Ayersville Meets Difficulties Over Garbage Disposal Site; To Confer With Lachute Town

The regular meeting of the Ayersville Council was delayed for half an hour Tuesday evening, there being only four councillors present. Following this delay, it was unanimously voted that Councillor Douglas Simon should preside — Mayor Gaetan Paquette and Councillors Maurice Champage, Sr., and Albert Seguin being absent.

After reading of the minutes by Secretary Conrad Legault, accounts totalling $1,283 were approved for payment. One account, from T. P. Hall, Brownsburg, for the use of a piece of his equipment, was held over for further information.

A letter from Dr. L. Turcotte, County Health Officer, was received by the Council informing them of a complaint in connection with their garbage dump. The letter mentioned that a dump could not be allowed to operate within a distance of 1,800 feet from any building and that the refuse had to be covered every day. (It appears, according to the complaint, that the Ayersville dump is within 900 feet from a place of residence.)

Relative to this same subject, a letter was read from Lachute Secretary-treasurer Jacques Poitras, proposing a joint meeting between the two bodies some time in September to discuss garbage disposal and other problems. Secretary Legault was appointed to attend the next session of Lachute Council in order to fix a date for a meeting, and was also requested to communicate with Dr. Turcotte and inform him that the question was under study.

It was unanimously approved that Philippe Malette be appointed to clean chimneys, at the cost of $1 each.

Councillor Aurelien Foucault was named pro-mayor for the ensuing three months.

It was decided to give the names Champlain, Hay and St. Antoine to the three streets in the Sandy Hill area, and to number the houses in this section.

Building permits were granted to Arthur Lanthier, for a house on Chatham Street, and to Omer Tessier, for the addition of a second storey on his store — afterwhich the session was adjourned.

W.I. Scholarship To Rockway Girl

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — Congratulations are extended to Miss Barbara Sinclair, of Rockway, Que., who has won the Women's Institute scholarship for this year. . . The Misses Barbara and Isabelle Sinclair, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Sinclair, of Rockway, will be attending Westhill High School in Montreal this coming term.

Being the first Canadian twins to be born during World War II in England, the Queen Mother, then reigning queen, took particular notice of the fact, being the Honorary Colonel of the regiment to which Mr. Sinclair belonged. Since then the Queen Mother and the present Queen Elizabeth have kept in touch with them on birthdays and Christmas, and Mrs. Sinclair has forwarded on their graduation pictures.

Nobody expected any brilliant ideas from the one-day meeting of Atlantic premiers, but the ball has started to roll and given time these provinces can surely present their needs in an effective manner.

COTTAGE DAYS ARE OVER!

Summer vacation days are over. Seasonal friendships among neighboring campers are interrupted, as the young fry return to school and parents reluctantly suspend operations at the summer cottage.

Happy memories for Lake Louisa residents are such gatherings as pictured here, at regular weekly "Sunday School" on the lakeshore. These informal periods have been held all season at the various cottage homes, where city and local people have joined the children in worship and hearty singing of the old, favorite hymns.

This panorama was photographed on the property of Mr. Alf. Sawyer, at the southwest side of the lake. Seen in the right foreground is Mr. Sam Rose, of Brownsburg, accompanying the hymns on a portable organ; he is backed by the "choir" of mixed vocalists.

Local Ayrshires in Eastern States Exposition

West Springfield, Mass. — Two prominent local Ayrshire breeders, J. H. Black and J. P. Bradley & Son, of Lachute, have Ayrshire entries in the largest livestock show in the East to be held during the Eastern States Exposition, September 15-23.

Hundreds of animals from more than 200 herds will represent the East's prosperous dairy industry in this huge show. The dairy animals will be judged beginning on Monday, September 17. Expert judges, selected from college and university staffs as well as nationally known breeders, will choose class winners on the basis of a breed standard of perfection.

Argenteuil Re-opened For Staking of Claims

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Quebec Minister of Mines, has pleasure in announcing through The Watchman that on August 30, at a Provincial Cabinet meeting, an Order-in-Council was passed whereby Argenteuil County is now re-opened for the staking of claims.

35,000 Increase in Quebec 1956 School Enrolment

By Richard Daignault

Quebec (CP) — Quebec Province ended the 1955-56 fiscal year with a surplus of $294,552, Finance Minister Gagnon announced last week. The fiscal year ended March 31.

Mr. Gagnon, during the last session of the legislature, forecast that revenues would reach a record $389,468,000 but they soared to $407,812,775.

The surplus reported by Mr. Gagnon compared with his forecast of a $75,000 surplus last February.

Expenditures, including ordinary, capital and public debt charges, reached a record $407,518,222. This compared with Mr. Gagnon's original estimate of $389,393,000. Later Mr. Gagnon tabled two supplementary budgetary estimates bringing total estimates to $404,925,500.

The surplus for the 1955-56 fiscal year compared with a deficit of $213,502,289 during the 1954-55 fiscal year.

The financial statement places the net funded debt at $356,675,004 as of March 21st last.

A record 900,000 children are expected to be enrolled in Quebec Province public schools this year. The figure is an increase of 35,000 over last year.

Increases in school enrolment have been high since the end of the second world war. A spokesman for the department of education said that some 385 schools are built annually at a cost of $3,900,000 to provide additional classes required.

Georges Lafrance, Quebec Province Superintendent of Insurance, says Canadian investors should place their money in Canadian development projects instead of complaining about the presence of foreign investment capital here.

In a speech to members of a Quebec banking institution, Mr. Lafrance said Canadians should not miss the opportunity to share in the nation's expansion and development.

He said if Canadians do not look out for their own interests no one else will do it for them.

Safecrackers Visit Local Firm, Big Haul in Cash and Cheques

Professional safe-crackers who, according to authorities, "knew their business," blew the wall-safe at Arc Supply Ltd., on Bethany Road early last Thursday morning, and escaped with almost $5,000 in cash and an undisclosed number of cheques.

The thieves, who apparently knew their way around the building, entered by tearing a complete window frame out of the back of the warehouse. They walked through the warehouse and garage sections, entered the store and office and set to work, forcing their way into the vault by prying it open.

Having gained access to the vault, they used dynamite to blow the safe, the blast hurling chunks of cement a considerable distance into the office. Several nearby residents reported hearing the loud noise around 3 a.m., and one neighbor reported that she got up and went outside, but saw nothing to cause alarm. The noise was concluded to be something having fallen at Boyd's Express warehouse nearby.

The car used by the thieves was parked by the detached window behind the building, hiding the entry from view in the back yard.

The investigation was commenced by Det. Ralph Allen, who turned the case over to Sgt. A. Danielle of the Hold-Up Squad, Montreal, who was also called to the scene. The latter is continuing enquiry into all aspects of the robbery.

Plan Conversation Courses in English This Autumn

The French-speaking population of Lachute and vicinity are pleased to learn that the Catholic School Commission has agreed to provide space in l'Ecole Supérieure for a conversational course in the English language. The course will be held by Henri Gendreau, B.A., B.Sc., of St. Eustache, and lessons get underway this autumn, probably in early October.

The course will be given one night a week, from 7.30 to 9.30, for a 14-week period in two separate sections, namely "Preparatory" and "Special". To enroll, one must have completed at least Grade VII education in French, and be serious in the proposed undertaking. The course will be open to young and old alike, of both sexes.

Enrolment will be held Friday evening, September 21, at 1.15 o'clock in l'Ecole Supérieure, where Mr. Gendreau will meet his prospective pupils. Commencement of the course will be announced later.

Some Canadian fabric manufacturers are applying a new finish to their products that makes fabrics self-deodorizing and self-sterilizing.

Various trade names are used to identify the process, which inhibits the growth of bacteria and other organisms that cause odors, mold and mildew.

An added advantage is that the treatment will remain in the fabric through repeated dry cleanings or washings.

Little Change In High School Roll To Date

Principal F. H. J. Royal of Lachute High School reports that the student enrolment for the current school year, which commenced yesterday, is 649 — this figure being four less that at this time last year. It is expected the ultimate 1956-57 enrolment will exceed that of last year, within the next few days.

Seven new teachers have commenced duties on the High School staff, namely: Lucien Rossaert, B.A. of Montreal, and Miss Isabel McOuat, of St. Andrews East, who will share the French teaching duties; Charles Lunn, Industrial Arts instructor; Miss Nadia Neznick, of Verdun, teaching music; Miss Mary Feher, B.A., of the Town of Mount Royal, teaching Grade VIIIC; Miss Barbara Cowan, St. Philippe, teaching Grade IVB; and Mrs. Kenneth Fraser, of Lachute, teaching Grade VA.

Lachute Man on Macdonald Faculty

In the Macdonald teaching staff for the coming term, it is noted that a Lachute man, Dr. Lewis E. Lloyd, has been promoted to associate professor in livestock nutrition. Prof. Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lloyd, received his high school education here before specializing in Agriculture. He qualified for the B.Sc.A. degree from McGill (Macdonald College) and subsequently took a Ph.D. at Cornell University.

Weeklies' Coverage Steadily Growing

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

by the Canadian Press

By Roy LaBerge,

Ottawa, Sept. 4 (CP) — Canada has come out in favor of the 18-power plan for international control of the disputed Suez canal. On the eve of External Affairs Minister Pearson's departure for a NATO committee meeting in Paris, the government made a public statement urging that Egyptian President Nasser negotiate a permanent settlement along the lines proposed at the London conference on the Suez.

Mr. Pearson said the statement, which said the London terms form a solid basis for settlement, is being transmitted to interested countries including Egypt, which has nationalized the vital waterway.

In a series of other announcements, Mr. Pearson said:

1. Canada has initiated discussions with the United States aimed at cutting down the inconveniences and delays caused Canadian citizens at United States border points because their names appear on the U.S. immigration "lookout" lists.

May Train Germans

2. The Canadian and West German governments are discussing the posisbility of training German pilots in Canada but Germany has not made a formal request for this.

3. Canada is making a $1,250,000 gift of 25,000 tons of wheat to Pakistan to help relieve the food shortage.

4. The government has not yet reached a decision on the matter of extending territorial waters beyond the present three-mile limit. This is being delayed pending talks with other countries and in the U.N.

5. Canadian action on Israel's long-standing request to buy Sabre jet planes in this country is being held up until the Suez problem is clarified, to avoid having two issues tangled up.

The Canadian statement on the Suez canal said Canada feels the London proposals "are reasonable and satisfactory and deserve our support as a basis for negotiation."

It referred to the canal as an "international waterway." But the same day, at Cairo, Nasser had taken exception to President Eisenhower's use of the same phrase August 29.

Officials later told reporters that the NATO committee is to hear a report from British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, chairman of the London conference on the canal.

Drew in Good Health

Hon. George Drew, as he left the capital August 30 with Mrs. Drew for a Bermuda holiday, told reporters he was feeling well and expects to lead the Progressive Conservative party in the next federal election, expected in June, 1957.

The holiday was ordered by Mr. Drew's doctor following a six-day medical check-up at Montreal's Neurological Institute. The check-up showed him to be in good health and in need only of complete rest after a strenuous session in Parliament.

"I have every reason to believe that I will lead the party in the next general election," Mr. Drew said. "I have been given a clean bill of health. I plan to resume my full activities as soon as I get back from this trip."

Quebec Wins Warmth of Good Will Among Cross-Country Weeky Editors

Canada's "Biggest Family Gathering" At 37th Annual Newspaper Convention Last Week at Murray Bay, Quebec,

The annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association has become known as "Canada's biggest family party." The convention this year (the 37th annual) was held at Quebec's luxury summer resort, the Manoir Richelieu at Murray Bay, where the serious business sessions were well balanced with lighter enjoyment and a general atmosphere of congeniality.

Quebec to the Fore

The Watchman, represented at this annual conclave, brings to its readers an abbreviated address from Aimé Gagné, president of the French-language weeklies and publisher of "Le Lingot", Arvida. Mr. Gagné was delegated to convey to this nation-wide gathering the welcome of Quebec; his remarks are featured here as typifying one important aspect of the conference, namely, the favorable publicity and prestige which accrued to this province as host to an influential segment of Canadians. . . Another such address was delivered by the Hon. Paul Beaulieu, of St. Johns, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who also interpreted Quebec to her fellow-Canadians, affirmed her national psychology and patriotism, and revealed something of her immense cultural and industrial strides of recent years.

These addresses were aside from the immediate concern of the publishing business, but they will rank foremost, we believe, in the impressions taken back by newspapermen to the far corners of the country, both east and west.

Role of the Weekly

"Weekly newspaper editors have every reason to be proud of the role they play in Canada's development," said President John A. Vopni, of Davidson, Sask., in his opening address before the nearly 500 editors and publishers assembled to deliberate the problems and significance of weekly newspapers on the Canadian scene.

"The non-metropolitan newspapers contribute in great measure to the stability of this nation," he continued. "We must not overlook the tremendous significance of our combined efforts in both reflecting and moulding public opinion and public attitudes from coast to coast."

At the same time, the group was urged to guard vigilantly the high respect and recognition won during the past half century.

Several of the speakers at the 37th annual convention complimented the delegates on their accomplishments in building the prestige of the weekly press. But they warned that weekly editors have grave responsibilities in their home towns.

Many of the 400 delegates arrived wearing gay Alouette stocking caps. They found bellhops, waitresses and elevator operators similarly attired as the hotel staff joined in the spirit of the get-together.

William Draayer, editor of the Wetaskiwin (Alta.) Times, was chosen to succeed his fellow westerner John Vopni as president, while G. C. Day, Liverpool (N.S.) Advance, and H. E. McCormick, Montreal Monitor, were chosen as first and second vice-presidents respectively.

Warm Collaboration

Canada Steamship Lines, the railway companies, several public relations, advertising and trade affiliates, contributed immeasurably to the success of this convention, in terms of service and special courtesies, or as hosts at meals and receptions during the four convention days. Their co-operation and good will were warmly appreciated. Notable additions to the general enjoyment were provided by national advertisers, equipment firms and trade suppliers in the form of prizes donated for the occasion — among which, we may mention, a handsome Ayers blanket has gone to the far west (with the Queen's Printer from Alberta) to spread the repute of this town and signify the good will of its major industry.

Attending the convention as representatives of The Lachute Watchman were Mr. R. A. Giles, Mr. and Mrs. Don Titman and son, Rodger.

Lions Club Hears TV Commentator On Sporting Scene

"Little Major League" Again Successfully Sponsored by Club

A surprise package for Lachute Lions on the opening meeting of their 1956-57 season was an unannounced speaker, in the person of Larry O'Brien, veteran columnist and a well known TV sportscaster.

The meeting, with a good attendance of 40 members, was held Tuesday in the Legion Hall. In the regrettable absence of President Jos. Dumais through a sudden bereavement, the chair was occupied by Vice-President Ernest Snadden.

Acknowledgments and requests for assistance were largely of concern to the Sight Conservation committee, having relation to activities of the CNIB, and the wherewithal to provide an artificial eye for an adolescent girl. These matters received attention.

Lion Dr. Eric Mongeon received plaudits on the success of the Little Major League juvenile baseball this past season — the venture having again been organized by Dr. Mongeon under sponsorship of the Lions Club.

An expression of sympathy was sent to Lion Dumais on the death of his mother, a well known townslady. A communication from the absentee president announced plans for a full-dress debate on a matter now of prime interest, namely, a major project for club endeavor.

Larry O'Brien, public relations representative of Molson Breweries, was introduced by Leonard Bedard. His talk was brief and informal, giving glimpses of sports celebrities and a quick appraisal of the sporting scene, particularly from the viewpoint of Montreal and neighborhood fans. He waxed enthusiastic on two notably outstanding stars — Jean Beliveau, of Canadiens in NHL hockey, and the Allouettes' Harold Patterson, whom he termed "terrific" on the Big Four football map.

The Canadiens as Stanley Cup winners, with Toe Blake as helmsman; Lucille Wheeler, the Gold Medal winner at Olympics, from nearby St. Jovite; the Royals in high promise, and Allouettes at their peak — these were performers to stir affection in the heart of a sportsman; and Larry O'Brien revealed himself part and parcel of the scene he surveys. . . After replying to questions from his listeners, he was cordially thanked by Lion Ian Gordon.

Census Unfolds More Figures on District Centres

Further statistics of local interest, from the recent census conducted by the Federal Government, were released this week by Notary Richard Valois, who was census officer for the population count in Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes.

Some municipalities have realized an increase in population, while others have decreased. Figures for the 1951 census are here given in brackets:

Harrington, 678 (642); Mille Isles, 233 (239); Township of Montcalm, 271 (300); Oka Village, 1,217 (1,110); St. Benoit, 939 (936); St. Canut, 994 (893); St. Colomban, 298 (320); St. Hermas, 979 (963) and St. Joseph du Lac, 1,345 (1,463).

New Manager for Bell Telephone

R. R. (Dick) Pearson, of Montreal, has been appointed Bell Telephone manager for Brownsburg and Lachute, it was announced recently. He succeeds Roland Dupuy, who becomes district office supervisor in Sherbrooke. Both appointments are effective September 20.

Born and educated in Sherbrooke, Mr. Pearson enlisted in the Canadian Infantry in 1944 and served for two years in the active forces. In October of 1946, he joined the plant department of the Eastern Townships Telephone Company. When this company was purchased by the Bell Telephone Company in 1954, he became an outside representative with the commercial department. He then gained experience in various positions with this department until he was promoted manager here.

The men of action are, after all, only the unconscious instruments of the men of thought.

30 Wedding Guests Suffer Food Poisoning At Papineauville, Que.

Papineauville — Thirty persons were taken to hospital here Saturday, suffering from food poisoning. None was reported in serious condition.

Provincial police said the 30 were poisoned by sandwiches they ate at a wedding Saturday morning. Another 30 wedding guests, also the bride and groom, were unaffected.

Summer Cottages

It is suggested to those leaving their summer cottages that they do not neglect to pull their main electric switch, thus ensuring that no appliance inadvertently left on can cause trouble.

Similarly those returning to their cottages for week-ends during the beautiful autumn days, should remember to throw in their main switch — before calling the power company that their power is off.

At this time of the resumption of school, the Company again requests parents to kindly caution their children to refrain from throwing stones at the insulators on the poles of transmission lines!

Aside from the considerable expense in replacing them, there is another unfortunate result from broken insulators. . .

Very often the flow of power is interrupted, causing inconvenience to customers. This, coming at critical times, can be most annoying to people who depend on electrical power to perform many functions around the home and farm.

Remember — it may be your service which will be affected!

Seasonal Farm Topics

Weeds in Corners And Waste Places

Weeds grow in profusion along fence rows, roadsides, driveways and other neglected areas. Being inconspicuous they often go unnoticed, and after a few years they are frequently taken for granted. Many farms have small neglected areas, usually close to the farmstead, where weeds develop and spread to the fields when least expected. The corner of the field, the stony knoll, the small strip between the barn and the trees is frequently overlooked.

Farmers cannot expect to gain the benefits of cultural or chemical methods of weed control in the fields unless a concerted effort is made to prevent the growth and seeding of weeds in the uncultivated areas surrounding the farm. Weeds of all classes, annuals, biennials and perennials may be found in these non-cultivated areas, but as a rule the annuals predominate. This helps to simplify control because the weeds can be destroyed before they mature seed. But all too frequently weeds are mowed when in seed and left on the ground to dry. The seeds or even the entire plants are blown in great numbers to adjacent cultivated fields. It is incorrect to assume that if plants are mowed when in flower that all danger of seed production is past. Consequently early destruction is advisable if the production of weed seeds is to be prevented. On all uncropped areas where a tractor or cultivating implements may be used, clean cultivation with disks or plows usually gives the cheapest and most effective control.

Property owners sometimes seem indifferent to weeds and treat them carelessly, allowing seeds to develop and scatter at random. A little extra thought and labor will do much to prevent the growth and spread of weeds.

Marked Improvement In Beef Quality

A remarkable improvement has taken place in the over-all quality of the cattle slaughtered for beef in Canada during the past five years, states the Marketing Service, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Since the national carcass grades were established in 1946 all the inspected slaughter has been carcass graded. In 1950, of a total kill of 1,300,000 cattle, 16.7 per cent reached the two top grades — 6 per cent choice, 10.7 per cent good, the balance were graded as commercial or other grades. In 1955, of a total kill of 1,700,000 cattle, 35.4 per cent were in the two top grades — 18 per cent, 17.4 per cent good.

The percentage reaching the top grades is still increasing. For the first five months of 1956, with a total kill of 777,000, there were 42.2 per cent in the two top grades — 21.9 choice, 20.3 good, as compared with 712,000 killed, grading 18.8 choice and 18.9 good, in the first five months of 1955.

The Marketing Service notes that when exports go down the quality of the home slaughter goes up, but for the first five months of this year, exports were down only 6,300 head, while the number of "choice" and "good" cattle slaughtered increased by over 58,000 head. The grading figures indicate that Canadian farmers are producing more top quality beef and that Canadian consumers are increasing their demands so that most of it is needed at home.

Test Soil Nutrients In Early Fall

Because soil is not too dry but yet dry enough to mix easily to provide a uniform sample, farmers are urged to have their soil tested in early fall to determine the extent of nutrient deficiency.

How to prepare a soil sample is outlined by G. R. Snyder, head of C-I-L's farm advisory service. Mr. Snyder says samples should be taken from several locations in the field. If no soil tube is available a spade may be used to dig down to plow depth — about five to seven inches. In permanent pastures dig down to a three-inch depth.

Throw aside the first spadeful of soil and cut a thin slice down the face of the hole. Remove it on the spade, trim the sides with a knife and cut off any soil of different color at the bottom of the slice. Place trimmed slice in a clean pail or basket. Repeat this operation at various places selected. When all samples in one area have been taken, mix the soil thoroughly. From the resultant mixture a representative sample of one-half pint can be sent away for analysis.

Areas offering definite problems should be sampled separately, says Mr. Snyder. Fields where row crops have been grown with fertilizer along the rows are the most difficult to sample fairly so that at least 25 separate spots should be sampled and mixed for the composite sample. For deep rooted crops like alfalfa a similar sampling should be taken of the sub soil. Information regarding drainage, previous cropping and manural practices plus cropping plans for the future are required by the soil chemist for each set of samples and these should be forwarded under separate cover when mailing samples.

In a laboratory, a soil chemist subjects the composite sample to several tests. He determines whether or not a soil should be limed and how much lime is needed. He finds out if there is a satisfactory level or organic matter and the soil requirements of nutrients such as nitrogen, phosphate and potash. He can tell what fertilizer mixture is the most economic to buy and how much of it should be applied per acre.

OUT ON A LIMB

By Stumpy McCulloch

A city feller was tryin' to talk Ol' Sam into buying a bicycle the other day. "I'd rather spend my money on a cow," Sam said.

"But think," the feller insisted, "how foolish you'd look riding around on a cow."

"Not half so foolish as I'd look tryin' to milk a bicycle!" said Ol' Sam.

I was readin' in the papers the other day that the once-fertile lands of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers, over in the Near East—where lots of fellers think the Garden of Eden was located—is now a barren wasteland. That's right—because people cut down all the trees and never planted any more!

Well, sir, in our own forests, loggers are swingin' their axes and runnin' their saws at a faster rate than ever before—but there's no danger that they'll destroy our forestlands! 'Cause tree growth today exceeds tree cutting by 32 per cent, accordin' to the head of the Western Pine Association.

The Green Timbers Forestry Station, B.C. occupies 25 acres and operating at full capacity, production is 6 million 2 year old trees per year. This is a great start—so let's keep planting more than we cut.

The best thing to do, when you harvest your trees, is to figure out how to get your wood to the railroad siding or the mill at the least expense. I always plan to haul from low places while the ground is dry, or—in the winter—when it's frozen solid. If my trees aren't too scattered, I throw them along the path my truck will follow, then load directly from stump to truck. 'Course, a feller who uses a team or a horse will work differently from the feller with a tractor. Every job is a little different. Main thing is to avoid unnecessary handling of wood. 'Cause when you save handling, you save money!

EXPANSION SATISFIES CEMENT DEMAND

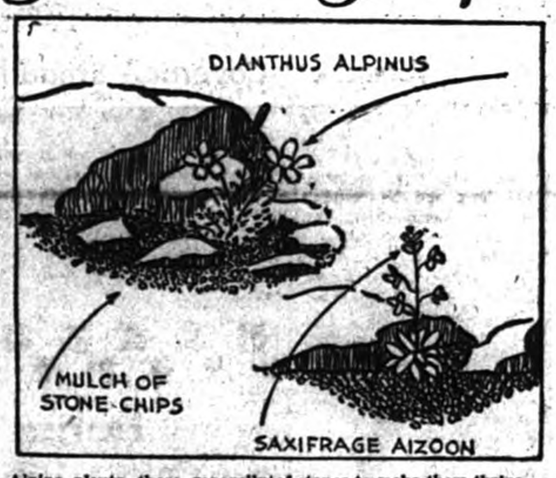

—Central Press Canadian

Cement shortages that plagued Canadian construction ventures will be at an end next year, according to cement companies that have put $80,000,000 into expanding their capacity. The shortage began in 1951 and since then Canada has imported cement from the U.S., Poland and Czechoslovakia. When the expansion is completed, Canada may again become an exporter of cement. Cement producers have gambled on the building boom continuing and, even if it expands, they believe there will be adequate supplies from Canadian plants.

Garden-Graph

Alpine plants, those generally planted in a rock garden, will do better if they are mulched with a layer of fine stone chips. This treatment gives them a "homey" feeling, for in their original native state such plants are found growing on rocky ledges or in the crack. of large rocks with scarcely any soil for their roots.

Sandstone chips are liked by rock plants, but limestone chips will also prove beneficial to them.

Two stone-loving plants, Dianthus alpinus and Saxifrage aizoon, are shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Other saxifrages and lewisia require the same diet of stones to make them thrive.

Another way to grow these plants, and many other rock plants, is in pockets or crevices in a stone wall which has been laid up "dry," which means without mortar between the stones.

Although only certain rock plants will not thrive unless they have a layer of stone chips around their crowns, it is best to go over the entire rock garden, giving it a light covering with a mixture of stone chips and leaf mold.

Apply stone chips around erodiums and certain of the campanulas, including C. barbata and rosacs.

SMALL N.S. PORT NOW BUSY CENTRE

Wallace, N.S. (CP) — Terminal for pulpwood shipments and for sandstone from the Wallace quarry, this port on an inlet of Northumberland strait is bidding to become one of Cumberland county's busiest spots.

A new method of ship-loading was adopted this season. Pulp is loaded by huge cranes attached to the ship, which scoop the pulp from a boom in the harbor. Port workers can load 1,000 cords in seven hours, with the scoops lifting a half-cord of pulp on a single haul.

It DOES matter which Oil Burner you buy!
If you're in the market for an oil burner, there are dozens for you to choose from. They all look very much alike. They all burn oil. Some are pretty efficient, others less so. But, unless you're an engineer, there's no way for you to decide which burner is best for your needs, except by insisting on one made by a reputable, long-established manufacturer. Like Smart's, for example. We recommend Smart's series "A" oil burners because when we sell one we know that the customer is going to be satisfied with the deal, for a long time. If that seems to you to be a good reason for buying a Smart's oil burner, let us show you the complete range, and tell you all about them.

Our Colleagues, the Editors

WEEKLY EDITORS assembling in convention to discuss the trends and problems of their craft, and to learn ways of performing a better job for their customers, the reading public — proved themselves once again a group of men in close contact with the realities of life. The fact that many of them live "in little places" removed from the metropolis and suburbia, gives them perhaps a clearer perspective of the over-all national scene, imparts better judgment, promotes more balanced and constructive viewpoints. . . That is the impression one gathers, at least, in mingling with these men, as was our privilege as Watchman representatives at Murray Bay last week.

We were impressed, among other things, by the proof that readership of the weekly newspaper is immeasurably more serious, more intent and more personal than the casual reading of the dailies. The fact was brought out in an appraisal of "commuter" reading of the city dailies, and its value to the advertiser, as compared with the local paper at consumer level, where it receives a perusal at the same time, intimate, neighborly and critical. . . There were many observations which struck us forcibly in the discussions at this convention; this is but one, sufficient to spur our efforts anew, that we may justify the confidence of our readership and adequately fulfill our mission as a local newspaper.

More notable to The Watchman and other Quebec delegates, however, was another impression. This was the realization that our province, as host to this gathering, acquitted itself most creditably. From far-away Alberta and B.C. — from Newfoundland and the Atlantic seaboard — they came and returned, travellers aglow with the charm of St. Lawrence scenery; with the service and hospitality of that picturesque resort, the Manoir Richelieu; and with the tradition, the loyalty and the progressive spirit evidenced in Quebec Province. . . To the Quebec committeemen, to the railway and hotel officials, and to the speakers who most ably interpreted the sentiments of this province to a large and diversified attendance, we pay unstinting tribute.

Literary Experiment

ANY NEW venture in publication is always interesting.

The establishment of a weekly on the industrial frontier, the setting up of a daily in the competitive rush of a growing city, the birth of a magazine — they all reflect someone's urge to enlarge the area of human communication. And someone's willingness to risk money on the proposition that the manner in which he performs this public service will appeal enough to readers and advertisers to pay its way.

The Atlantic Advocate, a monthly founded by the publisher of Fredericton's daily paper, The Gleaner, will therefore be closely watched. Except for occasional "little magazines" devoted to the furtherance, within a small orbit, of some critical or literary speciality, the establishment of a new periodical in Canada is an event comparable in rarity with discovery of the coelacanth. The reason is obvious: the availability on Canadian news stands of many large general magazines published in the United States.

The Fredericton publisher takes an interesting approach to the problem. He has anchored his future to progress of various bodies — notably the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council — devoted to quickening the economic pulse of the area. The first sentence of his opening editorial says: "The Atlantic Advocate is launched to fight battles of the Atlantic provinces which will win for them a fair place in the life of Canada."

But he is also aware of the fact that, to appeal to a general readership, no periodical can exist on a discussion of economic aspects alone. The first issue of The Advocate, besides the record of the Fredericton conference of Atlantic premiers, contains fiction, verse and general articles by writers from the Atlantic provinces — some of whom live there, others of whom belong to that widespread group of Maritimers who have helped to popularize the rest of Canada. Most notable of his contributors, in fact, went even farther. Lord Beaverbrook's memories of his boyhood in Newcastle, N.B., are a feature of the first issue.

Thus the magazine has a two-fold aim — to record economic developments, and to reflect the social and traditional life of its area. It is an interesting experiment.

Rundown Communities

RECENTLY, a U.S. town lost its chance for prosperity through its shabby, unpainted appearance and apparent lack of progress. The town council had interested an automobile manufacturing firm in a town site for a multi-million dollar assembly plant which would have employed 3,500 people. The real estate scout for the automotive firm admitted later that one of his company's reasons for rejecting the site was that many of the town's properties had not been painted for 25 years!

It would be interesting to know how many Canadian communities achieve a low rating because of such neglect. Most Canadian centres are anxious to attract industry. The more industries, the more employment opportunities there are for its citizens. The local per capita tax load is usually reduced. More money pours into the coffers of local businesses, which in turn may expand their premises and staffs.

Industry of course takes several factors into consideration before finally resolving where to locate. But, suppose several communities possess equally suitable facilities, which one will be chosen as an industrial site? . . . As a veteran real estate scout from one large Canadian firm put it: "Considering all other things are equal, we would undoubtedly give the nod to the tidy, well painted and landscaped location. We believe the citizens of such a place are industrious, conscientious, and possess pride in their community. We feel they would make good employees and fine neighbors."

Has YOUR property, by the way, lost its proud appearance through the lack of a paint job?

"Model T" Drivers

A STUDY of traffic accidents shows that human failure is the number one cause. Motor vehicles and highways have greatly improved during the past 10 years, but the improvement in driving ability has not kept pace. Our streets and highways are becoming crowded with 300 horsepower cars being driven by Model T drivers. Our job, then, is to improve the quality of our drivers.

Criminal acts on the highways are killing many more people than criminal acts off the highway, but we will never have enough police officers to detect and apprehend every driver who commits a hazardous traffic violation. It is up to motorists themselves to promote this voluntary observance of traffic laws and the rules of safe driving.

Old Stuff

NEWS CLIPPINGS of the past bring a forceful revelation of contrasts. We have come across a letter pened to the editor of our contemporary, The Huntingdon Gleaner, in August 1905 — just over half a century ago. The situation, as compared with modern-day conceptions, requires no comment:

To the Editor:

Within the last few weeks the automobile has invaded the township of Hinchinbrook, frightening horses and endangering the lives of people who use the public roads. A short time ago one of my neighbors, an expert horseman, while driving along the public road met an auto near the top of a hill and narrowly escaped with his life, and will have a good penny to pay for repairs, while his horse will not be safe to drive for a long time to come. Our women are afraid to go from home with a horse. Farmers hesitate to send boys to the factory with the milk. Is there no remedy? I think there is. We are a municipal corporation, or body politic. The automobile has become a public nuisance, a menace to life and property. Let the council submit a by-law prohibiting the auto from using the public roads within the municipality, and if carried, as it will be by an overwhelming majority, I think we can get rid of the nuisance.

(Signed) A. MUIR, Jr.,
Hinchinbrook, August 21, 1905.

THE PURPOSE of a newspaper headline is to attract readers to the story beneath, but sometimes the purpose is achieved a little violently. . . "The Printed Word" cites the example of a newspaper, unnamed, which recently ran an obituary under the heading:

MIGHT THESE HEADLINES INVOLVE YOU?

"Dog bite costs owner $2,300 plus legal expenses . . . . . "

"Owner pays $2,000. to visitor who slipped on front steps . . . "

"Icicle falling from roof brings $15,000. damage action . . . . "

"Television aerial falls striking pedestrian - awarded $700 . . ."

"Neighbour's dog knocks child down costing more than $1,000."

"Occasional servant seriously hurt in fall collects $2,375 . . . "

"Wounded while hunting, court awards $10,431. and costs . . "

CREDIT SQUEEZE

The present credit squeeze imposed by the Bank of Canada is making it difficult for a good many corporations as well as for private individuals to go ahead with plans for construction and building. FREE WHEELING Yesterday, I ran into Solomon Abramson. I haven't seen Solly in years, not since we shared bunk space in an out-of-the-way Army hospital in Italy. He, poor soul, had indulged in some pastries of doubtful origin in a Sicilian confectioners and had landed on his back with a severe intestinal infection. I was luckier, I had merely taken too many anti-malaria pills and had turned so yellow that I was hustled off to the medics as a suspected jaundice case.

It was a mystery to me a decade ago why the Army ever enlisted the aid of Solly Abramson. Solly just wasn't military material, no matter which way you looked at him. He was the rolly-polly type, as broad as he was long and he couldn't march for beans. Being all thumbs, he was useless in any sort of craft so I naturally put him down as a member of a Pioneer battalion or maybe a clerk in the Postal Corps.

"Me?" Solly replied in answer to my query. "Vell, it's a long story, so I'm not boring you. I'm an artilleryman. Please you shouldn't ask me vy!"

"What outfit are you with?"

"A good question, yet. I don't know. Last veek it vas the Anti-Aircraft crew, and last month it vas the Survey. Last year, I'm a coast guard. Tomorrow, who knows? Maybe I'll be infantry!"

As it turned out, Solly was despatched to my old mob, the 1st Mediums, after his hospitalization. I returned to the 5th and lost track of him. And 12 years intervened before our paths crossed again.

We had much to talk about as we stood on the street corner yesterday.

"Have you met up with any of the lads from the hospital in your travels, Solly?" I enquired.

"Not a one. But someday maybe I vill. And this boy will be ready for them, too."

"How come?"

"How come, you are asking. Don't be stupid. Are you so absent-minded yet that you're forgetting how that gang vas treating Solly? Vat a time they gave me. Oi!"

"I guess I've forgotten most of the tricks that they played on you. But I still recall the night the fellows took the wheels off your bed. Remember?"

"Who could forget?"

For reasons known only to himself, Solly always rolled his bed away from the wall, moved it left and right and then shoved it back before getting into it and settling down for the night. It was one of his nocturnal rituals and it didn't go unnoticed by any of us in the ward. None of us ever asked Solly why he did it, however, we just watched and wondered.

After about a week of this, Henderson decided to do something about it.

"They'll be shipping Solly out soon. So, before they do, let's take the wheels off his bed so he can't move it. Then maybe we'll find out why he goes through that business every night."

Henderson had no sooner given voice to the suggestion than the deed was done. Solly was away at the hospital movie and wouldn't be back until after lights out. We could lie awake in the dark and watch the fun.

Not long after the lights went out, Solly lumbered into the ward and made his way through the gloom to his bed. He undressed quietly, hopped into the bunk, pulled the covers over his head and prepared for sleep.

Henderson popped up immediately, as did the rest of us. What had happened to the ceremony of moving the bed? The suspense was killing.

"Solly!" Henderson called. "Who told you the wheels had been taken off your bed."

"Nobody," Solly mumbled through the blankets.

"Well, aren't you worried? Don't you want the wheels?"

"Veels, veels," Solly bellowed, "who vants veels? Who's going anyvere?"

I was on the point of asking Solly about the ritual yesterday but one of his pals hove into view and I lost the chance in the resulting flurry of greetings. However, maybe I'll run into Solly again in 12 years. With luck, I'll get the story from him then!

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Old Folks

I watched a television show the other night called "Love and Money", in which Morley Callaghan and Mayor Moore attempted, through drama and statistical talk, to prove that Canada has reached something close to perfection.

According to these two men, our government, with baby bonuses and all the rest, has solved our problems. Wages have jumped higher than the cost of living in most of the big industries. According to the Moore-Callaghan TV combination, this is the best of all the wonderful worlds.

I kept watching, wondering if a CBC program would be realistic enough to get around to some truths that are not quite so palatable.

What about the old folks, who aren't working in any of these industries where pay increases have leaped beyond the rise in the cost of living? What about widows, trying to live on inheritances which were bequeathed back in the days when a dollar was worth a dollar?

Not a single word!

Now this may be a seventh heaven for steel workers or auto workers, but it is not so hot for pensioners, small-towners, or men who retired on hard-earned savings. Indeed, it is a cruel, hard world, with prices rising and savings dwindling. Yet every year the government undertakes additional spending which shoots additional holes in the dollar value.

For my part, I know by experience how such things can hurt. All through hard time I sweated to keep up the premiums on an insurance policy my father had placed on me. It matured recently — and the payoff looked like peanuts with prices the way they are today.

It is disgusting to see the government policy. It is worse when this same television monopoly has the power to control all other broadcasters, thus making them too timid to speak the truth when it is painful.

Morley Callaghan is a mighty fine novelist; and Mavor Moore may be a pretty good telecaster. But any competent economist could have pointed out to them in a minute that their show left an incorrect impression by selecting the good and avoiding the bad.

Canadian small towns particularly are chock full of people caught in this vicious price-rising squeeze. Is there no one to speak for them?

TRACKING DINOSAURS

Banking Business!

Banking is big business and we all like to have a whack at it! . . .

In the dairy business there should be lots of banking. You grow a calf to freshening time, and you invest money in her all this time in the hope that she will repay your investment with interest.

But many seem to want the interest too soon! To make LOTS of milk, which is an absolute necessity for profit, a cow must have flesh on her. Green grass makes milk, but a cow cannot eat enough grass to keep up her flesh and make the milk that grass urges her to make. She has to USE her flesh. . . . That is pulling your money out of her bank.

But feeding her on pasture is a big help to keep the flesh on the cow. This summer (if you can call it one) has been quite damp; pastures are better than usual and the after-grass looks wonderful. But that is the time to feed, or the cow will pull more out of your bank of flesh. Results — a thin cow, down in milk this fall, and a "boarder" for the winter.

Feed Milk Chow, Bulky Lac, or Protena Dairy Feed if you do not have home-grown grains, and feed Cow Chow Supplement mixed with your own grain if you do have them. Feed to keep your bank of flesh on the cow, not in the milk pail. The only time to pull out your bank in the cow is when you are finished with the cow!

We deliver. Won't you give us an order today and start saving your bank!

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Having a suit cleaned every week is expensive, as fathers of young children soon find out.

It is a common experience for a man to come home with a freshly-cleaned suit and sit down in a pool of condensed milk, or see his young son score a bull's-eye on his lapel with a blob of molasses flipped across the table.

Squish! There goes another $1.25.

A fellow I know has solved this problem by getting a so-called butcher's apron which wraps around and ties in front. It is made of stout blue denim, and it provides a shield against the gooiest traps and missiles.

This man is an insurance agent. He needs to look presentable. It would be awkward for him to find that his sales message was going unheard while the client focussed a critical stare on a sunburst of tomato soup above his hip pocket.

To avoid this danger, he slides into the apron as soon as he gets home.

"Tailors will readily make these aprons for you," he says.

They protect a man's suit against all hazards of a child-infested home — except the hazard of being set on fire.

My friend doesn't have the kind of children who set him on fire. However, a father who wanted to be prepared for the worst might buy himself an asbestos overcoat.

PRELIMINARY PROCEDURE

What Parliament reflects, of course, is the drowsiness, the sleep of the people who elect it — the indifference of those in danger of forgetting what democracy is about, craving only the ease and tranquility in their respective vocations.

OBITUARY

Well Known Townslady Died Suddenly

Late Mrs. Emile Dumais

Following a short illness Mrs. Emile Dumais, wife of a prominent Lachute businessman who predeceased her in May of this year, passed away last Monday at the age of 68.

The former Therese Carrière, she leaves to mourn her loss six sons and four daughters — Louis-Joseph, well known in Lachute business circles; the Rev. Father Paul, of the Clercs St. Viateur, teacher at Outremont; Bernard, L.Sc., C.A., of Montreal; Dr. Francois, D.D.S., of Aylmer; the Rev. Father Raymond, of the Clercs St. Viateur, teacher at Bourget College, Rigaud; André, M.A., personnel manager for Dow Breweries, Montreal; also Gabrielle (Mrs. Gaetan Cousineau), Lucette (Mrs. Roland Gosselin), Marthe and Denise, and 14 grandchildren.

The funeral was held this morning (Thursday) from Ste. Anastasie Parish Church, largely attended by sympathizing friends and fellow townsfolk.

Merchant Succumbs To Short Illness

Late Philippe Pharand

Louis-Philippe Pharand, another familiar figure in the Main Street business fraternity, died last night at the untimely age of 34 years. Mr. Pharand had been favorably known as a butcher and grocer in the central shopping section for about 15 years. His death occurred at the Hotel Dieu in St. Jerome, where he had been a patient for the past week.

Besides his wife, the former Marie-Paule Désilets, he leaves two sons and two daughters; his mother, Mrs. Albt. Pharand; and a sister, Mrs. G. H. Scarborough (Jeannette).

The funeral will be held Saturday morning from the Menard Funeral Home to Ste. Anastasie Parish Church.

BIRTH

TOMALTY — To Mr. and Mrs. Linton Tomalty, (née Betty Prosser), on Sept. 2, 1956, at Smith's Clinic, Hawkesbury, Ont., a son (Lewis Linton) — brother for Julia.

DEATH

WOOD — At Neepawa, Man., on Sept. 3, 1956, Mrs. James Wood (formerly Sarah Jane Murdoch of Mount Maple), beloved wife of the late James Wood, in her 83rd year.

IN MEMORIAM

CHAMPAGNE — In loving memory of my dear husband, Felix, who passed away Sept. 11, 1949. — Always loved and remembered by his wife, Dolly.

"Just as you were, you'll always be —
A loving husband dear to me."

CHAMPAGNE — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Felix Champagne, who passed away Sept. 11, 1949. — Loved and sadly missed by all the family.

"As a wonderful papa we still think of you,
In memories that are still fond and true.
There wasn't a thing too big or too small
That you wouldn't try to do for us all.
It's sad but true, we wonder why,
That the best are always the first to die.
We have lost, but Heaven has gained,
The best papa this world ever contained."

EVANS — In loving memory of Ernest C. Evans, who passed away Sept. 8, 1954. — Always remembered by his loving wife, Margaret, and daughters, Greta, Ada and Lillian.

"Years will not darken, nor shadows dim,
The wonderful memories we have of him."

GRAHAM — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Wm. Graham ("Jennie"), who passed away Sept. 6, 1946. — Always remembered by her family.

"Forever in our hearts."

ADOPT 36 CHILDREN, WISH TO HAVE 70 MORE

—Central Press Canadian

Mrs. Bertha Whyte has taken in 36 homeless children and wants to enlarge her premises to house 70 more. She and her husband "made a promise to God" never to turn away a child in need of a home and now, she says, there are many children waiting to live with her. They occupy a large farmhouse but need eight cribs for the younger children and more bedrooms for the older ones. In the evening, with Mrs. Whyte playing the accordion, the children are truly one big, happy family in their Bowmanville, Ont., home.

whose figures help measure the strength of the nation's economy, the earnings and social life of its workers and human problems from the cradle to the grave.

He will be replaced, it was learned in the capital last week, by Walter E. Duffett, 46-year-old Labor Department economist, who takes over a job highly prized by civil servants both inside and outside the bureau.

Mr. Duffett, a native of Galt, Ont., is a graduate of the University of Toronto and London School of Economics. He began his career as an economist with a Montreal insurance company, switched to the Wartime Prices Board in 1942 and then to the Bank of Canada before becoming Economic Director of the Labor Department two years ago.

The change likely will take place at the year end and may be officially announced just before then. The Bureau now has about 1,400 employees.

Atmospheric Study

A new investigation of the earth's atmosphere—Canada's contribution to an international weather study — will centre around a 100-foot aluminum tower to be erected by the Transport Department at an Arctic weather station.

The department announced last week it plans to build and operate the tower, loaded with scientific instruments, at Resolute on Cornwallis Island. Air temperature and humidity at various altitudes will be recorded in a search for new information about the gaseous envelope surrounding earth's surface.

The project is part of the department's contribution to International Geophysical Year beginning next June. Information obtained through it will be sent to World Meteorological Organization headquarters at Geneva where it will be pooled with the findings of more than 40 other nations, including the Soviet Union.

Until now, atmospheric studies have been concerned mainly with the first 10 miles above the earth's surface, where 90 per cent of the atmosphere is concentrated. But the department says it hopes to study the next 10-mile layer which incorporates another nine per cent and has an important effect on weather conditions.

OLD AGE PENSION SAID INADEQUATE

Montreal (CP) — Hospitals are being filled with old-age pensioners who can't afford proper nutrition, says an official of the Montreal Diet Dispensary.

Nan Garvock, executive director of the Red Feather service, says that old people need at least a dollar a day more than their present pension provides.

"The cost of looking after them in the hospital is far more than the dollar a day or more that they need to keep themselves properly," she declared.

Diet dispensary figures show the least amount required to feed, clothe and shelter an old-age pensioner in Montreal is $70.82 a month at current prices. A room with cooking privileges alone costs about $8 a week, leaving little for the pensioner to spend on food, clothing and incidentals, says Miss Garvock.

You now can buy pre-pasted wallpapers, which just have to be dampened, to take a lot of work out of the home decorating.

Piano Tuition

(Mrs.) Dorothy Davis, A.R.C.T., R.M.T. (Sask.) teacher of piano will have openings for a limited number of students. — Phone Brownsburg 4482.

Mrs. Davis has studied piano, organ and theory at Toronto, Lyall Gustin Studios (Saskatoon), the Regina Conservatory and the Wheaton Conservatory (Chicago). Previous to coming to Brownsburg she was an Instructor in Piano at the Alliance College-School of Music, Regina. -1p

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

September 9, 1881 —

A large number of railway hands are employed in ballasting the Q.M.O. & O. in this section.

Bush fires have been raging throughout the county, with farm houses, outbuildings and other property being destroyed.

We regret to hear that Mr. Thos. Dobbie, of Chatham, met with a serious loss in the burning of his dwelling early Tuesday morning. The fire, of unknown origin, started in the kitchen and fortunately the family succeeded in making good their escape from the building. Neighbors succeeded also in saving some of the clothes and furniture.

The Dobbie fire, in Chatham, once again brings up the necessity of the villagers of Lachute bestirring themselves to get subscriptions and purchase a fire engine, for they don't know how soon fire may break out that may lay the village in ashes.

It is said that some of the liquor sold in the small local taverns would take the hair off a dog at 40 rods. How is that for the stomach?

50 YEARS AGO

September 7, 1906 —

Mr. P. Rodrique has disposed of his hotel property to Mr. Richer, late of Sault Ste. Marie, for the sum of $16,500.

The annual County Exhibition is billed for the 18th, 19th and 20th of this month. Exhibits will be far more extensive than in the past.

Chatboro — The cheese factory here is in a very prosperous condition, with good prices and a larger number of patrons than before.

25 YEARS AGO

September 4, 1931 —

Our young athletes of Lachute Academy, Joe Berniquer and Winston Drew, have been upholding the status of our institution in the realm of sport this week, in contests which took place at the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa. Berniquer entered the high jump and won out with the seniors in his first jump with 5 feet 6 inches, which his many opponents were unable to cover. Drew also captured second place in the 440-yard dash.

