Stimulating Sessions at Cdn. Authors' Convention

Our Heritage More than Two-fold — It is Manifold ; We Must Discover Our True Individuality

By Julia Grace Wales

We Canadians should seize our opportunities to become bilingual — this was the idea uppermost in my mind at the end of the convention of Canadian authors held June 27-30 at Queen's University. The convention had many stimulating sessions; I touch on three.

Tuesday evening, at the Yacht Club, entertained by the City of Kingston, we looked out over sunlit, wind-swept waters and listened to challenging words from Professor A. R. M. Lower: "Canadian writers have not yet found their nationhood. They are too local or else too colonial, dependent on England, dependent on the United States, lacking in national pride, and in a sense of Canada as a whole."

It was a harsh indictment. "I was just having a little fun," the Professor admitted later, when he was entertaining us on his beautiful lawn, five miles out of the city. Perhaps — but there was enough truth in the charge to strike home. "Canadians try to be all alike," he went on, "aren't individualistic enough, don't like to seem queer." "Maybe we're more individualistic in the Province of Quebec," I suggested hopefully. "Ah," said the Professor, "but you have the French. The French are themselves, always."

At the final session of the convention we heard a most heartening answer to Professor Lower's challenge.

Mr. Guy Sylvestre gave a brief survey of French Canadian literature since 1940, including history, criticism, poetry, the novel of manners, and the psychological novel. It was a packed address, listened to eagerly, and followed by a request for a mimeographed list of the writers and books surveyed. There is now a genuine national literature in the French language, which, Mr. Sylvestre told us, reflects the change from agricultural to urban life since World War I, amounting to social revolution and a completely transformed environment. There is a turning away from the romantic and ideal to the actual. Life is more and more a struggle, and the new literature deals with both the outer conflict and the inner life of man.

Mr. Sylvestre pointed out that French and English books, read side by side, show much in common, and that cultural exchanges are now becoming more frequent. He clearly felt that the ideal line of advance lay not in any merging or obscuring of differences but in retaining the characteristic qualities of each element in our culture within the larger national unity.

Mr. Yves Theriault reviewed the publishing situation, admittedly dark, He yet insisted that the way out will be found. "A nation that destroys books must crumble." There will have to be outlets for writers that have something to say, who work under a compelling urge. "There are more writers now than ever; you can't shut them up. We write because we must."

One left the session with memorable sentences ringing in the mind. "Great books are documents on man and the world as well as great works of art." "I am glad to be bi-lingual." "A people possessing both the heritage of Shakespeare and the heritage of Molière cannot afford to lose its hold on either."

To these sentences I would add one from a distinguished American visitor, Mr. A. L. Black, who, speaking on Walt Whitman at the dedication of the Bon Echo estate to cultural uses, on the third day of the convention, pointed out that Whitman's greatness lay in his respect for the individual — every individual human being, and in his vision of how America could serve the greater world: "And so he discovered his nation."

And thus we must discover ours; for our heritage is more than two-fold; it is manifold. Our new Canadians come bearing their own cultural treasures. Only as we accept and conserve and learn to understand these shall we create our true individuality as a people and contribute what is in us to give to the life of the world.

Beware Deception By Mexican Currency

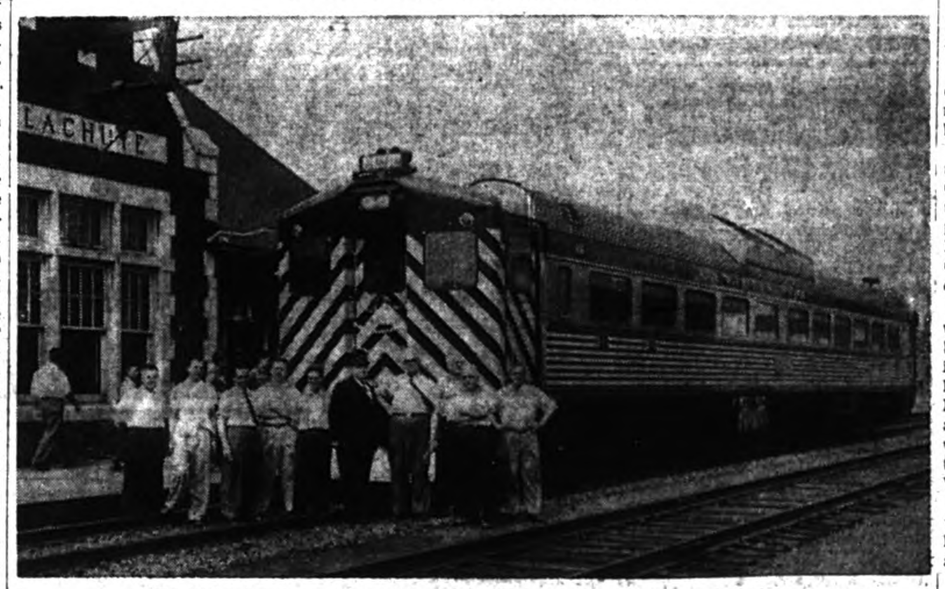

Local citizens and business-men are advised to be on the look-out for Bank of Mexico 10 Pesos notes which, according to a Provincial Police bulletin, are being distributed throughout the province for ten-dollar bills.

It is recalled here that, when the Bank of Canada bills portraying Queen Elizabeth II were issued, a few local storekeepers refused to accept them — indicating a skeptical attitude in handling unfamiliar currency.

Although none of the Mexican bills have been passed in this locality, they have been accepted (with subsequent regret) in other parts of the province.

Saskatoon (CP) — Police urged motorists to put their own identification marks on car batteries following a series of battery thefts from cars and trucks in this city.

Diesel Car on Test Run

A CPR Budd diesel car on a trial run from Montreal to Lachute attracted interest here last Thursday. A number of the station staff were photographed with the crew; in the group are (left to right) Armand Desroches, engineer, J. Regular Civic Business at Brownsburg; May Approach County Authority on Problem of Out-of-Town Firefighting

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — A salesman demonstrated a new police inter-communication system to the Council. The policeman from his car would be able to call any number in Brownsburg through the telephone operator, and citizens could contact the policeman through the same medium. Although there is no doubt everyone was impressed with the system, all felt that the cost — $37 a month and 30c per call over 20 calls — made it too expensive for its value in a one-cop town.

The police officer reported 9 red-light violations, 2 tickets for ignoring stop-signs, 12 speed offences, 2 accidents, 8 warnings and 2 arrests; 27 bicycle licenses were issued last month.

Fire Chief Arthur Robbins reported on the costly fire at Lamarche's farm between Whissel-town and St. Philippe. The damage was estimated at $40,000; no doubt earlier attention by a fire brigade would have cut this considerably. Chief Robbins pointed out that a council motion forbade the brigade from fighting outside fires with the equipment which had cost Brownsburg taxpayers so much. In addition, it was unwise to leave Brownsburg without a fire service for several hours. However, under the circumstances on June 30, Mr. Robbins had received permission from the Mayor to go out to fight this fire. It was too late to be of maximum service, but the people of St. Philippe were grateful for the big help they did provide, in saving at least two doomed buildings. Chief Robbins made a suggestion that we should offer the County a proposal to fight outside fires if they would provide a water-tank truck for Brownsburg's use in any fire.

The Chief also requested that 300 feet of dacron hose be ordered. In off-the-record conversation he suggested that citizens should remember their hydrant numbers, and that anyone reporting a fire would obtain the quickest results by giving the nearest hydrant number and waiting at that hydrant to direct the fire-truck.

The Council resolved to hire Gaston Legault to plan the sewer system for the street which T. P. Hall intends to turn over to the town. At 2 per cent of the total cost including excavation, Mr. Legault will also supervise the pipe levels. Following this project, Mr. Legault will probably be hired in the same capacity to plan other works, starting with the Woodbine Avenue project.

The new valve-and-leak detector will see service immediately, as a leak has just developed in the village water system.

Council resolved to draw up a by-law authorizing the Mayor and Secretary to sign the contract for power from Gatineau Power Company.

A discussion followed the usual business, the subject being, "What do we do about our dump?" It was decided to ask Thos. P. Hall for a tender for the land he would sell, and at the same time to look for a more favorable site farther out of town.

The extension to the municipal garage will not be contracted. Councillors Ouellette and Parizeau will supervise the work, which will be done by hired workers.

Review of Cases Handled by Dist. Social Service

The second annual meeting of the regional Social Service organization was held recently, at which time the policy of the Service was reviewed and studied. It was announced at the meeting that a permanent office would be located in Lachute this autumn.

The financial report indicated a total of $469,206.99 moneys received.

The report on Social Service activities indicated that more than 900 new cases had been handled by the agency during the course of the year. A total of 169 children had been placed in foster homes, and 23 in institutions. More than 400 homes had entered requests for foster-children, and 14 elderly persons were placed in nursing homes.

A report on the clerical work indicated that while over 5,000 letters had been received, more than twice that number had been sent out. Help has been received from the Social Service Department, University of Montreal, in this phase of the work.

The director and executive of the Service have taken part in the organization of other similar groups throughout the province.

Gerard Lefebvre and Roger Lagarde are members of the executive for the current year. Roger Raymond, of Brownsburg, is a member of the administrative council.

Acclamations for Lachute, Ayersv'l Cath. Commissions

Two retiring Catholic School Commissioners, Dr. Roger Lavigne and Albert Legault, were re-elected by acclamation Tuesday, following the close of nominations on Monday. The third candidate, Thomas Ayers, withdrew from the candidature. Nominations were held in l'Ecole Supérieure last Monday.

Withdrawing from the election, Mr. Ayers stated that he would be happy to serve as commissioner, but that he had allowed his name to be proposed on the understanding that one of the two retiring members was not interested in running for re-election.

The Lachute Catholic School Commission now comprises Fernand Legault, Q.C., chairman Messrs. Gerard Lefebvre, Gaetan Leclair, Dr. Roger Lavigne and Albert Legault. Réal Urbain is the secretary.

Ayersville School

The Ayersville Catholic Commission has two new members, Augustin Lamarche and François Charlebois, both elected by acclamation. Retiring commissioners Jean Deschamps and René Leonard did not submit their names for re-election.

The Ayersville Catholic School Commission comprises Chairman Philippe Joly, Messrs. Henri Desrosiers, Georges Rochon, Augustin Lamarche and François Charlebois. Conrad H. Legault is the secretary.

Montreal - Lachute Test Run by CPR Shuttle Car

A commuter train, consisting of a Budd car with reversible diesel drive, made a test run from Montreal to Lachute last Thursday, and a few citizens were privileged to inspect the car during its brief stop here.

This all-metal car has a passenger seating capacity of 70. One of the CPR crewmen informed The Watchman the unit has a rapid pick-up, capable of reaching 70 m.p.h. within a mile from dead-stop; maximum speed is 90 m.p.h.

Donat Emard, diesel inspector with the CPR, stated one of these units is in service between Montreal and Mont Laurier, another is operating in Montreal and six more are presently under construction. With Mr. Emard on this "Dayliner" type diesel were Armand Desroches, engineer, and Bruno Verner, conductor.

Questioned whether the company intended placing one of these shuttle trains in the local service, Mr. Emard stated he had no knowledge of such plans; this was only a trial observation run.

Fire Razes Farm Buildings

A fire of unknown origin leveled the barn and equipment of Réjean Lamarche, whose farm is on the North River Road about a mile east of St. Philippe. The fire, which occurred last Thursday evening, caused an estimated $40,000 damage.

The fire was discovered by neighbors about 10.30 p.m., and the Lamarche family were awakened. Numerous neighbors and district citizens rallied in an effort to quell the flames pending the arrival of the Brownsburg Fire Department, who, according to Chief Arthur Robbins, saved at least two doomed buildings. Considerable hay was lost in the fire.

The loss was not covered by insurance.

Centennial Opening at Morin Heights Gala Ceremonies, Sunday Devotions

Morin Hts. — The Morin Heights Centennial celebration commenced Friday, July 1, at the Ste. Elizabeth School grounds with an address by Mayor C. D. Campbell, which was interpreted into French by Mr. Allard. This was followed by the crowning of the Centennial Queen, Grace Gillingham, by the Mayor. Her two ladies-in-waiting were Helen Paget and Lillian Woods. Flowers were presented by Penny Cameron to the Queen, and Margaret Blair then presented flowers to Mrs. C. D. Campbell.

The Queen appropriately addressed the gathering, and her remarks were interpreted in French by Miss Helen Paget.

A procession composed of floats and ancient vehicles, led by the Centennial Queen's carriage and the Shawbridge Cadet Band, then proceeded to the Morin Heights Intermediate School. The Girl Guides and Boy Scouts also marched in this procession.

On arrival, the Centennial Queen was presented with a wrist watch by Mayor Campbell, and her ladies-in-waiting with travel-bags. Mrs. I. Charbonneau, one of the oldest Morin Heights residents in attendance, presented Miss Helen Paget with her gift, and Carl Seale made the presentation to Miss Lillian Woods.

The afternoon session was closed with addresses by the Rev. Father Lajeunesse, the Rev. Robert Blair, and the Rev. Horace Baugh.

At 6.30 p.m., a baseball game was played between Pte. St. Charles and Morin Heights; the home team won the laurels.

A bonfire and weiner roast, sponsored by the Fire Brigade, followed by a street dance, ended the festivities for the day.

The Centennial Strawberry Festival was held Saturday, July 2, at the Parish House. This was sponsored by the Ladies' Guild of Trinity Church, who had arranged an interesting program, including an old-fashioned costume contest for the children, a sale of work and fish-pond.

The Antique Exhibition sponsored by the W.I. has proved of great interest to all who have visited it.

Centennial Services

The Centennial service at the United Church was conducted by the Rev. Robert Blair, who took for his text, "Which is more important? Where did you come from, or where are you going?" Appropriate music was rendered by the church choir.

At the Centenary observance in Trinity Anglican Church, the Queen and her two attendants, proceeding to the church in their "royal" regalia, were given a place of honor in the congregation. On conclusion of the devotions, the three approached the altar; in token of the occasion they were also presented with beautiful gifts from the congregation. The rector, the Rev. H. G. Baugh, officiating at this service, spoke on the Dominion Day theme, interweaving historical notes on Morin Heights, and stressing the significance of the community in national stature. Text of his sermon was, "Oh worship the Lord". There was a very large congregation in attenance.

The Roman Catholic people of Morin Heights celebrated Centennial Sunday with a pontifical mass, held at 10.30 a.m. on the Ste. Elizabeth School grounds by His Excellency Mgr. E. Frenette, Bishop of St. Jerome, assisted by the parish curé, the Rev. Father Lajeunesse, also priests from the St. Jerome Cathedral; Father Roland Forget and Father Louis Forget (sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. Denis Forget) also assisted.

The choirs from St. Sauveur, Mt. Rolland and Morin Heights were present. Mrs. Lolange Allard was the organist.

Following the mass a banquet was held in the school auditorium for invited guests, including members of the Municipal Council and their wives, St. Eugène Church trustees and their wives, the parish committee and their wives, and all officiating priests.

His Excellency addressed the gathering both in French and English and Mayor C. D. Campbell fittingly replied.

Centennial Dinner

One of the highlights of the celebrations to date was the Centennial Banquet held Tuesday evening in the Intermediate School. The dinner, catered by the Women's Association of the United Church, was attended by more than 200 persons.

Among the head-table guests were Mayor Campbell, the Rev. Robert Blair, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, the Rev. Gaetan Lajeunesse, Philippe Valois, M.P., Gerard Lefebvre (representing the Hon. W. M. Cottingham) and Fred Muncey, secretary of the Centennial Committee.

In his address, Mr. Valois pointed out the necessity of being a good citizen, and stated he was happy to see that the citizens of Morin Heights recognized this need. It was a fact established by the founders of the settlement a century ago, tribute was due to their foresight and devotion to their faith and beliefs.

Mr. Lefebvre spoke on behalf of the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, recalling illustrious names from the community's history and paying tribute to the spirit exemplified in its continued growth.

Mayor FitzGerald Sits Tight on Flag Dispute Letter Illegal, Unread, Unrecorded in Minutes

Charges, Threats, Denials ; Matter in Abeyance — Civic Business Resumed With Mayor at Helm

A delegation of approximately 150 French-Canadians was present at the regular meeting of Town Council, held in the town hall last evening, at which time the "flag incident" was once again brought forward. The full Council was in attendance.

Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald stated that the letter presented to him was illegal, and asked the Council if they would accept the letter without signatures. All councillors remained silent.

Louis-G. Bertrand, Lachute Mills pharmacist, requested that the letter in question be read, and was loudly applauded.

The letter was neither read nor entered in the civic minutes.

Henri P. Lecorre stated that, although he realized that the letter in question was not legal without signatures, he wished to speak for the general citizenry, not for the French-Canadians or Catholics in particular. He stated that, in contradiction of the Mayor's letter appearing in last week's Watchman, he had signed statements in his possession indicating that he (the Mayor) had relieved Constables Lepine and Sabourin of their duties.

He also added he would have a letter bearing 800 signatures which he would present at the next meeting if the Mayor did not "accomplish an act proving his error" (literal translation).

Mayor FitzGerald said that he had not intended to make a statement at this time, but he felt that the sooner the matter was dropped and forgotten, the better it would be for Lachute in general.

"I was informed, upon my return from Toronto, that several incidents had taken place during the week of the Congress, and I believe that all the aldermen are satisfied with my explanation in not consulting them. Everything was done according to protocol, and there was no insult to anyone's flag or religion in my action."

"Legally, my action is without question, and the Council accepts this. I again deny firing the police, and state that I did not order them to take down the papal flag, but to place it under the Red Ensign."

The Mayor stated, in conclusion, that he saw no reason why any civic official should be asked for his resignation for doing his duty.

According to requests, Mayor FitzGerald read the protocol for the flying of flags in the Roman Catholic Schools from a document issued by the Provincial Catholic School Commission, as well as that issued from Ottawa by E. D. Mc-Greer, chief of protocol of the Department of External Affairs.

Raymond Beaulieu asked the Mayor and Council to supply him, and the public, with the regulations on flying the Canadian National flag, giving reference to (1) the Order-in-Council; (2) the chapter or paragraph of the law; or (3) tradition confirmed in legal text books. Mayor FitzGerald stated that he would reply to the request at the next regular meeting.

The flag issue was dropped, and the Council continued with other general business concerning the civic dump, business tax, and minor incidents — all of which will be reported next issue.

Plane Crashes in Take-off at Fassett

Two persons escaped serious injury when a Montreal Flying Club plane crashed after taking off from the baseball park in Fassett Saturday morning. According to witnesses, the plane, piloted by a Mr. Dubé, of Montreal, was about 30 feet off the ground when the crash occurred. He was accompanied by his wife, who has been residing in Fassett.

The plane landed in Fassett Friday evening and was prepared for a take-off early the following morning. It is believed that motor failure was the cause of the accident. . . . Scene of the mishap is about 30 miles west of Lachute.

Traffic Police Check On Slow Drivers

Montreal (CP) — Two of five motorists picked up by provincial police in a recent check-up on slow drivers have had their peoples revoked, it was learned from traffic headquarters.

One of the two, taken with the others to police headquarters for a lecture on safety habits, told police he drove slowly because his legs were paralyzed. The other said he had poor eyesight.

Neither was capable of passing a driver's test, police said. They said the check-up on slow drivers will continue throughout the summer.

Gatineau Lines

Lights Out?

What should you do? Follow these steps each time:

1. Find out if your neighbors' lights are out too. If they are not, it is quite likely that the trouble is in your own wiring.

2. Pull the main switch and examine the fuses. If a fuse is burned, look for the cause. It may be caused by too many appliances on the same circuit or by defective appliances or cords. It may be due to a short circuit in the wiring. Be sure to find the cause, as a burned fuse indicates trouble somewhere.

3. If there is lightning or heavy winds in the district, and your neighbors' lights are out, it is probably due to trouble on the power lines.

Wait for a few minutes to see if the power is restored; if not, call the local office of the power company and report the trouble.

4. If it is a clear day, the power company may be working on the lines; a car may have struck a pole, or someone may have felled a tree over the lines. Wait a reasonable time to see if service is restored. If it is not, please report your trouble to the local office of the power company.

By reporting directly to the power company you are taking the most effective method of correcting the trouble.

Agriculture Research Pays Dividends

The cost of agricultural research in Britain has nearly doubled in the last 5 years. The minister of Food and Agriculture told delegates at the London Conference of the Commonwealth Agricultural Bureaux that this research is already paying big dividends and it will pay bigger ones, and that there was no end to the stream of new things pouring out of laboratories for pest, weed and disease control.

"I guess we'll have to wholesale your prize bull; he just got his tail cut off in the gate."

"Why wholesale him?"

Plow Down — New Fertility Practice

Chatham, Ont. — A new concept of building up soil fertility is being introduced this summer to the high value cash crop areas of southwestern Ontario by the agricultural chemicals department of Canadian Industries (1954) Limited.

The practice, known as "plow down", involves the broadcasting of fertilizer on harvested fields in late summer or early fall and plowing or discing it into the soil. This leaves the grower with the necessity of making only one fertilizer application the following year by eliminating the early spring application during the busy planting season. Plow down is expectetd to become widespread in areas where two annual applications of fertilizer is an accepted practice.

According to Thomas Henry of the Chatham district of the C-I-L agricultural chemicals department, plowdown has many other advantages besides easing the pressure of spring work. He says that it does away with winter fertilizer storage problems and requires no extra handling. It increases yields by providing extra nutrients required by many crops that receive planter treatment only. The deeper application of plant food by plow down gets it into the moisture zone which encourages deeper root growth, thus making the plants more resistant to drought conditions.

Mr. Henry maintains that fertilizer applied to trashy surfaces and plowed under, speeds decomposition of fibre stocks into humus, thus enriching the soil and increasing its capacity to hold water. A heavy layer of undecomposed trash prevents water from moving up through the soil.

Kill Poison Ivy With Chemical Sprays

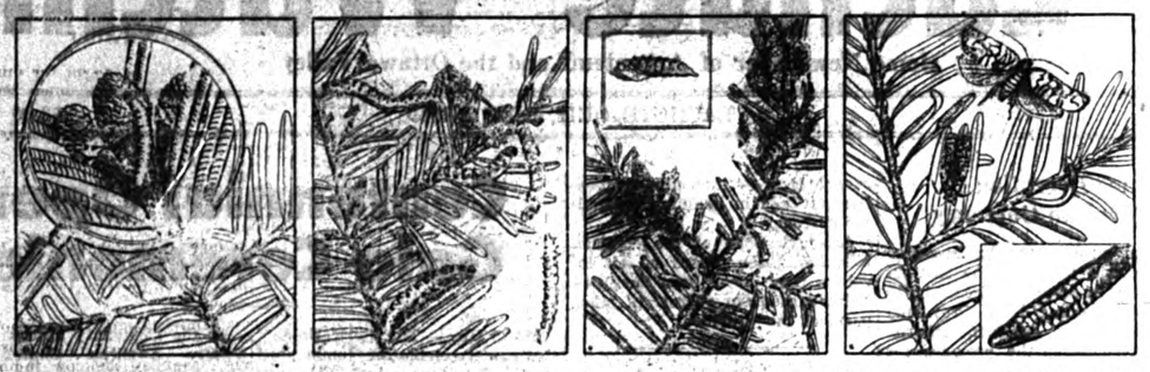

Poison Ivy may be found almost everywhere — in dry and rocky or damp and fertile soil, growing abundantly in many resort areas, and on wasteland near beaches.

Poison ivy is a perennial which may grow in the form of a low shrub or a climbing vine. It has three dark leaves that are often waxy above and hairy below. The leaves are about four inches in size and may be reddish in color when young. The flowers are small and greenish white, appearing in May, June and July. They are replaced by clusters of white or grey berries about one-quarter inch in diameter. Birds spread the berries, which contain seeds, to new areas.

The field crops branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture advises that poison ivy may be controlled by spraying with ammonium sulfamate dissolved in water (one pound to a gallon). Control can also be obtained by applying 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T or a mixture of both to the actively growing plants. These chemicals should be used at the rate of 2½ ounces of actual acid in 10 gallons of water. Plants should be thoroughly wetted with the mixture and regrowth should be sprayed again in the Fall or next July.

Everyone should learn to recognize poison ivy in order to avoid contact with it. An entire vacation can be ruined by inadvertently touching even a leaf or two of the plant.

Life Story of A Killer

The budworm, against which a 1,000,000-acre spraying operation has just been completed successfully in the Gaspe peninsula, goes through a number of changes in his life cycle. In the first panel, at left, the small caterpillar emerges from his winter hideout and enters the tender fir or spruce bud, in early June. The time to spray is just when the bud begins to open. In the second panel, the budworm, having fed, has reached its maximum size, about ¾ of an inch long. The third panel is timed in early July, when the larva, having spun a cocoon, turns itself into a grub-like form called a pupa. In the fourth panel, late July or August, a brown moth escapes from the pupa and deposits tiny eggs on the underside of the evergreen needles. From the eggs will soon hatch tiny worms which will lie dormant throughout the winter, until the feeding cycle begins again in spring.

Need Skilled Group In Bush Emergencies

Moncton, N.B. (CP) — The New Brunswick Fish and Game Association is considering setting up a specialized search body that will have woods experts from every part of the province as members.

This group of woodsmen would be ready to lead search parties into any section of the province, each man being familiar with his own section of woods.

The group formed mainly with a view to cutting down time spent in searching for lost hunters also would work with the RCMP in providing skilled guides when needed by the air force.

The system would first be tried out in the Moncton area where a local civilian pilot has agreed to work with any group formed.

Delegates attending a meeting here recently felt that the combined skills of experienced woodsmen, hunters and fishermen organized into specialized search parties should be of invaluable assistance in almost any type of woods emergency.

Noteworthy Triumph

ANOTHER victory over Russia's star athletes was noted with pride by Canadian fans, this past week. But the event was, understandably, accompanied by far less fanfare than Canada's memorable hockey triumph last season.

In the semi-finals of the English Henley Regatta, the University of B.C. rowers came from behind to defeat the highly-rated Russians by 1½ lengths. This Canadian supremacy over the cup-defending crew was rated "the most popular victory of the week". Few had expected Canada to turn back the sturdy scholars from Russia.

University of Pennsylvania beat the Vancouver crew for the Grand Challenge Cup — but, for Canada, it was a gratifying try.

The Competitive Factor

THE ATHLETES of today are no better than the sportsmen of a century ago, in the opinion of Sir Adolphe Abrahams, medical adviser to the International Athletic Board. He says that the modern athlete is neither physically stronger nor has he any greater fortitude and courage than the competitor of yesterday. But, Sir Adolphe does not explain why records are being broken every year. Other authorities have attributed these improvements in performance to the great changes that have been made in athletic equipment, training techniques and conditioning methods. And Dr. Roger Bannister, the first man ever to run a mile in less than four minutes, has been quoted as saying that the most important element in setting a new record is competition.

Not So Foxy, Maybe

IT IS NOT so long ago that, in the frigid wastes of Hill Head across the river from Lachute, a posse of farmers and sportsmen, armed with guns, skis and snowshoes, was swearing vengeance on a pack of wolves which had preyed upon the deer population of that neighborhood.

We recall this incident not only for the breath of zero temperatures it may waft over our sweltering readers in mid-July, but because some recent findings tend to revise our opinions of the wary wolf.

A recent expedition by scientists of the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources against wolves in Northern Alberta indicates that these National Park wolves are much less crafty than people suppose. This report comes from the Queen's Printer.

The team of civil servants operated against the Alberta wolves with the ruthlessness of a Commando group. Suspecting that the predators were destroying numbers of this country's buffalo herd they went after them with poison bait, impregnating buffalo meat with cyanide and strychnine. Although no particular care was taken to avoid "man scent" on the frozen meat the wolves attacked it with gusto. The mere fact that one or two wolves died within minutes after guzzling the poison did not seem to deter the others of the pack, who ate and died in the snow.

Purpose of the expedition was not merely to rid the area of destroyers of the buffalo. It was to gather a mass of information on habits of the wolves, to determine if they are carriers of disease and how best to combat them if their numbers substantially increase.

Close examination of the poisoned animals yielded a great deal of data which will be of value. One of the salient points emerging from the study is that the northern wolf is not nearly as skilful and tricky an antagonist as he was believed to be.

Remedy Long Overdue

CALGARY School Board has made the headlines . . . Commenting on a news item (which appears also in this issue of The Watchman) the Fort Erie Letter-Review says Calgary has set a good example for other school boards in Canada, by expelling 20 "problem students" from high school. The board voted last December to adopt the expulsion scheme, after complaints from high school principals that pupils who didn't want to study were obstructing those who did. Such students now are warned, then put on probation, anad if that doesn't work, expelled.

Life and Death

ANY true and unusual incidents in your experience, either as a participant or a bystander in drowning cases, may add helpful information to the knowledge of remedial, life-saving measures. Readers having witnessed drownings or resuscitations not conforming to typical experience, are invited to write to the Health League of Canada (111 Avenue Road, Toronto), and tell them about it.

This week, in the interests of public survival we impress a few more hints on life-saving by artificial respiration. We commend them to the earnest attention of our readers:

Remember that even a few minutes delay in applying artificial respiration to apparently drowned persons may make all the difference between success and failure — life and death.

Remember that the air passages must be clear. (This is important; there should be audible passage of air in and out — listen for it.)

Remember that there must be no let-up in the continuous, rhythmic application of pressure and release (say 15 times to the minute).

Remember that in suitable cases artificial respiration should be kept up for hours, until success is achieved, or until rigor mortis sets in.

Remember above all, that a human being is not necessarily dead because he has been under water for a few minutes. Even if in the water for half an hour or possibly longer, life may still be present. While there's life, there's hope.

Watering the Lawn

THERE SEEMS to be no end to the gadgets the hardware people are putting out these days to interfere with a man's pleasure in watering his lawn.

The latest is a plastic spray guaranteed to soak the grass thoroughly and take all the pleasure out of the job for the man to whom watering the lawn is a rite.

The true lawn watering enthusiast will, of course, pay no more attention to the plastic spray than he has to the hundreds of other gadgets that have come out over the years. He will go right on loafing away an hour or two every evening while seeming to be industrious.

He isn't a man who lets a spray do the work or one who attaches the hose hurriedly, directs a blasting stream to the grass for a few minutes and then tosses it back in the cellar. He is definitely not the type who attaches a sprinkler and then goes about things he considers more important.

The real enthusiast takes at least an hour about it. He works best if he has a garden chair or verandah steps to sit on. There should also be a stretch of lawn or garden well within the limit of the stream of water he controls. Large plots involve tiresome walking about, and dragging of hose across grass, both destructive of the quiet contemplation that is part of watering a lawn by hand. He scorns those who cannot make up their minds and are forever whirling the nozzle from one spray to another.

Perfect conditions call for a chair facing east so that the setting sun will shine over the waterer's shoulder, making up colorful rainbows that can be moved to and fro with the easy swing of a wrist. Another real pleasure is shooting the water high into a tree so that it falls through the leaves, giving all the delights of cooling rain with none of its discomforts.

But most important is the time that lawn watering provides for contemplation. Some believe that a man lazy enough to sit for an hour watering a lawn won't think of anything useful. However, it's our idea that "some of the most satisfying" thinking is done on the front lawns in the cool of the evening.

NOT TOO infrequently are heard remarks decrying the irresponsible conduct of modern youth. This and every generation before us has been faced with the same problem. There always will be a small minority who by circumstances of nature and environment will chance on the less desirable pathways of life, but by and large modern youth are proving their worth in the complex structure of today.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

• Geoff's Journal •

"THE SEER"

This column may well appear under the title of "Isaiah's Journal" next week. It seems this scribe has developed into something of a major prophet.

