Lions Club Well Co-ordinated in Works, Ideals and Fellowship

All Three Factors Evident in Gathering Of Local Group and Visiting Clubmen

An enthusiastic attendance of over 80 Lions members marked the regular club meeting Tuesday evening, for the visit of the zone chairman, George Kuebler. The guests included a considerable delegation of fellow Lions from Northmount club in Montreal.

Mr. Kuebler, as regional representative, was the third in the chain of International zone officers to visit here — the District Governor, and the Deputy District Governor having preceded him in recent visits — to strengthen the ties of co-ordination which Lachute Lions have always maintained with neighboring groups and the parent organization.

George Kuebler, who has a nine-year perfect attendance record with the Northmount Lions Club, was introduced by George Tattersfield, and spoke in illuminating terms of Lionism as a breaker of barriers. He stressed that it was a privilege to be a member of an active service club, which is playing a very real part in dispelling the barriers of misunderstanding between nations, promoting friendship and peace on the basis of a common ideal.

The speaker was thanked by Geo. Y. Deacon, and President Ian Gordon presented a token of appreciation from the Lachute club.

During the proceedings the president read the recommendations of the nominating committee — the slate of officers to be formally voted on at next meeting.

In addition to social pleasantries, business of prime local interest was discussed. There was a wholesome fervor of viewpoints on the adoption of a civic project, concerning which there will be further publicity as decisions are arrived at.

The ever-present concern over provision of funds for the club's undertakings, was also in evidence. Col. Ernest Emmett, committeeman on this year's car drawing, gave a pep-talk on salesmanship, also a practical boost to the ticket sales. Doug Watts, of Northmount, was awarded an electric kettle, as an incidental prize.

In this club's program for the early future is the Zone Rally, May 9 at Beloeil, at which Lachute will be well represented; a "Grace Kelly Night", social evening and ladies' party, May 15 at the Legion Hall; and the district convention at Niagara Falls, May 27-30 inclusive — Lachute having several Lions and their ladies enrolled to attend.

Lachute Girl Is Air Stewardess

Mary Lou Hooper, of Lachute East Ward, graduated recently as a Trans-Canada Air Lines stewardess following an intensive four-week course in Montreal. Miss Hooper is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Hooper. She received her education at Lachute High School, graduated as a nurse in April, 1955, from the Montreal General Hospital, and after working on the hospital staff joined TCA on March 12 last. All TCA stewardesses are registered nurses. Miss Hooper is now based at Vancouver.

THIS WEEK IN QUEBEC
By Brian Selwood

Quebec (CP) — Premier Duplessis set Wednesday, June 20, as the date of the Quebec Provincial election. Three days later Quebec Liberals launched their election campaign at a huge dinner in honor of Liberal Leader Georges Lapalme.

Newspaper reporters, knowing the premier's custom of announcing an election date at the close of a Wednesday cabinet meeting, paced the corridors of the legislature building as Mr. Duplessis and his cabinet cleaned up last-minute affairs of government.

It was not until late in the afternoon that reporters were called into the cabinet meeting room to hear the expected announcement.

Just 24 hours before, Works Minister Romeo Lorrain was sworn in as Provincial Secretary, thus removing one of the last remaining formalities barring the way to dissolution of the legislature.

Mr. Lorrain succeeded Hon. Omer Coté, who resigned in March to take a post as district judge in St. Jerome. Appointment of a Provincial Secretary was required because he is the keeper of the great seal of the province which must be affixed to all election proclamations and writs.

The first salvo of election campaign was fired at a full-scale liberal banquet Saturday. Some 1,300 liberal supporters packed seven dining rooms linked with the main dining room by television.

Sharing the limelight with Mr. Lapalme was Postmaster General Lapointe who vowed federal Liberals from Quebec will support their provincial colleagues to "free a province enslaved by a political junta."

The speeches were televised in Quebec and a French network of radio stations carried the words to various parts of the province.

TULIP TIME IN OTTAWA

The Canadian Tulip Festival will be held in Ottawa from May 13 to 30, during which time there are over a million blooms of varied colors. Tulip Time in Ottawa is really something to see. A great number of people go to Ottawa every year for this event, which receives considerable publicity.

Ayrshires to Mexico

Another large shipment of Ayrshires has recently been exported to Mexico. This group was exported by Richard Schleissner, Jerseyville, Ontario, and they were sent to Baneo Nacional de Credito Agricola, Mexico City.

The entire group were bred heifers, and they were selected from herds in Eastern Ontario, Western Ontario and Quebec.

Rotary Safety Drive Stressed With Facts on Accident Toll and Costs

Garages Ready to Co-operate With Free Check on Brakes, Lights, Tires, Steering

At the regular meeting of the Rotary Club last week, King Amos outlined final details of the Safe-Driving Campaign to begin May 1, sponsored by the local club. Special forms have been placed in most of the leading garages in Lachute and Brownsburg, each of which has agreed to make a free check on the brakes, lights, tires and steering of all cars brought in by owners who are interested in supporting this campaign. If the car is found to be in good running condition, the garage will sign a form to this effect and the car owner will be invited to sign a pledge, which reads as follows:

"I will operate my car at all times and under all circumstances with the utmost consideration for human life.

In furtherance of this pledge I promise in highest conscience to:

1. Know and willingly obey all traffic laws.
2. Constantly maintain my vehicle in safe driving condition.
3. Courteously and decently observe the accepted rules of the road.

Name .....

Address .....

When each car has been checked and found in good condition the owner will be given a Safety Sticker to be affixed to the bumper of the car. The Rotary Club invites every car owner to participate in this campaign, and now that the driving season is about to begin, to take an active part in reducing the number of accidents.

Rotarian Stewart Jones presented some excerpts from a paper sent out to all insurance agents by the All-Canada Insurance Federation. This paper gave some statistics on the automobile accident situation.

In an average year, Canada's automobile insurance companies pay out almost $100,000,000 as the result of traffic accidents. Just how much is $100,000,000? The St. Lawrence Seaway, for instance, is costing the Canadian Government about $350 million during its six years of construction. The money spent on traffic accidents in those same six years would almost pay for TWO St. Lawrence Seaways.

Last year, Canadians spent about $80,000,000 on hospital construction. That's $20,000,000 less than they spent on traffic accidents. And traffic accidents cost almost half as much as was spent on the construction of new schools.

Late in 1954 Hurricane Hazel hit suburban Toronto and nearly 100 persons were killed. This was rightly considered a national calamity and was reason for international mourning. Yet in the first three months of that same year, 451 persons, four and one half times as many, were killed in automobile accidents.

Records show that in any three months of an average year, there are some 60,000 accidents and more than 10,000 people were injured. Municipal law in most provinces allows a town to become a city when it reaches a population of 10,000. So every three months, enough people are injured on the Canadian highways to populate a small city.

What is happening to us?

Is it that we don't care about accidents and about people being killed or have traffic fatalities become so common that they are no longer news? Whichever the case, it certainly does not cast a good light upon us as intelligent human beings.

Why are there so many accidents?

One good reason is the condition of our streets and highways. Despite the efforts of road-builders, our thoroughfares are filled almost to capacity. Canadians own more than two and one half million automobiles or one for every six persons. Other reasons are carelessness and thoughtlessness, drinking while driving, driving while tired and lack of plain old-fashioned courtesy.

But no matter how many cars there are, these cars seldom get into trouble by themselves. Safety authorities tell us that 90 per cent of all traffic accidents are caused by driver error.

Another reason for the high accident ratio is the teen-age driver. Although only 15 per cent of the drivers are under the age of 25, yet they are responsible for 30 per cent of all accidents.

The Quebec motorist frequently complains of the high cost of his automobile insurance. The reason for this high cost is simply that there are more accidents for the number of cars on the road than in any other province. In 1954 there were 18.2 third-party liability claims per 100 private passenger cars, as compared with 10.4 in Ontario, 9.4 in Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan, 8.9 in British Columbia and Manitoba and 6.1 in Alberta.

This is a disgraceful record. The time is long overdue for an aroused public to call a halt to this terrible toll of senseless waste of life and money.

Where Truck Driver Plunged to Death

Augustin Roy, 36, of St. Philippe, succumbed to injuries received when the ½-ton truck he was driving crashed into a creek a short distance from Brownsburg on the St. Philippe Road last Tuesday afternoon, falling some 23 feet. Omer and Roger Roy, two brothers, received minor injuries in the mishap, in which the vehicle was demolished. The victim died in the St. Jerome hospital on Wednesday of last week.

Cross-Country News: Maritime Link, Prairie Wheat and West Coast Pipeline

THE WEEK IN OTTAWA
By Roy LaBerge, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 1 (CP) — Tentative steps are being taken in a long-dreamed-of Maritimes project: a nine-mile causeway to link Prince Edward Island with the New Brunswick mainland.

Works Minister Winters told Parliament last week he is having a study made of the cost of surveying the proposal to span Northumberland strait. The first official communication he had received on the causeway proposal came in a recent letter from Premier Matheson of Prince Edward Island, containing information based in part on a preliminary provincial survey. The federal works department now is estimating what a full-scale survey would cost.

The P.E.I. proposal was spurred by the opening of the 4,000-foot causeway between Cape Breton Island and the Nova Scotia mainland last summer, built jointly by the federal and Nova Scotia governments at a cost of $23,000,000. Unofficial estimates are that a P.E.I. causeway would cost perhaps between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000.

Mr. Winters also told Commons that a $400,000 offer to British Columbia for a bridge between Lulu and Sea islands in the Fraser River delta was contingent on no tolls being charged. This indicated the government does not want to contribute to toll bridges.

Wheat Sales

Canada, to keep wheat exports from declining, will have to rely more on sales to countries outside the International Wheat Agreement.

That's the opinion expressed by federal officials after announcement in London on details of the proposed new IWA.

The number of exporting countries would increase to six from four while the over-all market will be cut by 92,000,000 bushels to 303,000,000, the smallest annual market since the IWA first went into operation in 1949.

Under the new agreement, effective next August 1 if ratified by a majority of both exporter and importer countries, Canada's quota would be reduced to 103,000,000 bushels from 153,000,000 for the current crop year.

The price ceiling and floor are cut by five cents a bushel — to a range of $2 maximum and $1.50 minimum for top grades. Officials would not regard a small price drop as important if over-all sales would be increased.

Present pact exporters are the United States, Australia, France and Canada. The two new exporters are Argentina and Sweden.

West Coast Pipeline

Canada's first major gas pipeline has arranged its financing and likely will be moving gas in 1957.

Westcoast Transmission Company Ltd. announced last week it had successfully arranged to raise its $154,430,000 capital through mortgages, debentures, bank notes and stock, with permanent control of voting stock to be kept in Canadian hands.

The company plans a 680-mile line from Alberta's Peace River district to the British Columbia lower mainland and the United States border. Initial shipment of 400,000,000 cubic feet a day may ultimately be stepped up to 660,000,000.

Biggest single investor is the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company which has agreed to take almost half of the $83,000,000 in first mortgage bonds.

Canadians will put up $34,000,000 of the total capital, the Royal Bank of Canada investing $10,500,000 in debentures.

The company will raise $53,000,000 in debentures altogether and $16,355,000 from common shares of which $9,000,000 is to come from Canadians who will have 55½ per cent of outstanding shares.

The company said control will remain with Canadians under a six-man voting trust covering 74 per cent of the common. Four of the six are Canadians.

Criticize Transport Control

A CCF member last week criticized the way the government is using — or not using — its transport powers.

Hazen Argue, member for Assiniboia and his party's farm spokesman, said in the Commons that the government should be as willing to enforce fair rail shipment of grain as it is to intervene against rail workers during contract disputes.

He spoke during debate prior to introduction of a government bill to extend for two years the powers of Transport Controller Roy W. Milner over movement of bulk goods. The powers expire May 31.

Mr. Argue said the government doesn't hesitate to use its authority "whenever there happens to be a discussion about increased rates of pay or anything else having to do with benefits for the railway workers.

And he added: "I wish the Prime Minister were just as willing to use the authority of Parliament in the interest of the producers and the assembling of grain as he apparently is in the case of the settlement of disputes involving the railway workers."

His speech was one of many expressions of CCF criticism over the way in which boxcars were allocated to move wheat from country elevators, especially during the tie-up in grain movements last fall and winter.

Court Cases on Traffic Counts And Other Charges

Michel Assad, 45, of Notre Dame de Laus, Papineau County, was released on bail of $103 Sunday evening following his arrest by Lieut. Oscar Sabourin and Cst. Marcel Therrien on a charge of driving "under the influence".

Assad was reported by a Montreal motorist and the two local officers made the arrest, transferring the case to Det. Ralph Allen. The case will be heard in St. Jerome court tomorrow, Friday.

Also scheduled to appear tomorrow is Réal Poirier, 30, of Ayersville, who last Friday was arrested on a similar charge by Traffic Officer Albert Legault. Poirier failed to raise sufficient cash bail and has been held in jail at St. Jerome.

Appearing on a charge of non-support will be Roger Latour, 29, of Lachute, for allegedly failing to provide for his wife and two children.

Jean-Marc Labrosse, 23, and Gilbert Piché, 21, both of Huberdeau, were sentenced to seven days in St. Jerome jail by Judge Omer Coté last Friday, when they pleaded guilty to charges laid by Det. Ralph Allen. Labrosse was charged with the theft of money from the Prevost Garage, Huberdeau, while Piché pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering with intention to commit a theft. Both were picked up last week.

Group Completes Public Speaking Course

A group of French-speaking adults, including three young ladies, who completed the "Roy Institute" (Dale Carnegie) public speaking course of 15 weekly sessions and will celebrate with a public assembly and speeches next Tuesday at the Ayersville girls' school. The class numbered over 20 followers. The ladies and gentlemen were photographed here with their lecturer and instructor, M. Claude Bournival. The public are cordially invited to the demonstration program next Tuesday evening, which is free of charge.

Salute to A Centenarian

Tribute in Medical Journal to Dr. William McClure, Dean of Canadian Medical Missionaries

The following is abridged from a biographical sketch in The Canadian Medical Association Journal, written by the Assistant Secretary of the Association, L. W. Holmes, in the section of this journal devoted to "Men and Books." The article is quoted by permission.

On April 9, Dr. William McClure celebrated his 100th birthday. Surrounded by family and friends, the "dean of Canadian medical missionaries" crossed the century mark bearing with him the warm satisfaction and cherished memories of more than 50 years' service to the needy, suffering and sick of China.

The long, rich past burned brilliantly in Dr. McClure's memory as he marked that anniversary so few men have known. And with clarity of mind and firm voice he made that past live again.

William McClure was born at Lachute, Quebec, in 1856. He attended McGill University and in 1879 graduated as Bachelor of Arts, winning a gold medal in mathematics. After teaching for two years, he returned to McGill and studied medicine under such medical giants as Osler, Sheppard and Howard. Upon graduation from medical school in 1884 Dr. McClure served for a brief period as a physician with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In 1888 Dr. McClure went to China. His first year was spent in language study in Shantung. This linguistic foundation, together with his half-century among the Chinese, gave him an outstanding grasp of the language. "William McClure".

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A grown-up feels remarkably sheepish when he is struck down by an ailment of childhood.

At the age of 20 I was rushed to hospital with a fever and pains in the throat. "Did I have one of those grave diseases which used to afflict the heroes of sad novels — the kind of complaint which demanded loving care by a beautiful and wealthy brunette?

No, I did not have any such disease. To be exact, the pain was more in the neck than the throat. I had mumps.

I was in England at the time, living at the Canadian taxpayers' expense. They sent me to an isolation hospital and made me lie still for 10 days.

Even if there had been a beautiful brunette clamoring to see me (and there wasn't) she would have been refused admittance. No visitors were allowed.

Childhood ailments contracted by an adult are undignified. They can also be dangerous. Dark hints were thrown to us new patients of the complications that would follow if we stirred from our beds. Older patients documented the warnings with alarming references to the fate of poor souls who had disobeyed orders.

So we lay still, exchanged jibes and pleasantries with the nurses and endured the sniggers of the wardmaids. My neighbor in the next bed was a young air gunner who had been an undertaker in civil life, and enjoyed talking about his work.

One day the doctor said I could leave. So I shaved off 10 days' beard (this was a civilian hospital, and its management was indulgent) and packed my belongings.

"We'll have to fumigate everything," said the sister. I submitted all I had with me, except the diary which I had kept for the previous two years.

"Must you fumigate that?" I asked.

"Yes. Give it to me."

"No," I said.

"Look," said the sister. "I'm not interested in the contents of your diary. I won't read it. I just want to fumigate it, so that other people won't catch mumps."

I knew too much about women's curiosity to believe her. At least, I thought I did. But I tried to conceal my skepticism. After 15 or 20 minutes' fencing the sister agreed against her better judgment to let the diary go.

* * *

Spring had arrived while I was in hospital. The birds were singing, and trees were in flower. And so I walked out of the hospital into the Dorset sunlight, carrying some happy memories and a cargo of mumps germs riding on a diary which remained (in a double sense) unpurified.

Years have passed. I seem to have mislaid the diary. But if anyone finds it, perhaps the mumps germs still lurk in those pages to catch the intruder, like the curse of Tutankamen.

Federal M.P.s to Aid Candidates in Quebec Election

Veterans' Affairs Minister Defies Duplessis' Warning Not to Intervene

Quebec — Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe last Saturday warned Premier Duplessis that federal cabinet ministers and Liberal M.P.s are in the "fight to the finish" and will campaign in the Quebec General Election to oust the National Union Party from power.

The minister made the statement at the opening rally of the Provincial Liberal Party at a banquet attended by Liberal supporters from all parts of the province.

At the head-table with Provincial Liberal Leader Lapalme was Mrs. Louis St. Laurent, Tranport Minister Marler, Northern Resources Minister Lesage, State Secretary Pinard and a number of senators and private members.

"Liberals of the Province of Quebec," Mr. Lapointe told the rally, "are proud to tell you, Mr. Lapalme, that they are ready to fight by your side and under your orders and that they share the same ideals of frankness, liberty and devotion to public affairs.

"In their name, as well as my own, I am happy to tell you we are with you." . . .

"A little more, and Mr. Duplessis will be telling all Quebec Liberals not to mix up in provincial politics; to leave him lord and master in Quebec to accomplish the mission which he believes Providence has given him.

"Mr. Duplessis, we will not collaborate by our silence to maintain in power a regime that weighs so heavily on the destiny of Quebec."

"Intimidation" Seen

The federal minister said that the methods of intimidation employed by the National Union may have reduced to silence some defenceless individuals and institutions, but added that "these methods will not prevent Liberal members of the Canadian Parliament from acting as free citizens, according to their conscience and being true Liberals in every sense of the word."

Mr. Lapalme spoke for nearly an hour and a half.

Mr. Lapalme told the crowd the aim of Quebec Liberals is to carry on the task started by Liberals in this province years ago.

The Quebec Liberal leader made a formal promise that if elected his party would attempt to recover some of the $300,000,000 which, he said, Quebec has lost in recent years by its failure to enter into the tax rental agreements with the Federal Government.

The Quebec leader declared that while Premier Duplessis claimed Quebec did not have sufficient revenue to meet its obligations, the government, during the past 12 years had collected more than $3,500,000,000 in taxes and duties.

Art Exhibition

IN OLD ST. Andrews (chronicled as a seat of culture in its earlier days) a small group is presently organizing an art exhibition; and consistent with sentiments often expressed in this column, we warmly commend the venture. Having witnessed previous local efforts in this line — few indeed, but notably successful — we are sure this exhibition will meet with public satisfaction. We hear of amateur artists in Lachute and Brownsburg who are sending original works, not in a bid for recognition or reward (there are no judges, no prizes) but in a genuine desire to increase the interest of the show.

We in Argenteuil are not alone in our desire to encourage local art. In a nearby county — at Quarry Point, Como — an exhibition has just been held, to which some 25 artists sent pictures. Under the heading "The National Significance of Small Town Art Projects" (Montreal Star), Robert Ayre gives an illuminating account of the event. He stresses the need of decentralization not in industry only, but in painting and other creative arts, and points to Stratford as proof that "big things don't always happen in big cities."

"Canada will never be fully alive as long as we confine the arts to down-town in the big cities. They have to move out . . . as the cities grow. They have to thrive, too, in the smaller cities and the towns far from the metropolitan areas. Another good example of decentralization is the project of Owen Sound, a city of 17,000, to erect an art school and museum in memory of Tom Thomson. A nationwide campaign to raise $125,000 is underway and it is hoped to have the building open next year, to mark the 40th anniversary of Thomson's death."

Commenting on the recent Como exhibition, Robert Ayre writes: "What happened at Como wasn't a big thing in national terms but it may turn out to be quite important in the life of those lakeside communities. . . There are a great many Sunday painters along the shore of the Lake of Two Mountains, amateurs who paint for the fun of it and who like to look at each other's works and even buy them from one another. I gather that the raising of their sights was one of the reasons for the Quarry Point exhibition. Nobody expects them to become painters; they don't ask it for themselves, I'm sure; but I think the moving spirits in the show wanted them, and the community as a whole, to realize that art is something better than a hobby.

"When you live 40 or 50 miles from the centre of things, it is easy to get out of the habit of going to museums and art galleries. If you want art, you must bring it home with you."

If Argenteuil has been backward in the active promotion of art, we feel it is not for lack of talent, fellowship, or scenic inspiration. We believe St. Andrews will prove this point, and we are hopeful that their experiment will lead to more ambitious things in the future.

The Changing Indian

THE CANADIAN Indian is stealing up on the white man's so-called civilization — not with the stealth of moccasins but with the clomp of work boots. Or perhaps it would be more correct to say the white man's civilization is moving implacably in on the Indian.

Whatever way you look at him the Indian is changing. The federal government, whose responsibility the Indian is, is aiding and abbeting this change through its Indian Affairs branch. Officials of the branch say it is all for the best.

Citizenship Minister Pickersgill, who is also superintendent - general of the Indian Affairs branch, goes further. In a recent speech in Ottawa, he said the Indian must leave his traditional ways of earning a living if he is to survive.

The trouble is that the Indian's hunting and trapping grounds, chief means of earning his living, are shrinking while his numbers increase. So he is being encouraged, through Indian affairs branch education and training programs — many in co-operation with the provinces — to leave his reserves and take up work in lumber camps, on farms and fishing boats, even on the early warning radar chains being linked across northern Canada as part of North America's nuclear-age defences.

Mr. Pickersgill said the federal government hopes the Indian eventually will be fully integrated into Canadian society.

There were about 200,000 Indians in what now is Canada when the first settlers arrived, Mr. Pickersgill estimated. A 1954 nose-count showed the Indian's numbers, once declining rapidly, had risen again to some 150,000. All these Indians have got to earn a living.

So from a practical point of view, the scalping trade gone bankrupt as it has, the change in the Indian seems obviously for the better. Mr. Pickersgill himself said the Indian's living standards, compared to those of most other Canadians, are unhappily low.

But the romantic will find something sad in what's happening to the once-proud, once-feared "redskin". For although he is no longer "the vanishing (North) American," the Indian of the tom-tom, the thundering hooves, the tomahawk and the blood-curdling war-whoop is truly disappearing.

Whither Education?

ONE OF THE hottest subjects in Canada today is education, says the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. Recently, David L. Thompson, Vice-Principal of McGill University, told a Montreal audience that in no major English-speaking country is it more difficult for the child of a poor family to get a university education than in Canada. He estimated that 70% of all university students in Great Britain receive government aid in the form of scholarships or grants compared with the corresponding Canadian figure of 14%.

"Poverty is no bar to receiving a university education in England, but it is a tremendous obstacle here," Dean Thomson pointed out. "The percentage of students given government assistance in Canada has not changed for the past twenty years." Despite this fact, however, the number of young people of college age seeking admission to universities is increasing rapidly.

There is food for thought in another recent statement, by Professor R. E. Jamieson, Dean of the Faculty of Engineering at McGill University, that Canadian industry "will simply have to make do at present with a short supply of engineers." There are nearly three well-paid jobs available for every engineer graduating from a Canadian university this year — a prospect which is causing deep concern to industry and university egineering faculties. It is estimated that about 1700 engineers would be graduating from Canadian universities this spring, and that there would be approximately 4000 jobs available for them.

In the light of the above, the recent announcement of the Du Pont Company of Canada Limited with respect to their program of financial aid to help improve the teaching of science in Canadian secondary schools, takes on considerable significance. The Company will provide anually 15 grants of $1700 each to 10 Canadian universities, to be used for scholarships for prospective science teachers and for secondary school science teachers who would benefit from post-graduate work. "We recognize that the general shortage of qualified science teachers is a serious national problem. It is hoped that this modest new program may contribute to a partial solution," the company stated.

That the subject of education involves a number of serious problems cannot be denied. Solutions to the problems involve Federal-Provincial relationships, business-government relationships and the general public. No such problems are insurmountable in a country as favored in so many ways as Canada.

Problem for Sociologists

VIEWING the trend to shorter working hours, the bulletin of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association speculates, with some misgivings, on what may happen within the next half-century or so.

Naturally, there will be quite a spread of time before the 20-hour, or even the 30-hour, week becomes the accepted thing in manufacturing industry. It will depend on many factors. But whether the 30-hour, or the 20-hour, or the 10-hour week will, or will not, become a fact, is not the point at issue here. The real problem will be what to do with the 138 or 148 hours' leisure time that will be available.

Assuming that the majority will slumber the usual "sleep of the just", it will still leave better than 80 free hours each week. Of course, part of this time can be spent cluttering up the highways, shooting the accident toll higher and higher (thereby boosting the traffic policeman's work week to 50 hours), and scaring the skin off the cows in roadside fields (whose misty-eyed owners are still slugging out a 70-hour week). Part of the time, too, can be spent forcing equally misty-eyed gas station operators, storekeepers and restaurant owners back onto the 60-hour schedule. Or, if one is that way inclined, there will be plenty of opportunity to "jest set." Or battle with one's spouse, till legions of furious women descend on Ottawa like a summer storm demanding repeal of this tropic isle existence. Or wander from theatre to theatre, the while the film stars sweat it out 60 and 70 hours to make enough pictures to fill the needed quota for this new class of idlers.

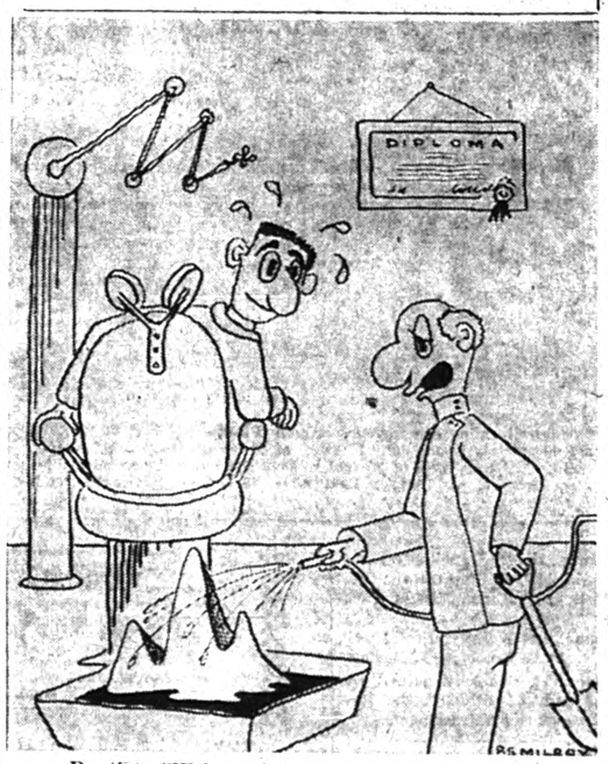

Seriously speaking, the trend — or demand — for a constantly shorter work week presents a challenge to the sociologists. Just how much leisure time can the ordinary individual use intelligently? Admittedly, there are a few men who live to work. Many more work to live. But the thought of a pretty fair slice of the population living to loaf, except to a handful of confirmed work-haters, is terrifying. Actually, it makes a mockery of common sense.

"HOME BREW"

Once upon a time, when I was a little lad, a leading manufacturer of root beer marketed a concentrate of his product. This was done so that those who wished might have the dubious pleasure of brewing and bottling their own. The mixture was available at all the leading grocery stores and could usually be found right next to large bottles of the ready-to-drink formula. Why anyone ever bothered to purchase the concentrate and subject themselves to the labor of concocting a brew I'll never know. Nevertheless, many did and among the many were Della Whitehead and her aged mother, old friends of my own maternal parent.

Each spring, when the swallows came wheeling in from Capistrano, Della and her mother got the urge to mix up a batch of home brew. So Della would trot down to the grocers, load up with concentrate and several cakes of yeast, and return home to join dear mama in a spate of feverish home industry. If the truth be known, I believe they would dearly have loved to try their hand at bath-tub gin but were somewhat concerned about what the neighbors might think. Accordingly, they settled for root beer.

During my last year at elementary school, my father was appointed to a new post, and the family drew up stakes at the end of May. Rather than disturb my schooling, my parents wisely decided I should remain where I was and complete the seventh grade. Thus, I found myself deposited for a six-week period with Della and her mother. They weren't the liveliest of company for a 13-year-old lad but, as I had exams to prepare for, there was little time for relaxation. And as it turned out, I had bushels of fun with the old girls — and at their expense. The annual brew was, I might add, the chief contributor to the fun!

My arrival at Della's occurred a scant week after bottling day. The scent of the brew pot had long since disappeared from the kitchen. The tang of spices coupled with a faint odor of maple syrup, had taken possession once more. The beer was stacked in the sideboard of the seldom-used dining room where, as Della pointed out, she and mother had lovingly placed it to age.

That last week of May was a corker. An untimely heat wave struck us and the little room to which I had been assigned took upon itself all the aspect of a blast furnace. Study was completely out of the question in that spot, so I betook myself to the verandah and joined the girls in swatting the plague of mosquitos that surged in with the heat. Being bitten alive had its drawbacks, naturally, but I preferred it to roasting alive in the oven where I was supposed to sleep.

As we sat that first evening, gasping for air and valiantly lunging at the insects, a loud bang issued from the depths of the house followed by a strange hissing sound. I jumped to my feet but neither Della nor her mother budged an inch.

"Yes, Mother, there it goes."

Nobody volunteered any further information and I was far too busy with the gnats to ask what had happened. Within a few seconds the strange sequence of noises was repeated and, again, neither of the ladies moved.

"Would you believe it Della, there goes the second one."

Mother re-covered her feet with an old raincoat and continued her rocking. Della nodded her head and cut a swath through the attacking mosquitoes with her hand.

I never did discover what those strange noises were until the day I left Della and her mother to rejoin my family in our new abode. Then, only by chance, did the news leak out because I chanced to enquire how the year's crop of root beer had fared.

"Well, say," Della queried, "don't tell me you didn't hear it blowing up almost every night? Now, ain't that a real caution! Yes, sir, we lost every last bottle in that heat wave. Blew sky high. You never saw such a mess in all your born days."

Della was pensive a moment before adding:

"Guess we won't make it any more. Mother and I have brewed root beer every spring for the past twenty years, and we haven't tasted a drop yet. It's all been blown to smithereens in that fool sideboard. Not really worth the time and money, is it?"

There was a heavy scent of root beer throughout the house that day. In retrospect, I can smell it still!

said one of the doctor's close associates, "could speak at all levels of the Chinese language. He was as much at home speaking the language of the ill-educated as he was in the tongue of the scholar." Following his year of language study, the medical missionary, together with another physician, started the medical work of the Canadian Presbyterian Mission in North Honan. For more than 25 years Dr. McClure expanded medical services in this part of China.

In 1902, after the Boxer Rebellion, during which Dr. McClure escaped the massacre of 40,000 Christians and 200 missionaries, a dark moment in Chinese missionary work, the Canadian physician returned to Canada for a visit and while here was a co-guest of honor with Sir William Osler at a McGill University dinner. The story is told that Osler, who had just delivered the University Lecture, commented to an acquaintance at this dinner: "What a shame it is for a man of McClure's ability to bury himself in China." Dr. McClure was not informed of this remark until his 90th birthday, 45 years later.

"Did Osler say that? Do you remember the subject of his lecture that day? 'The Vice of Parochialism in Medicine'!"

(Dr. McClure was to be honored by McGill University once again. In 1936 he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.)

In 1916, at the age of 60, Dr. McClure was appointed professor of internal medicine at Chee Loo University in Shantung Province. He accepted the appointment with enthusiasm, although with some apprehension. "I didn't know much about internal medicine," he said, "and I joined the staff with fear and trembling. I worked hard, often into the small hours of the morning preparing my next day's lectures."

Although most of the students could understand English, Dr. McClure taught in Chinese. It is told that during a students' strike at the university, the students complained that none of the Western professors spoke Chinese as beautifully or taught as clearly, as did Dr. McClure.

"When I accepted the appointment to Chee Loo University, I planned to stay for only four or five years and then to resign to make way for younger men," Dr. McClure recalled. Ten years later, at the age of 70 he handed in his resignation. It was rejected and the students congregated to pay tribute to their friends and teacher, entreating him to remain with them. At 75 and again at 80 he resigned, only to have his resignations refused and his students celebrate his decision to remain a professor and chairman of the Department of Medicine. And each time the students followed the time-bound custom of showing respect for advanced years, presenting him with beautifully embroidered scrolls bearing the symbol of old age. These cherished souvenirs brighten the walls of Dr. McClure's bedroom.

But retirement came shortly after his third decision to resign. He returned to Canada when the Japanese invaded the Shantung Province in 1938.

Dr. McClure today lives in his comfortable home at 108 Strathallan Boulevard, Toronto. Although he cannot now go up or down stairs, he is still active and cheerful, and has fairly good eyesight and hearing. Much of his pleasure comes in weekly letters from his son, Dr. Robert McClure, who, following in his father's footsteps, is a medical missionary in Ratlam, India. Dr. Robert flew from Bombay to be present on his father's birthday.

Incredible as it now seems, the famous portrait of Whistler's mother was rejected by the Royal Academy when first offered for exhibition in London in 1872. The jury called it "rude bungling", according to the current Reader's Digest. Happily, one member of the Academy Council thought the picture good enough, and threatened to resign unless it was accepted. When it was first put on exhibition, almost all who saw it found it so unconventional as to be inartistic and even funny.

Question Ontario's Farm Marketing Act

Ottawa (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada has under advisement the constitutional validity of Ontario's farm marketing legislation.

The question put to eight judges of the court during three days of argument last week is whether charges levied by provincial marketing boards are indirect taxes, a form of taxation exclusively reserved for federal jurisdiction, or genuine license fees.

If the court rules they are indirect taxes, the compulsory element of the marketing schemes, framed to stabilize farm markets, may collapse. Thousands of farmers would be affected.

As the court reserved decision a second question mark was raised by the Ontario government: has parliament the constitutional power to delegate indirect taxing powers to the provinces?

E. P. Varcoe, deputy federal justice minister, said in concluding arguments that the Ontario government has inquired about the point and wanted it included in the reference to the court. It may form the basis of a further reference to the court later.

THE NATURE OF MASTITIS (GARGET)

Mastitis or Garget is a germ infection that attacks dairy cows' udders in very much the same way as germs cause colds and sore throats in human beings. It is probably the most serious menace to dairy herds in Canada today. Fortunately, when understood, steps can be taken to prevent its spread throughout the herd.

Many factors and conditions contribute to the production of Mastitis. The following are the most important:

NEW ADDITIONS — Infection may come from animals purchased and it is a good idea to have all cows of milking age tested before bringing them into the herd.

FEEDING — Overfeeding of concentrates, while it does not directly cause Mastitis, may bring about an aggravated condition favorable to the development of an infection.

ROUGH HANDLING — Wet hand milking by poor milkers; finger and thumb milking; irregular milking; washing and improper drying of the udder during cold weather, are all abuses that may injure the udder and increase danger of infection.

MILKING MACHINES — Machines not properly disinfected and looked after, may spread infection from diseased cows to healthy animals.

The infection enters through teat canals of cows whose resistance to disease has been weakened through improper care of the udder or poor feeding. And the germs may pass from one infected cow to the entire herd. Or the disease may be started by a milker who has a cold and doesn't take care to protect the cow from catching his infection.

Control of this dreaded disease is accomplished through sanitation and a proper feeding program.

From time to time we will bring you more messages on Mastitis but in the meantime, start feeding a proper feeding program which is the Purina plan. Won't you give us an order today. We deliver.

Shows Divining Rod Really Works

St. John's, Nfld. (CP) — Many scoff at the powers of the divining rod, but Baden Osmond isn't one of them. He has used the primitive method to locate water for 30 Newfoundland residents.

Baden says he picked up the unusual hobby from a retired CNR employee. "Cut a small fork from a tree," the older man said, "fashion it as though you were going to make a catapult (slingshot), then sharpen all three points."

Then Baden was told to grasp the two prongs that form the "V", making sure they pressed firmly against the veins of the palm, and hold the fork outstretched parallel to the ground.

The idea is that the part of the rod pointing away from the body will dip when it passes over the underground water.

Baden was skeptical. "But I gave it a try anyway. I found water . . . and I was amazed."

One happy customer, the parish priest at Trepassey, said Baden found enough water near the church "to start a swimming pool" for the whole congregation.

Although he has never failed to find water it wasn't always as easy as that.

"Once I walked over an area for eight hours before I finally came across the water," he said. "It proved to be a good supply."

His only regret is he wasn't around 30 years ago when his parents built their house here. "We dug and dug for water and we couldn't find any at first or last," his mother says.

Baden says all his parents had to do was cut a divining rod from the dogwood tree growing in the yard.

Flood Scene in Southern Manitoba

Many farming communities around Winnipeg are completely flooded and 27 miles of dykes are being built to a level of 30 feet to save the city from disaster. At Portage La Prairie, 55 miles west of Winnipeg, an ice jam in the Assiniboine river threatened to crumble all the dykes with its mounting pressure. The town, as shown here, is already flooded.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

May 6, 1881 —

Six taverns in Lachute — and more to follow!

The population of the village, since the commencement of the census, has decreased one — or more. (The young lady seems awfully downhearted about it too.)

The lads of the village held a successful meeting in Victoria Hall on Saturday evening last, for the purpose of reorganizing their partially defunct Lacrosse Club. Officers were elected for the season, and practice commenced on Wednesday.

* * *

50 YEARS AGO

May 4, 1906 —

A meeting of the officers of the 11th Regiment, Argenteuil Rangers, was held in the armories on Friday.

Laurentian Lodge No. 14, I.O.O.F., purchased the lot adjoining Victoria Hall on Main Street, on which they intend to erect a good, serviceable hall.

The annual exhibition of stallions was held on the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday, and was largely attended. Numerous exhibitors and spectators were in attendance.

The old "Grenville", the veteran locomotive of the Carillon and Grenville (by which familiar name we still call the old road) made her first trip for the season up the line on Monday.

The butter and cheese creameries have opened for the season.

25 YEARS AGO

May 8, 1931 —

Owing to the lack of a quorum there was no Council meeting last evening, and an adjournment was made until Monday next.

Wednesday afternoon, the home of William Hale, of the Seigniory, was destroyed by fire.

Reports come in of continued activities of the chicken thieves; Mr. Jas. Patton was deprived of all his birds last evening, and various other parties report having narrow escapes from having their roosts robbed.

Just before the noon hour on Tuesday morning, Henri Lafleur, 67, was struck by a flying knife from the shaping machine in the Millwork Manufacturing Company mill. He was struck in the chest, the knife penetrating his heart and lungs, and was instantly killed.

VITAL PARTNERS

And now comes news from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce that they are going to place more emphasis on agriculture as part of their nation-wide program. Nothing but good can come out of increased interest in the business and problems of farming. Without agriculture in Canada, there would be little commerce.

Suggest Changing Ambulance System

Montreal (CP) — An emergency ambulance service organized by the police department instead of the present system carried out through hospitals by private firms has been suggested to city council by the Montreal's Citizens' Emergency Ambulance Committee.

After a study of ambulance arrangements which they called "slow and unsatisfactory," the committee suggested re-zoning the city so that the nine hospitals deal with all emergency accidents in their zone.

The committee, organized by the Rotary Club of Montreal, says police routine should be improved so that injured persons do not lie in the street while police officers are obtaining information. It suggests the provision of patrol cars which could double as ambulances.

The present system, the committee says, involves calling the police emergency number for a squad car. Police investigate the accident and call an ambulance from the nearest hospital. Hospitals usually refer people calling for an ambulance to the police which means further delay.

The committee suggests police be made responsible for despatching ambulances by two-way radio control.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Token to Departing Sunday School Secretary

Last Sunday morning, at the regular session of the Lachute United Church Sunday School, a very pleasing event took place when retiring secretary-treasurer, Herb Graham, was presented with a leather-bound, inscribed hymnal.

The superintendent, Mr. Merlyn Evans, who has been a co-worker with Mr. Graham for many years, called upon Mr. Angus Taylor to make the presentation.

Mr. Taylor stated that Mr. Graham had been the secretary-treasurer since 1949, and had always been a faithful worker, willing to "serve with a smile". In this instance Lachute's loss, he continued, was New Brunswick's gain, and he wished Mr. Graham all success in his new endeavor at Moncton.

Successful Supper By United Churchmen

The second annual turkey supper sponsored by the Men's Group of Lachute United Church was an outstanding success last Wednesday evening. Over 400 pounds of turkey was consumed by 650 patrons at the three sittings, which started at 5.50 p.m. and finished at around 8 o'clock. Facilities and catering were considerably improved over the previous year.

Various ladies of the congregation co-operated with the Men's Group with the cooking of turkeys, pies and rolls, and many friends donated edibles and finances to aid the project. Co-operation of the Lachute Legion and Masonic Lodge helped notably, as additional tables and silverware were made available by these two organizations.

Interesting Events in United Church W.M.S. April Program

The month of April brought several events of special interest in the program of the United Church W.M.S. At the regular meeting of the Auxiliary on April 12, the Explorers and C.G.I.T. were guests, and the girls and their leaders conducted their impressive Re-affiliation Services most efficiently.

The Easter thank-offering meeting of the Auxiliary was held on the 17th, with a good attendance of members and visitors. Mrs. Wilson Bridge conducted the worship service and the Rev. Mr. Bridge was speaker at this meeting, giving an interesting talk on the Vellore Christian Medical College and Hospital. Mr. Bridge paid tribute to the founder, Dr. Ida Scudder, and to "the wonderful work of teaching and healing carried out by this Christian institution in the midst of darkness, torture and superstition." (Dr. Scudder now has an honorary position on the governing body of the college and hospital, and her influence today is inspiring the Vellore Council and the staff to seek wider and wider horizons of service. Christians throughout the world have the privilege of sharing in this magnificent call to service by helping to keep this institution to function at the highest level on purely Christian support.)

The annual meeting of the Montreal Presbyterial was held in Calvary Church, Montreal, on April 18-19. Several Auxiliary members and leaders of the younger groups of Lachute United Church were in attendance at these meetings; they received much information and inspiration, and enjoyed the fellowship with members from various sections of the Presbyterial.

The final event of the month was the Mission Band thank-offering meeting, held last Friday afternoon. The leaders, Mrs. Tait, Mrs. Stanley Boyd and Mrs. Douglas, conducted the meeting, while several members of the Mission Band assisted and gave an interesting review of their study book, "The Boy with the Busy Walk." After the program, the Mission Band with their guests were entertained at tea by their leaders and the executive of the W.M.S. The Auxiliary members always welcome the privilege of sharing these meetings with the younger groups in missionary work.

All - Auxiliary projects during April were under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. Bridge, 1st vice-president, as Mrs. J. R. McOuat has been on holiday.

St. Matthew's Girls Attended Spring Festival

(Our District Correspondent)

Grenville — Twelve girls and two leaders, Mrs. G. H. Lessard and Miss May Matthew, from St. Matthew's Anglican Church, attended the Montreal Diocesan Girls' Auxiliary spring festival last Saturday.

Communion service was held in Christ Church Cathedral, the celebrant being the Lord Bishop of Montreal.

At the afternoon session, a Dominion Life Membership was presented to Mrs. G. E. Hatcher, the G. A. secretary-treasurer for the Montreal diocese. Miss Norma Hall received a missionary pin in recognition of her faithful service to the church. Many girls from the diocese were presented with honor-rings by Bishop Dixon.

After registering, the girls were shown through the new Anglican House. The Festival was well attended by girls from churches in the diocese, as well as branches from the Clarendon deanery.

The Dorcas entries made a very nice display — each branch having completed a layette for Canadian mission schools and hospitals.

During the afternoon some of the girls participated in public speaking, also presented plays based on their missionary study book. Slides were shown on Camp Farthing, Laurel. Mrs. Foster, the W.A. Diocesan president, presented various badges to the girls. Dr. Wyatt Laws presented the public speaking prize to a member from Shawville, Que., in memory of his mother, the late Mrs. Harold Laws.

BANISH FEARS!

Gregory the Great wrote in the year 595: "It is the last hour: pestilence and sword are raging in the world. Nation is rising against nation, the whole fabric of things is being shaken." We have survived for thirteen and a half centuries since that dire prediction, and the last hour is not yet! Hear Jesus: "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid: ye believe in God, believe also in Me."

Lachute Man Takes Bride In Capital City

Hooper - Beaman

Miss Avril Emma Beaman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Stuart Beaman, of Ottawa, and Mr. Donald Fred Hooper, son of Dr. and Mrs. Willis M. Hooper, of Lachute, were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in St. Matthew's Anglican Church.

The Rev. R. Erie Osborne officiated. Mr. Gerald Wheeler was organist and Mr. Robert Van Dine was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Sheila McGuirl as maid of honor. Mr. Ross Boyle was best man and ushers were the bride's brothers, Mr. Douglas Beaman and Mr. Ian Beaman.

The bride's ballerina-length gown was of white lace, fashioned with a fitted bodice and full skirt and she carried a handkerchief which was carried by the bridegroom's mother on her wedding day. Her fingertip veil was held by a Juliet cap and she wore white satin slippers and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Bureaucrats Lenient on Boat License Numbers

Someone in the Department of Transport says, "We don't insist on the license number on the stern in the case of outboards." . . . Who are "we"? Technically it would be the Queen being lenient in the matter of a regulation. Her Majesty, of course, has quite a lot on her mind, international relations being what they are. . . It is interesting that she can take time out to decide that an outboard motor would so obscure a license number on a small boat that the owner thereof need not exhibit the license number in letters three inches high.

The regulations say that all such license numbers (which read something like 60E9677) must be displayed on three places on the boat — on each side of the bow and on the stern. The regulations, of course, are a part of the law by virtue of parliament's lazy habit of permitting "the minister" to establish regulations incident and possibly necessary to the enforcement of the basic law.

In practice these regulations, one learns via the grapevine, are the brain children of Messrs. Laze, Ease and Work, a triumvirate who run things in each branch or division of Her Majesty's government in the right of Canada. After working hard on such regulations, the group is likely to adjourn to the cafeteria of the Chateau Laurier for a breather, considering that our sovereign lady's work has been well done.

It is well that regulations are products of the back room because absurdities so written into the law are less discernible. For instance, could one imagine an alert Opposition countenancing a regulation which stipulates that a boat of perhaps as little as ten feet in length must have at least 18 and perhaps 21 three-inch letters plastered along its gunwhale?

The purpose of this regulation is to make a boat "easily recognizable" and thus make possible an investigation of alleged infractions of the law. "Possible" is the operative word because in most of the areas where small boats are running the Mounted Police are absent on what possibly the Commissioner considers more important duties.

Champ's Retirement Stirs Speculations

SPORTS CAMERA

By Milt MacPhail, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The heavyweight boxing division is spinning with speculation since Rocky Marciano announced last week he was retiring as world champion. If Rocky sticks to his decision, the heavyweight picture likely will be muddled for some months.

James D. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club wants to run an elimination tournament among the top contenders and that's probably what will happen. Before Marciano's announcement, the IBC was reported close to matching Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson and Floyd Patterson, the winner to get a title shot.

Aging Archie Moore, the light-heavyweight champ, was recently listed by Ring Magazine as top contender for the heavyweight crown, and Archie had laid claim to the title. But Archie lost his last shot.

Marciano retired with an undefeated record in 49 professional bouts. He won the title by knocking out Joe Walcott in the 13th round at Philadelphia, September 23, 1952. When he kayoed Walcott in the first round in their return bout. Since then he's turned back Roland LaStarza, Ezzard Sharles (twice), Don Cockell and Moore. In his last title defence last September 21, Rocky knocked out Moore in the ninth round at New York.

Remember Cockell

Speaking of the heavyweight division, it could be that British champion Don Cockell is about at the end of his ring career.

Last May in San Francisco, the pudgy Britisher made a gallant stab at Marciano's world title but Rocky knocked Cockell out in the ninth round. A few months later, Cockell was stopped in three rounds by Cuba's Nino Valdes.

Cockell's latest ring appearance the other day in London was against Kit Lave, a virtual unknown from the South Sea Island of Tonga. Cockell was on the canvas five times before he was counted out in the second round.

Landy in U.S.

Australia's John Landy is going to run twice in mile races in California early in May and many track coaches think he will become the first to crack the four-minute barrier on U.S. soil.

Landy is scheduled to compete at Los Angeles May 5 and Fresno, California, May 12, and some track men give the Aussie school teacher a good chance of breaking his own world record of 3:58.

Breaking the four-minute mile is becoming almost a regular occurence with Landy. He's already achieved the feat four times, twice in Australia, once in Finland and again at the British Empire games in Vancouver, August 7, 1954.

Canuck in Majors

It's been a while since a Canadian has performed in major league baseball. There's one this season. He's Reno Bertoia, a 20-year-old rookie second baseman from Windsor, Ont., who plays with Detroit Tigers.

Bertoia was among the rookie standouts in spring training and he's making a good bid to stay in the big time. Last week in a game against Kansas City, Bertoia had three hits in four trips to the plate, including a home run, and batted in three runs.

Lachute All-Stars Beat Brownsburg Bowling Squad

The Lachute All-Stars came from behind to defeat the Brownsburg All-Stars 3-2 Monday evening, thus winning the Brading trophy for the second consecutive year.

Brownsburg won the first two games with scores of 745 - 735 and 752 - 724, prior to Lachute's rally to take the three remaining games 770 - 638, 761 - 723, and 723 - 628.

Jim Duncan, the Lachute captain, rolled a 893 total for the five games, which is 9 pins more than his last year's high, while Don Todd, Brownsburg captain, rolled a total of 751.

The players were chosen on the basis of the six best season's averages; representing Lachute were Jim Duncan (captain), Don Cockburn, Jean-Guy Lavergne, Paul Desnoyers, Denis and Florian Brunette.

On the Brownsburg line-up were Don Todd (captain), Lucien Malacket, Jimmy Murdoch, Noel Robillard, John Duncan and Lloyd Roberts.

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The local baseball season opens here this week, as Hawkesbury, a late starter, will answer the ump's call to "Play ball!"

The Brownsburg boys started practicing this week, and seem to be throwing and catching in mid-season form. The Dollard League champions will have to be even better this year to repeat, as the competition is bound to be much tougher. Last year's weak teams are out, and they are replaced by three strong outfits, from Buckingham, Papineauville and Thurso.

As last year, Coach Jimmy Murdoch will go along with Brownsburg youngsters, although there are bound to be two or three new faces in the line-up.

The team is badly in need of funds for uniforms and the many attendant expenses, but this is a deficiency which can easily be lifted by a few good early-season gates.

You can count on a good game and a Brownsburg team worthy of your support. Bring the kids along — they'll get in free!

CURRENT SHOWS, ENTERTAINMENT, TRAVEL

"East Lynne" Melodrama On CBC Wednesday Night

That marathon melodrama from the American theatre at the turn of the century — "East Lynne" by Mrs. Henry Wood — will be presented on CBC Wednesday Night, May 9, with full trimmings of music from the stock of the period, intended to aid and abet the listeners' nostalgia. J. Frank Willis will produce the play, as he did with notable success on the Wednesday Night program six years ago.

The hoarse laughter and frantic patter of vaudeville and burlesque have all but passed away, and the high passion of melodrama banished to the soap opera and the confession magazine. However, the glamor of those "good old days" grows in the minds of many as rapidly as the mold on the ancient theatrical trunk in the attic.

For some, this attempt to recreate the atmosphere of the theatre in the nineties will be an occasion for detached amusement or wonderment; in others, no doubt, it will bring on a siege of nostalgic wallowing. Whichever the case may be, invitation to listen goes out with a warning that such orgies of reminiscing have been known to produce a mouthful of ashes.

In keeping with tradition Willis is designated as actor-manager of the show. He and his troopers will present the play as faithfully as they know, as far as possible as it would have been staged by one of the (better) touring companies of the 1890's. The background music, conducted by Samuel Hersenhoren, will be based on tunes of the day, and it will be in the style of the theatre, not the radio. There will also be the inevitable entr'acte entertainment.

The play starts at 8.30. By way of introduction, Mavor Moore will speak from 8.00-8.30 on "Melodrama in the American Theatre."

The famous "Happy Gang", a radio network favorite in Canada for nearly 19 years, makes its TV debut on Wednesday, May 9, on "Cross-Canada Hit Parade." Started by Bert Pearl, a former Winnipeg man, the five-a-week show is now headed by Eddie Allen, who joined the Gang in its first year.

Quintet — Pianoforte and Strings.

A very interesting program has been arranged.

Although the event is under auspices of Hawkesbury Community Concerts, admission is being charged — the purpose of this concert being four-fold: to encourage local talent, to enable citizens to hear and appreciate promising young musicians in the locality, to foster musical education in the district, and to raise additional money for bringing in the best possible outside talent for Hawkesbury Community Concerts.

Five-Year Census, Innovation in Nat'l Stocktaking

Enumeration Starts Next June, Population And Agriculture

Canada will take its first national quinquennial census of population and agriculture in 1956. This marks an important departure from the previous practice of confining the quinquennial census to the Prairie Provinces, where they have been taken in Manitoba since 1886 and in Saskatchewan and Alberta since 1906.

In recent decades there have been numerous requests to extend this five-year census to other provinces. The rapidity with which changes have been taking place in Canada in the post-war period and, indeed, since the 1951 Census, have resulted in more numerous and urgent requests.

It was not practicable to take a five-year census on a national scale in the past because of the length of time required to take a census, and cost; and the fact that the compiling of one would overlap the preparation for the next, and create serious organizational difficulties. The 1951 Census, which introduced in Canada radical new procedures in census taking, reduced the time for completing a census to one-half, thus removing the difficulty of timing. The 1951 Census cost approximately $8,000,000. If it had been taken by the former methods, it would have cost approximately $2,000,000 more.

Further reductions in the cost of a national quinquennial census could be made by reducing the number of questions and by confining it to population and agriculture; that is, there would be no schedules for distribution, fisheries or housing. This plan has been adopted for 1956, and the national quinquennial census has been designed to cost not more than $5,000,000.

Reduction in Questions

There will be five questions in the 1956 Census of Population instead of the twenty-nine asked in 1951. These are age, sex, marital status, relationship to head of household and whether living on a farm. Information on the other questions asked in 1951 has not the same degre of urgency; in fact, some of the characteristics of the population such as religion, origin, education, and citizenship change only slowly and an enumeration of them once in ten years is adequate.

The agriculture questionnaire will have 76 questions as against approximately two hundred in 1951. After consultation with federal and provincial agriculturalists and interested organizations, it was decided that answers to these seventy-six questions would furnish essential bench-marks and other basic materials appropriate for a quenquennial census of agriculture. It is intended to supplement this questionnaire somewhat later by a sample survey to secure information on such items as farm expenses and income from non-farm operations.