Another daring robbery was perpetrated in the early hours of Monday morning, when Muir Bros. Service Station was broken into and the maurauders decamped with eight tires and tubes. Entrance was gained by the use of a brace and bit, with which they calmly bored through the panel of the door.

Husband: "Where are you going?"
Wife: "To an organ recital."
Husband: "You mean a concert?"
Wife: "No, next door to hear our neighbour talk about her ailments."

OIL WELL PROVES EMBARRASSMENT NOT ASSET TO OWNERS

—Central Press Canadian Photos

Origin of this jar of oil is a mystery to Mrs. Lyle Watson and Mrs. Owen Niblett who live in adjacent houses at Erindale Ont. The oil bubbles up into the well they sunk for water and now it shows traces of gasoline. Theirs are the only two plots in the area which show oil and it is an embarrassment, not an asset to the two families. It has polluted their water, killed their vegetation, ruined their plumbing and stained their walls. No one seems to want it and no oil company admits it could be leakage from their oil lines. Geologists have suggested the two houses are sitting on top an "oil dome," but so far no company has offered to drill the property to see if there is a sizeable deposit of oil underneath. Owen Niblett, right, can scoop a pail full of oil off the top of his well any time—but when he does so, he does not know what to do with it. The two families cannot sell their houses and have to transport their water from distant sources.

AMPLE TROUT

Drumheller, Alta. (CP)—An estimated 1,200 rainbow trout were taken from the two Anderson dams here by anglers in the first three days they were open for fishing after restocking.

AIR COLLISION

Kyuquot, B.C. (CP) — A Pacific Western Airlines plane flying near here collided with a young eagle with a six-foot wing span. The bird was killed and the aircraft slightly damaged.

Third Game of Baseball Finals Postponed to Sep. 9

The third game of a best-of-five series between the Brownsburg Tigers and Hawkesbury was called-off due to wet grounds last Sunday, but will be held this Sunday at the Brownsburg picnic grounds, at 2.30 p.m.

Brownsburg leads in games, 2-0, as the series progresses to what could be the final and title-winning game.

"Waiters" Again Defeat Colford Lodge

Last Sunday "The Waiters" defeated Colford Lodge for the third consecutive year. The waiters scored nine runs in the first two innings and never looked back. The final score was 12-8.

Jean-Guy Larocque struck out 12 Colford men to gain his 15th victory. Larocque was in trouble a couple of times, but worked his way but nicely. Big hitters for the Waiters were Paul Paquette, with five for five, and Peter Cruise, with three for five. Frank MacLean and Vern Poirier were the big guns for Colford's. Starting pitcher Mel Stewart was the losing pitcher.

Next Sunday, Colford's will play host to Montebello All-Stars; game time 3.30 p.m.

Brightest Hopes for Canada's Swimmers

By Ron Andrews,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The people who keep tab of Canada's chances at the Olympic Games seem to be agreeing on one thing — Canada's brightest hopes rest on her swimmers.

They predict Canada's best year in swimming competition at Melbourne, Australia, in November but they don't look for record-breaking performances by the runners and leapers from this land.

Reason for the cautious view is based on the results of the Olympic trials in track and field held recently at Hamilton. None of the athletes, including Canadians who have received top coaching and conditioning in United States colleges, lived up to expectations.

After watching the trials officials admitted Canada isn't apt to do much better than the 1952 showing at Helsinki, Finland, when the 1,600 metre relay team finished sixth to give Canada her one and only point in Olympic track and field events.

May Improve

The standards for this year's selection for the track and field entrants were based on the sixth-place mark at the last Olympics. Only two women and four men were able to meet those requirements.

Competitors such as Toronto's Jack Parrington, who had been clocked earlier this season at 10.2 seconds in the 100 metres, tying the world record, and Diane Matheson of Montreal, credited with a 23.9 time in the 200 metres this year, couldn't come close to the standards at the trials.

Olympic track and field coach Fred Foote expressed belief that the times turned in at the trials were by a tired band of runners.

"They've had a hard racing season," Foote emphasized. "But I'm sure they will spring back between now and November."

Maybe it will be different at the Games, but there's not many observers who see an improvement over 1952 in track and field. The athletes just didn't have it when the chips were down at Hamilton.

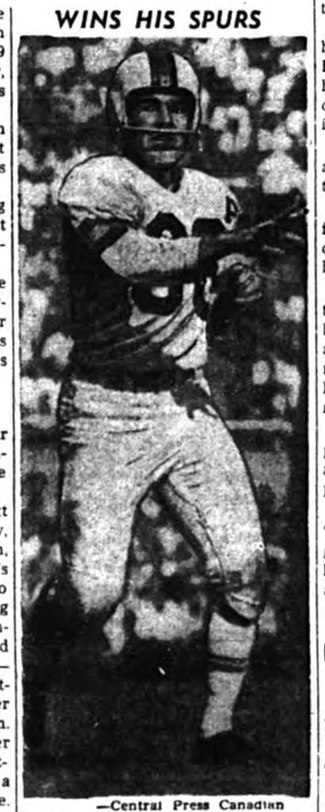

Good Swimmers

Swimming coach Tommy Walker refused to predict any medal winning by the team but others were not so cautious.

Most officials, including Matt Mann of Oklahoma University, former head coach at Michigan, figure Canada could win the girl's relay, Virginia Grant of Toronto has an excellent chance of taking the 100-yard freestyle — she splashed her way to a near world's record time of 58.6 seconds in the trials — and Sara Barber, 15-year-old Brantford junior, could surprise in either the backstroke or butterfly or both.

The experts say that if the water babies fail to live up to expectations, Canada's showing will be a dismal one in the overall picture. They don't figure the track and field competitors have much chance. But you never can tell in sports.

WINS HIS SPURS

—Central Press Canadian

When Argos faced the powerful Montreal Alouettes in their Big Four opener at Montreal, Scullers young Canadian quarterback Gerry Doucette, 22, emerged as the individual hero of the hard-fought contest. The first homebred to start at the pivot spot for a Big Four team in seven years, Gerry played the whole game and almost made supporters forget the talents of regular quarterback Tom Dublinski, who is suffering from a knee injury. Although Montreal edged Argos, 24-20, Doucette completed 14 of 24 passes, including a 69-yard toss.

TWO B.C. SCULLING CREWS EARN OLYMPIC BERTH

The crack four from University of British Columbia will be part of Canada's Olympic team, it was decided after they had won their trial at Port Dalhousie, Ont. Like the eights crew, the fours also did some world record smashing. Their time for the 2,000-metre course was almost 13 seconds faster than the Olympic record of 6:36.1 set by Great Britain in 1928. The four who will join the UBC eight are, from left, Archie MacKinnon, Lorne Loomer, Walter d'Hondt and Don Arnold (stroke).

BEATS OFF COUGAR BY THROWING HAT

Penticton, B.C. (CP) — Norman Vernon, of Penticton holds the distinction of being the man who beat off an aged, snarling cougar with his cap.

Vernon told police he was camping at nearby Conkle lake with his family when, while walking alone with his small dog, he came face to face with the cougar.

In sheer frustration at not being able to find anything to fight the animal with, he threw his cap at the cougar and it moved off.

HAD HARD FIGHT AGAINST EAGLES

Bay De Verde, Nfld. (CP) — A local carpenter told of a blood-curdling battle with three big eagles on Baccalieu island at the mouth of Conception bay in August.

Walter Rice was walking along a three-mile footpath to a lighthouse at the other end of the lonely island when the eagles swooped down and attacked.

He tore off his leather jacket and used it to beat them off, but the talons of the eagles ripped the jacket to shreds. Rice then hurled stones at them, but they kept on diving.

Exhausted, he finally stumbled into the fog alarm station after a half-hour retreat under constant attack. He and the station personnel watched as the frustrated eagles returned to the island's craggy cliffs.

Pink-Eyed Albino Trout In Ontario Lakes Soon

Normandale, Ont. (CP) A biological freak, an albino red-speckled trout with pink eyes, may soon be hitting the lures of Ontario anglers.

University of Toronto experts have visited the Department of Lands and Forests Lake Erie fish hatchery here. After studying 30 of the strange new breed, they say it may be here to stay.

The strain, apparently produced accidentally, has bred true through three generations.

"If they do not revert in the fourth generation," said a hatchery official, "it is a safe bet they have become a breed in themselves."

The officials do not know whether the strain is a result of cross-breeding or inbreeding, but say the albinos are keen-eyed, fast swimmers and game fighters, apparently larger and stronger than their normal fellows.

They are red-speckled and, depending on the depth of water and angle of light-refraction, may appear either amber or ivory colored.

Anglers who tie into one of the "whities" are asked to return it gently to the water. Only barbless hooks are allowed in ponds the albinos are known to inhabit.

Beaver Hunting To Be Extended

Quebec (CP) — An abundant beaver population has led Quebec Game and Fisheries Department officials to allow hunting of the animals in all sections of the province this year.

Charles Fremont, an official of the department, said the population has increased so much that complaints of crop damage have been received from some areas. In former years, beavers could be taken only in certain sections.

The season this year will open November 1, and close April 30. Trappers are limited to 10 beavers each.

Television Film Sunday Gives Lovable Insight Into Philosophy of Blind

HOUR-LONG PROGRAM, "THE UNSEEING EYE"

"... Because you can't see you're considered something quite abnormal. It used to make me quite angry because I didn't understand that they didn't understand."

"... Something I've wished for all my life — that I would get as close to living like a normal person as possible. That's the wish of everybody who is sightless I think."

Those observations are taken from the soundtrack of "The World Invisible" — a film produced by the CBC in co-operation with Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford, Ont. The film, which tells the story of the children at Brantford, will be the first part of an hour-long program, "The Unseeing Eye," to be carried on the connected stations of the CBC Television Network on September 9 from 10 to 11 p.m. (EDT).

The second half of "The Unseeing Eye" will consist of "The City Unseen", a program produced in co-operation with the University of Toronto, which illustrates the fact that most people see things without really observing or perceiving them. It was written by Jo Kowin and produced by David Walker with commentary by Jacqueline Tyrwhitt of Harvard University.

"The World Invisible" attempts to bridge the gap between two totally different worlds — that of day and night, light and shadow, and the unseeing world of sound, smell and touch. The children of the Brantford school provide their own uninhibited commentary in which one can sense no trace of self pity.

The cast includes such interesting people as David, who has never studied music but plays the piano and composes his own music; Jim, who leads the school's Dixieland Combo and hopes for a future as a Jazz clarinetist; Alice, the teenager who we meet first in a home economics class and who we later discover possesses a singing voice which experts consider technically perfect.

The film underlines the happiness which characterises Brantford and similar schools, where handicapped children can receive the guidance of people who have dedicated their lives to understanding the problems of blindness and developing techniques which help children compensate for their lack of sight.

To bring the audience as close as possible to the subject, a very unusual documentary technique was used. A crew, which included CBC film director Leslie Cserepy, writer Jo Kowin and producer Christa Erdei visited the schol for several weeks, tape recording conversations with the children. These conversations, completely informal and unrehearsed, were edited down to make up the sound track which was later wedded to the finished film sequences.

The film direction was handled by Hungarian-born Leslie Cserepy whose untimely death a few weeks ago ended a promising career. "The World Invisible" was his first Canadian production as a CBC director and, in a way, it was fitting that Cserepy should have made the film.

Like the children who responded so easily to his direction, he too knew what it was to be handicapped. A major throat operation deprived him of his voice and he literally had to learn how to speak all over again. The children, to whom he was known only by the strange sound of his voice, playfully called him "Motorboat" or "Mister Leslie."

He was a fine craftsman and admired by all those who worked with him. "The World Invisible" climaxed an exciting film career which began in Budapest, Hungary, many years ago. In 1938 one of his documentaries, "St. Stephen", won the coveted first prize in the Venice Film Festival.

Cserepy was imprisoned by the Russians after the war because of the "anti-soviet" commentary he produced on the Russo-Finnish war. His escape from behind the iron curtain, with his wife and three children, is a story in itself.

"The World Invisible" was the first and, unfortunately, the last production he directed for CBC. It will stand as a monument to this man who played so great a part in creating it. Its main value lies in the fact that it is a film of hope . . hope which lies in the braille inscription on one of the walls of the Brantford school — "The impossible is only the untried."

"Old Rawhide"

Pierre Radisson Is Hero Of TV Adventure Series

Jacques Godin, a Montreal actor who appeared at the Stratford Festival, will play the role of the famed explorer Pierre Radisson in the CBC's new television series for children, The "Adventures of Pierre Radisson", which is being filmed in and around Montreal and is expected to start the second week in October on the CBC television network. The part of Radisson's brother-in-law and partner, des Groseilliers, will be played by another Montreal actor, Rene Caron.

Godin, a member of Montreal's renowned Theatre du Nouveau Monde, was Montjoy in the Stratford production of "Henry V." The 26-year-old actor was to have gone to Edinburgh with the Festival Players, but forsook this opportunity to accept the lead in the Radisson series.

René Caron, 30, is a versatile theatrical and radio personality, especially well known in the Sherbrooke area of Quebec. After 15 years' experience on radio stations in Quebec rural areas, he settled in Montreal and has recently been very active both as an actor and as an emcee on French-network TV programs.

The writer of the all-Canadian series is John Lucarotti, of Toronto, who has secluded himself at Bracebridge, Ontario, to work on the scripts and commutes between there and Toronto as required.

Filming of the series (by Omega Productions of Montreal) was to start late in August. Each episode is being filmed twice, once for the English version and once for the French. Godin and Caron will retain their roles for both versions. Lending authenticity to the productions will be the locale, Ile Perrot, an island near Montreal Island in the mouth of the Ottawa River, where forts will be built and backgrounds depicting the Radisson period will be created. Other scenes will be shot in the Renaissance Studios in Montreal.

Pierre Gauvreau, of the CBC is the producer. Denis Mason is the director and René Norman is doing the French translations.

To make his scripts as authentic as possible, Lucarotti has based them on Radisson's own journal and the historical accounts of his life.

"I'm not creating a cardboard hero," he says. "It's a full-dimensional portrayal of an extraordinary man whose real-life exploits are more thrilling than any legend. The pioneering of Canada was a titantic undertaking — a saga to stir the blood of every Canadian. The Radisson story is but one exciting chapter. Should this TV series suceed, as I'm sure it will, it will be a great thing for it will open the door to others."

A special theme song for the series has ben written by Johnny Cowell of Toronto, who wrote the hit song Walk Hand in Hand with Me. Lucarotti, who wrote the lyrics for the song, says the words are simple and the tune "catchy".

The series tells the story of Radisson and Groseilliers, 17-century French traders and explorers whose exploits throughout North America and especially in Canada blazed the way for future development and recognition of the young and then unchartered country.

Lucarotti has opened the series with the capture of Radisson by the Iroquois when the adventurer was only 17. Radisson was given the Indian name of Orimha. He tried to escape, was recaptured and tortured for three days — a terrible ordeal during which he not once asked for mercy. His great courage and powers of endurance won the respect of the Iroquois and he was taken back into the tribe.

The first episode is typical of the series as far as action is concerned, according to Lucarotti. "Radisson's life was packed with exciting incidents," he said. "There literally was never a dull moment and I am trying to make the TV series the same."

"Robin Hood" Starts Second Season Sept. 24

Montreal — "The Adventures of Robin Hood", popular television show appearing over Canadian stations, will start its second season on Monday, September 24.

Officials of Johnson & Johnson Ltd. and Wildroot Ltd., co-sponsors of this film program, announce that agreements have been reached with television stations across Canada to provide for a weekly half-hour showing of "The Adventures of Robin Hood" starting September 24.

Filmed in historic Sherwood Forest with movie star Richard Greene playing the part of "Robin Hood", this program had its world television premiere on September 12, 1955, when it was presented over station CBMT in Montreal.

Later the show was released in the United States and in England, the first television show to run simultaneously in three different countries. It has been very well received wherever it has been shown.

The success of the show has been due to a blending of essential ingredients — superb acting by a top-flight cast, development of new film techniques and strict adherence to historical detail in the filming.

Actor Richard Greene has had the support of Irish-born actress Bernadette O'Farrell, as "Maid Marian"; Alan Wheatley as the villainous "Sheriff of Nottingham" and a strong supporting cast. Film and production crews were recruited by Sapphire Films from the top movie studios in England and experts on such details as archery, swordsmanship, camouflage, historical record, etc., all contributed to the excellence of this presentation.

There will be a few changes in the cast but the show itself will be unchanged and Canadian television fans will see a steady parade of Knights in Armour, Swordsmen, Archers and the band of Merry Men of Sherwood, led by "Robin Hood" himself, when the 1956 fall television season gets under way.

Junior Books Reviewed on Radio

Beth Gillanders, of Vancouver, whose radio and television programs for children have prompted many a youngster's visit to the library, is a versatile person. Her "Hidden Pages of the Air" (Tuesdays at 5.45 p.m.) is a radio program in which she stimulates interest in those books no child should miss reading.

A graduate of the University of British Columbia and University of Toronto, she has taught school and has had acting experience in this country and the United States.

Stories such as "Starbuck Valley Winter" and "Wake of the West Wind" have been adapted for radio by her. In her radio version of "Hidden Pages" she reviews a book, then offers alternatives in case the featured book is not available in some libraries.

"In the experience of children's libraries all over Canada," says Miss I. McTavish of the children's section of the Vancouver Public Library, "Miss Gillanders' reviews of books for children on both radio and TV have been a stimulation to children to read more."

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Seasoned motorists know that travel isn't over with the end of summer. They have discovered, through experience, that the coming of fall opens up a whole new country for them to re-discover in their automobiles.

This is particularly true for the amateur artist, the Sunday shutterbug and the plan, garden variety of nature lover. The riot of colors evident from your car window provides a palette of unusual tints which test the ingenuity of the professional oil painter or the color photographer.

If you are a "some-time" painter, why don't you try pursuing your hobby on your next fall trip? Take along your easel and palette when you do your autumnal motoring. See if you can capture on your canvas the bright, gay colors that Mother Nature has painted on the landscape. If you're a camera bug, arm yourself with a good camera and a few rolls of color film when you take to the road. The vivid yellow birches, the flaming red maples and the deep brown oak trees will take on added lustre when you see them again in your color prints.

Smaller, but no less colorful objects, such as a sheaf of golden wild wheat, a brown cat-tail or a spray of silvery pampas grass, also lend themselves ideally to photography or painting.

Capture your autumn car trips on canvas or film, and you can remember nature's most colorful season all year round.

HOTEL COURSE

Calgary (CP) — A course in hotel operation will be held for four weeks this fall at the Banff School of Fine Arts. About 40 persons are being accepted for the course.

Moving Performance

Members of a Canadian Legion branch have designed and built a portable outdoor stage and donated it to a Veterans' hospital. Mounted on a trailer, it can be assembled in a few minutes into a 20' x 27' stage and moved to any part of the hospital grounds.

Light, easy-to-handle aluminum was the Legion members' obvious choice of material. And in case of sudden thunderstorms, it would be a simple matter to roll the performers, stage and all, under the nearest shelter. A typical example of how aluminum often provides not just one but several advantages on a single job.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Gillian Pritchard, Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Too many cooks spoil the broth" isn't the proverb which applies to the Department of Agriculture consumer test kitchen in Ottawa.

The more the merrier, is a term which might be applied to "Canada's Kitchen", where home economists test dairy products, fruits and vegetables, poultry and meat.

There, the best methods of preserving and cooking home-grown food which will appeal to the national palate are devised.

Supplies are bought from retail stores so that items being tested are the same as those the housewife will be serving to her family for supper.

These "government" cooks try their experiments on either a panel of expert tasters or on persons who never have been invited to "taste" before, depending on the result needed.

Experts who can detect slight differences in flavor and texture work on frozen meat storage tests or experiments to determine which variety of apple or potato is best for a certain purpose.

No reading over a leisurely meal for these eaters! They must mark elaborate score sheets, awarding points for texture, flavor, appearance, color and length of cooking.

Less experienced tasters, who give the consumer's point of view, are invited to choose the best recipe for things like apple dumplings, peach pie, dill pickles, grape jelly or fried chicken.

Their score sheets have comments such as "too thin," "not salty enough," or "suggest more spice."

Baked Ham

Still on the subject of food, here's a variation on the roast pork and apple sauce theme: Ham baked with apple juice.

12 to 15 pound ham, whole cloves, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 tablespoon mustard (sufficient vinegar to moisten), 1 cup apple juice.

Wash and soak ham one hour in hot water. Place 2 or 3 plys brown paper in baking pan, place ham skin-side down and bake fairly hot in oven (25 to 30 minutes per pound). Before last hour of cooking, remove skin and excess fat, score and stick with white cloves. Rub with brown sugar, mustard and vinegar mixture. Pour apple juice over ham and return to oven.

Colorful Covers

Canadians choose blue as the most popular color for seat covers, says one large manufacturer. They like turquoise and green next.

Today, you can have almost any color combination, plus gold and silver flecks for piping. You can choose from pink, mustard, burnt orange and varieties of brown and cream, if you like some thing a little different in decor for your car.

But remember just a few years back when you had only the choice of maroon, blue or green?

Plastic fabrics have replaced fibre and cotton gabardines and plaids are more the exception than the rule. (Clean plastic covers with soap and water, rinse and rub dry with a soft cloth).

Give New Zest to Salads

By Anne Marshall

You take the prize—in glowing praises—when you offer a cool inviting salad to summer guests. Complete the salad with a tangy Tomato-French Dressing and guests will heap the praises high.

Of all the dressings of this type, the lasting leader seems to be that version made with tomato soup. Best cooks invariably have this kind in their recipe collection. Many cookbooks feature it too. Here's a much tried and perfected way to make Tomato-French Dressing. And note how many kinds of salads gain goodness from this subtle-sharp dressing:

Tossed Greens + Tomato + Sliced Tomatoes + Sliced Egg + Shrimp + Russian + Cottage Cheese and Green Pepper

TOMATO-FRENCH DRESSING

2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
½ soup can vinegar (⅓ cup plus 2 tablespoons)
½ soup can salad oil (⅓ cup plus 2 tablespoons)
2 tablespoons minced onion (optional)

Combine dry ingredients in a 1-quart jar; add remaining ingredients and shake well. Store in refrigerator until needed; shake well before using. Makes about 3 cups dressing.

GARLIC STYLE: Add 2 medium cloves garlic (mashed) to basic recipe.

LEMON STYLE: Add 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind to basic recipe.

HERB STYLE: Add 2 teaspoons ground herb (rosemary, sage, savory, sweet majoram, or thyme) to basic recipe. First mix herb with small amount of dressing and blend; add rest of dressing and shake well.

TOP SPAGHETTI WITH VIENNA SAUSAGE

A meal in mere minutes is yours when you combine cans of spaghetti and Vienna sausage. Keep some "spares" of these two products on your kitchen shelf or at the weekend cottage—then you're always prepared to "hurry up" a meal. First brown the sausages (1 can) in a little hot shortening. Remove them from the pan and put in 2 cans (about 3½ cups) of spaghetti in tomato sauce. Add a cup or so of cooked corn if you like. When piping hot, serve scoops of spaghetti topped with browned sausage. Good alongside is pear and cottage cheese salad.

'Canada's Kitchen'

by the Consumer Section, Canada Dept. of Agriculture Marketing Service

Can you imagine a kitchen run by over a dozen women, most of them graduate home economists? Although they don't prepare three meals a day, some of them do make home-size recipes and batches of jam and pickles much the same as you do, and what's more, there aren't "too many cooks to spoil the broth"! Of course, we're referring to Canada's Kitchen which really means the kitchens and offices of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and its staff, the home economists and their assistants.

You have, no doubt, been hearing about the Consumer Section and using their bulletins for years — since 1939 in fact when it was first organized. The purpose of the Section is to help Canadian homemakers in buying and using Canadian agricultural foods and the home economists do this by providing information on grading and other food regulations, by keeping you informed as to what foods are available, and by making suggestions as to the best ways to buy and use the foods grown in this country. The home economists work in close co-operation with the four commodity Division of the Marketing Service — Dairy Products, Fruits and Vegetables, Livestock and Livestock Products and Poultry — to ensure that only up-to-date information on food regulations and marketing is passed along to consumers.

The Consumer Section is divided into three sub-sections, Experimental, Information and Special Projects and, in addition, has a bilingual section. The experimental part encompasses the test kitchens where extensive work is carried on to determine the best methods of preserving Canadian agricultural foods for home use and to establish preferred cooking methods for various foods. Such factors as flavor, texture, appearance, practicability and, in some cases, nutritional value, are taken into consideration. Food products used in the test kitchens are bought in retail stores so that they will be the same as are sold to consumers.

Special projects such as surveys and long-term studies concerning a certain product are undertaken by other home economists in the Consumer Section. Usually these projects are carried out jointly with a Division of the Marketing Service, especially in merchandising projects of interest to consumers or in surveys where the aim is to find out consumer preferences.

The results of the experimental work and of some of the special projects are put to practical use in Consumer Section bulletins and booklets, in information releases sent to newspapers and radio and TV stations; and in correspondence answering many of the canning, freezing and cooking questions sent in by consumers. The bilingual section provides these same services to French speaking Canadians.

A Tasty Casserole

Here's an easy-to-make casserole which combines the two vegetables. As a hot dish with cold meat and salad, this Corn and Tomato Casserole is all you'll need for a most satisfying meal. It can be made with either fresh corn removed from the cob, canned or frozen corn kernels.

Corn and Tomato Casserole

3 Cups corn kernels (canned, frozen or fresh), 6 tomatoes (thickly sliced), 1 small onion (chopped fine), 1 medium green pepper (chopped fine), 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup coarse enriched bread crumbs, paprika, 3 slices bacon (diced).

Grease 1-quart casserole. Preheat oven to 375°F. (moderately hot). Spread half the corn in bottom of casserole. Slice tomatoes; chop onion and green pepper. Place half the tomato slices closely together over the corn. Sprinkle with half the onion and half the green pepper. Dot with half the butter. Sprinkle with half the salt and half the pepper. Add another layer in the same order. Top casserole with bread crumbs and sprinkle generously with paprika. Dice bacon and sprinkle on top of casserole. Bake in a 375°F. oven, 30 minutes for canned corn and 45 minutes for fresh or frozen corn. Makes 6 portions.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Your Child's Teeth

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

I'm going to visit the dentist with my child next week," a mother said. "She's just three, but I want her to go with me and become acquainted with the dentist and his assistant. Then when she is older and has to go to his office to get work done, she won't be frightened!"

A friendly visit of a little child to the dentist does pave the way for a happy relationship later. The child looks on the dentist as a friend. The shiny new equipment and the big chair fascinate a child's eager mind. In the long run, because it will likely eliminate panic later, this early visit is worthwhile.

Parents want their children to have attractive teeth because they add to a child's appearance. Many youngsters have a charming smile, displaying a perfect set of teeth.

Healthy teeth, well formed and in their correct place, help in pronunciation. Never laugh at the First Grade child who has lost his baby front teeth and is lisping! Your amusement may make him self-conscious. If a child loses a permanent front tooth in an accident, for the sake of his speech it should be quickly replaced, by a false one.

Dentists know that unless a false tooth is put in where a permanent one has been, not only speech is affected, but the child cannot bite or chew so well. The teeth on either side of the space are apt to grow a bit crooked. The opposite tooth in the other gum (above or below the space) may grow too long if the damage is not repaired.

Semi-annual visits to the dentist should be a must in every family schedule. The dentist is a professional man who can advise puzzled parents about special mouth problems.

They may mention two new developments in tooth care which are almost too recent to be accurately evaluated. The use of fluorine in water and the action of ammoniated tooth paste preventing decay are both receiving a good deal of publicity. Research workers are studying their effectiveness.

There are a number of sensible suggestions on which most dental authorities agree. For proper care, teeth should be brushed after eating and at bed time, last thing at night. The motion of the brush should be up and down, not sideways. The inside of the teeth (next to the tongue) should be brushed too.

It is the tiny food particles which get lodged in the spaces between the teeth and in the small groves which produce holes. The starches and sugars act in the fat covering the enamel of the tooth, and before long decay is apt to set in.

Many dentists warn against the constant eating of candy (particularly hard candy and also chewing gum which remains in the mouth) and soft drinks because of the acid condition in which the mouth is left. It is difficult to see to it that children brush their teeth after these treats. Better have a "binge" of soft candy or other treats, once a week, immediately after a meal, and then brush the teeth.

Good health and good teeth are dependent on each other. A balanced diet is of great importance to both. Digestion begins in the mouth with thorough mastication of food.

For the sake of the child's appearance, speech and health, do train your child in good habits, brushing the teeth, eating proper food and regular visits to the dentist. Your child will thank you for a fine set of teeth when he grows to maturity and in middle or later years he may not have to purchase dentures!

Back To School

Smart little girls are going to school this fall in Canadian-made styles like this jumper. Guaranteed washable, the fabric is a hard-wearing blend of acetate and viscose in a muted plaid design. Extra fullness in the skirt and generous seams allow for growth.

Schoolday Clothes to Delight Juvenile Hearts

The smartest little girls in Canada will be going to school soon in the most wearable, washable and colorful wardrobes yet devised. Constant improvements in the production of Canadian man-made fibres and finished textiles have developed school day clothes to delight the hearts of juvenile fashion plates and their mothers alike.

Heading the class this fall will be a wonderful variety of dresses, jumpers and skirts in sturdy, wrinkle-shedding blends of acetate and viscose fabrics in gay plaids, checks and tweedy designs. These hard-wearing fabrics get plus marks from mothers for their ease-of-care, being completely washable and shrink-resistant.

Arnel the newest of the man-made fibres takes top honors in the blouse fields. Now available in a number of different weaves that require a minimum of ironing, the Arnel fabrics tailor crisply and maintain their fresh good looks through endless washings.

Washable Arnel taffeta appears too in party dresses with rustling full skirts and built-in petticoats that are guaranteed to be completely tubbable.

Styling of the newest crop of clothes for young fry is a fashion education. Canadian children's wear manufacturers display marvelous ingenuity in their use of fabrics and their interpretations of high fashion points in clothes for little sisters.

Hidden seams and generous hems allow for the mysterious growing powers of little girls. Some manufacturers specialize in styling for "chubbies" with extra fullness and expanding elasticized waistbands. There are many fashion features designed to give clothes double-duty qualities, such as completely reversible pleated skirts, said to be extremely popular with the very young set.

Acetate taffeta is also used in dress-up skirts with the reversible feature. Some are flare cut with, for instance, navy taffeta on one side and a complete red taffeta underskirt that can also be worn outside.

Products from Petroleum-Derived Chemicals

Hundreds of products in daily use, such as the "petrochemical ensemble" modelled here by attractive Muriel McLeod, will be made from the petroleum-derived chemicals to be produced in a $25-million plant which Imperial oil will start to build in Sarnia next spring. Not only the chic afternoon dress, but also shoes, stockings, crinolines, gloves and hat are made from chemicals. The new Imperial plant, which will use feed stock from the company's Sarnia refinery when it goes "on stream" in the spring of 1958, will include many towers and vessels similar to those shown at right. Chemical plants which will process further the materials from the Imperial plant will likely be built in the Sarnia area.

They're all as near as your telephone

IT'S NICE TO KNOW — especially when you are alone at night — that you have only to pick up the telephone to summon the police or fire department — call the doctor — ask neighbors or friends for help.

The speed and dependability of the telephone and of the operators behind it not only mean prompt help in emergencies large and small, but a comforting sense of security through all the hours of day and night.

In time of need, no dollars can measure the value of your telephone.

Look how gasoline prices have stayed down

In these days of high and rising prices, what's happened to the price of gasoline?

Since 1935-1939, prices in general have risen 120%.

In the same period, gasoline has gone up only 38%.

Gasoline prices have gone up less than one-third as much as wholesale prices in general.

I Go A-Fishing

By Lewis Milligan

In my article entitled "All Aboard for Mars!" I had a little fun with the would-be space travellers. I commended the trip as a means of escape from the then babbling confusion of pipe-line politics, but concluded that a trip to the quiet fishing waters would provide a better and safer way of escape.

One advantage, however, of a space-trip is that you would get completely away from this troubled planet into the vacuity of the ether and forget all about pesty political problems and ever-recurring international crises. Of course, if you literally take to the woods beyond the reach of the mail and the newspapers, you can let the rest of the world go by and live in a newsless and restful vacuum. But even that is impossible — I had forgotten about the radio.

Long before rapid transportation and instant communication, Wordsworth complained, "The world is too much with us," and that is more than ever true today. There is no absolute escape. But we can get momentary release in fishing. The Psalmist must have been an angler, for he gratefully recalled his periodic escapes "besides the still waters," and he added, "He restoreth my soul."

Restoration of the soul is the greatest need of the world today. I do not claim that fishing is the best means to that end, or that all anglers are philosophers like Isaak Walton. Many of them are not anglers at all. A true angler is a dangler who is content, as one cynical writer put it, to "drop a line to the fish and invite him home to dinner." But too many regard fishing as an exploit; they work at it, and it is little wonder that so many of our lakes are "fished-out." They launch out into the deep waters like commercial fishermen with every kind of tackle but a drag-net, and some of them would rather use one than return empty at the end of the day.

The other evening, at the place where I was staying, a large catch of fish, most of them still panting at the gills, was displayed with gusto by a hefty fisherman. He said he had caught 49 fish altogether but had generously put some smaller ones back. On the same day I had fished and caught only one small pickerel. I had pottered leisurely around the shoreline, silently musing on the still waters, the green outline of the trees with the white clouds beyond like argosies sailing through the blue region of the air. (Excuse this lapse into poetry). Having dined sumptuously off my invited guest, Miss Pickerel, I was comfortably tired from my not too strenuous exertions. And after listening drowsily for a while to the catch and "got-away" stories of my fellow fisrermen, I crept silently and virtuously to rest.

That word "rest" brings me back the word "restoration". Literally they are two different words, but they are intimately related. The latter simply means to re-store, and implies action, and the former inaction. But there is no paradox between them. We need rest in sleep to restore the energies of the body, and the Psalmist tells us that he found rest and restoration for his soul in the green pastures and by the still waters.

Since this has developed into a sermon, I might as well conclude with a parsonic admonition to those who cannot or do not care to go a-fishing. Go to church and sit down in green pastures and meditate beside the still waters of the gospel of peace and immortality, and you shall find rest and restoration unto your souls.

Canada's 'Biggest Family Party'

A Challenge

W. H. (Bill) Cranston, editor of the Midland Free Press Herald, delivered a stern rebuke to weekly editors who do not live up to the strong responsibilities which they owe their readers.

"We are the local glasses — very often the only pair of local glasses — through which our friends and neighbors are observed and evaluated," he stated. "The temperature of many a community is most correctly measured by the degree of reportorial and editorial responsibility of its local paper.

"Are we prepared to wear as bravely as we can the badge of community crusade and to wear it proudly?" he asked.

Without giving a direct answer to his own question, Mr. Cranston indicated strongly that he felt many weekly editors were too familiar with their own newspapers — had grown up with them and failed to realize the newspaper's importance, and the editor's importance, to the community.

The Voice of Quebec

Following, in part, is the address by Aimé Gagné on behalf of the Quebec newspapers to their fellow publishers:

"I am particularly pleased that the C.W.N.A. chose to hold this convention at Murray Bay, which is more or less the cradle of today's Canada. As a matter of fact, here both ethnical groups have, since the Conquest, adopted the best formula to know and understand each other, and to live in harmony. In effect, after the handing over of Canada to England by France, soldiers of General Murray's Highlanders Regiment decided to settle in Canada. They chose the Seigniory of La Malbaie and La Comporté, better known today as Murray Bay. It did not take long for them to become part of the community, and to marry French-Canadian girls, thus founding the great families of Blackburns, Smiths, Warrens, McLeods, Frasers, Nugents, McLeans, et al, which we find today from coast to coast. The brotherhood which existed since the beginning may still be found today in all parts of our province. All Quebecers, whatever their origin, are united in their hearts and minds with all other Canadians, and work with them toward the expansion of our country.

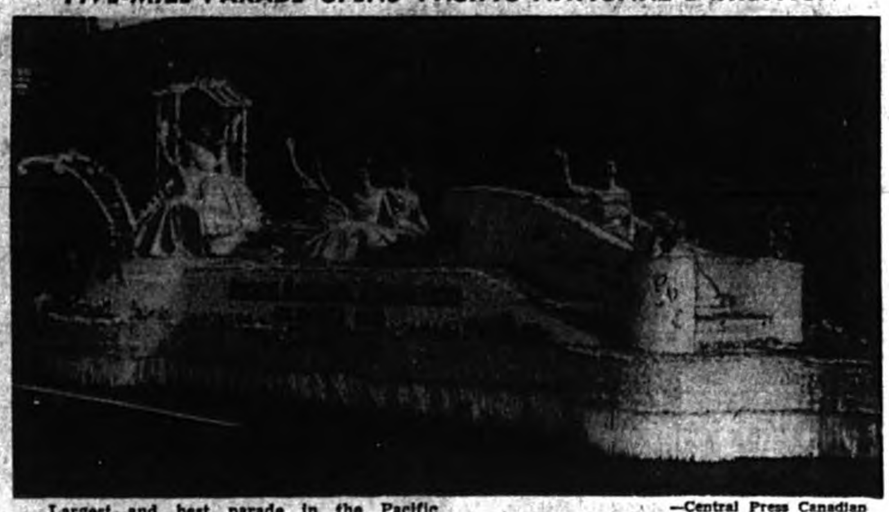

"I have been asked to tell you something of the Province of Quebec. While I could speak to you at length about the French personality of the Province of Quebec and about its numerous characteristics which do not fail to embellish the Canadian mosaic; or describe to you its huge industrialization, of which you are certainly aware, I will leave it to others better qualified than I, to make known to you these aspects of our province. I would prefer to try to dispel somewhat the opinions expressed in certain quarters, regarding Quebec and its people. Contrary to the thinking of certain people who are not too familiar with our part of the country, Quebec does not wish to segregate itself from the rest of Canada, and remains firmly a part of its greatness. It should be remembered that Quebec was the first element of the Canadian nation. Since its beginning, Quebec's sons have settled from coast to coast, and we may find today their numerous descendants busily contributing towards the greatness of Canada. (Speaking of Quebec's sons I have been asking myself if the managing director of your Association, Bill Telfer, was not one of them, as his name could well be Taillefer.)

"The French weeklies, like your newspapers, use every endeavor to draw the bonds of the national potentialities closer in order to help the development of Canada. I am strongly of the opinion that we editors, of both English and French weeklies, can do a great deal in this respect. We are certainly in a position to mould the national spirit. We have a great responsibility to work towards the elimination of differences of opinion detrimental to the safeguarding of this national spirit. In my opinion, it is only through a true 'Canadian spirit' that we can achieve real greatness.

"When promoting the idea of the national unity, we should not forget that Canada does not live alone, but belongs to the family of nations, and has a very important role to play. It is up to us to impress upon our readers this international aspect, in order that they may prepare themselves to play a more active part in world affairs."

FIVE-MILE PARADE OPENS PACIFIC NATIONAL EXHIBITION

—Central Press Canadian

Largest and best parade in the Pacific National Exhibition's history preceded the 1956 opening in Vancouver. The parade was a five-mile long spectacle taking more than two hours to cross the two-mile route lined with 100,000 persons. This flower-decked float drew much admiration.

FINDS CATAMARAN IS SPEEDY CRAFT

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — A little bit of old Polynesia is in evidence on the St. John river this year.

Enterprising John Thornton, a native of Portsmouth, England, has built himself a twin-hulled catamaran, whose 12-foot length is propelled effortlessly along the water by twin sails.

"I first got the idea of building one a long time ago," Mr. Thornton says of the primitive boat which he claims is "the fastest craft in the water."

"Some years ago I saw a similar boat at Southsea beach (a famous English summer resort). They have less than a third of the resistance a conventional yacht or yawl has in the water."

Sailing experts here are enthusiastic about the catamaran, particularly for beginners. The twin hulls prevent it from capsizing easily and "forgive many mistakes."

Speed can be increased by mounting larger sails on the 14-foot mast. The hulls provide a wide and stable platform.

Mr. Thornton built the vessel from spruce and douglas fir. He hopes to build an even faster craft next year with a spruce frame and lighter plywood panelling. The next one, he said "will have a cockpit with a single centreboard. She'll be much faster."

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

Q. Is a widow entitled to any return of contributions or payment of benefit if her husband was not on claim when he died?

A. No. This is an insurance plan, not a savings plan, and contributions are not refundable either to the contributor or to his heirs.

Q. What happens to my stamps when my employers become bankrupt?

A. Contributions are collectible from the estate of a bankrupt employer and, if uncollectible, provision is made for crediting you with the unpaid contributions provided they are needed in qualifying for benefit and unemployment insurance and deductions were made from your wages.

CREDITABLE LIVESTOCK EXHIBITS AT 4-H CLUB ACHIEVEMENT DAY

The Lachute 4-H Calf Club Achievement Day, last Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds, featured the largest showing of calves ever shown on this occasion, with 41 members exhibiting a total of 58 calves. The judges were Oakley McRae, for the Holsteins, and Bobby Ness (both from Howick), for the Ayrshires and Guernseys.

The trophies awarded were the Bank of Montreal cup for the Grand Champion Junior Calf (under one year of age), won by Jack Leishman and presented by Donald M. Hay, manager of the Bank of Montreal; the Walker McArthur trophy (rose bowl) for Grand Champion Herd, won by Henry Todd and presented by Bobby Ness; the Alex Bothwell memorial trophy for Junior Showmanship, won by Kenneth Rodger; and the Alex Bothwell memorial trophy for Senior Showmanship, won by Marjorie Hay. Both these trophies were presented by Mrs. Alex Bothwell.

At the close of the contest the judges gave a few remarks on the fine show of calves. Ross Oswald, the club leader, thanked the judges for their excellent job in judging the calves, and also the members, for the fine co-operation they had given him during the past year and for the wonderful show they had just presented. Jean Pintal, local agronome, also spoke a few words of encouragement to the boys and girls. The Lachute Holstein Breeders' Club and the Laurentian Ayrshire Club presented cheques to the members showing calves in the respective breeds. The day was a success despite the heavy shower of rain and poor attendance of spectators.

At School Fair and 4-H Show

Young Kenneth Rodger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rodger, is seen above with his exhibit of corn, which won first place in the Hybrid clas produced by entrants 11 to 13 years of age, at the School Fair and 4-H Achievement Day, last Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds. Kenneth is 4 feet tall; the corn measures 9 feet 4½ inches.

Police Report For August

Police Chief Fernand Trepanier, giving his official police report for the month of August, indicated that a total of 203 calls had been investigated by his department.

Automobile accidents totalled 13, two persons were arrested, 12 persons detained for their own protection, three detained for the Provincial Police, and one person is presently before the court.

A total of 22 tickets for various traffic offences were handed out by the department, which also investigated seven cases for the Social Service. Some 1,750 miles were logged on the police vehicle during the period.

Chief Trepanier also issued a warning to automobile owners and drivers to proceed through the Town of Lachute with the greatest caution, due to the fact that schools have once again opened. The Police Department will strictly enforce all traffic laws, he asserts.

The office is open from 9 to 5 Monday to Friday, and 9 to 12 on Saturday morning.

Town Council Confers Honor on Retiring Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon

Initial Recommendation from Committee On Reorganization of Fire Department; Ultimate Decision on New Police Car

Retiring Fire Chief George Y. Deacon was appointed lifetime honorary fire chief of Lachute Town, at the regular Council meeting last Wednesday evening. At the meeting a delegation of some 20 persons was in attendance to lodge complaints concerning flooded sewers. Ald. Ross R. Muir was absent from the session, which was presided over by Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald.

It was moved by Ald. H. S. Church, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock, that:

"Whereas — Mr. George Y. Deacon, of Lachute, has tendered his resignation as Chief of the Lachute Fire Brigade, and

"Whereas — Mr. Deacon has for the past 38 years given faithful and conscientious service to the Lachute Fire Brigade, and further,

"Whereas — Mr. Deacon has at all times shown a keen interest in all civic matters and has given his full support thereto,

"Be It Resolved — that Lachute Town Council appoint the said George Y. Deacon Honorary Fire Chief of Lachute Town for his lifetime.

"Be It Further Resolved — that an official certificate to this effect from the Corporation be forwarded to Mr. Deacon."

Fire Department Plans

Ald. H. S. Church reported that the committee re-organizing the Fire Department was giving the matter serious consideration, and that one meeting had been held to date, at which it was decided to recommend that both the Police Department and Fire Departments be combined, with the Council proceeding to re-model the municipal garage for suitable use as a fire station. . . This recommendation was accepted as a motion, being seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins, and passed unanimously.

Garbage Disposal

Ald. Desjardins, supported by Ald. J. H. Mallette, moved that the second reading of the by-law regarding the dump be read at next regular meeting.

Ald. Alcidas Laurin, chairman of the Dump Committee, reported that this committee had met with Mr. Hay, who stated he would sell 500 feet of land for $3,000 in order to extend the dump site. The committee also met with the Parish of St. Jerusalem Council and agreed on a fee of $50 a month for use of the Lachute dump for the remainder of this year, effective August 1, with details to be worked out on a yearly basis next year. A tentative price of $2,300 for next year, this to include rental and collection, is to be worked out in detail for final approval. Following this report, permission was granted to the Parish of St. Jerusalem to deposit their garbage at the Lachute dump, the above mentioned price to be paid for the remainder of the year.

Complaints on Flooding

Fernand Ouellette, a resident on the corner of Grace and Mary Streets, reported that sewers had overflowed into his basement, and presented Council with a bill totalling $79 for repairs and cleaning to his heating system. Similar complaints were voiced by the following, or their representatives: N. Lepage and W. H. Maslin, both of Grace Street; Frank Bedard, Main Street; A. Poulin, Mrs. G. Lafleur, J. L. Landriault, and J. St. Jacques, Charles Street; D. St. Pierre, St. Julien Street; Sam Viverais, J. F. Gorman and John D. Giles in the Mountain View area.

Mr. Bedard added that the Police Department responded to his call for assistance when he could locate no one else, and expressed his thanks to Chief Trepanier at the meeting.

Mayor Dr. FitzGerald, stated that he would seek legal advice as to whether the corporation was responsible or not in the cases here presented.

Autobus Stops

Adrien Roy, proprietor of the Lachute bus line, once again requested that he be allowed to park his vehicles on Main Street for approximately half an hour twice a day. At present, regulations stipulate that the buses may stop only at marked stops, and may not remain for more than 10 minutes — this to be enforced on delivery and erection of the necessary signs.

Police Chief Fernand Trepanier pointed out Section 9 of By-law 182, passed in 1950, which states "that autobuses cannot remain stationary for more than 10 minutes on any street in town," and added that this permission could not be granted unless the by-law was amended.

Ald. Romain Desjardins, addressing Mr. Roy, stated, "I think you are asking something that is impossible," and made a motion that the request be refused, this being seconded and unanimously accepted.

Repairs and Building

Ald. E. O. Pollock, chairman of the Roads Committee, reported that "the committee was 'broke' as far as sidewalk repairs are concerned, having spent slightly over the allotted $3,000 voted by Council this spring." Building permits were granted to Omer Pharand for a house on the corner of Grace and Elizabeth Streets, and to Conrad Poirier, for a store on Isabella Street, both under the supervision of the Roads Committee.

Police Car and Vehicles

Ald. Pollock added that repairs were needed on the snow removal equipment, and that the ½-ton town truck was in "terrible shape."

Mayor FitzGerald asked if he thought the truck was in worse condition than the Police car — to which Ald. Pollock stated, "I think they are both ready for the dump," adding that repairs to the truck would cost more than the vehicle is worth.

Several aldermen voiced disapproval of allowing the corporation vehicles to reach such a state of disrepair. Following this, tenders for a 1-ton truck, which had been received in July and never opened, were inspected. Prices at the time the tenders were submitted, offered from $450 to $600 for the old truck, with a difference of from $1,950 to $2,250 to be paid for a new vehicle.

Ald. Pollock added that with three new tires and other major repairs the truck might hold out for another year, to which Mayor FitzGerald replied, "We are now at a point where we have to stop repairing if we want to save any money at all."

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC HERE ANNOUNCED FOR SEPT. 24-25

The annual Blood Donor Clinic of the Canadian Red Cross Society will be held in the Lachute Auditorium on September 24 and 25, from 2 to 5.30 each afternoon and from 7 to 9.30 each evening.

A brief organizational luncheon meeting was held on Wednesday at the Lachute Golf Club, under the chairmanship of Linton W. Armstrong and the co-chairman, Leonard Bedard. Basically, the clinic will be operated the same as in previous years. The English-speaking section of the Catholic Women's League will assist in the canvass for donors. The various companies will co-operate, as they have done so well in the past. The chairman reported he had been called upon a considerable number of times to arrange for the replacement of blood, particularly at the Royal Victoria Hospital, during the past year. Definite arrangements have now been made whereby anyone from this immediate section may have any blood they may need at the hospital replaced by the Red Cross.

