W. I. Team Vanquishes Lions Club Debaters On Provocative Topic

A total attendance of 62 at the regular Lions Club supper Tuesday evening, included a number of guests from the Lachute Women's Institute and others concerned in the main event of the evening, a debate between W.I. and Lions spokesmen on the topic, "Resolved, that the proper qualities of citizenship are being taught in Canada."

Club business, under chairmanship of Ernest Snadden, was carried through expeditiously. The president reported having attended a Zone executive meeting and was gratified by the attendance report, which showed the Lachute club had set the highest percentage in the Zone. . . District Governor Dr. F. W. FitzGerald is commencing his round of visits in District A-8, and support of his fellow Lions was urged by Col. E. Emmett, who is inter-club chairman this year. . . Possibilities of sponsoring the Dog Derby again, and a snowshoe race in conjunction, were mentioned as a fund-raising effort in the coming winter.

Women's Institute members and friends joined the gathering at 8 p.m., as their regular monthly meeting, and altogether a large crowd was on hand to witness the debate.

Mrs. F. W. FitzGerald ably chaired the proceedings, and the judges were Mrs. Norman Holland, Mr. Philippe Valois, M.P., and Principal F. H. J. Royal.

The debating teams comprised Mrs. Sam Milnes, Mrs. Geo. McGibbon and Mrs. Fernand Legault for the Women's Institute, Messrs. Ernest Snadden and Lorne Duncan for the Lions Club.

Many forceful arguments and illustrations were advanced — the men upholding the affirmative and the ladies debating against the resolution, viz., that "the proper qualities of citizenship are being taught in Canada."

Prime contentions for the affirmative were that efficient and well organized facilities were in operation to instil good citizenship in our immigrants and young Canadians. However, while not effectively denying this, the lady debaters gave forceful evidence that adult Canadians lacked the personal conviction, fell short in enthusiasm and example, and generally failed in fostering pride of citizenship. The arguments emphasized some home truths, and portrayed responsibilities unfulfilled, towards Young Canada in particular.

The judges' decision appeared to reflect the general reaction of the audience. Mr. Philippe Valois announced the panel's verdict in favor of the W.I. team, opposing the resolution.

Lion Phil Tremblay thanked the visiting ladies and the judges, for their participation in this unusual program.

Grocers Affiliate In Local Branch Of Food Retailers

Around 20 retail grocers from Lachute and vicinity met in the council chamber of the Town Hall Monday evening to organize a local branch of the Food Retailers' Association.

Election of officers resulted in the following appointments:

President, Ted Vachon, Lachute; vice-president, Chas. E. St. André Brownsburg; secretary-treasurer Roger Desjardins, Lachute.

Directors, Philippe Masson, Lachute; Claude Tessier, Ayersville; Léon Lavoie, Lachute; Omer Lafortune, Lachute; Denis & Menard, Rene Lafleur and Romeo Leclair, all of Brownsburg.

The meeting was chaired by Mr St. André — with Mr. J. Cadrin, liaison officer of the parent Association, Mr. O. Leblanc, insurance officer of the Association, and Mr. C. A. Majeau, administrator, as speakers and advisers.

Out of this organization and its executive, now duly appointed, it is planned in the near future to form two distinct groups — one of licensed, and the other of non-licensed grocers.

The public are advised that the butcher shops affiliated with this body will close their establishments all day next Monday, October 7, in order that the proprietors and their butchers may attend a meat-cutting demonstration by experts of the trade, in Montreal. The annual convention of the Food Retailers' Association will be held in the metropolis next week, October 6-9 inclusive, and this course on meat-cutting is a feature on the program.

Car Owners Experience First Freeze-ups

Garage owner Jim Duncan states that the first car freeze-up brought for his attention occurred last Thursday, September 26, when Cliff Cunningham reported radiator trouble. Similar reports have since been received from other sections of the county.

Airport Scene of Activity, Spectators by Thousands At Rotary-Sponsored Event

A substantial boost to the Lachute Regional Hospital fund resulted from the Air Show staged last Sunday by the Lachute-Brownsburg Rotary Club. The event — favored with mild, sunny weather — attracted thousands of spectators, on foot and in automobiles, to the local airport. The runway, flanked to the south by a ridge of just the right elevation, proved ideal for a spectacle of this kind. The height of land provided an excellent view of the proceedings at a safe distance, and altogether the site last Sunday afternoon presented a busy and colorful scene.

Gross proceeds of this major effort, according to reckonings at this stage, will approach $1,900 — a gratifying result to the organizers, for whom the day entailed many details of careful planning and the concerted help of all Rotary members, together with the police, fire department, many friends and civic officials.

Centre of activities, as far as the public were concerned, was a flag-draped platform on a knoll overlooking the airstrip. From this vantage point the joint m.c.'s — Rotarians Stewart Jones and Larry Presseault — announced the proceedings and gave informative comment on the various aircraft as they were put through their paces. From this point also, the program was launched by Rotary President King Amos, as he introduced the guests seated on the stand and publicly thanked the Army, Air Force, business firms and civilian personnel who had contributed much to the success of the undertaking.

Mr. Roger Regimbal, personnel manager representing the firm of Ayers Limited (by whose generosity the Air Show was made possible in these ideal surroundings) spoke of the airstrip and the purposes it had fulfilled, beyond the expectation of its initiator Mr. Gilbert Ayers. He also gave an impetus to the Hospital Fund, in which the community has a prime concern.

Other notables on the platform were Major H. Stutt and Major J. H. Gordon, of the 37th Field Regiment, R.C.A., Air Vice-Marshal Frank McGill, Mayor Réal Morrissette of Ayersville, Mayor Thos. Hall of Brownsburg and Mayor Léopold Carrière of Lachute, and later, Mr. Gilbert E. Ayers.

O Canada and God Save the Queen were played by the R.C.A.F. band of 50 instrumentalists, and a salvo from two field artillery pieces operated by Lachute Battery, No. 131, of the 37th Field Regiment, marked the official opening of the events.

Varied Program

Items affording spectator interest ran all the way from model planes in action to an immense RCAF transport helicopter — from comedy and stunt manoeuvres, to a five-unit jet squad from St. Hubert air base in a spectacular fly-past over the length of the airstrip.

Private and commercial planes of sleek, powerful design, with high speed and versatile manoeuvrability, were seen in action — by courtesy and kind co-operation of their owners. The visiting civilian airmen were from Toronto and Ottawa flying clubs. Stunts and comedy manoeuvres were performed by skilled aviators, and the R.C.A.F. crew in charge of the Sikorsky helicopter gave a comprehensive demonstration with this machine, including the transporting of an army jeep slung underneath the craft.

A superb demonstration of model planes was given by local enthusiasts — Bill Robertson, of St. Andrews East, operating his radio-controlled craft at a considerable height and landing it safely within a few yards of his feet from a lengthy glide after its engine had shut off.

Jacques and Serge Labreche, also of St. Andrews East, then demonstrated their fast-flying models controlled directly by a line in the operator's hand. All these models were gasoline powered.

Altogether the events, interspersed with lively music by the R.C.A.F. bandsmen, provided a good variety of interest for the thousands of onlookers.

Municipal and provincial police, and a contingent of Imperial Frontiersmen under Col. E. Emmett, supervised traffic.

Town Shows Increase in Real Estate, Population

Homologation of the property roll by Town Council, at last assembly, showed another increase over last year. From $7,038,150 in 1956, the valuation roll has stepped up to $7,117,300 — an increase of $79,150.

Of this total the neutral roll shows $1,452,775; the Catholic School Commission valuation, $3,597,200; and the Protestant School Commission, $2,067,325.

The population figure has undergone little change — an increase of only 84 persons. The count for 1956 was — 6,764; for 1957 — 6,848.

Evaluators this year were Messrs. Gaetan Blais, W. L. Dawson and Lucien Lacoste.

Mayor Léopold Carrière, commenting on the figures, expressed satisfaction with the work of the valuators and census takers. He made it clear, however, that the Council hopes next year to put the procedure of real estate valuation on a scientific basis. "Only in this way can we treat our proprietors and taxpayers equitably — get a clear idea of taxable and non-taxable property — and, at the same time, reach a solution of many municipal problems."

Garageman Burned By Powder Blast

Ernest Gordon, well known blacksmith and machinist, suffered first-degree burns around 10 a.m. Saturday, in an explosion of blasting powder in a truck owned by René Laurin, Lachute Mills — the blast burning the side of his head and both hands.

He was rushed to Dr. F. W. FitzGerald's office for treatment and later sent home, where he is presently recovering from painful but not-too-serious burns.

The explosion occurred when Ernie Gordon was welding the door of Laurin's truck. The powder was apparently under the seat, and was ignited by the electric current going through the truck as a ground. Laurin himself was burned slightly by the explosion, which gutted the inside of the vehicle.

The Lachute fire brigade answered the call and extinguished the flames.

Mr. Gordon is expected to return to work within a few days.

Shipmates Honor Retired Captain

(Our District Correspondent)

Cushing West — Capt. T. W. Weir, retired skipper of the S.S. Argenteuil, was pleasantly surprised recently when invited to dinner aboard the Argenteuil, where he was the recipient of a purse and sum of money from the crew and from the government yard employees who were his fellow workers. Mr. Aldege Desforges, Mate of the vessel, made the presentation to the honored guest.

Car Stalls at Crossing, One Dead, Four Injured

Neil MacLeod, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin MacLeod, of Harrington, was instantly killed last Thursday evening when the car he was driving was hit by a C.P.R. diesel Budcar at a level crossing on the Scotch Road, north of Grenville. Four other close relatives were injured in the crash.

The accident occurred shortly after 8 p.m., when the car-load was headed homeward after visiting relatives. Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen reported that the victim apparently heard the train whistle only seconds before the crash, and immediately applied his brakes, the front of the car stopping partially on the tracks. The engine stalled; the driver was unable to get it started and the train crashed into the stationary automobile.

The engineer stated that, had the car kept going, it was possible the accident would have been avoided. Taken to hospital in Hawkesbury, where they were treated for head injuries, were Mrs. Adam Page, 58, and Mrs. John MacRae, 78, both of Harrington. They were later released. The victim's mother and brother, Melvin, Jr., 24, also of Harrington, were treated on the spot by Dr. Bowes, of Grenville.

The accident was investigated by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen and Traffic Officers Lawrence Cruise and Roger Massie.

Council Appoints Investigator For Public Relief Cases

To give full justice both to the taxpayers and the indigent class, Municipal Council has engaged the services of a special investigator for public charity cases. Chas. Emile Dorris, the appointee, will be commissioned to supply the Council with all necessary information on applicants for public assistance, and to prepare a complete file on each case.

The appointment of Mr. Dorris for this job is logical sequel to a report he submitted on 67 investigations made for the Social Service and the town committee. The chairman of this committee, Dr. Roger Lavigne, endorsed Mayor Carrière's appointment of Mr. Dorris in order to clarify records on all the town asistance cases.

Investigations in this department have previously been conducted by the police officers, but it appears the force could ill afford the time spent on this job.

Speaking on this matter at the council table, Ald. Dr. Lavigne stated that in the past year and a half he and his committee had given an immense amount of work to these public relief cases, but it is practically impossible to handle the problem without giving one's whole time, spending many hours in classifying files and investigations.

"Moreover," said the committee chairman, "to have adequate control of public spending, every application for relief must be seriously studied in the light of its true facts. Some of our indigents require partial support, some require temporary assistance, others need medical care, etc. By having our own special investigator, we will be able to use the taxpayer's money more judiciously and at the same time deal more fairly with relief applicants."

Citizens voluntarily donated 385,690 bottles of blood to the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service in 1956.

Region 4 Reports $241,166 To Date In Diocese Appeal

Region No. 4 in the Diocesan Fund campaign has raised a total of $241,166.65 to date. The region comprises Lachute, Ayersville, Brownsburg, St. Philippe, St. Andrews, Carillon and St. Michel; and in this region the proceeds are equally divided between the needs of St. Jerome Diocese and the Lachute Regional Hospital project.

The total to date includes:

General canvass	$52,218.75
Employee canvass	38,603.90
Stores and Industries	117,797.00
Clergy & Special Names	32,547.00
	$241,166.65

Over-all figures for the Diocese are not immediately available. The entire objective is $750,000.

Minimum quota for Region No. 4 is $250,000. It is to be noted, this sum has not been attained to date, and although the committee have every confidence this quota will be subscribed, they are urging upon their canvassers to exert every possible effort to overshoot the target.

Police Hold Man in River Camp Death

Denis Lehoux, victim

A 30-year-old Montrealer was shot to death early Sunday morning during a party at a summer cottage at La Baie, St. Andrews East.

Provincial Police homicide squad detectives questioned six men — all of whom had been at the party — in connection with the death of Denis Lehoux, who was also known as Maurice L'Esperance, and one of the group is being held as a material witness. An inquest will be held in the Court House here tomorrow evening (Friday) at 8 o'clock.

The victim was shot in the right side and died about half an hour later.

Police believed the fatal wound was caused by a .303 calibre bullet. A hunting rifle of that type was found in a subsequent search of the cabin.

Later a .45 calibre revolver was found hidden under the seat of one of the witnesses' cars.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen said Lehoux died shortly after he was called to the cabin about 2 a.m. He declined to say whether the victim made any statement before dying.

Lehoux's address was listed as 2035 St. Urbain Street, on a car registration slip. A check showed he might have been known there under the name of Maurice L'Esperance, but had not been there in the past three or four months.

Other witnesses gave the victim's address as 1890 St. Clement Street, but he was not known there either. It is not known what Lehoux did for a living.

A bullet was found embedded in the mattress of one of the beds, police said.

Six witnesses were brought to Lachute by Sgt.-Det. Allen and Traffic Officer Ronald Massie, and were later taken to Provincial Police headquarters in Montreal, where they were detained for questioning. Police said the witnesses, all from Montreal, included an Army captain, his twin brother, and four other men — three of them juveniles.

Four Break-ins As Thieves Stage One-Night Spree

Night-time robberies in four local business establishments were reported to police on Monday last, all places having been entered in the early morning hours. Victims of the breaking and entering were Don Boa's Service Station, Desrosiers Automobiles, Ernest Laurin & Son, and the pro shop at the Lachute Golf and Country Club.

Entry to Boa's Service Station was made by breaking a rear window, sometime after 1 a.m., at which hour the establishment closed. Thieves netted $91 in cash and then apparently crossed the street, where they again smashed a window, entered the Desrosiers garage and pilfered the till of some $15, then attempting to steal a car in the garage. This attempt failed and the culprits settled for a 1949 panel truck parked outside. The vehicle was recovered in Ottawa Tuesday evening.

The break at Laurin's proved unproductive; entry here was made by smashing a door.

At the Golf Club, again a door was broken, and merchandise amounting to some $500 stolen from the pro shop.

Town and Provincial Police are investigating the incidents and at present are on the look-out for one known suspect.

Last Driver's Test By Dept. Examiners

Mrs. Charles Bedard, registrar, advises that the final Driver's Test this season under the local license registry will be held next Wednesday, October 9, at the Lachute Town Hall. After this date, the tests will be supervised by the Provincial Police Traffic Officers, and will be held at the local Government Garage.

Unpremeditated Parking

One of the first to find a parking spot on the way to Sunday's Air Show was Gaetan Brisson, 36, of Cornwall. While driving down the hill near Wilson's Mill on Princess Street, Brisson lost control of his 1955 Hard-top and rammed the rear of a house occupied by Larry Laframboise. The car was seriously damaged. — Photo, Syd Drew

232 Donors at B'burg Red Cross Blood Clinic

Brownsburg — Monday, September 30, was the occasion once again of the Red Cross Blood Clinic in Brownsburg. In the afternoon the clinic was held in the C-I-L plant and the evening session was conducted in the Legion Memorial Hall.

A supper was served at the Legion Hall for the staff of the Red Cross Unit from Montreal, the Red Cross executive of Brownsburg, honorary presidents, the clergy, Mayor Thos. Hall and Mrs. Hall. Mrs. N. E. Smillie was convener of the supper.

Mr. O. T. Carrière, chairman of the Blood Clinic, expressed his satisfaction at the number of donors even though the total fell short of last year — 232 compared to 266. He felt this was due to cases of 'influenza' in the district.

Mr. R. Dubois, local branch president, took this opportunity to have presented the Red Cross "badge of service" to four deserving workers of this town, namely, Mrs. F. Barker, Mrs. N. E. Smillie, Mrs. H. Elliott, and Mrs. W. Townsend.

Power Black-Out Affects These Parts

The town of Hawkesbury was without electric power for three hours Monday night when a truck driven by a L'Orignal man crashed into a hydro pole in the centre of the town.

North of the Ottawa River, the Gatineau system was cut off from Grenville-Calumet to Brownsburg and adjacent circuits. On discovering the source of trouble, however, the local distribution was switched over to another supply line, and the interrupton lasted only 1 hour and 2 minutes. A series of "bumps" or fluctuations in the Lachute supply was caused by the process of re-routing the supply — according to Rod Carreau, manager here for Gatineau Power.

In the incident at Hawkesbury, Wilfred Ouimet, losing control of his one-ton truck, crashed into the hydro pole, skidded 200 feet along the side of the road, missed a narrow bridge, and plunged through a lightly wooded embankment into five feet of water.

A passing motorist took him to the nearby hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Arcade Perrier for shock and a cut over his right eye.

The accident happened at 10.45 p.m.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

With the hunting on in earnest now, I think a few more tips won't be too much for you to take. — I hope.

Listen for birds crying. Maybe there are deer around. The same for chipmunks.

Move slowly and stop often. You may be surprised at how close you can get to them.

Try and be down-wind or cross-wind.

Look over every clump of timber carefully.

The best eating is when you kill from a jump, or on a very short run.

Try out your gun before going into the bush.

In driving a deer, be sure your point men know just where your drivers are, approximately when and where they will be out.

The point men should be near a clearing where they can see at least 100 yards each way.

Wear protective clothing, yellow, red, orange, etc. Stay away from browns and neutral colors.

Now, if you have got your deer — first thing, the leg glands. They are about 1 inch on the outside, hind legs. If they are broken, the fluid will taint the meat.

Cut the throat. Raise the head high and wave it up and down a few times; this will drain a lot of the blood. Then pump the back legs a few times, this will drain some more out.

Now, gut the deer fast. The sooner this is done, the better meat you will have. The sooner the meat is cooled, the better eating too.

Be careful not to perforate the intestines.

Keep the heart and liver; they are good eating.

The easiest way to get your deer out is to use a horse, but if that isn't possible, use the two-pole carry, if you have someone to help. Cut two heavy poles, and string the back and front legs on each pole. Tie the head in the middle and you will find this pretty easy, compared to the single-pole system.

If you are alone, try this; it's not easy, I admit, but at least you'll get it out. Slit the skin through the hind legs, lock them into place with a couple of sticks, then put the front through the back legs. Put your arms through the loops and there you are. As I said, it's not easy. . . Be sure you tie something bright to the antlers, and whistle or sing coming out of the bush.

Keep the body cavity open, by inserting a couple of sticks inside it while you are carrying it.

Don't carry the deer on your fenders or in the trunk of the car.

Wipe out the cavity with grass, leaves or cloth, often. If you do this it will improve the eating tremendously.

Another thought: Use a sling on your gun, it makes carrying and shooting a lot easier.

If you are going to use your shotgun with rifled slugs, try a few shots to get the feel of it.

Take along the list I wrote about a couple of weeks ago, to be sure.

* * *

In reply to a few phone calls. . . Yep, I got the decoy and I kept it too. Good shooting!

* * *

Now, a little for the duck men. . . There seem to be a few of the birds around, notably black and saw-bills. I've noticed around the North River most of the boys are pass shooting. That's fine, but not very productive for the time spent. A few decoys and a duck call would make a hang of a lot of difference in the bag of them. They won't be really flying until we get the blustery weather, so you have lots of time to pick up a couple.

I think there are more duck hunters this year than I've ever seen. There's a lot more skill required to get a bag of ducks than there is to getting a deer. (Boy, I'll bet I start something with this!)

I've been asked about blinds for boats. This is the one I like: Get enough wire fencing with 1" holes to circle your boat, about 36" wide. Cut six poles the depth of your boat, plus the width of your blind. Lace bullrushes, flags, rushes, etc., through the wire. This is about the easiest blind to attach to your boat, and transparent, that I know of.

* * *

The hunters were really out in force on Saturday. I counted 11 cars betwen the sand pit and Lake Hughes on the Morin Heights road — mostly from out of town, judging by their license numbers.

* * *

Here's a story I heard that should be passed on. One of our better-known gents has had his boat up at Lake Sir John. When he went up last week-end he found some irresponsible goof had worked his boat over with a .22!

It's bad enough to handle guns stupidly, but when they are used to shoot up property, it's time something was done about it. Even the mail boxes take a beating.

* * *

Just heard of a local boy who took seven shots at a running object on Saturday. He's not too sure yet if it was a deer or not; a good way for fellows to get shot while in the bush.

* * *

A thought: Treat your gun like your wife — with care!

DOW BROKE 4 RECORDS IN COMMERCIAL LEAGUE

The Dow team experienced something of a lift last week in their Commercial League performance at the Bolodrome, breaking no fewer than four records in their scoring annals.

Howard Ward, seemingly on the threshold of his best season yet, chalked up a high triple of 602. This is actually his second over-600 score, for he hit the same high score two years ago in the Laurentides League. (Don Cockburn's mark for last year's record triple was 582, in the Men's Commercial).

Moreover, Howard rolled a high single of 248, topping his own previous record of two years ago, 236. (Gerald Thibault was high-scoring single last year, with 256, but in another league.)

Howard Ward now has top average for the season, 176.

The Dow squad scored a triumph on this occasion with a 912 single in their first game, to lick the 903 top-spot recorded by Albert Malacket last year. . . In their second game, to show this was no fluke, they hit another creditable mark 897, to make their count 1809 for the two consecutive games.

Finally, the team's triple of 2538 far outscored their own 2458 of last year.

Altogether, congratulations are in order to the Dow boys for their showing last week:

ILLEGAL HUNTING

Brantford, Ont. (CP) — Brant county conservation officers have warned that district farmers who carry guns on tractors or combines are in for trouble. Some take pot-shot at animals, but tractors are classed as motor vehicles on which guns are not permitted.

Season's Trophies, Prizes Awarded At Golf Club

At a pleasant function in the Golf Club chalet last Sunday, the season's triumphs were reviewed and renewed, with the presentation of trophies and prizes to winners of the club events.

The championship winners and recipients of trophies, handed out by President Gilbert E. Ayers, were as follows:

Class A — Laurier Carrière, Lachute.

Class B — René Dansereau, Montreal.

Class C — Phil Tremblay, Lachute.

Handicap—Dr. Chas. Roy, Lachute.

Jr. Boys — Kenneth Underhill, Lachute.

In the last-named tournament, Kenneth J. Underhill and his opponent, young Jean Morin (formerly of Lachute, now of Montreal), played neck-and-neck and were even up to their 16th hole. Here Jean Morin struck hard luck and lost the hole by disqualification on a technicality of which he was unaware — breaking a live twig which obstructed his view. This, by the rule book, set him back on the 16th play and, incidentally, disrupted his brand of golf to the end.

Big Equipment Lays Cable for Dial Phones

An imposing array of heavy machinery, which has been operating this week in the vicinity of Brownsburg and Lachute (see picture on front page) has attracted the attention of many local residents — and with cause. This mechanical monster, known as a plough-train, is being used by the Bell Telephone Company to lay a 20-mile telephone cable between St. Jerome and the two communities.

R. R. Pearson, Bell manager for this region, explained that the plough-train digs the ditch, lays the cable and fills the ditch again in one continuous operation. "The installation of the cable is only one phase of the work being done in preparation for the conversion of the local telephone system to dial operation next spring. After the cut-over, all long distance calls placed in Brownsburg and Lachute will go through the St. Jerome long distance centre," the manager said.

All the other phases of the preparation work are being completed on schedule. The new exchange building is ready for the complex dial switching equipment, which will be installed by crews of Northern Electric technicians, while local residents and businessmen are visited by Bell Telephone employees, adapting telephone sets for dial use.

Badminton Club To Resume Activity

A meeting of badminton fans will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, October 9, in the LHS auditorium, to reorganize for the coming season. All interested in this sport are invited to join and participate in the club's activities.

Last season the Lachute group filled friendly engagements in Cornwall, Valleyfield and other centres. It is expected similar tournaments will be arranged this year. No specified day of the week has been set, as yet, for regular play.

Pre-Season Stir In NHL Teams

SPORTS CAMERA

By Gerald Lougheed, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The icy winds haven't come yet but the stirrings by the National Hockey League teams make you realize they're not far off.

The NHL training camps are in full swing with most of the fans attention centered on the St. Catharines, Ont., site of the Chicago Black Hawks.

Three big changes are noted in the Chicago lineup. Perennial all-star left winger Ted Lindsay and Glen Hall, topnotch goalie were obtained from Detroit Red Wings during the off-season and the Hawks later picked up veteran defenceman Jim Thompson, discarded by Toronto Maple Leafs in their quest for a more youthful club.

It was common knowledge that relations between Lindsay and the Detroit management haven't been happy over the last few seasons so it was no great surprise when they dealt off one of the greatest left wingers in league history.

Lindsay says he is happy with the change — from a team which was always at or near the top of the standings to a last-place club such as the Black Hawks — but will miss playing without Gordie Howe, his great wing mate of 11 seasons.

Contending Club

"This is the best thing that's happened to me in four years," the quick-tempered Lindsay said at St. Catharines. "I'm going to be happy with this club. And you can scrap that tail-ender tag.

"This team is going to make the playoffs and have a lot to say about where the Stanley Cup goes."

Lindsay reflected for a moment and then admitted he didn't exactly relish the idea of playing without Howe.

"They say I'll miss Gord and they're right. But don't forget I'm lining up with two potential all-stars in Eddie Litzenberger and Eric Nesterenko on this club."

Lindsay wasn't kidding there. Litzenberger and Nesterenko were the main sparks behind the Hawks' fine showing during the tag end of the league schedule after the team's dismal early show. With Lindsay patrolling the left boards, that combination could develop into one of the NHL's top producing lines.

Hall, a promising young netminder who was considered expendable when the Red Wings reacquired Detroit favorite Terry Sawchuk, from Boston Bruins, probably will strengthen the Hawks in goal. Al Rollins, who had that busy post last season, has been farmed out to Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League. It should be a lot easier on Rollins' nerves for last year's Chicago defence had a number of inexperienced rearguards.

That's where Thompson, who has had 12 seasons in the big time, may help, even though he has slowed from his rookie days when he teamed with Gus Mortson — who switched from Toronto to Chicago five years ago.

A Concerted Effort

MEMBERS OF THE Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club were in many cases surprised and shocked by a number of local and district citizens who simply refused to pay the admission fee to Sunday's Air Show. Little did it matter that the money was going towards the Lachute Regional Hospital Fund.

The event, however, was highly successful and upon compiling expenses (which, we might add, include a considerable sum to be paid to the Provincial government in amusement tax) it is hoped that a sizable profit will be turned over to the local committee.

This will be due to those Rotarians and friends who worked many hours long before the show got underway as well as during the event and it will be due to citizens, such as a local poorly dressed woman with seven rag-clothed children who paid admission at the gate as well as those who handed out bills with the comment "keep the change".

New By-law In Effect Today

BY-LAW 206, amending a previous by-law regulating grills and dance halls within the limits of the Town of Lachute, becomes effective today and Council is to be congratulated on taking the stand it has in this matter, which has long been past the funny stage.

Notices have been printed and will be placed in every licensed establishment in Lachute and it will be up to the hotel proprietors to make sure they are not serving persons under the age of 20 years.

In addition to this, the hours of operation on Sundays and religious holidays are laid down as are rules as to dancing and music, etc., on these specified days. All that now remains is the enforcement, and with the co-operation of the "right-thinking" citizens of the town, Chief Trépanier and his men should have no trouble.

It is something for other towns in the district and throughout the province to follow and a sure step in the right direction for the local Council and Town of Lachute.

Plowmen's Field Day

FAIR INTEREST was apparent at the annual plowing match held yesterday at St. Philippe d'Argenteuil. This is an item on the fall program, of special concern to the agricultural community. The contest draws enthusiastic competition, and is supported by prize donors including most of the local merchants who draw upon the farm trade.

Doubtless many people ask, "Why plowing matches?" With even more justification they might ask, "Why Davis Cup tennis matches?" On this subject Harvey Hawkey, manager of the Canadian team in the recent World Plowing Match at Peebles, Ohio, says that actually plowing matches do make sense — and for the farmers who can learn a lesson from them, they can mean greater productivity with a resulting greater income. This is best explained by recalling that plowing is intended to do four things:

Turn under the "trash" remaining from the old crop;
Prepare a seed bed for the new crop;
Condition the soil to permit air and water to reach and nourish the seed;
Control weed growth.

This is a big order, and unless a plowman can do his job efficiently enough to accomplish all these things, he will not be making full use of his land. Plowing matches are the best means to make him aware of this. Judging is based on the factors that indicate a plowman is performing the four main functions, although the disciplines of competitive plowing compel the plowmen to work at a much slower rate than would be feasible in actual farming.

As one farmer-spectator put it at the Ohio contest: "If I had to plow that way, I'd never get a crop in. But if they want, any one of 'em can come work for me."

Warming Up to Fire Prevention

"HOME SAFETY" and Fire Prevention will be emphasized conjointly in Quebec during next week's campaign, October 6-12 inclusive. In many respects the terms are synonymous.

This special week will be observed to prove that home accidents can be reduced materially when all parents and children do their part. The campaign will demonstrate that the place to attack the Home Safety problem is in the house and that the responsibility rests upon each individual. It will implant in the minds of all family members the realization that, if they can greatly reduce accidents during that special week, they can do so every day in the year.

In a preliminary approach to this campaign, The Watchman offers hints this week on fire prevention in the home. . .

Instruct your family on what to do in case of fire. Make the family a household fire prevention team. Remember, you may not be there when fire strikes your home.

More than 85 percent of the fires in homes are caused through carelessness. Have a family conference on fire hazards. Advise adult members of your family to keep matches and lighters always out of the reach of children. Keep inflammable liquids in metal containers, and on high shelves, or in locked cupboards and closets.

Don't teach your children to be careless by your own carelessness. Set a good example for them to follow.

Advise your wife on handling the coal furnace. Don't load it with coal before going to bed. Make sure it is properly banked for the night.

Warn the mother of your children not to tamper with faulty wiring or household appliances, such as toasters, kettles or other equipment using electricity. An expert is always within reach of the telephone.

Caution children to keep away from the stove when the burners are on. It is so easy for a sleeve to slip and touch a red-hot burner. Playing with matches is taboo. Don't allow children to tinker with any electrical appliance or play around the furnace in the basement. Children should not be allowed to play with firecrackers. A nasty burn, sometimes serious, can result. Let Dad light the firecrackers.

Bonfires are fascinating, but they also can cause tragedies. Let an adult supervise the bonfire. And keep children a proper distance. Don't let them throw "any old thing" they find on the fire. It may be an empty gasoline container.

All Canada has been horrified by the number of child victims of fire each year. Every winter takes its toll. Never leave your children alone at home. (Do you know that, under the Criminal Code, you may go to jail for leaving a child exposed to fire?) Have an adult, who is aware of fire hazards, stay with children when you are absent.

Family co-operation is vital in preventing fires. Sure you are busy, but just take a little time out to hold a family discussion on fire safety. You will be glad you did. Don't ever think that a fire tragedy cannot happen to you. It will, if you are careless.

Signs Point to Trend

ONE OF THE intriguing things about travel in new country is the small differences you note. Cities, mountains, lakes and rivers you have read about or seen on postcards. Gazed at in their native color and mass, they fulfil an expectation. It's the other things you really see — the signs demanding you buy pecans, the difference between a rail fence in Maryland and the ones you're used to in Canada.

The thing that caught one Canadian vacationer's eye was a road-sign in Georgia. It said: "NO FISHING FROM BRIDGE."

The thought-processes set up by this small, officious directive will remain alive long after the Savannah skyline has vanished from memory. For nowhere had this particular traveller seen so blunt an indication of the extent to which we live under bureaucratic regulation.

No kindly injunction to the motorist to please watch out for fishermen. No, sir. Simply four blunt words; and behind their bluntness an abject surrender to the dark prince of speed.

No fishing from bridge. The ultimate misbegotten offspring, no doubt, of "Ne stationnez pas" and "Keep off the grass". . . .

Although the traveller concerned was himself a motorist, and hasn't held a rod in his hand for years, it took five months for the anger aroused by this particular sign to wear off. Effective in neutralizing it was a story told by another vacationer. This one had been to Prince Edward Island. There he had seen a golf course in which the water hazards consist of the windings of a brook that was there before the course was laid out. Somewhere around the ninth tee he came on a fellow from out west, equipped not with bag and clubs but with creel and rod. Two speckled trout lay on the grass beside him. What he said was: "I played this course for a couple of days, but when I got onto things, there was more fun fishin' it."

It may be that Prince Edward Island is the last stronghold of natural man, the last holdout against the final dark when the ultimate signs go up in neon:

NO LOOKING FROM HILL.
NO LOVING IN LANE.

THE CRIES of concern over "this present generation" have been raised in the same heartfelt tones for a good many decades. And yet the world goes on, with each succeeding generation benefitting more and more from the discoveries made by men who, two or three generations before, were part of a mass of young people — says the Grande Prairie (Alta.) Herald-Tribune.

There appears every prospect that the community will have advantage of an efficient system next year, and the more immediate benefits of labor commencing on this project in the very near future.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

Why was the far northern settlement of Aklavik moved recently?

Partial thawing and flooding made the site unsuitable for the permanent construction required for this increasingly important northern settlement on the Mackenzie River delta. In 1954, the federal government began moving it to a new site 33 miles by land and 70 miles by water to the west. The settlement is the administrative centre for the western Aretic, and the centre of the reindeer-meat industry. On the original site, the nature of the land — a combination of permafrost and silt — and the river floods seriously affected buildings, prevented the construction of proper roads, a permanent air field, sewers and water mains, created a health hazard, and hampered the settlement's expansion.

Who published the first newspaper in the Northwest Territories?

Patrick Gammie Laurie traveller west by ox train and in 1878 he founded the Saskatchewan Herald at Battleford, then capital of the Northwest Territories. For two years, his was the only newspaper in the territories. His accurate and faithful reporting while Battleford was beleaguered during the Riel uprising makes the Herald a valuable historical source.

What is the purpose of Canadian automobile associations?

Automobile associations are organized to provide emergency road assistance and other services to their members. There are nine automobile associations in Canada; The Royal Automobile Club of Canada, The Maritime Automobile Association, The Quebec Automobile Club, The Ontario Motor League, The Manitoba Motor League, The Saskatchewan Motor Club, The Alberta Motor Association, The British Columbia Automobile Association, and The Victoria Automobile Club. The Canadian Automobile Association, with headquarters in Toronto, is a federation of the provincial societies. It is a member of the International Touring Alliance and is affiliated with the World Touring and Automobile organization. Besides emergency road service, the associations furnish legal advice, information and maps for travel purposes. The Ontario Motor League also supplies legal defence.

"My Life Insurance man did a grand job for me, Ed"

All talk over the back fence isn't about sport, or politics, or television programs. Very often it's about such vital things as looking after the family and having enough money to retire on.
Your life insurance man is well equipped to solve these problems. He is trained to analyse all the facts about a family's future requirements. He serves Canadian families by offering practical plans to meet individual needs.
Life Insurance representatives have exceptional training opportunities today. Their own companies provide them with basic courses covering a wide variety of subjects.
Through the Life Underwriters Association of Canada they have access to the experience of many able men who have helped to make Canadians the world's best-insured people. This Association has a 2-year training program for its members. And, in addition, for those who desire to pursue more advanced studies, there is a 3-year university extension course leading to the Association's designation of Chartered Life Underwriter (C.L.U.)
This thorough training plus practical experience in helping people explains why millions of Canadians have welcomed the services of the modern Life Underwriter.

All About Advertising

As a result of one of these columns, I was asked by a leading Canadian trade magazine to write a 2,000-word article on the subject of advertising. So I began a study to find out what others had said on the subject over the years. I was surprised at the long history of the subject.

The first known advertisement printed in the English language was written by a fellow called Bill Caxton, back in 1497, and apparently it paid off because he kept advertising for the rest of his days.

In a couple of hundred years from then, old Sam Johnson said "The trade of advertising is now so near to perfection that it is not easy to propose any improvement."

Macauley, the famous historian, in 1820 declared, "Advertising is to business what steam is to machinery — the great propelling power."

The editors of Reader's Digest set out to find and compile all important comment on advertising over the centuries, and came up with a bookful which it provides, free, to its advertising friends throughout the world. Reading it renewed the faith I've always had in the power and importance of advertising in a free world.

Away back in the early 19th century, Alexis De Tocqueville said, "A newspaper can drop the same thought into a thousand minds at the same moment. A newspaper is an advisor who does not require to be sought, but comes to you briefly every day of the common weal, without distracting your private affairs. Newspapers, therefore, become more necessary in proportion as men become more equal individuals, and more to be feared. To suppose that they only serve to protect freedom would be to diminish their importance, they maintain civilization."

Suppose we had no advertising to support the daily and weekly press? Suppose the only news we could get would be that dished out by officials, in some far-off capital? How could our democracy function? Wouldn't it soon decline into a dictatorship by the few over the many?

Advertising is one of the most important processes of freedom. As long as free men have access to the means of publication, without licensing, we can hope for the retention of the freedoms we love and the material well-being we all desire.

Maybe you'll think about some of these things as you look through the advertisements in the paper you now hold in your hand.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A stock figure of fun is the father who tells the children what a tough time he had when he was a boy.

Few young people listen to his doleful stories of hardship long ago. If they do listen, they don't believe any of it.

These are fat years. But who knows? They may not last forever. Sooner or later our highballing economic machine may jump the rails and land in what used to be called a "depression."

This time it will be called something else with a less alarming sound to it: "Readjustment," "setback," "change of pace" or "pause for refreshments."

For all I know, it may never happen. But if it does, the roles of the generations will be turned about in a curious way. . .

• • •

"Yes, Dad."

"Didn't have any nonsense like that when I was a boy. No, sir, we had a nice heated school bus that picked us up outside the school and drove us to our own back doors. And even at that, some of us felt hard done by, because the driver wouldn't drop us right in the living room."

"I guess that was before they stopped the buses as an economy measure, and you had to sell the car. But say, Dad, sometimes I manage to thumb a ride to school in the principal's car. All I have to do is wash and polish the car for him, once a week or so. Pretty soft, eh?"

"Bah! You youngsters don't even know what a soft life is. In my day, all the kids had their own cars, and if they felt like it, they could drive to school instead of riding the bus. The only people who didn't have cars were the teachers."

• • •

"Yes, you must have had a pretty soft time as a boy, Dad. But I'll bet you didn't get all the pocket money I get — 10 cents a week, just for packing in the wood, bathing the dog, cutting the lawn, shoveling the snow and clearing away the political pamphlets."

"Ten cents a week? Don't make me laugh. I used to get $5 a week pocket money, for doing nothing. And look at you, plugging around on that paper route every day just to earn a few miserable dollars. You didn't catch me doing anything like that. You kids lead a pretty hard life."

• • •

"But Dad — didn't you have to work hard in school?"

"Some of the time, son, I'll admit. When we weren't appreciating music, folk-dancing and learning how to live rich, effective lives, we did some work on spelling, figuring, English grammar and stuff like that there."

"Did they really teach you spelling and arithmetic at school, Dad? Gosh, I never would have believed it. You know, sometimes I wonder if you had as soft a time as you pretend, when you were a boy."

PRECIOUS ASSET

We find it in our hearts to be sorry for the retarded child, and sorry to the point where we will build schools for them. But for the brilliant child, little enough is offered. If we are to fully exploit their capabilities they too must receive special treatment.

IN MEMORIAM

COX — In loving memory of my wife, who left suddenly Oct. 8, 1956. — Sadly missed by husband, Willie.

"You left behind a broken heart
That loved you so sincere,
And tear-dimmed eyes that still are wet
As it dawns one lonely year.
Time does not heal a wound so deep,
It merely eases pain,
And I'll remember you, my dear,
Until we meet again."

FOX — In loving memory of Mother, Mrs. Wm. Fox, who left us Oct. 8, 1956. — Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her daughter, Jessie and son-in-law, Ken.

"One lonely year has passed away
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that day
We still remember well.
We do not know what pain she bore,
We did not see her die,
We only know she passed away
And couldn't say goodbye.
We mourn for her in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep."

FOX — In memory of Grandma Fox, who left us Oct. 8, 1956. — Sadly missed by her grandchildren, Roy and Janey.

"It is so lonely here without you,
We miss you more each day,
Life to us is not the same
Since you were called away.
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
Our eyes shed many tears;
God alone knows how we miss you
As this ends the first long year."

FOX — In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, who left us suddenly Oct. 8, 1956. — Lovingly remembered by her daughter, Kay, son-in-law, Ernie, and grandchildren, Glenn and Patsy.

"You can only have one mother,
Patient kind and true,
No other friend in all the world
Will be as true as you;
For all your loving kindness
You asked nothing in return;
If all the world deserted me
To my mother I could turn.
You often said we'd miss you —
These words have proven true;
We lost our best and dearest friend,
Dear Mother, when we lost you.
So if you have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you will never know the heartache
Until you see her vacant chair."

FOX — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Wm. J. Fox, who passed away Oct. 8, 1956. — Ever remembered by John, Greta and grandchildren.

"She was a mother so very rare,
Content in her home and always there;
She guided our path, she helped us along;
If we follow her footsteps we shall never go wrong. . .
We always knew we loved you,
But what we didn't know,
Was how very much we'd miss you
When it came your time to go."

Recent Marriage In Old Dalesville Baptist Church

Kenneth R. Miller officiating. Gladioli in tones of American Beauty and white with greenery, were beautifully arranged to decorate the church.

Miss Lois Silverson, cousin of the bride, played the organ and solos were sung by Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kettyle, of Montreal.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ronald Kennedy, the bride wore a gown of peau-de-soie and Chantilly lace fashioned with a portrait neckline, a fitted bodice, long sleeves, and a bouffant skirt. She wore a shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion and carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Milton Titley, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a frock of ruby-tone shot taffeta with a white feather hat, and carried a cascade bouquet of white poms and red Sweetheart roses. Miss Grace Trussler, niece of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid, wore an Alice Blue taffeta frock fashioned along similar lines, and carried a bouquet of white baby poms mixed with blue. White flowers formed her headdress.

Mr. Keith Pollock was best man, and ushers were Mr. Milton Titley and Mr. Douglas Dixon.

Following a reception in the church hall, Mr. and Mrs. McOuat left for a motor trip through the Eastern States, the bride travelling in a blue wool suit with rose hat, black accessories, and a corsage of rose carnations.

Entertained for Bride-elect

Mrs. Leonard Ayers entertained at "Philengaifair" last Saturday from 4 to 6 p.m. in honor of Miss Diane Carrière, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Léopold Carrière.

The colorful tones of autumn were carried out in a copper kitchen shower which was presented to the bride-to-be.

Robert Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Robinson, left Sunday for Ottawa to commence his studies in 1st Year Science at St. Patrick's College. Bob received the Quebec Regional Scholarship awarded by this university, also a bursary given by the Catholic Women's League, local subdivision. . . His brother, Bill Robinson, is in 10th Grade at St. Patrick's High School, Ottawa.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bishop at Dedication of New Church; Hon. Wm. Cottingham Lays Cornerstone

Over 500 parishioners and friends gathered in the brilliant sunshine at Mille Isles on Sunday morning for the dedication of the new Christ Church by the Rt. Rev. John Dixon, Bishop of Montreal.

The service began with a procession led by flag-bearers Robert Reiter and John Minshall. Bishop's Chaplain was the Ven. Archdeacon F. J. Morris, and assisting in the service was the Rev. Canon C. W. P. Baugh.

The cornerstone was placed by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, and greetings were brought by Hon. Philippe Valois, M.P. The Invocation was said by Mr. Donald MacLeod, representing the Presbyterian Church. Organist was Mrs. Norman Patterson.

The keys of the building were presented to the rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, by the church wardens, Messrs. Gilbert Ryan and Garnet Woods. Then followed the traditional three-fold knocking on the door with the Bishop's staff, and the Bishop's request to be admitted. Following the dedication of the church, the Bishop dedicated the altar linen and other gifts, including a pair of brass candlestick-holders given by Mrs. J. Ward, Sr., of Mille Isles, in memory of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods. A large class of confirmation candidates was presented by the rector.

It was noted that many prominent visitors were present, including Sen. A. K. Hugessen and Mrs. Hugessen, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Beardmore, Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Drury, Col. and Mrs. Garnet M. Strong, Mayor and Mrs. Charles Campbell, and Mayor Arthur Dawson.

"Every-Member Visit" At Brownsburg United

At Brownsburg United Church, the second annual Every-Member Visit is now being planned. It is expected that the next few weeks will again be a time of "new vision and consecration in Christian stewardship" — both spiritual and financial.

Members of the church will visit in the home of every family during the campaign. A congregation dinner will be held on Friday, October 25, and Stewardship Sunday on October 27.

Rally Day Proves Inspirational Event At People's Church

Last Sunday was Rally Day in the People's Church Sunday School. Most of the enrolled scholars were in their places, besides a number of visitors.

A record attendance was established, when 58 boys and girls, also adults, gathered together to celebrate the event.

A beautiful film, entitled "The Master's Face", was shown and very much enjoyed. This featured a little girl, Kathie, who had never attended a Sunday School, finding a Sunday School paper with a picture of Jesus. This led the girl to Sunday School and eventually into a happy Christian experience. She, in turn, led her working mother, troubled and sad, to this happy experience also. . . While the picture ended with a sad note (the death of Kathie's missing father, who was found in a hospital, but who, before his death, made his peace with God), yet it made very clear the Way of Salvation, and made very real the Hope of Heaven. All agreed it was a beautiful presentation of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

In the church service which followed, a special offering was taken for the mortgage fund — totalling $212, in addition to the regular church offering.

Witnesses Meet Here To Approve Petition

Jehovah's Witnesses of the Lachute congregation met recently to approve a petition asking the Dominican Republic to lift its ban of last July 25 restricting the religious activity of the movement there.

According to A. J. Stainton, presiding minister here, the lengthy petition cited specific names and places of police brutality that were personally authenticated by eight of the ten American missionaries deported August 3 from the Dominican Republic. The missionaries related their experiences at a regional assembly in Baltimore, where the petition was originally adopted August 24 by 33,091 of Jehovah's Witnesses in attendance.

"Christian people all over the world abhor such brutality as this," Mr. Stainton said. "We believe freedom-loving people should be informed of it, and we have published the entire statement of facts in our official magazine, The Watchtower, which is published in 46 languages. At our recent meeting, we determined to try to reach every home in Lachute with this account."

Free Clinic Here For Sufferers of Polio After-Effects

Quebec Chapter of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis has just completed a survey of all Poliomyelitis cases in the province, with the object of determining how it can best help those suffering from any after-effects of Polio.

Dr. M. Mongeau, Assistant Medical Director of the Rehabilitation Institute, of Montreal, together with a secretary and a Social Service worker from the Institute, will visit the various Health Unit offices in the province for the purpose of examining all those old or new cases who have any disability whatever and of suggesting what should be done to assist them. There will be no charge whatever for these examinations. The Rehabilitation Institute of Montreal is giving its services free of charge.

Accordingly, the clinic plans to visit the Argenteuil Health Unit at Lachute at 9 a.m. on Thursday, October 10, and it is hoped that all Polio sufferers within the area will attend. The Chapter will later develop steps regarding treatment, bracing, etc., they are found to require.

Volunteer members of the Canadian Red Cross Corps gave 107,685 hours of their time for community service in 1956.

MacVicar-Young Vows Exchanged At Grenville

Grenville United Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Rubina Mary Joan Young, of Montebello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Young, and LAC. Alvin Douglas MacVicar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor MacVicar, of Rivington, on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

The Rev. Ralph Watson officiated at the double-ring ceremony, and the organist was Miss Dora Trineer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and attended by her sister, Miss Grace Young, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Elsie MacVicar, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Gordon MacVicar. Little Miss Bonnie MacLeod was flower girl.

Mr. Leslie Campbell was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Gordon MacVicar, brother of the groom, and Mr. John Campbell.

The bride wore a ballerina-length gown of imported French Chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with fitted bodice with a close-fitting neckline, and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The bouffant skirt had a scalloped hem falling from an elongated waistline. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a matching lace headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of shattered white carnations and orchids.

Her attendants were in ballerina-length gowns of mauve nylon sheer over taffeta, fashioned with sheer bodices, off-the-shoulder necklines, with floating panels falling to the hemline of the bouffant skirts. They wore matching feathered bandeaus and carried semi-cascade bouquets of white and lavender chrysanthemums.

The flower girl wore a white nylon taffeta frock and carried a basket of lavender and white chrysanthemums.

Following a reception in the Harrington Orange Hall, the couple left on their honeymoon to the Eastern States. For travelling the bride chose a yellow tweed suit, black accessories and a corsage bouquet of orchids. On their return they will reside in Montreal.

