400 Attend Internatoinal Gym Meet Stansfield Takes 3rd Place Trophy

THE THREE TOP POINT-GETTERS in the International Gymnastic Meet held in the Lachute High School Gymnasium Saturday evening were Mino Marion, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan and formerly of Windsor, Ont., Richard Montpetit, of Ecole Secondaire Richard, Verdun and Reg Stansfield, of Lachute High School. The International Gymnastic Meet held at Lachute High School last Saturday evening, was seen by more than 400 people. There was, however, room for another hundred persons, and it is rather disappointing that this event, which was so well planned was not patronized to the full.

The meet was a successful one and there was keen competition with a most entertaining exhibition of gymnastics. Right from the start it was a close race between Marion, of Michigan, Montpetit, of Montreal, Stansfield, of Lachute and Marchand, of British Columbia. In the side horse event Marchand missed his routine and in the parallel bar, Stansfield missed slightly on his routine, while Marion and Montpetit kept on going strong, keeping it close right to the last event. Finals were Marion 53.6 points, Montpetit 53.1 points and Stansfield 51.8 points.

Now Reggie Stansfield is looking forward to the Eastern Canadian Championships to be held in Noranda on June 2, and he should have a great chance to win the Junior Championship as both Marion and Montpetit are seniors. However, Reggie feels confident of a win, even if they are entered.

This trip, will cost $150 and as the money has to be raised locally, contributions will be gladly received. To date, young Stansfield has made an excellent showing and is deserving of local encouragement and support. Anyone interested in gymnastics and in helping to make a champion can contribute by sending in a few dollars to Arne Petersen, his coach, or to The Lachute Watchman.

As a result of the competition held Saturday evening, Nino Marion, of Michigan State University, Michigan, won the all-round championship, and also won the still rings, side horse and free-hand calisthenics; Richard Montpetit, of Montreal, won the parallel bar and high bar and placed second in the all-round; Reggis Stansfield, of Lachute, won the long horse vaulting and placed third in the all-round.

Attractive trophies and cups were presented the winners. Donors of these were Lachute Lions Club, L. Carrière, Farmers' Supply, Giles Publishing House Ltd., J. C. Wilson Ltd., Ayers Limited, Pollock & Graves and A. Petersen.

The program consisted of demonstrations by all contestants of still rings, long horse vault, side horse, parallel bars, free calisthenics and high bars.

Waste Paper Drive

Lachute district residents are reminded of the 1st Lachute Boy Scout Troop paper drive being held this Saturday. Residents are requested to leave paper tied in bundles, where it can be easily seen and picked up.

Child Injured in Crash With Truck

Alain Bergeron, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. André Bergeron, of 428 Foundry Street, Lachute, escaped serious injury last Friday afternoon when involved in an accident at the corner of Foundry and Elizabeth Streets.

The youth was headed in a northeasterly direction on Elizabeth Street, coasting on the down-grade on his four-wheeled wagon. He failed to stop at the intersection and crashed into the side of a Bell Telephone vehicle driven by John Curran, a Bell employee, of St. Jerome. He was apparently thrown clear of the wagon which was crushed under the rear wheels of the truck, and suffered a broken leg, shock and minor cuts and bruises.

The youth was rushed to the Providence Hospital by the driver and a fellow employee and released following treatment.

Summer Sketching For Members of Art Association

INTERESTING PROGRAM INCLUDES EXHIBITION THIS SEASON

The executive committee of the Argenteuil Art Association held a successful meeting at the home of Mrs. G. M. Pride, St. Andrews East, last week-end.

The summer program of the Society was studied and arrangements made for a series of field sketching trips.

The Association is looking forward to a busy summer. It's proposed activities are to include an exhibition of the member's paintings and three loan exhibitions, a pre-season preparatory class, and a summer sketching program. The group has a membership of 65, ranging in skill from experienced artists to enthusiastic beginners.

It was decided to conduct a few preliminary preparatory classes for the benefit of the latter groups, before the season's program begins. The syllabus for this group will include guidance in the selection and purchase of equipment, paints, etc., mixing colors, distance design, perspective, etc.

The first discussion will be held at the home of Major S. Forbes, on Wales Street, St. Andrews East, at 2 p.m., Saturday, May 11. If the weather is inclement the hour of the meeting will be put forward to 10 o'clock in the morning and the instruction will be held indoors.

Thieves Break-In Main Street Store Steal Goods, Cash

BREAK REAR WINDOW USE LADDER TO REMOVE GOODS

The Main Street dry-goods store of Charles McFaul & Son was last Wednesday the scene of a night-time break-in and robbery, a total loss of some $850 being reported by the proprietors.

The robbery was discovered early Thursday morning while opening for business, and Police Chief Trépanier was called to the scene. Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen was then notified and investigated along with other provincial authorities.

The thieves gained entry to the premises by breaking a window in the back section of the store. A ladder was used to enter the building through the window, some 12 feet off the ground.

The loss was comprised of an estimated $75 cash, approximately 500 pairs of women's nylon stockings and some 60 men's white shirts. The culprits tried on several other garments in the store before making their get-away, leaving a large amount of merchandise untouched.

Local and Provincial authorities are still working on the case and expect results in the not too distant future.

New Mail Schedule For Local Service Released by P.M.

MORE ARRIVALS AND DISPATCHES TO IMPROVE SERVICE, STATES POSTMASTER

The cancellation of local mail contracts by the CPR went into effect on Monday of this week and Postmaster Florian Guitard of the Lachute Post Office has released the following schedule, now in effect, for the arrival and departure of mail.

First Class mail is received from Montreal, Ottawa, etc., during the night and by 8.30 a.m. is all sorted. Mail from Quebec City and Toronto arrives by truck at 11.15 a.m.; mail from Ottawa at 1.15 p.m. and again from Montreal at 5.10 p.m.

Mail dispatches from the local post office are also more frequent according to Mr. Guitard, who states that in order to have mail on the Ottawa bound truck, it must be in the hands of the local postal authorities prior to 10.45 a.m. for the morning load and 4.45 p.m. for the afternoon trip. An extra night dispatch to Ottawa leaves after midnight but mail must be posted prior to 7.30 p.m. for this trip.

Dispatches to Montreal will be made up at 12.30 p.m. and 6.45 p.m., the trucks leaving a short time after the times indicated.

Saturday afternoons, dispatches to Ottawa and Montreal will be made up at 3 p.m. and 5.30 p.m. respectively, on a slightly different schedule than week-days and the midnight dispatch to Ottawa will not be in operation Saturdays.

It is anticipated that the new schedule, which to date is but a temporary one, will improve both in-coming and out-going mail service. Changes, if necessary, are expected to be put into effect in the not too distant future.

Night Depository To Be Installed In Local B of M

A dual-type "around-the-clock" depository unit will soon be installed at the local Bank of Montreal office, Donald Hay, manager of the branch, announced this week.

The unit, which is designed for the convenience of customers who wish to make personal or business deposits at any time, is part of the B of M's plan to provide many of its important branches from coast to coast with the new system.

Operation of the depository is simple for both businessmen and current or savings account customers.

Merchants or other late-hour businessmen are supplied with a wallet equipped with lock and key, into which all cash receipts are placed. The wallet is then inserted in a specially-designed chute which leads to a safekeeping unit inside the bank. B of M officials can remove it in the morning and hold the wallet for the customer to make the deposit in the usual way, or, if requested to do so, they can open the wallet and make the deposit to the relative account.

The second chute in the dual-type depository is for use by current and savings account customers who may obtain special envelopes from the bank for deposits to be made at any time, day or night. The deposit slip is made out in duplicate, and and both copies are placed in the envelope together with cash and cheques for deposit. The envelope is then inserted in the slot-like opening of the depository. Each deposit is carefully checked and entered in the relative account the following day, and the duplicate copy of the slip is mailed to the customer as a receipt.

Lost Six Hours, Child Found Asleep In Tumbril Cart

Daniel Decoste, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Decoste, of the New Dam Road, Ayersville, was the object of a six-hour search Monday evening according to local Police authorities who were notified only a short time before the youth was found asleep in a tumbril cart.

The lad apparently disappeared at around 7 p.m. and from then until 1.15 Tuesday morning, a dozen men searched the wooded area prior to finding him asleep a short distance from his home.

The Lachute Town Police were informed of the lost child after midnight and investigated prior to calling in the Provincial officers, who arrived just as he was located unharmed.

Canadiens Hockey Star to Officiate At 132nd Lachute Spring Fair Opening

Jean Beliveau, Montreal Canadiens Hockey Star, will officially open the Lachute Spring Fair on Wednesday, June 12, at 2 p.m., it was announced yesterday following a meeting of the Directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society Tuesday morning. This year marks the 132nd annual exhibition, and many dignitaries including the local Provincial and Federal members will be invited to the ceremonies.

Daily afternoon and evening performances before the grandstand were also announced, these to include Vaudeville acts, a Unicycle, dancing, juggling and a musical clown to work with the younger patrons, with a special program planned for Saturday. Children under 12-years-of-age will be admitted to the grounds without charge throughout the fair, provided they are accompanied by their parents.

The midway concession has been granted to King Shows, of Preston, Ont., a concern new to this district, and all indications to date are that the usual rides along with a few new ones will be in evidence.

Horse racing this year will be held on Friday and Saturday only and the usual women's and student's exhibits will add to that section of the fair.

A Square Dance competition is scheduled for Saturday along with an innovation this year in the form of a dog show. Entries in all events are reported coming in by Secretary Manager Ken Riley, who pointed out that cattle entries close Friday, May 17.

The Lachute Battery, No. 131, 37th Field Regiment, RCA, will be staging a gun demonstration during the exhibition, however, no definite plans have been finalized to date as to when the exhibit will be held or exactly what it will consist of.

Beliveau, the opening dignitary, was contacted through Leonard Bedard, the local Molson's Agent, who offered his services along these lines. The hockey star is a part-time employee of the brewery.

Easter Seals Fund Short of Target, Need Emphasized

It is reported by Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, chairman of the Easter Seals committee of Lachute Lions Club, that due to other concurrent appeals, the canvass this year is far short of expectations. While it is still hoped to hear from a number of municipal corporations and several of the more prominent industries, the returns from individual donors have been very disappointing. . . Only $700 has been contributed to date, compared with $1,289 last year. A total of 3,800 sheets of seals have been mailed out, but only a fractional number of replies have been received.

The practical achievements of Easter Seals are apparent in hospitals and summer camps, where the Quebec Society for Crippled Children aids in treatments and provides orthopaedic devices for crippled children of the province. It should be emphasized, however, that a large portion of the local collection remains in Lachute for the benefit of this community.

From this local fund, administered by the Lions Club, material assistance has been extended to residents incapacitated by crippling disease; a substantial contribution has helped to provide a needy citizen with an artificial limb; a modern wheel-chair has been purchased and is presently in good use. These and many other local efforts have been made possible by local contributions.

It is therefore imperative that the work continue. While the Lions Club are exerting every effort to boost the fund, it remains for individual subscribers to provide the major contribution to this organization.

It is not too late to send a donation, in the reply envelope provided for this purpose. Any who have mislaid their envelopes may send their gifts direct to the Easter Seals Fund, Box 693, Lachute, Que. (Receipts will be forwarded for Income Tax purposes.) . . . Please do your part!

Best wishes are extended to the three youthful contestants.

B'burg Council Holds 3 April Meetings Election Nominations Close Wednesday

Last week the third Brownsburg Council meeting of April was held and several important matters were cleared up. None of the promised deals on the snow-blower materialized, so presumably it will stay with us at least till fall. Tenders were called for the completion of the Woodbine Avenue waterworks, deadline is noon, May 3 (tomorrow). The project will be extended 150 feet along the newly cleared road.

A letter was sent to Chatham Council asking that they work on a ditch between Brownsburg and Mount Maple. This ditch overflows every spring and runs inside the town limits.

Councillor Stan Harris asked if the town engineer, C. Legault, might be instructed to draw plans for waterworks on Maple Avenue South, at the outskirts of the village. Several of the residents would go ahead with the project on their own, then sell to the council when the money is available.

The much-debated head tax was finally shelved when it was discovered through the legal advisors that only towns and cities can apply a tax on outsiders only. For a municipality to tax workers from outside, it must also tax its resident workers.

Municipal election day is May 13. Replaced will be Mayor Dorius Lepine and councillors Ernest Ouellette, Ernest Lavois, and Maurice Pariseau. Nominations will be held at the Town Hall on May 8.

Richelieu Club Plans Annual Racing Event

At a recent meeting of the Richelieu Club under presidency of Bernard Gosselin, two special activities were discussed, which were "The Annual Charity Drive," and "The 5th Anniversary of the Club."

The Charity Drive which has been kept up by Horse Racing at the Fair Grounds, for the past three years, will take place once again this year, on Saturday, August 10. Growing more and more popular, the Richelieu Club is pleased to adopt this means of raising money and at the same time, affording pleasure to its many supporters.

The achievements of the club are well known through daily distribution of milk to the underpriviliged school children, giving of food to the needy, and providing scholarships, etc.

The club now comprises a membership of 46 and meets every two weeks.

Joint presidents of the Charity Drive will be Jean-Paul Roy and Ivanhoe Chevrier.

To celebrate their 5th Anniversary, the event will be held at Lachute Golf Club on October 19, when a special speaker will address the gathering. It is expected that a number of other clubs will also be in attendance.

Seasonal Farm Topics

Fertilizer Damage to Plants

Each year there are reports from commercial vegetable growers and home gardeners that plants have been damaged by top or side dressings of commercial fertilizer. Investigation of these reports says M. McGibbon, Plant Nutritionist at the Canada Department of Agriculture Experimental Farm, Summerland, B.C., has shown that most cases of fertilizer damage were caused by improper methods of application and that the same amounts and kind of fertilizer could have been applied safely if certain precautions had been taken.

Growers often become impatient with the slow growth that young transplants, such as tomatoes, make during cool periods in early summer. They feel that the plants need fertilizer and place a band of it around, often touching the stem of the young tender plant. The result is that a small area of concentrated fertilizer salts is formed which burns the tender young root and stem tissues and may kill the plant. Fertilizer should be spread and worked into the soil before transplanted crops are set out, in which case the plants will not need any further fertilizer until they are at least half-grown. At that time, if they need a supplementary application of fertilizer, it should be sprinkled lightly on the soil in the area to which the roots are likely to spread, but not concentrated around the plant stem. It will then be taken gradually into the plant root zone either by rain or artificial sprinkling and utilized by the plant without damage.

Instances of fertilizer damage to home gardens and lawns often occur when the gardener applies chemical fertilizer and waters it in. This usually happens because the plants were parched before the fertilizer was applied. In such cases, the plants immediately start to absorb water and soluble fertilizer salts, often more salts than the plant can stand at one time, and damage to various parts of the plants results. The safe way to apply commercial fertilizer in such cases is to water the lawn or garden thoroughly the day before the fertilizer is to be applied, apply the fertilizer and then follow with a light watering to carry the fertilizer down to the plant root zone. Even highly concentrated chemical fertilizers can be applied safely by this method.

Chemical fertilizers are a necessity for satisfactory plant growth in most areas. They can be used to great benefit without danger of damage if a few simple precautions are taken in their use.

A Fungus Disease of The Grass Family

Ergot, a fungus disease of the grass family and common in most countries of the world, is fairly serious in Canada on certain varieties of barley and wheat and quite severe on rye. Dr. W. P. Campbell of the Plant Pathology Laboratory, Science Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, Alberta, says if environment conditions are suitable, most grasses act as a source of infection for barley, wheat and rye. Infection occurs when these cereals are in the flowering stage and the fungus growth replaces compounds harmful to livestock and humans, some of the compounds when properly purified are valuable medicines.

Infection is first evident on cereal crops when a syrup-like substance begins to ooze from the head. This material, referred to as honey-dew, is attractive to insects, consequently insect activity around cereal heads is an indication of ergot infection. As the disease develops, the blue-black ergot bodies which have replaced the kernels protrude from the cereal head and are conspicuous in threshed grain. Color tests have been devised to detect ergot contamination in milled grain products.

Modern seed-cleaning equipment will remove ergot bodies from seed grain. The formation and spread of ergot can also be reduced through crop rotation and by mowing grass areas in the vicinity of the grain fields before the grasses bloom. As yet no ergot-varieties are less susceptible to ergot infection than others

Alfalfa Improves Sheep Pasture

Seeding alfalfa at the rate of one pound per acre with individual grasses or in grass mixtures, gave notably greater gains in weight in dry yearling ewes pastured on them in 1956, at the Canada Department of Agriculture Experimental Farm, Swift Current, Sask.

During the grazing period from May 8 to October 22 (168 days) gains in weight by the ewes per acre of pasture were: crested wheat grass, intermediate wheat grass and Russian wild ryegrass, 6 pounds per acre; the same grasses plus alfalfa, 49 pounds; crested wheat grass and alfalfa, 41 pounds; intermediate wheat grass and alfalfa, 38 pounds; Russian wild ryegrass and alfalfa, 70 pounds per acre.

In 1955 the pastures were stocked at the rate of 1½ ewes per acre — a light rate of grazing to ensure a strong stand. In 1956 the fields were grazed at the rate of about 2½ ewes per acre, or close to carrying capacity.

Due to the lighter grazing in 1955 there was an abundance of feed on all fields but during early summer and late fall in 1956 ewes on the grass-alone fields were short of forage though the heavier grazing gave higher yields per acre. The greatest gains per acre in both years were on the Russian wild ryegrass - alfalfa fields and the lowest gains in both years were on the fields without alfalfa.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Nest Egg

In 1949, it took 12 to 14 weeks and 10 pounds of feed to produce a three-pound broiler chicken. By 1951, broilers were ready for market in 9 to 11 weeks — on 9 pounds of feed.

Such fantastic results stump even the animal nutritionists. An unidentified growth factor in the antibiotic may be responsible. The chemical may help the animal or bird get along better on less protein, or make better use of whatever protein there is in the ration. Or perhaps the antibiotic frees the animal of subtle, unrecognized diseases.

Science isn't sure. But it is using the discovery to human advantage.

Poultry nutritionists, for example, find that tiny amounts of an antibiotic formula in the drinking water of hens improves egg production as much as 37 per cent. A teaspoonful of Terramycin Egg Formula in 10 gallons of water cuts laying slumps and causes a hen to lay about four dozen extra eggs a year.

This means the owner of a 200-bird flock may realize as much as $240 more a year. Pullets reach peak production sooner while older birds are kept laying longer. At the same time, feed efficiency is improved. According to large-scale tests at university research stations, as many as 30 more eggs may be expected from each 100 pounds of antibiotic-fortified feed.

Safety Rules In Hauling Pulpwood by Truck

By Manny Wilson,
C.I.P. "Woods Notes"

In a short time the C.I.P. pulpmill in Hawkesbury will be open again for hardwood and in view of the many trucks that will come into the yard we would like to make room in our "Woods Notes" for a few words about safety rules in the truck transport of pulpwood.

In the first place — and we have mentioned this on previous occasions — there is the matter of using chains to secure the load on to the truck. This of course applies to three-tier trucks as well as two-tier trucks. Binder chains and bear traps will keep the load in place and will prevent the sticks at the top of the load from shifting around or worse, falling off.

On the highways, and even more so in the busy traffic of local towns and in the Mill yard, a falling pulpstick will likely cause a serious accident. Why not make a practice of stopping your truck along the road before entering Hawkesbury and making sure that no pulpsticks have shifted out of position and that there are no loose ends of chains swinging about your truck, endangering others on the road. . .

For three-tier trucks it should be no problem to keep the load within this limit. For two-tier trucks, however, this regulation does create a problem. Local authorities expect you to co-operate as much as possible to keep the width of your load within the 8' limit. On entering the Mill yard please do not overlook the sign: maximum speed 10 m.p.h. This applies to outgoing as well as incoming trucks. Even if you are in a hurry to get away from the conveyor-chain or from the Scaling house, do not exceed the limits of 10 m.p.h. Be aware of the dangers of fast driving to the men who work in the yard.

Swinging cranes, conveyor chains, moving trucks and tractors all mean accident hazards for people who are not familiar with the yard. That is why we keep the number of people in the yard to a minimum and it is for the same reason that the gateman asks women and children to wait outside the gate for their truck to return.

There are also a few words to be said about accident hazards in unloading. Quite often one sees three, four or more trucks, one beside the other, on both sides of the conveyor chain. Here our advice would be: Keep your eyes on the man that is unloading his truck across the chain from you. Unload your sticks with care, do not throw them off too fast, or they may jump up from the chain and hurt someone's legs. And be careful for your own sake whenever you roll heavy blocks off your truck on to the chain. Two-tier trucks with a hinged tailgate can unload on the dump.

One of the foremost safety rules here is that during the time the truck is parked on the platform, it should be engaged in gear and the emergency brake applied. What may happen if you forget these rules was demonstrated last January when a truck rolled off the dump and received damages of $150. For the ones among our readers who are safety minded and who are always on the lookout for possible work hazards, these rules may appear to be superfluous but let us all keep them in mind and apply them whenever we can.

Campaign Stresses Tractor Safety

Winnipeg (CP) — Manitoba's agriculture department has launched a safety campaign for farm tractors.

Last year 15 were killed in tractor accidents in Manitoba, a lower figure than previous years, largely due to publicity given to the accidents. But the department believes the fatality rate can be further reduced.

The department's extension service is working with safety officials in other provinces and the United States to demonstrate to Manitoba farmers the latent dangers in operation of tractors.

It plans to demonstrate safe operation of tractors at summer fairs this year, showing also that one of the largest and heaviest pieces of farm machinery can be easily upset, crushing or trapping its driver.

Biggest Factor

Upsets were the biggest single cause of death in last year's accidents, with 11 farmers killed when either crushed beneath an overturned tractor or pinned and drowned in water-filled ditches.

Farmers themselves are showing more concern over tractor accidents. E. P. Hudek, agricultural engineering specialist, says he expects more pressure will be placed on manufacturers to produce a safer machine. A lower centre of gravity and wider front wh adjustable for narrow-row crop considered top safety features.

Speed is another factor. American Society of Agricul Engineers has suggested a imum road speed of 12 mil hour. Most farm tractors are to travel at a road speed of miles an hour and two make hit 45 miles an hour.

Officials in Saskatchewan been demonstrating tractor ha with special attachments standard machine, including a wheel on an outrigger and a trailer from which the machi operated by extended controls

M. D. Thomson, Manitoba cultural engineering specialist a recent survey in the U States showed farming was in the accidental fatality rat the tractor was the biggest cause of farming deaths.

Permit Suspensions

A UNITED PRESS REPORT from Singapore brings the news that a Chinese youth has had his driver's license suspended for 30 years after he was found guilty of negligent driving. This indeed is a sentence well worth remembering and something worth looking into.

While we do not recommend Judge Omer Côté, or any other member of the bench be this severe in dealing with motorists, there is room for license suspensions of a longer duration than the six month period now being delved out. In some cases, a six month suspension may be sufficient but one recent case has brought to light the fact that a month after a local citizen was given permission to drive after having had his license suspended, he was again arrested for driving while his ability was impaired.

To the best of our knowledge, no death or serious injuries have been caused in this district by drivers whose permits have been suspended or cancelled, nor do we want any. Lenience is good in its place but in cases where it is justified, let us hope that Judge Côté keeps up the good work and improves upon it by handing out stiffer sentences in cases where they are justified.

"Play the Game"

IN HOCKEY, BASEBALL, and in any other sport, strict compliance with the rules is demanded, and severe penalties are meted out to those who are "not playing the game."

It is hard to understand — declares a spokesman of the Provincial Department of Transport — why so many systematically ignore the rules of safety and sportsmanship when at the wheel of a car that has the power to hurt and to kill, and cause incalculable damage. Here the lack of sportsmanship not only disqualifies the man behind the wheel, but brands him as an undesirable citizen.

The heavy accident toll is mainly due to:

1—Inobservance of traffic rules and signs — whether it be wilfully or through inadvertence;
2—Taking a turn from the wrong traffic lane;
3—Passing in a curve or on a hill;
4—Failure to signal before starting or turning;
5—Speed too fast for conditions;
6—Failure to stay within the proper traffic lane and outside crosswalks at intersections;
7—Driving while under the influence of alcohol;
8—Failure to STOP and LISTEN at Railway crossings.

A keen sense of moral responsibility should prevail on streets and highways, in order to curb the accident toll. Cautious driving demands normal reflexes and quick reaction, so as to enable the driver to protect himself also from mistakes committed by others.

Diphtheria Immunization

THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH of Detroit, Michigan, last December reported the occurrence of 161 cases of diphtheria with five deaths. In Winnipeg, Manitoba, 46 cases of diphtheria were admitted to the isolation hospital during the late fall, according to an editorial in the Canadian Public Health Journal received by the Health League of Canada. How did this happen?

In Detroit, regardless of economic conditions, preventive treatments are available to all through publicly sponsored clinics or the private physicians office. A medical participation plan in that city provides for all medically indigent to go to their family physician to receive preventive treatments without charge. In Winnipeg, every effort has been made to provide immunization facilities through clinics and practising physicians. It is clear that adequate facilities have been provided in both cities. Perhaps, as a result of the absence of diphtheria over the past few years, parents and some physicians, have become complacent about the disease and fail to recognize the need for immunization. Many parents, too, who have had their children immunized fail to remember that the protection is not permanent and that it has to be reinforced periodically. In the past, when there were many carriers of diphtheria bacilli in the community, contact with the disease stimulated immunity, but now dependence must be placed largely on the administration of booster or stimulating doses. There may also be a tendency to neglect immunization against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough in view of the widespread administration of poliomyelitis vaccine. A convenient and practical schedule can be arranged to permit of administering all of these preventive treatments and the number of visits to the clinic or the physician's office can be reduced. In fact, the administration of poliomyelitis vaccine may well be the occasion to urge the administration of the present triple vaccine against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

These occurences in Detroit and Winnipeg indicate that there can be no lessening of the efforts of departments of health and practising physicians in the control of diphtheria and other communicable diseases for which there are established procedures of immunization.

The price of safety is constant vigilance. Communicable diseases are still a serious menace and neglect of the specific measures of prevention through immunization may be tragic.

Need Friendly Hand

MORE THAN 10,000 Hungarian refugees now are in Canada, and another 18,000 or so are scheduled to arrive in the next few months.

Like the thousands of other immigrants who have come to this country, they eventually will become integrated into the Canadian way of life.

The process of becoming a Canadian is a challenge to any immigrant. But the task is even more difficult for the immigrant who is a refugee.

The average immigrant decides to come to Canada voluntarily and after careful planning. He experiences difficulties in adjusting himself, but they are not nearly so great as those faced by the refugee.

In the case of the Hungarians they fled from their native land to escape communist oppression. They had to leave their homes and possessions and many suffered the shock of losing next-of-kin. Others are worried about the fate of relatives and friends still in Hungary.

These circumstances will result in most Hungarians experiencing a difficult period of adjustment before they will feel at home in this country.

But the Hungarians can be helped if Canadians meet them with tolerance and understanding.

Most Hungarians will go through an initial period of adjustment lasting about two months. During this time the refugees will experience a feeling of exaltation at being in a new and free land.

But after this period the refugee begins to appreciate language difficulties, differences in customs and values and problems to be faced in the future. He begins to experience worry and strain, sometimes accompanied by depression and nostalgia caused by a desire to return to familiar surroundings.

This feeling of frustration and helplessness can be reduced if the refugee knows he is wanted. In a practical way it can be reduced by the refugee quickly acquiring a knowledge of English or French.

A knowledge of either of the two languages will help him in getting a job. It is essential for communication with Canadians and for an understanding of the Canadian scene.

Canadians can help Hungarians become happily adjusted by trying to understand their problems and by helping interpret Canadian ways to them in a spirit of friendliness.

AUDITOR'S CERTIFICATE

To the Members of the Zenith Mutual Insurance Company:
I have examined the Financial Report of the Zenith Mutual Insurance Company for the year ending December 31, 1956. For this purpose the books and accounts were submitted to a convenient series of appropriate tests without, however, entering into a detailed audit of all operations. Also, I performed a general appraisal of the accounting methods of the Company.
Montreal, February 28, 1957.

Relying on my audit and on the explanations received, the above Balance Sheet shows, in my opinion, the true financial standing of the Company on December 31st, 1956, as shown by the books on that date.

Gives Example Of "Democracy" Not In Action

St. Philippe d'Argenteuil

The Lachute Watchman.
Dear Sir,

To a lot of people the words "Divide and Conquer!" are an old story, however, from what we read in The Watchman, it would appear as though for the Liberal Party in Argenteuil at least, the "Divide" part is here already . . . unless they do some fast mending of fences, Mr. Deifenbaker's party may "Conquer."

For the Liberal Party to be defeated in a straight well-fought election would be something all parties have to take sooner or later; however, for them to defeat themselves is another story and to a lot of people who have supported the party for years, it would indeed be a bitter pill to swallow.

All this talk of Democracy will get us nowhere as it seems one man's idea of Democracy differs from that of another. Living, as I do, in Davidson's Poll, I do not think that the delegates chosen by the Liberal Party for this election were done so in a very democratic manner. I know some people who think differently. When a couple of people from the same family decide to name themselves as delegates without calling a meeting or, at least, letting the delegates who had been acting before, know of it, I do not think that is democracy at work. I am told that this sort of thing has been done in most Polls throughout the country.

Now, dear readers, you can take this for what it is worth because, bear in mind, it comes from Davidson's Poll . . . a Poll that has fallen so low it cannot even have an enumerator to compile its own electoral list, but has to have one sent in to it from a neighboring Poll which seems to have an abundance of "Wise Men."

Local Citizen Supports Stand

April 17, 1957

The Lachute Watchman.
Dear Sir:

Taking a stand for what is right, like Mrs. Ethel M. McGibbon has done, as stated in her letter to you, published in your April 11 issue of The Lachute Watchman, takes real courage.

Why can't our constituency be represented by such a person in this coming election? I am not pledging support to any party at this time, but I admire a person who has the courage of his or her conviction.

— Mrs. Helen J. Brown

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Montreal (CP) — A Montreal psychiatrist, Dr. Karl Stern, says the belief that overwork brings on a mental breakdown is a fallacy. What happens is that a person with emotional problems takes refuge by a "flight into work," he said in an address.

How BIG Is PURINA?

Many seem to think that the Purina Company is a "fly-by-night", one-horse concern that is just out to gouge big profits from the feeders! That COULD be done if they were a fly-by-night, but the Purina Company has been in business for 60 years and if they are to continue to make business and profit, YOU, THE FEEDER, MUST MAKE A PROFIT ALSO.

To give you some idea of the size of this Company: Last year the top 50 dealers in Canada, where the Company has been operating for only 28 years, shipped almost 4,000 cars of 500 bags — or a million-and-three-quarter bags, enough to make a train 30 miles long!

From the start of this Company until last April they made 50-million tons of Chows and they plan to make 5-million tons of Chows in the present year. This would make a train over 3,800 miles long and would reach most way across this continent.

The Purina Company is LARGER than the next five largest feed companies combined together, and last year they bought out two of them. Three years ago they had over 40 mills operating.

It seems unbelievable that there are that many feeders on this continent who no longer echo the old objection "Purina is too dear!"

Better get on the band wagon with the crowd; seems there are more on the wagon than on the ground! Call, phone, write or see us for a supply of Purina Chows, and get started making PROFITS. Our prices are right and our service is better.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Small nations may soon be able to make atomic bombs. According to a Stockholm report, Sweden may have the bomb in six years, Israel in 10, Egypt in 20.

Then what? Any pipsqueak tyrant may get up with a hangover and kill half the people of the world before breakfast.

Some future prince of Monaco could blow up Britain in a fit of pique when the Queen declined a wedding invitation. Dominica might scorch Canada into a nuclear desert because our ambassador hiccoughed at the wrong time.

If this report is true, we had better brace ourselves for a deadly crisis every week, instead of once a year. The world will become a larger counterpart of the old West, as shown in cowboy films, when each little guy had an equalizer that would cut down an enemy twice his weight.

A decade hence, entire nations may be buried in a kind of nuclear Boot Hill because they were too slow on the draw.

Gun law might have been all right in horse opera days, when only a dozen or so human beings were liquidated at one time.

But surely it is a luxury we cannot afford now, when the number of victims may run into the millions.

In cowboy movies, if not in real life, the Lone Ranger or Sheriff Tex or some other clean-cut hero rode out of the West in time to forestall the worst of the carnage.

Unfortunately, the good news of the international scene are not as nimble or as true-blue as the good guys of the old West. They have a way of tripping over their own feet. Or halfway through the action, the hero turns out to be the villain, and shoots down everyone in sight, including women and children.

When every little nation gets an atomic gun, the United Nations Sheriff's posse will no longer be good enough. We'll need a police force that has power all over the world. And the good guys and the bad guys alike will have to surrender their firearms.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Lachute, Dalesville Baptist Churches Ordain Minister to Serve Pastorates

On the afternoon of Good Friday, April 19, the messengers of fourteen Baptist churches met at the Dalesville Baptist Church to consider the setting apart to the ministry of Pastor Kenneth R. Miller. After the election of the Rev. Sydney Kerr, of Snowden, as moderator, and Mrs. Ruby Kennedy, as clerk, the roll call was taken and revealed twenty-eight messengers present. These comprised the Ordination Council.

Pastor Miller presented his three-fold statement on his conversion, call, and doctrinal beliefs. Following the reading of the statement, an interesting question period followed; the questions satisfactorily answered, a motion to end the question period was seconded, and carried unanimously.

The Council met privately and made the formal motion to accept, and recommend to the Dalesville and Lachute Baptist Church, Pastor Miller for ordination. This was passed unanimously and Mr. Miller was called in officially to receive the council's decision.

Supper was served in the church hall by the ladies of the two churches. Approximately one hundred partook of the bountiful repast.

The evening service was well attended with the Rev. Douglas Lambie, of Buckingham as song leader. Rev. T. D. Carson, of Drummondville opened the service with the reading of the Scripture and prayer. Following the report of the Council by Mrs. Kennedy, a lovely duet "Holy Ghost, With Life Divine," was rendered by Pastor Miller and his wife.

The charge to the churches was given by the Rev. D. C. Merrett, of Strathmore, and the charge to the candidate by the Rev. J. Fraser, of Verdun. All the ordained ministers were called to the platform, led in prayer by the Rev. W. Wellington, of Hull, and the candidate's ordination recognized by the laying on of hands.

The Rev. B. Ward, of Ville St. Laurent, officially welcomed Rev. Miller into the Baptist Ministry. The Rev. Samuel Dempster, of Kingston, Ont., preached the ordination sermon, very appropriately taking as his theme "The Cross." The Rev. Kenneth Miller closed the service with a prayer.

Rev. Kenneth R. Miller, B.A., B.Th.

Lachute African Violet Club Visits Ottawa, Makes Plans

The Lachute African Violet Club were guests on Saturday of the Ottawa Horticulture Society at their Annual African Violet Show, and enjoyed seeing their wonderful display of plants.

The African Violet is fast becoming the most popular house plant in Canada as well as in the U.S., and no matter how many we have, we always like to bring home another leaf or two. We wonder sometimes where we will find room for any more but "where there's a will there's a way!"

Plans are being made for a trip to the Botanical Gardens in Montreal, in the early summer, so anyone interested in joining the club should do so at the May meeting.

If you like Violets come along and share in a pleasant hobby. The meeting will be at the home of Mrs. F. S. McGibbon, Grace Street, on May 30.

Baseball Salaries, Sky's the Limit

SPORTS CAMERA
By Ken Wells,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Baseball salaries have been climbing ever since the great Babe Ruth hit $80,000 with the New York Yankees, back in the days when the dollar was worth $1, and taxes were much lower.

Today the top players command salaries that would have supported a whole team 40 years ago, and there seems to be no limit in sight.

In the past two weeks most of the highest-paid players have come to terms with their clubs, some after long holdouts. But the wealthiest, Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox, signed his 1957 contract without a nasty word for anyone.

Williams, whose .348 lifetime batting average is the highest among active players in either the American or the National League, smilingly signed for somewhere in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Boost for Mantle

Though the 39-year-old Williams is probably the highest-paid player of all time, the man who really made news was Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' wonder boy.

After weeks of polite disagreement with his bosses, the 25-year-old triple crown king from Commerce, Okla., signed for about $60,000 almost a 100 per cent increase over his 1956 salary of $32,000.

That makes him the second-highest paid on the perennial champions' roster, with salary-honors going to Yogi Berra, the Yankee's bow-legged catcher.

Berra is said to make about $61,500, but he doesn't touch Mickey in the extra-earnings department. Last year Mantle made well more than his salary in product endorsements and personal appearances.

In the National League, Stan Musial quietly signed for $80,000 for his 18th season with the St. Louis Cardinals. The sum prompted Frank Lane, Cards' general manager, to say "I don't know whether we signed Stan or he signed us."

Besides being the bread-and-butter man at the plate or on the mound, the star player is a major reason why the fans keep buying tickets.

Phil Rizzuto, the Yankees' former shortstop star, says Mantle is worth "three times as much as he is getting" because of his position as the league's top drawing card.

Jackie Robinson, who quit baseball last month to enter a New York restaurant chain, created a bit of a storm with an Ottawa speech in which he was quoted as saying certain unnamed persons were trying to erase his memory from baseball.

Later, in an interview at Montreal, the veteran infielder changed his tune a little, saying: "I wasn't talking about organized baseball. What I had in mind I would rather not say."

In a more kindly mood, Jackie said his memories of Montreal, where he broke in with the Royals in 1946 as the first Negro in organized baseball, are his happiest in sport and only a managerial job there, with any other International League team or with a major league club, would lure him back into baseball.

The Royals made baseball headlines themselves with the appointment of Butch Bouchard, former defence star with Montreal Canadians of the National Hockey League, to succeed E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi as president the club will play some games this summer in Trois-Rivieres.

GOOD NEWS FOR FISHERMEN

Good news for fishermen! A new packaging method will enable them to take minnows in bags with them on extended fishing trips. Goldfish in plastic bags are now being sold in the U.S. and very soon grocery, hardware, drug and pet stores in Toronto will be doing the same. The specially sealed bag—which Millie Gerry is seen examining here—provides the pair of goldfish with enough microscopic food to last them more than a month and more oxygen than they would get swimming around in a goldfish bowl. Small particles of activated charcoal absorb carbon dioxide. Antibiotics sealed in the bag kill fungus and prevent disease.

Former Lachute Resident Wins Novice Heavyweight In Golden Gloves Contest

Corado Cattalan, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cattalan, of Lachute, was named Heavyweight Champion in the Novice Class of the 1957 Quebec Golden Gloves Championships which wound up Monday evening in Montreal.

According to Pat Curren, of the Montreal Gazette, "The laugh of the night was provided by the novice heavyweight scrap, won by Corado Cattalan on a second-round TKO over Denis Cleroux. Cleroux came up off the deck to floor Cattalan twice in the first round and appeared to be winning. However, after hitting the six-foot-four Cattalan with a couple of hard rights without results in the second, Cleroux decided he had enough and walked to his corner.

Viking Ski Club of Morin Holds End of Season Party

The Viking Ski Club of Morin Heights held their "End of Season Party" at Rockcliff Inn on Friday evening. The president, Per Gurholt, of Montreal, was Master of Ceremonies. Net proceeds for the evening were approximately $100.

During the evening Mr. Gurholt announced that the Annual meeting of the Viking Ski Club of Morin Heights would be held Saturday, May 11, at 3 p.m. in the Bellevue Hotel. All interested are invited to attend.

Baseball Underway Sunday B'burg Tigers Meet H'bury

The local baseball campaign starts in Brownsburg on Sunday, May 5, with a game between the reigning champion Brownsburg Tigers and their opponents from last year's cup final, Hawkesbury.

Tigers, who won the cup in both 1955 and 1956 and were league champions last year, are considered the team to beat. Two of their top men will not be around this year — Mel Tomalty and Keith Hazel, but their bench strength was good last year and it's felt that they shouldn't lose too many games.

Only four teams were engaged at presstime — Buckingham, Fassett and the above pair, but Rockland and Plantagenet, two Ontario entries may yet be accepted.

ARTS, BOOKS, SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Many TV Programs For Children Planned This Week

A highlight among current TV shows for the children is Toes in Tempo on Tuesdays from the Winnipeg studios, designed to encourage an interest in ballet. It continues throughout May and June; the instructor is Shirley Knight and her pupils in the studio are juvenile Winnipeg dancers including three-year-old Shelley Faintuck. . . Other TV changes include the introduction of a filmed adventure serial, The Buccaneers, on Mondays, and the filmed story of a small-town judge, Homer Bell, starring a Canadian, the late Gene Lockhart, on Tuesdays starting May 21. Otherwise the TV network line-up for younger viewers will remain much as it is until July, when there will be several more changes. . . On the Trans-Canada network, the present array of junior programs continues until early July, when there will be a complete change of fare.

Interesting facts assembled by a committee sponsoring "Canadian Radio Week" (May 5 - 11) include the following: more than 96 per cent of Canadian homes have radios and 26 per cent have two or more sets; nearly 1,500,000 automobiles in Canada have radios; there are nearly 7,000,000 radios sets in use in Canada. Many programs this week will include salutes to the "senior service."

Party Line has another big schedule of Saturday afternoon visits planned for May 11. The tour starts with a visit to Cabot Tower in Newfoundland and will take in the blossom festivities in Vineland, Ontario; the Cape Breton Festival of Music and Drama; work on the extraction of oil from the Athabaska sands; a homestead in Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, where rug-hooking is in progress; and a visit with wood-carvers in Quebec. Party Line starts at 2 p.m. each Saturday on Trans-Canada and continues throughout the afternoon.

A British sports classic, the Football Association Cup Final, takes place on May 4. The contenders are Aston Villa of Birmingham and Manchester United. A radio commentary on the second half will be relayed from BBC shortwave on Station CJBC in Toronto, from 10.45 a.m. - noon. A film of the match will be shown on the CBC-TV central network on Saturday, May 11, from 3.30 - 5.00 p.m.

Teachers Recommend More CBC School Telecasts

On taking a second look at educational TV in Canada, 1,800 teachers and 62,500 pupils repeat their convicition that television has a worthwhile job to do helping them in the classroom. Over 90% of the teachers want more school telecasts.

Whether this wish will be granted or not, depends, says the National Advisory Council on School Broadcasting, on the provincial Departments of Education and Local school boards.

In a report just issued by the CBC, the Council examines the results of the second (1956) experiments held in Canada in the use of classroom TV. More than four-fifths of the evaluating teachers rated the teaching value of television as medium or high. This figure corresponds closely to the findings in the first experiment, and according to the report, provides strong evidence of the teaching value of TV.

During the second experiment, fifteen programs of 10, 20 or 30 minutes duration were presented, covering Grades 2-4, 5-6 and 7-10. The subjects comprised social studies, science, art and language. The telecasts were shown over 29 CBC and privately owned stations and were viewed in 721 schools situated in all 10 provinces.

Teachers helped the Council in the selection of program topics and acted as consultants in preparing and presenting the scripts.

In evaluating the telecasts, the teachers stressed the desirability of closer correlation of program content with provincial courses of study. To meet this wish, the Council recommends that further experiments be conducted on a provincial or inter-provincial, rather than on a national basis.

In the experiment two main types of presentation were used — dramatization and direct teaching. The report stresses the importance of the role that teachers have to play in developing this second type of program.

One aim of the experiment was to explore the relationship between film and TV as classroom teaching aids. The Council concluded that these two are complimentary rather than rival aids. However, in the future a closer correlation of their use should be considered, particularly "the use of the TV medium for distributing suitable films or film-strips to the classrooms, or for presenting "master-teacher" (i.e., direct teaching) types of school telecasts built around films or film-strips."

Besides recommending further experiments on a provincial or inter-provincial level, the report asks the CBC to give favorable consideration to requests for regular series of programs, as soon as satisfactory arrangements can be made.

It also recommends that future experiments should explore more fully the use of television for direct teaching and the integration of TV with other recognized teaching aids.

The Council, on whose initiative this experiment took place, includes representatives from all provincial Departments of Education and from such national bodies as the Canadian Teachers' Federation, the Canadian Education Association and the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teachers' Federation. Chairman is Dr. H. P. Moffatt, Deputy Ministry of Education, for Nova Scotia.

All programs were produced by the CBC-TV Service under the supervision of the CBC School Broadcasts Department.