Agriculture

Agriculture is the most important of Canada's primary industries. Farmers, business, governments and all interested in the making of agricultural policy require a variety of statistical data to assist them. The Bureau of Statistics annually sends out mail questionnaires to obtain information about acreages and numbers of live stock, etc. Approximately one-fifth of the farmers send in replies. From this sample, percentage changes from one year to the next are calculated.

It is found in practice that this method of obtaining annual estimates is subject to error and that the errors are cumulative, so that the longer the period between censuses, the larger the error. In the ten-year interval the error for some farm products becomes serious.

Canada has lagged behind several countries in regard to the frequency of taking agricultural censuses. This serious gap in Canadian statistical information will be filled by the 1956 Census.

Population

It is expected that the 1956 count of Canada's population will be around 16 million, an increase of approximately 2 million over 1951, which is 14% in the five-year period.

Annual estimates of population for Canada and the provinces will be more accurate with a quinquennial census. It is difficult intercensally to make adequate allowance for inter-provincial migration and emigration from Canada.

NEW TV SCREEN

In a few years you'll hang your TV picture like a painting, says The Financial Post. British scientists are now testing an almost-flat 21-inch by 21-inch television tube, shaped to hang on the wall as predicted in The Post on May 15, 1954. An electronic optics system does the trick.

New Singer

Monique Cadieux, the pert 16-year-old Montreal vocalist, is now a regular fixture on CBC Television's weekly variety "Holiday Ranch". Her rapid rise to the top bracket of popularity has been unprecedented in Canadian entertainment circles.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Travel gadgets are sold in all the stores now — for a price. But the resourceful traveler can devise ingenious ways to save himself trouble and expense.

Take, for instance, the lowly spring-type clothespin. One driver I know fastens it to his dashboard ashtray and parks his cigarette snugly between the two upper prongs. I've also seen it used to clamp a road map to the sun-visor — very handy.

Ever try to jam ice into your old, not too fool-proof thermos bottle? A friend once showed me how she made triangular pieces of ice by doubling a piece of wax paper, folding it into pleats, and placing it into a water-filled refrigerator tray. The next morning the ice triangles slid effortlessly into the thermos!

A travelling family I know takes along an ordinary metal cookie sheet to serve as a drawing board or game table for their restless children. They also keep a small footstool in the back seat so the small fry can enjoy the view. It can double as an armrest for the adults, too.

My prize story on this subject is the couple I observed picnicking on the roof of their car one sunny Sunday. The reason, they explained, was . . . to avoid the ants!

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

Today's mothers, who feed their babies nutritious, scientifically-prepared foods, may be shocked to learn what their ancestors fed little ones.

Statisticians say today's children grow larger and taller than ever before. After reading a report by baby food manufactuers on ancient food habits, we're not surprised.

Before nutrition's modern role was discovered — and that not too long ago — many strange practices were followed. Influenced by legend, custom and superstition, ancient people believed development of strong bodies was not a matter of diet but of external treatment.

The newborn at one time were subjected to an ordeal known as salting. Soda-ash was rubbed everywhere but in the baby's eyes and mouth and this rigorous treatment was suposed to harden the constitution.

Cow's milk wasn't fed to infants until the 18th century. Previously only human milk was considered fit. Even foster nurses were hired by the wealthy and when the baby fell ill it was the nurse who was bled, medicated and put on special diet.

A 10th-century Arabian doctor advised the nurse, before giving bread or other solid food to the infant, to chew it thoroughly and then put it with her fingers into the baby's mouth. Little ones were also fed pap — bread-sop or grains, milled and moistened.

Our scientists have discovered the tasty foods of adults, in a simpler and more easily digested form, are better for infants than the unappetizing milk-and-gruel diet.

Teaching Revolution

Canadian students are getting another look this year at what may be the beginning of a revolution in teaching methods — learning via television.

In the west, between 500 and 600 elementary and junior high school students in Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge will participate in a three-week experiment studying the value of classroom television. Alberta school broadcast supervisor, Richard A. Morton, says the experiment will include 15 programs.

Attracted to the budgie cages while roaming through the park last year, Tom Asher, designer and director of an English pottery firm, made rough sketches of the birds for a new pattern which he calls "Song of Vancouver." He says the design is selling successfully in many countries.

"KISSIN' DONT LAST . . . COOKIN' DO!"

An old Dutch saying . . . with a recipe to prove it.

Chicken Corn Pie, a Dutch favorite, can be made the quick 'n easy way with condensed cream of chicken soup, diced cooked chicken and canned whole kernel corn . . . even the pie crust can come from a package.

DUTCH STYLE CHICKEN CORN PIE

1 small onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed cream of chicken soup
1 cup diced cooked chicken
1 cup cooked whole kernel corn
1 package (9 ounces) pie crust mix or enough pastry for a 2-crust pie.

Cook onion in butter; blend with soup, chicken and corn. Roll half of pastry dough on floured board and line a 9-inch pie pan; pour in chicken filling. Roll remaining pastry into circle; place on top of filling; pinch edges together and make several slits in top to allow steam to escape. Bake in moderate oven (375°F) about 1 hour. 6 servings.

NOTE: In place of a top crust, cut out chicken shaped pieces of the pastry and place on top of the filling and bake.

Serve this tasty bit of Dutch cookery with spicy bread and butter pickles, tiny [illegible] onions and fresh bread.

Toss a salad of lettuce, carrot round, radish chips, a ripe olive here and there with a hot salad dressing.

Have a pitcher of nice cold milk ready for refilling the "milk mugs."

For dessert, dish up some almost thawed red raspberries and serve with cream; have the brim filled family cookie jar near by.

Now sit back and watch your family savor every mouthful . . . down to the last crumb!

Officer: "Miss, you were doing sixty miles an hour."

Discuss Plans for ACWW Conference

More than $10,000 has been collected by member societies of the Associated Country Women of the World for UNESCO Gift Coupons for Ceylon. This was reported at the last meeting of the ACWW Executive Committee. Women's Institutes in Canada have been assisting with this project, which will close in Quebec the first of June.

Several items dealing with the ACWW Conference in that country in December of this year were discussed, at this meeting. A UNESCO Seminar has been proposed, prior to the conference. This would consist of 30 to 40 delegates from less developed areas where there are at present no organized rural women's groups. The over-all theme is to be "The Place of Rural Women's Organizations in their country's development, past, present, future." This would be studied under three headings: Study of ACWW and its Member Societies, the United Nations and its Specialized Agencies, and Ways and Means of using the knowledge gained when returning to their own countries.

At the Conference itself, five subjects were approved for round-table discussions. These are: Conservation of Natural Resources, Means of Spreading information about UN and its Specialized Agencies, Means of preserving and sharing the best of our national cultures, Contribution of rural women's organizations towards their country's development, and Economic production and the problem of over-population.

Dutch Treat

Canadians have borrowed a lot of traditions from the Dutch. The custom of planting tulips in the garden and "showering" a bride with gifts both originated in Holland many centuries ago.

The Dutch have some food customs too which Canadians should consider borrowing. The conventional method of baking a cake in Holland consists of spreading the dough in the pan and then topping this first with fruit and then with boiling water or a combination of boiling water and fruit juice. The dough rises to the top to form the cake while underneath there's a ready-made fruit sauce when the finished product comes out of the oven. This pudding can be made with whatever fruit you have on hand — cooked dried apricots, raisins, cherries, canned pineapple, fresh or canned peaches, apricots or whatever combination of fruit delights your family and stays on good terms with your budget. You can even heap ready-prepared fruit pie fillings on the batter to add flavor and interest if you like. Once you've tried it you're sure to agree it's an old-world delicacy that's out-of-this-world to eat.

Dutch Pudding

4 Tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup milk, 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspon nutmeg or cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt, juice of 1 lemon; 2 cups boiling water or mixture of fruit juice and boiling water; fresh, canned or frozen fruit, or a combination of fruits.

Grease an 11 x 8-inch pan. Preheat oven to 400°F. (moderately hot). Cream butter or margarine until light and fluffy. Gradually add 1 cup sugar and continue creaming. Combine milk and water. Sift together flour, baking powder, nutmeg or cinnamon and salt. Add sifted flour and spices to creamed butter, alternating with milk and water mixture. Pour batter in well-greased pan. Cover batter with fruit. (Cooked dried apricots, raisins, cherries or canned pineapple, fresh or canned peaches and apricots or a combination of fruits). Sprinkle 1 cup granulated sugar and lemon juice over fruit. Pour 2 cups boiling water over all. Bake in preheated oven for 45 minutes. Serve with cream.

Note: If desired, part fruit juices may be used with the boiling water.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Message of the Apple Pie

When sudden illness strikes a home in any western town, soon it becomes very evident what is meant by western neighborliness and hospitality. Good neighbors bake up an extra pie or cake and, with no fuss 'n feathers, send something out of their oven around to the home where a worried family has been giving little thought to nourishment.

Canadians are not, as a rule, eloquent people. Often, in fact, they are reticent about saying what actually is in their minds; but by their kindly actions, they speak out eloquently.

What, as a matter of fact, can speak more eloquently than a well-cooked apple pie? The kind thoughts and multiple memories are sliced right in with the apples when the housewife busies herself to do something for her stricken neighbor.

Actions speak louder than words — no matter how eloquent the words may be. And when the worried family sits down to a quick piece of pie and a cup of coffee between visits to the hospital and long bedside vigils, the apple pie brings nourishment to the body, and also provides comforting evidence of sympathy from loving neighbors. This brings them strength of spirit, and new sources of fortitude.

If by some magic process the pie crust had been engraved with the thoughts of the maker, often it would show something like this:

"Dear friends: We understand. We wish we could be of more help. We know that a crisis like this within your family makes heavy demands both on body and spirit. This pie is a token of our affection and sympathy for you all, and a symbol to state that we stand ready to help in any way possible. You know that, anyway; but this pie is a reminder. The pie itself is to furnish a little tasty nourishment for the body; the thought which prompted it is really more important, for we wanted most of all to lend you strength and nourishment for the spirit, so that you would have the courage to face what may come. We're with you at this trying time.

(Signed) Your Neighbor."

FOR PARENTS ONLY...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

"Do This, Junior"

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Do this, Junior!" Many times a day Mother gives her son explicit directions. If he is a pre-school youngster, she may issue far more orders than he actually needs. When Junior receives a constant stream of commands, and if he is a strong-minded youngster, he is apt to turn a "deaf ear" to his mother's guidance.

The school age child is rebellious about always being told to do things. "Why are you never in sight?" an irate Mother asked her eleven year old daughter. "Because you always have something for me to do whenever you see me," the girl replied with unexpected frankness. No wonder she did not seek her mother's companionship!

Children do need a good deal of direction in their activities. Only through their own experience will they acquire knowledge and learn new skills. Mary learns to count, not by hearing her mother repeat "one, two, three" but by counting articles herself. Tommy discovers how to lace his shoes, not by watching his parent do them up, but by struggling with his own laces. Children need supervision by an adult when they are first learning to play with each other — otherwise a two year old may give another small child a resounding whack over the head with a toy shovel.

In directing a child, a parent must always keep in mind that the goal of child training is not just a "good" child in the present. Mothers and fathers are trying to help their child to become a self-disciplined adult who will take responsibility for his own actions and exert wise direction in what he chooses to do.

There is little doubt that much mental illness in adult life can be traced back to the too great use of fear of punishment as a "Big Stick" held over a child by an adult in authority. A child should not be scared into being good by threats of a whipping or a bogey-man.

An ineffective method of control is deceiving a child — because every child needs the security which comes from knowing that his parent is one in whom he can have faith, confidence and trust. Rewards and bribes have the distinct disadvantage that a bright child is apt to hold out for a bigger reward, a better bribe each time. Blackmail is not just reserved for grown-ups. Reasoning, like the river, can go "on and on forever" is also a poor way to control a child in a situation where obedience is essential.

Control of a small child by a parent cannot be maintained by an adult who cannot say "no" because he is afraid to make a decision and see to it that the child follows it. A command should never be given unless it is necessary. Neither should a parent ever "leave himself out on a limb" by giving an order which he cannot see to it that the child carries out. Getting rattled, or angry or unloving are all mistakes in control. After all "the ruler must be able to rule himself." The parent must have a mixture of decision and authority, along with a serenity of spirit. Children with few exceptions, respond to parents expecting that they will conform to reasonable behaviour requirements.

Summer Camps For City Children

Quebec (CP) — A summer vacation in the country — something which is still only a dream for many city children — may soon become a reality for 15,000 youngsters in the Quebec City area.

About 2,500 school-age boys and girls in Quebec already enjoy a three-week holiday every year, through facilities provided by about a dozen camps scattered throughout the surrounding district. But because of insufficient camp facilities and lack of funds on the part of many parents the majority of the city's youngsters have only the city streets for a playground during the hot season.

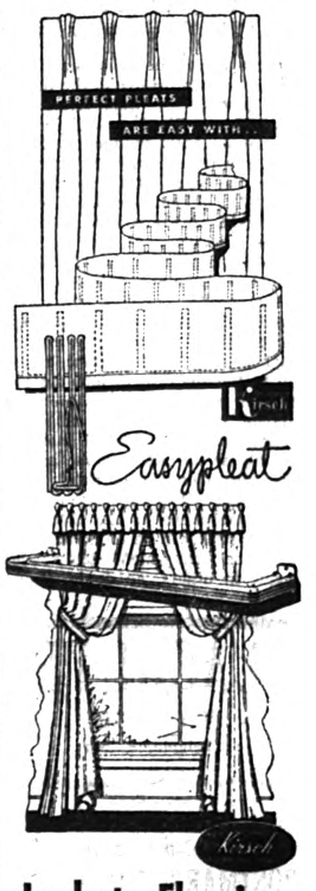

To help remedy the situation, the city's Central Welfare Council has come up with the idea of extending the system of "day camps", now in operation on a small scale. Under this system, the children use the recreational facilities of the camps during the day, but sleep at home, thus making possible the accommodation of a far greater number of campers.

The camps at present in operation are managed by religious orders or service clubs. There is one camp for girls only, while the others accommodate either boys only, or boys and girls at separate periods.

The camps run at a loss every year. It costs an average of $2.55 a day to house and feed each child, but the payment required from parents is only $1 a day. This means an annual deficit of around $80,000, which must be met by subsidies from the Central Welfare Council and the provincial government (each of which amounts to about $6,000 yearly), and donations from societies and individuals.

The introduction of day camps on a wider scale would not increase this financial burden to any great extent, since food and sleeping quarters are not required.

The deal involves a farm on which Bunty is now stabled. Morrissey bought the land for $32,000 five years ago and set a price of $1,075,000 for it now, certain that no one would take up the offer. Now I Ask You

By Lewis Milligan

Can a Christian be a Socialist? That question has been put to me by a reader who is himself a churchman. I replied that it all depends upon the individual Christian's idea of Socialism and his knowledge of how it has worked out in practice. Robert Owen, a successful British industrialist was the first practical Socialist; he came over to America in 1825 and bought a whole town and 30,000 acres of land in Indiana. He announced that he had come to "introduce an entire new state of society, to change it from an ignorant, selfish system to an enlightened, social system which shall gradually unite all interests into one, and remove all causes for contest between individuals."

Owen was a shrewd businessman and his new utopia held together so long as he remained to manage it with a firm hand. But he returned to England. "Left to themselves," says one writer, "its thousand-odd members fell to chiselling and snitching and indulging in rather more slander than usual. After two years they 'divvied' up in a cool mood and quit." Owen blamed the failure of his experiment on "the habits of the individual system" prevailing in the rest of the world.

About the middle of the nineteenth century, Karl Marx undertook to prove that although Socialism had failed dismally in Indiana, it was inevitably coming true throughout the world. Marx was not a business man, nor was he prompted, like Owen, by loving-kindness toward his fellow man. As a German exile in London he spent years in the British Museum writing a book, Das Kapital, in which he fanatically attacked capitalism as the cause of all the miseries of society. By means of a revolutionary class struggle, capitalism was to be abolished and all poverty, industry and government were to be taken over by the workers. That, in brief, is Marxian Socialism and it is the logical objective of any collectivist theory of society.

The revolutions in Russia presented an opportunity to put that theory into effect. The class struggles was over and the entire country was in a state of social chaos. Kerensky set up a democratic government in Petrograd, but it was soon overthrown. Lenin, who had been in hiding, seized the opportunity he had been waiting for. He mounted the platform at a meeting of the Workers' and Soldiers' Soviet of Petrograd and announced: "We will now proceed to the construction of a Socialist Society."

That was all Lenin said on that occasion. In one of his speeches before he seized power he specifically stated what the new socialist society was to be. "Democracy from below!" he shouted. "Democracy without officialdom, without police, without a standing army. . . Immediate preparation for a state of thing where all shall fulfill the functions of control and superintendence, so that none shall have the opportunity of becoming bureaucrats at all. . . The state shall wither away, by virtue of the simple fact that, freed from capitalistic slavery and exploitation, people will gradually become accustomed to the observation of the elementary rules of life, known for centuries, repeated for thousands of years in all sermons. They will become accustomed to their observance without constrait, without subjection, without special appartus for compulsion which is called the State."

That utopian dream of forty years ago, has, in every detail, become the very opposite in reality throughout the Soviet Republics of Russia today.

Can a Christian be a Socialist? A better question would be, Can a Socialist be a Christian? Robert Owen was an outright agnostic. Marx and Lenin were atheists. They were all materialists. They assumed that human beings were so much animated material that could be planned and moulded into a cast-iron system of society and stay there. Robert Owen died a spiritualist.

Civil Defence in Rural Areas

(Tenth in a series of 24 articles)

The airplane is blamed for bringing war to the civilian population of countries. In the past, the cities were considered the only areas in real danger. The hydrogen bomb, however unimaginable the idea may be, has extended this threat to even the most remote farm.

It is this vast, almost unbelievable new danger that has posed the two main problems before Canada's civil defence planners: how to save the population of the cities and how to save the rest of the population. The only answer for cities is evacuation. The main solution for rural people is to provide adequate shelter.

The farmer's chief danger from an H-Bomb attack arises from its radioactive fall-out, the dust of pulverized cities that settles over large areas following the blast. This danger extends not only to the farmer and his family, but to his livestock and even his crops as well.

There are ways to guard against this fall-out danger. The first step is to be warned in time that it is coming. This can only be done effectively through a well-organized civil defence setup that takes in every farmer in the district.

It is impossible to predict the size and location of a fall-out area until a bomb is dropped. It is important, therefore, to know every protective measure that can be taken before such a disaster takes place. This is a case in which ignorance would be anything but bliss. That is why civil defence has become as important to the farmer as to any other citizen: civil defence training can provide the farmer with knowledge that is power to protect himself.

Radioactive fall-out can contaminate animals, crops and unpackaged foods. It can contaminate houses, cars, yards and fields. It can contaminate water supplies so that they should not be used until they are decontaminated.

The only safe thing to do if fall-out occurs is to take shelter. The actual strength of the shelter is not important. The material and the thickness of the walls and roof determine the degree of protection.

A farmer can provide his stock protection by keeping them in the barn. Since the danger from fall-out might last 48 hours or more, this means someone should stay in the barn all this time to avoid walking back and forth from the house for feeding and watering.

It is necessary, too, that means of determining the strength of radiation in the fall-out be available. Or that information on its danger be available from radiation detection units in the nearest village or town so that a farm family will know when it is safe to come out again. Civil defence planning before such disaster comes is the only means of assuring the farmer this will be available.

The farmer may be called on to help his city neighbors, too, so that his place in civil defence is not just to learn how he may help himself, but also how to help others less fortunate in disaster.

If large cities are wiped out, his crops and livestock, his milk and eggs and butter would become a vital necessity to the life of the whole country. His supplies would be needed to help feed the refugees from the cities. His house and even his outbuildings may be needed to help shelter them. Even his machinery, his tractors, trucks and even horses, if he has them, could be urgently useful. But they would be useless if he was caught unprepared and all was contaminated. And dead farmers, themselves, are notoriously useless.

Civil defence in Canada, to achieve maximum results, must extend to every community, no matter how small, F. F. Worthington, Federal Civil Defence Co-ordinator, has said. It is being organized, as a result, on an area basis comprising a number of towns and communities.

And, said the Co-ordinator, "It must also embrace means of preparing and warning farmers in isolated places."

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. At the time of my first claim for benefit my wife was alive, and I submitted that she was my dependent. She has since died. I have a daughter six years of age. May I draw benefits as a worker with a dependent if I make a new claim?

A. A person is entitled to claim as a dependent any child under the age of sixteen who is wholly or mainly maintained by him.

Q. After death, can someone draw our benefits if we have always paid contributions without drawing benefit?

A. No. The Unemployment Insurance Act only insures the contributor against the risk of losing his employment. His insurance is against that contingency occurring, just as fire insurance protects him against the loss of his house by fire. If the contingency does not occur no indemnity is payable.

Ayersv'l Problem of Unruly Youth Spotlighted by Police Resignation

The municipality of Ayersville on Monday evening accepted the resignation of Police Chief and Foreman Ernest Carrière, effective May 31. In a letter submitted to the Council Mr. Carrière stated there was lack of confidence and antipathy towards him by some of the councillors. All this, and the fact that at its last session the Council voted to reduce his salary, resulted in the letter requesting that he be relieved of his duties in the event of a pay cut.

The resignation caused considerable discussion among the Council and citizens in attendance. Roland Grenier, chairman of the Ayersville Loisirs committee, complained that the curfew was not being respected and declared that the Council had to do something for the youth of the village in an effort to prevent juvenile delinquency. He cited the instance of a band of Ayersville youths picked-up by Lachute police, and demanded that the Council give matters such as this due consideration.

Gaston Plamondon insisted that the Council retain the services of another constable. "Police authority is indispensable for parents in the upbringing of their children," he stated.

Mayor Gaetan Paquette replied that it was not a question of leaving the municipality without police protection, and added further light to Mr. Grenier's statement, saying that he had incriminating statements signed by six of the youths.

Proceeding to other business, it was moved, seconded and passed that the sum of $4,564.66 be paid to the Township of Chatham, for preparation of the cadastral plan made in 1950, this being a reimbursement incidental to the separation of the two municipalities. It was decided to request the firm in question to complete the work, as Ayersville municipality would like to have the subdivision of the cadastre in its possession.

Building permits for four houses and an addition to a garage owned by Hector Larocque were approved, while a request for a sewer and the opening of a street, by Eddy Laurin, in his sub-division on the Brownsburg Road, was left to the members of the Sanitation Committee, who will discuss the question with Dr. L. Turcotte, County Health Officer.

Claims for damages caused by water to the properties of Norman McRae ($180) and $35 for his tenant, and Mrs. Joseph Quenneville ($200) were turned over to the legal advisor for study.

A request for a grant to the J.E.C., a juvenile youth group, to augment funds for a two-week camp this summer, was tabled for further study.

Charles Edouard Gauthier, Chatham Street restaurant owner, requested that No Parking signs be replaced by signs permitting short-period parking in front of commercial establishments. Councillor Douglas Simon proposed that the question be left in the hands of the Police Committee, but the proposal had no seconder. It was then moved and seconded, by Councillors Campeau and Champagne respectively, that the signs limit the parking to 60 minutes for a distance of 50 feet in front of business establishments on both sides of Chatham Street.

It was decided that the Council sessions get underway at 7.30 p.m. instead of the usual 8 p.m., also that a fence be erected between the farms of Octavius Bruce and Walker - Kingsbury. A request for water and sewer services by Marcel Filiatreault was tabled for further study.

James Clark requested a new water entrance to his Hamford Street property, and the Council suggested that he complete the work himself, to the satisfaction of the three tenants.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

Women's Inst. Submits Views On Radio and TV Programs

A large number of members attended the monthly meeting of Lachute Women's Institute, held in the Legion Hall last week, together with a good representation from Brownsburg, Pioneer and other branches, also several visitors.

Mrs. F. W. FitzGerald reported on the brief being prepared to the Royal Commission on Broadcasting, giving the opinions of the Lachute Branch members as follows:

(a) That first-class Canadian talent should be maintained and encouraged to stay in Canada, and should be adequately remunerated to that end;

(b) That private TV stations should be licensed, with discretion, and the licensing and control of private TV and sound broadcasting should not be under the sole control of the CBC;

(c) That much of the advertising matter is considered to be childish and irritating, and that the amount of advertising should be less, particularly in the middle of programs;

(d) That the children's programs are excellent; that panel and debating programs, such as Citizen's Forum, are, generally speaking, very interesting, and that there should be more of them, with the proviso that matters of public and political interest should be more fairly presented, unbiased as much as possible, to which end a much more representative group of citizens, both of parties and professions, business and factory workers, should take part in these programs.

A drive to increase membership to the Canadian Association of Consumers is to be carried out, Mrs. A. Bothwell being appointed as the member representing the Lachute branch.

Mrs. A. Bothwell, convener of Home Economics, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Audrey Morris, who is a model and fashion lecturer, connected with Canadian Industries Limited, and the larger fashion houses in Montreal. Mrs. Morris' topic, "What makes a woman beautiful," proved to be an interesting subject to all her listeners.

In her talk Mrs. Morris stressed that beauty must commence from inside, creating cheerfulness, personality and warmth. She dealt with posture, correct walking and standing — the questions of cosmetics and the importance of choosing the right basic colors for clothing.

Mrs. C. Duncan moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Morris for her helpful and educational lecture.

The president, Mrs. G. McGibbon, also voiced her appreciation and hoped Mrs. Morris would favor Lachute by another visit in the near future.

Members were reminded that the County Convention would be held in Morin Heights, May 12, and a home-cooking sale on June 1 — place to be announced later.

Tea was served after the meeting.

Hon.W.Cottingham For Un. Nationale Candidature

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham will once again represent the Union National party in Argenteuil County in the June 20 elections, it was announced at annual party banquet held in the Windsor Hotel, in Montreal, last Monday evening, in honor of the Hon. Maurice Duplessis.

This county was well represented at the gathering at which some 2,200 supporters, over 50 of them from Argenteuil, heard speeches from various cabinet ministers. The Argenteuil group comprised numerous mayors of the municipalities, headed by Gilbert Arnold, of Grenville, County Warden, as well as representatives of different organizations.

Following the banquet, the Hon. Cottingham spoke on behalf of the English-speaking minority of the province, touching on agriculture, industry, education, and the progress achieved in the mining industry, which is his particular interest as minister of that department. He told the meeting that "the treatment accorded the minorities in Quebec should serve as an example to the governments of the rest of the provinces." He added that his own county of Argenteuil served as an example of "bonne entente" by "electing an English-speaking Protestant in a county where the French-Canadian Catholic is in the majority."

Mr. Cottingham stated that he was proud to be able to continue as candidate for the Union Nationale in the coming elections, and pledged himself to serve his county and province in every manner possible, as he has done in the past.

Pre-Election Skirmishes Stir Mild Interest

THIS WEEK IN QUEBEC
By Romeo Magera

Quebec (CP) — Quebec Liberal Leader Georges Lapalme hits the campaign road this week in connection with the June 20 provincial election, taking along the official blessing of Quebec ministers in the Federal cabinet.

Announcement of the opening of his campaign was among highlights of a week crammed with political activity.

Lapalme's campaign opens Thursday, May 10, at Thetford Mines in Megantic County. Friday, he speaks at Disraeli, Wolfe riding; Saturday, at Lac Megantic, Frontenac riding, and Sunday, at Victoriaville, Arthabaska riding.

Among Federal cabinet ministers backing Lapalme in his attempt to dethrone Mr. Duplessis is resources minister Lesage who said in a Reform Club address.

"The Union Nationale party has perhaps tried to intimidate municipalities, school boards, institutions, private groups and individuals but that party is mistaken if it thinks it can prevent us (federal cabinet ministers) from entering the fight."

While Mr. Duplessis warns Federal liberals to stay away from the election campaign, Lesage said, he, in all his elections uses Federal - Provincial issues as a political war horse.

"If therefore the chief of the Union Nationale party chooses to pick this problem for the voters by attacking Ottawa Liberals, these Liberals owe it to the people to engage in the discussion and to reply to the attacks of which they are the targets."

Lapalme, in announcing the opening of his campaign, promised Quebecers that if he is elected he will revamp the provincial income tax act to bring down the provincial levy to the 10 per cent of federal income tax which is deductible. This would place Quebec taxpayers on the same footing as the Ontario taxpayers.

At the same time, the Liberal opposition promised a strong election opponent for Duplessis in Trois-Rivieres riding.

Gerard Levesque, president of the Quebec Liberal federation, said the Liberals will nominate a man he described as "one of the most honorable professionals" of Trois-Rivieres. He did not name the man, but said he will defeat Duplessis.

Duplessis was also busy with matters other than the election during the past week. He announced at his weekly press conference details of various industrial and hydro-electric developments.

At Beauharnois, west of Montreal, he said the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission plans to increase soon its current capacity there of 1,300,000 horse-power by 700,000 horse-power at a cost of $55,000,000.

He then announced a projected establishment of a newsprint manufacturing plant in the northwestern Quebec region of Lake Matagami.

Also he said, the cabinet has just conceded vast tracts of land in the Baie Comeau area some 200 miles east of Quebec City for construction of the first of two $80,000,000 sections of the Canadian British Aluminum Company Limited's plant.

Appointed Game Warden

Adelard Gagné, of Lachute, was recently named a provincial game warden in the Montreal district, his territory comprising the Counties of Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes.

Employed at Ayers Limited for the past 27 years, Mr. Gagné is 42 and a lifelong resident here. He commenced his duties April 16.

Liberal Convention Here Saturday to Select Candidate

The Argenteuil County Liberal Organization has announced a public convention to choose a candidate for the coming provincial elections, to be held in the Lachute Auditorium this Saturday, May 12, at 3.30 p.m.

The meeting will be under the chairmanship of the Hon. Georges Etienne Dansereau, ex-Minister of Highways and ex-M.L.A. for Argenteuil. Also in attendance will be Gerard Brady, of Drummondville, joint-organizer of the Provincial Liberal organization, as well as other members of the party.

It is expected that around 160 delegates from divisions throughout the County will be in attendance to choose their candidate. The general public are invited to attend.

Garbage Site and Main Street Parking Again in Forefront for Council Action

Police Report for Month of April

Police Chief Fernand Trépanier presented his second monthly report at the regular session of Lachute Town Council, indicating that during the month of April the police force answered a total of 78 calls for assistance.

Eleven accidents were investigated, with a total estimated damage of $1,650 and two personal casualties. Five persons were arrested, 11 others detained, eight persons were held for protection and five appeared in court.

The Chief pointed out that 24-hour police service had been in effect since April 9, and during the month some 1,300 miles had been logged on the police vehicle, bringing the total to 51,617 miles in the two-year period since its purchase.

Thirty-two tickets for traffic infractions were handed out, some 100 warnings were given, and four animals destroyed.

On Main Street, Mid-Town

Firmly wedged under the box of a truck, this car owned and driven by Donoza St. Jean, 52, of Brownsburg, was photographed seconds after its five occupants were taken to hospital by ambulance. The accident occurred Saturday evening, on Lachute's main thoroughfare. None of the occupants was seriously injured.

Problems Ring Familiar Note; Many Building Permits Granted

Action relative to the proposed dump and relieving of the Main Street parking situation was initiated at the regular monthly Council session held in the Town Hall last Wednesday evening, at which Ald. J. H. Mallette was the only councillor absent.

The dump situation was brought to the fore when Ald. Romain Desjardins stated, "We have bought the land and it is now past time to go ahead, to build the road, and get the new dump into use." Mayor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald was in agreement that "something should be done," but added, "I don't want to see a road built to a site that cannot be used, and I think it will cost more to cover the garbage than it will to collect it."

Further suggestions on the subject were heard, and it was decided that the Dump Committee, comprising Ald. Alcidas Laurin (chairman), Aldermen J. H. Mallette, Dr. Roger Lavigne and Romain Desjardins, would meet at 4.30 p.m. Saturday to make another check on the location. (Of this committee, only Aldermen Desjardins and Lavigne turned out, and nothing further was accomplished on Saturday.)

The problem of Main Street parking received several suggestions for possible remedy, and Mayor Dr. FitzGerald stated that he wanted a solution to the problem by the first of June. He renamed a committee to study the parking-meter question, comprising Ald. Romain Desjardins (chairman), Aldermen H. S. Church, R. R. Muir, E. O. Pollock as well as Police Chief Fernand Trépanier.

A committee to study possibilities of revising the Business Tax by-law, headed by Ald. Romain Desjardins, made their report, stating that they had met and received advice from the corporation's legal advisor, Fernand Legault, but had taken no immediate decision, the matter still being under study. It was proposed that the by-law remain the same for the present year, but that changes be studied for presentation next year.

Ald. E. O. Pollock, chairman of the Roads Committee, reported that several complaints had been received from residents of Clyde, Paquin, Meikle, and part of Main Street, relative to the backing up of a sewer and the flooding of basements. Ald. Pollock stated that from the corner of Paquin Street to the river was served only by an 8-inch pipe (a distance of some 300 feet.) This 8-inch pipe has three others emptying into it (two 8-inch and one 12-inch), and therefore is much too small. He suggested a much larger pipe, and stated the cost would be in the vicinity of $4,000. It was decided to leave the question until the installation of other sewers demanded attention of the Council.

Police Chief Fernand Trépanier was authorized to purchase necessary police equipment and uniforms for his department, totalling approximately $500.

The pros and cons of the Police Department carrying out investigations for the local Social Service worker, Mr. Ouellette, were discussed. It was decided that investigations would be carried out as in the past, but that the Police Department would keep no records of findings nor would they be held responsible for any report they submitted.

Mr. Ouellette was in attendance and clarified several questions put to him by members of the Council. He added that, during the month of April, he had received approximately 14 calls relative to Lachute. "Many others came for assistance," he added, "but these came more for advice than for financial help."

The naming of evaluators and census-takers was mentioned and Ald. Mozart Carrière suggested that "new blood" be sought in this field. Mayor Dr. FitzGerald made clear his position by stating, "This is one issue that has been dodged by past councils, and it is time that a proper valuation was taken."

Ald. Romain Desjardins suggested that the Council obtain quotations for several Montreal firms that do this type of work, then put the question to the public in the form of a referendum. Ald. Mozart Carrière stated that he was of the opinion that "the job can be done by ourselves if we get good men and spend a little more time on the problem."

Ald. Carrière, in closing the discussion, made a motion that this matter, along with several others, be discussed at a special meeting on May 16.

Ald. Judes E. Charlebois was named pro-mayor for the next three months. It was decided to repeat the full-page advertisement in the Lachute Spring Fair program this year.

A letter was read from Redpath Realties Limited, Montreal, requesting a price on the lot recently occupied by Victoria Hall, the former town hall building. Considerable discussion followed, and it was the general feeling of the Mayor and of all Council members that the lot should not be sold without selling the municipal garage at the same time. Secretary-Treasurer Jacques Poitras was instructed to write the company accordingly.

A list of accounts totalling $8,304.15 was approved for payment, and building permits were granted to D. Saunier, for a drugstore on Main Street; D. Leclair, a house on Robert Street; Cleo Leger, a house on Fraser Street; Robert McFaul, a house on Francis Street; Raymond McRae, a house on Thomas Street; and J. P. MacKimmie Reg'd, for a funeral parlor on Main Street, East Ward.

It was moved that a radiator for the F.W.D. Corporation truck be purchased from Lachute Auto Electric for the sum of $85, installed.

Ald. Mozart Carrière, chairman of the Auditorium Committee, reported that he needed several fire extinguishers in the building and that he thought that the Town Hall should be identified with an appropriate sign. He was authorized to go ahead with this project.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned until Wednesday, May 16, at 9 p.m., when a Special Meeting will be held.

Car Plows Into Parked Truck On Main Street

Five local residents escaped serious and perhaps fatal injury Saturday night when the car in which they were driving plunged squarely into the rear of a truck parked in the centre lane of Main Street, immediately in front of the Albright building.

According to Police Chief Fernand Trepanier, who was at the scene with Lieut. Oscar Sabourin and Cst. Jeannot Laurin, the car was driven by Donoza St. Jean, 52, of Brownsburg. The 1953-model auto hit the rear of the parked vehicle beneath the box of the truck, hit the frame and bounced back several feet. The 3-ton truck, owned by Ruben Golden, Robert Street, was pushed ahead into a 1955-model car owned by Lacasse Automobiles.

Lieut. Sabourin and Cst. Laurin were on patrol at the time and were only a few feet away when the accident occurred at 10.10 p.m.

In the car at the time of the accident was Donoza St. Jean, the driver, his wife, Rene Demers, 22, of Brownsburg, Fernand Parent, 36, of Calumet, and five-year-old Jeanette Gagné, a ward of the St. Jeans. All suffered various cuts and lacerations to the face, head and body, as well as severe shock. Three of the injured were treated by Dr. Marc Papineau at his clinic, later being taken to the Providence Hospital by ambulance, as were Mr. and Mrs. St. Jean, who had been sent direct to hospital.

Total damage was estimated at over $1,850.

Worker Injured In Fall from Truck

André Gastonguay, 22, of Ville LaSalle, suffered severe head injuries last Wednesday when he landed head-first on the pavement after a fall of some 10 feet from a truck platform.

Gastonguay, an employee of the Plant and Pest Control firm, Sweetsburg, Que., was on a tree-trimming platform atop a truck, working along the left of Meikle Street near the intersection of Water Street. A car turned the corner and the driver of the truck had to swerve to avoid a collision. In the sudden swerve, the victim lost his balance and toppled to the pavement.

He was treated on the scene by Dr. Marc Papineau, then taken to the Providence hospital and later transferred to hospital in Montreal.

Town Loan Repaid

Mayor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald informed Lachute Council that the $30,000 loan made last November had been paid back in full. The loan was approved at the November meeting of the Council in order to pay all outstanding bills and to supplement the corporation's finances for the remainder of the year.

At the time of the loan, the Corporation had but $1,400 in the bank, was owed approximately $8,000 in back taxes (1953) and $25,000 in taxes for 1954. These taxes being paid, the money was placed against the loan.

Talk and Film On Cloth Making, At Rotary Club

Last week's meeting of the Rotary Club took the form of a joint meeting with the Hawkesbury club. This has become an annual affair, on or about the first week in May, the month the local club was formed 11 years ago under the sponsorship of the neighboring organization. Most of the members of both clubs were present, and enjoyed the fellowship of the meeting.

Ernest Snadden, chief cloth designer of Ayers Limited, was the guest speaker. His subject was cloth making, and how it has developed down through the ages. This was one of the oldest crafts in the world, he said, and had an equal claim to antiquity with any of the arts. There is, for example, an interesting note on record on the fashions of the day in Scotland during Caesar's conquest of Britain in 50 B.C. "They had little skill in country affairs; the making of cheese they knew not; wool and flax they spun not; clothing they had but what the skins of beasts afforded them, and that not always, yet gallantly they had painted their own skins with several portraitures

Clothing made from fine wools is taken for granted today, but, not too many years ago, the only wools available in bulk for the average people were the very coarsest grades. Fine wools were in such short supply that one had to be of a certain rank before they could be obtained. An English statute of 1363 read: "Working people forbidden to wear any cloth but blanket and russet at one shilling per yard." Another historical note of 1497 states that the Scots wore principally linen stockings and tempen breeches. It is difficult to believe that these people survived the Scottish climate with such clothing.

It is evident that the art of cloth making has progressed considerably down through the years. As a nation, Canada, with its hot summers and very cold winters, calls for a larger variety in clothing weights than any other country in the world. The result is that a manufacturer such as Ayers Limited is forced to produce a larger range of cloths than any similar company in any other part of the world. The problem is further complicated by the fact that these Canadian manufacturers have no export market. This is due to the higher production costs here, as compared with other countries and tariff restrictions.

Textile mills in other countries generally specialize in the manufacture of a certain few cloths, and even certain specific operations. Although English textiles have been famous the world over for generations, no single mill there produces as many weights of fabrics from the raw wool to the finished product as is done at Ayers Limited.

If it is true that "variety is the spice of life", then the life of the designer is certainly full of spice. While it is almost impossible to know or forecast what the styles or trends will be three or six months from now it sometimes happens that someone in the making-up industry tries out a certain material, and for some unkown reason it catches on and there is the trend. The designer then goes to work on a series of ideas on patterns. Obviously the designer and the make-up keep a close watch on what is taking place in the fashion centres of the world. A decision has to be made on the type of materials, then the wool has to be purchased accordingly, different types of wool for different types of cloth and the finished product must be ready for the market at the right time.

A color film was then shown, entitled, "Canadian Woollens for Warmth and Beauty." This showed the methods of cloth making at Ayers Limited and proved most interesting.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Stewart Jones and thanked by Cecil Brain, president-elect of the Hawkesbury Club.

Child Struck by Car, Treated in Hospital

Marie-Riene Mallette, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mallette, Robert Street, was treated for leg, thigh and head injuries after she was struck by a car in front of her home Friday evening.

According to Police Chief F. Trépanier, who investigated the accident with Lieut. Oscar Sabourin, the victim ran in front of a car driven by Gaetan Poulin, Lachute Mills, who stopped within three feet after striking the child.

THREE WIRES OR TWO WIRES

The first consideration in wiring a house is whether it should have a two wire or three wire service.

The difference in cost is practically all made up of the cost of the additional material and labor in the standpipe outside the house, and wire from the top of the pipe to the service box inside the house and in the service box itself. Beyond the service box, the wiring in the house is the same.

You may not plan to install heavy appliances immediately, but if you have installed a three wire service, new appliances can be added from time to time without any major changes in your wiring.

With a three wire service you will not notice any voltage drop or dimming of your lights when a hotplate, electric kettle or other appliances are turned on. The electric service from a three wire system is more satisfactory.

We advise all our customers who are considering building a new house or rewiring an old one, to wire for the future by installing a three wire service.

VANISHING HORSE

The farm horse is disappearing from the Canadian scene at the rate of about 50,000 - 90,000 animals a year. But, says The Financial Post, he is becoming more valuable. Dobbins were worth an average $79 a head in 1954, but $91 last year. Our current horse population, 901,000, is found most in Saskatchewan (206,000) and Quebec (195,000).

Early Seeding For Better Oats

Ottawa — Oats seeded early give bigger crops of better quality oats according to H. A. Riordon of the Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, Nappan, Nova Scotia.

In trials over the past three years the influence of date of planting was determined using early, medium and late maturing varieties. Three planting dates were studied. The first was as early as the land could be worked in the spring and the others followed at ten day intervals. The last date fell about the middle of June or just about the time a large proportion of the oats are sown in Nova Scotia.

Yields were reduced for each variety with each later date of seeding. As an average of all varieties the loss in yield between the first and second dates of seeding was only 4½%. However, between the first and third dates the loss in yield amounted to over 30 per cent. While yields of all varieties were reduced due to delayed seeding, the late variety suffered more than did the earlier maturing ones.

The weight per bushel of the grain produced also showed the influence of delayed seeding. Grain from the first seeding was generally heavier than that from later seeding. The reason for this was apparent when hull percentage was considered. Grain from early seeding had a much lower hull per cent than grain from later seeding. For the variety Victory this difference amounted to more than 12 per cent.

Diseases, weeds and lodging all were more severe in the late seeded oats. Septoria, black stem, leaf rust and blast each increased on all varieties as seeding was delayed. Early seeded oats can be harvested before the usual fall storms cause lodging and consequent crop losses.

Thus it will be seen that for maximum yield of good quality oats, planting should be done as early as the weather permits and the ground can be prepared. Where delays in seeding cannot be avoided early maturing varieties will give the best results.

It is estimated that since 1951 farm income in Canada has dropped 23 per cent while farm costs have risen 2 per cent.

More Water — More Milk

While researchers disagree on how often a day a cow wants to drink, they are in agreement with the fact that the greater her intake of water, the greater her ability to produce milk.

In their investigation, the experts found that cows would rather not drink if they have to walk too far to their water supply and advise that for maximum milk production, watering bowls be placed at several locations in the pasture to enable cows to drink whenever they become thirsty.

Piping water to convenient locations has long been a problem on the farm. Conventional metal piping presented special problems. Due to its weight it was difficult to handle. Installation of joints and couplings was time consuming. Corrosion by water and soil chemicals decreased its life and efficiency. A sudden dip in temperature below freezing often resulted in bursting of undrained pipes.

With the introduction of polythene piping (polythene is a plastic made from Alberta natural gas), a trouble-free, inexpensive and easily installed cold water system has been made possible for the Canadian farmer. The plastic is so light a farm boy can carry several hundred feet of piping on his shoulder. It expands with freezing and returns to normal when the water thaws. It will remain in the soil indefinitely without deterioration. The only tools required for installation are a knife to cut the piping and a screw driver to tighten the connecting clamps. The piping can be laid down in a plowed furrow for warm weather use or in a trench below the frost line for year-round use.

Polythene piping is made and marketed in Canada under different trade names. Last year 3,800,000 ponuds of polythene piping were extruded by Canadian manufacturers. This year some 4,800,000 pounds are expected to be produced.

Initial Wheat Payment

The Canadian Wheat Board plans to open the next crop year August 1 with the same initial payment for prairie grain it has offered in the last six years.

Trade Minister Howe announced to the Commons last Thursday that the federal marketing agency will maintain its initial price at $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 northern wheat. Western farm leaders welcomed the announcement.

The initial payments, also will be continued at 65 cents a bushel for No. 2 CW oats and 96 cents a bushel for No. 3 CW six-row barley.

The trade minister also announced that the long-awaited final wheat board payment for wheat delivered in the 1954-55 crop year will be disbursed late this month.

W. J. Parker, president of the Manitoba pool elevators, described the news as "very satisfactory." He added that farmers were hoping "that the government has sufficient faith in our markets to continue those prices."

Arnold Platt, Alberta Farmers Union president, said the announcement's earliness would give farmers some idea of what to expect.

Revive Deliveries

Mr. Howe also said the board has decided against last year's policy of trying to equalize farmers' deliveries by providing a uniform minimum quota of eight bushels for each specified acre. This has had an adverse effect on grain marketing, using crowded storage space for grades and types not immediately saleable.

This year the board would give preference to deliveries of varieties and grades in immediate demand. It might result in inequalities of delivery quotas, but "the board cannot afford to pass up market opportunities in an endeavor to equalize farm deliveries among producers."

Long-Term Loans

Ross Thatcher (Ind.—Moose Jaw—Lake Centre) has suggested a national farm credit act through which farmers could get long-term, government-guaranteed bank loans.

As the Commons studied estimates of the agriculture department, Mr. Thatcher said lack of long-term credit has resulted in a concentration of more and more farms in the hands of fewer and fewer owners.

The number of tenant farmers had grown and farm productivity had been reduced because farmers could not afford irrigation projects and modern equipment. He said the government had already accepted the principle of providing guarantees for long-term bank loans in the National Housing Act, which enable federal guarantee of mortgages.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. My husband owns a store and employs me at $15 a week. Am I entitled to participate in the unemployment insurance plan?

A. No. Employment where the person employed is the husband or wife of the employer is expressly excluded by the Act.

* * *

Q. I work in an hotel and earn $20 a week, board and room included. What class of stamp should I get in my insurance book?

A. A 48 cent weekly stamp (24 cents payable by you and 24 cents payable by your employer). If you mean that you get board and room in addition to your wages of $20 a week, the hotel must put a reasonable valuation on it and make contributions at the proper rate for the whole amount.

Q. If I lose my insurance book will the office try to find it for me, or will be obliged to pay a second time the stamps which it contained?

A. Write or visit the nearest local office of the Commission and tell them your insurance number, your full name and date of birth, and full particulars of the loss. They will give you a new book bearing the original insurance number shown on your identification card. If you do not know this number, they may have to give you another number, and that means you may lose credit for some of the contributions you have made. Protect your benefit rights by looking after your insurance book.

Clarks Continue Claim to Fame as Wolf Exterminators

Kenneth Clark and his son Ronnie struck again Sunday morning, bagging another wolf trophy for their growing collection for the winter. The female, which had recently produced a litter of whelps, was the fourth wolf shot by thetwo Clarks this winter.

On Sunday morning this latest wolf was started by a dog on the former Oswald Thompson farm; two and one half hours and countless miles later, the animal was downed immediately behind the St. Hermas railway station.

Ronnie Clark got the first shot at the running animal just as it started off on its lengthy chase, but missed in his aim. Some time later the wolf followed a line fence for a lengthy stretch, running like lightning with the dog hot in pursuit. Doubling back and forth, it headed across several acres directly towards Kenneth, who let go with both barrels of his shotgun.

This makes the third wolf bagged by Kenneth Clark since last fall, including the black Russian wolf, an unusual specimen — while his son Ronnie has one animal to his credit.

Another hunt was instituted later in the day, and although a likely animal was seen to enter a lair in the ground, it was not positively identified.

Main Street Lighting

AS SURE AS this column highlights a local hazard, something sometime is bound to happen — or so it seems.

Time has passed since we last stressed the inadequacy of Main Street lighting. In view of negligible results and budgetary deficits, we grew tired of harping, perhaps. Yet only two weeks ago our cartoonist, a comparative newcomer to Lachute, portrayed the gloomy situation on this page.

We do recall in the past having emphasized, especially, the ill-lighted stretch of Main Street near the bowling alleys, where cars are parked in the centre lane on dark, dreary and snowy nights all season. With visibility at a minimum, cars have repeatedly crashed into parked autos, and these minor incidents have passed unnoticed. But last week there was a louder crash than usual . . . an auto rammed into the rear of a stationary truck . . . and five occupants went to hospital. . .

Those are the bare facts of the incident; we do not presume to judge, blame or exonerate. However, from personal experience, and the experience of our acquaintances, we do re-emphasize the danger of this poorly lighted stretch. While local drivers, familiar with the parking lanes, find this section a challenge to their vision after dark — it should be realized that to strangers the situation presents a far greater hazard.

Spring Premiere

SPRING INSPIRES such thoughts as challenge the artist, the musician, the sculptor, the poet — yes, even the humble editor. In the latter case, unfortunately, the season also brings a frenzied rush — so without further apology we will regale our readers with borrowed thoughts on this intriguing topic.

The following extract, from "The Printed Word", is one of the choicest morsels to catch our attention this week:

"This is the time of year when the great Canadian artistic revival occurs. The song sparrow, lately returned home to his familiar fence post, practices to get his voice just right again. The woods and the trees along the street stir as small musicians of varying talents sort themselves out and take their places in the orchestra. These absorbed little fellows cannot read music and never heard of culture, but they hurry about in preparation for another great season of outdoor concerts.

"Meanwhile the scenery is being painted and hung up on boughs and branches. In a revival of sculpture, the outlines of trees and whole hillsides are being altered by leaves and grasses. Bushes begin to look like something by Henry Moore or Barbara Hepworth. The stage directions seem to be a vast jumble, but gradually things begin to assume some kind of order. A new sky is brought on, done in pastels. Presently the literature of spring is being called out with Hi Fi accuracy. As it is modern, the meaning is unclear, but there seems to be a meaning. Certainly there is a warmth of feeling, a deep and compelling emotion, for this is the Canadian spring, which needs no excuses as it once more amazes its audience."

ANY TOWN can have a neat appearance and a quiet dignity if its people and its council desire it. It is a matter of personal and civic pride. One old, ramshackle house or an unsightly sign can spoil the whole effect — says the Stanstead Journal.

◇ ◆ ◇

SPRING came early to Canada's labor markets this year. As the temperature rises, so does the number of job opportunities.

This year, the labor force began to expand about a month earlier than usual — reports The Financial Post. Only 5.3% of the labor force was seeking jobs in March — lowest March ratio in the last few years.

That could be one indication of a shortage of labor this summer. There's bound to be competition for workers, if only to meet the intended 21% increase in capital expenditures (1956 vs. 1955) disclosed in a recent Trade and Commerce survey.

Triumph of the Minnows

THE REPEAL of the Minnow Edict — the regulation banning use of minnows as fishing bait — was as momentous to the followers of Isaak Walton as the signing of Magna Charta must have been to those English barrons at Runnymede.

Our fishermen, as they heave a sigh of relief, and pack their rod and line and minnow trap as usual — aye, fishermen and even those disdainful of the pastime, may be thankful for another thing far more important.

The reversal of this ruling, as we see it, is plain evidence that public opinion is a weighty and effective instrument. It is the sign of Democracy at work, indicating plainly that — even though an enactment may be calculated on scientific findings, and aimed to remedy a man-made maladjustment — popular opinion can nullify the measure, against good sense and logic.

It is a stimulating and encouraging thought, that "vox populi" is no mere figment of desire; it carries weight. But this little matter of the minnows may serve to remind us also of our responsibilities — lest at any time, in larger issues, our representations be guided by personal interest rather than the viewpoint of the common weal.

Bad Habit

DISRESPECT of other people's belongings is a prevalent failing, but to disregard one's own property is a sign of something lacking.

This thought occurs to us every time we narrowly miss running over a bicycle laid carelessly across the curb. Cyclists, both young and adult, are guilty of this habit. Near the post office and stores, where motorists are manoeuvering their cars to park within reasonable distance of the curb, bicycles are sprawled on the ground and drivers cannot hope to see them. The owners are inviting only damage and disaster, and we recommend that they stand their bicycles upright and in a safer place.

With Paint and Brush

THERE'S no doubt about it now — spring is here, even though it is later than usual in many parts of the country.

The grass is turning from brown to green (except in those fortunate places where it stays green all winter); the trees are budding; the flowers beginning to bloom.

And all it means for the handyman is more work. Clean-up time has caught up with him.

There are a lucky few who somehow convince their wives that fishing should consume spare time. Boatmen can argue that their craft demand attention. Gardeners can spend every daylight hour in the sunshine, puttering if they like.

But we salute the handyman who has no excuse and finds his time used up with paint and brush.

The need for brighter, cleaner cities, towns and villages is great. The man who wields a paint brush helps not only himself and his family but also his community.

A drab community is a poor advertisement. There is inter-town business and sports rivalry but it doesn't usually spread into the field of civic improvement.

Some places are fortunately situated and, because of their select location, can make a better showing than others. But there is no community that cannot be improved by a concerted campaign to clean up and brighten up.

The place lacking natural assets may demand more effort; but the ratio of improvement may be higher.

Clothes don't make the man, they say, but appearance counts for something. Tidying up doesn't make a community, either, but a touch of paint and a bit of grass seed can make any area a more pleasant place to live.

So it's hats off to the man with the brush in his hand, though he'll win no medals or trophies and his arm may ache like mischief when the sun goes down.

Quebec Asbestos Plays Important Part

Quebec asbestos, mined in the Eastern Townships, serves scientists and production workers manufacturing the newest electronic miracle product, transistors, according to a writer in the current issue of the Asbestos Producer, mine industry newspaper.

Described as "mighty midgets" because although only the size of a pea they operate radios, hearing aids and many other products, transistors are now being manufactured in Montreal. Handling manufacture is a tricky business involving not only particles of minute size but also the application of intense heat. To overcome the heat problem, operators keep their hands encased in asbestos gloves.

Canada's first transistorized radio is now on the market, small enough to fit into a suit pocket, powerful enough to bring in local radio programs. Transistors themselves are made in a small, all-white laboratory where operators use tiny welding devices and soldering irons, special miniature ovens, a small diamond saw, strange tube-shaped furnaces and a pair of sturdy asbestos gloves.