The objective this year is 600 bottles, and if this quota is to be reached it will be necessary for the entire community to rally to this worthy cause. The need is greater than ever, and the committee solicits the sympathetic co-operation of all residents. Volunteers are requested to telephone either Linton Armstrong (71) or Leonard Bedard (561), Lachute.

Premier Lauds Clergy, Despite Priests' Attack On Election Practices

THIS WEEK IN QUEBEC
By Brian Sellwood

Quebec (CP) — The population of Quebec Province and its clergy received a tribute from Premier Duplessis during a speech he made here.

The Premier was guest-of-honor at a banquet where prizes were distributed to winners of the province's Young Farmers' contest. During his address he said there is no population anywhere in the world more honest and loyal than that of Quebec, and no clergy more noble.

(The remarks appeared to be an indirect reference to the recently-published attack by two Roman Catholic priests on election practices in the province.)

Mr. Duplessis also asked everyone to ignore "the current fuss," but he did not elaborate on the question.

No direct comment has so far been made by the Premier on the article by Rev. Louis O'Neill and Rev. Gerard Dion — two Laval University professors — in which they criticized political morality in Quebec Province.

Another speaker at the Agricultural Awards banquet was Msgr. Joseph Diament, director of Agricultural and Fishery Schools. He said there is complete co-operation between the clergy and the population and between the clergy and the government. This was not the case in some other countries, he added.

"Here a priest is not afraid to appear in public or in parliament, because he is assured of a good welcome. In parliament our leaders quote from the scriptures," he stated.

"There is a great union between political leaders and the heads of the clergy, despite there being occasional divergences of opinions."

Governor-General Vincent Massey is spending September at his summer residence in Quebec Citadel. He arrived here after completing a 500-mile tour by road and rail around the Gaspé Peninsula.

A 100-man guard-of-honor and a 21-gun salute marked his arrival at Quebec's Palais Station. He was also met at the station by Lieutenant-Governor Gaspard Fauteux, Finance Minister Onisime Gagnon and Mayor Wilfrid Hamel.

Finance Minister Gagnon has published an abridged financial statement covering the province's 1955-56 financial year which ended last March 31. The full statement will appear when the annual session of the legislature opens in November. The abridged statement showed the province has closed its books on the year with a $294,552 surplus after collecting revenues of $407,812,775. Expenditure had totalled $407,518,222.

TRAFFIC OFFENDERS GET POLITE HINTS

Moose Jaw, Sask. (CP) — The Moose Jaw Safety Council has decided it will send courteous letters to traffic violators, reminding them of the offence and pointing out the possible danger to other citizens.

Each member will write down the license number of offenders and the place and time the violation was spotted and submit it to the council for consideration.

No conviction will result from the letter writing, because no personal records will be kept.

Farm Forum Topics Open October 29

Signalling the beginning of autumn activities in many rural communities is the announcement of October 29 as the opening broadcast of National Farm Radio Forum.

"School Milk. Should we have a national school milk program?" will open the 16th season of Farm Forum discussions, National Secretary Floyd Griesbach has announced. No dates have been set for following topics.

"This is a new approach which will provide opportunities for the introduction of topics of immediate concern to rural people," Mr. Griesbach says. At least two of the Broadcasts during the 1956-57 season will be of this kind.

Special feature during January will be a series of three discussions on a subject vital to farm people, "Parity for Agriculture." These will be discussed under the headings, "What is parity income for agriculture? How can it be achieved? Is it enough?" Summing up the series will be a fourth broadcast in which the findings of several hundred Farm Forums will be discussed and reported back to the Forums.

Broadcasts will be carried over the Trans-Canada network of the CBC from 8.30 to 9 p.m. in all provinces (except Newfoundland) every Monday night from November to March.

New League to Foster Political Education

Montreal — Pierre Dansereau, dean of Science at the University of Montreal, was elected president Saturday of a newly formed political education movement called "Le Rassemblement."

The organization describes its aims as "providing political education for Quebec citizens and the creation of a new political climate."

About 100 delegates representing farm, labor and co-operative movements from various parts of the pdovince attended the founding convention which devoted itself almost exclusively to adopting a constitution.

This sets forth clearly that the movement is "neither a political party nor affiliated with a political party, but does not limit its activity to political morality alone."

It seeks to provide the Quebec population with "the climate and the necessary tools to acquire a solid political background."

Anyone who does not belong to an organization whose objectives are incompatible with the new movement, may belong to Le Rassemblement. Its declaration of principles will be announced in a few days.

The group plans to finance itself through membership fees.

Branches will be formed throughout the province and another meeting will be held in four or five months.

Donald M. Hay, Bank of Montreal branch manager at Lachute, presents the B of M trophy for Junior Grand Champion Calf. The winner, Jack Leishman, of Lachute, is holder of the perpetual trophy for one year, also receiving an individual award in the form of an engraved tray.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

by the Canadian Press

By Roy LaBerge,

Ottawa, Sept. 10 (CP) — Canada's trade deficit — the excess of imports over exports — has risen rapidly as an unparalleled flow of goods from the United States and other countries swept into Canada to keep pace with an unprecedented drive for economic expansion and higher living standards.

Some observers wondered whether Canada isn't trying to do too much too fast as they studied figures released September 6 by the Bureau of Statistics, which some authorities say indicate this year's trade deficit may reach $900,000,000, almost triple that of 1955.

The Bureau reported the January - July deficit at $597,200,000, triple that of the corresponding period last year, as another $54,200,000 was added in July.

The over-all trade picture showed imports rising at about double the pace of exports. In July, exports totalled $430,300,0000, or $73,400,000 more than in July, 1955, while imports at $484,500,000 were $111,900,000 higher than in the corresponding month of the previous year. In the seven months, exports were $314,300,000 higher than in the corresponding period last year, at $2,734,500,000, while imports, at $3,331,700,000, were up $749,700,000.

Total Trade Record

Total trade with the world was never higher, but the emphasis has been on buying rather than selling. Some experts estimate that all trade records will be broken this year if current trends continue.

Main expansion of trade was concentrated with the United States, imports far exceeding exports. There was also some minor expansion in trade with Briain, but Canada's traditional surplus in U.K. trade was virtually unchanged in July. In the seven months it declined as imports rose and exports eased.

Expert opinion is divided on what such a huge trade deficit may mean for the nation's future.

Some say there is little need to worry if foreign capital, pouring in for Canadian investment, continues to match the adverse trade balance. But others are worried about Canada's rising foreign debt. The net foreign debt rose by $1,000,000,000 in 1955 to $7,700,000,000, much of it owed to U.S. investors. It now appears there will be a further sharp increase this year.

CANNON STAYS HERE

Prime Minister St. Laurent has made it clear a rust-clogged artillery piece that may have been used at the battle of Bunker Hill in 1775, is staying in Canada.

His office made public September 5 a letter to Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., Democratic representative in Congress from Massachusetts, who had asked for the return to the United States of the cannon reputedly taken by the British at Bunker Hill. (Continued on page 4).

CUTTING WASTE

O. L. Jones, M.P. for Okanagan-Boundary, made the suggestion that experimental farms start experimenting with manufacture of apple cider out of low-grade and cull apples at present going to waste. Many ranchers could benefit from development of this industry.

"Grandmother of the Year" Returns to West Coast

Mrs. J. L. Waller, of Sidney, Vancouver Island, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Howard Watson, Lachute, left for Malton Airport on Wednesday to return by plane to the Pacific Coast. . .

This social item is of more than passing interest, for Mrs. Waller came east as guest of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, where she was honored as the "Grandmother of the Year." This tribute was accorded her by virtue of a eulogy from her young grandson, Kenneth Johnson (13) of Sidney, B.C., who penned a winning essay in the CNE contest entitled "My Favorite Grandmother"; the essay received wide publication.

There are further thrills in store for Mrs. Waller on this sponsored tour. Arriving in Victoria she will be met by her two daughters, who have travelled by plane from Australia and Holland, respectively, to join their mother in celebrating her 80th birthday.

Municipal Office Saturday Hours

Town Secretary Jacques Poitras advises that, commencing this Saturday, September 15, the Municipal Office will be open Saturdays from nine o'clock until 12 noon.

Scout Committee Favors Split in Laur. Division

A special meeting of the Lachute Boy Scouts Group Committee was held last Thursday evening in Dr. W. M. Hooper's office, under the chairmanship of Alex Vessie, president.

Discussion included the need for an improved meeting place, and a new Scoutmaster to replace Mr. Tom Smith, who has requested that his resignation become effective as soon as possible.

It was agreed to request permission to use the school as a meeting place until a better location can be found. Tom Smith agreed to assist with the Boy Scouts and to remain as Scoutmaster for another month or so, until a replacement can be trained. The first regular Scout meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 18, at 7.30 p.m.

The meeting also voted in favor of the District Council proposal to divide the Laurentian District into two parts, in order to improve the efficiency of its operation.

Members present included — Messrs. A. M. Vessie, chairman; R. Underhill, secretary-treasurer; Geo. Y. Deacon, C. L. Duncan, Dr. W. M. Hooper, Stewart Jones, Don Heggie, Dr. J. C. MacKimmie, B. A. Jenkins, Tom Smith, Don (Buzz) MacRae, and Ederis Jones.

Young Miscreants Steal Automobile At Huberdeau

Two St. Jerome youths, aged 12 and 15, admitted four thefts, following their arrest in Lachute by local Provincial Police officers Monday evening. The two were "armed", one carrying a heavy, sharp hunting knife and the other a realistic-looking cap pistol.

Their arrest was the sequel to the theft of an automobile reported at Huberdeau. Traffic Officer Albert Legault was stationed at the approach to Lachute near Barron's Bridge, where he spotted the stolen car, driven by the older of the two boys; he halted the car and arrested the driver. The younger boy temporarily escaped, but in less than half an hour he was spotted when he attempted to thumb a ride from Det. Ralph Allen. The detective picked him up, and to the boy's surprise, turned his car and headed for the police station.

The luckless pair made several attempts to escape while being questioned by the officers; they were detained in Lachute, where they later admitted stealing the Huberdeau car and also three other thefts in the St. Jerome area.

They appeared before Judge Omer Côté on Tuesday charged with the theft of an automobile, and were turned over to the Social Service organization to be placed in a rehabilitation school for an undetermined period.

CNIB Office Removed To Sydney Street

The public of Argenteuil are requested to note that the C.N.I.B. office has been moved from 544 Main Street to 494 Sydney Street, Lachute. The telephone number remains unchanged, 476.

Mr. Anthony C. Zaplaski, field secretary for the Laurentian district, will be in Lachute three days a week — Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. For the convenience of Lachute and Brownsburg areas, a full-time secretary is being employed by the Institute, Miss Gisèle Brisebois. Anyone requiring information may call at their convenience from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1.30 to 5 p.m., from Monday to Friday inclusive.

A Regal Send-Off

Just one of those celibate celebrations, with a different twist. . . Townsman Henry "Bing" Dion, believed a sworn bachelor to the end, succumbed to join the matrimonial majority last Saturday, taking as his bride Miss Berthe Lafontaine, of Lachute. Bing was feted by his friends at a stag-meet, in the usual happy manner, being escorted through the town with saddle and cowboy hat, riding a stately white horse.

Plowing Match At Vide Sac October 5th

The Argenteuil Plowman's Association held their annual meeting Monday evening in the Court House.

Directors for the coming year are — Watson Berry, Stuart Armstrong, Carson Tomalty, Allan Hammond, Jean Pintal, Keith Gordon, Lloyd Hume, Norman MacGeorge and William Brass. Watson Berry was elected president, Norman MacGeorge was elected as vice-president, and William Brass secretary-treasurer.

It was decided to hold the annual plowing match on the fields kindly offered by Cres Hadley, Herbie and Keith Gordon, at Vide Sac, on Friday, October 5, weather permitting — if not, the following day.

It is hoped we will have a good turn-out at this event. Competition is open to all comers from the ages of 12 to 80.

Exhibitors at Springfield Eastern States Exposition

In addition to Jack Black and J. P. Bradley & Son, local Ayrshiremen mentioned last week as exhibitors at the Eastern States Exposition, it is learned that another breeder, Erskine Rodger, is entering his prize animal "Woodlea Evergreen Florence," a junior champion female at local fairs.

The local stock is included in a consignment arranged by Quebec Ayrshire Club as a provincial representation — the herd being due to leave immediately for Springfield, Mass., site of the exhibition.

I'm REDDY KILOWATT
Your Electric Servant

You've never seen me before because I've always stayed inside the REDDY-BOX — your electric outlet. Now I'm stepping out so that we can get better acquainted.

I'm the symbol of good electric service . . . your servant that runs everything electrical.

I'm not like anyone you've ever seen before. My body is made of lightning flashes—my nose a light bulb—my ears are outlets—and those two things sticking out of my head are wisps of my curly hair. I move silently in my rubber shoes. I move swiftly too, at the speed of 186 thousand miles per second . . . I'm the fastest thing on earth.

I'm your economical and willing servant who works long hours at low wages. Whenever you want me I'll be waiting in your nearest REDDYBOX, — electric outlet. Remember, just . . . "PLUG IN," — I'M REDDY"

"Reddy Kilowatt" Joins Gatineau Power

An industrious young man, full of helpful ideas, has joined Gatineau Power Company. He is "Reddy Kilowatt", who was created for the electric industry to humanize electric service.

Electricity has always been difficult to define and understand. It will be "Reddy Kilowatt's" job to take away all the mystery and complications. He will tell the company's customers about all the things his fellow-employees do and what electricity will do for them. His aim will be to translate kilowatt hours into terms of service, to personalize the kilowatt hour, and create new friendliness for the Company.

This popular character is now used by many companies in Canada and the United States, and joins Gatineau Power with a reputation for doing a good job.

His odd appearance identifies him with electric utilities. To the average reader, Reddy may appear a bit strange at first glance. That may be so because he represents the personification of electricity. His body, arms and legs are lightning flashes, and he has a light bulb for a nose. His ears are wall plugs and he wears rubber shoes and gloves for silence and safety as he moves about.

"Reddy Kilowatt" makes his first appearance in this issue. He will be working for the Gatineau Power Company in its newspaper advertising, and will talk about the company's services and many other phases of the electricial business.

Young Man with a Plan

One of these days, Fred's going to take over the farm. Meanwhile, he's planning; studying and working hard . . . learning right on the job.

Already he's learned a lot about modern farm management, and how a chartered bank can play its part in making farm living more comfortable, more profitable. He has found, for example, how useful the bank can be as a place to build up savings, to obtain credit, to seek financial advice and market information. He knows that the bank manager's door is open to everyone.

When you see a good-looking, well-run farm, chances are the farmer uses the services the chartered banks have built up for all Canadians

Today's Responsibility

THE AUTOMOBILE has become one of the greatest killers of children in modern times. Children need to be taught the reality of the dangers they must face each day on streets and highways. The driver should not expect the child pedestrian to take preventive action, or to know more about reaction time and stopping distances than the driver himself. The latter bears full responsibility in any accident involving a child. It is the driver's job to provide against emergencies, to be constantly on the lookout especially in school areas, and to remember that in three out of five child pedestrian accidents a child was killed or injured while crossing at an intersection or between intersections.

One important way parents can help is by setting a good example for children — good example makes a more lasting impression on youngsters than verbal advice. They can instil safe walking habits into their children by their own alertness and safe behavior in traffic, by knowing and obeying all the rules of safety themselves. They should make sure that their teachings are consistent with the safety lessons the child is getting at school, and in conferences organized by the Provincial Department of Transport and Communications for the benefit of school children. It is well to remember that the responsibility for the safety of children rests largely on the shoulders of grown-ups.

Forum for Opinions

THE FOLLOWING, from The Huntingdon Gleaner, is applicable to any community wherein the local newspaper is rated an esset to progress. We commend its content to our readers:

In view of the fact that there are apparently so many wrongs that need to be righted, we often wonder that we do not receive more "Letters to the Editor" and that there is such a dearth of candidates for municipal office each year. We are often asked to write on subjects of public interest and we appreciate these suggestions even if our views may not coincide. After all, when we write on any subject the opinions are our own, based on our own experience.

We would like to emphasize that we welcome the opinions of others in our columns, but we would warn against some pitfalls. It is not in the best interests to write when one is very angry, because one is apt to say things that may be regretted. If you have a complaint, be prepared to offer a suggestion. It is much easier to wreck than to build. Do not be personal in your attacks and keep in mind the problem rather than the individual. People come and go in this world, but policies live on for years and years. It will not hurt to be analytical of yourself in relation to the problem as well as to the shortcomings of the other fellow.

As evidence of good faith all letters for publication must be signed by the writer, who will thereby accept his responsibility for the statements contained. The name does not necessarily have to be published with the letter. Last but not least, try to be a booster rather than a knocker. Have the courage to express your opinions and stand behind them. Progress comes through courage and the right of free speech and expression of opinion.

The Snail Accelerates

THE PICTURE of the schoolboy "creeping like a snail unwilling to school" is no longer accurate. Instead, one sees on weekday mornings, in any residential district, packs of youngsters, making their way to their studies with far more alacrity than is shown by their elders in proceeding towards their shops or offices. . . This observation, from The Printed Word, may be taking the words from your mouth — you who have noted the passing scene since school reopened last week.

Old-fashioned parents (and what parent is not old-fashioned, in the eyes of his children?) may deplore and view with alarm the modern trends in education — adds The Printed Word. Too much emphasis, they may think, is being placed on amusements and purely cultural activities, to the detriment of a thorough grounding in the three R's. School training seems to be education for leisure rather than for earning a living. Still, the facilities for basic education on the old model do exist, however they may be concealed under modern dress. Making schools social centres instead of homes of boredom has at least encouraged the inmates to lose their fear of instruction. And who can say that education for leisure is not more important than spelling, grammar and arithmetic? With the trend towards constantly decreasing hours of work, hours of leisure may be the most important part of life by the time our schoolchildren start to look for jobs to support them in the style of living to which they have become accustomed.

Yours To Be Proud Of

WIDE-EYED reaction of a teen-ager visiting the Carillon Museum with his parent last Sunday, proved both refreshing and revealing. (The fact that the editorial We, in this case, were the parent, is incidental.) Through the boy's perception we experienced new enjoyment in the rare items on exhibition. It dawned on us that, while Canadians of adult age may recall the time when now-obsolete tools and devices were actually in use — to today's youngster these are but relics of a remote and unknown world (unknown, that is, except through glimpses from literature and the written record of human progress.)

The Carillon Museum — fruition of its founders' fondest dreams — has grown so familiar to us by proximity, that its value may escape our full appreciation. We know the place so well. We automatically commend it to our visitors and tourists. But maybe we fail to grasp the complete significance of this spot. . .

The Carillon Museum is a treasure house of historical associations which, but for the foresight of its founders and the donor of the building, might easily have been established elsewhere in the Ottawa Valley — across in Ontario, or beyond the boundaries of Argenteuil. Its success and growing prestige are a tribute to the little band of workers, officers and directors of the Argenteuil Historical Society, who have steadily promoted its growth; likewise to the donors, supporters and benefactors who have contributed in material terms.

Escorting Young Canada through this repository of local relics, we were somehow reminded of these facts. Here is a perpetual History lesson which will long outlive the existing generation. We personally discovered many new and intriguing additions to its contents, some specimens of intricate craftsmanship, and some of inestimable value. We found, in the Natural History room, varieties of Canadian birds and wildlife never to be seen in the flesh at such close quarters. The custodian of this institution also proves himself a veritable volume of information; he informed us that visitors to the Museum in the past year have numbered in the thousands, including, of course, many juvenile and school groups. And truly, we cannot over-emphasize to parents, guardians and teachers the educational potentialities of this spot.

To these observations, it is not inopportune to add that Carillon Museum may possibly be adapted still further to the cultural advancement of the district. The newly-formed Argenteuil Art Association is seeking a permanent exhibition site for works of art; if this idea is found practical and receives support from the Historical Society directorate, there is a possibility the Museum might achieve still greater ends. Certainly it would appear, both geographically and esthetically, well suited to this venture.

PORTABLE PENSIONS. — Labor and management soon may be squabbling again over pensions, says an observer, Jack McArthur, in The Financial Post. The reason, he explains, is a growing union fascination, with pension credits which move with the employee when he changes jobs while remaining in the same union.

This is almost a sure-fire bet for the unions. It identifies the pension with the union rather than with the employer. Thus it's a great aid in maintaining union membership. No group of workers is likely to pull out of a union if it means losing accumulated pension benefits or ending their growth. . . . The long-run implications are even more attractive to organized labor.

Over the Years with THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

September 16, 1881 —

Several new buildings are going up on Lachute's Main Street.

The Lachute waterpower has been thoroughly tested this season, as the water has been at its lowest for many years and yet there is power for all the mills.

Messrs. Hamelin and Ayers have about completed the additional storey to their woollen factory, and now have a magnificent stone building 4½-storeys high, covered with iron, besides a fine large brick house covered with tin, upon which stands an observatory overlooking the country around.

A man in Montreal who sued the local corporation for damages for an injury received from a fall on the bad sidewalks, has recovered $2,000. This should be a warning to Lachute authorities and cause them to repair their sidewalks at once, as they are really dangerous to pedestrians, especially on dark nights.

Morin Flats — Mr. John Seale last week had seven sheep killed and 13 badly torn, while Eli Desrochers had two killed and two wounded; the damage is supposed to have been done by dogs.

Farmers have commenced harvesting their corn.

Grece's Point — On Monday morning as the steamer Ivy was descending the Chute à Blondeau, below Grece's Point, with a barge loaded with cordwood in tow. The barge by some means got out of her proper channel, and striking a ledge of rock, the stern swung around and both bow and stern grounded, blocking the narrow channel, the only one by which vessels can pass. It is feared that that only way in which the obstruction can be removed will be to blow up the barge with some explosive material.

The Hon. Mr. Gouin, Premier of Quebec Province, has consented to attend our Annual Exhibition next Thursday.

Mr. L. L. Legault, Advocate, has opened up an office in the Roby Block on Main Street. Mr. Legault received his early training under Mr. Henry at the old Lachute College, afterwards graduating from McGill University.

We are pleased to note among the competitors at the Ottawa Exhibition that the following gentlemen from Argenteuil County have succeeded in carrying off a number of prizes: J. A. Wood, J. H. Black, John Cruise, George and John Hay and Alex Doig.

25 YEARS AGO

September 18, 1931 —

Local citizens will be interested to learn that the Federal officers, under the direction of Dr. J. F. Campeau, of Lachute, finished testing all the cattle in Argenteuil for tuberculosis under the restricted area plan, and we understand that the number of reactors was very small, being less than one per cent.

The list of winners at the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition held in Halifax recently, shows that while he was winning honors at the Toronto CNE, Gilbert E. Arnold was at the same time cleaning up in the Clydesdale and Percheron classes at the Eastern fair.

PAYING BACK

British old-age pensions follow the pensioner to the ends of the earth and the Yukon, the cheques continue to flow and don't stop until the death certificate is issued. Canadian old-age pensions should be payable in the same way because they too are based on the principle of contribution.

Wages Have A Cost

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

Probably it is natural for workers to feel underpaid and to feel that they should be paid more. What one cannot accept is their contention that this larger payment can be made without hardship to anyone by simply supplying it out of profits. This contention is raised not because union leaders believe it, but on the assumption that, generally speaking, the public will, and that therefore the workers will not bear the responsibility for any conditions that follow.

These are not surprising tactics. It is understandable that, seeing an announcement of large profits, the public might assume that all might be used for so admirable a purpose as increasing the worker's wage. For everyone would favor an improvement in the workers' position. The only possible point at issue is whether this could be made without the dislocation of some industries and without prejudice to other workers who are just as worthy.

The union leaders' assumption is that profits are always funds that have no prior claims. As a case in point, some such claim was made by the union negotiators at the Steel Company of Canada. Because profits were substantial it was argued that an increase in wages could be paid out of these profits without disturbing the interests of anyone. But there is need to remember the very primary fact before there were any workers or any jobs or any Steel Company, money had to be found to build foundries and furnaces and shops. This represented an enormous outlay on properties that had to be continually replaced, improved and enlarged. So the need for a continuing inflow of money is essential to the continuance of the industry.

Now workers will not work without pay, and more than money is invested without hope of return. So if plants are to continue, money must be available for vast improvements that must be undertaken every year. A year or so ago the Steel Company spent on enlargements $80 million. There was the profit of a great many years of operation, and large expenditures must continue to be made.

For the workers not to admit publicly that they know quite well that their increased demands must mean an increased price for steel, which in turn means increased charges against every other worker, so that every person in the land must individually pay a part of that increase, is a more or less deliberate attempt to confuse public thinking.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Is Anybody Right?

A reader has ticked me off. He writes, "You are against everybody — industry, farmer, laborer. You berate the government one day, the CBC the next, and somebody else the next. Don't you like anybody?"

Ummmmm! Reading back, I note that I have been pretty querulous that I have been pretty querulous. once in a while!

Okay, fellow. I like the way industry is bursting out at the seams developing oil, minerals, and other resources. If I had money, I'd be into common stocks, because I think our industries are well-managed. Most business men are honest and sincere, but I get sore at them when they run to the government for favors.

I like farmers when they're plowing straight furrows and keeping their fields rich and free of weeds, and fighting for prices which are right and just. I admire today's farmer, because he's had the courage to modernize, to produce more goods with less manpower. The only time I get sore is when farmers take what I believe to be an immoral stand by attempting to ban a good food through power politics, while pretending they ought to wear halos like the saints. I like farmers more than anybody when they don't get to liking themselves too much! Lately, they've been talking in a learned way about everybody else's business, but when anyone else talks about farming they cry, "How do you know? You're not a farmer!"

Like every city slicker who wears a collar, I've a sneaking respect for labor's brawn and muscle and camaraderie. Pass the hat for a sick pal or his family, and working men are generous. I get sore at them only because they don't run their unions any more — and union leaders make suckers out of them as much as bosses ever did. Union leaders purport to speak for their membership on controversies where the leaders and union members are as far apart as the poles . . . yet the workers let them get away with it!

I'm not entirely against governments, either, but I think somebody's got to howl when they exceed their proper powers.

But, starting next week, I'll try to have more sweetness and light in this column. I'll get up on the other side of the bed.

TEACHER TAUGHT

It is ironic that several of the present leaders of countries of former colonial territiories which Britain helped to develop, learned their lessons of self-independence or nationalism from England. Prime Minister Nehru of India, for example, was a Cambridge University graduate.

W-O-R-M-S?

When you go fishing, worms are very useful. In the ground they are said to be very beneficial, too. But in horses, pigs, poultry and pets, they are not beneficial; they are actually harmful.

First, they live on your feed — which is a loss to you.

Second, they give off a poisonous substance that is harmful to the bird or animal — and this costs you still more.

They are like a car — you buy a bare car and then you add the extras at extra cost. . . . You can have the worms, but at EXTRA COST!

The cost of removing the worms is much less than the cost of feeding them — so you choose.

Worms are easily removed. In pigs, use Purina Pigtab Granules in feed, or Liquid Pig Wormer in drinking water. In poultry use Checkerton for two days, then back to your regular ration, or Purina Liquid Poultry Wormer in drinking water. Either way is easy, simple and very effective. . . The only reason left for keeping worms is to keep your profits down!

Get a supply today, with your order of PURINA CHOWS. We deliver.

A Precious Promise

Jesus said, "I am the Resurrection and the life. He that exercises faith in me, even though he dies, will come to life. And everyone that is living and exercises faith in me, will never die at all." — John 11: 25, 26.

BEATON — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Ellen Beaton, who passed away Sept. 12, 1947. — Sadly missed by her daughter, Christie, Ross and grandchildren.
"We mention your name and speak of you often,
God bless you, dear Mother, you are never forgotten.
Beautiful memories are all that are left
Of one we loved and shall never forget."

WAITE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Chesser S. Waite, who passed away Sept. 12, 1948. — Ever remembered by his loving wife and family.
"The month of September again is here,
To us the saddest of the year.
More and more each day we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little they know the sorrow

RED CROSS BLOOD CLINIC IN BROWNSBURG SEPT. 20

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The Red Cross blood donor clinic will visit Brownsburg on Thursday, September 20, and will once again offer the opportunity to "save a life". The mobile unit will be installed at the C-I-L plant in the afternoon, then move to the Legion Hall for an evening session, from 7.45 to 10.

This deviation from the previously established format, it is hoped, will increase the number of donors. The province uses 300 bottles of blood a day, and that is the clinic's daily target. In the previous three years, Brownsburg's total has been short of that mark, but it is felt that with the clinic conveniently located at the plant, the normally generous 'Burgers will improve on their previous best.

There are probably only a handful of people in the whole community who wouldn't come out to give twice the quota, if the poor people who need it were actually in Brownsburg next week waiting for it. The fact that the blood has to be transported to the recipients makes it no less useful, or them, no less grateful.

When you're canvassed to donate, try to picture, in place of the canvasser, the little girl, the wrong-blood baby, or the ailing old mother whom the canvasser represents, and say, "Sure, I'll give." If you do, you can feel justly proud that you have really and truly "saved a life."

Misses Penny Foreman, Irene Mott and Rosemary Whinfield left for Macdonald College school for teachers. We wish these young ladies success in their chosen career. . . Mr. David Foreman is also attending Macdonald College in his 2nd year Agriculture course.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Foreman are spending a week's vacation motoring through the Eastern Townships. They will also visit relatives in St. Lambert on their return.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray and baby daughter, of Ottawa, spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Murray, Sr.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mahon were Mr. and Mrs. Ian Mahon, of Ottawa, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Carkner and sons, Donald and Carl, of Vankleek Hill.

Week at Ottawa

Mr. St. Laurent, in the letter written in semi-serious vein, wrote that a search has turned up no evidence that the ancient cannon now at Quebec was fired at Bunker Hill, where the British won a hard-fought battle from stubborn colonists at the cost of heavy manpower losses. It was one of the earliest engagements of the U.S. War of Independence.

However, the prime minister noted that the cannon seems to bear the official seal of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and to have been cast in 1773 or 1774. That made it "an important relic of the history of our two nations."

Canadians, he said, would be as reluctant to give up the old gun as Americans would be to return trophies such as those now at the U.S. naval acedemy in Annapolis, Md., including flags taken off British warships captured by U.S. vessels during the battle of Lake Erie in 1812 when the U.S. invaded Canada.

Officials here say, in any case, that there is considerable doubt the gun was used at Bunker Hill.

Rigaud Wins Title And Molson Trophy

The Rigaud Tennis Club won the championship in the Ontario-Quebec Tennis Club with a 3-2 victory over Lachute and 4-1 against Alexandria. As the champions, the Rigaud Tennis Club merited the Molson Trophy. L'Orignal will now meet Rigaud for a semi-final and Hawkesbury will meet Lachute in another series. The final winnners will merit the Ayers Trophy and the right to play in the district finals in Category C against the champion club of the City of Ottawa.

Following are the finals of the league:

TW: Tournaments Won: TL: Tournaments Lost; MW, Matches Won; ML: Matches Lost; S: Scores.

	TW	TL	MW	ML	S
Rigaud	8	0	33	7	24
Lachute	6	2	23	17	21
L'Orignal	4	4	19	21	18
Hawkesb'y	1	7	14	26	14
Alexandria	1	7	11	29	11

The opening game of the finals for the Ayers Trophy was rained out Monday evening but will continue this evening, with Lachute playing Rigaud at the latter's home grounds.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Events at Brownsburg United Church

Brownsburg — The Rev. Garfield Bruce has again been conducting services after having returned, with his family, from Westfield, N.S., where they spent the summer holiday.

Final decision has been made for the annual church supper, which will be held in the church hall on Wednesday, September 19.

An interesting feature is also planned for Monday evening, September 24, when Miss Muriel Barberie, R.N., of New Brunswick (formerly of Brownsburg C-I-L), who has been in Europe for the past two years and has travelled through the Netherlands, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, England and Scotland, will show colored pictures and tell of the various places she has visited.

W.M.S. Fall Rally, Montreal Presbyterial

The Montreal Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society, United Church of Canada, are holding their annual fall rally and "Literature Tea", on Tuesday, September 18, in St. James Church; sessions at 2.15 and 7.45 p.m.

Miss Frances Bonwick, editor for all missionary publications, will be the speaker at the afternoon sessions, and will review the new Study Book, "Southeast Asia Today."

The evening session will include addresses by Miss Gladys Thornber, of Rutlam, India.

Music will be provided by the St. Lambert Junior Choir at the evening session.

New Members Welcomed To Ministerial Assocn.

The Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association assembled Monday in St. Simeon's Church with the president, the Rev. J. R. Watson, in the chair.

Three new members were given a hearty welcome at this meeting.

It was decided to leave the matter of Sunday School teacher training to the various ministers to arrange.

The Rev. R. Blair gave an interesting address on the subject of Jesus demanding radical obedience to God. The speaker drew attention to the various interpretations of the ethics of Jesus, and the validity of these interpretations.

As soon as public service ceases to be the chief business of the citizens, and they would rather serve with their money than with their persons, the State is not far from its fall. — Rousseau

Vogue for Early Autumn Weddings

Warwick-Rodger

The marriage of Shirley Anne daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan A. Rodger, of East Settlement, to Mr. Ronald James Warwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Warwick, of Willowdale Road, took place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in Lachute United Church, the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating. Mr. Wayne Riddell played the wedding music and Miss Beth Canning, of Valois, sang "Because" during the signing of the register. Pink and white gladioli were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was in a gown of white tulle illusion with bodice of French rose point lace having a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves ending in points over her hands, and a bouffant skirt with appliqués of rose point lace. Her short tulle veil was held in place by a crown of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Glenn Warwick, as matron of honor, and Miss Eleanor Warwick and Miss Barbara Scott, as bridesmaids, wore identical frocks of pastel blue, pink and yellow nylon chiffon. They wore bandeaus to match and carried semi-cascade bouquets of baby mums.

Mr. Glenn Warwick was best man for his brother, and Mr. Keith Warwick and Mr. Howard Rodger were ushers.

Mrs. Rodger, the bride's mother, was gowned in brown crepe, with a beige feathered hat and a corsage of bronze mums. Due to illness the groom's mother was unable to attend.

The reception was held in the church hall, where white and pink gladioli were used as decorations.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Warwick left on their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a Dior blue cashmere suit with matching feathered hat and navy accessories, and wearing a corsage bouquet of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Warwick will reside near Lachute.

VIOLIN MAKER

Shakespeare, Ont. (CP) — Carpenter J. L. Irwin has a special hobby — he makes violins. Hyman Goodman, concertmaster with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, tried one and said: "I wouldn't be ashamed to play it anywhere."

Albright - Baker

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Lachine, decorated with baskets of assorted gladioli, was the scene last Saturday of the marriage of Miss Shirley Norma Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Baker, of 45th Ave., Lachine, to Mr. J. E. Chas. Albright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ewen W. Albright, of Lachute. The Rev. Arthur J. Marshall performed the double-ring ceremony and Mr. Gough furnished the wedding music.

The bride, in a ballerina-length gown of tulle and Chantilly lace, and a veil ornamented with pearls, carrying a bouquet of pink carnations and baby's breath with orchid centre, was given in marriage by her father.

Miss June Baker, as maid of honor, wore a dress of aqua crystalette with yellow accessories, and carried Talisman roses. Miss Sharon Tremaine, as flower girl, was in yellow nylon with lace trimming, and matching coronet of yellow and aqua flowers; she carried a tiny basket of flowers.

The bride's mother wore a street-length dress of Dior blue lace with light blue accessories and a Russian squirrel stole. The groom's mother was in heather crepe and lace, with navy accessories.

Cst. Gregor Albright, of the RCMP, Edmonton, was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Messrs. Dick Tremaine and Martin Albright.

The reception was held at the El Paso in Lachine. Mr. and Mrs. Albright left by motor for Long Island, N.Y., the latter travelling in a green wool suit with mink collar and wearing a corsage of pink carnations. They will reside in Montreal.

If you've ever bent over a drinking fountain with the ends of your tie dangling, you know how a cocker spaniel feels about his ears.

Marshall-Bigelow

Baskets of multi-colored gladioli formed the decorations in Lachute United Church on Saturday, September 1, for the marriage of Florence Irene Bigelow, youngest daughter of Mrs. Ada Bigelow and the late Mr. Malcolm Bigelow, of Lachute, to Cuthbert Allan Marshall, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marshall, of Arundel — the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating. Mr. Wayne Riddell played the wedding music, and Mrs. Leonard Armstrong sang, "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ernest Bigelow, wore a gown of white embroidered net over satin, with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held by a headdress of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Leonard Dion, as matron of honor for her sister, was in a strapless frock of yellow nylon net over taffeta. She wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of yellow and white carnations.

The other attendants, Miss Evelyn Dion and Miss Jacqueline Gibeau, were dressed in pink and blue silk nylon over taffeta with full skirts, and with matching headdresses, carrying bouquets of yellow and white carnations.

Mr. Leonard Dion was best man and Messrs. Ernest Gordon and Lawrence Richer were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a grey silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. The little flower girl, Linda Bigelow (niece of the bride) although unfortunately prevented from taking part in the ceremony, was present at the reception, dressed in blue nylon trimmed with white lace, and with headdress to match; she carried a nosegay of yellow and white mums.

After the reception, held at McArthur's Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left for the New England States, the bride travelling in a brown tweed suit with beige accessories, and wearing a corsage of red roses. On their return they will reside in Lachute.

Duncan-Mason

The marriage of Miss Marion Hazel Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wesley Mason, of Brownsburg, to Robert George Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Duncan, of Lachute, took place Saturday in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church at Brownsburg. The Rev. William Toller performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of French lace and tulle over satin, fashioned with a bodice having a scalloped portrait neckline and sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a lace and tulle skirt. Her fingertip-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a tulle and lace Juliet cap, and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses and gypsophilia. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. William Muir, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Her gown in hunter green crystalette, was cocktail-length, with a fitted bodice, short sleeves, deep V-neckline and a full skirt. She carried a bouquet of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, and wore a matching headdress. Miss Doreen Duncan, the groom's sister, was junior bridesmaid. Her gown, of hunter green crystalette, was fashioned similarly to that of the matron of honor, and she, too, carried a small bouquet of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Donald Boa, of Lachute, acted as groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Kenneth Duncan, the bridegroom's uncle, of Nova Scotia, and Mr. Bruce Mason, the bride's brother, of Brownsburg.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Mason, was dressed in a gown of coffee-colored lace over taffeta, with pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Duncan was dressed in a gown of black brocade taffeta with orchid-colored accessories.

After the reception in the church hall, which was decorated with fall flowers, the bride and groom left on a motor trip to the Eastern United States and Niagara Falls. The bride travelled in a charcoal grey suit trimmed with a Chinese mink collar, a small turquoise feather hat and a corsage of turquoise-colored carnations. The bridal couple will reside in Lachute.

Lachute Red Cross September Meeting

The September meeting of the local Red Cross branch was held in the United Church hall with the president, Mrs. L. Armstrong, in the chair.

A report was given on the Swimming and Water Safety fund. It was agreed to change the name of this fund to the Lachute Ladies' Aquatic Fund, as it was purely a local fund and had no connection with the Red Cross organization.

Plans were drawn up for the Blood Donor Clinic on October 24-25. Mrs. G. G. Mitchell and Mrs. Geo. McGibbon were appointed conveners of the canteen. Other appointments to be made were left to the chairmen, Mr. L. Armstrong and Mr. L. Bedard.

It was reported there was an ample supply of wool and sewing, and that work would resume after the Blood Clinic.

At a basketball game this announcement was made: "Will the owner of car bearing license number 88645 please go to your car immediately. Your motor is running, the lights are on, the doors are locked. You are parked in a No Parking zone and your left rear tire is flat. Will the lady kindly remove her car!"

LEAGUE TITLE TO BROWNSBURG WITH THREE SUCCESSIVE WINS

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Well, the local Tigers did it again! They won the Dollard League Cup in three-straight over Hawkesbury. The locals had been a little lucky in a few recent games, but this final they won in the style that won the league pennant for them. They battered the offerings of the Villeneuve brothers all over the field for 11 runs on 14 hits, while Ronald Cousineau gave up just six runs on nine hits.

"Zag" walked one and struck out none, in one of his less impressive pitching performances. His season's record was 12 victories and no defeats — a stand-out in any league — and the big reason for his success was that in 114 innings he allowed just 14 walks.

At bat for Brownsburg, Keith Hazel in the third inning, singled in the team's 99th and 100th runs of the season. Mel Tomalty doubled twice to bat in two and score one. Buddy Racine scored twice with two singles. Jacques Racine found his big bat again and walloped a triple and a double, scoring two and batting in two.

André Ouellette singled and scored two runs. Germain Gagné tripled in the second for Brownsburg's 150th hit of the season. He drove in two, singled and scored. Yves Raymond singled twice to end his batting slump, and Gilles Diotte and Edgar Joly rounded out the attack with singles.

In the field, Jacques Racine must be rated as the star, despite three costly errors. He made four putouts and nine assists for some kind of a record.

The team may have had a few lucky breaks in one or two games, but when all is said and done, they won 14 games and lost only two. They scored 106 runs on 162 hits, while their opponents were scoring 61 runs on 137 hits.

Big bats for the season were Yves Raymond with 30 total bases and Jacques Racine with 29. Mel Tomalty led with 22 hits and the top average of .379. Billy Cribb topped that with .393, but wasn't at bat often enough to qualify. Germain Gagné's .431 was obtained with too few times at bat. Other hitters over .300 were Buddy Racine, Yves Raymond and René Gratton. In the important RBI department, Yves Raymond, Ronald Cousineau and Jacques Racine led with 9 apiece. Yves Raymond scored 20 runs.

No one was a passenger on the team. Gilles Diotte, one of Brownsburg's weaker offensive men, was a rock on defence, making only one error in 162 chances. The bench strength was probably a big factor in the Tigers' successful season, as fellows like Mike and René Gratton, Fern Lepine and Edgar Joly — all good enough for any of the other teams — stepped into the team to make important hits or important plays. Karl Gagné, the Tigers' other pitcher, was tagged with the team's only two losses, but without his two victories, Brownsburg wouldn't have won the league pennant.

The coach was Jimmy Murdoch, who in two years as manager-player-coach has won the cup twice and the league pennant once. When you consider that, in his first year with the hockey club as coach, they too won the cup, it goes beyond a coincidence. Watching the Tigers in action showed the tie-in between the coach and the team; in the long run it was better training and superior training methods that paid off.

Well done, boys, and congratulations, Mr. Murdoch!

I.O.U. Boys Defeat Colford Lodge 10-8

Last Sunday, the Colford's Lodge ball squad lost their fourth game of the season. Their Montreal opponents scored eight runs in the first three innings, and added one in the fifth and sixth. Colford's made error after error and along with poor base running, could not overcome this large lead.

Jacques Leveillé smashed a home run with two on for Colford's, only to be called out at the plate. Jean Guy Larocque had pitched an earlier game in Lachute and was obviously tired for the second game at Colford's. The last time these two teams met Larocque pitched a non-hitter, but he was in trouble many times last Sunday. Other big hitters for Colford's were Allan Muir, with three for four, and Larocque with four for four.

Next Sunday Colford's Lodge will play host to Maisonneuve, of Montreal; game time 2 p.m.

Preacher Hockey Coach In Ontario Town

SPORTS CAMERA
By Gerry Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Rev. Max Putnam, who ministers to a Presbyterian congregation in the southwestern Ontario town of Listowel, feels hockey is the greatest game in the world. But there's the import evil in the sport especially in the smaller centres — and he has been waging a personal battle against it.

That's one of the reasons he felt compelled to take over as playing coach of the Listowel Rotajets of the Intermediate Homebrew League in the Western Ontario Athletic Association.

In that circuit no player is eligible if he lives more than seven miles from the rink in which he plays. The six-team league provides hockey entertainment for residents of Palmerston, Harriston, Elora, Teeswater, Mount Forest and Listowel.

"Hockey has gone through a transition," the preacher-coach says. "Towns brought in outside players to build up their teams. After a while the whole thing collapsed, leaving deficits and lack of interest. We think the need is to develop competition by local boys against local boys from nearby towns.

Our league is designed for that purpose."

Preaches Fitness

The minister said he heard complaints that hockey is rough but he doesn't agree. "It's the speed that makes it look tough. My only regret is that I'm 37. Last season was probably my last. When I see those kids skating past me I know it's time to hang up my stick. But I have two boys and I'd like them to play hockey."

Mr. Putman believes good physical condition makes a man better able to do his job — whether he's a pawnbroker or a preacher.

He tells his players and his congregation that you encounte same problems in sports tha meet in day-to-day living. I handle your assignment well ice or on the baseball fiel chances are you'll do as w your office or at the factory.

While he's against impor sport, the minister was onc himself. The Perth Wings h him in from Smiths Falls, O play junior A hockey in the C Valley League. He had his of attending school — all exp paid plus walking-around mor or a job in which the wages be sweetened by the hockey

"That was the most fort thing that ever happened to Mr. Putnam says. "It kept m ing to school. Otherwise I pro would never have been able t pare myself for the ministry

When the Second World broke out, he went overseas the army's mechanical eng and was a member of the team which won the hockey pionship of northwestern Eu

The manager of that tean Rev. Finlay Stewart of St. An Presbyterian Church in Kitc Ont., and through his assoc with the padre Mr. Putnam b certain of what he wanted when the shooting was over come a clergyman.

The minister admits rather ishly he picked up one p while playing last season.

"I guess you would say the alty was for retaliating again other player," he said. "It ha ed out of town — fortunately.

Town Council

It was then moved by Ald. Pollock, seconded by Ald. H. S. Church, that a new 1-ton truck be bought, on the condition that sufficient funds can be found in the current revenues. Ald. Romain Desjardins objected to this, stating that, in his opinion, any monies obtained from borrowing on By-law 202 would not be current revenue until such time as the debentures were sold; however, following considerable discussion, the motion passed unanimously.

The Police Committee report was then presented by Ald. H. S. Church, who proposed that a sum not exceeding $1,500 be approved to purchase a police car and that the Police Committee be appointed to purchase said car; Ald. Dr. Roger Lavigne seconded the motion.

Financing of Purchases

Ald. Desjardins raised the same objection, stating he was in favor of the purchase but that he, as chairman of the finance committee, could not possibly see where funds could be made available. Following further discussion, the wording of the motion was changed to read similar to the resolution on purchase of a truck, that is, "that a police car be bought for a sum not exceeding $1,500, on the condition that sufficient funds can be found in the current revenues."

Ald. Desjardins then made a motion rescinding his previous motion passed August 8 of this year, setting out the conditions for the use of revenues obtained through By-law 202; this was seconded by Ald. Judes E. Charlebois and passed unanimously.

Various Items

It was decided that the town caretaker, Adelard Mallette, be appointed to the Police Department for a two-week period while holidays are in effect.

Ald. Romain Desjardins read letters from Secretary-Treasurer Jacques Poitras and Mrs. Yvette Raymond, town clerk, requesting a raise of $10 a week each, and moved that these increases in salary be granted, effective immediately. The motion was seconded by Ald. Church. (The secretary's salary, prior to this increase, was but $2,900 yearly.)

Several letters on minor matters were read to the Council, as was a request for the civic auditorium for use as a centre for the Blood Donor Clinic on Monday and Tuesday, September 24-25. The request was granted, the building to be free of charge for this worthy purpose.

Accounts totalling $9,124.51 were approved for payment, after which it was moved, seconded and unanimously approved, that the meeting be adjourned to Wednesday, September 12 (last evening), when the valuation roll would be discussed along with other matters, to be followed by a joint meeting with the Ayersville Council to discuss problems of mutual concern.

Editors Aboard the "Empress"

When a group of more than 60 of Canada's Weekly Newspaper editors sailed on the Empress of Britain from Montreal recently for a tour of the United Kingdom, they found that, even at sea, they were not far from a printing shop. Some of the editors are shown above examining the ship's press, which prints a daily newspaper, "The Empress News," and also turns out the many other printing jobs, such as menus, required by a ship at sea.

Summer Nostalgia

By Canadian Press

There's no place like a national park to remind you that you're getting old. Or to revive your interest in living to be much older. You notice this especially if you're one of those who once worked a summer or two in a place like Waterton Lakes, Banff, Jasper, Riding Mountain, Cape Breton Highlands or any other national park.

You can never quite forget the freedom you enjoyed in the place. Nor, if you were young and in college at the time, the dreams born there, the ambitions, the friendships. Not to mention the romances.

When you go back after 10 years, most of the faces have changed. Streets may have been paved and a few new sidewalks laid. The meals are more expensive. But once the initial shock of these unmistakable signs that time is passing has been weathered, you look around and realize that while faces may change in a national park, certain other things don't.