PROGRAMS FOR WOMEN DURING THE WEEK

Trans-Canada Matinee begins the week with a report from Tunis on the new freedom enjoyed by Tunisian women, sent by Philip Barnes, a free-lance writer and broadcaster who was until recently editor-in-chief of Reuters' bureau in Copenhagen.

On Wednesday a new series on vocational guidance begins; in the first of six talks by various guidance experts, Betty Stehelin, psychological consultant of East York (Toronto) schools, will discuss how young people can be helped in their selection of a career. Winnipeg's "Age and Opportunity Bureau" will be studied in the Aging in the Modern World series on Friday, and Sally Creighton will review some new books. Mattie Rotenberg will be the news commentator for the next few weeks.

Highlights on television's Open House include "milestones in photography" (the Notman photographs) discussed by Pierre Berton of Maclean's magazine, and songs by Denise Wray on Monday — suggestions for children's outdoor gymnastic equipment (Tuesday); songs by Maxine Ware on Wednesday; a report by Frank Moritsugu on inexpensive, long-wearing rugs, and a rhythmic-exercise class directed by Traute Franke-Eggeling (Thursday); and on Friday, Kildare Dobbs will discuss books, and British radio and TV artist Anona Winn, who is a regular member of the BBC's Twenty Questions program, will pay a visit.

Film Visit to Jericho In Archaeological Series

Jericho, the oldest city in the world yet discovered, is the subject of a BBC-filmed Buried Treasure feature on May 7, (10.00 - 10.30 p.m. on the central television network). Archaeological excavations at this ancient city in Palestine, where seven or eight thousand years ago Neolithic man began to develop a communal life and agricultural methods, have been under way since 1951. The remains are in a remarkable state of preservation because local conditions in the Dead Sea Valley are such that bacterial decay is at a minimum.

Last year a BBC film unit spent 10 days shooting 6,000 feet of film at the Jericho excavation and at the museum at Amman — in the thick of the riots during the Glubb Pasha crisis. At Jericho a camera spring broke and had to be repaired with the help of a local blacksmith using his blowtorch. The assistant camera man was stricken with a Middle East ailment called gippy tummy. This occurred despite the hotel manager's assurance that Jericho was the healthiest place in the world; the manager based his claim on his private theory that Jericho, 800 feet below sea level has endless oxygen.

Joshua's Jericho of 3,000 years ago virtually does not exist, having been washed off the mound, yet, as producer Paul Johnstone points out, the earliest known settlement of Neolithic times is well-preserved. Johnstone brought back in a refrigerated box, scraps of the flesh and brain tissue of a Bronze Age man of the time of Joshua's conquest.

Appearing in the program will be Dr. Kathleen Kenyon, director of the British School of Archaeology, who has directed the excavations at Jericho; Sir Mortimer Wheeler and Lady Wheeler — he combined filming for this program with a lecture tour and she spent three seasons at the site; and Dr. Glyn Daniel, host for the Buried Treasure films. Dr. Daniel is a fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, who lectures in archaeology and has specialized in archaeology of western Europe.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

We'd never seen a purple car,
We'd never thought to see one,
But we can tell from where we are,
The next we get will be one.

Thus woman's way with colors — of cars, if not of cows. And purple is only the beginning. Today you can see not only purple but chartreuse and coral cars on any highway or parking lot.

And the experts insist it's mostly due to women. Modern wives are coloring the opinions of husbands choosing the tone of the new family car. Automobile stylists give women's taste large credit for the change from the Model T Ford's sober black (although brightened with brass lamps and trim) to the latest jobs in all colors of the spectrum. Although color preferences began to change in the early 1930's the real switch from black and dark blue has made most progress since World War II. The "hot" tones, such as reds and yellows, and the two-tone styles have begun to brighten the highways only recently.

Vividly aware of the fact that women influence 50 percent of new car purchases, one automobile manufacturer organized panels of women in five cities to discover color preferences in their areas and to make the final decision as to shades of new models. Results showed that "cools" (blues, greens and pastels) and fashion colors (popular seasonal shades) outdistance the others by a wide margin. Led by women's influence, car manufacturers are becoming color-conscious about interiors also, progressing from traditional grays in upholstery to blues, greens and variegated patterns. The fashion world, which always has catered to women's love of color, is creating two-toned gloves, handbags and other accessories to team with the new two-toned cars.

"If Canada is to continue the upsurge in business she has enjoyed of late, one of her prime needs is still growth in population." — Roy Halliday, president, Canadian Lumbermen's Association.

Carl Tapscott and His Gentlemen of Song

Backstage "barber-shopping" by four men of the Navy Show during the war led to the formation of The Commodores male quartet, which has been sailing the air waves pretty steadily ever since. Their latest CBC Trans-Canada series started recently in the 7.15-7.30 p.m. period on Sundays.

The four men, who specialize in sea songs, are Carl Tapscott, second tenor and leader of the group; Donald Parrish, bass; John Ringham, baritone; and Harvard Reddick, first tenor. They were all members of the Navy Show chorus and gained popularity overseas as a quartet before returning home after the war.

Their repertoire is not limited to sea songs. They also do western ballads, operatic melodies, Negro spirituals — in fact, all music suitable for four masculine voices. Tapscott does all the arranging, and the pianist for the group is Lloyd Edwards.

Tapscott, also leads the 12 male singers, who have just started a new series of half-hour concerts on CBC Dominion — on Sunday at 8.30 p.m. The Carl Tapscott Singers were formed three years ago, have done radio series on both Trans-Canada and Dominion before and recently appeared on the Jackie Rae Show on television. Now, every Sunday night, they present seven or eight songs similar in vein to those sung by the four Commodores, who are also members of the Carl Tapscott Singers. Again, Tapscott prepares the arrangements.

Canada's commodity exports in 1955 were valued at $4,351,300,000 up 10 percent in value over 1954. Commodity imports at $4,711,500,000 were up 15 percent.

Listen at a playground, in a nursery or just about any place where there's more than one child. You'll find "me first" is a familiar much-used expression.

But a noted American anthropologist, psychologist and lecturer visiting Canada says now adults are silently, perhaps unconsciously, still saying "me first".

Dr. Margaret Mead says this attitude is responsible for young marriages, the pressures to be popular and a tendency to overdo private and personal goals while shirking responsibilities in public affairs.

Private Goals

With love and marriage as clamoring private goals, "sometimes I think we're heading back to infant betrothal," says Dr. Mead.

She says young marriages tend to put a strain on young fathers and leave less energy for men to further their careers, and may at first contribute to a higher divorce rate.

She does have some good words to say for youthful weddings. Eventually young marriages may add up to a stronger marriage pattern. Even now, they're the "most companionable marriages we've had since the frontier days."

But back to private goals and persons who ignore their communities or the world as a whole to concentrate on their own happiness. Dr. Mead says "it's no good . . . to have a nice little suburb if you're breeding crime and delinquency on the other side of the tracks."

Facts on Meat

It's generally recognized that Canadians are "meat and potatoes" eaters when it comes to staple diets.

Even so, the shopping housewife often wonders how to select the right cut of meat for a stew or a roast. And newcomers to kitchens and housekeeping could be puzzled about cooking or storing meat.

Well, once again its the cooking experts in Canada's Kitchen — the consumer section of the federal agriculture department — who have come to the rescue with an enlightening, 50-cent booklet all about meat.

Both practical and concise, the 80-page guide includes illustrations and meat-cutting charts, recipes and instructions for storing, packaging, thawing and cooking frozen meats.

The booklet, available from the Queen's Printer, Hull, Que., also includes chapters on meat inspection and grading — the buyer's guide to protection and quality.

Real Oldtimer

Mrs. Adele Laviere of the Kamloops Indian Reservation says she will be 106 years old next August, and she hopes to be the oldest resident of the province when British Columbia celebrates its centennial in 1958.

She can remember when the Kamloops area was nothing but wide-open flats.

"I have been alive and happy so long," she said, "because I gather roots and herbs and cook them. I eat Indian potatoes and smoked salmon in the old Indian ways."

Quebec Women's Institutes Hold County Meetings

Annual meetings of County Women's Institutes are being held this month. Following the usual custom various members of the Provincial Executive will visit these meetings, the one time in the year when they can meet the local groups in their own districts.

The two first meetings are scheduled for this week. Vaudreuil County is meeting in Dorion on Thursday, May 2, and Chateauguay-Huntingdon at Riverfield, Friday, May 3. Mrs. Gordon E. Cooke, of Arundel, will be the executive visitor at both meetings.

Schedules have been arranged that will take other members of the executive to all of the 20 counties of the Quebec Women's Institutes, ending with Bonaventure and Gaspé the third week in May.

New Canadian Fabric

Crisply pleated horizontal stripes in shades of brown and yellow stay fresh all summer in this new Canadian fabric — an intimate blend of "Terylene" and cotton. The two fibres have been combined to provide material which looks like familiar cotton but which has all the easy-care qualities of the man-made fibre. The pleats stay sharp through washing and the dress seldom needs ironing.

Canadian Families Adopt Korean Children; Live Across the World

Ho Sik lives in Korea but his family lives in Canada. They have never seen each other and probably never will. The nine-year-old boy is an orphan and has been "adopted" by a kind Toronto family.

At four years of age, Ho Sik was a pathetic victim of the Korean war. He haunted back alleys, scrounging food like an animal until Seoul City police sent him to the Heimyung Children's Home in the Korean capital.

At Heimyung, Ho Sik has good physical care. He goes to school. One of the truly significant things he learned at the Home is a single word — "Canada".

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa, sponsors the Home. Through its "Foster Parent" scheme, Canadians adopt Korean or Indian children for $60 per year or European children for $45 for three months. The foster parents receive the case history and photograph of his child and exchange of letters and gifts is encouraged.

Ho Sik was adopted by Joe Round and his family, 21 Doon Road, Toronto. He now receives the vital nourishment of family affection which every child needs to reach healthy, independent adulthood.

When the USC Executive Director, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, visited the Home recently, Ho Sik modelled his family's gift of a warm sweater. Savouring all the sweetness of their gesture, he refused to part with even the price tag on his tummie.

At night Ho Sik crawls into his cot alone after a longing look at a shiny photograph of Mom and Dad Round and sisters, Martha and Susan. He goes off to sleep dreaming of Canada and his good friends there.

All 128 children at Heimyung have Canadian foster parents. In appreciation, they formed a Canadian Club to study Canadian geography, history and customs.

Like thousands of forgotten children around the globe, Ho Sik feels a strong respect and affection for Canada. The personal relationship with Canadian sponsors has turned lost children into spirited young people with health and happiness today and a bright future waiting for them tomorrow.

Keep Floor Waxed For Budget's Sake

It's far cheaper to give your wood floor an occasional waxing than to let neglect cost you the price of a refinishing job.

Grit and soil on unprotected surfaces lead to this unsought expense. The same outlay would pay for a new electric polisher.

If your floors are new and you want to keep them in good condition, seal them with a penetrating floor sealer and then wax. Or you may want to varnish them for a bright gloss before waxing.

Use paste or liquid cleaning and polishing wax, advises one of the main wax suppliers. They are basically the same but the paste is more concentrated. Do not confuse liquid wax for wood with the self-polishing kind you use on linoleum, vinyl plastic, asphalt or rubber tile surfaces. Both are liquid, but the type that requires polishing should be used on wood. It can be identified by its odour which resembles dry-cleaning fluid or naptha. Apply a thin coat, using an applicator for liquid wax, or a clean cheesecloth for paste. Use it regularly and your floors will stay bright and shiny.

Precious antique furniture can be polished to show off its elegant beauty with a mixture of two parts of turpentine to one part of linseed oil. Apply this cleaner with a soft cloth and rub lightly. The final polish is given with soft dry cloth.

Ears Deserve Car

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Ears deserve care! Hearing aids and lip reading do help individuals who are handicapped with deafness. But it is a pity that many a baby born with a normal sense of hearing through sickness or an accident loses this precious heritage.

Ear trouble often accompanies or follows one of the infectious diseases such as scarlet fever or measles. Severe and continuous colds, sinus infection, tonsilitis, diseased adenoids, may produce swelling or an abscess in the middle ear and cause much pain. Unless a doctor is consulted and his instructions followed to the letter, a child's hearing may be damaged.

Small children sometimes put tiny objects such as a wooden bead or a bean into their ears. If mother can see the object, it can usually be taken out easily. But if it has disappeared, or if it is stuck, never use force or poke at it. Whenever in doubt about ear complications, telephone the doctor's office. Once in a while, a small insect may enter a child's ear. A drop or two of warmed (but not hot) sweet oil, or castor oil may be dropped into the ear.

Wax should never be removed from the ear by a child poking in a match, bobby pin, or sharp object. There is too great a possibility of the ear drum being pierced or the ear harmed in some other way. Mother should remove the wax very gently from the outer ear. If it is hard, impacted or troublesome, check with the doctor.

Swimming in polluted water can sometimes be blamed for ear infection. Some people cannot dive from a high place without protecting their ears from possible rupture of the eardrum. Swimming under water and diving should be done in moderation and banned if ear or sinus discomfort develops.

If there is pain in the child's ear, noises of any kind, or a discharge, take the youngster to the doctor at once. Quite a number of children have poor hearing and this defect is not detected because they do not actually complain of discomfort.

If the child is frequently inattentive when called, if he is very slow to talk, and his articulation is poor, parents should have the child's hearing tested carefully by a specialist or a physician. Irritability and fatigue can sometimes be traced to partial deafness on the part of both children and adults.

The child who is starting to school usually is required to have a medical check-up. Should his hearing be poor, the doctor will discover this. If mother is in doubt, she should speak to the doctor of his symptoms.

Not a few children have been considered dull, or have made very poor school grades simply because they could not hear properly. Every little while a boy presents a truancy problem because he hates the schoolroom. There he is always near the bottom of the class. Neither his teacher nor parents have realized that the reasons for his actions can be traced to his partial deafness.

No parent wants his child to do anything but his best at school. Be sure your child is not endangered by unnecessary threats to his hearing. If you suspect he is handicapped, consult a doctor without delay and give him every possible chance to overcome his difficulty. Ears are precious — they deserve the best of care!

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Facing The Chair

Years ago, a Boston court ruled that a tooth was worth $1,000. On that basis, your teeth are valued at $32,000 — if you still have them all.

Yet many people let these valuable assets fall into a dangerous state of decay because they can't bear the thought of dentist drills and extractions. In a few extreme cases, patients have actually become sick when they entered their dentist's office. Children are perhaps the worst offenders, often turning into unruly monsters as soon as they're asked to open their mouths.

One effective way dentists can get around the problem is to use Atarax, a tranquilizer syrup given 15 minutes before drilling begins. A dentist in Larchmont, N.Y., reports that it quickly eases jittery patients, greatly reducing all signs of their nervousness. It works wonders with children too. They still don't like dentist drills, but they no longer react with those uncontrolled tantrums.

However, the best way to avoid dental jitters is to prevent tooth decay. The American Dental Association recommends a complete dental examination at least twice a year — and more often if you get cavities easily. During these check ups, be sure to have your teeth cleaned thoroughly.

Finally whole milk has succumbed to this age of frozen foods. In England frozen whole milk is stored in polythene bags and used very successfuly on board ship. Three months later it is still as fresh as the days it was packaged.

Convenient Baby Tumbler Avoids Spills and Dribbles

It is not easy for a baby to drink from an ordinary cup or glass. Like all humans, the baby resists change. Why should he bother to drink his milk from a cup, when he is accustomed to taking it from the breast or bottle! And besides, his tiny bud-like mouth doesn't fit comfortably over an adult's drinking glass or cup. What a trying time for mothers! However, you'll be happy to hear that many mothers are being helped over this stage with a new baby tumbler on the market today, which is ideal for this period. It avoids the spills and dribbles of infant drinking habits.

This convenient tumbler is smooth and round like a nursing bottle and is made of durable plastic with removable top. This top is molded with a perforated spout-like mouthpiece, through which the baby drinks his fluids (water, milk, juices) without spilling them. The tumbler is so easy to use! The little tykes enjoy it! and it's safe and sanitary, too. Fastidious mothers will approve of this innovation, because it cuts down laundry work and forstalls frayed nerves, resulting from annoying spills.

These tumblers may be secured in two colors. If you are prone to the traditional pink for girls and blue for boys, you may secure them. The pink and blue tumblers are opaque.

Let your baby learn how to use the baby tumbler by experimenting with a slow introduction. In the beginning you may use it for his water, or orange juice. First set the tumbler on his tray at feeding time. He'll soon become interested in it — may even put it to his mouth. This new discovery will please him. Next pour his orange juice into the tumbler for his experimentation. When the flow of juice through the spout is mastered, then try his milk. In no time you'll be free from the routine of nursing bottles. When the baby has outgrown the use of the spout on the tumbler, the top may be removed. Then you have an attractive conventional type of toddler's cup.

This tumbler, approved by the medical profession, is offered as a premium by a leading Canadian manufacturer of baby foods. And quoting mothers who have used it, "it's worth all the money in the world — because my baby has learned to drink from the tumbler in less than a week."

Patterns Important In Newest Area Rugs

Patterns are the big news for rugs this year.

Challenging patterns for the spotlight in floor coverings are the new tufted treatments and the piles which create luxurious textures.

Rug stylists say that this interest in patterns, and also weaves, has resulted from the steadily increasing demand for elegant floors. One aspect of this demand — and an important one — is the continuing emphasis on the highly polished floor in conjunction with the area rug.

Decorators continue to emphasize and homemakers to concur in the beauty of the polished floor as a major feature of the over-all plan of decoration. Those householders who have floors of well-aged wood which through the years have developed a mellow patina, are naturally eager to emphasize their beauty with an area rug rather than hiding them under carpet. Other householders who live with new wood floors are learning that they can easily be brought to polished beauty with a few good applications of wax.

Meanwhile, the new man-made floorings, when well polished, have their own decorative value and also gain by companionship with area rugs.

Patterns with the elegance of an earlier century are worked out in sculptured designs. Silver and gold metallic threads are woven into abstract patterns. Many of the most beautiful rugs, which may well become cherished antiques as the years roll by, have a hand-woven look. There is new concern with the formal patterns of the past. Some of these rugs are styled after the manner of French Aubusson and Savonnières.

Color is no longer a problem as the high-style as well as the standard hues are now available in all types of rugs.

Paste wax has many other uses besides polishing floors and woodwork. Have you ever tried waxing your dustpan, waste basket or garbage liner so the dirt will slide off and on easily? Wax also prevents sticking if applied to the tops and bottoms of drawers.

Cartier
copper and Canada

As Jacques Cartier sailed into the welcome, quiet waters of Baie des Chaleurs in 1534, he and his men caught their first sight of Indians on the shore . . . and their hands involuntarily clasped the copper-gilted weapons at their sides.

The gesture was symbolic, though they knew it not. For some 420 years later, amid the vast virgin forest, was to rise the Gaspe copper smelter . . . a new source of work and wealth for Canadians.

GENERATORS TAKE SHAPE ON ST. LAWRENCE

The halfway mark has been passed with the concrete placing at the Ontario Hydro powerhouse of the St. Lawrence seaway project. The eventual outline of the powerhouse is beginning to take shape, particularly in the elevation, which is approximately 162 feet above the foundation. One million tons of concrete have been poured and by the end of the year 1,800,000 tons will have been put into the structure. Here men are working on a speedring for a generating unit and are dwarfed by its size. The generators are scheduled to provide power by 1953.

Easter Vacation In Eastern States May Marks Return To Lakefield Home

"Exile From Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

We hope everyone had a pleasant Easter, with the new hats and flowers blooming all over the place. Easter is a happy time, and this year the weather co-operated. In Albany, where we made our Easter Communion, the young girls were out in their bright summer dresses, without coats, at eight in the morning. They looked like flowers themselves. But, on Good Friday, we were glad to wear a winter coat, to protect us from the sea breezes and fog at Rehoboth Beach, a little town in Delaware.

Anyone not interested in travel notes, had better read something else, for we are recently back from a trip to Washington and parts of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. Those of you to whom this route is familiar may well read for the fun of catching me in error, or at least in heresy, for there were as many things that did not impress as those that did.

First of all, scenery — there is none, once one leaves the Catskills. From there right down into Virginia the land is flat, often marshy and dotted with forests of southern pine. Washington itself is built on a marshy bit of ground beside the muddy Potomac. Any beauty the city possesses is man-made. There are some impressive vistas down the longer streets with a large building or a monument at the end. The Capitol at the head of Pennsylvania and Constitutional Avenues is an example. But there is no natural beauty as in Paris, and, of course, the city is not old enough to have the charm of antiquity as has London. The massive statuary and monuments are, I think, an expression of the people. Everything must be done in a big way. We see this again in the huge machinery being used on roads. They are bemused with their power, and one is irresistibly reminded of the Roman Empire at its peak. The Romans, too, loved the massive and imposing, they built good and enduring roads, they loved entertainment, and, I am told that Rome even today bears witness to the urge of the Roman to carve his name in public places. All this is to be noted today in the United States of America.

The behavior of Americans in the mass is amusing or annoying according to the temperament of the beholder. As an example, we heard this conversation between a young man and a guard at Mount Vernon, where Washington lived the greater part of his life:

Young Man: "Was George a small man?"

Guard: "He was six foot."

Y.M. "How come he slept in that little bed?"

G. (restraining himself): "The bed is 6'6"."

Y.M. "I don't believe it."

G. "You don't have to."

Amused, I tagged along. We arrived at the bedroom in which Washington died.

G. "This is the room where George Washington breathed his last."

The guard mutely pointed to a card just level with the youth's head.

I do not contend that this kind of thing is typical but it is only too common. I have encountered it in Europe, and it accounts for some of the dislike the puzzled Americans notice.

The farther south one travels the better become the manners and the softer the accent. On the New Jersey Turnpike we first heard the, "Thank you, suh", that became standard in Virginia. But I longed to hear some really southern expression. Finally, in Ocean City, Delaware, I did. I asked if I might have something not on the menu, and the waitress replied, "You sure can, honey chile," and my soul was satisfied.

Now that we are back in Delaware, let us consider Rehoboth. The name at once struck us as being Biblical and we were confirmed in that opinion when we learned that the Methodists some sixty years ago used to gather here under tents and have revival meetings. We were also under the impression that Rehaboth was the name of Rebecca's well, but that clue turned out to be false. The rector kindly put us right. A character of very early times, named Asshur, built the cities of Nineveh and Rehoboth. (Gen. 10). Sixteen chapters and many generations later, we find Isaac involved in a wrangle with the local "bad guys", over wells. Poor Isaac dug two wells in succession in that dry and thirsty land, only to have them taken over by the Philistines. 'And he removed from thence, and digged another well, and for that they strove not; and he called the name of it Rehoboth.' Put oil in the wells, and call the Philistines Egyptians, and it might be contemporary history. Anyway, the present Rehoboth is a charming little town with a truly magnificent beach, unique in that it has a good stand of pine alongside. Much of the Delaware beach is closed to the public, because of army activity. The place bristles with fortifications. It was along this stretch that the enemy used to land spies and saboteurs from submarines.

Now we return to Virginia to speak of Gunston Hall, the home of George Mason. George Mason was a 'brain' of the time of the Revolution, and, like many intellectuals he was not fond of public life, preferring to work in the background. It is now generally recognized that he was the author of the American Constitution, the credit of which for long was given to the more showy Jefferson. Unruffled, Mason worked on at Gunston Hall, the manor house of a 5,000 acre estate, complete with 300 slaves. The Hall is not large, comprising drawing-room, dining-room, hall, study and master bed-room on the lower floor, and six rather small bed-rooms above. It has now been furnished as much as possible with furniture of Mason's time, and is open to the public. It is hard to put the charm of this place on paper. I think part of its appeal is its air of being lived in, which, as a matter of fact, it was, as recently as 1939. One expects to meet Mason's sixteen year old bride coming out of the nursery, which she must have done hundreds of times, since the couple had nine children; the child-wife died at thirty-nine. Mason remarried, but wore mourning for his first wife until he died. "Nice for his second wife," I breathed, but the hostess had sharp ears and informed us that the second marriage was purely one of convenience, to an old friend of the family, who had also known and loved the first Mrs. Mason.

The gardens at the back of the house are famous for their boxwood hedges. When we were there, they were gay with tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, primulas and anemomes. We spent a delightful afternoon exploring the bridle paths through the woods leading down to the tidal creek, and so, back to the old, pink house sitting so demurely among its cedars and magnolias. I shall long cherish the memory.

Remembered, too, is the little Quakeress in a Howard Johnson's eatery. She was all of six, dressed in severely cut grey with large white collar. Her fair, straight hair was crowned by a large black beaver sailor hat, with ribbons behind. Her feet were in black oxfords and the whole, as a sop to normal childish vanity, covered by a scarlet coat. She was a delightful oasis among the urchins in jeans, cow-boy pants, Indian headdresses, sandals, all chewing like mad. The space, we perceive is gone, so we spare you the rest. The next time we write, it will be from Sunnyacres. O happy day!

MUSIC IN SCHOOLS GETS NEW SUPPORT

Edmonton (CP) — A new province-wide organization to further the teaching of music in Alberta schools has been formed here as part of a proposed Canadian Music Education Association.

The meeting to organize the group — called the Alberta Music Education Association — was attended by Dr. Leslie Bell, Toronto music professor and founder of a famous choral group.

Dr. Bell said he plans to visit Manitoba and British Columbia to help organize similar groups. These would then join with groups already established in Saskatchewan and Eastern Canada to form the national body.

One of the Alberta association's first projects will be to encourage the government appoint a provincial music supervisor for schools. Its main purpose is to assist music teachers in schools, and to stimulate instrumental and choral activity in classrooms.

Farm and Rural Weekly has Many Appreciative Readers

Art, if it is pleasant as well as artistic, has a charm which endures amazingly. New proof of this, provided by the Family Herald, leading Canadian farm and rural weekly, indicates that a picture does not have to be from the brush of one of the great masters in order to hold a continuing place in the sentiments of those who have acquired it.

Established in 1870, as the Family Herald and Weekly Star, the publication gave away large numbers of colored picture reproductions as premiums toward the end of the century. The subjects were not such as might be expected to arouse general enthusiasm in the present day, as a few of the titles suggest, including, "The Thin Red Line", "Little Sweethearts", "The Wonderful Heroine", and "Mother's Treasures".

The Family Herald has been astonished to learn how many of these pictures have been kept and that they are still admired by those who received them.

Late in 1956, a letter came to the Family Herald from a subscriber in Ottawa, asking whether anyone might have a printed picture entitled 'Fallen From the Nest", which had been given out around 1900. Since none of the pictures are now in the possession of the Family Herald, the subscriber's letter was published in an effort to bring her interest in the picture to the attention of some reader who might still have a copy of it. The letter appeared on the Family Herald's "Voice of the Farm" page, which is devoted to letters from readers and is very widely read. The result of the letter's appearance was overwhelming.

Within a short time, the Family Herald received another letter from the enquiring subscriber, with the request that it also be published. Already she had received upwards of eighty letters in response to her query, added to which were three phone calls from local residents. Every one of the ten provinces of Canada was included in the addresses of the writers, and each had some information to offer about the picture. Many had four or five of the premium pictures still in their possession, and, from a subscriber in New Brunswick, the enquirer had received a perfect copy of the one she sought.

Her second letter — of thanks for the response, and apologies for not being able to answer them all — was also published.

The letters have revealed that the old premium pictures — though not a very admirable art form to present day popular taste — are far from extinct and forgotten. Many are still hanging in their frames on the walls of longtime readers, treasured by the householder.

In October of 1956, the Family Herald and Weekly Star became simply the Family Herald, and adopted the rotogravure printing process, and the use of full color printing, though retaining all the familiar features beloved of its readers. All the cover pictures, popular with readers even in black and white, now appear in full color, with other pictures appearing in full color inside the magazine.

Following the appearance of the correspondence about the old premium pictures, another subscriber — this time of Nova Scotia — wrote to tell how she cuts out the new, full-color, Family Herald cover pictures and hangs them on her walls, or frames them as gifts. "Now", the subscriber from Nova Scotia remarks, "we get a weekly premium picture, instead of a yearly one."

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Those Visitors

Our house was in turmoil. I had to make a trip, and my wife was trying to get ready to come with me. That meant a million jobs for her, notes to be left for the instruction of our sitter — doctor's phone number, dental appointments for the twins, the larder to be stocked, and countless jobs I hadn't realized are part of the business of home-making. On top of this turmoil, the telephone. . .

Yes, you guessed it. Old school friends from the country, eager to visit. I thought my wife's voice sounded strained when she urged them to come right out. Perhaps it was, too, but somehow the jobs got done and she was radiant and happy when the visitors arrived. She would have been mad at them if they hadn't come.

Visitors, even when they arrive at the darndest times, are good for the soul — especially if they're old friends. First, perhaps, because it is flattering that they think enough of you to make the visit. Most important old friendships are the real stuff of life, more important than jobs to be done, or the old routine you try so hard to stick to.

Visitors, somehow, test your mettle. When they first step into home or office, it may disturb your routine; but it also disturbs your complacency. It teaches you to take time for people. A man with character can have a train to catch in the next half hour, yet make an old friend feel he is unhurried and attentive.

Quite often the visit that takes a precious bite out of your crowded hours turns out to be the finest visit of all; and when it is over you are so refreshed and inspired that work melts before your renewed energy.

I hear the doorbell ringing now. This afternoon, when I told my wife I'd invited some old friends over, she cried, "Oh, no . . the house is a mess and I've a trillion things to do . . . " But the house is no longer a mess, the trillion things got done, and my wife never looked so pretty and well-groomed as she does right now, ready to admit my old friends and show them how lucky their pal was to pick up a girl like her!

Drop in sometime, won't you?

OUT ON A LIMB

By Stumpy McCulloch

Ol' Sam dropped into the local movie theater the other night, but two women seated in front of him was carryin' on such a lively conversation that he couldn't hear anything but their voices.

"Pardon me," he said, "but I cain't hear a word."

* * *

It's a tragic fact, but nonetheless true, that if Mister Longfellow had lived in the 20th century, he probably wouldn't have mentioned the spreading chestnut tree in his poem about the village blacksmith! 'Cause the chestnut tree is almost extinct, the victim of a mysterious blight.

* * *

Now comes the news that the stately elm tree, which shades the streets of thousands of our towns, is threatened by a fungus called Dutch elm disease. If you have an elm tree, and its leaves turn an unnatural yellow color in June, it may mean your tree is a victim of the disease.

* * *

Dutch elm disease is spread by dark beetles which carry the fungus. If your tree is attacked, it's best to cut it down as quickly as possible, and burn it, so that the disease won't spread to nearby elms.

* * *

Whole towns have been hit by the disease! For instance, Mount Pulaski, Ill., had 600 elms in 1942, but six years later it had only 16—plus 584 hazardous dead tree trunks. Besides losing its fine elms, the town had to pay about $70 apiece to have the trunks removed! Many towns are fighting the disease with DDT spray and other control methods, and meanwhile lots of folks are planting honey locusts and maple as shade trees—'cause they resist disease mighty well!

* * *

I just have room for another safety rule for tree farmers: Before I cut a tree, I always figure out a way of escape—well back and to one side, and at least 20 feet away. I reckon that's just common sense!

* * *

"What are you aimin' to raise on this property?" Ol' Hannibal asked the city feller who had just moved in.

"Children," the feller replied.

"Shucks," said Hannibal, "around here we consider that a sideline!"

* * *

So long! See you soon!

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I was working for a firm which closed up because of a strike four months ago. For the past two months I have been working steadily at another place. This second job was different from the first but I like it and would have stayed on if shortage of materials hadn't caused a layoff. I don't intend going back to my old job after the strike is over. Can I claim benefit?

A. If you can establish that you have made a definite and permanent change of occupation and that you do not intend resuming your old occupation you may be entitled to benefit, if otherwise qualified.

* * *

Q. I am 16 years of age, and I left my job because my father insisted on my doing so. My family had moved to a city about 200 miles away and he wanted me with them. Can I claim benefit?

A. Yes, if you are still able, ready and willing to accept suitable employment.

Bell Telephone Co. Claims Naming Baby No Problem Compared to Exhanges Requiring Uniform Numbering System

Naming a baby is no problem at all when one compares it to the task of selecting new telephone exchange names. Parents may consider a few people's feelings before they choose a name for the new offspring, but the telephone company has to solve quite a few problems before it can pick a name for one of its exchanges.

"Names such as LEcture and LOrraine which will be introduced in Brownsburg and Lachute respectively next year are certainly not picked at random, according to R. R. Pearson, Bell Telephone manager for this region. Technical requirements are a primary consideration, along with such factors as pronunciation, spelling, geography, local history and sentiment.

The importance of technical requirements has been increasing steadily with the continuing expansion in the scope and complexity of telephone service. More telephones and new advances in operating techniques demand more complex numbering codes.

A uniform numbering system for Canada and the United States has been evolved to meet these technical requirements. This system is known as the "2-5 numbering plan" because it calls for all telephone numbers to consist of two letters (the first two of an exchange name) and five figures.

The new Brownsburg and Lachute numbers will conform with this system, which is gradually being introduced throughout the continent as the necessary facilities are installed.

Other Factors Involved

Consideration must also be given to the following questions:

1. Are the names easy to remember?
2. Are they easily understood when spoken?
3. Can they be spelled naturally?
4. Do they conflict with other exchange names in the same dialing area?

It used to be easy to select exchange names. The official exchange christeners of Bell Telephone merely had to delve into local data such as historic events pertaining to the communities, local geography, names of prominent persons connected with the towns' past and present sources. Names applicable to local neighborhoods have been quite common throughout the continent.

Then came the advent of dial telephones and in a city with several dial exchanges the first two letters in one exchange could not conflict with the corresponding letters in another.

Must Avoid Conflicts

With direct dialing of long distance calls, telephone engineers must now consider this same principle for an entire dialing zone which may include a whole province, or a large part of a province.

Under this plan, Canada and the United States have been divided into more than 100 zones, with each zone identified by a three-digit number. Quebec has been further divided into three zones with Montreal as centre-point of zone "514" which includes the Laurentians and southwestern Quebec. Northwestern Quebec is zone 819 and northeastern Quebec is 418.

Now in the "514" zone, which includes Brownsburg and Lachute, the exchange names and the first figure in the telephone number cannot conflict with any other name and number, say one in Montreal.

For example, to reach LEcture 3-1234 in Brownsburg the caller dials the first two letters of the name, followed by the five figures, a total of seven pulls on the dial.

Actually, the first two letters, L and E, are used to make the telephone number easier to remember. By looking at the numbers on the dial associated with these two letters, one finds them to be 5 and 3. In dialing LEcture 3-1234, the caller has actually dialed 5331234.

Long Numbers Hard

Researchers have found out that it is harder to remember a long number such as 5331234, than it is to remember LEcture 3-1234, hence the name is combined with the number.

Thus the first two letters in the exchange name, coupled with the first figure of the number, makes a three-digit code that identifies the Brownsburg exchange in the direct long distance dialing plan. The same applies of course to the name and numbers of the Lachute exchange.

In short, the three-digit zone number, the two-letter, one-figure exchange code, and the four-digit telephone numbers combine to give each telephone on the continent an overall number which is its very own.

Because of this continent-wide nature of the long distance dialing plan, exchange names must be easily understood, pronounced and spelled by operators and telephone users in every part of Canada and the United States. It would be a serious disadvantage, for instance, if the English and French pronunciations were notably different. Names with two possible spellings are also unsatisfactory. For example, RIley would not be suitable because it might be dialed REilly, or even RYley.

In order to achieve as much uniformity as possible, a suggested list of 300 exchange names has been drawn up by the telephone companies in the two countries. But those are always weighed against local preference.

In this country, attempts are made to use French names in predominantly French-speaking areas. Yet these must not be ones which would be mispronounced or misspelled by English-speaking persons.

Names with geographical significance are usually avoided. It would be unwise to use the name of a nearby community or of any province or state in North America, because of the possibility of long distance calls going astray to the geographic region rather than the exchange.

R. R. "Dick" Pearson

Before names with historical significance are used, careful study must be given them — for names that produce pleasant memories in one area can often be distasteful in others.

Thus, at first glance, certain exchange names may not appear to have particular signifance for local residents, but they seem the most suitable ones when all technical and other requirements are taken into consideration. And after all this, most people would readily agree that it is easier to name a new baby.

Who was the first white man To see the prairies?

Henry Kelsey, a fur-trader and explorer for the Hudson's Bay Company, is thought to have been the first white man to view the great central plain and to see there the buffalo and grizzly bear. In 1690 and 1691 he made two long, arduous journeys into what is now northern Saskatchewan from a base near the modern site of The Pas. In the course of 40 years with the Hudson's Bay Company, he made many explorations and served as governor of all the posts on Hudson Bay from 1718 to 1722. It is thought he died in poverty in London.

What is the highest City in Canada?

The famous mining centre, Kimberley, B.C., qualifies for this distinction with an elevation of 3,661 feet above sea level. The area was opened up in 1892 when Pat Sullivan staked the first mineral claim. The economy of the city and district still is based to a large extent on the famous Sullivan base-metal mine. It was named for the famous mining centre in South Africa.

What Village was named to Commemorate an ocean crossing?

A group of pioneers who experienced an unusually violent ocean crossing held a special meeting in 1820 and decided to name their village in honor of Captain Kempt, the sea captain who had handled their ship during the stormy Atlantic crossing. The Village of Kemptville, Ontario, now is a busy railway junction and site of both Kemptville Agricultural School and Eastern Ontario Dairy School.

When was Juan de Fuca Strait Discovered?

Juan de Fuca Strait, which lies between the south end of Victoria Island and the State of Washington, attracted international attention last year because of the Canadian swimmers — Marilyn Bell and Cliff Lumsden of Toronto — who swam across it. It was discovered in 1592 by the Greek pilot Apostoles Valerianos, who was in the service of Spain under the name of Juan de Fuca. He was sent north on a voyage of discovery by the Viçeroy of Mexico but his reports long were doubted. The strait was rediscovered in 1787 by Captain Barclay, who was able to recognize features of it described by de Fuca.

Election "Argument Settler" Provides 400 Facts At Spin of a Wheel

Canadians will be able to settle disputes in a hurry during the forthcoming campaign with the assistance of the Canadian Election Argument Settler, a ready-reference wheel being printed and distributed in Canada this week by Time, The Weekly Newsmagazine.

More than 400 facts about Canadian governments and elections from the time of Confederation in 1867 until the present are assembled on the Argument Settler. It carries pictures of all of Canada's Prime Ministers, the dates of their terms of office, their political parties, the results of elections they fought, and the opposition leaders and parties they defeated. Also listed on the handy wheel are the premiers and parties in office in all the Canadian provinces, the federal election results in each province and territory in the 1953 election and the number of seats at stake in the voting this year.

In one important respect, the Argument Settler is unique; the facts and figures it contains about past Canadian elections have never before been compiled in a single reference work. Time's research staff gathered the information from many sources and assembled it all on the compact Argument Settler, where it will be readily available to Canadian voters, politicians and students during the 1957 election campaign.

The Argument Settler is being sent to Time Canadian subscribers and to government, business and educational officials and agencies in both the U.S. and Canada. It will also be sold on newsstands.

MARKSMAN IN PLANE KILLS MANY WOLVES

Kenora, Ont. (CP) — An enthusiastic wolf hunter is out to break his own record for the number of wolves killed during a winter season in Ontario.

J. Merickel, a middle-aged hunter from Wadena, Minn., so far has killed 50 wolves. He uses a small airplane to travel the province, equipped with survival, radio and other devices in case of emergency.

His record, set last year, is 62 wolves. In 1955 he shot 44, and in 1954 collected 20, on all three occasions winning the J. Grout Trophy presented annually by the Northwestern Ontario Outfitters' Association to the hunter killing the most wolves in a season in Ontario.

Although he has topped wolf-hunters in Ontario, he has also travelled to other Canadian areas in search of wolves.

Closing By-Law Passes First Reading Residents Petition Council for Fence

Request C.P.R. Commuter Service

Fire Protection Counter Proposal Made to Ayersville Council

A by-law "of exceptions" regarding the closing of Lachute stores on Saturday evenings passed first reading at the regular meeting of the Lachute Town Council held in the Town Hall on Wednesday of last week. A full council was in attendance at the meeting and heard a petition received from residents of the Mountain View - Brownsburg Road sections requesting a by-law be passed to fence-in properties considered dangerous.

By-law 205, which will make law the early Saturday closing of all business establishments with the exception of Drug Stores, restaurants, hotels, garages, and service stations, grocers, butchers and all other establishments of public utility, was presented by Ald. Dr. Roger Lavigne, seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins, and unanimously passed in its first reading. Two more readings, both of which have to be passed by a vote of council, are required before the by-law becomes law. The matter was then tabled for further study by the legal advisor.

A petition, signed by 30 ratepayers, tenants and parents of the Mountain View - Brownsburg Road area, requesting Council pass a by-law to enforce section 426, subsection 8 of the Cities and Towns Act regarding the proper fencing of vacant or occupied lands was read by secretary-treasurer Jacques Poitras. In reply to the citizens making the request, a letter was read from Legault & Legault, legal adviser for the Town of Lachute which is in part as follows: "Your council has certainly the right and power to enact such a by-law to compel the owners of lands, whether vacant or occupied, to fence in such lands and to regulate the mode of construction and the kind and quality of the materials to be used for the fences.

"We must nevertheless add that such a by-law cannot be made only to cover one specific case, but must apply to the whole town."

Mayor Léopold Carrière, in commenting on the petition, stated, "We, as a Council, feel this request is a serious and legitimate one that deserves considerable study. It will consist of a lot of work and will be a hard problem to determine the various districts that have to be included.

"We are ready to study it, but I feel, that we, as a Council, should write the firm of A. D. McGibbon & Son bringing this matter to their attention and urging them to study the situation and if at all possible, build a suitable fence to protect the children of the Town and particularly the sections surrounding their lumber yard and log storage depot.

Getting on to other business, it was decided that the counter-proposal from the Municipality of the Village of Ayersville regarding a set fee for fire protection be accepted. The Town of Lachute originally asked that a yearly fee of $6,000 be paid and Ayersville in turn offered $2,500, both of which were refused by the councils concerned.

Ayersville Council then tendered an offer of a $2,500 yearly fee, the sum of $75 per hour to be paid for each call to that municipality and this offer the Lachute Council accepted. The price per 1,000 gallons of water, now 11 cents, was raised to 15 cents and the Ayersville Council in turn offered to "split the difference" and pay 13 cents. The Lachute Council decided to enforce the 15 cent rate per 1,000 gallons, subject to the approval or refusal of the Public Service Commission of the Province of Quebec, at the same time refusing the Ayersville offer.

Another request for the payment of $8,806 to Ayersville for a collector-type sewer built near the Lachute-Ayersville limits was received from the Ayersville Council. Mayor Carrière stated that the Lachute Council was prepared to study the matter, and read two letters addressed to the Ayersville Council requesting more detailed information.

Clement Tremblay, O.B.E., and a director of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, was in attendance at the meeting along with President W. Erskine Rodger and Secretary-Manager Ken Riley, and requested the annual contribution made by Council, pointing out that last year, the Town of Lachute made a donation of $250. It was moved by Ald. Ross R. Muir, seconded and unanimously resolved that the matter be tabled for study before any decision be taken.

Tenders for traffic paint were received from eight local merchants, prices ranging from $3.95 to $5.25 per gallon. It was moved by Ald. Laurea Laurin, and seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins that the necessary paint be purchased from John McFaul & Son at the tendered price of $3.95 per gallon.

Ald. Wilfrid Morrissette, chairman of the Roads Committee, was authorized to have his committee spend up to $2,000 on sidewalk repairs. It was then moved by Ald. Romain Desjardins, seconded by Ald. Ross R. Muir and unanimously resolved that the secretary-treasurer be instructed to write the Bell Telephone Company asking said concern to repair to the complete satisfaction of the Town of Lachute, the sidewalks built on Water and Main streets last fall, within 30 days. It was added that in default of this, the Town shall proceed with the necessary repairs and bill the Company.

It was moved by Ald. Ross Muir, and seconded by Ald. Romain Desjardins that a request be made to the Canadian Pacific Railway, asking them to look into the matter of establishing a Budd car commutor service between Lachute and Montreal.

Building permits were granted to Gordon Silverson for a house on Quinn Street; Charles Jost, a house on Main Street and Rolland Lavigne, for a house on Fraser Street all under the supervision of the Roads Committee.