Early in May, I quit the employ of the advertising department in a large bank. After attending to one or two urgent matters at hand, I turned my attention to the business of seeking out a new job. While investigating these possibilities one afternoon, I wandered into the Central Division of the YMCA, in Montreal, and there fell into conversation with Malcolm Ross, the veteran aquatic director.

"What are you doing for the summer?" he asked.

"That I can't say. I've just started looking for a new berth and as yet haven't struck pay dirt."

"How would you like to go to a Laurentian camp as a waterfront director?"

I mulled that one over for a few seconds. It sounded enticing, but I had one or two reservations. A summer in the Laurentians always sounds wonderful, but there are some places one should not consider going on a bet.

"Tell me more," I said at length.

"It's a wonderful camp and well appointed. All modern conveniences, five day week, good pay, and all you have to do is give swimming instruction to the campers of all ages. Want it?"

Well, the upshot of the discussion was that I made a very thorough investigation of the matter and finally decided to take it. Malcolm was a great help in reviving my knowledge of water safety, lifesaving, et cetera, and, duly refreshed, I set sail for the camp. At the time of writing, I've been here a full week and I doubt if I shall ever regret accepting the job. It's been fun from the start and I've been able to get a complete change of scenery and atmosphere. After four hectic years at break-neck pace with the ad-men, I feel I owe it to myself to enjoy the rest and the chance to look at life from another angle.

Today, the camp director asked if I would be good enough to arrange some sort of entertainment at the waterfront for the campers. Although the idea was sprung on me at short notice, I rose to the occasion and we all had a good time. Toward the end of proceedings, when interest among the kids was lagging slightly and the adults were thinking of drifting off to other forms of diversion, I pulled one of Malcolm Ross's clown tricks out of the hat. Dolling myself up in the costume of an old beldame, I strode out on the dock, luggage in hand and announced I was the new cook hired to replace the one that had just quit. Asking for directions to the cookhouse, I was informed that it was on the other side of the catwalk. According to the pattern of the act, I took the shortest way there, over the catwalk, into the water, up the cement front, and off to the kitchen, luggage and all. It was a great success with the kids and even some of the elders were gracious enough to snicker. But the big laugh was yet to come.

When the show was over, and all the spectators had completed their afternoon dips, I changed into dry attire and headed for supper at the dining room. As I neared the hut assigned to the camp director, I sensed that something was amiss. Adults and kids milled about in wild disorder. Little groups were formed and whispers were exchanged. I walked on and, as I neared the dining hall, I felt the tension growing in the air.

Mounting the steps of the dining room, I ran smack into the boating director.

"Welcome, Isaiah," he greeted me. "Hail, O worthy prophet!"

"What are you babbling about?" I asked

"Don't ask me why, but there's been a jolly old dust up among the kitchen staff and the whole works has just quit cold. Come and give us a hand to dish out the supper will you?"

Tonight, after I finally got clear of the kitchen, I carefully dunked my new cook's clown costume right in the centre of the lake. And, of this date, I'll attempt no further prophecies — unconscious or otherwise!

DANGEROUS GAME

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Cow Killer

I had to go to a lawyer the other day. His office was lined with books.

"My gosh", I said, "do you have to read all those?"

"Well, they are all related to the law," he informed me, sounding, I thought, a bit proud and important about it.

But instead of thinking how important it made him, I started to think about the city farmer and his cow.

This fellow bought a small holding in the country and got himself a cow. One day the cow jumped through his fence and got into a neighbor's property. He put a yoke on it, and kept it yoked. Another time it got into wet clover, and nearly burst itself. He put hobbles on it and kept it hobbled. Then she caught some sort of skin disease. The vet said to clip it and treat the skin. He did — but he kept clipping it forever after. Then one day, by mistake, it got some stink weed in its feed, and the milk was spoiled . . . so he quit feeding it. Then, of course, the cow stopped giving milk — because it died.

Can't we learn a lesson from this?

For one reason or another, we've got all sorts of different laws on the statute books. They might have been all right in their day — for some specific purpose. But we have left them there, just like the green farmer did with his cow.

We've got restrictions, regulations, enactments, re-enactments; we have government forms in duplicate, triplicate, and most of the other 'cates'.

We are in danger of getting Canada, young as she is, tied up like European countries — or like the city farmer's cow.

Isn't it time we had a little more freedom again? Who would like to join me in a crusade to get rid of some old yokes and hobbles?

Watch Out for These Prevalent Rackets

Among hundreds of frauds by which the public is daily being cheated, five are most persistent and widespread, says an article in the July Reader's Digest. The Better Business Bureau classes these five frauds as follows: unordered merchandise, phony photographers, money-back-guarantee rackets, earn-money-at-home schemes, and uranium stocks.

The unordered-merchandise schemers may send ball-point pens, handkerchiefs, wallets or other goods, always of poor quality. The prices are high and you are made to feel under obligation to buy what you receive. Often the name of a fake charity or a "foundation" is used, to make you believe you are contributing to a worthy cause.

You need not pay for any unordered merchandise unless you use it, the Digest article emphasizes. You need not return it, even though postage is enclosed. If the shipper sends for it, you can demand storage charges.

Phony photographers caused over 20,000 complaints to the Better Business Bureau last year. These gyps are mainly itinerants who trick mothers into big orders for photos of their children and insist on payment before the mother sees the inferior work.

The money-back-guarantee racket snares the unwary by advertising fantastic bargains with the money-back clause attached. Worthless merchandise is shipped; the racketeers profit by the unwillingness of customers to ask for the return of their money on the usually small ($1 to $3) orders.

The earn-money-at-home schemers lead thousands to part with $1 to $5 each in the hope of getting part-time home work. In a typical case, exposed last year, "International Enterprises" offered home jobs sorting and addressing mail for a "large mail-order house." Each applicant received a circular seeming to offer employment but requiring the purchase of an instruction pamphlet costing $5 and containing only elementary postal information. More than 2500 of these worthless pamphlets were sold.

Cautioning the reader on the purchase of cheap uranium stocks, the Digest says many uranium enterprises exist on paper only, the only uranium in their possession being the word itself, which almost always appears in their names. Some are formed merely to look for the metal. The public may put up $500,000 for ten per cent of the stock, while the promoters contribute $1000 for 90 per cent.

The promise of something for nearly nothing is the usual bait in fraudulent schemes, the Digest article states. It urges that every case of fraud be reported to Better Business Bureaux, Chambers of Commerce or postal authorities.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Stolen anything lately? Of course you haven't. But I wonder if you can examine your record from childhood until now, and give yourself a clean sheet.

Perhaps you can. Juvenile delinquency isn't as common as people think.

Stealing from orchards is said by some people to be a socially approved form of theft, as long as the thieves are children. In fruit-growing regions it is sternly frowned upon, but elsewhere you hear people talking as though theft from orchards was a sign of normal good health in a boy.

"Raided an orchard today, Johnny?" you can imagine a father of this kind saying. "Off you go now, and get in some petty larceny before supper. Stealing an apple a day keeps the psychiatrist away, you know."

They don't really give the children such orders, but that's the impression you get.

I'm sorry to report that I didn't have a normal, healthy boyhood in that respect. I have stolen from orchards only three or four times in my life. Even then I didn't like it. Racked by feelings of guilt, I tagged along with someone else who had talked me into the foray.

Stealing regularly from orchards was one of the childhood experiences I lacked. I suppose I was underprivileged.

But I have a vivid memory of my one venture into actual crime. That was the occasion when several boxes of sample chewing gum were displayed in a theatre lobby. The sign said "Take One".

My crony suggested that the sign was an invitation to take an entire box, rather than a stick. I wrestled with my conscience for at least two seconds. There was no onoe else seconds. There was no one else myself that my friend was right. We left in a rush, each carrying a box.

We kept the gum in the garage. My crony and I and one or two other conspirators used to go in there sometimes to chew the forbidden gum, and sometimes to smoke forbidden cigarettes. We poked the butts and the spent gum through a knot-hole.

That incident has been concealed for years in a dark crevice of my mind. Recently I told a friend about it.

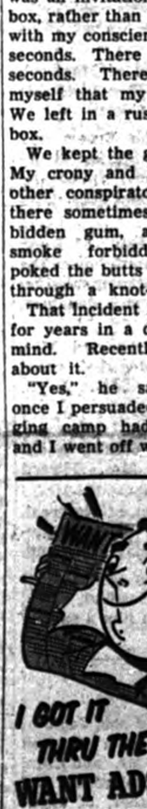

"Yes," he said. "I remember once I persuaded myself that a logging camp had been abandoned, and I went off with chains and pots of tar, and all kinds of useful things."

"Sure," I said. "And I remember, one time I was rooming aroand with a bunch of supposedly law-abiding lads when we came upon an abandoned house, and someone heaved a stone through a window. Then someone else heaved another stone.

"At first I objected. I tried to talk them out of it. But then another fellow heaved a brick, and another. Soon everybody was smashing windows, except me. What could I do? I picked up a brick and slung it through one of the largest panes in sight. I have regretted it since, but I'm afraid I enjoyed it at the time, in a guilty sort of a way."

My friend grinned, but I could tell that he was shocked by this account of wanton vandalism. I had carried my confession of boyhood crime too far.

That was the worst I had to confess, if memory serves me right. But you have to be careful about these things. What if my own candor led a friend to confess that he knocked over a bank in a fit of youthful mischief? Someone else might hear, and turn him in.

Profits — Profits — Profits !

That is what we are all after — that's the driving force behind us. And wouldn't it be lovely if we could find a quick, easy way to get them! So far, I haven't found that way, and very few will ever find it.

In feeding operations, we have the same trouble with profits. They don't come easy, and the only way I know of is to keep plugging along. Have stuff for sale all the time, and you do well when the market is good, and at least you do business when it is poor. (I never knew anyone yet that could beat the market!)

Pigs have been a favorite with these, but by the time they had enough pigs to begin marketing, the prices were away down.

The better way is to grow your pigs BIG, QUICKLY. The younger they go to market, the more profit, provided your pigs are timed to reach the market during the high-price period, February-March or August-September.

Quite often you can market them earlier by better feeding. Many are feeding milk or garbage. Both are good, but both have too much bulk for fast growth. Like a plate of soup to you, it fills you up but doesn't stay with you like a beef-steak.

If you have home grains, mix HOG CHOW CONCENTRATE with it, or if you don't have grains, feed PIG GROWENA straight with your milk or garbage, and see how much shorter time you will have to feed, and how much more PROFIT you will have.

Won't you give us your order today? We deliver.

"The evening star shines on a grave
Of one we loved but could not save,
Her memory in our hearts today
Means more to us than words can say."

HARRIS — In loving memory of my dear niece, Betty, who passed away July 7, 1952. — Lovingly remembered, Mary.

"Just a cluster of beautiful memories,
The dearest my heart can frame,
I'll weave them into a garland
And entwine them around her name."

YOUNG — In memory of a dear and loving wife, who passed away July 9, 1953. — Sadly and always missed by her husband, Shoddie, daughter, Junia, son-in-law, Earl, and grandchildren, Heather and Bonnie.

"She was a wonderful mother,
She played life's battles square;
No matter when we needed her,
We always found her there.
So on this day our hearts go out
To the dearest and the best of mothers,
Who never had time to think of herself
But always thought of others."

YOUNG — In fond and loving memory of a beloved mother, Mrs. S. Young, who passed away July 9, 1953. — Always remembered by Lila, Albert and family.

"We watched you suffer, we heard you
We could do nothing but just stand
But when you left us, we suffered
Because you never deserved what you went through."

Butter and Wheat To Communists At Cut Rates

By Don Peacock
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 4 (CP) — The Canadian government, through subsidization and budget-plan selling methods, is spilling at least two of Canada's agriculture surpluses behind the Iron Curtain.

One of them, butter, is going to the Reds at a subsidized bargain rate 25 cents below the wholesale price to Canadians. The Communists are getting the other wheat, for so much down and so many instalments to come, the Canadian government co-signing their note at one of this country's banks.

The government had made no formal announcement of either transaction, but informants said last week that it has underwritten a multi-millin-dollar bank loan to sell Communist Poland some 10,000,000 bushels of surplus Canadian wheat.

It was learned a day earlier that another Communist country, Czechoslovakia, has agreed to buy 300,000 pounds of surplus Canadian butter at the cut-rate price of 37 cents a pound.

Wheat Deal

Poland has agreed to buy the wheat — reported to be the lowest of the bread-making grades — at current market prices, paying a total of about $19,000,000 which would include shipping charges. Informants called it Canada's biggest post-war grain deal with the Communists.

Out of Poland's pocket comes an immediate down-payment of some $3,000,000. The other $16,000,000 or so is to be secured through a loan with an undisclosed Canadian bank, informants said.

The Canadian government, they said, is to guarantee the loan.

HAVE YOU GOT A SOUL ? or
ARE YOU A SOUL ?
What do you know about the Soul ?

Do you know that immortality of the soul was taught by the religions of ancient Egypt, Babylon and Greece? Do you know such religions as Buddhism and Mohammedanism teach the soul is immortal? Do you know the Pharisees Jesus condemned believed the soul immortal? Do you know the Catholic Encyclopedia admits this doctrine "enshrines the principles of ancient speculation"?

And do you know that the Bible denies this doctrine with the blunt warning that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die"? (Ezek. 18.20) God never gave man an immortal soul, but created him a living soul: "Then Jehovah God proceeded to form the man out of dust from the ground and to blow into his nostrils the breath of life, and the man came to be a living soul." (Gen. 2:7) God told this living soul that if it disobeyed it would die, whereas it was Satan who said it would not die. (Gen. 2:17; 3:4) So now will you believe God, or will you believe Satan and pagans and Pharisees and ancient speculators? Will you let God be true when he says the soul dies, though it will make liars out of Satan and men who teach soul immortality?

There is an absorbing study on soul and other doctrines, where God's Word clashes with men's creeds. Read of it in the 320-page book "Let God Be True", sent for 50c. — Watch Tower, 40 Irwin Avenue, Toronto, 5, Ont., — or ask any of Jehovah's Witnesses you might happen to meet in your district.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Caravan and Daily Vacation School at Harrington-Kilmar

Next week, starting July 11, a Vacation School will be held in Kilmar, with a group of three teachers in a caravan to assist in the work.

The United Church trains a number of young people in youth work each spring and then sends them out in groups to different parts of the country. They go where they are needed, in large groups or small.

For two weeks they will be serving the community of Harrington Bell Falls and Kilmar in a number of ways. Conducting Vacation School will be their principal task. Sessions will be held at 9 o'clock daily in Shaw's School, Harrington, and at 1.30 o'clock at Kilmar School.

The members of the caravan group are Elizabeth Bennett, from Montreal, Mr. William Sparling from Kingston, and Mr. Fred Winton, from Toronto. Local ministers Wm. Toller and Douglas Blair, of the Baptist and United Churches respectively, are in charge of the school.

Montreal "Witnesses" To New York Assembly

Upwards of 700 delegates from the Montreal congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses will attend an assembly at Yankee Stadium in New York July 20-24.

D. G. Grafton, minister in Verdun, who will head the delegation, stated that there would be 70 from the Verdun congregation, most of whom will be going to the assembly at New York. However, several will be going to similar assemblies in Europe, and others to Vancouver and Los Angeles.

This assembly is one of a series of eleven Christian conventions. "In 1953," Mr. Grafton pointed out, "we had one international gathering of ministers at Yankee Stadium in New York that drew a peak attendance of 165,829 from 27 lands. This year we hope our combined attendance will double that." More than 50,000 are expected at the New York assembly alone, and in addition there will be assemblies at Chicago, Vancouver, Los Angeles, and Dallas, Texas. The assemblies in Europe will be held in London, Paris, Rome, Nuremberg, Germany, Stockholm and The Hague.

Arrangements are under way to send over 4,500 delegates from the United States and Canada to the European assemblies. Delegates from Latin America, Africa, Australia and the Far East will also attend in Europe.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Where did the woman come from who besought Jesus to heal her child, in these words, "Have mercy upon me, O Lord, Son of David; my daughter is severely possessed by a demon"?

At first Jesus made no reply to her entreaty. But His disciples were disturbed by her presence. They said to Jesus, "Do send her away for she is crying after us."

Perhaps to try her faith, Jesus remarked, "I was sent to the lost sheep of the house of David."

But this mother would not be turned away. She ran and knelt before Jesus, saying, "Lord, help me."

Then, using the picturesque language of the east, Jesus said, "It is not fair to take the children's bread and throw it to the dogs."

The mother's despair had sharpened her wits for she answered at once, "Yes, Lord, yet even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their master's table."

This reply called forth the warm praise of the Master. He exclaimed, "O woman, great is your faith Be it done for you as you desire." The daughter was healed instantly. Jesus passed on from the district of Tyre and Sidon, where this took place, and went along the Sea of Galilee.

Read where this woman came from and this story in Mathew, Chapter 15, verses 21 to 28.

Pretty Wedding In Maple Avenue Baptist Church

Griffiths - Dixon

At 7 o'clock Friday evening in the Brownsburg Maple Avenue Baptist Church, the marriage took place of Marion Ruth Dixon, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dixon, of Dalesville, to Donald Bethune Griffiths, son of Mrs. John Reid and the late Mr. George Griffiths, of Montreal. The Rev. Wilson Bridge officiated, assisted by the Rev. N. H. Brock. The church was decorated with baskets of pastel gladioli and ferns. Mrs. Robert Blakely played the wedding music, and Mr. Syd Drew was soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz-length dress of white embroidered nylon tulle, encrusted with pearl beading over taffeta. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion fell from an open cap of matching net. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of Sweetheart roses. She wore as her only ornament a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

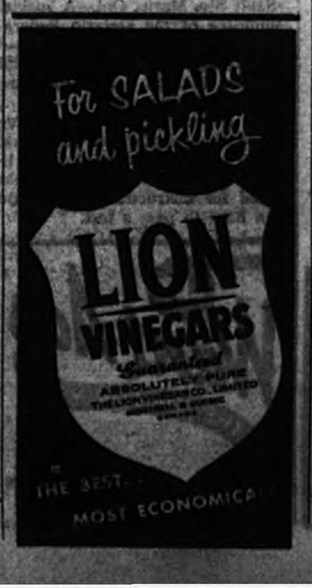

Miss Ruth Rae Walker was maid of honor for her cousin, and wore a pale blue crystalette waltz-length dress. She wore a matching blue net hat, white kid elbow-length gloves, and carried a cascade bouquet of sweet peas.

Little Miss Gail Johnston, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl, and wore a pink embossed organdy dress and carried a basket of sweet peas.

James Lawson acted as best man, and the ushers were Alex Grove and Robert Johnston.

Mrs. Dixon, mother of the bride, wore a dusty mauve crystalene dress with white accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow carnations. Mrs. Reid, the bridegroom's mother, wore a Dior blue taffeta dress. Her corsage was of red carnations.

Following the reception in the church hall, the couple left for the Laurentians, the bride travelling in a white printed silk dress, navy blue linen duster, with white accessories and a corsage of sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths will reside in London, Ont.

Outdoor Roundup
with Joe Foster

With the coming and passing of the July 1 week-end, the open season on sandwiches is at hand. A period not marked on any calendar, yet of considerable economic and gastronomic significance, when you stop to consider that at a rough guess, during the summer, at least four million Canadians, men, women and children, thake to the outdoors and usually take along sandwiches to sustain and soothe them on each day's outing. This figure includes picnickers, spectators at regattas, stock car races or what have you, as well as 'honest as the day is long' fishermen anad other legitimate outdoor types.

A Lot of Sandwiches

Over the holiday week-end that could add up to twenty-four million sandwiches if each person carried two. In a summer, if statistics were kept, this would result in a history of sandwich consumption amounting to a most depressing number of millions. Think of it, millions upon millions of sandwiches made of drab and suspicious ingredients, placed between uninteresting and usually too-new pieces of bread. They neither sustain nor do they gratify, soggy, tasteless and discouraging, they simply fill a void.

Housewives at Fault

Directly at fault are the housewives, who think that a sandwich must be made with cold cuts. Indirectly at fault are the men, who passively eat the dreadful things put in their lunches or who are too lazy to make their own. The time for revolt has come. The first step is to destroy the Cold-Cut Complex of the nation's sandwich makers. Nobody likes cold cuts more than I, when carved fresh from the refrigerator and accompanied by a cold glass of beer; but such luncheon meats turn flat when carried half a day or more between a couple of slices of bread. They still may be packed with valuable vitamins, but even my own special mix for hot mustard can't put any zest into a stale vitamin. Furthermore, some women even think that one thin slice of beef bologna, veal loaf, processed cheese, pimiento loaf, or old fashioned meat loaf is enough for one sandwich. It's hard to find even stale vitamins in such a skimpy snack.

Slice It Thick

Infinitely better-tasting and more nourishing are sandwiches made from thick slices of left over cold roast beef, pork, turkey, chicken or ham. Another thing, they should be spread with butter, mustard or mayonnaise (depending upon the individual's taste), and these ingredients laid on with a lavish hand. Such things make a sandwich go down easier in this dry and thirsty weather — not a small matter when drinking water may not be readily available. If cheese is used, why does it have to be processed-type cheese cut in supermarket-thin shavings? On tasteless white bread too! What's wrong with our sharp Canadian cheddars or Oka for instance, on moist rye or pumpernickel?

Take the Makings With You

Sandwiches are a necessary evil, because it is often impossible to cook a meal on a trip, but they don't have to be all evil. Better than anything mentioned so far, however, is the sandwich made right on the spot where it will be eaten. Carry along some foil-wrapped buttered bread and a tin of boned turkey or chicken, corned beef, salmon, tuna or even the lowly sardine. Put the meat or fish between bread slices and have a fresh sandwich. Don't forget an opener though — those opening gadgets that come with some canned meats and fish have a habit of not functioning.

Dress It Up

One of those squat, wide mouthed thermos jugs can be used to transport salad greens or any of your favorite hot weather luncheon accompaniments that you will want to serve cold. Just throw in a few ice cubes and everything will stay chilled and fresh until ready to eat. Hard boiled eggs (carry salt) fill odd chinks in haversack or stomach quite nicely. If weight doesn't matter (as in car or boat) you can go real fancy and take along quite a lunch. Cold fried chicken or veal cutlets are good as are cold barbecued spare ribs. Fill one large-size thermos with coffee or tea, another with water or iced tea, to which you can add gingerale for added zest. If you must have dessert, don't carry cakes or cookies, these only provoke added thirst. Use instead fresh or canned fruits.

Scribe Enthuses Over Brownsburg Baseball Calibre

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg can well feel proud its youngest-ever baseball team — senior ball, that is. The boys, whose average age is less than 19, all live iin Brownsburg and are now showing the fruits of their hard work. They practice three times a week, and sweat endlessly over routine plays, ironing out weaknesses.

The boys were unlucky in their second and third games, after being just plain bad in their first! But their in-field work has improved to the point that they are playing like higher classification ball-players. Difficult round-the-diamond double plays are executed with cocky confidence, and the really risky first-to-second-to-first double play has just failed twice.

In their last three games, the team have left nothing to chance, and outmatched their opponents in every phase of the game. A powerful offensive has hammered out 45 hits including four doubles, five triples and one home-run, for a total of 28 runs. Defensively, two pitchers and an air-tight field limited the opponents to 19 hits and 9 runs. That's good baseball in any league.

The latest triumph was registered by Karl Gagné on Sunday when he subdued the Grenville batters on six hits while striking out eight. He gave up four runs, but with his team-mates building up a six-run lead and adding to it occasionally, his job was never in danger.

Big gun for the 'Burg was third baseman Buddy Racine, who hit a three-run homer and three singles for a perfect day at bat, and also started off a beautiful double-play in the first inning. Everybody had a hand in the win — Brent Steele, Yves Raymond, Jacques Racine and Mike Gratton all hit for extra bases.

Well, that's the story. You really have to see this team to believe how well they're playing. The boys are determined to bring Brownsburg its first baseball championship in many years, and with a bit of encouragement they'll do it. Lachute's baseball fraternity would find their time well spent if they came up to see some of the games — Sunday's game with Fassett, for example.

Professionals In Golf Tournament Here July 22

Leading Quebec professionals and Class "A" assistants will be taking part in the 1st Annual Quebec Professional Golf Championship, which will be held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club on Friday, July 22. The $3,500 prize money and the Dow Trophy will be presented by Dow Breweries, sponsors of the tournament.

The event will be played over 36 holes, with top prize money for the winner being $700 and other cash awards graded according to finish.

The tourney has been described as the first real break for the Quebec professionals in a long time and it is expected to give added incentive to the competing pros and Class "A" assistants.

Dr. Arnold Mitchell, honorary president of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association of Quebec, said, "It's a wonderful opportunity and we are delighted to accept the trophy and this generous assistance to bring our boys along."

The tournament has been hailed on Quebec golfing fronts as a real "shot in the arm" for the Quebec professionals.

Jack Archer will act as tournament manager, backed by a committee of Jules Huot, Jim Swarbrick and Stan Horne.

UBC Crew Bows to Pennsylvania Univ. In Henley Rowing Final

(CP) — The University of British Columbia rowing crew lost in the final of the Grand Challenge Cup for eights at the English Henley regatta Saturday — but in a semi-final they scored the most popular victory of the week by beating the cup-defending Russian crew.

In the final, University of Pennsylvania beat the Vancouver crew by one-third of a length in 6 minutes, 56 seconds, for the mile and 550 yards. The two shells were never more than a few feet apart but the Canadians' finishing spurt just could not overtake the Americans.

In the semi-final, the smooth-stroking youngsters from Vancouver came from behind to defeat the highly-rated Russians by 1¼ lengths. Few had expected Canada to turn back the sturdy scholars from Russia's Krasnow Znamia club.

Russia took an early lead but the Canadians gradually whittled down the margin, went ahead before the halfway mark, and pulled away at the end. Their time was seven minutes, 11 seconds.

The Russian crew had won the Grand Challenge Cup — senior event of the Henley regatta — a year ago.

Govt. Supervision Of Pari-Mutuel

By DON PEACOCK,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — Commons has passed a bill under which federal supervision of horse races where pari-mutuel betting is carried on will be financed by a levy of one-half of one per cent of toal wagers. At present, race tracks are charged an average of $27 a day for each supervising RCMP constable.

Opposition Leader Drew opposed the change on the basis it is being done by an amendment to the Criminal Code. Race associations not paying the levy could be fined $500 or a director jailed for six months.

Mr. Drew said it is a dangerous principle — the only place in the Criminal Code where failure to pay to the government was a criminal offence. He suggested race track supervision be financed out of general tax revenues.

Justice Minister Garson said the government does not want to affront those Canadians who oppose betting by asking them to pay for its supervision. Mr. Drew replied that many persons are opposed to liquor but pay taxes to supervise distilleries and administer liquor laws.

Mr. Garson said the government was trying to provide proper supervision for pari-mutuel betting but at the expense of the bettor, who stood to win fractionally less because of the levy.

The Drooping Giants

By JIM BASTABLE

On the baseball scene, major league fans are wondering what's wrong with New York Giants. The Giants started July in fourth place, 17 games behind the leading Brooklyn Dodgers.

In the words of Chuck Dressen, long-time Giant foe and former Brooklyn manager now with Washington, "the New York Giants are dead." In fact, adds Chuck, "the Giants are as dead as a door nail. Or even deader, if that's possible."

For the last month the experts have been trying to come up with an explanation for the Giant collapse.

There apparently is no easy explanation. There are too many reasons. The long slump of Willie Mays, Henry Thompson, Dusty Rhodes and the whole catching staff. Davey Williams' bad back, Monte Irvin's inability to regain his form. Failure on the mound by Antonelli, Ruben Gomez and Don Liddle.

If the Giants can close the gap against the Dodgers they will outmiracle the miracle Giant pennant winners of 1951. But don't bet your vacation money on it.

Immigration to Canada in the first quarter of 1955 totalled 17,627 people compared to 28,223 in the same period of 1954.

New York Softballers To Play Local Squad

J. René Laurin, Dow Brewery representative in Lachute, reports that he has invited a softball club from New York City's La Guardia airport, A.M.L. league to play a local all-star team, sometime during the third week of August.

This news has raised considerable interest among the local clubs, and many local stars are hoping for the honor of playing against the New York visitors.

It is notable that our American neighbors commence their season in March, and that the locals are re-doubling their efforts for a victory.

Jacques Brosseur, Lachute Mills, has been named as recruiter for the local all-stars.

The New York players will be the guests of J. H. St. Onge, proprietor of the Lachute Hotel.

Exact dafe of the game will be announced later.

Bingo Event For Community Rink

Brownsburg — The Community Rink Association have planned a gala bingo for Friday evening at the rink. The prizes are all cash prizes of at least $25 — a total of $300 in all. Naturally they hope to swell their kitty, which is slowly dwindling in this season of small revenue and big outlay, and with such attractive prizes it seems certain that a good crowd of hockey supporters will be on hand.

Recollections, 115 Years Of Ocean Voyaging

Montreal, July 4. — Today the 22,000-ton Cunarder Saxonia sails from this port for Liverpool carrying nearly 1,000 passengers. She is the 176th vessel of her line and her sailing falls on the 115th anniversary of the Cunard Steam-Ship Company Limited.

On July 4, 1840, the 207-foot-long paddle steamer Britannia sailed from Liverpool with 115 passengers for Halifax and Boston. The little vessel, which carried a cow on board so that passengers could have fresh milk daily, was the pioneer of regular passenger, cargo and mail service on the North Atlantic.

For Samuel Cunard, merchant shipowner of Halifax, N.S., the Britannia's first crossing was the genesis of his life-long ambition to bridge the Atlantic with a scheduled steamship service. It was the first of thousands of Cunard voyages between the Old World and the New.

And on July 4 also, another Cunarder, the Queen Elizabeth — which is five city blocks long — was scheduled to arrive in Southampton from New York. The Britannia's historic crossing to Boston took 17 days. The Queen Elizabeth left New York 120 hours ago. Compared with the first Cunarder's 115 souls on board, the Queen Elizabeth has carried 2,314 passengers from New York.

The gentle milch cow of the Britannia would find herself hard-pressed aboard the Queen Elizabeth today for that great vessel in a single round voyage requires 5,000 quarts of milk, two tons of butter and 4,000 quarts of ice cream.

BRITISH BOYS TO EXPLORE WILDS OF NEWFOUNDLAND

72 British boys will take part in a six weeks' expedition organized by British Schools Exploring Society to explore hitherto uncharted parts of Newfoundland next month. Led by experienced officers from the three Services, they will lead a rigorous existence and will have to fend for themselves. The expedition is planned as an educational experience during which the boys will study surveying, meteorology, animal, plant and bird life and geology.

Ontario Renovates Old Trading Posts

Toronto (CP) — Visitors to Wapiscogamy creek will soon admire the Hudson's Bay Company trading post there. It was abandoned long ago, but the Ontario Lands and Forests department plans to renovate it, along with other posts in the Kapuskasing district.

These trading posts were found ed more than 175 years ago, but most were abandoned before the turn of the century.

In conjunction with their restoration program the department plans to set up an historical library of Ontario photographs, depicting everything from the province's townsites, mills, and industries to period clothing and recreation.

The history of one of the forts is described by C. P. Wilson, editor of "The Beaver", a magazine depicting Ontario's northland.

"During the summer of 1788, a post, later known as the New Brunswick, was established on Micabanish lake, now called Brunswick lake. . . It was abandoned in the fall of 1791.

"It was re-established, however, in 1800, and abandoned again in 1802, then re-established in 1805 for a year. Nothing remained of the fort in 1817 but the ditches and a few decayed stockades."

