Brownsburg boosts property tax rate and adopts budget

At the Brownsburg Council session for February, under presidency of Mayor T. P. Hall, the budget was adopted for 1958. Estimated revenues are $41,214.25, expenditures the same, $41,214.25, and the tax rate is increased from $1.30 to $1.40.

The County Council was authorized to institute the sale of three properties for tax arrears. Accounts for the month amounted to $2,868.86 — these bills being approved for payment. Other items of business were dealt with (to be reported in next issue of The Watchman).

Councillor Ernest Ouellette was the only member absent from the Council sitting.

Boy Scouts stage annual appeal in February

Throughout Canada during the month of February, the Boy Scouts Association is conducting its annual appeal for financial support. As in previous years the Laurentian District is participating, not only on account of its local activities but in order to assist in the expansion of Scouting throughout Canada, and indeed throughout the world.

W. F. Armstrong, Laurentian District treasurer, has advised that local organizations are already at work in the various communities of the district. In Lachute, Don Heggie and Gordon Higginson are directing activities, while in Brownsburg Fred Gervais is in charge of campaign organization on behalf of the local Group Committee.

Rotary Club topic has Irish theme and speaker

Perfect attendance pins were presented to members of the Brownsburg - Lachute Rotary Club at the regular dinner meeting last Thursday — District Governor Linton W. Armstrong leading the list with eight years' perfect attendance.

Edgar Pollock was the recipient of a seven-year pin, while Vice-President Phil Grant, Wes Freeland and Larry Presseault all received five-year pins.

Dave Schwartz was presented with a four-year pin and President King Amos, Fred Royal and Bob Wyse each with three-year emblems, Leonard Wilson being the recipient of a two-year pin.

It was announced that a Fellowship Night would be held at the home of Gordon Tabrett on Thursday, February 13, after which Bob Wyse introduced Jim Whitley, a newcomer to the teaching staff at Lachute High School. The Club, added Bob Wyse, was "graced with the luck of the Irish in having him here."

A veteran of the RCAF, the guest speaker was introduced as having had a vast experience in many fields. In opening his talk, which he accompanied by slides, he stated that the two most controversial subjects of Ireland, politics and religion, would be by-passed.

Beautiful and descriptive views of both the northern and southern parts of the country were screened, including such points of interest as various famous castles; Belfast, home of the largest shipbuilding yard in the world; the upper lakes of Kilarney; Trinity College, Dublin; and "the most interesting of all things, the people."

Mr. Whitley stated that, in leaving his native land, he came to Canada because it presented a challenge to him — something that, according to this speaker, is lacking in Ireland.

Richelieu spent generously on local child welfare

At the semi-monthly meeting of the Richelieu Club, a report was given by the treasurer, which revealed accomplishments of increasing importance in the welfare work of this group.

To the benefit of underprivileged children — the prime purpose of this organization — the club spent $2,601.63 during the past year, made up as follows:

Education (scholarships and school supplies), $743.67; medical care (eyesight, dental work, hearing aid), $211.25; Christmas dinner, $243.50; miscellaneous (milk for school children, food, clothing, etc.), $1,183.41; gift to Diocesan Campaign, $200.

The biggest single undertaking of this club — the daily dispensing of milk to school children in Lachute and Ayersville — cost a total of $1,029.43. Moreover, anticipating its grant from the Federation of Charities, the Loisirs of Immaculate Conception Parish was extended a loan of $200 from the Richelieu Club.

The group, now in its sixth year, has 48 members on its roll.

Young Prog. Cons. delegates hold rally hear Diefenbaker

A total of 930 delegates from all over Canada, representing nearly all electoral constituencies, and almost 200 interested supporters, attended the Young Progressive Conservative Association's 11th annual meeting in the capital last Friday and Saturday.

Attending the meeting from this constituency was Gilbert Arnold, Jr., of Grenville, who has been for several years an active member of this organization.

Much business, and numerous resolutions, were dealt with — one of the highlights of the conference, however, being the address by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and the announcement in the Commons of the election date, March 31 — this momentous news coinciding opportunely with the young partisans' conclave to spark their enthusiasm.

The Prime Minister urged all the young supporters to return home and wage the campaign forthwith in their constituencies. . . A fact impressed by Mr. Diefenbaker was that, of the Progressive Conservative representatives in the Commons, 37 are under 40 years of age, and of these two are cabinet ministers.

Adherence to the policy of democratic representation — viz., that the party would officially recognize no candidate unless he is chosen at an advertised meeting of district delegates — was stressed in directives to the members at this conference.

More than 700 attended the supper at the Chateau, at which Mr. Diefenbaker addressed the young Conservatives, less than two hours after his election announcement. Douglas Jung, M.P., was elected president of the organization, succeeding Tom Bell, M.P.

Drivers' tests due March 11

The district registrar of automobiles, Mrs. Chas. Bedard, has been advised the "mobile clinic" for auto drivers' tests will visit Lachute on Tuesday, March 11, and will be stationed at the government garage (off Bethany Road) from 9 a.m.

Hospital benefit bingo backfires technical defects in hook-up

The hundreds who attended the giant bingo, at seven different halls in Lachute and Brownsburg, were disappointed last Friday evening when the program was curtailed through technical difficulties in the telephone hook-up.

Keener was the disappointment of Lachute Chamber of Commerce, whose executive had put an immense amount of work into this complex undertaking, enlisting the active co-operation of other groups and service clubs, all for the benefit of the Regional Hospital building fund.

However, with assurance that all defects are remedied, the hundreds of patrons will be able to use their tickets tomorrow evening (Thursday) at the same sites for a make-good performance.

To be held same time and places Thursday, Feb. 6

It appears the difficulties arose in the amplification and loud-speaker systems, and despite two hours' effort on the part of Bell Telephone technicians, clear communication between the seven halls and the central site (Lachute Auditorium) could not be established.

Event This Thursday

For the information of readers, the sites of this bingo are enumerated again: Lachute Auditorium, Knights of Columbus Hall, St. Julien Church basement, l'Ecole Supérieure, Immaculate Conception High School (Ayersville), Clément School (Ayersville) and Bouchard School (Brownsburg).

Time of the bingo is 8.30 p.m. — and in view of the many organizations contributing their efforts towards this big enterprise for the Hospital project, it is hoped the event will draw loyal public support.

New twist in advance publicity

Wide-awake publicist for the Hospital bingo, Gabriel Valois staged a novel stunt to advertise the event — having his four-year-old son, Bernard, in the role of sandwich-man with these impelling placards, to catch the eye of mill workers leaving the Ayers plant last Friday. Gabriel (right) keeps a fatherly eye on the youngster.

Argenteuil Forum views on farm marketing boards

All Argenteuil Farm Forums agreed unanimously that marketing boards can stabilize prices. Ogdensburg replied on this program topic: "Our Forum thought a marketing board should have a stabilizing effect on the price of produce we had to sell, if held over during slump periods and marketed when price recovered." Mabel Forum mentioned that a marketing board should be particularly able to stabilize prices of milk and dairy products.

If the marketing boards are to stabilize prices, then the groups pretty well agreed that they must have control of the product being marketed. Harrington thinks that, for a marketing board to control a product would be a difficult if not impossible problem. However, East Settlement emphasizes that marketing boards must have complete control of the product if they are to be effective.

The groups were about evenly divided as to whether a marketing board could increase price or not. Arundel No. 1 and Mabel branch do not believe marketing boards can increase prices. The Odgensburg group could not agree, and answered as follows: "All thought it would increase sales through more aggressive selling, but were divided over the increase in price. Some said yes, it would increase price; others were doubtful of the benefit when cost of marketing board was met." Jerusalem-Bethany argues that a marketing board could increase prices because board members would better understand what consumers need and could so advise the farmers. They stress that a board should be well managed.

All groups agreed with Brownsburg Road, that if well managed and supported, co-operatives can stabilize and increase prices. Mabel points out that co-ops do away with the middleman, the "profit getter."

* * *

Producer marketing boards, if they have sufficient control of an agricultural product, can stabilize prices and stop fluctuation and manipulation of the market by speculators, in the general opinion of the Quebec Farm Forums.

"We haven't had very much experience with marketing boards, but we do think the newly-formed one for our raw milk has been a help so far, in better test and price," was an opinion from the High and Low Forest Forum, Compton County.

Mayor emphasizes theme of National Electricity Week

The observance of National Electricity Week having been formally endorsed by Lachute Town Council, Mayor Léopold Carrière takes occasion to issue a declaration supporting this gesture, and stressing certain precautions for the public safety. Following is the Mayor's message, for February 9-15:

WHEREAS we realize the importance of electricity and its diverse applications in everyday life and industry; and the fact that it is now an essential adjunct to modern living;

AND WHEREAS, in virtue of our public role, we are called upon to remind our citizens of hazards present in the misuse or careless handling of this commodity;

AND WHEREAS, it is specifically important that wiring installations shall be adequate for the heavier demands imposed by new accessories, machines and appliances in popular use;

IT IS FITTING that, as Mayor of the Town of Lachute, we proclaim the period of February 9-15 as National Electricity Week in this community, and that we urge all public, business and social groups, private citizens and the general public, to give consideration to the activities, advices and demonstrations centred on this Utility. . . Likewise it is fitting to re-emphasize the dangers of circuits overloaded and insufficient for present needs; it is a wise precaution to engage qualified electrical contractors, members of the Master Electricians Corporation of Quebec, in matters of this kind, for the safeguarding of life and property.

$10,000 hold-up at Ste. Scholastique caisse populaire

Three masked men, one armed with a revolver, escaped with $10,000 from the Caisse Populaire at Ste. Scholastique last Friday night.

Mrs. Georgetta Lamarche, the manager, told police the men broke into the establishment through a rear door and forced her at gunpoint to open a vault containing the money.

Mrs. Lamarche said the men then tied her to her sister, with whom she had been watching television. They covered both women with a bed sheet and piled furniture on them.

The men packed the money in a valise belonging to one of the women. On their departure it took the two victims only a short time to free themselves and call the police, to whom they gave a good description of their appearance. In the meantime, however, the bandits made a clear get-away.

Lt.-Det. Albert Bisaillon, of the provincial police hold-up squad, is pressing the investigation.

Oka monks may discontinue to teach agriculture

Quebec — The Trappist fathers may soon abandon direction of the Institute of Agriculture at Oka, Agriculture Minister Laurent Barré revealed last week (according to Fernand Renault, Montreal Star correspondent at Quebec).

