'Little Fellow' Gets Bouquet At School Prize Ceremony

Notable features of the school-opening ceremonies and prize-giving at Lachute High School were the principal's report (Mr. Fred Royal's 10th successive annual review), and a very creditable choir — the Lachute United Church junior choral group, tutored and trained by one of the school's graduates of recent record, Wayne Riddell.

The year's report was outstanding for the high achievement of the 1955 graduates — 31 out of 34 in Grade XI having received their High School Leaving Certificate, five of these with first-class standing; and one pupil, Rosemary Legge, having ranked sixth in the entire province. For these results, and the school's consistent progress, Mr. Royal gave three-fold credit — to the pupils, the teaching staff and the school board.

Grade XI this year will have a difficult task to equal the results of their predecessors, observed the school board chairman, James W. McGibbon, who presided at the annual ceremonies as on many such previous occasions. Speaking of the school property and management, Mr. McGibbon made fitting reference to the commissioners and their particular assignments. "Your Board realizes you have an investment of over a million dollars, and it is our duty to look after it." Also on the receiving line for bouquets was that "little fellow" characterized in the cartoons, the taxpayer. Some who had not enjoyed the advantages of education — some who have a hard time meeting their tax payments — to "a lot of good people who have had to work hard", Chairman McGibbon voiced public appreciation for the educational facilities now available here.

Regrets were received from the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, who was unable to attend. Present on the platform were members of the clergy; representative prize-donors including members of the Women's Institutes and of the Legion; several of the commissioners, and Mr. Geo. Y. Deacon, member of the Quebec Protestant Committee of Education.

Mrs. Geo. McGibbon voiced the satisfaction of the donors in this manner of encouraging good scholarship, and interspersed her remarks with a few apt quotations. Commissioner E. W. Smith extended thanks to the donors.

The Rev. Wilson Bridge opened the proceedings with a prayer, and Wayne Riddell accompanied his juvenile choir in several excellent renditions.

The long list of prizes and scholarship awards, presented on the platform, was highlighted by triumphs of the more studious pupils; all were warmly applauded.

The function, held Friday evening in the school auditorium, was well attended by parents, relatives and friends.

Premises Entered And Thefts Reported

Three Thursday night incidents in which the same group of lawbreakers are suspected, were reported for the investigation of Det. Ralph Allen following entry into the garage of Leon Roussignal, St. Andrews East, and theft of approximately $125.

The chain of complaints started Thursday night when Sterling Laughren, of Stonefield, reported that his 1950-model car had been stolen. The car was spotted near a restaurant own by Gaston Charbonneau at St. Andrews East, where it was later reported that thieves had attempted to gain entry. The garage was then reported to have been entered; St. Eustache provincial police were informed, but failed to discover the car reported heading in that direction.

The car was found Saturday on the Montreal highway. To date no arrests have been made. The investigation is continuing.

Move to Purge Newsstands of Immoral Books and Periodicals

A "clean-up the newsstands" campaign, backed by the parish committees of Ste. Anastasie and St. Julien, was launched at the regular Council meeting last evening when a letter signed by the joint chairmen of both committees was presented requesting some action on the part of the Council.

The letter requests that the sale of immoral and unwholesome publications be banned in Lachute. It was held for study by the Council. A rough translation of the letter follows:

The Municipal Council,
Town of Lachute.

Mr. Mayor and Aldermen:

At their regular monthly meeting held in September, the Parish Committees of Ste. Anastasie and St. Julien, comprising the chairmen of all Catholic and social organizations in each of the parishes, voiced the opinion that Lachute should follow the example of Montreal and other municipalities and wage a campaign against immoral newspapers and magazines.

Representatives of these committees have visited the local distributors of these publications for the past year or more, and it is known that obscene and immoral papers, periodicals, magazines and books which are on both the Provincial and Federal banned list, are being offered for sale within the limits of Lachute. Representations to the various dealers have been ineffective; many stores are still selling these periodicals to local citizens, and particularly to youths of the community.

The two parish committees therefore request the Municipal Council to consider the following propositions:

1. That the Council officially and publicly advise all dealers that newspapers, revues, magazines, books, etc., of an obscene, immoral, or seditious nature, either banned or in any other way contrary to morals and good conduct, will not be tolerated in Lachute.

2. That orders be given the Chief of Police to supervise and regularly inspect such vendors to enforce the decision of the Council.

3. That the Chief of Police be authorized to prepare an individual case against each offender for each offence.

4. That the Municipal Council authorize the Chief of Police and the legal advisor to take necessary action against any vendor or distributor of any periodicals of this type.

Yours truly,
— Parish Committees
St. Julien, Joint Chairmen —
Mrs. Richard Ayers,
Roger Depratto.
Ste. Anastasie, Joint Chairmen —
Mrs. Lucien Savard,
Liguory Chevrier.

The request for local action was heard sympathetically by Mayor Dr. FitzGerald and the Council, but the committee representatives were informed that the matter was not within the jurisdiction of the Municipal authorities. Following some discussion, the Council considered a resolution to be directed to the attention of the Hon. Maurice Duplessis, Attorney General, and to the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, requesting that the Provincial authorities take action locally.

Observance of 'National Newspaper Week'

Special Emphasis, October 1-8, on Role and Importance of the Weeklies

Canadian weekly newspapers came into being in answer to the demand of the early settlers in a new country for news not only of their own village but of the world. The oldest of our weeklies (including this journal) carried a much larger percentage of news of Europe than of their immediate locality. They also acted as Hansard and reported the proceedings of parliament in full. As the country grew this trend was reversed, and today, in the weekly newspapers of Canada you will find emphasis on the local scene, the municipal government, the schools and churches and industrial activity. News of the world comes to them in daily papers which rapid transportation has made available in a matter of hours. In sections of the country where towns and villages lie close to the big cities, it is not unusual to have five or six daily papers coming into such a town, and to attempt world coverage against these odds would be ridiculous.

Nevertheless, the weekly newspaper in Canada is still the heir to all the experience, the struggle and the success which was secured for it when freedom of the press was born, and as such stands today in a secure and highly important position in a sphere which it, and it alone, can fill.

The remains of a 1955-model convertible which burned for 2½ hours following an accident at Grece's Point are inspected by Traffic Officer Howard Jones. Of the four occupants of the $4,000 car which was demolished, two were treated in the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, one of the injured being pulled from the car by two residents of the neighborhood. Four Escape as Car Somersaults And Catches Fire

A 1955 convertible, owned and driven by Jacques Houle, 27, of St. Mathieu, Que., was wrecked and burned early Saturday evening following an accident near the Moncrieff farm on Route 29 at Grece's Point. Two persons were treated in hospital following the crash.

The accident occurred when the auto, headed east on the highway, took the ditch on a sharp curve. Proceeding along the ditch some 200 feet over rocks and boulders, the car somersaulted end over end; landing with its canvas top on the pavement, the auto caught fire. Garfield Moncrieff, who happened to be in a nearby pasture, and a passing motorist Clement Bertrand of Grece's Point, pulled one of the passengers from the burning car — Jules Houle, 26, a brother of the driver. Houle was pinned under a seat, the three other occupants having managed to escape. (Bertrand had passed the car a short distance from the scene; realizing that it could not possibly make the turn, he had then backed up to see what had happened.)

Injured in the mishap and treated at the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, were Jean Louis Lapierre, 21, of Shawinigan Falls, who required 20 stitches for various cuts, and Jules Houle. Roland Couture, 26, of Shawinigan Falls, and Jacques Houle, the driver of the car, escaped injury.

The car, which burned for more than 2½ hours, was completely demolished, with a loss estimated at $4,000. Traffic Officer Howard Jones investigated.

Truck-Car Collision on Wet Surface at Marelan

Five persons were treated for minor injuries, a 22-year-old Ayersville woman being hospitalized, following an accident early Friday evening on Route 8 near Marelan.

According to Traffic Officer H. Jones, a truck driven by Camille Boisclair, 45, of Montreal, went into a skid when he attempted to stop on the wet pavement, sliding into the path of a car owned and driven by Roland Giroux, of Ayersville.

A passenger in the car, Mrs. Roger Leclair, of Ayersville, was brought to the Providence Hospital and treated by Dr. Roger Lavigne, later being transferred to St. Jerome hospital by ambulance. Mrs. Joseph Giroux, 53, of St. Philippe, Mrs. Roger Giroux, 36, of Ayersville, and the occupants of the truck were treated and released.

Boisclair told police he had attempted to stop to allow another car to be pulled from the ditch. The truck he was driving was damaged to the extent of $750, while damage to the Giroux car was estimated at $525.

Cancer Dressing Unit Here to Serve 6 Counties

The organizing of a Cancer Dressing Station in Lachute was the topic of an address and demonstration by Mrs. J. Spearmen, Montreal chairman of Cancer Dressings, at a special meeting of the Ladies' Branch of the Argenteuil Cancer Society, held in their new office on Bethany Street. The Dressing Station to be located in Lachute will cover six counties.

Mrs. Spearmen was accompanied by Miss Marcelle St. Martin, the Provincial Welfare convener, who also took part in the discussion.

Special mention was made of the new cutting tables and desk which have been purchased with funds raised by the recent fashion show. The majority of the supplies will be sent from Montreal, but all contributions of cotton will be appreciated.

Mrs. Spearmen stressed the need for cancer dressings and spoke of the wonderful work being accomplished throughout the province.

Mrs. Leonard Ayers, local branch president, announced that the next meeting would be held Tuesday, October 11, followed by the second Tuesday of every month thereafter.

Police Lay Charges Of Impaired Driving

Two Lachute citizens, both charged with impaired driving by the local Provincial Police, have been released on $103 bail each, and will appear in St. Jerome Court tomorrow. Both charges were laid following accidents which occurred this week.

On Monday evening, a car driven by Roger Durand, 36, of Lachute, was heading towards the eastern limits of town. The driver swung out to pass a car parked at the Pollock residence and narrowly missed another on the thoroughfare. Swerving back into his own lane, he squeezed between a parked sports car and another moving automobile. Skidding into the sidewalk in front of Lowe's Dairy, the car came to a halt on its side . . . The driver was arrested by the town police, who transferred the case to Det. Ralph Allen; the latter laid the charge.

A Mountain View resident, Albin North, was arrested on a similar charge Tuesday afternoon following an accident on the Main Street of Grenville. It is reported he collided with a parked truck owned by Otto Huer, of Grenville, causing damage to both vehicles totalling $700. The charge was laid by Traffic Officer H. Jones

Ancient Map Gives Early Description Of "La Chute"

An interesting exhibit — a map indicating the buildings of Lachute's Main Street in the 1878-80 era — is on view in the window of the local Bell Telephone office this week. The proposed plan of the Eastern section of Lachute, part of which was adopted, along with reproductions of Main Street at that time, Fish's Sawmill, located across Princess Street from where the J. C. Wilson Co. Paper mills now stand, and the Barron Railway Bridge, were sent to Roland Dupuy, local Bell manager, by L. W. Ball, St. Jerome district manager.

The map gives a proposed subdivision of Villa Site, offered for sale by one Charles S. Burroughs, and according to inscriptions on the map, Lachute is described as follows:

"The village of La Chute is distant from Montreal 45 miles, railroad run time 1¼ hour. Railroad crosses farm, and station is one thousand feet from western side line. Village has two newspapers, two foundries, two tanneries, grist, saw, fulling and manufacturing mills, Episcopalian Church, two Presbyterian Churches, Roman Catholic Church, Plymouth Brethren Meeting House and Methodist Chapel.

Three doctors and Medical Hall, two telegraph lines and offices, Post Office, Court House, Registry Office, two Temperance Halls.

It is the County Town of the County of Argenteuil. The members of the Dominion Parliament and Provincial Parliament for the County reside here: Dr. Thomas Christie and Robert Meikle.

The farm offered for sale is in the centre of the village. Access to the village is also had by steamer up the Ottawa River to Carillon and thence eight miles by stage through the beautiful village of St. Andrews.

The North River, which runs through this village, has an extent of 300 miles and runs through St. Jerome, a beautiful village twenty-one miles above La Chute and also through St. Andrews, where it empties into the Ottawa three miles from that village.

The County Warden, Mr. Thomas Barron, who is also Registrar and clerk of the Circuit Court, resides here.

How Scouting Works —

One Good Turn Deserves Another

Some time ago the Grenville, Que., Scout Troop were without leaders. Consequently the Hawkesbury, Ont., Troop took them in and offered them all facilities, including leadership.

In a recent damaging fire the Hawkesbury Troop lost their Scout Hall and all equipment.

This Saturday, October 8, Lachute Boy Scout Troop are sponsoring a paper drive in town — all proceeds going to the assistance of their fellow-Scouts in Hawkesbury.

Teachers' Assocn. Meets at Grenville

The first meeting of the Argenteuil - Two Mountains Teachers' Association for the current year was held in the Grenville Consolidated High School last Thursday evening, with an attendance of approximately 80. Schools represented at the meeting were Arundel, Brownsburg, Grenville, Kilmar, Lachute, Morin Heights and St. Eustache. Mr. Philip Grant of Brownsburg, president, conducted the meeting.

The business including same matters of local concern and others which will be considered at the annual business meeting of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers during the Convention period.

The meeting was then addressed by Dr. Eric Mongeon, dentist of Lachute attached to the local Health Unit. Dr. Mongeon spoke at some length on the structure of the teeth, care of teeth and some of the problems which dentists face in attempting to preserve the natural teeth. In response to a query, he pointed out that there is now definite proof that fluoridation of water cuts tooth decay from 50 to 60 per cent. The teachers present indicated their interest in the whole problem of dentistry by the number and variety of questions asked. The speaker was introduced by Miss Betty Stanton, of Lachute, and thanked by Mr. Laurence Robinson, of Lachute.

The meeting ended with a social period, during which a lunch was served by the ladies of the Grenville school staff.

Annual Meeting at Museum, Talk on Canadian Arts, Crafts

(By Julia Grace Wales)

A very successful annual meeting of the Argenteuil Historical Society was held in the library of the Carillon Museum on Saturday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, in the chair.

The Museum and grounds were looking their best in the brilliant autumn weather. The members turned out in good numbers, both from the County and from a distance. Reports of the year's work were highly encouraging. All officers and retiring directors were re-elected.

When the annual business had been concluded, Mrs. Gustav Kuhring, called on by the president, gracefully introduced the speaker, Miss Alice Lighthall, of Montreal.

Miss Lighthall gave a delightful address on Canadian handicrafts of the past and present, Indian, French, English, and Eskimo. The speaker had brought with her beautiful specimens of basketry, carving, pottery, embroidery and other arts. Her account of the history and inter-relation of these not only revealed a vast knowledge of the subject but was clear, vivid, and absorbingly interesting to her listeners. She called attention to the fact that the Museum, scene of this annual gathering, is full of good examples of old crafts.

At the end of the lecture Miss Lighthall read, by special request, three charming poems of her own authorship. One was a hauntingly musical song of a Coureur de Bois as he thinks of home; one was supposed to be addressed by Helène Boullé to her husband, Samuel de Champlain, and this too contained lines that linger in the memory:

"Your feet are booted for the trail,
Mine slippered for the dance.
. . . .
Your dreams are all of Saguenay,
But mine are all of France."

The third was on heroic war days in England, ending,

"And every man in England is Saint George."

The audience expressed appreciation of these melodious and moving poems, and of the very interesting lecture. A warm vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Clément Tremblay.

Boyd's Express Has Three Drivers in Provincial Contest

George Cox, Grant Scott and Réal Ré, three of Boyd's Lachute Express drivers with a total of 28 years' service with the firm, will be local representatives at the Provincial Truck Tournament at the Montreal Show Mart this Saturday and Sunday, October 7 and 8.

The three local men were picked from a total of 17 of Boyd's drivers eligible for the contest sponsored by the Quebec Trucking Association. The local entry was restricted to only three drivers and these were selected by an elimination contest held by Boyd's over the past two week-ends, 21 of the local drivers taking part.

Winning the finals Sunday were George Cox, Marcel Desjardins, Réal Ré, Angus Woods and Albert Gibeault, with Grant Scott placing high on the first trial run. Out of the above mentioned, Cox, Scott and Ré were chosen — Scott replacing Desjardins, who is not eligible for the provincial contest due to having had an accident in the past year.

Of the 17 drivers eligible for the contest, 14 were operators of semi-trailers and the other three straight truck-drivers. Cox and Scott represent the "semi" drivers, while Ré will be driving a truck.

The local firm, this year celebrating 25 years of operation, has had drivers entered in the competition since its inception three years ago. The winners from each province go to the Dominion Tournament held annually in Toronto.

Blind Institute Appeals to Public For Financial Aid

The citizens of Argenteuil are asked to support the C.N.I.B. in their forthcoming annual appeal.

As the best insurance for the sight of your loved ones and the preservation of your own vision — contribute generously to the funds which will enable the competent staff of the Institute to wage a constant battle against blindness and to restore vision wherever possible.

In Lachute, the Institute has joined forces with other organizations for a combined appeal, which is being organized by the Federation of Charities. The citizens of Lachute are urged to support the Federation, as it will mean only one financial drive instead of the countless number which have been organized in the past.

However, all communities in a county are not affiliated with other organizations, and the Institute is therefore organizing the financial appeal in the respective districts.

Brownsburg will commence collection for the Institute on Tuesday, October 11, under direction of the financial chairman, William Richardson. You are advised not to give your money to anyone who is not a member of your community, as the list will indicate that the canvassers are residing in Brownsburg, as follows:

Mrs. K. Murdoch, Mrs. W. Moncrieff, J. Connelly, Mrs. E. Cribb, N.E. Racine, G. Abercrombie, P. Levert, C. Stephens, Omer Daoût, Wm. G. Richardson and V. Martin.

Legion Commends Council on Upkeep Of Memorial Park

A letter from Legion Branch 70 expresses appreciation to Lachute Town Council for the efficient manner in which the Memorial Park has been maintained this season. Following is the text of this commendation:

The Mayor and Members of Lachute Town Council,
Dear Sirs:

We, the members of the Canadian Legion here in Lachute, wish to commend you for the fine appearance of the Town Park, especially in the vicinity of the monuments honoring our dead of two World Wars.

We find it most gratifying that our town has outwardly undertaken to show such reverence to our fallen Comrades.

At this time in the history of the world, it appears that the great nations are attempting to find ways of maintaining peace and every day we hear of concessions and understanding on all sides and peace becomes nearer to reality. As the time of lasting peace beckons in the horizon we can easily forget those men who through their sacrifice are responsible for the peaceful efforts of nations today.

Therefore, please accept our thanks for 'not forgetting those who should always be remembered'.

Yours very truly,
D. J. Browne, secretary.

Gatineau Power Lines

HOUSE HEATING BY ELECTRICITY

This Company has been consistently urging the use of fuel for space heating.

It has done so believing it to be in the best interests of those it serves, as customers depending entirely upon electricity for heating are taking a grave risk during the winter months.

Notwithstanding many improvements, it is impossible to protect the customer against interruptions resulting from matters beyond the Company's control, such as bad weather, storms and highway pole accidents.

As well, the use of electricity for heating presents a very real problem to those engaged in the supply of electricity. Such heating loads reach a maximum during the months of December and January — when peak load demands occur on a power system.

The time is not far off when all commercially available hydro sites will have been developed and be in use, even without electric heating.

Therefore, the Company advises those it serves to avoid electric space heating, in their own interest and because it is uneconomic use of electricity, which should be conserved for our country.

M.P. Cordially Endorses New Charity Federation in Lachute

(Translation)

Mr. Gerard Lefebvre, Lachute, Que.
Campaign Chairman
Federation of Charities, Lachute.

Dear Mr. Lefebvre:

It gives me great pleasure to extend felicitations to you and to all members of the Lachute Federation of Charities — for having organized such a fine movement. In founding this Federation in our community, you have responded to a real need, and I am sure that the benefit it imparts to our poor and needy will have good effect among our population in general.

As you prepare to launch your initial campaign, allow me to tender my humble efforts and my full encouragement in this venture which, I am sure, will unite our whole citizenry of Lachute in the ideal of practical charity.

Accept my warmest sentiments, and believe me —

Yours sincerely,

— PHILIPPE VALOIS, M.P.,
Deputy for Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes.

Farm Workers To Get Jobless Insurance

Seven new categories of Canadian workers are now eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits.

The workers, expected to number about 7,000, have been covered by order-in-council amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act published recently in the Canada Gazette.

The seven groups are those employed in breeding or raising poultry; chick hatching; preparation and marketing of poultry; egg grading; breeding or raising race, saddle or light harness horses; landscape gardening or maintenance of private, public or commercial parks or gardens.

The regulations stipulate that only those engaged in the seven categories on a full-time basis will be eligible. If the job is incidental to a farming, gardening or nursery operation, the employe will not be eligible.

Approximately 3,500,000 Canadians earning salaries or wages now are covered by the Unemployment Insurance Act. Exceptions include those engaged in farming, fishing, teaching and domestic service.

Big Decline in Farm Labor Force

Back in 1939, 30 per cent of Canada's labor force had jobs in agriculture. In 1948 the percentage had been reduced to 25. In the most recent survey, covering 1954, the number has been further drastically reduced to 16 per cent, or 868,000 Canadians. This very heavy reduction has not, however, resulted in reduced farm production. If the reductions should continue, the situation would be reason for very serious alarm.

The reductions actually are indicative of the tremendous mechanization which has taken place on the farms of the nation. Whether that mechanization can be viewed as a direct result of the trend of labor away from the farm, or whether that trend is at least partially the result of the mechanization is something for the economic experts to puzzle out.

Feeding Beef Calves

Feeding of beef calves on performance test at the Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, Scott, Saskatchewan, has shown that bulls are the most economical feeders, and heifers the least economical. In the first test bull and steer calves were weaned at six months of age and fed out to 900 pounds finished weight. The average daily gain for bulls was 2-4 pounds, for steers 1-9 pounds. The bulls reached their weight at 368 days using 399 pounds of grain per 100 pounds gain, the steers requiring 429 days and 549 pounds of grain for the same gain.

During the winter of 1954-55 ten bulls and eleven heifers were fed out, the feeding period beginning at five months of age, and ending at 800 for bulls, 700 pounds for heifers. Average daily gain for bulls was 2-1 pounds, for heifers 1-6 pounds, to their respective weights.

These calves were fed a ration of two parts grain, one part hay. Half were fed the ration in pelleted form, the remainder fed the grain rolled, and the hay whole. Average daily gains for the two rations were 1-9 pounds for both groups. Total feed used per hundred pounds gain was 692 pounds for the rolled grain and hay, 642 pounds for the pellets.

The complete ration combined in the pellets appears to be both economical and efficient. Further tests are planned to confirm these results.

1,400 Increase - '55 Cattle Census In Argenteuil

Increase in Swine but Decrease in Poultry

Livestock figures for the County of Argenteuil show an increase of 1,400 head of cattle since last year, according to a booklet released by the Agriculture Division of the Provincial Bureau of Statistics. The report, as at June 1, 1955, as compared to the same date last year, gives an estimate of the number of livestock and poultry according to economic regions and statistical divisions. All estimates are in round figures.

The bull population in Argenteuil remains the same, at 600; milch cows now number 11,500, an increase of 500 over last year. A decrease of 200 head, bringing the total down to 300, is noted in "cows kept for beef purposes".

This June's heifers kept for milk and beef purposes number 2,400 animals, a decrease of 1,200, while the "steers, one year and over" have doubled, now being 100. There is 2,200 increase in "calves, less than one year".

Sheep

Sheep throughout the county remain the same, animals one year and over being 520, and lambs under one year, 500.

Swine

A considerable increase is noted in swine, up 2,700 animals, bringing the present total to 6,500.

Swine over six months now number 1,000, as compared to 600 last year, while animals under six months have increased 2,300 for a total of 5,500.

Domestic Fowl

There has been a decrease of 6,000 birds in the domestic fowl class, including hens, cockerels and chickens. This brings the present total to 92,000. Hens, including pullets of laying age now number 42,000, an increase of 6,000 during the past year.

Provincial Figures

General figures for the province indicate a 3.4 per cent increase in total number of cattle and a 4 per cent increase in number of milk cows. Hogs show an increase of 21 per cent, while sheep are down 4.7 per cent. Horses in the province are down 9,000 to the present total of 195,000.

In poultry, a drop of 15.5 per cent was recorded in hens and chickens; turkeys are down 40,000 to 420,000; geese have dropped 6.7 per cent to an estimated 14,000, and ducks have increased to 57,000.

As in previous years, the June survey was compiled by means of questionnaires distributed to farmers through the medium of rural school teachers.

Cottingham Discusses Teacher Role And Future Outlook for Profession: Speaker at Prot. School Boards Assn.

Solution to the problem of teacher shortages in Protestant schools is to offer higher incentives, and not purely material ones, the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards was told Saturday by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, addressing the associations's 26th annual meeting at Ste. Agathe.

At present the number of new teachers each year is not keeping pace with increasing enrolment in the schools, and current statistics "present a gloomy outlook for the future," according to Mr. Cottingham.

Despite increasing salaries and a wide variety of other benefits there has been no substantial increase in enrolment at teacher schools. "It is not enough to pay satisfactory salaries to teachers. Obviously we must offer additional incentives."

Mr. Cottingham suggested, first, that teachers should not be overburdened with work, as many are at present; and secondly that teachers should be made to feel more respected members of the community and not mere watchdogs or policemen."

"A teacher is essentially a person of intellectual pursuits, study and reflection. If he cannot be this, he becomes a dull civil servant; and there is nothing worse than 'bureaucracy' in teaching.

"It is our primary duty to make a teacher's life as inviting and attractive as possible. They must not under any circumstances fall into routine. Once they feel crushed by an impossible burden of work, they do it grudgingly, or they withdraw from teaching to do something else."

Illustrating this second point, Mr. Cottingham said teachers should not be considered as a group of people distinct or apart. He said the responsibility here rested largely with the parents who do not, as a rule, collaborate enough with teachers on matters of education.

"In general, I fear, we are asking too much of our teachers and not enough of the homes. Parents might invite teachers more often to their homes; and they should not rely entirely on the schools for the education of their children.

"In any case, teachers should be made to feel they are creative and respected members of the community."

Mr. Cottingham referred to the material advantages which teachers have — in adequate salaries, long holidays, excellent pension schemes and a high degree of stability. He said that high school students were not perhaps aware of these advantages and that every possible means should be used to draw many more into the teaching profession.

At the business meeting, W. H. Bradley, QC., of Sherbrooke, was re-elected president of the Association and E. S. Giles, director of Protestant Education in Quebec, honorary president.

The soil in your garden is "dead" or "alive" according to the available amount of plant food it contains. The plants placed in it will thrive or not thrive accordingly.

Soils vary greatly in different areas; some are too acid and some too alkaline. Such soils require balancing.

It is impossible to give a formula for soil conditioning which would apply to all parts of the country because in different sections the soil, as it is found, differs so greatly.

One purpose in plowing, fitting and cultivating, whether it be a field or a garden plot, is to change the soil's position and thus supply food to the root. This rotation of the soil is illustrated in the diagram in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This practice could well be called "upside-down" soil building.

Under natural conditions the composition, character, color and depth of soil depend on the weathering of the underlying rocks by wind and rain and by expansion and contraction, the decay of vegetable matter and the action of earthworms over long periods of years.

Clay soils, which are difficult to work and bake hard in summer, obviously require opening up. Peat moss, leafmold, manures, ashes and sand, worked through clay will bring it up to a desirable, friable gardening condition.

Loose, open, sandy soils, from which the essential plant food drains or leaches away, require to be given more cohesion and for this purpose the same additions are made, as to clay soils, except for sand and ashes.

Invest in the future...

THE LACHUTE FEDERATION OF CHARITIES, in its inaugural campaign, comes to you as the corporate spokesman for FIVE well organized charities — each one of which has a record of achievement in AIDING the less fortunate and in BUILDING the future character of this community.

Here are those five enterprises; you are invited to study the Federation's prospectus on the nature and the extent of their works. . .

- SOCIAL SERVICE (Lachute Unit)
- LES OUVROIRS (Clothing for poor families)
- LES LOISIRS (Organized recreation)
- PLAYGROUNDS (Three local parishes)
- CANADIAN NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF THE BLIND (Argenteuil Section)

THE PROTESTANT community of Greater Lachute is solicited for support only in proportion to the Protestant beneficiaries from these funds . . . .

The Federation does not expect your contributions to carry the burden of its wholly Catholic enterprises.

THE FEDERATION OF CHARITIES combines the appeal of these five organizations in one plea for public support — one campaign, to be launched annually in this community. The Federation approves the budgets, supervises the funds, and co-ordinates the functions of these charities. It keeps administrative costs and campaign expenses to a minimum — for this is a Public Trust of YOUR INVESTMENT in the future.

National Newspaper Week

Your Weekly Paper

OCTOBER 1-8 is National Newspaper Week for Canada's over 700 weekly, twice-weekly, and tri-weekly newspapers.

Their editors and publishers have fostered this week not in the hope of soliciting tributes from citizens of national or local import, but rather as an occasion to explain more fully the role of Canada's non-daily newspapers in the life of this country.

Service to their community is the foundation on which the weekly newspapers of Canada were originally built, as it is the strength which lies behind their operation today. Depending on their advertising revenue for their financial backing they are still receptive to the many requests for write-ups, and advance publicity, for the great variety of events which make up the life of their community.

From notices of birth, marriage, and death, through the list of cards of thanks, coming events and classified advertising, the weekly newspaper gives a picture of the life in the town. It reports the meetings of Council, Chamber of Commerce, churches and service clubs. The weeklies never fail to lend their support to any project for the good of the community, and many a waterworks system, hospital, school, swimming pool or other service would not have been carried to a successful conclusion without their active support.

Unless it renders this service the newspaper is without life and without purpose. It was instituted to carry the news and to serve its community and, in doing so, it becomes your finest and most effective advertising medium. For along with its accounts of individual events in its town it offers the "tailored to measure" service of a paper which will be read and re-read and kept in a safe place against the home-coming of those more sophisticated members of the family who have gone farther afield. Whatever its circulation, it stands high in readership, and so long as its first consideration is service this will continue to be the case.

Weather-Worn Welcome

THE OTHER DAY our travels landed us back in Lachute by Route 41 in daylight (it had been some few weeks since it happened that way) and we received a jolt on passing the "Welcome, Speed Supervised" sign beyond the town limits. If this was our town's official greeting, it was comparable to receiving a salesman's business card soiled by a greasy thumbmark. We again visualized ourselves as a stranger on his first acquaintance with this community — and we shuddered!

Whether in retail, civic or provincial business (as also in the case of highway markings), we consider a rusty, disfigured sign as the very worst form of advertising. If our Town Council have the interests of Lachute at heart — as we know full well they have — they will see to the renovation or replacing of this sign immediately.

Fatigue on the Farm

DESPITE its advantages, farming is not a safe occupation. Accidental death comes to Candian farmers twice as often as it does to those engaged in trade. Last year three farmers died from accidents for every fisherman so killed. The accident mortality rate on farms is 34 times as great as that in financial institutions.

The Department of Labor, Ottawa, source of this information on fatal accidents, gives their cause. While angry animals, such as cattle and horses, kill some farmers every year, and while lightning strikes the occasional fatal blow, the greatest single source of accidental death on the farm is machinery. And the threat of machines is not likely to diminish as farms increasingly become mechanized.

Now that a knowledge of machinery — as well as of stock breeding, soil conservation, and marketing — is required of the farmer, might he not take a leaf from the book of the professional mechanic? Mechanics and others employed in large factories know it does not pay to work at steady grind hour after hour. Their employers know it, too. Consequently, the coffee break, morning and afternoon, has become a regular part of factory practice. Fatigue, many observers suspect, is the basic cause of many accidents. It is not so much that machines go out of kilter; it is human endurance that has a limit. Fatigued, a man grows careless and immediately becomes accident-prone. Inattention, even a momentary period of day-dreaming, or a brief disregard of safety rules may lead to sudden death on the farm, as elsewhere.

Plain Talk on Federation of Charities

UNDERSTANDABLY, the coming Charities drive may encounter a certain prejudice in some parts of the Protestant community. The canvassing body is prepared for this to some extent; there may be apparent justification, in the feeling that the major beneficiaries are Catholic.

It is a Christian moral that charity ignores all differences of race and creed. But quite apart from this ideal, we hasten to impress upon our readers, that equal participation in the matter of giving is not expected. We have this reassurance from the president, Dr. Marc Papineau, that the Federation organizers certainly do not expect the Protestants to bear the burden of welfare projects which benefit Catholics only. We are asked to "do our share" . . . This is fair enough, most readers will agree.

There are two participants in the Federation, however, which are thoroughly impartial in their purpose — the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, and the Social Service.

The fact that the latter is operated by the Catholic Diocese makes no difference (the Federation is likewise a Catholic body); aid and succor of the Social Service are readily available to the deserving needy of all faiths and tongues. It is financed partly by the municipality, partly by the province and partly by voluntary donations.

The Canadian National Institute of the Blind, similarly, exercises no discrimination in its great work for the sightless and for those threatened with becoming blind. . . Both these enterprises are accessible to the Protestant people, to the full extent of their needs.

Having impressed these thoughts upon our readers, The Watchman will hope to witness a fine response from the English-speaking citizenry — and for one other reason. That reason is — the great potential of this Federation of Charities as a bond of sympathy between the races! (How desperately we need such added ties of friendship — such links of mutual endeavor — was painfully illustrated by the "unpleasantness" fanned by a few hothead fanatics in Lachute's recent history.)

Our sincere wishes for the Federated Charities campaign. We trust our English-speaking townsfolk will play a very practical part in its success.

Ten Years of Trial — Error — Perseverence

THE UNITED Nations became a reality just 10 years ago. It was October 24, 1945, that the charter of the UN came into actual operation on the depositing of a sufficient number of ratifications.

Ten years isn't really much time to test the results of such an ambitious experiment in the conduct of relations between nations. But the UN has weathered a lot of storms since the charter came into force . . . It will weather the storm of France's peremptory withdrawal of her representatives this past week.

Since it came into existence, the UN has been the only permanent meeting place between East and West. If the Big Four foreign ministers' conference at Geneva shortly should succeed in laying the groundwork for a lasting agreement between the rival power blocs, the United Nations inevitably will assume a new appearance.

It has survived Korea — its most critical test — and many other crises. It has established agencies doing vital work in many fields — the International Labor Organization, the Food and Agricultural Organization, the Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, the World Health Organization — and others.

Now, since the "summit talks" at Geneva resulted in a relaxation of the cold war, there seems to be a new spirit at the United Nations. The current general assembly meetings have been noted for a less hostile approach to the great issues of the day.

It may take a long time — perhaps generations — for the UN to achieve its purpose, but it is working with stronger hopes of becoming the real parliament of man.

And while it may be too soon yet to try to assess the UN's proper place in world history, its value has been expressed in the words of President Eisenhower: "With all its defects, with all the failures that we can chalk up against it, it still represents man's best organized hope to substitute the conference table for the battlefield."

Minister of Mines Sends Wishes For Success of Charities Drive

(Translation)

Department of Mines,
Quebec, P. Que.

Mr. Gerard Lefebvre,
Campaign Chairman,
Federation of Charities, Lachute.

Dear Mr. Lefebvre:

My personal congratulations on the confidence entrusted in your appointment as Campaign Chairman of the Lachute Federation of Charities. This is a considerable honor — one which entails, however, onerous duties. It is for this reason that I offer, without hesitation, my full co-operation, at the same time extending best wishes for your success.

A Charities Federation has become a necessity for our district; and the good which it can accomplish will do much to relieve suffering and privation among our population.

Please accept my cordial wishes.

"A WEEK-END IN NAPLES"

Whenever my thoughts go winging back over the years to the days of World War II, the story of Lieutenant Duncan Fitzpatrick's fabulous week-end in Naples stands out as the foremost war-story of them all. (According to the experts, that opening sentence is far too long. However, I'm not going to try and reduce it, so the experts can go to pot, for all I care.) The story of Fitzpatrick's week-end was on this wise.

Not being an overly brilliant member of the officer-gentleman set, it was natural that Fitzpatrick should be selected to attend most of the courses of instruction offered by the Army. It was, the top brass felt, an excellent way of keeping these dull clots busy without doing the operational command any serious harm. And, who knew but that, someday, the knowledge they gleaned on these courses might be of some value to them and the armed forces. So, from the moment Fitzpatrick finished his basic training and, by fair means or foul, got his second pip, he proceeded on course after course.

His despatch to the Italian Theatre of war did not put an end to going on course by any manner of means. There, Fitzpatrick discovered himself being farmed out to operational schools for instruction in the finer arts of combat warfare. One such course was held at the photo-reconnaissance school in Foggia, Italy, and dealt with the artillery aspects of reading aerial photographs.

The course in question lasted a month and, at its end, Fitz discovered that his orders did not require him to report back to base before Monday morning. As the school folded up on Friday afternoon, it meant that he could spend a full week-end in Naples and still report back to Salerno bright and early on the Monday. Fitz moved into action quickly.

Getting his batman to pack the gear, he rustled 'round the camp in search of transport to Naples. A circuit flyer agreed to take Fitz from Foggia to Naples on the six o'clock run the next morning. So, the batman was duly despatched to base with the luggage, and Fitz waited for the following dawn with considerable restlessness.

Within a short time of leaving Foggia, Fitz' plane was over the busy Naples airport. A radio message to the field for permission to land only brought an enquiry as to what materials the craft had on board for Naples.

"Nothing," the pilot replied.

". . . proceed to Algiers," the tower answered. "I say again, proceed to Algiers."

Fitz, needless to say, was panic-stricken. However, the pilot reassured him that he would still get to Naples, howbeit a little later than expected. He would have to fly the circuit from Algiers to Oran, Casablanca, Corsica, Naples and back to Foggia. Fitz, he said would be let off at Naples on the return trip. But the pilot had not reckoned with the news awaiting his arrival at Algiers.

Witin minutes of touching down at the sun-drenched airstrip in Algiers, the pilot discovered that his plane was grounded for overhaul and that he was nicked for six-months' instructional duty.

"But don't worry, Fitz," he said calmly, "Ill see that you get to Naples all right. There are other planes flying the circuit and we'll have you back there in no time at all."

Well, the pilot was as good as his word and in short order he found another plane and pilot heading westward to Oran. Fitz was popped on board and headed into the setting sun.

At Oran he found nothing going anywhere near Naples. But he was offered a non-stop flight to Dorval. Figuring that he would eventually be court-martialled for deserting, he was almost tempted to take off for Canada. Something, however, told him he should not risk it, and he waited it out at Oran till a plane came in to take him to Casablanca.

And next week, if you're patient, we'll get Fitz out of the frying pan, pausing just long enough to singe him slightly over the fire.

Good-bye now!

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

"I'll keep his shoes, if you don't mind," said the nurse. And she carried off the little boy as gently as she could, while he squirmed and cried.

The boy's father went down the stairs and out of the hospital. It was odd to be leaving the boy and taking away his clothes — the pants and sweater and the socks that seemed too small to contain a pair of running feet.

He wasn't very sick. Not long before, his father had taken him to a building supply yard, where the boy sat on a wall and looked down with fascination on the trucks and cranes hauling bricks, concrete and gravel. He asked if he could play in the big sand pile, said the man wouldn't let him. and was crestfallen when his father

And then when he was going with his father on some errands around town, he complained of stomach ache. "Ow, ow, my tummy," he said, and began to scream and pat the sore place.

He continued to howl as his father phoned mother, who remembered that the boy had found some laxative pills in her handbag and used them for "money." She took his word that he hadn't eaten any of them, but now she wasn't so sure.

The doctor ordered the boy taken to the emergency ward of the hospital, just in case. There he fought like a young wildcat against the nurse and doctor who tried to examine him.

They left him alone for a minute and the boy's daddy together could with his father, "I want to go up on your head, Daddy," he wailed.

Sitting on his father's shoulders, he thought he was safe from attack by those men and ladies in white coats.

They said he would be admitted to hospital. So Daddy answered some questions, and they went up to the children's ward. "I want my blankie and my bunnie," said the boy, crying for the much-loved blanket and knitted animal that were his companions in bed and during times of trouble.

The nurse was very kind, but she scarcely get him undressed and into a pair of very large hospital shorts. Abandoning the attempt to get a coat on him the nurse decided to give him a bath.

So he was carried off, weeping, struggling and calling "Daddy". And for the time being, that was the last his father saw of him.

He left the hospital with the clothes, feeling that he had betrayed the little boy, somehow.

The boy"s mother washed the blanket and the bunny. "I keep forgetting, and walking around quietly so I won't wake him," she said. "I hope he wont be too bad a boy in the hospital. He'll come home with some new words."

The boy's father, who had often complained about the little piping voice and the tugging hands that interrupted his work, now paced around looking at the empty cot and the toy cars and animals lying there neglected. The house seemed very, very quiet.

The roar of an aircraft engine during ground test can rattle windows and nerves for blocks around. So we're glad to report that aluminum has turned up as a noise-absorbing "honeycomb" in an aircraft company's test-cell. Hundreds of aluminum tubes of differing diameters and lengths, filled with absorbent, sound-baffling material, make up the end walls. And we are told that by the time the giant roar has bounced around in these aluminum mazes it comes out the other end thoroughly "baffled" and weakened to a hum. We expect there are lots of aluminum boosters around that factory!

Mayor Urges Public Support To Federated Charities Campaign

Mr. Gerard Lefebvre, Lachute, Que.
Campaign Chairman
Federation of Charities, Lachute.

Dear Sir:

I have been asked by the officials of "La Federation des Oeuvres de Charité de Lachute" to give my approval and support to the campaign for funds that this organization is soon to launch in this area.

I am very pleased and glad to have this opportunity to give my full support to this very worthy and needed effort, and I ask all the citizens of Lachute to give their heartfelt consideration and generous financial support when they are called upon for donations.

Yours Sincerely,

— F. W. FITZGERALD, M.D.C.M.,
Mayor of Lachute.

OBITUARY

Lived 89 Years In This Community

Late Miss Jessie Drew Was Native of Beech Ridge

The death of Miss Jessie Drew removes from this community one who was highly respected and loved by all who knew her.

Miss Drew was born at Beech Ridge in 1866. She was the last remaining member of a family of eight, being the second daughter of the late William Drew and his wife Eliza Pollock, of Hill Head.

Miss Drew was a faithful member of Lachute United Church, and a member of the church choir for over 50 years; and she also served as organist for a number of years.

She leaves to mourn her passing one niece, Mrs. Walter Noble of Beech Ridge, and two nephews, Winston Drew, of Vancouver, and Sydney Drew, of Lachute.

The funeral is being held this afternoon (Thursday) from Lachute United Church to the family plot in Lachute Cemetery — the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating.

Pall-bearers are — Messrs. Melville Smith, Erskine Rodger, Wm. F. Boa, Lorne Morrin, Gordon Smith and Sterling Noble.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, and In Memoriam, etc., 75c; 5 cents per type line extra for verses with In Memoriam (estimate 6 words per type line).

Deadline, Wednesday, 5 p.m.

BIRTHS

MacTAVISH — To Mr. and Mrs. Delbert MacTavish, at the Montreal General Hospital, on Sept. 28, 1955, a daughter — sister for Kenneth, Duncan, Heather, Bonnie and Del.

PHILLIPS — At the Providence Hospital, on Oct. 4, 1955, to Mr. and Mrs. P. Phillips (née Lillian Jackson) an 8-pound boy, brother for Elaine and Wendy. Both well.

MARRIAGE

WELDEN - LAVIOLETTE — Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Laviolette wish to announce the marriage of their daughter, Eunice Thelma, to James Welden, son of the late Mr. Jack Welden and Mrs. Welden, on Saturday, Oct. 1, 1955.

DEATH

SMITH—At Cushing, Que., on Oct. 4, 1955, Rebecca Bradford, in her 66th year, beloved wife of Lachlan Smith. Remains resting at her late residence, Cushing. Funeral 2.30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 6, from St. Mungo's United Church, Cushing; interment at St. Andrews East.

IN MEMORIAM

GOODFELLOW — In loving memory of a dear sister, sister-in-law, and aunt, who passed away Oct. 16, 1954. — Ruby, Flossie, Douglas, Phyllis, Dougie and Brian.

"They say time heals all sorrow
And helps us to forget,
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet
God gave us strength to fight it
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you, dearest,
No one will ever know."

STEWART — In loving memory of a wonderful wife and mother, who passed away Oct. 10, 1954 — Always remembered and sadly missed by her husband, Thos. Stewart, and family.

"A lonely year has passed away
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that morn
We still remember well.
We never knew the pain you bore,
We did not see you die,
We only knew you passed away
And could not say Goodbye."

STEWART — In loving memory of our dear sister, Bessie Hume Stewart, who passed away suddenly on Oct. 10, 1954 — Always remembered by her sisters and brother, May, Hilda and Lebert.

Local Couple Wed At Stouffville, Ont.

The marriage of Miss Helen Dorothy Campbell, of Lac St. Denis, Que., to Bernard Roy Blair, also of Lac St. Denis, took place September 17 in the United Church at Stouffville, Ont.

Rev. R. Blair, the bridegroom's father, assisted by Rev. D. G. Davis of Stouffville, performed the double-ring ceremony. The bride was married with her grandmother's wedding ring.

Miss Anne Lehman was organist and the soloist was Lorne Boadway.

The bride wore a waltz-length gown of embroidered white nylon over net with bouffant skirt. Her beaded coronet held a short nylon veil with beaded trim, and she carried a bouquet of white shasta mums.

Miss Grace Barry of Kitchener was maid of honor, and Miss Joan Haynes of Stouffville was bridesmaid. They wore waltz-length dresses of autumn green embroidered crystalette with matching coronets, and they carried nosegays of gold and bronze mums.

Ralph Blair of the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Douglas Blair, another brother, and John C. MacDonald of Toronto.

Mrs. Campbell, mother of the bride, was in a toast-colored ensemble with a sequin hat and wore a corsage of bronze mums.

Mrs. Blair, the bridegroom's mother, wore a gown of slate blue pannaglaze, with a gold chrysanthemum corsage.

Disappointment in Donor Response at B'bg Blood Clinic

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg once again sent the Red Cross workers home with full stomachs and empty bottles! It's funny how we 'Burgers rise to the occasion for almost any organization, yet fail so miserably when it comes to giving blood.

The folks who gave, just 180 of them, couldn't be thanked enough. And anyway, since they know what it's about and understand the tremendous need, they received the thanks from the uplift they got from donating.

It is hard to believe that in Brownsburg and districts there aren't 300 men able and willing to give blood. Women should not be needed. As it was, less than a hundred men showed up.

If we in Brownsburg are to continue to participate in the free blood scheme, it looks as though we'll have to combine with Lachute. Between the two towns, in the three-day clinic they collected enough to warrant a two-day clinic. The organization in Brownsburg is big enough and energetic enough for a clinic of its own; the population is big enough too.

Thanks are due to the many local merchants who made the clinic organization such an unqualified success.

Cow Is Casualty In Impact with Auto

A cow, valued at $125 by its owner, Howard Dewar of Stonefield, was killed on Route 29 Friday evening when srtuck by a car driven by Jean-Paul Gagné, a Lachute Mills painter.

Gagné, who was driving his father's auto, stated he was headed west when he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car. When the lights were dimmed, Gagné noticed the black cow in his path, and crashed into it rather than hit the other car. The Gagné car was damaged.

Traffic Officer Howard Jones investigated the incident.

A General Motors Value

After all, it really isn't considered good form to toot one's horn too loudly . . . HOWEVER . . . since the early months of this year, an unparalleled situation has existed and we can't contain ourselves any longer.

Pontiac—we've got to say it—is now up in the TOP 2 in automotive sales in Canada . . . second only to another General Motors product!

This isn't just a claim . . . it's a fact. Against the toughest competition, Pontiac has plain outsold every other manufacturer's cars.

It's a hats-off tribute to Canadian motorists, too, for their instant recognition of Pontiac's sterling worth. No doubt about it, they buy shrewdly and well where value counts.

Well, there it is! Pity, we had to be the ones to tell the story but that's the automotive industry for you.

Anyway . . . now everybody knows what more Canadians than ever before have found out this year . . . dollar for dollar you just can't beat Pontiac!

It's more than a trend . . . it's a torrent to

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Un. Church Stewardship Ottawa Presbytery Rally

The Rev. Dr. Charles B. Templeton, Canadian-born evangelist who has won international renown as a youth leader and preacher, will be the theme speaker at a United Church Stewardship Crusade Rally at Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, next Monday.

Part of a nation-wide movement to promote Christian Stewardship, and to express thanksgiving for the rapid growth in numbers of the United Church, the Ottawa Rally to be held on Thanksgiving evening takes on particular significance.

The 58 pastoral charges composing Ottawa presbytery and covering the territory from Fort Coulonge and Thurso in Quebec to Ashton and Hawkesbury in the southeast, are all participating. All United Churches in the Ottawa Valley, including the presbyteries of Renfrew, Glengarry, Dundas-Grenville, are invited to join in the Rally.

Opening at 7.30 p.m. with group singing by a mass choir led by Harry Hill, B.M.E., Dr. Templeton will speak on Christian Stewardship.

Welcomed for the first time since his appointment as secretary of the United Church Missionary and Maintenance department, the Rev. Dr. H. E. D. Ashford, B.B.E., will speak briefly on "An Expanding Canada Needs an Expanding Church."

Dr. Templeton is presently executive director of Evangelism of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. Dr. Ashford has served as a missionary in India, and occupied important pastorates in Charlottetown, Regina and Edmonton.

Ministerial Association Gathering at Morin Hts.

The Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association met in the United Church at Morin Heights on Monday. The president, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid, was unable to attend, and the Rev. N. H. Brock, past-president, took the chair.

The Rev. J. R. Watson was elected president and the Rev. G. T. Spriggs re-elected secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year.

The members were reminded that October 16 is the 400th anniversary of the martyrdom of Bishops Latimer and Ridley. It was hoped that due reference would be made by the ministers of this historic event so important to Protestant people.

Rural Dean the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh gave an interesting address on the use of various texts for sermons, and spoke of the importance of temperance as regards alcoholic beverages.

The next meeting will be at the United Church in Ste. Adele, on November 7.

Harvest Thanksgiving To Aid Protestant Children's Home

The services at Lachute United Church next Sunday will be in observance of Harvest Thanksgiving. Worship will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning, when the minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge will speak on "Seedtime and Harvest". The choir will render two anthems, the traditional Dutch "Prayer of Thanksgiving", and "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem" by Maunder.

Departing from previous thankoffering services, this year's gifts will be received on Saturday afternoon and at the Sunday services for the benefit of the Protestant Children's Home at Rosemere; the church will be fittingly decorated for the occasion.

Gifts for the Home may be in the form of fruits and field produce, tinned-goods, flour, sugar, cocoa, cereals for desserts. These offerings will be packed after the evening service and delivered to the Home on Monday.

Subject for the evening service will be "Jesus and the Irreligious".

A cordial invitation is extended to friends near and far, to attend these services.

Lachute W. Inst. Visits Harrington Tree Farm

The members of Lachute Women's Institute travelled by bus to Harrington Forestry Farm for their October meeting. On arrival they were welcomed by Mr. Mansel Wilson, manager, and Mr. Anspach, director of research.

Mr. Wilson outlined the purpose of the farm as follows:

(1) As a Demonstration Forest to indicate to people with wood lots how to supply wood without destroying their forests.

(2) As an experimental station in Forestry to find new varieties of trees, quick growing, yet hardy for pulp wood.

(3) As a research centre to find the best tools and machinery for harvesting the wood.

It is hoped in time to make this the largest pulpwood producing area in the country. The ladies were conducted on a tour of the grounds and shown the various stages of growth in spruce, poplar and European strains of pine, ranging from one-year growth upward. They visited the wild turkey farm, and also saw two Canada geese in the pond.

Afterwards the visitors were entertained to tea in the reception hall at Harrington.

The convener, Mrs. Gordon McOuat, arranged this trip — another very interesting meeting at the loveliest time of the year.

A short business session was held. The roll-call, "Name a tree and its use", was answered by every member, with a variety of responses.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. G. Davidson, of the Finance Committee, for her work in promoting the recent auction sale.

Recommendations for Civic improvements will be sent by letter to the appropriate authorities.

Mrs. Roy Fraser is the new librarian. Please note change of date for exchanging books: Thursday afternoon — 3.30 to 5.00, commencing October 13, at Lachute High School. Many new books have been added to the Library.

The next meeting (Health and Welfare), November 1, will be in charge of Mrs. Linton Armstrong, convener.

Scouts' Paper Drive Saturday, October 8

The 1st Lachute Boy Scout Troop will be holding a paper drive on October 8. Proceeds will be given to their fellow Scouts of the Hawkesbury-Grenville Troop, who lost their Scout Hall, all their training and camping equipment, and their records, in a fire in mid-September. Hawkesbury Scouts will be on hand to help the Lachute Troop in this canvass.

In the past the response of Lachute residents to appeals for paper has been very gratifying. The Scouts are particularly grateful to the business firms who give the use of trucks and by so doing ensure a success and further the purposes of the Scout movement.

Clean newspapers or magazines are welcomed. It helps considerably if these could be bundled up or placed in cartons, and preferably left outside the house.

Bell Falls Schooling Back to Pioneer Era, Resident Complains

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

As another reader of your weekly paper I wish to make further comment on the school conditions around Bell Falls.

A few years ago our little red school house could boast of pleasant learning conditions, enjoyed by 20 or 25 children with eager faces under the direction of a qualified teacher.

The last few years our children have been under the direction of unqualified teachers who, in most if not all cases, have not even finished high school.

Today we have taken a further step back to the pioneer age as we see the indoor toilets being replaced by outdoor toilets (newly erected), painted in pastel shades to act as a background for a dingy, weather-beaten, one-room school house which many years ago has been surpassed by the modern buildings of which our province boasts.