"God Bless Canada" New Patriotic Song For Premiere July 14

The radio and TV premiere of a new patriotic song will take place on Thursday, July 14, in the Promenade Symphony Concert from Varsity Arena, Toronto, starting at 8.30 p.m.

The song is "God Bless Canada" by Dr. Joseph Roff, with words by Christopher Crown, and it will be presented by the New Canadian bass-baritone Vaclovas Verikaitis with the orchestra directed by Vivtor Kolar.

Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" gave Dr. Roff the idea of writing something similar for Canada. "If our cousins to the south are not ashamed to show their patriotism in song," he says, "why should not we Canadians do likewise and pray to God in song to bless Canada, 'the land that we call home'?"

"God Bless Canada" was sung by school children of Windsor, Ontario, at the centennial celebrations there, in the final pageant; and at Hart House in Toronto last month Verikaitis sang it for a gathering of 2,000 New Canadians. Dr. Roff is widely known, particularly in the U.S., for his many published works, numbering about 140. Fred Waring's organization has published 25 of his part-songs. His orchestral work, "Reverie", has been played by leading orchestras in Canada and was performed last year by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Whittling Down the Grey Cup Ballyhoo

By Jim Bastable,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gridiron fans across Canada will be happy to know they'll be playing football without too much smorgasbord in the Grey Cup at Vancouver this fall.

The Grey Cup festival committee, which had shown signs of turning the country's greatest sports classic into a huge vaudeville show, says it will stick to high-jinks traditionally associated with the annual spectacle between East and West.

At one time somebody got the idea to bring in the piano-playing candle salesman—otherwise known as Liberace — as one of the Grey Cup extras. There were other frills, too. Such as a mild version of an old Indian potlatch, an outdor salmon bake and a canoe race.

Somebody even thought of an Easterner's Day, a Westerner's Day and a Chinatown Day. Football day wasn't forgotten, though.

Well, the festival committee went into a huddle and decided this was too much, even for westerners who like their football dishes in fat helpings.

The committee rejected the report of Bill Clancey, former head of the press committee, who planned to form the week prior to the Nov. 26 game into a carnival.

His plans included tying in the game with a Christmas theme and erecting the "world's largest Christmas tree" in downtown Vancouver. He also suggested a Loggers' sports day.

Committee chairman John Dunsmuir said he was "diametrically opposed" to switching the event into a carnival. The cup celebration will last no longer than three days.

Into the three-day limit will be crowded the Miss Grey Cup contest and a dance, the Grey Cup dinner and the game.

Dunsmuir doesn't even like the word "festival" in the committee title. "If we do well, the job we have undertaken, that's enough," he said.

World Traveller Writing in B.C.

Vancouver (CP) — Vera Kelsey, author of a book on Manitoba's Red river and 12 other travel and mystery volumes, is touring British Columbia, writing a descriptive book on the province and its people.

The dynamic little woman will sleep in logging camps, mining shacks, in tents or in the open air. She has done it all before.

"I never travelled in luxury," she said. "My longest travels were in the interior of China to Peiping and Tientsin and the Gobi desert and as far as the Himalayas. I travelled third and fourth class on Chinese trains. I've been hundreds of miles by donkey, and once went half a day in a wheelbarrow. There is going to be a lot that is new in British Columbia, but nothing as tough as I've had it before.

"I never bothered about what I was eating or drinking. I ate everything that the Chinese coolies ate and drank water from the same pots. There wasn't anything else to do. And, perhaps because of this I never fell sick."

She will travel in B.C. for more than a year, recording her impressions of people, cities and hamlets.

Experience tells us that there's no particular pleasure in having nothing to do. The fun arises when you have lots to do and don't do it.

Ham for Summer Meals

What could be more stimulating to sluggish summer appetites than tender, colorful ham with its delightfully different flavor? Hot or cold, alone or in a casserole or whether served at breakfast, dinner, supper, picnics or parties, ham is always in fashion and particularly so at this time of year. To help make summer meal planning easier the home economists of the Consumer Section suggest this versatile and flavorful meat.

Hams are pork legs which have been cured and smoked. Regular hams usually have the skin left on and may be sold whole or as butt and shank halves and the centre is sometimes sliced and sold as ham steak. Hams are sold both with the bone in and without the bone. The boneless ones are generally rolled and enclosed in "visking" casing. Canned boneless hams are also available. Hams may be bought uncooked, tenderized and "ready-to-eat". The Consumer Section has found that the ready-to-eat hams are more tender and have more flavor when given additional cooking of 10 to 15 minutes per pound in a slow oven.

Ham is one meat of which practically every scrap may be used, even the bone which makes a flavorful stock for bean or pea soup. There is a large portion of lean meat in hams — especially those which have been trimmed, boned and rolled.

The Consumer Section recommends a low temperature (325° F.) for baking hams. When it is served hot the ham is very often glazed during the last few minutes of baking. Sometimes the fat surface of the ham is first scored and studded with cloves. The glaze is then smoothed on, oven temperature is raised to 425° F. and the ham is returned to the oven for 15 minutes. A canned ham may be glazed in the same manner.

The Consumer Section suggests that cooked ham may be used in many interesting combinations for summer salads. Instead of serving the ham slices flat they may be folded in half and the folded slices overlapped on the platter or plate. Or the ham slices may be rolled around a cream cheese or other tasty salad mixture with a sprig of parsley or other garnish sticking out each end. A slice or stick of cheese or a few asparagus tips which have been marinated in French dressing might be used in the ham rolls. Ham cornucopias are easily made by rolling the slices into cones and festening each with a toothpick. These are especially nice if filled with a salad mixture and garnished with a sprig of parsley or watercress. For snack trays smaller cornucopias may be made and well-chilled ham rolls may be cut into bite size pieces.

For a hearty main dish salad, cubes or Julienne strips of ham may be made and well-chilled ham rolls may be cut into bite size pieces.

For a hearty main dish salad, cubes or Julienne strips of ham may be added to potato or macaroni salad. Or the ham might be included with greens in a tossed salad. For a more meaty salad you may wish to serve the following:

HAM SALAD

2 Cups diced, cooked ham, 2 hard-cooked eggs (chopped), ½ cup cooked peas, ½ cup chopped pickle, ½ cup salad dressing, salt and pepper to taste.

Toss all ingredients together. Serve on lettuce with radishes and green onions. Yield: six servings.

Whether to be served at a fancy tea party or as the main part of a meal at home or on a picnic, sandwiches with a ham filling are always welcome. The three most common combinations ham and egg, ham and relish and ham with mustard may be used any time just by suiting the thickness of the bread and the size of the sandwich to the occasion.

Three-decker sandwiches such as ham with cheese or tomato plus lettuce make a healthy meal but if a hot lunch is preferred a French toast ham sandwich is hard to beat. To make this, ordinary sliced ham or ham salad sandwiches are made and then dipped into a mixture of egg and milk (¼ cup milk to one egg) seasoned with salt and pepper. The coated sandwich is then grilled or fried in a little hot fat.

For picnics and teas it is important to have sandwiches that will hold together well so sliced ham sandwiches dressed up with cheese, mustard or relish are a good choice. Ground ham can be made into excellent sandwich fillings by the addition of salad dressing and one or more of the following: grated carrot and pickle relish; horseradish; apple butter; chopped nuts; grated cheese and a little mustard; finely chopped egg and onions; finely chopped celery; pickle relish and a little mustard.

PICNIC WITH COOK-OUT SPAGHETTI

Anne Marshall

It's picnic time! The Browns, the Smiths, and the Thompsons, too, are packing baskets with "fun foods" and trotting off to the picnic grounds . . . or maybe just to the back yard. At this time of year any excuse will do for moving meals to the outdoors.

COOK-OUT SPAGHETTI makes the picnic as much fun for Mother as it is for the kiddies. She can prepare the spaghetti at home and tote it to the picnic in a casserole, wrapped in newspapers to keep it hot. Or the gang can gather round the campfire and take turns stirring the spaghetti in a big heavy pot.

The recipe is as easy as 1-2-3. Just brown ground beef, green pepper, and onion; then blend in canned spaghetti and seasonings.

In case bad weather keeps the crowd indoors, COOK-OUT SPAGHETTI will make it seem like a picnic just the same. For it's fine fare with carrot sticks, pickles and olives, fresh fruit and chewy browned marshmallows that taste equally good toasted in the fire-place or over a campfire.

Whether your "gang" numbers 4 or 24, take a vacation from cooking, and plan a picnic with COOK-OUT SPAGHETTI soon!

COOK-OUT SPAGHETTI

For 4	For 24
½ pound ground beef	2 pounds ground beef
1 large green pepper, chopped (1 cup)	2 medium green peppers, chopped (2 cups)

Tips on Touring

Women's Travel Authority

Are you guilty of spending long "lost week-ends" at home buried in the Sunday paper and doldrums? Or are you wisely using your week-ends to "get away from it all"?

This summer's long week-ends spell long breaks from daily routine for those who know how to The whole family can learn while take advantage of the family car, having fun by taking what I call "Tourettes". These are short week-end trips within a 200-mile radius of your home town.

Adventure lies just up the road or around the corner on little known roads and byways off the main highway. Chances are 10 to 1 you can discover a museum, an historical landmark or an exhibition that both younger fry and parents will enjoy. In addition, many factories open their doors to industrial tours. Such tours will take you behind the scenes of a textile mill, a cereal plant, an iron foundry or a food canning or packaging plant. an advance 'phone call usually insures you of a kingly Cook's Tour and maybe some free samples, too.

If you have a bent towards the exotic, many provinces have flower festivals and tours. And, for a backward look at early history, why not visit an Indian reservation or witness a tribal dance. And there's always the lure of lakes, rivers and beaches for the marine-minded motorist.

Adventures by automobile are just a few miles from your door.

Sugar and Tooth Decay Doctors vs. Dentists

Chewing sweets or crunching sugar will not harm your children's teeth. That is what Britain's Medical Research Council reports after tests lasting two years on boys and girls aged from two to 14, living in residential homes in three big English cities.

Half the children were fed on diets containing as much as two and three-quarter pounds of sugar a week for each child. They took the sugar in the form of sweets, jam, honey, syrup and plain sugar. Their teeth did not decay any faster that those of the children who ate only 11 ozs. of sugar per week.

However, immediately following publication of the report, a spokesman of the British Dental Association warned that "indiscriminate sucking of sweets and eating of sweet cakes are bad for children's teeth." He pointed out that the experiments were concerned with sugar added to the ordinary diet and eaten at ordinary meal times. They did not concern the eating of sugar between meals, or with sweet eating.

We know that one important factor in tooth decay is the kind of food we eat, and the presence or absence of proper amounts of saliva in our mouths. Scientists have found that sugar in solution does not seem to increase tooth decay, probably because it does not collect on the enamel surface of the teeth. Saliva washes it off.

In all our mouths there are millions of bacteria. We know that they are the direct cause of tooth decay. But why is it that some people are more subject to erosion of tooth enamel than others? Why are cavities almost unknown among the Eskimos? Why is there less tooth decay in India and China than in the highly industrialised countries of Northern Europe, Canada, the United States and Australia? We do not yet know the answers to these questions.

The hard, outside surface of our teeth is not either parmanent or non-living. Studies with radioactive substances show that material placed on the surface of a tooth is absorbed into the body. However, teeth are very different from other body tissues. They do not have the ability to repair themselves or correct deficiencies. Other parts of the body which contain calcium, mainly the bones, can do their own repair work. Once the teeth begin to decay, they have to have outside help.

One of the newest discoveries in the study of tooth decay concerns the thyroid gland. Researchers have found that when this gland is underactive susceptibility to tooth decay increases. They also found that when dried thyroid is used with fluorine, a chemical related to iodine and chlorine, the rate of tooth decay is reduced 55 per cent.

Still other researchers have reported that when children are given extra amounts of Vitamin D their teeth are stronger and decay is less prevalent.

However, the most important element in preserving teeth seems to be fluorine. Both the enamel and the dentine of teeth need fluorine. Evidently fluorine should be provided by our food or water. This finding is similar to research on goitre, which led medical men to discover that people who live in areas without iodine in the soil suffer from thyroid deficiency, often resulting in sever cases of goitre.

On the lonely island of Tristan de Cunha, in the South Atlantic, the people suffer very little from tooth decay. Investigators found that the fish they eat are rich in fluorine. This element is most important during childhood when the teeth are being developed, and need only be present in food or drinking water in the infinitesimal quantity of three or four parts per million.

In North America, 18 million people live in areas where fluorine is being added to their drinking water. Although dental experts cannot yet trace the exact role of fluorine in tooth development, they have proof that with adequate fluorine there is less tooth decay, and that without it, there is more. Care of Cut Flowers

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Did you ever walk in a florist's shop and long to ask just how the flowers were kept looking so fresh and lovely? Perhaps you have wanted to — but the florist was busy, other customers were waiting, and anyway you felt a bit shy!

What homemaker with a flower garden is not eager that her blooms will give the greatest amount of pleasure to the members of her family and to her friends, especially those who are sick? A gift bouquet combines beauty and the knowledge that one is remembered. These blend into the best of medicine for the sick — But the present of flowers is always appreciated, and an apparently healthy person may need this "medicine for the soul" too!

A person who is slowly convalescing will often appreciate several small bouquets rather than ne large one. These little floral surprises give pleasure for more days and boost the morale of the sick person over a langer period.

A bouquet will last much longer if it arrives in an inexpensive container holding water. The time the flowers are out of water is the time which shortens their life. Florists often use an inexpensive fish bown, filled with a commercial preparation. But a homemaker can use a squatty glass jar or even a low tin can covered with foil or painted as a substitute vase.

If you are giving away a bouquet, try to arrange it at once and place in a cool place until it can be delivered. If you have a sheet of wax paper or cellophane, place a light "tent" around the bouquet to conserve the moisture and protect from air currents. If there is room in the refrigerator, and its temperature can be set at around 45°, that is a good spot. But do NOT place it in the coolest place near the freezer. The leaves as well as the petals are apt to turn brown when brought out later.

The cellar floor in the "cold room," may receive your bouquet, providing it is not draughty. Flowers can stand a warm temperature better than a draught. The colder temperature retards the growth of the flower. Roses placed in the florist's refrigerator kept at 40° to 50 will last four times as long as those at room temperature.

Beware of a top-heavy effect! It is not pleasing and may even fall over, vase and all. The flowers should not be more than twice as high as their vase. The buds should be towards the outside of the bouquet, not in the middle.

The greatest color concentration should be in the centre. Colors should be either contrasting or blending. More than three colors are hard to use together effectively. It is best to have an uneven number of main blooms — seven, nine, eleven, even thirteen!

Flowers with any height need to be anchored or they and their bowl may topple over. A heavy glass "frog" can be purchased, or commercial "pebbles" used. One can be made from a little square of fine chicken wire crumpled together and fastened to the bottom of the container with plastite clay. Clippings from cedar are sometimes used but after a short time they are apt to foul the water. Always place the flower stems in the vase at an angle, not straight down.

One of the most important things to keep in mind in caring for cut flowers is that they MUST have abundant fresh water to drink. When the stem is cut on an angle, it has more "drinking surface." Woody stems like lilacs or chrysanthemums need to be hammered at the ends so they can "imbibe" more freely. A rose stem will benefit from being slit in the centre an inch or so up the stem from the bottom. Keep leaves out of the water. They will soon decay and spoil its freshness.

When arranging flowers, don't feel you MUST use all the ones you have picked in one or two bouquets and have more artistic effect. The Orientals have taught the Western World the beauty which lies in simplicity in flower arrangement. You want quality, not necessarily quantity! Have a picture in your mind of your completed bouquet and then try to chieve this masterpiece"!

Stripes add interest to many clothes categories this season from dance floor to the beach. Plenty of stripes add verve and brightness to this blithe beach outfit. The stripes are vertical on the slim pants, which are front buttoned and slit below the knee, the color scheme putty beige with navy and white stripes. Horizontal navy and white stripes are used for the knitted camisole underneath the white cotton knit jacket, neatly bound in navy.

Commons Discussion On Fish Dinners And Culinary Art

Ottawa (CP) — A Commoner from a fishing constituency says it's impossible to get a respectable fish dinner in the parliamentary restaurant.

Thomas H. Bell (PC — St. John Albert) questioned the restaurant's culinary efforts as he urged the government to increase its efforts to teach Canadians how to cook fish. His plea was supported in the Commons by members of all parties, but East Coasters said Atlantic salmon cannont be beaten and British Columbia members retorted that the Maritimers apparently had never tasted Pacific salmon.

William Bryce (CCF —Selkirk) said the east and west coasters can keep their salmon "as long as I can get Winnipeg goldeye, Winnipeg whitefish and a bit of pickerel for a change."

Meanwhile, it took only about 20 hours from the time Commons Speaker Beaudoin announced he and Senate Speaker Robertson had been asked to consider serving wine and beer with meals in the restaurant until he announced the suggestion had been dropped.

His first announcement, he said, "has provoked sufficient discussion to make it clear that there is not a wide enough general agreement in favor . . . to warrant its being put into effect."

Former Flying Couple Run Own Bakery

Vancouver (CP) — Both former flying instructors, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Davies turn out 3,000 loaves a day in their timber-fronted one-storey bakery here.

Ethel Davies took up aviation in 1943 and was trained at Vancouver airport. For five years she worked as a bush pilot and general commercial aviator, flying loggers to the B.C. interior.

She and her husband, an air force veteran, took over the bakery when his father died three years ago. To aid her husband, she helped in the bakery at night and delivered bread to customers during the day.

Today, she sets out on her route at 5 a.m. and then takes over the office work in the bakery during the afternoon.

Fine Product

The formula for the bread was found on a trial-and-error method by Mr. Davies' father. Some doctors have recommended it for their patients and one eastern university offered several thousand dollars for the recipe.

But despite the popularity of their product, they have no desire to expand. Their only concession to increasing demand was the hiring of a young immigrant couple from Berlin.

Wilfred Davies still works a 14-hour day 6½ days a week. During rush seasons, he has put in 17 hours a day and then slept in the bakery.

In an age of oil and electricity, their two Vancouver-made ovens are fired by wood. "We find wood is ideal for slow baking," they said.

Time Is the secret of the Davies family bread. "We devote 3½ hours to raising the dough," Mr. Davies said, "and 1½ hours more for the baking. This means that the water content is kept to a minimum."

HAY-HOY!

Some farmers in the picturesque, low-lying Suffolk Broads district of England bring in the hay by water. So it was logical for a British boat builder to use lightweight aluminum to produce a 650-pound punt capable of carrying a load of hay more than six times its own weight.

In Canada aluminum is better known among farmers as a non-rusting, heat-reflecting, easily handled material for barns and roofs and silos . . . though of course it has many other farm uses, from milk cans to windmill blades. No hay-boats, though.

Dewar - Waite

The United Church in Grenville was the scene of a very pretty wedding June 18 at 4 o'clock, when Vivian Irma Waite and Norman Percival Dewar were united in marriage. The Rev. Ralph Watson officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Chesser Waite and the late Mr. Waite, of Pte.-au-Chene, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dewar, of St. Philippe d'Argenteuil.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, wore a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over net and satin, with a fitted bodice and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a tiara trimmed with seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

The bride was attended by Miss Myrtle Hill, of Ottawa, as maid of honor. She wore a waltz-length gown of pale blue nylon net over satin, with bolero and matching headdress, and carried a nosegay of yellow and white mums.

Miss Maureen Ball, of Verdun, was bridesmaid, wearing a waltz-length gown of yellow nylon net over satin, with bolero and matching headdress, she carried a nosegay of yellow and white mums.

Mr. Mervin Dewar, brother of the groom, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Alex Waite, brother of the bride, and Mr. Vernon Dewar, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Waite, mother of the bride, wore a street-length dress of navy crepe and a navy hat, with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Dewar, mother of the groom, wore a gown of aqua nylon, with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, supper was served at the Long Sault Hotel. A reception was held in the Hall at Kilmar, after which the happy couple left for a motor trip through New York State and other points — the bride travelling in a light blue gaberdine suit with white accessories. START MADE ON NEW BRUNSWICK POWER PROJECTS

—Central Press Canadian

Initial stages of construction for New Brunswick's Beechwood power project are now in evidence. The project, shown here in an artist's sketch, is scheduled for completion in 1957 as part of a $300,000,000 power development for the province through harnessing of the St. John river. The Beechwood site, 100 miles north of Fredericton, will have an estimated $50,000,000 spent before it produces its 135,000 potential horsepower. Altogether, when the province has developed other sites on the river, 374,000 horsepower will be added to the power grid. Beechwood, called "Little TVA," will be the first completed.

St. Lawrence Gulf Yields Big Catch

Sept-Iles, Que. (CP) — Adrien Lebel believes he has made a near-record halibut catch for this section of the St. Lawrence.

On a multi-hooked line he and two friends caught 32 halibut weighing more than 2,000 pounds. The catch was made 23 miles southwest of the seven islands which gave this town its name.

Lebel, 43, has been fishing in the gulf of St. Lawrence since he was a boy and this was his greatest catch. He and his friends, Frederic and Emilien Poirier, set out from their homes in Ste.-Marguerite for a newly-discovered fishing ground where halibut were reported plentiful and hungry.

Lebel said he used a "Norman" line to make the catch. This type of line is made up of a thick thread on which smaller lines with hooks are attached.

Lebel had out one third of his line, about 325 hooks, when the fabulous catch was made. He was using herring for bait. The three men slipped on their thick woollen gloves, dug in their heels and hauled in the line and big halibut inch by inch.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Antibiotics In Industry

Millions of lives have been saved by antibiotics, but these earth-mold drugs may also be put to such diverse uses as keeping food fresh longer, prolonging the life of leather, and revolutionizing the cosmetics industry.

Such antibiotics as penicillin, streptomycin, polymyxin and bacitracin are finding startlingly broad applications. By serving as efficiency experts, for example, they may help raise our standard of living. Experiments show the antibiotics make silkworms produce silk more quickly, and speed up the honey output of bees.

Some antibiotics are proving successful in reducing the mildew on surface coatings, and making shoes and purses wear longer. Others are useful in eliminating bacteria that clog up machinery.

In agriculture, antibiotics have been spectacularly successful in increasing the production of food animals and crops. Poultry and hogs are being produced more cheaply, because animals raised on an antibiotic-supplemented diet grow fatter and healthier and are ready for market sooner.

Agri-mycin field trials were recently conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The trials proved the effectiveness of this antibiotic combination in drastically cutting down on the bacterial diseases that ravage whole crops.

Current experiments raise hopes that the drugs also will help keep food fresh longer. Terramycin, tested on fish, greatly reduced its "spoilage" rate.

The day may soon come when antibiotics will be as valuable for non-medical use as they are today for fighting infections.

Salvation Army Helps At Court

Montreal (CP) — Alfred L. Steele finds his job as Montreal police and prison court officer for the Salvation Army "very absorbing, particularly when we meet with success."

"I've held this job for seven years and each year my interest increases."

Last year, Mr. Steele and his assistant, Alex MacMillan, interceded with judges on behalf of 2,546 male lawbreakers. In 2,291 of the cases, the men were paroled for rehabilitation in care of the Salvation Army.

"We deal with this many cases every year," adds Mr. Steele, who served as a Canadian Army chaplain in the First and Second World Wars. "And we find that only about seven per cent of the people we look after ever return to court again."

Another aspect of his work concerns people who may be headed for the courts, mainly domestic cases.

"I visit these people and chat with them over a cup of tea," he says. "The first few times the man and his wife will probably be at each others' throats. But often, after several visits, things are straightened out and the threatened trouble is averted."

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. — I am 22 years old. I started at the mines in 1948. Was employed at Cadomin, Luscar and Robb up till 1953. That year I went to Vancouver, B.C., and while at the coast I got into trouble. My own carelessness and bad company landed me in jail for a year. When I got my parole last November I applied for insurance benefit at Edson. My application was turned down. I have been drawing very little benefit since I started to work in 1948. For short periods only. During the year I spent in jail I paid nothing to the insurance fund; but I did for years. If there is anything you can do for me regarding this matter it will be greatly appreciated.

A. — To qualify for benefit you must have paid 180 daily contributions in the two years immediately preceeding the date of your claim, of which 60 contributions must have been paid in the last year or 45 in the last half year. In some circumstances, the two-year period may be extended up to a maximum of four years, such as a period spent in non-insurable employment, or if you were engaged in business on your own account or if you were incapable of work because of sickness or injury. You evidently could not fulfil any of the above requirements and therefore no extension could be allowed to you.

Civic Proceedings Orderly, Untroubled Much Routine Business Accomplished

A decision to commence using the recently purchased property on the St. Croix Road for a municipal dump as soon as possible, was made at the regular July meeting of Lachute Town Council, held in the Town Hall last Wednesday. All councillors were in attendance at the meeting, chaired by Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald. . . The Provincial Health Department have approved the site in question to be used for garbage disposal.

Secretary-Treasurer C. Daoust reported that, to date, approximately 30 complaints had been received in connection with the recently issued bills for 1955 Business Tax. It was decided that these be turned over to the Finance Committee.

Ald. Judes E. Charlebois presented his report on the construction of the Town Hall, and recommended that tenders be called for a metal fire escape. The suggestion was adopted in the form of a motion, seconded by Ald R. Morrissette. The waterproofing of the new building is to be left to the Building Committee.

It was decided that the Council study the matter of a Building and Zoning By-law for the town.

The matter of the Gatineau Power poles on Main Street was once again brought forward, with a request that the Council indicate to the Company the poles which are not in a satisfactory condition. The matter was left to the Light Committee, headed by Ald. Stanley Church.

Ald. Ross Muir reported that the recently purchased racks for drying of the fire hose had been received, but that all were not as yet installed.

Several complaints as to backing-up in the sewers on Meikle Street in front of the Painchaud property, were referred to Ald. D. G. MacRae, while ratepayers on the St. Andrews Road were also assured that a sidewalk promised last fall would be constructed just as soon s possible.

A request to erect a banner over Main Street in connection with the Dow-sponsored Pro Golf Tournament was received from René Laurin, local agent. The matter was left to the Roads Committee.

Ald. Réal Morrissette gave notice of motion, following considerable discussion, that at the next regular meeting he would present for adoption an amendment to By-law 182 in connection with the wearing of shorts in public. Chief Laurent Ducharme stated that this provision was included in the original by-law but that an amendment had been made five years ago. The matter is to be taken up with the town's legal advisor.

Permission to the Lachute Richelieu Club to hold a parade, and for other privileges for their annual festival and horse racing, was granted on a motion by Ald Wilbrod Cousineau, seconded by Ald. Ross Muir.

Secretary Claude Daoust reported that, on an average, some 60 phone calls a day were received at the Town Hall, while an average of 35 persons were served over the counter. He recommended in his report that a third person be employed for the municipal office. It was moved by Ald. Romain Desjardins, seconded by Ald. D. G. MacRae, that Miss G'sele Theriault be permanently engaged to work in the town office at an initial salary of $30 a week. Miss Theriault has been employed by the corporation on a temporary basis for several months.

It was moved that the business tax roll be homologated.

It was moved by Ald. Edgar Pollock, seconded by Ald. Real Morrissette, that according to Article 345 of the Quebec Municipal Code, all Council meetings be held in the council chamber of the Town Hall.

Ald. Romain Desjardins, or in his absence, any member of his Health and Hygiene Committee, was authorized to sign and approve the Social Service cards.

The matter of filling the excavation on the old Victoria Hall site was discussed and left to the Auditorium Committee. The majority of this work has since been completed.

Accounts totalling $20,322.89 were approved for payment, with the exception of bills owing the Gatineau Power and Paul E. Bonnier, which were held for further study.

Building permits were granted to the following for the construction of houses; Sylvio Deslauriers, on Robert Street; Miss Jeanne Legault, on Wilson Street; and Roger Depratto, on St. Jacques Street. A building permit to Mr. Mainville was held over, pending investigation of the Council, as was one to René Laurin for a house on Isabella Street where there are no water or sewer facilities.

The meeting was adjourned sine-die.

Police Report for Month of June

Police Chief Laurent Ducharme presented his monthly report at last Wednesday's session of the Lachute Town Council, indicating that the police department had received 45 calls, investigated 15 automobile accidents with a total damage around $1,627, issued 6 traffic tickets, made 6 arrests, and destroyed 5 animals.

J. Bourbonnière New Mayor of St. Jerusalem

Joseph Ernest Bourbonniere was elected mayor of the Parish of St. Jerusalem by acclamation at the close of nominations Wednesday, replacing the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A. — according to Harold E. Carson, secretary of the municipality.

Running for Seats 1, 5, and 6 are Stewart Armstrong, Herbert Gordon, Dougal Leishman, Gerard de Bellefeuille and Stanley Holt. Messrs. Gordon and Leishman are up for re-election.

(It is noteworthy to observers that Mr. Bourbonniere, a French-speaking citizen, was acclaimed in this predominantly English-speaking municipality — in contrast to any antipathy of races exaggerated by the radical elements hereabouts.)

New Record Set For Golf Course By Local Pro

In a tune-up game for the coming Quebec pro championship and the Dow Trophy, Jack Archer, popular Lachute pro, set a new record for the local golf course last Saturday, scoring a six-under-par 66.

Jack played the front nine holes in 34, two under par, and made the back nine in 32, four under par. Par for the 6,740 yard course is 36-36-72.

Archer was playing in a four-some with Gilbert Ayers, Bill Thompson and Graham Nicholson.

Highway Deaths, Injuries, Drowning, Electrocution, Week's Toll of Mishaps

Head-On Crash Friday Night On Route 31

Inquest Pending In Instant Death of Montreal Motorist

The first district highway death this season occurred around midnight Friday when Edwin Hodges, 62, of Montreal, was instantly killed in a head-on collision on the McFaul Flats, a short distance north of Dalesville. Four other persons, two of them Lachute residents, were injured in the mishap.

Brought to the Providence Hospital in Lachute were Mrs. Hodges, who was later transferred to the Notre Dame Hospital, Montreal; Marcel Benard, friend of one of the Hodges daughters; and Roland Menard and Jos. Cleary; the latter two who were in a panel van. All were treated at the scene of the accident by Dr. Marc Papineau of Lachute.

The Hodges were on their way North, while the Menard vehicle, driven by Cleary, was returning from Huberdeau. The Menard truck was practically stopped at the edge of the gravel-surfaced road at the time of the accident, according to the occupants. The crash demolished both vehicles, and Hodges died instantly with a broken neck.

Mrs. Hodges suffered facial cuts and shock, while Bernard is reported to have suffered rib fractures. Mr. Menard was treated for a fracture of the right ankle and a severe cut on his head. Cleary was treated for internal injuries.

The Hodges family were heading to their summer home on Lac Grothé to spend two weeks vacation. Their two daughters were at the camp at the time of the accident.

The accident was investigated by Det. Ralph Allen and Traffic Officers Legault and Roger Massie.

Date for the inquest on the death of Mr. Hodges has not yet been set.

Man Electrocuted While Painting Farm Building

Raymond Galarneau, 24-year-old painter from Montreal, was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon when the metal ladder he was moving came in contact with a high-tension wire carrying 4,600 volts. The fatality occurred at the farm of Albert Lemay, about four miles from Lachute on the St. Andrews Road.

According to Det. Ralph Allen, who was called to the scene shortly following the accident at 3.30 p.m., Galarneau and a man identified as Georges Germain, 24, of Montreal, were in process of painting the barn when they came to the manure-carrier track. Germain stepped down from the ladder onto the overhead track, while Galarneau started to move the 22-foot metal ladder past the track. The ladder came into contact with the power line and the victim was literally locked to the ladder until the fuses blew.

Artificial respiration was applied for some time, but this failed to revive the victim. Dr. Marc Papineau was summoned and pronounced Galarneau dead. Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur ruled the death accidental, due to electrocution. No inquest will be held.