Technicians wear the gloves which originated in Quebec's asbestos mines to protect their hands against intense heat while putting a white powder, called germanium, into one of the ovens. The powder is turned into an ingot of metal and the ingot into hundreds of pellets, each no larger than a fly's wing. When pinhead-size dots of indium are fused to each pellet, along with the fine strands of platinum wire and a base, the transistor is complete.

"TOPS IN POPS"

Once upon a time, this scribe taught school as a means of keeping body and soul together for a year or two. So, when I found myself at the beginning of April, footloose and fancy free, and in need of a lucrative occupation, I explored every avenue — including that of teaching. In due course, when I saw an advertisement requesting applications from those interested in teaching at a private school, I carefully weighed the pros and cons, and finally contacted the appropriate authorities. Thus it was that, in less than 24 hours, I telephoned the headmaster, had an interview with him, packed my carpet bags, and set sail for my new sphere of endeavor. And today finds me only regretting that I did not investigate the delights of being a private school mentor long years ago.

Since the moment of my arrival here, I have been thoroughly pampered. To begin with, I am ensconced in a choice suite of rooms, comprising bedroom, bathroom and study — complete with maid service — in the administration and hospital building. Here it is that the matron and nurse also have their quarters and I am, therefore, the only single master hereabouts to sport a harem. Unfortunately, however, the rooms I occupy were designed to house a married master and his wife. And, unless I want to face eviction with the advent of the fall term, I must rush my long-suffering fiancee into matrimony sometime during the summer months.

Being a church-sponsored school, religion looms large here in the daily life of the students. There is a chapel every morning — and twice on Sundays — and all pupils are expected to attend each of these assembles. On Sundays, we have the services of the village organist. During the week, however, we are dependent upon one of the students who, considering his age and ability, plays with a commendable degree of skill.

It is, I suppose, a happy feature of collegiate life to be possessed of an organist who delights in baffling his captive audience. I remember during my college days pondering long and hard the source of a voluntary played one evening by our faithful young accompanist. The selection he chose had a very familiar melody which reeked of nostalgia but which was couched in mystery. The tempo conveyed absolutely nothing; it was the air that teased the brain. And it was not until the service was over and I was able to consult friend John that I learned what had tickled my senses. He had been rendering "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" — not, mind you, as the composer had written it, but rather as Handel might have done!

During my first week in residence here, I noticed that my daily entry into chapel was always greeted with broad grins on the part of the scholars. The padre and the headmaster in their stalls wore blank, impassive looks, and the masters' in their niches volunteered no clue as to any legitimate cause for amusement. I began to feel, therefore, that I, perhaps, was the cause of the general merriment and I spent much time in wiping imaginary eggs and toothpaste from my lips, patting down my hair, and straightening my tie. But I never found a single glaring error in deportment, dress or grooming, and still the grins continued. Then I began to take notice of the volunteries.

Having reached the years of discretion, and having long-since given jazz the go-by for the classics, I'm not too good at spotting the modern popular tune when it is out of its natural element. Accordingly, I failed to find fault with any of our organists's voluntaries — at the outset. But the day finally came when my name headed the list for duty as Master of the Day.

The MOD never attends the chapel service since one of his duties is to inspect all buildings at that time and flush out any pupils who may be dodging the daily exposure to religion. As I watched the last of the youngsters disappear inside the chapel, prior to starting my rounds, my ears perked up to catch familiar strains wafting out the stained-glass windows. There was no mistaking the tune, despite its strange disguise.

In the dim and musty organ loft, high above his hearers, "Moose" was grinding out "The Rock and Roll Waltz" . . . just as Bethoven might have played it!

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Sometimes a man can be too thrifty.

My insistence on using up the leftovers has long been a source of irritation in our house. Every now and then I happen upon a small treasure trove of last week's food in the refrigerator or the larder, and summon my wife with a cry of mingled rage and triumph.

"Look at THAT," I urge, pointing toward the amorphous mass with quivering finger.

"I'm looking," she replies. "What is it?"

"You know what. Perfectly good spaghetti and cheese."

"It has green whiskers on it," my wife replies.

"Why did you give it time to grow whiskers? You could have used it up."

"I offered it to you on Monday, but you didn't feel like spaghetti."

* * *

And the dispute goes on, with a hint on my part that my wife might have eaten the spaghetti herself for lunch, and a promise from her that if the situation ever occurs again she will make me eat every crumb of the stuff, by forcible feeding if need be.

After a long series of defeats in these arguments, I still thought I was right in principle.

However, something happened recently that made me doubt the virtue of intense thrift.

The infant son had a bad cold or 'flu, and the doctor prescribed some medicine. When he ordered the child to stop taking the stuff, there was still half a bottle left.

By a lucky chance, I had a miserable cold myself. So I thriftily used up what was left.

I kept my cold, but two weeks later my feet began to swell and my ankles blossomed with patches of carmine and rose-pink.

I staggered along to the doctor, who traced my trouble to that left-over medicine. I was allergic to it.

* * *

Since that time the rest of my frame has broken out in a spring garden of hives. Various friends obliged me by diagnosing my case as gout, beri-beri or Peruvian rot, but although I was grateful for their kind interest I assured them that the ailment was only a case of too much thrift.

However, some good came of it. The medicine I am taking for the hives and sore feet has cured my cold.

The slammed-down brake, the jack-rabbit start, the tires that squeal on a turn because the car is going too fast, or has swung too wide, the impatient blasting of the horn — these are sure symptoms of an inexpert driver.

Travelers who make reservations and don't use them, while the plane takes off with empty seats, now equal up to 17% of all the passengers who actually fly.

Grass — Cows — Bulky Las

Some of these days the grass will start to grow (we hope) — and plenty are looking for it to appear seriously, even more so than the cows.

Don't try to hurry it, give it a chance to get started. If your cows are trying to meet the grass coming through the ground you will never have a pasture all summer.

Pasture is a place where your cows can fill in two hours or less and then lie down and chew it up, anything less is just an exercising yard, which is no good for milk!

If you are short of hay try some BULKY LAS. It is a wonderful feed; 100 pounds Bulky Las is equal to 500 pounds silage, and has better variety, makes cows drink more water. It also equals 400 pounds of pasture as it contains more solid food value, and holds flesh better. It also equals 200 pounds of good hay as there is no waste; it is more palatable and more digestible. Won't you give us your order today for a supply of Bulky Las? You'll like it, and it'll like you.

Have you ordered your chicks yet? Remember, the earlier you get them the more profitable they will be. We are agents for NEUHAUSER'S CHICKS. They are in the same class as PURINA CHOWS; none better. They have 20 breeds, also cross-breeds and hybrids. Better give us your order while you are thinking of chicks!

After a long and useful life, an aged resident, Mr. Anthony Hall, passed away on Sunday at his home in Brownsburg, following an illness of only two months. In his 89th year, Mr. Hall had always enjoyed good health and was well known in this district.

McTague, of Beauharnois, and 17 grandchildren.

Requiem high mass was held on Tuesday morning at the St. Louis de France Church, Brownsburg, service being conducted by Canon V. Bouchard, assisted by the Rev. Leo. Clement and the Rev. Gilles Sauvé.

There was a large attendance and many floral tributes were sent from sympathizing friends and relatives.

Returning from a trip to Europe, Mark Twain became annoyed as a customs official rummaged through his baggage. "My good friend," the author exclaimed, "you don't have to mix up all my things. There are only clothes in there — nothing but clothes."

But the suspicious fellow kept rooting until he hit upon something hard. He pulled out a quart of the finest-quality bourbon. "You call this 'just clothes'?" cried the official.

"Sure thing," Twain replied calmly. "That is my nightcap."

Bible Briefs

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

When Paul, a prisoner, was pleading his own defence, who was the king who said, "Almost, or in a short time, you would persuade me to be a Christian!" Paul replied, "Whether short or long, I would to God that not only you but also all who hear me this day might become such as I am — except for these chains!"

The king did not make his decision for Christ but he did feel that Paul had done nothing worthy of death, or imprisonment. Paul had not appealed to Caesar, or he would have been freed. This king had believed Paul's story how he we known from his youth among the Jews and had lived strictly as a Pharisee. In Jerusalem Paul had put many Christians into jail and had cast his vote for them to be killed. He persecuted them in other cities too.

When journeying to Damascus, under the direction of the high priest, at midday a bright light, brighter than the sun, shone from heaven, and a voice asked, "Why do you persecute me?" Paul inquired, "Who are you?" and the answer came, "I am Jesus. But rise and stand. I have appointed you to serve and bear witness for me." Therefore, Paul pointed out, "I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision." . . . Find this king's name and read the story in Chapter 26 of Acts.

The most powerful form of energy one can generate is not mechanical, electronic or even atomic energy, but prayer energy.

— Alexis Carrel

Do You Know Your Bible?

Often you hear quizzes asking, "Who was Moses' wife?" "What were the names of the twelve apostles?" or similar Bible questions. While these test your knowledge of the Bible story, what do you know about its meaning?

Do you know where it tells why the world faces oppression and inequality, why war clouds are rising and morals sinking, why world troubles are more urgent now than ever before? Do you know how it shows the outcome, and what it says about endless peace and eternal life on a paradise earth? Do you know why it is to this present generation that Jesus' words apply: "As these things start to occur, raise yourselves erect and lift your heads up, because your deliverance is getting near"! — Luke 21: 28.

Do you know how the Bible gives comfort, hope, joy, understanding, how it foretold the exact conditions earth now faces and provides just what the world needs today? Do you know what proves that this book is a reliable life guide? Do you know what wholesome good news it contains, how its principles apply to your life and what it says about the very information that is most needed today? Readers of the Watchtower magazine know these things. This journal gives you not only a knowledge of the Bible story but, even more important, an understanding of its real meaning.

Twenty-four issues of this valuable journal (a one-year subscription) are yours at a cost of only $1. — Write The Watch Tower, 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto 10, Ont., or ask any of Jehovah's Witnesses you might happen to meet.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

May 13, 1881 —

"Young Canada" barefooted is now to be seen on our streets.

A slight thunderstorm and refreshing showers paid us a visit on Monday, doing considerable good.

It seems that in Chatham, whether by authority or not, the census takers have numbered all the old bachelors, who are so numerous that a resolution has been passed to tax them each year until they marry — to which resolution they protest, because of the exemption of the old maids from a simiar tax.

As a result of inventive genius among some of our boys, a boat propelled by paddle-wheels, and worked by hand, is to be seen on the North River.

Last evening, an accident occurred by which James Ireland, son of Mr. F. C. Ireland, had his hand badly burned. It appears he had loaded a gun and was ramming the charge home when the gun burst, wounding him severely.

Carillon — The steamer Allan Gilmore, having in tow nine barges loaded with lumber, went too far downstream while trying to round a short distance above the Long Sault. It was decided to cut five of the barges loose, after which the steamer and remaining barges reached safety. Three of those cut loose went over the Sault all right, the other two being a total wreck, with damage estimated at $5,000.

50 YEARS AGO

May 11, 1906 —

The new train service is now in force and Lachute bids fair to get her share of visitors this summer. A number of boats and gasoline launches are on the river; the stores close two nights a week and good accommodation is available.

At an adjourned meeting of the Lachute Town Council, it was decided that sealed tenders be called for the lighting of the town with about 200 16 candle-power lights.

St. Philippe — No. 6 School celebrated Arbor Day, and the grounds are much improved by the efforts of the small workers.

25 YEARS AGO

The first number of the Argenteuil Tribune makes its initial bow to the people of the county this week, and The Watchman extends congratulations to Mr. St. Jean, its genial editor and proprietor, on its smart and breezy appearance. . . Mr. St. Jean has opened an office in the Court House, Lachute, and our French-Canadian friends are naturally pleased that they have a medium for dissemination of local news in their mother tongue.

Lachute Girl Is Bride In City Ceremony

Nelles - Clark

The marriage of Gweneth Evelyn daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David John Clark, of Lachute, to Mr. Robert Lloyd Nelles, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell Nelles, of Westmount, took place on Saturday afternoon, at three o'clock, in the Church of St. James the Apostle, Montreal, Canon R. R. Latimer officiating, assisted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, of Lachute. Mr. C. Gledhill played the wedding music, and white gladioli were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. James M. Clark, of Lachute, was gowned in white silk taffeta, the fitted bodice having a scoop neckline and sleeves ending in points over the hands, and the full skirt of soft pleats falling into a slight train. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a Juliet cap embroidered with seed pearls, and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Roger McKeown, as matron of honor, and Miss Marilyn Burns as bridesmaid, were in frocks of pink nylon over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodices having bateau necklines and short sleeves, and bouffant skirts. They wore matching headdresses, and carried semi-cascade bouquets of pale pink and dark pink carnations.

Mr. Talbot Nelles acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Roger McKeown, Mr. Robert O'Brien, and Mr. John Milne.

Mrs. Nelles, mother of the bridegroom, was in a gown of blue poult de sole. She wore a matching hat, and accessories, and had a spray of pansies pinned to her handbag.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Vice-Regal Suite of the Ritz Carlton, where the bride's table, centred with the wedding cake, was arranged with spring flowers. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Nelles left for New York and Florida, the bride travelling in a blue tweed suit, and wearing a blue straw hat, brown accessories, and a corsage bouquet of Pinocchio roses.

Quebec (CP) — In an address to the annual meeting of the corporation of master electricians of the Province of Quebec, Premier Maurice Duplessis predicted that the province's mineral production will reach, within the not-too-distant future, a value of $1,000,000,000 annually from the present $385,000,000.

Quebec is passing through a period of unprecedented development, he said, but it is only the prelude of bigger things to come.

Lach. Lady Golfers Launch Season, High Expectations

Teeing off the 1956 season with a record attendance, the first meeting of the Ladies' Branch of the Lachute Golf and Country Club was held May 2 at the Golf Club. Mrs. James MacKimmie presided.

May 23 was the date set for the Opening Tournament and High Tea. The tournament, scheduled for one o'clock, will be a two-ball foursome, nine holes. High tea will be served at 5 p.m.

Mrs. R. Stephens, captain of the Match Committee, presented a comprehensive report outlining golfing activities for the summer.

There will be a new "C" Class with handicaps from 36 to 50, which should encourage many more to turn out for the ladies' and mixed tournaments.

It was also announced that three new trophies will be played for this year in each of three classes "A", "B" and "C". Reminding members of special days, a handy fixture card (pocket size) is being drawn up showing the dates of ladies' and mixed tournaments, and will be mailed to all members shortly.

The Juniors, too, came in for special attention at the meeting, and it was decided to organize more junior events during the summer holidays.

With so much interest and enthusiasm, and more members playing golf, this should be a busy summer at the local course.

Brownsburg Opens Baseball Season With 5-0 Win

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg opened the baseball season with a bang, 5-0, on Sunday as pitcher Ronald Cousineau shut out Hawkesbury on just four singles, walking one and striking out nine. Although it was an inspired performance by "Zag", it wasn't without considerable help from his team-mates that he had to face only 30 batters. In only two innings did he have to face more than three men.

Brownsburg's bats were potent when they hit, although the opposing pitchers managed to limit them to six hits. Yves Raymond hit the first homer of the young season over the track in right-field, to drive in two runs. Edgar Joly and Jacques Racine each hit triples, and Cousineau helped his own cause with a two-run double. Keith Hazel and André Ouellete got the other two hits, André batting in the first run.

Afield, the locals were at mid-season form, making only two errors, both on bad-hop balls. There were several good plays, the gem being Edgar Joly's perfect peg to second base in the ninth inning, to nail Drouin on what looked like at least a stand-up double.

The visitors this week will be Papineauville, who are reputed to be much stronger than Hawkesbury; but our locals will be very hard to beat this year.

The crowd on Sunday was surprisingly good for such a cool day, but if the committee's ambitious plans are to be realized (scoreboard, new uniforms, home-run fence, etc.) there will have to be a big jump in attendance. . . . Come out on Sunday and see the champs in action!

Highlights and Hazards Of Automobile Racing

SPORTS CAMERA
By Peter Maitland,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

European road races which see goggled gladiators hurtling along roads for sports-car racing supremacy have come under a hail of criticisms following last week's 1,000-mile road race which left five dead and 21 injured in Italy.

Two drivers were killed and 10 were among the injured. But as usual, the greatest toll was among spectators who crowded roadsides to watch cars roar by. It was the bloodiest Mille Miglia since 1938 when a careening car plunged into a crowd of spectators, killing 10 in a single accident.

One Italian newspaper said road racing no longer served any advantage in technical development of the automobile industry and called for its curtailment.

Other newspapers pointed to the toll of dead and injured as proof that the new safety regulations inaugurated after last year's racing disaster at Le Mans, France, were insufficient.

At Le Mans last June, a 24-hour road race for sports cars ground to a finish with 72 dead and scores injured. A car hurtled over a retaining wall after a collision and landed in a crowd of spectators near the main grandstand. The car's gasoline tank exploded, causing the heavy toll among the crowd. All races then were suspended by the French government until stricter safety regulations could be put into effect.

New Canadian Track

At Stayner, Ont., 80 miles north of Toronto, promoters are planning an automobile track that will provide a common ground for European and North American automobile racers. The 1½-mile speedway built on an abandoned airfield has announced a racing program for the Victoria Day week-end.

Bleachers and additional facilities are to be installed during the summer at a cost of $1,500,000, in time for a 500-mile American-style race with U.S. drivers next August.

Promoters said it will be the second largest automobile track continent. In a few years it is hoped European drivers will compete at the track.

The track has unbanked left turns wide enough to permit cornering by the big American-type racing cars. Flat bends are designed to put the U.S. drivers on equal footing with the Europeans, who are not accustomed to driving on bowl-like speedways.

"This will be new territory for both of them, and the first chance to match styles," said a company spokesman. "It will be a combination Indianapolis and Grand Prix course. Ferraris, Maserattis, Jaguars and so on have never really competed with American Offenhauser-type cars."

The U.S.-type, used purely for racing, develops up to 400 horsepower. The European sports cars, used also in every-day driving, have smaller engines developing up to 60 horsepower.

BLIND BOWLERS SKILFUL

Winnipeg (CP) — Dan McGillivray, 87, is blind but he has become a fairly efficient carpet bowler. He and a dozen other residents of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind home here took up the game for exercise and relaxation.

The edge of a wooden box guides them as they bowl. Mrs. Gladys Soar, wife of a blind man, helps them take aim.

"Our aim was shocking at first," said William Johnson, vice-chairman of the Manitoba division of the CNIB. "We were bowling all over the room."

But practice made perfect and now the division is hoping blind people from outside the CNIB residence will join residents and learn to bowl.

WELCOME NEWS TO FISHERMEN, MINNOW - BAIT BAN SUSPENDED

Izaak Hunter (Montreal Gazette)

From an official of the Department of Game and Fisheries at Quebec came the news that it has been decided to suspend until further orders the application of the recently-announced new law forbidding the use of minnows for fishing north of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers.

At the same time, the department will be happy to receive suggestions from sportsmen with a view to permitting legitimate means of fishing and to put an end, if possible to the encroachment of undesirable fish at the expense of sports species.

It was stressed that the new regulation had been decided upon only after the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations and the Quebec Outfitters Association had urged it. The department adopted the measure in good faith, taking it for granted that these associations had taken the precaution of consulting a majority of fishermen using live bait.

But, said the official statement: "The new regulation took all anglers by surprise if credence is to be given testimony the department has received from regions where they fish primarily for pike and dore.

"This law, which is the result of many and varied observations, has been found difficult of application in various quarters. Now the department is of the opinion that a law of this nature, to be accepted by the public, must be easily applicable and understood by those most interested.

"We must undertake a campaign of persuasion with the public to the end of securing their submission with good grace to a measure which has no other end than to maintain the recreational value of our lakes and our rivers for the benefit of generations to come."

This news will be welcomed by thousands who have been in a high state of confusion since the proposed new law was announced.

Anglicans (Leggett) 4; Presbyterians (Underhill) 12.

Irish Boxers To Vie With Quebec's Best

A team of Irish boxers will be coming to Montreal to take part in an invitation match with 10 of Quebec province's Golden Gloves champions. The event will be staged in the Montreal Forum and will be telecast on CBMT, May 15, beginning at 10 p.m. It is sponsored by the boxing committee of the Quebec branch of the C.A.A.U. and proceeds will go towards equipping Canada's Olympic team. The Hon. Leo T. McCauley, the Irish ambassador, will be the patron.

The visiting team will be made up of winners of the amateur boxing championships held recently in Ireland. Among those accompanying the boxers are: Patrick Carroll, supervisor of the Irish Amateur Boxing Association; the team manager, the Reverend Father McGovern; and police constable Billy Blackwell, of Maryboro, the trainer. It is expected that they will go on to Toronto or New York after the event in the Forum.

This meeting betwen Irish and Canadian amateur boxers is the result of an invitation extended by Dennis White, chairman of the C.A.A.U. boxing committee in Quebec, to Irish boxing officials attending the 1952 Olympic games in Finland, and it will be the first time that an amateur team from Europe has come to Canada.

The winners of the individual bouts will receive a plaque donated by Montreal business firms, with smaller plaques going to the losers.

Famous Villain of English Literature Makes Radio Serial

Chills, thrills, a love story, a death-bed promise, a wicked baronet, a mysterious madwoman, and one of the most famous villians in English literature — all these are part of "The Woman in White" by Wilkie Collins, which was first written to keep readers in suspense as a magazine serial. Sally Creighton, of Vancouver has adapted the story as a radio serial, which opened last Sunday evening, 7-8 o'clock, on Trans-Canada radio from the CBC's Vancouver studios.

The period flavor is carefully preserved in the adaption. The horror of the diabolical plot which is woven around the heroine and Collins' gift of drawing well-rounded characters even when they are engaged in all kinds of skullduggery, are as magnetic today as they were nearly a hundred years ago when readers of Charles Dickens' magazine "All the Year Round", were always clamoring for the next instalment.

The first episode introduced Walter Hartright, a young drawing master, who has a mysterious encounter with the woman in white before he goes to Cumberland where he falls in love with Laura Fairlie, a beautiful heiress, and becomes a fast friend to her half-sister, Marian Halcombe. Marian is a modern figure of a woman — the sort who can be a man's friend without falling in love with him. The suave villian, Count Fosco, enters the story at an early stage.

In Title Role for Children's Classic

Maxine Miller plays the title role in a 13-week CBC radio series about Johanna Spyri's great children's classic of life in the Swiss Alps, "Heidi". Maxine is well-known to youthful viewers as the Princess on the "Howdy Doody" program. She can be heard as "Heidi" every week on the Trans-Canada network.

TV AND YOUTH

Ottawa (CP) — A Liberal senator said last Thursday that television programs showing acts of violence were corruptors of youth. Senator McGrand, a psysician and former New Brunswick health minister, said that "in corruption of youth, the comic book has been ably assisted by television programs."

He spoke during Senate debate on a motion by Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) urging penal reform in Canada.

"It is disturbing to know that much of our amusement is built around acts that are cruel and sadistic and on the increase," said Senator McGrand.

"JIM" ATTRACTING MANY

Including Canada, some 31 countries have already registered to be represented at "Jim", the Jubilee Jamboree, Indaba and Moot, a special world gathering of Scouts in England in 1957 to mark the 50th anniversary of Scouting and the 100th birthday of its founder, B-P.

Three events will highlight the anniversary, a Boy Scout Jamboree, an Indaba (world gathering of leaders) and a Rover Moot (for older Scouts). Total registrations to date stand at 22,771 it is reported. Of this number Canada expects to send 1,040 Boy Scouts and Scouters to the Jamboree.

A description of the Palace of Linlithgow and of the sad queens who wept within its walls will be heard in "Legends of the Scottish Castles" May 16 on CBC Trans-Canada. In the same program writer Babs Brown will include a story of Stirling Castle — the story of James V of Scotland who had the custom of going about the countryside disguised as a commoner — "the Guid Man o' Ballengiech."

Technical Advances In Color TV Studied

United Nations, N.Y. — Ninety-six radio and television engineers from 22 countries gathered at United Nations Headquarters this month to begin a study of the latest advances in color television in the United States, France, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands.

They are members of the television study group of the Radio Consultative Committee of the International Telecommunication Union. The engineers are beginning their program in New York where they will be given color television demonstrations and visit company installations in and around the city. They will then go to Paris, London, and The Hague for similar demonstrations there.

The aim is to give them a chance to study different color systems in countries which have made the greatest technological advances.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Really effortless touring depends on good driving habits becoming so ingrained that they are as automatic as breathing.

But before your driving habits are formed, try to eliminate those common everyday faults which experts say are among the most frequent causes of accidents. Here they are:

1. Failure to reduce speed on streets lined with parked cars.
2. Entering an intersection the instant the light turns green, without looking.
3. Depending on the driver ahead to signal what he intends to do.
4. "Tailing" the car ahead too closely.
5. Relying on just the rear-view mirror when making a turn.
6. Turning up the bright lights to "get even" with an approaching driver who has his headlights on full.

To be a skilled motorist, concentrate on a mental list of driving do's and don'ts — until they actually become "second nature".

GERMAN PILOT DEVELOPS NEW MOTOR GLIDER

A new motor glider has been developed by the German glider pilot, Puetzer, according to a report in a leading German newspaper, says "Foreign Trade," official magazine of the Department of Trade and Commerce. Called the "Motor-Raab", the glider has successfully passed all its tests and is now waiting for a certificate of airworthiness. Volkswagen engines were used in the test plane, but five newly constructed craft of the same type are equipped with an engine said to be still more efficient. Despite its engine, the "Motor-Raab" has all the qualities of a glider; it is extremely cheap to operate — $3.53 per flying hour compared with $14.83 for small motor planes. The glider is particularly suitable for overland flights and can also be used as a sporting and tourist plane. In addition to the pilot, co-pilot and a full fuel load (sufficient for a non-stop flight from Munich to Bonn), the glider can carry the equivalent of 200 kg. — two persons with luggage. With its new motor, the "Motor-Raab" can travel 130 km. an hour. It can be dismantled by removing six bolts.

Express Gratitude For B'burg Effort In March of Dimes

A letter from the Quebec Chapter, Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, has been received in Brownsburg warmly acknowledging the March of Dimes proceeds remitted from that district following the recent campaign. The letter is addressed to Mrs. Dorothy Beaudry as chairman of the 1956 March of Dimes Campaign on behalf of Brownsburg Legion Branch 71. The communication reads as follows:

Montreal, Que.

Dear Mrs. Beaudry:

We gratefully acknowledge your itemized statement of amount collected from Brownsburg, Dalesville, Staynerville, St. Philippe, Pine Hill - St. Michel, Marelan, Calumet, Kilmar and Grenville — for the 1956 March of Dimes Campaign, and have read with interest your account of the various wonderful ways employed to raise these amounts. We only wish we could express our appreciation to these kind people individually.

Under separate cover, we have written to Mr. Towell, (Quebec No. 71) Branch, to acknowledge receipt of your cheque for $1,294.00.

Would you be kind enough to accept, and to extend to everyone who contributed their time and their money to further the success of this campaign, our warmest thanks and our hearty congratulations on your splendid achievement.

— K. L. Woolley, Sec.-Treas.

They say that when the naval landing party got to the top of Rockall one of them asked, "What's that queer bird?"

"It's a puffin," a messmate replied.

By Oli Daum, Canadian Press Staff Writer

In a spot on a northern Ontario lake, bordered by rocky shores and pine-clad islands, adventure awaits the Canadian Girl Guide.

Mrs. W. Rankine Nesbitt, chief commissioner for Canada, said the campsite on Doe Lake about 120 miles north of Toronto will be the locale next year of the Girl Guide Association's first world camp.

"The camp will be a splendid opportunity for Canadian Girl Guides to meet Guides of other countries and participating in a large camp will be an adventure in itself," Mrs. Nesbitt said.

To commemorate the 100th birthday of the Guiding movement's founder, Lord Baden-Powell, the Canadian Girl Guide Association has invited 1,500 Guides from 35 countries to the camp, to be held August 8-19, 1957.

To get the camp Canadian Guides will have to meet stiff requirements. Representation from this country has been limited to 400.

Those allowed to participate will be skilled and experienced in all phases of camp life with the ability to prepare three meals a day for 10 people; they will know how to pitch, strike and care for a tent; must be adaptable and understanding of people; familiar with their country's geography, history and industries and must be able to interpret the Canadian Girl Guides Association to Guides of other countries.

The campsite, 350 acres, is situated on land originally granted by the Crown to a pioneer settler in 1885, Mrs. Nesbitt said. It was acquired by the Girl Guides in 1946 after they had held one camp on it.

George Cross Winner

A nursing sister from one of the world's largest hospitals is touring Canadian hospitals because, she says, they enjoy a top reputation in Britain.

Sister Dorothy Thomas, from London's Middlesex hospital, says she wants to study the hospital construction which has taken place in Canada since the Second World War. She saved Middlesex hospital from destruction 22 years ago. When an oxygen cylinder burst into flames, Sister Thomas gathered all bottles of explosive anesthetics and carried them from the room. She then re-entered the room, and circling the flaming tank, managed to shut off a red-hot valve.

For this she was awarded the George Cross — the highest decoration for gallantry awarded civilians in the British Comonwealth.

This and That

Mrs. William Smith, who recently celebrated her 100th birthday in Toronto, had a few words to say about modern bathing suits.

"They're too skimpy," she said. "If I were a man of 100, however, I might not think the same thing. But I guess I wouldn't want the old styles back. They stretched from my ankles to my neck."

Comely Huguette Plamondon, a Montreal labor leader, last week became the first Canadian woman to hold high office in a national labor organization. The 30-year-old brunette was elected vice-president of the newly-formed 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress.

The Ontario Hospital Association believes Annie Head, at the Chatham Public General hospital, is the oldest practising nurse in Canada. She graduated in 1905 at the hospital where she still works.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"A careful study of the new home kitchens I have made," observed the chef, "does not seem to show progress in making them safe for the toddlers—the little children who move so fast to satisfy their curiosity and who spend much time in the kitchen with their mothers!"

"That's important, chef," I replied. "And freedom from accidents would certainly increase child health. As kitchen activities include baking, washing and ironing, youngsters are exposed to a greater variety of hazards here than in any other room—including the bathroom.

Scalds and Burns

"Scalds and burns prove fatal to a large number of toddlers each year, yet they can be avoided. As most occur at the kitchen range, tots should be taught to stay away from the stove. Also, the stove should be made as accident-proof as possible.

"For instance, turn the handles of utensils full of cooking food away from the front edge, so children cannot grab them, overturning the boiling contents."

"Safety gadgets can be bought to put on gas jets so children cannot turn them on," added the chef. "And matches can always be kept in a closed jar on a high shelf out of reach. Then children will not set themselves and the house to fire."

Red Kidney Bean Soup

Pick over and wash 1 cup dried red kidney beans. Place in a 2-qt. saucepan. Add 1½ quarts boiling water. Put on a lid; let stand 60 minutes.

Add 3 beef bullion cubes, ½ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. monosodium glutamate, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ½ tsp. sugar, 1 chopped peeled medium-size onion and 1 (No. 2) can tomatoes. Simmer 1½ hours, or until the beans are tender.

Remove half the beans and put through a sieve. Return to the soup to act as thickening. Add 2 tbsp. grapejuice and bring to boiling point.

Orange Biscuit Shortcakes

Bake thin rich crusty baking powder biscuits. Split and spread generously with softened butter. Put together in individual shallow dessert dishes, using as filling and topping slightly warmed sugared orange sections and juice.

Vegetable Melange from the Chef

A vegetable melange or assembly, may consist of 3 to 4 vgetables which present a pleasing contrast in color and flavor, yet are harmonious when combined.

A good combination is peeled, small, whole white potatoes boiled with fresh green peas and bulbs of scallions and served in enough cream sauce to blend. Season with 1 tbsp. mayonnaise.

Still bright-eyed and warmhearted at 84, an Ottawa lady devotes her spare hours to knitting for children overseas. Received from her recently at the Unitarian Service Committee's Ottawa office at 78 Sparks Street, were 12 pairs of knee length stockings — comforting gifts for shivering Korean youngsters.

Spring Painting Tip

If you find that paint drips down the can and onto the floor no matter how careful you are, here is a trick that will solve your problem. Take paper or aluminum pieplates and use these as trays. You can put your can of paint on the tray, move from place to place without difficulty or muss.

Wife Preservers

Desserts give a satisfying finishing touch to a packed lunch. Cake, pie or cookies add variety and help meet the high energy needs of growing children and teenagers who are always on the go.

Job Opportunities For Women Greater Since World War II

United Nations, N.Y. — The extent to which new job opportunities for women have been opened up in the post-war period is described as "remarkable" in a report on the subject recently prepared jointly by the International Labor Organization and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Nevertheless, the report comes to the conclusion that a young woman setting out to earn her living today will find she has fewer fields of work to choose from than a man, her earning power is probably less and her chances of promotion are more limited.

Laying particular stress on the vocational and technical education available to women, the report finds that, at the lower levels of education, boys and girls have general equality of access, though the proportion of girls enrolled in industrial or technical schools is relatively very small. On the higher educational levels, the training opportunities open to girls "are generally more restricted than those provided for boys."

The report lays some of the blame for this situation on the attitude of women themselves, which it attributes partly to family or communal indoctrination emphasizing "the economic and social dependence of women" and partly to "a natural romanticism which finds its main preoccupation in the propect of marriage."

It urges that vocational educational facilities be reviewed and measures taken to give women training opportunities which would open up to them "the widest possible range of gainful occupations, and would tend to equalize the economic status of men and women workers."

Festive Simplicity

Here's a cake that will serve at any meal during the day and at in-between snacks after school or just before bed-time. This fluffy white cake topped with a caramel frosting is an easily-prepared treat to share with family and friends. The real beauty of this cake is its light fluffy texture and the creamy frosting which should be simply but carefully swirled into place. Here's a word of advice to all homemakers — for best results in baking, remember always to use accurate measurements and correct oven temperatures.

Caramel Cake

2¼ Cups sifted pastry flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter or margarine, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs (well-beaten), 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup milk.

Grease one square cake pan 8 x 8 x 1½ inches. Pre-heat oven to 350°F. (Moderate). Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter or margarine. Cream in sugar, one tablespoon at a time, until fluffy and well blended. Add eggs, blending in thoroughly. Add vanilla to milk. Add to egg mixture alternately with sifted dry ingredients. Beat after each addition until smooth. Spoon batter into greased pan. Bake in preheated oven 50 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before turning out of pan. Cool on a wire cake rack. Spread top and sides of cool cake with caramel frosting.

Caramel Frosting

1½ Cups firmly-packed brown sugar, 1½ cups granulated sugar, 1½ cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ½ cup finely chopped walnuts

Combine brown sugar, granulated sugar and milk in a saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil without stirring until a small amount of the mixture forms a very soft ball in cold water (32°F. Add butter or margarine. Remove from heat. Cool to lukewarm (110°F.). Beat until thick and creamy and of spreading consistency. If necessary, place over hot water to keep frosting soft while spreading on cake. Sprinkle walnuts over frosting.

Matters of Concern To Quebec W. Inst.

Pasteurization legislation for Quebec is still a live issue. This is being emphasized by the executive of the Quebec Women's Institutes as members of this body attend annual county meeetings throughout the province. This is, of necessity, a long term project, one that has been of concern to the Institute over a period of years, and must be continued until the objective is reached.

Members are also being reminded of the two resolutions sponsored jointly by the Montreal Council of Women and the Q.W.I. For the first, revisions to the civil code as they affect women, Institutes are urged to ask their representatives to the Legislative Assembly to give support to this when the Thibaudeau Commission presents its report. The other resolution, a ban on the sale, import and manufacture of dangerous toys, has been sent to the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. Here the Institutes are being asked to approach their Federal Members in an effort to gain their support for such a measure.

Advance notice of the Provincial Convention is being given at these meetings. This will be held June 27-29 at Macdonald College. It is expected there will be a large attendance to meet Mrs. A. M. Berry, president of Associated Country Women of the World, who will be a guest of the Q.W.I. on the middle day of the convention.

Cooking Revolution

Businessmen who remember what happened to the washing machine business just after the war will be watching the stove business pretty carefully these days, says The Financial Post.

The upheaval in the market for washing machines was based on the introduction of the automatic washing machine — a genuinely new product that solved a major problem for the consumer.

With one of these new-type stoves a housewife could cook a baked potato in four minutes instead of 30; a filet mignon in 50 seconds instead of 10 minutes; a turkey in three minutes per pound instead of 20. The method is already used in some restaurants and hotels in Canada and the United States where commercial installations of the new stoves have been made. The next step will be the production of domestic models for the home.

Initial prices will be considerably higher than those of conventional stoves. The way competition has been in the electrical business, however, there's no telling how fast this new type of cooking will get down closer to the price range of present appliances.

Fabrics and Prints for Home Sewing

For many women the big sewing prospect of the year is making a special spring into summer costume.

The exciting variety of embroidered fabrics, now available at popular prices, and the wide range of small patterned prints, are favorite choices among dress materials.

Embroidered or printed fabrics are excellent choices for the new unbroken line, because the simplicity of the line makes it possible to centre interest on the design in the material.

Besides being new, the embroidered fabrics require special attention from the home dressmaker. They should be handled much like printed material with a few additional precautions. Here are some tips for getting the best results.

As with printed material, allow a little extra yardage for embroidered fabrics for matching the pattern. Centre the design down the front and back. Watch to see that the design is matched as closely as possible on the long seams. Check this detail carefully when laying out the pattern.

If darts fall on a heavily embroidered section of the design, eliminate bulk by snipping darts open and pressing them flat. When pressing use a steam iron and work over a turkish towel to avoid flattening the design. Place fabric on the towel with embroidered side down and press on the wrong side.

A final word. Most of the new embroidered fabrics, though fragile looking, are washable. Sewing is easier than average on the new silhouette since seams are few and finishing is simple.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

On Mother's Day

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"I know what mother's face is like,
Although I cannot see;
It's like the music of a bell;
It's like the roses I can smell
Yes, these it's like to me."

On the second Sunday in May, men and women in every walk of life, boys and girls in all kinds of homes, pay tribute to their mothers. Famous people have written in glowing words of their mother's influence. Benjamin West, the President of the Royal Academy of Art in London, England, early in the last century, once said "A kiss from my mother made me a painter." Abraham Lincoln, declared "All that I am, or hope to be, I owe to my angel mother."

A tribute to a mother is a very personal thing. It is colored by remembrance of childhood days. Although some people scoff at Mother's Day as a commercial scheme, surely it has value! In a hurried age when everyone seems to be in a rush, when many people are reticent about expressing their deeper emotions, it is well to have a time to pause and think of the debt which is owed to all mothers.

W. D. Howells once wrote "A man never sees all that his mother has been to him till it's too late to let her know that he sees it." What a pity if this is so! If our mother has passed on to the "Great Beyond", let us recall all that she did for us, on her day. We can observe this occasion by making a special effort to do something she would delight to see us do—attend Divine Worship or help some poor mother who is having a hard struggle to bring up her children.

If we are fortunate enough to have our mothers still with us, Mother's Day is an occasion when we can use our imagination to give a gift which will express our love. Flowers, candy, a book, a picture, something for her to wear or for her home — what a wide variety of presents from which to select one which will give Mother real pleasure! The Mother's Day cards are very lovely, but do try to write in your own words how much you care for her.

Take time to mention some special happy childhood memory, the taste of her apple pies, the little smocked dress or the small boy's suit she sewed with loving care. Refer to the time you tumbled out of the tree or fell off the swing and she looked after your bruises. Perhaps there was some long-forgotten incident when you were frightened out of your wits and she restored your courage. Let her know you still remember the days of long ago when you were just a child under the old home roof — because no matter what the age of a man or woman, a mother cherishes the memories of the days when her child was young.

Of interest to all women's organizations is the project of the West Ottawa Lionettes, who have taken the welfare of a small Korean girl into their hearts. The ladies "adopted" her through the foster parent scheme of the Unitarian Service Committee, 78 Sparks Street, contributing $60 to support her for one year in a USC-sponsored orphanage in Seoul. Having received the child's case history and photograph, the Lionettes are eagerly awaiting the first letter from their young ward.

Fashions

This lightweight wool coat in herringbone tweed is a good example of the many features that distinguish this year's coat crop from what was new last year. It is in yellow-toned beige and has a navy grosgrain bow at the neck for a new color scheme. The collar is wide and rounded and the shoulder seams are low placed. The sleeves are fuller at the upper arm. The coat is semi-fitted both front and back with angled seaming that conceals slit pockets in front.

NEW INDUSTRIES IN CANADA IN 1955

ONTARIO	260
QUEBEC	33

In 1955, out of a total of 346 new industries (Canadian, American, British and European) in Canada, 260 established in Ontario whereas only 33 located in Quebec.
According to Canada Gazette, published weekly by the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, since 1952, 120 companies situated in Quebec have requested to transfer their head offices to other provinces, the majority of them relocating in Ontario.
From 1952 to 1955, capital investments in the Province of Quebec increased to only $7,547,000 or $1,790 per person as compared to $11,324,000 (or $2,360 per person) in Ontario.

here's the PROOF that Duplessis has discouraged new industries from establishing in Quebec

- Statement by Mr. Fred Gardiner, president of the Toronto Metropolitan Commission (February 17, 1956):
"Metropolitan Toronto would be foolish not to take advantage of Premier Maurice Duplessis' restrictions on industry in Quebec . . . It is most important to attract industry and since Duplessis — sometimes called "Do-as-he-pleases" — has been making the climate uncomfortable for industry in Quebec . . . "(On January 24, 1956, Metro Chairman Gardiner speaking to a dinner meeting of the Ontario Forest Industries said) ". . . the Quebec premier is double taxing, insulting and penalizing industry".
- Statement by Lands and Forests Minister M. Maple-doram (Fort William) published in the Toronto Globe & Mail, Feb. 24, 1956:
"Firms which have been operating in that province for upwards to three quarters of a century are now interested in Ontario forests. The Duplessis policies are driving them to us."
- Gordon Mines in "The Financial Post" (March 27, 1954):
"Quebec is definitely harder to sell as plant location. Industrial development men say prospects fear further tax troubles.
"Many of those concerned with industrial development in Quebec report that the tax has definitely affected the attitude of firms considering Quebec as a location for new plants or an expansion program."

ASSURE QUEBEC'S FUTURE ECONOMY
CHASE DUPLESSIS FROM POWER

LAPALME SAYS:
"The economy of the province rises and falls according to whether the government is good or bad. The present Quebec administration has, out of all ten provinces, the greatest number of nuisance taxes. These only serve to encourage capital investors and industries to move to other provinces. At the same time new business is discouraged from establishing in Quebec."

civil defence notebook

Civil Defence Necessary in Rural Areas

(Eleventh in a series of 24 articles)

Space and a comparatively small population could prove to be Canada's ace in the hole if theremonuclear warfare should ever come to North America. But Canada almost certainly would still be in a hole if its civil defence organization did not include the small towns and rural areas. And even if such a war never comes, there is a present need for a well-developed nation-wide civil defence plan for the natural disasters that have a habit of striking where least expected.

Canada's big advantage in meeting the menace of atomic war is that there are few targets in this country which an enemy is likely to attack on the first raid.

The early warning electronic devices being built around and across the continent to tip off Canada and the United States of any approaching enemy planes are expected to be in operation within two years. This advance warning, G. S. Hatton, Deputy Federal Civil Defence Co-ordinator, has said, "justifies our accepting the practicability of a policy of evacuation of our larger cities, especially in view of the vast expanse of this country, the low density of population and our considerable transportation resources."

Evacuating cities obviously makes it necessary for the small towns and rural areas to absorb and care for the evacuees. But the towns and rural areas have a more personal reason for civil defence.

Offsetting this country's space and population advantages, said the Deputy Co-ordinator, "is the likelihood that the air over Canada will be the scene of the vital air battle for survival in the next war."

"This means that many enemy aircraft with hydrogen bombs intended primarily for the United States are likely to engage secondary targets in Canada." That is, enemy bombers under attack by Canadian and American fighter planes would be expected to head for Canada's large cities with their deadly loads.

Many might be shot down over Canada and civil defence authorities estimate that bombs in about half of these planes would explode automatically, their unaimed devastation hitting almost anywhere and their dangerous radioactive fall-out drifting down on many unpredictable areas.

There is another more personal reason for civil defence in the small town: natural disaster. The aim of civil defence, in the words of F. F. Worthington, Federal Civil Defence Co-ordinator, "is to minimize the effects of disaster upon the civilian population."

Much of the action necessary to alleviate the effects of atomic attack is the same as for such natural disasters as fires, floods, hurricanes, tornadoes and earthquakes. Each of these natural disasters has characteristics which indicate the effects likely to occur and the course of action necessary to meet those effects.

In the case of floods such as those that hit British Columbia areas last fall, the communication system a civil defence plan would provide could be used to warn the small, comparatively isolated communities. There would be time to prepare to meet the threat. The same advantage would be available to offset the destruction of hurricanes like Hazel that brought so much disaster to Ontario two years ago.

And once the threatened areas were warned, the civil defence organization would be prepared to go into action quickly to meet the threat. For a civil defence plan's aim is only to bring under one organization the services that already exist in most communities and to train volunteers to supplement each of these services; fire, police, health, welfare, rescue, ambulance, engineering and public utility restoration.

The threat of nuclear disaster has only made more urgent the need for a well-planned organization ready to take the sting out of any of the natural calamities that may unexpectedly threaten a community almost any time.

The hero of the song, "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," was an Englishman, Charles Wells, who won $200,000 in three days at roulette. Actually, he didn't break the bank, says the current Reader's Digest. Monte Carlo keeps on hand a million dollars in cash and can get more at short notice. "Breaking the bank" is impossible.

Digging Up the Past – and Future

By Lewis Milligan

Have just finished reading two new books, one by an archeologist, entitled "Digging Up The Past," and the other by a scientist, entitled "Science and Modern Life." The first book tells of excavations of ancient cities and tombs which by careful examination of the remains reveal the kinds of life human beings lived in prehistoric times. They were not savages but people with regular systems of government. Their social and domestic lives were basically no different from ours. They were cultured in the arts of building and ornamentation. They were deeply religious and were so sure of the existence of a spiritual world that they prepared their dead for entrance into it.

Turning from the primitive civilizations of that remote past to Sir E. John Russell's fascinating book, "Science and Modern Life," one is impressed by the enormous advancement civilized man has made in knowledge since those people lived in what are now buried cities. Some of them are dated "Before the Flood," and the most recent existed little more than 5,000 years ago.

In the meantime man has become more and more inquisitive of the world about him, of the laws of nature and the evident order of the starry universe. He recorded his impressions of those things in superstitious terms, in a theology of many capricious gods and a fatalistic astrology. That can scarcely be called knowledge, although it was based on more or less systematic observation. Even the philosophers of ancient Greece did not entirely discard the pagan deities, but Socrates and Plato were sceptical and Aristotle was the first to propound scientific theories of nature, human nature, astronomy and theology. Those theories, while they are now mostly discarded, inspired scientific investigation down through the Christian era and led to the marvelous scientific discoveries which are the commonplace of our time.

Sir John Russell, in his little book, does not trace the development of modern science back to Aristotle; he attributes its origin to Francis Bacon who "set out to establish the empire of man over Nature by means of knowledge gained by objective study to the effecting of things possible." A brilliant group of Englishmen were working to that end in the middle of the 17th century when they established the Royal Society with the declared purpose of pursuing science "for use or discovery." In those days fatal epidemics periodically destroyed crops and animals in rural districts and brought death to thousands of people in cities. How and why those things should happen no one knew. The old primitive belief in witches and evil spirits persisted and superstitious fears were widespread.

From then on there was a rapid growth of scientific knowledge, especially during the nineteenth century, but it was not until the beginning of the present century that the accumulation of such knowledge began to be widely applied to technical purposes. The dreams of Jules Verne, Bellamy and Wells are the realities of today in an even greater degree than those writers thought of. New materials and new sources of power have been discovered rapidly and applied to industry and every department of human life. With the harnessing of the atom science has opened up a yet wider field of technical marvels and may even — we hope — have ushered in a Golden Age of World Peace, or at least of freedom from world wars.

If we could dip into the remote future as the archeologists have been digging into the remote past, we might discover that the scientific marvels of our modern life are merely primitive as compared with what science and human ingenuity may yet reveal in us. But man must beware lest, in gaining the whole world, he should lose his own soul. Lest he should make a deity of science and deteriorate into a new paganism of materialism and become an automatic slave of his machines.

"Let knowledge grow from more to more,
But more of reverence in us dwell."

His health wasn't any too good so the eastern city dweller went looking for a place to live in Arizona. He approached an old-timer sitting on the steps of the general store.

"Say," he asked, "what's the death rate around here?"

"Same as it is back east, bub," answered the old fellow, "one to a person."

He put his key in the door at 2 a.m. and found his wife waiting for him.

"I suppose you've been holding a sick friend's hand all night!" she snapped.

"My dear," said her husband mildly, "if I'd been holding his hand, I'd have won enough money to buy you a mink coat."

Tells how HFC helped keep his family a going concern

"I have been able to establish my credit with your company, through the very efficient and understanding advice received."

"Through the acceptance of such advice we have been able to procure the things most needed, when needed, making payments in a sound, sensible way."

"It has always been to us a pleasure and never a burden to return that which we have received, while still enjoying the necessary things of life."

HFC's business—our only business—is making cash loans to help tide families over temporary money problems. Loans are made carefully, for constructive purposes only. Before a loan is made, we inquire into the customer's ability to return the money. We may make a personal visit to his home.

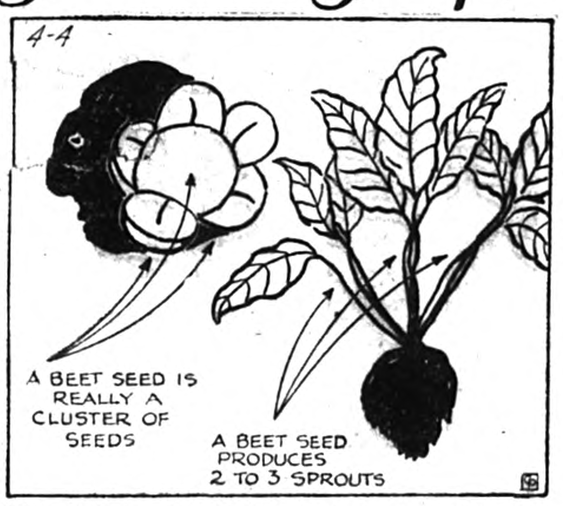

Investigating, making, and servicing small instalment loans all takes time and money—that's why they cost more than bank loans. However, rates are as low as possible consistent with reasonable profits. Average repayment terms take less than 8% of family income, and are kept well within the family's ability to repay.

Thousands of customers have told us that HFC satisfactorily provides—on terms they can afford—a money service they need to keep the family a going concern.

Garden-Graph

When gardening space is limited, potatoes, corn and peas are often left out of a planting plan since they do not have enough in return for the space necessary to grow them.

This, however, is not true of beets, for they are one of the vegetables which give a heavy yield in return for the space occupied.

One can get an early start with beets for the seeds are semi-hardy and can be planted just as soon as it is possible to prepare the soil. Light frosts will not injure either the seeds or the young plants.

A beet seed is really a cluster of seeds as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The seeds therefore should be sown thinly for each one may produce from 2 to 3 sprouts, as shown in the Garden-Graph.

When planting early beets space the seeds one inch apart along the row and place one-half to three-quarter inch deep in the soil. The distance apart of the rows will depend upon the size of your garden and the type of cultivator used. The rows may vary from 14 to 24 inches apart. Best seeds planted in the summer are set a little deeper since the soil is drier then.

Beets are often referred to as indicators of soil acidity, as they will not tolerate a very acid soil. Therefore, if beets flourish it can be taken to mean that the soil is not too acid for successful growing of other vegetable crops.

Best Gardens Begin With Paper and Pencil

Are you dreaming of the beautiful garden you are going to have this summer? Better stop dreaming and get busy. According to G. R. Snyder, C-I-L horticulturist, now is the time to organize. And the best way is to get out a piece of paper and a pencil.

With your own garden space in mind you can make detailed plans so that when the time comes to buy your plants you will know exactly what you want — and where you're going to plant them.

There are several things to keep in mind, Mr. Snyder says. First, remember that in the ideal garden every plant can be seen without difficulty. Plants should not be placed here, there and everywhere. There must be an order to your arrangement. The tall plants should be at the back, graduating down to the low-growing dwarf plants in the front.

Secondly, the blooming season of the plants should be considered. Choose a combination of plants which will give you flowers all summer long.

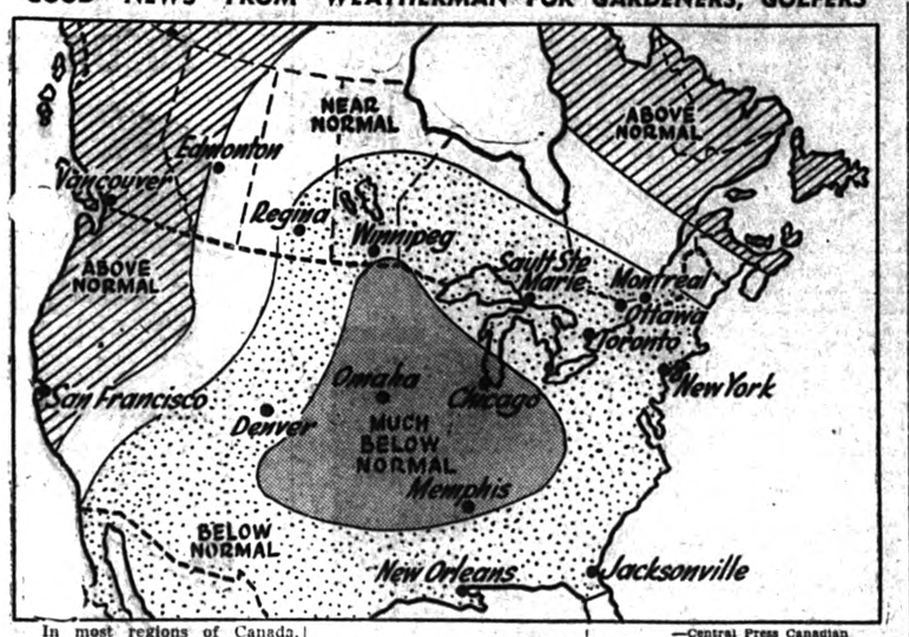

And then there's color to think about. A seed catalogue will give you good descriptions of many kinds of flowers which will help you plan a pleasing color scheme.

If you are a beginner in the gardening business, Mr. Snyder suggests that you stick to the hardy plants which do not require experienced attention. "Such plants as petunias, marigolds, alyssum and zinias are colorful and easy to care for," said Mr. Snyder. "As your thumb becomes greener you can branch into the type of plants which require more individual care — ones like the gladiolus, carnation and rose."

It is fun to start your plants right from seed. If you have a glassed-in sun porch or a bright window you you can begin now to plant the seeds. By the time the ground is ready, and weather permits, these plants will be big enough for transplanting. However, if you don't have the facilities for indoor growing, you can buy all you want at a nursery.

GOOD NEWS FROM WEATHERMAN FOR GARDENERS, GOLFERS

In most regions of Canada, gardeners and golfers can look forward to balmy weather for the next 30 days, to counteract the below-normal climate of the past month. Southern Ontario will not be so lucky, however. The weatherman propheeies below-normal temperatures in this area.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

Woodstock, N.B. (CP) — Citizens of this northern New Brunswick community claim they have the "purest water in the province."