That faraway happy look in that waitress' eye — you remember that from your days as a bellhop. And you realize suddenly that, in a way, it's fatal to work in a national park. Because it's so much fun.

It's only temporary work — the whole summer is lived on a temporary basis — responsibilities sit on the shoulders with a lightness they will never possess in later years. The spirit is free to soar from peak to peak.

If things go badly — your latest love informs that the vacation is over and she must leave — there is always the scenery to turn to. The lakes and streams are refreshing. Even the most world-weary cynic runs the risk of having his faith revived in the wooded solitudes.

So there are the immutables of a national park. The former employee has joined a fraternity, nostalgic and overly sentimental possibly, whose benefits live long in the memory.

And what if, on his return to the memory-haunted park, the faces have changed? Look around you, man. There's a whole new generation — and the figures haven't changed!

Denny Vaughan Show Back September 24

Toronto — The "Denny Vaughan Show" will be back in September, with the first fall performance scheduled for September 24. The show will again be produced by the CBC for Lever Brothers Limited and will be seen at 9.30 p.m

The star of the show, Denny Vaughan, and popular singer Joan Fairfax will once again team up to entertain Canada's television viewers from coast to coast.

This show, which first appeared on Canadian television as a 1955 summer replacement, became a national favorite when it was selected as the regular Lever Brothers show under the name "The Denny Vaughan Show".

The popularity of this show has stemmed largely from the musical versatility of Denny Vaughan and the singing ability and charm of his co-star, Joan Fairfax. Early in 1956 Denny Vaughan recorded a tune written by Johnny Cowell, of Toronto, "Walk Hand in Hand". The song, which had its premiere on "The Denny Vaughan Show", became an instant hit in both Canada and the United States and its success contributed to the fame and popularity of the Canadian television star.

The stars of the show, Denny Vaughan and Joan Fairfax, have made appearances on top United States radio and television programs during recent months and have been well received.

Things 'n Stuff

— By — WALTER HENRY JACKSON

One for the Road

Times have changed. Or have they? I think that the most oft-repeated phrase in today's newspapers is "If you drink, don't drive. If you drive, don't drink." Or words to that effect. Every day items in all the newspapers report someone having his license suspended for "impaired driving."

So I handed myself a laugh the other day when I picked up an old copy of Munsey's Magazine of July 1903 (and that's over half a century ago, my friend). In the advertising section, amid the electric belts, cancer "cures", Regina Music Boxes and long-horned phonographs, there appeared the reproduction of an oil painting depicting a new-fangled horseless carriage, evidently of foreign make, carrying three men in long dusters, peaked caps and goggles. Two were in the front seat and the third was in the "tonneau", which was what they called the back part of a car in those days. Strapped to the outside of the tonneau was a long wicker basket from which the back-seat driver was extracting a bottle. The wording accompanying the picture was as follows:

Automobiling

There is no more exhilarating sport or recreation than automobiling. The pleasure of a spin over country roads or through a city park is greatly enhanced if the basket is well stocked with Blank's Scotch Whiskey

And now, after 53 years, there are still plenty of fellows around who like to enhance their pleasure. If they would only drive into big trees and kill themselves off, instead of other innocent people, what a blessing that would be!

Be seein' ya!

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Gillian Pritchard, Canadian Press Staff Writer

If you are a hay fever sufferer, you'll be interested to know of a program being carried out in Montreal to eliminate ragweed, prime cause of hay fever in Canada.

Each summer for 10 years, beginning July 15 when the hay fever season gets under way, ragweed has been sprayed with weedkiller.

Each year, the pollen count has decreased and is expected to be negative eventually. Outlying districts are encouraged to follow suit because even if one area is free of ragweed, the air can be thick with pollen from adjacent municipalities.

Already, there are provinces where you can find relief from this allergy. Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia claim freedom from the weed and New Brunswick has a province-wide campaign against it which has lasted several years.

Northern parts of Ontario and Quebec are said to have havens for sufferers. Western Canada is considered an intermediate area where only highly susceptible persons are bothered.

But even if you live in a heavily pollen-impregnated area, there are ways in which you can help yourself.

Set aside one bedroom and remove from it all feather pillows and dust. Keep the room closed and quiet during the day so that any pollen will settle to the floor, providing reasonable relief for a good night's sleep.

Greenland's Women

When you are struggling through icy blizzards this winter to women's club meetings, spare a thought for Greenland's country women who remain undaunted in a hard, cold country.

They have 13 groups of an association similar to our Women's Institutes and are affiliated with the Associated Country Women of the World.

They meet during winter months because in summer everyone is too busy working. Transport is a major problem because 84 per cent of the country is covered with ice all year round.

Greenland's women strive to stay abreast of world affairs and recently they were visited by Mrs. Dahlerup Petersen of Denmark, vice-president of the Associated Country Women of the World.

These women's groups have asked for lessons on nutrition, realizing that changes in eating habits, now that more food is bought instead of grown or trapped, could affect the stamina of their race.

Several of the groups are trying to raise funds by knitting to build meeting places. Women's groups in Denmark are helping by sending knitted wool.

All the women do beautiful handicrafts such as whalebone carvings and working sealskins for clothes.

Winter colds may be due to diet habits. If you skip breakfast and make lunch a mere snack, that may be the cause of your cold problem. Breakfast and lunch should each constitute a third of the day's nourishment.

Information Quiz On Consumer Services

by the Consumer Section, Canada Dept. of Agriculture Marketing Service

Question 1

What departments of the Government of Canada employ home economists and nutritionists whose aim is to help Canadian Consumers in the wise selection and use of foods?

Answer

1—The Department of Agriculture, Consumer Section (sometimes called "Canada's Kitchen"), whose home economists maintain a national service for Consumers to advise them on the buying and using of Canadian agricultural foods. Information is distributed on the grading, merchandising and availability of foods, on the standardization of food containers and on the home preservation and uses of foods. All directions are based on extensive experimental work.

2—The Department of Fisheries whose home economists test various methods of cooking all types of Canadian fish and supply information on the purchasing, handling and storage of fish as well as recipe booklets based on tests conducted in their experimental kitchens.

3—The Department of National Health and Welfare, Nutrition Division, whose particular aim is to maintain and improve the health of Canadians through better food habits. Canada's Food Rules are used as a basis for the educational work done by the Nutrition Division as well as for any menus suggested by the other departments of the government.

Question 2

Where would I write for information about freezing fruits, vegetables and meat or for recipes using cheese or for answers to any of my problems concerning the utilization of Canadian Agricultural foods?

Answer

Write to the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa for answers to specific questions, but for copies of their bulletins write to Information Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Question 3

Where would I write for recipes for fish casseroles, or for any other information concerning fish?

Answer

Write to the Home Economics Section, Department of Fisheries, Ottawa.

Question 4

Where would I write for a copy of Canada's Food Rules and other nutrition information?

Answer

Write to your Provincial Health Department or contact your local health services. Information materials put out by the Department of National Health and Welfare (Nutrition Division) are distributed in this way.

Question 5

What is the Canadian Association of Consumers?

Answer

It is an organized group of Canadian women whose aim is to improve the standards of living in Canadian homes. The various committees of C.A.C. study consumer problems, make recommendations for their solution and bring these to the attention of government, trade and industry. They also pass along their findings to Canadian Consumers so that everyone may benefit and they have a helpful bulletin which is distributed regularly to members. Membership is open to every woman in Canada.

The Canadian Association of Consumers, a volunteer organization, is sometimes confused with the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture which is a government service. The two are unrelated except for their close co-operation in matters where food is concerned.

Grandma was giving the recent bride a heart-to-heart talk.

"Child, I hope your lot's going t'be easier than mine," she said. "All my wedded days I've carried two burdens — pa and the fire. Every time I've turned to look at one, the other has gone out."

"Taste Panel" in Canada's Kitchen

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

About 60 per cent. of our children carry lunches to school. It is comforting to assume that the contents will be eaten to the last bite. But often this is not the case.

A few gentle questions to the child, or a talk with the teacher, will often reveal the answer. If this fails, pack a duplicate lunch for a week and try eating it yourself at home.

Monotonous Foods

You may find it unattractive looking, dried up or monotonous if the same foods are used day after day. The lunch box may be "smelly" and unappetizing; the crusts of bread too hard to chew, peeling an orange may be too much of a chore.

Appetizing lunch-box meals can't be made up from scraps. They should be planned a week ahead and necessary food supplies bought with the weekly order of groceries.

For each luncheon provide one or two de-crusted and quartered high-protein-filled sandwiches, wrapped in waxed paper or sandwich bags; a vegetable or munch, such as celery, carrot or cucumber sticks; a tomato cut in wedges or crisp lettuce. Add a hot soup (or cold milk if not on sale at school) in a vacuum container, a cupcake or cookies or gingerbread and fruit.

In Paper Container

Fruit may consist of a paper container of frozen peaches, fruit cocktail or a frozen baked apple, which will thaw during the morning to eating consistency. Meantime, it will keep the contents of the lunch box deliciously, safely cool.

Hot or Cold Coffee or Tea or Milk

All Measurements Are Level
Recipes Proportioned to Serve 4 to 6

Steak Latin-American: Order 2 lbs. sirloin or round steak cut 1 in. thick. If using round steak, tenderize with a good preparation.

Rub the steak all over with ½ tsp. onion salt and 1½ tsp. seasoned salt. Slash the fat around the edges.

Broil 3 in. from the heat. Turn once with tongs; baste with 2 tbsp. melted butter.

For rare, broil 10 min.; well-done, 12 min. Carve in thin slices.

Make up 1 pkg. lemon Vitamin C gelatin. Refrigerate ½ hr.

Stir into the grapes. Refrigerate 3 hrs. or until firm enough to unmold.

Serve with a sauce of sweetened, slightly crushed berries or use sugared sliced peaches. Add a whipped topping if you like.

Trick of the Chef

Season cream of tomato soup for 4 with ¼ tsp. powdered basil.

Nylon tricot is now available in a heavy gauge, ideal for winter slumber wear but happily with the same quick-wash, drip-dry qualities. This one ready to pack into college-bound trunks, is white plaided in green and blue. It is very simple but with lines pretty enough to wear for lounging. White is used for the stand-away collar, the sleeve trim and the sash are of white satin, green on the reverse side. The sleeves can be pushed up or worn below the elbow.

QWI Submits Brief On Broadcasting

The brief submitted by the Quebec Women's Institutes, to the Royal Commission on Broadcasting appeared on the first day of the hearings in Montreal last Monday, Mrs. J. Ossington, Granby, 2nd vice-president and a member of the committee that drew up the brief, was the spokesman for the Q.W.I. She was accompanied by the immediate past-president, Mrs. G. E. LeBaron, of North Hatley.

The brief incorporates the majority viewpoint of the Q.W.I. membership throughout the province. It stresses the need for a government-sponsored system to give adequate service to all Canada, acting as a creative force in establishing national unity. It goes on to say, private networks, both radio and television should also be encouraged, as they provide an outlet for affairs of local interest and the development of local talent.

The brief asks that the field of advertising, "a necessary lifeblood", be constantly explored to make it more acceptable to the listeners but the CBC should also be given adequate financial assistance to aid it in developing a sound national policy in both television and radio, to assist it in expanding its services to meet the growing needs of this country, and to provide the finest in "Canadian information, education and entertainment."

The CBC was commended for its excellent news and sports coverage, programs for rural listeners (weather, farm broadcasts), talks and discussions, fine plays and music. The brief recommends more use of Canadian talent, avoidance of gun play and violence on children's programs and more women on the Board of Governors.

Catholic Women's League Provincial Convention . September 14-15

The C.W.L. ninth annual provincial convention opens in Drummondville on September 14.

Delegates from Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers, St. Hyacinthe, Sherbrooke, St. Johns, Valleyfield, Mont Laurier, St. Jerome, Chicoutimi and Nicolet, representing 11 dioceses, will meet in Drummondville, September 14-15, as guests of the Ste. Therese Subdivision, Nicolet Diocese.

Provincial President Mrs. Ross Alexander, of Upper Melbourne, will preside at all business sessions. His Excellency Most Reverend L .P. Whelan, D.D., Provincial Director, will attend.

"A Catholic Magazine or Publication in Every Home" is the theme of the convention, which will open with mass at St. Theresa's Parish Church. A civic reception at the City Hall will follow the morning sessions.

A luncheon will be given at Manoir Drummondville, at which Mrs. Roland Brady, president of hostess subdivision, will preside and Mr. H. J. L'Heureux, United States Consul General, will be guest speaker.

Election of officers will take place at the afternoon session, which will close with solemn benediction at St. Theresa's Church.

PHONEY money from Formosa

Chinese Nationalists have a new twist in their psychological warfare. They are dropping from the air "silver" dollars that turn out to be aluminum discs urging mainland Chinese to join the Formosa forces.

While this money was phoney, real aluminum coins are widely used — in France and Italy, for instance. A fraction the weight of other metals, and perennially bright and shiny, aluminum pays off as small change. It also pays off for Canada, as an industry that converts raw materials and waterpower into purchasing power in the world markets.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

The Baby's Walking!

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"John! Come quickly! Baby is walking!" Mrs. MacKay called excitedly.

John drops the paper he is reading and hurries to the dining room. There he sees his wife's gaze proudly focused on their small son who is triumphantly taking his first steps.

It is a Big Moment for parents when baby takes those first steps — especially for young fathers and mothers who have been impatiently hovering over their first child! But every baby starting to walk is something of a miracle. Even if there are a dozen children, this is always an exciting time in the family.

Mothers are apt to be anxious if baby is slow to walk. They compare his age and progress with a neighbor's child, or other babies they have known. Starting to walk re-assures them that their child is making normal progress. He has been a darling baby, but he can't stay an infant forever!

Never try to hurry a baby in walking, nor prevent him from walking once he gets started! Baby will walk by himself when he is ready. This is usually around a year or a year and a half. Some lithe, very active children walk at an earlier age and some heavy, placid youngsters are "slow walkers." But in walking, as in other skills, parents might as well accept that in timing, as in other things, each child has his own schedule. When he is concentrating on his new-found power of locomotion, his progress in learning to talk may be temporarily halted. One thing at a time, is baby's idea!

Sometimes a parents is fearful that a child will be bow-legged if allowed to walk too early. Certainly many small youngsters appear to have rather crooked little "underpinnings"! But a genuine bow-legged condition is seldom caused by walking too soon. This appears as a rule from serious malnutrition which produces rickets.

Fortunately in Canada most babies receive an abundance of calcium in milk, a balanced diet and cod liver oil, and so this bone disease is comparatively rare. A properly-fed small child may have a temporary bow-legged appearance. But his little legs usually will soon straighten themselves.

A too-anxious mother sometimes rubs her child's legs in an effort to straighten them. Baby's legs do not require massage to keep them in good condition, but baby does need proper shoes. They should be light, comfortable, with sufficient support. Mothers must be constantly on the alert that a child's shoes and socks are long enough.

Once in a while a baby is retarded in walking because he feels no need to go exploring. Everything he wants is brought to him, so why should be exert himself? A too great use of a "walker" or stroller also delays a child's striking out on his own.

A parent's over-eagerness can make a child fearful of this new strange feat of walking. What he needs is self-confidence. Neither should mother be too anxious about baby's occasional tumble. He is bound to have a bump once in a while.

When baby starts to walk he needs a larger enclosed play area than a small play pen. If he can have part of the kitchen or dining room as his own space, where he cannot get into mischief or harm, this is a great help. Mother will avoid unnecessary nerve strain to herself and too frequent "don'ts" if she puts breakable nick-nacks away in a drawer for a while. Dad can co-operate by providing a fence for baby's outdoor play and some play equipment to keep him occupied.

The mother of a toddler has to be on the alert all his waking hours. He is so keen to get his hands on everything, to touch and go exploring. Little fingers must not be poked into electric wall plugs or the closet for First Aid or kitchen supplies. Cleaning fluids, medicines and any harmful substances must be locked up.

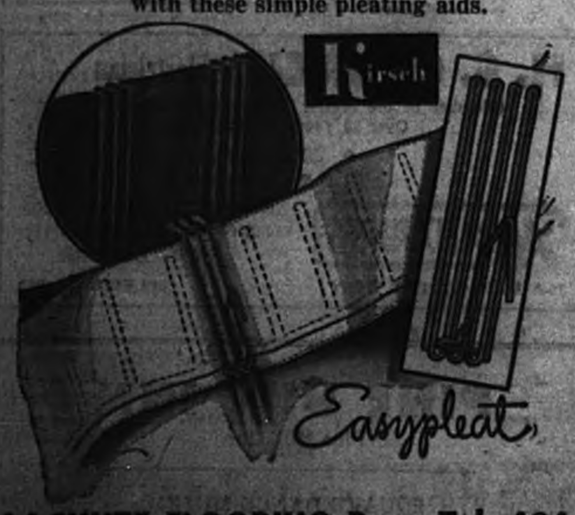

The parents should re-arrange their time schedule when baby starts to walk. Mother needs to cut out unessential work. She should rest in the early afternoon when her child has his nap. If father will take a little greater responsibility for his child's evening play-time or outdoor walk, this will lighten mother's load. Dad will benefit too, by getting to know his small son or daughter much better. Now, more than ever, because he is leaving babyhood behind and stepping out into the Big World, a child needs two parents.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

If you are a mother of small fry, you may be saddled with the frequent job of playing chauffeur to carfuls of kids.

Two or three offspring of your own are the maximum that are manageable. More than that require special precautions. When there is a crowd of children in the car, always:

1—Remove the ignition key when you park. Children are not only curious but they may be tempted to turn the key "on a dare."

2—Park with gears in neutral postion. (When in gear, the car will jump if the children touch the starter button.)

3—When you stop, set the parking brake tightly. On a hill, turn front wheels into the curb.

4—Have your muffler and tail pipe checked to make sure engine gases are carried back beyond the rear bumper, and as an added safety measure, provide plenty of ventilation.

5—When backing out of a driveway, appoint someone — even a child — as a "watch dog" to make sure small fry do not scurry behind your wheels.

6—Insist that doors be locked, both when the car is moving and parked.

Finally, make sure that mother drives children rather than the children driving mother. Insist that horseplay be confined to where horses should play — out in the open, not in the car!

Donald Archer is really in tune with the times

High fidelity sound expert Donald Archer says:

"On older phonographs and records you could hear only part of the sound range. Today's 'hi-fi' systems reproduce the lowest and highest notes of the musical scale with startling realism. This modern development has meant great progress in the recording field."

As a family man, Mr. Archer also benefits by continuous progress in another field . . . life insurance. Policies are more flexible and more adaptable to the needs of individual families.

Today, you can obtain life insurance policies that provide not only basic protection but ready funds for emergencies, also policies for education, for safeguarding your home, for protecting your business and for ensuring your retirement income.

In these and other ways, the life insurance companies in Canada have progressed with the times . . . meeting the needs of people in all walks of life!

Women's Institute

Last Thursday evening at the Intermediate School, the Women's Institute held its first meeting of the fall. There were about 30 ladies present. An interesting and detailed report was given by Mrs. Willis Seale about the W.I. convention held last June at Macdonald College. The ladies also planned a trip to the Weston Biscuit plant at Longueuil; about 20 ladies arranged to visit this plant on Wednesday, September 12.

Following the meeting, the guest speaker for the evening was Mr. J. S. Giles, of Lachute, who gave an impressive address and left with the ladies many morals and thoughts to uphold. The topic of his address was, "Live and Let Live." He then spoke of the early days of The Lachute Watchman and the hardships which had to be faced. His son, Mr. Robert Giles, then concluded with the present-day problems of running a newspaper.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. J. Green, Miss A. Seale and Mrs. Leslie Seale.

School Reopened

The Morin Heights Intermediate School reopened last Wednesday with an enrolment of 212 pupils. The teaching staff of seven teachers and the principal, Mr. Mason Campbell, resumed their duties. It is the hope of parents and friends that a successful year will be enjoyed by both the teachers and the pupils.

The community takes this opportunity to welcome Mrs. Riordan, Mr. Williams and Mr. Allan, the three new members of the Protestant School teaching staff.

Baptism

On Sunday last at the Shawbridge United Church, the Rev. Robert Blair baptized the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mantel, of Beauharnois.

Silver Wedding Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lacken entertained a number of the latter's family and friends on Sunday last. The occasion was the silver wedding of Mrs. Lacken's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hodgkin, of Montreal. A dinner was served by the hostess, Mrs. Lacken, to about 15 persons. Those from out of town were Mrs. R. W. Robinson and son, Malcolm, of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Snell and sons, Wallace and George, of Gatineau, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Snell, of Valois, Miss W. Franzen, of Montreal, and Miss Carol Hodgkin, daughter of the honored guests. The community takes this opportunity to wish the happy couple many more years of happiness.

Home and School

The Home and School resumed their fall schedule, holding the first meeting on Monday last at the Morin Intermediate School. There was a good attendance, and the guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Hastings Skelton, director of McGill School of Physical Education.

The Morin Heights United Church Sunday School will reopen on Sunday, September 16, at 10 a.m. in the church hall.

A number of the United Church ladies (members of the W.A.) were guests last Tuesday at the Ste. Adele Women's Association, at the Ste. Adele United Church hall. An enjoyable time was reported by those who attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson and friends, of Thurso, also Mrs. Clayton Burwash and children, of Ottawa, visited Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Arthurs over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott, of Falconbridge, Ont., are spending two weeks' holiday with the latter's mother, Mrs. E. C. Young.

Miss Margaret Bates, of Montreal, spent the week-end with her parents. Miss Joan Vaillancourt has recovered sufficiently to return to her duties in the Bell Telephone office with Miss Bates.

Mr. Elmer Andrews, of Montreal, visited his family over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bates and family attended the Vankleek Hill Fair on Saturday evening; also Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Bates.

A number of the Orange Lodge members here attended the service and parade at the United Church in Grenville last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl MacRae, of Marelan, visited the latter's parents last week.

We are sorry to report the serious illness of Mrs. Edgar Crawford.

Recent callers at Mr. and Mrs. Everett Young's were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eastwood, of Bell Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Young and family, of Brownsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Gray, of Newboro, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nixon are now settled in their new home, the farm formerly owned by the late George Bates. Friends extend wishes for their happiness and welfare.

UNREASONABLE DEMAND

Orillia, Ont. — A local resident found he could not get his car out of his garage because the works department was tearing up the road directly in front of his driveway. He promptly got on the phone and argued that the town should pay for him to take a cab to and from work. He lost.

Cushing

Mr. Percy Nicholls, of Thorold, Ont., was the overnight guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dobbie on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Fagen and son, of Niagara Falls, Ont., spent the past week with Mr. Wm. Bryerton and sister, Mrs. W. Villeneuve, of Carillon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Chambers, accompanied by Mrs. A. Lighthall, of Lachute, were at Vankleek Hill Road on Sunday, at the home of Edward Geen — to whom we send sincere sympathy in the loss of his mother, Mrs. Geen, Sr. (the former Emma Lighthall), who was well and favorably known in this district, having grown up just across the Ottawa River, in Chute à Blondeau, Ont.

Miss Marjorie Beecher, of Toronto, spent Labor Day week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Beecher, of "Lilac Lodge."

Mr. Anthony Fahey, of Montreal, is occupying the Dobbie cottage for 10 days. His sister, Mary, was with him over the week-end.

Miss E. M. Graham, of Verdun, visited her mother and brother over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Graham of Lachute were guests at the Graham home on Sunday evening.

Miss Parker, who has been the guest of Miss F. M. Douglas, left Monday evening by plane to visit friends in Calgary and Banff, then to proceed by plane for England via Amsterdam.

The Misses Annie, Janet and Betty McDowell, of Montreal, spent the week-end at "Glenifer."

Mr. and Mrs. W. Ronalds and family spent Sunday in St. Jerome.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeudall, of Pointe Claire, were recent guests of Mr and Mrs. L. R. McGain. Week-end guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Hollingworth and family, of Montreal.

Mrs. S. Rowland, of N.D.G., spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. L. R. McGain of "Tynwald."

Arundel Campaign for Institute of the Blind

The financial campaign committee to the CNIB for the township of Arundel, has requested that anyone who has not so far contributed kindly get in touch with Mr. H. Boyd, chairman for the drive.

Mr. Percy Staniforth, secretary for Arundel, gave a brief account of the progress of the campaign to Mr. J. A. Godin, superintendent of the Institute, and to Mr. A. C. Zaplaski, field secretary of the Laurentian district. All have agreed that, for the first year, the drive in Arundel has proved encouraging. A complete result will be published just as soon as all the returns are in.

LOST BUSINESS

Kitchener, Ont. (CP) — A local garage attendant admits he couldn't recognize business standing right before his eyes. A man drove up in a car, left it on the lot and hopped a bus headed for nearby Guelph. The puzzled attendant checked with police to see if the car was stolen. It wasn't.

After more thought, he called a used car dealer to tow it away. After it had been removed, he learned it had been left at his garage for repairs.

BACKACHE May be Warning

Camp Holiday Enjoyed By Cubs and Scouts from Morin-Lac St. Denis

Lac St. Denis — During the month of August, 15 Cubs and 10 Scouts from the Lac St. Denis - Morin Heights group embarked on a seven-day camping holiday. The camping site was on land owned by Paul Baumel of the Alpino Hotel, and was excellent for the purpose. All coking, cleaning services and construction of necessary facilities were done by the boys under the direction of Cubmaster P. Dyson and Assistant P. Krusto.

The group were later joined by 10 Cubs and one Scout from Ste. Therese with their leader, Cubmaster R. Harkin.

Visitors' Night was held with an Indian campfire ceremony as the theme. Hot-dogs, marshmallows and cocoa were served just prior to the inevitable rain.

The Scouts spent one night away from camp, sleeping under the stars and cooking their own breakfast in the morning. Numerous projects were carried out by the Scouts and Cubs, as construction of a semi-permanent fireplace; weaving and installing a volleyball net; construction of a baseball diamond; and the building of a water sluice and a bridge over the stream.

The holiday was well enjoyed by all attending, and by now, most of them have caught up on lost sleep.

Thanks are extended to all visitors who attended, and to all those who gave their time, money and services to ensure that the camp would be successful.

Boy Scout Commissioners Meet at Tamaracouta

Quebec's Boy Scout movement is in need of leaders, and officials of the organization say they will set out this fall to fill the quota.

Forty-three commissioners from across the province, meeting at Camp Tamaracouta during the week-end, were told that the movement's junior section, the Wolf Cubs are growing rapidly and causing a need for more Boy Scout troops.

J. Barry Cale, assistant provincial commissioner for training, said that Wolf Cub members had increased 20 per cent each season over the last five years, and that the movement's strength today is double that in 1951.

Over the last 10 years, the Scout membership has risen from about 2,800 to 3,800, while the Wolf Cub membership has jumped from 3,700 to almost 7,400.

Mr. Cale pointed out that the type of leader sought by the organization is not always easy to find. He expressed confidence that there are sufficient men of suitable calibre available and said that the movement's leaders will make special efforts this year to recruit them.

W. R. Freeland, of Brownsburg, headed up three sessions on the case method study of typical problems in a Scout commissioner's work. Provincial Commissioner G. Robley Mackay, spoke briefly on Saturday and Dr. Tom Primrose, on Sunday.

Other officials taking part were: J. W. Miner, of Granby; H. R. Conley, of Windsor Mills; R. F. Corkran, W. Bryce, K. D. Bedford, W. H. Ford and F. A. Tees, all of Montreal.

SPARE-TIME CARVER SAYS BUSINESS GOOD

Toronto (CP) — Jonis Vainaukus, 52-year-old wood sculptor who came to Canada from Lithuania four years ago, worked as a laborer here and did his carving on week-ends. He has done wood sculptures, inlaid tables and elaborate wood-carvings.

He scraped together his savings and opened a booth at the Canadian National Exhibition here, where he has received many orders. "The past days have proven to me that no artist has to starve in Canada as long as he is willing to work, and has a chance of acquainting the public with his work," he said.

Fall is considered the best time of the year to make a new lawn because the soil is warm then and most of the lawn weeds are dormant. One can also expect generous dew-fall and several weeks of good growing weather.

At this time, the various grasses root and stool best, producing short, crowded joints at the base of each stem. This habit of stooling is what produces a fine turf.

After the labor of preparing the soil, don't be "penny wise and pound foolish" by trying to economize with cheap seed.

Cheap seeds are inferior in vitality and contain much inert chaff, low grade grasses and troublesome weeds.

Take pains to provide an even distribution of the seed. Sow on a calm day, as it is impossible to make an even seeding on a

It will be found best to divide the quantity of seed required into two parts. Then sow in one direction, using one-half of the seed, after which sow in the opposite direction, using the other half of the seed, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Figure on five pounds of seed per 1,000 square feet, or one-half pound per 100 square feet.

After sowing the seed rake it into the soil lightly, not deeper than one-eighth of an inch. Then roll the area lightly.

If you are not fortunate enough to have rain following the seeding, water the area lightly using almost a mist-like spray.

Build up the lawn so there is a gentle slope of grass near tree trunks, as shown in the Garden-Graph. This will prevent standing water which may drown out the grass.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. What rule governs the privilege of making unemployment insurance claims by mail, and where may I obtain a copy of these rules? I live eight miles from my local UIC office and there is no means of public transportation near my home. Am I entitled to claim by mail?

A. When the cost of ordinary return transportation from a claimant's residence to his local office (or to an itinerant office where such is operating) exceeds 40 cents but does not exceed $2.00, the initial claim must be made in person. A renewal claim may also have to be in person depending on local conditions. Any claimant for whom the cost of return transportation to the local office exceeds 40 cents may make his continuing (that is — weekly or bi-weekly) reports by mail. These rules are not published as they may be amended from time to time. If the situation is as you state — namely, no public transportation from your home to your nearest local office, then you may claim by mail.

Q. For more than five years I paid into the unemployment insurance fund. In October, 1955, after the Act had been modified, I filed a claim for benefit. I have four children and was earning $370.00 per month. As I am receiving only $24.00 per week of benefit, I am wondering if there are two different UIC Acts.

A. Although you paid contributions for more than five years, it appears that you filed a benefit claim only a few weeks after the new Act was in effect. Consequently you had very little time to contribute according to the new rates and thus be entitled to a higher rate of benefit than the one you are receiving now. Although the new Act was effective October 2, 1955, the new benefit rates would be fully applied only upon filing your claim after that date and if you had already at least eight weekly contributions according to the new rate. Since you could not have paid eight weekly contributions between October 2 and October 22, your claim was not based on the new rates.

335 Exhibits At School Fair Held at Arundel

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — The Annual School Fair, sponsored by the Arundel Women's Institute, was held last Friday, with fine weather but slightly on the cool side, and the attendance was satisfactory. Owing to the poor growing weather of the past season, the exhibits were not so numerous as in past years, but nevertheless were very satisfactory.

While the judging of exhibits was in progress, sports were held on the school grounds, under supervision of Messrs. J. McCauley and Mr. Davidson.

Judges for the various entries were as follows—Sewing and Cooking, Mrs. G. McGibbon and Mrs. Wilson, of Lachute; Vegetables, Mr. Marshall and Mr. Pentock; Flowers, Mr. P. Vanaubol, of Huberdeau.

Prior to distribution of prizes, the president of the Women's Institute, Mrs. Sosnkowski, thanked the judges, Mrs. Johnston, convener of Agriculture, under whose charge the Fair was held, and the various committees for their efforts towards the success of the Fair.

Mr. T. Hall-Cox, chairman of the School Board, then distributed the various special prizes, awarded to the following: The Pet exhibit, in charge of Mrs. Gordon Cooke, included rabbits, hens, cats and puppies. Those winning prizes were:

Puppies — 1st Bonnie Lee Swail, 2nd Alfred Staniforth.

Rabbits — 1st Wayne Rathwell.

David Staniforth 1st prize bantam hen and chicks, and Myrna Staniforth 1st prize on kittens.

Owing to the fact that five qualified for first in the Best Garden event, the special prize by Mr. Hall-Cox was divided equally among Freda Davis, Elizabeth Sinclair, Lorraine Swail, Donna Lynne Graham and Bobbie Boyd.

A special prize donated by the Graham's Store for the highest number of points, won by Myrna Staniforth.

Special prize donated by Cooke Bros. for highest aggregate of points, won by Douglas Staniforth.

Special prize donated by Mr. and Mrs. P. Staniforth for the pupil contributing the most exhibits, won by Myrna Staniforth.

There were 45 exhibitors, with 335 exhibits. Taking everything into consideration, all contestants are to be congratulated on their efforts, and it is hoped this year will be a spur to further efforts for next year's fair.

A song is more lasting than the riches of the world.

All loads insured Satisfaction guaranteed

End of a perfect day!

Ready for the first load! The gates open and this GMC just sits there — sturdy and solid! 14½ tons of limestone is a heavy load . . . but this W-9900 was built to take it!

The load delivered! George's GMC W-9900 is a stand-out performer, helping to push this dock out into the lake. In every way, GMC trucks outdo 'em all!

Meet George Rusanov, one of many independent truck operators helping to build new docks for Canada's St. Lawrence Seaway. The slip he holds in his hand represents more than just another load delivered. It tells how his GMC W-9900 carries this 14½-ton load for 25 miles over the roughest, toughest of roads—and does it six, seven, eight times a day. But it doesn't tell how that load, pounded down into his truck from the hopper above, gave it a real workout. George doesn't worry about that. He has confidence in his truck, it's a GMC . . . built to take the toughest kind of punishment and deliver the goods—when and where you want them. You can have this easy kind of confidence too, with a custom-created GMC—built for the job you have to do.

Blood Donor Clinic in Lachute Sept. 24-25; Held at Brownsburg Today

900 Bottle Total Set as Objective for Local Communities

The Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic gets underway in Argenteuil County this afternoon at the C-I-L plant Brownsburg where activities commence at 1 p.m. lasting until 5 p.m., and later at the Legion Hall where the clinic will be open from 7.45 until 10 p.m. The Lachute section of the clinic will be held in the Lachute Auditorium next Monday and Tuesday, September 24 and 25. An objective of 300 bottles of blood per day has been set by the local committees.

The Brownsburg clinic was organized by Mr. H. E. Barber, Industrial Supervisor, Engineering Department of the Canadian Industries Limited, and by Mrs. N. E. Smillie, president of the Brownsburg Branch of the Canadian Red Cross.

Each week 1,800 pints of blood are needed for distribution to the 102 hospitals affiliated to the Red Cross free blood transfusion service in the Province of Quebec. "This represents a saving of $45,000 per week," said H. E. Barber. "In hospitals not yet affiliated to the Red Cross free blood service, a fee of $25 is asked for each pint of blood given to the patient."

Mr. Barber stressed the fact that no substitute has been found for this vital fluid. Only a human being can give blood for another human being. "It's a question of life and death," he said. Mr. Barber also pointed out that you don't give your blood to the Red Cross. You lend it. "You never know when you will need a blood transfusion," he said "When you do, it is good to know that you have already replaced it."

The Lachute campaign for blood donors for the Red Cross Clinic to be held in Lachute Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday, September 24 and 25 is now under full swing. The English-speaking section of the Catholic Women's League has assumed the responsibility of canvassing throughout most of the town. A number of small meetings of canvassers under the joint chairmanship of Linton Armstrong and Leonard Bedard have been held in Lachute, Lachute Mills and Ayersville.

It is reported from Red Cross headquarters in Montreal that the need for blood is greater than ever. At one period not very long ago their bank was completely depleted. In view of this situation, it is the earnest hope of all officials of this Society that the people of Lachute and the surrounding districts will rally in large numbers for the coming clinic. Volunteers are urged to get in touch with either of the joint chairmen as soon as possible. The hours of the clinic are from 2 to 5.30 each afternoon and from 7 to 9.30 each evening. Local citizens are especially requested to try to arrange to come early in the afternoon or in the evening as an attempt is being made to reserve the late afternoons of each day to accommodate the large numbers of volunteers who usually attend these clinics from the various manufacturing plants.

Last year 421 blood donors attended the Lachute clinic. This year the objective is 600.

Each bottle of blood is labelled and a sample of the blood is kept in a small container with corresponding identification. A technician analyzes that sample in the laboratories of the free Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service, in Montreal. After the blood has been analyzed, classified and sometimes sterilized, it is shipped without further delay to one of the 102 hospitals in Western Quebec affiliated to the Red Cross free Blood Transfusion Service.

TRANSPORT MAKES TURN NARROWLY MISSES GARAGE

A Motorways Transport, driven by Jean Aitken, of Montreal, last evening swerved out of control while turning off Brownsburg Road onto Chatham Street and knocked down a pole located between the gas pumps at Desrosiers Automobiles. Little damage resulted.

Lions In Earnest For Decision On 'Major Project'

Lachute Lions Club session, Tuesday evening in the Legion Hall, struck a note of determination, to decide a question which has been long in suspense — to crystalize the Service of this service club in one major project for civic betterment. The magnitude of this undertaking, with long-term financing, and the many practical and utility aspects to be considered, demands earnest thought and study.

President Jos. Dumais sparked the discussions, with a conviction that the club must reach an early decision and that the problem must be effectively dealt with in his term of office. Lion Dumais came forward with the general outline for the erection of a skating arena, while another alternative was suggested in the establishment of a public library. There will be other worthwhile ideas forthcoming, and there is every indication the next few meetings will produce concrete results. . . There was general appreciation among the members that their new president is pushing the problem to a conclusion.

There was no speaker on this occasion, the meeting being devoted to business of the club. Approval was given to the granting of three "honor loans" to university and seminary students from this community — one in medicine and two in classics — to help in the continuance of their studies. . . On this point, the Education Committee was asked to discuss and clarify the club's policy, and to place it on record — with the idea that assistance should be limited to students only at the university level, or its equivalent.

A pianist and a brief song session gave the lighter touch to the proceedings.

Meeting of Argenteuil Farm Forum Council

The Argenteuil Farm Forum Council held a meeting in the office of the County Agronome last Thursday evening. The meeting was conducted by the president, Ross Oswald, with Margaret Brass as secretary-treasurer. Others present were Ernest McOuat, Mr. and Mrs. John Black, Stuart Armstrong and Erskine Rodger.

A report on the meeting of the Board of Directors of Quebec Farm Radio Forum, which was held at Cookshire, Que., was read by Ross Oswald, who represented this district at the meeting.

A Quebec Folk School is being held at Stanstead from September 23 to 28. The Council is willing to pay expenses of anyone interested in going, and they should contact the president or secretary as soon as possible.

The possibility of starting new Forums was discussed, and the representatives from each group agreed they would try and organize a new one.

Farm Forum members are asked to support the Blood Donor Clinic to be held in Lachute September 24 and 25.

Brownsburg Studies Incorporation As Town; Plans to Re-name Streets

Deal Closed on Sewer Project as Council Rejects Tenders

(Our District Correspondent)

Vincent Charbonneau, Brownsburg Municipality secretary-treasurer reported he had received a reply from the Minister of Municipal Affairs as to the advantages and disadvantages of becoming incorporated as a town at the regular meeting of the Brownsburg Council. The report received was in French and Mayor Dorius Lepine instructed the secretary to send for an English copy, so that by publishing these, the tax-payer would know all details of such a move.

Mayor Lepine said he intended to call a special meeting to re-name all streets on a numbers and zones system and to arrange for numbering all houses. Only Main Street and Maple Avenue would retain their names. Oak Street would become 1st Avenue N.W. At this meeting the council will have a preliminary discussion on incorporating as a town.

Correspondence included two tenders relative to the digging of the new sewer project through MacVicar's field. Kelly Construction Company, of Hawkesbury asked for $1,268, plus $12 per cubic yard extra for the use of any tools other than the mechanical shovel. There were eight "extra" clauses in the contract and the feeling was that the final price would double the bid. This feeling probably arises from the bitter experience the council once had where a similar type of contract almost tripled the estimate.

The other bid was for $2,260 from T. P. Hall, of Brownsburg, with only one extra, this being for ledge rock at $7 per cubic yard. The councillors decided to reject both bids. There had been a change in the plans since Mr. Hall had seen them and subsequent to the meeting. Mr. Hall and several of the councillors came to an agreement acceptable to both parties.

Mr. Gaston Legault, the Council's engineer, sent a letter to the council justifying his fee for the sewage project and quoting from the Professional Engineers' Code how his charge should be based on his estimate. He maintained that his estimate was an honest one and that eventually the council would realize just how close his estimate was. The council approved a motion to pay him all but the percentage from the price of the existing line and right of way from the MacVicar estate. Some doubt still exists as to Mr. Legault's right to charge for this.

Notable in the Police Chief's report was one speeding ticket, three traffic light tickets and three arrests.

Fire Crew Responded To False Alarm, Sunday

What appeared to be a serious fire (according to information received over the telephone) turned out to be a false alarm, when the summons was answered by a general turnout of volunteer firemen around nine p.m. Sunday.

Assistant Fire Chief Harold Deacon took the call, originating from a public pay phone, where the informant stated that the kitchen of the Au Gai Temps Restaurant, Main Street, was "a mass of flames."

Investigation by firemen revealed no sign of fire, and the men were confronted by a surprised cook and assistant when they burst into the kitchen.

The false alarm call was turned in from Main Street, Centre Ward, by an unidentified person.

Registration of Pupils In English Conversation

Driver Escapes Injury as Car Overturns

R. D. Pursey, of Dunany and Montreal, escaped serious injury when the car he was driving apparently swerved out of control on Route 41, near Clark's Farm, Upper Lachute, and turning over crashed into a power pole which a short time later had to be replaced. Pursey was alone in the 1954 DeSoto which was damaged beyond repair. Traffic Officer Albert Legault investigated the Sunday afternoon mishap.

Fluoridation Topic by Speaker At Rotary Club

Speaking to the Rotary Club in Brownsburg last Thursday, Dr. C. A. E. McCabe, of the Dental Hygiene League of the Province of Quebec, stressed the effectiveness and safety of fluoridation. "One can expect a reduction of the incidence of dental caries which can reach up to 69% without any ill effects," said Dr. McCabe.

Study and research have been made on all aspects of fluoridation. While the majority of research workers have been interested in discovering any possible deleterious effects of fluorine, the evidence collected for over 30 years indicates that fluorine is beneficial to the teeth, Doctor McCabe declared.

"Even if we eat the proper variety and quantity of food during the period of tooth development," Dr. McCabe said, "if it does not contain the right amount of essential nutritional elements, including fluorine, it will produce a weak enamel-covering of the tooth, the most important of the cassative factors of tooth decay, and fluoridation as an improvement of nutrition thus becomes an essential Dental Public Health measure in many regions."

The problem of tooth decay has reached the stage where it is physically impossible for the profession to fill all decayed teeth. In reducing the incidence of dental caries by about two-thirds, fluoridation would allow dentists to devote more time to other important problems, such as cancer of the mouth, which numbers 8% of all diagnosed cancers.

Fluoridation is economical, said the speaker; the quantity of fluoride added to the water supply is so small that it costs from 6 to 12 cents a year per person, about $7 for a whole lifetime, less than the cost of two fillings. Forty eight million dollars was spent in Canada in 1950 because of dental caries. In reducing the incidence of dental caries by about two-thirds, fluoridation could reduce this annual expenditure. . . . "What are we waiting for?" asked Doctor McCabe.

If the city halls were flooded with demands, taxpayers and their children would soon benefit from the economic and health advantages of fluoridation, said Dr. McCabe. "It is up to public opinion to insist on fluoridation. Ask your dentist about it, ask your administrators for it," he concluded.

Prominent Speaker To Address Richelieu Club On 4th. Anniversary

The Lachute Richelieu Club will have a special evening on October 11 to celebrate its 4th anniversary. The regular supper will be served in the Legion Hall to be followed by a dance, music being supplied by an orchestra.

A special speaker in the person of the Hon. Louis-René Beaudoin, Federal Member for Vaudreuil-Soulanges and Speaker in the House of Commons, will be a guest, and with his brilliant personality and experience will bring a worthwhile message.

Besides the 42 members of the club it is expected that there will be 150 guests for this special evening.

Youngster Lost Overnight in Woods, Safe and Sound — Makes Radio News

John Shippam, 11-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Shippam, summer residents in the Lakefield area, lost in the woods Saturday night, was found early Sunday morning about a mile from his home following an intense search of the area. Found with his two Spaniel dogs, the lad had followed instructions he had received against such emergencies, and had resigned himself to await assistance.

Reports indicate that he wandered away from home around 7 p.m. Saturday, while playing with the dogs, and a short time later the search was started — some 30 of the local residents combing the dense bush while others searched the more open areas. It was estimated that more than 100 persons took part in the search.

Det. Ralph Allen was notified of the incident around one o'clock Sunday morning, a short time before the youth was found in an extremely dense part of the bush. The incident, and its happy outcome, were broadcast by Montreal radio newscasters repeatedly on Sunday morning.

Lachute Child Injured While Driving Bicycle

Gaetan Desjardins, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. René Desjardins, Bedard Blvd., was treated for minor injuries at the Providence Hospital Sunday evening.

Young Desjardins was driving his bicycle along Route 41, near the Protestant cemetery when he swerved into the rear fender of a car driven by Mrs. J. K. Stuart, of Ottawa.

Dr. Marc Papineau treated the child on the spot and at the hospital where he was taken for X-rays. Lieut. Oscar Sabourin investigated the mishap.

Meeting to Homologate Valuation Roll

An adjourned meeting of Lachute Town Council, called for last Wednesday evening, was again set back to Thursday, September 20, at 8 p.m. (tonight) due to the lack of a quorum.

Those in attendance at the session (which according to law was delayed one hour awaiting a sufficient number of aldermen) were Mayor Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald and Aldermen Ross R. Muir, H. Stanley Church, J. H. Mallette and Romain Desjardins.

The meeting this evening will proceed with the holomogation of the evaluation roll and other matters.

More Parking Space — Enterprise of Main St. Proprietor

Donat Saulnier, B.Ph., whose new Beaton Pharmacy building has added prestige to Lachute's shopping centre, has gone a step farther to improve conditions in his immediate vicinity — having cleared and surfaced a large parking area at the rear of his premises.

With entry from Berry Street and the station yard, this lot will provide free parking for business and professional men, salesmen and others, whose cars normally occupy valuable space on Main Street and thereby restrict the accommodation for shoppers. Mr. Saulnier has stressed this detriment to retail business for some time past, and in providing a means to remedy it, he hopes his parking lot will be used effectively by all and sundry. Certainly this provision — together with the Bank of Montreal parking area, equally convenient for both storekeepers and customers — should alleviate the parking congestion in this section. Other store proprietors with space to spare, might take the cue and follow these two recent examples.

A Watchman representative, discussing this improvement, also took occasion to inspect the new Beaton Pharmacy block, from basement to upper storey. The modern features embodied in its construction, and in decorating and equipping it as a public store and office building, are a step ahead of anything hitherto attempted here — the store itself also fulfilling the proprietor's claim as being unexcelled in any centre of the size of Lachute, and in few instances even in the metropolis of Montreal.

In addition to all this, Mr. Saulnier's further outlay on a parking lot deserves appreciation as a practical example of public service.

More Census Figures On Local Populations

Notary Richard Valois, recording officer for the 1956 Dominion Census in Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, has forwarded the third list of census statistics following compilation of figures from the June count. The figures in brackets indicate the 1951 census figures.

Lachute, 6,866 (6,179); this compares to the recently-compiled town census of 6,764; Ayersville 2,347 (no figures available for 1951 since the village was not then incorporated); Ste. Scholastique 858 (836); Hawkesbury 7,874 (7,194).

Argenteuil County W.I. Groups Busy at Various Fall Activities

Varied activities and good attendance is reported by the various branches of the Argenteuil County Women's Institutes for the month of September, according to a report received from Mrs. J. W. Maxwell, publicity convener.

Arundel Branch had eighteen members present at their meeting at which Dr. R. B. Henry gave a very interesting talk on "Collecting Stamps".

At the recent School Fair, 45 pupils exhibited 335 articles as compared to last year when 85 pupils took part.

Brownsburg Branch had twenty-three members and four visitors in attendance. This meeting was under the supervision of Mrs. Bertha Enlow, agriculture convener. An auction of flowers, fruits and vegetables netted $6.10 for the general fund.

A trip was planned to the Seaway Project at Cornwall and Iroquois September 22. Mrs. N. E. Smillie distributed $9 in prize money to three members who won prizes at the Central Canada Exhibition.

Donations to the Q.W.I. Service Fund and County Education Fund were $46 and $11.50 respectively.

Frontier Branch heard an address on the Education of Retarded Children by Mrs. Dobbie, of Lachute.

Ten dollars was donated to UNESCO, and linens for the Cancer Clinic were collected.

Fatal Mishap Near Morin Hts.

David Allan, 21, of Montreal, was killed early Tuesday morning near the RCAF Station at Lac St. Denis, when his car failed to make the turn at the foot of a steep hill. A passenger in the sports car, Miss Allison MacDonnell, 20, of Williamstown, Ont., suffered a broken leg as well as shock and minor injuries. Miss MacDonnell was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal, where she is engaged as a student nurse.