Ald. Ross R. Muir was appointed pro-mayor for the ensuing three months, after which the meeting was adjourned to Wednesday, May 15 at 8 p.m.

'C-Day' Blitz and District Canvass Close to Objective

The recent "C-Day" Blitz carried out on behalf of the local organization of the Canadian Cancer Society netted a total of $1,786 according to Gordon Higginson, campaign treasurer.

The objective was set at $3,000 and since the blitz was held April 29, an additional $900 has been turned-in to date, making a total of $2,682.

The areas outside Lachute as well as many of the district businesses have yet to be canvassed and it is anticipated that the objective will be reached and surpassed before the close of the campaign next week.

The campaign was organized by two separate groups of local citizens working together in the East and West sections of Greater Lachute, people soliciting in their own district, and treasurer Higginson pointed out that it was felt this aided in the generous response from the local citizenry.

Burg Stores Start Saturday Evening Closing Now

Nineteen Brownsburg merchants have grouped together with a gentleman's agreement and commencing this Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, will close their doors for the week-end.

For the past year, a few of the store-keepers have been closing and a recent petition which was presented to the Brownsburg Council on Monday evening, was signed by a large majority of all village businessmen. The petition requested Council pass a by-law governing the closing but until such time as positive action is taken along these lines, the group of the largest and more influential Brownsburg merchants have gone ahead on their own.

Local Students Take Top Awards In Quebec - Ontario Speaking Contest

Although the neighboring province of Ontario captured the honors of first positions of the English boys' and girls' sections, Quebec and Lachute, as a set-off, took third place in the English Girls' section, and the first and second positions in the French section in the Public-Speaking Contest sponsored by the Lions Club of Eastern Canada.

Beverley MacDonald, an 11th Grade student at Lachute High School was bestowed the honor of third place in a total of eight competitors. Vivianne Renaud, an 11th Grade student at Pensionnet Ste. Anastasie, Lachute was classed first in the French section which contained six participants, while Pierre Dumais, a 12th Grader at the local L'école Superieure, captured second place in the same section.

For her triumph, Miss MacDonald was offered a cheque for the amount of $35. Miss Renaud received a cup, a trophy, and a cheque for $75, while Dumais received $50.

The participants numbered 21: eight English girls, seven English boys, and six French girls and boys, the latter all united in one section.

In the English girls' section the winner was Judith Little, of Shoemaker, Ont., while in the boy's section, James Reid, of Lockmore, Ont., captured first place.

Before the final judging, which took place Saturday night, in the Gravenhurst Opera House, a banquet was tendered by the Lions Club, and, after the contest, the happy winners were interviewed on the radio by Mrs. Miller, the Mayoress of Gravenhurst.

Dr. Roger Dumais and Gérard Lefebvre accompanied the local representatives and all voiced their approval of the event.

This contest first began in the schools where the first selection was made. The winners of this first elimination bout spoke in the presence of the Lions Club of their respective localities, then the winners were invited to the semi-finals. The grand final was then held at Gravenhurst.

Miss MacDonald, Miss Renaud and Dumais, as Quebec ambassadors in our sister province, have made Lachute known by these victories which have commanded general admiration in capturing such honors in the Public Speakiing Contest.

The local students feel they have also acquired precious experience which will be most profitable.

To the winners, teachers and likewise to our local Lions Club, we extend the congratulations of the community as a whole for their part in what has been termed a most successful event.

Community Concerts Campaign May 20, Canvassers' Rally Next Thursday, 16th

Enrolment of Community Concerts members for 1957-58 will commence May 20, when canvassers will endeavor to enlist all former subscribers and to add new names, thus increasing the previous year's membership. An opening rally of workers will be held at the Legion Hall next Thursday, May 16, to start the campaign rolling.

At a meeting in the High School last Tuesday evening, with Mrs. W. M. Cottingham presiding, recommendations of the nominating committee were approved and the following officers were elected:

Officers for 1957-58:

Hon. presidents, Miss J. Rodrigue, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham.

President, Simon Valois.

Secretary, Richard Valois.

Correspondence Secretary, Miss J. Rodrigue.

Treasurer, W. M. Steeves.

Publicity, T. D. Titman.

Concert manager, W. M. Steeves.

Assistants, Mrs. Cottingham, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Jacques Bedard, Miss E. McDonald, J. G. Joannette — (Brownsburg) Miss Anne David, W. Hlibchuk.

Simon Valois then assumed the chair, and a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Mrs. Cottingham as retiring president, and to the past year's executive.

Prospects and plans were discussed, and it was generally hoped that a minimum of 400 adult memberships, or their equivalent, would be attained for the coming year. The Columbia Artists representative, Mme Sylvia Gervais, will give impetus to the campaign at the opening rally next Thursday. The meeting commences at 8.30, and all workers will be duly advised.

Two-Way Race for Brownsburg Mayor Six Contest Seats

Brownsburg — Nominations for the mayoralty have given Brownsburgers a contest this year. Ex-mayor Jim Donaldson, who is no stranger to municipal affairs, will oppose contractor Tommy Hall, equally well acquainted with municipal problems.

Contesting the three Council seats will be:

John (Jock) Maitland; George Therrien; Ernest (Bill) Ouellette; Roger Raymond; John McVicar and Honorio Lepine.

Elections will take place between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the Town and the Parish halls on Monday, May 13.

It is a well-known fact that most citizens use their prerogative to criticize these councillors who do their best for no pay, to make our municipality a better place to live in, and it is equally well known that too few of us fulfil our duty in coming out to vote for those we consider best fitted to handle our business. "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

Driver Escapes Serious Injury as Car Somersaults

Ernest Portelance, 26, of Hawkesbury, escaped serious injury early Saturday morning when he lost control of his recent model car while driving from Hawkesbury to Lachute. The accident occurred on the "S" curve, a short distance West of St. Philippe.

Portelance was thrown clear of the vehicle which somersaulted some five times, ending up more than 200 feet from the highway in a rock-free field. He was picked up on the highway by a passing motorist, Alex Pagé, of Lachute, and driven to hospital in Hawkesbury where he was treated for minor injuries.

Provincial Police officers were notified of the accident and when they arrived, found contents of the car scattered throughout the field and brush. A door from the vehicle was torn-off and thrown a distance of 140 feet.

Re-Organized Chamber of Commerce Elects Miville Trickey New President

Miville Trickey was on Monday evening elected president of the newly re-organized Lachute Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting of some 30 Lachute citizens which took place in the Lachute Town Hall. In a brief opening address, retiring president Paul Laliberté requested the dissolution of the present slate of officers.

Elected to office as 1st vice-president was Donat Saulnier, with Lorne Duncan, 2nd vice-president; Gabriel Downing, secretary; Armand Desrosiers, Edouard Leblanc, Gaëtan Leclair, Bertrand L'Heureux, Robert Marcil, Hector Monti, Romain Savage, Stewart Jones, Arthur Landry and Roland Raymond, directors. The elections took place under the presidency of Leonard Bedard, Walker McArthur acting as secretary.

President-elect Trickey thanked the members for their confidence and asked for the general support of not only the officers, but also of all the Chamber members.

He described several projects for the year which he trusted could be realized, naming the following:

Four special dinners with speakers; the production of a new map of Lachute; the numbering of doors of all homes; a study concerning the installation of mail boxes for door-to-door postal delivery; aid to the hospital; money for an arena; a publicity bulletin for the town; a request to apply pressure for the enforcement of the parking by-law and a study of insurance group policies.

Mr. Trickey suggested several amendments to the Constitution, naming an increase of the number of directors, a method for the more equitable contribution for all, and the formation of committees.

Secretary Gabriel Downing told the members that the Chamber has the approximate sum of $151.29 from which $100 must be deducted, leaving a slight balance. Moreover, he disclosed that the Chamber comprised 100 members.

Concerning the language problem of the meetings, it was decided that each speaker would give his address in his native tongue and the president would translate. For the benefit of all, motions before being put to a vote, will be read in French and English.

Mr. Trickey stated that they must try to solve local problems before launching an industrial promotion scheme. He also mentioned that in the past it has been mostly the same people who have actively supported this organization; now the executive is composed mainly of newly arrived citizens of our town.

Fire Warden, Volunteers, Stop Mountain Fire

Arundel — Owing to the vigilance of the local fire warden, Wm. Charron, what might have developed into a dangerous conflagration was stopped on Sunday when fire started on the side of a mountain at Barkmere.

It had gotten a strong hold but with the aid of volunteer help, hard work, and the use of pumps, it was under control and out by evening. Thanks of all concerned are expressed to all who took part in this work.

Mail Delivery Sure During Summer

Philippe Valois, M.P. yesterday received confirmation that it is now definite that the towns of St. Eustache and St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac will receive postal service towards the middle of July. It is anticipated that the change-over will take place in Lachute about the same time.

The Postmaster General will shortly promote a publicity campaign to educate the public on this matter.

It will be necessary that the doors of the inhabitants' houses be properly numbered and that the citizens procure for themselves a box, or they can have an opening made in their doors.

Local Resident Injured

A HEAD-ON CRASH INTO the side of an Ottawa Transport van late Friday evening resulted in the above damage to a car owned and driven by Donald MacDonald, 23, of Brownsburg. The accident occurred on the Brownsburg Road as the van was turning at the Hay farm. MacDonald was treated in St. Jerome hospital for minor injuries. Traffic Officer Lawrence Cruise investigated. Ayersville Accepts Fire Agreement Discuss General Business at Session

The members of the Municipal Council of the Village of Ayersville met at their regular Monday night meeting under the presidency of pro-Mayor Douglas Simon, due to the absence of Mayor Réal Morrissette. Letters from the municipality of Lachute concerning the fee for fire protection, and the fee for the water purchased were read, council accepting the Lachute proposal concerning the Fire Department, but refusing the water fee under motion of Counsellor Champagne, seconded by Counsellor Foucault.

A discussion concerning the call for tenders for the combined position of Chief of Police and Municipal foreman was left on the table. It was decided that a report of the work quota of the municipal employees be deposited each week on the desk of the secretary-treasurer.

A letter from Camille Demartigny, of St. Jerome, concerning a request for legal advice was read to the Council members and then left on the table. Mr. Demartigny suggested two ways of enclosing the deposit of old iron. Firstly, the establishment of regulation of a zoning by-law, and a regulation defining what constitutes a public nuisance.

Construction permits were accorded to Alfred Campeau for a house on Durocher Street; to Thos. Aubin for the construction of a second floor in his residence on Clement Street; Levis Clement for a house on the Brownsburg Row Road; Guillaume Chartrand for the lengthening of his residence on Mallette Street; Lloyd Bradford for a house on Bradford Avenue; Armand Langlois for a house on Corbeil Street; Miss Germaine Cadieux-Girard for the addition of a floor to her house on Lavigueur Street.

Chamber of Commerce Members

THIS EXCELLENT MEMBERSHIP AID was brought to our attention and we reprint it in its entirety because of its adaptability to most communities. Copies can be made available on request.

1. Because I have a business stake in this community which can best be safeguarded by working with others through the Chamber of Commerce to protect and advance all business, I help insure this community's progress which in turn insures the success of my business.

2. It is only fair for me to support the Chamber since I reap benefits through the concerted planning, counsel and action that is best obtained through the work of the Chamber of Commerce.

3. Because my support is "plowed back" to yield many-fold benefits in new industries, increased payrolls, health, safety, legislation, business protection and community advancement.

4. Because I believe that the man who helps his community through active participation in the work of his Chamber of Commerce will develop his own powers and broaden his own views.

5. Because through the Chamber of Commerce I can best discharge my obligations to this community in which I live and earn my living. I realize that every man owes a debt to the community that cannot be paid in taxes — a debt of personal service.

6. Because the Chamber of Commerce cannot carry out its broad program of work to protect and advance business without personal service and adequate financial support.

7. Because the Chamber of Commerce unifies the public spirit of and directs it into useful and constructive channels.

8. Because the Chamber of Commerce helps create and express sound opinions on questions affecting the welfare of Canada.

9. Because without a strong, effective Chamber of Commerce we would be less able to compete with other towns for new industries and new payrolls.

10. Because I believe it essential to progress to have a central organization eternally watching community welfare and development. I believe the Chamber of Commerce is the central organization adequately equipped to do this work.

11. Because the most effective and constructive influence is the force of organized business functioning through the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of improving our town. We can through organized effort make the kind of town we determine it shall be.

Sub-Hunting Seals

SEALS ARE SMART mammals and if any proof is needed it has been supplied by a story out of Stockholm telling how some seals outwitted the Swedish naval staff and at the same time preserved the lives of many of their flippered race.

Sweden was a neutral in the last war, but, as was the case of all neutrals in Europe, was ever alert to the possibility that its citizens might awaken some morning and find that their country had been invaded.

The Swedish naval staff undertook to train seals to hunt down submarines. The scheme was ingenious, although it never would have won friends for Sweden among SPCA authorities.

The seals were taken to a naval base and turned loose among submarines to which bundles of fresh herring had been tied. Naturally, the seals gobbled up the herring with the greatest of pleasure.

Stage two wasn't so pleasant — for the seals. Dud warheads — which in the event of real action would have been explosive charges — were attached to the mammals, the idea being that the seals would glide alongside the submarines and blow them up.

There was an immediate problem — how do you attach dynamite to a slippery seal? Several ideas were tried and finally an "explosive harness" of special design was chosen.

That was fine. The seals co-operated just as long as they received their regular ration of fresh herring.

But who could guarantee that foreign submarines lurking around Sweden's coastline would be surrounded by fresh herring? The seals had to be trained to carry their explosives to the sub without a bribe.

And that's where the smart mammals quit. No fish, no subs. And that was the end of that.

The scheme was dropped and the seals, no doubt many pounds overweight, presumably went back to sea.

Supplying Uranium

CANADA IS PREPARED to supply uranium to Euratom when latter starts building nuclear-fuel power plants. That's the conclusion from government statements following visit here of top representatives of European six-nation nuclear power pool.

Construction of nuclear power plants is expected to begin by 1963 and power production is expected within following four years. Canadian uranium will be sold, as now, through government agency, Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd.

Metal now sold in oxide state will be sold soon in metal state, thereby giving Canadians additional economic, employment and development benefits of extended domestic manufacturing process.

This is all done under aegis of federal agency. Canadians interested in making best use of natural resources may well inquire why policy applied to federal operation should not be extended to operations of private industry.

No Banking Changes

TIMELY AND REASSURING are words of Canadian Bankers' Association president F. W. Nicks, in announcing that chartered banks would this year set volume of government-insured mortgage loans for housing at $150,000,000, noted that this action "does not imply concurrence with any long-run suggestions which might involve fundamental changes in the banking system."

Remarks of Bankers' Association president clearly refer to recent proposal of Bank of Canada Governor J. E. Coyne that savings deposit funds in hands of chartered banks be earmarked for mortgage loans and for purchase of government securities. It is this proposal, it may be assumed, to which Mr. Nicks refers when he says that "long and careful consideration" would be required and that "no early conclusions can be expected."

Fact that public confidence in Canada's chartered banks is high is attributable to prudence and sound judgment of banking community and to soundness of country's banking system. Mr. Nicks' remarks and those of others eminent in banking field afford welcome assurance that no changes in banking system will be made without full study and consideration.

"Schnapps"

Having been owned by a dog for two months now, I feel I can write about h'm without, I trust, boring you to tears.

When I f rst made it known throughout the school that I intended purchasing a dog, there were nasty suggestions by the more thuggish of our inmates about the laugh-provoking tortures that could be inflicted upon members of the canine family. However, when a cool two feet of Dachshund stepped out of his shipping crate and into the lives of the schoolboys, the tune they sang was somewhat different. The bandy-legged little hound endeared himself to one and all from the outset and, although he goes by the perfectly good nickname of 'Schnapps' is affectionately called 'Weiner' by the kids.

"It is essential," the breeder wrote me, just before Schnapps blew in "that you provide some old clothes or rags which the dog can use for bedding. Also, as the weather is still quite cold, I would suggest that you provide him with a coat which he can wear when you take him for walks."

The bedding presented no problem for I had in my possession several old garments which he could gladly have for his very own. There was, for example, my old college sweater which had seen better days and no longer looked presentable, despite the fact it was still warm and useful. Then there were sundry T-shirts, sports shirts, and the like, which I felt I could dispose of. These I tenderly readied for the dog's arrival.

On entering my living quarters, Schnapps took one look around and immediately latched onto two old felt insoles as toys and made up his mind that he would cut his teeth on the articles provided for bedding. As for sleeping, he made it quite plain that if I could sleep in the bed he could quite easily sleep on it. So that was settled without further ado.

In the two months he has been with me, Schnapps has completely demolished the coat sweater, a sweat shirt and two T-shirts, two felt insoles and one pair of football boots. He has also accounted for innumerable hockey sticks and has left his imprint on the window sash and floor linoleum in the kitchen of a neighboring master's home.

The last letter I received from the breeder carried with it a number of instructions on feeding "if he's to have the best coat, etc.," and brought me his pedigree papers. It was the latter that provided me with the worst shock.

I have always labored under the delusion that Dachshunds were Germanic dogs. Schnapps it appears is a sad and sorry mixture of French and German, with a liberal dash of Irish thrown in for good measure. Listen to the list of parents and grandparents.

The worst feature of all this is that the poor elongated little beast is going through life with a regal German name when, by rights, he should be carrying that of a famous British traitor.

You see, I was led to believe that he was born on November the 2nd and was informed that he should have a Teutonic name. Accordingly, he got dubbed Prince Willie. When his papers arrived I learned that he was born three days later than I thought. Had I but known the truth, he would even now be carrying the celebrated name: GUY FAWKES.

Cushing, Que.

Lachute Watchman
Dear Sir,

It is with extreme gratification and satisfaction that I note that the Liberal Electors, both by action and through the press, are rising up and demanding justice — as Argenteuil County is in Democratic Canada and not Autocratic Russia. In other words, instead of Party affairs being controlled by a certain "clique", they should be controlled by the Liberal Electors as a whole.

If the so-called "clique" are so sure of themselves, why not call an Open Convention in a democratic way and all Liberals I am sure will stand behind the Convention's findings. If this is refused, then by all means run an Independent Liberal Candidate, and if this is done under present circumstances there is absolutely no doubt as to the outcome.

Some few years ago I suggested that the Liberal Party in the County be re-organized in all its branches and functions. However, this was promptly frowned upon and refused.

As every one familiar with Party Politics knows, there are certain functions that should be controlled by the Central Board and not by a clique. So my advice to the true Liberals in the County is to keep up the good work in a democratic way in the truest sense of the word, and I believe they will be successful in the end.

Yours truly,
— J. W. Weir

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

President Eisenhower's golf caddy, a 51-year-old negro called Willie Perteet, was fired because he was "getting a little too decrepit."

"The president plays like a whirlwind," observed Ed Dudley, professional of the Augusta, Georgia, National Golf Club and the president's golf partner.

"He hits the ball and swoosh — he's gone. It takes a young man to keep up with him."

The president is 67 years old, and the doctors have sewn patches on him in several places. So how does he manage to wear out caddies 16 years his junior?

The news story forgot to mention that he moves around the course a great deal of the time in a motor-driven chair. No wonder poor Willie is tired.

Willie could be suffering from athlete's heart.

The president's new caddy at Augusta is Slim Jenkins, a wiry man in his mid-30's. He won't stand the pace for long. Who will they hire after Jenkins is all used up — John Landy?

The president has a power-chair, and for all I know he has power-driven clubs, too. But even if he always cantered around the links, pausing at every green for handstands and somersaults, I couldn't believe that he caused his 51-year-old caddy any more damage than a severe case of nerves.

Doubtless poor Willie fretted himself thin for fear the president should swing too hard and wrench something loose in his innards, or sprain a thumb on the starting handle of the motor chair.

Then — swoosh — he'd be gone in the ambulance to hospital again, and the stock market would plunge downhill faster than a runaway golf cart.

Harry Truman and other blasphemous Democrats claim that Mr. Eisenhower is an ailing, over-age, part-time president. To counter this kind of loose talk, White House press agents seem to be engaged in an hysterical campaign to prove that the president is as nimble as a five-year-old.

From here, the firing of Willie Perteet looks like ham-fisted press-agentry of the worst kind. Do the publicity boys think the people are dumb enough to believe it? Well, maybe we are.

Both have a bank account - and a purpose for saving

Plans really start to take shape when savings start to grow. One way to make sure you'll have money when you need it is to make regular deposits in your bank account.

At first it may not be easy to stick faithfully to your savings program. But as your dollars build up you'll find yourself facing the future with greater confidence, making plans with new assurance that you'll be able to carry them out.

Use a chartered bank to keep your savings safe and growing. You will always be glad you did.

THE CHARTERED BANKS SERVING YOUR COMMUNITY

HOW MANY COWS ARE YOU KEEPING?

I did not say, "how many cows do you have," I said, "how many cows are you keeping?"

Say you have twenty cows and they average 9,000 lbs. of milk a year. That sounds pretty good. But if your average is 9,000 lbs., then most likely 10 of them are giving 9,000 lbs. milk a year, 5 of them are giving 10,000 lbs. of milk a year and the other 5 are giving 8,000 lbs. a year.

BUT, and here is the catch. If your cow has to give 8,500 lbs. of milk a year before she starts to make you any money, then the five giving 8,000 lbs. will cancel another 5 of those giving 9,000 pounds. So you are keeping ten cows that aren't making you any money and the other ten are trying to keep them and you.

First find out how much milk your cow must give to pay for her keep, then find out how much milk each cow is giving and then either feed them better so they will give enough milk to more than pay for their keep or weed them out to the butcher. By changing to Purina Dairy Chows, many of your low producers can be made to pay for their keep. Why not give them a try and if you need some help to find out how much milk your cows should give to pay for their keep we will be glad to help you.

Scout Paper Drive Highly Successful

The 1st Lachute Scout Troop held their paper drive Saturday, May 4, and it is expected that the large quantity of paper gathered will result in a considerable sum of money being added to troop funds. This money will be partially used to assist some members of the troop to attend Summer Camp., and to carry out other summer programs.

The troop and their scouters wish to thank everyone who so faithfully saved waste paper, and wishes to give special mention to the following for their assistance: Jas. Duncan, Pollock and Graves Motors Ltd., George Y. Deacon, Stuart Armstrong, Don Bradley and Boyd's Express for the use of their vehicles — Leonard Armstrong and Sterling Elliott as drivers.

Twelve Scouts have expressed their wish to attend the Summer Camp at Camp Tamaracouta this year. The camping period is from June 29 to July 12. At the present time the Brownsburg Troop has offered to accommodate tthe Lachute Scouts at camp, but assistance in leadership is needed. None of the Lachute Troop Scouters are able to attend, due to business and other exigencies, and it is hoped that a helper or older boy will be found to assist. Camping is one of the finer outdoor activities of Scouting and it is hoped that our Scouts will not have to forego this adventure because of a lack of leadership.

The Troop has set a date of May 22, to hold a Hobby Show, where hobbies of all Scouts will be put on display. Tickets for admission will be sold at a nominal fee, and the proceeds will be turned over to headquarters in Montreal to assist in the purchase of a badly-needed X-Ray machine for the Montreal Children's Hospital. All Scouts are busy preparing their hobbies. Tickets will be out soon.

B'burg Women's Institute Holds Monthly Meeting

Spring was in the air at Brownsburg Women's Institute meeting on May 2, convened by Mrs. G. Donaldson, when members and their friends listened to Mrs. Emmett, of Lachute, talking about African Violets. Later an auction of slips and bulbs took place, with brisk bidding and good fun on all sides and $9.85 was thus raised.

During the business session, members approved a resolution to be passed to the Town Council supporting the fluoridation of the water supply. A resolution was also passed requesting the Council to consider the creation of a much needed playground for pre-school children.

Arrangements were made for the annual W.I. Tea, to be held in the Legion Hall on Wednesday, May 15 from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. There will be a display of antiques, a cooking table, and exhibition and sale of handicrafts, and it is hoped that our many friends will come along and enjoy themselves.

May 6 marked the 31st anniversary of the formation of the Women's Institute in Brownsburg

Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyter'n Celebrates 25th Anniversary on Sunday

A special Anniversary Service Rev. Chas. MacLean, who had just commemorating the Twenty Fifth been released from the Royal Can Anniversary of the laying of the adian Navy, in which he had served corner-stone of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute, will be held on May, 1957, being followed by the Sunday, May 12, at 11:00 a.m. Rev. W. H. Reid, whose ministry

On July 2, 1950 the congregation received a bequest of a sum of money to be used for the building of a new church to be known as the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church. This work was commenced in April 1952, with the corner-stone laid on May 12, 1952, and the building completed in September of that year.

The congregation consisting of 90-odd families, was at that time under the ministry of the Rev. Henry Cousen, who remained until January, 1939, being succeeded by the Rev. Ernest Osborne, whose ministry continued until early 1946. He was in turn, followed by the Rev. James Armour, who, coming to Canada from Northern Ireland in June, 1956, continues as the minister in charge.

The congregation presently consists of about 200 families, a steady and consistent growth in the congregation being maintained.

In celebrating the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary, the minister and officers of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church extend to all members, adherents, and friends an invitation to join in this Anniversary service.

Hawkesbury Defeats B'burg In Ball Season Opener

Hawkesbury bats pounded Ronald Cousineau's offerings for eighteen hits and nine runs in the opening game of the season. Fielding was the difference though and Brownsburg managed to make every hit count as with twelve hits they won this inaugural 12-9.

Hitting star of the game was Claude Cyr of Hawkesbury, who hit a grand-slam home run in the second inning. Every player but Drouin joined in the hit parade for the visitors. Doubles were smacked by Caron, Morris and Berniquer.

Gilles Diotte, always a star fielder, seldom a star hitter, had a great start to the season with three hits. Germain Gagné and Billy Cribb each had two safeties. Young Garth Hazel and Kenny Tomalty looked good in their "big league" debut. Both fielded well and Tomalty smacked a likely-looking drive which was brought in by Johnny Morris as a long, long fly.

Buckingham won the other opener and the same games are played this week at the other ball parks; that is, Brownsburg plays at Hawkesbury.

Leonard Expected To Compete in Montreal Tourney

Stan Leonard, 1956 winner of the Quebec Professional Golfers Championship and the Dow Trophy, is expected to return to Montreal to defend his title June 16 at Wentworth, tournament officials said today.

The veteran Lachute shotmaker, Canada's top money-making pro on the U.S. winter circuit this year, is almost certain to boost his competitive earnings to an all-time high by taking part in the Dow-sponsored tourney.

Jack Archer, ex-Lachute pro and member of the tournament committee, describing Leonard "as the best Canadian golfer in action today," said "He is a cinch to take top prize money in the $3,500 event if he takes part, as we expect he will."

The Quebec PGA championship is one of the two top-rated tournaments which are open to Canadian pros only. The other, also sponsored by Dow, is the Ontario PGA championship for another $3,500.

The eight leaders of each of these championship matches will meet June 23 at Wentworth in unique Ontario vs. Quebec playoffs for $2,500. These events will be team and individual match play.

"Leonard, with the experience he has and the confidence he's gained by winning his first major U.S. tournament (the Greensboro Open) should lead the all-Canadian field," said Archer. "And that will mean at least $1,000 more in his pocket."

Added to the $6,408 he has won to date on the U.S. circuit, this would put Stan ahead of the $7,291 total he won during all of 1956.

Inter-Church Bowling Annual Event Held

For several years the bowling leagues of the Anglican, Presbyterian and United Churches have participated in a post-season play-off for a silver cup. Again this year the event created quite an interest as the three leagues met in the United Church hall for the competition, and two teams from each church played.

The defending cup-holders, the United Church were represented by teams skipped by Mrs. H. Riddell and Miss Grace Rosser; the Presbyterians by Messrs. John Simon and E. Gordon and the Anglicans by Mrs. C. Lang and George Leggett, all teams playing twice.

The scores were G. Leggett 7 Mrs. Riddell 7; Miss Rosser 12 J. Simon 6; E. Gordon 9 Mrs. Lang 8; Miss Rosser 7 Mrs. Lang 6; Mrs. Riddell 11 E. Gordon 7; J. Simon 12 G. Leggett 9; and the final totals were United 37, Presbyterian 34 and Anglicans 30.

The president of the host teams, Miss Margaret Gordon extended a welcome to the guests, and Mr. Shearsmith of St. Simeon's Church, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Underhill, of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church responded. The Rev. C. R. Lang and the Rev. Wilson Bridge also spoke.

There was a record attendance of about 100 present, and tasty refreshments were served by a committee under direction of Mrs. Foster Campbell.

"Buried Treasure" Fascination In Visit To Pompeii Ruins

The eruption of Mount Vesuvius in 79 A.D., which engulfed the towns of Pompeii and Herculaneum in ash and boiling mud, created an ideal subject both for the archaeologist and the film camera man. Buried Treasure this Tuesday (10.00 p.m. on the central network) shows a cross section of Roman life that was stilled and preserved by the sudden disaster.

In this BBC film, the camera probes among relics in the Naples Museum that were unearthed at Pompeii and Herculaneum, including a solid gold Roman lamp, a priceless lapis case and a complete silver breakfast set. Before any filming could be done, however, exceptional security precautions were taken by the authorities at the museum. Only after the public had been excluded and an attendant detailed to shadow each member of the filming team, were the cases with their precious contents allowed to be opened.

Producer Paul Johnstone considers the star attraction to be a perfectly good Roman doughnut now turned into charcoal by its centuries of burial but unmistakably a doughnut.

Paintings which show Pompeii in Roman times are also scrutinized by the camera and then, to show the same sites as they are today, a visit is made to archaeological excavations where excellent work is being done on the spot in preserving the paintings and furniture of the Roman houses as they are uncovered. Thus the viewer will see the ruins spring to life, as the film of them as they are today merges with the picture of them, as seen by a contemporary Roman painter. The survival both of ancient paintings and the places shown in them is an almost unique rarity.

Commentary in the film is by R. C. Carrington, a classical historian and author of a book on Pompeii, and the introduction is by Glyn Daniel.

The Tourist's Ottawa On TV's Perspective

Ottawa through the eyes of a veteran tourist guide who knows all the answers will be presented on Perspective May 12 on CBC-TV. The questions inevitably include these: How high is the Peace Tower? Who plays the carillon? Where did the old bell come from? Why was the canal built? Who pays for the tulips? The telecast coincides with the first day of Ottawa's 1957 Tulip Festival. To many the name Ottawa implies taxes, politicians, government edicts, national problems, etc. But how many know it as a city with an individuality unique in Canada? In this film the capital is revealed as a beautiful place, full of history, full of activity, and with potentials (under the Federal District Commission's guidance) of becoming a national centre of which Canadians can be increasingly proud.

National Film Board Has About Canada Productions

Eighteen National Film Board productions varying in length from a few minutes to nearly an hour will be presented on CBC-TV in the 1.00-1.30 p.m. period Sunday, from May 12 to June 30. The title of the series is About Canada and the subjects covered include forestry, the Royal Visit of 1951, the Six Nations Iroquois Indians, the Skeena Indians of British Columbia, the people of Newfoundland, and the Magdalen Islands.

One, two or sometimes three films will be seen in each program. On May 12 there will be two: Your Forest Heritage and Maple Sugar Time. The first, produced in 1951, by Sally MacDonald with music by William McCauley and art by John Maxted, deals with the Canadian forests from many aspects, including fire prevention, commercial exploitation, wild life, scenic splendor and holiday opportunities. The second was produced in 1941 and tells the complete story of "harvest" work and festivities in the sugar bushes.

On May 19 and 26 About Canada will show, in two parts, the 54-minute film called Royal Journey, produced in 1951 by T. C. Daly, with music by Louis Applebaum and commentary by L. McFarlane. The film tells the story of the Royal Visit and of many of the festivities surrounding it. To complete the May 26 program, a short film about the Variety Village in Toronto, providing vocational training for handicapped children, will be shown.

On June 2 films about a taxi-driver, a caleche driver in Quebec City and a street-car motorman will be seen — all from NFB's Faces of Canada's series. Completing this program will be a short film about the railway which "goes to sea" in order to provide a connection between the end of steel at Squamish and Vancouver, 40 miles away.

The Schweitzer Story

One brilliant sunshiny morning, during the Whitsuntide holidays of 1896 Albert Schweitzer, 21 years old, awoke in his bed at home in his father's house at Gunsbach, Alsace. "There came to me the thought that I must not accept this happiness as a matter of course, but must give something in return for it," the great humanist wrote later. "Proceeding at once to think the matter out with calm deliberation, while the birds were singing outside, I settled with myself before I got up that I would consider myself justified in living till I was 30 for science and art, in order to devote myself from that time forward to the direct service of humanity." This time of decision in a great man's life will be portrayed more fully on CBC Dominion May 12th, 7.15-7.30 p.m., in the current series of BBC-transcribed readings from the writings of Schweitzer, selected and arranged by Ormerod Greenwood and read by John Glen. The series ends in mid-June.

Creatures on the Move

Science Review, the new series dealing with the natural sciences which began last week, continues this Tuesday at 8.30 on the Trans-Canada network with talks on the migration of various creatures. The host and narrator is Lister Sinclair, who also planned the series; one of his many hobbies is natural history, and he is an active member of the Toronto Ornithological Society. The speakers will be William W. H. Gunn, field secretary for the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, who will discuss bird migration and local weather; Fred Urquhart, director of the museum of paleontology and zoology at the Royal Ontario Museum, speaking on the migration of the Monarch butterfly; A. W. F. Banfield, of the department of mammalogy, Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources — the migration of the caribou; and A. W. Cameron, of the zoology department in the Canadian Museum of Natural History section of the National Museum in Ottawa — the migration of the Harp seal.

Have you tried the ride that put bumps out of business?

Even if you can only spare a few minutes out of a busy day, take a demonstration ride in a new Plymouth with Torsion-Aire suspension

It's downright wonderful . . . what a difference it makes when you get out of the ordinary and into a new Thrill-Power Plymouth with Torsion-Aire suspension.

Just take a beautiful Plymouth a few miles down one of those old bumpety-bump side roads and you'll see what we mean. It is an entirely new ride experience, because of Plymouth's remarkable Torsion-Aire suspension. It's like coasting along on a thick, velvety carpet.

And your turning and braking feel entirely different, too. For Plymouth's Torsion-Aire suspension keeps it from "heeling over" when you round a corner . . . and keeps the nose of the car from "diving" when you stop.

But why not get the rest of the story while you're flashing along in the lowest, sleekest Plymouth ever built? You'll love it—every bit of it.

How about tomorrow? Phone us, and we'll bring a fresh, frisky new Plymouth to your door. Try its new V-8 or 6 Thrill-Power GO . . . Push-button Torque-Flite automatic drive . . . Total-Contact brakes . . . and all its other exciting advances!

Anyone for Sasquatch?

If you're thinking this is a new parlor game or a recipe for a quick Sunday supper reality may be startling.

A Sasquatch — the word means "wild one" — is a legendary inhabitant of the southwestern British Columbia mountains.

And the reported survivors of a primitive race have captured the imagination of at least two Canadian women who want to go along when an expedition seeks their traces during British Columbia's 1958 Centennial celebrations.

Peggy Sloan of Virginiatown, Ont., apparently wants to go along on the hunt to be led by Swiss mountaineer Rene Dahinden. Now Juliette Legare of Montreal wants to go too.

Juliette, 23, got keen on the Sasquatch after she did three years' research on the subject for a television play. Now she wants to do some first-hand research.

"If we find a real, live Sasquatch, so much the better. But I don't really believe we will," says Juliette, who plans to go to B.C. even if she's rejected as an expedition member.

Rare Item

In the realm of strange searches, Mrs. Alma Diebolt of Vancouver is an expert.

This housewife's speciality is shopping around the world for hard-to-get items. She has imported Mexican burros and out-of-print books for customers.

Now she's casting about to fulfill the strangest request she's ever had. Calvin Lawrey of High River, Alta., wants a piece of the moon.

Mrs. Diebolt's reaction to this request is down to earth. She says if there are pieces of the moon on this earth, she'll probably get hold of one. At least, she'll try.

Serious Side

Teen-agers holding a YWCA teen conference in Ottawa showed they have a serious side as well as appreciation for rock 'n' roll.

The 160 delegates to the 10th annual Ontario and Quebec regional Y-Teen Conference tackled big subjects seriously as they spent three days discussing youth and Canada's future.

With the major theme broken down into topics such as education, religion, society and culture, the youthful delegates used workshops and discussion sessions to seek big answers to big questions.

Old Stuff

A noted Canadian choir director has practically pinned an Elvis Presley button on adults agitated by the teen-agers' rock 'n' roll idol.

Dr. Leslie Bell, of Toronto, says if adults ignored Elvis, the youngsters wouldn't take him so seriously.

Dr. Bell reminded delegates at a British Columbia Teachers Federation meeting in Vancouver that adults also had crooning heroes — back in the 1930s and 40s.

Breakfast in Bed a Mother's Day Treat

"For Mother", in this case, means her Mother's Day gift and the luxury of breakfast in bed. A fine, three-course meal, complete with expertly-made fresh coffee, can be produced with ease by any teen-ager. Such a gesture of affection will make a mother glow with pride for a long, long time.

Teen-agers, you will already have purchased your gift for Mother's Day by now, but the problem is to find a special way to give it to her. After all, this occasion calls for a gesture of affection on your part — the sort of loving act that means more than any gift. Here's an idea. Why not serve Mother her breakfast in bed? As you know, that's a rare luxury for mothers, and she'll enjoy it doubly because you prepared her meal yourself.

Here's a suggested menu for a full three-course breakfast, taking full advantage of canned and pre-processed foods:

Kadota Figs in Cream
Deviled Scrambled Eggs*
Brown-and-Serve Cinnamon Buns
Coffee Marmalade

You can produce this scrumptuous breakfast quickly and efficiently. First of all, start the coffee brewing. Remember that it takes two level measuring tablespoons of coffee — to three-quarters of a measuring cup of fresh, cold water to produce each serving. You'll want to make Mother at least two cups. Percolators should perk no more than six to eight minutes. Vacuum coffee should be allowed to brew for two to three minutes after the coffee has risen to the upper bowl, and drip coffee needs boiling water and should be stirred before serving.

Next, set up the tray, heat the oven for the buns, and prepare the scrambled eggs. While the eggs are cooking, brown the rolls as directed on the package and open the can of figs. Arrange the food and the fresh hot coffee, add the be-ribboned gift, and you're all set. And what about warbling "Happy Mother's Day to You" to herald your arrival?

Deviled Scrambled Eggs

2 Eggs, slightly beaten, 2 tablespoons milk or cream, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 2¼ oz. can deviled ham.

Blend eggs with cream or milk, salt, pepper and 2 tablespoons of the deviled ham. (2 tablespoons is about half the can — you can use up the rest for sandwiches later in the day.) Pour the mixture into the buttered top of a double boiler. Cook over hot water, stirring often with a fork until creamy and set. Garnish with an additional teaspoon of deviled ham and parsley. This makes one serving.

Wax Helps Ward Off Metal Tarnish on Items

Silver, brass and copper have an irritating habit of becoming dull and discolored a day or so after they have ben polished and one of the easiest ways to give that hand-rubbed "butler's" finish to the three metals is with a creamy clean-up wax. The wax will help to ward off tarnish.

Before silver, brass or copper pieces are waxed they should be polished to remove any tarnish, then washed with warm soapy water, rinsed thoroughly and dried well.

Next, take a piece of cheesecloth or flannel, dip into cold water and wring out as dry as possible. Pour a small amount of the wax on the pad and apply a light even coat of the wax to one piece at a time. Polish with a dry flannel cloth while the wax is still moist.

The pieces can be dusted with a soft, lintless cloth. Every two or three weeks go over the pieces lightly with a jeweler's rouge-impregnated cloth or polishing mitt. This step increases the sheen left by the wax and further retards the development of tarnish.

Fashions This Spring Mean A Season of Elegance

Reports from Paris are that fashion for the coming seasons will "float". The new lines — soon to be adapted to North American wearing — are fluid and elegant. They are interpreted in fabrics that are filmy and drapeable. Sheers, the favorite of spring and summer, have a very special place when the feeling is for the lady-like look. Chiffon, in particular, will rank as one of the most important fabrics of the seasons.

In Canada, it is likely to be nylon chiffon. The next few months will find it in both ready-made garments and yard goods departments. One fabric house (Bruck Mills Limited) places the accent on this airy, fragile material via prints, solids and varying polka and coin-dot patterns.

As we all know, the color for spring is purple. It may be lilac, or violet, mauve or fuschia, but purple in some shade it is.

While prints are not as important this spring as in the past, they still are the favorite with many women. This spring the print is muted and over-all in design. It uses tone-on-tone shades which blend subtly against a white background.

Soon everybody will be seeing spots before their eyes in the size of polka and coin dots, in white on colored grounds or colors on spanking white. There is also a generous sprinkling of white combined with black and navy.

Whether you sew at home or buy your garments ready-made, the chances are you'll find at least one garment of nylon chiffon in your wardrobe within the next few months. The beauty of the fabric well befits a season of elegance while the fibre allows for the minimum of care with the maximum of fashion effect.

Mother--and the Family's Job

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Mother was wakened on the second Sunday in May by strange noises and the smell of bacon frying. When Junior threw open her door, and Father entered carrying her tray, she sat up, exclaiming "What a nice surprise! You make me very happy!"

"Teacher said that's what families are for," Junior said, and then added confidently, "you'll like my toast. We had a lot of fun cooking this breakfast!"

* * *

Mothering Day in mid-Lent is an old, old church festival. On this day, children went home to their families and feasted on simnel or "mothering" cakes. Mother's Day, which began in a very humble celebration in one church in Philadelphia, has been with us for half a century. In recent years, partly in protest against too great a commercialization of this event, quite a number of the churches have changed their emphasis at this time to focus on Christian Family week. Perhaps the most vital function Mother's Day fulfils is to stimulate parents, both mother and father, to think about the family's task.

It is useful to look at some practical suggestions about the family upon which experts from different lands have agreed. Three useful aims may be found in the report of the sub-committee on the home, presented at the UNESCO (United Nations) conference which met in Paris. The delegates felt that the job of the family was threefold. They agreed "a family should be a buffer to protect a child from too harsh a contact with realities through his growing period, a filter to interpret to him the culture in which he lives, and a base from which he can launch out into the more impersonal world outside his home."

Social workers in London, England, were amazed to discover how little the Air Raids in World War II adversely affected the boys and girls whose parents remained calm in the face of danger. These youngsters had a base, shielding them from the threat of bombs which might maim or kill them. Courage and serenity evidently were contagious as well as fear!

There are other agencies at work, bringing to your child pictures of the world in which he lives. The books, not just the funnies and comics, but his own books and those he borrows from the Public Library, are very helpful in enlarging his horizons. The radio, and now in an increasing number of homes, TV, are other means of communicating ideas to Junior. The movies are another great source of information. But a child continues to need his parents' encouragement and direction in exploring fresh areas of life.

Parents realize that each generation has its own ideas of the beautiful and satisfying in literature, in music, in art. Tastes are never static in a growing individual and what Junior prefers in his teens he will likely outgrow in his twenties! That is a comfort to recall! The atmosphere of a home where literature, music, and arts are enjoyed stimulates the appreciation of the finest things in our culture.

The suggestion of the family being a base from which a child launches out from the loving family harbour into the impersonal world is an apt one. It is well to remember that one of the best things about a good base is its permanence. In a family, a young man or woman will want to return home from time to time. The bonds of affection and understanding draw the members of the family together, especially in time of crisis and on special holidays and anniversaries.

Happy reunions strengthen and reassure both young and old. Not the least of these festivals on this continent is observed on the second Sunday of May. Tens of thousands of people make an effort to give their mothers pleasure on that day. Raising a family is the most challenging and satisfying of human endeavours. The Psalmist says of God's plan for the race, "He setteth the solitary in families."

Fresh Halibut In Season

For excellence of flavor and for fine quality of meat, few fish rival the halibut. On the west coast the annual halibut haul commenced this year on May 1. On the east coast, the big fish are also being harvested, with the result that fresh halibut steaks are in good supply in many parts of the country from mid-May until well on in June. Easterners and westerners alike have their favorite methods of preparing these delicious, snow-white steaks. From Cape Breton, the Royal Isle, comes the following recipe, recommended by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries. You'll find the flavor of the dish quite outstanding; due, in part, to the treatment of the steaks before cooking.