Among those from a distance attending the wedding were:

Mr. and Mrs. R. Phelps, of Sheffield, Conn.; Sgt. and Mrs. MacDonald and Mr. Al Lapointe, of St. Hubert, Que.; Mr. Raymond Noel, K.C., Mr. Mill Lochwood, Miss Betty Cyr and Mrs. Ruby Watts, of Montreal; Mrs. Murray MacCulloch, of Renfrew, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Al Campbell, and Miss Sharon Campbell, of Lachute; Miss Pierette Robert, Miss Pierette Labrosse, Miss Jeannine Pesant, Mrs. R. Pesant, Mr. and Mrs. John Legault, all of Montebello; Mr. Clayton Young, of Thurso; and Miss Therese Raymond, of Fassett.

APPRECIATION

I take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to everyone who sent me flowers, gifts, cards and letters during the time I was in hospital. Also, to the friends and neighbors who were so kind to my family, I would like to say "Thank you" to all.

Difficulties in New Postal Delivery, Imperative Advice from Postmaster

From the beginning of July you have been informed of the importance of a correct postal address, in order to ensure prompt mail delivery.

We are now sorry to say that a lot of mail is delayed because only 40% of the residents have their mail properly addressed. All the rest of this mail must go through the directory before the letter-carriers can handle it. This mail-correcting gives us an immense amount of extra work, and furthermore, it causes a considerable delay in delivering your mail.

Complaining at the wicket will not help the matter. This situation is no more our fault than your own. Maybe your correspondents forgot to address your mail properly. So they must be advised — relatives, friends, newspaper and magazine publishers, everyone you deal with for business or social mailing — must be advised of your CORRECT ADDRESS.

We recommend to all businessmen who receive the mail at their business place, to install a slot in the door. When the store is closed, the letter carrier will still be able to deliver the mail.

We recommend also that, this coming December, you mail your Christmas cards "first" and add your complete address, so you may receive your Christmas cards from friends properly addressed.

We still have plenty of postal cards to notify your correspondents. They are for your convenience; use them.

We are confident that good will and co-operation will rectify the difficulties within a short time. We are only too pleased to help, at all times; it is our wish that you may enjoy the best possible service.

Touch of Gold for Thanksgiving

As Thanksgiving Day comes around, homemakers' thoughts turn to turkey dinners. Here's an easy way to add an artistic and appetizing touch to the Thanksgiving Day dinner. These buns with a very unusual character will give just one more reason for giving thanks when they're served as an accompaniment to dinner. The squash imparts a delicate flavor and a golden color. If you prefer to serve them at breakfast or as a between-meal snack they're especially scrumptious filled with plump, seedless white raisins.

Thanksgiving Rolls

(Yield — 2½ dozen rolls)

1 Cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup granulated sugar, ½ cup butter or margarine, 1 cup mashed cooked squash, ½ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope active dry yeast, 6 cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup seedless white raisins (optional).

Scald milk; stir in salt, the ½ cup sugar, butter or margarine and mashed squash. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 1 teaspoon granulated sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture and 2 cups of the flour; beat until smooth and elastic. Stir in raisins, if being used. Stir in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 4 cups more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 3 equal portions. Shape each portion into a smooth ball. Cover with a tea towel and let rest 15 minutes. Form each ball of dough into a roll 10 inches long; cut each roll into 10 equal pieces. Shape each piece into a smooth ball. Place balls, about 2 inches apart, on greased cookie sheets. Grease tops. Cover with a tea towel and let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 30 minutes. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

PROCESSED FRUITS NOW BIG BUSINESS

Kelowna, B.C. (CP) — Eating habits of Canadians are changing due to steady improvements in quality of processed fruits, a survey by British Columbia Tree Fruits officials indicates.

"Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen are eating more processed fruit and less fresh produce, a trend noticeable for the last 10 years," the survey found.

"Frozen juice production is the biggest factor in the buying trend, but canned fruit also finds favor with housewives."

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Mary Fran Burke, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stephen Vojtech, one of Canada's top chefs, has been asked to prepare a dinner for the Queen and Prince Philip to be held in Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Ottawa residence October 15.

Mr. Vojtech, executive chef for the King Edward Hotel at Toronto feels that it is an honor to be asked to prepare the dinner but says women should have the honor of cooking in the home.

"My wife does the cooking at home," he said. "Women should have the honor of preparing meals for their husbands and to them should remain this honor."

The good-humored, rotund chef explained that cooking for the Queen and Prince Philip is not a new experience. He helped prepare dinner given in the Ontario legislative building for the Royal couple during their tour of Canada in 1951.

One of the duties of a chef, he explained, is to be able to create his own piece de resistance for any stated occasion.

Mr. Vojtech will include his own recipes in the nine-course dinner for the Queen and Prince Philip. The menu itself is known only to a few members of the chef's staff, high government officials and Mrs. Diefenbaker.

An official in Ottawa already has a shopping list sent by Mr. Vojtech with instruction that the ingredients for the dinner must be at the prime miniser's house no later than the morning of October 15.

Canadian housewives may become the possessors of Mr. Vojtech's secret recipes if he fulfills his ambition.

"I would like to publish a book of my recipes someday," he said.

Restoring Sheen

If your hair has grown dull and limp after the summer months of exposure to water, wind and sun, one way to restore its natural sheen is to use a hair spray.

Spray your hair lightly and brush it thoroughly. This spray and brush treatment should be applied to your hair as soon as you have towel dried it after your shampoo.

Sprays are handy in emergencies and for windy and rainy days.

For that glamorous look you can accent waves or a cluster of curls by spraying them lightly with gold or silver. These streaks or tips may be washed off easily.

Sauce for Chicken

Sweet-sour combination of jelly and prepared mustard makes a delicious sauce for basting broiled or barbecued chicken, says the Poultry Products Institute. Prepare the chicken as usual for broiling or barbecuing, basting with butter until the final 10 to 15 minutes, then spoon or brush the jelly-mustard mixture on the chicken halves. Continue broiling, turning and basting until surface is well glazed, about 10 to 15 minutes.

The recipe calls for ½ cup jelly (currant, raspberry or apple) and 3 tablespoons prepared mustard. Combine jelly and mustard, beat smooth with a fork or eggbeater. Sufficient for two broilers. Serve extra sauce with chicken.

Guard Eyesight in Infancy, Childhood

The following advice on care of the child's vision is offered by a local optometrist for the guidance of parents:

For the first two or three weeks of infancy, the baby should be kept in a shaded room. After this period, the room can be made lighter by degrees each day. Do not expose the infant to a direct flood of light or to the sun's rays.

As the child grows older, insist that he should read under a good light, or not at all. In reading, he should hold his book a distance of 14 inches from his eyes (length of his fore-arm).

The child should maintain a good posture while reading in bed.

He should not read in a train, bus, streetcar, or automobile in motion.

Protect young eyes against glare, with sun glasses (neutral lenses, not poor-quality colored glass, which puts an unsuspected strain on child-ren's vision).

Do not neglect the focus of the eyes. Cross-vision can result in blindness of an eye. It should be corrected within the first few months, otherwise it may persist through lifetime. Orthoptic treatments, correctly followed, will correct most of these defects.

Do not allow a child to play with pointed or sharp instruments.

Ask co-operation of the -school-teacher in seeing that the child wears his glasses when necessary.

In all cases of eye discomfort, consult an optometrist without delay.

White Spots

White spots on furniture, caused by hot dishes or water, can be removed by rubbing the spots with a mixture of machine oil and soda.

Stained Garments

A garment that is stained should not be pressed, as this makes the stain permanent and it cannot be removed without professional help.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Let's look ahead a few weeks. You've got an important date first thing in the morning. As you go to get your car you see the thermometer. It's the first really cold day of the season.

Does the motor spin over and start fast? Or does it groan once and quit?

Are the radiator and cooling system ready for the cold? Or are they frozen as tight as the cubes in your ice box?

If you have beaten Jack Frost to the punch everything will be fine. Now's the time to be sure you will.

Here's what the automotive engineers recommend:

Get the local dealer to check your battery. The colder the engine, the harder to start. The battery is the first victim of the extra load.

Have the cooling system drained, cleaned and supplied with anti-freeze.

Ask him to check the oil and the filter. Most cars used for around-town driving in winter never warm up to the best operating temperature. This is hard on the oil, and it should be changed more often — to protect the metal surfaces in the engine.

Be sure your tires are in good shape. Worn treads increase driving hazards on ice. In regions like Quebec, with heavy snowfalls, snow tires make driving easier, and they prolong the life of your regular tires for clear-road driving.

Act fast and first — so Jack Frost won't catch you napping.

When you are hanging a coat or dress on the clothesline out-of-doors, use two coat hangers hooked in opposite directions. Then the wind will not blow the garment off the line.

Macaroni Medium For Flavor Blend

This is a good time for homemakers to try new recipes which make the most of the flavor-carrying qualities of macaroni products. In this recipe for Cheese 'n Tomato Casserole the macaroni draws the rich, natural flavor of the foods with which it is blended. It's one way to re-discover the eating pleasure of that perennial favorite, Macaroni and Cheese.

Cheese 'n Tomato Casserole

(Yield — 4 to 6 servings)

1½ Cups ready-cut macaroni, 1 cup diced Canadian processed cheese, 2 tablespoons diced onion, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 cup evaporated milk, 1 (10-ounce) can tomato soup, 1 cup soft buttered bread crumbs.

Preheat oven to 350°F. (Moderate). Cook macaroni uncovered in rapidly boiling salted water until tender. Drain and rinse with hot water. Combine macaroni, cheese and onion. Melt butter in top of double boiler over hot water. Mix together flour, mustard, salt and pepper and add to melted butter. Blend. Gradually add evaporated milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add tomato soup. Place a layer of the macaroni mixture in the bottom of a buttered 1½ quart size casserole and pour part of sauce over mixture. Then, continue with layers of macaroni and sauce until all ingredients are used. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake in preheated oven 35 minutes or until heated through.

You can't go "ALL-OUT" If you feel "ALL-IN"

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Children and Money

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

Have you often agreed with the quotation used by Bacon: "Money is a good servant but a bad master"? Is your child learning this? Money is important in a child's world as well as in an adult's. How does your child get the money he wants? By asking you for every cent at the time? From an allowance? From gifts from relatives? By earning it? Another vital question which you, as parents, should consider is — how does your child think of money? His ideas are bound to be colored to a great extent by your own attitude to it.

In your home, do mother and father work together as partners in planning the family budget? Are you "good managers"? — Do you spend too freely? Are you on the miserly side? Do you act as if money is the most important thing in life, which can buy everything you want? Or do you look on money as a tool to be used wisely in building a good life?

Parents keep coins out of a baby's reach so he won't put a copper in his mouth. The danger of choking is too great. Money fascinates a small child. He likes to handle it, put it into little piles, pretend to count it! It is fun to "play store" with real money. But, being a child, he is apt to hide it in a "safe" place and forget where he put it, or lose it altogether.

Children soon learn that grown-ups attach special importance to money. Little Margaret finds her mother's purse on the bureau one day and takes the compact out to play with it. Mother is amused at the powder on her chin. The next day Margaret is delighted to find coppers to play with loose in mother's purse. The child is surprised when mother is annoyed and scolds her for touching her money!

Mother and Dad should not leave purses or change lying around the house. A small child, with no real idea of "stealing", may be used by an older neighbor's child to take this money out to him. Then they both can go on a spending spree, with the younger child warned not to "tell". Children realize at an early age that money gives them the power to purchase candy or ice cream or other desirable treats.

Children learn to handle money through their own experiences. That is why an allowance, begun about the time a child starts to school, is so important. Even if it must be a small amount, five or six cents a week, Junior should receive a definite sum at a certain time on a set day. He can do as he likes with this money. His allowance is not taken away as a punishment. Nor is he forced to set aside part of his money as savings.

When children are given an allowance they do not have to whine or bargain for spare cash. Parents should not pay money as a reward for good behavior or high marks. Neither should a child be paid for home chores. These are part of the child's contribution to the family welfare. But payment can be made for extra tasks quite apart from regular home duties.

It is unreasonable to ask a child to save for technical training or a college education. A child discovers that he must deny himself the pleasure of buying one thing if he wants to save and have the fun of purchasing a different object.

Impatience is a youthful characteristic, and saving has to be for a goal which can be reached before too long. The total amount of savings for a young child should be small. The lesson of discipline is lost if the child "borrows" the additional sum he needs from an indulgent parent. "Pay as you go" is a sound slogan.

Financial authorities in Canada are concerned over the rapid expansion of consumer credit. Last year consumers' borrowing reached a record "high" of $2,469 million. If children are "pressurizing" parents into buying articles they want "on time", the June bulletin of the Canadian Association of Consumers lists important points to consider before borrowing. The pros and cons of buying on credit would make a good topic for discussion in a Family Council where there are older school age children in the home.

Mountains and Suburbs - Betwixt, Between; Roadside Picnic Tables A Need in Quebec

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

Suburbia, Ugh! . . . Returning to the Suburb, we had forgotten about the incessant noise and dirt of the Seaway, the periodic piercing shrieks of the neighbors' children (last Sabbath we were witness to the imminent descent of a chair from a sun-deck upon heads below), the peculiar bellowing sound of a diesel in labor, the whine of power lawn-mowers, the banshee wails of jets overhead. Besides, our nearest neighbor, who is in England, kindly loaned her house for a month to a friend who raises Spaniels. She has seven, at present. In the midst of all this sits, works, prays, sometimes sleeps, the writer — and thinks of the peace of Sunnyacres.

There are, of course, compensations. Water runs in taps instead of brooks, cooking is a pleasure undiluted and uninterrupted by frequent and inexact stoking, the telephone sometimes carries the voice of a friend, as well as the usual formal request for the head of the house. Moreover, there is the storeroom.

Yes, we have that relic of a past age, the storeroom. And one of the first jobs was to make it spick and span for the winter's supply of jellies and jams. My good "char" and I spent a happy two hours cleaning and arranging. Now, when "the world is too much with me," I pop down, open the door on the cool quiet, and gloat. Each section has its fruit and its memories. The ruby raspberry jelly recalls the hot sun and dust, and the smell of a raspberry patch. It recalls, too, the plaintive voices of the others in the family, "Haven't we got enough?" They, by the way, are the jelly-eaters. They eat with enthusiasm, but picking is different. I hope I have not marked their souls with some sinister bruise. We know a young matron who, forced in her childhood to pick raspberries, will not to this day pick one. She has, one might say, a raspberry-phobia.

The red currant jelly represents no forced labor. I did it myself, the crop being poor this year. Likewise the mint jelly. But the apple stuff was a chore shared by the man of the house. We did it, I mean the destemming, etc., sitting out under the trees, the sun overhead and the good, clean, Laurentian piney air all around us. When we eat it, we shall be doubly happy, refreshed by the taste and consoled by the memory. . . There are other treasures in the storeroom, but you who read this in the country have the idea, anyway.

Yes, the house is pleasant, if the surroundings are sordid from our rural point of view. In all fairness, we should point out that we have at the back one of the loveliest gardens in a town noted for its well-kept grounds. We do not refer to our garden, you understand, but the one adjacent at the back. It stretches over two lots and is a delight to the beholder, and, obviously, to its owner, although it entails a tremendous amount of work. There are all kinds of flowers and even two apple trees, with stretches of velvety lawn between. A few vegetables are tucked away in one corner, and thereby hangs a humorous tale. . .

The Cooks, although boasting a fair lawn and a beautiful crab-apple tree, likewise an asparagus bed, do not pretend to be gardeners, since they are away all summer. But we do, each year, put in eighteen tomato plants, the majority in a raised bed against the warm wall of the garage, where they get no sun in the morning, but soak up the western sun in the afternoon. We attend these assiduously until we leave at the end of June, then, except for the occasional few minutes spent in tying them, they are on their own till September. But — and this is what mystifies and enrages our champion gardener-neighbor, we regularly have the best tomatoes in the neighborhood! At the moment of writing, ours are about five feet tall, are laden with fruit in various stages of ripeness, and are obviously happy plants. On the other hand the neighbor's tomatoes are about two feet tall, with little fruit, and have an air of producing that little sulkily. It is a mystery to everybody, but I have two clues. There is a little underground brook beneath our garage; we discover this periodically when the garage wall shows signs of crumbling. One of our friends can remember when it ran gaily down to the river, coming out where now stands a gas station. The other clue has to do with Devon. We buy our plants from a handsome, elderly gentleman from Devon. And in Devon, they know how to grow things, including men and tomatoes. Moreover, in Devon, it is a common sight to see fruit and vegetables grown beside walls. That, I think is the secret. But, from a perverse sense of humor, I have not told our good and puzzled neighbor my suspicions. Truly, the human mind is devious and disgusting. . .

A trivial article, thinks a reader. Well, until all the activities that make up life in a city, start up, life is trivial. The children of the family go back to school, or do not in some cases, owing to the lamentable slowness of building; the head of the house starts out on his rounds of making life difficult for teachers and school boards, or of harrying an office staff, or of being harried, or of printing articles like this one, but the housewife just hitches up her slacks and starts in on the same old round.

We do have the odd break — last week, we had a day at Sunnyacres. As we drove in the lane, a tawny fox slunk across the yard. A handsome animal, although not beloved of farmers. It was on one of those grey, moist, hot days we seem to specialize in lately, and in that light, the apples on the trees seemed to glow shocking pink against chartreuse. We picked several baskets of the crabapples, and a friend reports they were the "peppiest" apples that ever jelled. The man of the house sawed up white birch logs for a friend's fireplace. These logs are not burned, you understand; they are used as decoration in the hearth. You people in the country have no conception of the pleasure a little gift of wood gives here. Which reminds me — I am told "on good authority" that a certain widower not far from here has a wood stove in his kitchen, and that his housekeeper has to cook with it. Knowing the price of wood hereabouts, I doubted it. Next I heard that the housekeeper had died suddenly. No connection, surely, but interesting.

To return to the day at Sunnyacres — it was rounded off by dinner at an excellent hotel in St. Jerome. A good hotel has been a source of pleasure and comfort since time immemorial. One of the saddest words in literature is, "And there was no room at the inn". We are not all in such straits as was the young Mary, but everybody knows the feeling of gratitude and relief at finding, at the end of a long day's journey, a comfortable abiding-place. Long may they flourish! On the economic side, they are good, too. And, speaking of tourists — why, oh why, are there in Quebec none of those simple wooden tables and benches at likely spots beside the road? The cost would be trifling, the convenience great. The head of the house was recently in the Eastern Townships and had finally, in all that beauty, to pull up at the side of the highway and eat in the car. Of course, he could have bought his lunch at a town, but his particular journey and time made the box-lunch preferable, and we know many tourists that prefer to carry a lunch to eat at mid-day, because of the saving in time and the chance to walk about. How about it, Argenteuil? You have the beauty, let us have the lunch-tables.

RED RIDES AGAIN!

Another Hit in TV Series

"The Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays," is the third program in the Trans-Canada Telephone System's science series — a story of how scientists are probing the mysteries of cosmic rays, to be shown on the CBC-TV network, Friday, October 25, at 9 p.m.

The first two programs in the series were "Our Mr. Sun" and "Hemo the Magnificent." Produced and directed by Frank Capra, the third in the series stars Richard Carlson and Dr. Frank Baxter.

To tell the story, Capra uses actors, animation and cartoon characters, science motion-pictures and puppets.

The program is being presented during the International Geophysical Year when scientists all over the world are co-operating in experiments and observations designed to expand the frontiers of scientific knowledge. Cosmic rays are a major area in this investigation.

A total of 2,294 births were attended by Canadian Red Cross nurses at Outpost Hospitals and Nursing Stations in 1956.

The marriage of Ellen Thomson Hayman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayman, Saltcoats, Ayrs, Scotland, to Mr. James D. McLeod, Brownsburg, son of Mrs. McLeod and the late Mr. McLeod, of Dalry, Ayrs, Scotland, took place on Saturday, September 21, in the Brownsburg United Church, the Rev. G. W. Bruce officiating. Mrs. Cedric Wheeler was organist, and Mr. Frank Steere soloist.

The bride, who was given away by Mr. David Clark, of Montreal (formerly of Dalry, Ayrs) was in a gown of ivory brocade fashioned on princess lines, having a fitted bodice with short sleeves and a very full skirt. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a dainty coronet and she carried a bouquet of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums.

Mrs. William Mann, of Brownsburg (formerly Jessie Richmond, of Saltcoats, Ayrs), was the bride's matron-of-honor. Mrs. Mann wore a bouffant gown of deep blue chiffon over silk taffeta and carried a bouquet of shell pink gladioli.

Mr. William Mann, of Brownsburg (formerly of Stevenston, Ayrs) was the best man, and Mr. William Hamilton, of Brownsburg, acted as usher.

Following the reception at the Lachute Golf Club the couple left for the United States. Upon their return they will take up residence in Brownsburg.

Bride Related Here – Pretty Ceremony Solemnized in Powell River, B.C.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in Powell River, B.C., was the scene of a lovely wedding August 28, when the Rev. Sorel officiated at the double-ring ceremony uniting in marriage Jean Margaret Dorothy Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Matthews, and John Simpson Collins, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Collins. The guest pews were marked with sprays of white heather with bows of tulle and white satin ribbon, while scarlet gladioli were used on the altar.

The bridal gown was of white nylon chiffon over white slipper satin, featuring a square neckline with a shirred bodice and tiny shirred sleeves, while a border of iridescent sequins edged the four vertical panels which trimmed the bouffant skirt, and her elbow-length mittens had lily-points. From a jewelled coronet fell her finger-tip length veil, and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses and stephanotis. She wore a triple-strand pearl choker to complement the groom's gift, a pair of pearl earrings, while the groom wore a pair of sterling silver cuff-links, a gift from the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Bruce Smith, wearing a frock of shrimp colored nylon chiffon, with shirred elbow-length sleeves and shirred bodice with dropped waistline and bouffant skirt in cocktail length while her headpiece was a bandeau of white carnations. White carnations were in her trailing bouquet.

Groomsman was Edward Collins, brother of the groom, while Robert North and Bruce Smith ushered.

Soloist was Mrs. M. Savage, accompanied by Miss Rosemary Collins, sister of the groom.

At a reception in the Lawn Bowling clubhouse, the young couple received their guests beneath an archway trimmed with gladioli, roses and ivy, while streamers of blue and white, and large baskets of gladioli were used to decorate.

Assisting with receiving were the parents of the couple. Mrs. Matthews wore a smart navy crepe dress having a scooped neckline front and back with elbow-length shirred sleeves complementing the shirred bodice. The skirt flared at the back, while the front was draped. She wore a navy velvet picture hat with powder blue nylon chiffon trim, with navy and powder blue accessories, while her corsage was of pink rose buds.

Mrs. Collins wore a chic oyster-beige French nylon frock, its empire waist accentuated by the blouse top bodice. She wore an oyster satin hat trimmed with cut beads and small pearls, while her accessories were en tone. A corsage of copper toned roses completed her ensemble.

The bridal table was covered with a lace cloth, made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. E. D. McNeil, of Alberta, who presented it to the couple as a wedding gift. Tall blue tapers burned on either side of a three-tiered wedding cake.

Telegrams were read from Mr. and Mrs. George MacDougall, aunt and uncle of the bride from Lachute, and other relatives and friends.

Assisting with serving were Mrs. R. North, Mrs. Wright, Miss Sandra Scarff and Miss Norma Fleury, while hostess was Mrs. C. Lawson.

The bride's going away costume was a brown wool sheath dress with an empire waistline topped by a leopard short jacket, with accessories of burnt orange and dark brown. With this she wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

Following a trip to Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Collins will reside in Vancouver.

Progress on Trans-Canada Pipe Line

Under construction, and due for completion this year, is the Toronto-Montreal section of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines' natural gas transmission system. Work is in progress at five locations along the 310-mile, 20-inch diameter line in preparation for delivery of gas to Montreal and intervening points.

Construction is also underway on the 33-mile, 24-inch link which will connect the Toronto-Montreal section with Trans-Canada's Niagara-Toronto pipeline. The latter line was completed in 1954 and is being used temporarily to transport United States gas to the Toronto area until Alberta gas reaches Eastern Canada in the fall of 1958.

Completion of the 36-mile, 12-inch line between Morrisburg, on the Toronto Montreal section, and Ottawa is also scheduled in this year's construction program.

Willem De Lint, new champion plowman of the world, looks over his trophy, the Esso Golden Plough, with 16-year-old Ann Lane, of Delta, Ohio, 1957 Queen of the Furrow. De Lint won out over 14 countries. Left, Hugh Baird, of Blackwater, Ontario, the Canadian champion, does some precision plowing during the match. He placed eleventh.

World Plowing Match Championship Leaves N. Ireland, Moves to Netherlands

By Harvey Hawkey, Manager, Canadian Team

Until a few weeks ago, the name of Peebles, Ohio, was virtually unknown. Now, for those who have returned to their homelands after the Fifth World Plowing Match, it means many things: the color and excitement of the first world match ever held in the United States; the intent, 250,000 people who came to see the match and the World Conservation Exposition — the biggest ever held in North America; the generosity of the citizens of Adams County in Southern Ohio, where we stayed; our trip to the United States as guests of Imperial Oil; our tour of New York, Washington and some of the famous farm areas of Maryland and Kentucky.

Peebles, Ohio, also marked a turning point. After a three-year stay in Northern Ireland, the Esso Golden Plough has moved to the Netherlands. On September 20, Willem De Lint was proclaimed the new world plowing champion after two days of extensive competition against 26 plowmen from 14 nations of the world.

"Bill", as he became known during our stay at Peebles, is only 27, but was competing for the Esso Golden Plough for the fourth time. In the first World Match held at Cobourg, Ontario, in 1953, he saw the championship go to Jim Eccles, of Brampton, Ontario. In 1954 and again last year, he saw it go to Hugh Barr, of Northern Ireland, the man who retired before this year's match after holding the Golden Plough for three years.

Close behind Bill De Lint came the two British competitors, John Mason, of Derbyshire, the new reserve champion of the world, and R. J. Miller, of Somerset, who placed fourth. In third place was Arvo Jokinen, champion plowman of Finland.

Although the two Canadian entries did not place as highly this year as in some past world matches, their showing was far from a defeat. Stan Willis, our 40-year-old entry from Cornwall, P.E.I., placed tenth and right behind him in eleventh place was Hugh Baird, 23, the holder of the Esso Silver Plough, emblematic of the Canadian championship.

Farm Vigilance Against Fire

Eternal vigilance, as every smart and prudent farmer in Canada knows, is the price of fire prevention. Otherwise, the fruits of months of toil and the profits of years may vanish.

For every Canadian, and particularly for the thousands now enjoying suburban or country living, without the "round-the-corner" protection of a civic or full-time fire department, what the fire-wise farmer does to avoid giving fire a place to start is worth a good hard look:

1. Lightning. See that the rods are well and truly grounded. If their use has an insurance benefit, it is imperative that the installation and grounding comply with provincial regulations.

2. Gasoline. The smart operator never re-fuels a hot motor; spilled gas can go "boom" in his face. The same goes for a power lawnmower; if the "little woman" or the kids like to trim the grass while you doze in a hammock, don't you owe it to them that they get a safety lesson on gasoline hazards?

3. Matches and smoking. Not to be tolerated in any circumstances around a barn or dry fields. Warning signs on the subject are available freely for the asking from a variety of sources. The owner who puts them up and sees that they are heeded, rates a bow from the volunteer fire brigade. If you must start even a small grass fire, put as much thought into its organization and its control as though you were Montgomery at El Alemein. There's nothing more frightening (and harder on the neighbors' nerves) than a grass fire out of control.

4. Electricity. The "do-it-yourself" amateur is asking for trouble when he works in this department. Be an expert or get one for the job. And play the game with the power commission by insisting, too, on a final inspection.

The best protection against fire in areas off the beaten track lies in prevention against fire starting. The suburbanite who faces up to the four danger zones above will be less likely to have to face fire from any quarter in his quiet enjoyment of life in the country.

STRONG WINDS MEAN WINDFALL

On at least two occasions this summer strong winds have struck this area. No extensive damage has resulted but an inspection of the woodlot will reveal a tree down here and there. Due to the combined action of insects and fungi, a tree starts losing value the minute it blows over — so salvage those scattered windfalls as soon as possible in order to realize the best possible cash return from them.

OUT ON A LIMB

By Stumpy McCulloch

Ol' Elijah was never one to waste words on strangers! The other day a young feller remarked, "Shore looks like rain!" Ol' Elijah didn't reply.

"Do you know Henry Smithers?" the feller asked.

"Why?" Elijah asked.

"He's my grandfather."

"You're Henry Smithers' grandson?"

"Yep."

"Well, in that case, young feller," Elijah said, "I reckon it does look a little like rain!"

• • •

With timber profits going up and up, I think it pays every farmer to find out how he can make his wooded acres produce the most money for him! Lots of fellers have fields that're going to waste — abandoned croplands slowly growing up in poor or unwanted species of trees, with no present value and mighty little future value! Well, sir, if this was my land, I'd plant adapted pines on it — at a cost of only about $10 per acre!

• • •

Or suppose you have an old hillside field with a stand of shortleaf and loblolly pines that are two to 15 years old. I'd suggest cutting out the older and larger wolf trees to make way for the younger trees, which someday will return a handsome profit! And you'll probably make enough money from this first cutting to pay for resetting thin spots by hand or machine.

• • •

Or maybe you have a natural stand of pine trees on moist lowland that you've abandoned as cropland. The stand, say, has 250 trees per acre with an average diameter at breast height of nine inches. You could probably cut 20 cords of pulpwood from this stand, which is now growing at the rate of 300 to 500 board feet per acre per year. I think a selective cutting within five or six years would be a good idea.

• • •

Regardless of the size of your trees or the number of acres, you can always make some money on your trees. Of course, the best profits come from the woodlands that are well-managed over a period of years!

Ol' Zeke's wife phoned to her husband. "Last year we sent Mother a chair for her birthday. What do you think we ought to do for her this year?"

"Electrify it," Zeke suggested.

Bee More Valuable For Crop Polination

Even though Canada's annual beehive produce has been known to reach a value of $9,700,000, the greatest value of beekeeping by far is in the cross-pollination of the many crops honeybees frequent for food, according to the new Encyclopedia Canadiana.

An article on beekeeping and honey production states that each year more and more farmers are coming to realize that the honeybee is indispensable to a stable agriculture economy. In Canada more than 40 crops benefit from cross-pollination by honeybees. Many of the legumes, fruits and vegetables would not produce an economical crop without the aid of the bee.

Little is known of early beekeeping in Canada, although there are records of large apiaries in Ontario and Quebec as early as 1863.

Beekeeping was expanded rapidly during the two world wars, when a drastic reduction in sugar imports increased the importance of money.

Expansion was greatest in the Prairie Provinces, where the vast acreages of sweet clover were ideally suited to honey production. Reports of yields between 300 and 400 pounds per colony were not uncommon in these areas.

Surplus honey was exported to the United Kingdom and elsewhere in 1924 and shipments continued until 1942. No postwar honey was exported because of dollar shortages in Europe. Moreover, in the 1950's honey had to be imported, mainly from the United States, to supply the increasing demand of Canada's growing population.

In the peak year of 1947, there were close to 600,000 bee colonies in Canada. The largest number of beekeepers was 43,000, recorded in 1945. The average annual production of honey for the past 10 years is 32,000,000 pounds.

OUTCLASSES BOYS IN 4-H EVENT

When it comes to judging livestock, nearly 100 boys at London's Western fair found it never pays to "underestimate the power of a woman." Proof of the maxim is Laurel Dale, 16, who outclassed all the boys to become the first girl to win the 4-H junior championship for livestock judging. The pert teenager comes from Clinton, Ont.

New Publication by Mines Dept. Greets Congress Delegates

Quebec City — Mines Minister W. M. Cottingham had a very special document for the 400 to 500 delegates to the Sixth Commonwealth Mining and Metallurgical Congress on their visit to Montreal October 1-2. "Mineral Resources and Mineral Industries of the Province of Quebec," with pictures and colored maps in folder form, was Mr. Cottingham's welcome to the Commonwealth visitors.

The 75-page pamphlet gives a discription of the mineral and industrial map of Quebec's 611,000 square miles, and a sketch of Mining development in the province — first along the St. Lawrence River, then in Western Quebec, later in the Lake Chibougamau region and currently in New Quebec (Ungava), upon which all countries in search of iron ore have set their sights.

"This publication was prepared for release during the meetings of the Sixth Commonwealth Mining Congress as a contribution of the Quebec Mines Department," said the Hon. "Bill" Cottingham. A copy of this pamphlet, with the special geological report on Northern Quebec (Ungava) released earlier this year, was distributed in each room occupied by the delegates on their tour.

The two documents give a concise idea of what the undersoil of the various parts of the province contains, and a description of the various industries which have grown from mining.

The Mining Industry in the Province of Quebec today has reached the half-billion dollar mark, having attained in 1956 the total of $466,946,725. The industry, including extraction of mineral, processing and handling, also covers the employment of more than 135,000 men. (Quebec had a population of slightly over 4,500,000.)

"Going through the documentary prepared by the Department's experts for this visit, the Commonwealth Mining and Metallurgical professionals received an accurate picture of the mining situation in this province," added Deputy Minister A. O. Dufresne, who was one of those to pilot the visitors across the province.

The two documents, printed in French and English, also give a photographic view of the life of the men, women and children living in the various mining communities of the province.

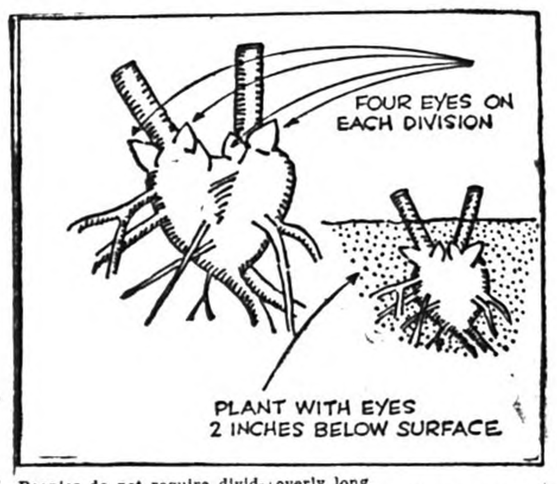

Colored maps are folded into a small envelope glued to the back page of the folder, indicating in color what minerals each region contains as well as the geological possibilities for future exploration and exploitation.

"Mining is no more guesswork in Quebec, and that's what we want to show these men," the Minister stated.

Manitoba land seeded to wheat totalled 3,512,000 acres in 1940. For 1955 the figure was 1,950,000.

Garden-Graphs

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Peonies do not require dividing and resetting every three years as do most perennial plants. In fact, they resent being moved and once planted will grow successfully for many years.

If you plan to make divisions of your present plants, they should be dug up between Sept. 1 and Oct. 15. Dig the old clumps carefully so as not to injure the roots. Cut back the stems to 4 inches. Wash the soil away from the roots with a stream of water to see more easily where to make the divisions. Use a sharp knife and first remove any dead roots and then shorten those which are overly long.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, each division should have pieces of root attached to a portion of the crown and at least four eyes or buds. Dust the cut surfaces with sulphur before planting.

Planting depth is important. Plant the divisions so the eyes are 2 inches below the soil surface, as shown in the Garden-Graph. If the eyes are set too far underground the plants are not apt to be thrifty and therefore often fail to produce flower buds.

Peonies will grow in almost any soil, but prefer a rich clay loam which is friable and well-drained.

HOW DO YOU JUDGE A LAYING RATION?

Many judge the value of a laying ration by the price of the bag. But study the comparison below — Purina against two other competitive feeds. (The names given here are fictitious.)

Feed — total feed used per 100 birds per day	Purina 22 lbs.	Worthmore 25 lbs.	Beacon 31.5 lbs.
Cost per 100 lbs. —	5.00	4.45	4.85
1—Average number of birds during test.	267	247	299
2—Pounds feed per doz. eggs	4.0 lbs.	4.8 lbs.	4.7 lbs.
3—Feed cost to produce 1 doz. eggs	.20	.21	.23
4—Total cost to produce 1 doz. eggs	.26	.27	.28
5—Profit per bird over all costs	.33	.32	.31

Now let's study these figures. Purina cost the most by the bag, with Beacon second and Worthmore lowest, or by many yardsticks of value, the cheapest. But while the birds on Purina used 22 lbs. per 100 birds, those on Worthmore used 25 lbs., and Beacon 31.5 lbs.

In No. 2 it took 4 lbs. of Purina to make a dozen eggs, and nearly 5 lbs. of the competitive feeds to do the same.

In 3 and 4 it cost less to produce a dozen eggs, both by feed cost and total cost; and in No. 5, the profit per bird on overall costs was higher on Purina than either of the other feeds, although they cost less per bag.

But how many would see the extra profit without doing some figuring. GUESSING IS MISLEADING. . . FIGURES PROVE! Won't you get a supply of Purina Laying Chows today. We have Chows for every feeding condition; and we deliver.

Historical Society's 23rd Annual Meeting At Carillon Museum

Two Speakers on Related Topics

Over 60 members and friends attended the annual meeting of the Argenteuil Historical Society, at the Carillon Museum last Saturday. Election of officers for 1957-58, presentation of reports, and adjustments in the constitution occupied the business session of the meeting, presided over by Mrs. George McGibbon.

Mrs. A. Bothwell terminated her faithful services as secretary at this meeting. Her report of activities showed a successful year. Likewise a summary of the Society's finances given by the treasurer, Mr. Leighton York. Several newcomers were elected to the executive and welcomed by the president. The complete slate of officers, as presented by Mrs. Archie Graham on behalf of the nominating committee, was approved by public vote as follows:

Hon. president, Miss Mildred Douglas; past-president, Mr. B. Howell; president, Mrs. George McGibbon; vice-presidents, Mrs. Normand Holland, Mr. Russell Graham, Mr. Clement Tremblay, O.B.E.

Treasurer, Mr. Leighton York.

Recording secretary, Mrs. J. McIndoe.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. Patterson.

Legal secretary, Mr. Fernand Legault, Q.C.

Directors — Miss A. L. Wales, Miss Beatrice Robertson, Mrs. A. Graham, Mr. Fraser Watson, Mr. A. G. Talbot, Mr. C. Tremblay, Mrs. A. W. Pentland, Mrs. W. Papineau, Mrs. A. O. Ponder, Mrs. Hugh Owen, Mr. M. Walker, Mr. L. T. Porter.

Col. Victor Jekyll, of St. Jerome, ardent to preserve the annals of the old Argenteuil Rangers, spoke at length on the records and mementos of this regiment, and their place in the Museum. In connection with a series of articles he is preparing on the history of the Rangers, Col. Jekyll was authorized to borrow from the Museum library such volumes as might prove useful on this subject. Miss A. L. Wales advised that a committee is still engaged in cataloguing the many volumes and documents, and it was agreed that the executive would give thought to possible revision of the policy which has hitherto prevented the loaning of reference books.

The president, Mrs. McGibbon, stated that during the past year the Federal Government had installed an oil furnace in the curator's quarters, and it was hoped at some later date to have oil heating in the Museum proper. The government had also been approached to renovate the third floor of the building, which is presently vacant but suitable for exhibits — the need for such space being more or less imperative. . . Mrs. McGibbon sincerely thanked the executive for their devotion to the Society's interests, and stated that considerable study had been given to adapting the constitution to present-day needs of administration.

The Pre-historic Irishman

A fine address by Dr. C. P. Martin, former Professor of Anatomy at McGill, gave the sparkle of life to a very dead subject, "The Pre-historic Irishman." Dr. Martin — introduced to the audience by Mrs. Ponder as "one of Argenteuil's newer residents" — interspersed with rare Irish wit the story of the Irish from the earliest evidence of their civilization unearthed beneath the sod.

The development of the Irish race proved an intriguing narrative, from which the speaker summed up this conclusion: that the term "Irishman" does not describe a distinct breed, but a polyglot man characterized by time-honored qualities — outlook, accents, loyalties physical attributes — nurtured through generations. The Irishman is a type produced by his environment, since the ice age receded and evolution became enriched with new strains of culture through the centuries. . . "Science teaches us a lesson", concluded Dr. Martin, "that the human race descends from one common stock, and in the sentiment of Churchill, 'Better that we should hang together, else we shall all hang separately'."

Archaeology in Everyday Terms

Another interesting speaker was Dr. J. D. McColl, president of the Archaeological Association of Quebec, who was introduced by Mrs. R. E. Thorne.

Réal Morrissette Resigns as Mayor Of Ayersville

Mayor Réal Morrissette tendered his resignation from the mayoralty of the Municipality of Ayersville, in a letter read before the Council at its regular meeting last Monday. Mr. Morrissette, who has served nine months as chief magistrate of the Village, gave as his reasons an increasing pressure of business which prevented his adequate attention to civic duties.

The resignation was accepted, and a meeting will be held tomorrow, Friday, to select a new appointee to the office. Any taxpayer with property qualifications, as well as any Council member, is eligible for the honor.

Réal Morrissette was elected Mayor of Ayersville by acclamation at last January's elections; his term would normally expire in January 1959. Mr. Morrissette served previously as a West Ward representative on Lachute Town Council.

Elderly Man Injured by Bus

Zeferin Vezeau, 75, of Clyde Street, Lachute, suffered serious injuries Sunday afternoon when he was struck by a local bus owned by Adrien Roy and driven by Leonide Bellefleur, of Ayersville.

The bus was heading west on Main Street after having made the turn off Bethany, when the elderly man walked from between parked cars into the path of the vehicle.

He was rushed to the St. Jerome hospital, where he is reported in a serious condition, having suffered a broken leg, fractured skull and other injuries.

Influenza Closes Catholic Schools

Schools under jurisdiction of the Lachute Catholic School Commission were announced closed on Wednesday morning when the absentee list due to sickness reached a total of 430 pupils. While this procedure was taken by the Commission, a reassuring statement was given by the County Health Officer, Dr. L. Turcotte, that the situation was by no means alarming. There was no indication that the children affected were suffering from so-called "Asiatic" flu, which has invaded other areas. It appears the local cases are a type of influenza best cured by rest in bed.

In Ayersville, classes are continuing as usual, although there are a few children absent.

There are now 200 absentees at the Protestant High School in Lachute. This school will close Thursday for the long holiday week-end — not due to sickness, however, but by reason of the annual Protestant Teachers' Convention.

Lachute Legion Poppy Campaign

Lachute Branch of the Canadian Legion announces that Friday and Saturday, November 8 and 9, will be Poppy Days in Lachute.

The sale of poppies gives the public a chance to aid in a good cause, and with their help the Legion are able to continue their work of assisting veterans and their families who may be in need of help. The Poppy Campaign is under chairmanship of Mrs. H. Simpson, with the following in charge of the various districts which come under the jurisdiction of the Lachute Branch of the Legion:

St. Andrews East — Miss Shirley Woodward.
Carillon — Mr. Chas. Martel.
Cushing — Mr. H. V. Elliott and Mr. Jas. Coney.
Grenville — Mrs. Stan Cavanagh.
Kilmar — Mrs. Leonard Madden.
Lakefield — Miss D. Hammond.
Mille Isles — Mrs. Sicuso.
Arundel — Mr. Melville Graham.

Council Ups Fee for Catholic School Tax Collection Job

A decision passed at the regular Council meeting last week was that the Corporation should charge a fee of $1,200 to the Catholic School Commission for the collecting of its taxes. Ald. Mozart Carrière moved, and Ald. Edgar Pollock seconded the resolution.

Absent from the assembly, chaired by Mayor L. Carrière, were three aldermen — Romain Desjardins, Dr. R. Lavigne and Dr. J. P. Dorion.

Decision on the tax-collection fee was taken after discussion on a letter from the Catholic Commission requesting the same charge as in previous years, namely, $600. Mayor Carrière remarked, however, that the increasing work involved in this job, besides the higher salaries now paid to the municipal office staff, were justification for the increased charge.

Lachute and Ayersville

The Mayor read a letter from the Ayersville authorities requesting a joint discussion on a collector-sewer, and also on tariff charged by Lachute for water supply. . .

It is recalled that this latter question was taken before the Public Utilities Commission, and the two corporations persumably were agreeable on the decision. It was now decided that a representative comprising the Water Committee chairman, Ald. Ross Muir, with a member of the Finance Committee and the Mayor, would meet with the Ayersville authorities on this matter.

Varied Business on Agenda

Another letter, read by the Mayor conveyed the approval of the St. Julien Parish committee on Council's recent action to regulate grills and dance halls.

Building permits were granted to Walker-Kingsbury Inc. and to Lachute Creamery Ltd., both for enlargement of premises.

Ald. Ross Muir was named pro-Mayor for the ensuing three months.

It was resolved to ask Gatineau Power Company to place a light-standard at the intersection of Hamelin and Cloutier Streets, also to move a pole at the corner of Foundry and Bethany.

It was agreed to accept a 10-foot street width ceded by the B-A Oil Company at this spot, in order to round the street-corner, where the company is presently constructing a service station. A fire hydrant will also be re-located.

Accounts totalling $27,149.94 were approved for payment.

City Fathers Commend 'Hops' For Teen-agers

The teen-age dances held regularly every Friday at the Legion Hall, and on Saturday at the Knights of Columbus Hall, came in for commendation by councillors and a number of taxpayers attending the last session of Council.

The subject was brought up by Mayor Léopold Carrière, when the chairman of the Police Committee requested that the services of Special Constable Poirier be retained for another month. Chief Trépanier was asked to patrol the section of Foundry Street near the Legion Hall, in order to keep the road clear for traffic.

The Mayor had looked in at the hall when one of these dances was in progress, and had been pleasantly surprised to note all the young people in attendance. He complimented the Legion and Auxiliary members on their initiative in providing wholesome supervised recreation. Mayor Carrière urged his fellow councilmen to call and see for themselves.

At this point, Mr. Miville Trickey, president of the Chamber of Commerce, volunteered the information that the Knights of Columbus were doing the same good work for juvenile citizens, at their Saturday night dances; and he called on Ald. Edgar Pollock to vouch for the fact — Mr. Pollock having witnessed one of these dances at the hall.

The Council expressed unanimous approval of such ventures. "If we prohibit young people from entering the grills and hotels," concluded Mayor Carrière, "it is only reasonable to give them an alternative. The supervision at the Legion and Knights of Columbus halls is adequate, and I am glad to see our teen - agers frequenting these dances."

Robberies Reported In Northern Towns

The railway stations in Arundel, Weir, Morin Heights and 16 Island Lake were entered Sunday night, thieves escaping with a total of $88, a rifle and various merchandise.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen reports that Oliver Moore's Garage, Arundel, was also entered, some $100 worth of equipment and $30 cash being stolen.

The safe from one of the railway depots was removed and found on the road to 16 Island Lake. Entry to all the premises was made by means of forcing doors or windows.

Over ¼-Million Subscribed to Date In Regional Fund

Subscriptions to the Diocese and Regional Hospital campaign are steadily climbing, according to latest reports from Region 4 headquarters. Returns amounting to $12,000 in the past seven days bring the total for this region to $253,035.40. Donations are listed in the following categories:

General Canvass	$54,574.5
Employee Canvass	38,603.9
Stores & Industries	124,700.0
Clergy & Spec. Names	35,157.0
	$253,035.4

The $12,000 subscribed in the past week represents $2,356.50 by general donations; $6,903 from stores and industries; and $2,610 from clergy and special names.

It is emphasized again by the regional committee that half of the returns from Region 4 (Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews and vicinities) will be earmarked for the Regional Hospital fund — a project which merits utmost generosity and support from the public of this district.

Old Landmark Gives Way to Modern Trend

One of Lachute's older properties the Lavigne residence and former store at the southwest corner of Foundry and Bethany Streets, was torn down last week, and a service station is being erected by British American Oil Co. on this spacious lot.

The residential property occupied by the Lavigne family dates back to 1871, in which year it was built by one Isaie Taillefer, for a hotel. Mr. Taillefer had wood imported from the U.S., and his construction was of the best. The place was bought in 1886 by the late Eucharist Lavigne, who conducted a general store in the ground-level floor, which had previously been used as the bar of the hotel. In the days of Mr. Lavigne's first occupancy there was no sidewalk, and as people plodded to church past his door their shoes filled uncomfortably with sand. The street was built up by degrees, and the old store subsequently beeame the "sous-sol".

In 1900, however, the late Eucharist Lavigne built a store adjacent to his house, around the corner on Foundry Street. Mr. Lavigne sold "everything from soup to nuts", including groceries, dry-goods, even coal, hay and produce. He enlarged the store in 1914, but gave up business in 1936 after 50 years as a general merchant. The premises were subsequently rented, then taken over by Mr. Lamoureux. The early owners of the property, Mr. Taillefer and Mr. Lavigne, have passed to their reward. The site was sold recently to B-A by the Lavigne family.

Contractor for demolition of the old building and construction of the B-A station, is the firm of Omer Laurin & Fils. It is understood the contract price is in the neighborhood of $25,000. It is not yet announced who will be the lessee and agent for B-A.

Work Progressing on $100,000 Bank of Nova Scotia Building

Work on the new Bank of Nova Scotia building, on the west side of the present bank, has advanced to the stage of completing the concrete foundations, which were poured last Saturday. According to the general contractor, Mr. Jim Pollock, it is expected the structure will be completed early in 1958.