It is almost unbelievable that such conditions could exist today even in any part of our province.

Will our ratepayers and administrators of education allow this to go on?

— Bell Falls Reader

Catholic Women's League

The monthly meeting of the Lachute sub-division of the Catholic Women's League was held Monday evening at the Health Clinic. The president, Miss L. Lowe, was in the chair.

The secretary, Mrs. C. McGill, read the minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer, Miss L. Harrison, gave her report.

The president welcomed two new members to the sub-division. She also thanked the members for their support at the Blood Donor Clinic. It was voted to hold a food sale on the 21st of this month.

Brownsburg — The St. Louis de France sub-division of the Catholic Women's League held their monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. S. Donvito on October 2. Mrs. R. Summers presided.

It was decided to raise funds by selling tickets on a Christmas basket (containing a turkey and all trimmings for the Christmas dinner), which will be drawn at the end of November.

Mrs. Doucette and Mrs. Cummings were initiated and welcomed to the group.

The meeting was followed by a tea. Miss M. Ramsey, past-provincial president, was unable to be present owing to illness, but Miss L. Lowe, Mrs. T. Dwyer and Mrs. C. Robinson of the Lachute subdivision were guests. Pouring tea were Mrs. M. Trayers and Mrs. Doucette.

Jehovah's Witnesses

For a scripture study this week get the Booklet, "Hope for the Dead" and the survivors in a righteous new world." Price 10 cts.

"HOPE, the fondest ever entertained by righteous men is about to be fulfilled. Today, in the time of war and calamity, the vain hopes of selfish men are being blasted, but the true hope built upon an immovable foundation stands unshaken and sure now of early realization. It is an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast, during these wild days of swiftly-shifting conditions, and those having knowledge thereof are rejoicing in hope, though the world mourns.

"That lovers of righteousness may learn the true hope and need not sorrow as others who have no hope, this booklet is sent forth."

Sports -- Juvenile Activities -- School

In bygone days, when this was a land teaming with wild game, our forefathers depended upon hunting for their very subsistence. Today in the realm of sport, hunting now survives as a recreational pleasure, providing healthful exercise as well as an escape from the pressures and worries of everyday business. Although times have changed, the end result of any hunting expedition should not be to kill game just for the sake of killing, but to put meat on the table for all members of the family and their friends to enjoy.

Follow These Simple Rules

Of all the wild meats, game birds offer the greatest variety, ranging from the rich tangy flavor of the miniature woodcock to the magnificent Canada goose, with a choice of flavor delicacy as wide as the variation of the sport in hunting for them. Quality and table-taste of game birds, however, depends on their age and diet and on the care they receive after the hunter has brought them down. To avoid waste, spoilage and eating disappointment try following these simple rules: The birds should be drawn soon after they have been shot. The body heat should be allowed to dissipate as quickly as possible. The birds should be kept cool or at cold temperature until they are to be cooked. Refrigeration is not recommended unless you are preparing the birds for deep-freeze storage.

Proof's in the Eating

Just the other evening we got a call from an affable sporting character of our acquaintance, who had just returned from a week of duck shooting back on the family farm out in Saskatchewan. "I've got four fat mallards all stuffed and ready to go in the oven", says he, "come on down for dinner". Notwithstanding the fact that I had just stepped in the door after a day away from home on business, with a couple of hundred miles of driving already under my belt, our answer was an immediate "yes". Well, those big grain-fed green heads were really something and I was forced to admit as I pushed back my plate after a third helping, that the western-fed duck has a gustatory edge over the birds that we bring to the table back here in the east.

Sounds Easy, Doesn't It?

Our host shot these mallards in the morning, cleaned them out, aired them for a few hours then flew them back from Regina to Montreal to put them on the table the following evening. As we sat around a crackling fire before dinner our host told us about the shooting. No blinds, no decoys, just driving out to the slews — parking the car — a quiet stalk — and then trying to pick out one duck to swing and lead on out of a flock of anywhere from fifty to a couple of hundred. Like shooting fish in a barrel, well not quite, because as every experienced waterfowler knows you can't just bang away at a flock of ducks and expect to bag any birds except by 'bull luck'. You've got to single out one bird and get on it. Just the same with this prairie shooting, having singled out your target, the birds are flying so close chances are you'll knock down a couple with each barrel.

That Orange Sauce

There are just about as many ways of fixing ducks for the table as there are theories on how to hunt them and I'm not going to add to the culinary confusion by giving out any recipes this week, maybe later. Our hostess, a gal with a fund for quick repartee as sharp as her appreciation of kitchen "know-how" served these roasted mallards with wild rice. Her hubby gets around a bit and had picked up a couple of pounds in Boston. cost him the price of a couple of boxes of sixes too. What made the main course for me though was the orange sauce. As I ate and kept coming back for more, I was of course dying to ask for the recipe, all the while conjuring up a mental picture of our hostess as she concocted this sauce out of some exotic and very special oranges and processing these in an old cider press along with dribblings of sherry and rare seasonings. Finally I mustered up the nerve to ask for the formula and to my astonishment and delight, which I feel bound to pass on to my readers, I learned that this delectable sauce is compounded from the same orange marmalade as you would serve on the breakfast table, with a little boiling water added.

Next Week

Shot sizes and chokes for gamebird shooting, and a word or two on gun dogs and the part they can play in improving your own sport and aiding conservation.

Grenville School Takes Laurels at County Track Meet

The Argenteuil and Two Mountains School track meet was held at Lachute High School last Saturday — Grenville Consolidated School edging Lachute High out of first place by a slim margin of 15 points.

Taking part in the meet were approximately 160 students from Grenville, Lachute, Brownsburg and Kilmar Protestant schools; the aggregate results placed the schools in that order.

Class trophy winners were shared by Grenville and Lachute, the former winning the larger share. The midget girls' and midget boys', as well as the senior girls' trophies, were won by L.H.S., while Grenville Consolidated took both junior and intermediate boys' and girls' and the senior boys' trophies.

Full Program for Scouts and Cubs

A Boy Scouts Group Committee meeting was held last Wednesday evening in Dr. W. M. Hooper's office, Lachute.

An active season is in store for the local Scouts and Cubs, as noted by the Group Committee agenda.

Scoutmaster, Fred Tait; assistants, Fred Stansfield, Tom Smith.

Cubmaster, W. Brown; assistants Mrs. W. Brown, Don (Buzzie) MacRae.

(Mrs. Brown is the first lady assistant in the history of the Lachute Cub Pack.)

Scoutmaster Tait announced a "Coming-Up" ceremony for Tuesday of this week, at the regular Scout meeting, several Cubs being due to graduate to Scout status.

A Scout Toy Shop will commence about the middle of November, in quarters kindly offered by Mr. E. Albright. The public are requested to save up discarded toys, which will be repaired by local Scouts and distributed to the needy at Christmas time.

Also a Scout-sponsored paper drive will take place in Lachute on Saturday. October 8.

W. Brown gave notice of a Cub Apple Day, to be held on Saturday, October 15.

Committee members present included Alex Vessie (chairman), Stewart Jones, Don Heggie, R. Underhill (sec.-treas.), Gordon Dobbie, Bernard Jenkins, Chas. Duncan and Dr. W. M. Hooper.

Boy Scout News

The 1st Lachute Boy Scout Troop is operating under full steam; 25 boys are now in the troop, and the new program is unfolding on schedule. Patrol Leaders are Ian Duncan, Glen Swail, Brian Noble and Roy McCrae. Patrol Seconds are Ronald Cairns, Malcolm MacDonald, Randolph Noble and Angus McDonald.

Nearly all Scouts have completed their Tenderfoot knots and the group is now concentrating on semaphore signalling. The points system is again in use, with points being given for proficiency in Scouting activities and games. Point standing as of September 27 was: Wolf Patrol 147; Eagle and Bulldog Patrols 138 each; Fox Patrol 134.

There is still room in the troop for new Scouts, and any boy who has reached his 12th birthday is cordially invited to join in, any Tuesday night. Assistance will be given to any boy who anticipates difficulty in obtaining the required uniform.

NOTICE

Notice is given that, if the owner of I.E.L. Pioneer chain-saw, Serial No. DA 1596 does not call at Lachute Auto Electric within 30 days, this saw will be sold. 1p

Colford Softballers End Season by Defeating Red Indians

Last Sunday Colford's softballers ended the season right, by defeating Red Indians of Lachute 10-0.

Jean Guy Larocque pitched another outstanding game, getting 16 strike-outs and only allowing the Red Indians with two hits. As far as any Red Indian got was second base. Mel Tomalty was again the big hitter, getting four hits for as many times at bat.

This was victory No. 20 for Colford, against only two defeats. Colford's played all challengers, hailing from Lachine, St. Martin, Laval West, Vankleek Hill, St. Jerome and Lachute. The two defeats were to Ace Holden and his four-man team, and to Vankleek Hill.

This Saturday night the drawing for the turkey will be held at Colford's Lodge, at which time Mr. A. Colford will present the ball club with jackets. The club takes this opportunity to thank Mr. Colford for his generous sportsmanship as sponsor of the team this past season.

Ontario-Quebec Baseball Title Still in Balance

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — There's no need to apologize for our local ball club, but honestly that wasn't our team who lost 15-9 to Montebello on Sunday! Something went wrong with both teams. Perhaps they had their minds on the World Series, but after three games in which the two squads committed just six errors, they miscued 14 times.

It was real bush-league stuff with walks, stolen bases, wild pitches. Brownsburg made nine errors — and perhaps it's best to forget this game. . . . It is fairly safe to say, however, that on their records these teams won't play like that in the wind-up game next Sunday at Montebello.

In spite of the fact that nobody in Brownsburg or anywhere conceded Brownsburg even a play-off spot at the start of the season — and despite last week's big setback — the locals, playing their usual heads-up precision baseball, should bring back that trophy Sunday evening.

Second Straight Win — One More to Go

Thorl Bennett with his team, Jim and Charlie, who won the Blatchford Feed Trophy for the second straight year at the Vankleek Hill Fair recently. The winning draw was approximately 7,300 lbs. A win next year will give Mr. Bennett permanent possession of the trophy.

Tales of the Sea With Music to Match

"We give you ships and tides and men,
Anchors a-weigh and wind-filled sails.
We give you back the sea again
In sailor's song and rousing tale,
And inland where the dark hills rise
Between you and the salt-thick foam
You hear the surf, the seagulls' cries
And eastward turn your hearts toward home."

For the last eight years these lines written by Aileen Cameron have served to introduce "Harmony Harbor," a program that reflects in words and music some of the salty atmosphere of the Atlantic seaboard. The show returned to CBC Trans-Canada after a summer break — 12.30 p.m. Sunday.

As in previous years "Harmony Harbor" will include tales of the sea gleaned from the archives of the Atlantic provinces by Frank W. Doyle, a Halifax newspaper man. Sea chanties varying in sentiment from the rollicking pirate songs to sailor's vesper hymns are presented from the Halifax studios by the Acadian Male Quartet, and organist Marjory Payne provides the background music. Actual recordings of surf and seagulls add a further nostalgic touch.

For the Young in Heart

Jackie Rae now has his own television show every week. That's him with two of the show's dancers, Glenna Jones and Gayle Gibson, setting off for rehearsal at the CBC-TV studios where they will be met by the others on the show — Frank Peppiatt, Jack Kane and his orchestra, a vocal group called The Grads and a well-known guest. The show is rapidly gaining favor with the keen crowd who enjoy its fast-moving, free-and-easy pace.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

How can you avoid getting lost in a strange city? I'm an old hand on that because I've just returned from a 9,200 mile trip through the West, and I must admit, I got lost once or twice myself.

By trial and error, I've found that the best way to keep your bearings is by use of the landmark method.

When I entered a strange city, I kept my eyes peeled for two things: (1) an easily seen land mark such as a very tall building, a big department store, or a large park, and (2) the two main streets and where they intersect, making local "Times Square" of that city.

Then, when I checked into my hotel, I located myself in relation to the two points I'd picked out to be my guides. Knowing the exact location of my landmark building, the main business inretsection, and my hotel was nearly as good as having a compass and native guide.

But if you do get lost just ask directions of the first taxi driver or policeman you see — even in big cities, people are almost always friendly and helpful.

Ruth's Story Retold For Thanksgiving

"Ruth" by Charles E. Israel, the first of several religious dramas CBC-TV plans to present during the fall and winter, will be seen on Thanksgiving evening, 6.30-7.00 o'clock.

The play follows the Old Testament account fairly closely. It is the story of a young Moabite woman from the desert country south of Israel. She has come to Bethleheme with her mother-in-law, Naomi, after the death of her Israelite husband. She meets Boaz, a wealthy young landowner. The play progresses to tell of the love between Ruth and Boaz, which is complicated by Ruth's foreign origin.

The Bible places the story in the Palestine of the 12th century B.C., in the turbulent time of the Judges, prior to the establishment of the Hebrew monarchy. However, it is believed that the Book of Ruth was actually written almost 800 years later, when the Jews were returning to their land after the exile in Babylon. At this time the scribe, Ezra, one of the leaders of the Jewish community, vigorously opposed inter-marriage between Jews and their neighbors. The Book of Ruth was an attempt to counteract Ezra's influence. In order to accomplish this, the anonymous author created a heroine who, though a foreigner, was the great-grandmother of King David.

Essentially the Book of Ruth is a simple, moving love story. This is the keynote of the play, with special emphasis on the harvest festival which lends the drama color.

For the title role producer Paul Almond has found a new face, one that has only appeared once before on TV. The name is Sharon Acker. Almond says he chose her after auditioning 25 actresses for the part and predicts that "we'll be seeing quite a lot of her this winter".

Play It Safe

Some of the many hazards which the public must guard against in its daily campaign for a safer existence are discussed by the CBC's safety panel on its program "Play It Safe," which is heard three days a week. Members of the panel are (left to right) Russel Buyers, former general-manager of th Ontario Safety League; Joan Fowler, well-known commentator; June Dennis, author and commentator; and Neil LeRoy, broadcaster and actor. Miss Dennis is heard every Monday with hints on health and home nursing. Mr. Buyers, one of Canada's leading traffic safety authorities, is heard with Miss Fowler and Mr. LeRoy Wednesday and Friday, discussing everything from safety measures around the home and child safety to crooked sales practices and household rackets. Reid Forcee is the producer.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Be Happy

The other day, when I urged a young lad to wear a smile and be happy, he came back at me fast.

"How can I be happy when I'm not happy! You're just like my Dad. He tells me to love God. How can I make myself love God?"

That was a poser.

I was forced to admit that happiness is a task to be worked at — like bravery in the face of danger or work in the face of doubt and despair. Abe Lincoln said that the average man is just about as happy as he makes up his mind to be. Robert Louis Stevenson said that there is no duty we underrate so much as the duty of being happy. On another occasion he spoke of being happy as a task.

I hope the fact that to be happy requires that he work at it will not deter my young friend. After all most of the good things of the world require work. And work itself can be a joy, in spite of modern reluctance to engage in it. Something for nothing is usually something worth nothing.

I did not try to answer the boy's problem about making himself love God. I think that it will be answered automatically if he accepts the truth about happiness.

I have never met a really happy man who did not love God and the world God created. I have known men who did not believe in God but such men always seemed to me to be disturbed and unhappy. Often because they were busy trying to take God's place and run the world their way.

Pretty unsatisfactory answers for the young man, I admit. But he will wait a long time if he expects anyone to hand him faith and happiness on a silver platter. Those ser precious gifts each must seek for himself.

"WHAT'S GOING ON IN TOWN"?

Can you picture what life in your town would be like without a weekly newspaper?
You'd have nothing to keep you up to date on happenings right in your own neighbourhood.
If you had something to sell, you'd have to go out and look for a buyer. If you needed to buy something, you'd have to look all over town for it.
Your neighbours could marry, have children, or even die, without you hearing about it until much later.
Council could pass a by-law affecting you and you might never hear of it.
Plans for worthwhile community projects might never get started for lack of news and support.
And how would you keep up with the fortunes of the hockey team or the baseball club?
Fortunately, your town has a weekly newspaper, a source of local information that no other kind of publication can replace.
Over the years, Canadian weekly editors have lent their support unstintingly to many a good community cause. This year, for the first time, they are celebrating National Weekly Newspaper Week, and Imperial Oil is glad to participate in paying tribute to your weekly newspaper.

Thanksgiving – Fulfilment Of Springtime's Promise

"Come, ye thankful people, come,
Raise the song of harvest home!
All is safely gathered in,
E'er the winter storms begin."

Crispy air with a hint of frost, glowing trees in rich autumn shades floodlighted by a peculiar copper-colored sun, golden stubble on freshly harvested fields, granaries filled with the season's crops and piles of fruits and vegetables ready for winter storage — yes, this is October, the month of beauty and fulfilment. It is the time of traditional gratitude for our good and abundant Canadian harvest the time when one special day is set apart for rightly observing our national Thanksgiving. In many homes Thanksgiving will be marked by the gathering of families and friends and by a specially prepared dinner where the table will boast such good things as — roast turkey or chicken, cranberry sauce, steaming hot vegetables including fluffy mashed potatoes, rich brown gravy, a crisp salad and pumpkin or apple pie.

In keeping with the spirit of Thanksgiving, simple but different table centrepieces can be easily made using colorful combinations of fall fruits and vegetables. One such handsome decoration can be made by grouping crimson red apples, blush-yellow pears, purple plums, deeply netted cantaloupes and orange tinted peaches flanked by clusters of blue, red and green grapes on autumn leaves. Golden sun-ripened heads of oats placed here and there among the fruits will add both height and lightness to the table centre.

Vegetables can also be displayed this way. An attractively placed arrangement of deep purple eggplant, snowy white cauliflower, deep green pepper squash, bright orange carrots and creamy white parsnips surrounded by cranberries and autumn leaves make a beautiful centre to adorn the Thanksgiving table.

A medley of fruits and vegetables such as green cabbage, golden onions, dried ears of corn, blue, red or green grapes and vivid red apples make an attractive table decoration. Using few or many fruits and vegetables, there are all kinds of possibilities. But, one word of warning, since the makings, particularly the fruits, for these table arrangements are perishable they should not be left on the table too long.

During the spring and summer all through the country much time and effort has been devoted to the production of fall fruits and vegetables and special care has been taken while harvesting them. Then, too, agriculturalists and producers are working constantly on better means of storing these perishable products so that they will be of the highest quality when we buy them as we need them in the shops during the winter.

For those who are considering buying and storing fall fruits and vegetables in their homes the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture stresses the point that safe storage of apples, pears, cabbage, carrots and other such vegetables depends on controlled temperature and humidity. For this reason the space set aside for storage should be well insulated and have some method of cooling with outside air. Ventilation can generally be provided by merely opening a window but windows which allow sunlight to get in should be darkened. Light not only increases the temperature but also causes sprouting of onions, potatoes and other vegetables.

Only sound well matured fruits and vegetables which have been handled as little as possible should be stored. And these foods should be checked frequently for spoilage. If wilting occurs the humidity in the storage room should be increased. If rot or any form of disease is noted — no matter how slight — the affected fruit or vegetable should be discarded. This will prevent other stored foods from becoming tainted or damaged.

Unlike the later and more hardy varieties of apples and pears — peaches, grapes and plums cannot be stored for any length of time. When small quantities of these fruits are to be held for a few days they should be thoroughly washed and kept in the refrigerator.

Attending National Consumers' Conference

Mrs. J. W. Adams, of Ethelton, Sask., president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, is in Montreal this week attending the national annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Consumers. Mrs. Adams is a member of the National Board of Directors.

The two other delegates from the F.W.I.C. are Mrs. Hugh Summers, of Fonthill, Ont., immediate past-president and chairman of the National CAC Committee on Agriculture; and Mrs. G. E. LeBaron, of North Hatley, president of the Quebec Women's Institutes and chairman of the F.W.I.C. Committee on United Nations and Exchange Programs. Mrs. LeBaron is also a member of the Provincial CAC Board of Directors (Quebec English Branch).

The F.W.I.C. is a participating organization with CAC, at the national level, with particular interest in its policies as they affect the rural producer and consumer.

Storage of Meats in Home Freezer or Locker

Experimental work on the storage and cooking of frozen meats which has been in progress for some time in the Consumer Section at Ottawa, has been completed. As a result definite cooking instructions and storage times can now be given to the many Canadian families who store their meat in a home freezer or locker.

Meat and other foods which are to be frozen should always be properly packaged in freezer wrappings or in special freezer containers in order to keep all the moisture and flavor inside the package and to allow the frozen food to retain its fresh characteristics. When foil or plastic freezer wrappings are used they should be covered with an overwrap of brown paper to prevent holes from being punctured in them. This is not necessary when laminated paper or other such heavy papers are used. Steaks, chops and meat patties will separate more easily if a folded piece of freezer wrapping or waxed paper has been placed between them. Freezer cartons which are designed for freezing fruits and vegetables may also be used for storing stew meat, minced meat, cutlets and cooked left-over meats and gravies.

Whether or not meat is thawed before cooking is a matter of time and convenience. If it is to be thawed, the wrapping should be left on in order to prevent the evaporation of juices from the meat. It may be thawed in the refrigerator, allowing nine to ten hours per pound, or at room temperature allowing only two to three hours per pound. The time it takes to thaw at room temperature may be reduced considerably if the package of meat is placed in front of an electric fan. Meat that has been thawed completely should not be refrozen and it should always be cooked promptly to prevent spoilage.

Frozen roasts, steaks and chops may be cooked without thawing or they may be thawed before cooking. If the meat is first thawed then it will require just the same cooking time as meat which has not been frozen and, especially in the case of large roasts, a more even cooking is assured. Roasts which are not thawed before cooking should be cooked uncovered in a moderately slow, 325°F. oven for approximately one and a half times as long as it takes for fresh ones. The use of a meat thermometer is the surest way of determining doneness of roasts cooked this way. The thermometer should not be inserted until the roast is at least half-cooked. In cooking unthawed pot roasts the same extra time is required. That is, for example, if a fresh roast takes two hours to cook, a frozen one that has not been thawed will take approximately three hours.

Frozen steaks and chops can be either panfried or broiled but they are a little more difficult to brown if they are not thawed before cooking. Frozen beef steaks and lamb chops require at least twice as much panfrying time as fresh ones, frozen pork chops one and a half times as long, and frozen veal chops just five or ten minutes longer than fresh ones. Frozen steaks or chops to be broiled should be heated in the broiler, six or seven inches below the heating unit, until they are thawed. This will take seven or eight minutes on each side for meat one-half inch thick. Then the broiler pan should be raised and the meat cooked in the same way as fresh steaks or chops.

There are certain time limits for keeping meat in a home freezer or locker. Large or thick cuts of meat can be held considerably longer in storage than small pieces which tend to dry out and develop off-flavors more quickly. Like other frozen foods, meat must be wrapped in moisture-vapor-proof materials and should be stored at a constant temperature of 0° F. Here are the maximum storage times for frozen meats, as recommended by the Consumer Section:

Beef Roasts and Steaks	10 to 12 months
Lamb Roasts	6 to 8 months
Veal Roasts and Chops, Pork Roasts (fresh or cured), Lamb Chops	4 to 5 months
Pork Chops, Bacon, Variety Meats (liver, kidney, heart, etc.)	3 to 4 months
Minced Meats	2 to 3 months
Sausages, Wieners	2 to 3 weeks
Cooked Roasts	2 to 3 months
Cooked Stews, Meat Loaves and Other Cooked Meat Dishes	1 to 2 months

Woman Survived Weeks in Woods

Vancouver (CP) — How a frail woman lost in the British Columbia woods 29 years ago survived to greet rescuers weeks later was recalled here by detective Fred Dougherty of the Vancouver police force.

Mary Warburton, 57-year-old graduate nurse weighing only 130 pounds, had decided to walk from Hope to Princeton, there to pick fruit. She set out with four cakes of rye-crisp, half a pound each of bacon, butter and cheese, a pound of raisins and two ounces of almonds.

She expected to cover the 80 miles in four days but wandered off course. Search parties were sent out, but they abandoned the hunt three weeks later when a heavy snow covered the mountains.

Dougherty and a companion were sent back later, to find the body and bring it in. "The weather was foul," he said, "and I didn't think anyone could stay alive and sane alone in those mountains."

The pair stumbled upon Miss Warburton by accident. Dougherty thought he heard a sob while he was building a fire, preparing to camp for the night.

"It was sheer luck. The sob directed us to the spot where the woman had expected to die that night. There, tottering feebly, more like a ghost than a living woman, was Mary Warburton. She weighed about 80 pounds."

Grandmothers Outrace Younger Competitors

—Central Press Canadian

Last year these two grandmothers won the ladies' log-sawing contest at annual fall fair held at Burks' Falls, Ont. This year Mrs. Merle O'Brien, left, and Mrs. Wesley Puddy did a repeat performance although they were up against younger competitors, who were determined to win. Their winning time for feature attraction at fair was 20 seconds.

The wool dress is getting better looking each season, graduating as it has from the utility class to the dressy side of things. For smart daytime wear, for a matinee or a tea, here is a delightful dress in dark brown or black smooth, fine woolen. The neckline charts a nice course between high and low and has a pretty little pointed collar in front. There is a double row of self buttons below the waist from which the skirt is draped to fall in graceful side back fullness.

Our Heritage of Trees

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Mummy, come with me and see the big maple at the end of the street!" small Jimmie's eyes were bright with excitement. "It's got all red and yellow leaves last night! If you hurry, I won't be late for school."

Mrs. Green left her breakfast dishes and went to see the magic which had taken place over night. "I don't like my work being interrupted — but if I don't go, Jimmie will be disappointed, and he's so small!" she thought.

Encourage your child to not only appreciate the beauty of trees and their value, but to know the various kinds. Learning to identify all the trees in your area can form a fascinating project. You are likely familiar with the common trees near your home. But on a hike do notice the different kinds of oaks, maples, birches? Can you tell a white oak from a red oak? a sugar maple from a Manitoba maple? a Lombardy poplar from an aspen?

You will discover some excellent Tree Guides in your public library. The inexpensive paper-covered book, Forest Trees of Canada" (Department of Mines, Ottawa) is well worth buying.

Perhaps you have noticed in parks, little labels on the trees and you have taken a look at one of them and then said in disgust:

"Oh! That is Latin. Why in the world can't they use English and be sensible?"

It is in order to be sensible that Latin is used for scientific names. Every tree has a common name, likely several common names — and different names in different parts of the country. Instead of calling a certain tree a sugar or hard or rock maple it is named acer saccharum marsh. Acer is the genus or group name and it signifies that this particular tree belongs to the maple family, whereas the second part of the name is the species name, telling to which member of the maple family this tree belongs. This system does away with the confusion which arises from the use of common names.

Scholars in some classrooms collect and press leaves, while others gather twigs from different trees. This makes children more observant Sometimes a boy or girl can recognize a tree quickly when it has its leaves on. But in the winter, when the bare limbs against the sky are very beautiful, they do not know the usual shape of the different species.

Photographing trees is an interesting hobby. Making spatter-prints with leaves is another fascinating handcraft activity. Blueprints of leaves, when developed properly, keep their appearance longer than pressed leaves. The best pictures and prints can be mounted or framed and used to decorate a wall in a den.

The study of trees is an enticing hobby — the more you know the more vau want to know. Unlike the wild flowers, and many of the birds, our trees are with us all year round. There are so many interesting tree discoveries! Children can find out the age of a tree which has been chopped down, by the number of annual rings in the cross section of the stump.

The loss of our forest heritage by fire each year is tragic. Boys and girls are taught forest conservation at school. Parents should set a good example on a trip in their care with camp fires.

The should also encourage an appreciation of beauty, of growing things, trees and flowers and birds. In a family where a father and mother take time to go for drives and walks with their children, these youngsters will grow up with eyes open to the beauty of line and color. Why not express your gratitude in a little prayer? Years ago, Thomas Fuller pointed out "Many favors God gives to us ravel out for want of hemming, through our own unthankfulness; for though prayer purchases blessings, giving praise doth keep the quiet possession of them".

"So you met your wife at a dance. Wasn't it romantic?"

"Romantic? I should say not. It was embarrassing. I thought she was at home taking care of the kids."

Appeal for Food Donations For Orange Prot. Home At Rosemere, Que.

Once again the L.O.B.A. 943 are issuing their annual appeal to the farmers and citizens of Argenteuil County for donations of food for the Orange and Protestant Children's Home at Rosemere, Que.

This home is kept up by donations sent to the Home Committee by various organizations and individuals. Every fall its supporters hold what is called "Pound Day", which this year is being held October 22. On this day it is aimed to supply the Home with potatoes, vegetables and canned foods, etc., for the winter months.

If any readers feel they could spare a bag of potatoes or vegetables, or some of that good food they canned from their garden, anything in the line of edibles that children might like — please advise the Orange ladies before October 22 and such donations will be gladly accepted.

The L.O.B.A. wishes to thank all who have generously donated in the past, and it is hoped that this year the appeal will go over bigger and better than before.

Any who wish to donate something to this worthy cause, kindly telephone 359, Lachute.

FIG TREES THRIVE FOR TORONTO OWNER

—Central Press Canadian

Two fig trees are thriving in the garden of August Papania of Toronto, who is seen here exhibiting his rare fruit. A vegetable grower, Papania first brought the two seedlings with him from Italy in 1910. He digs them out and buries them in the ground for the winter, then replants them in spring. They bear fruit twice a year, and this is one of heaviest years, possibly because of the hot summer. Mr. Papania believes his trees are only ones in Canada.

Work In Bolivia Nun's Long Task

Montreal (CP) — Sister Mary of St. Helen, of the Montreal order of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, has a benign and gentle air. But under her calm exterior is the drive and dedication of a true pioneer.

She has spent the last 23 years in Bolivia, where she first went on on a volunteer mission as an English teacher and remained to devote her life to the Bolivian people.

With her activities centred around the mountainous city of La Paz, she promoted government assistance to build a home for hundreds of orphans, a state prison for women, and a girl's school in Santa Rosa Cochabamba. Her services were recognized in 1951 by the Bolivian government, when they bestowed upon her the order of the Condor of the Andes.

Born in London, England, Sister Mary completed her studies with the Sisters of the Holy Name in Winnipeg. She entered the Good Shebherd Order in 1924, and taught in Winnipeg until 1932 when she went to Bolivia.

Recently she revisited Montreal to see her mother, Mrs. Lily Davis, and plans to return to Bolivia soon.

Hunters Can Help Research on Deer

Montreal — Hunters can help biologists in their study of the deer population of the province of Quebec by sending them the lower jaw of the deer they kill, together with information as to the sex of the animal and where it was killed. A request for this co-operation is made through the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations by Gaston Moisan, Provincial Biologist.

Mr. Moisan said that a basic study of the deer population structure in hunting Zone C will be made during the 1955 hunting season. Checking stations will be set up at l'Annonciation in Labelle County and Rimouski, where technicians will check the age and sex of every deer brought in to them.

"The actual determination of the age of a deer is not only of interest to the sportsman," said Mr. Moisan, "but it is a valuable tool for the game manager. Data may be obtained which shows the age composition of the deer population. This will indicate the degree of replenishment by young stock as well as the average life span and mortality rate".

"Age determination is made possible by examination of the lower jaw, using tooth replacement and wear. With this important fact in mind, we call upon all interested hunters to mail us the lower jaw, or half of it, of any deer killed, and to indicate the sex of the animal and where it was killed. We will be glad to let them know the exact age of their kill and, simultaneously, they will help us in our work."

Jaws of deer, with any other information, should be sent to: Biological Bureau, Fish and Game Department, Parliament Buildings Quebec, Que.

The Story of the Granby Elephant

When the story of the Granby elephant is told, names of the two women responsible are always remembered. These were Dr. K. Nimbkar, eminent doctor and social welfare leader in her native country of India, and Mrs. K. Kuppuswamy, Mysore, vice-president of the All-India Women's Conference.

When the Associated Country Women of the World held its last Triennial Conference (Toronto, 1953) these two women were sent as observers by the Italian Government. Post-conference tours were held by Institutes in all provinces and the Indian observers were among the group in the Quebec Tour, arranged and conducted by Mrs. C. D. Harvey, 1st vice-president, Quebec Women's Institutes. Granby was the first point of call. Here the Zoo was visited, among other places, and at the civic luncheon which followed Dr. Wimbkar jokingly remarked that she had noticed that there was no elephant in the Zoo, but if the children of Granby would like one she would see that a request went to Prime Minister Nehru.

When Dr. Nimbkar and Mrs. Kuppuswamy reached home weeks later (several other countries were visited en route) this incident was mentioned when making their courtesy call on Mr. Nehru to give a report of their trip. "Why not?" he said, "Let the children write to me and we might like to oblige them. We have not yet sent an elephant to Canada".

Dr. Nimbkar immediately wrote to Mrs. Harvey, quoting this remark. Mrs. J. Ossington, Granby, then president of the Shefford County Women's Institute, was contacted and she arranged for a letter to be circulated among the children of that district. Over 6,000 signatures were placed on it and the letter then given to Mayor Boivin to be forwarded to Prime Minister Nehru, through the Indian High Commissioner to Canada.

Later, in a letter to Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Kuppuswany stated that an elephant had been obtained in her native province of Mysore and she expected arrangements would soon be made by the Central Government to have it shipped to Canada.

The chain of events set in motion by that chance remark has now run its course. Ambika, the name chosen by Mr. Nehru, has arrived and the children of Granby have their elephant.

The ground work laid by these two Indian women, was recalled by Mrs. G. E. LeBaron, Q.W.I. president, speaking at the ceremonies held in Granby last week when the Indian High Commissioner formally presented the gift to the children of Granby. She told of the friendships made at that time between the women of the two countries, India and Canada, and felt it was being shown in a practical way in the current Q.W.I. project of assistance with equipment for the Mysore State Agricultural College. "Knowing how much Macdonald College has assisted our rural youth in learning better farming methods — it is not surprising that we feel this a sound investment", said Mrs. LeBaron.

LEARNS IMPORTANCE OF BEING SIR GEORGE

George Grant-Suttie, of Sussex, N.B., became Sir George Grant-Suttie when his Scottish cousin, the 17th baronet, died seven years ago, but George, age 16, didn't realize the importance of being Sir George until he visited the estate, Balgone and Prestongrange, on Scotlands' east coast for the first time recently. He found that with the title he had inherited a 500-year-old mansion, five farms and 2,000 acres of land. He reacted by hurdling the fence as you see. Said Sir George, "I have to go back to Canada to finish my education . . . but if I decide that Scotland is the place for me I shall return very soon."

What Happens to Black Flies ?

Most people who move about in the Canadian summer are painfully aware of the black fly. Few have knowledge of what happens to these flies in the winter or how they are able to re-appear in such numbers summer after summer.

L. C. Curtis, of the Canada Department of Agriculture Insect Laboratory at Kamloops, B.C., has made a study of the biology and control of black flies and other biting insects affecting livestock. He describes them as quite small, heavy-bodied flies, mostly black, but some red in color and generally with a hump-backed appearance.

They begin to emerge in mid-June and are on the wing until the frost in the fall. He estimates there are 30 different species of black flies in British Columbia.

Black flies invariably require moving water, often rapidly moving water for part of their life cycle. Eggs are laid in late summer on leaves, trailing vegetation, or rocks. The eggs hatch in the spring into worm-like larvae and remain attached to the rocks, feeding on minute particles which they strain from the water. When fully developed they spin a little slipper-shaped silk cocoon attached to twigs or rocks. After some time is spent in this stage, the fully developed adults split open the pupa case and escape to the surface in an air bubble, then fly off in search of blood.

For control purposes, the larval stage in water is the weak link in the insect's life cycle for the larvae can be easily killed by adding DDT to the water at the rate of one part in 10 million for 15 minutes.

For example, a stream one foot deep, 20 feet wide, and 500 feet long could be treated with one ounce of DDT, and this body of water passing downstream would kill all larvae that it contacts. Care must be taken to regulate the dose of DDT to avoid harm to the fish.

The fish, however, can stand about four times the dose required to kill the black fly.

Field men applying control measures must measure the stream flow and apply the proper amount of DDT. Each tributary of the stream must be treated right to its source, sometimes difficult in rough country. Blanket treatment by aircraft is effective, but quite expensive.

Sub-Normal Temperatures Help to Cure Sick

Cold is being used to help the sick. For centuries, it has been applied to bruised muscles and aching heads. Now we have found many new uses for it. Hypothermia, the medical term for abnormally low temperature, has been tried on patients suffering from cancer, mental disorders, shock, high fever, haemorrhages, and infections, and in heart surgery.

Scientists are investigating a possibility that lower body temperatures may prolong the life span. For when the temperature of the body falls below normal, all its functions slow down. The heartbeats are fewer, the blood vessels contract, the nerves are benumbed, and eventually deep sleep sets in. Hibernating animals are therefore being studied to determine if thir long winter sleep with its lower temperature lengthens their lives. Experiments with small water animals have shown that they live three times longer when their body temperature is lowered and their heart-rate depressed to one-fourth of normal.

Doctors apply cold to patients — with ice or artificial snow, cold water or liquids such as ethyl chloride which cool as they evaporate. We are all familiar with the ice bag; also used is a blanket containing coils through which cold water can be circulated at controlled temperatures. Ethyl chloride is sprayed on just as you might spray paint on a chair.

Probably the most common cold treatment is for sprains, strains and contusions. Recent tests show that when the injured area is chilled immediately, swellings subside quickly and the mobility of the muscles is rapidly restored.

The most spectacular use of human refrigeration is in heart surgery. By lowering body temperatures, the surgeon can shut off blood from the heart for long enough to operate without damaging the brain or other vital organs. The reason is that when the temperature is lowered, the tissues do not needed as much blood as normally.

The idea of using cold against cancer was first advocated 100 years ago, but only recently is there any serious attempt to do so. One team of researchers found that by lowering the body temperature in the treatment of malignant tumours, the pain was greatly reduced and some tumors actually disappeared. However, most surgeons believe the technique is too dangerous and the treatment has not been generally accepted.

Psychiatrists have reported that artificial hibernation and lowering of body temperatures have produced favorable results in some mental cases. Cold packs are considered safer than narcotics.

For the treatment of shock from internal bleeding and serious injury, animal experiments indicate that low body temperature acts as a protective mechanism. Some researchers have advocated refrigeration to reduce high fevers resulting from brain injury, surgical operations and even infectious diseases such as pneumonia. Great caution is exercised in the use of hypothermia, since lowering the body temperatures too far and too long can damage vital cells, particularly those of the nerves.

Although we still have much to learn about the relation of temperature to human physiology, recent progress encourages us to believe that we will find ways to use cold more safely in the treatment of our ills.

COMING FROM KENYA, FINDS CANADA COOL

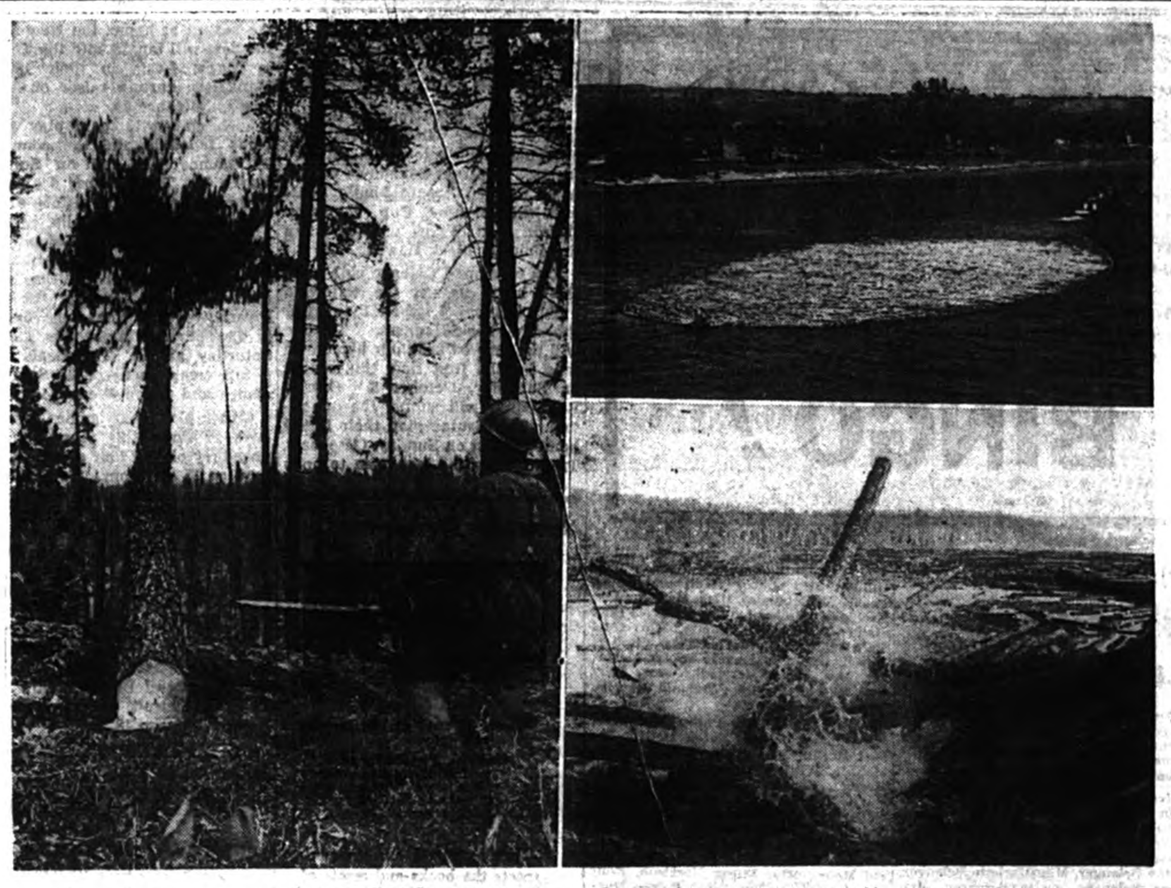

Vancouver (CP) — Carol Sue Turner, 17-year-old University of British Columbia co-ed, arrived here from Kenya wearing winter garments and complained of cold feet.

Carol said it was hot the year round in Nairobi, Kenya, even without the Mau Mau. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Turner of Vancouver, who travelled the world these last 19 years, live in Kabete, residential area eight miles from Nairobi proper. "Our house in Kabete is right on the edge of the Kikiyu reserve," said Carol. "There is a Mau Mau chief living right back of our garden.

"I didn't know it till the police came and burned down his hut. I don't know what happened to him."

Carol was born in London and reared in Shanghai Hong Kong and Singapore.

She had never seen snow, a hockey game or Canadian football and wants to take up some winter sports, particularly skiing.

TIMBER—r—r, roars the woodsman above the chatter of his power saw as a skinny jack-pine swishes through the air and crashes to the ground.

Felling is the first step in the pulpwood harvest and the beginning of an industrial operation that benefits every Canadian.

For trees like this, even though mature, are too small for lumber. But they do make good paper.

By harvesting such trees the pulp and paper industry promotes the complete utilization of the forest resources and generates a big chunk of the national income.

Lower right: Sixteen foot lengths of pulpwood make a big splash as they are dumped into a lake to begin their journey to the mills while, upper right, a huge boom of pulpwood logs dwarfs the tug pulling it down a slowly moving river.

Big Increase Noted in Quebec Mining Claims

There was a large increase in the number of mining claims recorded and miner's certificates issued by the Quebec Department of Mines for the first seven months of this year, as compared with the same period last year — according to a report issued by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines. Between January 1 and August 1 of this year 25,230 claims were recorded and 11,268 miner's certificates issued. During the same period last year, 17,995 claims were recorded and 8,403 miner's certificates issued.

JOHN'S HIGHWAY SCHEME: The St. John Ambulance Brigade, which is planning the creation of highway First Aid Posts throughout the province, received a fine contribution toward this project this month when Dow Brewery presented the brigade with the modern, fully-equipped ambulance shown above. Attending the official presentation are, left to right: J. Armand Desrochers, vice-president and general manager of the company; Wilfrid Gagnon, president of Dow Brewery; Col. K. S. Bjorn, Provincial Commissioner; and W. W. Ferrier, president of the Quebec Council, shown handing the keys of the vehicle to Col. Bjorn.

YOUNG RACCOON REAL HOUSE PET

Ottawa (CP) — Pogo Raccoon is a man's man. The little animal took a fancy to George Archer of Wrightville, Que., who was strolling down a country road. But even after four weeks in the Archer family he still hadn't warmed up to blonde Mrs. Archer. "I really don't know what I'll do when I'm left alone with Pogo," she said. "He just wanders around weeping if George even goes out the door." George, a lieutenant in the navy, was preparing to go out of town for a week.

"Maybe if Pogo and I have a whole week alone together, he'll sort of get used to me," said Mrs. Archer.

The raccoon sleeps in the bathroom of the apartment — he slept in the wash basin on extra hot nights. He eats raw meat, eggs, fond of vanilla ice cream cones, which he holds between his two milk and sweets, and is particularly front paws as he licks them. He also snitches ice cubes from visitors' drinks.

Pogo is almost completely housebroken, his owners say, and has been taught to keep out of the Archers' box of plants in spite of his liking for digging in the dirt.

Quebec Protestant School Teachers Holding 91st Annual Convention

Some 3,000 teachers, scattered in schools throughout the province, are meeting at West Hill High School Thursday and Friday, October 6 and 7, for the 91st annual convention of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers.

This year's convention is concentrating on solutions for the everyday problems encountered in classroom teaching. Eight demonstration lessons have been scheduled as well as four panel discussions of specific problems in the course of study. In addition there will be a number of short addresses by practising teachers and departmental examiners.

As in past years, there will be a display of books and educational equipment, as well as seven or eight other displays of direct assistance to teachers.

A highlight will be the open meeting which will be held at the High School of Montreal on the Thursday night. The speaker will be Ralph Allen, editor of Maclean's Magazine, who will discuss parent-teacher attitudes and the need for a new word for "education". This meeting will be open to the public.

Mr. Allen's address will be preceded by the presentation of the Award of Scholastic Merit to 13 of the province's most outstanding teachers and educators — including Mrs. Ruth Graham, of the Lachute High School staff.

Prof. Bert C. Diltz, of the Ontario College of Education, Toronto, will address Friday morning's general session on the subject, "Education — Alive and Liberating."

Prof. Diltz, who is regarded as one of Canada's top teachers of English literature at the high school level, will also speak to the English section Thursday afternoon on the subject "Shadow and the Substance in English Studies".

The presidential address will be delivered Thursday morning at the opening session in West Hill's assembly hall by Miss Barbara Lax, Commercial Specialist, High School for Girls, Montreal and the annual reception of the president of the P.A.P.T. will be held in the Ball Room of the Ritz Carlton Hotel on Thursday from 5 to 7 p.m.

The Administrative Problems Section will hear an address by Dr. C. E. Smith, new Macdonald Professor of Education at McGill, on the subject, "Helping the Beginning Teacher".

Dr. F. W. Maroney, Dean Emeritus of Brooklyn College, New York, will address teachers of hysical education and health on the theme, "Protect the Power House".

Dr. Alastair MacLeod of the Mental Hygiene Institute will address guidance teachers on "The Teaching of Mental Health". Other sectional meetings will be addressby Dr. Marjory S. Johnson, Director of the Reading Clinic Laboratory School, Temple University, Philadelphia; Alfred Pinsky, well-known Montreal artist and teacher of art at St. George's School; Dr. Margaret Nix; C. A. Peachey, general manager of the communicommunications and equipment cations and equipment division of the Northern Electric Company; Dr. M. Jean Bruchesi, Undersecretary of the Province of Quebec; and Prof. Arthur Henry of Macdonald College School for Teachers.

Teachers attending the convention will be asked to express a preference between continuing to have the annual convention at West Hill or returning to the High School of Montreal. They will also cast ballots for their executive and officers for the 1955-56 year.

NHL Opening October 6 Earliest in League History

Montreal — The National Hockey League season will open officially on Thursday, October 6, on two fronts. Montreal Canadiens will be hosts to the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Stanley Cup champion Detroit Red Wings will entertain the Chicago Black Hawks.

The revamped Chicago club open their home season the following night, October 7, when they meet the new York Rangers. Toronto will perform before their hometown fans for the first time this season on Saturday, October 8. Detroit Red Wings will supply the opposition. The Bruins play their initial home contest on Sunday, October 9. Traditionally the last team to open the season at home, the New York Rangers will tangle with the Toronto Maple Leafs in their 1955-56 Manhattan curtain raiser on Wednesday, October 19.

Each club will again play a 70-game schedule and the complete 210 games will end on Sunday, March 18. The October 6 opening is the earliest in the history of the league, which incidentally, is commencing its 39th season of play.

Montreal and Toronto play all of their home games on the same nights as they have for the past several years. Canadiens engage in 13 Thursday night tilts and 22 Saturday games. The Leafs play a full complement of 24 Saturday games and 11 on Wednesday.

Clubs play four games in five days 14 times this season. Last year they played four games in five days on 25 occasions. Toronto play four times in five days on four occasions this season. Montreal and Boston each do it three times while Detroit and Chicago each do it once.

Teams play on successive nights a total of 124 times this season. They played 137 times on successive nights in 1954-55. Toronto has the most doubleheaders with 24. New York and Boston follow with 22 each, Detroit has 21, Montreal 20, and Chicago 18.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Q. I have been paying into the unemployment insurance fund and I left my job recently. Now they say I can't draw benefit because I left voluntarily. Is that right?

A. Benefit is postponed for a period up to six weeks if the claimant left his job voluntarily without just cause.

* * *

Q. I would like to change jobs. If I apply at the employment office, would they help me find employment outside or would they take into account that I already have a job about twelve months a year? Further, would they tell my employer about this?

A. You may register for other employment even if you have a job at present. The local office will not inform your present employer.

* * *

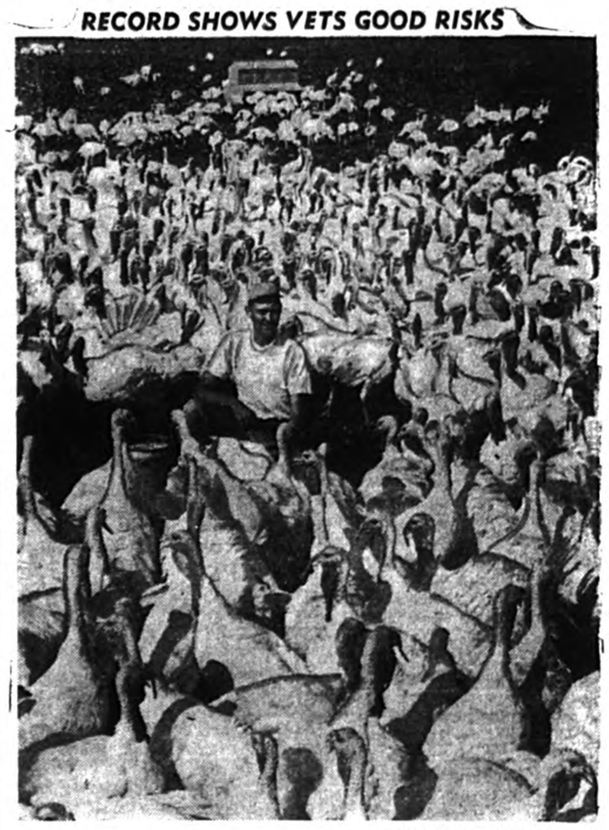

Q. Two insurance books have been issued for me in one year. Should I turn one in, and what about the contributions in it?

A. You should turn in both books to the local office which will amalgamate the contributions and return one book to you.

Q. I am an old man, aged 72, and left my employment because I found my work too heavy and the hours too long for my age. When I left, my late employers guaranteed me one month's full salary and six months half salary. Am I entitled to U.I. benefit during the period this money is being paid to me?

A. If these monies were paid for past services; you are ready, able and willing to work; and provided you are otherwise qualified, benefit will be paid to you.

RECORD SHOWS VETS GOOD RISKS

—Central Press Canadian

One of the thousands of World War II veterans who financed a farming venture through Veterans' Land act funds, Al Cuddy of Strathroy, Ont., surveys his income-on-the-hoof, a $25,000 batch of turkeys. Al, a former VLA officer, bought his farm in 1950 with the help of a $9,000 VLA loan, now values his turkey farm holdings at $120,000. First of the VLA land grants were made in 1945, and the veteran could not claim unconditional title for ten years. Now, with the first of the veterans being given title to their land, the government records show that most of those who borrowed have lived up to their contracts and in most cases have benefitted enormously.

Enthusiasm in Plowing Match, Many Entries

The Argenteuil Plowmen's Association held their annual plowing match under cloudy skies last Friday, at the farm of Murray Stewart in Mabel. Although the early-morning weather was threatening, this did not deter 22 tractor operators and four teams from making the match a complete success.

Mr. Steppler and Mr. Coull, both of the Agronomy department of Macdonald College, placed the tractor classes, while Mr. Vollen Hastings, of Knowlton, Que., placed the teams and the horse-plowing.

The tug-of-war proved a success and will be held again next year as an annual feature of the match. The men on the winning team were as follows: William Brass, Watson Berry, Norman MacGeorge, Lloyd Hume, Johnny Drennan, Eddie Robertson, Cecil Elder and Irvin Cleland.

Prize-winners in each class, and the two cup winners, are published on page 6. Awards will be presented at the fall dance to be held in the Legion Hall on Friday, October 21.

Winner of Radio Contest To Tune of $6,765

Robert S. "Bud" McArthur, a former Lachute resident now living in Buckingham, was the lucky winner of $6,765 last Thursday on Radio Station CFRA's "Casino" program. Bud is the son of Mrs. Robert McArthur and the late Mr. McArthur, veteran storekeepers at Dalesville and subsequently residents of Lachute.