Halibut Isle Royal

2 Pounds fresh halibut, cut about 1 inch thick, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, dash cayenne, juice of one lemon, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ cup chopped onion, green pepper strips (optional).

Wipe steak or steaks with a damp cloth and place on a shallow dish. Combine salt, paprika, cayenne and lemon juice; pour this mixture over steaks. Marinate steaks in refrigerator for one hour, turning at half time to permit seasonings to penetrate from both sides. Heat butter; pan fry onion in it, over low heat, until softened but not brown. Place marinated halibut in a greased baking dish and spread with onion. If desired, top with several narrow, thinly cut, strips of green pepper, as a garnish. Pour any excess butter in frying pan over all. Bake in a hot oven (500° F.) for 10 minutes per inch thickness of steaks or until the flesh will separate in flakes on testing with a fork. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

The soybean, insignificant as it may seem, can be put to more uses than the trusty safety pin. For instance, it is used in the manufacture of plastics, synthetic fibres, paints salad oils, candy and cosmetics. It is a valuable livestock feed supplement. The soya derivative, lecithin, is used to prevent sediment formation in lubricating oils and gasoline, and as a wetting agent in ink and paint manufacture. Oil from the soybean is used in the tanning of leather, dyeing of textiles and in making soaps and water-proofing agents.

Who is credited with establishing the Atlantic Cable?

Frederick Newton Gisborne, a Canadian engineer and inventor who pioneered in the development of telegraphy, laid a cable from Prince Edward Island to New Brunswick in 1847, the first successful underwater cable in America. He conceived the idea of telegraphic communication with Europe by way of Newfoundland, and finally got support for the project, which was completed in 1858.

Where was Pauline Johnson born?

The birthplace of this famed Indian poetess still is preserved as a memorial on the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford, Ontario. She was the daughter of a Mohawk chief and his English wife. She travelled extensively in North America and Great Britain to recite her poetry. Chief among her works are "Flint and Feather", a collection of her poems; "The Shagganapi," a novel, and a volume of prose tales entitled "Legends of Vancouver."

Where and what is the International Peace Garden?

Straddling the Canada - United States border near Boissevain, Man., this beautiful 2,200-acre garden is kept up by both nations as a symbol of international amity. A cairn bears the inscription, "To God in His Glory", we two nations dedicate this garden and pledge ourselves that as long as men shall live we will not take up arms against one another."

What was Horaceville?

The solid stone walls of "Horaceville" in March Township, Carleton County, Ontario, is all that remains of a period of pomp and scintillating society provided by a community of retired English army and naval officers. They settled there about 1819 and gave numerous formal dinner parties in their wilderness homesteads. The great Carleton County fire of 1870 destroyed all but "Horaceville." This unique settlement had dreamed of becoming the capital of Canada, with a naval station and a university — and just 20 miles away, it all came true.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Women's Travel Authority

What's it like to come back from a vacation? Everything in order and everybody rested? Or is it late at night — and is the front door half hidden behind heaped up newspapers, bottles of milk, old mail and packages? If you come back to such a shambles, you have just one trouble. You don't leave right.

Here are a few tips on an important part of any vacation trip — getting your home ready to get along without you.

Before starting on your tour, stop all deliveries of milk, newspapers and mail. Ask your laundry and cleaners to hold bundles until your return and get stores to hold up deliveries of packages. Make a mental "household check list" so you don't forget to turn off lights, lock windows and doors and empty and turn off the refrigerator. Turn off your hot water heater, and disconnect electric heaters. If you are taking an extended vacation notify utility companies to discontinue meter-reading and have your phone temporarily disconnected. And don't overlook your pets and potted plants. If you're not taking your pets along, be sure they're provided for. It's preferable to board them at a kennel, but if this is not convenient leave them with a reliable friend. House plants should be "boarded" or an agreement made with a friend to come in and care for them.

Safety measures are equally important in proper leave-taking. Notify police of your departure and ask them to keep an eye out for trespassers. Leave an extra key with a neighbor or relative for use in case of emergency.

Thurso Pulp Plant To Start Operations By Next December

Thurso, Que. — The $16,000,000 Pulp and Paper Company plant will be in operation in December, Paul Bourget, president, said Saturday, in confirming a Quebec City report. The company is a subsidiary of Singer Manufacturing Company of Thurso.

Premier Duplessis said recently that the plant will provide jobs for "hundreds" of persons in the area and Mr. Bourget, who is also general manager of Singer Manufacturing, said around 300 would be employed.

Construction of the bleached sulphate mill with a rated capacity of 2 0 tons a day has now advanced to the point where machinery is being installed. About 500 men are employed in the construction work and brick work is now being rushed to completion.

Up in Marathon, Ont., the first chapter of a story that began way back in 1947 ended on a mighty fine note last year.

Seems that ten years ago the first Marathon Boy Scout Troop was formed and was persuaded by the forestry section of the woodlands division of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association to plant, maintain and protect a forest of their own.

The woodlands division was concerned about fire protection and conservation in the area and hoped the children's enthusiasm would kind'a encourage the adults.

The Department of Lands and Forests shipped 10,000 jack pine seedlings to Marathon. Since that time the boys have planted 10,000 trees a year.

And last year the plantings were dedicated as a Scout Forest, Mr. Van Camp of the Canadian Forestry Association told the boys they had the finest program in the country.

We're sure proud of those boys.

Oh, just another note. The area could not be certified as a Tree Farm 'cause to do that, the planting must be done on private lands.

Did you know there are 225,500 acres planted only to Christmas trees in the U.S.? And 70 per cent of this is owned by farmers. In 1955 more than 37,000,000 Christmas trees supported a $47.5 million retail business.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

bg the Canadian Press

By Roy LaBerge, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — The Canada Council at its first meeting made plans to start its program to promote the arts in the fall, and decided to meet with university heads in June to determine how it will make its building grants to their institutions.

Hon. Brooke Claxton, council chairman, told reporters after the two-day session that the body will hold preliminary talks with university leaders during the national conference of Canadian universities in Ottawa, June 7-8. Parliament has armed the council with $100,000,000 — half to aid university building during the next 10 years, and half to be invested with the annual revenue to be used to promote Canadian culture.

Mr. Claxton, a former Liberal defence minister and now an insurance executive, said the council, set up to promote the arts, humanities and social sciences, cannot begin its culture aid program until the endowment fund earns some revenue However, a start likely could be made in October.

Direct Assistance

While no decision had yet been made on how the money would be handed out, Mr. Claxton said he anticipated direct assistance to artists would be an important part of the council's work and "quite a lot" of awards would be made as a result of competitions.

The body expects to meet three times a year — in October, February and May — but an extra meeting is planned this summer to approve a program for aid this year. Following the latter meeting the council would announce its Ottawa office is ready to accept applications for grants.

A staff of five officers and a handful of stenographers would begin operations in the office. Mr Claxton said every effort will be made to keep overhead down.

The meeting named three officers to help the permanent director, Dr. A. W. Trueman, former National Film Board Commissioner, and associate director, Eugene Bussière. They are Douglas H. Fullerton, Ottawa, treasurer; Lillian Breen, Ottawa, acting secretary, and Archibald Day of the External Affairs Department.

Mr. Day, who was secretary of the Massey Royal Commission on the Arts, Letters and Sciences, will head a survey to bring up to date the information placed before the 1951 commission.

A seven-member executive committee was set up to deal with matters arising between council meetings.

Russian Criticism

An article in an official Russian publication said the Canadian government was refusing licenses for the export to the Soviet Union of timber equipment and machines ordered under the Canada-U.S.S.R trade agreement.

The article, in "U.S.S.R. Illustrated News", said little had been done by Canada to create a favorable atmosphere for development of Soviet-Canadian trade. A trade department official commented the only export licenses refused were for strategic military material or U.S.-made products.

Campaign Issue

The role of the federal government in the field of power development, and navigation have become issues in the federal election campaign.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said in Vancouver last Friday that the federal government is ready to help finance power development on the Columbia River provided the British Columbia government finds federal action "appropriate and perhaps even necessary." Such aid would be available only in the event of public development of the river's power resources.

Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker at Saint John N.B., promised that if his party wins the June 10 election there will be an investigation of the feasibility of a Chignecto canal connecting the Bay of Fundy and Northumberland Strait. A Conservative government he said, would give the proposal the "widest possible investigation."

Mineral Rights Disputed

The Supreme Court of Canada reserved judgment on an appeal by 13 Alberta soldier-settlers from an Exchequer Court ruling that they do not have mineral rights to their land.

But as the court heard the evidence it was led through a succession of property transfers involving an Indian band, the federal government and various agencies and the 13 settlers in the Ponoka area about 100 miles south of Edmonton.

G. H. Steer, of Edmonton, counsel for the First World War veterans who bought the land from the old Soldier Settlement Board, quoted from the statutes and documents. The land — totalling 31.5 square miles — formerly belonged to the Bobtail band of Indians. Mr. Steer sought to show that when the Indians surrendered their land to the federal government in 1909, their surrender involved all rights.

Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin and four associate judges insisted in effect that Mr. Steer produce an order-in-council on which he based his case.

Mr. Steer contended the Indians surrendered full title, including mineral rights, to the federal government which took the land in 1909 "in trust".

He quoted from letters patent indicating that the Soldier Settlement Board acquired mineral rights with the land when it took over. The transfer agreements to most of the settlers, however, carried the endorsement that mineral rights were reserved to the crown.

In December 1948 Veterans Minister Gregg, now labor minister and Mines Minister MacKinnon now a senator, announced the government was prepared to transfer to settlers who had paid off their mortgage the mineral rights to their land, if it held them.

The Settlement Board subsequently invited the 13 appellants to apply for transfer, advising that an order-in-council authorized such transfer.

Later, they were told, a check indicated their mineral rights had remained with the Indian Affairs branch when the Settlement Board bought the former reservation for division among them.

It DOES matter which Oil Burner you buy!
If you're in the market for an oil burner, there are dozens for you to choose from. They all look very much alike. They all burn oil. Some are pretty efficient, others less so. But, unless you're an engineer, there's no way for you to decide which burner is best for your needs, except by insisting on one made by a reputable, long-established manufacturer... like Smart's, for example. We recommend Smart's series "A" oil burners because when we sell one we know that the customer is going to be satisfied with the deal for a long time. If that seems to you to be a good reason for buying a Smart's oil burner, let us show you the complete range, and tell you all about them.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

Monkey Business

Well, it had to happen sometime. A smart operator down in the United States has finally unionized our furred and featured friends.

This may sound like Alice in Wonderland, but it's true. Howard Benedict told about it in an Associated Press Dispatch. He wrote, "The union has started organizing animals. Some animals are now better off than people. They're drawing up to $150 a week for a few hours work; they have a retirement plan, sick leave, paid vacations and good food; they travel first class and a few even sleep in the best hotels. The lucky creatures are members of the American Guild of Animal Artists, with headquarters in New York and branches in Chicago and Los Angeles. Animals affected are those engaged in television, film, stage and modelling activities."

Already the unions have made the cost of television production so expensive that many advertisers are afraid to touch it. Now the union has gone even further and it is a pretty good bet that you won't see very many animals or birds on the flickering screen when present contracts have expired.

There was a time when a great many of us on this continent sympathized with and encouraged unions in their efforts to get a higher rate of pay for working men. But the pendulum has now swung the other way. Union bosses have become so powerful that no one can resist them for the moment; but the day will come when public sentiment will make it possible for employers to resist union demands. Unions have been very foolish to push things so far.

It would be a splendid thing if all the union bosses would read the recent Gallup Poll concerning union activities. They would get quite a shock. They would be particularly shocked to find out that the vast majority of rank and file union members believe that union membership should be voluntary — in other words, that the closed shop idea is not a democratic one.

Unfortunately, the union leaders seem able to go around claiming that they represent so many hundred thousand men. These men are perhaps members of their union because they are obliged to be members; but this does not mean that they agree with all things that union leaders are doing. Many of them disagree completely.

The Gallop Poll showed that when this question was asked, "Do you believe, that you, as a worker, should be able to work for anyone you wish who is willing to hire you, whether or not you belong to a union?" The answer of 80% of the workers questioned was "yes", only 10% said "no", and 10% did not have any opinion.

Certainly this information ought to be studied pretty thoughtfully by all union leaders.

Indifference to Dental Diseases Slows Benefits of Fluoridation

Little groups of mininformed citizens are able to create an atmosphere of controversy where none really exists, tells Mr. Christian Smith, Director of Health Education for Saskatchewan in the magazine "Health", official organ of the Health League of Canada. Self-appointed guardians of the public welfare, these little groups of citizens have campaigned unblushingly against the organised medical and dental professions, the research scientists and the public health authorities with cries of "poison", "sabotage" and "communism".

We would laugh at this ridiculous situation if it were not for the fact that these small groups actually scare thousands of people into depriving their children and future generations of adults of the benefits of fluoridation. It would not be so bad either if the dental disease problem did not affect the health and appearance of so many of our people and the situation is getting worse rather than better.

But it is very difficult to get people interested in a preventive measure if they are not concerned with what it prevents and there has been shocking indifference to dental disease among our people, except perhaps from a cosmetic point of view.

These noisy little minorities which fight fluoridation do not really know anything about dental health or ill health and about the virtues of fluoridation. With odd exceptions, they rely on quack material imported from the United States, a country in which people, like people anywhere, include the good and the bad. They import this literature, quote quacks as authorties and are therefore able to convince our communities that medical and dental professions and the Public Health authorities are at best mistaken, at worst in a sinister plot to kill us off with rat poison. Through newspaper advertising and sometimes on radio time, they manage to create an atmosphere of controversy where none really exists. Therefore, a Home and School Association or a Rotary Club labours under the mistaken obligation to "hear both sides" and wants to invite one of the anti-fluoridationists to speak when a reputable physician or dentist is to give the case for fluoridation. There is no sense in a debate with a person whose statements don't make sense.

When a service club invites a police official to speak on crime prevention, it does not also invite a juvenile delinquent to speak for crime! So why do this when a qualified physician or dentist is to be heard on a great health measure, the prevention of dental disease by means of water fluoridation? . . .

Actually, of course, the question of whether to fluoridate or not to fluoridate should not be a matter for public referendum any more than a good many other matters with which municipal councils deal. Municipal councils have the privilege and the responsibility to legislate and initiate measures for the welfare and protection of their communities.

But the municipalities have abdicated from a lot of their responsibilities, and when their own public health officer, supported by the undivided opinion of the medical and dental professions, recommends fluoridation, they should have the courage and the sense to accept it and act upon it.

So, take your medical and dental advice from qualified Canadian professional men and women, the doctors and dentists to whom you go when you need medical and dental care.

When some deluded person assures you that the revised version of the Bible and water fluoridation are the work of communists, have a good laugh. But for heaven's sake don't let this interfere with mature judgment if the city council asks you to vote on a matter such as this!

Study Reveals Color of Automobiles May Be Factor in Causing Accidents

Kitchener, Ont., May 2 (CP) — Sgt. Wilfred Henrich, head of the Kitchener Police Traffic Squad, believes some drivers may be risking trouble even if their cars are the latest models with every safety device in the book.

Since January 1 a record has been kept of the colors of cars involved in accidents, involving right-of-way at intersections. During one month 57 percent of cars hit at intersections were light grey or sand in color.

Black cars or ones with light-colored tops were almost as often reported. By contrast, only one red car was involved in an accident during a month while other statistics showed that light green cars figured in many early-morning crashes and light blue cars in accidents at dusk.

"These colors seem to blend into the surroundings, making the cars difficult for other motorists to see," the police officer said.

The study being made by Sgt. Henrich is being watched with interest by the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, which has charge of police affairs in the province.

Valois Has Support of St. Laurent; Platform Based on Accomplishments

Philippe Valois, M.P. and Lachute advocate, who on April 1 was chosen the Official Liberal Candidate at a convention held in Lachute, reports that his campaign throughout the Argenteuil - Two Mountains constituency will get underway this week-end.

The member-elect was first elected to the House of Commons in 1949 when he polled a clear-cut majority against Georges Héon. He was returned to office in the 1953 general elections, polling a large majority over Linton Armstrong, his Conservative opponent.

Mr. Valois this year again runs as the official Liberal candidate for the riding of Argenteuil - Two Mountains. His nomination as such is this week confirmed by a letter from the Right Honorable Louis S. St. Laurent, Prime Minister of Canada, the text of which can be found elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Valois reports that he will visit all sections of the constituency prior to the June 10 elections.

Distinguished Liberal guests were present at the convention in April, including Messrs. Lionel Bertrand, M.P., and Senator Sarto Fournier. The nomination resolutions were read in English by the Rev. H. G. Baugh, of Morin Heights and in French by Clément Legault, of Ste. Scholastique.

Mr. Valois, in accepting the nomination at that time, thanked the gathering, and outlined at some length his accomplishments during his term of office.

Progressive Conservative Candidate Chosen at St. Hermas Sunday Last

J. Octave Latour, a St. Benoit notary and registrar of Two Mountains County, was last Sunday evening chosen the official Progressive Conservative candidate for the June 10 Federal election, at a convention held at St. Hermas. Maurice Dorion, of St. Eustache, was also entered as a candidate in the election campaign convention, but withdrew in favor of Notary Latour.

Alphida Lecuyer, Mayor of St. Joseph-du-Lac, proposed Mr. Latour's candidature, this being seconded by Linton Armstrong and J. Plamondon, both of Lachute.

Withdrawing as a candidate, Dorion thanked his nominator and seconder and voiced his support for Latour; he was nominated as a candidate by Stanislas St. Pierre, seconded by Donat Legare, both of St. Eustache.

Notary Jacques Beaudoin, and Linton Armstrong, both of Lachute, and Victor Barré, Q.C., of Brownsburg, were among the main speakers at the convention.

The Conservative candidate thanked his supporters and the population of Argenteuil County as a whole for his nomination at the convention held in the County of Two Mountains. In his speech, he elaborated on decentralization, suggested fiscal changes, spoke on the population problem and on loans consented to by the Federal Government, and praised a system of loans whereby contractors could put forward a reasonable interest rate.

He stated that he was also in favor of old-age pensions reaching the sum of $60 per month, and then spoke on the insurance-hospitalization plan that the Central government wishes to apply in all provinces.

J. Octave Latour, Official Conservative Candidate

The meeting commenced under the presidency of Albert Gingras, Mayor of St. Canut and Two Mountains County warden.

Born in Lesage in February, 1906, Notary Latour took his classical studies in the Ste. Therese Seminary, and attended the University of Montreal from where he was graduated. He became a notary in 1933, then practised in St. Benoit and Lachute until 1945. From that time on he has been registrar of Two Mountains County; he was elected mayor of St. Benoit for two terms.

Married to Fernande Vermette, of Montreal, Notary and Mrs. Latour have five children, all students.

"I have the pleasure, desire, and honor to announce that I will be a candidate in the coming Federal election, and I have promised those who have supported me that there will be no withdrawal." With these words Antoine Paré, 43-year-old St. Andrews East Lawyer announced his candidature at an opening campaign meeting held on Thursday evening of last week at the Lachute Auditorium; an estimated 225 persons were present.

Mr. Paré, who stated he was at first sceptical of support for him as a Liberal candidate, pointed out he had had no intentions to enter his name as a candidate until he had consulted well-known Liberal County organizers. He added that after he had become aware of the existing support, he advised Philippe Valois, M.P., of his decision to enter his name as a nominee, by means of a letter, a copy of which he claimed to have sent to the Central Headquarters in Montreal. He pointed out that a short time later, he was informed that a meeting had been held at which Mr. Valois had been "unanimously" chosen to represent the Liberals of Argenteuil in the forthcoming election campaign.

"After some discussion we decided to fight what we feel has been an anti-democratic movement," adding that, "in my opinion, a certain Liberal faction within the County feels that control is slipping from their hands and for that reason they held a rally to which were invited only known patrons of that group."

Various prominent members of the Liberal Party in this constituency advocated in their speeches that a convention should be called where all would be present. Jas. McGibbon, ex-Liberal M.P. and former secretary of the Argenteuil Liberal Association, said that in his opinion, "if both candidates were to get together within two weeks, a convention could be arranged, so that all convention delegates could gather and pick one candidate in order to present a united front."

In his speech, Mr. Paré stated his conception of what a true Liberal should be "one who will not follow blindly behind but will stand on his own two feet." He reported that he intends to bring new industries into the area and "to plan for the future of our valley. The name of Argenteuil will be heard and raised in Parliament more than once," he added.

Ice-Making Machine for Proposed Arena Transported Here by Volunteer Crew With Equipment, Know - How and Time

To the impatient young bloods of this community, progress on the Lions Club arena may seem exasperatingly slow. But the project involves such detail and study as young folks do not readily comprehend. Committeemen are giving consideration to the problems and, pending definite plans for construction, the Lions Club is devoting its efforts to that other necessary factor, the raising of funds.

To the younger observers it is significant news that an ice making machine has been purchased and delivered to the Lions in Lachute. This acquisition was made at an opportune price, and the transfer of the equipment was a co-operative job which speaks well for public support when the time comes.

The ice machine, of 80-ton capacity, was dissembled and brought here in pieces — its aggregate weight approximately four tons. It has a 100 h.p. motor and a compressor with pistons which require two men to lift them. The outfit was bought for $1,100 from Clark's Dairy, Ottawa, after negotiations through Lowe Bros. of Lachute.

The big job of removing the plant required both muscle and strategy. It entailed hauling the heavy pieces from a basement up a non-operative elevator shaft by means of chain and tackle. It was a back-breaking but heart-warming job, with voluntary labor and equipment extended to the Lions Club on behalf of the good cause. Clifford Lowe and an employee of the local dairy spent most of Saturday in Ottawa, while Athanase Pharand and eight of his fellow-workers from Gatineau Power gave all afternoon and far into the evening. The actual transportation was by courtesy of Boyd's Lachute Express; driver, M. Gilbeault.

President Jos. Dumais and Miville Trickey organized the "bee" and generally supervised, while actively co-operating were Rod Carreau, of Gatineau Power, Nat Boyd of Boyd's Express, and Jim Lowe of Lowe's Dairy — all valuable Lions Club members.

Local Phone Calls Price Increase in Effective June 29

To standardize all local calling from public and semi-public telephones throughout its territory in Quebec and Ontario, the Bell Telephone Company of Canada plans to adopt a uniform charge of 10 cents per call in Lachute and all other communities where this rate does not now apply, R. R. Pearson, Bell Telephone manager for this territory, announced this week. The new rate is expected to become effective towards the end of June.

Approval in principle of the 10-cent rate for local calls from all of Bell's public and semi-public telephones was given in November, 1951, by the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada. However, because of equipment shortages at that time, the Bell asked for the higher rate to be applied immediately only in the larger centres. With equipment now available to modify the public telephones in the smaller centres also, the company decided to complete the application of the standard rate throughout its territory.

Introduction of the uniform 10-cent rate for local calls would follow the approval of tariff revisions filed by the Bell Company with the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada.

Conversion of public and semi-public coin boxes in the areas concerned now is under way. The date for introducing the 10-cent local calling rate throughout these exchange areas has been set tentatively for June 29, 1957.

Country Groups Meet in L.H.S. For Annual Reports and Ceremonies

The 37th annual convention of the Argenteuil County Women's Institutes was held in the Lachute High School, Saturday, May 11, commencing at 10 a.m. The President, Mrs. Mansell Wilson, presided over the meeting and welcomed delegates, guests and members attending for the first time. Brownsburg and Morin Heights branches were congratulated on their thirtieth anniversaries. The Provincial President, Mrs. Harvey, was guest speaker.

The meeting opened with the singing of the Ode and the repetition of the Mary Stewart Collect.

The minutes of the semi-annual convention and board meeting were read and approved. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were also read and approved showing a County membership of 339 and bank balances of $315.78 in the General Fund and $337.59 in the Educational Emergency Fund. A student loan of $100 was reported and the auditor's reports were accepted.

Reports were read from all conveners of the Standing Committees showing that much work had been undertaken and accomplished during the year.

Mrs. Foster Campbell reported on Fair Work and expressed hope that each branch will exhibit at least ten articles. Money for Fair Work should be sent in as soon as possible and branches not able to guard handicrafts at Fair are to give notice before and, pay for someone to do it.

As the Argenteuil Farm Forum Organization is going to look after School Fair work, it was recommended that the money on hand ($39.18) be turned over to the Secretary, Margaret Brass.

The president drew attention to the Service Fund Thermometer and recommended that members take advantage of the Leadership Training Course from May 27-31. She reminded members that June 15 is the deadline to send exhibits to the handicraft exhibit at the Provincial Exhibition. Notice was also given of a Handicraft Fair at Brownsburg, May 15, from 3-6 p.m.

Suggestions are being asked for a W.I. Pageant to be held in 1961.

The National Foundation Fund has been subscribed to by several branches.

Mrs. N. Smillie moved that County President, Mrs. Wilson, be appointed as the official delegate to the F.W.I.C. Convention in October and that fifty dollars be alloted to cover expenses. This was seconded by Mrs. G. McGibbon and carried.

Mrs. Wilson welcomed the honored guests and members to the delicious luncheon served by Mille Isles and Pioneer branches. Attention was drawn to the founding of the W.I. at Stoney Creek — sixty years ago and the beautiful anniversary cake was cut by Mrs. Harvey.

Congratulations were extended to one of our oldest presidents, Mrs. John Boyd and short addresses were enjoyed from several guests during the luncheon.

Mrs. Wilson congratulated the hostesses and waitresses from the C.G.I.T. and expressed regret that some invited guests were unable to be present, also appreciation for space in The Lachute Watchman.

The afternoon session opened with the singing of O Canada and a resumé of the morning session was read by the secretary.

Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh conducted a short but impressive ceremony in memory of departed members, namely — Miss McKenzie (Provincial convener); Mrs. Joe Boyd;

Tom Hall Elected Brownsb'g Mayor Old Council Cleans Up Final Duties

By John J. Molloy

T. P. "Tommy" Hall on Monday defeated Jim Donaldson in the race for the mayoralty of the Village of Brownsburg, when a total of 1,070 persons out of an eligible 1,400-odd exercised their franchise in what turned out to be the most active municipal election in years. Hall polled a majority of 172 votes over his adversary. The individual count was 614 for Hall and 442 for Donaldson, 14 ballots reported as being rejected by Returning-Officer Secretary-Treasurer Vincent Charbonneau.

It is Mr. Hall's first term in the office of Mayor, the defeated candidate having served three previous terms in 1945-57; 1949-51 and 1953-55.

Elected as councillors were Ernest "Bill" Ouellette, Georges Therien and Roger Raymond, it was a re-election for Councillor Ouellette.

Polling for the Council seats resulted as follows, 14 ballots also being rejected in this field:

Georges Therien	474
Ernest Ouellette	450
Roger Raymond	416
John "Jock" Maitland	403
John S. McVicar	326
Honorio Lepine	216

The three members of the municipal council who were not up for election were René Lafleur, Stanley Harris and Real Ouellette. Mr. Hall and the new councillors will be sworn into office at a meeting to be held Monday evening, June 3.

At the last meeting of Mayor Dorius Lepine's council, held May 6 at the Social Club, the first item dealt with early Saturday closing. It was unanimously resolved to prepare a by-law requiring the stores to close at 6 p.m. on Saturdays.

Fire Chief Arthur Robbins reported his busiest month to date with grass fires or minor bush fires almost daily. There was a fire around the town dump on April 10. On the 16th there was a grass fire on C. Elliott's property on St. Joseph Street. Two days later a bush fire broke out in George Lacasse's bush. The following day a grass fire enveloped a sugar camp on C. Vowle's property, causing $200 damage. On the 21st of the month there was another fire in Lacasse's bush and the crew was called back again the following day. There were two fires on the 22nd the other being at the cemetery. This being a Chatham County a bill for $40 will be sent to the County Council. A grass fire was quickly-extinguished at Seguin's property in the forenoon of the 23rd. On the 24th there was a fire at the plant dump and the next day, at the town dump.

Mr. Robbins asked the council to purchase 300 feet of 1½-inch hose, at $255 and two universal nozzles at $50 apiece. A motion was passed authorizing the secretary to place an order.

Mr. Robbins then, in answer to a question by Mr. Silverson, stated that there was talk of a gasoline company installing gasoline and oil tanks on the Dalesville Road at Giroux's garage. He said that the proximity of C-I-L magazines may prohibit such an installation. However, he suggested it may be well to control such matters since a leak in a tank on the hill could result in a river of gasoline running through the town.

In order that proper precautions can be taken, a motion was passed requiring all persons installing oil or gasoline tanks of more than 500 gallons capacity to first obtain clearance from the council.

Police Chief Lepine reported having answered 23 telephone calls. He made one arrest which resulted in a fine of $10 plus costs for the offender and collected $38 in dog and $40 in bicycle taxes. There were six car accidents amounting to an estimated $1,400 damage. The Chief also asked that the council buy paint for double white lines on the hills.

Secretary-Treasurer Charbonneau reported that the Belair Fuel Oil Company from St. Jerome refused to pay business tax for 1956 and 1957. A motion was passed to place the bills with an attorney for collection. It was decided to give them to Mr. Taillefer.

On the "bills motion" the payment of a $100 cheque to the University of Montreal, a bill for over $1,000 to the County Council and another for over $700 to T. P. Hall were the big items.

Councillor Rheal Ouellette moved that Stan Harris be given permission to engage Gaston Legault to survey the projected expansion to the water and sewage system from Lorne Ball's corner to George Lacasse's property. Councillor Ernest Lavoie seconded and the motion was passed unanimously.

The last item on the agenda was the opening of the tenders for waterworks on Woodbine Avenue. Maurice Lafleur bid $1,200 and $2.75 per cubic yard for ledge rock. T. P. Hall bid $500 and $7 per cubic yard for ledge rock. The latter tender was accepted.

Fish and Game Meeting Planned for B'burg Monday

The May meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association will be held next Monday evening, May 20, at 8 o'clock at the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

A guest speaker is expected and a film will be on the meeting's agenda, along with other local business.

President Syd Drew and director Leonard Bedard are today attending the Provincial Piscultural Fair at Lake Lyster in the Eastern Townships — this event will be among items discussed at the meeting. The fair signifies an important milestone in the history of gamefish rearing in the history of Quebec Province.

An elaborate program, arranged by the tourist committee of the Coaticook Junior Chamber of Commerce and open to the general public, has been planned for the purpose of bringing to the public eye, the scientific project of a provincial fish hatchery, and the part played by fish protection associations in regard to the scientists' work.

Grenville Fire Razes Buildings Five Homeless

A Grenville fire on Tuesday afternoon of last week destroyed a house and adjoining garage-service station with upstairs apartments, leaving five persons homeless. No one was injured but damage ran in excess of $50,000.

The fire broke out about 4.30 p.m. in the buildings located on the Main Street of the village and quickly gutted the garage-service station owned by Ulric Poulin and a two-storey house next door owned by Mathias Lessard. Both buildings were reduced to ashes in a short time, only the walls left standing.

Flames spread so quickly to the apartment above the garage that Mrs. Poulin and her young daughter only narrowly escaped the flames. Volunteer firmen from Grenville, Calumet and Hawkesbury fought the blaze but were unable to save any of the contents of the buildings.

Driven by high winds, the flames swept through the frame house owned by Lessard, a retired hotelman, although neither he nor his tenants were injured. A considerable portion of the contents of the latter building were saved.

RALLY PEPS WORKERS FOR 'CONCERTS' MEMBER CAMPAIGN

Campaign workers for the Community Concerts Association will meet this evening (Thursday) to organize their membership canvass for 1957-58. Simon Valois, incoming president, will chair this rally in the Legion Hall, and Mme Sylvia Gervais, representative from Columbia Artists Corporation, will be in attendance. The campaign will proceed next week with headquarters at the store of Bedard Ltée, by kind co-operation of the proprietor, Mr. J. E. Leonard. General chairman of the campaign is Miss Juliette Rodrigue.

Plans for this annual approach to the public will be finalized among the executive and canvasser this evening, but the tentative aim of the Association is to enroll a full and enthusiastic membership of at least 400 subscribers, in order to keep Community Concerts flourishing in this centre both for the enjoyment of music lovers and for the cultural future of our youth.

County Population Increase General According to Latest Figures Received

According to Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures received on Monday, the population of the Town of Lachute, as listed in the 1956 Census is 6,911, while the 1951 Census enumerated the local population as 6,179. This is an increase of 732 persons during the past five years. The population of the County now stands at 28,474 persons, this being an increase og 2,602 persons since the previous Census.

Brownsburg	3,412	3,238	174
Grenville	1,277	1,069	208
Calumet	835	719	116

The population of the Village of Carillon decreased 33 persons to the present 295 and that of the Village of Huberdeau, from 1,230 to 1,180.

The townships of St. Andrews and Morin Heights show small increases over the last five years of 76 and 129 persons respectively.

However the Townships of Grenville Augmentation, and Arundel, Mille Isles, Gore and Chatham indicate decreases of poulation.

For example:

Arundel Township, 1956—488, 1951—516.

This tendency of a decrease of population in the rural sections apparently indicates a shift of inhabitants toward the larger centres.

ing the disposition of a true Liberal and of what his own program would include, Mr. Paré said that he wishes to "represent the intentions and the mind of the electorate;" that as a Liberal he must think first of the interests of the electors before his own interests; that he intends to consult his electors on important questions as often as possible; that he is going to consult his electors not only at election time; that as a Liberal he would worry about the electors and their problems which include unemployment; that he assures new industries so that the youth of the country will not desert this region; and that he will fight for small items as well as large ones."

He concluded his speech with the words of Sir Wilfred Laurier, "A true Liberal is one who never fears to correct existing abuses where he sees them."

Following these words various supporters spoke on behalf of the Liberal candidate. Loranzo Pilon cited the case of Glengarry - Prescott in 1949 when Mr. Bruneau, the Independent Liberal Candidate, challenged Mr. Bertrand. "At the time he was elected he was honored with a banquet and Valois came to congratulate him."

Mr. Pilon also stated that he had made a survey in his own section of the constituency and had noticed the electors' dissatisfaction with the present member. He said that many of the Constituency Liberal organizers had demanded an open convention in the name of the electors, but that nothing had resulted. "The reason for this," he put forward," is that Mr. Valois did not want to face the electors at such a convention."

Pothier Ferland, Liberal Independent for Longueuil riding read a letter sent to the Chairman of the Liberal Rally by David Black, immediate past-president of the Argenteuil Association. In his letter Mr. Black stated that he was pleased to see interest revived and extended his congratulations to Antoine Paré and to all organizers of his Association.

Jas. McGibbon and Mayor Mathys, of St. Eustache, both pledged their support of Mr. Paré.

The final supporting speaker of the evening was E. Kreans, a Montreal lawyer, who said that Mr. Paré was the "type of candidate about which a constituency could be proud and could depend on. He is regarded as one of the finest of the younger representatives and is a credit to the district and the party." He described Mr. Paré as having been "brilliant" in his studies in a classical college; holding both a B.A. degre and degree in law and as a former captain in the army.

He brought out the fact, along with the candidate and other speakers, that due to the construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway, the river will become a highway of industry; power plants will be established and navigation will be changed. Therefore benefits can only be derived if a member, with a reputation of honesty, sincerity and hard work, is elected.

Milk That Never Was

American dairymen are robbed of milk worth $225 million every year — milk that never even reached the farmer's pail. The thief is mastitis, a disease which drastically cuts down the milk output of dairy herds.

The sickness, caused by several different types of germs, can be spread by flies and milkers, and cows have become infected just by lying around germ-filled barnyards. What little milk diseased herds do produce is usually watery or straw-colored and unsuitable for marketing.

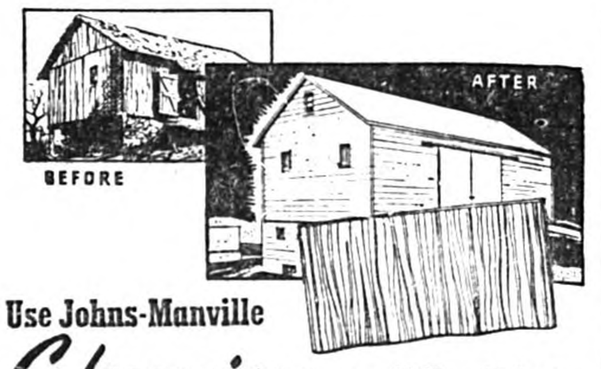

Cows suffering from mastitis lose weight, become feverish and show all the symptoms of depression. Their udders often are inflamed. Luckily, the germs that cause mastitis are no match for powerful antibiotics like Terramycin, which clears the infection in a few days.

To keep the disease under control, farmers take special care to clean and disinfect all milk machines. Cows with infected udders are separated from the herd to avoid the spread of germs.

Sick cows need constant care, and farmers often spend many hours of the day and night applying icepacks to mastitis-stricken animals to prevent glands from swelling. It's hard work, but it pays off in contented cows on the farm and brimming milk glasses on the table.

'Burg Chief Arrests Youths Appear Before Local J.P. Sentenced to Fines

Chief of Police Willie Lepine, of Brownsburg, put an end to suspicious looking activities of four youths last Saturday when he noticed the group with a grappling iron. They were promptly taken to Justice of the Peace, Jean Desfarges who fined each boy $10.

Chief Lepine states he noticed the four boys, three from Brownsburg and one from Lachute, causing a disturbance by singing, shouting, and drinking beer in the Brownsburg streets on Monday and Tuesdays nights. They were also found guilty of certain misdeeds carried on at the Brownsburg High School property.

Two Men Arrested for Thefts at C.I.P. Mill

Maurice Briere, 22, of Calumet, and Bruno Robert, 24, of Carillon were arrested on Thursday by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allan, and charged with the theft of tools from the C.I.P. Mill at Calumet.

Both pleaded guilty at the preliminary hearing held the following day and were sentenced to two days in prison plus the costs of the case or an additional three days. A bond of $500 each, to keep the peace for two years, was also demanded by presiding Judge Omer Côté.

Short Honeymoon

CANADA'S EASY RELATIONS with the United States ended half a dozen years ago, said External Affairs Minister Pearson in Strathroy last week, and he added, "this opinion has been strengthened since then." Anyone who has been following, even casually, international news in recent months will certainly agree with Mr. Pearson.

But the honeymoon relations between the two North American English speaking democracies, asserts The Financial Post, wasn't such a long one, only a few dozen years at most. Before that there were a long succession of wrangles over boundaries, fisheries and waterways. In all of these, however, up to and including that involving the Alaska boundary settlement in 1903, Great Britain provided a buffer. It was Britain that was blamed for sacrificing Canadian interests to placate the United States, rather than Uncle Sam for wanting to grab something of our.

Now that we are dealing directly with each other, there is no third party to absorb the shocks. And to make matters more difficult Americans seem to assume that they are dealing with a country and a nation exactly like their own, that Canadians and Americans are really the same people, sort of a big and little brother combination, and that what is good for one is always and necessarily good for both.

Children's Favorites

BASEBALL MITTS HAVE replaced hockey sticks, and the girls have dug out the skipping-ropes from the back of the closet where they spent a long winter.

The children aren't worried about the Middle East, or the international anxiety over nuclear tests. They have concerns much nearer home, such as the school-end exams which suddenly seem awfully close.

And in their play they enjoy the same old games that children of the same age were playing 100 years ago and more.

New toys are always coming out, but children are pretty conservative. The doll and the skipping rope, the bat and ball, will always be favorite.

This has just been confirmed at a great toy fair in Brighton, where the British toy industry showed its wares to buyers from all over the world. Toys are big business, worth about $100,000,000 a year in Britain, of which more than a fifth goes for export.

This spring the show featured tin soldiers. True, there were some in the uniform of the UN Emergency Force, but essentially they are the good old-fashioned toy soldiers children have loved for generations.

There's a new note in toy suits, such as airline captain and hostess uniforms. But the cowboy outfit is right back in favor, and close behind it is a Robin Hood suit. A BBC reporter learned that orders for these two have increased enormously from the United States, of all places.

The really modern note was a plastic and aluminum rocket, about 18-inches long, which roars to about 100 feet with a satisfying roar. It has to be filled with water and pumped up.

But right next to it was a gadget that spins disks into the air, to be shot down with bows and arrows. The same bows and arrows of course can be used against toy guns in the good old cowboy and Indian struggles.

So the kids stick to the same old favorites. Let us hope that children of future generations will be permitted to enjoy them in peace.

Population Increase

POPULATION OF CANADA on January 1, according to Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was 16,334,000, thus showing a gain of 516,000 in preceding twelve months. Despite vacillating policies of Immigration Department, total number of "New Canadians" entering the country during 1956 was 164,857, up 55,000 above the figure for the preceding year.

The fact that in 1956 Canada increased her population through natural births and immigration by more than the population of a city the size of Winnipeg means that the size of the domestic market, which is of increasing importance to Canada's economic well being, increased correspondingly. If the country could continue to grow at this pace, concern about vagaries of the international market, upon which Canada still relies to a substantial, though decreasing degree for her prosperity, would quickly diminish.

A positive and dynamic immigration policy, sadly lacking at present, will be essential, however, if the rate of population growth achieved in 1956 is to be maintained. Next big increase in population through natural births is not likely to occur until mid-nineteen-sixties, when offspring of World War II marriages reach maturity and marry. In the immediate future, therefore, importance of increased immigration, needed to sustain present rate of population increase, cannot be over-stressed.

"Telesuasion" Powers

ODDITY IN THE NEWS IN UK is Dr. Rolf Alexander who, according to press reports, claims to possess the unique power of "telesuasion". Dr. Alexander has offered his services to the British Government, and has suggested a demonstration of "telesuasion" to the Foreign Office as a sure-fire formula for bringing the exiled Archbishop Makarios into a more co-operative frame of mind about Cyprus.

Thus far the British Government has maintained an air of indifference in the face of Dr. Alexander's proposal. Certain it is that some skepticism is justified in the light of his earlier claim to be able to dissipate clouds by the power of "pure thought." A lengthy investigation by the British Society for Psychical Research produced the discouraging conclusion that clouds upon which Dr. Alexander focused his "pure thought" usually disappear unaided in fifteen minutes in any case.

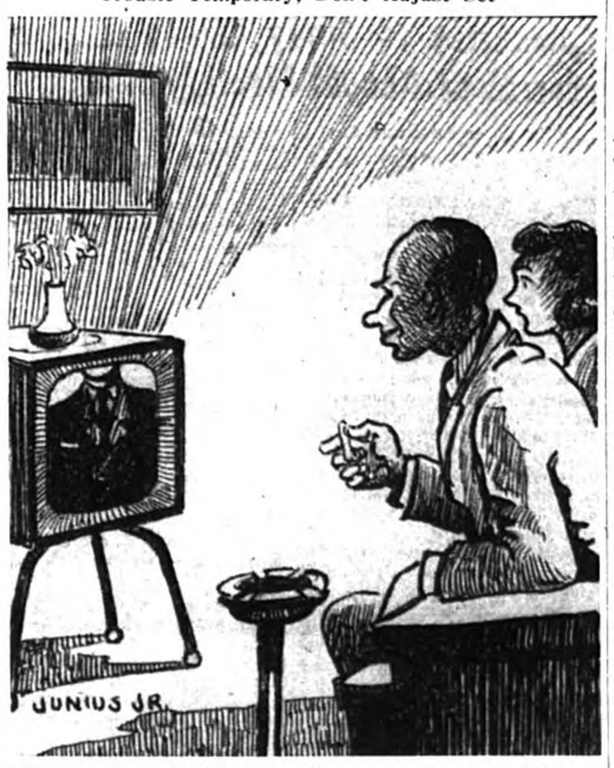

If all else fails, Dr. Alexander might consider trying out his talents in Canada. After all, "telesuasion" of sorts is already commonplace on CBC-TV. And who knows what might not be accomplished in the matter of Canada's staggering trade deficit through the exercise of the power of "pure thought?"

FOR THE FIRST TIME in the history of the Canadian Red Cross, a National Water Safety Week will be observed in all provinces during the week of June 16-22.

The increasing number of drowning fatalities during the past few years has emphasized the need for education in water safety. It is hoped that a knowledge of water safety will help to reduce the toll of drownings. While Water Safety Week will be in June, a nation-wide campaign is being planned for the months of June, July and August in an effort to reach the many careless Canadians of all ages who ignore the simple facts about water safety.

"Trouble Temporary, Don't Adjust Set"

"For Whom The Bell Tolls !"