Speaking in the Legislative Assembly during discussion of Agriculture Department estimates for 1958-59, Mr. Barré said the Oka monks wish to abandon their teaching work to devote themselves entirely to praying and farming.

The Oka Trappist monks have been teaching agriculture since 1930. Their contact at the Institute of Agriculture expires in 1960.

The Trappists' farm at Oka has the reputation of being one of the finest in Quebec. Their cheese is considered a delicacy by gourmets.

The agriculture minister told the House he hoped the Quebec government would be able to convince the Trappist fathers to continue their teaching.

Slim enthusiasm at fish derby

President Bob Atchison of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association reported only nine members in attendance at Sunday's "through the ice" derby, which was held at La Baie, St. Placide, at considerable cost to the organization.

Prize-winners were Roland Pilon, with a six-pound pike; Wes Williams, Mr. Williams, Sr., and Mrs. Harry White, the latter three of Brownsburg.

A bean supper for some 50 persons was prepared for the nine in attendance — this being a small number of the 275 membership last year.

The Laurentian Ayrshire Breeders' Club held its annual meeting in the Lachute High School on the evening of January 21, with approximately 60 in attendance.

The guest speaker was M. R. Wilson, from the Canadian International Paper Company at Grenville. Mr. Wilson first described a goose hunting trip in which he had taken part, in the Canadian Northland last autumn. He then showed a very interesting film which he had made of the trip. Two other films were also shown, one on the formation of a Peat Bog and another which was filmed at the Lachute Spring Fair a few years ago.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Well, the rabbits are all over for another season, and to me it has been an exceptionally good one both for hunters and for rabbits. From all the reports I have received, the rabbits have been very plentiful all over Quebec this season. I had hoped to have had a few of you gents out to give them a whirl — but business before pleasure!

A very old friend of mine in Toronto, Fred Watson, dropped me a line to give me some of the dope on the Toronto Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, to be held March 14-22. There will be all kinds of exhibits and shows, so that any of you who can be around Toronto at that time would be well repaid to go and see the show. Fred is the secretary to the casting and tournament committee, but I know he will find the time to show you around if you look him up. The C.N. show is the largest sports show in the world; 400,000 square feet of exhibits. They expect a quarter of a million visitors. The profit of the show which goes back to the Conservation people is about $100,000 after expenses; naturally it is a non-profit organization. Good luck to them on their show this year! When you think back a few years, it's hard to realize just how much work and effort have gone into this show in aid of conservation. The whole of the country is interested in keeping what we have, and trying to improve on it if at all possible.

Well, we got the Fishing Derby going last Sunday. The weather couldn't have been better — a very beautiful day. The attendance from the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association was terrific, we had the great crowd of nine members fishing! And to make it just a little more emphatic on the sportsmen around our district, two of the nine were of the weaker sex, Mrs. E. Cribb and Mrs. H. White. The weaker sex — ha! At least, even with the very poor showing of the Fish and Game Association, we did have a very nice time at the supper. A chance to meet some very nice people. I guess that is about all that can be said about this at the present time. A great Association though! The prizes, donated by the only ones who seem to try and help at any time, were from Leonard Bedard, Molson's representative, and Frank Bedard, of the Sports Centre. They were won by Rolly Pilon, of the post office, Wes Williams one, and his dad one. Mrs. White wound up the prizes by taking the last. MY thanks go out to the members who took the time and trouble to come out and see what the Association was doing. Also to George Jackson, who gave up his fishing to stay with me on the gate from 9 a.m. until after 3 p.m. There were some good fish caught on the ice; the biggest was a pike taken by R. Pilon, which weighed in at 6 lbs even; a very nice fish. Some of the others on the ice had very good catches; very nice perch were on the move, and if you happened to get into a school of them, it was a lot of fun. George and self covered the whole area and saw some of the fishermen tearing around looking after the lines as though they were rockets.

I got a report last week about that bull moose that was hanging around last fall. It's still around. I sure am pleased to hear that none of our sportsmen managed to shoot it. They wouldn't do that. (Not much.) Maybe the cow is also around; it would be a great thing if moose came back to this area. I have been told that there were a number of these animals around Argenteuil County at one time. I know the deer are very plentiful this winter. On numerous occasions when up after rabbits there have been sounds of deer all around the bush. Not many were seen by me, but on tips passed on, there are a lot in the area. What with the abundance of partridge, rabbits, foxes, etc., it could be that Nature is using her cycle once again. It is queer how for a few years there will be nothing, then all at once, plenty. The time does not seem to follow any set pattern; some say it does, some no. Whoever is right, I don't know; but one thing is sure, there are times of plenty and times of dearth.

You fishermen better get going on all the new tackle you want. Now is the time to start on it. The bank roll doesn't get hurt as much when you start now. By the time the season opens you will have all your tackle. About this time of the year the bug starts to get you, and that's it. Well, it does me. But joking aside, start to get some tackle now, and see how fast it makes the winter go. . . Any of you fly men been out trying your outfits? I'm not crazy; I really mean it! After all, a little cold never stopped a fly fisherman from practising.

The next meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association is on the 17th of February, in the Legion Hall, Lachute. I don't think very many people will be out, but for the ones that do take the time, we are trying to get some movies that will be worth seeing. A few of the members wanted a speaker to give us a talk, but from the previous turnouts when we have had speakers, the directors are ashamed to ask anyone else. From my point of view, the only thing for the Association now is to fold up as gracefully as possible. (Another thought — at the derby, the town of Lachute had two members there. Very good show, wasn't it!)

Hockey

On Wednesday, January 29 Brownsburg administered another stinging defeat to Lachute Senior hockey boys, 6-1. Jack Lavis scored Lachute's solitary goal.

More support is urged for the hockey team, as local attendance at these games has been very low.

Monkland Visitors at Lachute

Lachute played host to basketball teams from Monkland High, of Montreal, last Saturday.

Honors were shared. The boys lost their game 31-56. Del MacTavish, Wayne Bradford and Kenny Underhill were the local stars.

The girls won their game, 38-20; Betty Underhill, Jean Taylor and Roslyn Croucher were awarded the stellar honors.

O.V.S.A.A. League Games At Grenville

The Senior boys lost their game 28-31, the stars going to Wayne Bradford, Kenny Underhill and Art Gauley. However, the Junior boys managed to win their contest, 29-23.

Lachute Junior girls lost 17-8; while the Senior girls compensated for this loss by winning 38-24. In the latter game the stars went to Betty Underhill, Jean Taylor and Lois Silverson.

Ice Carnival

On Friday, February 7, there will be an ice carnival and dance at Lachute High School.

The program will start at 7 p.m. with skating, to be followed by costume judging, races, a special attraction and dance.

The "special attraction" will be broomball games between the members of the staff and Grade X pupils.

Fined for defiance of game warden

On October 2 last Game Warden Simon Ouellet, on duty as gatekeeper at the Duquesne Club in Rimouski County, was prevented from carrying out his duties by a man armed with an axe, when he asked to search the automobile which the defendant was driving. Suspected of carrying illegal game in his car, Lionel Gagnon was asked to open up his car in accordance with regulations applying to the premises. The man refused to obey the game warden's order and produced an axe with which he threatened the officer if he approached closer to the car.

Appearing before Judge G. E. Blanchard of the Magistrate's Court at Rimouski, Gagnon was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs, or to spend 15 days in jail.

Drawing a conclusion in this case, Judge Blanchard remarked that game wardens, like all law officers, must be respected and, when on duty, sportsmen must obey them in all matters governed by hunting and fishing regulations.

Dow team breaks three records in Laurentian league

Rolling their highest triple score since entering the Laurentian League play, the local Dow squad claimed a 7-0 victory against the formidable Golden Ale team of St. Jerome, leaders of the league.

The Lachute boys exceeded their previous high record of 2900 with a remarkable triple of 2977 — which is only 30 points less than the St. Jerome top team record of 3007.

Bowling single scores of 946 and 974, Lachute hit their peak in the third round, to score 1057, against 1051 by St. Jerome. . . Don Cockburn 156, Denis Brunette 168, Jacques Brasseur 143, André Delauriers 181, Marcel Brunette 242 and Howard Ward 167, combined their efforts for this brilliant performance.

In this game Marcel Brunette hit a new high individual single and triple, with 242 single to outstrip the single score held by Andy Snee of Ste. Rose, 239. In the triple bracket his sparkling 627 exceeded the record of 612 held by Roland Léonard of St. Jerome.

The previous week, despite a fine showing of 514 by Howard Ward, Lachute lost their encounter with Ste. Rose 5-2. For the latter team, Snee rolled 527 (239 single) and Pierre Blain a single of 200.

Quebec-Ontario trophy to Brownsburg Bombers

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg Bombers, already sure of the league championship before Sunday's game, celebrated with a 15-goal splurge against Alexandria. Only individual honors were at stake, and Brownsburg's forwards certainly played as if they were out to win the scoring championships.

Jacques Racine and André Ouellette staged a show with the able assistance of Bil Dimmock, which was reminiscent of their best, and probably their most productive ever. Each picked up four goals and three assists. Bill scored once and assisted on four of the other goals.

Brownsburg's high-scorer, Jean Guy Renaud, scored two goals and two assists to boost his season's output to a lofty 33 points from 18 games. Honoré Norbonne matched Renaud's performance.

Gaetan Legressly earned the playmaker award as his four assists raised to 19 his play-making credits. Gaetan has only six goals, but his assist record is in a class by itself.

Brownsburg started off poorly, and were two goals in arrears halfway through the first period. They started to roll, however, in the late stages of that period and scored seven times before Alexandria's high-scoring machine came back for one more.

By the middle of the third period the score was 12-3, and Brownsburg was scoring almost at will. Lebrun, of Alexandria, who had already assisted on each of his team's three goals, fired a hat-trick in a minute-and-a-half to make the score much more presentable. The final outcome was 15-7.

Between the second and third periods the League president presented to Jules Biron the Malacket Trophy for winning the league championship. The play-offs started on Tuesday. Brownsburg visited Ste. Anne's on Tuesday, February 4, then receive the same team on Thursday and Sunday, the 6th and 9th. The series is best-of-seven, with territorial advantage going to Brownsburg.

Excessive speed of trains

TOWNS AND VILLAGES should be watching with interest for developments following a recent recommendation to the Ottawa Board of Control, to the effect that a brake be put on trains within city limits.

