Awards for School Sport, Extra-Curricular Merit

Last Friday morning, pupils of Lachute High School assembled in the school auditorium for the presentation of proficiency awards to individuals and teams in Debating, Students' Council Work and Athletics — the latter comprising track, volleyball, basketball, football and hockey.

Among the special recognitions in athletics were:

The Mrs. Kenneth Dixon Cup awarded to the player having shown the most improvement in junior hockey, and at the same time displayed the best sportsmanship. This cup was awarded to Brian Noble.

The R. A. Giles Trophy, to most valuable pupil on the Senior Girls' basketball team — awarded to Heather Jones.

The R. A. Giles Trophy awarded ot the most valuable pupil on the Senior Boys' hockey team — to Duncan MacTavish.

The Mrs. J. K. Campbell Cup to the Midget Boys' hockey team — received by Doug MacKenzie, manager.

Mr. Robt. Bailly, of the school teaching staff, presided at the gathering and at the close called on Principal F. H. J. Royal, who complimented the various winners also reminding those present that, while sports were an essential part of the school curriculum, it must not be forgotten that exams were close at hand and "study with concentration" was the all-important consideration at present.

A very creditable showing has been made throughout the year in the various sports on the school athletic program; the participating pupils and instructors deserve great credit.

Pilgrimage Sunday English Catholics At Local Shrine

In accordance with annual custom, a special day has been set aside for devotions of English-speaking Catholics at the Notre Dame de Lourdes shrine on the Brownsburg Road.

This observance has been arranged for the coming Sunday, June 5, with celebration of holy mass and a spiritual message in the English tongue commencing at 11 a.m.

Recital of prayers will be conducted at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon, with procession of the Road to the Cross at 3 p.m.

Approximately 700 pilgrims are expected from Montreal, and all English-speaking members of the faith hereabouts are invited to take part in the devotions.

Spotlight on War Memorials

The Memorial Park monuments erected in honor of those from this county who died for their country in World War I and World War II, are presently visible both day and night, since new spotlights have been installed lighting up the monuments.

The lights are clock-controlled, turning on and off automatically. A cement walk was recently laid from the Main Street sidewalks to the World War II monument, thus facilitating entry to that part of the park.

Permanent Organization for Highway Safety Outcome of National Conference in Ottawa

Quebec Education Costs

Quebec City (BUP) — Quebec Youth and Welfare Minister Paul Sauvé told the Renaissance Club in Quebec City that the National Union administration had spent more than $400,000,000 on education since 1944. He said the government had built 2,753 new schools serving 350,000 additional pupils at a cost of $153,512,110.

First Recommendations Include Co-ordination Of Traffic Laws and Accident Statistics

THIS WEEK AT OTTAWA
By Don Peacock, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 30 (CP) — Canada's first national highway safety conference has called for uniform motor vehicle legislation across the country and decided to establish a permanent Canadian Highway Safety Conference.

Named as its first president was Hon. Brooke Claxton, former defence minister and Canadian head of an insurance company. Mr. Claxton agreed to serve until about Sept. 1, when, he said, the duties of his insurance job will necessitate his resigning the presidency.

Objects of the permanent organization, decided on during a three-day conference of traffic officials of governments and private organizations, will be to:

1. Focus public attention on the importance of highway safety and promote exchange of views on ways of avoiding accidents.

2. Draft recommendations for action generally aimed at lessening the accident rate.

Headquarters of the new organization will be in Ottawa.

Uniform Legislation

The conference said uniform motor vehicle legislation should apply particularly to laws dealing with rules of the road, vehicle equipment requirements and driver examination and licensing.

The conference also said in a resolution that development of uniform statistics on motor vehicle accidents is essential to understanding safety problems, and should be a first priority objective of the continuing organization.

A continuing committee, it stated, should explore means of co-ordinating the enforcement of drivers' license suspensions among provinces. A further proposal was that each province appoint a director of safety to co-ordinate accident-reducing activities among various organizations.

The conference called for a general government approval of its program.

At the conference opening, Mr. Claxton predicted there would be 300,000 highway accidents in Canada this year in which about 3,000 persons would be killed and 75,000 injured. Effects of the conference it is hoped, may help to prevent some of these deaths and injuries.

Blast From Yukon M.P.

The Yukon's only Commons representative, a Liberal, has accused the government of trying to force on his constituents a law that they don't want. Jack Aubrey Simmons said he cannot support a proposed measure rewriting a 1924 law governing mining in the Yukon.

The 57-year-old former Whitehorse magistrate said he can't understand why the government insists on making changes distasteful to the great majority of Yukon residents. The changes had been thought up by officials who didn't know the difference between a frying pan and a gold pan.

"For the last four years they have been trying to force distasteful legislation upon us," he told the Commons.

Mr. Simmons spoke at length during the debate on a resolution preliminary to the bill. Opposition members joined in to support him. His speech was punctuated by sharp exchanges with Northern Affairs Minister Lesage, who said at one point that when Mr. Simmons sees the actual bill "you will withdraw most of the things you have said."

The Yukon member replied that although he hasn't seen the bill, "I could read it off by heart."

Mr. Lesage said part of the administration will be carried on through regulations under the new act. The act itself would provide for recording of claims, reduce claim sizes to 40 acres from 51.6, increase to 12 from eight the number of claims an individual can stake and boost to $200 from $100 the amount of "representation work" a prospector must do to hold his claims.

All Yukon residents who have prospected or held claims for 25 years would be given free miner's licenses, the minister said, and Mr. Simmons fired back:

"They all have long beards already, without waiting for 25 years."

His main objection was to plans to require four-post staking of claims, instead of two post staking. The new method would involve marking all corners of a claim, doing away with the traditional two-post markings of only the line of an ore body and claiming land on either side.

Mr. Simmons said he would like to see some of the government's officials trying to mark all four corners of a claim on some of the Yukon mountains. He also objected to having part of the mining law set out by cabinet regulations.

Uptrend in Holsteins, Decline in Ayrshires Noted in Spring Fair Livestock Entries

6-Horse and 4-Horse Outfits More Numerous, Add Spectacle to Horse Show Classes

Celebrating its 129th anniversary, the Lachute Spring Fair will get underway June 15 with several innovations and a record number of exhibitors. Ontario-Quebec-United States competition will feature various of the livestock classes.

According to Syd Patterson, manager of the Fair — for the first time in the history of this local exhibition a group of Polled Ayrshire cattle will be on exhibit. These hornless cattle will be exhibited by J. H. and W. McConnell, of Mont Rolland. According to local Fair officials, the herd is the only one of its kind they know of, and it is the first time that a group of this breed has been put on show.

The International flavor will be in evidence, as numerous entries in the horse classes have been received from the United States. Entries for four 6-horse teams and five 4-horse teams, the largest number ever exhibited at Lachute at one time, have been received from A. T. Cleland, Lachute; Chas. Liberman, Wyman, Que.; Ken Pritchard, Manotick, Ont.; and Hill Top Farm, Syracuse, N.Y. — the latter having entered two 4-horse outfits.

Cattle exhibitors and the number of animals are up considerably in many classes, a slight drop being in evidence in the Ayrshires and Shorthorns. Sheep and swine entries number 192 and 86, respectively, both surpassing last year's figures.

Holstein cattle have doubled from last year, with 18 exhibitors and 141 head in this breed, as compared to 11 exhibitors and 115 animals in the Ayrshire breed.

Jersey, Guernsey, French Canadians, Dual Purpose Shorthorns, Aberdeen Angus and Hereford entries all show increases with the total cattle, sheep and swine figures this year set at 743, as compared with 608 in 1954.

Attractions

The Main Building will once again feature the various handicrafts exhibits, entries for which close June 4. An added attraction on the ground floor of the building will be a Quebec Department of Mines display.

The Lions and Rotary will have their usual booths, as will local business establishments and machinery distributers. The Bernard & Barry Shows have been awarded the midway contract — this show having been here several years ago.

Grandstand entertainment this year will include the Square Dance Competition, for which entries will be accepted up until Fair time, if facilities allow.

In addition, the usual horse show will be featured during the evenings with a special stake for the Roadsters and Saddle Class to be awarded Friday evening and a similar stake for the Jumpers Saturday evening.

Taxi in Collision With Freight Train

Storm Damage To Local Circuits

Power and telephone lines took a beating during the electrical storms last Friday and Saturday evenings, according to the local managers of the Gatineau Power and Bell Telephone Companies.

A near-blaze caused by the storm was reported by Charles Harris, Grace Street, who occupies a house owned by Geo. Y. Deacon. Apparently lightning hit the wires leading into the house and burnt everything as far as the fuse box, where a small fire started. The blaze was easily doused by occupants of the building, although considerable damage was done to the radio, TV set and other electrical fixtures.

Around midnight Saturday, wires fell on some steel drums stored in the Gatineau Power Co. yard behind Deacon Motor Sales, and sent up brilliant flashes of blue light. This did not affect the power supply, however, except in the immediate area of the fallen line.

The western section of town was plunged into darkness some minutes later when lightning struck all three main switches located in the vicinity of the H. M. Lavigne Store, shattering all three. Power was restored around 1 a.m. following their replacement.

Bell manager Roland Dupuis reports that service in the St. Andrews East area was cut for a short time, but that all trouble reported was of a minor nature, such as branches and low insulation points, and the difficulties were remedied without trouble in a short time.

The diesel locomotive of today's Canadian railroads is capable of more than 5,000 miles of continuous operation without attention beyond servicing and inspection.

Sentence Given In Police Case Long Postponed

Bertrand Ferron was sentenced Tuesday to costs or eight days in jail, and placed on $100 bond to keep the peace for a year, when convicted on a charge of possessing a loaded gun in his motor vehicle. He appeared before Judge Archambeault Tuesday, following three postponements in the trial, which was originally set for February.

Ferron was acquitted on the theft charge as, due to the death of John Lemay, no one could positively identify the property claimed stolen.

The charges were laid following a fracas in the office of the Lemay construction firm late in January of this year. Chief Laurent Ducharme and Asst. W. Lepine patrolled the area until early morning after they were notified of the trouble, but could find no trace of the suspect. Ferron was arrested here early the following morning, and the police reported finding a .22 calibre bolt-action rifle loaded with four bullets, in the truck.

Wins B.A. Degree

Kenneth Weldon Trickey, Lachute High School graduate and son of Mrs. A. Trickey, Barron Avenue, who was awarded the Bachelor of Arts degree (in absentia) at McGill University convocation last week. Studying at the Diocesan Theological College, Kenneth took second class honors in History and ranked second in his class of students. On completion of his year, he left to serve in an Anglican mission pastorate in the Edmonton district, where he will spend the summer months. He was therefore absent from the convocation ceremonies.

School Crafts and 'Teen Fashions Viewed by Public

Individuality was the keynote of the annual display held in the Lachute High School Industrial Arts department on Friday last. Much credit is deserved by the students of Grades VI to XI for their superlative selection and execution of the various projects viewed by many parents and friends. The varied array of projects on display proved further that the latent abilities of our children have but been partially exploited.

Of the many pieces of wood and sheet metal work one of the more prominent was a chrome kitchen table by David Touchette. Cedar chests by Fred Andoney and Stewart Robertson; desks by Bill Lummis, Wayne Bradford, Bruce Cairns, Donald Parker and Bob Armstrong and various turned table lamps by Bryan Noble, Sandy Jones, Reg Stansfield and Angus Todd added much to enhance the display.

Coffee and end-tables by Hugh Dobbie, Bob Lachapelle, Jackie Lavis, John Welden, Bruce Hay, Bertie Wigney, Fred and Ed Dorion contributed much to the high calibre workmanship. Outstanding finishes on tables were produced by David Pollock, Bruce MacDonald and Donald McOuat.

Lathe work was more than adequately carried out by the Grade VII classes. Notables were: a nut bowl by Bob MacAdam, a Lazy Suzan by Frank Karsh, and a smoking stand by Wayne Laurin. Other turnings included a floor lamp by Bod Todd and a built up lamp by Brent Laurin.

An interesting departure was a class project of mass produced modern side chairs by the Grade X students.

Worthy of note were two tea wagons of entirely different designs by Carl Rodger and Bob Campbell. An upholstered hostess chair by Wayne Berry stressed the individuality of selected projects.

Not to be outdone by their seniors, the Grade VI classes contributed many well made projects. Among these were: book ends and cookie cutters by Ralph Bedard, Peter Riddell, John Miller and Alexander Bridge. Knife racks and bread boards by Rodger Titman, Ronald Clarke and Wayne MacRae; wall vases by David Murdoch, Howard Bruce; book racks by Ian Vessie, Bobby Hay and Winston Hodge all contributed immensely to a successful exhibition.

The Industrial Arts Department would like to thank the parents and friends for their interest and also John McFaul & Son for use of their window to display many of the students' projects.

FASHIONS

On Friday evening, May 27, the Home Economics classes of Lachute High School presented "Fashions for Teens" in the gymnasium. All the models were students of Lachute High School and each girl modeled a garment which she had made during the year.

To begin the show the Grade VI girls modeled the aprons they had made. In order to make these the use of the sewing machine and simple hand work had to be mastered. Next the Grade VII girls presented their gay cotton skirts. After this were the cotton dresses made by the Grade VIII girls. Most of these dresses featured sweeping skirts and many were backless, halter neckline dresses worn with boleros. Also included were the dressy type and sports model dresses. The Grade IX and X girls presented woollen jumpers and skirts which will be very popular with the teen-agers next fall. Many of these featured the princess style and the empire line.

The commentator was Jean McOuat, while Lois Silverson supplied the music. Miss Catterson and Miss Sudsbury helped the girls with make-up and dressing. The Fashion Show was directed by Miss McVittie, the Household Science teacher.

There was also a display of work in the Household Science room. This included sewing, cooking and interior decorating.

LHS "Lampada" Off the Press

The annual, which features the graduating class of 1955, as well as other grades and school activities, sells for $1.

The edition is devoted to Lachute High School news and items; the County schools are not represented in the year book this time.

New Municipal Secretary-Treasurer

Claude Daoust, 46, who last night was sworn into the office of secretary-treasurer for Lachute Town Corporation. Mr. Daoust, who commenced his duties yesterday, is a former employee of Ayers Limited with 16 years' service in the local mill office.

Auto Demolished, Crash at Calumet Level Crossing

Gerald Reeves, 20, of Calumet, was treated at the Smith Clinic in Hawkesbury for minor injuries received when the car which he was driving crashed into the side of a Montreal-bound freight train, at the CPR crossing east of Calumet. The accident occurred around midnight Saturday.

Reeves' car, a 1951 taxi sedan, was headed towards Calumet when the accident occurred. The auto which hit the hotbox on the wheels of the sixth box-car, was demolished.

Traffic Officer Albert Legault was notified of the accident and being told that a death had occurred, notified Det. Maurice Lamoureux, both of whom investigated the occurrence.

* * *

An estimated $1,350 damage resulted Saturday evening shortly after 7 o'clock, when a car owned and driven by Jeannot Laurin, Lachute, R.R. 4, crashed into the side of a car owned and driven by Ernest McOuat, who was turning into his driveway a short distance past the Golf Club on Route 8.

No serious injuries resulted in the mishap, which was investigated by Traffic Officer Roger Massie.

Sentences Meted In Traffic Charges

Claude Filion, 33, of Ste. Scholastique, and Adrien Lemay, of Grenville, were sentenced to a fine of $50 plus costs and Lemay's license was cancelled for three months when convicted on charges of impaired driving. The sentences were handed down by Judge Archambeault in St. Jerome recently.

Filion was arrested by the town police following an accident on McOuat's Bridge shortly after 9 p.m. Thursday, May 19. The case was transferred to Det. Maurice Lamoureaux, who laid the charge of impaired driving.

Lemay was picked up on Main Street by Chief Laurent Ducharme and Provincial Traffic Officer Roger Massie, and held in the local cells prior to being taken to St. Jerome.

* * *

Numerous Lachute and district citizens and businessmen paid fines of $50 plus costs for operating their motor vehicles with 1954 license plates after these had expired. The charges were laid by all local officers on duty at the time of the license-plate removals.

TV'S INFLUENCE

TV is as inevitable as the flying machine, the telephone, moving pictures and radio, but it will be a pity if it eliminates "live" entertainment. That includes sports as well as music.

Gatineau Power Lines

Prompt Payment

Under the regulations of the Provincial Electricity Board, an electricity bill is required to be paid within 15 days from the date it is sent to the customer.

The great majority of the Company's customers take advantage of the liberal discount of 10% offered for payment within this 15 days.

It is suggested to those who do not take advantage of this discount that they should endeavor to secure this saving for themselves.

Following this 15 day period the Power Company is authorized to disconnect the service.

The Power Company would be delighted if everyone paid up promptly and no one had to be disconnected for being in arrears.

Disease Resistance In Forage Crops

Ottawa — Losses in forage production due to plant diseases are not so apparent to the average person as losses in cereal crops. Forage losses may often be confused by such terms as "suffering from drought", "poor soil" or "winter killing" when actually the grass is suffering from a disease. W. R. Childers of the Forage Crop Division at the Central Experimental Farm in Ottawa, states that considerable work will have to be done if we are to have new disease resistant varieties for the future.

Plant selection for resistance may be carried out by the plant breeder in the green house or in field nurseries. Regardless of where the work is done it requires a good deal of ability, time and patience. An example of forage disease studies is that of rust in timothy.

Improved varieties through selection such as Climax timothy are highly resistant to this disease. Even when rust spores are plentiful, less than five per cent of the plants of the Climax variety will be badly infected. Other grass diseases responsible for losses in forage production are leaf-spot and ergot in one of our most popular grasses, namely brome. Leaf-spot may appear early in May as large black blotches on the leaves bordered by a yellow ring. As the season advances a high percentage of the leaves are killed by the invader. When brome is attacked by ergot, the seed is replaced by a black hardened false seed. This reduces the value of the crop and is harmful to cattle when eaten in large amounts.

Pork in More Demand, Beef Market Declines

Ottawa (CP) —

The pig, sped by a decline in prices, is gaining on the cow in the race for favorite meat spot on the Canadian dinner table.

Canada's total meat consumption rose in the first three months of 1955 to 386,100,000 pounds from 361,900,000 a year ago. And the increase was entirely due to a rise in demand for pork. The agriculture department estimated that pork consumption increased in the three-month period to 164,800,000 pounds — a rise of 31,600,000 from last year.

In that same period beef consumption dropped by 4,800,000 to 197,000,000. Veal declined by 1,300,000 to 18,600,000 and mutton and lamb by 1,300,000 to 5,700,000.

Thus, beef's 63,600,000-pound lead over pork in the first quarter of 1954 was narrowed to 32,200,000 pounds in January-March 1955.

The department said hog prices may stiffen slightly both in Canada and the U.S. as marketings decline seasonally this month and next, but prices are not expected to rise to high levels reached a year ago.

If U.S. prices in later months break earlier than usual, the department further predicted, Canadian prices will not follow but maintain some strength. And if the U.S. market could not absorb Canada's supplies, Canadians themselves would be able to buy all that was available.

Cattle marketings in the first quarter were virtually unchanged from last year's 209,000,000 pounds while prices increased slightly. This tended to reduce consumption.

"The outlook in both Canada and the U.S. for the remainder of 1955 is for continued high production and price stability," the department said.

Reducing Mortality In Newborn Pigs

Losses of new-born and young pigs can be reduced considerably if proper attention is paid to the pregnant sow several months before farrowing. E. B. Fraser of the Animal Husbandry Division at the Central Experimental Farm in Ottawa, advises that strong healthy pigs can be produced that will withstand the shocks of their early life if the pregnant sow is fed a balanced feed mixture.

The importance of the problem is emphasized by the high loss of pigs between birth and weaning which constitutes a direct loss to the swine producer. Most factors which contribute to this mortality can be overcome by careful management practices.

The balanced feed mixture recommended by Mr. Fraser is made up of coarse grains and protein, mineral, and vitamin supplements. While all parts of the ration are important, the vitamin requirements seem particularly necessary. High quality gren leafy alfalfa hay is an important source of vitamins for winter feeding to the brood sow.

Among other factors vital to reducing little pig losses cleanliness is perhaps of foremost importance. A clean sow in a clean farrowing pen should be the objective. This means scrubbing and disinfecting the farrowing pen and washing the sow. Crushing of the young pigs can be prevented if guard rails are constructed around the walls of the farrowing pen. Further precautions should be taken to ensure a warm dry environment, and if electricity is available a brooder with a heat lamp will prove useful.

Nova Scotian Wins McKee Air Trophy

—Central Press Canadian

Wing-Comander Jerauld G. Wright, DFC, 37, of Liverpool, N.S., has been named as winner of the McKee Trans-Canada trophy for 1954. The trophy is presented annually for meritorious service in advancement of Canadian aviation. W/C Wright, an RCAF officer serving at Air Force headquarters, won the award for his invention of the R Theta Computer, a navigation device particularly valuable for jet fighter aircraft. His invention is termed "a significant and outstanding contribution to the science of air navigation."

SEES BIG FUTURE FOR N.B. MINING

Fredericton (CP) — H. N. Curry, New Brunswick mines inspector, says the province has been mining coal since 1639, but is just coming into its own as a mining area with the discovery of base metals.

He said the first coal mine was operating in Minto, N.B., more than 300 years ago.

Mr. Curry said the mining boom that began with base metal finds in the Bathurst area will not be a fly-by-night venture. Known ore bodies will keep mills operating for years.

He said New Brunswick Mines Limited will have a mill producing 4,000 tons daily by 1956. The American Metals Company will have a mill producing 1,500 tons daily by about the same time.

Combine Four Isles In Seaway Project

Morrisburg, Ont. (CP) — Four islands in the St. Lawrence River may become one when excavation at Galops island for the St. Lawrence seaway project is completed.

The new island will probably become a public park. It will be composed of the "spoil" excavated — amounting to 22,000,000 cubic yards of material.

The excavation is expected to get under way early this summer and is scheduled to be completed early next year. With removal of rock involved, cofferdams will be built to cut off the south channel at Galops island for excavation work.

Much of the work will be done under water, creating a hazard to shipping. The islands to be changed are Galops, Lalone, Lotus and Round.

The work area will be marked by buoys. An enclosure will be built and then filled with the rock and earth spoil.

Work will be done under three Canadian contracts and one American. Cost of the American job has been estimated at $7,000,000.

Taxes for Protection

IT IS NOT often this column protests against neglect, omission or short weight in Lachute's civic services. As a whole, the street maintenance and other departments of administration are above criticism. . .

Last week-end, however, the roads department was found wanting. In a deluge of rain in off-duty hours (Saturday night) several of the drains became blocked with debris, and spots in the streets and intersections were flooded from sidewalk to sidewalk. One taxpayer of our acquaintance arrived home just in time to unblock the drain before water flooded over the sidewalk into his property.

The offending low-spots are well known to the town employees. In every rainstorm they need attention — and usually the crewmen are there when needed. In the case of a storm at night or on week-ends, however, there should be provision for appointed town employees to tour the precincts to avert possible flooding. This was not the case last week-end, when the trouble was not remedied till the following afternoon.

Convention-itis

JUST HOME from a brief convention, we are interested to read that more than $70 million worth of business palaver will din into the ears of Canadian convention-goers this year. It's the "best year yet" for the convention supply trades — according to Jon Kiernan in The Financial Post.

Some 1,000 associations, trade groups, and societies have or will hold full dress meetings in Canada in 1955 and an even larger number of company conventions, or internal conclaves, will assemble within the major convention centres, thereby taxing the nation's group business facilities almost to the utmost. A survey of convention greeters and suppliers shows that some 100,000 people will sit as delegates at the regional, national, and international association meetings already scheduled and that as many or more businessmen will assemble privately at the same convention centres for sales and other internal conventions.

Half-Century of Service to Agriculture

THIS YEAR Macdonald College marks its 50th year of service to Canadian agriculture, and special anniversary celebrations are being held on the campus of the College this Friday and Saturday.

From this institution have come many leaders in agriculture, and many research findings that have benefitted the whole agricultural community. At the College, which is privately endowed, is the agricultural faculty of McGill University.

Credit for many advancements in Canada's agriculture must go to Macdonald, where research on many aspects of a farmer's livelihood has been going on ever since the College was founded. Research on grains, soils, plants, animals and poultry has provided the know-how for farmers to overcome many of their basic problems. The consumer may also be thankful that work at Macdonald has led to better farm products being marketed more efficiently.

Most people know about the College's contribution to agriculture through the work done on cereal, forage and root crops. Numerous varieties have been developed at Macdonald.

Similarly, the ability of the Animal Husbandry department at Macdonald to develop superior families of stock is well-known in many parts of the world. Livestock from the College's barns have been shipped to Europe, South America, New Zealand and the United States.

The sheep flocks of Macdonald are also highly regarded. The North Country Cheviot breed was first introduced into Canada by the College in 1945, and attempts to market wool from the College led eventually to our nationally co-operative wool marketing organization. Beef-breeders and poultrymen have similarly benefitted by Macdonald's progress in method and practice.

A large part of the work done at the College, particularly in the Chemistry, Physics, Entomology and Plant Pathology departments, represents research which is only indirectly connected with agriculture. Nevertheless the work they accomplish may prove just as important to the farmer in years to come.

Macdonald has made some notable contributions in extension, as well as in research. The College's adult education department played a very important role in the development of Farm Forums. They also were prominent in the development of the Agronome service in Quebec and the Agricultural Institute of Canada.

Much of the wisdom of Macdonald has been plowed back; many outstanding graduates have become staff members. They include the College's first graduate, Dean W. H. Brittain and his contemporaries, A. R. Ness, L. C. Raymond, the late Robert Summerby and Dr. Emile Lods.

Motorist of Yesteryear

HALF THE FUN of motoring is gone and there's no chance we'll ever get it back.

Used to be that any motorist worth his salt could take his car apart and put it back together again. The automobile, with its rattles and its shimmies and its cantankerous engine, fulfilled Everyman's desire to take things apart and find out what makes them run.

And the works of the Model-T and other vehicles of that era were simple enough that, once apart, the handyman could usually put them together so they ran as well as ever.

A wrench or two, a screwdriver and a pair of pliers were all the tools required. The engineering tolerances weren't too closely calculated. The spark gap in the coils would function pretty well by rule of thumb.

And what's happened? The engineering genius of a couple of continents has taken hold of the motor car. It's now cluttered up with intricate gadgets for almost every operation — power brakes, power steering, pressure oil system, automatic transmission, shock absorbers, fancy air conditioning.

The ordinary motorist who tinkers with almost anything but the spare tire is flirting dangerously with garage bills when he has to call a mechanic to start his vehicle again.

The car is a fast, reliable piece of transportation machinery. Compared with the cars of yesteryear it is a thing of luxury, within the reach of almost every working citizen, if he wants one badly enough.

But as a hobby and a plaything, it's an utter failure.

Sure, it's a pleasure to drive, and a mighty handy way to travel. But some are firmly convinced — half the fun of motoring is gone.

In Pocketbook Terms

FOUR THOUSAND times between spring and fall, Canada's forests are set aflame by public recklessness — according to J. L. VanCamp, general manager of the Canadian Forestry Association, an authority on forestry well known to conservationists in this county.

Many people still look on forest fires as a spectacle of the distant wilderness. They forget that their pay cheques are menaced by this destruction of our resources. For the so-called "wilderness" is a harvest-field of productive woodlands, furnishing the pulp and paper industry with over a billion dollars each year, to be distributed to every corner of Canada.

The man-on-the-street can best estimate the criminal waste from forest fires by adding up Canada's income provided by the pulp and paper mills, chiefly from Crown timber properties. This branch of forest industry issues 400 millions in wages to woods and mill workers, another 200 millions goes for taxes, a like amount for transportation, 96 millions for chemicals and mill supplies, 47 millions for fuel, 30 millions for electricity, and 115 millions for other purchases.

All this spread of wealth through the arteries of Canadian trade flows constantly from a natural resource that can either be weakened by public-set fires, or preserved and increased by rigid protection and intelligent management.

Realizing the steady increase of forest values shown by the expansion of forest industry, further tolerance of the annual forest fire-plague is too costly for the nation or the individual.

"BACK TO THE ALAMO !"

Priscilla Prosser has been a family friend for donkey's years. As she went prematurely white — at the age of twenty — and I first knew her when she was in her late forties, I've always called her "Old Prissy". Today, she is crowding ninety but is as spry as a cricket and is keeping up with the times, come what may. That's why it came as no surprise to me to learn from a neighbor that "that silly old biddy has gone right off her trolley and bought herself a complete Davy Crockett outfit."

On hearing this rare piece of news, I hurried over to pay a call on Prissy. It was Saturday afternoon and I found her, parked in front of her television set, fully dressed à la Davy C., and surrounded by a motley crew of local children.

"Shh!" Prissy cautioned, as I crept in and took up a seat on the divan between four youthful Crockeeters.

On the screen, Crockett was busily exposing the tactics of the tin-horn gambler Thimblerig, for the thousandth time this season. When the cheat was discovered, the assembled Crocketts cheered madly and I thought for a moment that the roof would blow off.

"How do you ever stand it?" I asked Prissy when the show finally ended.

"Stand it?" she replied. "Why, I wouldn't miss one of those films for the world. Besides, the kids elected me the president of their Crockett fan club, so I've got to watch the films. But I like it and it keeps both men and the kids out of mischief!"

"But why do you wear the outfit?" I queried.

"It's in the constitution. The President of the fan club must own a complete Davy Crockett outfit and must wear it at all meetings of the club."

Prissy left me hurriedly at this point to settle a minor altercation that had broken out between two of the smallest Crocketts in the group. When she returned, she invited me to "set a spell and join the gang in some chow." Unfortunately I had to forego the enjoyment as a previous engagement was already beckoning me away. So I left "Old Prissy" and the Davy Crockett fan club and wended my way into the city.

As I wandered along, I wondered just what force drives us mortals into making fools of ourselves whenever the opportunity presents itself. I wondered, particularly, why we let commercial interests ride roughshod over us without ever fighting back. I found myself asking myself why we let commerce ply us with Mothers' Day bouquets at outrageous prices when we could pick the same bouquets from the same people the day after Mothers' Day for about 90 per cent less. And I wonder why we let Walt Disney bulldoze us into buying coonskin hats and buckskin suits of poor quality for our young fry, at costs ranging from $25 up.

I never solved the questions for myself and a day or two later, I discussed the problem as I strolled through Westmount with my old Army buddy, Benny Goodfellow.

"What's the answer, Ben?" I asked.

"There isn't one, as far as I know. I guess Puck had the right idea when he said: 'What fools we mortals be!' That's it in a nutshell. We're all a pack of fools."

At this point, our deliberations were rudely interrupted by a half-pint Davy Crockett who careened out of a laneway on a tricycle and ran over Ben's shoes, all the while screaming, "bang! bang! bang!"

Benny muttered a few unsavory remarks under his breath and then vocally hit into the child. Before the boy and his doting mother, who viewed the proceedings from the front porch, Ben expressed the feelings of the cooler heads who are slightly tired of America's buckskin hero.

"Confounded little brat," Benny roared. "Why don't you crawl back to the Alamo and drop dead!"

MUST CO-OPERATE

Part of the training in our educational system is that the child must learn to live with other people and adhere to the rules which are basic in our day of living in groups. For some children, this self-discipline is the most difficult part of school life. Parents can be helpful if they work along with teachers and school in these formative years.

— Campbellton (N.B.) Tribune

It doesn't take long for some children to cease being an armful and become a handful.

OF MANY THINGS

BAD DAYS

We can all handle our lives pretty well when things go right. But the big trick is knowing what to do about the bad days, when everything seems wrong and the wrong looks so darn permanent.

If I had the answer to the problem, I wouldn't be writing a newspaper column. I'd probably be the Prime Minister of Canada, or safely tucked in some other lovely job. But I do have one hint.

The bad days never seem quite so bad if you haven't taken too much pride in the good ones. So while the good and cheerful days are upon you, give Providence and not yourself the credit.

This is just another way of saying that men are happiest when they place their lives in the hands of a Power higher than themselves. Not a human power — for that would be tyranny; but in a Divine Power — the same Power that spins the universe. It is only when human beings try to play God that they run headlong into lasting disaster.

This goes for governments and individuals alike.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Better brush up on your first aid. The drowning, food poisoning and heart attack season — good old summer — is almost here.

To save us newspaper readers from the monotony of sudden death in various forms all through the hot weather, some national foundation should strike a Holiday Hero medal to be issued to those who go through the entire season without risking their lives, or other people's lives.

People who also chalk up a record of safe living through the fall and winter should be awarded a bar to the medal.

They wouldn't have to give many of the medals away.

In addition to the main award, scrolls of honor should be presented to citizens who refrain from murderous or suicidal actions of one kind or another. . .

Non-swimmers who can prove that they never once during the whole season embarked on long voyages aboard an inner tube, or did a midstream balancing act on a canoe.

Holiday-cabin tenants who can show documentary evidence that they never once used gas or oil to start the stove.

Parents who can produce three or more witnesses that they never left toddlers alone with a box of matches and a tin of rat poison to play with.

Old gentlemen who will swear before a notary public that they never once pushed a 100-pound roller or lifted a big rock to impress young Mrs. Brown next door.

Camp cooks who can establish beyond reasonable doubt that they never courted salmonellosis and botulism by serving three-day-old potato salad or pork and beans that had been simmering in the can since Tuesday.

Tourists who can prove that they never once risked the loss of an arm by feeding the bears in a national park.

Drivers who can show that they refrained from passing on hills, speeding and throwing bottles out the window.

Hunters who leave the whiskey at home. Hunters who take the whiskey but leave the guns at home.

Mountain-climbers who stay on the prairies.

Are You Keeping Cows or Will Your Cows Keep You?

That is a question of prime importance now. What you do now will affect your entire summer and winter milk production.

Cows are on grass now, and pastures are good. You have been feeding those cows for six months or more, and buying feed for them too. The temptation is very strong to let the cows dig for themselves and make a little easy money. . . But in spite of your wishes it JUST DOESN'T WORK THAT WAY.

Grass is milk-stimulating and also is 85% water, so if your cow could eat 100 lbs. of grass a day, which she can't do, she would only have 15 lbs. of dry matter. Fifteen pounds of dry matter does not furnish enough material to make the milk and meet her body requirements, so she draws on her body and takes off flesh to make the milk she produces! Finally, when Nature calls a halt to the robbing process, she commences to drop in milk flow.

You may commence to feed then, but too much damage has been done by this time. You will be left to keep a cow that won't give enough milk to pay her keep, and too thin for even the butcher to buy.

Better to feed your cows all they will eat of a light, palatable, body-building feed — either BULKY LAS or DRY & FRESHENING. . . Get your supply today and stop the robbing process! We deliver.

25th Birthday Celebrated by Members And Guests of Frontier W.I. Branch

Cushing — Members of Frontier Women's Institute met in the Legion Hall at Brownsburg on Monday evening, May 20, to celebrate their 25 years of friendly contacts with each other, with other members of the Institute, and with the Q.W.I. head office at Macdonald College.

The "Mother Branch" — Brownsburg W.I. (then called Chatham W.I.) — catered for the luncheon. . . . We say "Mother Branch", because several of its members 25 years ago decided that this work should be made known a bit farther afield, and in particular to the women living along the Ottawa River part of the county commonly spoken of as "The Front"; so they met together and organized a new branch which was named "Frontier" — with Mrs. James Murdoch as president and Mrs. Ruby Kennedy as secretary-treasurer.

Twelve presidents have helped this branch to become one of the most active and flourishing ones in the county.

Two of these, Mrs. R. McFaul and Mrs. A. Graham, have filled the role of county presidents. Mrs. A. Graham for many years was county convener of Publicity, and the local convener of Publicity for so many years that it would be looking back a long period of time to state the exact number.

Mrs. W. Y. King asked the blessing at the luncheon. The toast to the Queen was given by Mrs. James Murdoch; the toast to the members by Mrs. R. Kennedy; and the president's welcome followed the Ode and Mary Stewart Collect. Greetings were extended from the County W.I. by Mrs. Crosby, county president. Minutes from the organization, also from the first regular meeting, were read by the secretary, and the most interesting highlights of the past were given by Mrs. Archie Murdoch, a former president.

The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers, and a three-tier anniversary cake added to the spirit of the celebration.

An anniversary poem composed especially by Mrs. Archie Graham was read and souvenir copies given to all members and guests. There were 38 members present — which was not, however, the full roll; several were prevented from being present. Mrs. I. H. Fuller, past-president, read the memorial roll. Mrs. R. Blakely, a former member, favored with a delightful solo. . .

This was followed by Mrs. D. Clark's introduction of the guest speaker, Miss J. Catterson, of the teaching staff of Lachute High School. Mrs. Clark, in speaking of Miss Catterson, stated that unfortunately she was leaving Lachute School, "not because of selfish reasons (such as getting married), but to further her education by attending University." Miss Catterson was fittingly thanked by Mrs. G. Lawson and her interesting address on the Two Marys was much appreciated. Being well versed in History, she gave some interesting and intimate tales of the lives of Mary Stuart ("Queen of Scots", so often called) and Marie Antoinette, wife of King Louis of France, and the revolution of his day. She touched too upon King Charles, and upheld Queen Elizabeth in the fatal ending of the life of Mary Stuart for the safety of her throne and of England.

The event closed with the singing of "God Save the Queen" and the members and guests left fully convinced that they had spent an interesting and profitable evening, and that it was an honor to be a member of the Women's Institute.

Following is the souvenir verse by Mrs. A. Graham given to the ladies as a memento of this anniversary:

25th Anniversary Greetings

A word to say in greeting — now what can one say
In real, special greeting for this festal day?
" 'Twas in the merry month of May" — No, that's been said before;
Yet, why not say it often, since May comes o'er and o'er,
Named for a special goddess, whose chum was Boni Deiu,
The goddess peculiar to women, such as you, and you, and you.
This earth-goddess was much revered by every Roman Dame
Yet before their lordly husbands, they never spoke her name.
But — that's looking back to long ago, too long for us to heed,
We're more concerned with what's ahead to fill our Branch's need.
The quarter years have swiftly passed, cementing friendship's chain.
And memories dear of those we've lost are like a sweet refrain.
This festal day, this month of May, recalls them to our mind;
We hear them say in the old, sweet way, "Be helpful and be kind."

Good Impetus to Anglican Diocesan Advance Appeal

The Diocesan Advance Appeal for $550,000 is already assured of contributions "well in excess of $100,000," John J. F. Bancroft, general chairman, announced this week.

Parishioners of Christ Church Cathedral have promised $90,000 in cash in addition to ceding land conservatively valued at $35,000 for the new Diocesan Administrative Centre, Mr. Bancroft said, in addition to which several parishes have advised headquarters that they have reached up to 50 per cent of their quotas.

In some parishes with "multi-purpose appeals" the chairman said verbal reports indicate that they will subscribe their full quota on completion of their parish appeals.

"While we have not received reports from parishes off the island, we believe that they will play their full part in helping to raise the required amount of $550,000 to provide $250,000 for completion of the new Diocesan Administrative Centre; $200,000 to strengthen the pension fund for clergy and widows and $100,000 for church extension loans."

The chairman asked parish chairmen to help expedite work at headquarters by sending in progress reports as soon as possible.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

What was the name of one of the twelve disciples whose nickname was "The Twin?" He was a strange mixture of courage and love for Jesus when he was alive, but he doubted Jesus' appearance after the Ressurection.

Jesus received word that his friend Lazarus, brother of Mary and Martha, who lived in Bethany, was ill. Two days later Jesus suggested to his disciples that they go with him unto Judea, to the home of Lazarus. They protested, "Teacher, the Jews were recently seeking to stone you. Why would you risk your life and go there again?"

Then Jesus revealed to them Lazarus was dead. He felt they must go to the sorrowing sisters. Then this disciple spoke up and said, although he fully realized the danger, "Let us also go, that we may die with you."

The other picture we have of this disciple is after Jesus' first appearance to his followers. They were gathered together in a room with the door shut tight, for fear of their enemies. When he was told, "We have seen the Lord!" he doubted them. He stated flatly, "Unless I see in his hands the print of the nails, and place my finger in the mark of the nails and in his side, I will not believe."

Eight days later, when the disciples, including this doubting one, were again meeting in this house, Jesus appeared a second time. "Peace be with you!" He said. Then he invited this disciple to touch his hands and his side, and "Do not be faithless but believing." The disciple cried out, "My Lord and My God!" Jesus answered, "Have you believed because you have seen me? Blessed are those who have not seen and yet believe."

You can find this disciple's name and read about these two incidents in John, Chapter Eleven, verses 1 to 16, and Chapter Twenty, verses 19 to 29.

The Spider — Hangs by A Thread

It may be all right for a spider to hang by a thread, but when the world situation is such that its peace hangs by a thread, that is something else again. Especially is this true when the weavers of the web of world intrigue are at a loss to know what the outcome will be. The prospect of a debacle that will mean the ruin of civilization is not a cheering one. But viewed from the Bible standpoint, the prospect of the future is a thrilling one. Awake! is a magazine that takes this hopeful viewpoint, showing that world events are proof of the nearing new world. Read "Awake!" and find out for yourself how it can truly cheer you. 24 issues a year — only $1. Send today. Write to 40 Irwin Avenue, Toronto 5, or ask any of Jehovah's Witnesses you might happen to meet in your district. They will be pleased to serve you.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Paquin returned to their home in Montreal recently after spending the winter season in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Silverlock, of Niagara Falls, Ont., visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Steeves, en route to Quebec City last week-end. They were accompanied by their two children, who remained here with their grandparents.

Attended Orange Sessions

Those who attended Grand Lodge of the L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. in Sherbrooke last week were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Holt, Mr. Lorne Tomalty, the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, Mr. Lister Ward, Mrs. Rachel Copeland, Mrs. Donald MacDonald, Mrs. George MacKenzie, of Lachute; Mr. Wm. Cooper and Mrs. Evelyn Martin, of Brownsburg; Mr. Nelson Morrison, Mrs. O. Gordon and Mrs. H. Neil, of Dunany.

Mr. Victor Lavoie visited relatives in Quebec City last week-end.

Double Announcement

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Joly, of Lachute Mills, announce the engagement of their daughters — Marie Paule, to Mr. Guy Fournier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fournier, of St. Andrews East, and Louise, to Mr. Jacques Poirier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ovila Poirier, of Lachute. The double marriage is to take place at St. Julien Church on July 1.

Legionnaire - Business Man Feted on Departure

Frank E. Earle, a business man of Lachute town for the past 28 years, was fittingly honored Wednesday evening by a large number of friends who gathered at the Legion Hall for a surprise party.

Sponsored by Branch No. 70 of the Canadian Legion, of which Mr. Earle is a past-president, the event featured a presentation of a very nice travelling bag and a smaller-sized valise. While this was entirely a "stag" party, Mrs. Earle was not forgotten, and was the recipient of a very attractive overnight case.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle will be leaving shortly for their new home in Napanee, Ont., where they are starting an antique shop.

Mr. Earle expressed his sincere appreciation, referring also to the happy relations with the public which he has always enjoyed.

Sincere regret was felt by all present that the community would be losing two good townsfolk, but an invitation was extended for them to return and visit as soon as possible.

Mayor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald and Douglas MacGibbon, president of the Curling Club, spoke highly of Mr. Earle and along with numerous others, wished him success in his new venture.

Refreshments and a varied program of song and musical selections rounded out a pleasant evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle leave shortly and will carry with them best wishes from their many friends.

Watchman Want Ads bring results.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tomalty returned to Detroit after spending the past week with his sister, Mrs. Stanley Boyd and Mr. Boyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. MacRae spent two days in Quebec City last week.

Miss K. M. Giles is spending a few days as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Southam at their country home in Ste. Agathe.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Maitland, of Brownsburg, sailed aboard the Cunard liner "Scythia" on Wednesday for an extended visit to friends and relatives in the Old Country.

Guide-Brownie Association Plans "Book Sale"

The local association sponsoring the Lachute Girl Guides and Brownies have something new and interesting as a fund-raising endeavor — in the form of a book sale, to be held at E. W. Albright & Sons' on Saturday, June 11. It is anticipated there will be some best-sellers from the book clubs, and other popular volumes in recent fiction and biography, for sale at bargain prices.

Co-operating with this venture is the store of Wilson & Gordon Reg., where a box is placed to receive contributions of books for sale. Or any householders having volumes to be called for, may kindly phone Mrs. Ronald Dawson (889-M).

Farewell Gathering

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Riddell were feted Friday evening prior to their departure for St. Jerome, where Owen has been transferred in the service of the Bell Telephone Company. The party, held in the Legion Hall, was sponsored by the Bell Social Club and attended by fellow employees and friends of the honored guests.

Tribute was paid to both for their assistance in all functions of the Company in which they have taken part, and on behalf of those present Jim Menzies presented Owen with a Parker pen and pencil set, while Mrs. John Curtis made a presentation of jewelry to Mrs. Riddell.

Owen Riddell left Monday for St. Jerome, where he commenced his duties. He will be followed by his wife and family shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kennedy, of Laurel, Maryland, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Mathias of Westminster, Maryland, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. George McGibbon, Dalesville.

Service Club Convention

Those from Lachute who attended the four-day convention of Lions Club International (District A) in Quebec City last week were: Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lamarche, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Regimbal, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Tremblay, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Mozart Carrière, Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Muller, Mr. Philippe Roy, Mr. J. S. Giles, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Titman.

Mike Warren, of Pointe Claire, has commenced duties with the Construction Department of the Bell Telephone Co. in Lachute. He will be employed here for the summer months.

Auxiliary Military Whist, Concluding Event

At the Legion Hall on Wednesday, May 25, the most successful whist drive of the season was held by the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary. The "grab bag" contest was an amusing innovation. The prize winners were as follows:

1st Table: Mrs. Rita McGill (captain), Miss Dora Trineer, Mr. Percy McLeod, Mrs. Pearl Comba.

2nd Table: Mrs. N. MacGeorge (captain), Mrs. G. Hay, Mr. G. Hay, Mr. N. MacGeorge.

Booby: Mr. D. Leishman, Mrs. D. Leishman, Mrs. M. Murdoch, Mr. T. Iddon.

Door Prize: Mrs. L. Owens.

Refreshments were served, and the Auxiliary president, Mrs. J. Coney, thanked all those present for making the event a success. A vote of thanks was also extended to Lowe Bros. for the use of their advertisement in The Watchman.

The national anthem was sung in conclusion.

Sports -- Juvenile Activities -- School

June already, and another summer. Round about now and the warm water angler really comes into his own and can take his choice of fishing for a variety of fresh water game fish. I always think of June as the picnic month and when I think of picnics my mouth starts watering and that inner man yearning for a shore dinner. To be eaten preferably at high noon under a blazing sun, tempered by a fresh breeze off the lake and a bottle of cold beer to sip on as the fire burns down to a bed of glowing coals, over which to cook the morning's catch. There's nothing quite like it, except perhaps, a like repast prepared and enjoyed as the sun goes down and after the coffee's brewed and poured, you build up the fire again and sit around for a bull session on the day's fishing or to sing a few old songs. If you go for this — and I do — always include a guitar player in the fishing party.

Shore Dinners — Easy — Quick

How easy? How quick? Well, the other evening wife and I and three of the kiddies got home around supper time after being away for several days. Wife was tired, youngsters were hungry. Having in mind several hard worked for trout we'd brought home with us, I offered to rustle supper. Living by the water, I put the small fry to work gathering drift wood. Next to no time and we had a fire going and while it burned down I took the fish, which were already cleaned, salted and peppered them inside and out, squeezed a generous squirt of lemon juice into the body cavities and wrapped them individually in heavy guage aluminum foil. Then went to the freezer for frozen french fried potatoes and green peas. These I unwrapped, seasoned with salt and pepper and re-wrapped in the same type foil.

All But the Cooking

Dinner was ready except for the cooking. Into the bed of coals that were by now a dull cherry red, went the foil wrapped food packages. Matter of minutes and the still evening air was redolent with the smell of cooking trout. As the fish were unwrapped, the skin peeled off with the wrapping foil. Boy oh boy, did those fish taste good and the peas and potatoes too.

Go Light — Eat Well

All this I'm telling you about to point up how easily you can throw together a shore dinner with a minimum of fuss and do it without encumbering yourself with a lot of cooking gear. One of the problems of outdoor cooking and eating away from home, is how to eat well without toting along a back-breaking pile of cooking implements and utensils. There's also that little matter of cleaning up and the less of that you have to contend with the better your digestion will be and the more time you'll have for fishing.

Foil Is the Answer

Suppose four of you are going off for a day's fishing. You're going to get an early start so you eat a hearty breakfast before you leave. Deputize one of the party to bring along a generous thermos of coffee for that ten o'clock break. Chances are you can catch a hamburger or hot dog on the drive home in the evening, so that only leaves you with the mid-day meal to worry over. Sandwiches are a nuisance to make and questionable fare for the male appetite after a morning of fresh air and fishing. All you need is a knife and fork for each member of the party, a roll of heavy gauge aluminum foil, a large size tin of peas and a tin or so of those small, whole, pre-cooked potatoes. Pepper, salt, a lemon and a few strips of bacon. Just in case and we'll pass over this quickly, but just in case you aren't able to outsmart enough of your finny quarry to back up the main course, put a tin or two of corned beef hash in your haversack. Slice the potatoes and put them all in one foil package with a couple of the bacon strips. If you like add one strip of bacon to each of the foil wrapped packages of fish. In cooking the peas, leave a little of the liquid from the can with them as you wrap them in the foil and place them at the edge of your fire. One mug apiece, instant coffee, sugar and some of that powdered cream and you're all set. One thing more a small billy can to boil water for the coffee.

Take Your Pick

Perch, walleye, pike, trout, bass, all taste good cooked in foil. Bigger fish you'll have to fillet, pan size and you can cook them whole. Maybe you don't like green peas. Try corn niblets, mixed vegetables or whatever your preference dictates — shore dinners are fun and good eating too.

Grenville School

By Penny Foreman

The month of May was a busy one, as it ended the extra-curricular activities of 1954-55.

Friday, April 29, the ATTA public speaking contest was held at Grenville. Unfortunately Grenville and Lachute were the only schools participating. Eunice McMichael and Percy Kelly, our senior debating team were defeated by Brian Gray and Scott Taylor of Lachute. Elsie McVicar and Lucy Boyd, our junior team, also suffered defeat in their debate with Lachute High. Winners of the public speaking contests were:

Junior — 1st Lois Silverson (LHS); 2nd Jean Kennedy (GCS).
Senior — 1st Penny Foreman (GCS); 2nd Beverly MacDonald (LHS).

• • •

On May 6, Eunice McMichael and Penny Foreman represented Grenville in a debating contest with Hawkesbury, Maxville, Alexandria, and Vankleek Hill. Grenville won their debate with Maxville.

• • •

Saturday, May 7, Grades VI and VII presented a successful operetta. The entire cast deserves much credit.

Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Andrews deserve praise for their tireless work in connection with this operetta. Also thanks are due to the boys who worked behind the scenes.

• • •

Three of the girls of Grenville School have entered the Hawkesbury Ballet Class under the direction of Mrs. Wall. At the dance recital on May 14, these girls proved themselves to be very apt pupils. After the recital Heather-Ann Lessard was presented with the senior cup for progress through the year. Anna Oziers and Patricia-Anne Druce were awarded certificates.

• • •

Friday, March 20, marked the second graduation dance. Preceding the dance the graduates took their places on the stage for the closing exercises of 1954-55.

The exercises opened with the class valedictory by Percy Kelly. The remainder of the class gave the class history, last will and testament, etc. Principal McGerrigle was presented with a picture of Her Majesty the Queen, for the school, by Grade XI. Mr. Lang, of Montreal, was guest speaker. Each member of Grade XI was presented with a school pin. Hartland Dewar was also represented with a medal as the most outstanding boy athlete of 1954-55. Lucy Boyd was selected as the most outstanding girl athlete of 1954-55.

Up-River League Softball Opener

Summer ball gets underway this Sunday afternoon, when at 2 o'clock Colford Lodge team plays host to the North River ball squad. This, the first game of the season, will be held at the Colford Lodge field.

Big Pro Event Billed for Lachute Golf Club

Interest in golfing circles is stirred by the announcement of a new Quebec Medal Play championship for $3,500 prize money and the Dow Trophy, open only to Province of Quebec professionals and Class "A" assistants, at the Lachute Golf and Country Club, Friday, July 22.

Dr. Arnold Mitchell, honorary president of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association of Quebec and newly elected captain Jim Swarbrick, made the announcement last week.

$700 To Winner

The event will be played over 36 holes with top prize money for the winner being $700 and other cash awards graded according to finish.

The tourney (according to Charlie Boire, Montreal Star columnist) is the first real good break for the Quebec professionals in a long time and it is expected to give added incentive to the competing pros and Class A assistants.

The tourney will serve to gain further recognition for the Quebec professionals, and such name players as Bill Kerr (Beaconsfield), Stan Horne (Islemere), Jules Huot (Laval), Jack Archer (Lachute), and Jack Kay (Mount Bruno) to name a few, should make it a well contested event.

Dr. Mitchell in announcing the event said, "It's a wonderful opportunity and we are delighted to accept the trophy and this generous assistance to bring our boys along."

The tournament was hailed on Quebec golfing fronts as a real shot in the arm for the Quebec professionals.

CPGA captain Swarbrick also voiced the keenness of the professional golfing fraternity for the new event.

Jack Archer will act as tournament manager, backed by a committee of Jules Huot, Swarbrick and Stan Horne.

B.C. Oarsmen Entered For Henley Royal Regatta

SPORTS CAMERA
By Jim Peacock

A crack rowing eight from British Columbia with one upset already under its belts, sets out late in June hopeful it can turn the tables once again.

The University of British Columbia oarsmen tripped up the experts by defeating England's favored Thames Rowing Club crew last summer on Canadian water. Now they are challenging in rowing's blue riband events — the Henley Royal Regatta.

The Canadian crew — unchanged except for its coxswain — whipped the English club last summer in the British Empire Games at Vancouver, pulling perhaps the greatest upset of the games.

Coached by Frank Read of Vancover, the Canadians scored a clear-cut victory, crossing the finish line 2½ lengths ahead of the Thames Club.

Strong Outfit

At that time, one of the English oarsmen described the UBC eight as "one of the strongest and fittest crews I have even seen."

With another year's experience behind them, the B.C. boys figure to stand a reasonable chance for another victory in England.

The Russians entered the Royal Henley last year and swept away many of the honors previously won consistently by the English. They may compete again.

The Canadians are entered only in the Grand Challenge Cup event — for eights. The Russian team last year pulled oars at a rate of 44 strokes a minute to defeat England's best eight, the Leander crew.

The Canadians stroked 40 to the minute at Vancouver last summer, stepping it up to 42 strokes for the finish.

And, said coach Read: "They could have stepped it up to 52 if they had to."

The UBC eight was welded together in four months for the Empire Games competition. It lost coxswain Ray Sierpina of Richmond, B.C., last fall when he did not return to school. He has been replaced by Carl Ogaway of Salmon Arm, B.C.

Others on the crew are Glen Smith, stroke, of Grand Forks, B.C.; Mike Harris, Abbotsford; Tony Poynbee, Ganges; Doug McDonald, Ganges; Lawrence West, Vancouver; Herman Zioklokovitz, Prince George; Ken Drummond, Burton; and Bob Wilson, Kamloops. Spares are Phil Kueber of Edmonton — the only member of the crew from outside British Columbia — and Bill Hughes of Powell River.

The competition on the Thames from June 29 to July 2 may be a little tougher than at the British Empire Gimes, but the Canadians are confident. Their shell, made by George Pocock of Seattle, was sent to England by rail and ship. The crew will fly to England, leaving June 8.

Harness Season Opens At Rigaud Park

This Sunday marks the opening of the Rigaud Race Track, the harness season getting underway with some of the best horseflesh from the immediate area, as well as Ottawa, Valleyfield, Cornwall, St. Jerome, St. Eustache, Huntingdon and the Lachute-Brownsburg district.

As an added attraction for ladies, the admission price has been reduced to 50 cents, while children are admitted free.