"It gives me the utmost pleasure," he began, "to announce that, apparently, our troubles are over!" You mean nobody's quitting this year and you've found two additional men?" Baker cut in. "You've been promising those two extras ever since I've been here." "Unfortunately, no," the head retorted testily, "that's not what I mean at all. As regards your query, I regret that we shall be losing three of our staff at the end of June and, by the look of things, will be one short when September rolls around."

"Situation normal, as before," Baker continued. "At the rate we're going, we'll be down to three staff members by 1960. The roster of inmates will probably be no higher, either."

"Getting back to my original statement," he went on, "things are definitely looking up. I know only too well that most of you went through a tough session last term. In the main, I lay the blame for your discomfort at my own feet. The term was far too long and we went through it without a break. However, those that caused the trouble have been expelled and the remainder seem to be settled down to work for the June finals. I don't believe we will have any upsets during this period of the school year."

"Am I to understand from what you have just said," Baker asked, "that the people who caused last term's grief have been chucked out?"

"Of course!!"

"Well, I for one, fail to see it. Creighton was sent home because he was the least troublesome of the lot and Fyfles got the chop because you caught him sneaking into town to pick up the clothes you wanted him to travel home in, which were at the cleaners. I don't see that we've solved any problems at all. What about Wilcox, Ascott, Ferris, Stevens, and that lot. I notice they're still around and they are the core of all our troubles. Send them home and you may be on the road to cleaning up the disturbing elements."

The head put down the agenda he had carefully prepared and thought for a moment. Taking advantage of the lull in proceedings, Bob Easton tip-toed out to call the roll in study. By the time he had quit the meeting, the head had formulated his reply.

"I can only say that it isn't politic to remove those boys at this time."

"Why?"

"They're paying your salary, that's why," the assistant head cut in.

"And how do you like taking that kind of cash," Baker shot back. "I've always heard that you produce the best garden of flowers by weeding, and the business world says if you toss away a million with the left hand you can easily pick up two with the right."

"That sounds all very simple, I know," the head stated, "but it isn't as easy as it sounds. I'm not prepared to discuss it at the moment but perhaps I will at a later date. Suffice it to say, at this point, that the picture is considerably brighter. We've all had a good rest and both staff and boys are blissfully happy. I don't anticipate any trouble from now till we close in June. In fact, I would venture to say . . ."

"Sir, sir, please sir," he panted, addressing the head, "come quickly, sir. There's a riot over in the study and Mr. Easton has just hit 'Scaley' Wilcox with a cow bell!"

* * *

Last week's agenda will, I believe, be considered at the next meeting of the staff . . . if there is one!

Within five miles of the boundaries of Metropolitan Toronto a deer hunt is being planned this fall. Animals have become so plentiful in Markham Township and damage to gardens and nurseries so extensive that a one-day season is shaping up.

This is a remarkable tribute to conservation, declares The Financial Post. For over a hundred years there wasn't a deer to be found in the whole of Markham and for miles beyond. Now, thanks to legal protection and the steady increase in natural cover they are numerous in many parts of Old Ontario, in the other provinces and in the U.S. as well. As a result there are probably more deer and certainly more hunters in these areas than ever before.

Teacher Reports on "Liberation Day"

Holten, Netherlands

The Lachute Watchman
Dear Mr. Giles,

I have just returned from the Canadian Memorial Service at Grasebeek Cemetery, near Nymegan and as many from Lachute district may have fought there, or have comrades buried there, I thought they may be interested in the ceremony.

May 5, Liberation Day, is celebrated throughout the Netherlands, and during the evening of May 4 all military Cemeteries and memorial places are decorated with flowers. The Canadian Memorial Service is usually held in a different cemetery each year, but, May 5 being Sunday this year, it was held today and the 12 Canadian teachers and six Red Cross personnel, among whom was Miss Vickie LaRose, were invited to be Embassy guests at Grasebeek.

Mr. Stone, the Canadian Ambassador, arrived at 10.45 in time to greet the Queen's Commissioner for Gelderland, as well as His Excellency, the Minister of Defence and the Representative of Her Majesty the Queen and His Royal Highness the Prince of the Netherlands, who were conducted to a position facing the Cross.

Prayers were offered, religious music played by the band and short addresses given. Several large wreaths were placed before the Cross and then a bunch of white Narcissus was placed on every grave by school children although most of the graves had flowers growing on them. I understood what Colonel Macrea meant when he wrote, "The larks still bravely singing, fly," for the air was filled with the songs of skylarks overhead.

Thus Holland remembers the Canadian soldiers who were left in this country. Everywhere we have visited during our three months in the Netherlands we have been graciously welcomed because "the Canadians came to liberate us."

I have also visited the Holten Cemetery which is quite near this camp. These graves were decorated on Saturday evening and a group of the Hungarians were taken there to witness the ceremony and to leave flowers, for they, too, feel that they are being liberated by Canada.

Yours truly,
— Hanna E. Smith

MOUNTING FIGURE

Halifax (CP) — Federal family allowances paid in Nova Scotia last March totalled $1,512,660, going to 99,957 families on behalf of 248,827 children. The increase in eligible children was more than 4,000 above the figures 12 months previously.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The children are making good progress in their campaign to wreck the house and turn the garden into a desert.

Visiting and neighborhood children are co-operating heartily with inmates of the house toward this end. Dogs have also done their share, by hollowing out a number of caves in the lawn.

The lawn was never impressive to begin with. It was only a ragged expanse of daisies and couch grass, blotched by the leprous shadows of objects that had been left there too long — rubbish heaps and upturned rowboats awaiting repair.

However, even an old and battered lawn deserves to have its wounds dressed. So Daddy filled the dogs' excavations with earth, tramped the earth down and scattered grass seed.

Shortly afterwards, the three-year-old and a visiting boy dug new holes in the same places.

* * *

Two little girls from next door have done good work dislodging stones from the bank alongside the path, and scattering gravel on the veranda.

They joined forces with the resident small boy in an attack on the vegetable garden. They managed to snuff out the lives of several bean plants, preventing a clutter of messy foliage which might have grown up. Narrow-minded Mother stopped them before they finished.

The little girls have also cleared away a number of toys and dumped them in the lake. The handle of the boy's wagon yesterday went gurgling down into eight feet of water, and is now invisible in the mud.

The smallest boy, aged one year and a few months, does his part by pulling down any fragile object within reach and shattering it on the floor. He is already doing good work for his age.

* * *

Most of the time the three-year-old boy and the little girls collaborate peacefully in their campaign of destruction, but they have occasional arguments which are settled when one party hits the other on the head with a piece of wood.

Yesterday they discovered the word "Sorry." So they amused themselves by whacking each other with heavy objects, and saying "Sorry" after each blow.

Then they began to play with paper and pencils. "Let's draw a 'Sorry'," said the boy, and the three of them drew large shapeless objects that might have been well received at a gallery of progressive art.

Unfortunately they tore up the paper soon afterwards. I wanted to keep their work. Those were probably the first pictures of a "Sorry" ever drawn.

The tangled problem of dividing up the power potential of the Columbia River moved a step nearer settlement when the Canadian Cabinet accepted newly drafted "terms of reference" for the forthcoming talks with the U.S. Administration, reports The Financial Post.

As soon as the U.S. Government gives its formal agreement to the terms the way will be clear for the inter-governmental talks to start on a practical basis.

The meeting is planned for May in Washington; and the Canadian representatives will be headed by Minister Jean Lesage of Northern Affairs and National Resources.

Who Won the House, Cages and Pullets?

The Purina Chick Startena Sweepstake contest is over. The winner was someone in the St. Hyacinthe area. I haven't yet received his name, anyway his name doesn't mean much to us in this area.

But since you didn't win the Sweepstake you can still get chicks with a silver hook and your chances are very good to make some pin money with even a small flock. Of course, if you want enough to keep the house you will need a larger flock. Whatever you do, buy the best Chick you can buy. A cent of two on the purchase price can mean quarters before next Spring. For tops in Chicks and Service, buy Newhauser's Chicks. We are their agents and will be glad to look after your order.

Purina Super Chick Startena is the best and cheapest starting feed you can buy. So start your chicks on Super Chick Startena and use Purina Chik-R-Tabs in the drinking water to prevent any disease from spreading.

If you have cleaned and disinfected your chick houses with Purina Disinfectant and Insect Oil before the birds arrive, you should be set to raise a healthy brood of chicks that will pay when they reach the nests.

Livelong District Resident Passes Following Illness

Late Mrs. Thos. Hume

Following an illness of some six months, Mrs. Thomas Hume passed away early last Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Randolph Rogers, with whom she had resided for the past five years. She was in her 77th year.

Born at Upper Lachute on October 31, 1880 she was the youngest daughter of the late John Doig and his wife Isabella Scott. In 1901 she married Thomas Hume who predeceased her in 1954.

The late Mrs. Hume was a Life Member of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Lachute United Church and was a former member of Upper Lachute Women's Institute.

Left to mourn her passing are one daughter, Isabella (Mrs. Randolph Rogers, of Lachute), two sons, Ross of Langley, B.C., and Lloyd, of Lachute, also four grandchildren, Darrell, Judy, Lynn and Gayle Hume, also a brother Robert Doig, of Lachute.

"Argenteuil" Capt. Retires Following Long Service

Captain Thos. W. Weir

Having recently completed 51 years of service with the Canadian Department of Transport, Captain Thomas W. Weir, a member of one of Argenteuil's pioneer families, on April 1 retired from active service.

At the early age of 14, he started as seaman on board the Buoy and Lighthouse Tender Maisonneuve and by polishing brass, and swabbing decks, served his apprenticeship until 1912 when he received his mate-papers. As such he was engaged for two years on the Tug "Maggie May", at that time chartered by the Government from Thos. Weir, Sr., and used in buoy work until the present Buoy and Lighthouse Tender, C.G.S. Argenteuil was commissioned in July 1917.

In 1914 he received his Captain's papers, position he has retained until his recent retirement.

During the years spent with the Department of Transport, Captain Weir reports he has seen many changes. From approximately 200 buoys used at the start of his career, the total has increased to some 700. These are made up of four different types which mark the Ottawa to Lake Champlain channel, in addition to many side channels.

Captain Weir plans to spend the years of his retirement at his home in Cushing, within sight of the Ottawa river on which he has spent so much of his life to date.

WHEREAS: The exceeding high loads of logs and pulp being hauled on our curving country roads are terrifying to meet; and

WHEREAS: Many of these loads have but one flimsy binding or unsafe rack holding them; and

WHEREAS: The speed at which these vehicles travel very often exceeds the speed limit allowed:

THEREFORE be it resolved that this be given immediate attention so that loss of life may be averted.

* * *

WHEREAS: Our country at present needs a well-operated Eventide Home; and

WHEREAS; such a home might provide space for reading rooms or library, and

WHEREAS; Much of our monies raised in our branches are misappropriated by giving to other organizations:

THEREFORE be it resolved that a committee of three, with power to add to its number be formed to look into this matter, and bring its findings to the semi-annual meeting and that the branches earmark their surplus funds towards this project, and if possible, at the semi-annual meeting to submit an estimate of what they might contribute towards this project.

Nominations for the new committee followed with Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh, and Mrs. Ralph McOuat being unanimously appointed.

Lachute W. Inst. Hears Art Talk; Views Slides

The monthly meeting of the Lachute Women's Institute held in the Legion Hall was well attended.

Mrs. A. F. Hanly, convener of Home Economics, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Sarah Jackson, M.A., of the University of London Council for extra-mural Studies, who gave an illustrated lecture on sculpture and arts.

Mrs. Jackson, American born, studied in England and has lectured there in the Tate Galleries and in several colleges in the United States. Her talk concerned art from the early Greek and Italian renaissance to the modern, explaining the modern is really the development from the skill of Michelangelo to the creative imagination of such artists as Henry Moore and herself.

One of Mrs. Jackson's works has been chosen by the Canadian Government to be sent to Italy for exhibition, and several of her paintings may be seen in art shops on Sherbrooke Street, Montreal.

The films shown were furnished by the United Kingdom Information Service and were brought directly from New York for this showing. The projector was operated by Miss Joan Smart of the U.K. Information Service.

Thanks were extended to Mrs. Sarah Jackson, Miss Joan Smart and to all who helped to make the program enjoyable and interesting.

The twenty-eighth Annual Meeting of the Ottawa Valley Section, Montreal Presbyterial, of the Woman's Missionary Society, was held on Wednesday, May 8, 1957, in St. Mungo's Church at Cushing. Mrs. R. Blair, sectional vice-president, occupied the chair, and Miss Alice Davidson presided at the organ.

The morning session was opened with the call to worship and a short prayer. Mrs. Blair chose the 46th Psalm for her reading, and the following words from this Psalm were adopted as the Theme for the Day. "Be still and know that I am God."

Mrs. King, of Cushing, welcomed all present, especially President Mrs. L. Baker and other officers of the Montreal Presbyterial.

The minutes of the 1956 meeting were read by the acting-secretary, Mrs. Percy Staniforth, of Arundel, and adopted.

Mrs. L. Baker, the president, gave a brief summary on the Mission work, and stated that the missionary supplies sent to foreign lands reached 75% over last year and the Toronto supplies 33% over 1956, and it was reported the auxiliaries for Young People are progressing favorably.

The reports of the different secretaries were then given, and all showed a satisfactory year. A luncheon was served at Elliott's Hall by the ladies of the Cushing Auxiliary.

At 2 p.m. the afternoon session was opened by Mrs. Blair. A few words of greeting were given by the Rev. J. R. Watson, of Cushing.

Mrs. George Deacon, of Lachute, conducted the "In Memoriam" service. Following is a list of the names of our members who have gone to that "Better Home" after serving in their own particular way while on earth.

Mrs. J. A. Staniforth, of Arundel; Mrs. Roy Dobbie, and Mrs. Calvin Edgerton, of Cushing; Mrs. E. S. Morrison, Miss Minnie Morin, Miss Alice Smith, Miss Charlotte Doig, Miss H. Underhill, Mrs. John Hadley and Mrs. Jas. Boyd, all of Lachute; also Mrs. Jack McConnell, of Morin Heights.

A duet was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Agnes Taglon and Mrs. C. Duncan, of Lachute.

Eighty-three members and five visitors answered the roll-call.

The guest speaker, Miss A. Sandell, a native of Magog, and a missionary on furlough from Korea, was introduced by Mrs. Baker.

Miss Sandell remarked that the missionary work in Korea was started by the Canadian Presbyterial about seventy years ago. In the years between 1925 and 1935 there were from 45 to 50 Canadian Missionaries in Korea.

During the last few years the National Christian Council was formed. Miss Sandell then unfolded her active and inspiring story of her mission life among the Korean people. She was sent as a mission nurse and carried on in this work until the war came, when she was compelled to leave. In 1951 she returned and was sent to the Island of Hojay, in Southern Korea.

This Island was the refuge for 100,000 refugees from Northern Korea where the Russians made life intolerable for these Christians. Miss Sandell was asked to form a Training School for the young girls in a make-shift hospital. She related the trying experience she and these girls went through in carrying on their work among these poor unfortunate people.

However, with the help of the American Army, and the vital supplies sent to her by the W.M.S., they were able to make life somewhat easier for these refugees.

She will return to Korea in July and asked the members to do all they could to train more girls for the missions and keep our parcels of material needs coming regularly. In closing she repeated the Lord's Prayer in the Korean Language.

The offering was then received and dedicated by Mrs. King.

Mrs. H. Graham, of Brownsburg, gave the report of the Courtesies Committee.

Mrs. McOuat, of Lachute, extended an invitation to meet at Lachute in 1958. After the singing of a hymn, the Rev. Rosborough, of Lachute, gave the benediction.

The ladies then returned to the hall where afternoon tea was served by the Ladies of Cushing.

Traffic Policeman: "Oh, so you're a minister. Now, don't tell me you didn't see that stop sign."

Rotary Club Members Hear Address on Training of Managers for Industry

Jack Howlett, of Bathurst, N.B., addressed the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club on the subject "The Key is Awareness". Mr. Howlett for some years was manager of Radio Station CFCF, and is now with the Canadian Marconi Company, in charge of training managers. His talk dealt specifically with managerial training.

As Canada is now growing so rapidly, the greatest need in industry today is for trained managers. As time does not allow for the training through experience of these people, education is the key to their future. The processes of communication between each individual is most important. How well we understand each other and the environment in which we live, is vital to our progress. Mr. Howlett explained how we acquire clues to distinguish various things from each other, and their relative position. These clues are acquired over a long period from our first childhood. He stated, "We see what we have learned to see and what we have learned to classify."

Part of the learning process is to have a store of models, so that we can be aware of what is going on. When we are unaware, we do not have the opportunity to make a decision. In real life we are continually called upon to make decisions, and because life is so complex, we must have as many clues as possible upon which to base our decision. Thus, training in awareness is most important. The broader the knowledge, the better our decisions. He stated that people who are in important and meaningful positions must have a wide range of awareness, so that their decisions and judgments can be thorough and basically sound.

Mr. Howlett pointed out that there was one danger that we must guard against. That is the preformed opinions and ideas which are passed on to us by older people. Although many of these are necessary for our survival, many others may not be based on conditions as they are today, and as a result we may make wrong decisions. It is not necessary for us to have preformed judgments, but we must be sharply aware of what is going on, so that we can make judgments or decisions quickly and accurately. He further pointed out that when we are aware of as many things as possible, many small worries disappear, and our horizons widen.

He closed by pointing out that the marvel of the century is not automation, electronics or atomics, but the recognition of the potentialities of man. To have good managers, we must have people who are aware of as many things as possible.

Mr. Howlett was introduced by Rotarian Wesley Freeland, and Rotarian John Chalmers ably expressed the thanks of the members and guests of the Rotary Club.

B'burg Pitcher Handed 1st Defeat Since 1955 as Hawkesbury Wins 11 - 1

Lucien Berniquer, of Hawkesbury, shut out Brownsburg on three hits through the seventh inning on Sunday, and gave up a run on two more hits in the eighth to hand Ronald Cousineau his first defeat since 1955. Réal Villeneuve came on to strike out the side in the ninth. Berniquer had trouble with his control, walking eight while fanning five but the Tigers couldn't get any wood on his offerings. Hawkesbury's bats boomed to the tune of 11-1.

"Zag" Cousineau's control was perfect, but after striking out the first four men to face him he gave up eight hits. He walked none and was charged only with one earned run as Brownsburg's rookie squad made eight errors. Germain Gagné also was the victim of errors. He pitched in the sixth inning and lost the first two men on errors. The next three batters hit safely and Cousineau who had gone to second returned to the mound.

Batting stars for Hawkesbury were Berniquer with a double and two singles, Caron with a home run and a double and Claude Cyr with a triple and single.

For Brownsburg Gilles Diotte doubled,, singled and walked twice for a perfect day which raised his batting average to .714. Edgar Joly doubled and Jacques Leveillé and Ronald Cousineau made the other two hits.

Fassett visits Brownsburg this week-end and if Brownsburg's ailing stars are back in shape it will be a much better team which will back Ronald Cousineau. The game starts at 2.30 p.m.

RUDE AWAKENING

Pictou, N.S. (CP) — A cigarette lighter, a steel tape and $101 in cash were in J. M. MacPhail's pocket when he laid down for a nap in his home. Somehow the bills became ignited and the flame aroused the sleeper, who found only the charred ends of the currency.

Rae's "Singing Discovery" Wows Rock 'n Rollers

Coming up fast behind the Man from Memphis, at least so far as a lot of Canadian television viewers are concerned, is a handsome 18-year-old singer from Montreal named Bryce Patton, who made his TV debut on the Jackie Rae Show last April.

So successful was the young rock 'n' roll singer's performance, he has been asked back again and will appear with guests Terry Dale and Lou Snider on the evening's show (9.30 p.m. EDT.).

Since delivering his version of the rock 'n' roll hit, "99 Ways" in his first Toronto appearance, Patton has kept the mail boys at the CBC working in two platoons in an effort to distribute all his fan mail. The letters have come from far and wide, all asking for another look at Rae's "singing discovery", besides making numerous other queries. Many viewers have written asking when Patton will have a show of his own, and another large percentage of the mail has dealt with information as to how, when and where the nearest Bryce Patton Fan Club can bet started.

According to Bill Davis, studio director of the show, the letters, which numbered more than 200 in the first week, topped any they had ever received for a guest star before.

Patton began his singing career in the north-west section of the United States about six months ago and has been playing to sell-out crowds ever since. Rae heard about him through a friend in Spokane and immediately made plans for bringing him to Toronto for his first Canadian showing.

Hailey TV Comedy Scheduled by CBC

"Transmogrification of Chester Brown," will be produced by the CBC on June 2.

Asked why he chose the big word for his title Mr. Hailey said, "I just wanted to get it out of my system. It means an absurb transformation."

Chester Brown is a mild little office worker who takes a self-improvement course. The humorous result is the basis of the play.

Program Topics For Women

Timely topics for the month of May, with summer fast approaching, are to found in the women's programs on both radio and television this week. Open House, for example, will devote its whole half-hour on Monday to the planning and preparing of a special summer menu which could be very handy on a hot day when unexpected guests drop in. The cooks will be Eustella Langdon and Peggy Snell. On Trans-Canada Matinee the same day a three-part series on camping with the family begins. The speaker is Mrs. Roy Wood of Toronto, who is well-qualified to talk about tent life: she and her husband went camping on their honeymoon to western Canada, and with their children have spent their summer holidays camping ever since — in every province except Newfoundland, which they hope to include soon.

Matinee also includes on Monday, a picture of Spain — as seen by Bert Devitt from a sidewalk cafe in Madrid — and a story of Mexico by Edna May, who went there with a UNESCO mission. On Wednesday, Jean Sangwine, who plays the organ in her husband's church in Souris, Manitoba (150 miles from Winnipeg), elaborates on her claim that "in our family, music is fun"; and on Thursday, Marjory Whitelaw reports on the British woman's position in business. "Guest of the month" on Friday is the British novelist and journalist Rebecca West, interviewed by Mary McAlpine, a former Vancouver newspaper reporter now living in England; and the series Aging in the Modern World looks at housing arrangements — both new and old — for older people in British Columbia.

Other items on TV's Open House this week are songs by composer Kurl Weill, sung by the popular musical-comedy artist Barbara Franklin, accompanied by Lloyd Edwards (Wednesday); how to make a wild-flower garden, with Peg and Miller Stewart demonstrating (Wednesday); a talk with psychologist Dr. Reva Gerstein (Thursday); and (on Friday) how to make screens from rope and wallpaper, an introductory look at how a car engine works (in simple terms and illustrated with things like an egg-beater), and the monthly visit with Lister Sinclair.

Giant Firecracker

The day children wait for as they stock up on firecrackers is Victoria Day. They are probably envious of this huge firecracker; no doubt the picture is equally interesting to male viewers thanks to dancer Joan Roberts. Joan can be seen each week on CBC television's "Cross-Canada Hit Parade."

REPORT FAVORS COMPETITION FOR CBC

A. D. Dunton, shown with his wife, would have his present duties as chairman of the CBC board of governors split by the creation of the post of president of the board, if the report of the Fowler royal commission is implemented. The commission, investigating television and radio, recommended the government should break the CBC monopoly and permit more than one station in certain areas and should budget $470,000,000 for expansion of CBC over six years. Color programs, the report said, should be broadcast from Canada in 1963.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Motorists are notoriously gadget-minded. To keep them happy, the accessory manufacturers have come up with new items just in time for the summer touring season.

The adjustable comfort cushion, for driver or passenger, is designed to help you relax more on a trip. It's made of shredded latex foam rubber, is scientifically shaped. Slip it behind your back and drive in complete comfort for hours. If you're a passenger, put it behind your neck, lean back, and take a nap in ease.

Come beach-time, you may welcome absorbent terry cloth seat covers. They're wonderful protection for your car upholstery against damp swim suits, sandy children or Rover's paws. If you're planning a trip (and who isn't these days), the map-measure compass can be a big help. Just roll the tiny wheel of this watch-sized gauge over the map route you're taking and it automatically dials the exact mileage.

Since I travel over thousands of miles each year researching ways to make car travel easier for the woman and her family, I naturally have a few gadget "pets" of my own. One of them is a clothesbrush that's washable and made of foam rubber. For freshening-up on the road, I'm especially fond of a disposable washcloth that serves a double purpose. After you wash your hands with it, it quickly dries and can be used as a towel.

There are but a few of the many travel accessories on the market. They're all designed to make your motoring more comfortable and more convenient.

United States airlines are combing this country for attractive Canadian girls to serve as stewardesses for their planes, says a representative of one major American airline in Montreal.

"Canadian girls are in great demand as the preferred type of woman for this glamorous career," he said.

Why?

"They possess a superior ability to adapt themselves to any situation," he said. "They respond much better to discipline and seem to command more tact and courtesy."

Airlines had found Canadian stewardesses had an exceptional ability to speak clearly with "a pleasing lack of accent," and "an unusually charming and healthy appearance."

Generally she stays on the job only 14 months before leaving to marry. The airline say this is their biggest headache.

"No other profession offers a young woman so many proposals from so many eligible and successful young men," said this representative.

In Man's World

The first woman to enter officially the New York Stock Exchange says the habitants of a traditionally man's world did seem "bowled over" when she stepped into the picture.

But Mrs. James Ulrick Bay, chairman of a New York brokerage firm, set the record straight about women and the ticker-tape world.

Mrs. Bay, who took over her husband's firm when he died last year, says the average housewife shows as much intelligence and imagination in conducting her household as a man shows in conducting his business.

This New Yorker says she can't see why a woman can't do what ever she pleases. Besides, women are the powers in the market place, she declares — and business is business no matter who transacts it, man or woman.

Same Choice

A Canadian grandmother is probably still shaking her head about that surprising thing called coincidence.

Mrs. James Noakes, of North Bay, Ont., received greeting cards from her two granddaughters, not an unusual occurrence around Mother's Day. The granddaughters live in Toronto and Victoria.

But, shopping 2,000 miles apart, each had selected and sent the same card.

Here and There

When a Calgary woman discovered she was missing a $5 bill after posting some letters, she telephoned the post office. Sure enough, the bill turned up on the sorting table there and was returned to her.

The males have the better of it (or do they?) in Grenfell, Sask. Latest poupation figures showed females outnumbered males there by 34, the totals being 557 females, 523 males.

Maytime Is Lobster Time

Peak lobster catches are taken in May and June by fishermen of our Maritime provinces. In several centres lobster festivals are held and local inhabitants, their numbers augmented by tourists, make merry, feting and feasting on lobsters.

Without exception, lobsters are cooked from the live state. Sometimes they are split and broiled, but more often they are plunged head first into boiling salter water to cover, simmered 15 to 20 minutes depending on their size, drained, cooled, and split. The cooked meat may be served on the half shell or used as an ingredient of a recipe. Two delightful lobster recipes of Maritime origin, recommended by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries, are Hot Lobster Bluenose, a supper dish from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, and Tossed Lobster Salad from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

Hot Lobster Bluenose

2 Cups cooked or canned lobster, ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vinegar.

Cut lobster meat into fork-sized chunks, removing cartilage in meat of claws. Heat mayonnaise in a frying pan; gradually stir in milk and then vinegar. Bring mixture to simmering temperature and add lobster. Cook over low heat for 3 to 4 minutes to heat the lobster, season if desired and serve. Makes 4 servings.

Tossed Lobster Salad

1 Cup cooked lobster OR 1 (5 oz.) can lobster, 2 cups diced, unpeeled apple, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup diced celery, ½ cup shredded raw carrot, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup mayonnaise, lettuce, 2 hard-cooked eggs, quartered.

Cut lobster into bite-sized chunks; reserve claw meat for garnish. Sprinkle apple with lemon juice and raw vegetables. Add mayonnaise and toss ingredients lightly with a fork. Arrange on crisp lettuce; garnish with lobster claws and hard-cooked egg. Makes 4 servings.

Baking a whole fish? You can simplify the job of washing up afterwards by lining the pan with greased aluminum foil. Then, when the fish is cooked, simply roll up the foil and throw it away.

Q.W.I. President to Attend A.C.W.W. Conference

When Mrs. G. D. Harvey, President of Quebec Women's Institutes, leaves next month for the postponed Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, she will be part of a group of about 25 from all provinces of Canada, with the exception of the Maritimes. The delegation will be led by Mrs. J. W. Adams, the National President, and Mrs. Hugh Summers, ACWW Area vice-president for Canada. A number of Ontario delegates and official visitors are travelling in a separate party.

The tour leaves Vancouver, June 16th, going by Canadian Pacific Airways, with stops at Hawaii, Fiji, Auckland, Sydney, Singapore and finally Colombo, where the Conference is to be held July 3 to 13, in the Grand Oriental Hotel. On their return journey the party will stop at Beirut, Rome, Geneva, Paris and London. The western delegates will return home by the Polar route from Amsterdam. Others may leave from Lisbon for Montreal.

"All in all, Canada will be sending a fine delegation to Ceylon," says Mrs. Stella Gummow, Superintendent British Columbia W.I., who is arranging the tour. "We hope this journey will serve to bring the women of the world closer together."

Only Half Ounce of Nylon In Pair of Stockings

Though fashion leaders have gone back to the easy elegance of the '30's, there is one article of that era we can all be thankful they will never revive. That's the stocking of 20 years ago. The sheerest of them lasted only a few hours.

These stockings were made of one-thread silk — the filmiest the silk worm could spin — and no woman depended on a single pair to see her through an entire evening. Consequently, it was a practice among those who put sheerness first to insure themselves against appearing in runs by always carrying a spare pair.

Nylons long ago surpassed silk hosiery in sheerness. The most popular weight today is the 15-denier stocking which contains only about half an ounce of nylon. But toting around an extra pair, even when wearing the most gossamer constructions, is simply unheard of.

The problem of giving women both sheerness and durability in the one pair of stockings, however, couldn't be solved overnight. It has occupied the attention of manufacturers for some time.

Twin-thread nylons is their latest answer to these two irreconcilables of sheerness and strength. Since they are made of two threads knitted together, the principle is that the second thread should hold when one is pulled and broken. This, of course, applies to slight surface snags, rather than severe ones.

These double or twin-thread nylons are now available in a whole wardrobe of different weights, constructions and styles to suit both the occasion and individual preferences. As with other types of hosiery constructions, manufacturers stress the importance of matching stockings to the wearer's activities. Most women have too much fashion sense to appear at an evening party in a walking sheer.

Those who buy a pair of stockings as though it were a quart of milk or a postage stamp are cheating themselves out of the flattery of important fashion features, the comfort of correct fit and the economy of the proper degree of sheerness.

For instance, a woman wearing a pair of dainty sandals would scarcely look her best in hosiery with reinforced heels and toes. The tall, stately type is bound to feel the pinch if she thoughtlessly buys stockings which have been practically made to measure for the petite five-footer. Her pocket book will feel the pinch, too, since the added strain on the stockings will shorten their life.

So, why buy stockings as though the choice were limited when never in their history has there been such variety? Stockings are fashion items just like shoes. And you don't merely ask the sales clerk for a brown pair in size 7B. If you did you could wind up at your best friend's wedding in a pair of loafers.

Fashions

Every designer has contributed something of novelty or interest to make selecting a suit a pleasant if rather difficult chore—for there is so much from which to choose. Pale check wool in gray or brown and white is used for this jaunty bolero number. The jacket has a notched collar and features satin-bound button-holes and satin-covered buttons in black or brown. The satin cummerbund to match, wide and draped, is optional and a leather belt may be substituted when a simpler suit is desirable.

Wife Preservers

A tin of mushroom soup added to frozen mixed vegetables after cooking, will "stretch" the vegetables and make them even more appetizing.

Unbreaded fish fillets fried in anchovy butter are a flavor treat. For one pound of fillets, combine 2 tablespoons of butter and the mashed contents of a small flat tin of anchovies (including oil) and work to a paste.

Those Firecrackers!

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Dad, can I have some money to buy firecrackers? All the gang are getting them," Junior urges his Father.

"We'll go to the store together to look them over, and I want to be with you when they're lighted," is Dad's response.

"Oh, but the fellows will think I'm a baby if you don't trust me with my own crackers," Junior protests.

"It's not that I fear you'll be careless . . . but my best chum years ago almost lost the sight of an eye when a firecracker exploded in his face. He picked it up to see why it wasn't going off. He was just about your age."

* * *

Children love the noise, the color, the excitement of "Firecracker Day!" This is a spectacle which gives them a tremendous thrill. But parents, who are responsible for the small fry, must make sure no one is injured in this fun period.

Flares have long been used by ships at sea at distress signals, and to send messages to allied boats. Firecrackers have been made for centuries. The Greek word for the art of making fire gave us are term pyrotechnics, and it is both an art and a science. Encourage your older boy or girl to read about this subject in the encyclopedia at the library.

Children are fascinated by the colors of fireworks. Those most often seen are the shades given off by simple metals when burned. Calcium compounds show red; white comes from sulphite of antimony or arsenic. Copper produces green, and when calomel is added to the mixture, blue is seen. The compounds of sodium show yellow tints. Ways of manufacturing fireworks are constantly changing and colors and shapes are being imporved all the time.

Firework fun is an activity in which children must have adult supervision. After every 24th of May celebration, which this year falls on Monday, May 20th, and after July the First, the press carries reports of children who have been hurt by foolhardy handling of these explosives. Burns are all too common, and sometimes the loss of sight from an exploding firecracker darkens a child's life.

Fires, both small and large, have been caused by firecrackers. Children playing with them in a deserted garage or shed sometimes start a blaze which results in a great deal of damage. Seemingly burnt-out rockets or duds and smouldering squibs frequently are a threat to property.

If there are directions enclosed with fireworks, read them and follow them exactly. Place fireworks securely in the ground and keep spectators at a safe distance. Do not run forward and examine a cracker, which is smouldering or slow to ignite! Many families use a small box of damp sand as a satisfactory base for firecrackers.

In many communities the households pool their fireworks-money and have one big central display. The fathers who run this would do well to pick up some tips from professional fireworks' operators. They handle each fire-cracker with caution, space their displays, watch out for fire hazards, and at the end of the exhibition make a thorough search for any duds which failed to explode. A number of Canadian municipalities insist on a permit which must be obtained by those wishing to set off firecrackers. The police and fire department must also be alerted about this event. The sale of rockets is especially controlled by the Explosives Act passed a decade ago. They are banned in some centres by local legislation.

In one Canadian town where a child was seriously hurt by a firecracker, the Town Council forbade their sale. In a city, little boys were setting off crackers, with tin cans placed over them. When they exploded, the cans shot into the air. One youngster substituted a bottle for a can. Splinters of glass cut his face and almost destroyed his sight.

What if the injured child had been your son? What if the child who caused the accident had been in your family. Firecrackers are nothing to fool with — watch them!

LONG RECORD

Chilliwack, B.C. (CP) — The weekly Chilliwack Progress has entered its 67th year. First edition of the paper was issued on April 16, 1891.

Pointers for Publicity Conveners Will Help Us to Help Your Group

Newspaper people cannot afford to be prejudiced against indivduals or organizations, so if you are not having much luck getting your news across to the local paper, it is quite possible the fault lies with your own organization or the publicity convener who has one of the most important jobs in any organization, that of selling the group to the newspaper and its readers. The following excerpts from a Canadian League Magazine article by Mary E. James, Social Editor, The Toronto Globe and Mail, should be of assistance to local publicity-wise organizations. We hope they help you, as in the long run they will also be of assistance to us in giving you good news coverage for your meetings.

"The business of the woman's editor, or the city editor, is to get legitimate news, from whatever source, which will be of the greatest interest to the largest number of readers. A good news story, intelligently told, is what they are looking for, and space permitting what they will use. But what do they get? All too often a dull pointless account of some routine meeting, maybe several weeks late. Often initials are missing, spelling of uncommon names haphazard. If there is a germ of news in the story it is buried, instead of being where it belongs, in the lead or opening paragraph.

Newspaper space is much too valuable for such. Even a small item takes space that represents many dollars. Space is at a premium in most papers — there are more demands than there is space, and newsprint is not made of elastic.

Time is precious in a newspaper office. With a deadline always ahead, newspaper people work under unavoidable pressure. No one has time to look up missing initials, to find out whether "Mary Smith" is Mrs. or Miss, or Mrs. J. Jones is John, James or what have you.

"The smart press convener — and only the smartest women in the organization should be named to this important post — will take the trouble when first elected to call up the local paper and find out what the editor wants in the way of stories. She will read the paper and find out its style. She will beg or borrow a typewriter, if she doesn't own one (nothing is more tiresome to a busy newspaperman than having to wade through a long screed of illegible handwriting). She will DOUBLE SPACE her story on a letterhead size sheet. She will say where and when the event took place, but the important news of the meeting in the opening paragraph, and make her piece as brief, clear and concise as possible. She will look up initials, give the married woman her husband's first name (not Mrs. Mary Brown) and the single woman her full Christian name, Margaret, not Miss B. Baker (many papers do not use the prefix Miss). She will also include her phone number, in case it is necessary to call back.

When annual meeting time comes around, at which many routine reports are being given, the smart convener will get copies of these to the paper well in advance of the meeting and not expect busy press people to sit through long hours of a meeting to get these. Or better still, she will do as many press conveners of large organizations do, summarize highlights of the reports, and get this to the paper ahead of the meeting so it will appear in print while it is still news."

Garden-Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

There's a trick or two, however, by means of which you can accomplish both things this spring.

Seed should be sown between the strips of sod and then covered to prevent it being washed away by heavy rains. Straw spread to a depth of two to three inches can be used for cover and hold the seed, or cheesecloth can be stretched over the slope and pegged in place.

Even after grass has been established on a terrace care must be taken when watering it. A good method of watering is by means of a canvas hose, shown in the Garden-Graph

Use of a canvas hose permits absorption as the water slowly oozes from it. The top of the slope should be soaked longer than the foot, since the moisture tend. to move downward in the soil.

In cutting grass on the ground of a terrace, move up and down the slope. Trying to cut crosswise will invariably leave the ridge scalped by the bedknife. Then it is only a question of time until the grass turns brown and is burned out.

Grass on terraces is often exposed to direct rays of the sun. Soil washes easily from around the grass crowns, exposing the surface roots. Here high cutting is doubly important. The taller grass will reduce soil washing and the evaporation of moisture.

No Need to Fret If Poll Official 'Votes' for You

Ottawa, May 14 (CP) — Don't fret, come general election day, if you aren't allowed to put your ballot in the ballot box yourself.

The election offical at the polling booth is supposed to do that. It is one step in a series of safeguards designed to ensure secrecy and prevent manipulation or ballot box stuffing.

Chief Election Officer Nelson Castonguay, the man mainly responsible for the smooth running of the June 10 election, said in an interview that at nearly every polling booth in past elections an argument has cropped up over a voter's desire to put his own ballot in the box.

Voters can do it in other countries, including the United Kingdom, and in some municipal elections. But not at federal elections in Canada.

The Deputy Returning Officer in charge of the polling booth is required by law to take the marked folded ballot and make sure it is the same one he issued before the elector went into the voting compartment. Then he puts it in the box.

But the voter can — and should — stay to see that the ballot goes into the box.

The procedure is tied in with the form of the ballot — a form which has been perfected over the years to prevent cheating.

The ballot is made up of three parts: A stub and a counterfoil, each of which bear matching numbers and the ballot proper with the names of the candidates. Each ballot has to be initialled on the back by the poll's deputy returning officer.

When the elector comes in to vote, the officer hands him a ballot with counterfoil attached. After the ballot is marked, the officer makes sure the counterfoil number tallies with that on the stub. Then he tears off the counterfoil, discards it, and puts the ballot in the box.

The ballot is folded twice before it is handed to the voter, who refolds it after marking his X. The folds are designed so that the X is in the middle, to prevent peeking.

Since the numbered stubs and counterfoils are removed before the ballot goes into the box, there should be nothing to associate the ballot with any individual voter when the box is opened later for counting.

There are other precautions against misuse of the ballot.

Each candidate can have two scrutineers in the polling booth. They can doublecheck on the handling of ballots. They can challenge any potential voter and make him prove his identity or take an oath that he is entitled to vote.

Another check is that in each constituency the returning officer and his duputies must be able to account afterwards for all the ballots — how many were used, how many spoiled and how many left over.

There is another discouragement against mispractice in the Canada Elections Act. Fines up to $2,000 or two years in jail are laid down for "corrupt election practices."

Quick Trip to the Grave For Highway Drivers

At 20 m.p.h. it takes an average driver 22 feet just to get his foot off the accelerator and on to the brake. It is also a proven fact that the distance required to stop increases as the square of the speed That is, it takes four times as far to stop at 30 m.p.h. as it does at 15 according to an editorial published in the current issue of Health Magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada.

This being so, the logical way to cut down traffic accidents is to slow all drivers down. Instead, we have a strange phenomenon of large cities in Canada and the United States plastered with billboards admonishing the drivers to drive carefully while the city fathers are quietly increasing the speed limit in those same cities.

The theory behind increasing speed limits is that the slow drivers cause accidents. This may be so, if everyone wants to bowl along at 60 or 70 m.p.h. and someone ahead with a trailer cannot safely go faster than 50. However, it would seem safe to assume that if everyone were travelling at 50, there would be no traffic problem, trailer ahead or not.

Within the city, drivers and pedestrians alike take their lives in their hands every day coping with the increasing speed. One has only to watch pedestrians trying to cross one of the big through streets, such as University Avenue in Toronto, where the pedestrians cower on the curb making sudden dashes to cross the wide street, like so many panicky rabbits to see an example of this.

With rising speed limits goes a corresponding rising death rate; in the United States last year, motor vehicle accidents — 2,000 more than for 1955 and 5,000 more than the 1954 total.

On the other hand, it may be just a passion for perfection — if you are going to do a thing, do it thoroughly. There is no doubt that you can do a more thorough job of smashing into a brick wall or into another car going at 70 m.p.h. than you can do at 30.

Many Christian Youth Caravan Teams To Tour Canada During Summer Months

Caravaning by bus, train, car, truck, tractor, aeroplane and boat will be the experience of some 200 young people of The United Church of Canada this summer.

A Christian Youth Caravan team is a group of four or five young people witnessing in the name of the Church in a community where there is a special need for a vital witness.

In past summers across Canada teams served on Indian Reserves on student mission fields, on large rural charges, in a children's hospital, in military camps, in lumbering communities, in new housing areas and in the frontier areas of our country. This summer it is expected that there will be an emphasis on Indian work and work in down town churches.

In British Columbia teams have been flown to Northern Coastal out-posts. In Newfoundland teams have been taken in the Church's mission boat to isolated areas and in all provinces between. Caravaners travelled by bus, train, car truck and tractor to reach their areas of service. The significant thing about members of Christian Youth Caravan Teams is that they are all volunteers, they are not paid. Among the volunteers of last summer were teachers, farmers, nurses students, factory and office workers. Some served for seven weeks while others served for varying periods. The minimum length of service was two weeks.

Teams this summer will hold Church Vacation Schools, assist with services of worship, give leadership at Youth Rallies, conduct Religious surveys, make home visits and perform many other services in the name of The United Church of Canada.

Their work in a community varies with the needs of the particular locality. Last summer in a large military camp a Vacation School was held for 500 children while on a small Indian Reserve home visitation was a major project.

Of special importance last summer was an experiment conducted by a team in a children's sanitarium. Caravaners brought the joy of a Church Vacation School to children confined to their beds.

Two summers ago 14 Ontario young people offered their lives for full-time service in the Church as a result of Christian Youth Caravan work, and across Canada a significant additional number of young people have entered United Church Theological Colleges and the United Church Training School in order to prepare for full-time work in the Church. Many of the young people who pioneered in the Caravan movement in Canada are now serving the Church as ministers, directors of Christian Education, missionaries and deaconesses.

The Christian Youth Caravan movement began in The United Church of Canada in the summer of 1949 and from that time it has grown steadily in every province. The Rev. Beverly Oaten, Paris Ontario, is chairman of the National Committee which is a part of the Youth Department of the Board of Christian Education. Miss Dency McCalla, Youth Secretary, of The United Church of Canada is Secretary of the Committee and Miss Betty Bone, Director of the summer's work.

Applicants interested in sharing in this project should write for further information to The Director of Christian Youth Caravans, Room 523, 299 Queen Street West, Toronto 2B, Ontario. Letters of inquiry will be sent to the Committee responsible in the area where the applicant lives. Applicants should be eighteen years of age or over, with at least Grade X, with at least two weeks of holidays to give to the work of the Church, and with some experience in leadership in Church groups.