The recommendation followed an inquest into the death of an Ottawa resident at which a railway locomotive engineer testified that trains could travel up to 80 miles an hour within the city limits.

Towns along the lakeshore have had similar troubles, and we have been led to believe that a speed by-law for trains exists in several Quebec municipalities.

It is true that there are two sides to every story, but if road traffic is curbed at 30 m.p.h. within town limits, it is foolish to allow trains to race into and out of a community at speeds up to 85 miles an hour.

Lachute has had its share of railway crossing accidents, as have other surrounding municipalities, and if something can be done to slow down the trains within the town limits, we feel such action should be taken. At least it is worth considerable study on the part of Council.

Who's drooling!

ACCORDING TO our friend Isaak Hunter, "Rod and Gun" man for The Montreal Gazette, we've "got a real rabies scare going up at Lachute" — his implication being that The Watchman is more or less responsible.

Mr. Hunter's quotations from this journal are substantially correct, but his conclusions are NOT. "It is estimated the infection has spread to 95 per cent of foxes roaming in this area", he quotes — adding also, "What may have been the origin of that estimate of the percentage of infection is not stated. One thing we know is that a state verging on hysteria attends any suggestion of an epidemic of rabies. People conjure up visions of mad dogs and mad men rushing up and down the village street frothing at the mouth, snapping at everybody and everything."

We are sorry to dispel this illusion; but people hereabouts have no such visions. Perhaps it is only city folk who approach a state of hysteria on rumors of rabies. Out here, however, we are faced with the facts of many positive diagnoses in areas surrounding Lachute. The estimate of 95 per cent infection among foxes was made by the Federal Livestock veterinarian who came here from Montreal to arrange for inoculation clinics. The same official was here again last week, and around that time was organizing a clinic in a more urgent area, at St. Jovite.

Equally positive is evidence that domestic pets and livestock have been bitten by foxes. Therefore the only logical precautions — an approaching clinic here and the regulation regarding dogs (that those not inoculated after this date must be kept housed or on leash) — which, after all, is no more drastic than by-laws effective in many urban and suburban districts. . . Altogether, we would say that everything is in order; no complacency, but certainly no hysteria or panic — here at least.

Moreover, perhaps Isaak Hunter will recall, it was in Montreal that the clinics for domestic pets first made the news. (November 9-11, 1957: "Montreal — All dogs in Greater Montreal may have to be vaccinated against rabies, because one dog has been found suffering from the disease. . . Now authorities are combing Argenteuil County area for animals or anyone who might have contacted the dog there.") This sensation followed reports of domestic animals infected in the summer resort area — in this instance, 16 Island Lake.

The incidence of rabies (and we term it even the "epidemic", at the risk of appearing hysterical) has since approached and surrounded this area; the federal authorities are acting accordingly, and our municipal police are issuing directives on their request and under their more experienced guidance.

In one detail we heartily endorse Isaak Hunter, who states: "The situation being what it is, it would seem that the overworked federal veterinarians might be given enough help of a clerical nature to make possible a regular and orderly report on causes, places and dates of suspects reported, and positive cases found."

The Press as mirror of business

BUSINESS NEWS affects the economy of Canada to a high degree, and businessmen are obligated to co-operate with the press by giving them newsworthy information—Ira G. Needles, president of B. F. Goodrich Canada Limited, told the Brantford Board of Trade recently.

"Newspapers are determined to present both sides of any situation, but businessmen must learn to trust and respect the press and not hide behind the deplorable phrase 'no comment'," said Mr. Needles. He urged business and industrial leaders to take the press into their confidence.

"The news story will appear in the news columns, but product and sales stories belong in the paid advertising columns", said this executive. (And in lowbrow colloquial terms, Mr. Needles can say that again!)

Moreover, this speaker predicted a consumer "break-through" of major proportions early in the second half of the year. "Industry is presently gearing for high production and we are optimistic about future business levels. Canadians are demanding a higher standard of living, and business spokesmen will be doing a real service to the nation by talking confidently about their plans for growth and prosperity. Through the business columns of the press, a re-kindling of the spark of faith in Canada's progress could take place," he stated. He urged the members of the Board of Trade to "stand up and be counted" in expressing their views on community problems with courage and conviction through the media of the press.

Breakfast debate

AN OFFICIAL suggestion that Frenchmen should switch to English-style breakfast as an industrial safety measure, will draw little more than a cynical curl of the lips in the country of haute cuisine.

If there is one thing the two peoples can't agree on, it's breakfast!

The French settle for croissants and black coffee, acrid symbol of continental apartness. Sometimes the coffee is laced with rum. Real eating comes later.

In England, it's a cooked breakfast every time. After cereal or grapefruit, family men insist on bacon and eggs. The trenchermen like sausages and fried tomatoes as well.

On British trains bringing vacationists back from France, the dining car does a brisk breakfast business. "Oh, mummy!" young England breathes in ecstasy after three famished weeks in France, "a real English breakfast at last!"

Now the child's heartfelt cry has been echoed in France, of all places. A medical survey showed that the energy of French workers is at its lowest ebb around 11 a.m., making them more accident-prone than their English counterparts.

So, the doctors urged, why not try a bigger, English-style breakfast? . . . The response is hardly likely to be enthusiastic.

In French eyes, commented the News Chronicle, a London newspaper, the Anglo-Saxon breakfast is a symbol of depravity. . . "While France must make sacrifices to survive her troubles, there are depths to which she would never sink," said the paper. "A British cooked breakfast is certainly one of them."

Uptrend in life expectancy

THE NEW-BORN male in Canada can now expect to live until he is 67.6 years of age.

Measured by the expectation of life, this is a gain for boys of 7.6 years since 1931, according to a study made by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

A girl's expectation at birth is 73 years, a gain of almost 11 years since 1931.

In Canada, as in many other countries, the expected life span at birth has been increasing more rapidly for females than for males, further widening the sex difference in longevity.

The 1958 baby's chance of dying during his first year is greater than in any subsequent year until his late 60's. Having survived the relatively difficult first year, at one year of age, a boy may on the average expect to live to age 70, and a girl to 75. This represents a gain for a boy of 2.4 years more than his expectation at birth, and 2 years for a girl.

Young adults can also expect to live longer, thanks to progress in life conservation.

In the last quarter century, the average remaining lifetime among males of age 20 increased 2.2 years. Among females at age 20 it increased 6 years.

The improvement in life expectancy is due mainly to the substantial reduction in recent years of infant mortality and deaths from infectious diseases. On the other hand, diseases associated with middle and old age, are much less amenable to control.

What is "the Main John"?

"The Main John" is a term now widely used to designate the manager of a big lumbering concern. Originally it was the nickname of John B. Glazier, a lumberman of Lincoln, New Brunswick. Born in 1809, he began lumbering early in life and as his operations expanded he took his brothers Stephen, Duncan and Benjamin into partnership. Theirs was at one time the largest such business in New Brunswick, employing over 600 men. Its operations continued for nearly a century, and for much of the time they were directed by John Glazier himself. He is thought to have been the first to conduct a lumber drive over Grand Falls and the first white man to explore the Squatook Lakes. In 1868 he was called to the Canadian Senate.

This is the pre-dawn of the Space Age

Spaceward Ho!

[Contributed by Norman Thorburn]

One tenet of the Buddhist's creed is this: to live is to suffer. Now, if we examine this doctrine closely, we will see that it is true. We often say that life is a struggle. All struggling involves suffering or pain. Indeed, pain may be said to be the penalty for living. The sense of pain is the sharpest and most primitive of all our feelings.

The pain of a hungry stomach drove primitive man to work, and it is still a great incentive to endeavor. We struggle to avoid future pain. . .

It was painful to see the Russians surpass us in the science of rocketry.

In the days of Elizabeth the Great, Britain strove to overtake the Spaniards in colonizing and exploring America. The cry then was "Westward Ho!" Today the cry is "Spaceward Ho!"

This is the pre-dawn of the Space Age. Tonight, I can still look at the untrammeled surface of the moon, untarnished and unspoiled by the hand of man. But the Soviets say that this year they will send a rocket to the moon, and also will take television pictures of the hitherto-unseen side of the moon by means of a rocket.

The nation that controls the moon will control the earth. It is the finest space station imaginable!

But, alas, the moon will never be the same. The moon that Shelley called "that orbèd maiden with white fire laden," will be a station from which signals of every color will emanate. Poets and lovers will no longer have any use for it. It will no longer be the lamp of love.

The first contact of man with the moon will not be a gentle embrace, but a kiss of death, an atomic explosion from a rocket's warhead.

Too bad; the moon has kindly watched the progress of man since his remote fish-like ancestors crawled from the seas, to bask in the sun, on the alluvial soil of the newly emerged land. Man still bears in his anatomical structure the unmistakable evidence that his remote ancestors were creatures of the sea.

Once, I was fishing off the shore at Caughnawaga, when a tall, grave-faced Indian came down to the shore. "Don't cast your shadow on the water, boys! You will never catch fish that way. Don't you know a fish has a spirit, just like you have? You must fool his spirit. Hide behind a rock, if you want to catch one. . .

"I am American Horse, Chief of the Mohawks here," the Indian confided . . The Mohawks, the bravest of the Iroquois, whose descendants erect the steel skeletons for New York's skyscrapers, where few white men care to work. American Horse's portrait hangs in the finest art salons in Europe. He married a Dutch lady.

There are precious minerals, gold and uranium, in the moon. An atomic explosion would show this to onlookers on the earth, by means of a spectroscope. Man is planning to fly through inter-planetary space, beyond the outermost planet orbiting around our sun and out into outer-space — who knows, perhaps to Alpha Centauri, our nearest astral neighbor.

But, remember, man is an earthling and a "sunling". His body has been conditioned by millions of years of life on this planet. Where will he find conditions for life, like he has here? Certainly not in our planetary system. Perhaps on one of the planets of the distant stars, but that would take generations of space travel in a space-ship.

It is strange that man, aching to try his new-found wings, and planning to leave his old nest the earth, should also, at the same time, be threatening to foul that nest, and destroy all earthlings by modern war.

We grossly underestimated the Russians. Forty years ago, in nearly all Canadian and American newspapers they were caricatured and lampooned as unshaven, unshorn, unwashed yokels and barbarians; today we are seeking crumbs from their scientific table.

But the modern rocket was perfected by the Germans, and the Germans, no doubt, helped to put the sputniks into orbit.