Manager Gordon Higginson informed a representative of this newspaper that the building will embody one or two notable departures from conventional design.

The front will be all glass, with exception of a night-deposit panel and door, in conformity with modern banking practice. Above the glass will be the bank sign, in porcelain enamelled letters on a stainless steel panel.

Extending back from Main Street, the larger part of this building will be one storey only, with a ceiling height of 14 feet. At the rear, however, there will be two storeys divided by a steel-reinforced concrete floor. The two levels will contain storage and vaults, with a lunch room downstairs and the furnace room upstairs. This is one instance of a variance from customary planning; it is, however, an old principle, apparent in such ancient structures as Fort Henry, at Kingston, where the soldiers' quarters were downstairs and the horses' stalls upstairs — the idea being that fumes ascending from the horses would not reach the human occupants. The same idea prevails in this instance, where the furnace room is overhead. According to the bank architects (Hazelgrove, Lithwick & Lambert, of Ottawa) this is the first application of an overhead heating plant in a B.N.S. building. The plan provides for no basement.

Construction, apart from the frontage, will be of cement block and brick veneer. All windows are to the west and rear; these will provide ample daylight, in addition to six banks of fluorescent lights across the ceiling of the public banking quarters.

The remainder of the lot to the rear will be asphalted for parking, with access from Main Street on the west side, and exit to Berry Street.

In discussing these features and viewing the plans with Mr. Higginson, manager, we were informed the overall cost — including equipment with such specialized and costly items as vault doors, etc. — is estimated at around $100,000.

Ch. of Commerce Regional Rally Here Next Week

At the last regional meeting of the Laurentides Chamber of Commerce, the town of Ste. Agathe was selected for the next assembly scheduled for October 17.

However, as the agenda included a study of Route 8 and Route 29 and discussion on their maintenance, Miville Trickey, president of the local group, pressed to have the venue of this assembly changed to Lachute, inasmuch as these particular highways are of more immediate concern to this territory. It was also opportune to hold the meeting in Lachute since an invitation had been sent out to Chamber representatives in various Ottawa Valley centres to attend.

Mr. Trickey has ascertained that Mr. Gilbert E. Ayers would personally receive the delegates at the Ayers mills — those who care to arrive early in the afternoon and visit this industry.

Cocktails and a cold buffet luncheon will be served to the visitors. Ladies accompanying the delegates will be guests at the Golf Club during sessions, and will be entertained with music by Pierre Beaulieu, violinist, and Pierre Martineau, organist of the Notre Dame Cathedral, Montreal. In conclusion there will be a banquet in the civic auditorium, where the sessions of the conference will likewise be held.

Correction

The executive of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club have requested that The Watchman's statement last week as to financial returns from the recent Air Show be clarified.

No official statement of the gross proceeds has been released, and the figure stated in last week's issue was not an official one from the committee in charge of the event.

Jury Holds 20-Year-Old Montrealer Responsible in La Baie Murder Case

Appearing Friday on Murder Charge At St. Jerome; To Set Date of Trial

André Harnois, 20-year-old Montrealer, was held criminally responsible in the death of Denis Lehoux, alias Maurice L'Esperance, of Montreal, who was murdered Saturday night, September 29, during a drinking party at a summer camp in La Baie, St. Andrews East.

Inquest was held last Friday evening at the Court House in Lachute, with Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur presiding. Escorted by Provincial Police detectives, and manacled to one of the accompanying officers, the young accused was emaciated of appearance in the crowded court room. He was not called upon to testify.

André Harnois, 20, held criminally responsible

No fewer than seven witnesses were heard, including Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, medico-legal expert, who had performed a post-mortem on the victim, and Sgt.-Det. Gaston Archambault, of the Homicide Squad, who testified he had received a confession from the accused, admitting the murder of Lehoux, alias L'Esperance. Other witnesses were all members of the "party", and with the exception of two, were all juveniles aged 15 to 17.

According to the evidence of these witnesses — Jacques Chapleau, 17, Claude Chagnon, 17, Pierre Cheneville, 15, René Giroux 39 and his twin brother Antonio Giroux, a former Army captain — the shooting occurred in a summer camp rented by René Giroux. Some of the party were in a fairly inebriated state when Harnois pointed a revolver at Lehoux, threatening to kill him. Antonio Giroux disarmed the young man, and found the weapon was unloaded.

As the evidence continued, it seems that Harnois went out alone to a cottage occupied by the other Giroux brother, to replenish the beer supply. A short time later he returned and shot the victim, pointing a rifle through a window from the outside. The bullet struck Lehoux in the right side and penetrated the liver, causing both internal and external hemorrhage. Harnois was again disarmed by the former Army captain, who also gave first aid to the victim. The police were summoned, and Lehoux expired about the time of their arrival.

The revolver and rifle were the property of Antonio Giroux, who could give no explanation how they had come into possession of the accused. Giroux identified the .303 Enfield rifle; he added that during the afternoon preceding the murder, he and Harnois had been practice-shooting with this weapon.

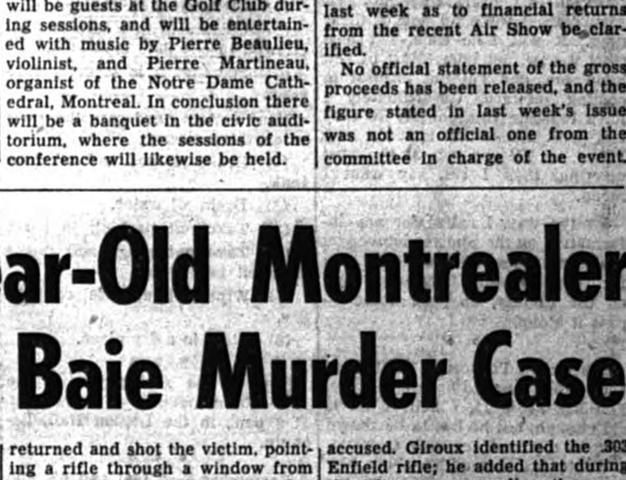

The jury withdrew for only five minutes on the Coroner's summing-up, then returned with the verdict of "criminal responsibility".

The court room was jammed to the doors with a "full house" of spectators.

The prosecution was in the hands of Marc Boucher, of St. Jerome, junior crown attorney.

To Shut Off Water Supply

Town Foreman Jos. Senecal wishes to inform the public that the town water supply will be shut off while undergoing repairs from 1 a.m. to 6 a.m., effective Sunday through Saturday of next week (October 13-19).

First Bear Bagged This Season

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Too many leaves is the answer to the Deer question. Even though a number have been taken they aren't very big, as can be expected so early in the season. The first frost should make the difference.

I have been told about a bull moose that has been seen around this area. The information is unquestionable, as far as I'm concerned. So just a thought; wouldn't it be a great boost to this area, as a sports centre, if the moose was left alone—the only shots at him to be with a camera. Wouldn't they be something to show at the next meeting of the Association?

We were out last Monday to look over the Deer situation. Lots of signs and humerous partridge to be seen. Rabbits are not very plentiful, but maybe they will pick up with the colder weather. We're never satisfied, are we; we want cold weather for hunting, and then warm for fishing.

Fishing in the North River is very good for the Perch and Bass man. Some very nice fish are being taken. The Muskies and Northerns are still a big treat for the spinner, and if you do tie into one of these babies you are going to have some fun. They will be full of fight. The old red and white will be the best of all the baits.

• • •

I'm not sure of this yet, but will let you know if anything comes of it: A chicken shoot might be fun if it comes off. How about the Association getting one of these going? But I wonder if it would be supported. If it is anything like the meetings, it won't be!

Our president, Syd Drew, must be just about fed up with the Association. It's a poor show to have a hard-working committee trying to keep everything going and then not be supported by its members. We all want to have an Association but we never will have one if it is just left to a few. We have a very good game and fish county (it could be improved), and we've got to keep it this way.

If the value of good and sportsmanlike relations with all the tourists could be evaluated it would surprise everyone. That is why we should all help the Association in it's fight for conservation, not only in the Sports picture but in the bush; in fact, everything outdoors. Maybe we'll wake up one of these days. It will take time, but let's start it now, not later. Most of you know me, and I'm not bashful in coming forward. Unfortunately I have to write this politely so they can print it, but that isn't the way I feel. . . I'll see you at the next meeting, then I can say what I mean.

By the way, I asked for any information on the Sports picture you could send me. Phone 1117-R. So far, very few calls. If you want dope on the County, do your share — pass it along.

Mrs. S.: No, I'm sorry I don't think Bill is too young to have a .22 rifle. You say he is 11. I believe he is old enough, but he has to be shown how to use and act with firearms. I would be pleased to show him how to handle a gun. Just give me a call.

The Ducks have slowed right up. Blame the weather again. I haven't seen any Canada Geese going south yet. They should be coming by anytime now. That, to me, is something to see if you are lucky. Sometime I'd like to see some good movies of these geese on the flyways.

Just watching a mess of garbage floating down the North River. I can see that among the junk, there is a mattress, old clothes and a slew of plain ordinary kitchen cleanings.

I know it's a poor subject to write about, but evidently the only way people will be educated to the idea of conservation is to keep hammering at them.

As I have said before, and will probably say again, the North River is the bank account for Lachute, if (and this is a big IF) it were handled properly. In the past this river has been supposedly polluted, etc., with the resultant loss of revenue to the area — by not selling any lots or services to the people who want a summer home.

To those who have spent considerable time on this river, the dumping of sewage, etc., is a bad dream. One which will disappear eventually, but by the amount of dis-interest, shown, that will be a few generations from now.

Other towns are sensible enough to appreciate what has been given them by the Almighty and to make something of it. But not Lachute. Is it because no one has taken an interest in it, or not enough in it for the work involved?

As I see it, the key to this is the support of every store, factory and citizen in the area; and a committee of ways-and-means to figure out what can and must be done. The sooner the better!

Of course the amount of work involved is terrific. It won't be all done in our time, but let's leave something for the future sportsmen and women to finish up and be proud of.

The boating is about over now. So if you already have the boat out, here are a few suggestions on the care of it during the winter:

(1) Be sure it's on a cradle off the ground.
(2) Perfectly level.
(3) Upside down.
(4) Cleaned of all gas and oil.
(5) Covered with a tarp and air allowed to circulate around it.
(6) See that it is securely fastened.

Your motors need care the same as anything else.

(1) Drain all gas and oil from tank.
(2) Drain all water.
(3) Take out packing in shaft.
(4) Take out plugs and put a little oil in pistons.
(5) Wipe all electric contacts dry.
(6) Store in a dry place.

Hope to be seeing you at the Association meeting — October 21, at 8 p.m., in the Legion Hall, Lachute.

Colford Lodge Ends Notable Chapter Of Victories

Last Sunday Colford's Lodge edged the Argenteuil League All-Stars 4-1, to remain undefeated for the season.

The All-Stars, consisting of Dalesville, North River, Lake Sir John and Lakefield, showed great defensive work but lacked power at the bat. They pulled off a beautiful double play and made some terrific catches.

Jean-Guy Larocque pitched another outstanding game for the winners, striking out 20 of the 25 men who faced him. Peter Brewer got the only hit for the losers, this being a single in the fifth inning. Colford's played minus three of their big hitters, Charlie Moseley, Fernand Larocque and "home-run king" Mel Stewart.

Larocque pitched and won all 27 games for Colford's this season, running his record to 84 wins and 9 defeats for the past four seasons.

This Saturday the boys will be presented with jackets, at their annual party at the Lodge. The ball players take this opportunity to thank Tony Colford for his fine sporting spirit as sponsor of the team.

More Spills, Thrills At Rigaud Park

Rigaud Park is affording the last chance this year to see motorcycle favorites in action, on Sunday, October 13, at 2 p.m. Labelle, the promoter, announces the best program of the season, featuring professional cyclists from across Canada and the U.S.

These drivers all have but one thought, to be declared winner, even though it may mean a few scratches. On the preceding program, two drivers crashed through the safety fence, on Bend 4; this did not deter the others, who sped recklessly on, finishing "en masse" and the judges having to declare two winners.

This week, there will be an Obstacle Race, which promises many laughs. Also on the same bill, one of the most daring riders in this province, riding at hazardous speed, will crash through a flaming wall.

The public is adequately protected from all accidents. Free parking and several restaurants are available. Rigaud Park is situated on Route 17.

The program is sponsored by the Verdun Motorcycle Racing Club, and sanctioned by the Canadian Motorcycle Association. -1c

Hole-in-One for Geo. Tattersfield At Carling Lake

The fine weather last week-end attracted a number of golfers to this popular sport, among whom was one who came away particularly happy after achieving the "golfer's dream" of a hole-in-one. George Tattersfield of Ayers Limited, while playing the ninth hole at the Carling Lake course, which is reputed to be difficult, shot the the 139 yards with a No. 7 club, to land the ball fair and square in the hole.

Witnesses of his feat were Messrs. Eddie James, of the Penman Company, St. Hyacinthe, Archie Woods, of Courtald's, Cornwall, and Ken Mills of Dominion Textiles, Montreal — all colleagues in the textile business with whom Mr. Tattersfield was enjoying the spell of relaxation.

Booklet Available On Deer Hunting

"Deer Hunting Hints," a 61-page booklet, complete with diagrams and illustrations on the techniques of deer hunting, has been published by the ammunition division of Canadian Industries Limited.

Written by expert hunters and illustrated by the well-known Canadian wildlife artist, Clarence I. Tellenius, of Winnipeg, this booklet contains information chiefly for the novice hunter and yet, interesting to the veteran. Its 11 sections cover such ground as a description of the deer species in Canada; guns and ammunition; tables of ballistics; clothing and equipment for deer hunters; and how experienced hunters actually stalk their quarry.

Copies of this booklet can be obtained by writing Canadian Industries Limited, Ammunition Advertising, P.O. Box 10, Montreal, Quebec.

Stan Leonard and Al Balding to Represent Canada

Stan Leonard and Al Balding have been selected to represent Canada in the Canada Cup golf matches in Tokyo, October 24-27 — Bill Kerr, president of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association, announced last week.

The two players also made up Canada's team in last year's international matches in England and have been playing on the United States professional tour this year.

Leonard, playing out of Lachute, won the Greater Greensboro Open in North Carolina this year, the first victory for the veteran pro in a circuit tournament.

Balding, who registers out of Bigwin Inn, Ont., won the Miami Open and was runner-up to Dick Mayer for the world title in August at Chicago. He is among the top 10 money winners on the pro circuit.

Balding was a regular on the pro tour, playing in almost every tournament. Leonard picked his spots, rarely playing more than three tournaments without a week's layoff.

SPORTS OVERLAPPING

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Overlapping of sporting events is becoming common. There was a time, up until the last decade or so, when there was an off-season between the playing of the various forms of sports, notably between baseball and football and between hockey and baseball; today it is different.

Yellow Clothing Safest For Hunter in Woods

San Francisco, Cal. (UPI) — If you are heading for the hills, men, to do a spot of deer hunting, the odds are 4-1 better that you'll return alive if you wear yellow hunting clothes instead of the traditional red.

Tests have been going on for nearly a year now to prove that yellow is easier seen in the woods than red and the results have been so conclusive that manufacturers this fall have put on sale yellow hunting togs.

Tests have been made at Fort Lewis, Wash., Fort Ord, Calif., and in the Skokomish Valley of the Olympic Peninsula in Washington.

The tests were promoted by the California Optometric Association, National Rifle Association and California Department of Fish and Game with the co-operation of the U.S. Army.

Notable Results

The tests showed:

At Fort Lewis, conducted in an area typical of a rain forest. Trees were bright green, grass brown. The various colors qualified in this order: yellow, yellow fluorescent multicolored plaid, orange, orange fluorescent, blue, red, green. Tests were taken at 50, 100, 150 and 200 yards. Yellow could be considered between four and five times more easily found than red.

Olympic Peninsula test (where a hunter had been killed a few days before wearing red jacket and red cap). Ground was covered with five inches of snow, evergreens camouflaged by snow, contrasting darkness from stumps, logs and deciduous brush. Sunshine brilliant. Colors qualified in this order: yellow, yellow fluorescent, orange, orange fluorescent, red fluorescent, green, red, blue plaid.

At great distances according to a Navy test, yellow tended to become white and would not be suitable as a "survival color" in snow country.

It's Safest

But most hunting accidents occur at 50 yards or less, so for the hunter, yellow is considered far and away the safest.

With about 300 men killed and 3,000 injured in hunting accidents each year, the purchase of yellow hunting clothes appears as an important link in the art of survival.

The general belief is that animals do not care what color you wear — they all are color blind, anyway. Only thing they can see is brightness and movement.

So who thought of red as a safe color in the first place?

Brrrrr.....
IT WON'T BE LONG NOW!

Yes, folks, the shorter days and colder nights are noticeable already. Pretty soon the colder days will be here!

The furnace has been idle all summer, but from now on it will start to eat up the coal or oil, and the cost of heating will be added to the family budget. We all expect this increased cost during the winter.

But I work for you all year 'round! You don't give me as much to do in the summer months, nor do I have to work such long hours, but with the cold weather and shorter days I know you will expect me to do all sorts of extra work and you will keep me working longer at the regular year round jobs!

For instance, in the winter you will ask me to do a great many things:—

Keep the lights on more hours: Buy a box of bulbs now so you won't run short!

Keep the TV on for all those good programs that are starting for the winter.

Run your oil burner night and day! Did you have it checked over and cleaned?

Heat your water from a lower temperature to the same temperature as you like to have it in the summer: By the way, have you put the insulation on your water tank yet?

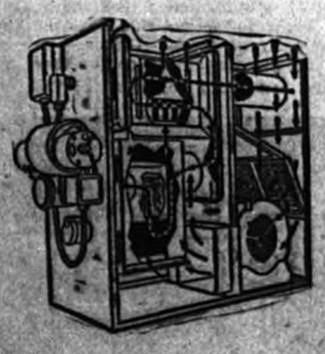

Keep your car heated on cold nights: Put your anti-freeze in early!

Look after your extra cooking and baking in the holiday season!

Operate the clothes drier more frequently!

Welcome to Her Majesty

Thanksgiving and the Royal Visit

"WELCOME Queen Elizabeth! Welcome Prince Philip!" will be in the hearts of tens of thousands of Canadians on Thanksgiving week-end this year. The interest of the whole nation will be focused on the movements of our famous visitors in our beautiful capital. Great crowds will gather there to catch a glimpse of the royal couple as the Queen opens Parliament on Monday, October 14. The press, radio and TV will combine to give folks in distant places, in the Rockies, on the prairies, in the north country, on the shores of the Great Lakes, in Quebec, and in the Maritimes and Newfoundland, a sense of participation in this historic event.

Our first official Thanksgiving as a Canadian nation had a royal connection too — notes our regular contributor, Nancy Cleaver, who has made some research into dates and origins. It was on April 15, 1872, when our government asked us to thank God for the recovery of the Prince of Wales from a long and serious illness. Later when he became ruler, Canadians on August 9, 1902, celebrated the Coronation of Edward VII with another Thanksgiving Day. There were two special Thanksgivings associated with Queen Victoria, one on June 21, 1887, marking the fiftieth anniversary of her ascension to the throne, and ten years later on June 22, 1897, Canadians rejoiced in the great Queen's Diamond Jubilee.

In many lands Thanksgiving, as well as being a festival of family reunions, marks the Harvest Home season. Our neighbors to the south trace their Thanksgiving to the Plymouth Colony. There in 1621 the Pilgrim Fathers gave thanks for their first harvest. In the U.S. Thanksgiving is observed on a Thursday late in November, while our Canadian Thanksgiving is more than a month earlier.

We have experimented with different dates. After the First World War we tried combining Thanksgiving and Armistice Days. These two events were observed on the Monday of the week in which November the Eleventh fell. But this dual celebration satisfied no one, especially the veterans. To their credit they made their protest known and Parliament in 1931 set aside the second Monday in October as Thanksgiving. With the exception of 1935 when Thanksgiving was postponed until Thursday, October 23, because of a general election, the second Monday in October has been a popular Canadian Thanksgiving date.

Fire Prevention Week, October 6-12 —

The Ghost of Mrs. O'Leary's Cow

NEARLY ONE HUNDRED years ago, in the City of Chicago, lived a cow which, while it never won a blue ribbon at any livestock show, was none the less destined to become world famous. It belonged to a Mrs. O'Leary and, one fateful night in the year 1871, it kicked over an oil lamp in the barn, starting a fire which devastated almost all of the city. One hundred thousand people were rendered homeless, nearly five hundred died, and property damage ran into the millions.

Today, the spectre of Mrs. O'Leary's unfortunate cow lurks in thousands of Canadian homes, ready at any moment to "kick over the lamp" and reduce them to rubble and ashes, with perhaps the tragedy of death as an aftermath.

Last year, in Canada's dwellings and working places, fire claimed 601 lives. It burned and disfigured three times as many more. It wasted more than $115 millions in property, and the indirect loss to the national economy was perhaps ten times this amount.

This reflects the pattern of our fire destruction for the past 10 years: a total of 5,082 lives, 16,000 men, women and children scarred, and a direct financial loss of $878 millions, more than enough to build two seaways.

The tragedy is that most of these 647,000 fires in the decade were caused by human carelessness and neglect of simple rules of fire safety and common sense.

This is the message for Fire Prevention Week from Canada's army of 27,000 firemen, professional and volunteer. And while the message is highlighted at Fire Prevention Week, in accord with proclamation of the Governor-General, it is stressed by the fire services every day of the year in every community of the nation.

The message is: "Don't give fire a place to start." And, giving utterance to the hapless victims, especially children, women and folk of senior years: "Don't leave us alone with the hazards of fire." . . . This fervent message, told and re-told, has become a national crusade.

Are we so blessed in our abundance and people, that we can afford to ignore a record of waste and tragedy? That we can fail to wish there were more and larger ash trays in every home? That we can fail to see that our stoves and heating equipment on which we must depend for seven, even eight months a year, are kept in good working order? That rubbish and trash breed fire? That the difference between a 15 and 30 ampere fuse in an already over-worked electrical circuit can be deadly? . . . That the 233 children who perished last year — many of them unattended — were more than were lost in the peak years of polio?

Per head of population, Canada's fire loss for the last ten years has been one of the world's worst.

Alarmed and shocked by the situation, the two Associations of the nation's provincial and municipal fire services united three years ago in an educational program, directed especially to the home. Voluntary home inspection was encouraged.

For the first time, a reduction, if only a slight one, may be reported in our per capita property loss. Excluding forest waste, the figure for 1956 is $7.21, compared with $7.36 for 1955.

This is a step in the right direction and offers hope. But loss of life and property still emphasizes a perpetual challenge, to be met with earnest thought in every community.

Public Opinion on Lachute Fair

ON TUESDAY EVENING next, representatives of the various service clubs in this area will be meeting with the directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society in an effort to reorganize certain aspects of the Lachute Spring Fair.

In a series of three editorials published early in the summer, we suggested that something similar to this be worked out, and we are pleased to see that the suggestion was taken constructively, the way it was meant, and not as criticism. The Lachute Spring Fair means a lot to a large percentage of citizens of the area and, as well, it brings much-needed publicity to Lachute.

It is up to all to co-operate with the directors in maintaining the Fair at its present high standard and we feel that it is up to us to point out matters which we think should or could be improved upon. Our editorials were not running down the directors for hiring a "bunch of crooks", as we do not feel that they have any choice if the midway is to be run in the same manner. We were attempting to find another solution, and with the co-operation of all service clubs and other similar organizations, we feel that this will be forthcoming.

Man Assists Nature

A PROJECT with the dual purpose of enhancing the scenic grandeur of Niagara's Horseshoe Falls and preserving them from excessive erosion has been successfully completed.

A 1,500-foot wing dam has been built out into the Niagara River above the Falls from the Canadian side. It is equipped with 13 gates to distribute the flow of water across the entire width of the river. For centuries the flow had cut deep into the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side, drawing more and more water down them and speeding erosion. The Canadian and United States governments shared equally in the cost of the dam amounting to $13,500,000.

The project is typical of the work being done to preserve nature's handiwork for the enjoyment of hundreds of thousands of tourists from all over the world who annually visit North America's most popular scenic attraction.

Cars from all Canadian provinces and every part of the United States are to be seen on the 35-mile-long Niagara Boulevard, and frequently during the summer they occupy nearly every inch of parking space on the highway in the vicinity of the Falls.

American visitors come to Canadian soil for a panoramic view of the American and the Horseshoe Falls. But the visit also serves as an introduction to the delightful park area bordering the Niagara River frontier between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

From Old Fort Erie the highway takes the tourist to Niagara-on-the-Lake through a historic countryside that recalls the War of 1812 — the battles of Lundy's Lane and Queenston Heights, the heroism of Laura Secord, Sir Isaac Brock and Col. John Butler of Butler's Rangers.

The natural splendor of the entire area is a matter for wonderment and just as remarkable is the way man has embroidered it with floral artistry in gardens and parks.

Even projects that harness Niagara's torrent for power purposes are carried through without marring the scenic beauty of the district. Hidden from the tourist are great concrete lined tunnels running under parks and highways, even under the City of Niagara Falls itself, that carry millions of tons of water from the river to the generating station of the Hydro-Elecric Power Commission of Ontario at Queenston.

25 YEARS AGO

October 13, 1932 —

In the windstorm of Tuesday morning, a horse was electrocuted by a fallen power-line, while teammate and driver escaped death by a narrow margin of good fortune. Arthur Mondoux was driving his team across the West End Bridge when one of his horses was killed immediately by contact with a falling wire. The line narrowly missed the driver, and although it was some time before electricians were on the scene and shut off the power, the current did not reach the second horse harnessed in the team.

Electric lighting equipment on the Grenville-Hawkesbury bridge was expected to be completed last week-end; the attractive fixtures will brighten the general appearance of the bridge and afford better illumination at night.

Misses Marion McVicar, K. Clunie Agnes McMahon, Doris Armstrong and Lorna Cliff, and Messrs. Stewart Jones and Gordon Anderson have returned to resume their studies at Macdonald College, after spending the week-end and holiday with their parents.

It is announced Dr. L. P. Sauvé of Lachute, has been appointed Joint Coroner for the District of Terrebonne.

A pool room has been opened in Lachute at the rear of Desjardins Hotel.

A new and up-to-date "eating place" has been started in town by the Misses Giroux. It is called the Cosy Inn and is situated next to the post office on Main Street.

Opening of the 25-foot channel in the St. Lawrence was celebrated by an excursion to Quebec in the steamship "Peruvian", which draws a depth of 25 feet.

A number of men leaving here for Messrs. Campbell, Campbell & McKenzie's shanty on the North River were arrested in St. Jerome for creating a disturbance.

A story in today's issue records the removal of an old Bethany Street landmark, the home of the late Eucharist Lavigne, built in 1871. Across the street is another structure, built in 1905 by the late O. B. Lafleur; this is the home now occupied by his grandson, Dr. Jules Lafleur. . . And thereby hangs another story.

In the attic of this spacious dwelling are musty volumes dating back to the last century, besides other objects which fascinate the large, young and adventuresome family of Dr. and Mrs. Jules Lafleur. One of their boys turned up a book in tooled and pebbled binding, entitled, "The Reason Why" — a scientific treatise which is interesting but by no means unique. On the fly leaf is pencilled a name, "Angele Groulx, 1880" — this lady having probably been a school teacher and the book later owned by one of her pupils, the late Pete Lafleur, M.L.A. — according to Dr. Lafleur's surmise. Both the publisher and the bookseller — Dick & Fitzgerald, 18 Ann St., N.Y., and John Dougall, St. James St., Montreal — are names long extinct in this line of business.

A point of greater local interest, however, is one of the newspaper clippings found in this volume — an obituary from The Watchman and Ottawa Valley Advocate of June 1, 1883, from which we quote this example of pathos and old-style journalism:

Death's Doings

Death has been busy during the past week, and among the old residents Mr. Richard Hardie and Mr. Samuel Clelland have been cut down and their friends left to mourn their loss. But the severest shock comes from the ruthless hand of death when it strikes the bloom of youth and suddenly snaps the vital cord. In this connection, the death of Mr. George Wise, a young man of twenty years, and brother of the Rev. D. W. Wise, is a peculiarly painful circumstance. He had just come from England full of youthful vigor and expectations of a bright future in this fair land of promise for young men of his stamp, but is seized with violent inflammation of the lungs which in eight days of intense suffering, puts an end to his life, despite all the efforts of tender nursing, the most vigilant and skilful medical attendance and every earthly attention. Three weeks after bidding good-bye to his father, mother, brothers, sisters and friends at home, and about ten days after a joyful meeting with his brother here he bids a long farewell to all on earth and journeys across the stream of death to the fair clime above. Throughout his sickness he was extremely patient and resigned. His brother, the Rev. Mr. Wise, scarcely left his bedside until the last breath was drawn, and then burst out into a paroxysm of grief which could no longer be controlled.

Life insurance companies must report their financial operations to the Superintendent of Insurance.* According to the latest official figures here are the facts about the Life Insurance Dollar:

Where each Dollar comes from:

74¢ comes from premiums paid by policyholders for insurance to protect their wives and families . . . and for security in their own old age.

26¢ comes from earnings on policyholders' funds. These funds are invested under Government supervision and help to develop Canada.

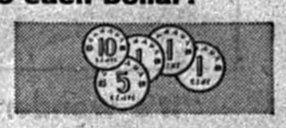

What happens to each Dollar:

82¢ is for policyholders.

43¢ is paid out to living policyholders and to beneficiaries.

39¢ is invested for future benefits to policyholders.

18¢ is used for normal operating expenses which include taxes, licenses and fees paid to Governments.

*The latest report from the Superintendent of Insurance, Ottawa, shows that in 1956 the life insurance companies in Canada paid out $371 million in benefits to policyholders. By far the greater part of this money ($236 million) went to living policyholders.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Let's Break Records

The poet, Walt Whitman, claimed that out of every fruition of success no matter what, comes forth something to make a new effort necessary.

My daughter, Sal, told me just last night that "Homework is like doing dishes — you get more to do the minute you finish one assignment."

That's life, isn't it?

Be glad about it. It means that you can always raise your sights. It means that there is no end, no "good enough", no vegetating.

Persons and nations are much alike. Nations that embrace a form of government that is hidebound and static, and blue-printed from the top down, gradually stagnate. Nations like our own, based on democracy, with a great deal of freedom for the individual, can continue to improve steadily. We can raise our sights. We can change. We don't have to sign a form every time we turn around, the way they do in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, or any other country where everything is run by the government.

To you, as an individual, Walt Whitman's observation is vital. It makes you take a look — a hard look at yourself. Have you fixed your sights a little higher this week than last?

Dr. Roger Bannister, the first man to run the four-minute mile, recently wrote in This Week magazine that "We should never be hypnotized by any mental limitation. We can always raise our sights."

He claimed that the record set by Walter George back in 1886 for the one-mile race went unbroken for so long because of a psychological rather than a physical barrier. Runners had it in their minds that a 4-minute mile was impossible. But once Bannister proved it possible, the barrier was broken. Inside of three years, the 4-minute record was broken on 26 occasions by 16 runners!

So, if there are any lessons clear in this life, we can all improve by raising our sights. By refusing to be hidebound. By denying old limitations.

Likewise, this Canadian nation, if it will remain free, can make progress beyond our past dreams. Unbound by bureaucratic chains, free to grow, and eager for a richer and more dynamic life, this young country can be a pace-setter for the world.

WHO TOOK IT?

Victoria (CP) — A book borrowed 30 years ago, mouldy, tattered and torn, has been returned to Victoria Public Library. It was found in a deserted house on Vancouver Island's West Coast.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Western scientists have taken the news of the Russian satellite like true sportsmen.

Both the Americans and the Russians were trying to knock a mechanical ball into the sky first. The Russians made it. From the American ranks came a burst of well-bred applause, like clapping for an opponent's good stroke in a celestial cricket match.

Is this the spirit that wins a world series, or a cold war? "Good shooting fellows," the western scientists are saying. "It couldn't happen to a nicer team."

But scientists are noted for their poor competitive spirit. Some of them are not interested in winning anything. The extremists among them don't even want to kill any foreigners. They just want to find out things.

Even when they are playing hard for their own side, however, they respect the achievements of other scientists, no matter whose colors they wear.

There are scientists on both the big teams. Are they bringing back some of the old spirit of knightly sportsmanship to the struggle for power between nations?

They're Gentlemen

No doubt of it: the scientists are gentlemen. If war breaks out, their presence on both sides may give the fight a measure of grace and goodwill which has been absent too long.

One can imagine radio messages passing between them soon after the start of hostilities:

"Well played, Russians, you have just destroyed New York."

"Congratulations, Yankee comrades, your last rocket with hydrogen warhead made a direct hit on the Kremlin. Moscow is a radioactive swamp."

"Oh, hard luck. You missed New Orleans. But you knocked off a good slice of Chicago."

"Sorry, Latin American friends. We seem to have obliterated Buenos Aires."

"Quite all right, Senor Russian fellow-scientist."

"America calling. Well done, Russians. Your missile was a direct hit. All the citizens of Little Rock have been integrated at last."

"Russians answering. Sorry to say your rocket went astray, and liberated Budapest. Better luck next time."

Historical Society's 23rd Annual Meet

Literally a "down to earth" exponent of his subject, concerned with practice as well as theory — Dr. McColl had been at the St. Andrews Golf Club recently with members of his Association digging for relics.

The archaeologist was described as one interested in the pages of history which pre-date the written chronicle. Although familiarly known as pot-hunters, these people are primarily concerned with the relics of customs and cultures — they are interested in "things" only insofar as they indicate the story of humankind. The archaeologist is, therefore, not too distantly related to the anthropologist.

There are 50 members, almost entirely amateurs, in the Quebec Association. In existence only three years, they have conducted several minor excavations — at Lanoraie, Cornwall, Oka Beach, and latterly St. Andrews East — and have produced results of some value.

Unlike Old World archaeologists, their explorations deal not with the builders of deep-seated habitations, but with a migratory race — hunters, fishermen, and to a lesser degree, agriculturists. The excavations are in comparatively shallow depths, where the Indian predecessors have left evidences of interesting customs and strange burial practices.

After briefly describing the procedures of surveying, gridding, and finally correlating the results of an "organized dig" — in conclusion Dr. McColl invited the co-operation of residents hereabouts, in reporting to the Association any casual finds of archaeological interest.

Both speakers were cordially thanked by Mrs. Norman Holland, on behalf of the audience.

Tea was served by the ladies of Pioneer Women's Institute. The members took occasion to view many new exhibits in the Museum rooms, and noted also the addition of some new show-cases. The condition of the Museum and grounds was a credit to the curator, Mr. Lund, and the benign atmosphere of a perfect day contributed to the general pleasure of this autumn highlight.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bishop of Montreal At Trinity, Lakefield, For Confirmation Rites

Lakefield — On Sunday afternoon, September 29, the Rt. Rev. John Dixon, Lord Bishop of Montreal, visited Holy Trinity Church, when a class of 18 were confirmed.

Twelve boys and five girls from the churches in this parish were presented by Canon C. W. P. Baugh and one boy from Brownsburg was presented by Rural Dean the Rev. C. R. Lang, of Lachute.

Assisting the Bishop were Archdeacon Morris, Canon Baugh, the Rev. Lang and the Rev. Horace G. Baugh. The Bishop expressed pleasure at such a fine class of young people.

The church, filled to capacity on this occasion, was decorated with autumn flowers. The organist and choir from St. Simeon's Church, Lachute, were present, and during the offertory rendered the anthem, "Come Unto Me."

After the service the congregation were invited to the Gibb Hall for afternon tea.

50th Anniversary at East Settlement United

On Sunday, October 13, at 2.30 p.m. the members and adherents of the East Settlement United Church will celebrate 50 years of Christian witness in East Settlement. It is felt that Thanksgiving, 1957, is a most appropriate time for gratitude to Almighty God for all His mercies, and friends who have any connection with the East Settlement Church are invited to this service.

Special Speaker at St. Andrews East on Church Work in Guiana

The Rev. Neil Ramsaroop, from British Guiana, will be guest speaker for a special Thanksgiving service to be held in the Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews East, at 7.30 p.m. on Sunday, October 13.

Mr. Ramsaroop was ordained in 1944 and is minister of Ramdeholl Memorial Presbyterian Church in New Amsterdam, British Guiana. Prior to coming to Canada a year ago to pursue further theological studies in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, Mr. Ramsaroop was moderator of the Canadian Presbytery in British Guiana.

Everyone will be welcome at this service, and it is hoped that many will take this opportunity to become better acquainted with the work of the Christian Church in British Guiana.

"Pound Day" at Children's Home

Plans are in progress for the eighth anniversary and "Pound Day" at the Orange and Protestant Children's Home, Rosemere, Que., and a special appeal is made to all members and friends who love little children, to come and bring along a donation of canned goods, vegetables, potatoes, etc., to help the president and Board members fill the pantry and store-room for the winter months. Each year this day is set aside for members and friends to meet at the Home, and bring in their gifts to help in this worthy cause.

Anyone who wishes to contribute and is unable to attend may kindly phone Lachute 359.

Thank-offering donations to Lachute United Church next Sunday, will also be sent to Rosemere.

Rev. Wilson Bridge Heads Ministerial Assn.

The regular meeting of the Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association was held Monday in the United Church hall, Lachute. The chair was taken by the president, the Rev. H. G. Baugh.

After the usual devotions, the president called on the Rev. Canon Paul Manseau (who was accompanied by Mr. P. Ouellette, Social Service officer for Lachute Town), to address the gathering. The Canon explained at some length the purpose and activities of the Social Service organization in the Diocese of St. Jerome. He pointed out that the organization was recognized by the Provincial Government and was seeking to help all persons regardless of creed or race in the County of Argenteuil. The speaker hoped that all who desired the betterment of needy people would co-operate in this worthwhile work in the community.

General discussion followed and many questions were kindly answered by Canon Manseau and Mr. Ouelette. Canon Manseau agreed that, "if we had got together" and the Protestant clergy been properly informed on the Social Service and its part in Lachute Federation of Charities, there would have been fewer difficulties and misunderstandings on this venture.

Various matters of business were later dealt with. The annual election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Rev. W. Bridge.

Secretary-treasurer, Rev. G. T. Spriggs (re-elected).

The latter was again appointed to represent the Association on the Quebec Temperance League.

Jehovah's Witnesses

THE WATCHTOWER

Announcing
JEHOVAH'S KINGDOM.

THE PURPOSE OF "THE WATCHTOWER"

Literal towers in Bible times were elevated vantage points from which watchmen could observe happenings, warn of danger, or announce good news. Our magazine figuratively occupies a vantage point, for it is founded on the very pinnacle of wisdom, God's Word. That elevates it above racial, national and political propaggandas and prejudices, frees it from selfish bias. It is not bound by any traditional creed, but its message advances as the light on God's purposes and works increases. — Habakkuk 2: 1-3.

It sees things Scripturally. When it observes this generation afflicted with greed, delinquency, hyprocrisy, atheism, war, famine, pestilence, perplexity and fear, and persecution of unpopular minorities, it does not parrot the old fable about history repeating itself. Informed by Bible prophecy, it sees in these things the sign of the world's time of the end. But with bright hope it also sees opening up for us just beyond these woes the portals of a new world.

Thus viewed, "The Watchtower" stands atop a tower, alert to what is going on, awake to note signs of danger, faithful to point out the way of escape. It announces Jehovah's kingdom established by Christ's enthronement in heaven, feeds his kingdom joint-heirs with spiritual food, cheers men of good will with glorious prospects of eternal life in a paradise earth, comforts us with the resurrection promise for the dead.

It is not dogmatic, but has a confident ring in its voice, because it is based on God's Word. It does not privately interpret prophecy, but calls attention to physical facts, sets them alongside prophecy, and you see for yourself how well the two match, how accurately Jehovah interprets his own prophecy. In the interests of our salvation, it keeps sharp and faithful focus on Bible truth, and views religious news generally.

"Be watchful in these perilous times," God admonishes. So keep on the watch by regularly reading "The Watchtower".

Price of this magazine is one dollar per year, published every two weeks. Ask any Witness you may happen to meet, or ask at the congregation nearest to you. They will be pleased to take your order. You may also write to — 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto 10.

Ayersv'l Council Conducts Affairs Of Growing Centre

In the absence of Mayor R. Morrissette (resigned) and of Maurice Champagne, Sr. (pro-Mayor), the October session of Ayersville Council was conducted by Councillor Douglas Simon as chairman. Councillor Rosaire Quenneville, however, was named pro-Mayor for the ensuing three-months period.

Accounts totalling $447.43, from September 16 to date, were approved for payment.

Coun. Edgar Cyr, seconded by Coun. Alfred Campeau, proposed that a sewer-cleaning machine be purchased from the firm of Francis Hankin, in accordance with their bid of October 2, at a price of $5,500.

A letter from the secretary, Conrad-H. Legault, requested some assistance with the clerical work of his office, failing which he tendered his resignation, effective November 1 next. Mr. Legault was thereupon authorized to engage temporary help until that date, at which time a more permanent remedy would be decided on.

It was decided to request the Department of Health's chief engineer, Théo.-J. Lafreniere, to approve plans for a service sewer on Gauthier Street as drawn up by Paul Laliberté, the municipality's consultant.

Building permits were granted to Gaston Campeau and Jean-B. Lemay, for residential construction; Cyrille Leroux and Lionel Charron, for private garages; and Paul Aubin, for repairs to a dwelling. Permit to operate a grocery establishment at 42 Tessier Street was also given to Mr. Aubin.

It was moved by Coun. Campeau, seconded by Coun. Quenneville, that the Postal Department be asked to extend mail distribution on Champlain, St. Jean and St. Antoine Streets.

The meeting was adjourned to October 21.

Public Notice

Due to the Hon. Mr. Cottingham's illness, the official opening of Beavan's Bridge in Arundel, which was to take place Saturday, October 12, will be postponed to a later date.

Aluminum Plates, 1958 Car Markers

Quebec (CP) — Quebec's 1958 vehicle license plates will be aluminum — uncolored — with black numbers, the Provincial Finance Department announced last week.

Motorists may start January 3, 1958, to turn in this year's white-on-green plates. Deadline for the changeover is February 28.

The department expects to issue about 850,000 licenses — 700,000 for private automobiles and the remainder for trucks and commercial vehicles.

Labor Situation Continues Steady In This Area

Latest figures on the local labor situation indicate the number of employed persons is at its highest peak of the year. It is revealed by Gabriel A. Downing, Unemployment Insurance officer here, that there are now only 203 men and 139 in the entire county without work and on his list for possible occupations. This is a very favorable count, and the continuing good weather gives no reason to anticipate an immediate drop in employment. The construction industry, which normally has slackened by this time of year contrary to the usual pattern has embarked on a number of new projects, involving considerable outlay and the prospect of jobs extending far later than last year.

It appears that the national campaign to avert seasonal unemployment is paying off in the construction trade, and that contractors are endeavoring to continue work in cold temperatures.

It is to be expected, nevertheless, that mid-November will bring evidence of some recession, but no acute work shortage will likely occur until mid-December.

National Employment offices have not experienced the usual demand for harvest help, the western grain crop having been largely handled by adequate manpower in the prairies.

Mrs. Cottingham Hon. President of CNIB Auxiliary

A special meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the C.N.I.B. was held at the local office of the organization last week.

Mr. L. A. McClintock, supervisor of Field Secretaries for Quebec Division, outlined the services given by the Institute to the sightless people. He paid great tribute to the Ladies' Auxiliary of Lachute and Brownsburg. This group was donated $50 to commence operations. The ladies did not request further funds, but during the year they spent $500, this money being gifts of service clubs, the Catholic Women's League, etc., and money made at two military whist parties. Most of this sum was spent on the Argenteuil White Cane Club, and some items have been purchased for the district office. Here, tribute is due to the Women's Institutes, the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, the Curling Club ladies and Orange Lodge, for contributions of chairs. Mr. McClintock also mentioned during the year the ladies had organized and conducted the picnic and the Christmas dinner. The program ahead of the ladies was expanding in scope, and as a result it was gratifying to note that more members were joining this unit of "helpers of mercy".

In conclusion Mr. McClintock welcomed and installed Mrs. W. M. Cottingham as honorary president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the C.N.I.B. for Lachute and Brownsburg. Mrs. Cottingham stated that she was deeply impressed with the work that had been done for the blind people in such a short time by the Auxiliary. She was proud to have been asked to be named honorary president, and would do everything in her power to assist in the work.

During the business session the various committee conveners read their annual reports. . .

The Transportation committee reported cars were made available to the sightless people on the third week of each month to take them to the Canadian Legion for their regular monthly meeting, and after the termination of the afternoon, the drivers called for the blind and returned them to their homes.

The Clothing committee reported that many needy blind people have been provided with good used clothing.

The Refreshment committee reported that luncheons had been provided at the regular monthly meeting of the White Cane Club.

The Ways and Means committee reported that on November 13 a home cooking demonstration will be held in the High School, conducted by Canada Packers Ltd.

The Program and Recreation committee reported that organized games have been commenced at the monthly meetings, and that during the year more stress will be paid to encouraging the blind people to participate in competitive sport.

The meeting terminated with the serving of a light luncheon.

In 1956 a Canadian woman was hospitalized for seven weeks when, ignorant of dust's explosive power, she emptied a vacuum cleaner into a furnace.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Mary Fran Burke, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Each year thousands of Canadian couples who want children and would make good parents are turned down by adoption agencies, according to Sidney Katz, a Toronto writer.

To discover the reason for this situation Mr. Katz went to government officials, child-welfare workers and to representatives of Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish child-adoption agencies.

He found the basic reason to be "simply that there are not enough children to go around." Child adoption agencies had done such a good job of making adoptions popular that Canadians no longer hesitate to apply for children.

"Agencies across the country are streamlining their program," said Mr. Katz. "They are sending babies to adoptive homes directly from maternity hospitals instead of using their former policy of placing only year-old children in homes.

Agency requirements for adoptive parents are "neither rigid nor arbitrary", Mr. Katz reported. Where older children are being placed the agencies waive their preference for parents under 40 years of age.

The only hard and fast rule is that parents and adopted children must share the same religion, said Mr. Katz.

Casual Hair-Style

The casual, forward-swept hair style is the coming look for Canadian women this season.

"It's the windswept 'bob' of the 20s, to go with the present flapper styles of that era," said Peter Edelmayer, a Toronto hairdresser who has just returned from a meeting of the International Association of Master Hairdressers in London.

The preferred length this season is still around 2½ inches, but always with the hair casually swept forward. Variations of this flapper look were called "Symphony" by the Italians; "Shock" by the French; "Ocharina" (a sleeker version) by the Germans; and "Rondelle" by the Austrians.

Most popular hair color this season will be red, with stipple effects produced by skilful use of rinses, the association predicted.

Plenty of Onions

Canada's marketing service in the federal agriculture department forecasts an increase of more than 100,000 bags of onions over last year's crop.

You can use onions in everything from a soufflé to a stew.

On a cool fall day why not try real French onion soup. First, brown plenty of thinly sliced onions in butter, then add to a well-seasoned soup-stock or bouillon and cook until the onions are tender, but not soft.

Serve the soup steaming hot, garnished with croutons and grated cheese or with toasted slices of French bread which have been sprinkled with grated cheese and browned in the broiler.

Demonstrations on Grooming, Coiffure, Brownsburg W.I. Program This Evening

Brownsburg W.I. meeting for October was under the convenership of Mrs. P. MacAdam.

Members discussed the collection of used clothing, particularly baby clothes, which they are making for the Unitarian Service Committee. The Institute will be grateful for good used clothing; if householders have items to contribute, any W.I. member will be pleased to receive them, and somewhere in Greece or Korea a refugee will be grateful!

Mrs. Hilda Barker was honored with a Life Membership in recognition of her long and faithful service to Institute affairs, and was presented with her pin by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. MacRae.

Notary Simon Valois, of Lachute kindly gave his time to address the group on "Wills and Marriage Contracts", and was inundated with questions on this complex subject. Later refreshments were served to members and their friends.

For Monday, October 7, the Institute planned to hold a blitz campaign in aid of the Quebec Society for Cerebral Palsied Children. Mrs. R. Moncrieff, Health and Welfare convener, had charge of the organization.

Scheduled for this evening, October 10, at 7 o'clock, under the heading of "Good Grooming Demonstration", is a visit from a well-known Montreal corsetiere. This lady will bring with her a complete range of corsets and give free advice on figure problems. For the second half of the evening a hair stylist who will give advice on how to choose a becoming hair style.

It is noted that no fewer than three of the local W.I. members were presented with the Red Cross Badge of Service in recognition of their devotion to that organization, at the banquet held in Brownsburg recently.

Molded Salad for Thanksgiving Buffet

A Thanksgiving Buffet is the perfect way to entertain friends and neighbors who couldn't come to the Thanksgiving Dinner. A simple but hearty spread of cold turkey and ham, hot biscuits and coffee, is lifted into the luxury class by luscious Pickled Peach 'n Cider Mold.

It's precisely 333 years since the Virginia Colony enjoyed the first Thanksgiving Dinner, when the harvest was safely gathered in after a hard and hungry year. Little did those sturdy settlers dream that the four wild turkeys they served, along with the hard-won fruits of the fields, were to become the symbol of plenty on every groaning Thanksgiving board thereafter.