This, they say, is due to the recent installation of a $130,000 water supply system, consisting of an automatic pump capable of producing 500,000 gallons daily from a well 111 feet deep. A second well has an equal capacity.

The town's previous water supply came from the St. John river which has been condemned by the department of health.

OLD PRACTICE

Nobleford, Alta. (CP) — Calendars have long been used for advertising. Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Van Dyke found a 1912 calendar which had been presented with compliments of "Moore and Brown", general merchants.

Freshman: "Someone told me yesterday that I was the handsomest man in school."

Coed: "That's curable."

Freshman: "What is?"

Coed: "The habit of talking to yourself."

"This type of bullet," he said impressively, "will penetrate two feet of solid wood. Remember to keep your heads down!"

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Ottawa Folly

It's a strange and confusing age we live in, and recent events in Ottawa make the doings of the Hollywood stars seem restrained and normal. The prima donnas of Ottawa heave money around so freely they make even Cecil B. De Mille's press agents look like pikers.

A recent example is the Trans-Canada Pipeline deal, in which the Minister of Trade and Commerce has elected to star. The "chosen instrument" of the government of Canada is dominated by Tennessee Gas Transmission Company, and has a record of broken promises as long as both my arms. It has let down Mr. Howe himself and all the people of Canada. It ought to be tossed off the set and a new cast of players selected; but apparently Ottawa — once engaged in an act of folly — will never, never retract.

Unless the people demand it!

Unfortunately for the Ottawa prima donnas it is now pretty generally known that a new cast of players is readily available. Those in the know claim that the Frank McMahon interests, which built the successful West Coast Transmission line, offered to build the pipeline from Alberta, through Winnipeg over top of the lakes to Montreal, without any government financing or guarantee of any description. It is rumored that Mr. McMahon was willing to post a half-million dollar bond that he'd complete the whole line by 1958; that he'd build the line as far as Winnipeg by this winter.

But the prima donnas hate to admit they've been let down by their "chosen instruments." Now, on top of all the other inducements they've offered to Trans-Canada, they propose to lend it $80,000,000 of public money to get started.

This sort of activity has generated a good deal of heat and dismay, even among Liberals. A Manitoba MLA, Jack St. John, has asked Ottawa for an explanation. Liberal newspapers, too, are beginning to ask mighty sharp questions. Manitoba is convinced it could have natural gas flowing through Winnipeg by next winter without a cent of public money expended, and without further dilly-dallying with the Tennessee people, in whom they've lost all confidence.

CANADIAN ALUMINUM

1955 capacity to be expanded 50% by 1959

EXPANSION PROGRAMME LARGEST IN THE INDUSTRY

Its matchless combination of qualities — lightness, durability, strength, appearance — has made aluminum second only to steel in world markets. New uses — for both civilian and defence purposes — keep increasing the relentless demand. The world demand for aluminum is presently in excess of supply and the immediate prospect is that, like other basic materials, aluminum will be a scarce metal during the months ahead. Despite continuing expansion of producing facilities, as shown in the chart above, the fact is that the demands go up at a rate faster than new production can be pushed to completion at Isle Maligne in Quebec and Kitimat in British Columbia.

Steady increase in productive capacity has been accompanied by a corresponding increase in employment and payroll. Today in Canada there are 20,500 Alcan employees.

The payroll at the rate of $70,000,000 a year contributes to all phases of Canada's standard of living.

The Dilemma of Co-operatives

By Dr. W. E. Haviland,
Economics Department,
Macdonald College

In its broadest sense, "co-operation" means working together for a common goal. In this sense co-operation is probably as old as mankind. But since the great social experiment of the Rochdale weavers in 1844, "co-operation" has come to mean something more definite.

A "co-operative" is a voluntary association of people to carry on some activity for their mutual benefit. The people act co-operatively out of recognition of some need. Sometimes the need is for orderly marketing, sometimes it is for savings on purchases, sometimes for credit, and so on.

Co-operative business is very important in Canada. Nearly one-third of our farm products are marketed co-operatively, for example. And co-operative business is expanding along with Canada's general economic advance.

It is a paradox that in this very success of co-operative business lurks a mortal menace to the co-operative movement. The dilemma of co-operatives is this — in order to compete with powerful rival businesses, co-operatives become large and efficient themselves, and in the process they are in danger of losing their essentially co-operative nature.

The essential features of a co-operative are: membership open to all; one member one vote; any capital invested receives interest only at the going rate; surplus earnings are paid to members according to their patronage; business is by cash at prevailing market prices; neutrality in religion and politics; co-operatives co-operate with each other; members are educated in these co-operative principles. Clearly, the ownership, control and profit-sharing of a co-operative are distinctive business features. The unique quality of a co-operative, however, should be its high-minded social motivation and spiritual inspiration. It is this superior moral quality that makes co-operation worthy of deliberate encouragement by society.

Often, in order to survive (and certainly in order to thrive) in our aggressive, dynamic, economy, co-operatives have to pursue the efficiencies of large-scale operation and of expert management. In doing so they are in peril of leaving an essential element of co-operative philosophy behind — namely the active participation of their members in the conduct of the business. Member participation is too often reduced to a nominal approval at an annual meeting of complex decisions already made by expert management. Even the directors may find it difficult if not impossible, to understand the business on the one hand, and to "interpret" between members and management on the other hand.

To recognize the dilemma of co-operatives is the first step towards finding a solution to it. The problem is: How can co-operatives obtain the services of managers who are not only efficient "operators" but who are also genuine "co-operators"? It is far too sweeping to declare that "Co-operators are born, not trained." It is nearer to the mark to say that a special kind of training is needed. After all, one of the basic principles of co-operation is education in co-operation.

Traditionally, education in co-operation has been interpreted in terms of educating members in the philosophy of co-operation, but its scope could be extended to include the educating of co-operative managers in the philosophy of co-operation as well as in modern business methods, and the educating of co-operative directors in modern commerce as well as in the philosophy of co-operation.

Some universities already make a contribution to this special need of education in the form of short courses and extension work in co-operation and co-operative marketing. Recently, however, the co-operatives themselves have begun to take hold of the matter. In 1955, in Saskatoon, the co-operatives there established a Co-operative Institute or college to train future managers of co-operatives in business practice and co-operative principles. The Institute hopes that it will also be able in the future to conduct needed research in co-operation.

The co-operative college idea is an interesting experiment that may well become the most important development in recent years within the co-operative movement. For unless co-operatives can solve their dilemma, they will either fall in competition with their business rivals, or, succeeding financially, they will become for practical purposes indistinguishable from their rivals in nature, if not in name.

Arctic DEW Line To Be Completed in 1958

—Central Press Canadian Photos

Canada's Distant Early Warning line, stretching for 3,000 miles across the Arctic, is a $400,000,000 radar system of isolated stations scheduled for completion in 1958. For the first time press representatives are inspecting the stations now under construction, where temperatures of 50-below-zero are common and the nearest human habitation may be hundreds of ice-covered miles away. Most of the equipment has been transported by air, but construction crews have some of the conveniences of the city. At one station Jim Harmon, Vancouver, found an "Arctic theatre," where movies are shown twice a week.

The DEW line is but one of three designed to give Canada and the U.S. warning of an air attack over the North Pole. Experts say the DEW line is essential as the mid-Canada line and the Pine Tree establishments would not provide warning enough of the approach of hostile aircraft. The U.S. pays for the DEW line, Canada pays for the mid-Canada line and one-third of lthe cost of the Pine Tree installations.

NEW MACHINES AID BLACKSMITH TRADE

Sexsmith, Alta. (CP) — When the automobile threatened to eliminate the village blacksmith's trade, Nels Johnson, 65, branched out to service plowshares and even grind crankshafts.

A blacksmith who served most of his apprenticeship shoeing horses in Sweden, Nels says: "The smithy today is a versatile man. His work encompasses a large field. It's interesting, exacting. And who uses horses nowadays anyway?"

Nels has been blacksmithing in Canada since 1909, the year he landed in Winnipeg from his native Sweden. In 1912 he moved to Edson, the starting-off point for the Peace River country where there was "no end of people" passing through with oxen and horses.

Shoeing oxen was quite a task. "The critturs ain't never been taught how to stand still like a horse so we had to put 'em in a sling and lift 'em off the floor."

County Women's Institutes Convene at Morin Heights

Mrs. Mansell Wilson Elected for Next Presidential Term; Resolutions Passed

The 36th annual convention of the Argenteuil County Women's Institutes was held in the Intermediate School at Morin Heights last Saturday, commencing at 10 a.m. The retiring president, Mrs. Mason Crosby, presided over the meeting, which was attended by 110 members; the provincial president, Mrs. G. LeBaron, was guest speaker.

The meeting opened with the singing of the Ode and the repetition of the Mary Stewart Collect.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved, showing a county membership of 331 and bank balances of $289.34 in the General Fund and $348.62 in the Emergency Educational Fund.

Reports were read from all conveners, showing that a great deal of work had been undertaken and accomplished in all departments during the year.

The convener of School Fairs, Mrs. M. Wilson, reported that her committee have received $75 and promises of a further $210 toward their goal of $300, and have distributed 141 packages of seeds.

The secretary read a letter received from the Canadian Youth Hostels Association acknowledging the donation of pans and blankets to the Youth Hostel at Cushing.

The president issued a plea on behalf of UNESCO Gift Coupons, and Mrs. Gordon Cooke asked that donations be sent through the county treasurer to the provincial treasurer.

The president commended Arundel Branch on winning second prize in the Village History contest and stated that the deadline for the Tweedsmuir contest is February 1, 1957.

The president recommended to the members the Leadership Training Course, and also membership in the C.A.C. She reminded members that June 15 is the deadline to send exhibits to the handicraft exhibit at the Provincial Exhibition.

A delicious luncheon was served by the members of the Morin Heights branch to the convention and guests, including: His Honor Mayor Campbell; Mr. Philippe Valois, M.P.; the Hon. Mr. W. M. Cottingham and Mrs. Cottingham, the Rev. and Mrs. Horace Baugh; Dr. and Mrs. L. Turcotte; Mr. J. S. Giles and Mr. R. A. Giles. Short addresses were enjoyed from the gentlemen guests during the luncheon, and Mrs. Crosby congratulated the hostesses and the waitresses from the Girl Guides.

The afternoon session opened with the singing of "O Canada" and the Salute to the Flag.

Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh conducted a short but impressive ceremony in memory of departed members, namely, Mrs. J. P. Bradley, Miss Jessie Drew, Miss Alice Smith, Mrs. Richard MacAdam, Mrs. E. White and Mrs. C. H. Edgerton.

Mrs. M. Wilson introduced the guest speaker, the provincial president, Mrs. G. E. LeBaron, who began her address by stating that Argenteuil County has the most branches and over 100 more members than any other county. She recommended the "Four-Way Test" for the consideration of W.I. members; we should always ask ourselves:

"Is it the truth?"

"Is it fair to all concerned?"

"Will it build good-will and understanding?"

"Will it be beneficial to all concerned?"

Mrs. LeBaron urged that every member try to bring in one new member during the coming year. We must have members or cease to exist. She also said that we belong to a wonderful organization and must not be too modest or unassuming. She recommended that we support a number of projects, among them being: the Service Fund which finances the Leadership Training Courses; Civil Defence through First Aid and Home Nursing Courses; UNESCO Gift Coupons, which go to the aid of underprivileged women and children in the East. Most, if not all of these women, are illiterate and thus the usual channels for learning how to care for their families are closed to them. Mrs. LeBaron also urged that the W.I.'s procure memberships in C.A.C. and U.N. for their conveners of Home Economics and Citizenship; and also that they support two laws now in legislation, one through the M.P.P. of the constituency: "The position of married women in the Province of Quebec", and the other through the M.P.: "The prevention of the sale of dangerous toys, notably air-guns and pistols." She asked support for the petition being circulated to improve conditions in the Fullum Street Jail.

Mrs. LeBaron informed the meeting that the brief on Broadcasting prepared by the Q.W.I. conveners of Education and Citizenship had been sent in and would be discussed shortly. She closed her address with the words:

"We cannot all of us do everything, But all of us can do something."

Population growth in 1955 through increase — excess of births over deaths — is estimated at 313,000. Immigration totalled 109,946 and emigration about 40,000.

That inspiring "something" about a graduation night which marks it as a milestone in the experience of youth, was as evident in the Lachute High School annual ceremonies as it appears in university or higher institutions of learning. While this occasion will be long remembered by the pupils of Grade XI, stars of the glamorous event — also impressed by its significance were the parents and adults, who were there in considerable numbers.

The 1956 graduation exercises at Lachute High School last Friday evening excelled all previous occasions in one respect, namely, their colorful setting. The decorating committee of the class, and assisting teachers, created a motif in the school gymnasium which was both beautiful and functional, and their triumph deserves mention.

Spokesman for the graduates and m.c. for the proceedings was Ernest Morrison. The graduates, 20 girls and 10 boys, were seated on the stage under colorful lighting which enhanced their charm and courtliness — in a manner fitting the remarks of the school board chairman, Mr. Jas. W. McGibbon, who commented on the "breathtaking appearance of these dapper young gentlemen and young debutantes who are more customarily seen in loafers and slacks." . . .

Mr. McGibbon, after extending sincere good wishes to the graduates, was followed by Beverley McDonald, who introduced her classmates individually.

Principal Fred Royal also expressed good wishes, on behalf of the teaching staff. He observed that, of the number of pupils starting Grade I, there is a general average of 30 per cent who reach graduation. By favorable comparison, the average at Lachute High School is at least 50 per cent. "You, representing the top half of Lachute's young citizenry, may reasonably be regarded as our future leaders," he said in effect, addressing the graduates. Whether their immediate steps should lead them to a career or to higher institutions of learning, he urged them to benefit by every future opportunity to increase their education.

The "class prophecy", envisioning mirthful roles and situations in the young graduates' future, was read by Jean McOuat and Fred Andoney, while the "last will and testament" was recited by Lois Silverson and George Doig.

The valedictorian was Shirley MacGeorge, who very ably expressed the appreciation of her classmates to their teachers and their parents. Miss MacGeorge concluded with fitting verses from "The Dreams Ahead", by Edwin Carlisle Litsey:

"What would we do in this world of ours
Were it not for the dreams ahead?
For thorns are mixed with the blooming flowers,
No matter which path we tread.

"To some it's a dream of a high estate,
To some it's a dream of wealth,
To some it's a dream of a truce with Fate
In a constant search for health.

"And each of us has his golden goal,
Stretching far into the years;
And ever he climbs with a hopeful soul
With alternate smiles and tears."

A highlight of these annual rites was the Grand March, performed by the graduates with their escorts or partners. This spectacular number opened a pleasant social interlude for the gathering, and dancing to the music of Stan Bankley's orchestra. Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria by the girls of Grade X, and altogether this function proved a notable example of good management among the committees concerned.

Addition to C.P.R. Station

Lachute is growing! Despite competition of truck transport, CPR Express facilities at the Lachute depot have necessitated this large extension to the offices and warehouse — plainly indicating the immense increase in commercial and industrial shipping to and from this area.

Liberal Convention Chooses Bernard Gosselin Candidate

Bernard Gosselin, of Lachute, polled a majority vote over Lorenzo Pilon, St. Andrews East, at the Liberal Convention held in Lachute Auditorium last Saturday, and was chosen official Liberal candidate for Argenteuil in the provincial elections, June 20. Mr. Gosselin is a chemist employed with C-I-L in Brownsburg. Maurice Champagne, Sr., and Louis-Georges Bertrand both withdrew their names from the running, but pledged their support to the elected candidate.

Invited to carry the Liberal colors, Mr. Gosselin thanked the delegates for the confidence they had placed in him and stated he had allowed his name to be put up for the nomination because he "felt that the results obtained in the 1952 contest gave promise of victory in the coming campaign". He added he was conscious of the great honor to represent this County as Liberal candidate.

He paid tribute to the Hon. Georges-E. Dansereau, who in the past and at present had assisted him, and declared it was his intention to organize an honest campaign. "This does not mean we will not go into the enemy camp," he added. "We will organize a just and vigorous campaign, be assured, as we must at any cost return Argenteuil County to the Liberals." In conclusion he saluted the Social Credit Party and expressed appreciation for their support.

Following this address, Richard Hyde, retiring member from Westmount - St. Georges, congratulated the candidate and spoke on deficiencies of the present government, referring mainly to "the deplorable state of roads throughout the province, which this government cannot seem to remedy."

Philippe Valois, M.P., expressed his confidence in the outcome of the election. He gave his opinion that the union of all forces would result in Mr. Gosselin's election on June 20. "Elections are everyone's business," he said, "and on June 20 we will see the Union Nationale party wiped out."

John Long proved the most forceful speaker on the program. He declared it was vital for the people of Quebec to "give the gate" to the Duplessis regime. "After 12 years of administration, the credit and respect of our province are sinking lower and lower." He spoke of industries leaving Quebec, and supported his declarations with figures; he spoke on unemployment and the "prosperity" that the Hon. Duplessis is so proud of, and requested that the Hon. W. M. Cottingham tell him why municipalities and school commissions had to "kneel down and beg" in order to obtain grants.

In a brief address, the Hon. Mr. Dansereau stated that nearly all the roads in this County had been constructed under Liberal regimes, and stated that although the Hon. Cottingham had promised construction of Route 31, that highway still remains to be paved. He closed with a demand for a better roads system, one more adequate to present needs.

The concluding speaker was Jacques Roy, representative of the Young Liberal Association, Hull, who presented Mr. Georges Lapalme's election campaign platform, including a labor code; grants to students desirous of continuing their education; the return of free school books; and abolishing of the "inadequate" Bill 34 which encourages fraud in the electoral lists.

The convention was under the co-chairmanship of the Hon. Geo. E. Dansereau and William S. MacKimmie. Noted on the platform in addition to the speakers mentioned, were Fernand Legault, Q.C.; Victor Martel, Provincial Liberal Party organizer, of Montreal; Harvey Barlow, of Arundel; and Marc Vermette, of St. Janvier.

Big Trout Fishing Derby in Choice Private Lake Area, Rotary Club Fund Project

Vice-President Edgar Pollock, who occupied the chair in the absence of President Syd Stilwell at last week's Rotary meeting, announced that, together with Rotarians Stewart Jones and Linton Armstrong, he had had several discussions with Messrs. James and George McGibbon, with the result that it had been decided to hold a trout fishing derby and that the McGibbon brothers had generously offered their park just north of Lake Louisa for this event. A charge of $1 would be made for each one entering the park, the entire proceeds of which would go to the Rotary Club to assist in maintaining and improving their community park and swimming pool on Brownsburg Road. The event would take place on Saturday, May 26, from 5 a.m. until 8.30 p.m. Prizes would be given to those anglers who caught the largest red trout and the largest grey trout. Everyone was welcome, and it was hoped that all fishing enthusiasts for miles around would take advantage of this wonderful opportunity.

Mr. George McGibbon, who was present as guest at the meeting, stated that this would be the first time their five lakes in the park had ever been opened to the public. He said that he and his brothers were glad to do this to help the Rotary Club, mainly because he knew of no other organization which got more value for every dollar they collected and which was doing more as a service organization. He explained that every possible precaution would have to be taken to prevent fires. No smoking would be allowed in the bush, and of course, the provincial fishing laws would apply in every respect.

In the discussion that followed, it was decided that every available club member would have to be on hand. All cars would have to be checked on entering at the gate and again on leaving. Help would have to be provided with regard to the parking of automobiles at the various lakes, and it is hoped that the public will co-operate and not leave their cars on the road blocking traffic. Aside from the five lakes there is about five miles of good brook fishing near the road, and it was thought that certain anglers might, when sighting some of those attractive pools, simply abandon their cars in the middle of the road. It was also decided that the event would be advertised as widely as possible in the press and on the radio.

The members expressed their sincere thanks to the McGibbon brothers for their generous offer, and assured them they would exert every effort to make the event a success.

Worthy Citizens Receive Tribute At Rotary Club

Highlights of last week's Rotary meeting were — the recognition by the Club of four outstanding citizens of Lachute and Brownsburg; the announcement of a trout fishing derby to be held on May 26; and the induction of a new member.

Periodically the Club invites four citizens from the two towns to attend a regular meeting. These are people who have served their communities in various ways, and, as explained by Rotarian Stewart Jones, the purpose is to recognize the merit of these particular individuals, to acquaint the members of the Club with these special guests and to give them a chance to enjoy the fellowship of a Rotary gathering. Last week's four were Messrs. J. S. Giles and W. S. MacKimmie, of Lachute, and Messrs. James Donaldson and Ira McFaul, of Brownsburg.

Rotarian Mac Walker introduced Mr. Giles. He related how he came to Lachute many years ago from England and began work as a printer's apprentice. Times were hard and the difficulties were many, but through persistence and hard work he overcame these hardships, to the extent that now, in his 87th year, he could look back with pride upon a useful life and enjoy the satisfaction of having built a successful business, which includes the printing of one of the best weekly newspapers in the country and one which has gained an unusually wide recognition. "Pa" Giles, as he is affectionately known to all members of his staff and countless citizens throughout the community, has always taken an active interest in public affairs. He has served his town as Mayor and been an active member of the church. He has played a leading part in the Lions Club for years, served on a variety of committees and held numerous official positions. He has travelled a great deal and has friends from coast to coast.

Rotarian Norm Somers introduced Mr. James Donaldson. Born in nearby Chatboro, "Jim", as he is familiarly known, has lived in Brownsburg for over 50 years. Always keenly interested in municipal affairs, he has served as Mayor for three terms, as well as a member of the civic council. He also had played a leading role in the largest undertaking ever to have been brought to a successful conclusion in Brownsburg, namely, the community rink.

Rotarian Dick MacLean presented Mr. MacKimmie, a public-spirited citizen who had also served his town as Mayor and as a member of the council "more years than he cared to remember." Really interested in sports, he had been a well-known hockey player in his younger days, and later as referee. For a number of years he owned the local skating rink and was always interested in developing

Recognition to Long-Term 'Shell' Dealer at Arundel

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — Mr. Percy Staniforth last week attended the Shell Oil district meeting, held in the Town Hall at Mount Royal, Que. During the evening he was presented with a diamond-studded emblem, a pen desk-set, and an illuminated certificate, in recognition of 25 years of Shell dealership. The presentation was made by Mr. J. Snow — Month of May

For distant readers interested in the home-town climate, it should be recorded that snow fell hereabouts on Wednesday, May 16. Although insufficient to "settle", the snow flurry gives indication of a cold snap in sharp contrast to the warmth of last week-end. . . The abnormally cold weather continues today.

Sydney, N.S. (CP) — Three hot steel ingots weighing altogether 139 tons were sent by rail to Trenton, Ont., for processing. They were shipped at temperatures of about 1,800 degrees, in highly-insulated railway boxes, and lost little heat on the journey.

Grenville Child Killed by Auto

Albert Amedei, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henri Amedei, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, last Saturday, after being struck by a car near his parents' home in Grenville.

Grenville Police Chief Laurent Davidson and Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated the accident, report that the victim was playing ball with a young neighbor, Suzanne Dumoulin, also eight years old. The ball rolled onto the street, the two children playfully shoving each other to go and fetch it.

Dr. Larocque, a dentist and witness to the accident, rushed the child to hospital, but his effort was unavailing.

No date has been set for the inquest.

First Drowning, In Boat Mishap At St. Adolphe

A heroic rescue attempt in ice-cold water by P/O Ken Mayne, 19, of the Lac St. Denis RCAF Station, was fruitless — when Joseph Geo. Grenier, 54, of Montreal lost his life by drowning. The fatality occurred in Lac St. Joseph, St. Adolphe d'Howard, at 8.45 p.m. Sunday.

Witnesses informed Det. Ralph Allen that one of the boats belonging to a hotel, where Grenier was employed as a cook, was seen adrift on the lake. Grenier got into another boat, caught the rope on the drifting boat and commenced to pull it to shore. Twice the rope slipped, causing the victim to return; the second time, however, he toppled into the water, coming to the surface only once before submerging.

P/O Ken Mayne, one of several residents who witnessed the mishap immediately stripped off his clothing and plunged into the lake, which three days previously had been covered with ice, but he could not reach the drowning man.

Traffic Officer Gerard Loyer and residents searched for the victim throughout the night. The body was recovered Monday at 11.45 a.m. by three residents of the area.

Tisdale, Sask. (CP) — More than 600 gallons of gasoline poured into the snow when a truck knocked off a pipe on a tank containing 5,500 gallons. After the gasoline flow was stopped the area was blocked off and no fire resulted.

Friday Deadline for Livestock Entries In Exhibition

District breeders who plan to exhibit at the Lachute Spring Fair have until tomorrow night (Friday) to get their entries in before the deadline. Dates of the local exposition are June 13-16.

Secretary-Manager Syd Patterson has pointed out that late entries not only cost double or triple fees (the latter for horses, the former for other exhibits), but such entries do not make the printed catalogue, also they have to take such stall or stable space as remains available.

A change will be made in the usual dairy judging as this year Holsteins will be judged on Thursday, and Ayrshires and Jerseys on Friday. Formerly Holsteins and Ayrshires were judged on the same day in the grass ring.

Preparations for Census-Taking In This District

Notary Richard Valois, who is the appointed census officer for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, states that preparations for the first quinquennial Canadian census, to be held this June, are well in hand.

The district, comprising the two counties, is divided into three subdistricts with 78 census-takers. In addition to Mr. Valois, the two other district chiefs are Charles Emile Dorris, Lachute Mills, and Bernard Corbeau, of St. Eustache.

The census-takers will go from door to door procuring the necessary information. In urban regions, the count will be strictly relative to population, while certain agricultural information will be obtained in the rural areas.

The work of the census-takers will be verified by the team foreman and by the officer, who is responsible for their accuracy and integrity.

When all the documents have been checked and verified, they will be sent to the regional Federal Bureau of Statistics, Montreal, where final compilations will be made prior to their being printed and released.

Gatineau LINES

Kites and Sling Shots

Our customers are asked to impress upon their children that flying kites near power lines is a dangerous practice!

As well, there is always the danger of falling wires!

Sling-shots, too, contribute at this season of the year to interrupted electric service, when insulators are broken by stones. Such interruptions are most annoying to those who depend on electrical power to perform many functions around the home and the farm.

This inconvenience can be decreased considerably if parents will kindly caution their children against using pole line insulators as targets!

Remember — it may be your service which will be interrupted!

Town Planner Advocates Master Plan Lachute and Adjacent Municipalities

Authority Hears Chamber of Commerce Discussion On Problems Inherent Through Lack of Planning

"Town Planning" was the theme of the Chamber of Commerce dinner topic in the Legion Hall Monday evening, also of the evening's deliberations.

The subject opened during the business session, in which President Paul Laliberté and others aired their opinions on controlled parking, parking meters and the widening of Main Street.

It was pointed out that the big problem on Main Street was that businessmen and clerks utilize the parking area, leaving their cars all day. Mr. Laliberté presented the feelings of the executive committee when he stated he was in favor of the widening of Main Street. "If the plan is accepted now, it will be easier to widen the street in 10 to 15 years, or whenever it is necessary; with adequate parking facilities, a $70,000 property will not become practically useless due to the opening up of a large shopping centre," he added.

Mr. Soudre (associated with the guest speaker, Rolf Latté, in the Town Planning and Development business) introduced the speaker. Mr. Latté opened with the remark that planning seems much in the forefront in Lachute, but that a master plan of the area some years ago would have meant avoiding the problems which had been voted on a few minutes before.

Mr. Latté stated, "Town Planning is a simple job which any man can acquire if he studies the related subjects and adds up the results. In England, both the theoretical and practical sides are looked at, whereas, in Canada, we have neither. All present town-planners in this country have been trained elsewhere."

Town planning is achieved in three stages, he pointed out, namely, survey, analysis, and finally the plan; one virtually leads to the other. "In such a case as Lachute, there is every justification to encourage the local Councils to plan ahead, as there most certainly will be an increase in population, and a master plan will save money in the long run. People will be able to plan for the future and will not build today where an industrial site will be located several years from now. A community self-analysis for the future is a great attraction for new industries. Town planning is a common-sense argument and conclusion, and if this area had a good master plan, it would have one advantage in this field over similar municipalities without such a plan."

As an example, he cited Lachute and Ayersville; the former might hypothetically wish to erect houses next to the dividing line, while the latter had the area set off as an industrial site. "An area such as this needs a comprehensive plan for the whole area, mainly to govern zoning.

"In 60 years from now, cars may not be used for transportation, but parking facilities will be needed for whatever means of transportation is in use at that time. People will be in a position to plan ahead, as will churches, schools, playgrounds and institutions.

"The longer you wait, the more it will cost, and the harder it will be to accomplish — whereas it can be done without too much trouble by starting at an early stage." Mr. Latté stressed also that, at the time of adopting such a master plan, dates of revision should be fixed (say every five years), at which time all suggestions can be taken up."

In thanking the speaker, Geo. Y. Deacon stated that this area has all the problems mentioned by Mr. Latté, "as well as a few others," and he was in full accord to get the ball rolling in an effort to clear up these problems.

Members of the Lachute Town Council and St. Jerusalem Council were in attendance, with various interested citizens and Chamber of Commerce members from Greater Lachute.

Rotarian Andy Hardy presented Mr. Ira McFaul, one of the oldest residents of Brownsburg. Born in 1875, Ira at one time owned a farm in Staynerville. Later he was in the lumber business with his brothers in Lachute. He opened his first store in Brownsburg in 1903 and is still active in the same business, a span of over 50 years. He has served as a member of the School Board, as a municipal councillor, a church elder, a member of the Masonic Lodge, and a charter member of the Rotary Club with an outstanding record for attendance. Now in his 81st year, Ira has served his community long and well.

Agriculture and The 1956 Census

Canada's first nation-wide quinquennial census, which will be taken on June 1, 1956, will include both a census of population and a census of agriculture. Previous mid-decade censuses covered the Prairie Provinces only, having been started when the West was in its early stages of development. Canada's recent record population growth, together with shifts of population between and within provinces, the rapidly changing conditions in agriculture, and the difficulty of providing accurate estimates over a ten-year span have led to the decision to extend the regular quinquenniel census of the Prairie Provinces to take in the whole of Canada.

Greatest Primary Industry

Canada's industries are becoming more and more diversified. Other primary industries such as mining have increased in relative importance; and the secondary industries, including a great variety of manufacturing activities, surpass agriculture in the net value of products. Nevertheless, agriculture is still the greatest of our primary industries by a very wide margin. In 1951, one-fifth of all gainfully occupied males in Canada were engaged primarily in agricultural pursuits and 55 per cent of the net value of all primary production was from agriculture. It is only through the census that a complete inventory of this great basic industry can be obtained with sufficient detail to appraise its progress in all parts of Canada and to serve as a benchmark for the annual estimates which are essential for a great variety of purposes.

Restricted to Basic Inquiries

The agriculture census is a census of an industry and must include questions on the numbers or area of everything produced on the farm, besides other questions relating to the structure of the industry. The development of agricultural research, of marketing plans and of various controls for the farmer's benefit require a considerable amount and variety of data. At the same time, the burden of obtaining information from thousands of farmers, time of enumeration, time and expense of sorting and tabulating the data, and the possibility of jeopardizing the accuracy of the census for essential data have always to be kept in mind. The utmost care had been taken, therefore, to keep the number of questions to the minimum consistent with the requirements for census material. The agricultural questionnaire for this first nation-wide quinquennial census has accordingly been restricted to basic inquiries only. Compared with 203 in 1951, it will comprise approximately 76 main questions; and only part of these — of course — will require answers from any one farmer.

In the coming year Ottawa estimates that family allowance payments will cost $399,200,000, nearly twice the annual cost ten years ago, and the universal old age pension payments will cost $379,515,000.

Says the Cash Register

WHILE THE DOMINION Bureau of Statistics spends much time and manpower to divulge facts of often-negligible value, they do release information which sometimes serves to fortify an argument. Like this recent reference to advertising expenditures in Canada:

In relation to sales, we are told, the manufacturers of toilet preparations are the biggest spenders on advertising — 15.86% of total sales going into this channel. The breakfast food industry comes next, with 11.76% for advertising.

Calling on The Watchman this week, a local car dealer estimated he'd be spending $3,000 this year on advertising. Here's one man at least who agrees that toiletries and breakfast cereals are Big Business for a good and logical reason — they're advertised. And we think there should be many more local merchants, agents and servicemen like our friend the car dealer, who can discern the fact that publicity SELLS.

A Memorable Role

THE BATTLE of the Atlantic, the longest sea struggle in history, will be commemorated on Sunday, May 20, by present and former personnel of Canada's Navy and veterans of the Merchant Service.

The third Sunday in May is set aside each year as a reminder of the bitter, drawn-out fight to preserve the Atlantic lifeline and to honor those Canadians who lost their lives at sea in the Second World War.

Special services will be held on board HMC Ships at sea and, in many cities across Canada, serving and former naval personnel will parade to churches for Battle of the Atlantic Sunday observances.

Canada's part in the protection of the North Atlantic trade routes began within two weeks of the outbreak of the 1939-45 war, two RCN destroyers escorting the first convoy outbound from Halifax for the United Kingdom.

At one stage, in the summer of 1942, the Atlantic struggle had reached such fierce proportions that, in the month of July alone, 820,000 tons of merchant shipping was sunk by enemy U-boats. Some of the sinkings occurred on the threshold of central Canada, far up the St. Lawrence estuary.

This country's Navy developed almost exclusively as an anti-submarine force — operating on the North Atlantic along the North American seaboard, in the St. Lawrence, the Caribbean, in Western European waters, the Mediterranean and on the arduous route to North Russia.

During the 2,060 days of war, Canadian warships escorted 25,343 merchant ships, carrying 181,643,180 tons of supplies, from North America to Europe. By June, 1944, the RCN provided close escort of all trans-Atlantic trade convoys. A stirring example of how this responsibility was met was the safe passage, under Canadian escort, of a convoy of 167 merchant ships, carrying more than a million tons of cargo vital to the war effort.

At the outbreak of war, the RCN strength, including reserves, was 3,604. By mid-1955 more than 100,000 Canadian men and women had served in the Navy, with the effective warship strength vaulting from six to 378. Of the 1,797 killed and 319 wounded during the Second World War, the majority were victims of the Battle of the Atlantic. This was true also of 17 warships lost by enemy action and seven damaged beyond repair. To balance the scale, the RCN helped to send 29 U-boats to their doom, in addition to obtaining notable successes against enemy surface forces.

Facing Immigration Facts

IMMIGRATION absorption by Canada today is a vastly different problem from that faced during the record inflow in the early years of the century — notes The Financial Post. Then, with less than half its present population, Canada readily digested more than twice the newcomers admitted last year. But anyone who says we could or should bring in new people at that rate today, would be talking nonsense.

Comparisons with the years just before the first world war, just don't mean anything, because then we had thousands of square miles of empty rich farm land that only needed a plow. We didn't even have to have people with farm experience. All sorts of city people who had never seen a cow, let alone milked one, dug in and became highly successful. Hon. C. A. Dunning, a former federal Minister of Finance, today chairman of Ogilvie Flour Mills, is a shining example. But that day is done. The free and easily broken or cleared land is finished.

Getting established in farming today requires special knowledge and a great deal of capital. And the same is true in most other lines.

We need more people in this country, and we are going to continue to need them. But simply opening the door wide and pumping them in, will not benefit them or build up the country in the way we want it built.

Some Have Greatness —

WHEN OUR hockey idols have been starred in radio commercials for hot beverages or in illustrated ads for washing machines, we have quietly wept in desperation. How have these heroes succumbed to the wiles of the sales executive and to lust for the mighty dollar!

But the worst is not yet. Here's news from the mecca of modern merchandising. . .

The great Yvon Robert, none other — nine times world wrestling champion — will be working for a Montreal watch-strap manufacturing concern. In newspaper and television, dressed in a loincloth, Robert will do the "strong arm" act to illustrate the strength and flexibility of watch-straps; and in evening clothes, he will demonstrate the smart appearance of same. Sales will climb by leaps and bounds, no doubt; but alas . . .

Light Behind the Curtain

WHILE THE current Russian bosses are trying to prove that they are really good fellows at heart and didn't really mean it when they killed off so many of their political opponents, stories begin to seep out of Russia that the people themselves are showing characteristics that will certainly appeal to a lot of folk in the Western world. . . . So says that bright contemporary, "The Printed Word."

Whether this is some more propaganda or not, it really sounds like the truth. The information is that the Russians are getting very tired of culture. "Trud" reports indignantly that in the Leningrad region an automobile provided by the government to carry speakers, films, posters and literature to the countryside had been used instead by the head of the agriculture union's chief propagandist to bring in vegetables from the farms for his own use and that of his cronies.

Communist party lecturers also come in for a drubbing — this time from "Pravda". When paid by the hour, it is reported that one lecturer spun out his talk into a forty-six hour marathon. Another, paid by the lecture, pocketed several thousand rubles for delivering seventy-two talks in less than a month.

Whatever dark-eyed men the big Russian leaders may be, the ordinary party workers appear from this to be exasperatingly human, like characters by Dostoyevsky.

The Parole System

JUSTICE Minister Garson soon will table in the House of Commons a report that may carry with it some far-reaching ramifications for Canada's parole system as it now affects the 5,500-odd prisoners in federal penitentiaries. The report, already in Mr. Garson's hands, comes from a four-man committee headed by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada after 2½ years of investigation at home and abroad.

The minister already has gone on record as saying that he hopes to call a federal-provincial conference, at a time convenient to the provinces, to study the report. Ontario and British Columbia already have well-developed probation systems.

Crux of the report may be consideration the committee has given to repeated suggestions that a federal parole board be established to deal with the remission of sentences. Pleas for establishment of such a board have come from experts in penology and from persons interested in the welfare and rehabilitation of criminals.

Such a board, to replace the present system of granting paroles to deserving prisoners, would, it is believed, require at least five persons to cover the country. But, it is unlikely that such a board would mean the end of the highly-respected remission service of the justice department.

About twice a year, officers of the service visit penitentiaries to interview prisoners eligible for paroles. They compile reports on the behavior of prisoners, their progress in becoming rehabilitated to useful citizenship and their intentions for the future. All of this information goes to the solicitor-general, who then makes recommendations, when a parole is to be granted, to the governor-general.

Other factors came under the committee's consideration. Among them was the question of a more liberal system of time off for good behavior. The rate now is six days a month for the first year of a sentence and 10 days a month for succeeding years.

IT IS TRULY an anachronism that in a land of plenty such as Canada many cannot afford to attend institutions of higher learning, or that the incentive is not provided for them to do so. In a land where one person in four owns a car, less than one in 10 goes to university.

"BEYOND THE VEIL"

With both New Brunswick and Quebec facing early elections, much chatter in both provinces these days is flavored with political spices. Thus, it came as no surprise to find the morning coffee break today arguing the pros and cons of government under Liberal or Conservative leadership.

"I wouldn't vote Conservative if you paid me," croaked O'Brien, the history teacher.

"You wouldn't be paid. Conservatives never buy votes," Johnston, the assistant head returned.

"I'll be Liberal until I die," O'Brien continued, trying to gain the advantage.

"Man, you've been dead for years," Johnston said. "All Grits are dead — from the neck up, anyway! Why, it just curdles my insides when I think that for years this country was governed by a confirmed bachelor — and a ouija board! And the provinces haven't fared any too well either, wherever they've let those miserable Whigs get control. What the people of Canada need is a good dose of Tory salts followed by a complete rest from the worries of Liberal domination."

Johnston snapped his morning paper open and disappeared behind it. O'Brien lit his pipe and leafed through the pages of the Athletic Director's Handbook. Miss Daly looked bemused and sipped her tea while Miss Stellarton fumbled through last night's paper for a quick look at Pogo. It was Garfat, the mathematics type, that picked up the bait where Johnston and O'Brien had flung it.

"We used to have a ouija board once. Had an awful lot of fun with it, too, as I recall. Wonder if they'll ever come into vogue again?"

"Undoubtedly," the head replied. "I strongly suspect that some brilliant soul will combine ouija with scrabble and come up with a new game called "Squeegee," where you lay down the chips and the spirits will do all the head-scratching for new words and the like."

Johnston reappeared from behind his paper at this point to state that ouija boards were utter fakes.

"Ever see one of those things work when the operator was blindfolded? I never did. All a fake! All a miserable fake!"

"Now just hold on a minute," O'Brien chimed in, laying aside the sports book, "what about that demonstration young Dangerfield gave us back in thirty-four?"

"Oh, come off it, Harry," Johnston crowed, "you're not going to drag that in again are you? The kid was off his trolley to begin with; then somebody slipped him a mickey just before the demonstration; and he even admitted afterwards that he didn't know what the spirits had written. Thought it might be Portuguese or the like!"

"Well, I still maintain . . ."

"Yes, you would. But nobody else would. Nobody!"

"What about old Miss Bennett in the village?" Miss Daly ventured. "Why, she used to hold lengthy séances with former headmasters of this place."

"She was cracked as all get out," Johnston snapped, "and so were they. That proves absolutely nothing."

"Well, let's get back to the government then," the head crowed, demolishing another sandwich. "You said yourself, Bill, that the country was run for years with the aid of a ouija board. How does that stack up if the devices don't work?"

"Purely a figure of speech. Goodness only knows what that fellow did use. Maybe he should have tried a ouija. He might have had better luck!"

Johnston retreated behind his paper again, and in the dim distance, we heard the clanging of the bell announcing the end of the coffee hour.

It was the Padre who terminated the proceedings.

"Thank goodness for the bell," he said wearily, heaving his bulk into an upright position. "I like stimulating conversation with these breaks but I must confess I've heard more tripe in here for the past fifteen minutes than I've gleaned in a lifetime of listening to assorted vocal utterances."

"Weighty spiritual matters?" the cleric called back. "Very unlikely. But out of this world — yes!"

MORE AUTO SEAT BELTS

Auto seat belts are catching on in the Canadian market, reports The Financial Post. Some 10,000 cars may have them by year's end. Canadian Tire Corporation figures that belt sales (prices from $7.50 to $30) have risen by 40% over 1955. Roughly half the belts in cars today are factory installed; the rest bolted in by car owners. Only one new car out of 20 is going out with seat belts, according to one major dealer.

FIFTY MILLION TONS

On April 9th at 9.55 a.m., Purina made its 50-millionth ton of Purina Chow. They didn't make 50 million tons in this year, they aren't that smart yet. They have made that much since they started. That amount would load a train to reach more than half way around the world. . . Isn't that a tremendous achievement!

But stop a minute — they didn't make it and pile it up for keeps. THEY SOLD IT. Can you imagine the number of people it took to handle this great amount of feed? And if you can imagine the number of people, start to imagine the number of animals, poultry, etc., that it took to eat all this feed!

Now, if your imagination is equal to the number of people and animals, can you still imagine, so many people who didn't know that PURINA WAS TOO DEAR!!

Well those feeders who fed out the 50 million tons no doubt were smart people, and they were watching the results — how much they made — not just watching if they could buy a competitive feed for 10c a bag less.

This should convince the most skeptical, that PURINA CHOWS will make them the most money, no matter what they cost. Won't you give us your order today? We deliver.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Imagine for a moment that you are a Soviet spy and Saboteur. How would you go about your nasty business? Would you join the Communist party or an obvious Red-front organization, and shout your purpose to the world?

Or would you live a quiet, blameless life?

The second course of action appears more logical. Cunning men might follow it for that very reason, hoping to win their purpose by audacity.

But the chances are that the dangerous ones work in silence. Why should a foreign agent pin a label on himself?

* * *

The agent is unlikely to be a platform screamer. He is more likely to be a suburban mouse who has nothing to do with politics, but happens to work in an atomic plant; or perhaps he is a diligent member of the Liberal or Conservative party; or perhaps he masquerades as a keen anti-Communist. He may be sitting next to you in the bus, or in a restaurant.

* * *

For this reason it is wearisome to observe a hue and cry raised after known Communists. If our faith is good and our arguments are strong, why not let the Reds speak?

Why refuse Paul Robeson admittance to Canada, and slam the door against a group of Russian matrons because the society which invited them was Red-tinged?

Any country has the right to be somewhat choosy about the people it admits as immigrants, although even in that sphere many an injustice has been perpetrated by ham-fisted offialdom.

But to exclude visitors because they carry dangerous ideas with them is a confession of weakness. It is equivalent to saying we are afraid to hear the Communist case.

We are not as weak as the protecting officials seem to imagine. The seeds of Marxism won't thrive in Canada. Our soil is too rich.

Council Affairs, Fire and Police Reports at B'burg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The May council meeting started with a motion authorizing the secretary-treasurer, Vincent Charbonneau, to sign cheques.

At last some official action was taken on the Woodbine project. The McVicar brothers notified the council that if they would be responsible for any damage resulting from the operations, the McVicars had no objections to the work. A motion was passed authorizing the town engineer to draw up the plans and make the estimates. The mayor, Dorius Lepine, said he fully expected the work to be completed by the end of July. The money required will be borrowed, the interest to be paid by the Provincial Government.

The secretary read a letter from the Bell Telephone Company proposing that the village accept the location of all existing telephone poles and that in future the council will have the right to approve or reject the location. The councillors felt that they should have such an agreement with the Company, but that they should not accept several of the existing poles.

Police Chief Willie Lepine presented his monthly report, the highlights of which were two minor car accidents. There were few traffic violations, only five traffic-light culprits being fined. On the subject of dogs, the Chief was asked to speak to people whose dogs were creating a nuisance. One of the councillors proposed that $5 instead of $2 be levied on female dogs. The secretary will determine if such a motion would be legal, before any vote is taken.

The Mayor asked the Police Chief to attend to the white lines, and to paint the curbs yellow where no parking is permitted.

It was decided that the corporation would try to manage without a new truck this year. Two tires are urgently needed for the truck, and an approach is to be made to Mr. J. Cumbers for two second-hand tires.

Fire Chief Arthur Robbins delivered the monthly report for his department. He listed a fire May 4, a minor affair caused by a flooded space-heater. Also, on May 8, a fire which might have had more serious repercussions, when Mr. E. Giroux was burning scrap outside and a grass fire started, which was only put out when he and Mr. E. Nankivelle applied a hose, after it had burned on three sides of a stone garage. Had this structure been of wood, it would doubtless have gone up in smoke.

On April 20 there was a flooded stove and on April 27 a garbage fire, which, though minor, revealed a very hazardous situation. The garbage was in cans beside three fuel-gas cylinders; and all in a very small area were some outside wires worn through, a galvanized tank of fuel oil with a squeeze-tap, another 250-gallon fuel tank, and an open 5-gallon can of gasoline. Mr. Robbins is checking that this corner is cleaned up.

The Fire Chief thanked the council for having the hydrants numbered and Councillor Ouellette for distributing match-books bearing the fire alarm number and stressing the point "Give the hydrant number."

To Re-designate Numbers In Morin Heights Phone

Morin Heights — As of next winter, the word "Capital" will have an entirely new meaning for residents of the Morin Heights area, and it will quickly become one of the most frequently used words in everyone's vocabularly.

L. W. Ball, Bell Telephone manager for the region, announced that the word "Capital" has been selected to identify the local telephone exchange and that all telephone numbers will be changed to incorporate the first two letters of the word, plus five figures.

In many cases, the present three-digit numbers will simply be preceded by the letters "CA" and the figures 6 and 3. For example, the number 1 2 3 would become "CA 5-3123". Some of the existing numbers will be completely changed.

This new numbering system is designed to allow for the continued expansion of the local telephone network and it conforms to a uniform numbering plan gradually being introduced throughout Canada and the United States.

Mr. Ball reminded business customers that the coming number change should be kept in mind when they are ordering stationery, advertising matter or other materials on which their telephone numbers appear.

He recently completed his first-year Divinity course at McGill University, and at the Diocesan College convocation he was granted the Bishop's Prize for obtaining highest marks in the first-year New Testament course. Kenneth also holds the Birks Entrance Scholarship and the St. Philip's Bursary.

Last Sunday, this young student left for Montreal, where he will train for a week at the R.C.O.C. School prior to his departure, by plane on May 23, for Germany. He will be working for the summer as a chaplain with the Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Annual Meeting Reviews Work of Cancer Society

Mrs. W. M. Cottingham was elected president of the Ladies' Branch, Argenteuil County Cancer Society, at the annual meeting held last Tuesday.

Mrs. Charles L. Duncan moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Leonard Ayers, retiring president, for the outstanding organization work which she has done in this county for Cancer, and is continuing to do throughout the province as member of the executive of Quebec Division of the Canadian Cancer Society at headquarters in Montreal.

Mrs. Ayers congratulated all members on the untiring service which they have been giving during the past year to the Cancer cause.

Receiving special mention was the work of the Despatch Committee headed by Mrs. Gilbert Ayers, who reported a total of 10,387 dressings sent to cancer patients in Argenteuil, Terrebonne, Montcalm, Joliette, Two Mountains and L'Assomption during the past two months. In March dressings were despatched to 22 cancer patients in the six counties, and to 25 in April. Mrs. Gilbert Ayers thanked Mrs. R. Giles, Mrs. George Leggett and Mrs. Cottingham of her committee, and all other members for assisting so generously.

Dressings are now being prepared by ladies of both Lachute and Brownsburg to stock cupboards for the summer months, when the Despatch Committee will continue to be on the job supplying patients regularly.

Miss Lillian Harrison, R.N., as convener of the Welfare Committee, reported numerous calls on cancer patients in the Argenteuil district.

Education for Cancer is a continuous program and Dr. Suzanne MacKimmie and Mrs. R. Regimbal are arranging a display at the Lachute Fair, where information and booklets will be available to all who are interested.

Changes in the executive are as follows:

Mrs. L. Bedard, co-secretary in place of Mrs. Heggie, and Mrs. S. Blais replaces Mrs. R. Gravel on the Organization Committee. Appreciation was expressed for all the assistance given during the past year by both Mrs. Heggie and Mrs. Gravel.

Ladies' Night At Lions Club

Tuesday evening was the night on which the Lions entertained their wives at a social gathering in the Legion Memorial Hall.

Many guests were present, and were gaily entertained by the orchestra. The spirit of the evening was based on the recent wedding of Grace Kelly, and for the event, the hall itself bore the name "Monaco". All ladies present were supplied with a corsage, and men played the part of Prince Rainier in the various activities.

Generous prizes donated by local stores were awarded to lucky couples during the course of the party. The Club is deeply grateful to these businessmen for having assisted in making the evening a success.

Grenv'l Junior Auxiliary Attends Festival

Grenville — On Saturday last an enjoyable day was spent at the Junior Auxiliary Festival in Montreal. Fourteen girls, accompanied by Mrs. P. R. Stote and Mrs. James Bennett, attended.

The Festival began at 11.30 with a service at Christ Church Cathedral. The address was given by the Rev. Stanley Andrews at a very impressive service, the choir consisting of Juniors from the different churches, followed by the banner bearers — Linda Bennett representing Grenville.

Lunch was served in the new Anglican House, followed by a procession of banner bearers and Juniors, who gave their branch reports. The report for Grenville was given by Vera Young. Action songs were enjoyed by the girls. The honor roll was then called and Vera Young won an honor card for perfect attendance in her branch. Part of the collection was voted to work among the children in the village schools in India and Pakistan.

The Dorcas work sent in was a splendid display — baby layettes, scrapbooks, quilts and stuffed animals, etc. Grenville girls won three prizes — Vera Young, Sheila Reeves and Maureen Wilburn. The prizes were presented by Mrs. R. G. Foster, Diocesan W.A. president.

The meeting closed with the Junior Hymn:

"Jesus make me every day
Kind at home, at work, at play. ."

The Rev. P. Busing, of Waterloo, pronounced the benediction.

By A.A.M.

Who was the prisoner on board ship, tossed by a terrible storm, to whom an angel of the Lord appeared saying, "Do not be afraid. Your life and the lives of all those who sail with you shall be saved, too."?

This man had warned those in charge of this voyage that there would be injury and loss to the cargo and the ship if they set out. But they would not listen to him. They considered the harbour that their ship was in, unsuitable for spending the winter.

After sailing, a tempestuous wind struck their ship and they were violently tossed around. The danger was so great that they began to throw some of the cargo overboard and even some of the tackle of the ship. Neither sun nor moon appeared through the thick clouds for a number of days. All hope of being saved was finally abandoned.

It was then this prisoner spoke up and told his shipmates of his dream. He encouraged them saying, "Take heart, for there will be no loss of life among you, only the ship. We shall have to run on some island. I have faith in God that it will be exactly as I told you." Find the man's name and read about his adventures in Chapter 27 of Acts of the Apostles, verses 1-26.

Do You Know Your Bible?

Often you hear quizzes asking, "Who was Moses' wife?" "What were the names of the twelve apostles?" or similar Bible questions. While these test your knowledge of the Bible story, what do you know about its meaning?

Do you know where it tells why the world faces oppression and inequality, why war clouds are rising and morals sinking, why world troubles are more urgent now than ever before? Do you know how it shows the outcome, and what it says about endless peace and eternal life on a paradise earth? Do you know why it is to this present generation that Jesus' words apply: "As these things start to occur, raise yourselves erect and lift your heads up, because your deliverance is getting near"! — Luke 21: 28.

Do you know how the Bible gives comfort, hope, joy, understanding, how it foretold the exact conditions earth now faces and provides just what the world needs today? Do you know what proves that this book is a reliable life guide? Do you know what wholesome good news it contains, how its principles apply to your life and what it says about the very information that is most needed today? Readers of the Watchtower magazine know these things. This journal gives you not only a knowledge of the Bible story but, even more important, an understanding of its real meaning.

Twenty-four issues of this valuable journal (a one-year subscription) are yours at a cost of only $1. — Write The Watch Tower, 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto 10, Ont., or ask any of Jehovah's Witnesses you might happen to meet.

Another Triumph Puts Brownsburg At Top of League

Brownsburg — A second win by the Brownsburg ball team, 9-2 over Papineauville, leaves them on top of the league.

On Sunday, with Ronald Cousineau pitching and winning his second game, he was less convincing than in the first game, conceding two runs on ten hits, but his control kept him in the driver's seat and he always managed to pitch himself out of trouble.

At bat, Yves Raymond led an 11-hit attack with a triple and two singles, to drive in four runs. Jacques Racine doubled and singled to drive in two and "Zag" hit a lofty triple. Edgar Joly hit two scratch singles and Tomalty, Hazel and Murdoch hit singles.

Probably Brownsburg's victory was secured by the excellent fielding. Almost even on hits, Papineauville just couldn't put enough together at one time to do any damage. Yves Raymond, ineffective behind the plate, moved to the outfield to make three important outs.

Amateur Hockey On National Scale

SPORTS CAMERA
By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nine years ago in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens the final series for Canada's junior hockey championship drew more than 102,000 fans. This year, in the same setting, the series attracted exactly 22,814 customers.

What has caused the decline in what once was Canada's top amateur hockey spectacle? Conn Smythe, managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens, says the poor calibre of teams from the West in recent years has dulled the spectator interest in the East, where the championship is played in alternate years.

This year Toronto Marlboros, after tying their first game with Regina Pats, swept the next four games from the western champions to win the Memorial Cup for the second straight season. A western club hasn't won the title for eight years.

Smythe, lamenting the demise of close competition, has come up with a plan which he thinks might revive the rivalry.