Robt. and Mrs. McArthur (the former Miss Geraldine Lamarche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albini Lamarche, Lachute) left this community for Buckingham about six years ago. They have two boys, Neil 19, and Allen, 14. Prior to leaving here, McArthur worked for D. G. MacRae, then B.A. oil distributor. He is at present a superintendent for Chipman Chemicals Ltd. in Buckingham.

He was awarded the prize money when his letter containing the correct answer (Henry Ford, Sr.) was drawn; some 18 clues had been given towards solving the riddle. All-in-all, the lucky winner reports sending in approximately 20 letters.

Numerous local residents have been following the contest for some years now, many having the correct answer but none having had their entries drawn as yet.

Thefts Reported by Gatineau Company

An estimated $625 worth of copper wire has been reported stolen by local Gatineau Power officials, who state that two thefts occurred during the past week. Quantities of wire also have been missing periodically since early spring.

Gatineau employees were in the act of taking down an old line near Whisseltown last Wednesday and, rather than disconnect the wire, they up-ended the poles, planning to round up the wire the following day. When they reported to work, the job had been completed for them — but the wire was missing.

Thieves broke into the Grace Street warehouse during Saturday night and made off with 500 pounds of new wire, an estimated loss of $425. Provincial and local police are investigating.

Annual Observance, October 9-15

Fire Chief and Brigade Stress Theme of Safety and Precaution

Sirens wailed through the streets Monday night — as Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon and a good turnout of volunteer firefighters, town and provincial police reminded the citizens that this is Fire Prevention Week. The observance is held every October in commemoration of the Great Chicago Fire of October 9, 1871.

It has been some time since the fire alarm has sounded in Lachute, although members of the brigad have answered calls both in and outside Lachute Town limits. The last time a fire hose was laid in town was at a blaze on August 29 in sheds owned by Henri Filion, Princess Street. The fire spread to a double tenement owned by Prudent Chartrand, Ayers Street. Several sheds and their contents were destroyed.

Fire Chief Deacon reports that this year the volunteer firemen have been called out only twice to fires within the Lachute limits. Numerous minor fire-calls have been answered by the Chief, and the fire crew have been summoned to Ayersville and St. Jerusalem on more numerous occasions.

As in past years, the Council has played a constructive part with the annual chimney-sweeping campaign, carried on by the town foreman, Jos. Senecal, and his men. This work got underway some weeks ago, and is now about half completed, there being an estimated 2,000 chimneys to clean. A charge of 75 cents a chimney to the proprietor or occupant is made for this service.

Chief Deacon and his assistants have done a job in the past 37 years that cannot be equalled. Nor would it be possible to estimate how much property they have saved indirectly, and how much tragedy averted, by this annual effort — educating the children, visiting local schools, clubs and organizations, and explaining that the best way to combat fires is to prevent them before they start.

Children in the local schools have been taught the proper manner in which to leave school and other public buildings in event of fire. Whether they will keep as calm and cool in an actual outbreak is something no one can foresee, but at least preparedness should forestall a panic.

Jean Beliveau Here Friday

Young sports enthusiasts of the district will have the pleasure of meeting Jean Beliveau, Canadiens' hockey star, tomorrow evening at l'Ecole Supérieure. The hockey star will be in Lachute under sponsorship of the Knights of Columbus — Messrs. Robert Marcil (Loisirs president) and Leonard Bedard (Molsons distributor) being instrumental in organizing the occasion.

The event will get underway at 7.30 p.m. when "le gros Bill", as he is familiarly called, will address the gathering, distributing a photograph for each participant. A film of the Montreal-Detroit series last spring will also be shown. All the youth of the district are invited.

'Thanksgiving' Appropriate Keynote for Lachute Federation of Charities Appeal

Hon. W. M. Cottingham Gives Impetus as Speaker Among Federation Heads at Campaign Rally

At l'Ecole Supérieure on Sunday evening, religious, political and church dignitaries joined with the organizers of the Lachute Federation of Charities to launch their inaugural campaign, aiming at an objective of $16,300 in an intensive canvass from October 9 to 18.

Speakers at the opening rally were the Federation president, Dr. Marc Papineau; the Rev. Canon Wm. Lacourse; the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines; Mayor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald; and the campaign chairman, Gérard Lefebvre.

If the groundwork and preparation for this campaign are a criterion of its success, there were indications, from this and previous meetings, that the objective will be well attained.

Dr. M. Papineau

"Founded on the suggestion of His Excellency Mgr. Emilien Frenette, bishop of the diocese, and inspired by ideals of Christian charity, our Federation seeks to unite in practice, all our charitable enterprises which are common in spirit and motivation", said Dr. Papineau, addressing the assembly. "A Catholic organization, this Federation is an offering, from Catholics, to the well-being of the community. . . . The Federation will foster the charity-consciousness; it will encourage the beginning of new humanitarian efforts if needed in the future; and it will extend, to the greatest number, the privilege of giving — both of their means and their labors — for others less fortunate."

The president, in describing the organization of the Federation, touched up the work accomplished by the respective directors since its inauguration. He paid special tribute to Mr. Gerard Lefebvre for his meticulous work as campaign organizer, and to the men and women in charge of the canvassing.

He spoke also of the participating charities, including the latest to link with the Federation, namely, the Canadian Institute of the Blind, which, launching its appeal at this period of the year, had been welcomed for this campaign at least, in view of the humanitarian service it extends to local residents.

"Our canvassers — this year, at least — will extend the appeal also to our Anglo-Protestant citizens, believing they will gladly contribute as usual to the Institute of the Blind, and will also wish to show their tangible appreciation of the efforts of the Social Service," said Dr. Papineau.

"I know that you practice charity individually, but that is not enough. Charity must be a community affair — a collective challenge to 'Share with the Federation'."

Mgr. Wm. Lacourse

Canon Wm. Lacourse spoke briefly on the inspirational aspects of this venture. "One must not 'materialize' all human endeavors, or dissociate the name and spirit of Christ from man-made organizations", he said, in effect. "This charity campaign must be inspired by the Christian spirit, and aid will be extended, similarly, in the name of Christ."

Hon. W. M. Cottingham

The Hon. Minister of Mines was then called up to voice his encouragement to the campaign.

"It is a pleasant duty for me to speak on behalf of the Federation of Charities for Lachute", said Mr. Cottingham. "Like many other cities in the Province, Lachute is launching a Campaign similar to Red Feather for the benefit of its charitable organizations. This year our total objective is $16,300. It is a relatively small sum if we think of the vast extent of the need and of the important work which is carried on by the local Federation of Charities, helping little children, giving youth a chance to play, caring for the blind, restoring health and moral outlook in unhappy homes. All creeds are dedicated to these works of Social Service. It is a wonderful spirit of charity that moves these social workers, who go out of their way to improve the lot of their less happy or fortunate neighbors.

"Personal charity is vital to our world. Even the most advanced Social Welfare State, Sweden has its own Red Feather Campaign. The State cannot do everything. Citizens must help one another by combining their efforts and their charities. It is an excellent preventive gesture against social evils, for without individual charity, our society would be suffering from worse evils than it is now.

"Here in Lachute, the community's need for welfare services is great . . . The money you are going to give will serve your people in your community. It will serve to help the blind, the youngsters on their playgrounds, the adults in their recreation centres, the womenfolk in their work of clothing the poor, and many families in their physical health and moral outlook. It will bring a ray of sunshine, a light of hope, a word of advice and comfort.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, let us give a little more than we can afford, let us reach the objective, and better still, go beyond it and collect $17,000. — The citizens of Lachute are proud of their town. Let us show our neighbors what mettle we are made of by giving generously some of 'the kindly fruits of this earth'. If we work hand in hand, we shall reach our objective. Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day. Let us start today and thank the Lord for what He has given us, by giving our charity organizations a generous share of what we have."

Mayor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald

Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald, Mayor of Lachute, also spoke briefly on behalf of the campaign. As mayor, he affirmed that his Council was in favor of the Federation. As a physician, his duties brought him in contact with the poverty that existed in these parts, as elsewhere. He trusted all citizens would do their share in this organized effort, and that the Federation campaign would meet with success.

Gerard Lefebvre

Mr. Lefebvre, campaign chairman, spoke at length on the constituents of the Federation and their needs, re-iterating the allotments budgeted for each organization as follows:

Concluding with a word in English, he addressed the Campaign tion.

"My Dear Friends, I cannot close without saying how thankful I am for the fine support I have received from you since we started the organization of this campaign.

Right from the beginning you have understood perfectly the principles and the aims of our Federation. You have realized perfectly that the word Charity has only one meaning. This is why you have answered our call, this is why you have accepted your share of the burden, and this is why tomorrow morning there will be only one group of citizens working together, for only one reason, for only one goal — Charity.

For this wonderful spirit, for this valuable collaboration, I thank you with all my heart, and I am sure that on October 18 it will not be $16,300 that has been subscribed, but $18,000, and maybe more.

There were lighter aspects of the campaign gathering, in musical selections provided by the Ayers Band under direction of Charles Del Venne, and piano solos by another brilliant young musician, Miss Denise Chamaillard, of Lachute. The entertainment was much appreciated by the assembly. Roger Regimbal was genial m.c. for these proceedings.

The Rev. Dr. W. Harold Reid has been appointed lecturer in Hebrew at the Presbyterian College, Montreal, which is affiliated to McGill University. Dr. Reid had special training in the field of Semitic languages, and some years ago had taught Hebrew at Queen's University and at the University of Toronto.

VITAL POWER

Let something go wrong to halt our supply of electricity for any length of time and how utterly helpless we are. Slim Majority Passes By-law Prohibiting Shorts in Public

One Sentenced, Two For Trial

Jacques Brebant, 27-year-old motorist from L'Orignal, Ont., was arrested and charged with impaired driving by Det. Ralph Allen, following an accident in Grenville on Sunday evening. Traffic Officer Albert Legault investigated.

Brebant, who was released on bail of $103, will appear before Judge E. Archambeault tomorrow.

A Mountain View resident, Albin North, was sentenced to a fine of $50 plus costs or a month in jail, and his driver's permit was suspended for a three-month period, last Friday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving in St. Jerome.

The charge was laid Tuesday afternoon of last week following an accident in Grenville, which was investigated by Traffic Officer H. Jones.

Roger Durand, also of Lachute, pleaded not guilty to a similar charge and will appear before Judge Archambeault on Friday, November 4.

Both men were released on bail of $103 following the accident.

Vacant Site of Former Town Hall Is Leased to Garage as Car Lot

At the regular session of Town Council, last Wednesday evening in the town hall, the Pie Radio Company was authorized to install new radio-telephones in the police and fire-fighting vehicles, as well as in the cars of both the Fire Chief and Police Chief, on a three-month trial basis.

It was decided to take the Pie equipment on trial as the company, along with several others had offered in the tenders — the outfit installed with option to purchase, at the price of $2,100 as tendered. Other sets ranged in price up to $3,160.

All councillors were in attendance, under chairmanship of Mayor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald.

By-Law 197, relative to the wearing of shorts, etc., in public, was passed on a 5-4 vote. The second reading of the By-law saw Aldermen Morrissette, Desjardins, Cousineau, Laurin and Charlebois in favor, while Aldermen Muir, MacRae, Church and Pollock voted against. The session was adjourned for several minutes and re-opened for the third reading, on which the vote remained the same.

The letter from the Parish Councils of Ste. Anastasie and St. Julien protesting the sale of immoral literature on newsstands, was read and discussed at length. Eventually tabled, it was decided — since Montreal and other communities were not making too much headway, and as the Council has no legal authority in the matter anyway — that the matter be left to the Attorney General and the Provincial Police.

Police Chief Ducharme's contract was again up for discussion, following a complaint from Giles Publishing House representatives that the Chief had refused to release details on an accident, stating that Clause 22 forbade him to do so. Although it was the general opinion of all Councillors that the clause was for "Official Communications Only", the matter was left to the Police Committee, headed by Ross R. Muir, who is to report at the adjourned meeting on October 20.

Legal advice obtained from the town's legal advisor, Fernand Legault, Q.C., was then considered relative to the business tax of Adrien Roy, local bus operator. Mr. Roy maintains that he is exempt from the tax, and in the past has shown instances concerning similar cases in other towns and cities throughout the province. Mr. Roy was informed that he would be billed, and that he can oppose or contest the payment in whatever manner he wishes.

An offer was received from Pollock & Graves Motors Ltd. to rent the property recently vacated by the demolition of the Victoria Hall, for the sum of $75 a month. Ald. E. O. Pollock left his chair and addressed the Council, informing of the proposed use to which the lot would be put, namely as a new and used car lot. It was decided to draw up a lease for rental on a monthly basis, and that the tender be accepted as read.

Tenders were called for the immediate purchase of 200 feet of one-inch reinforced high-pressure

3-Year Girl Killed by Truck At RCAF Station

Linda Shephard, three-year-old daughter of Sgt. Thomas Shephard, RCAF, and Mrs. Shephard, of Lac St. Denis and Saint John, N.B., was fatally injured Tuesday afternoon when run over by a 3-ton truck. She was pronounced dead on arrival at the St. Jerome hospital.

The accident occurred when a National Defence Dept. truck, driven by Maurice St. Denis, 26, of Ste. Agathe, was backing out of a driveway. Witnesses stated the little girl was standing directly behind the truck, where it would be impossible for the driver to see her. He backed up 10 feet, the right rear dual-wheels crushing the child's head.

Det. Ralph Allen, who Investigated with Traffic Officer Albert Legault, stated there were several eye-witnesses to the tragedy. According to the district coroner, Dr. A. R. Coté, no inquest will be held. Dr. Coté pronounced the death accidental, attaching no criminal responsibility.

The child's body has been taken to Saint John, N.B., for burial.

(On behalf of its correspondents and friends in the Morin Heights area, The Watchman expresses sympathy to the bereaved parents.)

Oldster Faces Multiple Charges

Charges of simple assault on an officer of the law, disturbing the peace, breaking and entering, and attempted breaking and entering, were laid against Fabien Hogue, 62, of Lachute and district. Hogue has no fixed address, and during the past year has resided in Lachute, Morin Heights, and in the Pine Hill area.

The local detachment of Provincial Police have in the past received various complaints concerning the accused, and early last week, Traffic Officer H. Jones was called to Pine Hill to quell a disturbance in a hotel. Unable to control the elderly miscreant without the use of force, he summoned Det. Ralph Allen and Traffic Officer G. Loyer; the accused was then handcuffed and escorted to St. Jerome jail.

The complaints last week arose when Hogue was thrown out of the hotel after a fracas. He went to a house and battered in the front door, chasing the woman occupant out of the back door; leaving there, he attempted to enter another and while being subdued by the police, resisted in such a manner as to be charged with simple assault.

Hogue appeared before Judge Eugene Archambeault in St. Jerome last Friday, and was sent for a mental examination.

Legion Hall Dedicated at Morin Heights

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — Another milestone was passed by Morin Heights Legion Branch 171 on October 5, when members and their guests gathered for the official opening and dedication of the Legion Hall.

Commencing at 6.30, the social evening was away to a good start. At 7.30 p.m., the president, Comrade Kneeland, called the gathering to order and the official ceremonies commenced. The Legion prayer was read and tribute paid. Chaplain the Rev. Robert Blair gave a short address, followed by Assistant Hon. Chaplain the Rev. H. G. Baugh and the Rev. Father Lajeunesse. There was the dedication prayer and the blessing by the Rev. Father Lajeunesse. Short speeches were made by Philippe Valois M.P., and Comrade District Commander N. Morin, of Ste. Agathe. Comrade Jim Gilbert, 1st Vice-President representing Provincial Command, gave an inspiring address, followed by Mayor Chas D. Campbell, who is an honorary member of the branch.

The meeting concluded in the fitting Legion manner; refreshments were served and a pleasant social gathering was enjoyed.

Home and School Renews Activities At Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Next Wednesday, October 19, will mark the opening of the new season for Brownsburg's Home and School Association. As is customary, the first night will be "open house", when the parents are invited to visit the classrooms and see at first-hand how and what their children are doing. This occasion in the past has always been well attended, and it is expected that the same large group will turn out again this year.

It is hoped, however, that unlike previous years interest will not wane after the first meeting! In this age of so much child psychology, it is a wonder that so few parents realize the terrific stimulus their children can receive just by seeing the parents take an active interest in school. After all, look at the satisfaction children derive from their parents' interest in their sports or hobbies. Surely the most important interest a child can have is his schooling, and surely whatever spark of ardour they have should be fanned by the parents' keen interest.

It is funny how most good parents devote so much of their life to a sensible study of their children's physical needs, yet dismiss their mental needs by 'driving' them to do their homework. No amount of driving will do any good if a child doesn't want to study. It's true to say that children must be educated to education, and parents are the only initial educators.

At the executive meeting it was decided to install books in the school library, dedicated to the late Michael Trayers and the late Mrs. Sarah Graham, two of the real leaders in this organization.

Sewerage Facilities, Water Demand, Fire and Police Reports at B'bg Council

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The regular Council meeting was attended by several ratepayers who wanted to know the position on the Woodbine sewerage project. Mayor Lepine voiced his sincere hope that this project can be completed before the snow comes. It seems, however, that the Mayor's hard work on this problem is being made harder by lack of co-operation somewhere along the line, for the scheme has made no progress in two months.

Certainly they did hit a big stumbling block in their negotiations with the MacVicar Estate, having their offer to purchase the septic tank flatly refused. Surely, though, they could have taken for granted the fact that this system must inevitably be included, and gone ahead on that assumption. It seems now that a lease on the septic tank at $300 a year is acceptable to both parties and the next "plateau" would be the plans from engineer Gaston Legault.

Fire Chief Arthur Robbins reported that 1,012 chimneys had been cleaned, in consequence of which, 14 fire hazards were ordered remedied before further use. The owners of 26 other defective chimneys were advised to repair them. Chief Robbins mentioned that several hydrants have not been tested yet this year due to water shortage, and asked for a directive on this annual check-up. Mayor Lepine's instructions were simple enough: "I'd say use your head and as little water as possible."

Chief Robbins brought to notice the advent of Fire Prevention Week and asked all to spread the gospel of fire prevention. He thought that this might be a good time to remind townsfolk to take note of their hydrant number (they're being repainted this week) and in case of a fire to call the department, tell them just the hydrant number, and have a guide there waiting for them. (Obviously in Brownsburg it is no good to tell the Fire Chief there's "a fire at Racine's, Mason's, Legault's", etc.)

On the subject of water, Mr. Robbins said that, in his opinion, C-I-L was using only a small quantity of town water, and that for personnel use only. The Mayor asked for quotations on meters and stated his opinion that the people in Brownsburg couldn't possibly use 700,000 gallons per day — 1,000 gallons per house — and that they should get the facts from meters before approaching C-I-L on the subject. The only quotations available indicated that it would cost about $2,000 for meters, unless the Village can rent them.

Police Chief Parent announced the issue of 3 sales licenses, 8 red-light offences, 6 stop tickets, 5 warnings, 8 speeding tickets, and reported 15 complaints. He made a personal request for some help for his car. This month his repair bill was $180 and his insurance is $70. He felt that this was excessive. After some discussion it was decided that the $10 a week expense money he is allowed for his car should be sufficient to cover these costs.

Sec.-treasurer Emile Hebert reported that the new streetlights were ordered; the order was accepted by Gatineau Power on September 27, and the lights should be installed within the next few weeks.

A motion was passed authorizing a "go-ahead" on the Park Avenue waterworks.

Business Matters Discussed by Rink Assocn.

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — At the Rink Association meeting, the first item discussed was the recent bingo. It was decided that, although a little disappointing, this event had been sufficiently successful to warrant another try. Mr. Bill Tessier was authorized to go ahead with his idea of running one at the Flamingo Grill (bar closed, of course) within the next few weeks.

Other items concerned a travelling carnival, which offered a 40% split to the rink if allowed to operate there on October 7-8-9. It was decided that it was too close to the ice season, which, barring hold-ups, should start this Saturday, October 15.

A motion was passed to send a cheque for $50 to the hockey league to guarantee that Brownsburg would be represented this season.

Chairman Barry Elliott proposed in detail a plan for re-shuffling the committee each year. The essence of the plan is for five members to step down for re-election each year, so that every three years every member has been changed or retired for re-election. In this way there is the maximum continuity, for the majority of the committee is right on the ball at the start of each year. The local organizations will have a chance to approve or disapprove before the plan goes any further. A further motion was made to discontinue membership in the film organization and split the cost with the Women's Institute.

HUNTING HAZARDS

So it's open season again on anything that walks, flies or crawls. Just to make sure that everything got off to a good start, a Cherry River man went home with a skin full of bird shot over the week-end to win the honor of being this year's first casualty. — Stanstead Journal.

Gatineau Lines

LIGHTS OUT?

What should you do? Follow these steps each time:

1. Find out if your neighbors' lights are out too. If they are not, it is quite likely that the trouble is in your own wiring.

2. Pull the main switch and examine the fuses. If a fuse is burned, look for the cause. It may be caused by too many appliances on the some circuit or by defective appliances or cords. It may be due to a short circuit in the wiring. Be sure to find the cause, as a burned fuse indicates trouble elsewhere.

3. If there is lightning or heavy winds in the district, and your neighbors' lights are out, it is probably due to trouble on the power lines.

Wait for a few minutes to see if the power is restored; if not, call the local office of the power company and report the trouble.

4. If it is a clear day, the power company may be working on the lines; a car may have struck a pole, or someone may have felled a tree over the lines. Wait a reasonable time to see if service is restored. If it is not, please report your trouble to the local office of the power company.

By reporting directly to the power company you are taking the most effective method of correcting the trouble.

Some sort of economic guarantee is necessary to enable British Columbia farmers to compete against U.S. subsidized production. The answer the government gives to this problem will largely determine the fate of agriculture in the interior of this province.

St. Eustache Plowman Wins Provincial Match

René Renaud, a 40-year-old plowman from St. Eustache, placed first among 22 contestants at Quebec's first Provincial Plowing Match since 1918, held last Thursday at Macdonald College. A close second was Roméo Besner, St. Clet in Soulanges County. S. J. Stothers from Pontiac County took third-place honors. Fourth was Gilles Daoust, Pointe Claire; fifth, Elphège Giroux of St. Laurent; sixth, Leopold Cardinal, also of St. Laurent. These last three winners all represented Jacques Cartier County — hosts for this year's all-tractor match.

Despite the blustery, cold, rainy day, four hundred people turned out for the Provincial Match to watch the contestants and inspect the machinery display. Nearly five hundred spectators were on hand for the Montreal Regional Match held on October 5 in perfect plowing weather when Alan Smith of the H. J. O'Connell farm at Ste. Geneviève, accumulated a 65% score — one more than Roméo Besner, second place winner at the Provincial Match. Smith also scored higher than René Renaud, provincial champion, who placed fourth in the Regional Match with a score of 62.5%. Elphège Giroux was third with a score of 63.5%.

Judges for the Provincial Match were George Hay, Marvel Hill, Ont., and Oscar Lauthier, of Montreal. Secretary was Pierre Marier. The three-day event closed with a banquet of Macdonald College, where prizes and awards were made to winning plowmen.

Heads Canadian Ch. of Commerce

Mr. Crean is president of Robert Crean & Company Ltd. and Adam Hats Canada Ltd., Toronto felt hat-manufacturing firms. Active in association and community work, Mr. Crean maintains a great interest in national and international affairs and has been a leader in Chamber of Commerce activities. He takes over from G. S. Thorvaldson, Q.C., of Winnipeg, former C. of C. president.

Chest X-Ray Clinic Here Friday, Oct. 14

Dr. L. Turcotte, County Health Officer, advises that the Montreal Anti-tuberculosis League will hold an X-ray clinic at Lachute Auditorium this Friday, October 14, from 1.30 to 4.30 p.m.

The purpose of this clinic is to detect chest ailments at an early stage, and particularly in people who consider themselves in good health.

It is to be hoped that the citizens of Lachute will take this opportunity to have a chest X-ray. The examination takes less than one minute and is absolutely free.

An annual pulmonary X-ray examination is the chief weapon against tuberculosis. It is one of the principal factors in the Argenteuil anti-tuberculosis program, which has enabled the health authorities to reduce the mortality from 46 in 1948 to zero in 1952.

All persons working in contact with food (in restaurants, grocery stores, butcher shops, etc.,) should attend this clinic to obtain their certificate showing recent lung X-ray. This certificate may be demanded at any time by the sanitary inspector of the County Health Unit.

Guaranty Trust Appointment

GILBERT E. AYERS

Hector H. Racine, Chairman of the Montreal Advisory Board of Guaranty Trust Company of Canada announces the appointment of Gilbert E. Ayers to the Advisory Board of the Company at Montreal.

Mr. Ayers is President of Ayers Limited, a leading manufacturer of textiles and woollens since 1870. He is also president or a director of several other Canadian companies.

S. Africa Today, Club Topic by Hometown Boy

Stuart Hay, eldest son of the late James Hay and Mrs. Hay of Lachute East Ward, who for the greatest portion of his life has lived in South Africa, was guest speaker at last week's meeting of the Rotary Club.

Stuart, who is now the manager of the East Geduld Mines at Springs, near Johannesburg, South Africa, has been visiting relatives and friends in Lachute and district for some time this summer, accompanied by his wife and two daughters. The family left Africa about the middle of May and travelled extensively on the Continent and the British Isles before coming to Canada. They left last week for their return trip.

Mr. Hay spoke of conditions in his adopted country and presented statistics to illustrate the development which has taken place since the first white men landed in the 15th century. These early travellers found the country inhabited by the Hottentots and Bushmen. The latter are now extinct, while the former peoples have intermarried so that they are no longer identified as a race. The first European Colony was started in 1652.

The speaker stated that he did not wish to discuss the political situation to any great extent. This is a very contentious subject, and, in order to deal with it properly, both sides of the issue should be presented — which would take more time than he had at his disposal. He said he had attended a lecture in Montreal a few days ago to hear a Judge from South Africa speak on the political situation, and as he was very pro-native in his views, he presented only one side of the issue — to the disappointment of a large portion of the audience.

South Africa enjoys a temperate climate. The weather never becomes as hot as it was here in Canada this past summer. Capetown has about 245 sunny days each year. The best climate is along the east coast, where the weather and the water are affected by the Indian Ocean. Here are the finest holiday resorts to be found anywhere.

The country is served by a narrow gauge railway which was built during the Boer War. While it is very efficient, it is greatly overtaxed. The roads are very good for the size of the country. The main highways are paved, such as the one thousand miles between Johannesburg and Capetown. Considerable travelling is done by air, with the result that South Africa Airlines is now a huge corporation.

There are a number of large cities such as Johannesburg with a population of about 1,000,000; Capetown, 560,000; and Durban, 500,000. About 45% of the native population live on reserves, which consist of the best farming land in the country. As agriculture in general is in a very primitive state, the governments are spending millions of dollars each year towards improvements. Many of the men from these areas work in the mines throughout the country from two to six months at a time. When they have accumulated enough money to do them for a while, they go home and stay there until it is spent. They have a fairly easy life, as the women do practically all the manual labor. A barter system is used whereby cows are traded for extra wives, with the result that cattle-raising is one of the most important industries and the farm land is seriously over-grazed.

Gold mining is, of course, the chief industry in the country. However, other minerals are also mined in large quantities, such as iron, manganese, chrome, asbestos and copper. Although over one half the territory of South Africa is semi-desert, agriculture plays an important part in the economy. The chief commodities are wheat, wool, cattle, butter and cheese.

Mr. Hay was introduced by Linton Armstrong and thanked by Sydney Patterson.

President Syd Stilwell announced that District Governor Harry Ballard, of Carthage, N.Y., would make his official visit to the Club on October 20. He also announced that the District Conference would take place in St. Jerome on October 16-17-18.

If You Know How, You Can Survive In Blazing House

Many fire victims could have saved themselves if they had known how. The Association of Canadian Fire Marshals gives this advice on how to save yourself from fire:

If you are trapped in a smoke-filled building, remember that the air is clearer near the floor. Protect your face from heat and flame.

Feel doors before opening them. If they are hot, deadly heat or flame may be on the other side.

If you are trapped on an upper storey, don't jump unless it is the last resort. It's a good idea to figure out a way of escape from each room before a fire occurs.

Once out of the building, don't re-enter the burning area to save property.

Rotary To Welcome District Governor

Brownsburg — On Thursday, October 20, the Rotary Club will be host to Harry C. Ballard, Governor of the 250th District of Rotary International, who is making his annual official visit to each of the 50 clubs in Quebec, Ontario and Northern New York. He will address the club and confer with President Sid Stilwell, Secretary Barry Bourne and the various committee chairmen.

Mr. Ballard is plant engineer for Carthage Papermakers Inc., Carthage, N.Y., and the Climax Manufacturing Co., Castorland, N.Y., and is a member of the Rotary Club of Carthage. He was elected District Governor for 1955-56 at Rotary's Golden Anniversary Convention in Chicago last June. He is one of 238 District Governors supervising the activities of some 8,830 Clubs with a membership of 419,000, in 92 countries and geographical regions throughout the world.

Wherever Rotary Clubs exist (President Stilwell asserted in discussing the Governor's visit), their activities are similar to those of the Brownsburg Rotary, because they are based on the same general objectives — developing better understanding and fellowship among business and professional men, promoting community-betterment undertakings, raising the standards of business and professions, and fostering the advancement of good will, understanding and peace among all the peoples of the world.

Each year this world-wide service organization continues to grow in numbers and strength. During the past fiscal year, 416 new Rotary Clubs were organized in 50 countries of North, South and Central America, Europe, Asia, Africa and the Islands of the Pacific.

C-I-L Pesticides Dept. In New Amalgamation

Montreal — Amalgamation of the pesticides operations of Canadian Industries (1954) Limited and Chipman Chemicals Limited, largest manufacturers of pesticides in eastern and western Canada, respectively, will take place within the next few months, it was announced jointly by the two companies.

Fifty per cent of the shares in a joint company, to be known as Chipman Limited, will be held by C-I-L and 50 per cent by Chipman.

Head office of the new company will be in Montreal. It will have four plants, located at Buckingham, Que., Hamilton, Ont., Winnipeg, Man., and Moose Jaw, Sask. Sales and technical services will be handled from offices located at suitable centres across the country. Operations of the new company will also include custom spraying of railroad beds and rights-of-way for the destruction of weeds and brush.

The amalgamation brings together two organizations which have had long experience with pesticides in Canada. Chipman Limited will have behind it the extensive research resources of Imperial Chemical Industries Limited and Plant Protection Limited, both of the United Kingdom, and of Chipman Chemical Company Inc. of the United States — companies well-known for their contribution to agriculture iin the field of pesticides.

GIVE GENEROUSLY to the Federation of Charities

THE LACHUTE FEDERATION OF CHARITIES, in its inaugural campaign, comes to you as the corporate spokesman for FIVE well organized charities — each one of which has a record of achievement in AIDING the less fortunate and in BUILDING the future character of this community.

Here are those five enterprises; you are invited to study the Federation's prospectus on the nature and the extent of their works. . .

- SOCIAL SERVICE (Lachute Unit)
- LES OUVROIRS (Clothing for poor families)
- LES LOISIRS (Organized recreation)
- PLAYGROUNDS (Three local parishes)
- CANADIAN NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF THE BLIND (Argenteuil Section)

THE PROTESTANT community of Greater Lachute is solicited for support only in proportion to the Protestant beneficiaries from these funds . . . .

The Federation does not expect your contributions to carry the burden of its wholly Catholic enterprises.

THE FEDERATION OF CHARITIES combines the appeal of these five organizations in one plea for public support — one campaign, to be launched annually in this community. The Federation approves the budgets, supervises the funds, and co-ordinates the functions of these charities. It keeps administrative costs and campaign expenses to a minimum — for this is a Public Trust of YOUR INVESTMENT in the future.

Fire Prevention Week

BY PROCLAMATION, the Governor General of Canada has decreed the week of October 9-15, 1955, as Fire Prevention Week across the nation.

This week is always the calendar week including October 9, the anniversary of the great Chicago fire of 1871. Such a disaster serves to underline the necessity of bringing before the public a much needed awareness of Fire Prevention.

Fire Prevention Week should not be regarded just as a seven-day period for projecting fire prevention programs, displaying posters all over the community, school drills and civic group meetings. Rather, it should be regarded as the week of initiation of a year-round activity promoted to make our country a safer place in which to live.

Fire Prevention Week is not a new institution. It has, over a period of years, developed increasing significance and earned a respected place in the regular affairs of every progressive community in Canada and the United States. It signifies the commencement of a campaign which should be carefully planned so as to enlist the cooperation of every citizen and of every organization in the community for a concerted effort to prevent, as far as possible, loss of life and property as a result of fires.

Response to Fire Prevention Week should be spontaneous and enthusiastic. All citizens sincere in their desire to see the country's economy make progress, have a stake in Fire Prevention Week. They realize full well that property destroyed by fire is irrevocably lost and the community and the nation suffer as the consequence of such loss. Economic disaster to a community often follows on the heels of a large fire.

Let us look at the latest available annual fire loss record in our country. The total property loss by fire was $84,270,860.00 representing a loss per person of $5.70 These losses represent an increase of about $4,000,000.00 over the previous year when the total loss was $80,902,205.00, with a loss per person of $5.61. The record shows 67,519 fires, an increase of 3,416 over the previous year. The loss of life by fire was 477, as compared to 562 in the previous year.

It is indeed tragic to note the record shows that more than half of all the fires in Canada occur in homes. This fact alone should emphasize beyond any doubt the need for fire prevention.

This heavy toll of destruction of life and property by fire must not continue. A strong and vigorous campaign should be launched during Fire Prevention Week and followed up without restraint throughout the year.

Note for Schooldays

THERE are many parents who take out accident insurance policies on their children and yet forget to warn their youngsters of the dangers of accidents.

Do you remember to tell your children to look to right and then to the left before crossing a street?. Have you told them to keep to the left while walking along the highway?

Moreover, parents have to do more than preach by setting an example for their children.

HEALTH, morals and industrial efficiency are inseparable, the Canadian Public Health association convention at Edmonton, was told by Dr. W. H. Cruikshank of Montreal, medical director of the Bell Telephone Company. He declared emotional illness is the greatest challenge facing industry today. Half the workers who seek advice about health problems have no physical cause for their complaints, he said.

THE SUREST way to prevent war is not to fear it. — John Randolph

To Strengthen C.N.R.

DR. O. M. SOLANDT has left the Defence Research Board to join the Canadian National Railways as an assistant vice-president in charge of research and development.

That is a serious loss to the civil service, and should be a notable gain to the executive strength of the CNR.

Dr. Solandt is recognized as one of the most brilliant minds in the government service and his contribution to the defence of North America is known to have been great.

He is a skilled executive and under his direction DRB grew from being a modest part of the defence department into the country's biggest research establishment. It is the central agency of a group of laboratories and testing units from coast to coast and into the far north.

Dr. Solandt's career as a pathologist and medical teacher at Cambridge University was interrupted by the war. He ran a blood supply depot in southwest London, then turned to tank-gunnery research work. In 1944 he joined the Canadian Army as a brigadier and was scientific adviser on Earl Mountbatten's staff when the war ended.

His academic and scientific achievements have brought him so many decorations and honors that he has more letters after his name than in it: Omond McKillop Solandt, OBE, MA, MD, DSc., L LD, MRCP, FRSC.

He was named to head the defences research board when it was established in 1947. Because he is a capable executive, the organization he leaves behind him is undoubtedly good and DRB will carry on efficiently.

But Dr. Solandt's personal ability will be missed.

Why Women Work

WHY WOMEN hold down jobs is the object of a survey to be lanuched shortly by the women's bureau of the federal Labor Department. The coast-to-coast survey of about 1,000 married Career Women will be conducted through the social work departments of universities in eight Canadian cities.

The object of the survey — first of its kind in Canada — is to find out what types of work married women are doing, why they are working and what effect their working has on family life.

At present more than 400,000 married women are working outside their homes in Canada. They constitute about one-third of all the women in employment.

The interviewing will take several months and the survey results will not be known for at least a year, officials said.

IF, AS SEEMS likely, Canadians build a record of 120,000 new homes this year, home building may, for the first time since the end of the war, equal the rate of net family formation in Canada. In other words, we may begin to be able to keep up with the rate of new demand for houses, and make some inroads on the need for replacement of substandard homes — comments The Financial Post.

This is the point toward which we have been working ever since the first post-war planner set pen to paper. And this may be the year when those "temporary" wartime shelters can be sent back to the category in which they now belong.

ON EVERY HAND we see the awakening of keener interest in local history. Perhaps we are approaching the age when we can look back on our early beginnings with pride, or perhaps we are becoming more aware that our forefathers left us a great heritage — observes a contemporary, The Stanstead Journal.

October Session, Town Council

fire hose for the booster pump on the fire truck — specifications to be obtained from Fire Chief Deacon.

The Catholic School Board Secretary-treasurer, Réal Urbain, in replying to the Council's letter requesting that the Board take over the collection of their taxes, stated that the Catholic Board had studied and considered several possible solutions but found it impossible to do anything this year.

A letter was received from Théogene Lavigne offering his services as night watchman at the Town Hall for $40 a week. Mayor FitzGerald instructed the secretary to reply to the letter, stating that at the present time there was no vacancy.

An account of $40.80 for overtime submitted by Adelard Mallette, night watchman, was tabled for consideration at a meeting of the Police Committee with Chief Ducharme.

Permission was granted the Argenteuil Health Unit to hold an X-ray Clinic in the Auditorium on October 14.

A letter was read from the Federation of Charities requesting that the Council donate $2,000 towards the campaign. All members of the Council, along with Mayor FitzGerald, voiced their approval of the campaign but the financial position of the town had bearing on the civic contribution. It was moved by Ald W. Cousineau, seconded by Ald. Réal Morrissette, that $500 be donated for this year. Ald. D. G. MacRae, stating that he was in favor of a larger donation but that "We can't give away what we don't have", moved in amendment that the donation be limited to $250 for this year; the amendment was seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock. Following further discussion, both the motion and the amendment were withdrawn for consideration.

A letter was read from Lachute Women's Institute commending the Council on recent achievements and recommending several civic improvements. Mayor FitzGerald expressed his thanks, and stated he was sure the Council would give the recommendations careful consideration.

It was decided to complete the waterworks and sewers on Isabella Street, in the vicinity of the René Laurin and Geo. Y. Deacon properties, if the necessary pipe was in stock.

A building permit was granted to René Laurin for a house on Isabella Street.

Accounts totalling $10,886 were approved for payment, after which the meeting was adjourned.

"FOGGIA AND FOGGIA"

On arrival at Casablanca, Lieutenant Duncan Fitzpatrick found himself in luck. A plane was waiting on the tarmac for permission to take off for Corsica. Now Corsica wasn't Naples, by any stretch of the imagination, but Fitz figured, and rightly so, that it was nearer than Casablanca and his chances of getting to Italy from there were considerably greater. Added to that, he couldn't afford to be fussy. So, clutching his haversack to his bosom, he raced out onto the airstrip and boarded the plane.

It was unfortunate that nobody had taken the time to brief Fitz before he got on that plane. True, it was going to Corsica but it was not heading for the airport usually frequented by the circuit flyers. In fact, it was heading for a seldom used airstrip at another of the photo-reconnaissance schools. And there, Fitz found to his great chagrin that there were no planes going anywhere.

Time was running out now — it was almost supper-time on the Saturday — and Fitz was sinking deeper and deeper into the slough of despair. Italy seemed so near, and yet so far. And the photo-recce boys were no help to him at all. Never once did they suggest that it would be a simple matter to fuel up even a Piper Cub and fly him across to the mainland. Resigned to his fate, he entered the post canteen to write a letter to his parents and prepare them for the worst.

Fitz was on page three of his letter when he heard the drone of a landing plane. Rushing out to the doorway, he was in time to witness the touchdown of a neat two-engine job. As it taxied along the field, he raced over to the control centre.

"Where is it going?" he asked feverishly.

"Don't know for sure," control told him cheerfully. "Go out and ask the pilot!"

"Just going to fly some war correspondents up to the beach-head at Marseilles," the pilot said in reply to his query. "After that I'm coming right back here and then home to Malta. And I can't take any more passengers."

That pronouncement didn't upset Fitz. He still had a trump card to play. So, parting with one of the two bottles of vintage Scotch that he had in his haversack, he managed to hitch a ride to Marseilles.

It goes without saying that there were no planes at Marseilles heading for Italy so, in due course, Fitz found himself back at the photo-recce school in Corsica. Time was running out faster now — it was almost midnight — and the poor man had only 30 hours left before he would be listed as "Absent Without Official Leave". The situation was desperate, and so was Fitz. His next move was that of a desperate man.

Uncorking the remaining bottle of Scotch, he proceeded to guzzle himself into unconsciousness. And it was while he was in that unhappy state that a plane bound for Italy touched down at the field. Remembering their unwilling guest, the photo-recce boys coerced the pilot into taking him along and, after some labor on their part, they poured him aboard.

Fitz awoke from his stupor just as the plane circled the blacked-out Italian field for a landing. His first act was to be violently ill over and near an Americn colonel in a brand new uniform. His next was to ask thickly where they were. The colonel's only response, naturally, was to tell Fitz where he could go. Thus, the poor man had no idea of the shock in store for him.

As the door of the plane flew open, Fitz flew with it and landed in a heap on the airstrip.

"Well, I'll be!" said a familiar voice. "What are you doing back here? I thought you were going to Naples for the week-end?"

Yes, you guessed it — nowhere else but the Photo-Reconnaissance School at Foggia — right back where he started from! And he had exactly ten hours in which to report back to Salerno.

The trip to base was made in a coal truck. As the bedraggled officer quit the dusty vehicle at the camp gates, he ran smack into his batman.

"I got a leave-pass to Naples for the week-end, too," the batman beamed. "Had a whale of a time. How did your jaunt pan out?"

But let's gloss over Fitz' remarks at this point, shall we? They rather spoil the story, somehow!

A tip to Business Men: "Only the Mint can make money without advertising."

Why Ten Million Buyers Couldn't Miss Their Chance

"This month the Canadian Government expects to receive the 10,000,000th order for Canada Savings Bonds," said Donald M. Hay, manager of the Bank of Montreal in Lachute, this week when telling one of his customers about the tenth series of this guaranteed investment which goes on sale this month.

"Is it any wonder Canada Savings Bonds are so popular?" the B of M manager asked, and proceeded to tell his customer why. "For the average citizen, there just isn't a better investment. Canada Savings Bonds are as safe as Canada, and they pay a fine return at 3¼ per cent. Besides, what investment can you acquire so easily?"

Mr. Hay believes the purchase of Canada Savings Bonds on the instalment plan provides people with a wonderful opportunity for planned saving. He explained that the down-payment was just 5 per cent —$2.50 for a $50-bond, $5 for a $100-bond — and the balance was payable in easy monthly instalments over one year.

"And then, of course," said Mr. Hay, the government "guarantees to redeem these bonds at their full face value at any time, plus interest to the end of the previous calendar month."

Mr. Hay points out that the purchase of Canada Savings Bonds is a simple matter. He himself says he can arrange it easily and quickly at his B of M branch, whether you buy for cash or on the instalment plan.

Don't miss your share in Canada's best investment.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

New evidence has come to me that there is still some spirit of adventure and independence left iin the world.

Fellow I know started puffing a cigarette while he filled the gas tank of my car at a neighborhood pump.

"Doesn't it scare you to smoke with all those fumes around?" I asked.

"Oh no," he said casually. "You have to die some time."

"I certainly admire your courage," I said, throwing him the money and stamping on the accelerator. And I continued to admire his courage, from about half a mile away. That sort of bravery is like an oil painting. You have to stand back before you can enjoy it.

The other day I dropped in to see some friends who had a new TV set. Instead of sitting stiffly in chairs, we all reclined on the floor. It was informal and cosy.

In fact, we couldn't have sat anywhere else. My friends were just starting their home. They had no furniture — except a stove, a bed and a TV set.

As long as we have young people who are ready to thumb their noses at convention, and start out with a few necessities like a stove, a bed and a TV set, there is hope for the world.

Further encouraging news came to me from Seattle, Washington, a city I visited on my travels recently.

I went to Seattle zoo, where my little boy was fascinated by the antics of Bobo, a young gorilla who used to be someone's family pet until he took to smashing furniture, and his owners regretfully sent him up for a life term in a glass cage.

When we arrived, Bobo was putting on an act for a crowd of people. He flung himself playfully against the glass and beat his chest. Then he accepted a bottle of milk from his keeper.

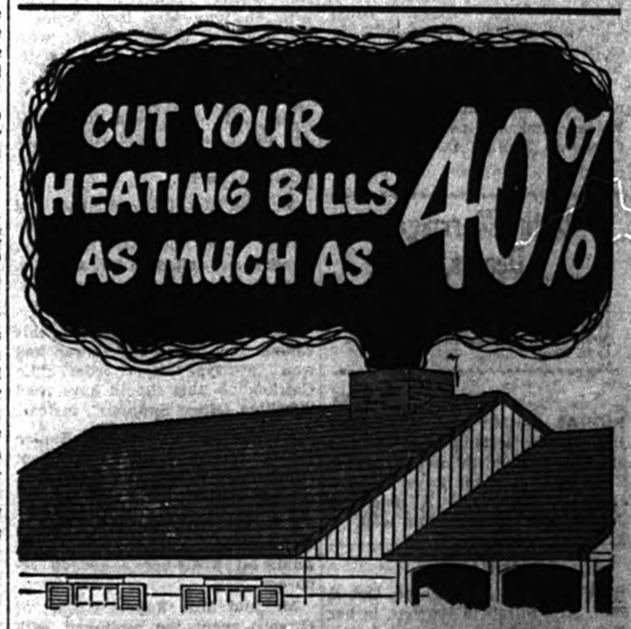

We said goodbye to Bobo and drove to Sol Duc Hot Springs, some hours away. There I met the wife of a Seattle policeman who told me that Seattle voters had been asked in a plebiscite to decide two questions among others: Did they want to spend money to build new quarters for Bobo; and did they want to raise police wages.

The voters said "no" to both questions, but the gorilla got more votes than the policeman. Their preference showed an original turn of mind. And originality, I suppose, is badly needed these days.

Seattle cops still feel hurt that the people thought more of a gorilla than of them. I sympathize with both sides. Policemen are more useful to society; but on the other hand a gorilla is more entertaining.

My little son agrees, I'm sure. Since he returned, he has been bumping against windows, beating his chest, and announcing that he is a "big monkey," but he hasn't made any attempt so far to act like a policeman.

OBITUARY

Late Cushing Resident Mourned by Many

Mrs. Lachlin Smith

Cushing — The death of Rebecca Bradford, beloved wife of Laughlin Smith, removes from this community one who was loved by all who knew her. She was born at Lachute in 1890, a daughter of the late Charles and Adeline Bradford.

The late Mrs. Smith was a member of St. Mungo's United Church, Cushing.

She leaves to mourn her passing, besides her loving husband, three daughters, Eileen (Mrs. Joseph Kennedy) of St. Laurent, Frances (Mrs. Lyall Kennedy), Brownsburg and Ruby at home, also many loving relatives.

The funeral was held Thursday, October 6, from St. Mungo's United Church, Cushing, to the family plot in St. Andrews East Cemetery, the Rev. Ralph Watson officiating.

Pall-bearers were her three nephews, Percy, Sidney and George Wilson, and her cousins, Lachlan Campbell, Willard Cole and Harry Turner.

BIGRAS — Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bigras (née Geraldine Kirkpatrick) announce the birth of a daughter, Sept. 26, 1955, at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. A sister for Jimmy and Steve. Both well.

DEATH

BARTLETT — At Lachute, Oct. 6, 1955, Mrs. Elizabeth Bartlett, in her 91st year, beloved aunt and foster-mother of Mrs. T. Donald Titman. Funeral held Saturday from St. Simeon's Church, Lachute; interment at St. Andrews East.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

SMITH — Mr. Laughlin Smith and family extend sincere thanks and appreciation for kindness and sympathy received during their recent bereavement.

BARTLETT — Mrs. T. Donald Titman and relatives of the late Mrs. E. Bartlett are sincerely grateful to their friends for kindnesses and expressions of sympathy in their bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

DAMANT — In loving memory of mother and wife, Mrs. W. R. Damant, who passed away Oct. 13, 1952. —Always remembered by her husband and family.

FLETCHER — In loving memory of W. J. Fletcher, of Brownsburg, who passed away, Oct. 19, 1947. — Ever remembered by his family.

LANGILLE — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Melvin, who passed away Oct. 12, 1934. — Always remembered by Mother, Dad, sisters and brothers.

"Every day in some small way
Memories of you come our way.
Though absent, you are ever near,
Still missed, still loved and ever dear."

MILLER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Clarence, who left us Oct. 14, 1954. — Ever remembered, Jessie, John, Diane.

"We lived in hope, we prayed in vain,
For God to make you well again,
But He decided we must part,
We watched you die, with broken hearts,
We saw you suffer, often heard you cry,
And all we could do was just stand by.
But when you suffered we suffered too,
For you never deserved what you went through;
And looking back with tenderness
Along the road we trod,
We bless the years we had with you,
And leave the rest to God."

MILLER — In loving memory of my dear father (Clarence Miller), who left us Oct. 14, 1954. — Ever remembered by Frances.

"I'd give the whole world if I could say,
'Hello, Daddy', in the same old way,
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
Then life to me would be worth while."

STEWART — In loving memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Stewart, who passed away Oct. 10, 1954. — Ever remembered by daughter Heather, son-in-law Norman, and grandchildren, Judy and Neil.

"In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear Mother,
That we do not think of you."

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Gordon R. Tomalty, who passed away Oct. 14, 1945. Always remembered by his wife, Mina, and family

"We cannot read God's purpose,
But there will come a day
When He will make us understand
Why you were called away".

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Gordon R. Tomalty, who passed away Oct. 14, 1943. — Ever remembered by his mother and sisters.

"While we walk the pilgrim pathway,
Clouds will overspread the sky;
But when trusting days are over,
Why a shining day by and by."

Frontier W.I.

The Rev. Canon Meakin's address on "Religion in the Schools" was very interesting, instructive and inspiring to his W.I. listeners, who were joined by several guests at "Stonehaven" on Tuesday evening. The new song books were on hand and a singsong was enjoyed, also plans made for the annual Hallowe'en party for young and old, and for a rumage sale in the Legion Hall.

Properties Past and Present

Mr. and Mrs. M. Wilson accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. Thom, moved this week to their lovely new home on the Ottawa River shore. We wish them years of happiness in this spot.

We also welcome to the community Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Buzzell, of Montreal West, who moved into the residence they recently purchased from the Wilsons.

This house was originally the home of the late Samuel Webster and later occupied at different times by his daughters, Mrs. A. Gray and Mrs. O. Leroy, and purchased later from Miss Leroy (now Mrs. B. Robinson, Lachute) by Mr. L. Watchorn of Louisa — who in turn sold the house and farm to Mr. M. Wilson. It has known quite a number of new faces since it was first built.

Mr. and Mrs. Buzzell and family will be in residence this week and for several week-ends before becoming permanent residents.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Love Yourself A Bit

"Would you mind sharing a table?" the restaurant hostess asked sweetly, and I was reluctantly led to a far corner where a big, red-headed fellow was wolfing a huge sirloin. He beamed at me. I realized I had been seated with a "talker", but as it turned out he had something really valuable to teach me.

He carved off a portion of juicy steak, chewed with a relish, and looked down his nose at my fruit salad. "Fasting?" he asked, in such a pleasant tone I had to smile, too.

And that started it.

"I don't act gluttonous every day," he said, calling the waitress to bring a side order of French fries. And then he added, "I'm kind of fond of myself today, so I'm giving myself a treat."

I wish I had room here to report verbatim the rest of his conversation, but I can only summarize.

He said his life had become exceedingly pleasant since he had learned to love himself a bit. Only then was he really able to love others. He wished that he had grown fond of himself earlier in life. "At one time," he confessed, "I was so deadly serious about Life, and about doing Good in the World, that I must have been a complete bore. My kids even stopped running out to meet me, and my wife tells me now that our family life was getting mighty grey and grim. I was so intent on "Being A Good Citizen" that I forgot to be good to myself."

"Interesting," I said, and beckoned the waitress who agreed to remove my salad and bring a steak instead.

My table mate beamed approval. And he said, very seriously, "Believe me, do-gooders are a curse on mankind. Be merry, love yourself a bit, and the people around you will feel it and respond to it. Mind your own business, keep yourself joyful, be good to yourself — and without half trying, you will make others happy too." He finished the final spoonful of his chocolate nut sundae and disappeared.

I called the waitress. "Who was that chap?" I asked.

"Isn't he nice?" she beamed, placing my super banana split (45c) in front of me. "He's our boss — he owns this restaurant, and business is booming!"

My check came to $8.25, but I think it was worth it. We have a lot of fun around our home these days!

Social Evening for 40th Anniversary

Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. S. Neill of Lake Sir John, gathered at their home September 29 for a surprise party, on the occasion of their 40th anniversary. Dancing and a social evening was enjoyed. Mr. Ted Hammond extended best wishes to the honored couple, and presented them with a purse of money on behalf of all present. Mr. and Mrs. Neill thanked all friends for their gift and for the pleasant evening. Refreshments were served at the conclusion.

MORE ROADS

Where are we going to put the cars? . . . There must be better roads to accommodate the traffic. They must be built quickly.

BORDER AIRPORT

East Poplar, Sask. (CP) — Residents of this southwestern Saskatchewan town claim to have the smallest international airport in the world. The field, no larger than the average pasture, permits travellers to clear customs and immigration routine of both Canada and the United States at the same time. Air travellers go through the same procedure as motorists who are checked at the same offices.