Hugh McLennan says we cannot have sputnik and Christ. I don't believe this; I think Christianity will survive. Many modern scientists, and especially Russian scientists, are dialectic materialists, agnostics and atheists. You cannot convert these men probably, with the Bible; but if you can give them scientific evidence, they will believe.

We know today that matter is a form of energy. Without the electron, a particle of that energy, we cannot have light, life, much less spirituality. As I have said before, the electron can put intelligence into a machine.

A doctor can cut with his scalpel through the chest of a man to the thoracic cavity, and by slitting the membrane of the pericardium, he can reach in and stop the beating of the heart for some seconds. Then by massaging the heart he can make it go again.

But once the life-giving current of electricity that runs through every living cell in the body, ceases to exist — that man is dead, and dead beyond recall.

If we timed the weight of the universe by the square of the speed of light, we should get the amount of energy in the universe — according to Einstein. From this energy, or power, comes light, life, intelligence and spirituality. Rightly or wrongly, I believe this is the Power of God, and I believe the energy or power of the universe is the outpouring or emanations of the Mind of our Creator.

But who am I to criticize Hugh McLennan, the brilliant writer and theologian — a Presbyterian minister, I believe.

I am a mere farmer, a performer of menial tasks, a cleaner of stables, a herder of cows, a peasant, a digger of ditches, a hewer of wood — even though I turn the earth with furrows, that man may have tomorrows.

However, some of my antecedants were just as important men as Hugh McLennan, and belonged to the Presbyterian ministery too.

My great-great-great-grandfather was the first man to preach from a Protestant pulpit in a Protestant church in Quebec Province. He was the Rev. John Young, the pastor of the St. Gabriel's Presbyterian Church, which opened its doors in 1792. Mr. Percival Molson, assistant general manager of Molson's Brewery, tells me they have receipts for the renting of pews, and for subscriptions to that church, donated by John Molson over 165 years ago.

My great-grandfather's brother was Dr. John Thorburn, a distinguished theologian of the Presbyterian faith, who was also principal of the Ottawa Collegiate during the last half of the 19th century. When King Edward VII came to Ottawa in 1867, the year of Confederation, Dr. John Thorburn was chosen to deliver the address of welcome.

We must fight dialectic materialists, with a language they understand—science. Our native Indians, untrained and untaught, instinctively believed in God. My old friend and mentor, American Horse, was not wrong. A fish has a spirit. If you would catch one, hide behind a rock.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Two print shops

In an effort to get a print job done during the busy holiday season, I visited two print shops and was greatly struck by the difference between them.

Their machines were much the same; but the tempo of activity was strikingly different. The first shop was a leisurely, slow-paced, slap-happy operation. At the counter, the man said, "Nooo . . . don't think we could handle that now. You should of come earlier . . holidays and all . . . " The second shop looked, sounded, and was a going concern, with machines clicking at full speed, operators chipper and active. At the counter, the man said — with a wide grin — "If you'll leave it with us, we'll do our darndest. . . Hey, Charlie!"

Charlie came over and the man said, "Think we could get this out for the man? He's in a bit of a spot . . . "

Charlie asked me a few quick questions about type face, deadline, color, and willingness to pay a bit of overtime if need be. Then he said, "We'll do our best — I think we can handle it by the deadline; I'll guarantee it for the 28th, though."

They did the job, sent a car for me to come and read proof right in the shop, and there was no overtime required. I started to thank the boss profusely. He said, "You really ought to thank Charlie — but the best way to thank us is with your next print job." He said it with a grin, of course, but he meant it and he'll get my next print job and I'll have it at his shop at the earliest possible moment.

One other thing about those two shops has stuck in my mind ever since.

That was the expression on the faces of the boys and girls at work. In the leisurely shop, they looked gloomy, tired, unhappy. In the fast-moving set-up, they looked alert, happy, enterprising.

I'm convinced that in an organization where everyone is going full tilt against deadlines, there is more genuine goodwill and fine spirit than you find in situations where workers just aren't doing their best. When everyone's on his toes, snapping into the job, there's an inescapable spirit of zest and pep.

I may be wrong, but I'd be willing to make a bet that the men in shop one feel more tired at the end of the day than the chaps in shop two!

IMPETUOUS

Sir Anthony Eden's father, Sir William Eden, was an irascible old gentleman. Once, he ripped down from his wall a barometer indicating "fair" weather and flung it out into the rain, shouting, "There, you damned fool, see for yourself!"

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

The Western rocket research program is separating the men from the boys. And the boys appear to be ahead.

The news from the adult class at Cape Canaveral sounds some better. But almost every day we hear about a hobby group of 17-year olds who launched a rocket that soared several miles into the air and came back to bury itself a foot deep in solid concrete.

Don't be surprised next Hallowe'en if you see a physicist and a general or two making the "trick-or-treat" rounds with the kids and helping them light Roman candles, to observe their technique.

So far the home-made rockets have landed mostly in fields and swamps. Sooner or later one of them will whistle through a roof and carve a tunnel through an old gentleman's skull.

What a triumph it will be for the high school scientists if one of their number carries out the first study of the effects of a missile on shingles, and also on flesh and bone.

The authorities have been narrow-minded about granting the teen-aged set permission to experiment with deadly weapons. But if the children make a success of rockets, they may be turned loose next on machine guns, depth charges, and poison gas.

Caution will have to be used, of course. I don't think the youngsters should be allowed to put together a nuclear bomb until they reach Grade 11 at least.

If there is a society for the prevention of cruelty to poets, it should take action at once against radio announcers who read poetry on the air without once mentioning the poet's name.

No doubt the listeners are supposed to run away with the idea that the verses are a little thing the announcer dashed off between commercials.

So far I've not heard of any commercial radio announcer failing to give credit to the sponsor. The only way that Longfellow, Shakespeare, James Whitcomb Riley and the rest of the public-domain crowd can get a plug in the air is to buy some time.

You only get what you pay for in this world. Let those neglected bards put themselves right with the front office, and the radio audience will soon be hearing about them. I wish they would get on with it. I want to hear a radio announcer urging me to hurry on down to my neighborhood book store and buy some Edgar A. Guest, the poet-master with the new miracle ingredient.

Citizens Build Own Bridge Across River

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — The Sturgeon Weir River has been bridged for the first time by a group of do-it-yourself Flin Flon and Creighton, Sask., volunteers, who accomplished the feat in four week-ends of hard work.

A truck and several cars drove across the 250-foot bridge to start its use after Mayor Frank Dembinsky of Flin Flon and Mayor Fred Robinson of Creighton sawed a log, to open it officially.

The bridge is 35 miles west of Flin Flon and joins with a road that was opened last winter to connect No. 35 highway at White Fox, Sask., 150 miles southwest of Flin Flon. Opening of the bridge eliminates an eight-mile drive over ice on Beaver Lake.

In 1948, about 35 miles of highway was built from Flin Flon to the Sturgeon Weir River. At the same time about 60 miles of the highway was built from White Fox, leaving 90 miles to be completed to join the Creighton - Flin Flon base metal mining area with the Saskatchewan highway system.

Since then, the people of the area tried without success to persuade the Saskatchewan government to complete the highway.

Last winter they began a do-it-yourself project, raising $7,000 from merchants and businessmen in the towns affected and with much of the work done by volunteers, drove a winter road to the Sturgeon Weir.

With no bridge across the river, which does not freeze in winter at its mouth, motorists had to drive over eight miles of Beaver Lake to hit the Flin Flon road.

It was felt that a bridge across the river would enable traffic to begin much earlier this winter. Jack Russell, 65, once a bridge builder for Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, was hired to design the bridge.

Fifteen piers were built, placed in the river and filled with rock to hold them in place. On top of these went 30,000 feet of timber cut from the surrounding woods. An estimated 350 tons of rock were hauled to the site by volunteer truckers and some 2,000 miscellaneous items have gone into the 250-foot span.

Lachute girl wed in W. End parish church

Marchand - McDonald

The marriage of Mildred, daughter of Mrs. John McDonald, to Mr. André Marchand, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Marchand, took place at 10 a.m. Saturday, February 1, at the St. Julien Church — the Rev. Father Adrien Giard officiating.

White pompoms and palms were used to decorate the sanctuary.

The bride, given away by her uncle, Mr. Lucien Guérin, was in a gown of white poult-de-soie fashioned with a fitted bodice embroidered with seed pearls and sequins, having a portrait neckline and long sleeves, and a very full skirt. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Elaine McDonald, sister of the bride, was maid-of-honor, wearing a bouffant frock of pure silk in royal blue, with a matching headdress, and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink pompoms.

Messrs. Paul Marchand and Jean Guérin, cousin and brother of the groom, respectively, acted as ushers.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of Swiss lace in teal shade, and ice-pink straw hat; her corsage bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. Marchand, mother of the bridegroom, wore a pink frock of Chantilly lace, with a matching hat, and a spray of Sweetheart roses.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Marchand left by plane for New York and Washington, the bride travelling in a brown Irish tweed suit with beige accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Montreal.

Through the generous offerings during the Week of Prayer services the Association has been able to make contributions to the World Evangelical Alliance, the Quebec Temperance League, the Save the Children Fund, Red Cross Hungarian Relief, the Institute for the Blind, the Bible Society, the Salvation Army and the Mission to Lepers. This is in addition to the offerings specially marked for the Orange and Protestant Children's Home and the Bible Society (Brownsburg Branch).

Arrangements are being made to show some Temperance films in the district.

St. Francis (St. Sauveur) church hall campaign is fully subscribed

Morin Heights — The closing dinner for the St. Francis Church Hall campaign was held in Piedmont on Saturday evening. The honorary-treasurer, Mr. Talbot Nelles, reported that $23,100 had been subscribed against the objective of $22,300, and it was expected a large number would still wish to contribute. He reported also that 222 people had donated this amount.

Mr. Chipman H. Drury, chairman, expressed his pleasure at the success of the campaign, and the same opinion was voiced by his co-chairman, Mrs. John H. Molson.

Dr. Victor Jekyll, chairman of the Building Committee, added that one donor wished to donate most of the logs, and that the architect, Mr. Edwin Bamberger, would have plans ready for the Advisory Board within a short time. Mr. P. Hall is consulting engineer for the project.

The rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, summed up his feelings by saying the campaign had brought many of the city and rural people together, and had strengthened and increased his congregation at Saint Francis.