Four classes will be run off during events at the park, situated west of Rigaud. The events start as usual at 2 p.m., with a new program presented every Sunday afternoon.

Report Record Entry in Blue Bonnets History

The 1955 early closing program at Blue Bonnets Raceway, trimmed to 16 classy events which closed May 15, drew an amazing total of 652 entries — according to Race Secretary Lucien G. Bombardier. Top stables from Western Canada, Quebec, Ontario and the Maritimes will have to fight it out against some outstanding performers from across the border.

President J. Eugene Lajoie acclaimed the calibre of horses nominated as "the finest in Blue Bonnets history" and predicted a record breaking season. The summer meeting at the half mile oval will open on June 20 with continuous racing through July 31 and post time at 8.15 nightly and 2.00 Sunday afternoon.

The upswinging trend of Quebec sportsmen to purchase and raise more standardbreds than ever before has been spotted in the huge number of local nominations. This keen competition, justly considered as one of the main factors responsible for the growth of the sulky sport in the metropolis, will be enlivened by horses coming from other provinces and the U.S.A.

Plaque Commemorates B.C. Artist, Emily Carr

At the invitation of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board Ira Dilworth, CBC's Director for Ontario, last month unveiled a plaque to the memory of British Columbia's distinguished artist, the late Emily Carr. The plaque was placed in the boulevard in front of Miss Carr's house, at the corner of Government and Simcoe Streets in Victoria.

Mr. Dilworth counted Miss Carr as one of his personal friends and followed her career with great interest. After her death 10 years ago he and Lawren Harris of Vancouver were named trustees of her estate. The ceremony took place on May 11. Mr. Dilworth recalled memories of Miss Carr as a person, a writer and a painter, and concluded with this tribute:

"Very simply, although we did not know it in those far-away years, Emily Carr was a genius, a genius in painting and writing. She had the simplicity and the direct drive which is characteristic of genius. She was never lured away from the one course which her task in life laid out in front of her. She could be difficult and often was, but she was tender, affectionate, loyal and above everything else, honest as the sun. She had a very hard life filled with work and not a little worry, but we are all glad to know that before its end she achieved a kind of recognition of which she was very proud and which thrilled her deeply. This woman will be remembered as long as our history. She has an unassailable place in the story of our culture. She has added an extraordinary lustre to this beautiful City of Victoria. It is, therefore, with a deep sense of humility but with pride and profound satisfaction that I discharge my duty of unveiling this memorial plaque to Emily Carr."

A National Hero ?

Nearly every country has its national hero — except Canada. On June 5 (10.20 p.m., Trans-Canada) Professor Morris Bishop of Cornell University will reflect on this state of affairs and explain why he believes that Samuel de Champlain, if we fully appreciated him, would make the hero who would unite, not divide, the Canadian people. The speaker is the author of many books, including a biography of Champlain which appeared in 1948. "By his courage he made the unknown known," he says. "By his wisdom he established a Christian community in which Indian and white man would live together in peace. He dreamed of a Canada in which there would no longer be Europeans and Indians, but only Canadians. He was bold and wise; more, he was virtuous. That word is one we are a little shy of today. But the fact is there: he was a good man, from the inward necessity imposed by the mysterious imperatives of character."

Record Entry Lists For Ormstown Show

Ormstown, Que. — Record entry lists in horse and cattle events indicate this year's Ormstown Exhibition and Horse Show will be the most successful in the 42-year history of the Chateauguay Valley's famous old-time country fair.

The horse show program, scheduled four nights and Saturday afternoon, June 8 to 11, has attracted 170 top-flight entries from leading Ontario stables as well as from Quebec and northern New York.

Dairy and beef cattle entries total 544 to date. Exhibitors have entered 136 draft horses, including Belgians, Clydesdales and Percherons. Sheep, swine, poultry and other farm livestock classes are also larger than in former years.

Official opening of the fair will take place on the night of June 7.

Centenary Celebration, City of Charlottetown

The City of Charlottetown celebrates its 100th anniversary this year. A picture in sound of the city as it stands today, with recollections of its early history, will be broadcast in the "Canadian Scene" program on Sunday, June 5 — 5-5.30 p.m. on Trans-Canada CBC.

One of the most interesting aspects of the city's history is the part it played in the early plans for Confederation. In 1864 the first meeting which led to the birth of the nation was held in the historic Confederation Chamber of Prince Edward Island's Legislative Building.

Producer Ken Homer of the CBC will give a description of the Chamber as it appears today and will interview a local authority on the historic events which took place in it. In addition, the broadcast will include illustrations in words and sound of other happenings in the city's colorful history, including vignettes of the days of sail.

The Charlottetown documentary will be the 10th Canadian Scene program prepared by the outside-broadcast team of Ken Homer and the technician, Ross McNaughton. Their first contribution was a program on the 350th anniversary of Champlain's discovery of the Saint John River. Since then they have covered a variety of Maritime topics including the Antigonish Movement and the training of "frogmen" for the Royal Canadian Navy. Their Antigonish story has been distributed to other countries by the CBC International Service. They also co-operated last year in preparing two programs about the Canadian Arctic.

Charlene: "Not exactly. But I'd want my husband to have a lovely disposition, and if he didn't have money he'd very likely be worried and ill-natured."

June Teas and Reception Ideas

There are many symbols and events associated with June, the most romantic month of the year. First there are diamonds, showers and trousseau teas, then come orange blossoms, wedding bells and finally the wedding reception. For at least one of these events the catering is bound to be done at home. Fortunately for the mother of the bride the trend in refreshments is more and more towards simplicity and if it is kept that way mother and all those helping will enjoy the teas and receptions just as much as they would if there were caterers.

Since the refreshments often centre around sandwiches the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture offer a few suggestions. No matter what the function the first thing to decide is the number of guests to be invited and exactly the kinds of sandwiches to be served. The appearance of sandwiches can be varied by combining different kinds of bread, using an assortment of fillings and cutting the sandwiches into a number of shapes. Fancy rolled, ribbon or open face ones will add that special touch of glamor to the gaily garnished sandwich tray.

Here are some facts that will help when shopping for the sandwich makings. One small sandwich loaf, one and a half pounds in weight cut into slices slightly less than a quarter of an inch thick will make 60 to 80 small sandwiches which should serve 12 to 15. A quarter of a pound of butter is sufficient to spread this loaf. When it comes to fillings one and a half pounds or about two and a half cups of moist meat spread is sufficient for one loaf of bread as is a dozen hard cooked eggs chopped and mixed with onion, mayonnaise and seasonings.

Most meat, cheese or egg sandwiches can be made a little ahead of time. They should be carefully wrapped in waxed paper and stored in a cool place or they can be placed unwrapped in a pan and completely covered with waxed paper and a damp cloth. But one word of caution — be sure that the damp cloth does not touch the sandwiches.

Every girl dreams of a lovely wedding and many dream of their trousseau tea. There is no more gracious invitation than the old familiar "Come to tea at our house" particularly around the time of a wedding. In preparing for a tea the questions that have to be settled are what to serve and how to serve it.

The table can be attractively arranged with a large tea tray and charming tea service on a lace or embroidered cloth. Tall lighted tapers in silver or crystal holders and a floral centre piece add dignity and grace to the table. An abundance of dainty sandwiches, pickles, small cakes, mints and nuts will complete the table appointments.

When it comes to serving the sandwiches and cakes do have them simple, and easy to manage. The Consumer Section suggests that four or five sandwiches and two or three cakes or cookies should be sufficient for each person; also that half a pound of tea should be allowed for 50 people along with one and a half pints of light cream and one pound of loaf sugar. Two quarts each of pickles and olives will generously serve 50.

It is both smart and sensible to serve food that can be taken up in the fingers. Savoury bites with tasty filling like stuffed toasted mushroom caps, cheese rolls or toast fingers with delicious toppings are well liked at a tea. But please — no gooey icings to ruin white gloves or delicate pastry with fillings which will spill over fancy dresses and nothing that requires a knife or fork. Everything should be tiny, no bigger than three-bite size and with a look that promises delicious eating. The food looking most attractive on large plates or trays should be served with an invigorating cup of tea freshly made and freshly poured.

For the wedding reception every arrangement must be perfect and every tradition observed. On that special day the mother of the bride will want to be free from kitchen duties so plans should be made to serve food which can be prepared in advance. If there is a freezer in the home some of the foods may be frozen ahead of time.

The wedding breakfast or supper may follow one of three patterns — buffet service where everyone stands and either helps himself or is served from a central table; the semi-buffet where the bridal party is seated and the rest of the guests are served buffet style or table service where everyone sits down at small tables arranged in such a way that they all face the bridal party. Of course it is set with the best linen, china, crystal, silver and is centered with the wedding cake. If the cake is being made at home it is best to bake it a month or so in advance of the wedding so that it will have a chance to mellow, then to ice it or have it iced a day or so beforehand. A simple but beautifully decorated cake will do honor to any bride.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

It's the season for convertibles and the lady driver will want to look fresh and sleek in spite of wind and highway dust.

An open car is no place for snow-white or pastel clothes. They may become dust-streaked within the first half-hour, no matter how clean the air seems. Darker cottons, rayon jerseys or silks will stay clean-looking longer. Prints on darker backgrounds are good too.

Necklaces may look lovely in your living room, but they'll collect a ring of dirt around your neck when the top's down. Confine your jewellery to earrings, pins or rings.

A jar of astringent pads for quick facial clean-up should be in your travelling cosmetic kit. So should some stick cologne for that all-important final touch.

And don't forget to keep your feet air-conditioned and comfortable. Warm weather driving calls for sandal-type shoes with medium-to-low heels.

By exercising a little forethought, you can step from a convertible as fresh and well-groomed as if you'd come by limousine.

BOYS GO FOR BARBECUED 'BURGERS

What's more fun than a barbecue "in the good old summertime"? And what better way to revive lagging appetites? There's something mighty tempting about food cooked outdoors. It tempts the busiest little boys to drop their bats and balls . . . and come running.

Your gang will go for great big 'burgers simmered in a zippy barbecue sauce; served on toasted buns. And, Mom, you'll find they're a smooth manoeuvre for you or for Dad, if he's chief cook on such occasions. Or the sauce can be prepared at home and brought "bottled" or "jarred" to the picnic scene. Then just pour it into the frying pan with onion and garlic, and pop in the browned 'burgers. Spoon generous amounts of sauce over the 'burgers during heating and you're in for a real treat!

Fine fare with barbecued 'burgers . . . tossed greens with cucumbers and radishes; crisp potato chips; pickles and olives; fresh fruit; and man-sized pieces of chocolate cake. Chilled milk or lemonade, sipped from paper cups, is a welcome and nourishing beverage.

BOY-TESTED BARBECUED 'BURGERS

2 pounds ground beef
3 tablespoons shortening (and/or drippings)
1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar
2 teaspoons prepared mustard

Shape beef into 8 or 10 'burgers; cook in frying pan until brown and almost cooked through. Remove 'burgers from pan. Add shortening to drippings in frying pan to make 3 tablespoons; brown onion and garlic. Stir in remaining ingredients; add 'burgers to sauce. Cover; simmer about 10 minutes. Serve 'burgers with sauce; and on toasted buttered buns if desired. 8 to 10 servings.

Takes Nursing Course to Help Her People

—Central Press Canadian

At St. Joseph's hospital in Hamilton, Ont., a pretty Eskimo girl, Anne Witaituk, has set her sights on becoming a certified nursing assistant with a view to helping her people in the James Bay district. Now in her second year at the hospital, Anne previously worked in Hamilton sanatorium as a nurse's aid. Fluent in English as well as Cree and the Eskimo tongue, Anne plans to return home upon her graduation to work in a 100-bed hospital there.

CANADIAN SCHOOLGIRL WINS FIRST PRIZE

London — A Canadian schoolgirl has won first prize in the Commonwealth Essay Competition sponsored by the Royal Empire Society, it was announced recently. She is Patricia E. Roy of St. Ann's Academy, New Westminster, B.C., who submitted the best essay from the Commonwealth on the subject "Effect of 1939-45 War on Your Particular Part of the British Commonwealth and Empire."

OLDEST TAXPAYER

Vancouver (CP) — Mrs. Catherine Fitzpatrick, who died here at age 92, was Vancouver's oldest taxpayer.

Shortly before her death Mrs. Fitzpatrick said she had paid taxes in Vancouver for 69 years following her arrival from County Clare, Ireland, in 1886.

"There were blackberries and all sorts of fruit around the city in those days," she once told civic archivist Major James Matthews.

"The Indians used to come down and sell their big salmon for 25 cents and I remember we had to sink a well to get water — just like all our neighbors."

Her husband died in 1908. Survivors include nine of her 14 children, 35 grandchildren and 44 great-grandchildren.

Women Workers Alter Trends in Employment

Vancouver (CP) — Just in case any men have forgotten, women now must be considered individuals.

When the federal labor department discovered last year that women and girls make up 23 per cent of Canada's whole working force, it decided a woman should take care of the government's responsibilities in this field.

Named as first director of the department's women's bureau in Ottawa is slim, grey-haired Miss Marion V. Royce.

Object of the bureau, Miss Royce said in an interview here, is to understand the problems of women workers and promote good labor standards for them.

Sees Divided Field

"There seems to be a marked tendency now to regard certain professions as belonging to men," she said.

"I've also noticed that when women go into some fields, teaching for instance, the men are inclined to move out."

Other trends she notes in the general employment picture:

While the retirement age for women ranges from 60 to 65, more and more organizations favor the later figure. Some business firms go beyond that, she says.

Personnel officers are also hiring women in the over-35 bracket in preference to younger women. Their "work disciplines" are better adjusted, was the reason Miss Royce gave.

And equal pay for equal work is "justice", she says.

Employment seekers can find greater satisfaction with their jobs by first taking aptitude tests provided they are judged by competent people.

Miss Royce was in Vancouver during an exploratory tour of Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver to get acquainted with the provincial officials with whom she will be working.

Miss Royce brings to her new position experience with the International YMCA and the UNESCO social commission on the status of women. She has visited Europe, the Middle East, Australia, China and the Philippines in reporting on economic problems for the YWCA.

Good clothes deserve good care, so make sure they're properly brushed before putting them away. A long-bristled English brush is ideal for woollens and worsteds. Never use harsh bristles. Remember, wool is a fine fibre, though it does have the strength of steel.

FOR PARENTS ONLY...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Parents and Exams

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Exam time is very hard on parents, especially mother!" Mrs. Black said vehemently.

"House cleaning in the Spring is bad enough — but when several children in the family are preparing for their final tests too, life is hardly worth living."

* * *

Most fathers and mothers would agree that exam time can be pretty grim. If even one member of the family is worrying, studying late and getting too little sleep, the fatigue and irritation which are almost unavoidable can certainly ruffle the home atmosphere. What are some practical suggestions which can make these days easier for the student and everyone else under the same roof?

Both parents and boys and girls should accept the fact that there are poor, medium and brilliant members of every class. Naturally, their standing in their examinations will depend in part on their mental equipment with which they are endowed. But it will also be determined by the amount of work they have done faithfully throughout the term.

There are all kinds of diversions such as TV, the radio, movies, comic books, etc., which lure many youngsters in their evenings, away from their studies. But parents help their children if homework and extra preparation for exams are accepted as a regular part of the evening routine, free from these other attractions.

They can also assist by providing a well-lighted table or desk and a comfortable chair in a quiet corner away from distractions. They can see that the pupil has the necessary tools for work — pencils, rubber, ink, ruler, etc. Thus they, "set the stage" for exam time.

A child's studies are his own responsibility, and parents only harm him when they get under his load. But mother or dad can "hear spelling" or memory work, or ask the questions given at the end of a chapter. They can encourage a child to plan his time and work first and hardest at the subjects he finds most difficult.

The teacher will usually be only too willing to suggest definite ways in which parents can encourage the scholar who is having a hard time at school in certain subjects. At the same time, mothers and fathers do well not to be too anxious about marks. Worry is very contagious. One reason a child often enters an examination room in a state of nervous "jitters" is he feels unable to measure up to the home expectations of high standing.

Mother should send her child off to an exam in as confident a state as possible. Perhaps he has had some special little treat for breakfast. But if his appetite has vanished, he hasn't been forced to eat up his food.

It doesn't hurt to remind a youngster to "Read over the examination paper quickly. Make a rough plan as to how much time should be spent on each question. Do them in any order you wish. But it might be best to tackle the easiest ones first. Don't worry about how the other pupils are getting along, or anything else. Concentrate on the exam and keep slugging away. Last but not least, before answering a question, read it over slowly and carefully to find out exactly what is being asked!"

If a pupil has kept up with his work, reviewed each subject, and doesn't get flustered when he writes his examination paper, he can hope to make a reasonable good showing. Indeed, he may even get a surprise when his results comes out! And so may his parents!

W. Institute Represented At National Conferences

Mrs. J. W. Adams, of Ethelton, Sask., president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, attended the first National Highway Safety Conference, held recently in the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa.

Mrs. Adams had been asked by the Hon. Brooke Claxton to chair the Women's Organization Section of this conference.

Institute members are proud of this honor accorded their national president.

Mrs. Adams stayed over for the Conference on Aid to Underdeveloped Countries, held at the same place. Mrs. H. Ellard, Ottawa, 2nd vice-president, of Quebec Women's Institutes, also attended both conferences.

No Danger From Modern Cans

Did you know that a "tin can" isn't made of tin? It is actually sheet steel with only a fine coating of tin plated on both sides.

And did you know that food left in an open tin can today is just as safe as it would be in a glass jar or any other container? In the early days of canning housewives were warned to empty the food from the can as soon as it was opened because of the danger of contamination. Many people are still faithfully following those instructions, in spite of the fact that modern cans are perfectly safe as food containers!

Years ago paint chemists developed corrosion-resistant enamels for coating over the tin. Now you can open up a can of salmon or any other food and leave the left-over portion right in the can. But it's hard to break a habit and Grandma probably never will be convinced!

Commercial food canning in Canada has grown into a multi-million dollar industry since Tristram Halliday in 1839 opened the first salmon cannery on the Bay of Fundy in Nova Scotia. Thirty years later a fruit canning enterprise was launched at Grimsby, Ontario, in the heart of the famous Niagara fruit belt.

Today, in British Columbia 90 percent of the salmon catch is canned and represents an annual market value of 50 million dollars.

The yearly value of Canadian canned fruits, vegetables, meats and other foods is about 250 millions. The industry employs thousands of workers and directly supports more thousands of farmers and fishermen. The tin can is big business!

Plastic Auto Fenders

Buffalo, N.Y. (AP) — Does your wife tend to take a few informalities with the fenders of your car?

The Cornell aeronautical laboratory may have the answer to your woes — plastic fenders. They pop right back into shape after being clobbered against the garage door.

Cornell has reported promising results from its experiments with the rumple-proof fender. The research is being sponsored by Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., which had to shell out $12,000,000 in auto damage claims in 1951.

Cornell spokesmen say several problems have yet to be licked. One concerns the tendency of the plastic to become brittle at low temperatures.

GARDEN-GRAPH

By Dean Halliday

The rise of the tomato in half a century from classification as weed to the front rank of garden plants entitles it to more attention from the home gardener than is sometimes given it.

With this in mind, the mulching of tomatoes in home gardens is urged. It is well worth the small amount of trouble it entails. A mulch protects the roots against the drying out of soil due to wind and sun. It keeps the fruit clean. Perhaps, most important of all, it helps to prevent blossom-end rot.

This rot is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. It first appears as a water-soaked area on the blossom end of the fruit. Next, the affected area turns brown or black and shrivels.

Blossom-end rot is the result of breakdown of the cells of the fruit caused, it is believed, by improper soil moisture conditions and an uneven supply of water.

To avoid end-rot do not plant tomatoes in dry locations. Also mulch the plants with straw to a depth of two or three inches, as illustrated.

The most effective way to apply the mulch is, first, scratch up the soil so that it is loose around each plant; second, place the mulch material on the loosened soil around each plant and along the row.

As the plants grow remove all "suckers" that develope at leaf joints. Stake up each pruned plant.

COMPETITION IS TOUGH!

Competition is tough in the oil business, too. While we believe Imperial is the best oil company in Canada, it's far from the only one. We're beset on all sides by healthy competitors.

From the Maritimes to British Columbia more than 240 companies are competing in the search for crude oil.

In 45 refineries from Halifax to Vancouver, 24 companies refine this crude oil into hundreds of useful oil products.

In all of Canada, scores of marketing companies compete for the motorist's and home owner's dollar.

Spraying Million Acres Of Gaspé Woodlands Against Spruce Budworm

Quebec City — Eleven forest industries and the Quebec Government will share the cost of the aerial spraying in June of one million acres of Gaspé woodlands threatened by a spruce budworm infestation — according to the Hon. John S. Bourque, Minister of Lands and Forests. Forty spray planes are now on their way to the five airstrips, where they are due to start working early in June.

To be fully effective, the aerial spray must be carried out during the specific period when the insect is still a tiny caterpillar feeding on the new spring buds of spruce and balsam fir. Later, by the end of June, the caterpillar wraps itself up in a cocoon-like substance and becomes impervious to insecticide.

Mr. Bourque pointed out that much of the territory to be sprayed is made up of farm woodlots, but that the owners of these woodlots would not be called upon to share in the cost of the operation. The provincial government and the 11 forest companies will foot the entire bill.

To cover one million acres, some 500,000 gallons of insecticide will be needed. The liquid, a DDT solution, is sprayed in a fine mist at the rate of one half gallon per acre. The aircraft carry a sprayload of about 150 gallons of insecticide and they fly in pairs, dropping long white streaks of bug-destroying vapor over the forest. Fresh calm weather is ideal for the spraying operation, and this kind of weather is usually found at daybreak. As the sun goes up and the temperature gets warmer, or when the wind becomes gusty, planes are grounded.

CANADIAN WOMAN ENTERS 1,200-MILE AIR RACE

Canada's only entrant in the all-women's International Air Race, Dorothy Rungeling of Fonthill, Ont. (left), receives a good-luck handshake from Beverley Belfry, St. Catharines, who is going along as Mrs. Rungeling's flying companion. Race will be run from Washington, D.C., to Havana, Cuba—about 1,200 miles—on June 9th. Mrs. Rungeling, who owns her own plane, is a part-time instructor at Welland Flying club, and is believed to be the only Canadian woman holding a senior commercial pilot's license. This is her fourth year in the seven-year-old air race, and in the past she has finished sixth, fifth and second. She won the Governor-General's Air Race in 1953, the only woman entered in a field of 10.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. How much money has been paid out to unemployed workers since unemployment insurance began?

A. Total benefit payments up to March 31, 1955, including ordinary and supplementary benefit, were approximately one billion dollars ($1,011,956,758).

* * *

Q. How can a worker tell if he is insurable? I understand unemployment insurance does not apply to all workers.

A. A pamphlet "Handbook on Unemployment Insurance" is available to workers from any local office of the Commission. This sets out the insurable and non-insurable employments. A similar pamphlet has been issued by the Commission for the information of employers. If the worker and his employer still cannot determine from these whether the worker is insurable, the local office should be asked for a ruling.

SOLUTION TO CROSSWORD PUZZLE (PAGE 9)

The fact that there are two sides to every argument makes it nice for the lawyers.

Work and Perseverance

By Lewis Milligan

"DO IT YOURSELF" is the slogan of a movement advertised in the newspapers and shop window displays, the purpose of which is to sell materials to householders for doing odd jobs around the home, such as decorating, repairs and domestic improvements. As I am no longer a householder I am not interested, and I find nothing new in the idea anyway, having had to do most of those things myself when I was raising a family. But the "Do It Yourself" movement is a timely one in these days when the popular slogan of the politicians is "Let The Government Do It."

About the middle of the nineteenth century Samuel Smiles, a shrewd Scotsman, wrote a book entitled "Self Help", which was enormously popular in Britain and North America and was translated into many languages. In his preface to the revised edition, the author explained that the object of the book was "to re-inculcate old fashioned but wholesome lessons — which perhaps cannot be too often urged — that youth must work in order to enjoy; that nothing creditable can be accomplished without application and diligence."

At the outset the author lays down certain basic principles of which youth and people generally need to be reminded today. "The spirit of self-help," he says, "is the root of all genuine growth in the individual; and, exhibited in the lives of many, it constitutes the true source of national vigor and strength. Help from without is often enfeebling in its effects, but help from within invariably invigorates. Whatever is done for men or classes, to a certain extent, takes away the stimulus and necessity of doing for themselves; and where men are subjected to over-guidance and over-government, the inevitable tendency is to render them comparatively helpless."

To those who think that Smiles' book is out of date, I recommend the following passage: "Moreover, it is every day becoming more clearly understood that the function of government is negative and restrictive, rather than positive and active; being resolvable principally into protection — protection of life, liberty, and property. Laws, wisely administered, will secure men in the enjoyment of the fruits of their labor, whether of mind or body — but no laws, however stringent, can make the idle industrious, the thriftless provident, or the drunken sober. Such reforms can only be effected by means of individual action, economy, and self-denial; by better habits rather than by greater rights."

Like the old lady who said she found Shakespeare "full of quotations," I have found Smiles so full of them that I cannot resist the temptation to quote him at large. Here are a few taken at random: "All experience serves to prove that the worth and strength of a State depend far less upon the form of its institutions than upon the character of its men. . . National progress is the sum of individual industry, energy and uprightness, as national decay is of individual idleness, selfishness, and vice. . . The greatest slave is not he who is ruled by a despot, great though that evil be, but he who is the thrall of his own moral ignorance, selfishness and vice. . . The road to human welfare lies along the old highway of steadfast well-doing."

Scholarly professors would dismis sthose sayings as "mere platitudes," but Smiles in his book presented numerous examples of their truth and their dynamic influence in the lives of men of his own generation who, by hard work and perseverance, rose from low estate to leadership in industry and all walks of life. Similar examples could be cited of men in our own times. Only the other day a news item reported the appointment of N. R. Crump as President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Crump started as a 16-year-old apprentice mechanic, wiping the soot from the engines in a yard at Revelstoke, B.C. He got his matriculation through study at a night school and eventually graduated with a master's degree in mechanical engineering.

Big Toy Factory Is New Industry For Quebec Area

Bedford, Que. (CP) — A toy factory founded in Germany in the 19th century has become one of the main industries in this Eastern Townships community.

The Gama company, in operation here only for a year, assembles parts manufactured in Germany to produce mechanical toys. When the company first decided to expand outside Germany it selected Canada because of its market for toys.

Mr. and Mrs. Werner Maas, grandchildren of the founder, made their first trip to this country in 1952 to pick a site.

When they told Ottawa officials of their plans, they were taken on a tour of suitable regions. They started at Bedford and when they were all through they took another look at this community, deciding it was the best for them.

Soon Enlarged

A building to assemble the toys was put up in 1953 but it took a year for the West Germany government to approve the move.

The company soon outgrew its quarters and a second building was erected. One is used as a workshop, the other as a warehouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Maas brought with them three Germans, one a technician to act as foreman, the other two, women, to train new employees. They agreed to stay a year but they show no signs of wanting to leave their adopted country.

Another ten Germans later came here on their own to find jobs with the company.

The officials say their Canadian employees are exceptionally good workers who have rapidly learned the skill of assembling the tiny parts that make up mechanical toys.

The Gama company was founded in Fuerth, Bavaria, in 1882 by Geo. Adam Mangold who used his initials to form a name for the firm.

The company now employs 800 workers in its home plant and Fuerth has become the toy centre of Germany.

Split Vote on Purchases of Auto Fuel

Mayor Casts Vote to Patronize All Dealers Without Discrimination

Proposal that the Town Corporation patronize a dealer or dealers offering best discount for gasoline was voted down at the regular June meeting of Lachute Town Council, presided over by Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald. The mayor cast the deciding vote to purchase gas for all corporation vehicles from all Lachute dealers without discrimination.

The question was brought up by Ald. Réal Morrissette, who some months ago moved and backed a resolution that tenders be called to supply gas for the town vehicles, and that the lowest bidder be awarded all business. Since that time, all gas has been purchased from the Murdoch Bros. and Cayer garages, except in emergencies. Ald. Morrissette asked why one of the town vehicles had been continually going to another garage to purchase gas, and following the "emergency" explanation, Ald. Ross R. Muir moved that gas be purchased from all garages at the regular price. The motion was seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins.

Ald. Morrissette moved in amendment that the gas be purchased from all garages which offered a 4 per cent discount. Ald. Judes E. Charlebois seconded the amendment. The vote for the amendment found Aldermen Morrissette, Cousineau, Charlebois and Laurin in favor, while Aldermen MacRae, Desjardins, Church and Muir voted in favor of the main motion, leaving the vote deadlocked. (Ald. E. O. Pollock was absent from the meeting.) Mayor FitzGerald cast his vote in favor of the main motion, which was passed on a 5-4 count.

Secretary-treasurer Claude Daoust was sworn into office by the Mayor at the commencement of the meeting, after which the new officer was authorized to sign cheques and legal documents jointly with the Mayor.

Tenders for completion of the Town Hall were received from three firms, De Bellefeuille & Fils being awarded the contract with the lowest tendered price of $65 a thousand for the brick and $250 for laying the artificial stone. It was requested that the building frontal be completed by June 15 if at all possible.

The question of assessors was brought forward, and Ald. Muir brought in a committee recommendation that Messrs. Willie Heatlie, Cyprien Durocher and Jos. Constantineau be employed for the position, at the rate of $1.25 an hour. Mr. Durocher was appointed chairman and Philisa Chabot named as a substitute.

The Town Hall construction committee, who have been studying tenders for blinds and drapes for some time, recommended to the Council that the tender of Gaetan Blais ($563.34) be accepted. All tenders were made public at a previous meeting. It was pointed out that the above price was for drapes on all the Main Street windows and Venetian blinds on all side windows.

By-law 197 of the Town of Lachute on the changing of civic election date from the first judicial day in February to the first judicial day in October, was read by Secretary Daoust. Ald. Desjardins who had given notice of motion of the by-law at the previous meeting, arrived during the first reading. The by-law was accepted on both readings, the session being adjourned between readings.

A grant of $250 was voted for Lachute Spring Fair, as the town's usual donation to the Argenteuil Agricultural Society.

A petition was read from proprietors and residents of St. Julien and Cloutier Strets, requesting a sidewalk on both sides of these streets, also requests for new sidewalks on George and Fraser Streets. It was decided that the requests be put on the new sidewalk agenda, to be commenced following the sidewalk repairs.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind were granted permission to use the Council Chamber for their annual meeting on June 6.

A donation of $25 to the Laurentian Section of the Canadian Cancer Society was approved, on motion by Ald. D. G. MacRae seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins.

A letter from Police Chief Laurent Ducharme, requesting 90 traffic signs, was tabled for further study and information. The Chief was authorized to purchase personal clothing and equipment for the police staff.

It was moved by Ald. Stanley Church, seconded by Ald. Ross Muir, that all bills be received monthly from the Gatineau Power Co. for all electricity consumption.

An estimate of $572.90 was made on the Brownsburg Road sewer requested by Mr. Brunet — the matter being held over for study

Highway Accidents And Court Sequel

Two cars were badly smashed, their occupants being only slightly injured, in a head-on crash two miles east of Pte.-au-Chene on Route 8 Sunday evening, around 8 o'clock.

According to the investigating officer, Howard Jones, a car owned and driven by David Buck, of Montreal, pulled out to pass an unidentified car parked on the side of the highway. The parked car was surrounded by children, and Buck crashed into an oncoming car driven by Edward P. Christopher, of Ottawa. Traffic Officer Gerard Loyer assisted in the investigation.

Stewart McLean, 36, of St. Andrews East, was sentenced on Friday to two fines of $50 each plus costs, and his driver's license was suspended for three months, when he appeared before Judge Archbeault in St. Jerome. Charges of impaired and reckless driving were laid by Traffic Officer Howard Jones following an accident in Morin Heights on May 8.

McLean was accompanied by two other St. Andrews residents when the accident occurred. According to testimony given in court, he lost control of his car on a curve, travelled a considerable distance in a ditch and over two lawns, before coming to a halt against a tree. The car was damaged beyond repair, and all three occupants were slightly injured.

McLean pleaded guilty to both charges, and received identical sentences on both; the license suspension period runs concurrently, however.

Groundwork for Blood Donor Clinic In September

Executive members of the Red Cross Blood Donor Service, under chairmanship of Linton W. Armstrong, held a pre-organization meeting on Tuesday, June 2, to determine the dates for the fall Clinic.

André Gaulin, provincial director of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service, congratulated Argenteuil County on its record in the past two years under the respective chairmanships of Horace Lamarche and Léopold Carrière, and said that he was confident that this year's committee, with Mr. Armstrong's leadership and the generosity of the blood donors, would again supply Red Cross with the life-giving fluid.

"Our main concern," he said, "is to keep the blood flowing evenly to the 99 hospitals in this province which rely on Red Cross for free blood for their patients. For this purpose 69,975 bottles of blood were received by Red Cross last year.

It was decided that Monday and Tuesday, September 26 and 27, would be set aside for the Red Cross Blood Clinic for Lachute and district.

Mr. J. R. Dubois, chairman for the Brownsburg Red Cross blood donor panel, accepted the date of Thursday, September 15, for their clinic.

Mr. Armstrong assured Mr. Gaulin that everything would be done to organize a successful clinic, and expressed the hope that as in the past all would rally to this vital service.

LHS Teacher Given Order of Scholastic Merit

Mrs. Ruth E. Graham, Lachute High School Grade IV teacher for some years, was awarded the Order of Scholastic Merit, First Degree — this being the first time such an award has ever been made to a member of a Lachute High School teaching staff.

The award, which will be presented at a special ceremony in the Montreal High School during the Teachers' Convention next October, is given by the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education, of which both the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., and Geo Y. Deacon are members. The honor is in recognition of lengthy and faithful service combined with a general contribution towards education as a whole. It is necessary that more than 20 years of teaching service be completed — which Mrs. Graham attained some years ago.

Mrs. Graham is one of seven to receive the First Degree Order, which is the preliminary of three degrees.

Mrs. Graham's teaching record goes back many years in this district as an elementary grade teacher. She commenced her teaching duties at The Glen following a short course at Macdonald College, which she continued for several summers. She later taught at Lakefield, Cambria, St. Canut, Hill Head, Upper Lachute, the East End and finally at Lachute High, where she has been for some years.

Another fitting tribute was paid to Mrs. Graham last week with the publication of the 1955 Lampada which was formally dedicated to her in recognition of her long and faithful service at Lachute High School, and of the interest she has always shown in school activities.

Canada's most valuable postage stamp is the twelve-penny black, issued in 1850 and now priced at $3,500.

Three Arrests — Entering and Theft At Summer Camps

Considerable stolen property, including a number of .22 calibre rifles, has been recovered by Det. Maurice Lamoureux and Traffic Officer Howard Jones, who investigated some 30 break-ins in summer camps in the 16 Island Lake area. The officers made three arrests over the week-end, and the accused were arraigned for preliminary hearing on Tuesday.

Arrested and charged with breaking and entering, with theft, are Elmer Bates, 23, of 16 Island Lake, Henry Bates, 32, of Montreal, and Robert Bevin, 39, of St. Jerome. Elmer Bates pleaded guilty to five charges laid, and will be sentenced June 28. There are 26 more charges of a similar nature pending. Robert Bevin pleaded not guilty and was released on two bails of $950 each; the trial will be held June 28. Henry Bates pleaded guilty to two charges laid, and was sentenced to time spent in jail.

Elmer Bates is being held in St. Jerome jail pending his trial later this month.

Among more than 30 camps entered was that owned by Ernest Calder, of St. Andrews East. All other camps were owned by Montreal and Ottawa residents, including the Hon. Brooke Claxton, whose property on Lac Ouananiche, a mile from 16 Island Lake, was entered.

Reported stolen are numerous rifles, cartridges, liquor, battery radios, fishing and hunting equipment, considerable clothing, all kinds of tools, skils, blankets, electrical appliances, etc.

The local officers have recovered considerable of the loot, and are still working on the case, which goes back three years.

The competition provides $500 in prize money, and entry forms are availalbe at the office at the local Fair Grounds.

Harness Events

As in past years, the afternoon horse-racing program gets underway Thursday, and although the County Race is not being held this year, all local competitors will be entered in other classified harness classes. The horse racing program, this year as full of top-notch entries as ever, is under the stewardship of Marc Seguin, of Rigaud.

A cattle parade will be held both Thursday and Friday nights in front of the grandstand, in addition to the nightly horse show and the Square Dance events.

Machinery Displays

The farm equipment display area has been filled to overflowing for some weeks, necessitating a fair-sized addition to this increasingly popular attraction at the Fair. Numerous booths occupied by household appliance firms and local storekeepers will also display a complete line of household appliances, while local car dealers will also have their products on show.

The Argenteuil Anti-Tuberculosis League will have their free X-ray equipment on hand in the Main Building, in which a large entry of handicrafts and home cooking will be on exhibit. Also located in this centre will be a Department of Mines display, recently shown at the Montreal Show Mart and in Quebec City.

The two local service clubs, Lions and Rotary, will occupy their customary booths, and the Farm Forums will operate a refreshment stand.

Handicraft Judging

Ladies exhibiting at the Lachute Spring Fair are informed that the handicraft entries will be judged on Thursday, June 16, commencing at 10 a.m. Handicraft articles must be on display by noon on Wednesday, and cooking and flowers must be on display by 9.30 a.m. Thursday.

Calumet Man Dies Under Truck

Thomas Dinelle, 23, of Calumet, was instantly killed at Papineauville Saturday evening while working under a truck, which collapsed on top of him. Police said the victim was repairing the spring on the left wheel of a gravel truck when the jack slipped, catching his head beneath the box of the vehicle.

Dinelle had left Calumet for Papineauville, where he was working for St. Denis Transport, 15 days prior to the fatal accident.

District Coroner Dr. Lucien Bourgeault, of St. André Avellin, was called to the scene. Sgt. Gaston Garceau of the Quebec Provincial Police was investigating the accident, and there will be no inquest.

Dinelle is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Dinelle of Calumet, a sister and three brothers, all of Papineauville.

The funeral service was held in the Calumet Roman Catholic Church on Tuesday.

Brownsburg Civic Affairs in Hands Of New Mayor, Revamped Council

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — First item of interest after the routine opening of Council, was the appointment of Stanley Harris to fill the seat vacated by Sam Rose. Mr. Harris was proposed by Councillor Golphin, seconded by Councillor Lavoie, and in the absence of other nominations was acclaimed for the remaining year of Councillor Rose's office.

Mayor D. Lepine then chose his committees for the ensuing year. Councillors Lavoie and Golphin will look after the police, fire and welfare departments. Councillors Pariseau and Ouellette form the roads, sidewalks, light and garbage committee. Water and sewerage will be under the surveillance of Councillors Stan Harris and René Lafleur.

The Mayor then asked for questions from the floor. Quite a crowd of spectators were in attendance at this first meeting of the new council, and quite a few had problems for the newly-chosen committees, especially regarding water and sewerage, and lights and roads. Mr. Primeau, of the Café Marquise Grill, requested that the midnight ban on dancing be extended to 1 a.m. Saturday night - Sunday morning. The Mayor pointed out that even if Council were in favor of such a move, the law was a Quebec law banning music on Sundays.

Mayor Lepine then asked for the appointment of a pro-mayor. Councillor Lafleur proposed Councillor Ernie Lavoie, Councillor Ouellette seconded, and it was passed unanimously that Councillor Lavoie would be pro-mayor.

Mr. Lavoie proposed that the "trap" signs on the four approaches to the village be replaced by more cordial signs such as "Welcome to Brownsburg — Speed Supervised." He also read a letter from Police Chief Parent, listing the requisites for the next year. The Mayor pointed out that the Council could buy only according to its funds. Councillors Lavoie and Golphin promised to take stock at the police requirements.

Fire Chief A. Robbins reported only one fire in May — in the bush, which was alarming in that it was reported as being near the powder magazine. However, the fire was quite far from the magazine and was soon under control. Mr. Robbins requested that Council buy 300 feet of 2½-inch hose and a new battery for the truck.

Councillor Ouellette presented a request from several taxpayers to have the curfew siren suspended during the summer as the noise wakens some the younger children. The Mayor figured that since there were so many citizens present, it would be better to ask them. All present were in favor of retaining the practice of sounding the siren.

Police Chief Parent reported 45 speeding tickets, 4 parking tickets 3 red light offenders, 5 accidents 10 complaints and 9 warnings.

Secretary Emile Hebert suggested that the usual $8 paid to the men who worked at the election, be raised; it was accordingly agreed to raise the fee to $10. He also reported that he had received a cheque for $40 for a fire outside the town last year; $20 will go to the firemen.

The secretary explained, as regards pot-holes in the roads, that most had been fixed, but that the Staynerville road was owned by the province. In explaining the position on the new sewerage systems he stated that a qualified engineer would have to be appointed. A well-recommended candidate for the position would be interviewed this week.

A motion was passed authorizing the mayor and secretary to sign cheques, and another motion was passed instructing the secretary to place arrears of business taxes in the hands of a tax collector.

A request was received for a donation to the swimming pool and playing fields. It was moved that Council would donate $50, matching its donation to the Rotary Club swimming pool. A motion was made to the effect that accompanying the donation would be a letter

Homicide Investigation, Bones in Burned Shack Near Lakefield Road

Grim Discovery by Local Residents

Charred human bones, part of a male skeleton, were taken to the morgue in Montreal Monday following their discovery by several Lachute residents Sunday evening. Traffic Officer Howard Jones was advised of the discovery shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday, and with Officer Gerard Loyer, made the preliminary investigation, immediately notifying Det. Maurice Lamoureux.

The discovery of the burned lumber camp, owned by Ted Hammond, Lachute, was made jointly by René Lalonde and his wife, of George Street, Aristide Deslauriers, also of George Street, and Raymond Dupel, of Wendover, Ont. Lalonde was jobbing for René Laurin, Lachute, who had purchased the woodcut from Mr. Hammond, and Lalonde was going to the scene with the idea of selling some wood to Mr. Deslauriers.

When they arrived at the campsite, approximately half a mile off Route 30, some six miles from Lachute (near the Hale property), they found the camp, burned to the ground, and what they thought to be human bones. They reported the discovery to the Provincial Police who, after preliminary investigation, notified the Homicide Squad and Det. Lt. Ubald Legault arrived on the scene shortly afterwards. Some evidence was available in the way of tire-tracks close to the camp, and a belt-buckle beside the bones was discovered by the officers.

Mr. Lalonde reports that he had been in the vicinity of the lumber camp approximately a week before the discovery, and at that time everything was in order.

Local officers Roger Massie and Gerard Loyer spent Sunday night at the scene, remaining there until more Homicide officers arrived from Montreal to complete the investigation.

Although preliminary investigation showed no signs of foul play, police are not ignoring this possibility, and the investigation is being continued by the local officers along with the Montreal Squad.

• • •

Medico-legal expert Dr. Jean Marie Roussell completed his autopsy yesterday on what remained of the skeleton and reported that the bones were too badly burned to determine whether they are a man's or woman's remains.

Lions Play Hosts To Visitors From Bigras Club

Ian Gordon Named President; New Officers Approved for Year

A return visit from members of the Bigras Lions Club added to the enjoyment of the regular club meeting here last Tuesday. With President Roger Regimbal in the chair, the presence of two mayors — Conrad Belair of Ile Bigras and Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald of Lachute, both active Lions — emphasized the community prestige of this service club. The latter also extended a welcome to the visitors on behalf of the civic authorities. President Laurie Clarkson of the Bigras Club was seated at the head-table.

A high spot in this meeting was the honor accorded to Willard M. Steeves for his 13 years as treasurer of the club. A suitably inscribed plaque was presented by District Deputy Governor Horace Lamarche in recognition of this loyal service.

Lion Lamarche in his new capacity spoke briefly and, from his experience in the local club, gave a graphic illustration of the impact of example set by Lionism.

Past-president E. M. Jones conducted the election of officers for 1955-56, the following slate being unanimously approved:

President, I. K. Gordon; 1st vice-president, J. L. Dumais; 2nd vice-president, J. L. Lowe; 3rd vice-president, L. P. Tremblay; secretary, K. W. Clarke; treasurer, D. M. Hay.

Approval was voted to a subscription for 20 student membership tickets for Community Concerts. Ernest Snadden reported creditably on the Klondyke Night effort. Herb Graves brought impressions from the recent District "A" Convention in Quebec City. Ian Gordon, committeeman for the Lions' booth and drawing at Lachute Fair, gave a pep-talk on this fund-raising effort. Dr. Eric Mongeon reported progress in arrangements for the Little Major League, and other items of business were briefly discussed.

After a song session led by Clayton Rathbone, the gathering and guests adjourned for a social hour at the Golf Club.

Attendance at this meeting numbered around 80, including 14 visitors from the Bigras club.

Gatineau Power Lines

Make It Harmless

Discarded iceboxes and other airtight cabinets are a hazard to children when chosen as hiding places in their games.

Do not let your old refrigerator be a menace. If you are discarding it, remove entire door, or at lease remove the latchstop. This is usually fastened with screws on the frame and is easily removed.

If used as a general storage cabinet, drill holes through the body of the refrigerator and remove the gasket around door or lid, so that anyone caught inside could breathe.

These operations together — though not singly — will unseal the compartment and allow air into the box.

If you have a refrigerator in temporary storage make it safe by taking off the latch-stop.

REMEMBER — the child you save may be your own! Take these precautions today with your discarded refrigerator or freezer!

Summer Care of Laying Hens

Extra attention to making the birds comfortable during hot weather will keep yields from falling too sharply, states W. F. Mountain, Head Poultryman at the Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont. Summer eggs, particularly the larger kinds laid by adult fowl, have been at a premium in recent years.

One of the most important needs is a steady supply of cool drinking water. As means of holding water for poultry, ordinary pails are giving way to automatic systems. These, however, should be installed with a view towards complete efficiency. Covering exposed pipes with insulation or deeply burying the lead-in line tends to keep the water cool in summer as well as to lessen the danger from frost in winter.

The sun beating down on a poorly ventilated or uninsulated hen house builds up temperatures that do nothing but harm to the unfortunate hens. Windows in the rear of the building as well as the front to allow cross ventilation is a worthwhile feature in any hen house. Some form of insulated ceiling, even if it is made only of poultry netting covered with straw, is also of great help in avoiding extremes in temperatures.

Although hot weather places a strain on laying hens it seems that lice and mites thrive on it. A periodic search for these parasites should be made and if found on the birds or in cracks in the woodwork then measures of control should be started immediately. There have been developed several effective and easily applied preparations for getting rid of parasites and these are obtainable at any poultry supply house.

Another condition that comes with hot weather is the weakening of egg shells. This sometimes leads to further trouble in an outbreak of deliberate egg eating by some portion of the flock. Although the thin shell problem is not fully understood it can be eased by making sure that adequate amounts of oyster shell is available. Most mash formulas include supplementary forms of shell making material such as ground limestone or steamed bone meal but it is important that sufficient mash is consumed in order for these ingredients to be effective.

Attention should also be directed to the freshness of feed during hot weather. Not only has stale mash lost some essential food elements, but it is not as palatable as newly mixed feed. Whatever storage of feed is necessary should be done in as cool and dry a place as may be possible.

In going over the list of things to do and not to do in regard to maintaining the best possible summer egg output one general principle stands out. That is, the necessity of watching for signs of distress among the hens and then taking whatever steps may be necessary to furnish relief.

Silage Conditioner For Legume Silage

Ottawa — When unfavorable ensiling conditions prevail application of a preservative sodium metabisulphite appears useful on legume and mixed forages.

Last year a considerable acreage of forage crops had to be ensiled at moisture levels above those recommended for proper ensiling due to showery weather in June and early July. W. E. Cordukes of the Central Experimental Farm in Ottawa reports that legume forage crops were treated with this preservative at a rate of 8 pounds per ton. The treated forage had less offensive odor, better color, and was more acceptable to livestock than the same crop ensiled without a preservative. The untreated silage, however, was also of good quality and quite palatable to the livestock.

Experiments with sulphur dioxide gas as well as sodium metabisulphite (which incidentally releases sulphur dioxide gas when in contact with moist forage) have also reduced silage odors considerably particularly where poor ensiling conditions have been encountered.

RCAF Top Brass Draws Criticism for Statements on Govt. Defence Policy

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA
By Don Peacock, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 6 (CP) — Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, recently retired adjutant-general of the Canadian army, says some senior RCAF officers are beginning "to suffer from delusions of grandeur."

In a letter to the Ottawa Journal, Gen. Macklin writes: "The government of the United States has had some trouble with officers still in uniform sounding off on matters of high policy that are the responsibility of government. It is to be hoped that our government will quell any such tendencies in Canada. They are dangerous."

Twice last week, Defence Minister Campney has said in the Commons that public statements attributed to two high RCAF officers do not reflect government policy.

In reply to opposition questions, Mr. Campney said it is improper for top military men to make public statements dealing with government policy. He indicated he will crack down on such practice.

Air Marshal Roy Slemon, chief of air staff, has been quoted at Montreal as saying that Canada and the U.S. are heading toward a unified air defence system and appointment of an over-all commander.

A day later, Air Vice-Marshal John I. Plant, chief of RCAF technical services, said in a speech at Toronto the army should be scrapped to make more manpower available for a stronger air force.

In the Commons, John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) said a recent "spate" of statements by military men "indicate that something in the nature of a military junta is trying to take the place of parliament."

Mr. Campney replied: "I think the honorable member's apprehensions are perhaps greater than the facts warrant."

Pressed by Mr. Diefenbaker about whether it is proper for high military officers to make such statements as attributed to Air Vice-Marshal Plant, Mr. Campney said:

"Well, it is not proper, of course, for high officers in the service to make statements with respect to government policy."

On Air Marshal Slemon's statements regarding a unified command, Opposition leader George Drew asked whether it was a statement of government policy.

Mr. Campney replied that Air Marshal Slemon was "simply stating a trend in military thinking." But it was not government policy to seek appointment of a supreme commander.

Defence Trends

Through the changes wrought by men in the methods of making war on each other, northern Canada, in the opinion of senior officals here, may be the key to the defence of the entire Western alliance.

External Affairs Minister Pearson on May 27 told the Commons External Affairs committee:

"Our co-operation with the U.S. with regard to these questions of northern defence is broadening and deepening and covering more and more activities. . . The radar defence lines are only one aspect of these activities. . ."

Tariff Revisions

Canada, evincing its increasing concern over a rise in the flow of subsidized goods into world trade, has moved to protect Canadian industry from imports of state-subsidized goods by subjecting them to a special dumping duty equivalent to the amount of the subsidy.

Among a number of tariff revisions, including increases and decreases, Finance Minister Harris announced last week in the Commons, were these:

1. Duty-free ethylene glycol, used in making anti-freeze, will bear a tariff of 10 per cent. The rate on mixed or blended glycol is reduced to 10 per cent from 20 and to 15 from 20 on finished anti-freeze.

2. Toll on canned mixed fruits and fruit cocktail is doubled to two cents a pound. Melons, formerly two cents each, now are duty free. The duty on canned peaches is cut to 1½ cents a pound from two for Commonwealth countries and to two cents from 2½ for the United States and most other countries.

3. An old tariff item providing for a drawback or refund of duty on bituminous coal converted into coke for smelting is restored. This is a technical move to protect the validity of coal subventions since there is no duty on coal and none is contemplated.

The tariff action, taken on appeal by Canadian industry, affects mostly the U.S. The revisions, Mr. Harris said, were negotiated at Geneva under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. The U.S. agreed to higher rates on glycol and mixed fruit in exchange for reductions on peaches, melons and finished anti-freeze.

Butter-Wheat Prices

The government has announced a decline in its butter price and set the same price as for the last five years for initial delivery of 1955-56 wheat.

The normal government selling price for its surplus butter is 61 cents a pound, but early in May, it was learned last week, the price was reduced by five cents to 56 cents a pound in a drive to dispose of part of a record 50,000,000-pound surplus.

Officials said similar price cuts were made on storage butter in 1954 and 1950, loss being borne by the Canadian taxpayer through his support of the federal treasury.

The government still is selling butter to hospitals at 40 cents a pound, but despite a resultant increase in butter sales, officials said a major portion of the 50,000,000-surplus in government storage at the start of the 1955 butter season May 1 is still on its hands.

That is a carryover of about 20,000,000 pounds more than a year ago, but no matter how much butter is produced this year, the government is committed through its price-support program to pay 58 cents a pound wholesale for all surpluses offered it by producers. The price is fixed until May, 1956.

On wheat, meanwhile, Trade Minister Howe announced the 1955-56 opening price for No. 1 northern basis Lakehead and Vancouver, is $1.40 a bushel.

Lachute Fair, June 15-18

OLD-TIMERS, viewing the wider scope of Lachute Spring Fair as compared with the past, may feel tempted to dissociate this big enterprise from the community spirit which gave it birth, and which nurtured it through the growing stages.

Let us make no mistake, however. Lachute Fair is now well managed, financially sound, widely reputed — but it still needs you, and me, and Main Street — the parishes — the clubs — the merchants. Every citizen indeed can contribute his share, by attending and boosting Lachute Spring Fair. There are still the officers, the committees and Argenteuil Agricultural Society, laboring behind the scenes with the manager and his staff, to regulate every detail and ensure the smooth, successful operation of our annual Exhibition. To delegate all the effort and enthusiasm to these workers, on the assumption that Lachute Fair is big business beyond the need of individual support — is to shun our responsibility and "let George do it."

Let's all help! Advertise our Fair, invite our friends, and extend the hospitality of our town!

Brickbat — Bouquet

LAST WEEK we voiced a criticism on tardy attention to the drains, when a deluge of rain flooded low-spots and the town crews were off duty.

This week we hand a cordial bouquet to the same department of administration, for the business-like traffic markings on our main thoroughfares — and to Police Chief Laurent Ducharme, who directed the job.

These markings are a distinct improvement over previous years, leaving no doubt as to entryways, intersections and areas prohibited to parking. Directional arrows painted on the right-of-way should also prove helpful to motorists turning out of the main traffic stream.

Epecially important are these traffic markings to the thousands of strangers who drive through Lachute in the summer season. Familiarity with the local scene is apt to dull the emphasis on this need. Lachute, its thoroughfares, bridges and unusual parking facilities, are not immediately known to newcomers, and every helpful sign or direction we can offer is a gesture for the safety and satisfaction of our visitors.

The Police Chief and roads crew have done an excellent job in this matter.

Trend

WE NEVER thought we'd see the day; but we do actually recall — only a few short weeks ago — cocking our ears and raising our eyes approvingly as a sleek driving horse and cutter, with bells a-ringing, passed on the snow-clad street. . . We never thought we'd see the day when such sights would be a rarity!

We are reminded of this nostalgic reaction by — s-t-a-t-i-s-t-i-c-s! The Ottawa Farm Journal quotes, from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, that in 1953 only 32 horse-drawn sleighs were shipped to purchasers, compared to 169 sleighs in the previous year.

The writer here ruminates, that the horse-drawn sleigh 50 years ago was the keystone arch of winter transportation from the Maritimes to the Pacific. And while snow conditions on the streets were such as would be intolerable in these days of vast snowclearing devices, no one seemed to be worried about it. Horse-drawn sleighs hauled groceries, meat and other commodities to customers. Huge loads of wood were delivered on double sleighs hauled by heavy draft horses straining at their collars. The sleigh in winter was every bit as essential as the wheel in summer.

. . . But it was on Sundays half a century ago that the sleigh soared to the zenith of its glory, as the aristocrat of transportation.

— And in 1953, thirty-two new sleighs for all Canada!

Pre-Vacation Dreaming

THIS IS the time of year when most Canadians enjoy what may be the best part of summer holidays — the anticipation.

In an idle hour they can relax and dream about the pleasure soon to come or plan a vacation even more idyllic than the one they intend to take. This dreaming and planning can extend over several weeks and it doesn't cost a cent.

Even if a man's wife wants to go to the mountains and the man himself favors going to the seaside, he can dream anyway — about the seaside, of course.