He suggests an offer of $7,000 in outright gifts to competing teams provided the series is played at the Gardens for the next five years, instead of alternating between East and West as at present.

Problem for CAHA

"Maple Leaf Gardens will give the western champions $4,000 and the eastern titleholders $3,000," Smythe said, "if the finals are played in Toronto for the next five years. And we'll take an option on the next five."

Another stipulation in his plan is that the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association take only 10 per cent of the gate receipts. Under present financial arrangements, the CAHA takes all the gate for distribution after the arena rental is paid. The Gardens' rate is 50 per cent so the Smythe plan would leave 40 per cent to be divided among the finalists. The Garden offer of $7,000 would be over and above that.

Smythe figures his offer may get men interested in taking hold of teams in the West and see that the best coaches available are hired.

"They (the West) have got the players," Smythe said. "I'm quite sure it is just the lack of knowledge which is beating them."

Smythe's plan will be presented to the CAHA's annual meeting this summer and probably will get a mixed reception.

For one thing the CAHA, which would lose a good deal under the scheme, would have to find an alternate source of revenue to allow it to carry on its varied activities throughout the Dominion.

And the western teams haven't indicated yet how they would like the idea of playing the final in Toronto each year instead of in their home arenas on alternate years.

While the West took a licking in the junior series this year, it did all right in a couple of others.

Vernon (B.C.) Canadians won the Allan Cup for the senior champions by downing the Chatham (Ont.) Maroons. And the Edinburgh Trophy, for the winner of the professional series between the Western Hockey League and the Quebec Hockey League, was taken by Winnipeg Warriors of the WHL who knocked off the Montreal Royals.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION

Quebec (CP) — Theme of the 1958 Quebec Provincial Exhibition will be the founding of Quebec, it was announced. Quebec City that year will celebrate the 350th anniversary of its founding by Samuel de Champlain.

Leonard in St. Louis Open Golf Tournament, Places in Upper Bracket

Stan Leonard, 40-year-old playing-professional of the Lachute Golf Club, finished 5th in the St. Louis Open last Sunday, to win $1,200. At the midway point of the tournament, Leonard was tied with Dow Finsterwald, who placed first to cop the $5,000 prize.

Last week, Leonard tied for 4th place in the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament, at Fort Worth, Texas, to win $1,700.

Leonard's total for the 72-hole tournament was a 279; the tournament was won with a 274. There was a three-way, 277-stroke tie for second place. Leonard's scores on the 72-par course were 69, 67, 71 and 72.

Minnow Bait Law Is Officially Revoked, But Transport Clause Remains

Quebec — Gérard Lajoie, the president of the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Association annonuced May 7 that, following representations by Federation and other sportsmen of the province, the Department of Fish and Game has decided to revoke the new law concerning the use of minnows as bait. This regulation prohibited fishing with live fish, including minnows, in any territory north of the St. Lawrence and Mille Iles Rivers and north of the St. Lawrence east of Montreal and also forbid possession, selling and transport of such live fish in this territory.

This law was imposed by the Minister following recommendations by Federation, by biologists and sport fishermen, because of the damage done to trout lakes through the use of live fish bait. However, the extension of the minnow ban to all lakes in the district came as a surprise to a great number of fishermen and it is felt that it will be difficult to enforce this law at the moment.

Mr. Lajoie said that the Department of Fish and Game advises that the regulation which prohibits using minnows as bait in waters frequented by Speckled Trout, Grey Trout and Quebec Red Trout, "save when such minnows were taken in these same waters," remains in force. The Federation President added: "The Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations congratulates the Department for taking this wider view and for its prompt action in clearing up a delicate situation."

Montreal Stage Celebrity Guest on "Matinee"

A celebrity of the Montreal theatre world — Jean Gascon — will be Trans-Canada Matinee's "guest of the month" on May 25. A medical graduate before turning to the stage, Gascon studied for five years in Paris and acted under some of the greats of the Paris theatre. Shortly after returning home he had a hand in founding Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, which he now directs. He was also the founder of the dramatic school in Montreal and appears frequently as a CBC actor.

A newcomer to the show is Bruce Webb, the Toronto singer, who will be heard Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for the next few weeks, alternating with pianist Ruth Watson. He began his singing career at 14 in church choirs. "I'd rather sing than do anything else," he says, "and as long as I can make a sound that people want to hear I guess that's what I'll do."

On Tuesday, Doris Dickson of Windsor, Ontario, will report from Point Pelee on Lake Erie, on the run of smelts which attracts fishermen of all kinds for about 10 days each spring. Men, women and children come with pails and bags to scoop up the tiny fish whose numbers appear to increase each year.

Water Safety Program With Marilyn Bell

"The alarming toll taken each year by drownings could be sharply reduced if more people would take a few simple precautions," says Vic Obeck who begins a new series on water safety in his CBC-TV show on Wednesday, May 23. Assisting him in this filmed series will be Canada's best-known swimmer, Marilyn Bell, her coach, Gus Ryder, marathoner Cliff Lumsden, and other members of the Lakeshore Swimming Club in Toronto. The series will be directed particularly to families with growing children and will touch on all aspects of water safety. In the first presentation Vic shows parents how to teach their youngsters to swim.

New Children's Features

Two new radio series for children start May 22 on CBC Trans-Canada. From 5.30-5.45 comes "Time for a Fable" — fables of Aesqp adapted by Sam Roddan; this series continues until September 25. At 5.45 young listeners will hear "The One-Winged Dragon", a serial adaptation by Sally Creighton of a fantasy by Katharine Antony Clark, about a Chinese dragon. Both programs will come from the Vancouver studios.

'Robin Hood' to Continue During Summer Months

Toronto — The top-rated television show "The Adventures of Robin Hood" which has been presented over Canadian Stations since September 1955, will continue during the present summer season, it has been announced.

The action-packed series, featuring film star Richard Greene as Robin Hood and Bernadette O'Farrell as Maid Marian, is expected to widen its juvenile audience during the summer when vacation plus extended daylight hours will increase the viewing time for youngsters. The interest which the show has aroused in adults is evidenced by the fact that they comprise more than 50% of the viewing audience.

When the series was first presented on television over CBMT, Montreal, last September it marked the first time a television series was released for showing in three countries — Canada, Great Britain, and the United States. It has had a tremendous appeal to adults and youths alike in each country.

Filmed in England in the historic Sherwood Forest setting associated with the legend of Robin Hood, "The Adventures of Robin Hood" has depicted in a series of episodes many of the well-known incidents connected with the story. Characters such as Little John, Friar Tuck and the Sheriff of Nottingham have been brought to life and the parts played by experienced actors in a way that has brought realism and continuing excitement to the film presentation.

Television stations across Canada will carry "The Adventures of Robin Hood" during the summer months; the feature is sponsored in Canada by Johnson & Johnson and Wildroot Limited.

LONDON'S NEW TV STATION AT CRYSTAL PALACE

London — The BBC's new London television station at Crystal Palace recently took over service from the Alexandra Palace station which started the world's first high-definition TV in November, 1936.

The new station was brought into operation initially with an aerial on a temporary 250-foot mast and an effective radiated power of 60 kw — about twice the power of the Alexandra Palace station. About July of this year, the effective radiated power will be doubled when the temporary aerial on the permanent tower will be brought into service.

With the advent of the Crystal Palace station, the range of transmission has been considerably widened and TV viewers receive pictures which from the point of view of clarity are said to rank second to none in the world.

Art Exhibition To Display Crafts By Young Pupils

A public exhibition of arts, crafts and modelling by young pupils of Miss Janine Leroux during the season now terminating, will be given May 24-29 at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Foundry Street.

The display, opening at 9 p.m., Thursday, 24th, with a preview and reception for parents and invited guests, will remain open every afternoon and evening until Tuesday, May 29, inclusive. The public are cordially invited to see this work, which will be arranged in the basement of the hall.

Miss Janine Leroux organized these children's courses two years ago in Lachute, and has achieved remarkable results with her classes in a wide range of ages. The study is designed to stimulate observation and manual dexterity, while revealing the possibilities of all sorts of materials for decorative and artistic use. Those who have seen the creative work of her young pupils, agree that the instruction has filled all these purposes, and more.

Visitors to the exhibition will be agreeably impressed, and public interest is solicited in this attraction.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Farmyard Fever

An important medical fact often neglected by animal lovers is that pets and other apparently harmless animals can be a threat to our health, and even our lives. Medical authorities estimate that people can contract as many as 80 diseases from animals or animal products.

One of the commonest and most baffling of these animal-transmitted diseases is undulant fever or brucellosis, often carried by cows.

"There are few diseases so destructive to both men and animals," asserts one medical expert. In the U.S. alone, it has wiped out $87,000,000 worth of dairy products and veal calves in a single year, and afflicted more than 10,000 persons.

In addition, thousands of other brucellosis sufferers probably go undiagnosed annually, medical experts point out, for the disease can mask itself under a variety of symptoms, ranging from a general "run-down" feeling to personality disorders. It can even be confused with such diseases as typhoid fever, tuberculosis and malaria. Characteristically, the disease causes waves of fever which rise and fall over a period of months, and may prove fatal to its victims.

Now proving effective in treating brucellosis—particularly in its acute phase—is the antibiotic drug Terramycin. Administered to patients in an investigation carried out in Guadajajara, Mexico, the drug produced prompt improvement in all the acutely ill patients, restoring their temperatures to normal within two to four days after treatment.

Brucellosis can only be routed once and for all, however, medical experts assert, by wiping it out in animals. To achieve this goal, a concerted drive is now being launched in various parts of the world. In the U.S., rigid measures by veteçinarians and public health officials have already resulted in a decline in the number of cases reported in recent years. With persistent effort, the day may soon come when brucellosis is one of those rarities that only a handful of oldtimers can remember.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

In my years of travel and lecturing in all parts of the country I have come to regard the contents of the average car owner's luggage compartment with considerable amazement — and in many cases with downright awe.

1. Two jacks — only one of which works.
2. Any number of lug wrenches — with maybe one the right size for tire changing.
3. At least two worn out, useless engine parts, one oddly shaped metal bar defying description, six broken chain links.
4. An old plebe of carpet or rug, once used to protect the clothes but now grease-caked and threadbare.
5. A collection of oil stained (and hazardous) newspapers, magazines and rags.
6. A broken thermos jug.
7. A flat spare tire.
8. A towrope hopelessly short and weak.
9. Miscellaneous tools rattling around without a case.
10. A pair of gloves, unfit to be worn.

Take a look at your luggage compartment now — and be honest.

Completely enclosed in an ocean green casing, it fits snugly into a corner, does not detract from basement furnishings. Gets the last possible bit of heat out of your fuel and almost never needs attention. Automatically it humidifies the air. The Panama is precision manufactured by Smart's, makers of heating equipment for over a century, so it ought to be good. But examine it yourself at your local Smart's dealer, now.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Oli Daum, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The working girl never had it so good. With modern science working overtime for her she can look as stunning as a fairy-tale princess with little effort on her part.

Remember when grandmother — even mother — used to work for weeks and sometimes months to knit a bewitching dress? Today you can knit a dress in seven hours. No need to worry about what to wear for that last-minute date.

Designers have invented a revolutionary home-knitting machine which knits with the speed of 201 needles. Results are not only fast but beautiful. Best of all time and tedium are banished.

Mother may say she knits not so much to get a dress as to have something to pass the time. But what busy career girl has time?

On the new, 19-pound machine knitting more than 6,000 stitches or 30 rows a minute is just cruising speed for an untrained knitter, they say. With less effort than is required to knit a single stitch with two needles, the machine can complete a yard-long length of boucle in half an hour.

So, if you want to wear a knitted coat in the evening, start after breakfast — on your day off, of course — and you'll have it before dinner in seven hours.

Prefer an angora stole? Three hours of an afternoon are all it will take. How about a cocktail gown, mid-calf length of organdy ribbon? It would take 500 hours to knit on two needles but just seven hours on the machine.

For a new dress or suit for a youngster, two hours are ample.

The variety of patterns and the kinds of yarn that can be used are virtually unlimited. The machine lends itself to straw, organdy ribbon, or novelty yarns as well as it does to wool.

Now that a snub-nosed brunette with a dazzling smile as filed entry in the 17th annual women's international air race May 16, the other 13 women pilots can stop chewing their nails.

Until Toronto's Audrey Stonehouse entered the 1,526-mile race from Hamilton to Havana, Cuba, there were 13 competitors. The superstitious ones were reported biting their nails awaiting another entry.

Mrs. Eyleen Smith, 41, of Bloomfield, Ont., has to keep digging for work. Since becoming a widow four years ago she's been a gravedigger at two cemeteries. She says she digs eight or nine graves a year and usually sings hymns while working.

Robena Robinson, a Fredericton, N.B., biology technician, says she's "just crazy" about shooting. She should be — she does it well. In the Fredericton armory's spoon shoots recently she racked up 95 of a possible 100, edging out an army sergeant. He had the same score but his shots were not as well placed in the target.

A New Pudding and A Memorable Sauce

"Coffee and dessert" — happy words, whether they follow a good dinner or introduce you to a late-evening snack.

Here is a new pudding, and a recipe for chocolate sauce which you will prize — inexpensive, easy to make and unbelievably good. It is excellent with Barbados Pudding, but you will find it perfect for ice cream too:

Barbados Pudding

3 Cups of milk, 1 cup strong coffee, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs (slightly beaten), ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon rum flavoring, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, nutmeg.

Combine milk and coffee; bring to scalding point; pour over bread crumbs. Combine eggs, sugar and salt. Add bread mixture slowly to egg mixture. Add rum flavoring and melted butter or margarine. Pour into custard cups. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Set custard cups in pan of warm water. Bake in moderate oven, 325°F., 1 hour, or until inserted knife comes out clean. Cool, then chill. Serve with Chocolate Sauce. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Chocolate Sauce

2 Squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 small can evaporated milk.

Melt chocolate over hot water; stir in sugar. Stir in butter or margarine. Add evaporated milk slowly. Cook over hot water, stirring occasionally, until thickened. Serve hot. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

FOOD TEMPERATURE, PICNIC LUNCHES

Keep perishable foods hot or cold on a picnic, never lukewarm, if you would avoid the risk of food poisoning.

Poultry Products Institute repeats its popular suggestion for an easy, inexpensive way to keep picnic foods cool for several hours.

Freeze unopened cans of tomato or fruit juices in freezing compartment of mechanical refrigerator. Wrap frozen cans in waxed paper, plastic or foil wrap to keep moisture which condenses on cold cans from wetting food packed around them. Arrange chilled perishable foods (sandwiches, cold fried chicken, hard cooked eggs) around cans in food hamper, basket or carton. Use several layers of newspapers to insulate a carton or open basket. Be sure to cover with paper too if no lid is available.

Juice will take, usually, three to four hours to thaw and then may be used as a refreshingly cool beverage.

One further note of warning, never leave picnic food in a hot car or in the sun unprotected Place in the shade or cover with newspapers or a motor rug to protect from the heat.

Spring Painting Tip

Masking tape comes in handy when painting around glass. To prevent any paint from getting on windows when painting the sashes or on panes of cabinet doors, use masking tape around the edges of the glass, paint freely and strip off the tape when the paint is dry.

BAGGAGE CAR IS FAN HEADQUARTERS

—Central Press Canadian

Model railroad fans of North Bay, Ont., have added a touch of authenticity to their railway building by setting up an abandoned baggage car as their headquarters. There the 28 model enthusiasts —five of them employees of the CNR or CPR—have set up a miniature rail system complete with miles of wiring, yards of tracks and mountain landscaping. Here George Thompson, secretary-treasurer of the club, sets the cars in motion for the benefit of Susan Nelson.

SANDWICH SUGGESTIONS FOR PARTY OR PICNIC

Chicken or turkey sandwiches are extremely versatile, appearing at the fanciest party or most casual picnic. Next time you are planning for either, Poultry Products Institute suggests you try some of the combinations listed below:

Finely chopped cooked chicken or turkey mixed with salad dressing or mayonnaise and one or more of the following:

— Chopped cashews or toasted blanched almonds.

— Crushed, drained pineapple or cut drained grapefruit sections.

— Halved seeded Malaga grapes or cubed banana dipped in lemon juice.

— Diced apple or pitted black sweet cherries.

Disappearance of The Hired Girl

War always brings many changes in our accustomed ways of life and habits. One very noticeable one was the disappearance of the "hired girl" in many homes who left domestic life to work in munition plants where wages were considerably more remunerative and hours of work shorter. In many cases it was the passing of the hired girl era as few returned to domestic service, other than via becoming married.

Many can remember with mingled feelings the hired girl of your childhood. She usually came from the country, or she might be an immigrant "just over". With luck she might happen to be a vigorous Scottish girl, red cheeked and black haired, who wielded a mighty broom and rolling pin.

Seven days a week she was on the job, doing the washing and ironing, the cleaning, the cooking, and the dishwashing. Happy the household whose hired girl baked marvellous Swedish coffee cake or a deepish blueberry pie.

Unless she had a steady beau, she doubled as a baby sitter in the evenings, and her young clients found that Rosie or Hilda or Amanda could tell wonderful bedtime stories. At the end of seven 12-hour days she would receive gratefully her week's wages — all of three dollars, or maybe four.

The really sad angle of the "hired girl" era was the fact that just as she became indispensable, she would get married so that she could work 12 hours a day for nothing.

Budgie Birds

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"A budgie may make a fine family pet — but before we buy one we would like to know more about these little birds!" Mrs. Clark told her neighbor.

"That shouldn't be difficult! Just set your youngsters to work to discover all they can about budgies!" the neighbor answered. Here are some of the facts about budgies the Clarks collected.

"Budgie" or Budgerigar is derived from "betcherrygar" which in the native Australian dialect means "pretty bird." Budgie belong to the parrot family. They are also called shell parrakeets or grass parrakeets. In their wild state, they like to live in companies. Wild budgies warble notes in a sort of song, quite different from the coarse, loud screech of the parrot tribe. They are much smaller than the grey parrots of South America or the green parrots of Africa.

Budgies are found in South America, Africa, India, Ceylon, and China and Australia. Australia is the chief source of budgies. They live in the saltbush flats of Australia and subsist mainly on grass seeds, often flying long distances in search for food.

Exporters of budgies in Australia obtain their supply of birds by trapping full grown birds. The adult budgies are caught in whole companies when migrating to new feeding grounds of grass seeds.

The wild Australian budgie is light green with a yellowish tinge, with black shell-like markings on the wings. Blue Budgies are the product of cross breeding. They come from green budgies with the yellow pigment missing. The blue budgies created quite a sensation in the bird fanciers' world in 1910 when they first appeared in France.

The sex of a grown budgie is easily told by the color of the small fleshy part, called the wattle, over the beak in which the nostils are situated. In the cock birds this is a bluish green; in the hens it ranges from light brown to a dark brown.

The wild budgie hen lays three or four eggs in a tree hollow. Hen birds, during the breeding season may be quarrelsome, otherwise budgies are usually friendly and sociable. These birds need fresh water each day. They bathe occasionally. Budgies like a shower bath but they are not as fond of tub baths as canaries.

Some budgies are just naturally more "fluent" than others, but there are several letters of the alphabet which most budgies find easy to say — P, T and N seem to be easy sounds for the budgie to learn. M, N, and L are hard sounds to master. Young cock birds are the best speech students. It is easier to teach a single budgie to talk than a pair.

The right kind of "home" for a budgie is important. A chromium plated cage is much better than an enamel one, because this bird will quickly chip the enamel paint with his pecking. The cage and perches should be kept clean. The budgie should have a night cover of dark material for his cage with an opening in it so that he will get enough air. He should not be placed in the direct sunshine or in a draft.

Budgies need a balanced diet to be healthy. Regular budgie seed mixture should not be confused with canary food. The empty seed hulls should be cleaned out each day. Budgies like fresh greens, especially lettuce, celery greens, dandelions and spinach. Pieces of raw apple are a treat, and so are orange or fig tid-bits.

Even a fairly large cage does not provide the budgie with any real chance to stretch his wings. If the door of the cage is left open in one room such as the kitchen (and the room doors shut), the budgie, in time, will come out. Immediately he will try to "fly up" and so he should have two or three perching spots provided high in the room. If left alone he will likely find his way back to the cage. If he must be caught, do this gently.

A pet which is loved and faithfully cared for enriches family life. Saint Francis thanked God for "our little brothers — the birds." A budgie with his affectionate nature and charming ways, becomes almost a member of a family!

Turcotte, County Health Officer. Dr. Turcotte gave a very interesting talk on the Salk vaccine and children's diseases, and afterwards answered questions put to him by the members. After the meeting was adjourned the members enjoyed light refreshments served by Mrs. Wilfred Morrison and her committee. There were 15 members present and two guests.

Many plants resent transplanting and as a result many wilt and die when set outdoors. Observance of a few safety tips will help to prevent such losses.

A cool, cloudy day is the best kind of a day to set out seedlings in their permanent location outdoors.

If the weather is hot a portion of the foliage of each plant should be cut away at transplanting time, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This helps to reduce the danger of wilting, especially of cabbage and celery plants.

Set seedling plants slightly deeper than they stood in the flat. If the soil is at all dry, set each plant in the prepared hole, fill part way with soil and then water thoroughly. Allow the water to soak into the soil, then finish filling around the plant with drier soil and firm well.

Shade for the young plant on its first day outdoors is important. Newspapers can be used to form tents over the newly set-out plants, as shown in the Garden-Graph

Each day after the sun goes down the coverings over the plants should be removed so that the plants will get the benefit of rain or dew during the night.

Que. Home-School Buzzell Award to Dr. W. P. Percival

Montreal, May 8 — Parents have an important role in encouraging young people to take up teaching careers, it was agreed by delegates at the 12th annual provincial conference of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations, held at McGill University on May 4-5.

Professors David Munroe and H. D. Woods of McGill University led the main discussion on this subject, supported by a panel of teachers. Opinions ran particularly strong on the question of salaries, currently a contentious issue between the Montreal Protestant School Board and the teachers.

"The teaching profession should be placed at the top of all professions", declared Mrs. Ernest Evans, of Victoria, B.C., national president of the Home and School organization, in addressing over 400 delegates from 156 associations at the closing dinner in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal. On this occasion, the Buzzell Award for outstanding contribution to the Home and School movement was presented to Dr. Walter P. Percival by the donor, Leslie N. Buzzell. Dr. Percival retired recently from the post of Director of Protestant Education for the province.

Douglas Walkington, of Hudson, Que., presided at the general sessions of the conference, which dealt with a wide variety of topics including the school curriculum, methods of teaching reading, mental and physical health programs, films and television for children, and traffic safety measures.

Lloyd MacKeen, principal of Magog High School, moved a resolution that the Provincial Government be urged "to take immediate steps to increase the number of Social Welfare Courts and extend the work of the Courts by obtaining the services of trained social workers." The resolution was seconded by Clifford Moore, principal of Buckingham High School, and was approved after a full discussion.

BECAME TEACHER BY ONE DAY

—Central Press Canadian

Examination of the ages of school teachers in Ontario proves that Brenda Vela, left, is the youngest in the province. She turned 17 last Aug. 31, and according to the rules of the department of education, she would have been ineligible to teach if her birthday had been on Sept. 1. Two-thirds of the staff of the Simcoe school where she teaches are 17-year-olds. Their classes range from eight to 12 years. With Brenda is Verla Johnson, principal of the school.

The Magic of Spring

By G. E. Mortimore,
Our "All Aboard" Columnist

The mountains are printed on a blue sky. Robins pull worms from the new grass. The air smells of green things.

* * *

People emerge from shops and houses to be carried away in a sweet current of life.

A power which is older than the mountains and as new as a bud drives through every creature. It sends old gardeners planting seeds and young birds digging them up.

* * *

It rolls down convertible tops; brings out summer dresses, to the delight of every man under 95; sets in motion dusty golf clubs, lawn sprinklers and polishing cloths.

The spring makes grumpy folk say "Hello" to acquaintances they have been ignoring all winter. Millions of people see the world as though for the first time.

The green torrent of sun and flowers and bird-song carries them all from the stale backwaters of gloom and self-pity toward the ocean of summer.

CRICKET ANYONE?

Fishermen who begrudge the effort involved in catching live crickets for bait can buy a quart of them, by mail, from a Georgia cricket farm.

We learn that it takes fifteen days for cricket eggs to hatch, eight weeks for the insects to grow to bait size. We note, too, that the brooders where they laze about in 85° temperature, lapping up chicken mash, are made of aluminum. But we confess we're not too surprised. It simply means that this busy metal has found still another use in the busy housing industry — this time providing clean, warm, pleasant quarters for aristocratic crickets. You see aluminum everywhere these days!

THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1956

The Election

THE provincial election, now announced for June 20, together with the political campaigning which will precede it, should provide an occasion for a sober accounting of the affairs of Quebec. The province is prosperous, even more prosperous than it was four years ago when the last voting took place. No great issues appear to divide the National Union and the Liberal parties. No principles are at stake.

The question to be decided by the electorate is simply whether the Duplessis Government has administered its affairs soundly, thriftily and progressively, or whether Quebec's progress would be better served by electing Mr. Lapalme and his followers.

In these circumstances heed should be paid to Mr. Duplessis's suggestion that federal political parties should stand aloof. Four years ago, when Ottawa and Quebec were at loggerheads over fiscal policy, it was perhaps irresistible for federal Liberals to take part in the campaign. The improvement in the relationship between the provincial and federal Government has now become so marked, however, that the reason, or, if you like, the pretext, for intervention has been removed.

In 1956, if Mr. Lapalme cannot stand on his own feet, he does not deserve to win. His task is to convince the voters that, in all matters of strictly provincial concern, he can do better than Mr. Duplessis. He will not make much headway by leaning on outside support in his campaigning.

This may be a counsel of perfection. Election campaigns are seldom completely rational affairs. Emotion and rhetoric both play their part. It is seldom indeed that any public man emerges from the ordeal without having said things in the heat of controversy which it would have been better to have left unsaid. But the voters, in the long run, prefer the man with a sense of responsibility, and this should not be forgotten.

"The province is prosperous, even more prosperous than it was four years ago when the last voting took place.

Quebec has the leader... DUPLESSIS.

County's Pioneer Militia Regiment

Major S.E. Smith, Ex-Militiaman, Now 95, Recalls Prince of Wales' Visit of Inspection

A suggestion has been made by interested descendants that the centennial anniversary of the formation of the Argenteuil Rangers should be in some way commemorated, in March 1962. The Watchman will publish under this title any records or viewpoints pertaining to the subject.

(Contributed by Col. V. H. Jekyll)

Last week, in consequence of your publication of Major Hoy's letter on the Argenteuil Rangers, I received a letter from Samuel Edmund Smith, that interested me so much I determined to visit him. I found him a man of great stature and, despite his 95 years, still as straight as any officer in the Rangers could hope to be. He believes that he and Captain Kerr are the only two officers of the Argenteuil Rangers still alive.

Major Smith's interest in the 11th Regiment was inspired by James Smith his father, who appears to have been one of the original founders of this unit. The Militia Lists of those days, available in Ottawa in the National Defence Library, record that James Smith was gazetted Captain in charge of Number Two Company on the 12th of October, 1866, and that his son, Samuel Edmund, was appointed to the same Company in 1887 as a Lieutenant, rising to his Majority in 1906. . . Major Smith explained that he and his father could never turn out together as one or the other had to remain to tend the farm.

Major S. E. Smith's service exemplifies the family tradition that is so characteristic of the perpetuation of Argenteuil's early military life. From its organization it would seem that the McKnight family supplied all three officers for Number Three Company until Isaac, William and Henry Jekyll arrived together one day, years later, with authority to take over.

Major Smith's interest in the Argenteuil Rangers, like so many militia men of the time, accumulated through sacrifice, personal discomfort, and scant recognition, and it still remains keen and fresh today. He mentioned the Prince of Wales' inspection of the Rangers at Carillon and what effort was involved in assembling men from such scattered settlements despite such limitations as there were for transportation. He described the arrival at Carillon, after considerable delay, of the Prince of Wales on a ferry boat of that name.

He also spoke of the Queen's Colors that were presented to the Regiment. He displayed some apprehension about their preservation. He said that Major Massiah had had both the Regimental Colors, described in Major Moy's letter, and the Queen's Colors renovated and turned over to St. Simeon's Church for safekeeping. With the disbandment of the Rangers, and the building of a new church, the Colors seem to have fallen into disregard and were last seen in a corner of the cloak-room of the church. He feels that as symbols of the courage and glory that once marked the military life of the County, these Colors deserve a better fate.

On-the-Spot Appraisal Of A Political Refugee

By David Spurgeon
Staff Reporter,
Toronto Globe and Mail

(Mr. Spurgeon recently returned to Canada from a four months special assignment in the Middle East.)

What does it mean to be a refugee?

I have just returned from the Middle East, where 900,000 Arabs — victims of the Arab-Israeli war of 1948 — are classed as refugees. Perhaps I can tell you a little of what it means, because for weeks I lived next door to a refugee camp.

It means being without a real home, without a job. It means living in tents or in mud huts, with only the bare essentials for survival. It means owning one makeshift suit of clothes, a benzine burner for a stove, an earthenware jug for water.

It means huddling round a tiny open fire for warmth in the winter, stifling in the heat of the glaring desert sun in the summer, building stone walls to keep the rain out of your tent.

It means living almost without hope, in the knowledge that tomorrow will almost certainly be just like today, when today is bleak, dismal, and frustrating.

Being a refugee means seeing your children born into a world of squalor, an overcrowded, cheerless, bitter world.

I saw the men of the camp sitting in circles on the desert, talking because there was nothing to do but talk. I saw the women fetching water from the well, walking in bare feet on the stone-cold ground. I walked through the camps and saw how they lived. And I know there is nothing so real as their destitution.

But fortunately I saw more than this pitiful reality. For I saw the work of organizations — of which CARE is one — which are bringing a gleam of hope into the refugees' darkness. Without the kind of help that CARE and the others give, even this gleam would be extinguished.

There are 900,000 destitute Arab refugees in the Middle East. But there are 5,000,000 refugees of all nations in the free world. The lives of these hapless people are more wretched than most of us, who live in Canada, can conceive. But without organizations like CARE, they would be unbearable. Without them, indeed, most of these people would die.

Some day these refugees will find their lives have begun again. They do not ask for charity, but they do need the means of survival provided until they are free to provide for themselves. They need to know that someone cares about their condition, that they are not forgotten.

That is what CARE helps to provide. CARE is worthy of our support.

Community Resources for Civil Defence

(Twelfth in a Series of 24 Articles)

What can a small town, with its small population and limited resources, do to defend itself and help defend the rest of the country against disaster, nuclear or natural? The answer is "quite a bit."

Federal civil defence planners, whose job it is to work out and guide into the operational stage a disaster plan for the whole country, say that a small town or community needs an executive committee composed of the reeve and two or three responsible officials to lay down policy, a director and a small planning committee.

These committees are made up of the people who head the various services such as welfare, health, police, fire, communications and others whose knowledge makes them valuable to civil defence planning.

Since the role of most small towns and villages would be as reception areas for evacuees from cities, their plans should be worked out with this role in mind. The women's organizations in the churches, for example, should be trained and ready to provide food for large numbers of refugees from a city hit by an H-bomb. This same preparedness, of course, could be applied to feeding large numbers of persons made homeless suddenly by a flood or a tornado or a landslide such as the one last fall that carried parts of Nicolet, Que., into the river.

The welfare of people includes providing them with a place to sleep. A small town's plan should include a survey of the sleeping space available, remembering that in an emergency people can sleep in barns, lofts and garages as well as the guest room.

A small town's civil defence plan, therefore, might require stockpiling at a central point such welfare essentials as blankets, and foods, particularly dry-powdered milk and canned goods.

While few small towns would have to worry about actually being hit by an H-bomb if war came, many would be effected by the dangerous radioactive fall-out from the bomb's blast. So the welfare planning could prove a boon to the small town's own inhabitants. For fall-out can contaminate fresh vegetables, milk, eggs and so on. Food in cans, however, is safe.

Ordinary buildings provide a degree of protection from fall-out. Basements are better and root cellars even safer. So a C.D. plan for a small town should include a survey of the fall-out shelter available, for its own residents as well as possible visitors from less fortunate areas.

Because of the danger from fall-out, a small town's C.D. plan should also include a trained monitoring service; that is, persons with the necessary equipment for detecting the degree of danger from fall-out. This requires training and civil defence can provide that training.

The small town C.D. plan should also include a communications system. It must provide a means of warning the farmers around the town.

Since to achieve maximum results the country's civil defence organization must extend to every community, no matter how small, it is being set up, in provinces like Ontario, on an area basis, each area embracing a number of towns and communities that can help each other.

But each town must still have its local director to co-ordinate its efforts with those of the rest of the area.

In 1955 the number of automotive vehicles entering Canada from the U.S. totalled 15,868,200, of which 7,139,000 were Canadian vehicles returning to this country.

Business Man's Paradise at Rotary Trout Derby Saturday, Mobile Phone, Walkie Talkie

Doug Smith, Sports Commentator, And Television Camera Crew

Most of the final details in organizing the Rotary Trout Derby to be held this Saturday, May 26, at the private lakes owned by A. D. McGibbon & Sons, were finalized at last week's meeting of the Rotary Club.

It was announced that the Bell Telephone Company was providing a mobile telephone service, which would permit anyone attending the derby to communicate with any outside point. At the same time the 131st Battery of the 37th Field Regiment, R.C.A., is providing walkie-talkie equipment which will be set up at each lake. The combination of these two services should make it possible for anyone at outside points to get in touch with those attending the derby, and should any of the fishermen wish to send a message out, the facilities will be there. This should be of particular value in the event of an emergency. The walkie-talkie equipment will be operated by Cadets of the local Company of Highland Cadets.

With Television Coverage!

It was learned Wednesday by phone call from Doug Smith, sports commentator and producer of the Dow Brewery sports television show, that he and a camera crew will be in attendance at the Trout Derby to take moving pictures and hold interviews with the fishermen and officials. The Rotary Swimming Pool and Playground near Brownsburg will also be filmed. It is Mr. Smith's intention to use these pictures on one of his television programs in the near future. Mr. Smith added that he and his party would come to Lachute on Thursday night in order to be at the gate for the opening of the Trout Derby on Saturday at 5 a.m.

It is also reported that the Canadian International Paper Company is providing fire-fighting equipment for the day. While "No Smoking" and "No Fires" will be the rule, every possible precaution is being taken. Provincial Game Wardens will be on hand and special officers to see that all laws are strictly observed. Fishing licenses may be obtained at the gate.

Plans have also been made for Bob Atchison, an expert fly fisherman, to attend this derby under auspices of The Sports Centre in Lachute. Bob is to be at Round Lake from 12.30 to 2 p.m. to give a demonstration in the art of fly fishing and at the same time to instruct any who may be interested in learning or improving this most thrilling of all types of fishing. Bob's fame is known far and wide, and it is expected there will be many gathered to see this professional in action.

Controversial Pipeline Bill Debated; New House Design Movement Formed

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

By Roy LaBerge, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 21 (CP) —A powerful Parliamentary weapon—closure—was used last week for the first time since 1932 to cut off debate on the government's bill for a huge treasury loan for the cross Canada natural gas pipeline. It will be used again.

The opposition made two moves last Thursday which, in absence of further government closure, could stall passage of the bill beyond June 7. If an $80,000,000 loan to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. — which the bill would provide is not approved by that date, the company is released from its undertaking to complete the pipeline from Alberta gas fields to Winnipeg by December 31.

Also included in the bill is a proposal to set up a crown company, with federal and Ontario government financing, to build the $118,000,000 northern Ontario section of the $375,000,000 line and lease it to Trans-Canada.

Opposition Moves

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) moved to sidetrack the bill to a committee. CCF leader M. J. Coldwell added a rider that the committee consider public ownership of the entire 2,200 mile line.

Both motions — amendments to the government motion that the bill's principle be approved on second reading vote — opened the way to a possible extra two full rounds of debate on the legislation.

Trade Minister Howe said last week the government had decided to use closure only if there was evidence of obstruction. It was used after the opposition had forced five votes on procedural points. Its use choked off preliminary debate in two days.

Mr. Howe replied to opposition criticism that the company was dominated by American interests by saying the line will be under Canadian control because it would be on Canadian territory, under Canadian law and subject to regulations by both the provinces and the federal Board of Transport Commissioners.

Prime Minister St. Laurent just about ruled out the possibility of any federal election this year, to which he has been challenged during the pipeline debate. He said that new tax sharing arrangements with the provinces "must necessarily be dealt with "before an election, and that an election would make "quite impossible" the government's plan for a start this year on the pipeline.

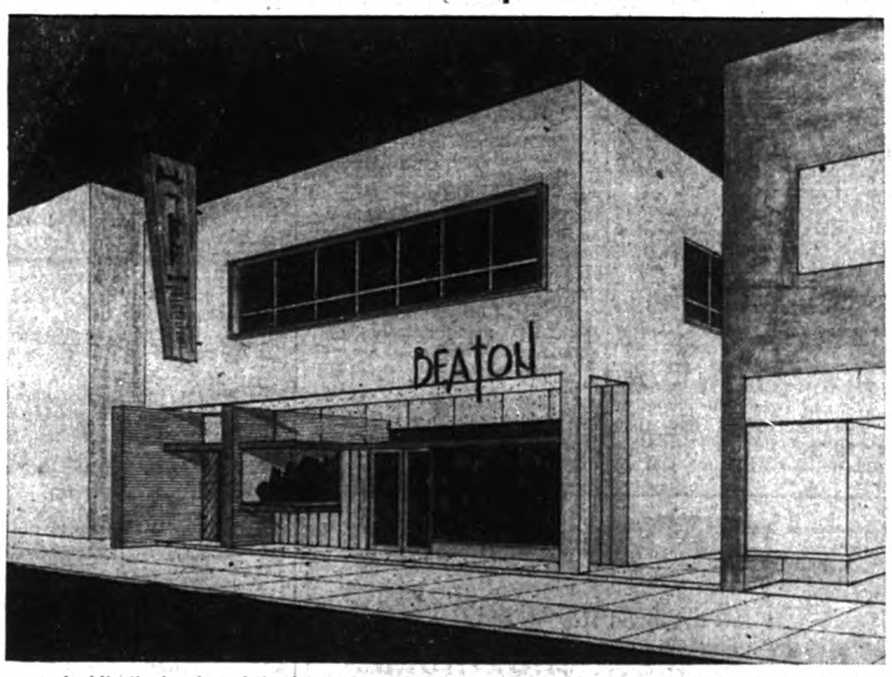

Ask Freight Rate Boost

Opposition was shaping up last week to a railway request for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates to meet wage boosts of approximately $60,000,000 a year to 150,000 non-operating rail employees.

President H. H. Hannam of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture said in a statement that farmers would be hard hit by the increase for which the railways have applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Council Considers Continuing Present Dumpsite Under Supervision and Sanitary Management

Promising Move Towards Improvement in Problem of Property Evaluation

Possibility of leaving the town garbage dump at its present location, but covering the refuse instead of burning it, was aired at a special session of Council held last Wednesday evening, at which time the evaluation problem was also discussed. Aldermen Dr. Roger Lavigne, J. H. Mallette and Judes E. Charlebois were absent.

Ald. Romain Desjardins stated that the committee had seen the proposed new dumpsite, and that facilities to establish a road, and space to fill for years to come, were quite evident, but he added that due to the Chatham Council withholding their consent, provincial health and hygiene rules would have to be followed to the very letter.

Ald. Desjardins then suggested that "we continue at the present site, stop burning, properly clean up the grounds and cover the garbage, and there will be few complaints." The majority of the Council reacted favorably to the suggestion, which would require that a man be employed at the site during the day, and the fence be locked at night.

It was suggested that a by-law to regulate the dump and allow the Council to impose fines on persons not complying with the rules, would be in order, but on a suggestion from Ald. Ross R. Muir, it was decided to let this go for the present, clean up the site immediately, and get an estimate for covering the present dump, for the next meeting (June 6) — at which time a decision would be made."

Property Evaluation

Secretary-Treasurer Jacques Poitras reported he had received replies from two companies who specialized in municipal evaluation, in response to the four companies he had contacted. Answering the request and giving general information were the firms of Begin - Charland & Valiquette, who did not give a price but in 1952 quoted a figure of $17,500, also Rosaire Frigon, who set the price at $14,000 for 3,000 properties, payable in instalments. The latter company also gave an alternative price of $5,000 to have one man supervise the work and assist the local valuators. Ald. H. S. Church stated he thought this would be a good idea and at the same time get new blood and train them for this job.

Ald. Mozart Carrière indicated that "we could hire an ordinary engineer who would do a good job but would cost much less than the figure mentioned." On a suggestion that Council base their evaluation on the numerous transactions of buildings and properties that have taken place during the past year, Ald. Carrière stated he felt that considerable more information than this was needed; and Mayor Dr. FitzGerald added that Main Street values are based on the property not on the buildings erected thereon.

Ald. Alcidas Laurin presented a proposed plan and chart for evaluating various classes of houses. It was pointed out that the chart would only help to the extent of giving the men something to go by; they would still have to use their own judgment in classifying the houses. It was suggested that this plan be used, with consideration also for current selling prices.

It was pointed out that the valuators are appointed, they go and do the job, and the Council has no say in the matter until the roll is presented — then they can adjust the roll, accept or refuse it as they see fit.

Ald. Mozart Carrière suggested that Council look into the system used in Ayersville and on a motion by Ald. E. O. Pollock, seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins, the meeting was adjourned for five minutes to contact Paul Lalliberté, industrial engineer, who supervised the work in that municipality.

Mr. Lalliberté stated that in Ayersville, men went from house to house obtaining all necessary information as to size, structure, construction, heating, inside flooring and covering, etc. They obtained the selling prices, took the present replacement value and rent obtained, also the value of the land. On the former, they figured out a theoretical price on the building. The valuators then went around and, with the information they had, along with the theoretical price, worked out a proper valuation on the property.

Mr. Lalliberté stated that he established the rates and gathered some of the information, acting as a clerk, also setting the price per square foot. Rates in Ayersville started at 75 cents per square foot, with so much additional for extras and more modern conveniences. On questioning, Mr. Lalliberté stated that if he took the Lachute job, he would be in a position to start immediately, and that he would want a committee to set the basic rates for him to work with.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned and a caucus was held to further investigate Mr. Lalliberté's suggestions.

Dr. M. Papineau Re-elected Head Of Charities Fedn.

Fourteen of the 28 members of Federation of Charities executive attended a recent meeting at which officers were elected for the ensuing year.

Dr. Marc Papineau was unanimously re-elected as president. He thanked the members for the confidence they had placed in him, but at the same time declined the honor. Finally, with pressure exerted and a promise that one of the vice-presidents would take over any time he was unable to carry out his duties, Dr. Papineau agreed to head the Federation for another year.

Vice-presidents elected were Louis-Joseph Dumais, Thomas Ayers and Roland Grenier, one representative from each parish of Greater Lachute. Notary Richard Valois remains in the position of secretary and the elected chairmen of the budget and publicity committees are Robert Marcil and Fernand Berthiaume, respectively. The treasurer will be chosen at next meeting, as will the chairman of the campaign committee.

In looking over the past year's activities, Dr. Papineau pointed out that the Federation supported five charities by contract, and one without, also without guarantee for the future. Two of these charities benefitted from extra grants from the Federation after proving their need for additional funds.

It was suggested that, prior to the next campaign, the existing member organizations present a complete financial report; that a permanent campaign committee be set up; that the Federation encourage and aid new charities, encourage and regulate other charities, study the possibilities of a public relations committee, and finally, study the possibilities of having a chaplain or representative of the Bishop.

In closing, Dr. Papineau thanked all members of the executive committee, the administration committee, and all those who in any manner had aided in the last year's campaign.

Mr. Duhamel will contest the election with the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines and the official Union Nationale candidate, also Bernard Gosselin, the Liberal choice for the election.

Home and School B'burg Group Ends Successful Season

Members Appreciate Informative Talk On First Aid

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The last meeting of the Home and School Association for the current season was a resounding success as over 50 were present to hear Mr. F. Gervais, the president, look over the year in retrospect and hear a very enlightening lecture on First Aid, from an expert.

The business part of the meeting was brief, and after its completion, Mr. Gervais thanked the parents, first of all for having enough confidence in him to ask him to be president, and also for the wonderful response they had made to his call for help. He recalled how at the inaugural meeting he had referred to the miserable attendances of about 20 last season, and pointed out that the organization was on its last legs. He was pleased to report that this year's average attendance was close to 100.

Mr. Gervais said that financially the organization had just about broken even, but added that in a Home and School organization, making money was only of secondary importance. The aims of Home and School can be boiled down to three: child welfare, parent education, and the amelioration of home and school relations. The group had striven to make these its primary objectives.

Two teen age parties were organized this year, both of which were "financial flops" but were enjoyed by the teen-agers. The success of these was helped immeasurably by the generosity of J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, who donated "Cokes", and Mrs. Hazel's group, who prepared the lunches.

Other people who were outstandingly deserving of thanks, Mr. Gervais noted, were — Mrs. Connelly, who had followed up Mr. E. Lang's pennant suggestion and undoubtedly increased the attendances; Mr. P. Villard, for enrolling a record 102 memberships; and Mrs. Clark, for serving refeshments at the meetings.

The president then called on Mr. Sugden to conduct the election of officers for the 1956-57 season. Mr. Sugden had little difficulty with the elections, all of his committee's nominations being endorsed by the gathering. They were as follows:

Advisory Committeeman, King Amos.

Home Study, Miss E. Hanson.

Membership, P. Villard.

Social convener, Mrs. A. Silverson.

Mr. Geo. Y. Deacon of Lachute was pleased to inform the hall that at a meeting of the Protestant School Board that afternoon Brownsburg Consolidated School had been elevated to the status of "High School."

Mr. Gervais, reinstated in the chair for another year, thanked the audience for their vote of confidence, assured them of renewed vigor, and introduced the guest speaker — Mr. Desir, of the St. John's Ambulance Corps.

First Aid Topic

Mr. Desir gave weight to his plea for people to learn first aid by pointing out that 83% of casualties originate in the home and most of them become serious because of neglect or badly applied first aid.

The hazard spots at home can create a need for first aid: your own "bathroom drugstore" contains poisons which could be taken internally by mistake; oil-burners; gas cookers; motor running in closed garage. The main points in first aid are: know what's wrong; know what to do; know how to do it.

Too often, when a person is in difficulties in the water, there are plenty of willing helpers but few or none who know what to do, or how to apply artificial respiration. The same situation exists when a person is gassed or overcome by fumes or smoke, or has received a severe electric shock.

The lungs are the "laundry" of the bloodstream and these must operate to maintain a supply of clean blood, without which the body will become poisoned within seconds. Therefore, if a person stops breathing, artificial respiration must be administered immediately, to be worthwhile. In the case where a person became unconscious before the breathing stopped, it is possible to revive them even up to 25 or 30 minutes after the last inhalation.

Mr. Desir gave many instances where lives can be lost, or body members lost, through disregard for safety and/or through help offered by uninitiated persons. He ran a 30-minute talkie film which was a well-prepared digest of the fundamentals of first aid. He concluded by exhibiting the three main techniques of artificial respiration.

Mr. Desir's subject may have sounded "dry" to some of the absentees, but certainly all of those at the meeting felt they had attended a very informative lecture. It is safe to say that, with speakers and subjects of this calibre, the Home and School will have full meetings next season too.

Describes Telephone Progress in Latest Improvement, Direct Distance Dialing

Mr. Lucien Moise of the Bell Telephone Company was guest speaker at last week's meeting of the Rotary Club. He reviewed the progress made in communications during the last 30 years and revealed some of the latest developments. He had a considerable quantity of equipment on hand, which he demonstrated during his discussion.

One item of particular interest was a replica of the first telephone ever sold commercially by the Bell Telephone Company. It consisted of a woden box about 14 inches square with an opening on each end. The user had to speak into one opening and then put his ear to the same place in order to hear the reply. He demonstrated the agility required to carry on an animated conversation. Whereas this phone, first used in 1880, did enable the people of that day to communicate with others at a distance, that distance was extremely limited and the problem then was to increase that distance. A "loading coil" was brought into use; the first of these weighed about 75 pounds and had very limited effectiveness. Those presently in use only weigh a few ounces and are about the size of a walnut. The invention of the vacuum tube was one of the greatest developments in the field of communication. This not only improved the quality of transmission but also vastly increased the distance.

One of the major problems confronting the industry today is that of keeping pace with the ever-increasing number of phones in use and the number of calls being made. Eight years ago there were about one million telephones in Canada and the United States. Today there are over two and one half million. The introduction of the dial system a few years ago was a major step forward in the solution of this problem. The speaker said that this system should be in use in Lachute within the next two years.

At the present time all telephone companies on the continent were working together to establish coast-to-coast long distance dial telephon-

ADEQUATE HOUSE WIRING

The wiring in your home is somewhat like the water piping. If the pipes are too small, opening more than one faucet at a time reduces the normal flow of water from each.

Too small house wiring and too many appliances cause excessive voltage drop. The more appliances connected the lower the voltage.

You cannot see the flow of electricity, but you find its effect in the operation of the appliances — all electrical appliances take longer to do their varied tasks when your wiring is overloaded.

Overloaded circuits are dangerous because overloaded wires heat up to a dangerous degree, charring the insulation and eventually causing fires that could have been prevented.

Modern appliances are more efficient, use more watts and they do their work faster and better than ever before. And there are many more of them than ten years ago.

Your local electrician can help you. We suggest you talk your wiring problems over with him.

Farm Topics

Fertilize Oat Crop

Ottawa — The oat is known to be a grain that will survive and grow on poor soils, and fair yields can be obtained on land where many other farm crops fail to grow. Oats will grow best, however, under conditions of moderate to high fertility. When soils are low in fertility an application of commercial fertilizer will be effective in increasing the yield of grain and straw.

The capacity of oats to respond to fertilizer applications is indicated in trials at the Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, Nappan, says L. P. Jackson.

In a three year rotation of potatoes, oats, and hay, the fertilizer is applied for the potato crop and oats is planted the following year. Over a twenty year period the average yield of oats has been 50 bushels per acre.

In another rotation of grain and grass the oats yields were increased by 70 per cent when a complete fertilizer was applied in the spring before the grain was planted. Compared to the small crop harvested when no fertilizer was used, the increased crop brought a profit of ten dollars per acre over the cost of fertilizer used.

The large fields in the general rotation at Nappan receive applications of commercial fertilizer when the grain is planted, and barnyard manure is applied on the sod for the second year of hay. The practical evidence supplied by this rotation supports the results obtained from experimental trials on small areas. In recent years the average yields of oats have been about 60 bushels per acre.

Although the farmer must make a considerable investment for fertilizing materials he can increase yields and step up his profits by feeding the grain crop.

Should You Follow A Crop Rotation?

Ottawa — A crop rotation might be defined as "any planned sequence of crops." One, and sometimes more than one, rotation is established on Illustration Station farms and are set up to suit the particular type of farming on each farm, says F. W. Calder, Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, Nappan, N.S.

Many advantages are to be found in following a suitable rotation. Among these is the maintenance of soil fertility, which permits commercial fertilizer and manure to be worked into all fields sometime in the rotation, and avoids depleting the supply of certain fertilizer elements by growing the same crop on the same field indefinitely.

Another major item is the control of weeds, insects and diseases. For example, on one Illustration Station it was found that Ragwort and other weeds gained in numbers, where a five or six year rotation was followed, so the rotation was shortened to four years which helped considerably in controlling this very troublesome weed. In like manner changing crops on an area more often will tend to diminish the losses from insects and disease.

The most important advantage derived from following a rotation is a regular supply of balanced feed for livestock or for products for sale. When a rotation is followed it is much easier to predict how much of any one crop may be harvested each year.

On some farms more than one rotation may be necessary. For example, it is convenient to have a root crop handy to the buildings to shorten the haul of such a heavy crop. To keep the haul short each year, a rotation of small areas may be set up separately from the main farm rotation. A suitable rotation could be: roots, grain, and clover hay to give a three year rotation, along with a five year rotation of grain, clover hay and three years mixed hay, for the rest of the farm.

It should not be thought that once a rotation is established it cannot be changed to meet situations which may arise from time to time. Changes may be made in the length of a rotation fairly easily but any changes should be planned and not just allowed to happen haphazardly.

In Edmonton, J. J. Frawley, freight rates counsel for the Alberta government, said he expected all four western provinces would object at public hearings on the railways' request, which are to commence June 11.

The wage boosts were recommended April 13 in the majority report of a federal conciliation board. The report was accepted both by the railways and non-operating unions.

Guard Communications

Attempts to tamper with Canadian diplomatic communications abroad have led the external affairs department to plan tightening of its security system. The department is hiring three new security guards this year to guard new automatic cipher equipment being installed in missions abroad.

R. M. Macdonell, deputy undersecretary for external affairs, told the Commons external affairs committee of the meddling attempts in a carefully worded reply to a question by Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton). Mr. Macdonell said:

"We have had evidence that suggests that if we did not take precautions there would be breaches of security."

He told Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) that attempts at tampering are more noticeable in some countries than others, but when asked whether Moscow was involved, said: "I hope the committee will not press me to give details."

Mr. Macdonell declined to say what types of communication equipment are used because such information came into the field of security. There was "a lot of apparatus about which a lot of people would like to be better informed."

Housing Designs

One of Canada's newest organizations — the Housing Design Council — has been formed to encourage improvements in the design of Canadian housing.

The organization adopted a constitution, elected its first officers and discussed an initial program of action in a meeting at the head office of the crown-owned Mortgage and Housing Corporation last week. President is R. C. Berkinshaw of Toronto.

Works Minister Winters told the council's first meeting that new housing in suburbs generally has not been distinguished in its appearance. There had been improvements in design but new housing "has not offered the kind of full enjoyment and pride we ought to expect in a country as prosperous as ours."

Mr. Winters added that perhaps design had been left behind in the forward surge of a dynamic industry. The government believed the post war housing emergency had largely been met and that there now would be time for improvement in housing design.

Other council officers: Frank Nicolls of Victoria, director from 1935 to 1945 of the National Housing Administration, the forerunner of CMHC, who was named vice-chairman. Prof. John Bland, director of the School of Architecture at McGill University, second vice-chairman, and A. Hazeland of Ottawa, CMHC advisor on housing design, secretary-treasurer.

Que. Farmers' Association Organizational Meeting

At a recent meeting held in Macdonald College the committee which was set up last year to organize a Quebec Farmers' Association, elected temporary officers for the Quebec Farmers' Association and made plans to hold an organizational meeting. A set of by-laws and a constitution will be presented to the meeting to be held May 26 directly following the Farm Forums Annual Meeting at Macdonald College. If the constitution and by-laws are accepted the organizing officers will apply for a charter immediately.

Most of the English sections of the province were represented at the meeting which elected Mr. Keith Greig, Ormstown, chairman of the movement. The meeting also named a committee to draw up a draft constitution, laid plans for their organizational meeting, and mapped out a membership campaign. Enough members had already joined to furnish funds necessary to cover organizing expenses.

While speaking to the meeting, the chairman pointed out that the need for the English-speaking farmers to organize and join their demands with those of the French speaking organizations was growing more pronounced every day. It was apparent, he said, that with farming in a depression and the rest of the economy booming, farmers must organize to protect their rights. Mr. Greig added that because of its nature the Quebec Farmers' Association could be more militant in its demands than the Farm Forums.

