wise. Possibly the results of the next war will be of interest only to the ants and barnacles, because there may be no human being on earth to take notice.

Vacationist — We're planning on going fishing tomorrow. Can you tell me how the weather will be?

Hillbilly — Used to could, son. But since the government took over the weather, ya can't tell what it's going to do.

Quality Counts in the long run!

A new roof every year. Building repairs needed every few weeks. Sounds expensive? It is! It's the EXTRA price you pay when you use inferior building materials. You always save in the long run, when you use the kind of quality supplies we sell. When in need, give us a call!

COMPARE RESULTS — NOT INGREDIENT TAGS

Ingredient tags list the elements that make up the ration. But tags don't have room to tell the whole story of quality milling and feed efficiency. You've got to look past the tag and into the animals' production records to get the true picture of a feed's value.

MICRO-MIXED PURINA CHOWS

For instance, two laying rations recently tested at Purina's Research Farm were so similar in composition that the same tag could have been used on both. There was this difference though. One ration was so highly fortified that it required 7/10 of a pound less feed to produce a dozen eggs.

At first glance, this may not look like much of a saving. But for the poultry feeder with a 400-bird flock in 60% production, 7/10 of a pound saved on every dozen eggs adds up to a big money saving of $21 a month, or $350 saved on every 100 dozen eggs produced.

In the same test, hens getting the highly fortified ration had 9 per cent less mortalities, and their egg hatchability was 90%, compared to 77% for eggs from the birds on the poor ration. This is where MANAGEMENT comes in again.

If you want the feed that will give you most for your dollar, you will be using PURINA. Get your supply today; we deliver.

Funeral of Well Known Lachute Resident

Late Mrs. Thos. Stewart

It is with deep regret we record the death of Mrs. Thomas Stewart, which occurred early Sunday morning, October 10, at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

She was the former Hanna Elizabeth (Bessie) Hume, daughter of William Ward Hume and Hanna Elizabeth Mitchell, born at Bethany on July 3, 1897.

Of a quiet and loving manner, the late Mrs. Stewart won the respect and confidence of all with whom she came in contact. She was a lifelong resident of the Lachute district.

Left to mourn her passing are her loving husband; three sons, Bill, of Buckingham, Russell, Montreal, Otis, of the RCAF Station, Rockcliffe; and five daughters, Mrs. Earl Marshall (Dorothy), Mrs. James McDerment (Helen), of Montreal, Mrs. Norman Clarke (Heather), and Jean Stewart, of Toronto, and Miss Joyce Stewart, of Lachute; also two sisters, Mrs. Albert Thompson, of Lachute, Miss Hilda Hume, and a brother, Mr. Lebert Hume, of Lachute.

The funeral was held last Wednesday, with a short service at the MacKimmie Funeral Home and thence to Lachute United Church — services being conducted by the Rev. W. Bridge. Interment was in Lachute Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Ross Muir, Ken Sly, Pete Todd, Stephen Stewart, Albert Stewart and Joe Stewart.

Ayrshire Fancier and Well Known Farmer Succumbs to Illness

Late Clarence John Millar

After a lengthy illness there passed away at his late residence on Thursday, October 14, Clarence John Millar, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Millar, of Lachute.

Deceased was in his 54th year and had spent his entire life on the home farm, being a prominent farmer and an enthusiastic Ayrshire cattle breeder. He was a member of the United Church, also a member of Argenteuil Masonic Lodge No. 67. He is survived by a loving wife (Jesie Staniforth of Arundel), two daughters, Frances and Diane, and a son, John. He is mourned also by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, five sisters, (Jessie) Mrs. Howard Nicoll, (Ruby) Mrs. L. Nicholls, (Lydia) Mrs. Arnold Scott, (Annie) Mrs. Allen Rodger, and (Cora) Mrs. Cliff Cunningham.

The funeral service was conducted at Lachute United Church by the Rev. Wilson Bridge last Saturday, many relatives and friends being present to pay their respect. Flowers were many and beautiful.

The pall-bearers were — Kenneth Nicoll, Howard Rodger, Donald Nicolls, Norman Bishop, Harold Wilson and Glenn Warwick.

The Masonic service took place at the grave, interment being made in the Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

DEATHS

FARMER — At Brownsburg, Oct. 20, 1954, Mrs. Joseph Farmer (Lydia Lepine), at the age of 65. Remains resting at Desforges Funeral Parlor, Brownsburg. Funeral Saturday from St. Louis de France Parish Church.

GOODFELLOW — Suddenly at Sherrington, Que., Oct. 16, 1954, Jessie Mary Goodfellow, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Goodfellow, of Arundel. Survived by her brother, Douglas, of Sherrington, and sisters, Ruby and Flossy, of Montreal.

MILLAR — At his residence, East Settlement, on Thursday, Oct. 14, Clarence John Millar, in his 54th year, beloved husband of Jessie Staniforth, and father of Frances, John and Diane. Funeral held Saturday, Oct. 16, in the Lachute United Church; interment Lachute Protestant Cemetery, with Masonic rites.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

MILLAR — We wish to express our deep gratitude to our many friends, relatives and neighbors, and to the Rev. Wilson Bridge, for the assistance, sympathies and floral offerings received during our recent bereavement in the loss of a beloved husband and dear father. — Mrs. Clarence Millar, Frances, John and Diane.

MILLAR — Mr. and Mrs. John Millar wish to express their sincere appreciation to neighbors and friends who have been so kind during the illness and passing of their son, Clarence.

IN MEMORIAM

TAYLOR — In loving memory of a dear Dad. — Sadly missed by Bob, Allan and their families.

"You were driving along St. Catherine Street,
And these three fellows you had to meet.
You didn't deserve to die this way,
But God will punish them on Judgment Day.
We mention your name, we think of you often.
God bless you, dear Dad, you'll never be forgotten."

Brownsburg Red Cross

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — A meeting of the Red Cross was held at the Social Club on Monday. In the absence of the chairman of the Blood Clinic and the fund campaign, business was slack.

With regard to the clinic, Mrs. Donaldson suggested that a letter of thanks be sent to donors through the churches. It was announced that Mr. Abercrombie, who took photographs of various donors in the act of giving blood, has all the prints and anyone wishing to obtain copies of same should call 4574.

Mrs. Barker announced her disappointment at the scarcity of volunteers at the sewing and knitting cupboard. The cupboard is opened every Friday at the Social Club and the work distributed to the all-too-few workers. So come out on Friday, ladies, and serve in a work of charity.

Harrington

Mrs. R. Perrigo and daughter, Ann, of Montreal, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dobbie.

Quebec Presents Its Varied Scene

THIS WEEK IN QUEBEC
By George Frajkor

Quebec, Oct. 19 (CP) — Premier Duplessis left Quebec on a 10-day vacation last week. Finance Minister Gagnon took over as acting premier.

The premier had announced earlier he was too busy to take a vacation this year but after his taxation meeting with Prime Minister St. Laurent in Montreal, and a series of speaking engagements in various parts of the province, he decided to take time off to rest up for the opening of the Quebec Legislature November 17.

* * *

The provincial government announced it will take steps to curb a cigarette price-war among leading Montreal and Quebec chain stores because the government stands to lose about $3,000,000 a year in tobacco taxes and small retail establishments are losing business.

The government says the chain stores are selling cigarettes at 30 cents a pack, plus three cents for the 10 per cent provincial tax. Normally, the price is 33 cents plus four cents provincial tax.

The government has a problem in stopping the war because it cannot revoke the licenses of the stores, which do not need a special permit to sell cigarettes. Only tobacco wholesalers have to have the permits. And the large chain stores often buy their supply directly from the cigarette companies rather than through wholesalers.

* * *

Wilfrid Dufresne, Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Quebec West, criticized Prime Minister St. Laurent and the Liberal government in an angry speech to his electors.

He said he would rather see "an English-Speaking prime minister willing to make us (French-Canadians) concessions than a French-speaking one who cannot stand on his own two feet."

He also claimed Mr. St Laurent once said that French-language rights in Canada could be "struck out by a stroke of the pen." He said some persons in the Federal Government, including some members of parliament, treat the French language "with contempt".

* * *

Le Conseil de la Vie Francaise French-language cultural organization, announced it has organized a group visit to Louisiana next year to mark the anniversary of the Acadians' arrival there.

The Acadians, French-Canadian settlers of the Maritimes, were expelled by the British 200 years ago and many were forced to emigrate to the southern United States.

The Conseil's group will also visit Detroit, Chicago and Washington on their tour.

Seven Bids Received For St. Eustache Bonds

The Town of St. Eustache considered seven bids for its $103,000 20-year serial bond issue, on October 12. The best offer came from Desjardins, Couture Inc., which tendered a price of 95.72 for $58,000 of bonds at 3% 1955-66 and $45,000 at 3½% 1967-74. Thus the net cost of the issue is 3.811%.

In March 1953, St. Eustache sold $176,500 20-year serial bond issue, at a price of 97.56, at a net cost of 4.711%.

The loan is authorized under the following by-laws: No. 290, $8,800, sewers; No. 291, $1,700, sewers; No. 294, $6,900, sewers; No. 302, $9,000, streets; No. 303, $30,000, improvement works; No. 306, $29,000, sewers and No. 307, $17,800, waterworks. The new debentures are callable for redemption prior to maturity.

For 1954, St. Eustache has an assessed valuation of $4,663,751. As of December 31, 1953, the net funded debt of the Corporation amounted to $400,000, of which $113,000 was for public utilities. The town has a population of 3,406.

Local Farmer Grows Own Savings Bonds

Tree farmer Jim Berry (right), of R.R. 7, Lachute, seen here delivering a truckload of logs from his woodlot to the Canadian International Paper mill in Hawkesbury, Ont., claims "there is enough wood in this load to buy a $50 Canada Savings Bond". He has been purchasing Savings Bonds regularly over the years. "They need paper to make bonds", he says, "and paper comes from trees. Well, I grow trees. When sales are good, I buy a Savings Bond and leave it in the bank. It's first-class security if you happen to need a loan later." . . . Measuring the logs is scaler Laurent Brunette, of Hawkesbury.

CAUTIOUS APPROACH

Ottawa (CP) — If J. T. Dyment, director of engineering for Trans-Canada Air Lines, is right, helicopters or jet transports will not be in extensive use by commercial air lines in Canada for at least six years. He told the Canadian Aeronautical Institute that "helicopters will not pay their way until at least 1960."

Odd Fellows Hold District Conclave

A representative gathering of members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was held in the Brownsburg Consolidated School on Saturday, with eight lodges represented in a joint meeting of Districts Nos. 1 and 2.

D.D.G.M. A. R. Patterson for No. 1, and D.D.G.M. A. H. Wadsworth, were in charge of the meeting, at which several matters of importance were discussed.

Earlier in the evening supper was served to those present, by wives of the local members — to whom a hearty vote of appreciation was extended.

Past Sovereign Grand Messenger W. K. McArthur gave the address of welcome.

Among those attending and at the head table were Bro. L. Parker, of Lennoxville, Grand Master for the Province of Quebec; P. Walton, of Lennoxville, Grand Patriarch, and John Dever, of Montreal, Grand Secretary.

Catholic League Held Supper at Grenville

(Our District Correspondent)

Northern Grenville —

A bean supper, sponsored by the Catholic Women's League Subdivision of Argenteuil, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McCart last Friday evening. The supper, directed by Mrs. McCart and Mrs. Martin Lowe, was largely attended. A fruit cake, beautifully frosted by Mrs. Russell Owens of Grenville, added to the proceeds through a drawing. The cake was won by Mrs. Eric Cahill, of Calumet Island. . . Mr. and Mrs. McCart wish to thank their many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted by attending and by giving donations.

Former County Couple Feted in Saskatchewan On 60th Anniversary

An event which is of interest to relatives and friends in this district took place in the Elfros (Sask.) Legion Hall recently, when neighbors and friends met to celebrate the 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bennett.

The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers, and the head table was graced by a three-tiered wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett (Hannah Cruise) were married in Lachute on September 20, 1894, and lived in Dalesville till 1906, when they moved to Wadena, Sask. In that community they farmed for a number of years, later moving to Elfros where they now reside.

After a musical program, the Rev. D. Creighton made a short speech. Mr. Percy Mawhinney extended best wishes, and Mr. Angus McLeod presented Mr. and Mrs. Bennett with a chest of silver and a purse of money. Mrs. Bennett was also presented with a brilliant pin from the Ladies' Aid.

Mr. Wm. Gray expressed the thanks of the family for these gifts. Three of their six children were present.

Relatives of Mrs. Bennett in the East are — nieces, Miss E. Barker, of Montreal, Mrs. Kent de Conde, of Pointe Claire; nephews, Roy Cruise, of Brownsburg, John, Gordon C., Lawrence and Gordon P. Cruise, of Lachute.

ANONYMOUS DONOR

Truro, N.S. (CP) — The Nova Scotia auxiliary of the Bible Society has been bequeathed $90,000 by an anonymous Nova Scotian to aid its work.

Of Ottawa's total annual revenues, nearly three dollars out of four come from sources other than personal income taxes.

Twins Celebrate 75th Birthday

The many friends of Mrs. W. F. Villeneuve, of Carillon, will be interested to hear that she and her twin sister, Mrs. F. F. O'Reilly, of Toronto, recently celebrated their 75th birthday.

Mrs. Villeneuve and Mrs. O'Reilly are daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bryerton of Carillon, and will doubtless be remembered by many as "The Bryerton Twins, Annie and Tessie."

Mrs. Villeneuve journeyed to Toronto for the occasion, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. G. Poole and her husband. An anniversary luncheon was served at Mrs. O'Reilly's home in Toronto on October 11, which was attended by many friends and relatives. After the luncheon was over "the twins" were presented with a great many beautiful gifts.

Among the guests present were Mrs. O'Reilly's son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Reilly, and their little daughters, Patricia and Anne; her two daughters and husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gough, and little Miss Mary Jane Gough, of Halleybury, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mulvihill, and wee Mary Ann, Sheila and Paul, Jr. — as well as another daughter, Miss Mary O'Reilly, of Toronto, Mr. Harold Gorman, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Poole, Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. John Cardy, Port Credit, Mr. and Mrs. Gough, Sr., and Miss M. Giroux, Toronto.

Mrs. Paul Mulvihill also entertained for her mother and her aunt on Saturday, October 9.

Bible Briefs

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the young King of Israel who offered a sacrifice to the Lord on the altar at Gibeon and that night the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, "Ask what I shall give you."

Remembering all the vast number of people whom he must rule, and also perform the service of the Chief Judge of the land, the young King made a very wise request. "Give thy servant therefore an understanding mind to govern thy people, that I may discern between good and evil."

Then God answered this king, "Because this was in your heart, and you have not asked possessions, wealth, honor, or the life of those who hate you, and have not even asked long life, but have asked wisdom and knowledge for yourself . . they are granted to you. I will also give you riches, possessions and honor, such as none of the kings had who were before you, and none after you shall have the like."

This prophecy came true and this King was famous for his wisdom throughout his own land. His reputation spread abroad and the Queen of Sheba came to test him with hard questions. But he was able to explain whatever she asked.

Then when she said farewell and departed, the king gave the Queen of Sheba gifts and she left him one hundred and twenty talents of gold, a great quantity of spices, and precious stones. Many of the presents of gold and stones and wood were used in the building of a beautiful temple for the Lord. The name of this King who ruled for forty years is found in 1 Kings, 3 Chapter, Verses 3 to 15.

2 Chronicles, 1 Chapter, Verses 7 to 13, and in Chapter 9.

W. A. Deanery Meeting Successful Gathering At Trinity, Lakefield

Lakefield — The 31st Deanery W.A. meeting was held last Thursday, with Communion service in Holy Trinity Church; the rector, Rural Dean the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, was the celebrant, assisted by his son, the Rev. H. G. Baugh of Morin Heights, and the Rev. P. R. Stote of Grenville. The Rev. H. Baugh was guest preacher, taking as his text Romans IV, verse 14. "I am deptor both to the Greeks and the Barbarians, both to the wise and to the unwise." There were around 100 communicants participating.

Luncheon was served in the Gibb Hall by the Lakefield W.A., assisted by their neighbors and friends. (Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh would like to thank all for their help, also Mr. L. Legg, for the beautiful arrangement of flowers in the church and hall.)

Mrs. Baugh entertained her guests for tea and a social hour in the hall.

The afternoon session was opened at 2 p.m. by the Rural Dean with a special prayer for Peace. Mrs. Baugh was chairman for this session, extending a warm welcome to members and visitors. Mrs. Lucas, vice-pres., brought greetings from the Montreal board, and then introduced the officers and speakers. The following were guest speakers: Mrs. Dowker, hon. vice-pres.; Canon A. H. Davis, M.S.C.C.; Miss Rice, Dom. Supervisor of Children's Works.

Mrs. Doig, Diocesan secretary, thanked Mrs. Dowker; Mrs. R. B. Henry, of Arundel, thanked Canon Davis; and Mrs. Woolcome, vice-pres., thanked Miss Rice.

Mrs. C. R. Lang voted, and Miss Robertson seconded, that the collection be apportioned to the Montreal Bible Society, earmarked for India-Pakistan field work.

The next Deanery W.A. meeting will be held in Weir, Que.

The gathering was brought to a close with prayers by the Rev. C. R. Lang, of Lachute.

Mrs. Baugh entertained her guests for tea and social hour in the hall.

Canada Shown in Colorful Movies

Sea sport on the East Coast, beaches and gardens on the West Coast, canoe cruising in Ontario, and mountain pony riding in the Rockies, are features of a film program to be presented in St. Simeon's parish hall at 8 p.m. Thursday next, October 28, under auspices of the Women's Auxiliary.

An added feature will be an animated cartoon, "The History of Transportation", a National Film Board production which won an Academy Award in Hollywood and had a long run in New York.

Walter Payne, formerly chief of the Canadian Pacific Motion Picture Bureau, who has recently returned from a western trip, will act as commentator.

Annual Meeting Oct. 24 Bible Society Branch At Brownsburg

Brownsburg — The annual meeting of the Brownsburg Branch of the Bible Society will be held in the United Church, Brownsburg, at 7 p.m. on Sunday, October 24.

The Rev. DeCourcey H. Rayner, field secretary of the Society, is on the sick list and will therefore be unable to be present to show films. However, Capt. Howard Doig has kindly agreed to take the service. Capt. Doig is an Army Chaplain who served in Korea. His address will be of considerable interest. Being a native of Lachute adds to the interest of his visit here.

Clergy of Diocese To Exchange Pulpits Next Sunday

The clergy of the Diocese of Montreal will exchange pulpits on Sunday next.

From the Deanery of St. Andrews, the Rural Dean, the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, will preach at Ahuntsic. The Rev. C. R. Lang will be at St. Margaret's, Tetreaultville, in the morning, and at St. Paul's, Cote des Neiges, in the evening. The Rev. H. G. Baugh speaks at Ste. Anne de Bellevue in the morning and at St. Cyprian's, Montreal, in the evening. The Rev. Mark Beaufoy, of Montebello, preaches at St. Mark's, St. Laurent, in the morning and the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Montreal, in the evening. The Rev. P. R. Stote, of Grenville, will go to the Church of the Redeemer, Cote St. Paul, in the morning and to St. Cuthbert's Church, Park Extension, in the evening.

Clergy visiting the Deanery this Sunday will be the Rev. W. M. Trivett, of Terrebonne, at St. Simeon's, Lachute. The Rev. J. G. Pearce, of St. Ignatius, Montreal, will preach in Lakefield Parish. The Rev. Prof. H. H. Walsh takes services in Arundel Parish. The Rev. Dr. Slater, principal of the Diocesan Theological College, will speak at the Parish of Montebello. The Rev. Norman Peterson, Church of St. Columba, Notre Dame de Grace, will be at the Parish of Grenville. The Rev. Canon Naylor, of Trinity Memorial Church, Notre Dame de Grace, will return for this Sunday to the Parish of Rawdon where he was a popular rector several years ago.

Youth Sunday Observed In Anglican Churches Calumet and Grenville

Grenville — A capacity congregation of over 152 children, young people and parents filled St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, for the special Youth Service last Sunday morning. Over 50 Cubs, Brownies and Girl Guides, with their leaders and many families, entered wholeheartedly into the service. Visitors were noted from Avoca, Calumet, Stonefield, Longueuil, Hawkesbury and Toronto. "How big are you? How big is your God?" were questions dealt with in the address given by the rector, who pointed out that Jesus is the "close up" way of knowing God.