The nicest thing about this pre-holiday anticipation is that in it everything works out perfectly. The fisherman fills his creels. The golfer shoots his hole-in-one. The motorist rolls merrily along with never a traffic jam or a flat tire. The bashful youth finds a sweetheart or the shy Miss lands a husband.

The families who always go to a cottage can dream, too. For them, the sun will shine the whole two weeks long. Fellow vacationists at neighboring cottages, unlike those bores of other years, will sparkle with interest and good neighborliness.

Even the man who has made up his mind he can't afford to go away for a holiday this year does his share of dreaming. This, he tells himself, will be his great chance to catch up on his reading, to see all the movies he's missed lately, to put in a few evenings with people he likes or perhaps to just relax in the shade and take life easy.

Dreams, yes, and pleasant fantasies the mind can turn out in odd moments of wool-gathering as the warm spring sun turns one's thoughts from the job in hand to the happy uplands of vacationland.

Of course, all the dreams probably will not come true. Or, at least, they will not turn out in the expected way. Dreams seldom do.

But no matter. A little dreaming beforehand always whets the appetite for holiday joys.

IMAGINATION is as good as many voyages — and how much cheaper.

Garden Boom

CANADIANS apparently plan to spend more time around the garden and in the backyard this year than ever before. Their planning — and spending — are causing the biggest boom yet for plant nurseries, manufacturers and retailers of outdoor furniture and even swimming pool builders — reports The Financial Post.

The "green thumb" urge and the desire to relax in the outdoors is increasing business as much as 25% for those firms that cater to garden lovers. This relatively new "leisure industry" already is growing rapidly as Canadians continue to spend considerable time, effort and money on preparing the proper setting for relaxation.

A NATION'S WEALTH and economic strength lies in industrial plants, rail transport systems, agriculture, natural resources and — the people's ability and willingness to work.

FEW APPARENTLY have been able to catch the vision of the tremendous material benefits which would accrue to themselves and to Canada as a whole if this country had a population four or five times its present size.

"MARTIN LUTHER"

It has been a busy week for Geoff. More than that, it has been a week of revelation. You see, I was one of the three Anglicans that took part in making arrangements to show the film "Martin Luther" in the Protestant churches of Westmount. And, since the daily press and radio have already told you how the picture has been received, I needn't labor the point here.

What the public information services haven't said much about so far is how John Q. Public has reacted to the showing of the film. So, for the remainder of this column, I shall try to give you reactions of various people as they came to me.

Our little church was the only Anglican church in Westmount to show the film. We ran it for two nights only and we were packed out on both nights. Our Rector, the organist, and yours truly were the only Anglicans that took an interest in the showings. The other congregations of the Church of England, in Westmount, wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot barge pole. There were reactions to that, both pro and con.

"I think it's disgraceful," one woman commented, "that we are deliberately flouting the law by showing this film. It's to the credit of the other Anglican churches in this city that they have refused to have anything to do with it."

Almost coincidental with this remark came one from an irate gentleman who couldn't get in to see the film at any of the churches on the list.

"It makes me sick," he shouted, "when I hear that the Anglicans aren't supporting the showing of 'Luther'. I told my Rector yesterday that if it hadn't been for Martin Luther, he wouldn't be in business. Trouble with our people is that they haven't got what's politely called 'intestinal fortitude' — but I call it guts! It's a very great credit to you that you have taken the initiative in the matter. I'll remember that, too!"

Then, there was the Russian girl who came to our church after being refused entrance at five other jam-packed churches.

"Why can't I see this film at the theatre?" she asked the Rector.

"Because it has been banned from the theatres of this province by the government. I'm running close to the razor's edge by putting it on here!"

"Strange," she said. "That's what they did in Russia. They made us close the churches altogether over there. That's why I left Russia to come here. Now, I find the same sort of thing going on in this country. It is strange. Very strange!"

And there was the comment of one clergyman who waited at the church door for over two hours, in order to get a seat.

"Isn't it amazing," he mused, "that we have to recall a theologian from limbo, put him on film and place him under a new ban, in order to fill our churches? The men of today that can fill our places of worship in like manner are few and far between. Must we resurrect the saints of old — even Christ Himself — in order to bring mankind back to God?"

Finally, I should mention the comment of another man when he was told that the Premier himself was planning to intervene and uphold the ban imposed by the Board of Censors.

"I do not believe that you need have any fear of intervention by Mr. Duplessis. Martin Luther succeeded in his day, guided by God. Those who made the film also testify to God's guidance in the making of it. That same guidance has brought it into the churches of Westmount. No man can upset any plan that is inspired and guided by God, be he a premier or a king!"

The forty thousand souls who have seen the film, together with the forty thousand others who couldn't get in to any church to see it, constitute 80,000 persons ready to defy the decrees of governments in order to seek out the truth as they know it. And that is a force sufficient to make any man think twice before he leaps.

As one man, the 80,000 say with Luther:

"Here I stand. I can do no other!"

Grenville School Questions Of Public Concern

TO THE EDITOR

Attending the meeting of Grenville School Board on June 6 were Mr. J. Trineer, chairman; Mrs. J. M. Doherty, assistant secretary to the Rouge River School Board; Mr. Neil McCallum, Dougal Page, Mrs. John Fox, Mrs. Gilbert Campbell and Mrs. J. Trineer. The purpose of attending this meeting was to clarify certain disturbing rumors.

Mrs. Doherty asked the Board if they had explained to the taxpayers of Avoca, who are interested in being annexed to Grenville, that they would be paying higher taxes. Mr. Gauley replied that they should know this without being told.

Mrs. Doherty questioned the Grenville Board if they had pointed out to Avoca that the Grenville Board would have to buy their own bus to transport from Avoca to Grenville, as the present bus is owned by the Rouge River Board. Mr. Gauley again stated that Grenville Board was not obliged to point out this matter; the public should have knowledge to these facts.

Mr. Trineer asked Mr. Gauley if his Board intended accepting Avoca. Mr. Gauley made a rather broad statement that this matter was all settled by his board and also Quebec. Mr. Robinson checked Mr. Gauley, stating he was going too far — that this matter was only settled as far as Grenville Board was concerned.

Mr. Gauley also pointed out to Mr. Trineer that the Rouge River Board would never get a school. What position Mr. Gauley is in to make this broad statement, remains to be seen.

DANGEROUS HABIT

A despicable act is that of dumping refuse in farm fields. Presumably this is done by someone from an urban area who sneaks into the field off the roadway by night. A farmer in Oro tells recently of having a grade cow badly cut by broken glass dumped in his pasture.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Alcohol is too grave a subject to joke about, some people feel. Surely they are wrong. The undertaker is a frequent butt of jokes, and what subject is more serious than death?

So I do not apologise for telling this true story about a friend of mine, a one-time problem drinker who is now on the water-wagon.

Mac, as I shall call him, got tangled in a party. Liquor was being served. The others were drinking, but my friend stuck to ginger ale.

A sober man at this kind of party feels like a frog in a choir of larks. He doesn't belong. And the happier his companions are, the gloomier he grows.

Such was the case with Mac. As the drinking people laughed and hiccoughed their way through the night — apparently thinking of themselves as wits and raconteurs of a high order — he merely glowered.

Then the party, defying all those sensible rules about mixing drink and gasoline, took off by car for some vague destination.

By this time, each one of the drinking men fancied himself as Bob Hope and Churchill rolled into one. But the ex-lush saw them as a bunch of tedious soaks.

Unable to stand it any longer, Mac asked the driver to stop the car.

"This is where I live," he said. "See you."

With that, he walked across the street to a house that was not his at all, but the residence of a woman he knew.

"Open up," said the ex-lush desperately. "For goodness' sake let me in. If those guys get me, I'm lost."

The startled lady let him in and bolted the door, thinking on the spur of the moment that our friend might be pursued by the police, or the Mafia, or perhaps even by the Roundheads. Fantasy tends to get mixed up with fact, at such a time.

If my friend had acted in the adventure-story tradition, he would then have drawn a sword, stood panting for an instant with his back against the door, then swung himself on a curtain out the nearest window — flipping the lady a rose as he vanished.

However, this was real life. My friend merely sank back in an armchair and lit a cigarette.

"Thank gosh I escaped from those drunks," said the former tosspot.

He stayed for dinner, then left with profuse apologies.

What if they come back looking for him? The lady will have to dab her eyes and tell them not to mention that scoundrel's name, because he walked out of the house last Tuesday and she hasn't seen him since.

FIELD TESTS Prove Value of BABY PIG CHOW

Heavier weights at weaning time, and improved sow condition, are both yours if you use BABY PIG CHOW. Ever since its introduction some months ago, Baby Pig Chow along with PURINA PIG STARTENA has been proving in pounds and condition the value of a good creep-feeding program.

In a test run on nine farms last fall involving 44 litters, they had the following results:

Comparison	Data
Average age started eating Baby Pig Chow	8.2 days
Range between time of starting to eat	4-15 days
Average age when Baby Pig Chow was eaten	31.6 days
Range between time of finishing Baby Pig Chow	23-40 days
Average weight at 8 weeks of age	48.4 lbs.

The estimated national average weight for pigs at 8 weeks of age, is 30 pounds. The pigs in the above test were 18 POUNDS HEAVIER.

What does a heavier pig at weaning time mean to the feeder? Research shows that the weight a pig reaches at weaning time has a very definite bearing on the age the pig reaches market weight.

And the shorter time you are feeding a pig means either more profit or a smaller loss. Either way, you gain.

The secretary read the laws regarding burning leaves or grass. Before anyone sets fire to grass or leaves, a permit in writing should be received from the Fire Chief. Such an operation should never take place on a windy day. Precautions must be taken that fire-fighting tools are readily available.

Affairs, Finances Of Blind Institute In Annual Review

The annual meeting of the Argenteuil Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was held at the Town Hall on Monday evening, with J. B. Chalmers in the chair.

The treasurer explained that current finances consist of an account in the bank which is maintained at $200. When disbursements for each month are reported to Montreal headquarters, the account is brought back to $200 from funds which have been collected in this district and kept in Montreal, but which are allocated for the work in Argenteuil. The 1954 campaign for funds had resulted in total collections of $2,071.61. This was below the objective of $2,500, but better than for any previous year.

Tony Zaplaski, Field Secretary for Argenteuil, gave an account of his work during the past year. All blind cases in Lachute, Brownsburg and St. Andrews East as well as many others in the county had been visited, some on several occasions. The total number of cases was close to 40. Two new talking books had been provided through the generosity of the Rotary Club and the Lions Club. Radios had been provided in two instances to blind men, who were most appreciative.

Continued assistance was voted in two cases, one in Brownsburg and another in St. Andrews.

The following officers were unanimously approved:

Chairman, Dr. Eric Mongeon, 1st vice-chairman, W. G. Richardson; 2nd vice-chairman, André Lefebvre; treasurer, Miss L. Miller; secretary, J. B. Chalmers.

Directors — A. O. Anderson, Mrs. J. E. Barker, R. Cairns, Mrs. Ivy Cruise, Mrs. L. Dion, Police Chief Ducharme, Mrs. T. Dwyer, Mrs. J. Gorman, Mrs. B. Gosselin, Keith Hickson, Mrs. S. Holt, Mrs. D. MacDonald, S. Milnes, F. H. J. Royal, Miville Trickey.

Authority was given to the chairman, Dr. Eric Mongeon, the treasurer, Miss Louise Miller and the secretary, J. B. Chalmers, to sign cheques — two signatures being required on every cheque.

Expenditures for the year ended March 31, 1955, were $3,056.67 — including local administration, campaign expenses, field work and registration, home teaching and a proportion of head office expenses. The largest item was for home teaching, amounting to $942. The budget estimate for the ensuing year amounted to $2,835.

It was noted that expenditures for Argenteuil are in excess of campaign receipts. Mr. Zaplaski explained that the difference has been made up through the generosity of certain areas whose collections are more than the expense of their service work.

Plans for the 1955-1956 campaign for funds were left to the incoming executive.

An educational film supplied by the C.N.I.B. entitled "Hold Back the Night" was then shown. This film deals with the disease called Glaucoma, which is responsible for twelve per cent of blindness, yet the disease can be checked and controlled by modern eye doctors. This film is available in both French and English for loan without charge to any interested group.

Quebec Mining Developments to Spark Engineering Projects, Says Cottingham

Premier Duplessis Asks Investigation on Showing Of "Martin Luther" Film

By Shirley Morris

Quebec (CP) — Mines Minister Cottingham said last week that important mining developments will spark some of the largest engineering projects ever seen in Quebec Province.

He told the 28th annual meeting of the Chemical Institute of Canada that plans for expanding mineral production will entail the "building of railroads, mine roads and bridges, the harnessing of new hydro-electric power and much other work. . . "

Mr. Cottingham estimated mineral production for 1955 will be nearly $300,000,000.

• • •

The showing of the banned film "Martin Luther" in Montreal Protestant churches last week aroused comment from Premier Duplessis.

He told a press conference he found it "peculiar that the movie, banned 18 months ago by the Quebec cinema censors board, should be shown before the three by-elections scheduled for July 6.

"It may be simple coincidence, but I have asked that an investigation be made," he said.

"It is the policy of the government to respect the rights of minorities, but we must not infringe on the rights of the majority."

The film, banned on the grounds that it might stir up religious differences, was seen by an estimated 25,000 persons at showings in churches which spokesmen for the attorney-general's department said violated the ban.

• • •

The Quebec Appeals Court has permitted the Provincial Government to intervene in a case that will test the validity of Quebec's education laws.

Paul-Emile Perron, of Rouyn, a former Roman Catholic converted to the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, is appealing a superior court rejection of his demand that his three children be allowed to attend Protestant school.

The attorney-general's department was allowed to appoint a lawyer to intervene on the government's behalf when Mr. Perron's lawyer served notice that he would attack the validity of Quebec school laws.

Under the present system, the religious majority in the community forms a school board and is obliged to educate all children. The minority can form its own board, but is not obliged to educate anyone but members of its own faith.

The Spider — Hangs by A Thread

It may be all right for a spider to hang by a thread, but when the world situation is such that its peace hangs by a thread, that is something else again. Especially is this true when the weavers of the web of world intrigue are at a loss to know what the outcome will be. The prospect of a debacle that will mean the ruin of civilization is not a cheering one. But viewed from the Bible standpoint, the prospect of the future is a thrilling one. Awake! is a magazine that takes this hopeful viewpoint, showing that world events are proof of the nearing new world. Read "Awake!" and find out for yourself how it can truly cheer you. 24 issues a year — only $1. Send today. Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

June 11, 1880 —

The heat of the past few days has been intense.

The stables and outbuildings belonging to Mr. Wm. Toreneau, of Grece's Point, were destroyed by fire over the week-end when his little boy took out some coal-oil and matches intending to make a bonfire. The fire spread and, getting out of control, leveled the farm buildings.

Mr. James Fish has received official notification of his appointment as postmaster for the West-end Lachute mail.

On Wednesday night, the guests of Rodrigue's Hotel, East End, were aroused from their sleep by cries of fire. Mr. Rodrigue at once ran downstairs to the spot from whence the cries came, and found that a coal oil lamp had exploded in one of the bedrooms. He immediately picked up the remains of the lamp and threw it out the window, thus saving the house from a serious fire.

The many friends of Mr. Felix Paquette will be sorry to learn of a painful accident that occurred to him on Saturday last, while working in his carpenter shop. He had just started up his mill, and while putting on some belt dressing, his right arm was caught and badly broken; he also suffered other serious injuries.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

W.M.S. Sectional Meeting Held at Morin Heights

Morin Heights — The Women's Missionary Society sectional meeting was held on Thursday, May 26, in Morin Heights United Church, presided over by Mrs. Geo. Y. Deacon, Lachute. Speakers were Mrs. F. McGibbon, of Lachute, Mrs. Lovell Baker, of Montreal, and Miss Elsie Lee, R.N., of Montreal. Miss Lee gave an interesting account of her work in the W.M.S. hospitals in Western Canada. "Love Ye the Lord" was rendered as a solo by Mrs. Sims. Lunch was served to over 100 ladies by the W.A. of Morin Heights.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the woman who stood weeping in the garden outside the tomb of Joseph of Arimithea, where Jesus' body had lain after the crucifixion? She stooped down and looked inside the tomb and there she saw two angels, clothed in white.

They asked her, "Woman, why are you weeping?" She answered, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid him."

Then she turned away and saw another figure standing beside her. It was Jesus but she did not recognize Him. He also asked her, "Woman, why are you weeping? Whom do you seek?"

Thinking that He might be the gardener, she pleaded with him, "Sir, if you have carried Him away, do tell me where you have laid Him. I want to take His body away." Then Jesus, as He called her name, revealed himself in the tone of voice he used.

Quickly she turned and cried in Hebrew, "Rabboni!" which means "Teacher!" Jesus warned her not to take hold of Him, for He had not yet ascended to the Heavenly Father. But he commanded her to go to the disciples and say to them that He was going to ascend to God.

Immediately this woman went to the disciples and said, "I have seen the Lord." She related her whole experience. This woman's name and this story is found in John, Chapter 20, verses 11 to 18.

County Couple Wed At Brownsburg

Vary - Dewar

A pretty wedding took place in the Brownsburg United Church recently when Myrtle Catherine Dewar, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dewar, of Lakeview, Que., was united in marriage to Stewart Campbell Vary, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vary, of Brownsburg.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Garfield Bruce. Mr. Wayne Riddell, of Lachute, was the organist and Mr. Frank Steere was soloist, singing "Because" during the singing of the register.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white tulle over satin with a lace jacket and overskirt. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a headdress made in dainty cap effect, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The only jewellery she wore was a pearl necklace, a gift from the groom.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Albert Vary, was gowned in pale green nylon over taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow mums.

The little flower girl, Miss Mona Vary, only niece of the groom, wore a dainty dress of pink nylon made with a three-tier skirt which was caught up with lily of the valley; she wore a bonnet to match her dress, and carried a basket of sweet peas.

The best man was Mr. Joseph Izzard, and the ushers were Mr. Albert Vary and Mr. Malcolm Dewar, brothers of the groom and bride, respectively.

The bride's mother wore a mauve crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother chose a two-piece dress of cream cashmere with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The wedding reception was held in the Legion Hall, the happy couple leaving later for Watertown, N.Y., and other parts of the U.S.A.

Out of town guests were from Montreal, Three Rivers, Arundel and other parts of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Vary will reside in Brownsburg.

Interesting Session Enjoyed by Ladies Of Lachute W.I.

Members of Lachute W.I. visited the Capital on May 17 and while in Ottawa they were guests of Mr. Philippe Valois, M.P. for Argenteuil, through whose courtesy they were able to visit the House of Commons, and listen to a brilliant speech by H. Argue, C.C.F. Member, on the Wheat question.

Afterwards they were taken on a tour of the Parliament Buildings and visited the Peace Tower. Confederation Hall was especially admired, with its stone carvings, representing many aspects of federal and provincial life. The Canadian Nurses' Monument, with the draped figure of Humanity in the centre, is an outstanding example of the sculptor's art. The ladies also saw the tulips in their full beauty.

This week the meeting was held at Lazy River Ranch, Dalesville, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McGibbon. Thirty-eight members were present at the "dessert luncheon" served by the refreshment committee.

A highlight of the business meeting was the roll-call, "Something new I have learned recently". The answers were interesting, topical and educational. The hostess, Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, with samples of red and white pine, illustrated how insect-borers kill the trees.

The ladies also learned of the honor bestowed upon a local teacher, Mrs. Ruth Graham. The W.I. members congratulate her on this recognition of her services in the field of Education.

Delegates to the June Convention to be held at Macdonald College are Mrs. G. Davidson and Mrs. Geo. Tattersfield.

Mrs. Ernest Rogers gave an interesting report of the County Convention held here in May. The guest of honor, Mrs. Mason Crosby, told of the Leadership Course which she attended at the College, and showed samples of the work done in the Handicraft section, which is in charge of Miss Janet McOuat, of Lachute. . . Mrs. Crosby also emphasized that good Leadership means program participation, spreading responsibility and eliminating criticism.

Mrs. Gordon Dobbie announced the Library will be open at certain times during the summer months. (Dates will be published in The Watchman.) The last opening for this month is June 24. A number of new and interesting books have been added recently.

The F.W.I.C. received the "Henry Marshall Tourey Award." This is presented to the organization doing the best work for Adult Education across Canada. The award was presented to Mrs. H. Ellard, 2nd vice-president of the provincial executive of the Women's Institutes in Ottawa.

The business meeting being concluded, the program was in charge of Mrs. Geo. McGibbon and Mrs. E. Rogers. The former had visited Oka, and brought back some specimens of the minerals now being found there. There are at present from 15 to 20 companies drilling there. . . There was also an interesting exhibit of articles from the Canadian Spool and Cotton Company.

Mrs. Dobbie thanked Mrs. McGibbon for her kind hospitality, her presentation of original ideas, and also the opportunity of visiting her home, and enjoying the many treasures of the past on display there.

The members also wish to thank those who were responsible for the transportation.

Next meeting of this group will be held September 13, under the convenership of Mrs. D. Schwartz.

Pretty Wedding At St. Simeon's

Bradford - Watson

St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute, was the scene of a pretty wedding at 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 4, when Ora Ann, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Watson, of Cushing, was united in marriage to Gordon Rogers, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Bradford, of North River. The Rev. C. R. Lang officiated at the ceremony.

The church was tastefully decorated with blue iris and white peonies, and the pews were marked with white satin bows and sprigs of spirea.

The bride, in an ankle-length gown of white nylon net and lace over taffeta, her fingertip veil of embroidered net held in place by a petal headdress of matching nylon, was wearing a pearl necklace, gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of red roses; she entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. J. Pollock.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Alan R. Vowles, as matron of honor, who wore an ankle-length dress of blue lace and net over taffeta fashioned in a full bouffant skirt with matching bolero and picture hat, and carried a semi-cascade of pink carnations and lilies of the valley.

Mr. Douglas Bradford, brother of the groom, was best man and Mr. Alan Vowles, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Russel Bradford, brother of the groom, acted as ushers.

During the signing of the register Mr. Garth Dawson sang "Through the Years" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride's mother was in a street-length dress of Queen's blue orlon crepe, with navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a figured grey nylon street-length dress, with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's table was centred with the wedding cake and the floral decorations were peonies, iris and pansies.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Bradford left by car for their honeymoon trip through Ontario and the Eastern States, the bride travelling in a navy blue suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. On their return they will reside in Lachute.

Relatives and friends from a distance included the Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Dawson, Mr. Wm. Dawson, of Lacolle, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Bradford, of St. Mary's, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Harris Dawson, of Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Watson, of Arnprior, Mr. N. S. Dowd and Miss Patricia Dowd, of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Watson, of Manitwaki, Mr. Clarence Dawson, of Carrying Place, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. A. Dawson, Mr. W. Holliday, Miss Pearl Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Banks and Mr. and Mrs. Garth Dawson, all of Montreal; and Mrs. R. Bradford, of St. Telesphore, Que.

Sports -- Juvenile Activities -- School

Last fall a couple of weeks before the close of the season a friend and I camped out on the shores of a lake noted for its excellent small mouth bass fishing. We didn't know when we set out from home that it was going to rain almost continuously, that the temperature was going to drop below what is usual for the end of September, or we would probably have called the whole deal off. As it was our camp was snug, we got our firewood cut and under cover of a tarp before the rain started and the fishing with streamer flies just beneath the surface, turned out to be tops. This I duly reported to another friend, which encouraged him and a couple of others to visit the same lake the following weekend.

No Bass — Trout Instead

They fished the same spots and several others with the same lures and didn't touch a single bass, but they did take a number of good sized speckled trout, which of course they had to put back as the season for trout had closed the week before. This was the first time we had heard of trout being taken from this particular lake and the chap who had run into this local phenomenon decided to re-visit the lake this spring, which he did as soon as the trout season opened and the roads became passable.

No Trout — Bass Instead

Four of them went up for the day around the 15th of May and so what happened — nary a trout, but they caught and released between them over fifty bass, the smallest two pounds and on up to four. Of course the bass were spawning and hitting on almost any lure thrown over them. The other night I was telling of these happenings to a group of sportsmen, amongst them a very ardent fly fisherman.

Is It Illegal?

He went on to relate that for more years than he cared to remember he had fly fished for bass out of season, using barbless hooks so that the fish would come to no harm and that he rated this illegal fishing the best sport of the entire fishing season. This raises a somewhat ticklish point and one that I mean to check with both the Quebec and Ontario Fish and Game Departments. In the eyes of the law, is it illegal to fish for any given species of game fish out of season, if all of the fish so taken are returned to the water unharmed?

Barbless Hooks Real Challenge

But talking of barbless hooks — if you're a fly fisherman and haven't tried them, you've passed up the ultimate challenge to your skill as an angler and especially your ability to play a fish on a tight line from the instant of the strike to the moment when you get your landing net under it and dip it out of the water. If this intrigues you at all, don't go throwing or giving away your present collection of trout, bass and pan fish flies. Do your experimenting by filing the barbs off a few flies, which will give you truly barbless hooks. These will be more sporting that the store boughten kind which have a little "squiggle" between the point and the beginning of the bend of the hook and although barbless, do because of this 'squiggle' hold a fish almost as well as conventional hooks.

Be A Good Woodsman

Just because the trees are now in full foliage doesn't mean that any of us who spend any time in the bush can overlook the danger of fire in the woods. Let's build that campfire on rock, sand, gravel or mineral soil and clear away any debris and branches. Keep the fire small and when breaking camp put it dead out, with water. Before moving on pour more water around the edges and take a final feel of the ashes to be certain no live embers remain. Smoke only on the water or while resting on the trail and be careful to crush butts and pipe heels on rocks or throw them in the water.

Migratory Birds Meeting

On Thursday of last week Bill Richardson, V.P. of the Lake of Two Mountains Rod & Gun Association and I attended the Migratory Birds Meeting held under the auspices of the Quebec Federation of Fish & Game Associations. Winston Meyer, top man from the Canadian Wildlife Service in Ottawa and Charlie Fremont, General Superintendent of the Quebec Fish & Game Department were on hand to report informally on prospects for duck and goose shooting this coming season — prospects look good. Main purpose of the meeting which is held annually, is to vote on any resolutions put forward by member clubs and associations affecting length of season, zoning, bag limits and other regulations governing migratory birds. Bill and I were there specifically to recommend that the Lake of Two Mountains be included in the Southern Zone along with Lake St. Louis and Lake St. Francis.

Duck Shooters Should Get Break

This would on the basis of a 65 day season give hunters using the Lake of Two Mountains a season extending from October 1st to December 4th. Hitherto included in the Central Zone with the season running from September 17th to November 20th. Happy I am to be able to report that the resolution was passed and got an off the record nod from the Ottawa and Quebec representatives. Now only remains for Federation to forward the resolution to the authorities for emplementing. This change should in the opinion of the majority of shooters, make for better shooting on Bluebills and Whistlers. Blacks and Teal provide little sport except perhaps for the first week after opening day.

Japanese Contenders For Olympics Marathon

Japanese sportsmen have their eyes on the next Olympics at Melbourne in 1956 and the recent brilliant victory of Hideo Hamamura, when he captured the Boston Marathon in the record-breaking time of two hours, 18 minutes and 22 seconds, has given a fillip to the country's long-distance runners. Hamamura's triumph marks the re-entry of Japanese speedsters as serious contenders for Olympic honors next year.

Among this year's contestants at Boston were three runners from the Land of the Rising Sun — Hamamura, Yoshitaka Uchikawa and Sadaaki Tanabe — pitted against such track and field stars as Sweden's Gustaf Jannsen, Finland's Eino Pulkkinen and Paavo Kotila, as well as the United States' Nicholas Costes. Out of the 126 competitors Japan secured three places in the first eight, with Hamamura leading the parade.

The Japanese runner's win last April 19 was the third victory in four tries by Japanese entrants in the annual Patriot's Day event at Boston. In Japan's debut in the Boston race in 1951, Shigeki Tanaka came first, and in 1953 Keizo Yamada romped home after setting a new record which held until Hamamura bettered it. Yamada was the "mighty atom" of the Bay State's yearly grind, weighing only 97 lbs. and standing only five feet two inches.

4-H Club Holds Barn Meeting

There was a large attendance at a meeting of the Lachute 4-H Calf Club, held at the barn of J. P. Bradley & Son last Friday evening.

Donald Parker was chairman and Donald McOuat, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the last meeting.

A committee was named, with Shirley MacGeorge as chairman, to decorate the Calf Club barn for Junior Day at the Lachute Fair, which will be held Saturday, June 18. A judging competition will be held in the morning and the boys' and girls' calves will be shown in the afternoon.

After the business was completed, Donald Bradley gave a demonstration on how to clip a calf for show, and the members practised judging a class of cows. Ross Oswald, the Club Leader, introduced Jean Pintal, the new agronome, to the boys and girls, and thanked Mr. Bradley for his valuable assistance.

The meeting was then adjourned, after a very pleasant evening.

The Club now has the largest membership it has ever had, with 40 members enrolled.

Fate and Fortune in Big League Baseball

SPORTS CAMERA
By Jim Bastable,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Eddie Stanky got the job as manager of St. Louis Cardinals a few years ago, baseball men predicted a great future for him.

They said he had brains, the drive and the qualities of leadership needed to make a successful manager. He had a religious devotion to the game. Many predicted he'd be another Leo Durocher, the man who taught him much about the game.

Eddie made them look good when he started. The Cards waltzed home in third place in the National League in 1952, Eddie's first season. They finished in a tie for third next year but occasional murmurs of discontent were heard. There were stories that Eddie was nagging the players. That he was too tough.

Tough Season

The Cardinals finished sixth last year. It was a tough season for Stanky. He ran into grief with everybody; his players, the opposition players and umpires.

He tried hard to be conciliatory. Ot least on the surface he was. What happened between him and his players nobody knows but the fellows concerned.

Perhaps he already had lost them. Or perhaps this is not just a first-class team for the young 1955 season. They lost plenty of games and now are batting less than .500.

At any rate, the Cardinal owner, August Busch, decided last week for a change. He moved Stanky out and brought in Harry (The Hat) Walker from Rochester Red Wings, a Cardinal farm team in the International league.

Where does this leave Stanky? Nowhere for the moment. He intends taking a vacation for a couple of weeks. He has not been dropped from the Cardinal organization altogether. Busch's announcement said he will still be connected with the Card system. That's probably because his contract runs through 1956.

All is not lost for Stanky, though. He may return some day as manager of a big-league club. Casey Stengel did it. He was no ball of fire in his first couple of attempts at the managing job. That was with Brooklyn and Boston in the 1930's. But when he got to the Yankees in 1949, he hit the jackpot.

When Eddie thinks about his future, he'll probably think about that.

Winners in Drawing At Welden Motors

A total of 120 customers had tickets in the May 21 drawing at Welden Motors Ltd. Following were the 10 winners:

1 Ronald Seary; 2 Jean Elliot, Brownsburg; 3 Wm. Davis; 4 Emilien Dupert; 5 Clarence MacRae; 6 Dow Breweries (René Laurin); 7 Cyprien Durocher; 8 Naylor Tomkins; 9 Howard Rodgers; 10 Mr. De Kova.

Another drawing will be held June 21.

Lady Golfers In the Swing

A record number of lady golfers turned out last week for the Straight Handicap ("A" and "B" Class) Tournament held on June 1. Mrs. Joyce Stephens and Mrs. Vi Archer tied for first in Class "A" and Miss Laura Gartner won the Class "B".

Golf lessons (patient practice, or spring joie de vivre, or a combination of all three) may be responsible for handicaps being lowered. Anyway, whatever the reasons — congratulations to Mrs. Mildred Wray, Mrs. Jean MacKimmie, Mrs. Pearl Cairns and Miss Laura Gartner!

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Section of the Lachute Golf and Country Club was held on June 1, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Jas. MacKimmie.

Forty members were reported present at the opening tea, and the golfers played earlier in the afternoon in the White Elephant Tournament, where each player brings a prize. Prizes were awarded during the tea hour.

"Music Diary" Discusses Great Composer

On Saturday afternoon, June 11, the CBC "Music Diary" will deal with a great composer who was born 90 years ago this week, Carl Nielsen; and from Copenhagen, Frede Schandorf Pedersen, music critic and biographer of Nielsen, will speak about the work of his compatriot. Pedersen will consider both Nielsen's importance to Danish music and his growing international reputation.

Pedersen is one of a number of critics serving as "Music Diary" correspondents. In the year it has been presented weekly (originally on a western network, now throughout the country) reports have been brought in from Berlin, Munich, Vienna, Paris, London, Milan, Rome, Geneva, New York and San Francisco.

"Music Diary" has also encouraged Canadians to write about music and contributions from home sources have fared well when judged by the listener against the work of well-known European or American critics. However, the producer says, it must be recorded with regret that in general, few Canadians seem to be interested in writing music criticism.

Only one contribution to "Music Diary" in its first year was unsolicited; all the rest were commissioned or suggested by correspondents who had already contribute From outside Canada, "Mus Diary" looks to well-known mus critics for material, but in th country the show depends mainl upon musicians who can wri about what they know.

The editor of "Music Diary" is Peter Garvie, a radio producer in the CBC's Vancouver studios. Robert Turner is the producer of the show, which is intended to supplement the musical experience of the listener, in the hope of enriching and deepening it. The show draws a big mail response, including letters like this one from an American critic: "I was more than pleased at the very relaxed and, shall I say, sane quality of your programming. Here in New York we all feel somewhat that if we don't shout, we won't get heard, and I consider you Canadians lucky that you can afford to talk quietly and reasonably on the air."

At December, 1954, Canada's population was 15,410,000.

CANADIAN SEA CADETS IN U.K. SEE DERBY

A Wanderer Gives Travelogue

Adventurer-writer Peter Pinney, a wandering Australian of 32, points out how the traditional gypsies have been dispersed by two world wars and replaced by a great variety of footloose young people leading a somewhat similar life, in a talk to be heard this Saturday at 1.45 p.m. on CBC Trans-Canada. Pinney himself has travelled through half the countries of the world, working in such places as a sausage factory in Iran and as an orchid salesman in India; and he recounts his meeting with a Canadian who had been in the army in Holland, in the foreign Legion, had lived with gypsies in Spain and sold hot dogs in Venice. Next week at the same time Penney gives a talk called "Ghost City of the Sudan" in which he describes the Sudan and its sad and colorful background. Pinney recently passed through Toronto on his way to the Northwest Territories.

Prospects in Olympics

The winter games will be played in Italy in February and the summer games in Australia in November. The radio show will be heard on CBC Dominion; it will include a review of the last few Olympiads and of Canada's record at them. On CBC-TV, viewers will see films of Canadian participants in past Olympic meets and some of Canada's likely contenders for next year; Lloyd Percival of CBC Sports College will be interviewed on Canada's chances.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Twenty million anglers can't be wrong about the fun of fishing. But they can make mistakes about the best time to fish.

Here are some portents for a lucky day's catch that you can look for when planning to drive off to your favorite piscatorial retreat.

Fish bite best when they can see best. This means they feed more when the waters are clear, not muddy. The moon seems to affect the fish's appetite too. In fact, there's a saying, "Fish bite best when the moon is bright, and this is true both day and night," that many fishermen swear by.

A good off-shore breeze is another lucky omen. The ripple on the water hides you from the fish. Rough water, however, will hide the bait from the fish.

Many anglers consult a barometer before setting forth on their sport. They stay in bed if the barometer is low, but jump out early and fast when it is high or rising.

Incidentally, the warmer the water, the deeper should be your plugs, spoons or spinners as the fish seek out the cooler levels.

Actually, the enjoyment for most people is not in catching fish — but just in "goin' fishin'."

She: "How old do you think I am?"

He: "Twenty-one."

She: "How did you guess?"

He: "I counted the rings under your eyes."

ARTISTIC COUPLE HAPPY IN CANADA

Toronto (CP) — Artist Boris Rankin says most Canadians would rather go to a movie than an art exhibit.

Rankin, who opened a small art studio with his wife recently, said "very few Canadians spend any money for paintings or any other articles of art."

The couple came to Canada from Paris five years ago. He was a sculptor but now makes his living restoring old furniture and picture frames. His red-headed wife, a gifted painter whose canvases hang in some European galleries, made pottery when they first came to Canada — to earn food money.

"Life here is very tough for an artist," she said, "but it has its rewards."

She now is busy with her brush again and has sold several paintings. Mr. Rankin has all the work he can handle too, and they are a happy couple.

"Perhaps we can contribute a little bit to the cultural life of our new homeland," they said.

Both are due to receive Canadian citizenship papers soon. For white-haired Mr. Rankin it will mean he has a country after 35 years. A Russian by birth, he has been without nationality or citizenship since he arrived in France 35 years ago.

Picnic Planning

Now that the weather is nice it seems a pity to stay indoors for even a minute. So here is your excuse for getting outside. Plan a picnic. There are just two main things to be decided — the place and the food. You pick the place, and as for the food, here are tips from the home economists of the Consumer Section.

They suggest that in gathering together the makings for a picnic we try to make it as interesting and nourishing as a meal served at home. Chilled fresh fruit, crisp green vegetables, as well as hot foods make good eating along with the traditional fare of sandwiches, potato salad, hard cooked eggs, and pickles. Cheese also is a welcome addition to the picnic basket. For a beverage nothing could be better than cold milk, either plain or chocolate. Or of you are going quite a distance, how about taking along some instant milk powder or frozen grape or other fruit juice concentrate. These can be mixed with fresh cold water at the picnic site.

One of the secrets of a varied picnic meal lies in the packing. Vegetables such as celery, carrot and green pepper sticks which contrast well in texture and flavor with sandwiches and eggs, will keep fresh in plastic bags. Kept on ice, they retain their crispness still better. Devilled eggs, sliced meat, chicken salad — in fact any cooked protein food made into sandwiches or packed separately should be kept cold, not merely cool. Even butter will stay firm if kept cold, and everyone can have fun making their own sandwiches. So keep this in mind when you are packing the food for your picnic.

If you have an insulated container for the food that should be kept cold you are all set, but if not, you can easily improvise one. A large cooking pot such as a preserving kettle with a lid makes an effective picnic "ice chest". Cover the bottom with a thick layer of crushed ice, then place the food in plastic bags or glass jars in the kettle and pack with more crushed ice. Wrap thick layers of paper or towels or a blanket around the kettle to act as an insulator. At the picnic grounds, the "ice chest" still well wrapped to keep out the heat, should be put under a tree or in some other shady spot.

Another suggestion is to fill small-sized plastic bags with crushed ice or whole ice cubes, close them securely and pack them around the glass jars or plastic bags filled with food. As the ice melts water will form in the bags but it will not spill out if they are tightly closed. Be sure to test the bags for leaks before filling them with ice. Just run water into the bags and if there are any holes the water will spout out through them.

Even though we all like to feel it can't happen to us, the danger of food poisoning is ever present and especially so during the hot summer months. At this time of year extra precautions should be taken both in preparing and keeping foods. All fresh vegetables and fruits should be thoroughly washed before eating and all cooked foods should be refrigerated, say the home economists of the Consumer Section.

It is a good idea to check your refrigerator daily for leftovers and to use them as soon as possible. Harmful germs or bacteria grow and mltiply at room temperature and they thrive especially on foods made with milk, broth and gravies. For this reason, then, it is very important to keep foods refrigerated, especially such cooked foods as custards, chicken salad, potato salad, poultry dressings, creamed chicken and roasted meats. If you take care in preparing these foods and the others for your picnics, and keep them cold, you need have no worries about upleasant after-effects from your outings this summer.

Strictly for the Brides

Lohengrin moves to first place on the Hit Parade, honeymoon hotels are booked solid, and rice and confetti sales soar. It's June, month of weddings. Weddings are full of tradition . . . from the bride's wearing "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue," to giving guests small pieces of wedding cake as a symbol of insured plenty.

Another tradition is inviting the guests to a wedding reception. It needn't be an elaborate meal for simple menus can be festive. For example, easily prepared refreshments might consist of sandwiches, Danish pastry, wedding cake and coffee. The Danish Pastry can be made two or three days in advance and kept in an air-tight container. It's a festive touch that's sure to bring plenty of "oh's" and "ah's" from the good cooks at your party.

Danish Pastry

1 Cup lukewarm water, 4 teaspoons sugar, 4 envelopes active dry yeast, 1 cup milk scalded and cooled to lukewarm, 5 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ cup sugar, 2 whole eggs, 1 egg yolk, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, 7 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ cups butter or margarine, 1 egg white, 1 tablespoon cold water.

In 1 cup lukewarm water thoroughly dissolve 4 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top of water, well and add 1 cup of milk which well and add 1 cup of milk which has been scalded and cooled to lukewarm. Cream together thoroughly 6 tablespoons butter or margarine and ¼ cup sugar. Beat 2 eggs, and 1 egg yolk, until light. Add salt, vanilla and lemon extract. Add to creamed mixture and beat well. Add 3 cups sifted flour to well stirred yeast and beat until smooth. Then add egg mixture; beat well. Gradually add remaining 4 cups sifted flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn onto a floured table and knead lightly. Place in a greased bowl, cover lightly with clean cloth and let rise in a warm place free from draft, until it is four times original bulk, about ½ hour. Punch down and knead for one minute. Roll out on floured board into oblong ¼ inch thick. Divide half the butter or margarine into small pieces, and scatter over center third of dough. Fold one side over to cover butter or margarine; divide remaining butter or margarine into pieces and scatter on top, then fold over remaining third of dough to completely cover this layer of butter or margarine. Press down edges well. Turn dough ¼ way around and roll out to oblong ¼ inch thick. Fold ¼ of the dough at each end into centre, then fold side edges to centre in same manner. Chill in the refrigerator about 1 hour. Roll out to ¼ inch thick, fold in fourths and chill ½ hour. Roll out to oblong ¼ inch thick once again. Dough is now ready to shape. Shape as desired.

To make pinwheels, cut strips about ½ inch wide and 4 inches long. Using palms of hands, roll strips to about 8 inches in length. On a flat surface, place one end of a strip and wrap remainder of strip around it, curlicue or serpentine fashion, to form a circle. Pinch end to outer edge of dough securely. Place on greased baking sheet.

To make crescents, roll out dough in large circle. Cut into wedge-shaped pieces. Beginning with the broad end of each piece roll up tightly. Place on well-greased baking sheet and shape into crescents. After shaping dough, cover and allow to rise in a warm place free from draft for about ½ hour or until double in bulk. Brush with egg white mixed with cold water. Bake at 500 degrees F. until very light brown, about 5 minutes. Reduce heat to 400 degrees F. and bake until done, about 15-25 minutes, depending upon size. Makes 2 to 4 dozen.

A NEW FABRIC AND A NEW COLOR — "ribbonese" nylon tricot in pink lilac — were among the interesting textures and shades introduced recently at a special showing of Canadian textiles and fashions in Montreal. Resembling a knitted ribbon, the fabric is interpreted here in a late-day dress. The long torso is moulded of soft folds in varying depths of pink lilac.

"Cherry Blossom Pink"

June is a time for baking pretty treats. These Pink Cherry Cookies are one way to add a gay touch to an afternoon tea party, family meals and evening snacks. They're decorative and delicious and ever-so-easily prepared for the dough is simply dropped by teaspoonsful onto a greased baking sheet. It's a recipe you won't want to miss and one that's sure to be a long-time favorite.

Pink Cherry Cookies

Grease two 17 x 11 inch baking sheets. Pre-heat oven to 375°F. Cream butter or margarine until light and fluffy. Gradually add sugar and continue creaming until fluffy and well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, blending well after the addition of each. Blend in walnuts, dates and cherries. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into above mixture and blend thoroughly. Eskimo Seamstress Enters C.N.S. Home Dressmaking Contest

Anna Kaviygoyaituk, Eskimo mother from Coppermine, N.W.T., is undaunted by the regulation in the Singer Canadian National Exhibition Home Dressmaking Contest that her garment must be made on a sewing-machine, because for years she has made clothes on a Singer. Anna is counting on the one plane out of Coppermine this month to get her dress into the preliminaries of the contest which will be held in local Singer Sewing Centers at the end of June. The grand prizes, a brand-new modern Singer sewing sewing-machine and a free trip to the C.N.E., looks pretty exciting to Anna.

Women's Legal Status In Different Provinces

Calgary (CP) — Violet King, Canada's only negro woman lawyer, told a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club here that in many respects women still are not considered equal to men in the eyes of the law.

As examples, Miss King cited cases such as women serving on juries; the right of wives to retain their housekeeping earnings; and the ownership of a joint bank account.

Miss King pointed out that seven of the 10 provinces permitted women to serve on juries. But in Alberta, where they were entitled to this prerogative, she said, there was always the excuse that court houses were not equipped to have male and female jurors serving together.

In regard to housekeeping money, a woman who has built up a fund is not entitled to any part of it and the money can be claimed by her spouse.

The joint bank account as well is the sole property of the husband unless the wife is able to establish beyond an oral agreement that part of it belongs to her, Miss King explained.

There are legal problems all over Canada, especially in Quebec, she stressed.

She warned against apathy and the effect of prejudice, particularly prejudice of women against women.

Traffic Safety Rules

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Summer is a-comin' in!" with vacation folk and tourists crowding our highways. Boys and girls delight in holiday plans, but parents realize that they must impress on their children the importance of following safety rules in traffic. With more hours of sunshine, freedom from school, and thousands more trucks and cars on the road, the number of persons injured and killed in traffic accidents increases sharply.

In an average summer in Ontario, five hundred and sixty school age children were killed or injured during July and August. Thirty-one of these youngsters were playing on the street, thirty-five were crossing the street not at the corner and fifty-five ran out from behind a parked car. Country parents may be surprised to learn that forty children were injured or killed crossing a rural highway. Two hundred and four boys and girls, mostly aged five to nine, were on foot. Bicyclists were in accidents too — one hundred and thirty-eight, mostly aged ten to fourteen. The rest were hurt or killed riding in a motor vehicle.

What are the chances that your child will be injured in a traffic accident? He may not be as safe as you think!

Did you know that in 1953 there were close to three thousand traffic deaths in Canada? Every week fifty-six people die on our roads or streets. In the same year in Ontario, alone, a thousand and fifty persons died from accidents on the highways and twenty-five thousand were injured. What if your boy or girl should be hurt this year?

Every responsible citizen must be concerned over the steady growth of road fatalities in Canada since the war. In 1946, there were 1,663 traffic deaths, and in 1954 there were 2,906 deaths! The managing director of the Canadian Good Roads Association, Mr. C. W. Gilchrist, recently jolted Canadians out of any feeling of complacency about accidents on the highway. He pointed out that the post war traffic death toll since World War II is greater than all the Canadians killed in the land battles in which our troops fought with the U.N. Forces in Korea. Statistics may seem very cold and impersonal, but what if your son or daughter had been among those suffering or dead from a traffic accident?

Some parents wrongly believe that once a child graduates from a play pen, if he is warned, "Stay off the road!" it is safe to let him play on the street. But a pre-school child is too immature to be trusted to keep out of danger. In a recent graph showing fatal injuries to children, age one to four, motor vehicles accounted for over one third (35.8%) of the deaths. The next three grave dangers were fire (28%) fatalities drowning (11%) and poisoning (5%) deaths.

A very little child must have an enclosed place in which to play. Being tethered with a rope is a second best. But he cannot safely be given complete freedom. If his ball rolls out on the road, he is very apt to run after it without looking. An absent-minded neighbor may back swiftly out of his driveway, and knock a small child down who is crossing the driveway on his tricycle. A child may be racing his scooter, trip and fall in the path of an oncoming car. There are a dozen common situations in which little children playing on a street are injured!

Example is more effective than scolding or punishment, insurance experts, who have studied the details of hundreds of accidents point out. By your actions are you demonstrating to your child the ways of safety?

Do you go to the corner to cross the road? When you are walking along a street do you stop at the curb at the corner, and look both ways to see if it is safe? Do you obey the traffic policeman and cross on the green light at an intersection? If in doubt or if a car is turning a corner, do you wait? Do you refuse to get on or off a moving vehicle? Do you look left and right when leaving a bus or streetcar? In wet, slippery weather do you wear suitable footwear and cross the street with extra care? If there is no sidewalk do you walk facing oncoming traffic? If possible, after dark, do you wear light colored clothing or carry a white object?

There is scarcely a newspaper which does not have an account of a traffic mishap. Do you read this aloud, or better still, have your child read it to you? Discuss how this particular accident might have been avoided.

Far too many lives are being lost and far too many people injured in traffic accidents. Teachers do a splendid job in safety education. But during the long summer months, this training is a holiday extra which parents must look after. Your child is too precious to be killed or injured on the highway. Do your part in keeping him safe!

Notes on WCTU Prov'l Conference

Meeting for annual conference in the Dawson Hall of St. James United Church recently, the Provincial Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Quebec enjoyed as guest speaker Mrs. I. Perrigoe, of Toronto, Dominion president of the organization, who brought many helpful messages regarding the work and stressed the need to return to the simpler ways of life. "We are placing too much emphasis on material things," she said, "when our need is for things of the spirit, such as prayer and clean living." . . Mrs. Perrigoe thought that if parents could only be made to realize how many of their children would eventually become alcoholics because of the constant temptations put before them in all walks of life, there would be more interest taken in temperance work and more co-operation given to it.

Mrs. Perrigoe dedicated the new officers, and Mrs. Rees Athelstan, led the memorial service for members lost by death since the last conference.

The program was arranged by the provincial Evangelistic superintendent, Mrs. W. Usher, of Cushing, who also filled in for the recording secretary, Mrs. Harris, who was unable to be present, as well as opening several of the sessions with hymn and prayer. Mrs. Gray, of Granby, had one of the opening services, also Mrs. W. Y. King, of Cushing, and Mrs. F. R. Crawford, a former Arundel girl. Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh, who is Lord's Day Observance superintendent for Quebec, reported several very good temperance sermons preached by pastors in this county.

The superintendent of Temperance Study Course reported 408 pupils writing in that department, nine of whom were from this district.

The different county presidents gave encouraging reports and the superintendent of Flower Missions, Mrs. Middlemiss, of Thurso, gave a splendid report of cheer sent to invalids and needy persons.

The Isabella Scott memorial essay contest held yearly in memory of the late Mrs. John Scott, was won by John Howes and Mary Ruth Mount.

Mrs. Grass reported splendid work done in help for Korean needy persons.

The Rev. B. B. Brown welcomed the delegates and local members to St. James United Church in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Norman Rawson, and as well as the Rev. E. S. Kerr, pastor of Snowdon Baptist Church, admonished the organization not to be discouraged, but to "carry on, as God is with us in this battle for Him."

The Rev. Kerr said that the Church had always stood for integrity and sincerity, and claimed that things that stand for truth and righteousness are not popular with many today. He deplored the lack of interest in many of the homes in temperance work, and felt that many homes were in themselves responsible for juvenile delinquency.

Youth Night of the conference sponsored a musical contest, which was much enjoyed — the young winners receiving medals for their performing ability. This was followed by an instructive film, "Any Boy". A matrons' contest in Elocution was staged in the final evening of the conference.

This conference was opened by a consecration service by Mrs. W. Y. King, of Cushing; an expression of loyalty to the Queen, given by Mrs. J. C. Barnes, of N.D.G.; and a welcome by Mrs. A. E. Keating, to which Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh, of Lakefield, replied in appreciation.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Unions of Canada and United States have procured two specially-ordered wrought-iron seats, to be placed on either side of the drinking fountain in the Peace Garden which commemorates the years of peace between the two countries. One of the seats will bear the inscription, "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Canada" and the other, "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of United States," thus bringing the organization and its work before the public who frequent the Memorial Garden.

LAST DAYS OF BYTOWN

Predecessor of Ottawa, the Nation's Capital

Glimpses Across the Span of A Century

— By ANNE FORBES DEWAR —

PART I

The Town of Bytown became the City of Ottawa on January 1st, 1855. After that date many other changes came about. Shall we have a look at Bytown through the eyes of an anonymous traveller in 1854? He writes: "There has been as yet no time to pave the streets, and in bad weather they are in a desperate condition. Only near the houses there are run what are called 'plank roads'. As for gardens, fruit trees or flowers, no one has time so much as to think of them, and the rough boulders and masses of rock are lying about still among the group of houses. Firs and other forest trees are springing up again from the stumps. Here and there amongst elegant colleges and churches are to be seen fragments of the primeval forest — lofty pines and firs and thick underwood that may occasionally give shelter to a bear. By and by they will be changed into gardens, but as yet the unbroken mass of the primeval forest fences the town on all sides, and if you get a view of it from a high point you see for miles and miles nothing but a sea of wood in which the town lies like the nest of a heathcock."

About the same time, a lady traveller, whose name does not appear in the record, expressed surprise at the number and the quality of the substantial stone buildings in the town, and the citizens felt proud that there were already ten miles of plank sidewalks here and there on principal streets. Many of these stone buildings may still be seen as evidence of the excellent work of the Old Country masons. Among the "elegant churches and colleges" were the Scottish, English and French churches, which, we know as St. Andrews Presbyterian, Christ Church Cathedral and the Basilica, as well as the recently built Dominion Methodist. The Dalhousie Grammar School, later the Collegiate, was flourishing under Wm. Aird Ross. In a stone building on the corner of Queen and Duke Streets had been established the County Model School, but at this time it ranks as an ordinary school, with William Stewart as Principal. The first bi-lingual college in Canada, the College of Bytown, was housed in what is now LaSalle Academy.

The College of Bytown is now Ottawa University with fine buildings and grounds in another location. Besides these there were numerous private schools. The Grey Sisters of the Cross were teaching in their convent on the corner of Sussex and Bruyère Streets, a building which is now used as the Mother House, the Sisters having moved to the Rideau Street Convent. A popular school for young ladies was kept by four sisters, the Misses Fraser.

Notwithstanding the ten miles of plank walks, getting about in Bytown was not always easy. No street cars — not even horse drawn ones — were in operation. The streets became so dusty in dry weather, and so muddy in rain, that it was said that in the worst seasons no one came to Bytown who could possibly avoid it. When the first Interprovincial Bridge was built across the Chaudière, Col. By had a toll gate established in 1829 to help defray the expense of it. In '54 the toll gate system was still in use.

Travelling away from town was done either on foot, on horseback, in private vehicles, in stage coaches or by boat. There were about thirty small steamers using the Rideau Canal, and others on the Ottawa, of which the Phoenix was the best passenger boat, between Bytown and Grenville.

A covered stage coach provided a daily service to Perth. To Montreal the Press advertised "a two-way trip all in daylight" in a four-horse stage three times a week, or at least "when the roads permitted."

The tri-weekly coach to Prescott had so much difficulty on the rough journey that the making of a plank highway had been seriously considered, but judged too expensive.

A still bolder plan was adopted as a result of a morning walk and a conversation between Councillor Edward McGillivray and Mr. Richard W. Scott, a young lawyer who had come from Prescott to act as solicitor for the Quebec Bank, and who was then in the legislature following a term as mayor of Bytown. If the stage route could not be made passable, why not build a railroad between these towns! It was an ambitious idea for those days but it might be feasible and at any rate worth trying out. Before long the incorporation of the Bytown and Prescott Railway Company had been achieved.

Among the enthusiastic supporters of the scheme were Mr. Thomas Mackay, his son in law, Mr. McKinnon, who acted as Secretary of the Company, and particularly Mr. Bell, the owner of the Citizen, who became President of it. When the charter was obtained there were only 205 miles of railroad in all Canada. Although Bytown, Prescott and the towns between had all promised financial help, it was soon found that difficulties accumulated faster than the money to cope with them did. For example at one time the situation looked almost hopeless since the work could not progress without a locomotive, and both the funds and the credit of the Company were exhausted. Our young friend Mr. Scott was able to come to the rescue. He purchased a locomotive and loaned it to the Company, no doubt at some inconvenience to himself.

By July of the year in which we are interested, ten miles of the road had been completed, and the enterprising Sons of Temperance, 150 strong, organized an excursion from Prescott to Spencerville. The weekly newspaper reported that a delightful "soirée" was enjoyed and "the trip was effected in perfect safety."