According to witnesses, Allan was headed down the hill at a fairly high speed and failed to make the corner at the bottom. Investigation by Det. Ralph Allen and Traffic Officer Gerard Loyer indicated that the couple had left a group of friends in Morin Heights, and on their return trip to Montreal, apparently took the wrong road.

The local police authorities were notified around 2.45 p.m. Tuesday, approximately an hour after the accident occurred. No inquest into the death will be held.

Thieves Break In, Find Safe Open But Little Cash

Thieves gained entry to the J. P. MacKimmie Bottling Works building for the second time in as many years early Saturday morning but this time, however, failed to make any large haul making good their escape with an estimated $40.

The theft was discovered around 7.40 Saturday morning at which time the Lachute Police Department was notified. The miscreants apparently gained entry to the building by means of a second storey window from which they went through the paint shop into the office. They discovered the safe to be unlocked and containing nothing but papers which they scattered throughout the office. However, they managed to locate around $40 in the office and with this, departed. Lieut. Oscar Sabourin investigated the incident.

Two money boxes connected with pay phones were looted the same evening according to Chief Trepanier who reports that the boxes were later found minus the cash. The two boxes tampered with were located near the Hotel Hebert and Morrow's Snack Bar, Barron's Bridge.

Federated Charities Plan Campaign — Objective $18,370

The Lachute Federation of Charities whose first year's activities have proved most beneficial to all, are undertaking their second campaign covering the seven projects in which they are interested.

The objective, due to increasing requirements of the various departments, will be larger than the $16,300 set for last year, by $2,100, but the organizers are confident that from their previous success the general public will again give generously to make up the difference.

With the exception of Social Service, all the projects will receive a small increase. Each budget is given as follows:

Social Service, $5,000; Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $2,100; Ste. Elizabeth Clothing Workshop, $2,000; Marguerite Bourgeois Clothing Workshop, $1,800; St. Julien Recreation, $1,500; Immaculée Conception Recreation, $1,800; Ste. Anastasie Recreation, $2,000; secretary's salary, $500; Administration, $1,670; a total of $18,370.

Needless to say the cost of administration will be less than that of last year as less printing and less publicity will be required.

The campaign will take place from October 14 to 24 when you will be called upon to make your contribution to the Federation of Charities.

Good Will Gesture

Seasonal
Farm Topics

Healthy Pasture Needs Management

New forages are perfect rations for cattle and range grasses are no exception, states J. B. Campbell of the Canada Department of Agriculture Experimental Farm, Swift Current, Sask. They have low protein and phosphorus content during autumn, their growth is slow in the spring, their yields are not high, and overgrazing reduces their cover. Many of these weak links can be strengthened by providing feed reserves for all seasons of the year, and by supplying protein and mineral supplements to livestock according to recommendations.

A healthy pasture can be maintained by practising principles of good range management. A rotation involving crested wheat grass for spring, and short or mixed grass prairie range for summer and autumn is a step towards proper management. Fall pasture provided by creeping red fescue or Russian wild rye grass lengthens the grazing season. In addition, both grasses provide more nutrients during the autumn than range species. Brome-grass, intermediate wheat grass and alfalfa are recommended grasses for summer pasture throughout most of western Canada.

Other development practices employed include land clearance by brush-cutters, mowers, or fire, a practice which will increase yield up to four times that obtained prior to clearing.

The principles underlying proper range utilization are as old as civilization itself. However, their application involves management techniques which may be modified or drastically changed as new knowledge and skills are added to our resources. If recommended practices are observed, Canada's range land need never be added to those desolate wastes known as the "forgotten lands."

Plow-down Gives Higher Yields

Higher yields and therefore greater profits are being reaped by farmers in the cash crop areas of Ontario through the introduction of a new fertilizing practice — fall plow-down.

According to the farm advisory service of Canadian Industries Limited, fall plow-down has several advantages over spring fertilization. It is done at a time when the amount of farm work is at low ebb. If fertilization is left to the busy spring season, there may not be time for that extra application. Many high-producing crops need extra nutrients in addition to fertilizer banded near the seed. Plow down has been found the best way of meeting this need.

In fall plow-down, fertilizer is plowed or disced deeper into the moisture zone which encourages plants to grow deeper and makes them more resistant to dry weather. The fertilizer also helps hasten decomposition into humus of plowed-under stubble and other trashy material. This enriches the soil and increases the soil's capacity to hold water. By eliminating an extra trip over moist spring soils by heavy machinery, fall plow-down reduces soil compaction.

For fall plow-down of wheat stubble 500 pounds per acre of the fertilizer mixture 10-10-10 is recommended. For corn stalks the same mixture at a rate of 300 to 600 pounds per acre is suggested. If clover or grass sod is to be plowed under this fall, 250 to 500 pounds per acre of 0-20-20 or 0-20-10. If a test reveals a soil to be deficient in phosphorous, 20 per cent superphosphate should be added. A new mixture, 6-12-12, is suitable for conditions requiring moderate amounts of nitrogen and can be successfully used for such cash crops as corn, beets and beans.

ESKIMOS PROFIT BY BIG BIDDERS

Belcher Islands, N.W.T. (CP) — A group of Eskimos who carve in stone and ivory have been given a taste of big city business dealings, and they were quick to profit.

Some businessmen and engineers from Toronto, New York and Pittsburg were here checking reports of iron ore deposits when for one wild-bidding afternoon their interest was taken by Eskimo carvings, becoming more and more popular with collectors.

They set up a bidding table in a cook shack. Eskimos brought out small pieces of work. Bidding started at around $3, but started jumping as big business ideas entered into it.

Soon the startled Eskimos, realizing a bonanza was at hand, were running to their camps to produce their masterpieces. Bidding jumped $5 and $10 a time as the businessmen became more enthusiastic.

The top bid was $50, by a Toronto and London broker, for a group of five geese carved from ivory.

Then the boom broke; businessmen returned to their labors and Eskimos to their camps — undoubtedly to do more carving for the next white businessmen to arrive.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA
by the Canadian Press

By Roy LaBerge, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 17 (CP) — Canada is taking a cautious attitude towards developments in the Suez canal dispute. Trade Minister Howe said last week the situation was under study but the cabinet had made no decision.

Mr. Howe, acting prime minister while Mr. St. Laurent was holidaying at his St. Patrice, Que., summer home, made the statement as he emerged from a September 13 cabinet meeting. He faced a barrage of reporters' questions about this country's stand on the United States - British - French proposal to set up a canal users' authority.

"The situation is under study but no decision has been made," he said. "It is under constant review and we have asked the United Kingdom for further information."

Sought Details

He said the government had "little information" on the plan for settlement of the dispute with Egypt's President Nasser and hence had asked for more details on the canal users' association formula which Prime Minister Eden had put before the British Commons.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, who was in Paris on NATO business also missed the meeting. However, Health Minister Martin, acting external affairs minister in Mr. Pearson's absence, said the government had been in contact with Mr. Pearson on the Suez crisis.

In a press conference last month Mr. Pearson indicated that Canada would favor taking the dispute to the United Nations.

Mr. Howe said there had been no approach by Britain to get oil from Canada should the Suez canal become closed to her ships. He said that he thought Venezuela would be Britain's best alternate source should there be a shutoff of oil from the Middle East.

VISIT BY MARGARET?

Princess Margaret, 26-year-old sister of the Queen, has been invited to participate in British Columbia's 1958 centennial, and a highly-placed informant says she has indicated informally that she wants to come.

It would be her first official visit to Canada, and would be limited to British Columbia which in 1958 will mark 100 years of progress since it was created a crown colony in 1858.

However, the trip is not yet official and no announcement may be made for some time. The Princess starts a tour of East Africa September 21.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman commented on the Canadian visit report.

"As far as we know ,there are no major entries in Princess Margaret's engagement book for 1958 at the present time."

However, the informant in Ottawa appeared pretty confident the Princess will make the trip, providing there are no last-minute hitches. Her only time on Canadian soil was early last year when her plane landed at Montreal for fuel while carrying her to the West Indies.

DELAY ON PIPELINE

A pipe scarcity growing out of the United States steel strike has hit Prairie construction of the Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline and the 575-mile link from Alberta to Winnipeg may not reach Winnipeg before next summer.

Federal authorities said only about one-fifth of the line had been laid and construction may not get east of Regina before work is halted by frosts.

The delay has political implications. The federal government had to wage one of the most bitter parliamentary battles in history to obtain authority to grant Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., a loan of up to $80,000,000 to finance Prairie construction. Under the loan terms the company was to complete the Prairie line by December 31, and repay the loan with interest by next April. Otherwise the government could take over the company's assets.

Saving Clause

However, a clause in the agreement protected the company in event of any emergency such as a strike which might hold up supplies. Trans-Canada therefore could be assured of a renegotiated contract with new deadlines. Its line-up of gas customers is reported to have increased sharply, and has made the company confident it can obtain all required funds — with one exception — from the stock market.

The exception is the 675-mile link from the Manitoba border to Kapuskasing, Ont., which the Ontario and federal governments have jointly agreed to build at a cost of some $118,000,000 and rent to Trans-Canada. The company would have the option of buying the line later.

HOSPITAL INSURANCE

A high-ranking federal authority said last week that government planning now calls for an election next year with national hospital insurance legislation on the statute books to hold before the electorate.

The government then could say it has the legislation and funds for the scheme and that only the refusal of some provinces to join was hampering the legislation.

Placing of the federal insurance offer on the statute books, as it now stands, would indicate to the provinces there is no room for further negotiations and that they could take it or leave it.

The government offer, made last January, would pay half the costs providing a majority of provinces representing a majority of Canadians accepted the scheme which would start with hospital care and diagnostic services. This means Ontario or Quebec — or both — would have to accept before the plan could go into effect.

OUT ON A LIMB
By Stumpy McCulloch

Young Ezra was goin' around with a city gal who was visiting her grandparents in the country. One evening, as Ezra and the gal was strollin' across a pasture, they saw a cow and calf rubbing noses.

"Gosh," Ezra said, "thet sight makes me want to do the same."

"Well, go ahead," the gal said. "It's your cow!"

Jest in case you didn't know it, there are more than 150 different kinds of trees growing in Canada. Of these, some 30 are conifers or "softwoods." About two-thirds of the softwoods are what the experts call commercially important.

This proves they knew what they were doin' when the selected the Maple-leaf to identify our big country.

Sam Jackson dropped by the other day. Sam says he's plannin' to harvest some of his trees for the paper mill, and wondered how to go about it. I told him tree farmers who sell to the pulpwood market usually cut their logs into lengths of about five feet. Most mills won't take wood that's less than four inches in diameter at the small end. The largest diameter wood they'll take depends on the individual mill. Before you do any harvesting, it's best to check with the mill people.

By the way, did you know a tree that's six inches in diameter at breast height, doubles its volume if left to grow to eight inches?

Paper mills buy lots of wood that might otherwise be wasted. They don't object to knotty wood if the knots are trimmed close to the logs. They'll generally take trees that have been unhealthy or deformed. But not dead wood—because there's so little strength in it. They don't like burnt wood either—'cause a piece of charcoal may ruin the quality of a whole run of paper.

There was a time when most mills would take only peeled wood. Not any longer! Today many prefer it unpeeled, in fact. This, of course, means cutting and hauling can now be done the year around, instead of being limited to the busy growing season.

By the way, I hear helicopters are mighty useful to lumbermen over in Sweden. In the Lapland, they're usin' 'copters to break up log jams—which are mighty costly and time-consuming! A 'copter hovers over a log jam and lowers a feller who plants an explosive charge. As soon as the fuse is set, the 'copter whisks away—and forty seconds later the dynamite goes off, and the jam is broken.

Ol' Hannibal says dogwood is one kind of tree you can always tell by its bark!

So long. See you soon!

Runaway Plane Crashed Into Fence

Hawkesbury — A runaway plane caused a commotion recently at the Hawkesbury Flying Club, but no one was injured and the aircraft itself suffered only slight damage.

Pilot Laurent Bolduc, of L'Orignal, preparing to go for a flight, had turned over the propeller to start the motor and was about to climb into the cockpit when the plane began rolling along the ground.

The machine gathered speed quickly and crashed into a fence along the highway before anyone could catch it.

Pilot Boldus was uninjured and only the propeller and the engine cowling of the light monoplane were damaged.

Impressive Tribute

Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop, Canada's greatest air ace, who won the Victoria Cross when airpower was in its infancy, was given an impressive military funeral at Toronto by the air force which he helped to mould into a jet-age power.

The Owen Sound, Ont. man who shot down 72 enemy planes from the cockpit of his frail fighter in the First World War died September 11 at West Palm Beach, Fla., at age 62.

High officers of the army, navy and airforce, Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe and veterans' organization leaders were present as 12 CF-100 jet fighters flew over in salute to the great airman, who was director of recruiting during the Second World War.

CORN BORER INFESTATION

Corn borer egg mass counts made by entomologists at the Canada Department of Agriculture Experimental Farm, Harrow, Ont., indicate the borer infestation this year will likely be the greatest since 1951. Counts on field corn at Harrow show 78 egg masses per 100 plants. The count on sweet corn is over 100 egg masses per 100 plants.

THE UNITED STATES, as usual, was Canada's leading trading partner in the first half of 1956; she continued to buy over 60 per cent of our exports and supply 75 per cent of our imports. The value of exports to the United States increased at the same rate as did total exports and set a new first half-year record. According to a report published in "Foreign Trade", publication of the Department of Trade and Commerce, the value of total exports to all countries, up to the end of June, was 12 per cent higher than figures for the corresponding period last year and sets a new record of 9 per cent above the previous one of 1952.

Largest boost took place in petroleum exports, which almost quadrupled in value, but forest products still remained the largest major group, accounting for almost one-half of total exports to the U.S. Although sales of planks, boards and shingles fell off moderately in the first half of 1956, these were more than made up for by advances in newsprint, wood pulp, plywood and veneers.

Very sharp gains in copper exports, substantially higher shipments of iron ore, and marked advances in sales of ferro-alloys, scrap iron and steel, and machinery to the U.S. market are reported.

Imports from the U.S. were also up this year by about 30 per cent in the first six months, a new import record.

Permits Required for Non-Sporting Firearms

THE LAWS of Canada require that all persons, with the exception of wholesale and retail dealers, must register all revolvers, pistols and fully automatic firearms in their possession. This does not include, however, the ordinary kind of hunting rifles, shotguns or airguns. . . Detective Ralph Allen of the Provincial Police has asked that this regulation be drawn to the attention of Watchman readers.

In accordance with the amendments to the Criminal Code of Canada, a new type of Firearms Registration Certificate has been in effect since January 1, 1952. For the purpose of re-registration on this new-type certificate, the registered owners are now required to forward, to the following address, all copies of Certificates in their possession bearing date of issue prior to 1952, covering firearms still in their possession:

The Commissioner,
Royal Canadian Mounted Police,
c/o Identification Branch,
Ottawa, Ont.

In forwarding the old certificates for renewal, it is very important that the weapon owner states his present occupation and complete address. In the event that old certificates have become lost or mislaid, it is requested that the owners submit description of the firearms in their possession by letter, quoting make, calibre, serial number, number of shots and barrel length.

It is also required that any person, with the above exception, wishing to purchase a revolver or pistol, or to receive it into his possession by gift, loan or any other means, must first obtain the necessary recommendation to do so, from his local Police Department or any other local civil authority. Such recommendation should then be taken or mailed to the office of the Quebec Provincial Police, 445 St. Gabriel Street, Montreal, to obtain registration before being authorized to take possession of the firearm concerned.

A permit is required to carry a registered firearm outside the domicile or place of business of a person, where it is registered. Such permit may be obtained by applying to the above office of Quebec Provincial Police.

Design for Survival

"PUTTING SAFETY on Wheels" was the title of an editorial this week in a much-read Montreal daily, which enthusiastically mentioned the new safety devices to be available on 1957 cars.

It was stated in Detroit recently that a half-million persons would escape injury next year if all the safety devices now available were installed in each car. A congressional committee investigating Detroit's role in highway safety was told the encouraging results that are being achieved with seat belts, safety steering wheels, safety door locks, padded dashboards and visors, and safety mirrors.

John C. Moore, director of automotive crash injury research at Cornell University, said that the new safety steering wheels "can reduce by one half" the injury to the driver in a car crash. Moore's department indicates that if all five safety features are installed, crash injuries would be cut one-third.

And the industry isn't through yet with its own research into safety features. "Cushion" bumpers are now being developed at Detroit. Mounted on springs or hydraulic absorbers, the bumpers, it is believed, would reduce collision impact by a large amount, perhaps by the amount that is the difference between injury and death. . .

What the editorial overlooked, in acclaiming these improvements, is that they will still in most cases be optional equipment. We feel that the auto industry has been misguided all these years in over-developing the non-essentials, like elaborate chrome grills, white walls and sexy colors, which are now regarded as "standard" while the safety factors are "optional". Granted, the wartime austerity models, stripped of chrome and glamor, had diminutive sales appeal as compared with the flashy cars which, even in the so-called lower prices, challenge our pocket-book today. But let it be agreed that sales appeal HAS been the dominating factor; and while cars have flooded the markets and packed the traffic lanes according, automotive progress in style, performance and efficiency has far outstepped the makers' provisions for safety.

For A Genial Old Age

A FLARE of attention is being accorded, these days, to the welfare of the retired worker. Systematic retirement plans and pension schemes, sparked by the impetus of larger industries, are spotlighting the plight of men and women psychologically unprepared for these mellow years — which should, actually, be one of the happiest spans in the human cycle.

Are we prepared to enjoy our leisure, when the time-clock no longer summons us to work? Or are we doomed to consider ourselves outcast and unwanted — having no occupational aptitudes to employ our time, to enjoy our retirement, and grow old gracefully?

This is a question which concerns a growing segment of civilization, as science increases our longevity and industry curtails our years of service. It is a question which may present a more serious aspect in the social picture, as time goes on.

We can only urge, upon those concerned, the development of creative and absorbing pastimes, a love of good literature to open paths of new adventure . . . we can urge all thinking people to consider the problem in terms of their own personal future; to prepare, insofar as the present allows; and to plan against impulsive moves, which sacrifice familiar scenes — sometimes forfeit independence — and cause much unhappiness in old age.

Awareness of this problem may save many heartaches. There is however a certain apathy — a reluctance to admit and understand the situation. This was illustrated some time ago in the case of an elderly acquaintance, one of those happy creatures whose life is "so full of a number of things." An ardent hobbyist, he sought the privilege of displaying his handicrafts at the local Exhibition, just to show what could be done by a gaffer pensioned from the ranks of active business. But he was courteously informed that there were no classes or competitions for such crafts, and the management were sorry they "could be of no assistance." Our pensioner wanted no help, indeed — just an opportunity to help others! . . . Would there were more old folk as rich in pastimes as our old friend!

Radio Holds Its Own

QUITE A LOT of people three or four years ago were quick to predict that the arrival on the social scene of the new, dazzling phenomenon, television, meant "finis" for radio. What, we wonder, do they make of the latest statistics of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics?

Radio, we learn, far from declining into obscurity, is on the up-and-up. This year's sales are running well ahead of last year's which, incidentally, were higher than those of the previous year. Clearly, whatever else TV is doing it isn't putting radio out of business.

Come to think of it, we suppose there never really was an imminent danger of the domestic radio-set becoming extinct. It may seem to be overshadowed by its more glamorous rival but, quite apart from its intrinsic merits as a medium of entertainment, it has one distinct and decided advantage in the contest for public favor; it doesn't require one's complete and undivided attention as does that other magic box.

The Weather

IN SOME PARTS of Canada people have been complaining about the amount of rain, but listen to this from the London (England) correspondent of The Financial Post:

"You may think that we are making too much of the weather, but when you consider the losses to the seaside resorts, the effect upon the agricultural production, the slump in the sale of summer clothing and the depressing effect of sunless skies day after day, you will understand that both physically and psychologically the British have undergone an ordeal.

"Only the cinemas, theatres and the manufacturers of waterproofs have gained from the ill-temper of the climate. I do not doubt that Sir Anthony Eden, like the young man in Ibsen's play, greets each morning with the cry: 'Give me the sun'!"

Gourmets' Delight

In this day of packaged cake mixes and short-cut menus, I often wonder how our grandmothers ever managed to get along. Today, with frozen foods and tinned goods, the over-burdened housewife can produce a regal feast in nothing flat. Not so, dear old granny or her ancestors. In days of yore, eating was an art and people made much of the business. In fact, I suspect they made almost too much of it. Take, for example, the "genteel dinner" dished up to the Reverend James Woodforde, author of "Diary of a Country Parson", back in 1784.

"APRIL 21 . . . We did not dine till very near 5 o'clock — drank Tea at 8 — and then got to Cards. We had a very genteel Dinner and Desert after. The first Course at Dinner was Fish, a piece of roast Beef, Pork Stakes, Soup, hashed Calfs Head, boiled Fowl and Piggs Face. — 2nd Course was stewed Sweetbreads, a fore Qr. of Lamb roasted, Jellies, Custards, Lemon Cream, Syllabub and Blamange. Desert — Oranges, Pistachio Nutts — blanched Almonds and Raisins, and preserved Cherries . . ."

Not bad for the equivalent of a light snack! Still, Parson Woodforde and his pals were in no hurry to get anywhere. They had no movie to get to and had no television to tear them away from the table. Thus, they were able to take their time and waded through this bill of fare in a cool three hours. But one is left wondering what they might have consumed at a real feast and how long they would have taken over it.

The passage of one hundred years did little to cut down the vast amounts of grub packed into the midriffs of humanity. Just last week, I ran across an original copy of the famous cookbook by Mrs. Beaton. Containing thousands of recipes and innumerable helpful hints — such as how to entertain the Prime Minister — the book makes wonderful reading today.

Mrs. Beaton — or maybe it's Beeton, I'm not sure now — culled her recipes from the four corners of the earth and in her short stay of twenty-nine years upon this earth, left humanity a household legacy of great worth. Why, I'm willing to bet you'd give your eyeteeth to sit down to a dish of roast wallaby right now. But no doubt you are asking yourself where you'll find the recipe. Look no further! Mrs. B. has a delightful recipe for his dish and it only takes a matter of six hours to prepare it. You may have some difficulty in obtaining a wallaby just now but if you really want one, I'm sure your local grocer can have one sent up from Australia without too much trouble.

For those who have been craving something more mature, may I recommend the good lady's suggestions for making Kangaroo-tail soup. I should warn you, however, that this is likely to be a costly dish since, as Mrs. Beaton kindly points out, the remainder of the beast is not fit for eating and it seems somewhat of a pity to do in a whole kangaroo just for one tureen of soup.

Mrs. Beaton's recipes are not for those who shun spiritous liquors, I regret to state. Unfortunately, most of the items in the cookbook call for unlimited quantities of sherry, gin and other brands of hootch. But liquor, she assures us, is the secret of the subtle flavors one finds in the finished products. The booze is a must!

After perusing the original copy for the best part of a day, I consulted my bookseller and besought him to get me another copy of the original post-haste. Sad to say, my sister owns the one I got a squint at and she won't part with it at any price.

"There's a modern version of Mrs. Beaton," the bookseller said cheerfully, "I can get one for you very easily."

But I'm having no part of any modern versions, thank you. It would break my heart to find Mrs. B. suggesting that you merely open up a tin of peas or corn and make do with that. And I very much doubt if she can offer that wonderful roast wallaby recipe in her new volume. Without it, the book just wouldn't be worth having, somehow.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

No Easy World

This is not an easy world for anyone; but those who try to make it easy for themselves find it the hardest world of all. Those who accept it as a tough world and decide to condition themselves to meet the challenge can build a mighty satisfactory life.

First step toward the satisfactory life is acceptance of the fact that you cannot escape work. Even millionaires, you know, must do many physical chores on top of the mental effort that boosted them to their present place. The rich man who fails to keep himself physically fit, pays a heavy penalty when he huffs and puffs around a golf course, or tries to wade a marsh or portage his canoe. The laws of compensation make it impossible for any man to have things easy, because if he takes things too easy in one area of his life, he must sacrifice in another.

At a summer camp this year, I saw a couple of farm boys looking with envy at the camping equipment of visiting youngsters from the city. But later, scrounging wood for an evening fire, I heard a city boy say to his country cousin, "Gee, you're powerful!" What is a high-powered outboard compared to strong arms and clear eyes?

In a tough world — and it will always be a tough world — there is no sense in attempting to make it easy; but there is a great deal of sense in making yourself strong to meet it.

Faith and hope make good shock absorbers, and should be kept in fine repair.

Skill and enterprise make potent fuel to power your motor for the long haul . . . and be careful to strain out cynicism or envy which can clog your carburetor fast.

Love and kindness help you face the traffic without too much strain. Self-respect cushions your trip. A sense of humor helps you around the detours.

In short, the world report on road conditions might read: "Rough, but passable — have a check-up before you undertake the trip."

How would you fare in a careful check-up?

DOG CHOW Checkers or Kibbled

Your dog needs a balanced feed just as much as your cows, pigs or hens — and DOG CHOW (the same feed in two forms) is just that. Feed Dog Chow Checkers dry, as they come to you, or feed Dog Chow Kibbled, either dry or moistened to the consistency of hamburger with either water, soup or gravies.

It will either grow your pup or keep your mature dog in the pink of condition, and do it for you cheaply and with the minimum of work.

One pound of Dog Chow is equal to three pounds of meat, and doesn't have to be kept in an ice box.

It is put up in convenient-sized packages (5, 25 or 50 lbs.) Dog Chow is micro-mixed to ensure that every mouthful your dog takes has some of the minute quantities of certain ingredients that go to make Dog Chow.

For hunting dogs, Dog Chow is in a class by itself, as it is easily transported, will keep anywhere that is dry, and should it be accidentally spilled, can be recovered; and it won't mess up anything that comes in contact with it, either.

Dog Chow is very palatable. Dogs love it, and any feed that is liked, does a better job for your dog.

Won't you get a supply today when you are getting your supply of chows. We deliver.

ALL ABOARD
With G. E. Mortimore

Most cities — especially the small ones — put up "Welcome" signs at the entrance. But some of them obviously don't mean it. Blank, surly faces in the stores make a traveller wish he had stopped somewhere else. Apparently the man who put up the "Welcome" sign has moved out of town, and the rest of the people don't know it is there.

In other towns a stranger feels at home right away. No doubt the feeling is partly in his mind. It depends on the luck of the journey, the state of the weather and the traveller's own stomach. But there is a built-in sense of warmth in such places, too. It is compounded of many things; the comfortable look of old stores and buildings, the helpfulness of townspeople when they are asked for directions, the tendency of hotel clerks to say "Good evening" instead of "Umph."

Maybe it has something to do with economic well-being, or the presence of amiable ghosts. Who knows? But the feeling is there. Some towns have it, and some have not.

In one such town, we asked the postmaster if he could tell us the way to Mr. Robinson's house. "Well, I could," he answered, and grinned. Here was a place where a postmaster had time to tease visitors." Would you tell us, then?" asked a lady in our party. "Past the big white building and the service station, right opposite the town hall. He'll probably be at home now."

Later we went in a tiny store that housed both groceries and drugs, the woman at the counter closed every purchase with, "Thank you kindly."

It was a very small town. A black spaniel awoke from a nap at the edge of the main street and wagged its tail as we passed. And then two children who we had never seen before greeted us with a cheery "Hello".

Everyone has heard the tale of the old mariner who put an oar over his shoulder and kept walking inland until someone asked him, "What's that?" And he settled down to live there for the rest of his days.

I think that if I live long enough to be old, I'll turn my back on the cities where motorists shout curses at one another and people use their elbows in the buses. And I'll walk until I come to a town where storekeepers say "Thank you kindly," dogs sleep beside the main street and unknown children say "Hello" — in short, a town where the welcome sign means what it says.

Industrialists, Attention!

The St. Andrews East Chamber of Commerce wishes to make a survey of Lachute and district to try and ascertain what companies have freight shipments originating on the C.N.R. — as, in order to save costs, they could be delivered to St. Andrews East and the consignee take delivery there. We believe it would be cheaper to truck from St. Andrews East, rather than pay the charge of trans-shipping from the C.N.R. to the C.P.R.

Anyone interested, please write to the Chamber of Commerce, St. Andrews East, giving as much information as possible.

This suggestion is being put forward as a service to all interested parties, and not as an advertisement for any railway.

IN MEMORIAM

ARNOLD — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away Sept. 19, 1954. — Her daughter, Olive.

"You can only have one mother,
Patient, kind and true,
No other friend in all the world
Will be as true as you.
For all your loving kindness
You asked nothing in return)
If all the world deserted me,
To my mother I could turn.
You often said I'd miss you,
These words have proven true —
I lost my best and dearest friend,
Dear Mother, when I lost you. . .
So if you have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you will never know the heartache,
Until you see her vacant chair.

Lakefield Community Saddened by Death

Late Mrs. Austin Kyle

Lakefield — On Friday afternoon, September 14, the Lakefield community was shocked and saddened by the sudden passing of Mrs. Austin Kyle, after an illness of only a few hours. Born in Montreal in 1880, the former Amy Baker was a daughter of the late Fred Baker and his wife Isabel Rodger. She came as a bride to Lakefield in 1915, and had resided there since that time.

Left to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother are her husband; one son, Herbert, at home; one daughter (Amy), Mrs. Murray Lyster, of Lachute; and three grandsons, Rodger, John and Stephen Lyster; also two brothers, Bert and James, and one sister, May, of Lakefield, and a host of sorrowing friends.

The late Mrs. Kyle was a charter and life member, of the Women's Institute, also life member of the Woman's Auxiliary of Holy Trinity Church. Of both these organizations she was a loyal supporter, as well as every other interest in the community.

The funeral was held from her late home to Holy Trinity Church on Sunday afternoon, with the Rev. Canon C. W. P. Baugh officiating, assisted by the Rev. H. G. Baugh, of Morin Heights. Burial was in Lachute Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Leslie Strong, Norman Patterson, John A. Ward, Percy Rogers, Chas. Napp and James Carroll.

A profusion of flowers bore silent tribute to the deceased. People of the community extend to the bereaved family their deepest sympathy.

Parent of Lost Child Expresses Appreciation

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Shippam wish to express their sincere thanks to those friends and neighbors who so kindly and willingly turned out to help in the search for their son, John, who was lost in the woods in the region of Long Lake. We are most thankful that he was found so quickly and that he had received no harm. It is very gratifying to know that people still turn to help others in distress, so eagerly and quickly.

— Fred Shippam, M.D.

CATERPILLAR PEST

Regina (CP) — An inch-long green caterpillar is attacking scattered points in southern Saskatchewan. H. E. McKenzie, provincial plant industry branch director, said spraying with insecticide would kill the "webworm."

WAIT IN COMFORT

Regina (CP) — A new bus depot will be designed for people who just want to sit, as well as travellers. A gaily-decked patio will provide lots of seats with light for reading. Awnings will provide protection against rain.

Lifelong Resident and Church Worker Passes in Cushing

Late Mrs. Roy Dobbie

The many relatives and friends of Mrs. Roy Dobbie were deeply shocked to learn of her sudden death on Monday morning. Although her health had not been too good of late she rarely missed a meeting of any of the societies to which she belonged. Always of a cheerful disposition, a faithful worker in the many organizations of St. Mungo's United Church, Cushing, as well as the Women's Institute and W.C.T.U., she will be greatly missed by her many friends and neighbors.

The former Maude Jane Warwick, she was born July 5, 1887 at Mabel, and was the second daughter of the late W. J. Warwick and his wife Elizabeth Warwick. She was married on December 4, 1934 to Ray Dobbie, of Cushing, where she has since resided.

The funeral was held on Wednesday in St. Mungo's Church, Cushing, and was largely attended.

Pall-bearers were Allan Graham, Ian Bradley, Gerald Tomalty, Ronald Warwick, John Heatlie, Jr., Mason MacAdam.

Those surviving to mourn her loss, besides her loving husband, are three sisters; Mrs. John Heatlie (Lulu), of Ogdensburg; Mrs. Carson Tomalty (Edna), of Brownsburg; Mrs. Leslie Griffith (Alma), of Calgary, Alta., and five brothers, Lawrence, of Hanna, Alta., Gilbert, of Detroit, Mich., Harlow, of Vide Sac, Raymond, of Mabel, and Ross, of Montreal. Two brothers, Jas. R. and John D. and one sister, Mrs. Stanley McKiddie (Hazel) predeceased her.

Explains Move to Combat Cigarette Smuggling Into Quebec Province

By Brian Selwood

Quebec (CP) — A Finance Department official commented on new regulations passed by the provincial cabinet to block the illegal sale in Quebec Province of cigarettes from Ontario and the United States. The official said the regulations are not designed to harass ordinary citizens or tourists who may have a few packages in their automobiles.

"They are aimed at cracking down on tobacco tax evasion manoeuvres by some tobacco dealers and smugglers," he said.

The regulations provide that revenue or police officers may, without warrant, search suspicious automobiles for cigarette packages not bearing the Quebec marking on the excise stamps. A pack of 20 cigarettes sells for 37 cents in Quebec, compared with 33 cents in Ontario.

A delegation from bus and transport companies in Quebec called at the transport department to ask that the motor vehicles act, now administered by the Finance Department, be placed under the jurisdiction of the Transport Department. Deputy Minister Jacques Verrault received the delegation in the absence of the minister, Antoine Rivard.

Quebec Municipal Affairs Minister Yves Prevost suggested civic leaders in the province have an official insignia of office. He spoke at the opening of the Quebec Union of Municipalities' annual congress at Bretton Woods, N.H.

Mr. Prevost said it would be opportune to emphasize, through a distinctive insignia, the importance of the role played by mayors, aldermen and councillors. "On formal occasions," he said, "this insignia would show everyone you are the first citizens of your municipalities."

The minister said he would not like to see certain existing insignia set aside, and mentioned Montreal's mayoral chain of office.

This gold-plated silver chain weighs about 10 pounds and is worth about $1,400. It includes a number of medallions, the main one bearing the city crest.

County W.I. Fall Activities were made to cater to a wedding reception.

Morin Heights Branch had as guest speakers Messrs. J. S. Giles and Robt. A. Giles, of Lachute. The topic was "Live and Let Live" and "The History of The Watchman" from the days of its formation unto present day problems of running a newspaper.

Two gift articles are being sent to the A.C.W.W. and a visit to Weston's Biscuit Factory, Montreal, was planned. The "Bring and Buy" sale of favorite magazines realized $6.65 for the funds.

Mille Isles Branch had as their guest speaker, Mrs. Sutcliffe, convener of the Home and School association of Morin Heights. The topic was "Reading and Agriculture."

After the meeting, which was open to all, dancing was enjoyed.

This, "Anniversary Meeting" is always held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. Beardmore and is a community event.

Pioneer Branch had nine members in attendance at Lapointe's Hotel, St. Jerome, for a lovely dinner and evening's entertainment during August.

Correspondence from the Q.W.I. office was read at the September meeting. Five gift articles are being sent to Ceylon.

A trip through "The Rodger Chicken Farm" where chickens from one day old to the finished, canned products were seen by members was incorporated into this meeting.

Upper Lachute - East End Branch had eighteen members answer the roll-call by giving the name of a famous doctor or surgeon.

This branch catered for the School Fair September 8, and is to cater for two weddings in the near future.

25 YEARS AGO

September 25, 1931 —

Brownsburg — A much needed improvement is being put in by the Chatham Council, this being a water main for fire protection. A hydrant will be placed at the corner of Main Street, connecting with the D. C. Company hydrant.

St. Andrews East — A Montreal car went over the bank into the North River, but fortunately the occupants were only slightly injured.

50 YEARS AGO

September 21, 1906 —

Quite a number of complaints have come to light of persons having had their pockets picked by some light-fingered gentry who travelled from the city to Lachute, thinking what a profitable time they would have at the Exhibition.

75 YEARS AGO

September 23, 1881 —

We are informed that the stock for the St. Andrews branch railway has been taken up and that work will commence in a short time.

A young lad named Bazinet, who had recently been employed in the paper mill here and unaccustomed to machinery, while ascending the hoist became entangled in the machinery and was badly injured.

We regret to learn that a son of Thomas Todd, East Settlement, was badly injured last week by a bull. The young man was feeding the animal when it suddenly raised its head and inflicted severe injuries.

Mount Pleasant — The farmers have about finished harvesting, and the late grain has done pretty well — Mr. Warwick having a piece of oats which measures six feet six inches long.

Grece's Point — With reference to the barge which had got blocked in the channel of the Chute à Blondeau: An attempt was made to blow her up with glycerine, which attempt nearly resulted in a serious manner. . .

It seems that James Grace, an experienced miner and diver, accompanied by some three or four others, approached the upper side of the vessel in a small boat with the necessary explosives and an electric battery.

The moment their boat was placed along the barge, the force of the current upset the small boat in the "twinkling of an eye," precipitating the occupants and all their material into the water, the force of which carried them under the barge and out of sight. Fortunately there was sufficient depth of water to give them free passage through, and they were all fished up some distance below. After considerable delay, a large force of men was employed and cut the barge in two with saws and axes, and on Thursday they succeeded in removing the debris.

Local Girl Wed By Candlelight at United Church

Hammond - Hammond

The marriage of Ruth Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mr. Ben Hammond, and the late Mrs. Hammond, to Mr. Delmer William Henry Hammond, only son of Mrs. William Henry Hammond, and the late Mr. Hammond, of Island Brook, Que., took place on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the Lachute United Church, the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating. Mr. Wayne Riddell played the wedding music, and Mrs. Robt. Blakely was soloist. Pink and white gladioli were used to decorate the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of imported French Chantilly lace over satin and nylon tulle. The fitted bodice was fashioned by a deep V'd scalloped neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the hands, the bouffant skirt with a scalloped hemline extending to a chapel length train. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a matching lace headdress incrusted with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white lilies and carnations.

Her attendants were in ballerina length gowns styled alike in bronze and moss green crystalette. The gowns were fashioned with a portrait neckline with brief sleeves and bouffant skirts with bows and sashes falling from the V'd neckline at the back. They wore matching headdresses and shoes and carried bouquets of bronze pompoms and yellow mums. Miss Jean Hammond, sister of the bride, as maid of honor and little Miss Helen Miller, niece of the bride, as flower girl, were in moss green and Mrs. Erwin Watson, sister of the groom and Miss Myrtle Gaston, as bridesmaids were in bronze.

Mr. Erwin Watson, was best man, and Mr. Allan Hammond and Mr. Fred Burns ushered.

After the reception in the United Church hall, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond left for a motor trip to Eastern Ontario and the United States, the bride travelling in a dark green box tweed suit with a mink collar. She wore a beige feathered hat and brown accessories and a corsage bouquet of white and pink orchids. On their return they will reside in Island Brook, Que.

Summer Residents At Lake Louisa Wed in City

Murray - Round

The marriage of Sheila Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Round of Notre Dame de Grace to Mr. Henry McQuat Murray, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Murray of Notre Dame de Grace and grandson of Mrs. William Murray, Bethany Road and the late Mr. Murray, took place on Saturday, September 8, in Knox Crescent and Kensington Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. C. J. MacKay officiating. Mr. J. Ringwood played the wedding music and Mr. James Scott was soloist. Standards of white gladioli, single mums, greenery and candelabra were used to decorate.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a model gown of white lace over bridal satin fashioned on Princess lines, the fitted bodice having a portrait neckline appliqued in seed pearls, the sleeves ending in points over her hands and the very full skirt ending in a draped flounce of nylon tulle. Her fingertip length veil of tulle illusion was held by a headdress of pearls and iridescent beads. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Allen Round, as matron of honor, wore a frock of blush pink lace styled on Princess lines with a bateau neckline and full skirt. She wore a matching feathered headdress and carried a semi cascade bouquet of ivory Johanna Hill roses.

Mrs. Lawrence Hall and Mrs. Johann Lang as attendants, were in frocks of Dior blue lace, the fitted bodices having scooped necklines, and very full skirts. They wore matching feathered headdresses and carried semi-cascade bouquets of pink carnations.

Mr. William Murray acted as best man for his brother and the ushers were Mr. Allen Round, brother of the bride, and Mr. James Murray, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Round, mother of the bride, was gowned in bronze crystalette with pink accessories and had a spray of pink carnations pinned to her hand bag.

Mrs. Murray, the bridegroom's mother, wore a gown of hunter green taffeta with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the reception in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, where white gladioli and gold tone mums were used to decorate, Mr. and Mrs. Murray left by motor for Washington and the Southern States, the bride travelling in a coat dress of cocoa brown light wool with beige and brown accessories, and a corsage of orange delight roses.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Murray will reside in Rosemere.

Among those from this district in attendance were the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, and Mrs. Cottingham, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Giles, Miss Katie Giles, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rose and Bob Giles, Jr.

At the Church of Saint Francis in St. Sauveur des Monts, the marriage took place on Saturday afternoon of Jean Edouard Dandurand and Miss Kathleen Charlotte Wortman, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh officiating.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wortman, of Montreal, was attended by Mrs. C. H. Clarke. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Dandurand of Montreal, was supported by Mr. Paul Dandurand as best man. The wedding music was played by Mrs. George Watchorn of Morin Heights.

A reception followed at the Birchfield Manoir in Ste. Adele-en-haut.

N. America "Forgetting Her Responsibilities"

Ottawa (CP) — The Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the Board of Evangelism of the United Church of Canada, says North America is in danger of forgetting her responsibilities to the rest of the world.

He told the general council of the church, meeting at Windsor, Ont., that because North Americans have such a high standard of living they "are likely to be content and forget the needs of the world at large." Much has been done to help backward countries, he said, but "unfortunately there are signs that we are wearying in well-doing. There are many evidences of indifference."

Rt. Rev. James Thomson, a leading figure in theological teaching since he came to Canada from Scotland in 1930, was elected moderator to succeed Rt. Rev. George Dorey, of Toronto. The new moderator is dean of divinity at McGill University, Montreal.

L.O.B.A. Military Whist

The opening card party of the season to be held in Lachute took place at the Legion Memorial Hall last Wednesday, under auspices of the L.O.B.A. ladies. Following were the winners:

1st Prize — Mrs. A. Stewart (captain), Mrs. H. Bazinet, Mrs. R. Rogers, Miss G. McMahon.

2nd Prize — Mrs. Steve Lilly captain), Mrs. D. Jamison, Mrs. B. Swail, Mrs. G. Gordon.

A novelty prize was won by Mrs. W. H. Canning.

A basket of gladioli generously donated for the occasion was drawn for, the winner being Mr. B. Swail. The attendance was very encouraging as these card parties appear to be growing increasingly popular. Refreshments were served at the conclusion.

Mr. Tom Iddon acted in his usual capable manner as m.c. for the card playing.

Wolf Pup Is Store Exhibit, Resembles Canine

The Sports Centre, retail store on Main Street, has one of the live "wolves" captured early in July on the farm of Romeo Lemay, La-Branche, Brownsburg, now on display in its window.

The seven wolves were taken by Guy Lemay, René Charron, Carmel Charron and Ronald Guay, the 48-pound female and 18-pound male both being shot. The five whelps, then about a month old, were captured and according to the proprietors of the local shop, a bounty has been paid on all but the remaining pup, now on view in their window.

This animal, which by appearance has a strong suspicion of canine in its make-up, was positively identified as a wolf, along with the others, by Game Warden Fernando Lamarche and other officials of this department.

Rink Committee Selects Chairman, Opening Planned for Saturday, Oct. 6

The first subject of discussion at a meeting of the Brownsburg Community Rink Association was the letter of resignation from R. B. Elliott erstwhile chairman of the committee, who has moved to Edmonton. The committee regretfully accepted the resignation and moved that a letter of thanks together with a framed picture of the rink committee, taken at the rink be sent to the former official.

Mr. Harold Barber was proposed as Mr. Elliott's successor and the committee unanimously decided to ask him to take the job. A telephone call summoned the new chairman who assumed the role from co-chairman, Mr. E. Hebert.

Secretary Alvin Stewart announced he too would like to tender his resignation. He said that he felt that pressure of other matters had prevented him from doing a good job in his position and that this year matters would be pretty much the same. The committee reminded him that to a certain extent the work involved was diminishing. They promised that if he retained office he could depend on help from some of the other members when he needed it. Under the circumstances he withdrew his resignation.

The committee decided that the election plan drawn up by Mr. Elliott be tried at the end of this season's operations, probably in May.

Treasurer Jim Labelle, outlined the financial position which is much brighter than at this time last year. With most of the commitments met, they have $965 operating fund on hand.

A discussion followed about hiring a caretaker. Eventually it was decided to give Mr. Ken Stewart full authority to rehire last year's man or hire another as he saw fit.

The big question about opening was discussed at length and the date was finally set at October 6, the Saturday of thanksgiving weekend. The ice machine will be started about the first of the month and run at half capacity.

A committee was chosen, comprising Messrs. Jules Lemay, Andrew Hardie and Bill Tessier, to set season ticket prices for the six-month season. Individual prices have been set at 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. From the discussion a guess that the prices will be around $6 for children and $8 or $9 for adults and probably $15 to $18 for family tickets.

Some members felt that a 50/50 split of the concession take was over-generous, but after considerable discussion they conceded that for a job well done it was worth offering the incentive. It was decided that if André Pilon who handled the concession last year wanted the same deal, he could have it.

Tennis Trophy Comes Home to Ayers Squad

The Ayers Tennis Club came out on top of the finals against Rigaud to win the Ayers Trophy, emblematic of the Quebec-Ontario Tennis League title. The league championship title, awarded to the team finishing the regular season in first position, was won by Rigaud.

The winner of the finals was decided Saturday last at Rigaud, in a match that was anybody's until the end. Prior to this, the two teams went into the final match on an even footing, following "home and home" matches on Monday and Thursday evenings. The score was tied two-all with just the men's doubles to be played. It was then that Bernard Belisle and Richard Campeau, playing with careful precision, defeated Rigaud's Jacques Deom and Vicar Maurice Cholette 8-6 and 6-0.

With this win, for the second year in succession, the local club travels to Ottawa on Sunday, September 23, where they will represent this region in the Ontario Intermediate tennis title matches.

Hubert Lemire, president of the local club, congratulated the members of the team who had played during the season, namely Jacques Bourgoing, captain; Bernard Belisle, Richard Campeau, René Beauregard, Roger Chartrand, Conrad Larocque, Fleurette Plouffe, Mildred McDonald, Anita Bedard, Jeannine Bedard, Ginete Tessier, Madeleine Patry and Claudette Danis.

In closing the tennis season, the league committee has organized a party for tomorrow evening (Friday) at the Long Sault Hotel, Grenville. Supporters and players from Lachute, Brownsburg, Rigaud, L'Orignal, Hawkesbury and Alexandria are cordially invited. A bus will leave the Ayers recreation centre at 8.30 p.m. and any other information can be obtained by contacting Jacques Bourgoing (tel. 780).

Fundy Fishermen Find Herring Scarce

Grand Manan, N.B. (CP)—Fishermen who take their livelihood from the Bay of Fundy surrounding this island off southeast New Brunswick are having trouble making ends meet this year.

The herring have been scarce, and without the fish the island's only industry moves to the brink of depression.

Some residents of the 21-mile-long island have moved to the mainland with their families to seek steady employment. But for most, it's back to the sea in the hope that times will change.

Henry Russell of Woodward's Cove, tall and lean at 39, processes boneless herring. This year they come from Nova Scotia waters. He pays $15 a hogshead for the fish and $5 for freight.

Price Too High

"There's no money in the business this year," he says. "The price is too high." Usual hogshead price for the fish is between $6 and $12.

"There just isn't enough herring being caught around Grand Manan," he says. "If the picture doesn't change before the winter, there's going to be hard times for most people."

Woodward's Cove has three fish processing plants now, compared with 31 before 1940. The area's industry was hit hard recently when fire destroyed the landward portion of the village dock, forcing fishermen to seek new anchorages.

Like all fishermen who depend on the sea for life, Russell refuses to give up hope.

"I can't lose faith in Grand Manan", he says.

"If you were born and bred here, you'd understand."

Quebec's Giant Moose Call Vacation Hunters

Quebec City — Quebec bull moose will roar their defiance of love rivals a little dangerously this year, for the short moose hunting season, from October 1 to 10, will catch the monarchs of the north-woods still in their rutting season.

Fixing of the legal kill period at a time when the bulls are still thinking of heavy dates has raised general controversy amongst Quebec sportsmen, but the licensed outfitters or guides have long campaigned for the calendar period now announced.

All indications are that the hunting camps will be busy this fall, all the way from Roberval, in the Lac St. Jean country at the head of the Saguenay, through to La Tuque on the upper reaches of the St. Maurice, to Joliette and St. Michel des Saints above the St. Lawrence, to back reaches of the Laurentian Mountains, where hunters work out of Mont Laurier, St. Jovite, Manawaki, and cruise the Valley of the Lievre.

Lower in the Laurentians, and about Rawdon, Joliette, St. Michel des Saints, St. Donat, there will be hunters out for whitetail deer, hoping to repeat the many fine kills of last year. (The season for moose is still closed the year round in Argenteuil County.)