GO TO CHURCH ON SUNDAY

Thanksgiving Services At Lachute United

Lachute United Church held its Thanksgiving services last Sunday, and the church interior was beautifully decorated with autumn fruits, vegetables and colorful leaves.

The vestibule of the church was arrayed with a large contribution of "thanksgiving gifts", from members and friends of the congregation, which were being sent to the Protestant Children's Home at Rosemere, Que.

The service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, who spoke on "Seedtime and Harvest" at the morning service, and "Jesus and the Irreligious" at the evening service.

Special harvest music had been prepared by the choir, who rendered "Prayer of Thanksgiving", a traditional Netherlands composition, and "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem", an anthem of contrasting moods, by Maunder. Wayne Riddell was at the organ.

Ottawa Baptist Assoc'n. 120th Annual Meeting Held at Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The Rev. E. A. Cameron, pastor of Fourth Avenue Baptist Church, Ottawa, was elected moderator at the 120th annual meeting of the Ottawa Baptist Association, which was held in Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg, on October 5-6.

The sessions were well attended, especially the communion service on Thursday evening. Interesting and encouraging reports were given. There are now over twenty million Baptists in the world. Speakers at the sessions were the Rev. E. A. Cameron, Mrs. I. C. Milne and Miss Winnifred Brewer, who attended the Baptist World's Alliance in London, England last summer, Mrs. J. B. McLaurin (wife of the late J. B. McLaurin, one of the well-known Baptist missionaries), whose subject was "India of Today"; and Miss Winnifred Wallace, Port Worker for Quebec City and Montreal.

It is hoped that these meetings will prove of spiritual uplift, not only to the Bauptist Church but to all denominations in the community.

John Wesley Film To Be Shown Here

One of the finest religious films of recent years, "John Wesley," a J. Arthur Rank production, will be shown in the Lachute United Church on Sunday evening, October 23, at 7 p.m. The film has a running-time of 77 minutes, and is in color.

The story of John Wesley, founder of Methodism, is more than the story of a man. It is the testimony of God's triumphant power at work among all manners and classes of people; and is the evidence of what God did through the concentration of one individual.

Here is the witness of a spiritual influence which inspired a redemptive movement spanning continents and seas as it encircled the world with the claims of Christ. Here is the account of the dynamic force which laid the foundations of the Methodist Church in England, Canada and America.

MANY CHURCHES

Montreal, (CP) — Rev. Patrick J. Kennedy, chancellor of the archdiocese of St. John's, Nfld., told pilgrims at St. Joseph's Oratory here that in 250 Newfoundland Roman Catholic churches St. Joseph is honored and venerated.

HAPPY RECORD

Fort William recently celebrated its 500th day without a traffic fatality since April 4, 1954, when a 16-year-old boy was killed.

Blind Institute Now Canvassing In Brownsburg

In Lachute, where there are 15 blind people registered by the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, the majority are receiving services offered freely by the Institute. The Institute is one of the chartered organizations in the Federation of Charities, and endorses the aims and objects of the Federation, namely to have one annual financial campaign for all charitable institutions combined by the Federation. — Your money subscribed to the current appeal will enable the CNIB to carry on its work.

Brownsburg is under the financial chairmanship of Mr. Wm. Richardson. The financial drive began on Tuesday, October 11, with an objective of $600. The number of sightless people in Brownsburg is 7. St. Andrews East and Carillon district is comparatively new ground as far as financial requests are concerned. It is hoped the citizens will support the Institute with their work in this area, where there are 6 blind people. The campaign will get underway for St. Andrews East, Monday, October 17, under the chairmanship of Miss Burruss; the objective is $300.

Just as soon as other areas have been organized, the public will be informed who their local representatives will be.

The Institute makes two pleas — to advise them if any person is suffering from eye trouble and is in danger of being blind, or if they know of anyone who is sightless and not registered with the Institute, by writing to Mr. A. C. Zaplaski, field secretary of the Institute, Lachute, or telephoning — Lachute 476; also to subscribe to the financial drive and be as generous as possible. If a canvasser does not call, it will be greatly appreciated if you will mail a check in care of Miss L. Miller, Bank of Montreal, Lachute.

Jehovah's Witnesses

Do you appreciate the urgency of the times we are living in?

Learn of Jehovah's provisions for your Everlasting Life on Earth in his New World through Jesus Christ.

Get the Beautiful New Book of 366 pages entitled "You May Survive Armageddon into God's New World" price 50 cents.

PARAGRAPHS TAKEN FROM BOOK

ARMAGEDDON will be the worst thing ever to hit the earth within the history of man. God's new world will be the best thing ever to come to distressed mankind and will never pass away. For us to know that the best immediately follows the worst gives us courage to consider the subject of our discussion. We cannot have the new world without first Armageddon. So if we have yet to endure Armageddon, it will be better for us to face it with understanding, in the hope of surviving and entering into a new world of God's making, a world altogether different from the one mankind has known now for thousands of years, to its sorrow. Armageddon will prove a great blessing in disguise. Our proper concern is how we may prepare that we may not be irreparably hurt by it but may endure it and live to enjoy the grand new things of God's world of righteousness.

Those dwelling in the New World society live not on material bread alone, but on the utterances out of Jehovah's mouth. Regularly they study his Word, the Bible, and faithfully endeavor to live by it. You are welcomed to study it with them. Learn of Jehovah's provisions for your everlasting life in his new world through Jesus Christ. In humility and loving appreciation, in imitation of Jesus Christ himself, dedicate your life to the One who is the Source of all life and goodness, Jehovah God, and symbolize your dedication as Jesus did, by immersion in water. Then prove your dedication by undertaking His service as prescribed in His Word, preaching "this good news of the kingdom" and declaring the "day of vengeance of our God". Do this in unbreakable unity with the New World society, keeping your personal integrity toward the Universal Sovereign under all tests that may come and enduring them to the finish. Joyfully following this Scripturally outlined course, then "YOU MAY SURVIVE ARMAGEDDON IN GOD'S NEW WORLD".

To get the above mentioned Book, enquire from your nearest congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses or write: 40 Irwin Ave., Toronto.

Trophy of the Hunt

The deer hunting season was opened only a week when Romeo Chartrand, Donat Laporte, Emmanuel Carriere and Francois Laporte connected with this 225-pound buck near Ripon, Papineau County. This was marked as one of the first kills of the season for local hunters.

Sports -- Juvenile Activities -- School

Judging from the average hardware or sporting goods store's shell inventory and from the shotguns they carry, the majority of our fall gunners are still slipping the heaviest loads, with the biggest shot into full choke guns. There appears to be a fairly large group of shooters, not all of them lacking in experience, whose earnest belief is that, what they really need to fill the old game bag, is a gun that will shoot the farthest.

Who Started All This

I've often wondered how and where this obsession with long range and high power originated. By and large I don't think we can attach all of the blame to the arms or ammunition makers, although in my own humble opinion, ammunition advertising for shot shells lays altogether too much stress on the high velocity loads. In the final analysis it's the man behind the counter of the retail outlet who advises the customer and who has the last word in swaying his purchase. Except for the gunsmiths and these only form a very small minority of the retail outlets for arms and ammunition, this is a highly seasonal business for the majority of the stores catering to the hunting and shooting fraternity. In which case it's not altogether surprising that in only a very few of these places of business, can you find a clerk behind the counter who can dish out competent advice when it comes to the selection of a shotgun, choke boring and shot loads for the game to be hunted. If you have a full choke gun and want to use it for a variety of game, your best bet is to have it fitted with one of the several and excellent multi-choke devices that are on the market today, although with gunsmiths at their busiest right now you'll likely have to wait till next year.

In the Meantime

Not for experts, or for those whose experience has already made clear what shot size is most effective on various game birds in their shotguns, the following information is to help the newer shooter, whose barrels are bored to factory percentages.

On Pheasant

For 20, 16 and 12-gauge guns at an approximate shooting distance of 30 yards, whether your barrel or barrels are bored improved cylinder, modified or full choke, your shot size is 7½. For the some bird at 40 yards an improved cylinder barrel in 20 or 16 gauge will do you no good at all, although you may get by with this choke in a 12 bore. Suggested shot size for modified and full choice in the three gauges No. 6.

For Partridge

At 25 yards 7½'s in all three gauges, whether bored improved cylinder, modified or full choke, with one exception; don't use a full choke twelve gauge on this bird. If you do and connect, chances are you'll mutilate the game to such an extent that it will only be fit to feed to the cat.

Ducks and Geese

For ducks at 35 yards and this is about the average distance in shooting over decoys, 6's for the 20 gauge in modified or full choke barrels. 7½'s or 6's in the same chokes for 16 gauge guns and a like shot selection for twelve gauge including those with improved cylinder barrels. For ducks at 45 yards you can skip the 20 gauge gun and even a 16 gauge will only pay off in full choke, with No. 6 as the recommended load. For the 12 gauge guns, modified and full choke, shot sizes 6's and 4's. For geese at 40 yards, 16 or 12 gauge, modified and full choke, shot sizes 4's and 2's. For those who can consistently knock down their ducks and geese out past 40 yards, don't overlook the new magnum loads for standard shotguns chambering 2¾" shells. These magnums loaded with 2's and 4's contain 20% more shot and consequently give a denser pattern than the standard shells loaded with the same size shot.

Woodcock and Rabbits

For "timber-doodles" at 25 yards No. 8 shot in 20, 16 and 12 gauge guns whether bored improved cylinder, modified or full choke. When it comes to rabbits, the predictable shooting range will vary considerably. No. 6 shot for modified choke in 20, 16 and 12 gauge should take care of most stiuations. Just before closing off this piece and coming back to that long range and high power business, let's all of us remember that regardless of the game being hunted — long range shooting is wasteful both of ammunition and of wildfowl. If the distance shooter does hit his bird, he's more likely to cripple than to kill it, and today that is particularly unsportsmanlike.

Brownsburg Baseball Squad Takes Dollard League Title

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg—Yes, the exuberance which struck Brooklyn last week moved north on the week-end and settled on Brownsburg! Had our local baseball team won the World Series on Sunday, no one could have been more excited. As it was, they won the Dollard Trophy, emblematic of baseball supremacy hereabouts, and most people, last May, would have given the same odds against that as against their winning the World Series.

The victory was one of our less pretentious ones, in fact our only one-run victory. Maybe it was a good thing that our big bats were held in check, for it emphasized that this was a team victory, and that everyone has a big share in that cup. This was perhaps our best defensive game of the season, with all eleven players who took part making sparkling plays. Naylor Gratton, Germain and Karl Gagné, who rode the bench in the big one, are no less worthy winners than their team mates, for Naylor almost single-handedly won the second semi-final game when he batted in four runs. Germain in his few appearances pitched one scoreless inning and played well in field and at bat. Karl of course is our alternate pitcher, who won three games, without which we'd be out long ago.

The big star of the team has been manager Jimmy Murdoch. Jimmy was offered an umpiring job in pro ball this year — not the majors, of course — but, in spite of all kinds of skepticism, he decided he could coach a decent ball team of our local teen-agers. Jimmy would surely agree that even he never expected to win the cup. As a player, repeated injuries have taken their toll and Jimmy is far from the player he was. But he has somehow managed to put his old head on over a dozen young shoulders. Ours is the only team in the league which attempts the difficult first-to-short-to-first double play. Almost all of the boys are more powerful hitters than Jim ever was, but there are plenty of power hitters in the league. It's the finesse our boys have learned at their countless picnic ground lessons that made the difference. You can't find much fault with Jim's batting either. He came to the plate just ten times, singled twice and walked six times. The boys too must take credit for the success of Jimmy's coaching, for they attended three practices a week all summer.

Ronald "Zag" Cousineau was the winning pitcher. It was far from Ronald's best game as he was fairly solidly hit in the middle innings and continually found himself in trouble. He refused to be ruffled though, and with the help of some brilliant fielding, stranded nine base runners and wiped out two on double plays. "Zag" was carried shoulder high from the field and in view of his seven great victories, some of them brilliant, he had to be the figurehead.

Brownsburg started in good style when Keith Hazel singled, Buddy Racine walked, and brother Jacques doubled. Two runs were across the plate. With two out, Quesnel of Montebello doubled and Steele-to - J. Racine-to-Hazel nailed him trying to stretch it. In the top of the fourth, Yves Raymond walked, stole second, advanced on a fly and scored on an error. Yves, who batted 500 on the regular season and hit over a dozen long hits, didn't hit in the last game. He'd done his share. In the fifth, Ouellette singled but was left there. André has been one of the best fielders in the league both at short and behind the plate, and his bat has exploded four of five times for four-for-five and three-for-five including five triples.

In the bottom of the fifth, Montebello started to threaten. P. Periard doubled, then two singles, scored one, and left men on first and third with none out. Fortier hit a sink ball which Buddy Racine grabbed at his shoe laces and fired to first, to double up G. Periard. A high fly ended the inning. In the top of the sixth Jacques Racine singled, advanced on an error, and scored after Mike Gratton singled.

Montebello wasted no time in the bottom. Rocky Trudeau doubled, Quesnel singled and advanced on an unsuccessful throw to the plate. Hebert repeated Quesnel's act and two runs were across with none out and a man on second. Three fly balls left Montebello one run behind. Brownsburg's bolt was shot. In the last three innings only Buddy Racine and Mike Gratton managed to get on with singles.

In the seventh Montebello had two on, one out but couldn't score, then in the eighth came the big play of the game. With one out Keith Hazel made one of his few errors. It was heart-breaking to see his error loom up so big, for Keith has been one of the real fielding gems of the league. Next man up hit a resounding double and while Periard rounded third base, Brent Steele fielded the ball, threw a lovely peg to Cousineau, at second. Ronald pivoted and threw a strike to Ouellette, who made no mistake with his tag. That's where Montebello must have given up. It's certainly the play we'll all remember years from now.

With two out Trudeau walked to represent Montebello's tying run, but Quesnel hit a fast bounder to Jacques Racine, who knelt on second and lovingly gathered in the ball to win the cup. Jacques of course has been one of our three or four big bats besides rendering great service in the infield.

Gilles Diotte, our weakest offensive player, played eight fine innings at first to complete an errorless season on defence. Buddy Racine moved to second and it looks like a great move. Buddy's pick-up is almost perfect, and the shorter throw seems to suit him better. Buddy finished the season with an overall batting average close to 500.

Mike Gratton leapt high in the air to grab the second out in the ninth. Mike has been poor on the base paths, steady at bat and spectacular in the outfield, recording at least half a dozen impossible catches.

Brent Steele has been a little bit of a disappointment at bat. He started out in great style but in recent weeks, apart from being the league's best bunter, his batting average has dropped quite a bit. Brent's outfield work and beautiful throws, though, make him the kind of guy you put in your line-up without even checking on his batting average.

The big finale of the season is the victory dance, at the Flamingo Grill on Friday, October 21. The cup will be on show and it is hoped the boys' pride can be heightened with the presentation of their bench-jackets.

Football Fever Runs High, and No Wonder

—Central Press Canadian

The Rah! Rah! girls are again in action as college football fever runs high all over Canada. And no wonder when such pretty girls as Kathie Kalbfleisch, in majorette line-up for University of Western Ontario in London, are on hand to cheer their team to victory.

La Guardia Softball Squad Enjoyed Local Hospitality

J. René Laurin, local Dow Brewery representative has received a letter from the AMF LaGuardia Softball Club, expressing appreciation for their recent trip to Lachute, on which occasion they defeated the local All-Stars 7-2. The event was sponsored by Mr. Laurin, with proceeds earmarked for Lions Club charity work.

In their letter, the club mentioned that "the keen rivalry exhibited on the ball field by both clubs was only exceeded by the conviviality and spirit of good will engendered by the people of Lachute — which was evident during the entire stay."

The visiting American team was invited to Lachute after their winning the LaGuardia League crown.

After two weeks of somewhat disorganized league play, the Mixed Commercial League is away and rolling. A new team under the banner of Argenteuil Taxi was admitted last week. Sixteen teams now form a well rounded loop.

Following last Tuesday's play, Fina Garage, La Ruche and Lachute Lumber are tied for top position, having yet to taste defeat in games or total pin-fall.

Jim (Mr. Bowler) Duncan continues to scatter pins in all directions and from all angles. His 202 single and 543 triple, rolled last week, should be tops in that department for a few weeks at least.

Claudette Danis impressed with a string of 180 to take single laurels in the women's field, while Eileen Morrison of Kingsbeer tumbled the pins to a tune of 152 in her last string, to put together an impressive 398 triple — tops in that category for women.

A Lachute entry is in a newly formed league comprising Ste. Rose, Ste. Eustache, St. Jerome and Lachute. Howard Ward, Bud Langille, Paul Sauyé and Jim Duncan, top bowlers in the Mixed League, form part of the local team. They play in Lachute Saturday evenings and away on Sundays.

Team standings and top bowlers as issued by the league statistician, Eileen Morrison, of the Mixed League:

VIC FLEMMING DEAD

Vic Fleming, one of the great harness-race drivers of all time, died at Pinehurst, N.C., at age 66. A native of Dundas, Ont., he won most of the sport's major races at one time or another and in 1938 he drove Billy Direct to the world pacing record of 1:55 for the mile at Lexington, Ky. That mark was equalled this year by Adios Harry at Vernon Downs, N.M. Vic retired in 1947 after a smashup at Delaware, Ohio, after 37 years of handling top trotters and pacers.

Academy Award Star in 'Cyrano de Bergerac'

Jose Ferrer will produce, stage and star as the long-nosed swordsman in a TV production of Rostand's classic, "Cyranno de Bergerac", to be presented by NBC-TV next Monday evening from 7.00-8.30 p.m. and relayed on the CBC-TV network.

The strong cast will include Claire Bloom as the lovely Roxane and the Canadian, Christopher Plummer, as Christian, the handsome swordsman who wins her hand.

Ferrer will be repeating the some role he played in 1951 in Stanley Kramer's Hollywood film production "Cyranno de Bergerac". The performance earned him the Academy Award as the best actor of the year. Five years earlier Ferrer's Broadway production of the play was an overnight hit and ran for a full season.

O'Brien and Friends

The Alouette's Harold Patterson (left) and Sam Etcheverry (right), the greatest passing-catching combination in Canadian football, explain to CBC commentator Larry O'Brien their famous passing attack. Patterson and Etcheverry were named Canadian football's 1954 "Pair of the Year". O'Brien is a top name in sports also; every week he is in charge of CBC's Sportspage on the Trans-Canada network, a program of interviews and sports news, with on-the-spot reports from commentators across the country. Besides his radio duties, O'Brien is a well-known magazine writer and has a column in the Montreal Star.

Footloose in Moscow With Cd'n Press Women

Joan Pritchard of station CFPL in London and her tape-recording machine were the subject of much banter among the Canadian Women's Press Club members who went in a party to the Soviet Union last summer. First there was surprise that she was planning to take the machine with her without prior permission, then friendly amusement over her troubles in carting it around.

However, it all worked out well and the result of Miss Pritchard's efforts will be heard on the "Footloose" radio show, 8.00-8.30 p.m. next Thursday on CBC Trans-Canada. She will give a commentary on her trip and introduce the most interesting sounds she was able to capture on tape — sounds of the Moscow streets, of ballet music in the Bolshoi Theatre, of a Red Army choir, church bells, underground trains — and a portion of an interview with a Soviet news woman who is one of the vice-editors in the foreign department of Pravda.

The previous evening on CBC Dominion, "Assignment Abroad" (9.00-9.15) p.m.) will introduce two other members of the same party — Reta Myers of Vancouver, and Angela Burke of the Toronto Star — giving their impressions of the trip.

St. Andrews East — A valuable cow, owned by Ewen Albright, was struck and killed by the oil-burner train.

What would have been a disastrous fire for the town of Brownsburg was averted last evening by quick action of the Explosives fire brigade. It appears that gasoline, which had been leaking, suddenly took fire when Clifford McFaul attempted to light his stove, with the result that the restaurant was soon a mass of flames. The fire soon spread to another building in the rear, which contained oil, and it was also destroyed. Some 2,000 feet of hose was laid by the brigade, assisted by Lachute Fire Brigade, and after considerable effort the fire was extinguished.

Borough of Brooklyn Reborn in Victory

SPORTS CAMERA

By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The borough of Brooklyn was reborn, fame replaced frustration, and a million souls darkened by defeat awakened explosively in victory on October 4, 1955.

That was the day the do-or-die Dodgers in the cavernous Yankee stadium across the Hudson river defied fate and forecasts to win the first world series in Brooklyn history. Victory was especially sweet because the losers were the New York Yankees, who five time previously faced the Dodgers in Baseball's world championship and sent them back to Flatbush crying "wait till next year".

The Brooklyn triumph — their first in eight world series classics — brought joy to many fans for from Flatbush, particularly in Montreal. For it was at Montreal that many of the Dodger heroes perfected their talents while playing with Montreal Royals in the International League.

Brooklyn manager Walter Alston and Jackie Robinson, Sandy Amaros, Junior Gilliam, Roger Craig and Don Bessent are among those who made the jump from Montreal. The Yankees had Elston Howard, who set the International League on fire in 1954 while playing for Toronto Maple Leafs. In his first time at bat in the world series, Howard hit a home run. He also gained the dubious distinction of being the last put-out in the Brooklyn victory.

Jinx Finally Conquered

In Brooklyn there's a touch of drama to everything the Dodgers do, win or lose. In 1941 it was catcher Mickey Owens' dropped third strike that cost Brooklyn the series to the Yankees. There was always something that beat the Dodgers, even themselves.

It's no wonder, then, that Brooklyn once again was the underdog this year even though they coasted to the National League pennant while Casey Stengel's patched-up Yankees strained every muscle in winning the American League title.

When the Dodgers lost the first two games in Yankee Stadium tears instead of trees were growing in Brooklyn. Then the Dodgers won the next three but blew the crucial sixth game in which typical Brooklyn luck once again returned to haunt the Dodgers. Jackie Robinson hurt his leg and had to sit out the seventh and final game, and the great Duke Snider injured his knee when he stepped in a hole running to catch a fly ball. The Yankee nemesis had once again asserted itself.

What happened in the seventh game is history now. The record book says, Dodgers 2 Yankees 0.

In Brooklyn they're talking of another series victory in 1956. But baseball fans will never forget that sunny afternoon of October 4, when the Dodgers finally made the grade.

Queen's Plate Leaves Woodbine Park

By Ken Romain,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tradition has bowed to progress and old Woodbine Park race-track at Toronto, a name synonymous with Canada's top horse-racing attraction, has formally closed its starting gate to the running horse.

No more will thoroughbreds flash over the mile racing strip that has been steeped in the tradition of the Queen's Plate since 1883, when the race became a permanent fixture at Woodbine. It started in 1860 and for some years was run at different tracks in the province.

The final racing season at the historic track ended Septetmber 27. Next year the Ontario Jockey Club moves to a new $12,000,000 racing plant at Malton on the Toronto outskirts, taking the Queen's Pate with it.

But they won't be able to take the Woodbine atmosphere. This quaintness will remain uniquely its own, from the weather-dulled, rugged brick grandstand to the stately elm that has marked the clubhouse turn during Woodbine's existence.

An older, shorter track will be retained for harness-racing. There is still a possibility that the new plans may not be ready for next season and that old Woodbine may yet again be host to the Queen's Plate. But, even so, it would only be postponing the inevitable.

Oldest Race

It was the Plate, Queen's or King's, that gave the track its glamor. It is the oldest continually run race in North America.

Woodbine was originally owned by Joseph Duggan, a 19th-century horseloving innkeeper. He purchased the eastern Toronto property just above the lakefront. On his retirement he established a stud farm on the 80-acre area.

In 1874 he sold the land to two partners, Messrs. Pardee and Howell, who built a trotting track, a stand, and an even more popular roadhouse. After a few years fire destroyed the roadhouse and the property reverted to Mr. Duggan.

Then in 1881 the enterprising Mr. Duggan approached a Toronto journalist T. C. Patterson, to form a racing club and take charge of racing. The club was organized that year, and was granted a royal charter by Queen Victoria.

In 1939 new prestige was added to Woodbine when the late King George VI and Queen Elizabeth sat in the royal box. They were the first reigning monarchs to witness the running of the Plate. That year the King presented the 50 guineas to George McCullough, late Toronto publisher who owned the winner.

Although the OJC has announced it will retain a one-half mile harness strip the future Woodbine is still in doubt. The city has been seeking the land for the extension of an expressway along the waterfront and has been eyeing the 80-acres as a future housing development and park site.

Women's Interests -- The Homemaker's Section

Fall Vegetables

Make the most of the fine assortment of fall vegetables now available. Good buys and abundant, are a modern miracle. No other food offers such a selection of colors, shapes, textures, flavors, minerals and vitamins. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, point out that to really make the most of these vegetables they should be eaten both raw and and cooked with other foods.

The crisp texture of vegetables, their bright colors and flavors both tangy and mild are at their best when eaten raw. For an attractive appetizer what could equal a colorful plate of little white clusters of cauliflower, strips of orange carrots, thin nippy cream-colored turnip slices, tiny wedges of green cabbage and freshly curled celery or individual servings of pickled crimson beet slices and crisp white onion rings.

These freshly prepared vegetables can also be included in the school lunch box either as they are or added to the sandwich spreads. Shredded carrots, cabbage, turnip, celery and green pepper will give a crips crunchiness and a new flavor to the sandwiches. The children are sure to like any of these vegetables in their cheese, peanut butter, egg and ground meat fillings.

On nippy autumn days freshly cooked piping hot vegetables should have a conspicuous spot beside the family's favorite meat. The home economists offer a few suggestions for dressing up fall vegetables in a simple family style.

Rutabaga, Canada's table turnip, may be mashed and sprinkled with grated cheese or sliced and baked with a sprinkling of brown sugar dotted with butter. For a particularly attractive way to serve two vegetables in one, scoop out the centre from cooked thick slices of turnip and fill with a vegetable of contrasting color.

To bring out their delightful nutty flavor, roll cooked cubes of parsnips in finely grated cheese and bake them in a moderately hot oven until golden brown. For something different to serve with baked ham try glazing cooked parsnip sticks with a mixture of butter, brown sugar and dry mustard. They are delectable.

From the kitchens of the Consumer Section come also these ideas for serving several other fall vegetables. Cook shredded cabbage in a small amount of boiling tomato juice seasoned with sugar, salt and paprika. The chewy quality of cabbage is a welcome antidote for some rich foods. Garnish a dish of steaming buttered beets with spoonfuls of fluffy, creamy white mayonnaise to give them extra flavor appeal. Chop freshly cooked carrots and beets and enhance this combination with a little butter and a few drops of vinegar or lemon juice. Panfry shredded carrots and onions together, spicing them with curry powder. Its wonderful aroma will be sure to tease sharp fall appetites. If a sweet touch is desired, glaze a panful of carrots in a mixture of honey and ginger. This is delicious with roast chicken or pork chops.

Vegetables lend themselves especially well to oven cooking for they may be glazed, baked whole or stuffed, scalloped or combined with meat, eggs and other such foods in tempting casseroles. For a special treat the Consumer Section recommends a scalloped dish of cauliflower flowerets smothered with a thick velvety cheese sauce and topped with chopped green pepper or buttered bread crumbs.

A quick but hearty squash casserole is made from layers of squash, creamed chicken, chopped celery and green peppers, finished off with buttered crumbs. Vegetable marrow with a highly seasoned stuffing of bread crumbs, onion, parsley and chopped cooked meat is another luncheon or supper dish complete in itself. Any non-lover of this vegetable is sure to be converted when the stuffed marrow is brought from the oven and served hot with ripe tomato slices.

Constructive Program at Recent Leadership Forum

The C.S.S. Leadership Forum was held at the Willard Home, East Clifton, a few miles from Sawyerville. This project was sponsored by Farm Forums with assistance from the Women's Institutes and Young People's organizations.

The 21 members of the forum included persons from Pontiac in the west, to Wolfe County in the east. In all there were six counties represented with delegates from Women's Institutes, Church and Young People's organizations and Farm Forums. Angus Kennedy, West Pontiac, trevelled some 340 miles to the Forum.

The Leadership Forum was under the guidance of Floyd Griesbach, National Farm Radio Forum secretary. The forum contained, at the students' request, sessions on program planning, conducting a meeting, recreation, public speaking and leadership. Discussions on the duties of a chairman, discussion leader, secretary, and publicity agent evolved from these topics and received considerable attention; participants learned through doing and organized two evening programs which were open to the public.

The first of these was chaired by Pierre Beauregard, High School student of Sutton. Short talks on the Forum were given by particinants. In addition, newly-learned games were demonstrated, songs were sung, and the evening was brought to a close with a lunch.

The second program followed a similar pattern exceept that Paul Robert, Dept. of Agriculture, and Don MacMillan, agronome, gave a talk and answered questions on book-keeping. Lois Gilbert, of Sawyerville High School, was chairman. A highlight of this program for those persons who had been on lunch committees, was the serving of a lunch to 85 persons in 12 minutes. The program closed with everyone singing a goodnight song.

A drive through the immediate locality left each one with a feeling that he had seen beauty at its best. Of particular interest was a beaver dam on one of the Eastern Townships' fine streams, and the efforts being made to reclaim a run-down and eroded farm. Everyone, and especially the housewives, appreciated the conducted tour through the Beaudoin Woollen Mills in Cookshire. All phases of the manufacture of woollen goods were shown.

Let's Eat

BY

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

The lead cow mooed and moved deliberately toward the pasture gate, eyeing the field of lush green millet across the road. Gradually, she wiggled the bars loose with her horns and slithered through the gate. One by one, all the cows in the beautiful Guernsey herd heeded her call and followed suit.

At that point, the farmer's five children rushed into the millet field, chasing the herd. The farmer adjusted the bars and wired them in place.

"I never saw such discontented cows," grumbled the farmer's pint-sized wife.

"Well," remarked the Chef, "everybody likes a change in the menu, so today instead of beef or chicken, our dinner stars a lamb fricasse."

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Kraut Juice Cocktail
Lamb Fricasse with Vegetables
Puffy Dumplings
Sliced Tomatoes
Peach Custard Pie
Coffee Tea Milk
All measurements are level.
Recipes serve 4 to 6.

Remove all possible fat from a shoulder of lamb. Place in a 4-qt. kettle. Pour in boiling water to cover. Add 2 tsp. salt and 1 tsp. pickle spice. Cover and simmer until fork-tender, about 2 hours.

Drain off and serve the liquid to make barley soup and gravy. Cut the meat in portions.

Mix together ½ cup flour, 1 tsp. each salt and monosodium glutamate and ¼ tsp. dry mustard. Sift over the meat to form a light coating. Brown quickly all over in sausage fat or shortening.

Meantime, separately cook green beans, quartered carrots and small onions. Prepare puffy dumplings.

To serve, arrange the lamb in the centre of a large platter. Arrange the vegetables and dumplings around the edge.

Make gravy from 3 cups of the lamb stock; season to taste with table mustard, and pour over.

Peach Custard Pie, Holbrook Farm

Line a shallow 8" x 8" pan with rich pie pastry. Cover with 2½ cups sliced fresh peaches mixed with ¾ cup sugar, 1 tsp. flour and 1 tsp. cinnamon. Bake 20 min. in a hot oven, 450 deg. F.

Beat 3 egg yolks until mixed. Add 1½ tps. sugar and ¾ cup light cream, or equal parts cream and milk. Pour over the cake.

Bake 15 min. more at 375 deg. F., or until the custard is firm and lightly browned.

KRAUT JUICE COCKTAIL FROM THE CHEF

Combine 1 pt. each, kraut juice and vegetable cocktail. Add 1 tsp. oregano, 4 whole cloves and ½ tsp. Worcestershire. Chill 1 hour; strain.

Regulations for W. Inst. Tweedsmuir Competition

Rules governing the 1955-57 Tweedsmuir Competition were received recently at the office of the Quebec Women's Institutes, and copies have been distributed to all branches in this province. This competition, sponsored by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada and inaugurated by Lady Tweedsmuir, is held every biennial term of the national organization.

Section I, Village Histories, is unchanged. This is a permanent feature of every competition as the value of such records is recognized. By request, copies of all histories compiled are deposited in the Dominion Archives, Ottawa.

Section II, Cultural Project, is again this term an original painting. This has been slightly enlarged however. The subject can be either a Canadian landscape or still life, and any media may be used. The contest is open to amateurs only and they must be Institue members.

A change has been made in Section III, Handicrafts. This term ten articles for a hope chest have been selected for the contest, giving scope for a variety of skills, including weaving and metal work.

A provincial elimination contest, with prizes, is held and the two top entries forwarded to the National Committee for competition at that level. Silver cups, donated by Tweedsmuir, are given in each section here to the winner.

OVERCOMES DEATH TO LEAD HEALTHY LIFE

—Central Press Canadian

Just three years ago nine-year-old Anne Bekus of Hamilton, Ont., was not expected to live through the night after undergoing a serious and lengthy lung graft operation. Blood from a tonsilectomy had entered Anne's lung and paralyzed one side of her body. Now after three years' of hospital care and many operations, the youngster is once more a happy and healthy little girl who enjoys playing with her doll Tina.

Teeth Repaired By Mail Order

New Westminster, B.C. (CP) — Wearers of false teeth in remote areas of British Columbia who break their plates can place them in a mail box and forget their troubles.

Enterprising Dian Matheson of this city has turned her brother's idea into what is believed to be Canada's first mail-order denture-repair shop.

Her brother Roger, a traveller, mentioned to Dian that he had met many persons in his travels who had broken teeth but couldn't take a day or more to travel to get them fixed.

Miss Matheson is a bit afraid that people may not want to send their teeth to a woman for repairs. "There aren't any women in the business," she said, "but I'm just as capable as a man."

It is estimated the mail order arrangement will give about four days service to any part of B.C.

Fashions

Cashmere is one of fashion's favorite fabrics for casual sports and travel wear coats and now it appears with a touch of fur. This beauty is in beige cashmere and is cut fairly straight with just enough fullness to fall in graceful lines. The cuffed sleeves have more fullness above the elbow. A mink collar sits smartly on top of the rolled collar and is detachable.

Bride: "Darling, will you love me if I grow fat?"

Groom: "Heck, no! I promised for better or worse, not through thick and thin."

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

The football season is here, which means you'll be driving to see one of the big games or to watch Junior play on his high school team.

To avoid crowds and insure yourself of a parking space it's always a good idea to arrive early. Because the weather is cool, you'll want warm clothing, a blanket or two and something substantial to eat. Instead of searching for a lunch stand, why not have a picnic in the car? Here's an excellent football menu:

A thermos of hot filling soup such such as tomato or split pea; or, if you prefer, chile con corne; a couple of "dagwood" sandwiches for each member of the party with lots of meat and cheese; pickles; a thermos of cocoa for the children and coffee for the adults; and apples, cup cakes and cookies for dessert. (To keep the soup and coffee hot and other drinks cool, carry them in separate Fiberglas bags.)

Football games and picnics: they go together.

Cooking by Children

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Mummy, let me help get supper!" small Margaret's voice was eager.

"You can set the table, dear."

"But I don't want to set the table! I know how to do that. I'd like to learn something new — how to cook a surprise for Daddy!"

"Well, we're having macaroni casserole."

"With mushroom soup and tomato mixed in, and cheese on top? You tell me what to do, and I'm sure I can make it!" Margaret's eyes sparkled, and her mother thought, "I might as well teach her how to help prepare food, since she is so keen about it!"

* * *

Interest in getting food ready to eat is not just confined to girls. Small boys, with healthy appetites can get "a bang" out of simple tasks like choosing potatoes for roasting, scrubbing them, arranging them on the oven rack after a little criscross cut is made in the centre top skin, and then watching the oven temperature and the clock. Timing is so important in meal preparation. Planning ahead so the food will be ready at the right hour comes with practice.

Boys are often surprised at the variety of foods and the ease with which they can be prepared over the embers of a camp fire. Apples can be baked. So can "Pigs in a Blanket" (small sausages enclosed in biscuit dough) in a small reflector outdoor oven or in the embers after being wrapped in heavy tinfoil.

There are so many easy-to-prepare dishes today which a girl or boy can get ready all by themselves. The "Instant Puddings" are great favorites with youngsters. There is no danger of little fingers being scalded because they are made by adding cold milk to the powdered "mix". A child learns to measure the milk exactly and stir it gradually into the pudding powder. If "Junior" is careless and uses too much milk, the pudding will be "sloppy", or if he uses too little milk, it will be too thick. Thus he discovers that a good cook must read the directions carefully and follow them with precision.

Gelatine desserts are also very simple to get ready and there is a wide range of flavors. A child enjoys "dressing up" a plain dessert with chopped up fruit or whipped cream or shredded cocoanut or chocolate chips. Mother discovers that the small cook also takes such pride in his "creation" he eats up every bit of his own serving with relish. Soup is another easy food to prepare and so are rice dishes.

The cake and cookie mixes are also a great boon in a busy household. "You can hardly have a failure with them, even if you tried!" one teen age girl said with conviction. "Mother lets me use two similar mixes regularly. Friday after school or early evening. One cake or one batch of cookies which I can use to treat any of my own gang who drop in — and the family gobble up the rest of them."

Daughter should be allowed gradually to take more and more responsibility for food preparation as she gets older. A girl discovers how much thought has to go into making out a food shopping list — she often gains new admiration for the way her mother can "stretch a food dollar" and by observation, picks up many useful food preparation combinations.

Having a guest of her own for the evening meal stimulates a daughter's desire to excel as a cook. If it's her company, suggest that she plan and prepare the meal completely herself — let some other member of the family attend to the dishwashing chore that night.

Encourage each youngster to compile a Cook Book in a loose leaf note-book or Card File. In it favorite recipes which can be followed without assistance from anyone are written out. There are a number of Cook Books especially written for children with easy directions outlined step by step. But most modern Cook Books make no mystery of how to get meals ready. Some of them feature dishes from different countries. A child is often intrigued by these.

Meals are often the only time in the day when the whole family get together. On week-ends, why not make a point of letting son or daughter share in food preparation? Thus, they make their own special contribution to home happiness. As they make one of their own favorite dishes, they discover for themselves that COOKING IS FUN FOR CHILDREN!

Wife Preservers

If possible, provide your young student with a good pin-to-wall electric lamp. The lighted area will be large, deep shadows are eliminated, and the student studies at ease.

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

Heating System Check Is Contribution To Fire Prevention Week, Says Chief

Every householder in Canada can make a personal contribution to "Fire Prevention Week" by having the home heating system checked for possible fire hazards, says Chief Inspector James McIsaac of the Montreal Fire Prevention Bureau. In making this appeal to home owners, the Chief Inspector points out that, in the City of Montreal in 1954, over 40% of domestic fires started somewhere in the heating system of the house, and these figures are fairly typical of the entire country.

To help in this campaign to prevent mid-winter fires, the Bureau, in co-operation with the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, offers the following check-list. And, while the check-up is being carried out, thought can be given to the possibility of incorporating some of the improvements that have been developed in heating since the system was installed.

Causes of heating system fires start right at the heating plant itself and in the area surrounding it and can be found from there right up to the chimney pot on the roof. To make the home safe from this kind of fire hazard, therefore, calls for a check-up from bottom to top.

Starting from the bottom, take a look at the area round the heating plant. This is a favorite spot for dumping all kinds of odds and ends during the summer months, many of them highly inflammable. Good housekeeping is good fire prevention, so see that these odds and ends are cleared away before winter fires are lit.

Then, to the heating plant itself. Here the fire hazard is perhaps more of an indirect one. A poorly maintained heating plant — one which is dirty, or on which the doors do not fit properly — is likely to be less efficient than a clean, well-maintained unit. In this case, there is a definite temptation to make up for the deficiency by overloading it, with results that are often disastrous. A heating plant that has been carefully checked by a proficient heating engineer or contractor periodically, will save money and prevent fire.

Hazards can often be found in smoke pipes that do not join properly, or are in poor repair so that heat can leak out of them and set fire to nearby wooden or paperboard partitions. Or they may be found in the chimney itself, where a residue of soot can catch fire, not only causing a chimney fire, but sending up a shower of burning soot to become a fire hazard to surrounding buildings. Loose bricks in the chimney can give fire access to adjoining woodwork that is inflammable.

Then too, there are the heating units in the rooms above. These in themselves seldom constitute a fire hazard. But if they are outmoded and not providing the heat that is required of them, the temptation arises once again to overcome the lack of heat by overloading the heating plant. Many old type heating plant can still keep a home comfortably warm if it is feeding heat to modern heating units . . . convectors, new slim radiators, baseboard units and similar high efficiency types of heat distributors. And in many cases these can be substituted for the older type without having to replace the entire system.

Even if the heating system is given the utmost care and maintenance, however, complete safety and efficiency may still be impossible if it is old and outmoded. Most houses outlast their original heating systems, and replacement or complete renovation can more than pay for itself, not only in greater comfort and safety, but by adding to the value of the property as well.

MISSING FROM THE Christening

Aluminum was named by a man who never saw it. In 1807 the great scientist Sir Humphrey Davy decided that alumina had a metallic base, but failed to find a way to extract the metal. But he went ahead anyway and christened the unseen metal "aluminum". Later he changed his mind and re-named it aluminium. Both versions are still used.

Wonder if the English scientist ever dreamed of the day when, in far-off Canada, millions of hydro-electric horsepower would unlock the riches of alumina to produce more than 500,000 tons of aluminum a year?

Charities Well Over-subscribed, Intensive Nine-Day Campaign

Organizers Gratified With Success of Appeal, Anticipate Final Returns Around $19,000

The proverbial generosity of Lachute's population was proven once again during the past two weeks — the Federated Charities' objective of $16,300 having been surpassed by more than $1,000 at the official close of the drive. It is anticipated the total collection for this, the Federation's first campaign, will reach approximately $19,000, according to current reports from the organization.

This welcome news, which assures the continuation of the five charities affiliated with the Federation, is the fruit of a well organized campaign which commenced October 9.

Enthusiasm prevailed among the workers throughout this campaign, and each evening the captains and canvassers of the various sections gathered at headquarters in the town hall to compile their figures and returns.

The effort was intense and the devotion of some hundred workers in this venture deserves high commendation. Public generosity rose to the height of the need, and the returns indicate a fine spirit of charity among the citizenry of Greater Lachute.

Gerard Lefebvre, campaign chairman, stated that he was "more than satisfied" with the results. "The success of this campaign is due to the sustained effort and teamwork of all who took part. Without this co-operation and devotion, I feel that the results would not have been so satisfying to contemplate. All, in their own manner, gave the best of themselves and I thank them with all my heart", said Mr. Lefebvre.

Dr. Marc Papineau, president, patriarch and all-round inspiration of this venture, who guided the campaign to its successful outcome, described the result as a "wave of charity which has swept the entire town".

"Only the cause of Charity could have united so large a group of volunteers to press this job to such a successful conclusion. I am pleased to remind you," he continued, "that every effort I requested was asked in the name of Charity. I greatly appreciate the co-operation of all whom I approached, and I sincerely thank you — in the name of Christian charity and on behalf of the fellow-beings who will benefit from your generosity."

Fine Spirit at Magnesite Union's Annual Function

The second annual banquet of Local 145 of the Magnesite Workers' Federal Union of Canadian Refractories Limited was held in the Montana Inn on Saturday, October 1. There were over 425 persons present, including guests, the executive, members of the Union and their wives. A turkey dinner was served by the Ritz Caterers.

Following the banquet, Gibson Pearson, president of the Local and master of ceremonies for the evening, called on Mayor Gilbert Arnold of the Township of Grenville to address the group. Mayor Arnold commended the members of the Union and the members of the management for the fine spirit of co-operation which existed and for the splendid day-to-day relationship experienced at the Mine and in the two plants of C.R.L. He also pointed out the benefits accruing to the Township because of the development of Canadian Refractories within its boundaries.

Rhéal Bastien, district representative of the Trades and Labor Congress then spoke briefly in French and English on the meaning of being a member of a Union. He urged particularly that the members attend their Union meetings regularly. He then introduced the main speaker for the evening, Tom Ward, Political Research Director of the Trades and Labor Congress, whose subject was "Union Labels and Their Advantages".

Gibson Pearson thanked the speaker and then introduced Mayor Stanley Cavanagh of Grenville Village, who sang several Scottish and Irish songs accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Thomas Fox.

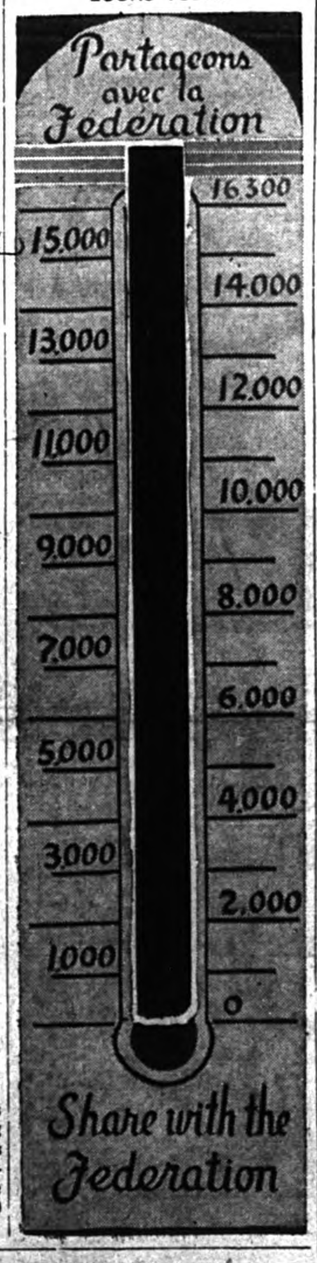

Of special interest during the evening was the presentation of lapel buttons to members of the Union who were now retired. The recipients, with their years of service, were: Henry Trineer, 32 years; Garnet MacIntyre, 27 years; Adolph Johnson, 12 years; Chris Wheeler, 7 years.

Guests at the head-table were: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ward, T.L.C. Political Research Director; Mr. and Mrs. Rhéal Bastien, T.L.C. District Representative; Mayor and Mrs. Gilbert Arnold, Grenville Township; Mayor and Mrs. Stanley Cavanagh, Grenville Village; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Brunet; and the following members of staff of Canadian Refractories Limited and their wives — Clifford Perry, Lloyd Thomas, Lorne Duncan, William Carson, Frederick Gauley, John Kenny, Dr. William Fisher and John White.

Dancing followed these proceedings.

W. M. Cottingham Guest Speaker At Richelieu Club

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Richelieu Club, held in the Legion Hall last Thursday evening.

Introduced by Philippe Valois, M.P., Mr. Cottingham paid tribute to the Richelieu Club as a factor in community betterment, then proceeded to enlighten his listeners on recent and future developments in the mining field throughout this province.

Mr. Cottingham was thanked by Clement Tremblay, O.B.E. Chairman of the session was Dr. Roger Lavigne, Club president.

A total of $108 was collected for the Federated Charities at this meeting.

Increasing Social Welfare Bill Gives Concern in B'bg Council

Section of Watermain Choked With Roots, Explains Recent Trouble with Water Supply

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — A special meeting of Council was called Monday evening to discuss the waterworks. Mr. Legault's estimate was not sufficiently advanced to make any positive move on the Woodbine project. Mr. Carrière, of Lachute Lumber Co'y, was present to make offers on the Park Avenue project. The Council had been shopping around and told Mr. Carrière that, providing he could match prices, the local man would be favored. Mr. Carrière bettered all prices except the pipe, then agreed to a two per cent cash discount. An order was placed for immediate delivery of the materials.

Councillor Stan Harris proposed that, to avoid any more water trouble, the offending pipes should be replaced. The councillors and mayor agreed that drastic measures may have to be taken, but the mayor pointed out that the recent Convention of Mayors has resolved to ask the Provincial Government to pay half of waterworks repaired. He suggested that it might be unwise to tackle any major repairs until this issue is settled.

Mayor Dorius Lepine was optimistic that the line could be cleared, and suggested that he himself would direct operations. He expected to find dirt and stones in the lowest part of the pipe.

Since all the councillors were present, it was decided to discuss the increasing burden of Social Welfare payments, which now reach about $1,000 a year.

The councillors felt that in most cases the Social Welfare allowance was a good and charitable way to help the less fortunate residents. The main point of concern to the councillors was the fact that a few of those benefitting from the taxpayers' money were in better financial position than many of the taxpayers! Two have fairly recent-model cars, TV, all the modern appliances, and one, in fact, is working fairly regularly.

The mayor suggested that, "rather than go off half-cocked", the councillors should check these rather flimsy reports before taking action. Secretary Hebert read over the list of people receiving assistance, and it was decided that two or three should be checked before the November meeting.

Gatineau Power asked for another motion to install six new streetlights, since the original one was now 11 months old. Council passed a motion to install six new lights.

• • •

Subsequent to this meeting — on Tuesday, upon digging between the dam and reservoir, Town Foreman Rabbi discovered that, although there was no dirt in the lower part of the pipe, another section of about 50 feet was almost completely choked with roots.

Rotary District Governor Visits Club Tonight

Harry C. Ballard
Governor of the 250th District of Rotary International, who this evening is making his annual visit to the Brownsburg Rotary Club. Mr. Ballard will address the club and confer with the local officers during his visit.

Hon. Cottingham to Visit Harrington and Chatham

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham will be at the Orange Hall in Harrington on October 21 at 8 p.m., and at the Municipal Hall in St. Philippe d'Argenteuil on October 28 at 8 p.m. Both meetings will be open to the public.

Death of Harrington Man In Saturday Night Fracas

Former Resident, Now of Montreal, Held By Homicide Squad for Questioning

Alden MacLeod, a 34-year-old Harrington trucker, was pronounced dead when friends brought him to the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, early Sunday morning after a brawl outside the Gascon Hotel in Pte.-au-Chene. James Young, formerly of that district and now residing in Ville St. Laurent, is being held for questioning in connection with the fatality.

According to reports, a fracas occurred outside the hotel shortly after midnight on Saturday, and MacLeod was badly beaten in the fight. His brother-in-law, Wendell Boyd, and Stanley Young, both of Calumet, heard of the brawl and on going to the spot, discovered MacLeod lying on the ground. They immediately placed the unconscious man in their car and rushed him to hospital. Dr. Royal Kirby, of the Smith Clinic, examined MacLeod in the car and pronounced him dead.

Traffic Officer Howard Jones, informed of the incident from Hawkesbury, in turn notified the Homicide Squad of the Provincial Police in Montreal. Lieut. Det. Ubald Legault and Det. Sgts. Merril Lawton and Gaston Archambeault immediately headed for this district, with a photographer. The Provincial officers proceeded to Hawkesbury where two town constables were guarding the body; they later checked the story at the Pte.-au-Chene hotel, whereupon Officers Jones and Lawton headed north to the Young Settlement near Avoca, and James Young, 35, was arrested. He was found sleeping in the rear seat of his car, which was parked in front of his mother's residence. Young was escorted to Montreal by the two officers and he is being held for questioning. The man has been employed as a security guard at the Canadair plant for the past eight years; previously he had spent five years overseas during World War II.

An autopsy on the victim's body was performed at the local morgue on Sunday. An inquest was then opened and postponed until next Tuesday, when the inquiry will be resumed in the Pte.-au-Chene area, according to District Coroner Dr. A. R. Coté.

Police said MacLeod had been badly beaten in the Saturday night brawl and attributed the cause of his death to severe head injuries. The victim was a former employee of Welden Motors Ltd., Lachute, and was working as a truck driver for his brother-in-law, Wendell Boyd, at the time of his tragic death.

Funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon at the United Church in Harrington.

Has Ideas — Paul Laliberté New President Ch. of Commerce

Paul Laliberté, civil engineer, was elected president of Lachute Chamber of Commerce, succeeding André Lefebvre — at a general meeting held recently in the Legion Hall.

Other officers elected were — 1st vice-president, Gerald Walker; 2nd vice-president, Robt. Hadley; treasurer, Roland Raymond; secretary, Lévis Clement; legal advisor, Jean-Guy Joannette. Directors — Gerard Lefebvre, Albert Malacket, E. M. Jones, Leonard Bedard.

The president-elect submitted a series of suggestions for the promotion of business, industry and tourism in the vicinity. One of his more outstanding recommendations was that of a Civics committee, representing the councils and the three municipalities of Lachute, Ayersville and St. Jerusalem, to confer on problems of mutual concern — such as the waterworks system, widening of Main and Bethany Streets, and other matters. Among Mr. Laliberté's suggested needs were the publishing of a town map and the paving of Routes 30 and 31.

Effective Call for Louisa Fire Pump

The new Louisa fire-pump and crew were pressed into service this past week, and effectively doused a fire smouldering around several cottages on Lake Louisa.

It appears that fire broke out Friday afternoon on the north shore where someone had been employed clearing a lot. Smoke was noticed by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fraser, one of the few couples who had remained in residence at the end of the season. With pails and an axe, they drove several miles around the lakeshore, and, with the help of another resident armed with a shovel, they subdued the fire where it had spread under a cottage owned by Milton McFaul, seriously threatening the home. Fanned by a strong wind, the outbreak had spread and threatened other properties nearby.

Meanwhile, however, a call had been telephoned to Douglas Boyd, Louisa, who is chief in charge of the new fire equipment. Three linemen from Gatineau Power Co. had also noticed the smoke, and hurried around the lake to give assistance. The pump arrived in short order, and was used effectively to avert further danger.

Bush Blaze at Fraser Lake

The Louisa fire was no sooner under control when reports of another blaze in the Fraser Lake vicinity reached Lachute. Contrary to rumors, however, no buildings were destroyed, although the fire did pass dangerously close to to several camps, but was stopped by wet leaves piled against a log fence, as well as the rain-dampened grass.