Henry J. Friel was the capable and popular Mayor during 1854. For the three wards East, Centre and West, there were eight other Councillors, viz: Messrs. Edward McGillivray, J. B. Lewis, W. F. Powell, Dumas Bourgeois, James Leamy, Edward Smith, Charles Rowan and John Bareille. One thing our public men always remembered and indeed never wanted to forget was that both Lord Dalhousie and Colonel By had been of the opinion that the site of Bytown would be a suitable one for the Capital City. It so happened that the Parliament building in Quebec was burned on the first of February of that year, and the Council of Bytown saw an opportunity. . . Within a few days a memorial was prepared and sent to the Legislature. As recorded in the minutes of the Town Council, it ran as follows:

"That the corporation of Bytown feels deeply the injury that the Province has sustained by the burning of the Parliament building at Quebec involving the loss of valuable public records, many of which it would be almost impossible to replace;

"That the losses sustained by fire in two of the principal cities within a short period, as well as the expense of removal every four years, and the danger to the public records in the necessary conveyance from one locality to another, renders it desirable that some permanent seat of Government should be chosen where substantial fireproof buildings may be erected for the preservation of public property;

"That the seat of Government, if located for the convenience of the inhabitants of the Province, should be as near the centre as possible.

"That placing the seat of Government at either extremity of the Province appears fraught with danger, difficulty and expense, and is manifestly unfair to all but the immediate residents of the favored locality;

"That Bytown, which is the central town in Canada, and it may be said half in one portion and half in another portion of the territorial divisions of Canada, its vicinity abounding in building material of every description, its scenery delightful, its commerce important, its means of defence unequalled, the facilities for ingress and egress are nearly as complete as railways, rivers and canals can make them; its population nearly equally French Canadians and Europeans, this Corporation deems it a duty to thus openly lay its claims before the Government of Canada."

The memorial was duly presented, but only six votes were cast in its favor, those of our friend Mr. Scott and the representatives of five neighboring constituencies.

In spite of their lofty ambitions our Councillors could not have been called extravagant. When in the same month a petition was presented to them asking for a piece of sidewalk, Mr. McGillivray begged to state that not only was it not the time to build sidewalks, but that the town had no means at its disposal to make or undertake any improvements under the present financial state. "Your Committee," he said, "cannot use too much care in entering into new liabilities without the means on hand to pay for them."

Later in the year, however, permission was given to construct a sidewalk on Kent Street, providing that the contractor would wait eighteen months for his pay. On the same condition a drain on Clarence Street was authorized. The matter of public safety was brought up by the Fire Committee in its report, "That is was desirable that some means be taken to put the fire department in good working order, the more so as the splendid fire engines and houses render such operation easy to effect."

A by-law after the regulations in Montreal was adopted. Two chimney sweeps were to be engaged. One fire engine was to be housed in each ward, and a stove to be placed in each of the upper rooms of the fire houses to provide a place of meeting for the firemen. Incidentally, before the year was out permission was granted to have these rooms used as schools.

The fire fighters numbered 250 volunteer firemen in four companies, one for each ward and one for the hook and ladder wagon. The Council decided to give them all uniforms, not only for convenience and appearance, but also to "cement good feeling between the Municipal authorities and the Fire Department." The cost for each uniform was to be limited to four dollars. At a later meeting, permission was given to add a short strap to each belt for the hose key at a cost of not more than three half-pence each. When the need arose flannel for shirts and a supply of torches were also provided.

Astonishing Game

There is an interesting game that can be played with motor cars. This game is not exactly sweeping the country, but anyone can play it provided he can get behind the wheel of a car and out into traffic — and where else is there to go? This game is called "Astonishing the Other Fellow." It is the most simple game in the world for it has only one rule, the Golden Rule. The reaction of the other motorist when one is considerate of him makes the game very interesting.

Pedestrians are not so amusing, as under good treatment they usually merely look puzzled, wondering what is the catch, or they become self-assertive and stroll grandly and slowly the rest of the way to the curb with their hate showing, having finally stopped a motor car; but motorists surprisingly often get the point right away that genuine kindness is meant and they gesture in surprised and awkward friendliness. On rare occasions one will come on some other motorist who is playing "Astonish the Other Fellow." The thoroughly pleased feeling one gets at this expression of kindness makes one wish he played this game more often. — The Printed Word

QUINTS COME INTO FORTUNE BY COMING OF AGE

—Central Press Canadian

On the occasion of their 21st birthday, May 28, four of the world's most famous sisters, the surviving Dionne quintuplets — Annette, left, Marie who has since left convent because of ill health, Yvonne and Cecile—came into a $1,000,000 fortune. Emile, the quint whose death shocked the world 10 months ago, was, as a minor, prevented from spending the money she earned with her sisters as a child movie star and co-endorser of innumerable products. So, by law, her portion will be divided equally among the 14 members of her family including the Dionne parents and her four identical sisters. The coming of age for these girls means freedom for the first time since their birth on a farm at Callendar, Ont., from both government and parental domination.

Council Given Report on Referendum Industry-Assessment By-law Passed

90 Per Cent of Proprietors' Vote And 93 Per Cent Vote in Valuation

To Request Strip of CPR Property For Widening of Foundry Street

By-law 196, governing tax assessment on new industries, was approved by a majority vote both in respect to number and valuation — according to Jacques Poitras, Returning Officer for the referendum held early last week. The report was given to Lachute Town Council, at an adjourned meeting held in the Town Hall Monday evening. Ald. Judes Charlebois was absent from the session.

The report on the referendum showed that a total of 362 proprietors had exercised their franchise, representing a total valuation of $2,972,300. Of these, 322 were in favor (valuation of $2,781,200); 10 were against (valuation of $49,575); and 29 ballots were spoiled (valuation of $141,525). This indicates a vote of 90 per cent in favor, and a valuation vote of 93 per cent in favor. . . The report of the returning officer was accepted on a motion by Ald. Ross R. Muir, seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins. (The by-law in question is reproduced in full on page 2.)

Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald reported that C.P.R. officials had advised that a railway policeman would be on duty on the railway property from Saturday afternoon through to Sunday morning when the midway at the local exhibition would be moving out. The reply followed a letter written to the Laurentian Division superintendent by Mayor FitzGerald complaining of unnecessary noise during the night. During the Fair, the Bernard & Barry Shows have agreed to place their freight cars on the Ayers siding, while the sleeping-cars will remain on the Chatham Street siding. The town police are to be on duty in this area also.

Police Chief J. Laurent Ducharme requested Council to ban parking on the north side of Chatham Street (the present business side) from the bridge at the McGibbon mill to Hamford Street, and to purchase the necessary No Parking signs for this stretch. Ald. Ross R. Muir, chairman of the Police Committee, made the motion, which was seconded by Ald. Real Morrissette; the signs are to be erected under the supervision of the Police Committee. It was decided to order other requested traffic signs, which are to be erected as soon as delivered.

Chief Ducharme pointed out that some signs on a few of the streets within the town limits were illegal, as they permitted parking on the left side only. The chief stated that such signs should be erected only on one-way streets; and Clyde, Water and Bellingham Streets are not so marked. The same situation is to be found on Bethany Street, from Main to the C.P.R. tracks. It was decided that these signs should be changed.

Debris at the site of the old Victoria Hall was brought to the attention of the Council by Ald. D. G. MacRae, who said the demolition contract had been given on condition that the property was to be filled and levelled by June 1. It was decided that René Laurin, who purchased the building for $125, be notified to fill and level the property within three days, else it will be done by the Town at his expense.

Mayor Dr. FitzGerald was authorized to purchase an official "Golden Book" for the civic building, as well as a chain of office for the mayor to wear on special occasions.

An invitation was sent to His Excellency Bishop Emilien Frenette of the St. Jerome Diocese to visit and inspect the new Town Hall. Mayor Fitzgerald informed the Council that he would be at a medical convention during the Eucharistic Congress and recommended that pro-Mayor Charlebois, Aldermen Wilbrod Cousineau and Ross R. Muir, be appointed official representatives of the Council at the Congress functions. A motion to this effect was made by Ald. D. G. MacRae, seconded by Ald. Stanley Church.

Permission was granted the Congress to use a loudspeaker throughout the town, as well as the chairs belonging to the corporation, which are to be left at the Fair grounds for the event.

Ald. D. G. MacRae moved that the C.P.R. be asked for a strip of land five feet wide and approximately 1,000 feet long on Foundry Street from Bethany to the Paquin Garage for the purpose of widening the street — the property to be purchased for the sum of $1 and other considerations, with all cost to be absorbed by the Council. The motion was seconded by Ald. Cousineau.

A request by the Bell Telephone Company to install a guy wire on Wilson Street near the Carrière development, was granted under the supervision of the Roads Committee.

Gatineau Power Company is to be requested to check and replace weak poles on Main Street, East Ward, following complaints that, during a recent storm, Company employees had to support a pole prior to climbing it. "If it is not strong enough to support a man, it is not strong enough for safety," stated Ald. Church, whose motion was seconded by Ald. Muir.

The auditors' report from Paul E. Bonnier, covering the period from January 1 until April 16 when former Secretary-Treasurer Antonio Laurin resigned, was accepted after being duly read. The report revealed that everything was in order according to the records.

A letter was presented from the Lachute Federated Charities requesting use of a room in the Town Hall, and following considerable discussion it was decided to grant the use of the upstairs office and caucus room. It was decided that the Council Chamber was not to be loaned to organizations except under special circumstances.

The Mayor and secretary-treasurer were authorized to sign a deed and servitude with Gordon Cruise and Omer Trepanier, in order to permit the passing of the new waterworks through the gulley on their land on the St. Andrews Road.

A survey on levels of the sewer requested on the Brownsburg Road showed the site to be deep enough, although an 18" pipe was suggested rather than a 10" pipe. Town Foreman Jos. Senecal stated that he thought a 12" pipe would be sufficient, and it was decided to install this size pipe. It was decided that the 12" sewer be installed as far as the Antonio Brunet property. Tenders were called for 250 feet of 12" sewer pipe, following the motion.

Building permits were granted to Mr. Brunet, for a house on Brownsburg Road, and to Cayer Garage for an extension to their garage property, both under the supervision of the Roads Committee.

Ald. Stanley Church moved that the light on the corner pole nearest Barron's Bridge be moved in front of the Town Hall, in order to light up the new building. This higher-powered light was formerly directed on the monument in the Memorial Park. The motion was seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock.

It was moved that the light at McOuat's bridge be connected as soon as possible, and that the Baptist Church at Dalesville Celebrates 130th Anniversary

This Sunday, June 19, at 11 a.m., members, adherents and friends will gather to celebrate the 130th anniversary of the Dalesville Baptist Church. The Rev. E. S. Kerr, from Snowdon Baptist Church, Montreal, will be guest speaker and Mrs. Wm. Weaver, of Montreal, will be guest soloist. A great service is anticipated and a warm welcome is extended to all.

Like "a tale from the sea" is the story of the beginnings of this historic landmark. Hardy Highlanders from Scotland braved perilous ocean voyages, shipwreck, beasts of the forest, loneliness, and financial depression, to settle in "the rear of Chatham." Without a church they conducted informal Sabbath schools among themselves. The Rev. John King related, "There was the greatest freedom, everyone seemed to be at home and used their liberty even to the draw of a pipe while the good brother was expounding a passage of Scripture." One day two men with a vision for the advancement of the kingdom of God decided that they would, if necessary, form a church alone. No council was called, no denominational sanction was sought, but basing themselves upon "the Rock of holy Scripture," they with three others, on a subsequent Lord's day, sat down to commemorate the Lord's death in the communion supper. . . Thus Dalesville Baptist Church was formed, truly apostolic because based upon the principles and practices of the Apostles.

In the years since, hundreds of people have been baptized on profession of faith in Christ under the ministry of this church. From its doors have gone forth men of mark — ministers and teachers to enrich the denominational life of the Baptists on this continent. Doctrinally it stands today where it stood 130 years ago. Its ministry today is the same in emphasis as when the Rev. John Edwards was installed as its first pastor.

June Activities Of Argenteuil W.I. Branches

Arundel W.I. Branch had the pleasure of welcoming the County president, Mrs. M. Crosby; the provincial convener of Health and Welfare, Mrs. A. G. Leggett; the County 1st vice-president, Mrs. M. Wilson; and a visitor from Holland, Mrs. Salm. Mrs. Crosby and Mrs. Leggett gave interesting talks on W.I. work. Mrs. J. Macaulay won first prize in the apron contest, Mrs. G. Cooke second and Mrs. J. D. Williams third — the visitors acting as judges. Reports were given on both the July bazaar and the School Fair.

Frontier — An interesting address was given by Dr. R. Kirby of Hawkesbury, on Cancer of all kinds. White linen pieces were collected for the clinic. A social is to be held to raise funds. The roll-call was a donation to Fair Work prizes.

Jerusalem - Bethany had 16 members present. A special kit of useful and pretty articles made from cotton, put up by the Canadian Spool Cotton Company, was displayed by Mrs. McGibbon. This being Grandmothers' Day, a special poem was read by Mrs. A. Ogilvie; and a contest was held to guess articles now in common use, but which our grandmothers knew nothing about. A summer boat trip for members is being arranged. The sum of $9 was realized from an auction sale of plants and shrubs for the members.

Lachute — This Branch meeting was held at Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McGibbon's home at Dalesville. Samples of minerals from Oka were on display, also samples of cotton from the Canadian Spool and Cotton Company. A talk on insect borers and their destructive work on red and white pines, was given by Mrs. McGibbon. The branch enjoyed a trip to Ottawa, and through the courtesy of Mr. P. Valois, M.P., visited the House of Commons and made a tour of the Parliament Buildings.

Mille Isles — Seven members answered the roll-call by giving a favorite recipe. Reports on the County Convention were given by Mrs. R. Sicuso. Plans were made to hold the annual picnic and food sale on July 23, weather permitting; otherwise it will be held on July 30.

Pioneer Branch had reports of the County secretary and treasurer. Patterns for home-sewing articles were displayed, and Mrs. G. McGibbon gave a talk on different jobs involved in "being a housewife."

Upper Lachute - East End had 20 members and three guests to answer the roll-call, "Sing, Say or Pay"; $1 was collected as penalties for not having anything prepared for the roll-call. An apron sale was held, $15.25 being realized. A trip to the International Paper Company at Hawkesbury was planned. One new member was welcomed at this meeting.

St. Eustache Man Heads RCN Training Base

Lt.-Cdr. Jean Marc Favreau, RCN, 31, of St. Eustache and Montreal, has been appointed in command of HMCS D'Iberville, the Royal Canadian Navy's basic training establishment at Quebec City. Lt.-Cdr. Favreau takes over his new assignment June 20.

Fatally Stricken In Automobile

Late Edouard St. Jacques

Edouard St. Jacques, 74, of the Lakefield Road, suffered a fatal seizure in his car early Sunday morning.

According to Detective Maurice Lamoureux of the Provincial Police Mr. St. Jacques left the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alex Bradford, Main Street, shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning after watching television. He was accompanied in the car by his son, Pierre, 39, when the latter saw his father slump over the wheel. He immediately summoned Dr. R. Percival, who pronounced the victim dead. Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur was called to the scene, and pronounced death due to natural causes, no inquest being considered necessary.

The late Mr. St. Jacques is survived by two sons and three daughters — Maurice and Pierre, both of Lachute, Mrs. Alex Bradford (Lucille), of Lachute, Mrs. Oscar Lauzon (Dolores) and Mrs. Donat Clavette (Jeanne), both of Montreal, as well as two sisters and numerous grandchildren.

Midway Pair Found Guilty Of Disturbance

Two employees of the Bernard & Barry Shows, Ernest Villeneuve, 24, and Ray MacIntosh, 21, both of North Bay, Ont., pleaded guilty to charges of being drunk and disorderly, disturbing the peace, and taking and throwing newspapers over Main Street — the latter contravening By-law 174. The two appeared before Henri St. Onge, Justice of the Peace, Wednesday afternoon and were sentenced to a fine of $40 plus costs or 30 days in jail in St. Jerome.

The two were arrested around 6 a.m. Wednesday by Cst. Oscar Sabourin, but while the officer was slowing down to turn into the police station, MacIntosh made his escape. He was picked up three hours later by Dep. Chief Willie Lepine, on the verandah of the United Church manse, where he was "sleeping it off". A third member of the group made his get-away but the local police placed him under arrest Wednesday night.

The papers, valued at $1.70, were taken from the front of Cliff Cunningham's newsstand on Main Street and from the store of Armand Bilodeau, Lachute Mills.

The two were held in the local cells throughout Wednesday. Costs in the case were set at $15.50 plus the damage, making a total fine of $56.35. MacIntosh was celebrating his 21st birthday yesterday.

A 4,500-ton cement lighthouse was settled into position last week in the St. Lawrence River near the mouth of the Saguenay to guide ships around treacherous reefs and shoals.

Local Boy Scouts' Group Committee Annual Meeting

Messrs. Alex Vessie and Raymond Underhill were appointed chairman and secretary-treasurer respectively for a two-year term, at the annual meeting of Lachute Boy Scout Group Committee, held Wednesday evening, June 8. Leo Holt was appointed vice-chairman.

Resignations were accepted by the committee from Owen Riddell, secretary-treasurer, who was recently transferred to St. Jerome office of the Bell Telephone Company, and Bernard Jenkins, who has been chairman of the Committee for the past four years.

Mr. Jenkins, who is also a member of the Laurentian District Council, felt that in fairness to the Committee, and to those holding office, the terms for chairman and secretary-treasurer should be limited to two years, and this suggestion was duly approved by the Committee.

Several items of importance were discussed, and committees were appointed to take care of the immediate needs, as follows:

Leadership — Don Heggie (chairman), C. L. Duncan, Geo. Y. Deacon.

Transportation — Stewart Jones (chairman).

Publicity — Bernard Jenkins (chairman).

Other members on the Group Committee include: Dr. W. Hooper, Bert Millar, Rev. C. R. Lang, Gordon Dobbie, Robt. Giles, Sr., and R. Hadley.

The Scoutmaster, Fred Tait, and Cubmaster, W. Brown, were in attendance and reported on their activities.

A meeting will be called on August 24 to prepare the fall program, and further committees will be appointed at that time.

Jean O'Donnell New President Elected at Regional Meeting of Laurentides Ch. of Commerce

Mining Development in Province Is Topic By Principal Speaker, Hon. W. M. Cottingham

The Alpine Inn at Ste. Marguerite, one of the Laurentian Mountains' popular resort hotels, was the scene of the annual gathering of the Laurentides Chamber of Commerce last Sunday. The affair was largely attended by representatives of regional branches.

Gerard Lefebvre, of Lachute, the president, and Mrs. Lefebvre, welcomed the members and guests.

Mr. Lefebvre, occupying the chair at the meeting, called upon each branch present for a report on their year's activities.

Election of officers, under direction of Horace Lamarche, resulted in the following appointments:

President, Jean O'Donnell, Laval des Rapides; vice-president, Conrad Pronovost, Mont Laurier; secretary, Gérard Poirier, Pont Viau.

Mr. V. Gratton, well experienced in the City of Montreal's tourist activities, was the first speaker, giving the benefit of his long experience and offering suggestions to induce more trade and commerce.

Mr. H. S. Robinson, of the National Tourist Branch at Ottawa, gave facts and figures on the tourist business in Canada, and how it benefitted thousands of workers in all trades. He stated that tourist travel had now become an all-year trade; that comfortable accommodation and good meals were most essential and were, in themselves, the best possible advertising one could have. To illustrate his talk more fully a film was shown, entitled "Traveller's Cheques". . . In the course of his remarks Mr. Robinson stated:

"We have come to realize that visitors now take vacations in all seasons, and that the Tourist Industry is an all-year-round business. Nowhere in Canada is this so well demonstrated as in this Laurentian area, where winter simply joins the other vacation seasons.

"Quebec is trying to establish a reputation for fair and courteous treatment to all visitors, believing in the truth that "the satisfied customer is the best advertisement." The promotional efforts of the Provincial Tourist Bureau together with other district and local tourist organizations has brought many millions of tourist dollars to this colorful province."

A banquet was served, at which the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Quebec Minister of Mines, was guest speaker. In his remarks on the progress of Quebec's mining industry, Mr. Cottingham said:

"As Minister of Mines, I cannot help but be impressed with the value of the new wealth provided from the conversion of ore into various metals and a great variety of industrial products. According to preliminary reports, it is likely that the total production of the mines and quarries of the Province of Quebec for 1955 will reach about $300 million dollars, an increase of about $23 millions over last year.

Gala Send-Off as Minister of Mines Officially Opens 1955 Spring Fair

Exhibition "A Tangible Token of Great Heritage Of Which Argenteuil Is Justifiably Proud"

The Lachute Spring Fair was officially opened last evening by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines and M.L.A. for Argenteuil, in the 130th anniversary year of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society. The ceremonies took place in front of the grandstand, following a parade through the town streets.

The official party — including the Hon. Mr. Cottingham, Philippe Valois, M.P., Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald, Ayersville Mayor G. Paquette, Dr. J. J. Griffith, U.N. candidate for Westmount, Gerard Desjardins, M.L.A., County of Gatineau, René Trepanier, Provincial Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Agricultural Society officials — left the Lachute Golf and Country Club shortly after 7 o'clock following a supper held there.

The party joined in a parade of Fair exhibitors led by the Ayers Band, and with top exhibitors including the Ayers Stables and Hewitt Stables taking part along with Cres Hadley, Leonard Boyd and A. T. Cleland, all of this district, and Chas. Liberman, Ken Pritchard and Hill Top Farms, in the heavy horse field.

In his opening address at the Fair Grounds, Mr. Cottingham stated:

"The Lachute Fair is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, agricultural exhibition in this country. Two or three years after the first fair, the location was changed to Carillon, then later to St. Philippe, in the township of Chatham, and finally where we are today.

"The Lachute Fair, in my opinion, is a great deal more than an annual agricultural meeting. It is a great deal more than a collection of prize stock vieing for ribbons and attracting the interested and the curious — the Lachute Fair is an annual, tangible token of the great heritage of which we people of Argenteuil are justifiably proud. . .

"Many of the families who play a leading part in this community today are direct descendants of those whose industry and foresight started the Argenteuil Agricultural Society on its one hundred and twenty-nine years of progress and achievement. In some cases, the very name has come down to us unchanged. In the annals of the early days of the society, we find references to men whose names were Brown, McMartin, Jones, McNaughton, Cook, McEwen, Lane, Richards, Murray, Black, Ayers, Hamelin. . .

"Animals bred and developed in this area have consistently over the past quarter of a century won International recognition at North America's leading shows. It is a clearly evident fact that the high quality of livestock here is largely the result of the interest and encouragement offered by those who have kept this exhibition alive and progressive for more than a century and a quarter.

"Many events are on the program for the next three days. As a former director of the show, a farmer, livestock breeder, exhibitor, and, as your member in the Provincial Legislature, it gives me great pleasure to declare the 1955 Lachute Spring Fair officially open."

Among the main features of the parade were two coaches from the H. J. O'Connell Farms, Mont Gabriel. One, the Cardinal's coach, drew the late King George VI and Queen Elizabeth during their 1939 visit; the other, a stage coach, was driven by Mr. O'Connell himself.

Manager Syd Patterson reports that all barns and stables are filled to overflowing, with the largest cattle, poultry and swine entries ever, in many of the breeds.

The midway is in full operation, with tubs, two ferris wheels, octopus, rocket, flying skooters, the wall-of-death motorcyclists, and numerous rides for the kiddies — a feature sometimes overlooked by midway showmen.

Civic Oddments At Adjourned B'burg Session

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The Council meeting adjourned last week, was resumed on Monday night. The agenda consisted mainly of clearing up loose ends.

The secretary, Emile Hebert, brought to attention of the Council the fact that the sidewalk in front of Cousineau's barber shop was badly broken, and that two women had nearly been hurt as a result. On the subject of mishaps, the secretary intimated that a branch had fallen from a tree and broken the windshield of a car. He had referred the complaint to the Council's insurance agent.

The secretary read a letter from Quebec City charging that a vehicle guilty of several traffic violations in that city had been traced through the records to this Municipality. The license quoted does indeed belong to us — but can anyone imagine what our snowplow was doing misbehaving so badly in Quebec in May? The secretary has, of course, despatched a letter explaining the position.

Word was received recommending a prominent firm of engineers to draw up urgently needed waterworks. Mayor Lepine brought up the fact that a local young man, Mr. Legault, had recently been qualified for this type of work. The Council thought he should be given a chance to take this job. Mr. Legault was phoned, came to the meeting and left on the understanding that he would be given a week or so to convince the Council he could handle the job, before it would be given to an outside firm.

The proposed extension to the dumpsite had been well investigated the week before the meeting, and Mayor Lepine, while remarking that the price was good, was convinced that the matter is not urgent.

Regional Eucharistic Congress Opens Next Thursday — Four-Day Observance

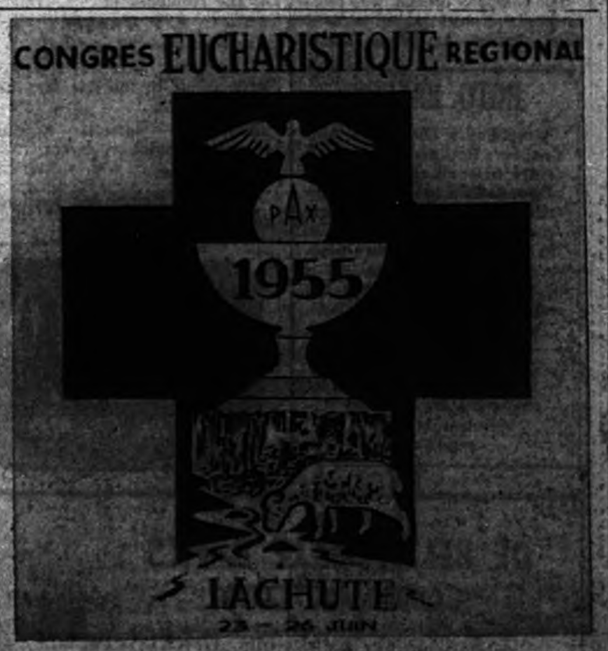

A period of devout religious exercises for the Catholic community will get underway next Thursday, June 23, and continue throughout Sunday — when the Regional Eucharistic Congress will be held in Lachute.

All the principal religious exercises will be held at the local Exhibition Grounds where a repository will be erected, and thousands of the faithful will flock to this hub of the congress, the first ever to be held in Lachute.

Parishes taking part in the devotions will include Ste. Anastasie, St. Julien, Immaculate Conception (Ayersville), St. Louis de France (Brownsburg), Calumet, Grenville, Pte.-au-Chene, St. Andrews East, St. Canut, St. Colomban, St. Michel, St. Philippe and Carillon.

Among the highlights in this four-day observance will be the celebration of four marriages Saturday morning, and the ordination of three priests Sunday forenoon. Two of these priests are the Rev. Raymond Dumais, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Dumais, of Lachute, and 'Abbe Jacques Joannette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Joannette, also of this town. These special ceremonies will be presided over by Mgr. Emilien Frenette, bishop of the St. Jerome diocese.

The Congress will be opened Thursday evening by Mgr. Frenette and will conclude with a procession and impressive rites Sunday evening.

"Holy Hour" at Shrine For English Catholics

On Saturday, June 25, at 3 o'clock, a "holy hour" will be observed at the Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes, on the Brownsburg Road.

This holy hour, at the request of His Excellency Bishop Frenette on the occasion of the Eucharistic Congress, is for the English-speaking Catholics of the St. Jerome diocese.

Gatineau Lines

Summer Storms

At this time of the year brief but violent storms sometimes tear down trees and branches and smash them across the electric lines.

The power company tries to keep such interruptions to a minimum, and when power failures occur the line crews are sent out immediately to find and repair the damage, thus restoring service as quickly as possible.

While it is inevitable that sometimes interruptions in service must occur, these are not as numerous as formerly. This is largely due to the many customers who have co-operated in spotting and reporting trees and branches which overhang the power lines.

This struggle of the power company against the trouble caused by trees is a never ending one, in which the help of the customer frequently means improved service to that customer.

Methods of Ensiling Grass-Legume Mixtures

Ottawa — When ensiling grass-legume mixtures many factors must be taken into consideration if you hope to obtain the highest possible quality silage at the lowest possible operating cost. W. T. Bruns, Superintendent of the Experimental Station, Federal Department of Agriculture at Prince George, B.C., advises that the most important points to consider are, the stage of maturity of the crop, the proportion of legume in the mixture, the acreage to be handled, the type of silo used and the available tractor, horse and manpower. From experience, Mr. Burns suggests that swathing and wilting be practised. The forage harvester method appears to be most satisfactory for larger operations, and the buck-rake method for smaller operations. Silos of the trench or surface type are most easily and cheaply filled.

Crops to be harvested at an early stage of maturity contain too much moisture to be satisfactorily stored as silage. At this stage they produce the highest yield of feed value making this the most desirable stage at which to harvest. Therefore the practice of swathing, and wilting to the correct moisture content must be adopted. At a late stage of maturity, crops may be successfully stored without wilting but quality suffers in this case. Crops that are high in legumes require more wilting than other types of forage. This is due to the higher protein content which if too moist causes slime development and offensive odors.

Regardless of what method of harvesting is used in the field, silos of the surface or trench type which permit driving through may be filled with a minimum of trouble. Long uncut material from the buckrake or green loader, or cut material from the forage harvester can be hauled in with equal success. Upright silos must be filled with a blower and therefore the material must be cut either in the field or at the silo.

PLOW CONTENDERS

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — The New Brunswick Plowmen's Association has decided to send its two top plowmen to the Canadian meet at Leamington, Ont., October 11 and 12. The time and place of New Brunswick's plowing competition remained to be decided.

Preserving Egg Quality

Maintenance of winter egg quality in summer is a problem. Only about 25 per cent of eggs marketed in summer are of Grade A quality as compared with 75 per cent for the winter months. A. P. Piloski, Poultryman at the Indian Head, Saskatchewan Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, advises following certain recommendations to ensure a higher grade which would mean a higher return from the poultry enterprise.

Egg quality falls very rapidly with the onset of warm weather. This is due mostly to the fact that poultry are allowed to run at large. Such a management system may result in certain feed economies but the saving is more than offset by the lower egg prices the poultry producer receives when he markets his eggs.

If it is essential that poultry run out, they should be confined to runs and only allowed out in the afternoons. Under these conditions the birds would complete the majority of their laying indoors and have an opportunity to fill up on mash and grain before going out to forage. It is the intake of mash and grain that stimulates greater egg production and produces higher quality eggs.

Egg quality deteriorates rapidly when eggs are held at high temperatures. Consequently it is necessary to collect eggs soon after they are laid and they should be cooled down to a temperature of 60 degrees or lower. Placing eggs in trays or wire baskets and storing them in a cool place such as a cellar should ensure proper egg quality. After cooling for about six hours in this manner it is advisable to transfer them into clean cool cases.

Egg storage rooms must be free of odors and to receive and maintain the highest grades, eggs should be marketed twice a week. When packing eggs for shipment they should be packed large end up to prevent broken air cells. Cracked and oversized eggs should not be packed as they break easily and will soil other eggs in the crate.

Man Questioned in St. Eugene Airport Fire

It is reported than an official of a British-U.S. air engine service has been questioned by officials of the Ontario fire marshal's office in connection with the $150,000 fire at St. Eugene airport last December.

The company official, who resides in England, had posted a $50,000 bond guaranteeing his appearance, it was learned.

The St. Eugene fire was believed of incendiary origin at the time. St. Eugene was a primary training school for the RCAF during the Second World War and has since served as an emergency field.

Mines Minister Addresses District Ch. of Commerce

"Since the beginning of recorded production, the cumulative value for Quebec's mining industry is in excess of $3 billion. The mines of Western Quebec alone, since the beginning of production in 1927, have contributed more than one third of this value; well over 140,000,000 tons of ore have been treated in the various mills of this region. But the ultimate value of this production is a great deal more than that, after our factories have turned a portion of it into higher priced goods.

"It is safe to say that a 50 per cent increase in the value of production will most likely be established within the next five years, as a result of new mining projects now being brought to the production stage. It looks as if the Province of Quebec will record its production of a quarter of a billion in but a small fraction of the time which went into the establishing of the first quarter of a billion.

"Much of this expansion will stem from the New Quebec iron ore development and the Gaspé project, but other ventures also hold considerable promise. Besides plans already in progress for expanding production and increasing output from the established mining areas, important mining developments are taking place which guarantee not only higher production figures, but also entail some of the largest engineering projects ever to have taken place in Quebec. Among them are the building of railroads, mine roads and bridges, the harnessing of new hydro-electric power, the establishment of mining villages, even the drainage of a lake and the relocation of a long established city in the heart of a mining centre, and several other activities necessary to promote the mining industry. These engineering projects greatly contribute to the expansion of the Province and are sometimes proportionally greater than the mine operations themselves. . .

"The Province of Quebec produces at least fifty different mineral substances, but a very small number of these account for about 95 per cent of the total production. These are the metals, gold, copper and zinc from Western Quebec; asbestos from the Appalachian Region; and materials of construction, cement, brick, limestone, and sand, mostly from the St. Lawrence Lowlands.

The remarkable expansion of the mining industry in Quebec shows that we have so far, steadily and accurately located our vast undeveloped mineral resources. 85 Per cent of our territory is still virgin. Successful exploration is still underway, even in the areas close to producing mines with long histories. Plans have already been drawn up for the establishment of new mining camps. We may, therefore, be confident that the progress of our mining industry will remain proportional to our efforts in the search for new deposits."

Appreciation was expressed for Mr. Cottingham's enlightening address. Mr. G. Lefebvre also voiced his appreciation of the loyal support he had received during his term of office; he trusted that the same co-operation would be extended the newly elected slate of officers.

Finis to Trade Fair

THE CANADIAN International Trade Fair, established at the end of the war to promote Canadian trade, will be discontinued — according to an announcement to the Commons last week by the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

It was hoped that Canadian producers would take advantage of the opportunity to exhibit their wares to buyers from other lands. Equally important, it was hoped that people from overseas countries striving to reconstruct their war-shattered economies, would use the Fair to re-establish themselves in the Canadian market.

In many respects the Canadian International Trade Fair has been an outstanding success; but — states the Minister of Trade and Commerce — the Fair has not lived up to expectations as a medium for the direct promotion of Canadian exports. Enthusiasm has waned, and in this year's Fair Canadian participation, apart from prestige exhibits by some very large Canadian companies and provincial and municipal exhibits, has been very limited indeed. The conclusion one must draw from the past eight years is that a trade fair of the kind the Government has been running in Toronto is not of much value to Canadian exporters.

On the other hand, experience has shown that overseas exhibitors have used the Fair to make initial contacts in Canada, then turned to other methods of trade promotion more natural to the Canadian environment. In the post-war period it seemed highly desirable to have a fair just for the purpose of repairing commercial connections. But present achievements do not seem to justify continuance of this venture under Government auspices, and the Government has decided that the Trade Fair should now be discontinued.

All credit to those responsible for this decision. The Fair has been a costly proposition, and the Canadian taxpayers appreciate this candid appraisal of its worth. . . A similar abandonment of other government enterprises found wanting in dividends, would count considerably in economy.

Testimonial

WE ACKNOWLEDGE these few kind words from the front page editorial commentary of The Ottawa Farm Journal:

"It's a big week coming up. . . Our old friends down at Lachute stage their big show and have a wonderful entry to attract the customers. This is a real pleasant show and a fine place to meet a lot of nice people and see some really good stock. Not only is Lachute a fine dairy cattle show but it stages about the best of the surviving heavy horse shows in Eastern Canada. If you want to see a really top-notch lineup of fine horses Lachute is the place to go."

Hazard of Fatigue

CAR DRIVERS who rush to get away from the city heat — who, tired from a busy day in office or factory, gather their families and start off for lakeshore or mountains — these are rated among the greatest traffic hazards. They are responsible for many of the 57,000 traffic accidents that occur on Canadian highways during the summer holidays.

There are, of course, many reasons for traffic accidents. Alfred L. Moseley, a psychologist at the Harvard School of Public Health, recently completed a series of tests on fatigued drivers and proved that every driver who is over-tired is risking his own and other people's lives when he takes the wheel. A co-operative colleague stayed up all night and then, using an instrument called a Roadometer, "drove" for several hours while the psychologist measured his reactions. Slowness on the brakes, clutching the wheel and other bad driving habits were noted as fatigue increased. A cup of coffee and a cigarette provided necessary but not lasting pickups.

This was an extreme case, of course, but it demonstrated the importance of avoiding drowsiness when driving and it led to a number of safe driving rules which could help to reduce the toll of summer accidents.

1. Don't start a trip after work. Get a good night's rest and start fresh in the morning.
2. Plan a coffee break every 100 miles or so. If there are few roadside stands or restaurants, take a thermos of hot coffee with you. Pull off to the side of the road, drink the coffee and get out of the car to stretch your legs.
3. Avoid driving at night whenever possible. The most dangerous period is between 5 and 8 p.m.
4. If you feel drowsy, pull off the road and have a nap.
5. If possible, have another driver along to spell you at the wheel.
6. Observe all traffic rules — but, most important, stop driving when you feel tired.

Population

THE PRESIDENT of Acadia University, Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, estimates that in the past 100 years Canada has lost six million people to the United States; that people of Canadian descent now living in the U.S. outnumber the 15 million people now living in Canada.

Essential reason for the drift of Canadians to the U.S. is and always has been the same; the relatively large population of the U.S. offers much greater opportunities than the relatively small one of Canada — states the Fort Erie Letter-Review. The remedy is to build up Canada's population through large-scale immigration, thus having the dual effect of adding new citizens and keeping existing ones at home.

The founders of Confederation evidently intended this should be done. Mr. John Diefenbaker recently informed the House of Commons that he had been reading "the Year Book for 1868, in which the Fathers of Confederation estimated that by 1940, under normal circumstances, the population of Canada would be in excess of 41 million." (Canada's 1940 population was, in fact, 11.4 million.)

Life, Art and Artifice

NOT LONG AGO the English critic Anthony West had a piece in an American periodical in which he referred to the Saturday night habit that drew Londoners to a particular neighborhood, a particular stretch of street.

There the children would buy candy, observe life, and "listen to the patter of the salesmen at the stalls, who, in a circular process, modelled themselves on the music-hall comedians who had studied their kind of patter."

An interesting observation, that. Interesting to speculate on the influence on city life and speech and manners of the music hall and vaudeville theatre. And their successors, the motion picture and radio; and now, TV.

What has been the effect on life and manners of a badly-acted presentation of life and manners? The effect on people of hearing and seeing artificial speech, posture and behaviour?

The movies and radio and TV, of course, attempt to reproduce life — in entertaining forms. Sometimes through craftsmanship that approaches art, they get close to the real thing. But often they do not.

The danger is not, probably, in a caricature of life that is meant as such and so is recognizable. The danger is in the caricature that is presented not as a caricature but as life; and in the serious attempt that fails.

When that happens, people look at themselves in a circus mirror whose distortions vary. Unconsciously we are copy-cats. The result is that for a generation the human race has been adopting speech and manners from a bad copy of life.

City living? Well, of course these mass forms of entertainment are common in the country too. For years now the automobile has whisked the farmer's son and daughter to the movies for relief from tedium; and few are the fishermen with the sea at their front door who can't turn a dial and bring in anything from the weather reports to Dragnet.

But somehow the effect isn't quite so concentrated there. Men still go out to work the topsoil created by centuries, with no smoking chimneys between them and the sun. They still go out on moving water with nothing between them and the lurch of seas but a shell of wood or metal. The spinning wheel and loom are gone but there are still women who can look from their kitchen windows across open fields to a prospect of woods or hills or water. And there are still kids growing up in those surroundings.

We have a feeling that as long as this is so, the natural and casual ways of life will not be overthrown entirely by artifice.

THERE IS at least one good thing we can learn from the experience of those who lived in "the good old days." They did not have a lot of money but they saw the humorous side of life and lived by their resourcefulness. This is one of the things that brought our forefathers through the difficulties of the past.

THE TOURIST industry is looking forward to a record season, and already there is a larger flow of cars through the customs than is usual at this time of year. If this trend continues we will see one of the busiest summers yet on the Border.

"A TALE OF THE RUE ARNOLDI"

The motorist north-bound on Decarie boulevard, more often than not misses the rue Arnoldi in his flight. It is one of those little side-streets that bursts on drivers unannounced as they step on the gas to carry them up the slope of an underpass. And, unless those same drivers are interested in either soft drinks or door locks, the rue Arnoldi holds little interest for them.

Quite by chance, it fell to my lot last week to pay a visit to each of the companies on Arnoldi Street. A dying friend was in dire need of a special brand of soft drink, put out by that particular company. Another friend was also in great need of two keys to a hybrid type of lock in his possession, the blanks for which were unobtainable at any of the locksmiths I visited. So it was that I strayed to the rue Arnoldi to enlist the aid of the drink and lock manufacturers.

In the soft drink factory, I stated my needs to the sales manager.

"I've tried every store in the city and I can't find a bottle of that special drink. Unfortunately, all I need is half a dozen bottles."

"Well now," the good fellow replied, "the reason for your fruitless search is due to the fact that we suspended production of that drink a month ago in order to push sales of other types. However, we are going to start production again tomorrow and if you care to come back tomorrow afternoon, say, I'll be only too glad to let you have as little or as much as you need."

On my return the following afternoon, I was greeted most amicably and the sales manager went out of his way to supply my needs, as though I were the most important customer the company possessed. And, with my purchases duly completed at the soft drink factory, I turned my attention to the lock makers.

The young girl who came to wait on me was most pleasant.

"I'm terribly sorry to trouble you," I began, "but I've tried any number of locksmiths in the city and not one of them has a blank for this little key."

I held out my key case and showed her the key I was speaking of.

"Do you think you could possibly let me have two blanks. The number is 100-F, I believe."

"Just wait a minute," she replied sweetly, "and I'll see what I can do."

She left me at the information wicket and returned in a short time with one of the company's salesmen.

"What can I do to help you, sir?" the salesman asked.

I explained my predicament to him and repeated my request for assistance in securing two key blanks.

"If you will let me have the blanks, I can get them cut at some locksmith's place."

"Yes, sir," the salesman replied. "I think we can accommodate you. Just wait a moment, will you? I'll try and get them for you!"

He disappeared from view and I occupied my time in watching the passing show of office and factory workers. Suddenly, my reverie was broken by a strident voice which wafted over the frosted glass panels of the information booth. It was cursing volubly and there was no mistaking who it was talking about.

". . . who the heck is he anyway? We're not going to stop production in order to make two (censored) keys for anyone. Go back and tell him to try somewhere else!"

The salesman returned to find me white with rage.

"I'm sorry . . . " he began.

"Yes," I hissed, "I heard the verdict. And before I go, do me one more favor, will you?"

"If I can, sir!"

"Go back in there and tell your pal that his public relations stink! And if you don't want to tell him, send him out here to me, I'll be only too glad to do so!"

The salesman was most apologetic and agreed to undertake the assignment.

"You might point out," I added, "that I had no intention of stopping the company's production in order to have you cut two keys for me. All I want is two blanks — which you can supply — so that I can have my local locksmith cut them for me!"

"I understand perfectly, sir," the salesman replied, "and I only wish I could help, but you see how it is?"

"That I do," I replied. "That I do!"

So I quit the lockmaker's factory and set out to search anew for a locksmith who could supply the blanks for me. And as I went, I pondered over the events that had befallen me on the rue Arnoldi. In one place, an executive had bent over backwards to assist me; in the other, a small man had soured me forever on a certain brand of lock.

I guess that's why the executive is where he is and the small man is still a small man. The executive has learned how to deal with his fellow men, but the little man hasn't learned — and never will!

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Vision

I am going to tell you about a fellow that I went to school with. He lives in a small town, physically; but in a Big City, spiritually. He is rich. Not because he ever cheated; he is the soul of honesty. I had all the opportunities he had, but he had more vision.

Last month I met him on the Main Street of our home town. "Listen here," I said, "let's go have a coffee together. I want to find out how you made yourself such a pot of money in a little place like this."

Settled in the coffee shop, he said. "What makes you call this place little? I think it's pretty big."

"Big? My gosh, it is less than a thousand," I protested.

He took a map and a pencil from his pocket. He drew a circle with a diameter of 60 miles. At least seven other small towns fell within the area of the circle. "I can be in most of those places in half an hour — about an hour and a half to the farthest. How long does it take you to get to work in the city?"

I confessed I was lucky to make it in half an hour through traffic.

"You see," he said, a twinkle in his eye. "This is my city. I advertise to this whole area. I have outlets here, and here . . " He began putting X's within his circle with all the zest of a chain-store merchant choosing city street-corners.

If you have vision, you can look at a small town in a big way.

The Whole Truth ?

(The Wiarton Echo)

One thing I've always got a big kick from, in the newspaper business. It's the fellow who demands that the paper print the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. What he means, of course, is the truth about somebody else.

Weekly newspapers print the truth, but show me one that prints the whole truth, and I'll give a donation toward raising a statue to the editor. Maybe it would be a good thing if weeklies did print the whole truth about everything. But in the first place, a lot of people would suffer where it hurts, in their vanity.

In the second place, the editor would be so busy facing actions for slander and libel, even if he won them all, that he wouldn't have time for anything else.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The grass is high and tough. The sickle drops it in ragged heaps. After a while the man lies down to make a new survey of the job. He's in his own yard. What's the rush?

In making his survey, he has to stretch flat and look at the grass through half-closed eyes, while mopping sweat from the brow.

The blades appear huge. They clog the visible world. A cow-sized ant climbs a mountainous pebble. The earthy-sweet smell of the grass carries the man back to boyhood.

But he can't lounge there all afternoon. He opens his eyes on the aching world and the grass that stretches across the yard, a symbol of ambitions choked up and tasks undone. So he swings the sickle again, in a half-hearted way.

Now he has a helper. His own little boy tumbles through the grass, making a great show of gathering the stalks but really dumping them in front of Daddy's sickle.

Fearful of harvesting a sheaf of small fingers along with the grass, Daddy picks up the boy and leaves him near Mummy's feet. The toddler is soon at work again, shovelling the grass into the lake.

There is a squeak under Mummy's shoe. For a jittery moment she thinks she has stepped on a mouse's nest. Then she fishes gravely in the green tangle and comes up with a rubber duck. It's a toy lost the previous autumn. Somehow the child recognizes it.

"Ducky Daddles," the boy says, running to grab the toy, which is thick with dirt and slime.

"It's dirty," his mother warns, and the boy appeals to his father.

"Wash Ducky-Daddles," he says, holding the object up. So the man and the child adjourn to the kitchen, run the hot water, and puddle around until some of the duck's original colors come to light. By now the sink is brimming with a chocolate-colored soup, and more of the same stuff adorns the child's face.

"Nice Ducky-Daddles," the boy says, plainly delighted at this reunion with an old friend.

Daddy feels he has done enough grass-cutting for one day. He settles down on the porch above the lake to read a magazine before supper.

Beyond the ruins of last year's playpen the grass is still high and tough. "Well, at least I've made a hole in it," the man says. Then he turns his attention to the boy, who is clambering up and trying to thrust the rubber duck's bill in Daddy's ear.

FAIR RETURN

The job of running the city and municipality should not be made so financially attractive that it would encourage undesirables to seek office. But, on the other hand, the indemnity should be a fair one.

Step in Construction Of Bersimis River Power Development

By Shirley Morris

Quebec (CP) A 71-mile tunnel was blasted open at Labrieville last week to complete another step in construction of a $225,000,000 power project on the Bersimis River.

The tunnel will carry water from a huge reservoir atop a mountain to the main power plant in the village. From there, transmission lines will carry the electric power to the Gaspé Peninsula.

Hydraulic Resources Minister Bourque, who set off the 3,500-pounds of dynamite that opened the tunnel, said the power project will promote important industrial developments in Gaspé, Saguenay, Quebec and Montreal.

Initial production of 450,000 horsepower is scheduled for next year and full production of 1,200,000 horsepower is expected to be reached by 1961.

Tight-Rope Telephone Service

The extension telephone has proven its worth in home and office before this, but stunt man Harry Davis recently demonstrated a new use for one. Sitting on a tight-rope for 48 hours, as he did recently at Toronto's Maple Leaf Stadium, can be mighty boring — at least, that's what he claims. His solution was to take up a telephone with him. Talking to relatives, friends and well-wishers kept things from becoming too monotonous, he explained.

The trouble with a one-armed driver is that he can't handle his clutch.

24 Confirmed at St. Matthew's, Grenville

Grenville —

The Rt. Rev. John H. Dixon, Bishop of Montreal, confirmed 22 young people and two adults at an impressive service in St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, Sunday evening.

The aisle was lined with chairs and the gallery filled in order to accommodate over 160 parents, godparents, relatives and friends of those confirmed, as well as many from the congregations of St. Matthew's, Holy Trinity and Kilmar.

The candidates were presented to the Bishop by the rector, the Rev. P. R. Stote. The scripture passages, dealing with the giving of the Holy Spirit in the Acts of the Apostles, were read by the Rev. C. R. Lang, rector of Lachute.

The Lord Bishop addressed the candidates in the early part of the confirmation service by asking the question, "How I wonder What You Are?" At the end of the service he addressed the congregation, speaking on the particular responsibility of Anglican communion throughout the world today.

The newly-confirmed will attend Holy Comunion in their respective congregations on Sunday next.

Baby Band and Mothers Entertained Following United W.M.S. Meeting

The June meeting of the W.M.S. of Lachute United Church was held last Thursday.

Mrs. W. Bridge conducted the worship service on the theme, "God's Peace", and pointed out that this peace is a gift that only God can give. It cannot be bought. It passes all understanding and can only be known by the experience of the believer.

Mrs. Joan Gordon reviewed the last two chapters of the Study Book, "The Church in India".

The Supply secretary, Mrs. Walker Scott, reported that 20 quilts and 250 pounds of clothing had recently been shipped for overseas relief, as well as an 11-pound personal parcel mailed to a missionary.

The Associate Members secretaries had excellent reports of their work and said that 14 new members had been added to the Associate list.

Miss Stalker, Literature secretary, said she had received the new study books, also other new and interesting books on the missionary work of the Church. The work in Canada will be the topic for special study this fall and winter. The Christian Citizenship secretary, Miss Cleary, read a good article on "World Peace."

Mrs. R. A. Giles, with Mrs. S. S. Campbell as accompanist, gave a beautiful rendition of a familiar hymn, "Spirit of God, descend upon my heart."

The members of the Baby Band with their mothers were guests of the W.M.S. during the social hour following the meeting, and were welcomed by the president, Mrs. J. R. McOuat.

The next regular meeting will be held the second Thursday in September.

Rededication Service At Shawbridge United

Morin Heights — A rededication service was held Sunday in Shawbridge United Church, conducted by the Rev. R. Blair, following extensive improvements made to the interior of the church. The congregation gratefully acknowledges the gifts of chancel furnishings, given by Mrs. Arthur Thorburn and son Vincent in memory of the late Arthur Thorburn; lights, given by Mrs. V. and I. McFadden; and a baptismal font presented by the Sunday School.

Services are being conducted regularly in Shawbridge church, which has operated since 1825. The oldest member of this church is Miss Frances Saunders, who was baptized about 94 years ago. It is regretted that Miss Saunders was unable to be at the service.

Appropriate music for the occasion was rendered by the Shawbridge choir, assisted by the Morin Heights United Church choir.

Rev. P. Raymond Stote On Morning Devotions

The Rev. P. R. Stote, rector of Grenville, will conduct "Morning Devotions" over Radio Station CBM, Montreal, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 20 to 22, at 8.15 a.m.

Closing Activities of Brownsburg United Ch. Women's Groups

Brownsburg — On May 26, nine members and two associate helpers of the Brownsburg United Women's Missionary Society, in a body, attended the sectional meeting of that organization, held at Morin Heights.

On June 7 the W.M.S. packed five cartons of clean, warm clothing; these have now been forwarded to the needy people of Korea.

On June 16 another large parcel, including three large quilts and five crib quilts, will be packed and sent to Western Canada.

On both the afternoon and evening of June 8, the Woman's Association sponsored a Rolland Products demonstration, at which refreshments were served to those in attendance.

Pretty Wedding At Arundel, Que.

Morrison - Staniforth

Miss Barbara Jane Staniforth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Staniforth, of Arundel, Que., and Rathwell Chaffey Morrison, son of Mayor and Mrs. A. B. Morrison, also of Arundel, were married on Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Arundel United Church. The Rev. Charles Cushing of Montreal officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated in white lillies, white peonies and ferns. The choir, of which the bride was a member, sang "O Perfect Love", with Mr. E. A. Bulley as soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with tight bodice and bouffant skirt. Her lace bolero had long, tight-fitting sleeves. The elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a Juliet cap of lace over satin embroidered in pearls and mother-of-pearl sequins. She wore her mother's wedding pearls, and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white and pale pink rose buds.

Mrs. Curll Staniforth, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, and was gowned in a yellow shot taffeta dress fashioned in Princess style, the sweetheart neckline encrusted with pearls and beads. A picture hat of the same material with long yellow streamers was worn, and she carried a nosegay of white daisies with yellow velvet streamers.

Miss Diane Barrie, of Montreal, was bridesmaid, wearing a sky blue gown and hat, fashioned in the same style as the matron of honor. She also carried white daisies.

Mr. Alfred Morrison, Jr., was best man for his brother. The ushers were Mr. Ivan Rathwell and Mr. Curll Staniforth.

The bride's mother wore a pearl grey gown of crepe and lace with light blue hat and accessories. Her corsage was of American Beauty roses.

The bridegrom's mother wore a navy blue two-piece taffeta dress with navy and white accessories; her corsage was made of pink roses.

The reception was held in the home and garden of the bride's parents.

Following the reception, the happy couple left for a two-week motor trip through the States. Mrs. Morrison travelling in a teal blue light wool suit with white hat and shortie coat. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Rathwell C. Morrison photographed following their wedding in the Arundel United Church on Saturday, June 11. The bride is the former Barbara Jane Staniforth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Staniforth, and the groom is the son of Mayor and Mrs. A. B. Morrison, of Arundel.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the baby boy whose mother gave him a name, saying "The glory has departed from Israel!"

The Israelites had been fighting against the Philistines and four thousand of their men had been killed. The elders of Israel decided to bring the ark from Shiloh, and carry it among their troops. Thus they hoped to save their army from further disaster.

When the ark came into the camp, the Israelites gave a mighty shout of joy. The Philistines heard the noise and they were afraid. They knew about the plagues which the Egyptians had had before they would let their Israelite slaves free. One of the Philistine leaders cried, "Take courage and acquit yourselves like men, lest you become slaves to the Hebrews."

In this second battle, the Israelites were again defeated. The ark was captured. After a great slaughter, every Israelite left alive fled to his own home. Phineas, father of this baby and his uncle were killed in the battle.

The grandfather, Samuel, who was ninety-eight years old, heard this bad news, from a messenger. When he learned that the ark was captured he fell backwards, his neck was broken and he died.

Just as this tragic time, this boy was born. The women who attended his mother, said to her, "Fear not, for you have a son." But she paid no attention to their words. Instead she gave her son his sad name. Read this baby's name and this story in Chapter 4 of First Samuel.

Fact About Employment:

Main function of any industry — in Canada or elsewhere — is to provide goods and services at a price acceptable to consumers. If price and product are right, the result is employment. If wrong, the result is unemployment.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

June 18, 1880 —

A change of weather took place on Sunday last, and from a burning sun the weather became quite cold.

The first step was taken on Monday by Messrs. Wilson and Co. towards erection of the paper mill here, as the sod was turned and the work actively entered into.

A boy who was driving his horse and cart undertook to water his horse in the river yesterday, when boy, horse and cart suddenly went down into the deep water. The horse swam across with the cart, while the youth undertook to jump out in the middle and was nearly drowned. He was seized by Mr. McArthur, butcher, of Lachute, who with Mr. Cleland saved the boy from drowning as he was going down for the third time.

• • •

June 16, 1905 —

Mr. R. McArthur has unloaded a car of water pipes which will be used in extending the waterworks to the east end of town — a long felt want.