Special Youth Services were held also in the Parish at Holy Trinity, Calumet, and at Kilmar. Children and parents made up the larger part of the congregations.

On Sunday afternoon at St. Matthew's, Grenville, there were five baptisms.

Moose Jaw, Sask. (CP) — Mayor L. H. Lewry of Moose Jaw is leading a campaign to preserve a little rural church near here as a historic site. The wooden building, 70 years old, was a centre of pioneer activities, but after standing idle for more than 30 years has been sold as a cottage.

Hear Both Sides

"If one gives answer before he hears, it is his folly and shame." (Prov. 18: 13). Do you hear arguments against the Bible, and decide against the Bible's side? If one does, "it is his folly and shame." Science acknowledges a beginning and confirms the Bible order of creation, the global flood, the tower of Babel, the fiery end of Sodom and Gomorrah, Israel's entry into Canaan, the fall of Jericho's walls; in short, one scientist said of the Bible: "There is actual history at the back of all of the narratives." The Bible shows a knowledge of health only recently gained by medical science. And when the reasoning mind notes Bible prophecies fulfilled centuries later there is built up an imposing basis for belief.

Many Bible prophecies are being fulfilled now. One is concerning a new world: "There are new heavens and a new earth that we are awaiting according to his promise, and in these righteousness is to dwell." Do you scoff? Then you fulfill prophecy, for the Bible foretold many would. (2 Pet. 3: 13, 3). Hear the Bible's side, and your scoffing will be crowded out by a faith based on knowledge. Will you hear before you answer, and avoid folly and shame? Read the 64-page booklet — Basis for Belief in a New World. It is sent on a 5 cent contribution. — Watch Tower, 40 Irwin Avenue, Toronto 5, Ont.

SPORTS AND JUVENILE ACTIVITIES

On the Sports Scene At Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — On the local sports scene Peter Ness, with 313, picked up the merchandise prize of the week from Dow Breweries' René Laurin. A score of 291 assured Mrs. John Rutherford of second prize. Ed Cribb and Geraldine Berniquer took similar honors the previous week.

* * *

The rink received a minor setback last week, but there seems little doubt that the pipes will be installed this week-end. Rink officials were non-committal about opening day, but it can be gathered they still figure on ice in mid-November.

* * *

The hockey club had a meeting, at which was re-affirmed their intention "not to pay anyone." It seems likely, although no promises have been made, that the old guard, Gagné, Hewitt and Racine, will play for the Bombers if the schedule provides for a less hectic itinerary than last year. . . Lachute High School Sports and Social News

By Jackie Murdoch

The Intermediate girls' basketball team opened their season with a 11 to 6 victory over Brownsburg. Top scorers for Lachute were Pat Stansfield and Shirley Pollock; for Brownsburg, Joanna Steele and Amy Hazel.

The Intermediate boys' team did not have much luck, as they bowed 39 to 16 to Brownsburg. Top scorers for Brownsburg were M. Stewart and A. McGibbon; for L.H.S., Bruce McDonald and Wayne Bradford.

The Senior girls' team opened their season by defeating Hudson 42 to 29, at Hudson. Top scorers for L.H.S. were Betty Underhill and Audrey Copeland; for Hudson, Sandra and Janet Rattray.

This week at L.H.S. the Senior girls' and boys' basketball teams will play Brownsburg at Lachute on Friday night at 7.15. Everyone is welcome.

Football, under the coaching of Mr. Martin, is becoming one of the top sports at L.H.S. The line-up for Lachute this year comprises: Halves, D. MacTavish, G. Bennett, B. Steele; Quarter, K. MacTavish; Middles, Goldthorp, Stephens, Lummis; Ends, Cairns, Tomalty, and Murdoch. They defeated Brownsburg 29 to 0 last Friday and were defeated by the Grads 6 to 1 on Saturday. Good blocking by Stephens, Goldthorpe and Lummis helped them obtain their victory against Brownsburg. The ball was thrown well by K. MacTavish, and T. Murdoch played a good game on defence. There was some good receiving on the part of M. Tomalty.

A Hallowe'en Party will be held at Lachute High School next Friday night, October 29, for benefit of the Red Cross.

Alexandria and Vank. Hill Teams Join Hockey League

Aim for Six-Team Group This Season; L'Orignal Not Entered

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — A meeting of the Hockey League was held at the Duhamel Hotel on Tuesday night. It was reported that the Central Ottawa Valley League had disbanded and that Alexandria would enter this league. Vankleek Hill was well represented at the meeting, and they said they would enter the league if permission to play outside players was given. Both teams were duly accepted into the league.

A motion was made and carried that any player who has at any time signed a Senior card could only play with the approval of the league executive.

It was generally agreed that a six-team league be most acceptable, and when l'Orignal announced they would not participate it was decided to invite Rigaud. They are expected to be represented at the next league meeting.

Hawkesbury were returned the right to their players who played for l'Orignal last year. The Bulldozers will be missed in the league, but they feel they will not have the backing of the town.

Hawkesbury announced that Joe and Togo Larocque, Euclid Landriault, Gerry Bender and Réal Villeneuve would not be with Richports this year.

Lachute announced that to date they have only Millette, Martin, Riddell, Desjardins and Gagné lined up.

Insurance policies were agreed on for the league, to cover player hospitalization and treatment for injuries.

The next meeting was called for next Thursday at King Edward Hotel, Hawkesbury.

Distance Lends Glamor To Bygone Hockey

SPORTS CAMERA
By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Were the "good old days" really that good? Were the old-time hockey players beyond comparison with today's brand? Has color vanished from the game?

Hap Day, a player of a couple of decades back and now general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, doesn't think so.

Where, he wonders, would the old-timers find a more spectacular operator than Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings, who has won the National Hockey League scoring title for four straight seasons?

No glamor men of the remember-away-back-when clan ever matched that feat. A few — like Charlie Conacher of the Maple Leafs, Sweeney Schriner of the old New York Americans and Max Bentley while performing with the Chicago Black Hawks — had managed it two seasons in succession.

Granted, exceptional performance doesn't necessarily imply color. Charley Gehringer of the Detroit Tigers some 20 years ago was one of the greatest second basemen of all time. But the fans scarcely noted his presence on the ball field until they checked over the box scores and found who was making the vital double plays and getting the hits.

Color and Class

But that doesn't apply to Howe. When the big right-winger snares the puck and starts toward the goal he draws the fans to their feet.

And how about Montreal Canadians' Rocket Richard. Day asks. He has more color than a painter's vest and 20 years from now fans will be swapping yarns about his blinding burst of speed from the blue line to the net.

And there's plenty of color about the Rocket off the ice, too. Remember the tempest stirred up last season by his comments about league president Clarence Campbell in the ghost-written stories? And how he brooded all night over a penalty he was given in Montreal and went after the referee in a New York hotel the next day.

Perhaps the greatest crowd-thriller in the old days was Howie Morenz of Montreal Canadiens. Even in the twilight of his great career while playing for the now-defunct St. Louis Eagles, Howie electrified the rink with his rushes from behind his own net.

Bill Cook, a fine man with a puck himself and former coach of the New York Rangers, says there has never been anything like it.

And Eddie Shore of Boston Bruins. Cook recalls seeing him circle the New York goal two or three times before he got his shot away.

But that couldn't happen today. "For one thing, those forecheckers probably would have nailed him before he got out of his own end of the rink," Cook said. "That's one thing people overlook; the improvement in defence today."

And there's a monetary restraint on color now but it still oozes through.

In the old days the team picked up the tab when a player was fined for an outburst. They don't do it any more; a player pays his own fines. That makes a grandstander think it over before he puts on a temperamental display.

Lachute Scouts and Cubs Reorganized for Season

The opening meeting of the 1st Lachute Troop of Boy Scouts was held last evening, Wednesday, in the basement of Lachute High School. There was a good turnout, and several members of the newly-organized Group Committee were present at the meeting.

The services of a new group of leaders for the Scouts as well as the Cubs have been enlisted. In charge of the Scouts is Fred Jeffries, with Mervin Bolstad and Art Phillips as assistants. Stewart Jones is the Group Committee representative to the troop.

Heading the Cub Pack, who will hold their first meeting in the High School basement next Tuesday evening at 6.30, is Cubmaster Bill Brown, who will be assisted by Perry Rowe, Donald MacRae, Jr., and Bob Giles, Jr., Stuart Armstrong is acting as the Group Committee representative to the Cub Pack.

CURRENT SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Conducted Radio Tour "In Search of Ourselves"

In radio drama, few scripts have appeared in the last five years which are more topical, more Canadian, more penetrating in psychological insight than those Len Peterson has written for "In Search of Ourselves", one of the Dominion network's annual series planned by Marjorie McEnaney of CBC Toronto in collaboration with the Canadian Mental Health Association.

For the new series which starts on October 25, Peterson has prepared 10 brand-new scripts which Mrs. McEnaney declares to be of "exceptionally high quality", even in comparison with Peterson's earlier work which has brought him, and producer Esse Ljungh, many coveted awards.

Like all good radio, the programs are, first and foremost, entertaining. This is something Peterson accomplishes with his celebrated dramatic technique. But beyond that, in every program, there is the opportunity for listeners to gain new insight into their own behavior and the behavior of those around them. What Peterson gives the listener is a true-to-life reflection of the inner struggles many people are coping with in Canada today. It's up to the listener, after that, to use what he hears, to make life happier for himself, his relatives and his friends.

Varied Scenes on TV "Window on Canada"

The Friday-evening feature "Window on Canada", presented in co-operation with the National Film Board, has a new format this season. Each program includes not only an NFB film production but a discussion.

Among the films to be presented during the next few weeks are "Look to the Forest", followed by a discussion on Canada's forest resources with Robson Black of Montreal, president emeritus of the Canadian Forestry Association; and "Shop Steward", followed by a discussion with Gower Markle of the United Steelworkers of America on the role of trade unions in the community and the kind of development to be expected in the future.

Later, viewers will see the film "Ballot-o-Maniac", with Dr. Roby Kidd, of Toronto, and Dr. R. O. MacFarlane, of Ottawa, discussing how Canadians use their franchise and the significance of this for the future of our democracy. "Men at Work" will be followed by a discussion between Gower Markle, and George MacDowell of the Canadian General Electric Company. "Ti-Jean Goes Lumbering" will also be seen, and on this occasion Clyde Gilmour, spokesman for the series, will have with him a group of Ottawa school children.

THINGS LOOKING TOUGH

There's no peace for an honest crook now that John Aylesworth and Frank Peppiatt have opened up a detective business of their own. The sparkling comedians have a weakness for satire on anything from sleuthing to soap operas — and they're back on CBC Television this year in a new gala variety show "On Stage". With them are singing emcee George Murray, vocalists Terry Dale, Phyllis Marshall, Wally Koster, the Bill Brady Sextet, Jack Kane's Orchestra, and a host of dancers. "On Stage" will be seen on all television stations in Canada.

Epic Story Recalled

Famous battles of the Crimean War, including the charge of the Light Brigade 100 years ago this week, will be recalled by Colonel C. P. Stacey, of Ottawa in a broadcast at 10.20 p.m. October 24 on Trans-Canada. Colonel Stacey remarks that the charge, though a failure, is remembered because Tennyson wrote a good poem about it; he wrote a bad one about the charge of the Heavy Brigade and it's forgotten now, even though it succeeded.

Can't Twirl, But How She Can Strut

—Central Press Canadian

Canada's strutting champion is Myrna McCollum, 15-year-old schoolgirl from St. Catharines, Ont. Strutting, in the eyes of the judges who carefully checked the 80 entries in the competition at Simcoe, Ont., was very different to baton twirling. Myrna admitted to be an indifferent baton twirler—but her strutting left nothing to be desired.

JOLSON NOTES

(Specially Contributed)

With this article the Al Jolson Memorial Club begins a series of features on the life and times of "the World's Greatest Entertainer", Al Jolson, together with news of his film and record releases, activities of the A.J.M.C. and its local chapter, etc. We feel sure that readers of this column will enjoy reliving the past with us, and will be interested in hearing about the records and movies through which Al Jolson continues to entertain us.

Al Jolson was born Asa Yoelson, in Srednick, Russia. As a young boy he emigrated to Washington, D.C., with his family. His father dreamed that Asa should one day succeed him as Cantor at the local synagogue. But Asa soon found that show-business was his first love, and Cantor Yoelson reluctantly gave his approval.

It was a long, hard road that Asa Yoelson travelled to reach the top of the entertainment world. Along the way he changed his name to Al Jolson, and adopted blackface and a synthetic Southern drawl. Finally he hit Broadway in the successful "La Belle Paree".

Jolson was now "Sittin' on Top of de World", as stage hit followed stage hit. His public saw him as a man who had his faults, even as you and I, but whose good points (as with most of us) far outweighed the bad. They saw in him an entertainer who put everything he had into each song, who continually amazed them with his seemingly inexhaustible energy. They saw in him a personality who, at benefits, raised millions for charity, and who gave other millions from his own pocket.

In 1927, Al headed west to make his first film, "The Jazz Singer", which was also the first full-length film with sound (Al's songs plus a few lines of dialogue). This was a tremendous success, and more hit-movies and stage-plays followed over the years. In 1941, "Mistah Jolson" began a series of tours in which he entertained the Armed Forces, bringing a touch of home to the boys "over there". An almost fatal illness in 1945 caused him to lose the use of one lung. They said he was washed up as a singer, but he surprised everyone (probably including himself) by making a sensational comeback via "The Jolson Story", one of the all-time great movies. "Jolson Sings Again" followed.

1950 found Al boosting the morale of the troops once gain, this time in Korea. But 42 shows in 16 days was too much for even a man who seemed ageless, and on October 23, 1950, the world was stunned to hear that Al Jolson had suffered a fatal heart attack in San Francisco.

• • •

Each year at this time members of the Al Jolson Memorial Club write to various radio and TV shows requesting that tributes be given to "the greatest of 'em all" on the occasion of the anniversary of his death. With the thought that others may wish to listen to these eulogies, we list below the radio programs to which we have written. We cannot guarantee that these programs will co-operate, but usually the majority do. (All times Eastern Standard).

Community Concert Pianist October 25

Community Concert-goers are anticipating with pleasure the first program of the current season — next Monday, October 25, in the Lachute High School auditorium — when Joseph Battista, brilliant young American pianist, will be the guest artist. Following are a few plaudits from the press on his ability and performance:

"He is being talked about as something special."
— New York World-Telegram

"He has powerful and agile fingers, plenty of temperament and a seeking, poetic, musical mind." — Washington Star

"A topnotch artist. It is a good bet that he is due for future appearance here."
— Denver Post

"A truly fine artist."
— Philadelphia Bulletin

"The piano recital of Joseph Battista was an event long to be remembered."
— Worcester Gazette

Scotsman For Ever – Pantless

By Lewis Milligan

"Edinburgh-born Douglas Scurrah has become New Zealand's most famous postman — simply by refusing to wear pants." Thus begins a news item from that island down under. It is explained that when he took his job while on a visit to New Zealand, the Scotsman applied to the Government for permission to wear the kilt. He said he had not bought a pair of trousers for fifteen years, and had worn kilts since he was a child. At first the Government insisted that all postmen, including Mr. Scurrah, must wear the uniform, but later relented. Mr. Scurrah, who identified his name as of North of Ireland origin, said he had bought his attire, a familiar sight in Auckland, for $50 nine years ago and intended to wear it.

This reminded me of a story told by Ian Maclaren of an incident that occurred while he was on a lecture tour in New Zealand. After one of his lectures on Scottish characters, a member of the audience in full highland costume came up to him, grasped his hand with a firm grip, and said: "Aye, mon, we are a mighty people!" To which the lecturer modestly returned: "Aye, my friend, but we have our faults, of course." "Hach, mon, but they're not worth mentioning!" declared the highlander.

Exiled Scots in Canada do not insist on wearing the kilt in their regular avocations, and it is very probable that few of them ever wore such a garment, unless at an annual dinner of the St. Andrew's Society or the Burns Club. Even Canadian Scots of the second and third generation have been known to appear on those and other occasions in full tartan regalia, complete with the sporran, as a proud satute to their forefathers. I know one high court judge in Toronto who has the complete outfit and who will eagerly don it at the slightest Caledonian provocation.

When I was a reporter on the old Toronto Globe, which was then dubbed "The Scotman's Bible", I was frequently assigned to report the regular meetings of the Scottish societies in the city, of which there were many formed by newly arrived immigrants. In addition to the Caledonian, the St. Andrew's and the Burns societies, there were separate groups representing almost all the countries from which the migrants came, and they all seemed to be homesick to a man and woman. There was never a meeting at which a soloist didn't sing, "Oh, I'm longing for my ain folk". I covered the monthly meetings of the Burns Society so often that they made me a member and later their president. I was the first Sassenach to hold that position, having been born over the border, but they tolerated me because of my mixture of Scottish and Welsh Celtic blood. Moreover, I could claim, like Mr. Scurrah, to have worn the kilt as a child and was thus initiated into a highland clan. But I never acquired a Scottish accent, which was the "password" to inner Scottish circles and to some jobs in those days, especially where the foreman was a Scot.

A rich, rolling burrr on the tongue was a great asset with Presbyterian ministers preaching for a call, and it was said that some of them cultivated the accent for that purpose. At least you could understand what they were saying in the pulpit, for they pronounced every word distinctly, which is more than can be said of either Scottish or English preachers in these days. There is nothing worse than a Scotsman from Glasgow trying to preach with an Oxford accent; his speech sounds like a mixture of Hungarian and Chinese. After listening to such a preacher recently I asked an elder what kind of language was that? He replied, "That's the language of the Garden of Eden." He was referring to the Gaelic, of course; but I doubt if the old Gaels of Zorra or of Cape Breton could have understood a word that preacher was saying.

Thanks, Mr. Scurrah, for this diversion. Scots, wha hae!

PRECIOUS PEBBLE

BACK IN 1825 the Danish scientist Oersted produced the first pebble of metallic aluminum. Half a century passed before a technique was discovered for turning out the metal in quantity.

Modern processing of bauxite ore to make low-cost aluminum uses fantastic quantities of power. That is why Canada is one of the world's major aluminum suppliers. In Quebec province, smelters at Arvida, Shawinigan Falls, Isle Maligne and Beauharnois last year used nearly one-fifth of the country's total electrical output. And in British Columbia new sources of water power are feeding the pot lines of the new smelter at Kitimat. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

Meat Patties

Common to all of us is our love of beef. That is quite a broad statement to make because how many other foods are there that we can say everyone loves. Our meat consumption figures show that Canadians eat a lot of beef and pork, but not so much lamb and veal. Statistics also show that Canadian prefer roasts to other cuts, but the butcher has to sell all the cuts and we cannot just ignore some of them. And so, the home economists of the Consumer Section want to tell you about a type of meat that many homemakers do not buy very often, ground meat. In saying that it is a type of meat which is not bought very often we are not quite correct because after all every homemaker is very familiar with ground beef whether it is minced round steak or hamburger. But, it is the less common ground meats such as ground pork, ground veal and ground lamb they want to describe to you.

Starting with the ground pork — there are two types of ground pork available, sausage meat which is ground pork to which seasonings have been added and plain unseasoned ground pork. Both ground veal and lamb are usually sold unseasoned. There is a very good reason for mentioning the fact that they are unseasoned. All ground meats can be bought in bulk by the pound, but frequently the ground meat sold in butcher shops has been shaped into patties and sold as meat patties with a dash of paprika on the top. These patties look very attractive and are a good buy, but Mrs. Homemaker should realize that she should add a little salt and pepper and other seasonings before cooking. The home economists also suggest that these patties may be served with a spicy meat sauce or gravy.

As mentioned, ground meat can be bought by the pound and can be made up into patties. Consumer Section offers this excellent basic meat patty recipe:

1½ pounds minced lamb, veal or pork, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ to ¾ teaspoon seasoning, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce (optional), ¼ cup finely chopped onion, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons water.

Mix meat and seasonings. Brown onions in a little fat if desired. Add slightly beaten egg and water. Shape into patties about ½ inch thick. Panfry or broil.

Season lamb with thyme or basil.

Season veal with thyme, marjoram or savoury.

Season pork with marjoram, sage or savory.

If desired patties may be dipped in dry bread crumbs then dipped in 1 egg slightly beaten with 2 tablespoons water, and dipped in additional crumbs.

Panfry — Brown 1 - 1½ minutes each side on moderate heat in a small amount of fat. Reduce heat and continue cooking 8 - 10 minutes each side. Drain fat off lamb and pork patties before turning them. Cover pork and veal patties after browning.