There were several witnesses to the fatality.

Lachute Youth Killed by Auto At Fassett

Edouard Donat Viverais, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard Viverais, Millway Street, Lachute died in the Hotel Dieu Hospital in St. Jerome Sunday morning from injuries received when he was struck by a car a short distance from Fassett. The accident occurred about 10 p.m. Saturday.

Young Viverais was walking along the highway with relatives a short distance from his uncle's residence. He was carrying his four-year-old cousin, Francine Legris, at the time he was struck by a car driven by Jean Paul Laplante, 33 of Buckingham. The child was only slightly injured.

At the time of the accident the victim's sister, Ghislaine Viverais, and another cousin, Elizabeth Legris, were walking a short distance ahead of him. The driver is reported to have struck the young man while swerving to avoid a collision in passing another car.

Edouard Vivarais was an employee of Lachute Lumber and Millwork Ltd. Besides his parents, he is mourned by five sisters and one brother, all of this district.

Chill Weather In New Zealand

A St. Jerome reader informs us of a Mrs. Mabel Evans, of Wellington, New Zealand, now a guest at the Chantecler Hotel, Ste Adele en Haut.

While sweltering lately in a heat wave such as she has never experienced "down under", Mrs. Evans has been receiving letters from her children in New Zealand complaining about the wintry weather and cold, penetrating winds. Wellington is now in the depth of its winter season.

Buckingham Farmer Dies in Lievre River

A 41-year-old Buckingham farmer suffered a heart seizure Saturday while wading into the Lievre River and died while his eight-year-old twin sons looked on helplessly.

Death of Hugh Connolly, who operated a farm bordering the river about two miles north of Buckingham, was the result of a heart seizure, according to Coroner Dr. Jean Lorrain.

Mr. Connolly's body was recovered by his 13-year-old daughter, Vera, who had gone to the river to find the boys alone, watching for their father who they said had fallen in the water and had not reappeared. The little girl found her father on the bottom of the river in about four feet of water. She pulled him ashore.

Mr. Connolly was the father of eight children.

Drowning and Near-Drowning Incidents Reported

Jean Pierre Levesque, 24, of St. Hubert, was reported drowned late Sunday afternoon following his disappearance in the Ottawa River, near St. Andrews East. The body was recovered about 8 p.m. Monday by relatives . . According to Traffic Officer Legault, Levesque had been swimming in the area near Ouellette's camp at Pte. aux Sables, La Baie.

A near-fatality occurred at Colford's Lodge, Sunday afternoon, when it is reported an unidentified swimmer came upon the body of a young girl, about 10 years old, on the bottom of the pool. The unconscious girl was carried to shore, where she was revived by artificial respiration. It is believed the victim was from St. Martin. Medical attention was summoned, and although her condition was not serious, she was suffering ill effects from having swallowed considerable sand and water.

15-Year-Old Admits Starting Forest Blaze

Provincial police in St. Jerome released a 15-year-old youth on Monday who had been held in cells after he admitted setting a forest fire near St. Jerome so he could obtain work fighting the blaze.

The fire — never of serious proportions — started last Thursday in a nearby woodlot and spread to surrounding farms.

Detective Raymond Theoret, of St. Jerome, said the firefighters first became suspicious when the blaze continued to break out afresh after they had brought it under control several times.

Police said they suspected the youth, hid to watch him and saw him start a fire. When arrested, he admitted starting several other fires, they said.

Detective Theoret said the youth was a member of a Montreal family who spend their summers near St. Jerome.

Four acres were destroyed, police said the area was so dry that in some places the fire penetrated about 14 inches into the ground. Some 40 men fought the blaze.

Laurentian District Legion Conference At Morin Heights

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The Canadian Legion Laurentian District Conference was opened with the usual Legion ritual and prayers by Com. Rev. Robert Blair. Com. Jim Gilbert, first vice-president of Provincial Command, was called upon to present a life membership to Com. E. Holgate, of Morin Heights Branch 171. Command started at 3 p.m., with Dist. Com. About 40 comrades were present, representing branches of the district from — Brownsburg, Lachute, Montebello, Ste. Agathe, St. Sauveur and Morin Heights.

Problems of the corps of veterans were discussed; particularly that of pensioners, also those eligible for active membership, and resolutions covering these two contentious points were adopted to be forwarded to Provincial Command.

Elections then took place, with Comrade Jim Gilbert acting as chairman of elections.

Comrade J. Morin, of Ste. Agathe, was elected Dist. Commander, and Comrade E. Kneeland, of Morin Heights, as Dep. Dist. Commander.

Refreshments were then served to the delegates. . . A sad circumstance occurred when Comrade J. Holden, teletype clerk at the RCAF Station at Lac St. Denis, and a member of Ste. Robertson were called, and an ambulance was procured from the RCAF station to convey the sufferer to the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital.

Road Worker Drowns in Quarry Near Hawkesbury

A 27-year-old Martintown, Ont., construction worker on the Trans-Canada highway project near Hawkesbury, Hugh C. L. MacDonald, was drowned Friday night when he waded into deep water in a quarry after eating supper.

The drowning occurred in a quarry about four miles east of Hawkesbury.

MacDonald, an employee of Dibblee Construction Company, waded into the quarry and stepped off a ledge into 22 feet of water. His body was recovered Saturday morning.

Fellow construction workers warned the victim not to go too great a distance into the quarry since it was very deep. They knew he was a non-swimmer.

Winners in the latter draw were Jean Louis Moreau, Montreal; Mrs. Aurore Gauthier, Vaudreuil; Herman Young, Calumet; Conrad Lamarche, Plantagenet; and Alban Denis, Fournier.

Montreal Canadiens hockey star Jean Beliveau was at the annual celebration, at which a large crowd attended.

The Lachute office of the Social Service (St. Jerome Diocese) will be closed from July 17 to August 9 for annual vacation of the social workers. The offices in St. Jerome will remain open, however, for any pressing emergencies.

Boy Finds Wallet Returns to Police

Another instance of honest young citizenship was reported this week, when Richard Moore, 15 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore, Bedard Blvd., turned over a wallet he had found to the local police. The wallet was discovered on Main Street West last Friday and contained $35. It was owned by Gaetan Girard, of Lachute.

Elections in Wentworth Twp. And Montcalm

Wentworth Township

Clarence Neill, of Dunany, was re-elected mayor of the Municipality of Wentworth by acclamation at the close of nominations Wednesday. The only other acclamation in the municipality was for Bruce Hunter, who replaces Gilbert Boyd, of Louisa, for Seat 2.

Election for Seats 1 and 3 will be held Monday, according to Secretary Wilfred J. Morrison. Running for Seat 1 are Harvey Barlow, of Laurel, and Romuald Bell, of St. Michel. Contesting Seat 2 are Arthur de Guise, of St. Michel, and Sylvio Deslauriers, also of St. Michel.

In Montcalm

A contest for the mayoralty and several council seats will be held in the Municipality of Montcalm, according to Secretary M. C. Davis. Running for mayor are James W. Breckenridge and A. G. Munich, Sr., the present mayor. Contesting the seats for councillors are Donald Colquhoun, C. B. James, Basil S. Kerr, W. D. Morrison, E. L. Trotter and J. D. Williams.

Jas. W. McGibbon Returned to School Board

Jas. W. McGibbon, chairman of the Lachute Protestant School Board, was re-elected by acclamation in the early-July elections. This was the only vacancy.

Mr. McGibbon was re-named chairman of the board at a meeting the day following his re-election as a commissioner.

The Lachute Protestant School Board now comprises — Chairman Jas. McGibbon, Commissioners Nat W. Boyd, Douglas Bradford, E. W. Smith, and Douglas MacKimmie. Roy P. Fraser is the secretary-treasurer.

Receives $50 Fine And License Suspension

Garfield McLeod, of Grenville, charged with driving a car while impaired, in the Town of Hawkesbury on June 28, pleaded guilty, paid a $50 fine and his license was suspended for three months. J. J. E. Woods acted for the accused. Charges had been laid by Cst. L. Montpetit, of Hawkesbury.

Lions Club Wheelchair for Invalid

Adjutor Seguin, crippled shoemaker residing in the west end of Lachute, shakes hands with President Roger Regimbal of Lachute Lions Club, happy to enjoy the use of a brand-new aluminum wheelchair purchased from the club's Easter Seals fund. The chair is stamped with the Lions crest and will be retained for the benefit and future use of crippled residents . . . Standing (left to right) with the club president are three stalwarts of the local Lions, Fernand Legault, QC, Dr. F. W. FitzGerald (Easter Seals committeeman), and Ian Gordon, (president-elect).

Travel Story by Rotary Clubman

Last week's regular meeting of the Rotary Club was highlighted by the showing of colored moving pictures by Rotarian Jack MacKimmie of his trip to Florida last winter, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. MacKimmie and Bernice and Sonny Ogilvie.

Rotarian MacKimmie gave a running commentary as he showed pictures of interesting places — Knoxville, Tenessee; Biloxi, Mississippi; Mobile, Alabama; and Panama City, Clearwater and Lake Worth in Florida. Of particular interest were a considerable number of pictures of the Bellingrath Gardens in Mobile, where there are literally acres of the most beautiful flowers to be seen. These gardens, it appears, are one of the show places of the region and are visited by thousands of people each year. After dwelling on these and other beautiful scenes of the deep south, such as the palm trees, elaborate motels, and sandy beaches with hundreds of people swimming, Jack also showed scenes of his trip home when he had to follow the snowblower while it cleared the highway of six and eight-foot drifts.

Rotarian Jack was introduced by Sonny Ogilvie and thanked by Dave Schwartz, who assured the speaker that he had provided a thoroughly enjoyable and interesting evening.

As this was the first meeting of the Club year the newly-elected president, Syd Stilwell, occupied the chair. Rotarian Stilwell succeeds Fred Royal, who had been president for the year 1954-55.

Car-Truck Collision At Highway Intersection

John Bell, 51, of Grenville, was severely shaken up Sunday evening when the 1953 sedan he was driving crashed into the rear of a stationary 1-ton truck driven by Paul Bourgeois, 34, of St. Canut.

According to Traffic Officer Albert Legault, who investigated, both vehicles were headed towards Lachute, when Bourgeois, who was in the lead, stopped before turning off the St. Jerome highway onto Cote St. Louis Road. Bell failed to halt his car in time and rammed into the back of the truck, suffering an estimated $300 damage to his car.

No serious injuries were suffered by the occupants of either vehicle.

Gatineau Lines

Half Way in 1955!

The first six months of 1955 have been busy ones for the Company!

Possibly few customers have had an opportunity to note the work undertaken to still further improve the electric service and extend it to those who up to now have not had the benefit of its convenience and comfort.

This has included: 37 new transformer installations made on existing lines, to provide new services and take care of heavier loads; 41 individual extensions to existing lines have been completed and additional ones are under construction; 3 capacitor installations have been made to improve service; 23.12 miles of line have been rebuilt; 4 systems have been converted to higher voltage.

In accord with the Company's policy to extend its service into rural areas, during the year over 100 miles of new lines will be erected.

Other works which are planned for this year include improvements and additions to substations, transmission lines and power houses. Few of these will be noticed by the public at large, but they all have a bearing on the electric service you receive.

Gold Medal Award To Local Shorthorn

A special award for butterfat production has just been awarded Iris-329823, a purebred milking Shorthorn cow in the A. D. McGibbon & Sons herd — according to the American Milking Shorthorn Society located in Springfield, Missouri.

Iris is the first Canadian Milking Shorthorn to be granted the Gold Medal award and one of 14 in North America. She is classified Very Good and earned her award by producing 99,892.0 pounds milk and 4,145.84 pounds butterfat (m.e.) in eight consecutive lactations. Her top record of 15,748.0 pounds milk and 666.00 pounds butterfat was made as a six-year-old. She is a paternal granddaughter and a maternal great granddaughter of the world famous Wicklesham Lord Wild Eyes, from which the entire herd is descended.

The McGibbon herd of Dairy Shorthorns has recently had two heifers accepted for the Advanced Record of Merit rating by the Society. They are Ridge Wild Rose 3d, EX, and Ridge White Lilly, VG. Ridge Wild Rose 3d qualified with a record of 24,454.1 pounds milk and 922.32 pounds butterfat (m.e.) and Ridge White Lilly with 25,957.8 pounds milk and 957.46 (m.e.) pounds butterfat. Both produced their records on twice-a-day milking basis in two consecutive lactations within a period of 28 months. Sire of these two top heifers is Stanham Wild Ilford ARM, EX, with 13 R.M. daughters of which four are ARM to date and more to follow. The influence of this great sire is being shown by the outstanding records of his daughters.

YOUNG ONTARIO FARMERS IN SCOTLAND

London — Four young farmers from Ontario, two men and two women, were officially received at the Royal Highland and Agricultural Show in Edinburgh recently, by the Under Secretary of State for Scotland, Mr. Neill MacPherson. The visitors from Canada left Scotland for a visit to England on June 28.

FARM ECONOMICS

It has taken a long time to learn that the problems of the farm industry are economical, not political. The farmers of Alberta have equipped their farms for only one purpose, that of production, and the least that a government can do is let them produce. . . . The farmer himself knows best how to obtain a balanced economy.

Locally Owned Jersey Superior-Class Bull

Quebec has another superior Jersey herd sire. This time it is Middlebrook Jester Basil, with 13 tested daughters that average 8,610 lbs. of milk and 477 lbs. fat, average test 5.54 per cent. He has 18 classified daughters that average 83.06 per cent for type.

Jester-Basil — 114628 was born August 4, 1946, and bred by Middlebrook Farm in New Jersey. He was purchased by three well known Jersey breeders in Quebec — Dr. G. R. McCall, of Lachute, John Pangman and L. S. Webster.

At the recent Ormstown Fair, Basil won the senior get-of-sire, sired the grand champion cow, Pine Gables Jester Tinsil, and several other prize winners.

Highlights in Morin Centennial Week

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The Centennial fashion show scheduled for Monday evening at the Bellevue Hotel was held by candlelight, due to a power interruption caused by the severe storm. About 40 persons enjoyed the event; many were unable to attend due to the storm, and there was considerable disappointment. Therefore a second showing was held on Friday evening.

The fashion parade was held around the Bellevue swimming pool. The committee in charge included Mrs. H. Baugh, Mrs. A. Buxton, Mrs. R. Kirkpatrick and Miss Mildred Pollock. The commentator was Mrs. I. Watchorn, and the models were Gail Morrow, Rhonda Boyd, Christine Basler, Judy-Ann Watchorn, Johann De Bessecourt, Beverly Woods, Beverly Bell, Grace Gillingham, Pauline Hurtubise, Simonne Basler, Pia Granson, Ella LeGallee and Phyllis Buxton.

Modern garments from the store of Mrs. I. Watchorn were modelled first. Gowns dating back 100 years were then modelled. Prior to the arrival of the Centennial Queen and her attendant, the old and new fashions paraded on opposite sides of the pool. During the intermission Mrs. Joyce Murphy, accompanied by Mrs. Joan Murphy, sang a number of solos.

The fashion show was largely attended. Constable Howard Jones escorted two of the models around the pool, providing one of the highlights of the entertainment.

On Thursday night a farmers' dance was held at the New Alpino Lodge. The music was supplied by an orchestra from St. Jerome. The dance was largely attended, and an enjoyable time was spent.

The pupils of Ste. Elizabeth school joined the pupils of Morin Intermediate school for a swimming party on Wednesday at the Bellevue Pool. This was followed by a picnic for the children.

A Legion Night was held at the Commons Inn, also on Wednesday. Over 200 persons attended and many valuable prizes were won. Branch 171 of the Canadian Legion sponsored this event, and over $200 was realized.

The Council and residents of Morin Heights take this opportunity to thank Traffic Officer H. Jones for his co-operation during Centennial Week.

NEW BRUNSWICK SHIPS TUNGSTEN ORE

—Central Press Canadian

Two and a half years after New Brunswick found itself entering into mining boom, the first shipment of metal from the province has been accomplished by tungsten mine at Burnt Hill, 65 miles northeast of Fredericton. The shipment, though small compared to the ultimate output expected from the huge base-metal deposits, is being shipped to New York. In operation at present is a 150-ton concentrator but this will be expanded to handle 300 tons a day before the end of the year. Here two of the mine's 40 employees examine the ore as it is processed in a flotation machine.

More Impressions from Recent Canadian Authors' Convention

By Janet Graham

Dr. Julia Grace Wales gave you in last week's article a very fine resume of the more intellectual parts of this Convention, but there were other aspects of interest not yet mentioned. One amusing one was the fact that the Mayor of Kingston, in welcoming the authors to the Kingston dinner, held in the Yacht Club, "forgot his lines" and ended up with "Whatever you call yourselves", instead of Canadian Authors. This brought a hearty laugh from the assembly, and was mentioned indirectly in illustrating a point in Prof. Lower's address, to which Dr. Wales has referred.

During the afternoon the pageant of soldiers was a fine display. This was a preview of what our boys demonstrated to the Americans at Washington on July fourth, as part of that day's entertainment for them. There was also a talk on the beginnings of the Royal Military College which we visited later, given by Prof. G. F. G. Stanley, whose mother (it is thought) was probably a very close resident to Lachute as a young lady, and Prof. Stanley very kindly used his private car to transport delegates to the home of Prof. Lower at Collins Bay.

Wednesday was devoted to Walt Whitman, famous poet of the past, when we celebrated the 100th anniversary of his book of poems "Leaves of Grass" at Bon Echo. Bon Echo is situated at the junction of the Upper and Lower Mazinaw Lakes on Ontario Highway No. 41 — named for the Rock whose sheer granite face, a mile and a quarter long, rises some 350 feet above Mazinaw's lake, known for more than a century for its Algonquin pictographs and for its legends of lost Indian treasure caves — and dedicated to the democratic ideals of Walt Whitman in 1919 by Horace Traubel, Whitman's friend and biographer, and Flora Macdonald Denison, a pioneer Canadian suffragist, and mother of Merrill Denison. The latter has donated this property, some ten miles square of land and water embracing one of the most spectacular features of the Laurentian Shield, to the people of Canada for cultural and educational purposes, as a memorial to his mother and his late wife, with many prominent men on the committee, of which Gordon Cushing of Montreal is secretary-treasurer; this brings Bon Echo very close to us.

This beauty spot is almost midway between Toronto and Ottawa and half way between Lake Ontario and the Ottawa River. The Canadian Authors reached it by cutting north from the centre of Napance (with no time off to say "hello" to our old friends the Earls), by a tortuous winding road that led up and up, through channels cut in the rock in some places. The inscription to Whitman, which took two stone cutters from Aberdeen most of the summer of 1919 to chisel on the face of the rock, reads thus:

Old Walt
1819 - 1919
Dedicated to the democratic ideals of Walter Whitman
by Horace Traubel and Flora Macdonald

There are also three lines from Whitman's "Leaves of Grass":

"My foothold is tenon'd and mortised in granite,
I laugh at what you call dissolution.
And I know the amplitude of time."

This inscription is being kept clean of mosses such as grow on rocks of this sort.

Among the speakers of the afternoon were Mr. Merrill Denison; Dr. A. D. Black, leader of the New York Ethical Culture Society; Mr. A. E. McBride, president of the Grolier Society of Canada Ltd., and the well-known John Fisher, of the CBC.

A pleasing feature on Thursday morning was the address by Mrs. Evelyn Richardson of Shag Harbor Lighthouse, Nova Scotia, author of "We Keep a Light" and "Desired Haven", who with her husband and other relatives motored from Nova Scotia through parts of United States, and were motoring home through Quebec Province and possibly passed through Lachute, as they were crossing into Quebec via the Perley Bridge.

Another most interesting speaker was Miss Helen Creighton, who spends her days digging out old folk songs and legends of Nova Scotia and its neighboring Prince Edward Island, for the National Museum. She gave demonstrations on her recording machine of some of the songs, during her talk.

Among others met at this convention were Wallace Havelock Robb, of the famed "Abbey Dawn", and our Nancy Cleaver, of The Watchman.

The entire proceedings were a feast of beauty, intellectuality, old friendships renewed and new friendships formed.

Dog-Day Philosophy

IT IS EASY to be calm, collected and congenial after our trials have subsided, but give us the man who, like Kipling's paragon, can outsmile all tribulations.

We are laboring right now in a comfortable 75 degrees Fahrenheit, but we look back perspiringly at the past week of temperatures hovering in the 90's. That we survived and labored on with any degree of efficiency, is a matter to marvel at — not that we claim any personal triumph of endurance. There were many worse off than editors, typesetters and metal-casters — farmers making hay in the blazing sun; harried clerks in crowded stores; factory workers; road crews, etc. About the only fellows who really had it soft were the lifeguards and swimming instructors, who could cool off at will, submerging their fevered brows with occupational pecunity. But such jobs are one-in-a-thousand at a time like that.

The heat wave serves to remind us that we are creatures of circumstance, subject to discomforts of the elements both summer and winter, and at the mercy of all other hazards beyond human control. It behooves us therefore to make the best of it, control our tempers and preserve our equanimity — with consoling thoughts that things will improve, and that each new trial adds strength to our stature.

A Grave Dictum

JUST BEFORE he died last April, Albert Einstein signed along with eight other eminent scientists an appeal to world rulers for an end of war, lest mankind destroy itself with nuclear weapons.

Earl Russell, 83-year-old British philosopher-mathematician, better known as Bertrand Russell, who drew up the manifesto, announced the Einstein appeal before a large press conference at London on Saturday.

"No doubt in an H-bomb war great cities would be obliterated," the statement said.

"If everybody in London, New York and Moscow were exterminated, the world might, in the course of a few centuries, recover from the blow.

"But we know, especially since the Bikini test, that nuclear bombs can gradually spread destruction of a very much wider area than had been supposed."

The radioactivity from super-hydrogen weapons used in a war — sinking gradually to the earth in a deadly dust or rain — "might quite possibly put an end to the human race," it added.

The statement made no concrete proposals for outlawing war, leaving it to the governments to take action. Lord Russell suggested, however, that a world conference of scientists might study the group's declaration. It has been forwarded to the heads of government of the Big Four powers, plus Canada and Red China.

Swelter Sales

IN THE BIG retail market of Eastern Canada summer goods salesmen are smiling while they steam. Hot weather is moving off the retail shelves at an unprecedented pace — reports the Financial Post — and the certainty of hot weather ahead, promises to carry the early-season sales frenzy right through the summer.

Carbonated beverage sales volume is up 7½% over last year — May leading the way with a 14% jump; that was before the recent swelter session! A new development in the industry this summer is the widespread introduction of 10- and 26-oz. bottles by the major manufacturers. The new packaging is a reflection of the growing importance of take-home sales resulting in part from TV. . . . Ice cream sales, down during a comparatively cool summer last year, were up 17% in Ontario alone for the first five months this year. May sales were 20% ahead of May, 1954. Main reason for the jump has been the warm spring; and the subsequent heat wave must have rung the bell in sales records.

A Bouquet

WE CULL from one of our exchanges a bouquet to Premier Maurice Duplessis — mainly because his autonomy theme draws little but censure on this province and its government. Here's the other viewpoint, from an Ontario journal, "The Rural Scene", which regularly reaches our desk:

Ten provincial premiers and the Prime Minister of the Dominion met recently in Ottawa to plan an agenda for the Dominion—Provincial Conference to be held next fall. This latter conference is one that all Canadians should watch with concern.

Some of our provincial governments are looking for easier ways of raising revenue than by the direct taxation which the B.N.A. Act empowers them to collect; and are anxious to rid themselves of the necessity of collecting the money they so dearly love to spend.

Mr. Duplessis, alone among the assembled premiers, stood out for the sound principle that every government should collect the money it spends. He said:

"The essence of responsible government is the power and the responsibility of taxation. One government cannot accept tax money collected by another and still remain responsible and independent."

Our congratulations to Mr. Duplessis — concludes this tribute.

Agricultural Exhibitions in Britain

IN BRITAIN, they hold their biggest agricultural shows early in the summer. The Royal Agricultural Show was held early in July, and the Royal Highland Show for Scotland preceded it. As in Canada, the United Kingdom has smaller permanent shows in different regions.

But in Britain there's one big difference: the two main events are held in different places each year. Overseas farmers visiting Britain often express surprise that the top agricultural shows there are prepared to face the risks and expenses involved in moving from place to place, rather than staying in one permanent place.

The answer is that one of the main functions of the big shows is to bring the countryside to the city. This year the Royal show was at Nottingham, and the Royal Highland was at Edinburgh for the first time in 16 years.

England's Royal show has been running since 1839, and the Royal Highland since 1822. Yet these huge exhibitions are laboriously dismantled and rebuilt elsewhere, every year.

An expert, speaking on the British Broadcasting Corporation, estimated it costs about £160,000 to stage a Royal show in Britain. A whole township covering 150 acres or more has to be built, with its own light, water, telephones and all the amenities of a modern city.

The cattle are much the same, but the surroundings have changed considerably since the first British Royal show at Oxford in 1839. In that year, one exhibitor entered cattle from his Durham farm. They were walked to Middlesbrough, shipped to London, then taken by canal barge to Aylesbury, and finally walked 23 miles to the Oxford showground.

As in Canada, farm machinery each year is taking more space at the British shows. But one thing never changes: the universal appeal to both farmer and townsman of the traditional grand parade of the champions.

WE LIKE to think of Canada today as a strong young child standing on the threshold of life. Our education is by no means complete, we have a great deal to learn about dealing with other nations and managing our own business, but we do not tire easily and no job looks too big.

HOW THEY LOVE THAT BIRD

• Geoff's Journal •

"Nothing Could Be Simpler"

"Nothing," said the camp director at breakfast last Sunday, "nothing at all could be simpler!"

"Maybe for you," the boating supervisor cut in, "but not for me!"

The handicraft expert who, up till now, had eaten his breakfast in silence, laid down his cutlery and entered the fray.

"I must confess," he remarked, "that the whole issue has me so utterly confused now that I'm not sure whether I'm on Standard Time, Daylight, or Double British-Zone-of-Germany Summer-Time. Would you mind running through the routine again, please?"

"Certainly," the C.D. beamed.

We all sat up in our chairs, eager to catch her every word and hear the whole matter lucidly explained.

"Every day, the rising siren sounds at 7.00, and breakfast is at eight. Right?"

"Right," we chorused as one.

"Breakfast, lunch, and supper are at the same times every day, Sundays excepted. Correct?"

"Correct as all get out!"

"Well, then," the C.D. continued, preparing to expound her theory, "on Sunday, the siren sounds one hour later — at 8.00 instead of seven — and breakfast begins at 9.00 o'clock."

"That's true," the camp nurse chimed in, "provided you hear the first siren and get up in time to sound the second one."

"Quite so! Now, in order to bring the day out right in the end — so that the children can get to bed at the same time as on weekdays — lunch is set half an hour later than usual and supper is scheduled for the same hour as on other days. Do you follow me?"

"Vaguely," chirped the games instructor.

"Today, of course," the good lady continued, "things are a bit confused owing to the fact that we are back on Daylinght Saving time. You all changed your watches, naturally?"

"Not me," I said. "Nobody said anything about it to me. I wondered why the kids were pestering me for a dip at 9.00 a.m. instead of seven or eight. And as a matter of interest, why did we switch to Daylight Saving time after a few days of Standard, or conversely, why did we ever bother changing back to Standard Time in the first place?"

"Well actually," Miss M. replied, "I thought we might have an easier time getting the young ones to bed if we were on Standard instead of Daylight."

"Didn't work out, eh?" murmured the boating boy.

"Unfortunately, no," the headquarters girl said wearily. "The little blighters got up at 4.30 instead of 5.30 and all wanted their breakfasts before six."

"Fine," said the senior counsellor. "But where is the confusion? I don't see where there's any confusion at all."

"Actually there isn't any," C.D. replied, "except for the fact that for this Sunday at least we're an hour ahead of ourselves and with breakfast being an hour later than usual, we're actually two hours ahead of ourselves for breakfast compared with, say, yesterday — or the day before — when we were back on Standard Time. At dinner time, we'll only be an hour and a half ahead of ourselves in comparison, and by supper time, we'll just be an hour ahead."

"Only one hour ahead?" the nurse ventured.

"In comparison with yesterday, that is. By today's standards, and with the time readjusted, we won't be ahead at all, don't you see?"

"Frankly no," said handicrafts.

"But it's so simple. Nothing could be simpler," the director commented. "Let's look at it this way . . ."

Luckily, she never did get to continue the explanation. Before she could begin, some delightful little child was violently ill at an adjoining table, and Miss M. dashed off to supervise the matter. In the resulting confusion we of the staff made our escape.

Help Wanted

I have been reading the classified section of the newspapers lately, and I am impressed by the large number of help wanted advertisements. Jobs seem very plentiful compared to the days of my youth. I wondered what kind of a response advertisers were getting. I found out yesterday.

A business friend had advertised in Winnipeg papers for office help. He asked me to go over the applications with him to help make a selection. I learned a great deal about job-hunting in the process. I'd like to pass some hints along to young readers who may be looking for their first job.

Some candidates ruled themselves out in the first few sentences by careless spelling. Others neglected telling about their qualifications. Very few took pains to assure the advertiser that he would gain anything by employing them; they were too busy telling the advertiser the kind of hours and wages they wanted. His interests seemed to be secondary in their opinion. But one little girl won herself the job (and it is a good job) by adding this final paragraph to her application:

"I don't guarantee that I won't make mistakes — but I do promise that I will work hard at any task you set before me. It will be my first job, and I am keen to make a big success of it. My plan is to work so hard you'll never want to be without my services."

Yes, there are lots of jobs; but I am afraid there aren't enough applicants with that spirit. The rare few who do possess it will rise high in any free country where energy and enterprise are valued. They just can't miss!

Canada's output of pulp and paper exceeds in value the total annual production of wheat and all other grains combined; it equals the national annual mineral production including precious metals, base metals, iron ore, petroleum, asbestos, and coal; and it is half again as great as the value of the automobile industry's output. Pulp and paper is Canada's one outstanding industry.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Remember when old people were respected for their wisdom, and even people in their 30's, 40's and 50's were given credit for having a brain?

That was before the machine age turned the tables on the generations. Now, sons are wiser than their fathers.

Many a father's prestige vanishes in exhaust smoke when his teen-aged son starts a car with a flick of the wrist after daddy has wrestled vainly with the thing for half an hour.

From that moment, daddy loses his position as head of the household, and the boy takes over. The old man's claim to wisdom is some hard-grained but none too reliable knowledge about people. The boy isn't even interested in people, but he already knows a lot about machines, which are more important in the modern world.

At an age when the earlier generation was still frittering away down lovers' lane or in the swimming pool, serious modern lads have already learned to pull a car to pieces and reassemble it into two cars, both of them better than the original.

Of course there are mechanical fathers and feckless boys in the world. But in general, the boys are handier with machines than their fathers were. They have more chance to buy old cars for a few dollars and fix them up.

You may think this lopsided situation will right itself when the boys of this generation become fathers in their turn. No smart-alec youngsters will be able to outshine them, eh? Don't kid yourself.

Science moves so fast that the older generation will always be a lap behind. While daddy of the future fumbles with an old-fashioned automobile, his son will be assembling a rocket ship in the basement.

Wheat Hopes Dashed

Hopes that American farmers would return to normal production and marketing of wheat were dashed by the special vote taken in the United States the other day, says The Financial Post. By a substantial majority U.S. growers endorsed Santa Claus and decided to retain the present system of government acreage curbs and high support prices.

This is not good news for Canada or for the U.S. taxpayer. A continuance of present wheat policy will probably mean a continuance of heavy surpluses and heavily subsidized exports.