Much time was spent considering the problem of how the Quebec Farmers' Association could assist the Quebec Farm Forum Association as members emphasized that they must work together. To do away with extra metings it was thought that Farm Forum and Farmers' Association meetings could be held together by adjourning one and convening the other The members agreed that they should try to do this May 26 at Macdonald College when the Quebec Farm Association holds its annual meeting followed by an organizational meeting of the Quebec Farmers' Association.

Farm Radio Forum 16th Annual Conference

The Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence will be the background for the 16th annual conference of National Farm Radio Forum. The conference will meet June 4-5 at Gananoque, near Kingston, Ont.

Features of the two-day session will be the selection of 15 discussion topics for the 1956-57 season and the presentation of awards to six people across Canada who have shown leadership and initiative in developing the Farm Forum program. It is expected that most of the award winners will be present at the conference.

"The Challenge of Adult Education in the Farm Movement and the Rural Community" is the theme of an address to be given by C. W. Gibbings, vice-president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, at the evening session on June 4. Mr. Gibbings has been a member of the Saskatchewan Rural Commission on Agriculture and Rural Life.

Previous to the conference, on June 3 a boat trip through the Thousand Islands will be provided by local farm and co-operative organizations for delegates attending from all provinces. The conference will be followed by a meeting of the National Farm Radio Forum Board on June 6.

Chairing the sessions will be Dr. H. H. Hannam, chairman of the National Farm Radio Forum Board; Dr. E. A. Corbett, chairman, National Farm Radio Forum Executive; Gordon Hawkins, associate director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education; R. G. Knowles, supervisor, CBC Farm Broadcasts; James Bird, past-chairman, Ontario Farm Radio Forum.

The Cyclists' Heyday

WE NOTED an encouraging incident on Main Street — our Police Chief giving the boys a friendly talking-to about riding bicycles unlighted after dark.

There are many ill-advised practices with which young cyclists cause annoyance. One is the manner in which they tear home from school on the wrong side of the traffic-way, to the confusion of motorists in the noon-hour rush on Main Street. And there are other misdemeanors, as the Police Chief has noted.

At this season of high enthusiasm among young riders, we publish in the interests of their safety a Cyclists' Code issued by the Quebec Safety League, as follows:

1. Keep bicycle in good condition. Have good brakes, adjust pedals, handlebars, bell, seat, tires, etc.
2. Observe and obey signal lights, stop signs and railroad crossings.
3. Signal with your hand all stops and turns; look back for danger.
4. To turn left, go to the centre; to turn right go to the extreme right of the road.
5. Walk your bicycle across busy traffic and corners.
6. Ride on the extreme right, at a speed not exceeding 15 miles per hour.
7. Keep control of pedals and handlebars. Drive single file.
8. Stunting, horseplaying and racing are unsafe and unlawful. Never carry another person.
9. Never "hitch" to a truck or a moving vehicle. Never ride on sidewalks.
10. Do not forget at night, to have on your bicycle a white light on the front and a red reflector on the rear.
11. Wear light colored clothing at night; wear clips at the bottom of your slacks or trousers.
12. All bicycle accidents must be reported to your local police. Know the laws governing bicycle riding in your community.

The Weather and the Bomb

POISED for the next fishing trip or vacation tour, there's a crowd of people ready to expect bad weather — and equally ready to blame it on the United States' latest hydrogen bomb explosion.

There is no reason, however, to conclude that any nuclear explosions which have so far taken place have had any large-scale effect on the weather — this is a definite opinion from the Executive Committee of the World Meteorologicial Organization, which met recently in Geneva to consider the question on the basis of all available information.

As a result of its finding, the Committee decided to discontinue its inquiry into this question although it will keep the matter under review in the light of any information which might be forthcoming in the future.

At the same session, the Committee decided to set up a four-member panel of experts to study the meteorological aspects of the peaceful uses of atomic energy — particularly the movement of radioactive waste products in the atmosphere.

Population Increase

DURING THE last five years Canada's population has risen by an estimated 2,000,000, to bring it to approximately 16,000,000. This increase, equal to a rate of 28% over a decade, has been exceeded only by the rate of 34% for the period 1901-1911 when the virgin lands of the Prairies were being settled. Numerically, the increase compares, with the record ten-year rise between 1941 and 1951 of 2,502,774, of which 361,000 was due to Newfoundland's entry into Confederation. In size, this five-year gain thus surpasses all previous increases by a substantial margin.

All provinces have shared in this remarkable growth. The annual estimate of the population of the provinces by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for June 1 last year indicates that the first five-year Census of Canada, to be taken this June, will show population gains in all, but that the rates of gain will differ considerably from those that occurred between 1941 and 1951. Ontario, Quebec, British Columbia and Alberta, in that order, will again lead in numerical increase, of course; but Alberta and Ontario will likely show a higher rate of gain than British Columbia, which was easily first in that respect in 1951. Saskatchewan, only province with a decrease in 1951, will likely be found to have recovered in the five years most of the previous ten years' loss.

Population estimates are based on natural increase (births less deaths), plus immigration less emigration. On a national basis they are closely accurate. It is difficult to estimate provincial populations with the same degree of accuracy, however, because of the numerous unrecorded movements of people between provinces. This year's Census will accordingly be of great importance in determining exactly what changes have occurred in provincial populations. Equally important for many government and business purposes, it will show by local areas where changes have occurred within provinces.

Return of the Amateur

A TREND that could snowball into major proportions or be allowed to drop, as others have in the past, has gained considerable attention in sport circles in recent weeks.

It is a move, originated in the United States, to remove some of the sham from amateurism and to give a truer meaning to the word that has lost most of its meaning in these days of high-powered promotion.

Wes Santee, the great miler who never became quite as great as his advance notices, has been barred for life from amateur running, and a half dozen major United States colleges have been placed "on probation" as far as football activities are concerned.

Santee was barred because he accepted expense accounts out of line with actual expenses. The colleges, whose teams will be barred from taking part in the big post-season Bowl games, have been censured for stepping over the line in the financial support they gave their players.

Action of this sort is not new. As long as amateur sport is a major fund-raising project for its promoters — be they individuals, clubs or universities — there will be the danger that the stars who draw the crowds who contribute the gate receipts will be "enticed" in one way or another.

For those who advocate sport for sport's sake, the encouraging factor about the current storm over Santee and football players in the United States, is that the track meet promoters on the one hand and the college authorities on the other have drawn as much criticism as the athletes themselves.

In the case of Santee, Justice Walter A. Lynch of the New York State Supreme Court, said this in upholding the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union's lifetime suspension of the Kansas miler:

"He (Santee) has eliminated himself as an amateur athlete, but not without an assist from some of the guardians of amateur athletics. Promoters of amateur athletic meets should realize that while Santee, by his conduct, disqualified himself from amateur competition, the fault lies in no small part with them as a class.

"The records show that in their desire for larger gate receipts some promoters have sought to capitalize on the athletic ability of such stars as Santee. From this unfortunate incident some good may come to amateur athletics in the United States."

Amateur sports promotion in Canada has not developed to the stage it has reached in the United States, but Judge Lynch's words should serve as a warning to all promoters and as encouragement to all true amateurs.

The Elusive Quest

WHERE IS the best place to live — Toronto, an Ontario farm, Florida, New Mexico, California? Determined to find out, Toronto-born Robert Thomas Allen made an extensive search. There's a story in the current Reader's Digest which bears a moral for those who hanker for greener pastures — those who think there are many places far superior to their own home town.

Allen had a steady job, a nice home, two daughters aged five and two, a circle of friends, good health. Everything was fine. Deciding, however, to be a freelance writer, he quit his job, sold his house, and one day rolled out of his Toronto driveway.

The family drove first to Florida, found it almost perfect except for the prices, the sand flies and the summer heat. Their next stop-off was a little desert town a hundred miles from the Mexican border, which looked like "earth-man's first base of operations on the moon." They stayed there until the temperature went to 117 in the shade. Then they returned to Toronto, where Allen got his old job back.

However, the travel-bug had bitten the man badly. When he had a sufficient backlog of freelance writing assignments, he quit his job again. This time they moved to a rented farm near Elmvale, Ont. "Born within the sound of malted-milk machines and traffic lights," the author says he never really accustomed himself to the country. Once more he set off with his family — this time direct to California.

At last, on a mountainside overlooking the Pacific, less than one hour's drive from downtown Los Angeles, they found the "Perfect Place to Live." At least Mr. Allen called it that then. But, he adds, he has learned one important thing in his travels — "to settle on one place and accept it — snow, frost, fog, smog or whatever goes with it. . . The only way to get the best out of anything is to make the best of the good things you've got."

An editor's note at the end of the story reveals that, when Mr. Allen's manuscript went to press, he and his family had started back to Toronto!

"WHAT PRICE GLORY ?"

No doubt you've already heard much of the late "Porky Baldwin". He was the infant porcupine that wormed his way into the hearts of the younger set hereabouts, and contrived to get his picture printed in many a daily paper across the country.

Found in the woods beside his mortally wounded mother — at least the kids insist she was done for — the prickly youngster was carted home and lodged in the bottom drawer of a bedroom dresser. Loved and petted, fed and watered, it showed every indication of growing to happy adult stature and becoming a thorny problem.

Soon after his arrival, Porky cut his first few teeth. And then the momentous decision was reached to wean him from his diet of milk — daily filched from the dining-hall and supplied to him by means of a doll's feeding bottle. So baby foods were swiftly imported and stuffed into the hungry infant. But the strain of sudden adjustment to semi-solids proved too great for Porky's tender innards. And, following an agonizing attack of acute indigestion, the little bundle of spikes rendered up the ghost.

Deep-rooted sorrow reigned among the lads who had shared their room and dresser with Porky Baldwin — so-named after his counterpart in "Pogo". A funeral wake was organized which allowed plenty of time for youthful carpenters to prepare both a suitable bier and a fitting headstone. It also provided Porky with ample time to prove his complete mortification. Then, all things being in readiness, the little body was lovingly laid to rest beneath a lonesome pine overlooking the majestic river and mountains that lie to westward of the school. One of the foster parents was detailed to conduct the service while those who could sing — and many who couldn't — were impressed into carolling a well-known hymn. Finally, marking the tiny plot with its handsome marker the mourners wended their way homeward to take up such mundane matters as book-learning for the June exams.

While I, too, fell in love with Porky from the start and shed a silent tear when he departed, I couldn't help feeling more upset over the treatment accorded my young pal John Crutchfield. He, you see, had caught a female salamander on the very day that Porky invaded our premises. And compared with the porcupine, "Slippery Sue" just didn't stand a chance — nor did her owner. Indeed, when a lady and gentleman of the Fourth Estate dropped in some days later to interview Porky's Master, they never gave Sue or John a tumble, despite the fact that the former was very much on deck to greet them and laid a large clutch of eggs just for the occasion. All eyes, were strictly on Porky; the popping flashbulbs were solely for his benefit.

I strongly suspect the salamander sensed she was a poor second. With the first burst of light from the photographer's flashgun, she dived for the bottom of the pickle jar in which she made her home. And there she stayed, staunchly refusing to surface again for anyone, despite no end of prodding.

But every porcupine has its day, and every salamander has its moment of glory, too. With Porky Baldwin safely underground, Slippery Sue emerged as a creature of untold interest. Fully recovered in spirits, she popped her head above the water once more and ogled all who came to call upon her. By leaps and bounds her popularity increased, especially when it was discovered that her eggs were developing rapidly and showed signs of active life.

As I write this, Slippery Sue has reached the zenith of her fame. Today — at any moment now — her children are expected to burst their jelly bonds asunder and join the marine world as fully-developed salamanders.

I surmised that John might be somewhat jealous of the attention heaped upon the porcupine. I asked him, therefore, how he felt about the cursory maner in which the Press had treated his pet.

"Oh, I don't mind, really," he replied. "I guess a baby porcupine is more exciting than a salamander."

He was thoughtful for a moment, and then he added: "Anyway, old Sue did something Baldwin couldn't do."

"And what was that?"

No Train to Mariposa ?

I went out home by train the other day. The trip reminded me of Stephen Leacock's little piece about the train to Mariposa. We all dream of taking the old train back home some day; and we all expect that at a certain hour, the same old train of yesteryear will toot its way along the tracks to our home town.

Well, my train tooted along, all right — much faster than in the days when I was young. It stopped at all the little towns — and the conductor yelled "Hi, Joe," to the station agent just as before. But there was an important difference. It didn't stop long — there wasn't much express to be unloaded.

I asked the conductor about it. "Yes," he said, "not much to unload these days. Trucks can take it cheaper. And not many passengers, eithers—they've got their own cars. Kind of rough on the railways!"

Rough, too, I'd say, on the towns. On many lines, service may have to be cut. And if wage rates climb by $80 millions, as threatened, there may have to be further drastic reductions in service. It would seem to be time that the small towns put some pressure on either the railroads or the governments to investigate the railways' ability to pay, without failing in its responsibilities to the public.

After all, there are many things that trucks can't carry to market. Mariposa needs railroad service for more than sentimental reasons.

True, everyone would like to see railroaders make more money. They already earn some 4% above the national average; it is likely that small-towners would willingly see them make 5 or even 10% above the average — but beyond that, the small town man feels he has a justifiable complaint.

These are points both railway unions and railway officials should keep in mind when working for a settlement. Mariposa has its eyes on them.

A TRIP TO REMEMBER

Some 240 British Columbia - Yukon Boy Scouts will long remember their recent visit to Victoria to receive their Queen's Scout Certificates from the Lieutenant-Governor, the Hon. Frank M. Ross, in a ceremony at Government House.

Lots were drawn to choose 75 lucky Scouts to make the trip from Vancouver to Esquimalt by HMCS Sussexvale, a frigate. During their two-day stay in Victoria, as guests in private homes, the new Queen's Scouts were luncheon guests of the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross at Government House, and dinner guests of the Provincial Government in the Empress Hotel.

Equally thrilling for some 110 Quebec Scouts was their trip from Montreal to Quebec City on April 7 to attend a special ceremony in the Legislative Council Chamber. On that occasion Quebec's Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. Gaspard Fauteux, presented the Queen's Scout Certificates.

With G. E. Mortimore

Joe recoiled from the telephone as though it had stung him. Then he put down the receiver and rubbed his hand across his brow.

"Bad news, eh?" said Pete, sympathetically.

Joe nodded. He looked grey.

"Mortgage foreclose?"

"No."

"A fire, eh? Burned right to the ground?"

But Joe made no answer.

"Somebody stole your collection of match folders? Your wife left you?"

* * *

"No. She just phoned to say that the baby took his first steps today. He can walk. Walk, I tell you."

"Don't take it so hard, old man," said Pete, placing a comforting hand on Joe's shoulders. "Here's a wad of copy paper. Wipe away those tears."

"Sorry," said Joe. "I guess I broke down for a moment there."

"You don't have to be ashamed. I've been through it."

"You've heard the patter of little feet running through the house, and the crash of an expensive lamp breaking over a little head? You've seen little hands reach out of nowhere and empty your dinner plate on your knee?"

"All that, and much worse, Joe. Little footmarks in the wet paint; little painty feet on the carpet. Sand in the salt. Clock in the washing machine."

"I can scarcely believe it," said Joe. "The older child safely nursed through the smash-and-grab period, and now the other one . . . walking. It's a lot to bear."

"It has to happen some time," said Pete. "After the first shock you'll feel numb for a while. Then the meaning of it will come back to you with a rush, the first time the boy toddles across the room and knocks over a coffee table on your foot."

"Thanks for your help," said Joe. "I think I can go home with a clear head now, and face this thing like a man."

With a quick, decisive movement, Joe put on somebody else's coat and marched out of the room. As he left, Pete noticed that he had a lighted cigarette behind his ear.

More About Mastitis

SYMPTOMS — Many times the symptoms observed are swellings in the udder that may not even interfere with milk secretion beyond causing a tenderness of the udder for a few days; or the udder may become very swollen, feverish and even caked. Or the milk may be lumpy and full of threads, with noticeable hardness in the udder.

HOW TO DETECT MASTITIS — There are certain laboratory methods which will show that cows have Mastitis, even before any outward signs are evident. These methods are excellent for those who have the equipment. Write or ask for details, if interested in this method.

USE OF THE STRIP CUP — Dairymen should use the strip cup. This is merely a small metal cup covered with very fine gauze. These cups may be purchased from dairy supply companies, or a very good home-made one can be contrived with the use of a good-sized tin cup with some black silk stretched over the top of it by a rubber band.

Cows should be tested regularly by milking a stream of fore-milk into the cup through the black gauze, from each quarter. If tiny flakes in the milk are present, these catch in the gauze and give warning to the owner to isolate such a cow until further tests can be applied. If the milk appears flaky, the cow should immediately be taken out of its customary stanchion and placed at the end of the line, or better still, in a separate building, where she should receive special handling indicated later.

We will have further to say about Mastitis as time warrants. In the meantime you can apply what you do know. . . But don't delay ordering a load of PURINA CHOWS to keep them in condition and milking.

Pretty Wedding At Lost River Presbyt'n Church

MacCullough - MacMillan

The Presbyterian Church at Lost River was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday evening, May 12, when Rhoda Isobel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacMillan, of Lost River, Que., was united in marriage to Lloyd Gordon, eldest son of the late Sterling MacCullough and of Mrs. MacCullough, of Harrington, Que. The Rev. W. Isaac, of Montreal, officiated at the double-ring ceremony and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Roy Staniforth, of Arundel.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length dress of white satin, with tulle and lace, styled with fitted bodice and V-shaped neckline dotted with sequins, long tight sleeves pointed over the wrists, and a full skirt. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place with a tiara of pearls and rhinestones, and she wore a pearl necklace with matching earrings, a gift from the groom, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white lilies.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss June MacMillan, as maid of honor, and by two bridesmaids, Miss Eileen Peters, of Montreal and Miss Tena MacCullough, of Harrington. All were gowned alike in floor-length dresses of blue lace and net over taffeta, with matching headpieces, and carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Little Heather Anne MacDonald, niece of the groom, made a charming little flower girl attired in a pale blue nylon frock and small white hat with pink and blue flowers and carrying a posy of pink carnations.

Mr. Robert MacCullough acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Wm. MacMillan, of Lost River, and Mr. Hubert MacDonald, of Kilmar.

During the signing of the register, "O, Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. Wilfred Morrison, of Weir, Que.

The bride's mother wore an acetate and nylon mauve frock, with white hat and matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses, while the bridegroom's mother was attired in navy blue, with white hat and matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Piper Wendell MacLean, of the RCAF Band, was on hand to pipe the bridal party out of the church, and again at the auditorium at Arundel, where a reception was held immediately following the ceremony and a large crowd were assembled to shower the happy couple with congratulations and best wishes.

Later Mr. and Mrs. MacCullough left on a wedding trip to the Gaspé Coast, New Brunswick and points in the U.S.A. — the bride travelling in a light blue suit with matching accessories in black, and wearing a shoulder spray of red roses. . . On their return they will reside in Harrington.

Many out-of-town guests were present, from Renfrew, Montreal, Lachute, Hawkesbury and Grenville.

Young Couple Wed in Lachute United Church

Creswell - Cunningham

In the Lachute United Church recently was solemnized the marriage of Betty-Ann Jane, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Cunningham, of Lachute, and Mr. Melvin Watson Creswell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben H. Creswell, of Louisa. The Rev. Wilson Bridge officiated and Mr. Wayne Riddell played the wedding music. Colored gladioli and white candles formed the decorations.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Edna Noble. Mr. Murray Stewart, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Horace Creswell, brother of the groom, and Mr. Keith Warwick, brother-in-law of the bride.

The bride wore a street-length gown of white nylon chiffon over taffeta, a nylon Juliet cap holding in place her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion. She wore a crystal pendant, the gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of red roses with white streamers.

Miss Noble, as maid of honor, wore a street-length gown of mauve nylon marquisette over taffeta, with a poked cap of white straw with mauve trim, and matching mittens. She carried a nosegay of white carnations.

Mrs. Cuningham, the bride's mother, wore a street-length dress of dusty rose gabardine, with black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Creswell, the groom's mother, wore a light grey gabardine suit, with navy and white accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in McArthur's Hall, after which the happy couple left by motor for points in New York, Vermont and Ontario. For travelling the bride chose a navy blue bengaline dress with navy and pink accessories and wore a shoulder corsage of deep pink carnations.

ing. This, for example would enable an operator in Montreal to dial a number in Vancouver or anywhere else in America. The complicated mechanism would automatically locate a circuit and the connection would be completed in a matter of seconds. Over 80 per cent of the calls betwen Montreal and Toronto are now being handled in this manner. "D.D.D.", as it is called in the trade, "Direct Distance Dialing" is expected to be in effect on a continent-wide basis by 1960.

The speaker stated that Canadians use the telephone to a greater extent per capita than any other nation in the world including the U.S.A. Statistics show that there are 419 calls per year per person in Canada.

Arts-Crafts Display By Junior Pupils At K. of C. Hall

A public exhibition of arts, crafts and modelling by young pupils of Miss Janine Leroux during the season now terminating, is being featured until May 29 in the Knights of Columbus Hall, on Foundry Street.

The display, opening at 9 p.m., today (Thursday), with a preview and reception for parents and invited guests, will remain open every afternoon and evening until Tuesday, May 29, inclusive. The public are cordially invited to see this work, which will be arranged in the basement of the hall.

Miss Janine Leroux organized these children's courses two years ago in Lachute, and has achieved remarkable results with her classes in a wide range of ages. The study is designed to stimulate observation and manual dexterity, while revealing the possibilities of all sorts of materials for decorative and artistic use. Those who have seen the creative work of her young pupils, agree that the instruction has filled all these purposes, and more.

Visitors to the exhibition will be agreeably impressed, and public interest is solicited in this attraction.

The Bible — A Definition

The Bible is Jehovah God's written word to mankind, revealing himself and expressing his purpose. Jehovah, as the Author, inspired at least thirty-five different faithful men to write. Although the complete Bible is itself one book it is actually a library of sixty-six books, thirty-nine having been originally written in Hebrew and Aramaic and properly designated collectively the Hebrew-Aramaic Scriptures, and the other twenty-seven having been originally written in Greek and properly designated collectively the Christian Greek Scriptures. The writing of the entire Bible covered the period from 1513 B.C. to A.D. 98 or 99. The English word Bible is from the Greek word, bibli'a, meaning "papyrus scrolls, rolls, volumes, books" or, literally, "small papyri or booklets."

Jehovah Reveals Himself and His Purpose Through His Written Word.

2 Tim. 3:16, 17 "All Scripture is inspired of God and beneficial for teaching, for reproving, for setting things straight, for disciplining in righteousness, that the man of God may be fully competent, completely equipped for every good work."

Rom. 15:4 "For all the things that were written aforetime were written for our instruction, that through our endurance and through the comfort from the Sciptures we might have hope."

1 Cor. 10:11 "Now these things went on befalling them as examples and they were written for a warning to us upon whom the accomplished ends of the systems of things have arrived."

Time Has Not Altered the Good Book — Even Though Times Have Changed.

With the centuries have come altered customs, languages, moral principles — even civilizations. But the recorded Word of Jehovah God remains steadfast. To appreciate this best, read these ancient writings in the language of twentieth-century America.

Who Was This?

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

What was the name of the notorious prisoner who was released just prior to the feast of the Passover, rather than Jesus, who was crucified?

It was the custom at that time for the governor to give the prisoner whom the crowd chose his freedom. Pilate, the governor, knew that many Jews were filled with envy against Jesus, but he asked the assembled crowd, "Whom do you want me to release for you, Jesus, who is called Christ or this other man?"

The chief priests and elders persuaded the mob to ask for the release of this notorious prisoner, so that Jesus would be destroyed. Thus, they cried out the notorious prisoner's name. Pilate answered, "Then what shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?" They all cried, "Let him be crucified." Pilate's wife had had a dream and she had warned her husband not to harm Jesus, whom she called "a righteous Man." Thus Pilate made a faint protest, by asking this question, "Why, what evil has he done?" But the crowd shouted all the more, no reason for the death of Jesus, but just the demand, "Let him be crucified!"

You will find this notorious prisoner's name and read the story in Matthew, Chapter 27, Verses 15 to 23.

Brownsburg Loses 3-1 to Buckingham

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The local ball club suffered its first defeat of the season in Buckingham; they out-hit the home team 8 to 5, but lost 3 to 1. It was a heartbreaker for our boys as Lady Luck threw in her lot with the Buckingham club. Karl Gagné pitched a fine game, striking out six while walking three, and his five-hit performance would have been an easy win in nine games out of ten.

Buckingham opened the scoring in the third inning with an unearned run. Goulet grounded out. Godette doubled to left and Pilotte struck out. Jacques Racine, usually infallible at second base, came up without the ball on a hard-hit grounder — and Brownsburg were one down.

Brownsburg equalized in the sixth when Jacques Racine was safe on a two-out error and Yves Raymond blasted a line drive double to right centre. In the eighth Brownsburg's big chance to take the lead was squashed as Mel Tomalty singled then stole second, but tripped on the loop of the bag and was tagged out. Keith Hazel, next man up, hit a long single which undoubtedly would have scored Tomalty.

In the bottom of the eighth, with one on and two out and two strikes on Renaud, he took a lusty cut at the ball and it sailed over the left-field fence 360 feet from the plate.

We can't expect to win them all, and if bad breaks do us no more harm than an occasional 3-1 setback, it certainly shouldn't upset the boys unduly.

Stars in this game were two usuals Yves Raymond, who is batting over .500 and has batted in seven of our 15 runs, and Keith Hazel with two hits apiece. Keith's fielding though at third base, makes him a big asset even without his bat.

Mel Tomalty, who was rather disappointing in the first two games, played a fine errorless game at short, and got a good piece of wood on the ball each time up, smacking two for long singles. Edgar Joly and player-coach Jimmy Murdoch both singled, Jimmy's hit coming with two out in the ninth.

This week the Brownsburg boys travel to Montebello, where they will meet probably their strongest opposition.

New Setting for Historic Horse Race

SPORTS CAMERA
By Ken Romain,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The jewel of Canadian horse racing, the historic Queen's Plate, this year has been placed in a new $10,000,000 setting.

New Woodbine, one of the swankiest race tracks on the continent, will be the site of the $25,000-added Canadian racing plum, the oldest continuously-run race in North America.

Located on the northwestern outskirts of Toronto the new racing plant will be officially opened June 5, with the Plate to be run June 16.

There may be a few nostalgic moments among veteran horse followers as the cream of Canadian thoroughbreds go to the post. It will mark the first time in 73 years that the Plate has not been run at the old Wodbine track in east-end Toronto.

Stylish Track

But to ease the momentary pangs of regret, the Ontario Jockey Club, which operates all flat racing circuits in Ontario, has spared no expense in making the new track modern and decorative. It was estimated when the project was announced two years ago that the new track would cost $10,000,000. That figure may be higher by the time they finish putting on the trimmings.

Already United States racing officials are high in their praise of the New Woodbine layout and are eyeing it with a view to incorporating some of its features in U.S. tracks.

The tiered grandstand will seat 7,500 persons and the fashionable clubhouse will hold 2,500 people. Down on the apron skirting the home-stretch is room for another 20,000. Flowered lakes and ponds are slated for the infield.

There are elevators and escalators to whisk fans to their seats; a bar and lounge on every floor of the four storey clubhouse, restaurants and automatic betting machines.

And to aid those who may become short or flush, depending on the vagaries of Lady Luck, there are banking facilities.

Historic Classic

The tradition-steeped Queen's Plate was first run in Canada in 1860 and for some years after that was held at diffirent tracks throughout the province of Ontario.

It was finally given a permanent home in 1883 at Woodbine — now called Old Woodbine. When it moves to New Woodbine in June it creates what is called a new era in Canadian flat racing.

Last fall the OJC, which will headquarter at the new track, announced that Old Woodbine would be closed to flat racing and only a half-mile harness track would be retained.

However, this spring flat racing returned to the old track just north of the Eastern Toronto lakefront. Old Woodbine still holds its special appeal. Despite dismal racing weather almost 10,000 fans turned out. Present plans of the OJC call for them to hold some race meets every year at the old track.

Molson's in Opener, Visits Colford Lodge

Next Sunday Colford Lodge softball squad plays host to Molson's of Lachute, to open the new season.

Jean-Guy Larocque will be back on the mound this year, trying to beat his last year's record of 20 wins against only two defeats. New faces on the team are Arthur Denault, Marcel Chartrand and Rolland Decoste. Wilson Black will also be back with the team on third base and relief pitcher. Game time will be 2 p.m.

4-H Club Meeting At Local Farm

Forty-five boys and girls attended a meeting of the Lachute 4-H Club last Tuesday evening at the farm of Arnold Parker, Lachute Road. The meeting was conducted by the president, Donald Parker, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary-treasurer, Donald McOuat.

Plans were made to decorate the calf barn at the Lachute Spring Fair for "Junior Day," June 16. The members who plan to show at the Fair, made their entries.

A class of Holstein cows were judged by the members and the official placings were made by John Oswald and Jean Pintal. The meeting was held in the barn because of the cold, dark weather, so there was not much room to demonstrate how to judge a dairy cow. Because of the large number of new members, a special meeting is planned for sometime before the Lachute Spring Fair, and a demonstration will be given on what to look for when judging, so that the new members will better understand how to judge at the judging competition at the Fair.

The meeting was conducted in both French and English as there are about a dozen French-speaking boys and girls. Plans are being made to form a new club next year for the French-speaking members as the present club is over 50 strong.

Ross Oswald, the club leader, thanked Arnold Parker and his son Donald for their hospitality. The meeting was then adjourned and the members left for home.

Ban on Hunting In DEWline Territory

Ottawa (CP) — Officials in Ottawa say a ban preventing whites from hunting on the DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar line in the Canadian Arctic is working out satisfactorily.

A regulation in the Northwest Territories permits only Eskimos, Indians and a few whites who have lived there for a long time to hunt game such as caribou, wolverine and fox. The regulation was extended to the DEW line when construction began last year. Contractors are allowed one or two rifles per camp for safety purposes. But they are sealed, and if the seal has to be broken to shoot a marauding animal, this is reported to the RCMP.

CURRENT SHOWS, ENTERTAINMENT, TRAVEL

The Plouffe Family Says "Au Revoir"

The entire Plouffe family is assembled with relatives and friends to await the arrival of Cecile's baby in the final episode June 1 of the TV show's 1955-56 series. Most of the major characters of the family show will appear, including Oncle Gedeon, his daughter Martine, and the three girls, Rita, Ranielle and Jeanne, who gave the Plouffe boys many an anxious moment during the season.

For some of the players the end of the series will be the beginning of a holiday. Others plan to continue working during the summer. Writer Roger Lemelin, who made his debut as an actor a few weeks ago in the role of an obstetrician, will be sailing up and down the St. Lawrence in his new yacht. Jean-Louis Rioux will be in Stratford, Ontario, where he will appear in a French production of three farces by Moliere and in "Henry V." Denyse Pelletier will take part in the Montreal Festivals production of Racine's "Athalie", moving from the role of a present-day mother to that of a queen of Biblical times.

Five members of the cast will be touring Quebec in entertainment groups. Poul Guevremont (Papa) has been entertaining week-end patrons of a Montreal night club and plans to continue with his show, taking it to summer resorts. Pierre Valcour (Guillaume), Emile Genest (Napoleon), Thérèse Cadorette (Jeanne) and Jean Duceppe (Stan) are the principal members of a revue with which they plan to go on a summer tour.

A phenomenon of the 1955-56 season has been the increasingly warm response from viewers outside Quebec, particularly in the Toronto area. Presumably many viewers who were at first baffled by the unfamiliar atmosphere and accent have developed an attachment to the show.

Quebec Politics On the Airwaves

A series of nine free-time political radio broadcasts in English, in connection with the forthcoming Quebec Provincial Election, has been arranged by the CBC in agreement with the three major parties. The broadcasts are being heard on CBM, Montreal, and a provincial network of privately-owned stations. The series started May 21 and the broadcasts will be heard each Monday, 7.45-8 p.m., and Thursday, 6.15-6.30 p.m. until June 14, with three periods each for the National Union and Liberal parties, and two for the Social Democratic Party. At the end of the series, June 17 from 10.30-11.00 p.m., there will be a half-hour broadcast during which representatives of all three parties will speak.

On Television

The first in a series of English-language telecasts in which the three parties will outline their policies will be seen on station CBMT on Wednesday, May 30, at 6.30 p.m. National Union, Liberal and Social Democrat parties will be allotted a quarter-hour each and there will be an additional half-hour telecast during which representatives of all three parties will speak. On May 30, the Social Democrats will be heard from, on June 6, the Liberals, and on June 13, the National Union Party. The half-hour program will be seen June 17, 10.30-11.00 p.m.

The tensely-dramatic story of a man involved in a hit-and-run accident, with counsel to motorists who may find themselves in a similar situation, will be presented on CBC-TV's "Perspective" on May 27. Mac Shoub is the author of the script, which is titled "A Case of Conscience."

Husband: "No, you're wrong, my dear. Nothing brings home the fact so quickly."

Major — "Now really, I ask you, in civilian life would you come to me with a puny complaint like that?"

Sergeant (calmly): "No sir, I'd send for you."

Trooping of the Color On TV from Ottawa

From Ottawa, May 27, CBC-TV will present a direct telecast of the trooping-of-the-color ceremony on the spacious lawns of the Parliament Buildings. Taking part will be 350 men of the Governor General's Foot Guards and the Canadian Grenadier Guards from Montreal. All the troops will be in full dress and music will be provided by the bands of both regiments. The telecast will be from 2.30-3.30 p.m. Four cameras will be used to cover the ceremony, from the arrival of the Governor-General and his inspection of the troops to the march-past and the trooping of the color. The commanding officer of the parade will be Lieut.-Colonel T. G. Bowie of the Governor General's Foot Guards.

Offer Scholarships To Otter Lake Music Centre

The Otter Lake Music Centre, to be held this year at Round Lake Inn, Weir, from July 1 to 15, announces the offer of several scholarships to people interested in spending two weeks of holiday music-making in the Quebec Laurentians.

As becomes a music centre primarily designed for the music lover and the amateur musician, Otter Lake does not reserve its scholarships for the professional musician only. In addition to the Willis scholarship of one week at the Centre, offered by the Willis Piano Company to an English-speaking pianist, the Centre offers bursaries of $75 each to two instrumentalists other than pianists, to a tenor and to a music-loving family interested in spending two weeks at the Centre.

This last rather original scholarship is characteristic of the spirit of Otter Lake Music Centre. It is offered to a family of four — father, mother and two children, or four brothers and sisters, etc., all actively interested in music and all wishing to participate in the Centre's activities.

Any interested in applying for these scholarships should write before June 1 to: Otter Lake Music Centre, P.O. Box 195, Montreal 8, P.Q., stating their reasons for wishing to attend the Centre, and their musical experience.

JOLSON NOTES

(Contributed)

This Saturday, May 26, will be another Al Jolson birthday. It is difficult to say which one, because in Czarist Russia where Al was born, no birth records were kept, and Al himself is supposed not to have known the exact year of his birth. However, it is almost a certainty that if Jolie were living today he would be at least 70 on his birthday.

Being so active in showbusiness at a time when most people consider retirement, Al naturally kidded, and was kidded, about his age. Many examples of this can be found in the scripts for Kraft Music Hall, on which Al starred for two years toward the end of his life. Once he remarked to guest star Clifton Webb, "Well, Clifton, you and I are on the shady side of forty, but —" Whereupon Webb snapped back: "Shady side of forty! Where we are, Al, it's pitch-black!"

On another occasion the dialogue went like this:

Al: "I don't know, but if he looks that way at 39, what's he going to look like at my age — when he's 46!"

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane — Women's Travel Authority

When a tire blows out, stay calm! Many drivers become panicky, jam on the brakes, and then completely lose their heads when the car skids and careens over the road. And often this means a crack-up . . . into a tree, or worse yet, a passing car.

Here's what happens when a tire blows. If it's a front tire, the car swerves in the direction of that tire. If it's a rear tire, the back end sways from side to side.

Here's what to do. Get a firm, but not frozen grip on the steering wheel and try to steer straight ahead. With your foot off the accelerator, the car will slow down quite rapidly if you leave it in gear, letting the engine itself act as a brake. Do not touch the brake pedal until you are in absolute and complete control. Then use the brakes gently and slowly.

With warm weather upon us, it's a strong temptation to step on it and whip up a breeze along the highway. But excessive speeding encourages blow-outs . . . especially since tire temperatures can mount to over 200 degrees on hot pavements!

Teatime Topics

By Oli Daum, Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's nothing new under the sun, they say, and now Canadians have learned they are "easily the most romantic" of nationalities.

This description wasn't, of course, applied by a native of the Dominion. Canadians rather tend to think of themselves as hard-headed, independent and all that kind of thing.

No, it came from a London woman, Mrs. Abigail Lewis, who runs a marriage bureau in the British capital. She said that in the last 10 years she has set 40 Canadians on the road to marital happiness. Now she's coming to Canada with the idea of appointing a representative here.

Marriage consultants are not unknown in this country. Only the other day Vancouver city council consented to the establishment of a marriage bureau by Mrs. J. Haddon, wife of an economics professor.

Although in pioneering days French bride ship was a necessary counterpart of the modern marriage bureau we haven't heard a great deal about aids for the lovelorn in the last 25 years or so.

We wonder if there is anything significant in Canadian census figures.

The 1931 census revealed that in the 20-34 age group — we'll call it the marriageable age group — there were 67,000 more men than women in Canada. Ten years later the males had a majority of 33,000. But in 1951 the fair sex outnumbered men by 56,782.

Mrs. Lewis may have something when she talks of romantic Canadians, but the figures may have another bearing on the case. She says government-sponsored marriage bureaus should be recognized as an important factor in our social life.

In the Pink

Advocating the "pink" look for 1956, they say the athletic types will have to give up sports activities or be unfashionable. Romping in the sun and water brings on a tan and that, they say, makes a woman look like a baked apple.

The fashionable chick will wear a delicate, almost alabaster look. Over a light foundation she will apply a dot of cream rouge dusted with powder and then eye make-up. With charcoal pencil she will arch her eyebrows as much as possible and then stroke charcoal mascara on her upper lashes with blue mascara on the tips.

The experts call this the "serene" look. The outdoor lover, no doubt, calls it the spoil-sport.

This and That

City women can have their bingo and bowling. With housewives at Baden, Ont., near Kitchener, it's topics like bombings and bandages.

The housewives have organized Ontario's first female civil defence unit. They've spent something like 6,000 hours preparing for disaster and are organized for emergency food and clothing distribution, registration and first-aid duties.

Now that barbecue days are here a tip for outdoor cooking: to facilitate washing soot from pots and pans after cooking over an open fire, coat their bottom surfaces with soap in advance. The soot will wash off readily with the soap.

"Combine milk with gelatin in cooking and you get dozens of delightful ways to eat it. Then the quota of a pint of milk a day for an adult and a quart for a child becomes easy to meet," I remarked.

"There are many dishes in which milk may be combined with gelatin!" exclaimed the chef.

Among Savories

"For example, among the savories are many snappy hors d'oeuvres in fancy shapes, as well as molded meat loaves and salads that call for a milk-gelatin base. In the dessert class there are jellied custards, Spanish cream, several exquisite pies, chiffon desserts, wonderful Bavarians and refreshing sherbets."

"Don't forget fruit gelatin whips and snows, made with whipped instant dried milk," I suggested. "And we must include our wonderful No-Bake Cheese Cake."

Tomorrow's Dinner

Vegetable Juice Cocktail
Liver and Bacon Saute
Hash-Browned Creamed Potatoes
Green Peas
Tossed Lettuce with Radishes
No-Bake Cheese Cake
with Fruit
Coffee Tea Milk

All measurements are level. Recipes proportioned to serve four to six.

Hash-browned creamed potatoes: Chop eight cooked peeled potatoes medium fine. Mix in one cup well-seasoned white sauce made by the usual recipe.

In a frying pan melt four tablespoons butter or shortening. Pack in the potato. Cover. Slow-cook and slow-fry or bake until the sauce is absorbed.

Then quickly brown the potato on the bottom; roll up like an omelet. Turn on to a heated platter. Garnish with scallions.

No-bake cheese cake with fruit (preparation time—20 minutes): In the top of a double boiler mix together one envelope unflavored gelatin, six tablespoons sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt.

Separate one egg. Add the yolk to one cup milk and beat. Stir into the gelatin mixture.

Stir-cook over boiling water about 10 minutes or until the gelatin dissolves and the mixture thickens slightly. Remove from the double boiler.

Sieve 1½ cups (12 oz.) creamed cottage cheese into a large mixing bowl. Stir in the gelatin mixture. Stir occasionally until the mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

Prepare and set aside a crumb-topping.

Last, beat the remaining egg white stiff, gradually adding two tablespoons sugar. When very stiff add half cup whipped heavy cream and fold into the cheese mixture.

Dust the sides of an eight-inch mould pan or nine-inch pie plate with crumb-topping. Pat the balance on to the bottom. Spoon in the cheese mixture. Refrigerate four hours or until firm enough to unmould and slice.

Serve plain or with sugared sliced strawberries or canned crushed pineapple.

Crumb-topping: Mix two tablespoons melted butter, one tablespoon sugar, ¼ cup fine graham cracker crumbs and ½ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg.

Trick of the Trade

Fall Fashion Show In Montreal Next Month

Montreal is currently the centre of a vast guessing game which involves the livelihood of thousands of Canadians. While most women are now concerned with selecting summer wardrobes, Canadian fabric weavers, fashion designers, dress manufacturers and retail store buyers are desperately trying to guess what clothes Canadian women will buy next fall and winter. As heavy financial investments are involved in their guesses, the accuracy of their predictions is vital.

Montreal, as the fashion centre of Canada is the hub of the current speculation. The Fall Fashion Forum, being staged June 4, is creating keen interest. Designed as a preview of new fashion trends the forum will be the first of its kind held anywhere in North America. As retail store buyers arrive from all parts of the country to start selecting next season's merchandise the forum will provide advance information by illustrating the new trends.

To be held at the Champlain Room, Sheraton-Mount Royal Hotel, at 10 a.m., June 4, the Fall Fashion Forum will feature a panel of fashion experts who will discuss the merits of the new trends and invite questions from the visiting buyers.

The panel is to be headed by Mrs. Doreen Day, fashion consultant for the T. Eaton Company. Two other Montreal fashion experts have agreed to survey the Montreal style offerings and decide what the new trends are. They are Mrs. Eve Trill, fashion co-ordinator of Henry Morgan & Co. and Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, fashion co-ordinator of Duplan of Canada.

Both Mrs. Trill and Mrs. Taylor stress the hazards of the fashion industry's guessing game, 'Everybody watches, Paris, London and New York. Everybody studies all available information and tries to guess what trends can be adapted to Canadian tastes and Canadian needs." Mrs. Trill says, "but no one can be absolutely sure until women actually buy the fashions."

Friendship Centre For Older Persons

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — A recreational and friendship centre for senior citizens is planned by the local Kinsmen club. About the only requirement for membership is that an applicant be at least 60 years of age.

Mayor G. B. Peat says such a club "will offer the truly forgotten part of our society . . . the opportunities of friendship to fill their lonely hours in a common meeting place."

Among planned activities are handicrafts and dancing. The club also hopes to equip the centre with a radio, television set and facilities for lunches.

The start will be small and rented rooms will be obtained until a permanent centre can be financed.

Pert for Spring

Printed acetate taffetas are popular this spring; as this pert dress proves. By a Toronto manufacturer, the shimmering fabric, in shades of champagne flecked with brown, has been fashioned on Princess lines with fitted bodice and voluminous skirt. Brown braid and buttons trim the collarless neckline and extra short sleeves.

"Facts, Fingers, Fun" — Q.W.I. Leadership Course

"Facts! Fingers! Fun!", the annual leadership course conducted by the Quebec Women's Institutes, is being held next week at Macdonald College. The name, coined the second year of its operation (1949) indicates its character. Crafts, program planning, the place of recreation, music and films in those programs, and discussions on problems of administration are all on the agenda for the five days of intensive study.

Competent instructors have been secured. These include Mrs. R. A. Cameron, who has had extensive experience in Adult Education and is now Junior Supervisor for the Q.W.I., Miss F. Elizabeth Campbell, Macdonald College, formerly of the Q.W.I. staff, Miss Marjorie Chapman, Adult Education Service of the College, Miss Bridget Altimas, Q.W.I. Handicraft Technician, and Mrs. Wheeler Adams, a "graduate" of the class, "Music in Your Programs", which is a permanent feature of the Course.

This has been the practice for the past few years; to select as one of the instructors a member who has acquired, or added to, her skills through the work here. This emphasizes the purpose of the Course, to give members training that will enable them to participate more effectively in the activities of their communities as well as in their own organization, the Q.W.I.

Wife Preservers

For an added flavor, add a dash of white pepper to the pastry covering on chicken or meat pies before you put them in the oven to bake.

"I'm from the International Knitting Mills, grandma; are you interested in yarns?"

"Heck, yes; know any new ones?"

You can't go ALL-OUT

If you feel "ALL-IN"

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

A Child's Stamp Hobby

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Did you know that the greatest of all stamp collectors, Count Philippe von Ferrari, started this hobby when he was around ten years old? His mother, a wealthy Italian duchess, realized that her bright moody son needed an interest to take his thoughts off himself. The boy was nervous and sickly. He developed a great enthusiasm for stamps, and spent his years and his fortune on the profession of Philately.

Stamp collecting, unlike gardening, is not confined to a certain time of the year. Another great advantage of a stamp hobby is that it can be started in childhood and carried on all through life. Many strenuous physical activities, such as tennis and other games, must be limited by most people as they grow older. Not so stamp collecting!

Both boys and girls fall under the spell of stamp collecting, and collectors are found in almost every land. Both King George I and Franklin D. Roosevelt were ardent collectors. Clara Bow built up a wonderful collection. Some wealthy men have amazing collections, and many individuals in modest circumstances, have used their wits and their knowledge, to gather a collection of which they can be justly proud.

Countless hobbies have engaged mankind for hundreds of years, but this most popular of all modern leisure time pursuits is only a little over a century old. In 1840 the first stamp, with its likeness of Queen Victoria, was issued in Britain.

Today in practically every country in the world, stamped envelopes carry letters, and parcels are sent by mail. It has been estimated that there are now well over one hundred and fifty thousand different kinds of stamps. To own one of each kind is an utter impossibility, because of this vast number. Some have become very rare. There is only one known speciman of a famous one cent British Guiana stamp.

Parents do well to buy a big world stamp album and an "all different" package of stamps for a son or daughter to introduce him or her to stamp collecting. If a child develops a keen interest in stamps, there is plenty of time later on to specialize in stamps from a particular country or time or type or size. Thin gummed pieces of paper called hinges must be used to fasten stamps into an album. To paste or glue them to the pages, ruins the stamps.

A child learns to be careful in handling stamps, because they are easily damaged. A standard postage stamp catalogue, a magnifying glass, a perforation gauge and a benzine cup in which a stamp's water marks may be detected are standard pieces of equipment for this activity.

Many new Canadians have stimulated stamp collecting by using the stamps on letters from their homelands to give or sell to friends. Geography, history, an interest in travel are all encouraged by stamp collecting. At the Scout Jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake, where barter was the order of the day, it was fascinating to see how many boys from different lands "swapped" stamps. Every person should have several hobbies, and the choice of a hobby is an individual matter.

Stamps, like a vaccination may not "take", with your child, but he should be exposed to philately. An interest in stamps may prove to be an absorbing and enjoyable hobby which will enrich his whole life.

"Interesting people have interesting thoughts" is an often quoted saying. The great variety of stamps today are a reminder of the fair world in which we live with all kinds of people earning their living in many different ways, and yet at heart very much the same. Stamp Collecting may swing open the door for your child to many new adventures in learning. Don't neglect this hobby when you choose a birthday, vacation or Christmas gift!

Fashions

The little silk dress, summer version, is with us again, as spectator sports clothes move into the sartorial scene after something of an eclipse. Quite a bit smarter than the ultra casual mode, this phase of fashion is smart, well-mannered and becoming. White silk crepe is used for this one, with its double row of pearl buttons on the front plastron below the Peter Pan collar. Grouped box and side pleats give fullness to the skirt which may be worn with or without a stiffened petticoat.

DOOR-TO-DOOR

Without exception, city business firms are prepared to match any offer made by transient salesmen of goods or services of any type — a fact every household should keep in mind the next time they hear a knock on the door.

— Prince George (B.C.) Citizen

Bungalows by Burro

The United Nations estimates that 150 million families in underdeveloped areas lack adequate housing.

One answer is a frameless, build-it-yourself house designed by Canadians of Canadian aluminum. It needs no foundation; is non-corrosive and verminproof; is so lightweight that it is packed in cartons easily carried by plane, jeep or even burro.

The Colombian government has ordered 3,200 of them to help relieve the shortage of rural housing in that South American country. So it's not surprising, with aluminum travelling so far and doing so much, that Alcan is again increasing its smelting capacity in both Quebec and British Columbia.

GEORGES DUHAMEL

INDEPENDENT UNION NATIONALE CANDIDATE FOR ARGENTEUIL

About a month ago, a group of electors approached Georges Duhamel, proprietor of the St. Andrews East bus line, inviting him to accept an Independent Union Nationale candidature in the coming June 20 Provincial elections. At the insistence of this considerable group — from St. Andrews, St. Philippe, Brownsburg, Carillon, Lachute, St. Michel, Morin Heights, Pine Hill and 16 Island Lake — and with the assurance of their enthusiastic support Mr. Duhamel accepted the invitation with characteristic optimism. Since that time, some 250 electors have signed his nomination papers, and needless to say, his following has grown in numbers and in enthusiasm since the spreading of the news throughout the county.

The Independent Union Nationale candidate is a man well known in business circles. Having worked for two years with Provincial Transport, Mr. Duhamel left the company to open his Montreal - St. Andrews bus line, which has operated continuously since 1930. He went into business when he was but 23 years old.

In spite of the work entailed in this business, Mr. Duhamel found the necessary time to enter into other enterprises. In 1945 he became proprietor of the "St. Andrews Inn", a hotel which he redecorated completely and re-sold shortly afterwards. The next year, he built the Duhamel garage and St. Andrews Lunch Car and, finally, a butcher-grocery shop. These four establishments all contributed both to the appearance and the prosperity of the Village of St. Andrews, where the future candidate under Union Nationale Independent colors, makes his home.

Elected Mayor of the village in 1947, he served two terms and promoted the interests of the community with his enterprising spirit. With the cordial support of his councillors and the citizens, it was through his leading that the village obtained a Town Hall, a fire department, and the paving of all main thoroughfares in the village. It was also in his term that the village purchased the waterworks system which the citizens presently enjoy.

He is known not only in St. Andrews — for in 1953 he became proprietor of the Joly Hotel, Lachute, and two years later, he acquired the Flamingo Grill at Brownsburg.

During his four years devoted to serving his community, Mr. Duhamel gained valuable experience, and he is familiar with the various problems in each village, town and municipality in the entire county, having travelled the constituency in all directions. The candidate is now ready to represent the people at Quebec, and to work for all concerned in solving their problems, especially those who have been neglected or rejected in the past.

In closing, we solicit the support of all friends, to whom the candidate pledges in return his untiring devotion to duty and to the citizens of Argenteuil.

Change of Numbers for New B'burg Exchange

When the new telephone exchange opens in Brownsburg toward the end of this year, many telephone numbers will be changed — Roland Dupuy, Bell Telephone manager here, announced this week.

"In 1958, we plan to introduce the standard two-letter five-figure telephone numbering system which is gradually coming into use in exchanges throughout Canada and the United States. In the meantime, customers in Brownsburg will have completely new four-figure numbers which will become effective when the new dial office on Northcliff Street opens," he said.

At the time of the change-over, all telephone numbers starting with 2 will be changed to begin with 6 — the last three figures remaining the same — except for numbers starting with 22, which will be changed completely. All numbers starting with 4 will remain unchanged but customers who have rural telephone service will be assigned entirely new numbers.

Mr. Dupuy also advised business firms in the area who display their telephone number on letterheads, business statements, signs and the like, to keep the coming number change in mind when ordering new supplies.

All-Time Record In Auto Production

Chrysler Corporation of Canada reported an all-time record production for passenger cars during the month of April.

Corporation president and general manager, E. C. Row, announced a 26.3 per cent increase in its production of passenger cars over the same month in 1955.

"The 11,132 cars produced represent the highest April production in Chrysler of Canada history, bringing out total production for the first four months of this year to 41,959. This," he added, "is also an all-time record for that 4-month period and an 18 per cent increase over the same January - April period in 1955."

Cars in Adolescence

By G. E. Mortimore
"All Aboard" Columnist

A whole generation of gag-writers cut their teeth on jokes about midget cars. In fact some contemporary clowns are still wringing mileage from the subject.

Even at this late date, audiences respond with tired sniggers to quips about cars that are used for roller-skates, refuelled by eye-dropper and worn on charm bracelets.

They can still raise a smirk for the Packard that carried a Morris as a dinghy, and the orphan baby car whose daddy was a Rover.

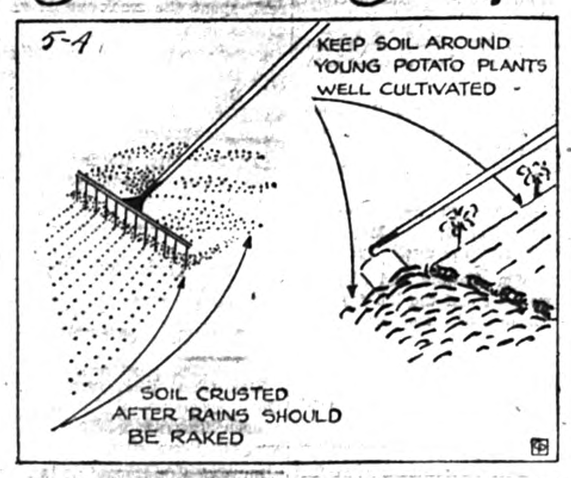

In recent years the baby car has confused the jokesmiths by growing larger. Manufacturers added another strip of chromium, another couple of cylinders, another six inches of genuine synthetic-leather seat, until (like Papa seeing daughter in a Bikini) they suddenly perceived that their baby had grown up.

After a decent interval, new baby cars were born to a number of automobile families. Manufacturers (chiefly in Britain and the Continent) began building SMALL cars once again.

If you want to see them and chuck them under the headlights while they are still in the cute and cuddly stage, you had better hurry. In a couple of years they will probably grow into clumsy adolescent cars that keep whining for a second helping of gas.

Garden-Graph

Whether you plant potatoes by the hill or trench method, after-care and cultivation are essential for a good crop.

If you plant potatoes in a trench the soil will be slightly ridged over the furrow. When it shows signs of crusting after rainfall, loosen it with an iron rake, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The loosened soil enables the young sprouts to get their heads above ground without too much of a struggle.

If potatoes are planted in hills, which means in holes scooped out of the ground, the seed pieces will have been covered with about an inch and a half of soil. When the sprouts come through the ground, pull the soil toward them with a hoe until the ground is more or less level.

Keep the soil around the young potato plants well cultivated, as shown in the Garden-Graph. This keeps weeds under control, an essential if you expect a good crop of potatoes. Cultivation, however, should be shallow to avoid cutting roots near the surface.