Broil — Follow general directions for broiling. Broil patties approximately 2 inches from heating unit until 4 to 6 minutes each side or until well browned.

Now is the time to refurbish worn fibre rugs before they are stored for the winter. Canvas paint or shingle stain can be used to restore their color. Canvas paint will also help conceal old blemishes in a severely worn rug. To make it skid resistant as well, coat the back with neoprene rubber paint. This synthetic rubber, now being produced in liquid form, can be applied like paint. If the finish of the floor beneath the rug doesn't have to be considered, fine sand sprinkled on the neoprene coating while it is still damp will give it an even tighter grip.

The back-wrap skirt is in a copper and black imported tweed with stitched gores in umbrella effect.

Diabetics May Lead Good, Active Lives With Adequate Care

Toronto (CP) — What do people do when they learn they have diabetes?

When Mrs. M. D. Muttart, of Edmonton, a mother of two, learned 23 years ago she had the incurable ailment, she kept right on going. She's still going today.

When she's at home she goes to her office every day. There, as a director of Muttart Enterprises, she helps her husband supervise the activities of 70 building trades firms. She's an ardent church worker, belongs to a music club and a drama society, paints china as a hobby, and she's a former golfer.

In between, she's had time to raise her two children and see them married. And now she's a grandmother.

Mrs. Muttart hasn't forgotten her ailment though.

Recently in Toronto, she was elected president of the newly-formed Canadian Diabetic Association. She was one of its prime movers.

Dr. Charles Best, a co-discoverer of insulin, and Health Minister Paul Martin are vitally interested in the work.

Irksome Restrictions

Mrs. Muttart explained that diabetes mainly afflicts persons in the middle to older-age groups. Many have enjoyed good health and the regimentation to a controlled diet and way of life essential to survival comes harder than it would to persons accustomed to many ailments or long illness.

Now she spends a good deal of her time travelling around the country organizing support for more research and information and stirring up interest of diabetics in the association.

"We hope to reach every diabetic in Canada," she said. "There are still too many diabetics who feel that the condition is one not to be discussed, even with other sufferers."

"I want those particularly who are at first shattered with the discovery of the condition to know what a good, full and busy life anyone can lead," she said.

Diner: "What kind of pie is this — apple or peach?"

Waitress: "What does it taste like?"

Diner: "Glue."

Waitress: "Well, then it's peach. The apple tastes like putty!"

W.I. Courses Available

This is the time of year that branches of the Quebec Women's Institutes study plans for next year's courses. All applications must always be in the office by the first of the ensuing year, thus giving time for the entire year's schedule to be drawn up in advance.

No revision has been made in the Program Manual this year, the slight changes in courses offered being covered by a circular distributed with the application forms. Two types of slipper making are offered and hat remodelling is being added. The other courses are unchanged.

The value of the workshop type of instruction is again being stressed. Whenever geographically feasible this is the most successful form of carrying on the courses. Miss N. Hazel, Handicraft Technician, who has just returned from one set up in Bonaventure County for the branches of Port Daniel, Marcil and Shigawake reports 65 pairs of gloves and 15 pairs of slippers made during the three weeks spent there. This is a splendid record. Another workshop is planned for this fall in Stanstead County, with Beebe as the centre.

Vietnamese Student Enrols at Western

Eighteen-Year-Old Girl Finds Life "Very Different" In Ontario College

London, Ont. (CP) — Hoang-thi-An, 18-year-old student from Indo-China, thinks Canada is "all so very different" from her country, but she likes it here.

Miss Hoang waited one year after graduation from high school in Viet Nam for a passport to come to Canada. She arrived here via Paris and Montreal to register for a four-year course in business administration at Brescia Hall, an Ursuline college for women at the University of Western Ontario.

Dressed in native costume of pants and tunic, she said she has one regret — her long hair was cut off before leaving home.

"I do not like — but at college long hair is not so easy."

She will wear western dress to classes and keep her native costume for Sunday wear.

"I could not bring sufficient clothes from home to last here for four years," she explained. "And besides, the dress of the girls here is so much more comfortable and practical."

Miss Hoang made her decision to study in London, Ont., after an introduction to a Chicago clergyman. He arranged for her to join a group of 49 other students from Viet Nam to study in colleges across Canada and the United States.

Hopes to Teach

After her course the young student will return home to serve her people.

"I am only just beginning to walk here yet and I really do not know in what way I can best serve," she said. She would like to teach.

She used to word "walk" to indicate progress. Asked about the position of women in business and public affairs in Indo-China, she said:

"Fifty years ago women walk only in the home. Now they walk in banks, offices and government. Now they walk all over."

She arrived in Canada in July and awaited eagerly the start of her first year in college.

"It has been very quiet and sometimes lonely for me here," she said. "At home I am one of seven children."

She already is looking forward to her first summer vacation next year when she will visit Chicago for a reunion with all of the students from Indo-China.

LEGION HONORS SUMMER VISITOR

Chester, N.S. (CP) — The Canadian Legion branch here has bestowed on a woman its highest honor at a ceremony believed unique in the war veterans' organization.

Mrs. W. D. MacNeil of Montreal, who spends her summers in this south shore community, was presented with an honorary life membership for "acts of kindness."

Each summer she spends much of her time raising funds for the 80-member branch and recently she donated a large quantity of china and other equipment.

Question Box

A Public Education Service of

111 Avenue Road, Toronto 5,

In co-operation with this newspaper.

CRUSADING

The function of the Health League has been to crusade. In its early days it gained attention by its crusade for the prevention of venereal disease. Later there was the problem of persuading parents to immunize their children against diphtheria and other readily preventable disease, and this gave birth to a continuing crusade which began with Toxoid Week in Toronto, and is now a national program, Immunization Week.

Other crusades have been for Pasteurization of Milk, Industrial Health programs, Prevention of Alcoholism, to name a few.

Unfortunately, the League's reputation for crusading has attracted people with special and rather dubious axes which they would like the League grind for them. Since not all of these people have been clearly identifiable as cranks, it has been embarrassing and difficult at times to tell them why an organization like the Health League simply could not undertake to grind these axes. Perhaps the answer to the following question will explain why the League must appear sometimes a bit choosy about the sort of crusades it can undertake.

* * *

Question:

"I have followed with interest ly. However, I cannot understand your campaigns for pasteurization of milk, and I commend you highwhy you will not campaign just as strongly against the gradual poisoning of our population by tampering with foods, etc. I reported to you people at one time about the use of deadly refrigerator gas as a preservative for dried fruit, the insect sprays used on fruits and vegetables, the addition of chlorine to pure water, the addition of iodine to salt. All these things, and many others, are forms of public poisoning. It cannot be denied that chlorine and iodine, for example, are poisons. And yet you people and even doctors, who should know better, appear to be totally indifferent. Why don't we at least face the facts and call poison by its right name, poison? Where is the old crusading spirit you have showed in your pasteurization campaigns?"

Answer:

The Health League is a voluntary, lay organization, closely associated with the medical and dental professions. The League crusades for public health measures whenever there is concrete evidence that these measures will save lives or prevent specific illnesses. In crusading for pasteurization of milk, the League acted on certain knowledge of actual deaths caused by the consumption of raw milk. Statistics were available and conclusive reasearches had been undertaken.

If nothing more had been known about pasteurization than that it MIGHT save lives or that raw milk MIGHT under certain circumstances create undesirable effects, the League would have been in no position to initiate any action. As a lay organization it would have had to wait for more conclusive evidence from the medical profession.

You are asking the League to crusade against something you call "gradual poisoning" without citing one single instance of death or serious illness from this so-called "poisoning". You sound like — and probably are — one of the anti-fluoridation agitators who will present reams of arguments about what fluoridation MIGHT do, without presenting a single case history of a single individual damaged in any way by the consumption of properly fluoridated water.

As for calling poison by its right name, poison, almost anything that is edible can become poisonous under certain special circumstances. The Health League cannot be particularly impressed by so-called "poisons" which not only do not poison anybody, so far as is known, but in many cases (particularly with chlorinated or fluoridated water and iodized salt) actually benefit health and act against the true "poisons" of disease.

A chryanthemum by any other name would be easier to spell.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Handcraft Fever

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Children love to touch things and they learn a great deal by using their fingers. If you have ever watched the little tots in a Nursery School, you will have seen their delight in various handicraft activities.

Kindergarten youngsters are eager for the time in the day when they can work with plasticene, and older school children take real pride in objects they make from clay. Blunt scissors, colored paper or a scrapbook and old magazines and paste gives a pupil the chance to build silhouettes, posters, or compile a scrap book. The older boys and girls often want to try their hand at paper mache articles, especially masks and marionettes.

Often when a boy or girl wants to continue a handcraft activity at home which has been enjoyed at school, mother objects.

"It's too messy!" or more often on the grounds that the material is too expensive.

But busy children are happy children. If they are making things at home, parents know they are not getting into mischief elsewhere. Most kitchen floors and tables can be covered with newspapers before the handcraft project begins.

Then when it is ended, the newspaper can be carefully gathered up and put in the garbage. This saves a lot of cleaning up and it is good training for a child to leave his place of work spick and span.

Wearing an apron or smock saves clothes. A mother will find that her husband's old shirts cut off way way down the sleeves and buttoned at the child's back, makes an excellent cover-all!

The following recipes all use materials found in most homes. By taking an interest in making this material, she will not only save a lot of money, but she will also reduce the nerve strain of living with a child who complains, "I've nothing to do!"

Clay can be bought in jars or powdered form to be mixed with water as needed, or it can be made from the following handmade recipe. Mix two cups of flour, one cup of salt and a teaspoonful of alum. Add enough water so that it can be worked easily with the fingers, but do not add so much that it will be sticky. Keep it moist by wrapping it in a damp cloth or in wax paper.

Paste — To one cup of flour, gradually add cold water until it is the right consistency. Add one teaspoon of glycerine to help keep it sweet or buy a box of powdered paste used to apply wall paper. Mix a little at a time as needed in an empty cold cream jar.

Papier Mache — The papier mache objects may take several days to dry, but they are great fun to make. Tear newspapers into small pieces and soak in a tub of hot water over night. Pour off the water and squeeze and wring out as much water as possible from the remaining pulp. Then use a large strainer or sieve to remove any excess water. Next add generous quantities of paste to this pulp mixture. Stir thoroughly with a large spoon.

Add coloring matter now or color the finished product with poster paint. Model with the fingers as if the material was plasticene. Begineers should use a base such as a jar for a vase with a papier mache covering or a child's round cereal box or a salt box as a foundation for a pig. Wads of newspaper with wire to stiffen it can form the body of a doll or marionette. Masks can be modelled over the outside of a large mixing bowl — but remember to apply vaseline first so the mask can be easily removed when dry.

Clip these recipes for future reference. You will only want to use one of them at a time!

A manufacturer of plumbing equipment in London, Ont., has just produced an almost fool-proof water tap. Its handle never heats up, no matter how hot the water becomes or how long it runs. A permanently installed fixture, it is expected not to require the servicing of a plumber or washer-changing during its lengthy leak-free life. Nylon-molded inserts together with a non-wearing gasket of neoprene synthetic rubber, are responsible for this new conception in faucet function and service.

Wife-Preservers

Watermelon and peach stains, which are difficult to remove, will yield if you apply pure glycerine to them and leave it on for a short time, then wash the garment or article in clear water.

WOMAN FROM B.C. IS PROFESSIONAL DOG HANDLER

Calgary (CP) — If a dog has plenty of blue blood and beauty it's of interest to Mrs. Pat Tripp, western Canada's only woman professional dog handler.

The slim, dark-haired woman travels more than 50,000 miles a year to dog shows. She lives in New Westminster, B.C., where she looks after from 50 to 60 dogs, keeps house, and takes care of her two small daughters.

Here for the Alberta Kennel Club's show, Mrs. Tripp explained that professional handling is not something one learns overnight. She served a five-year apprenticeship in some of the largest kennels in England.

Mrs. Tripp arrived in Canada in 1945 as a war bride.

The building of new houses in Canada this year is running ahead of 1953, when more than 100,000 new dwelling units were completed to establish an all-time record high.

Teen-Age Girls Adept Plowmen

Some teen-age girls excell in cooking, sewing or some of the other fine arts of household science. But 16-year-old Mary Byers, top, of Tara, Ont., and 20-year-old Betty Opersko, above, of Waterford, Ont., have another forte. They are skilled plowers, and to prove it, they appeared in competition at the International Plowing Match at Breslau, Ont., last week. Mary has been running a tractor since she was six, while Betty plows 100 of the family's 265 acres a year. Right at home behind a tractor, she first turned a furrow at age of 12.

Important Notice to Holders of Government of Canada 3% Victory Bonds

Garden-Graph

A gardener with foresight can outwit Jack Frost and save late crops which otherwise would be lost.

Tomatoes, for example, can be saved from frost by pulling up the plants and hanging them, top down, in the garage or cellar as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The green fruits will ripen.

Some folks prefer to remove the green tomatoes and lay them on a layer of straw in a cold frame or in flats. Cover the frame with glass but allow ample ventilation.

If you do not have a cold frame, the tomatoes can be picked green, wrapped in old newspapers and stored in shallow cartons. Like those hung up in storage on the whole vine, the fruits stored away in newspapers will ripen and be usable until Christmas.

Thick-skinned root vegetables, such as the rutabaga illustrated, can be kept fresh all winter if you seal the cut ends to retard moisture. Dig them up before heavy freezes, dip them into melted parafin wax, then put them away in storage.

When frost comes the first vegetables to be harvested for storage are beans, winter squash and pumpkins. These tender vegetables must not remain out of doors in freezing temperatures.

Many of the vegetables growing in the garden can be kept prpducing long after the first frost, if protected. Frequently they are two or three weeks of good growing weather following the first frost. The wise gardener, therefore, will have available a supply of straw to throw over lettuce and other greens.

Business Men Visit Mine Sites in Chibougamau

road work had been done by the O'Connell Company who are still at it and at present are building numerous bridges on various routes.

Six months had been allotted as time for the cutting of a wide strip through the forest so that the power line may be put up, but by employing 600 men this job was completed in two months.

In building the main road we were informed that there were in use eight shovels, 12 tractors, four graders, scrapers, two stone crushers and 32 trucks. This of course necessitated many men and camps where they could be properly accommodated and fed, and it was in the main one of these that our party ate and slept so comfortably while on tour. In short the camp resembles a miniature town for on its own diesel power, electricity is supplied and there are numerous small homes for the families of married men employed on the job. For single men there is ample accommodation, with showers, heating, running hot and cold water and all modern conveniences. Food is excellent and served in a dining room adjoining the cook-house. It was here that we enjoyed several hearty meals.

At the present time, the ore is being carried from the mines to St. Felicien, which project requires eight 15-ton O'Connell owned trucks. These leave at short intervals starting at 1 o'clock a.m. for the over 300 mile trip, reaching camp on the return at approximately 4 o'clock p.m. Here the machines are taken to their own garage where they are thoroughly checked and put in proper shape for the next haul. After the last truck has left, a service outfit follows equipped with replacements and repairs in case of break-downs. To give you an idea of the heavy weight carried, we passed on our way back one of the company's large carriers on which was a 40 ton transformer.

The Owner and Proprietor

It was a pleasure to meet and talk with Mr. O'Connell, a quiet, unassuming gentleman whose main idea is getting things done and making people happy. In both of these tasks he is a master, as is evidenced by the many projects undertaken, completed, and still underway, and the loyalty of his many employees who are keenly interested in their work. A competent staff of course helps him greatly, but of necessity he must carry a heavy burden of responsibility. It is nice, however, that in the rush of a busy life he can and does take time off occasionally to mingle and enjoy the fellowship of men such as were in this party and appreciation is expressed for his kindly reception and generous entertainment.

Among others present at this gathering were the sponsor, Hon W. M. Cottingham, D. V. Robertson, President of Angus Robertson, Curé Léo Clement, Rev. Father McGinnis, Denis Gerin, Member for Stanstead, M. J. Boylen, President of Chibougamau Explorers, V. Rumble, of General Motors Ltd., Toronto, F. Renault, a Star reporter, J. Trepanier, "La Patrie" reporter, F. Dumoulin, B. Denis, Geologist, W. Griffin, Explorers Mine Manager and R. Cormier.

Several came and went by planes which landed on the large lake on which the camp borders and it was a pretty sight as we looked from a beautiful new cottage to see these birds of the air gracefully glide in and then take off again with their precious cargo.

To those privileged in making this trip, it has been a wonderful experience which has opened our eyes to the possibilities of our yet unexplored northern country which it is certain, contains much wealth in both lumbering and mining and points to a bright future. It has also made us realize that the newly appointed Minister of Mines, Hon. W. M. Cottingham has a huge task before him in helping to develop this rich northern part of our Quebec province and in which we feel certain he will be successful.

In a few words it is wonderful to think of such rapid development in places where only a few years ago everything had to be transported by plane, and to those who have taken part in this development and were our recent hosts we say "Congratulations and Thank You".

Have You A Question ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. My husband is in the R.C.A.F. and is frequently moved around. I have to move with him. Sometimes he is near a city and sometimes not. I am a comptometer operator and I don't want any other employment for fear of losing my skill. At present I am not employed. Can I claim benefit?

A. By limiting yourself to acceptance of employment only as a comptomter operator you may be disqualified as not being available for work, particularly as in some of the places to which you move such work is non-existent.

* * *

Q. The newspapers said you would pay benefit for persons who are sick. I had to leave my job this spring because of sickness. Now I am told I cannot collect even though I have always paid in. Why is this?

A. Payment of benefit may be continued to a person who falls ill, or becomes injured or is quarantined, while already receiving benefit. Benefit is not paid to a person who loses his employment because of illness, etc., and is incapable of doing any work.

Local Plants In Savings Bond Sales Campaign

No better thrift plan has been developed since the Canadian Government instituted Canada Savings Bonds drives with facilities of the Payroll Savings Plan. Proof exists in the fact that, in October 1953, this method was adopted by more than 700,000 employees throughout the country, and the total sum saved represents an average of $275.00 for each participant.

There are three reasons to explain such participation:

Each dollar invested on Canada Savings Bonds is guaranteed by the whole country; there is no better security.

Each dollar saved to buy Canada Savings Bonds earns 3½% interest.

Each Canada Savings Bond can be cashed at any time at full face value. It is therefore like Cash on Hand.

Those who have not become familiar with Canada Savings Bonds would do well to have a talk with someone who owns them. Owners can tell of worthwhile plans realized through Canada Savings Bonds and of a resulting peace of mind which is the best possible argument for ownership.

Local industries have been actively co-operating with the Bank of Canada, for many years, in helping their employees to subscribe the easy way to the Canada Savings Bonds, the Payroll Savings.

Plants in Lachute and Brownsburg grouped with over 20 in Joliette, St. Jerome and surrounding district for organization purposes, include J. C. Wilson Limited and Canadian Industries (1954) Limited.

KILLS BIG CARIBOU WITH BOW AND ARROW

St. John's, Nfld. (CP) — An American hunter has left Newfoundland toting a big caribou carcass. His only weapon was a bow and arrow and he didn't get closer than 180 feet to the animal before he shot.

A guide who took the hunter deep into the interior of the province, said the archery enthusiast made a perfect shot from 180 feet. The guide did not know the man's name or address.

The provincial wild life department amended its act last year, allowing hunters to shoot caribou with bow and arrow. This was the first kill since the act came in force.

HAY COST

Vancouver (CP) — Farmers in the lower B.C. mainland area are tightening their grip on available hay supplies in face of an expected winter shortage. On-the-farm prices of hay rose from $10 to $12 a ton early in October.

Ottawa Action Follows Outbreaks In Penitentiaries

By Don Peacock,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Oct. 18 (CP) — Canada will have a central institution for isolating the country's toughest penitentiary prisoners.

Cabinet approval in principle, last week, for a Canadian version of the United States' Alcatraz was spurred by the August 13-15 fires and riot at Kingston penitentiary, found to have been stirred up by the Ontario pen's incorrigible minority.

The cabinet, receiving a report on the disturbances from Maj.-Gen. R. B. Gibson, commissioner of Penitentiaries, was advised that incorrigibles should be segregated from the normal penitentiary prisoners.

An informant said the ministers approved the idea of a central institution for the whole country, to which unmanageable prisoners could be transferred from federal prisons. There was no decision on a site, and planning has not gone beyond the general idea of such a prison.

After an investigation, Gen. Gibson reported to the cabinet that a small hard core of incorrigibles was responsible for the Kingston incidents and that the time now has come to consider segregating this type.