In theory, official curbs on acreages should slow production. In practice, however, almost the opposite is true. Knowing that they are guaranteed an artificially high price, farmers use only their very best land and grow as much wheat as possible. As a result, in spite of the curb on total acreage, the yield per acre is so high that the crop resulting may be, and often is, larger than from a normal acreage.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Christian Church Must Press for Abolition of War

"This is the time when we must show evidence of a greater and deeper loyalty and intensity to our religion, if we are to make any impact on the world of today. Much of our ineffectiveness was due to the fact that too few professing Christians were prepared to stand firm for their faith." This was the opinion given by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, in a sermon preached last Sunday morning in the Lachute United Church. He went on to say that we had reached the stage where some people were prepared to submit to anything, and called it toleration.

Toleration as he understood it, meant the liberty given to a minority to hold and express their own political or religious opinions, and to be admitted to the same civil privileges as the majority; but it did not mean the sacrifice of one's principles.

It was so easy to talk about being tolerant, when in many cases it meant nothing more or less than shallowness, lack of principle and absence of backbone. What we needed in civic and religious life was more men with the courage of their convictions — men who would stand for what they knew to be right even though the heavens might fall and they had to stand alone.

The worst act of humanity ever carried out by man against his brother man was planned and executed by Christian nations in the bombing of Hiroshima. It was imperative that every branch of the Christian Church should press for the abolition of war; otherwise, as Professor Einstein had reminded us in one of his last writings, mankind would perish from the earth".

Protestant Action Editor To Preach Sunday At East Settlement

The Rev. W. Whitcombe, M.A., editor of the Protestant Actior magazine and pastor of the Scarboro and Vivian (Ont.) Baptist Churches, will be guest speaker at East Settlement United Church on Sunday morning.

Mr. Whitcombe was associated with the Rev. Dr. Shields, of Jarvis Baptist Church, for many years; he worked in the French regions of Northern Ontario for some time, and has been very active in proclaiming the Protestant faith.

Last Sunday, he spoke before an audience of 9,000 at Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, during the Orange celebration.

Former Cushing Pastor To Montreal Church

The United Church of Granby, Que., has accepted with considerable regret the resignation of its minister, Rev. A. G. Moore, B.A., B.D. . . . The Rev. Mr. Moore was preacher at St. Mungo's, Cushing, and in the surrounding pastorate, before going to Granby.

Mr. Moore has now accepted a call from St. Luke's United Church, Montreal, his new duties to begin after August 31. This opening was created by the transfer of Rev. Ralph Spencer to Ontario.

Congregational Meeting On Mille Isles Building

Mille Isles — A congregational meeting was held at Christ Church, Mille Isles, on Monday evening, the Rev. Horace Baugh presiding.

Plans for the new church and hall were discussed, and it was agreed to go ahead with the architect's plans as soon as approval from the Bishop was received. The building, designed on modernistic lines, is estimated to cost $25,000 without furnishings. The church hall will be connected with the church, and may be used by opening the folding doors to enlarge the seating capacity of the church. The church proper would seat 100 persons, and by using the combined facilities for special occasions, 216 could be accommodated.

Mr. Duncan Dawson was appointed treasurer of the Building Fund, and donations may be sent to his address at Mille Isles; a number of persons present signified their readiness to contribute generously and a committee was chosen to canvass the district.

The rector praised the people for the excellent spirit they were showing towards this great undertaking.

Fashion Show Planned by Cancer Group

Plans for a colorful Fashion Show, to be held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club on August 19, were drawn up at a meeting July 4 by the Ladies' Branch of the Argenteuil County Cancer Society.

Mrs. Leonard Ayers, president of the Branch, announced that the event would be under the patronage of the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, and that funds from the show would be used to equip the new workroom in Lachute with supplies to assist in the fight against Cancer in this county.

The fashion show is being generously donated by Henry Morgan Company Limited. Donations of door prizes and other features by local firms will also add interest.

A list of the committee in charge from whom tickets may be obtained will appear in next week's Watchman.

Lachute Couple Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Hammond, of Lachute, were the guests of their family at a reception, held at the residence of their eldest daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Pearson, Montreal, on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond were married in Montreal on July 12, 1905, by Canon Osborne Troop.

Mrs. Hammond (the former Miss Letts) was born in London, England, in 1885, coming to Montreal with her parents in 1901. Mr. Hammond was born in Montreal in 1879.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

What was the name of Moses' father-in-law who met him in the wilderness and gave him wise advice about delegating part of his work?

Moses, when he heard he was coming, went out to meet him. They asked each other of their welfare and went into a tent. Then Moses related how the Lord had delivered the Israelites from the bondage of the Egyptians. His father-in-law answered, "Now I know that the Lord is greater than all gods." He offered burnt offerings and sacrifices to God.

The next day, the father-in-law watched Moses sitting all day long settling disputes of the people. Moses made known to each man and his neighbor, in turn, the statutes of God and his decisions.

But the father-in-law, at the end of the day, pointed out that Moses was carrying a burden too heavy for him to perform alone. He said to Moses, "Listen now to my voice: I will give you counsel and God be with you. You shall represent the people before God and bring their cases to Him. You shall teach them what they should do. All great matters shall be brought to you.

"But choose able men who fear God, men who are trustworthy and hate a bribe, and place these men as rulers over thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens. Let them judge at all times. So it will be easier for you."

Moses heeded the voice of his father-in-law and carried out this suggestion. Then his father-in-law departed from Moses and started on the journey back to his own country.

You will find this man's name and read this story in the 18th Chapter of Exodus.

Missionary's Fame Comes Post-Humously

Anna Gaudin, top, a former Methodist missionary, lived and died in her church's service without fame. Recognition comes now, 15 years after her death, in the form of a book written by Mrs. Nan Shipley, above, a Winnipeg authoress. In her book, "Anna and the Indians," Mrs. Shipley tells of the 39 years Mrs. Gaudin, a nurse, and her doctor husband spent in the wilds of northern Manitoba, travelling incredible distances by foot and dog team to bring medical assistance to the Cree Indians.

Fashion Show Planned by Cancer Group

Plans for a colorful Fashion Show, to be held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club on August 19, were drawn up at a meeting July 4 by the Ladies' Branch of the Argenteuil County Cancer Society.

Mrs. Leonard Ayers, president of the Branch, announced that the event would be under the patronage of the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, and that funds from the show would be used to equip the new workroom in Lachute with supplies to assist in the fight against Cancer in this county.

The fashion show is being generously donated by Henry Morgan Company Limited. Donations of door prizes and other features by local firms will also add interest.

A list of the committee in charge from whom tickets may be obtained will appear in next week's Watchman.

Lachute Couple Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Hammond, of Lachute, were the guests of their family at a reception, held at the residence of their eldest daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Pearson, Montreal, on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond were married in Montreal on July 12, 1905, by Canon Osborne Troop.

Mrs. Hammond (the former Miss Letts) was born in London, England, in 1885, coming to Montreal with her parents in 1901. Mr. Hammond was born in Montreal in 1879.

All the family were present at the reception — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hammond, Ste. Rose; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Buchanan (Julia), Quebec City; S/L S. A. Hammond and Mrs. Hammond, St. Thomas, Ont.; Mr. W. Ross Hammond, Los Angeles, Cal.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. W. Jennings, St. Thomas, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Letts, Longueuil, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Letts, St. Lambert, Que.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond had seven children. Two sons were killed on active service in the last war, in the RAF and the RCAF. They also have nine grandchildren.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

July 16, 1880 —

The work is being pushed rapidly forward on the rope factory by Mr. Bannerman and Co.

A primary school is spoken of in the neighborhood of Lachute Mills.

Mr. Fish has set a man to work to repaint his bridge across the North River, as well as make other repairs.

A watchman's control clock is among the new things at the mills.

The council of this municipality have become thoroughly fossilized. At the meeting held at the Court House yesterday, they took no less than an hour to discuss a matter which might easily have been settled in three minutes. To use an old form of expression, the Council of Lachute "are too slow to go to a funeral."

On Wednesday evening, Mr. Walker, of this village, was fortunate enough whilst fishing in the North River to capture a splendid pike weighing about 12 pounds.

50 YEARS AGO

July 14, 1905

The young people of the West End had an enjoyable hay-cart drive last evening and were afterwards entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. King.

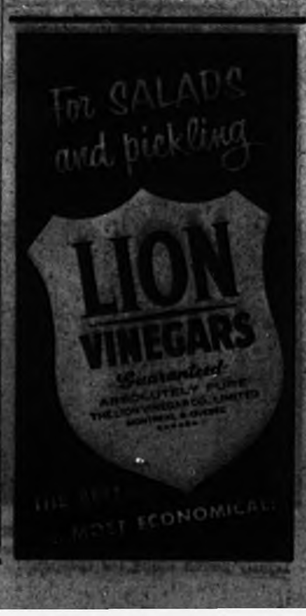

On Saturday last, while playing along the logs in the West River, a son of Mr. F. Meunier was almost drowned; when rescued, the lad was unconscious. Mr. Beers and other willing hands rolled the boy for some 20 minutes and succeeded in bringing him around.

25 YEARS AGO

July 18, 1930 —

While information was brought to The Watchman last week of the possible entry of a third candidate in the political field by the appearance of Notary Z. N. Raymond, who signified his intention to run as a straight Liberal, claiming that much pressure had been brought upon him by the electors of both parties to contest the county in the present fight, we now learn from a reliable source that the contest will be confined to Sir George Perley and L. L. Legault.

Mrs. G. H. Staniforth spent a few days in Gatineau Mills, Que., as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Drysdale.

Miss Frances Hooper, nurse-in-training at the Montreal General Hospital, is spending several days with her parents in Lachute.

Mr. Frank Boyd is spending several weeks' vacation with friends in the 1,000 Islands area.

Awarded Scholarship

Kenneth Trickey, presently with the Army Chaplain Corps at Esquimalt, B.C., has received word from McGill that he has been awarded the W. M. Birks Entrance Scholarship, and he will resume his university studies entering the faculty of Divinity, next September. Kenneth received his B.A. degree in June. . . This Divinity scholarship is awarded to the "student adjudged the best scholar."

Passed Exams in Dental Surgery

D. Peter McGibbon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McGibbon, Pine Hill, was one of 14 candidates from the Quebec area to have passed recent Dominion board licensing examinations and is now qualified to practise as a doctor of dental surgery (DDS). Successful candidates were announced this week by the National Dental Examining Board of Canada.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Elliott and son, Rodney, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sutton and daughter, Verda, spent a few days vacationing in Sault Ste. Marie, Detroit and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Duncan and family, of Truro, N.S., have been spending a two weeks' holiday with Mrs. Duncan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Linton Armstrong.

Visiting After Absence Of 43 Years

Mr. William Guthrie, of Duluth, Minnesota, a former resident in these parts, is visiting his sister, Mrs. W. J. (Fletcher) MacRae, in Brownsburg. After an absence of 43 years, it is understandable this visitor finds many radical changes in his former surroundings.

Former Lachute Boy Directing Drama Festival At Kingsmere, Ottawa

Friends here note with pleasure that Eugene Jousse — former local resident and a dramatist of considerable repute — is directing and producing six plays in the Arts Festival at Ottawa, a cultural enterprise which is attracting large audiences to the estate of the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King, bequeathed to the people of Canada for their enjoyment.

Mr. Jousse is a former Lachute Academy pupil who has followed dramatics as an avocation for many years. His family have many old friends in these parts.

Military Whist Event At Lakefield

The first military whist drive to be held in Lakefield this summer took place last Wednesday evening at the Gibb Hall, under the auspices of the Trinity Woman's Auxiliary. Prize winners were as follows:

Second: Mrs. F. Alderson, (captain), Mr. F. Alderson, Mrs. A. Trickey, Mrs. T. Farrow.

Booby Prize: Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh (captain), Mrs. E. Barrie, Mrs. E. Morrow, Mrs. T. McCambry.

Novelty Prize: (ladies): Mrs. F. Tibbins.

Girl Guides Enjoyed Week Under Canvas

Twenty-two Girl Guides from Brownsburg, Grenville and Lachute, and four Leaders, returned home Saturday after spending a week in camp at Dunany. The group were encamped in eight tents, with a canvas roof over their kitchen quarters, and enjoyed such comfort and facilities as could reasonably be expected. The general verdict was one of keen enjoyment among those who took part.

The Leaders take this occasion to thank all who assisted in this venture, by loaning equipment, providing transportation, and aiding in the establishment and repacking of the camp.

Miss Margaret Doig, student nurse of the Royal Victoria Hospital, returned home after spending a week of her vacation visiting friends in Toronto and Niagara.

M.D. Resumes Practice

Dr. Jules Lafleur, who has been absent from his duties latterly, due to ill health, wishes to advise the public that he has resumed his practice and will be in attendance at his office at the usual hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Clark will travel to Europe this summer as delegates to the International series of conventions sponsored by Jehovah's Witnesses. They are sailing on the Arosa Star from Quebec City today, July 14. In Europe they will visit London, Paris, Rome, Nuremburg and Stockholm, where assemblies will be held. Special travel arrangements have been made by the world headquarters staff of Jehovah's Witnesses in New York for over 4,500 persons from the United States and Canada. Many delegates will stay in the homes of Jehovah's Witnesses and their friends in the countries they visit, as part of the program of Christian unity being conducted by the Witnesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark are also planning on visiting Switzerland, and relatives in England and Norway.

Miss Judy Drysdale left for her home in Gatineau Mills on Saturday after spending two weeks with her aunt, Miss M. C. James.

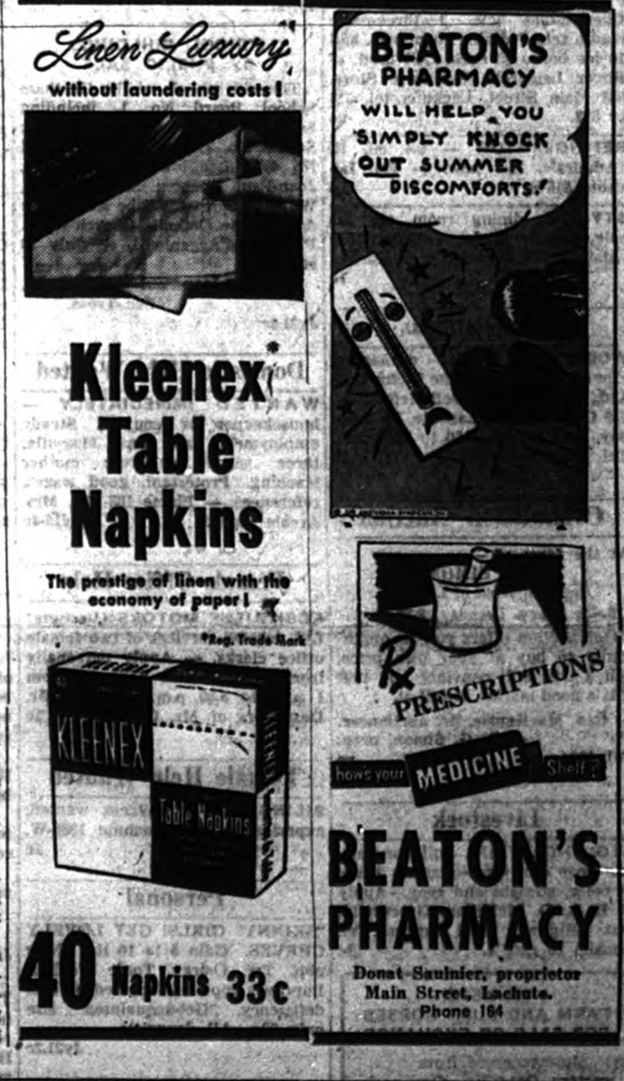

Mrs. Campbell Munroe and children, Ray and Bonnie, of Belleville, are spending some time with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. G. MacRae, at Lake Louisa. Mr. Munroe has joined his family here on week-ends.

The Misses Shirley MacGeorge, Jean MacKimmie, Jean McOuat, June Pollock and Heather Jones left Saturday for the United Church girls' summer resort, Camp McCaulay, where they will act as counsellors for a one-month period.

Traffic Officer Howard Jones spent 10 days in Morin Heights on police duties during the recent Centennial observances, July 1-10.

Christening Ceremony In Northern Parish

On Sunday afternoon at St. John's Church, New Glasgow, the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Jones were baptized, receiving the names Geraldine Agnes, Robert John Paul and Stewart William. The Rev. H. G. Baugh officiated.

FIRST MAN TO CONQUER JUAN DE FUCA

—Central Press Canadian

First person to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca, Bert Thomas of Tacoma, Wash., is cheered by his wife and daughter at the end of the 18-mile, 11-hour contest with tides and currents. The final mile took two hours. It was his fifth attempt to conquer the strait, which he swam from Port Angeles, Wash., to Victoria, B.C.

This is the month of the black bass. Mention July at any time of the year to hundreds of thousands of anglers and they will think immediately of bass fishing. Perhaps this is not so surprising. First off, July is the month when they are generally in season everywhere after the spawning period and July is also the first important vacation month. Possible too, because no other game fish is so widely distributed as are the large and small mouth bass and of course, bass, especially the small mouth variety are unquestionably weight for weight and size for size, one of — if not the sportiest of all the fresh water game fishes.

World's Record, 10 lbs. 8 ozs.

Generally speaking, the average weight of the small-mouth runs from about a pound and a half to just over two pounds. A seven pounder and some are reported every year, will win prizes in most fishing contests. The world's record small-mouth caught on rod and reel tipped the scales at 10 lbs. 8 ozs. and was caught in 1950 at Wheeler Dam, Alabama by a fellow with a common enough name (Smith), although he netted a bass of uncommon proportions. Length of this monster was 22½", almost as fat around the middle as it was long — 21½" around the girth. It has been claimed by some authorities that the warmer waters of the 'old south suh' stimulate piscatorial growth. I don't know as much about this, remembering a small mouth bass weighing nine pounds two ounces that was taken from Macauley Lake in Nipissing County, Ontario.

There's A Difference

The small mouth has a close relative in the large mouth bass and this causes some confusion although it shouldn't as there is no real problem of identity. The large mouth has a robust, deep body with a large head and mouth. Also has numerous small teeth on the jaws and roof of the mouth, which extends to below the eye. Then, too, there are three stiff spines on the front of the anal fin and the spines of the dorsal fin are short and of a more uniform length than those of the small mouth. Honest fellows, although this sounds complicated, you don't have to get yourself bitten or g____d by a bass to tell the difference between small and large mouthed. The markings of the fish are different too, but both markings and coloring of either species can vary according to environment. Fish from large weedy lakes are mostly pale green. Fish from smaller waters of inland lakes may be almost dark brown.

Guide to Inland Sport Fishes

Worth a place in any angler's library or information files is the June 27 issue of Life Magazine, which contains a section of top-notch color illustrations, covering some sixty of the best known fresh water game fishes of this continent, together with the appropriate descriptive comment. This is a really authoritative piece of reporting on what is recognized as North America's most popular outdoor sport, and should settle many a doubt and argument — like "When is a pickerel?" and "What is a wall-eye?"

Back to the Small-Mouth

W. B. Scott, long recognized as one of the country's greatest experts on fresh water game fish, has this to say about the small mouth. "It is the most popular game fish to the average Eastern Canadian sportsman because of its superb fighting qualities, its preference for shallow water and its readiness to strike at a bait or lure throughout the summer months." Incidentally, there's hardly a bait or lure refused by the bass. He's fond of minnows, crayfish, water leeches, grasshoppers and worms. He'll strike at spinners, plugs, spoons as used by the bait-caster, at bugs and streamer flies of the fly-caster, and at almost any of the spinning baits. Bass even have been known to hit a minnow-shaped piece of bologna taken from a dried-out sandwich by an angler who had run short of other baits! Or maybe tired of cold cuts!

Now, here is a recipe for hot summer days. Fill a playpool with water, reduce apparel to zero and just hop in, taking the family pooch along for company.

Brownsburg Bows To Fassett Team

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The local baseball team found out for sure — that with a little adverse luck they can be beaten. On Sunday they had a nightmare sixth inning which cost them the ball game.

Ronald Cousineau gave up one run on six hits in eight of the innings, but in the sixth he lost his stuff and Fassett pounded him for eight hits, four of them doubles. He walked one batter and struck out six in an almost brilliant performance.

The offensive was almost as good as usual, but they put their hits together badly and accumulated only six runs on thirteen hits. Yves Raymond picked up four hits, but was stranded each time. Four others were left on base. André Ouellette hit a home-run with one on.

This week the boys are away, and it's to be hoped that they'll play their usual fine baseball for the regulation nine instead of eight innings.

Next Tuesday, the Ayers club plays host to Brownsburg, and on Thursday Ayers will meet the Rigaud color-bearers once again, this time on the Rigaud courts.

Colford Lodge Trims St. Martin in Thriller

Jacques Leveillé had a big day for Colford's, getting four hits and also playing a great game in the field. Jacques Paul crossed the slate with the winning run.

Next Sunday Colford Lodge will play host to Vankleek Hill; game time, 2 p.m.

New Feminine Star For Golfing Firmament

SPORTS CAMERA
By Jim Peacock,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An attractive young University of Alberta co-ed is apparently coming into her own after four years of in-the-shadow play in Canadian women's golf.

Rae Milligan, 21-year-old miss from Jasper, has four times been Alberta's women's champion, but thus far national titles have eluded her. She has placed well up the list in her three tries at the Canadian crown, but here efforts have gone largely unnoticed outside Alberta.

A prime reason for this has been the spectacular play of another 21-year-old who rocked the country four years ago by sweeping the Canadian close and open titles when she was only 17.

Marlene Stewart, the freckle-faced youngster from Fonthill, Ont., who has twice won the Canadian open, once the British open and four times the Canadian closed, has held the women's golf limelight since 1951 and deservedly so.

Golfer from Childhood

But Miss Milligan's determined climb has already shown signs this year of paying bigger dividends.

The soft-spoken Physical Education student, who has been golfing since she was nine years old, went east a few weeks ago and already has stolen the headlines a number of times with outstanding performances.

Rae started golfing at Jasper 12 years ago when her father trimmed down the handle of a driver and shaved the clubhead to size. By the time she was 14, she had played in her first tourhament and three years later she took the Alberta crown, which she has held since.

This year in the east, she first aroused interest with a record 71 — three under par — over the Burlington Golf Club course, near Hamilton, in a tune-up for the Ontario women's championship.

Her uncanny accuracy won her more acclaim in the first round of the competition when she won handily and scored a double eagle in the process. Rae holed out a 210-yard fairway shot for a two on a par-five hole.

And the crowning achievement came in the second round, in which she ousted Marlene Stewart 2 to 1 with a steady, sub-par round that Marlene couldn't match.

Marlene (who is an Alberta native, too, being born in Cereal, Alta.; she moved to Ontario when she was six) has time to settle back to her championship form before the Canadian championships come up at Victoria in August.

The Ontario tourney marked her second competitive appearance since she injured a hand in a plane crash near Toronto last winter and a little more activity is almost certain to bring her closer to the form she has been accustomed to.

But Miss Milligan has improved considerably since a year ago when she was knocked out of the Canadian Open by Miss Stewart in the fourth round at Dartmouth, N.S., and you can expect to be hearing a lot more about her golfing exploits.

"Fishing is simplicity itself," explains a lucky one. "All you have to do is get there yesterday when the fish were biting."

Harness Events Resumed At Rigaud Park

After a week of inactivity, the harness races at Rigaud Park will resume this Sunday, July 17. A full program has been arranged including four classes and a "free-for-all". The track has been improved and all can be assured of an excellent program.

The best horseflesh of the region — owned by Stephens and Shepard, of Vankleek Hill and Alexandria, Courchesne of Valleyfield, Filion of Angers, the Joly's of Lachute, Larocque of Caledonia Springs, and others — will be in competition with horses from the top Montreal and Ottawa tracks; officials state that horses are coming from Blue Bonnets and Connaught Park for the Sunday races.

In addition to the races, there are four attendance prizes to be awarded to bingo winners.

CURRENT SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Commercial Television In Great Britain

On September 22 the first independent commercial television station in Britain will start transmitting its programs. It is being built in Croydon, a suburb of London, and will serve an area in which about 10 million people live. By March, 1956, two other commercial stations will open, in the Midlands and in Lancashire.

These three stations will bring almost 60% of the total population of the United Kingdom within reach. After that, stations will be opened at the rate of about one a year. Virtually all the people in Britain can be reached by 14 or 15 stations.

Responsible for Britain's new commercial television service is the Independent Television Authority, set up by an Act of Parliament, which has a statutory life of 10 years. Under this Act ITA will not have to produce programs. Its main functions are to own and operate transmitting stations. The programs will be supplied by privately financed companies known as "program contractors", which will work under long contracts with OTA. These private companies have to equip themselves with all the facilities they need to put on their own shows, but OTA will keep a careful watch over the programs it transmits and will make sure that they maintain a proper balance and preserve good taste. ITA will require the companies to provide varied entertainment, and will make sure they do not specialize in any one type of program.

News programs will be dealt with by a private specialist organization, the Independent Television News Limited. This organization will supply news broadcasts to the private companies, all of which are represented on the Board of the news company. ITA must see to it that all news and political matters broadcast are accurate and impartial.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

There's a lot of "ham" in all of us even if we're not members of "the show must go on" profession — and the next best thing to performing in a show is watching one. Seats down front on the aisle are already reserved for the nation's motoring public at the "greatest show on earth" — Canada's summertime folkways, festivals and pageants.

Nearly every province stages an annual out-of-doors extravaganza to commemorate an important date in history, ethnic traditions or Indian ceremonials. For example, a celebration with a western flair is Calgary, Alberta's famous Stampede, July 11-16. At this picturesque event, cowboys and Indians gather for bronc-busting, bulldogging and steer-tying exhibitions and during the week following, the Banff Indian Days festivities will be held July 21 to 24.

The Governor-General of Canada, His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, visited Saskatchewan for four days, May 13 to 16, during the Province's Golden Jubilee when he officially opened the new Saskatchewan Museum of Natural History at Regina.

The Acadian sections of Nova Scotia will see their greatest celebration this year, as villages throughout Yarmouth, Clare and other counties join in ceremonies marking the anniversary of the expulsion of the Acadians from the Land of Evangeline. The program is attracting international attention.

Then there are such standout events such as the Stratford Shakespearean Festival (the plays — "Julius Caesar", "Merchant of Venice" and "Oedipus Rex"), June 27 to August 27; Prince Edward Island Provincial Exhibition, August 15 to 20; Quebec Provincial Exhibition, September 2 to 11; Shediac Lobster Festival, August 12 to 16; All-Newfoundland Exhibition in September and the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver, August 24 to September 5.

These special events are just one facet of Canada's travel charm. There are exciting motor tours through scenic country, high adventure with a "foreign" flavor in French-Canada, scenic thrills in the mountains, of the West, sunny beaches on the Atlantic seaboard, fishing trips through lakelands and low-cost camping trips in our scenic National Parks!

Then there are cities like Montreal, with its Cosmopolitan appeal and fine restaurants; Quebec, the only walled city in North America; Victoria and its British atmosphere; Vancouver and its harbor, Edmonton and its oil; Regina, with its white-walled legislative buildings; Winnipeg and its attractive public parks; Toronto and its new subway; Fredericton and its tree-lined streets; Halifax and its intriguing waterfront; Saint John with its superb port facilities; Charlottetown and its unhurried pace and St. John's, capital of Newfoundland, first claimed by John Cabot in 1497. Ottawa, Canada's National Capital, is attracting more and more visitors. The Peace Tower is Ottawa's most striking landmark.

U.K. Students for Canadian Universities

Students from Britain are to be helped to take courses at Canadian universities, according to a memorandum issued in June by the British Ministry of Education.

The scheme is operated by the Canadian and British Education Committee in conjunction with a number of Canadian universities, including McGill, the University of British Columbia, and the Universi', of Toronto. These universities are prepared to welcome students from the U.K. and reserve places for students sponsored by the Committee.

Although the British Treasury restricts the transfer of funds to Canada, it has been agreed to allow students sponsored by the Committee to transfer the sterling equivalent of $1,750 in the first year and $1,500 in each succeeding year for three or four years. This is sufficient to cover fees and all living expenses at the university. It is also expected that by working during the four-month summer vacation a student may earn his keep and perhaps save something towards next year's expenses.

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

Ice Cream

Of all the good things to eat, there is nothing that gives so much obvious pleasure as ice cream. The home economists of the Consumer Section tell us that despite the large amount of cream, milk and other nutrients in ice cream, it is only since August 1946 that it has been classed as a food in Canadian Food Regulations. At that time, after a considerable amount of research it was proved that ice cream could qualify as a good dietary source of important nutrition essentials and because of this ice cream became recognized as a food rather than a "frozen compound" which it was formerly called.

It is no accident that the ice cream sold in Canadian stores and milk bars always tastes so good and is so pure and clean. The standards of composition for ice cream and sherbet are included in Canadian Food Regulations along with the standards for other foods. These regulations are strictly controlled by Government Inspectors who pay particular attention to all dairy products.

Even the size and the labelling of ice cream packages is controlled so that the consumer will know exactly what and how much she is buying. Small containers such as dixie cups must show how much they contain, that is, the number of fluid ounces. Packages containing five fluid ounces or more of ice cream or sherbet will be marked one-quarter pint, or one quart or one-half gallon, whatever the case may be. It should be kept in mind that this is Imperial measure — in other words a pint of ice cream will contain 20 fluid ounces or 2½ cups and a quart will have 40 ounces or 5 cups. The name and address of the manufacturer also must be shown on the label.

Old fashioned home-made ice cream is generally made from a cooked custard base with cream and milk added before it is frozen. This type of ice cream is usually quite a lot richer than most of the ice cream we buy and those made from the packaged ice cream bases available in the shops.

Commercial ice cream is made from what is called an ice cream mix which consists of cream and milk, sweetening, flavoring and a stabilizer such as gelatine. The use of a stabilizer ensures smaller ice crystals and a smoother texture and it also helps to keep the ice cream from melting as quickly as it otherwise might.

The mix may contain eggs, cocoa, or chocolate and certain food colorings. Fruits, nuts or candy when used in ice cream are added during freezing. The percentages of milk fat, food solids and stabilizers which may be used in ice cream are specified in Canadian Food Regulations. There must be at least ten percent milk fat in ice cream and no other fat than that of milk may be used in making ice cream or sherbet.

Sherbet contains milk solids, sugar, citric acid, water, flavoring and stabilizer. The milk fat content of sherbet is much lower than that of ice cream — in sherbet there cannot be more than five percent of milk solids and this includes the milk fat.

Last year Canadians enjoyed more than 28.6 million gallons of ice cream or almost two gallons for each person or allowing one-half of a cup per serving, it comes to nearly 80 servings each. That is a lot of ice cream and knowing how popular it is the Consumer Section has sent us some suggestions for using it in summertime desserts.

Baked Alaska is a particularly fascinating dessert because it is difficult to believe that ice cream can be baked. It is generally made from cake and firm ice cream covered with a thick layer of meringue and baked in a very hot oven just until browned. The cake and meringue act as insulation against the heat and they keep the ice cream from melting during the two or three minutes it is baking.

Individual Baked Alaskas can be made by using any of the following as a base: cake slices, tart shells, scooped-out cup cakes or maryanns, half cantaloupe or other fruit. Baked Alaska pie is made in the same way as other baked Alaska but pie crust takes the place of the cake. The pie crust should be thicker than for ordinary pies and is generally a fancy crust such as chocolate or graham wafer crust.