Cultivation should continue until the plants are large enough to fill the rows and have begun to set tubers. Since the tubers are frequently close to the soil surface, further cultivation might injure them.

As the plants mature, soil should be hoed up around them to help hold them upright and to protect the tubers from the sun.

Since potatoes do not like wet feet, the soil in which they are planted should be deeply dug and well drained.

BUILD NEW TRAILS IN B.C. MOUNTAINS FOR RADIO RELAYS

Vancouver (CP) — A tough road-building job will be undertaken by the British Columbia Electric company this summer to provide access to microwave relay stations.

"We will call them roads when we've finished, but nobody else would," said a company official.

The glorified mountain goat trails, passable only to four-wheel drive vehicles, will climb some of the most rugged peaks and ridges in the southern interior of British Columbia.

The high-frequency radio waves carried by the microwave link will accommodate television as well as telephone transmissions. They must travel in a direct line of sight from relay tower to relay tower, which means they're higher than intervening ridges.

On Mountain Tops

In B.C. the stations are placed atop mountains and in some areas as high as 7,000 feet above sea level.

"We had to pick the locations to establish our microwave relay stations. Now we've got to build the roads to provide access," a spokesman said.

At one location road construction is impossible and an aerial tram will be built to service it. This is the Dog Mountain site near Hope, at 5,000 feet. Highest station will be on a 7,000 peak near Fernie.

Roads will be built this year and stations and towers will be erected in 1957. By March of 1958 the Canadian-wide microwave installation will be completed.

B.C. Telephone Company will spend $5,000,000 for its section of the line and total cost for the trans-continental network will be $50,000,000.

Initially the microwave link will be able to carry a TV channel in each direction and 120 telephone circuits simultaneously. Because of the high frequency transmission telephone conversations will be completely static free, and TV will be free of interruptions.

The microwaves — as long as a cigarette compared with the 1,000 foot length of ordinary radio waves — will be transmitted from relay station to relay station.

Towers are no more than 30 miles apart and the trans-Canada link will have 137 of these.

NEW PAINT FOR MAKING HIGHWAYS

Paint chemists are busy developing new and better paints for marking the highways; paints which are easily distinguished in rain or shine, in daytime or nighttime.

Paints used to mark danger points or direction must be eye-catching instantly. One of the newest developments in this line is a white paint studded with special glass beads about the size of salt grains — the largest particles ever used are the size of granulated sugar. These glass beads are mixed with white paint which is used to mark the centre line on highways. As the headlights of cars hit the glass particles, the light is reflected, making it easier to see the lines at night.

In some places the white centre line paint is used as a warning device for bad curves on highways. White lines painted at the outer edge of the road call attention to places where the edge of the paving is rough and the road shoulder beyond is treacherous.

All these warning devices are there to help the motorist. A great deal of time and study by many people has gone into developing them. Obey them and have a happier holiday!

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

The X Factor

The X factor enables one patient to bounce back rapidly to health, while another suffering with the same illness is laid low for weeks or months.

This "indefinable factor of personal resistance" explains away the important and puzzling question why one patient recovers quickly and another does not. So says Dr. W. N. Leak, writing in a recent issue of the British medical journal Practitioner.

Although the wonder drugs have made it possible to knock out infections like pneumonia or strep throat in a few hours, actually it may be several weeks before a patient really feels well again.

Dr. Leak says that long, drawn-out recoveries also suggest that the infectious disease that strikes a patient may be an accessory rather than a primary cause of illness. It appears that something goes wrong inside the body and this may enable the disease-causing bacteria to multiply and become dangerous.

The physician sees the need for some kind of therapy which can simulate and stimulate the patient's internal defense mechanism. This kind of therapy, Dr. Leak says, would fortify the action of antibiotics and speed the process of recovery.

A combination of vitamins with antibiotics, Terramycin-SF and Tetracyn-SF, are the pioneer formulations that meet the requirements for a double-barrelled attack on infectious disease.

Terramycin-SF and Tetracyn-SF arm the patient automatically with the weapons he needs to destroy his infection and provide him simultaneously with the nourishment needed to accelerate his recovery—they bolster the X factor.

Exiled to Elysium

By Lewis Milligan

When Archbishop Mackarios was exiled from the Island of Cyprus to the Seychelles Islands, that action by the British government was severely criticized by many people and likened to the Soviet practice of liquidating political deviates. The comparison is away off the mark. If Cyprus had been occupied by Soviet Russia the Archbishop would never have been allowed to start any trouble in the first place. If he had been lucky enough to evade the firing squad, he would probably have been mercifully shipped off the Siberia. He is very fortunate in his present exile, for he has been transported to an earthly paradise.

The Seychelles are a group of islands forming a British crown colony in the Indian Ocean, 800 miles east of Zanzibar, Africa. The islands are out of the cyclone belt and are free from malaria, and their climate is salubrious. Sir Walter Besant, the novelist, in his Autobiography, gave a charming description of those islands as he viewed them from the ship while cruising in that part of the world. His description so impressed me when I read it many years ago that I condensed and transposed it with little alteration into the following prose poem:

The Languorous Isles

"Leaving behind Socotra's rock-bound coast, we steered south and, in the following dawn, hailed on the far horizon the Seychelles! There may be other islands in the world more beautiful than those, but I have seen nought to compare with them for loveliness, for the wonder and the magic of the hills that slope down to the sea, thick clad with trees and gorgeous color.

"In those tropic isles the sun knows but one season, and the year is one long summer. The encircling sea, laving the feet of those Elysian hills, glows with an inner light, so crystal clear that we could see, far down beneath the ship, a tangled forest lying motionless, while lazily above the weeds there rolled the sable form of an enormous shark.

"The Islanders, they say, are languorous; and those who go there in pursuit of trade lose all ambition and desire for wealth; they care for nothing in the outer world. Warmed through and through, they lie there in the shade, breathing the cool, sweet breezes from the sea. Life comes unsought, it lasts a little while, then goes away — where? No one knows or cares. Life is, that's all. What more can one desire? The whence or whither, why should one inquire?"

Personally, I can't feel a bit sorry for the Archbishop in his exile from that distracted island in the Mediterranean. His people should be grateful that they are under British rule and protection. They have more freedom and security as a British colony than they ever had before in their long and chequered history. The withdrawal of Britain from Cyprus might bring the Archbishop back from the Seychelles, but it might well result eventually in Soviet occupation and forced emigration of the rebellious Cypriots to the unsalubrious plains of Siberia.

PICKING UP STEAM

ARCTIC WILDLIFE STILL CHALLENGES SCIENCE EXPERTS

Montreal (CP) — Chances are slim that the North American Arctic will yield any hitherto unknown species of birds or animals, but scientists still have a lot to learn about the wildlife there.

"The study of the lives of arctic birds and animals on a systematic basis is just beginning," says C. H. D. Clarke, supervisor of wildlife management for the Ontario department of lands and forests.

Still far from complete is the scientists' first task, an inventory showing different specific entities, their geographical variations and distribution in time and space.

There is the commercial aspect, too, he writes in an article in the research journal Arctic, published by the Arctic Institute of North America.

"The productivity of the arctic is low, a fact that is often masked by large aggregations of individuals, and wildlife resources may easily be depleted. They can make their proper contribution to the economy of the land only under scientific management."

Gaps to be Filled

Comprehensive research opportunities for the immense area exist in life history studies, animal populations, diseases and parasites, and physiology, he says.

Chances of stumbling across hitherto undected species are "very limited," but he lists some research gaps to be filled.

The wolf has been studied in behavior, but "nothing has been done on the foxes." The cariboo is still lacking a special study and "the social behavior of the muskox would also make a worthwhile study." The larger bears should be studied before it is too late.

He notes that scientists possess a "substantial outline of the arctic population cycles, a characteristic feature being the great variation annually. But most of the details are lacking.

"No other biological problem is more important or more challenging."

Mr. Clarke says that Canada possesses only one laboratory equipped for biological work, "that of the defence research board at Fort Churchill, Man."

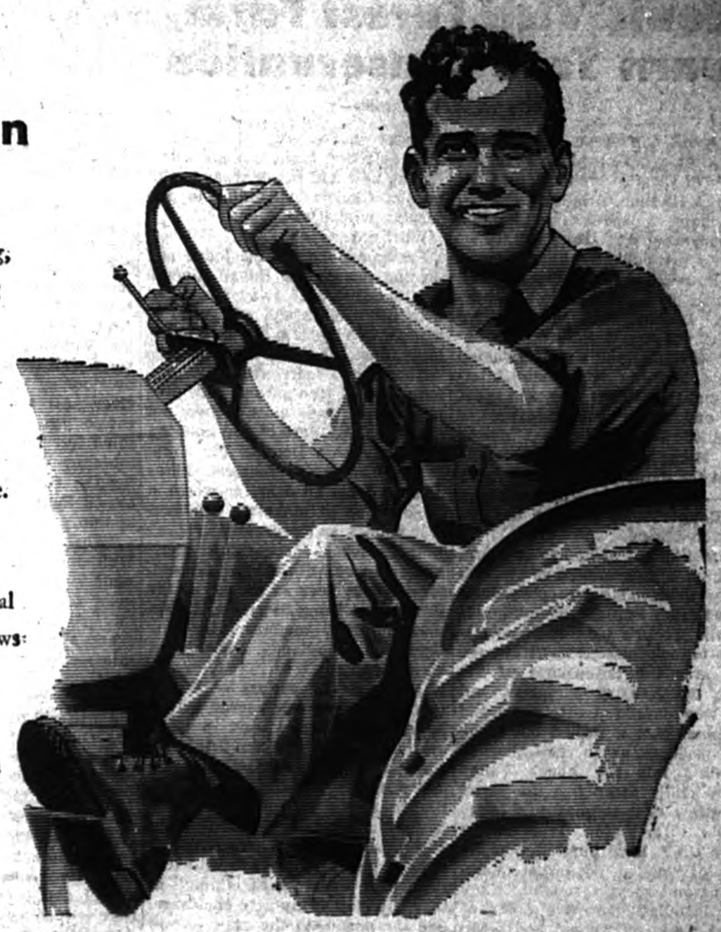

Dealing with existing collections of Arctic wildlife, Mr. Clarke recalls that the Smithsonian Institute is supposed to have dispatched barrels of rum northwards years ago. The idea was that trappers would return pickled specimens, but the story is that they drank the rum and returned well-prepared collections.

He says there are only "five good basic collections for the whole of the Yukon territory." The Northwest Territories are better off, but virgin collecting areas exist on the Arctic mainland of Canada, west of Hudson Bay. Other large gaps exist, he says.

Scouts Visit Forest Farm, Learn Tree Conservation

— By W. W. Freeland —

A spark can cause a forest fire and destroy the valuable timber assets of Canadians that nature has taken a lifetime to build.

Perhaps a spark was kindled recently that may help replace — or help prevent the millions of dollars lost each year by forest fires.

About 50 Scouts from Brownsburg, Lachute and Hawkesbury troops converged Saturday morning, May 12, upon the Harrington Tree Farm of Canadian International Paper Company, and spent the day under the guidance of "Manny" Wilson, Doug Morrison and Hans Anspach — learning about the outdoors — trees — wildlife — fire fighting — the beauty of the Rouge Valley and the Laurentians in spring.

Tumbling out of bed to an alarm clock on a dull, almost rainy "Saturday" to drive other people's children 40 miles into the mountains, is not the writer's idea of an experience to look forward to. However, such was the enthusiasm of the boys, the forestry engineers and the weatherman (with heat and sunshine) that it turned out to be an experience worth remembering.

Rolling into the Rouge Valley with a chilly damp fog, the cavalcade drew up to the beautiful lodge of the "Harrington Tree Farm" where C.I.P. have purchased 15,000 acres of wooded, somewhat mountainous and rocky farmland. They have installed over five miles of gravel roads on rugged and steep grades, and are not only demonstrating that trees can be a national asset continuously, if harvested on a selective basis, but are introducing new and better trees to this part of Canada and aiding in preserving wild life.

What did we see?

Parking alongside the lodge and turning toward the Rouge River a few hundred feet away and lined with white birch and evergreen — we saw beauty wrapped in a slight fog. Close at hand was a sign "Arboretum". Investigating, we found a real tree garden with over 100 kinds of trees, most of them not native to this part of the country. Included was a Douglas Fir (from British Columbia) fourteen kinds of birch from all over the world, a large group of mountain ash, several maples and evergreens.

"O.K. Boys — come this way!" Now we are with Hans Anspach, forestry engineer in charge of the station and Doug Morrison, Extension forestry engineer for the Grenville Woodlands Division of his company.

Questions — questions — "What's that?" — "A portable barker, driven by any tractor and used to clean up the smaller logs from 2 to 4 inches so that they can be used and not wasted. Barking such small timber at the mill with big logs destroys and wastes them."

"Oh, turkeys! — Where did they come from?" "They are wild turkeys with their wings clipped so they will stay in the wire enclosure. See the nest with the eggs — and the feed station." "They were imported from Pennsylvania and we hope to set some of them free in the bush, next fall." Hans, was the narrator.

An artificial lake too and wild ducks — not enclosed.

And here is a Balsam tree — a real "doozer" 70 feet high and 42 years old. When we came to a rocky field — too rough for normal farming — planted in fairly straight rows with White and Norway spruce and red pine trees ten years old, the boys got a better idea of the time it takes to grow a tree — but also a better appreciation of the value of apparently waste land when used to grow trees. But, "There's a rabbit!" "Hurry, you go that way," and a poor little frightened cotton-tail scampered into a clump of evergreens with what must have seemed like an army of excited Scouts after him. (He got away.)

"Here is a section that has been cut over," said Doug. "But there are still plenty of trees," say the boys. "Oh yes, you must leave the crown — or cover — of large trees or the land will be covered with raspberry and such bushes which will prevent any trees from seeding for many years." "Such land is waste, from the standpoint of a national asset."

"What kind of tree is that?" "Why do those trees grow from the top of a rotten log and a mossy stone?" "Well, the seed of that tree is very small and perhaps could not get started in the deep bed of leaves on the forest floor."

"What causes that lump? Is it a growth?" etc. Fifty boys — and some fathers — and some leaders — but thousands of questions.

"Here is a graft, and here is how it is done." It was Hans — showing his effort to graft an elm, resistant to the Dutch Elm disease, to our native elm stock. Our present white elm are being destroyed by this disease and this is an experiment to try and prevent loss of such fine species."

"And here are some hybrid poplars," Hans again, "we are testing over fifty varieties for the Ontario and Dominion Governments, Holland, Italy, New Zealand and U.S. universities." "Speed of growth is important." "Some of these grow seven feet per year." "Yes, most trees grow from seed, but the poplar and willow grow from cuttings."

Time for lunch. The boys had seen to that (or their mothers) — back to the lodge — and fast. Everybody was made welcome in the large, comfortable reception room with its large picture window overlooking the Arboretum and the river. All the fresh milk or hot coffee you could drink was supplied by "International".

"What do forestry engineers do?" Well, the forestry men gave them some ideas — but we had an afternoon project. Manny offered to talk personally with any boy or group of boys interested in further information about forestry. It is a wide and very important field.

But we are off. Down to one of the artificial ponds on the Farm, we go. One pond had a feeding station and some wild geese penned for wildlife preservation purposes.

"Here is a high pressure, gasoline powered, water pump and 100 feet of hose that can be carried to a fire on a man's back." "A portable water tank, handpumps, an axe, shovel and special type of cutter rake were shown and the fact pointed out that most forest fires can be stopped with little or no water by encompassing the blaze area with a 3 or 4 foot band of forest floor cleared of brush and inflammable material and patrolling this band to prevent the fire jumping across it."

Next came the "Big Dig" and a colored post with an aluminum plaque to prove it, "Planted by the Boy Scouts of Brownsburg, Lachute and Hawkesbury, May 12, 1956." .. 400 there were — Norway Spruce — seed selected from good parent specimen in Europe, grown four years in the Dominion nursery at Petawawa and double selected for seedling growth — planted by the guiding hand of a Boy Scout or leader.

Every boy — and adult — had his turn on the tractor driven planter and many were planted with a standard shovel or special hand tool. Several Scouts following the machine righted those left by inexperienced Scout operators.

The "Farm" plants 30,000 trees a year. It was an excellent day for this 400. The soil was wet and the day was now warm and sunny. The great need to keep the roots moist, was stressed.

Spirits were high and everybody was in the spring-planting mood. As a souvenir each troop was allowed to take a bundle of 25 specially selected Norway Spruce, 4 year old seedlings home to plant, so that somewhere in Lachute, Brownsburg and Hawkesbury is a great potential increase in the wealth of our nation — both in planted trees and planted ideas.

Before leaving, the foresters and their assisting staff were thanked on behalf of the boys and their leaders.

Civil Defence and Natural Disaster

Thirteenth in a series of 24 articles

Much is spoken and written these days about the destructive powers of the hydrogen bomb. Nations have their national defence plans and their civil defence plans cooking on the front burner in case they should be attacked with nuclear weapons. But there is another enemy, one that existed long before the H-Bomb and is capable of just as much destruction. It is, moreover, ever present: Nature.

In recent months, nature in the form of floods, hurricanes and even landslides has wrought destruction across widely scattered areas of Canada and the United States. The loss of life and property and the attendant suffering, both physical and mental, have been almost as great in some instances as if an H-Bomb had fallen. And the after-effects linger.

Preparation for disaster — almost any kind of preparation — could have prevented some of the loss and lightened much of the rest. The threat of disaster from the H-Bomb seems to have released a good many Canadians from a common inertia over preparing to defend themselves before the need to do so is forced upon them by emergency conditions. Canada's civil defence planners and more and more Canadians are beginning to see the advantages a civil defence plan in any community can provide — even if, as everyone earnestly hopes, the horrors of nuclear warfare never call it into play.

In the New England states last fall, for example, the destructiveness of hurricane and flood was greatly lightened in many areas because towns and cities, under the threat of the H-Bomb, had set up civil defence organizations.

In New Haven, Connecticut, the damage was light within the city itself. But its civil defence rescue units were able to come quickly to the aid of nearby communities hard hit by the elements.

The New Haven civil defence units alone were credited with rescuing almost 1,000 persons who otherwise might have perished or at least undergone prolonged discomfort.

The same thing happened in Manitoba's Brandon area when floods hit there last fall. The residents, through their extensive civil defence organization, were able to protect themselves. They did not have to call on the armed forces for aid.

The little civil defence organization just beginning to blossom in Nocolet, Quebec, had a part in rescuing some of that village's residents when a section of it slid into the river in October. Afterwards it set up a welfare centre to help care for those made homeless.

So, while civil defence aims primarily at organizing and training Canadians to protect themselves in event of war, its organization is proving invaluable in peacetime as well. For it provides direction and know-how. Willing workers are always available when disaster strikes, but for all their willingness, their efforts are often not nearly so effective as they would be with proper training.

A civil defence plan should, according to federal planners, be flexible. Therefore, a lumber town, for example, can organize its civil defence plan with the idea of meeting the threat of forest fires.

In that case, not only can lives be saved that otherwise might be lost, but property also can be saved if plans to meet the disaster are ready beforehand.

Canada's Civil Defence Co-ordinator, F. F. Worthington, has said he hopes civil defence will never have to be used in a war. But he added that when any disaster strikes where there were no previous plans to meet it, somebody always suffers needlessly.

New Dress for Guards' Pipe Band

Cpl. William Stirling, left, of Petawawa, and Pipe Major Archie Cairns of Hamilton, Ont., 2nd Battalion, Canadian Guards Pipe Band, model new dress uniforms for wear by pipers of the regiment. The wearing of the Royal Stuart tartan in the kilt and plaid was approved by HM the Queen some time ago. The kilt is unique inasmuch as it is pleated in back to show the tartan's darker colors. Four black tassels on the white horsehair sporran represent the regiment's four battalions. The bonnet is of black ostrich feathers with a red, white and blue diced band, similar to that worn by the Scots Guards Regiment. A red and white plume is worn on the left side of the bonnet. Only the 2nd and 4th Battalions of the Regiment of Canadian Guards have pipe bands.

Floating bridges have been used for military purposes from ancient times.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. I was working for two employers and earning a total of $50 a week. I lost one of these jobs. The second employer is paying me only $20 a week. Am I entitled to draw benefit because of having lost one of these jobs?

A. You would be entitled to benefit because you are, presumably, working less than your full normal week. A claimant, whilst on benefit, is allowed to earn a certain amount each week, such amount depending upon the rate of benefit. Any earnings in excess of the amount permitted, are deducted from the weekly rate of benefit.

• • •

Q. Is it not unfair for an American citizen to pay unemployment insurance contributions in Canada, when working in this country, because, should he become unemployed, whether in Maine or Vermont, the unemployment insurance stamps bought in Canada will not be credited to him in these States?

A. There is a reciprocal arrangement in effect between Canada and most of the States which permits such a person, if unemployed in one of those States, to be paid benefit by the Canadian Unemployment Insurance Commission on the basis of the contributions he made while working in Canada. Maine has not subscribed to this arrangement but Vermont has.

Q. Should an employer return insurance books directly to the unemployment insurance office or give them back to his employees at the end of their employment with him?

A. An employer must give an employee his insurance book when the employee leaves. If for good reason this cannot be done, then the employer is obliged to send the book to the local office.

SPECIAL CLASS

Fredericton (CP) — A special class for Grade IX children showing aptitude for special skills is being opened here, to give entrance qualifications for the New Brunswick Technical Institute.

Newsboys Support Youngster's Ambition To Become Priest

Quebec (CP) — An 11-year-old boy who sells newspapers on the sidewalks of Quebec City plans to become a Roman Catholic priest some day. And some 50 other newsboys are ready to help him by paying for his studies at a seminary.

The hopes and ambitions of many such newsboys here are known to three kindly members of the religious order, the Brothers of St. Vincent-de-Paul, who direct the order's work amongst the city's young newspaper sellers.

Headquarters for this work is in a side street of Lowertown Quebec's business centre, close to the newspaper printing plants. There the boys attend lessons and meet socially, when they are not out selling the day's publications.

The priests who listen to the youngsters are not surprised at the variety of trades and professions the boys wish to follow in a few years time. Former newsboys, who were under their supervision, have become firemen and policemen and there is one who became a wrestler. Two of the present generation hope to be ordained priests, while another aims to be an aviator.

Proud of Boys

Rev. Brother Fidele Fortin, teacher-director at the newsboys' foundation, is proud of the boys he knows as his "children". He says they are characterized by their kind-heartedness and willingness to help each other. An example of this is the boy who wants to become a priest, but whose parents are unable to send him to a seminary. This boy's studies will, therefore, be paid for by his young colleagues.

The fifty-odd members of Brother Fortin's "family" are all aged between nine and 17. When they are old enough to be allowed regular employment, Brother Fortin helps find them jobs.

The commission the boys receive from selling papers often goes "to help mother" or to buy little gifts. However, at least one of them has a bank account. Since December 1953 he has saved some $242.

Obviously Brother Fortin has a budding financier in his midst.

TAKE SOME CARE

Let's not burn grass unless we are more than sure we can keep it under control. Keep matches away from children and use that ash tray in the car. A cigarette butt thrown from your car window could cause a million dollar loss in buildings or timber.

Successful Rotary Trout Derby Swimming Pool Benefits from Funds

Local Fishermen Win Prizes Over-all Small Catch Reported

The Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club Trout Derby held last Saturday in the A. D. McGibbon & Sons Woodland Park, north of Lake Louisa, drew 961 participants and almost 400 cars, giving the local service club a gross profit of over $900, exclusive of light expenses.

Herbert McDonald, of Lakefield, caught the largest fish, a grey trout that tipped the scales at 6 pounds 6¼ ounces. The winner with the largest red trout was Stan Baily, of 4245 Hampton Avenue, Montreal, with a fish weighing 1 pound 14 ounces. A special prize for the junior contestants in the Derby was won by Brian White, 12, of Brownsburg, who weighed-in a trout at 1 pound 13 ounces. Prizes for the winners of the contest will be awarded at a special Rotary dinner meeting to be held next Thursday, June 7.

An American contestant who had read of the contest, arrived at the gate at 9.15 p.m., Friday, and slept in his car in order to be one of the first in the park. This determined gentleman was highly delighted when he caught two trout the following morning. Approximately 60 cars were lined up waiting for the gate to open when five a.m. rolled around and a total of 151 cars had passed through an hour later.

Bob Atchison, former Eastern Canada Fly Casting Champion, was in attendance at the Derby representing The Sport Centre, Lachute. He demonstrated the art of fly casting near Round Lake to numerous enthusiasts.

It is estimated that approximately 400 trout were caught, leaving many fishermen without a catch, but all contented with having spent a day in the open and at the same time, having helped raise funds for the local Swimming Pool to which all proceeds will go.

In speaking of the event, Rotary Club officials expressed their sincere appreciation to Messrs. McGibbon for their fine gesture in granting the Club permission to use their Woodland Park, lakes and streams, and to all others who assisted in any manner towards the success of the event.

On the spot co-operation was in evidence from Game Wardens, fire-rangers and the communications branch of the Highland Cadets under Capt. Gordon Tabrett.

Large Entries In Cattle Classes At Local Fair

No Blame Attached In Child's Death At Grenville

A verdict of "Accidental death with no criminal responsibility" was handed down in Grenville last Thursday night, at an inquest into the death of eight-year-old Albert Amedei, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henri Amedei, of Grenville.

A picked jury from Lachute judged the case, presided over by district coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur, and exonerated Romeo Blain, 31, of Hawkesbury, of all responsibility. A different jury from the one previously selected was deemed necessary when certain untrue rumors were made known to the authorities. Numerous witnesses testified at the lengthy inquest, but the jury took little time to deliver their verdict.

The youthful victim was pronounced dead on arrival at the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, on Saturday, May 12, after he had been struck by Blain's car while running on the road after a ball.

Local Forum President Attends Annual Meeting At Macdonald College

On Saturday, May 26, at 10.00 a.m. Ross Oswald represented the County of Argenteuil at the Annual Meeting of the Quebec Farm Forum Association at Macdonald College.

The meeting was called to order at 10.30 a.m. and the minutes of the previous annual meeting were read and approved. The members were welcomed by Dr. H. G. Dion, Dean of Macdonald College. The President's, Secretary's and Financial Reports were then read.

The new constitution and by-laws were presented and accepted after much discussion. The main change is the fact that the Province of Quebec is divided into five zones with a director and alternate director from each zone.

Argenteuil is in Zone Two (Counties of Gatineau, Labelle, Two Mountains, Papineau and Argenteuil). After lunch Dr. E. A. Lods of Macdonald College gave an interesting talk on "Education and What It Meant". The election of officers for 1956-57 was held and Reg Hodge of Compton Con. was elected president; past-president is Walter Hodgman of Compton, and vice-president is Mrs. Carl Anderson of Chateauguay-Huntingdon.

Director for Zone Two is. John McDermid of Papineau and Ross Oswald of Argenteuil was elected as alternate director. The meeting was then adjourned.

Large Attendance at Rally District Well Represented

Approximately 1,000 Uniformed Youths Take Part in 7th Annual Event

Notwithstanding competition from other events, the Seventh Annual Rally of the Scout and Guide organizations was held at the Fair Grounds last Saturday when approximately 1,000 uniformed Guides, Brownies, Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs from almost all the towns in the Laurentian District met under favorable weather conditions.

The guests of honor were Jackson Dodds, C.B.E., Deputy Chief Scout for Canada, accompanied by Cyril J. Dendy, Provincial Executive Commissioner. The Girl Guide organization was honored by the presence of Mrs. A. E. Leslie, Provincial Guide Commissoner; also the Laurentian Foothills District with Mrs. H. L. Lambourne as District Commissioner and Argenteuil District with Mrs. E. K. Wilson as District Commissioner.

A luncheon was held for the guests of honor and the Executive, members of the band from the Boys Farm and Training School, Shawbridge, and the members of St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Following the luncheon a Baden Powell Statuette was presented to Wes Freeland, Past President of the Laurentian District of The Boy Scouts Association, in appreciation of his services as Secretary 1947 to 1950 and President from 1950 to 1955. The presentation was made by Bernard A. Jenkins, of Lachute, who succeeded Mr. Freeland as president last October.

Most of the Guides and Boy Scouts paraded from the C.P.R. station to the Fair Grounds, headed by the band, following the arrival of the chartered train about 10.00 a.m.

The program commenced about .00 p.m. with Flag Break and all nits assembled in the circle, followed by the March Past.

Arrests and Fines In Traffic Cases

Réal ("Buck") Robinson, of Lachute, pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding on Bedard Blvd. and was sentenced to a fine of $10 plus costs. The infraction took place early in May and Robinson recently appeared before Justice of the Peace St. Onge, who levied the fine.

André Desjardins, of Montreal, appeared before Georges Brunelle, J.P., last week and pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding on Main Street East.

Desjardins was arrested May 18 and released on deposit of $20 bail; the fine was set at $10 plus costs.

Two drivers of Motorways Transport, Henri Leduc, of Montreal and Aldeo Bissionnette of Hull, failed to appear in Police Court last week and thereby forfeited their $20 deposits. The two were picked up for speeding on Main Street East (speed limit for these transports being 20 m.p.h.) and were charged with going "in excess of 30 m.p.h."

Costs in all cases were $7.

Local Airman Escapes Injury In Jet Crash

The local airman joined the RCAF in July, 1953, after attending Lachute High School. He received his early training in Eastern Canada and will graduate as a frame technician early next month.

At the time of the crash, he was in a plane flown by FO Henry A. Nickless, of Hamilton, Ont., who also escaped injury.

LACHUTE BUSINESS MAN KILLED INSTANTLY IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Wilfrid Raymond, 49-year-old Lachute restaurant operator, was instantly killed late Thursday night when the car which he was driving crashed into a field of rocks on a curve on Route 30, just north of the Hammond sawmill.

According to Sgt. Det. Ralph Allen, the accident occurred around 11.45 p.m., and the victim was alone in the car at the time. It appears that the car failed to make the curve and went straight ahead off the pavement.

Traffic Officer Gerard Loyer, who investigated, stated there was a straight tire mark on the pavement that 'could possibly have been made by a flat tire or blow-out". Investigation following the accident revealed that both right tires were broken, while the left tires were in good order. It has not been determined whether the tires were broken before or during the accident, however. The 1954-model Buick was demolished in the crash.

Wilfrid Raymond, who has been in business many years here, was manager of the Tourist Inn restaurant, and formerly operated a grocery business on Bethany Street. He is survived by his wife, the former Inez McKiddie, three sons, Francois, of Montreal, Edouard (Kenny) and Douglas, both of Lachute, and three daughters, Evelyne (Mrs. Jacques Lemay), of Brownsburg, Isabelle and Pauline, both of Lachute; four brothers, Joseph, and Gregoire, of Lachute, Armand, of Cornwall, and Hubert, of Hull, also two sisters, Jeanne (Mrs. Camille Belanger), of Lachute, and Rev. Sister St-Hubert (Bernadette), presently in Brownsburg.

Funeral service was held Monday morning from the St. Julien Parish Church, Lachute Mills.

At an inquest held Tuesday evening under district coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur, numerous witnesses were heard prior to the six-man jury handing down a verdict of accidental death.

L.H.S. Students Exhibit Work In Various Handicrafts

The Industrial Arts students of Lachute High School held their annual display last Friday in the High School. One of the highlights proved to be the projects displayed by the noon hour Hobby Classes, the majority of whom are girls. Notable among these were walnut trays by Eileen Elder, Joyce Davis and Rose Ann Welden; while equally creditable were various colored upholstered footstools by Elaine Berry, Shirley MacGeorge, Lois Silverson and Iris Lang.

In the younger classes were lamps by Helen Black, Eileen Bryson; turned dishes by Shirley Bradshaw and Gail Dwyer. Featured in leathercraft were beautifully executed ring binders by Marj Hay and Bertha Pollock; key cases by Bruce Hay; comb cases by Bruce Hay, Gran Rogers and Marj Hay.

Outstanding in woodwork was a cedar chest by David Pollock, an upholstered easy chair by Arthur Gauley and a clothes wardrobe by Carl Rodger. David Touchette completed three identical modern chairs. Still in the upholstered furniture was a modern desk chair by Bobby Armstrong with a matching footstool by Henry Todd.

Few built-up turned lamps would equal those by Frank Karch, Grant Rogers and Roger Labreche. A desk by Bruce Hay was the feature of the den setting on display. Living rooms were amply furnished with coffee tables by Hugh Pollock, Earl McCaskill and John Welden; end tables by Brian and Randolph Noble, Bill Robinson, Ron Boyd, Richard Antle; step tables by Wayne Laurin and Ron Bain.

In the smaller projects lawn ornaments by Angus Todd, George Rogers, David Heggie, George Silverson proved equally popular as trays by Bobby Hay, Alexander Bridge, Wayne MacRae and Robert Bedard. Turned candy dishes tested the skills of Rodger Titman, Ron Clarke and Ron Cairns. Robert MacAdam is credited with a well constructed built-up smoke stand. Various designs of turned lamps were exhibited by Doug MacKenzie, Eddie Leishman, James Brass, Calvin Morrow and Ron Gauley.

Knife racks by Robin Fraser, Bryant Graves, Cameron Rodger and Lindsay Green; tea pot holders by Keith Rogers, Garry Cruise, Wendell Hyde and George Armstrong; book racks by Lloyd Elder, Keith MacDonald, Barry Downing, and turned dishes by Carl MacCrea and Wayne Cox added greatly to the success of the display. Metal projects included cookie cutters, book ends and sugar scoops by David Black, Ralph MacRae, Henry Hodge, Del MacTavish and Norman Goodwin.

Last but not least were two tables; one a chrome arborite table by Stewart Robertson; the other an outside lawn table by Ian Duncan.

The Home Economics classes on Friday evening held a fashion show in the gymnasium. All the models were students of Lachute High School and each girl modeled a garment which she had made during the year.

To begin the show the Grade VI girls showed their aprons made in school colors. Next the Grade VII's presented their gay cotton skirts. After this a variety of cotton dresses, jumpers, plaid skirts worn with velvet weskits, woollen dresses, cotton dusters and winter cottons were modeled by the girls of Grade VIII, IX and XB. A number of these garments featured sweeping skirts, the long torso line and the Princess line. To close the show the Grade XI girls presented lovely dusters made of sculptured nylon.

The commentator was Beverley Hadley, while Lois Silverson supplied the music. Miss A. Sudabury and Mrs. D. Clarke helped the girls with make-up and dressing. The Fashion Show was directed by Miss M. McVittie, the Household Science teacher.

Successful Financial Campaign Reported Plans Laid for Local C.N.I.B. Work

Women's Auxiliary Formed to Assist in Rehabilitation and Recreation

A meeting of members of the Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, Laurentian District, was held at the Town Hall on Tuesday, May 22, with L. A. McClintock acting as chairman in the absence of Dr. Eric Mongeon.

Speaking of the campaign receipts, Mr. McClintock praised the people of the various communities for the interest and help they have given to the work of Mr. Zeplaski in particular, as well as all those concerned with C.N.I.B.

Lachute	$1,500.00
Brownsburg	596.35
St. Andrews East	179.15
Grenville	888.40
Chatham	327.49
Morin Heights	152.06
St. Adolphe de Howard	10.00
Argenteuil Municipal Council	100.00

These, together with miscellaneous smaller contributions have made a total of $3,885.39.

Expenditures from April 1, 1955 until March 31 of this year totalled $3,591.82 and included $605 for local administration; $82 for campaign materials; $1,456 for field work and registration; $320 for relief; $134 for examinations and glasses; $365 for home teaching and $627, which was offset by a Provincial grant, for Head Office general expenses.

Discussion followed on several local cases and it was decided that a sum of $10 per month would be alloted to each of those concerned.

The report of Field Secretary Tony Zaplaski was presented and included a section on prevention work in which it was stated that

St. Andrews Week-End Art Show Has Various Painting Techniques Exhibited

Local artists hang 90 canvasses in successful first-showing

The exhibition of paintings held in St. Andrews East on Saturday, May 26, for which long and careful preparations had been made by the committee, came up to full expectations. The two rooms in the United Church hall had both the aspect and the atmosphere of a real art gallery. Some ninety canvasses, hung under the professional direction of Miss Paige Pinneo, were of remarkable variety and promise, and collectively formed an exhibition not only of stimulating interest but of real beauty. Portraits, landscapes, still life, and one charming interior represented techniques both conservative and modern. The greater part of the work was by amateurs but a few professional pieces were contributed by Miss Alberta Cleland, Miss Paige Pinneo, Mrs. Vivian Walker, Miss Janine Laroux, and Mr. W. R. Damant.

In welcoming some two hundred people from different parts of the county and from Montreal, Mrs. Forbes, president of the Women's Association, said, in part:

"The committee has met with wonderful co-operation from all quarters. We hope that the venture will lead to greater things in the future — perhaps annual exhibitions at the Carillon Museum or other points in the county and perhaps to a permanent Argenteuil Art Organization." Thanks were due in particular to Mr. Titman of The Watchman for steady encouragement, and to Miss Pinneo for constant help and advice.

Mrs. Forbes then introduced Miss Janine Laroux, Lachute artist and teacher, who gave a short inspiring address in French on the aims of painting. "A civilization is judged by its art," she said in substance. . . "True art has soul as well as technique. Inward experience externalized by means of a technique — that is art, that is painting. . . The true artist has a sense of values; discerns the essential — distinguishes it from the non-essential. . . The pleasure of painting is an ideal pleasure — that of the artist who delivers his soul and fulfills his mission."

Miss Pinneo was then introduced. She read informally some excerpts from a number of little essays, written by her teen-age pupils, on the pleasures of painting. "It teaches you to see beauty in things." "One finds how interesting shapes can be." "It's fun to mix the colors and invent new colors." "It helps to relax the mind." Painting "gives one a change from every-day work." "It helps you to appreciate good art. When you paint and then look at other people's paintings, you can tell what kind of a mood they are in." For lonely people "painting means friends in a world all their own." To the young it gives a taste in color and design for . . . their homes." It affords the power of "expressing oneself in a beautiful way."

Throughout the afternoon a crowd of visitors moved from picture to picture in the gallery, and continued their discussion over the tea tables downstairs. It was felt by all that the exhibition had brought to light not only a widespread enthusiasm for the study and practice of painting but an astonishing amount of local talent.

In the evening a group assembled in the municipal hall to see moving pictures on the work of Quebec painters and Krieghof, Lismer and Varley, shown by Miss Pinneo. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Percy Hall for a most enjoyable evening.

Photographer Captures Fox

This picture, Watchman photographer Syd Drew could not take. Last Friday evening, on his return from Arundel, Syd spotted various wild animals, including three foxes a short distance from Brownsburg. This one was caught with a flying tackle that placed his hands around the rear legs of the animal which was then brought to Lachute in the car trunk.

Lieut. Oscar Sabourin, of the Lachute Police force, gets credit for the picture. The fox, which was some 15 inches long (excluding the tail) was later released.

High-Producing Jersey

Senior three-year-old R.O.P. Jersey production honors for the mature 365-day division were taken by North River W.R. Maid, who produced 11,097 pounds of milk and 660 pounds of fat. The animal is one of a herd owned by Dr. G. R. McCall, of Lachute.

Maj.-Gen. Phelan Inspects Cadets

The cadets of "D" Company, No. 4 Highland Cadet Battalion were inspected last Monday evening in the school yard at Lachute High School by Major-General F. R. Phelan, of St. Andrews East.

Although few in number, only twenty-eight cadets being on parade, the unit made a fine showing, performing the drill movements of the ceremonial with the precision of well trained soldiers. Following the ceremonial review, General Phelan, accompanied by Capt. G. Tabret, Officer Commanding the Company, and Lieut. L. Bouchard from the Cadet Training Office of Quebec Command Headquarters, watched the cadets in demonstrations of the various types of training followed through the regular training season.

Scouts Disembark for Rally

Scouts, Cubs, Guides and Brownies disembarked from a special train Saturday morning prior to their parade to the Lachute Fair grounds where the 7th Annual Scout-Guide Rally, Laurentian District, was held. Deputy Chief Scout Jackson Dodds, CBE, was the guest of honor in attendance.

It DOES matter which Oil Burner you buy!

If you're in the market for an oil burner, there are dozens for you to choose from. They all look very much alike. They all burn oil. Some are pretty efficient, others less so. But, unless you're an engineer, there's no way for you to decide which burner is best for your needs, except by insisting on one made by a reputable, long-established manufacturer. Like Smart's, for example. We recommend Smart's series "A" oil burners because when we sell one we know that the customer is going to be satisfied with the deal, for a long time. If that seems to you to be a good reason for buying a Smart's oil burner, let us show you the complete range, and tell you all about them.

Farm Forum Council Supports Constitution

A meeting of the Argenteuil Farm Forum Council was held in the Agronome's Office on May 22, at 8.30 p.m. The President, Ross Oswald, chaired the meeting and Mrs. Allan Walker was acting Secretary in place of Miss Margaret Brass who was unable to be present. Other members present were Ernest McOuat, Stuart Armstrong and Jean Pintal.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted as read by E. McOuat and D. Clarke. The new constitution which was drawn up by the Quebec Farm Forum Association was discussed briefly and decided that Ross Oswald should support it when it is presented at the Annual Meeting of the Quebec Farm Forum Association at Macdonald College on Saturday, May 26. Ross Oswald is to represent Argenteuil. E. McOuat and Mrs. K. Kettyle moved that a flag (Union Jack) be erected on top of the Farm Forum Booth at the Lachute Spring Fair. Local Ayrshires Awarded Gold Seal Certificates

Two Ayrshires, owned by J. P. Bradley & Son, Lachute Road, were recently awarded Gold Seal Certificates for producing 100,000 pounds of milk or more. It is interesting to note that of the 20 classified animals which received the award, eight are "Excellent" the highest rating in the Type Classification plan. Both local animals are in this classification.

Glengarry Wonderful has produced 110,794 pounds of milk, 4,904 pounds of fat in seven lactations, which is an average of 15,800 pounds of milk, 701 pounds of fat for her first seven lactations. Included is her All Canadian Butterfat record on 2x milking of 956 pounds of fat from 22,375 pounds of milk. She was bred by Cumming Brothers, Lancaster, Ontario.

Topline's Kitty has 108,679 pounds of milk, 4,202 pounds of fat in nine lactations. She was bred by Erskine McOuat, Brownsburg, Que.

ARUNDEL GRADUATION CEREMONIES "HELD" IN PARISIEN CAFE SETTING

On Friday evening the Graduation dance took place in the school Auditorium, with over two hundred guests attending. Too much praise cannot be tendered to the decorating committee who went to so much trouble to get the wonderful results shown.

When entering the auditorium, you were for the time being transferred to France, as the whole Auditorium was laid out in a replica of the Parisien sidewalk cafes. Tables were placed along the walls, which were enclosed in a white picket fence entwined with evergreen foliage. A canopy of green and gold streamers, the school colors, was formed over this and at intervals Japanese lanterns had been hung giving a soft glow to the hall.

In the centre of the hall, that had been reserved for dancing, a rustic well had been placed which was banked with beautiful flowers and greens, giving the final touch to a really artistic and beautiful scene.

At nine o'clock a signal was given and four girls and four boys dressed as pages in pale blue and white costumes marched in and took their various stations in the hall. This was followed by Principal and Mrs. Melvin Graham who led in the grand march consisting of the school staff and their escorts and the graduates. A smart drill was performed, after which the performers broke up into a dance.

During the evening Principal Graham introduced the graduates who came forward individually to receive their congratulations from their principal and Mr. T. Hall Cox, Chairman of the School Board. The graduates were as follows — The Misses Violet Debeau, Lois Godin, Marion MacDonald, Joan Williams, Barbara and Isabelle Sinclair, Messrs. David Dewar, Ronald Williams and Brian Staniforth. Miss Barbara Sinclair expressed the thanks of the class in reply to the good wishes expressed to them.

Supper was then served, after which dancing was resumed, bringing a very successful and enjoyable evening to a close. Appreciation is extended to Mr. Frank Boyd and his orchestra who rendered such delightful music during the evening.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Rathwell, Low, Que., Mr. and Mrs. Mac Walker, Lachute, Mr. and Mrs. C. Forbell, St. Jovite, Mr. and Mrs. Fenton, 'Otter Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Carrière, Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. J. MacMahon, Lachute, Miss Dianne Barrie, Mrs. D. Swenney, Mr. and Mrs. A. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Dobbie, all of Montreal.

Lachute Spring Fair — Time Marches On!

In the short period of two weeks, The Lachute Spring Fair will be in full swing. Entries closed several days ago, with the exception of Women's Handicrafts entries which close tomorrow. Most classes are well above average although a little smaller than last year's all-time record. To date it has been a rather backward Spring, most different to that of last year, this effecting entries in a few classes.

Secretary-Manager Syd Patterson on Monday informed us that with but a few small exceptions, all arrangements have been completed and final details that always crop up are well in hand. Machinery and Industrial exhibits have been increased in numbers and the Horse Show will be far superior to that of past years.

Your exhibit at the local "show" will add to its quality as well as being a benefit to yourself. It will mean advertising to you as being in the premier class of farming. This exhibition is primarily an agriculture show but it needs the support of all local citizens, all of whom will find sections of interest to themselves, if it is to be a success. Patronize this show as you have never patronized it before; it can mean much towards its success and the success of the community.

Money Comes Back

"The money you spend at home comes right back to you" is the slogan which was adopted by the merchants of another town in a recent advertising campaign. It gave a new angle to the idea that it is of decided advantage to do what buying has to be done in the home town, rather than going elsewhere to spend dollars earned in the home community. This thought, we feel, applies locally with even greater force than it does to the town in which the slogan was used.

Few people stop to think that a large portion of the money spent in their home community comes right back to them. The local merchants pay business taxes to help build roads and schools to provide for fire and police protection. A considerable portion of the money they take in goes to support the community. They employ local people, and the more business they do the larger the payrolls. The men and women they employ spend their money in the community, or we hope they do. They buy the things which other employers make and sell, thus keeping the town busy and prosperous.

There is an old adage about the value of supporting home industries. It is just as important to support the retail business of the town. There are very few, if any, human needs which cannot be met right here in Lachute at prices that compare favorably with those anywhere else. By shopping with and supporting their home business, the local citizens will at the same time be supporting their own community, and in many cases, their own livelihood.

Challenge of Science

University heads lately have been putting more and more emphasis on the need for a larger number of students taking higher education.

These and other leaders in education aren't just seeking more entrants for the academic halls. They are trying to prepare for the problem of the future, when a shortage of trained scientists might slow down progress.

In an address at Vancouver the other day Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario at London, Ont., said: "What we consider assets in natural resources were considered by our forefathers as barriers of progress. Now Canada's future is unlimited — if we have people to do this type of development work."

And he asked: "Where are the people to develop Canada, unless we can comb the Dominion and make it possible for an increased number to have the oportunity for more education?"

Right now, owing to the rapid advance of science, there is a shortage of scientists, technologists and technicians in many countries. Russia's apparently successful efforts to cope with this problem have added to the misgivings in the free world.

There are different levels in science. The pure scientist is concerned only with theory, someone like an Einstein or a Lord Rutherford. The fundamental applied scientist deals with basic principles which affect a whole range of applications. The technologist is the one who thinks how scientific ideas can be made to work in an industrial world, and the technician is the one who actually puts them to work.

All these are in increasing demand. A recent BBC broadcast which pointed up the shortage of science teachers stressed the need for convincing science graduates that teaching in itself is a worthwhile vocation.

In Canada, as elsewhere, the question includes getting enough experts to train other experts. And the problem must be solved if Canada is to face adequately the challenge of the new age.

Government Aid Ending

Maple syrup producers in this area are renowned for the amount and quality of this succulent aliment they produce every year. Next year, they may find the cost of producing will increase, for the Federal aid they received for purchasing aluminium sap pails may be withdrawn.

In 1951, the metal pails our ancestors had used for ages without misgiving, or mishap, were condemned to be replaced by aluminium containers; a big advantage for the manufacturers of aluminium pails. Since that time, over seventeen million of the old cans have been replaced, but there still remains over five million more in the hands of syrup makers.

Dr. Pierre Gauthier has repeatedly asked the Federal Government to continue their aid for another two years, but Ottawa has turned a deaf ear. It may be interested in wheat, or butter, but not in syrup.

SOMETIME in June, Canada builds its millionth post-war home.

One million new houses or housing units in 11 years, or almost one third of our grand total, is a truly remarkable achievement—observes The Financial Post. And much more than lumber, brick, cement and steel goes into these units. . .

One million new housing units also means one million new stoves, one million new refrigerators, one million new telephones installed and more than a million suites of furniture, rugs, drapes, pictures, beds, chairs and so on.

The building and equipping of new homes in Canada since the end of the war has been one of the biggest factors behind our present prosperity.

Friday Night on Main Street

• Geoff's Journal •

"Revenge Is Sweet!"

When O'Brien blew in for breakfast, he was loaded down with mail.

"Huh," grunted Garfat, "some people have all the luck. What did you ever do to deserve all those letters."

"Plenty", O'Brien countered, "and the flood's not over yet. I expect double this number before the week is out."

O'Brien spread the day's haul before him on the table and sat down to eat his breakfast. Between gulps of cereal, he read portions of an old letter that he hauled from his coat pocket.

"Got this one, and scores like it, a few weeks ago. All said the same thing. Listen!

"Dear Mr. O'Brien,

'Jason and I have been wondering whether you have made any commitments as yet regarding your summer holidays. As you know, we are leaving for St. Theodolite-de-Trois-Surveys as soon as Wilberforce comes home from school. We would be absolutely delighted if you could come along with him to join us at "Quicksands" for the holiday period.

'Jason says to tell you that the fish are biting like fury, and I'm sure that you will have plenty of time to capture the wonders of St. Theodolite's artistic beauty with your facile brushes.

'May we expect you then, if you have no other plans?

'Very sincerely,

(Mrs.) Theodora Wentworth-Bottomley'."

O'Brien tossed the letter to one side and made a lunge at the toast.

"You're not accepting?" Haggerty enquired.

"Most certainly not!" Harry asserted firmly. "I have no intention of summering with W-B's at 'Quicksands'. Nor do I intend accepting any of the other 25-odd invites I've received. It's all a gimmick!"

"Gimmick?" I ventured. "What do you mean by that?"

"All the kids hereabouts know I can paint in oils — and so do their parents. They all know, too, that my canvasses command top prices in every art gallery across Canada. So they believe that all they need do is invite me up for the summer, get me to paint their favorite scenes and then leave my art behind me at summer's end. It's supposed to be my thank-offering for lousy fishing and a most indifferent holiday."

Harry attacked his breakfast again and we toyed with our second cup of coffee.

"I think I've hit the right solution," he continued soon after. "And I'm willing to bet they don't invite me again, ever!"

At this, Harry pulled another letter from his coat pocket and passed it over to the Padre.

"Dear Mrs. Bottomley,

'Thank you very much for your kind invitation to spend the summer holiday with you at "Quicksands."

'I shall be delighted to accept your offer and you may expect me by the same train as Wilberforce.

'Unfortunately, I have been commissioned to take care of the School's menagerie this summer, and I'm sure you won't object if I bring the beasts along. No doubt Wilberforce has told you about them in his weekly letters. We have a rare tarantula, two diamond-back rattlers, a brace of scorpions, three mud turtles, a salamander and a very engaging baby skunk. These will arrive a day or so before me but I will make sure all are fed and watered before shipping so that you will have no need to bother with them until I arrive.

'I hope you won't mind if I don't bring my paints with me. Sad to say, I've abandoned oils for ceramics. Clay work is a mussy business at best but I promise not to create more chaos in your living-room and kitchen than is absolutely necessary.

'Looking forward to another summer of fun in the sun, I am,

'Yours very sincerely,

'Harry M. O'Brien'."

Harry put on his famous Irish grin.

"Their latest letter," he beamed, 'sent special delivery and which reached me this morning, regrets they can't entertain me as planned. Seems Jason's had an urgent call to visit Britain during July and August — along with the 25 other school families. All dreadfully sorry, but perhaps another year . . ."

"Peace," he declared beneficiently, "it's wonderful!"

OF MANY THINGS

Help Wanted

I have been reading the classified section of the newspapers lately, and I am impressed by the large number of help wanted advertisements. Jobs seem very plentiful compared to the days of my youth. I wondered what kind of a response advertisers were getting. I found out yesterday.

A business friend had advertised in Winnipeg papers for office help. He asked me to go over the applications with him to help make a selection. I learned a great deal about job hunting in the process. I'd like to pass some hints along to young readers who may be looking for their first job.

Some candidates ruled themselves out in the first few sentences by careless spelling. Others neglected telling about their qualifications. Very few took pains to assure the advertiser that he would gain anything by employing them; they were too busy telling the advertiser the kind of hours and wages they wanted. His interests seemed to be secondary in their opinion. But one little girl won herself the job (and it is a good job) by adding this final paragraph to her application:

"I don't guarantee that I won't make mistakes — but I do promise that I will work hard at any task you set before me. It will be my first job, and I am keen to make a big success of it. My plan is to work so hard you'll never want to be without my services."

Yes, there are lots of jobs; but I am afraid there aren't enough applicants with that spirit. The rare few who do possess it will rise high in any free country where energy and enterprise are valued. They just can't miss!

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Some people tune out radio and television commercials in their minds without touching the set. They can feel a commercial in advance, and when it arrives they are already thinking or talking about something else.

They are endowed with a kind of selective deafness and blindness, Nature's shock-absorber for people who live in a world infested with loud, shrill and fatuous demands for attention.

In the long run, people endowed with the gift of selective deafness, and blindness may be only the ones who survive.

* * *

During the Korean war, a newspaper ran exactly the same war story for several days, and nobody noticed. It became obvious that some people were selectively blind to news stories too.

I find it in myself. There are a number of cliché statements which automatically switch off my attention, or divert it.

Statements that young people are (or are not) holding wild parties; that they are (or are not) basically clean-living after all; that juvenile delinquency (is not) on the increase; that school pupils can't (can) read and spell.

Claims that Russia really means to be friendly now (or that Russia is softening us up for the kill); warnings that Soviet power is greater (smaller) than American power; statements by various observers that the Russian people are restive, content, fiercely loyal or ready to rebel.

* * *

At the mere sight of such themes, a fog drifts in, and when it clears I find myself reading the comics.

Disquieting Attitudes

The suggestion that some of labor's leaders are acquiring a complex that suggests to them that they are more powerful than any other leaders or groups is frankly disquieting. Let us make the point out of their own mouths. Witness the words of Frank Hall, head of the railroad workers, and the opening session of a recent Conciliation Board hearing.

"This is an industrial dispute," he said, "and I object to witnesses being obliged to swear on the bible to tell the truth."

STRIDES IN NORTH

The Dominion census planned for June should be of special interest to the Peace River country. The facts and figures compiled in June will be the first official measurement of the long strides taken by this northern district in the last five years. Certainly, there will be some striking examples of growth among Peace River centres.

SMALL RETURNS

This newspaper deplores the growing tendency of most governments to take increasing amounts of money from citizens, turning around, and then, in a great fit of generosity, giving us some of it back. Why take the money from the people in the first place?

ROAD ROUTING

The majority of people would go along with the idea of main highways bypassing the communities. But an adequate connecting road is by no means an unreasonable request.

RUNNING COSTS

There are supposed to be gas turbines which can subsist on practically anything from coal dust to old candle ends. What we feel is really needed is a motored vehicle which will run on grapefruit rinds and steak bones and the outside leaves of lettuce — a sort of disposal on wheels.