Skiers' Service on radio broadcast

The Skiers' Service at the Church of St. Francis, St. Sauveur, this Sunday will be re-broadcast over CJAD (800) beginning at 10.30 p.m. A special choir made up of 40 voices will lead the singing.

HAPPENED IN CHURCH

The Reader's Digest describes a quiet Sunday morning in an Ontario church, as reported in the Kitchener-Waterloo Record.

"The choir began the recessional, singing as they marched in unison up the centre aisle. The last young lady in the women's section was wearing a pair of shoes with slender heels. The heel of one shoe sank through a hole in the hot-air register.

"Without missing a step, she slipped her foot out of her shoe and continued. There wasn't a break in the recessional.

"The first man following her reached down, and, without losing a beat, picked up her shoe. The entire grate came with it. Startled, but still singing, he continued up the aisle, bearing one grate, one shoe.

"Never a break in the recessional. Everybody singing. Everything moving like clockwork. And then, in tune and in time to the beat, the next man stepped into the open register."

Cherry Blossom Time in Japan

Japan Tourist Association

SPRING PREVIEW—Winter winds may still be blowing, but Cherry Blossom Time is just around the corner in Japan. Come March, and Japan's sacred mountain — Fujiyama — will be framed in pale pink blossoms as in the above photo.

While cherry trees grow all over Japan, there are particulary beautiful groves outside Kyoto, Tokyo and at Yoshino where the immense number of trees cover an entire valley and mountainside with clouds of blossoms. These trees are the "ancestors" of those presented to the United States in 1912 and which bloom along the Potomac River and the Tidal Basin in Washington, D.C. early each spring.

ABUNDANT LIFE BY ORAL ROBERTS

THERE'S A WAY WHERE THERE'S A WILL

The crowd is so densely packed that no one can get through. Four men stand at the edge of the overflow carrying a paralyzed man on a hammock slung between them. We don't know how or why they happen to be together except that they have one purpose. However, one thing is sure—one of their number is suffering and these four are determined to help him find deliverance from his sickness.

Begging, pleading, trying to press through, they find their way completely blocked — and yet—they are not blocked! For where there is a will there is a way! And there is a way where there is a will to find it.

One of them is lifted to the roof by the others. Then he takes the hand of another and helps him up. These two in turn seize the arms of the paralyzed man and pull him up and finally the other two are on the roof. Then, they tear a hole in it, lower the hammock in their strong hands and lo, the man found his healing!

This story I have just related happened nearly 2,000 years ago, but read about a similar one—a twentieth century miracle that happened in one of our Crusades:

"This was the closing night of the Oral Roberts Crusade in Danville, Virginia. It looked as though it was my last and only chance to be healed.

"I had been wounded in World War II. For twelve years I had struggled through the streets of my home town, burdened with a brace and cane, dragging along a useless, shrunken leg.

"I stood in the congregation; the hopelessness of my condition engulfed me. The uselessness of trying to get into the prayer line shrouded my mind. 'After all,' I thought, 'who am I among so many who need healing?'

"I listened to the message. Finally came the long awaited moment—the prayer line.

"I had given up all hope of having Brother Roberts pray for my healing—I couldn't even get in the line. But an inner compunction convinced me that Jesus knew my name.

"I sat in my chair watching the long line and meditating upon these things. Suddenly he stopped praying for people and said, 'If there is an afflicted person here, place your hand on the afflicted part of your body and pray with me the prayer of faith —God will heal you.'

"I placed my hand upon my shriveled, lifeless leg and called upon God with a sincere heart. Before I finished praying, the power of God rocketed through my leg with such force and energy that it snapped the straps that held the brace. God had instantly straightened my leg and healed me!"

There is much more to the great testimony just quoted, but I want you to know this—you can reach Christ for yourself and others if you really mean business. Know this: If any two agree in prayer upon a wholesome thing and never give up their faith in God, the results are guaranteed.

The Local Farm Scene

10-TIME WINNER

For the tenth time, T. S. Aicken of Belton, Ont., has won top prize in the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario contest. The judging this season, was done, at Hamilton.

Two awarded farm bursaries

Ottawa — Two young Canadian farmers, Stewart Van Petten of Ohaton, Alberta, and Chas. Gallagher, of Centreville, N.B., have been awarded the Lord Nuffield Foundation farm scholarships for 1958, providing them with a six-months sojourn in the United Kingdom for a study of British agriculture. The awards have been announced by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture at Ottawa, which sponsors the project in Canada on behalf of the Foundation.

The two young farmers will leave at the end of February for overseas. They will be required to work for a month on a selected British farm, the balance of their scholarship period being spent in a tour of the United Kingdom, with visits to agricultural exhibitions, livestock centres, agricultural colleges, etc., for special studies.

Stewart Van Petten, the successful candidate from Ohaton, Alberta, is 30 years of age, married with a family. He is a former 4-H club member, a graduate of the School of Agriculture at Olds, Alberta, and has been farming for 20 years.

Chas. Gallagher, of Centreville, N.B., is 32 years of age, and operates a farm of 350 acres, considered a large farm enterprise in the Maritimes. He graduated from the N.S. college of agriculture and at Macdonald College at Ste. Anne's; he has been very active in farm organization work, having been president of his local co-operative, and of the N.B. Holstein Breeders.

"Good Earth" is theme of 1958 National Salon of Agriculture

By G. Toupin, President

Agriculture ranks foremost this year in our worried minds, most likely because of the difficulties it has to cope with; but its importance seems greater yet due to the fact of the increasing lack of employment among the working class of our urban communities, the good customers of the farm. This seriously emphasizes the importance of agricultural production, and calls our attention to that "Good Earth of Ours." The 1958 National Salon of Agriculture has chosen this theme so that all may appreciate its value.

However, our Good Earth is possessive and rather jealous, it will not tolerate the least betrayal without retaliating and taking its revenge. This is why farmers will want to profit by this week of the Salon (February 13-23) so that they may, from the varied exhibits on display, rekindle their professional pride, their loyalty to the earth; improve their approach to it through modern technical knowledge which will finally find its expression in a larger but less expensive agricultural production. Urban citizens will visit the '58 Salon to better understand how intricate our modern agriculture has turned out to be, and better appreciate the resources of that Good Earth of Ours, whose bounty is available on our markets.

With such aims in view, the '58 Salon offers a highly educational program for all, men and women, young and less young. The most instructive collection of exhibits ever seen will be on display. Some will illustrate the main aspects of our modern agriculture, which requires more and more capital in line with its technical progress; others will reveal a thousand secrets and pleasant characteristics of rural life. Contests and demonstrations will take place, parades, the crowning of queens, reception of visitors from home and abroad, the election and crowning of the rural family of the year.

The 1958 Salon of Agriculture has been organized in the best interests of citizens both rural and urban, but also as a homage to the Good Earth, source of our essential resources.

Farm opinions, are they heard?

Have you ever wondered what happens to the ideas and resolutions presented at local farm meetings? Are farm organizations doing the job as far as representing the farmer's opinions is concerned? Have you ever attended a meeting of a national farm organization? Norn Garriock, CBC farm broadcaster from Toronto, attended the recent meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture in Montreal. He was trying to view the meeting with the eyes of a farmer from any part of Canada. On February 10 he will present these views from coast to coast.

Farm Forum topics as well as the latest news and developments in Canadian agriculture came up for discussion at the CFA meeting. These will be reviewed and commented upon by Mr. Garriock on National Farm Radio Forum at 8.30 on February 10.

Confinement vs. range rearing of pullets

Rearing replacement pullets in confinement is now a common practice among poultrymen. Recent work at the Experimental Farm, St. John's West, Newfoundland, shows that this is a sound procedure, says Superintendent H. W. R. Chancey. In this experiment pullets reared in confinement produced more eggs on less feed per dozen eggs than pullets reared on grass range.

In a laying trial covering a period of fourteen months 360 incross hybrid hens reared in confinement were compared with 360 hens from the same hatch reared on grass range. Average egg production of the birds reared in confinement was 65 per cent compared with 62 per cent for birds reared on range. The birds reared in confinement also required less feed per dozen eggs — 4.8 pounds as compared with 5.1 pounds. Egg size apparently was not affected by the methods of rearing and mortality was much lower for the confinement reared birds during the laying period.

It would appear from this experiment that in areas where range is at a premium, confinement rearing of pullets is not only practical but may also be advantageous.

The experiment will be concluded at the end of two laying periods (approximately 23 months) to assess the full effect of these two rearing methods.

FEWER FARMERS

There will be fewer farms but much greater production per farm 25 years from now, predicts the special study on Canadian Agriculture prepared for the Gordon Commission. There will be more emphasis on livestock, less on wheat.

Most serious observers will agree with those conclusions, declares the Financial Post. The trend has been in that direction for years. Under the circumstances governments and farm organizations would be wise to frame their long range policies to fit the inevitable transition. Costly and short-sighted moves, such as guaranteeing prices at unrealistic levels, can only halt temporarily a natural development.

Big upsurge seen in demand for milk produce

(CP) — Keeping pace with a rapidly-expanding population is one of the main problems faced by dairy producers, the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada was told recently in Quebec.

Not only increased production but balanced production must be achieved, Erle Kitchen of Toronto said in submitting the directors report.

"According to the report of the Royal Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects, we will require 25,000,000,000 pounds of milk in Canada by 1980," said Mr. Kitchen, secretary-manager of the dairy farmers. "This is approximately 45 per cent more than we now are producing."

W. B. Rettie of Fergus, Ont., first vice-president, stated: "It would seem reasonable that floor prices . . should be tied to a flexible formula. By flexibility I mean the tying of support prices to satisfactory indices so that when the costs of goods and services to the farmer go up, the support prices will go up automatically.

"Likewise, when costs of goods and services go down it would be moved downward."

Changes proposed in administration of Farm Forums

National Farm Radio Forum will undergo a face-lifting. This was made known at the semi-annual meeting of the National Board, which met in Montreal.

The major change will more clearly divide the responsibilities of financing and organization, between the provincial Farm Forum councils and the national sponsors of the program. The responsibility of organizing and servicing farm forums will be transferred completely to the provincial councils.

The national sponsors include the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Canadian Association for Adult Education, the Co-operative Union of Canada, and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Some of the proposals made at the board meeting include a new type of broadcast and a streamlining of the operations of the national office.

With strong regret the board accepted the resignation of Floyd Griesback, who has faithfully served Farm Forum for the past eight years as National Secretary.