Ice cream may be combined with cake and fruit or sauce to make ice cream sandwiches, shortbread, ice cream layer cake and ice cream roll which is made the same as a jelly roll, then chilled. It also is good used as filling for cream puffs, chocolate eclairs, meringue shells and waffles, accompanied by fresh fruit or a sauce.

The slick surface of wet asphalt roadways has sent many a motorist limping to the garage with battered fenders and shattered headlamps. But now research engineers have come up with something that sharply reduces this accident hazard. When their special aluminum oxide abrasive is applied to the road surface, it cuts down by more than 30% the stopping distance of your car when you apply the brakes at 30 m.p.h.

...So in addition to saving weight and work in a thousand everyday and special applications, aluminum may prove a major factor in saving lives, too.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

We were discussing the amount of milk that should be taken by every member of the family.

"From 3 to 4 cups of milk for children through adolescence and 2 cups a day for adults is the amount required for good health," I told the chef.

"Do most North Americans use these quantities, Madame?" he asked.

"No, chef; partly because of the expense, partly because many don't like to drink milk."

"This idea of expense is merely an alibi, however. Milk is available in several forms, of varying prices. For instance, evaporated milk, reconstituted with an equal amount of water, is equivalent to fresh milk in nutritive values. Baby formulas are often based on evaporated milk. It can be used by persons of all ages."

"I understand the nutritive values of milk are not affected by cooking, Madame. Therefore, is it not permissible for part of the day's quota of milk to be added to cooking foods?"

Three Ways

"Yes, indeed. For our dinner, let's plan a menu containing milk used in three ways so that each member of the family can literally eat the equivalent of more than 2 cups of milk and never know it!"

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Cottage Cheese
Vegetable Saladettes
Boiled Smoked Tongue Mustard
Creamed Potatoes Succotash
Frapped Rice Pudding
Hot or Iced Coffee or Tea Milk

All Measurements Are Level
Recipes Proportioned to Serve 4 to 6

Old-Time Rice Pudding: In a double-boiler, scald 1 qt. whole milk. Add ¼ c. uncooked rice, ½c. sugar, ¼ tsp. nutmeg and ½ tsp. salt. Steam-cook 1½ hrs. Stir mixture occasionally.

Transfer to a well-buttered or margarined baking dish. Cover and slow-bake 1½ hrs. at 325 to 350 degrees F. Uncover the last 20 min. to brown. Serve warm or cold with light cream, a whipped topping or chocolate sauce.

To give a plain rice pudding a taste de luxe, the chef suggests caramelizing part of the sugar.

Caramel Rice Pudding: To do this, follow the recipe for old-time rice pudding with this exception:

Before putting in the oven to bake, melt ¼ cup additional granulated sugar in a small frying pan. Cook over a low heat until melted and light brown like maple syrup. Add ¼c. water. The sugar will harden so cook until liquified again. Stir into the rice mixture and finish as directed.

Frapped Rice Pudding: Turn old-fashioned or caramel rice pudding into a freezing tray; freeze 35-45 min., or until crystals form around the edge. Stir and serve with sugared sliced strawberries, or half-thawed frozen strawberries.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

Pour maple-blended syrup over plain old-fashioned rice pudding and serve with or without a whipped topping.

Pain Is A Benefactor

There are some people who cannot feel pain. They are unlucky beings, for they are continually in danger. As children, they are usually covered with bruises and frequently burn themselves severely. As adults, internal diseases, such as appendicitis, give them no pain warning and are often not detected until they have become very serious.

This lack of pain sensations is nothing mysterious. It arises from the absence of the myriads of specialized nerve endings, in the skin and within the body, which send damage signals to the tissues.

The intensity of the pain we experience is not always related to the amount of damage we suffer. It depends on the speed at which the injury occurs, or the rate at which it progresses. For example, sunburn does not hurt the skin during the initial stages which the damage is slowly being done. But a very hot object pressed against the skin for a fraction of a second, not really long enough to do any great harm, causes intense pain because the injury to the skin is proceeding very rapidly.

Scientists also distinguish between the sharp pains experienced on the surface of the body and the duller aches which usually result from internal troubles. The arrangement of pain-receiving nerve endings in the body is very "sensibly" organized. Pain-receivers are buried deep in the palms of the hands and in the soles of the feet, places which are constantly exposed to relatively unimportant painful stimuli.

On the other hand, pain spots are found closer to the surface in the areas of the neck, shoulders and groin where important structures like the large bones and blood vessels are near the surface, and therefore subject to serious injury from wounds. In these regions, quick warning of danger is important.

Certain internal regions of the body are relatively free of pain-receivers. For example, some parts of the gastro-intestinal tract are insensitive to pain, and therefore cancers and other ailments in this area frequently escape early detection.

The brain itself contains no pain-receivers, but these points are concentrated along the vital blood vessels which feed it or other neighboring structures.

In measuring the intensity of pain, doctors realize that their experiments do not give them a true picture. The severity of pain is affected by emotional factors such as the worry and concern, felt by the victim of an accident or a serious disease. Also, the researchers say, the expectation of relief will of itself often help to ease pain. Thus, tablets containing only sugar will provide some patients with pain relief if they believe that the pills contain a pain-relieving substance.

There are many drugs used to vanquish pain. So-called analgesics raise the pain threshhold of the nerves, and cause the nerve to require more stimulation before it responds with a pain signal to the brain. Local anesthetics, like procaine, deaden a nerve or group of nerves completely so that no signal can pass to the brain.

Pain is one of the most important aids to the physician in curing the sick. It alerts the victim to the fact that something is wrong with him. When the patient sees the doctor, the location and type of pain experienced frequently enable him to find and treat the cause of the distress.

The sensation of pain can rightly be called a blessing in disguise. Without it, we could not learn to avoid harmful experiences and we would often perish from diseases we did not know we had.

FOR PARENTS ONLY...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Only Child

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

The one child family is fairly common in Canada and usually parents are anxious that their only child should not be spoiled. They have heard the old saying, "Only child — lonely child" — and they are eager to compensate for the lack of brothers and sisters.

Contrary to the ideas of many people, scientific research has shown that only children are likely to become self-confident, aggressive grown-ups. Their security is not threatened by others in the family and this preferred position often produces youngsters who are individuals. But usually they adapt themselves to the demands of others, and are capable of assuming responsibility for leadership in games or entertprises.

A modern mother and father as a rule acknowledge that adult companionship can never fill the child's need for friends his own age. No matter how understanding a mother may be, or how devoted is a father's love, still parents are only parents. They, belonging to the world of grownups. They are not "Little People!"

The only child, rarely, if ever, suffers from neglect, but rather from too much attention. Since birth, he has held the stage. Because there was only one baby in the family, he seemed extra precious. Mother was tempted to be too protective in her attitude to him.

Thus it happens that unless parents guard against the dangers in the only child's environment, they may develop either a little "show-off" or a "mother's baby." Neither of these roles are popular with playmates. Nor do they make for happiness.

A certain amount of rough and tumble play for school age children, especially boys, is inevitable. The mother of an only child must not prevent him from climbing trees or riding a bicycle or doing any of the numerous things a small boy delights in. If his chums suspect a child is "tied to his mother's apron strings", they will taunt him.

His mother's fears for his personal safety may be catching. She should be just as anxious for his emotional development as his personal safety. If she is too careful and too strict about everything he does, this is bound to produce a feeling of isolation. This may encourage a sense of inferiority or self-pity which is far from healthy!

Parents of an only child sometimes question: "Would it be wise to have another child in our family, if necessary by adoption?" Many families in recent years have discussed how happily their own child and an adopted brother or sister have gotten along. This may be impossible, but there are still practical ways to prevent the only child from being stranded on an island of loneliness.

He should have many chances to play with other children. His friends should be made welcome in his house. Vacations may provide a camp holiday or the opportunity for a cousin or friend to visit with him. When he is older, likely Cubs or Explorers will enrich his life.

A pet and hobbies are very important to the happiness of an only child. A love of music and reading are two resources for the only child. So is an enthusiasm for the out-of-doors. These are a partial compensation to the child without brothers or sisters. All his spare time should not be spent on TV or listening to the radio or reading the comics!

GARDEN-GRAPH

By Dean Halliday

Peonies are such sturdy perennials that they often bloom in spite of hardships. They were great favorites in China 2,000 years ago, and they won't let you down today.

Although peonies bloom only for a comparatively short time each year, their foliage is attractive from spring until frost-time. For this reason do not neglect them when the finish flowering.

In order to conserve the energy of peony plants for next year's flowering cut off all seed pods. A seed pod and where to cut it off at the end of its stalk are shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

It is also good gardening to cut off any late buds which may develop. These late buds are usually false ones.

Conserve peony foliage. It is a mistake to cut back the foliage too severely, for, like asparagus, peonies need their foliage through the summer to build up strength for next year's blooms. If you do cut peony foliage, leave two or more of the lower branches, as illustrated.

In extremely dry weather it is important to water peonies (even after the flowers are gone) to assure uninterrupted root and bud development which will result in fine blooms next year.

Since peonies are plants of permanence, they should have light applications of wood ashes worked into the soil each year plus feedings of plant food. If wood ashes are not available use sulphate of potash or muriate of potash, one handful to each plant. This attention will help to keep them growing luxuriantly year after year.

ALONG THE OTTAWA RIVER AND LAURENTIAN FOOTHILLS

By Ethel P. Kettyle

(PART I)

The River

Rugged beauty, and many interesting places in connection with early Canadian history, can be found as one travels along the Ottawa River and the Laurentian foothills from the capital city of Ottawa to the great, busy metropolis of Montreal, the largest city in the Dominion.

The Ottawa River has been, and always will be, one of the most famous waterways of Canada. This noble river is the dividing line between the provinces of Ontario and Quebec; it is a river upon which thousands of people have earned a living.

It is responsible for the cultivated farms and the towns along its shores, and many manufacturing plants have sprung up upon its very brink.

Coming from the far north, there is a certain mystery about the Ottawa, which awakens one's curiosity and engenders a spirit of romance. It has brought an everlasting beauty to the towns and surrounding countryside, with the flat plains of Ontario on one side, and the majestic Laurentian Mountains on the other side.

Tourists coming to Canada will find much rugged beauty along the river highway, especially in the autumn of the year when the mountains are a veritable blaze of color each one blending into the other.

In the spring of the year, when the ice is breaking up, the mighty Ottawa sometimes reminds one of an angry beast, unleashed and on the rampage; but during the summer months, for the most part it is mild and docile, and there are many interesting sights along its shores, with its canals, dams, rapids, and summer cottages nearby.

On a sultry summer day, one may watch sailboats gliding over its placid waters, while young people on water-skis dash light-heartedly across its surface. Colorful wood and chrome pleasure boats, flying both Canadian and American flags, are a common sight; and many people swim happily in the cool depths.

At night, lights along its canals, and from the towns and villages along its shores, are brightly reflected in the waters of the Ottawa River, and on fine days the blue-green surface sparkles as though covered with thousands of diamonds. In many places walls of green cedars flank its banks.

In concentrating on the water power and towns and cities along the way, let us stop and look at Ottawa, the capital of the great Dominion.

Ottawa the Capital

Ottawa, as we know, was originally called Bytown, and its early location consisted of swamps and bluffs. However, in 1828 there were 150 houses in Bytown, also 15 shops, three of which were jewelry shops.

Ottawa today can thank Colonel By for wide streets and public squares. Everything north of Wellington Street he reserved for public buildings. The city today has a superb view up and down the Ottawa River, and away to the Laurentian hills to the north.

At the present time, Ottawa is no doubt the most important city in Canada, for here stand the Parliament Buildings, with their grey walls and pointed towers, which give the city its dignity and significance. Here political difficulties are dealt with and settled. Not far away from the Parliament Buildings is the Mint, where Canadian currency is made; and only a stone's throw from the river is the magnificent Chateau Laurier Hotel, in which tourists enjoy good food and luxurious conveniences.

Ottawa is also the home of the Prime Minister, and the great majority of the citizens are civil servants; Government buildings are in evidence all over the city.

The National Museum, with its great works of art, is a most interesting place to visit. The Rideau Canal lends great beauty to the city. The Experimental Farm is also an interesting place, with its driveways, well-kept lawns and the profusion of flowers surrounding it.

Quebec Province — Industry, Antiquity and Charm

So, one departs from the Capital City, crossing the bridge into Hull, in the Province of Quebec.

Here, on the North Shore the first sight to catch the eye is the huge piles of yellow sulphur beside the river, from the E. B. Eddy Company match factory; the scene presents a patch of brilliant color in a more drab surrounding.

Then on to Gatineau Point, where thousands of logs may usually be seen floating down the river, or being propelled by log drivers with spiked boots and pevies.

Farther along the shore one comes to the International Paper Company with great piles of logs and pulpwood towering along the highway.

Next, to the little village of East Templeton, which is rapidly growing and actually looks like a suburb of the city, until one enters a forest of huge pine trees, with inviting little restaurants under their boughs.

One passes through the small village of Angers, coming to Masson, where impressive buildings house more pulp works; this industry provides work for many people from the neighboring town of Buckingham.

As one approaches the town of Thurso, the highway again draws closer to the sparkling waters of the Ottawa. Thurso is the home of a branch of the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

On to the sleepy little village of Plaisance, inhabited wholly by a French-Canadian population, with the Nation River flowing nearby into the Ottawa.

Next, to the clean little town of Papineauville, with its roads leading back to lakes much favored for sport-fishing in the summer months.

The tourist would do well to pause at the next town, Montebello, where stands the famous Lucerne Log Lodge, now better known as the Seigniory Club. This spot enjoys wide repute through Canada and the United States, as a pleasure-seekers' paradise. . .

SENTIMENTAL REASONS SAVE ELM TREE'S LIFE

In the early days of the Coultis lumber mill at Thedford, Ont., the owner spent what little spare time he had under this elm tree. In later years, as the mill expanded, it did so around the tree, as the owner's son refused to cut it down for sentimental reasons. It now has a shed for a home —Central Press Canadian

New Thrift Appointments

A. A. J. Lewis

M. B. Rowe

Montreal — The union of Dominion Stores Limited and Thrift Stores Limited into Canada's largest chain of retail food stores has become a reality, an announcement by the Thrift board of directors has revealed.

"Well over 66 2/3 percent of Thrift shares have already been purchased at $40 a share in accordance with the terms of the offer made by our company on May 30," J. William Horsey, chairman of the board of Dominion, said.

The unification of these two successful and progressive food distributing companies establishes an all-Canadian retail food organization having sales in excess of $200,000,000 with 300 stores and more than 8,000 employees across four provinces.

Mr. Horsey stated, "this unification will bring greater benefits to more people through increased efficiency in operation and resulting lower food costs."

The appointment of A. A. J. Lewis as general manager and M. B. Rowe as assistant general manager of Thrift Stores Limited has been announced by T. G. McCormack, president.

Mr. Lewis and Mr. Rowe have had many years of experience in the retail food field and provide outstanding ability and sound leadership in this progressive and expanding food chain.

The Thrift board of directors includes: T. G. McCormack, president; J. Edouard Simard, prominent Quebec industrialist; The Honorable Gerald Martineau, M.L.C., of Quebec City; D. N. Byers, Q.C., prominent in Montreal legal and financial circles; J. William Horsey, John A. McDougald and M. W. McCutcheon.

TIPSY RAVEN

Parry Sound, Ont. (CP) — Two men were driven from their truck by the flailing talons, sharp beak and beating wings of a raven which attacked the vehicle. They captured the bird, believed to have been "intoxicated" by highway salt, and say it now is fairly tame.

Cobalt (CP) — A large bull moose, evidently on a leisurely sightseeing tour, took a week-end stroll through the centre of this Northern Ontario mining town to the railway station, then paddled into the lake and disappeared over Nipissing hill.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. I have been paying unemployment insurance contributions since its inception. I drew benefit for four weeks in 1954. I was married last year and I worked five weeks this year between February and April. Am I entitled to benefit?

A. You would be unable to qualify for benefit during the two years immediately following your marriage unless:

(a) you were discharged by your employer because of his policy not to keep women in his employ after marriage, or

(b) you had worked for at least 60 days subsequent to the date of your marriage, or

(c) you had become the breadwinner on account of your husband having died or become incapacitated for work or become permanently separated.

Q. I am working in a hospital. Why are we not covered by unemployment insurance in any hospital of the province of Quebec or elsewhere?

A. The Act exludes employment in a hospital which is not operated for purpose of gain, unless the hospital elects to insure its employees. The exclusion is due chiefly to the strong representations made by the hospitals that the cost of the contributions payable would cause additional hardship since most hospitals at present are unable to pay their full operating expenses.

Unemployment Figure in Lachute and Brownsburg Normal for Time of Year

Observation Incidental to Rotary Topic On Special Phases of Employment Service

Manager G. A. Downing Guest Speaker at Club

G. A. Downing, manager of the local office of the National Employment Service, was guest speaker at last week's regular meeting of the Rotary Club. His subject was the Special Placements division of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, "which is designed to put into effect one of the clauses of the Statement of Employment Policy giving special attention to the placement of young persons who have not become established in industrial life, of competent applicants who suffer from physical handicaps, of young persons wishing to undertake apprenticeship or training courses, of middle-aged workers desirous of entering on training courses, and of the other similar categories of applicants."

The speaker explained that the staff for this branch is especially recruited from among those who have a formal training in psychology and in the field of vocational guidance. They are given a series of training courses designed to qualify them for the type of counselling required.

An exhaustive personal interview with each applicant is a prerequisite to the counselling process. The officers seek all the information to determine an appropriate occupational classification, not only in the case of new applicants but for those obliged to change their occupations owing to disability or age.

In the case of the new entrant to employment, full information is sought on his educational or vocational training; economic status in the community; hobbies, and attitude toward the world of work.

In the case of the handicapped applicant, if it is determined that he has a record of continuous and satisfactory employment, he is not considered an occupational disability and is referred to the general placements section of the office. On the other hand, if it is found that the disability is of recent origin he is given the benefit of the counselling service where emphasis is placed on any abilities he may have that fit specific occupations. As no job calls for full physical fitness, special placements officers can often find suitable work for handicapped workers when they have convinced employers that certain handicapped people can perform their duties just as satisfactorily as those who have all their faculties.

Some success has been obtained in promoting the idea of self-employment among older workers who have reached the age when it is difficult for them to secure employment in the labor market. For example, the accountant who has lost his job through age, might well be counselled to persuade owners of small businesses to let him take over their bookkeeping on a fee basis. The main task at this point is to restore morale, remove frustrations and re-establish in the minds of older men and women the thought that their working days are by no means over.

While there are a number of employers who take a very real interest in handicapped people, there are others who still regard the hiring of a handicapped person as an act of charity. It is interesting to note, however, that surveys carried out in Canada and the United States show that in the matter of production, attendance, turnover and accident rate, the record of handicapped persons is slightly more favorable than that of able-bodied persons.

Mr. Downing stated that there are only about 200 people drawing unemployment insurance at the local office at the present time. Of this number, only about 125 live in the immediate area of Lachute and Brownsburg. This means that about 1½ per cent of the working force is out of work — which is normal for this time of year.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Jean Belanger and thanked by Rotarian J. Humphries.

$3,207 Raised In Argenteuil Cancer Campaign

The Campaign of the Cancer Society, Argenteuil Section, closed its books last week with a total of $3,207.30 collected — according to Roger Lagarde, campaign chairman. The objective of the two-month campaign was set at $5,000.

Mr. Lagarde, in reporting the results, recalled that although he had been appointed chairman of the Argenteuil Section only two weeks prior to the appeal, he had attempted to organize all sections of the County. "In past years, the only actual personal organization was in Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East and their immediate districts. This year we endeavored to organize Carillon and Grenville, and with the help of the various branches of the Women's Institute, other sections were rounded up." Viewing the result, the chairman also noted that the Red Cross campaign had been staged during the Cancer campaign period.

Mr. Lagarde expressed thanks to all who had contributed, as well as to the team captains and door-to-door solicitors. Among those specially mentioned for their work in this campaign were the following:

Mrs. Leonard Ayers, Dr. Jules Lafleur, Arthur J. Quinn, W. J. Buckley, Gerard Lefebvre, Bernard Massicotte, Leopold Carrière, Linton Armstrong, Gerald Walker, Horace Lamarche, Mrs. Decarie, of Carillon, Mr. Pichette, of Grenville, Misses A. Eaton and E. Ladouceur, of St. Andrews East, Mrs. George McGibbon, of Dalesville, Oswald Carrière and the Women's Institutes.

Tours and Topics On July Program Of Women's Inst.

Arundel W.I. members enjoyed a bus trip to the capital and a tour of the Parliament Buildings; 26 members were present at the regular meeting — and one guest. Arrangements were completed for the July bazaar. A very interesting report was given by Mrs. Sosnkowski.

Brownsburg heard reports on the provincial convention. Eleven prizes were taken by members of this branch at Lachute Fair; plans were made to exhibit at the Ottawa Fair. A park bench was donated for the Social and Athletic lawn for use of the general public. A new flag is to be donated to the school. A handicraft fair and tea are to be held on August 12.

At Frontier branch, a discussion was held on the provincial convention, and a report on the Leadership Course was heard. A picnic was arranged for the children.

Lakefield branch had 10 members and three guests present. Plans were made for a bazaar and food sale to be held at Kerr's Farm on July 30. An interesting report on the provincial convention was heard.

Pioneer members planned a Food Sale for July 22. Nine prizes were taken by members at Lachute Fair, amounting to a value of $21. Reports on both the county and provincial conventions were heard. A "shower" of cards was to be sent to three former members who are now "shut-ins". Some talent money was donated.

Upper Lachute East-End — Eighteen members and two guests answered the roll-call by recalling "An amusing incident since the last meeting." Plans were made for an August picnic, also a dance to be held later. A committee was appointed to arrange the catering for a wedding reception. Reports on the provincial convention and Leadership Course were heard. Two quilts and a comforter are to be made this month. A card signed by the ladies is to be sent to a sick fellow-member.

RCMP Enlistments

The RCMP accepts only one out of every 13 men who want to join the force, said Justice Minister Garson as the Commons discussed Justice Department estimates.

Mr. Garson said the RCMP personnel situation is improving and that it may be possible soon to take on new municipal contracts. The force would not lower its exceedingly high standards to recruit more men. Persons of the type the RCMP wanted could obtain attractive positions in civilian life. The RCMP wage scale was "quite good" and this was attracting more recruits into the force.

Canadians borrowed 33,432,730 books from public libraries last year.

83rd Birthday, Still On the Job

The Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, incumbent of the Anglican parish of Lakefield and Rural Dean of St. Andrews deanery, celebrates his 83rd birthday on Tuesday July 26. The Rev. Mr. Baugh his served the Lakefield parish for 20 years, is still keenly active, and conducts three or four services in the churches of his pastorate almost every Sunday.

Don't Look Now -- It's Skunks!

The select residential section of Bedard Blvd. was intrigued, amused and somewhat nonplussed by a family of skunks which crossed the thoroughfare and paraded serenely through lots and gardens one eve this week.

As the mother and six cute youngsters took possession, the problem was — while appearing reasonably hospitable — to cause the visitors no alarm, lest they retaliate at the approach of man, beast or automobile. . . . The situation became precarious when a dog pounced in their direction, threatening the composure of the entire neighborhood. But happily the dog was called off in time.

Next, one of the young itinerants became detached from the troupe and took shelter under a parked car. It remained there for one hour, posing a problem for the owner, who was anxious to take his departure. The motorist eventually gained entry without mishap — started his engine (also without mishap) and sped away.

The incident caused much amusement. A number of householders, and workmen on the grounds of Gerard Lefebvre, just stood by and watched — paralyzed with the inadequacy of mere humans.

Poison Ivy — Holiday Menace

It's not much good getting irritated about Poison Ivy after it has irritated you. It's much better to recognize the plant before. Poison Ivy is the only Canadian plant with a three-parted leaf and white fruit. Don't mistake it for Virginia creeper which has five-parted leaves and blue fruit. Poison ivy grows almost anywhere as a single plant, in patches, or as a trailing or climbing vine. So be on the lookout for it on fishing trips, picnics and holidays, and give it a wide berth.

Campaign Pending For Richelieu Charity Funds

For the second consecutive year, the Richelieu Club is appealing to the public in its annual charity campaign, highlighted by a field day on Saturday, July 30, at the Lachute Fair Grounds. Main feature of the program will be an afternoon of harness races, as well as other attractions.

The 41-member organization holds as its main objective the social welfare of underprivileged children, and extends moral and financial support in every possible manner.

One of its chief interests in aiding local children is in the health field, and in this department, the local club spends in the vicinity of $150 a month for the distribution of milk in the local Catholic schools.

The report of expenditures for the past year is given as follows, by Treasurer Gustave Joanette:

Milk distributed to schools, $1,888.71; parish social centres, $240; relief and maintenance, $393.30; Ouvroir Ste. Elizabeth and clothing, $55.50; aid to students, $275; Ste. Justine Hospital, $50; medical aid, $46; contribution to Eucharistic Congress, $75.

In this manner, a total of over $3,000 has been dispensed to the youngsters. Next year's donations depend on the success of the present ticket-selling project for a raffle and attendance at the races on July 30. (See advertisements on pages 2 and 9.)

In the January-April period 32,907 new housing units were finished in Canada, compared to 27,101 in the same period of 1954.

The Protestant schools and all local industries will be tested during the fall months, after which the complete county will have been covered.

Golf Tourney Tomorrow at Lachute Draws Biggest Field of Quebec Pro's

In Competition for New Dow Championship Trophy And Attractive Purse of $3,500 Prize Money

Jack Archer, Lachute Golf and Country Club pro, is in the first draw to start the Quebec Professional Golf Championship tournament at the local course tomorrow morning at 8.30 o'clock. Archer is slated to play with Jules Huot, Laval-sur-le-Lac, and Jack Kay, Mt. Bruno, all of whom will start their second round at 1 p.m.

A record field of 62 professionals and Class "A" assistants will participate in the 36-hole tournament, according to Jim Swarbrick, captain of the C.P.G.A. of Quebec.

In announcing the draw for the $3,500 Dow Brewery-sponsored medal play, Swarbrick pointed out that the field represented the biggest turnout of Quebec professionals at any golf event ever staged in this province.

The closed event will offer a top prize of $700 and the Dow Trophy to the winner. Fifteen others will share in the $3,500 prize money.

Henry Dubiel, the local assistant, starts on his round 10 minutes after Archer, both in the morning and afternoon. Hawkesbury's John Watson, and Jim Seeney, of St. Andrews, leave at 9.20 a.m. and 1.50 p.m., and 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m. respectively. Howard Thom, formerly of the local club and presently located at Seven Islands, tees-off at 11.30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Archer, a favorite to win in many opinions, set a new record for the local course a week ago Saturday, scoring a six-under-par 66. He played the front nine holes in 34, two under par, and made the back nine in 32, four under par. Par for the 6,740 yard course is 36-36-72.

TRUCK CRASHES STORE IN HAWKESBURY

Hawkesbury, Ont. (CP) — They say Heldemar Deslauriers' hardware store at the intersection of two highways in Hawkesbury, will never be the same.

The brakes failed on a heavily loaded gravel truck driven by Stewart Storey, 22, of Buckingham, Que. The free-wheeling journey ended with a crash and a tinkle in Heldemar's show window.

Hardware damage: $7,000.
Truck damage: $600.

Visits Old Homestead, Finds Deserted Cow!

Two visiting couples here — Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson, from Florida, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Barnett, of Ottawa — were looking over Mr. Thompson's old home in Ogdensburg the other day, and while rambling around, they came across a live cow in a deserted cellar. Mr. Thompson notified a neighboring farmer, John Heatlie, and they took care of the animal, which otherwise might have been left to die in the disused cellar.

Senior Officer Of Local Militia

Maj. Gen. Ralph H. Keefler, CBE, DSO, ED, 53, of Montreal, was yesterday appointed Honorary Colonel of eight Royal Canadian Artillery (Militia) units in Quebec. Included under his command is the 37th Field Regiment, Montreal, with which the local Highland Cadets and the newly-formed 131 Battery of the 37th Field Regiment are affiliated.

Maj. Gen. Keefler is one of Canada's most distinguished artillery officers and was wartime commander of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division. He is now a senior executive of the new Telephone Company, in Montreal.

Hose Disappearing Seems Contagious

—Canadian Press Canadian

It's not only in California that lawn hoses disappear into the ground. In Deep River, Ont., a garden hose was pushed a few miles into the soil in the garden of Roy Mitchell. Then it proceeded to go down deeper of its own accord. And even a tug by four children failed to pull it out of the ground.

Council Shuffles and Mayoral Changes In Several Argenteuil Municipalities

WEATHER SUITS ALL

Regardless of exact statistics, this has been one of the finest summers ever experienced in this part of the country. For once, farmers, sportsmen, and vacationists agree that the weather has been just as good as it could possibly be.

— Stanstead (Que.) Journal

Voting was light in most of the district municipalities in which elections for mayor and councillors were held on Monday, with the returning officers reporting many acclamations for both offices.

St. Jerusalem

In the Parish of St. Jerusalem, the lone contest was between two newcomers for council, Gerard de Bellefeuille and Stanley Holt. De Bellefeuille polled a majority of 21 votes over Holt, to occupy Seat 1 of that parish.

Municipal secretary-treasurer H. E. Carson reports the vote exceedingly light, only 197 persons exercising their franchise out of a possible 1,200-odd.

Joseph Ernest Bourbonniere was elected mayor of the parish by acclamation, replacing the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A. Immediately prior to the contest, former councillor Herbert Gordon withdrew, leaving Dougal Leishman re-elected to Seat 5 and Stewart Armstrong elected to Seat 6, both by acclamation.

The official vote was as follows:

De Bellefeuille, Gerard	101
Holt, Stanley	80
(Spoiled)	16

Wentworth

A fairly light vote was recorded in Wentworth Township where both former councillors were defeated by identical majorities of 122. Contesting Seat 1 were former councillor Harvey Barlow, of Laurel, and Romuald Bell, of St. Michel, while Seat 3 was contested by former councillor Arthur de Guise, of St. Michel, and Sylvio Deslauriers, also of St. Michel. Bell and Deslauriers were elected to office by the large majorities.

Clarence Neill was re-elected mayor of the municipality by acclamation at the close of nominations last Wednesday, as was Bruce Hunter, who replaced Gilbert Boyd as councillor for Seat 2.

The official vote reported by Secretary-Treasurer Wilfred Morrison is as follows:

Seat. 1 —
Barlow, Harvey 106
Bell, Romuald 223

Seat 3 —
De Guise, Arthur 105
Desjardins, Sylvio 227

Enrolment for Local Battery of RCA Reserve

Enrolment of recruits for the long-planned 131st Battery (Lachute) of the 37th Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery, will take place this evening at 8 o'clock in the High School basement, according to Capt. Gordon Tabrett, D Company, No. 4 Highland Cadet Battalion.

Initial recruiting is being limited to those who have had some form of military training, either in the regular services or with cadet groups such as the local Highland Cadet Unit, which is affiliated with the 37th Field Regiment.

The Regiment, including any local recruits interested, is moving to Camp Petawawa for a week's field firing practice from Saturday, August 6, to August 13; they will be engaged in field manoeuvres and the firing of 25-pounder guns.

A team of clerks for documentation, and medical officers, as well as the Quartermaster, will be on hand this evening. Those accepted will be issued with uniforms next week and proceed to Petawawa, where they will receive regular pay and allowances.

Following the camp training, recruiting on a local training basis will commence and it is expected that training will start early in September.

The plans for the Lachute area 131st Battery have been finalized and will operate locally in co-operation with the local Highland Cadets. The age limit in the Militia is from 18 to 45, although 17½-year-olds will be accepted with parents' consent. Further information may be obtained from Capt. Tabrett (phone 85).