You will, of course, be gathering your nearest and dearest around you for Thanksgiving dinner. But why not plan an extra buffet party for the very next day? Invite your friends and neighbors, and serve a beautiful buffet meal using the delectables left over from dinner, plus one or two special touches for the occasion.

There could be cold sliced turkey, thin-sliced ham and little hot biscuits. There could be luxurious Pickled Peach 'n Cider Mold to keep the turkey tangy company. And coffee, steaming and fragrant, lending its warm and welcome touch.

The left-over turkey and ham is all ready to be sliced 'way in advance; the biscuits can be all ready to pop into the oven and bake, and you can make the Pickled Peach 'n Cider Mold the day before. The coffee is the only thing that needs to be made at the time. And if that isn't something to be thankful for — what is?

Pickled Peach 'n Cider Mold

1 Qt. pickled peaches, apple cider, 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine, ½ cup water.

Drain peaches, saving syrup; stone and cut in chunks. Measure syrup and add apple cider to make 4 cups. Heat to boiling point. Soften gelatine in cold water then dissolve in hot cider mixture. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in peaches, pour into mold and chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Serve with mayonnaise or cream salad dressing. Makes 8 servings.

Fire Prevention Week, October 6-12 —

Do you know that under the Criminal Code of Canada you may go to jail for two years for leaving a child exposed to fire?

There can be no sadder news than the death by fire of children in the home. And such a tragedy is one that must shadow a family for a lifetime.

No matter the age, no child should ever be left alone. While this vital message is stressed during Fire Prevention Week, it holds, like every other rule for good housekeeping, for every week and every day of the year. Parents who go out have a duty to their children, to the community and to themselves, to see that the youngsters are properly looked after.

The heartening acceptance of this obligation in homes across the land is reflected by the fact that baby-sitting has become more than a casual occupation for many people. It has even developed into a regular profession.

Here, for parents and for the sitter, are standard rules for the work:

1. The sitter selected should have a sense of responsibility, should like children, and should preferably live in the neighborhood.

2. Instructions should be given in writing as well as orally: Where you are going and telephone number, or the name and number of someone to call in an emergency. Your telephone number and location of telephone. Emergency telephone numbers for Fire, Police, Doctor. How to call the fire department. Location of exits. How to control the furnace or stove. . . Leave a flashlight in case of power failure.

3. Guide to the sitter in emergency:

Get the children safely out.

Even if it's cold, don't wait to dress them. Wrap them in a blanket.

Even the smell of smoke or gas is enough warning to call the fire department, or summon help. Be sure to say exactly where you are. If you can, turn on the front lights to attract attention.

Don't ever re-enter the house. Smoke or gas from a very small fire may be fatal.

If you are trapped inside, remember that the air near the floor is usually better in a smoke-filled room.

Inside, don't turn on or off any electric switches. This may create a spark, ignite gas vapors and cause explosion.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

The "Flat Look" in women's styles may be on its way out, but the "Flat Look" of a flat tire is still with us. If your car gets a flat, you can't take it for granted that a Highway Prince Charming will come along and change it for you. In open country, you may not see another car for an hour.

It's better to adopt the Boy Scouts' motto and "Be Prepared". Before you leave home, take the jack out of the car — and learn to use it! The bumper jack has proven the easiest type for women.

If a flat tire occurs when you're driving, move off the highway as soon as possible and park on level firm ground. Put the hand-brake on when you have stopped the car. If you are on an incline, wedge any good wheel with a rock to prevent the car from rolling. Then take your spare tire out of the trunk (before using the jack).

Place the jack under the bumper and begin to raise the car. If the car tends to slip, re-set the jack on a slight angle against the direction the car slips. Then elevate the car until the flat is just touching the ground.

Next, pry off the hub cap and loosen the wheel nuts. Continue jacking until the flat is one inch off the ground. Now, remove the nuts and the wheel. When you've replaced this wheel with your spare, partially tighten all nuts, lower the jack, and finish tightening all round.

If a flat tire occurs at night, be sure the tail light is on while you're changing the tire, so oncoming drivers can see you, and don't stand so you hide the light from approaching cars. A flashlight or trouble-light will come in very handy.

Lastly, remember that it can happen again — so, have your spare repaired or replaced without delay.

Thanksgiving

(Copyright) — By NANCY CLEAVER —

What does this time of Thanksgiving mean to you and to your family? Does it find you on Sunday attending the church of your choice? Surely this is one Sunday when recreation, visitors, or the multitude of excuses which keep people at home, should be forgotten!

Last Sunday as we walked towards church a small girl on a tricycle joined us. "Where are you going?" she asked. When we told her she answered, "I don't go to church . . . or to Sunday school now. I just go in snow-time." In Canada in some areas winter does arrive fast on the heels of the glory and the color of the Autumn days.

But every season is so rich with beauty, let us express our gratitude to the Creator who has given us such abundance and loveliness in "our own, our native land"! The over thirty-four thousand immigrants from Hungary to our shores are a reminder in 1957 to Canadians that our country is blessed with freedom, a precious heritage which we should cherish.

We do not need long lists of statistics to convince us that here in Canada we have been experiencing an amazing period of prosperity in most areas. But let us not count our blessings just in our increased wealth. The Bible reminds us that in good times it is easy for a nation to forget God. This Thanksgiving in our rejoicing over the visit of our Sovereign and her husband, in our gratitude for the beauty, promise, and freedom of our land, in the midst of our prosperity, let us recall Paul's request to the Ephesians to sing and make melody in their heart to the Lord, "Giving thanks for all things unto God."

Q.W.I. President To Address Women's Group

Mrs. G. D. Harvey, of Stanbridge East, president of the Quebec Women's Institutes, will be the speaker at this season's opening meeting of the Montreal Council of Women, to be held next week in that city. Her subject will be the Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, which took place this summer in Colombo, Ceylon. She will also touch on some of the incidents of the trip, which completely encircled the globe by air.

Mrs. Harvey represented the Q.W.I. at this gathering, a member of the Canadian delegation which was headed by Mrs. J. W. Adams, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. Since her return, in the middle of August, she has had several speaking engagements. Among them was her own county meeting, Missisquoi, and the community school at Cowansville.

The JAMES DEAN STORY

(Contributed)

I have just had the pleasure of seeing "The James Dean Story" in its first run in Montreal. It is a splendid addition to the all-too-slender supply of filmed material on this young actor. We had "East of Eden", "Rebel Without a Cause", and, since I last wrote in these columns a year ago, "Giant". Disappointingly, Jimmy did not receive a special Academy Award for his role in the latter film, as had been promised. There is now talk of a special annual Oscar Award to be given in Jimmy's memory to the most promising young actors.

"The James Dean Story", as its advertisements state, is a different kind of motion picture. Those accustomed to seeing life stories in lavish color productions will no doubt be disappointed. Perhaps 10 years from now such a film will be made, but for the present, it is too soon after Dean's death (two years ago last September 30) to have someone else adequately portray him in a film, especially with his three movies still current favorites.

George W. George and Robert Altman have succeeded admirably in their project of having Jimmy Dean play himself in his own story. Understandably, they have had to rely extensively on still photographs. There never has been, and doubtless never will be, a star who has had all the important moments of his life on film as they happened. The cost of film and the unexpectedness of many events prohibits this. However, a few "moving picture" scenes showing Jimmy have been included, such as an audition scene for "East of Eden". Added to this, various events have been re-created, with the suggestion of Dean's presence, and there are interesting interviews with friends and relatives.

In the two years since James Dean's death, there have been some fans who have gone to unwholesome extremes in mourning his loss. This is regrettable, and we know that Jimmy would disapprove. However, one of the organizations which channels this devotion into healthy activity is the "James Dean Lest-We-Forget Club" (Mr. Chaw Mank, Dept. A, Box 30, Staunton, Illinois). This club includes in its activities the making of scrapbooks for shut-ins, veterans in hospitals, and polio sufferers, and, like "The James Dean Story", is a fitting tribute to a brilliant young actor.

More than 600 Canadian women are Hospital Visitors of the Canadian Red Cross. They make regular visits to patients in 100 hospitals from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

Who founded the Canadian Bar Association?

This national association of Canadian lawyers was founded in 1914 by Sir James Aikins. He was born in 1851 at Richview, Peel County, Upper Canada, and served as a lawyer both in Ontario and Manitoba. He was lieutenant-governor of Manitoba from 1916 to 1926 and was a member of several Royal Commissions. Sir James, who was knighted in 1914, represented Brandon in the House of Commons and at one time was leader of the Conservative party in Manitoba.

Where was the Welland Canal begun?

A memorial cairn at Allansburg, Ont., marks the spot where the first sod for the original Welland Canal was turned. This community formerly was called New Holland because of the large number of German and Dutch Loyalist settlers. It sprang into importance at the time of the building of the canal and became a thriving community with many stores and industries, most of which went out of existence soon after the completion of the canal.

Mayor Carrière Heads Arg. C.N.I.B. New Officers Guide Administration

The annual meeting of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Argenteuil division, was held September 24 at the office of the Institute, 494 Sydney Street.

Report of Field Secretary

The field secretary, Mr. A. C. Zaplaski, reported that during the past two months he had made 66 calls on blind people. Of this total a number were provided with clothing, food, medical supplies, railway and bus passes.

On July 31 a picnic was organized for blind people, by the Women's Auxiliary, many local firms and individuals contributing toward the success of this event.

Prevention Work

Fifteen persons went to Montreal to receive eye examinations; two have still to undergo examination. In conclusion, Mr. Zaplaski reported that Miss Nicole Cadieux has been hired as office secretary.

Election of Officers

Tribute was paid to two retiring members. . . Dr. Eric Mongeon has been vitally interested in the work of the Institute since taking office as chairman. The field of prevention of blindness has been improved immensely since he took office. In addition the Institute has been established on a full-time basis and the formation of the Women's Auxiliary has been realized during his leadership. The whole County of Argenteuil has been organized and the field secretary has visited all the areas.

The other member leaving the board is Miss Louise Miller, who has been the treasurer for the district since its inception. The Institute deeply appreciates her interest and guidance during the trying times when the organization was being formed in the County of Argenteuil. . . Both these members will remain on the Board of Directors of the Institute.

The following officers were named for the ensuing term: Chairman, Léopold Carrière, Mayor of Lachute; 1st vice-chairman, W. G. Richardson; 2nd vice-chairman, M. R. Wilson; secretary, J. B. Chalmers; treasurer, Miss Mary Preece.

The secretary, Mr. J. B. Chalmers, due to business was unable to be present, and Mrs. Ivy Cruise acted as secretary during the meeting.

INTERESTING KEG

Have You A Question

on

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. If I am laid off and, whilst unemployed, undertake to do odd jobs which could ordinarily be performed by me outside my regular working hours, what amount am I allowed to earn and still be considered to be unemployed?

A. The amount of earnings that a claimant may receive without loss of benefit while he is on claim is determined according to a scale laid down in the Act. The amount is related to the rate of benefit which the claimant is receiving. His benefit for any week in which his earnings from any employment are in excess of the allowable scale is reduced by the amount of the excess. The allowable amounts range from $2.00 a week for a person whose weekly benefit is $6.00 (single rate) or $8.00 (dependency rate) to a maximum of $13.00 for a person whose benefit rate is $23.00 (single rate) or $30.000 (dependency rate).

Q. The union I belong to is considering negotiating with our company for a guaranteed annual wage. There has been some objection to our going after this form of security on the grounds that we would no longer be eligible for unemployment insurance when laid off. Is this correct?

A. Whether the payments under a guaranteed wage plan will have any effect on the payment of unemployment insurance benefit can only be determined after the conditions governing the payment of guaranteed wages are known.

REGIMENT IS GIVEN RELIC OF BOER WAR

Ottawa (CP) — A Boer War relic lost by a Canadian regiment during the fighting in South Africa a half-century ago recently was returned to the unit, now stationed in Werl, Germany.

The Beaver, the Canadian army newspaper in Europe, tells how a musty, weathered ammunition box was returned to the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Canada's 1st Armoured Regiment.

William Southgate, an ex-member of the Royal Dragoons, sister regiment to the Canadian unit, wrote the Canadians in Germany saying he had a leather ammunition box bearing the inscription "RCD—1898," and offered to send it to the Dragoons if they wanted it. They did.

Southgate, who mailed the 24-by-12-inch case to the unit, said he got it from a sailor who had used it as a suitcase in his travels around the world.

Another Top Rating For B of M Advertisement

Montreal — Rating first among Canadian banks for its advertising, during the past 12 months, the Bank of Montreal has again won the Socrates Award for the "best ad of the month" and earned the third highest score for North America in the "Bank Ad-views" survey of financial advertising covering the United States and Canada.

With the exception of one year, the B of M has had the top advertising rating for Canada for the past 12 years. In two years — 1946 and 1954 — it took first place on the continent.

In the latest issue of "Bank Ad-views" published by Vincent Edwards & Co., New York, covering the final survey scoring, announcement is made of the Socrates Award going to the B of M for an institutional piece published by the Bank in London, Ont., titled "He brought the first friendly banking London had known."

The ad tells the story of the arrival of the B of M's representative in the community by stagecoach in 1844 when the present Western Ontario metropolis was "a small town of only 3,500 souls, surrounded by thick forests, abounding with game," and relates the development of London and its first bank up to the present time.

The earliest attempt at a canal in North America was at Lachine, Que., early in the 18th century.

measured in minutes gasoline costs you less

If you work at a job—and most of us do—how many minutes does it take to earn enough to buy a gallon of gasoline?

33 minutes?
Well, that was true for the average Canadian back in 1939. 29 minutes? You're right if you're thinking about prices in 1946.

16 minutes?
Correct. According to government figures, that's how long it takes an average Canadian today to earn the price of a gallon of gasoline.

On the score of performance, you're getting an even bigger bargain. For today's regular gasolines are far superior to the premium grades sold only ten years ago.

Cases of Rabies in Northwestern Que.

Rabies is a fatal infectious disease primarily of dogs, foxes and wolves, affecting the nervous system. It is caused by a virus which is present in certain body fluids, particularly in the saliva. It is transmissible to other dogs and humans by bites and is fatal when the virus in the saliva penetrates the nerve tissue of the body.

Wild life affected with "dumb rabies" might attack humans if disturbed by sudden light or sound. Eating foreign objects (wood, stone), starey eyes, biting at imaginary objects, convulsions, drooling saliva, etc., are other symptoms.

The disease is suspected to exist in all districts of Northwestern Quebec and hunters entering the area with their dogs are advised to:

1. Have their dogs vaccinated against rabies by their veterinarian prior to entering Northwestern Quebec at least 30 days previously.

2. Report to the nearest Quebec Department of Lands and Forests Officer the incidence of foxes, wolves, etc., acting in an unnatural manner.

3. If it is necessary to destroy such animals do not damage the head, since the brain tissue is required for the laboratory diagnosis.

4. Remove the carcass to a cool place where predators have no access to it and report the incidence to the nearest Department of Lands and Forests Officer.

5. Exercise care in handling such carcasses. In no case should the hands come in contact with the saliva. If gloves are available they should be worn.

6. If bitten or exposed, wash the affected parts thoroughly with soap and water and consult a physician without delay.

7. Hunting dogs which have been bitten should be securely tied in complete isolation from other animals and the biting incident reported to the Department of Lands and Forests, Game and Fisheries.

8. Hunting dogs returned from Northwestern Quebec should be closely observed for several months. Suspicious symptoms or signs of sickness should be immediately brought to the attention of your veterinarian.

To prevent the introduction of rabies into other areas through hunting dogs, the co-operation of all sportsmen is earnestly requested.

Meeting to Discuss Finance Difficulties Of Lachute Fair

A combined meeting of the directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society and invited members of various social clubs will be held in the Court House next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Ken Riley, secretary-manager of the Society, reports that the citizens outside the directors have been invited to this special meeting in an effort to consider new ideas and suggestions for keeping the Lachute Spring Fair operating on a sound basis.

Several directors have unofficially expressed concern at the present financial standing, it has been learned, and a few individuals at least feel that, if the Fair is to continue in operation, something concrete will have to be accomplished before next year's show gets underway.

Argentina Stores Grain Underground

A new type of underground grain storage with a total capacity of over 6 million bushels of wheat was opened in Argentina this past summer, reports W. F. Hillhouse, Agricultural Secretary, Buenos Aires, in "Agriculture Abroad." They were built at Villa Constitucion on the Parana River in the Province of Santa Fé, as part of the program to increase Argentina's grain storage capacity.

The storages are in two groups of four long trench-type silos made entirely of concrete. Each silo is divided into ten or eleven individual bins each of which has an opening in the convex roof which can be hermetically sealed. Loading and unloading is done by portable electrically operated machinery. Only the roof of each silo is above ground level. Once this type of storage is sealed, the oxygen is soon exhausted and it is claimed insect pests die and the grain does not lose condition.

Argentina began experimenting with underground grain silos in 1941. The first silos were merely holes dug in the ground, fire baked to harden the walls, and covered with straw and earth after being filled. These were followed by trench type silos lined with an earth cement mixture and covered with straw, earth and waterproof paper. The President of the National Grain Board stated that approximately 2½ million bushels of grain had been stored in the trench-type silos and had shown a loss of only one-half percent by weight after two and one-half years. The design has been further improved by research resulting in the type of silo constructed this year.

Board Approves Marketing Plan For Pulpwood

Quebec's first pulpwood marketing plan has been approved by the Quebec Agricultural Marketing Board.

It affects 1,635 forest producers in 50 parishes of the Saguenay - Lake St. John region, about 80 percent of whom approved the plan.

The annual output involved is about 30,000 to 40,000 cords of pulpwood and is worth an estimated $850,000 or more. Several big firms are concerned with the marketing board — Price Brothers, Consolidated Paper, St. Lawrence Corporation and St. Raymond Paper Company, plus numerous pulpwood jobbers.

The plan was put forward by the Saguenay Wood Producers' Syndicate of the Catholic Farmers Union. It becomes official after publication in the Quebec Gazette.

Judge Georges-H. Heon, chairman of the Quebec Marketing Board, congratulated the plan's promoters and emphasized that it was a "very important precedent" in the province and the first of its kind in the country.

It would benefit producers and consumers in stability, standards and other factors.

It Can't Be Done!

A competitor was trying to sell one of our customers his dairy feed. The customer said he could get more milk out of Purina. The competitor said, if this dairy man would give him 60 cents more a bag, he could make one just as good as Purina.

That is a common SALES TALK of our competitors. But it is one thing they positively CANNOT DO. . . Why?

Well, in the first place they can duplicate the ingredient and analysis tag — that is the pencil part, and smallest part, of the duplication. The tag may say the chow has 16% protein, 3% fat, 58% carbohydrates, and tell you it contains Corn Gluten, Oil Cake, Soybean Meal, etc. But it doesn't tell (and this is Purina's secret) how many pounds of each of these ingredients is in the Chow.

Purina has been testing these Chows for almost 30 years on their own cows at their Research Farm, and has kept accurate records of the results. And they are putting the mix into their chows that has given the best results. As research reveals better combinations, they will be added to the Chows so you will have the benefits. Now, THIS PART CANNOT BE DUPLICATED by our competitor, because he lacks the know how and facilities.

Again, these Chows are MICRO-MIXED with secret machinery owned and developed by Purina that cannot be duplicated because they are Purina's own inventions and are not for sale to the public. And without these machines, it is impossible to get a thorough mix. The competitor may put the ingredients in, but one part of the mix may have too much and other parts none at all. This he positively cannot duplicate. Only a company with enough capital and turnover can afford to get these expensive machines to do the job thoroughly.

So in future don't take a feed that is "JUST AS GOOD AS PURINA BUT CHEAPER". Insist on genuine Purina Chows. They are the cheapest in the long run. . . Phone, write or tell us your wants. We deliver promptly.

Chambers of Commerce Meet Here From Laurentides, Lower Ottawa

Expected at the Laurentides regional Chambers of Commerce conference, being held today in Lachute, are representatives from St. Andrews East, Hull, Gatineau and Maniwaki — in addition to the delegates from Laurentian centres affiliated in this group.

Attendance of the Ottawa Valley delegates was requested inasmuch as the agenda of this assembly highlights a subject in which these centres are all vitally concerned, namely, a study on Routes 8 and 29 and their maintenance.

It was originally planned to hold this fall gathering in the town of Ste. Agathe. In view of the above subject of discussion, however, the venue was changed, on instigation of the president of Lachute Chamber of Commerce, Miville Trickey.

In charge of the reception arrangements on behalf of Lachute Chamber are Robt. Marcil and Hector Monti.

Those delegates arriving in time for an early afternoon tour will be conducted on an inspection of the Ayers Mills.

A supper will be served in the civic auditorium, where the deliberations are taking place. The proceedings will be under the chairmanship of Jean O'Donnell, of Laval des Rapides, and Mr. Trickey will extend a welcome to the visitors on behalf of this town and its Chamber of Commerce.

The lady guests will be entertained during sessions in the evening; it has been arranged for them to hear a music recital at the Golf Club chalet, presented by Pierre Beaulieu, noted violinist, and Pierre Martineau, organist of the Notre Dame Church, Montreal.

The reception committee anticipates an attendance of approximately 125.

M. Champagne Is New Mayor Of Ayersville

At a special meeting of Ayersville Council called by the secretary-treasurer, Conrad H. Legault, Councillor H. Maurice Champagne was named mayor to succeed Réal Morrissette, who recently resigned. Councillor R. Quenneville presided at the meeting.

Maurice Champagne, architect, has served one year as councillor, and was chairman of the Finance Committee. He now becomes the fourth mayor of the Village of Ayersville since its incorporation. (His predecessor, Mr. Morrissette, resigned after nine months in office, due to pressure of personal business which demanded all his attention.)

Councillors Cyr and Foucault sponsored Mr. Champagne's nomination, and the new mayor was duly elected and sworn to office.

To fill the vacancy in Seat No. 5, previously occupied by Maurice Champagne, Wilfrid Durocher was named councillor, on proposal of Councillors Campeau and Quenneville. Durocher will complete the remainder of the term for this seat, to expire January 1958.

Next meeting of the Ayersville Council will be held October 21.

District Deputy Visits Lions Club

Items of interest in a down-to-business meeting of the Lions Club — the regular semi-monthly gathering held Tuesday evening at the Legion Hall — were the official visit of the new Deputy District Governor, Georges Leclair, of St Johns, Que., and the induction of a promising new member.

President Ernest Snadden was in the chair, and there was a good attendance of over 40 members.

A hold-up in the Arena project, caused by delay in acquisition of the land, was reported rectified and the preparation of the deed was in the hands of the club's legal counsel — according to information given by Lion Jos. Dumais.

Next meeting will take the form of a ladies' night, when it is hoped to present life memberships to one or two pioneer Lions still active in the local club after 25 years.

Louis DeBreyne, pro at Lachute Golf Club, was introduced by Phil Tremblay and duly inducted into the club by District Governor Dr. Walter FitzGerald. Mr. DeBreyne, who had expressed a wish to serve on the Health and Welfare Committee, was warmly welcomed by the assembly.

Deputy District Governor Georges Leclair was then introduced by Horace Lamarche, who had served the District in that capacity two years ago. The visitor was acclaimed as an active business and community man, and an asset to many organizations in his home city. . . Mr. Leclair spoke briefly on Lionism, and the important part which it plays in every aspect of a member's activities.

Thanked by Lion Jos. Dumais, the speaker was presented with one of Lachute's newer products, a wool-synthetic blanket from the Ayers industry, as a token of appreciation — District Governor Dr. FitzGerald making the presentation.

'57 Plowing Match Successful Event

The Argenteuil Plowmen's Association held their annual plowing match under cloudy skies on Wednesday, October 2, at the farm of Régent Lamarche on Route 8, between Lachute and St. Philippe. Although the weather was threatening, this did not deter 26 tractor operators and seven horse plowmen from making the match a complete success.

Judging was under the capable management of the following: Erskine Rodger, Lachute, and Clifford Oswald, Ste. Scholastique, placed the tractor classes, while Rory MacTavish, Harrington, placed the teams and horse plowing.

Art Exhibition at Cushing Extended To Sat., October 19

An exhibition of 67 drawings and oil paintings by Miss Freda Pemberton-Smith at The Hall Studio in Cushing, classes this artist as an energetic producer, for the collection is all this season's work. The drawings are in various media, and the oils are "painted" exclusively with a palette knife — a technique which requires dexterous handling. The subjects are landscapes and a few portraits, the former being largely of scenes in this vicinity.

Miss Pemberton-Smith, who has latterly been residing at Cushing, is an artist of considerable experience, and has exhibited in many centres across Canada. The Argenteuil Art Association, in arranging for this exhibition last Saturday, added another highlight of interest to its successful 1957 program.

A good number of A.A.A. members and art lovers attended the exhibition at Cushing last Saturday. In order to accommodate others, who were not informed or were unable to see the exhibit, Miss Pemberton-Smith will extend its duration, and The Hall Studio will be open to the public again this Saturday, October 19, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Tree Farm Movement in Spotlight at Rotary Club

Tree Farm certificates and signboards were presented to nine district property-owners, at the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club's annual presentation ceremony last Thursday.

Rotarian Norm Somers, chairman of the Tree Farm Movement, introduced Doug Morrison, of the C.I.P. Woods Division, Grenville, whom he described as "the man most responsible for the Tree Farming success in Argenteuil County."

Mr. Morrison included in his remarks an urge that Tree Farmers organize among themselves for the betterment of their craft and production. He said, in part:

"Tree Farming in Argenteuil is now 4½ years old and includes 65 properties with an area of 23,400 acres. I know that I share the feelings of the Rotary Club when I say that the time is approaching when the Tree Farmers themselves should possibly assume more responsibility in the affairs of the Tree Farm Movement.

"An Argenteuil Tree Farm Association would have many distinct advantages. All members, being Tree Farmers, would have a first-hand knowledge of their problems and hence, a head-start toward their solution. Field meetings could be held to permit an exchange of ideas; the possibilities of collective marketing could be explored; effective liaison could be established between such an association and government, industry, and the fish and game clubs.

"The idea of forming a Tree Farm Association was first broached two years ago by an Argenteuil tree farmer, and while it did not get much response at that time, it is hoped that some progress can be made toward this goal in the near future.

"I would like to draw attention to the fine effort which the Rotary Club, along with many other activities, has put forth on behalf of the Tree Farm Movement over the past 4½ years. Their support has been responsible in a very large measure for this excellent record of 65 certifications."

Following this informative talk, certificates were presented to those qualifying. (See picture above.)

Rotary business was discussed during the supper hour of the meeting, at which Sam Ross, the first president of the local club, was in attendance.

It was announced that a joint meeting with the Hawkesbury Club would be held November 5.

Mention was also made of a tour of Scottish Rotarian-curlers who will be in Lachute Saturday afternoon, November 23. The local International committee is looking after arrangements for the visitors, who will be the guests of Rotary Clubs in Montreal, Three Rivers, Quebec City, Ottawa, Brockville, and several United States centres.

Study Ideas to Improve Outlook for Lach. Fair

The possibility of Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon horse races being held weekly during next summer, was one of the ideas emanating from a discussion this week.

Representatives of the Lions, Rotary and Richelieu Clubs, as well as the Chamber of Commerce, met Tuesday evening with directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society in an open discussion. Suggestions and new ideas were advanced and considered, in an effort to overcome some of the difficulties at the annual Spring Fair. The meeting, chaired by W. Erskine Rodger, president of the Agriculture Society, was held in the Court House.

Delbert MacTavish, local racing enthusiast of wide repute, pointed out the possibilities of weekly races, and stated he was willing to go ahead with the program in the event everything could be worked out on a satisfactory basis.

Vice-president Donald M. Hay got the ball rolling after the various representatives were thanked for their attendance by the president. Mr. Hay stated, "We are not prepared to say what we want from the Service Clubs. We know we are not getting the attendance or interest in the Fair, but we don't know why, and we hope that by getting these clubs and others to enter into the Fair with us, all will benefit. We want it to be a community enterprise as well as an agricultural fair, and we feel the Service Clubs could help, and at the same time, make money doing it."

It was pointed out that the membership in the Society was around 300, and that attendance had dropped noticeably during the past three years, despite highly favorable weather.

Lorne Duncan, representing the Lions Club and Chamber of Commerce, gave his opinion that people must be entertained, and suggested that the majority of the judging be done on the side — the people on the grandstand then being shown only the top three animals in each class. He felt that a show was needed before the grandstand crowd, and expressed the opinion that races should play a more important part in the program.

Col. Ernest Emmett voiced his approval of the suggestion, and went on to give several examples of what had been done to attract people at other fairs he had attended during the past year.

Clement Tremblay, O.B.E., a director of the Society, pointed out that the Society was not the only organization suffering from a lack of attendance, and gave as examples, the Lachute baseball team and the St. Jerome hockey team, among others. He also favored a pari-mutuel betting system, and forcefully stated that the exhibition grounds should be used more often.

The need of a band brought out the fact that, although Ayers Band would perform for a nominal fee well within reach of the Society, the union fees, etc., made the total cost prohibitive.

It was also stated by several directors that, while the Town of Lachute donated $250 to the Fair, it was not felt this was sufficient for the amount of publicity brought to the town and for the good work the Society was doing.

Past-president Jas. MacKimmie suggested "give-aways", such as Sherbrooke and the Ottawa Fair had resorted to in recent years, and in addition mentioned the possibilities of a pari-mutuel system for the races. "Along the line of the Service Clubs, I think that we might have a Richelieu Day, a Lions Day, and a Rotary Day, these days to be looked after by the individual clubs." . . . Lion Jos. Dumais added to this by suggesting a "Queen of the Fair" contest.

Roger Lagarde, one of the Richelieu Club representatives, then suggested a working committee be formed of two representatives from each of the Service Clubs, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce and several directors of the Society, and it was decided that this committee would meet Wednesday, November 13, at 8 p.m. in an effort to draw up something concrete.

Workshop Blaze At Whisseltown

A fire on Wednesday afternoon gutted a large section of the woodworking shop owned by Max Dinelle, Whisseltown, causing several thousand dollars' damage.

The flames broke out in the vicinity of a diesel engine and quickly spread to other sections of the building.

A crew of firemen from Lachute were called to the scene and, laying 750 feet of hose, the firefighters extinguished the blaze.

Last March, a fire of similar origin leveled the mill immediately behind the shop, causing some $12,000 loss.

ATTACKED BY HUSKY

Dawson Creek, B.C. (CP) — Ralph Sheik, of Fynn's Subdivision, required 27 stitches to close arm wounds after he was attacked by a 120-pound male husky dog. The dog was destroyed.

Stubborn Blaze Ousts Family, Loss of Home and Contents

A nine-room house at 38 Millway Street, owned by Fortunat Deslauriers and occupied by Jacques Mayer, was gutted by a fire which started around 9 p.m. Sunday, keeping firemen on the scene for almost three hours. Deslauriers & Marcil, local insurance agents, report that the contents of the building were all but a total loss insurance-wise, and that the total damage exceeds the $3,500 insurance claim.

The fire, which before being extinguished was a raging inferno, started in a woodshed and back kitchen, both connected to the main section of the building. The woodshed housed some 20 to 25 cords of tinder-dry firewood, most of which ignited, adding fuel to the already burning building.

A short delay in getting the water supply was caused by would-be helpers fouling up the fire-fighting hose, thus necessitating the laying of another line. This was quickly done, however, and minutes later two streams of water were playing on the flames.

Entry to the burning shed and rear kitchen was made by firemen who, dousing the flames as they entered, had to contend with blazing sections of the roof and ceiling falling from overhead. From here, the main part of the fire in the actual house was extinguished although a small amount of water was needed to douse flames in the smoke and heat-filled building.

Police-Fire Chief Trépanier, who directed operations, entered and searched the building soon after his arrival at the outbreak, and reports having received a bad scare when, reaching into a crib in the smoke-filled upstairs, he felt an object covered with blankets. . . The object turned out to be a large panda bear.

The heat was so intense in the main section of the building that plastic bowls and curtains melted on the front windows, although situated some 15 yards from the flames.

The Mayer family of six were left homeless following the fire, which started while they were visiting next-door neighbors.

Although the actual blaze was extinguished before it got a good hold in the house, smoke and heat damage to the dwelling was extensive, the contents being a total loss.

Flames and intense heat engulfed the rear section of the Millway Street building, hindering firemen in combatting the blaze. Photographer Syd Drew took this shot just as water was turned on the flames. The house, although severely damaged by heat and smoke, was scarcely touched by the blaze.

Hope Archaeological Finds May Trace Tribal Pattern

Man-made objects dating back to 1150-1300 A.D. have been discovered by Montreal amateur archaeologists at St. Andrews, according to Dr. J. D. McColl, president of Archaeological Association of Quebec, reporting on the group's activities at St. Andrews Golf Club. (Dr. McColl spoke here recently at the Argenteuil Historical Society's annual meeting.)

Dr. McColl said this area was chosen for preliminary investigation as surface finds of flint had suggested occupation of early Indian tribes, thought to have preceded the Iroquois.

W. B. Rice, Association field director, explained that although much-worked flint had been found, it was too soon to characterize the material definitely. He thought the artifacts were made by the Point Peninsula people, who inhabited the region about 1150-1300 A.D.

Tribal Movements

Surveys such as the Association is making may map out a pattern of tribal movements and perhaps provide links with other discoveries at Point Peninsula on Lake Huron with Dr. J. N. Emmerson's recent finds on Sheek Island, near Cornwall, and the Association's finds on the Richelieu shore.

Ian Clark, of McGill University, explained that the Point Peninsula people lived in nomadic family groups, relying chiefly on fish and game for food, although they supplemented this with wild products and cultivated corn. Their villages usually were situated near lakes, rivers or streams.

Dr. McColl expressed the hope that people interested in the digging or with knowledge of unsurveyed Indian sites would contact the Association through the McCord Museum at McGill.

"We need all the information we can get," he said, "for little is known of the prehistory of Quebec, and we hope to make some small contribution to furthering this knowledge."

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Some fair deer have been coming through town the last few days. I saw a nice buck that would weigh about 175 pounds, with a very nice head. There's still a bunch of yearlings getting shot, though. Too bad.

A couple of nice ones came in from Dunany, not too big but nice eating in them. I guess the big ones are just a little too smart at present to be shot. So far, I don't think there can be many really being taken.

There sure are some queer stories on deer being shot around the area. . . Jack-lights? Could be.

• • •

The ducks aren't moving very well at present, but they will when the weather gets a little worse. We noticed a lot of blacks around, but they sure are wary.

The partridge are giving us some fair shooting around these spots. Around open clearings they have been very good. So, any old farms around? With the leaves coming down nicely, some excellent shooting is expected in the next couple of weeks. And any you do get, be sure you clean them right away. Better eating, believe me.

• • •

Don't forget the Argenteuil Fish and Game Association meeting, to be held in the Lachute Legion Hall next Monday at 8 p.m. Let's see a few more members in attendance!

• • •

There have been a few phone calls about the North River, and with the exception of one caller, they will all pull their weight in anything that can be done. The one call was not very complimentary; it was anonymous, but I'll answer it anyway. The river is NOT polluted; it may be in spots, but not enough to bother about. If the river were all polluted, there would not be any fish living in it. . . So someone is playing politics. So much for that!

Here's a thought for the good people of Lachute to consider. In 1955, fishermen in the U.S.A. spent millions of dollars in Canada for accommodation, besides all the other services connected with it. We could get a chunk of those dollars if we want them. So let's start doing something about it. You know, folks, more dollars in the community means a lot.

• • •

The fishing in the North River is terrific: over the week-end the spinning was very good. To see a big fish come in to hit your spinner is quite a thrill. We took a number of small ones, both Muskies and Northerns about 3 pounds, that were all put back for next year.

The best fishing was between the two bridges just east of town and just past McLean's Camps going up to St. Louis Island. One of these times some fisherman will tie into a record fish out of these waters, that I'm sure of. While the present unofficial record for a Muskie is over 70 pounds, that may seem like a big statement to make; but just wait and see. Of course, the season closed on the 15th, so we'll have to wait until next year.

• • •

Take it easy in the bush. It's very dry, so if you want to smoke, stop and finish your cigarette; don't walk around. And be very careful of your fire.

• • •

Here's an old service trick. If your gun looks to be pitted in the barrel, use boiling water. Just pour it down, then clean out. You will sure get a surprise. Be sure the barrel is dry, then pull an oiled rag through, and there you have it.

The last tip for this week: Don't be an actor with firearms, or you may end up the main actor at an inquest.

• • •

Just got the information on a black bear that was shot by Gordon Robinson just about one mile southwest of Lakefield. It was over 300 pounds and was killed with two shots, both to the head. Good shooting!

Hawkesbury Won Dollard League Baseball Finals

Hawkesbury — The Hawkesbury team won the final game against Buckingham, 16-10, recently in the Dollard League climax.

This exciting game, which was played at Buckingham, was full of action and the spectators sure got their money's worth. Coach Claude Drouin changed pitchers five times during the game.

During the year, Hawkesbury was defeated three times and won nine victories. The Voltigeurs eliminated Brownsburg in two games and did likewise with Buckingham.

5-Pin Bowling Started in Canada

An estimated 1,000,000 Canadian players are engaged in five-pin bowling as this truly native Canadian game gets into full swing on some 7,000 alleys across the country.

The new Encyclopedia Canadiana credits Thomas J. Ryan, of the Toronto Bowling Club, with creating the game in 1909 to satisfy the club's desire for a faster, less strenuous game than ten-pins. Neither duck-pins nor candle-pins had found favor with the club.

He made the pins smaller, cut their number in half, and substituted a smaller ball. The faster and lighter game was approved quickly and in 1910 the first five-pin league was organized.

Duck-pins and candle-pins enjoy regional popularity and the game of ten-pins has many thousands of enthusiastic players in Canada, but their popularity does not approach that of five-pins.

The popularity of five-pins increased rapidly after rubber bands were placed around the wooden pins. The rubber deadened the force of the bowling ball's blow and made it easier for a player to make a strike.

The first recorded game having a score of over 400 was bowled in 1918 by Alfred Scrubb, a famous English long-distance runner then living in Canada. In 1921 Bill Bromfield scored 450 in the first-known perfect game.

The Canadian Bowling Association was formed in 1926. It set specifications for alley lengths and widths; size, weight and kind of wood for pins; size of rubber bands; size and weight of balls, and so forth.

Rigaud Motorbike Races By Repeated Request

At the general request of the 2,000 persons present at last Sunday's racing, also of the drivers — the promoter of Rigaud Park will be happy to co-operate by presenting another motorcycle program this Sunday, October 20.

Last Sunday the fans witnessed a sensational program, with thrills aplenty. Five drivers were hospitalized because of accidents. One motorcycle caught fire; fortunately the driver was only slightly burned. Rigaud Park is no place for faint hearts!

Fans in search of thrills will not be disappointed next Sunday.

On the same bill, a driver will perform a spine-tingling special act. -1c

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons; but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Please, Mr. Mayor!

THERE IS ALWAYS joy in home-coming. Well, nearly always. . . Returning from a visit over the Thanksgiving week-end, we were duly thankful to see the familiar haunts of home. The sentiment received something of a jolt, however, when once again we came upon that Welcome sign on Route 41, approaching Lachute from the direction of St. Jerome.

It seems that we write about this sign with perennial monotony, but for some reason our City Fathers remain unconscious of its faded and battered appearance. Why, is a mystery. Perhaps because it is not considered within the purview of the Embellishment Committee, or any other committee. Or perhaps because the sign is situated across the town boundary in St. Jerusalem, and is consequently neglected. After our trip through the Eastern Townships, where most incorporated communities seem alert to the sign language of the highways, and its potentiality for a good impression — it was more of a shock than ever, to come across this grim advertisement for the Town of Lachute.

We take liberty now to address this comment to the Mayor, who in his previous terms of office has established a reputation for getting things done. As spokesman for the civic-spirited segment of Lachute, we'd like to see some interest in this particular matter.

Those Would-be Helpers

INEXPERIENCED helpers at fires have more than once caused some concern to members of the local fire brigade and Sunday evening's fire was another example of this.

It just so happened that there were enough experienced men at the scene of the fire immediately behind the truck but with outsiders butting in and not minding their own business, a serious delay was caused in getting the water on the burning building. We might point out that in this case, it was the one who caused the most trouble that suffered the most, the occupant of the house.

Fire hose was pulled off the truck and piled in the middle of the street by people not using their heads, thus making the job much harder for the fire-fighters. Things like this were done by those "butting-in". On the other hand, assistance by several citizens was offered and accepted but these men did what was asked of them and did not get in the road of other workers.

It is fortunate that the delay caused by those "butters-in" was overcome by the teamwork that is in evidence when the local fire brigade get their teeth into a fire of a serious nature and it is also fortunate that no one was injured due to that delay in getting water on the flames.

If in future, all would-be firemen keep to the sidelines in person as well as with their cars until assistance is called for, a still greater service will be rendered the citizens of the town by the local volunteers. If and when your help is needed, you will be called upon to act, so for the benefit of all, please act accordingly.

The Royal English

WHETHER ardently concerned for the royal oratory, or anxious to blazon his own name in the fiery lights of indignation — Lord Altringcham certainly achieved the latter, while having no perceptible effect on the Queen's diction.

Nothing short of a Billingsgate accent, and subject matter of utter nonsense, could detract from the one quality in the Queen's speeches which wins the far-flung masses. That is, her quality of Sincerity. Her messages do, nevertheless, ring with logic, reason, and the bond of sentiment — despite those who care to criticize (and who, in this practicing Democracy, are privileged to do so). But if they were wrapped in words of affectation, still these qualities would be empty, idle and unconvincing. The ties of loyalty are there, real and unquestionable. They are evidenced in the daily deeds of her onerous routine; but even without this practical proof, they would be undeniable in Her Majesty's voice. With no technique, trick or device of oratory, her words are down-to-earth and straightforward, inspired only by Sincerity — that quality rare enough these days to command our admiration.

In the Queen's message broadcast to the nation from the Governor-General's study, we heard a most informal greeting to the people of Canada, whom Her Majesty and her Consort have embraced in their affection. And we noted one simple but significant reference. . . The Queen recalled her last visit to Canada in 1951, and her departure from Portugal Cove "in the teeth of a gale, as you may remember." She recalled the concerted voices of the people singing "Will ye no come back again?" Many listeners and viewers remember that incident vividly, and some felt concern for the Princess' safety, in her turbulent embarkation from a small craft to the Naval vessel which carried the Royal couple homeward. It was a minor incident, but one which impressed the truth that our Queen (as she became, the following year) — very young, very human, very feminine — was carrying a heavy burden, but acquitting herself with great courage and with credit to her forefathers . . .

Lord Altringcham and the critics could look mighty small by comparison with the task Elizabeth II has undertaken and so creditably fulfilled.

Reflections on Sputnik

THE AGE of the satellite has arrived. . . No one knows, at this stage, what this will mean to mankind but the comic book stories of space ships that were in the realm of fancy only a few weeks ago don't seem quite so improbable today.

The Russians, with Sputnik, their 184-pound satellite, have conquered space and it is just a matter of time before the United States too will have its satellites circling the earth.

There is a world of difference between an unmanned sphere and a manned space ship but the Russians claim they soon will be sending animals up into the outer space. Once the problem of staying alive in the thin atmosphere has been solved, human beings will follow.

But that doesn't mean that man will be travelling to the moon tomorrow, the next day or even within the life span of persons now living. Russia's satellite is less than 600 miles above the earth; the moon is 238,840 miles away.

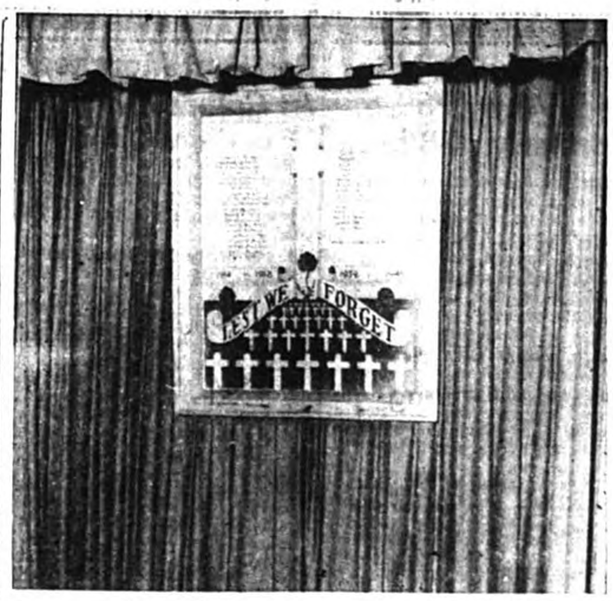

Russia's achievement, great as it is, probably is as remote from a trip to the moon as the Wright brothers' first airplane flight was from the trans-Atlantic crossings of today's jet airliners.

One immediate result of the first earth satellite, however, is already evident. Radio and television comedians have found a new subject for their jokes; the first satellite toys are on the assembly line and there should be a booming market for them this Christmas.

In Detroit that city's junior advertising club has announced it will begin an immediate study of advertising in outer space, its possibilities and its problems.

Club president Rex Ciavola has stated that a code of ethics must be developed "before we find ourselves swamped with such problems as satellites broadcasting recorded commercials, blinking satellites with messages readable from earth and billboard rental space on the moon."

We've a feeling Mr. Ciavola is being a bit premature but it might not be a bad idea if space billboards replaced the signs that now clutter our highways, especially at this season of the year when the trees are decked in their lovely autumn colors.

Comrades' Tribute and Remembrance Expressed in Brownsb'g Legion Plaque

The Remembrance theme in Brownsburg is symbolized by a memorial plaque situated in the entrance to the Brownsburg Legion Hall. This plaque is inscribed with the names of local servicemen who fell in 1914-18, 1939-45 and the Korean war.

The project of erecting this plaque was spearheaded by President Omer Carrière, and with help of a donation to start the initial work, Alan Vowles to contribute many hours of work, together with Mrs. Gordon Todd of the Brownsburg Legion Auxiliary, they have made an imposing memorial to their fallen comrades. This plaque will be used as a centrepiece for their Armistice Day wreaths, which will be displayed in a store window in Brownsburg during the sale of poppies in Brownsburg.

The sale of poppies in this district during Remembrance Day season is carried out by Legion Branches and their Auxiliaries, and it is pointed out that the Act of Remembrance itself, symbolized by the wearing of a poppy, is a tribute to those who paid the supreme sacrifice. The money raised through this campaign is used for the helping of thousands of Canadian families not entitled to Government assistance. All funds derived from this campaign are used only for the aid of ex-servicemen and their dependents. They are not used for any other phase of Legion activity. . . Do not forget those who sacrificed everything to help you!

The Club has received a report from a motorist, who drove from Three Rivers to Montreal on the evening of Thanksgiving Day, who counted 41 horse-drawn vehicles on the highways minus a light of any kind, and not one with a light.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Violence Condoned

I've been reading the decision of Mr. Justice John Kearney of the Exchequer Court of Canada holding that the men who refused to cross a picket line are entitled to draw unemployment insurance.

Unemployment insurance for what? They have jobs to go to. Harding Carpets Limited, of Brantford, Ontario, did not fire them — t wanted them to work. They could have crossed the picket line. The law of peaceful picketing does not condone violence and intimidation of non-striking workers.

Then why do the rest of us have to pay them Unemployment Insurance?

The reason is a shocking one. Justice Kearney ruled as he did because it was clear that these people were too frightened to cross hat picket line. There was definitely fear of violence and bodily harm — so much fear that Justice Kearney felt the workers were justified in not crossing the picket line for fear they'd get hurt physically.

I am not blaming Justice Kearney for this finding; he probably had no alternative but to interpret the Unemployment Insurance Act as he did. Unfortunately, this action appears to condone illegal conduct in picketing.

What is the matter with Ontario that it does not enforce the law of peaceful picketing?

Things have come to a pretty pass when a court ruling implies that it would be bodily dangerous n the Province of Ontario to cross a picket line — so dangerous that workers who refuse to do it are considered jobless, and the rest of Canada must pay them Unemployment Insurance!

Many out here in Western Canada have known cases where employees contributed to Unemployment Insurance for years — but when they needed it, and made application, they were treated mighty coolly by the Unemployment Insurance clerks. It was made mighty tough for them to collect a single cent, even though they'd been paying for a long time and were now genuinely unemployed. Yet Ontario workers, frightened by a picket line, have no trouble getting a court decision that they must be paid.

What will happen now? Ontario labor will work this picket-line bogey for all it's worth. A handful of pickets waving sticks can put hundreds of non-striking workers on the Unemployment Insurance payroll and the thousands of contributors who never expect to get a nickel back from their donations will foot the bill.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

There is more to Mary than meets the eye. At first glance she doesn't seem anything special: loud voice, kind heart, skilled hand at the kitchen stove, dealer in small talk.

The unusual trait about Mary is that she notices things.

Riding home with us from a movie, she said: "That car in front is on fire."

There were four of us in our car, but Mary was the only one who had detected the red glow underneath the old-model car ahead.

"Are you sure?" we asked her. She said she was sure. Meanwhile, the car had turned down a side street. We circled through the yard of a gas station, and caught up with the car parked outside a house.