The major function of National Farm Radio Forum — providing broadcasts, printed study material, and organization of small discussion groups — will remain unchanged. At present there are over 700 Farm Forums registered in Canada.

Complete reorganization plans for National Farm Radio Forum will be finalized at the end of this year's forum season.

Geophysical Year in new-design stamp

The Hon. William Hamilton, Postmaster General, announces details of a new design postage stamp to be issued March 5 next. The stamp will featura the significant role played by the International Geophysical Year activities.

The International Geophysical Year (IGY) began July 1, 1957, and is one of the greatest scientific ventures ever undertaken in the sphere of international co-operation. Canada has a great interest in the IGY because of its favorable location for many phases of scientific inquiry. The North Magnetic Pole in the Canadian Antarctic and the Maximum Auroral Belt which crosses Canada are being made the subjects of intensive study.

The stamp, blue in color, small size, and of the five cent denomination, was designed by A. L. Pollock, of Toronto, who has other Canadian and the United Nations stamp designs to his credit.

CHICKS, CHICKS, CHICKS!

Have you ordered your chicks for this year? Many wait until it is very late and then want them in a hurry. Some never make up their minds. Whatever you do, always remember that it is good business to buy when others are selling!

Egg prices at present aren't very encouraging, so I don't anticipate a large demand for chicks, but those who keep at it usually make a little when prices are low, and make well when prices are better.

Poultry meat is low in price now, and with the number of broilers, being raised, there isn't much chance of better prices.

With these conditions a flock of Hy-line Chicks are the most profitable birds you can raise, as they are heavy layers and most efficient converters of feed into eggs. So much so that you don't need to worry over the meat value after you are finished with them.

Won't you give us your chick order now? We can get you almost any breed you wish on pretty short notice. You can order now for delivery any date later you may wish.

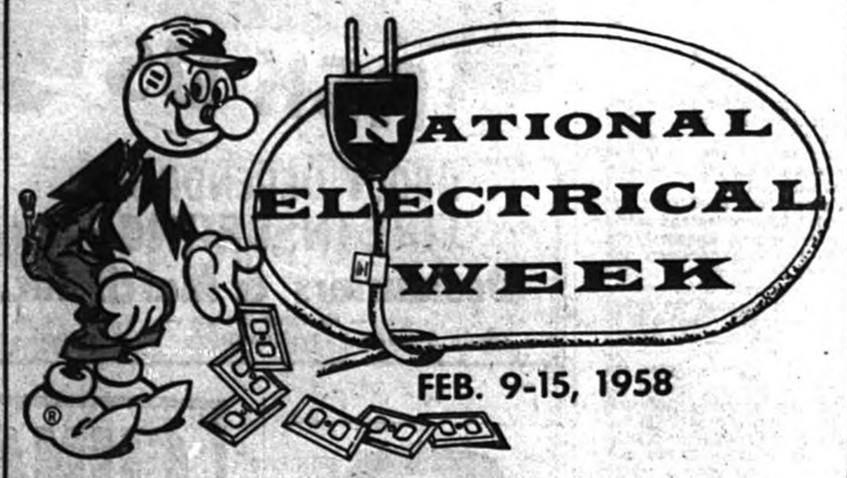

Also, better order your supply of CHICK START-ENA; Feeders, Waterers and Sanitation Supplies at the same time, and be assured of your chicks being well raised.

Valentine's Day

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Tomorrow is St. Valentine's Day,
All in the morning betime,
And I a maid at your window,
To be your Valentine," sings Shakespeare's Ophelia.

Perhaps the following verse is more familiar to you:

"I love thee, I love but thee,
With a love that shall not die
Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment Book unfold!"

Bayard Taylor gives us these lines in his "Bedouin Song" and they might well grace a Valentine. How many tender sentiments and loving words are printed on the messages which are mailed to sweethearts and friends and loved relatives the second week in February!

The modern valentines with their "I'm a little 'cuckoo" over you!" or "I've fallen for you in a Big Way!" may seem flippant. But they may give just as much pleasure to the person who receives them as a more flowery declaration of affection.

Children love special days and a small boy or girl can have a lot of fun making valentines. A sheet of red cardboard is not very expensive and flour and water paste can be made at home. Old magazines furnish an abundance of pretty colored pictures in their "ads." The inexpensive books of valentines all ready cut and made up are also very popular — although valentines from them do not have the personal touch of a child's own.

Adults forget all too quickly what they felt like when they were in their teens. If, as a parent you are tempted to laugh at a son's or daughter's actions, don't do it. Borrow Booth Tarkington's incomparable picture of Young Love in his masterpiece "Seventeen" and laugh over the situations there. Your own adolescent needs understanding not laughter at his affairs of the heart.

If you are having a Valentine party of grown-ups, you might like to use this Quiz for St. Valentine's Day — on love — or you could try out these questions on the family. Discuss how true these quotations are in your opinion. Which ones are most accurate about the emotion which according to an old French song "makes the world go round."

Styled by Olivia, fabric from Lachute

"Bluebird" Blue, a favorite color in the new fashion designs by members of the Association of Canadian Couturiers, is the color of this Ayers wool suit by Olivia of Hamilton, which incorporates the barrel effect into its long jacket. Olivia says the hippy line is essentially feminine. The fabric was produced by Ayers Limited, Lachute. All fabrics used in the new spring and summer collection shown by the Association last week in Toronto, were produced in Canadian mills.

The party touch for St. Valentine's

For centuries Valentine's Day has been a time for hearts and flowers and parties. Six hundred years ago in the days of Chaucer, St. Valentine's Day was celebrated by drawing names of young men and women simultaneously out of boxes. Those whose names were coupled together exchanged presents and became one another's valentine for the coming year. This custom has evolved over the years into the exchanging of valentines in the form of frilly cards covered with hearts, flowers and cupids which are now considered symbols of the patron saint of young lovers.

The hostess planning a Valentine party may create the appropriate atmosphere with candles, tea roses and paper hearts but the piece-de-resistance for the menu might well be these Jelly Cookie Strips. This delightfully different shortbread type of cookie with a topping of red currant jelly will provide a gay and festive touch for any St. Valentine's Day party. It's also something that may be served alone as dessert at dinner and supper or, if preferred, as a complement to ice cream and puddings.

Jelly Cookie Strips

(Yield — 4 dozen cookies)

2½ Cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup soft butter or margarine, ½ cup granulated sugar, ½ cup lightly-packed brown sugar, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon almond extract, ½ cup finely-chopped nutmeats, red currant jelly.

Sift the all-purpose flour and baking powder together.

Cream butter or margarine; blend in granulated and brown sugars. Add egg and beat in well. Stir in almond extract. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture, part at a time, combining well after each addition. Wrap dough in waxed paper and chill until firm. Divide dough into 2 equal portions. Roll out one portion on lightly-floured board or canvas into a 4½ x 12-inch rectangle. Cut rectangle into 3 equal lengthwise strips and place the strips, well apart, on a greased cookie sheet. Divide remaining dough into 6 equal pieces and form each piece into a 12-inch long roll. Place 2 rolls on each rectangle, close to the edges. Sprinkle the rolls with chopped nutmeats. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) until set and golden — 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from oven and carefully spoon jelly down the centre of each strip. Cut the hot strips crosswise, into ½-inch fingers. Remove carefully to cake racks and cool thoroughly.

Oven meals for cold days

February's cool breezes bring ideal "oven-weather", wouldn't you say? So, what better time than right now for trying out these three potato-and-meat combinations. They'll be welcomed at either dinner or supper, and if you're thrifty about time, effort and fuel, you'll bake a vegetable and dessert right along with them!

Potato and Meat Pie

2½ Cups mashed potato, 1 egg, slightly beaten, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, few grains garlic salt, ½ cup grated cheese, 2 cups finely diced, cooked beef.

Mix mashed potatoes, egg and seasonings together. Line bottom and sides of a greased 9-inch pie plate with potato mixture. Sprinkle the cheese over the potatoes. Press diced meat into potato. Heat in a moderately hot oven (375° F.) 15 to 20 minutes, until meat is heated through and cheese is melted. Serve with chili sauce. 5-6 servings.

Meat and Potato Pinwheels

Using 1 pound ground beef prepare a meat loaf mixture according to your usual recipe. Between 2 sheets of waxed paper press or roll out meat with a rolling pin into a rectangular sheet, about ½ inch thick. Remove the top piece of waxed paper and spread the meat with ½ cup grated carrots and a layer of mashed potatoes, about 1½ cups, keeping potato layer ½ inch away from end of rectangle. Roll up firmly like a jelly roll, towards the end without potatoes. Wrap in waxed paper and chill well. Cut roll into 1-inch slices. Bake on greased baking sheet in centre of hot oven, 400°F., 30 minutes. 6 servings.

Scalloped Potatoes with Pork Chops

6 Pork chops (1½ inch thick), 5 medium potatoes, thinly sliced, ½ cup finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon savory, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup milk (approximately).

Trim all but thin edge of fat off chops. Brown chops in frying pan, allowing about 4 minutes for each side. Remove chops and pour off fat. Arrange half of potatoes in bottom of caserole, add half the onion, flour, salt, savory and butter. Repeat layer with remaining ingredients. Add milk to top of potatoes. Arrange chops on top, cover and bake in moderate oven 350°F., 50 to 60 minutes. 6 servings.

Hungarian food winning friends around Halifax

By Russell Elman,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax (CP)—Hungarian goulash, wiener schnitzel and espresso coffee are making a hit in this old port city.

When Hungarian refugee Lewis Hertzka, a 36-year-old metallurgical engineer, opened his downtown lunch counter last November, he was afraid Haligonians might not go for continental cooking. Now businessmen vie for stools at "The Shanty".

In partnership with Frank Kozak, a former Budapest chef who speaks little English, he stays open seven days a week from 7.30 in the morning to 10 at night. Many of his regular customers are newspaper men from the Chronicle-Herald across the way on Argyle street.

Fled Hungary

Mr. Hertzka, a tall, dark-haired man who sports a moustache and rimmed glasses, arrived in Canada in January 1957 after fleeing from Hungary. An earlier escape attempt in 1949 ended in recapture and a six-months jail term.

Still in Budapest are his 11-year-old son, Peter, and his wife, Clara, who operates a restaurant. So far the Hungarian Communist government has refused to allow her to join her husband.

"I arrived here with only my pants, shirt and overalls," he said in good English. "For three months I served as an interpreter for the immigration department, then I was unemployed for two weeks."