MUST READ CAREFULLY

One avenue of clear understanding is offered by careful reading of newspapers, which make every effort in their power to bring the world situation before the Canadian people and explain its complexities.

The official vote for mayor was as follows: Breckenridge 129; Munich 96.

Contestants for the council polled the following votes, according to Secretary-treasurer M. C. Davis:

St. Colomban

Felix Legaré, well-known citizen of St. Colomban, defeated former Mayor Perrin by a majority of 55. The municipality comprises some 450 voters, and a fair number turned out to the polls. Swimming Instruction Should Be Compulsory Montreal (CP) — J. G. Lang, physical education supervisor for the Greater Montreal Protestant School Board, says swimming instruction should be compulsory for Montreal schoolchildren.

In an interview, Mr. Lang said he agrees with Mrs. Mary Temple, Toronto education board chairman, who urged compulsory swimming lessons in elementary schools.

Mrs. Temple said her request was prompted by more than 200 drownings in Lake Ontario so far this year.

Mr. Lang said the school board has an arrangement with the city for use of any city pools for swimming instruction. He said that when the scheme was introduced some years ago, 25 schools took part.

"Now, only 10 schools take advantage of the scheme," he said.

BIG VICTIM

Fort William, Ont. (CP) — A cow moose was this city's heftiest traffic fatality when it collided with a new model car within the city limits. The car was badly damaged and the moose had to be destroyed by city police.

Gatineau LINES

Farm Service

There has been a notable increase in the number of farms provided with electric service in the Province of Quebec in the past ten years.

In the area served by the Company, over this period, rural lines have been extended farther and farther to afford to as many farmers as possible labor-saving, comfort-providing electrical facilities.

A film demonstrating the uses of electricity on the farm is now being made on Quebec farms. The cost of this film is being shared by the major utility companies and the Government of the Province of Quebec. It will be ready for exhibition during the late fall, and made available to 4-H Clubs and Farm Forums, which are urged to plan to show this informative film.

Among other things it will show how Quebec farmers are taking advantage of electric service to milk cows, separate and cool milk, feed and water stock and poultry, grind feed and provide power for such farm tools as drills, lathes and grinders.

In the farm homes it will demonstrate how electric ranges, washing machines and ironers relieve household drudgery, while the problem of proper food storage is solved by the services of refrigerators and home freezers, and that when it is time for recreation there is radio — or television.

The Company's ever growing rural power load reflects this additional use on the farms of mankind's Most Valuable Servant.

Quebec Lucky

Reports of net farm incomes for the year 1954 indicate a drop of one-third in comparison with last year. It must be noted, however, that the falling off has been felt particularly in the western provinces. Where Saskatchewan is concerned scarcely one-third of the revenues obtained in 1953 has been reached. Based on the figures of the Bureau of Statistics, Quebec so far has got out of it fairly well. Revenues for 1954 are estimated at $270 millions and a half against $275 millions in 1953. That is doubtless an insignificant loss. But if we take into account the difficulties created by the temperature during the past season and the losse that were due to it, it must be recognized that our farmers worked miracles.

Plant Protection, A Government Service

All plants and certain plant products imported into Canada must be inspected and released by the Plant Protection Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture before distribution is allowed. Every precaution must be taken to prevent the introduction into Canada of plant diseases and insect pests through importations from foreign countries. Close cooperation between the Plant Protection, Plant Pathology and Entomology Divisions is responsible for the high standard of service Canada has maintained over the years.

Caution must be exercised at all times. For example, a shipment consisting of 6,500 tons of peanuts arrived in Montreal recently which is believed to be the largest single importation of its kind, involving the equivalent of 250 car lots. The entire cargo was found to carry a medium infestation of six species of stored products pests and fumigation was ordered at the expense of the importers. This involves treatment with methyl bromide by pest control operators under the supervision of the staff of the Plant Protection Division.

Total importations of nursery stock during the year ending March 31, 1955, were slightly lower than during the previous fiscal year, as a report indicates a decrease of about five million plants from the 110 million imported in 1953-54. Holland, Canada's main source for bulbs, was the leading exporter of nursery stock to this country for the 1953-54 fiscal year, but the U.S.A. took over the lead in the following year with a total of approximately 52.5 million, with Holland running a close second with over 50 million. Other comparatively large exporters of nursery stock to this country from a total of 42 countries are Belgium, France, Germany and the British Isles.

New Hog Breed Named "Lacombe"

The new breed of hogs developed by the Canada Department of Agriculture at the Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alta., has been named "Lacombe". As announced earlier, the new breed is the result of seven years careful selection and mating of a combination of Landrace, Chester White and Berkshire breeding, with Landrace predominating. The Lacombe, when crossed with the Yorkshire, at the Lacombe and Scott Experimental Stations produced crossbred pigs equal or superior to either breed in all important economic traits as rate of grain and quality of product.

British Columbia's occupied farm land is only two per cent of the province's total area.

A Jersey Record Milker

The Jersey cow "BRAMPTON W.R. LUA," bred and owned by B. H. Bull & Son, Brampton, Ontario, has recently broken the Canadian Jersey milk production record for one day. LUA went up to 88¼ lbs. per day, beating the former record held by the Quebec cow Grayburn Lady Golden's Dora by 3 lbs.

Several herds in Quebec are using herd sires closely related to this champion producer, including the North River herd of D. G. R. McColl.

B.C. Railroader Talented Artist

Nelson, B.C. (CP) — A Canadian artist, almost entirely self-taught, has won wide recognition for his paintings of paddle-wheel steamers, although he has spent most of his adult life working for the railroad.

Alec C. Garner has just completed a series of 24 large oils of the more famous paddle-wheelers that plied British Columbia inland water ways since 1885.

His portraits have also attracted attention, particularly that of the late Selwyn G. Blaylock, internationally famous metallurgist and president of Consolidated Mining and Smelting company at Trail.

For more than 20 years he worked for the Canadian Pacific Railway at Edmonton and he cannot recall when he didn't devote his spare time to drawing and painting. Conscious of a need for direction, he took a correspondence school course in art and finally received a diploma.

His works have been shown at outstanding exhibitions, including the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts. He has won many awards in open competitions with well-known artists. His landscapes and portraits hang in a number of public and private collections.

Twelve years ago Mr. Garner quit railroading to give more time to art.

Safety Booklet for Construction Workers

Toronto (CP) — The Construction Safety Association has issued a 32-page booklet on basic safety rules in an attempt to halt the growing number of accidents.

The booklets, printed in English, French, German, Italian and Polish are being distributed by employers to foreign-born workmen.

James N. Shephar, director of the Association, said about 75 per cent of immigrants go into the construction industry and to jobs on roads, bridges and trench operations.

"There are two factors that cause them to get into accidents on the job", he said. "One is the language barrier. It is impossible for a foreman to explain safety when neither knowns what the other is talking about. The second factor is the eagerness of the new Canadian to please his boss. He runs instead of walking and this eagerness frequently proves his undoing."

Garden-Graph

If Garden fresh peas are a favorite with you and your family, why not try a late planting in the space vacated by an earlier vegetable?

Late varieties of peas can be planted even as the first cool days of early fall approach and still mature to give a crop before the first frost comes. The yield will not be as large as earlier planted peas, but will add substantially to the family food supply.

In order to give late peas a quick start, soak the trench in which they are to be planted, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Peas planted late in the season should be sown deeper than those planted early in the spring when the soil is full of moisture. In heavy soil, plant late peas about four inches deep. Plant them six inches deep if the soil is very light.

When the peas have been covered with soil, "walk" the soil to firm it, as shown in the Garden-Graph.

Late peas are apt to be a bit temperamental. Mulching after the plants are well up helps in hot weather. An unfriendly heat wave as they are forming pods, or a cold, wet period while they are blossoming can reduce the crop to almost nothing. For late plantings, select varieties that are locally successful.

Late peas should have some sort of support since they are tall growing. Chicken wire is often used for this purpose. Leggy twigs can also be used.

Grow Your Own Shrubs

New plastics are an aid to gardeners as well as to housewives, R. W. Oliver, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, advises that plastic bags can be used by the amateur in the propagation of shrubs by air layering and by greenwood cuttings.

In air layering a vigorous stem of last year's growth which in June will have new shoots rising from its tip is selected. A long sloping cut is made part way through last year's stem which is held open by inserting a small chip of some sort. One of the root stimulating powders is dusted on the wound and a harmful of slightly moist sphagnum moss packed around it and held in place with raffia or string. An eight or nine inch square of polythene film — such as a carrot bag — is then wrapped tightly around the moss with the ends tied tightly above and below the wound. This conserves the moisture yet allows gases to pass through thus preventing heating and molding.

After six weeks the cut branch should have sent roots into the moist moss. It may then be cut off below the wound. The moss and wrappings should be removed and planted in a partially shaded location as a new small shrub.

Plastic bags can also be used to cover pots of sand in which greenwood cuttings or "slips" are being rooted. The bags conserve moisture in the pot and maintain a humid atmosphere around the cuttings which prevent the foliage from drying and wilting. The double pot method, where a small pot with a plug in the drainage hole is sunk in the centre of a larg pot of sand, is recommended. The small pot can be filled with water to act as a constant reservoir to keep the sand in the large pot moist.

Minimum Age Limit Urged for Tractor Operators

Owen Sound, Ont., July 16 (CP) — A coroner's jury recommended that provincial legislation be introduced setting an age limit for tractor drivers.

The jury recorded a verdict of accidental death on Larry Weber, 3½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Weber of nearby Chesley, who was killed when run over by a tractor driven by his five-year-old brother, Jimmy.

At the direction of Coroner Dr. Charles Gaviller, the jury brought in a rider asking for the age limit and proposing that parents or guardians who disregard the restriction be liable for prosecution.

Last Frontier — the Arts

QUIETLY, but with respectful acknowledgment from foreign critics, the last phase of Canada's emergence as a nation is being unfolded at Stratford, Ont.

Historically, the arts are the last fields of human endeavor to flower in the development of new frontiers. Community effort necessarily concentrates during early years on establishing the broad basis for the national story. Engineering, the sciences, agriculture, industry — take precedence and in all Canada has won a reputation for her accomplishments, worked through skill, initiative, knowledge endowed by the vast natural resources.

Since the Second World War, in which Canada's role was notable, and astonishing to many who had not earlier given her too much consideration, there has been an awakening in the arts. This activity has gone hand in hand with the development of national self-consciousness, an awaremess among Canadians that their land plays a significant role in world affairs, speaks with a respected voice.

This definition of self, which is what a country's arts amount to, contributes to the development of Canadianism. And from appreciation of Canadian painting, sculpture, music, drama, Canadians move on to a realization that classics are not text-book dull, that they too are warm, vigorous and pertinent to today.

Little Stratford, experiencing almost collective inspiration, sensed three years ago the moment was ripe to give the classics life in Canada to stage them in keeping with the highest standards of the theatre. Its Shakespearian festival was born.

The result has been a revelation. It is probably the first time Canada has undertaken theatrical production committed to uncompromised perfection. It certainly is the first time Canada has carried it off.

To the Canadian familiar with the festivals of Europe it is thrilling to see their presentation, production, artistic integrity, not only matched but bettered. Not even in Stratford-on-Avon, England, has Shakespeare the dramatic, immediate impact he delivers here. For Stratford's stage carries him right through to the audience.

This year a musical festival was added. To a musician this is even more exciting. Already its concerts recall the greatness of Europe's. And yet the youth of its musicians, the brevity of their association together and the economy of their rehearsals, yield the prospect of Stratford setting the pace in music, too.

The word is getting around. Automobiles from most of the 10 provinces and the 48 states may be seen in the lovely parks along the gentle Avon River and its many visitors relax in the quiet, placid dignity of the theatre city's atmosphere — and absence of commercialism.

Stratford and its festival, now in mid-third season, are pioneering Canada's last frontier. The country should be proud of the success with which it is doing so.

An Intimate Survey

CANADA'S 963 weekly newspapers, with a combined circulation of 2,475,140, are the backbone of Canadian country life — according to the current July issue of Liberty magazine.

Appearing under the title "Canada's Cracker-Barrel Oracles", this Liberty study by former Brampton Peel Gazette reporter Robert Webb finds that "editors of weekly newspapers have, naturally, advanced from the frontier-days pistol-in-one-hand, pen-in-the-other crusader whose hand-operated press turned out stinging editorials. But that editorial spirit of poking gentle fun at local celebrities, getting public support for community endeavors, and whipping civic officials into action, hasn't yet been tossed in the hell-box".

A survey made among weekly newspaper editors disclosed some interesting facts. According to Liberty, 95% have served as president of their local Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade; 45% have been mayor or reeve or held other high public office in their community; 91% work an average of 55 hours weekly; 23% reported personal incomes of over $5,000 annually; and many of them are university graduates.

What is the newspaper's most widely-read feature? Cec Hacker, editor-publisher of the Abbotsford, Sumas and Matsqui (B.C.) News, says it's the Livestock Sale Column of the classified page, while George Murray, owner of the 3,100-circulation Pictou N.S. Advocate, says his women's column, "Ann Advocate Says", is his paper's most widely read page. It's written by his wife, who was voted "Mrs. Weekly Editor" at the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association's annual convention last year.

But if the editors of Canada's weekly newspapers disagree on what constitutes their most widely-read feature, they are all in accord with Mrs. Helen (Corky) McCorquondale, editor of Alberta's High River Times, who defines the aim of the weekly newspaper in this fashion:

"The principle by which most papers, small or great, seem to be guided is to make the community a happy, congenial, law-abiding place; to emphasize the good rather than the bad; and to be as accurate as humanly possible in matters of moment — especially the middle initial of a faithful correspondent".

"Canada's Cracker-Barrel Oracles" in the current July issue of Liberty is a very special salute to the weekly newspapers and their editors.

"There are few millionaires among the weekly newspaper editors and publishers", Bill Cranston of Midland has stated, "But there are few men and women who so well deserve the label 'free enterprisers' with a special emphasis on 'enterprise'."

Believe It or Not

IN THE MATTER of insect pests, the average gardener is prepared, by experience, to believe the worst. But when it comes to those astronomical figures on crop destruction, the skeptics (among whom most newspaper editors may be safely catalogued) instinctively look and listen for the sales promotion machinery of some pesticide industry. And the creak is usually obvious.

However, we have it on no less an authority than the Food and Agriculture Organization that more than a fifth of the food crops planted by the world's farmers never reaches the public. Insect pests and diseases each year destroy or damage enough food to nourish tens of millions of people, while high speed international transport helps to spread pests and diseases from one continent to the next.

In fact, agricultural losses caused by insects each year run into fabulous sums. We also spend millions helping the sick whose diseases were brought to them by flying or crawling parasites. But it is consoling to realize that the fight against insects — like the fight against disease — is never-ending.

In this connection, Science Press Service this week gives a striking illustration. . . The discovery that an insect was monogamous (we are told) has helped to rid a Caribbean island of a frightful pest. Recently, a scientist found that the female of this insect species mates only with one male. Large numbers of male insects were collected and irradiated with X-rays to make them sterile. These sterile males were then shipped back to the island. They mated with the female insects but could not fertilize the eggs. As a result the island's pest population quickly dropped to zero.

Employment Upturn

AFTER the worst winter of unemployment in post-war years, Canada's employment picture has been completely transformed in the spring and early summer.

We are now employing 2½% more people than a year ago. We have absorbed into jobs the largest increase in the labor force of any recent years — observes The Financial Post.

The proportion of unemployed to total labor force has dropped from 4% to 3.85% or lower, and the number of unemployed has even been reduced in absolute terms.

More than the total increase in employment comes in industry of various kinds, since farm employment has continued to decline.

We still haven't reached the employment level of 1953, which was known as the summer of "overfull" employment. There are some 60,000 more people at work than there were then; but there are also 100,000 more unemployed. The percentage of unemployed is still about double what it was in June and July, 1953, when it fell to 1.6% But compared with last year, there are 129,000 more people at work.

"Handwriting on the Wall"

In each human breast there beats the heart of an artist. Everyone craves a chance to display his artistic talents The one turns his hand to Bristol board and water-color; the other to canvases and oil. Some talents find their expression in design of dress or building, and some in the playing of music or acting upon the stage. But by far the greatest number of artists are in a class by themselves. They are those hardy perennials who blot no canvas, and smear no artist's paper with gay and flashing colors. They have but one passion; namely to draw rude pictures, write ribald verse, or merely sign their names upon the walls of public places.

Judging from the walls of various buildings scattered around this camp, I should imagine that every mural artist in Canada has been here at one time or other. The adults, naturally, have not been at fault quite as much as the young fry. Still, they've had their fling and they've added a number of choice epithets to those already inscribed. They have also autographed the walls profusely, and you'd be surprised to learn who some of the writers have been. Big people, all of them.

Just prior to the opening of the camp, I came up to get the waterfront organized and generally assist those who were charged with the operation of the camp. It was a hectic week. I was up at dawn and went to bed exhausted at midnight. I dabbled in every form of work from painting buoys to filling voluminous cotton affairs with straw. (They have a name, I know, but I can't spell it any better than you, without benefit of a dictionary). And, for the last few hours before the young and old flocked in to enjoy a month or two of fun in the sun, yours truly spent his time in calling at the most frequently visited sections of the camp to erase the poetic and prose writings of our more lurid authors.

On the hill, close to my headquarters, I found the camp handyman hard at work constructing new doors for the west-end ladies' room. Rather than disturb the good man at his work, I tossed him a cheery "good-morning and hurried on my way. By noon, I had finished most of the necessary erasures, and I knocked off for lunch. In the camp kitchen, I ran into the handyman.

"Me," he said, "I finish all doors for washrooms. You want I should paint the west-end walls?"

"No, Johann," I replied, "I'm not going to paint the walls. Just going to delete a few things written there."

"Oh, so! Is needful?"

"You bet it is, especially with a gang of kids coming in at any minute."

"You want I should help, maybe?" Johann asked.

"Oh no, I'll be able to do it right after lunch."

"O.K." Johann replied. But somehow he didn't seem very happy about my work. Within half an hour I discovered the reason.

With lunch over, I picked up my paint pot and brush and set out for the west-end shack. Starting at the outer door, I deleted the offensive literature and verse on three of the walls. The fourth wall, I was happy to notice, seemed to be only a vast parchment for the signatures of persons visiting the building.

I was debating whether I should attempt to erase all the names, and so discourage those that should come thereafter, when my eye caught a fresh signature. I took a closer look and realized why the handyman had been uneasy about my labors. There, at the base of a long list of names, written in careful hand with a ballpoint pen, was the immigrant's name:

"Johann Schwager"

An Essential Factor In Resuscitation After Drowning

It has been noted as curious that in some cases where victims have been under water for only a short time, death has often occurred in spite of artificial respiration, while in the case of other victims under the water for a longer time, life has been restored. It has also been noted by many physicians that in many drowning cases post mortem examination has failed to discover water in the victim's lungs.

In a series of investigations carried on in 1938 by the late Sir Frederick Banting and associates, in co-operation with the Health League of Canada, the reason for these anomalies was found. In a large proportion of cases of apparent drowning the actual cause of death is not drowning, but suffocation. A spasm of the larynx prevents either water or air from entering the lungs, and the result, although there is no water in the lungs, is death, just the same.

The closure of the larynx is in the first place protective. The aperture of the larynx closes when one takes a drink of water, or tea — to prevent the fluid going down the wrong way — into the lungs instead of into the stomach. In the drowning cases, the closing of the larynx has the same objective. But as the victim becomes unconscious, the larynx often fails to open again as it does after you have swallowed your drink of water or tea. So that an essential in the revival of apparently drowned persons is to make sure that the air passages are free. The rhythmic application of artificial respiration should result in the audible passage of air in and out — listen for it. A doctor, of course, can make sure with his stethoscope.

OF MANY THINGS

The Family

Down at the railroad station yesterday I saw a father saying farewell to his family. They are moving to a western city, and he is to follow on as soon as he gets his business affairs in order. It is a very lively family, ranging in age from 4 to 14, and as I helped Charlie get settled into his hotel room I said, "Well, I suppose you'll enjoy a few weeks of peace and quiet without the youngsters underfoot?"

"That's what I always tell myself," he said. "But it doesn't work that way. The peace and quiet bores me. I don't amount to much without the family."

I know just how he feels because I have a family of five myself. They disturb me when I am trying to write or read or think. They wake me early in the morning when I'd sometimes like to sleep. They pester me for car rides and they bother me for spending money. They worry me about their homework and report cards, and they get noisiest and most demanding just about the time when I am loaded with problems of my own. But that is not the worst of it.

The worst of it is when they go away!

That is when the terrible peace and quiet settle in. And just like Charlie — I don't amount to much without the family.

I don't think a nation would amount to much for long either, unless composed of families where each father is responsible for the welfare of his own brood. That's one reason why I am always suspicious of governments that try to take over all or part of that responsibility. Hitler did it; tyrants have always invaded the sanctity of the family. They use wonderful excuses and they pretend it is only to help to improve the family welfare. They may even be sincere about it at first. But it never works.

Families are a terrible load, an awful burden, a great responsibility. But they are worth it — ten times over!

HEAVY TRAFFIC

Welland, Ont. (CP) — Ships of the Great Lakes fleets hauled 17,514,258 tons of cargo through the Welland ship canal last season, an increase of more than 3,000,000 tons in the last five years. Grain had the greatest tonnage, followed by oil and coal.

TAKE THAT, and THAT!

before a new telescope-type stretcher, made of nylon and aluminum, was adopted by the Canadian Armed Forces, it got the works. They jumped on it, dropped rocks on it, tossed it out of aircraft and army lorries, froze it in ice, buried it in mud and sand. They finally gave up —and placed the order.

Its lightness and compactness makes this rugged stretcher a natural for everything from northern air-rescue work to the needs of hospital, police, Civil Defence and other authorities . . . Another job for Canada's aluminum and the men who work wonders with it.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Strawberry growers have a lot of trouble with parasites. Human parasites.

For some reason, people who are otherwise honest feel they have a licence to help themselves to berries. So I am told by Bill, a friend of mine from the berry-growing country.

Strawberries, like most produce, takes a solid investment of time, labor and money. The plants have a brief lifetime. And yet, many people treat them as though they grew wild.

Friends and relations who are never seen at any other season turn up without fail at strawberry time, and stand around waiting to be offered some free berries. If hints bring no results, they come right out and ask.

Usually they want to pick the berries themselves, under the impression that they are saving the farmer trouble. Quite the reverse. There's nothing a grower hates more than having a bunch of freeloaders loose on his berry patch. They trample the plants, and skim off the best berries, leaving the meagre ones for the professional pickers, who take a sour view of this treatment.

With much reluctance, Bill once let some relations loose in his patch. A boy in the party got off to a good start by treading on a clump of fat berries.

"See what happens?" Bill said to the boy's father.

"Get out of there, you young fool," said the father, running across to grab the boy — and crushing two or three clumps of berries under his own feet.

There is something about a box of berries that invites greedy fingers.

"I was talking to a friend of mine, a bank manager," said Bill. "He saw some berries in the back of my car. 'Ah, those look good,' he said, and he reached over and grabbed some.

"One of these days I'm going to walk into his bank and look over a pile of $10 bills. 'Ah, those look good,' I'm going to say. Then I'll scoop a handful and stuff them in my wallet.

That's no sillier than helping yourself to produce which a farmer has grown at great expense to earn himself a living."

PURINA BULKY-LAS . . .

When pastures wilt in summer heat
Most dairy cows don't want to eat
But here's an answer plain as day —
Feed those cows the Purina way.
When hot sun burns away the grass
That's the time for Bulky Las.
It's a great big bag of bulky feed
With all the things your cows need.
Molasses makes it taste just right;
Your cows will clean it up on sight.
Don't let your summer profits pass
Just feed your cows on BULKY LAS.

Bible School Children Present Pageant

Concluding two weeks of morning sessions in St. Simeon's Church hall, pupils attending the annual Vacation Bible School presented a pageant on scriptural themes with word, song and action. A fair crowd assembled last Friday evening to witness the program, and to view the handicrafts executed by girls and boys in the various age groups. Mr. W. E. Payne, who had directed the vocal endeavors of the young-fry during the two weeks at school, accompanied for the hymn-singing on this occasion. . . . The Rev. C. R. Lang directed the school, and this concluding program, with the aid of several willing helpers.

Lord Macaulay's estimate of the Bible: "The English Bible — a book which, if everything else in our language should perish, would alone suffice to show the whole extent of its beauty and power."

Bible Briefs

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the prophet who warned his hearers that the birds, following their migratory instinct, knew better than men what God wanted them to do, and the feathered creatures obeyed their maker better than humans? He said, "Even the stork in the heavens knows her times; and the turtledove, swallow and crane keep the time for their coming, but my people do not know time would come when the bones of the kings and princess of Judah, of the prophets and the people should come out of their tombs and be spread as refuse on the ground."

He refused to be false to his message and cry, "Peace, peace, when there was no peace." He commented, "My grief is beyond healing and my heart is sick within me."

The prophet asked, "Is the Lord not in Zion? Is her King not in her? Why have they provoked me to anger with their graven images and with their foreign idols?" He ends his appeal with these words, "Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there? Why then has the health of the daughter of my people not been restored?"

You will find this prophet's name and this message in Chapter 8 of Jeremiah.

In the first quarter of 1955 immigration to Canada totalled 17,627, 37 per cent less than in the first quarter of 1954. Almost half the 17,627 entries were wives, children and elderly dependents of immigrants or of persons already settled in Canada.

DANGEROUS MINORITY

Perhaps the simple process of evolution will remove all those accident-bound drivers from the highways, but in the meantime they constitute a serious hazard for the great majority who live with tomorrow in mind

— Ladysmith (B.C.) Chronicle

75 YEARS AGO

July 23, 1880 —

A child was born at Lachute a few days ago with a firm white tooth in the gum of its lower jaw.

A heavy fall of rain visited Lachute on Monday night and continued nearly all day Tuesday.

On Wednesday, Mr. Bannerman shipped a double waggonload of rope from his factory here. It is only five weeks since he first purchased the site, and is now turning out rope at the rate of about one ton a week by hand, all his machinery not being yet installed.

50 YEARS AGO

July 21, 1905 —

All residents of the West End are delighted that the efforts of Mr. McArthur to secure permission for the extension of the waterworks system have proved successful and the work is now underway.

The worst explosion in the history of the Dominion Cartridge Company was that of Friday last when Steve Carruthers, Jack Martin, Nap. Lamarche and Tom Charlebois were killed, and Wm. Tomalty and Eugene Racine injured. The explosion, which caused the destruction of the whole building, occurred in the detonating room, where an inexperienced man was engaged in repunching the detonators.

July 25, 1930 —

Work on the new building of the Montreal Bank is now progressing rapidly. The fine modern structure which they are now erecting will tone up the Main Street and give place to what has been known for years as the old Duderidge property.

Sir George Perley was returned to office by a large majority over his only opponent, L. L. Legault.

We are pleased to learn that Stuart Hammond Wilson has been duly recognized by the Canadian Humane Association, which presented him with a bronze medal for the heroic rescue of Owen Riddell from drowning in the North River on December 6 of last year. The young boy, playing on the ice which lined the shore, fell into the swift-running water. Although many others were present, Mr. Wilson volunteered, though he could not swim or had not been in a canoe before, but pushed it across the ice, boarded it and using only a board for a paddle, succeeded under great difficulty in rescuing the boy.

Saskatchewan has more lakes per capita than any other province.

Pretty Wedding in Arundel United Church

Zanth - Gray

Summer flowers decorated the Arundel United Church for the wedding of Miss Marilyn Olive Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Gray, to Maurice Anthony Zanth, son of Mrs. Donald Hess and the late Mr. Paul Zanth. Dr. David Forsyth of Toronto performed the double-ring ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Leslie Cooke and the soloist was Mrs. Louise Dawson of Burlington, Ont.

Mr. Allan Lawson acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Joseph Zanth and Stuart Cooke.

The bride wore a floor-length dress of white nylon lace and tulle over taffeta, a short veil, and carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations. Her only jewellery was a golden locket, a gift from the groom.

Miss Shirley Pearce, maid of honor, was in a yellow waltz-length gown of nylon net and lace over taffeta. The other attendant, Mrs. Harold Gordon, wore a gown of ice-blue nylon net over taffeta. They both carried semi-cascade bouquets of mauve and yellow mums.

Miss Lynne Cooke, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a floor-length dress of lilac nylon organdy trimmed with white. She carried a tiny cascade bouquet of yellow and mauve mums.

Mrs. Gray, the bride's mother, wore a mauve crepe and lace street-length gown with white accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations. Mrs. Hess, the groom's mother wore a Copen blue crepe and lace street-length gown, with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The ceremony was followed by a buffet supper and reception in the Arundel School auditorium. Mr. and Mrs. Zanth later left for a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara, Wheeling, West Virginia, and Vermont. For the trip the bride chose a sand suit with brown accessories, and a yellow straw hat and yellow short nylon fur jacket.

The Canadian pulp and paper industry is one of the major industrial enterprises of the world.

BOTH POLITE

Rose Valley, Man. (CP) — William Harrison set a trap near his barn and next day heard noises under the floor. Prying up a board he found a mother skunk, with one of its feet caught in the trap, feeding its young. Mr. Harrison let the skunk go unharmed, and she returned the courtesy.

Sports -- Juvenile Activities -- School

Many folks believe that no man is irreplaceable. The sudden recent passing of one man, however, has left a void that will last a long time. The fish conservation field is small compared to such older established professions as medicine and agriculture. Dr. Reuben William Eschmeyer was about as close to genius as our young profession has yet known. In many ways he was unique. His unexpected passing at the relatively youthful age of nearly fifty years cut short one of the most brilliant careers in conservation. It also marks the zenith of a fruitful period of pioneering in modern fish conservation technique and philosophy. He led the way in both. Other leaders will appear, but he set the pace.

Mr. Fish Himself

Mr. Eschmeyer was known to his many friends and associates by a variety of names, signposts in his career. To the legion of conservationists and sportsmen everywhere who knew him only by his work and writings, he was Mr. Fish himself. They were the poorer for not knowing him personally. Much of our current fish conservation philosophy is based upon his many important discoveries and writings.

Conservation for Children

The "Doc's" career was marked by a number of distinguished firsts in fishery research and management. In addition to his outstanding professional accomplishments, he was widely known as the author of ten books for children on conservation subjects. The list includes "Billy Bass", Tommy Trout", "Bobby Bluegill", "Freddy Fox "Willie Whitetail", "Woody Woodcock", "Mac Mallard", "Bob White" and "Al Aligator". These books are among the best sellers of children's literature. They are widely acclaimed by educators, conservationists, sportsmen's organizations, and the public alike.

Other Achievements

"Doc" Eschmeyer began his career as fishery biologist for the Institute of Fisheries Research, Michigan Conservation Department. He remained there for eight years, until 1938. It was there, while earning his Doctorate at the same time, that he scored the first of many significant accomplishments. He pioneered in the use of rotenone as a management tool for improving fishing in public waters — by eliminating existing fish populations and starting over. This technique is now widely used throughout North America as a leading method of improving sport fishing. He also pioneered in developing lake and pond habitat improvement measures. Again this was widely copied.

Sport Fishing Institute

In 1950 a group of leading fishing tackle manufacturers selected Dr. Eschmeyer as the outstanding fish conservationist in North America to guide their efforts to help "shorten the time between bites". As the first Executive Vice President of the newly organized non-profit Sport Fishing Institute, he became even better known and internationally too for his efforts to improve sport fishing. He developed a unique program emphasizing conservation education, practical fishery research and improvement of professional standards throughout the fishery field. He had been consulted increasingly by state and provincial fish and game departments for advice on modernizing their fishery programs. He emphasized in both writing and speech the need for the simplest possible regulations based on fact not fancy. He promoted widespread rehabilitation of fish populations and lake building activities. He understood as few do the close dependence of fish on proper soil and forest conditions. He showed conservationists and sportsmen everywhere the basic similarity between managing fish populations and managing land crops. His "Fish Conservation Fundamentals" are widely acclaimed as a readily understood digest of principles in this field.