He advocated either that "security" blocks be built at individual penitentiaries or that a central establishment be set up to handle the most troublesome of Canada's 5,000 prisoners. He described these as just a small fraction of the total.

Air Disaster Claims

The April 8 mid-air collision over Moose Jaw, Sask., of a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane and an RCAF Harvard trainer, Canada's worst aviation disaster with a loss of 37 lives, has resulted in a tightening of Canadian air regulations and the laying of claims against the crown for $3,632,000.

Exchequer Court of Canada officials said 19 claims have been filed against the crown, in essence the government which owns TCA, by lawyers representing widows, children and estates of some of the victims.

At the same time new regulations aimed particularly at visual flights were announced. Worked out jointly by RCAF and civilian aviation authorities as a result of the disaster, the regulations require that planes flying designated routes or control zones must move at levels of odd or even thousands of feet, depending on the direction they are heading.

Planes crossing these lines generally are to fly halfway between 1,000-foot marks, thus keeping 500 feet between them and the principal routes.

Similar regulations have been in effect for planes flying on instruments since 1946.

Who's brightening your future these 4 ways?

1
Some people are helping to bring your community a new shopping centre, highway, school, power plant or other useful projects. Who are they? Life insurance policyholders! Money from the premiums they pay is invested for them in ways that help finance improvements like these.

2
A longer, healthier life may be yours, thanks in part to life insurance policyholders. Life insurance companies contribute funds to medical research studies designed to free Canadians from the threat of many dread disease.

3
Everybody shares in the prosperity which expanding industries bring to a community. Some industry in your community may have built a new plant and employed more workers because life insurance companies invested money in it on behalf of their policyholders.

4
Some day—perhaps soon—you may want a new home. If so, you may find yourself living happily in one of the thousands of new houses which have been built from coast to coast with the aid of money invested for policyholders by life insurance companies.

So, if you are a life insurance policyholder, remember — while you're providing security for your family and yourself, you're also helping to make Canada a better land to live in!

P.S. From your life insurance man
"Invested life insurance dollars earn interest that makes it possible for you and your family to enjoy the benefits of life insurance at such low cost. If you have any questions about how to make life insurance fit your own special needs, give me a call. I'll be glad to help you!"

Interesting Speakers Heard at W.I. Semi-Annual Convention

Officers and Conveners Installed, Resolutions Adopted on Crime Comics and Civil Defence

New officers and conveners of the Women's Institutes for the County of Argenteuil were installed at the semi-annual convention held Saturday in the Music Room of the Lachute High School — the past-president, Mrs. Gordon Cooke, conducting the ceremony. There were 68 delegates and members present.

Officers and conveners for 1954-1955 are:

President —
Mrs. Mason Crosby, Brownsburg
1st Vice-President —
Mrs. M. R. Wilson, Cushing
2nd Vice-President —
Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, Dalesville
Secretary —
Mrs. Lluton Armstrong, Lachute
Treasurer —
Mrs. Earl Rogers, Lachute
Agriculture —
Mrs. R. J. Seale, Morin Heights
Education —
Mrs. Russel Patterson, Mille Isles
Home Economics —
Mrs. Stanley Smith, Upper Lachute
Citizenship —
Mrs. J. A. Bradley, Carillon
Health & Welfare —
Mrs. Haddon Macdonald, Lakefield
Publicity —
Mrs. Percy Staniforth, Arundel
Fair Work —
Mrs. Foster Campbell and
Mrs. Albert Stewart, Lachute

After the installation ceremony Mrs. Mason Crosby occupied the chair. The provincial convener of Health and Welfare, Mrs. George Leggett, advised the meeting that compulsory pasteurization of milk, a W.I. project, has now been taken up by the C.A.C. Mrs. Leggett told the members that a branch of the "Association for the Help of Mentally-Retarded Children Inc." had been formed here, and urged members to give the Association all the help possible. She also asked the W.I. to back the organizing of a Civil Defence unit in the county, concentrating on Emergency Feeding.

Two resolutions were passed by the convention, one dealing with Crime Comics and the other with Civil Defence.

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, spoke briefly on the rich mining districts of Ungava, Knob Lake and Chibougamau, of the new town springing up, the modern equipment being used and the rich ore being transported by the most modern railroad in the world. Mr. Cottingham was introduced by Mrs. Cooke.

Mrs. Crosby repeated a warning to rural youth who might be contacted by Communists, and urged that they have nothing to do with things they do not understand or do not know the background of.

Mrs. George McGibbon introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Hanly, whose entertaining and well-prepared address on "Insincerity" was much enjoyed and appreciated. Mrs. Gordon Davidson moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Hanly, and Mrs. Crosby moved adjournment.

Forestry Topic At Rotary Club

Last week's Rotary Club meeting was highlighted by an excellent address by Doug Morrison, Chief Forester for the Canadian International Paper Co., and a film on reforestation.

Mr. Morrison's address was of special interest to the local club, since Rotary sponsors this movement in the district. Of 50 tree farms certified in Canada, 28 of these certificates have been issued in Argenteuil County.

Mr. Morrison was introduced by Sonny Ogilvie and thanked by King Amos.

The directors decided at a recent meeting that the club will hold a Turkey Bingo on Friday, November 12, in the Lachute Legion Hall. These bingos have proven their popularity in past years, and it is anticipated that a capacity crowd will again attend. Tickets will be available from members. All arrangements are in the hands of Rotarian Don McFaul.

Sid Stilwell had some fine words to say about a recent inter-club meeting held at Pembroke, Ont., at which 10 or 11 clubs were represented.

Visitors were Bill Patrick of C-I-L, Montreal, and Art Lafrance of Canadian International Paper Co., Grenville.

President Fred Royal was in the chair.

Concert-Goers Thrilled by Season's Opening Recital

Young American Pianist, Joseph Battista, Justifies His Reputation

Joseph Battista's performance here Monday evening, opening the Community Concerts 1954-55 series, was a masterly recital by a pianist who has won acclaim in two continents. His success was understandable to the audience which heard him in Lachute High School auditorium — his rare expression and technique being apparent even to those untutored in the musical arts.

Miss Juliette Rodrigue, president of Lachute Community Concerts Association, welcomed the gathering — which was not as large as anticipated — and in the usual manner of Community Concerts, without fanfare or flourish, the pianist embarked on a varied itinerary of classical moods, tempos and composers.

The opening selections — the ponderous and purposeful Bach Organ Prelude in G Minor (Siloti's transcription), followed by a light, fantastic rondeau of contemporary origin, and Beethoven's Rondo a Capriccio — set the pace in contrasts. The works of well known composers, Schubert, Chopin, Saint Saens, Debussy and Liszt, and of lesser-known exponents like Villa-Lobas (Brazil's foremost living composer and a close friend of the young pianist), painted tone-pictures for the imaginative mind.

Battista's technique is amazing. Equally real — if less apparent than his physical dexterity — is that sympathy which makes him a remarkable "revealer of melodies". With Battista music comes foremost; the artist is but instrumental to the product. The expansive phrases of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody provided a fitting climax for this powerful pianist.

In response to repeated encores, Battista played the only really well known selections of the evening — Liszt's Lieberstraum; Minute Waltz by Chopin; also a Schumann selection.

Disappointing Year For Quebec Agriculture

By Tom McCusker

Quebec, Oct. 26 (CP) — Bad weather has increased production costs have given the Quebec farmer one of his hardest summers on record, Quebec government agricultural experts said last week. But there is no indication of a disaster — just a "below-average year", one expert said.

The important hay yield is expected to top last year's yield of 5,000,000 tons but the value is almost certain to drop from last year's $14 a ton.

Rain-drenched grain fields were so muddy that mechanical harvesting was difficult. Rain-soaked basic crops are presenting a storage problem and apples — another sizeable item — were damaged by heavy winds.

Quebec City district was heaviest hit, experts said, while Montreal and the eastern Townships emerged with less damage.

Although there are no available figures as yet, 1954 was described as a "year of misery" on Quebec's 135,000 farms.

In Rimouski during the week, the Quebec Province Union of Catholic Farmers described the year's farm season as "disastrous" for grain and potato fields. The 40,000-member union asked the Quebec government to ensure seeds would be distributed at reasonable prices this year to the farmers who lost their grain and potato crops as a result of heavy rains.

Lumber Firm To Centralize Sawing Operations

A. D. McGibbon & Sons To Build Large, Modern Plant in Lachute

Preliminary excavating for the new sawmill of A. D. McGibbon & Sons commenced Saturday, and construction is expected to get underway shortly. The 84 by 120 foot building will be of fireproof construction (concrete and steel) and will be a standard one-storey industrial building. The structure will be at the rear of the Company's Chatham Street offices, on the same site as the former McFaul Bros.' mill.

In erecting a large, modern mill with new electrically operated equipment and machinery, it will be possible to concentrate the Company's facilities and do away with the other mills in Dalesville and Pine Hill, with an increase in staff at the new mill.

Although the mill employment is seasonal, the average mill staff is 50 to 60 men, with a peak of over 80 in the summer months. With 25 of these in Lachute at the present time, an additional 15 men will be needed on the completion of the new mill in the early spring.

Road Building Activity

Construction of a cut-off on the Lake Louisa road, shortening the distance from Lachute to the lake by about two miles, has been completed by the McGibbon firm. The new route, which will be a private road until taken over by the Wentworth Municipal Council, cuts in at the Seale farm through to the old cedar bridge at the north-eastern extremity of the lake.

Brownsburg Merchant To the Rescue Again

Joseph Malacket, of Brownsburg, collected an appreciable sum of $100 for the aid of hurricane victims in the Toronto area. The amount will be remitted by the Mayor of Brownsburg, to augment the relief fund created for this purpose.

Mr. Malacket — who has done this sort of thing before, and appears to be motivated by a desire to help when disaster strikes — thanks all who contributed. He also urges others to donate, at either of his stores in Lachute and Brownsburg, or through the banks, where official receipts will be issued for income tax purposes.

Keith Russell to CBC; Successor R. J. McDonell As Farm Forums Sec'y

The Executive of the Quebec Farm Forum Association annnounces the appointment of Robert J. McDonell as secretary-treasurer of the Association, effective November 1.

Mr. McDonell replaces Keith Russell, formerly of Lachute, as Quebec Farm Forum secretary. Mr. Russell has accepted a position with the Farm and Fisheries Department of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Mr. McDonell, 30 years of age, comes to the Quebec Farm Forums with a varied and valuable experience in farming, farm journalism, and organizational work. Besides having a farm of his own, he has been active in Farm Forums, and Junior Farmers, and has served on the boards of directors of Co-operatives, the Agricultural Fair, Cheese Producers Organization, Federation of Agriculture, and of the Maxville Highland Games.

Having already done work for the Family Herald and Weekly Star, and for his local Glengarry News, he joined the staff of the Ottawa Farm Journal in 1952, where he conducted and wrote the Dairy Page, along with other editorial duties.

Coming Speaker

FINALLY FIXED

Bridgeport, Ont. (CP) — Hector Wickens tried for 10 years to get town council to install a drain in front of his house. This year he ran for council and was elected. The drain was put in, the job taking workmen only a few minutes.

Local Plowman Won Visitors' Events at Breslau

Friday and Saturday awards for the Visitors' class at the International Plowing Matches held in Breslau, Ont., were won by Lachute's Wyman Strong. Wyman, who scored a first in each day's event, was competing against fellow farmers from all over Canada. The tractor plowing events were held Thanksgiving week-end.

The prizes for the Visitors' events, whether in the form of trophies or cash, have not been announced as yet.

Protest from Mountain View Citizens, New Zoning, Building By-Law Planned

Mountain View residents lodged an official protest regarding additional construction of tenement and apartment buildings in their area, at the adjourned meeting of the Lachute Town Council in Victoria Hall last Wednesday evening. Ald. Ross R. Muir was absent from the assembly.

In replying to the protest, Mayor Dr. Jules Lafleur stated that, although the property owners had been informed that the Mountain View section was to be strictly residential, there was nothing in writing, and definitely no by-law covering this or any other section of town with the exception of Main Street.

"We hope to adopt a zoning by-law this March, but that is too late to help this case," he said, in referring to the proposed construction of a four-tenement building by the Tower Company. "If you had come in time, this would not have happened."

The cadestral street running behind the houses of Cottingham Blvd. was also thoroughly discussed, and it was moved by Ald. W. Cousineau, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock, that the width of the street remain 66 feet.

After further discussion on other residential sections, it was moved by Ald. D. G. MacRae, seconded by Ald. W. Cousineau, that the extension of Foundry Street be accepted only if it were all handed over to the Council, and not just 120 feet. It was also mentioned that the street would have to be made passable before the town would accept it.

It was moved by Ald. Réal Morrissette, seconded by Ald. D. G. MacRae, that information and a request for provincial action on the dumpsite situation, be added on Lachute's Private Bill, slated to come up at next session of the Legislative Assembly.

A letter was received from Mr. Bourbonniere turning down the offer of $17,000 cash for his Main Street property, but taking the opportunity of requesting a reduction of taxes on the same property. Mayor Lafleur replied that the Council's offer had nothing to do with the value of the building.

A letter was read from the Lachute Lions Club commending the Council on the erection of the two traffic lights at Harbour and McOuat's corners.

Following opinions on signal lights from various citizens, the Lachute Lions Club clarified the matter of the "slow" flashers erected by the Club on Routes 8 and 41. The letter gave the Council full authority to make any changes considered advisable in these lights, as they were donated to the town and are town property.

A letter requesting immediate attention to drainage system around the CPR station was received from the CPR head-office; according to the complaint, water flows into the station cellar during a heavy rain.

Permission to open Charles Street and the railway crossing thereon, was received from the Transport Commission. It was decided that work would commence immediately.

Building permits were granted to the Catholic School Commission, for a house adjacent to the St. Julien School, and to the Tower Company for a tenement house in Mountain View.

It was moved by Ald. Alcidas Laurin, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock, that a zoning and building by-law be drawn up by the legal advisor, to be ready for February 1, at which time it will be studied by the Council, and if found acceptable a notice of motion will be given for its adoption.

It was moved by Ald. R. Desjardins, seconded by Ald. J. E. Charlebois, that the mayor, secretary and all members of the Water Committee go to Montreal to the Board of Public Services, at the expense of the town, to discuss the problem of the Ayersville water supply.

Tenders for trucks were received from Robitaille Motors, Deacon Motor Sales, Pollock and Graves Motors, and C & L Garage. The lowest bid for the 4-ton truck of required specifications was from C & L Garage, while Deacon Motor Sales submitted the lowest tender for a 5-ton truck. It was moved by Ald. D. G. MacRae, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock, that as certain members of the Council had submitted tenders, the matter be left to a committee of Aldermen Cousineau, Morrissette and Muir.

Tenders for wiring the new civic building were opened and given to the lowest bidder, Florian Laurin, according to the modified specifications. The lowest tender was $2,250, while H. S. Church submitted a price of $2,400. The plumbing and heating tenders were held over until the next meeting.

It was moved by Ald. Réal Morrissette, seconded by Ald. R. Desjardins, that Maurice Champagne, architect for the building, be given $1,000 on account, the balance of $938.84 to be paid upon completion of construction.

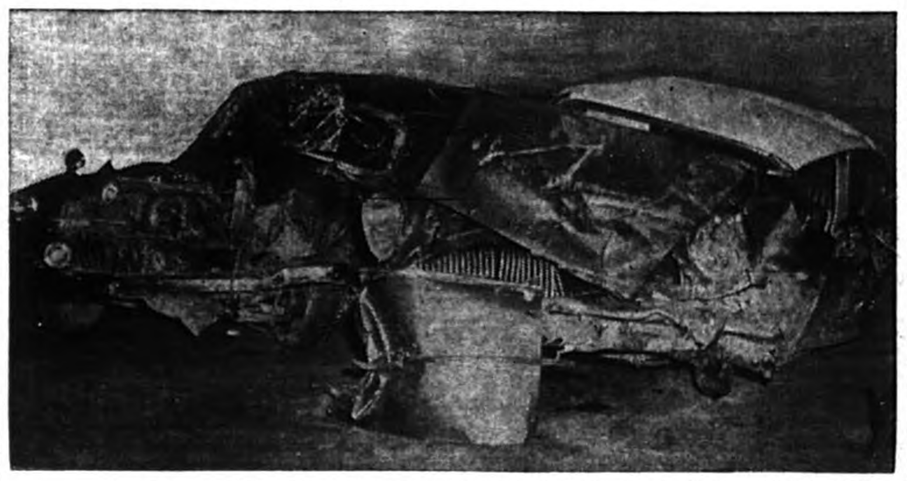

The legal advisor was authorized to make collection of all taxes up to 1953, and to take action if necessary.

A vote of sympathy was tendered to Police Chief Ducharme in the recent death of his father.

Chevrier Freres, soft drink bottlers, were thanked for their donation of school zone signs.

The meeting was adjourned sine die.

One Fatality — Two Cars Total Loss

6-Year-Old Girl Killed by Car At Grenville

Six-year-old Sarah Bell Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, was fatally injured shortly after 8 a.m. Monday when hit by a car driven by Gerard de Bellefeuille, 40, of Lachute. The accident occurred outside the girl's home at Grenville, across from the public school. Mr. Stewart is an employee of Arnold Farms, Grenville.

De Bellefeuille was headed towards Grenville, when, according to police, two of the Stewart children started across the highway to meet the school bus driver, with whom they walked to the bus every morning. De Bellefeuille sounded his horn; one of the children ran to safety, but little Sarah Bell stood in the path of the oncoming car.

The little victim was rushed to hospital in Hawkesbury by Mr. De Bellefeuille, but was pronounced dead on arrival. Her older brother and sister, who witnessed the accident, escaped injury.

Traffic Officer Albert Legault and Det. Maurice Lamoureux investigated the accident. Dr. Jules Lafleur, coroner, said an inquest would be held this evening (Thursday).

Cottingham Officiates at New Bridge, Civic Reception by Chatham Council

The dedication of the new bridge over "La Branche" River (Muddy Branch) was held October 17, the Rev. Eudore Theriault, Grenville parish priest, and the Rev. Gaetan Vinet, St. Philippe parish priest, officiating. A fitting speech was delivered by the Rev. Father D. Caron, and the official opening ceremonies were performed by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines. Despite rainy weather, about 100 people were present to witness the proceedings.

Profiting by the presence of the Hon. Minister of Mines in the municipality, the Council of the Municipal Corporation of Chatham tendered an official reception in the municipal hall, decorated for the occasion by village school pupils. With the guest of honor and Mrs. Cottingham, those on the platform included Mayor Romeo Lemay of St. Philippe, and Mrs. Lemay, Councillors Rolland Desforges, and Mrs. Desforges, Paul Richer and Mrs. Richer, John Black and Mrs. Black, Noel Lemay and Mrs. Lemay, and Grant Beatty. Also on the stage were Laureat Ouellette, one of the main organizers of the function, and Mrs. Ouellette, Gerard Trottier, secretary treasurer of the municipality, who acted as master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Trottier, also Mr. and Mrs. Cormier. In the hall were other citizens, school commissioners and their wives.

Gerard Trottier, speaking in both languages, congratulated Mr. Cottingham on his recent appointment. Appreciation was also expressed for the construction of the new bridge and other public works done in Chatham.

Young Gerald Trottier, son of the m.c. and Mrs. Gerard Trottier, presented the Hon. Minister of Mines with a souvenir of the occasion, while pretty Miss Helene Desforges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Desforges, handed a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Cottingham. (See pictures, page 7.)

Mr. Cottingham expressed appreciation for the honor bestowed upon him by the electors of St. Philipe and district, and held his listeners' attention with observations from his recent trips to mineral areas in Quebec, where mines are presently being developed and where unknown riches lie beneath the surface.

Following the reception a social period was held, after which about 100 guests adjourned to the Larose Hotel.

By-law to Pay Mayor and Aldermen To Be Proposed at Next Council Session

Adjourned Council Meeting Deals Largely With Details of Town Hall Construction

An adjourned meeting of the Lachute Town Council was held in Victoria Hall on Tuesday evening; Ald. Alcidas Laurin was absent from the assembly. Pro-Mayor D. G. MacRae was in the chair for the first half of the meeting, pending the arrival of Mayor Dr. Jules Lafleur.

H. S. Church, electrical contractor, lodged a protest as to the granting of a sub-contract for wiring the city hall to Florian Laurin, who according to Mr. Church had no specific plans or blueprints. Mayor Lafleur replied that the contract was given but the plans were subject to approval of the board of electrical examiners, and if not found satisfactory by them, further arrangements would be made.