For a while he was a laborer in a foundry at $45 a week and then a salesman for an insurance company. He could find no work in his own trade.

Sharing a room in a private home with another refugee, he lived modestly and saved until he was able to place the down payment on the $4,500 restaurant.

Looking forward to the eventual arrival of his family, Mr. Hertzka hopes his wife may one day take over the restaurant and perhaps he can go back into engineering.

"But for the time being, I have to get myself established and make a living", he said, "It's too early to say for sure what I shall do in the future".

Tall headgear seems to be the order of fashions for spring, says Olive Dickason, fashion editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, who saw the recent New York showings.

Legs will get added length not only from shorter skirts but also from elongated shoes, which taper on and on before the toes are squared off.

Heads, Miss Dickason finds, get length either from depth or height. Cloches pulled down about the ears give depth, while tall crowns of course lend height. The finishing touch belongs to gloves — they too are long.

Colorful Notes

Hats, though, are the conversation makers. Towering turbans are seen draped in East Indian fashion, especially exotic by the use of gaily printed fabrics.

Leopard spots have given way to tiger stripes, and floral prints are appearing in a burst of brilliant color. Stylists are eyeing the combination of printed dresses with cloches made of matching flowers.

Brims are returning to the scene in the jauntiest of manner — upturned and framing the face. These are particularly youthful in sailor styles when worn straight. Teen crowds will be wearing them back on the head.

News in the fashion world is to have hat and shoes made of the same print as the dress. In the drive for the co-ordinated look Miss Dickason forecasts shoes, handbag and even umbrella matching.

Color is the keynote to the season. Beige and taupe costumes were accentuated by brilliant emeralds, vivid royal blue and deep purples.

All in all, it looks like a colorful spring.

Washing Knitwear

Winter sportswear is filling most homemakers' closets these days. And a tip to housewives is that knitted wools or blends insulate against the cold more efficiently when they are clean and fluffy.

When fibres begin to mat or soil, it's time for a washing. The best method is to launder knitted goods in cool or lukewarm water and by using either a special or ordinary detergent. You are cautioned against using hot water and severe scrubbing.

Bright-colored or dark articles should be hand-washed and rinsed repeatedly on their first washing to flush away excess dye and "establish" the color.

By stuffing sweaters with a fluffy towel you keep back and front separated — this hastens drying.

Knitwear should be blotted in a towel after washing. Lay wool sweaters flat or dry away from heat. Also, to restore snug fit, baste along the ribbing. Draw up the thread to shape to the proper size, tie and then launder. When the sweater is dry, snip the drawstring and pull it out.

Q.W.I. session held this week

An executive meeting of the Quebec Women's Institutes is being held Thursday (February 6) at the Y.W.C.A., Montreal. The president, Mrs. G. D. Harvey, of Stanbridge East, will preside, and for the opening session of the annual winter meeting of Q.W.I. Provincial Board on the following day. This later meeting carries on for two days, February 7-8, at the same place.

The groundwork for the annual leadership course and provincial convention is laid at this time, and plans made for further action on the various provincial projects. This year, the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada is asking all provinces to study highway safety, integration of Indians, and help for the aged.

These items will also be on the agenda when representatives of the Montreal Council of Women meet the Q.W.I. executive prior to the Board meeting. Recommendations prepared there will be presented to the larger meeting for study and implementation.

Mrs. G. E. LeBaron, of North Hatley, immediate past-president, will attend the executive meeting but leaves that night for Toronto. She is representing the FWIC at the meeting of the Joint Planning Commission in that city.

Town engages additional help for police department

Council committees are appointed, year's civic business gets under way

René Belanger, newly-elected alderman for the West Ward, also Ross R. Muir, Mozart Carrière and Dr. J. P. Dorion, re-elected by acclamation to Council as representatives for the East and Centre Wards, were sworn into office last Wednesday by Secretary-Treasurer Jacques Poitras. The latter, as Returning Officer, read the various election reports. A full Council was in attendance at the meeting, presided over by Mayor Léopold Carrière.

Committee reports were limited. Ald. Mozart Carrière, chairman of Police and Fire, making the only motion of any importance, which proposed the engagement of Gilles Poirier, acting as a special constable for the past several months, on a full-time basis at a salary of $55 a week. In addition to this, a recommendation was made to engage a person to answer the phone in the police department, handle the mobile radio, and do general office work, and it was proposed that Yvon Larocque, a former municipal employee who lost his leg in an automobile accident last summer, be hired for the job at a salary of $35 a week. The recommendations were worded into formal motions, and upon being seconded, were unanimously approved, the date of engagement being left to Chief Trépanier.

The financial report for the year ending December 31, 1957, was presented, the audit having been completed by the firm of Corry & Moore, Chartered Accountants, who were re-engaged for the present year at a fee of $600.

In getting down to business for 1958, Mayor Carrière announced the committees, each alderman serving as chairman of one committee and as a member of two others. In the following list, the chairman is the first-named in each case:

Finance: Gerard Lefebvre, Mozart Carrière, Ross Muir.

Social Service: Dr. Jean-Paul Dorion, René Bélanger, Mozart Carrière, Gerard Lefebvre, Edgar Pollock.

Water: Ross Muir, Wilfrid Morrissette, Nelson Lepage.

Roads: Wilfrid Morrissette, Edgar Pollock, Lauréa Laurin.

Electricity: Edgar Pollock, Nelson Lepage, Lauréa Laurin.

Health and Hygiene: Nelson Lepage, Dr. J. P. Dorion, Wilfrid Morrissette.

Police and Fire: Mozart Carrière, Gerard Lefebvre, Ross Muir.

Reception: René Bélanger, J. P. Dorion, Mozart Carrière.

Municipal Buildings: Lauréa Laurin, René Bélanger, Edgar Pollock.

Following the receipt of a letter from the Red Cross campaign organizers, it was decided to approve a $25 donation towards the local appeal, the same as in past years.

Ald. Ross R. Muir was named pro-mayor for the ensuing three months. On a recommendation by Ald. Edgar Pollock, a streetlight was approved for Sydney Street, on the south side of the Ste. Anastasie Church.

Mayor Carrière announced that the snow-blower owned by the Brownsburg municipality would be working in Lachute the following day (last Thursday), and recommended that all aldermen see the machine in operation.

Tenders for six lockers for the police department were received from Walker - Kingsbury Inc., totalling $264; the offer was tabled.

Accounts totalling $54,343.24 were approved for payment, this sum including $35,207 debt charges.

Added insurance protection for municipal employees

Increased protection for all full-time municipal employees was approved unanimously at last Wednesday's session of Town Council, the increased premium amounting to approximately $600, of which the municipality pays 50 per cent. Present yearly premium is $2,340, half of which is paid by the insured employees.

The plan is divided into two groups, Classes "A" and "B", the former for persons earning less than $50 per week and the latter for those earning more than that amount. Both sections have approximately the same number of employees—the office staff and police department also entering into the co-operative insurance plan.

At present, Class "A" employees have $1,500 life insurance and an identical sum for dismemberment, the weekly allowance in the event of injury being $15. Class "B" employees can draw an additional $500 in each of the first two classes, and $20 weekly allowance. Maximum for hospital room and fees is $6 and $60, respectively, in both classes.

The revised insurance plan runs $2,000 and $3,000 respectively for Class "A" and "B" for each of the life and dismemberment sections, and pays a weekly allowance of $20 and $30 respectively. Both classifications pay $10 a day for hospital room and $150 fees. In addition to this, a $10 ambulance fee and $250 surgery fee is allowed: along with an emergency allowance and $200 medical fees. One of the main features of the new plan is that it also covers any dependants for all sections but life and dismemberment coverage.

In recommending the new policy, Mayor Carrière pointed out that all the present employees were in favor of the new plan and would very much like to have it adopted. A motion to that effect was made by Ald. René Bélanger, seconded by Ald. Nelson Lepage, and passed unanimously. The new plan will become effective during March.

Carnival queen is store cashier

Miss Therese Belisle, cashier at LaRuche store, was elected Queen of the Ayersville Winter Carnival, last Monday evening at a counting of ballots in the Clément School. The ballots actually were in the form of ticket stubs — the seven entrants being team organizers in a sale of tickets for a prize drawing at the coming carnival.

Therese achieved a sale of tickets to the value of $562. Other competitors were — Jacqueline Dubé (with a close count of $558), Gabrielle Robertson, Margot Chartrand, Colette Tessier, Gisele Filion and Muriel St. Jacques, for a total sale of $1,741.50.

The carnival will open Saturday evening, when the Carnival Queen will be duly crowned. The event continues nightly up to Tuesday, when Maurice "Rocket" Richard will be star attraction at the masquerade carnival, and the various prizes will be drawn for.

Council orders new patrol car

Tenders from Deacon Motor Sales, Lacasse Automobiles, and Pollock & Graves Motors were opened at Town Council — these three local firms quoting prices for a new police car. All garages within Lachute Town were contacted — Desrosiers Automobiles submitting no offer. Pollock & Graves submitted the best price, which was duly accepted.

Tenders were based on an 8-cylinder automatic-transmission two-door, and the prices were as follows (the figure in each case being in addition to the trade-in):

Deacon Motor Sales, (Ford), $1,425; Lacasse Automobiles (Chevrolet), $1,545; Pollock & Graves (Meteor), $1,010.

Prices were also submitted on standard-transmission vehicles — being, in this case, all between $210 and $225 less than the above prices. Mayor Carrière suggested that the purchase be made as per tender submitted by Pollock & Graves for the standard model. General discussion followed, during which Police-Fire Chief Trépanier was asked for his opinion. He gave the information that the police vehicle made from 300-400 stops a day, and that the present vehicle was now running on its third clutch. It was then moved by Ald. Gerard Lefebvre, seconded by Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion, that the automatic-transmission vehicle be purchased. Ald. Muir held out that, in addition to this, a heavy-duty generator be included, and following discussion on this detail, it was unanimously resolved to purchase a 1958 two-door Meteor automatic-transmission, as per quotation, with standard generator. (Ald. Edgar Pollock took no part in the vote.)

Brownsburg grants another permit for service station

At the Brownsburg Council, Fire Chief A. Robbins reported no fire calls during the month of January.

Bills for the past month were approved for payment, with the exception of three held over for enquiry — one from Lachute Auto Parts, $215.98, for a motor; another from Farmers' Supply Co., $500, for road requirements; and a third from the Social Service to the amount of $771.72.