His Memory Will Live

Dr. Eschmeyer will long be remembered by thousands. He liked people. People liked him. His spark fired the whole sport fishing world and fish conservation movements with renewed vitality. It awakened conservationists and sportsmen from complacency over the established order to an urgency of things needing to be done. Educators, enforcement men, administrators, commissioners, sportsmen, conservationists, politicians — all felt his influence and grew under it. The strong concept on which his ideals were based is that the human animal is most important. He believed that fishing makes a strong contribution to human welfare as a means of recreation, and he constantly stressed the recreational value of fishing as a means to sound mental and physical health. He believed this to be the great value of the sport. Thousands of folks will agree that Dr. Eschmeyer did much to make the world a happier place to fish and live in.

Radio, TV Coverage for Marilyn Bell Swim

Plans have been made to report Marilyn Bell's English Channel swim on both CBC radio and television.

Although some doubt still hangs over the actual date on which Marilyn will swim, the CBC has made plans to provide extensive coverage of the young Canadian's challenge of the Channel, including direct radio coverage of the beginning and conclusion, and a report on her progress about half way. Newsreel coverage will be shown on TV.

The CBC hopes to be able to beam shortwave, direct from a boat in the channel, a description of events leading up to Marilyn's dive-in, "live" to the Trans-Canada network, with the possibility of pre-swim interviews with Marilyn and her coach Gus Ryder.

Arrangements for the shortwave broadcasts have been made through the co-operation of the BBC.

A second report, several hours later will tell of Marilyn's progress and when she is expected to reach the English coast. A third report will cover her arrival.

Special bulletins on Marilyn's progress will be announced as they are received in the CbC newsrooms.

'Newsmagazine' Visits St. Pierre and Miquelon

For CBC "Newsmagazine" a TV crew from Halifax went to the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon on July 14 — Bastille Day — to film the holiday celebrations. Coverage was expected to include views of the torch parade past the Governor's residence, the dancing in the streets and other festivities in one of France's remotest colonies, right on Canada's front doorstep; it will be seen on the program of July 24 or 31.

"Newsmagazine's" Montreal representative, François Morisset, and a film crew from Halifax flew to the French islands and upon their arrival were the geusts of the governor at a reception held in his residence.

St. Pierre and Miquelon, the sole French possessions remaining in North America, are situated 10 miles off the south coast of Newfoundland. The total area of the two small groups of islands is 93 square miles. Both major islands consist of rugged masses of granite with a few small streams and lakes. The population totals about 4,500, of whom 3,500 live in St. Pierre, the capital. The colony is important to France because of its proximity to the Grand Banks fishing ground; it is the centre of the French Atlantic cod fisheries.

The islands were occupied by the French in 1660. In 1702 they were captured by the British who held them until 1763 when they were given back to France as a fishing station. They changed hands several times until the Treaty of Paris, in 1814, gave the French undisputed possession.

Massed Pipe Bands Highlight at Maxville

A Glengarry village of 800 souls is again preparing for the friendly invasion of thousands from all points of the compass on Saturday, July 30, when the Glengarry Highland Games will see massed pipe bands marching to the strains of the popular "Road to the Isles." Highland dancers from almost every province in Canada and several States of the Union will also be competing for handsome trophies and there will be piping competitions, tossing the caber and Caledonian events to fill an afternoon of colorful activity.

The band competitions and the grand finale of the massed bands are the big attraction of the day and Games' officials report 11 pipe bands are coming for the 1955 competitions. Such topflight bands as the Toronto Scottish, the Argyle and Sutherland of Hamilton, the 48th Highlanders and several RCAF aggregations will be in Maxville, as well as such novelty bands as the Glengarry Girls' Band of Syracuse, N.Y., and the Boy Scout pipers from Lachiine.

More than 20,000 people poured into Maxville for the inaugural of this big annual event in 1948. And every year since, the last Saturday of July has brought its throngs to make this the big day of the year in Glengarry.

'Artificial Barriers' To Child Adoption ?

What he calls "the artificial barriers between a family seeking to adopt a child and the children awaiting adoption in institutions" will be discussed at 10.20 p.m. this Sunday night on CBC Trans-Canada by Dr. Alan Klass, a Winnipeg physician and surgeon. "The barriers could mean that a child may be doomed to live in an institution," says Dr. Klass, who holds that the main barrier is a religious one.

Under the child welfare acts of all the provinces a child may not be adopted into a home of any other religion than its own, he says. The mother of the new-born child born out of wedlock, has the absolute right to determine that religion. Using simple economic terms, Dr. Klass says there is a breakdown in supply and demand within the various religions and he asks whether the welfare of the child is not more important than its religious affiliation. He suggests a Royal Commission to investigate this and other barriers so that a child may be adopted "by any parent who would provide the child with the care and love to which every child in the world has the right."

Dr. Klass is a graduate of the University of Manitoba and of Edinburgh University, and a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons. He is married and has two children.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Litter left behind at a camp or picnic site may be a sign of past enjoyment, but it's a future headache for fellow tourists. If you've ever stopped at a spot despoiled by its former occupants, you know that a "litter-oug" wreaks more havoc upon picknickers than ants or other insects possibly could.

Litter is unnecessary because it's so easy to leave a neat trail behind you. Picnic grounds and roadside parks are usually equipped with a trash receptacle for "left-overs". If you've had a barbecue, weiner roast or steak fry, do what I do — bury the signs of your fire. If no bin is handy, take along your litter for disposal later.

Some people leave picnic and camp sites neat, but litter up the insides of their cars. When you travel, your car is your home away from home. Keep it as neat and "picked up" as you would your own living room. Other travellers preserve the neatness of their cars at the expense of the nation's highways — by "marking" their trail with refuse. It's easy to avoid extremes. Just take along a paper bag or box in which to store your trash temporarily.

It's easy to be a good Samaritan when you travel. Make sure that future drivers, campers and picnicers will not be the victims of your untidiness.

COMMONWEALTH CARPET

London — Only wools from the Commonwealth have been used in a 141-foot, 22-foot wide carpet made by a Scottish firm for the Picture Gallery of the Palace of Holyroodhouse. Of Renaissance design, in four shades of red to harmonise with the 17th century setting of the Gallery, the carpet is of high grade Axminster quality woven through to the back so that each tuft is securely locked and the effect is similar to that of a handmade carpet.

Summer Desserts

Berry season is here again and what could be more perfect for a hot weather dessert than a bowl of cool flavored juicy berries. Whether served plain or dressed up they make a colorful appetizing dish to tempt lagging summer appetites.

The home economists of the Consumer Section say that berries are one of the most perishable fruits and for this reason they are packed most carefully after being picked and then transported quickly. The best flavor is found in berries that are plump, firm and uniformly ripened.

To store berries they should be kept cool and dry in a place where there is a good air circulation. Never pack berries in jars. They suggest storing them on trays or shallow pans as this will avoid bruising or crushing the berries.

For safety's sake, all fruit should be washed before serving! When washing berries put them in a large bowl of cold water — with strawberries wash before hulling. Let any sand or soil settle to the bottom then lift the berries gently from the water with your fingers letting them act as a strainer. Do not let berries stand long in the water because they are apt to lose their good color and flavor.

Probably because the berry season is so short, we never seem to be able to get as many as we would like. So this year why not make the most of berries by serving them in a variety of different ways. One of the most popular ways is a simple dessert of berries and cream with perhaps a little sugar. Pies and tarts are natural favorites and a fruit chiffon pie or a crisp angel pie with a fruit filling can give an otherwise simple meal a party air. No one would be satisfied to let the fruit season pass by without having several shortcakes made either with light golden brown biscuits or tender cake layers and topped with swirls of whipped cream.

Snowy white meringue baskets are always tempting served heaped full of ice cream and sweetened berries. Popular also are ice cream sundaes with fresh berries and so are the host of frozen and ice box fruit desserts.

Glazed Strawberry Tarts

1 Quart box of strawberries, 4 teaspoons cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, few grains salt, ¼ cup water, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, remaining berries from one quart (about 2½ cups).

Wash, hull and drain strawberries. Crush one cup reserving the remainder to fill baked tart shells. Place crushed berries in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and put through a fine sieve. Make a paste of the cornstarch, sugar salt and water, and add this to the sieved berries. Return to the heat, stirring constantly until the mixture boils and becomes clear — about 3 minutes. Cool slightly and add lemon juice. Place well drained berries in individual baked tart shells. Spoon the glaze over the berries.

If desired, place a teaspoon or two of softened cream cheese or a tablespoon of vanilla pudding in each tart shell before adding the berries. Yield: 1 dozen medium tarts.

Note: Other fruits may be used in the tarts, as they come into season, in place of the strawberries.

Raspberry Sponge

1 Tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 2 cups raspberries, ½ cup water, ½ cup sugar, dash of salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 egg whites, 3 tablespoons sugar. Soak gelatine in the ¼ cup of cold water for five minutes then dissolve over hot water. Crush raspberries, add water, sugar, salt and lemon juice, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Add dissolved gelatine, blending thoroughly. Chill and when mixture begins to thicken, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites to which the 3 tablespoons sugar have been added. Pour into one large or individual moulds. Chill until firm. Serve with a custard sauce made with 2 egg yolks. Yield: six servings.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Many people have asked me if I really enjoy cooking.

Indeed I do. In fact, I often prepare the meals and when I do, whatever I cook, I always learn something new—even when the food is the everyday kind.

One evening last week, I cooked braised short ribs of beef. Why not serve them with mustard sauce! This is what I invented—and even the chef approved.

Mustard-Onion-Sauce: Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add 3 medium-chopped peeled onions, ¼ teaspoon sugar and 1 tablespoon mustard; simmer 5 minutes. Then stir in tablespoon flour and 1½ cups beef broth drained from the beef.

Leftovers

The next evening I decided to use up the meat left over from the short ribs. With this I concocted the beef Neapolitan, given in this column, to serve over buttered rice.

Buttery Flaky Rice: This time I cooked 1½ cups long-grained converted rice by the flaky method and for once, succeeded in getting it as "buttery" as I like it. Instead of stirring in the butter after the rice was cooked, I added 2½ tablespoons butter at the end of 10 minutes. Of course, it cooked into and through the rice. A delectable difference.

Frozen shredded beans also came in for a change. I cooked them covered for exactly 7 minutes in salted water to only ½ cover; then taste-tested. They were bite-tender, flavorful and beautifully green.

Crab Salad Canapes: Open 1 (7 oz.) can crabmeat. Remove any bone-like pieces, flake the crabmeat medium-fine. Add 1 tablespoon each minced celery and scallion and mayonnaise or salad dressing to blend.

Cut rounds of bread with a good-sized biscuit cutter. Spread with mayonnaise. Top each with a thin slice of tomato. Dust with salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate. Spread with the crab salad. Top with a thin slice of pickle or stuffed olive.

Serve very cold. Garnish of cress or parsley.

Beef Neapolitan: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a good-sized frying pan that can go into the oven.

Add 1 chopped peeled onion and cook until translucent. Then add 1½ pounds chopped beef. Stir with a fork until lightly browned.

Add 1 (4 oz.) can sliced mushrooms and the liquid and ½ cup water. Stir in the contents one (8 oz.) can Neapolitan sauce. Cover and bake-simmer 30 minutes. Serve spooned over buttered rice.

Trick of the Chef

Season crab salad canapes with minced tarragon.

ANY KIND OF TOAST

Having toast troubles? There's now an easy-to-clean, electric toast-oven that accommodates several pieces of bread at one time, and it doesn't matter if they're all different thicknesses, reports The Financial Post. You can keep toast warm; and can make oven-like buttered toast, cinnamon toast, toasted cheese sandwiches, etc. Coffee cakes or rolls can be heated, too.

Fashions

Here is a preview of what will be worn at smart theatrical openings next season. The evening jacket is of paisley pattern silver lame and is cuffed and collared in mink. It is worn with an understated but distinctive dress, which is as it should be, with so opulent a jacket. The black crepe dress has a low, square neckline and inverted tucks through the middle lend a slightly shaped silhouette to an otherwise straight line.

Only very hot soapsuds and rinses will remove baby oil stains from baby's wardrobe.

Junior W.I. Girls Enjoy Camping Session

Junior groups of the Quebec Women's Institutes have just completed a five-day camp at Bury, Que. About 15 girls attended and all report a wonderful time, with ideal weather throughout.

Mrs. A. Cameron of Sawyerville, Junior Supervisor, was in charge of the outing, assisted by Counsellors Mrs. R. MacLeod, of Bury, and Mrs. M. Sicard of Warden, the latter acting as camp nurse, and Miss Bridget Altimas of the Q.W.I. staff.

A full program was carried out of small crafts, dramatics, folk dancing, swimming, hikes, and singing around the camp fire.

Rural girls ranging from 12 to 16 years of age belong to the six junior branches, which are at widely scattered points in the province. Several successful projects were carried out the past year in dramatics, feltwork, jewellery, quilting, etc., and enthusiastic plans are being made for the future.

The purpose of the J.W.I. is to provide worthwhile activities for rural teen-agers, where there are no other youth groups, leading to more intelligent and imaginative service in their community.

PENALIZING MARRIAGE

A married woman who works at a job or profession must very often hire someone else to care for her children or her home; but, points out The Financial Post, she is not allowed to deduct any part of this as an expense, and her husband is deprived of the married status which would otherwise have helped to offset this cost.

The reason for this tax setup is often said to be the feeling that it is against public policy to encourage married women to work; they should be at home looking after their children themselves.

If the Government is going to argue (even privately) that the Income Tax Act provisions are a good thing because they tend to discourage married women from seeking employment, they might reflect that by the same reasoning, the act as it stands could be said to encourage immorality.

Woman Now Heads Ancient Company

Montreal (CP) — A rare bottle of cognac has been brought here from France. Almost 270 years old, it came packed in a wicker basket lined with silk.

The bottle was brought by Mme Suzanne Rouyer Guillet, first woman head of the ancient cognac firm of Rouyer Guillett and Co.

The Cognac, destined for Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau, with greetings from the Mayor of La Rochelle, France, was bottled in the first year of the firm's existence, 1687.

Holding up the bottle to the light, Mme. Guillet, president and director-general of the family firm, said: said:

"Look at the color, how pale it is. The oldest cognac we have is white. . . ."

The Mayor of La Rochelle had to present the bottle to Montreal's first citizen "as a token of friendship," she explained.

For nine generations the family business has been handed down from father to son.

Mme. Guillet tok over the business administration, at the request of her husband, in 1948.

"My husband doesn't like business," she explained. "He likes nature and looking after the vineyards and family property."

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

The Strain of Fear

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

In the Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery, Montreal, Dr. Hans Selye's work has focused the attention of everyone interested in health, on the detrimental effect of stress in the lives of people today. Any student of children will testify that excessive fear puts a boy or girl under a tragic amount of strain.

How can fathers and mothers best help the too fearful child? It is true that some fear is necessary in the kind of world in which we live. The child who has no fear of being hit by a car or a truck is apt to run out on the road after a ball, or hurry across to see a chum on the other side of the street, without first looking to left and to right to see if a car is coming.

The little girl who is not afraid of being burned by her mother's iron, may try to use it herself and receive a nasty burn. The small boy who has no fear of the neighbor's cat may tease the pussy once too often! For many years fear has been useful in preventing people from getting themselves into "danger situations."

But many doctors and mental health experts are agreed that there is a great deal too much fear in the minds and hearts of countless children and grownups. This unnecessary fear lessens happiness and effectiveness in work. If a person becomes increasingly anxious and frightened, physical and mental well being may be in jeopardy.

Parents are warned to use fear of punishment very sparingly in disciplining their children. Never resort to threats about "the big policeman," or "the boogeyman," or any other fictitious person who will deal out painful vengeance for misdeeds. Continually frightening a little child into good behaviour may seem to "work" in the present but an adult who has little or no initiative (because he fears failure or disapproval) or one who is in a perpetual state of vague nervous apprehension of some calamity befalling him, is distinctly handicapped.

Fears are very contagious and sometimes it is not fear of punishment but a parent's own fear of lightning or something else which a child "catches." Mothers and fathers should be careful not to pass on to their children their own crippling fears.

It is natural for children to express their fears and look to their parents for re-assurance and safety. Many children display fear of various things — the dark, animals, loud noises such as thunder, falling from a high place, and of strangers.

Children should be allowed to speak of their fears. Their parents should tell them that they know that many little children are afraid at times, but as they grow older they will grow braver—and even laugh at the things which scared them! Children who are hero worshippers are often assisted by the story of another child or a grownup who was also afraid and in spite of his fear did his duty, or completed the job he had to do.

The constantly fearful child is a "crippled" child and no parent wants his boy or girl to have an unnecessary handicap like this throughout life. Neither the too protective mother's attitude, nor the too impatient father's technique help a child face the problem of getting along with others. Parents need to help their children grow in self-confidence and thus decrease their inner feeling of strain.

The Bourkes all work at the Bell!

Away back in 1922, a young man by the name of Arthur Bourke joined our company. Little did he realize that his children—all six of them—would follow in his footsteps to careers at the Bell. Today Mr. Bourke would be more than proud of his handsome family. We know we are!

The Bourkes, like all telephone people, know from their own experience that the Bell is "a good place to work". They have found pleasant associates and interesting work at good wages. They have also found satisfaction and opportunity in serving the public in an essential business.

And this is as it should be, for good telephone service depends upon people who like their jobs, and convey this feeling to our customers. This is the feeling that is largely responsible for "the spirit of service" you find in Bell employees wherever you meet them.

Investiture of Girl Guides At Morin Heights

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — On Tuesday evening, a ceremonial enrolment of 21 Girl Guides who had passed their Tenderfoot tests, took place at Morin Intermediate School. District Commissioner Mrs. W. S. Dart, of Rosemere, officiated and presented the girls with their pins, which had been donated by the Women's Association of Morin Heights United Church.

The troop is composed of four patrols — Blue Birds, Violets, Lillies and Forget-me-nots.

A marching demonstration was given by the troop under the supervision of their Captain, Mrs. Allan Kirkpatrick, Lieut. J. F. Henry, Asst. Lieut. Miss B. Bell, and Asst. Lieut. Miss Aline Guenette. This was followed by games and relays, prior to a singsong by the Guides around the camp-fire.

Dist. Commissioner Mrs. W. S. Dart then addressed the gathering. She stated that a new Laurentian District had been formed composed of Bouchard, Rosemere, Terrebonne Heights, Lac St. Denis, and Morin Heights, and asked for the continued interest of the parents.

Color-bearers were Lila Weir and Donna Henry — the World Flag being presented by the Guild of Trinity Anglican Church. The "ties" were presented by the W.I. of Morin Heights.

Capt. Patterson, of the Girl Guides of Lac St. Denis, and Mrs. S. Wilsdon, were guests of Morin Heights Guides. Mrs. S. Wilsdon was also enrolled by the Dist. Commissioner.

Refreshments were then served to the parents and friends by the Morin Heights Guides, at which time the Rev. H. Baugh expressed his appreciation to the Leaders and Guides for the fine work they had done.

Most Modern Trucks on any job with the most advanced truck features the industry has ever seen!

CHEVROLET
A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Only new Chevrolet Task-force Trucks bring you all these truly modern design and engineering features today!

They're the marks of a modern truck, and they out-date any make without them!

And they're the money-making, money-saving advantages that ask this question: Can you really afford not to make your next new truck a Chevrolet? Judge for yourself!

Beginning with Work-Styling, an entirely new development in truck design. For the first time in any line of trucks, Chevrolet brings you two styling treatments. Two distinctively different designs—one for light- and medium-duty models, another for heavy-duty jobs — both clean-lined and modern to the smallest detail. Here is styling with a meaning. Styling that's matched to the model and the job.

Ride Custom cab features the extra comfort of a foam rubber cushion and harmonizing two-tone inside. Outside, bright metal moldings and new two-tone color options. Custom cabs set whole new standards for comfort and convenience.

New concealed Safety Steps. Running boards are ancient history now. Chevrolet's new Safety Steps are out of sight with the doors closed. That way, snow, ice or mud can't collect to cause accidents. Safety Steps are lower, too, for easier entrance.

The latest in cab comfort and safety. Inside you can count on the same ultra-modern touch — softer seat action that reduces driver fatigue, a new instrument cluster that can be read at a glance, and more durable construction throughout. The new Flite-Sweep windshield completely surrounds the side windows, reducing possibility of breakage. A wide-view wrap-around rear window is available as an extra-cost option.

Fresh air in all kinds of weather. With Chevrolet's new High-Level ventilating system, air is drawn in through louvers at cowl level. That means air is constantly circulated through the cab, regardless of disagreeable weather conditions.

High-Voltage power starts you quicker. You really have it modern under the hood! All New Task-Force engines are sparked by a hefty 12-volt electrical system. Quicker starting, even on cold mornings, is one big advantage. Increased generator capacity is another. The high-compression power of these great valve-in-head engines keeps you running longer between gas stops. Here's performance that cuts operating costs and shaves valuable time from your schedules!

Tubeless tires standard on ½-ton models. Pickups, panels, Suburban Carry-alls — all models in the ½-ton class now come with new tubeless tires. Here's greater protection against blowouts.

Every Power Helper in the book. Power brakes, for example — a big help in reducing driver effort while increasing safety—are standard equipment on heavier models, an extra-cost option on others. The new handling ease of Power Steering, another extra-cost option, cuts turning effort up to 80%. There's new gas-saving Overdrive, as an extra-cost option on ½-ton models . . . and truck Hydra-Matic — ideal for stop-and-go city hauling —available at extra cost on ½-, ¾-, and 1-ton jobs. They're worthwhile extra-cost helpers that can save you a lot of time and money in the long run.

The New Cameo Carrier. Sports model of the truck field—designed with special jobs in mind! Long and low, with smooth, fleet lines, here's the Custom pickup that may well create a whole new class of truck owners!

And the final touch. Color! New colors and two-tone combinations add the final styling touch to these great new trucks. Your selection is wider than ever before. Choose the color combination that best matches your job, that best calls attention to you and your business. That way you'll be taking full advantage of the advertising value of your new Task-Force model.

One final word. When the time comes to trade in '55 models, the man without a really modern truck stands to take a good-sized loss. Come in and see us soon.

ALONG THE OTTAWA RIVER AND LAURENTIAN FOOTHILLS

By Ethel P. Kettyle

PART II

Ambitious Development in Romantic Setting

Let us go back many years, to the historical setting of "Lucerne-in-Quebec" . . .

Many years ago, a patch of wilderness along the Ottawa River was acquired by the Papineaus, and it gave them a new seigneurial dignity. In the year of 1812, Joseph Papineau was elected a member of the Legislative Assembly at Quebec, and he had a handsome 26-year-old son, who was elected to sit at the same Assembly at the same time. He was already a captain in the Militia, and defended his country in the Invasion of 1812. At the age of 29, he became speaker in the House. Joseph Louis Papineau was lauded as a patriot, hero and scholar. He was also intelligent, brilliant and charming, and had the personal ability to sway a crowd to his liking. However, as time went on, it became evident that his domineering and hasty temper alarmed even his closest friends, and he became less popular. Nevertheless, for many years the name Papineau was an outstanding one.

Then, some years ago, what remained of the Seigneury was purchased from the Papineau family, and the estate was used to develop the Seigniory Club.

In the year of 1930, the Lucerne-in-Quebec Community Association proudly proclaimed to all sports-loving people the attractions of their famous Log Lodge. It was advertised as an enchanting 80,000-acre Laurentian Mountain Vacationland, in a gorgeous setting, with the towering Laurentians on one side and the sparkling waters of the Ottawa on the other, and No. 8 Highway running through the centre.

Springing up in that quiet little community was this huge Lodge, which became so widely known that reservations could be arranged in such far-away places as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Montreal. Among the directors were such important men as H. M. Saddlemire, President; Honorable L. A. Taschereau, Premier of the Province of Quebec; E. W. Beatty, K.C., Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company; Hon. Frederic L. Bourque, K.C., President of the Banque Canadienne Nationale; Sir Charles Gordon, President of the Bank of Montreal; and Sir Herbert Holt President of the Royal Bank of Canada.

A fortune had been invested to provide the finest recreational facilities — a calendar of out-door activities including golf, riding, swimming, tennis, yachting, flying, hunting, fishing and many other diversions; and for the socially inclined, such amusements as dancing, bridge, badminton, and garden parties on flowered terraces overlooking the Ottawa River.

Roads of romance in the colorful Province of Quebec still lead the motorist to the Log Lodge of Lucerne-in-Quebec, The Seigniory Club, an enchanting vacationland, 75 miles west of Montreal and 40-odd miles east of Ottawa.

The vast game preserve nearby teamed with wild life. Trails, extending far into the Laurentian Mountains led the hunter into thickly populated bird covers and the haunts of deer and other forest animals.

More than 40 lakes and streams gave keen sport to the anglers.

At the time of building, 180 rooms with tiled baths and 15 three-roomed suites were provided.

Huge pine trees surround the artistic structure. Guards in smart uniforms stand at the gates, and while there are the inevitable changes, a tall, kindly-speaking Irishman by the name of Paddy Coyne still stands guard, and those entering the gates will not forget his Irish brogue.

When travelling by train in the winter time, it will be noticed that many well-dressed people, some in mink, others in expensive sports clothes carrying skis, will disembark at the Log Station, between Ottawa and Montreal.

For many years the town seemed void of manufacturing, and in dignity boasted only the big Log Lodge, its Catholic schools, the usual stores, and some stately houses; but recently a small group of people from several nations is demonstrating that Canada is a land of opportunity, and now a metal company is operating there, turning out millions of tubes. In close contact, one may now hear conversation in Swiss-accented German, also in Italian, and in the native French-Canadian.

The growing company is only a few years old, but already it has made a definite impression on business . . . So much for this little town that has made history along the Ottawa River.

One journeys next through Fasett, a sleepy little village that was formerly noted for its lumbering.

Then on to Pointe-au-Chêne, where a few houses and stores nestle along the mountainside, and all along the way can be seen brightly painted summer cottages down by the river's edge.

Presently one comes to Calumet, a small village busy with its lumber mills in summer time, and quiet and tranquil in winter. From here, roads lead back into the mountains where lie the White Rock (magnesite) Mines.

Now the village of Grenville, and a fork in the highway, the road to the right leading to the Perley Bridge which spans the river to the Ontario town of Hawkesbury.

But if the traveller wants to see the old historic places, one stays in Quebec and travels along the river, through the little French settlement of Grece's Point with its quaint habitant dwellings, and on to Cushing with its old stone church and store, which has weathered the elements well over the century mark. Both are still in use, and upon entering the church (which is now a United Church) one marvels at the well-kept interior. Many an artist from the city has paused to view the beauty of this fine old community, and has stayed to portray it on canvas.

Now one comes to the quaint, historic village of Carillon, where there are locks along the canal, which raise and lower the water to allow the passage of boats, avoiding the swift rapids along that particular part of the Ottawa.

If visiting this little community on a holiday, one might see the shores along the canal lined with fishermen, especially in the spring of the year.

The site of the village of Carillon is at the foot of the Long Sault Rapids, and during the French regime this was the natural stopping place of travellers on their way to the interior. Here Champlain, Marquette and Joliette, and various Indian missionaries, also the Hudson Bay traders, camped in their journeys.

Carillon was also the scene, in 1660, of the historic exploit of Dollard des Ormeaux and his companions, whose heroic resistance to a large band of Iroquois Indians is said to have saved the then-small town of Montreal from destruction; and a monument was erected to mark the place.

The Seigneury of Argenteuil, in which lies the Village of Carillon, St. Andrews East, the town of Lachute and many other parishes, was established in 1682, when 72 miles of virgin forest on the north bank of the Ottawa River was granted by Count Frontenac to Charles Joseph d'Ailleboust, and was later sold by his heirs, and again passed from person to person.

Shortly after the war of 1812 with the United States, it is said that, on the advice of the Duke of Wellington, a project was developed to establish an inland waterway, from Montreal to the Great Lakes by means of canal . . . The Grenville Canal was built in 1825-29, and the Carillon Canal was built from 1829-34. Hence the said locks came into being.

Then, in Carillon in 1829, a Barracks building was erected by General Forbes for the accommodation of the Unit guarding the entrance to the canal. It housed, during the Rebellion of 1837-38, 108 soldiers and a corresponding number of officers.

The Barracks, a large stone structure, now fills the appropriate role of a historical museum, whose highlights we will touch upon in our subsequent instalment.

Machinist Builds Miniature Railroad In Edmonton Home

Northern Scenery Re-created By Veteran Railroader

Edmonton (CP) — You can't keep an old railroader away from tracks and trains.

At least not George Bisson, of Edmonton, a retired Northern Alberta Railways machinist, who after 42 years of real steam locomotives, box cars, and track, has started building models.

During the 42 years Mr. Bisson worked for the Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway, now the NAR, he travelled into rugged and sparsely settled country in northwestern Alberta and northeastern British Columbia.

Now he re-created in his basement the country he worked in and travelled through. He built a scale model using the scenes and terrain of the northland.

In his basement he has 600 feet of line and a good supply of rolling stock complete with remote controlled switches and modern tunnels.

The track, laid on miniature wooden ties, winds through tunnels climb grades, and crosses gorges on high-level trestles.

The line begins in a roundhouse where its six locomotives are stored. This roundhouse is complete with a turntable, made from parts of an old gramophone, which swings engines to a number of different tracks and spur lines.

Mr. Bisson so far has spent $300 on the line — a compartively small amount, he says. The cost would have been much greater if he had not made it himself.

Realistic models include a station, homestead and a hand-hewn log cabin.

The line has a spiral tunnel, similar to the famous CPR tunnels near Field, B.C., in the Rockies. The model tunnel has four entrances, complete even with soot covering each of the entrances.

This versatile railroader has even constructed and painted the railroad's background of wheat fields, mountains and rolling plains.

Some are unwisely liberal, and more delight to give presents than to pay debts.

Privacy or Preservation ? Government Inquiries On the Whooping Crane

Ottawa (CP) — The whooping crane, one of the most intriguing of bird species, is losing some of its mystery.

Wildlife officials have been up north in Wood Buffalo National Park peeking on the whoopers. Since last month they have been under observation by the Canadian and United States officials. Not so long ago even the summer home of the big, white heron-like whooper was a mystery; when the wildlife party returns with its findings later this month it is expected to bring back much new information.

The Northern Affairs Department, telling about the party's search for knowledge of the whoopers' mating and nesting habits, said the group is investigating what are believed to be the summer residences of six of the almost extinct birds.

The discovery that the whooping cranes, of which only 21 are known to exist, nest in the 17,300-square-mile buffalo sanctuary on the Alberta-Northwest Territories boundary, was made last summer.

Six adult whoopers and one youngster were sighted in the park and the Canadian Wildlife Service knew exactly where they were nesting.

Wildlife experts had been trying for years to find the birds' nesting place. They knew the whooping cranes wintered in Texas and journeyed to the Canadian North for summer nesting, but even when trailed by planes the birds gave observers the slip.

They were finally found by a group of wildlife experts surveying the park's buffalo population from a helicopter.

The exact location of the cranes' nesting site is still a carefully guarded secret, but the Northern Affairs Department said frequent observations of the birds were made after their discovery last summer, until their autumn migration to the gulf coast of Texas, where most of them winter at the United States wildlife sanctuary of Arkansas.