• • •

25 YEARS AGO

June 13, 1930 —

An inquest was held Tuesday morning into the death of an unknown man who passed away suddenly in the Windsor Hotel. Nothing of identification was found on his person, and following the jury's verdict of death due to natural causes, the remains were interred in the Protestant Cemetery. The man had stayed overnight in the hotel, and had no visible means of support.

St. Andrews East is quite proud of the fact that her good citizen, Mr. Wales, has won the Canadian Championship of the Correspondence Chess League for the year 1929. He has just received a handsome gold medal which testifies to his skill in the old game.

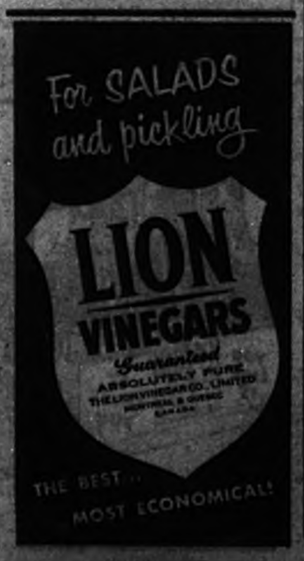

Civic Oddments At Brownsburg

There's good news for those who use badly-lit streets. Against the advice of its legal department, the Council has decided to sign the contract offered by Gatineau Power Company. The lawyer suggested Brownsburg should await the result of several test cases involving this company, but these may take years to settle, and perusal of the contract showed it to be a pretty fair deal. Gatineau Power promised to install the eight new lights ordered, whenever the contract is signed.

The old matter about business tax dodgers came up again, and the secretary pointed out that the Police Chief couldn't catch all the visiting salesmen, but the public could help themselves by notifying the policeman or Mr. Hebert. In connection with this, Secretary Hebert read a letter from Dominion Provisioners saying that their agent would be calling next week to sell the food plan. Council decided they should be taxed on the appliances line and on the meat and groceries line.

The Council decided as a result of a recent visit to the municipal garage, that a 60' x 18' extension must be made, to house the snow-clearing equipment, and allow for extension of the office. Councillors Harris and Ouellette were charged with the planning of building.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. McCulloch, of Isle-aux-Chats, were guests of honor last Saturday evening at a surprise party given in celebration of their coral wedding anniversary.

The gathering, which was held at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Fraser, Lachute Road, was attended by their eight sons and daughters, together with their families and friends.

50 Scouts to Receive 10-Day Expense Tickets To 8th World Jamboree

Seven Quebec Province Boy Scouts will receive free trips to the World Scout Jamboree this summer as awards in an essay contest. Entries may be in English or French.

Fifty Canadian Boy Scouts will be provided with an all-expense trip to the 8th World Jamboree to be held in August at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont. All costs of travel and of 10 days at the Jamboree will be paid by the Bank of Nova Scotia for 50 winners in an essay contest on "What It Means To Be A Scout."

The essay contest, sponsored by the bank in co-operation with the Boy Scout Association, is open to some 4,200 Scouts across Canada, those eligible to attend the Jamboree. "Entry forms and rules on the essay contest went forward this week to the 10 provincial headquarters and to district headquarters in Ontario of the Boy Scouts.

The Scouts have until midnight June 30 to mail their essay entries to their Provincial Headquarters; in Ontario to district headquarters. Winners in each province will then be picked by three-men committees comprising representatives of the Boy Scout movement and the bank. The 50 winners will include: two from Newfoundland; one from Prince Edward Island; four from Nova Scotia; three from New Brunswick; seven in Quebec; 15 in Ontario; four from Manitoba; three from Saskatchewan; five from Alberta, and six from British Columbia.

"We are conducting this essay contest because we realize how much attendance at this Jamboree can mean to Canadian Boy Scouts and we recognize that transportation and other costs may keep many a worthy Scout from going," said a bank spokesman.

Outdoor Roundup

with Joe Foster

We had driven 90 miles, the last 18 over a winding and at times precipitous dirt road. We still had about an hour of daylight left. Just time enough to get the boat off the top of the car and into the water, attach the kicker and load tent, sleeping bags and other gear for the run down the lake to Marble Island, where we were to pitch camp for the week-end.

What More Could You Ask?

What a campsite! An acre of spruce, cedar and birch studded rock rising sheer from the water on all sides except the east, where we beached the boat and started unloading our equipment, but not before we sat for a moment to drink in the peacefulness of our surroundings. The only sounds after the outboard had been shut off — the tinkle of a far away cowbell and the plaintive cry of a whippoorwill.

Has It Happened to You?

Enough of this dreaming, the light was fading and we still had to get set for the night, have a quick snack and turn in early if we were to be up and fishing by daybreak. Ten minutes later and our 'all's well with the world and mankind' mood had changed to one of profane and sweaty fury as Gord and I set about the task of cleaning up the legacy left by the camp's previous occupants — a mess of filth, litter and confusion. Tin cans, empty bottles, some broken, old and scattered newspapers and sandwich wrappings, not to mention the odd item of cast-off clothing. The rocks of the fireplace strewn hither and yon and in the fire pit partially burned and now rotting garbage.

We Can All Set An Example

The fellow who leaves a clean camp site sets an example for the next camper and even though the two never meet, the outgoer will unknowingly win the respect of the incomer. There are literally thousands of camping spots throughout the country and in many beautiful areas, some federal or provincially owned and maintained. These are for the public's enjoyment . . . to give anyone who wants to and can take advantage of them, the opportunity to spend a few days and nights in the open away from the hustle of business and everyday cares. Treat these areas as though they belonged to you . . for that is exactly what they do. Treat the place you camp in as if it were your own front yard at home. Leave it certainly as clean as you find it and cleaner if possible.

Tips for Tidiness

Put tin cans and other cast-offs in one place. When you're ready to break camp, throw everything but glass into the fire. Paper and food remains will burn. Even the cans will lose their rust-proof tin and their lacquer and labels. When the cans are cool, mash them flat and bundle them up in your packs to take out to the main road. These empty, burned cans weigh very little, but they are unsightly around a campsite. If it is not possible for you to pack out the cans, hide them in crevices under the rocks away from the trail and out of sight. Smash bottles and jars into a deep, narrow hole. Fill with earth, stamp down firmly and cover with leaves or brush. The burying of any other camp debris is an unsatisfactory practice. Wild animals have a habit of digging it out and scattering it in all directions. Then, too, the soil is disturbed, the grass is killed, and erosion will uncover the pit sooner or later. Spare the wildflowers. And leave them for others to enjoy also. Wildflowers are usually quite difficult to transplant so let them thrive in their own surroundings.

And Remember . . .

Above all things, watch your fire. Never take a chance on starting a forest fire. There's an old saying that 'One tree will make a million matches, but it only takes one match to burn a million trees.' Soak your campfire thoroughly. And then check it again for that final faint ember. Have fun, but think of the other fellow. Leave him a clean campsite he, too, can enjoy.

Toe Blake As Coach With Box-Office Appeal

SPORTS CAMERA
By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The brass of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens obviously was concerned with more than just coaching ability when the call went out to former Canadien star Toe Blake to guide the team next season.

Managing Director Frank Selke, Sr., is a staunch believer in a coach having a flair for pleasing the public and press. There have been suggestions that former coach Dick Irvin didn't take this side of the job seriously enough. Irvin next season will be coaching Chicago Black Hawks.

Whether Blake, the "Old Lamplighter", will be able to match Irvin's coaching successes at Montreal and still get the most out of the players while keeping everybody else happy remains a question until next winter.

A star on Montreal's famous "Punch Line" a few years back, Blake's background suggests he might make the grade on both counts.

He won the Lady Byng trophy in 1945-46 as the player best combining ability with gentlemanly conduct. And he was popular with team-mates. This popularity with players continued when Toe began his coaching career and led the Valleyfield Braves to the Alexander Cup.

Another thing in Blake's favor is that he speaks both English and French. Being bilingual in any field in Montreal is good for business.

Antonelli Lapse

The major league baseball season has a long way to go yet but the front-runner in the "flop-of-the-year" race is Southpaw Johnny Antonnelli, a key man in New York Giants' pennant and world series triumphs last year.

Failure of the young lefthander to match his 1954 pitching pace is advanced as one main reason why Leo Durocher's mighty mites of last season are on the verge of joining the National League's second division.

A 23-game winner last season, Antonelli had a 3-8 record in early June.

Rigaud Track Program Rained Out Last Sunday

In view of Sunday's unfavorable weather conditions, the Rigaud race program was postponed to this Sunday, at 2 p.m., when a full turnout of entries in the various classes is anticipated. As usual a "free-for-all" will be the main attraction — with honors to be contested by Quick Silver L, Peter Star, Eden of Ohio, Jackie Gratten Patch, Johnny M, Professor Me, Lucky Hancock and Count Chief, as well as probable late entries.

The usual ladies' $20 attendance prize will be drawn for. Ladies' admission to the park is 50 cents; there is no charge for children.

The following entries will be featured in other events:

Class C — Pat Abbe, Dr. McKinney, Jane Proximity, Diabolo, Peter Bennett, Prince Mire and Happy Volo.

Class D.D. — Delaware Gazette, Bell Gratten, Linda B, Royal Dundee, Smokey Todd, Prince Chips, Admiral Peter Jr., Miss Star Jr.

Class D — Louise N, Lady Chips, Van Guy L, Ruth Chilcoot, R. C. Gratten, Queen Shock, Ethel Bars and Victor Mark.

Class D — Johnny Stewart, Miss Counsel, Golden Todd, Jack Goodwill, Miss Aworthy Rodd, Little Girl Patch and Easter Dale.

NELSON EXHIBITION OPENED

London — A special exhibition in honor of the 150th anniversary of the death of Nelson was opened in London recently by the First Lord of the Admiralty, Rt. Hon. J. P. L. Thomas, M.P., at the National Maritime Museum, Greenwich, England Relics exhibited include manuscripts, many of which are being shown for the first time. They form a part of a large collection of Nelson's papers inherited by Lady Hamilton.

Davy Crockett Spells Big Business in U.S.

Parents in Canada, as well as in the United States, are having their troubles with a long-dead U.S.A. hero, Davy Crockett by name. Unless you are deaf, dumb and blind, the name is familiar to you. By this time, you probably hate it and wonder what you ever did to have Davy come back to haunt you after more than a century. If you have little boys, that's just too bad. No doubt you have had to buy at least a sweat shirt, perhaps a coonskin hat with the tail left on.

J. Burke Martin described the craze in The London Free Press the other day. We cannot copy all he wrote, though it was interesting, but here are a few extracts.

In the United States, the retail business in Davy Crockett materials is estimated at 300 million dollars. Yes, $300,000,000. It has largely displaced cowboy and space cadet suits. That has happened in three months.

The American Fur Merchants' Association has sold two million dollars' worth of rabbit, opossum and racoon skins and all the wolf tails that had been in storage for years. Coon tails that couldn't be sold at 25 cents a pound are going for five dollars a pound. Rabbit, silver fox and skunk skins are being made into coonskin caps. There's a danger that the racoon population may become extinct.

A Boston store owner who had more moccasins than the Iroquois ever owned unloaded three thousand pairs in one week simply by advertising them as Davy Crockett moccasins.

A couple of whiskey distillers have been making Davy Crockett whiskey for years but they haven't found a way to sell it to the boys.

A fellow by the name of Fess Parker, took the role of Davy Crockett in the television shows. He gets $3,000 for making personal appearances at department stores.

With all this easy money floating around, there are already legal battles over who owns the rights to the long-dead Davy. Walt Disney claims to have these rights, because he had some films made. Apparently the theory is that if you register the right to use the name of some old hero, nobody else can use it. That sounds silly. Some enterprising citizen of the United States is probably busy signing up the rights to George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

As for Davy himself, it seems that he got elected to the Legislature mainly becamse of his ability to tell earthy stories. He also wrote an autobiography two years before the Mexicans killed him at the Alamo battle.

Religious Overtones

A year or two ago the English writer and critic Kathleen Knott wrote a book called "The Emperor's Clothes" which was widely reviewed in the United States. It is an attack on many of the theories and assumptions of writers like T. S. Eliot, Graham Greene, and C. D. Lewis who are religious writers and who, according to Miss Knott, bring their religious beliefs into all their literary activities. Next Tuesday, at 11.00 p.m. on CBC Trans-Canada, "Anthology" will present a panel discussion of these contemporary religious novelists, poets, and critics — and the question of religion in literature. Taking part will be Kathleen Knott herself, D. S. Savage and an Anglo-Catholic writer.

Square Dancers Ranked Second At Ormstown

A district square dance team, the only ones in identical costumes, took second-place honors at the Ormstown Exhibition Saturday evening. There were five teams entered in the event, held on the closing night of the Fair.

The local set was comprised of Clifton Berry (leader), and Pat Menard, of Brownsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Tomalty, Wayne Berry and Frances Robertson, and Ken Wilson, and Glenna Kennedy, of Brownsburg. The latter two couples, along with leader Clifton Berry, are all members of the Lachute district Square Dance team named winners last November by the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association at their annual frolic. Murray Lister called for the local dancers.

The team danced to two changes of their own and one picked out by the Fair Committee, placing second to a Huntingdon team. Members of the outfit remarked that the dance style, calls and point system were somewhat different from those anticipated at the Lachute Spring Fair, where the local octette will once again be competing against numerous other sets.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

A fuzzy picture of John grinning foolishly from ear to ear while holding the prize fish he caught is better than no picture at all — but with just a little effort you can come back with vacation pictures which will thrill you for years to come.

Try these ideas for better shots:

(1) Blurred pictures usually are caused by camera movement, so whenever possible rest the camera on a rock, a tree stump, or the car fender. Your shots are 50 per cent better already.

(2) Pose your people first — then ask them to look one-quarter to the right or left. No self-conscious, glassy-eyed stares that way.

(3) Snap Sis as she walks away or toward that monument. You'll find that even such simple "action" is far better than a stiffly posed shot.

(4) No need to duplicate the professional scenes you get on postcards, so save your film for extra shots of the car packing, roadside picnics, wading on the beach, fishing, hiking, etc.

As you shoot, mail the exposed rolls home so the prints will be ready on your return — and you can begin to relive the trip as soon as it's over!

Hollywood Revamps Bible

By G. E. MORTIMORE,
"All Aboard" Columnist

Hollywood is busy improving on the Bible again. This time the parable of the Prodigal Son has been put through de Mille.

An Author with a very big Name dictated the original scenario, and Luke wrote it down.

A colored advertisement for the movie came out in a national magazine the other day. Eleven actors and actresses are listed, including Lana Turner and Edmund Purdom, and the screen play is by Maurice Zimm, Joe Breen, Jr., and Samuel James Larsen.

The Author and Luke seem to have been left out of the credit list. Just an oversight, I suppose. A busy producer can't think of everything. Incidentally, the film was directed by Richard Thorpe and produced by Charles Schnee. Cecil B. de Mille didn't really have anything to do with the movie — but he started all this.

The original script was only about 450 words long and — let's face it — very poor theatre. Not a single love scene. Not even a small battle — say involving only 10,000 men and 1,000 elephants.

It was just a simple tale about a lad who left home, spent all his money and nearly starved to death. Then he came home, and his father threw a big feast because he was glad to see the boy again.

But those smart screen writers, Maurice Zimm, Joe Breen, Jr., and Sampel James Larsen, have built up the story and given it a professional polish.

"The Most Dramatic Story of Temptation Ever Told. . . In The Most Magnificent Spectacle Ever Seen," the advertisement says. I haven't seen the movie yet, but the ad gives me some idea.

"Two years in the making! A fortune to produce."

The advertisement contains several colored pictures of Lana Turner wearing beads and a sultry smile, and little else. In one picture, Lana and the Prodigal Son are reclining on a red carpet and having a talk, and you can tell by the look on the Prodigal Son's face that he isn't ready to go home yet.

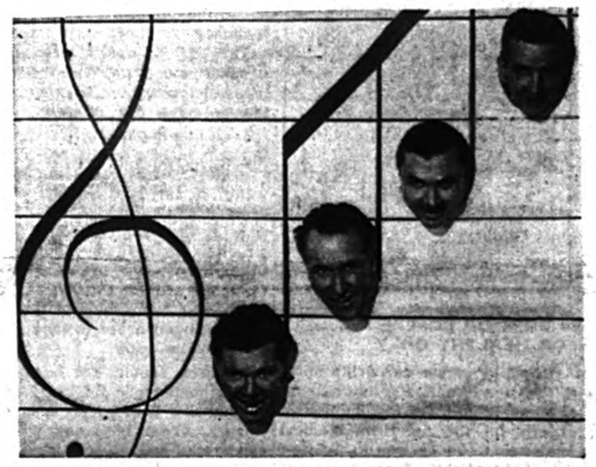

The advertisement also has other pictures, hinting at "a myriad of thrills . . unparalleled wonder and splendor!" in the movie itself. The scenes are catalogued as follows: —

"I. Pagan Princess in the Temple of Love! 2. Sacrifice of the Innocents on the flaming altar! 3. Revolt of the Slaves and their orgy of Vengeance! 4. The Vulture Pit, an awesome sight! 5. Romance of the Prodigal Son in sin-ridden Damascus!"

The fatted calf is a prominent figure in the original story, but I don't see any reference to the calf here. Who plays the fatted calf in the picture — Lana Turner?

Some swine have a leading role in the Bible version. The Prodigal Son gets so hungry that he is tempted to steal their food. However, I don't see any reference to these animals either. . . Where are the swine?

Note — The Commodores

Men of note are "The Commodores" — and not just musical note, since they have sung in Britain, Holland, Belgium and Germany, as well as right across Canada and in parts of the United States. Their European tour goes back to the War when they were part of the Navy Show. Since their return, they have been giving concerts from coast to coast, many by way of CBC broadcasts. Currently they are heard Tuesday nights on the Trans-Canada network, singing western ballads, sea chanteys, operatic melodies and negro spirituals. Reading up the scale they are: Donald Parrish, bass; John Ringham, baritone; Carl Tapscott, second tenor and leader of the group; and Harvard Reddick, first tenor.

Summer Salads

What does it take to make a summer dinner or supper a success? For the hungry ones it takes food that is filling but not heavy with appetizing color, flavor and texture. For the custodian of the family health it takes nutritious and well-balanced meals and for the keeper of the purse it takes economy.

Greens are the basis of most salads and it is important to always use fresh, clean crisp ones. Since many of our Canadian greens are in season now this is the time to keep a variety of salad makings on hand. It is not advisable, however, to keep them too long because the fresher the greens are the better the salad will be.

As soon as the salad makings are brought into the kitchen, trim any that may need it and store them in a tightly covered vegetable crisper. It is best to wash the salad makings just before using them. Plastic bags are also very handy for storing salad greens either in the refrigerator or in some other cool place.

Several types of greens can be combined for delicate flavor and color contrast. Lettuce, both leaf and head, is probably the best known green. Its crisp whole leaves make perfect nests for salad mixtures and shredded lettuce is a fine foundation for moulded salads.

Watercress not only makes a very attractive garnish but with its fresh peppery flavor it adds zest to any salad. Curly green parsley, shredded spinach, cabbage, and shallots all look and taste good in the salad bowl. Stalks of celery are excellent diced or sliced in a salad or made into attractive celery curls or stuffed to use as a garnish. Celery leaves may also be used right in the salads to garnish them.

Here are a few tips worth following from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, for making a fresh, crisp tossed salad. Tear rather than cut the greens into medium sized pieces. Always combine a tossed salad lightly, using two forks, to keep the greens fresh and crisp, and toss, never stir or mix. Use only a small amount of dressing and add it just before serving the salad.

For a more filling salad to serve with cold meat why not try potato combined with diced fresh, crisp cucumber and radish slices. Only a little cucumber is needed and it is best to add it shortly before serving the salad so that the cucumber will retain its crispness. This is a most attractive salad to serve with the green of the tender cucumber skin and the red of the radishes peeping out from the creamy white diced potato.

When it comes to dressing it is often said that it is the dressing that makes the salad. So the clever homemaker keeps French dressing, mayonnaise and cooked salad dressing on hand. All three keep very well in covered jars in the refrigerator. With these basic dressings on hand a different one can be made every time a different salad is made for there are a whole host of things that can be added to dressings. To name a few there is chopped pickle, catsup, garlic, cottage cheese and whipped cream. Some people like to rub the salad bowl with garlic but it is delicious added right to the dressing if it is done with discretion.

To garnish is the final touch to an attractive salad but to be sparing with it for over garnishing can spoil the whole effect. When salads are served as a separate course what is served with them is important. Crisp crackers covered generously with cheese, sprinkled with paprika and placed under the broiler for a minute makes a very good accompaniment. Melba toast or cheese straws are especially good with fruit and vegetable salads. Hot cheese biscuits or muffins are also delicious with crisp, cold salads.

"Was your lecture on economy a success?" asked Blankley.

"Yes," replied Blinkson, "they gave me two hearty cheers."

Barbecue Sauce for Dad's Broiled Chicken

Are you having broiled or barbecued chicken for Dad on "his day"? Then clip these recipes for Barbecue Sauces from the Poultry Products Institute. They are especially good and will add that extra zip to the chicken. They may be used even if you bake the chicken portions or halves, rather than broil them. Try marinating the chicken in the sauce for an hour or so before cooking. Be sure to keep refrigerated though.

P.P.I. Barbecue Sauce

1 Cup salad oil, ¼ cup butter, ½ cup vinegar, 2/3 cup water, 2 teaspoons grated or scraped onion, 1 to 1½ teaspons salt, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, ½ teaspoon oregano, ¼ teaspon paprika.

Mix ingredients and simmer five minutes. Use to baste chicken for broiling and serve hot as dunking sauce for the cooked chicken.

Delicious Barbecue Sauce

1 Medium sized onion (minced), 1 teaspoon brown sugar, 2 teaspons dry mustard, 2 teaspons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup butter, ½ teaspoon tobasco sauce or dash of cayenne pepper, 1 cup catsup, 2-4 tablespoons Worcestershire Sauce, 2 cups tomato juice, ½ cup vinegar or lemon juice.

Combine all ingredients in saucepan and simmer 10 minutes. Sufficient for 4 to 5 broilers.

For added flavor touches and added variety with broilings or frying chickens, try seasoned French dressing, lemon and butter or butter and herbs (such as oregano or rosemary or poultry dressing) in place of Barbecue Sauce.

To barbecue on an outdoor grill, place broiler chickens on rack, skin side away from the heat. Brush chicken pieces frequently with sauce and turn at least every 10 or 15 minutes. Test for "doneness" at the end of 45 to 50 minutes. Twist drumstick and if bone separates from socket or leg bone twists out of meat, chicken is cooked. Do not under-cook broilers — they will have a tendency to be rubbery but if properly cooked will be moist and tender.

To broil in the oven, place cut-up chicken or broiler halves or quarters in bottom of broiler pan, not on rack. Brush with sauce and cook, turning every 15 minutes. Be sure to start cooking with chicken skin side down and surface 6" to 8" from heat. Move pan closer to heat if chicken does not start browning at the end of 15 minutes. Brush with sauce frequently. Allow half of a small broiler or a quarter of a larger one per serving.

To bake, brush with fat or Barbecue Sauce and place skin side up in oven, preheated to 350°F. Bake until tender 1 to 1½ hours depending upon size of chickens. Same test for "doneness" may be applied as for broiling.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Madame, do you not think the delectable desserts in this column may be a great temptation to waistline-watchers?"

"Possibly, chef. But really it's not necessary to go without desserts and other favorites, if one simple menu adjustment is made. Eat a third less than usual of every food in the day's three meals. That cuts about 500 to 700 calories a day—enough for a reduction of 1 to 1½ pounds a week. You won't be hungry, because the foods in the diet are still balanced to meet all the needs of the body."

"Then the nice desserts need not be omitted?"

"No, just use smaller servings. Make baked custards in small cupcake pans. Mould gelatines and other gelatin desserts in small paper cups. Cut 9" pies into 12 wedges instead of six. Use a pint of ice cream for six servings instead of four, and top with a spoonful of chilled fresh fruit or half-thawed frozen fruit. Use smaller dishes and plates for desserts, to make the servings look larger."

Girls May Share In YMCA Projects

Toronto (CP) — It's not unusual for a delegate to the national council of the YMCA to be young and unmarried, but it's comparatively new for them to be women.

Eunice Gardner, who represented the Chatham, Ont., YMCA at a recent national conference here, is a writer and broadcaster by profession. She and Mrs. E. W. Fielder of West Vancouver, B.C., were the first women delegates to attend a national council, emphasizing an increase of women's activities in the YWCA.

Some 25 per cent of the Y membership is made up of women, 54,000. About one-third of the associations now have women on their boards.

Both Miss Gardner and Mrs. Fielder agree that men are getting used to have women in the Y.

"Men are wonderful organizers," Miss Gardner said, "and they like to have women around to do the work."

Reports at the council meeting revealed that including women in found the volume of work with men and boys was generally higher in associations which included women and girls.

Mrs. Fielder said there are as many girls as boys in West Vancouver YMCA.

She got into the work eight years ago, leading a mixed youth group, and is also president of her local Parent Teachers Association council. She has three daughters, 14, 12, and 4, and she coaches a girls' softball team for the Y.

Miss Gardner got into Y work through an interview with a Chatham Y girls' work secretary. She is now chairman of the program council and was named to the board this spring. In August she goes to Paris as a delegate to the young adults conference of the World Alliance of the Y.

Mrs. Margaret Smith, president of the YWCA of Canada, presented a report of the committe of YM-YW relations and a sample constitution for joint YM-YWCAs.

WOMEN ON ALERT

Kentville, N.S. (CP) — Hilda Hesson, of Winnipeg, says she finds Nova Scotia women are showing an increased interest in provincial and federal politics and a more thorough interest in economic and social problems.

The woman's organizer of the National Progressive Conservative Association was making a speaking tour of King's County to step up organization.

Fashions

The nicest choice for dining out on a lovely night when one wants to look well but not be overdone, is a disarmingly simple dress of the type depicted here. The fabric is floaty chiffon, the color is beige and it is self collared with straight, set-in sleeves. Only ornamentation is a self bow atop the buttoned front band. The long torso line breaks into unpressed pleats for a graceful skirt.

Q.W.I. Medical Topic 'Not Dry As It Sounds'

"It will not be as dry as it sounds", says Dr. Anis Harrison, M.B., B.S., speaking of the title of her address, "Modern Trends in Medicine", which will be given at the provincial convention of the Quebec Women's Institutes at Macdonald College, June 21-24. Dr. Harrison received her degrees in medicine and surgery in England, serving in many hospitals there and doing some general practice. Coming to this country as the wife of an Anglican clergyman, she now lives in North Hatley. Dr. Harrison is not practising here, but lectures in Nutrition at the Sherbroke Hospital. She will be the speaker at the morning session, Thursday, June 23.

Mrs. Doyle Klyn, Montreal, Staff Writer for Weekend Magazine, will discuss "What's News" at the afternoon session the same day. Mrs. Klyn was born in Winnipeg and began her writing career as a free lance. She has been connected with newspapers in Montreal since 1947 when she joined the staff of the Montreal Standard. She has been with Weekend since 1951. Mrs. Klyn will give pointers on writing stories of your meetings and how to get the most and best publicity for your organization.

All sessions on Thursday are open to the public, including the evening. Plans for the last one are not complete but the Harwood Singers, a choral group sponsored by the Harwood W.I., Dorion, will be one feature of the program.

The public is also invited to the formal opening the preceding evening, Wednesday, June 22nd. All sessions are held in the Assembly Hall of the College.

30 CUPS OF COFFEE, FOR HEALTHY ONLY

A healthy person can drink up to thirty cups of coffee a day without harming himself, in the opinion of experts for the American Medical Association. In answer to queries, the Association's Journal quoted one consultant as saying: "Drinking twenty cups of coffee a day wouldn't hurt you unless you were not completely healthy to begin with." Another expert stated that this much coffee might produce nervousness, trembling, insomnia, extra heart beats and headache. However, he added, "in healthy persons these effects ordinarily are not serious" and disappear promptly if the amount of coffee drinking is reduced. He warns, however, that where organic ailments exist, the excessive use of coffee every day without harmful effects.

Safe in A Boat

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Does your child know what to do and what not to do in a boat? In 1952 in Canada 1,429 people lost their lives from drowning and of this number 456 were children under 15 years. The origin of a few of these tragedies lay in old and unseaworthy craft or faulty motors. But a great many more of these fatal accidents took place because the occupants of the boat were ignorant about safety procedure on the water. Foolhardiness in a boat is very silly. Drowning is so permanent!

Taking care of possessions is something which most children must learn from imitation and instruction. A boat is no exception to this rule. Boys and girls should be taught that boats are valuable; they cost money! They are necessary for travel in many parts of the world and they are essential for the commerce of mankind. Pleasure boats add much to the relaxation and enjoyment of a holiday. It is usually a boat of this type in which boys and girls are especially interested.

They should learn to carry paddles or oars with the blade upright in the air so as not to crack or dint the blade. Children should never sit in a boat and rock it when it is pulled up on dry land. Fishing from a canoe is too dangerous. No one should stand up in a canoe or a boat or change places while out on the water.

Children can be a real help in keeping any small craft baled out and free from sand or dirt which injure the finish of the inside of a boat. When in strange, shallow water they can help watch for rocks or floating logs or "dead heads" which might rip the boat.

Strict rules about the use of boats by boys or girls are enforced at any first-rate camp. No camper is allowed to go out in a canoe or a sail boat until that camper has passed a swimming test. A non-swimmer is thus very eager to qualify for the special privilege of a paddle or a sail. In these two types of boats there is greater risk than in a row boat or punt.

Even in comparatively safe boats, in camp, non-swimmers must put on life belts before going out on the water, in the boat in charge of a capable adult. There is a definite time in the camp schedule for instruction, not only in swimming, but in learning to row, to paddle or sail. Campers are taught how to care for a boat, the names of the parts of a boat and never to take foolish risks on the water.

Children should not be allowed to use home-made rafts or logs nor go out in a boat which is not seaworthy. Older boys and girls are eager at a cottage to run a motor boat. The All Canada Insurance Federation experts recently stressed the importance of these boats being equipped with both life preservers and fire extinguishers. They also added the warning that speeding in motor boats may be just as dangerous as in cars.

Good safety rules for boys and girls in boats at a camp or at a cottage are as follows: A boat is no place for fooling or wrestling. Act sensibly. Help keep the boat level from side to side and on an even keel from bow to stern. Don't go in an overloaded boat, overloaded with freight or passengers. Don't lean over the side of a boat. If you can't swim, wear a life-preserver belt when you go in a boat. Don't go out in stormy weather in a boat and don't attempt to shoot rapids.

If a sudden rain storm comes up or an unexpected "blow", keep calm and don't panic! Practice hanging on to an overturned boat. Clasp the wrists of a person on the other side of the boat and let that person grasp your wrists. Then if either of you should tire, the grasp of the other person might prevent the fatigued one from slipping under the surface for good!

Last, but not least, if the boat should tip, even if you are a good swimmer, and not far from land, stick to the boat. Numerous drownings could be avoided if this excellent rule had only been followed. Never try to swim to shore. You will avoid danger from cramps, fatigue or weeds by staying with the boat until help arrives.

more arias per hour

Dark, dreary days depress canaries, too. They just don't feel like singing. But now—good news for canary coloraturas! If they'll arrange to have the bottom of their cages lined with aluminum, they'll sing through the darkest day. The light reflected from the sparkling metal foil gives their souls that springtime lift.

People find endless household uses for aluminum foil. So does industry—for everything from fire-fighting clothing to photo-flash bulbs, to wrapping for candy and food. Canada used 8 million pounds of foil last year.

Electronic brush saves money on costly wire

— promotes trouble-free telephone service

In little ways as well as big we're always on the search for trouble-shooters that will not only protect your telephone service but keep its costs down, too . . .

Here a Bell technician is testing the telephone lines in your neighborhood. Carefully and quickly his hand brushes the circuits in the telephone building with an electronic "line patrol". He is hunting for weather-worn wires which may cause a noisy line or snap during a storm.

Forewarned by this periodic testing we send a man to change the faulty line — which could be the "drop line" running from your home to the main telephone cable.

Because of this electric detective we can use expensive wire until its service life expires fully, without sacrificing material or manpower. And that helps us to keep your telephone costs down.

Garden-Graph

As result of weather conditions, flat-grown tomato plants often become overly tall and leggy before they can be transplanted into the home vegetable garden.

The solution is to plant such leggy seedlings in a trough-shaped hole, three or four inches deep, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Lay the lower portion of the stem, as well as the roots, in the trough with the top portion turned upward and tied to a stake, as illustrated. Cover the roots and bare lower stem, and additional roots will develop all along the buried stem.

The trough-like hole is better for such tall plants than a vertical one deep enough to get the plant down in the ground. The latter type of hole puts the roots down so deep that they are likely to suffer from lack of air and consequently grow slowly.

When stem and roots are buried no more than four inches, the soil aeration at that depth is usually sufficient for rapid root development. Make a point of laying the stem and roots in the direction of the row so that when cultivating the plants the roots will not be injured or broken.

To help seedling tomato plants recover from the shock of transplanting, give them a feeding of liquid fertilizer, as shown in the Garden-Graph. You can mix the feeding yourself. Use a complete, balanced plant food. Follow directions given on the package. Pour the solution over the roots of each plant before covering them to soil surface.

LAST DAYS OF BYTOWN

Predecessor of Ottawa, the Nation's Capital

Glimpses Across the Span of A Century

— By ANNE FORBES DEWAR —

PART II

A fire in Bytown was a stirring event. When the alarm bell rang, the companies ran to their stations. Any nearby horse could be requisitioned to draw an engine, and if none were available, and the firemen could not haul it themselves without help, any passer-by might be expected to take a hand. A reward of 20 shillings was given to the company which had its engine first in action at the scene of the fire. At the sound of the tocsin the town water carriers sprang to action, making for the unfailing source of supply — the river — with their puncheons on two-wheeled carts, and the race was on, for the first to arrive at the fire would receive a bonus of One Pound sterling, even if most of the water had splashed out of the puncheon on the way.

Public Health was important, the memories of several cholera epidemics and the recent one of ship fever, or typhus, being in every mind. A Sanitary Committee was appointed "for the cleansing of the streets and yards of the town as a preparatory step for the protection of the inhabitants against diseases incident to the warm season of summer."

Drains had to be made to draw off the stagnant water from Sparks Street and other places. The order was given for 175 copies (100 in English and 75 in French) of a pamphlet entitled, "Practical Views on Cholera." A shed was erected on a vacant lot, in case of a sudden outbreak, and the work of building a hospital on Ottawa Street near the Rideau River was begun. Drs. Van Courtlandt and Beaubien were appointed to be in charge as medical officers.

As to other local improvements a large number of requests for sidewalks had to be turned down, as not of necessity, for the budget had to be severely curtailed in view of the fact that the Town was committed to a share of the expense of building the Bytown and Prescott railway, of which the amount was somewhat disconcerting. And yet a sum of Fifty Pounds was voted to help in the publication of Mr. Whitefield's "Views of Bytown". This might seem to be a little in the nature of being "penny-wise and pound foolish," but the future of Bytown must always be kept in mind, and this might be good publicity.

Loyalty also had its claims. At a special meeting of the Council in May this conclusion was arrived at, after due consideration; "That each recurring anniversary of the Sovereign of this realm having, in the mercy of Providence, brought continued blessings on the millions who are subject to the British Crown, blessings which they enjoy under the present and most effective government in the world, this Corporation, on the part of the inhabitants of Bytown deem it a duty to observe in an especial manner the anniversary of the birthday of her most Gracious Majesty the Queen.

"That such expression of the people is more imperative at a time when the Mother Country is embroiled in a war (Crimean War) which is likely to demand her utmost energies, as well as those of her chivalrous ally, when the sympathy of Canada, the strongest colonial arm of the British Empire, may reasonably be looked for."

The Mayor was asked to issue a proclamation inviting the co-operation of the citizens in the celebration.

On May 31st the local press announced the result as follows:

"Wednesday, the 24th, being the birthday of Her Most Gracious Majesty, it was celebrated with all due honor. At an early hour the glorious meteor flag of old England was seen fluttering in the breeze from the highest point of many of our loftiest buildings. At nine o'clock a salute of 35 guns was fired from Barrack Hill followed by a Royal Salute at noon. In the afternoon a cricket match provided the amusement.

"At night all the principal buildings were illuminated. Among those which made the best appearance was the four-storey stone store occupied by Messrs. Robinson & Heubeck. The great number of windows in this building lighted from the bottom to the top produced a very fine effect. The residence of His Worship the Mayor on Wellington Street also presented a very fine tasteful appearance, and looked exceedingly well. The trees in front were hung with colored lamps, and a transparency with the Crown and the letters V.R. supported by the Town and County Arms elicited much admiration. All the stores closed at 6 p.m. A splendid band of the amateur musicians of the town in one of Mr. Beauchamp's carriages proceeded through the streets, followed by the Fire Companies in uniform. At dark a bonfire was lit on Barrack Hill."

The press admits that the torchlight procession would have been better if the lamps the men carried had not been almost burned out before they got started. However, there were fireworks, and altogether it was a very happy day for all and was pronounced a great success.

In June of that year Lord Elgin concluded the Reciprocity Treaty with the United States, securing free trade in the products of the sea, the fields, the forests and the mines — a measure, it was said, more pleasing to Canada than to the Maritime Provinces. Our two currencies were exchanged at par on both sides of the International Line, whereas between Canada and the Maritimes there was a discount of 5% on both sides.

The timber industry had begun to attract business men from across the line. Among others Messrs. Pattee & Perley, and Harris, Bronson & Company, were getting established, having bought hydraulic lots on the Ottawa at the Chaudière. Mr. E. B. Eddy had begun in a very small way to make matches in Hull.

Bytown was getting to be a busy place. The principal street was Sussex. Five banks were in operation, the Bank of Montreal, the British North American, the Bank of Upper Canada, the Bank of Kingston and the Quebec Bank. Of the latter Bytown was becoming a very profitable agency, since the lumber trade was its leading industry, of which Quebec was the headquarters. Mr. Noel the local representative was a most trustworthy man. Every evening he carried home the cash in a tin box, and it was said that for greater safety he kept the box under his own bed at night.

Two newspapers flourished in that year, the "Bytown Gazette", a bi-weekly owned by Mr. Robert Bell, and the "Citizen", successor to the "Packet," then being published every Saturday morning. The writer was fortunate in being able to see the full issue of 1854 of the latter journal.

Each copy had four extra large pages, with exceedingly small print, which was not very black. Hand presses were in use at that period. The front page was entirely devoted to advertisements of all kinds. The garments and dress goods offered included Australian robes, poplin robes, plain and fancy satin vestings in great variety, Canadian cassimeres, Whitneys, satinettes, Cobourgs, Orleans, Russian ducks, delaines, lustres and alpacas in all the different shades and colors at from seven pence half penny to three shillings a yard.

There were no illustrations, but repetition was used in the headlines to attract attention in this way, "Chairs, Chairs, Chairs," "Hats, Hats, Hats," "Rags, Rags, Rags," "Feathers, Feathers, Feathers," "British Drugs, British Drugs, British Drugs."

Messrs. Macarthur & MacDougall, at the sign of the Big Auger, always had their advertisement inserted upside down, and J. Smith, "Clockmaker, Watchmaker & Jeweller, etc., etc., etc.," used the same method to attract the roving eye.

William Young, M.D., announced that the "Pocket Aesculapius — Doctor Yourself" or "Every Man His Own Doctor" was now available at only 25 cents.

Plantagenet Water and Gloucester Springs Water were available. From all accounts beverages other than these had been freely used in Bytown, but that is another story.

The editor commented on the arrival of the last issue of Godey's Ladies' Book, which he judged "a superb number". Not much space was given to local news. Council meetings were reported, vital statistics seldom appeared, although it was noticed that in one month there had been two births; one in Bytown and one in Aylmer, and mention was made of the marriage at Rideau Hall of Jessie, youngest daughter of Thomas Mackay, to Thomas McLeod Clark, Esquire, of Toronto, by the Reverend Thomas Wardrope.

Altar To Be Erected for Eucharistic Congress

This dignified structure will rise in front of the grandstand at the Exhibition Grounds next week — a scene in striking contrast to the appurtenances of Lachute Fair, presently in progress. This repository for the Regional Eucharistic Congress was designed and sketched by Maurice Champagne, arthitect; it is 80 feet long, 50 feet in depth and 25 feet high, decorated in yellow and white. The structure is being built in sections, to be assembled immediately after the Fair.

To Be Ordained Priests

(Left) The Rev. Raymond Dumais and (right) l'Abbe Jacques Joannette, young Lachute men who will be ordained into the Catholic priesthood in a ceremony highlighting the Eucharistic Congress to be held in Lachute June 23 to 26, inclusive. The ordination rites, to include a third candidate, the Rev. Mozart Pelletier, of Alexandria, Ont., will take place Sunday, the last day of the observances.

The Rev. Raymond Dumais is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. E. Dumais, Main Street; he is a member of the Clercs St. Viateur, and has a brother, Paul, in the same order of the priesthood. . . L'Abbé Jacques Joannette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Joannette, Sydney Street, will be attached to the Cathedral pastorate at St. Jerome. He also has a brother in the St. Viateur order.

Good Old Dobbin Keeps Costs Down

Say Horse-Drawn Vehicles Are More Economical for Deliveries

Peterborough, Ont. (CP) — There are about 50 horses left in this city and they are not kept for purely sentimental reasons.

Many firms find horse-drawn vehicles practical in making door-to-door deliveries. Milk and bread companies say that if it weren't for the horses the prices of these commodities would be more expensive than they are today.

Jim Armstrong, Campbell's Dairy Products Ltd. sales manager explains that financially the horses are by far the better proposition for short delivery routes. A good wagon horse costs about $200 and its wooden milk-wagon $300. The horse has a working life of around 10 years and the wagon will last about that time too.

Campbell's stable of 12 horses goes through a ton of hay costing $18 in just under a week.

"We have to use trucks for outside routes and wholesale routes, but in the city we use just the horses," he says. "That is the only way we can keep delivery costs down. Our other costs have risen so much that it is only by hanging onto the horses we can keep our retail prices level."

"The horses will gradually fade out because they are so hard to obtain but we will keep them going as long as possible. When the horses do go we will probably pioneer electric trucks made in England, which cost $5,700 each, but take only 26 cents a day to operate and last for 10 years."

There hasn't been a utrck invented yet that will follow the delivery man along the road as he makes his door-to-door calls. A horse picks this time-saving habit up very quickly.

ASTHMA MAY BE EIGHT DISEASES

Asthma is one of our most elusive diseases. Even though some modern drugs are highly effective in alleviating athmatic attacks and preventing their recurrence, no real cure has yet been found.

Perhaps the answer lies in a recent report by a Northern American specialist. According to him the illness is actually eight different diseases. He believes that an asthma victim's gasping and wheezing may be due to allergy, obstruction of the air passages, heart trouble, bacterial infection, and emotional disturbances. In addition, diseases of the nose, as well as exposure to temperature extremes or noxious chemicals, may bring on an attack.

Though the causes may range from sensitivity to cat fur to trouble with in-laws, the symptoms of the condition are the same: breathing becomes a gasping nightmare because of narrowed, mucus-clogged air passages. The constriction of the air passages is often aggravated by the resulting panic experienced by many patients. One of the newer anti-asthmatic drugs, called tedral, has been reported to relieve asthmatic attacks effectively: through three-pronged action it relaxes the muscle of the bronchi, it opens up the air passages and reduces the mucus congestion, and also calms the patient, thereby forestalling future attacks. Good All-Round Show, Verdict of Lachute Fair-goers

Interests Well Balanced for Patrons Of All Fancies – Weather Favorable

Attendance at 129th Annual Event Higher Than '54; Friday Night Peak

Celebrating the 129th anniversary of the founding of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, the Lachute Spring Fair last week presented one of the biggest all-round programs in the long history of this event. The four-day and four-night run closed Saturday evening with the paid attendance considerably higher than last year. Contributing to this uptrend was the favorable weather which prevailed throughout the exhibition.

The well-rounded livestock show provided plenty for all to see, besides offering excellent competition for the exhibitors. The fact that entries in some breeds were a little lower than in previous years, detracted in no way from all-round competitive aspect. By contrast, in several breeds, including Holstein cattle, the entry lists were higher and established new records in some cases.

Trade Shows

The trade and industrial section, which embraces the exhibits of farm machinery and equipment, cars and trucks, home appliances, boats and motors, and household heating, cooking and furnishing, was notably larger than in previous years. Most of those in charge of these exhibits were gratified with the public interest displayed, and felt that the effort would be repaid in good publicity and business returns. Many local firms were represented, both outdoors and in the covered booths. The Lions and Rotary Club also capitalized on this big occasion, as in years past.

In Main Building

A drawing card in the Main Building was the Argenteuil Health Unit's usual free chest X-ray clinic. Examinations were down 420 from the record set in 1953; a total of 934 people will receive their reports for 1955 within a month or so. (The decrease in applicants in the past two years is doubtless due to a more complete coverage by the mobile X-ray unit in recent years, concentrating on the district industries and communities.) Incidentally, Dr. L. Turcotte, County Health Officer, advises that the mobile unit will once again commence its clinics throughout the county, starting in approximately three weeks.

Women's Handicrafts

Excellent displays of Women's Handicrafts were also on show in the Main Building, with all local branches of the Women's Institutes, as well as the Cercle des Fermieres from Brownsburg. Similar exhibits from Lachute High School were also shown, featuring an excellent display of wood and metal work furniture and cabinet making. Winners of these competitions are published in the following pages.

Of special interest in the Main Building was the Quebec Department of Mines display, showing specifically ores and mineral products from deposits in this area — notably at Kilmar and Oka.

Before the Grandstand

This year's horse show, one of the main attractions of the Fair, will long be remembered as one of the best ever, an excellent display having been presented at all performances. Main attractions here, besides the heavy horses, jumpers, hunters and saddle horses, were the four and six-horse teams. A fireworks display was presented Thursday evening, while the Stakes contests in the different horse classes were the main attraction Friday evening. The Square Dance competition was held Saturday evening.

Calf Show

Saturday forenoon, the bleachers near the cattle barns were filled to overflowing for the juvenile farmers' special events. All interested in the youngsters' progress were on hand to do justice to the calf show and judging contest.

There were 47 animals exhibited in the Inter-Club calf classes, and a Jersey class was held this year for the first time. Pictures of the champion juvenile showmen and complete results will be found on page 9.

Midway Concession

Bernard & Barry Shows were once again located in the midway; this firm having given satisfaction here several years ago. The midway concession was larger, however, providing more amusements, especially designed for the children. Two ferris-wheels operated side by side, and there was no lack of thrill in the more exciting rides.

Law and Order

Members of Lt.-Col. Ernest Emmett's Imperial Frontiersmen were out in numbers patrolling the grounds and keeping traffic in the district under as orderly control as possible. Four of these men were on special duty under Police Chief L. Ducharme in Lachute, two with the Ayersville police, and 12 at the Fair Grounds.

Local Harness Winners

Ernest Kennedy won both heats in the 2.23 and 2.21 harness racing classes, the first with "Lady Van B" and the latter driving "Senator Bars". Both events netted $200 purses. In the 2.24 class, Georges Joly's "Jane Proximity" placed first in the first heat and second in the second; this was also a $200 purse event. In Class 2.30, a $150 purse, Paul Joly's "Gordie Forbes" placed third in the opening heat and Alex Joly's "Ethel Bars" came first in the second heat. There were no district entries that placed in any of the other events.

Attendance

While attendance figures are not available, Manager Syd Patterson reports the paid admissions were up considerably from last year although still down from the 1948 record paid attendance of 25,698. The peak was reached Friday evening, when it was almost impossible to gain entry to the grounds by car for several hours.

Lions Club Booth Draws Patronage

Most of Awards Won By Local Subscribers

Rotary Club Also Gratified With Response

The stand at Lachute Fair representing one of the Lions Club's big annual fund-raising efforts for charity, was again well supported this year.

Winner of the major prize at Saturday night's drawing was Gaetan Laforest, Main Street restaurant-keeper, who chose an automatic washing machine. Other winning tickets drawn from the drum at this popular scene of activity brought prizes to the following:

Adrien Lacasse, Brownsburg — steam iron.
José Collins, Hull — automatic toaster.
D. Filon, Montreal — automatic toaster.
Miss C. Bourgeoys, Montreal North — automatic toaster.
Mrs. Albt. Thompson, Lachute — electric kettle.
Miss Marilyn Mitchell, Lachute — electric kettle.
Norman Boyd, Lachute — record-changer.
C. H. McGill, Lachute — auto. toaster.
Lorraine Gosselin, Lachute — electric kettle.
Mrs. A. Campeau, Lachute Mills — electric kettle.
Marian Low, Brownsburg — automatic toaster.
Bruce Hunter, Dunany — elec. kettle.
Lucien Coté, Montreal — elec. kettle.
Fern. Thibault, Lachute — elec. kettle.

In a special drawing Thursday night Philippe Guenette, Lachute, won a steam travelling-iron. On Friday night E. Houghton, of Montreal, won a similar prize.

Rotary Booth

The Rotary Club booth nearby also drew a continuous patronage. Big attraction here was a Plymouth automobile, to be awarded to some lucky winner in a drawing at Hawkesbury on July 1.

POWER SITES

Prince George, B.C. (CP) — Several possible sites for hydro-electric development have been located near this Central British Columbia city, says an official of the government operated Power Commission.

RICH VEIN

Cobalt, Ont. (CP) — A vein of silver assaying 10,000 ounces to the ton has been uncovered in the Silver Crater Mine in nearby Coleman township. The streak, about 30 per cent leaf silver, is about 25 feet long, 20 feet deep and four inches wide.

Year-End Session, Lions Club in Self-Appraisal

The last of their season's formal gatherings afforded an occasion for stocktaking and review, at the Lions Club meeting Tuesday evening.

Roger Regimbal, terminating his role as president, looked candidly at the highlights and the "low-lights" of the year.

The liabilities were those typical of any club: A negativeness in certain quarters — criticism without some worthwhile alternative to offer. The question of a major and all-absorbing "project". And, here and there, the "let George do it" characteristic.

It was a healthy appraisal, however, for the assets far outweighed the deficiencies: A consistently high attendance, averaging 80%. Excellent programs. Creditable representation in the wider spheres of Lionism. Worthwhile contributions to numerous community needs. Good publicity. An enthusiastic directorate, etc. And finally, the elevation of a local member, Horace Lamarche, to the office of Deputy District Governor.

Rousing applause was given to the retiring president for his fine leadership; and his successor, Ian Gordon, spoke optimistically of plans for the ensuing year. President Gordon will assume his official role in September.

A warm vote of appreciation was extended to Philippe Tremblay for his two years' service as club secretary.

Hundred per cent attendance badges were presented by Horace Lamarche to no fewer than 24 members, representing 40 per cent of the membership roll.

Gerard Lefebvre reported satisfactorily on the drawing and booth at Lachute Fair — net proceeds of $730 going to the club's charity funds.

A vote of thanks was extended to Romeo Paquette for his excellent catering at the season's suppers.

On view at this meeting was a new all-aluminum wheelchair, acquired by the club for the use of a crippled resident. A letter of appreciation from another handicapped citizen, for continued financial assistance, was among correspondence read by the secretary.

Several Convicted On Traffic and Vagrancy Charges

Three motorcyclists from the St. Jerome district were sentenced to fines of $15 plus costs or 10 days in jail, last Monday when they appeared before Henri St. Onge, J.P.

The trio, Jean Guy Gagnon, Yves Ladouceur, both of St. Jerome, and Zenon Coursol, of St. Janvier, were arrested Friday night by Police Chief L. Ducharme and charged with speeding on Main Street and failing to stop at the post-office corner. Chief Ducharme gave chase and eventually found the trio cowering in a field with their bikes, in the vicinity of Edgar Jackson's property east of town.

The Chief brought the men to the local cells, where they were released on bail. They appeared in police court here Monday and pleaded guilty. All three paid their fines.

Ray Fox, 40, of Kilmar, was sentenced to a fine of $15 plus costs or the alternative 15 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to failing to halt at a stop-sign and causing an accident. The incident occurred Friday evening around 8 o'clock, when Fox was driving east on Robert Street. He crashed into the side of a car driven by Donald McDonald, 44, of Lakefield, who was accompanied by Mrs. McDonald. Mr. Fox paid the fine and costs.

Damage to the Lakefield car was estimated at $400, while the Fox vehicle was damaged to the extent of about $100.

Paul Poirier, of Papineauville was sentenced to a $40 fine plus costs or a month in jail when convicted of vagrancy and drunkenness. He was arrested early Saturday morning and released around noon, the local officers giving him a chance. He was re-arrested a short time later, when the same charges were laid.

Henri St. Onge, J.P., handed down the sentence, and the prisoner chose the alternative of a month in St. Jerome jail. He was taken there by the local authorities.

Crude Craft and Four, Destination Europe

By Alex Dimeo

Quebec (CP) — Thousands of curious people visited Quebec's waterfront last week for a look at a crude raft and the four men who hope to sail it to Europe.

The raft and the four young adventurers arrived here Tuesday from Montreal. The amateur sailors then went about making arrangements for a tow to Newfoundland waters and the start of the trans-Atlantic trip.

Several tentative dates were set for the departure but at the end of the week the raft was still in the harbor. The men reported they had many offers of tows but had not agreed on which one to accept.

The crew members are Henri Beaudout, 28, the captain; Paul Lapointe, 24, the radio operator; Gaston Vanckere, 28, a photographer; and Bernard Souriel, 25. Lapointe is the only native Canadian in the expedition. The others were born in France but now are living in Montreal.

The raft, christened L'Egere (The Lost One) is equipped with a small sail. Once in the ocean, the crew will rely on the Gulf Stream and winds to carry them to the coast of Europe. The trip is expected to take two months.

"Holy Hour" at Shrine For Anglo-Catholics

On Saturday, June 25, at 3 o'clock, a "holy hour" will be observed at the Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes, on the Brownsburg Road.

This holy hour, at the request of His Excellency Bishop Frenette on the occasion of the Eucharistic Congress, is for the English-speaking Catholics of the St. Jerome diocese.

Supervised Recreation At Rotary Park

The Brownsburg community park and playground will be officially open next Monday, June 27 — according to officials of the Rotary Club, sponsors of this worthwhile project. Commencing on this date the park will be supervised every day from one to six p.m. (Although the facilities of the park and swimming pool are available to the public at the present time, there is no supervision.)

Believe Children Caused Small Outbreak of Fire

The first fire call in several months was issued last Thursday afternoon — the volunteer firemen being summoned to the lumber yard of L. St. Jacques Ltée, Chatham Street, to extinguish a small blaze believed set by children playing in the area. No damage resulted.

A number of the fire crew were given further instruction in the operation of the pump, last Monday evening at the monthly fire practice. The apparatus was hooked up to a hydrant in the vicinity of Lachute High School, and several parts of the equipment were tested for efficiency.

Organization Seeks Diplomatic Status

Quebec (CP) June 20 — A delegation from the International Civil Aviation Organization visited Premier Duplessis last week to request that Quebec grant them diplomatic status.

The world body, with headquarters in Montreal, conferred with Mr. Duplessis and Finance Minister Gagnon for more than two hours.

Following the meeting the Premier said several requests "appeared justified", while others appeared "less justified at first glance."

The demands, which include freedom from arrest and immunity from succession duties and income taxes, have fostered agitation to move the headquarters to another province or another country.

Mr. Duplessis said final decisions on the requests will be made following discussions with G. H. Shink, comptroller of revenue for the province.

Pride and Quality at Fair

Typical of the many honors accruing to local breeders and exhibitors is this twice-in-succession award, the George H. Watson trophy, won by Albert Cleland, East Settlement, with the best light draft team from Argenteuil County. Mr. Cleland (left) receives trophy from the donor, Mr. Watson.

Police Investigate Missing Wallets In 'Fair Week'

Three wallets containing considerable sums of money were "lifted" from the pockets of three victims last Friday night, while a fourth one reported missing was found and returned intact, containing $127 and personal papers.