"Your Car's on Fire"

"Hey, your car's on fire", I yelled through the window. The red glare was obvious to all of us by now, but the people who had just alighted from the car gaped at us as though they thought we were crazy.

Two or three minutes elapsed before the idea sank in, and they bustled around trying to extinguish the fire. Mary had noticed it. None of us others had.

I attempted to alibi myself out of it by muttering that I had to concentrate on the road, and couldn't be bothered rubbernecking at all the surroundings. But I didn't convince myself.

Mary also finds coins, ballpoint pens and other objects that have apparently been overlooked by other people going the same way.

Recently she saw a shop-lifter remove a garment from a downtown store and coolly walk away with it. She hadn't the heart to turn him in. Several other people were present, but as far as she knows, she was the only witness.

A Valuable Gift

Mary's ability to see things is a valuable gift. Few people have it. The average person fails as an observer for two reasons. He doesn't use his eyes, and when he does see an object beyond the ordinary, he often refuses to believe it.

Very likely the others of us in the car saw that faint red glow, but we subconsciously rejected the evidence.

In some convolution of the brain that served as a city desk, a cerebral city editor told us to forget about it; there was no story. "Automobiles just don't trundle along the highway with a red glare shining under them," he said. And we believed him.

Next time, we'll be alert for cars that are afire underneath, because we shall have absorbed that lesson. But if a car comes along driven by a bear, the less observant among us won't see it. We'll have to wait until Mary points it out.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

What Canadian became prime minister of Great Britain?

The only prime minister of Great Britain born outside the British Isles was Andrew Bonar Law. A native of Rexton, N.B., he held office in 1922 and 1923. He spent most of his youth in Scotland, where he prospered in the family business. He entered politics as a Conservative and held several important posts during his 23-year-political career. He became prime minister in 1922 and won the subsequent election but ill health forced his retirement the following year.

Who was the first wheat farmer on the Canadian prairies?

The first man to grow wheat on the Canadian prairie is thought to have been Louis Francois, Chevalier de la Corne, who sowed several acres of wheat in 1754 in the valley of the Carrot River, a tributary of the Saskatchewan. He had a successful career in the French army as commandant of the western posts and was responsible for the construction of Fort St. Louis on the Saskatchewan River. He drowned at sea while en route to France.

Who was Simon McTavish?

Nicknamed "Le Marquis" by some of his contemporaries who considered him arrogant and domineering, Simon McTavish shared in the organization of the original North West Company in 1779 and became one of the great figures in the fur trade. Under his management, the North West Company financed numerous important explorations by Simon Fraser, David Thompson and others. He headed a London firm which engaged in various kinds of international trade and became one of the wealthiest men in Montreal. His will, and letters that have recently come to light, show him to have been a kindly, generous man. He was born in Scotland and died at Montreal in 1804.

Life insurance companies must report their financial operations to the Superintendent of Insurance.* According to the latest official figures here are the facts about the Life Insurance Dollar:

Where each Dollar comes from:

74¢ comes from premiums paid by policyholders for insurance to protect their wives and families . . . and for security in their own old age.

26¢ comes from earnings on policyholders' funds. These funds are invested under Government supervision and help to develop Canada.

What happens to each Dollar:

82¢ is for policyholders.

43¢ is paid out to living policyholders and to beneficiaries.

39¢ is invested for future benefits to policyholders.

18¢ is used for normal operating expenses which include taxes, licenses and fees paid to Governments.

*The latest report from the Superintendent of Insurance, Ottawa, shows that in 1956 the life insurance companies in Canada paid out $371 million in benefits to policyholders. By far the greater part of this money ($236 million) went to living policyholders.

Albright-Copeland Vows Pledged in Autumn Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Florence Rae Copeland, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Copeland, to Cst. Gregor Wethey Albright, R.C.M.P., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ewen Albright, took place recently in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute. The Rev. James Armour officiated, and Mr. Wayne Riddell was soloist. White chrysanthemums arranged with ferns were used to decorate for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin fashioned with long sleeves ending in points over the hands, a fitted bodice, and having a bateau neckline re-embroidered with Alençon lace and tiny seed pearls, and a very full skirt ending in a short train. A small satin crown held her chapel veil of tulle illusion, and she carried a cascade bouquet of Orange Delight roses.

Miss Audrey Copeland was maid of honor for her sister, and Miss Elaine Cooke, R.N., of Vancouver, and Miss Margaret Holt, Miss Heather MacTavish and Miss Ruth Rae Walker were bridesmaids, wearing gowns of white faille taffeta similar in style to that worn by the bride. Their headdresses were halos of crimson, gold and green maple leaves, and they carried maple leaves and yellow chrysthemums in the shape of horseshoes. Miss Sharron Tremaine, niece of the bridegroom, was flowergirl, wearing a frock of white faille taffeta and carrying a nosegay of maple leaves and yellow chrysanthemums.

Cst. Glen Copeland, of Nova Scotia, brother of the bride, was best man, and the ushers were Cst. Thomas Jamieson, Ottawa; Cst. Alexander MacGibbon, Moose Jaw, Sask.; Cpl. Richard Muir, Ottawa; and Cst. Norman Ross, Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Copeland, mother of the bride, wore an original gown of gold imported Swiss silk taffeta. Her hat was a profile of brown velvet — gold and bronze chrysanthemums adorning her handbag.

Mrs. Albright, mother of the bridegroom, was in a gown of avocado green French crêpe, wearing brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Copeland, Sr., grandmother of the bride, was gowned in blue French crêpe, with black accessories and a corsage of deep pink Sweetheart roses.

Following the reception at the Legion Hall, Cst. and Mrs. Albright left for Gaspé, the bride travelling in a brown model sheath dress with brown mink collar. She wore a small beige hat and carried a brown handbag with brown and yellow orchids.

The bride is a graduate of the Royal Victoria Hospital School of Nursing, and the bridegroom is with the R.C.M.P.

The couple will reside in Kamloops, B.C.

Thanksgiving at Lachute United, Anniversary at East Settlement

In glorious autumn weather, Thanksgiving services were celebrated at Lachute and East Settlement United Churches, with appropriate hymns and messages.

At Lachute, the choir, under the direction of Mr. Ewart Callicott, rendered the anthem "O Come, Ye Servants of the Lord". Miss Christina Paul was at the organ. Mrs. A. G. Giles and Mrs. Wilson Bridge had charge of the decorations.

East Settlement Church held a combined service of Thanksgiving for harvest, and for 50 years of Christian witness in the neighborhood. By request, Mr. R. A. Giles, of Lachute, presided at the organ, and a quartet was rendered by Mrs. C. L. Duncan, Mrs. Angus Taylor, Mr. Chas. L. Duncan and Mr. Owen Todd. The church was filled to capacity, chairs being placed in the aisles, and a number of people had to stand through the service.

The Rev. Wilson Bridge, minister of the Lachute pastoral charge, was the preacher at both services.

Two car-loads of harvest gifts were afterwards taken to the Protestant Children's Home at Rosemere.

Ed. Note:

It is interesting to note that Thanksgiving was two weeks later 50 years ago; also that Mr. J. S. Giles, who attended the opening at that time, was privileged to be present last Sunday.

The following account of the Dedication Service is taken from The Watchman of Nov. 1, 1907:

The opening of the fine new church at Genoa, East Settlement took place on Sunday, October 27. Although the weather was anything but favorable, the church was well filled in the morning and the Rev. Mr. Mitchell preached from I Cor. 3: 11, "For other foundations," etc., after which fitting references were also made by the Rev. Ernest Thomas. The pastor (Rev. T. A. Mitchell) then formally dedicated the church for divine worship.

In the evening it was raining heavily, yet a goodly number were present. The Rev. Mr. St. Germaine assisted the pastor at this service and the music was furnished by Mr. McBurney and part of the Lachute Church choir.

The church is heated by a McClary furnace, and has a very pretty metallic ceiling, both of which were placed by Mr. W. S. McBride, of Lachute.

How High Do You Want Your Cabbages

Believe it or not, these twelve-foot high vegetables, being studied by a scientist of Chas. Pfizer & Co. Inc., are cabbages. Unlike those in the pots at the left, the mammoth cabbages have been treated experimentally with gibberellin, a new plant growth stimulant.

In the treatment of vegetables, the stem tip of each plant was given 100 micrograms of gibberellin once a week over a two-month period. The stimulated growth is obvious on comparison with the untreated plants, which are the same age. When this photograph was taken, the treated and untreated cabbages were five months old. Dr. Wittwer, whose pioneering studies with gibberellins have revealed outstanding growth effects, is continuing his investigations under a grant from the chemical company.

The substance, which is produced by fermentation methods, and the name "gibberellin" are derived from "Gebberella fujikuroi", an organism causing elongation of rice shoots, first observed by Japanese researchers almost three decades ago. This reaction is characteristic of what the Japanese called "Bakanae" or "foolish seedling" disease, which stimulated their investigations.

B.C. Forum Workshop Debates Effectiveness of Meetings

"Meetings can be refreshing and worthwhile, but most are dull, frustrating experiences which result in few people taking their place in community affairs," was the main conclusion of the recent Farm Forum Workshop at Abbotsford, B.C.

The 15 participants were discussing why people don't attend Farm Forums, when one member pointed out it was simply because there were too many other meetings. When this suggestion was challenged it was agreed that this Forum member was active in more organizations than his neighbors. Then he was asked to list all the groups which he had joined and the number of meetings he was expected to attend. Allowing for 100% attendance at the meetings which included church, the best he could do was account for 50 evenings during the 150-day period in which Farm Forums were active. When he admitted many of his meetings were executive in nature and included only a few persons, he began to take another look at the situation. Then he exclaimed "Well, I certainly feel terrible the next morning after most of the meetings."

This remark was kept in mind through the remaining Workshop sessions which discussed many things which happen at meetings.

Most organizers of Farm Forums were found to be talking new groups into a state of apathy rather than demonstrating how simple and attractive good meeting procedures can be. For example, at one point in the experiment a fieldman spent over 10 minutes getting his audience lost in a confusion of words when all he had to say was "Would you please turn to page 3 of the Guide." The saving in time was 95%, the understanding was increased 100% and the feeling was much better. At another step a slight change in procedure made it possible for the Secretary to do his report while participating in the meeting, yet for those present the practice has been for the Secretary to spend a few hours next day preparing the report.

When two persons held the meeting up for some time each defending his own point of view, it was discovered that a listing of facts on the point saved much time, brought out in each a desire for more information and removed the temptation for unnecessary and wasteful debate.

The practice of many organizations to hold member meetings only once a year also creates apathy in community affairs and creates a need for a service like National Farm Radio Forum. Like taking an arm out of a sling only once a year, the mind must receive regular exercise at community affairs to be useful at community meetings. With much time spent on tractors and with labor saving machinery, the chances for discussing affairs is lessening. According to the Workshop there is a great need for farm and co-operative organizations to encourage and promote the use of adult education services such as Farm Forums, as part of their responsibility to maintain an active and well educated membership.

JOLSON NOTES

By Irvin R. Warwick

AL JOLSON
May 26, 1883 - October 23, 1950

Jolsongs of the Month: Among My Souvenirs, Roses of Picardy Say It Isn't So, Little Pal, Without a Song, After You've Gone, When Day Is Done, I'm Always Chasing Rainbows, Memories, Always, That Old Gang of Mine, and Ol' Man River.

Why so many of them? Well, these are the songs included in the latest Al Jolson Album, "Among My Souvenirs", released by Decca recently. In contrast to the previous album in "The Jolson Story" series, which were re-issues, this one consists of NEW material, taken from tape recordings of Kraft Music Hall, on which Al starred for several years. This, for the most part, is a tender nostalgic Jolson, who proves conclusively that Mistah Jolson could croon with the best of them. And the cover of the album is very attractive, with a nice big picture of Al. So — get yourself a copy!

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman By Mary Fran Burke, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The "slim look" is the look of the season, and fashion experts advise Canadian women to slim down.

And this can be done overnight, according to fashion consultant Betty Vincent, who reported that new girdles have been created especially for the new line of fall clothing.

Among the collection of girdles that were shown in Toronto at the annual meeting of foundation fitters were those made for women with thigh troubles.

These girdles flatten the thighs and are long-legged design. They are styled with legs stretching almost as far down the leg as Jamaica shorts.

Rounded Figure

The scant hip, Miss Vincent said doesn't mean the narrow hip look but that there is more control through the hip. The hip is rounded to look its best for today's relaxed fashions.

"The accent is on rounding the figure," Miss Vincent said.

This year girdles have such colors as "starlite blue", "romantic black", and "kiss-me-pink." The latter has a special perfume as co-ordinator.

After the show, which highlighted a number of figure-controlling designs, fitters were instructed in proper methods of "slimming down and controlling" milady's figure.

Experts showed that for a pull-on girdle, madame should first turn it inside out, then fold it in half. Next pull it to the base of the hips and unfold. An extra hint is to do up the back garters from outside of the stocking seam to ensure straightness.

Popular Idea

A new idea in fund raising has been tried by the women's auxiliary of the Jewish General Hospital in Montreal.

"It's a luncheon that was never held," said Mrs. Julius J. Block, auxiliary president.

"We hit on the idea of convening an imaginary luncheon and asked members to send us a dollar instead of coming," Mrs. Block explained.

"It certainly was a success as the mock luncheon brought in $1,100 into the auxiliary's treasury in three months."

Care of Clothes

Proper care will add years to the life-span of your clothing. Experts advise brushing suits and other garments with a good long-bristled brush as least once every two or three days.

If cuffs get muddy let them dry and then brush. Dirt abrasion will make fabrics wear out sooner. Don't cram pockets with odds and ends as it puts them out of shape.

As no fibre is entirely unaffected by stains you should treat them quickly. While a stain may be taken out days or even weeks later, the fibre may be damaged.

Hallowe'en Takes Constructive Trend, With "Shell Out for UNICEF" Motif

"Shell Out for UNICEF" is a project designed to extend the benefits of our Canadian Hallowe'en to boys and girls in less fortunate countries all over the world. Everyone in Canada is being invited to take part in this new style Hallowe'en-with-a-heart, but there is no set form, no prescribed way of participating. "Shell Out for UNICEF" projects can be organized by individual parents, teachers, church groups, civic and service clubs — everyone is invited to join in the fun. Whether you are planning a community-wide project or a small neighborhood party, remember that the educational value of the "Shell Out" is just as important as the actual fund-raising. Youngsters taking part should understand exactly what the United Nations Children's Fund is and does, so that they will be able to tell everyone why they are sharing their Hallowe'en with "all the world's children." Householders should be informed about UNICEF so that they will know just where their pennies nickels and dimes are going and the great good they will do. The entire program has been planned to help children, young people and adults learn more about UNICEF and contribute to its work, while enjoying their usual Hallowe'en fun.

Apple Slice Coffee Cake

For centuries apples have provided plenty of good eating, for historians tell us they are probably the oldest cultivated fruit. In fact ever since Eve succumbed to the first apple it seems it has been considered a very enticing fruit. The fresh tangy apples now available are mighty enticing too, when they're an ingredient of this Apple Slice Coffee Cake. Just a touch of cinnamon accentuates the tart flavor of apples in this coffee cake that has a tender, delicious muffin-like topping. It's an excellent way to include apples — which scientists and doctors consider an excellent source of Vitamins B and C — in the diet while they are abundant.

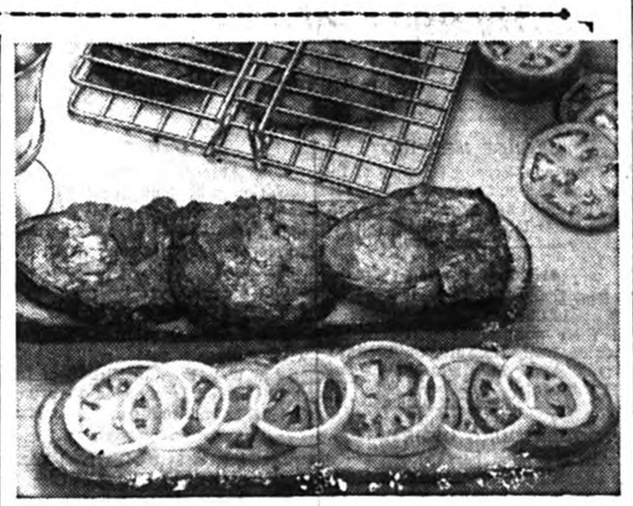

Apple Slice Coffee Cake

(Yield — 9 squares)

3 Tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ cup lightly-packed brown sugar, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon 1½ cups apple slices, 1¾ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour (or 2 cups once-sifted pastry flour) 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup milk, ¼ cup shortening (melted).

Preheat oven to 375°F. (moderately hot). Melt butter or margarine in an 8-inch square cake pan. Combine brown sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle over butter or margarine in pan. Arrange apple slices in a design over brown sugar mixture.

Sift the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder, salt and granulated sugar into a bowl. Beat egg until thick and light; blend in milk and melted shortening. Make a well in dry ingredients and add liquids all at once, stirring just to combine. Turn batter into prepared pan. Bake in preheated oven, about 35 minutes. Stand pan on a cake rack for 2 or 3 minutes, then turn out cake onto a large serving dish. Serve with soft butter.

Steak Goes Informal

OPEN FACE FRENCH STEAK SANDWICHES

With the "do-it-yourself" technique so firmly established in most homes, more and more men are taking to the kitchen to prepare their own favorite foods. If the man in your house is slow to fall in step, it might be a good idea to encourage him to prepare simple, down-to-earth dishes. Probably nothing fits this description better than broiled steaks garnished with onion rings and scarlet tomato slices. There's no better companion for a tender, juicy steak than slices of French bread, piping hot hamburger buns or toast. These Open-Face French Steak Sandwiches are sure to delight the teen-age crowd. The steak is given a most effective dressing of mustard and simple seasonings for added appetite appeal. If preferred, cube steaks could replace the steaks called for in this recipe.

French Steak Sandwiches

(Yield — 5 or 6 servings)

1½ pounds beef steak (cut about ¾-inch thick), 1 loaf French bread, (or heat 5 or 6 hamburger buns or use hot toast), bottled prepared mustard, salt, pepper, monosodium glutamate, optional, soft butter or margarine, sliced tomatoes, onion rings.

Trim steak and cut into pieces. Spread each side of steak with a little prepared mustard and sprinkle with salt, and monosodium glutamate, if being used.

Heat French bread (or hamburger buns or make toast, if being used). Broil or pan-broil steaks, turning once, until cooked to desired degree.

Split heated loaf lengthwise and spread with soft butter or margarine. Arrange sliced tomatoes and onion rings over one half of the loaf and the cooked steaks over the other half.

Linen

When purchasing linen select the half bleached. It is stronger than the bleached, and after washing several times it will become perfectly white.

Federated W. Inst. Meets in Ottawa

The Institute motto, "For Home and Country", will be the theme when the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada meets in Ottawa the end of this month, to hold its first national convention.

This is taking place in the Chateau Laurier, and will celebrate the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Women's Institute.

Around 400 delegates and visitors have already registered, with representatives from all ten provinces.

What About Teasing?

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

You may have read in Hilda M. Ridley's biography of L. M. Montgomery, the story of an old man who came to visit Lucy Maud's childhood home. He called the girl who later wrote the Ann of Green Gables books "Johnny." When she protested in childhood rage, it was all in vain. The visitor continued to tease her by calling her "Johnny".

The child was so annoyed that when it came time for him to go away, she refused to shake hands with him. He thought this was a great joke and laughed heartily. "I won't call you 'Johnny' any more," he promised, "after this I'll call you 'Sammy'!"

The writer comments that to the old man, the teasing of a touchy child was fun, but to Lucy Maud it was poison. "She never afterwards heard the mention of this old man's name without a deep feeling of resentment."

Teasing is a mean business and parents as well as children resent an adult, particularly one who is a guest, indulging in this pastime. The grown-up teaser is taking advantage of his age and position. He knows it is unlikely that anyone will interfere with the "fun" he enjoys by inflecting criticism on a defenceless child.

I have very vivid memories of a woman who teased my sister and myself about our heights. My younger sister grew taller than I was when she was twelve and I was sixteen. This woman who teased us, invariably would make a point of meeting us on the way home from Sunday School. She would giggle whenever she saw us together, and exclaim is a shrill voice, "Why the littler is the bigger."

I complained to Mother, with fire in my eye, and dark threats about what I would like to do to that woman. Mother was silent for a moment, then she asked quietly, "Since she makes you so mad, why not make a point of avoiding her?"

Why hadn't we thought of this simple solution? From that day, we played a little game of not meeting our tormentor.

If a guest persists in teasing a child, a parent does well to send the child on an errand. Thus the youngster is removed from the visitor who has such little sense.

When a child is teased by another child, parents must encourage him to develop a little thickness of skin. It can be pointed out that a teaser soon stops if he finds his words are having no effect on the object of his ridicule. Here is an old-fashioned rhyme which has come to the rescue of countless children:

"Sticks and stones may break my bones,
But names will never hurt me!"

Mothers and fathers are often provoked by the teasing problem of their own family. A certain amount is invitable and has to be taken in good part. But it must be kept within bounds. An adolescent girl teased about her new party dress just before she steps out, may be upset and her happiness shattered. Parents must help their children to see that laughter, which is anything but enjoyable for the person being teased, is undesirable.

Boys and girls in early adolescence are apt to be sensitive. They need their self-confidence built up by honest praise, not pulled down with criticism. They have to accept fair regulations about the length of their conversations on the family phone, but they should have some privacy for their phone "visits". How can they feel relaxed and at ease if they know a "teaser" is eavesdropping and will pounce as soon as they hang up.

The child who gets pleasure from teasing must find other socially acceptable ways to enjoy himself. Parents should not label him as "bad" or "selfish". He should learn that persistent teasing is taboo. One mother found it helpful to reassure a boy, who constantly reduced his younger sister to tears with his remarks, by saying to him: "Lots of children want to tease and do a bit of it. But most of them grow out of this bad habit by the time they are your age. It's a mean way to act and you aren't a mean person."

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

You'll never have to solve a "whodunnit" as far as your car is concerned, if you keep your private eye peeled on proper precautions. I'm told that owner's carelessness is the main cause of car thefts.

In one recent year thousands of automobiles were reported stolen in this country. Although police are up to date on detecting stolen cars and apprehending auto thieves, they would have an easier job if the average automobile owner assumed his proper responsibility.

Here are some tips to help you foil car prowlers:

1. When you park your car on the street, lock all doors.

2. Avoid parking on dark, little-travelled streets. A car thief needs time and secrecy to break into the car, wire the ignition and get it started. Also, don't park overnight on any street.

3. Don't leave your car parked for an extended period of time without making periodic checks.

4. Make certain that you leave no valuable articles, such as luggage or clothing, in plain sight in your parked car, thus tempting a would-be burglar. Lock valuables in the luggage compartment.

5. If purchasing a used car, be certain that title papers correspond with the description of the car.

6. Make a permanent record of the motor and serial numbers on the car you buy, as well as other numbered articles. This will help the authorities find your car in the event it's stolen.

MORE ABOUT —
It Can't Be Done!

Previously I said that our competitors could not duplicate the number of pounds of each ingredient in our chows. . . To many this may LOOK like a trivial matter; but Protein is not just Protein, it in turn is made up of 26 Amino Acids. No single grain or feed contains all these acids, and if they did, they wouldn't have them in the proper proportions to give top results. So by mixing the different Protein feeds at different levels, Purina found that some mixes gave much better results than others.

Remember, Purina has been nearly 30 years experimenting on this and other factors, and it was the cows in their herd that gave the final answer — not just a pencil and paper! It takes both time and money to do these things, and a small manufacturer just can't do it. HE does it with a pencil and paper.

Another place where Purina costs more than our competitors is that Purina found brewer's grains were so hard to digest that they discontinued using them. They now use distiller's grains, which cost much more than brewer's, hence higher prices for Purina Chows, but better results. This our competitors could do, but they use brewer's because they must have a CHEAPER feed.

Now, price per bag is not an important factor. Suppose Purina Concentrate cost you $1.00 a bag more than our competitors. You mix it 1 to 4, that raises your mix 25 cents a cwt.; and if you feed 10 pounds of this mix a day to each cow, then it costs 2½ cents a day extra, or 1½ cents per cow per feed. With milk at 45 cents a gallon, each cow would have to give you approximately ½ pound more milk per milking. Now, everybody admits that Purina is a good feed, but "too dear". Well, if a good feed won't give you an extra ½ pound milk, I'll eat my shirt. But remember, you will never see a ½ pound more milk unless you WEIGH. Insist on Purina Chow; don't take something that is "just as good, but cheaper." Write, phone or call for your supply. We deliver.

Chambers of Commerce Discuss Tourism And 'Laurentian Trail' Triangle Route

Attendance at the Laurentides Regional Chamber of Commerce assembly here last Thursday was somewhat disappointing, due to prevalent sickness — evidenced notably in the absence of the local president, Miville Trickey, and other usually active members.

Between 50 and 60 gentlemen and their ladies attended the civic reception in the Council Chamber, where the mayor and mayoress greeted the visitors, also the supper held in the adjoining auditorium, where officers of the regional group and presidents of the affiliated Chambers were seated at the head-table. Mr. Jean O'Donnell of Laval des Rapides, regional president, acted as chairman. Mayor Léopold Carrière welcomed the gathering on behalf of Lachute Town and its administration, while Gabriel Downing, local secretary, spoke briefly on behalf of Mr. Trickey, who tendered regrets on his absence.

The ladies at this point adjourned to enjoy a music recital at the Golf Club, where they were entertained by Pierre Beaulieu, noted violinist, and Pierre Martineau, organist of the Notre Dame Church, Montreal.

The business session of the gathering was held in the Council Chamber, continuing until 11 p.m. Representatives were present from St. Jerome, Ste. Agathe, Laval West, St. Hyppolyte, St. Andrews East, Montebello and Lachute.

Jean O'Donnell, president, again occupied the chair, and reviewed the proceedings and activities arising out of recent meetings, and also reported on the provincial annual congress held at Chicoutimi. He was assisted by Jacques Poisson, the regional secretary, and the main object of study was the promotion of tourism and the so-called "Laurentian Trail", a highway circuit forming a triangle between three points, namely, Montreal, Hull and Mont Laurier, Que. — via Maniwaki. There was lengthy discussion on the publicity angle and the preparation of a map, pamphlet or brochure suitable for wide circulation in the United States and Canadian travel bureaus.

Contributing notably to this discussion were Mr. N. Robert, from Montebello; Mr. A. Blanchard, from Laval West, who cited the experience of organized tourist promotion for the Chicoutimi - Lac St. Jean area; and Mr. A. Ratelle, regional vice-president, publicist and promoter for the Ste. Agathe area. The latter, with 12 years' experience in this line of business, added much constructive discussion to this subject.

The provincial tourist bureau, it appears, is ready to co-operate with serious-minded syndicates duly organized to promote regional interests. The outcome of this debate was the calling of a meeting, November 7 at Val David, at which Mr. Ratelle would endeavor to organize a committee from all municipalities concerned, with the idea of presenting an organized front to the Quebec roads and tourist authorities.

A suggestion from Mr. Ratelle was that the Laurentides Region should have two vice-presidents, for the northern and western areas respectively, with two-year terms terminating at different dates. It was agreed that this and other constitutional changes would be discussed at the regional semi-annual.

There was much discussion on financing of the regional conclaves, and a mounting deficit in this and other matters of administration, now totalling $700. The president gave generous emphasis to the work performed by the Province of Quebec Chamber of Commerce. The parent body was no mere figure-head but an active organizational and co-ordinating factor. Mayor Horace Boivin of Granby, president of the group this year, is a fitting example of this energetic activity.

Dates of importance in the Laurentides program are — a two-day seminar on highways at Granby, November 10-11, at which the provincial Chamber and representatives from this Region will have the opportunity to discuss matters with the Quebec minister and highway authorities; also the semi-annual congress of the Laurentides Regional Chamber of Commerce, to be held Sunday, November 24, at Ste. Agathe.

President Jean O'Donnell cordially thanked the local Chamber, and the Mayor and Council of Lachute, for their hospitality.

In charge of the reception arrangements on behalf of Lachute Chamber were Robert Marcil and Hector Monti.

Business Man and Town-Builder Left Mark in Local Development

The Late Geoffroy Bédard

A merchant-tailor for 25 years and one of Lachute's earlier businessmen and town-builders, Mr. Geoffroy Bédard died at the age of 77.

Operating as a tailor from 1905 to 1927 in the Main Street building now occupied by Hadley Self-Service, he then entered energetically into real estate construction, opening up and developing that section which has since borne his name — Bédard Boulevard. . . He died at his residence on that street, last Thursday.

Geoffroy was the son of the late J. Alphonse Bédard, the first French-Canadian to start business in Lachute, in 1867. The latter dealt in shoes and household furniture, in the Bédard building which now houses the Sport Centre.

Geoffroy Bédard was married to the late Thérèse Simard, who predeceased him. He is mourned by his second wife, the former Rhéa Corbeil. They have no family, but surviving are many nephews and nieces—including Messrs. Leonard, Jacques and Frank Bedard, Gilbert Ayers and Maurice Champagne, Sr., residing in this town. The late Mr. Bédard leaves also two sisters, Mme Donat Dubé, of Montreal, Mme Emile Ricard, of Sarnia, Ont., and two sisters-in-law, Mme Chas. Bédard of Lachute, and Mme Champagne, of Hull, Que.

The funeral service, attended by a large following of relatives and fellow townsfolk, was held Saturday morning at Ste. Anastasie Parish Church. Mgr. C.-Wm. Lacourse, priest of the parish, officiated, and mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Corbeil, professor at the Ottawa Seminary, assisted by the Rev. Yvon Mailloux and the Rev. P.-E. Perron. Interment was in the Lachute Catholic Cemetery.

Rotary Air Show Profits Assigned To Hospital Fund

Sum Exceeding $1,000 Earmarked for Purchase Of Equipment Item

Kilgour Hardie, treasurer of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, reported the recent Air Show profits to be in the vicinity of $1,000 to $1,100, all expenses not having been received as yet.

The report was given last Thursday at the weekly dinner meeting of the Club held in the Brownsburg Legion Hall, at which the majority of members were present. It was suggested that a special "Rotary Club Hospital Fund" be formed, which could be added to, in order to purchase some piece of equipment in the name of the organization.

It was pointed out that the Lachute Regional Hospital Fund was in need of the money at the present time, in order to get construction underway — so, on a motion by Rotarian John Chalmers, seconded by Dudley Boal, it was unanimously resolved "that the proceeds be turned over to the Lachute Regional Hospital Fund, accompanied by a letter requesting that the money be earmarked for the purchase of some specific piece of equipment in the name of the Club."

Rotarian Sonny Ogilvie reported that some 20 loads of fill had been left at the Rotary Community Park and a levelling-up bee was planned for Saturday last.

A further report on the Scottish Rotarian Curlers' visit on November 23 was heard and it was decided to hold a Ladies' Night on that evening, the meeting to be held in the Lachute Curling Club — which President Nat Boyd and his directors have generously turned over to the Rotary Club for that evening.

The members then viewed a film on Fire Prevention titled "Before It Happened, and After," based on various Canadian fires and disasters. The film, scheduled for Fire Prevention Week, was unavoidably held up until last week's meeting.

Next Tuesday, November 5, a joint meeting with the Hawkesbury Rotary Club has been scheduled.

Trio Sentenced For Robberies in North of County

Three Montreal men, Gerald Valde, 35, Remi Blanchette, 18, and Jean Claude Ricard, 31, were arrested in Northern Quebec early last week and charged with five cases of breaking and entering with theft, in this county.

The charges, laid by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, were in connection with the recent robberies in Arundel, Weir, 16 Island Lake and Morin Heights, where the railway stations were all broken into, and at Moore's Garage, Arundel, where some $100 worth of equipment and $30 cash was stolen. The entries to the stations netted the thieves a total of $88, a rifle and other merchandise.

Appearing in St. Jerome court last Friday, Valde and Ricard were sentenced to jail terms of two years, three months, while Blanchette received a six-month sentence, this being his first offence.

Fitting Celebration For Richelieu Club Fifth Anniversary

A banquet and dance at the Golf Club chalet last Saturday gave fitting celebration to the fifth anniversary of the Lachute Richelieu Club.

Around 200 persons, including many attending from other branches of the fraternity, heard an interesting address by Professor Pierre-Henri Simon of the University of Fribourg, Switzerland (presently serving on the Arts faculty at U. of M.). A talk on the Richelieu movement was also given by the general governor of the Society, Normand Grimard, of Rouyn.

Special tribute was paid on this occasion to past-presidents of the local club, who one by one were presented with a mark of esteem in the form of a plaque bearing the Richelieu shield and insignia. Guest officers were called upon to make these presentations, in recognition of services rendered on behalf of this community's under-privileged children. Those honored in this manner were Roger Lagarde, Jean-Paul Roy, Dr. R. Lavigne and Gustave Jounnette.

The welcome and presidential "bon mot" were extended by Bernard Gosselin. Roger Lagarde spoke briefly, while Gustave Joannette introduced Prof. Grimard, and Jean-Paul Roy extended thanks on behalf of the club. Among those seated at the head-table were Philippe Valois, M.P.; the Hon. W. Cottingham, Quebec Minister of Mines; Mayor Léopold Carrière, representatives of civic administrations, local bodies and clubs, besides notables of the local Richelieu and affiliated groups in Montreal and district.

The lady guests on their arrival were each presented with perfume (by courtesy of Donat Saulnier, pharmacist) and a corsage. Door prizes at the banquet were won by Georges Roy, Hawkesbury; Mme Léopold Carrière, Lachute; Pierre-E. Cangardel, LL.D., Paris; and Dr. Adélard Groux, Montreal.

Inquest Held In Traffic Death

An inquest into the death of Mrs. Dora Campbell, 63, of Arundel, was held Friday evening in the Court House, under the chairmanship of Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur. No criminal blame was attached, in the verdict handed down by the six-man jury.

Mrs. Campbell died in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, St. Jerome, on August 23, following an accident on July 20 near Arundel. Death was attributed to celeberal hemorrhage. Mrs. Campbell was in a car driven by Lloyd Champagne, of Arundel, while the other car involved in the accident was driven by John MacLeod, of Westmount.

County Women's Institute Affairs At Semi-Annual Convention Here

The semi-annual convention of the Argenteuil County Women's Institutes was held in the Lachute High School last Saturday afternoon.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada", and was presided over by the president, Mrs. Mansell Wilson. Mrs. M. Crosby officiated for the Installation Ceremony of new officers and conveners and then conducted the president to her chair.

Mrs. Wilson welcomed the gathering and called upon the secretary, Mrs. S. Smith, to read the minutes of the 37th annual convention, held in May, and of the County Board meeting held in September.

The treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $423.29, cash on hand 18 cents, and $341.50 in the Educational Emergency Fund.

In speaking of the National Foundation Fund to which several of the branches have contributed, the provincial treasurer was asked how this County stood in comparison with others. Mrs. Cooke preferred not to comment on this, as all moneys were not yet received, but hoped that $1 per member would be realized.

The roll-call showed an attendance of 38; all branches were represented except one.

Mrs. Prosser reported on the Handicraft Exhibit at Lachute Spring Fair, and stated that there had been more entries and an improvement in quality over other years. The new list was read and a copy given to the Home Economics convener of each branch. The Agricultural Society is to be contacted regarding space in the building for another year, and the usual amount of 25 cents per member levied for prizes.

Mrs. Cooke moved that a wreath be placed on the Cenotaph in memory of our war dead. This was seconded by Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh and carried.

Several suggestions were put forth as to raising money to augment the County funds, and delegates were asked to discuss this in their branches.

Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, in speaking of the "Twilight Home", stated that the committee had investigated five different homes, and to date reports had come in from two branches; also that it was difficult to make plans until there was money on hand. Mrs. McGibbon recommended that a fund earmarked for the Twilight Home be started, and that a lot of publicity be given it. If after five years a good start had not been realized, that a two-thirds majority vote could transfer the fund to some other worthy cause.

The president urged members to support the Service Fund and the National Foundation Fund. She also called attention to the Resolutions Committee, and urged branches to send in their reports to the Publicity convener.

In speaking of the National Convention in Ottawa, Mrs. Wilson said she was looking forward to attending, and could take some others if anyone wished to go.

The Dorset Feather Stitchery was on display, and was much admired.

A motion was called for, that all bills be paid. This was moved and seconded by Mrs. Sicuso and Mrs. Ogilvie, and duly carried.

It was suggested that a letter of sympathy be sent Mrs. Harvey, provincial president, whose husband has passed away. The president stated that a card had been sent.

Mrs. Geo. McGibbon introduced the guest speaker, Miss Jenkins, who teaches Household Science at Macdonald College.

Miss Jenkins spoke and gave illustrations on the "Do's and Don'ts of Handiwork." Judging of articles came under three headings, she said —

1. Suitability to the use for which it is made.
2. Beauty and appearance.
3. Workmanship.

She stressed the fact that anything well-made in the home is superior to that which can be bought. Suggestions as to color, design and originality were also given.

Mrs. Baugh, in her usual humorous manner, thanked Miss Jenkins on behalf of the gathering, to which the president added her appreciation and regretted that more were not present.

The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Arundel Welcomes New Bridge Erected At Bevan's Creek

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — Completion of the new Bevan's Creek Bridge in this village marks another step forward in the improvement of the government - maintained road system of the municipality.

The new bridge, which replaces one built in 1912, has a 30-foot roadway, two sidewalks, with indirect lighting. In addition, both sides of its northern approach have dry masonry stone walls to a height of about six feet.

Other Provincial Government projects now being carried out here include extensive straightening and widening of Route 31 North, and a new bridge on the Bevan's Lake Road.

All these projects are being done at the expense of the Provincial Government, on recommendation of the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, to whom this district is much indebted for the many improvements carried out during his terms of office.

Food Retailers Form Sub-section For Licensees

Members of the newly-organized Food Retailers' Association met last Monday evening, and formed a component section of their group for Licensed Grocers. Elected president of this section was Omer Lafortune, Main Street businessman.

Ted Vachon chaired the meeting, which was addressed by J. Boisvert, liaison officer of the Food Retailers' Association parent-body.

It is reported this new movement has already achieved good results for the local grocery fraternity, and is expected to bring many further benefits. As an example, an expert in this line of business, R. Drapeau, called on the members individually, took note of their particular problems and recommended various changes in the interests of their business and the satisfaction of customers.

On November 13 a meat expert will give a demonstration at the Auditorium on the general maintenance of butcher establishments, dressing of meats, and related subjects. Members will witness this demonstration free, while non-members will pay an admission charge.

There are now 14 affiliated members in the district, comprising Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Philippe, Ste. Scholastique, St. Hermas and St. Andrews East.

Two Arrested After Truck Stolen

Gerard Thibeault, 19, and a juvenile, both of St. Jerome, were arrested by Provincial Police in the nearby city. The arrest was made just 14 hours following a report that a truck belonging to J. R. A. Carignan, a local tradesman, had been stolen.

The two were charged with taking the vehicle without the owner's permission. They appeared in St. Jerome court on Friday, the case being postponed until October 25.

Dual Death on Route 8 In Two-Truck Collision

Two Ile Perrot residents, driving in a light panel truck on Route 8, met a tragic death Friday evening when their vehicle was literally crushed by a heavy truck while rounding a curve near St. Hermas.

Victims of the accident were Joseph Boyer, 55, and Godfroy Scraire, 62. Both died at the scene of the accident.

According to police officers investigating the mishap, a heavy truck driven by Dania Filion, 20, of Ste. Rose, met up with the panel truck on a curve of the highway. The truck driver was unhurt, but his vehicle practically crushed the lighter truck and its two occupants.

The bodies were removed to the Giraldeau funeral parlors in Ste. Scholastique. The coroner of that district, Dr. Joseph Pagé of St. Benoit, opened an inquiry — which was adjourned to an indefinite date.

Pet Feline Shows Uncanny Instinct

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Poley, comparative newcomers to Lachute, recently reported an unusual occurrence following their arrival at their Mountain View home.

En route to Lachute the Poleys, former residents of St. Lambert, stopped for dinner in St. Martin. They tied their pet dog to a post, but let the cat loose, thinking it would not leave the car. Upon their return, however, the cat could not be found, and an hour's searching brought no results.

A week later, the family pet arrived in Lachute meowing at the Mountain View home — this being the first time the cat had ever been in or near Lachute. Mrs. Poley states she has no idea how the feline found its way to their new home.

Harry White, of Brownsburg, reported a similar instance with the return of their family cat following a three-months absence. In this case, the animal was sick at the time of its disappearance in June, but it recently showed up again, apparently none the worse for its long absence.

Court Preliminary In Murder Case

André Harnois, 20, who on October 4 was held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury in the death of Denis Lehoux, alias Maurice L'Espérance, was sent for voluntary statement and appeared in St. Jerome court last Friday.

No plea was given in the charge of murder, which was laid several days following the inquest, and the proof presented by the Crown at the inquest was accepted for the preliminary inquiry. This will be held shortly, the case then being held over until the trial.

The members of "Lachute District Shrine Club" met in the new Masonic Temple, Brownsburg Road, on Wednesday evening of last week, to elect officers and plan future activities. President W. S. MacKimmie was in the chair and C. R. Cunningham acted as secretary in the absence of R. M. Cairns.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, A. Douglas McGibbon; vice-president, Dave Campbell; secretary, C. R. Cunningham; treasurer, A. G. Giles.

New Headgear for Gatineau Linemen And Employees

The local branch of the Gatineau Power Company adopted yet another safety device for its employees last Monday, in the form of safety helmets. Made of lightweight material, the helmets will stand a pressure up to 200 pounds per square inch, and are insulated to withstand up to 25,000 volts.

Rod Carreau, local manager, reports that the men have orders to wear the helmets at all times while on duty. Linemen who do a considerable amount of climbing have yellow helmets, while other employees wear red.

The helmets have winter linings with a scarf attachment, and all employees working outdoors will employees working outdoors are now equipped with them.

Drugstore Sale Promoted With Airplane Streamer

Up-front with ideas both for business and community promotion, Donat Saulnier, Main Street pharmacist, came up with another "first" this week — the first time an airplane trailer has been used for store advertising by a local concern.

Mr. Saulnier's "Beaton's Rexall Drugstore" is featuring its fall-winter one-cent sale this week. A plane chartered from Laurentide Aviation, Montreal, came this way during the Monday noon-hour with a long red and white streamer in its wake, advertising the one-cent sale. The aircraft flew at a low altitude over Lachute, and the sign was clearly legible. . . It is understood the plane has been booked to fly over the town again today (Thursday).

Black-out Caused When Police Car Crashes Pole

Electric power in a large section of Lachute was off for 3 hours and 8 minutes Tuesday evening, following an accident in which the Lachute Police car hit a power pole near the Memorial Park, shattering the pole in five pieces.

The incident occurred at 8.34 p.m. when Constable Raymond Labelle, on patrol at the time, received a radio message and while on his way around the corner at the Memorial Park and Barron's Bridge, lost control. His automobile, swerving onto the grass near the river, severed the pole.

The car swung around and, when halted, was facing in the direction from which it had been travelling. Cst. Labelle was badly shaken up but not seriously injured. Damage to the vehicle was estimated in the vicinity of $300.

The constable was immediately suspended by Police Chief Fernand Trépanier and is scheduled to appear before the Police Committee within a short period.

A Gatineau line crew was promptly on the scene erecting a new pole and re-stringing the tangled lines.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Some very nice deer were taken this past week. There were a few going through that would weigh close to 175. Not so many yearlings came through this week, so maybe they are either getting smarter or they are shot out. A couple of nice ones were taken around Dunany.

I haven't heard of any bears being shot, but there was one I heard of that weighed 375 near Thurso. It was a 30.06 that did the trick.

I didn't get a chance to go after partridge this week, but I sure hope to sometime this week-end. Anyone want to come along for the fun?

I watched a gent sighting in a new gun up at Hamomnd's Point the other day. After watching for awhile, I saw what makes most of us flinch when we fire. When firing, the shooters doesn't notice it, but believe it or not, it's there. The gun is gripped too tight most of the time; not enough relaxation. I saw this gent grip his gun and fire, and have his shot land inches away from where it was aimed; yet when he just snapped the gun up to his shoulder, then fired, he was much better. It's something that is done without knowing it. So try a little more relaxation.

Some of the ducks are starting to fly, so maybe we'll be getting some shooting at the ducks. They'll be wary, though. Now is the time to get some of those decoys. It will pay.

A few flocks of Canadas have passed over. It's too bad we can't get some of them to come down to decoys on the fields. But we do get good shooting, without being greedy.

• • •

With the leaves just about all gone, the bush is just about right now for all types of shooting. But with the leaves gone, you still have to be careful in your shooting.

• • •

Once again I'm going to tell you the things you will need if you are going into bush country with which you are unfamiliar:

A compass.
Waterproof matchbox.
Good knife.
15 Rounds ammunition.
Good boots, and good clothing.
Spare socks.
Canteen of water.
2 Chocolate bars, raisins.
Couple of fish hooks and 25 feet of line.
Insect repellant.
10 Feet of light rope.
Stay put if you do get lost, and don't lose your head; you'll be found.

The perch have slowed down a lot, and they will be getting slower each day from now on. You know the North River is about through until next spring. The number of fish taken out of the river in the winter are very few. Maybe it's because the river is so dirty and flows so slowly. I'm just waiting to get out on the ice at St. Andrews and St. Placide for those nice channel perch.

You fishermen who have put your rods away in your cupboards, better put some more water to take out the dryness. I'll keep telling you about this all winter, so?

I'll also give you a lot of tips for the overhauling of your equipment ready for next spring. You're not interested in this just now, but you will be!

I read an article on clothing awhile back, and the gist of it is that yellow is the best color to wear when outdoors except when there is snow on the ground, then it is red. These tests were conducted by the U.S. Services. They also came up with the information that loose clothes are warmer than tight-fitting ones.

• • •

There are a bunch of crows around that will give us some good shooting, and that is what we want. If you get a crow call, and keep well hidden, and if you leave the ones you shoot lying around, they will keep coming back and back — if you just take your time. And if you can get an old owl stuffed, perch him up in a tree, then look out for some fast shooting! Boy, that is fun. No fooling, it will be bloody murder for awhile, and this is one pest you will be thanked for killing. The same with starlings; best time to get them is at sundown, then you can walk right under their roost. If you do this, be sure you have a waterproof coat that you can wash. It will sure need it! They are like the crows, keep coming back time after time. I think they are worse pests than the crows. They will give a lot of fun for awhile.

Talking to a party of five hunters from Montreal who had been after deer northwest of Lake Hughes. They spent four days there, but as I was told, the week-end was like a miniature war, so they didn't go near the bush! They also stated that most of the land was posted.

I don't know how true this is, but will try and give you all the dope later.

The different Sporting Associations around the Island of Montreal have all been worried about the fishing, with so much blasting going on. Strange as it may seem, some of the catches reported are the best in years. Some very big doré have been taken around Heron Island in the Lachine Rapids. It used to be very good there years ago, then it just died out. But now they are back. Some of the men at Lachine Hatcheries just can't figure it out. It is queer.

I watched a couple of red squirrels the other day for about 15 minutes. One of them was trying to steal from the other, and was caught at it. I never realized just how vicious a little squirrel can be. When you see them they are so friendly and timid. I changed my mind after seeing this fight! I finally broke it up, or one of them would have been killed. How everything protects its home, is really wonderful. Too bad I didn't have a movie camera at the time; I would have some fine pictures to show.

Who are the boys from the 'Burg spreading corn on the Ottawa — then coming in with a full limit.

Game wardens, look into this.

That's all for this time. Be seeing you. Remember, your gun's dangerous. Stop, look, then stop again, just to make sure.

Fair Attendance at Fish-Game Assocn. October Meeting

The October meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association was held in the Lachute Legion Hall on Monday evening, with President Syd Drew in the chair. The meeting got underway at 8.30, the minutes of the September meeting being read and approved.

On a motion by Fernand Trépanier, seconded by Harry White and unanimously carried by the 40-odd members in attendance, Bob Giles, Jr., was appointed secretary to replace Keith Graham, who had resigned prior to the September meeting.

A C-I-L film, "Shooting Is Fun", showed several shooting matches and competitions on a national scale, including rifle, revolver, skeet and trap shooting. Following this, booklets entitled "Deer Hunting Hints", procured from C-I-L through Watchman columnist Bob Atchison, were handed out to those present.

Jacques Dupré reported on the map of the district, and asked for any assistance that could be given. It was suggested that the cadastral map issued by the Provincial Government be used as a basis for this hunting and fishing map of Argenteuil.

President Drew reported having had a talk with the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, regarding various aims of the Association, and the latter has assured all sportsmen of his support in any way possible. A letter of recommendation in an effort to obtain fish for public waters, will be sent to the parties concerned at the request of the Association — the president reported.

Several suggestions for fund-raising were brought forward, including a subscription campaign for a Canadian outdoors magazine; this idea had been accepted and more than a dozen subscriptions were sold at the meeting.

A suggestion was proposed by Bob Atchison, to the effect that a hat be passed at every meeting, and this being duly seconded by Clem Meservey and approved, the sum of $7.20 was contributed.