Outboard motors will begin to putt-putt in early October as hunters and guides head up the waterways of the province into likely territory, and the charter seaplane services will be well occupied, too. Most favorite locations for deer are accessible by car, at least for most of the way, until water transportation becomes imperative.

FALCONRY REVIVED BY ONTARIO BOYS

—Central Press Canadian

More fun than fishing or baseball is the way Gary Davis of Burlington, Ont., describes the ancient sport of falconry. Gary and his brother Ricky found two small sparrow hawks deserted by their parents and reared them to behave like falcons. The birds stalk and hunt their prey high in the sky then return to the gloved hands of their trainers.

Small-League Finances In Critical Trend

By Mel Suffrin,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The old adage about the rich getting richer while the poor get poorer has a rather unhappy application to some of the major team sports these days.

The major leagues, both in hockey and baseball, seem to be in healthy condition but the lower classifications are having more than their share of troubles.

An example is the recent decision of the Western Junior Hockey League to fold up. Over the years such teams as Moose Jaw Canucks, Regina Pats and Lethbridge Native Sons have been nationally prominent in the junior hockey picture, winning a good share of western titles and Memorial cups.

But now financial difficulties have finally forced enough of the clubs into a corner so that they just can't continue to operate. There's reason for real regret among hockey fans everywhere because this league has been the spawning ground for many of Canada's greatest players.

Say TV is Factor

Declining attendance, which led to the demise, was blamed on such things as television, the lure of pro hockey, growing interest in other sports, including football and curling, and contentions that the seasons were too long.

Just how bad the situation may be is suggested by the fact that Alberta — producer of such talent as Sweeney Schriner, Dave Carr, the Colville brothers, Bill Gadsby and Jack Evans, to name a few — will have only one Junior "A" team next season, Edmonton, which will play in Intermediate competition.

Regina goes into the Saskatchewan league and Lethbridge and Medicine Hat will not operate.

In contrast, the National Hockey League can look forward to a reasonably successful season, with television contributing a fair amount of money. Montreal, Toronto and Detroit normally play to capacity crowds all season, and New York, which had faltered for a number of years, had a banner season last winter. Boston did reasonably well and the situation even improved in Chicago.

A parallel is found is baseball where the majors are faring quite well from an attendance standpoint and reaping a lot of money from TV while minor leagues are failing.

A Canadian example was the decison of Hamilton to quit operations in the Pony League. Also gone is the Border League which had a number of Canadian teams over the years, including Ottawa and Kingston, Ont.

There has been a lot of talk about strengthening the lower leagues but little action has been taken despite the fact the majors realize the weakness of the minors will in time lower the over-all playing standards.

No one has yet offered any good solution to the problem. After all, the major league teams in baseball earn a lot of money from TV and as long as the best is available on the small screen, a lot of fans are staying home to watch the big league instead of paying money to go out to the park to support the local team.

Great Crater

Ottawa (CP) — The circular depression which forms Deep Bay of Reindeer Lake, about 250 miles north of Prince Albert, Sask., may be the world's largest meteorite crater.

"The great depth of the bay in itself, and the rim and high hills around it, characterize an explosive crater," said Dr. M. J. S. Jones of the Dominion Observatory, who with geologist Walter Pearson of the Saskatchewan resources department spent August investigating the area.

He returned to Ottawa with the belief that the circular depression forming Deep Bay was created by a meteorite thousands of years ago but because of its great age proving the bay is a meteoritic crater may never be available. Ice moved down and rubbed away most of the evidence.

It is at least 700 feet deep and 6½ miles across, compared to the New Quebec Crater in Quebec's Ungava, about two miles wide, and a crater a mile across at Wolf Creek, Australia.

Legendary Series For French Network

The television adaptation of "Un Homme et son Péché", the continuing radio favorite of French Canada for 17 years, will begin as a series of weekly video plays on the CBC French network at eight p.m. on Monday, October 8.

"Les Belles Histoires des Pays d'en-haut", "The Beautiful Stories from Up-Country", as the TV series is known, represents a major innovation in French-Canadian television in more ways than one. It not only presents Seraphin, the legendary miser, and his friends in a new medium, but it depicts them as they were in their youth, many years before the period dramatized in the radio series.

The beloved grouch, Seraphin, will appear as a close-fisted young man of 28. The sweet Donalda, only 17, has already lost her heart to Alexis.

By taking his cast back so many years, Claude-Henri Grignon, the author, is able to take advantage of a rich period of French-Canadian history. Heroes of that people, such as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Honoré Mercier and Curé Labelle, founder of several famous Laurentian parishes, will take part, upon occasion, in "Les Belles Histoires."

To carry Grignon's realism into this historic period, the producers of the program, which is sponsored by Pepsodent, have gone to extreme lengths. Seraphin's house, with its walls of wood and fieldstone and its whitewashed interior identifying an era in themselves, along with the now almost archaic furniture, has been put together in the CBC's Montreal studios.

Outdoor sequences will be characteristic as the scent of pine, for they are being filmed in Seraphin's home grounds, the Laurentian "north country". Interior sequences will be televised "live" from within the skinflint's house.

The chief producer of "Les Belles Histoires", Fernand Quirion, has been associated with several major successes of French-Canadian television in recent seasons.

A policeman was questioning a man pinned under his overturned car. "Married?" he asked.

Historic Court Cases Dramatized for TV

"On Trial", presenting TV dramatizations of historic court cases that commanded world-wide attention, was scheduled to begin on the CBC-TV network on Friday, September 21, at 8 p.m., with Joseph Cotten as permanent host-narrator and frequent star.

The NBC-produced half-hour plays, to be telecast three Fridays out of four, are based on official documents obtained from different parts of the world and from various periods of legal history. To ensure authenticity on legal points, attorney Maurice A. Krisel, of New York, is serving as technical adviser.

The first production, "The Trial of Edward Pritchard" is about a double murder in Glasgow, Scotland, at the turn of the century. Pritchard, a prominent physician, attracted international interest when accused of slaying both his wife and her mother.

Among the stars who have been booked for the series are Joan Fontaine, Alexis Smith, Diana Lynn, Keenan Wynn and Hoagy Carmichael.

ORGANS ON TV

Montreal (CP) — A letter urging consideration for televising organ recitals will be sent to the CBC by the Canadian College of Organists, which held its convention here. National President Gordon Jefferson claimed there was "lack of co-operation by CBC."

"Assignment"

Bill MacNeil and Maria Barrett discuss the first script of "Assignment", the hour-long weeknight show which will be heard Monday through Friday on the CBC Dominion Radio Network starting October 1. Maria and Bill have been signed as hostess and host of the show, which will couple the "magazine" concept of radio with the finest in actuality coverage.

"Lassie", the popular juvenile adventure show, launched its new fall schedule last Sunday, on the CBC-TV network. Featured in the new episodes are the same principals who have been largely responsible for "Lassie's" continued success. Lassies' young master, Jeff Miller, is played by Tommy Rettig; attractive Jane Clayton is Jeff's mother, Ellen Miller; kindly, irascible old "gramps" is portrayed by charactor actor, George Cleveland; and Donald Keeler is seen as Jeff's friend, Porkey.

Submarine TV Cameras

When the Royal Navy submarine "Affray" failed in 1951 to return from duty in the English Channel, many ships went in search. One method used was completely new — a deep-water television camera scanning the bottom of the ocean. It was by this method that the Affray was located, though by then the crew was dead. At 9 p.m. on Monday, September 10, CBC-TV's "Pacific 13" program will tell of the development and use of underwater TV cameras, of which the Royal Canadian Navy, now has two. Guests will include Lieutenant-Commander Bathurst, D.S.C. and Bar, O.B.E., who was in command of the vessel which located the "Affray." Another guest will be Lieutenant G. H. Lawther, R.C.N., a diver for 10 years.

Radio

Murder Mystery for CBC "Summer Stage"

A murder mystery set against a sombre background of old-world supersition will provide an exciting half-hour on "Summer Stage" September 23 — 9-9.30 p.m., on CBC Trans-Canada. The play is an adaptation by Clyde Douglas of a story called "The Powers of Darkness" from Thomas H. Raddall's book "Tambour and Other Stories".

The setting is a district of Nova Scotia, which was settled by German and Dutch immigrants in the 18th century. Many superstitions brought over from the old world at that time still persist in the area and one of them, a belief in the occult powers of the evil eye, provides eerie complications in Raddall's story.

It is said that the belief still exists in some parts of Nova Scotia that if the evil eye is put on an animal or person, the spirit of the one possessing the power enters the body of the hexed one. If the person under the spell is injured in any way, the spell-binder will suffer exactly the same consequences.

What happens when one of these sorcerers is found murdered after he is reported to have put a spell on several creatures in the community forms the basis for the story.

The Fabulous Niosi Brothers

Oft heard but rarely seen together are the fabulous Niosi Brothers. Among them they play virtually every major band instrument and appear, one or the other of them, in practically every CBC orchestra in Toronto. At the left is a guy who is not a Niosi at all but a MacDougal, who is regarded as an authority on music and who supplies the three brothers with the tin horns that he claims they always blow. Johnny plays every percussion instrument in the books. Joe plays string bass, tuba, bass horn, and every other bass instrument around. Bert is arranger, leader, trumpeter, flutist, trombonist, clarinetist, bass, tenor, alto, baritone and soprano saxophonist.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane — Women's Travel Authority

After a long summer in the sun and sand, your car — like yourself — may need some special beauty treatment. Why not set up your own "salon de beauté" right in your garage?

Cars, like some sensitive complexions, cannot always take strong soap and hot water. When you give your car its Fall facial, use only cool water and a clean sponge. If it's particularly dirty, add a minimum of mild, kitchen detergent to the cool water. Then dry off the enamel with a clean chamois skin. If you're "shampooing" your car out-of-doors, do the job in early morning or late afternoon because strong sunlight may streak wet enamel.

If your car has been outside most of the Summer and exposed to sand and sea spray at the beach, it may need some special rejuvenating. Prior to your car grooming session, go to your service station and get a good brand of liquid cleaner and wax. Apply this to your car's finish with a sponge or soft cloth. Let the wax dry and then rub it off. With this new liquid wax, arduous polishing isn't necessary as it was with old-fashioned hard wax. This type of wax removes road film, brings back the car's original tone and leaves a protective coating. Clean chrome with a brillo pad or a cromium polish and protector.

Don't stop your beauty operations with the car's exterior. The inside may need even more specialized care and attention, with whisk broom, vacuum cleaner and elbow grease. A good idea would be to vacuum your car once a month to prevent deterioration of fabrics, covers and flooring.

STILL LIKE MOVIES

Canada's movie makers report they had a big year: says The Financial Post. Some 46 film companies, including government-owned agencies grossed well over $2.4 million last year, 16.6% more than that made by the 45 operating the year before and almost double the take of 1952's 30 companies. There was only one theatrical feature produced in 1955, but the industry made 47 theatrical shorts, 338 TV films, 352 non-theatrical films. In addition, several thousand TV commercials, advertising trailers and newsreels were produced.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Gillian Pritchard, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Women who attended a recent fashion show in Toronto had the added enjoyment of watching becoming new styles modelled to the accompaniment of music from the Broadway show "My Fair Lady."

The title of the musical neatly sums up the new line for fall and winter. The play is set in the early 1900's and the new fashions reflect longer skirts, rounded bosoms and infinitely more feminine styles of that period.

Hemlines for both narrows and full skirts will be an inch or two longer. The sombre colors fashionable at that time have also been picked up for use in 1956.

Fur trims, swathed, pleated and folded detail are seen in coats, suits, dresses. Silk or wool crepe is likely to be popular because it drapes so easily.

Chiffon for evening wear is high fashion and so is black velvet. Black and white ensembles are popular. A white folded chiffon gown, for instance, has a black jersey bolero. A black chiffon sheath has a white satin side-drape.

You won't go far wrong if you choose any of the richer shades, such as grape, claret or dark green for new items in your wardrobe.

The Edwardian influence has also been felt in the beauty world. Complexion tones will be light and creamy and hair simpler and more orderly. A new lipstick called "Rose Aurora" is a misty red. Aim for gentle coloring, soft pretty mouth and lustrous eyes with your makeup.

Tasty Pasta

New Canadians who have created a demand for European foods are changing our eating habits. Today, many store shelves are stocked with Italian, Dutch, German and Ukrainian delicacies.

The Canadian housewife needn't take a trip to Rome to sample Italian pasta. It's right there in the little stores operated by former Europeans in every town and city.

She may sample cheese for breakfast like the Dutch (cheese imports from Holland have tripled in two years) or cook in olive oil (imports up 50 per cent).

If she wishes, she can shop in an open market as though she were in Europe, or buy all kinds of delicious European breads.

But Canada is also influencing immigrants in their shopping habits. It's estimated that 62 per cent of newcomers shop in supermarkets rather than the corner grocery they frequented when they first arrived.

Help Needed

A welfare project in which every one who sews or wields a pair of knitting needles can help is a scheme to provide clothing for needy children overseas organized by the Utilitarian Service Committee of Canada.

Would-be helpers can obtain cut out material from the USC at 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa. The knitting scheme this year is to provide long-sleeved pullovers for children in the Middle East.

Used warm clothing, for adults and children, blankets and babies' layettes are also being welcomed by the USC.

Consumer Section Publications Available

by the Consumer Section, Canada Dept. of Agriculture Marketing Service

Free publications on the buying and using of Canadian agricultural food products are available from the Information Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The recipes and methods outlined in these bulletins and leaflets may be used with confidence, for all of them have been thoroughly tested by the home economists of the Consumer Section in "Canada's Kitchen." Here are some of the publications that are available at present:

"Freezing Foods" (Bulletin number 892) tells how to freeze fruits, vegetables, meats, poultry, eggs, baked foods and sandwiches. Among other things, the Consumer Section recommends freezing pies unbaked, and in this bulletin they give specific baking instructions for frozen pies, pumpkin pies and mince pies. Recommended storage times for meats and other foods are included and, in addition, there is a section on home freezer management which gives several suggestions on how to make the best use of your freezer.

"Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" (Bulletin number 789) outlines the steps for cold pack canning of fruits and pressure canning of vegetables. Directions for canning grape juice and tomato juice are included.

"Cheese Dishes" this booklet contains up-to-date information on the types of cheese made in Canada, as well as hints and recipes for using cheese. A recipe for Nippy Cheese Dip to serve with crackers or potato chips calls for 1 4-oz. package cream cheese, 1 4-oz. package Canadian Blue Cheese, ½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce and 2 teaspoons lemon juice whipped together lightly.

"The Art of Making Sandwiches" a mimeographed folder, was created to assist homemakers in planning and preparing sandwiches for lunches, teas and other occasions. The folder also contains a table giving the quantities required for 50 servings of beverages, meats, vegetables and other foods that are likely to be served at receptions or church suppers.

Other Folders and Charts available

"Eggs"— Buying, Care and Cooking, including recipes for Omelet, Souffle and Custard; "Apple Recipes" for desserts, salads and relishes; "White Navy Beans" ten recipes including one for Chili Beans; "Salads" made from vegetables, meat and fruit, with suggestions for garnishing and recipes for dressing; "Cereals" interesting facts about wheat, oats and barley with recipes for soups, main dishes, hot breads and desserts "Beef Chart" and "Pork Chart" — showing wholesale and retail cuts of these meats.

SHORT ORDER COOK, ESKIMO STYLE

—Central Press Canadian

A polar-burger is prepared by Eskimo "short-order" cook Mary Hatuk, who dishes up Arctic delicacies for visitors to the Eskimo exhibit at the CNE. The "kitchen" is located in a real igloo, authentic down to the last detail except for the artificial snow. Inside, the visitor can see the cooking vessels, the stone kudliks or seal oil lamps, the caribou skins piled on the sleeping bench. Outside the igloo is a typical tundra setting with gray-green reindeer moss flown in from the Arctic underfoot.

For September Brides, Dinner For Two

September in recent years has become a month of wedding bells. Brides of the month may be used to entertaining friends in their parents' home, but dinner for two every night is a different problem. Here's a savory main course suggestion that's easy to prepare, easy on the budget and good to eat too. The recipe yields four tempting meat loaves, each with a sausage link in the centre. Main dish problems are solved for two evenings for two of the loaves can be served hot the day they are prepared and the other two served cold the following evening. To give added appetite appeal the loaves are shaped into crescents and garnished with green pepper and onion rings and mushroom sauce.

To round out the main course we suggest toast baskets filled with buttered hot green peas. The toast baskets are easy to prepare. Just place buttered slices of enriched white bread in muffin pans and toast the cups in the oven until they're a golden brown.

Bride's Meat Loaves

½ Pound ground uncooked beef, ½ pound ground uncooked veal or pork, 1 egg (lightly-beaten), 1 small onion (finely chopped), ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup soft enriched white bread crumbs, ¼ cup cold milk, 4 uncooked pork sausages, 4 green pepper rings, 4 onion rings.

Pre-heat oven to 350°F. (moderate). Combine ground beef, ground veal or pork, lightly-beaten egg, finely chopped onion, salt, enriched white bread crumbs and milk, and mix lightly but thoroughly. Divide into 4 portions and shape each into a flat pattie. Roll each meat pattie around 1 pork sausage, covering sausage and making a small oblong loaf. Place in shallow ungreased baking pan. Top with alternate rings of green pepper and onion. Cut almost in half, and shape into crescents. Bake in pre-heated oven 25 minutes. Makes 4 individual loaves. Serve with mushroom sauce and baskets made of enriched white bread slices, buttered and toasted in muffin pans and then filled with cooked green peas.

Australian Beauty

Miss New Australia 1956—Miss Zdenka Babic—is shown above with Maurice Pate, Executive Director of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), during a recent visit made by Miss Babic to U.N. Headquarters. Miss Babic was born in Yugoslavia, but after the second world war her family moved to Austria where as a child she was one of the beneficiaries of UNICEF aid. Later, they moved to Australia. Recalling the aid received as a child, Miss Babic took part in a recent fund-raising appeal for UNICEF in Australia which yielded £3,500.

Living Costs Up

Ottawa (CP) —

Living costs, bumped by food and other price rises, climbed to a new high for July, and experts said they felt further rises were likely.

The consumer price index—yardstick for measuring living costs — hit its third straight monthly rise in July. The Bureau of Statistics reported September 4 that it rose by three-fifths of a point to a record 119.1. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

The index had risen 1.2 points in May and seven-tenths of a point in June. It was the first time since the July-September period of 1955 that the monthly yardstick had hit three consecutive rises.

BIG WELCOME

Toronto (CP) — When 14-year-old Earl Howard Hurwitz got back from eight weeks at a Boy Scout camp near Bracebridge, his mother staged a neighborhood party with signs "Welcome Home Howard." She has done it for some years to stimulate interest in the scouting movement.

Intriguing Fashions By Canadian Couturiers

Elegance with a definite Canadian flavor is evident in the new fall collection of the Association of Canadian Couturiers. Fashion editors viewing the designs for the first time, September 14, in Montreal, termed it the most outstanding collection yet produced by the Canadian group of designers, who have made clever use of Canadian fabrics in many of the rich colors synonymous with fall in this country; and their fashions are undoubtedly wearable and suitable for Canadian living.

The most sumptuous ball gown in the collection, for instance, a beautiful creation in white acetate satin, has its own magnificent warmly-lined cloak in midnight blue acetate velvet with a hood that makes it completely practical for wearing in Canadian winters. This ensemble was designed by Olivia Andrego, of Hamilton, Ont.

The couturiers have made lavish use of the beautiful new Arnel faille in wearable cocktail and afternoon dresses, many with the flowing back interest which has become almost a trademark of the group. One by Marie-Paule, newly-elected president of the group, has the new bell-shaped skirt. Another by Jacques Michel, young Montreal designer, has intricate draping on the bodice flowing into a full skirt.

Lovely blended fabrics produced by Canadian mills from acetate and viscose, hard-wearing muss resistant fibres, are seen in suits and in coat and dress ensembles. Louis Beria of St. Catharines, Ont., makes an elegant cocktail dress from a blended fabric in a gold shade muted with black. The salon of Raoul-Jean Foure (Jacques de Montjoye) in Montreal has produced a dressy suit in a blue-black blended fabric with unusual draping across the back. The collection will be presented in several eastern cities this fall.

Mode in Velvet

"Broseliante"—an elegant theatre theatre ensemble designed by Raoul-Jean Foure (Jacques de Montjoy) — combines black acetate velvet, white acetate satin and a touch of Chinchilla fur. Top of the Empire line sheath gown has velvet appliqué across the white satin bodice. The slit sleeves and neckline of the tunic coat opens to reveal the satin lining. From the new fall collection of the Association of Canadian Couturiers.

1957 W. Inst. Courses

Members of the Quebec Women's Institutes are already making plans for next year's courses. Application forms are now going out to all branches, in time for October meetings, and must be returned to the Q.W.I. office by the end of the year.

From the information thus obtained the Q.W.I. staff draws up the schedules for the coming year, 1957. These are arranged to avoid retracing routes as much as possible, but have never failed to take the technicians to almost every part of the English-speaking sections of the province. For the current year, 15 out of the 20 "Institute" counties will have been visited by December.

No new outline of courses has been issued this year as the 1957 program is unchanged.

Now there is a baby boom, too! Canada has the highest birthrate per thousand of population of any country in the group of so-called developed nations. Even India is surpassed by a narrow margin.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Everybody gets a bit run-down now and then, tired-out, heavy-headed, and maybe bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary toxic condition caused by excess acids and wastes. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys, and so help restore their normal action of removing excess acids and wastes. Then you feel better, sleep better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. Look for the blue box with the red band at all druggists. You can depend on Dodd's. 52

FOR PARENTS ONLY...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Obstinate Child

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"That which is called firmness in a king is called obstinacy in a donkey," Lord Erskine once pointed out. The stubborn child may, as he grows, stop his battles with individuals. He may re-direct his energy into struggling with real problems. Some of our greatest reformers, some of the most brilliant research scientists, were likely dubbed obstinate in their childhood! But they learned, by wise guidance and ther own experience not to be easily discouraged. They managed to persevere, in the face of obstacles, until they reached their goal.

Nevertheless parents often are baffled by a child who is intractable. If they let their child always have his own way, happy home living is out of the question. If they continually try to correct and punish him, he meets force with force or retires into a sullen, sulking mood. How are they to train their obstinate offspring?

The underlying causes of a child's stubborn streak should be sought. Why does he behave in this way? Underneath his bold front, is he really quite unsure of himself? Is he battling to assert himself and win his place amongst older brothers and sisters or companions? The stubborn child is not at peace with himself. His obstinacy is a form of anger. He is waging war against his environment.

Puzzled mothers and fathers of a stubborn youngster should examine their own handling of his small world. What about the child's routine? Are there too many "musts", and not enough freedom in his day? Is there a lack of a definite pattern of happenings? A lack of order and system makes him uncertain and sometimes obstinate. A sensible schedule should be followed as a rule, with some flexibility to allow for unforseen happenings.

Once parents have revised the child's schedule so that there are a certain number of minimum requirements, they should also decide how they are going to get more cooperation from their child. The impersonal suggestion, "The clock says almost twelve o'clock, Let's start getting ready for dinner," is much to be preferred to "You must come to your dinner at once" (in a tone which implies, just dare resist me and you will soon find out what will happen to you!)

The friendly approach often works wonders with a stubborn child. It need not lack firmness. But a child needs to know that no matter how difficult he is, his parents love him. They believe he is really trying to do his best, but they don't expect perfection either. The stubborn child does not forfeit his mother's affection by his contrariness. Perhaps he is making a bid for a little more demonstration of her love. His mother may be very busy, and this is his way of getting her attention.

The latter part of the day is the time when mothers and children get into the greatest number of tangles. Ligely mother is fatigued — but the child is probably tired too. Occasionally observing a longer rest period after the noon meal, or an earlier bed-time will reduce the number of clashes between the child and adults in authority. More sleep is good medicine for many minor childish problems in behaviour.

Parents struggling with an obstinate child, should receive some comfort from the knowlege that most children pass through a longer or shorter period of resistance to adult authority especially in pre-school and adolescent years. Boys and girls who are high-spirited may really amount to something. Plutarch commented that "The wildest colts make the best horses."

It DOES matter which Oil Burner you buy!

If you're in the market for an oil burner, there are dozens for you to choose from. They all look very much alike. They all burn oil. Some are pretty efficient, others less so. But, unless you're an engineer, there's no way for you to decide which burner is best for your needs, except by insisting on one made by a reputable, long-established manufacturer. Like Smart's, for example. We recommend Smart's series "A" oil burners because when we sell one we know that the customer is going to be satisfied with the deal, for a long time. If that seems to you to be a good reason for buying a Smart's oil burner, let us show you the complete range, and tell you all about them.

CLAIMS INTIMIDATION

Letters held by a Toronto factory worker are to be studied by federal authorities to determine whether Soviet officials are trying to use intimidation to get him to return behind the Iron Curtain. Any such intimidation could be the basis for ousting a foreign diplomat from Canada.

The worker, 40-year-old Pavlo Hlyshanyza, fled from the Ukraine in 1944 after having been twice sentenced to death for guerilla activities on Soviet borders.

He says his 15-year-old daughter has written to him from Russia urging him to return home, but he is suspicious of the letter because its style differs from other letters received from her. He believes it was dictated by Communist officials.

Fishermen who begrudge the effort involved in catching live crickets for bait can buy a quart of them, by mail, from a Georgia cricket farm.

We learn that it takes fifteen days for cricket eggs to hatch, eight weeks for the insects to grow to bait size. We note, too, that the brooders where they laze about in 85° temperature, lapping up chicken mash, are made of aluminum. But we confess we're not too surprised. It simply means that this busy metal has found still another use in the busy housing industry — this time providing clean, warm, pleasant quarters for aristocratic crickets. You see aluminum everywhere these days!

1914 SOUVENIRS

Saskatoon (CP) — Local First World War veterans have been able to produce eight tobacco boxes of the type given to troops in France at Christmas, 1914. Art McClocklin has the only brass box still containing tobacco carefully wrapped and smelling fresh.

Battle of Britain Commemoration

With special services held across Canada on Sunday, September 16, the Royal Canadian Air Force joined other Commonwealth Air Forces in commemorating the 16th anniversary of the Battle of Britain, as well as the memory of 47 Canadian flyers who gave their lives in the air battle which decided not only the fate of the British Isles, but the destiny of free men. The battle, which is generally acknowledged to have reached its peak on September 15, 1940, when the Luftwaffe suffered its major defeat over Britain, has special significance for the RCAF in that it was the Force's baptism of fire. Here, a scene out of history helps recall the dark days before the tide turned, as pilots "scramble" toward a line of famed Hurricane fighters to intercept an invading force of enemy aircraft.

Recent Wedding of Interest To Morin Hts. Community

McCullough - Pollard

Baskets of multi-colored gladioli and carnations formed the decorations in St. Barnabas Church, Montreal, on Saturday, August 11, at 4 o'clock for the marriage of Wendy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rollard, to Merlin McCullough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric McCullough of Morin Heights. The Rev. Sterling Bodger officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white nylon net over taffeta, with a lace jacket and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. She wore a feather coronet and carried a bouquet of pink baby Sweetheart roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Graeme Bell, as matron of honor, wore an ice blue taffeta gown with navy hat and accessories, and carried pink gladioli.

Mr. Graeme Bell acted as groomsman.

Mrs. Pollard, mother of the bride, wore a navy blue sheer dress, a white hat and accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. McCullough was attired in pastel blue nylon with white hat and accessories; her corsage was of pink carnations. Mrs. Campbell, grandmother of the groom, was in powder blue crepe, a navy hat and accessories, and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's grandmother, after which the bridal couple left on a motor trip to the Eastern United States. For travelling the bride chose a navy and grey striped dress with pink accessories, with a corsage of pink carnations. On their return, they took up residence in Montreal.

Winter Predictions

At Rocky Mountain House in Alberta, the Kootenay Plains Indians are already predicting when the first snow will come and how long it will stay.

The Kootenays are not saying what signs they see on which to base their predictions — whether they measure the fur on squirrels, the bark on trees or the dust on an old almanac. But it is remembered that last year they predicted that the West would have a long and hard winter. Sure enough, there was one long, uninterrupted 78-day period during which the temperature at Edmonton did not rise above freezing.

The Indians are to be listened to.

Listening to them, it is possible to hear the clank of shovels being moved out of the cellar. They say that winter will begin with snow on November 11 and that snow will fall in every month until May.

The homeowner can look forward to a long, healthy winter, with lots of exercise. — Montreal Gazette

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send your question to your district Unemployment Insurance office. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. I have a ten-year-old daughter in boarding school. I am a widower and she is my old child. Can I draw benefit at the rate of a person with a dependent?

A. Yes, if you can prove at the time you make your initial application that the child is wholly or mainly maintained by you.

Q. I am a labourer. During the summer I work on the farm, in winter time I work in the bush. I am paying unemployment insurance contributions, but this work is seasonal in nature and I am not able to work long enough to be able to draw benefits. Have I the right to ask the farmer, in summer, to pay unemployment insurance contributions when I am willing to pay my share?

A. No. Work on the farm is not insurable and contributions cannot be paid for work done there. If you became unemployed in the period January to mid-April any year, you might be entitled to seasonal benefit for which the number of contributions required is considerably lower than for regular benefit. Enquire at your local office should you become unemployed in the period mentioned.

To Protect Health Of Dust-Exposed Mine Workers

New Quebec Ruling on Medical Examination Of Employees

By Marc E. Thiverge,
BUP Staff Correspondent

Quebec, Sept. 10 (BUP) — The Quebec Government has decreed that a medical examination and medical certificate will be required from now on for every person working in a dust-exposure occupation in any mining establishment in the province.

An Order-in-Council published in the Quebec Official Gazette at the recommendation of W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, rules that "no mine operator may have in his employ, in a dust-exposure occupation, a workman who is not the holder of a medical certificate issued by the Provincial authorities.

In the past, the medical certificate has been required only in mines in the electoral disericts of Pontiac, Temiscamingue. Rouyn - Noranda, Abitibi-West and Abitibi-East, but that in view of the fact that a "medical examination has greatly contributed to improving the general health status of workmen in mines. . . . It has been deemed expedient to extend the ruling throughout the province.

The provisions of this new regulation do not apply to workmen who are employed in dust exposure occupations during a total of less than fifty hours in any month.

The same Order-in-Council rules also that any workman soliciting employment in a mining operation for a dust-exposure occupation must be the holder of a certificate issued during the course of the last 12 months by a physician in charge of a clinic organized in accordance with the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The certificate must testify that the workman has undergone the prescribed examination and that he has been found free from diseases of the respiratory organs and otherwise fit to work in a dust exposure occupaton.

Prior to the end of the twelve-month period following the date of the issuing of his certificate, the employee must further be re-examined by a physican as appointed under the provisions of the Act. This examination is also compulsory every 12 months.

To further protect the health of the mines workers, the Order-in-Council also stipulates that "each employer will keep a record of existing medical certificates and this record will be open at all times to the Inspector of Mines."

The new regulation goes even further and states that nothing in the new regulations prevents an employer from requiring "any person soliciting employment to satisfy the medical and physical pre-employment standards of such employer."

This new rule governing employers and employees in Quebec mining operations was prompted by the fact that many mines were being organized and workmen hired without undergoing a medical examination.

"We are trying to give more protection to one and all for their own good," explained Mr. Cottingham.

Quebec — During the annual convention of the Hotelkeepers' Association of Quebec Province, President Jacques Patenaude said the summer tourist season was a successful one this year, despite the unfavorable weather.

QUEER FISH

Regina (CP) — A strange fish caught in the Souris river near here may be a brown or black bullhead belonging to the catfish family, museum officials say. The species is rare in Saskatchewan. First known find of the fish in the province was in September, 1954.

481 Donors at Blood Clinic, Exceeds Volunteer List of '55

A total of 481 donors responded to the urgent call for blood at the local clinic held by Lachute Branch of the Red Cross in the Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday. The clinic in Brownsburg, which was held last Thursday, brought forth a total of 272 donors, both clinics being under the 300-donors-a-day quota.

The Lachute total compares favorably with the past three years, according to the 1956 co-chairman, Linton W. Armstrong and Leonard Bedard. Last year's result was 428 donors for the two-day clinic. André Gaulin, director of the Red Cross Transfusion Service, who visited the clinic on both days, stated he was well pleased with the final results, and expressed his appreciation at the enthusiastic results being obtained here in Lachute.

A local doctor and a staff of local registered nurses were in attendance at all times and were kept busy along with the personnel of the Red Cross mobile unit. In attendance with the unit were the nurse-in-charge, two technicians, 11 nurses' aids and three transport drivers. There were 10 beds and double that number of rest-beds kept in constant use.

272 Blood Donors At Successful Clinic Held in Brownsb'g

Brownsburg — The Red Cross Society held its annual Blood Donor Clinic at Brownsburg, last Thursday, and there was a generally good response. A dinner was served in the evening by ladies of the Brownsburg Branch to all the workers, and to a group of notable guests headed by Mayor Dorius Lepine and members of the clergy.

Mr. H. E. Barber, campaign chairman, spoke on the intricate details of organizing such a campaign. His talk was followed by Mr. R. Dubois, assistant chairman, who spoke in French. Greetings were extended by Mrs. N. E. Smillie, the Red Cross branch president.

Mr. Barber expressed appreciation to the management of C-I-L for use of their canteen in the afternoon, where 164 donors responded; and to the Legionnaires for the use of their hall, where 108 were recorded in the evening, making it a total of 272 donors.

Sincere thanks are extended to all blood donors, to the local nurses, and all who participated in this worthwhile cause.

Blind People Meet, Organize Club

On Wednesday afternoon of last week, a number of blind people from Grenville, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East and Lachute met at the Lachute Legion Hall.

At this first meeting, those attending organized a club, to be known as the "Argenteuil White Cane Club." At their next meeting, a slate of officers will be nominated and elected for the ensuing year. Mr. A. C. Zaplaski, field secretary for the C.N.I.B., presided.

The Women's Auxiliary to the C.N.I.B. is sponsoring this organization and during the afternoon the sightless people were looked after by the ladies. Those who prepared the afternoon tea and served refreshments to the blind guests were Mrs. L. Dion, Mrs. M. Wilson, Mrs. A. Bigelow, Mrs. A. Dwyer and Mrs. C. L. Stephens.

The next meeting will be held on October 17 at 1.30 p.m.

Carillon Youngster Hit by Automobile

Susan Lefebvre, 3½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Lefebvre, Carillon, was treated for injuries at the Providence Hospital after being struck by a car a short distance from her home. She was released shortly following her admittance to hospital. The mishap occurred Tuesday afternoon.

According to witnesses, a number of children were on the side of the road and moved out of danger when a car driven by Raymond Lamoureux, of St. Andrews East, approached. The little girl apparently dashed in front of the car to cross the road, and was struck. She was treated in hospital for head and other injuries.

Old-Time Reminiscence

Just 50 years ago William McGilvary and Eddie Gauley threshed through Rawcliffe, the Scotch Road and Calumet with one of the then up-to-date tread mills. With their machine they were greatly in demand, and had a 34-day run. Today with improved machinery the same job can be done four times as fast. . . . Both these gentlemen are still enjoying good health.

Community Concert Guest Violinist Is Wise Raconteur

Robert Rudié

Do you know a Stradivarius when you hear one? Can you tell a Strad from a modern instrument? Why is a Strad one of the most valuable of all violins, commanding a price sometimes as high as $100,000? Are there any good violins being made today?

These and many other questions that have probably been intriguing you for years will be answered by Robert Rudié, the brilliant American violinist, when he appears October 11 at Lachute High School, in the Community Concerts opening recital.

During his program, Mr. Rudié will play on three different violins: a Stradivarius, dated 1724; a Guadagnini, dated 1747; and an American instrument, dated 1953.

Mr. Rudié's commentary will prove both interesting and entertaining, for in addition to being an outstanding violin virtuoso, he is also a wise and witty raconteur, whose lecture recitals have won a host of friends for good music from coast to coast through his genial good humor and easy charm. For example: a usually hypercritical audience of students at a College of Mines was so fascinated by his remarks that they held the artist backstage after the performance for an hour and a half to exhibit his rare violins and to answer the most technical questions on acoustics and construction. And only last spring in Oklahoma City, a symposium on rare violins was announced for a Saturday morning to be held at The Art Center. About 100 people were expected. Four thousand persons showed up, and the Center had insufficient space to take care of the throng.

While Rudié's popularity has been greatly enhanced by his ebullient personality, his stature as an artist rests firmly on his musical achievements. A versatile musician, he has enjoyed a varied career. He is the veteran of several New York recitals. He has appeared as soloist with a score of major orchestras under leading conductors. He has appeared in recitals from coast to coast, and on international radio hookups as well as television shows: He was twice — in 1951 and 1953 — invited to appear with the elite of the world's musicians at the celebrated Casals Festival at Prades, France. He spent the summer of 1955 as a performer, conductor and narrator at the music festival at Aspen, Colorado.

In guest appearances Rudié has enlivened many television shows, most notably his own long-term series, "Fun with Music."

SENATE VACANCIES

Vacancies in the 102-seat Senate increased to 16 with the death of Senator John J. Stevenson, 84, Saskatchewan Liberal who was appointed in 1940. It was the third death among senatorial ranks within a week, following Senator John T. Hackett, 72, Quebec Progressive Conservative, and Senator Adelard Godbout, 64, Quebec Liberal. The Senate standing now: Liberals 78, Progressive Conservative five, Independent Liberal one, Independent one, no affiliation one, vacant 16.

Lachute Battery Takes Part in Militia Parade

10th Militia Group Bids Farewell to Brigadier On Change of Command

The Lachute Battery of Artillery (131 Battery of the 37th Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery) formed part of the 10th Militia Group to bid farewell to Brigadier J. Aird Nesbitt, when he turned over his command to Col. Duncan C. Campbell.

The local battery, under command of Major H. Stutt, was transported to Montreal by bus and formed up at the Westmount Athletic Grounds with other troops from No. 10 Militia Group. Sgt. R. (Bob) St. Laurent was the NCO in charge of the local Battery.

Brig. Nesbitt told the parade: "It is fine to have tradition, but that is not enough. Tradition must be kept shiny to have efficiency, and this is necessary to do a job against enemies of The Queen."

Following is the order of parade past the saluting base:

6th Duke of Connaught's Royal Canadian Hussars led by the Regimental Band; 7th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars led by the Regimental Band; The Royal Canadian Artillery Band; 34th Field Regiment RCA; 37th Field Regiment RCA; 2nd Medium Regiment RCA; 51st Medium Anti-Aircraft Regiment RCA; 2nd Anti-Aircraft Observation Centre RCA; 3rd Locating Battery RCA; 11th Signals Regiment led by the Regimental Band; Canadian Grenadier Guards led by the Regimental Band; The Victoria Rifles of Canada led by Regimental Band; 3rd Battalion Black Watch led by Regimental Band; Black Watch Cadets led by Cadet Band; and affiliated services, led by RCAMC Pipe and Drums.

Immunization Stressed in Week September 23-29

Fourteen years ago, in Canada, there were 2,804 cases of diphtheria in one year, with 287 deaths; 6 cases of smallpox with no deaths; 19,082 cases of whooping cough with 416 deaths. . . .

That same year saw the birth of what has become an annual reminder to all Canadian parents that their children are not safe from these diseases unless they are immunized — National Immunization Week. The success of this Week, sponsored by the Health League of Canada in co-operation with departments of health throughout the country, is shown by the figures for 1955 — 139 cases of diphtheria, with 15 deaths; no cases of smallpox and no deaths; 13,682 cases of whooping cough with 136 deaths.

Medical science has discovered the means of combatting these diseases, but they are still with us, and will be until total immunization is achieved.

Deer Hunting Season Opens

The deer hunting season for this territory got off to a slow start on Tuesday, with few startling reports of an early kill. Zone C regulations (which include this district) are similar to past years, the season being open on male, female and young. The season closes Saturday, November 24.

A detailed outline of the various hunting zones and the regulations governing them, is available in the official summary of the "1956 Hunting Laws." There is, however, a special season on Anticosti Island where hunting is permitted from August 15 to February 1, 1957.

A hunter is allowed to kill only one deer in any one season (unless otherwise specified, as on Anticosti Island) and it is forbidden to transport moose, deer or parts thereof without a transport permit obtainable from a game warden.

The moose hunting season is set from October 1 to October 10, with hunting forbidden in parks and reserves, in Zones A and B and the County of Argenteuil.

There is no closed season of bears except on leased hunting territories, where the open season is from August 21 to June 30.

Hunting license fees are as follows:

All game, including bear, except moose, deer and fur-bearing animals (this covers birds), residents $2.10, non-resident, $15.50.

Moose only, resident, $10.50; non-resident, $101.

Deer only, resident, $3.25; non-resident, $25.50.

It is also unlawful for any resident or non-resident to hunt without a license; for any person aged less than 16 years to hunt unless holding a hunting permit and accompanied by another responsible person, at least 21 years of age, holder of a hunting permit. This regulation does not apply to trappers hunting fur-bearing animals with traps and snares. It is also unlawful for any person to hunt on any leased territory without the permission of the lessee.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

by the Canadian Press

By Don Attfield, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 25 (CP) — The resignation of Hon. George Drew as national leader of the Progressive Conservative party has left the field wide open for some half-dozen possible candidates for the party leadership.

But so far no one appears to have the inside track for the post. One who was thought to have an outstanding chance to win the leadership in a fight is Premier Frost of Ontario, and he declared last Friday: "I am not a contender for federal leadership."

Names most frequently mentioned as possible candidates are those of top-ranking Conservatives in the Commons. They include John Diefenbaker, 61, of Prince Albert, Sask., Donald Fleming, 51, of Toronto Eglinton, who was third in the 1948 voting for the leadership behind Mr. Drew and Mr. Diefenbaker; Davie Fulton, 40, of Kamloops, B.C., and George Hees, 46, Toronto, former president of the national Progressive Conservative Party Association.

Two others mentioned are John B. Hamilton, member for York West, and Dr. Sydney Smith, principal of the University of Toronto.

The leadership convention of some 1,250 voting delegates from across Canada is expected to be held at either Ottawa or Winnipeg, in late November or early December. A caucus at Ottawa will consider plans.

Letter of Resignation

The announcement of Mr. Drew's resignation was made here by Hon. Earl Rowe, acting party leader, and Leon Balcer, president of the party association, who released a text of their ailing leader's letter of resignation.

Mr. Drew, 62, who has been in and out of hospital during the past two months with one long period of rest, said his decision reached in his

Taxpayers File Their Protests On Town Valuation Increases

Various Cases To Be Considered Before Property Roll Homologated

Over a dozen proprietors lodged complaints as to increased valuations, at a special session of the Lachute Town Council held last Thursday evening. The evaluators' report had been tabled during the month of August, showing an increase of approximately $740,000 over last year's figure of $6,390,525. . . Alderman Judes E. Charlebois and Dr. Roger Lavigne were absent from the meeting.

Chief complaints lodged by taxpaying proprietors came from Messrs. Roger Lagarde, Gordon McOuat, Robert Marcil, Nelson Lepage and Elie Cyr, with others who, at the meeting or by letter, notified the Council of their displeasure. The complaints were registered by Secretary-treasurer Jacques Poitras, and will be studied by Council before the valuation roll is homologated.

Moving to other subjects — it was proposed by Ald. Ross R. Muir, seconded by Ald. Edgar O. Pollock, that tenders be called for the complete installation of sewer and waterwork pipelines on Brownsburg Road and in the McGibbon "River View" Subdivision and area, to be in the hands of the secretary-treasurer on or before five o'clock p.m. (tomorrow) Friday, September 28.

Ald. Mozart Carrière then moved seconded by Ald. Pollock, that the tenders should be made on forms supplied by the town and accompanied by a certified cheque of 10 per cent of the amount of the bid, along with a letter from a recognized insurance company establishing that a 50 percent contractor's bond policy will be issued, if and when demanded by the Town of Lachute.

Plans and specifications for this work are obtainable at the office of the secretary-treasurer for a $25 deposit, which will be returned to the bidder when the plans are returned in good condition. It was decided that tenders should mention separate figures for labor and materials, and that in accordance with customary form, the lowest or any tender be not necessarily accepted.

The secretary-treasurer was authorized to sell at par, over the counter, the bonds issued in conformity with Loan By-law 202, according to the terms prescribed by the Quebec Municipal Commission. This by-law, authorizing the borrowing of $85,000 to complete necessary public works, was passed some time ago by Council and last week approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of the Province of Quebec.

Ald. Romain Desjardins moved that the basement of the Auditorium be rented to the Department of National Defence for a one-year period, the rental fee to be $100 per month with an option of renewal for an additional year. Ald. Alcidas Laurin dissented from the vote but all other aldermen in attendance approved. The quarters will be used for officers and a store-room for the local unit of the Artillery, with partitioning to be done at the government's expense.

The problem of a police car was once again discussed, and Ald. H. Stanley Church moved, after studying the tenders submitted, that a new car for the Police Department be purchased from Pollock & Graves Motors Ltd., at a price of $1,700 plus 3 percent tax; the car, a 1957 Meteor 8-cylinder, either black or bark blue, to be delivered as soon as possible in October of this year. The vote was passed, Ald. Pollock withdrawing and Ald. Carrière dissenting.

It was then moved by Ald. Church, seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins, that the September 5 motion be rescinded; this motion, by Ald. Church seconded by Ald. Dr. Roger Lavigne, reads that "after study, a sum not exceeding $1,500 be authorized for the purchase of a police car and that the Police Committee be appointed to buy said car on the condition that funds can be found in the current revenue."

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned to the call of the chair.

$500 Cash Stolen From Presbytery By Wily Visitor

Quebec Provincial Police hold several warrants for the arrest of Jean-Paul D'Aoust, who last Thursday made good his escape from the presbytery of the Immaculate Conception Parish, Ayersville, with an estimated $500 cash. Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated the theft, reports the theft was perpetrated in the usual manner employed by this suspect, in cases recorded in other municipalities throughout the province.

D'Aoust, who is believed to be between 30 and 35 years of age, stands 5' 8" in height, weighs about 180 pounds, has dark, wavy hair, is well dressed and speaks English and French fluently.

Around 10 a.m. last Thursday, he allegedly went to the presbytery at the Immaculate Conception Church, making a request to see the priest, who at that time was conducting a funeral service along with the vicar. He then asked permission and facilities to write a letter, and was led by the housekeeper to the priest's office, where he was left awaiting the priest's arrival.

During this period, he apparently searched the office and discovered some $500 in a steel cabinet behind the desk. He left the office with the money, drove by taxi to St. Eustache, where he apparently boarded a bus for Montreal, according to the local detective. The money stolen was yearly dues collected from the parishioners, and was to have been deposited later that day.

Anyone having information pertaining to the wanted man is asked to contact Det. Ralph Allen (telephone 981).

Main St. Office Burglarized

The firm of L. J. Dumais Reg'd was the victim of an early weekend theft which netted the culprits some $83, according to Police Chief Fernand Trepanier, who is investigating the case.

It is believed that the fuel company's Main Street office was entered while unoccupied either Friday evening or Saturday morning of last week, the money being taken from two envelopes in the safe, which apparently was left unlocked.

Chief Trepanier reports that articles stolen in other petty robberies have been recovered, but that no definite action has been taken so far in any of the recent thefts and break-ins.

Cottingham Says Mines Boom Changing Face of Que. Province

Quebec's mineral production will reach an all-time high of $450,000,000 in 1956, Mines Minister W. M. Cottingham predicted this week.

"Quebec is merely at the dawn of a new mineral and industrial age, with amazing opportunities to offer and immense new fields to conquer," Mr. Cottingham told the Foremen's Club at a dinner at Queen's Hotel, Montreal.

He said the mining industry had made such tremendous strides in post-war years that it has "greatly contributed to change the very face of the province."

Mineral production had been $228,000,000 in 1954 and $385,000,000 in 1955 "beating our most optimistic estimates."

He said 40,000 people are now employed directly or indirectly by the mining industry — three times the number of 1930. Earnings had increased from $13,000,000 to $80,000,000 in the same period.

Mr. Cottingham said only five percent of the 340,000,000 acres of land containing ores of different types is now under development, and the remaining bulk of Quebec's mineral wealth remains Crown property.

He said that in the Shelter Bay area, 50 miles west of Seven Islands where 700,000,000 tons of iron ore were prospected, the Cartier Mining Company is contemplating the building of a 250-mile railway from Shelter Bay to Lake Wabash.

"It is our duty as Canadians to develop our natural resources and to make Quebec the coming province of the 20th century," Mr. Cottingham declared. "The future belongs to men of action who are able to organize work, display initiative and regard the difficulties as dynamic forces.

"Far from turning aside from them, they go on with firm determination, with confidence alike in their energy and their province's future."