A letter from Legion Branch 70 requested that the World War II monument be placed in the Memorial Park where the small machine gun is now located, the latter to be moved to another position. The letter also expressed thanks to the Council for consulting them in this matter. It was decided that the Legion request be granted and that the monument be re-located as soon as possible.

A letter was read from Donald Heggie, a proprietor on Princess Street, requesting a reduction in valuation of his property as he had torn down a garage. It was moved by Ald. W. Cousineau, seconded by Ald. J. Charlebois, that the reduction be applied, following a check on the property.

Representatives from the Canadian General Electric Company demonstrated traffic lights priced considerably lower than the ones presently installed for demonstration by other companies. The price for the two units for the Harbour and McOuat intersections was given as $1,451.50, plus installation. It was decided to obtain the price of installation both from the company and from a local contractor, before making any decision.

An ordinance from the Provincial Health Department has given authority to the town to borrow up to $8,500, in order to supply water and sewerage facilities on Ray Street, Grace Street, and in the Carriere development.

It was moved by Ald. E. O. Pollock, seconded by Ald. J. E. Charlebois, that the stones from the steps of the Auditorium be sold to Robert Brown for the sum of fifty cents each — as is, where is.

A letter from A. D. McGibbon & Sons requesting a building permit and water facilities for a sawmill to be erected at the rear of their Chatham Street offices near the West River, was read and discussed. It was moved by Ald. J. E. Charlebois, seconded by Ald. W. Cousineau, that the building permit be granted; also a permit to Jean Legault, for a house on St. Jacques Street.

As to the request for water by A. D. McGibbon & Sons, it was decided to take the water to the street line, and in the event that the street is turned over to the town, the town will go as far as is needed on their own property. It has been the recent policy of the Council not to install either water or sewer pipes on private property.

The plumbing and heating tender for the new town hall was granted to R. McArthur & Son, the lowest bidder, on a motion made by Ald. J. E. Charlebois, seconded by R. Morrissette. Other tenderers were N. Héroux & Fils, and Gauthier & Raymond. The job was granted subject to the approval of the Department of Labor and Mechanics. Ald. W. Cousineau abstained from the vote.

The subject of a phone system in the new town premises was mentioned, and following a lengthy discussion it was decided that, for efficient service, three lines and a switchboard would be necessary, with the number of extensions to be decided at a later date. The motion was passed, with Ald. R. Desjardins abstaining from the vote.

Ald. W. Cousineau gave notice of motion that, at the next regular meeting, we would present for adoption a by-law to remunerate the Mayor and Aldermen — the details of such indemnity to be thoroughly discussed before presentation.

The meeting was finally adjourned.

Lakefield Resident Hits Quiz Jackpot

Mrs. Haddon McDonald, of Lakefield, was the main prize-winner of Ogilvie's News Quiz weekly prize day on Radio Station CJAD recently, when she was awarded a new modern Youngstown kitchen sink with a steel cabinet base, a spice cupboard and a Sunbeam electric fryer.

Mrs. McDonald, who has been sending entries to this popular program for well over two years, informs The Watchman that she had received two previous calls from the program — one just three weeks prior to her winning the grand prize of the month.

CAPITAL SCHOLARS

Ottawa (CP) — Ottawa public schools have 919 more registered pupils this fall than at the end of the last school year in June. Chief School Inspector W. T. MacSkimming, reporting the increase to the public school board, gave the new total as 17,853.

Safety in the Home

Here are a few Safety Hints that should be practiced around your home!

1—When utensils are placed on top burners, keep the projected handles out of the line of traffic to avoid accidental tipping.

2—Homemakers should always look for the initials "CSA" on the tag or name plate of cords, switches, toasters and all other pieces of electrical equipment. These letters stand for the Canadian Standards Association, and assure you of a product which has been thoroughly tested for safety and efficiency.

3—Adequate lighting is an important accident deterrent, not only in kitchens and living rooms, but also in bedrooms and bathrooms, and especially stairways.

These are but a few of the ways in which homemakers can take positive steps on behalf of SAFETY!

Finally, please bear in mind that electricity can be dangerous if handled improperly or carelessly.

Farm Records

Accurate farm records are perhaps the only way a farm operator can measure his financial progress each year. The Farm Economics Department at Macdonald College advises farmers to spend more time on their records. Some of the more obvious benefits are suggested for your consideration.

The main benefit comes when you analyze your records at the end of each year. The analysis provides you with a progress report on the farm business. You can see how you made your money and where you spent it. Unproductive enterprises can then be reorganized or cut out of your farm program. When you have good past records to go on, you can more readily outline a future plan for your farm business, and when it comes to farm income tax, you need to make an accurate statement of income, expenditure and net worth.

Three kinds of financial records are considered absolutely essential, cash receipts, your cash expend- These are statements of your cash receipts, your cash expenditures, and your annual inventory. The inventory is a list of all your assets, like building, machinery, livestock, feed and supplies and all your liabilities or debts. Annual depreciation charges on buildings, machinery and other farm property are subtracted from the assets. Net worth is the depreciated assets less all your debts.

Other useful records are suggested if you want to make an analysis of the farm business. These are crop and livestock production records, amounts of feed used in each livestock enterprise, records of other farm enterprises, and a farm map.

The Department of Economics, at Macdonald College has account books available on request.

Farm Garden Show Starts This Sunday

The inauguration of a regular television service for farmers and gardens is scheduled for Sunday, October 31, 1 to 1.30 p.m. on interconnected TV stations in Eastern Canada — with Norm Garriock as farm commentator and Earl Cox demonstrating and talking about gardening techniques. Eventually regional services will be started to bring similar telecasts regularly to viewers in all parts of Canada.

Feature topic in the farm section (the first half) of the opening show will be the new Ontario Food Terminal in Toronto's western outskirts, erected by the Ontario Government at a cost of $4,000,000. There will be a visual weather report, farm news on film by arrangement with the CBC-TV News Service and a market report stressing "trend" information. Farmers will now be able to see the animal which is bringing a particular price on the current market and so be enabled to make a more accurate evaluation of their own stock.

The last 15 minutes each Sunday on "Country Calendar", as the new program is called, will be devoted to gardening topics. The opening show will probably feature the fall care of roses — how to trim, cover and so put them to bed for the winter. Earl Cox will have all the necessary equipment, not forgetting the roses themselves, in the studio with him.

On October 31, Cox will also review what he proposes to talk about and demonstrate on future programs in the series of 13 for whim he has been engaged. On the farm side, future topics for the weekly feature will include the production and marketing of (family-size) turkeys, farm safety with special attention to the use of tractors, the Royal Winter Fair, the 4-H Movement, and the growing and marketing of Christmas trees. The show is to be produced by Norman Caton of the CBC-TV studios in Toronto, working under the supervision of Franz Kraemer, in matters of production, and of Murray Creed, of the CBC Farm Department.

The Ontario Food Terminal feature will include a detailed explanation by George Reeves, the man in charge of the farmers' market at the terminal, who will use a rowed for the show from the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph.

Culling Poultry

Experts say you can increase your profits if you remove cull birds from your laying flock at regular intervals. Here are a few hints from Macdonald College Poultry Department to help you do a better job.

It is suggested that you handle all the birds in the flock at least once a month over the whole laying period. Remove all non-layers, birds that show a short laying period, and those with a low rate of production. If most of the birds seem thin when you handle them, it is an indication that they are laying too heavily. Increase the scratch grain to build up their body weight.

Non-layers, and poor layers, will appear dull and listless. On closer inspection you will not that the vent is dry, and contracted. A cull birds is usually light in weight and the back narrow, short and tapering. The abdomen feels fatty, hard and contracted, instead of soft and pliable. A cull bird's head seems shallow, the eye listless and sunken, the beak long and thin. If the flock has been laying for some time, culls will have more yellow color in the legs, around the eye and beak. Feathers of poor layers are glossy and loose while the rest of the flock will have worn soiled feathers.

The Canada Department of Agriculture has available an excellent Guide to Culling Hens complete with color photographs. Copies may be obtained by writing the Adult Education Service, Macdonald College Post Office, Que.

Why Silos Burst

Bursting of old upright or tower silos when filled with grass silage has generally been considered as caused by the greater weight of this silage compared with that made from corn. The Chemistry Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, suggest it may be the additional factor of gas production by the plant tissues that results in the almost explosive disintegration of the less rugged but apparently tight silos.

A preliminary test, made by packing a small quantity of a fresh, green, timothy-brome grass mixture in a tightly stoppered flask, showed that at the end of the first day gas produced from this green plant material produced a pressure of 3.8 pounds per square inch within the flask. At the end of three days the pressure had increased to 6.8 pounds per square inch and by the end of two weeks to 17.4 pounds.

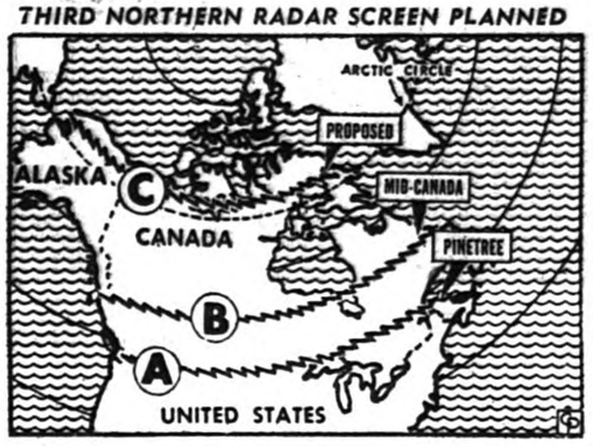

The difference in the chemical content of the two types of silage and the greater density of the grass with consequent closer packing, may account for greater gas pressures in tower silos filled with grass than when filled with corn.

Local Shorthorn Is Class Leader

The Shorthorn cow "Ridge Wild Laura", owned by A. D. McGibbon & Sons, of Lachute, was class leader for September in the three-year class, 365-day division, with 8,271 milk and 323 fat. In the 305-day division, four years, "Braerob Duchess 2nd", owned by P. Williamson, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, had 7,596 milk, 292 lbs. fat.

THIRD NORTHERN RADAR SCREEN PLANNED

—Central Press Canadian

This map shows location of the projected early warning radar barrier planned by Canada and the United States across the top of the continent. A joint announcement said the two governments had agreed in principle on the need for a Distant Early Warning (DEW) line (C) "across the most northerly practicable part of North America." The first joint air defence effort was "Pinetree" (A, substantially complete and in operation. A second radar system (B), is now under construction by Canada. The new radar system would provide about three hours' warning against enemy approach for the Great Lakes area.

'Three Scotts' Are Speakers At United Church Gathering

Chairman Gives Introduction in Verse

The "men's supper", an annual event in the life of the Lachute United Church, was held in the church hall last Thursday evening, and the hall was filled to capacity. Supper arrangements were in the hands of Mrs. A. H. Barker and members of the Social Committee of the Woman's Missionary Society. Visiting clergy included members of the Montreal Presbytery of the United Church of Canada; the Rev. J. W. Patterson, B.A., B.D., in his capacity as chairman of the Presbytery, brought greetings.

The guest speaker was the immediate past-moderator, the Very Rev. A. A. Scott, M.A., D.D., who, out of an experience of more than 40 years as an educational missionary in India, told of the social and spiritual betterment which had been brought about through the work of Christian missions. It was most interesting to hear Dr. Scott present his story from the vantage point of one who had served in India as a college principal.

Mr. William C. Scott, of Valois, chairman of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee of Presbytery, appealed for sacrificial giving by members of all the churches. He was convinced that if the people would give according to their ability, the national target of five million dollars for 1955 would be reached.

The Rev. R. DeWitt Scott, M.A., D.D., secretary of the Presbytery, congratulated the churches on their achievement during the past financial year, and gave worthy support to the plea made by Mr. Wm. C. Scott.

Thanks to the speakers, to the ladies of the Woman's Missionary Society, to Wayne Riddell, pianist, and Owen Todd, leader of community singing, also to friends and clergy from other churches for their support, was accorded by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, chairman of the meeting.

It was a unique experience to have three speakers each with the same surname, address the gathering, and the Rev. Wilson Bridge, in keeping with the occasion, introduced the speakers in verse, as follows. (The immediate past-moderator, Dr. Scott, asked for a copy of the unusual form of introduction, and this has since been mailed to his home in Toronto.)

A WELCOME TO THE THREE SCOTTS

We gather in this hall tonight
To greet our speakers, three.
Their faces bright with sheer delight,
Display such ecstasy.
It is a scene which would inspire
The pen of Walter Scott,
If he were but alive today
Which he, alas, is not.

We've got our Moderator here
A Very Reverend Scott,
The past two years he's served the Church
And travelled quite a lot.
His term of office now complete,
He may be feeling tired,
But when he sees a crowd like this,
I'm sure he'll feel inspired.

There's William Scott of Valois town,
In journeys oft he's found,
He asks you push the M and M
And won't be shunted down.
And when the year's returns are in
They won't be all the same,
But here's the test which he applies,
"Did your Church play the game?"

There is another name, my friends,
Which we will not forget,
It is the name of DeWitt Scott,
I'm glad he's with us yet.
We love to see his cheery smile,
We know he loves his work,
He never undertakes a task
That he's been known to shirk.
We thank him for his leadership,
And all the things he does,
We'll do our best to back him up
Because he's serving us.

O you can search from North to South,
And search from East to West,
You'll never find a finer set,
For these three are the best.
So pay attention, gentlemen,
Your ears now lend to me,
And give a hearty clap, my men,
For these good Scotts, all three.

— Rev. Wilson Bridge,
Lachute, October 21, 1954

OBITUARY

Lady Resident Was Born in Paris, France

Late Miss Marie Trichard

Miss Marie Trichard, member of one of Lachute's early families and a well known business woman hereabouts, died recently at a nursing home in St. Benoit. Miss Trichard 73 years of age, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trichard, and was born in Paris, France. She was known here for her market gardening business, to which she devoted herself assiduously for many years, and was a familiar figure among a wide custom of local families.

She is survived by her brother, Henri Trichard, of Lachute, also a nephew and niece.

The funeral was held last Wednesday from the Ste. Anastasie Parish Church.

Brownsburg Lady Was Widely Related

Late Mrs. Jos. Farmer

The funeral of the late Mrs. Joseph Farmer (Lydia Lépine), aged 63, whose death occurred last week at her home in Brownsburg, was held Saturday morning at the St. Louis de France parish church. There were many flowers in tribute to her memory, and a long cortege of relatives and friends followed the remains.

The late Mrs. Farmer is mourned by her husband, five sons and two daughters — Romeo, of Fassett, Wilfrid, of Lachute, Paul, Conrad and Lorenzo, of Brownsburg, Mme Dosilva Therriault (Beatrice), of Brownsburg and Mme André Richer (Alice), of St. Michel de Wentworth. She is survived also by four brothers, Wilfrid and William Lepine, of Lachute, Jim, of Windsor, and Hervé, of Brownsburg; and a sister, Mme René Farmer (Ida), of Carlsbad Springs, Ont.

Pall-bearers were her brothers, Wilfrid, Jim and Hervé Lepine, and nephews, Laurent, Bernard and Eugene Farmer. Interment was made in the Brownsburg Catholic Cemetery.

Saving money... and writing cheques

A bank offers you two types of deposit account, Savings and Current.

If your main purpose is to save, to accumulate funds, it's good to have a Savings account.

If you write cheques frequently, you will like the many advantages of a Current account.

The money you leave in a Savings account earns interest, and your bank book gives you an up-to-date, continuing record of your financial progress. If your funds are active, with frequent deposits and withdrawals, a Current account provides a special service; a monthly statement, together with your cancelled cheques—useful as receipts and a ready reference for budgeting, bookkeeping and other purposes.

Obligation of Prosperity

FORTUNATELY we in Canada are usually right when we reflect that great disasters can't happen to us. Our country is singularly blessed in that respect.

But sometimes disaster does strike, as it did in the Humber Valley near Toronto and the Holland Marsh area recently. Flood waters wiped out lives, homes and belongings, down to the last dishrag.

We in Canada are fortunate in another way — that when disaster does strike we are prosperous enough to aid in putting the materially stricken back on their feet. In other countries it would be different, but Canadians are able to think of replacing everything that has been lost.

It was done in the great Winnipeg flood of 1950 and in the Cabano and Rimouski fires in Quebec that same year. Canadians across the country donated their dimes and dollars to relief funds.

It's difficult for people who have never been struck by disaster such as a flood to realize fully the position of those who have lost everything they own.

Their homes are gone or so badly battered as to need rebuilding. Flood waters leave muck that no amount of cleaning will ever remove. The chesterfield might as well be scrapped. Rugs may be cleaned but mattresses and a dozen other household items have to be replaced.

It's easy for anyone to estimate the cost. Just imagine that your home has been swept away and that you have to start again from scratch — right down to the last frying pan. Adds up, doesn't it?

So that those hit by the flood may be aided, an Ontario Hurricane Relief Fund has been set up. Every bank branch is taking donations. Its aim is to raise $10,000,000 so that it can provide immediate cash for victims, aid families who have lost their wage earner and compensate people for lost household effects, clothing and furnishings.

We repeat that in few countries of the world could this sort of help even be contemplated. — Let's make it come true.

Hallowe'en

ONCE AGAIN it's — Hallowe'en. There is perhaps no night in the year which the popular imagination has stamped with a more peculiar character than the evening (traditionally October 31) known at All Hallow's Eve — which presumably will be celebrated Saturday, since October 31 falls this year in the Sabbath.

This is the time, above all others, when supernatural influences prevail. It is clearly a relic of pagan times, for there is nothing in the church observance of the ensuing day of All Saints to have originated such extraordinary notions as are connected with this celebrated festival, or such remarkable practices as those by which it is distinguished.

Brand, in his "Popular Antiquities," related the following regarding Hallowe'en: "It is a custom in Ireland, when the young women would know if their lovers are faithful, to put nuts upon the bars of the grate naming them after the lovers. If a nut cracks or jumps, the lover will prove unfaithful; if it begins to blaze or burn, he has regard for the person making the trial. If the nuts named after a girl and her lover burn together — they will be married."

The festival is mentioned by Robert Burns in both his songs and his poems, and in the works of Sir Walter Scott it is mentioned.

Today, in addition to being the motif for parties and dances, the occasion is given over largely to the children and dressing in costumes representing witches, ghosts and all manner of species, they go about asking hand-outs. At parties there are special games traditionally played on Hallowe'en.

Home Mission Effort

MOST OF Canada's Eskimos are still nomads living much as they have done for centuries. They are finding different problems now, because they are having to adjust themselves to a new civilization which is coming from the southern parts of Canada to meet them. Changes in their lives, and the changes in resources of game upon which their food supply depends, make it necessary for the rest of Canada to help them.

Whether the Eskimos will thank us or not — Ottawa is going to the rescue!

Six Canadians who know the Barren Lands will fill a new assignment in the north, helping the Eskimos learn to live with the white man.

In announcing the appointment of the six northern service officers, Northern Affairs Minister Lesage, stated that the six men may assist the Eskimos with local industries such as boat-building, tanning or handicrafts and will be on the lookout for new outlets for native talents. They also will advise Ottawa of measures that might be taken to improve the life of the Eskimos.

All six officers have had experience in the North and three are living there now. They will first spend a session in Ottawa to study the background of the problems of Eskimo society.

The Textiles Inquiry

FOR THOSE who have been following the hearings of the Tariff Board on the problems of the wool textiles industry, the element of surprise has been fairly complete — writes Norman MacLeod in the Hamilton News, commenting on a situation closely related to this community.

It had been expected (says this observer) that the industry would argue against the large volume of imports now competing successfully in the Canadian market.

But the industry has deliberately avoided building its case for higher protection upon the competition of outside goods in the domestic market. Instead, it has argued the need of the Canadian industry for some tariff redress of the basic production advantage which the United Kingdom industry enjoys.

That's a far more fundamental argument than just quoting import figures. If the Canadian mills are at a basic disadvantage, then either the Tariff Board must be prepared to recommend further protection or see the industry upon which at least 100,000 Canadians are dependent disappear.

Parliament Hill circles hadn't expected that the argument would be presented in quite these extreme terms. As a result, the Tariff Board hearing has moved closer to the centre of the capital.

The Canadian industry has been careful to establish in the course of the hearings that its productive efficiency is on a par with the United Kingdom mills. Equipment is as modern and plant maintenance standards are as high. The difference between the two industries mainly is in the factor of wage costs. Canadian wage scales are as much as three times higher than British wage scales.