With the discussion of the various hunting and fishing regulations, it was suggested by Lawrence Hodge it would be desirable that the deer hunting season open on or around October 1, that is, a week later, and remain open a week longer at termination of the season. Eddy Barker voiced approval of this suggestion, which had special merit as far as safety was concerned since, by the beginning of October, the majority of the leaves were off the trees.

Questions were raised as to the new licenses and tags, and as some of the members present were in doubt as to several aspects of the law, it was decided to procure a guest speaker from Montreal to clarify these points.

Several opinions were expressed on various types of deer hunting, and it was suggested that those members without cars meet in the vicinity of the two Main Street sport shops prior to the November 18 meeting in the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

The door prize, a spinning reel donated by Dupré Sport Shop, was won by Ross Keatley, of Brownsburg.

The meeting closed with the showing of two films, "Winged Horizons", on duck hunting, and a short on "Bird Dogs" which featured various types of bird hunting dogs, as well as many faces familiar to Brownsburg C-I-L employees.

Ski Clubs Representatives View Facilities at Morin

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — On Sunday the hotels and restaurants of Morin Heights played hosts to about 50 presidents, or representatives of various ski clubs of Montreal, members of the A.C.S.M., an official body controlling the French Ski Clubs of Montreal.

A full day's program was arranged. The guests arrived by bus about 11.30 a.m., and after cocktails at The Commons Inn (compliments of Jim Lussier), they enjoyed a chicken dinner, by courtesy of the Bellevue Hotel. During the afternoon they made an extensive visit to the various ski-ing areas and found everything most favorable. This was followed by refreshments, provided by Alpino Lodge.

From all indications it is hoped to have several chartered buses of skiers here every week-end during the season.

Abortive Hope to Make Midland Ski-Jump Capital

SPORTS CAMERA
By Gerald Lougheed,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An ambitious scheme to make Midland, Ont., the ski jumping capital of Canada has fizzled out.

The directors of Midland Ski Resorts Limited, faced with debts of more than $17,000, offered the ski jump and its accompanying material assets for sale early this month.

Decision to seek bids on the 115-foot jump on the outskirts of the Georgian Bay town was reached at a meeting of company directors and creditors. The jump was completed two years ago and used for two Canadian jumping competitions since that time.

Major factor behind the move was the substantial loss suffered at the summer jumping competitions held last August. Paid admissions to the three-day event amounted to less than $6,000 while expenses were almost double that figure.

Pete Pettersen of Midland, Norwegian-born chairman of the Canadian Ski Jumping Association, had expected big things of the summer competitions. He predicted an attendance of about 60,000 and figured it would be the biggest ski event in the world.

Man-Made Snow

Finding snow in August was no big problem. Pettersen got in touch with a large Toronto ice company which provided him with snow machinery to make more if needed and the complete services of the company's plant during the competition.

Parking facilities at the jump, judged to be one of the finest in North America, are almost unlimited. At least 50,000 automobiles can be parked easily in the surrounding vacant acreage, the company estimated.

The $16,000 jump, with its 115-foot tower, is 300 feet long. Leaps of 200 feet were commonplace during good conditions.

Gordon Moss, vice-president of Ski Resorts, said "our purpose in forming the company was to make Midland the ski jumping capital of the Dominion. Although topnotch skiers competed in winter meets held at the jump, bad weather on several occasions cut attendance and revenue and helped to defeat our aims."

The big loss in the summer event was the final blow.

Collapse of the big plans for Midland was a tough blow to Pettersen, who came to Canada 10 years ago and was a prominent skier until he broke a leg a few years ago.

"Ski jumping has been sorrowfully neglected in Canada," he said when announcing plans for the August meet. "It is my sincere endeavor to bring it to the fore of Canadian sports."

Bowling League Discusses Plans

The pre-season meeting of the Lachute United Church Bowling League was held last Monday evening, with President Margaret Gordon in the chair. The secretary-treasurer, Gladys Davis, reported the Society in a sound financial condition.

The main item of business during the meeting was to select skips and arrange teams. After much discussion of the latter item, it was decided to call a special meeting for next Monday, when all skips and members should be present.

The point of discussion is to be centred on the idea of all teams being completely re-selected, and it is imperative that all members be present to give their views on the subject. Refreshments will be served and bowling enjoyed.

OLD WOODS SKILLS SHOWN BY GUIDES

Shelbourne, N.S. (CP) — Skills used by woodmen in former years are being brought into the limelight again at guides' meets in eastern Canada.

Hardy outdoor types show their skill at these meets. At the Beaver Dam sports meet at nearby Bower's Lake, one of the events is an old-fashioned muzzle-loading goose shoot with many of the "irons" of ancient vintage.

Old-timers also demonstrate the ancient art of moose-calling with horns made of birch bark.

Appetizing odors waft through the area as the guides also show their prowess at cooking outdoors. This year they also inaugurated a pancake-frying contest.

As a national asset, the forests are beyond price.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons; but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Letting Pierre Do It

IN THE ROLE of an observer, we sat in on the recent deliberations of a group seriously devoted to the progress of this area — devoted to the extent that some had driven 50 or 60 miles to attend. The occasion was the monthly session of the Laurentides Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Prosperity, in theory, is non-sectarian, non-racial. Local prosperity, of all things, is neither French nor English nor exclusive to any race or tongue. It is a mutual state in which all are interdependent and equal participants.

It was strange to remark that, of the 50 or 60 persons in attendance at this affair, there was not one English-speaking citizen either from Lachute or elsewhere, with the exception of the local secretary.

We do wrong, of course, to differentiate. We are Canadian — not English-Canadian or French-Canadian. But why so one-sided? Our observation was so emphatic that it calls for comment.

Enquiry reveals that the Lachute Chamber of Commerce has many English-speaking members. Their excuse for being absent is, obviously, that the discussions and proceedings are held in French. So they were on this occasion; but the reason is plain. To our English-speaking townsfolk we say, there is one sure remedy: their own interest and support will automatically make the discussions bilingual. Let it never be said that our French-speaking co-citizens are ungracious in this matter; more adept than we in the alternative tongue, they have proven themselves always most co-operative and understanding. Actually this is no excuse, and The Watchman feels some degree of humiliation in the lack of interest among English-speaking business folk.

In matters of community progress — let us say in plainer terms, the ring of the cash register and the prosperity of our stores, banks, professions and services — there should be impartial enthusiasm and a general uniformity of sentiment.

Queen of Canada

DURING her visit to North America, the Queen has been presented in three capacities.

In Jamestown and Williamsburg, at ceremonies commemorating arrival of the First English settlers in Virginia, she attended as Queen of the United Kingdom.

In New York, addressing the United Nations, she spoke as head of the British Commonwealth.

But in Canada — and at Washington — she was both these things and much more — Queen of Canada.

The sovereign's official designation in Canada is: "Her Most Excellent Majesty Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom, Canada and Her other Realms and Territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith."

In her visit to Ottawa, the monarch's role as Queen of Canada was emphasized not only by Canadians but by the Queen herself. In her broadcast address to the Canadian nation, Her Majesty said:

"I shall be going (to the United States) as the head of the Canadian nation to pay a state visit to the head of our great neighboring country . . . when you read or hear about the events in Washington, and other places, I want you to reflect that it is the Queen of Canada and her husband who are concerned in them."

In a message to Her Majesty after she left Canada, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said:

"During this historic stay, Your Majesty has strengthened in us all our pride in Canada and in Canada's Queen."

As Queen of Canada, Elizabeth II became the first monarch to open a Canadian Parliament and preside over a meeting of the Canadian cabinet, which is the committee to her Privy Council in the Dominion.

Until recent years, difficulties of travel and communications may sometimes have served to make the monarchy seem remote to the Canadian people.

The Royal Visit in 1939, when King George VI and his consort travelled from coast to coast, did much to remove that impression. The present Queen, as Princess Elizabeth, was in Canada in 1951 with Prince Philip, then Duke of Edinburgh.

This year's four-day visit to Ottawa was the first of three by the Royal Family in successive years. Princess Margaret is expected to attend the British Columbia centennial next year and the Queen and Prince Philip return in 1959 to open the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The Queen in Ottawa expressed the hope that ease of modern travel would enable her to undertake frequent trips, perhaps even with her children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

With each such visit, the picture of the sovereign as Queen of Canada will become more vivid in Canadian minds.

Standard Practice

WE THOUGHT the influenza epidemic had passed its peak, but the incidence of this complaint seems to continue high. Help and hints have been issued from various sources, and the following (from the St. John Ambulance National Headquarters) may be followed as a standard guide in families experiencing or anticipating an attack of 'flu.

1. Put the patient to bed immediately and keep him there as long as there is any evidence of fever.
2. Give him headache pills to relieve aching muscles and headache.
3. Give him light foods and plenty of fluids.
4. To prevent the spread of infection to other members of the family, isolate the patient as much as possible. Remember the important but simple procedure of frequent hand-washing, and keep in mind that "coughs and sneezes spread diseases."
5. If the attack appears severe, call the doctor.

The so-called Asian 'flu (many current cases seem to conform to this type) is relatively mild; it appears as little as 24 hours after contact, with an acute stage lasting about three days and a convalescent period of about three to four days longer. Symptoms of the 'flu are a fever (100° to 103°), sore throat, headache, muscular aches and soreness, and respiratory symptoms such as cough and cold.

Old Parliamentary Institution

ON THAT AUSPICIOUS day last week in which Queen Elizabeth II formally opened the first session of the 24th Parliament of Canada, there came before the public view some traditional figures, ceremonies and customs. Not all the age-old attributes of Parliament were pictured in that pageant, however. There are many rituals not associated with the Opening function — many customs, many characters, behind the more dignified scenes.

We think of one now, which comes consistently to our attention as the session gets under way — the publishing of the Commons debates in Hansard, an important and time-honored duty of the Queen's Printer.

Who and what is Hansard? It has been aptly defined as "the record of the evolution of our widening liberties and the achievements of a nation."

The familiar name goes back a century and a half to an English printer, one T. C. Hansard. From 1811, at first unofficially and unrecognized by the British Government, the Hansard family continued, under the title of "Hansard's Parliamentary Debates", the task sketchily begun in the 18th century by another printer, William Cobbett. Although in 1892 the name was dropped with the severing of the family connection, it remained in popular use through the years of a ding-dong battle in the Mother of Parliaments as to whether an official report of House of Commons debates should be published daily. It was only in 1943 that the title of "Hansard" was officially restored to the printed report of parliamentary proceedings, but throughout he Commonwealth the authentic report of parliamentary debates is invariably known as Hansard.

While publication of the daily proceedings of parliament was only formally ratified in the United Kingdom in 1909, Canada's first official issue of such procedures dates back to 1865; it recorded the interprovincial pre-confederation conference held at Quebec City.

The growth of the Canadian Hansard is a colorful story. From 1867 to 1870, "The Scrapbook Hansard", it consisted of clippings from newspaper reports of Commons debates, written by partisan journalists, who for the most part wasted little or no space on the utterances of political opponents or back-benchers — a situation far from satisfactory to those who went unreported. In 1880, however, the House gave greater permanency to the personnel of the reporting staff. The Canadian Hansard system, conceded to be "the best in the world" was well on its way to becoming a complete verbatim report of parliamentary proceedings.

Through the years Hansard has established an outstanding reputation. Each night, the vast mass of words which represents the complete exchanges of a sessional day — question and answer, statement and rebuttal, even the asides and interpolations of vocal MP's — is in the hands of the Queen's Printer, and in the morning the full report of yesterday's nation's business, immaculate and impressive, has left the federal Printing Bureau for distribution to members and senators, government officials, newspapers and subscribers from coast to coast.

It has been said that if Hansard were illustrated it would unquestionably be a best seller. But even in its stark black-and-white, it preserves an absorbing narrative, immortalized for today and tomorrow and for all years to come — the history of Canada's growth since the days of confederation.

CANADIANS for a hundred years or more were so busy carving homes out of the bush and laying foundations for a nation that they gave little thought to the preservaion of historic sites.

In recent years people and organizations, however, have been giving much time to preserving historic sites. — Picton (Ont.) Gazette.

Compulsory Egg Laying

I see where Albertans are going to vote on compulsory egg marketing. Why the farmers want to have still another middleman between them and us egg-eaters. I can't imagine; but while they're about it why not do it up brown?

Why not pass a compulsory egg-laying law? The feather-bedding some hens have been doing lately ought to be checked. If I were leading the farmers, I'd suggest an Egg-Laying Board, making it compulsory for every adult hen to lay two eggs a day, on half the feed. This would be a real blessing, whereas the Marketing Board may turn out to be something far less agreeable than a blessing.

Another much more useful device for the farmer would be an Egg-Eating Board, which would make it compulsory for us consumers to eat more eggs at higher prices. Not long ago I bought a dozen eggs from a farm woman at a roadside stand. She looked like a fine, honest women. I asked her, "Would the yolks be a nice light yellow?" She assured me they would, so I paid her a rather high price. The yolks were a fiery red and I threw out all the eggs and I'll not patronize that farm again. Stubborn consumers like me could be brought into line by a good stiff penalty for refusing to eat them and like them.

Presumably the Egg Marketing Board, if it comes, will force me to pay more for eggs. If the price goes up, the Egg Marketing Board will quickly take the credit. If the price goes down, will the Egg Marketing Board take the responsibility? I doubt it.

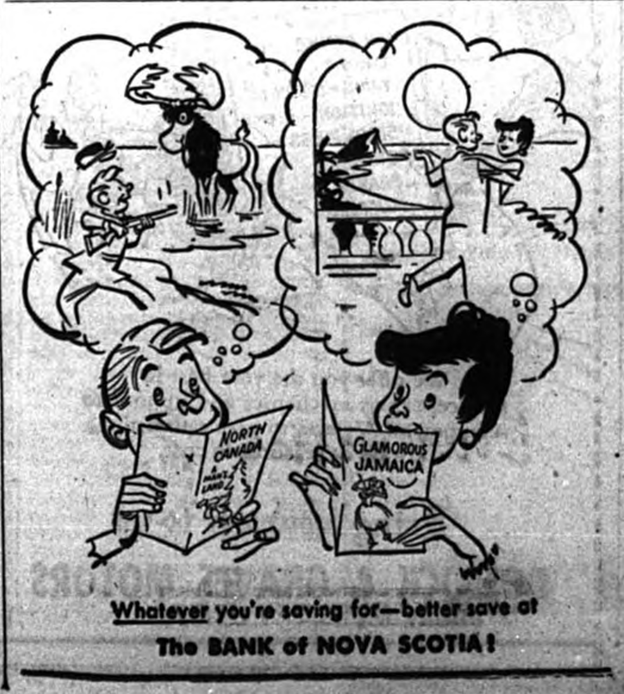

I think the farmers are entitled to form Egg Marketing Boards if they want them — but not compulsory Boards. There must be quite a few farmers who'd prefer to remain independent. They'd provide some competition, which could benefit us consumers. Are the farmers against competition? Certainly they set up a holler — and I don't blame them — when industy attempts a monopoly. Yet some of the farm leaders seem to me to be advocates of compulsory monopoly themselves!

At our home, we've had the same egg-man for a long time. He brings us good, fresh eggs, and we pay him a good price. There's no middle-man at all in this deal. I suppose an Egg Marketing Board will either turn him into an egg bootlegger or he'll be forced to conform. He's a pretty independent man, and I'm eager to know his decision. I'm pretty independent myself, and if the price of eggs gets too high I'll switch to flapjacks for breakfast!

God Save the Crown

By Lewis Milligan

When that young pip-squeak of a peer, Lord Altrincham, criticized Queen Elizabeth for the girlish manner in which she delivered her speeches and deported herself in public, we all felt that Her Majesty was little more than a girl anyway. She was just being her natural self and not putting on a pompous performance to appal the humble and please such titled snobs as Lord Altrincham. So far from lowering the prestige of the throne in the eyes of the common people, the artless speech and unpretentious demeanor of the young queen have endeared her the more to her people at home and abroad. She has taken the starch out of royalty without an air of condescension and wears the crown, not as a sign of personal superiority, but as the symbol of constitutional authority and political stability.

Probably emboldened by the impudence of a peer of the realm, yet another young man has dared to attack, not the Queen personally this time, but the entire monarchical system. Altrincham says his purpose was to preserve the monarchy, but the new assailant, John Osborne, a playwright, described the "meaningless symbol" of monarchy as a bar to the socialist education of the masses. "A socialist party that is not republican," he said, "is not crediting its potential followers with reason and intelligence." His chief criticism was that "queen worship" delays achievement of socialism.

If for nothing else, the British crown stands as a bulwark against the advance of Socialism, and it can hardly be said to be meaningless. The monarchy is not something that has been imposed upon the British people; as it stands today it is the product of a long process of social and political evolution. True, it originated with the "divine right of kings" at a time when Britain was besieged from without and torn by conflicting feudal and religious factions within. With the establishment of civil law and order under one central authority those factions were gradually merged for national defence and the common good into a united nation. The result of that process was summed up in those lines of Tennyson:

"It is the land that freemen till,
That sober-suited Freedom chose,
The land, where girt with friends or foes,
A man may speak the thing he will.

"A land of settled government,
A land of just and old renown,
Where Freedom slowly broadens down
From precedent to precedent."

The imposition of Socialism would reverse that process. The divine right of kings did recognize an overruling "divinity that shapes our ends." That acknowledgment acted as a curb to the monarch's assumption of absolute power. Where he overstepped his limit he was checked by the Magna Carta, and one of them lost his head for assuming political dictatorship.

Under any form of government there must be a central authority, and in every instance where Socialism has been carried to its logical application that authority has been invested in one man or one party. Queen Elizabeth or her successors could never become dictators. Their constitutional status precludes the rise of any tyrant or oligarchy to power. That has all been eliminated by the historical evolution of the British monarchy. Drew Middleton, an American journalist, in his recent book, "These Are The British", puts that history and its result in a nutshell, thus: "Here is an enduring symbol, a token of the past and a promise for the future. . . The Crown stands as it has for a thousand years. Its power is less and it influence is greater than many know. It is an integral part of a flexible and progressive society."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The best way to succeed as a news commentator is to wait 100 years before you say anything.

On the day that the Russians launched their satellite, the wires were crowded with messages of congratulation from American scientists.

I made the mistake of bursting into print at once with some light-hearted remarks about the sporting way the Americans had taken it, and hinted that there was some hope of scientists as well as humans becoming a world community. Perhaps scientists would remain polite to fellow-scientists even if war should break out, I suggested.

Made Me A Liar

Before those words had time to get wrapped around a fillet of cod, or kindle a fire, some other scientists had made a liar out of me.

The original burst of polite applause was quickly drowned in a storm of jeers, rebukes and alibis.

Perhaps if the scientists had been left to themselves, they would have been content to praise the Russian achievement, and quietly set to work improving on it.

But the politicians sprang into action, closely followed by generals, admirals and a miscellaneous rabble of patriots, all of them entering the fray with their mouths open.

A Shoddy Article

They said that the tin basketball in the sky was a shoddy article held together at the seams with glue and baling wire. America could have hoisted a better satellite in half the time, if someone hadn't blundered.

I can't remember the precise details, but it seems to me that the army blamed the navy, the navy blamed the FBI and the FBI blamed the Texas Rangers, who in turn said the whole thing was the fault of the women's auxiliary to the Coast Guard.

Scientists accused the Russians of cheating, and threatened to report them for using Martians on their team.

Before long scientists, politicians, soldiers, sailors, airmen and bystanders were mixed up together in a shrill, dusty and undignified verbal donnybrook, while the thing in the sky rolled serenely on its course above their heads.

Let's hope they get untangled before the International Geophysical Year is over.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

Who established the first school in the Canadian Arctic?

The first school in the Canadian Arctic was established by Kris (or Charlie) Klengenberg, a Canadian citizen who operated a trading post at Rymer Point on Victoria Land. It is said that his occupation of this post, after he had become a Canadian citizen, strengthened Canada's claim to the Arctic Islands. The school was established for the education of his own and neighboring children and, after his death in 1931, his daughter carried on his work for the welfare of the Eskimo. He left his native Denmark at the age of 15 to sail the seven seas, and in 1893 he married an Eskimo woman in Alaska and settled down to lead the life of an Eskimo in the Arctic.

Where was trans-Atlantic radio communication first established?

Marconi's first radio communication with Europe was established in 1902 at Table Head, a promontory overlooking Glace Bay, N.S.

Who was Cornelius Krieghoff?

Krieghoff was a popular and successful painter in Canada in the early part of the 19th century. His anecdotal portrayals of habitant life, winter scenes and Indians, are prized as records of an earlier way of life. He is well represented in the collections of the National Gallery and the Public Archives at Ottawa. He was born in Germany, studied music and art, and travelled in Europe as a strolling musician and artist. After military service in the United States, he opened a studio in Toronto. In 1848 he moved to Longueuil, Que., and later to Montreal, where he painted landscapes and portraits. In 1853 he moved to Quebec City, where he remained for 13 years and did his finest work.

Pretty Ceremony at Recent Wedding in St. Julien Church

Ouellet - Carrière

The marriage of Diane, daughter of Mayor Leopold Carrière and Mrs. Leopold Carrière, Lachute, to Mr. Jacques Ouellet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Ouellet, also of Lachute, took place on Saturday morning, October 12, at ten o'clock in St. Julien Church, Lachute Mills, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Pierre Decarie, of Ste. Therese, officiating. Dr. Paul Doyon, of Montreal, played the wedding music and Mrs. Roger Regimbal sang during the service. White gladioli and red roses were used to decorate.

The bride, given away by her father, was in a gown of white poult de soie, fashioned on Empire lines, with a fitted bodice, appliquéd with French lace, and long sleeves, and a very full skirt. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held by a matching headdress and she carried a Colonial bouquet of stephanotis and red rosebuds. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Fleur-Ange Carrière, as maid of honor for her niece, wore a bouffant frock of dusty rose crystallette, with a matching hat, and carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations.

Mr. Daniel Carrière, Mr. Guy St. Jacques and Mr. Romeo Legault were the ushers.

Mrs. Carrière, the bride's mother, was in a gown of misty blue lace over taffeta. She wore a matching velour hat and a corsage bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Ouellet, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of champagne pink silk, with a black melusine hat and a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

The reception was held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Ouellet left for New Hampshire, the bride, travelling in a grey blue wool suit trimmed with fox, and wearing a deeper blue hat, and a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The couple will take up residence in Shawinigan Falls.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mayor Gaston Laurion, of Laval-sur-le-Lac; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Filteau, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lavoie, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bock, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Houde, of Montreal.

ABUNDANT LIFE BY ORAL ROBERTS

NOT TOO LATE TO START OVER

A certain young fellow slumped down in my office. He said, "I am just a flop! Everything has gone wrong. Nobody believes in me any more. I guess I just lost faith in myself completely."

What was wrong? He had made a mistake. It was his chance of a lifetime in the firm he was working with. But he had made a careless mistake and had been fired. Now, to him, life was finished. But why?

At the beginning of each day, life begins afresh. At the close of each day, we emerge from an old world into a new. You can let each day that closes, close an old world to you. And the new day can be a pleasant vestibule or door to which you enter a new world . . . a new life.

Babe Ruth is known as the greatest home run hitter of all time. But what is not so well known is that he also holds the record for the most strike outs.

Someone asked him one day, "Babe Ruth, how do you feel about holding the record for the most strike outs?" He answered, "Well, I just figured up according to the law of averages. I have found out that for every time that I strike out twice, I knock a home run. That does not mean that I won't strike out more than twice in a row. I may strike out five times or six times. But when I average it all up, I always knock one home run for every two strike outs I make. And so when I knock a home run, I am thankful. When I strike out, I simply say this to myself, 'I am just that much closer to another home run.'"

If you have just struck out, you're not finished! You may start over again with God.

The religious leaders of His day brought to Jesus a woman taken in open sin. First of all, He informed her accusers that they themselves were not without sin. And then He turned to the woman and uttered these immortal words, "I do not condemn thee . . . go and sin no more." He was saying to her: "Forget the past. Leave it with me and start all over. I do not hold your past against you. I simply say to you 'start again.' Forget that you ever did wrong. You can start all over. It is not too late."

Any person reading this column should remember this: You have all the power in the universe behind you when you have God. He is willing to invest that power in you and with you. It is not too late.

Stop right now and say, "I will never be the same again! From this moment on I give myself unreservedly to God. I give Him my thoughts, my ambitions, my ideas, my health, my strength and my future. What I have failed to do, God can help me do. What I have wanted to be, God will help me to be. I can and will do 'all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.'"

As the Bible teaches us that God does not condemn us, then let us not condemn ourselves. Rise up! Let's start out again!

Brownsburg Blitz Planned by CNIB For Monday Next

Next Monday a blitz campaign for funds on behalf of the CNIB will be held in Brownsburg. The drive has been announced by Mrs. C. L. Stephens, campaign chairman for the Brownsburg area. The entire canvass will take one hour, from 6 to 7 p.m.

For information of the donors, the following procedure will be taken: all the canvassers will have on their sleeves an armband with the name of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. (In addition, the names of all team captains are published hereunder.) Your canvasser will be one who is known to you and a resident of Brownsburg; his receipt book will have the name of the Institute, in French and in English.

You are urged to be generous, as this year the request is for $800. There are eight known registered cases in Brownsburg. The Institute is the only recognized agency that cares for and visits these people. Be generous, therefore, as the dollar you give will assist some blind person or will help prevent blindness in your home or in your neighbor's.

In order to stage a successful campaign, volunteer canvassers are needed. Please contact the financial chairman, Mrs. C. L. Stephens.

Following are team captains for the campaign: Chairman, Mrs. C. L. Stephens (tel. 6663); Mrs. Audrey Bourne, Mrs. Vera Abercrombie, Mrs. Laura Hall, Mrs. Florence Zimmer, Mrs. Eva Smillie, Mrs. Hazel McRae, Mrs. Phillis Murdoch, Mrs. Lillian Dixon, Mr. Noel Racine, Mr. John Connelly and Mrs. Hilda Barker.

Last Report Shows Diocese Fund Short of Target

According to the latest progress report on results obtained in the St. Jerome Diocesan Fund appeal (up to October 17), the sum of $131,117 was still required to reach the objective of $750,000.

His Excellency Bishop Emilien Frenette, while extending sincere thanks to all who have contributed to the Campaign, not only in a financial way, but through their efforts as organizers and canvassers, stated as follows: "I do not doubt that the Campaign will achieve its double purpose: to make of the Diocese a unity of all the Faithful, as well as to reach the objective which will permit us to establish the institutions so necessary to put our Diocese on an equal basis with others.

"Nevertheless, much remains to be done if we are to achieve our objective of $750,000. . . I hereby appeal especially to all Faithful of the Diocese who have not yet made a donation to the Campaign, to please see either their parish president or their pastor and remit to him their contribution. Every dollar is absolutely essential if we wish to realize the various projects for which the present Campaign is being staged."

HOPE FOR THE DEAD

For the Survivors in a Righteous New World

Hope, the fondest ever entertained by righteous men, is about to be fulfilled — "Who Is Imortal", found on page 46, "Hope for the Dead."

Christ's faithful followers whom God justifies by reason of their faith and consecration and obedience to him, God also begets by his spirit or power. He makes them thereby the spiritual sons of God. If they are faithful, God's spirit or power bears witness to them, that they are "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ." To them is held out the hope of gaining immortality. They must seek to attain to this gift of God by likewise holding fast their integrity toward God under test: "to them who, by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory and honour and immortality." (Romans 2: 7).

The Bible declares that Christ is the first one God used to bring to light the opportunity of creatures to attain to immortality. — Timothy 1: 9, 10. Corinthians 15: 52, 54. Romans 6: 5. Philippians 3: 10. 1 Cor. 15: 44. Rev. 20: 4-6.

Those who shall form the "body of Christ" and who shall be rewarded with this miraculous change from earthly to heavenly are limited to 144,000, who hold fast their integrity and keep covenant with God and prove faithful unto death. (Revelation 7: 4-8; 14: 1, 2). These, however, are not the only ones that are saved to life on the basis of Christ's ransom sacrifice; but all others of the saved ones shall receive everlasting life on the earth as perfect human creatures. (Pages 47, 48) — Gen. 2: 17. Gen. 1: 28. Gen. 3: 22, 23.

The apostle writes (Romans 5, 12): By one man sin entered into the world, and Death by sin, and so death passed upon all men; for that all have sinned God sent his only begotten son into the world, that we might live through him. — 1 John 4: 9.

Brother, Sister Meet After Life Separation

Photographed at Banff, Alta.

Sad circumstances attended the birth of Edith W. Brown, which occurred at Lachute in January, 1910, for her mother died two hours later.

The father, Alex Brown, a jeweller in Brownsburg, was then left with two children — Leslie, 17 months old, and Edith.

Unable to care for his children and carry on his business, Mr. Brown entrusted Leslie to the care of his aunt, Mrs. Wm. Kelly (the former Maria Boyd, of Lachute), then living at Falkland, B.C., while Mrs. Robert Tomalty of Louisa became the foster-mother of Edith.

Mr. Brown, the father, died in October, 1937, and while the children corresponded occasionally, they did not see each other until late this summer.

Miss Edith Brown was visiting Mrs. Norval Blair, the former Gladys Tomalty, in Saskatoon. From there she and Mrs. Blair together motored to Banff for a pre-arranged meeting with her brother Leslie, who came from his home in Falkland, B.C., with his wife and family of three girls and a boy.

The meeting was naturally a very happy occasion, and the two ladies, Mrs. Blair and Miss Brown, motored as far as Field, B.C., with Leslie and his family on their return to Falkland.

Poppy Emblem Symbol of Practical Aid to War Vets

"London rings with praise for Canadian valor under murderous attack, sickened with gas fumes and facing fierce rifle and machine gun fire"... These headlines during the First World War rang throughout the world, and the Canadians who served in the later wars were similarly praised for their bravery in battle. But on the other side of the story was the long list of casualties — 104,000 Canadian dead, and many more sick and permanently disabled.

On November 11 we pay our respects to the men who died in battle, and as a symbol of remembrance Lachute Branch of the Canadian Legion are selling poppies in Lachute and the district under their jurisdiction.

The poppy, a blood-red flower, bloomed over the graves in a place called Flanders, and when soldiers fighting in the trenches noticed these flowers blooming on the battlefields they thought of their friends who died there. November 11 was the day on which the fighting stopped in 1918, and men who had been in the war chose that day to wear a poppy in remembrance. As there were not enough real poppies to go around, some of the men who were wounded and couldn't work at other jobs began to make poppies out of cloth. So today that is why we wear a poppy which is not a real flower, but which reminds us of the flowers which grew over the graves of the men who died.

It is pointed out that the sale of poppies in Lachute and district is carried out by volunteers who give their services free of charge. All proceeds go to helping veterans and their families who may be in need or distress. The cost of the poppy itself goes to disabled veterans, who make them each year through Veteraft Shops employing these men.

Representatives for the various districts are as follows:

St. Andrews East, Miss Shirley Woodward. Carillon, Chas. Martel. Cushing, H. V. Elliott and Jas. Coney. Grenville, Mrs. Stanley Cavanagh. Kilmar, Mrs. Leonard Madden. Lakefield, Miss B. Hammond. Mille Isles, Mrs. Sicuso, Arundel, Mrs. Wenville Graham.

The poppy campaign for Lachute and the above district is under chairmanship of Mrs. Jas. Simpson. St. Andrews East.

How do you compare with the girl your husband married?

If your figure has undergone a change for the worst it's high time you did something about it. Men in general are most critical and more so, experts say, after marriage.

If your figure isn't what you want it to be even the most beautiful face and clothes cannot camouflage a poor and ill-balanced figure. When you detect overweight or have that uncomfortable feeling because of bulging spots you must face facts.

Calculating your ideal weight is the first step and one that you must take yourself, according to John Robert Powers, a well-known beauty authority.

Excessive fat puts on an ugly bump on the back of the neck, bulges on the sides of the knees, pads low over the elbows.

Reducing always sounds worse than it actually is to the person who's tried it. Once you've set about it firmly, on a program of eating correctly, the straightening out of wrong curves can become a joy to watch.

Look at yourself right now and imagine one inch or two off in every direction and already you'll be on your way to losing weight.

Racing Fan at 102

At 102 Mrs. Margaret Madden, of Kitchener, is having the time of her life.

She was the guest of the Ontario Jockey Club in Toronto recently where she was dubbed "the most remarkable guest we've ever had."

A bare five-feet tall, Mrs. Madden stunned veteran bettors as she slipped into a lineup before the $2 window and made a bet which brought her the daily double that paid $25.

Known as "the little old lady with the system," Mrs. Madden claims she has no system other than watching the horses parade down the track. She "gets a feeling about the jockey wearing red in his silks."

Mid-Morning Snack

A delectable hot bread Sally Lunn can make the perfect "something special" when friends drop in mid-morning.

Here's a new short-cut recipe for Sally Lunn, using biscuit mix: ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, well-beaten, 2 cups biscuit mix, 1 cup milk, ¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup chopped walnuts.

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs. Add biscuit mix alternately with milk. Pour into greased 8 or 9-inch square pan. Combine brown sugar, cinnamon and walnuts and scatter over surface.

Bake in moderate oven, 350 F, 50 to 60 minutes. Serve hot, cut into squares. Leftover Sally Lunn is delicious sliced thin and toasted.

What better snack for that mid-morning coffee break? A hot bread, zesty hot coffee and lots of lively talk.

UNICEF Projects Give Opportunity to Help

"Mothers everywhere feel the same way about their children", says Mrs. E. B. Watson, of Breckenridge, Que., Citizenship convener for the Quebec Women's Institutes, in a message urging members to support two UNICEF projects — Greeting Cards and the Hallowe'en Shell-Out.

She calls particular attention to the latter at this time of the year. This has received some support since its inception about two years ago but Mrs. Watson would like to have more Institutes sponsoring the project among the children of their communities.

She points out that through UNICEF people are given the best kind of assistance, that of helping them to help themselves, as the government of countries where the money is sent matches every dollar of UNICEF aid. Outlining some of the benefits given by this fund to needy children throughout the world, Mrs. Watson concludes by saying, "Won't you encourage your children to help by having a Shell-Out for UNICEF this Hallowe'en."

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Dress Up for October 31st!

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Dressing up" is lots of fun for youngsters. Big and little, they love to pretend they are someone else. Hallowe'en provides the Big Occasion of the year for masquerade costumes. The time spent getting ready to sally forth almost equals the excitement of the night itself!

Busy mothers may not be nearly so enthusiastic about these activities. But it is a pity not to set aside other jobs, and enjoy Hallowe'en with the boys and girls. The years pass swiftly, and before very long there will be no small daughter in your home hunting for a broom for a witch, or a little boy looking for a pillow for a clown's tummy, or a blackened cork to paint his face.

A costume box or an old trunk where odds and ends are kept, which might come in handy for dressing up, is a great time saver. Scarves, gloves, shoes, artificial flowers, ribbons, feathers which might otherwise be thrown out at housecleaning time may well be collected in one place where they can be found quickly.

A costume box is real Treasure for rainy Saturday afternoons when the children want to put on their own pantomime or play. It saves time and energy searching through the house for articles for them to wear. Dressing up is such fun it shouldn't be confined to October 31!

Older school-age boys and girls may want material of a special shade, as bright red for a gypsy costume. Why not look out an old dress, rip it apart and let your boy or girl experiment with dyeing? The directions are on the package and dyeing is very simple and the cost is small. Knowing how to dye material is a useful bit of knowledge. Old shoes painted with enamel paint make a smart addition to a costume and this is a job which a boy or girl will enjoy too.

If your daughter wants to design and sew her own costume encourage her to go ahead. The results may not be quite as artistic as you could have achieved, but it will be her own production. If she is keen about following a "store pattern" here too, is a way in which she can add to her skill.

A coating of cold cream before rouge or blacking is applied to the skin helps speed up its removal. Some parents will not allow their youngsters to color their faces. But Hallowe'en just comes once a year and the clean-up job doesn't need to be too trying.

Masks of all kinds and descriptions are sold at Hallowe'en time. The new grotesque over-all rubber masks which are pulled over the head are quite popular. Older boys or girls who have enjoyed a papier maché handcraft project may want to mould their own papier maché mask. This requires time and patience, but the original product is often worth while. Newspaper and flour-and-water paste can quickly be assembled in any home and the pulp from these can be pressed into many grotesque shapes. When the moisture has thoroughly dried these masks can be painted bright colors.

Little folk will enjoy making a face on a large, clean paper bag which they can pull on too. Mother should help locate the places for the eyes, nose and mouth. (Be sure blunt scissors are used whenever small children are cutting out!) Make the holes plenty large enough to allow for lots of fresh air. Crayons and water colors are essential play material for pre-school children. Paper masks give them lots of scope to color hair, complexion, eyes, and mouth whatever shades they like.

As parents watch their children getting ready for Hallowe'en, they are reminded of the satisfaction in making things with one's own hands as well as the importance of imagination. Far too soon most people lose the urge to "make believe". Amateur dramatics have a comparatively small following. The good times children help to create for themselves have far more character values than passive "spectator" recreation. So here's to Hallowe'en preparations!

Fashions

Muted brown flannel is the fabric choice for a good-looking and useful back-buttoned jacket and skirt costume (sweater blouse may be worn underneath). Double stitched seaming marks the high round neckline and the shoulder seams. The precision-tailored seaming also gives the front a subtle shape. The jacket back has a blousy look, has a half-belt and is buttoned from the neck with matching bone buttons.

Full Activities in Swing, Argenteuil Branches of W.I.

October meetings are reported by the various branches of Argenteuil County Women's Institutes as follows:

Frontier branch heard an interesting talk on "Women's Place in the Financial Life of Quebec" by Mr. Peter Walker, of the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Montreal.

The annual Hallowe'en party for the children is being planned by the members of this branch.

Jerusalem - Bethany had an address by Mr. R. Wyse, of Lachute High School, entitled "Education — A Big Business."

Donations included $10 to the National Foundation Fund, Ottawa; $10 to the Service Fund; and $5.25 to the Educational Fund.

Lachute held a debate between W.I. members and the Lions Club, on the topic, "Resolved that the proper qualities of citizenship are being taught in Canada." The verdict was in favor of W.I. team, who opposed the resolution.

Mille Isles heard the report of the county board meeting held recently. There was also a discussion on the home for elderly people. UNICEF greeting cards have been ordered by this branch.

Pioneer W.I. decided to pack a box for the Unitarian Service Committee, and are also making six sweaters for same.

Films were shown by the Rev. Dr. H. Reid. One was on Citizenship, depicting the life and history of General Wolfe; the second one was about present-day Quebec.

This branch catered for the annual Historical Society meeting at Carillon. Jam, jelly and pickles are to be sold at the next meeting, to raise money. A basket containing fruit and fruit juices was sent to a shut-in; also, $5 was sent to the Educational Fund and $5 to the Retarded Children's School.

At Upper Lachute - East End, Miss Hanna Smith showed colored slides of scenes taken while teaching on the Continent this past year. These were much enjoyed by the members, as well as husbands and children.

A home for elderly people was discussed, and how much this branch might be able to pledge to help this work.

Delegates were appointed to the semi-annual convention October 19.

Donations included $5 to the National Foundation Fund; $20 to the Service Fund; and $5 to Lachute High School, for the Progress prize in Grade V.

'Dutch Oven' Cook Book Builds Nurses' Residence in Lunenburg

Lunenburg, N.S. (CP) — A cook book with a personality, and a nurses' residence, are closely linked in this Atlantic coast town.

The Dutch Oven, a cook book of traditional Lunenburg recipes, already has raised more than $26,000 — enough to build and furnish a nurses' residence atop the Fishermen's Memorial Hospital here.

Some 23,000 copies of the book have been sold throughout Canada and the United States. The book now is in its fifth printing.

"We intend to go on printing copies as long as they are being sold," said Mrs. Ray Lohnes, who looks after sales.

Great Variety

The big recipe book was produced by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Lunenburg Hospital Society for the town's bicentennial in 1953.

Lunenburg, founded by settlers from Germany, has long preserved its traditional recipes, passing them on from generation to generation.

From the beginning, the illustrated work proved a sales-bonanza.

Tourists visiting the hilly, historic home port of the famed schooner Bluenose spread word about the cook book. Now it is sold in many Canadian shops.

Community Support

Lunenburgers agree that the Dutch Oven has been a blessing to their 35-bed hospital.

The nurses' residence, with accommodation for 12 to 14, also can be easily converted into wards when the town of some 3,000 residents needs more hospital space.

With a cover by handicapped artist Earle Bailly of Lunenburg — who holds his paint brush in his teeth — and illustrations by another native artist, Philip Backman, Lunenburgers themselves are no slouches as salesmen.

For instance, hotel owner Fred Glover said he's sold 1,200 copies. He keeps a copy on a main desk in his dining room. And he donated the recipes for clam chowder and oyster stew.

The Sad Story of the Shrinking Dollar...

Pity this poor woman . . . perhaps a friend or neighbor of yours. She had the idea that if she got into the family car and drove many miles to THE BIG CITY, then she could do better with that shopping dollar than she could right here in our town.

When she finally reached home again, she was tired and unhappy . . . but a lot wiser. After figuring the cost of gasoline and oil, wear and tear on the car, parking fees, restaurant meals and the repair bill for a badly dented fender, that shopping dollar had shrunk so much she had to squint to see it.

Moral: Buy everything you need from your local merchants. Their stores may be smaller, but in selection, style and value they invite comparison with any other source. And local shopping is a relaxed pleasure, not a costly, time-consuming beating

Citizens' Forum Returns on CBC

Controversial issues, expert speakers and thought-provoking discussions, the hallmarks of a "Citizens' Forum" meeting, will be heard again this winter on radio and television — Thursdays from 8.30-9.15 p.m. on the Trans-Canada network, and Sundays from 3.00-3.30 p.m. on the connected network — starting October 31 and 27, respectively.

As in the past, "Citizens' Forum" is a co-operative project of the CBC and the Canadian Association for Adult Education, whose main desire is to stimulate discussion and individual thinking of Canadian citizens on close-to-home and world-wide subjects. The broadcasts are actually but one part of the "Citizens' Forum" organization, which includes also group discussion, the reporting of citizen opinion, and the publication and distribution of supplementary pamphlets. (The pamphlets, presenting and analysing the main arguments of each broadcast topic and including a suggested reading list, are available from provincial forum secretaries.)

The season begins with what is probably the most vital question confronting the world at the moment: atomic tests — what the scientists say, and the dilemma of the politicians. Scientists disagree on the emphasis and interpretation of certain facts; and the difficulties of either continuing or stopping tests involve the whole strategic manoeuvring of east and west.

This subject will be dealt with by two speakers stating the complexities of the matter. Sir John Cockroft will be one of them; at war's end the director of atomic energy for the National Research Council, he is now director of the British Atomic Energy Research Establishment. The other is Ralph E. Lapp, Washington physicist, lecturer and author, who has been a consulting scientist for American nuclear tests.

N.B. Boxing Star Held Prospect for Light-Heavy Title

SPORTS CAMERA
By Milt MacPHAIL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Yvon Durelle, a 27-year-old New Brunswick fisherman, is probably Canada's best hope for a world boxing championship since the heyday of Jimmy McLarnin.

It remains to be seen whether the bull-shouldered native of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., gets a crack at the light-heavyweight title held by Archie Moore.

A world championship fight has been Yvon's ambition since he started boxing in 1945. For several years he remained in semi-obscurity. Then Durelle won the Canadian light-heavyweight crown a couple of years ago and recently was declared British Empire champion after knocking out Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., in a bout at Moncton, N.B.

Logical Opponent

Durelle blasted his way to the number three spot in the world light-heavyweight rankings last June when he fought a draw with highly-rated Tony Anthony of Detroit. When Moore belted out Anthony in the seventh round of their title fight in Los Angeles a few weeks ago, Archie picked Durelle as the logical opponent for his next title defence.

The New Brunswick battler had a little trouble winning a unanimous decision over German heavyweight Willi Besmanoff in Detroit on September 20. Still, Moore said he'd like to meet Yvon.

The International Boxing Club thinks a Moore-Durelle bout would draw well. So do promoters in Toronto, Montreal, Miami and Louisville, Ky. Moore wants a $100,000 guarantee, but he'll likely come down a bit. Durelle just wants to get in the same ring with Archie.

A lot of boxing observers think that Moore, despite his 42 years, would have little trouble with Yvon. Archie is one of the smartest fighters in the business and he has a knockout wallop in either hand.

Durelle is strong, perhaps too strong for Archie, and he can hit with the best of them — when he connects. But Yvan misses almost as many punches as he lands in his fearless, charging style. That's when he's wide open and it could be Durelle's undoing against an old smoothie like Archie.

TOP-EARNING CHAMPIONS ARE TWO, THREE-YEAR-OLDS

Most money-winning champion race horses picked up the major part of their earnings as two and three-year-olds.

Those are the two seasons when a horse is meeting most of his fields on even terms. Also, there are a great number of richly-endowed races exclusively for two and three-year-olds.

The champion money-winner, Nashua, earned most of his money in his two and three-year-old seasons. He was retired to stud last year with earnings of $1,288,000.

Swoon's Son is a horse with a good chance of becoming a million-dollar winner. His owner is attempting it the hard way, in handicaps. That means Swoon's Son gives away poundage in just about every face. But he already has earned close to $700,000. Since he is only four-years-old the colt may top the million mark before he is finished.

Science Feature Has Timely Theme

"The Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays," described as a scientific detective story, will be seen on CBC-TV Monday, October 28, from 10 to 11 p.m. It is the third in the science series that began with "Our Mr. Sun" and "Hemo the Magnificent."

The filmed show has been planned to coincide with the International Geophysical Year and gets added timeliness from the startling earth satellite developments of recent weeks.

The mystery of cosmic rays is still unsolved but the story of the efforts of scientists for the last 50 years to track them to their source and understand them is an exciting one.

Richard Carlson appears as a fiction writer and Dr. Frank Baxter, the literary scholar, as "Dr. Research". The two tell the story of cosmic rays to a board of judges who are selecting the best detective story of the first half of the 20th century. The judges are three master detective-story writers, Edgar Allan Poe, Charles Dickens and Feodor Dostoevski, represented by puppets. They listen to the presentation of the cosmic ray "detective story" and give their decision at the end of the program.

Does England Need A Queen?

By G. E. Mortimore,
"All Aboard" Columnist

Does England really need Malcolm Muggeridge? Many people here don't even know that England has Malcolm Muggeridge, and are therefore unable to answer the question.

Mr. Muggeridge is the man who asked, in the Saturday Evening Post: "Does England Really Need a Queen?"

It was a silly question, very similar to asking: "Does a Man Need a Mother?" Mr. Muggeridge himself knows that it was silly, and there is no doubt that he snickered up his sleeve as he wrote it, and probably laughed out loud as he pocketed the Post's cheque for $1 a word, or some payment of that order.

More power to him. He wrote a penetrating, witty, irreverent article, unfair in parts and purely rhetorical in other places, but interesting from start to finish.

After a great deal of palaver, he agreed that England did need a queen. And there is no doubt that England needs Malcolm Muggeridge, or somebody like him. He stings people, makes them think, and prevents them falling into a vegetable state.

If it came to a vote between the Queen and Malcolm Muggeridge, and the people of Britain were called upon to decide which one had to go — Mr. Muggeridge would probably find the climate of New York rather harsh in winter.

Room for Both

However, that is not the point. There seems to be room for both of them.

Mr. Muggeridge's article is not an attack on the monarchy, although it is decked out to look like an attack, if you don't read it through. But it has a faint ring of patronizing familiarity.

Some of the Queen's subjects won't like this journalist's cool cynical appraisal any more than the slobbering hero-worship and tawdry gossip-mongering which have been directed at the throne and its occupant.

Has Mr. Muggeridge the right to pick up a cherished institution and examine it like an antique-dealer checking a family heirloom for worm-holes? Certainly he has the right, and the job may need doing, from time to time. The man who does it must resign himself to a certain amount of hatred. This, for Mr. Muggeridge, is nothing new.

Regardless of what the appraiser says, however, most members of the Commonwealth family will continue to set a high value on the Queen and her successors.

The feeling of many people toward the Sovereign are too deep and tricky to be spoken at all. Such feelings have nothing to do with gush and gabble in press and television.

As the Queen approaches, loyal subjects will hear through the clamor the faint cries of the archers at Agincourt, the guns at Trafalgar and the German bombs laying waste to London.

Second Series of Radisson Exploits

Further adventures in the life of Pierre Esprit Radisson, the master fur-trader and explorer of 17th-century Canada, will be depicted in 13 half-hour filmed episodes tracing Radisson's exploits from his trip to Hudson Bay, where the series left him last spring, to the year 1665 when he decided to switch his allegiance from France to England. The first film in this new Radisson series will be broadcast on Saturday, November 2, from 7 to 7.30 p.m.

Jacques Godin heads the all-Canadian cast, in the title role, and René Caron appears as Des Groseilliers, his partner in adventure.

The episodes to be seen this fall were filmed during the summer at outdoor locations on the Gaspé coast, at another site on the shores of Lake St. Peter near the village of Notre Dame de Pierreville opposite Three Rivers, and at Magog, indoor work was done during October at studios in Montreal.