With a new concept of industry in the making, Mr. Cottingham said, the foreman will be the key man in the future social organization of the factory, the personnel leader of the workers and the manager of his own department.

He said the future of the province will demand a high standard of foremanship in order to preserve the proper equilibrium in emphasis betwen production and personnel.

"There is," he said, "something fascinating and dazzling in the realization that Quebec once again is in the pioneering stage with its unlimited mineral wealth and its extraordinary recent adventures in mining industry."

Local Populations Census

Notary Richard Valois, recording officer for the 1956 Dominion Census in Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, has forwarded the fourth list of census statistics following compilation of figures from the June count. The figures in brackets indicate the 1951 census figures.

Township of Grenville and Augmentation, 1,801 (1,853); Township of Gore, 152 (187); Huberdeau, 1,162 (1,230); St. Adolphe de Howard, 1,150 (320); St. Andrews East 1,652 (1,607); Ste. Monique 1,091 (1,032).

Boy Scout Council Details Area Split In Laur. Division

The Laurentian District Council of the Boy Scouts Association held a special meeting last Monday evening at St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, at which a proposal to divide the District was voted upon and approved.

The executive of the existing District Council was authorized to revise the constitution so that it would serve both the new Districts; also to assist both Districts organize their Group Committees.

The Districts will include the following centres:

Northern — Brownsburg, Lachute, Grenville, Lac St. Denis, Morin Heights, Ste. Agathe, Shawbridge.

Southern — No. 34 O.A.D. (Camp Bouchard), Ste. Therese, Rosemere, Ste. Rose de Laval, St. Eustache, St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, Laval West.

Each district will select an appropriate name for itself.

Division of Laurentian District was considered advisable in order to reduce the distances between various points. The Southern section will derive the greatest benefit from this division as all points will fall within a 13-mile radius, approximately. The affairs of the existing Laurentian District will be wound up as quickly as possible.

The purpose of the change is to reduce distances which have to be travelled by Group Committee members, District Cub and Scoutmasters and the District Commissioner.

Standard Time This Week-End

Lachute and district will revert to Standard Time on Sunday. In order to enjoy the benefit of an extra hour's sleep, the approved moment to set the clock back is at bedtime Saturday.

Church services the following day are scheduled on Standard Time. Railway timetables are also changed. So all persons expecting to circulate or associate on Sunday, should adjust their program accordingly. Hermits or others devoid of human contacts need pay no attention.

Millionth Home

—Central Press Canadian

Buying a home at the Wishing Well Acres subdivision of Scarboro, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Camisso of Toronto find they will occupy the millionth home built in Canada since war's end. Mrs. Camisso, with two active daughters, Susan, two, and Alice, one, is happy to have her own bungalow and the fact that it is the millionth home is not so important. Hon. Robert Winters, minister of public works, and Hon. W. M. Nickle, Ontario minister of planning and development, will preside at ceremonies when the Camissos arrive to occupy the home.

SAILING LESSONS

Vancouver (CP) — Amateur boat sailors will be able to go to school this winter to learn small-boat handling. The University of B.C. extension department is running a 16-week course starting October 3 at which experts will lecture all points from navigation to galley.

LOST IS FOUND

Wanham, Alta. (CP) — Lester Olson was plowing for a neighbor when he lost his wallet containing about $100. After a preliminary fruitless search he went back to the area with the plow and turned over the piece of soil containing the wallet, still intact.

Pollination by Honey Bees

Honeybees are very good pollinators of alsike clover, and one colony per acre has assured growers of a reasonably good seed yield. However, a number of colonies on, or near a field of alsike does not mean these bees will visit this field to the exclusion of other clover crops and other fields of alsike.

If clovers are plentiful the foraging range of a colony may not exceed 1½ miles. When clovers are scarce, bees have been known to fly as far as four miles or more. Therefore the presence of other fields of clover or other honey plants in the vicinity will affect the population of bees visiting alsike.

To provide information on the effect of competing crops on alsike pollination by honeybees, Peter Pankiw, Apiculturist at the Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, Beaverlodge, Alberta, collected pollen from colonies on two alsike fields which were located in the vicinity of sweet clover and red clover fields.

In one location, where the sweet clover and the red clover were one-half mile distant, 64 per cent of the pollen collected was alsike, 20 per cent sweet clover, 14 per cent red clover and 2 per cent from other plants. In the other location where the sweet clover and red clover were one mile distant, 75 per cent of the pollen was alsike, 13 per cent sweet clover, 8 per cent red clover and 4 per cent other plants. Therefore, as the distance to competing crops increases the percentage of pollen collected from these crops decreases.

Farm Income Up

Ottawa (CP) — The flow of cash into the pockets of Canadian farmers rose to a near high of $1,188,000,000 in the first half of 1956, the bureau of statistics reports.

Almost all the increase of $137,762,000 from the same period of last year was concentrated on the Prairies, with higher wheat sales providing the main impetus. The January-June cash figure was the highest since the peak of $1,241,700,000 in 1951. It had declined steadily since then.

Total Prairie farm income showed significant increases, from $417,260,000 to $553,942,000. By provinces, Saskatchewan rose from $176,611,000 to $268,518,000; Manitoba from $68,883,000 to $84,406,000, and Alberta from $171,766,000 to $201,018,000.

Community Pastures For Nova Scotia

Agricultural representatives and other members of the extension services for the provinces of Ontario and Nova Scotia devoted part of their annual summer conferences to visiting and discussing with officials of Canada Department of Agriculture experimental farms various phases of their research and experimental work.

In Ontario, the activities of the major departments of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, were reviewed, and in Nova Scotia a full day was devoted to the study of the research program followed at the Nappan Experimental Farm. Special attention was given to the long term experiments in forage crop and pasture production for the improvement of both marshland and upland areas at Nappan.

Hon. Colin H. Chisholm, Minister of Agriculture and Marketing for Nova Scotia, announced two new community pasture projects for the province which will utilize much of the information provided by the Nappan experiments.

At Mundie, in Cumberland County, a community pasture for upwards of 400 head of beef cattle will be made available this summer on 1,000 acres of marshlands owned by the Department. An additional 700 acres can be utilized later for expansion.

Mr. Chisholm also announced a second community pasture, for sheep, is planned on 6,500 acres of land owned by the department on the highlands at Mabou in Cape Breton. If these initial pastures are successful and well utilized, the project will be extended to other areas of the province.

The purpose of these community pastures, said the Minister, is to enable operators of small farms in the province to increase their livestock carrying capacity by devoting more of the land on their farms to the production of field crops and hay or silage for winter feeding, with the community pasture supplying the summer grazing.

SLICED PHEASANT

Barrie, Ont. (CP) — A pheasant flew through the window of the Unemployment Commission office here, but the window was closed. Glass, feathers and bird showered on office employees.

GOOD SIZE

Grenfell, Sask. (CP) — A one pound, six ounce tomato, 14½ inches in circumference, was grown by John Wolfe, Sr., 75. He said it was the first tomato to ripen in his garden this year.

EVENING COURSES HAVE BIG VARIETY

Winnipeg (CP) — Obtaining a teacher who could teach English to Chinese students was just one of the problems tackled by the director of evening classes here. S. M. Mutchmor solved it by hiring Mrs. Roy Mark, a woman of Chinese parentage born in Vancouver.

The variety of subjects, 115 in all, was the largest yet offered. The largest enrolment again was found in academic subjects, but among the courses are lessons in basic Russian, copper tooling and operation of power mowers.

SCARLET TANAGER IS RARE VISITOR

St. John's, Nfld. (CP) — A scarlet tanager has been seen near the Funk Islands. It was only the third of its species ever recorded in this province.

The bird was first spotted off the northeast coast. It stayed three or four nights, feasting on insects, and left on the next good westerly wind.

BIG CLEANUP

Vancouver (CP) — It took a parade of street-cleaners to gather the debris left behind the Pacific National Exhibition's parade. The task required 48 men working eight hours, with four mechanical sweepers, four flushers and six trucks.

MAJOR HAZARD

Vancouver (CP) — Smoking in bed is the biggest single cause of loss of life by fire, Lt. James McBeth, Vancouver fire department training officer, said in an address to the annual conference of the Canadian Fire Chiefs Association.

BIGGER DEMAND

Lethbridge, Alta. (CP) — Figures released by City Engineer J. C. Neufeld show Lethbridge used 470,999,620 gallons of water during June, July and August this year compared with 463,272,000 for the corresponding period in 1955.

Immunization Week

NATIONAL Immunization Week, September 23 to 29, is sponsored by the Health League of Canada to remind parents that their dependents are not safe from such killers as diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough, which not so long ago wiped out whole families at a time.

Because there is no epidemic at this time, people will be lulled by a false sense of security, which may mean tragedy at some later date. It must be remembered that alongside of the wonderful advances being made in the field of medicine, is the fact that there were 13,682 cases of whooping cough in Canada last year. Scientific discoveries are useless unless they are used.

Immunization against these diseases has been developed to a high point of efficiency, which has been instrumental in lowering the toll of death and sickness. Always in the background, however, lies the fact that prevention is not complete — there are always some people who are too busy, can't be bothered, don't care, or think that because nobody in the neighborhood has diphtheria, they won't catch it.

It is to overcome this potentially dangerous apathy that the Health League of Canada instituted National Immunization Week 14 years ago. It is only through repeated reminders that Canadians will take advantage of immunization and safeguard themselves, thus lowering the grisly toll of death and crippling and economic loss that comes with disease.

Highjinks in the Capital

LOOKING UPON those docile nags, with polished trappings and high-sprung cabs, which line the curb outside the Chateau Frontenac, you take the measure of a horse's prime ambition — just to stand idly in the summer sun and flip the ear at a persistent fly, while meditating on the next feed of oats. So you think . . .

He plods around the Ancient Capital, an itinerary of historic highlights which he knows so well; and you accept the fact that he was born to that servile, humble role . . . little suspecting a fiery ancestry in the past which led the charge on some smoky battlefield; or little thinking the old hack might hear the roar of medieval cannon, or leap to the spur of a proud lancer.

Out of the unexpected, an incident occurs. But here's the whole startling story:

"Quebec (CP) — Eleven automobiles, a truck and a hydrant were damaged recently when a horse harnessed to a caleche ran wild through downtown Dorchester Street. Driver of the open carriage used to drive tourists about the city leaped unhurt to the street. He had no passengers at the time.

"Police said the animal suddenly raised himself on his hind legs in the middle of the busy traffic artery and then ran wild. Most of the damaged cars were parked.

"A truck of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was damaged while efforts were made to bring the horse under control. The caleche was destroyed.

"The horse was taken to the municipal stable (the anti-climax is inevitable!) pending — no, not a psycho-analytic checkup but a prosaic — investigation by city police."

Sidelights on Selling

FROM THOSE who dream up new things to sell and new ways to sell them, we bring you the following brainwaves (culled from recent issues of "Marketing"):

The drive-in system adopted by some American banks for the convenience of customers has been extended by one bank fitting a teller's booth with wheels so it can be driven out to customers waiting in their cars.

Wooden nutmegs have been heard of before now. They have been joined by wooden candles, sold openly and strictly as such, for purely decorative purposes. The newcomers cannot wilt or sag in summer heat.

A used-car dealer printed 15,000 paper napkins for distribution through local restaurants. Each napkin contained an offer of $25 toward the purchase of any used car on the lot. Two college students collected 50 of the napkins and offered them as payment on a $1,200 car. The dealer tried to smile the offer off but after a court case he was glad to settle for a substantial allowance.

MAKE IT BRIEF! . . . When Churchill was directing Britain's war effort he wrote a memo containing this dictum: "It is sheer laziness not compressing thought into a reasonable space."

Seasonal Safeguards

A THOROUGH clean-up around the home can help reduce the high incidence of fires and accidents during fall and winter months. Tragedies may be avoided by a more systematic check-up of hazards in the home.

The following precautions are recommended to householders at this season:

1. See that all leaves and rubbish are cleaned away from the house and eaves. Guard against flying sparks when burning rubbish.
2. Chimneys and flues should be cleaned and checked at least once a year. Have experts inspect heating equipment.
3. Before storing summer clothing, remove matches from pockets.
4. Clear old newspapers, magazines and inflammable materials from attics, basements, garages and spare rooms.
5. Have electrical wiring and appliances checked by qualified electricians. Overloading of circuits is dangerous.
6. Store painting and cleaning materials carefully; keep inflammable liquids in safe, plainly-marked cans; destroy rags or clothing soaked with paint, furniture polish or wax.
7. Protect yourself from public liability — saw off dead tree branches; keep driveways and walks in good repair.
8. Make sure garden tools and children's toys are not left lying about.

Wives and Investments

THE AVERAGE Canadian woman can expect to live at least three years longer than her husband, says The Financial Post.

Since women normally marry men older than themselves, it's clear that a wife is apt to be a widow for upward of five years.

These rather grisly facts help to account for the keen interest in investments being shown by Canadian women.

Female interest in investment is by no means a new phenomenon, of course. What is new is the numbers of women who are seriously interested, and the encouragement they are getting from the business and financial community. The harsh facts of the life-tables, and the experience of what taxes and inflation can do to a family's resources, have led Canadians to realize that investing is a skill which women, too, must learn. . . What does your wife know about investing?

Tempting the Appetite

MAYBE with the summer gone we're just getting more meal-conscious. Anyway, more stories about meals and menus seem to have been catching the eye lately.

There was the story about the great construction work that's been done on the Mid-Canada early warning radar line, due to open operations January 1. It had the incidental comment by one official that "the food has got to be the best."

Even the most isolated radar sites are equipped to dish up steaks, chicken, beef, ham, eggs, fish, fresh bread, jams, tea, coffee and milk — with plenty of pastries, fresh-frozen fruit and vegetables.

We'd just quit drooling over this when along came a description of the British Army Cooking Championship, Philip Harben, a famous television chef in Britain, reported in "London Calling" that the military hospital teams for instance produced different meals.

First was an "ordinary diet", and the menu for that was cream of chicken soup, braised beef and vegetables (fondant potatoes and French beans), fruit pie and custard.

The second was a "light solid diet", a clear soup Julienne, minced chicken and poached eggs, Duchesse potatoes, mashed carrots and caramel cream. The poached eggs were perfect, this expert found, and the Duchesse potatoes were beautifully piped.

Getting hungry? Well, the individual competition came next. They cooked tomato soup, steak-and-kidney pie, parsley potatoes, mixed vegetables with rice, and yeast buns. They had to cook under active service conditions, meaning they used bricks, old oil drums or anything they could find to make stoves and ovens.

The equipment was primitive, but the cooks weren't. Before war veterans start roaring, the expert was careful to explain that of course this isn't the ordinary day-to-day army cooking.

But such beautiful exhibitions by the best of the army cooks encourage the average soldier, he explained.

It certainly encouraged us. We can hardly wait for that Thanksgiving turkey.

Opening Day

My God! We're pinned down — worse than Dieppe!

— Watchman cartoon by JUNIUS

• Geoff's Journal •

"Tocino y Huevos!

Lucky for me I decided to study the Spanish language this winter. The day before yesterday, there appeared on the scene one medium-sized boy of dark complexion bearing the impressive title of Luis Alfonsos Fernandez. A native of Guatamala, Luis is with us for the purpose of learning English. And since I have been detailed to give him all the help he needs in that subject, I am hopeful that a modicum of Spanish will brush off him onto me.

As Luis appeared last evening for his first encounter with the mysteries of English, I wondered what thoughts were spinning around in his brain concerning the new state of life in which he found himself. Here he was, thousands of miles from home, completely out of his element and playing the part of an unwilling goldfish to a gallery of some 125 gawking Canadian boys. How, for instance, was he expected to eat if he didn't know the names of the things he should ask for? In that respect, however, I had very few qualms for the language of love and hunger is universal and I've yet to meet the man who has starved in a strange country.

As we labored, Luis and I, it came to mind that one can accomplish untold wonders in a strange country even when one hasn't the slightest knowledge of the language. That was proved beyond all shadow of doubt some 10 years ago, the night Alberto and I invaded Murray's Restaurant opposite the Cathedral in Montreal.

Alberto was a college student I met during the Christmas vacation in 1946. As we walked along St. Catherine Street one evening, we got to discussing this very problem.

"How did you ever manage to eat?" I asked him. "When you first landed in the United States, I mean?"

"Oh, I got along, all right," he answered. "But I lived on fish for almost a week."

"How come?"

"The first restaurant I saw in America advertised 'Steaks' in large letters and that was the only English word I knew. So, I went in and ordered a large steak. When the waiter came back with fish, I was unable to tell him I wanted a steak. I ate in the same place each day. This business went on for five days and, finally, on the sixth day I called the waiter back when he brought me fish and told him I wanted meat. It took him half an hour to make me understand, but he finally made it. I was in a seafood restaurant and their specialty was fish steaks."

Alberto smiled at the memory.

"I never eat fish much now," he concluded.

We were on the point of entering Murray's for a bite to eat when the brilliant idea struck me.

"Alberto!" I exclaimed, "just to satisfy my curiosity, let's pretend that we don't talk any English when we get in the restaurant. I'm curious to see just what we may end up with. You talk Spanish and I'll talk Italian. But remember, neither one of us can speak a word of English."

Alberto fell in with the scheme somewhat reluctantly, and we sat ourselves down at a convenient table.

"Good evening, gentlemen," the waitress beamed. "What would you like me to bring you?"

"Traigame el menu, por favor," Alberto chirped.

"Si," I added helpfully.

"The what?" the waitress asked. Then she added hopefully that she hoped we spoke French.

"No Franch. Solamente Espanol."

The waitress smiled wanly and retired to the kitchen. She returned shortly after with the hostess who took it upon herself to try a number of Germanic dialects upon us, but to no avail.

"I guess you'll just have to do your best with them," she informed the waitress finally. "It's a sure thing they don't speak German, Dutch, or Danish, either."

So, left to her own devices, the harried waitress set about the task of getting us fed. She did quite well, too, considering that she had to abandon her French and English props and launch into sign language.

By cackling like a hen and grunting like a pig, Alberto and I succeeded in getting bacon and eggs for the first course, together with a round of bread and butter each. For the second course Bert got us two thundering great chocolate sundaes and some coffee. All in all, we didn't do too badly. And we were the centre of attraction among the waitresses for the duration of the meal.

"As long as you have the money," Bert commented when we stepped into the street once more, "you'll never starve."

Friend Luis isn't likely to starve down here, either, as far as I can see. He did very well at breakfast on the morning following his arrival — as well he might have. I've since discovered he knows a lot more English than I know Spanish. Tonight, in fact, he offered to teach me his language during the winter, if I'm interested!

Feed Prices and Supplies

Feed prices should stay fairly stable for the winter, provided the supply can reach the consumer. But the IF is, will it reach? . . .

During summer and fall, when feeding is lighter, we have shipping on the Great Lakes in addition to the railways. This reduces the freight charges and also the railroad haul, in consequence the railways have more cars available to haul to the head of the lakes. After the freeze-up (which now seems to be just around the corner), all the grain has to come all the way by rail, this taking more cars on account of the longer haul, and the railways don't have enough cars to do it with. So, as the winter wears along, the supply of grain in the east dwindles; and as it gets scarcer, those who hold it ask more for it. This is natural; if you invest your money in grain and pay storage charges on it all winter, you will expect to get it back.

To those who can, I feel they will not lose if they stock up for the winter now. And if you cannot stock enough for all winter, stock as much as you can — and don't forget to use your banker if you need help. He is in a lot better position to help you than your feed dealer. That is what he is in business for.

In stocking up, remember PURINA CHOWS are made to be fed with your home crops; they will make them last more longer, give better results, and make you more money.

Won't you give us your order today? We deliver.

OF MANY THINGS

Self-Improvement

I picked up an old, old book the other day and found some fascinating information about self-improvement.

The book was written almost a century ago, but I checked up with some important present-day authorities and find that the facts are all in order.

If you want to improve yourself you can take courage from these findings.

If, for example, you exercise your right arm in order to make it stronger, you will discover, much to your surprise, that you have strengthened more than your right arm. Your left arm will also appear to be stronger, even though you did not use it in the exercise. According to the old book I've been reading, there is a reason for this. In your exercising you strengthened your will. A good deal of your strength lies in the will, rather than the muscles. Many a husky man has found this out when floored by a skinny, weak-looking opponent — with a strong will!

Self-improvement is all-embracing. Practice charity, for example, and your faith will be strengthened, too. Practice thrift and your earning power will increase. One virtue contributes to another; there is a progression which works in your favor once you take the first step forward towards virtue.

This progression explains why some specialists have also a remarkable variety of additional skills. In becoming truly great in their specialty, they have strengthened the will. A good doctor, for example, could become a fine mechanic quickly.

So, do not be too concerned about the position you now hold in life. Do it really well, and you strengthen yourself in countless ways, ready for fresh opportunities. A really fine store clerk increases his ability each day to become the owner and operator of the business.

It must be admitted, however, that the same rules apply in reverse. Do a poor job in one line, and you deplete your ability to do any other kind of work. The lazy, sloppy carpenter who dreams of becoming a great contractor dreams in vain, because he has climbed on the skids which are greased by his own shortcomings.

Whatever this day brings you to do, do it as well as you can. Then you'll be ready to do a better, more important job tomorrow. It can't be otherwise. These are laws of nature. Work with them and you succeed. Disobey them and you fail.

It is that simple, and that difficult!

Tommy: "Mom, is it true that we come from dust and will return to dust?"

Mom: "Yes, dear, that's what the Bible says. Why?"

Tommy: "Well, I just looked under my bed and there's somebody there, either coming or going."

A man who came into the district Income Tax Office, had been in a slight accident the week previous and had a piece of adhesive tape stretched across the bridge of his nose.

The tax collector was sympathetic: "Had an accident to your nose?" he asked.

"No," snarled the man, "I've been paying through it so often it's cracked under the strain."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

There are many pleasures to light a dark world, in the autumn. For instance:

A tree full of small birds exploding into flight. The honk of wild geese.

The shiny face of a chestnut, broken from its husk. Boys gather the nuts to play with. A grown man furtively hides a chestnut in his pocket and examines it when he thinks nobody is looking. The nut is a talisman of boyhood. Its pure high gloss, like the bowl of a new pipe, soon fades to a dry, tough brown.

The smell of apples, and leaf-smoke. Yellow, brown and tired green foliage reflected in a lake, until a wind smashes the mirror and sends the leaves flying.

The comfortable look of a black cat which has already left its favorite place in the bushes and taken up its winter position, curled in a tight, slick bundle on the sofa.

The squeak of a rural mailbox, as the carrier swings it on its rusty pivot. What's in the box today? A parcel from grandmother? Letters, papers, bills, invitations to borrow money at ruinous rates? Maybe (if this is a lucky month) some cheques in brighter colors than the autumn leaves.

The pale warmth of sunshine at noon. Surprise visits from friends, making a good excuse to stop work.

A jet plane out of sight, spinning an arch of vapor on a blue sky. Another plane whispering along at an angle to the first, until their trails link in a hollow cross. The pattern of machine-made cloud could mean hope, or else fire and death, the autumn of the world.

OBITUARY

Lifelong Resident, One of Oldest Citizens, Passes at Dalesville

The Late Godfrey Dixon

Godfrey Dixon, a well known district businessman and farmer who for the past year has been in failing health, passed away at his home in Dalesville on Tuesday morning of last week, at the age of 76.

The late Mr. Dixon began his apprenticeship in cheese-making at Harrington and later made cheese in Mount Maple, Stonefield, Rawcliffe and for some 25 years operated his own plant in Dalesville. He also operated the farm which he took over from his father, the late John Dixon, one of the pioneer farms in the Dalesville section. He was a deacon and one of the oldest and most faithful members of Dalesville Baptist Church. He was a jewel member of the Oddfellows Lodge, and also belonged to the Orange Order.

Besides his wife, the former Jennie Arnold, he leaves to mourn his passing four daughters, (Rhoda) Mrs. Lorne Tomalty, of Lachute, (Ethel) Mrs. George McGibbon, of Dalesville, (Lyla) Mrs. George Coombes, of Westmount, (Florence) Mrs. Douglas Cavers, of Perth, Ont., and one son, Clarence, of Montreal, as well as a sister, (May) Mrs. Ray Switzer, of Hayward, Cal.

A service of tribute was held by the Oddfellows at his late residence last Wednesday evening. The funeral service was held Thursday in the Dalesville Baptist Church, the Rev. D. Merrett, of Strathmore, Que., officiating, assisted by the Rev. G. Hicks. The church was filled to capacity, and there were many floral tributes. Interment was in the Dalesville Cemetery.

BIRTH

CLARK — At the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, on Sept. 24, 1956, to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Clark, of Brownsburg, Que., a son.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

DOBBIE — I wish to express my sincere thanks to kind friends, neighbors and relatives for their acts of kindness and sympathy shown me in my recent bereavement, also for lovely floral tributes. — Roy Dobbie.

IN MEMORIAM

ARNOLD — In loving memory of a dear brother, George Arnold, who passed away on Sept. 30, 1953, at Hawkesbury, Ont. — Ever remembered by Olive and Alex Barker.

"Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loneliness never dies,
He dwells in the land of glory
Midst the blue and gold of the skies,
And we who dearly love him
Whose passing brought many tears,
Will cherish his memory always,
To brighten the passing years."

BRYSON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Christena, who passed away Sept. 26, 1951. — Always remembered by her loving husband, George, and family.

"A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keep her memory ever dear."

DIXON — The family of the late Godfrey Dixon wish to express their sincere thanks for sympathy and kindnesses extended them in their recent bereavement.

NIXON — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. James Nixon, who departed this life Sept. 17, 1948. — Her daughter, Kate, son-in-law, Joseph, and grandson, James.

"We mention your name and speak of you often,
God bless you, dear Mother, you are never forgotten,
Beautiful memories are all that are left,
Of one we loved and shall never forget."

McMICHAEL — In loving memory of James White McMichael, who died Sept. 10, 1941. — Always remembered by his friend, Joe P.

"Gone but not forgotten."

75 YEARS AGO

September 30, 1881 —

The Anglican Church, Lachute, will be consecrated on Tuesday, October 11.

Mr. James Berry, of this place, has an apple tree in full blossom at this time.

Three prominent sportsmen last week went on a fishing expedition to one of the famous lakes in the rear of our county; the result of their catch was one partridge and two squirrels! Who can beat that in the fishing line?

Our friend Mr. Fish and the Rev. D. V. Lucas, of Point St. Charles, went fishing on Monday last and brought home two fine muskinonge, the one caught by the Rev. gentleman weighing over 12 pounds.

Brownsburg — A large butter factory is to be put into operation here next spring.

Mrs. Allan McPhee, of Avoca, this week sent us the following item in the form of a post-card dated Lachute, May 2, 1878, and addressed to "MacPhee's, Avoca":

"Latest correct accounts give Joly a majority of eleven members in the Province of Quebec — Joly's majority in L'Othbiniere over 300."

The card also gave the result break-down of polling on May 1, 1878, in Argenteuil in the election of Meikle vs. Pridham, giving the former a majority of 68. The card was prepared and distributed by the "Central Reform Committee."

50 YEARS AGO

September 28, 1906 —

Owing to the exceedingly high price of feed and labor, we understand that the milk vendors of our town have decided to advance the price of milk from 5 to 6 cents a quart and winter customers to 7 cents a quart.

Cushing — Trains of the C. & G. Railway made their last regular trip for the season on Wednesday of this week.

It is high time that our Council seriously took up the matter of a town lock-up, as although we are a peaceful and quiet-loving people, yet disturbances will occasionally arise, and if arrests should be found necessary as in three cases during the past week, the bailiff has no alternative but to waltz them around in public gaze until such time as he is privileged to release them.

St. Andrews East — Mr. E. Calder took Scoutmaster Snowden and a truck-load of 15 Boy Scouts to Sixteen Island Lake for the week-end where all had a good time. The truck made as much stir coming back through this sleepy little village as though it had been loaded to the roof with wildcats.

Montreal (CP) — Canadians now can telephone to Jordan at a rate of $15 for a three-minute call. The extension to overseas communications is routed through Montreal and London.

Married Saturday At St. Simeon's

Young - Noble

Baskets of multi-colored gladioli formed the decorations in St. Simeon's Anglican Church last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the marriage was solemnized of Edna Hannah, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Noble, of Lachute, to Mr. Glyn David Young, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Young, of Calumet, Que. The Rev. C. R. Lang officiated at the double-ring ceremony, and Mrs. Jas. Pollock was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a street-length dress of white lace with a scalloped neckline, fitted bodice and a very full skirt. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a hat of tulle trimmed with pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mrs. Watson Creswell, as matron of honor and the bride's only attendant, was in a street-length princess-style dress of pale pink crystalette, worn with a bolero. She wore a pink feathered hat and carried a colonial bouquet of blue carnations.

Mr. Watson Creswell was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Bryan Noble, brother of the bride, and Mr. Mervin Young, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Noble, the bride's mother, was in a light blue dress of acetate and nylon jersey, with black accessories and a corsage of deep pink carnations. Mrs. Young, mother of the groom, was in a navy blue dress, with black and pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

A supper for the immediate families was held in the church basement, and in the evening a reception was held in Welden's Hall, Grenville, Que. The bridal couple then left on a motor trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a grey dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Young will reside in Hull, Que.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Derrick, of Toronto, sister and brother-in-law of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Noble and family, of St. Jerome, brother and sister-in-law of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Massey, Hawkesbury.

Young Townsman Takes Bride

Deacon - Jones

The marriage of Patricia Denise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Jones, of Ahuntsic, Que., to Mr. George W. Deacon, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Y. Deacon, of Lachute, took place recently in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Church, Ahuntsic, the Rev. Francis Moyle officiating. Mr. P. Doyle played the wedding music and white gladioli, arranged with greenery were used to decorate.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a gown of white peau de soie with fitted bodice encrusted with French Guipure lace. Her finger tip veil of tulle illusion was held by a pearl tiara and she carried a bouquet of white stephanotis and pink Sweetheart roses.

Miss Oskana Bossey, as maid of honor, and Miss Elisabeth Grant, as bridesmaid, were in bouffant frocks of silk taffeta — Miss Bossey being in green and Miss Grant in bronze. They wore matching bandeaus and carried bouquets of bronze pom-poms.

Mr. Ronald Jones acted as best man for the groom. The ushers were Flight Lieut. Gerald V. Frostad and Raymond A. Jones.

Mrs. Jones, the bride's mother, was in a Swiss silk taffeta gown with shoes to match. She wore a beige feather hat and a corsage of orange delight roses. Mrs. Deacon, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of Dior blue crepe with mouselline hat to match; she wore a corsage of pink Delight roses.

The reception was held in the Mount Stephen Club.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Deacon left by motor for the United States, the bride travelling in an olive green tweed suit wearing a gold mouseline hat and brown alligator shoes. They will make their future home in the new River View subdivision of Lachute.

Appreciation

Mrs. Bernard McCart, on behalf of the organizers of a bean supper last Saturday at her residence in Grenville, extends thanks to all who assisted or attended this event, which was sponsored by the Holy Rosary Scholasticate. The venture proved most successful.

Winner of an Ayers blanket on this occasion was Ernie Woodbury, of Grenville.

Ministerial Association

The Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association will meet in the Baptist Church, Lachute, on October 1 at 10 a.m. It is hoped that the Rev. H. A. A. Rose, of Ste. Adele en Haut, will be the speaker.

Gideon Zone Rally At United Church, Speakers in Local Pulpits

The Gideons International is an Association of Christian business men. Interdenominational in character, the main qualifications for membership are "a personal knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour, a belief in the Bible as the inspired Word of God, and membership in good standing in a church which makes such beliefs a requirement for membership."

The Association is best known for its distribution of the Scriptures, which since 1908 has resulted in the placing and circulating of more than four million copies of the complete Bible and over 28,000,000 copies of the New Testament with the books of Psalms and Proverbs in the world. The month of November brought about another milestone in Scripture distribution in Canada alone since at that time in Kitchener, Ontario, the millionth copy of the New Testament, Psalms and Proverbs was presented to a student of grade five. This branch of distribution was inaugurated in the year of 1946.

The local camp is the basic element in the Gideon Association. There are more than 100 in the 10 provinces and a membership of over 1,600.

The local camp has the responsibility to survey opportunities for placing Bibles and New Testaments, and for actually making the distribution. These Bibles are placed in the schools, in the hospitals, in the hotels, and motels, and in the prisons. Another phase of the local camp is that of contacting pastors and ministerial associations for the purpose of presenting the Gideon ministry to church congregations for the purpose of enlisting prayer and financial support.

As an extended arm of the Christian Church, the Gideons work in very close co-operation with the local ministers, as indicated by the following letter received from Dr. J. Allen Blair pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian Church.

"Several years ago while making my first visit to the church of which I am now the Pastor, someone remarked that there were over 20 Gideons in the church. What a most encouraging and stimulating condition: relationships with the Gideons in other pastorates assured me that if a church has over 20 Gideons, it would indeed be a progressive church with a vision and burden to win souls for Christ. The past months have most decidedly verified this conclusion."

"Gideons have always been numbered among my strongest prayer-warriors and helpers, in getting the Gospel out to the unsaved and unchurched. One readily observes, the more Gideons there are in a church, the higher the spiritual temperature seems to be. May the Lord continue to multiply their humble efforts until every hotel, school and hospital is equipped with the only book in the world that can make possible new creatures in Christ."

The year of 1956-57 indeed looks like one of further advancement — the Bible has the answer to man's problems and man indeed with outstretched hand is waiting to receive it.

On September 29 a Zone Rally is to be held at the Lachute United Church. Mr. Arthur J. Burnham, General Secretary of the Gideons, will address an evening banquet meeting.

Also, Gideons for various camps in Quebec will present "The Gideon Story" on Sunday, September 30, from many local churches.

New Anglican Church For Mille Isles

Morin Heights — The Harvest Thanksgiving service held at Christ Church, Mille Isles, marked the end of nearly a century of services held in this historic building. On Sunday evening there was an atmosphere of regret at the thought of the old building soon to be demolished, and a feeling of joy at the prospect of a magnificent new building to be erected on the same site.

The service was conducted by the rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, with Mrs. Norman Patterson as organist.

The Anglican Church has served Mille Isles for over a hundred years, and it was felt the church would grow more as the Laurentians became more closely linked to Montreal.

Plans for the new church have been prepared by Mr. Erwin Bamberger, architect. They make provision for the addition of a hall at a later date.

The Building Committee includes Messrs. M. Dawson, Victor Ward, Norman Patterson; the Finance Committee, Messrs. Gilbert Ryan, Duncan Dawson, Albert Ward; the Advisory Committee, Col. Garnet M. Strong, E. Bamberger and the rector.

The Altar Guild will make plans for new church furnishings. It is hoped many friends of Mille Isles will send a donation to the Building Fund treasurer, Mr. Duncan Dawson, Mille Isles.

Christian Science Special Speaker

How spiritual understanding of God brings freedom from sin, disease, and discord of every kind will be the topic of a lecture on Christian Science to be given in Montreal on Thursday, October 4, by Louise S. Karpen, of New York City. Open to the public without charge, this lecture will be sponsored by the members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Westmount.

Mrs. Karpen will speak in Victoria Hall, Westmount, at 8.15 p.m. Her subject will be "Christian Science: Its Message of Freedom".

Mrs. Karpen is currently on extended tour as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Prior to entering the public practice of Christian Science healing in 1928, she was engaged in the teaching profession for many years. She is an authorized teacher of Christian Science.

Scouters' Annual Conf'ce Thanksgiving Week-End

Dr. Gunnar H. Berg, national director of professional training for the Boy Scouts of America and director of the Schiff Scout Reservation at Mendham, N.J., will be the guest of honor and chief speaker at the 20th Provincial Scouters' Conference, to be held over Thanksgiving week-end, October 6-8, at North Hatley. G. G. Purkis, assistant executive commissioner for training at Canadian Scout Headquarters in Ottawa, will also be a speaker.

GUNNAR H. BERG
National Director of Professional Training, Boy Scouts of America.

The Conference will start with the opening banquet on Saturday evening. Sunday's program will include religious services and two conference sessions, the first to consider the fundamentals of the Scout Movement — the Promise and Law — and the second to discuss and demonstrate the fundamentals of the program as adapted for Cubs, Scouts and Rovers whose ages range from 8 to 18.

Mr. Purkis will speak after lunch on Sunday, summaries of the first session will be submitted after dinner and the evening will close with a presentation of "How not to run a parents' evening." After breakfast on Monday, there will be a panel discussion of everyone's Scouting problems, and after lunch, Dr. Berg will sum up the conference and speak on the question, "What lies ahead?"

Attendance at these conferences is usually upwards of 200, and while they are primarily for uniformed leaders, laymen who serve on Group Committees and others interested are encouraged to attend, and do. G. Robley Mackay, provincial Scout commissioner, will be chairman of the conference, aided by Clarence G. Blake of Sherbrooke, an assistant provincial commissioner; J. W. H. Miner, of Granby, Commissioner for Yamaska Valley District; and members of the Quebec Training Team.

The Quebec Scene

Quebec (CP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey completed a three-day trip to the Saguenay region, where he visited Tadoussac, Port Alfred and Bagotville.

He made the journey on board the Royal Canadian Navy vessel HMCS Wallaceburg, escorted by three coast guard ships, HMCS Blue Heron, HMCS Cormorant and HMCS Mallard.

On his return to Quebec the Governor-General resumed his month's residence at the Citadel. He is to leave the Citadel at the end of September.

The Quebec Bureau of Statistics reported rain and cold weather had continued to slow ripening of all crops throughout the province. Grain crops were said to have good appearance but late-sown varieties are not expected to reach maturity.

The potato crop is expected to be of average size but a lot of mildew is evident, the report added.

Pastures, which have been excellent all season, are still in good condition and milk production is average for the time of year.

Most districts, particularly northern ones, report grain is being cut while still green. In the Abitibi region, almost half the crop has been cut while unripe or turned into pasture.

Mines Minister H. M. Cottingham announced the value of mineral production in Quebec province this year will probably reach $400,000,000. He said preliminary statistics already show production value as $338,662,833 since January 1.

The number of miner's certificates issued and claims registered indicated the greatest increase in the mines department's history, he added.

The 1956 Quebec provincial exhibition, held here recently, attracted 444,627 visitors — an increase of 25,635 over the attendance last year.

A self-taught sculptor named Korczak Ziolkowski has spent nine years and $180,000 of his own money working in the Black Hills of South Dakota on a mountain-size statue of Crazy Horse, the Sioux Indian Chief who defeated General Custer, II and when completed years hence, Reader's Digest reports it will be 563 feet high, 82 feet taller than the pyramid of Gizeh and 5 feet higher than the Washington Monument.

Recent Wedding In Westmount

Milroy - Chapleau

The marriage of Carolyn Morley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson A. Chapleau, of Westmount, to Mr. Patrick Samuel Milroy, of Lachute, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Milroy, of Santiago, Chile, took place recently in Dominion Douglas Church, the Rev. A. Lloyd Smith, D.D., officiating. Mr. John Robb played the wedding music and the church choir was in attendance. Standards of gladioli and chrysanthemums shading from cream to bronze and candles in candelabra were used as decorations, and gladioli tied with gold bows marked the guest pews.

The bride, given away by her father, was in a gown of delustered antique satin fashioned with a fitted bodice having long sleeves and collar and cuffs of heirloom Brussels lace, and a very full skirt. Her long veil of tulle illusion was held by a bandeau of crystal beads and she carried a bouquet of ivory gladioli blossoms and stephanotis.

Miss Peggy Levy of Jamaica, B.W.I., as maid of honor, and Mrs. Raymond Cater and Mrs. Roger Glanville, as attendants, were in bouffant frocks of blue and gold silk organza over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodices, having round necklines bordered with ruching, and very full skirts. They wore matching bonnets, trimmed with ruching, and carried bouquets of single chrysanthemums in shades of cream, lemon and bronze tied with gold ribbon.

Mr. Neil Milroy acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were D. H. P. Door, Mr. Roger Glanville, Mr. Raymond Cater, Mr. Jefferson M. Chapleau, Jr., brother of the bride.

Mrs. Chapleau, the bride's mother, was in a gown of royal blue silk faille. She wore a hat of the same material, trimmed with ostrich feathers, and a corsage bouquet of orange Delight roses. Mrs. Milroy, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of black net over white net and satin, with a white picture hat and a corsage bouquet of gardenias.

The reception was held at the Montreal Badminton and Squash Club. Later Mr. and Mrs. Milroy left for Bermuda, B.W.I., the bride travelling in a coral suit under a blue tweed coat with blue smoke accessories and a corsage bouquet of coral gladioli blossoms and white heather. They have since taken up residence in Lachute.

Processed foods, whether canned, frozen or dried, are going to rise this season, according to food processors. The poor crop of vegetables and fruit this season, coupled with the rising cost of packaging, has made the rise inevitable and as they will not be processing as much, the per unit cost will therefore increase. Fresh produce, too, may rise considerably if the weather is not warm enough to allow crops to mature in the next few weeks. And higher prices here will cause larger imports of U.S. products.

Further Triumph Scored by Ayers Tennis Club

The Ayers Tennis Club, representing Lachute, brought home still another honor Sunday evening following their 4-1 win at the Ottawa Tennis Club courts.

A series of matches was planned between teams from the Ontario-Quebec Tennis League and the winners of sections "B" and "C" of the Ottawa District Lawn Tennis Association. In the Class "C" competition, Lachute, being the winners of the local finals, won 4-1 over the Ottawa Tennis Club, champions in Section "C" of the O.D.L.T.A. league.

Meanwhile, at the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club, a Rideau "B" team downed an "all-star" squad from the Ontario-Quebec League 5-0. Rideau won this section of the O.D.L.T.A. league this year.

Scores were as follows:

AT OTTAWA:
Jacques Bourgoing (L) def. Larry May 6-0, 6-1.

Scores 'Ace' on Local Course

Leo Paul Lavoie, a Hawkesbury member of the Lachute Golf Club, made good the "golfer's dream" Sunday afternoon by shooting a 210-yard hole-in-one on the 15th hole of the local course, this being a "water-hole". Using a No. 3 iron, he was playing with Miss Marthe Lafortune, Duncan Graham and George Tattersfield.

Colford Boys Defeat Mtl. Company Team

Last Sunday Colford's Lodge ball squad defeated "Mair Clutch and Brake" to the tune of 10-4. Colford's started off the game in a shaky way, allowing the Montreal boys to score three big runs.

In the fourth inning Colford's began to hit, and in that one inning scored eight runs.

Jean-Guy Larocque and Paul Paquette were the big hitters for the winners also Jacques Leveillé, who blasted a home run. Allen Mair played an outstanding game for the losers.

Jean-Guy Larocque struck out 17 to win his 17th game of the season, against four defeats.

Next Sunday Colford's play host to Dow of Lachute; game time, 3.45 p.m.

Hay is something we must make between the time we get out of it until we hit it.

October 11 Date For NHL Debut

Montreal — The 40th season of the National Hockey League will open officially on Thursday, October 11, when the Boston Bruins play hosts to the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Detroit Red Wings entertain the Chicago Black Hawks.

Each club will again play a 70-game schedule and the complete 210 games scheduled in the NHL for 1956-57 will officially end on Sunday, March 24. Then Saturday afternoon games have been scheduled this season. All 10 take place in United States cities with the first game slated for January 5. These games will be telecast over the CBS network.

Chicago opens the new season at home on Friday, October 12, with New York Rangers supplying the opposition. The Stanley Cup champions, Montreal Canadiens, unveil their 1956-57 roster for the first time before the home fans on Saturday, October 13. Boston are the opposition. Toronto Maple Leafs play their first home game of the new season on October 13, also, and opposing them are their perennial playoff rivals, Detroit Red Wings.

New York Rangers, always the last team to open a new season at home, play their first game in Madison Square Garden this year on Wednesday, October 17. The Boston Bruins supply the opposition.

Montreal and Toronto play all their home games on the same nights, as they have for the past few years. Canadiens play 13 times on Thursday and 22 on Saturday. The Maple Leafs are at home for 11 Wednesdays and 24 Saturdays.

New York and Chicago have games scheduled at home for five different nights of the week. The Rangers play one game on a Monday, one on a Thursday, four on Saturday, and 13 on Wednesday and 16 on Sunday. The Black Hawks play more games on Sunday nights at home than any NHL team this season. The Hawks play 19 times on the Sabbath. They play three games on Tuesday, six on Thursday, four on Friday, three on Saturday and the 19 on Sunday.

Boston Bruins favor Thursdays and Sundays at home, while Detroit Red Wings play most of their home contests on Thursday and Sunday. The Bruins play 11 games on Thursday and 16 on Sunday. They also play two games on Tuesday and six on Saturday. The Red Wings play all but five of their 35 home games on either Thursday or Sunday. They play 15 times each on Thursday and Sunday. The Wings play one game on a Tuesday and four on Saturday.

NHL In Full Training For New Season

SPORTS CAMERA
By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

National Hockey League clubs bursting with rookie talent alongside the veterans are training hard for the new season, starting October 11.

Montreal Canadiens, defending NHL and Stanley Cup champions, will be favored again, although Coach Toe Blake cautions: "All the other teams will be stronger."

Canadiens, training at Verdun, Que., have lost defenceman-captain Butch Bouchard and veteran centre Ken Mosdell. Bouchard retired after 15 seasons and Mosdell was sent to Chicago. Montreal, however, still have such outstanding performers as Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Jean Beliveau, the league's leading scorer last season, and Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion.

Rookie forwards Paul Knox of Toronto and Ralph Backstrom of Kirkland Lake, Ont., at Canadiens' camp are showing well. Among goalies, Charlie Hodge and Eddie Johnson have been working with regular goalie Jacques Plante and the veteran Gerry McNeil.

Detroit Big Threat

Detroit Red Wings, training in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., again pose the biggest threat to Montreal. Veteran forwards Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe look as sharp as ever and the Wings seem to have a "find" in left-winger Bill Dea who played last season with Edmonton Flyers in the WHL.

Toronto Maple Leafs have undergone the biggest change since last season. Howie Meeker, former rightwinger with Leafs and onetime member of parliament for Waterloo South, succeeded battling King Clancy as coach with Clancy becoming the club's assistant general manager. At 32, Meeker is the youngest coach in NHL history and his team likely will be the youngest. Average age of the players at the Leaf training camp in Sudbury, Ont., is 22 and the youngest is 18-year-old Pat Barrington, a goalie from St. John's, Nfld. But Ed Chadwick, up from Winnipeg Maroons of the Western Hockey League, likely will win the goaltending job made vacant when Toronto sold veteran Harry Lumley to Chicago.

Coach Milt Schmidt has his Boston Bruins on a rigid "get in shape" program. Schmidt blamed Bruins' slow start last season on lack of condition.

New York Rangers, training at Providence, R.I., made a couple of deals in the off season that coach Phil Watson hopes will give his club more scoring punch. Forward Parker MacDonald, a native of Sydney, N.S., and a former Maple Leaf, was obtained from Pittsburg of the AHL. Rangers also got centre Red Sullivan of Peterborough, Ont., from Chicago.

Interest in the Chicago Black Hawk camp at St. Catharines, Ont., centres on the battle between Lumley and holdover Al Rollins for the goal tending job. Coach Dick Irvin promises to have a heavy-hitting defence with the acquisition of Bud MacPherson from Montreal. MacPherson, an Edmonton native, has been paired with rookie Elmer (Moose) Vasko from the junior St. Catharine Teepees in training camp.

Hawks' general manager Tommy Ivan said Chicago would open the season with only one netminder. "We will go with the one who shows the best form in training camp," said Ivan.

That really put the pressure on Harry Lumley, who is 30 years old on November 11, and Rollins, who is 30 years old on October 9. Lumley has had seven seasons with Detroit, two with Chicago and three with Toronto. Rollins had three seasons with Toronto and three with Chicago. Lumley won the Vezina trophy in 1954. Rollins won it in 1951.

"Assignment" Series Starts Oct. 1 on CBC

Canadian radio gets a shot in the arm this fall with a new series of hour-long feature magazine type programs. Titled "Assignment", the series gets underway October 1, as a combined effort on the part of the CBC and its Dominion Network affiliates.

"The program's foremost task will be to capitalize on the immediacy and impact of sound," stated Harry Boyle, who is directing the operation and was associated with the CBC's nationwide "Christmas Almanac" experiment. "We are convinced that a great many people in Canada count on Radio as their foremost source of entertainment and information. Furthermore, we intend to give these people a sample of the best radio can offer."

For five hours every week "Assignment" will bring Dominion network listeners an incredibly wide variety of items.

Among other things, the program will include "I was there" stories; on-the-spot actualities; interviews with celebrities; the national and local weather picture; brief commentaries from abroad; music; sports stories from all parts of the country; features dealing with the latest marvels of science and medicine; book and movie reviews; interviews with famous chefs; man-on-the-street impressions from coast to coast; sounds of Canada and the reminiscences of a nation's history told by the people who lived it.