Forest firefighting equipment from Arundel was rushed to the scene, along with a large crew of men from Ayers Limited. The fire was kept from the vicinity of the buildings. The outbreak occurred between Fraser and Little Green Lakes.

Brownsburg Family Casualties in Ontario Accident

Mr. and Mrs. D'Arcy Besserer and three sons, of Brownsburg, are in serious condition in two Ottawa hospitals as the result of a two-car crash on the Trans-Canada highway a mile west of Rockland, early Saturday morning.

Mr. Besserer, 44, driver of the west-bound station wagon, his 45-year-old wife, and two of their sons, Donald, 11, and Gerald, 6, were treated in St. Louis de Montfort Hospital. One of the children has a possible fracture of the spine, while the mother and the other child have broken bones and other injuries. Mr. Besserer is suffering from chest injuries.

The third son, John, 16, was treated in the General Hospital along with Gordon Marsh, 36, of Dorval, the driver and lone occupant of the eastbound car.

The collision occurred on the south side of the highway. The injured were taken to hospital by ambulance and police car.

Laur. District Boy Scouts Assn. Elects Officers

Scouting Matters Reviewed, Spring Rally Planned

Brownsburg — The annual meeting of the Boy Scouts' Association, Laurentian District, was held in Lake of Two Mountains High School, St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, last Monday evening.

The following officials were elected for the next 12 months:

President, B. A. Jenkins, Lachute; vice-presidents, J. G. Wilson, Laval West, D. N. Atkins, Brownsburg, C. A. Stonefield, St. Eustache; treasurer, Hugh D. Jones, St. Eustache; secretary, G. H. Quinn, Brownsburg.

W. W. Freeland, the former president, declined to accept office again owing to pressure of business.

A decision was reached that a Rally would be held next spring, and G. C. Jones, of St. Eustache, was appointed as chairman of the Rally Committee.

District Commissioner L. W. Armstrong stated that a Wolf Cub Pack had been formed at Ste. Agathe des Monts, also one at Bouchard Military Camp.

115 Wolf Cubs attended camp at L'Orignal in July, most of them from within the District.

The salvage paper collection by the Brownsburg Boy Scouts last Saturday was not as successful as the previous collection, possibly due to the inclement weather.

Runaway Truck Causes Damage

A truck from Brewers' Warehouse, driven by Henri Bender of Hawkesbury, came into collision with a parked truck owned by a local bottling firm, Chevrier Freres, in Hawkesbury recently.

The accident occurred when Bender, discovering that his brakes were out of commission, swerved to the left-hand side of the street. In attempting to miss other cars, he struck the stationary truck, causing approximately $500 damage.

Scene of the mishap was Main Street West, in the vicinity of the Smith Clinic.

The Brewers' Warehouse truck was carrying a load of approximately 5 tons, and pushed the Chevrier vehicle some 30 feet. Neither Bender nor the local driver, Rosaire Legault, suffered injury. Jean Vianney Durocher, helper on the Chevrier truck, had jumped from the box of the truck just before the crash.

The accident was investigated by Police Chief René Lacot, of Hawkesbury.

Progress of Appeal For Blind Institute, Three Districts

"Charity Begins at Home"

(Contributed)

The best form of charity, which should receive priority over all other forms, is by donating to your local organizations, which are maintained and administered by people who are residing in your community. This gives you assurance that the money spent will reach those within your district.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, with its office in Lachute, is constantly on the look-out for people who are suffering from eye-ailments. Your generosity may be the means of saving the sight of one of your neighbors, or the sight of a member of your family.

Lachute

The Lachute campaign, which is a combined effort under the Federation of Charities for Lachute, has gone over the top, with gratifying support from the people of this community. The Institute will benefit accordingly.

Brownsburg

The citizens of Brownsburg are being solicited independently of the Lachute campaign. All enquiries should be made either to the Institute (Box 807, Lachute; phone 476) or directed to Mr. Wm. Richardson, Brownsburg (telephone 2883). Cheques should be made payable to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

St. Andrews East

St. Andrews East and vicinity are under the chairmanship of Miss Burruss and the following canvassers will collect for the Institute in her area: Miss Phyllis McLeod, Mr. R. G. Parker, Mrs. R. E. Thorne, Miss L. Ladouceur, Mrs. Oswald Denault.

If you know someone who is suffering with eye trouble, please let the Institute have their names. All cases are dealt with confidentially, and the interviews will cost the individuals nothing, as this is a general service to the public. For particulars, contact Mr. A. G. Caplette, field secretary, Lachute 418, or write giving this full information.

District Rally of Lions Clubs Notable Event at Golf Chalet

At the Zone 12 North rally of Lions Clubs, held Friday evening at Lachute Golf and Country Club, there was a good representation from the Northmount, Montreal, N.D.G., Bigras, Lachine-Lakeshore and Lachute branches — also a number from outside the Zone including St. Lambert and as far as Sherbrooke.

Proceedings at the banquet were in charge of George Kuebler, Zone chairman, and various reports and impressions conveyed by the speakers evidenced Lionism at a keen pitch of enthusiasm throughout the district.

Seated at the head-table with the Zone chairman were the District Governor, Bill Shields; Deputy District Governor, Horace Lamarche; past-District Governors, International Councillors, and Deputies; district club presidents; and Mayor (Lion) Dr. F. W. FitzGerald — joined later in the evening by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, who is a charter member and past-president of the Lachute Club.

The Montreal "barber shop quartet" provided vocal entertainment in rich harmony, and an enthusiastic singsong was led by Lion A. R. Jefferies of Northmount.

There were some outstanding highlights in the evening's addresses, notably:

The District Governor's account of his latest official visit, to the Seven Islands club, and their project of building and equipping a community library with literature in both French and English.

International Councillor Alf Cadman's two prime objectives, namely, to weld Canadian unity and to publicize Canada, in Lionism as elsewhere. (Mr. Cadman, representative for Quebec Province in Lions International, had left Bermuda for Montreal to join the District Governor on his trip to Seven Islands.)

Horace Lamarche's report on attendance averages and other evidences of enthusiasm in the Zone.

Past District Governor Sheasgreen's plea for strong future leadership in club, District and Zone affairs.

Stress on inter-club relations and activities by Ed McLean, Inter-Club Chairman.

The rally was effective in its dual purpose — both of stimulating the broader spirit which motivates this great movement, and of fostering firm friendships among the neighboring clubs. Around 120 Lions attended the function.

Argenteuil County W.I. Branches Report Activities for October

All Women's Institute branches are making arrangements to attend the semi-annual convention at Lachute this Saturday, October 22. Following are branch reports for the month, as submitted by the county publicity convener:

Arundel — Mrs. J. Ossington, of Granby, the provincial convener of Citizenship, gave an interesting talk on Civil Defence. Members of the municipal council and the school principal were guests at this meeting. Some interesting suggestions on how to celebrate the local centenary in 1956, were given in the roll-call. All business from the board meeting and the coming semi-annual conference was dealt with.

Brownsburg — A talk on "Social Service and Health in the Netherlands" was given by Dr. Suzanne MacKimmie. This branch is entertaining local teachers at the November meeting. A wreath is to be placed on the Cenotaph for Remembrance Day. A new flag has been donated to the school, and 24 books to the school library.

Frontier: The Rev. Canon J. W. Meakin spoke on "Religion in the Schools". A rummage sale is to be held shortly, also a Hallowe'en party for the children.

Lachute: — This branch held its October meeting at the Harrington Forestry Farm and Mr. Anspach, director of research, gave an interesting talk on his work. The W.I. library, with Mrs. Roy Fraser as librarian, will be opened on Thursdays from 3.30 to 5 p.m.

Lakefield — A report on the board meeting was read. The guest speaker, Dr. L. Turcotte, gave th members some very enlightening facts on the Salk Vaccine.

Mille Isles — A report on the Provincial Convention was given and items from the Federated News were read. Pamphlet lists were given to all conveners.

Pioneer — This branch records with regret the passing of Miss Jessie Drew, one of its charter members. . . Donations of $5.00 were given to the Service Fund and Retarded Children Fund.

Upper Lachute - East End had 18 members and three guests, who answered the roll-call by naming a vitimin and the food in which it is found. Dr. Suzanne MacKimmie gave an interesting talk on Diabetes . . . A military whist party will be held in the Legion Hall on October 20. A $20 donation was given to the Service Fund and $5 to Lachute High School as a prize to be given to the pupil in Grade V who showed the greatest progress during the year.

ALCOHOL CLINIC

Ottawa (CP) — The Ottawa clinic of the province's Alcoholism Research Foundation has treated 125 persons since it opened the doors of its mid-city office last January. Secretary Keith D. Childerhose reported that 85 per cent of the patients were men.

Spending by municipal governments in Canada in 1953 totalled $922 million, about 13 per cent of total government spending in Canada in that year.

New Catholic Central School at St. Hermas

The new St. Hermas Central Catholic School, now completed, was dedicated by His Excellency Msgr. Emilien Frenette at ceremonies held in the school recently. In attendance at the gathering was the Hon. Paul Sauvé, Minister of Youth and Social Welfare and provincial deputy for Deux Montagnes.

Good Home Lighting Is Vital to Health

This is especially true now that the children are back at school. Homework and the shorter days of autumn and winter mean that children do more reading by artificial light.

Two kinds of lighting are needed in any room — specific light on any object and general room lighting. Adequate light on specific tasks relieves eye strain and fatigue brought on by continued reading and studying. Proper general room lighting avoids the discomfort and strain caused by strong contrasts between light and dark areas.

Everyone is concerned with the problem of good lighting. Yet, if your home wiring is not planned for today's abundant electrical living it will limit the benefits of good lighting.

Electrical outlets should not be overloaded. Make sure that you have a sufficient number on each wall, so that not more than two lamps are connected to one outlet.

Your local electrical contractor or dealer can show you how to get the most in efficiency, economy and safety from your electrical circuits.

Mechanical Digger Cheaper for Spuds

Vancouver, B.C. (CP) — A new potato-digging machine which harvests five to six acres a day "untouched by human hand" is being used on the Lulu Island farm of Leslie Gilmore.

The digger takes two rows at a time and lays the potatoes in neat rows on top of the ground at the rate of 100 to 150 tons daily.

"It cuts harvesting costs in two on 100 acres or more," he said. "And with it we may break even on current low prices for potatoes."

A pick-up machine follows the digger, sifts earth through endless grills, and eight women riding on it pick off other debris as the machine loads the stream of spuds in a truck travelling beside it.

The truck has a special hopper body with a conveyor bottom. This unloads the tubers at the bin where another conveyor distributes them in the storage pit.

Atomic Energy In Agriculture

By-products of atomic energy show promise of making important contributions to agriculture, states the World Food and Agriculture Organization. FAO reported the destructive power of radiation has been used to control insect infestations in grain and cereal products at costs comparing favorably with other methods such as fumigation.

The storage life of potatoes is reported to have been extended many months through radiation treatments that successfully kept the potatoes from sprouting. Preserving foods through cold sterilization by irradiation at normal temperatures is receiving close attention and already has met with some success. It has been found that in some countries, where trichinosis in pork is an important health problem, irradiation of the pork can kill the trichinae parasites and render infected meat safe for human consumption.

The presentation mentioned the use made by research workers of radioactive isotopes to trace the life cycle of destructive insects, and their parasites, in order to develop more effective methods of control. It cited Canada's use of cobalt-60 to label wireworms thus making it possible to follow their movements underground.

Plant breeders have exposed plants in the early flowering stages and their seeds, to irradiation in order to produce mutations — changes in the plant resulting in the production of new species.

The new species now created through irradiation give the plant breeder much new material for crossing with existing types to obtain new varieties superior in yield quality, early maturity or resistance to insect and disease attacks.

The presentation cites work of this kind in Canada where amongst some twenty barley mutants by irradiation, and now under field trial, are some maturing sufficiently early to extend northward, the area in which barley can be grown.

Irradiation also produces mutations in disease-producing organisms, creating new races of such diseases as rusts and smuts attacking grains. By developing the new races artificially under controlled conditions, the plant breeder may be able to anticipate the disease resistance requirements of his crop and breed varieties with greater resistance to the new races before they develop naturally in the field as they have in the past.

Rollaway Nest Averts Bacterial Spoilage

Vancouver, B.C. (CP) — The complacent cluck of the hen as she performs her barnyard function is turning into a squawk of outrage by courtesy of the British Columbia Research Council.

The Council's division of applied biology is working on a device which snatches away the egg the moment the hen rises to contemplate her handiwork.

Officially known as the rollaway nest, it is not designed to breed neurotic fowl, nor to prove any theories in psychology, but merely to deliver that egg nice and fresh to your breakfast table.

It has been found that eggs are spoiled by bacterial infection if they are soiled in the nest and the number of bad eggs goes up if the farmer tries to wash them clean.

Bacteria, the researchers explain, are carried through the porous shell by moisture and then attack the protective membrane inside.

The answer is to get the hen off that egg as soon as possible, or — conversely — get the egg from under the hen, also with alacrity.

The Council has designed a simple nest of wire mesh and a series of baffles. Now, the hen lays the egg, gets up to inspect it and it promptly rolls away out of her reach.

Canada's Plowing Champions

Winner of Canada's top plowing trophy for the second time in three years is Bob Timbers (center), 28, of Stouffville, Ont. Timbers, who was Canadian champion in 1953, won the Esso Silver Plow at the International Plowing Match near Leamington, Ont., again last week. Runnerup was Jerry Ferguson (left), 63, of Croton, Ont. Edwin "Mickey" Demman, 22, of Portage la Prairie, Man., came third and will travel to England with Timbers next year to compete for the world title. Demman, rather than Ferguson, qualified for the trip because no province is permitted more than one man on the two-man overseas team.

L. T. Porter, of St. Andrews East, captured top honors for market cattle as judging ended at the Sherbrooke Winter Fair last week.

His Angus steer won the champion and reserve champion ribbons in its class and was then judged the grand champion and reserve grand champion steer for all classes.

CALL IT WHAT YOU LIKE — C S B MEANS "CASH STANDING BY"

Some may call them "Canada's Sterling Buy" . . . other "Canada's Safest Bet" . . . Still others may think of them as "Cash Standing By", but the Bank of Montreal believes nobody in Canada should be without them, says Donald M. Hay, B of M manager at Lachute. They are Canada Savings Bonds — the safest, easiest-to-buy investment in the land.

Safest — because the government of Canada guarantees to redeem them at full face value at any time, plus interest to the end of the previous calendar month.

Easiest to buy — because for 5 per cent down you can buy a bond, and pay the balance in easy monthly instalments over a year. Imagine, just $2.50 for a $50-bond and less than a dollar a week pays the balance.

And the return — a handsome 3¼ per cent interest each year, starting November 1 next.

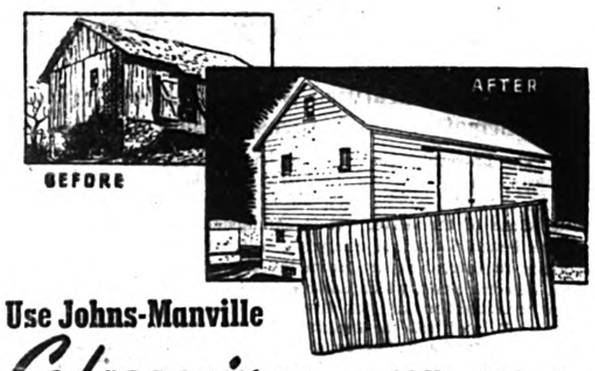

Mr. Hay is urging his customers not to miss out on what he calls the investment opportunity of the year. To every one of them he says, "You can't afford not to buy C S B's." The B of M manager says you can buy Canada Savings Bonds without any fuss and bother. You just fill out a simple application form at his office, make your 5 per cent down-payment, and the B of M does the rest.

CHOICE OF V8 OR 6
With your new Chevrolet truck you can choose a short stroke V8 or the famous 6 cylinder engine to do your hauling job better with more power and economy.

LONG WEARING PISTONS
New alloy pistons and ring design, plus Pressure Lubrication, add new life to pistons — in both the famous 6 and the new short stroke V8's.

COMPRESSION RATIO
New highs in compression ratio give more instant response to power demands and squeeze far more power from every drop of fuel.

AXLES AND TRANSMISSIONS
Chevrolet's power carrying units can be tailored to your individual needs. In the rough, or on the road, there's a choice of transmissions, drive lines and axles for you.

12-VOLT SYSTEM
Chevrolet's new 12-volt ignition system ensures faster starts, even during the coldest weather. Its hotter spark means more thorough combustion for greater economy, too.

STRONGER FRAMES
With Chevrolet, you get the added strength and full length support of new parallel-design frames, ensuring greater alignment strength.

TUBELESS TIRES
Greater traction, quieter running and increased protection from blowouts — these are just three of many reasons for the superiority of tubeless tires on the light duty models.

SMALL TURNING RADIUS
Now you can make tighter turning circles, get into smaller spaces with Chevrolet's smaller turning radius.

POSITIVE STEERING
Recirculating Ball Steering has been improved to give even greater ease. Power steering is available at extra cost on the heavy duty models.

IMPROVED VISIBILITY
Now you can see all round — with Chevrolet's wrap around windows front and rear. (rear wrap around is optional at extra cost).

AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSIONS
These great transmissions make driving easier, automatically. They cut delivery times — and reduce wear and tear on the truck by always being geared right for the load and the road.

NEW DRIVE LINES
New Hotchkiss drive lines, now on all models, absorb drive and braking shock, and promote longer truck life.

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

Have A Heart!

AT THIS SEASON of the year, we in the newspaper business liken ourselves to the dry-cleaner swamped with rush orders on the Thursday before Easter — or the barber coping with tardy delinquents on Christmas Eve. . . . . There's no rhyme nor reason to the way people leave their news till the last minute; and when St. Peter blows his celestial trump, we bet they'll miss the deadline!

This is the season of resumed activities in a dozen clubs and groups in every surrounding community. The Watchman is happy to be in their confidence — to be informed of their proceedings — and to help by reporting their achievements. . . . But why is it that mid-week or week-end functions are not reported until Wednesday of the following week? Why is it that Saturday and Sunday sports are not committed to paper until a few hours before our deadline?

It is only through the grace of an indulgent editor and a co-operative staff, that most of these affairs find a place in our columns. With correspondence and classified advertising piling in on Tuesday and Wednesday, mails and telephones loaded to capacity, and our typesetting machines operating at a hot pace — news of last Friday's meetings, or weddings over two weeks old, are unwelcome grist to the mill at this hour of the weekly grind.

Like the dry-cleaner, and the town barber, we keep a year-round staff. No extra shifts to call in before the deadline; no spare equipment or operators to be pressed into service on unneedful demands. If you have news for your local paper, or advertising that clamors for immediate space — HAVE A HEART and send it in early!

The Strong and Silent

THE RASH of enlistments from these parts in Canada's "strong and silent" force, brings home the fact that there is still plenty for the RCMP to do. It's not all patrol duty on the Capital's historic stamping grounds, or escorting royalty and statesmen on tour. There is plenty of routine policing besides, that requires brain, brawn and diplomacy, and which calls less frequently for scarlet tunic and parade uniform.

The RCMP still has major headaches in fighting bootlegging and illicit drug traffic, and catching up with the man who won't pay taxes.

The RCMP is the federal police arm in all parts of Canada, the provincial police for all provinces except Ontario and Quebec, and the local police in 124 municipalities.

The force increased its ranks by 104 to 6,326 in the last fiscal year. Commissioner L. Nicholson has asked the government for a further increase to reinforce divisions during seasonal work peaks; this was not granted, but he is to re-submit his proposal later.

According to Commissioner Nicholson in his annual report for 1954-55, the volume of crime in Canada remains high, but indications are that it is no longer increasing greatly every year. The last five years "seems to indicate a levelling-off trend" in crime in Canada.

Home Talent

IN FEATURING "home talent" in the local paper, our readers may sometimes feel we have little to brag about. Among our contributions this week, however, is a cartoon by a member of our school teaching fraternity, which we submit (on this page) with satisfaction in its artistic merit and its editorial theme. We hope to present further efforts by Junius the cartoonist.

Reciprocal Business

SOME pithy comment on reciprocal trade reminds us (in The Printed Word) that business is largely a matter of common sense — a fact somewhat obscured by maudlin ideas and self-interested motives

Some people (it says) seem to think that all that is necessary to restore trade between Britain and Canada is for Canada to buy more from Britain. When it comes to a business deal, the British are about as much interested in Canadian welfare as Canadians are concerned with the Trobriand Islanders. Canada could buy all the output of British automobile, electrical and textile factories and still perhaps not sell one additional bushel of wheat or barrel of flour.

What seems not to be apparent to the department of trade and commerce or the ministry of agriculture or the Canadian wheat board is that the price of wheat is the governing factor. Canadians through sentiment and ineptitude (the two words are really synonymous) have priced themselves out of the wheat market. As long as the British can buy their wheat more cheaply or to better advantage in other ways in other markets, they don't care if wheat is running out of our ears on this side of the Atlantic.

For the last four years Canadian exports of wheat have declined. It appears that the crop in 1955 will be on the order of 500 million bushels, and at the end of June Canada had a carryover of perhaps 600 million bushels. How can we eat it or sell it? The wheat board is a very bad merchandiser. But it may not be the fault of the wheat board, which has been compelled for 15 years to fix political prices for wheat and not commonsense prices.

Your Remarkable Country

THERE ARE queer things afoot in Canada's northland. On the DEW-line, for instance — the latest northerly fringe of observation stations — technicians are utilizing ingenious modes of transportation, construction and detection, all speaking of man's most modern strides in progress.

But there are other queer things in Canada's northland. . .

Traces of what may well be the oldest known civilization in this northern hemisphere have been uncovered in the Yukon Territory, just 20 miles from the Arctic Ocean. The archaeological find, which produced tools and implements of four civilizations hitherto unknown in the Canadian north, was made by a party headed by Dr. Richard S. MacNeish, chief archaeologist with the National Museum of Canada.

The Hon. Jean Lesage, Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources, terms this "one of the most significant archaeological discoveries ever made in Canada."

The archaeological party uncovered traces of nine different civilizations. Four of the civilizations were not known to have existed in the Canadian north. One of them may well be the oldest so far discovered anywhere on the northern part of this continent.

Many of the 8,000 artifacts found at the site this summer are identical in design and concept to others which have been unearthed in eastern Siberia and other parts of eastern Asia, according to the Hon. Mr. Lesage. They would seem to give further substantial evidence that there was a considerable influx of people and ideas from eastern Asia to this continent, via the Bering Straits.

Dr. MacNeish relates how he and an Eskimo guide stumbled upon the find last year, almost by accident. A cursory examination of the site was enough to convince Dr. MacNeish that it would yield rich archaeological treasures.

No complete skeletons have been recovered, but a party headed by Dr. MacNeish will return to the site next year and it is hoped to uncover further tangible relics.

A Building Boom

RESIDENTIAL housing in Canada promises to set up an all-time record this year, according to the latest Bank of Montreal Business Review.

Housing units started in the first half of 1955 are estimated at 58,000; this is 25 per cent over the corresponding period of 1954, which was itself a record year of residential construction.

"On the basis of this performance," says the review, "it would not be surprising if housing 'starts' for the year as a whole were to reach or even exceed the unprecedented figure of 120,000."

The effect of the housing boom, involving the use of a wide range of products as well as a large labor force, is rated as "a prime stimulus to the Canadian economy".

Among other things, the erection of 120,000 residential units would probably require more than six million barrels of cement, 1,800 million board feet of lumber, over 20 million square feet of glass, nearly 20,000 tons of nails.

"Putting this in clearer perspective", says the bank, "housing requirements now absorb a quarter or more of Canadian production of each of these materials. Total employment, on site and off site, generated by the current housing program may be roughly estimated at something like 5½ per cent of the average employed working force".

A high rate of family formation coming on top of the backlog of residential requirements that accumulated during World War II, is seen as a major cause for the present housing demand.

"MY SAINTED AUNT"

Since time immemorial, members of my family have been actors. To my knowledge, none ever reached the so-called big time. There were never any names in lights and nobody was ever cited for his or her prowess in the pages of Variety. Nevertheless, all loved the stage and many illustrious members appeared from age to age before the footlights. True, the boards they trod were usually affixed to the floor of some poorly appointed parish hall. But that did not discourage any one of them.

Beyond all shadow of a doubt, the most famous of the family actors was my old Aunt Agnes, long-since departed out of this vale of tears. As far as I know, she made her debut upon the stage on the same night that she made her farewell. Quite understandably, she never recovered from the shock of that first night, and quit the boards forever at the final curtain.

The extravaganza she appeared in was a snappy little item called "Mr. Bones and his Dixieland Minstrels". It was organized, cast, directed and produced by the rector of the parish who sought, by means of the show, to bolster parochial morale and the coffers of the church. In the final analysis, it did both and, had it been possible to convince Agnes to repeat her stellar performance on succeeding nights, it might still be running to packed houses.

When the rector's call for volunteers went out, Agnes was one of the first to respond. She had always nurtured a secret passion to act in black-face. And, as she frankly admitted, the group needed her talent, charm and ability.

For some unaccountable reason, the show required the services of a prologue. And, for some other vague reason, Agnes was chosen to perform those duties. She was to stand in centre stage and, as the curtain rose above her, recite a short poetic speech of welcome. Somewhere in the background, the Dixieland company was to hum a few selections of Stephen Foster.

For the part, Aunt Agnes sported a coal-black face surmounted by a red bandana. Her blouse was canary yellow and her skirt was purple. On her legs she wore red-and-white striped stockings while under all this, she wore a bright green petticoat and a large pair of sky-blue bloomers.

"On stage, Miss Agnes", the stage manager whispered. "Ready backstage, everybody?"

The cast nodded their assent and Agnes took up her stand close to the curtain. The stage manager signalled the pianist and the dulcet strains of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" wafted through the hall.

"Curtain!" called the stage manager, and the brawny church caretaker heaved with all his might.

As the curtain rose, Agnes rose with it. Unfortunately, the poor dear had taken up her stand just a mite too close and went soaring skyward. Her screams were muffled by the guffaws from the audience, and the sexton, not paying particular attention to his job, kept on rolling along. And the audience who should have seen a dark mammy welcoming them to the show, saw only the roller on the curtain under which dangled a pair of red-and-white striped stockings topped by voluminous sky-blue bloomers.

In due course of time, the curtain and Agnes returned to earth once more. The audience eventually simmered down and the speech of welcome was delivered by the rector. For the remainder of the show, Agnes hid herself in the back row of the chorus and tried to recover her composure.

From that fateful evening until the day she died, she never again took part in any sort of theatricals. The stage, she avowed, was no place for a lady of refinement and, what was more, the people one met there were coarse and vulgar. Why, they wouldn't even give a person a civil answer to a civil question.

"Do you know", she told me shortly before she died, "I never did find out how high that confounded curtain went!"

Winnipeg (CP) — A record number of boats are harbored in Winnipeg and St. Boniface this year, "The increase in pleasure craft is due to the outboard motor," said A. N. Bingham, secretary-treasurer of the harbor commission.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

President Eisenhower is the much-revered leader of a great nation. Millions look up to him as a soldier and statesman, and as a man. They wish him complete recovery from his illness.

However, among the people of the free world who hold the president of the United States in high esteem, there are some who feel disturbed at the panic his heart seizure produced.

The attitude toward the president seems to rise above mere respect to something dangerously like worship.

Worship of a human being may be acceptable to the followers of Father Divine, but in a political sense it is a luxury that a nation cannot afford.

At the news of the president's illness, politicians began running around in circles.

The stock market fluttered like a mid-Victorian old maid, and fell into a swoon from which it could be revived only by frequent whiffs of smelling salts in the form of cheerful bulletins from the sick room.

This emotional response showed that a number of people in the United States — and other countries — were dependent to an unhealthy degree upon one man.

One reason for it is a system of government that concentrates enormous power and responsibility in one man's hands.

But here is another possible reason. Can it be that this age of insecurity has produced a kind of mass retreat toward childhood, so that people look up to a statesman as a strong universal father who does all their thinking for them?

If this is the case, grown-up children must naturally feel a sense of loss at the withdrawal of that guiding hand.

Circumstances are different in Canada. But we would be wise to fight against the feeling of dependence, and remind ourselves continually that leaders are only human, and can be replaced by others who are equally strong and efficient, if we have the sense to choose them.

MARAUDING DOGS

It used to be said . . . that a sheep-killing dog might just as well be put away, for he would never change. If that is correct, there need be no tears for town dogs that are alleged to have created havoc among sheep on a local farm recently. We don't know how valuable the dogs actually were but their performance proves they were of much less value than the animals killed.

The Dairy Cow

The farmer's best friend is his old Dairy Cow;
If he owes a debt, she will pay it somehow.
She grazes the roadside to eke out her life
And works without wages, the same as his wife.
Though Ayrshire or Holstein or Shorthorn her breed,
Hard work is her habit and thrift is her creed;
And if, when she comes home at night to the barn,
You praise her or blame her, she doesn't care a darn.
Get out the old milk-stool, sit down with a bump.
Grab hold of her handles and pumpty-pump.
She helps with the living and keeps us all fat,
The hired man, the baby, the pig and the cat;
And Dad takes the surplus to town, and by heck!
The milk plant gives him a wonderful Check.
And when she is ready to die of old age,
The butcher writes "Finis" at the end of her page;
Then back to our table she comes, I'll be bound,
In prime ribs or steaks that cost fifty per pound. . .

Feed her Purina Chow and she will do even better — and get your feeds from Pollock. He delivers. Order a supply today; you will be glad you did.

BIRTHS

TOMALTY — Born at Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, Oct. 15, 1955, 5.45 a.m., a daughter (Frances Violet) to Mr. and Mrs. James Tomalty, Brownsburg (née Ramona Farrara); sister to Debera Ann.

JACKSON — Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jackson of Essex, Ont. (née Marie Jacobsen, formerly of Lachute, Que.) are happy to announce the arrival of an 8 lb. 14 oz. daughter, Theresa Mary Ellen, sister for Karl and Kenneth. Both well.

IN MEMORIAM

BARKER — In loving memory of a dear father, Henry Barker, who passed away Oct 23, 1953 — Ever remembered by his family.

"God saw you getting weary
And did what He thought best.
He put His arms around you
And whispered, 'Come and rest'."

BARKER — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, Henry Barker, who passed away Oct. 23, 1953. — Always remembered by his grandchildren.

"Not just today, but every day,
In silence we remember."

KELLY — In loving memory of our daughter and sister, Minnie, who died five years ago, Oct. 21, 1950. —Always remembered by Dad, Mother, brothers and sister.

"You left behind broken hearts
That loved you so sincere
And tear-dimmed eyes that still are wet
As it dawns five lonely years.
Time does not heal a wound so deep,
It merely eases pain,
And we'll remember you, dear Min,
Until we meet again."

KELLY — In loving memory of our dear mother, Minnie, who passed away Oct. 21, 1950. — Always loved by her son, Donald, daughter-in-law, Ella, and granddaughters, Linda and Donna.

"The beautiful memory you left behind
Lingers forever in our mind,
Though God has taken you away,
You are with us each and every day."

KELLY — In loving memory of our dear mother (Minnie), who passed away Oct 21, 1950. — Always remembered by her daughter, Euphemia, and sons, Harry and Jonathon.

"So many things have happened
Since you were called away,
Things you would have enjoyed,
Had you been left to stay.
So many things to share with you
In just the usual way;
Things could be so much nicer,
If you were here today."

KELLY — In loving memory of our dear mother (Minnie), who passed away Oct. 21, 1950. — Sadly missed by her daughter, Lorna, son-in-law, Gordon, and granddaughter, Joan.

"Please God, forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish our Mum was here;
There are others, yes we know,
But she was ours and we loved her so.
Dear God, take a message
To dear Mum in heaven above,
Tell her how much we miss her,
And give her all our love."

TAYLOR — In loving memory of a dear father, Robert Taylor, who was taken away two years ago, Oct. 19, 1953. — Ever remembered by Bob, Florence and family.

TAYLOR — In loving memory of our dear dad and grandfather, Robert Taylor, who was killed on Oct. 19, 1953. — Inserted by Jessie, Stanley, Michael and Douglas.

"We did not know what pain you bore,
We did not see you die,
We only know you passed away
And never said Goodbye."

MINDEN PLAYS HOST TO MERVIN THE MOOSE

Mervin, the first moose to meander into Minden, Ont., has been acting more like a mouse than a moose, when you consider that it's only a couple of weeks from the mating season, a time when all male mooses tend toward a slight irritability (characterized by driving their horns through anything that moves). Wandering at will through town, Merv has completely captivated the crowds that gather. According to them, he is the biggest thing to hit Minden since autumn was invented.

Health Minister Martin Selected to Receive Brotherhood Award

—Central Press Canadian

The Canadian Council of Christians and Jews has announced that Hon. Paul Martin, above, minister of national health, O. B. Roger, and Joseph Jeffrey, are the recipients of 1955 Brotherhood awards. Each year the council honors three Canadians who have made an outstanding contribution to human relations in Canada with Brotherhood awards. Mr. Martin, who represents Canada at the United Nations, has taken an active part in the work of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, and is a member of its board of directors. Mr. Roger, a vice-president of an oil company, and Mr. Jeffrey, insurance company president, are also actively engaged in council work.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. MacCabe of Rivington, Que., were honored at a banquet on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, in Harrington Orange Hall on Monday, October 10.

The ladies of the district, as conveners of the event, had the hall beautifully decorated with fall flowers and the tables artistically arranged in white and gold, accommodating more than 100 relatives and friends.

The Rev. Mr. Toller, pastor of the Baptist Church at Rivington (of which Mr. and Mrs. MacCabe are devoted members) asked the blessing and Mr. Harold Brannan proposed the toast to the "bride and groom", and also made a presentation of a beautiful floor lamp and a sum of money from those present. Mr. Brannan's remarks were responded to by Mr. Hugh MacCabe on behalf of his parents and family.

Mr. and Mrs. MacCabe were married in Montreal by the Rev. Dr. Gordon, and are still enjoying excellent health and residing on the farm which they occupied at the time of their marriage. They have four sons, Stanley, of Montreal, Richard, of Toronto, Hugh, of Smith Falls, and Donald, at home, also three grandchildren.

Friends and relatives from a distance included: Mrs. Mary Brooks of Montreal, the only guest present who had attended the wedding 50 years ago, her daughter Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. Mitchell, Miss Dorothy Balmfirth, Miss Frances Balmfirth, Miss Mary Stewart, Miss Stella MacVicar, Mrs. G. Heazel, Mrs. Eric Hamilton and Miss Mary Bennett, all of Montreal; Mrs. Sarah Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Diamond, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh MacCabe and son Ronnie, of Smith Falls; Mr. and Mrs. J. Cooke and family, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. J. Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. MacVicar, Mr. Harold MacVicar, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Brannan, Mr. Percy MacLeod, Miss Dora Trineer, of Calumet.

Recent Marriage At Dalesville, Que.

Gay - Morrow

The marriage of Miss Ada Margaret Morrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Morrow, of Dalesville, to Mr. Donald Gay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gay, of Buckingham, Que., took place recently in the Dalesville Baptist Church. The Rev. Donald C. Merrett officiated, assisted by the Rev. D. Lambie of Buckingham. The church was decorated with gladioli and ferns.

Mr. Russell Hisey, of Calgary, brother-in-law of the groom, acted as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Reg Morrow and Wilfred Pearson.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of nylon lace over taffeta, with front panel of tulle and lace bolero, and shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion held by a tulle bandeau with sequins. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of red roses and maiden-hair fern.

Mrs. Keith Morrison, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Mary Kennedy as bridesmaid, wore frocks of nylon lace over taffeta with lace boleros and bouffant skirts of tulle — the matron of honor in aqua and the bridesmaid in shrimp. They wore bandeaus to match their frocks, and carried semi-cascade bouquets of yellow pompoms.

During the signing of the register, Miss Hazel Gay sang "O Perfect Love". Mrs. Russell Hisey, of Calgary, played the wedding music.

The bride's mother wore a bolero dress of dusty rose crepe, with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother wore a navy crepe dress, with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

A reception followed in the church hall, where some 80 guests were present. Many out-of-town friends and relatives were in attendance.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Gay left for a motor trip through the United States — the bride travelling in a suit of charcoal grey with hat of aqua velour and black shoes and bag, and a corsage of pink roses.

On their return they took up residence in Buckingham, Que.

Anniversary Celebrated At St. Sauveur

Morin Heights — The anniversary dinner held Friday evening at Nymark's Lodge in St. Sauveur met with great response from the people of the community, marking the fourth year since the Anglican Church was dedicated in that centre, and five years since the Rev. Horace G. Baugh came from Grand Manan, N.B., to become rector of the parish.

Guests of honor included the Ven. Archdeacon J. F. Morris and Mrs Morris, Mayor Bastien of St. Sauveur, and Mrs. Bastien, Cmdr. N. Bannantyne, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dudene, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ryan.

A toast to the Church was proposed by Dr. V. Henry Jekyll, D.D.S., L.D.S., R.C.S., who referred to the tremendous growth of the parish within recent years.

Archdeacon Morris congratulated the congregation on the repayment of a $2,000 loan which had been secured when the church was nearing completion.

Mayor Bastien spoke of the relations existing between the two great races of the country.

The rector, in thanking the 200 persons present for their loyal support, mentioned various improvements that would shortly be added to the Church of St. Francis. . . Proceeds from the dinner were for the Church Hall fund.

Guest Preacher in Vacant Pulpit

The Rev. John D. MacKay, presently minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Summerside, P.E.I., will be guest preacher at the Margaret Rodger Presbyterian Church this Sunday.

The Rev. MacKay, who is preaching for a call, is a graduate of Acadia University and of the Presbyterian College. He is a native of Nova Scotia and is highly regarded; he has spent the past seven years in Prince Edward Island.

The Rev. MacKay is the first minister preaching for a call at the Presbyterian Church here since retirement of the Rev. Dr. W. Harold Reid.

W. A. Deanery Meeting Held at Weir, Que.

The 32nd Deanery meeting of St. Andrews Woman's Auxiliary was held at the Church of the Redeemer in Weir last Thursday, with service at 11 a.m. conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon J. F. Morris as celebrant, assisted by Rural Dean the Rev. C. W. P. Baugh, of Lakefield, and the Rev. P. R. Stote, of Grenville.

After the service the clergy and members proceeded to Round Lake Inn, where dinner was served by the W.A. members of the four churches in that parish.

The afternoon session was also held at Round Lake Inn. Archdeacon Morris gave the opening prayer and Mrs. Wilfred Morrison, president of the Weir W.A., welcomed all attending the meeting. Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh was acting Deanery secretary for Mrs. W. Sherritt, who is recuperating after an operation. Mrs. G. Foster spoke briefly on the work of the W.A., and introduced Mrs. J. F. Morris, who gave a review on the four books, "They Reach for Life", "Hope Rises from the Land", "September Monkey", and "A Bargain with God". . . This talk was much enjoyed by all present.

There were 12 officers in attendance, and Mrs. G. Foster introduced each one, who spoke briefly on her special work.

An invitation was accepted from Rawdon to hold the Deanery meeting there next year.

Mrs. Foster conducted a short memorial tribute to members who had passed to "higher service", since the last meeting, namely Mrs. A. E. Mount, Lakefield, Mrs. E. Castle, Brownsburg, and Mrs. Ray Dawson, Grenville.

The secretary was asked to send letters from this meeting to Mrs. W. Sherritt, Mrs. T. McCambly, Mrs. Walter Scott and Mrs. W. Walsh, past Deanery secretary, who were all unable to be present owing to illness.

The offering, amounting to $52.68, was designated as follows:
$20 to "Sunday School by Radio",
$20 to Blind Children of Korea,
$12.68 to Administration Fund.

Mrs. Dorey, Deanery secretary, thanked the ladies of Weir for their hospitality. Mrs. W. Morrison thanked all for their support in making this such an interesting day. The ladies were served refreshments before leaving for home, and the closing prayer was given by the Rev. P. R. Stote.

Popular Couple Pledged Vows At Hawkesbury

Carrière - MacGregor

A pretty wedding ceremony took place in the St. Alphonse de Liguori Church, Hawkesbury, Ont., on Monday, October 10, at 10 a.m., when Miss Madeleen MacGregor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence MacGregor of Hawkesbury, became the bride of Mr. Omer Carrière, son of the late Mr. Louis Carrière and Mrs. Alice Carrière, of Brownsburg. The marriage was solemnized by the Rev. Father Arsene Hebert, of the Ottawa Cathedral, one of the groom's former professors.

The bride wore a champagne lace dress over satin with pearl-studded scooped neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt over hooped petticoat, three-quarter length sleeves with matching mitts. Her headdress was a pillbox hat of satin with lace and tulle veil of the same shade. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Her attendant, Miss Katheleen MacGregor, the bride's sister, wore a moss green dress with matching headdress, and carried a bouquet of yellow mums.

Mr. Pat Carrière was best man, while the witness was Mr. Royal Carrière, both brothers of the groom. The ushers were Mr. Edgar MacGregor and Mr. Raymond Carrière, brothers of the bridal pair. The soloists were Mrs. E. Polniki and Mr. Dubois.

The reception was held at the Long Sault Inn, Grenville, with 139 guests present. Bob and Ronald Maranda and Emmett Lowe entertained the guests with music.

For going away the bride wore a brown suit with blue hat and brown accessories and fur jacket. The couple left on their wedding trip for Washington, D.C.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Leo McCoy, Mr. W. McCoy and Mrs. N. Upton, all of Sudbury, Ont.; Mrs. J. Dunnigan and her son, of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Larocque, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Miss T. McCoy of Dearborn, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. L. McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. A. Burke, Mrs. L. Murphy, Mrs. M. Perego and Mr. R. Maranda, all of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. A. McCoy and sons, Emmett and Rupert, of Thurso; Miss L. St. Denis, of Montebello; Mr. H. Maranda, Mr. and Mrs. Chester MacGregor, of Sturgeon Falls, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Hubert MacGregor, Mr. R. Maranda, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. G. Demers, of Longueuil; Mr. and Mrs. L. Butler, of Renfrew; and Mrs. R. Butler, of Caledonia.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

What were the names of the four disciples who came to Jesus, privately, as he sat on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, and asked him: "What will the sign be when these things are all to be accomplished? When will this be?"

Jesus said this of the exact time of the end of the world: "Of that day or that hour no one knows, not even the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father."

Then He added this warning, "Take heed that no one leads you astray. Many will come in my name, saying, 'I am he!' If any one says to you, 'Look, here is the Christ!' or 'Look, there He is!' do not believe. False Christs and false prophets will arise and show signs and wonders, to lead astray, if possible, the elect.

"Do not be alarmed when you hear of wars and rumors of wars. This must take place. But the end is not. For nation will rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom. There will be earthquakes in various places and also famines. This is but the beginning of men's sufferings.

"For in those days there will be such tribulation as has not been from the beginning of the Creation. Pray that it may not happen in the winter! Alas for those who are with child or nursing a baby! When you see the desolation, let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains. Let him who is on the housetop not go in nor enter into his house to take anything away. Let him who is in the field not turn back to take his mantle.

"In those days, after that tribulation the sun will be darkened, the moon will not give its light, and the stars will be falling from heaven. Then you will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory. Then he will send out angels, and gather his elect from the four winds, from the ends of the earth to the ends of heaven.

"Take heed, watch; for you know not when the time will come. It is like a man going on a journey. When he leaves home, he puts his servants in charge; each with his own work. To the doorkeeper he commands, "Be on the watch!" You do not know when the Master of the House will come, in the evening, or at midnight, or at cockcrow or in the morning. Watch! lest He come suddenly and find you asleep. Watch!"

You will find the names of these four disciples and this story in the thirteenth Chapter of Mark.

Hope for the Dead

For a scripture study this week get the Booklet, "Hope for the Dead" and the survivors in a righteous new world. Price 10 cts.

"HOPE, the fondest ever entertained by righteous men is about to be fulfilled. Today, in the time of war and calamity, the vain hopes of selfish men are being blasted, but the true hope built upon an immovable foundation stands unshaken and sure now of early realization. It is an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast, during these wild days of swiftly-shifting conditions, and those having knowledge thereof are rejoicing in hope, though the world mourns.

"That lovers of righteousness may learn the true hope and need not sorrow as others who have no hope, this booklet is sent forth."

Mrs. Albert Shepherd, accompanied by Miss Lillie Robinson of Montreal, spent Thanksgiving week with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Scott and family in Georgetown, Ont. During their stay, they visited Niagara Falls, Toronto and Guelph, and called on Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Arnott in Langstaff, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Graves are presently on a vacation, having left last week for Virginia Beach.

Mr. Frank Boyd is spending several weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Boyd, following a recent illness.

Mr. Albert B. Ogilvie was admitted to the Royal Victoria Hospital on Tuesday afternoon and is presently under medical observation.

Mr. George Deacon, Jr., is home from the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, following a recent operation.

"Apple Day" Effort

The "Apple Day" held last Saturday by the 1st Lachute Wolf Cub Pack met with an encouraging response from the local public. Proceeds of the venture, to be devoted to the Cub funds, amounted to $80.75.

On behalf of the boys, Cubmaster Wm. Brown wishes to acknowledge the generosity of all who supported this effort.

Mr. and Mrs. A. McDonnell and sons, Alexander and Duncan, of Marchwell, Sask., and Mr. Angus Hay, of Montreal, were visiting last week with Mr. and Mrs. M. G. McCaskill.

Sandy McGibbon, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert McGibbon, has commenced training with the RCMP in Rockcliff, Ont.

Appointment

Dr. John C. MacKimmie has recently been elected a member of the Canadian Society of Anaesthetists.

Wed in Ontario, Reception Held By Friends Here

Turney - Cuming

The marriage of Anna Marie, daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. H. Cuming, of Orangeville, to Mr. Albert Turney, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. Turney, of Dalesville, took place Saturday, October 8, at 3 p.m. in the Orangeville Baptist Church. The ceremony was performed by the minister, the Rev. N. Crocker. The church was decorated with yellow and gold mums for the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white ballerina-length gown with a slim fitting top of lace over satin, and Peter Pan collar, a full skirt of net over satin with panels of lace, and a long-sleeved jacket. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white mums.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Wm. Freeland, wore a gown of light pink with full ballerina-length skirt with crinoline, and a round neckline in crystalette. She carried a bouquet of blue mums.

Miss Caroline Cuming, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of light blue similar to that of the matron of honor. She carried a bouquet of pink mums.

Mr. George Jackson, of Lachute, acted as best man for the groom. William Cuming, brother of the bride, and Harry Dean were the ushers.

Mr. Donald Ferguson played the wedding music and was accompanist for Mr. Willis McNeely, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "I'll Walk Beside You".

Following a reception held at Woodside Lodge, near Orangeville, the bride and groom left on a trip to Huntsville and points in Northern Ontario, the bride travelling in a blue nylon princess-line dress with blue shorty coat, red accessories and a corsage of red roses. They will reside in Dundas, Ont.

A reception for the couple was held at the Louisa Orange Hall on Friday, October 14, at which many friends gathered to wish them well.

Those attending the wedding from this district were Misses Eva and Lucille Turney, sisters of the groom, Miss Joyce Gunn, neice of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson and daughter, Linda.

Acknowledgment

The undersigned takes occasion to thank Lake Louisa residents and firefighters for quelling the brushfire which would otherwise have burned his cottage last Friday.

— Milton McFaul, Lachute.

Brownsburg Red Cross Voices Appreciation

The Brownsburg Branch of the Red Cross would like to put on record their appreciation and thanks due to the many people who worked so hard on the recent Blood Clinic. No less worthy of thanks are the many local and Lachute merchants whose donations of goods made the clinic such a big success.

Falling Leaves

By Ethel Kettyle

Tiny shadows pass our windows,
As colored leaves drift gently down,
Spreading o'er the earth a carpet
Of golden yellow, red and brown.

There they lie in brightest splendor,
Covering all the dying grass,
Soon they will wither and decay,
Their day of glory will have passed. . .

Can we liken leaves to people
Who in their youth are brave and strong
Living, loving, gay and happy,
With always on their lips a song?

Finally they will cross the threshold,
Of each and every joyous day.
They, like drifting leaves in autumn,
Will near the end of life's bright way.

Could we now each day be thankful,
For all the things that we receive?
After rain will come the sunshine,
Like beauty of the first bright leaves.

Observer 'Wings' To Be Presented To Local Corps

Ground Observer Corps "wings" will be awarded to most local members of the organization at a December meeting of this group, according to Lucien Hamel, recently appointed Chief Observer for the district. Announcement of the latter's promotion, as well as that of Carl Demerse, who is now Regional Supervisor, was made at a meeting of the Corps officers on Monday evening.

Assistant to Mr. Hamel is Bernard Jenkins, while Thos. Smith has been appointed Assistant Regional Supervisor.

Posts at Brownsburg, Pine Hill, Lost River, Arundel, Hawkesbury, Carillon and Grece's Point are being opened up, with several more district affiliations probable.

It was mentioned by Mr. Demerse that three radio transmitters from balloons had been turned in to him. He also informed those gathered that the local unit of the Corps was the first to report the U.S. weather-observation balloon after it had recently crossed the Great Lakes.

In connection with the December meeting, Mr. Demerse mentioned that a number of high-ranking RCAF officials would be in attendance for the wings presentations.

Bring Arctic Fish To Southerly Lakes In Prairies

Prince Albert, Sask. (CP)—Arctic grayling eggs have been planted 450 miles south of the home waters of the game fish.

In the past summer 1,700,000 grayling fry were flown from Black lake for deposit in other Saskatchewan waters, says G. E. Couldwell, Saskatchewan fisheries director.

"The Arctic grayling is highly valued as a game fish," he says "and for this reason the fisheries branch of the department of natural resources has been planting fry in waters of similar condition.

"The grayling inhabit cold, swift streams, such as are found in the Lac la Rouge area."

Of the total, 70,000 grayling fry were stocked in Beaver Lake near Flin Flon; 40,000 in White Fish Lake; 70,000 in Black Bear Island Lake about 30 miles north of Lac la Ronge, and the remainder at Lac la Ronge.

PERMANENT TRAILERS

Sudbury, Ont. (CP) — Several trailer owners in McKim township found a way to circumvent the trailer bylaw by removing their trailer wheels. The bylaw says no "mobile" home shall remain in the township more than 60 days.

The city of Sydney, N.S., is seven feet above sea-level, while Kimberley, B.C. is 3,661 feet above sea-level.

RAIN-MAKERS

Campbell River, B.C. (CP) — There are indications that rain-making in the Cambell River watersheds met with some unestimated degree of success, say British Columbia Power officials. Clouds were seeded with silver-iodide crystals.

Sports, Juvenile and School Activities

United Bowling League Starts Monday Evening

The semi-annual meeting of Lachute United Church Bowling League was held Tuesday evening, with Merlyn Evans in the chair and Miss G. Davies recording the minutes.

Twelve teams are again in the league, and four new skips will take on the responsibilities this year. Changes in the rules were made, and the rules committee (composed of Miss Grace Rosser Messrs. Douglas Smith and Stan Boyd) have prepared the official regulations to be observed.

The teams are as follows:

Y.W.A. (Mrs. L. Dion, skip)
Red Cross (Mrs. F. McGill)
W.M.S. Blues (Mrs. H. Riddell)
W.M.S. Reds (Miss G. Rosser)
St. Andrew's (Foster Campbell)
S.S. Teachers (Miss M. Gordon)
Thistles (J. F. Gorman)
East Settlement (Les Gordon)
Lachute Road (Mrs. E. Barker)
St. George's (Wm. Wilson)
St. David's (Merlyn Evans)
All Stars (Mrs. Milton McFaul)

The schedule will commence next Monday evening with the line-ups as follows:

7.15 p.m. —
St. George's vs. Y.W.A.
W.M.S. Reds vs. St. Andrew's
All Stars vs. Lachute Road

8.15 p.m. —
Red Cross vs. W.M.S. Blues
St. David's vs S.S. Teachers
Thistles vs. East Settlement.

A meeting has been called, by Jim Duncan of the Mixed Commercial League, of all team captains or their representatives, and league directors, at the Lachute Tourist Inn on Thursday, October 27, at 7.30 p.m.

Paul Sauvé came close to knocking Jim Duncan off the men's high single perch when he rolled a 201 single in the Mixed League last week. His 450 triple, though, was well short of Duncan's impressive triple of 543 rolled a few weeks ago.

Hilda Carrière with a single of 142, and Marlene Murdoch's triple of 369, were high for the women last week.

Gil Brunette of Bolodrome rolled a 230 single Monday night in the Commercial League. This is tops in any league competition this year.

(Statistics as issued by both the Mixed and Commercial Leagues, received late for publication, will be given next week.)

Lachute High School Sports and Activities

By Eileen Dwyer

During the past few weeks, the High School pupils have been organizing the current Students' and Red Cross Councils.

Red Cross

On Friday afternoon the executives for the Red Cross Council were elected. The president was Patricia Stansfield. Vice-president and secretary were Heather MacTavish and Beverley Hadley, respectively. The treasurer is Shirley MacGeorge.

Projects are to be started as soon as possible, and proceeds are to be sent to headquarters in the city.

The Grade 7 members have started an afghan, which will be sewn together by Household Science students in that grade.

Students' Council

This group has commenced activities, with the election of members and executives. The "Tuck Shop" has also been reopened. Officers for this year's Council are as follows: President, Beverley MacDonald; vice-president, Bobby Campbell; secretary, Jean Taylor, treasurer, Malcolm Cairns; in charge of Social Committee, Joyce Davis; Athletic Committee, Malcolm Cairns.

A Hallowe'en dance will be held in the school auditorium on Friday, October 28, beginning at 9 p.m.; admission is 35c with costume, and 75c without. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

Hobby Club

Under the leadership of Mr. K. Dixon, Industrial Arts instructor, a Hobby Club has been organized for lunch pupils of Grades 7 to 11. The members will learn woodworking. Present projects include a tray, model airplanes, and a footstool.