During the early episodes of the second series Radisson makes preparations to leave the Hudson Bay region with the winter's catch of furs. A major difficulty arises when the chief of a nearby Cree village invites his complete party to spend the summer as his guests. According to Indian custom, a refusal of such an invitation would be an insult, and the future of the fur trade in the area and even the lives of the trappers could be placed in jeopardy.

Later, the adventures will take a novel turn when Radisson puts to sea in an attempt to return to Hudson Bay from Boston. He rents a frigate and sets out on a voyage that proves highly eventful, but for various reasons does not go according to plan.

Every hour of the year, Canada loses $13,000 by fire in its homes, buildings, etc.

Headlamp Aiming Is Easy with New Device

Mother can aim the headlamps on the family car today just about as fast as a trained mechanic does it with new mechanical aimers developed by the headlamp manufacturers. She can do it in less than five minutes, and accurately, too! Here, Mrs. R. B. Bailie, wife of the Manitoba Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, and her daughter Nancy, prove the point. They were prize winners in a headlamp aiming contest sponsored by the Automobile Manufacturers Association at a recent conference of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators in Roanoke, Virginia. The contest emphasized the importance of having headlamps aimed properly for safe night driving.

FIRST OF SEAWAY LOCKS FLOODED

Water is now pouring through the Iroquois lock, first of seven major structures to be completed in the St. Lawrence seaway project. Engineers and construction men look back on the lock as one of the toughest projects ever undertaken on the North American continent. Rock and clay, compressed by the glacial ages, made the excavation a nightmare, wearing out equipment at an alarming rate and almost doubling first estimates of costs. Here is the bed of the lock just before being flooded to allow shipping to by-pass the Iroquois control dam. The lock is 43 feet deep and 80 feet wide and will accommodate a 720-foot

THE CHURCHILL TOUCH

By Lewis Milligan

Sir Winston Churchill has ever been a master phrase-maker, but his choicest bon mots have not always been made on the spur of the moment. He usually burnt the midnight oil in preparing his speeches. On one occasion, while staying at a friend's home during a political campaign, he was heard walking the floor of his room rehearsing a speech he was to deliver the next day, including the eloquent pauses and sudden flashes of wit that brought down the house. A precious example of the latter is recorded by the American journalist, Drew Middleton, in a special article in the Liverpool Daily Post, my old home-town paper to which I at one time contributed.

The article is entitled "Report on The British", particularly on British politics, which the writer compares and often contrasts with American politics. He is reporting especially his impressions of proceedings in the House of Commons, and the incident in which Sir Winston appears occurred during Question Time.

The majority of questions are put by the Opposition in the hope of focusing public attention on the government's weaknesses. "Question Time is an exciting period," says Mr. Middleton. "It was never more so than in the last administration of Sir Winston Churchill. That Prime Minister, armed with the political experience of fifty years, was a joy in action. One of his last memorable sallies was at the expense of Woodrow Wyatt, an earnest young Labor M.P. What plans had the government, Wyatt asked, for excavating itself from London in the event of atomic attack? Sir Winston regarded him owlishly. 'Surely the Honorable Member does not wish me to take the bread out of the mouths of the Soviet secret service,' he said."

That may or may not have been an impromptu retort, for advance notice must be given of all important questions. While on a visit to England after the close of the last war when the Labor Government was in power, I was sitting in the Strangers' Gallery of the House of Commons during Question Time. One of the questions was about a court judgment passed on a man who had poured boiling water on a rat he had caught in a trap. Churchill and Eden sat in the Opposition bench, but neither of them took any part in the discussion. Judging by the expression on their faces they were not worrying about rats. Immediately after the question period Prime Minister Attlee rose to announce the government's decision to withdraw from Egypt and he read a long document setting forth the terms of the evacuation.

Mr. Churchill rose and protested that he had not been given enough time to study the document. He demanded an open debate on the matter in the presence of Foreign Minister Bevin. "Mr. Bevin is in Paris," said Mr. Attlee. "Is there no long-distance telephone to Paris?" questioned Mr. Churchill.

One wonders whether Churchill and Eden at that moment foresaw what has since happened in the Suez and the Middle East as a result of what they then believed was an abortive birth of Egyptian independence.

Late G. A. Graham Expert in Forest Fire Protection

Became General Inspector; Engaged 44 Years in Ottawa Valley Service

Gilbert Alexander Graham, a resident of Hull, Que., died in hospital October 15 following a brief illness. He was 65.

Born and educated in Arundel, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Graham. He later attended Lachute Academy and an Ottawa business college. In 1925, he married the former Luella Armstrong Young.

He was general inspector of the Ottawa River Protective Association for the past 44 years. Upon entering the company he was a telephone technician, and under his supervision the majority of the bush telephone lines on the Ottawa River, from the Rouge River west to the Ontario-Quebec boundary, were constructed. Upon completion of this, he took up other phases of forest fire protection, including extinction of fires, in which he became an expert.

Surviving, besides his wife, are one sister, Mrs. Alex Pollock, of Lachute; three brothers, William and Frank, both of Lachute, and Angus, of Arundel.

Funeral service was held Thursday in Ottawa, followed by interment at Pinecrest Cemetery.

Abandon Mark VI Jet For Fighting Aircraft

Ottawa (CP) — In a move to "keep the defence budget within bounds" the Canadian Government has announced it is abandoning production of the Mark VI version of the CF-100 all-weather jet interceptor.

It is estimated that the step could save the government about $25,000,000, during the current fiscal year and an additional $75,000,000 in future years.

The main reason given, besides that of money-saving, was that the jet would not be ready for three or four years anyway, and by that time the new CF-105 would be available.

The CF-105, being built at Toronto by Avro Aircraft Company Limited, will be capable of speeds up to 1,200-miles-an-hour. It has yet to be flown.

With the announcement of the cut of the Mark VI, the Defence Department said it would order more of the Mark V version, now in use with the RCAF.

In Toronto, Fred P. Smye, Avro president, said the company had been notified of cancellation of the Mark VI. He added the engineering and development contract for the Mark VI had not been cancelled "but will be adjusted after discussion between the government and company."

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Any amateur can take amateurish photographs on his vacation trip, but with a few professional touches, the photographs become a record anyone can be proud of. The little "extras" that make fair pictures good are easy to learn and well worth remembering.

Photographic experts tell me that the most common fault in outdoor pictures is lack of good composition. A little camera angling makes the difference between an ordinary snapshot and one with mood, motion and meaning. Here are some pointers which should prove helpful to you in getting the most out of your vacation photography.

1. In composing your shots, remember that the horizon line should not cut across the middle of the picture. More sky than terrain is usually best, unless there are people or significant objects in the foreground.

2. Try to get someone into the picture. But don't pose your character against uninteresting backgrounds, standing idly and gazing at the camera. Catch him doing something in keeping with the surroundings.

3. "Frame" the picture with arches, trees, buildings or natural phenomena. They lend depth in the foreground. A road, path or stream leading from one corner of the picture toward the centre of interest will add another professional touch.

4. Use side and back lighting occasionally to lend shadow effect and dramatic tone.

5. Use a filter for most black-and-white pictures, especially where a great deal of sky is exposed. Filters bring out clouds, darken skies and soften glare.

Have You A Question

on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. After a full year of steady employment and contributions, is a person entitled to benefit if she is ill during her unemployment period or does she lose her benefit right?

A. Payment of benefit during illness is only made if the claimant was in receipt of or was entitled to receive benefit when the illness occurred. If a job is given up or is lost because of illness, or if illness occurs before benefit is payable, no benefit is paid until the claimant recovers.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

where the income dollar goes

In supplying hundreds of different oil products to Canadian consumers from coast to coast, Imperial last year took in a large number of dollars. What happened to a typical dollar?

Well, nearly 56 cents went to buy raw materials—notably crude oil—and for freight, a big item in a big country.

More than 26 cents went for operating and administrative costs, including wages and salaries, and for depreciation. Ten cents of each dollar went to various governments in taxes (this does not include the provincial gasoline tax.)

Half of what was left—or about 4 cents—was put back into the company's operations. The other half was divided among Imperial's 44,000 shareholders, whose investment makes possible the company's existence.

Ayrshire Sire From Local Farm

Burnholm Benefactor, an outstanding herd sire bred by George T. Dagg and Son, Shawville, and formerly owned by T. Ed Kettyle, Lachute, sold for $2,600 in the Quiet Valley dispersal sale of Mrs. Marjorie Churchill, Newtown, Connecticut, on October 12. He was purchased by the Northeastern Pennsylvania Artificial Breeding Unit and was the top selling animal in the Quiet Valley dispersal.

He is sired by Burnholm Anchor, classified "Excellent", who recently returned to service in the Arthur Dagg herd. His dam, Burnholm White Hope, classified "Excellent", produced 12,071 pounds milk, 460 pounds fat at 2 years and 12,230 pounds milk, 502 pounds fat at 3 years. His maternal grand-dam Burnholm Queen's Own, classified "Excellent", has produced 118,061 pounds milk, 4,927 pounds fat in nine lactations.

Long Experiment In Crop Rotation

High average yields of wheat oats and barley have been secured consistently over a period of 48 years on fertile, irrigated land in Rotation "U" at the Canada Department of Agriculture Experimental Farm, Lethbridge, Alta. Laid down in 1910 on one-acre plots, it is a 10-year sequence of alfalfa for six years and one year each of wheat, oats, barley and sugar beets.

The rotation receives 15 tons of manure per acre twice in ten years, and one-half of each plot receives 100 pounds of ammonium phosphate (11-48-0) in three years of the cycle. Cereal yields in this rotation have averaged 58.1 bushels per acre for wheat, 104.3 bushels for oats, and 75.2 bushels for barley on the fertilized half plots, and 53.3 bushels, 96.9 bushels and 66.2 bushels respectively on the unfertilized land. This year Harlan barley in this rotation produced a record yield of 128.8 bushels per acre on the fertilized land and 117.7 bushels on the unfertilized land.

Rotation "U" is believed to be the oldest experiment of its kind in North America. Throughout 48 years of flood irrigation, no salinity problem has been experienced.

Fire accounts for 7 per cent of the annual forest consumption.

Farmers' Meeting; Report Two New Forums Formed

The Farmers' Meeting sponsored by the Argenteuil Farm Forum Council was held Tuesday, October 15, in the Lachute High School. Although the attendance was small, the meeting proved a success, with each Forum branch well represented.

The meeting was opened by Ross Oswald, president of the Argenteuil Farm Forum Council, who introduced the guests of the evening, Leslie Young, secretary of Quebec Farm Radio Forum, and Keith Grieg, president of Quebec Farmers' Association.

Mr. Young spoke about Farm Forum and its role in adult education and in getting new information to the farmers. Keith Grieg spoke briefly about the Quebec Farmers' Association as an action group and its part in forming several Producer Marketing Boards in the province, which are giving the farmer more say in what he gets for his produce.

The meeting was then broken up into small groups to write down some of their problems with Farm Forum; these were duly answered by Leslie Young. Lunch was then served.

For two days Ross Oswald, Leslie Young and Keith Grieg travelled around the county and organized four new Forum groups. It is hoped these will be successful when they gather at the first meeting of the season, on November 4. The topic to be discussed on that date will be "National Farm Policy".

Forums Basic to 'New Agriculture'

"Farm Forums are basic to a new agriculture", said Dr. F. W. Walsh, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Nova Scotia, when closing the recent Farm Forum Workshop at Pictou.

"The new agriculture will demand persons with enough background, training and conditioning, to work together on well thought-out programs."

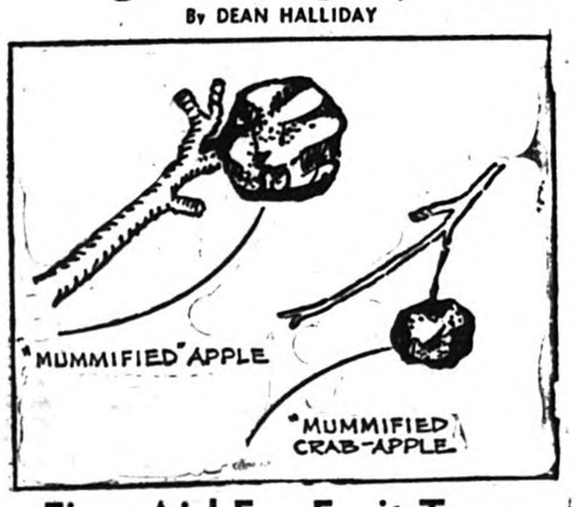

"We are now trying to plan the type of meeting which can be interesting to those who attend. There is no place now for the old type of meeting which had two speakers who lectured for over an hour, after which everyone went home."

Dr. Walsh clarified Farm Forum's position in the new agriculture, and he said, "National Farm Radio Forum is a hook-up of farm families scattered over 3,000 miles, who gather once a week to exchange ideas. If more farmers were using it, and talking about their problems they would be conditioned to do the job and something would be done."

Thirty representatives of agricultural organizations and adult education services from three Maritime provinces attended the Workshop.

Garden-Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

First Aid For Fruit Trees

If you have fruit trees, this is the time to search out and remove any "mummified" fruits found hanging on the branches.

Two examples of "mummified" fruit are shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Aborted or dried-up fruit is the result of a parasitic fungus. Since these stricken fruits carry disease, much trouble can be avoided with next year's crop if the "mummified" fruit is removed now and destroyed by burning.

Brown rot on plums, as well as peaches, attacks the fruit and leaves it "mummified." Brown rot also causes the twigs to become blighted in a manner similar to fire blight of pear, with withered leaves clinging to the twigs.

A "broom" disease of both wild and cultivated cherry trees is rather common. This is often referred to as "witches-broom" disease of cherry trees. The fungus, which causes abnormal branching, is one of the leaf-curl fungi.

The brooms caused by this fungus are unusually long, upright and profusely branched. No blossoms are borne on the brooms. The leaves on the twigs of the broom are curled and reddish.

Cutting off the brooms several inches below the abnormal branching will effectively eliminate the disease from a tree.

Orchard sanitation cannot be overemphasized as a control measure for various fruit diseases.

Niagara Grape Queen Wins Third Crown

It's easy to see why Sylvia Swayze has won three beauty crowns this year. The 20-year-old Welland beauty is shown being crowned Niagara Grape Queen of 1957 by last year's winner, Kay Henshaw, in St. Catharines, Ont. Sylvia previously won the Miss Welland and Niagara Blossom Queen titles.

The reduced-fare tickets will be at a rate for the return trip equal to one-way fare plus a half for both first-class and coach-class travel.

The reduced fares apply from Brockville, Prescott, Smiths Falls, Chalk River, Pembroke, Eganville, Barrys Bay, Glen Robertson, Hawkesbury, Ontario; Maniwaki, Waltham, Mont-Laurier, Lac Remi, Valleyfield and points east to and including Montreal, Que.

Methods to Control Perennial Weeds

Many shallow-rooted perennial weeds do not persist under cultivation and in vigorous growing pastures. They may be controlled by one or two applications of 2,4-D at 1 pound acre. Dandelion, plantain, chickory and hawkweed fall into this category.

Deep-rooted perennial weeds, on the other hand, especially those with roots which spread horizontally in the soil, are not easily controlled. Canada thistle, perennial sow thistle, toad flax, leafy spurge, and hoary cress are examples of this type. The roots are not destroyed by ordinary cultural practices and new shoots invariably arise from root fragments and from deep parts undisturbed by implements.

It is difficult and costly to eradicate these once they become firmly established, reports Dr. James R. Hay, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Thus, current recommendations are aimed at reducing the infestation to the point where the weed does not cause crop losses, rather than at total elimination.

Intensive summerfallow and use of selective herbicides are two effective means for control, and for best results both should be used. Unfortunately, although selective herbicides will kill the tops of most deep-rooted perennial weeds they are not translocated to the roots in sufficient quantities to kill the root system. Summerfallowing should actually start with a fall plowing and the area should be thoroughly worked throughout the following spring and summer. The purpose of a summerfallow is to exhaust the food reserves in the roots; thus at no time should the weed be allowed to recover to the point where the roots are being replenished from the above-ground growth.

Herbicides may be used in place of one or more cultivations during the summerfallow year. In many cases, the inclusion of such a treatment (1 - 2 pound 2,4-D ester per acre) in mid-summer has greatly improved the effects of the summerfallow.

Although 80-90 percent reduction may be expected, control is usually not complete, especially if the weather conditions have not been favorable, so that after a summerfallow year there are usually some roots still surviving and ready to reinfest the area again. Thus, when the weed appears in the succeeding crop it should be sprayed with 2,4-D to further keep the weed suppressed. Application should be made at as high a rate as the crop will safely tolerate and should be delayed until the weed has fully emerged, otherwise shoots not yet through the ground will be missed.

Raise Better Calves Cheaper with Nursing Chow & Calf Startena

With milk surplus well in the background, for the present at least, milk quotas in force and butter prices on the rise — you should be looking to market every drop of milk. You may think it a problem to raise calves without milk, but that is not a problem any more. Milk is a good feed, and it did a good job when cows were only grown to reproduce and raise their kind; but we have changed this, and we expect a cow to give enough to raise 4 or 5 calves at one time. This is quite a different problem.

Nursing Chow was developed to do just that. Start feeding it on the 4th day and continue till the 4th week. A 25 pound bag is all that is required for each calf. Also start feeding Calf Startena on the same day as Nursing Chow. Continue Calf Startena till the calf is 4 months old and NO hay till the calf is two months old. Nursing Chow replaces the milk, but to grow your calf rapidly it needs Calf Startena too, and at 4 months you can see your future dairy cow, not fat, but BIG AND WELL DEVELOPED.

With your first order for Nursing Chow (one to a customer) we will give you FREE a Dairy Tape, so you can measure and compare your nursing calf with others. You will see the difference Purina makes!

"L'Argenteuil" Wins Laurels, Top-Ranking French Weekly

Signal honors fell to Lachute's French-language journal, "L'Argenteuil", at the 25th annual convention of the French-Language Weekly Newspapers Association, held last week-end at the Windsor Hotel in Montreal.

"L'Argenteuil" was judged the best Canadian weekly newspaper among the many French papers affiliated with this group. This top-place position is evidence of per-vevering progress by its editor; the final paper ranked sixth in 1953, moved in 1955, and third in 1956.

In addition to a handsome en-graved plaque which he will retain for one year, Editor Fernand Ber-thiaume was awarded the prize for the best women's page.

The prize presentation was held Friday evening in the Prince of Wales Salon of the Windsor Hotel. Mr. Colin Haworth, of the firm of Johnston, Everson & Charlesworth, presented the "Louis Francoeur Plaque", a certificate of honor and $100, for the Best Weekly award; while Mr. Philippe Hurteau, of the company bearing that name, pre-sented Mr. Berthiaume with a $50 cheque as prize in the Women's Page competition.

In another section of weekly journalism, the tabloid format — Miss Lisette Morin, editor of the Témiscouki "Gulf Progress", won the Raymond Douville Trophy" and a $100 cheque for top honors.

Lachute received much favorable publicity also in the social aspect of this conference — the firm of Ayers Limited playing host to the gather-ing at a cocktail hour and recep-tion Saturday noon. In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Gilbert E. Ayers, the company was ably represented by Mr. Gérard Lefebvre, who spoke on the role of the weekly news-paper and, particularly, the merit-orious example demonstrated by L'Argenteuil" in Lachute, his home community.

At a banquet Saturday evening special tribute was paid to the past-presidents of the Association, this year celebrating its silver jubilee. Special speaker on this occasion was the Hon. Antoine Rivard, Q.C., solicitor-general of the Province of Quebec.

The publishers of "L'Argenteuil" were represented, at the reception and banquet, by Mr. J. S. Giles, founder of the firm, Mr. R. A. Giles and his daughter, Miss Lorna Giles.

Fernand Berthiaume, editor of "L'Argenteuil", winner of plaque, and Aimé Gagné, of Arvida, pres-ident of the Association.

Armed Hold-Up At Weir, Que.

Miss Alice Purcell, proprietor of a general store in Weir, was the victim of an armed hold-up last Thursday at 9 p.m., when two masked men walked into the store brandishing revolvers, and strapped her to a chair with friction tape.

The two then rifled the safe and cash register, making good their escape with some $48 cash and a supply of cigarettes.

Provincial Police from St. Jovite and St. Jerome aided local officers in patrolling throughout the night, but the search turned up nothing of any immediate importance. Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen is continuing the investigation.

Won Provincial Plowing Honors

In a three-day plowing event held earlier this month at St. Benoit — with local, regional and provincial contests — an Argenteuil entrant, Lucien Maisonneuve, won top honors in the provincial match.

Maisonneuve is a farmer on Route 8 at St. Philippe.

Case for the Police Force

WE HAVE HEARD A considerable amount of ill-founded gossip and complaints following last Tuesday's power black-out caused by an accident involving the Lachute Town police car. The constable concerned was suspended for a two week period which, when considering all circumstances, we think a little stiff. The constable was answering what he had reason to believe an emergency call, and while we are not supporting him for driving as fast as he did, he did not and could not have been driving as fast as people say he was.

While many of Lachute's citizens are now busily finding fault with the Police Force, we would like to point out a few facts that will perhaps awaken even a few of our better thinking citizens and aldermen. Constables on the Lachute Police Force are paid a gross salary of $55 per week, leaving them less than $49 take-home pay. For this, they are working on an average of more than 72 hours a week and on occasion, up to 90 hours. They don't get paid overtime and are not paid to answer fire calls when off duty, it being part of their job when on duty.

For this, these five policemen and one special part-time officer are expected to ticket cars, issue speeding tickets, investigate accidents, answer some 200-odd service calls a month, respond to bank alarms, any one of which might mean sudden death, and amongst their other duties, answer all fire calls.

This is expected 24-hours a day, seven days a week by five men and a mechanic who when needed assists by answering the phone. In our opinion, this works out to be worth much more than $49 a week, especially when compared to the men in the Roads Department who work by the hour for a set number of hours and in the event they put in overtime, get paid on a time-and-a-half basis. There is no comparison as to the work involved or as to the responsibility, yet several of the Councillors are of the opinion that at least some of the Policemen are being paid too much already.

If this is the case, Chief Trépanier should, for his own protection, obtain something in writing from Council outlining what they require and expect, come to some agreement on how much of it can be done with the present overworked and underpaid department, and then hire the necessary men at the proper salary to protect the citizens of the Town. That is what is needed if the men concerned are to live like human beings and work comparative hours for the salary of other citizens of the town.

Rotary District Annual Conference Inspiring Event at Watertown

District 704 With 51 Clubs Has Unique International Adherence

Presided Over by Dis. Governor Linton W. Armstrong, of Lachute

Almost 400 Rotarians from nearly all of the 51 clubs in District 704 of Rotary International journeyed to Watertown, N.Y., to attend the annual conference on October 20-21-22. Those attending from the local club were—District Governor Linton W. Armstrong and Mrs. Armstrong; King Amos, president of the Brownsburg-Lachute club and Mrs. Amos; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Jones; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Pollock, and Ron Barnett, secretary.

The District Conference is the most important event on the district level during the Rotary year. As this particular district includes 19 clubs in New York State, 16 in Ontario and 16 in Quebec, it is unique in that it is both international and interprovincial. The conference provides an excellent medium for Rotarians from all three sections to gather together, and is looked forward to with keen anticipation by many members from both sides of the international boundary. It has become customary to "rotate" with regard to the host city each year. The last event of this kind was held in Kingston, this year in Watertown, and — as an invitation was extended by Romeo Desjardins, president of the Montreal Club — the next conference will be held in that city. A somewhat similar system of rotation is adopted with regard to the office of District Governor. It was New York's "turn" to name the Governor nominee. Next year it will be a member of a club from Ontario.

Linton Armstrong, as Governor of the District, presided at all functions. These began with a concert and buffet luncheon Sunday evening in the main ballroom of the Woodruff Hotel in Watertown. The Geraldine Arnold singers, students of the Syracuse College of Fine Arts, furnished the program.

The first plenary or business sessions began Monday morning in the Masonic Temple. Principal speakers were the District Governor and Louis L. Roth of St. Louis, Missouri, personal representative of Rotary International President Charles G. Tennent of Asheville, North Carolina.

Laurence H. Kissell, president of the Watertown Club, welcomed all guests on behalf of the host club and Mayor William G. Lauchenauer extended a civic welcome on behalf of the City. As he is also a Rotarian, he said that he was doubly proud to have such an opportunity to extend greetings.

Governor Linton reported that he had visited 46 clubs since July 9; as a result, he had found a new meaning in the first object of Rotary, "The development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service." He commented on the excellent spirit of fellowship which he had found so prevalent among the members of each club and thanked everyone for the wonderful hospitality extended him wherever he went.

Louis Roth, who is also a Director of Rotary International, congratulated the member clubs in District 704 on the fine work they were doing from an international point of view. "It shows clearly," he said, "what men of two nations can do when they sit down together in a friendly manner and work for world peace and understanding." He then gave a brief history of Rotary from the time it was first founded in 1905, as the first of all service clubs, to the present time when there are over 9,500 clubs with a total membership in excess of 448,000 business and professional men in 107 countries and geographical locations throughout the free world.

Since July 1 of this year 93 new clubs have been formed. It was

Sentences Given On Recent Theft, Traffic Charges

Jean-Guy Cyr, 21, of St. Canut, appeared before Judge Omer Côté in St. Jerome court on Tuesday, and pleaded guilty to charges of driving without a license and while under the influence of liquor.

He was sentenced to a fine of $50 on each charge and forbidden to drive for a period of one year. Cyr was arrested by Traffic Officer Albert Legault last Saturday night following an accident near Sandy Hill, west of town.

Gerard Thibeault, 19, of St. Jerome, on Friday pleaded guilty to a charge of taking a vehicle without the owner's permission, and was held over to November 5 for sentence by Judge Omer Coté. A juvenile, also of St. Jerome, appeared with Thibeault and pleaded not guilty; he was held over for trial on the same date.

The two were charged just 1½ hours following a report that a truck belonging to J. R. A. Carrignan, a local tradesman, had been stolen. The pair were picked-up by Provincial Police in St. Jerome.

John Kenneth Sawyer, 26, also a juvenile, both of Montreal, were found guilty by Judge Omer Coté on a charge in connection with theft from a garage in Weir, where some $150 worth of equipment was reported stolen.

Sawyer was sentenced to one month in jail, while the junior offender received a two-day sentence. The two were arrested in Montreal by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen.

Appraising Seaway Effects on Quebec Harbour Traffic

Quebec (CP) — Quebec has all the raw materials and tools necessary for industrial expansion, Paul Beaulieu, provincial Minister of Trade and Commerce, said last Thursday.

Addressing a meeting of the Association des Commissaires Industriels — a group concerned with expanding Quebec industry — Mr. Beaulieu said the land holds the raw materials and the universities are capable of turning out experts to develop them.

He quoted a recent group of touring foreign industrialists who claimed this province had developed no more than five per cent of its possibilities.

Before the same Association, Professor Pierre Camu of Laval University said completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway may mean a loss of traffic for Quebec's established ports, but booming mineral development will offset it by making others more important.

Mr. Camu estimated Montreal Harbor traffic would drop 42 per cent, Sorel 45 per cent, Trois-Rivières 25 per cent, and Quebec City 24 per cent.

No Obstacle to Campaign Promise On Pension Boost

Ottawa (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government's proposal for a $55-a-month old age pension will pass the Commons unopposed. Spokesmen for all three opposition parties made that clear in debate on the resolution preceding introduction of the bill, which will boost the pension by $9 monthly from its present $46 for all those who are 70 and older.

The proposal also includes a similar boost in old age assistance payments to the needy in the 65-69 age bracket, and in pensions for the blind and disabled. Cost of these three programs is shared by the federal and provincial governments, while payments for the universal old age pension come solely from the federal treasury.

Both the CCF and Social Credit groups claimed the increase still isn't enough, especially for old age pensioners who have nothing to live on except the monthly government cheque.

Hon. Paul Martin (L-Essex East), former health minister, said thousands of the needy in the 65-69 age group will not benefit from the increase because most provinces now are not matching federal payments. He said only British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland now share with Ottawa the cost of the $46 pension to this group.

Cath. Farm Union Asks Permanent Federal Subsidies

Quebec (CP) — Jean-Baptiste Lemoine, president of the Quebec Union of Catholic Farmers, this week said that, although farming in Quebec cannot be called "prosperous", the industry is adapting itself to new economic conditions brought on by rapid industrialization.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Union, Mr. Lemoine said farming methods and practices are being reorganized to boost production. This means any farm which cannot turn up a profit will disappear.

Delegates adopted a resolution calling for permanent Federal price supports for farm products. Permanent policy would hold prices at a reasonable and stable level and thus lead to sensible exploitation of farm resources, the Union feels.

In the first half of 1957 construction was started on 43,478 new dwelling units, compared to 60,200 in the first half of 1956.

B'burg Home-and-School Geared For New Season of Achievement

Lachute Inaugural Meeting Wednesday Evening

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg started off another Home and School season last Wednesday with a full-house attendance to hear Mrs. Woolgar, president of the Quebec Federation.

Mr. Alfred ("Fred") Gervais opened the meeting by welcoming the members and assuring them that it was a pleasure for him to return as the Association's president for a third consecutive term. He stated he was gratified to be given another opportunity to serve an Association so deserving of support. He asked for a continuation of the fine co-operation of the last two years, and suggested that more men should turn out for the meetings, which are attended mostly by women.

Mr. Gervais then read the list of officers and noted that it was a healthy sign that only three of these officers were on the '55 slate. The '57 officers are:

A. Gervais, president; M. Cowley vice-president; R. Sugden, past-president; Mrs. C. Low, recording secretary; Mrs. W. Hazel, corresponding secretary; C. Donaldson, treasurer; Miss D. Lowrey, publicity; P. Grant, program planning; Mrs. D. Dixon, social convener; H. White and Mrs. W. Hamilton, membership; Miss H. Hanson and K. Amos, advisory.

Mr. Gervais regretted to report that Miss Hanson has resigned from the Association. The meetings, he reported, would be held as formerly, on the third Wednesday of the month, as follows: November 20, January 15, February 19, April 16 and May 21. The November meeting will as usual be "open house".

In opening the new season, Mr. Gervais felt it appropriate to reiterate the aims of Home and School, namely:

Not to raise children more easily, but better.

Not to make money, but to make lives.

Not to criticize the home, but to raise its standards.

Not to ignore poor schools, but to strive for better.

Not to operate the schools, but to co-operate with the school authorities.

Not to find fault, but to find facts.

"For the Home and School schedule to be a success," said the president, "the members must be 100 per cent behind these ideals."

Mr. Gervais reported that the Quebec Federation has asked Brownsburg, among several Associations, to have a 15-minute brainstorm on, "What makes a good teacher?" This will be on the agenda of the next meeting.

Buzz sessions this year may help us to take a look at our changing world and allow us to define the changes we would like to see in the near future. Subjects will be, for example: "Characteristics of the Canadian family," "Significant changing patterns," "External influences on the family," "Is it advisable to fit all children to the school curriculum?" and "Is the class pace too slow for bright pupils?"

Mr. Gervais was pleased to report that on October 30 Mrs. Woolgar would attend the inaugural meeting of Lachute Home and School Association. He hoped Brownsburg's vitality would be contagious and that the 'Burg "could give them a target to shoot at."

Mr. Smythe then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Woolgar, first woman president of the Quebec Federation — a woman who has studied mental hygiene and whose guiding principle is to help children meet challenges.

Mrs. Woolgar said that she came in a dual capacity, as president and as a confirmed parent-educationalist. She said that Brownsburg people could be proud of their healthy Association, and that their success was certainly a reflection on Mr. Gervais. Mrs. Woolgar urged the members to listen to Home and School's shows on CFCF at 1.15 every Saturday. The Quebec Federation is now a big organization and volunteers are needed for the various committees. The National organization is now a quarter of a million strong.

Mrs. Woolgar suggested that the group use buzz sessions, study groups and brainstorms as tools, and that a new approach to security may well be on order. It may well be the time to de-emphasize security. In the past few years, fear of creating complexes in our children caused a trend to over-protect the children, with the result that they are unable to cope with the unexpected. We must expose our children to enough experiences to allow them to become self-dependent. Security is inclined to discourage enterprise.

A buzz session on five subjects closed out the agenda. Discussed were the following questions:

"What challenges would we like our children to be able to face?"

"What makes a child unsure of himself?"

"What builds confidence?"

"Can failure be useful?"

"How much security is enough?"

Special Speaker For Retailers

The local branch of the Food Retailers Association has arranged an evening of constructive interest for storekeepers, on Tuesday next, November 5, in the council chamber at Lachute Town Hall.

Speaker on this occasion will be James Carr, general manager of National Groceries. President Ted Vachon will chair the meeting and all merchants, whether members of the group or non-members, are invited to attend.

MORE SMALL CARS

There's more competition coming in cars. Japanese-made vehicles will soon appear in Canada, reports The Financial Post.

Auto makers in Japan have been expanding their output month by month. They are now eager to join with Britain, Germany, France, Italy and Sweden in filling North America's growing hunger for small cars.

Remembrance Celebration For St. Andrews East

Remembrance Day rites at St. Andrews East will be observed in the usual fitting manner. Organized by interested citizens and ex-service personnel, with the co-operation of other patriotic groups, the ceremonies will be held at the "Haymarket Square", south of the river in St. Andrews Village, on Sunday, November 10. The public are asked to keep this occasion in mind and to watch for further announcement of the program.

Lachute Legion Poppy Campaign

The Poppy Campaign for Lachute Branch of the Canadian Legion is now organized, and will start on Friday, November 8, with a general sale on Main Street, followed by a door-to-door canvass in Lachute area on Saturday, November 9.

Mayor Léopold Carrière has proclaimed November 8 and 9 as official Poppy Days in Lachute. Wreaths have been purchased by local industries and business firms, and these will be deposited on the Cenotaph on Monday, November 11, when the traditional Service of Remembrance will be held in the Memorial Park.

Hunting Accident Near Grenville

Adrien Tassé, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hervé Tassé, of Grenville, escaped serious injury around 4 p.m. Saturday, when he was grazed by a bullet while hunting with two friends near the Scotch Road.

The youth was in the bush with Omer Lapointe, 19, and A. Ranger, 20, both of Grenville, when the three became separated. One of the youths fired and the bullet grazed young Tassé on the skull. He was rushed to the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury, where he was treated and released on Tuesday.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen is investigating.

Allan Hammond on Cdn. Plowing Team To Germany in '58

Lachute Man Won Third Place At International Plowing Match Held Recently in Simcoe, Ontario

For the first time in the history of world plowing matches, a Quebec farmer will represent Canada next year in the match at Stuttgart, West Germany — and the honor falls to a Lachute man, Allan Hammond, of Bethany Road. Allan won a place on the two-man team by placing third in the International Plowing Match at Simcoe, Ont., on October 17. He was competing for the Esso Silver Plow, emblematic of the Canadian championship.

Two Ontario farmers — Joe Tran, 36, of Claremont, and Bob Timbers, of Mount Albert, both former Canadian champions, placed first and second. Allan Hammond therefore becomes Tran's teammate in the world match at Stuttgart next year, since competition rules permit only one representative from a province on the world team. Tran and Hammond will attend the match with a manager to be named later. All three will travel as guests of Imperial Oil.

Mr. Hammond, 32, son of Ben Hammond, is a thoroughly practical agriculturist, working the 300-acre family farm on Bethany Road outside Lachute, where he specializes in Ayrshire cattle. Neighbors and fellow residents were delighted to hear of his success. He was competing at the International for the second time, and scored 139 out of a possible 200 points.

The 44th International match, sponsored by the Ontario Plowmen's Association, drew contestants from seven provinces and an estimated 75,000 spectators. In the area of the big competition, it is reported roads were slippery and there was plenty of mud due to a day's drizzle and fog. Cars moved slowly and with care; so did pedestrians, many of whom came without rubber boots, traditional plowing match footwear.

Another district farmer — Albert Raymond, of Ste. Scholastique — tied for fourth place with 138 points.

Canada's entries at the World Plowing Match next year at Stuttgart, West Germany, will be Joe Tran, of Claremont, Ont., top, and (lower picture) Allan Hammond, of Lachute.

Volts on the Rampage, Linemen Busy

This is what happened when the police patrol car severed a pole last week, throwing the central section of Main Street and adjacent areas in darkness for three hours. In this dramatic picture the pole, shattered in five pieces, has been uprooted and is being replaced by Gatineau Power crewmen (seen in their new safety helmets). The top of the broken pole is suspended in mid-air, and the tangle of wires gives ample explanation for the blackout in stores and curtailment of TV programs in hundreds of homes affected.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Reports on the moose hunting so far show that the kill has been very poor. With the government changing the date on the shooting, it is helping to develop the moose a little better. Last year they opened it right in the middle of the mating season. All that had to be done to call them was let out a blast on a horn! Even if it didn't sound like a cow moose, the bulls still came running. Some thought was put into the moose laws this year. Last season 1,752 moose were shot. This year the kill is considerably less.

The deer are still coming through town. Some very nice carcases have been in evidence, a good size, too. With the weather just about right now, some very good deer specimens are sure to be taken around this area.

Partridge are giving good sport; and if you don't manage to get any of them, there are always the crows. There are still a bunch of them around.

• • •

Last week I mentioned the good catches of doré being taken around Heron Island in the St. Lawrence, even with all the blasting going on. The last word I've just heard on this, is that the shocks from the explosions have chased the big ones out of the deep water, where they have been hanging out. The day the season closed there was a 14 pound 4 ounce fish taken out near the Island. That isn't a bad size.

At the last meeting of the Association 40 members turned out. It's a lot better than it was, but still not good. After all, we have 280 members. Phone calls were made to all, and it will be the same for the next meeting. So come on out. With the members in attendance, something can be started to benefit all of us. We all have ideas on what should be done, but the club has to know about them. I hope that at the next meeting something can be started.

• • •

The Chamber of Commerce had a Laurentian meeting a couple of weeks ago, and I know our local members could have received some information that would have been very useful in getting our North River cleaned up. Nearly all of them have had this trouble at one time or other. I don't think they can be very interested in it. Wonder why? We have enough clubs around to get what we want. We also have a member of the Provincial Government in our midst. I wonder what has to be done to get some interest shown in this. Could it be that the thought is, "What's it worth to US!" Too bad.

• • •

With the winter coming on us pretty fast, how about having a small-bore shoot on week-ends? There are lots of places they could be held, and it would be a lot of fun. At least we could improve our shooting eyes. Give me a call if you like the idea, then maybe we can get it going.

Cdn. Golf Team Ranks Sixth in Intern'l Tourney

Torakichi Nakamura of Japan scored a sensational seven-stroke victory Sunday over leading professionals of 30 countries to win the international golf trophy. He joined with Koichi Ono to capture the Canada Cup by nine shots, at the international tournament in Tokyo.

Canada, represented by Stan Leonard of Lachute, and Al Balding of Toronto, was sixth in the Tam Championship. They had a 576 total, made up of Leonard's 71-71-70-71—283 and Balding's 74-73-71-75—293.

Leonard, a former winner of the international trophy, was tied with Ono near the top of the heap.

The favored American team of Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret, who have won scores of titles over a 20-year span, was second in the team competition and Snead had to shoot a last-round 69 to finish in a tie for second in the individual battle.

'Union' Troubles In NHL Ranks

SPORTS CAMERA

By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The off-ice dispute between the National Hockey League Players' Association and the club owners is a no-decision affair at the moment. Nobody will venture to predict the outcome.

When the clubs refused to deal with the players' Association, the latter countered by filing a $3,000,000 damage suit against the League, NHL President Clarence Campbell and the club owners.

In the anti-trust suit filed in New York federal court, the players charged, among other things, that pro hockey has been under a dictatorship since 1926 and that they are not free to sell their services to the highest bidder. The suit also asked for scrapping of the standard players' contract.

Observers agree that the players aren't so much interested in what hockey conditions were 30 years ago — that the main purpose of the court action is to force the club owners to recognize the players' association.

If the players can accomplish that then they want to negotiate for such things as an improved pension plan and a cut of the television money now going to the clubs. Association president Ted Lindsay of Chicago Black Hawks has said the players have no serious complaints and merely want to put employer-employee relations on a more business-like basis.

Two teams — Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens — refused to recognize the players' Association because they are under Canadian law, and the players' group has its headquarters in New York.

League president Clarence Campbell recently denied that the club owners had refused to meet with the players and said he is willing to arrange a meeting any time. But Mr. Campbell made it clear that neither he nor the club owners will talk business with "outside interests." He was referring to the New York law firm representing the players' association.

The players, in turn, refused to sit down to talk without their lawyers. When the stalemate will be broken is anybody's guess.

Injuries in Sport

Football players have been known to come up with a knowing smile when they hear that a baseball player was given the day off because of an injury they consider to be minor. Many of them think that baseball pros are a pampered lot.

Hockey players consider themselves even more rugged than the football heroes. Muzz Patrick, general-manager of the New York Rangers, has some definite ideas on the subject.

"To play this game right you have to get some pretty good cuts," said Patrick.

Muzz, who was quite a player in his own right several years ago, figures that in a 10-year career in pro hockey, a player can expect to collect about 100 stitches.

In Patrick's book, a player who doesn't get his share of cuts and broken bones perhaps isn't earning his pay.

Speckled Trout in Quebec Province

Quebec — Last June, when Philogène Mongrain, of La Tuque, caught a speckled trout weighing 10 pounds 1 ounce in Wayagamack Lake, no one in "La Belle Province" got over-excited about this performance. The fact is, that Quebec has always maintained her unrivaled position throughout America as the kingdom of the wild speckled trout, owing to a unique system of control.

The most remarkable feature, however, about Mr. Mongrain's catch, is found in the fact that this 10-pounder had been caught (on a Dark Montreal wet fly) in the waters of the St. Maurice Fish and Game Club, incorporated since 1883, one of the oldest clubs of this province, where the members and their numerous guests strictly abide by the fishing regulations and the Club's by-laws. Wayagamack Lake is not located somewhere in northern New Quebec or Ungava, it is right in the heart of the St. Maurice Valley, close to La Tuque, very easy of access. How can you explain such fishing after 69 years of trout-catching in the same waters? The answer lies in systematic control, such as exists in this province.

Restored Village Has Pioneer Look

Morrisburg, Ont. (CP) — An unusual village is taking shape a few miles east of Morrisburg.

Upper Canada Village, the first restored village in Canada, is being built as a monument to pioneers in the counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Prescott and Grenville.

It contains a church, tavern and several houses and just outside stands a cabin built of logs taken from demolished buildings in the area, some more than 100 years old.

The buildings are to be furnished with antiques from the Ontario - St. Lawrence Parks Development Commission's temporary museum here.

Streets are to be styled similar to those of the pioneer era and tombstones representing various pioneer families are to be placed in the cemetery.

Congratulations In Order

IT IS NOT OFTEN we throw bouquets in our own direction, however last Friday's honor bestowed upon L'Argenteuil and editor Fernand Berthiaume in our opinion deserve some mention.

Our French counterpart has been named the best French-language weekly of the year and in addition to this took the first prize for the women's page. In comparison to The Watchman, L'Argenteuil is but a growing child, now in its sixth year. It is, however, growing rapidly and with this, yet another feather in its cap as well as in the cap of its able editor.

We offer our sincere congratulations along with continued best wishes for the years to come. The competition will grow yet still stiffer but with a combined effort, it will remain our aim to stay at the top.

Fat in the Fire

ONCE IN AWHILE we get mad at our own family — and once in awhile we explode publicly against this province, to which we owe our loyalty and allegiance.

In the newspapers last week — and worse still, in the visual reality of the TV screen — Quebec was branded as a benighted province by that $75,000 bonfire in which 10 000 pounds of "illegal butter" (synonym for margarine and nutritive vegetable fats) was consigned to the flames by Provincial Police. To the 70 pinball machines which went with it, good riddance. But the wilful destruction of good foodstuffs, while welfare organizations are clamoring on behalf of starving peoples, is nothing short of CRIMINAL. It may be a crime to sell butter substitutes in this province, but one crime does not justify another of such gravity as this.

If Premier Duplessis still considers the margarine ban a vote-getter and the salvation of our dairy industry, he is kidding nobody but himself — not even the farmers, who in many cases ship their butterfats and eat "substitutes". It is high time this idiocy ended, if only for the reputation of Quebec among our neighboring provinces.

Road Hazard Needs Attention

WORK ON THE Lake Louisa road is progressing rapidly and, to date, is definitely a great improvement even though there remains a considerable amount of filling and levelling to be completed.

While this much needed and long awaited improvement is nearing completion aside from pavement, we would like to suggest to the powers that be that the curve near Tomalty's Store, Dalesville, could do with some looking-at.

There have been a considerable number of accidents on the corner this summer and another one occurred early Saturday morning of last week. There is no warning sign when approaching the curve and a serious and dangerous drop from the paved road immediately onto a gravel road in the middle of the turn.

It appears that this drop is what caught the wheels of the car on Saturday, sending the vehicle out of control. Fortunately, no one was seriously injured but unless the small section is attended to it might be the cause of a serious accident. Let us hope that the good work being done on the remainder of the Lake Louisa road can be extended to remedy this dangerous corner.

Local History in the Broader Pattern

THE CANADIAN TOURIST Association, which last week met in Ottawa, was told by Leonard L. Knott, Montreal author and public relations specialist, that French-speaking Canadians teach their children more about their country than English-speaking Canadians.

We have found at least some truth in the statement, for in talking to students of the local schools, we have discovered they know little or nothing of the history of Argenteuil, their own county. We are situated in one of Canada's historic areas. Many of our leading statesmen, military and civil notables were born or lived here, and the Argenteuil Historical Society has done an excellent job of preserving many aspects of this past.

It is a good question whether our schools and other organizations are reaping any benefit from this Association's work. There is much to be learned by most of us, concerning our own district, province and country, and it would seem that the schools are the place to start. We realize that a specific course is laid down by the Department of Educaton, but it should be possible for local school boards to look into the matter and give some emphasis to the historic background of Argenteuil. Once it is learned, it will not easily be forgotten.

Horizons More Distant

ABOUT 20 YEARS have been added to the average lifetime of American people since the turn of the century, according to a report from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The expectation of life at birth on a nation-wide basis has increased to 69½ years.

If you regard this information as a matter of cold statistics, we recommend that you think more sentimentally in terms of your own antecedants. Visualize, for instance, the outlook of your grandparents, in comparison with your own prospects and those of your children. Turn back to the dates in the Family Bible, when your Great-Aunt Sarah died at 47, and Great-Grandfather, who knew nothing of the Old Age Pension, probably did not live long enough to qualify by present standards, anyway.

Figures from the National Office of Vital Statistics indicate that the chances for a white man of age 20 surviving to age 65 increased from 514 to 686 per 1,000 between 1900-02 and 1955.

At the same time, more than three-fourths of the men aged 50 may now expect to reach the normal retirement age of 65. The expected lifetime of those reaching 65 also has been extended somewhat, the chances of living to age 75 having increased from 545 to 605 per 1,000. Furthermore, the expected lifetime of men aged 75 is now fully eight years.

"The prospects of survival for females have improved so much that women now have better than four chances in five of living to see all their children reach maturity," the statisticians point out. "In fact, survival to age 65 is more likely for women at 20 than for men who have passed their 55th birthday."

The Southward Exodus

THE BIRDS are again flying south for the winter, in the annual migration that has captured man's imagination for centuries.

We learn a little more each year about this age-old movement. There's an individual count kept now for instance on the few remaining whooping cranes, and the trumpeter swans — another prized species — are carefully tended during the winter.

Federal officials say three new-born whooping cranes were sighted this summer at their breeding grounds in Wood Buffalo National Park, on the Alberta - Northwest Territories boundary.

That brought the current count of whooping cranes to 31, including five held in captivity at New Orleans and San Antonio. A more definite count will be possible after the whoopers have completed their six-week, 2,200-mile flight to their winter refuge at Aransas, Texas.

The trumpeter swans also have definite destinations, including Lonesome Lake, B.C., where they arrive about the end of October. The annual airlift of grain for winter feeding of the trumpeters at Lonesome Lake was completed some time ago. Last winter, there were 150 trumpeter swans there.

A few birds, including occasional flights of ducks and geese, will spend the winter at comfortable spots on the Prairies or elsewhere in Canada where they are assured of feed.

One type — the poorwill — even goes into a sort of hibernation, like the bears and other animals. The discovery about the poorwill, a member of the highly migratory goatsucker species, was made a few years ago by a biologist in the California desert. He found one holed up in a rocky niche where it spent parts of four winters in a comatose state.

But the migratory birds of course are in the vast majority. One sort in fact might be termed a feathered sputnik, after the globe-girdling Russian earth satellite. This is the Arctic tern, which the National Geographic Society calls the world's greatest traveller. It nests each summer in the North Polar regions, then flies 11,000 miles to the Antarctic for another nightless summer.

Mayor Issues Proclamation On Lachute "Poppy Days"

November 8 and 9 have been proclaimed Poppy Days in Lachute by His Worship the Mayor, Léopold Carrière. The proclamation urges all citizens to observe Remembrance Day by wearing the Memorial Poppy in honor of those who gave their lives in the two world wars. The formal proclamation is as follows:

Whereas men and women gave their lives in defence of Canada and the democratic world in World War I and World War II;

And whereas the memory of their service and sacrifice is a source of inspiration to all citizens;

And whereas this memory is kept bright by the annual wearing of the Memorial Poppy in their honor, and the honor of all Canadians who died in World War service;

Now therefore, as Mayor of this town, I do hereby proclaim November 8 and 9 as Poppy Days in Lachute, and urge all citizens to observe Remembrance Day, November 11, by wearing a Poppy.