The expectation of observers who have been following the Tariff Board proceedings closely is that the Canadian industry will be granted some measure of assistance. For one thing, its tariff protection actually has dropped in recent years due to the trend of the public towards lighter weight clothes.

Suiting used to average 16 ounces to the yard, as against about 13 ounces at present. With customs duties computed partially on weight of materials, this change has meant an automatic disappearance of close to 20 per cent of the traiff protection originally intended for the industry.

There is a wide belief that the very least that the industry will achieve will be a restoration of this protection. But many also think hat it has established a case for even more substantial redress.

Held Responsible

THERE IS some good news for the motorist if a recent Ontario Supreme Court decision covering responsibility of parking lots can be made to stick there and in other provinces, reports The Financial Post.

The decision said a parking lot must take the blame for the theft of a car if attendants fail to lock it. Attendants must not only lock cars, the court said, but should put the keys away in a safe place.

For too long, parking lot operators across the country have got away with proclaiming on signs and on tickets given to motorists that the lot is not responsible for damage or loss of property.

The motorist who protests about a fender crumpled by a slap-happy car-jockey, the disappearance of a coat or rug, or even the loss of the car itself, has been met with a shrug. The lot operator has been able to point blandly at the "not responsible" signs. This latest ruling should put a new complexion on this sort of thing.

"Shoot, if you must, this old gray head,
But spare your country's flag," she said.

— Barbara Frietchie

I am quite sure you readers find the Great Flag Controversy as irritating as I do. It's almost as provoking as the suggestion that the late Mackenzie King be considered for the post of "The Greatest Canadian". (The choice of Mr. King is completely out of the question anyway. He's far too busy just now entertaining the press at Kingsmere.) Whenever you pick up a national magazine or paper, some character is bleating about his ideas for Canada's flag.

Just the other day, I was thumbing through the pages of Saturday Night, and came across another letter on the subject of the flag. It came to me, as I read the letter, that we should have no trouble with this business if our extreme nationalists — on both sides — would have the good grace to sit down and shut up. However, the two camps are locked in pitched battle and neither one is ready to concede an inch to the other.

The one side is composed of English nationalists whose platform is "Include the Union Jack and throw out the Fleur-de-lis". The other side is made up, as you may have guessed, by the French nationalists whose battle cry is: "Down with the Union Jack! We want the Fleur-de-lis!" And in the middle of the fracas is the true Canadian who doesn't give a hoot if we ever have a new flag, and who is quite happy with the Red Ensign or any other piece of bunting that spells C-a-n-a-d-a to him.

The argument has inspired the muse of poetry within me once again. So I tender the following verse to my fellow countrymen who are engaged in the "Battle of the Flag".

ODE TO FLAG-WAVING
RACIAL TUB-THUMPERS

Depending on your Province,
Or your father's kith and kin;
Depending on your state of grace,
The Church you worship in;
Depending on your brashness
And innate desire to brag,
Depends your choice of motif
For this country's future flag.

If father came from Brittany,
Your mother from Paris,
You will undoubtedly demand
A silver fleur-de-lis;
But, if your forbears came from Berks,
You'll naturally smack
At anyone who dares leave out
Old England's Union Jack.

It's quite amusing to conduct,
From midway on the perch,
A modicum of wholesome, healthy,
Staid and sane research,
To ascertain who are these folk
Who daily chew the rag,
On what and what should not be placed Upon our country's flag!

It all boils down, as one might guess,
To Englishman and French;
These are the two who stir the stew
And raise the mighty stench;
But Indian and Eskimo,
Ukrainian and Pole,
The German and Hungarian,
Don't ask to play a role.

They much prefer to stand aloof
And watch the battle's course,
Along with Jew and Austrian,
With Finnlander and Norse —
Those men who've seen oppression,
Concentration camps and death,
And happy are, 'neath any flag,
To taste of freedom's breath.

It matters little, little men,
What bunting o'er us flies;
It matters most how we appear
Before downtrodden eyes;
We need no signet, Union Jack,
Or silver Fleur-de-lis,
On any mast, if what we fly
Our brothers know as free.

For the information of those who may have been wondering, I was unable to prove anything about Lucas Green Manor with Susie, the ginger cocker spaniel. While she attended the nephew's birthday party, she was not an active participant. The kids scared her so much that she retired under the nearest bed, on arrival, and refused to be pried from under it until the last shrieking little hellion had gone home. — And who can blame her?

Corrects Misinformation On Ambulance Service

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Lachute, Que.

Editor, The Watchman:

Dear Sir:

Would you kindly correct a misunderstanding, following ill-advised rumors concerning my ambulance service.

I would like to inform the public of the following facts: That after the accident involving the late John Lemay on the Brownsburg Road last week, I was not on the scene 25 or 30 minutes after being called — as the rumor states. It was actually 12 or 15 minutes after being notified by telephone from Brownsburg, that I arrived at the spot.

I may mention that the call was received from a Brownsburg lady. If the call was not placed sooner, it is the first arrivals at the accident who should be blamed, for there was a residence at the immediate roadside. This duty should be the responsibility of the authorities, first thing on arriving at an accident and ascertaining there are injured persons. In leaving the job to others, they risk unnecessary delays in administering medical aid to the victims.

I trust this statement will correct impressions circulated by those misinformed on the facts.

ALL ABOARD
With G. E. Mortimore

"Dry-land fishing is the finest sport, bar none," said my friend Jack McCool. I stared at him in bewilderment.

"Some people claim that fly-fishing for trout is the most highly skilled kind of angling," Jack went on. "Others prate about their special ways of catching bass, salmon, muskies, swordfish or shark. All nonsense. Talking through their hats.

"Now you take dry-land fishing, on the other hand. A dry-land fisherman has no tackle; no rod, no line. He depends on his wits and his nerve."

"I don't understand," I said. "Where do you fish?"

"Some of the best dry-land fishing is done right on the wharf, or the river-bank," Jack McCool said. "Select a place that commands a good view, sit on a log, and wait for a water-fisherman to come in."

"What bait do you use?" I asked.

"Well, that depends. Some dry-land fishermen use scorn. I knew one expert who used nothing else. When a man came along with a few fish in his basket, this man would look the fish over disdainfully, as if they had already begun to smell a bit high.

"You'll never get away with fish as small as that, Mac,' he'd say. 'Far under the legal limit. And that other fish — she was just going to spawn. Tsk, tsk. Game wardens are thick as flies around here. Better let me have those fish, and I'll bury 'em for you while you make your getaway.'

"This man never failed to come home with a full creel. But I wouldn't recommend scorn for a beginner. Too difficult."

"No, my choice is flattery," said Jack McCool. "Start questioning the fisherman as soon as he is within earshot. Ask him where he caught the fish, and what on. Praise his skill. If he shows impatience, you may actually seize the largest of the fish, caress its flank, and say 'Gosh, I sure wish I was smart enough to catch a whopper like that.'

"If you're lucky, he'll say 'Why don't you take this fish? I have lots of others.' He has taken your lure. Don't panic. Play him carefully. Get him well hooked.

" 'Oh, no, I couldn't possibly take your fish'. That's what you must say. 'Even though we're broke, and we don't know where our next meal is coming from, I can't take your fish, sir. Even if you offered me two or three fish, I couldn't take them. I'm too proud.'

"Then the fish is in your hands. My boy, that's the most thrilling moment of a dry-land fisherman's life."

"Some of the best dry-land fishermen never move from the lounge of a fisherman's lodge. While the water-fishermen are out getting cold and damp, and missing meals, he toasts his toes at the fire.

"When the water-fishermen come in, he takes 'em aside one at a time, catches the fish and hides 'em away. A real expert can land from 50 to 100 per cent of the day's catch at the lodge without stirring from his chair.

"But you get disappointments too. I remember one time at the lodge when I had a 20-pounder almost in the bag, but it got away. At the last minute the man's wife wanted the fish to show the kids. Well, in dry-land fishing you're bound to lose some. It's all part of a grand sport," said Jack McCool.

A pedestrian is a man who has two cars, a wife and a 19-year-old daughter.

BEATTIE — In loving memory of a dear father, William John Beattie, who passed away Nov. 1, 1952. — Ever remembered by his daughter, Sarah.

"The evening star shines on a grave
Of a father we loved but could not save.
Long days and nights you bore your pain,
To wait for cure, but all in vain —
Till God alone saw it was best
And called you home with Him to rest."

LOUGHREN — In loving memory of a dear husband, Henry Loughren, who passed away Oct. 29, 1948, at Arundel, Que. — Always remembered by Emma and family.

STONE — In loving memory of our dear daddy and husband (Alton), who passed away on Oct. 29, 1944. — Ever remembered by Enid, Heather and Jimmie.

"In our chest of cherished memories
Are locked our thoughts of you,
Your smiling face, your tender heart,
And things you used to do."

God's Kingdom on Earth A Sure Thing

Peace is as sure as tomorrow's sunrise, and just as independent of man. — Read Isaiah 9: verses 6-7, and Daniel 2: 44.

For the cause of earth's troubles — read Revelations 12: 7-12.

V. 7. There was war in heaven. Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon fought, and his angels. . . (8) And prevailed not. Neither was there peace found anywhere in heaven. . . (9) And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world. . . He was cast out into the earth; and his angels were cast out with him.

V. 10. And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven. "Now is come Salvation, and strength, and the Kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ, for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. (11) And they overcame him by the blood of the lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto death. (12) (But) "woe" to the inhabitors of the earth, and of the sea: for the Devil has come down onto you, having great wrath; because he knoweth that he hath but a short time.

* * *

From the light of the above scriptures, might we not believe that Satan, the Devil, is responsible for the hurricanes, tornadoes, twisters, cyclones, freak blizzards, floods and avalanches, and even the abnormal tidal waves of the sea! Note: At Ephesians 2, verse 2, the Devil is called, "The prince of the power of the air."

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

Who was the young warrior prince of Israel who ate the honey he found in the forest? This was contrary to the King's command "Cursed be the man who eats food this day!"

This prince did not know of his father's order. Like the other soldiers he was faint for want of nourishment. Then he came upon the honey, dipped his staff into the honeycomb and ate its sweet treasure. When he had done this "his eyes became bright."

The Israelite warriors were handicapped in this battle because only the King and the prince were equipped with swords and spears. There were no smiths in their land to make iron weapons.

Accompanied merely by his young armour bearer, the prince made a sortie into the enemy's territory in broad daylight. He told his companion, "Nothing can hinder the Lord, from saving by many or by few."

When the Philistines saw the two Israelites approaching they taunted them, "Come up to us and we will show you a thing." But it was the two Israelites who showed what could be done. They rushed on the Philistines, killing almost twenty of them. This started a panic in the enemy's camp.

The Philistines started running hither and thither. In their alarm and haste they even attacked each other. Across the valley, the King of the Israelites heard the commotion and saw the confusion of the soldiers.

The King then numbered his ranks. He discovered that the prince and his armour bearer were missing. Then he commanded his men to pursue the Philistines. But first he laid an oath upon them that they would refrain from eating that day.

When victory for the Israelites was assured, the King was distressed to learn that the prince, ignorant of his order, had eaten the honey he had found in the forest. For this disobedience the King thought his son should die. But the men of Israel, grateful for the prince's leadership protested. "Far from it! As the Lord lives there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground: for he has wrought with God this day." So the life of the Prince was spared. You can discover this young man's name and read this story for yourself in I Samuel, 13th Chapter, 14th Chapter, verses 1-46.

Married Recently In Delta, Ontario

Brown - Laming

At the United Church manse, Delta, Ont., on Saturday, October 9, at 3 p.m., Miss Doris Laming, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hallie Laming, of Delta, became the bride of Arthur Arnold Brown, second son of Mr. and Mrs. David Brown, of Lachute. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Archibald Peebles.

Attended by her sister, Mrs. Elmer Woods, of Kingston, Ont., the bride wore a gown of pale blue nylon taffeta over net, in princess style. Her shoulder-length veil fell from a headdress of forget-me-nots, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Woods wore a gown of nylon net over taffeta, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Mr. Percy Titley, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in Kingston, Ont.

Sunday Chorale

Every Sunday evening a quiet devotional program consisting chiefly of hymns and anthems may be heard on the CBC Trans-Canada network. The program "Sunday Chorale" is the work of a group of Winnipeg choristers (above) under the direction of W. H. Anderson, with Filmer Hubble at the organ. Under one title or another, the group has been heard on CBC networks for more than 15 years, and brings in the largest and most enthusiastic batch of fan mail reaching the CBC's Winnipeg studios.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Ministerial Association

The Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association will meet in the Presbyterian Church, Brownsburg, at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, November 2. Mr. George F. Calder will be the guest speaker. All ministers are invited to attend.

Brownsburg United Young People's Society

Brownsburg — On Wednesday evening of last week, the Brownsburg United Young People's group met in the church hall, for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year.

After the usual devotional period, with the Rev. Garfield Bruce presiding, officers were elected as follows:

President, Allan Johnston; 1st vice-pres., Roy Cruise; 2nd vice-pres., Linda Silverson; secretary, Marlene Hebert; treasurer, Ellen Stewart; games committee, Glenrose Hazel, Linda Murdoch and Douglas Mason; refreshment committee, Willow Dixon-Smith and Judy Seary.

Games were then played and refreshments were served by several of the girls, with the help of Mrs. G. Bruce and Mrs. F. Kettyle.

It was decided that the next meeting will be held in the church hall at 8 p.m. Wednesday, November 3. (Young people are cordially invited.)

The meeting was closed with prayer.

Bible Society Branch Annual Meeting Held at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — The annual meeting of the Brownsburg Branch Bible Society was held in the United Church last Sunday.

Captain Howard Doig gave the address. He said he felt qualified to speak on the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society because, as an Army Chaplain, he was on the receiving end of the benefits of the Bible Society. He pointed out that each recruit was presented with a copy of the New Testament.

In reporting on the previous year's achievement, the secretary read the following extract from a letter received from Rev. De Courcey Rayner: "I would like to congratulate the officers and canvassers on what appears to be the most successful campaign ever conducted in Brownsburg, resulting in a total of $204.60."

Alvin Connelly was re-elected president and G. H. Quinn secretary.

The annual compaign for funds is expected to get underway in the near future.

Rev. Norman Peterson At Grenville Parish

Grenville — The Rev. Norman Peterson, rector of St. Columba's Church, Montreal, was much appreciated in the three churches of the Parish of Grenville on Diocesan Exchange Sunday. He spoke from the general theme, "Go, Preach, Teach, Heal." His stories of Christian healing stirred a keen interest.

One of the highlights of the day was his conducting an open Sunday School session in the afternoon, which was attended by grown-ups as well as children. The Rev. Mr. Peterson's ability at story-telling with a purpose captivated all present. . . It is sincerely hoped that he may visit this parish again.

Ford Centre for Quebec At Decarie Blvd. Site

Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited announced last week that it has exercised an option to buy the White Motor Company of Canada Ltd. plant in Montreal, and will convert it into a Ford Centre for the Province of Quebec.

The White plant, built in 1946, is situated on Decarie Boulevard near Cote de Liesse Road, in the fastest growing industrial area of Montreal. It has been used by White Motors for the assembly and servicing of trucks, as well as the Company's Canadian head office.

Announcement of Ford's intentions was made at Toronto by Rhys M. Sale, president. "The acquisition of this fine building makes it possible for use to give immediate effect to a plan we have had for some years past, to establish a centre for Ford operations in Quebec Province," Mr. Sale said. "Our program is in keeping with the importance of Quebec as a market for automotive products, and as a province with a bright and prosperous future ahead of it.

"We will concentrate in the White building, the sales, service and distribution staffs of our Ford-Monarch and Mercury-Lincoln-Meteor divisions in Quebec; the zone offices of the parts and accessories division, and the Quebec offices of the Ford Tractor and Equipment Sales Company, Ltd.

"And 100,00 square feet of space in the plant will be used as a depot for the distribution of automotive parts and accessories throughout Quebec and part of Eastern Ontario."

Issue Additional Shares For C-I-L Expansion

Montreal, Oct. 25 (CP) — The issue of additional common shares of Canadian Industries (1954) Limited has been approved by the Company's board of directors, it was announced by H. G. Smith, president. In addition, as a further step in the company's financing plans, arrangements are being completed to issue $25,000,000 in sinking fund debentures. Funds of about $51,000,000 which are expected to be raised from these two offerings will be used to finance the company's present development program.

The additional common stock will be offered to holders of existing shares of record at the close of business on October 29, 1954, at a price of $18.50 per share, on the basis of the right to subscribe for one additional share for each five common shares held on that date. Subscriptions will be accepted for full shares only. Shares issued in accordance with this offer will participate in dividends beginning with any dividend which may be declared on the common shares of the Company for the first quarter of 1955.

FORD COMPANY EMPLOYEES ON STRIKE NUMBER 8,400

—Central Press Canadian

Workers of the Oakville plant of the Ford Company of Canada have joined the employees on strike at the Windsor factory. This brings to 8,400 the number on strike at the Ford company.

Picket lines formed by Oakville's 2,700 strikers are parading around the huge modern plant and trying to prevent the entry of plant supervisors.

Square Dance Contest Rules and Regulations, At Plowmen's Frolic

Plans have been completed for the square dance competition in connection with this year's fall dance of the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association.

The dance is to be held November 5 in the Legion Hall, with music by the Silver String Trio. Admission will be 50c, and a large turnout is hoped for, as this should be an interesting evening.

Sets competing that night must leave their names with any member of the dance committee before 9 p.m., and an entry fee of 25 cents per person in each set will be charged. Each set will dance one change of their own choosing at a time. They may use their own caller or, if they prefer, they may have the services of the caller hired for the evening. The same music will be available for all sets.

All sets will then dance one change decided upon by the dance committee, to the music and caller of the evening. All sets will be dancing at the same time in this part of the competition.

Three judges will officiate and their decision will be final. Each member of the two top teams will receive prizes donated by local merchants.

Following is the score-card upon which all teams will be judged:

1. Rhythmic accuracy — Prompt[illegible] phrasing
2. Uniformity — Style, execution, neatness
3. Ability — Basic knowledge, accuracy
4. General effectiveness — Grace, appearance, deportment, attitude

Dance committee members who will be in charge of the dance and competition are Norman MacGeorge, Watson Berry and William Brass. -1c

Coons, Hawks, Ducks Pets of 11-Year-Old

Etevensville, Ont. (CP) — A 14-year-old boy is probably this town's youngest wild animal trainer.

Peter Bevan has owned and raised a long succession of furry and feathered friends including deer, wild ducks, raccoons and even skunks.

"Feed them well and treat them with kindness," he says, and any person can train any wild animal to be a friend.

Peter's latest pet is a young red-tail hawk that he found as a tiny bird last spring.

He trained it and now it sits on his arm of flies after him about the barn yard. But Peter has his troubles with the pet too.

The young hawk likes nothing better than to get out of its cage and into the barn for a feast of young chicken. The bird will only eat raw meat and Peter goes out each night after school to shoot rats and birds for his pet.

TV Football Commentators

Play-by-play descriptions and color background of the Big Four Football telecasts will be given by these three top-ranking Canadian sports personalities. Steve Douglas (left) has had over 20 years in radio and was first heard on CBC television at last year's Grey Cup contest. Gil Christy, at 26, is nevertheless one of the veterans of Canadian television, having been among the first announcers heard when CBC-TV opened in September, 1952. Dave Price (right) is another veteran in the sports-commenting fraternity; he's been giving the sports news since 1933 and transferred his energies to television a few years ago. All three can be considered authorities on Canadian football, and their descriptions of the games are helping to make the Big Four the most popular sports telecasts the CBC has so far produced.

Top-ranking Heavyweights In Professional Boxing

By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For the first time in 25 years, four boxers from outside the United States are listed among the 10 top heavyweights in Ring Magazine's rating of the world's best professional fighters.

The latest listings reflect a steady forward march of non-Americans. Half of the 80 contenders are from outside the United States.

The only Canadian rated a top contender is Toronto's Earl Walls in the heavyweight division ruled by Rocky Marciano.

Walls is listed No. 9 in the 10 best and stands a chance of moving up the ladder early next month when he defends his Canadian title in Toronto against big James J. Parker, who lists Barrie, Ont., as his hometown but has done most of his boxing out of Paterson, N.J.

Walls Has Troubles

Walls has been an in-and-out fighter in his last four matches. After each contest he has come up with an injury of some sort — twice it was bruised hands and the latest, which postponed an earlier date with Parker, was elbow trouble.