Aureo "Reo" Campeau, a long-time employee of Jas. Duncan, reported his wallet missing early Saturday morning and stated that he had been in several local stores where it could have been lost. The loss was discovered when Mr. Campeau went to pay a bill at another establishment.

He had no sooner reported the matter to the police when the latter received a call from Mrs. Mabel MacDonald, resident on the St. Jerome highway, who reported she had found the wallet in a Main Street store. It was returned to its owner intact.

Three others victims did not have such good luck however: J. W. McCormick and Jacques Lapointe, manager and salesman with the Purity Flower Mills, reported losing their wallets which contained $12 and $65 respectively while in the Campeau Hotel, Main Street. A similar theft was reported by Stanley Brown, Brownsburg.

Chief Ducharme states he is positive of the identity of the thief, and action is being taken to insure his return here from Toronto, where he is presently with the midway crew who were here at Lachute Fair.

The local force was increased to seven men during the Fair Week; Sgt. Lalumiere and Messrs. Fournier, Villeneuve and Geauvreau, all of the Westmount unit of the Imperial Frontiersmen, serving within the town limits.

Pneumatic Drill Explodes Dynamite — Worker Killed

A 26-year-old Brosseau Station resident, Jean Guy Chretien, was killed last Wednesday while engaged on construction work at a Catholic school in Pte.-au-Chene. According to reports received, Chretien was instantly killed when a stick of dynamite exploded. It is believed the victim accidentally touched the explosive with a pneumatic drill.

Dr. Smith, of Hawkesbury was called to the scene and pronounced the victim dead. The body was taken to the morgue, where Dr. A. R. Coté, coroner for that district rendered a verdict of accidental death.

Sgt.-Det. Gustave Massie, of the Montreal Provincial Police, stated the accident had occurred when the dynamite was jarred by the drill; it is believed the stick of dynamite had been left forgotten in the sand.

Traffic Officer Roger Massie investigated the accident, notifying Montreal headquarters of the fatality.

Defence Estimates – Canada No Longer Ocean's Distance Away from War; Drew Favors Mobile Airborne Impact

By Don Peacock, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 22 (CP) — Defence was the focal point of attention in the Commons last week.

The members moved into debate on estimates of the defence department and it was plain that the problem of defending Canada itself is assuming a larger role in their eyes.

Defence Minister Campney, introducing the debate, said Canada can no longer count on being "an ocean away from war." It must as a result of war's new nearness to this continent, work closely with the United States to reckon with attacks on the homeland.

Opposition Leader Drew stepped in with the suggestion that Canada's army should be given wings — that is moulded into small, hard-hitting units completely airborne to meet invasion of this continent.

As the debate continued the topic most often discussed in past years — overseas military commitments — was largely ignored, discussion revolving instead around the needs of continental defence.

"Canadian Concept"

Mr. Drew called for a "distinctly Canadian concept of the organization of our forces." He said mobile airborne units, able to fight anywhere against aerial invasion of the northland, would best suit Canada's needs and would be Canada's best possible contribution to the ground forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The entire active army — and the reserve militia, too — should be set up on that basis, he said.

The planned rearmament of West Germany meant Canada would need fewer army units. This country should start planning small, hard-hitting units.

Mr. Drew, an artillery officer in the First World War, said the fact that atomic weapons have not been used in any wars since 1945 shows the need for conventional armies. But Canada needed "conventional units used in an unconventional way."

Complete air mobility was the only way to meet the threat of enemy paratroop landings in the north.

Mr. Campney said Canada cannot ignore the defence of Europe. That was the primary purpose of the 1st Division, of which the 1st Infantry Brigade is in West Germany.

But Canada had a "strong hitting force" in three airborne battalions which were the main army force for defence of Canada. The army was keeping abreast of modern developments and this summer would train in tactics developed to meet atomic warfare at the new Camp Gagetown in New Brunswick.

Mr. Campney, going before Parliament with defence department estimates for the first time since his appointment last July 1, spoke of the joint Canada - U.S. program of continental defence through air forces, radar chains and ground and air interception.

Canada would spend about $321,000,000 toward construction of the southern and mid-Canada radar detection systems — the U.S. is paying the full cost, estimated at $250,000,000 of the DEW (Distant Early Warning) line in the Arctic.

Canada could not carry out the tremendous task of continental defence by itself, He added, however, that "there is today no absolute defence against atomic and thermonuclear weapons."

His department estimates for the current year total some $1,775,000,000 and he said defence doubtless will continue to be costly.

"The present climate of international affairs appears to be moderating but we cannot be sure that the better weather of recent months will endure."

Adopt FN Rifle

Mr. Campney announced Canada has decided to adopt Belgium's FN automatic .300-calibre rifle as the standard weapon for the army, replacing the Lee-Enfield .303. It also has been adopted by the United Kingdom and Australia.

He said it is expected that all nine RCAF home defence squadrons will be armed with CF-100 jets by year's end. But the department is reviewing its original intention of arming auxiliary squadrons — the RCAF reserve — with the complex, heavy jet.

Ste. Adele Tradesman Recovered from N. River

An inquest into the death of Moise Bergeron, 67-year-old Ste. Adele carpenter, whose body was found on the shore of the North River Saturday, was opened in Ste. Adele by District Coroner J. L. Taillon.

At the close of initial hearings Tuesday, Dr. Taillon said the inquest would probably last for several days.

The autopsy report showed that Bergeron had drowned, but there was a cut on the victim's head which police believe was the result of a fall.

Bergeron disappeared a week ago Monday and was the object of an area-wide search for several days.

Annual federal income tax collections from individuals are now nearly twice the greatest amount collected in any one year during World War Two.

son of Mr. and Mrs. Euclide Ladouceur, St. Andrews East, who has graduated from Laval University with B.Sc. degree in Forestry and Surveying. This young student came first in his class, winning "great distinction" for his thesis.

Taking his B.A. degree from Ste Therese Seminary in 1951, Gilles won a four-year university scholarship. During his course he was awarded a Surveyors Corporation Prize in 1952 and the Rousseau Prize in 1954. He will continue post-graduate studies another two years to receive the doctorate in Forestry and Surveying.

Speedboat Mishap At Lake Resort

A near-tragedy occurred at Lake Louisa early Sunday afternoon, when two youths were thrown from their motorboat; the boat continued in its circuit and headed for the youths — one of whom was severely cut about the chest and arms by the propellor.

The incident occurred at the eastern end of the lake, in front of N. W. Boyd's cottage, when the two boys, André Desjardins, 13 (son of Ald. and Mrs. Romain Desjardins), and his cousin Pierre Rochon, 14, of L'Orignal, were speeding across the water with Desjardins' 15 h.p. outboard. As the craft turned, the boys were thrown into the water, and when the boat sped in their direction again, the motor came close enough to young Rochon to cut him severely.

André Desjardins, keeping a level head, reached into the boat which had remained upright and pulled the air and gasoline hoses off the tank, which immediately stopped the motor.

Young Rochon struck out for shore, where he was treated before being taken home. Nat Boyd and Philippe Roy, two summer residents, witnessed the incident and immediately headed for the scene; they pulled André Desjardins into their craft and towed the empty boat to shore.

Nine-Year-Old Boy Drowned at L'Orignal

Claude Lalonde, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lalonde of L'Orignal, was drowned in six feet of water near his home early Saturday afternoon when he fell into a creek attempting to recover a ball.

The boy was playing with two nine-year-old companions, when the ball apparently rolled into the creek. In his attempt to recover it he was drowned.

Robert Frankie heard the boys cries for help and pulled the victim from the water. Oxygen equipment from the Canadian International Paper Company was rushed to the scene, but proved useless.

Higher Hay Yields With Fertilizer

Ottawa — Farmers are advised to fertilize their hay crop. Dr. B. J. Finn of the Field Husbandry Division at the Central Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture in Ottawa, reports that good hay is the cheapest source of feed nutrients for livestock during the non-grazing season. The previous treatment of the land in manuring, fertilizing and cropping will determine the kind and rate of fertilizer for a hay crop.

For nine years fertilizers have been applied in 23 hay tests on different soil types in Carleton County. The soil types varied in texture from sand to clay loam. Hay yields in all experiments are calculated on a dry matter basis. That is hay with all the moisture removed. In this way results under any moisture conditions can be compared. One ton of ordinary field cured hay is equal to 1,600 lbs. of dry matter.

Phosphorous treatments increased the yield of hay particularly on the heavier textured soils by an average of 468 pounds of dry matter per acre. Applications of potassium resulted in a slight increase in the yield of hay on all soils except the clay loams. The increase averaged 85 pounds of dry matter per acre Nitrogen applied to oats used as a nurse crop, decreased the yields of the first year legume hay on all soil types. The decrease averaged 227 pounds of dry matter per acre.

These results suggest that when a grain crop serves as a nurse crop for legume seeding, a relatively lower level of nitrogen will be required. Emphasis should be placed on phosphorous and potassium treatments. The farmer interested in grain alone should apply nitrogen in addition to phosphorous and potassium.

Loose Housing Versus Stanchion Barns

Loose-housing for dairy cattle cuts considerably the time and travel required for dairy operations as compared with stanchion barns.

Labor analysis of 10 dairy farms using the loose-housing system was studied in detail by the Economics Division, Marketing Service, Federal Department of Agriculture. This analysis revealed that in loose-housing barns, 14 per cent less time and 27 per cent less travel were required annually than in stanchian barn systems.

Savings in winter dairy chores accounted for the major differences in loose-housing barns. Only about three-quarters as much time and three-quarters as many steps were used when caring for 20 milking cows and 30 cow equivalents. During the summer months six per cent more chore time was needed in the loose-housing system. This difference in time was due mainly to the fact that the cows moved slowly into the stalls at milking time.

In future years these figures may be revised as the loose-housing manner of handling cows is still comparatively new on Canadian farms. For further information on the subject write to the Information Service, Canada Department of Agriculture in Ottawa, and request Publication 913 — Labour Analysis of Dairy Barn Chores.

Save This Soil

Before the water starts to back up behind the new St. Lawrence Seaway dams, could we not scrape off and save the top soil of the farms to be flooded, asks The Financial Post.

We haven't so much rich farm top soil that we can afford to sit back and let thousands of acres drown. If the top foot or so could be saved at reasonable cost it could be used to great advantage, and we could save in other places too.

In recent months we have heard a great deal about industrial encroachment on our fertile farm lands. Here again it might be possible to remove and save much of the valuable top soil and put it to work elsewhere. After all it is the top six inches or so that is the most important to agriculture. But that same soft layer is no good at all under a factory floor or 30 feet of the expanded St. Lawrence River. As a matter of fact both the factory floor and the river bed would be more stable with the loose top scraped off.

There are an estimated 951,000 horses on Canadian farms. This compares with a peak of 2,501,000 back in 1921.

Best Display of Ayrshires — Cumming Bros.

Back in 1831, when Cyrus McCormick was building the first successful reaper, one man on the farm could produce the food needs of three and a half people. Today, says the current Reader's Digest, a farm worker can produce enough for himself and 18 others — and he need not labor from sun-up to sundown to do it.

Indians Less Prone To Cancers of Skin

Vancouver (CP) Cancer incidence rate for Indians is just about half what it is for the white population of Canada, a National Cancer Institute survey discloses. And Indians have much less cancer of the skin than do whites.

No explanation is given for this, the British Columbia division of the society reports. However, the survey is valuable in pointing out the difference, often leading to new fields of investigation and research.

Dissatisfaction With Police Protection

SOME OF OUR Lachute citizenry are presently urging a change in the local police force. A change of personnel, however, is not the need, in our opinion, for there has been every evidence of co-operation from Chief L. Ducharme and his men.

We maintain, however, that an improvement is needed. It is humanly impossible for three men to police a centre of this size 24 hours a day, seven days a week, leaving any provision for time off. The complement recognized by most municipalities is a Chief of Police, plus one man, per thousand population. At this rate, Lachute should have four additional men at the present time. Aldermen will cry "our budget"; taxpayers will cry "our taxes"; but if the latter are not satisfied with the present police protection due to the lack of men, it is up to the elected aldermen to adjust the budget for the best protection of the citizenry.

There are certain hours when there is no policeman on duty, although one officer is always on call. Even with a night watchman, as we presently have, certain circumstances might, and have arisen, when there is no one to answer the phone at the Police Station. It is past time the Police and Fire Committee, as well as the Council, take the word of its chief employees seriously when they ask for additional men or equipment. Chief Ducharme made such a request more than a year ago, but there are still only three men, including himself, on the force. A similar situation occurred with Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon, who requested additional equipment for the safety and protection of the town. . . As yet, the Council has done nothing concrete to improve matters, in either case.

The complaints will be more emphatic after a fatality or major emergency has occurred, but why take this chance if it can possibly be averted. Nothing can be gained by overworking men and equipment — this only incurs additional costs of overtime and upkeep, whereas the Council is attempting to avoid expense. Let's open the civic coffers where it will be to the best advantage of all concerned.

Good Slogan

SWEDEN starts a nation-wide education campaign August 1, which will be watched with interest elsewhere.

The key slogan is "Responsibility and Sobriety". It's a campaign to prepare the nation for the end of liquor rationing two months later.

Sweden's liquor control system has been in effect since 1919. In the first 15 years of the system cases of drunkenness dropped from 15 to six per 1,000, and then stayed around that level.

On the basis that the ration system has served its purpose in curbing injurious drinking, the Swedish parliament last year voted to end the costly rationing setup on October 1, 1955.

A cabinet minister said during debate: "In our efforts to combat the abuse of alcohol there remains only one course for us to pursue — the old stubborn fight for greater education and an enlightened civilization."

Hence the big campaign, subsidized by government funds but conducted under sponsorship of a central committee formed, at the government's invitation, by leaders of more than 60 organizations — labor, youth, sports, temperance and professional groups.

Movies, press advertisements, pamphlets, posters and meetings will avoid the negative approaches of "don't drink", or "drink less." Instead, responsibility to the individual and the community are being stressed.

The government itself has taken direct steps to de-emphasize liquor in the public mind. For example, it has ruled that alcoholic beverages may not be advertised for six months after September 1. A substantial sum was allotted for films and advertisements encouraging consumption of soft drinks. Another fund is set aside for restaurants which do not serve alcoholic beverages.

Swedes now drink about half as much hard liquor per capita as they did 80 and 90 years ago. They look to the end of rationing without misgivings. "We can't go back to the drinking habits of the last century," said one official. "We have another people and another set of habits."

Highway Safety Campaign

IT MAY BE argued that we lose impact by repetition; but coinciding with Quebec's Highway Safety Campaign (June 15-30) — and spurred by a costly week-end in accident casualties — a message to motorists seems deserving of space in this column. . . We pass along these practical hints to drivers:

1. Give pedestrians time to cross streets.
2. Dim headlights when approaching other cars at night.
3. Give others the right of way, even when on the right. An argument could result in death.
4. Overtake and pass only when it can be done to everyone's safety.
5. Never pass on the right.
6. Always watch for children playing by the side of the road.
7. Govern speed according to weather, road and visibility conditions.
8. Keep in your proper traffic lane, don't cut in and out.
9. On highways maintain a reasonable speed. Don't be reckless and don't dawdle.
10. In heavily populated districts drive slowly.
11. Above all, obey traffic regulations, be safety-conscious and follow the courtesy of the road. Do not drink alcohol and drive.

Horse Talk

LACHUTE FAIR prompted a remark (by our friend from the West) on the high prestige of the horse in Eastern Canada. He ventured an eye-opening statement, that today the prairies were so extensively machanized, there were children in some western families who possibly had never even seen a horse.

We were skeptical, we were dubious; but true enough, there are figures to indicate the trend. Here, for instance, is an observation in our press correspondence this week:

The day may come when Canada's horses will be forced to go barefoot for want of a blacksmith to shoe them.

In 1931 there were more than 5,000 blacksmiths in Ontario alone. The census in 1951 showed fewer than 3,000 for Canada in the combined class of blacksmith, hammerman and forgeman. Today there are probably fewer than 2,000 full-time smiths in the country.

But the horse population isn't what it used to be, either. Not long ago it stood at 3,000,000; there are under 1,000,000 now.

The Ottawa region, the farms and lumber camps of which once echoed the clip-clop of well-shod hooves, is following an apparent Canada-wide trend. A reporter in search of a blacksmith recently turned up only four — and not a single apprentice.

Seeing all those fine thoroughbreds at the Exhibition Grounds last week — it's a pity things are going the way they are.

Ill Wind

THE WILDCAT British seaman's strike on trans-Atlantic liners to Canada and the United States has proved a bonanza for the airlines. Regular flights from London to Canada are full up. German, Dutch and Swedish lines were asked to supply spare planes to handle chartered flights for travellers stranded in British ports.

By last week-end eight big Cunard and Canadian Pacific ships were strikebound at Southampton and Liverpool, including the Queen Mary.

PROGRESS has been much more general than retrogression. — Charles Darwin

After the service the preacher, an old-fashioned type, favored the old lady with his views on eternal punishment. There was a great deal of fire and brimstone in it.

"I don't believe it," the old lady said impulsively. "No human constitution could possibly stand it."

When a movie of a baby bathed in a bathinette was shown in India recently, Indian women were offended. How could people be so inhumane as to bathe a child in stagnant (not running) water, the Indian mothers wondered!

"BOOK MARKERS"

The craze for ornamental book-markers has apparently died a natural death. Time once was when every souvenir shop across the country pushed the sales of such novelties. Just the thing, they told us, for those difficult to please relatives — and inexpensive, too. So, Mr. and Mrs. Tourist would load up their shopping bags to the hilt with one for every person expecting a free handout at journey's end. And both donors and recipients were highly delighted with the purchases. For that matter, so were the souvenir shop proprietors. The gaudy strips of leather cost next to nothing, but they sold at phenomenal prices.

Book markers had any number of wise sayings inscribed upon them. The usual one was, of course: "Here I fell asleep!" Then there was the unhappy reminder that "books are the poor man's travel ticket to romantic places." Still others noted that the reader was providing himself with a low cost education. And those were the book markers that most appealed to me, because they invariably reminded me that my education was being gained not at a low cost but completely gratis. You see, more often than not, the books I delved into were obtained from friends and cost me nothing whatever.

The thing I most regretted was the fact that no manufacturer ever took the trouble to produce a book-mark reminding me that I was supplying others with a free education at quite considerable expense to myself. Nor did they introduce a bookmark I could send 'round to my long list of borrowers informing them that I would like to have the book back after they had done with it. Perhaps some souvenir maker did put such items on the market, but if so, I never saw one.

In going over my list of books the other evening, I suddenly realized that there are over twenty-five volumes which I bought, read, and then loaned out, which have not yet come home to roost. Whether they ever will or not is a moot point. However, I'm taking immediate steps to insure that any further books I lend to my friends will come home. In due course, I shall send an order to the printers requesting them to make up a number of book-marks containing the following message. And, if the message proves too long for a book-mark, then they will be instructed to place the same text on a large book-plate which can be firmly glued to the flyleaf of every book I possess. The words are these:

"Dear Friend and Borrower
Of Books:
"No book was ever equipped with feet,
And this volume is no exception.
It did not walk into your possession;
You either brought it here,
Or the owner came and loaned it to you.
This tome belongs to the person whose name appears herein
And he expects it back when you have read it through.
The book will not return of its own accord,
You must undertake to send it back yourself.
And do not hesitate to take the volume home,
For the borrower who returns a book
Is the most welcome guest at any hearth.
And remember, too, that he who never returns a book
Denies himself an untold wealth of enjoyment.
He loses the happy opportunity of visiting with friends
And sharing the comfort and enjoyment of their homes.
But most important of all, he denies himself the right
To discuss the merits of the book with its owner
So that he not only loses his friends but the chance
To add to his meagre storehouse of learning."

This message may or may not do the trick. I hope it will because I can no longer afford to keep my friends supplied with the latest copies of the best in English literature. It's quite enough for my pocketbook to supply my own reading needs without catering to the desires of others.

And now, if you'll excuse me, I have to read one or two volumes I've just uncovered. Seems I borrowed them some years ago and as I've completely forgotten the gist of the stories, I'll have to read them again before I return them to their rightful owners — if I can remember who they are!

IMPROVING DEPORTMENT?

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

GOLDEN ASSETS

I went to visit a friend of mine the other day at his office. On his desk I noticed an old chunk of rock, and I asked him why he kept it there as I knew he was usually a tidy person.

"It reminds me of a lesson I learned early in my career," he explained. "Times were none too good and I had just been laid off at my job. I was pretty indignant about it. I stalked into the manager and cited my good record. I told him I wanted to know why they were laying me off before others. The manager was a friendly guy, and this same piece of rock was lying on his desk. He told me to examine it carefully, and I did. At first I thought it was just an ordinary stone, but if you look closely you can see a vein of gold in there. He explained that a lot of people are like that piece of ore. They have certain assets and liabilities about their characters; but, like the stone, their golden assets weren't much use until they were refined.

"He said that all of us have both assets and liabilities in our characters, and the person who makes a success in life isn't necessarily the person with the greatest assets; for such a person very often also has strong liabilities. The person who makes a success is the one who makes his assets overcome his liabilities; the person who fails is the one who allows his liabilities to overcome his assets.

"I did a lot of thinking about what he said and I realized that while I had been smart at my work, I had also been very egotistical. I had not been an easy person to work with and that asset is just as important as being brainy. That's why I keep that stone. It reminds me that I could be worthless, too, if I thought it was enough just to have talent and not put it to good use."

I thought a lot about that stone later, and I felt it would do us good if more of us carried a worthless piece of ore around with us. It would remind us that success doesn't come without trying. That merely being is not enough — that we must be doing as well. If more of us exercised our golden assets instead of letting them lie about unrefined like the gold in the ore, there would be less whining about insecurity in the world. We would stand on our own two feet instead of asking for government handouts. We all have the gold inside us; it's up to us to make it work in our favor.

Be your own weather forecaster!

It's sure to be cold if pigs grunt uneasily or huddle; if caterpillars have broad bands; if there are plenty of comets; if geese fly late at night, and if you forget to take along a heavy coat.

Look for fair weather if crows fly in pairs, cats wash behind their ears, and sunset glows red, birds fly high, and you take along a raincoat.

Expect snow if turkeys refuse to come down from trees, cats sit with their backs to the fire, burning wood pops loudly and your back aches.

Get out the storm signals if foxes bark at night, seagulls sit on sand, hair of redheads turns kinky, and your corns hurt.

If still in doubt, consult your local weather forecast bureau — says the Pennsylvania Game Commission's "Game News".

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

If you have a weak stomach, stop reading here. The subject today is foreign matter in the food. Inhabitants of hot countries think nothing of it. They rescue a flying ant from the soup and finish what remains with great nonchalance.

Old seamen profess to be unconcerned about weevils in the hard tack. However, the majority of us are more squeamish.

A piece of thumbnail and a salad posed a tough problem for a friend of mine. He helped his wife prepare a salad for some out-of-town guests who were arriving soon. Then he began to smarten himself up. As he was clipping his nails a piece of thumbnail flew up and described a three-foot arc into the salad.

He poked gingerly around in search of the foreign object. No sign of it. Just then there was a knock on the door. The guests had arrived.

My friend was faced with a rapid decision: throw away the salad or keep it? The cupboard was bare. The thumbnail was scrubbed clean, but still . . . what to do?

Being a born executive, my friend chose his course of action at once. He would serve the salad, and hope he got the thumbnail himself.

Through the meal he kept his secret by iron self-control. He bravely made small talk about other subjects, while scrabbling in his plate hoping to find the nail. No sign of it.

The salad all vanished. The crisis was over. But my friend continued to worry. He is still worrying now. Did one of the guests find the object and say nothing? If so, what does the guest think of him?

If it's any comfort to my friend, I once had a similar experience, as a guest. I found a worm in my salad, but I didn't want to embarrass the lady of the house by bringing it out in the open.

So I sneaked it into my pocket, and at the first chance I went into the garden and restored the poor creature to its element. My hostess doesn't know about the worm to this day, and I don't hold it against her at all.

COMPARE RESULTS — NOT INGREDIENT TAGS.

Ingredient tags test the Elements that make up the ration. But tags don't have room to tell the whole story of quality milling and feed efficiency! You've got to look past the tag and into the animal's production records to get the true picture of a feed's value.

For instance, two laying rations recently tested at Purina's Research Farm were so similar in composition that the same tag could have been used for both. There was this difference, though: One ration was so highly fortified that it required ½-pound less feed to produce a dozen eggs!

At first glance, this may not seem like much of a saving — but for a poultry feeder with a 400-bird flock in 60% production, ½-pound saved on every dozen eggs adds up to a big money saving of $20.00 a month — or $3.40 saved on every 100 dozen eggs produced.

Also the highly fortified ration had nine per cent less mortalities and 90% egg hatchability, against 77 for the poor ration.

It certainly pays to watch what you get, not what you pay, with all farm animals or birds. PURINA CHOWS do give you more for your dollar than any other feeds. Won't you give us your order today? We deliver.

OBITUARY

Late Arthur Gates Was Old Citizen of St. Andrews

A long-time resident of St. Andrews East, Arthur Wyman Gates, died suddenly at his home on June 6, in his 73rd year.

Arthur Gates came from Riceville, Ont., as a young man and settled with his parents on a farm at Beech Ridge, Argenteuil County. After his marriage to Miss Alice Todd in 1907, they lived in Port Arthur, Ont., and Montreal, then returning to St. Andrews East in 1917.

Besides his wife, seven children survive — (Lena) Mrs. Robt. Robinson, of Verdun, Que., William, of Chatham, Ont., Ernest, of Lethbridge, Alta., Leslie, George and Marjorie, all of Montreal, and Lorne, at home. Also mourning his death are six grandchildren, a sister, (Edna) Mrs. Elmer Durant, of Vankleek Hill, Ont., and a brother, Mr. Harry Gates, of Edmonton.

Service was held in the Presbyterian Church, conducted by the Rev. John R. Hayworth, and the Rev. Dr. H. W. Reid, of Lachute Presbyterian Church, and was attended by relatives and friends from Montreal, Lachute, Vankleek Hill, and Vermont, U.S.A.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Albert Dorion, Ernest Calder, Lawson Taylor, Russell Sutton, Raymond Giroux and Paul Doig.

Interment was in the local Protestant Cemetery.

Elliott (Aida), with three brothers, John and Ernest Campbell, all of Brownsburg, and Robt. Campbell, of Hawkesbury.

Having seen it once and failing to recapture it, they had given up all hope of retrieving it. However, on Saturday, while Mrs. Smith was doing her farm chores, the budgie in question came to her — a distance of two miles, and after two days without food. AMONG THE CHURCHES

130th Anniversary Celebrated at Historic Dalesville Baptist Church

Historic Dalesville Baptist Church held its anniversary services over the week-end.

A large attendance filled the auditorium for the Sunday service. Friends from far and near joined with the members to celebrate 130 years of joyous service and testimony. A picture of the Rev. John King, of beloved memory, was shown, and now hangs in the church hall. Mrs. Wm. Weaver of Montreal was guest soloist and sang two appropriate numbers, "Love Never Faileth" and "I Walked One Day Where Jesus Walked." The Rev. E. S. Kerr, special speaker for the occasion, spoke on "The Royal Commission", in which he emphasized the need of adhering to the command of Christ — to go, to preach, to baptize, to teach. He pointed out that it was upon these convictions that this church was built, was perpetuated, and stands today.

On Monday night the ladies of the congregation served an excellent supper in the church hall. A fellowship service followed, in which several participated. The Rev. E. S. Kerr brought a challenging address under the title, "Digging Again the Wells our Fathers Dug". He pointed out that many of the foundational truths of Christianity have been lost by the 'clutter, confusion and compromise' of this modern day. It is for us, he said, to dig again the old wells, that the weary, thirsty traveller through life might be refreshed, and that this present generation might enjoy the blessing of God. . . A great service on a great occasion closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Bell Falls — An induction service was held on Tuesday evening, when the Rivington and Avoca Baptist Churches inducted Mr. William Toller into the pastorate. The service, conducted by the Ottawa Baptist Association, was held in the Rivington Baptist Church.

The moderator, the Rev. Earl H. Cameron, conducted the service, and the Scripture lesson was read by the Rev. H. R. Pike, R.C.N. Chaplain, who was a former pastor of this field.

Mrs. Clarence Bennett presented Mr. William Toller to the gathering and the pastor was inducted by the moderator, the Rev. Earl Cameron. The induction prayer was given by Rev. B. Frank Rice, and the sermon by the Rev. Stuart Ivison. The former also sang a solo, "Spirit of God Descend Upon My Heart". In conclusion the benediction was given by Pastor William Toller.

This service was attended by members of the Pentecostal and United Churches of Harrington and Kilmar. The Rev. Mark Beaufoy, who is rector of St. Mary's Anglican Church in Avoca, sent good wishes while expressing regret at his inability to be present. The music was rendered by the church organist, Miss Mary Bennett.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the prophet whom the Lord sent to Nineveh to warn them that in forty days the city would be destroyed?

The people of this city believed that this message came from God. From the greatest to the least citizen, they repented their evil ways, proclaimed a fast and put on sackcloth.

Even the King arose from his throne, removed his robe, dressed in rough sackcloth and sat in ashes. This proclamation he had published, "Let neither man nor beast taste anything, neither food nor water. Let everyone cry mightily to God. Who knows, but that God will turn from His fierce anger so that we will not perish?"

Then God resolved to spare this great city; but His prophet was angry that his prophecy was not going to be fulfilled. Then the Lord, asked, "Do you well to be angry?"

The prophet made no reply. He went outside the Eastern Gate and sat down to see what would happen to the city.

Then God appointed a plant which grew up quickly and provided welcome shade for the prophet. But the second day God sent a worm to attack the plant and it withered. A hot wind blew and the sun beat down on the prophet's head. He was faint and he said, "It is better for me to die than to live."

Then God said to His prophet, "You pity the plant which you did not make grow, which perished in a night. Should you not pity the thousands of people in this city who would have been destroyed if you had not warned them of their doom?"

Read this man's name and this story in Chapter 3 of Jonah.

Man and His Money

Now it came to pass on a day at noon that the writer was a guest of a certain rich man. And the lunch was enjoyed at a popular restaurant. And the waiters were very efficient. And the food was good.

Now when the end of the meal was at hand, the waiter brought unto the host the check. And the host examined it, frowned a bit, but made no comment.

But as we arose to depart I observed that he laid aside some coins under the edge of the plate. I know not what the denomination of the coins was, howbeit, the waiter stood nearby smiled happily, which being interpreted, told that the tip was satisfactory.

Now this parable entereth not into the merits or demerits of tipping. But as I meditated on the coins which turn into tips throughout our land I began to think of tips and tithes. For the proverbial tip should be at least a tenth lest the waiter turn against you.

And as I continue to think on these things, it came unto me that few people who go to church treat their God as well as they honor their waiter. For they give unto the waiter a tithe, but unto God they give whatsoever they think will get them by.

Verily doth man fear the waiter more than he feareth God? And doth he love God less than he loveth the waiter? Or doth the waiter do more for him than his God?

Truly a man and his money are past understanding.

Calgary Wedding Of Local Interest

Spindler - McGibbon

Decorated with ferns and baskets of yellow and white snapdragons and pink and yellow mums, Wesley United Church, Calgary, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding recently, when Joan Iris McGibbon and Henry Julius Spindler were united in marriage.

The Rev. Lynden C. Lawson officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The wedding music was played by Harold Ramsey, L.Mus (McGill). At the beginning of the service the soloist, E. Extall, sang "A Wedding Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride wore a waltz-length gown of embroidered nylon net over white satin, fashioned with tight-fitting bodice trimmed with tiny satin buttons from neck to waist, and full bouffant skirt. Her shoulder-length veil was arranged on a headdress of white blossoms. She wore a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis with white streamers.

Mrs. Eckart Spindler was matron-of-honor, wearing a gown of pale pink taffeta with pink net overskirt, and matching headdress of pink blossoms. She carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations and white and yellow asters with pink streamers.

Miss Norma McKeown was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of blue taffeta with blue tulle overskirt, and headdress of blue and pink blossoms. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations and white and yellow asters with blue streamers.

Mr. Eckart Spindler was groomsman for his brother, and the usher was Mr. Ralph Cameron.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a frock of navy sheer with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses — assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a black tailored suit and hat with ermine neckpiece and white gloves, and a corsage of pink roses.

Later some 20 guests sat down to a wedding supper, after which the young couple left by motor for a trip to Vancouver and Victoria. On their return they will reside in Calgary.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. McGibbon, of Powassan, Ont., and granddaughter of the late Archibald D. McGibbon and the late Mrs. McGibbon, of Lachute. The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Julius Spindler, of Calgary, Alta.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Patterson, Mr. Robert Patterson, Mr. Henry Schumacker, of Ogden, Alta.; Mrs. Laura McHugh, Mr. Russell McGibbon, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hill, all of Calgary; and Mrs. Lyman Burton, of Trail, B.C.

GETTING ON

Humboldt, Sask. (CP) — This town, marking its 80th anniversary as a community this year, was named after the German explorer Baron Friedrich von Humboldt, who travelled through the Canadian Northwest in the early 1800s.

PLAYING CASEY JONES — Ogoolook, an Eskimo boy, lives on Baffin Island in the Arctic, but he still likes to play train engineer just as boys do the world over. Ogoolook is learning the controls under tutoring of engineer Harry Beach. The train is the new Super Continental, which recently went into Canadian National Railways service between Montreal and Toronto and Vancouver.

"Where is my pencil?" said the Big Boss.

"Behind your ear," said the cute secretary.

"Come, come, I'm a busy man," said the Boss. "Which ear?"

Entering a department store new to him, a man approached a floorwalker and said, "I'm looking for a birthday present for my wife."

"How long have you been married, sir?" asked the floorwalker.

"Ten years."

"The bargain basement is downstairs."

"Why didn't you marry?" inquired the young man of the old bachelor.

"Well, you see," replied the bachelor, "when I was quite young I resolved that I wouldn't marry until I found the ideal woman. After many years I found her."

"And then!"

"She was looking for the ideal man," replied the bachelor, sadly.

Consumer Group Tests Many Toys

Ottawa (CP) — The Canadian Association of Consumers has some helpful hints for toy-buying parents.

The association's toy-testing committee, set up last year, has completed test reports on doll's dishes, infants' toys and make-your-own-doll kits. They tried such toys in large and small families of different income levels and in group play situations, such as nursery schools, for periods of at least three weeks.

After that they checked up on such points as durability, safety and interest to the child. Detailed reports are sent to the toy manufacturers.

"The manufacturers have taken our testing seriously," said Mrs. S. A. MacKay-Smith, chairman of the testing committee. "In one case a manufacturer reduced the price on some dishes and others have tried improvements we suggested."

Outdoor Roundup
with Joe Foster

Five a.m. and it's just beginning to grow light. There's a faint suggestion of a mist hanging in the bay and listening to the giant bull frogs harrumphing down by the shore reminds me the time has just about arrived to get out there with that long cane pole, a short line, a piece of red flannel tied to a number twelve hook and get us a mess of frog legs for dinner. As the sun starts climbing the song birds which are only beginning to compete with the froggy chorus, will take over and although it's still too early to tune in the radio for a weather report, it looks like another hot day.

Each to His Own

I guess we all of us have our peculiarities. One of mine is getting up at the crack of dawn. Any time of the year — makes no matter. Each season has its own particular charm. With hunting and fishing often at its best during the early morning hours, I seldom lack an excuse for early rising. Gets kind of complicated some week-ends, especially on those when my wife is trying to salvage me from being a complete social failure and keeping me out and up late of a Saturday night.

If It Stays Hot

If this hot weather keeps up it's going to take a powerful lot of early rising to put fish on a stringer. Those bronze backs are going to be way down deep when the season opens up on July 1st. To catch them feeding in the shallows means being on the water and ready to fish well before sunrise. Matter of fact you stand a better chance of connecting with small mouth bass at that time of day than you do in the evening. During the day when that old sun is beating down, you just have to know the spots, usually 20-30 feet down and it's then that the live bait artist will do better than the angler who sticks to artificials.

Reports Vary

Haven't done much fishing myself of late, but have talked and corresponded with many who have. From the Gaspé and the Laurentians, from the Townships and the Rideau Lakes, reports vary. Some have had it real good and others not so good, but that's fishing. Some reports whet my appetite to try out new waters and time and circumstances permitting I intend to do just that.

County Fairs and Trout Hatcheries

Saturday last and our Harry's 13th birthday and calling for an outing of some sort. We started the day by taking in the Lachute Fair, he had a pal who was showing a Jersey calf and the farmer in me insists on taking in at least one country fair a year. Both of us were content, mingling with the crowds in the midway and for an hour or so breathing in that very special aroma of prize cattle, pigs, sheep, gigantic work horses and harness leather.

Retrievers and Trout

From Lachute only a matter of a few miles to Dalesville and the trout hatchery owned and operated by that bachelor Scot, Angus Morris. We spent the afternoon with Gus, who toured us around his place and where we had the opportunity to leer covetously at some fifteen inch rainbows, which he keeps only to stir up the gravel in one of the streams feeding into a series of storing ponds. The story of Gus and his hatchery is quite a tale by itself and one which I'm going to devote a column to later on. For now sporting dog enthusiasts will, I think be interested to hear of a little demonstration that Gus staged for us just before we left for home. We had been sitting around in the new and rather unique abode that he has built atop a knoll overlooking the trout ponds in the valley below. The talk had swung away from trout, the hatching and stocking of same, to gun dogs and particularly to the two golden retrievers that lay at our feet.

Some Nose

"Liz", said Gus, has a real good nose for a fallen bird and "I'll show you how good", which he did. We went outside, where he picked up a stone about the size of a packet of book matches, marked it, rubbed it one side of his face, spat on it and showed it to the dog, commanding her to sit. Gus threw the stone far out over the valley below and into a tangle of alder and then indicating the direction by a casual wave of the arm, told Liz to "hie in'. Liz catapulted down that hill straight as an arrow and into the alders and we walked on down to where the car was parked. As we said our good-byes up she trotted and laid the stone at Gus's feet. One of these days and very soon Gus and a Scandinavian pal of his will be introducing to Canada for the first time a rare and seldom heard of European all-purpose hunting dog — the Ruhaar. And that my friends is another story and one that I'll have for you in a few weeks.

B'burg Rallies, Defeats Lefaivre Baseball Squad

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — At last, Brownsburg's baseball team is on the move. After losing narrow-margin games and having home games rained out, the boys arrived with a bang, scoring seven runs on 13 good hits.

Ronald "Zag" Cousineau turned in a masterful performance on the mound, allowing but six hits and four walks. Only one hit was for an extra base, and six opponents struck out.

The local fielding was very good too, only two errors being committed and the only weak spot on defence is the base-covering. It may be that Cousineau is slow on the wind-up, or that our infielders aren't watchful enough, but considering that only 12 Lefaivre men got on base, they stole seven bases.

On offence, little fault could be found except that the Brownsburg boys too often swung at bad pitches. They were getting a good, solid piece of wood behind the ball all day though, and their 12 hits were well timed.

It's hard to pick stars out of a team which did so well, but Jacques Racine certainly had a good day. At bat he hit two booming triples and a single, batting in two runs, scoring three while stealing home. In the field he retired all three men in the eighth, besides several other fine put-outs. The high-spot was when he went up the ladder to snare a sure hit and threw to second, catching the runner way off base.

Brent Steele also had a good day at bat, smacking two singles and a double, to produce two markers. All the boys, however, had a share in the victory, and things look good for the local team now. . . Hawkesbury is next for shaving, and doubtless quite a few fans will travel up there on Sunday.

Brownsburg-Ottawa Share Rigaud "Free-for-All"

Attendance prize winner at the harness racing program at Rigaud Park on Sunday was Mrs. Menard, of Ile Perrot, who was presented with $20 in this weekly feature at the Rigaud track.

"Senator Bars" from Brownsburg and "Professor Mac" from Ottawa divided the "free-for-all" honors, while "Beth Song" from Brighton, Ont., ranked topmost in the two Class C events. "Linda B" from Hawkesbury, "Lady Chips", Chute à Blondeau, and "Miss Counse", Alfred, Ont., won classes DD, D, and 2.30.

Another excellent program is planned for Sunday afternoon next, with a full "free-for-all" entry list to date.

Besides the pari-mutuel, there are two hands of bingo and a $5 program prize. As usual, ladies are admitted for half-price (50c), while there is no charge for children.

B.C. Oarsmen in London For Henley Challenge

Henley-on-Thames (Eng.) — Canadian hopes that British Columbia oarsmen will wrest the Grand Challenge Cup from last year's winning Russian team ran high here as members of the Vancouver Rowing Club entry settled down to a strenuous training schedule in preparation for the Henley Royal Regatta, June 29 - July 2.

The Canadian oarsmen found the welcome mat out when their aircraft touched down at London recently, for all arrangements for their stay in Britain had been made by their host, Canadian-born industrialist Garfield Weston. Accommodations had been secured at the Hermitage Hotel in Henley, where they are making their headquarters while training for the historic competition for eight-oared shells.

As may be expected, the cup has been most frequently won by Britain's famed rowing clubs, including the Leander Club, Oxford and Cambridge University crews, and the Thames Rowing Club.

In more than 100 competitions, the Grand Challenge has been won by rowing clubs representing overseas countries only 10 times. The United States and Belgium have each taken the trophy home three times, and Australia, Switzerland, Germany and Russia have had single wins.

The race is rowed over a straight course at Henley about one mile and 550 yards in length. The course record was set in 1952 by Britain's Leander Club in the fast time of 3 minutes, 38 seconds.

The public meeting at Henley-on-Thames at which the regatta was organized passed a resolution authorizing the event to be established on an annual basis "under judicious and respectable management," and at the first regatta the umpire discharged his obligations on horseback.

The B.C. oarsmen are well aware that hundreds of supporters back home made it possible for them to row in the Henley. Their slim racing shell was donated by Vancouver's Col. Victor Spencer and other expenses were met by contributions large and small. Once they reached England they became Mr. Weston's guests for the duration.

Shows Art of Hypnotism From Entertainment Angle

Next Tuesday, June 28, the Brownsburg Community Arena will present "Damant the Hypnotist" in a full evening of entertainment commencing at 8.30.

Damant has been practising the art of Hypnotism since he was 14, a fellow Boy Scout being his first subject. Today he can hardly remember the time when he was not conscious of his power over the minds of others.

At his engagement here he will demonstrate the entertainment side of Hypnotism only. It is clean, wholesome entertainment — so for an evening of fun, don't miss this exciting show. The proceeds are for the Brownsburg Community Arena.

Average size of Alberta ranches is 2,000 acres owned by the individual rancher with 8,000 additional acres under lease from the provincial government.

Assuring Game-Birds For Posterity

SPORTS CAMERA

Thanks to modern science and one man's determination, the Bob-white quail is edging away from the threat of becoming an extinct bird like the dodo and passenger pigeon. Perhaps someone will devise a plan to help the nearly-extinct whooping crane in similar fashion.

Carl Lowrance, a banana importer, started raising quail seven years ago as a hobby when hunting for the birds in the Ozark mountains near his home in Missouri became a virtual memory.

Now he produces some 42,000 birds a year on his 40-acre farm. Some are sold as food and some as pets or for breeding purposes. The great majority go to nature lovers for restocking purposes.

Others before Lowrance found quail-raising was not commercially feasible because 25 per cent of all the chicks incubated in captivity died. His ingenuity made success possible, cutting the mortality rate to about three per cent.

Scientific System

He found the answer in adding aureomycin to the birds' drinking water, controlled temperatures and humidity in the hatchery, balanced feeding and extra cleanliness about the pens.

Lowrance has about 1,500 pairs of breeders. Each pair is placed in a nesting pen and the eggs collected three times a week. Early in June, normally the peak of production, some 8,000 eggs are gathered.

They are placed in special-type incubators, kept at a temperature of 99½ degrees for 20 days and turned by hand every eight hours. Later the eggs are transferred to larger incubators and are hatched on the 23rd day.

At birth, five of the chicks total one ounce in weight. When mature 16 weeks later, each weights about eight ounces.

The egg, only slightly larger than a marble, is covered with a tough shell. Nature provides the quail with a special little tool to work his way out. The chick has a "drill", set at right angles to his beak, and uses it to punch a circle around the egg from the inside.

When the egg falls apart, the chick is free. Within a couple of hours the "drill" falls off the beak. Then comes eight weeks of careful feeding before the birds are released in the fields for restocking.

Lowrance travels widely in the United States and Canada on business and speaking on conservation.

He believes modern machinery cleans a field so well that is little or no feed left for wild birds. "Our fields are so neat there are no weed or bush patches where the birds can live and hide.

"If we prevail upon farmers to leave some cover in the field I am certain sportsmen will restock the areas and put out feed."

A quail, for instance, can go only 72 hours without food and water.

Colford Lodge Defeats Vankleek Hill

Last Sunday the Colford Lodge softballers fought out a close decision over Vankleek Hill. The latter scored all their runs in the first three innings, while Colford's scored only twice. Jean Guy Larocque pitched his second win, while also hitting a home-run in the sixth inning, tieing the game. Billy Cribb crossed the plate three times for Colford's, Jacques Leveille scored the winning run in the last inning. Hall was the big hitter for the losers, scoring three runs.

Next Sunday Colford's Lodge plays host to Norgate, of Montreal; game time 2 p.m.

Funds for Olympics

Nearly every time a group of Canadian athletes plan to compete overseas there never seems to be enough money around to finance the trip.

It's not unusual then that the Canadian Olympic Association has started early to raise $212,900 needed to defray expenses of Canada's 1956 Olympic team.

Some help is coming from the federal government which has earmarked $60,000 to help get the team members to Melbourne, Australia, next summer and to Cortina, Italy, for the winter games.

"The Neighbors", written by Marjory Whitelaw, of Montreal, starts Monday, 2-2.15 p.m., and will be heard each weekday at that time for the next 13 weeks. The story is set in the eastern townships of Quebec, and is about two families: the English-speaking Napiers — Jim, Margaret and their two children — who have just moved to Shawbury where Jim is the new textile plant superintendent; and the French-speaking Benoits — Hector, who is editor of the local weekly newspaper, his wife Annette and four children. During the summer "Matinee" listeners will share the troubles and the fun of these new neighbors as they get acquainted.

Ottawa Opens First TV French-Language Station

Ottawa, June 20 — Ottawa's first French-language TV station will go on the air on Thursday, one day before St. Jean Baptiste Day, and will utilize the tenth Canadian-invented wavestack antenna to be in operation in Canada. The wavestack, an invention of a young Canadian engineer employed by RCA Victor Company, Montreal, is a major contribution to Canadian telecasting and has created international interest.

Bruce MacKimmie, P.Eng., inventor of the wavestack, will be in Ottawa for the opening ceremonies on Thursday and will be accompanied by other company engineers who have helped to install the RCA Victor transmitter and other equipment which will make up the Ottawa station CBOFT. The strong directional feature of the wavestack which was designed particularly for use in Canada will enable the Ottawa telecasts to be seen throughout the Ottawa Valley and probably as far as Cornwall. There have been reports of test signals being received in the Montreal area, over 10 miles distant.

CURRENT SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Radio and TV Salute the U. N.

Feature productions on both radio and TV will be presented to mark the close of the 10th anniversary celebrations of the United Nations in San Francisco. The programs are scheduled for 9.30-10.00 p.m. on CBC-TV and 10.30-11.00 p.m. on CBC Trans-Canada, Sunday, June 26.

The radio show will be produced by the staff of the UN Radio Division and will recall the main events at the time of the signing of the UN Charter in San Francisco exactly 10 years ago. The voices of many world figures will be heard again, as they were heard on that historic day.

On TV the program will be called "The Road to Peace". Through the personal reminiscences of the Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Minister for External Affairs, the viewer will be able to look back over the achievements and disappointments of the 10 crucial years since June 26, 1945, during which the world's hopes have been placed in the United Nations.

Beginning with the hopes aroused by the Can Francisco meetings in the spring of 1945, the program will survey the role played by the UN in troubled areas such as Palestine, Kashmir and Indonesia. The issues of the Korean War will be outlined, and so will other aspects of the UN's history, its attempts to take collective action and the work of its various auxiliary agencies.

With film illustrations, Mr. Pearson will give his own appraisal of these and other events of the decade. The film to be seen was selected from the files of the United Nations Information Division by Vincent Tovell, CBC representative at UN Headquarters. The film editor is Les Cserapy. The narration, written by Len Petersen, will be spoken by Eugene Hallman of the CBC, who also appears as Mr. Pearson's companion in the studio. The producer is David Walker, with Bill Bolt in charge of the technical side.

Film Produced at Otter Lake Music Centre

A film made by the National Film Board of Canada at Otter Lake Music Centre last August, will be released shortly. It shows the various activities of the Centre, against a background of beautiful Laurentian scenery, and records some of the music sung and played by students and staff.

The film tells the story of the Centre, how it began, how it is run, who goes there and how the time is spent. Some of the people who sang and played during their two weeks' holiday had had no previous experience in singing with others in a mixed choral group, and were unable to sight-read. George Little, co-founder director of the Centre is enthusiastic about the solfege method of sight-singing he teaches his students. He believes that singers learn to read music more quickly, and gain a better sense of pitch through this method than through any other.

Some students learn to sight-read by means of playing a recorder. This comparatively simple instrument is well-known in Montreal, and much work is done with it by Mario Duschesnes, flautist, who, assisted by Ellyn Duschesnes, teaches recorder playing at all stages. The recorder is as difficult to play well as any other instrument, but beginners on the soprano can soon play simple tunes, and progress in a reasonably short time to playing in two or three parts. All the four recorders which make a consort are used; soprano, alto, tenor and bass. Players learn to play more than one instrument whenever possible. The recorder is not expensive, and instruments and music may be bought at the Centre.

Other resident staff include Carl Little, Walter Joachim, and Madeleine Bodier-Little, all of whom are well-known in Montreal. Further details about the Centre can be obtained from P.O. Box 195, Montreal 8, P.Q.

EVER WANT TO GO TO A Jamboree?

You'll find many a Boy Scout who does. He's longing to join thousands of fellow Scouts at the 8th World Jamboree to be held in August at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

But he may be disappointed. Transportation, for instance, may be just too great an expense. It is to help such a Scout that The Bank of Nova Scotia is co-operating with The Boy Scout Association to set up 50 all-expense-paid Jamboree Journeys for deserving Scouts.

Scouts are invited to write a short essay on the theme "What It Means To Be A Scout." On the basis of these essays a total of 50 winners will be selected in co-operation with the Boy Scout Association. The Bank of Nova Scotia will meet the costs of travel and of ten glorious days at the Jamboree for these 50 lads.

The Bank of Nova Scotia's Jamboree Journey Essay Contest is another example of the Bank's policy of working with Young Canada. The Bank is their partner, as it is yours, in the great and many-sided enterprise of helping Canada grow.

Freezing Foods

Freezing is a quick, convenient and easy way of preserving foods. We cannot say it is new because our grandmothers used to freeze meat and pies and bread in their back kitchens or porches and for years the people of the north have used the great outdoors as their home freezer. It is much better today, however, because we do not have to wait until winter to freeze foods and there is no worry about the effects of a spring thaw either. With the use of modern locker plants and home freezers the summer-fresh flavor of frozen fruits and vegetables is retained from one season until the next. Even grandmother will agree that this is a much better arrangement than she had in the old days.

Since so many families now have a home freezer or locker the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, have sent along a few suggestions that may help you in planning your freezing program.

What to freeze must be decided on the basis of the family's needs and desires, and on the space available for storing. Short-season foods like strawberries and peas are a good choice for year around use from the freezer and locker. It is a good idea to make up a tentative plan showing the approximate number of packages of each fruit and vegetable your family will consume in the year ahead. At the beginning of the season do not be tempted to freeze too much of any one food and then later on discover there is not enough space left for all the others you want to freeze.

Frozen fruits and vegetables with their fresh color and flavor sealed right in them are almost as much of a treat on wintery days as the fresh products are now.

Those vegetables which are usually eaten raw, such as celery, tomatoes, lettuce, cucumbers and radishes do not freeze satisfactorily. Whole kernel corn is generally better to freeze than corn on the cob as the latter sometimes develops off-flavors during storage. Most root vegetables and cabbage may be frozen but they keep well without freezing so why give them valuable space in the freezer.

Most of our Canadian fruits may be successfully frozen and some of them — currants, cranberries, gooseberries, blueberries and rhubarb — may be frozen without sugar. Other fruits are best frozen with sugar, either dry or in a syrup. Apricots and peaches require special treatment such as the addition of ascorbic acid to prevent discoloration. Pears do not freeze well because the texture changes during freezing and they are soft and mushy when thawed.

Perhaps you have wondered why vegetables have to be blanched before freezing. The home economists of the Consumer Section tell us that all fresh vegetables and fruits contain chemical substances called enzymes which, if left uncontrolled, will cause unfavorable changes in the flavor, color and texture of the product even if it is frozen. To kill the enzymes in vegetables we blanch them and this preserves their fresh characteristics. To retard the action of enzymes in fruits we generally use sugar.

A good point to remember is that the frozen foods that are taken out of a locker or freezer will be no better than the fresh foods that are put into it. So it is important to use only the highest quality fruits and vegetables for freezing and to freeze them as soon as possible after they are picked.

Freezing Strawberries

Nearly everybody likes strawberries and right now we can enjoy them in all sorts of wonderful desserts and salads. But — and probably because the strawberry season is short — no one ever seems to be able to get enough of them. This year, so that you may go on enjoying their special goodness until next strawberry season, why not freeze some and put them away in your home freezer or locker.

The berries after being washed and hulled and either sliced or left whole, may be covered with dry sugar in a bowl, using two cups of sugar to 12 cups of berries. Before packing in freezer cartons the berries should be stirred very slightly to distribute the sugar evenly. This will partially dissolve the sugar and give the frozen strawberries a better flavor. Or the berries may be packed into freezer cartons and covered with a cold medium syrup made from one cup of sugar dissolved in one cup of water. Two-thirds of a cup of syrup will be required for each pint carton. Strawberries frozen without sugar or syrup lose their flavor and color so this is not recommended by the Consumer Section.

Pointers on Poultry

Chicken is being served in more ways these days than would have been thought possible a few years ago. This is mainly because chicken in all its various forms — broilers, fryers, roasters, cut-up or whole, is available all the year round. And when a food is available consistently, homemakers, chefs and home economists are constantly trying out new ways of seasoning, combining with other foods and generally adding variety to the ways it may appear on the dinner table.

With the possibility of chicken being a feature of many a special Dominion Day dinner, it seems like a good time to try to clarify some of the confusion surrounding this popular food. Following are some questions that are frequently asked and the answers are supplied by the Poultry Products Institute.

What is the difference between an eviscerated chicken, an oven-ready, ready-to-cook and a pre-dressed chicken?

All terms are synonymous. Actually, "eviscerated" is the official term used by the Canada Department of Agriculture. The other terms are those which have been adopted by chain stores, food writers and some packing companies. They all refer to poultry (it can apply to turkey, goose or duck equally well) which has been drawn and should be ready for the homemaker to use with a minimum of preparation. Usually, it is only necessary to rinse in cold water, or wipe with a clean damp cloth and check to make certain there are no small bits of viscera left in the body cavity. It may also be necessary to remove a few pin feathers and singe the bird. However, some poultry is prepared in such a way that even this chore has been eliminated.

Doesn't the term "dressed" when applied to poultry mean that it is drawn?

No! That is why the term "pre-dressed" mentioned above has caused some confusion. "Dressed" is the official term used by the Department of Agriculture to indicate poultry which merely has the feathers removed, though some butchers and chain store meat counters may have the head and feet taken off the birds before they are placed on display.

When buying chicken, how can one tell how much to buy of the eviscerated birds?

One used to calculate on the basis of approximately a pound per serving of the dressed, that is, undrawn chicken. When estimating the quantity to buy of eviscerated chicken, allow approximately ¾ pound per serving. Note, it is per serving not per person, as some people expect "seconds".

Generally speaking, most roasting time tables are now calculated on the eviscerated weight. If buying dressed undrawn poultry, deduct about ¼ of weight to arrive at eviscerated weight.