WORLD SCIENTISTS TO COME TO CANADA FOR CONFERENCE

—Central Press Canadian

Canada will be the centre of the world for 1,500 scientists from 50 countries during the general assembly of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics. They'll meet at the University of Toronto Sept. 3-14 to present papers on what goes on on the earth's crust, above it and below it. This year's conference is the climax of centuries of effort to solve the mysteries of the universe and to form a unified picture of man's physical environment. The conference will be the principal meeting place of the 5,000 scientists engaged in simultaneous studies as part of the International Geophysical Year. In this photo, J. A. Edwards, arrangements secretary for the IUGG, is explaining the purpose of the meeting to Sue Strickland.

Announcement is made by the Bank of Montreal that Thomas K. Haller has been appointed manager of its Lachute branch to succeed C. M. Hamilton.

Morin Heights — It is expected that the motor road to Montreal will be open all through by the beginning of this week. The road through from Lachute is passable as far as Lakefield and is opening to Morin rapidly.

The vast number of farm products now being imported from the West have lowered our prices on butter, eggs and poultry. Provincial barriers next?

Lachute — A number of our town ladies invited Miss McCain, of Macdonald College, Superintendent of Women's Institutes for Quebec to meet with them relative to forming a branch here. The result was a new Institute being organized, with Mrs. F. A. Brennian as President, Mrs. A. Bothwell, 1st Vice-President, Mrs. J. Mason, 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. F. McGibbon, secretary and Mrs. Robt. McFaul, treasurer.

The young men of the West End have organized a football club with Mr. F. Walland as Captain, and are already practising for a match with Brownsburg on the 24th of May. The club has started with a membership of 18 and the following officers have been appointed — J. McDiarmid, president, C. James, vice-president, G. Marshall, sec.-treasurer, committee, Messrs. T. Carpenter, S. Caron, J. Combie, N. Beers and E. Carpenter.

We are delighted to see that the heroic conduct of Miss Katie Campbell who graduated from our Academy a couple of years ago, is being duly recognized and tonight the Hon. W. A. Weir will present her with a gold medal for her bravery in saving all her pupils in the Hochelaga fire. Miss Campbell and the other teachers will all receive solid gold brooches, while some of the men who assisted prominently in the rescue will be presented with medals. The presentation will be made in the school room of St. Mary's Anglican Church.

Winter is lingering an inexcusably long time in the lap of spring this year. To look at the big snow drifts which still adorn the landscape one might well imagine it is still mid-winter. It has however been ideal sap weather and the run has been large in this vicinity. Taffy parties are numerous.

Messrs. T. McOuat and Son have moved into their beautiful new store, west of Fish's Bridge, where they have a splendid display of goods. The building is three-storeys, of cement blocks, and a credit to town and owner.

An act put through by Hon. Mr. Weir raises the age limit at which children may be employed in mills. No boy or girl under fourteen years of age shall be so employed in the case of those who cannot read or write the limit is 16 years.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on the 16th instant, at the R. C. Church when Miss Lalonde was united in marriage to Mr. J. W. Lefebvre. Miss J. Lavigne played the wedding march, and the young ladies choir sang several selections. Breakfast was served at the home of Mr. Jos. Lavigne.

Mr. John Hay, president of our Agricultural Society, has purchased the bull which took first prize at the Fall Provincial Exhibition in Montreal last September. Mr. Hay deserves the recognition of farmers in this county for his progressive public spirit.

Arundel — Stephen Bevan returned from the shanties in time to save the houses of two neighbors from burning.

OUT ON A LIMB

A draft board down Oklahoma way got this letter a while back: "I am farming and I have been farming all the time as I had to quit school on account of the weeds and kukleburs up to my neck and they are still up to my waist and they would take over the place if you call me to the army."

Henry Kernan from the East writes about his woodlot, which he has managed for ten years. Seems like he went into this thing whole hog and not just 'cause he wanted to make some of that green stuff.

Way he talks about trees and forests sure fits the way I feel about them. Only I've never been able to quite say it his way:

"Our forests are works of art, creators and reflectors of moods, sharpeners of memories and of hopes. Someday all their trees will all be straight and tall, sound and clear.

The forester's skill will heal the ugly scars of insects and parasites and the cross force of wind, and will harvest each tree carefully and fully for the use of his fellow men.

"Then their owners, the four and a half million American citizens who control this vast complex of species, site and type, will not have failed in their proud heritage."

Corny, you say? Mebbe. But the dollars he makes aren't corny at all.

Kernan bought his 1200 undeveloped and partly wooded acres as an investment as well as to satisfy an interest in forestry. Each year he follows a simple rule about how much to cut: enough to pay the taxes and earn six per cent on the invested capital. This amounts to about thirty thousand board feet, considerably less than the growth each year.

'Course there's a buildup in growing stock this way which is a capital gain to be taken when needed.

In the past ten years, this fellow says that he's sold 293,000 board feet of logs and 189 cords of pulpwood, at a profit of $3,794.29. And on top of that, his woodlot is worth a lot more now'n when he bought it.

We're mighty glad to hear this kind of tale and we're sure proud of this fellow Kernan.

"The fastest man on four legs" has been used to describe Johnny Longden, who grew up in Alberta. He lived in the Taber district as a child, worked in a southern Alberta coal mine after school and later became a cigar store clerk. He began riding at the age of 15. In 1936, on successive days, he won both the Illinois and Louisiana Derbies. Two years later he became America's leading jockey by riding 236 winners. He now has won more than 5,000 races — more than any other jockey in turf history.

What town was nicknamed "Snarlington?"

Brockville, Ontario received this dubious honor when its residents bickered fiercely over whether the name of the town should be Williamstown or Elizabethtown. Both factions finally agreed to name it in honor of General Brock, following the war of 1812.

Where was Ontario's first Methodist meeting house?

Hay Bay, near Bath, Ontario, is the site of the first Methodist meeting house in Ontario. It was erected in 1792 and still stands. An annual memorial service is held there.

Who was the first secular nurse in North America?

A high place among pioneer Canadian women is deserved by Jeanne Mance, who, with several female companions, came to New France in 1641 with the little band led by Maisonneuve. The Hotel Dieu, a wooden building 60 feet long and 24 feet wide, was constructed in 1645. She endured severe hardships, including the ever-present threat of Indian savagery, contended with strong opposition from some French authorities, and made three trips to France to gather funds and recruit a staff. When her hospital was firmly established she placed it in the care of the Hospital Nuns of St. Joseph. Idealistic and gracious, but practical and strong-minded as well, it has been written of her: "Her energy stimulated the lazy, her courage shamed the timid, her sweetness comforted the sick."

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I paid unemployment insurance contributions steadily for fifteen years from 1941 to 1956. I then moved to South America where I make my permanent home. I think I am entitled to what I put into the fund with interest. Can I get it?

A. The unemployment insurance fund is not a savings account. The contributions which you made while you were working in Canada went into a common fund, from which benefits were paid to those who qualified under the provisions of the Act.

Q. As a salesman I am employed on a straight commission basis. May I contribute to unemployment insurance?

A. You must contribute if you are an employee and not an independent agent and your net income (after deducting expenses) does not exceed $4800 a year and of you are not mainly dependent for your livelihood on some other occupation. However, insurance agents, securities salesmen and real estate agents paid by commissions are specifically excluded from coverage.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

by the Canadian Press

By Roy LaBerge, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 13 (CP) — Three of the four major party leaders were back briefly in the capital from election campaign tours last week.

Prime Minister St. Laurent returned May 8 from a 12-day campaign in the west for a May 9 cabinet meeting. He left the following day for Quebec City and a major political speech there. As Mr. St. Laurent arrived, two other leaders left.

Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, after a two-day tour of Quebec ridings on the Ottawa River, headed through Ontario for a western tour of his own. CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, back from a swing through Saskatchewan, made radio and television broadcasts in the capital, then headed for Timmins, Ont., and a campaign speech there.

Suez Argument

Mr. St. Laurent, as he came off the plane, angrily described as a downright lie a statement by Social Credit leader Solon Low that Mr. St. Laurent had threatened Sir Anthony Eden, then British prime minister, with "possibly Canada's withdrawal from the Commonwealth" unless British troops were withdrawn from the Suez zone after last fall's Anglo-French intervention there.

Mr. Lowe, on his way to Brandon, Man., when the prime minister returned to Ottawa, had made the statement two days earlier at Victoria. He said the threat was included in telegrams sent to Sir Anthony.

Mr. St. Laurent said his cabinet oath bound him to keep secret the telegrams' contents. But he invited Mr. Low to have another privy council member read the classified telegrams and assure the Social Credit leader that the prime minister was telling the truth when he said there was no threat in them.

At Brockville, Ont., Mr. Diefenbaker criticized a Liberal party publicaton in which, he said, the Liberal government listed by constituency its expenditures for pensions, family allowances and disability payments.

"They gave nothing, but what they took from you and me," he said.

Mr. Coldwell, in a May 7 television broadcast over the CBC English-language network, said the government's federal - provincial hospital insurance proposal was a "partial and very limited" plan. It fell short of what the Liberals had been promising for years.

EDEN IN OTTAWA

Sir Anthony Eden arrived in the capital last week to begin a 23-day convalescence from an operation at Boston, Mass. He stayed at Government House, official residence of Governor-General Massey, as a guest of the governor-general.

Sir Anthony received no callers during his first week, but quietly spent his time sitting in the garden reading newspapers and magazines.

He rose late every day and went to bed early. Sometimes he ate lunch indoors, with Lady Eden and Mr. Massey, but whenever weather permitted he had lunch out in the garden.

OPTIMISTIC REPORT

Prairie seeding was making rapid progress up to May 7, particularly in the southern districts, the Bureau of Statistics said in the first of the 1957 series of surveys of Canadian crop conditions.

The report was based on telegraphic reports from field correspondents at that date. It said moisture supplies generally were adequate in most Prairie areas, but rains would soon be needed to ensure even germination in some districts.

Seeding progress was good, in other parts of the country except for the Maritimes, where bad weather had retarded operations. Some parts of the Maritimes had snow just a few days previously, setting back preparations for planting. However, some early potatoes had been planted in a New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Seeding was well under way in Quebec and Ontario. Warm weather in Ontario at the end of April got winter wheat, hay and pasture off to a good start.

In British Columbia, there was little winter kill. Plowing and seeding were well advanced on group made a wise observation I'd Fraser Valley and in the North Okanagan Valley, and had begun in the Peace River area.

MASSIVE EXERCISE

The first country-wide Civil Defence exercise May 10-11 revolved around a hypothetical cabinet order for a general mobilization and the evacuation of several big Canadian cities.

The two-day exercise — its nerve centre at the federal civil defence college at Arnprior, Ont., 40 miles northwest of Ottawa — was intended to test civil defence at all levels of control and to exercise its communications network.

It was also set up to enable the study of problems likely to arise if nuclear bombs ever were dropped in Canada.

The scheme — called Exercise Co-operation I — also drew upon resourcefulness of local CD officers in the steps they took to mobilize — hypothetically — to meet the emergency situations transmitted to them over the CD communications network.

Their means of evacuating populations — such as hypothetically drawing upon public transportation or private and commercial shipping in port areas — might produce legal problems for later study.

STRIKING FORCE

The Canadian Army's emphasis on the need for a mobile striking force has not slackened despite the advent of hydrogen bombs and long-range jet bombers.

The 3,000-man parachute force was established 10 years ago to wipe out any lodgements that an enemy might attempt to make in the Canadian Arctic, for instance.

Senior army officers say now that the need for this force is still as important as when it was set up. There now were many defence installations to protect in the north, mainly radar warning lines.

SMALL MYSTERY

Calgary (CP) — Police investigating a report of a "dead animal" in the Scotmen's Hill district found it was the head of a moose. There was no clue as to how it got into its half-buried position.

OF MANY THINGS

By Ambrose Hills

The Comeback

We got talking about men who had made comebacks. Fellows who had been right down to their uppers, then suddenly started to climb up again and never stopped. We all admired them, and perhaps envied them a little for the adventure they must have found on the comeback trail. Then one of our group made a wise observation I'd like to pass along.

"You know," he said, "you don't have to tumble down the ladder to make a comeback. Wherever you're standing right now, you can still start climbing. You know what I mean — use the same kind of energy those comeback boys used, only start from the spot you're in right now, high as it may be.

"I remember a fellow who did it. He was riding high, too, and proud of his position. He had a good job, belonged to one of the finest clubs, owned his own home. You know the sort of things.

"Then his Company sent him on a trip. During the trip, he was to see his counter-part in another branch of the Company — a man with a similar job, and presumably a similar place in life.

"He had his eyes opened. His counter-part was not only doing the job better, but had taken up additional studies and was, to all intents and purposes, ready to climb another rung or two in a hurry.

"Henry came back a new man. Within six months we all knew he was slated for bigger things. He really began to extend himself, and everybody was surprised at his capacity for work and learning.

"Maybe you couldn't call that a comeback, but it took the same kind of stuff — a willingness to do better each succeeding day. That's all a comeback amounts to!"

I thought about that a great deal. Maybe the man who is already fairly high on the ladder needs even more courage to climb than the chap who has fallen to the bottom and has nowhere to go but up.

One thing I am sure of. We live in the kind of nation where such choices are up to the individual. You are free to climb or free to slide. There was a trend, a few years back, to try to haul everybody down to the same level, to reward failure and punish success. But fortunately that trend is changing. This country is too young and vigorous for such nonsense. Young countries admire the man who climbs, whether he is recovering from a bad fall or going forward from a good start.

Have you got a comeback in you? More power to you, then!

Lachute Legion Branch Opens Hall For Teenagers Friday Night Dances

The Lachute Branch of the Canadian Legion, in an attempt to give further service to the community, and in response to many parents who have requested a meeting place for their teenagers, have offered the use of their Memorial Hall on Foundry Street. It is anticipated that with the help of the teenagers themselves, the Legion will put the hall to good use on Friday nights; in addition the kitchen is available, where refreshments can be prepared and sold along with soft drinks.

At a meeting on Monday night, a group of Legionnaires met to decide if the plan could be worked out and it was thought that a place in Lachute was necessary for teenagers to meet and dance, and that the teenagers could if they wished, form their own committee to run these dances.

The dances would be held on Friday nights, from 8 until 11.15. There will be records made available and also if a responsible person is available to play the organo, it will be at their disposal. The ladies have volunteered to look after the refreshments for the first dance.

The Legionnaires are meeting again next Monday, May 27, at 8 p.m. in the Legion Hall, and all interested are invited to attend this meeting when plans will be made for the first dance.

As the hall unfortunately has been previously booked for the next several Friday nights, it is anticipated that the dances will be held on Saturday until the second or third week in June. The first dance, therefore, will be on Saturday, June 1.

It is reported by Mrs. J. Simpson, of St. Andrews East that teenagers are already organized for the Friday night dances and parents are co-operating by driving the teenagers to the dance and home again at a specified hour.

Swimming Classes Start June 11 at Rotary Park

Red Cross Swimming classes will be conducted at the Brownsburg Rotary Pool every Tuesday and Thursday evening from 5 to 6 o'clock, commencing June 11.

Instructions will be given in water safety and life saving techniques and those enrolled will be able to undergo examination for Red Cross Medals in the month of August.

Lachute Federation of Charities Executive Meets

The regular meeting of the executive of the Lachute Federation of Charities, which was conducted by new president Roger Lagarde, was held recently at the Ayersville Clement School.

On this occasion the executive accepted the decision of the authorities of the diocese of St. Jerome to launch a subscription campaign in all parishes for the benefit of diocesan charities towards the end of September.

Accordingly, it was unanimously decided to delay the launching date of the annual campaign of the Federation of Charities in this town. It will now take place from November 10 to 20 of this year.

In addition to the president, other members of the executive present were Notary Richard Valois, Jean-Guy Joanette, Jos. Dumais, Raymond Beaulieu and the Rev. Father Dalma Brisebois, moral advisor.

Full Agenda and Timely Topic At Lions Meeting

At the Lions Club assembly this week, the members heard impressions from their juvenile oratory team which so successfully represented Lachute at the Gravenhurst finals. Miss Yvette Renaud and Pierre Dumais gave their personal account of the experience. The third representative, Miss Beverley McDonald, was unable to be present at the meeting. . . The mentor and guardian of these young speakers, Committeeman Gerald Lefebvre, gave an accounting of the effort from a financial and material viewpoint.

Col. Ernest Emmett, in charge of the car drawing — an annual fund-raising venture of this club — gave a satisfactory report of progress. (Dr. Eric Mongeon was the lucky winner of a ham, as a side-issue in promoting ticket sales.) The Plymouth 1957 car to be awarded in this drawing, is now displayed in Lachute's main shopping area on Fridays and Saturdays.

A sum of $150 was voted to promote the Little Major League baseball teams again this year, with Dr. Mongeon in charge of organization.

A boost was given to plans for the CBFT "Rigolade" feature — the Radio-Canada program on Channel 2 sponsored by Molson's — which on June 27 will be staged at the Brownsburg Arena under Lions Club auspices. It is hoped to "pack the hall" for this hilarious event, which should afford high interest and enjoyment for all attending.

"Pièce de resistance" of this meeting was a talk by Dr. Aberdeen McCabe, an authority on Fluoridation, who gave a frank discourse on this subject now so prominent in the public interest. The speaker was introduced by Dr. Eric Mongeon and thanked by Keith Clarke, both colleagues are highly qualified in the dental profession.

No Immediate C.P. Commutor Service; Police to Clamp-Down on Speeders

In response to the local Council's inquiry for the establishment of daily commutor service between Lachute and Montreal, the Canadian Pacific authorities, through District Passenger Agent, Frank F. Fortier, informed the Council that it is useless to attempt to establish a service at this time due to the lack of Budd-car coaches, as it would cause a deficiency of service in other places. In his letter, Mr. Fortier declared it was possible to discuss the matter farther, but that he strongly doubted the assent of the company would be given at this time. Ald. Edgar Pollock expressed his desire that the meeting be held but Council finally decided to just acknowledge reception of the letter for the present. The adjourned meeting was held under the presidency of Mayor Léopold Carrière. Ald. Ross R. Muir being absent.

The Police Committee report, read by Ald. Mozart Carrière in the absence of Chief Trépanier, resulted in a prolonged discussion concerning the traffic on certain streets. In his opinion, Ald. Lepage declared that the regulation governing the traffic at the corner of the Hotel Campeau and the Harbour Pharmacy did not conform to the full stop — that is to say the pedestrian's stop.

By-Law 205, concerning the early Saturday closing of business establishments within the limits of Lachute, passed third reading at last Wednesday's adjourned meeting. The By-law becomes effective early in June.

There is, in this section of Millway Street, a sign prohibiting parking during the rush hour period, and as it is not respected, the circulation of traffic is made more difficult. Ald. Dr. Roger Lavigne suggested that the traffic lights at each corner be synchronized; he added he felt this measure would ease the traffic problem on the bridge.

Ald. Pollock asked that the police department keep a closer watch on the Bedard Blvd. traffic, especially at the intersection of Bedard and Mary Street where the stop signs are often violated. The Council decided to instruct the Police force to employ strict measures against infractions of this law throughout the limits.

The question of the repair and lengthening of certain streets was raised; it was declared that the Roads Department requires $15,000 for this task. "Unfortunately," said Mayor Carrière, "the municipality has not the necessary monies and if we should decide to effect these repairs, it will necessitate a loan." "I have been advised," he continued, "that we should use up the capital expenditure before regulating the municipal evaluation. I believe that we must hire competent and qualified men before taking advantage of the scientific evaluation."

In response to a request of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, a grant of $250 was voted on a motion by Ald. Romain Desjardins seconded by Alderman Nelson Lepage.

The mayor read a letter received from the Ayersville municipality, accepting the condition of a set fee of $2,500 per year plus the sum of $75 per hour or part thereof each time the Lachute Fire Department is called to combat an Ayersville fire. However, the Municipality of Ayersville did not accept the Lachute Council's demand that 15 cents per 1,000 gallon, be paid as a water fee, and reported they were awaiting the decision of the Administration of Public Works.

Building permits were granted to René Hotte, for a house on Harriet Street, Harvey Kerr, for a house in the "Riverview" subdivision; Pat Carrière, for a house at the corner of Drew and Grace Streets and Noe Patry, for a house on Charles Street. Mayor Carrière declared that those who ride in Caterpillar tractors on the streets or sidewalks of the town would be held responsible for all damage caused by the treads.

Community Concerts Campaign Starts In Lachute District; Campaign Rally Pays Tribute to Organizations Workers

Community Concerts campaign headquarters, at Bedard Ltée store on Main Street, reflected optimism last night as the third official day of the canvass ended. It was early at this stage to tabulate returns or to appraise the public response; reports are notably slow in coming in, each year as the workers make their calls, and it is not until the final round-up that any clear indication is available.

The membership campaign is under the guidance of Mlle Juliette Rodrigue, one of the Association's most ardent workers since its inception; and the field organizer, Mme Sylvia Gervais, is giving inspiration and assistance to the ladies in constant attendance at headquarters.

At a successful campaign rally in the Legion Hall last Thursday under chairmanship of Simon Valois, the canvassers were primed for their approach, and there was fair indication that the usual districts would all be represented in the year's enrolment. . . Mr. Valois paid tribute to the work of last season's executive. Mlle Rodrigue spoke effectively in both French and English, and Mme Gervais also proved eloquent in giving encouragement to the gathering.

An appreciable factor in maintaining Community Concerts membership is the annual subscription of two service clubs to enable 40 school pupils to attend the concerts. This gesture is also significant in fulfilling one of the most important functions of the Concerts movement, namely, to foster music appreciation in the younger citizenry. A Lions Club spokesman gave assurance that this organization would give the same support as in previous years.

As the canvassers cover their respective fields, it is confidently hoped they will achieve results to equal or better their previous efforts. The local organizers also anticipate there will be some memberships forthcoming from Hawkesbury, where the Association does not appear to be reorganizing this year.

Lachute Spring Fair Plans Well Underway; Entry Closing Nears

The Lachute Exhibition, this year being held from June 12 to 15, promises to present good cattle and horse shows, with entries now coming in quickly from former and a considerable number of new exhibitors.

Secretary Ken Riley has announced that the closing of entries for the Cooking, Handicraft, and Flower classes has been set as of Friday, May 31.

The attraction of a dog show planned for the Saturday afternoon of the exhibition has resulted in much interest and many inquiries. Entry fees for this class will be $1.

Mr. Riley wishes to remind the citizens of Lachute and surrounding areas of the Square Dancing contest which will take place on Saturday night, June 15 and for which entries are still needed.

The Lachute Battery, No. 131, 37th Canadian Field Regiment, R.C.A., plans to participate in the opening ceremonies, at which time Jean Beliveau will open our 132nd Annual Exhibition, and will also present a gun demonstration on the Friday night of the Fair.

Brownsb'g Student Queen's Graduate

Robert Warwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Warwick, of Brownsburg, who received his B.Sc. degree in Chemical Engineering from Queen's University at the May 18 Convocation.

Bob attended both Brownsburg and Lachute High Schools, obtaining his senior matriculation from the latter in June 1953. He then entered the faculty of engineering at the University of New Brunswick as an R.O.T.P. cadet and after two years transferred to Queen's for his final university years. Last year Bob won the Royal Memorial Scholarship and also the A. C. Neish Bank prize for Public Speaking.

Bob is now posted as a lieutenant with the 1st Light Aircraft Regiment, which will remain at Gagetown, N.B., for the summer.

Lachute High School was the scene of an auspicious function last Friday evening — an annual occasion starring the year's graduates in a glamorous role. The school's senior students were both the principal performers and the honored guests, and the 1957 Graduation Exercises, attended by friends, parents and other interested persons, proved once again a social highlight of the school year.

After group photographs of the class and faculty, the stage of the school auditorium became the centre of attention, with the graduates, school board chairman, Jas. W. McGibbon and principal F. H. J. Royal, taking part in the ensuing program. The scene was attractively decorated, and under subdued lights the audience were seated at the sides of the hall, under blue and white festoons, and in the gallery.

The program followed a time-honored tradition. Chaired by Bobby Campbell as president of the year's Student's Council, the proceedings opened with an address by Chairman Jas. McGibbon, voicing suitable sentiments to the graduates — his obvious sincerity being spiced with customary humor.

Heather McTavish, one of the graduates, then introduced her classmates individually, and Principal Royal wished them all success and happiness — rewards which would come "largely as the result of your own aims, and how hard you strive to fulfill those aims." It was notable that this was the eleventh . successive graduation under Mr. Royal's principalship at L.H.S. — in other words, it was the first year in which he had seen the same pupils through all grades from enrolment to graduation.

The graduates then took over. Beverley Sanford and David Bates recited the class "prophecy"; Neville Brown and Linda Maslin read the "last will and testament"; and Robert Robinson, as Valedictorian, lauded the principal, teachers, school board and parents for their contribution to this culminating triumph of his class, the graduates of 1957.

Social enjoyment completed the evening. The graduates, with their partners, staged the Grand March to the music of Stan Bankley's orchestra, and dancing was continued to a late hour. Refreshments were served by the Domestic Science pupils in the school cafeteria.

Exhibits Being Received For Second Art Show of Argenteuil Association

Exhibits are being received this week for the second annual show of the Argenteuil Art Association, which opens Saturday afternoon at the St. Andrews Golf Club.

While this display will remain on view until June 15, inclusive, the opening on Saturday will be something of a social event, for the ladies of the Association are serving tea at a nominal charge, and friends will gather to share a common interest. Members especially are anticipating this exhibition with pleasure, since a growing interest is apparent in their organization, which was started only a little over a year ago by art enthusiasts of the district.

Entries for the display have been left at the home of Mr. Percy Hall, in St. Andrews, and after the closing hour (this evening, Thursday) the pictures will be in charge of the hanging committee, to remain on exhibition to the public until June 15.

Three loan exhibitions at the same site, by courtesy of St. Andrews Golf Club, are planned for the summer season. Members of the Association and the interested public will be duly informed of these attractions.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Meet Plan for 'Greater Lachute' Area Map

Following the general meeting which was held in early May, the Executive Council of the Lachute Chamber of Commerce met last week for the first time. Judging from the fact that the council was present in its near entirety and the enthusiasm which was shown in the matters discussed, it is more and more evident that the projects to be undertaken will be well supported by all members called upon to execute them.

With President Miville Trickey in the chair, the meeting acted speedily and effectively. An auditor was appointed to verify the Chamber's books and prepare a financial statement.

Gabriel Valois was in attendance to explain the work which he had prepared in view of publishing a geographical map of the area of Greater Lachute. As this is one of the organization's projects Mr. Valois was appointed chairman of a special committee for this purpose and instructed to obtain estimates on the cost of the publication of the proposed map. Immediate Past President Paul Laliberté kindly offered his services to assist the chairman in realizing this item.

There has existed, for some time an Insurance Plan through which members can be insured as a group and take advantage of certain privileges. As the plan requires a review to improve it both economically and beneficially Romain Savage agreed to undertake this task.

The impending inauguration of home delivery of mail justifies the Chamber's assistance to the public in general in an advisory capacity to recommend various practical types of letter boxes. Samples of suitable types of door slots will be obtained and these will be displayed suitably mounted. It was decided that they should be displayed in a neutral environment and Donat Saulnier, proprietor of Beaton's Drug Store volunteered to have them oppropriately displayed in his show window. Mr. Saulnier has been appointed chairman of the Civic Improvement Committee. He has already received many suggestions and has added them to his already lengthy list of problems to be tackled.

The Membership Committee under the chairmanship of Gaetan Leclair promises to be an active one after the Finance Committee under Armand Desrosiers has established a workable budget.

The Civic Improvement Committee was urged to commence studying a suitable plan to improve the parking situation. It was brought to light that interested investors from elsewhere would take advantage of our unsettled parking facilities on Main Street to erect a shopping centre on the outskirts of the town with ample parking space to compete with our already natural shopping centre existant on Main Street.

Gymnasts Entered In Championship Meet - Need funds

Saturday, June 1, the Eastern Canadian Gymnastic Championship will be held in Noranda, championships for Novice men, Junior men and Senior men will be held. Lachute High School are planning on sending four boys, one in the Junior class and the others in the Novice class.

As it is an expensive trip to Noranda (they have to stay for two days) local coach Arne Petersen has told the boys they must prove themselves before going and a meet behind closed doors will be held on May 25 when the boys will go through the routines. If they can, and if enough funds can be raised they will all go to Noranda.

While the younger boys, Reggie Beers, Ronnie Cairns and Gary Cruise, are not expected to take top honors, coach Petersen feels sure they will make a good account of themselves and it will be a great experience for them. Reggie Stansfield, who will start in the Junior division, should have a chance to bring home a championship or two.

It is reported the boys have trained hard for several hours every day for the last month and certainly deserve the trip to Noranda. Anyone wishing to contribute towards the expenses can do so by contacting coach Petersen or R. A. Giles at the Lachute Watchman office.

'Grill Trouble' Causes Grenville Mayor To Tender Resignation - Not Accepted

Pressure brought to bear by three Grenville Council members on the matter of granting permission for the Sunday operation of grills and hotels within the municipality recently resulted in Mayor P. Stanley Cavanagh tendering his resignation, which at an illegal meeting held later was not accepted. Five years ago a municipal by-law, preventing sale of liquor and dancing from midnight Saturday to Monday morning, was passed after some 95% of the local population had signed a petition favoring this action. Following a heated debate at the recent meeting, in which several council members argued against the rest of the council for permission to open grills, Mayor Cavanagh left the meeting and some of the Councillors met privately deciding to grant the hotel owner's request "with toleration."

The proprietors, who had been complaining of the lack of patronage, also suggested that playing of the "Juke Box" be allowed as well as dancing. As the permission given at the private meeting is considered illegal, no definite practice can result from the action, although the establishments have been open Sundays for the past two weeks.

Mr. Cavanagh has reported he received a letter requesting him to return to his official position of Mayor of Grenville.

Among Council members present at this controversial meeting were Dr. Henri Laroque, Roland Landriault, Henri Lessard, Gerald Lemay, Paul Sauvé and Alex McPhee, the latter three members reportedly taking a stand against the action to re-open the drinking establishments.

A meeting will be held in the near future to discuss more fully, at which time a full report is expected.

Four Killed, Two Injured in Head-on Highway Crash Early Saturday Evening

Four persons were killed and two injured when two cars crashed head-on and then were hurled into a ditch on the Cote St. Louis highway around 11.30 last Friday night. Killed were Antoine Drouin, 25, and Gaetan Tessier, 18, both of St. Philippe; Jean-Roch Faucher, 25, of Berri Street, Montreal and Lucien Giroux, 40, of Mentana Street, Montreal. The two survivors of the tragedy Miss Murielle Menard, 17, of St. Germain Street, Montreal, whose parents live in St. Jean de Wickham, and Raymond Drouin, 20, of St. Remi d'Amherst, were transported to the Providence Hospital in Lachute by Philippe Valois and Jean-Guy Joannette, who were returning from a political meeting at St. Augustin.

According to Sgt.-Det. Adrien Casvanat, of the Provincial Police of St. Eustache, who investigated, Faucher and Tessier, who were travelling towards Montreal, crashed into the car driven by Antoine Drouin and carrying the other passengers involved in the accident. Drouin was heading for St. Philippe.

The victims' bodies were taken to the Ste. Scholastique morgue where a coroner's inquest was held Saturday morning, then adjourned

C.I.P. Woods Manager Lands Large Trout

Manny Wilson, manager of the C-I-P Woods Division, Grenville, reports a highly successful fishing week-end at the companies Kenington Fish and Game Club, Gatineau County, bringing in a 7 pound 4 ounce Rainbow trout on a four-pound test spinning line.

The local fisherman reports his catch made short runs in the shallow water and was in the landing net before he put up too much of a fight. A director of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association, Mr. Wilson is expected to enter the fish in the Molson's Fishing Contest in which all members of the local association are eligible to enter.

Delinquent Voters

IN THE 1953 DOMINION election only 67 of every 100 eligible voters went to the polls.

This showing reflects a lack of appreciation on the part of many Canadians of both their privileges and responsibilities under Canada's parliamentary system of government.

Roughly one-third apparently overlook the continuing significance of the long, historic struggle in England between parliament and throne from which the present form of parliamentary government evolved.

It would also seem that they are unaware of the equally long struggle between the people themselves and parliament which brought gradual widening of the franchise until now in Canada every person 21 and over has the right to vote.

Some of the fault may lie in education. How can children who find history dull be expected to grow up with an understanding of the drama, the violence and the heroism of the conflict between king and parliament? How can they appreciate the deep sense of conviction that led man on both sides to risk property and life for their beliefs?

Men and women with an awareness of these things of the past will not let small modern obstacles or inconveniences keep them from the polls.

Some folks stay home from sheer indifference. They are doing all right, they say, and what does it matter to them who governs the country? Only a major issue or one that affects them personally will stir them to voting activity.

What is the solution? Some people favor compulsory voting. Another way is a continuing process of education, not only by political parties, but also by individual men and women possessed of the abiding conviction that to keep the ballot they must use it.

Avoid Swimming Tragedies

EACH YEAR, SUMMER VACATIONS spell tragedy to hundreds of families as accidental drowning takes the lives of both children and adults. Next to the highway, the lake, or swimming pool is the most lethal vacation hazard.

Swimming is fun and should be enjoyed. Safety is of utmost importance, however, and the All-Canada Insurance Federation, representing more than 200 Canadian fire, casualty and automobile insurance companies, recommends these rules for saving lives:

2—Do not swim alone.
3—Unless accompanied by a boat, do not swim far from shore. Swim parallel to the shore if you wish to try for distance.
4—Non-swimmers should not float into deep water on inner tubes or other inflated articles. If the float begins to leak the swimmer is in difficulty.
5—Do not dive into unfamiliar waters and do not swim beneath diving boards.
6—If a swimmer is in difficulty, try to rescue him with a boat, a rope or an extended oar. Do not swim to him unless it is absolutely necessary. Often the rescuer also becomes a victim.
9—Beware of undertows in rough water.
10—Do not swim during lightning storms.
11—Learn how to administer artificial respiration.

The Spirit Wrestlers

WHAT'S TO BE DONE about the Doukhobors, asks The Financial Post?

There's everything to be said for variety and color in the national life. When the spirit-wrestlers put on nude parades in prairie towns in the early 1900s, unhappily exciting more laughter than lust among the bystanders, their fellow-Canadians thought this was maybe an odd way of expressing dissent in a cold climate, but, all the same, tolerable, because the nudes, when clothed, were industrious and peaceful.

Nowadays the Doukhobors prefer burning down schoolhouses, a cosier type of protest. Though living members of the sect must be second, third or fourth generation Canadians, they still feel "persecuted" when authority objects to these proceedings. Now they want to go to the Soviet Union, from which their ancestors fled to escape Russian persecution, and the Muscovites are reported to be interested.

New Lifebelt

NO ONE NEED know you can't swim if you wear new lifebelt now being made in Germany, reports The Financial Post. Size of a cigarette package, it weights 4½ ounces, fits under a bathing suit with hardly a trace. You can even blow it up in the water.

Victoria Day

FIRECRACKERS popped merrily across Canada as the first national holiday of the summer was celebrated in some sections of the country, with sports events, regattas, and the traditional fireworks displays.

Victoria Day no longer falls invariably on May 24, the date on which Queen Victoria's birthday was honored ever since 1845 when, according to the new 10-volume Encyclopedia Canadianna, it was declared a holiday by the legislature of the united Canadas.

It became a national holiday in 1901, but since 1952, the holiday has fallen on the Monday preceding May 24, so that it invariably creates a long holiday week-end.

Empire Day is closely associated with Victoria Day. It was first proposed in 1898 by the Canadian Education Association as an observance in the schools, with patriotic exercises, and was inaugurated the next year. It has continued to be observed in the school of some of the provinces on the last school day before Victoria Day.

Preventive Maintenance

TO DO A GOOD JOB, you need good tools as well as ability and attention.

Is your car in a mechanical condition as to be ready to respond instantly in an emergency? Preventive Maintenance is one of the basic life-saving rules, states a spokesman of the Provincial Department of Transport and Communications. The time and money spent for a check-up are insignificant in comparison with the cost, moral sufferings and convalescence that may result from a traffic accident.

It is advisable that the younger generations — the drivers of tomorrow — be allowed where possible, to attend these periodical check-ups. It should be stressed that the motorist's obligation is not completely discharged by the mechanical safety-check. A constant check on the man behind the wheel, is the only answer to the accident problem. The driver must bear in mind that a danger zone always extends ahead of him, and that the law cannot be broken without immediate punishment.

The citation given Miss K. Campbell of Dalesville, for saving the lives of her pupils in the Hochelega fire was as follows:

"And now, Miss Campbell it is my pleasant duty to present you with this medal. Your deed in protecting the lives of your pupils at the risk of your own, shows that you are endowed with the noblest instincts of womanhood.

"The knowledge of the safety of your rescued pupils must ever be your greatest reward. These little children through all their lives will look to you with feelings of gratitude and devotion.

"The people, too, of your native county honor and respect you, and as an evidence thereof, I ask you to accept this medal and keep it as one of your Argenteuil souvenirs."

Who united the co-operative movement in Canada?

An English-born Journalist named George Keen is credited with forming the Co-operative Union of Canada in 1909. He remained general secretary of the union until 1943. He was widely known as editor of the Canadian Co-operator, which was the oldest co-operative organ on the continent when it ceased publication in 1947. His memoirs, Birth of a Movement, were published in 1950 and he died at his home in Brantford, Ontario, in 1953.

Who was Abram Kean?

Abraham Kean was a noted sealer who commanded ships in the springtime seal industry for 47 years and brought in more than 1,000,000 seals during his career. In 1916 he set a record by bringing back in his ship 46,481 seals weighing 1,106 tons. Born in Newfoundland, he served as a member of the assembly and was created M.B.E. Kean, who died in 1945, wrote an autobiography entitled Old and Young Ahead: A Millionaire in Seals.

How did the game of lacrosse get its name?

The game was so-named by early French settlers because of a similarity between the curved, webbed sticks used by the players and a bishop's crozier, or "la crosse". Said to be the oldest organized sport in America, lacrosse is Canadian in origin. A form of lacrosse, called baggataway, was played by Indians long before Europeans arrived. Although it has lost to hockey and football its former place as the most popular Canadian sport — it was referred to as Canada's national game — lacrosse still is very popular in some parts of the country and in other lands. Practically all of the lacrosse sticks in use are made at the St. Regis Indian Reserve near Cornwall, Ontario.

What was a horse-boat?

A horse-boat was a vessel for which motive power was provided by horses on deck and the power applied to a paddle-wheel. Horse-boats were used on the Niagara River as early as 1793. These boats varied from two to five "horse power." A horse-boat was in use as a ferry between Toronto and Toronto Island as late as 1850, when it was replaced by a steamer.

Happier people: Continuing the falling trend of the previous two years, the number of divorces in Canada in 1955 was down to 5,796 from 5,922 in 1954.

BULKY-LAS . . .
The All-Purpose Feed

Cows will shortly be going on grass and up will go a sigh of relief — no more feeding for a while — a chance to save up a few dollars — a little less work.

Yes, you may save a few dollars now to loose far more dollars later on. Grass is a wonderful feed if your cows could eat or could get enough of it. But the catch is that they cannot possibly eat enough grass to keep milk flow and keep their flesh at the same time. The milk pail gets supplied with what the grass can make and the balance comes off the cow until that supply becomes exhausted, then down goes the milk flow. Then it is really too late to start feeding your cow and bring her back part way at a price but never all the way during this lactation.

Better feed them some Bulky-Las from the day they go out. It is bulky, tasty, easily digested and will be a great help in keeping the flesh on your cows. Cows love it and will eat it when they refuse other feeds.

Also Bulky-Las will replace hay or silage and far more than replaces Beet Pulp. We will be glad to deliver you an order soon.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The other day I was talking to a London man who went back to live in England, then decided he didn't like it and returned to Canada again.

"What made you return to Canada?" I asked.

He said something about the high cost of living in Britain. Also, he didn't think much of British sanitation.

"There's this fish market, see. And there's a man cutting orf the fish 'eads and frowing 'em in the gutter. Wherever you look there's flies buzzin' arahnd."

He made a gesture of disgust.

"That kind of thing doesn't bother me much," I said. "In North America we are about as sanitary as we can get. But according to something I read the other day, there is such a thing as being too clean. Scientists have found that families with the highest standard of living catch polio more readily."

"I've 'eard somethink abaht that," said my London friend.

"They're so clean that they don't get a chance to develop a resistance to some kinds of infection."

"But it wasn't only that," he said. "Everythink's so penny-ante over there."

"In what way?"

"I'll give yer an example. Joan likes brussels sprouts, see. So I goes to the greengrocer's in this little village. 'Two pound 'o sprouts' I says .

" 'Where's yer paper bag, dearie', says the woman. 'Wot paper bag?' I says. "You 'ave to bring yer own paper bag', she says.

"Paper bag! This is years arter the end of the war. "I 'avent any paper bag', I tells 'er.

" 'Awright, we'll 'ave ter wrap the sprouts in newspaper', she says. Sprouts in newspaper! Gor!

"The sprouts are wet. I'm walkin' up the 'ill, see, and one of the sprouts pops through the newspaper. I push it back, and while I'm pushin' it back, out pops another sprout somewhere else, and while I'm pushing that back, out pops another sprout somewhere else again.

"So arter a while I take to putting the sprouts in my pockets. I get 'ome wiv all my pockets full o' sprouts. 'Ere's yer sprouts,' I says to the missus, and I frew 'em out of my pockets on the table.

"That finishes it," I says. 'We're going back to Canada'. And we did."

"I don't blame you, in a way," I said."But I don't think Englishmen have any monopoly of sluggish business methods." I told him of a few businessmen in my own home town who wouldn't advertise, because they actually didn't want any more trade. "I've heard it said that they keep their doors open for ventilation only," I told him.

Colorful Ceremonies at Arundel Dance As District Graduating Class Honored

More than three hundred guests attended the 1957 Arundel School Graduation dance on Friday evening of last week in the Arundel High School auditorium. On entering the hall, the guests found themselves transferred into a veritable fairyland, as the prosaic hall had been transformed completely. Gold and green streamers (the school colors) covered ceiling and walls and a white picket fence divided the dancing space from the tastefully arranged tables along the sides.

At each side of the orchestra, two rock gardens had been created, one of which contained a miniature fishpond, complete with fish, which drew the appreciative attention of the guests.

Steps had been installed leading to the stage which had been transformed into a charming room complete with lounges, tables and chairs with clever musical cutouts on a black background decorating the walls. Flowerboxes filled with plants and flowers and lighted by concealed lights lined the edge of the platform.

On the wall behind the orchestra, also on a black background, was a replica of an old violinist, and other various musical scenes, making a perfect setting for the musicians.

The decoration committee and their helpers deserve a generous word of praise and appreciation for the successfully finished result of their hard efforts.

At nine o'clock marching to the strains of 'Anchors Away'; led by Jill Courte and Dale Boyd, dressed as two Majorettes, eight boys and girls dressed in page costumes entered the hall and performed a well-executied drill, at the conclusion of which, the school staff led by Principal and Mrs. Melvin Graham and the class graduates, joined the drill, concluding it by forming the letter "A". The drill broke up into a general dance in which the guests joined.

At the conclusion of the dance, Principal Graham spoke a few words of welcome to all present after which each graduate was presented to Mrs. C. J. Stuart, who congratulated them and wished them well in the name of the school board. Mrs. Stuart also spoke to the guests presenting several interesting items and problems. Douglas Staniforth then replied for the graduates whose pictures were then taken.

Refreshments were then served, after which general dancing was indulged in till closing time.

Honored invited guests were Mayor Wm. Morrison and Mrs. Morrison, members of the School Board, Mr. and Mrs. Stern, and Mrs. Sosnkowski, president of the Arundel Women's Institute.

The graduating class included the following: Misses Marjorie Campbell, Darryl Rathwell, and Alexina Sinclair, Messrs. Ronald Allan, Steve Labelle, Douglas Staniforth, Victor Staniforth and Peter Van Rees.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Thomas, of Kilmar, Mr. and Mrs. Coral Young, of Harrington, Miss Linda Bennett, of Sudbury, Mr. and Mrs. K. Hollomby, of Montreal, Clarence Fraser, of Portage du Ford, Miss Ruth Toohey, Miss June Dey, of Otterburn Park, Calvin Luther, of Verdun, Mrs. C. Watson, of Lachute Mrs. G. Brownsburg Red Cross Well Over Objective; Report On Loan Cupboard

Brownsburg — The results of the financial campaign for the town and surrounding district was excellent and over the objective with a total amount of $1,656.00.