Some ring observers figure he may be too brittle for the top heavyweight class and the bout against Parker, who is unranked but has met many of the top men in the weight, may settle the question.

Besides Walls, other top non-American challengers for Marciano's crown include Cuba's Nino Valdes, listed as No. 1 and close winner over Parker in a 10 round contest this spring; Don Cockell of England, No. 2; and Heinz Neuhaus, Germany, No. 7.

American Archie Moore is champion of the light-heavyweight (175-pound limit) division but two German battlers, Gerhardt Hect and Willie Hoepher, with Yolande Pompey of Trinidad and Jacques Hairabedian, France, are rated dangerous threats.

In the middle weight division, 160-pound limit, champion Bobo Olson of San Francisco faces challenges by Tiberio Mitri, Italy; Pierre Langlois, France; Eduardo Lausse, Argentina and Gustav Scholz, Germany.

France's Robert Cohen is top man among the bantamweights, where only two Americans are rated among the 10 top contenders. Yoshio Shirai of Japan is the flyweight champion.

American Johnny Saxton, who has just scored an upset and questionable victory over Cuba's Kid Gavilan, now rules the welterweight ranks. Two other Americans held the two remaining titles, Paddy Demarco the lightweight and Sandy Saddler the featherweight.

Saxton-Gavilan Flop

Most of the ringside experts figured Kid Gavilan was the winner in the tugging and hauling match against Johnny Saxton in Philadelphia last week. They were just as surprised as the arena crowd and the millions of TV viewers when the unanimous decision in favor of Saxton was announced.

The Associated Press sports columnist Gayle Talbot wrote: "About the only ones attracted by the new champ's novel method of winning fights were the three ring officials. The fact that they voted unanimously for the tugger and hauler from Brooklyn can only be put down as a rare case of mass hypnosis."

Seeks Canadian Pilots For Free Lance Air Force

A former Canadian pilot whose exploits against Chinese Communist air forces are legendary in the East has been sent to Canada by the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa to raise at least two squadrons of experienced jet and prop-driven fighter plane pilots. Albert Mah, seen above, is also after other young fliers willing to train for action in a cold war version of Gen. Claire Chennault's famed Flying Tigers. Pilots who flew RCAF Sabre jets have been offered at least $30,000 a year by Chiang Kai-shek, the money to come indirectly from the $100,000,000 to be spent by the U.S. in Formosa next year. Aim of the free lance air force, says Mah, is to fight against Asian Communist aggression "in whatever way we see fit."

School TV Experiment

A Special CBC Series to Determine Usefulness As Teaching Aid

During November, the CBC and the National Advisory Council on School Broadcasting will undertake the most extensive experiment in class-room television programs yet attempted anywhere. The purpose is to ascertain the possible usefulness of TV as a teaching aid in our schools.

Through facilities provided by the CBC and privately-owned TV stations, schools in all television areas in Canada will be able to take part in the experiment, which will be larger in scope than earlier experiments conducted in the United Kingdom (limited to six schools which were served by a "closed circuit", feeding programs to the schools by line rather than actually telecasting them) and in the United States (limited to municipal school systems).

The Canadian TV experiment will be based on the experience gained over the last 12 years in developing school radio broadcasts, nationally and provincially. In the same manner the telecasts will bridge vast distances to bring to life in our classrooms colorful chapters from the past and pictures of life in Canada.

A general plan for the experiment was laid before the TV committee of the National Advisory Council on School Broadcasting and approved by it last May. As a result, eight telecasts have been prepared, five of them produced in the Toronto CBC-TV studios, the other three by the National Film Board working closely with the CBC School Broadcasts Department, headed by R. S. Lambert.

Four of the telecasts will be aimed at the level of Grades V and VI and will be seen starting at 1.45 p.m. on Tuesdays, November 2, 9, 16 and 23. The other four will be for the level of Grades VII and VIII, starting at 1.45 p.m. on Wednesdays, November 3, 10, 17 and 24. All the programs are 15 or 20 minutes in length. In the Maritimes, the programs will be seen, starting at 2.30 p.m., AST, on the same dates; in the west all programs will be seen one week later than in the east, in early-afternoon periods suggested by the provincial departments of education.

The subjects of the eight telecasts were planned with the advice of a sub-committee of teachers reporting to the National Council's TV committee. The members of this sub-committee were drawn from the Greater Toronto area and they chose subjects which tie in with the Ontario course of studies, but which also have application, as far as possible, in the curricula of other provinces.

The experiment thus falls into two parts. Ontario schools form the nucleus of the experiment, because the subjects are related directly to their courses of study. But schools in other parts of the country can also take part. It is anticipated that most of the programs will be found useful for experiment in the schools of all provinces.

Participation of schools from all TV areas in Canada depends upon the co-operation of privately-owned TV stations in these areas. The CBC has found station-owners most co-operative in agreeing to carry film recordings of the programs at the designated time, although in many cases (as with CBC stations, too) this will involve putting the transmitter on the air at an earlier hour than usual.

At the request of the CBC, the Canadian Radio and Television Manufacturers' Association has kindly undertaken to instal, on loan, suitable television receivers in a number of selected schools throughout the country. Some 75 schools will be equipped in this way — about two-thirds of them in Ontario. This valuable assistance will go far towards making the experiment a success — at least in terms of the number of Canadian schools which will be able to watch the telecasts and report on results achieved.

The CBC has prepared a manual for the benefit of teachers taking part in the experiment, outlining the content of the programs and supplying information to assist in utilizing them. The manual includes a questionnaire for all teachers taking part, to obtain their evaluation of the telecasts. The answers will provide the basis for a report making recommendations for the future of TV in Canadian classrooms.

A Spot of Interest In the Queen City

— By Ethel Kettyle —

During the month of October, 1954, the "Hurricane Hazel" which has caused such loss of life and property damage, will perhaps be put down in history as the worst ever to have swept through Toronto and the neighboring Ontario district. It has caused such great loss, damage, and anxiety to so many, that it makes all affected realize that nature on the rampage is no respecter of persons or places, and can easily tear down, in a few hours, what has taken man years to build up — and that our lives are not our own. Sympathy has been generally felt by neighboring provinces, cities and towns.

However, Toronto is a great city, and has many points of interest, such as the new Subway, so recently excavated and constructed at a cost of fifty-odd millions of dollars.

Outstanding in interest to tourists who care for that sort of thing, is the Royal Ontario Museum, located at the southwest corner of Bloor Street and Queen's Park. This Museum was established in 1912, for the purpose of collecting and exhibiting objects pertaining to the Natural History of the World, and the History of Man in all ages.

A large addition was built in 1933. In one building are housed three independent museums — -Archaeology, Geology - Mineralogy, Palaeonotology - Zoology. Although we have mentioned Zoology last, it is probably the most interesting to all classes of people, including children, and should delight the heart of every hunter and fisherman.

Visiting this part of the Museum, one realizes how wonderful are the many animals which God has put upon the earth; and here, indeed, thoughts may go back to Noah's Ark. Each and every animal, as we know, has been given a means of protection, an instinct to find its own food, and food for its offspring. Some animals can even change their color to suit their environment.

In one corner is an especially interesting exhibit — a mother bear, tearing open an old log in search of ants, while her two baby bears sit by, awaiting results. Behind these animals is a huge painting of a wood, with tall trees standing out against a blue sky. It all looks so natural that a spectator might easily think he had just stepped into a wood and had accidentally come upon the trio.

In these galleries are many diverse animals originating in different parts of the globe. Creatures, such as the koala or "teddy-bear"; the kangaroo and the duck-billed platypus of Australia; the armour-plated armadillos and giant ant-eaters of South America; the strangely-patterned zebra; the hideous mandrill baboon; and the big ostriches of Africa; gorgeous birds of paradise and bird-winged butterflies of New Guinea; the giant panda and clumsy takin of China; lustrous shells and bizarre-shaped corals from the Pacific. All of these seem strange to the eyes of Canadians.

However, there are other sights familiar to us — such as bears, wolves and hawks. In one glass case, two grim figures enact a motionless drama — a pair of wolves devouring a helpless rabbit, their fangs bared in greed and lust, and blood dripping from their mouths.

Then may be seen a tiny pigmy which weighs so very little; and, nearby, a towering moose, weighing well over a half-ton. Farther on is an agile deer, a bulky bear, and a slow, burrowing mole — so unlike in size, yet all of the animal kingdom.

The exhibit of Canadian dogs in the Canadian gallery is most interesting. Here are seen the Indian sled-dog, Brussels Griffon, Great Dane, wolf hound, English bulldog, chow-chow and the collie.

Other exhibits successfully illustrate that each creature is an integral part of its environment; the speckled trout in foaming, rapid water; the turtle and its egg-burrow on a sandy beach; the black bear in a burnt-over area where blueberries grow.

For many different animals inhabiting any one area, food provides a common link, and this point is illustrated in a novel fashion under the title, "Nature's House that Jack Built". Here is shown the hawk that eats the snake, the snake that eats the frog, the frog that eats the grasshopper, and the grasshopper that eats the grass.

Muskrat pelts are shown, and traced through the various stages, from the traps to milady's seal coat. Nearby is the beaver (emblem of Canada).

We are told that the preparation of such specimens for zoological galleries is highly technical work. No longer are animals "stuffed", but many are now mounted by a technician who must be a combination of sculptor and naturalist. Many marine species are made in casts in plaster, celluloid and wax, skilfully moulded and painted, to present an excellent impression of a living fish. A different general technique is used in the case of mammals and birds.

So much for the Museum of Zoology, which stimulates one's curiosity and interest in the "Kingdom of Fish, Bird and Animal".

No less interesting is the Museum of Mineralogy, with its gems and wealth of minerals, in which Canada abounds. Perhaps we can talk about it at some other time!

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

"Mollasses and Brown Sugar"

Back in August the home economists of the Consumer Section gave us a lot of information about the Canadian sugar industry. At that time they sent some general information about granulated sugar because right then we were all using pound after pound of it canning and freezing fruits, and making jams and jellies. But now that we have all these good things carefully stored away we are beginning to think more about baking cakes and cookies, making candy and so on. And so, here are some more facts about Canada's sugar industry, this time about the molasses and the brown sugar we buy.

Canadian sugar is made from two raw products, from sugar beets, which are grown in Canada, and from raw sugar cane which is imported into Canada. Molasses and brown sugar are made in both cane sugar and beet sugar refineries.

Molasses may be produced as a by-product of a sugar refinery which makes granulated sugar, icing sugar and so on or it may be made in a plant which is engaged in making syrup only — that is molasses, cane syrup and so on. Most of the molasses used in our cooking is imported into Canada and has been made in plants which make molasses and syrup only. Now that does not mean that molasses is not produced in our Canadian refineries for it is, but most of this used by commercial industries like the baking trade, distilleries, the meat packing trade and so on. Molasses is also used as a cattle food. An interesting thing about this molasses which is sold to industries, is that it is transported to factories in/ big steel, glass-lined railway tank cars. We often think of oil being carried in big tank cars but it was certainly news to hear that molasses was carried that way too.

The color and clearness of molasses depends on one or two things. First, the type of soil that the cane or sugar beets were grown on. And secondly the way in which the molasses was produced. However, one rule that generally applies is, the darker the molasses the stronger the flavor, and vice versa, the lighter the molasses the milder the flavor. Most Canadian homemakers prefer the lighter colored mild-flavored molasses and that is the type that is mainly sold for table use in Canada.

Brown sugar is the general term used for the soft sugar which is brown or yellow or golden in color and which is used in baking, or cereals, in candy and so on. It is known as a soft sugar because it does not have the hard feel that granulated sugars have. This soft sugar is made from the mother liquid or what might be called the "syrup" which is produeed in the process of refining sugar beets or cane to various types of sugars. To get a light yellow or golden colored sugar more refining of the syrup has to take place thaan is needed to produce a dark brown sugar. Most of the brown sugar sold to consumers in Canada today is light brown or golden in color, and the sugar manufacturers say that there is the kind most consumers prefer. However, some dark brown sugar is produced and it can usually be bought in most shops. The darker brown sugar contains more molasses and of course, has more of the stronger molasses flavor, whereas, the light brown sugar which is more refined is milder in flavor.

Homemakers often have a little trouble with this soft sugar caking and becoming dry and hard. There are several ways to remedy the situation and this is what the Consumer Section home economists suggest. One good way to take out the lumps is to very slowly heat the sugar in a very slow oven, not hot enough to melt it but just enough to soften it. Another good way to take out the lumps is to roll the sugar with a rolling pin. Now, this is like putting the cart before the horse because it would be much better to know how to prevent the lumps in the first place. One good way is to keep the brown sugar in the bread box, for the moisture given off by the bread will keep the the sugar soft. Another good idea is to put a piece of apple in the jar with the sugar. The moisture from the apple will prevent the sugar from drying out and lumping.

Let's Eat

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"The average person does not appreciate celery, Madame. To him, it is merely something to munch, which is a good thing to do.

"Celery has a flavor unique; it contains no calories, yet is the best filler-upper I know.

Varieties of Celery

"Of course the way celery is to be used should determine the variety to be purchased, Chef. Bleached tender white celery is pleasant for munching or making elegant salads.

"Pascal (green) celery has more flavor, contains vitamin A (lacking in bleached celery) and more vitamin C and food iron. Pascal celery has a large proportion of tough stalks, so it should be chosen for cooking, and they should all be used to avoid waste."

Use Every Inch of Celery

"There is a trick used by all chefs, Madame, to utilize to the fullest extent the outer stalks of celery. They are first scrubbed clean, and blemishes removed. Then, a knife is inserted at the root end under the tough strings, and they are pulled up and off, way to the tops.

"The stalks are now tender enough to slice thin crosswise, and used in making salads of chicken, veal, lamb, lobster, shrimp or salmon.

Celery-Apple Relish Salad

"A most refreshing relish salad to serve on lettuce with poultry or fresh smoked pork of any kind. I make by combining 1½ cups juliennes of crisp celery with ½ cup fine-minced tart apple and ½ cup French dressing seasoned with table mustard."

"The de-strung celery stalks also add a real lift when cooked with other fresh or frozen vegetables, Chef. And for a chilly fall dinner, there's something especially heartening about a big tureenful of cream of celery soup.

Will Know Continent After Year's Travel

Wife of Kiwanis Club President Accompanies Him on American Tour

Montreal (CP) — Until last August Mrs. Donald E. Engdahl of Spokane, Wash., restricted her travelling to her husband's two-week vacation.

But her life hasn't been the same since her husband became international president of the Kiwanis Club.

Mrs. Engdahl recently spent a week in Montreal before leaving for Halifax and Newfoundland. And she won't get back to normal living until next August when her husband's term of office expires.

The attractive, dark-haired woman travels with Mr. Engdahl who has taken a year off from his job as president of the Spokane Sash and Door Company. He'll visit the different Kiwanis districts throughout Canada and the United States in his 12 months of office as international president.

Mrs. Enghadl's trip started in the late summer and she hasn't seen her children — two boys and a girl aged six to 11 — since her husband took office.

"We considered ourselves lucky that it came at this time because the children are still young," she said. "We wouldn't want to leave them if they were teen-agers."

Mrs. Engdahl said that constant travelling presents many problems — especially with the clothes.

Travel Troubles

"It's so difficult to get things washed and pressed, particularly if you're only stopping overnight," she said. "You have to match everything before you leave. Hats and suits and accessories have to be studied carefully.

"I'm worrying about one trip I'll be taking in the New Year. I'll be going to the southern states, where I'll need summer clothes . . and then on to Detroit where it will be cold. Things like that present difficulties."

Meeting people first bothered Mrs. Engdahl but now it's almost daily routine. She said women all over have things in common, particularly children. "You seldom meet a woman who doesn't want to talk about her youngsters regardless of where you are."

She thinks more women should travel with their husbands.

"I firmly believe that more marriages would be successful if wives helped their husbands in their work," Mrs. Enghald said. "It pays to take an active interest. It gives you things in common and you always know what he's talking about."

She doesn't expect any trouble getting back to normal living and she admits she doesn't miss the monotony of household chores.

"It will be good to get back to the children and stay put for a while," Mrs. Engdahl said.

Canadians drink about 315 pints of fluid milk and cream per capita annually.

USED UMBRELLA FOR PARACHUTE

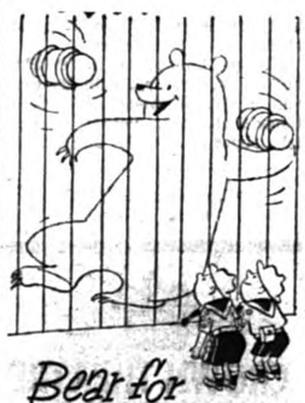

—Central Press Canadian

Like many other eight-year-olds, Richard Gault, of London, Ont., knows all about the theory of parachutes and how they slow down a person falling through the air. Richard, however, decided to try out his new knowledge. He jumped from a second storey, using an umbrella as a parachute. Now he is in hospital with severe head injuries.

HELPS THE COOK

Ottawa (CP) — Potholders, traditionally made by grandmothers or by money-wise wives, are apparently catching on with the Canadian textile industry. The industry manufactured 146,568 of them in 1952, compared with 31,183 produced in 1951.

Bear for Punishment

ALASKA'S GIANT Kodiac bear plays rough. But the people who run the Bronx Zoo have found the perfect toy for him. It's an aluminum beer barrel, which in his playful moments he can bang, bounce and generally maltreat without serious damage. Having seen barrels (filled) being tossed around trucks, we can understand why breweries have turned to these rugged, attractive containers. Another reason, of course, is that aluminum is an excellent protector for food and drink, preserving their purity and flavour indefinitely. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Hedge Hints

Because of the wet fall bringing with it heavy, muddy soil, many home owners may delay planting a proposed hedge until early spring. Actually fall or spring planting is a matter of convenience, though some experts consider that fall planting enable the roots to become more firmly established and develop some growth in the very early spring.

Whatever season is chosen, deciduous hedges should be planted in the autumn as the leaves are about to fall or in the early spring before the leaf buds burst. Evergreens are planted in September or just before the new growth starts in the spring.

There are a few practical suggestions made by horticulturists which will not only lessen the job of planting, but will give the hedge plants the best chance of survival.

Soil should be carefully prepared by digging a trench about eighteen inches deep and at least twice as wide as the spread of the roots of the young plants. If available a liberal dressing of well rotted manure should be dug into the bottom of the trench and covered with a few inches of well pulverized sandy or clay loam top soil. When the plants are put in place, more of this good top soil should be put around the roots and firmly tramped down before being watered liberally.

The plants should be placed in a single row, rather than a double row with the plants staggered. This latter method uses more plants and more space, is harder to trim into good shape and always leaves uneven ends.

The distance apart at which the plants should be planted will vary with the material used and the height it is desired to maintain the hedge. Erect growing shrubs like privet and the true hedge columnberry used in a low hedge should be placed nine inches to one foot apart. More bushy plants, which make a taller hedge, should be placed about 18 inches apart.

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

A Public Education Service of

THE HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA
111 Avenue Road, Toronto 5,
In co-operation with this newspaper.

EPILEPSY

The primary purpose of Health Education, as conceived by the Health League of Canada, is of course prevention of sickness. But there are secondary purposes that are rather important and one of these is correction of mistaken ideas about specific sicknesses. Sicknesses connected in any way with brain function (even though the conection be remote or wholly imaginary) seem to be the most set about with wrong notions, and these wrong notions in many cases stand in the way of preventive action or add new obstacles to cure and rehabilitation. Ignorance about alcoholism, for example, creates a chasm between the alcoholic and the normal workaday world which he finds himself increasingly unable to bridge. Epileptics are another group who suffer and are sometimes driven deeper into their trap because of the lack of understanding of people about them.

* * *

Question:

"I am heartbroken about my 13-year-old daughter. Up until now she has showed great promise, with good health, good personality, and consistent high marks in school. Lately she has been having epileptic seizures. Our doctor seems quite calm about it, but I have been told by friends who had epileptics in their families that her mind will gradually deteriorate. I can't understand this. I thought epilepsy was inherited, for one thing, but neither my husband nor I know of any in our families. As far as I know both our families have been quite normal, and until quite recently it seemed that our daughter was a normal child — in fact in some ways a bit above normal. How can such things happen?"

Answer:

You should read an article in the September-October issue of Health magazine, published by the Health League of Canada. It is by Dr. John S. Prichard, neurologist, of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, and it covers the subject of epilepsy fairly thoroughly.