Why are eviscerated chickens more expensive than dressed (undrawn) chickens?

They aren't always. If you buy a dressed bird, have the butcher draw it and remove the head and feet and then weigh it. Divide the weight of the drawn bird into the price paid for the dressed bird and you will find the cost per pound has risen. But remember you still have the same amount of edible meat. You have only removed the inedible portions. (Giblets are included in eviscerated weight of whole poultry). Therefore, you are paying more per pound but not more per bird. However, the processor who prepares eviscerated poultry in the efficient manner it is done today in modern plants, is entitled to something for his labor and so a small amount is added per pound to the price. However, when prices are compared, the homemaker will find that the difference between eviscerated and dressed weights is not as great as it would appear at first glance. Remember the point mentioned above too, that you buy only ¾ pound per serving of eviscerated as compared to 1 pound of dressed poultry. So again, the cost difference is offset. For example, a 4½ pound eviscerated bird would yield approximately six servings, while it would take a six pound dressed bird to serve approximately a similar number.

OVER WORRIED

Sorel, Que. (CP) — A 17-year-old Sorel boy, despondent because of poor marks in school, jumped 40 feet from a bridge into the Richelieu river. A motorist heard his cries and he was rescued by police. The boy said he was afraid to face his family with his bad school report.

AND THEN SHE FELL

—Central Press Canadian

Wearing raincoats, Princess Anne and Prince Charles climb on to the hood of a British jeep for a better view of a horse show at Windsor Great Park in London. A short time later, the four-year-old Princess fell from the vehicle. The youngster said she was not hurt but Queen Elizabeth II summoned an automobile and had both of her children taken home.

Fashions

Filmy silk organdy in pastels or inky black is the fabric used for this cool summer frock. Built over a taffeta foundation, it billows airily for dancing. The simple, shirtmaker top is glorified by pleated lace edging at the collar, the cuffs and the buttoned down front band. Tiny pleats break away to flaring fullness on the skirt.

Young Mother Is Racing-Car Enthusiast

Toronto (CP) — The scream of a sports car engine is seldom associated with the career of a wife and mother, but it plays a big part in the life of Mrs. Pat Sword.

The attractive 36-year-old mother of a nine-year-old son took a trial run five years ago in her brother's sports car. Bitten by the bug, she traded in her family car and has driven the small but powerful speedster ever since.

Her present car is capable of 120 miles an hour. "I've never had it up that fast," she says, "but it's nice to have the feeling it will do it if necessary. It can pick up to 60 miles an hour in 10½ seconds; it's very light and very powerful."

Road Race Expert

She competes regularly in hill climbs, road races, and two-day jaunts through Ontario and Quebec with eight-hour stopovers.

"I have a nasty, sinking feeling in the pit of my stomach before a race, but when you get going there's no time to be afraid," she said. "You're watching the oil pressure, the water temperature, watching the rev counter to see how fast the engine is going. You're pretty busy."

Her husband, Ian, an aircraft factory production foreman, is a sports car enthusiast too, as is her son Michael.

Among her busy round of activities, she finds time to edit "Smal Torque," monthly magazine of the British Empire motor club of which she and her husband are members.

She said she wished more women would join the sport. "Some of the men have wives who drive with them, and there are a few women who have their own cars like me. It's not really very expensive after you have the car and its certainly a thrilling hobby."

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Are you angling to join the male members of the "angling" set? Then pack your fishing rod, tackle and other gear into the family bus and take off — because the "fishing's fine." And you'll find plenty of company, because the number of feminine fishermen is increasing yearly.

Finding the right spot to fish isn't too hard, particularly in June, one of the best months for casting your bait or fly. Fish bite best when the temperature of the water is relatively cool as it is now, in early summer.

In fact, at this time of the year, fishing is good in practically all sections of the country. In the Prairie Provinces, trout, grayling and pickerel are plentiful while game fish such as the wily bass and fighting muskie are rising in eastern lakes and rivers. In far western mountain streams, following spring's melting of the ice, rainbow and kamloops trout are keeping anglers happy.

Before you try out that new spinning reel, be sure to check if a fishing license is required to avoid an argument with the game warden. Also, keep in mind that various areas set their own strict limits on the size of your catch.

Abide by the rules, and you're sure to have fun with your rod and reel in the nation's rivers, lakes, streams and "fishin' holes".

The contest was keen and the Q.W.I. is proud to have the second place entry in competition with all other provinces. Congratulations to Mrs. Hamilton and her Institute.

The awards in all three sections of this biennial competition, named after Lady Tweedsmuir who inaugurated it in 1945, were announced at the Biennial Board meeting of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, which closed last week in Winnipeg. The Homemakers' Club, Pense, Sask., won double honors, taking top place in the other two sections, village history and handicrafts. Runners-up in these were, handicrafts, Churchill W.I., N.S., and village history tied between Blue Lake, Auburn and Thamesford, all of Ontario.

The prizes in the Q.W.I. preliminary contest will be presented at the Provincial Convention this evening (Thursday, June 23). Mrs. J. W. Adams, F.W.I.C. president, who is the speaker at this session, will officiate.

Hints for Happy Holidays

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

A happy vacation for parents is one when all the members of the family keep well. Many of these suggestions for living comfortably out of doors at a cottage, camp or in a trailer you may know. But the important thing is to get the family to co-operate in following them! Why not read them aloud, discuss them and make plans for healthy holidays!

The very first essential for a good camping site is safe drinking water. This is the one thing with which no chances can be taken, because various sicknesses, especially typhoid fever are caused by germs in polluted drinking water. The appearance of the water has nothing to do with its purity. Crystal clear water may contain harmful bacteria. The one reliable rule to follow is — when in doubt about drinking water, always boil it for half an hour or treat it carefully, according to directions with commercial preparations such as chlorine tablets.

During the hot weather, children perspire freely and need to drink sufficient water to make up for the loss of moisture through their pores. Small boys and girls should not be given too much ice-cold fluid to drink.

Boiled drinking water should be cooled and then poured back and forth from one container to another to aerate it and make it palatable. Small quantities of charcoal dropped in water will absorb any odours and make water more palatable. The Public Health authorities in any province co-operate in testing water from wells.

A safe milk supply is also a problem in some vacation areas. It is against the law in many provinces for unpasteurized milk to be sold. Cottage-pasteurizing over a wood fire is a bit arduous for a mother and so many families resort to the use of condensed or powdered milk. But a generous supply of fruit juices is a good health investment.

A camping site should not be chosen near a stagnant pond or a swampy district where mosquitoes breed. A site where the air can circulate easily should be picked. Some of these repellants to keep away mosquitoes and black flies are a bit strong in their odour. But each year they are improved. Cheesecloth sprayed with an insecticide protects a small child in a crib or carriage from bites while he is asleep. The Canadian Entomological branch developed the following excellent repellant for mosquitoes, midges and flies: 1 fluid oz. Oil of Thyme, 1 fluid oz. concentrated extract of Pyrethrum, 2 to 3 fluid ozs. Castor oil.

An inquiring small boy in the woods may be stung by a honey bee, hornet, or a large bumble bee. If the sting remains in the wound, it must be scraped out, antiseptic applied. The Indians used crushed Jewel Weed juice to soothe insect stings. Ammonia or baking soda dissolved in water can be dabbed on an insect sting. Wet mud or clay also relieves the swelling.

A rare affliction is a snake bite. Harmless snakes leave a row of small punctures on the skin. A poisonous snake usually makes two punctures. A tourniquet should be applied to an arm or leg bitten by a poisonous snake. If medical help is difficult to obtain quickly, a short cross cut should be made over the punctures and the poison sucked out of the wound. If there are no cuts in the mouth, the poison from the bite will not have ill effects on the mouth or stomach.

Parents should teach their children to avoid unnecessary hazards in camping, and also what remedies should be used for accidents. A simple First Aid Kit should be carried when travelling. Keep it in a locked cupboard with medicines out of the reach of tiny children.

You can't go "ALL-OUT" If you feel "ALL-IN"

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

this stake is TOUGH!

The stakes surveyors use to mark land boundaries have a way of disappearing—and that can mean a whole survey has to be done over again. But now there's a new all-aluminum stake that is tough for time and weather and playful animals to handle. It won't rust, rot or weaken. And two barbs open out at right angles, underground, to prevent its being rooted out by even the most muscular bear. It's a Canadian invention, made of Canadian aluminum, by a Canadian company, to meet a typically Canadian problem.

USEFUL ROADS

The romance of railroading has given way to the greater convenience of truck roads in the woods of Cowichan. Many miles of truck roads now serving industry can be expected one day to come under more general use, although hazards of indiscriminate use in fire season cannot be too closely kept in mind.

A sadder and wiser man today than he was a few weeks ago is Gordon Marriatte, truck driver of Waterdown, Ont. Claiming he had a much tougher job than his wife, Georgia, right, he took over the housekeeping while she drove the truck. Result: Gordon burned himself while baking, Georgia was a howling success as a truck driver. Gordon is now back behind the wheel and Georgia is back in the kitchen.

Garden-Graph

If you want bigger and better dahlia blooms—the show kind—the large flowered varieties must be allowed to develop to their fullest. Each stem should be enabled to concentrate on one flower only. This calls for garden surgery.

Dahlia buds grow in a cluster of three. The surgery necessary to achieve really big blooms consists of pinching out the two side buds, as indicated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The set of leaves immediately below the buds should also be taken off, as illustrated.

This method of disbudding will give you a strong, long stem with one extra large flower. It will thrive on the nourishment which otherwise would be shared by the other two buds.

The Garden-Graph also shows a borer inside a dahlia stalk. Husky as they usually are, dahlias often are attacked by stalk borers. The presence of a borer is first signalled by the wilting of the top portion of the plant's main stalk. The borer feeds upon the inner lining of the stalk.

Close inspection of a wilted stalk will reveal the hole through which the borer entered. If the stalk is slit just above the hole, the borer usually will be found at work. It should be extracted from the stalk and killed.

After the borer has been removed, the slit portion will heal quickly if the stalk is tied together with soft twine.

Westm't Wedding Of District Interest

Wright - Bates

The marriage of Joyce Olga, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Bates of Avoca, Que., to Mr. Peter Percival Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wright of North Balwyn, Melbourne, Australia, took place on Saturday morning, June 4, at 11 o'clock in Calvary United Church, Westmount, the Rev. W. Spence officiating. Mr. Eric Adams played the wedding music and Mrs. R. Lambert sang during the service. Red and white gladioli and fern were used as decorations.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Evan Bates, wore a cocktail-length gown of white brocaded taffeta, fashioned on Princess lines with full skirt and matching fitted bolero, with long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her shoulder-length veil fell from a petal head-dress of hand-set pearls and she carried a nosegay of American Beauty rosebuds and white sweet peas.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Lawrence MacTavish of Harrington, Que., was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a cocktail-length dress of pink net over taffeta, with a small white flowered hat and accessories. Her nosegay was made up of mixed sweet peas.

Mr. Elden Bates, of Granville, brother of the bride, was best man, while Mr. Rod Real and Mr. John Hunt ushered the guests into the church.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, attended by immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The home was suitably decorated.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Wright left by motor for a short trip into Ontario, the bride travelling in a pale blue suit, with white accessories, and a corsage of white and mauve sweet peas.

A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds.

31st Annual Meeting Montreal-Ottawa Conf'ce Of the United Church

Impressions Specially Contributed to The Watchman

(Intended for last issue)

This year the annual four-day sessions of the Montreal and Ottawa Conference of the United Church of Canada were held in St. James United Church, Montreal. President of the Conference was the Rev. C. D. Donald, D.D., of Southminster Church, Ottawa.

The noon-day devotional addresses were given by the Rev. Dr. Short, formerly a Scottish Congregationalist, and now minister of St. George's United Church, Toronto. His messages were excellent and an inspiration to the members of Conference.

Apart from the business sessions held during the day, there were three evening services. On Monday evening a Communion service was conducted by the president of Conference. Tuesday evening was devoted to the World Church, when the Rev. A. Pinto Ribeiro from the Mission Field of Angola in Africa spoke, followed by an address by the Rev. Harold Young, D.D., of Toronto. On Wednesday evening a great congregation was present for the ordination service. Seven candidates were ordained to the ministry — among them the Rev. E. Allister Kirker, who served for a time at Harrington and Kilmar.

Also among the candidates was a Chinese scholar, Dr. Yau S. Szeto, a graduate in Science. Dr. Szeto will become minister of an inter-denominational mission for Chinese residents in the City of Ottawa.

A report to the Conference told of the continued growth of the United Church with over 3,000,000 Canadians under the care of this denomination. This number represents approximately one-fifth of Canada's population, and makes the United Church numerically the strongest Protestant denomination in Canada. The Church raised something over $36,000,000 for all purposes in 1954, of which $4,300,000 was given to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, and $1,200,000 raised through the Women's Missionary Society. Of these three amounts, the Montreal and Ottawa Conference was responsible for approximately 10% in each case.

Expansion of the Church's work continues in the suburbs of the ever-growing cities, and in the new mining areas opening up across the land. In the last two or three years 120 new churches have been built, and in the next three years a minimum of 180 churches will have to be erected, if needs are to be met.

Some 90 candidates for the ministry were ordained by the 11 Conferences of the Church, but listeners were reminded of the continued need for more and more candidates. With numerous pastoral charges vacant, and new work constantly opening up, at least 125 new ordinants are needed every year if the Church is to eventually meet the minimum requirements. Special attention will be given to securing an increasing number of young men for this work during the new Conference year.

The French Work Committee reported important changes in past policy. A French-language monthly paper, "Credo", is now being published in co-operation with the Board of Home Missions. Of particular interest is the announcement regarding the recent changes at the French Institute at Pointe-aux-Trembles. In the past the teaching staff came directly under the supervision of the United Church of Canada. For a trial period, and with a view to a permanent agreement, the United Church and the Protestant School Commissioners of Greater Montreal have agreed to transfer the teaching responsibilities to the latter group, while the Church will maintain a home for resident students. The teaching, under the Protestant School Board, will continue to be in the French tongue.

In 1955 the various phases of the Church's work, beyond the local congregations, will require at least $5,000,000 through the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, and about $1,350,000 from the Women's Missionary Society. This money will be spent in Mission work in Canada and the foreign fields, for the maintenance of the various administrative Boards of the Church, and for special projects such as Radio and TV, the Church paper "The Observer", and similar undertakings that are important in the life of the Church.

At the conclusion of the Conference the President installed the President-elect, the Rev. T. D. F. Everett of Trinity Church, Sherbrooke, Que. The Rev. John Hurst was re-elected as secretary, while Mr. R. Forbes Hirsch of Ottawa was re-elected to his post as treasurer of the Conference.

Given clean bill of health by Q-Men in launch, British freighter NORTHLEIGH weighs anchor in quarantine grounds off William Head, B.C. and sets course for harbour.

If bubonic plague and yellow fever sound foreign to Canadians, a large share of the credit is due Canada's oldest federal health activity — National Health and Welfare's Quarantine Service, whose alert medical officers stand guard to keep Canada free from infectious diseases.

Working from reports of the World Health Organization, "Q-Men" in stations on both coasts chart every new outbreak of disease. All vessels from these areas must be inspected by a quarantine officer before docking. If necessary, passengers and crew are inoculated or removed to shore stations for treatment, and the ship fumigated. In addition, the service assures care for foreign crewmen.

Despite its remarkable record, the "Q" service is known little by inland citizens Like the good health it ensures, it is hardly noticeable—as long as it's there.

Venezuelan Jungle Too Much for Zeal Of Diamond Hunter

Toronto (CP) — Prospecting for diamonds in the Venezuelan jungle brought nothing but grief to Francis J. Kelly, 40-year-old Toronto man. He came back empty-handed and says he's "glad it's over."

Kelly had always wanted to make the trip and a January lay-off at the plant where he is employed gave him the opportunity. Since then he has tangled with everything from tarantulas to state police.

"The jungle is romantic and adventurous from here," he says, "but it isn't nearly so nice when you're in it."

His troubles began as soon as he arrived in Venezuela. Kelly showed up in Caracas with four guns. They were confiscated by the Venezuela National Security Police, who, Kelly says, can be "just as grim as they sound."

After several weeks scrutiny, Kelly finally was given two of the guns and allowed to go.

He found two companions who shared his dream of finding wealth. They selected a spot eight miles from the Brazilian border, tried digging and found water. They moved out, two natives moved in and found diamonds worth $2,000.

After this disappointment, they joined two other men and set off up-river. But their motor-boat overturned in rapids and the men lost most of their provisions.

A 12-hour walk through the jungle brought them to an Indian village where they spent four weeks digging unsuccessfully. When his friends became discouraged and left, Kelly remained as the only white man in the village.

One day an eight-inch hairy tarantula ran up his arm. It didn't bite him, but its fur brushed an open cut on his arm and he came down with a fever that lasted several days.

The next crisis came when an Indian asked him to help his brother who had been bitten by a snake. The man's leg was swollen, and he appeared to be near death. "I had no serum," Kelly recalls, "All I could do was pretend and hope they wouldn't slit my throat if he died."

Kelly powdered three headache tablets and some laxative pills, pretending the mixture made a potent medicine. Then he went to his hammock and prayed. To his surprise the man recovered and he became a village hero.

After two more weeks at the diggings, the rains came and Kelly trekked back to civilization through 70 miles of jungle. He sold his rifle and ammunition but landed in Trinidad without money. He tramped the docks unsuccessfully looking for a working passage home.

Then the British Legion and the immigration department came to his rescue. They loaned him money for a new suit, $10 spending money and his fare home.

Poet Scans Nation's Economic Horizons

Ottawa (CP) —

Douglas LePan, who went down the army ladder instead of up and who has since written prize poetry along with economic reports, is to be named as secretary and research director of the royal commission delving into Canada's economic future.

The 41-year-old Toronto career diplomat will direct a small army of economists of his own under the six-man commission that is to scan economic horizons for an inkling of problems Canada may face 30 or more years from now.

His group will act as the commission's research arm, preparing papers and reports on various issues and projecting problems into the futureto see how they are affected by expected developments.

Mr. LePan himself likely will play a key role in drafting the commission's report at the end of about 18 months of cross-country public hearings. The research arm or miniature bureau of statistics will operate mostly in Ottawa.

Mr. LePan graduated from the University of Toronto, studied English at Oxford and lectured in English literature at Harvard. In the first part of the Second World War, he was adviser to General A. G. L. McNaughton, in charge of the Canadians overseas, on army education.

Two years later he stepped down to the army's bottom rung to be an artillery gunner — "from the top", as he says, "to the bottom." He fought as a gunner for 18 months in Italy.

In 1945 he was in Canada House, London, where the then High Commissioner, Hon. Vincent Massey, expressed worry over the lack of economic reporting his office had done to diplomatic headquarters in Ottawa. He asked Mr. LePan to take on the job and he agreed.

His economic reports led the government to send him to world trouble spots for major assignments. Lately he has been minister-counsellor at the Canadian embassy in Washington.

Amid all this he found time to turn out two books of poetry.

The first won the Guggenheim Award in 1948. It was "The Wounded Prince and Other Poems." The second, "The Net and the Sword," earned the Governor-General's Prize in 1953.

Armed Services and Personnel In Spotlight in Ottawa Debates

By Don Peacock, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 13 (CP) — The government has been accused of putting a "cloak of mysterious secrecy" around the retirement of Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, 52, as chief of the general staff.

The charge was made in a statement issued by Opposition Leader Drew following his unsuccessful attempt in the Commons to obtain additional information on the decision to retire Gen. Simonds on August 31.

Mr. Drew said Prime Minister St. Laurent's official reason — that the general has "completed the normal four-year tour" as army chief — "is no explanation at all and merely emphasizes the need for frankness."

"The people of Canada are entitled to know why our most brilliant field officer has been retired under circumstances which demand a full and satisfactory explanation," he said.

NATO Reference

There was considerable talk in London and Paris military circles last year that Gen. Simonds would succeed Field Marshal Montgomery as commander of NATO land forces, Mr. Drew said. If such an appointment were planned, the government should say so.

"Parliament and the people of Canada have a right to demand that so important a subject should not remain shrouded in a cloak of mysterious secrecy."

Mr. Drew's statement said what he apparently had been trying to say in the Commons before he was interrupted by shouting Liberals.

He said Gen. Simonds was appointed army chief February 1, 1951, and that same day his predecessor, General Charles Foulkes, was made chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. He was not suggest- civilian. His appointment becomes effective August 15.

Air Vice-Marshal Miller, a native of Kamloops, B.C., is the first RCAF officer to become deputy ing General Foulkes should be retired, but if the length of appointments were to be fixed by length of service General Simonds would be succeeding General Foulkes.

Meanwhile, some observers in Ottawa believe General Simonds was retired because he is not politically acute. They say this has resulted in a series of political embarrassments for the government, probably minor in themselves but accumulative.

His successor, Major-General Howard Graham, nearly five years older, is reputed to have so-called "political sense" as a result of his law training and a hitch as mayor of Trenton, Ont.

The armed forces were much in the news last week. In addition to announcing the Simonds' retirement, the government announced appointment of Air Vice-Marshal Frank R. Miller, 47, as deputy defence minister, succeeding Brig. C. M. (Bud) Drury, 43, who is going into private business. Air Vice-Marshal Miller will resign his RCAF commission and serve as a defence minister. As such, he will be senior to his present boss, Air Marshal Slemon.

Appointment of an RCAF officer to the vital defence post points up the government's growing concern with and emphasis on North American defence. The air force now is the largest of the three services and spends as much as the navy and army combined.

The Prime Minister, who announced the appointment, said Mr. Drury has made an "outstanding contribution to the defence program of Canada and to the public service generally."

Air Vice-Marshal Miller has served in the RCAF since 1931. In recent years he has worked closely with American and European military planners. He will be succeeded as air vice-deputy at NATO headquarters in Paris by Air Vice-Marshal Hugh L. Campbell, 46, of Salisbury, N.B., commander of the RCAF air division in Europe.

Promoted By Shuffle of Army, Defence Staffs

Changes in the top-level command of Canada's armed services and in the department of national defense, set off a wave of speculation in Ottawa after official government announcements by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Defence Minister Ralph Campney. The former announced the appointment of Air Vice-Marshal Frank Miller, air deputy to the chief of staff at SHAPE in Paris, to deputy minister of national defence. AVM Miller, seen above, 47-year-old native of Kamloops, B.C., replaces C. M. Drury, of Montreal, who has returned to private business.

—Central Press Canadian Photos

Mr. Campney reported the retirement of Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simmonds, 52, as chief of the Canadian army, general staff and his replacement by Maj.-Gen. H. D. Graham, seen above. Now GOC, central command, Oakville, Ont., 57-year-old Graham will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general.

Minister Refutes Political Motives

Ottawa (CP) — Defence Minister Campney took time to answer Mr. Drew's earlier criticism of the retirement of Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, 52, as chief of the general staff next August 31. Mr. Campney said there is no "mysterious secrecy whatever" in the decision.

The retirement had been settled in "a very frank and pleasant conversation" he had with Gen. Simonds last February, four years after the general's appointment to the post on February 1, 1951.

"It is generally regarded — there is no law, no directive — that senior officers should be retired on a four-year rotation," Mr. Campney said. This was done so as not to delay promotion of officers coming up through the ranks.

He referred to a statement issued by Mr. Drew outside the Commons a week earlier accusing the government of putting a "cloak of mysterious secrecy" around Gen. Simonds' retirement. The statement said the general had been retired "under circumstances which demand a full and satisfactory explanation."

Mr. Campney said: "I suspect the leader of the opposition started off to ride a political horse and fell off — or was pulled off."

Fisheries Minister Sinclair interjected: "It was not a horse he was riding, it was a jackass."

Mr. Drew replied sharply that the minister had made "an asinine comment." He said he had asked the Commons for information after the government had announced the general's retirement publicly.

"Nothing I have done has contributed to any of the uncertainty," he said, to which Mr. Campney replied: that is "a matter of opinion."

Big Top Tackles a Big Top

NO COMPLAINTS came from Bully, elephant of a British circus, when Assistant Trainer Joan Fowles tackled the job of oiling behind his ears with a vacuum cleaner with a spray attachment. The cleaner, a new portable one, was seen at this year's British Industries Fair, in London and Birmingham, England. Named "Bak-vak", as the name implies, it can be carried on the back.

Old Resident Of Grenville Laid to Rest

Understand Hindustani?

Language is only one of the difficulties faced by Canadians who buy and sell in foreign markets. Currencies, exchange and trade regulations—payments and collections—market information—locating sales representatives abroad—all call for prompt, efficient handling over long distances.

The chartered banks are an essential part of this whole trade picture. Through their foreign branches, agents and representatives they provide permanent, on-the-spot contact in commercial centres around the world.

Facilitating the flow of international trade is only part of the work carried on every day by the chartered banks of Canada. Your local branch is a convenient banking service-centre where you can obtain expert help on money matters large and small.

Only a chartered bank offers a full range of banking services, including:

CURRENT ACCOUNTS
For individuals and companies who pay by cheque; your cancelled cheques serve as receipts.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES
Keep your important papers and other valuables safe, yet readily accessible.

MORTGAGE LOANS
For building your home under the terms of the National Housing Act.

BANKING BY MAIL
Convenient, and saves time. All your routine banking can be handled in this way.

In October had come the first word of Sir John Franklin, missing for several years. It will be remembered that in 1827 Sir John laid the keystone of one of the arches of the Rideau Canal, when he paid a visit to Colonel By on his way home to England after a former expedition to the Mackenzie River. A letter from Dr. Rae to Sir George Simpson had appeared in the Montreal Herald. It told the story of the fate of Franklin and forty-six men. Their ship had been crushed in the ice and they had died of starvation in the Spring of 1850. Dr. Rae had bought many articles found in the tents by the Indians. Among them was a silver plate with the initials G.R. engraved on one side, on the other Sir John Franklin, K.C.B.

In 1854 gas was first used for lighting the streets of Bytown, the few whale oil lamps on main thoroughfares and those on public walls being quite inadequate to relieve the gloom. Those on the wells were known as "Perkin's Lighthouses" as they had been fashioned at the Perkins foundry as were those used on the streets, according to Dr. Brault. The Bytown Consumers Gas Company contracted to substitute Gas lamps on Sussex and Rideau Streets, but it was stipulated that, owing to the greater expense, they must not be lit when the moon, the parish lantern, was in its fuller stages, no matter how cloudy or stormy the weather might be.

Although its predecessor, the Packet, was a supporter of the Reform Party, the Citizen was a strong Tory paper, not interested in the abolition of the Clergy Reserves and the Feudal system, but decidedly of the opinion that Bytown should be made the Capital of Canada, for, as an editorial observed, "it has the greatest trade of any city in the Province, in short there are scarcely any qualifications for a metropolis that it does not possess."

Mr. R. J. Friel, a prospective reform candidate in the next election as his year in the Mayor's seat drew to a close, announced in the press his wish to support all social and humanitarian improvements. He was also strongly in favor of that important public work, the Georgian Bay Canal. The Legislature had voted $50,000 for the purpose, and the work had been going on under the contractor, Mr. A. P. Macdonald, but unfortunately it had to be relinquished, as it was found that the blasting powder then in use was not powerful enough to break the rock between Lake Deschênes and the foot of the Chaudière. There still may be seen not far from the old Britannia boathouse what was meant to be the beginning of the Georgian Bay Canal, the dream of our pioneers.

But what of the railroad? As the end of the year approached people had begun to consider it a joke, and except for the ingenuity of Mr. Bell, it might have become, for a time at least, another unfinished dream, because although the line had been completed almost as far as its terminal, Bytown — in fact it had reached Billings Bridge — the supply of rails was exhausted and there was no money available to get more. Mr. Bell solved the problem. He purchased a quantity of 3 x 4 maple scantlings, had hoop iron laid over them, and in spite of the scoffers the train triumphantly steamed into New Edinburgh promptly on time, that is to say at 5 p.m. on December 25th, the date set for the inauguration of the road. The station on Sussex Street was ready; preparations had been made for the celebration, but unfortunately, the bridge over the Rideau was not completed.

However, the passengers were ferried across and they walked to the station, where the ceremony was held, after which a banquet provided the appropriate jollification. And why not? The railway had been a great accomplishment. As might have been expected in the early days of operation, unlooked for difficulties arose. Coal was not then in general use, and one morning someone failed to fill the wood box. About half way to Prescott the engine stubbornly refused to go any farther without more fuel. It so happened that the resourceful Mr. Scott was a passenger, and as usual he came to the rescue. He made his way to the nearest town, Kemptville, and returned in triumph with a load of wood. The journey was resumed.

To digress a little: It will be remembered that another successful effort of Mr. Scott was directed towards securing the choice of Ottawa as the Capital of Canada. But his zeal and public spirit were not exhausted in local affairs. He was responsible for the Canada Temperance Act, a local option measure commonly called the 'Scott Act.' Most of us have known of him as Sir Richard William Scott for many years Secretary of State in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Cabinet.

At the Christmas season the mind easily turns to lighter subjects, such as preparations for the usual festivities. So it was in Bytown. Mr. Scott, the confectioner, advertised his tempting counters under the true Scottish caption, "The Land o' Cakes." His rival, William Prodérick burst into song entitled "Christmas and New Year Cakes."

"Come a' baith winsome, grave and witty
Wha throng the streets of Ottawa City;
Step in, ye'll find what just will fit ye
In dainty cheer.
The Graces have sat in Committee
On what is here,
Here Ancient Yule and Hogmanay
Their choicest gifts of art display
Fresh as the thoughts of yesterday.
Sae just step ben
An' please yersels, as well you may,
Then come again."

It will be noticed that Mr. Prodérick used the words "Ottawa City" instead of "Bytown". That was surely not merely because it made a better rhyme. He must have heard the news that a second Memorial, carefully engrossed and sent to the Legislature in the Autumn had met with success. This one, more modest than the former, read as follows:

"To His Excellency the Governor General in Council the petition of the Town Council of the Town of Bytown respectfully sheweth:

"That the Town of Bytown from its position is the commercial capital of the Ottawa section of the Province, comprising the Counties of Carleton, Russell and Prescott, Lanark and Renfrew in Western Canada, and the extensive Counties of Ottawa and Pontiac in Eastern Canada;

"That its importance is greatly increased by the termination within its limits of that great public work, the Rideau Canal, which connects it with Lake Ontario, and by the completion of the Bytown and Prescott Railway, which connects it with the Atlantic Seaboard by way of Boston and New York, a line of railway being also in course of construction to the City of Montreal through the Ottawa Valley;

"That the population of Bytown is estimated at 10,000, being the number estimated under Municipal Law to entitle it to corporate powers.

"Therefore Your Petitioners pray that the Town of Bytown be proclaimed a City by the name and style of the City of Ottawa, and that the said City be divided into the number of wards and with the same divisions as the Town of Bytown is now constituted under the General Municipal Law. And in duty bound Your Petitioners will ever pray.

(Signed) E. Burke, Town Clerk
(Signed) H. J. Friel, Mayor.

All honor to the vision, courage and determination of our pioneers; the Proclamation was duly made and the Town of Bytown became the City of Ottawa on the First of January 1855.

Canadian Charges the Seattle Police With Assault

—Central Press Canadian

William Ennew, 26-year-old Canadian veteran of Korea, has charged Seattle city police with assaulting him so badly early this month that he may be a diabetic for life. An ex-Toronto fireman, Ennew said he had been visiting in Victoria, B.C., and was returning to Toronto by bus via the U.S. He claims he was hauled off the bus by Seattle police, and taken to police station where he was kicked and beaten in the stomach. Ennew admitted he had "a few beers but was not drunk." Hospitalized for 10 days, Ennew had half his pancreas and entire spleen removed.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. Explain why a claimant who finished a benefit year with a number of days still to his credit may find himself in a position where he cannot collect these unused days.

A. The act allows a period of one year in which to draw benefit to which a claimant is entitled at the time of his application. In most cases a claimant who does not draw all this benefit in that time is able to immediately requalify.

* * *

Q. I am moving from Montreal to the west. What should I do about my unemployment insurance?

A. If you are drawing benefit in Montreal and intend to move to the west, you must tell the local office in Montreal what you intend to do. As soon as you arrive at your destination, you must report to the local office there and give all the information necessary in order to have your claim transferred to that office. If you are simply moving from one job to another, take your insurance book with you and give it to your new employer.

NEW VISITOR

Summerside, P.E.I. (CP) — The 2,400-ton Norwegian motor vessel Hamina on her maiden voyage was decked in flags to mark Norway's Independence Day when she arrived here to load pulpwood. Her cargo of pulpwood for Antwerp was completed at Souris.

Feat by Aged Trapper, Native of Buckingham

Winnipeg (CP) — Killing a mad timber wolf is no common feat, but it can be set down as remarkable when the killer is an 80-year-old trapper.

Bill Varnson, a lean six-footer, now staying at a convalescent home here, still has a crystal-clear memory of his experience with the rabid wolf seven years ago. He was just 80 years old when he settled the deadly score.

"I had a load of three cariboo in my canoe and was unloading it on the home side of North River, about 30 miles beyond Fort Churchill, when the wolf jumped at me," he recalled.

"The crazed animal bit two fingers on Mr. Varnson's right hand, but he managed to pull them free.

"Then he got hold of my left elbow. I grabbed him on the left side of his head, pressed hard behind the ear and pried him loose. We were in the canoe and I managed to push him back on the cariboo, where he stood snarling at me.

"The only chance I had to get him was to push him overboard into the water and hold him at the bottom until he drowned."

Held Under Water

The water was only two feet deep but Mr. Varnson succeeded in knocking the animal over and holding his head under until he stopped struggling.

"The only thing that saved me from rabies was the cold water," he said. "All I had to put on my wounds was iodine."

Mr. Varnson was born in Buckingham, Que. He spent almost 60 years in the north beginning with the Yukon gold rush of 1898. He left Vancouver in his search for gold travelling by boat to Skagway. From there he went 150 miles by steamer to Dawson City in the Yukon.

Mr. Varnson left the Yukon in 1900 for a few years but went back and stayed until 1916.

"Since then I've been up north of The Pas and Churchill mostly. I worked at trapping and prospecting all winter and came out every spring. I was working at Fort Churchill building army residences in 1951 when I hurt my shoulder. I was struck and run over by a truck."

Now Mr. Narnson sighs: "I won't be taking any more trips with dog teams."

Eastview Town Council Likes Old Custom

Ottawa (CP) — The moon goes down on no one's wrath in Eastview town council.

For so many years now that no councillor can remember how it started, the council meetings have been ending with a procession of reeve, deputy reeve and councillors past the mayor's chair to shake his hand, winding up the evening on an all-is-forgiven note.

In Ottawa, the eastern section of which surrounds Eastview, council endings are often different. Sometimes councillors leave the council chamber mumbling threats. They have been known to shake fists at the mayor and bandy words that would never be uttered during the meeting.

One has been escorted out by a policeman. Others have been threatened with similar egress.

It's different too in neighboring Hull, Que. Aldermen shuffle off home without comment, or re-fight the council chamber battles on the front steps of City Hall as they leave.

But not so in the hemmed-in suburban town of Eastview — regardless of the fray during a meeting once it's over there are handshakes all round.

Asked why everyone always shakes hands with the mayor, a rookie alderman replied: "Why? Well, it's something no one would think of omitting. It shows no matter how we differ on various items of business, we do it as elected representatives.

"But at the end, we shake hands because we're all the same, underneath."

Mayor Gordon Lavergne said he could not remember how the custom began. He had not initiated it. He recalled that it was the custom throughout his years as mayor and before that as a councillor. Said he:

"We just don't let the day end with any hard feelings."

IMPROVEMENT COMING

Halifax (CP) — Marked improvement in the telephone service between Newfoundland and the mainland is expected to follow completion of a special submarine cable between Sydney and St. John's about 1956, says the annual report of Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co.

Six Marriages On Saturday At Eucharistic Altar

Saturday morning, Mgr. Alexis Leveille, parish priest of Ste. Scholastique, officiated at the marriage of six local couples. The ceremonies were performed before the repository on Lachute Fair Grounds specially constructed for the Eucharistic Congress.

United in marriage at the ceremony were Armand Quenneville, of Ayersville, and Miss Clemence Gagné, of St. Michel de Wentworth; Jean Presseault and Miss Stella Joly, both of Lachute; Adrien Derouin and Miss Lucille Monette, both of Lachute Mills; Elzear Lapointe, of St. Andrews East, and Miss Monique Courtois, of Ayersville; Marcel Constantin, of St. Eustache, and Miss Lorraine Lascelles, of Ayersville; Lucien Campeau, of Lachute Mills, and Miss Denise Bedard, of Ayersville.

All the marriages were registered in the Immaculate-Conception parish, in which the ceremonies took place.

Citizen Group Asks Mayor's Resignation

At a packed-house meeting of the French-Canadian citizenry, last evening in the Civic Auditorium, a decision was emphatically passed to present a letter, signed by "A Committee of Citizens", requesting the resignation of Mayor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald.

Six of the aldermen were in attendance (all French-Canadians) — not, however, in an official capacity. The latter took no part in the general applause.

The meeting was chaired by Alderman (pro-Mayor) Judes Charlebois. The letter was read by Lucien Savard. Henri P. Lecorre spoke regarding the Legion, affirming that this body had taken no corporate part in the dispute.

Arundel Man Severely Hurt In Jeep Mishap

Harold Gordon, 29, of Arundel, suffered serious leg injuries Tuesday evening, when the jeep he was driving went out of control on the Lakefield Road, a mile past the Thomas' Gore turn. He was alone at the time of the accident.

Donald G. MacRae was first at the scene of the accident and summoned Dr. Papineau, who arrived soon after with an ambulance. Traffic Officer Howard Jones was on the scene 15 minutes after receiving the call at 8.55.

Gordon, who had purchased the jeep from Pollock & Graves Motors several hours prior to the accident, was believed headed towards Morin Heights, where his father operates a garage. The jeep was damaged beyond repair, having travelled a short distance in the ditch and crashed into a large tree.

The victim was treated at the Providence Hospital by Dr. Papineau; his left leg was badly mangled below the knee, and he suffered a cut over the right eye which required 12 stitches. He was transferred yesterday to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, St. Jerome.

Vancouver (CP) — City council will advertise for sale by tender on a cash-bid basis its 199 acres of cemetery land in suburban Burnaby. The negotiated site has been the subject of controversy since an eastern firm negotiated to buy it for $1,000 an acre.

Bishop Pleads to Perpetuate Spirit of Religious Congress

His Excellency, Mgr. Emilien Frenette, Bishop of the St. Jerome diocese, Tuesday evening issued a statement on the incident which occurred here last week-end during the recent Eucharistic Congress. Following is a broad translation of the bishop's message.

"We indeed regret that an incident occurred during a Congress of peace and love, an incident which has stirred up far-reaching ill-feeling and indignation.

"Having ourselves taken an active part in the preparation of the Congress and presided at all the ceremonies, we publicly felicitated and thanked the municipal authorities, the Lachute citizenry, the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A., and the Argenteuil Agricultural Society for their collaboration and assistance — in the latter case, for putting the Exhibition Grounds at our disposal.

"During the Eucharistic Congress, the Lachute Municipal Council themselves invited us to officially bless their new Town Hall. In response to the welcome offered us by Pro-Mayor Judes E. Charlebois, we acknowledged this fine gesture, as well as the efforts of the city fathers and their citizens, without forgetting the respect of individual rights and the welfare of all concerned. A good Christian is a good citizen.

"The symbol of our Congress and our humble words helped during the four days to recall to everyone the commandment of fraternal love, and unity in peace and truth.

"All Catholics in Lachute, and the diocese, have found they have derived from the Congress this essential Bible lesson. We exhort them now, with all our heart, to preserve it for the good of their souls, their families, and of our dear town of Lachute.

"To the Eucharist, replete with love and goodness, patience, mercy and forgiveness, we beseech for the good of all concerned — that our faithful, and those who live in proximity with them, will remain orderly and restrained, maintain their equilibrium and harmony, and above all, exercise fraternal charity.

Lions Sponsoring Juvenile League Baseball Games

Meeting Called for Friday At Ayers Office

Boys 9 to 13 years of age interested in playing league baseball this summer are invited to a confab tomorrow evening (7 o'clock) Friday at the Ayers office.

Lachute Lions Club is again sponsoring the Little Major League, with Dr. Eric Mongeon (the former Lachute hockey coach) as chairman. The boys will meet Dr. Mongeon, Mr. Regimbal (Lions Club president) and the team managers. Six teams will be selected, intermingling French and English-speaking youngsters, and plans will be made for the season.

Parents with boys in the above age group anxious to join in this supervised season of baseball, should urge the youngsters to report at this meeting without fail.

Bishop Honors Civic Corp'n, Visit to New Town Building

Peterborough, Ont. (CP) — The Optimist Club here which promotes prospects designed to aid youth recently supported a proposal calling for institution of capital punishment for convicted narcotics pedlars who sell drugs to young people.

Civic officials played host to His Excellency Monsignor Emilien Frenette, bishop of the St. Jerome diocese, in Roman Catholic religious ceremonies held in the Town Hall on Friday. Pro-mayor Judes E. Charlebois acted on the part of Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald, who was absent at a convention of the medical profession.

Present at the gathering were members of the municipal council and their wives, Roman Catholic dignitaries, several former mayors and other invited civic officials.

The bishop greeted the gathering in the main office of the building, after which all moved to the Council Chamber, where the ceremonies took place.

On behalf of the council, Ald. Charlebois welcomed the bishop to Lachute and to the civic building. He stated that the new municipal building was proof of the progress of the town and was an important adjunct to public ceremonies. "It is here that the city fathers meet to discuss the affairs of all citizens, and that various groups gather. It is important that such a building be distinguished among others, and that its occupants realize their social responsibilities".

Ald. Charlebois asked that the City Fathers be intelligent and courageous, and that God might help all in their deliberations. He closed by asking that the building be safeguarded, and that ill feeling, discord and injustice should not enter its walls.

Thanking Ald. Charlebois, Mgr. Frenette expressed his appreciation at being invited to officiate at this ceremony. "In all the years I have been in this diocese, this is the first time that I have ever blessed a Town Hall. It is a pleasure to see the collaboration and the binding spirit that exists in Lachute, between the different nationalities and different religious groups, who are living together in perfect harmony.

"It is necessary for civic prosperity to have a healthy administration, and good Christians who will work with the public authorities. The State has nothing to fear from the church or any religion. It is important work that goes on in this building; let us ask God's blessing — that He may protect this institution, the aldermen and the citizens of the community."

In closing, His Excellency offered congratulations on the general organization and preparation for the Eucharistic Congress.

Refreshments were served after the formal ceremonies.

BUSY SHIPYARD

Amherst, N.S. (CP) — Noise of production at the shipyards at Port Grenville is nearly as loud now as when the yard produced many wooden ships in the old days. A 60-foot dragger, the "Clissie Eldora", was launched for Capt. Wm. Matthews of Halifax and two more are on the blocks.

Legion Disclaims Participation In Dispute

An executive meeting of the Lachute Legion Branch 70 was held Tuesday evening at which certain regrettable incidents of the past week were discussed, and it was decided to make a public announcement through the two local newspapers, on authority of the Legion president, Vincent Elliott, that the Legion as a body had no part whatever in the protest regarding use of the flag in the Memorial Park. Statement in press or public to the contrary — any intervention by individuals was in no way instigated by the Legion.

Wheat Outlook

Warm weather has at last come to the West, and Canadians all over the country have a stake in it. If it lasts for another month with clear skies and higher temperatures, the West may yet get a good crop this year — says the Financial Post. And if the West doesn't get a good crop this year, the effects will be felt in the East as well as here. Farm spending — all business observers agree — cannot keep up through a second bad crop as it did through last year's.

Yet it isn't a big crop that businessmen or farmers are praying for. What we need this year is good wheat rather than a lot of wheat. Canada has plenty of last year's poor wheat, grading No. 5, No. 6 and Feed. The United States is loaded to the gills with it. But the stuff which Canada can sell without too much difficulty, the stuff which brings the best price, the stuff which the U.S. cannot supply — even by giveaways — is the prime hard northern grading Nos. 1, 2 or 3. This is what the world wants to make its flour with. And if we can only get a fair crop of high-grade wheat, nobody will be too much worried about the quantity of low-grade wheat harvested.

Mayoral Letter on Flag Incident

Lachute, Que.
June 28, 1955

The Editor,
Lachute Watchman.

Dear Sir:

I would be glad if you will publish this letter so that the general public may be made aware of the facts, as I know them, in connection with the unfortunate incidents which occurred during the recent Eucharistic Congress which was held in Lachute.

The Mayor and the Town Council were both pleased and honored that the Eucharistic Congress was held in Lachute, and the civic authorities did all in their power to facilitate this function. The front of the Town Hall was completed in a rush to be ready for this event, and the building and the surrounding County Memorial Park were profusely decorated with the Papal colors and flags; so much so that the Ecclesiastical Authorities publicly expressed their appreciation of the fine co-operation of the town, and particularly of the English-speaking section.

As the Council was aware, I had a prior commitment to be in Toronto during this week and only arrived back in Lachute late Saturday night, June 25. My appointment in Toronto was arranged one year in advance, in fact before I was elected as Mayor; and in that city I represented the Province of Quebec on the General Council of the Canadian Medical Association at the annual meeting.

On Sunday morning, June 26, I was informed that there had been some incidents in connection with the flying of the Papal flag at the masthead of the flagpole in the County Memorial Park. I went to the Town Hall at about eleven o'clock in the morning and found that the Papal flag was on the flagpole. I explained to the police that the protocol in this connection was that the National flag must fly at the masthead in such a place, and I requested the police to take down the Papal flag and place it under the National flag on the flagpole. At no time did I make any derogatory remark about the Papal flag.

Protocol in connection with the flying of the National flag in public places is well and firmly established and I have been advised by the legal advisor of the Town that he has received information from the Department of the Secretary of State at Ottawa confirming my interpretation of this protocol.

In connection with the Town police, I wish to state that at no time did I discharge any of them. I made several visits to the Town Hall on Sunday to see if my orders had been carried out and, when in the late afternoon I found that they had not, I telephoned the police switchboard operator and told him to inform the police that if my orders were not carried out I might have to fire them. It is also worthy of note that for most of the day on Sunday our chief of police was not on duty and that, with the Town having many thousand visitors, police protection, as far as the Town police was concerned, was given by only two constables. I consider it a serious breach of duty for the police to fail to obey a legal order given them by the mayor or one of the aldermen, and I will consider it my responsibility to point this matter out to the Town Council. Some of the aldermen may find it convenient to overlook the matter at this time, but they must remember that the position may be reversed at some other time. I trust it never happens.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I am sure that all right-thinking people in the town deplore this whole incident which, in my opinion took an unforeseen and unfortunate turn. I hope that the matter will be quickly forgotten and that all citizens will continue to live in the close harmony that has so characterized the relations between all races and creeds for so long a time in this fair Town of Lachute.

F. W. FitzGerald, M.D.C.M.
Mayor of Lachute.

Motorists Incensed Over Ayersville Speed Zone

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Lachute Watchman.

Dear Sir:

Brownsburg motorists are up in arms — and we believe some Lachute motorists too — over the new Ayersville restricted speed zone. Even people noted for their careful driving and common sense attitude toward road laws, can't follow the reason for restricting speed on the open road. Even if you go strictly by the book, this type of road would allow speeds of 40 or 50 miles an hour as far as the Lachute limits.

No doubt the Ayersville Council has a more admirable reason for slowing down traffic than the obvious one — that they can expect to reap a harvest in fines, but at the moment the other reason is very obscure. The revenue from this source should be more than normal, for normally only the irresponsible speeders pay up, while on this stretch of road the ranks will be swelled by more level-headed road users.

Doubtless many impeccable drivers will lose lifelong records for careful driving while they adjust to the idea of slowing down on a quiet stretch of highway. It's inevitable too that the road-hogs will use this as their example when they say, as they so often do, "I'd follow the rules, if there was any sense to them"

Gatineau Power Lines

Please Report Changes

Gatineau Power supplies electricity to world-famous vacation areas, so naturally the demand for electric connections is exceptionally high in the summer months.

When the summer visitor makes normal, planned-for use of electricity there is no problem. Sometimes, however, heavy electrical equipment is brought to summer cottages, without advice to the power company.

In their own interest, customers should advise the company when about to install such items as a stove or a water heater.

Such advice enables the company to take steps to avoid the annoyance of low voltage by checking the size of the transformer serving your premises and those of your neighbors.

As well, it is important to make sure that your wiring will carry the electricity to the new appliances efficiently — that it is adequate to handle any new demands to be placed upon it.

Barley in Poultry Feed

Ottawa — Cheaper poultry feeds could result from the use of barley in broiler and laying rations. Because of the high fibre and low energy content of barley, high energy broiler and laying rations contain little of this grain. It has however, been used in limited amounts in poultry rations, especially in a scratch grain mixture fed to range stock or laying birds.

G. S. Sindblad of the Poultry Division, Central Experimental Station, Canada Department of Agriculture in Ottawa, reports that a study to investigate the possibilities of utilizing more barley in broiler and laying rations is currently in progress.

Results indicate that when barley is used in a "Mash Ration", at levels greater than 20 per cent, weight and feed efficiency were reduced. On the other hand rations containing up to 50 per cent barley fed in "Pellet Form" resulted in satisfactory weight gains, and feed efficiency was only slightly reduced as compared to regular high energy broiler rations. These results suggest a definite possibility of decreasing feed costs by using barley in broiler rations.

An experiment with laying hens fed "All-Mash" rations indicated that 60 per cent barley in the ration supported satisfactory egg production. The feed required per dozen eggs was not materially decreased as compared to a high energy laying ration containing wheat and corn.

4-H Swine Clubs In Ontario

A change in last year's regulations has resulted in greater membership and interest in 4-H swine clubs in Ontario. Previous to 1954, each member was required to feed and care for one pair of weanling sows for one season. Commencing last year, however, swine club members could either continue with this project or have one weanling sow, to be kept for breeding purposes, and one pig, either sow or barrow, for market purposes.

In 1954 Ontario had fifty-three 4-H swine clubs with a combined membership of 710. This year at least 65 swine clubs have been organized with a corresponding growth in membership.

R. G. Bennett, Associate Director of Extension in Ontario, commented that this new regulation is largely responsible for the increased interest. Mr. Bennett reported also that in some cases the pair of pigs were purchased at the beginning of the club year by the sponsoring organization and that the 4-H member will return this amount following the sale of his barrow pig through public auction at the club's 4-H achievement day next fall.

Canadian Potatoes In Bermuda

Early in April J. W. Scannell, Plant Protection Division, Department of Agriculture Ottawa, visited Bermuda at the request of the Director of Agriculture for Bermuda. The object of the visit was to determine the amount of virus disease in Bermuda potato fields. During the past two years the Bermuda authorities have been somewhat concerned over a condition which they considered was caused by a virus in planting in which Canadian seed was used. Mr. Scannell reports that in general fields planted with Canadian seed were in good condition. The advice given by Mr. Scannell was much appreciated by Bermuda officials and it is believed Canadian certified seed will continue to hold its good reputation on the Bermuda market. Sales of this seed have been consistently made to Bermuda since certification first became available to Canadian potato growers.

Poultry Feed Wastage

Careless feeding is the greatest cause of feed wastage in poultry feeding, states T. M. McIntyre, Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, Nappan, N.S. Excessive feeding of grain or pellets in the litter may result in serious loss of feed. Records have shown that chickens wasted 29 per cent of their feed when hoppers were filled but only two per cent when filled to the halfway mark. Grain wastage may be reduced by feeding grain in the hoppers on top of the mash or in separate hoppers. If sufficient hopper space is provided there is no need to overload the hoppers with feed and if deep enough little feed will be billed out. Tests with different size hoppers have shown that birds fed from a hopper 5 inches deep by 6 inches wide wasted only one-third as much feed as birds fed from hoppers 3 inches deep and 4 inches wide. With feed at four to five cents per pound, total feed costs can be materially reduced by careful handling.

Northern Pioneer Is Versatile Farmer

Hudson Bay, Sask. (CP) — For more than 50 years William Henry Smith has lived in the Hudson Bay district, working in a variety of jobs that include hunting guide, trapper, farmer and plasterer.

He homesteaded in 1907 and kept his farm until he rented it in 1943. In his spare time from farming he worked at his other trades.

His most exciting job was as a game guide. He took New York, Toronto, Boston and Chicago businessmen through the wilds of northern Saskatchewan in search of game, especially moose.

"Some of the fellows I guided would wound a moose and then stand petrified as the animal charged toward them," Billy Smith says. "Then it was up to me to get my rifle firing as fast as possible.

"One fellow stood only 20 feet from a wounded moose when the animal finally fell dead."

He says a wounded or mating moose can kill a man with one sweep of its hoof.

When he first settled on his homestead, he had no money for implements. He tried his hand at trapping to earn enough to get his farm going and spent two years on a trapline. Beaver, muskrat, lynx, fox, marten and fisher were his main catches.

It was after this he became a game guide, developing his farm between hunting seasons.

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

This Week's Lesson

LACHUTE has suffered an unfavorable setback as a result of the "flag incident" this past week. Despite suggestions from various quarters — this column refrains from discussing the issue; it has already been discussed too far afield.

It has been the ideal of this newspaper, however — and of its French-language offspring — to foster tolerance and collaboration through the years. And in this spirit, from the unfortunate occurrence of the past week there is one definite lesson to be stressed: There are fanatical thinkers who could most effectively and promptly nullify all the harmony rooted by right-thinking citizens in a lifetime. . . If this town is to live and prosper, it behooves us therefore to spare no effort, in our homes and schools and discussion centres, to foster the tolerant mind — to withhold no support or encouragement to those vital clubs and organizations which form an interracial link in our community life. . .

That is the lesson to be learned; only by "building up" can we counteract those potentialities more adept in "tearing down".

Deplore Indifference to Livestock Judging

THERE IS a question presently confronting our local Fair officials. Why do fairgoers, including the farmers themselves, stay away from the cattle judging en masse? According to reports, the same observation was made at Ormstown. It cannot be presumed that local farmers are un-interested in seeing good livestock in the ring, but there must be some good reason why the judging of purebreds draws smaller and smaller ringside audiences as the years go by.

Not only do livestock shows require much time in preparation, but they are costly. These shows should provide a meeting place for judging and selecting the best in livestock, and as an educational opportunity for those farmers whose livelihood depends on dairying.

Indications are, however, that the average dairy farmer is growing less and less interested in the shows. Why?

Possibly the shows have become routine, and their present manner of organization has outlived its appeal. There might possibly be a substitute, or a remedy. If you have a suggestion, contact the fair management now; don't wait until next year's fair is all planned.

The reason for this disinterest is known to local farmers who attend the fair but who stay away from the cattle exhibits. Their reasons should be made known in an effort to restore what has been lost anad keep the Lachute Spring Fair cattle competition on the map.

World Calendar

ONE OF THE most radical switches in the offing is the current consideration of a World Calendar which would revolutionize holiday habits and conceivably send calendar manufacturers looking for something else to print.

While similar plans have been discussed, then discarded, in bygone years, adoption of the World Calendar seems an eventual necessity. From an industrial viewpoint — says "Industry", bulletin of the Canadian Manufacturers Association — the merits of the new system would undoubtably remove several current headaches.

The World Calendar divides the year into four quarters of equal length by recording only 364 days. The extra day will have no date other than its designation as World Day and will fall every year between the last day of December and the first day of January. It will not have a place among the seven days of the week. In Leap Year, another similar day will occur between the last day of June and the first day of July.

January, April, July and October will always start on Sunday and have 31 days. The other eight months will each have 30 days. Under the World Calendar, statutory holidays will fall on the same day of the week every year, eliminating the present system of holidays which float over the seven days of the week.

Among the advantages of the World Calendar will be the new comparative ease of compiling accurate trade and commerce statistics. Thousands of dollars will be saved annually by school boards no longer finding it necessary to draw up and publish detailed and complicated schedules of school holidays.

A perplexing aspect of the change would be the necessity of declaring World Day a holiday, which may require that one of our current holidays be dropped. The problem: which one?