Basketball

Basketball has been reorganized, with Mr. R. Bailly as coach of both girls' teams, and Mr. A. Petersen coaching the boys. The teams have not yet been selected, but candidates have been practising hard.

Sports and Recreation At Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The sports season in Brownsburg is really mixed up. While we're still whooping it up over our baseball team's victory, the skating season opened on us — and sports fans don't know whether they're coming or going.

The skating season has started off with a bang. The season-ticket sales are going at a brisk rate, and the ice is very well populated at all sessions. Of course, hockey in October is no longer a dream but a reality. It is only now, for the first time, that we realize just how fortunate we are, having an artificial ice-pad right in our own backyard.

The wind-up of the baseball season is shaping up as though it, too, will be very well patronized. The victory dance is scheduled for the Flamingo Hotel on Friday night, and the tickets are being snapped up.

In the less energetic entertainment field, the Social Club will run the first turkey bingo of the season next Friday, October 28, at the Social Club.

Red Wing Stars Cool Off

Nice Haul — 220-lb. Buck

Three local hunters, Daniel Chenier, Paul-Emile Richer and Maurice Champagne, Jr., were heading for home after an unsuccessful day's hunt when they spotted this 220-pound buck. The kill was made near Montpellier, in a district known as the "Bay of Bears".

BOOKS, SHOWS ANDENTERTAINMENT

Citizens' Forum — Heard and Seen

After 12 years as a successful radio program, "Citizens' Forum" can now be seen on television as well. This should mean a greatly increased regular audience if we can judge from the experience in Montreal of "Les idées en marche". the French-language sister program of the Forum. When "Les idées en marche" was on radio only it reached approximately 11,000 households; when the program was carried on both radio and TV the audience increased over 1,000 per cent.

The 1955-56 "Citizens' Forum" will retain the basic qualities which have made it an important program in the past. Some modifications were necessary to adapt the program to television, but these are considered of minor importance in comparison with the advantages expected by using both TV and radio.

One of the compromises necessary was the reduction of time. On radio the program used to last 45 minutes. This year both TV and radio programs will be 30 minutes in length. This may, of course, mean an improvement in the radio program.

"Citizens' Forum" opens next week with the first of four discussions of social problems. The topic is "Can Prisons Reform Criminals?" TV stations of the connected network will carry this program on October 25, from 10-10.30 p.m.; for the others across the country (present indications are that nearly every privately-owned TV station is eager to carry the show) it will be available on film one week or two weeks later. On the radio CBC Trans-Canada will carry the audio side of the telecast (by transcription) on October 27, from 8-8.30 p.m.

This pattern of relays will be continued throughout the season. On November 1, 8, and 15 there will be discussions of questions relating to unemployment, education and religion. Then on November 22 (following the plan which has become traditional to Citizens' Forums there will be an "In the News" discussion on a question of strictly topical importance.

After that, continuing until Christmas, there will be discussions on questions of government legislation in different areas of controversy; subsidies for the arts, lotteries and health services; and a religious forum.

Book Review —

"The Four Rivers Of Paradise"

Historical Novel by A Recent Visiter to Argenteuil County

Humanity today is like a man walking an unknown road in a dense fog, unable to see in any direction. History alone disperses the mist behind us and gives an idea what sort of road we are on. This is a good reason for the present demand for historical novels.

The Four Rivers of Paradise (Macmillan, New York, 1955; 246 pages; $3.50) is the most recent of five Catholic historical novels by Helen C. White. A story of the fall of the Roman Empire, it is rich in significance and repays more than one reading.

The first section, perhaps overcondensed, demands close attention. If the reader has time to review some chapters of his Roman history in advance, he will have the thrill of rediscovering in the persons of the novel many who had an actual part in stupendous events. Even the exciting scene in the arena, when a heroic monk intervenes in a fight of the gladiators, finds mention in secular history.

Brilliant descriptions take us to forum, banquet hall, catacombs, baths, gardens, workshops, and many a stately Roman interior.

What gives the book its greatest value is that it is highly relevant to our own age. Hilary of Bordeaux, through whose eyes we watch the course of events, faces, as we do, a moment in history when a whole human world seems threatened with destruction.

Among the most vivid scenes are those in Palestine: "the guest hostel just above the highway", "the little guest refectory with its white-washed walls and its bare oaken roof beams, and its long board table and benches", the cell of the learned St. Jerome "hewn out of the living rock. At first sight it seemed completely filled with book-shelves and cupboards and tables heaped high with manuscripts, and ink pots and reed pens, and all the tools of literature". To Palestine come multitudes of refugees, and through them we learn the terrible details of the fall of the city of Rome.

From Palestine Hilary goes to Africa on a mission to St. Augustine.

"'The empires come and go,'" but Augustine refuses to see disaster as final. The Church must have the courage to seek the conversion of the barbarians themselves. . . . "'The cities of this world always fall, even Rome, but there is another city that does not fall. It is the city of God.'"

"The light was fading in the small, low-ceilinged room, but the face of Augustine seemed to have its own light from within. He turned now to Hilary. 'Not Rome but that city you will take to your barbarians, my son, and that is what I shall write my book about, 'The City of God.'"

Miss White, serving on official missions in Europe, has witnessed with her own eyes the spectacle of ruined cities and hordes of displaced persons and the passionate struggle to conserve a precious remnant of the ancient values. She is writing out of her own wide observation of human bafflement and pain; and this last novel, like her others, points to the one way out — the timeless way of the Christian religion.

Miss White, a few years ago, received the Pope's medal, awarded annually in the United States for distinguished work on the part of a Catholic layman. She is professor of English at the University of Wiscousin, has served with UNESCO, has been national president of the American Association of University Women, and has held many other important offices. Three times she has visited Argenteuil, once in April of this year, and we look forward to her coming again.

Al Jolson
May 26, 1883 — Oct. 23, 1950

Sunday, October 23, will mark the fifth anniversary of the death of The World's Greatest Entertainer, Al Jolson. In commemoration we have written to a number of radio programs requesting Jolie tributes on October 21, 22, 23 and 25. Also, we present herewith extracts from an article which appeared in "The Jolson Journal" shortly after Al's death.

"The Final Curtain"
By Dave Wigransky

It was the evening of October 23, 1950: an evening steeped in tragedy, later to be remembered with sadness for the death of Al Jolson. At the time, though, no one had the slightest inkling of the impending tragedy, least of all Al himself. He was playing cards in a San Francisco hotel, with Harry Akst and Morton Fried, friends and business associates who had collaborated with him in the writing of many of his greatest story hits.

Complaining of indigestion, Al retired to the adjoining room. Not realizing it was a heart attack, he thought it would soon pass. It always had before. . . . But as he was propped up in bed later, he may have been thinking . . .

From far away . . . he may have heard a curtain call. Familiar and yet not familiar, one of the old numbers — "Swanee" or "Avalon"' — played in a minor key on a trumpet — played by Gabriel. He may have sensed that this was the final curtain call. It may have been more to himself than to Akst that he said:

"Harry, I'm not going to last."

The music was lost in the sound of an opening door. It was the hotel nurse. In the next room, Fried was working on material for the guest appearance with Crosby which Al had come to San Francisco to record. He hadn't sung on the radio in several months. On his last appearance before that fateful trip to Korea — filling-in for Walter Winchell, then on vacation — he had only talked and played several of his latest records. The hub-hub of that hotel room little penetrated his thoughts. Might they have been of the records he would never make?

At 10 p.m., two doctors entered — the house physician and a heart specialist. Momentarily aroused, he conferred with them. But there were other voices, too. Voices that Al alone could hear, accompanied by strange shapes that Al alone could see.

He may have seen his mother, smiling as he had seen her smile so long ago. His love for her had gone into every Mammy song he ever sang, although she died when he was barely 10 years old. After that, he had run wild for a time, getting into street fights with a little colored kid who was later to become as great a dancer as Al was to become a singer. Bill "Bojargles" Robinson had passed away, alone and forgotten, two short years ago.

Now he was speaking again to Al, as he lay there in that hotel room: "The curtain call, Al. Didn't you hear it? They want to hear you sing!"

There were other voices joining in now. There was Harry Lauder, the great Scotch singing-comedian who had passed on a few short months before. There was George M. Cohan, one of the most versatile entertainers in history, dead since 1942. There was the great Bert Williams, the immortal Negro comedian who had died, in 1922, at the height of his fame. There was Enrico Caruso, asking Al to join him in a duet. But Al couldn't. He was still alive. He could only talk to them with his eyes, and listen as they spoke in return.

"Al, hurry! You'll be late. You never missed a show before. This is the biggest show of all!"

"I don't wanna go," he cried out in silence. "There's so much I haven't done yet. There's television . . . lots of ideas for great new movies . . . got a guest shot on with Bing for next week! Let me stay jus' a little longer". . .

Al was thinking. He'd be leaving a lot behind, but he'd be in mighty good company. There were a lot of friends he'd like to say hello to again.

"There's a big audience up here, Al — a choir of angels ready to back you up — and the celestial auditorium is packed full. . . . The great musicians, artists, statesmen, scientists, and all the little people of history are waiting — for YOU!"

Al spoke again, but this time he spoke aloud. "I must be an important guy —"

The heart specialist spoke, bringing Al back for a moment to the world around him. "Of course you are, Mr. Jolson."

Dramatic Show for UN 10th Anniversary

The tenth anniversary of the United Nations is the occasion for "The Charter in the Saucer," a realistic radio fantasy by Norman Corwin, produced by the BBC in association with UN radio, with music composed and conducted by Walter Goehr. The narrator is Sir Laurence Olivier. The show will be heard from 9 to 10 p.m. on Monday, October 24, on CBC Trans-Canada . . . On Thursday at 9 p.m. Trans-Canada will present a background show for the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Geneva. Various speakers will go over the agenda discussing German reunification, disarmament and the question of cultural exchange between Russia and the West.

The UN anniversary will also be noted in two talks by Ken McNaught of Winnipeg on "Canada the U.S. and the UN", at 10.20 p.m. Monday and Tuesday. He will deal with Canadian and American views towards the United Nations and will review the basic foreign policies of both countries. On Trans-Canada Matinee Monady afternoon, Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside will broadcast another talk about the UN.

A forecast of future developments in Canada, covering politics, economics, cultural affairs, sports and the weather, will be presented on a special CBC-TV public affairs feature at 6 p.m. next Sunday. Authorities in each of these fields will participate in this show, preceding by a week the opening of a new "Exploring Minds" series.

Fall Change-Over

Well, it looks like CBC Television's easy emcee Dick MacDougal is going to have to go a bit more formal now that fall is here. During the summer, when "Pick the Stars" was an informal show, MacDougal took advantage of it by wearing some pretty casual clothes; now that the show is back to its regular format, Marsha Spiegal is on hand with a suit for MacDougal to wear as the second talent-hunt season gets under way.

Apple A Day

An apple holds the wealth of all four seasons — the freshness of spring, the fragrance of summer, the colors of autumn and the crisp whiteness of winter. Eating apples in any form is always a pleasure. Undoubtedly the apple is able to fill more roles than any other fruit and when combined with other foods they seem like several different fruits. Here are some suggestions from the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, for serving apples in one form or another every day during the month of November.

No. 1 — There is nothing as good and juicy as a crisp, white fleshed apple for an in-between-meal snack and it is so easy to slip one into the lunch box.

Nov. 2 — For dessert why not a deep-dish apple pie with no bottom crust and lots and lots of apples.

Nov. 3 — Serving lamb today? Then flavor applesauce with mint and tint it light green to serve with it.

Nov. 4 — Apple rings sautéed until lightly brown and tender are delicious when served on top of grilled pork chops.

Nov. 5 — Today a favorite dessert — baked apples filled with mincemeat, or brown sugar dotted lavishly with butter and sprinkled with cinnamon. Delicious served hot or cold with heavy cream.

Nov. 6 — For a special Sunday breakfast, top pancakes, French toast or waffles with a sweetened applesauce, spiced or unspiced.

Nov. 7 — Chilled apple wedges served with various types of cheese will make an attractive and tasty snack or a dessert for that matter.

Nov. 8 — For a tempting appetizer add cubes of unpeeled red apples to the family's favorite fruit cup.

Nov. 9 — What could be better than an apple salad? A particularly delicious one is made with finely shredded crisp cabbage, chopped unpeeled red apples and whole seedless raisins, tossed lightly together with salad dressing and served in lettuce or cabbage cups.

Nov. 10 — To pep up steamed fruit pudding or hot gingerbread serve with this delicious Apple Butterscotch Sauce — simply melt a quarter of a cup of butter and blend in three-quarters of a cup of brown sugar, three tablespoons of cornstarch and a pinch of salt. Cook until the mixture is slightly browned, then add one cup of apple juice and one cup of water. Cook, stirring constantly until the sauce thickens — about five minutes.

Nov. 11 — Team apples with other colorful fruits or vegetables to make an attractive and at the same time edible table centrepiece.

Nov. 12 — For the children's party, besides having them bob for apples send each one home with a bright red candied apple.

Nov. 13 — Today why not serve some apple jelly, apple marmalade or apple butter with toast for breakfast.

Nov. 14 — A taste-tempting Apple Brown Betty or perhaps Apple Tapioca or Apple Charlotte is a good wholesome dessert for this cold fall day.

Nov. 15 — To dress up your hot muffins for lunch or supper add one cup of chopped peeled apples and a quarter of a teaspoon cinnamon. The family is sure to ask for more.

Nov. 16—Try this palate-pleasing appetizer vitaminized apple juice, grape juice and ginger ale blended together in this proportion — one cup of apple juice, one cup of grape juice and half a cup of ginger ale.

Nov. 17 — To make a colorful garnish for the meat platter cut apples in half crosswise, scoop out core and simmer them in a sugar syrup until tender, and fill each hollow with cranberry sauce.

Nov. 18 — This is the day for apple pie — juicy tart apples hidden beneath a layer of flaky tender pie crust.

Nov. 19 — Having a baked ham slice for dinner? Then by all means glaze it with apple juice. Simply baste the ham with the juice several times during cooking.

Nov. 20 — If it is to be roast goose, duck, chicken or pork for Sunday dinner do not forget diced apples when making the stuffing.

Nov. 21 — For a time saving dessert, heat applesauce and fold in a few marshmallows cut in pieces, then sprinkle with cinnamon or grated nutmeg and serve hot.

Nov. 22 — Something worth trying as the main course for supper is winter squash stuffed with a combination of sausage meat and chopped apple or a tasty onion and apple casserole would be enjoyed with cold roast pork or ham.

Nov. 23 — For another apple treat try glazed apples. Make a syrup of one and a half cups of sugar and two cups of water, core six large cooking apples and pare about one and one-half inches down from the stem end. Place them in the syrup with the pared surface down and simmer for five minutes. Invert and cook until tender — about 10 to 15 minutes. When tender place under the broiler and baste apples frequently with the syrup until they are well glazed.

Nov. 24 — For a change serve stewed apples with custard sauce or add them to a Blanc Manage or Tapioca Cream.

Nov. 25 — Start dinner off with this easy and inexpensive appetizer — apple slices spread with nippy cheese or peanut butter.

Nov. 26 — After a heavy meal what could be better than a whole crisp, juicy apple eaten out of hand or served with a fruit knife.

Nov. 27 — Be sure to put some apple chutney or relish on the dinner table. It is so good with meat.

Nov. 28 — For lunch dress up a fruit salad plate with plenty of rosy red apple wedges. Do cut the apples at the last minute because some darken very quickly.

Nov. 29 — No matter which you choose — fresh, canned, dried or frozen be sure to serve apples in some form at least once during the day.

Nov. 30 — And now let us pause and drink to this most versatile of fruits. For the toast what could be more suitable than spicy hot apple juice. Simply add a dash of vinegar, a few cloves, a stick of cinnamon and sweeten the juice to taste. Bring to the boil and serve hot.

BAKE DOUGHNUTS FOR HALLOWE'EN

— By Anne Marshall —

Halloween means mischief . . . unless, of course, there's a treat in store for the masked intruders.

When hungry little ghosts and witches knock upon your door, how about surprising them with a treat to fit the holiday? One whiff of freshly-baked Halloween Doughnuts will tempt the most mysterious witch. And your cooking fame will spread for miles around.

The trick to making Halloween Doughnuts . . . use condensed tomato soup for the liquid! It gives them a cheerful orange color and blends delightfully with the "sugar 'n spice 'n everything nice" that goes into the recipe.

Pass big cupfuls of homemade cider to sip with the doughnuts. And for real fun, string apples from above and see who can eat his apple without tearing the string. No hands allowed in this game!

Here's the recipe for those doughnuts that are perfect for Halloween, bewitching anytime!

HALLOWEEN DOUGHNUTS

6 cups sifted flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
¾ cup melted shortening
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
Fat for frying

Sift dry ingredients together. Beat eggs and sugar until thick and fluffy; add shortening and tomato soup. Stir into dry ingredients until well blended. Turn the rather stiff dough onto floured board; roll to ½-inch thickness; cut with doughnut cutter. Slip doughnuts into shortening (360°F.) and fry about 2 minutes on each side. Drain on absorbant paper. Dust with powdered or granulated sugar. Makes about 40 doughnuts.

EARLY TO WED NOT WISE

The maiden who takes her time about marrying is usually happier than the one who enters matrimony early in life. This is a conclusion drawn by sociologists from a study of 604 young women, single and married. Psychological tests indicate that the single girls "had better emotional adjustment, greater self-reliance and a greater sense of personal freedom". The tests also show that those who are in no hurry to marry are less likely to be anti-social. Although most authorities on marriage agree that a woman should not marry until she is emotionally mature, one sociologist points out that their advice is not always followed because it is the immature and emotionally insecure young woman for whom marriage has the strongest appeal.

At the time of the most recent count there were 88 women employed on the police forces of Canada.

Army Show Travel Proves Asset to Montreal Girl

Montreal (CP) — Raymonde Maranda of Montreal is putting to good peacetime use the experience she gained as an army showgirl during the Second World War.

She has become travel adviser in New York for a major airline (Trans-World Airlines). There she dispenses advice based largely on her travels as the "Al-lo Girl" of the Canadian Army Show, performing for servicemen at home and abroad.

She advises women how to pack, what to take and where to go for an enjoyable vacation. A recent survey showed that women constitute 60 per cent of all air travellers.

"And many of them travel with children," she said in an interview. Airlines are aware of this fact and many planes have been equipped with toys to keep the children amused during long trips.

Simple Wardrobe

When it comes to choosing clothes for a vacation by air, Miss Maranda advocates a wardrobe based on a single color. She believes synthetic fibres have unburdened women travellers because they permit laundering en route.

Among other tips she offers are to roll petticoats tight and pack them in stockings; never forget a pair of comfortable walking shoes for sightseeing; and have a light sweater for an occasional wrap.

After the war, she acted as Women's Force Counsellor, giving advice to women leaving the military forces.

Four years ago she left Canada to work as an airline ticket agent in New York.

A woman's division was opened a year later and she was picked for the job because of previous European experience and her fluency in French and English as well as some understanding of Spanish and Italian.

Since then she has spanned Canada and the United States and jaunted to Europe, the Caribbean and Mexico.

Her ambition — a trip around the world.

"A month in Paris in the spring," she said without hesitation, was her ideal vacation, with "Honolulu, anytime of the year," as a strong second choice.

BABIES' FEET ARE NOT FLAT

Babies are not born with flat feet. X-Ray films made of the feet of babies varying in age from twelve hours to fourteen days show that each of them has well-formed arches. This contradicts a theory that the pedal arch only comes into being by action of the feet muscles after the baby starts walking. Instead, English researchers insist, feet become flat, ankles turn inward or other foot troubles develop because of some abnormality in the ligaments that connect muscles and bones.

The scientists compare strong feet to a pair of roller skates, calling for little strain on the muscles — and weak feet to ice skates, which make muscles work harder than they may be able to do. For example, a child with long narrow feet is more likely to develop flat feet than one with broad feet. However, the researchers report, most children are born with normal feet and if given proper care, they will escape trouble later in life.

Following the Sunday School lesson on David and Goliath, the seven-year-olds of the class were given paper and crayons to illustrate it. That is one of the modern ways of sustaining interest in lessons and perhaps impressing them on the memory.

One young artist proudly brought home his work to show his mother. The drawing was powerful and David was unmistakably recognizable in fringed leggings and a coonskin cap. — Printed Word

Salmon-Apple Dishes With A-peel

October is apple month, and this year we have a bumper crop of red-skinned beauties which you will want to take full advantage of. It is a well-known fact that apples make delicious desserts and that applesauce is the perfect accompaniment for roast pork. It is less well known that apples combine well with canned salmon to give appealing main course dishes. The blend of the apple and salmon flavors is superb. Here are two dishes which illustrate what we mean. Both have been consumer tested in the kitchens of Canada's Department of Fisheries.

Salmon-Apple Salad

1 Cup chopped, unpeeled apple, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 cups chopped celery, 1 can (7½ or 8 oz.) red salmon, ½ cup whole, roasted, unsalted peanuts, ½ cup boiled salad dressing.

Sprinkle coarsely chopped, rosy-skinned apple pieces with lemon juice to prevent turning brown. Combine apple with chopped celery. Drain salmon and break into bite-sized chunks, removing skin and soft bones. Add salmon chunks and roasted peanuts to the celery and apple. Moisten with boiled dressing or mayonnaise. Toss ingredients together lightly. Pile into 6 frilly lettuce cups. Makes 6 servings.

Salmon-Apple Ringers

1 Can (1 lb.) salmon, 3 medium-sized apples, ¼ cup melted butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Drain salmon and flake it, crushing bones with a fork. Save nutritious juice to use later in a soup or sauce. Shape flaked salmon into 6 patties of equal size. Core and peel apples. Cut into 12 half-inch rings. Place 6 apple rings in a greased baking dish and on top of each place a salmon pattie. Top each patty with a second apple ring and pour over a marinade made by combining melted butter and lemon juice. Bake in an oven at 400° F. for about 15 minutes or until the apple rings are tender. Makes 6 servings.

Morning 'Slow Poke'

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Tommy is a slow poke in the morning! He takes ages to get dressed. I despise mothers who continually nag at their children — but what can I do to cure him?" Mrs. Black asked her mother.

"Don't worry too much abo uhtis slowness in the morning. He's only a little fellow . . ."

"But he should have time to eat a decent breakfast — and I don't want him to be late for school. Dawdling over dressing may seem a small fault, but it is terribly annoying!"

Until a child starts to shcool, the exact time when his dressing is completed does not matter very much to his mother. But once he has that "nine o'clock dead-line" for greating "Teacher", then dawdling over dressing may become a real problem in a busy household. It is a good plan to establish the earlier breakfast hour for a child several weeks before he or she goes to school for the first time.

Adults must remind themselves that although time means a great deal to them, to a small child the passing of time means very little. Children hate to be hurried. Sometimes one of the simplest ways to overcome tardiness in the morning is to call the child a quarter of an hour earlier, see that he is out of bed and thus give him a longer time to put on his clothes. A large alarm clock on his dresser with the time marked when he should be starting on his way to breakfast is useful for some youngsters.

Choosing what he is to wear and laying out his garment on a chair beside his bed at night before is a practical suggestion. When a little girl is sleepy, it may be confusing, and take several moments to decide, whether to wear the blue dress with the white collar or the green jumper and yellow blouse. Small socks, shoes and underwear are apt to be misplaced under the bed or in the clothes closet or bathroom in the process of getting ready for bed! Make a game the night before of leaving them all out in readiness for the next day.

Mother should check on the physical condition of a child who dawdles continually. Is he slow because he is feeling sluggish? Perhaps he needs a tonic or a medical check-up! A low grade sinus infection can make him feel very "loggy" in the morning. It might be that his bed-time hour is a little late — or his sleep has been interrupted. Maybe his bedroom is not well-ventilated!. More rest and fresh air may make all the difference.

If there are several children in the family, the business of getting ready for school may be delayed as they argue with each other. One mother finally made the rule, "Wait to talk until you get to the breakfast table". Another parent discovered that arranging for two brothers to dress in different rooms speeded up the process. If they were together, inevitably they started fooling around and laughing at each other's antics. Still another parent gave special praise ot the first child to appear at the table.

Some children are not very dextrous with their fingers. A little help from mother in tying shoe laces or doing up a button may be just what is needed to finish getting dressed. Most children's clothes today are simply made and easy to get into. But if a child is a dawdler, mother should check that buttonholes are large enough and zippers are easy to handle.

A pleasant prospect ahead is a real inducement to finish a task like dressing. What tiny youngster doesn't enjoy a cheery greeting and "a morning kiss" when he comes to breakfast? If possible, give Junior a small chore which he likes, such as bringing in the morning paper or the milk or letting the pussy cat outside before he sits down to the table. Children do relish a bit of fun at breakfast. If more mothers would take time for a little nonsense, instead of worrying so about nourishing meals and promptness at school, there would be less dawdling!

Once in a while the real reason why a small child lingers over getting his clothes on, is because he doesn't want to go off and leave mother. Perhaps being at home is much more fun than going to school. Maybe he feels shy with teacher or afraid of some of the bigger children! It is quite possible that he thinks his clothes are different. How he dreads the other youngsters making fun of him! If there is a real reason why he is dawdling over dressing, mother should try to discover what it is and do something about it.

Former Carillon Resident Celebrates Golden Wedding

Friends of Mr. Robert Bryerton — youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bryerton, of Carillon — will be interested to know that he and his wife celebrated their 50th wedding aniversary on October 4 last, by holding open house at their home in Black River, N.Y.

Mr. Bryerton went to Black River in 1902. He was married to Miss Allie Williams, formerly of Napanee, Ont., who was then a resident of Black River, on October 4, 1905, in the rectory of St. Mary's Church at Evans Mills, N.Y.

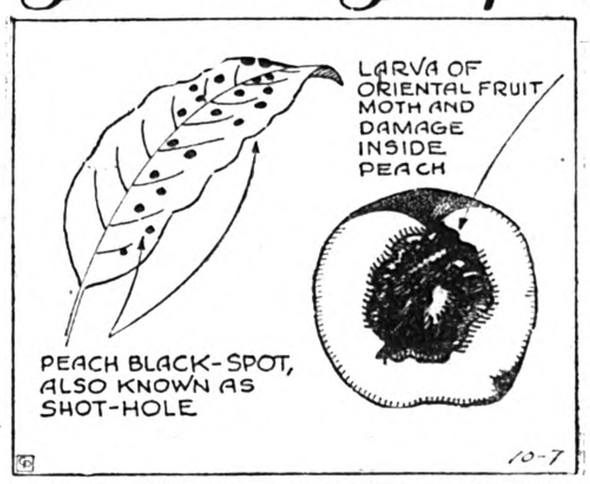

For 49½ years Mr. Bryerton was employed as a master mechanic the St. Regis Paper Company. At the time of his retirement in 1953 he had served for 26 years at Harrisville, N.Y.

The couple have three children, Ward and Charleton Bryerton, of Black River, and Mrs. Erma Quinn, of Albany, N.Y. Another daughter, Mrs. Ila King, died in 1937. They have five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Over 100 guests were present at the open house on October 4, and Mr. and Mrs. Bryerton received many lovely gifts, including gold wrist watches from the family, and fifty dollars in gold pieces from neighbors.

Garden-Graph

Many, many home gardeners cannot resist the urge to plant a few peach trees. And right they are, for there is nothing more tempting than home-grown, tree ripened peaches of top quality for dessert use and for canning and freezing. However, to insure top quality fruit the tree must be protected and disease and pest problems solved.

The peach borer formerly discouraged many home gardeners from attempting to grow their own peaches, but now with DDT handy, this problem is not too difficult to solve.

There are, unfortunately, other peach problems. One is peach blackspot. This is a bacterial disease which affects fruit, foliage and twigs. This condition is also known as Shot-Hole, because of the appearance of infected leaves, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Young trees suffer severely from this disease and often become stunted.

If you have found peach foliage affected, as illustrated, prepare to spray the diseased tree next spring with a mixture of zinc and lime, one ounce of each to a gallon of water.

A cross-section of a peach showing the larva of the Oriental fruit moth and the damage caused by its feeding is shown in the Garden-Graph.

There are seven generations of this fruit pest each year. It is the last one of the season which attacks the fruit.

The larvae of this fruit moth go through the winter by enclosing themselves in a silken cocoon attached to the bark of a tree or hidden among dried fruits and rubbish on the ground. Clean up around each tree in the fall. In the spring follow a spray program with malathion according to directions on the package.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

This is the time of the two "S's" — school and safety — as well as the time of the more conventional three "R's". Numerous school children on the nation's streets have already relegated safety to second place, in the multiple interests that occupy their thoughts.

The alarming records of school accidents can be decreased if parents, motorists, school authorities and children themselves all work together. Motorists can carry their share of the burden of safety for the nation's children by being particularly alert, especially in school areas, and by obeying all traffic regulations. Most schools, well-aware of traffic problems, include safe-pedestrian instruction in the curriculum.

But the majority of responsibility for seeing that children reach school safely falls to parents. Here are some rules which parents will do well to follow:

Set a good example for children to follow by obeying traffic regulations and exercising courtesy and consideration in your own driving.

Take the children to school until you are convinced they'll go the safe way. The route should be protected by crossing guards and school safety patrols.

Impress upon them the importance of traffic safety rules, so they will give unquestioning respect and obedience to them.

Always see that your child leaves the car from the curb side.

In your own driving, avoid double-parking near schools. Park only in designated areas.

Of interest to farmers in all sections of Canada is the fifth annual convention of the Entomological Society of Canada in Fredericton, N.B., on Oct. 18-20. The entomologists will exchange views on their findings on various bugs, rusts and whatever else plagues crops and stunts growth of agricultural products. Hon. C. B. Sherwood, New Brunswick minister of agriculture, appears amused by the poster designed for the meeting.

FISHING VILLAGE ON BAY OF FUNDY HAS DIRE LEGEND

Margaretsville, N.S., (CP) — Here in this snug little fishing village once named after Peter Barnes, they still tell the story of his evil scheme to get food for a dying housekeeper, and of how it brought a remarkable vengeance.

Margaretville now is a fishing port and summer resort, tucked on the picturesque Bay of Funday shore facing New Brunswick. It was not always so.

In 1780 it was known as Black Ledge for its cruel, jagged finger of black rocks which stretched 300 yards or more into the Bay.

There was only one dwelling, a cabin-like house constructed of planks and timbers from ships that had been wrecked on the ledge. It was here that Peter Barnes and his housekeeper lived. . .

He tried with his crude implements to keep a farm, and supplemented its produce with fishing. But in 1793 frost killed his crops and fish failed to make their run along the coast.

Winter came early, and by Christmas there was little food remaining. Christmas eve was ushered in with a wild storm that blew huge drifts of snow around the chilly cabin.

As evening came Peter became hungry. He crept warily out onto the wind-lashed rocks of Black Ledge looking for mussels. He found none, but his experienced eyes spotted the light of a ship in the distance.

It was then that Peter formed his plan, one unfolded later by the housekeeper who survived her serious illness. Peter knew that not far away was a sheltered harbor, marked by a red beacon and a white lighthouse.

He took one red lantern, and hung it high in a snow-covered fir tree. It looked amazingly like a white lighthouse. Then he took a white lantern and wedged it into a crevice high in the rocky cliffs.

His camouflage worked. Within hours Peter and his housekeeper heard the crash of the grounding ship and the cries of the men rising above the wind.

Peter insisted they remain inside. But next morning he walked along the shore and collected his ill-gotten provision; and saw the frozen bodies of five men.

It was 20 years later — and again on Christmas eve — when he was returning home over a rough mountain road. A snowstorm developed, darkness fell and Peter lost his way.

He searched for the light from his window, then spotted the gleam of a lantern. He struggled toward it, and fell to his death over the cliff and into the sea.

A villager on an errand of mercy had placed the lantern, not near Peter's home but in the same crevice Peter used to wedge the white light 20 years previously.

TRAP LARGE EELS ON MEDWAY RIVER

Greenfield, N.S. (CP) — What do you do with 6,000 pounds of wriggling eels?

Easy. There's a ready market for them in the United States where they're considered a delicacy. And the price is about 16 cents a pound.

Eel catching has been a profitablesidelilne for Nova Scotia fishermen for years. Practically every river in the province is a good spot, but here on the Medway river on the south shore is just about tops.

The weirs are dam-like affairs built with brush and rock. At a peak is a screen that allows the water to flow through but traps the eels.

They are shipped by tank, truck or trailer to the market. The highliner here last year shipped 6,000 pounds.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Gravy Train

Almost every day the newspapers report that workers in the big automobile, steel, or agricultural implement plants have won another big increase in pay, and that prices will go up accordingly. To the rest of us — especially those on pensions or fixed incomes — those workers seem to be riding the gravy train. What will happen to the rest of us?

Instead of a gravy train, most of us will be riding an economic merry-go-round that spins far too fast. By the time the farmer sells his grain (most of it in other countries where wages are lower) the price of the implements he needs and the trucks he has to buy will have jumped to meet new wage demands. While the merchant in big industrial cities may do all right, the small-town merchant takes a licking — he buys his stock from manufacturers paying sky-high wages, but must sell it to the farmers or small-town white-collar workers, who don't get union rates. Many retailers are now operating on a ridiculously low profit margin. And those on pensions are suffering terrible hardships.

No wonder young fellows leave farms to take factory jobs at high pay! Everybody likes to ride a gravy train. But there is something Canadian union workers have forgotten.

Gravy trains can get wrecked. The Canadian unions may succeed in getting a guaranteed annual wage and wages equal to those of the USA, and all sorts of fringe benefits. But since this is NOT the USA, and we don't have a big domestic market — they'll get something else. If they keep on the way they are, they'll get a depression as sure as you're born. And then they'll blame it all on Wall Street. But this time, the rest of us will know where to put the blame, and the unions will lose everything they gained.

The sooner Canadian unions start to run their own affairs instead of letting the big American union leaders boss them, the better it will be for them and for all of us.

French REVOLUTION

When you get a French chef to touch mass-produced, quick-frozen foods with a ten-foot spoon—that's a kitchen revolution. Yet some fifty quick-frozen Gallic delicacies are now being marketed by a French company of cooks.

We're glad to report that aluminum gets a Cordon Bleu from the gastronomes. They use it in conveyors, containers and kitchen equipment; and they use nothing else for packaging their products. They respect the way tasteless, odorless, moisture-proof aluminum respects their creations, keeping their freshness and delicacy of flavor till the magic moment when they reach the table.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. My wife has been unemployed for five months, during which time no employment was obtainable in her home town. If a job is offered to her away from her home town will she be disqualified if she refuses to accept it?

A. It is possible that disqualification may be imposed on the circumstances, particularly if she is living in an area in which job opportunities are scarce. Each case is decided on its own merits, however, so that it is not possible to give a more definite answer.

* * *

Q. I was temporarily laid off from my employment but did not immediately claim benefit because I expected, at an early date, either to resume work or to obtain new employment with my former employer. When this did not materialize I claimed benefit and requested that my claim be antedated to the day following my lay-off. My application to have my claim antedated was not allowed — can you explain why?

A. Benefit is payable only if a claimant is unable to obtain work. If he does not make his claim (at which time he must register for work) there has been no opportunity to place him, or to try and place him, in employment. Antedating is only allowable when the delay is beyond the claimant's control, and this of course was not so in this case.

Jolson Notes

There were people in that hotel room, people who still had many years of living ahead. For them there must be a last word. Al glanced at Harry Akst. "No, I'm a real important guy. Hell, Truman had only one hour with MacArthur. I was with him for two!"

Of all the honors bestowed upon him, of all his magnificent achievements, both commercial and artistic — of all these, this was what he remembered at the end, because it had been more recent than the rest. With many of his gratest ambitions never realized, he left a world all the better for his having inhabited it.

"Oh — I'm going — I'm going —". This was all they heard him say. They didn't see the alert, leaping young fellow, face blackened and hands encased in white gloves, who, invisible, leaped joyously from the strangely still corpse which lay on that bed before them. They didn't see that ridiculously wide bow-tie flapping in the breeze, or hear him yell ecstatically to the heavenly hosts . . .

"I'm coming — I'm coming —"

This was the real Al Jolson — the Al Jolson who could never die. He was going to sing as he had never sung before. That lung he had given for his country in another war not so far past, was back stronger than ever. And so was his youth, the youth he had never lost except in its mere physical aspects. Never in his lifetime on earth was there another singer who could touch him, even when a good part of his voice was gone. Now, the greatness of his voice would be returned a thousand fold.

Like all true artists, his mission on earth was to immortalize himself through his art. Though the future will show that he succeeded, he had often been misunderstood by those who had wrongly considered him a "show-off". Even those who had loved him never could have understood a personality of such complexity. In life he had scarcely understood himself. Now, in death, he understood, and that was why he was content.

God had called him back, and there was work to be done. He didn't know how long he'd be on that celestial stage, singing encores and request numbers for his largest and most select audience.

It was a new audience to conquer — a new challenge . . . And he wanted to tell us all, I am sure, that, much as he appreciated our great surrow at his passing, we must understand that our sorrow is for ourselves and not for him. He is happy. It is we who have lost.

We have lost a man whose greatness can be measured to incomparable degrees — both personal, for his lovable personality, and transcendent, for his majestic artistry.

THE LITTERBUGS

People are too careless about throwing things around, littering the streets, making them appear untidy and giving the town a bad name. We would like to see the town council do something about this matter of tidiness and cleanliness. — Pembroke Obverver

War is Waged on Disease in Canada's Northland

Geese in Annual Transit; One of Nature's Spectacles

By Richard Daignault

Quebec (CP) — One of nature's most impressive spectacles unfolded recently on the St. Lawrence River mudflats 30 miles east of Quebec, as it has every autumn for centuries.

The world's only flock of Greater Snow Geese flew into the riverside St. Joachim area and put down for the next few weeks.

The birds, on the way from Canada's far north to warm Atlantic Coast areas in the southern United States, stop to rest and feed under the shelter of Cap Tourmente.

There was good news with the arrival of the great white birds. Experts said the flock has grown to a record size of 90,000, including some 20,000 or more young.

The birds were two to three weeks behind schedule, and game experts guessed rightly that the reason was the large number of young.

A few thousand birds preceded the main flock. Wildlife experts noted that there were no young among them and concluded that most of the birds were waiting for the young to be in shape for the strenuous 2,000-mile flight from the Arctic to St. Joachim.

The birds are family-minded. Each adult couple flies with its own young, and members of a family do not separate during the long trip.

After spending a few weeks here, the young birds, recognizable because of a grey patch on their backs, venture out on their own and become gradually separated from the family.

Hunting of the birds is strictly regulated. The season ends November 18 and the daily bag limit is five.

St. Joachim is their only known stopping place. Although the flock has been travelling the same route for centuries, no one knows, except in a general way, where it spends the summer and winter seasons.

Experts say the birds spend the summer somewhere on Ellesmere Island in Canada's far north, and possibly in Greenland. In the winter they travel to the Atlantic Coast states of the southern U.S., but it has never been known just where they gather.

Recent Wedding In Margaret Rodger Memorial Church

Allen-McDonald

The Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute, was decorated with floor standards of white mums mixed with yellow pompoms and with white ribbons on the guest pews, for the wedding of Miss Ruth Claire McDonald to John Douglas Allen, which took place Saturday, October 8. The Rev. Donald C. Merrett officiated.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. McDonald of Lakefield, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white chiffon velvet, the princess lines of which were fashioned to fall in a train. The scoop neckline on the bodice was appliqued with imported lace and embroidered with seed pearls. A tiara of pearls held her floor-length veil of French tulle illusion, and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of Talisman roses and stephanotis.

Her maid of honor, Miss Beverley McDonald, the bride's sister, wore a cocktail-length dress of forest green velveteen, with scooped neckline. She wore a bandeau of matching velveteen leaves, trimmed with silver thread, and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of bronze and yellow pompoms.

The two bridesmaids, Mrs. John Wray, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Carol Walker, wore similar dresses in rust colored velveteen. Miss Marjorie McDonald, junior bridesmaid, was in a dress of green velveteen with puff sleeves. All the bridesmaids wore bandeaux of velveteen leaves trimmed with silver, and carried semi-cascades of bronze and yellow pompoms.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel C. Allen, had chosen Robert Norris as his best man. John Wray, Ross Southward and Michael Douglas were ushers.

Mrs. McDonald, the bride's mother, wore a Dior blue peau de soie gown, with a neckline outlined in seed pearls, a matching hat and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. R. C. Allen, was gowned in midnight blue peau de soie gown, with portrait neckline and pencil skirt, a small hat to match, and a corsage of yellow roses.

After the reception at Lachute Golf Club, the bridal couple left for the New England States, Mrs. John Allen wearing a fitted suit of beige worsted wool trimmed with kolinski fur, dark brown accessories, and a corsage of yellow Queen Elizabeth roses.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alton Murdoch, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Schridel, of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Mason Fario and Mrs. Morris Davis, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Allen, the Misses Magreta and Frences Allen, of Sherbrooke; and Mrs. Dalrymple Score, or Toronto.

In the month of July, Canadians spent $126.7 million on new motor vehicles, an all-time monthly high.

ROYAL FAMILY AT PLAY

Prince Charles and Princess Ann chuckle with glee as they soar skyward on a swing pushed by their father, the Duke of Edinburgh, during the royal family's holiday this year at Balmoral Castle, Scotland. Queen Elizabeth holds the Duke's dog, "Candy".

Poison (By Accident) A Major Health Problem

"Poisoning now looms as a major public health problem", reported two doctors recently. By that they did not mean murder, but accidents arising from the many toxic products our complex civilization has developed today.

Almost anything can be poisonous if taken in excess. Even milk has been known to cause toxic reactions in some cases. Medically, a poison in any substance which may cause damage to structure or by its chemical action on the body disturbance of function.

The well known natural poisonous hazards are snakes, spiders, and scorpions. But to these must now be added household items such as kerosene, bleach, insecticides, lighter fluid, anti-freeze, lead paint and cleaning fluid. These take a great toll in accidental deaths and illnesses. In 1953, latest year for which figures are available, 15 per cent of all accidental deaths in British homes were the result of poisoning, according to the Royal Society for Prevention of Accidents. This figure is probably relevant for all advanced industrialized countries.

Although children are the most likely to be the victims of accidental poisoning, adults are often exposed to these dangers because of their occupations. Radium, ultra-violet and infra-red rays, carbon dioxide and monoxide, benzene, chlorine, mercury, and methyl alcohol are a few of the poison hazards met in industry.

Strangely enough, the most potent poisons known are substances secreted by the smallest organisms — bacteria. However, we have been able to control the effects of these exotoxins, as the germ poisons are called. We have learned to prepare antitoxins in the cases of diphtheria and tetanus, and knowing that the toxin of botulism, a form of food poisoning, is destroyed by heat, adequate precautions can be taken both at home and in the food industry.

Of course, the subject of poison has always been surrounded with an aura of fascination and dread. Its unsavoury heritage as an instrument of violence is well deserved. Poison darts were used by primitive man as one of his earliest weapons and references to poison may be found in Hebrew literature and Greek mythology. An ancient Egyptian papyrus believed to date from 1500 B.C. contains many references both to mineral and vegetable poisons. Greek and Roman histories are studded with episodes of poisonings.

With the Renaissance, the art and profession of poisoning became even more common and was practised by the state as well as the individuals. In 1572, there were 30,000 sorcerers in Paris, most of whom dealt quite openly in poisons and love potions. Thousands stood ready, for a price, to commit a quiet murder. Large scale poisonings were carried out in Rome by a woman, Guilia Tofana, and her accomplices who were credited with over 600 professional poisonings. La Voisin, the last of the eminent poisoners for hire, confessed to having murdered some 2,500 infants.

During the 18th century, the art lost most of its glamor and began to wane. The discovery in 1846 of a chemical test for arsenic, the king of poisons, was the final blow to the poisoning profession. Legally recognized, this method of detection made it possible to produce definite evidence for the court conviction of poisoners.

Today, medical science is taking energetic steps to meet the poisoning problem. In recent years, new antivenoms, vaccines, and other drugs have been devised. In addition, special poison control centres are now being established in some regions; these will act both as treatment centres and as information bureaus on the latest techniques and remedies, and are expected to provide an antidote to the of accidental poisonings.

Most of the dwellings in Iroquois are being lifted a mile back from the St. Lawrence riverfront to escape flooding from completion of the St. Lawrence power project near Cornwall three years hence. When this job is finished next summer, the "Monsters," two huge, self-propelled, house-moving vehicles which are unique in the world, will beetle eastward. At Morrisburg and six riverside hamlets, the balance of 6,000 persons and probably 600 dwellings, will be moved to new sites. Iroquois baker, H. Shennette, finds making deliveries is a frustrating task. One day his customer's home is where it should be, and the next, it's gone.

Transport Permit Aids Game Check

Transport permits, which are required for moving all deer and moose or parts thereof are the only source of information available to biologists in checking the number of deer killed in the province and the distribution of hunting pressure.

Gaston Moisan and other Fish and Game Department biologists are making a survey of the deer population and they recently made a progress report to the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations. Mr. Moisan said that information now available indicates that in a few districts in hunting Zone C deer seem to be reasonably abundant. In some districts they have become too numerous for their own good, but the situation in Zones A and B, south of the St. Lawrence river, from l'Islet to Vaudreuil-Soulanges, the situation is not too encouraging.

"Certain basic facts are required to manage a game species properly", said Mr. Moisan, "and that is where we want to start. Until now, hunting seasons have been set on a trial and error basis because essential information is lacking.

"Because of the great extent of our province and the small number of technical personnel, we cannot be aware of all problems concerning big game in all areas. We therefore hope that the conservation-minded sportsman will let us know about the specific problems pertaining to big game in their own regions. In return, we will be glad to help them as much as we can.

"All deer hunters are requested to observe the regulations and bring their deer to a warden so that a transport permit may be affixed to it. Those tags constitute the only information we have available as to the approximate number of deer killed in the province and the distribution of hunting pressure."

Follow Lachute Example, Lennoxville Plans Class For Handicapped Children

Lennoxville is the next centre to plan a class for handicapped children. It will be recalled that in line with the project of the Quebec Women's Institutes such a class was organized at Lachute last year, as a result of action initiated by the Lachute Women's Institute under the direction of the direction of the then provincial convener of Welfare and Health, Mrs. A. G. Leggett, Lachute.

A meeting has been held in Lennoxville, called by Mrs. B. Turner president of Sherbrooke County W.I. This was attended by representatives from Institutes in that district, other interested organizations, schools, school boards, and parents. Mrs. Wm. Coupland, of Sherbrooke, the present Q.W.I. convener of Welfare and Health, presided. The title, "The Eastern Townships Handicapped School" was tentatively chosen, an executive elected, committees appointed and plans made for a further meeting to consolidate arrangements.

Much interest is being created. "It is unbelievable the need we have uncovered since starting", says Mrs. Turner, commenting on the project. "We can't possibly accomodate all the children we have discovered but we can make a start and expand". It is hoped to secure personnel so that various types of handicapped children can be helped and it is undenominational. Many offers of assistance in teaching and helping at the school have already been received and it is planned to make a beginning soon.

Campaign Chairman Voices Grateful Acknowledgment

Mark Triumphant Outcome

Last Thursday evening was a jubilant occasion at St. Julien parish hall when the Charities Federation committee, organizers and canvassers, together with religious and civic officials, gathered at a celebration rally on the successful conclusion of their campaign.

The president of the Federation, Dr. Marc Papineau, campaign chairman Gerard Lefebvre, along with Mgr. Lacourse and l'Abbe Adrien Giard, curé of St. Julien, and Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald, all expressed their warm satisfaction in the outcome of this initial appeal on behalf of the Federation.

* * *

The campaign chairman for the recent successful Federation appeal, Gerard Lefebvre, has given a summary of returns totalling $17,519.67 — this figure, up to October 25, being incomplete, however, until final closing of the contributions. The breakdown is as follows:

Door-to-Door Subscriptions	$3,384.80
Industrial Employees	3,483.11
Business Firms	2,387.00
Industries	2,850.00
Special Names	3,383.54
School Children	185.00
Contribution Boxes in Stores	155.00
Church Collections	579.00
Municipalities	1,000.00
Various	112.22
Total	$17,519.67

Mr. Lefebvre issues a statement expressing his gratitude on this outcome. Following is a broad translation of his message:

"Before putting the final touches to our Fund Campaign, I feel obliged to impress certain aspects and practical observations on this effort. The objective of $16,300 is oversubscribed, as you know, with a present total of $17,519,67 accruing to the Charities Federation.

"This splendid result is due directly to the generosity of our population. They have embraced the spirit and aims of the Federation and have responded, both young and old, accordingly.

"We cannot over-emphasize the excellent job done by our canvassers. These — 300 in number — have spared no effort to attain the goal.

"The campaign committee which tackled the immense task of assembling, directing and stimulating the organization, has not flinched. It has attended to the smallest detail, particularly in the accounting of returns and in publicizing the effort. In these two respective departments, we pay tribute to the unassuming but effective effort put forth by — Messrs. Raymond Beaulieu, Fernand Berthiaume and Don Titman.

"One and all — subscribers, canvassers, committee members — share in the credit of this successful enterprise; and to one and all I say 'Thank you, sincerely'."

'Criminal Responsibility' Jury's Verdict in Recent Fatality at Pte. au Chene

James Young, 35, of Ville St. Laurent, was found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury in the death of 34-year-old Alden MacLeod. The coroner's inquest was held in Pte.-au-Chene Tuesday evening presided over by District Coroner Dr. A. R. Coté, assisted by the Argenteuil crown prosecutor, Marc Boucher, of St. Jerome.

Crown prosecutor Boucher reported this morning that Young was being held in the St. Jerome jail pending the laying of a charge which is expected momentarily.

The inquest was opened at the morgue here in Lachute on Sunday, October 16, at which time the jury was sworn in.

Main witness at the resumed inquest was Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, Quebec medico-legal expert, who performed an autopsy on the victim. Dr. Roussel described the victim as a well-built man, weighing approximately 190 pounds. The only visible mark of violence was a ½-inch by 1½-inch bruise and abrasion of the skin just over the left cheekbone, he stated. Dr. Roussel added that the skull was not fractured, and that there were no visible wounds in or about the head, although the membranes protecting the brain had haemorrhaged, according to the expert's testimony.

Dr. Roussel pointed out that there was a high content of alcohol in the victim's blood and that, in his opinion, death was due to a celebral haemorrhage, which could have been caused by a blow on the head.

Upon further questioning, Dr. Roussel stated that the only visible mark of violence on the body, that on the cheek, was caused by the contact of the face with a hard object having a narrow surface; he gave several examples of possible objects.

Witnesses appearing at the inquest were Wendell Boyd, 45, brother-in-law of the victim, and Stanley Young, 48, both of Calumet; Mrs. George Nickson, George Young, 20, and John Bates, all of Avoca; and hotel-keeper Fabien Gascon, 63, of Pte.-au-Chene.

Testimony of these witnesses was of a general nature, indicating that the victim and Young had had a disagreement earlier in the evening inside the hotel. Only one witness testified that a blow had been struck.

Wendell Boyd and Stanley Young stated that the first they saw of the victim was when "the boys" were taking him around the side of the hotel. They stated that MacLeod was on the ground, and that James Young was doing nothing to the victim at that time.

Young, who was in attendance throughout the inquest, was not questioned. He showed visible emotion when the jury returned their verdict, after eight minutes' deliberation.

Rotary Club Welcomes Visit Of Dis. Governor

Harry C. Ballard, Governor of District 250 of Rotary International, paid his official visit to the local club at last Thursday's regular meeting. Mr. Ballard is a native of Carthage, New York, and has spent the past three months visiting the 50 clubs in the District, which includes the northern section of New York State, a portion of eastern Ontario, and a section of southern Quebec.

The Governor came to Lachute and Brownsburg from the District Conference held in St. Jerome earlier in the week. A number of local members attended these meetings, especially the Governor's banquets, and the Ball which was held in the Lapointe Hotel on Monday evening.

The distinguished Rotarian took time out to visit the local Club's park and swimming pool on the Brownsburg Road and also the C-I-L Plant.

In his address to the members of the Brownsburg-Lachute Club, Governor Harry stated that Rotary International President A. Z. Baker had announced that the objective for the present club year was: "Develop Our Resources". The speaker used this as his subject and mentioned various ways by which each club could develop their respective resources such as the addition of new members, making better Rotarians of existing members and forming new clubs in other towns and cities.

Secretary Resigns

P. Claude Daoust, Lachute Town secretary-treasurer, tendered his resignation, to take immediate effect, at a Council meeting last evening . . . Mr. Daoust, who is leaving the secretaryship on November 16, stated he had been offered a better position. He took over City Hall duties May 16 of this year.

Mistaken Identity

What is becoming almost an annual occurrence in these parts, raised onlookers' eyebrows in Lachute last week-end . . . A party of Montreal hunters came down from the hills, with a doe over one fender of their car — and a Holstein calf draped over the other!

The scene got a big laugh from local citizens. But somewhere in the vicinity, a farmer is minus a calf.

Moral — look before you shoot; next time the calf might be a human.

Black Bear Shot Near Lakefield

A record for fast re-loading could possibly be claimed by marksman Harold Hume (left) who, while hunting in the Lakefield district, spotted a black bear standing on his haunches approximately 75 feet away. Hume pulled the trigger of his .32 Special and got no result, the bullet chamber being empty. The second time, however, he shot the 137-pound bear through the heart. The animal rolled about 30 feet after being hit. Harold Hume was hunting with Irvin Clark, both of the Upper Lachute area.