In the first place, as Dr. Prichard points out, epilepsy is no indication that your child is — or was — in any way abnormal. Julius Caesar, for example, had the disease, but it did not stand in his way. Moreover, Caesar's biographers claim that he appeared more effective and intelligent toward the end of life, after having had the disease for years, than in his youth.

If epileptic seizures are due to a brain tumor, which is quite rare, there will possibly be a gradual deterioration of personality commensurate with the amount of brain tissue affected. Your doctor can find this out. However it is important to remember that this is most uncommon, and epileptic seizures are much more likely to be due to a more benign affair that will not affect the patient's health, intelligence or expectation of life. A common cause is a minute scar acquired as a result of a head injury at birth or in early life. This may be quite unnoticed until years later when, as a result of its gradual contraction, it pulls on and irritates the surrounding brain. The normal brain then gives off abnormal discharges, but when these disappear the patient will return to his previous state of alertness.

Epilepsy is not necessarily inherited, though some people appear to be more susceptible to seizures than others, and this susceptibility may be inherited.

With good handling seizures in adults and adolescents can be completely controlled in about half the cases. Of the remainder, about 35% can be improved. Your doctor will tell you what to do when your daughter is having a seizure, and he will probably be able to relieve these seizures by "inter-seizure treatment." In the meanwhile, under no circumstances look upon your daughter as an abnormal child, or you may cause her to have emotional disturbances which can increase the frequency of attacks.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Avoiding Friction

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"My husband reminds me that a certain amount of friction between children is natural. But I can't help remembering my father quoting Ruskin, about the true nature of a home being the place of Peace the shelter, from all terror, doubt and division. Ruskin believed that in so far as it is not this, it is not home . . . it is then only a part of the outer world, which you have roofed over, and lighted a fire in."

"It sounds very idealistic, and adult . . I suppose we parents are so sick of talk of hydrogen bombs and international wrangling that we long for peace at home — but show me a peaceful home where children are — and I'd certainly like to visit it!"

In Ruskin's day, the paternal form of family life was the accepted pattern. Father ruled the household. His word was law, not only for his children, but for his wife. Women had few ways of earning a living. For the sake of peace, they sometimes put up with very tyrannical husbands. The marriage bond was seldom broken but in the home there were often resentment and antagonism.

Students of modern marriage believe that although there are far more divorces at the present time than there were in Ruskin's day, there are also far more truly happy marriages. These are based on the husband and wife working as partners on an equal footing, with mutual appreciation and with different responsibilities.

A certain amount of conflict is healthy in a family. It is a necessory part of the clash of interests when brothers and sisters are growing up together. Children need to learn, not the avoiding of all discussion, but peaceful and fair ways of settling their differences. Mothers soon discover the wisdom of non-interference in brother-sister squabbles unless one child is likely to be harmed or property is in danger of being destroyed.

No one wants to live in a house where there is continual bickering. It is a most unpleasant place — and unsuitable for growing children. Sons and daughters learn more from example than by direct teaching. If mother and father get along agreeably with a few "tiffs" the children are likely to follow their lead. Parents cannot be too careful about a "united front". Taking part in children's quarrels against each other is usually a mistake.

Mother and father will likely realize that there are certain situations which seem to provoke fights among their children. The ownership of toys, the possession of clothes, following schedule, the relationship with other people, are all "hot spots".

Parents can avoid many minor wars between their children if certain rules are recognized and followed by all of the members of the family. Each child should have his own playthings. If a tiny broom belongs to an older sister, the younger sister cannot use it without the owner's permission.

In the family routine, the younger child must accept the rule that an earlier bedtime for him, than for an older brother or sister, is quite fair. Each boy or girl has a right to some play time with his own special chum without a brother or sister tagging along.

It is also essential to family harmony for each child to feel secure. He has his own place in his father's and mother's affection. If parents can plan to spend some leisure or some work time frequently with each child, this is one of the surest ways to reduce the number of brother-sister squabbles. Jealousy is the hidden underlying reason for many children's quarrels.

If a child is certain of his parents' love, he feels no necessity to prove his importance in the family circle. The "chip on the shoulder" the angry argumentative child can be led to more peaceful ways, not by punishment but by more affectionate attention from mother and dad. Love is the best medicine for the fever of fighting!

DISTRICT NEWS FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Cushing

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Drew, of Verdun, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Canning.

Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Pierneuk spent Sunday and Monday with friends in Douglas, Ont.

Mrs. W. Y. King, Mrs. L. R. McGain and Mrs. Archie Graham were in Montreal on Wednesday and Thursday of last week and attended the fall semi-annual meeting of the Ottawa Valley W.M.S. Presbyterial, held in the Queen Mary Road United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Burton and son, John, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Miss Alberta Cleland.

The W.C.T.U. met at the home of Mrs. King on Tuesday — a small but interesting meeting, at which reports of the fall executive meeting of the Provincial body were given. The local Union had recently sent a parcel of needed articles for Korea, direct to the W.C.T.U. supply department in Korea.

Mr. John Innes recently paid a short call at the home of his niece, Mrs. John Douglas, of Chatboro, en route to Ottawa from Montreal. While in Montreal, together with his son Floyd he visited his daughter, Mrs. McGerrigle of Quebec, by plane.

Miss Elsie M. Graham, of Verdun, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Graham.

Recent Sunday guests of Mrs. Jas. O'Brien at Chatboro were Mrs. Norman Bishop and Mr. Donald Nicholls, of Asbestos, also Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Cunningham, of Lachute. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson O'Brien were also guests recently while passing through to attend the funeral of their cousin, the late Mrs. Thos. Stewart of Lachute.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Watson, also Mrs. L. M. Gaston, Mrs. W. Y. King, Mrs. A. Graham and Miss A. Davidson attended St. Andrews East W.M.S. thank-offering meeting on Sunday night, to hear an interesting address by Mrs. Booth, Christian Stewardship secretary of the Ottawa Valley Presbyterial and wife of the Rev. Booth of the Bible Society, who has just returned from a trip to Europe in the interests of that Society. Mrs. Booth had many interesting things to tell, and will be heard at the Lachute W.M.S. on November 4.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Brown, also Mrs. Hollingworth and children, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. McGain at "Tynwald".

Mr. Lorne Martin and children were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas Coney of "Stonehaven".

Mr. F. Pitt, Miss Edith Pitt and Mr. D. Taylor, of Montreal, occupied the Pitt cottage over the week-end.

Mr. Jack McDowell, Mr. D. Munroe, Sr., and Mr. D. Munroe, Jr., spent Sunday at the McDowell summer home here. The sincere sympathy of this community is extended to Miss Annie McDowell in her recent accident, and hopes for her early and complete recovery are extended by all her many Cushing friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dobbie were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Tomalty at Mount Maple on Sunday.

The Home Economics meeting of Frontier Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Bain on Tuesday evening, November 2.

Avoca

The Rev. A. Penman left Monday for a visit to friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Thos. J. Young is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jos. H. Bates in Calumet.

Mr. and Mrs. A. McPhee visited their daughter, Mrs. Wm. H. Kelly, of Aylmer, Que., last Sunday.

Mrs. S. E. Smith, who has been on a holiday with her sisters in Saskatchewan and in Vancouver, returned home by air from the latter city, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith over the week-end.

Mrs. Elmer Andrews and Mrs. Keith Cameron were joint hostesses at a shower for Miss Marilyn Crawford, whose marriage to Mr. Ed. Graham, of Arundel, takes place in the United Church, Avoca, at 3 p.m. November 6.

Mr. S. Tomachevsky attended the Quarter-Century banquet of the Dow Company, at the Queen's Hotel in Montreal last Friday.

Messrs. Cecil and Gordon Young, and Irwin Arthurs, with their respective wives and families, have returned home from the Lake St. John district where they have been employed on roadwork during the summer.

Mrs. Neil McCallum spent the week-end in Avoca.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Geo. Andrews is on the sick list at present.

Mrs. Farrara, of Ottawa, spent Sunday with her daughters here.

Friends are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kelly and family back to Avoca, where they will reside on their farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. E. Provencal and son, James, attended the golden wedding reception for Mrs. Provencal's brother, Mr. Walter MacLean and Mrs. MacLean, given in the community hall at Kilmar Saturday evening. Mrs. Provencal is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Watterman, in Montreal.

Friends of Mrs. John McGarry (the former Melissa Bates) will be sorry to hear of her husband's death, which occurred last week after a lengthy illness.

SETS EXAMPLE

London, Ont. (CP) — Alderman Ray Dennis started a fire-prevention program here by having fire inspectors check his own home first. They found naked joists in the basement and said it was "a fine start for a good blaze." Alderman Dennis had them covered with asbestos.

Weir

Mr. Lloyd Larose and son, Keith, of Joliette, spent the week-end at the home of his mother, Mrs. P. Larose.

Mr. and Mrs. Royce Williams, also Mr. Victor Williams, of Montreal, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Williams.

Mr. Everett Larose, of Hamilton, accompanied by Mrs. A. Larose and Mrs. K. Cowan, of Montreal, called on friends here Sunday.

Miss Joyce McConnell was home from Montreal to spend the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Walsh and family, of Montreal, spent the week-end as guests at Mr. and Mrs. W. Dubeau's.

Mrs. D. Larose, accompanied by her son Raymond, of Montreal, visited friends here last week-end.

Keek-end guests at Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Morrison's included Mr. and Mrs. D. MacKimmie and son, Billy, of Lachute; Mr. and Mrs. Murray Morrison and sons, Barry and Dawson, also Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gardner and sons, Bob and Melvin, of Hudson Heights; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Morrison and Mr. Val Morrison, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Swail, of Val d'Or, and Miss Madeline Swail, of Arundel.

Among those who attended the funeral of the late Mr. D. K. Cowan in Montreal on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Morrison and Gayle Morrison, the Misses Clara and Margaret Duncan, also Mrs. E. Swail, of Arundel. Sincere sympathy from their many friends in this community is extended to the bereaved family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Owen with their daughters Debbie and Cheryl and son Dickie, of Beaurepaire, also Miss June Ibberson, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Owen.

Mellow Autumn in Suburbia, And A Lesson in Thankfulness

"EXILE FROM SUNNYACRES"
By Margaret Cook

We write sitting in the blessed sun, which shines in undeterred by screen or shutter — the time of the putting on of double-windows having arrived. It is also the time of raking and burning of leaves, of the horror of something called house-cleaning, of the making and inhaling of the aroma of pickles, the planning for Hallowe'en, the refurbishing of one's wardrobe, the killing of inoffensive wild animals, the lighting of hearth fires and the hum of the oil furnace, the time of beautiful dusk. One walks up the suburban street, with the acrid smoke a deep violet in the air, a few leaves underfoot, and the windows becoming orange or lime as the lights go on. In short, it is Autumn in suburbia.

Along with others we are inclined to scoff at suburban life, as being neither the one thing nor the other. It takes the new Canadians to open our eyes and minds to the delightful life in the small towns of Canada. We have some friends who, like so many others, simply walked out of a luxurious home in Central Europe and never went back. Instead of owning a city home and one or two in the country, they pay over a hundred dollars a month to live uncomfortably in a small flat in Montreal. If they desire to go to the country in the summer, they must again pay rent. This particular family is surrounded by Polish Jews. We have never met a Polish Jew, but from the reports of various people, we gather that they differ considerably from other Jews. One national characteristic remains constant — thrift. As soon as they have acquired a few hundreds, a down-payment is made on a duplex. The rent of one part is then applied to the payment of the principal and the family lives comfortably on the owner's salary; they even have a maid, and, as you have probably guessed, the domestic is a D.P. from Germany. Whether this choice is due to lack of other applicants, a sense of humor or one of revenge, no one knows. Anyway, soon, one duplex is paid for then the landlord buys another, and so on. In a few years, people like you and me are bemoaning the aggressiveness and wealth of the Jew. It is neither; just pure business instinct and the willingness to live like sardines in a can, for a time.

To return to the delights of life in the suburbs — our friends visit us, and to our amazement are enthusiastic over the town; it is quiet, it has an atmosphere, the trees are beautiful — in fact, they like it so well that they are currently looking for a house! We are somewhat humbled. When we talk politics, we are more so. In Europe, muses our New Canadian, a group of men talk politics — in Canada, cars. As one of those who can take our politics or leave it (preferably the latter), we are ashamed. Later, we are revived because, comments our Czechoslovakian friend, no woman in his country would dream of buying shares on the Stock Market, or, if she had such a wild idea the results would be disastrous. Perhaps we are not so dumb after all! At the end of the conversation, our new citizen makes a remark that stays with us: "You cannot buy democracy like a package in a drugstore." Maybe we are too smug, too careless in Canada of our freedom. Perhaps Thanksgiving is not just a day when we eat turkey with our friends. . .

Perhaps we were not sufficiently thankful, but we did enjoy our Thanksgiving holiday, spent at Sunnyacres. The best of the color was over, but the chartreuse, lime and yellow remained on the trees and one could walk through the red leaves on the ground. On the Saturday, we all went for a long walk through the woods in search of maidenhair fern, which grows profusely at the foot of a cliff behind a dried-up lake on a neighbor's property. We walked and walked, at first joyously — then expectantly — lastly, pantingly. We never did find the ferns, but we saw several interesting mushrooms, especially the Tremellodon, which looks like an ear made of dirty jelly; not a seductive fungus, but intriguing. The mosses are now at their best, full of color if one takes the time to get down to their level and examine them. On the Sunday, we walked back to the little lake on the property, and found it, as usual, wrapt in beauty. There are hundreds of these little water-mirrors through the Laurentians, some known only to the wild ducks and loons. Thick fir trees surround them and often quicksands make them unapproachable on foot, but all have the beauty of the primeval. We cannot understand the desire of the hunter to frequent such spots only to kill. It is a great solace to reflect that the eagerness of most hunters we know is equalled only by their ineptness!

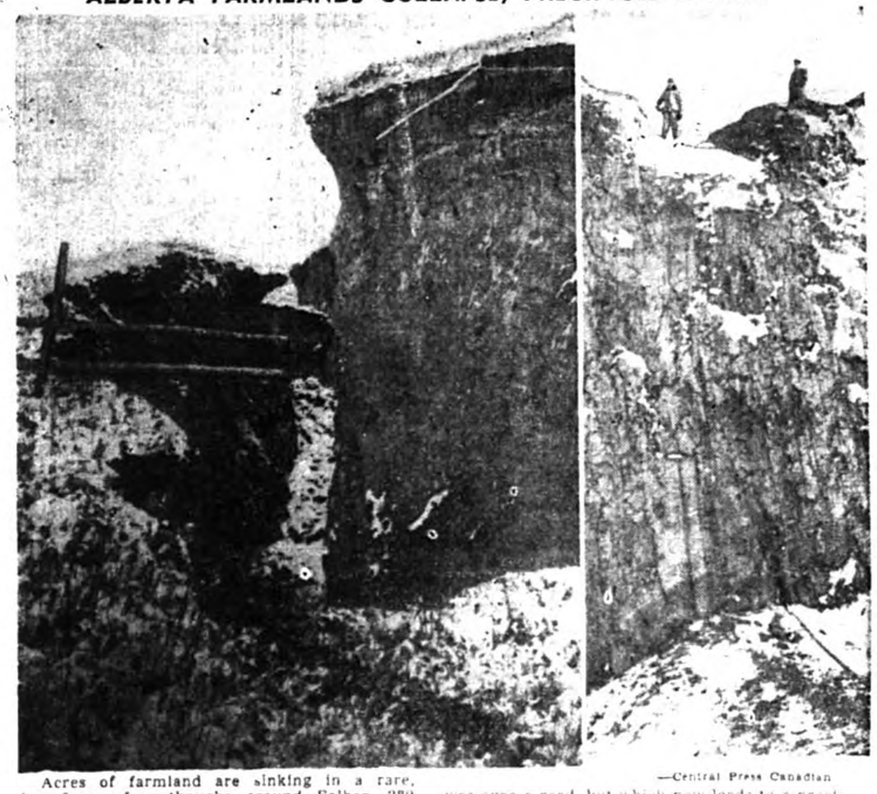

All eastern Canada suffered from abominable weather on Thanksgiving Day, but some thirty of us gathered around the hospitable table at Amos' place and enjoyed the traditional Thanksgiving fare. Every housekeeper knows the thrill one gets from the mere fact of not having to plan, prepare or clear up after the meal. If, to that, is added good food skilfully prepared, then one truly gives thanks.

Since our return, we are absorbed in the usual round of work and play, but mostly work. It is really amazing how one can fill the time with work. But every little while, we firmly shut the door on the undone tasks and hie ourselves out to get a bit of culture or amusement. Our teen-age daughter is absorbing the former by way of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra concerts for children on a Saturday morning. The juvenile audience is invited to examine or even play the instruments before the concert. "Next time I'm going to play the harp," reports Betty happily. "Dr. Pelletier said, 'the next piece is a Tschaikowsky', and the boy next to me asked, 'What kind of instrumen is that?' " Later, she asked quite innocently. "Are all musicians screwy?". I assure her that all top-flight musicians are inclined that way. "But pleasantly screwy," I hasten to add. . . The questions that the average mother must answer for the average child are appalling. "What does it mean to have a crush on a person?" demands the daughter. When the condition is explained, she comments, "Oh, I thought it was orange." The German girl friend is disgusted. "How can you be so ignorant, Betty? That was one of the first words I learned."

It is time now to get on with some of the aforementioned pickles. We have at hand a recipe given us by a friend from the Maritimes, who had it from her mother. It is one of those long, rambling vague recipes, so the results will be far from a perfect product. Instructions such as, "Add brown sugar to taste. It will take a lot", baffle me. Just what is a lot? Two pounds, five? "Cut up as much apple and onion as you have tomato." Not a word about the proportion of apple to onion, or does the wretched woman mean the apple and onion must each equal the tomato? Following such a recipe has all the thrill of a good mystery story, plus the joy of doubtful creation. But when we open the jar next January, we do so with pleasant anticipation and a thought for the lady who, so many years ago, made this very relish, standing over a range probably similar to the one we have at Sunnyacres. Life then was undoubtedly less thrilling, but more pleasant and secure.

Fall fashions in food continue to favor pumpkin pie served with a layer of whipped cream tinted with grated nutmeg.

ALBERTA FARMLANDS COLLAPSE, PRECIPICES APPEAR

Acres of farmland are sinking in a rare, slow form of earthquake around Falher, 280 miles northwest of Edmonton, Alta. In an area four miles long and up to a mile and a half in width, sections have dropped as much as 60 feet. The photo, right, shows the abrupt end of what was once a road, but which now leads to a precipice. Left, a 40-foot drop now separates two sections of a farm. Underground rivers, wearing away the supporting soil, may be the cause of the shift.

N.B. Works Mammoth Peat Moss Deposits

Shippegan, N.B. (CP) — New Brunswick's 14-year-old peat moss industry has become a leading source of income for the people of this district in summer. Frequent rain this year, however, set back the storage of winter stock.

Both peat moss plants in the province are at the northeastern tip of New Brunswick, near Shippegan and on Shippegan Island. A third was destroyed by fire a few months ago, leaving more than 100 men jobless. Another plant is planned for the Escuminac area of Northumberland County.

The supply of moss is practically unlimited. One deposit alone is estimated to contain 21,000,000 tons. About 20 peat bogs exist between Shippegan and Moncton and along the Bay of Fundy coast. Numerous peat moss producers operate in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia but New Brunswick has the largest deposits in Canada. They compare favorably in size and quality with many of the large bogs producing peat moss in Europe.

Absorbs Moisture

The product is dead but undecayed vegetation from bog plants. Peat, the fuel used for centuries in Europe, is the same material decayed or humidified after passage of many more years. The ability of peat moss to absorb large quantities of moisture, and its insulating efficiency, make it useful for many purposes. Most of the New Brunswick product goes to Canadian markets west of the Maritimes and to the United States.

Wet barrens had to be drained by ditching before the industry could get started. The moss is cut in blocks 18 inches long by 12 wide and six deep. These are placed in rows for drying in sun and wind. Later the blocks are stacked to finish the drying process.

One company brings the moss to its plant by a two-mile conveyor. After further stacking sheds, processing starts in the fall. The moss is broken into tiny particles by grinders and then is pressed into bales from 100 to 150 pounds.

The largest employer hires 200 to 250 men in summer and about 40 in winter. Summer workers, paid by the yard, earn up to $10 daily.

A girl may wear a golf outfit when she can't play golf and a bathing suit when she can't swim, but when she puts on a wedding gown she means business.