Another encouraging note will be the new hope afforded New Year's Eve revellers, who will be provided with a period to convalesce and recover in time to enjoy New Year's Day dinner.

"No Empty Rituals"

A GREAT many people are bothered by the repetitive nature of the speeches and arguments advanced in support of freedom. "Is this another meeting (or conference, or speech)", they say, "where the same old arguments or ideas will be hashed over again?"

Simon E. Sobeloff, Solicitor General of the United States (reports the News-Letter of Canadian Chamber of Commerce) answered this question in an address to the 9th Annual National Conference on Citizenship in Washington, D.C. He pointed out that living is to a large extent a repetitive process and that we all derive enjoyment and stimulation from hearing old songs, attending familiar operas, re-reading favourite books and looking at well beloved pictures. The virtue and the need of repetition and reiteration in stating the case for liberty is that liberty is not something that we can win once and for all time, and having won it sit back to rest and enjoy it. As Mr. Sobeloff points out, "It is like a vineyard that needs to be cultivated and constantly tended. If neglected, it can become overrun by obnoxious weeds, and there is always danger from the little foxes who spoil the vines, the vines that have tender grapes."

Mr. Sobeloff makes the point that the guardians of our freedoms are the voluntary organizations and the men and women whose minds and hearts feel the worth of free citizenship, its priceless privileges anad its challenging responsibilities.

As Mr. Sobeloff has aptly stated, "So it is wise and fruitful for us to assemble from time to time to recall these things and to recount them to others. The re-affirmations we make . . . are not empty rituals. They renew the sources of our strength. They direct our attention to our duty. They focus our energies in the defence of the foundations of our system."

Getting On the Map

SOME OF the nicest places in Canada are the hardest to find or to identify. They are those charming little spots, off the main roads and not marked on highway maps, which neither put up signs bearing their own names nor tell motorists how to get there.

They are the sort of places one sees on a Sunday drive through some rural district in the neighboring county.

"What a beautiful little village!" the driver's wife will exclaim, admiring a settlement which nestles in a peaceful valley. "I wonder what it's called."

She looks vainly for a sign, makes a quick but futile check of the road map — and by that time the car has passed beyond the community and its occupants' attention is on something else.

Of course, a name on a road sign isn't enough by itself to bring tourist business to such villages, many of which would benefit from extra dollars, but it's a first step toward catching a stranger's eye.

Signs directing visitors to a community and marking its approaches can carry a welcome message, advertise its best points and indicate features of historical interest. Travellers are always on the lookout for something different, whether it is fossils in the rocks, the site of the first grist mill in the province, or an old tree on which horse thieves once were hanged.

Another tourist stopper can be a rustic sign offering for sale the best buckwheat honey for miles around, or choice maple syrup, or cheese or clams or any other regional specialty. A hobby such as rug-hooking or wood-carving can be put to profitable use in drawing notice to a locality.

Once the visitor's attention has been caught, it is essential, of course, to give him a friendly welcome, to develop his interest by providing information about district attractions, and to make him want to come back.

Often, imagination and enterprise, coupled with a surprisingly small outlay of cash, will go far to develop a community's reputation as a place which tourists go out of their way to visit.

A simple road sign can help put such a locality on the map.

IF CONSUMERS demand Canadian-made products, then the foreign products will have to take a back seat in sales. At the same time, Canadian manufacturers will have to do their part by offering greater inducements to the consumer to ask for the Canadian product. — — Huntingdon (Que.) Gleaner

"Music Hath Charms !"

Bar combs and paper, radios, television sets and phonographs, I can play no musical instruments. When I was a young lad of twelve, I began studies with Godfrey Hewitt, F.R.C.O., which were to lead, so it was thought, to my becoming a master of the pipe organ. I was a budding chorister in the choir of Christ Church Cathedral, Ottawa, and Hewitt was the organist. His lessons cost my parents the ridiculous sum of one dollar per lesson, and I did surprisingly well. But my triumph was short-lived.

When I reached the age of 14, my father was transferred from Ottawa to a small town in the Laurentian mountains. Almost coincidental with her arrival in the town, my mother took a decided dislike to the school in which I was to be educated — if I were to attend school in that locale. So, before I knew what was happening, I found myself whisked off to a very select boarding school where it was hoped I should receive the education worthy of my station. (No, my mother wasn't a snob — she just wasn't fussy about small towns.)

The upshot of my transfer to boarding school was that my musical education came to an abrupt end. When I entered the school, Hewitt had me proficient in playing Scotch reels with both hands on the piano. He said I was ready for the pipe organ and I was eagerly anticipating the first lesson in which I would come to grips with the mighty monster. But the boarding school demanded so much by way of fees that there wasn't a penny to spend on such extra-curricular pursuits as the piano. With that instrument forced out of my reach, the pipe organ was, naturally, right out of this world.

Needless to say, I lost no time whatever in forgetting everything Hewitt had taught me, and, within a year or two, I was completely incapable of playing anything bar the instruments mentioned at the outset of the article. The situation is no different today except that now I can hope that some day I may yet rejoice at my proficiency on the pipe organ — or at least a reasonable facsimile thereof.

Yesterday, while travelling along St. Catherine street in Montreal, I passed the showrooms of one of the country's leading piano makers. There in the window was a peculiar-looking instrument which looked like a piano that had been crossed with a concertina. The key board was a mixture of standard keys and rows of buttons. A sign nearby proclaimed the truth about the machine.

"Now," it said, "you can amaze your friends with your musical abilities. Even if you've never played a note before, you can play lovely music on this revolutionary chord organ. The left hand picks out the one-fingered melody. The right hands plays exciting bass chords by depressing the buttons. The foot operates the loud and soft pedal, and that's all there is to it. You don't even have to know music to play this amazing instrument!"

How revolting! How utterly disgusting! For my money, the electronics people have gone just a bit too far. They are depreciating values that have long been accepted as the epitome of learning. They are cheapening an art, and making the attainment of musical standards of no worth whatever.

There are, of course, some advantages to be considered. Take, for example, the case of the harried organist who awakes some Sunday morning to find that both arms are completely crippled with rheumatism. Does he panic and search frantically among his friends for a substitute to take over for the day's service. No, not he. Casually picking a name from the congregational list, he phones and blandly asks the party to take over for him.

"But," says the selected person, "I don't know how to play a note!"

"Splendid," the organist says. "Just the fellow we need. The caretaker will give you the keys to the chord organ. The minister has the list of hymns. You'll be a great success."

"I didn't know the church had a chord organ. In that case I'll be glad to help out. Call on me anytime — anytime at all!"

Simple, isn't it? Just a bit too simple!

A local citizen, known as a hard bargainer, asked a new clerk in a hardware store: "How long will this fire extinguisher last?" The clerk didn't know, but he took a shot in the dark: "Fifty years."

"Can't use it," retorted the would-be customer. "Don't expect to live that long."

"Well," suggested the clerk, "why don't you plan to take it with you?"

OF MANY THINGS

Neighborly Love

I have a country cottage, complete with neighbor. He thinks he exudes brotherly love. Here's how he practiced it last week-end.

I went out on my patio for a quiet cup of coffee and a cigarette. He came beaming over. He dropped himself into my best deck chair. Looked with baleful eyes at my cigarette and coffee. "You know, you ought to cut down," he said. "I quit smoking a month ago, and I eat like a horse. And you'd be better off without that coffee, too."

"It's a beautiful sunrise," I said.

He fidgeted (the way non-smokers do), but I could see that he was settled down for a long stay. I gulped my coffee, tossed the cigarette away, and said, "Well, I guess I'll get to work."

I disappeared into my cottage but when the coast was clear I came out and began to nail lattice work around the front. My eager-beaver neighbor was over again in a flash. He wanted to help. He was full of neighborly love. I wished that he would take his love back home to his own family, nail some lattice work on his own cottage, and let me do things my way.

Love should not mean inflicting your ideas or yourself on other people. Love means being the best person that you can be, in your own life, ready to lend a helping hand when you are asked; but not until you are asked. An over-eager neighbor is like an over-paternal government. Both have a stifling effect on your spirit.

The only good thing I can say about my neighbor is this: he has no power to tax me. If he did have, I am quite sure he would take away my cigarette money, just for my own good.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Don't feel sorry for that tousled old witch you pass on the street. She may be your wife, on her way to collect her unemployment insurance.

According to word from Ottawa, some women are cheating the public treasury by a method so strange that a man biting a dog seems routine by comparison.

When they marry, they register as unemployed and start collecting benefits. Rules demand that they be ready to accept a job. To make sure that no job is offered, these unscrupulous wenches make themselves look as ugly as possible.

In a brief presented to a parliamentary committee, it was alleged that such women deliberately muss themselves up and even go so far as to remove their false teeth, if they have any.

Should this trick become more popular, we may see a boom in the sale of yellow lipstick, plastic warts and gowns made from flour sacks.

The jaded advertising world will get a tonic when the new-style sales messages hit the women's magazines. I can hardly wait to see the ads urging the girls to buy cosmetics that will make them more repulsive tonight and every night.

The advertisements may suggest that every loyal harpy owes it to her husband to make herself a reasonable facsimile of Nightmare Alice.

However, this is mere guesswork. The fact that some women right now are making a determined effort to look hideous should be comforting news for husbands. When a woman offers such a sacrifice, it shows that she loves her husband. Or else it shows that she loves money. Either way, she's a useful girl to have on the team.

Taxpayers who put up the money may not feel so cheerful, but it's hard to see how the unemployment insurance staff can restrain the girls.

They can't very well toss a female job applicant on the street because she looks like a ghoul. By some unfortunate chance, that may be her natural appearance.

An inspector can't risk a lawsuit by telling a woman that her scent reminds him of sheep dip. He can't order her to go home and put on a girdle.

His only resource will be to steer her to some boss with a jealous wife, who insists on a secretary plainer than herself.

TB STILL PROBLEM

Vancouver (CP) — Dr. Robert Kerr, head of the department of medicine at University of British Columbia, says that despite progress in combating it tuberculosis remains one of the main problems of modern medicine. Death rate in this province now is down to 11.5 per 100,000 persons.

999 Enemies of Man

Ever since man first appeared on the earth, he has been afflicted by diseases caused by his predecessors: the bacteria or single-celled plants, the protozoa or single-celled animals, and the viruses, which some scientists believe were the first living things.

Germs, through mutation, are constantly generating new species. Occasionally, but rarely, they are responsible for new diseases. For while mutations occur quite frequently, the mutant, or changeling, disappears almost as rapidly as it emerged.

As a matter of fact, our century has probably produced no really new disease, with the possible exception of ailments related to modern techniques, machines or chemicals.

Another indication that man is outrunning his germ enemies comes from a recent survey conducted by the World Health Organization. WHO researchers conclude that there are 999 different diseases and causes of death lurking in our world — but that no new ones have appeared since 1948.

One of the most fascinating tales of medical detective work on disease concerns the efforts of Rockefeller Foundation scientists to track down new viruses. Those tiny, puzzling germs lie on the borderline between inert chemicals and living organisms. They are sometimes discovered as disease-causing parasites in humans, sometimes in higher animals or insects.

While working on the problem of yellow fever in Africa and South America, the Rockefeller researchers uncovered 11 viruses never before known. Since 1949, these "new" viruses have been the objects of intense study. One of the germs, isolated from the body of an Africa mosquito, was injected into the brain of mice; even when injected in incredibly small amounts, the virus killed almost all the experimental animals.

The researchers then examined African natives to determine whether the germ is capable of producing disease in humans. Delicate blood tests showed that, at one time or another, a majority of the population in the region had been host to the "new" germ. Fortunately, however, the virus, although deadly to laboratory animals, produced no symptoms of disease in human beings.

Thus, the search goes on. Medical scientists continue to find new germs, some that are harmless, and some that cause disease. But they also find new ways to combat them. The last few years have seen the development of powerful and safe drugs, such as the newest broad range antibiotic polycycline, as well as effective protective agents against the polio virus and other germs. When disease No. 1,000 is discovered, the chances are that medicine will be ready for it.

A GOOD FEED — BUT TOO DEAR?

We hear this often — but wait a minute. What do the feeders really think of Purina?

A recent survey in Ontario by Dunn & Bradstreet, asked the feeders which brand of feed they preferred. Of the 388 feeders reporting, 55 of them preferred home grains — which is natural. You all have home grains and most certainly will feed them. That leaves 333 who reported on 10 commercial brands.

If they were equally divided, that would mean 33 1/3 were feeding each of the different brands. But 98 of those reporting preferred PURINA to any other brand. That is, about 3 TO 1 FAVORED PURINA over the average, and about 20 times as many as favored the lowest brand reported.

Purina cannot be so expensive if that proportion of the feeders prefer it.

Cows have lost enough flesh by this time. Better get them some Bulky Lax or Milk Chow, or if you have still some grain get Cow Chow Supplement. It will stop the cow putting her flesh in the milk pail and keep up the flow of milk.

Late F. C. Vowles Was Old Resident of B'burg

Final tribute was paid on Tuesday to the late Francis Charles Vowles, who passed away quietly at the home of his son on Sunday, in his 89th year.

Born in Bristol, England, in 1867, he came to Canada in 1904 with his wife (the former Sarah Hazel) and family and settled in Brownsburg, where he spent most of his years. A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Vaughan Vowles, he was the last surviving member of a large family, being predeceased by his twin sister in 1950.

He leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. John Kettyle (Elsie), of Brownsburg, Mrs. E. Zimmer (Ruth), of Toronto, and one son, Frank, of Brownsburg, also 10 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren. His wife predeceased him in 1937.

He was a faithful member of the Regular Baptist Church in Brownsburg — where the funeral service was held, with the pastor, the Rev. Geo. Hicks, officiating. A profusion of beautiful flowers betokened the sympathy of many relatives and friends. Interment was in the Brownsburg Cemetery at Lachute. Pall-bearers were Messrs. Gerald Vowles, Ernest Kettyle, Alan Vowles, the Rev. Harold Kettyle, Kenneth Ball and Wyman Hazel.

Death Calls Last Member Of Old Pioneer Family

Late Thomas Archibald Canning

Grenville — The people of this locality were grieved and shocked on learning of the sudden death of Thomas Canning, which occurred at his home in Grenville, on Sunday morning, June 19, in his 82nd year.

Mr. Canning was a member of an old pioneer family of nine — the last surviving member of the family of the late John Canning and his wife Sarah Hammond, of Stonefield. Following the passing of his parents, he with two of his sisters, Margaret and Sarah, occupied the family homestead, a mile north of Stonefield, for a number of years; the sisters were removed by death, one within a year of the other, and Thomas remained alone in the old home. On January 3, 1949, he married Miss Elizabeth Eleanor (Bessie) Cummings, and moved to Grenville, where he lived until his death. He is survived by his wife and a number of nieces and nephews.

The funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon, June 21, in St. Matthew's Anglican Church, the Rev. P. R. Slote officiating. Many friends and relatives attended.

Interment took place in the family plot in the Lachute Cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Garfield Moncrieff, Harris Dewar, John Owens, Fred Murry, Bob Anderson and Eddy Noble.

Text of Letter Re Resignation

Lachute, Que.
Wednesday, June 29, 1955

To the Mayor of Lachute Town:

A group of Catholic citizens of the municipality of the Town of Lachute are gathered here this evening to protest, deplore and reproach the attitude you have taken in the matter of an order given by you to the police force of our town, to lower the papal flag from the flag pole where it was flying for the occasion of the Eucharistic Congress here last week.

Until Saturday, Mr. Mayor, we had nothing but commendation for the co-operation of our English-Protestant citizens, and their placing the Exhibition Grounds at our disposal.

We were equally gratified that Aldermen Ross R. Muir and Edgar Pollock were present to witness the blessing of the Town Hall by His Excellency Mgr. Emilien Frenette, Bishop of the St. Jerome diocese.

Your act, Mr. Mayor, is not in accord with these, nor is it worthy of the first citizen of a town, who was elected by the people and for the people.

You must be aware, Mr. Mayor, that the Catholic element of the Town of Lachute represents more than 70 per cent of the total population.

You must also be aware, Mr. Mayor, that you were elected by the people, for the people, and that you have to consider the religious sentiments of all the population, not only a minority.

You must be aware, Mr. Mayor, that you have committed an act which may have deplorable and even tragic results.

If, Mr. Mayor, you ignore all these things, you do not merit the confidence which your supporters placed in you.

Without your deplorable and regrettable intervention, the Catholics of this town would have participated in religious ceremonies of the Congress in peace and tranquility, and would have taken pride in the conduct of their Mayor.

It was unfortunately otherwise; and your term of office which has scarcely begun, is and will be characterized by this religious intolerance which you have shown towards the Catholics of your town.

Whereas your stand was a disgrace to the Town of Lachute;

Whereas you neglected, in your duties as Mayor, to consider the religious sentiments of the majority of the citizens of this town;

Whereas you made use of your privilege as Mayor to initiate an act disapproved by the majority of your Council and gave an order that you did not have the authority to give;

Whereas your act does not have even the approval of the majority of your English Protestant fellow-citizens;

Whereas your conduct is an insult to the Catholics of the Town of Lachute;

We, here assembled, demand your resignation as Mayor of the Municipality of the Town of Lachute.

(Signed)

Is Hell Fire A Bible Truth or A Pagan Scare?

Centuries before Christianity was ever preached on earth, Buddhist priests in remote India were teaching hell-fire and eternal torture. In the Harvard Classics (vol. 45, pp. 701-704) you will find an English translation of the sacred writings of Buddha (called Anguttara-Nikaya) which gives a vivid description of this fiery place of torture complete with all the trimmings. The ancient Hindus and the early Chaldeans also believed the hell-fire doctrine.

Egyptian priests of the first world power taught the torment-after-death theory sixteen centuries before the birth of Jesus. According to their papyrus scrolls, now deposited in the British Museum, daily spell-binding prayers were said for the dead, to protect them from the "under-world" devils. One finds similar torture doctrines also taught by the ancient Babylonians, Persians, and Phoenicians.

The doctrine of a burning hell where the wicked are tormented eternally after death cannot be true, mainly for four reasons (1) Because it is wholly unscriptural. (2) Because it is unreasonable. (3) Because it is contrary to God's love. (4) Because it is repugnant to justice. . . . The Bible clearly teaches, that hell or sheol or hades means the grave, the tomb, the condition where all good and bad go, awaiting the day of resurrection.

No Suffering After Death — If persons suffer after death, they must be alive, but the Bible says that when a man dies, "his breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." Hence, "the dead know not anything", and "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in Sheol, whither thou goest". In death there is no remembrance of thee: in Sheol who shall give thee thanks?" — Psalm 6:5 146:4; Ecclesiastes 9:5, 10.

On page 68 in the bound book, "Let God be True", you will find a complete study of this subject. It can be had for 50 cents from the Watch Tower, 40 Irwin Ave., Toronto 5. You can also help to dispel these misconceptions surrounding this subject by sending for 250 copies of the tract "Hell-Fire", for 25 cents. . . . Let's give praise to Jehovah and his son, Christ Jesus.

P.S.: Any of Jehovah's Witnesses you might happen to meet in your district would be glad to supply you with the above-mentioned literature.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the King who disguised himself and sought to know the future from the medium at Endor? The Philistines in great numbers had gathered to fight the Israelites and when this King saw the enemy's army he was very much afraid.

This King had been doing evil and when he sought to inquire of the Lord, he received no answer. Neither did he find guidance from his prophets or in his dreams.

Earlier in his reign he had exiled all wizards and mediums. Thus the medium was frightened when he visited her. But he commanded her: "Divine for me by a Spirit, and bring up for me whomever I shall name for you." She, reminding him that the King had cut off all wizards and mediums from the land, asked, "Why then are you laying a snare for my life to bring about my death?"

Then the king promised the medium, "As the Lord lives, no punishment shall come upon you for this thing." The woman asked whom he wished to talk with and the King answered "Samuel." But when Samuel appeared, then the medium knew the identity of her visitor. In a loud voice she cried, "Why have you deceived me? You are the King!"

When Samuel, as an aged man, wrapped in a robe, appeared, the King bowed low to the ground. The old prophet asked, "Why have you disturbed me?" Then the King answered, "I am in great distress, for the Philistines are warring against me, and God has turned away from me and answers me no more. Therefore I have summoned you to tell me what to do."

Read this King's name and the account of Samuel's message to him in First Samuel, Chapter 28.

Money Talks

A big silver dollar and a little brown cent
Rolling along together they went,
Rolling along the smooth sidewalk,
When the dollar remarked — for the dollar can talk,
You poor little cent, you cheap little mite,
I'm bigger and more than twice as bright;
I'm worth more than you a hundredfold,
And written on me in letters bold,
Is the motto drawn from the pious creed,
"In God We Trust", which all may read.
I know, said the cent, I'm a cheap little mite,
And I know I'm not big, nor good, nor bright,
And yet, said the cent, with a meek little sigh,
You don't go to church as often as I.

Luring crows within range of your scatter gun is a lot easier than calling ducks or geese, and a lot less complicated than some of the experts would have us believe. This I proved to my own and another crow shooter's satisfaction a couple of weeks ago. We'd gone out after an early supper to work our Beagles in the cool of the evening. Tom has a young dog he's trying to get started before the rabbit season opens in the fall, and knowing I run my hounds at least one evening a week through the summer, had called me at the office during the day to set up the date. Almost immediately after unloosing the dogs, they picked up a trail and ran steadily for about an hour. Three times they put the rabbit across the road where we had taken our stand, then somewhere along the line the bunny gave them the slip. After the hound music had stilled, we strolled, on, chatting of this and that while we waited for them to get on another trail.

Must Be A Roost

It was during this lull in the running that we heard and then noticed the crows as they winged overhead in twos and threes and sometimes more, and all flying in a southerly direction. "Tom", I said, "There must be a roost hereabouts," and then went on to wonder out loud if I could interest the old black rascals in a few improvised notes on the Beagle horn. At this point perhaps I should mention, for the benefit of my non-beagling readers, that one of the inescapable and least facinating aspects of the pastime of beagling, is retrieving your hounds when you're ready to call it a day and go home. To call in the hounds some beaglers use whistles, some just whistle, others holler, and others like myself use horns. Theoretically hound dogs are susceptible to the notes of a horn, which supposedly arouses the homing instinct — sometimes I wonder about this. These here horns consist of nothing more than a steer's horn with a small reed inserted in the gozing end, which serves as a mouthpiece. When I got my first from Abercrombie and Fitch, I asked the neatly Brooks-Bros-suited salesman if he would tootle it for me by way of demonstration. "Not on your sweet life, Mister", said he. "Do you want me to clear the whole seven floors of all the paying customers"? When I got the instrument home and blew on it back of the house one evening, I knew why. It sounded — but wait a minute, I had checked with another beagler who uses a horn and he told me, "all you have to do is blow it urgently-like, and they'll come". Well, I did, and still do, and it sounds like the lovesick agony of an adolescent bull moose.

The Crows Loved It

Tom and I had edged into the bush by the side of the road, and muffling the sounding end of the horn with my hand, I started making like I was using the old crow call. 'Pon my honor, in a matter of minutes we had a "frenzy" of crows pouring in from all points of the compass. Soon as they glimpsed our amazed and upturned faces, they veered off and departed for their roost, calling derisively as they went. Flushed with success, I later called a couple of farmer's nags to within shooting range out of a distant pasture, but by eleven o'clock the same evening, still vainly trying to coax the last of my dogs out of the bush, I was reduced to my normal state of humble wonderment at the cussedness of life in general, and hound dogs in particular.

Takes More Than Calling

The average guy can call crows up to half a mile away, but if you want any real shooting you've got to employ considerable strategy to keep them around and divert their attention from the shooting and the shooters. Pick out a fly-way. We found ours by accident. Rig up a blind or utilize any natural cover, if there is any. If the cover is sparse, one of those camouflaged net snipers' masks for each shooter will do the trick. Set out an owl decoy where the crows can't fail to see it, but still within shot-gun range. Best of all, a stuffed owl, but the papier-maché imitations work pretty good too. Two or three crow decoys set out on nearby trees or atop stakes driven into the ground will lend further realism to your set-up. We've had a couple of good shoots using these tactics. One last tip, don't overdo it — shooting once a week on any fly-way is just about enough. Too much shooting and, like as not, those crows will find themselves another roost.

B'burg Squad In Good Stride, Defeat Hwksb'y

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The Brownsburg boys have really found the groove now, and on Sunday they teed off on three Hawkesbury pitchers for 16 hits and 11 runs. Ronald Cousineau pitched another fine game, allowing three walks and seven hits for just three runs. In the fifth inning, while it poured hard, he gave up two runs on four hits, and then shut them out on one hit the rest of the way.

The big part of Brownsburg's success is the brilliant infield play. André Ouellette at short, and Jacques Racine and Keith Hazel at second and third, are robbing the opponents of sure hits in this class of baseball. These fellows are pretty handy with the bat too.

At bat this week, Yves Raymond had the biggest measure of success, clubbing four hits in five official trips and a walk. He scored one and batted in one, and also stole a base. Charley Mosely, who handles the catching job very well, also had a good day on offence, hitting three for four with two walks and a stolen base. Every batting position in the Brownsburg line-up had at least one hit, and in the power department, André Ouellette hit a double and a triple in five trips with three runs batted in. The pitcher joined in the hit parade, helping his own cause with two run-scoring singles.

The next game is at Brownsburg on Sunday and fans may be assured of a high standard of baseball which is a tribute to Jimmy Murdoch's astute coaching. In fact, we can almost promise to have a winning team!

Sights Are Set On "Miss Canada" Crown

—Central Press Canadian

As indicated here judges at this year's Miss Canada contest will have plenty of pulchritude to choose from. Edmonton's bid for the Miss Canada crown, Dee Bennett, would like to study singing and dancing if she wins title which will send her to Atlantic City, N.J., later this summer to compete in "Miss America" contest. Miss Canada pageant to be held at London Ont., June 27 to July 2, in connection with the city's centennia celebrations, has 30 entrants from across the country displaying their talents as well as their charms.

Mount Robson, in B.C., is Canada's best known mountain but Mount Logan, in the Yukon, is nearly a mile and a half higher.

Colford Lodge Defeats Norgate

Still undefeated, the Colford Lodge baseball squad turned back Norgate of Montreal last Sunday, 9 to 1. Jean Guy Larocque struck out eleven batters as he pitched another outstanding game. Gaetan Larocque and Billy Cribb were the big hitters for Colford's — Gaetan with a triple and a double, while Cribb got three hits for four times at bat. One a smashing triple, Norgate scored on a home-run in the fourth inning for their only run of the ball game.

Next Sunday, Colford Lodge plays host to St. Eustache; game time, 2 p.m.

If basketball players keep getting taller, a goal will soon amount to no more than a drop in the bucket.

CURRENT SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

CBC "The Neighbors" Heart-warming Story of Inter-racial Accord

Opening Trans-Canada Matinee each day for the next few months, will be a visit with 'The Neighbors', the English-Canadian Napiers and the French-Canadian Benoits, at their homes in Shawbury, Quebec. For the Napiers, their move from Montreal means a new job, a new town, a new language; for the Benoits, — new neighbors, new friends, old conflicts.

Shawbury, a pretty riverside town in the Eastern Townships, is showing signs of an increasing growth of industry, one of which is Township Textiles where Jim Napier is the new plant superintendent. The local newspaper, "Canadien" weekly, is edited by his new neighbor, Hector Benoit. The town's vegetable and gossipmonger is Romeo Gregoire, the "housewifes' best friend", who comes in from his farm at St. Philomene de Shawbury, six miles out, to distribute fresh fruit and vegetables, and to collect gossip.

Drawn to each other by circumstance and instinctive liking, but separated sometimes by misunderstanding and prejudice, the grown-ups find their first weeks of living side by side in the mill-town delightful and exasperating by turns.

The youngsters on the other hand, skate smoothly over differences, their excitement at each new discovery heightened by the novelty of language and custom. Young Tommy Napier is delighted to find a friend whose mother "speaks two languages, Mum — and she bakes the best cake!"

But Margaret Napier, weary from moving and from the struggles of shopping by sign-language, and chagrined to find her good humor deserting her, is in no mood to hear about this paragon — until the "paragon" turns up in the person of the modest, charming, and altogether likable Annette Benoit.

Margaret's husband finds in Hector Benoit a good companion — and a dangerous adversary. Hector is forced to apply his theories about "les Anglais" to a second generation Scots-Canadian who refuses to fit the picture — and who will not, moreover, be called an Englishman. But heated arguments more and more and more frequently lead to whole-hearted truces over fishing-lines or garden hose, and the wives are forced to decide that their men really enjoy the heat of battle.

Giselle Benoit, lovely blonde daughter of Hector and Annette, and grand-daughter of the formidable Rosa Darche, is determined to be of use in the world, and has her eyes firmly fixed on a career in law. But for the summer she finds that it may be of use to show her province to young Bob Hawley, the Napiers' cousin from Ontario.

In fact, though they have become good friends, it is not until relatives descend on the two families that they realize how firm their friendship is, and when real trouble comes to the textile mill and to the town, Jim and Hector work on a unitetd, bilingual front to save the situation.

As for Ontario, Hector Benoit has a creed. "To anyone west of Cornwall", I say we here in the province of Quebec are as brothers. To you who live in this province, I say we must work to become as brothers". With the Benoits and Napiers, however, this "work" entails a great deal of high-spirited fun.

In the first week the Napiers were recovering from the job of moving — Jim sizing up his new job and eyeing the local fishing spots, Margaret having trouble with housekeeping in a new language, the children already familiar guests next door. The Benoits were excited about having an "English" family right beside them, in spite of Hector's conviction that Jim Napier's appointment is more evidence of the arrogance of the "English" company.

This week the Napiers enjoy their first real Sunday dinner in Shawbury — with strawberry tarts for dessert which were made by Madame Darche next door, and almost everything else purchased from Romeo Gregoire. Jim, however, discovers the dark side of things in the form of a small mystetry at the mill.

STEADIER PICTURES

Two new projectors — a 300 watt slide projector and a 500 watt projector for 2x2 slides — have a new feature called "wind tunnel cooling", reports The Financial Post. This provides a two-inch-high air chamber beneath the projector. A powerful fan scoops air through an opening in the case and through the cooling chamber at high speed. The extra cooling for lamp, optics and slides prevents cardboard slides from "popping" or slipping out of focus under normal operating conditions.

Eleanor Collins

Eleanor Collins, the singing star of Vancouver's TV variety show "Parade", presented monthly during the winter, is featured in a weekly music-and-dance presentation called Eleanor. The summer television series originates every Sunday evening from Vancouver. Music for the informal program will be supplied by the Ray Norris Quintet. A native of Edmonton, Eleanor began her singing career there at the age of 16. A singing star on CBC radio for several years, she made her first appearance on television last September and was called a "real find".

Court's In Session

That's Neil Leroy on the left, big Byng Whitteker beside him, then Jacqueline Rosenfeld, Pierre Berton, Dofy Skaith and Gordon MacFarlane — and another "Court of Opinions" is on the air! Provocative and sometimes amusing questions are asked of the panel each Thursday night by moderator LeRoy. Over five years old, the program arranges to bring before its microphone well-known people to express themselves on interesting topics. This has helped make it one of Canada's top panel programs.

3. By law, the federal and provincial legislatures must hold a session at least how often?
4. In 1954 154,227 immigrants were allowed to enter Canada. Was that more or less than in 1953?
5. Do interest payments on the federal debt cost $250,000 a week, $4 million a week, $9 million a week?

* * *

ANSWERS: 5. About $9 million a week. 3. At least once in every twelve months. 1. British Columbia. 4. More than 14,000 less than in 1953. 2. On the average, in 1954, wages and salaries took 23.5 cents of the manufacturing industry's sales dollar; income, excise and sales taxes took 8.7 cents; profits took 5.2 cents, of which 2.8 cents were retained in the industry.

JOLSON NOTES

(Contributed)

It seems that no matter how carefully one chooses the radio programs to be asked for tributes to Al Jolson, there will still be some who do not co-operate, some who give their tribute at a different time from that requested — and occasionally there will even be one which leaves the air before the request can be granted! This year's May 26 Jolson birthdate eulogies followed this pattern, as four programs failed to respond. However, the six which did respond, out of the 10 listed in our May 19th article, gave us a mark of 60% success, which equals the highest percentage previously attained, and is 2% above last October's.

Four of the six tributes were at different times from those expected. We had assumed that The Sunny Jim Show (CFRA) would honor Al sometime between 6.30 and 8.45 a.m. However, this period was devoted to music in honor of the Royal Canadian Artillery's 100th anniversary. During the second part of The Sunny Jim Show, from 11.05 to 12 noon, five transcriptions from "The Jolson Story" were played, together with appropriate comment. These transcriptions were made directly from the sound track of the movie, and included "Swanee", "April Showers", "California, Here I Come", "You Made Me Love You", and "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee". There is something special about these sound-track transcriptions which places them among our very favorite Jolson recordings. For his biographical motion pictures Al used a somewhat different style from his Decca offerings. Movie-making magic made his voice more vital, more magnetic, and truly reflective of the dynamic personality that was Al Jolson.

Mike Doyle of CKSF's Morning Show (Cornwall, Ont.) was unable to secure Jolson records for his May 26th broadcast, so presented them instead on May 30, from 8.15 -8.45 a.m., together with mention of The Al Jolson Memorial Club and selections from the fifth anniversary issue of "The Jolson Journal", which the writer had sent him.

Mostly Music, heard over WCAX, Burlington, Vermont, from 8.15-9 a.m., recently switched their format to instrumentals exclusively, but announcer Ed Needham offered to play our request, "California, Here I Come", on Turntable Terrace, 5.00-5.25 p.m. He also included mention of the club.

In our letter to CFRA's Gord Atkinson, we suggested that tribute time on Show Bill be as soon after 2.15 p.m. as possible, but he (wisely) switched this to "key time" of 6.35-7 p.m., when more people would be listening. He gave "the story of Al Jolson, in words and music". Interesting biographical material was combined with the five transcriptions from "The Jolson Story", previously mentioned, one from "Jolson Sings Again", and two Deccas, for 25 glorious minutes, interrupted only by commercials.

Those honoring Al at the expected time were CFRA's Open House, six records at intervals from 12.05-2a.m., and Morning Matinée (CFCF), one record at 10.10 a.m.

The program which left the air between the time we wrote and tribute day was The Charlie Fair Show CFCF. Mr. Fair moved to Toronto. (How could he do it?)

Besides the good percentage of programs participating, results were very satisfactory from the viewpoint of quality. Apparently considerable thought was spent on most of the tributes, with the result that commentary was excellent. Announcers were generous in their use of Jolson records, too, a total of 27 recordings being played on the six shows.

A surprise salute was that given by The Happy Gang, who repeated their medley of Jolsongs on Al's birthdate. We assume that this was due to our requests on other occasions plus favorable listener reaction.

Speaking of The Happy Gang, we note with regret that Bert Pearl, who originated the show away back in 1937, and who has been their master of ceremonies ever since, has retired from the program because of indifferent health. As Bert himself has said, the strain of doing a 30 minute show five days a week is terrific — and in this case it was just too much. Bert is a very good singer, and has a bright and friendly manner. It speaks well for his talent and wisdom that The Happy Gang has long been one of the most popular and outstanding programs in Canadian radio. We wish Bert Pearl renewed good health and much happiness in his retirement — and we hope that we'll be hearing him on guest appearances now and then.

Eddie Cantor also paid tribute to Al during May, on his TV show of May 31, and on his radio show of May 9, the latter comprising Eddie's "Salute to a Show Business Personality" for that day. Eddie recalled that he first met Al in 1912 when the latter came backstage and introduced himself. "Mr. Banjo eyes" related several amusing Jolson anecdotes. In conclusion, Eddie Cantor remarked, with great feeling, that in our time there can never be another performer like the singer of "Sonny Boy", "Mammy", and "April Showers".

* * *

After skipping a couple of weeks, "From Jolson On" resumes this Saturday, July 2, at 4.30 p.m. over CBM, when the musical films of 1944-45 will be reviewed. "Rhapsody in Blue" (1945) in which Al appeared, may be mentioned. The next broadcast in the series, which will probably be heard on July 9, will presumably deal with the movies of 1946-47, and will be of special interest to Jolson fans, as "The Jolson Story" was made in 1946. Also to be watched-for is the following broadcast, since "Jolson Sings Again" was released in 1948.

Cooking Tips For the Bride

There once was a charming young bride,
So nervous she just could have cried.
A friend said, "Now look,
It's easy to cook,
These ideas are tested and tried."

Very few women are born good cooks, but anyone can become one — and one of the most important steps in achieving this is the gathering of a collection of good recipes. A collection of recipes is rather like a set of fine silver; the longer it is used the more it is cherished. A bride when collecting her first set of recipes will, no doubt, include some of her own mother's and some of her new mother's as well. Because she will certainly want to prepare some of the dishes that "mother used to make." She will also find that a good cook book is really a necessity to fill in the gaps, and that the free Consumer Section publications from Ottawa will prove invaluable. These bulletins may be obtained, free of charge, from Information Service, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Cooking for "just two" does have its problems but if they are faced squarely most of them will turn out to be problems of planning and shopping. Take recipes for example. Most recipes are written to serve four or six people so for two in order to avoid serving the same thing two days in a row, it may be necessary to divide a recipe in half or even a third. The bride will start off with a good set of measuring spoons and a measuring cup and she will find that there are three level teaspoons in one level tablespoon and 16 level tablespoons in one cup.

There are two misunderstandings about good cooking that often overshadow the bride's attitude towards the kitchen. One is that cooking is a great time consumer, and the other, that in order for food to be good it must be expensive. Neither of these ideas is correct. Some of our favorite food, steak for example, may be cooked in a trice and others such as casserole dishes may take longer to cook but are comparatively inexpensive. Much of the goodness of dishes such as beef stew and sauce for spaghetti and meat balls depends upon the long slow cooking. But just because a dish takes a long time to cook is no reason why something else cannot be done in the meantime.

Good cooking starts with a well equipped kitchen, neither over or under stocked with an ample supply of staples, dairy products, meats, fish, fruits and vegetables in season. It is by the blending of these products into satisfying meals that the bride will gain recognition as a good cook.

To shop to advantage requires careful planning and it is perhaps this part of cooking for two that causes the beginner more concern than anything else. To be a thrifty shopper in today's serve-yourself food stores it is important to decide what is to be bought and to prepare a list before starting out to shop. If the week's meals have been planned ahead the staples can be bought at one time but a second or even third trip to the store may be necessary for the perishables.

It is wise to check several stores for their prices and to buy where foods of the best quality are found. For economy it is best to purchase fresh Canadian produce such as fruits and vegetables during the season in which they are most plentiful. Buy foods in quantity if there is storage space for them and buy by grade to suit the family's needs.

When selecting canned foods the best buying guide is the label. It gives a clear picture of what is inside the can — for example on a fruit label will be found the size of the can, kind of syrup and the quality of the fruit as well as other details. It is a good idea for the new homemaker to find out which sizes, varieties, or grades of different foods are best for her purposes — for she realizes the more she knows about buying foods the better shopper she will be.

Color For A Bride's First Home

When the honeymoon is over, the June bride will embark on a once-in-a-lifetime experience — furnishing her first home.

Twenty-five years ago her mother was tackling the same problem. But in those days the matter was simple. She chose some good solid pieces of furniture in colors which "wouldn't show the dirt" and painted her walls in the usual beige which would "go with everything."

Today, the modern emphasis on color has made home decorating much more exciting — but far from difficult for the inexperienced bride.

Home decorators today don't start with furniture arrangements. They first of all plan a color scheme, then choose furniture to fit the over-all theme. A good safe plan for the bride is to choose a piece of fabric which has colors she likes — a printed drapery, for instance. Then she will have in this one piece of cloth an inspiration on which to build a co-ordinated scheme for everything in the room.

It's best to plan the wall color first. This large area complements your furnishings, dictates all other color notes, and draws any room together into the harmony necessary for pleasant living.

With so many beautiful colors available in modern wall paints, the choice is infinite. Blue and green give a feeling of space and are cool colors for a sunny room. Warm beige and brown might be better for a north room and they make a pleasant background for either modern or traditional furniture. Grey is flattering to fine furniture and pictures. Bright rich colors silhouette light woods but be careful to use small designs in drapes and upholstery fabrics against a vivid wall.

After walls, floors are the next most important color area. A rug should take its key from the walls. A lighter or darker tone of the wall color helps tie the whole room together. Ceilings should be off-white. The best plan is to mix white with a dash of the wall color or any other color in the room.

Then come colors for large pieces of furniture. Deeper shades found in the drapery fabric can be effective for upholstery or slipcover fabrics on sofas and upholstered chairs. Finally, the white and strong colors in the wrapery will provide striking "accents" in small pieces of furniture and in cushions, lamps and ornaments. A useful axiom in home decorating is "Something dark and something light; something dull and something bright!"

Whether the bride sets up housekeeping in a two-room flat or a spanking new eight-room house the problem is the same. She wants to make it a warm and happy place to live. At her fingertips are all the colors of the rainbow in a multitude of paints and textiles. All around her are home-decorating publications to spark her imagination and at her service are paint dealers with years of decorating experience. Their expert knowledge can be a real help to the bride of '55.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Seasoning foods can be a real cooking adventure. Career homemakers can use it to special advantage, for to save time they can use processed or already prepared foods and pep up the taste with flavoring."

As he spoke, the Chef settled back in his chair.

Dried Herbs

"For example, learn to use the wide variety of dried herbs and seeds sold in the stores. Poultry seasoning, sage, thyme, marjoram, are all good food enliveners. Get dried mint, flaked parsley and onion for soups and sauces. Don't forget the good old bay leaf.

"Try a little cumin seed for seasoning pork, potato salad and cole slaw. Sometimes use dill in place of caraway seed; add a bit of crushed cardamon to sweet breads. Keep garlic in the kitchen but use it with a gentle hand. Onion, garlic, allspice, dill or celery salt often will work wonders with a soup or stew that tastes flat. Curry, mustard, chili powder and paprika are grand for flavoring food.

Nip of Clove

"Use a nip of ground clove in applesauce. Experiment with ginger now and then. And remember that the most prized seasoning of the old days was a fine-grating of orange or lemon zest' — which is just another name for the rind of orange or lemon."

Civil Defence Discussed At Q.W.I. Conference

A long-term program for Civil Defence in rural areas was discussed at the annual provincial convention of the Quebec Women's Institutes, held last week at Macdonald College. Mrs. J. Ossington, of Granby, provincial convener of Citizenship, is in charge of this project in this province, serving as liaison for the Q.W.I. and the Federated Institutes of Canada. All provinces had been asked to appoint such an officer to work with the national convener, Mrs. George Bennett, of Simmie, Sask. Mrs. Ossington attended a course at the Civil Defence College, Arnprionr, in the early spring, and plans to take another in the fall.

Speaking to this at the convention, Mrs. Ossington laid down three first steps: 1. Find out from your municipal authorities if they are doing anything about Civil Defence, and if not, why? 2. When Civil Defence programs are set up tell your CD officers what you are prepared to do. 3. Get instruction in First Aid and Home Nursing, the specialized type for ABC warfare, getting in touch with local hospitals to see what nurses are available for these courses.

Mrs. Ossington warned that if you have taken this basic training, don't think you know it all; keep informed, read everything you can find on the subject, as new developments are continually taking place. "And don't try to go first", she cautioned, "be ready to co-operate with your Municipal Council, but it is their responsibility, it must be done through your civil authorities".

The two projects that have been engaging the attention of the Q.W.I. for some time are to be continued. In addition to this added new one. These are help for mentally retarded children in rural areas and the campaign for legislation for the compulsary pasteurization of all milk offered for sale in this province. Petitions asking for this have been circulated by both the Q.W.I. and the Canadian Association of Consumers (Quebec English Branch), who are working jointly on this project, and a vigorous educational program is still to be pursued.

PORTABLE CRIB

Baby's crib can now go into the diaper bag or mother's large handbag, reports The Financial Post. It's inflatable, blows up to 35 inches long, 20 inches wide, eight inches high. Soft rails of plastic inflate till firm enough to fence pre-crawl babies. Crib floor is also plastic, protects beds, upholstery from wetting.

The hottest side of a house in summer is not the south side, as commonly supposed, but the west. The high summer sun shines so steeply down the south side that the rays do not strike directly, says the current Reader's Digest. The low afternoon sun, shining squarely against the west wall, imparts heat which lasts hours after sunset.

When a wife insists on wearing the pants, some other woman gets to wear the fur coat.

COCCUS MOBILIS

We offer this as a Latin label for a brand-new type of barnyard fowl—a skating rooster. "Buster" is reported to be a nonchalant performer on a pair of 5-inch roller skates taped to his feet. Need we add that they're of featherweight aluminum.

No less impressive than this fowl's spirit of derring-do is the resourcefulness of the designers and engineers who dream up new uses for aluminum—from gadgets (see above) to furniture to minesweepers. It keeps Alcan's researchers busy, working with customer companies with new ideas on how to use aluminum to create lighter, more lasting products.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

If you are underweight, vacation time is an ideal time to add a few pounds in the right places — and enjoy yourself, too.

You won't need an elaborate calorie chart, eating schedule or vitamin pills, either, if you keep a simple suggestion in mind. Here it is:

Vacation time generally means increased physical activity of some kind, sports, hiking, riding, or outdoor life in general. This, in turn, makes for a better appetite — so take advantage of it and order extra portions of food you ordinarily wouldn't eat.

Since your body has ben accustomed to taking in roughly the same amount each day, you'll have to remind yourself that your vacation appetite is larger than usual. Once the extra portion is before you, you'll be surprised how easily you take to it.

And you'll come back from your vacation happier, healthier — and heavier!

MEN GOING PINK

About a year ago an American manufacturer got an idea — pink shirts. "About as likely as getting men to wear lace panties," was the comment of a retailer.

But he was wrong, reports The Financial Post. Pink shirts for men now rank the most popular color, next to traditional white, in the United States and Canada. The trend started in the U.S. last fall, caught on in Canada this spring. Most shirt manufacturers report the color is holding on and expect pink sales to continue high through the fall. Orders to date for fall stock support their predictions.

FOR PARENTS ONLY...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Sunburn and Poison Ivy

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

The poet may write of "the kiss of the sun," but a mother wants to protect her child from sunburn. Play in the sunshine is valued by parents because they know that the ultra-violet rays of the sun provide the cheapest form of Vitamin D. This vitamin prevents rickets and builds up resistance to colds and other infections.

But fair and red-haired children sometimes receive a bad sunburn when on a holiday, and a brunette can get an uncomfortable burn. A few precautions are important, especially for the very small child acquiring a sun-tan. The sun's rays are strongest during the hours in the middle of the day and on very hot days a child should be kept out of the direct sunshine at that time. Some protection for the head — a cap or hat of some kind, should be worn.

It is best to acquire a tan gradually, starting with a short period in the sun and lengthening the time by a few minutes each day. Even on a cloudy day, a child can get a burn. There are various soothing prepartions which may be comforting and helpful to a burned skin, but "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Cream, vaseline, or suntan oil rubbed into the skin before exposure help to conserve the natural oils in the skin and prevent sunburn.

Poison ivy infection is no joke! Some children are extremely sick with it. The rash covers their body and they have to be kept in bed. Others suffers from itching and irritation on the part of the skin which has been affected. The oil on poison ivy is on all parts of the plant all year round. Poisoning can result from touching shoes, rugs or even a dog which has been in contact with poison ivy.

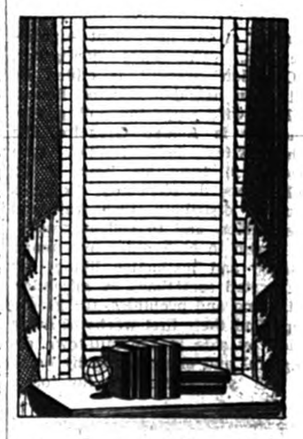

The first sign of infection is a reddening of the skin and an itchy feeling. In a day or two small water blisters will appear, which gradually swell and break. The liquid from these sores may transmit the poisoning to another person unless great care is taken with this last stage of the infection. The general health is upset to a greater or less degree for a time by ivy poisoning.

Every child should be taught to recognize and avoid poison ivy, and also the less common poison sumac (or poison oak with the bright scarlet leaves in the Autumn). Stinging nettle, although troublesome, is not as serious in its effect as poison ivy. Poison ivy may climb as a vine on trees or fences or stand erect in the fields or woods. The leaves are sometimes large, sometimes small, but they are always in groups of three smooth leaves, mostly ovate, pointed entirely or with a few irregular coarse teeth. The green is bright above, with a waxy appearance and pale and hairy underneath. In the Autumn it changes to a rich red color. The small, inconspicuous flowers appear from April to June, are white or green and are hidden beneath the leaves. The hard, greenish white or cream berries stay on the plant all winter.

If exposed to poison ivy, treatment should begin at once. Wash the affected parts in running water with a thick lather of strong laundry soap. If rubbing alcohol is available, wash thoroughly with that after the soap treatment. A five per cent solution of ferric chloride dissolved in water and glycerine in equal proportions is also recommended for immediate treatment. A weak solution (three per cent) of potassium permanganate daubed on the exposed parts is also a good idea. The stain from this on the skin will disappear in a few days and is much to be preferred to ivy infection.

A First Aid kit is an asset, and in addition to a solution for poison ivy, the following articles are useful contents of such a cabinet: 1 oz. pkg. absorbent cotton, 1 pkg. sterile guaze dressings, 1 roll 1" adhesive tape, 1 roll 2" bandage, 1 roll 1" bandage, 1 bottle antiseptic solution, 1 kidney basin, 1 pair scissors, 1 pair tweezers, 1 box baking soda, table salt, 1 cake of laundry soap, 1 glass tumbler, 1 doz. paper towels, 1 doz. paper bags, 1 dozen paper cups.

Battle of Suburban Decibels Skirmish With Rural Insects

By Margaret Cook

"EXILE FROM SUNNYACRES"

It is beginning to feel that way, too. We on the South Shore, who are referred to by our more urban neighbors as old-world and rural, are beginning to feel the impact of the St. Lawrence Seaway. The coffer-dam is now complete as far as Victoria Bridge, and excavating has begun. Every night between 10 o'clock and midnight, we hear the detonations that denote that the ancient bed of the river is being blown sky-high. Fortunately, we are a quarter mile from the river, but those on Riverside Drive must be uneasy. Probably many readers saw the picture of the rock that joined two women at supper last week. On the other side, we have St. Hubert Air Base, whence various aircraft sally forth with appropriate sound effects. Just to make it unanimous, the local CPA practise their alerts between 11 and midnight. At first, these were blood-curdling, but some authority (we suspect our new and efficient mayor) has them muted till they merely sound like a large animal in distress. One sound, however, we are spared. For the first time in local history, no dogs bay at the moon or fight out their battles on the streets. For years, a by-law prohibited dogs being on the streets during the garden months, but never was it observed. This year, our canine citizens are under control like the rest of us. Wonderful! Now if some one would control the children, all would be peace.

The older we get, the more we are convinced that there are no delinquent children, only delinquent parents. Mostly this negligence results only in general brattishness, but sometimes the effects are tragic. Last week, coming down from Sunnyacres, we noticed a little girl selling strawberries just outside St. Jerome. We thought that she was rather small to be all alone. Imagine our dismay to read in the morning paper that she had been killed as she crossed to supply a customer on the opposite side of the street. The authorities attached no blame either to the driver or the customer who so unnecessarily signalled to the opposite side, but I hope something pointed was said to the parents who put altogether too much responsibilty on a child.

Sunnyacres was delightful to look at; but, the flies! Everything winged was on the move — birds, bats, bees, mosquitoes, black flies, and brulats or sand-flies. These last are so tiny as to be almost invisible, so I only suppose them to be winged. Kill one on the arm, and it feels as if one were brushing away a grain of sand, and their bite is the pricking felt as the skin cools off, in fact, that is what I supposed it was, until I realized I was sleeping otherwise comfortably, under a heavy blanket. This was on the screened porch, screens being no detriment to these midgets. Working in the flower-bed was an endurance test. Plant six zinnias in comparative comfort, then the word gets around, and the sequence is then — plant two things, race for the house and wipe the fevered and bloodied brow, and go out to repeat. Slow gardening! We finally got the assorted plants in, then had to leave them to fend for themselves. The tomatoes we planted on May 24, are waging a losing battle with the weeds. We weeded weakly around them, and told them to hold on till we arrived for the summer. The pansies were a mass of blooms, the nasturtiums up and the delphinium in bud. A pure white fox-glove was showing the other flowers how it could be done, and the currants were well formed. The grass was knee-high everywhere and we could find no one to mow it. If anyone reads this and is moved to action, let him go and mow, and if we live another two weeks he shall be paid.

Inside the house, everything shines, the kind soul who helps me having come up for the week-end. The main floor is a green mirror, and upstairs smells delightfully of soap and wax. Down here we are still doing a house-cleaning of sorts. Mainly, it consists of turning out closets. But it is slow work, because of the forgotten treasures we unearth. Best of all are the photos. One of our two grand-nieces and brother, is especially intriguing. Brother Willie smiles luringly straight into the camera, Penny is aloof and Susan pop-eyed because of the flash. What agony is in store for these innocents in later years! A picture of the writer at the age of two turns up. I am wearing, among other things, a slightly belligerent look and a silver bracelet, the whole supported in the arms of the nurse who assisted at the birth. Betty exclaims, "Who's that repulsive infant? I like the nurse". A pair of green felt pants comes to light. They were made some Hallowe'ens back, for a forgotten purpose. The legs now fit Betty to the point where varicose veins are imminent, but the top will not go over her derriere, so we have a fit of the giggles as she parades about the hall. Some perfectly good cosmetics are returned to their drawer, after another doubtful smell. As time goes on, we shall be obliged to join the horrible game of "passing on" gifts. Then there are the regrettable accidents, involving breakage and, in the case of one closet, a shelf that refused to go back after being washed. It's a kind of play-house cleaning, we reflect, as we picture the confusion attendant on such a chore in our childhood. Then, each room was emptied of its contents, the wall-to-wall carpeting taken outside and beaten, everything washable washed, the walls repapered. Fathers generally found urgent business in the next county. On the whole, we feel things have improved in this department. Certainly, we have more fun. . .

So, we come to the end of mad June, month of weddings, flies, exams, strawberries, and release from school. For two months, we Canadians shall behave as citizens of a sub-tropical country. It is nice for a change, but I doubt if we should like it for all year. A little monotonous, perhaps. I remember an exiled Cockney saying to me in Los Angeles, with a sigh, "Out here, sometimes we do not see 'rine' for six months". It took me a full minute to figure out what he meant.

Next time, we shall write from Sunnyacres. Hasten the day!

Battling the Forests' Enemy No. 1

A fleet of 80 specially equipped aircraft is reported making good progress in the counter-attack launched this month in Gaspé against the spruce budworm, on areas extending to 1,500 square miles. The operation will extend until the end of the month. In upper photograph are shown two of the planes spreading a fine fog of DDT over the infested fir and spruce trees. Below, the Hon. John S. Bourque, Minister of Lands and Forests, second from left, examines the spray nozzles on a plane. Next to Mr. Bourque are Henri Kieffer, chief of the Provincial Forest Protection Service, and J. V. Perrin, president, Quebec Forest Industries Association. At far left, under the plane's wing, is Mayor Aurele Bouchard of Causapscal. Cost of the spraying, which will top $1-million, is borne jointly by the Quebec Government and 11 forest industries operating in the Gaspé area.

This is it—the love affair of the CENTURY—the SPECIAL—the ROADMASTER—and the SUPER.

It all began last Fall, when '55 Buick made its bow to society. One look at the "years ahead" styling and stunning colors—and eyes met—hearts soared—thousands of Canadians said "Yes!"

Then came a whispered promise of great things from Buick's truly magnificent 188 hp or 236 hp V8 Engines.

Finally—out on a quiet highway—the moment came for the thrill of them all—the whip-quick go and gas savings of Variable Pitch Dynaflow* automatic transmission.

In a situation like this, who could resist? (To judge by sales, hardly anybody can.) So please—for your own sake—see your Buick dealer—very soon.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.