PERSONAL GUIDE

If every motorist vowed as he slid behind the wheel, "I will do everything I can to avoid an accident today," the traffic record for 1956 would be a matter of national, provincial and local pride.

PREFER "COMMENCEMENT"

We have always preferred the term "Commencement" to the more commonly used "Graduation" to refer to the ceremony which honors students leaving a school for wider fields. With Commencement, students have reached maturity in the eyes of their families and friends and must justify their faith in them.

FINANCIAL CRUMBS

Mr. Goodfellow (Ontario municipal affairs minister) is absolutely right when he says that the time has come when the provinces and the municipalities — particularly the latter — require much more than the meagre financial crumbs which Ottawa, from time to time, allows to fall from its financial table.

MODERN LOADS

Whether we like it or not, Carleton Place was done in the days before huge transports made their appearance. The thickness was designed for the needs of that day, not modern travel.

Fly Time is Fly Bait Time

Now is the time to get after Mr. Fly. The first warm day and you'll have lots of them around. Every fly you kill today will save you killing about a hundred thousand later in the season.

Right price: you get 2 pounds instead of 1½ pounds of others, and you get 2% Malathion instead of 1% in others; all for only $1.25. Or a 10 pound can for only $3.95.

Several events were going on at once throughout the program, so that the audience in the grand stand was kept busy trying to get a glimpse of each one. The program was not operated on a competitive basis; almost all events were demonstrations of their skills. Among the most impressive events were chains of Cubs making like snakes, the Maypole Dance, an Indian Pow-Wow, Precision Drill, Folk Dances, Gymnastics, erection of various types of bridges, erecting tents, First Aid Demonstrations, etc.

Messrs. D. Atkins and A. Vessie were responsible for making local arrangements which proved so satisfactory.

Appreciation is also extended the Agricultural Society, Gatineau Power, S. Church and G. Y. Deacon for assistance and services rendered free of charge.

The special train and many buses and cars carried the participants home tired but happy and resolved that this was really the biggest and best Rally held in this area to date.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

June 3, 1881 —

This district had slight frosts on Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Michael Bryerton, of St. Philippe, informs us that he was in Carillon on Tuesday last and learned that a raft had broken up while running the Carillon rapids. One man was drowned, another killed and a boy got his leg badly jammed.

Mr. Walker of the Lachute Paper Mills was lucky enough to secure a large fish on Wednesday evening, and on opening it, an entire fish 15 inches long was found.

A few weeks ago farmers were beginning to "lengthen their faces" considerably, being afraid of a failure of at least the fall wheat crop, from want of rain. Since that time we have had some refreshing showers.

On Wednesday evening the 7.50 train for Montreal arrived at Lachute about an hour late. Upon enquiry, it was found a smash-up had occurred near Montebello, and the following morning the wreck of the engine was taken through here for repairs.

About four o'clock on Friday morning, quite a rumpus occurred on the track here, at the switch. A number of ties were smashed and the roadbed cut up, although the damage was repaired the same day.

50 YEARS AGO

June 1, 1906 —

The Windsor Hotel has again changed hands as Mr. Riche, of Montreal, has acquired the property from Mr. Berniquer.

A tender has been received from Mr. J. Palliser offering to light the town with 16-candle-power lights for $3 each, agreeing to replace burnt lamps at his own cost, and place fixtures.

The meadows around here look poor for this time of year, and by all appearances hay will be scarce in the fall.

25 YEARS AGO

June 5, 1931 —

A narrow escape from drowning was experienced by Lucia Dumas, a girl of 15, who while playing in a boat with other girls fell into deep water. Paul Licop, who was passing with a friend, at once put a boat out and rescued the girl as she was sinking for the third time. The accident occurred near the C.N.R. station on the North River.

The electrical storm which started around 6.30 p.m. Friday caused considerable damage in Lachute and vicinity. Trees were uprooted and blown down, several barns and silos were razed to the ground, and the roof of the farmhouse occupied by Charles Lummis was completely blown off.

Among the representatives of the Lachute Academy attending the McGill interscholastic meet at Molson's Stadium was Joey Berniquer, who secured second place in the running high jump in the senior events. In the public school events, Cyril Drew came third in the class of the running high jump, and Kenneth Falchoner was awarded first place in the running broad jump.

Bible Briefs

By A.A.M.

The Bible is rich in stories, and the purpose of this series is to encourage readers to look up for themselves the Bible versions of these incidents. If there are children in the family it is suggested that the story, and the Bible verses on which it is based, be read aloud.

To whom did God give the benediction:

"The Lord bless you and keep you:
The Lord make his face to shine down upon you,
And be gracious to you:

This blessing comes at the conclusion of a chapter in the Old Testament describing how a Nazarite should live. The Nazarite was to separate himself from others and live holy unto the Lord. He was to refrain from wine or strong drink and not cut his hair. Directions were given as to his offerings and gifts to the Lord in the temple.

But this blessing, which has been repeated countless times in churches throughout the whole world, was not just for the Nazarites. God said after he had given this benediction, "so shall my name be put upon the people of Israel, and I will bless them."

You will find this man's name to whom God spoke and read about the Nazarite in the Sixth Chapter of Numbers.

Wed Saturday in Lachute

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Dorcas who were wed in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterial Church Saturday afternoon. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Clark, Upper Lachute and the groom the son of Mrs. Amos Dorcas and the late Mr. Dorcas, of Williamsburg, N.B.

Pretty Wedding Held Saturday in Presbyterian Ch.

Dorcas - Clark

An exceptionally pretty wedding was held in The Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, May 26, when Doreen Annabel Clark, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Clark of Upper Lachute, was united in marriage to Boyd Evan Dorcas of Fredericton, N.B., at a double ring wedding ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. W. J. Ogston Isaac, of Montreal.

Mrs. Donald Banks, of Montreal, was soloist, singing "I'll Walk Beside You" and "Because"; the organist being Mrs. R. Blakely.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father was gowned in one of the latest creations in wedding gowns, yet it was almost identically patterned similar to those of "the good old days." The gown itself was fashioned in organdie tulle and imported lace. The small collar or oriental design, lightly touched with sequins, with long sleeves and fitted bodice, the skirt billowing, graduated tiers of lace to the floor. A tiara type head-dress held her shoulder-length veil of tulle in place. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and pink Sweetheart roses.

Her sister, Miss Gladys Clark was maid of honor and dressed in a cocktail length gown of turquoise silk organza over taffeta, with Sweetheart neckline and stand-up collar, bouffant skirt, matching bandeau and white shoes. She was wearing a lovely pearl necklace with matching earrings, a gift of the groom and carried a bouquet of yellow pompoms.

Her cousin, Miss Ruth Clark and Miss Marjorie Moore acted as bridesmaids, and little Gloria Williams, niece of the groom, of Montreal, was flower girl. All wore dresses similar to that of the maid of honor, and also carried bouquets of yellow pompoms.

The best man was Grant Morrison, the ushers Bliss Dorcas, brother of the groom and Kenneth MacKenzie.

Mrs. Irvin Clark, mother of the bride wore a two piece street-length dress of shell-pink over taffeta with navy accessories and carried white carnations.

Mrs. Amos Dorcas, the bridegroom's mother wore a gown of navy, brocaded with pink accessories and carried pink carnations.

The church was decorated with standards of gladioli also the Legion Hall in Brownsburg where the reception was held; the tables there being daintily adorned with miniature sprays of yellow pompoms.

Hon. Wm. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, who was present, with Mrs. Cottingham, gave the toast to the bride, with the groom replying and giving worthy mention to his mother and the bride's mother.

Prior to their return to Dorval, where they will take up residence, they will visit with the groom's parents in Fredericton, N.B.

Among those who were noted as out-of-town guests were Mrs. Amos Dorcas, Miss Anna Dorcas, both of New Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. H. Williams and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dorcas, Mr. and Mrs. B. Dorcas, Mr. and Mrs. J. Estey, Mrs. L. Gallison and daughter, Pat, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Banks, Mr. and Mrs. D. Banks, Mr. and Mrs. W. Taylor and daughter, Bonnie, Mr. and Mrs. B. Small, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. A. Rambough, Mr. and Mrs. A. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. King, Mr and Mrs. A. Stoddard and daughter, Gale, Miss Marjorie Moore, Miss Jill Johansson, Mr. and Mrs. P. Hatchez, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lafond, Mr. and Mrs. R. Monahan, and Mr. Bill Hunter, all of Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. C. Graham, of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. K. Walker, of Morrisburg, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Cameron, of Vankleek Hill.

The Bible — A Definition

The Bible is Jehovah God's written word to mankind, revealing himself and expressing his purpose. Jehovah, as the Author, inspired at least thirty-five different faithful men to write. Although the complete Bible is itself one book it is actually a library of sixty-six books, thirty-nine having been originally written in Hebrew and Aramaic and properly designated collectively the Hebrew-Aramaic Scriptures, and the other twenty-seven having been originally written in Greek and properly designated collectively the Christian Greek Scriptures. The writing of the entire Bible covered the period from 1513 B.C. to A.D. 98 or 99. The English word Bible is from the Greek word, bibli'a, meaning "papyrus scrolls, rolls, volumes, books" or, literally, "small papyri or booklets."

2 Tim. 3:16, 17 "All Scripture is inspired of God and beneficial for teaching, for reproving, for setting things straight, for disciplining in righteousness, that the man of God may be fully competent, completely equipped for every good work."

Rom. 15:4 "For all the things that were written aforetime were written for our instruction, that through our endurance and through the comfort from the Scriptures we might have hope."

1 Cor. 10:11 "Now these things went on befalling them as examples and they were written for a warning to us upon whom the accomplished ends of the systems of things have arrived."

Time Has Not Altered the Good Book — Even Though Times Have Changed.

With the centuries have come altered customs, languages, moral principles — even civilizations. But the recorded Word of Jehovah God remains steadfast. To appreciate this best, read these ancient writings in the language of twentieth-century America.

The "New World Translation of the Hebrew Scriptures," Volumes I and II, contains the books from Genesis to Esther. The regular edition is $1.50 each volume. The De Luxe edition in genuine Morocco leather is $5. — Write to The Watch Tower, 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto 10, or ask any Jehovah's Witnesses you may happen to meet.

Local Golf Pro Improves with Age

SPORTS CAMERA
By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hardly anyone will deny that American golf professionals are the best in the world, especially on the tough tournament trail where all the money lies.

A few years ago Bobby Locke, South Africa's putting wizard, scored some notable victories on golf's gold trail. But Bobby is back home now.

Canadians who tried their luck in the tournament circuit the last few years returned home practically broke and carrying the message that you can't compete with men who play the game year-round.

In the last month, the smooth-swinging Leonard has earned a total of $4,068 matching strokes with such players as Sam Snead, Doug Ford, Gene Littler and Tommy Bolt, all tournament veterans.

At Fort Worth, Tex., Stan finished fourth in the Colonial National Invitation tournament and picked up $1,700. A week later, he collected $1,200 for a fifth-place tie in the St. Louis Open. Then Leonard earned $1,168 by placing fifth in the Kansas City Open.

Nashua Great Horse?

There is a hot discussion in turf circles which may sound silly to the average sports fan but not to racing people.

It is simply this. Is Nashua a great racehorse?

A great jockey, Eddie Arcaro, says no. He has ridden Nashua in most of his races, including the recent Camden handicap which saw the big bay take over as money-winning champion.

The record book says yes. Nashua has won a total of $1,100,365 to top the mark set by Citation.

If you go on the cold figures of the record book you have to say that Nashua is a great horse. Turf people, however, bestow such a distinction on a horse about once in a decade. The last one to merit it was Native Dancer. Before that, Citation, Count Fleet, possibly Equipoise, and then you have to go all the way back to Man O'War.

Greatness to turf people means many things — great speed and stamina, the ability to concede weight, being nimble enough to run on any kind of track, and most of all doing these things over a lengthy period of time.

Nashua has strength and stamina. He can run on any track and has been a star for three seasons. But he has yet to do anything exceptional in the way of speed.

DOG CAN ADD, SUBTRACT, MULTIPLY

—Central Press Canadian

Sparky, a Brittany spaniel, is the Einstein of the canine world, according to her owner, Mrs. Martha Stuart of St. Catharines, Ont. Sparky gives demonstrations of addition, multiplication and subtraction by pawing out the answer on the floor. And she is seldom wrong. Another trick she has is to accompany the Stuarts on a golf course, dropping Mrs. Stuart's ball in the cup and Mr. Stuart's in the creek.

Last year American exports to Canada totalled $3.5 billion, Canadian exports to the United States totalled $2.5 billion.

Leonard Continues Winning Ways

Stan Leonard, playing professional at the Lachute Golf Club and Country Club, ended up in a fifth-place tie winning $1,166 in the Kansas City Open golf tournament last week.

Leonard racked up a 71, 69, and 71 for a total of 278 on the 72-par course. The tournament was won by Bo Wininger with a 273, and there was a two-way tie for second position.

Shark-Killing Ship Aids Coast Fishing

Vancouver (CP) — Shark killing has become a necessity off the lower coast of British Columbia.

Up to 1952 the huge basking sharks — the largest in the world, weighing up to five tons — gave little trouble to coastal fishermen. But officials of the fisheries department reported they have since become more numerous, providing a large headache to the fishermen.

So the department set out on one of the largest hunts ever devised. A huge knife was constructed of boiler-plate steel for the bow of a fisheries department ship. It protrudes about five feet.

The ship plowed up the coast into Pachene bay, where hundreds of the sharks were feeding, and in its first tour rammed and killed 34 — about 272,000 pounds of shark.

Officials say this is only the beginning, and the work will continue until the basking sharks have been driven from B.C. waters.

Willing Students Did School Mural

Victoria (CP) — For most high school students going to school five days a week is plenty. But pupils at one Victoria school were so enthused they went six days a week, voluntarily.

The project was under the guidance of art instructor Mrs. Elizabeth Gildea, who said the students completed the work in their spare time, even going to school Saturday afternoons.

"That's pretty good," she said. "People talk about the delinquent children of today, but it seems to me they show more initiative than we ever did at school."

The students first gathered and studied old college year books and photographs for sketch ideas. The completed sketches were placed on a 14-foot-long piece of paper, and painted.

CURRENT SHOWS, ENTERTAINMENT, TRAVEL

Fish Stories and No Fooling

With the many streams and rivers attracting anglers from a wide area, station CBOT, Ottawa, has lined up a weekly show especially for them. It's "Let's Talk Fishing" and it presents Bill MacDonald each Thursday at 7.30 p.m. with a wealth of information about tackle, camp equipment and techniques.

MacDonald will also cover fishing in general, give notes on the different species found in the Ottawa area and elsewhere, report on fishing conditions and pass on items of interest from game and fishing clubs. On film he will show fishing in different parts of the world and from time to time there will be guests — photographers, writers, guides and conservation officers.

The host is an angler of long experience. He has fished every variety of fresh-water game from coast to coast and for the last 25 years has been writing magazine articles on Canadian fishing and conservation topics. He has written, produced and directed many films for the National Film Board and since 1949 has been fishing editor of Forest and Outdoors.

Scottish Castle Series Continues on Radio

Five more castles are visited and described in the remaining Legends of the Scottish Castles series, heard on Wednesdays at 5.45 p.m. on Trans-Canada. The programs are written by Babs Brown. On June 6 listeners will learn of Cawdor Castle and how the first Thane of Cawdor built his tower around a little Hawthorne tree; today the tree still stands in the tower of the castle, having grown through openings left for it in the tower. The home of the chief of the MacIntosh clan, Castle Moy, is the subject on June 13; it is the story of the "Rout o' Moy" in which a few Scottish highlanders routed a contingent of English soldiers. On June 20 listeners are taken to beautiful Loch Awe where Kilchurn Castle rises out of the mist; it was from there that Black Colin Campbell went to the crusades. Inveraray Castle is the scene on June 27 and the story is told of Elizabeth, daughter of the head of the Clan Campbell, and how she was forced to marry the Lord of Duart and of her eventual escape. The last program (July 4) concerns Dunvegan Castle on the Island of Skye; there is a description of "The Road to the Isles" and a story of the treasures of Dunvegan. Legends of the Scottish Castles is produced in Toronto by Ken Dalziel, with narration by Hugh Webster.

Film on Illiteracy: Attemps to Conquer It by UNESCO

The work of another specialized agency of the United Nations is pictured on June 9 at 6.30 in the third program of In the Common Interest. Vincent Tovell, of the CBC introduces a film on illiteracy, showing how UNESCO is attempting to conquer it. His guest is Dr. Willard Beatty, former director of UNESCO's fundamental education division. Dr. Beatty, an American, will explain that an education for adults embracing health, agriculture and community problems is as necessary as basic education for children in some regions of the earth. Program four on June 16 deals with the problem of industrializing undeveloped countries. Tovell will interview Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, a Canadian in the UN who has recently returned from a trip to Latin America. A film on Bolivia will be featured, explaining the specific problem there of industrializing the country.

Newfoundland on T.V.

To end its first 26-week series of TV films, Perspective on June 3 presents The Tenth Frontier, an up-to-date look at Newfoundland and some of the changes that have taken place there in recent years. For example, new methods of handling fish for market have brought fairly sweeping changes to the industry which has been a mainstay of Newfoundland's economy since its earliest days. In aviation, airports at Gander and Torbay have made the province an international crossroads. Helicopters are contributing to other developments, and reporter Norman Kihl took a ride in one of them to get a close-up of forests, pulp-and-paper mills and the rugged coastline. The film ends with a visit to Newfoundland's new TV station. Folk music of the island-province provides musical background throughout. The film was written and directed by Tom Farley.

School Telecast

CBC Television, in conjunction with the National Advisory Council on School Broadcasting, has recently completed their second series on in-school television broadcasts. These were heard, over 29 TV stations, by an estimated 750 schools across the country.

Here, Percy Saltzman explains the workings of the modern telephone on one of these school broadcasts.

Bird's-Eye View of St. Lawrence Seaway Televised Sunday Afternoon, June 3rd

Wide Wide World will use the joint facilities of NBC and CBC to tell a story the like of which has never before been attempted on live television — The St. Lawrence Story, a living record of the international power development at Massena, New York, and Cornwall, Ontario, and the construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway along the entire sweep of the Great Lakes. The 90-minute documentary will be seen on CBC and NBC television networks on Sunday, June 3rd, 4.00 - 5.30 p.m.

More than 20 pick-up points in the U.S. and Canada will be linked by television to show the construction work in progress, the people whose lives are affected and the communities most directly concerned. Live TV cameras will be set down deep in the Barnhardt Island dam at Massena and high on the parapet of the Citadel overlooking Quebec Harbor, in a rolling mill for steel in Cleveland, on a boat loading iron ore at Duluth and a ship unloading steel at Detroit, on the surging rapids of the Long Sault near Cornwall and the calm waters of the Welland Canal, on the main street of thriving Massena and on an Iroquois street being relocated.

Interviewers will speak with people who are in favor of the seaway and with others who are against it, people whose homes are being destroyed and some who are getting new ones, people who have carried the dream of the seaway for generations and people who still do not believe it is happening, people who have confidence in the future of their towns and others who are doubtful, people who have much to gain and others who have everything to lose.

Appearing before the cameras will be townsfolk, dock-workers, engineers, public officials, ship's captains, harbor-masters, news men, steel-workers, stevedores, railroad officials, store-owners and millionaires.

The CBC has assigned Len Peterson to work as a writer on the project, in collaboration with Joe Liss, New York TV writer. It will be one of the most interesting commissions he has ever received from the CBC, for his main concern has long been with realistic portrayals of present-day life.

The Ontario Hydro's hydraulic scale models at Islington will be used as a point of reference throughout the program. The three Islington models form, together, an exact realization of how the mammoth seaway and power projects will look and operate when complete. They reproduce accurately a 25-mile stretch of the river, simulate actual river conditions and duplicate to scale the shore-line, the contours of the river-bottom and the turbulence and currents of the water.

Because of their size — they occupy a total area of 9,930 square feet of floor space — it was decided to make them in three sections; the length of the building where they were to be housed would have had to be tripled to accommodate a single model of the whole area. The three-section plan allows study on each section simultaneously without interference from work being done on the other sections.

Youthful Singers on T.V.'s "Talent Time"

Talented youngsters of four to 15 are being given a chance to perform on Junior Talent Time, on station CBMT each Friday from 8.00-8.30 p.m. Included in the line-up are several singers and dancers, as well as a magician and an impersonator who will do a take-off of Elvis Presley.

Frank Heron, the emcee, has been auditioning youngsters for a number of years for Small Fry Frolics on CBC-TV and has found that there are always plenty of young people with genuine talent who are more than eager to show what they can do.

Most of the performers on the show of June 8 will be appearing on TV for the first time. They include magician Steve Abrams 15; Betty Fellows, 15, who will sing Why Do Fools Fall in Love?; Madeleine and Betty Burke, 10 and 11, who will sing a duet, C'etait deux champignons; Louise Lebeau, 10, trapeze artist; and Pamelo Marshall, 11, an acrobatic dancer.

Ten-year-old Walter Sobolta, who bears some physical resemblance to Elvis Presley, will do an impersonation of the singer, complete with guitar and appropriate gestures. He will sing Tutti-Frutti, an early Presley hit.

Marilyn Staines, a four-year-old who has already sung on an amateur show on radio station CKVL in Verdun, will make her TV debut singing Me and My Teddy Bear.

A feature of the June 8 show will be a chorus line made up of 12-year-old girls from the East End Boys' and Girls' Club in Montreal.

Those who make things happen;

Those who watch things happen; and

Those who have no idea of what has happened.

By Oli Daum, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The decor of a fragrant little Montreal flower shop is in two shades of blue. But you can't say the same for the proprietor.

Marie, shyest of the four remaining Dionne quintuplets, fairly sparkled for the movie cameras, turned on her again to record the official opening of her flower shop in the heart of Canada's largest metropolis.

"I have never seen Marie looking so happy," said L. M. Edwards, the girl's financial adviser. Marie's business venture is the first of any of the quints since they received their $1,000,000 fortune on their 21st birthday.

It came just 10 days before the quints' 22nd birthday, May 28, and won the best wishes of the thousands who have followed the girls' careers since their world-publicized birth in a drab farmhouse at Corbeil, Ont.

The florist shop is the realization of a dream Marie has had for many years. But she didn't get it via the primrose path.

The death in 1954 of her sister Emilie — the two were always close — affected her deeply. Twice she entered a convent to become a nun but fate or call it what you will, would not have it so.

"Emilie and I took courses in flower arrangements and dreamed of the day when we could open our own shop" Marie said. Yvonne, Cecile and Annette joined the opening celebration and, although only in name, the fifth sister was there too.

Marie named her shop Salon Emilie.

Summer Retreat

This is the month that summer cottages come to life. As the last traces of snow disappear from the woods the annual ceremony of opening up the cottage is performed by thousands of Canadians.

If the linoleum on the floor looks shabby, yet is still in tolerable condition, it can be given a coat of color. A mottled effect will make less obvious the inevitable dirt and sand tracked in from the beach.

The effect can be achieved by dipping a brush in paint and tapping it with a stick instead of smoothing it across the floor.

Looking for make-shift furniture? Two painted orange crates set side-by-side in the bedroom make an excellent dressing table. A frilly skirt tacked around the edge will make any resemblance to an orange crate purely coincidental.

Disguised with paint to blend with the rest of the furniture, the crates will also make ideal end-tables for the living room.

If not already an avid do-it-yourself fan, the cottage is an ideal place to test creative genius. If results are less than perfect, who cares?

Your Blood Pressure Tells Your Story

Many people fear a blood-pressure test in the belief that a high reading forecasts invalidism and premature death. The truth is, says an article in the June Reader's Digest, the test is a great protector. It checks on circulatory conditions, warns of toxemias, spots kidney disease and other troubles and is perhaps the most revealing of medical tests.

Specific ailments cause high blood pressure in about ten percent of all cases. The other 90 percent, says Reader's Digest, are attributed to "essential hypertensions" of unknown cause. This mystery, however, is yielding to research. Worry, fatigue and continued stress impose burdens on heart and arteries. Unless warning is given by the blood pressure test, and corrective steps taken, the heart may fail from overwork, a corroded artery may rupture in the brain to cause apoplexy or a clot in a heart artery bring coronary thrombosis.

Abnormally low blood pressure may be traced to anaemia, infection or malnutrition. But the article points out that usually no cause is found. Although victims complain of lassitude, low blood pressure often means a long and healthy life.

Latest studies indicate that blood-pressure readings once considered abnormally high or low are too inflexible, and that many people who once would have been pronounced sick are in reality normal.

SAINT JOHN DRIVE TO PROMOTE MILK

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — This city is the focal point of an experiment sponsored by milk producers and distributors and New Brunswick's agriculture department to promote the sale and consumption of fluid milk.

O. J. W. Shugg, of Toronto, public relations officer of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, said the seaport city was chosen for the experimental milk festival after the annual meeting of the group.

It is the first time any Canadian city has interested itself in promoting use of milk and the festival is the first endeavor given the blessings of distributors, producers and a provincial government.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Coffee parties are a favorite in our town," said Mrs. Felix Dezauche as we settled down for a good old-fashioned visit.

"I suspect that one of the reasons I enjoy giving them is because they can be so pretty. You can work out a color scheme that can be carried throughout.

Flower Gardens

"For example, right now our flower gardens are at their prettiest. Sweet peas, delphinium, larkspur, cornflowers, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, lupins, poppies, are all plentiful. With that wonderful array, think of the floral arrangements which can be made! Every season suggests its own color scheme.

"I especially like a yellow and green coffee party.

"After I have decided on the colors, I take the baker samples."

"Samples?" I inquired.

Decorative Colors

"Of the decorative colors to be used. The baker then tints the dough for my rolls or bread with vegetable coloring to match the samples and bakes it.

"I'm planning a yellow and green coffee party soon for 12 guests. The flowers for the buffet table will be in yellow tones, several varieties, with soft greenery. My linen is yellow, napkins green, the dishes and glassware are green, he following is what I've planned."

"There's one specialty I always include—cocktail size yam balls. I use the formula for full-size yam balls or croquettes, but make them marble size for parties."

Yam Balls: Combine 2½ c. smooth, hot, mashed, cooked or canned yams, 2 tbsp. melted butter or margarine, 2 tbsp. orange juice, 1 tsp. fine-grated orange rind, 1 well-beaten egg, ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and 3 tbsp. fine-chopped pecans. Mix thoroughly and cool.

For croquettes, shape into balls, using 1 generous tablespoonful each; for cocktail service shape into marble-sized balls, using 1 heaping teaspoonful each.

Dust lightly with flour. Brush with 1 egg white slightly beaten with 2 tbsp. cold water. Then roll in fine dry bread crumbs mixed with ½ the quantity of fine-chopped pecans.

Washing Fleece Coats Properly Either by Hand or Machine

Although most of us now take for granted the idea of washable spring coats made of brushed fleece, owners may be hesitant about plunging such bulky garments into suds for the first time.

Before filling up the washing machine or the laundry tub with warm, but not hot, water, be sure your coat actually is washable. If it's made of nylon or similar acrylic fibre and is lined with a washable fabric, you don't need to send it to the cleaners. Then, examine the coat for severely soiled areas and rub them with a paste of detergent or soap and water. Grease stains call for a liquid spotting agent. If you use a heavy duty soap rather than a detergent, add a water softener.

Whether washing by hand or machine, avoid twisting the garment or subjecting it to any vigorous treatment. If the hand method is used, follow through with a thorough rinsing before hanging it up dripping wet on a strong, non-staining hanger. Omit wringing because it will only wrinkle the fabric. Smooth the hem, seams and collar and they will dry to shape. The shower curtain rod in the bath-room or the basement are suitable spots for drip-drying a garment.

If you prefer to machine-wash the coat, use the highest water level available and a low temperature setting. Set the machine for a five-to-seven-minute wash cycle. If you don't intend to machine-dry it, remove the coat before the spinning or water extraction phase of the wash cycle. Otherwise, allow the coat to go through the complete cycle.

When using a tumble-type drier following either machine or hand washing, any excess rinse water should be removed from the garment as home driers usually have difficulty handling fully saturated coats.

This can be accomplished in machine washing by allowing the coat to go through the complete washing cycle, including the spinning or water extraction phase. For a hand-washed coat, allow it to drip dry until it contains practically no water before placing it in the tumble drier.

When the coat is ready for machine drying, use the lowest temperature setting available and tumble until damp dry. Then, remove it immediately after completion of the cycle and hang it up. This gives the coat lines the opportunity to fall back into their natural place and gives you the opportunity to finger press the collar, cuffs and seams before the fleece dries out entirely.

Of course, washable fleece coats of 100 per cent nylon, etc., may also be dry-cleaned. Any stubborn or severely soiled spots which resist washing can usually be removed by this method.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Woman's Travel Authority

I am an inveterate collector of travel gadgets. Fortunately, I can justify this fever as a necessary service to my readers.

Here are some practical ones that I've discovered. Incidentally, I think some of them might make unusual going-away gifts.

There's a car cushion constructed of springs covered with widely-woven plastic strands that allows air to circulate underneath the driver and prevents seat heat.

And there's a braided rubber clothesline about the size of a dog-leash belt that stretches to accommodate a complete set of underthings. It requires no clothespins — just tuck the corners of your laundered garments between the strands and pull! Along with this, I've found a collapsible ironing board that fits neatly in a suitcase.

An exuberant youngster could, I think, be enchanted with a toy steering wheel complete with three gears for shifting. It is attached to his own special seat that raises him up to a safe driver's view of the road.

I have even heard of a heated steering wheel warmed by electricity from the car's battery. But this is no time of year to think about that one!

FOR PARENTS ONLY...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

What About Sharing

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Adults often find it difficult to share their possessions and their time with others, and yet parents frequently expect their children to be very generous. They are annoyed when their education in being "open handed" seems to have so little effect. Seldom do they wonder if it is reasonable to expect a very young child willingly to give up a prized possession for a time to a play mate! They do not take time to consider what happens if a child is forced to take turns.

The two-year old or younger child is a real individualist. He doesn't care about another child's feelings. If the other youngster should snatch a toy from him, he will likely hit his playmate or chase him in an effort to recover his possession. Supervision of play is needed, but there should be as little interference as possible.

Parents are setting too high a standard if they expect their two year old gladly to share his toys. Often he is quite content to play by himself. He may enjoy "parallel" play, in which an individual plays actively along-side another child. But the two youngsters more or less ignore each other. They hang on to their own toys. Only as he gets to be three or four does he seek to play with other children and if necessary co-operate by taking turns. Sharing is learned very slowly. It is harder for some children than others. Sad to say sometimes it is never mastered.

If mother insists too often that Junior share his toy and at too early an age, what happens? Junior is confused and resentful. He may become the sort of child who doesn't know how to stand up for his own rights. Or he may turn into a "Cry-Baby" or "Mother's Boy."

On the other hand, if mother is always rushing out of the kitchen into the yard to take her little darling's part, then Junior fast becomes very unpopular. The children depart to another yard so as to avoid the unpleasant mother who is frequently interfering on behalf of her son.

The only child has a much harder time learning to share than the boy or girl with brothers and sisters. In a family, children quickly see that better times are enjoyed by everyone if there is fair play and every one has his or her part.

A child of three or four should have the opportunity to play with other children his own age. It is not so hard for him to learn to take turns at this stage in a small, intimate neighborhood group or at Nursery School. But the Kindergarten or First Grade child who has led a very solitary life in the company of adults, finds it extremely difficult to substitute "ours" for "my" or take turns gracefully with play equipment.

Sharing is important but for happy family living, individuals in a home need to have a place for their own prized possessions. These must not be "borrowed", especially without the owner's permission. A fair rule governing this problem can be defined in a Family Council.

As a child's world gets larger, he knows more people, and he learns of folk in far away places. His sympathetic response to need is quick. It is good for children to assist in service projects by contributing to the "Save the Children" Fund or helping with the Junior Red Cross, or a Church Mission Band.

In recent years many Sunday Schools have begun to us a duplex envelope, similar to a church envelope. By this means scholars are educated in stewardship of money. They are trained in dividing their contribution between funds for the local church school and money for missionary work at home and overseas. One small boy repeated this Golden Text: "God loveth a cheerful giver" and then he added his own comment, "The Bible doesn't say so, but I bet God sure can't stand a stingy one!"

Party Favorite For Picnics

Caramel Squares provide a satisfying sweet for a picnic dessert. Easy to carry right in the baking pan, they satisfy the sweet tooth. A long time favorite for afternoon teas they now prove their versatility. This receipe is recommended by Poultry Products Institute.

Caramel Squares

Cream ½ cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla and ½ cup brown sugar. Add 1 beaten egg yolk. Mix and sift 1½ cups pastry flour and 1 teaspoon baking powder and blend into first mixture. Spread evenly in bottom of 8 inch square cake pan. Beat 1 egg white stiff and stir in 1 cup sifted sugar and 1 cup coursely chopped walnuts or pecans. Spread over first mixture and bake in moderately slow oven 325°F., 30 to 35 minutes.

For variation:

1. Use cocoanut in place of nuts.
2. Spread first mixture lightly with jam or cooked dates before topping with meringue.

Barbecued Chicken for Picnic Eating

FEW BOY SCOUT GUESTS OF CANADA at the 1955 Jamboree had a chance to see the great dams and smelters that make Canada a world supplier of aluminum.

But some did see a Canadian use of the light metal: outdoor cooking with aluminum foil. One Canadian troop showed how they used this handy material for doing potatoes, steaks and other foods over the camp-fire; how they kept food fresh in summer heat by protecting it with aluminum. If this missionary work carries the idea back to distant lands, Canada may have to turn out still more aluminum foil—even though last year her output, if laid in a 12-inch strip, would reach 382,000 miles.

Successful Financial Campaign Reported
Plans Laid for Local C.N.I.B. Work

since October of last year, three eye clinics have been held in the County in which aproximately 260 children and adults have been examined as well as some 40 persons who attended clinics in other areas. It was stated that plans are underway for a summer clinic in Morin Heights.

It was pointed out that in 1952, Lachute had seven blind cases registered with the Institute while today there are 21 ranging in ages from 9 to 91 years.

The Field Secretary reported having made 83 calls since the last meeting (February 14) giving details of many instances. Two white canes have been given out.

Ladies from Lachute, Cushing, Brownsburg and Grenville met at the Lachute Auditorium on May 7, and laid the foundation for the Women's Auxiliary to the C.N.I.B. for the district of Argenteuil. It was decided that recreational activities be organized for the blind people of Lachute, Brownsburg, Cushing, Grenville, St. Andrews East, Carillon and St. Philippe. It was left to Mr. Zaplaski to look for an adequate location for the gatherings. Mr. McClintock has been invited to address the ladies at the next meeting and give them a general outline of what other women's auxiliaries are performing throughout Canada.

The following officers were elected to office: President, Mrs. S. Painter; vice-president, Mrs. W. J. Richardson; secretary, Mrs. C. L. Stephens; treasurer, Mrs. M. R. Wilson; members, Mrs. J. Douglas, Mrs. A. Bigelow, Mrs. L. Dion, Mrs. L. G. Cowan.

On May 8 Mr. Zaplaski attended the executive meeting of the Canadian Legion. Permission was granted for the C.N.I.B. to use the Legion premises on the third Wednesday of each month, commencing in September. The hall is placed at the disposal of the C.N.I.B. on the afternoon of the above days. Furthermore, if the Institute should require the use of the hall in the evenings, notice of one month is required.

Mr. Zaplaski enlarged somewhat on the portion of his report dealing with eye clinics for school children. He said there had been some criticism concerning the provision of glasses by C.N.I.B. and Mr. McClintock went on to say that because of C.N.I.B.'s setup, it was able to obtain glasses of good quality at a much lower cost than they could be had at the retail level. In spending public funds the aim was to make the dollars go as far as possible. For those who can afford to obtain their glasses through regular channels, it is assumed that they can also afford the expense of eye examination.

Mr. McClintock further stated that there were some people misinformed as to the Institute's activities in sight prevention work and service work for the blind. He stated that the Institute was vitally interested in both these phases and that it was not possible in advance to state the relative amounts of money which would be spent on these phases in any given period.

Referring to the newly created Women's Auxiliary, it was stated that its function would be to assist in the recreation and rehabilitation programs for blind persons in the area. To carry on this type of work, some funds are necessary and on motion of Mr. Milnes seconded by Miss Harrison, an initial allocation of $50 was voted for transfer to the treasurer of the Women's Auxiliary.

Mr. Zaplaski reported that a local resident is to be taught braille and probably other things such as leather-craft. Mr. Zaplaski stated that in Argenteuil at the present time, there are two cases being visited by a home teacher and Mr. McClintock added that he expected a family would soon arrive in Lachute from Ontario and that in the family there is a ten-year old blind girl who would require home teaching.

A nomination committee was set up consisting of Dr. Eric Mongeon, Robert M. Cairns and J. B. Chalmers who are to prepare a list of nominees for officers and directors for the Advisory Board for the 1956-57 term. This list is to be presented at the next regular meeting, which tentatively was set for June 26.

MENINGITIS STRIKES EQUESTRIAN STAR

—Central Press Canadian

Stricken with spinal meningiits, Col. W. R. (Bob) Ballard, one of Canada's foremost equestrian stars is in serious condition. The 41-year-old Toronto rider was conspiculously absent from the Canadian team which left on May 7 for England where it will train for the Olmpic equestrian events in Sweden beginning June 10. Ballard has represented Canada with distinction in international equestrian competitions since the early postwar years when the Canadian team was reorganized.

Customs Office Shows Business Steadily Climbing

The local Customs manager, Georges H. Beaulieu, reports an active year, with a total of 3,725 registered entries, as compared to 3,249 last year. These figures were compiled for the annual report of the local Customs office, which has been in operation since 1912.

The number of packages received by freight numbered 1,469, while the post office delivered 820; 925 railway cars of merchandise were received, and 329 shipments were received in the Customs warehouse. All these are considerable increases over the previous year's figures.

Thirty-three motor-boats were licensed last year, the first time such permits have been issued from this office. It is interesting to note that the local office did business with 611 importers.

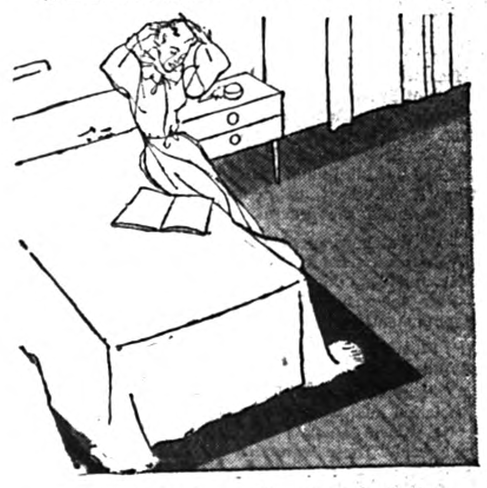

Total revenue of the office was set at $209,850.09, an increase well in excess of $17,000 over last year. As a comparison, the year 1945-46 saw a total of revenue of $312,175.62, while 20 years ago, the revenue from the local port-of-entry was but $106,889.60. The record year was 1941-42, when a total of $719,408.92 in duties were collected.

In charge of the office since 1952, Mr. Beaulieu is the third manager since its establishment, his predecessors having been Roy P. Fraser and the late John Hope, first Customs officer here. Presently employed with Mr. Beaulieu at the local office are Carl Demerse and René Hebert.

Georges Duhamel attacks the Cottingham Administration

Question 1 – Why does Argenteuil County need two deputies?

Those who have problems to discuss with the local deputy are often obliged to see Mr. Leopold Carrière. Voters, who did you elect in the last election, W. M. Cottingham or Leopold Carrière?

Question 2 – Why cannot Mr. Cottingham see the state of our roads?

Several fatal accidents could be eliminated with the minimum of discretion. Why does he not think and do something to avoid these fatalities?

1. St. Philippe - Grenville Highway

St. Philippe - Grenville Highway remains extremely dangerous on rainy days and nothing has ben done to remedy the situation, resulting in several fatal accidents every year.

2. Lachute - St. Jerome Highway

Lachute - St. Jerome Highway is a regular hazzard during winter, as there is neither calcium nor sand applied. It would be easy and economical to accomplish, sharing the expenses among the three counties. There are many other hitches in the Cottingham administration.

Question 3 – Why does Mr. Cottingham feel the need for such a large publicity organization to get back into power?

From now until the end of the electoral campaign, Mr. Cottingham will generously open the strings of his purse (the electoral fund) and thousands of dollars will be spent. Mr. Cottingham forgets that the people will judge him by his past actions and not by his promises for the future.

The poor people of the County would know what to do with this money and it is these people who will vote on June 20.

Other questions will be brought to the fore next week.

PRAIRIE INDIANS LEARN MORE JOBS

Regina (CP) — Attempts are being made in Saskatchewan to provide alternative employment for Indians, government officials say.

Indians hold various jobs such as truck driving, summer construction work and in skilled trades. Some are learning trades and many are successful in their vocations. But one of the difficulties in placing Indians and Metis in employment is still a measure of prejudice on the part of employers, says the Catholic Welfare Society.

HOME FOLLOWING THE LONG WINTER FLOWERS IN BLOOM – ROADS CLOSED

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

No, we shall not talk about the weather; it is unspeakable.

Let us think, rather about flowers. When we were at Sunnyacres recently, we rejoiced to observe that seemingly nearly all the 8,000 bulbs had survived their uprooting and had taken kindly to their new surroundings. The yellow house was ringed about by equally yellow daffodils; the one bed which was full of bulbs was showing row upon row of green, with here and there a bright accent of yellow. Next year, the bed will be gold with blossoms. We were particularly pleased with the result of our labor in the orchard. Never a devotee of formal gardens, it has long been our desire to have daffodils and narcissi blooming carelessly among the apple trees. To that end, we placed some last Fall in what we hoped was an artfully artless manner, on the southern slope of the orchard. They all sent forth green shoots this Spring, and there were even some blossoms. In years to come, we can feast our eyes on a hillside gay with flowers, while our hands wash the dishes in the soft, sudsy water, for we placed the bulbs so that they were visible from the window over the sink. For those who are interested, we are glad to report that cows do not find daffodils to their taste.

The front yard at Sunnyacres, as yet unimproved, is a study in blue and yellow — grape hyacinths and daffodils. The silver leaf is just showing and Peter's cat-nip looks vigorous. The narcissi are not yet awake enough to bloom, but their long, slim spikes promise well. The primula, too is late, only a few blossoms showing. In short, except for the Spring flowers, one would imagine it late October, rather than the end of May. But no, I forgot the roads; they are definitely Spring-like. Since the season is at least a month behind schedule, so are the roads, with the frost still boiling out of holes, awaiting the unwary tire, or even foot. It has always seemed to the writer that the rural maker of roads must follow a recipe, very much as does a cook. Take the contents of two ditches, heap them on the centre of the road, sift through a large screen any available gravel-like soil. Stir well and leave to settle. The result is called an 'improved' road. As one brought up in the country, I have always been less than keen on improved roads, roads covered with asphalt or cement, yes; improved, no. Our pretty, quiet, sand road into Sunnyacres has been so improved, that we now must walk the last half mile, leaving the car with a kind neighbor. Just above the quagmire that makes the road unusable, is a small terminal moraine left by a young glacier, we presume. Should one's car miraculously ford the pudding-like base of the hill, it could then spin helplessly on the loose, rounded boulders. After this, we sign no more petitions for improved roads.

Walking did allow us to see the country-side. Beside the road, dog-tooth violets (Adder's tongues to you, perhaps) were gay. Now and again, the tiny white violets looked up shyly; the fiddleheads of ferns were uncurling among the rocks, the maples, those that were left after the road was improved, were in bud, a few irises were bluely alight in the swamps. Yes, it was pleasant to walk along, Peter following like a dog, his fur shining in the sun, his whiskers atremble with excitement. When we arrived at the Richards' brook, we stopped to exclaim with joy, for it was leaping with a roar over the rocks to Long Lake. It was hard to remember the depressing trickle that used to ooze around those same rocks at the end of last year's dry summer. The song of the brook accompanied us all the way to Sunnyacres.

What a lift to the heart that first glimpse of the summer home in the Spring! The city house gives us comfort and conveniences hard to come by in the country, but it is the plain, little country house that we love, that we think of as home. This is not an anomaly peculiar to our Irish nature; others have confessed to the same. On the whole, we think it good that we place peace, quiet, beauty, good air above the gadgets of modern living. Could we have both, how wonderful would life be! Or would it? With the gadgets would come the plumber, the electrician, probably even the seller of tickets, and the solicitor of money for good causes. No, I think we'll keep Sunnyacres "unimproved'.

Having just finished supper brought on a tray by the daughter of the house, our mind is on food. We wonder if other housewives too, find May a difficult month in which to plan menus. Vegetables are poor and expensive, and meat is meat, except that in this house, veal is not, and sausages are also frowned upon. We think we shall "do" a beef tongue this week. For us, this means a long, slow simmering, with herbs and onions and vinegar, then a sealing in the jellied liquid, in which we incorporate sliced boiled eggs, sliced tomatoes, grated cabbage, olives. When unmolded on a bed of lettuce, it looks grand, and tastes very well. Best of all, one has then "something in the house", in case of visitors, or demands for sandwiches. Driven by this annual May feeling of disguest for all ordinary foods, I have tried three new recipes lately. One was for Irish Potato Bread. It turned out fine, with a good, sturdy flavor, although the texture was coarse. One bite, and there I was a little, carroty-headed girl, eating potato bread with soft maple sugar on it, after a hard day at school. At thirteen, I was supposed to be initiated into the mysteries of cooking, so the housekeeper was let go, and with her went the potato bread, and I have never met it since till last week. Another effort was a chocolate meringue pie, quite the opposite of the bread. French in origin, I should think, with whipped cream adding to the calories. It had a lovely, exotic flavor and was gone in a jiffy. The third recipe was for lemon wafers, thin as paper and delicate in flavor. Perfect with a dry wine, or, if you must, tea. But not coffee. They are too delicate for coffee.

The daughter of the house has interrupted to ask if she should write her essay on Bulldozers, Segregation or Corporal Punishment. Still smarting over the 'improved road, I suggested she choose Bulldozers; I even gave her a topic sentence, "Bulldozers and rhinoceroses have much in common; they both like to wallow in mud-puddles." Poor child, I expect the teen-ager suffers as much from parents, as the magazines would have you believe all parents do who have adolescents under the roof. I hope all parents saw and read an article in Maclean's, where a writer told the world how tired he was of pampering the brats.

And now, as Mary Little says, would you like the recipe for Irish Potato Bread? I know the linotype operator hates recipes, but a few a year help to keep him humble.

Potato Bread: 2 medium potatoes boiled in their jackets, water in which they were cooked, 1 envelope dried yeast, prepared as directed, 2 eggs, milk to make 1 cup liquid with the eggs, ¼ cup shortening, ¼ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 6 cups flour.

Method: Scrub potatoes well. When tender, measure ¾ cup of potato water, and put aside to cool. Mash the potatoes in the cooled water. Blend in shortening, sugar, and salt. Mix well, add milk and egg mixture, and yeast, beat until smooth and bubbly. Sift in flour till easily handled on board. Knead till smooth and elastic. From then on, follow the usual bread routine. Bake at 400° for 10 minutes, then 300° for an additional 30 minutes. Makes three small loaves.

Garden-Graph

It is discouraging after completing a flower arrangement to find the blossoms and foliage completely wilted within a few hours. The importance of correct care of cut flowers cannot be over-emphasized and their length of life may be increased by following a few simple rules.

Early in the morning, or better still, after sundown at night, is the best time for cutting garden flowers.

Do not put flowers into containers with the ends merely cut off in a straight line. Make a slanting cut on the end of the stem, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

This keeps each stem from resting squarely on the bottom of the container, and the long slanting cut gives greater area for the flower to absorb water. Thus it will last longer.

If a flower is extra large and top-heavy on a long, weak stem, slit the bottom end of the stem for several inches. This enables it to absorb more water and keep the flower fresh.

Flowers cut in the evening and kept in deep, cool water over night for seasoning, will last better in arrangements than those cut and used at once.

Highland Dancing Seen Out of Step

Vancouver (CP) — There's no Zulu swing in Vancouver's Highland fling, says Alex Wilson — but some of the dancing on the Pacific coast is out of step.

Mr. Wilson, president of the B.C. Highland Dancing Association, was commenting on statements made in Scotland recently by Alan Fairley, chairman of the Scottish Board of Highland Dancing.

Mr. Fairley was complaining about "some of the stuff that has been passing as Highland dancing . . . weird and wonderful steps that probably orignated in Indian war dances or with the Maoris or the Zulus." The steps, imported to Scotland by overseas dancers, were catching on there, Mr. Fairley said bitterly.

On the B.C. situation, Mr. Wilson said dance teachers here keep generally close liaison with their Scots contemporaries. But, he added, some teachers are out of touch and introduce new steps because they don't know any better.

"When we were married, Myrtle, you promised to obey me."

"I know, John, but I couldn't very well start an argument with the vicar in front of all those people."

"Do you love me for myself alone, Charles?"

"I do. And when we're married I don't want any of the family thrown in."

Q. Why are the employees at the payment counter interested in cutting benefit days for a minor reason? Are they on a commission basis?

A. Employees of the Commission have neither desire nor interest in reducing a claimant's benefit. They have, however, to see that payment is made in accordance with the Unemployment Insurance Act and Regulations. Any claimant dissatisfied with any ruling made at the payment counter may have his grievance reviewed by an insurance officer and if still dissatisfied, by the Board of Refrees.

Q. I happen to go to town often where there is another local office. I would rather do business with this office than my own which is some distance away from where I live. May I do this?

A. A claimant must make application for benefit and subsequent reports to the local office serving the area in which he resides unless transportation facilities are such that another local office is more accessible.

How Civil Defence Operates in Natural Disaster

(Fourteenth in series of 24 articles)

The basic job of a civil defence organization is to save life in disaster, whether caused by nuclear weapons or nature in the form of flood, fire or hurricane. But services set up and enhanced by a civil defence organization can also do much, especially in the case of natural disaster, to protect property as well.

For civil defence is not some new entity seeking to gain a place of prominence for itself in the community. It is merely the name given to a plan under which existing services can be unified and supplemented for swift action in the face of unusual emergencies.

The threat of war to North America has only served to point out the need of such an organization.

Civil defence seeks to recruit volunteers from the civilian population in cities, towns, villages and farms to train as auxiliary firemen, police, first-aid workers and so on. For while these forces exist already in numbers sufficient to meet normal requirements, there are often sudden emergencies when it is humanly impossible for them to meet the demand.

In towns where floods may come unexpectedly, there is no time once the water is in the streets to train the residents how to save themselves and others. Mistakes can be made without danger in a course on artificial respiration, for example, but on someone nearly drowned, a mistake can be fatal. The same goes for first aid. Civil defence aims at training the population to combat such emergencies before they arise.

Fire seldom comes with warning. Suddenly there is a shout, then flames, then destruction and sometimes death — unless the resources to quench the flames in time are ready. Civil defence aims to provide these resources through volunteer training; resources in the form of persons who can give firemen and rescuers trained and efficient assistance in saving property as well as lives.

The same swift workmanlike organization possible under an alert local defence organization can go into action to meet any other form of disaster, including the worst of all: war.

And once the initial onslaught of disaster has been met, it is equally as important to know how to clean-up and alleviate the aftermath. Civil defence planning, as conceived by federal and provincial officials, has dealt with that angle, too. It provides for a trained health and welfare group.

That means a town or village can be prepared to provide food and shelter for persons made homeless. Persons trained in civil defence, first-aid procedures can help, doctors and nurses, who are usually over-worked in disaster anywhere, to bring fast attention to those who need it.

But possibly the most important aspect of the civil defence plan in any community is that it takes in all the services necessary to meet disaster and provides thus to make use of them in the most efficient way: a plan.

SCOUTING IN FLOWERS

Local authorities in Great Britain are being invited to plant commemorative floral beds during 1957 — the Centenary of the birth of Baden-Powell, Founder of Scouting, and the Jubilee Year of the Scout Movement.

Two features of the 8th World Scout Jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake last summer which provoked considerable interest were a massive floral cushion, near the Jamboree arena entrance, depicting the First Class Scout Badge, created by the Niagara Parks Commission; and a floral clock with a Scout Badge as a centrepiece, at Ontario Hydro's Sir Adam Beck Generating Station No. 1, five miles from Niagara Falls.

Erosion Problem On Fraser River

Albion, B.C. (CP) — Erosion in the rich Fraser Valley is worrying farmers who see the earth being eaten away daily as the Fraser River is swelled by spring run-offs.

Erosion has gradually accelerated since 1948 when the great river, unable to handle the tons of water which flowed into it from interior watersheds, burst its banks and flooded the valley lowlands.

Near Albion, 30 miles east of Vancouver, one home and several other buildings have been moved back from their original site because of the hungry river.

Needs Experts

George F. Owen, resident of Albion for many years, estimates his contribution to the river has amounted to nearly eight acres in the last 10 years.

"The problem is far too great for local people to cope with," said Mr. Owen. "Bank erosion in this district is so serious experienced engineers are needed."

Albion and district is especially hard hit because in 1948 about 15 acres of MacMillan Island washed away, changing the course of the river so it hits the shore with greater force than previously.

Residents suggest a solution might be to dredge a channel through the hard clay of the island to force the river back into the route it followed before the 1948 flood.

In 1950 the average factory employee in Canada worked 42.3 hours per week, earned $43.82. At January 1, 1956, the average number of hours was 39.1, the average wage was $57.63.

MORE COINS FOR CANADIAN POCKETS

—Central Press Canadian

Business is booming in Ottawa's mint where coins of the realm are made. Every year sees more demand for coins, and in the past two years production has more than doubled, with dimes and quarters most in demand. Last year's output put coins valued at over $5,000,000 in circulation. At work here are sorters who are examining coins for imperfections which would cause them to be returned for re-melting and re-stamping.

School On Wheels Trains Fishermen

Halifax (CP) — The provincial trade and industry department has put a fisheries school on wheels.

"Bluenose Princess," a 40-foot-long trailer truck, was unveiled at a ceremony here before going into use as a classroom to give Nova Scotia fishermen practical instructions in the handling of diesel and gasoline engines.

Trade Minister Dauphinee of Nova Scotia says the trailer was designed to train fishermen in engine care and maintenance, "to increase his self-sufficiency and skills in handling the tools of his trade."

"Sister Ship"

Included in its equipment are a precision lathe, battery charger and generator, dies for threading bolts and a coil and condenser testing unit.

Quebec FORGES AHEAD IN ROAD BUILDING

In 1936 Quebec's whole road system was 30 years out of date. There was not one good road between any two important centers. Even the Montreal-Quebec road sadly needed rebuilding, and was notorious for its many dangerous railroad grade crossings.

Today, Quebec has roads extending 42,578 miles of which 25,794 miles—over half the total—are completely cared for by the Province.

Since 1944 the National Union government has . . .
PAVED THE STREETS OF
1,500 VILLAGES
(one-third were never paved before)

UNDER THE LIBERALS IN 1935 ONLY 453 MILES OF ROAD WERE OPEN IN WINTER—WITH LITTLE GOVERNMENT HELP.

In 1955, seventy times more, or 31,300 miles were kept open all year with considerable Provincial grants.

Improved roads have been a strong factor in Quebec's great development in forestry, farming, mining, power expansion, manufacturing, and general business.