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

November 3, 1882 —

Owing to its origin, Mr. John Newton, a company is now under organization to promote a log slide from Lake Louisa to Lachute.

The Fair yesterday was a failure. We never saw such a poor display. In fact, the only things on the grounds were some miserable ungraded apples, selling at 40 cents a bushel — no cattle, no horses, no nothing.

Hon. Senator Ogilvie and Thos. Craig, Esq., were here last week in connection with the proposed establishment of a new branch of the Exchange Bank.

Westward Ho! If Lachute folks will take trouble to go west to Brownsburg, they will find goods which have been hitherto unsuccessfully looked for in Lachute. — Farmer's Exchange, Alexander Paul.

Lachute Mills have, for over a quarter of a century, been celebrated for their oatmeal, and they are now likely to win wider fame as Messrs. Fish & Ireland have secured letters patent for "Our National Foods", and have big prospects in the sale of their excellent cereal products.

In consequence of the growing necessity for telegraphic communication between Ontario and Manitoba, the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company propose laying a submarine cable in Lake Superior, at an estimated cost of $400,000.

50 YEARS AGO

November 8, 1907 —

Samuel Rogers, aged 70, was killed by a falling tree on Friday last, at his farm in Lakefield.

At the Town Council meeting, Mr. Robt. Woods made report of penalties collected by him for impounding cattle, amounting to $2.50. . . Mr. Henry Lafleur to be furnished lumber to make a box drain on the street at his residence. . . Mayor Geo. Hay, Councillors Paquette, MacKimmie, Berry, McFaul, McGibbon and Lister, in attendance.

Cushing — Mrs. A. Walford entertained the ladies of the front to a "rag party".

25 YEARS AGO

November 3, 1932 —

Closing a quarter century's ministry at St. Mark's Church, Longueuil, Rev. Hector Mount has now been appointed to the Parish of Foster.

As one of the delegates appointed at a recent meeting of the Lachute Board of Trade, Mr. James W. Gall appeared before the Council to know if there was any way in which the Board could co-operate with the town in meeting the unemployment situation during the coming winter. The suggestion was made that the town should procure a bush lot in which the men could be set to work, and a committee comprising the Mayor and Mr. W. M. Scott were appointed to interview Mr. W. McOuat and others, to see if same could be secured.

The generous gesture of Mr. Jean Fassio in holding two free matinee entertainments at his Rex Theatre for local school children, merits the appreciation of this community in the great pleasure it afforded to our youngsters. The principal reel in last Friday's program, attended en masse by the lower High School grades, was a jungle picture of clean interest and educational value.

"Skidding", a comedy in three acts, will be presented by an All-Star Cast, in the Lachute Auditorium under auspices of the Lachute Women's Institute.

Who deliberately fostered the legend that he was in league with the Devil?

Louis Olivier Gamache, a squatter on the lonely island of Anticosti early in the 19th century, fostered the legend to preserve his privacy. It is thought that he lived by piracy as well as hunting, fishing and trapping. He was born at L'Islet, Que., about 1784, and died on a remote part of Anticosti Island that now is known as Ellis Bay, where he had lived in well-armed seclusion. He served in the Royal Navy as a boy and went into business at Rimouski, Que. He married twice and had several children. When his business failed, he left Rimouski to establish his lonely retreat.

What was the secret of Grey Owl?

One of the most noted figures among advocates of conservation in Canada was Grey Owl, known as an Indian who did wonders in domesticating the beaver and working for numerous conservation projects as a gifted author and lecturer. His secret was that, although he had been received as an Indian by George V and was widely accepted as such, he was really George Stansfeld Belaney, born in England in 1888, without any Indian blood whatsoever. He emigrated to Canada, became a trapper, guide and forest ranger, embraced the Indian way of life, and married an Iroquois woman. Much of his wildlife research was done at Prince Albert National Park. He died in 1938.

Who was Paul Kane?

Paul Kane was an artist who travelled extensively with traders of the Hudson's Bay Company and produced many fine paintings of Indian life in Canada. A large number of his Indian paintings are in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, and in the National Gallery. His famous book "Wanderings of an Artist Among the Indians of North America" was published in England in 1859 and a new edition was printed at Toronto in 1925.

The Big Shoot

A gusty Manitoba wind had stripped all the leaves from the valley except for one flaming torch of yellow in a huddle of poplars by the ravine far up at the north of the marsh.

"They come in over those poplars," Barney said. "At least — they did last night."

I looked, visualizing dark clouds of silver-bellied mallards streaking in at sunset. I went back to the truck and brought another two boxes of shells to tuck in the boat. Didn't want to be caught short on shells with thousands of mallards tumbling in.

"Maybe I'd better bring more shells, too," Fred said, and he, too, trotted back to the truck. We went well armed, up the channel, through the parchment yellow of the marsh grass.

"Let's go right down," I said. "Get right in deep."

On our way, two canoes passed us. They came from the lodge at the top of the marsh.

"Where are you going to shoot?" Fred called.

Eager, enthusiastic faces turned our way. "We're going right down," one called. "Right to the bottom of the marsh!"

At the time, it didn't seem to strike any of us that we'd risen early in both camps to row three miles, merely trading places with each other. For in our opinion, we were reaching out to Duckland; and they, I suppose, felt sure that for a good shoot they'd have to get as far from their camp as possible. No hunter ever had a camp within less than a mile of a flyway — it just wouldn't seem right.

I would like to say that the mallards came in over the flaming tops of the poplars like locusts blacking out the sky; or, to make a funny story, write that the other boats had a good shoot fifty yards from our camp while we drew a blank for our three-mile row. But I'll do neither — because neither would be quite the truth.

The real truth is that we all had fun. We hunted the hard way, went back to camp tired and happy, hung our ducks along the side of the shack and cooked a dinner of fried chicken fit for kings.

"What on earth do you see in these hunting trips?" the wives want to know. "You wade through mud and water, you get soaked in the rain, you paddle for miles . . . why?"

And we answer, with owlish wisdom, "You wouldn't understand." That's the truth, too, because we don't quite understand it ourselves.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Most children learn by the age of about 12 that telling the whole truth is not always kind or wise. They become aware that they should refrain from commenting on Mr. Smith's yellow teeth, or Mr. Brown's pointed head, or Mrs. Robinson's mustache.

However, this lesson has yet to be absorbed by John Foster Dulles. The U.S. secretary of state is getting along in age, and if he is ever going to learn, he will have to break into a sprint.

Mr. Dulles recently told Congress that it is not his job to make friends for the United States.

"Not for one minute do I think the purpose of the state department is to make friends," he said. "The purpose of the state department is to look out for the United States. Whether we make friends, I do not care."

He made this statement during a discussion of foreign aid. When a congressman asked if the loans to other nations might make enemies instead of friends, Mr. Dulles said he didn't care about that.

"If the making of these loans saves the country from Communism . . . the loss of which would be bad for the United States, I do not care whether they like us or hate us. We will have accomplished our purpose."

It is true and obvious enough that the foreign minister of each nation is there to serve his own country first and last. This is one of the things that everybody knows, but nobody says — until someone as naive as Mr. Dulles blunders into the picture.

To give Mr. Dulles his due, he he spoke at a recent sub-committee session. The proceedings of the sub-committee have just been made public. But Mr. Dulles must have known that he was speaking for the record, and he must have been aware that the record might be thrown open.

He has spoken with the candor of the little guest at the birthday party who says he would rather not play postman's knock, because he only came for the food.

Mr. Dulles' frankness will be useful to both the friends and enemies of the United States. It will put the friends on guard and it will serve the enemies well for propaganda.

Grateful though everyone is to Mr. Dulles for laying his cards on the table so openly, the foolish idealists can't help wishing that he had at least paid lip-service to the notion of helping hungry, sick and ignorant people, not just to save them from Communism, but because they were human beings in trouble.

WESTERN IMPRESSIONS

By Lewis Milligan

One of the impressions I received during a recent trip to the West Coast was that the people of Western Canada, especially of the Prairies, were more Americanized than the people of the East. When I mentioned this to a retired Manitoba farmer he said that was due to the fact that the early settlers on the Prairies were largely Americans from the Middle West. My impression was that it was due to their closer juxtaposition with the States, whereas the people of Eastern Canada are more insulated from American influence by the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.

What struck me most was what appeared to be the exclusive tuning-in to American television and radio programs. That may be due to the fact that it is easier tuning-in to closer U.S. stations than to those of the CBC in the East. But I noted that even the local private stations used recordings of a definite American flavor in sentiment and patriotic influence. One instance of the latter surprised and amused me. It was a recording of Kipling's song, "The Road to Mandalay."

That song was originally put into the mouth of a British soldier with a cockney accent. But the voice that came over the radio was that of an American with a clipped Coney Island accent, and the music was jazzed almost beyond recognition. The whole thing was completely Americanized. The line, "Come you back you British soldier," as sung, sounded to me like, "Come you back you Yankee soldier."

The people of British Columbia particularly of Vancouver and Victoria, have always been regarded as very English. They are still proud of their historical British monuments and landmarks. I noticed the name Larkhill on one of the buses in Victoria, and it immediately carried me back to Larkhill Lane in West Derby, a rural suburb in Liverpool. Victoria used to be a favorite resort for retired British army and naval officers. When I visited the city 30 odd years ago I met an ex-civil servant from India. But there are few if any such today, for even high-rank British officers could not live on their pensions so far from home. Although the city has grown in recent years, it still has the air of a holiday resort, and its equable climate and remote tranquility attract a constant stream of tourists and retired people who wish to end their days far from the madding crowds of the big cities on the mainland.

Alberta and Saskatchewan are close neighbors, but they are nominally different politically and they are each proud of their governments. But neither government is practising its economic principles. There is no Social Credit in Alberta, and there is little Socialism in Saskatchewan. Alberta has come into a rich inheritance of oil for which there is a ready market. Saskatchewan has great possessions in stored-up grain, but is not sufficiently Socialist to sell it without a good profit. Moreover, the CCF government has so far weakened in its hatred of the capitalists as to invite them to explore the province for oil on a free enterprise basis. When I asked an editor what Socialism had done for the province, he thought for a moment and said, "We have a very fine public medical service."

Manitoba is nearer to Ontario in every way. The people are more eastern than western in character. Winnipeg is the Toronto of the west. The Manitoba farmers are involved in the surplus wheat problem, but they are not dependent on wheat, because of their mixed farming. "We may have our heads in the air, but we keep our feet firmly on the ground," an old farmer told me.

Couple Wed at United Church

Kerr - MacKimmie

The marriage of Margaret Evelyn Ruth, daughter of the late Mr. John A. MacKimmie and of Mrs. MacKimmie, Lachute, to Mr. Harvey Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Kerr, Lakefield, Que., took place at 3 p.m. on Saturday, October 26 in Lachute United Church, the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating.

The organist was Mr. Wayne Riddell, and Mr. Syd Drew was soloist during the service.

White chrysanthemums were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Jas. MacKimmie, wore a cocktail-length gown of antique ivory lace, fashioned with fitted bodice and scalloped neckline. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of lace and pearls appliqué on tulle. She carried a cascade bouquet of orange Delight roses.

Miss Jean MacKimmie, as maid of honor for her sister, and Miss Willa Murdoch as bridesmaid, were gowned alike in moss green velvet with matching hats and shoes. They carried green velvet muffs covered with bronze baby mums.

Mr. Lloyd Kerr acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Lloyd Graham and Mr. Gordon MacGibbon.

Mrs. John MacKimmie, mother of the bride, was gowned in Dior blue wool jersey, with a draped satin hat of matching color, and carried pink tea roses fastened to her handbag.

Mrs. Amos Kerr, mother of the groom, wore a charcoal-grey ribbon crepe dress, with pink feather hat; and a corsage of pink roses.

Following the reception in the church hall, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr left on a wedding trip to New York, the bride travelling in a teal blue wool suit under a mink stole with matching hat and accessories of brown suede, and a corsage of tawny gold roses. Upon their return they will reside in Lachute.

Missionary Work Among Orientals Told at W.M.S.

The autumn thank-offering meeting of the W.M.S. of Lachute United Church was held Thursday, October 24. The president, Mrs. J. R. McOuat, conducted the worship service on the theme, "The Good Earth Is Generous."

The Missionary Study this year is based on Japan, and the Lachute Auxiliary was fortunate in having as guest speaker the Rev. Gordon Imai, a Canadian-born Japanese minister from the Church of All Nations, Montreal. Speaking of the Oriental work in Montreal and Vancouver, Mr. Imai said that before the war there were 24,000 Japanese people along the British Columbia coast. These had been moved inland. After the war was over, the Canadian Government felt that it would be better in every way if these people were spread throughout Canada, and the Government helped them financially to make homes and become established. Now there are some six thousand in Toronto, and one thousand in Hamilton and in Montreal.

In the cities they have been persuaded to settle in different sections. The older folks, especially, feel lonely, and the United Church was asked to provide services in the Japanese language for these older people. It was felt by the Board of Home Missions that the young Japanese people would have the English language and would attend the regular church services in their different areas. However, it was found that many were not going to any church, so the church has endeavored to give them a Japanese service.

Mr. Imai hoped that the third generation will integrate and share fully in the Canadian services. Over half of the Japanese in Montreal call themselves Buddhists, but 250 are in active membership with the United Church.

Mr. Imai paid tribute to the work of W.M.S. missionaries who had gone into their wartime camp and helped establish schools, and in many ways helped to supply the needs of those in the camp. Many became Christians through that service.

Japanese missionary work also extends to Japan itself, where there is a population of 80 million in an area smaller than California, only 40 per cent of which is arable, the rest rocky, mountainous and useless; so that each person is entitled to an area only nine feet square.

Buddhism is the main religion, then Shintoism and various cults. During the war the Christian religion was outlawed, ministers were tortured and imprisoned as spies. Yet there are one million Christians, members of the United Church of Christ in Japan. "Many small country villages now hear the gospel. Many souls have been won by the work and gifts of the missionaries of our United Church. If we sincerely wish peace, the way Jesus Christ showed us is love. When we show love to those in need, by giving food, etc., we do more to promote peace than we can do by armed might."

Circulating the Bible In Rhodesia

A Canadian who is agent for the British and Foreign Bible Society in Rhodesia, the Rev. Maynard W. Booth, reports that native Africans now staff the Bible van used to cover his extensive territory.

A team of five Africans has replaced two Europeans in touring the area with the van. From it they sell scriptures in the 28 languages used and in the evenings show sound films portraying stories from the New Testament.

"It is my firm conviction," Mr. Booth reports in the United Bible Societies bulletin, "that the time has come, in this part of Africa at least, that Africans themselves must carry the Gospel to their own people." The result has been a tremendous increase in Bible sales as the five Africans go from door to door in village kraals.

HOPE FOR THE DEAD

Matt. 3: 13, 17. Psalms 16: 10. Heb. 5: 8, 9. Heb. 9: 24, 28. Psalms 3: 8. Romans 6: 23. Psalms 145, 20. Matt. 20: 28. John 3: 35-36. 1 John 5: 12. John 3: 18.

RESURRECTION

There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both the just and the unjust. Christ Jesus, said, the hour cometh in which all that are in their tombs shall hear his voice and shall come forth. They that have done good unto the resurrection of Life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of judgment. — John 5: 28, 29. Rev. 1: 5. Rev. 20: 6. 1 Thessalonians 4: 16.

THE BETTER RESURRECTION (page 54-56)

Those faithful Witnesses of old did not at death go to heaven. King David was one such, and concerning him the apostle Peter, on the day of Pentecost when the holy spirit was poured out, said by inspiration of that spirit: "David is not ascended into the heavens: but he said himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool." (Acts 2: 34, 35). Those faithful men of old will not go to heaven, never having been begotten of God's spirit to life in the spirit. Therefore those faithful Christians who enter into the kingdom of heaven or Theocracy are higher and greater than those men of old ever will be. Concerning this Jesus said: "Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he." (Matthew 11: 11). Therefore the Christian spiritual class, to whom it is their Father's good pleasure to give the Kingdom, receive a "better thing" than John the Baptist and the other prophets who preceded him: "God having provided some better thing for us (spirit-begotten Christians), that they without us should not be made perfect." — Hebrews 11: 40. Psalms 45: 16. Luke 13: 29.

TO GIVE YOU
Dial Service
IN LACHUTE
NEXT SPRING

It takes a complex maze of wires, skilfully arranged in neat patterns — plus the modern dial telephone — to make automatic telephone service possible. And it takes months of patient, precise work to build the equipment that goes into action the instant you start dialing a number.

The equipment which will mean "dial service" for YOU is now being installed in your telephone exchange. When you dial one of the new "LOrraine 2" numbers, each turn of the dial will register through this modern machinery. We know you'll like dialing your own numbers — it's so fast and convenient.

— R. R. PEARSON, Manager

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

Two-way DIALING between LACHUTE and BROWNSBURG. When LACHUTE changes to dial and "2-5" numbering, BROWNSBURG numbers will also change. All present numbers will add "LEcture 3" in Brownsburg and Lachute will get completely new numbers starting with LOrraine 2.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. Why were unemployment insurance contributions changed from a daily to a weekly basis? Does this mean that an unemployed person will be entitled to a longer period of benefit?

A. (a) Contributions are now based on earnings rather than on days worked as was previously the case.

(b) The minimum period of benefit under the revised Act will be 15 weeks. Previously it was six weeks. The maximum period will be 36 weeks in place of 51 weeks.

* * *

Q. How long is benefit paid to a claimant who has paid contributions for several years. I heard that it used to be for twelve months but that it has now been reduced.

A. Under the Unemployment Insurance Act as revised October 2, 1955, the maximum duration of benefit is 36 weeks. Under the former Act it was 51 weeks.

* * *

Q. I have heard the term "allowable earnings" used in connection with unemployment insurance legislation. What does this mean and how does it affect an employee who is working only two days a week at his regular job?

A. Allowable earnings are the earnings that a claimant is entitled to make in a week without loss of benefit for that week. Any earnings in excess of those allowable are deducted from benefit. Thus, if you qualified for benefit at $30 a week (for which the allowable earnings are $13) and earned, say $20 for two days' work, you would be entitled to $23 benefit for that week ($30 less $7 excess earnings).

For Parents Only...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Watch Your Tone!

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"When I recall my childhood, I am so grateful for the memory of my mother's voice, reading aloud bedtime stories and poetry to me. Her tone was so full of life. She made everything she read so interesting!" one woman told her friend, who answered, "My mother had poor health and she was rather a silent woman. But I can remember the warmth and sympathy in my father's voice, calling to me, 'How are you, dear?' when he came home from work, and I was up in my room."

* * *

You likely have special memories of the voices of your parents in the past. But what kind of memories of your speech are you giving your children in the present? Have you ever heard a recording of your voice? It might be quite a shock to you! Almost without exception, people exclaim when they hear a record or a tape of their conversation, "I didn't know I sounded like that!"

The way a person speaks may be either an asset or a liability. The emphasis on a pleasant voice in various "Personality" or "Charm" courses which are so popular, prove this. Recently an expert on voice production pointed out that a relatively small amount of attention to voice culture of the young by parents and teachers of young children would accomplish more than a much larger amount of instruction and drill at maturity.

Helping a child speak correctly and fluently is one of the most important parts of a child's education. A mother's tone and words she uses, have a very great influence on a man or woman's speech in adult life. Little tots learn right pronunciation of words, their meaning, their correct order in a sentence, by copying the adults in the home. A little child who is well usually has a delightful inflection. A whining voice does not necessarily show a spoiled child. It often indicates a youngster who is fatigued or in poor health.

There are several interesting references to speech in the Bible. The wise man in Proverbs pointed out, "A soft answer turneth away wrath," and Jesus said, "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." It is this overflow of deep feeling which makes a real home. In Lucy Freeman's "Hope for the Troubled" she has one chapter stressing the great importance of affection in giving an individual a sense of security and a conviction of his own worth. She points out, "The feeling of love stems not so much from the words as the way they are spoken." A famous psychoanalyst once said: "The voice of the one who helps is more effective when it is low and intimate, when his words allay the torture of conflict and the misery of insecurity."

Children look to their parents to show them the kind of voice to use. One small girl said to her mother, "I like to hear you speaking. Your voice is soft like velvet. Mary Lou's mother sounds like the noon factory whistle. She always screams at her."

No mother would feel flattered if she overhead this "factory whistle judgment" of her voice! — Many mothers should be more careful of the tone which they use. A European visitor declared that women on this continent have the prettiest legs and the ugliest voices in the world. Do you think this is a fair criticism?

The tension and hurry in modern living is frequently reflected in people's voices. A mother with several small children and no help in the house, except the assistance of mechanical labor saving devices, often becomes wrought up and weary. "I hate myself when I scream at my children — but by the end of the day it takes all my will power to keep from doing it," one young mother confessed to her mother. "Better do a little less, and rest a little more," the grandmother wisely suggested, "then you won't be so apt to snap at them."

Too many women use too high a pitch. They speak not only in too shrill a voice, but too rapidly. The result is indistinctness and poor enunciation. Monotony in speech comes from using one tone almost all the time with little variation or contrast of occasional higher and lower tones.

Shakespeare wrote in King Lear, "Her voice was ever soft, gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman." How does your tone compare with this description? . . . Perhaps when you are weary or irritated or anxious your voice reflects your emotions. . . But don't forget that the way you usually speak, colors the home atmosphere for every member of the family. So mother, Watch Your Tone! — (and encourage your husband to watch his too.)

Serve Apples — A New Way Every Day

In almost every cook book you'll find dozens of different ways for using apples. However, to save you you a little time in searching for just the right recipe and as a guide to the uses of apples, the home economists of Canada's Kitchen have prepared the following Apple Index.

The publications mentioned, "Apples", "Home Canning", etc., are available free of charge from the Information Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Apple Index

Appetizers. — Include some of these on appetizer trays when you entertain: (1) Apple-Cheese Balls — using ball cutter and peeled apples, make raw apple balls, dip in vitaminized apple juice then roll in finely grated, hard cheese. (2) Apple-Cheese Wedges — spread thin, unpeeled apple wedges with cheam cheese. (3) Apple-Nut Balls — using red apples and ball cutter, make raw apple balls, leaving skin on one side of each. Stick toothpick in red side, dip balls in processed or cream cheese thinned with a little cream, and roll in finely chopped nuts. (4) Freshly cut apple wedges with assorted cheeses and crackers.

Beverages. — Serve hot, spiced Apple Juice before dinner or on a cool, winter evening. For 4 servings, stir together 1 20-ounce can of apple juice, ½ teaspoon cider vinegar and 1 teaspon sugar, then add 6 cloves and a stick of cinnamon. Heat to boiling point, remove from heat and let cool. Strain and store in refrigerator. Reheat just before serving.

Breads. — Follow the recipe for Apple Bread in the booklet, "Apples". Serve buttered apple bread at any meal or for afternoon tea or evening snack.

Cakes.—Make Dutch Apple Cake from recipes in one of your own cook books. Or, try the recipe for Apple Upside-down Cake on page 13 of the booklet, "Apples".

Candy. — You'll find Candied Apples easy to make and popular with the kiddies when you follow the recipe in the apple booklet.

Canning. — Now is the time to can apples while they are fresh and full of flavor. Use apples that are best for cooking, such as Gravenstein, Ribston, and Cortland, and follow the directions given in the bulletin, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables".

Casseroles. — Try this supper casserole using applesauce, cheese tea biscuit dough, and either canned pork luncheon meat or cooked sausages. Combine 2 cups applesauce with 1 tablespon vinegar and ½ teaspoon nutmeg and spread in shallow baking dish. Arrange cooked sausages or cubes of canned pork on applesauce and top with cheese tea biscuits. Bake at 400°F. for 25 minutes, or until biscuits are done.

Cereals. (1) Cook farina as usual but substitute apple juice for the water. (2) Give color and extra goodness to prepared cereals like wheat flakes, by adding bite-size chunks or unpeeled apple and a few raisins to the bowl.

Cookies. — Blend shredded apple, cocoa, and spices with a few other ingredients according to the recipe on page 16 of the booklet, "Apples", to make tasty Apple Spice Bars.

Decorations. — Arrange apples in a low basket or bowl for a table centrepiece; tie them on strings hung within reach, perhaps in a doorway, for a children"s party; and always keep a big bowlful of apples handy in the hall or living room for their aroma, color and tasty goodness as between-meal snacks.

Desserts. — Apple Crisp and Baked Apples are two favorite apple desserts — but have you tried Apple Ice Cream? It's so refreshing and simple to prepare that you're sure to have another family favorite once you've made it from the recipe in the "Apples" booklet.

Dressings. — (1) Add chopped raw apple to bread stuffing for poultry, meat or fish. (2) Use applesauce to moistion dressing for spareribs, stuffed pork chops or roast pork.

Dumplings. — Make either regular pastry or biscuit dough for Apple Dumplings. Prepare fruit same as for Baked apples, place each apple on a square of pastry and fill centre with mixture of brown sugar, butter, cinnamon and salt. Pinch edges of pastry together around apples. Bake in 425°F. oven until apples are tender (25 to 40 minutes, depending on variety of apple), and serve with cream or hot pudding sauce.

Fillings. — Use applesauce as a filling between layers of gingerbread or spice cake garnished with whipped cream.

Fish Dish from the Maritimes

Every province in Canada has some time-honored favorite dishes of which it is justly proud. In the Maritime provinces, it is not surprising that a good number of these contain fish. One old-time favorite Maritime dish is fish cakes—golden brown patties of cooked fish and potatoes, feathery light and soft on the inside and delicately crisp on the outside.

There are possibly as many different recipes for fish cakes as there are counties on the Atlantic seaboard. The proportion of fish to potatoes differs widely, as do added flavoring ingredients. According to the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries, especially good -flavored fish cakes can be made by using smoked fish. The recipe given below was recently perfected by a Maritime member of their staff whose name is Johanne. Serve Johanne's fish cakes with a crisp salad for lunch or supper. Or, if you like, serve them with little sausages for Sunday morning brunch.

Johanne's Fish Cakes

1 Pound smoked fillets (2 cups cooked and flaked), 2½ cups diced, raw potatoes (2 cups cooked and mashed), ¼ cup chopped onion, 2 tablespons butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 egg beaten, ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs, butter for frying.

Cook and flake the smoked fillets. Cook diced potatoes in boiling, salted water and drain. Sauté the onion in 2 tablespoons butter until transparent in color. Combine cooked potato and buttery, fried onion and mash the two together. Add the flaked fish, seasonings and beaten egg; mix well. Form into cakes and roll in fine, dry bread crumbs. Pan fry cakes in hot butter until golden-brown on one side. Turn carefuly and brown on the other side.

Browning time is about 5 minutes on either side. Serve piping hot. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Mary Fran Burke

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Members of a Kenya Women's club dealing with health and children's care willingly walk 10 miles for day-long meetings, says Mrs. Gordon Wilson, assistant commissioner of women's work in the African colony.

Back home in Vancouver with her husband, Mrs. Wilson praised highly the work of the club, which is affiliated with the Associated Country Women of the World.

Mrs. Wilson, sociologist with the Kenya government, said regular club meetings are lengthy affairs, lasting an entire day. Members arrive with refreshments and their smäller children. Main subjects of health and child care are supplemented by courses in cooking and sewing.

The Wilsons, with their family of three children, went first to Tanganyika, where Mr. Wilson was doing a study in anthropology. They will return to Kenya next spring.

The Wilson youngsters all speak Swahili, as do their parents. "You can adapt to any way of living if you want to," said Mrs. Wilson. In a reverse twist, the start in Canadian schools this fall was the most "terrifying experience" to date for the youngsters.

Popular Classes

"Meet and Grow Slim" classes are the most popular at the YWCA, says Mrs. Miriam Moore, program director at the Toronto Central Y.

"Canadian women today want more than just exercises so the majority of Y's offer a variety of programs from advice on proper diet to instructions in handicrafts," she said.

One day a week is set aside for married women with children of pre-school age. The Y provides nursery teachers to look after the tots, while mothers swim, play badminton or take oil painting lessons and other courses.

At lunchtime they can hear a guest speaker, watch an educational film or view different displays. These programs are also offered to women whose children are in school all day.

Tasty Pie

The word "pizza" means pie, and pizza rustica means country pie in Italy. An authentic Italian recipe gives a crust and filling precisely as it is made in Naples.

Pizza Rustica calls for 2 cups biscuit mix, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon coarse ground pepper, 3 tablespoons leaf lard and ½ cup of milk.

Combine biscuit mix, salt and pepper. Cut in leaf lard until mixture is crumbly. Add milk; mix well. Roll out to make top and bottom crust for 10-inch pie.

For the filling, the recipe calls for 1 lb. sweet Italian sausage; 3 eggs, well beaten; ½ teaspoon coarse ground pepper; ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese; 1 lb. ricotta cheese and ½ lb. mozzarella chese, sliced thin.

Remove sausage from casing and break up into small pieces. Put in frying pan with ½ cup water. Cover and simmer slowly until lightly browned. Blend beaten eggs, pepper, grated Parmesan cheese and ricotta. Add sausage. Spoon into pastry-lined 10-inch pie pan. Top with mozzarella slices. Cover with pastry and flute edges. Bake in hot oven about 25 minutes.

Rawhide At Work

Max Ferguson, creator and alter-ego of CBC's famous "Rawhide", often works until the wee hours of the morning preparing his script for the "Rawhide" show. Frequently his only companion during the night is his English Bull Dog Tuffy; he doesn't seem too impressed with his script. Rawhide's great satire show may be heard on the Trans-Canada Radio network five evenings a week.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

You're a smart motorist — so your car has been serviced for winter. Even so, if we get extreme cold, you may find starting hard. Here are some tips for taking the edge off winter nights.

If you keep your car in a garage, stretch a rope across the end of the garage and hang a blanket over it. Then, when you put the car away at night, snug the front end up to the blanket. This preserves some of the heat left in the motor and keeps the fan from scooping up icy early-morning air, blowing it into the motor.

If you ever have to leave your car outside all night, you can still cut down warm-up time. Save a large shopping bag, fold it flat and slip it down inside the hood between grill and radiator. To secure the bag, run a cord through one end of it, and tie the cord to the radiator cap. (This also prevents your radiator from freezing up while you're driving through heavy snow.)

Here are three ideas for frozen door locks:

On a warm day, fill an old squirt can with a solution of carbon tetrachloride (95%) and paraffin (5%), and squirt it around the outside door push button.

Or, if there are no warm days in prospect, get some rubber chair leg tips from your local hardware store and slip them over the ends of the push buttons. This usually keeps out rain and snow.

And if all else fails, try heating your key over a match before putting it in the lock.

Perfect Father TV Character Is Native Canadian

No wonder Canadians see something of themselves and their own neighborhood in a television series which is produced in Hollywood and located in a mythical Springfield, U.S.A.

The family situation-comedy, "Father Knows Best", rings true to Canadians because it was created by a Canadian about Canadians. The characters are life-like because they are modelled after real people still living in a typical Canadian suburb. The series evokes laughter or tears from three and one-half million Canadians every Sunday evening because the situations are often more than just plots. They're reports of actual happenings. Even Springfield, U.S.A., is really Swansea, a suburb of Toronto.

Eight years ago when "Father Knows Best" was being played in real life only, a young Torontonian by the name of Ed James was bitten by the writing bug. Looking around for material, he decided the only people he knew well enough to transfer to paper were his own family.

Thus, his father was the original model for Jim Anderson — the intelligent and understanding television father who always knows best. Played by Robert Young, he is credited with changing the entertainment world's conception of a father from that of a comic simpleton to that of a dignified and respected head of the family. His mother is interpreted by a mother of two boys — stage and screen actress Jane Wyatt. She first rejected the role, then accepted with enthusiasm after reading a script.

When it came to creating the character of Bud, the teen-age son, Mr. James just flipped back through the pages of his own memory and came up with himself. Casting for the part was a different matter. More than 30 boys were tested before one was found who was, in many ways, a junior edition of the writer. He was also the only contestant who could resist speaking the gag lines as though he knew he was cracking a joke.

Locating a typical little sister was even more difficult. Her character is based on a cousin of Mr. James and a total of 78 youngsters including dozens of winsome little blondes were interviewed. Probably because she is like little sisters everywhere — neither beautiful nor obviously precocious — Laurin Chapin was finally selected.

How involved in Laurin's television life followers of the show can sometimes become, was suggested recently when an erroneous rumor circulated that she had suddenly died. Even an official denial failed to stop the flood of inquiries which still persists in some areas.

Betty, big sister to Bud and Kathy, is the only character who was not originally a member of Mr. James' own family. She was inspired by the girl who lived two doors away — attractive but not sophisticated and, of course, very much admired by her neighbor.

Though Ed James stopped writing the show several years ago when it was still a radio series, his two successors follow his example in turning to their own families for ideas. And like him, they insist on having the characters cause the plots. That's what makes an audience experience a situation through their own feeling.

Canadian Hiker Found Europeans Friendly Folk

Edmonton (CP) — An 18-year-old Edmonton Rover Scout who finds it easy to meet people says that being a Canadian makes for easier hitch-hiking.

Dave Hitchin, who returned from a two-month trip through Europe found little difficulty in thumbing his way. He attributed his success to the fact he had chalked the word "Canada" on his bag.

Dave struck out on his own for the World Scout Jamboree in England in July, but landed in Scotland and travelled through Scotland and Wales before attending the jamboree at Sutton Coldfield.

Later, on the continent, he found most people spoke French or a little English. With his high school French and hand signs he overcame the language barrier.

Keen Observer

Except for taking the night train to Brussels, he relied on hitch-hiking to tour Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland and France.

Dave was particularly struck by the friendliness of the Dutch and Belgians. In those countries "everything is very clean," he said, and "half the people ride bikes."

But he made it a point to visit the less pretentious areas of Europe, including the slum areas of large cities. His main idea was to meet and observe the people of all the countries he visited.

A sincere approach and a friendly smile enabled him to bring back to Canada the ideas and customs of several countries. "Now when I hear or read of the countries I visited it will mean something," he said

End of Militia?

Ottawa (CP) — Senior militia commanders greeted with dismay an army headquarters announcement that summer camp will be cut out and more emphasis placed on civil defence training for the 42,000-member reserve force.

Some said the militia might as well be disbanded right away. They expected large-scale resignations from the force.

Another October 10 army announcement — that the 1st Canadian Infantry Division will not conduct manoeuvres next summer at Camp Gagetown, N.B. — led to speculation by army officers that the division's headquarters at Camp Petawawa, Ont., are to be disbanded. The infantry brigades would work directly through army headquarters.

Instead of participating in joint exercises at Camp Gagetown, built at a cost of $100,000,000 for divisional training, the three brigades are to exercise independently at Gagetown, Camp Petawawa and Camp Wainwright, Alta.

Defence Department opinion is that the government will have to decide within the next year or two whether to disband the reserve forces — the militia, the naval reserve and the RCAF reserve — or face the likelihood of higher defence costs.

Defence officials said equipment costs are rising. The only way to keep defence spending at its present $1,725,000,000 ceiling would be to make cuts in manpower.

Model Shows "Comedie Canadienne" Theatre Project

— And Gratien Gelinas, famous Canadian actor and playwright, who is director of the new national "Comedie Canadienne" dramatic movement, seems pleased with how the arrangements are lining up. Gelinas says that if work proceeds on schedule the theatre will have its first "first night" early next year. The extensive renovations to the theatre, in mid-town Montreal, are being made possible by $100,000 donated by Dow Brewery which bought the theatre and is leasing it on generous terms, with the first year being rent free.

INCREASES OUTPUT OF FLU VACCINE

At Connaught Laboratories in Toronto technicians are working steadily to produce vaccine to prevent Asiatic flu, now identified in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec. The vaccine, produced in eggs, will be used on key personnel in hospitals and vital communications first and it is not planned to have mass inoculations as medical authorities say the flu is seldom fatal and usually passes in three days. Dr. J. K. W. Ferguson of the Connaught Laboratories says that 500,000 doses of the vaccine could be produced in a month if necessary

Leg Disorders Through Awkward TV Posture

Prolonged sitting in awkward positions while watching television may produce serious circulatory disorders in the legs, according to a report from the American Medical Association.

The report cited three cases of blood clots occurring in the leg vessels after patients had sat in awkward positions watching TV. Similar disorders may occur after driving long distances in a car, especially in tall men, who are "peculiarly susceptible" to such ailments.

It is recommended that TV viewers get up and move about at least once an hour in addition to moving their legs frequently. Girdles and other tight garments also should be removed before prolonged TV watching.

All three patients recovered with relatively few effects after treatment with anticoagulant and vasodilator drugs. One man sat with his leg pressed against the edge of a chair for one and a half hours; another man with his leg thrown over the arm of the chair for an hour, and a woman with her leg tucked under her off and on for two hours.

The men had venous thrombosis (a blood clot in the vein) of the leg, followed by pulmonary embolism (a condition in which the clot moves to block a vessel in the lungs). The woman had a thrombosis in the femoral artery of the leg.

Dr. Meyer Naide, who wrote the report, also mentioned an earlier report of 21 sudden deaths from pulmonary embolism in persons in or leaving English air-raid shelters during World War II. The cause was venous thrombosis in the legs resulting from long periods of sitting on chairs or benches with the edges compressing the veins.

Farewell October — Replete With Queenly Charm, Nature's Bounty

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

October, the golden month — and how true, I think, as I look out into the leafy mass of gold that is our beloved tree at the front of the house. When the sun shines through it, it makes the bedrooms at the front shimmering bowls of light. It is a big tree, full thirty feet or more, towering over the house, seeming to protect it. It shades the sun-room in the summer, and its bare limbs are etched against the blue skies of February, so that, sitting in that same glassed room with the winter sun pouring in, the tree adds balance and accent to the snowy scene. This year, the tree was green from early May until the third week-end of October, then suddenly it appeared clothed in this glorious yellow — the sun color, the papal color — well, anyway, a lovely color.

* * *

Now you have had your dose of art, let us consider money. The announcement by the Government that the old age pension would be appreciably increased, drew cheers from many, but not in the Cook household. "How old must one be?", inquired the head of the house. To my crisp, "Seventy" the only reply was a sigh. "Think you'll make it?", I asked flippantly. "Not the way I feel now". Feeling has a lot to do with age. A friend, a few nights ago after a forty-five minute lecture, confided to me in a whisper, "I've aged ten years since I came in here." Truth to tell, I had been a little bored myself, but had amused myself looking at different faces and trying to guess what was going on behind them. Making menus in church has been my habit for years, if the sermon is dull. The ritual, ancient and beautiful, takes my full attention, but a sermon has to be special to arrest my vagrant mind. . How good the guesses were the other night I do not know, but I doubt if many were thinking of Indonesia, which was the subject.

Speaking again of money, especially the kind handed out by governments — a friend who is just naturally a cynic, once worked out the receipts for his three children against the taxation due to their advent, and found that he netted some ridiculous sum per year; I think it was $1.46. And, of course, those people who rail that Mr. and Mrs. So-And-So do not need the Old Age Pension, have never stopped their complaints long enough to do a little arithmetic; those who do not need the assistance, get it only at the price of more taxes. It is surprising how many people still hope for something for nothing!

Then there is the woman, poorly dressed, of humble mien, who timidly approached the cashier at a well-known Montreal department store, and said she wished to pay a bill of $2,000. Whereupon, she began pulling bills of small denominations from various parts of her costume, until the whole counter was covered by paper money, "fluttering and dancing" in the breeze of the comments of the astounded staff! Yes, that is quite true; the cashier told me.

* * *

Enough of money — or is there ever? Let us return to Sunnyacres and Thanksgiving. It was a delightful week-end, the weather perfect, and all our hearts gladdened by the presence of that gracious lady, the Queen. We heard her speech on the Sunday night, as we bowled along over the hills on our way home from the "inn" we mentioned a few articles back. We were happily replete and relaxed, and the Queen's voice coming out of the night, mysterious with Northern Lights, added to our content. A good woman, a kind woman, a pretty woman, a woman devoted to duty. What more could anyone desire? Down with the Muggeridge! We felt a pang of pure un-Christian joy when we read he had lost a job because of his article in a prominent American weekly.

We had with us, that same week-end, a young thing newly arrived from England, and her astonishment at things Canadian added considerably to our enjoyment. On the domestic side, she had never seen a kitchen range, nor a coffee-grinder, and she found salads repetitious and unnecessary. Away from the house, things were even more baffling; even the teen-age youth who accompanied the girls on a walk was an object of amused wonder. He was just an ordinary one of his species, replete with jeans, cigarette, and gun; and when he shot the head off a rabbit, the visitor was divided between admiration and loathing. After that, the hero walked behind with his bleeding trophy, so that the girls would not have to see the pitiful object. The whole matter was neatly terminated by the neighbor's dog running off with the rabbit, when the young people were in the house.

That same night, our friend the porcupine, which lives in a hollow under the garage, decided at the prowly hour to waddle over to an apple tree to pick apples. There were none. So, for some time, we watched Master Prickles go from branch to branch, pulling twigs down to an inquisitive nose. After a while, some of us went out to inspect our friend more closely, whereupon he "froze". For over an hour, until the light failed, he sat motionless on his slim perch. Finally, it became so dark that he was only a dark blur in the shadowy tree, but still he did not move. At two o'clock, the daughter of the house (who, like Mother, is a little fey in the moonlight) felt the need of nourishment, so stole down for a snack of popcorn and cookies. The porcupine was gone, but on the lawn four raccoons tumbled and played. From his vantage point on a broad sill, Peter, the cat, watched with quivering attention, his eyes popping. "Home," he seemed to say, "was never like this."

* * *

Another of the Thanksgiving week-end pleasures was the chance to see around the radio broadcasting offices in the basement of the St. Jerome hotel. I believe the program is called "Music With Mike", and it was fun to watch Mike and his colleague at work. Mike is, one judges, Irish, and his co-worker is French. Gallic enthusiasm and Hibernian wit make a formidable combination. "And they pay us for this!" chortled the disc jockey as he puts on a "platter". There was a good deal of lively repartee between the two, which did not get on the airwaves. Due to the courtesy of Mike, we saw the teletype bringing in the news, and the "library" of records, as well as the actual broadcasting room. In other words, we saw a radio broadcasting and a real, live Dee-Jay! . . The cup of the girls, already pleasantly full, threatened to brim over, so we thanked our kind, witty and handsome host and came away.

The next day was Thanksgiving, and what do you suppose we saw? We saw a foolhardy bluebird, and an optimistic strawberry blossom. On October 14. . . And, at the city home, the tomatoes continued to ripen, all unmindful of the fate ahead. . . But today, as I write, the rain drips monotonously off the roof, and only the yellow tree is gay. . . And this, as the saying goes, is where I came in.

Experiment to Preserve Apples

Penticton, B.C. (CP) — Forty thousand boxes of top-quality McIntosh apples have been "put to sleep" in special experiment chambers constructed last year at the plant of the Kelowna Growers' Exchange, Rutland, B.C., 255 miles east of Vancouver.

This is one more step in continuing work on "controlled atmosphere storage" designed to give nature an assist in keeping fruit fresh and flavorful for longer periods than now is possible.

The idea was first developed in England and is becoming more popular in eastern Canada and the United States.

Under normal storage conditions McIntosh apples begin to decline in quality within six months of entry. Under controlled atmosphere storage both quality and flavor may be maintained for considerably longer periods.

The new method slows down the respiration of the fruit by controlling dioxide-oxygen content of the air in the storage room.

Months of study by industry officials and government scientists preceded actual pilot tests made last year.

"Now the long sleep has begun and late next winter, all being well, the apples will appear on the test markets, fresher and tastier than ever," said a B.C. Tree Fruits official.

Canadian Champion Plowman

Joe Tran, of Claremont, Ont., shows the plowing form that won him the Canadian plowing championship at Simcoe, for the second time. He previously won it in 1954 and represented Canada at the world match in Sweden in 1955.

Allan Hammond, of Lachute, placed third in the event, and both men will attend the 1958 match as guests of Imperial Oil. The runner-up in the Canadian championship class, Bob Timbers, of Mount Albert, Ont., did not qualify for the European trip as no province is permitted more than one representative at the world match.

4-H Calf Club Holds Meeting

The Lachute 4-H Calf Club elected Angus Todd as secretary-treasurer, at a meeting held last Thursday in Lachute High School. The new secretary replaces Stewart Robertson, who resigned, since he is attending college and would not be able to attend meetings. A vote of thanks was extended to Stewart for so capably filling the position.

Donald Parker, president, chaired the meeting.

A motion to have all the trophies won by club members engraved was approved, and the secretary was requested to write a note of thanks to the donors of the trophies. A Christmas party was discussed, but it was decided to make final plans at the next meeting, in November.

Ross Oswald, the club leader, spoke a few words about the success of the club Achievement Day and also about the fine standing the judging team (Stewart Robertson and Donald McOuat) held in recent competitions, and the trip they won to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Farm Radio Forum Provides Much-Needed Educational Program

Farm Radio Forum, essentially an educatjonal program, is badly needed, because of the complexities of agriculture and the age in which we live. Properly organized, it can do much to further develop rural citizenship in Canada. The broadcasts can be interesting and useful in themselves, but it is the discussion group method that really gives the program its unique character and value.

Farm leaders have recognized that educational programs cannot be self-supporting; nor can they be carried on successfully without careful planning and hard work. It is to be hoped that they will do everything possible to revitalize Farm Forums in the provinces. What is even more important is for farm people everywhere to realize the splendid opportunity which exists through Farm Forum to become better informed on a wide variety of subjects of vital concern to them, and for more of them to take advantage of that opportunity, even at the expense of making some personal sacrifices.

— The Country Guide

The typical male Canadian is obviously forgetting how to use what was once the country's most universal tool — the axe, declares The Financial Post, which adds:

"Ten years ago, reports the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, factory shipments of axes and hatchets in Canada totalled well over one and a quarter millions, or about one new one for every second family. Today our consumption is away less than half of that."

New Weed Killers Undergo Tests

Trials of several new commercial compounds that kill many kinds of weed seeds as they sprout have been made this year at the Experimental Farm in Brandon, Man. These must be applied to the soil either before seeding or before the crop emerges, but it is necessary to ensure that while the chemicals are effective in killing common weeds infecting the crops, seeds of the crops are resistant to them.

Two of the compounds, when worked lightly into the soil four days before corn plants emerged, gave one hundred percent control of pigweed, stinkweed, wild buckwheat and green foxtail without apparent damage to the corn. However, only one of the chemicals proved safe for use on soybeans, while sunflowers showed little resistance.

Several other chemicals applied to the soil before the crop is seeded are being tested for the control of wild oats. They prevent the growth of wild oats to a large extent, but their use is still greatly restricted. For example, considerable extra tillage is required to work them into the soil. Also, they do not appear to be effective against wild oats after the emergence of the plants, and cereal crops cannot safely be seeded for one to three weeks after the chemical is applied.

A field on the Brandon farm badly infected with wild oats was carefully treated with one of the new chemicals two weeks prior to planting corn. The corn grew normally but wild oats were reduced by about only 40 percent.

It is evident that these compounds must be applied at the right time, using the most suitable amount of water, if in liquid form, and employing proper after-tillage to bring the active agent in the chemical in contact with the seed.

Quebec Farms 91% Electrified

Quebec (CP) — Premier Duplessis announced recently that a new power line 140 miles north of Montreal will be opened December 1, and will make the province's farms the best supplied with electricity.

At a press conference Mr. Duplessis said the line, stretching 60 miles between High Falls and Mont-Laurier, will boost the total of Quebec farms with electricity over 91 per cent — better than any other province.

Ingenuity is called for in dealing with a wasp's nest. One man who was plagued by wasps making their home under the roof of his house resourcefully pulled a transparent polythene bag over his head, put another bag on each hand (secured with rubber bands at the wrists) and removed the nest in perfect safety!

A Chain Is Only As Strong As Its Weakest Link

You know the old saying, "A chain is only as strong as its weakest link." Most of the chain may be strong enough to support a very heavy load if it were not for those weak links.

Your grain is like a chain with some weak links. That's why we say your grain alone, or EVEN WITH AN AVERAGE SORT OF CONCENTRATE, is not the complete answer to your feeding problems. It is rich in some very valuable nutrients but lacking in others.

Just as you can't make full use of the supporting power of the strong links in the chain unless the weak links are strengthened, so you can't get the full feed value of your grain unless you build up those materials in which it is lacking by means of a GOOD concentrate or supplement.

Purina Concentrates and Supplements are designed to supply the proteins, minerals and vitamins which your grain lacks and thus convert it into a well-balanced complete feed. When used with the right concentrate or supplement your grain will do its job of making milk, eggs or meal more efficiently — and because it goes further, your costs will be cut.

Whether you use a concenerate or a supplement will depend on your grain supply. If you have plenty of grain, use the concentrate, if your grain may need some "stretching" to see you through the winter, use the supplement.

Come on in, tell us what your feed situation is and what stock you have to feed, and we'll do our best to help you work out the solution to the problem.