At a meeting Monday night, president R. Dubois expressed his thanks and appreciation to Gaston Heroux, chairman of the campaign, who despite the fact that he is a comparative newcomer in the town accomplished this excellent work along with his captains and canvassers.

It was expressed at the meeting that not too many people in Brownsburg are familiar with the organization, consequently an effort will be made to publish some of the activities of the organization.

Mrs. F. Barker reported that there are a number of unfinished articles she would like completed before the end of June, therefore anyone who can help in the sewing or knitting department should call Mrs. Barker at 6585. The work room closes for the summer months of July and August.

Mr. Dubois expressed his gratitude to Mrs. R. Bishop, Home Nursing Committee, for her support this year. Mrs. Bishop has resigned as she is moving to another locale in Ontario where her husband has taken on a new position. Mrs. Omer Legault was appointed to replace Mrs. Bishop.

And it's usually a sunny Sunday, as it was this year, when several hundred children — and grown-ups — proudly escorted their dogs, cats and ponies to the Ottawa Humane Society for the blessing-of-the-animals ceremony.

This year the assembly included a few pet turtles, goldfish and even a frog.

For instance, one Ottawa housewife is still sizzling about the antics of Moe, her Siamese cat. Moe, a handsome cat more than a year old, turned noisly anti-social during the blessing ceremony.

Ignoring the other animals, he shattered the ceremonies with ear-piercing shrieks until his blushing owner took him home.

Danny's Bad Luck

For Danny Shea of Toronto, thoughts about pets are sad. The five-year-old boy has lost all his pets. Something always happened to them before they had time to grow up, and Danny thinks this is the way it will always be.

Danny's first pet, a tiny kitten, died of poisoning. A little later he got a spaniel pup. It was killed by a truck.

Three months ago, Danny got a blue budgie bird, named it Joey and taught it a few words. But recently Joey took off from a grown-up's shoulder and disappeared.

Now Danny's parents are having a hard time explaining that not all pets have to die when they're young.

Power of Mothers

There's a lot of talk these days about women's roles and duties. Now a Montreal woman doctor has challenged modern mothers to realize and fulfil their powers as the moulders of children.

Dr. Margaret Nix says mothers "can mould or break their children."

Dr. Nix, an associate professor of medicine at McGill University, says children need the love and complete understanding of their parents.

Summer Hazard

Time for a picnic? Then it's time to watch out for that harmless-looking trouble-maker called poison ivy.

The national health department says poison ivy resembles Virginia creeper, except that the ivy has only three leaves instead of five.

New Arrivals

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cameron of Balfron, near Tatamagouche, N.S., got three new grandchildren in less than three weeks. A baby girl was born to each of their daughters, Mrs. Lloyd Haymon and Mrs. Baillie Ferguson, and a boy to daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edwin Cameron.

Attractive Dessert Adds to Meal

An attractive dessert can do wonders for any meal. Here's one that combines a tender cake-like base and a zestful topping of canned peach halves and prunes. The prunes and the peaches form a checkerboard pattern that's as easy as pudding to make. Whether served with a sauce made with peach syrup, pouring cream or whipped cream, this Checkerboard Upside Down Cake is a dessert that offers plenty of eating pleasure.

Checkerboard Upside Down Cake

2 Tablespoons butter or margarine, ⅔ cup lightly-packed brown sugar, 9 pitted soaked or cooked prunes, drained, 9 blanched almonds, 9 canned peach halves, drained, Maraschino cherries, optional, 1½ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 1⅞ cups once-sifted pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg, ¼ cup shortening, ⅔ cup fine granulated sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Preheat oven to 375°F. (moderately hot). Melt butter or margarine in a 9-inch square cake pan, then brush sides of the pan with the fat. Sprinkle brown sugar into pan. Stuff each prune with an almond and place one prune on each of the peach halves. Arrange filled peach halves, rounded sides up, over sugar in pan. Decorate with cherries, if desired. Place pan in oven while preparing batter.

Measure all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg into a sifter.

Add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with milk and vanilla, combining lightly after each addition. Spoon batter over heated fruits in pan. Bake in preheated oven, about 35 minutes. Stand pan in a cake rack for 2 or 3 minutes, then turn out cake onto a large serving dish. Serve warm with a sauce or with pouring on whipped cream.

An attractive way to serve creamed fish is on a bed of green and white parsley rice. To prepare parsley rice, lightly combine fluffy cooked rice and finely chopped parsley to 2 cups of hot rice.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Pre-planning your next motoring vacation is as important as making sure you have air in the tires and gasoline in the tank. You'll want to include in these plans a "Checklist for Vacation Safety." Here are some suggestions on things to check before you start.

1. Make sure your car has a complete lubrication job and oil check.
2. See that tires are in good condition — not "bald" or broken.
3. Check to see that windshield wipers work efficiently.

Other items to include in your checklist are emergency supplies — a first aid kit, permits, passes, identification papers, maps, flashlight, extra car keys, equipment for changing tires (including jack, wrench, emergency light, or flares) and, of course, a good spare tire.

1. Time your schedule and itinerary to allow for a full night's rest, adequate meals and rest stops.
2. Concentrate on the road and traffic, leaving scenery to the passengers.
3. Obey all traffic signs and signals, and keep a sharp eye out for bicyclists and children.

On the road — as in the home — it's safety first. A little thought and a "safety checklist" can be a big help in making your motoring vacation a happy time.

Canadians and the Commonwealth

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

"What's the use of the Commonwealth to Canadians, Mother?" Junior asked after he came home from the Victoria Day school celebration. "We've been learning about the eight Commonwealth countries — the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, India, Pakistan, the Union of South Africa, and our land . . . but what do you really think about the Commonwealth?"

"I guess I know more about the British Empire than I do about the Commonwealth," Mother admitted ruefully.

"But it isn't an empire any longer. We live thousands of miles away from those other countries. Do you think the British Commonwealth of Nations is still going to matter when I'm grown?"

If Junior was your son, what would you answer? You wouldn't be the only parent who was confused about this question! It is something our children have the right to ask us. We can't leave guidance to them in their thinking about the Commonwealth completely to their teacher. It is quite possible he or she thinks quite differently on this subject from what we do. There is no one answer to Junior's question!

We believe that the British Commonwealth of Nations has a great contribution to make in the world today and tomorrow. We agree with A. K. Chesterton's comment: "There could be for British peoples only one disaster worse than the dissolution of the Commonwealth: that would be their own lack of awareness of the fact."

Indifference and preoccupation with other things can harm the place of the Commonwealth in the minds and hearts of Canadians. If we have older school age youngsters in our home, Victoria Day has likely been the occasion for a picture of the Little Queen who reigned so long and so well in an era when the British Empire was at the peak of its power. How times have changed! The Old Country has been greatly depleted of men, money, and resources by two world wars. Power in the international sphere has been grasped by our vast and wealthy neighbor to the south of us. Canada finds herself a member of the British Commonwealth and also, because of her geographical position, bound to the United States by economic and other factors.

But we Canadians have very short memories if we do not realize how great is our debt to Great Britain. Many of our people — English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh — have come from that "right little, tight little island." Our democratic system of responsible government was brought to us by such Englishmen as Lord Elgin.

The visits of royalty to members of the Commonwealth have been not only colorful and interesting, but also helpful in the lives of those whom they touched. The Crown is the symbol which binds all the diverse members of the Commonwealth together. The Marquis of Salisbury once said: "Our common crown is our first and most important tie, the peak of our edifice, whether peoples are advanced or backward."

The members of the Commonwealth have contrasting systems of government. India is an independent republic which, of its own free choice, is within the Commonwealth group. The dictatorship in South Africa, which rests upon a state where there is terrible discrimination against the colored people, has no resemblance to a modern democracy. The class distinctions in the United Kingdom are unacceptable to Canadians.

The Commonwealth has no central government and no constitution. It is a cluster of autonomous communities, each with its own type of government, freely associating together. Citizenship in the United Kingdom is granted to citizens of Commonwealth countries, although they do not automatically confer citizenship upon each other.

What is the use of the Commonwealth, the successor to the British Empire, which stretches back two and a half centuries into the past? We live in a world torn apart, sorely divided, with the threat of doom hanging over it since the scientists have split the atom and made such appalling progress in methods of destruction. Surely there is something to be said for a co-operative partnership of peoples! Even when the powers disagree on international policy, in the British Commonwealth there is "a potential for unity."

This Commonwealth of ours, as Lionel Gelber has pointed out, is neither a regional arrangement nor a military alliance. But in today's world, what nation can stand all by itself? What nation can live to itself? We are all bound together in one bundle of life. We are not only Canadians, we are also Commonwealth folk. We do well to take a long look at our position and appreciate the values which lie in our Commonwealth link.

Fish Fillets and Lemon Sauce New Treat

Fish fillets may look anonymous but they certainly won't taste anonymous if served with this tangy, lemon-flavored sauce. Blend 1 cup of mayonnaise with 2 tablespoons of flour and 1 cup of milk. Cook and stir over hot water until thickened, then stir in 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of grated lemon rind, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1 tablespoon of chopped parsley. Very special with baked or steamed fillets of sole.

The pronghorn, or Rocky Mountain antelope, that once outnumbered even the prairie's great buffalo herds, is Canada's fastest-running wild animal.

TO ALL LIFE INSURANCE POLICYHOLDERS:

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Retirement Savings Plans Eligible for INCOME TAX DEDUCTIONS

The Income Tax Act (Canada) was recently amended to permit individual taxpayers to deduct from their income, within certain limits premiums paid for retirement savings plans in 1957 and later years.

The savings portion of either a new or an existing life insurance policy may be qualified as a retirement savings plan. Existing life insurance policies therefore need not be surrendered in order to take advantage of this tax relief.

The possible advantages of the deduction should in each case be considered in relation to the restrictions required by law to be included in a savings plan to make it eligible for the deduction, and in relation to the policyholder's own particular tax circumstances.

Policyholders interested in the new deduction should consult their life insurance underwriters or their companies.

A Human Crisis Portrated

The Harvest, on Perspective, May 26, is a simple story illustrating the continuing human crisis arising from Canada's industrial revolution Mr. Dawson, minister of a rural church, is asked to advise young George Aimes, a farm boy, against leaving the family farm in favor of a factory job in the city. George's parents have cherished the hope that their only son will stay on the land, so that it will not pass into the hands of strangers. But how could Mr. Dawson, in all conscience, advise George in this matter when it was well known that he himself was "just passing through" on his way to a big city church? In the end he found a solution to the dilemna, one that affected his own life as well as George's. The film was made in Ontario under the direction of Fergus McDonell, with script by Ian MacNeill.

That Feller MacKellar

Phil MacKellar, Toronto jazz personality and disc jockey, is the new host on CBC Dominion's "Jazz Unlimited." MacKellar takes over the spot occupied by the late Dick MacDougall. Like his predecessor, MacKellar is a leading figure in jazz circles and a tireless organizer of jazz concerts. He himself is a drummer and has played with Marion MacPartland, Charley Barnett, Dizzy Gillespie and Charlie Ventura. He is the only disc jockey ever to have had a theme composed for him — by vibraphonist Terry Gibbs; he's also been acclaimed disc jockey of the year by Metronome Magazine.

JOLSON NOTES

By Irvin R. Warwick

Jolsong of the Month: "Swanee". "Swanee" was one of Al Jolson's favorite springtime songs. I don't know why, but it may have been because both "Swanee" and spring are vibrant, full of life, as, indeed, was Al himself. I recall his introducing "Swanee" on Kraft Music Hall by saying that every year at that time (May) he sang this song, and he didn't intend to pass up that particular occasion.

Inasmuch as May 26 is Al's birthday, a list of the radio programs to which we have written requesting birthday tributes is given at the end of this column, and immediately below is a timely excerpt from "Swannie Song" by Charles Isaacs (Park East, 1951):

"On our show he (Al) was constantly torn between his pride at again being a prominent star in his sixties and his dislike of reading jokes reminding him of his age. He finally reached a compromise with us and accepted jokes on his age if they were done cleverly. At one script conference we had quite a debate over the merits of one such joke.

I had written a bit of patter that was, in part, as follows:

Levant: Al, I read in a magazine article that you give all your old friends gifts of expensive watches. I didn't get any.

Jolson: Well, Oscar, it said "old friends." You and I have scarcely met.

Levant: Humph! To be an old friend of Jolson's you'd have to still have the ticket stubs from Magellan's trip around the world!

When we arrived at that part of the script, Jolson asked, "Who the hell is Magellan? I never heard of him."

"He went around the world in fifteen hundred something, I believe," Levant said.

"Well, no wonder," Jolson commented. "I ain't that old. Ain't there someone who went around the world more recently?"

"But, Al," I said, "that's what makes the joke. Magellan is far enough back to make it ridiculous.

"Look," argued Jolson, "if I don't know Magellan, a lot of other people don't know him. Get somebody else."

I changed the joke to "cabin boy with Columbus "and Al was satisfied.

"That's more like it," he said, "People know Columbus."

We put up many defenses of joke lines, but once in a while Al would attack an entire premise. At one meeting we suggested that we use Victor Moore for our next guest.

"Get him," Jolson said. Victor is a very funny fellow. What have you got in mind for him?

"We haven't thought about it very much," I answered, "but we could do a sketch where you play Victor's father and . . ."

"Me play Victor's father?" roared Jolson. How old you trying to make me out to be? There were a few people born before me! Why, when I was a kid in kneebritches I used to sneak into the theatre to see Moore's act. That man is really old!"

World's Top Illusionists To Perform on TV

Some rare conjuring feats will be witnessed by viewers on Monday next, when famous magicians from all over the world join in presenting a Festival of Magic, in the NBC-TV Producers' Showcase series Ernie Kovacs, who has been known to jest about the subject of magic will "play it straight" as emcee Milbourne Christopher, consultant for the show and one of its stars will represent the American magician.

The other stars will include Li King Si and Mrs. Li King Si, making their debut in North America and presenting Chinese-Oriental illusions with bolts of silk and bowls of water. Robert Harbin, of South Africa will demonstrate his 'escape-ology mentalism' and 'large scale illusions', June Merlin, an Irish beauty queen, will perform 'miracles' with rabbits and mice. Cardini of Great Britain, also appearing, is a prestidigiator who plucks playing cards and lighted cigarettes out of thin air. Sorcar of India, specialist in large illusions, will do his sensational buzz-saw trick and René Septembre of France will 'materialize' gold-fish, cats, ducks and other creatures out of the air.

Milbourne Christopher will include in his performance what he calls the most dangerous trick there is. He has never done it before, because of his wife's objections. What he plans to do is catch in his teeth a bullet fired from a gun by a person standing a few yards away from him. Twelve men who have tried variations of this trick have died in their attempts. Houdini was dissuaded from trying it. However, the feat was performed convincingly in the CBC-TV program 11.30 Friday in November, 1955, in the Toronto studios; the man who caught the bullet in his teeth was a 30-year-old bearded Australian, named Jack Carson and the marksman was Gilmour Boa, crack Canadian Olympic rifleman.

Film Study on Adolescence

A film study of the inner turmoil of adolescence will be presented in The Family Circle series on CBC-TV, May 26 at 3.00 p.m. The series continues on June 2 with a film and discussion on the subject of shyness and on June 9 with a program about the relation of home and school in the development of children; a special guest on the last show will be Harold Whitley, principal of John Ross Robertson Public School in North Toronto.

The Ruins of Dartmoor Visited by TV Film

Although completely deserted today, Dartmoor, the high moor of the South Devon uplands in England, shows signs of considerable habitation in pre-historic times. These remains have survived owing partly to the fact that they are of stone and partly to the absence of extensive cultivation on the barren moorland which might have flattened out the traces.

On May 28, at 10.00 p.m. on CBC-TV, in the Buried Treasure series of BBC films, the two kinds of structure still to be seen on Dartmoor will be examined: ritual sites comprising stone rows, stone circles, standing stones, barrows and burial chambers, and circular huts grouped together in what are known as pounds. Glyn Daniel will interview two fellow archaeologists: Malcolm Spooner who recently revised the standard book on prehistoric Dartmoor by the late Hansford Worth; and Lady Aileen Fox who has carried out the most recent excavations on Dartmoor.

In the same program there will be an interview with Professor Michael O'Kelly of Cork Museum, who has been carrying out a series of experiments to determine how early man discovered the use of iron.

Colford Lodge Defeats Vankleek Hill Team

Last Sunday, Colford's ball squad gave the Ontario team a sound beating to the tune of 14 to 3.

Mel Stewart and Eddie Moore were the big guns for the winners, Mel getting a triple and two singles while team mate Moore had a perfect day with four hits.

Vankleek Hill showed a fine infield that pulled off two double plays but their hitting was not up to par.

Jean Guy Larocque was in trouble the first inning when he gave up a hit and three walks but then closed the door on the looser as he struck out the next three men to face him. He was not in serious trouble after that.

Next Sunday Colford's plays host to Main's Clutch and Break Co. of Montreal. Game time is 2 p.m.

Fish and Game Protective Association Hold Meeting; President Gives Report

President Syd Drew chaired the meeting at which it was announced that special prizes would be awarded at the Rotary Fish Derby on Saturday, June 1, for any persons catching specially tagged fish. These fish will be let loose in each of the lakes in the McGibbon park area through Leonard Bedard, local Molson's agent and a Director of the county association.

First and second prizes for the largest Red and Grey trout caught by members will also be awarded in addition to the Rotary Club prizes. The association prizes will be presented to winning members at the final meeting of the association to be held before the summer vacations, on Monday, June 17 in the Lachute Legion Hall.

It was announced that the membership total had risen to 245 to date and other general business was discussed by the few members present.

President Drew gave a short resume of a trip he and Director Leonard Bedard made to Coaticook on Thursday last where they attended the Provincial Piscicultural Fair. He made mention of the initial stocking of Splake trout, a cross between Speckled (Quebec Red) and Lake trout, adding that some 4,500 were planted in an artificial lake.

In closing, he described the operations of the Lake Lyster Fish and Game Club and their "creel census". All fish that are caught are measured, weighed and examined. All stocking that has taken place within recent years has been of tagged fish and the club now has information on the natural growth of fish in the lake which is not considered among the best trout lakes in the Province.

Brownsburg Tigers Lose Sunday Game to Fassett

Brownsburg Tigers with two of their varsity squad back in the lineup, didn't have enough on the ball to beat Fassett and went under by a 4-2 score to make their season's record 1 win and 2 losses.

Ronald Cousineau was charged with the loss as he gave up his only walk of the season as he struck out eight but yielded eighteen hits. He was in trouble in every inning but the seventh and eighth. At bat Ronald had three of his side's fifteen hits.

The game was sloppily played and it's almost unbelievable that the score should be only 4-2 with 33 hits shared.

André Ouellette playing after a brief absence singled and tripled to lead Brownsburg's attack. Jimmy Murdoch, Yves Raymond and Germain Gagné had each two singles. Ronald Cousineau and Ken Tomalty scored the runs.

The teams have taken a little longer to settle down this year and the early games have been much below last year's excellent standard. With the longer evenings, allowing more extensive work-outs the teams should be back in harness any week now.

This week-end Brownsburg will visit Fassett.

Amateur and Professional Talent In Second Annual Art Exhibition

Highly satisfying to the executive of the Argenteuil Art Association is the current exhibition of paintings representing the work of members and friends. This display is now on public view at the St. Andrews Golf Club. At the opening last Saturday afternoon there were over 200 visitors from the vicinity and from Montreal, who witnessed the very creditable show and enjoyed afternoon tea served by the ladies. The president, Mr. A. G. Talbot, of Brownsburg, welcomed the visitors with a few brief introductory remarks.

The pictures are effectively displayed in the Yacht Club House, adjacent to St. Andrews Country Club — the building having been made available by kind courtesy of Mr. Antoine Paré. The weather and surroundings contributed notably to the enjoyment of the occasion, and public comment on the general quality of the exhibits was very favorable. . . This aspect of the venture was particularly gratifying to the organizers — for, with exception of works from one or two contributing professionals, the pictures were executed by members of the Argenteuil Art Association, from embryos to accomplished artists; and the entries are original conceptions mostly from scenic Argenteuil County. With the landscapes are a few life and still-life studies, portraits and creations in design.

Abstractions and the newer cults are notably absent in this collection. There are 90 pictures of varying merit — excellent, fair, and mediocre — but all are inspired by the objective of eye appeal, for they are produced by amateurs seeking pleasure as a prime reward, or by professionals who have sent exhibits in keeping with this motif.

Treatments and techniques are mostly conventional, and the media of expression are those more generally understood — oils, water colors, pastels, pen-and-wash, and a few engravings. The complete effect, therefore, is one quite pleasing to the average viewer, for the enthusiasts of this young organization are uninfluenced by the explosive or exploratory trends of art.

This second annual exhibition of the Argenteuil Art Association is warmly commended to all residents with an interest in artistic expression. The premises will be open during the afternoons of each weekend, but visitors at other hours may procure the key by applying to the Golf Club pro, Mr. Seely, in the main clubhouse. This exhibition, closing on June 15, will be followed by three loan exhibits during the summer, to be duly announced.

Teenage Dance Committee Held Meeting Monday; First Dance Saturday P.M.

At a meeting on Monday night, a group of Legionnaires and parents met to organize and complete plans for the first teenage dance. The hall, unfortunately, has been booked for the next several Friday nights so dances will be held on Saturday nights until the second or third week in June. After all Friday night bookings have been filled, the hall will be reserved for the teenagers for every Friday night, without exception.

The first dance will be held this Saturday, June 1, from 8 p.m. to 11.30. Age group from 14 years up will be welcomed.

Records will be provided and if a responsible person is available to play the organo, it will be put at their disposal.

Refreshments will be provided by the ladies for the first dance. Committees will be formed for the teenagers to handle these details for themselves later on.

The Legion cordially invites all teenagers in the 14 year and up group to the opening party and hope they will form the biggest and most enjoyable club in the district.

Lachute's Early Closing By-Law Becomes Effective This Saturday

Municipal By-Law 205, concerning the early closing of establishments within the Lachute town limits, passed third reading recently and goes into effect this Saturday, June 1. It has been ordained that the word "Store" means all establishments or places of business where merchandises are exposed and offered for sale. This also applies to any shop or workshop.

Only stores and shops located within the town limits where a wholesale or retail trade is held are concerned. These stores shall close Saturday evening at 7 p.m., either eastern or standard time, according to the one which is in force, with the exception of the month of December when the closing hour will be ten o'clock.

The closing hour shall be 6 p.m. for all other days of the week except on Friday when stores shall close at 10 p.m.; however the said stores may remain open to 10 p.m. with the exception of Saturday preceding a religious or legal holiday; and from December 15 to the 31st inclusively, each year.

Any person violating the present By-Law will be liable for each infraction to the payment of costs and a fine not exceeding $40. Any default of the payment of the penalty can result in imprisonment not exceeding one month, such imprisonment to cease upon payment of the fine and costs.

Philippe Valois, Official Liberal Canadidate

Antoine Paré, Liberal Candidate

Mrs. Ethel M. McGibbon, Liberal Candidate

J. Octave Latour, Progressive Conservative Candidate

Nominations for the June 10 Federal election closed Monday at 3 p.m. in the Lachute Auditorium, when Returning Officer Richard Valois, announced that the following candidates would run: Notary Joseph-Octave Latour, Progressive Conservative, Mrs. Ethel Margaret McGibbon, Liberal, Antoine Paré, Liberal, and Philippe Valois, Official Liberal candidate.

The four-way contest got underway a few moments later when the candidates met in the Auditorium for a controversial meeting. Each candidate had 35 minutes at his disposal, for his own appeal and those of his supporters, while Philippe Valois, M.P., was given the right of a 10 minute rebuttal at the end of the meeting.

Invited to speak first by Mayor Léopold Carrière, who presided at the meeting, Mr. Valois reported his intention to run and stated that he would leave it up to the citizens of the County to judge the merit of services rendered to the County.

He enumerated his achievements as being the construction of the Lachute and St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac Post Offices, a grant of more than $40,000 for a Catholic school at Oka to benefit Indian children, a general grant to the School Boards of Morin Heights and St. Adolphe de Howard, whose schools are attended by airmen's children of Lac St. Denis; the obtainment of more than $25,000 for the construction of a wharf at Sixteen Island Lake; and delivery service which will be in operation this summer for Lachute, Ayersville, St. Eustache, and St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac. Mr. Valois also named the important committees on which he had been invited to sit, and declared that he had tried to serve the best interests of the population of the County of Argenteuil and Two Mountains.

Antoine Paré, Liberal candidate who emphatically denied that he was running as an Independent Liberal, expressed gratitude that he could be heard in the presence of the other candidates, which proves, he stated, that the interest of the electors has been restored. "Your presence strengthens us, and strengthens those who believe in democratic liberty."

Mr. Paré reviewed his motives for entering the electoral race this year; he expressed the opinion that he deplored the principle of a secret and closed Liberal Nomination meeting. He praised Mrs. McGibbon and J. O. Latour for their courage, then expressed his admiration for the Right Honorable Louis St. Laurent, the Leader of the Liberal Party.

"I believe, he continued, that the only time the name of the Progressive Conservative leader, John Diefenbaker, has been raised was at the St. Hermas convention where Mr. Latour was nominated. I foresee that the French Canadians will be apathetic towards Mr. Diefenbaker because candidates do not seem to possess the courage to mention his name."

Mr. Paré outlined his program which, he stated, consists of working for the electors. He ended his talk in declaring that he had often travelled through the County, and that if elected he will serve the citizens' best interests.

Mrs. Ethel McGibbon, the only candidate who was not supported by other speakers, began by declaring that it was not necessary to enumerate her titles and qualities because she was well enough known in the County as a school teacher and a farmer, then as a housewife.

"You ask perhaps", she continued, "why I am a candidate? Canada is a great and beautiful country, it is the third largest trading nation in the world, the government is strong with such men as Lester Pearson, Paul Martin, and Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. It is a magnificent country, but one cannot live for nothing, and it is our duty to defend our democratic rights. I feel Mr. Valois was named official candidate in an anti-democratic manner, which violates one of our most sacred rights."

"A government is similar to a great household. Who is more qualified than a woman to see how a house should best be run?"

The candidate spoke also of the farmers "who are forgotten in our county," she said. She asked that the audience take into consideration that she has participated in various organizations throughout the county for many years, then declared that election time is a time of promises that are the taxes of tomorrow. Addressing the feminine part of the audience in particular she recalled that it was the Liberal Government which gave women the franchise; and in closing declared that she is only one in the campaign paying her own election expenses.

In opening, Notary Latour expressed admiration for Mrs. McGibbon's courage, then stated that he had assisted all afternoon at a "washing". He also said that Lionel Bertrand, M.P. in Terrebonne, was a victim of the Liberal Party, that he was not rewarded for 30 years of devotion, struggle and work for the cause of the Liberal Party.

"As all Canadians," he said, "I admire Mr. St. Laurent, but I do not approve of his politics. He considers it a shame and an insult that the Hon. Lionel Chevrier be asked to return to the cabinet when ministers such as Pearson, Pickersgill, Marler and other have served us for over 20 years. He declared that the Liberals of the County are divided amongst themselves and boast of their affiliations with St. Laurent, while their opponent's supporters claim the opposite.

Mr. Latour stated that he deplores the fact that Mr. Valois had retained the Auditorium on two

L.H.S. Fashion Show, Arts Display Draws Large Appreciative Attendance

The annual Lachute High School fashion show, Industrial Arts display and Home Economics display was presented on Friday afternoon and evening of last week in the High School. The fashion show, "Fashions from Dawn to Dusk," under the direction of Mrs. Margaret I. Clarke, Home Economics teacher, was presented at 2.30 and 7 p.m. by the girls of the High School, modelling the clothes they had made in their Home Economics Classes.

The sequence of the presentation followed the theme from dawn to dusk — as the girls first modelled their dusters, these being made of cotton seersucker, corduroy and nylon.

For before school tasks the Grade VI girls modelled their aprons in school colors, blue and white. In order to make these aprons the girls must learn the use of the sewing machine and simple hand work. These aprons are easily identified by each girl embroidering her initials on the corner in contrasting colors.

For sportswear the girls modelled shorts and a terry cloth beach coat. Cool summer dresses were then shown in a variety of colors, prints and materials. Many of these dresses were trimmed with contrasting collars, cuffs, belts, bows or ribbons.

At the close of the fashion show the parents and friends were invited to visit the Home Economics Display of sewing, posters, books and pamphlets in the Home Economics Room and the Industrial Arts Display in the Industrial Arts Department, under direction of Mr. Charles Lunn, Industrial Arts instructor, where there were various displays of upholstered chairs, book cases, gun racks, coffee tables, end tables, foot stools, lamps, nut and fruit bowls, book ends, window sticks, knife holders, leather craft and plaques.

The larger projects were made by Grade X and XI and the smaller projects were made by Grade VI to IX inclusive.

Argenteuil Branch 70, Canadian Legion Honor R. A. Giles With Meritorious Service Medal

A capacity crowd of Argenteuil Branch 70, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. members, friends and the general public gathered Saturday evening in the Lachute Legion Hall to honor Comrade Robert A. "Bob" Giles, M.M., and to present him with the Canadian Legion's highest award, the Meritorious Service Medal and a suitable citation, Mrs. Giles was the recipient of a lovely bouquet of roses.

Comrade Bernard Jenkins, the Awards Committee Chairman, was introduced by president Bob St. Laurent, and went into considerable detail on the granting of the award; this, he pointed out, had to be approved by both the Provincial and Dominion Commands, following the request from the branch concerned. He added that this was the first such award in this district.

Comrade Jenkins read the citation, which, among other interests, included Mr. Giles' activities in World War I; Legion Branch 70, of which he is a charter member; and his spear-heading the annual poppy drive for so many years; his association with Giles Publishing House Ltd., and both the Provincial and National divisions of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association and numerous local organizations.

Comrade Jenkins then turned the meeting over to Comrade Dave Campbell, also a veteran of World War I, and a lifelong friend of the honored guest.

Comrade Campbell stated that Lachute was a town in which few things could be kept secret. "Of all the years I have known Bob, and that is long previous to our both serving in World War I, it was not until a few moments ago that I knew he had been decorated with the Military Medal and I am sure that the same thing goes for the majority of the gathering here this evening."

Another secret that had been well kept, he said, was this testimonial party at which they were all present. In reading the citation and pinning on the medal, he stated, "The M.M. is not something that is handed out with the rations, and neither is this, the Meritorious Service Medal. It gives me great pleasure to present it to you, and I am sure no one in the Branch is a more worthy recipient."

Stating he was "absolutely floored," the honored guest expressed the opinion he thought it was somewhat unfair in not giving him a chance to think, and expressed his deep gratitude and thanks. "I knew nothing of this gathering although I was suspicious when I arrived to find so many of my family and staff in attendance. Some time ago, I was casually questioned on my war and personal experiences and was left with the opinion that the Branch was getting some information on some of the older veterans that could be 'whipped into an obituary' for the Legionnaire in the event of my sudden passing."

In voicing his thanks, he added that he would like to publicly express his appreciation to Comrade Ted Hammond, a member of Branch 70 and in attendance at the testimonial gathering, with whom he served on a "sacrifice post" and who "brought me back in after I was wounded."

"It has been a wonderful experience and of all the associations I have joined and been mentioned here this evening, there is none more dear to my heart than the Legion. I feel it is the utmost example of Christianity for a man to volunteer and possibly give his life for his fellow men; and in my books, a vet is Number 1."

Branch President Bob St. Laurent ably expressed his feelings stating "It is the most magnificent thing that could ever happen to a branch and I feel that no one is more deserving of it." He then presented Mrs. Giles with a beautiful bouquet of red and white roses.

Seated at the head table were Comrade Dave Campbell, Comrade Bernard Jenkins, the honored guest, President Comrade Bob St. Laurent, Mrs. Giles, and J. S. Giles, the honored guest's father; other members of the immediate Giles family and staff were seated at an adjacent table.

The ceremonies were delayed for some time due to the unexpected large turnout.

Comrade Dave Campbell, on behalf of Argenteuil Branch 70, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., last Saturday evening presented Robert A. "Bob" Giles, M. M. with the Meritorious Service Medal and citation at a testimonial held in his honor at the Lachute Legion Hall. Second Annual Rotary Trout Derby Gets Underway at 6 a.m. Saturday Funds In Aid of Local Rotary Park

A 30,000-acre woodland park containing five trout lakes and miles of trout streams will be open to all fishing enthusiasts who wish to participate in the Rotary Trout Derby sponsored by the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club this Saturday, June 1; the area is situated north of Lake Louisa, a short 12 miles from Lachute. The lakes, filled with Red and Grey beauties, will be open to fisherman from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. and anglers will be registered and aided in every possible way by the Rotary Club members.

No water craft will be provided, so fishing chances will be better if individuals arrive with portable boats or canoes. Also, those who wish to use worms can buy them from the Boy Scouts; fly fishing and spinning are also permissable, but minnows are banned.

Lakes to be fished are Sixth Range, Pine, Round, Rainbow and McDougal, all which have an elevation of about 1,200 feet; No Man's Lake has been declared "out-of-bounds" again this year, due to a stand of young Spruce trees in the immediate vicinity.

Headquarters will be at the intersection of the Sixth Range and Rainbow Lake roads; participation in the event requires a fee of only $2; and all this has been made possible through A. D. McGibbon & Sons Ltd., of Lachute, and the local Rotary Club. All proceeds go towards the Rotary Club's project of the construction of a swimming and playground area near Brownsburg.

An added attraction is the $5 prize given to fishermen who are fortunate enough to catch the Tagged Trout placed in the lakes by Leonard Bedard through the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protection Association.

An important fact to remember is that there will be positively "no smoking" allowed on or off the lakes, nor will the building of camp fires be permitted. The danger of forest fires necessitates this precaution.

Although it was rumored that coffee and sandwiches would be sold, this possibility has been ruled out.

This Rotary Trout Derby has been widely publicized through various daily papers, radio stations and Rotary Club bulletins, and a large attendance is anticipated.

An encouraging note for anglers is the fact that prospects are considered to be better this year, as the trout have really started hitting, contrary to the conditions last year.

Loaded Truck Hits School Bus Causing Minor Damage

A truck, driven by Joseph Pilon of L'Assomption County, hit a school bus stopped to take on children in front of the Pring Garage on the St. Jerome Highway, early Wednesday of last week. The bus was driven by Fred Pring, a district bus driver for the Lachute Protestant School Board.

Damage was not too extensive and no injuries were sustained by the young passengers.

Similar accidents have occurred in the past year including one which happened on January 23 when a truck loaded with pulpwood struck the St. Andrews school bus driven by Dan Bryson.

At this time Det. Ralph Allen assurred the Protestant School Board that motorists had been warned about punishment resulting from infractions of Section 36A of the Quebec Motor Vehicles Act, which reads as follows:

"When a motor vehicle approaches an autobus which is stationary for the purpose of taking on or discharging one or more passengers, the operator of such vehicle shall not drive beyond, or meet such autobus, nor shall the operator of such autobus start same until all passengers are taken aboard or, as the case may be, those who have alighted have reached the side of the road."

Dollard des Ormeaux's Feat Celebrated at Carillon Despite Rainy Weather

In spite of the weather conditions, which naturally dampened the ceremony's procedure and the enthusiasm of visitors, the feat of Dollard des Ormeaux and his companions in 1660 was celebrated at Carillon last Sunday.

The day's ceremonies began with a mass in the open air before Dollard's monument, but had to be interrupted and continued in the Parish Church because of the rain. Father Joseph St. Martin, c.s.c., curé of the parish, officiated, while an address was given by Mgr. H. D. Brosseau, P.D., V.F., M.A., of Montebello, ex-professor of history at the University of Ottawa.

He established a parallel between the spirit of the mass of the day and Dollard's celebration consecrated to the memory of the 16 men who gave their lives for the defence of their country, New France. He asked the group to listen to the word of God and those of the Civil authorities, but preferred God's word in time of conflict and controversy.

A delegation of Montreal Scouts assisted at the Mass and the chant was executed by the Male Choir of Ayersville under the direction of Germain Poulin.

During the afternoon, between thunderstorms, several men from Montreal and surrounding districts spoke and saluted Dollard and his group's bravery. Claude St. Onge, teacher at St. Andrews School, presided at the memorial service.

Scouts Enjoy Hike Hold Hobby Show This Evening

Ten Patrol Leaders and Patrol Seconds of the 1st Lachute Troop attended the first hike of the summer season on Saturday of last week, when several tests were passed, and instruction was given in others. Everyone enjoyed the affair, and all returned tired but happy and satisfied that the outdoor life, including cooking dinner over an open fire, is an integral and adventurous part of Scouting. Several more hikes are anticipated for the Troop this season.

The Troop and Pack were treated to a trip to Montreal to attend the Shriner's Circus on May 27. The Lachute Group Committee sponsored the outing, and in this way, their method of complimenting the boys on their year's progress.

The local Troop will hold their first Hobby Show at the Legion Hall this evening, on Thursday, May 30. Scouts will show and explain their hobbies to all visitors, and it is hoped that many of the parents, and all others interested will visit the show. Tickets are being sold at a nominal fee, and all proceeds will go towards the purchase of a much-needed X-Ray Machine for the Montreal Children's Hospital.

The show will be divided into two sections for judging purposes — Section 1 for boys between 12 and 13 years of age, and Section 2 for boys 14 and up. First, second and third prizes will be awarded on the basis of originality, neatness of presentation, and it is hoped that the affair will become an annual event.

Every year children die from suffocation because they love to play in these dangerous cabinets. Here's what you should do if you see a discarded box in your neighborhood or in the junk yard:

consecutive nights, this following Friday and Saturday, when he had known that he had planned to hold a meeting in this same hall on the Saturday night. He spoke also of Diefenbaker, the party leader, "who," he said, "in spite of what might have been spoken and written, receives the support of conservative organizers in Quebec." Mr. Latour said that in Canada it is not possible to possess a flag as in all small countries (such as Ghana) which three days after her declaration of independence obtained her country's standard. He terminated his speech in declaring that the Liberal victory was not assured and that the party was beginning to despair.

At the beginning of his speech, Mr. Latour received loud ovation while following his talk his supporters sang "Il a gagné ses epaulettes." (He has won his Honors).

Linton Armstrong, a candidate in the 1953 election who spoke on behalf of Mr. Latour, read various articles from the Liberal Press, notably the Vancouver Sun, the Winnipeg Free Press, and the Montreal Star. He recalled the incident of the pipe-line debate occurring exactly one year ago, and quoted accusations thrown at C. D. Howe. Mr. Armstrong asked citizens to vote Conservative, the party which created Confederation.

Jean Dussault, journalist of Ste. Therese, spoke eloquently in favor of Diefenbaker, declaring that the Conservative leader had defended the French Canadians and Catholic Schools in the West, that he is an ardent defender of the minority rights of the French in this country, and that he had learned French in the space of two months. He ended on the hopeful note of anticipating a victory for the Conservative Party on June 10.

Lionel Bertrand and Marcel Gaboury, a Montreal lawyer, spoke on behalf of Mr. Valois. Mr. Bertrand, former M.P. in the adjacent constituency of Terrebonne who is no longer seeking re-election after 17 successive years in Parliament, spoke of his friendship and esteem for Mr. Valois whom he has seen at work in the House.

He declared also that the candidature of Mr. Valois has been sanctioned by the Central Liberal Organization and by the Right Honorable Louis St. Laurent. Mr. Bertrand, during his speech, was interrupted many times but finally confounded the hecklers.

Mr. Gaboury asked for the re-election of Mr. Valois and reviewed the great works accomplished by the Liberal Party.

Mr. Savage, of Montreal, spoke in support of Mr. Paré, who outlined the candidate's program which he finds simple but significent; then Rodrigue Durocher, a native of St. Andrews, described the dynamity of Antoine Paré.

He also confronted Mr. Dussault concerning the love of Diefenbaker and the French Canadians, "who," he said, "would not kiss a child in his present electoral campaign. If he can't reach the level of a child, how can he look after us?"

Mrs. McGibbon only used her right to reply once.

The last five minutes of the meeting were turned over to Mr. Valois, who spoke of the planned visit of the Honorable Lionel Chevrier.

"After having heard all the praise accorded to Mr. Paré, said he, I would be ready to accept him as a candidate if only I knew him. We have never seen him in the County, not even last year when we were in the midst of a provincial campaign. He desire to step into the House of Commons prematurely is wrong when he is only a newcomer in the County. As for me in 1949 I did not steal the chance from anybody when the Liberal Party asked me to run."

Mr. Valois reproached Mr. Paré on not joining with them at the meeting, so that they could defend the Liberal doctrine.

Mayor Léopold Carrière stated that he was ready to preside over any meeting when asked.

Lachute Branch, Bank of Montreal Opens 'Around-the-Clock' Depositary

First customer to use the local Bank of Montreal's dual-type "Around the Clock" depositary was Cliff Cunningham, Main Street merchant. The recently installed innovation at the local branch was put into use early this week. — Photo by Syd Drew the local branch of the Bank of Montreal is complete and is now in operation it was announced this week by D. M. Hay, local B of M manager.

Designed to provide an added convenience to customers who wish to make personal or business deposits at any time, this dual-type system is now being placed in many of the B of M's important offices across the nation.

Operation of the depository is simple. Current or savings account customers, who wish to make use of this service, are supplied with special envelopes by the bank, and, placing the amount to be deposited in the envelope with two copies of the deposit slip, they insert the envelope into a slot-like opening in the face of the depository unit. The envelope slips down to a safekeeping unit inside the bank where it is picked up by bank officials the following day. They carefully make the entry into the relative account and mail the duplicate copy of the Merchants and other late-hour businessmen using this service are supplied with a specially-designed canvas wallet, equipped with lock and key, which may be easily inserted in the larger chute of the depository leading to the safekeeping unit inside the bank. When the bank is open to customers, they may pick up the wallet and make the necessary deposit, or, if they wish, they may request the officials of the branch to open the wallet and make the deposit for them in the relative account.

The depository system has proven a boon to owners of late-hour establishments since there is no longer the necessity of holding large amounts of cash receipts on hand over-night or over long week-ends.

It DOES matter which Oil Burner you buy!

If you're in the market for an oil burner, there are dozens for you to choose from. They all look very much alike. They all burn oil. Some are pretty efficient, others less so. But, unless you're an engineer, there's no way for you to decide which burner is best for your needs, except by insisting on one made by a reputable, long-established manufacturer. Like Smart's, for example. We recommend Smart's series "A" oil burners because when we sell one we know that the customer is going to be satisfied with the deal, for a long time. If that seems to you to be a good reason for buying a Smart's oil burner, let us show you the complete range, and tell you all about them.

The Closure Question

CLOSURE is being defended by Liberals as an essential parliamentary device introduced first in Canada by R. L. Borden, now admitted by the Liberals to have been a great statesman.

Mr. Diefenbaker, on the other hand, quotes the great Liberal leader Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. King as having always set their faces against such devices.

Repeal of closure, as promised by the Opposition leader, would be a good thing. Closure, as practised by Mr. Howe in 1956, prevented the expression of all minority opinion on the measure before the House and prevented all investigation. A minority, even a minority of one, has rights, but Mr. St. Laurent is correct in asserting that the will of the minority should not ultimately prevail.

It has not been noted that Mr. Diefenbaker has brought to public attention as yet that there is another parliamentary device which, while it does not choke off debate completely, does eventually prevent the Opposition from defeating something that a government with a workable majority insists upon.

This device is called "the previous question." In 1951 the mapority in the House of Commons passed a resolution that "the question be now put." This meant that no further amendments or sub-amendments could be introduced. The result was that when the minority speakers had all spoken the question had to be voted on.

Justice Minister Garson by this means got through Parliament, in that famous Christmas session, the law that says that manufacturers cannot set prices for their goods at the retail level. The Prime Minister at that time defended the measure as something that might be helpful. He was only mildly optimistic and his doubts have been confirmed by later events. Prices have not been reduced as a result of this law.

"Get-Out-The-Vote!"

THE CANADIAN CHAMBER of Commerce announced today that it has launched a national, non-partisan "Get-Out-The-Vote" Campaign. To make the program fully effective right across the country, Canada's national business organization is enlisting the aid of its some 760 member Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce and some 2300 member companies.