All Branches Represented at County W. Inst. Semi-Annual

The Argenteuil Women's Institutes held their semi-annual meeting at Lachute High School on Saturday, commencing at 2 p.m.

Mrs. M. H. Crosby, the county president, was in the chair and the meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada".

The installation of officers was conducted by the provincial treasurer, Mrs. Gordon Cooke.

Fifty-five members anaswered the roll-call, and all branches of the county were represented.

The treasurer reported a balance of $417.68 in hand and the following items of business were transacted:

Mrs. Warwick, the convener appointed to look into the needs of the County Youth Hostels, reported that a parcel containing blankets, pots and saucepans was sent, and that a letter of appreciation had been duly received from the Hostel.

Regarding the matter of report cards in schools, all W.I. branches voted in favor of continuing this system.

Referring to W.I. fair exhibits, it was decided to levy the usual 25c. per member, also to try and obtain a local judge, and to cut down on the amount of prizes. The convener of Fair Work, Mrs. F. Campbell, was requested to solicit donations from several large city companies.

The Argenteuil Emergency Educational Loan Fund was discussed, and it was moved by Mrs. G. McGibbon, seconded by Mrs. P. Staniforth, that the loan be raised to $200 and be available to any High School pupil recommended by the principal of his or her school, and by the W.I. executive; and said pupil be given one year after completion of course to repay the loan.

The Citizenship convener, Mrs. E. Rogers, will deposit the Women's Institute wreath at the Remembrance Day service.

Mrs. G. Leggett introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Leonard Ayers, now Regional Chairman of the Cancer Society of the Province of Quebec. The Branch office of this organization, soon to be opened at Lachute, will serve the six nearby townships, and will be called the "Ladies' Branch of the Argenteuil County Cancer Society". . . Any woman in this district wishing a medical examination, is invited to contact the Branch Office, which will immediately make an appointment with any one of the eight city hospitals chosen—the examinations to be free of charge.

Mrs. Ayers was cordially thanked by Mrs. G. McGibbon, and the meeting adjourned with the singing of the national anthem.

Pupil-Persuasion Swells Parent Attendance at B'bg Home-School Association

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — As usual, the year's Association will be a big "open house" meeting of the Home and School Association attracted a large turnout. This one was a record — a fair crowd for a hockey match, and if even only a quarter of them keep coming back, this would fulfill the honor by presiding over a successful term. He appealed to the assembly to "come out to the other five meetings and assure the success of this term". He pointed out that success was not a case of how much money the organization could amass, but how well it would serve in making the parents as much as possible "a parallel part of the children's education".

The new president, Mr. Gervais, welcomed the parents and thanked them for their interest. He also thanked them for electing him to office and hoped sincerely that he

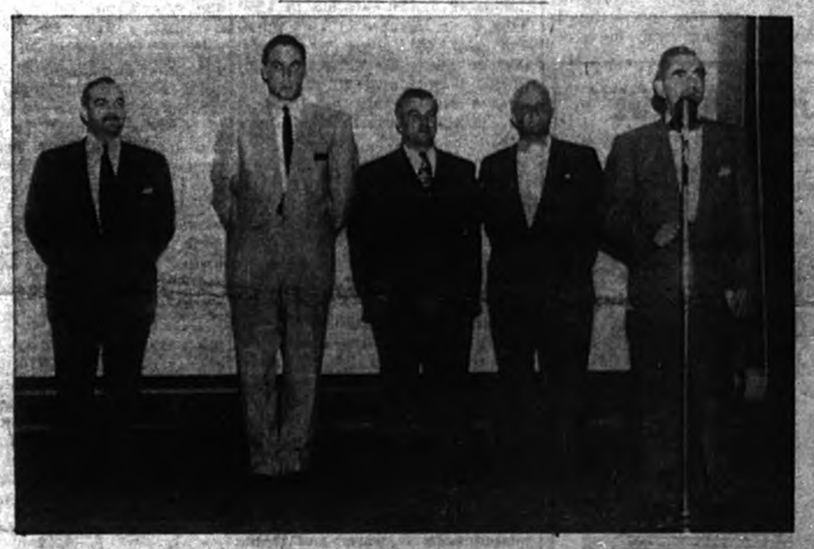

Two particular items of interest were: the fact that the Association had not renewed its membership in the National Film Board library, and the fact that the Association is using a new angle to promote attendance. . . . Anyone interested in the films can see them at the Women's Institute showing. . . . . The promotional gimmick is the introduction of a pennant. The class which hounds out the most parents will display the pennant until defeated; the highest percentage counts.

Mr. Golphin, chairman of the school board, addressed the parents, mainly on finance. He explained the necessity for having two Grade I classes this year; 52 enrolments is a very good reason. Concerning the inauguration of Grade XI class, he pointed out that the usual expenditures of some $2,300 for Grade XI at Lachute were to be increased this year to almost $5,000. Encompassing this higher education standard will entitle the school to a better allowance from the government. Financially, it will work fine, but of course the fact that there are now 333 pupils emphasizes that expansion to the building is inevitable. Mr Golphin ("Jack", to most) read out the estimated revenues and expenditures. It is interesting to note that the 1% sales tax should bring the school board about $4,000.

Before the meeting ended to allow for the "open house", Mrs. Johnston presented a book to the library in memory of the late Miss Edith Wheeler.

Grade XI with a 90% turnout — 9 out of 10 — won the new pennant.

New Cath. School Dedicated by Bishop Frenette

An impressive ceremony was witnessed Sunday afternoon when His Excellency Mgr. Emilien Frenette, bishop of the St. Jerome diocese, officially blessed and opened the new Catholic Central School in St. Philippe. The school is under the supervision of the Sisters of Ste. Croix.

Assisting His Excellency at the ceremonies was Mgr. C. William Lacourse, P.D., V.F., Canon Vitalis Bouchard, local parish priests, the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, with various church, school and civic dignitaries from the district.

A welcome was expressed to the Sisters of the Ste. Croix order, who arrived in St. Philippe in September to assume teaching duties at the new school.

One of the principal speakers at the opening ceremonies was the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, who expressed his appreciation at being invited on this occasion, and spoke on general aspects of education throughout the province.

This year the Quebec Provincial Government has spent around $75,000,000 on education, he said — a record for the province. The Department last year opened 377 new schools with a total of 2,006 classrooms.

"It is inspiring — believe me — to attend such a ceremony as this, the opening of a new school", he added. In a word for the younger generation who will be pupils at this school, he urged that they attend regularly and profit from their studies by self-effort. Education, he said, is the greatest gift of God next to life and health.

Bishop Frenette stated that he was in favor of such central schools and was pleased to see yet another one in his diocese. In his address, he felicitated the Hon. Mr. Cottingham, who had on numerous occasions professed his prime interest in affairs of education, both Catholic and Protestant. "One cannot be neutral, without God or without religion — as, without these, there is no moral standard, and without morals there is no peace or justice."

The ceremonies were closed with the singing of "O Canada" and "God Save the Queen".

The new school, which will replace several condemned school-buildings in the St. Philippe area, was blessed by His Excellency Bishop Emilien Frenette, and will be under the direction of the Sisters of Ste. Croix.

PHONY HUNTERS

It is deplorable that so many of the so-called and self-professed "hunters" in this area have not got the slightest idea how to handle a gun. This applies equally to many of the "experienced" hunters.

Ste. Rose Ch. Commerce Undertakes Survey of Sanitary Conditions

Rosemere, Que., Oct. 25 — A survey of sanitary conditions in Rosemere municipality is being made by an engineer of the Quebec Department of Health, under the sponsorship of the Rosemere Chamber of Commerce. Samples of water from wells in all sections of the community are being taken and analyzed, and the proximity of septic tanks and other possible sources of pollution are noted.

This action followed a recent announcement by Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation officers that the Corporation had temporarily suspended insuring loans on new homes, due to reports that the water from a few wells in one area had been reported either "doubtful" or "unsafe". This suspension was later removed from all districts, east of Florian Street, which is a short distance east of the Protestant School. Aproximately four-fifths of the area where new homes are being built has now been removed from the suspension order, and Mayor H. J. Hemens said the municipal council expects that this area will soon be enlarged.

Mayor Hemens also said that the Council is preparing a by-law to provide for the inspection of all wells and septic tanks, and that the survey now being made was undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce at the request of the municipal council.

Charged With Theft

Laurian Gauthier, 22, of St. Philippe, was placed under arrest Monday by Det. Ralph Allen in connection with a quantity of copper wire reported missing by local Gatineau Power officials.

Gauthier was spotted near some wire cable in the Pine Hill area, and the provincial police were notified of the suspect, who was picked up shortly after.

Charged with theft, the accused will appear before Judge Eugene Archambeault in St. Jerome court tomorrow, Friday.

Cape Breton Island has almost twice the area of the province of Prince Edward Island, 2,970 square miles as compared to 2,184 square miles.

Several Fire Calls, No Big Outbreaks

A two-car garage owned by René Lavigne, of the Centreville Road, was burned to the ground early on Saturday morning in a fire that lasted several hours. A car and truck in the garage were driven out before the fire consumed them.

Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon was informed of the fire around 1.30 a.m. Saturday, and took the auxiliary fire-truck and six men to the spot, a short distance off the Lachute-St. Andrews road. Little could be done to save the building, due to lack of water, but the fire-crew remained on duty in case the fire should spread to surrounding buildings.

Several calls for chimney fires have been received. Also, on Sunday evening a tarpaulin on a truck loaded with Christmas trees caught fire and was extinguished by Ray Boyd, George Rowe and Ken Wilson, who arrived on the scene about the same time as the fire department was informed of the outbreak. Little damage resulted. The accident occurred on the steepest section of Main Street.

Last year the total of tourists visiting Canada from the State of Vermont represented 97.5 per cent of car registrations in that state.

ADEQUATE HOUSE WIRING

The wiring in your home is somewhat like the water piping. If the pipes are too small, opening more than one faucet at a time reduces the normal flow of water from each.

Too small house wiring and too many appliances cause excessive voltage drop. The more appliances connected the lower the voltage.

You cannot see the flow of electricity, but you find its effect in the operation of the appliances — all electrical appliances take longer to do their varied tasks when your wiring is overloaded.

Overloaded circuits are dangerous because overloaded wires heat up to a dangerous degree, charring the insulation and eventually causing fires that could have been prevented.

Modern appliances are more efficient, use more watts and they do their work faster and better than ever before. And there are many more of them than ten years ago.

Your local electrician can help you. We suggest you talk your wiring problems over with him.

Farm Radio Forum To Resume Monday

The 1955-56 series of the National Farm Radio Forum begins next week, Monday, at 8.30 p.m. on the Trans-Canada network. It is the 16th season for the joint project of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Canadian Association for Adult Education and the CBC, which sets out to discuss and help solve problems common to rural communities across Canada. The programs are produced in Toronto by R. S. (Jimmy) James of the CBC's farm department, with people from different parts of the country participating in them.

The first discussion topic (on October 31) is "Teacher or Sitter?" — Why is there a rural teacher shortage, and how can it be overcome?

Topics between now and the end of March will include farm management, retirement plans, price supports, trade and tariffs, medical and hospital services, father-son partnerships, and the farmer and the government.

Something to Learn From Russian Agriculture

(Washington Post)

It is refreshing to read in the comments of the head of the American farm delegation that visited Russia an acknowledgment that this country may have a few things to learn from the Soviet Union.

Dean W. V. Lambert of the University of Nebraska college of agriculture evidently is one man who does not permit his pride to obscure his vision. He praised the Russian system of planting shelter belts of trees as windbreaks and checks against drifting snow — a system which, he says, goes far beyond what the United States has done. "I am certain much could be gained", he added, "by having a few American foresters in Russia for one or two years, working along with the Soviet forestry specialists." Doubtless there are other techniques in the Soviet Union which Americans could observe to advantage.

The kind of objective attitude exhibited by Dean Lambert — a refreshing contrast to the supercilliousness sometimes evidenced by others — ought to increase the pressure for further technicians and observers.

Marked Growth in 4-H Club Membership

One of the most successful years in junior club work in Canada will culminate in the 25th Annual National 4-H Club Week in Toronto, November 13-18, during the holding of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair. A record number of 116 girls and boys will attend, all of whom have been selected for outstanding club work in their respective provinces.

Though they will be kept busy in Toronto competing in National judging competitions to select Canadian champion teams in clothing, food, dairy, beef, swine, poultry, grain and potato projects, it will not all be work.

The group will stay at the Royal York Hotel and will participate in conducted educational tours, be entertained at banquets and other functions and visit Niagara Falls, Hamilton, and the National Capitol. They will attend the evening Horse Show as guests of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair Association, and see a hockey game at Maple Leaf gardens. A free afternoon will give the boys and girls an opportunity for shopping or seeing what they wish in Toronto.

Along with more widespread public interest, membership in 4-H club work is increasing steadily and this year established a new record in Canada of 72,784 enrolled in 4,952 clubs — an increase of 4,071 members and 164 clubs over 1954. Average age of the 72,784 members in 1955 is just over 13 years and average membership per club is 14.7. Of the total membership boys exceed the girls by 640.

Insulation of Barn Ventilators

Insulation is the most important factor to consider when ventilating the dairy barn.

Walls of the barn require insulation to keep the barn warm thus preventing condensation of moisture on the inside of the building. According to a report on temperature and velocity records at the Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, outlet flues must be very well insulated to operate satisfactorily.

The foul, moist air in a well insulated barn is warm and if the outlet flue is insulated properly it will remain warm and continue to rise on out through the top vent. If an outlet duct is not insulated, the air in the duct becomes cooler and tends to cause a down draft into the barn.

The ventilator flues in many dairy barns are now constructed with one layer of paper and two layers of lumber which does not provide sufficient insulation. Vent operation can be improved by applying two layers of one-half inch insulation board on the outside of the flue. Additional insulation can also be provided by stacking baled straw around the vent. The bales should be stacked tightly around the flue from the mow floor to the roof and held in place with hay wire.

It should be remembered that good ventilation is dependent upon whether or not the barn is insulated properly.

In Canada in 1939 there were 13 agricultural workers for every seven employed in manufacturing; today there are 13 manufacturing workers for every eight employed in agriculture.

OFFICER'S REMARKS QUOTED IN MOSCOW

—Central Press Canadian

Alleged remarks by A/C F. S. Carpenter, RCAF, above, were quoted by Russia's Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich to Canada's External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson in Moscow. Air Commodore Carpenter is reported by a Halifax correspondent as saying that the RCAF position was to let the Russians know "we can knock hell out of them." Pearson called the remark "stupid" and told Kaganovich the matter would be taken up with the Department of National Defence in Ottawa.

4-H Club Outing To Capital City

Members and friends of the Lachute 4-H Calf Club travelled to Ottawa last Saturday, a bus-load of 34 boys and girls leaving Lachute at 8.15 a.m. and arriving at the Parliament Buildings around 10.30 a.m., after a most colorful trip along the Ottawa River on the Ontario side.

At the Parliament Buildings a guide escorted the group through the House of Commons and House of Lords, explaining the historical and interesting facts as he proceeded. The group then walked along the corridors to the Peace Tower, where they had an excellent view of the Capital from all directions. The young visitors then returned to the bus for lunch.

In the afternoon they visited the National Museum and the National Art Gallery, a short distance from the Parliament Buildings, enjoying a very interesting and educational tour with everything imaginable to see — from dinosaurs to Indians and all the birds and animals that live or have lived in Canada, stuffed and in lifelike settings. A wide collection of Canadian and European paintings was inspected at the art gallery. The group then left by bus for the National War Museum, where all the weapons and implements of the last two World Wars were on display.

At 3.15 p.m. the group left for home after their most interesting trip.

The tour of the Parliament Buildings was arranged through the kindness of Philippe Valois, M.P., and the bus trip by Ross Oswald, the club leader, and Jean Pintal, local Agronome.

Accident Verdict In Lac St. Denis Airman's Death

Inquest Held Here in Recent Auto Fatality

A verdict of accidental death was returned in the case of an 18-year-old RCAF man, fatally injured in a car accident near the Lac St. Denis airforce station.

The victim, Gordon MacFarlane, of Chatham, N.B., was one of nine passengers in the vehicle which skidded and overturned. He died in hospital September 29, after 25 days in an unconscious condition.

The verdict was reached by a coroner's jury at the inquest held by District Coroner Dr. A. R. Cote, in the Court House here last Thursday. Crown Prosecutor Marc Boucher assisted in the questioning.

In connection with the case, a recommendation had been made to the Quebec Attorney-General's department by Provincial Police urging the prosecution of an RCAF police corporal for allegedly obstructing the investigation of the accident; it was expected, however, the complaint would be withdrawn. . . . The recommendation stated that one, Cpl. Stanley Wrzeszcznski, 24, obstructed the investigation by preventing Traffic Officer Fernand Nadon of the Quebec Provincial Police from entering the RCAF grounds and hospital, where the injured were taken for treatment.

Capt. Leopold Trottier of the Provincial Police indicated that a mutual agreement had been reached and that he would withdraw his recommendation to the Attorney-General's department.

Cpl. Wrzeszcznski testified at the inquest that he had not prevented the officer entering the grounds, but had merely asked him to wait outside until the injured had been treated and the confusion in the base hospital straightened out. Four of the nine passengers were held in hospital.

It was pointed out that all persons, including officers of the law, are prohibited from entering the station unless escorted by the proper authorities, and the RCAF police corporal stated that he could not leave his post at the time the Traffic Officer requested. (This regulation does not apply to officers of the RCMP.)

The witness said also, that because he could not understand French and Nadon could not understand English, Nadon "stalked off in anger" thinking that he was being barred from the grounds.

Called as witnesses were Flight Lieut. R. D. Albert, 38; Dr. Jean Paul Vallancourt, 31, of Montreal, who performed the autopsy; the RCAF police corporal and Provincial Traffic Officer; also Brian MacKay, 19, the driver of the car, and six other passengers in the car at the time of the accident.

Dr. Vallancourt stated his opinion that the victim's death was due to prolonged unconsciousness and lack of oxygen in the blood, caused by pleurisy.

Traffic Officer Nadon gave a description of the battered car and five pictures were admitted as evidence.

Testimony of the passengers was almost identical, to the effect that they left a hotel between 1.30 and 2 a.m. Saturday, September 3. There were nine occupants in the car, and as it was foggy in spots, the driver kept his speed to between 25 and 30 m.p.h. The accident occurred approximately three miles from the hotel and was caused, according to the driver and several of the passengers, by blinding lights. MacKay stated that, as he met the oncoming car near a curve, he pulled over close to the soft shoulder and apparently the loose gravel pulled him into the ditch. The oncoming car was well over the centre of the road, according to MacKay.

Several of the witnesses were once again called to the stand. The six-man jury then withdrew, and four minutes later returned a verdict of accidental death with no criminal negligence. They also added a recommendation that the road signs in the area be moved farther away from the curve.

Microscopes and Rice

After more than 250,000 hand cross-pollinations of various Asian rice varieties, international scientists have obtained hybrid seeds which may as much as double the yield of rice fields in the Far East. This vast agricultural experiment is being conducted in Cuttack, India, by several Asian governments with the technical assistance of the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), a United Nations specialized agency. The Cuttack scientists and technicians, such as the one shown above making a microscopic examination of some rice hybrids, worked with eight Japanese and 33 other varieties of rice from 10 countries of South and East Asia. Rice is the basic food of more than half of the world's population today, FAO reports.

Back At Par

FOR MORE than three years the Canadian dollar has been at a premium over the United States dollar in the world's market. It has been a mixed blessing — it made it easier for Canada to pay for goods bought from the U.S., but it put Canadian exporters at a disadvantage.

To the Canadian tourist on his expeditions below the line, it was a shot-in-the-arm while it lasted! The priority of the Canadian dollar imparted a certain sense of prestige after our long years of currency inferiority. . . Well anyway, we're on equal terms again.

Last week, after a slow decline stretching over several weeks, the Canadian dollar eased down to par for the first time since March 7, 1952. Many reasons were given for the drop. Most often mentioned was a movement of speculative capital from Canada to countries where interest rates are higher.

Old. Argument Challenged

THE NOTION held by many — that famine, disease and war are necessary checks to population growth in the densely populated areas of the world — has been strongly condemned by a group of Anglican clergy. It is pointed out that Christian morality demands concern for the sanctity of the individual. The Church, it is felt, has the clear role to move people to think of these problems in terms of individual people — their lives, and their needs — not in terms of countless teeming masses in some remote spot on the map of the world.

These sentiments emerged from a conference at Macdonald College, where clergymen gathered recently under sponsorship of the Rural Life and Work Committee of the Anglican Diocese of Montreal. The meeting was attended by 35 rural clergy, Canadian and foreign agricultural experts, and delegates from labor, farm and educational associations.

If only our present knowledge of food production, processing, and distribution were applied, we could feed the world, the Conference delegates concluded. While admitting there is serious malnutrition and that dietary deficiency diseases are rampant in all countries of the world including our own and the U.S., the meeting affirmed that it is possible to support close to twice the present world population on adequate diets by the application of scientific knowledge. An essential part of a program to expand food production, it was held, is to convert peasant farmers to professional farmers who will have products to sell. And (anti-immigrationists note!) to complete the cycle, there will have to be increasing numbers of workers gainfully employed in industry to buy the production of the farms.

Large-scale industrialization, low interest farm credit facilities, reforms in land tenure, cooperative organization, rural electrification, irrigation projects and the development of agricultural industries, backed with adequate provision for needed government services, universal education, and technical training would go a long way in solving the basic needs in the world's food deficit areas at the present time.

THREE HUNDRED and forty-seven autumns have come and gone in Canada since Champlain saw the river freeze from his flimsy habitation and found himself alone in a new world. After all that time, says Bruce Hutchison in The Financial Post, with all its toil and harvests, all its progress and wealth — all the bookkeeping of the state, the skillful management of government and the thin disguises of civilization — autumn returns unchanged, and a few miles from the pavement the Canadian feels again the old familiar loneliness and the cooling substance of the continent.

IT IS important to know the three most important traffic signals before taking the wheel of an automobile.

Too many don't know that the arm should be lowered to indicate a drop in speed; placed horizontally to indicate a left turn; and raised high to signify a right-hand turn.

Simple enough — but still to be learned by many motorists.

The Changing North

THE POPULAR picture of the Eskimo in the average Canadian's mind has him dashing over the ice behind his dogs, hunting with poised harpoon over a seal hole or chomping on blubber in a crowded igloo.

We'll have to change that picture if the Eskimos continue their invasion of the white man's world of arts and trades.

Two recent news reports point up the native northerner's adaptability in fields long considered too complex for his presumably limited intelligence.

Ottawa announced that eight Eskimo craftsmen have created Canada's first Arctic mace, a graceful symbol of parliamentary authority to be used by the Northwest Territories Council. The delicately balanced mace was fashioned of whalebone, the wood of a ship lost in the Arctic, and parts of an old copper kettle.

The Eskimos, working steadily for 35 days from a rough sketch, showed astonishing skill in perfecting the 35-pound rod. They fashioned an Edward's crown without measuring instruments and produced an orb of whalebone as round and smooth as a billiard ball.

The whole job is a beautiful piece of native art which increased the esteem which Eskimo carving has attained in the last few years.

Again, a group of Eskimos at Fort Churchill have demonstrated in work for the northern affairs department that they are fully capable of gaining a place in the white man's world of trades.

They are tile layers, carpenters, electricians, tinsmiths, painters, and earn the going rate for their trades. They compete with the white man and often excell him at work their fathers never knew existed.

Department officers tell of army mechanics working on a bulky outboard motor for 10 hours without success. An Eskimo took over and in an hour and a half had it humming perfectly.

Officials say their mechanical ability seems inborne. They went on staff as laborers but quickly moved to trades jobs and were doing as good, if not better, jobs than their fellow white workers.

Alas, they are finding that life with the white man isn't all gravy. Before their pay envelopes are given them the deductions so familiar to us for income tax, unemployment insurance, etc., are extracted.

Whither — and What Next

THE APPROACH of winter brings back the home-heating problem. Personally we're sticking to the old-time shovel; but admittedly, we're a little confused. . .

We noted a press-picture recently which showed a Gatineau resident in a frustrated pose: oil in his water-pump! And that's no joke, even if those neighboring hills may be rich in oil.

We unconsciously absorb all the ads which laud the merits of oil heating.

We note with interest the advances and setbacks attending that project to pipe natural gas from the West, all the way to Montreal and Eastern Canada. We speculate on its possibilities.

A recent advertisement by the local power company advised against the use of electricity for home-heating, due to contingencies presently beyond human control.

And so it goes — till our attention is drawn to an industrial venture in Nova Scotia, the manufacture of "New automatic furnaces designed to buck oil as a domestic fuel and boost the province's lagging coal industry".

— Yes, we're a little confused; but pending the advent of atomic heating, we guess we'll keep the shovel handy.

A CYCLIST recently lost a damage action as a result of not having his bicycle equipped with reflectors. . . . The Quebec Motor Vehicle Act clearly states these requirements.

The bicycle should have an ordinary reflector in the front, and a red reflector at the rear. These reflectors are a help to the cyclist and motorist alike. It keeps the cyclist from being hit, and it keeps the motorist from hitting him.

VITAL ROLE

Too many people fail to realize the vital place the Opposition occupies in the British parliamentary system and how much the country loses when the Opposition is unable to function owing to lack of power, lack of numbers, or both.

NEW TEXTBOOK SHOWS PRACTICAL PROBLEMS

Saint John N.B. (CP) — Commercial students in New Brunswick are poring over a new mathematics textbook this year — one that was 20 years in the making.

Robert MacFarlane of the Saint John Vocational School says his book will also be used in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland on a trial basis.

The book is based on a theory that many teachers have been suggesting for years — "to be useful it must be practical".

Sums to be worked out in this new textbook are the kind of problems that face people every day.

Must Be Accurate

Accuracy is the big lesson the book teaches. "Students using the book are expected to be accurate," says Mr. MacFarlane. "The file clerk who makes one mistake a day will not last long on a job. The same applies to a cashier who is out a few cents every so often or a receptionist who mixes up appointments".

The textbook is practical. It shows the girl student how to prepare grocery lists and how to shop, a place where addition and subtraction certainly comes in useful. It also teaches them how to figure recipes.

It shows how to work such problems as how long it takes to stop a car going a certain speed under certain conditions and many other useful problems.

"A PUBLIC SERVICE ?"

Times are certainly changing! There was a day — under a happier administration — when Canada boasted a postal service second to none. But that was before we allowed ourselves to fall under a virtual dictatorship which leads us around by the nose and the odd Order-in-Council. If today's postal fiasco can be termed a service, then anything slipshod is entitled to the name.

For some time now, I have rushed to beat the deadlines with the Journal. Unfortunately, inspiration — such as it has been and what there has been of it — has failed me until the last minute. More often than not, the articles have been penned just in time to catch the last postal collection for Lachute. Sometimes, in fact, I have been so far behind that I have run with my copy to the Ottawa train of a Monday evening, so that the compositor could work on it first thing on Tuesday morning. At least, that is what I thought I had been doing. It came as a very rude shock this afternoon to find that I had been doing nothing of the kind.

Being late again in writing last week's offering, and having missed the final collection on Sunday evening, I telephoned the Central Post Office to enquire when I would have to post my letter to have it in The Watchman's hands on Monday evening.

"At the Place d'Armes office," the official told me, "the mail for Lachute closes at 1.30 p.m. It closes here at 3.05 p.m."

I looked at my watch. It was then 1.15 and I had clearly missed the Place d'Armes pickup. As I had little hope of finishing the copy before three o'clock, I stood to miss the Central pickup as well. So I telephoned the people at Windsor station to enquire what time the train left for Lachute.

"The north-shore train to Ottawa," I was told, "leaves Windsor street at 5.35 p.m."

Now, just why it takes four hours to transport mail from Place d'Armes to Windsor station, and over two hours to cart it across the street from the Central Post Office, the government's servant didn't say. Perhaps they read all the postcards before they hook up the bags. Or maybe they employ an old age pensioner in a wheel chair to run the mail from the post office to the station. Who knows? Your guess is as good as mine!

Anyway, having decided to catch the Ottawa flyer at Westmount, I raced out of the office at five o'clock and made my way west by MTC. Miraculously I reached the station with five minutes to spare.

As soon as the train ground to a stop, I dutifully trotted my letter up to the mail car and handed it to the clerk who had his face stuck out the door.

"I don't take that," he shouted. "Give it to the man in the express car!"

Without saying why mail clerks don't take mail and expressmen do, he slammed the sliding door in my face.

"Letter for Lachute," I called out when I reached the express car.

"Won't get there tonight," the expressman called back. "I put it in the box here and it goes to Ottawa. It will come east to Lachute in the morning!"

"But it's got to get there tonight!" I bellowed.

"Can't help that," express replied. "It has to go to Ottawa first. They'll get it in Lachute tomorrow morning for sure."

Well, I could have saved a dreary tram ride and twenty cents by simply dropping the letter in the post box outside my office. But having come so far, it seemed silly to tote the letter all the way back with me. So I gave it to the expressman and he popped it into the black tin box.

As I write this, my letter is somewhere in the box on a CPR express car that is just entering the station at Lachute. But they won't let my letter out of that box. The epistle has a five cent stamp on it, and it's got to travel somewhere for all that money. Besides, the mail clerk is far too busy stamping mail for Halifax and points farther east to worry his head with anything bound as far west as Lachute!

Atomic Radiation to Preserve Historic Relics

Atomic radiation may be used to save the aged timbers in Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral and hundreds of other ancient churches and wooden relics threatened by gnawing insects.

This is the suggestion of Sir John Cockcroft, head of the British delegation to the recent atoms-for-peace conference in Geneva.

Sir John said that tests at the British Forest Products Laboratory indicate that low doses of radiation make infertile the eggs of insects inhabitng the ancient timbers.

Chief among these insect pests is the deathwatch beetle, which lays its eggs inside timbers.

Nelson's flagship, the Victory, is among the most seriously threatened of Britain's treasures. In one short test period, more than 7,000 beetles were picked off a lower deck of the wooden vessel.

If further British testing indicates the method is successful, atomic radiation may be the means of preserving many wooden relics now threatened by insects.

OF MANY THINGS

A Lesson

While you may never want to be a newspaper man, you might still learn a valuable lesson from the experience of my friend George. It is a lesson all the really important men learned at some time in their lives, but George was forced into it.

Determined to be a journalist, he talked himself into a job with the weekly paper in his home town; and soon was able to persuade the editor to let him write a little column of his own. Each week-end George would go to the library "to get ideas" for his column.

They always looked pretty good in print, but no one in the town seemed very impressed. Young George was very disappointed in the results, and baffled, too, because after all he was using the same ideas Ruskin and Emerson and other famous writers used. Then why did his writing attract no attention?

He put the question to his editor, who replied, "George, try this. Stay away from the library this week. Write a column about your young brother. Don't use notes and don't look for ideas from any source but the top of your own head. Then, the next week write about national affairs if you like—but again, use your own observations. We'll see what happens."

The next two columns weren't very smooth, but Mrs. Brown stopped George on the street to say, "I clipped that piece about the young boy — it reminded me so much of my son." The town lawyer dropped in, later, to argue a point with George on international affairs and George learned from the lawyer.

"Why," George said to his editor, "is my stuff more effective than before?"

There is a lesson in the answer. "Nobody pays attention to leaners — and you were leaning on old Ruskin and Emerson. Later, you will learn from them without leaning on them. It's only when you are a producer in your own right that you become a fellow-citizen with the great. That goes for life as well as literature."

Beet Pulp vs. Bulky Las

See the plus value that BULKY LAS has over Beet Pulp. The best buy is the feed that rates well in ALL feeding values:

FEEDING VALUE	BULKY LAS	BEET PULP
Digestible Nutrients	High	Low
Palatability & Relish	Very High	Low
Lime & Phosphorus	High	Low
Variety	High	None
Protein	Medium	Low
Conditioning Value	Very High	Good
Laxative Value	High	High
Cud-making Character	Excellent	Good
Heating Qualities	Low	Low
Bulk	High	High

You can see from the above table that BULKY LAS is a much better buy than Beet Pulp.

Also, 100 lbs. of BULKY LAS is equal to 500 lbs. of Silage, and also has better variety and makes cows drink more water.

100 lbs. BULKY LAS is equal to 400 lbs. pasture and also contains more solid food value and holds flesh better.

100 lbs. BULKY LAS is equal to 200 lbs. hay, is more palatable, more digestible, and has less waste.

Put in a supply of BULKY LAS instead of Beet Pulp this fall. It will make you more money. We will be pleased to serve you. Won't you give us your order today?

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

As soon as possible I'm going to pack my cardboard suitcase and buy a ticket for Sark in the Channel Islands.

It says in the paper that Sark is the place where you pay income tax according to your appearance. If you look rich, they soak you. If you look down-at-heel, they let you off lightly.

There is now law permitting the tax ferrets of Sark to examine your bank balance. Instead, they take you at face value. That's why I want to go there. Since my normal appearance even after the most careful grooming is that of a man who has slept under a bridge, I should be able to induce the revenue department of Sark to let me live tax-free.

By all the rules of fair play, they should pay me an annual grant.

At last, this looks like a new deal for us men who are the wrong shape to wear clothes, but look even worse without them.

It isn't for lack of trying that I fail to achieve that freshly-varnished appearance that men have in the magazine advertisements. I wash quite often. I also shave. I put on clean shirts now and then, and I have also been known to polish my shoes and get my suit pressed.

But somehow I fail to co-ordinate all these well-meaning efforts. My shoes may gleam, but I have neglected to have my hair cut. My shirt may cling snugly to the neck at 9 a.m., but by noon my collar has come adrift and my tie is leaning to port.

I remember reading about a man who suffered from the same difficulty. It roused such a burst of fellow-feeling that my cufflink started from its socket and launched my clean shirt sleeve into a mug of coffee. I found that I was not alone. There were other sartorial freaks in the world too.

The depth of my inconfidence in matters of grooming was brought home to me by a remark which I overheard at a party. I had tried especially hard to conform to all the the tribal conventions of dress, but when I heard what the man said, I knew I had wasted my time.

"Usually Mortimore looks like a sack," he observed, "but tonight he looks like a pressed sack."

I have stopped grieving about all that now. At last I am going to receive a little financial balm for all those sneers from my well-groomed fellow-men and stifled giggles from the girls.

There's a happy tax-free home waiting for men who look like a pressed sack, in Sark.

OBITUARY

Last Tribute Paid to Late Alden MacLeod

The untimely death of Alden MacLeod, on Saturday, October 15, caused a severe shock to his family, relatives and friends.

Alden was born in Rivington, Que., on September 12, 1921, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. James MacLeod. Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Wendell Boyd (Mildred), of Calumet, and Mrs. Stanley Poulter (Bernice), of St. Philippe, four nieces and one nephew.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held from his home on Tuesday afternoon, October 18, to Harrington United Church. The service was conducted by the Rev. W. Bridge, of Lachute. Hymns chosen for the service were "Just as I am", which was a favored selection, and "Abide With Me".

Pall-bearers were six cousins — Wyman MacLean, Lyle McCutcheon, John Meyer, Chas. MacLeod, Willie MacLeod and Irvine Pearson.

Friends and relatives attending from a distance were — Mr. and Mrs. David Mulligan, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Sellers, of Buckingham, Que.; Mr. Emmett Johnson, of Calumet Island, Que.; Mr. Richard MacTavish, of Lake Wayagamack, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCutcheon and daughter Janice, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle McCutcheon, of Port Colborne, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Pearson, of Calumet Island, Que.; and many others from Montreal and Ottawa.

Former Resident Brought To Lachute for Burial

The Late Gilbert Walker of Eastend, Saskatchewan

Gilbert Walker, a one-time resident of Lachute, passed away Sunday, October 23, in Eastend, Sask., in his 78th year.

Born in this community April 4, 1878, he left these parts at an early age and took up residence in Eastend, where he remained until the time of his death.

He was predeceased by his parents, William Walker and Elizabeth Drysdale, and two sisters, Eva Stevenson and Gertrude Bradley. A nephew, Hugh Stevenson, of Hudson Heights, survives.

A funeral service will be held at the MacKimmie Funeral Parlor at 2 p.m. Saturday. Interment will be in the Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

DEATH

MacLEOD — At Pointe au Chene, Que., on Saturday, October 15, 1955, Alden MacLeod, in his 35th year. Only son of Mr. and Mrs. James MacLeod, of Rivington, Que., and brother of Mildred and Bernice. Funeral held from his home on Tuesday, Oct. 18, 2.30 p.m., to Harrington United Church. Interment Shaw's Cemetery, Harrington.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

MacLEOD — We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from all kind friends, neighbors and relatives, in our recent bereavement of a beloved son and brother. — Mr. and Mrs. J. MacLeod and family.

IN MEMORIAM

KELLY — In memory of a dear mother and grandmother (Minnie), who passed away Oct. 21, 1950 — Always remembered by Freda, Wendell and grandchildren.

LANCTOT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, J. P. Lanctot, who passed away Oct. 27, 1953. — Ever remembered by his wife and family.

"You are not forgotten, loved one,
Nor will you ever be;
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee."

MacLEOD — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away Oct. 19, 1949. — Lovingly remembered by her family.

"There is someone who misses you sadly
And finds the time long since you went;
There is someone who thinks of you always
But tries to be brave and content;
There is someone who weeps in silence,
And breathes a sigh of regret,
For you are ours to remember
When others are sure to forget."

MUNRO — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Clarence Munro, who passed away on Oct. 12, 1952 — Lovingly remembered by his wife, Hilda, and two daughters, Hazel and Elaine.

"Memories are treasures no one can steal;
Death is a heartache no one can heal;
Some may forget you now you are gone,
But we will remember, no matter how long."

Rotary District Governor

He also stated that Rotary continued to grow and that there were now clubs in 92 countries and geographical regions throughout the world, all united in an endeavor to promote international understanding goodwill and peace. In addition to the activities of Rotary's 8,830 Clubs within their own communities to promote this objective, Rotary International had spent more than $1,750,000 in recent years through its program of student fellowships, which enable outstanding college graduates to study for one year in countries other than their own, as ambassadors of good will. Since 1947, when this program was established, 709 Rotary fellowships have been awarded to students in 57 countries.

With fellowship and service to others as its keynote, Rotary provides a common ground for 419,000 business and professional executives throughout the world. In addition, special emphasis is being placed by Rotary Clubs this year on activities of their own communities which will furnish leadership in youth programs, raise standards in business and professions, promote traffic safety, develop good citizenship and build better relationships among all sections of society.

Mr. Ballard was introduced by Wes Freeland and thanked by Keith Rutherford.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Lachute United W.M.S. September Session and Inspiring Thank-Offering

At the September meeting of the W.M.S. of Lachute United Church, the devotional period was taken by Mrs. A. I. Brown and the theme was "The Calling of Christ's Disciples". The program was arranged by Miss M. Cleary, Christian Citizenship secretary, and seven members took part in a discussion based on the work of the Canadian Association of Consumers.

The worship service of the October meeting was in charge of Mrs. J. R. McOuat, the president. Mrs. F. S. McGibbon then conducted a very impressive service of remembrance for the late Mrs. Wilson, who was a life member of the W.M.S. for many years. Mrs. Wilson was 91 years of age and had been active in attendance at church and W.M.S. meetings until a year before she was "called to higher service". Speaking of her, Mrs. McGibbon said, "Her beautiful, kindly personality will always be remembered by fellow-members, whose lives have been greatly enriched by her sojourn with us". . . The president spoke of the death of Miss Jessie Drew, who had served as organist for many years and as a choir member for 50 years.

Mrs. H. Riddell gave the story of one of the new study books entitled, "No Vanishing Race", dealing with the Canadian Indian today.

Mrs. Walker Scott, Supply secretary, reported that one personal parcel had been sent to a missionary in Korea and that a box of quilts and clothing was being prepared for shipment to Korea in November.

Mrs. H. Martin reported that many new associate members had been added to the roll.

* * *

The autumn thank-offering meeting was held last Thursday, and was well attended. Mrs. Bridge conducted the worship service on the Stewardship theme. Guest speaker was the Rev. Nettie Wilson, assistant minister of St. James United Church, Montreal. Miss Wilson told of her experiences on mission fields in Western Canada. The talk was most interesting, and revealed the great need for more workers even in our own land. In concluding, Miss Wilson said that "we folks in the East do not appreciate our churches and services as we should". The average eastern presbytery has 25 or 30 ministers, while the average western presbytery has six or eight. "Our prayers, our interest, are needed that more workers may come forward and more recruits for missionary nurses and teachers. . . God can do great things, but he needs our assistance. Each Christian steward has a share in the work of the Kingdom," she concluded.

Bible Briefs

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

Who was the father of the strongest man in the Bible? He lived in the time of the Judges. But the Israelites did evil in the sight of the Lord, and as a punishment, for forty years the Philistines had ruled over them.

This man lived in Zorah. It was a great grief to him and to his wife that she had no children. But one day the angel of the Lord appeared to his wife and said, "Behold, you shall conceive and bear a son. Therefore beware, drink no wine or strong drink, and eat nothing unclean. No razor shall come upon your son's head. For this boy shall be a Nazarite to God from birth. He will deliver your people from the Philistines."

The wife told her husband of the the angel's message. Then the man prayed, "O Lord, let the man of God come again to us and teach us what we are to do with the boy that will be born."

The angel appeared a second time to the wife when she was out in the field. She ran and told her husband. He hurried after the angel and talked with him. The husband offered hospitality saying, "Pray let us detain you, and prepar a kid for you". The Heavenly visitor refused, but suggested he offer a burnt offering to the Lord, who works wonders. This the Israelite did, and when the flame went up toward the Heavens from the altar, the angel of the Lord ascended in the Flame.

The man was afraid at this vision and he said, "We shall surely die". But his wife re-assured him. In time she bore her son, Samson. You will find the father's name and this story in the Thirteenth Chapter of Judges.

BAPTIST PASTOR, 81, LONG ACTIVE WORKER

Yarmouth, N.S. (CP) — The Rev. A. H. Whitman, pastor emeritus of the Zion Baptist church and dean of the clergy here, had double cause for celebration recently.

With his wife beside him, the 81-year-old pastor welcomed scores of friends to a reception marking his 56th wedding anniversary, and the 56th anniversary of his ordination to the ministry.

Mr. Whitman, whose pastorates included Sydney Mines and Amherst, N.S., and Saint John, Dorchester, Penobsquis and Moncton, N.B., graduated from Baptist Acadia university in 1898.

A year later he entered the ministry and married the former Bessie Helen Grant of West Newton, Mass., and Sydney.

Extra Labors

Not content with the regular duties of a pastor, Mr. Whitmar spearheaded construction of Clyde Avenue Baptist Church in Sydney Mines with a nucleus of only 12 church members.

His work in Dorchester took him behind the bleak walls of the Maritime penitentiary where he assisted the prison chaplain.

Although his last pastorate ended officially in 1950, Mr. Whitman describes himself as only partly retired.

He still conducts several services a year throughout Yarmouth county in the absence of the regular ministers.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

October 29, 1880 —

Wood wanted — We will feel obliged to those indebted to this office, and who intend paying us in wood, if they will bring it along as speedily as possible. Printers cannot work very well without heat.

The siding to the paper mills was commenced yesterday. Now is the time for the St. Andrews people to bestir themselves about having the track continued to their village.

A carload of apples was brought into town last week by Mr. John Hay.

Brownsburg — Mr. Daniel Smith, our energetic neighbor, has at last got his Powder Mill in working order and has commenced the manufacture of powder.

The Lachute Fall Fair was held last Tuesday, on the ground opposite the store of G. L. Meikle.

* * *

50 YEARS AGO

October 27, 1905 —

The shooting match to be held in the Victoria Rink next Friday for some 50 turkeys, is being much talked of.

Messrs. Geo. and John Hay arrived home on the S.S. Dominion on Tuesday last, and brought with them some 14 importations of Clydes, Hackneys and Shires.

* * *

25 YEARS AGO

October 31, 1930 —

In the early hours of Tuesday morning Mr. E. Lavigne, corner of Foundry and Bethany Streets, was robbed of a considerable quantity of goods from his store, and the thief, in search of money, was bold enough to enter Mr. Lavigne's bedroom and go through his pockets, from which he extracted quite a sum.

HITCH-HIKING

Probably most of us will never get over the habit of stopping to give a lift to some person we know, or somebody we are pretty sure it would be all right "to take a chance on". But some day we may regret it.

— Campbellton (N.B.) Tribune.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. W. Drysdale, of Plainville, Conn., and Miss Hazel Drysdale, of Montreal, spent Sunday visiting friends in Lachute.

Mrs. H. Brown, of Montreal, spent the week-end here as the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Falconer and Mr. Falconer.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fraser, accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Mason, have been visiting during the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Fraser in Tillsonburg, Ont.

"Exchange Sunday"

The Rev. C. R. Lang, rector of St. Simeon's, was guest preacher last Sunday at St. Alban's Anglican Church, Montreal, for the morning service, and at St. Cyprian's for the evening service. He was also at St. Alban's for the 8 a.m. Holy Communion service.

Replacing the Rev. Lang at St. Simeon's and St. George's Churches was the Rev. Nathan Noseworthy, B.A., L.Th., rector of St. Alban's Parish. . . Occasion for this exchange of pulpits was the annual Diocesan Exchange Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood, of Shawinigan Falls, were the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Bates.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Morrison returned home after spending two weeks in Toronto with their daughter, Mrs. George MacNeill and Mr. MacNeill.

Mr. Alex Robertson, of Tetreaultville, Que., is here to spend the winter in Lachute, at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Walker.

Miss Jennie Bates, of Montreal, and Mr. Lorne Payne, of Beaurepaire, Que., were week-end guests of Mr. D. J. Bates and Mrs. Sarah Sutton.

Mrs. Geo. Clunie returned home Saturday after spending the past few months with her daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Willard Cummings, in Manchester, N.H. Dr. and Mrs. Cummings and their youngest son, Master Willard, accompanied Mrs. Clunie to Lachute — Mrs. Cummings and son remaining here for a short visit with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dixon and daughter, of Montreal, spent the week-end at Staynerville and also visited Mrs. Dixon's mother, Mrs. Jas. Murdoch, in Lachute.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Buckley and family moved last week-end to Lanark, Ont., where Mr. Buckley has been posted since early this month as branch manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Mr. Buckley has been succeeded in the local managership by Mr. Gordon Higginson, of Grenville.

Salvation Army Officer Here

Major A. Dale, of the Salvation Army headquarters in Montreal, visited the local campaign chairman, Mr. Geo. Y. Deacon, on Monday, and took occasion to meet a few of the regular Red Shield helpers.

Mr. Deacon, commenting on this year's appeal, thanks the several who have responded to recent reminders in The Watchman, and will gladly receive any late contributions before closing the books.

Week-end guests at Clark's Farm included Mr. Stanley Wood and Mr. and Mrs. B. Dorcus and daughter, Bonnie, Mr. and Mrs. T. Dorcus and family, and Mr. Boyd Dorcus, all of Montreal.

Women's Institute Card Party Enjoyed

A "military whist" sponsored by the Upper Lachute Women's Institute was held in the Legion Hall last Thursday night; the event was an unqualified success.

Winners of the prizes were as follows:

1st — Mr. and Mrs. Neal Moore, Mrs. L. Hume, Mr. W. M. Hume.

2nd — Mrs. S. Sutton, Mrs. G. Ward, Mr. G. Dewar, Mr. R. Doig.

Booby — Mrs. M. Leishman, Mr. J. R. Brown, Mrs. H. Bazinet, Mrs. T. Iddon.

A box of groceries was drawn for, and was won by Mrs. Ray Langille.

The president of the branch, Mrs. H. Hume, thanked all those present for their attendance and support.

Mr. Thos. Iddon was m.c. for the proceedings. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

MUSICAL GATHERING RENEWS FRIENDSHIP

Chatham, Ont., (CP) — The long arm of coincidence reached out for Mrs. John C. MacFarlane here, and she could easily have sung for joy.

Mrs. McFarlane, who sings with a local glee club, lived in Scotland more than 20 years ago and was studying to be a singer under a certain Mr. Allanson Brown.

With his help she won a North England Musical Tournament medal for three consecutive years.

Five years ago Mrs. McFarlane settled in Chatham where she immediataely joined the Memorial Community Centre Glee Club.

When she turned out recently for the club's first session of the year, she was introduced to Mrs. Allanson Brown, whose husband had been appointed organist at Christ Church here. The couple had been living in Ottawa for years.

"I was stunned," said Mrs. MacFarlane, who looks forward to an early reunion with her old singing teacher.

WOLF WANDERS TO CENTRE OF CITY

—Central Press Canadian

Humane society employee, Jack Newman, examines the body of an animal shot by Toronto police and pronounces it a brush wolf. The animal, wandered almost to the centre of the city before an alert taxi-driver recognized it as "no dog" and called police. It was the first time a wolf had pentrated beyond the suburbs of the city without being recognized.

EXTRA HELP OPPOSED

London, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Postal Employees Association here is concerned about the post office practice of hiring casual labor. Members said they are not opposed to extra help at rush seasons but to employment of casual labor "all year round".

It is estimated that in the current year 128,000 new dwelling units will be built in Canada. For the year 1939 the total was 51,700.

Insomnia

By Ambrose Hills

"I didn't sleep a wink last night," the fellow said, "and I'm glad."

Seems that after an hour or two of tossing, the man finally made two or three important decisions and determined to carry them out. He felt so good about this that he was lively and energetic next day in spite of little sleep.

Maybe a bit of insomnia once in a while is good for a man. Maybe it is Nature's way of telling us to get busy and face our problems. The fellow who boasts that he can pound his ear at all times may not be so smart after all.

I think a small touch of insomnia is about due for Canadians. We've been sleeping too soundly while serious problems await a solution. Grain piles up; butter piles up; and immigration, which would improve our home market, is decreasing. We keep asking for more welfare, more of the comforts of life, but have yet to build a decent highway across our land; and at the same time we're denying our railroads fair treatment. Our national air service is not as good as it should be, because it is a monopoly. Our TV monopoly is beginning to cost us far more than we can afford, yet is doing a shamefully poor job of covering the news.

These are only a few of the problems. The textile industry and those who earn their living at it are in trouble. Theatres are closing, unable to compete with subsidized entertainment. Printers and publishers are operating on a dangerously low margin of profit, while the government invests millions in printing plants and publications of its own.

Yes, a touch of national insomnia might do some good. Otherwise the rude awakening will be too rude altogether!

Hope for the Dead

For a scripture study this week get the Booklet, "Hope for the Dead" and the survivors in a righteous new world. Price 10 cts.

"HOPE, the fondest ever entertained by righteous men is about to be fulfilled. Today, in the time of war and calamity, the vain hopes of selfish men are being blasted, but the true hope built upon an immovable foundation stands unshaken and sure now of early realization. It is an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast, during these wild days of swiftly-shifting conditions, and those having knowledge thereof are rejoicing in hope, though the world mourns.

"That lovers of righteousness may learn the true hope and need not sorrow as others who have no hope, this booklet is sent forth."

Down the Alley

By S-T-RIKE

Fina Garage, with Paul Sauvé at the helm, continue to set the pace in the Mixed Commercial League, according to statistics released by Eileen Morrison. They are now leading with 26 points, closely followed by the Flukers, captained by George Gordon, with 22. The Flukers, minus any name bowler in their line-up, are counteracting this lack with impressive team play. Although they have the second best team average of 647, Kingsbeer are 7 points off the pace in fourth position, 2 points away from John Deere, who hold down the third slot. . . . Fina Garage lead in team averages with 656.

There are some who say, and granted they are partially right, that the sport of bowling requires a series of lucky breaks in addition to skill. A speck of dust on the alley, a pin slightly off its spot, an unlucky pinfall. These and many other minute details often spell the difference between a top-notch score and an average score. Take all that for what it's worth; Jim Duncan has his "breaks" and his hard luck, but combine both with his bowling skill and you have (in this column's estimation) the foremost bowler in this area. Last week his high single of 193 and combined string total of 533 for 3, was far out of reach of any bowler. His present average of 170 based on 12 strings shows the consistency in which he tumbles the pins.

Duncan's closest rival in individual averages is Paul Sauvé, with garet Holt, with a single of 148 and 152.

Norma McDonald and Mara triple of 351 respectively, were tops among the women last week. Eileen Morrison and Claudette Danis continue to reign supreme in the year-to-date category. . .

A meeting of Mixed League officials is on for tonight, at the Lachute Tourist Inn at 7.30 o'clock.

Team standings and averages as released by Eileen Morrison up to last week only, are as follows:

RECORD CROWD HONORS TRAWICK

—Central Press Canadian

Probably the only U.S. import who has played Canadian football continuously since 1946, guard Herb Trawick is shown with his wife at Molson stadium, Montreal, where a record crowd of 23,259 joined in Herb Trawick-Virgil Wagner day. Wagner now has retired, but Trawick still is a bulwark on the Montreal line. He and Wagner received silver trays and cheques at half-time during the Ottawa-Alouette game, won by Montreal, 43-6.

Basketball

Last Saturday afternoon, the first two basketball games of the season were played — Lachute's Senior and Intermediate boys versus the Brownsburg Senior and Intermediate boys. Both games were rather one-sided, in Lachute's favor. The score in the Intermediate game was 31-9 for Lachute, and in the Senior game, 48 to 14 for Lachute.

Lachute's scorers in the Intermediate game were, — B. Campbell, 16 points; K. Underhill, 6; R. Cairns, 7; I. Duncan, 4; Del. MacTavish, 2; W. Laurin, 2.

Scorers on Brownsburg's Intermediate team were — L. Murdoch, 2; E. Clausin, 2; J. Smith, 4; G. McDonald, 1.

Scorers for Lachute Seniors were — M. Cairns, 16; W. Bradford, 7; Duncan MacTavish, 13; A. Gauley, 9; B. McDonald, 3.