Assignment will be co-ordinated from a specially-built control studio at CBC Toronto. Reports and features will be gathered from points of interest around the world, and from coast to coast in Canada. Contributions from Dominion network stations with more than 100 correspondents in the field will make up a large portion of Canadian coverage.

"With a fast paced show using material that is as current as today's newspaper, we intend to win back many old friends to radio," says Boyle, "and we can do it without extravagance, by using our facilities to the best advantage."

Four New Canadian Television Dramas

"First Performance" is the title of a series of four new hour-long dramatic presentations sponsored by Canada Savings Bonds, to be seen on CBC-TV Wednesdays at 10 p.m. starting October 3 with "Time Lock" by Arthur Halley, author of "Flight Into Danger". Louis Applebaum will compose and conduct special music for the four plays and the host will be Joel Aldred.

The second play is "O'Brien", a comedy by Joseph Schull which was first presented as a radio drama and is now to be televised for the first time. Melwyn Bren will produce this fantasy about a one-time army batman who carries his solicitude for his officer into civilian life as a means of escaping the arm of the law which he thinks is reaching out for him.

On October 17 comes "Black of the Moon" by Leslie McFarlane, a play that will give viewers a picture of the west at the time of the Riel Rebellion. The play will be produced by David Greene. It portrays the adventures of a Selkirk pioneer family held hostage by the Metis.

"The Discoverers", on October 24, tells the story of the crucial 24 hours in the world-famous Banting-Best research undertaking that led to the discovery of insulin, and of the first human life to be saved through this great medical discovery. The story has never been dramatized before. The co-authors are Max Rosenfeld and George Salverson and the play will be produced by Ronald Weyman.

. . . But Not Forgotten: Jimmy Dean

(Contributed)

It will be one year on September 30 since the tragic death of James Dean in an automobile accident. Shortly after Jimmy's passing, the writer observed in these columns: ". . . we know that millions in this world . . . will never forget him." The truth in this prediction is shown by the extent to which Jimmy Dean is still in the thoughts of most people, still receiving publicity through the press, movies, radio and television.

One year after his death, it is practically impossible to pick up a movie magazine without finding mention of Jimmy. Other types of magazines, such as "Redbook", have published articles about him. His first two movies, "East of Eden" and "Rebel Without a Cause", have played to large, sometimes record-breaking, crowds. (The writer admits to having been among those crowds watching the latter film upon seven occasions!) Records about Jimmy and of the musical scores from his films have been heard on radio and TV.

As Louella Parsons wrote recently in "Modern Screen" . . . "No one seems to have touched the heart of the public more than this fine young actor."

James Dean's talent, and the acknowledgment of it, continues, and will continue. His third and last movie, "Giant", is soon to be released, and regardless of whether he wins an Academy Award for his role, it has been promised that he will receive, postumously, some special award at the annual "Oscar" ceremonies. In his last film James Dean ages from a youth to a man of 50, and we are thus ironically given the chance to see what he might have looked like had he lived.

His father, and director Nick Ray, are both writing books about him. Television viewers would do well to be on the lookout, especially around September 30, for the re-issue of "The Unlighted Road", his only filmed TV drama, also a presentation of his life story by one of the American networks.

There have been rumors that a movie called "The James Dean Story" will be made, but we doubt that this will be done for some time. It is too soon after Jimmy's death, and as "no one will ever take his place," it would be difficult to find an actor to portray him.

Meanwhile, for those who want Dean mementos, there are many available. . . The Club's aim is "to do good deeds in memory of Jimmy Dean. We plan to serve shut-ins, Veteran's hospitals and polio victims. A free 4x4 photo of Jim will be given to all members. Those wishing to join should write to Chaw Mank, Drawer 30, Staunton, Illinois."

One of the main objectives of the James Dean Memorial Foundation is "to provide educational and financial assistance to young people and organizations towards the furtherance of the dramatic, musical and literary arts and sciences. Anyone interested in this worthy organization can contact The James Dean Memorial Association, Inc., Hotel Excelsior, Suite 208, 45 W. 81st St., New York, N.Y."

And so it appears that Jimmy Dean has become one of the immortals of showbusiness.

Cross Continent This Week-End With Microwave

An invisible "skyway" will add another dimension to vital communications linking Eastern and Western Canada, when the Trans-Canada Telephone System's microwave network from Toronto to Winnipeg goes into service this Sunday, September 30.

The 1,200-mile communications system will be used by the CBC to bring live television programs to TV stations in North Bay, Sudbury, Port Arthur and Winnipeg for the first time, and will also provide scores of new long distance telephone circuits.

Opening of the new microwave link will be an important step forward towards completion of the world's longest single microwave network now being constructed across Canada by members of the Trans-Canada Telephone System.

The entire network, when completed in the first half of 1958, will stretch 3,900 miles from Sydney, N.S., to Victoria, B.C. Comprising 139 radio relay stations and requiring over 20,000 vacuum tubes to operate, the system will make possible a coast-to-coast television network as well as supplying sufficient telephone and other communications circuits to meet Canada's needs far into the future.

Inauguration of CBC television service between Toronto and Winnipeg on September 30 will be marked by an hour-long afternoon telecast featuring events taking place over the length of the existing network. Pick-ups will be made in Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg.

The Toronto-Winnipeg microwave chain consists of 42 relay points along a route which parallels Highway 11 through Northern Ontario. At each site are massive steel towers ranging in height from 50 to 350 feet, with antennae like giant sugarscoops on top of each. Tallest tower is located at Olive, 40 miles north of North Bay, and weighs 120 tons.

Speeding across the countryside with the speed of light, the invisible microwave signals carrying television programs and telephone messages will take only a fraction of a second to traverse the 1,200 miles between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Construction of the new microwave chain took almost two-and-a-half years, with hundreds of people — ranging from Indians to college students — being engaged in the project. The Indians were used in Northern Ontario to clear six-acre fire-breaks at several sites; the college students conducted some of the transmission tests along the route.

Special alarm and control equipment, which can answer questions and obey orders as well as call for help, is used to "man" many of the relay stations on the far-flung network. While trained attendants are on duty at a few key stations, the others are looked after by remote control.

Another protective feature of the network is automatic switching to a stand-by microwave channel should the picture signal fade on the channel being used.

Spur lines can be provided to serve television stations in centres not located on the basic trans-continental system. Across Canada the spurs already planned will add another 550 miles and 28 relay stations to the main coast-to-coast "skyway".

Next link to go into service will be the Saint John - Moncton - Halifax - Sydney section, in December of this year. The Winnipeg - Regina section is scheduled to go into operation in March of 1957, the Regina - Saskatoon section in May of 1957, the Regina - Calgary section and the Edmonton - Calgary - Lethbridge section in September of 1957, the Quebec City - Saint John section, and the Hardwood Hill N.S. - Churchill, P.E.I., section in December of 1957 and the Calgary - Vancouver - Victoria section by mid - 1958.

A new 1,200-mile Trans-Canada Telephone microwave link betwen Toronto and Winnipeg will go into service on Sunday, September 30, bringing live television programs to television stations in North Bay, Sudbury, Port Arthur and Winnipeg for the first time, as well as providing additional long-haul telephone circuits. The map above shows the television network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as it will look on September 30. The dotted lines indicate future extensions east and west. The complete 3,900-mile coast-to-coast microwave network will be completed by the Trans-Canada Telephone System in the first half of 1958; it will stretch from Sydney, N.S., to Victoria, B.C. A chain of 42 massive steel towers comprises the microwave link between Toronto and Winnipeg. The taller tower pictured here is part of this system and is located at Uxbridge, Ontario; the smaller tower is part of the existing Toronto - Montreal network. The huge antennae on the towers beam the microwaves across the countryside with the speed of light. Live television programs, including sporting events covered by CBC mobile stations like the one shown here, will be available to the stations along the new microwave chain for the first time.

Team Mates

Here are two football announcers who don't just talk about the game but are willing to go right out on the gridiron and get the feel of things. Big Byng Whitteker makes like he's going to catch a three-yard forward made by Steve (The Rifle) Douglas. The two CBC announcers who handle half the Big Four football telecasts came to the conclusion, after the practice was over, that it's a soft touch up there in the announcer's booth; their ten-minute practice was followed by Whittaker's having to use three bottles of linament, and Douglas half a bottle.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Gillian Pritchard, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Irene and Frank Camisso are a typical young Canadian couple. Frank, 27, manages a small company of Toronto building contractors and Irene, 26, is kept busy looking after Susan, 2, and baby Alice.

For six years, while they lived in rented homes, they planned the dream house they would like to build.

Said Irene, "It was to be a compact, easy-to-run home, incorporating all the things we'd found lacking in the places where we'd lived."

The day came when they could start looking around at lots.

"Then we realized that buying a piece of land and building a custom-designed home was going to be too expensive," said Irene.

Lucky Number

"So we compromised. We found a new, three-bedroom bungalow, an easy-to-run, compact little place — in our price range — and we didn't hesitate," she added. The story is typical of every city and town in Canada. Frank and Irene, however, bought the 1,000,000th Canadian home to have been completed since the Second World War, and to commemorate this fact they were presented with a plaque by federal Public Works Minister Winters.

The Camissos were led to their new house in Scarborough, Ont., by a band and majorettes. They were entertained to luncheon by the federal government and appeared on television.

Color News

Plans are announced for the setting up of an idependent color coordination service which will attempt to get Canadian manufacturers to agree to produce household items in matching tones.

The service will concentrate at first on paints, carpets, drapes, furnishings and plumbing fixtures. It hopes to extend to clothing and accessories later.

Four shades of grey have been agreed on tentatively for a start: pink-grey, blue-grey, green-grey and a straight grey. The idea is that if you want, say, a carpet and drapes to tone, you will be able to buy each in the shade you have selected without shopping around.

On the fashion scene, color also makes news. New pastels for shoes and purses next spring will include froth pink, carnival turquoise, yellow tulip, honeysuckle coral, spray blue and whirlpool green. There will also be a new light navy.

The range of other colors is so wide that you should be able to match any shade you decide on to match your spring wardrobe.

Equal Pay

Larger pay checks will be the order for federal government women employees in industry who start to benefit October 1 from the Equal Pay law passed by Parliament at its last session.

About 73,000 women doing the same work as men, or one-eighth of the total 600,000 women employed in Canadian industry, will benefit. The 60,000 women employed in the federal civil service and women industrial workers in Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia already have equal pay.

Harvest Fruits for Home Decorating

An inexpensive yet attractive and colorful home decoration can be made from gourds and melons, with bittersweet and Chinese lanterns for softness and a bright touch of color. Placed on a wide windowsill or on a buffet, this Thanksgiving display becomes the focal point of the room.

When a chef garnishes planked steak or fish, he often adds baked stuffed vegetables, such as halved tomatoes or small green peppers. Then if he wishes to serve an elegant dinner, he may prepare a baked stuffed vegetable specialite to serve before the main course.

It would be served mounted on toast and topped with a fine sauce Hollandaise, Creole, or Bechamel, whichever might best enhance the vegetable flavor.

At this season of plentiful vegetables, I suggest this dish for home service.

VEGETABLE ENTREES

For stuffing: choose sweet green or red peppers, good-sized firm ripe tomatoes, very small turban squash, medium - sized tender cucumbers or very small eggplants.

Green Peppers: Wash. Cut off the tops and remove seeds and cores to form cups. Steam-boil five minutes.

Eggplant: Wash small eggplants. Do not peel. Cut in halves lengthwise. Scoop out the pulp leaving half-inch shell.

Stuffing for Vegetables: Combine 1¼ cups soft enriched bread crumbs or cooked rice with one teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon poultry seasoning, ½ teaspoon onion juice, ½ teaspoon baking powder 1¼ cups heated whole or skim milk, two tablespoons melted butter; a choice of one cup of the following: Chopped raw beef or veal; or cooked beef, veal, ham, chicken or turkey; half-fried sausage meat; flaked tuna.

To complete: Fill the hollowed vegetables with the stuffing. Dust the tops with fine dry bread crumbs moistened with melted butter. Place in a pan containing ¼ inch boiling water seasoned with one teaspoon broth powder or one bouillon cube.

Bake at 375 degrees F. for 30 minutes or until the vegetable is fork-tender and the crumbs nicely browned on top.

Serve on toast with thin tomato or mushroom sauce poured over and around.

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Tomato and Cheddar Cheese Salad
Choice of Stuffed Green Peppers
Squash or Cucumbers
French-Fried Sweet Potatoes
Peach Shortcake with Whipped Topping
Coffee Tea Milk

French-Fried Sweet Potatoes: Peel six sweet potatoes, cut lengthwise in ¼ inch strips. Place in a frying basket.

Lower into deep fat at 375 degrees F. (hot enough to brown a bit of bread in 45 seconds). Fry until golden.

THIN TOMATO SAUCE FROM THE CHEF

Melt two tablespoons butter in a quart saucepan. Add one tablespoon flour. Cook and stir until lightly browned.

Gradually add one cup tomato juice and ½ cup water. Stir in one crushed bouillon cube or one teaspoon broth powder. Add ¼ teaspoon onion salt and ⅛ teaspoon thyme. Cook and stir until boiling rapidly.

SOOTHING REMEDY

A scientist has made statements about the fevers communicated and the contagions multiplied by a tender kiss. Imagine a three-year-old who has just fallen out of a swing, being comforted by his mother with "Let me put some tape on your eyebrow and make it well. It would not be hygenic for me to kiss it." There is no balm for a bruise to the flesh or spirit like a loving kiss.

Resolutions Passed At Annual Convention, Cath. Women's League

Reports presented at the 9th annual CWL convention held in Drummondville, September 14-15, revealed that an amount of $40,734 was raised during the year, most of which was devoted to parish work.

There are 3,748 active and 1,500 affiliated members, 51 subdivisions and 11 dioceses in the Province of Quebec.

Mr. Cloutier, representing Drummondville's mayor, welcomed members of the executive at the City Hall. He expressed appreciation of the assistance rendered by the CWL in their welfare work. The Golden Book was signed by delegates.

Mrs. Roland Brady, president of the local CWL subdivision, presided at the convention luncheon held in Manoir Drummondville Hotel. The guest speaker was J. Hervé L'Heureux, U.S. Consul General — a member of the New Hampshire Bar, a Councillor of the Supreme Court of the United States and a Career Officer in the American Foreign Service for the past 30 years. He spoke of the threat to the security of nations through the doctrines of Karl Marx, with its negation of faith and spirituality, which have a strong appeal for many peoples who are striving to improve their conditions and their standard of living.

To recommend the building of more homes where old persons may spend their declining years.

To go on record as opposing the lifting of remaining Rental Controls until such time as the housing shortage no longer exists. To petition Quebec Provincial Government that such controls as exist be continued until rentals are within the means of average and low-income citizens.

To continue the campaign against pocket literature, magazines, and posters with provocative titles and pictures.

To petition the Federal Government to pay Family Allowances to children in orphanages — such allowances to be used for these children's welfare.

Officers were elected to the Quebec Provincial Council, Mrs. Ross Alexander, of Sherbrooke Diocese, being appointed president.

Imported tweed has been smartly worked into a slim and distinguished suit dress for town. Seaming from the underarms terminates in a small peplum from side to back, which is linked by a small bow-tied belt that extends from the sides. The collar detail is interesting, using, as it does, an overlay of the fabric each side of the front fastening, which is concealed save for two smokey pearl buttons. This is a frock that is good on its own and that lends itself to excellent accessorizing.

National Office Aim for W. Institutes

Next year, 1957, is the Diamond Jubilee of the Women's Institutes. The first one was formed in February, 1897, and a first national convention is to mark the occasion. This will be held next fall in Ottawa, and to further point up the event the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada hopes to be in a position to make the dream of the founders come true — a national office for the Women's Institute.

For this purpose a Foundation Fund was proposed. The national president, Mrs. J. W. Adams, of Ethelton, Sask., had stated that if every Institute in Canada would have just one money-raising event, with proceeds earmarked for this purpose, the objective could be very easily reached.

The idea was presented to Institutes across Canada and favorably received. Quebec results are not in yet, but western provinces are already reporting very satisfactory results.

Use of Fruit in Low Calorie Diets

There is an increasing demand by a large group of consumers for products which will help them control their weight by reducing calorie intake. Diabetics are also required to follow restricted calorie and carbohydrate diets. Fruits are low calorific foods. Although they supply some easily available energy they are low in fuel value. The fuel values of fruits are due almost entirely to the carbohydrates, primarily sugar and organic acids, which they contain. In the past, fruits have been mistakenly considered by many as luxuries, when in fact they provided an actual advantage in balancing a diet. Adequate fruit enriches the vitamin intake without excessively increasing caloric intake, C. C. Strachan, Summerland, B.C., Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture points out.

Fruits may be used as an important part of all reducing diets and in diets of people engaged in sedentary occupations. The characteristic high water content of fruits in some ways is an advantage. It makes the fruit palatable and refreshing. It provides an agreeable means of taking needed fluid and in the treatment of some illnesses fruits are a very important source of fluid.

Quite pleasing fruit products for dietic uses have recently become available. The advent of a new type of pectin (low methoxyl) for the gelling agent and the development of approved non-nutritive sweeteners (saccharin and calcium or sodium cyclamate) has permitted the satisfactory preparation of jam-like products from fresh fruits without the addition of any sugar. A small amount of sorbitol or glycerol is added to give the products a better "body" and the characteristic appearance of fruit in jams. Such a product has an attractive appearance and a pleasing flavor. It has only about one-quarter of the caloric value of ordinary jams. For some time fruits canned in water have been used for dietic purposes. Now the newly developed non-caloric sweeteners, calcium or sodium cyclamate give the canned dietic product a much better flavor. The addition of a small amount of an agent such as carboxy-methy-cellulose to increase viscosity and give "body" makes the canned dietic fruit more nearly like the regular sugar syrup canned product.

Jealousy Is Painful!

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Jealousy is a painful emotion at any age! Have you ever read about the bitter jealousy between Emily Dickinson's sisters? The poetess died and left some unpublished poems. Sister Sue couldn't be bothered with them. Sister Lavina turned them over to Mrs. Todd. When they were very successful, the sisters quarreled. They never became friends again.

Schiller has called jealousy "a magnifier of trifles." But this unhappy emotion, if dealt with wisely, can be a transitory one. Deal gently with "the green-eyed monster!"

The plight of the jealous child is made worse if he is forced to feel ashamed of his feelings. He gets all mixed up inside. Instead, mother can say, "Yes, I know you may feel we love the new baby (or the other young brother or sister) more than we love you, but that is not so. Mother and Daddy have lots for both of you."

Even if he exclaims "I hate Junior!" Mother need not get excited. She can answer "lots of brothers and sisters occasionally dislike each other. But as they grow older they usually become good friends. Mother loves you just as much as she ever did, and she loves you just as much as anyone else."

Parents can help by reassuring the child who is fearful that he is being replaced in his parents' hearts by another child. Fairness and consistent discipline prevent jealousy among older children. Most of all, parents need, throughout the years, to give enough affection to all of their children so that each of them feels secure.

There are many situations where jealousy rears its head. The younger child may be jealous of the older child's extra privileges, such as a later bed time. The brother may be jealous of all the clothes his sister has. The girl may be jealous of the boy's greater freedom in making his way alone. The child with average capacity may be jealous of a brilliant brother or sister who makes much higher grades at school. The rather plain little girl may envy her pretty sister's good looks.

What is the best way to treat jealousy? Certainly it should not be severely punished, nor should it be ignored. The very jealous child is a sick child emotionally and needs help in the form of understanding and love and guidance.

One of the very worst ways to deal with a jealous child is to insist that he "love" the object of his jealousy. Human beings cannot be commanded to love automatically as a soldier springs to attention.

An older child should not be burdened with too great responsibility for a younger member of the family because everyone is supposed to help in a home. Nor should parents ever spur their children to greater efforts by comparing one child's failure to another child's success.

How many children have experienced the bitter apprehension that they are being displaced in the love and affection of their parents! Jealousy is not just a problem which parents may expect to find when a new baby is born. It is a violent emotion which may occur at any stage in life.

"Jealousy is cruel as the grave: the coals thereof are coals of fire, which has a most vehement flame."

Centuries ago, Solomon wrote these words, and how many countless people have been tortured by envious pangs! As parents, beware of provoking jealousy in your children! If a child is torn by jealousy, lovingly help him to grow out of it.

Laurentian Dishes Featured in Display

To let people know of the high standards of cuisine available in the Laurentian region north of Montreal, the first Laurentian Culinary Art Salon will be held at Ste. Agathe, October 6 and 7.

The feature is being sponsored by the Laurentian Resorts Association in co-operation with the Quebec Department of Trade and Commerce, and the Hotel and Restaurant Council of Quebec. Laurentian villagers will also display their handicrafts at the Salon, to be held in the new Catholic School.

Bungalows by Burro

The United Nations estimates that 150 million families in underdeveloped areas lack adequate housing.

One answer is a frameless, build-it-yourself house designed by Canadians of Canadian aluminum. It needs no foundation; is non-corrosive and verminproof; is so lightweight that it is packed in cartons easily carried by plane, jeep or even burro.

The Colombian government has ordered 3,200 of them to help relieve the shortage of rural housing in that South American country. So it's not surprising, with aluminum travelling so far and doing so much, that Alcan is again increasing its smelting capacity in both Quebec and British Columbia.

Morin Masonic Lodge Holds Ladies' Night

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The annual ladies' banquet of Laurentian Lodge No. 81 of the Masonic Order, was held at the Alpino Lodge in Morin Heights last Thursday evening. The master of the lodge, W. Bro. Paul Baumel, was chairman. The guest speaker, R.W. Bro. the Rev. Dr. J. Richie Bell, introduced by the Rev. Robert Blair, Senior Warden, addressed the gathering on the theme of the "Magnificence of Man." He said that man's Magnificence was due to his rational qualities, he has the ability to think, act and believe for himself, and that man is never more magnificent than when he declares, "I Believe in God."

R.W. Bro. E. Bulley and Mrs. Bulley sang two duets for the enjoyment of the guests. About 100 persons attended the banquet. Much of the credit for the success of the evening must be given to the staff of the Alpino Lodge for the thoughtful arrangements made for the entertainment of the gathering.

Weir

Mr. and Mrs. David Dubeau, of Ottawa, spent the week-end as guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Williams.

Friends are pleased to see Mrs. Wm. Owen home from the hospital, and hope she will soon be able to be out and about again.

Mr. H. S. Croysdill spent the past week in Quebec City visiting with Mrs. Croysdill, who is confined to hospital there.

Recent guests at Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Morrison's included Mr. and Mrs. Murray Morrison and sons, Barry and Dawson, of Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Morrison, Glenna and Mitchell, also Mr. Royce Morrison, all of Montreal.

Mrs. E. J. Craig returned home Saturday after spending a fortnight visiting friends in Northern Ontario.

Miss Joan Williams was home from Montreal to spend the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Williams.

Mr. Clifford Larose, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of his mother, Mrs. P. Larose.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the families of the late Mrs. Jos. Boyd, of Arundel, and Mr. Kenneth Dewar, of Lakeview, in their recent bereavements.

Campaign for C.N.I.B. in Township of Montcalm

Mr. M. C. Davis, secretary for Montcalm, who is the financial chairman for the area on behalf of the C.N.I.B., announces that a financial campaign will be held in Weir from October 8 to 22. Chief canvasser for the area is Mr. Harland Schnaufer. Residents are requested to be as generous as they possibly can. Their contributions will go towards assisting 41 blind cases in the County of Argenteuil, and a portion of the money will be spent on prevention work.

Lake Keatley

Mrs. E. V. Duffield returned home to Houston, Texas, after a 10 months' stay with her sister, Mrs. Dave MacVicar.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford MacVicar and family spent the week-end in Ottawa as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Utman.

Mrs. Harry White entertained the Kilmar W.I. at her home, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Watson, of Montreal, spent the week-end at "Bay Point".

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones and family visited the latter's parents here.

"Want some help with your homework, Dad?"

It's a good thing young Ted is only joking. His dad is studying the needs of families like yours for financial protection. If he took Ted up on his offer, the boy would be overwhelmed by problems about managing family incomes, succession duties, protecting a business against losses caused by the death of the owner, and other matters.

Ted's father is a modern life underwriter. Today, life insurance representatives not only study better ways to provide life insurance protection — they seek a real understanding of people's needs, and shape plans to meet these needs, which differ with every family.

You'll find today's life insurance man a good man to know. His progress reflects the many ways in which the life insurance business has developed with the times to meet your changing needs!

Return to Suburbia Not Unbearable, With Films, Plays – Even the Seaway

RE-VISIT TO SUNNYACRES COUNTRYSIDE FINDS AUTUMN COLORS LATE THIS YEAR

"EXILE FROM SUNNYACRES"
By Margaret Cook

Here we are again, writing from suburbia. After the miserable weather of the past summer, we do not feel so martyred as usual. It is pleasant to get heat at the flick of a switch, to be able to assemble a good breakfast in 15 minutes, instead of 40, surprising to be in the city in 20 minutes; even the radio sounds quite interesting after a summer's respite. Then, too, "The King and I" was playing, and later the Old Vic Players arrived, both of which treats we attended.

We were especially interested in the movie version of "The King and I", as we last saw it as a stage play. The interpolation of a burlesque on Uncle Tom's Cabin, which we were prepared to detest, fooled us by being clever and comic. Some of the comedy was unintentional, such as the resemblance of Little Eva to the Duchess of Windsor, but much of it was a shrewd analysis of how this famous American work would appear to a Siamese, or so we presume. Certainly, it was not the usual interpretation. The end of the play was spoiled for the writer by a precocious and political monologue on the rights of man, i.e., the superiority of democracy. The intelligent viewer gets the point anyway, and the unintelligent would not care to be lectured, so why point the moral so blatantly?

"Romeo and Juliet" is not our favorite Shakespeare, but Fifth Form at the daughter's school has to study it this term; so, naturally, we went to see the great lovers, taking along, not only the daughter, but another Fifth Former. As usual, Montreal arrived in numbers during the Prologue of the Prince, which must have caused him to gnash his British teeth. But it was a good house, 90 per cent filled, and enthusiastic, after it arrived. We had seats beside two ladies from London, who were visited during the intermission by an Englishman. To the ladies commenting on the disturbance during the prologue, the man, who was evidently a resident of our city, explained that this city had the worst theatre manners of any city on the continent. We could not, in truth, contradict him. Behind us sat a group of four French-speaking Canadians. We wondered just what they got out of the long Shakespeare speeches. The enunciation and acting of the company were superb, but of that you have probably read in the reviews. Our only comment is that this play, unlike most of Shakespeare, "dates." Where oh where, in this day and age, would you find a pair of lovers like that? Should the Smiths and Joneses have a feud, and should young Smith yearn to marry the Joneses' teenager, he would, just like that — probably adding, "To heck with the old folks!" Then, too, "Romeo and Juliet" has few of those pithy sayings that stud the other plays, and have survived the centuries. Just two have lived on — "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet," and "A plague on both your houses." "Anyway," says daughter, who has to play his part in the school version, "Mercutio gets killed off, early."

The Seaway, for those who are interested, continues to make history at our doorstep. The lock which will be at the foot of our street, is slowly taking shape; the canal, itself, is quite visible; men swarm on and around the gash in the side of the shining St. Lawrence; the cement mixer grinds all day and night, but the blasting is not so frequent, and along the river side of the cutting, Nature is already spreading a green carpet. After a few years, the canal will fit into the familiar picture, and take its proper place in our thoughts. The "calamity" may yet turn out to be a blessing, as the city is getting a gift of 70 acres, alongside the canal, on condition it is used as a park.

As you may gather, life in suburbia is quite bearable at the moment, although never a day passes that we do not think lovingly of the old homestead. We remember with gratitude the lovely day that was Labor Day, one of the warmest of the summer. We all, with niece, Penny, went over to the beach and had our last swim. The water was warm, the sands golden, the sky blue with a few puffy clouds. Penny, who lives in the northern part of our province and has little opportunity to be in the water, was trying to swim. We were amused to hear her saying to herself, as she manfully kicked and splashed, "Come on, Marshall, you can do it." It was a good thought, but she couldn't — not yet. Perhaps next summer.

The next morning, in the unaccustomed heat, we took a farewell walk back to the little lake on the property. Coming back, we had a pretty interlude with some phoebes, who were clustered in a tamarack. They kept fluttering in and out of the tree, calling to each other and, we hoped, to us. "Cheechee-chee!" they would exclaim, then finish with a plaintive, "Phoebe". As we had been hosts to two families of phoebes in the summer, we liked to think this was their farewell. They seemed to be loath to have us leave, flying toward us, then into the tree, answering our feeble imitation of their call. It was like a bit of fairyland, a lovely picture to put away for blizzardy days.

Also, during those last few, hot days, we were always meeting the little jade garter snakes. They seem to like to play dead, only their alert little beady eyes giving their deception away. Peter, the cat, has a horror of snakes, so much so, that even a ravelling from a rug lying on the floor, sends him into feline hysterics! His first reaction is to pop up in the air several inches; he then flattens himself, and puts forth a cautious paw to test the skin warmth of this fearful domestic reptile. When, after a few pats, the "snake" does not put out its tongue, or wriggle away, he gradually assumes his usual pert appearance, and looks up at the interested human, with a sickly smirk, then pretends he has urgent business outside. A cat, like the Orientals, hates to lose face. It has just occurred to me that Peter is a Persian, and near-Oriental, at least.

Visiting Sunnyacres toward the end of the month, we were surprised to see little change in the coloring of the trees. A year ago, the show was at its best, but this time, the phlox were still blooming, the calendulas as gay as ever, the pansies happy, only the zinnias were frozen. And the peas. We were amused to eat frozen peas from the vine, after being accustomed to them in a soggy box. Peas are optimistic vegetables; there were still blossoms on the vines. The apples, too, were well behind their usual schedule; except for that sharpness to the air, it might well have been mid-summer. . . Perhaps at Thanksgiving, we shall see the autumn showing that the Creator hangs for us each year. Tell you about it, in our next.

THAT'S SCOUTING

When six-year-old Nancy Harding slashed her arm from wrist to elbow recently, as she fell and forced her arm through a window, Scout Paul Akehurst of the 105th Toronto (St. James' Bond United Church Troop) rendered first aid, hailed a passing car to take the girl to a police station and later assisted in moving her to hospital. He has received a letter of thanks from Deputy Police Director J. E. Thurston of Forest Hill Village.

Aid for Children's Fund Through Hallowe'en

UNICEF is merely an abbreviation for the United Nations Children's Fund — the world's largest inter - governmental organization concerned solely with children. Each country receiving UNICEF aid matches it more than dollar for dollar, and thus the programs adopted become part of the aided country's own economy and future. Our Canadian government has given vigorous support to UNICEF since its beginning in 1946, having contributed over nine million dollars up to 1955 and increasing its contribution for this year.

The Canadian UNICEF Committee was organized by the United Nations Association in Canada to keep Canadians informed about "the world's children" and to provide a channel whereby every citizen could participate in the work of the United Children's Fund. Last year, the Committee's first experiment with a UNICEF Hallowe'en brought in over $15,000, about $1,000 of which was raised in the Province of Quebec. This year, with time enough for all groups to organize their own Hallowe'en parties and neighborhood canvasses, it is hoped the figure will be much higher.

To assist groups in organizing such projects, the necessary publicity material, the Danny Kaye film "Assignment Children", and tags to identify collectors, are made available. (These may be obtained by writing to Mrs. D. W. Heywood, 5508 Randall Avenue, Montreal 29.)

In the October issue of the Canadian Home Journal will be found details of a contest sponsored by the United Nations Society in Canada. Children of 13 years and under are invited to write an article of 100 words on why they want to help the world's children. The winner of the contest, with one parent, will be given a trip to New York.

REAL FLYING SAUCER HAS ONE PROPELLER

Vancouver (CP) — A group of Vancouverites has built and flown a flying saucer. The only setback is that it's a scale model.

Built in secrecy by Glen Holm and Jack Barnes of the Vancouver Gas Model Club, the miniature saucer is 30 inches in diameter, powered by a .6 h.p. engine, and capable of speeds up to 60 miles an hour.

The craft is driven by one propeller and is almost perfectly round. In flight, it appears like a pancake being flipped to the plate from the frying pan, and most would swear it couldn't get off the ground.

The design, however, gives it better performance, increased manoeuverability. It cost only $50 to build and is covered with nylon.

The next project on the inventors' list is to build a jet-powered model to crack the model aircraft speed record of 160 m.p.h.

The primary textile industry of Canada is made up of about 750 separate establishments spread across the Dominion.

Cadillac

No Reason to Wait Any Longer!

There's not much question about what this man and his young son have on their minds.

They're thinking about Cadillac—and about how wonderful it would be to have one in their own driveway!

And because dreams of a Cadillac are hard to put aside, we suspect that it won't be too long now before we'll have an opportunity to give them the facts about Cadillac ownership.

We will tell them, for instance, how economical a Cadillac is to operate—and how extraordinarily free it is from the needs of service. And we will show them how, at resale time, Cadillac returns a greater share of its owner's original investment than any other motor car.

But the best news will be yet to come. For then we will talk about the generous allowances we can give them on their present car—and how short the waiting period is on the Cadillac of their choice.

Incidentally, have you considered how wonderful a Cadillac would look in your driveway? If you have, we'll be waiting for you with the car and the keys—and a story too wonderful to resist!

Favorable Study Area in the Home Influences Approach to Homework

Chair and table heights, lighting, the color of walls and floors, and a minimum of noise have a direct effect on the study habits and grades of students — according to authorities in these various fields.

What this means is that parents may note a marked improvement in their child's homework if they give him a place to study, and see to it that this place is suitably arranged for the comfortable sitting and comfortable seeing that studying requires.

When children seem to have difficulty settling down to their homework, or sticking to it once they start, the trouble may be partly due to the unsuitability of their study place or position, child health experts point out.

The fine new schools that are going up every day have been designed with these various factors in mind. But too often, the child comes home from the very best of study environments and attempts to do his homework in the very worst.

Many children lie on the floor or slump in an easy chair with their homework. The result is that muscular fatigues set in prematurely, causing attention to wander. Often such positions are more conducive to sleep than they are to studying.

Both good light and good posture are important to studying, the Better Light Better Sight Bureau points out in a recently published booklet, "How to Make Homework Lighter." (A copy of this interesting pamphlet on home study may be obtained without charge from your local electric power and light company.)

Many people do not realize that so-called "eyestrain" is a form of muscular fatigue. Although eyestrain will not cause permanent damage to the eyes, it can make reading and other "eye work" tedious and tiresome and unpalatable. In extreme cases, headaches and sometimes nausea can result. In addition, eyestrain may aggravate a hitherto undiscovered eye defect. Periodic examinations by a vision care specialist can determine if eyestrain is due to the eyes themselves or merely to poor seeing conditions.

The booklet "How to Make Homework Lighter" points out that "proper" light means: 1—Enough light, 2—Light in the right place and 3—Light that is free from glare, shadows and sharp contrasts. Usually such "good quality" light is no more expensive to obtain than poor light.

Light-colored walls in the study area reflect more light and consequently affect the economical use of it. In addition, they help to cut down the contrast between the lighted desk surface and the unlighted areas near it. Sometimes, when it is impractical to change the color of walls, a light-colored "tack board" behind the desk will serve the same purpose.

"Light-colored" doesn't mean white, for such a back-wall would cause glare. A soft color like green is recommended, to keep the environment passive and enable the student to concentrate on his work more easily.

The desk top, too, should be light in color, to cut down the contrast between the white pages of the book and the surrounding desk area. A light-colored blotter can easily fulfill this requirement for seeing comfort.

The desk itself (or the table serving as a desk) should be large enough to provide room for studying and high enough so that the student can sit erect at it. A desk surface of at least 24 by 36 inches is recommended. The height of the desk, of course, will depend on the age of the child. A full-grown high school student can use a 30-inch high desk, the standard for adults.

The chair should be high enough for the student to sit erect and comfortably at the desk with both feet squarely on the floor. It should be without arms so that he or she can get close to the desk. A straight-back un-upholstered chair is recommended.

For students of the third grade chairs from 13 to 14 inches and table from 22 to 24 inches should be used. For those in the seventh and eighth grades, chairs should be 16 to 17 inches and tables 27 to 28 inches from the floor.

The bedroom is a preferable location for the study area because it generally provides better lighting and less noise than the kitchen or dining room. It goes without saying that a spot near the TV set would not be conducive to studying.

Parents will find that their children will make better students if they are provided with a definite place or area in the home in which to study; and if that study area provides good conditions for posture and lighting, conducive to comfortable sitting and comfortable seeing over long periods. And these same precepts apply to mother and dad, too, if they have any "homework" to do which involves seeing and concentrating for more than a few minutes at a time.

The Old and the New

Major-General F. F. Worthington, Honorary Colonel Commandant of the Royal Canadian Armoured Corps, recently inspected the Centurion and Sherman tanks of second-year officer cadets at the RCAC School, Camp Borden, Ont. "Fighting Frank", as he was called by men in the First and Second World Wars, inspected from one of the first armoured fighting vehicles used by the Canadian Army in World War I. The antique, loaned to the school by the War Museum in Ottawa, boasted a two cylinder engine and was armed with two Vickers and one Lewis machine gun. It could "race" at a top speed of 25 miles per hour and was General Worthington's own vehicle at one time during the 1914-18 War. Driving the relic is Herbert "Pop" Saunders of Barrie, Ont., a veteran of World War I.

Equality of Opportunity

By Lewis Milligan

A committee of the British Labor Party exists "not just to 'run' the country' but to change the nature of society itself;" to replace the values of capitalism by the "ideals of democratic socialism." Commenting editorially, The Times Weekly Review (London) says: "That is a proper radical ambition, but what does it mean? One finds in the pamphlet evidence of concern for the underdog (and he still exists even in the welfare state). . . What one does not find is any fresh analysis of such concepts as 'equality of opportunity' and 'fair division of the nation's wealth,' any clear vision of what a society founded on the ideals of democratic socialism would be like, or any recognition of the full price that might have to be paid for such a change."

The delusive fallacy of Socialism is summed up in that phrase, "to change the nature of society itself." In the first place, society is made up of human beings and, if it is a free society, it should conform to human nature. Socialism assumes that human nature can be changed by act of parliament to conform to a stereotyped system of social and economic equality. As Christians we must believe it is possible for individuals to be converted from their sinful ways of life, but that is an inner and spiritual process, which may refine human nature but does not change a man into a robot. The notion that if all men were equal we would have an ideal society is absurb. Such a society would be monotonous and static, even beneath that of the ant-hill, which has its social distinctions.

As for "equality of opportunity," the socialist system would reduce opportunities to a minimum and destroy incentives to cultivate and exercise individual talents for industrial and commercial enterprise. There can be no equality of opportunity without equality of ability to seize and make the best use of opportunity. The opportunity to swim across Lake Ontario is open to all swimmers, but if the swimmers were handicapped according to the staying-power in order to give them an equal chance to win the prize, there would be no incentive for a good swimmer to improve his pace or enter the race at all. In a fairly equalized opportunity race all the swimmers would finish in a dead-heat, and the prize would be divided equally among them.

That is exactly what the Labor Party's "equality of opportunity" and "fair division of the nation's wealth" amounts to.

"Opportunity for what?" asks The Times in its editorial. "For the achievement of power, or the amassing of wealth, or service to the community, or the enjoyment of leisure, or the exercise of virtue, or the development of potentialities? In some respects, though not in all, children of rich parents start with advantage over the rest. But so do children of loving parents, of ambitious parents, of parents who set a high value on education and moral training. Nor does this begin to exhaust the variety of factors that diversify the opportunities opening up to different people in life."

The Times editorial concludes: "The committee raise their hats in passing to platitudes about the importance of saving, enterprise, and productivity, without regard to the effect on these things of the negative tenor of their thought. Their eyes seem to be closed to the possibility that Britain, outpaced by more thrustful rivals, might fall into stagnation and decline while its politicians engage in barren debate about the niceties of egalitarian economics."

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Dog's Life

A dog's life isn't what it used to be. Neither is a cat's.

Household pets these days are having the time of their evolutionary lives. At last count there were more than 20 million dogs in the United States — and science and industry are catering to their needs.

Today's dogs eat nutritionally-balanced rations and play with scientifically-designed toys. Photographers specialize in puppy portraits and canine beauty experts can primp up a backyard scavenger to look like a prize-winning prima donna.

Dogs and cats are social climbers too. Today they're welcomed in many places where they formerly were forbidden to set paw. One directory lists over 4,000 hotels and motels that make special provisions for dogs, so you don't have to leave Fido home when you take a trip any more.

A few precautions are in order if you plan to motor with a dog. In one of his stories, James Thurber describes a show-dog that suffered from "a kind of Freudian car sickness" on his way to every performance. Dogs do suffer from motion sickness just as we do. The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals suggests that several short rides can help get the dog used to the car's motion.

To prevent Fido from getting carsick you can buy a box of long-lasting motion sickness tablets — at any drug store. It will ward off an unpleasant experience. Don't overfeed a dog in hot climates, and be sure he gets plenty of water. Exercise is important, so on long trips let the dog out of the car whenever you stop.

A dog often likes to ride with his head out the window. Don't let him. It could lead to a serious eye injury or other accident.

With a little care and attention, your pet doesn't have to be confined to the doghouse vicinity any more. He can travel as far and wide as you do.

WEEK IN OTTAWA

room at Toronto's Wellesley hospital was "heartbreaking."

Mr. Drew was ill for three months in 1954 with an attack of meningitis. He returned to the Commons during the 1955 session, leading a successful filibuster against indefinite extension of wide powers for Defence Production Minister Howe.

Last autumn he developed pneumonia, but returned to the Commons to lead his party in Parliament's roughest fight in many years, the pipeline debate. He left Parliament before the session ended last month to take a rest following a bout with an infected tooth and influenza.

Mr. Drew's doctor said he had been suffering from "severe physical and nervous exhaustion," but was responding well to treatment and would regain his energy and vigor. Mr. Rowe told a press conference here he has no reason to believe that Mr. Drew will resign his Commons seat for Carleton, Ont.

Mr. Drew thus closes out eight years as Opposition leader in the Commons, joining two former Conservative leaders in retirement: Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, 82, the only former prime minister still living; and Hon. John Bracken, 73, of Winnipeg.

His plans for the future are not known, although his friends say he will find a new outlet for his energies. He has his own home in his native city of Guelph, Ont., and a farm at Caledon, northwest of Toronto. He is believed to have considerable private means.

MAKING HISTORY

Canada entered a new era of power development last week with the turning of sod at the site of Canada's first atomic power plant near Chalk River, Ont.

Ground was broken by Trade Minister Howe and Premier Frost of Ontario at an isolated spot three miles south of the Ontario hydro commission's Des Joachims operating station on the Ottawa River, 150 miles northwest of the capital.

Among 400 persons who attended the historic ceremony were Russian ambassador Dmitri S. Chuvahin, Czechoslovakian Minister Bedrich Hruska and Yugoslav ambassador Obrad M. Cicmil. The three diplomats later in the day became the first representatives of Communist countries to visit the Chalk River atomic energy centre operated by Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., a crown company.

Costly Project

The experimental atomic power station — to be known as Nuclear Power Demonstration — is being built at a cost of $14,500,000 by AEC, the Ontario hydro commission and Canadian General Electric Co. It is expected to be in operation some time in 1959, but will not produce electric power economically. However, it is expected to give scientists the knowledge required to build economic plants.

The Communist visitors in their tour of Chalk River saw the famed NRX atomic energy reactor and the new NRU high-power reactor, but none of the equipment seen by the visitors was on the secret list.

Mr. Howe said nuclear power will fill an important need in areas of Canada where hydro-electric resources gradually are being exhausted.

"If one takes the short-term view, it is possible to minimize the urgency of the Canadian power reactor development program. However, the magnitude of the problems to be solved, if we are to reach the goal of six-mill power (a cost of six mills per kilowatt hour) suggests at once that there is no room for such complacency."

CHAMPION LOGGER HAS MANY PRIZES

Courtenay, B.C. (CP) — Allan Woodrow, known as the "Paul Bunyan" of Vancouver Island, has been winning prizes for 15 years with his ax and saw.

When he isn't working, he's usually off somewhere in British Columbia, Washington State or Oregon defending various titles. He has received a total of $5,000 in prize money in international competition.

At Albany, Ore., Woodrow won the title "best all-round logger." But one cup he wishes to keep more than any other is the Canadian Legion chopping trophy awarded each year at Sooke, B.C.

"This is one I'd give anything to keep," he said. He has won it seven times already, but must face a challenger each year.

He also has won the 1956 Canadian Championship hand-bucking cup, the Empire Day ax-throwing award and the Northwest Championship ax-throwing.

Rehabilitation Through Education

Shoe-shine boys in Seoul, with their tools of trade within arm's reach, listen to Sergeant, Kwon Ung Pal of the Korean National Police as he conducts class in Seoul's Shoe-Shine Boys School. The school, attended by some 670 children—shoe-shine boys, street vendors, newsboys, etc.—was started by Sgt. Kwon, then a private, in 1952. His job was to round up young beggars and thieves, but he found that education was the better answer to the problem rather than punishment. Volunteers of the United Nations Women's Guild donated $10,000 in the form of UNESCO (UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) gift coupons and the UN Korean Reconstruction Agency contributed $5,000 to help improve the school.

Prot. Teachers' Annual Convention October 4 and 5

Classrooms in Protestant schools throughout Quebec will close on Wednesday afternoon, October 3, not to reopen until the following Tuesday morning — thus providing the traditional long Thanksgiving week-end to permit the teachers to attend their annual educational conference in Montreal.

The largest gathering of teachers, principals, education officials and administrators since the founding of the PAPT in 1864 is expected to meet for the two-day conference on October 4 and 5 in the High School of Montreal. Over 3,000 teachers are expected to register from every corner of the province, most of them travelling at their own expense, since only some 125 voting delegates have their expenses paid by the association.

A large number of guest speakers have been invited to address the five general sessions and the 30 sectional meetings provided for in the program. Among them are such well-known names as Dr. Wilder Penfield, world-renowned neurologist; Dr. Marcus Long of the University of Toronto, radio and TV news analyst; Dr. Leslie Bell of Bell Singers fame; and Dr. A. W. Trueman, Government Film Commissioner and former president of the University of New Brunswick.

The president of the PAPT, Mr. John Perrie, Education Officer of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal, will take as his topic the implications of the teacher shortage for teachers themselves and for their professional association. At this same session the Officers of the PAPT will be nominated. Honorary life membership will be conferred at this time on Mr. M. J. Dunsmore, former principal of Granby High School, and on Mr. C. H. Savage, who retired last June as superintendent of schools in Westmount.

This year the two gymnasiums in the school will be required to house the many exhibitors of educational books, machines, and supplies who have asked for space to display their teaching aids to inquiring teachers, administrators, and school trustees. Demonstration lessons and panel discussions will be featured on the program, also a special clinic for teachers of handicapped children. One of the largest sectional meetings will be that sponsored by special education teachers who have invited Robert Gates of the Department of Education for Exceptional Children for the State of Florida to speak on "Community Problems and Relations in Special Education."

Two highlights of the first day of the conference are the President's Reception in the Sheraton Hall of the Mount Royal Hotel from 4 to 6 p.m., and the public meeting in the High School of Montreal Thursday evening, October 4, when Dr. Marcus Long will speak on "The Crisis in Education." The Order of Scholastic Merit will also be conferred on 13 teachers at this meeting.

Q. If my book is destroyed by fire, what do I do?

A. You should report the loss to the local office of the Commission. If the Commission is satisfied that the book actually was destroyed accidentally by fire, it will, if possible, rebuild your contribution record in order to give you credit for the lost contributions.

Q. Will you please explain to me the difference between ordinary benefits and seasonal benefits?

A. The main differences are two:

1. Seasonal benefit can be paid only in respect of unemployment between January 1 and the end of the week in which the following 15th day of April falls, whereas ordinary benefit can be paid for unemployment at any time of the year.

2—Seasonal benefit is payable under certain conditions to a claimant who, although unemployed and available for work, has not enough qualifying contributions to his credit to satisfy the conditions for ordinary benefit.

Army Display Next Tuesday At Auditorium

Regular Army personnel will give an interesting demonstration at the Lachute Auditorium next Tuesday, October 2, at 8 o'clock.

A platoon consisting of 32 men and an additional group of weapons experts from the 3rd Battalion of Canadian Guards, Camp Valcartier, Que., will execute the program including ceremonial retreat and demonstration of some of the infantry's most modern weapons.

The 35-man band of the Regular Army, Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, will come from Montreal to play an hour-long program of military marches and popular musical selections. There will also be an exhibition of photographs, weapons, radio communication sets and other military objects of interest.

Local civic and religious dignitaries will honor the soldiers with their presence at this display, which promises to be of unusual interest. It is expected that a large number of citizens will turn out to see this group of well-trained Regulars "doing their stuff."