These groups, representing a cross-section of the country's business and community life, are asked to co-operate in an all out effort to encourage people to go to the polls on June 10. They will bring into play such things as literature, lectures, speakers, door to door campaigns, posters. Throughout the Campaign, the Canadian Chamber will co-operate fully with the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada which is also conducting a national "Get-Out-The-Vote" Campaign. The Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada has a membership of 25,000 young businessmen and 280 local units across Canada.

"Democracy depends upon the exercise of the free and secret ballot," stated President Raymond Dupuis of The Canadian Chamber of Commerce. "Citizens should keep informed — only an informed electorate can put to effective use the full value and worth of the franchise — they should make sure their names are on the voters' lists, and most important of all on election day, June 10th they should vote.

"The forces opposing our democratic way of life are assisted by apathy. Poor government and loss of freedom are the end results of indifference. We must therefore be alert and vigilant in the defence of democracy through the recognition and exercise of the responsibilities of citizenship."

The Man Who Can't Vote

THE MAN WHO sees that Canada's election machinery is well oiled, who deals with politicians but has no politics — Nelson Castonguay — can't even vote. He is Canada's chief electoral officer. It is his job to see that an election comes off on schedule — June 10 this year — but he is prohibited by law from casting his vote.

Normally, an election comes about every four years, but almost as soon as it is over the chief electoral officer starts planning for the next one.

It takes about 3½ years, with his small regular staff, to plan operations for voting day, but if caught by surprise by a snap dissolution of parliament he could do it in about two months simply by taking on more office help.

Mr. Castonguay, 43, practically grew into his job, held for many years by his father, the late Jules Castonguay. Nelson succeeded his father in 1949 after a long apprenticeship that started in 1934.

His organization reaches into every corner of the country — except unpopulated parts of the Northwest Territories — and wherever Canada has armed forces abroad. His preparations began in 1953 when he reviewed suggestions from candidates and the public for changes in the technical operations of the Canada Election Act. Parliament's approval of the changes in 1955 was his go-ahead signal to order hundreds of tons of supplies, forms, ballots and the like.

These have been or are being sent out to the returning officers in each of Canada's 263 constituencies, some of whom will be serving for the first time. They have attended special courses to learn the ins and outs of the machinery and are ready to go.

Just now, Mr. Castonguay is putting in long hours, day and night, seven days a week, at his Ottawa office, answering queries from returning officers and ironing out any slight hitches that may crop up here and there across Canada. He says no serious difficulties have developed.

On election night, he will spend his first evening at home in many weeks, watching his television set as the returns start coming in.

Then, shortly after, the whole process will start all over again.

Address Us Intelligently

POLITICIANS now are busy proclaiming from the hustings what they have "given" Canadians by way of prosperity and social security while in office, or what they will "give" the people if elected.

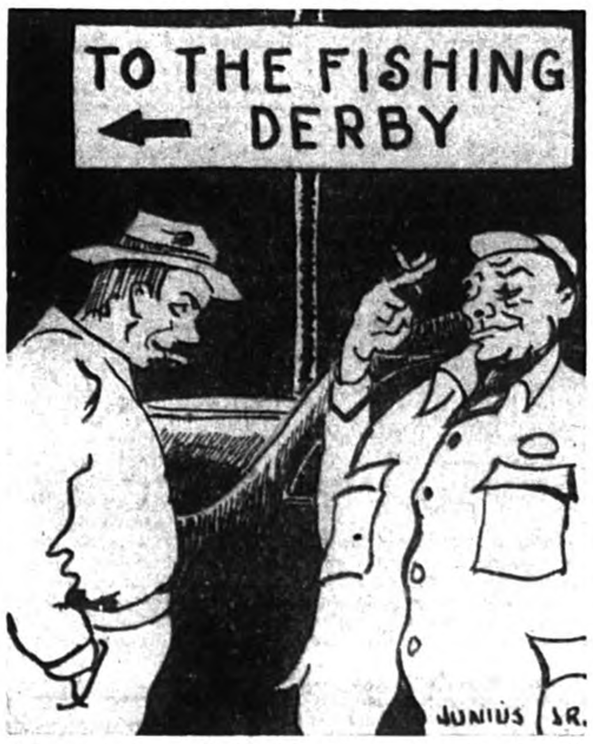

Such talk is hardly flattering to the intelligence of the Canadian people. All the supposed "gifts" of government are the result of a populace hard-working and ingenious enough to produce the wealth from which, in form of taxes, all government bills are paid.

Instead of boasting of their supposed bounty, past, present and future, political candidates should be thanking their lucky stars that Canadians are the kind of people they are.

What great Canadian humorist also was noted as an economist and historian?

Stephen Leacock, author of Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town and numerous other popular works of humor, has been called the greatest humorist of his time. Also noted as a serious writer, he wrote a great deal about the early history of Canada and the British Empire and was a leading authority in the field of political economy. His Elements of Political Science remained a standard text for many years. A prolific author whose works comprise some 60 titled, Leacock died in 1944 at the age of 74. His fame doubtless rests on his humorous works, which have been translated into several languages and still are read with enjoyment.

What town once was named "Hardscrabble"?

Hardscrabble was a nickname given the Town of Cobden, Ontario, when it was first settled, because of the swamp condition of the soil. The astrolable, a surveying instrument also used for navigation which Champlain lost during his famous trek northward along the Ottawa in 1613 was found at the edge of Green Lake, near Cobden, in 1867. This astrolade, on which "Paris, 1603" is engraved, is now in a New York museum.

Who wrote Maria Chapdelaine, the famous novel about French Canada?

The author of this Canadian classic was Louis Hemon, who was born in France and came to Canada in 1911. He had worked as a journalist for French sporting magazines during eight years residence in England. While working on a farm near Peribonka in the Lac St. Jean region of Quebec, he was inspired by the simple faith and humble courage of the local people to write his masterpiece, Maria Chapdelaine. The story first was published in instalments by Le Temps of Paris in 1914. The sucesss of Maria Chapdelaine led to the publication of further novels which, however, did not approach the first in interest. Hemon was killed by a train near Chapleau, Ontario, while making his way to Western Canada. Though his novel has failed to win universal recognition in Quebec as a true delineation of French - Canadian life, it has probably more than any other book — made French Canada known abroad.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

I didn't mean to be a traitor. But it was wrong to be a soldier in two armies at the same time.

These were juvenile armies in my town, a long time ago. Each army was headed by a boy who called himself a "general."

Since both generals were friends of mine, I agreed to enlist in both services when they asked me. Neither, as far as I can recall, exacted a loyalty oath. Neither general asked whether I was in the service of a foreign power.

One army had its headquarters on the hill, and the other on the townsite. The two armies were not massed on each other's borders. There didn't seem to be any possibility of conflict.

So I attended parades of both armies. These were not frequent. In one army I was a corporal. In the other, if I remember rightly, I was a major.

As a corporal, I was often as not the only man on parade, except for the general, who put me through some drill. Forming fours was the hardest part.

I know of only two other soldiers in that army. One was a sergeant and the other was a private, I think. But they lived about 10 miles away, so the army seldom mustered full strength.

The general, who was advanced for his age, sometimes set me to the unmilitary task of pasting cut-out pictures of girls in a scrap-book. I didn't think much of that. But who was I to question high strategy? The general didn't confide in me. He issued orders with crisp decision, and an air of omniscience.

The other army seldom had parades at all. But I was in it. The general sometimes hinted at great tasks and battles ahead. Nothing ever happened — until the day he found out that I was serving under two flags.

Then I was seized and marched off by the general and his brother, who was also a high-ranking officer. We had no privates or NCO's in that army. They shot me a few times in the leg with an elastic band gun, as a hint of what was to come.

But as this parade of dishonor was passing the general's house, the general's mother (sensing that something was wrong) ordered us all inside.

By skilful questioning, she learned from the general that I was about to be court-martialled as a spy, and probably shot. So she sent me home.

Saint Jerome, P.Q.
May 28, 1957

The Lachute Watchman

Your commemoration, in the last issue of The Lachute Watchman, of the courageous efforts of my school teacher, Katie Campbell, of Dalesville, who in that tragic fire in the Hochelaga school fifty years ago saved the lives of all her class including my own, is welcome and much appreciated.

That day, the principal, Sarah Maxwell and seventeen children met an untimely end for lack of fire precautions. The Hochelaga school was like all other large schools of that period, a two-storey firetrap, no fire escapes nor proper training in evacuation of children in case of fire.

The disaster that struck my father's parish shook the nation and of the repercusions, legislation ensued to enforce the proper installation of fire escapes and regular drilling in what to do by occupants of schools and other public buildings in case of fire.

In the face of danger, Miss Campbell was cool, her native resourcefulness was her standby and when others opened doors letting the smoke and fire from the corridors and staircase in, she kept them out by keeping hers closed.

She moved us to the windows that faced onto a four-storey ice storage shed across the street. There she was successful in enlisting the aid of its employees who brought long ladders and up their rungs formed a human carrier chain. Down this they handed us from one to the other, snatching us from the jaws of certain death in our second storey class room, and transporting us into the embrace of a group of neighbors, friends and relatives that were gathering below.

Gratitude was expressed at the time to Miss Campbell in various forms for her bravery but those of us who owe our lives to her courage, know our debt to her can never be repaid.

Yours faithfully,
— Victor Henry Jekyll

MORTGAGE LIFTERS

MICRO-MIXED PURINA CHOWS

Pigs used to be known as mortgage lifters long ago, but we have gotten so tied to the cows tails that we have forgotten them.

Why not keep a bunch of mortgage lifters. Even if you don't have a mortgage they will make a nice payment on your car or help buy the better half a new mink coat for Christmas.

Hog prices are still high and the prospects are that they will remain well up for a good while yet. The pig population is down and with Immigration and the natural increase in population, the demand will likely remain high for some months to come.

Of course everything has its ups and downs and you cannot beat the market. By keeping steady you hit it poor some years and good in other years, but on the whole there is profit in pigs if you handle them right.

A 150 lb. Grade A hog will bring about	$48.00
100 lbs. Pig Startena and 450 lbs. Pig Growena costs	21.00
That leaves you with a profit and a young pig to pay for	27.00
If you raise your own pig, you should raise it to weaning for	5.00
So you have in addition to some valuable fertilizer, a net profit of	$22.00

We don't sell pigs but we do sell the feed that will make you the most money per pig. That is what should count, not the price per bag.

Bryson-Sheriff Wedding Held Saturday In St. Andrews East United Church

Mr. and Mrs. Murray M. Bryson, shown signing the register following their Saturday wedding in the St. Andrews East United Church. The bride is the former Barbara Anne Sheriff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sheriff and the groom is the son of George Bryson and the late Mrs. Bryson, all of St. Andrews East. Photo by Syd Dow

The United Church, St. Andrews East was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, when Barbara Ann Sheriff, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sheriff, and Murray McCormick Bryson, youngest son of Geo. Bryson and the late Mrs. Bryson, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. J. R. Watson.

The church was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, and Miss Alice Davidson, of Cushing, played the wedding music.

The groom was supported by Jean-Pierre Paquette, of St. Andrews East.

Rev. John R. Hewworth Honored in Chicago

Tribute was accorded recently to the Rev. John R. Heyworth, who was presented with a plaque on Lincoln's Birthday, occasion of the 17th annual Brotherhood dinner of Temple Sholom, North Lake Shore, Chicago.

The Rev. Mr. Heyworth is favorably known in these parts having made his summer home at St. Andrews for many years, and on various occasions having preached in local pulpits.

The Rev. Heyworth is president of the Lake View Council on Religious Action, an organization which was founded in 1940 by this gentleman and a group of clerical colleagues. Each year, a huge Brotherhood dinner has been sponsored by the council.

"To the Rev. John Rushton Heyworth; creator and keeper of the great power and noble purpose of the Lake View Council on Religious Action; faithful follower of man, beloved, revered and treasured as a divine blessing for our entire community.

"Presented with our high esteem and deep edification on the occasion of the 17th annual good will meeting of the Lake View Council on Religious Action."

The mayor, civic councillors, clergy and notable from many social organizations were among the 600 persons who attended this function.

Hunter-Clark Wedding Held Recently In Margaret Rodger Memorial Church

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hunter, who were married recently in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute. The bride is the former Ruth L. Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Clark, of Lachute, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hunter, of Montreal. Photo E. A. Dennis

The marriage of Ruth L. Clark to William D. Hunter, of Montreal, took place recently at the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Jas. Armour officiating. Mrs. Wm. Cottingham was organist and Mrs. Leonard Armstrong, vocalist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Kenneth Clark, wore a basque bodice-style floor length gown of white chantilly lace over satin. The fitted bodice trimmed with seguins formed a high delicate neckline of seed pearl accents and drifted into a billowing skirt composed of tiers of chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin. To the headdress of shimmering irridescent Mother-of-Pearl sequins and rhinestones was attached a fingertip veil of nylon tulle. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses and white hyacinths.

Miss Lois Clark was maid of honor for her sister and Miss Audrey Hunter, Miss Gloria Cruise, and Miss Patti Young were bridesmaids. All four were dressed in boatneck dresses with flying panels of Romance blue organza over taffeta with matching head-dresses and shoes. They carried large bouquets of pale pink carnations.

Robert Hunter acted as best man for his brother while the ushers were Ronald Clark, brother of the bride, Jas. FitzGerald, Roy Folland. All were dressed similar to the groom in morning suits of striped pants, charcoal jackets and grey ties, while the fathers of the bride and groom wore grey dress suits.

For travelling through the New England States and Cape Cod, the bride wore a light grey cashmere ensemble with a white pill box hat, whirred elbow gloves and patent shoes and bag. The corsage was an orchid.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE
JUNE 10
FEDERAL ELECTION

Did you know that the average cost per candidate has been estimated at approximately $30,000 to run the 150 polls for our 29,700-odd voters in this constituency. This included the engaging of help, speakers, rentals of halls, entertainment, taxis and advertising. You will note that in the press, Mr. Valois states that his advertising is paid by the Official Liberal Organization of Argenteuil and Two-Mountains and Mr. Paré states that his advertising is paid by his Liberal Committee of Argenteuil and Two-Mountains.

ASK YOURSELVES, VOTERS — Where do these organizations get this money? My expenses which will be under $500, will be paid out of my own pocket.

I would ask all my supporters to influence their fellow voters, and I promise, if elected, to do all in my power for my constituency and my country.

Maple Leafs Hockey Squad Undergoes New Skakeup;

By Ron Andrews,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Toronto Maple Leaf organization has pulled out all stops in an effort to regain the championship form it once held in the National Hockey League.

Following several seasons of changes in lineup personnel, coaches and slogans, all of which failed to gain a winning club, the team directors this spring decided to revamp the front office.

President Conn Smythe said just before the end of the season that most of the blame for the Leafs' failure to win a title was his. Later he announced he was leaving the hockey scene and turned the club over to his son, Stafford, and a committee of seven businessmen.

Before retiring as president of the club Smythe appointed, last year's rookie coach, Howie Meeker, as general manager, replacing Hap Day who was "unavailable" to the club for the next season.

Reay New Coach

To prove that the shakeup was completed thoroughly, Smythe stepped outside the Toronto organization for a new coach. Billy Reay, a centre for eight seasons with Montreal Canadiens, was appointed to the job.

Many observers around the hockey circuit have been saying for several years that what the Leaf team needed was a cleanup in the front office. And many are still skeptical about the retirement. They point out that three seasons ago Mr. Smythe retired as general manager but his word was always final. They believe that the situation might exist again.

"Anyone wishing to know about the operation of the Toronto Maple Leafs will have to speak to my son from now on. He and his seven associates are in charge."

Even before he was settled in his new post Meeker had a problem, in the person of Gerry James, who toiled for two seasons at right wing. James decided after last season to re-enter football.

He signed a contract with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, where he had played before joining the Toronto hockey team.

Strafford Smythe and Meeker however, didn't give up on James whom they called a $30,000 investment. They put James on the suspended list and still have hopes of winning him back to hockey following the football season.

Plants Tagged Trout in Lakes For Rotary Fishing Derby Saturday

Among the fish caught in the Rotary Fishing Derby which gets underway at 6 a.m. Saturday are liable to be any number of 25 tagged Red Trout recently planted in the McGibbon lakes. The fish were obtained through Leonard Bedard, local Molson's agent and the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association, of which Mr. Bedard is a director. The "early catch" held by Mr. Bedard is a tagged trout awaiting its release in the water. Five such trout will be released in each of the lakes open to the public this Saturday, Derby Day, and cash prizes will be awarded the lucky anglers.

Colford Lodge Defeats Montreal Ball Squad

Last Sunday Colford Lodge won their second game of the season by defeating Mair's Clutch and Brake Co. 7-0.

Jean-Guy Larocque struck out sixteen and also helped win his own game with two home runs and a double. Mel Stewart also had a perfect day at the plate with a home run, a double and a single.

Lachute Artillery Battery Holds Week-end Exercises

Lachute Battery, No. 131, 37th Canadian Field Regiment, R.C.A., spent Sunday on manoeuvres around Lake Sir John, with the co-operation of Ted Hammond, who gave the battery use of his land near the lake.

It was primarily an artillery signals exercise, but also included two guns and tractors and dinner supplied in the field by the quartermaster. Included with the local battery were officers and personnel of 37th Field Regiment and also from the Signal Corps, Montreal.

The exercise was promoted to give instruction on field communications and procedure. This includes the use of field telephone sets and wireless. This is the start of signals instruction within the battery and any young men who are interested in this branch of artillery, or in driving gun plotting or actual firing of the guns, are urged to contact the local battery at their office in the Lachute Town Hall or telephone Lachute 1860, Thursday evenings, between 8 and 10 p.m.

Dick Irvin Passes

Irvin was one of the greatest coaches ever to pilot a team in the NHL. His sharp tongue and unpredictable decisions often kept the hockey pot bubbling and he was always good copy for sportswriters.

Irvin was a man who didn't know how to lose. His burning desire to win caught on with all the players he coached and perhaps that is why, in 26 years of coaching, his teams failed to make the playoffs only four times.

Everyone in the hockey business, from club owners to the fans, will miss Irvin. He was a credit to hockey in every respect.

Local Scouts, Cubs Attend Shriners Circus; On Hikes

Patrol Leader Roy McCrea was awarded his Second Class Badge at last week's meeting of the 1st Lachute Troop. Roy has won the first Second Class Badge that has been gained in quite some time. The members and Scouters of the Troop wish to congratulate Roy on his achievement.

The last two Saturdays have seen ten Patrol Leaders and Seconds, together with their Scouters, out on hikes in the country. Several outdoor tests have been passed, and the hikes enjoyed very much. Cooking dinner over an open fire (after you get it lighted) adds to the adventure of outdoor Scouting which the Scouters hope all the members of the Troop will be able to enjoy very soon.

Scout Wayne Langille was invested as a member of the 1st Lachute Troop at last week's meeting, in an impressive investiture ceremony. The Troop and Scouters wish to congratulate Wayne and welcome him whole-heartedly into the world-wide brotherhood of Scouting.

Last Monday, over 80 Cubs and Scouts, Scouters and guests were taken to Montreal to attend a performance of the Shriner's Circus. Everyone enjoyed the trip, and returned thrilled with the skill and daring of the performers and animal acts. All members wish to thank the First Lachute Group Committee and all local members of the Lachute District Shrine Club and Don Heggie in particular, for organizing the trip.

Thanks also to Jas. P. MacKimmie and Sons for refreshments, to the St. Andrews Protestant School Board, the Lachute Protestant Board of School Commissioners, to Dave Campbell, Past Potentate of Karnac Temple, who arranged entrance to the Forum and parking in Montreal, and to everyone who helped make the venture a success.

ARTS, BOOKS, SHOWS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Lachute H.S. Spring Concert Tomorrow Promises Many Musical Highlights Under Nadia Neznick, Music Instructor

Miss Nadia Neznick, Lachute High School music teacher, at the piano, who will tomorrow evening direct the L.H.S. Spring Concert to be held in the High School Auditorium.

The Lachute High School's Spring Concert, being held in the School Auditorium tomorrow night at 8 p.m., promises many musical highlights under the direction of music teacher, Miss Nadia Neznick.

A rhythm band and choir comprising of students from Grades I and II will play "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers"; even the pianist and conductor will be within this age group.

The Junior Choir will accompany Grade I ballet girls as they dance to Tchaikowsky's "Walse of the Flowers". This choir also will sing such beautiful musical compositions as Shubert's "Ave Maria," Brahms' "Wiegenlied Lullaby", and the "Lord's Prayer."

Pianists from Grades I and II will play selections, and Miss Carol Martin and Miss Grace Donaldson, who have studied pianoforte for only eight months, will play "Falling Waters" and "Fairy Wedding Walse", respectively.

The audience will be treated to music by the School Quartet, whose members only began their study in October; the group was formed at Christmas.

Miss Nadia Neznick, whose past musical career has included work on radio, the concert stage, and orchestra, comes from a musical family. Her brother Stephen, a violinist, studied under a scholarship at the Conservatoire de Quebec — his fianacé is also a violinist who will graduate from the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia; her mother was a famous concert singer while her grandparents were also musicians.

As a member of a String Ensemble in which she played the mandolin, Miss Neznick made her musical debut. She went on to piano, singing, violin, the concert stage, and now devotes her time to teaching. This includes the preparation of students for the McGill Music examinations.

Girl Guides Eligable For "All Expense Paid" Stay at Summer Camp

Dominion Stores Limited will send 50 Girl Guides, all-expenses paid, to the Girl Guide World Centenary Camp from August 8 to 19. This Centenary Camp, situated on Doe Lake, just north of Huntsville, Ont., will be one of the most important events in Guide activity in this generation. It will be attended by Guides from every corner of the globe, including 500 from all across Canada.

These 50 Guides will be chosen on a regional basis in co-operation with the Girl Guides Association, through an essay contest "What it means to be a Girl Guide". Entry forms for the contest are being distributed by the Guides' organization.

The Centenary Camp, held as part of the celebrations for the centenary of the birth of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Scout and Guide movement, will be located at one of the most beautiful spots in Ontario, Doe Lake just north of Huntsville. Guide leaders have been laying plans for the Camp for months and they are confident that it will be a milestone in Guide history. It is anticipated that some 1500 girls will attend with 500 from Canada, 500 from the U.S. and another 500 from various parts of the world.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

A few week-ends spent vacation-scouting now will help you find a new site, avoid false starts and insure more pleasure for your big vacation this summer. Here's how the scouting can be done.

First, decide what kind of vacation you'd like to try — beach, golfing, camping, fishing, mountain-climbing, resort-loafing, etc.

If everyone in the family agrees on a general goal, plan a week-end trip and scout a promising area for the site you want. If there's no general agreement, plan two or three week-end tours and check several places.

Each scouting trip is a little vacation in itself — but with its special, fact-finding purpose. Be sure the trip yields the information you want. Try local restaurants. Talk to people. Find out all you can about each spot you consider. When you've gathered facts — and impressions — make your big decision.

Part of your choice will be determined by the accommodations you find. It's a good idea to make reservations as soon as you pick a site.

A vacation-scouting week-end is a little investment in time — and pleasure — that will ear big dividends in an enjoyable and refreshingly different vacation later on.

The Women's auxiliary of the Ottawa YMCA has held a windup luncheon — and if emotions can be applied to groups, this was a meeting with a lump in its throat.

The handful of the Ottawa women weren't just winding up a season. they were disbanding 72 years of auxiliary service, because there was too much work for the steadily-diminishing membership to handle effectively.

Mrs. W. M. Bailey, a member for more than 40 years, recalled that from its beginning the W.A. realized the best way to reach the YMCA boys was through their stomachs. The W.A. has a long history of serving suppers and organizing fund-raising events.

The farewell meeting, however, may have been premature. There's action under way to study ways and means to continue the auxiliary. But hopes for its continuation don't seem high.

The passing of a W.A. may seem strange in what political scientists have termed a nation of joiners. Trouble is, one person can't join everything.

And with thousands of church, business, service and other interest groups already formed and more springing up every day, it seems inevitable that somewhere a membership list must be short.

But the harsh facts are little consolation to the auxiliary's faithful few, who sadly closed their books for the time being, anyway.

Unrehearsed Part

There's no end to life's little dramas. For instance, a robin is playing a perturbing role in all the hustle and bustle of preparation for this year's Stratford Shakespearean Festival opening at the Ontario city on July 1.

The robin, with her family, nested in the unfinished roof of the circular theatre. Workmen put up a plywood umbrella to protect the tenants from welding sparks and falling wood.

So far, so good. But each day the roof inches closer to completion. And still Mrs. Robin hasn't given her brood first flying lessons.

Someone has suggested that if the family doesn't toke to the air before the roof closes in, the drama of the bird of Avon may well be called Love's Labor Lost.

Happy Ending

In Ottawa, Mrs. Ann Recoskie's bird story already has a happy ending.

Joey, a budgie, left home one day. Searches and questions brought no trace of the wanderer. So after a couple of days Mrs. Recoskie telephoned a lost ad to a newspaper and gave Joey's description.

Within minutes, the paper called her back. Joey had been found — he'd been visiting the paper's circulation department all the time.

Attractive Buns with Party Appearance Adds To Menu Speciality

Fancy rolls and afternoon teas or evening bridge parties go together. Here's an attractive bun that could be served as an accompaniment to fruit salad, ham, chicken or tuna salad or any party menu specialty. The design on top outlined in golden-colored marmalade adds to their party appearance. These attractive sweet rolls . . . which are called Marmalade Rosettes . . . could become a conversation piece at parties or be earmarked for family meals and the lunch-box.

Marmalade Rosettes

1 Cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated dry yeast, ½ teaspoon grated nutmeg, 5 cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour, ¼ cup shortening, ⅓ cup fine granulated sugar, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons cold water, orange marmalade, granulated sugar.

Scald milk; stir in salt and cool to lukewarm. Meantime, measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture.

Add nutmeg to 2 cups of the flour and sift into yeast mixture. Stir to combine ,then beat until smooth. Cover with a damp tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about ½ hour.

Cream shortening; gradually blend in the ⅓ cup sugar. Separate 1 egg: combine 1 whole egg and 1 egg yolk. Add to creamed mixture and beat until mixture is fluffy. Stir down risen yeast mixture and add to creamed mixture, part at a time, combining well after each addition. Stir in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough (about 3 cups more). Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl; grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour.

Punch down dough and turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas. Knead until smooth. Roll out dough, about half at a time, to ½-inch thickness; loosen from board or canvas and let rest 5 minutes. Using a 2½-inch floured cookie cutter, cut dough into rounds; arrange rounds, well apart, on greased cookie sheets.

Grease tops. Using scissors, snip an X in top of each bun. Cover with a tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about ½ hour. Snip again, to deepen each X.

Brush tops with a mixture of the remaining egg white, slightly-beaten, and cold water. Fill each X with a little orange marmalade and sprinkle buns with a little granulated sugar. Bake in a hot oven (500°F.) about 15 minutes.

Nutted Chocolat Bread Custard Easily Made

Ingredients such as slices of enriched bread, milk, eggs, sugar, unsweetened chocolate, etc., are staple items in most homes. Here's a bit of culinary sleight of hand that will turn them into an ambrosial mixture. This recipe for Nutted Chocolate Bread Custard gives a delicately set custard that has a real chocolate flavor. The nuts included in the sandwich filling give a very special flavor and a crunchy texture to the pudding. This fine finale to any meal can be assembled in a matter of minutes. It's delicious served warm or cold, with pouring or whipped cream, or with a spoonful of your favorite ice cream.

Nutted Chocolate Bread Custard

2 Cups milk, 1½-ounces (1½-squares) cut-up unsweetened chocolate, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, ¼ cup chopped nutmeats, 4 slices bread, 2 eggs, ½ cup granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Perheat oven to 350°F. (moderate). Measure milk into top of double boiler; add cut-up chocolate. Cover and heat to scalding point over boiling water.

Meantime, cream butter or margarine; blend in the 2 tablespoons granulated sugar and nutmeats. Remove crusts from bread and make bread up into 2 sandwiches, using nut mixture as filling; cut into fingers and place in a 6-cup casserole.

Beat eggs slightly; stir in the ½ cup sugar, salt and vanilla. Using a rotary beater, beat milk mixture until smooth; stir into egg mixture and pour over sandwich fingers.

Place dish in a slightly larger pan and surround with hot water to depth of 1 inch. Oven poach in preheated oven, until custard is set — about 45 minutes. (A silver knife inserted into centre of pudding should come out clean).

HOUSEWIFE COMPOSES SONGS BY EAR

Although she can't read a note of music, Mrs. Faye Siegel's composing talent has amazed New York music publishers, who believe she is headed for a hit song. The young Toronto housewife has written more than 22 popular songs, many of which have been recorded by Canadian artists. Her latest, "Where Mommy Hid the Easter Eggs," is fast becoming a hit. Mrs. Siegel's severest critics are her husband and children, Johnny and Sari, above. She gets her ideas while doing housework, then sings it to friends. If they like the song, she has it transposed on to paper.

Q.W.I. Executive Meeting in Montreal

The executive of the Quebec Women's Institutes is meeting this week in Montreal. The president, Mrs. G. D. Harvey is presiding.

This is the last meeting before Mrs. Harvey leaves for Ceylon to attend the International Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World. She will be away until well into August and plans will be discussed for several events coming up during her absence.

These include the Provincial Convention the last week of June, at Macdonald College, the Annual Board Meeting, always held at the same time, also at the College, and the Junior Rally at Bury in July. The agendas for the former items are nearly completed and a report of a meeting of Junior Counsellors, held at the home of the Supervisor, Mrs. A. Cameron, Sawyerville, last week, will be submitted for approval.

It is with regret that the executive announces Mrs. Cameron's resignation as Junior Supervisor, to become effective in the near future.

You can't go "ALL-OUT" If you feel "ALL-IN"

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any druz counter. 53

Canadian Wild Flower Heritage

"Heart-starved for loveliness,
she knelt

wrote Freda Newton Bunner in her poem "Orphan" in an attractive Ryerson Poetry Chap Book. These lines came to our mind as we watched a poorly dressed little boy suddenly stop and gaze in wonder at the magnificent display of Spring flowers in Winnipeg's Conservatory in Assiniboine Park.

Here were tulips, daffodils, and hyacinths in amazing variety, and here too were warning signs not to touch the plants, and a watchful attendant in the background. This city child knew he could not pick these flowers but he could take home with him the memory of their color and fragrance. There are no "Don't Pick!" signs beside our wild flowers, and as parents it is our job to teach our children that they can enjoy them without plundering them.

Mow does your child think of wild flowers? Does he look forward to seeing them, and if they are uncommon is he willing to leave them where they are growing? Or is his one idea to pick or dig up as many as possible as fast as he can? It depends very much on whether or not you have taught him to "love them and leave them."

In Helen Keller's famous essay on "Three Days to See," she writes of the special things she would choose to do if granted the gift of sight, and included in her list is taking a walk in the woods. This is a satisfying experience for any person, child or adult, especially in the Springtime.

After the long cold winter there is magic in the smell of the woods, the warmth of the sun, the song of the birds, the chatter of the squirrels, and the whisper of the wind in the tiny buds which are just beginning to open on the branches of the trees. The moss and the old leaves are soft and springy under foot. Along the fringe of the wood-lot, bordering the paths, on the banks of the little streams, and in the sheltered corner of the rail fence the wild flowers are blooming.

Interest grows with knowledge, and there should be a good Wild Flower Guide in every family library. Look over the choice of books at a public library or book store. The Small Golden Book Nature Guides with their colored illustrations are popular.

How many Canadian writers have recorded the charm of wild flowers! L. M. Montgomery has helped countless readers to see the magic of the out-of-doors in Prince Edward Island. Mrs. George Black has painted the wild flowers of the Yukon. Kathleen Strange has written "Spring comes to the prairies clothed in beauty," in her book "With the West in Her Eyes." Every section of our vast country has its own unique features, and some wild flowers found in the Rockie, some on the prairies, and some in the East belong to their own area. But there is no place with quite the same enchantment as that which one visited in the golden days of childhood.

I can shut my eyes and see clearly the wild flower friends rediscovered as a small girl every Spring in the sugar bush on the top of a hill in Wellington County, Ontario. What a wealth of flowers were there — blood root, Solomon's seal, Dutchman's breeches, squirrel corn, starflower, spring beauty, columbine, and Jack-in-the-pulpit! The yellow spotted dog tooth violet grew in profusion, and the bank of the rushing stream was lovely with long stemmed blue violets.

Not long ago I re-visited this same wood in May and I was dismayed to see how few in numbers were the wild flowers! Not only the rarer species like the lady's slipper and the white trillium had vanished, but the more common kinds, such as the hepatica, had almost disappeared as well. The red trillium with its rank smell was about the only flower which had been allowed to bloom and scatter its seeds in peace. . . You'd think people would have more sense than to wipe out the wild flowers!

You would — wouldn't you?

Fashions

Grenville Students Hold Exercises for Class Graduates

The graduation of the thirteen Grade Eleven students of Grenville Consolidated School was celebrated Friday evening early this month.

The evening commenced with the banquet, attended by the graduates escorts, parents, the High School teachers and the members of the School Board. Robert Dobbie, as Toastmaster of the Banquet, welcomed the guests and presented the toastmakers. The dining - hall was decorated in the French style with individual tables of four and a head table.

Immediately following the banquet, everyone assembled in the gymnasium for the exercises. On the platform were the graduates, Mr. McGerrigle, the Rev. Ralph Watson, and Professor G. Wood of Carleton College. Lucy Boyd was emcee for the occasion.

The exercises opened with "The Queen", followed by a hymn sung by those on the stage. Mr. Watson offered a prayer for the graduating class. Jean McMichael was valedictorian. Jean MacTavish and John Kelly read the Class History. The Class Prophecy was read by Donald Cowan, after which came the Last Will and Testament delivered by Verna Beauchamp and Lyman Paige.

Mr. McGerrigle, in a few well-chosen words, offered his congratulations and best wishes to the graduates. The Guest Speaker of the evening was W. Wood, Professor of English at Carleton College. He was introduced by Joyce Andrews, and after delivering a timely and appropriate speech, was thanked by Maris Ozers. The exercises closed with the singing of "O Canada".

At 9.30 the graduates began the third part of the evening's entertainment with the Grand March in which 22 couples participated. The March followed an intricate pattern devised by Lucy Boyd and Robert Dobbie. Music for the Dance was provided by Ernie Lefebvre's Orchestra.

As the gym is small, it is easily decorated. This year Grade Ten did an excellent job. They followed a French scheme, using the distinctive colors of red, black, and white as streamers forming an artificial ceiling, through which soft lights glowed. The walls were decorated with silhouettes of Parisian scenes, while the front of the stage was fenced with huge red roses. The graduates looked beautiful and handsome, and although the floor was crowded for dancing, everyone had an enjoyable evening, one that will not soon be forgotten.

Homestead Awake With Springtime Telephone and Power Invade Peace

By Margaret Cook

Not quite true, since the exile is just returned from a week at the old homestead. We were in time to experience the frosty weather that distinguished part of May. We awoke one morning to find our prized strawberry rhubarb frozen; it lay watery and limp on the cold earth. One can see how farmers so often get that cynical, pessimistic frame of mind. Nothing so chancey as the weather. And, speaking of weather, the writer has stumbled upon a practically fool-proof method of prognostication. It is simplicity itself — listen carefully to the newscast, and expect exactly the reverse. You will be surprised at the accuracy of the result. I have another method, too, if the wind comes in the blue bedroom window, it will rain. That is really unfailing.

Everything at Sunnyacres was as we left it, which is in itself a cause for thankfulness. Everything, that is, except the vegetation. When we left last November, the grass was dun and wispy, the trees bare, the garden cleared for its winter sleep. Now, in May, the land is green, the garden either showing black earth or sporting aggressive sods, the daffodils were especially gay, great clumps of double blossoms, so heavy the stems were bent over. The narcissi were just beginning to open, the primulas a riot of color under the apple trees in the yard, the tree itself a mist of pink. The dull bloom of the orchard was not yet in evidence. "All was pink, a link with spring." Apologies to Ogden Nash and Tennyson, at least I think it was Tennyson who wrote, "Everything in a mist of green, but nothing perfect."

The country-side as a whole rejoices in May; wild cherries and apples are clothed in white; underfoot, the blue violets are a joy to behold, the strawberries make a white promise on the gravelly bits, dog-tooth violets spring up in the open woods and trilliums are in evidence. The brooks roar and leap down the rocks to the lovely Laurentian lakes. A land of beauty, with the beauty emphasized by contrast with the dark grey rocks, which are the backbone of the whole country.

At least that is what I think of the rocks as being. What the weary engineers and linesmen of the power and telephone companies think is another matter. They have decided for reasons unkonwn to the writer to put both services along our little road. To the writer it looks like business folly, only since large companies do not go in for such capers, undoubtedly some unknown enterprise has sparked this energy. In any case, permission has been sought and given for the tall poles of commerce to cross our property. Fortunately, they are over the brow of a hill and will hardly be visible from the house. The electrical power will be welcome; devoted as the writer is to the study of thoughts and deeds of yesteryear, yet she does understand the comfort of an electric kettle. The telephone is another matter. Do we want that strident voice to ring in our ivory tower? We do not. After a long business discussion with the engineer in charge of the project, he confided to us, on leaving that he would not welcome a telephone in such a retreat. Well, we shall see. The writer, although a devotee of beauty and peace is also not unappreciative of the value of a good bargain, and the man, bad cess to him, held out certain inducements!

We wonder what the coming of all these symbols of civilization will do to the wild life, which is unquestionably becoming more populous. A realiable authority reports wolves howling in the area behind the hill overlooking Lake Dawson, and we were twice awakened by a peculiar ululating cry, not quite a bark, not quite a howl. The man of the house thinks it is an hysterical fox, but I like to fancy I have heard a wolf.

Peter, the cat, caught his accustomed chipmunk. I do not mean the chipmunk was accustomed to be caught, but that Peter is accustomed to catch one or two at the first of the season, before the little fellows grasp the fact that cats are not other chipmunks. The first one Peter caught this year was so unsophisticated that he stopped to wash his face before running away. He did it as a cat does, using his paw as a wash-cloth. Peter always looks frustrated after one of these abortive home-comings. He feels he must present us with the spoils of the chase, and that, of course, is his undoing. Generally his victims are unharmed except for a mild case of shock, so live to be caught again.

The reader must not think that Margaret Cook spends her time at Sunnyacres mooning over the abundant beauty, or sitting upon a rock waiting to hear the cry of a wild creature. As a matter of cold fact, this trip was almost exclusively devoted to Latin. Les, Latin. I know that brands one as a high-brow, than which nothing is more unacceptable to the modern mind, but it is not love of the classics alone that prompts my devotion. Through the years, Latin teachers have become an almost extinct species, so that I have, in effect, a corner on the Latin market. The current pupils is a young lady, debarred from further college delights until she passes her first year Latin. Accordingly, we are engaged in the optimistic attempt to imbibe in a few weeks, a course designed to occupy the mind for months. One day, the pupil spent seven hours with various Latin writers, and the teacher, four. Since that, I feel a slight diminuition in my interest in Latin. As always, I am as much interested in the pupil and what goes on in her mind as in the subject matter. Asked why she insisted on doing Latin when she obviously knew none, she replied that was the only way she could go on at college. I did not embarass her by asking why she wanted to go on at college. The answer, if candid, might be painful, but it was obviously not unconnected with social contacts in general, and with-one, in particular.

What, I queried, did she think the reason for the college's insistence on Latin in the Freshman year. It promoted perseverance, she opined, but mostly it weeded out the numbers, which were too great anyway. It was easier than saying, "You are not suitable material for the university." These are undoubtedly cynical factors in the decision of the authorities, but the poor lass had quite overlooked the primary purpose of a Latin course — as a keyhole through which to look at the past. Few nations have left a greater heritage to the world than the Roman one, and through its prolific writers, we grasp their point of view, their griefs, their follies. The modern youth snorts, "Who cares about those old guys!" He is blissfully unaware that though customs have changed, human nature seems to have changed not at all. Maybe a study of 'those guys' would enable us the better to handle these guys. We were particularly amused by a bit of naive reporting by St. Jerome, for whom the town is named. He reports that as a young Christian, he used to read plays when he should have been reading the prophets. So, like the modern student, he had a nightmare. He went to stand before the judgment seat, and a voice asked about his religious convictions. He replied he was Christian. (This was about 50 A.D.). The voice replied tartly that the evidence, from his reading habits was that he was a Ciceronian. His punishment? You read it yourself. It fitted the crime.

THE "MILLION-DOLLAR RIDE" ... ANOTHER REASON WHY BUICK IS YOUR BEST BUY!

Pick a road . . . but not just any road, anywhere. Pick a road that would strain the sinews of any ordinary car. Fill it with chuck-holes and washboard—boulders and wooden bridges. Then . . . try it in a '57 Buick.

Try it at slow speeds where most cars jounce and bounce, jitter and pitch. Nudge the accelerator a bit, to the point where most cars slam and shudder on the rough spots.

Actually, of course, this kind of cream-smoothness is something more than magic . . . and considerably more substantial. It's Buick's "Million-Dollar Ride". . . crafted for you exclusively in Buick with coil springs on all four wheels. And it's one more reason why your best car buy will always be Buick.

So take our advice and see your Buick dealer. One look . . . one Demonstration Drive . . . will prove everything we say. Buick's best—anywhere, everywhere you go.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

BUICK'S BEST WITH DYNAFLOW
IT'S EASIER AT THE WHEEL . . . SAFER, TOO
Here's why!
- The convenience and safety of "park" position
- Eyes where they should be . . . on the road
- Hands are always on the wheel
- Easier "rocking" in mud and snow

Stage Is Set For Operation Budworm Getting Underway in Quebec and N.B.

Budworm Headquatres, Charlo Airstrip, N.B. — The stage is set for the launching of Operation Budworm No. 6 in New Brunswick, and No. 4 in Quebec. The 190 plane spray fleet is being distributed among the 14 airfields in N.B. and the 8 in Quebec being activated for the huge project. Three and a half-million gallons of DDT solution have been trucked to the fields, and the 700 people who will participate in the operation are in position, ready to go into action when the signal is given.

Officials of Forest Protection Limited and the Quebec Forest Industries Association who are directing the co-operative project expect that the insect will be at the favorable stage for spraying by the end of the first week in June. The operation will take about a month, depending on weather conditions.

The operation dwarfs all previous ones by its tremendous size. Over 5-million acres of budworm infested forestlands are to be sprayed in New Brunswick, and 1¼-million acres in the Gaspé Peninsula, in Quebec.

The New Brunswick spraying program extends to approximately 30 percent of the Province's total area of 28,000 square miles. The regions to be sprayed are enclosed within a line running from Edmundston, through Juniper, Boiestown Newcastle, Bathurst and Dalhousie. The fields, two of which were built for this operation, are: Grog, MacFarlane, Taxes, Horne's Gulch Charlo, Rose Hill, Tabou, Dunphy, Renous, Sevogle, Budworm City, Nictau, and Boston Brook.

In Quebec, the spray blocks are widely scattered along a 225 mile distance, and are located for the most part in the interior of the Gaspé Peninsula. Two of the eight bases to be used in Quebec are municipal airports, at Gaspé and Rimouski. The other six, at Patapedia, La Verendrye, Cap Chat, Nouvelle, Lesseps, and Pabos, are fields built especially for spraying. The last two strips were constructed for the current project.

Practically all of the timberlands to be sprayed in N.B. have been treated previously, while in Quebec, only 10 percent of the area has been covered before. An application of the DDT spray, it is pointed out, is effective for one or two years, after which time the insect is back in sufficient numbers to threaten the life of the trees. So far, the spraying has succeeded in keeping alive most of the trees in the infested woods. Meanwhile, in control areas left unsprayed for experimental purposes, most of the balsam fir and spruce trees have already died.

In addition to the 190 spray aircraft, 25 service and inspection planes are being used, boosting the fleet to an unprecedented total of 215.

"BIG INCH" PIPE NOW MADE IN CANADA

Canada's first manufacturer of "big inch" pipe used in oil and gas pipelines is only two months old, but already its production has been sold for the next three years. The $14,000,000 plant, called Welland Tubes Ltd., is located in Welland Ont. Its annual production will be 300,000 net tons, but the fast-expanding Canadian market still has to import. Here a 40-foot tube is inspected from the inside by a man riding through on a trolley.