For Brownsburg — A. McGibbon, 2; P. Roberts, 2; S. Pariseau, 2; B. Brownrigg, 8.

B. Cribb and M. Cairns refereed the first game, and B. Cribb refereed the last game single-handed.

Racehorse Fanciers Importing from England

By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In recent years Canadian racehorse owners and breeders have been restocking their stables with purchases in England, ignoring the closer but more expensive markets in the United States.

Even with the cost of air transportation — a plane-load of eight thoroughbreds arrived recently in Toronto direct from London — Canadians have been finding it worth the effort. It's still possible to buy horses across the ocean reasonably, in comparison to American prices for similar steeds, but it may not last much longer.

Max Bell, of Calgary, guiding genius of the prosperous Alberta Ranches racing and breeding interests, says it is becoming tougher and tougher to try to buy bargains in the English horse marts.

In Toronto recently to take delivery of some purchases, Bell said: "The stock market has been booming in England this year and those Britishers have made so much money backing their 'fancy' in that department that they're buying their own horses".

Canadian owner Wilfred Farr reached into the British market recently and grabbed a promising three-year-old colt named My Kingdom.

Farr refused to say what he paid for the colt but it must have been considerable. My Kingdom in his last start won the Sussex Stakes, worth 1,948 guineas. Finishing behind him was the colt Our Babu, recently purchased for stud by a Kentucky syndicate for $250,000. Earlier My Kingdom had won another important test, the Barnwell Stakes.

B'bg Baseballers Take Spotlight at 'Victory Dance'

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — A crowd of close to 200 attended the "victory dance" held in salute of the local baseball team at the Flamingo Grill on Friday evening. Among the special guests were Mayor "Dorrie" Lepine; League President M. Martel and Secretary M. Lalonde; Messrs. Rene and Raymond Laurin, of Lachute; and Coach Jimmy Murdoch's two brothers from Ottawa and Montreal.

Georges Duhamel "threw" the party for the club, paying all the bills and providing all the accessories. Some of the local grocers helped out by donating material for the supper. Everybody had a great time, yet the total expense, thanks to the local merchants, but mainly to Mr. Duhamel, amounted to only $8.

The high-spot of the evening, of course, was the presentation of the cup by the president, followed by individual presentations to the boys. Mayor Lepine presented each of the players with a baseball tie-clip — a souvenir from Mr. Duhamel — and René Laurin presented each player with the crest which will be sewn on their new bench jackets.

Hockey Appraisal At Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — It is surprising, but the topic of conversation at the baseball closing dance was —more hockey than baseball! And everyone was speculating on whether Jimmy Murdoch can put the hockey cup alongside the baseball cup. Practice starts this week, and it shouldn't be long till we figure what our chances are. . .

. . . The chances look fair, judging by the enthusiasm of the 25 to 30 lads who practised Tuesday night. A meeting of the league was held at the Flamingo Grill on Monday night, and the four teams in the league — Rigaud, Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill and Brownsburg — agreed on a maximum of 12 imports all lower than Senior calibre. Lachute will not participate this year. The only possibility of a fifth team is l'Orignal, and they seem doubtful.

The "bingo" originally scheduled for October 28 has been cancelled to avoid clashing with the Hallowe'en festivities. This annual turkey bingo promoted by and for the benefit of the Social Club, will be held at the clubhouse at 8 p.m. on Friday evening, November 11.

Outdoor Roundup

with Joe Foster

According to all reports partridge, or grouse shooting as some folks like to call it, has been pretty spotty so far this season, with a marked scarcity of birds in some areas and plenty of game in others, that that seems to go for both Ontario and Quebec. Hungarian partridge on which the seasons will have closed in both provinces by the time this column gets into print, have been extremely scarce this fall. This has been disappointing to many shooters, especially as a couple of years back it really looked as though this popular and hardy game bird had gotten a good foothold in eastern Ontario and showed signs of establishing in some parts of Quebec.

Scarcity Predicted

As I remember it, 1953 was a good season on Hungarians, but that early in '54 the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests cautioned against exportation of as good hunting for the 'huns' in the fall of that year. In anticipation of a decline and with a view to determining the causes, a research project has been initiated and is being carried on by Queen's University under a grant from the Toronto Anglers & Hunters Association. Shooters successful in downing birds have been asked to co-operate with the Department by sending in the entrails, wings and any information that might prove pertinent to the investigation.

Talking of Partridge

Or let's say "grouse" by way of distinguishing the "old woods drummer" from the Hungarian variety — a lot of shooters confine their efforts to hunting roadsides and shooting birds that have come out to fill their crops with gravel or to take a dust bath. There are other upland game gunners who, whilst admitting to the usefulness of gun dogs, still feel that the use of a dog gives the hunter too great an advantage over the birds and prefer to 'walk-up' their own game. They will go on to claim that half the thrill of bird hunting is the unexpected rise of a pheasant or the nerve-shattering explosion of a partridge and that when accompanied by a good bird dog that finds and points out the game — half the thrill is lost.

Three Good Reasons

As far as I'm concerned hunting for small game, fur or feather, without a dog is, to belabor an old cliché, like eating apple pie without the cheese.. I know I'm not alone in holding to this viewpoint and that most fellows whether they own a gun dog or not, would prefer to have a dog along when they go afield in search of game. This is not really so surprising when you stop for a moment to consider that as far back as 6,000 or so years ago several different kinds of breeds of dogs could chase, trail, corner and kill game better together than separately, and thus was established the only major human being-domestic animal relationship based on mutual need.

For Conservation Alone

I can trot out three good-enough reasons for taking a dog hunting. The first and most important of these is — conservation. Let's think for a moment in terms of duck shooting. It is estimated that of all the ducks shot, at least 25% are crippled, and that's a very conservative estimate. A good retriever will nail down those cripples for you far more efficiently than you can ever hope to do and just think of the saving in wear and tear on yourself and your shooting companions. Drop a partridge in dense cover at thirty yards and then try and find it, but if you're hunting with a reasonably intelligent spaniel you'll likely locate your bird in short order.

For Better Sport

Maybe it's the advancing years or just middle-age spread, but I'm personally convinced you'll get more shooting at game targets with a good bird dog to help find, point or flush for you, than you ever will by "walking-up" the birds on your own. On top of that I defy anyone to deny the increased excitement or anticipation experienced by the man behind the gun, when he has a good gun dog working the cover for him.

Last But Not Least

There are going to be days when the game is hard to find, but it's still good to be out in the open. These are the days when the companionship of your dog and the pleasure you will derive from watch him work, will go a long way to compensate for the emptiness of your game bag. Then too, there is, for those who have the patience a tremendous amount of satisfaction to be gained from the training of your own dog. All in all, for more shooting fun, for better sport and for better conservation — take a dog hunting.

Prognostications on Grey Cup Classic

SPORTS CAMERA

By Bob Smylie,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Grey Cup fever is starting to mount again but at this stage the question is: Who are the likely candidates for the annual for the annual football classic?

Trying to pick a winner this year is like trying to catch a fly on a hot summer night. The players are moving around so fast it's almost impossible to keep track of everybody.

Professional football in Canada is having its whackiest season on record, what with the comings and goings of high-priced United States talent.

Edmonton Eskimos, last year's Grey Cup winners, look like sure bets to win the western championship. They sewed up first place before the season was half over and lost only one of their first 13 games.

Scramble in East

In the east, picking a winner is not so easy. Montreal Alouettes, who played Edmonton for the mug last year, are in first place in the Big Four and are sure of a play-off spot.

But Hamilton Tiger-Cats are right up there and Toronto Argonauts, who have changed players faster than the ball has changed sides this season, are knocking at the door. Ottawa Rough Riders are out of the running. Even $200 fines to 20 players didn't help the dissension-ridden club this year.

Argos have imported enough talent to keep two football teams going, but so far haven't come up with a consistent winner. If coach Bill Swiacki can get everybody in the right place at the right time, Argos may explode and win the league championship going away.

Hamilton has been playing steady ball all season and certainly can't be relegated to the back seat until they play their last game.

But if play in the Big Four runs to form, Alouettes likely will meet Eskimos again in the Nov. 26 classic in Vancouver.

This year's Grey Cup game should set a couple of record. A crowd of more than 36,000 is expected to attend, the largest ever to watch a football game in Canada, and gate receipts and television and movie rights will total $250,000, the largest gate for a game. Incidentally it will be the first time a Grey Cup game has been played in the west.

Piano Duo for Opening Community Concert Event

Canadian Artists of Rare Versatility, Husband and Wife on Tour of Continent

Two of Canada's most outstanding musicians, the husband-and-wife piano team of Margaret Parsons and Clifford Poole, will appear here on Wednesday, November 9, at the Lachute High School. This is the opening recital of the season's Community Concert programs.

The achievements of this charming and talented couple as a two-piano team is a natural extension of the great success that each had enjoyed as a solo artist before their merger in marriage and music.

Margaret Parsons hails from Saskatchewan in Western Canada, and received a performer's degree at the age of thirteen (one of the youngest in the Dominion ever to attain this honor). For several years she was on the faculty of the Royal Conservatory and is now a consultant to the Piano Department of Music Teachers College of the University of Western Ontario.

Clifford Poole was born in England but has lived in Canada since the age of one. He, too, studied with Mona Bates in Toronto and was well on his way toward a distinguished career when the war interrupted. After three years in the Royal Canadian Air Force, he returned to his music and before long was invited to become head of the Piano Department of Music Teachers College of the University of Western Ontario along with Mrs. Poole as consultant, so the couple moved to London, Ont., where they now make their home.

Versatile is perhaps the word that best describes this energetic couple. As if their heavy concert and teaching schedules did not give them enough to do, they have branched out into other fields of musical activity. In order to enrich the two-piano repertory, Mr. Poole has made many arrangements of both standard and unusual works. He is also active as a composer. Many of his own works, not only for two pianos but also for string orchestra and other instrumental combinations, have been warmly received by the public and the critics. The team's recital programs often include compositions or arrangements by Mr. Poole. As teachers, Parsons and Poole have published graded books, which include many original compositions, and other valuable training literature. Miss Parsons is an authority on early teaching materials.

Mr. Poole is also a conductor of note. At the University of Western Ontario he founded a string ensemble whose original purpose was to provide accompaniments in concerti for his piano students. The ensemble has filled this function but has also far transcended it. Its first public concerts were so enthusiastically received that the string ensemble has since been augmented into a chamber orchestra that each season tours the smaller communities of the province that have previously been denied the privilege of hearing "live" orchestral music. Miss Parsons frequently appears as piano soloist with the orchestra, her husband on the podium, and prominent conductors have relieved Mr. Poole of the baton so that he may appear with his wife in two-piano concerti.

Patient: "Doctor, I don't drink and I don't chase around with women. Will I live to be 100 years old?"

Doctor: "No, probably not, but it'll seem like it."

A Radio School For Parents

A radio talk next week will introduce Dr. S. R. Laycock with the first program in his 13th annual series called CBC School for Parents. "To be a truly understanding parent," says the veteran Canadian educator, "one must first understand oneself." His first talk — Thursday afternoon on Trans-Canada Matinee — is called "Self-understanding: a Goal for Parents" . . . The program at 1.15 p.m. Saturday on Trans-Canada will be of interest to social workers. Dr. Eileen Younghusband will be heard in an interview with Leonard Marsh recorded in Vancouver at the 25th anniversary celebrations of the University of British Columbia's School of Social Work. Dr. Younghusband is an expert on social-work training and is at present on the staff of London University.

Unemployment Is Forum Topic

Citizens' Forum next week on radio and TV (Thursday and Tuesday respectively) will deal with unemployment. The panel will include the Honorable Robert Winter, Minister of Public Welfare, and Eugene Forsey, research director for the Canadian Congress of Labor. The discussion is expected to cover what is being done about present unemployment, what is planned for the future, and whether this plan can be improved.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Take the tension and temper out of driving, and you'll eliminate the major causes of road fatigue. A relaxed attitude and the proper position behind the wheel will add miles of motoring comfort and enjoyment.

Many motorists encourage fatigue unwittingly by assuming uncomfortable and improper steering positions. Avoid being the stiff-arm driver who sits too far from the wheel, the low-slung driver who just barely peers over the wheel or the chest-crushing driver who pushes the wheel into the midriff. Instead, assure yourself of the most comfort and control by adjusting the seat so that your forearms are about parallel with the plane of the wheel and your feet are within easy distance of the pedals. If necessary, prop yourself up with a car cushion for a clear view of the road.

A famous osteopath I know told me recently that all drivers should make smiling a habit. As he explained it, a smile relaxes the eye and facial muscles, and when the eyes are relaxed, so is the brain. Also avoid overstrained eyes which are conducive to fatigue. When your eyes are overtired, good sense, sportsmanship and road courtesy are often forgotten and irritability is increased. Incidentally, red lights and stop signs provide ideal chances for relaxation.

Make it a rule to relax, and you'll enjoy your driving even more.

(Contributed)

On September 30, 1955, one of the brightest young stars in Hollywood, James Dean, lost his life in a senseless automobile accident. "Jimmy" became famous overnight as the result of his first starring role in motion pictures, portraying the troubled Cal in "East of Eden". The depth of his touching performance in this movie, coupled with the drama of the story, is such as to readily bring the tears to one's eyes The handsome, 24 year-old-star had been hailed as the most brilliant young actor since Marlon Brando, and it was said that they shared the ability to being completely natural in their acting roles.

Death is always tragic. But it is doubly so when the person is young and has an apparently brilliant future awaiting him. And it is even moreso when it could easily have been prevented. James Dean loved to drive his car at top speed along the highways, and it was this which brought about his death. How does one explain this passion for speed which too many people, both young and old, possess today? Is it a sense of power they seek? Is it a feeling of temporary escape from the complexities of today's world! Or merely a devil-may-care, "let's see how much I can get away with" attitude? Whatever it be, James Dean's death serves as a shocking example of its possible consequences.

Some people said Mr. Dean was temperamental, that he was uncooperative with newspaper and magazine writers. But the majority stoutly defended him, claiming that this was simply a "defensive shell" into which he retreated when, due to his youth and inexperience, he felt unable to cope with certain situations. Underneath this gruff exterior could be found a wonderful personality, which was becoming more prominent just before his death. As for publicity, Jimmy, felt that he had a perfect right to develop his acting techniques without being bothered by outsiders. When it was mentioned on one occasion, he commented something like this: "Publicity? They build you, and then something happens and they tear you down. Who wants it?" There is a great deal to be said for his point of view.

His personality strengths and weaknesses will be remembered, of course. But above all these will remain the memory of his tremendous skill as an actor. The three films in which he starred in his all-too-short career, namely, "East of Eden", "Rebel Without a Cause", and "Giant", stand as a testimony to a superlative talent. Before his untimely death he had been scheduled to appear in the film "Somebody Up There Likes Me". We feel sure that that Somebody Up There does like Jimmy Dean, and we know that millions in this world do, too, and will never forget him.

"Should I take junior to the zoo tomorrow?"

"Heck, no! If the zoo wants him, let 'em come and get him."

Supper Patterns

Three meals a day — 1,095 meals a year, 365 of which are supper or lunch, if dinner happens to be served in the evennig. That is a staggering number of suppers but they need not be a problem if a little time and care are taken in planning them, say the home economists of the Consumer Section.

Everyone will agree that no matter what is being made — a dress, a bookcase or a meal, it is much easier to do when there is a pattern to follow. The Consumer Section certainly feels this way about supper planning and this pattern of theirs is sure to be helpful in the home where the perennial question is "What will we have for supper?".

First of all, there should be a main dish containing some protein food such as eggs, cheese, meat, fish, dried beans or peas. Then, to serve with the main dish, a vegetable is desirable. It might be cooked by itself or included in the main dish or better still, served raw in a salad or as part of a relish tray. Bread and butter appear in the supper pattern, too, and for a change muffins or biscuits might be served instead of bread. The dessert can be something simple such as applesauce, baked apple, milk pudding or fruit jelly. Cake or cookies may be served too but are not considered a necessity. And to drink, milk or cocoa are ideal especially if some members of the family have not had their quota of milk for the day.

In most homes about the same food is served each morning for breakfast, and dinner is usually a rather standerd meal of meat and potatoes with suitable accompaniments. But about the only standardized feature as far as supper goes, is that it generally consists of a main course and dessert. This can really be an advantage because it gives plenty of scope for using the imagination in planning suppers.

One way variety can be brought into supper meals is to set aside a night each week, say Thursday, for a supper of new dishes. A good cookbook or two will be especially helpful for inspiration and many practical suggestions and recipes are given in the newspapers and magazines, as well as over the radio and on television. A file can be started and the recipes which have been tried and were liked by the family can be placed in a special section headed "Family favorites".

Another plan which helps vary supper meals is to select ten or more of the Family's favorite supper dishes which are all different and then use these one after another. For example, they might be — baked sausages with scalloped potatoes, creamed ham and peas on toast, a hearty meat and vegetable soup or a cream of potato and onion soup, a hot meat or cheese sandwich which might be grilled, baked, broiled or served with sauce or gravy, "hot dogs" or hamburgers, an omelette or souffle served with a salad, a baked casserole dish such as macaroni and cheese or diced ham and potato, golden pancakes or waffles served with bacon or sausages and last but not least stuffed baked potatoes.

Stuffed Baked Potatoes

6 Medium baked potatoes, ½ cup grated Canadian Cheddar cheese, ¼ cup chopped or minced cooked ham, ¼ cup chopped mushrooms (cooked) 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, 1 egg, slightly beaten, 1-1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon of mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon of meat sauce (optional).

Cut a slice from top of potatoes and remove potato leaving shell intact. Mash potatoes, add cheese, ham, mushrooms, onion, parsley, egg, salt, pepper, mayonnaise and meat sauce and combine thoroughly. Fill potato shells with potato mixture, top with grated cheese or buttered crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°F., until brown, about 15 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

"Hallowe'en is a holiday I like very much," observed the Chef. "It is so bewitching! The masques, the gay decorations—"

"And out with it, Chef," I interrupted, "the good food!"

The Chef patted his waistline. "Everybody can celebrate Hallowe'en if only with interesting food. Par example, my latest hurry-up refreshments — warm glazed doughnuts and hot spiced pineapple juice."

Glazed doughnuts: Brush doughnuts all over with a mixture of granulated sugar, moistened with melted butter or margarine and flavored with a little cinnamon. Heat in a hot oven about 10 minutes or until the sugar melts and forms a glaze. Serve warm.

Hot Spiced Pineapple Juice: Heat canned pineapple juice with 6 whole cloves to the quart. Strain; pour into a jug. Keep hot over a candlewarmer.

Serve in handled punch cups with a canned pineapple spear as a "swizzle stick," studded with 2 cloves at the handle end. Garnish with several sprigs of fresh mint.

A Hallowe'en supper would be fun. For teen-agers I'd suggest broiled cheese-stuffed frankfurters in split rolls, cider, apples, popcorn balls and doughnut sundaes.

Doughnut Sundaes: Split doughnuts in halves crosswise and toast. Top each half with a ball of butter pecan or maple ice cream, with blended maple syrup

Tomorrow's Dinner

Cole Slaw with Pickled Beets
Spanish Steak
Whipped Potatoes
Green Peppers Saute
Apple Betty Lemon Hard Sauce
Coffee Tea Milk

(All measurements are level. Recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.)

Spanish Steak: Cut 1½ lbs. tender beef steak in bite-sized pieces. Place in a bowl. Add ¼ cup olive oil and 2 peeled halved sections garlic. Cover: chill 1 hour.

Dust with ½ tsp. each salt and monosodium glutamate and ¼ tsp. pepper. Turn once so all sides of the meat are coated with the oil. Broil or pan-fry until browned, turning often. Allow 10 min. for rare, 12 min. for "medium well."

For a garnish, border with sauteed green peppers dotted with green peas.

Green Peppers Saute From the Chef

Wash green peppers; cut in halves; remove seeds; cut peppers in lengthwise strips 1" wide. Slow-saute in just enough olive oil, butter or margarine to barely cover the bottom of the pan. Season with salt, pepper and a little monosodium glutamate.

If a garlic flavor is desired, first rub the frying pan with the cut side of a half-section of garlic.

Rarebit or Rabbit ?

Almost everyone at sometime or other has enjoyed Welsh Rabbit or Welsh Rarebit as it is also called. The original name of this dish, according to legend was Welsh Rabbit. It seems that many years ago, a Welsh nobleman was entertaining some English friends at his castle. It was the season for rabbits and knowing how Englishmen enjoy them, the lord ordered rabbit for dinner.

Unfortunately, the hunters were not able to bag a single cottontail and in disappointment the lord consulted his cook. This talented man rose to the occasion admirably. He melted some of his choicest cheese, added a few spices and served it over thick slices of bread. The lord jokingly called the dish his "Welsh Rabbit".

Welsh Rabbit was an instant success and in time its popularity spread. Today there are many variations of the original recipe. A delicious one is Sardine Welsh Rabbit. The home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries tell us that the flavor combinaation of the savoury little fish and the cheese is outstanding.

Sardine Welsh Rabbit

2 Tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 cup milk, 1 cup grated, nippy, Cheddar cheese, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 cans sardines (3½ oz. size) 4 slices hot toast.

Make a cream sauce of the first four ingredients in a double boiler. When the sauce has thickened and cooked, add grated cheese and Worcestershire sauce and stir until the cheese has melted. Cover and set aside to keep warm. Drain sardines and heat in a frying pan. When sizzling hot arrange on four slices of hot toast and top with the golden, cheese sauce. Garnish each serving with a bit of crisp parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Wife Preservers

Fish odors from cooking utensils will disappear if you add two or three tablespoons of ammonia to the dishwater

PLAN A PARTY FOR HALLOWE'EN

This year let the children celebrate Hallowe'en with a "bang-up" costume party. It isn't much trouble and can be more fun than a barrel of monkeys.

For the location . . . an old barn, vacant garage, or corner of the cellar would be fine. A few orange crates can be the chairs. Jack-o-lanterns and corn shocks will supply atmosphere.

For entertainment . . . it's great fun to guess identities before unmasking. And who doesn't like to bob for apples? Other suggestions . . . a corn kernel hunt, dropping clothespin into a milk bottle, and pinning the tail on the donkey.

Food is a big attraction at a party. Follow the theme of Hallowe'en by serving decorated cupcakes. Make these orange for the holiday by using a recipe that calls for condensed tomato soup. They'll be spicy and delicious! Decorate with white icing and fruits or Hallowe'en candies. Cloves or chocolate chips could also be used.

Cider and salted popcorn taste so good with cupcakes. And treat each guest to a favor of corn candy in a black cat paper cup to take home.

Here's the recipe to guarantee success at your party.

HALLOWE'EN CUPCAKES

2 cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon powdered cloves
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon or mace
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup seedless raisins
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and spices. Wash and chop raisins; dust with a small amount of flour mixture. Cream shortening and sugar; add eggs and mix thoroughly. Add flour mixture alternately with soup; stir until smooth. Fold in raisins. Pour into cupcake papers, placed in muffin tins. Fill ⅔ full. Bake at 375°F. about 20 minutes or until done. 1 dozen cupcakes.

Plowing Improves Figure, Say Those in Know

—Central Press Canadian

The four lone females who competed in the 42nd international plowing match at Leamington, Ont., have a word of advice for the girls who want a nice figure. As blonde, blue-eyed Betty Opersko of Waterford, Ont., put it: "They don't do enough to keep themselves trim. What they should do is get out to a farm each year and do a little plowing. "It's tough", says the 21-year-old, seen at left, "but it's wonderful for a girl's waist and legs". Seventeen-year-old Mary Byers, (right) of Tara, is additional proof of the benefits of farming as a feminine avocation.

Girls Receive Training Aboard Yacht at Sea

Halifax (CP) — When Capt. Irving Johnson shouts a brisk "trim the sails" order, its done snappily by a trim group of sailors.

Capt. Johnson is master of the brigantine Yankee, veteran of several round-the-world trips.

This year he signed on a crew of American Girl Scouts out of New Bedford, Mass., and took a busman's holiday to Nova Scotia ports.

Summer Training

The crew of 16 girls and four leaders is one of several groups of the Mariner Division of Girl Scouts of America which board the Yankee each summer for nautical training.

Six times so far Capt. Johnson and his wife have taken the 96-foot yacht around the world. But at times like the present, he finds himself among only a few men. Also in the minority are the 19-year-old cook and his two 11-year-old helpers.

For the girls its strictly a man's work. They trim the sails and the decks like any other sailor.

But they like it and as one healthy and tanned sailor put it: "I wouldn't have missed it for the world."

W.I. Interest in Food and Agriculture

The Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) is 10 years old this year. Members of the Quebec Women's Institutes are being reminded of this and asked for increasing emphasis on the study and support of its policy and programs. The Associated Country Women of the World has consultative status with FAO and an observer attends all meetings at the latter's headquarters in Rome. Cooperation is given by the ACWW in many projects and surveys are undertaken whenever requested, as an example, the recent world wide one among rural housewives on marketing conditions in their respective countries.

In recognition of the ties between the two organizations, the Q.W.I. president, Mrs. C. E. LeBaron, was invited to a conference held last week at Macdonald College on "Food, Human Survival and the Christian". Representatives were present from Church and State, FAO, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Press. Dr. S. Gupta, First Secretary of the High Commission for India, Ottawa, and Dr. S. Djojosoegito of the Indonesia Embassy also attended. Dr. H. G. Dion, Vice-principal of the College was one of the leaders.

"We each of us have our part in making the man-on-the-street better informed of the successful efforts which we are aiding in the various countries", was one conclusion from discussions held. Several media for publicity were suggested. A practical one for the W.I. is speakers and films at meetings and a project recommended, "Special couses and speakers made available to carry the message to our children".

Fashions

Imported nubby tweed in green and blue combination is used for this attractive coat done on semi-fitted lines. The collar stands away from the neck a bit and has a scarf fill-in. Curved seams from under the arm shape the bodice and there are flapped pockets at the hips. The half belt, in front only, is of dark green leather.

Canadian Women Better Informed About Cancer

Montreal — A survey among Canadian women conducted by the Canadian Cancer Society, indicated that the women in this country are generally better informed about cancer than women in England, it was announced by the Society recently.

The public opinion survey among 3,000 women, representing every Province in the Dominion, and all age and socio-economic groups, was conducted to test the effectiveness of the Society's educational program. It followed the exact pattern of a survey previously completed in the Manchester-Salport-Stockport area of England by the Holt Radium Institute.

In England there is no public education program for the purpose of inducing people to recognize the early symptoms of cancer. The English survey revealed an amazing lack of knowledge of the fundamentals of the disease. Several leading English cancer experts are now pressing for an educational campaign similar to that which has been undertaken by the Canadian Cancer Society since 1949.

Officials of the Canadian Cancer Society said the Canadian survey had definitely established that "women living in areas where an active educational program has been carried on, have a better knowledge of the simple facts about Cancer than women living in areas where educational efforts are less active". But, despite the efforts of doctors and laymen to inform the Canadian public there were still dangerous misconceptions about the disease. The Canadian survey showed that 30 per cent of the women questioned believed that cancer was never cured; 25 per cent thought surgery caused the spread of cancer within the body. Another 30 per cent, had no concept of the significance or importance of a lump in the breast while 15 per cent would not willingly visit a friend known to have cancer. Dr. L. C. Simard, chief pathologist at Notre Dame Hospital, Montreal, who is Vice-President of the Canadian Cancer Society and member of the Medical Advisory Board, said that one of the hardest tasks was to break down the taboos and superstitions surrounding the disease.

"Not so very long ago cancer was a nasty word not to be used in polite society," Dr. Simard said. "People with symptoms were more inclined to hide them in shame or fear than to go to their doctor for examination and treatment. Unfortunately there is still some of that feeling but we are gradually breaking it down. There is no doubt that an intelligent attitude towards the disease and an accurate knowledge of symptoms and clres can help save a great many lives. The dispelling of ignorance and fear," Dr. Simard concluded, "is one of our biggest jobs".

Mother's Big Role

Edmonton, Alta. (CP) — The mother is responsible for 75 per cent of what the pre-school child is, says Dr. Roy Grisdale, an Edmonton children's doctor.

In a panel discussion on mental health of pre-school children, sponsored by the Edmonton branch of the Canadian mental health association, other members rushed to the defence of father. The father should help in caring for the child and not be "just a breadwinner," said Robert Harper, a lecturer in educational psychology at the University of Alberta.

Delegates agreed that love and affection are the requirements most necessary for a child's mental health. The panel also agreed that children of the same family should be "fairly close together" in age, for closer companionship.

The United Nations Flag

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"See, Mother! See the blue and white flag! Where did it come from?" asked Jim.

A flag never fails to interest a boy or girl and in countless countries all around the world, on Oct. 24, United Nations Day, the UN flag fluttered in the breeze. The ground color is a lovely blue, symbolic of hope and peace, as well as the common sky over all the world. The other color, white, stands for loyalty. Although five "official" languages are used in the debates of the UN General Assembly, there is no wording on this banner.

It belongs to people of many languages and living in five dozen different countries. In the design there are no crowns or stars or swords representing sovereignty or conquest. Rather the polar projection shows on world, surrounded by the olive wreath of friendship and peace. The world and leaf emblem is half the width of the flag and the flag itself is one and a half times as long as it is wide.

In selecting a flag for the United Nations, there was one other popular design — four short red perpendicular bars on a white ground, representing the four freedoms (freedom from want, from fear, freedom of speech, freedom to worship). But the blue and white design, which more and more boys and girls now recognize, was given first choice.

The UN flag should be displayed on United Nations Day, Oct. 24, on National and official holidays and on the occasions of any official event in honor of the UN. When it flutters in many lands it reminds us of the old BBC motto, "Nation shall speak peace unto nation."

It is true that the use of flags or ensigns came into being during military campaigns. In the Old Testament, there are a number of references to the children of Israel using ensigns or flags. Twelve centuries before the birth of Christ, the Chinese used flags, and in later years so did the Assyrians and Egyptians. The Roman soldiers with their standards and their dragon banner marched north, south, east and west to conquer. The Emperor Constantine's standard with its purple cloth fluttering from a cross bar on a long gilded spear was famous. It bore the Greek letters Alpha and Omega, signifying this ruler's conversion to Christianity.

In the history of the nations from earliest times, groups of people have been represented by animals or other designs borne on poles. After weaving and dyeing came into common use, the emblems were often made of cloth fluttering on a staff. The early Vikings made their sea voyage flying a Raven emblem and the Saxons chose as their symbol a White Horse. Religious symbols, such as the cross, were incorporated into many national flags.

Without any fuss or demonstration, at noon on Oct 21, 1947, the UN flag was hoisted at the same time at the General Assembly Building at Flushing Meadows, where a session was being held, and over the Secretariat Building at Lake Success a Security Guard raised it. Our men in Korea saw it often. In less than 10 years it has become the symbol in the eyes of millions of people of mankind's desire for peace.

English, French, Spanish, Russian and Chinese are all "working" languages in UN debates. But unlike the "Ordem e Progresso" slogan on Brazil's flag, or the declaration of Moslem faith in Arabic on the banner of Saudi Arabia, the UN flag carries no wording. It belongs to all peoples desiring peace, whatever their mother tongue.

Chances are you get a "helping" of aluminum as part of your daily diet. Most cities use aluminum sulphate to purify the water from lakes and rivers. Oshawa, for instance, has used it for this purpose for 35 years.

Usually, however, aluminum is associated with the outside of foods. In cooking utensils, cups and frozen food containers—in wrappings for cakes and candy and roasts and left-overs—in bottle tops and hoods—aluminum helps keep what we eat and drink fresh and pure and wholesome.

DISTRICT NEWS FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Morin Heights

Mrs. Jean Wirz is spending a few days in Montreal visiting with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bennett, of Harrington, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Seale.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nesbitt spent Thursday last in Montreal, visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Vaillancourt spent Friday in Montreal; while there they attended the funeral of the late Fred Muncey.

Mrs. James Coles, of Hamilton, visited with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Doherty, recently.

Mrs. E. Green visited with her daughter and family in Montreal recently.

Mrs. Mary Cambell has left for New York City to spend a month as the guest of her son, Mr. Wm. Campbell. While there she will also attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Miss Audrey Campbell.

Young Couple Feted

A surprise party was held at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Blair on Wednesday evening last, for LAC and Mrs. Bernard Blair, following their recent marriage. On behalf of the friends gathered, Mayor C. D. Campbell presented the couple with two table lamps and a sum of money. The Rev. and Mrs. Robert Blair also presented the couple with a beautiful Bible. A singsong was then enjoyed, and the evening concluded with the serving of refreshments.

Plans for Remembrance Day Rites and Service

On October 26 the Legion held their usual monthly meeting in their hall, when plans for the annual Remembrance Day service were made. The service will be conducted by Comrade Chaplain the Rev. Robert Blair, B.A., B.D. It is expected that about a hundred RCAF personnel from Lac St. Denis Station, all Legion members, the Boy Scouts and the Girl Guides, will attend this service. The Legion extends a cordial invitation to the general public to assist them in making this service truly commemorative.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Seale were in Montreal on Sunday attending the baptism of their granddaughter. The child received the names Carolyn Emily. The child is the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Crawford.

Mr. Munroe, Inspector of Protestant Schools, visited the Morin Heights Intermediate School in the past week. On Thursday evening he met the members of the school board, and his report to the members was very favorable.

Anniversary Party

On Friday evening a number of friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Watchorn and surprised them on their 16th wedding anniversary. They were presented with a silver cabinet, the presentation being made by the Rev. Robert Blair. A musical evening was then enjoyed, and refreshments were served.

Miss Brenda Carmichael spent the week-end visiting with her family in Knowlton.

Mr. H. Gransow spent a few days recently in Knowlton, Que., visiting friends.

NOTE: Correspondents using typewriter, please double-space between lines, to facilitate editing and typesetting.

Avoca

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet MacLeod and little son, Grant, visited the former's parents during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan McPhee were guests of Miss Nina Robertson at Hawkesbury last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McCallum had a family birthday party for their son, Donald, and daughter, Marilyn, on their twelfth and ninth birthdays respectively. Mr Toller was a guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bates and two children, of Niagara Falls, spent the past week with their parents, and have now returrned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wright, of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Evan Bates.

Acknowledgments

Mrs. Neil McCallum would like to thank all who helped to make her canvass for the Bible Society so pleasant and successful; the proceeds amounted to $41.

Mrs. McPhee would like to thank all who have responded with the purchase of Christmas cards for UNICEF. The purchase of one box of 10 cards provides a week's supplement for 50 undernourished children, sufficient DDT to safeguard them against malaria for one year, also Vaccine for 50 children. Last year the UN made a profit of more than $150,000 from the sale of these cards, which has helped to build better lives for the children. . . More cards are available for any desiring to assist in this effort.

St. Andrews East

Mrs. Arthur Fuller, of Ottawa, spent several days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Littlejohn. Returning to Ottawa on Saturday, she was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Littlejohn.

W.A. Meeting

Miss Alice Davidson entertained the monthly meeting of the St. Mungo's W.A. on Friday afternoon. A pleasing part of the program was a surprise presentation of gifts to Mrs. H. Bailey in recognition of her 10th wedding anniversary. (It seems something of a coincidence that Mrs. Bailey's pre-marriage shower should also have been held at the home of Miss Davidson.)

Closing Exercises

Mrs. W. Y. King held a closing entertainment of the Mission Band and Sunday School at "Ingleside" on Friday evening, with interesting slides shown; pupils presented with small gifts for reciting the Books of the Bible; and a formal presentation of the Mission Band offering to the treasurer of the Auxiliary. About 40 were present to enjoy this special evening.

Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Fuller spent Sunday with friends in Hudson Heights, and also accompanied Mrs. Villeneuve, of Carillon, to Como to visit Miss M. Whelehan.

OBITUARY

Morin Hts. Legionnaire Mourned by Friends

The Late Fred Muncey

Morin Heights — Sympathy of this community is extended to Mrs. Fred Muncey and family in the loss of a loving husband and father. Mr. Muncey passed away on Tuesday, October 18, at the Queen Mary Military Hospital.

Service was held in St. Willibrod's Church. About 20 legion members from Morin Heights; Comrade Jim Gilbert, 1st vice-president Provincial Command; Tom O'Neil, past-District Commander; N. Morin, District Commander of Ste. Agathe; and Father Lajeunnesse of Morin Heights, all attended the funeral. His branch of the Legion was represented by the presence of 18 members.

At the soldiers' plot in Cote des Neiges Cemetery the branch said farewell to their Comrade, with the usual Legion ritual.

Mrs. Muncey, widow of the deceased, donated to the Legion Branch 171 of Morin Heights his medals, as a memorial to the branch.

"Let's Dress Up!"

By Nancy Cleaver
("Parents Only" Columnist)

Hallowe'en spells all kinds of good times for the boys and girls — carving pumpkin faces and cutting out black witches with their broomsticks and great black cats with yellow eyes. But perhaps the most fun of all for younger children, and older ones too, is dressing up. The youngsters love to make calls on the homes in the neighborhood in gala array!

Mother and Dad might suggest that there are more courteous ways to ask for a treat to eat than "shell out!" shouted in raucous voice.

In some communities damage to public and private property the last day of October by juveniles has become a problem. In quite a number of areas a service club or some other group interested in youth has made a successful attempt to channel high spirits and the desire for fun into more acceptable activities.

A masquerade party, with good music, refreshments and prizes, is quite a big order. It requires skilled leadership and co-operation in planning by the young people themselves. But it meets the urge of adolescents to gang together and "raise whoopee" Hallowe'en night.

Some teen-agers are quite happy in a hastily made outfit, while others will go to quite a lot of trouble to plan and make an original costume. Flour bags, old sheets and burlap material, such as is used in sacks, can all be dyed vivid or pastel shades at a very low cost. "I love dyeing!" one girl exclaimed, "you sure see results for your work."

Often a daughter can use material in a discarded dress by washing it, ripping it and remaking it along the lines she wants. Sometimes a grandmother or great aunt is willing to loan, for a special gala night, clothes worn many years ago.

But "dressing up" should not be confined to Hallowe'en. A boy of girl enjoys pretending he or she is someone else. This is part of the attraction of drama clubs. Even little children love to act out a fairy tale or nursery rhymes on a stormy Saturday when they must stay indoors.

Mothers save themselves a lot of work if they will set aside an old trunk or a large box or carton for odds and ends for costumes. Not only dresses and suits, but gloves, scarves, hats, shoes, purses, etc., are all useful. Let Junior and Jane sort among this material and contrive their own outfits. A "make-up" box adds greatly to their satisfaction in the effects produced. The more originality and effort they put into dressing up, the more fun they will have!

CANADIANS FAVOR PRINCESS' RIGHT TO WED MAN OF HER CHOICE

Princess Margaret and Group Captain Peter Townsend are now both in London, adding new rumors to the year-old talk of their possible marriage. Townsend is on a month-long vacation from his post of air attache in Belgium and Margaret cut short a holiday in Scotland.

—Central Press Canadian

A poll held in Canada revealed that 73 per cent. of Canadians upheld the Princess' right to marry the man of her choice even if it meant, as in the case of Townsend, that she would thereby give up her right to the throne.

How times have changed for the better!

Not so very many years ago, people with a history of certain ailments or diseases were unable to buy the life insurance they needed. Often, this resulted in considerable hardship for their families. But today . . . thanks to the results of new knowledge and research in controlling diseases, many such people are now accepted by life insurance companies — and can provide their families with vital financial protection.

This is another example of the many ways in which the life insurance companies in Canada have advanced with the times . . . offering better service to Canadians in all walks of life!

Asbestos Co'y Workings Near Buckingham, Que.

The president of Eastern Asbestos Co. Limited, J. P. Emile Collette, announces that the north drift on Zone No. 1 at Eastern Asbestos Company's chrysotile property near Buckingham, Que., has been extended 80 feet to a point 200 feet north of the main adit. Practically all of the advance has been in ore, the last 30 feet being particularly impressive. The drift has been continued with a width of 12 feet and the ore, by visual analysis, has an asbestos content at least equal to the high percentage noted at the adit section.

Considerable long fiber has been exposed including a large proportion of second and third group material. The asbestos continues dead-white in color, strong, silky and iron-free, a characteristic of the fiber in this deposit which places it in a premium category.

A cross-cut will now be turned off to the east so as to intersect Zones 2, 3, and 4 as developed in the adit 200 feet to the south. This is in accord with the extensive program which the management has planned to develop the deposits underground.

Camel Survives Because It Is Stingy

The camel does not store water in its hump. How, then, does it survive for days without water?

We know its strength and endurance are remarkable. It can carry a 500-lb. load 25 miles a day for three days without drinking. For this reason, this oldest of domesticated animals is partitcularly prized in esert regions. The camel is tough. It eats thorny bitter plants which other animals would find unpalatable and does not object to brackish water.

Though the camel has been the subject of popular curiosity for centuries, the scientific investigation of this fascinating beast has long been neglected. Recently, a group of scientists have begun to take a closer look at the "ship of the desert". And though the project is not yet complete, it has already yielded many interesting findings.

The researchers, who have spent almost a year in the Sahara desert, report that the camel does not store water in its hump, nor in any other special structure. It is stingy with the water it consumes. One of the animals under study went for 17 days on nothing but dried dates and hay. During this period it was kept in the sun where the temperature often rose to more than 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

The scientists, headed by Dr. Knut Schmidt-Nielson of the United States, learned that the camel's heat-regulating mechanism is different from that of most other creatures. It does not begin to perspire until its body temperature has gone up considerably, and even then does so only at a negligible rate — thus saving precious water. In human beings and many animals, perspiration is a vital function, since the evaporation of moisture from the skin cools the body and keeps the internal temperature from rising beyond the safe limits. The camel, apparently, can dispense with this type of "refrigeration". It can stand increases in body temperature of as much as 11 degrees Fahrenheit, a rise that would be fatal to man.

In another remarkable display, a camel which had gone for 17 days without water drank almost 20 gallons when confronted with an unlimited supply.

As subjects for scientific study, the camel proved cooperative. Expert opinion seems to be that the animals are docile through stupidity, not because they become friendly or really tamed. They readily submitted to various research procedures, such as weighing by means of a huge scale and canvas sling, blood analyses and chemical tests.

Scientific interest in the camel stems largely from possible applications of the knowledge obtained to human medicine, particularly in respect to heat regulation and the function of the kidneys in controlling the body's fluids. Also, by studying animals such as the camel, we learn to understand the many ways by which Nature enables its creatures to adapt to a variety of adverse conditions.

From the Serenity of Rural Life To Urban Round of Interruptions

"EXILE FROM SUNNYACRES"

By Margaret Cook

Life in the suburbs during October seems dull after a three months sojourn at Sunnyacres. The city dweller who pictures rural life as an alternation of listening to roosters crowing and cows mooing, interspersed with the doing of "the chores," is just plain ignorant of the ever-changing facets of life in the country. On the other hand, those in the country who imagine their urban friends as leading a life of leisure, liberally punctuated by joyous brawls, are equally mistaken. One of the harder things to become accustomed to when we return from our mountain hide-out, is the fact that our neighbors seem to work night and day. At ten, last night, some fellow at the back quit hammering on a pre-fab garage; he began promptly again at 8.15 on this, the Sabbath morn, and now, at 10.45 is still at it. I see he is putting on the roofing, so we may expect some relief soon. This is the day too, when we have surcease from the big bang at 12.05. Every noon, as soon as the workmen have dispersed, part of the St. Lawrence River-bed goes sky-high, and the writer, probably in company with other females who have forgotten the progress at our door, also leaps skyward. The house shudders, the cat cowers, there is silence over the town for a few seconds, then everyone shrugs and resumes whatever they were doing. Over and above all this is the almost constant panting of engines as they start the long haul to the Maritimes or the New England States . . . After the peace of the country, this is hard to take.

The amenities of city life are also difficult to sustain. "What fun!" we exult, turning on the electric oven; but then, suddenly, it refuses to heat. (No, George, NOT the fuse.) The drains, too, are sulky, so the plumbers arrive. After much panting, hauling on a long cable-like affair, a strange, subterranean gurgle is heard. "D'ye hear that?" enquires the young, lean one. "Ya", replies the older fat one, doubtfully. I pipe up, "Even I heard that. What is it?" A slow shake of the head and then the young one offers facetiously, "Must be gremlins". It wasn't gremlins, it was a tree root . . and the bill was fantastic. I think longingly of Sunnyacres and its uncomplicated equipment!

Since our return, I have been trying to analyse what it is that makes life so trying in the city, in spite of the manifold gadgets supposed to take the sting out of work. I think I have the answer; it is due to two things — interruptions and noise. The interruptions can be startling. The other day, we opened the door to find two engaging young men smiling brightly. "Putting their way through college," I thought nastily, and was about to ask which college they had in mind, when one of them said earnestly, "We have come with a good message!" Always too fast on the uptake, I happily said, "Mormons!" Startled by this greeting (I believe the standard reception is, "Not interested" and a shut door), the dark one said, "Then some of the brethren have called on you before?"

"For two years", I admitted, "but they had to give me up. I am a staunch Anglican, and they were staunch Mormons, and never the two shall meet".

"We should like to discuss this further with you."

"No", I hastily replied, "I am making a meringue and dusting. My soul will have to wait."

"Perhaps we could call at a more convenient time?"

"I doubt it", said I, closing the door.

The same day, answering the door, I was greeted with the astounding news, "Dining-room suite for you, madame".

"Fine," I replied, "Who is giving me one?". Blank stare. Then to confrère, already beginning to heave on a buffet, "What number you got there, Ed?" . . . "216", triumphantly looking at the number beside me.

"216 what?" I enquire. It was the wrong street.

Then there are the youngsters selling tags, magazines, chances on lotteries. Yes, indirectly noise and interruptions.

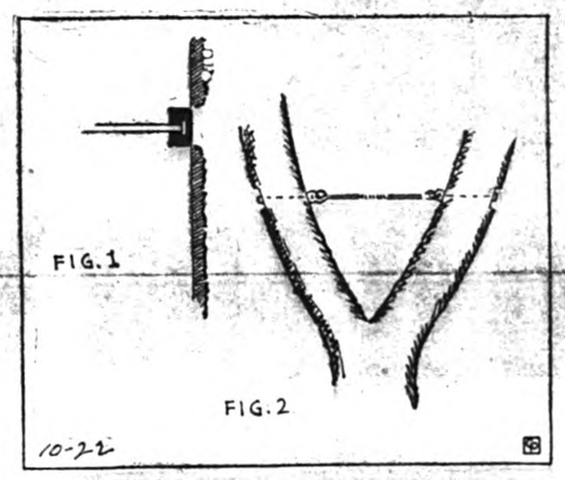

Walking in the city is such a trial after the delight of a stroll in the country. The spine is jarred by each step on the concrete, the crowds are rude and indifferent, occasionally witty, or cynical. My husband has a nasty habit of dropping back on a crowded sidewalk, so that I find myself talking to perfectly strange men, under the impression that he is still beside me. He played this trick recently in a revolving door, so that I suddenly found myself vis-a-vis with a little red-haired man. "I beg your pardon," I said, "I seem to have lost my husband." "Some people have all the luck," he retorted, raising his hat as he turned away.

Thus, life in the city . . . We think with wonder of those sunny, beautiful days of September, and early October. We remember with delight the episode of the bird which flew directly against the porch window, knocking himself out. When we arrived to investigate the sound, he was sitting dazed on the sill outside, with Peter, the cat, less than an inch away on our side of the glass. Peter's eyes were bulging with disbelief and frustration; the bird had naturally no expression. Undoubtedly he had a horrible headache. He was a tiny, fluffy thing; his plumage, speckled, a very dark brown or perhaps black. His bill was fully three-quarters of an inch long and shaped like a sickle. None of us could identify him, but later, we found a color plate in a bird-book. He was a Brown Creeper, and his most distinguishing feature, apart from the curved bill, is his ability to climb straight up a slick surface. He demonstrated this when he recovered, by running up the painted, wooden braces separating the panes of glass. He did this, presumably, because he desired to look Peter in the eye. You can imagine Peter's reaction. But there was really nothing he could do, and presently Mr. Creeper flew away — having learned, we hope, about glass.

Early in October, the leaves began to drift down. It would be hard to find a more fascinating sight than the soft, whirling bits of color, floating toward the ground on a sunny day. On such a day we planted bulbs, not all 8,000 of them but a goodly portion. By dint of much persistent labor, and the enthusiastic giving away of as many as our friends would allow, we got them all disposed of, except about a cupful, which we brought with us to the city. The man of the house dug up a piece of land, thus trebling the size of the garden, and moved the phlox; the chrysanthemums, planted in May, all lived, and those that were spared the depredations of the cows, bloomed, so that next year there should be a continuous mass of bloom along the back of the garden. Our last three days at Sunnyacres were highlighted by our attendance at two weddings; an afternoon spent wandering, lost in the hills back of Dunany; and Thanksgiving dinner with our generous friend, Amos. After that, we just had to come home — or was it, rather, leaving home? Anyway, we had a wonderful summer.

Garden-Graph

Trees having a V-shaped crotch are structurally weak and unless strengthened will split apart easily when overloaded with foliage, fruit or winter's ice, especially during heavy wind storms.

Figures 1 and 2 in the accompanying Garden-Graph illustrate the way to reinforce these limbs by the way to reinforce these by the use of bolts and cables.

A hole should be bored through the two limbs and a strong bolt passed through and fastened on the outside by a washer and nut countersunk in the bark, as illustrated, so that the cambium may heal over them. The bolt should have a hook on the inner side to support the cable. Wire cable of ¼ or ⅜-inch strand is strong, rustproof and inconspicuous.

The best time of the year to do this work is in the winter for then the croten limbs are closer together than when heavy with foliage or fruit. It frequently is advisable to have two sets of bolts placed several feet apart to protect the tree adequately. This, of course, will depend on the size of the limbs.

Young trees should have an annual inspection, and all crossing branches and any that are not well placed to form a good head should be removed. Attention should be given also to all forks, and where two branches start almost parallel to one another or at a small angle, making a fork likely to split apart as the tree grows, one branch should be removed. Where three branches start from almost the same point there is little likelihood of their splitting apart, but with only two growing at a lesser angle than 30 degrees there is likely to be trouble in the case of most kinds of trees.

A father, pushing a baby carriage down the sidewalk, was trying vainly to pacify his howling two-year-old. "Don't get excited, Andy. Now take it easy, Andy. You must be calm, Andy."

A lady who happened to be passing by stopped and remarked, "It's just wonderful the way you speak to that child. It's so rarely that you see such gentle fathers. And he's named Andy, the little darling."

"No, madam," growled the father, "His name is Joseph. My name's Andy."

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. Since last spring I have been working for the Department of Highways. I had been jobless all winter. How is it that because I am now working for the government of the province of Quebec, I cannot receive any benefits from unemployment insurance? When I send my insurance book to the local office will they put in any stamps for the coming winter months when I will be out of work, because then the roads will be closed to all circulation?

A. A provincial government may insure its employees but it is not compulsory. The concurrence of the government of the province must be obtained before contributions can be collected. The province of Quebec has not concurred in paying contributions for any of its employees. Therefore no stamps are credited to an employee at any time during the year.

* * *

Q. I receive unemployment insurance benefits. I am about to be married. Will I be able to receive the benefits just the same? I am willing to return to my job at any time.

A. To get an answer to your question you would have to supply full information as to the reasons for your separation from employment and when this occurred in realtion to the date of your marriage.

* * *

Q. Why were unemployment insurance contributions changed from a daily to a weekly basis? Does this mean that an unemployed person will be entitled to a longer period of benefit?

A. (a) Contributions are based on earnings rather than on days worked as was previously the case.

(b) The minimum period of benefit under the revised Act will be 15 weeks. Previously it was six weeks. The maximum period will be 36 weeks in place of 51 weeks.

* * *

Q. I have heard the term "allowable earnings" used in connection with the new unemployment insurance legislation. What does this mean and how does it affect an employee who is working only two days a week at his regular job?

A. Allowable earnings are the earnings that a claimant is entitled to make in a week without loss of benefit for that week. Any earnings in excess of those allowable are deducted from benefit. Thus, if you are qualified for benefit at $30 a week (for which the allowable earnings are $13) and earned say, $20 for two days' work, you would be entitled to $23 benefit for that week ($30 less $7 excess earnings).

"Multi-Million Dollar" Aluminum Industry For Northern Quebec

By Alex Dimeo

Quebec (CP) — A new multi-million dollar industry for Quebec's faraway regions was announced last week by Premier Duplessis.

The premier said plans were completed recently for construction of a $130,000,000 primary producing plant at Baie Comeau by the British Aluminium Company Ltd.

Clearing operations on the heavily-wooded site on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River would get underway immediately while initial construction of the plant itself would begin next spring.

Mr. Duplessis said the plant will be constructed in four phases, the first, costing $40,000,000, to be completed by 1957. The plant will be completed by 1965.

Ingot production is scheduled to begin with completion of the first part of the plant, and will increase as the other sections are built.

Work will be provided for 500 men during construction, and 2,000 jobs will be open when the plant is completed.

The government leader said the big plant will require the development of additional hydro-electric power in the north shore region.

He said developments on the Manicouagan and Outardes rivers will be undertaken while the output on the Bersimis River installations will be increased.

He estimated that the additional works will cost "millions of dollars". Initial hydro-electric development cost would be about $20,000,000.

STILL UNEQUALLED!

Right from the date of its introduction last fall, the Motoramic Chevrolet has swept its field, to become the fastest selling car in history . . . giving the most in modern beauty, top performance and forthright economy.

Motoramic CHEVROLET

Yes, even while most competitors are offering their latest wares, Chevrolet is still the choice of people everywhere, who realize that today as always, there is no value like Chevrolet value!