Councillor Stan Harris proposed, and Councillor Roger Raymond seconded, that McColl Frontenac Company be permitted to erect a service station at the corner of Main and 1st Avenue N.E.

On proposal of Councillor Geo. Therrien, seconded by Councillor René Lafleur, it was ruled that all purchase orders would require signature of the mayor, or a committee member, and the secretary-treasurer; also that the mayor would be the only authority to hire men for municipal work.

It was decided to call for tenders for the position of town foreman.

Councillor Réal Ouellette asked if it would not be possible to lower the fee for pipe-thawing, which is presently $7 for the first hour and $3 for each additional hour; he suggested a straight $3 an hour. However, in view of high costs of labor and machinery, it was decided to leave the rate unchanged.

Mayor T. P. Hall presided. (Other business, including the budget and tax rate, were reported last week in this journal.)

Keen attendance, high interest, at Lions Club session

An attendance of 54 at the Lions Club meeting — on Tuesday, February 4, in the Legion Hall — included eight inter-club crusaders from the Ahuntsic club, with their president, Dave Harvey.

District Governor Dr. F. W. Fitz-Gerald gave a brief outline of his plane trip and visit to Knob Lake for the chartering of the "northernmost service club in the world", to whom he presented a Lions banner as a gift from Lachute.

Three Lions Club fruit cakes were won in a drawing by Dr. Eric Mongeon, Dick Pearson and Bert Rigg.

President Ernest Snadden chaired this enthusiastic meeting, at which a film in the Bell Telephone's scientific series, "Hemo the Magnificent", was shown by Dick Pearson, district manager for that company. High commendations were heard, on this excellent color presentation showing the functions of the human blood, heart and circulatory system. . . Phil Tremblay expressed appreciation on behalf of the members and visitors.

Forums feel legal advice is good farm investment

Argenteuil County Farm Forums unanimously agreed with Arundel group No. 1, that it is better and cheaper in the end for farmers to seek legal advice, whether they are buying or selling a farm, arranging for a mortgage, or making a will. They also believed that in cases of expropriations, father and son or family agreements, or farmer contracts with processors, farmers should have legal guidance. Harrington points out that, not only is a lawyer's advice cheaper in the long run, but it prevents many an embarrassing situation and avoids bad feelings in families.

There were several different suggestions as to what part farm organizations should play in providing legal services to their members. Brownsburg Road suggest that farm organizations might make an agreement with a lawyer to handle members' business at a reduced rate. Jerusalem and Bethany and Harrington think that the organizations might distribute leaflets and pamphlets to members advising them what to do about particular questions. They believe, too, that organizations should continually urge members to seek legal advice, to make wills, and to file income tax returns.

The Forums reported the topic to be the best of the season, although stormy, cold weather forced some meetings to be cancelled and cut down on attendance at others.

The majority of Quebec Farm Forums emphasized that farmers should consider legal advice in these matters as being necessary. Only a few groups felt that legal advice is not essential to the farmer in these matters.

Philippe Valois out of Federal election contest

Liberal organization met Tuesday; plan for convention in Lachute

Philippe Valois, federal representative for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes in the House of Commons since 1949, on Tuesday announced his retirement from active politics, by stating he would not be a candidate in the coming March 31 election. The statement was made at a meeting of the Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes Liberal Association executive and announced to representatives of The Watchman and L'Argenteuil immediately following.

In attendance at the meeting were the Hon. Georges E. Dansereau, of Grenville, president of the organization; Mrs. Ethel M. McGibbon, of Dalesville, vice-president; Fernand Legault, Q.C. of Lachute, secretary, and Messrs. Gaston Laurin, St. Eustache; Léon Tessier, Brownsburg; Bernard Gosselin, Roger Legarde and Bernard Jenkins, all of Lachute; Clement Legault, Ste. Scholastique; Omer Lalande, St. Hermas; Aurele Guidon, St. Joseph du Lac; Léopold Charlebois, Mayor of the Parish of St. André d'Argenteuil; George Watchorn, Morin Heights; W. Fox, Kilmar; Pierre Chene, Oka; and Sylvio Lavigne, St. Placide.

The Hon. Mr. Dansereau opened the meeting by welcoming all representatives, and explained the reason of the meeting, after which Mr. Valois spoke.

He informed those present that, prior to starting his campaign, he checked with his physican and was told that following his automobile accident last year and difficulties he ran into during the 1957 campaign — for reasons of health he was in no condition to contest the election. "For this reason," he added, "I am not allowing my name to be placed before the Liberal Convention, and am withdrawing from the Federal election battle."

After having made this announcement, Mr. Valois was warmly thanked by the Hon. Mr. Dansereau for the many services he has rendered to the Liberal cause during the past 25 years. "It was in 1935 that he became actively interested for the first time, and was organizer for myself as well as Jim McGibbon, in addition to his own campaigns which commenced in 1949." In closing Mr. Dansereau said, "Mr. Valois has always been a frank, true Liberal, and we owe him a debt of gratitude for the number of years he has served in the interest of his fellow citizens."

Philippe Valois, M.P., retiring from political field.

Fernand Legault, Q.C., secretary of the organization, reported that a unanimous vote of regret was expressed by those present following the announcement, and that a tentative Liberal Convention date was set for Saturday, March 1, to be held in the Lachute Auditorium at the request of the Deux Montagnes representatives. This date is not definite as yet, and details of the convention will be announced prior to the meeting. It is anticipated there will be some 500 delegates present.

Mrs. Ethel M. McGibbon, a candidate in last June's contest, and vice-president of the organization, voiced her approval of the meeting, at which she was in attendance, but would make no statement as to whether she would allow her name to stand before the convention.

Mr. Valois was first elected in 1949 when he defeated Georges H. Héon, now a magistrate, and was re-elected in 1953, this time defeating Linton W. Armstrong, his Conservative opponent. Last year, he retained the office as deputy with his triumph over his most serious opponent, J. Octave Latour, by a total of 1,182 votes.

Conservatives to meet Sunday, select candidate

Conservatives of Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes are holding a convention to select a candidate for the March 31 Federal election — this Sunday, February 16, in the St. Hermas parish hall, it was announced on Tuesday. This statement was confirmed by Charles Paré, Progressive - Conservative organizer for the district, in a long distance telephone call.

This meeting, which will be held under the presidency of Mayor Albert Gingras of St. Hermas, prefect of Deux Montagnes, will get underway at 2.30 o'clock, and it is expected some 283 delegates will be in attendance, these having been selected from all sections of both counties.

While many names are mentioned, only one nomination paper is definite, namely that of Notary J. Octave Latour, a candidate in the election last June.

Announce 13 clinics planned for anti-rabies inoculations

Next Monday, federal veterinarians will commence a series of 13 clinics in Argenteuil County as an additional means of combatting the spread of rabies. The free vaccinations for dogs will be given in all parts of the County during the next two weeks, morning and afternoon clinics being held in the larger communities. The clinic Tuesday in Lachute will be held at the Fire Station on Main Street.

Dr. J. Frechette, who is in charge of this work, on Monday announced the dates of the clinic, and stressed that following the vaccination, the pet should be kept under close surveillance for 30 days.

He also commended Police Chief F. Trépanier in his preventive work — the police having done away with 13 dogs and five cats during the past week.

Check on District Cases

Out of the many conflicting and localized reports on rabies in this county, we quote current information from the provincial Health Unit as a dependable source — since federal reports on livestock analyses are channeled back to the Health Unit authorities, for a check on possible human contacts.

Up to the end of January, 26 cases of domestic or farm animals had been reported and specimens examined in the federal laboratories. Of these, 18 animals were pronounced positive, that is, infected with rabies.

Of the 26 cases reported, 21 were dogs bitten by suspected foxes; 1 cow, 2 sheep and 2 cats.

No human beings have so far become infected in this county.

The cases reported have come from such widely separated communities as Arundel, Huberdeau, Morin, Mille Isles, Upper Lachute, Brownsburg, North River and Carillon.

* * *

Apart from numerous clinics held in various sections of the province by federal veterinarians, local veterinary doctors in private practice have been in demand to give inoculations. Dr. J. P. Dorion, Lachute, reports he has given 300 inoculations; Dr. Russell McMahon has also given about 300 to date.

As another preventive measure, hunters are active in pursuit of foxes. The provincial bounty is $3 a pair of fox ears, and it is reported that the Municipality of Arundel has matched the offer with a similar bounty.

The Township of Chatham has issued an order for the leashing of dogs, while a muzzling and leashing order is on the agenda for next meeting in Ayersville.

Chief F. Trépanier advises that any dogs without inoculation tags attached will be summarily destroyed if found loose or straying after the inoculation clinic here next Tuesday.

Taxi driver injured in town crash

Ludger Delorme, driver for Modern Taxis, received painful injuries last Thursday evening when the above vehicle he was driving crashed directly into the rear of a stationary 4-ton truck on Chatham Street, near the Princess Street intersection. Police officers investigating the accident report that the truck was pushed 39 feet following the impact, skid-marks of the taxi stretching for 38 feet. The mishap occurred at 6.45 p.m. Delorme was taken by ambulance to the Providence Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Roger Lavigne for several fractured ribs, cuts, bruises and shock. Chief F. Trépanier reported the truck was well over to the side of the thoroughfare, with its tail-lights showing at the time of the crash. — Photo, Syd Drew

Unemployment list definitely higher than last year

Mid-winter statistics show there are more persons seeking work than last year at the same date. The manager of the Unemployment Insurance Office in Lachute, G. A. Downing, stated 932 men and 271 women were seeking work as of last Thursday. This figure compares unfavorably with that of the same date last year, when a total of 816 persons were seeking work.

Those out of work have been somewhat relieved, as the greater majority have received Unemployment Insurance benefits. Newly-released figures show that the Lachute Office issued cheques totalling $444,843.30 between January and December 1957. The current year shows signs of an increasing total, as the recipients were paid $99,989.80 during January of this year. That will no doubt be the biggest month in the current year, as already the number of claimants has decreased since mid-January, when unemployment was at its peak in this area.

There is a constant effort on the part of the National Employment Service to find employment for those seeking work. Most employers use this free service to locate suitable workers as the need arises, and in this way have a wider choice of candidates to choose from. Employers may avail themselves of the experience the Employment Selection officers, who have specialized in this type of work and recognize the requirements for each trade.

It is expected that the lull in the construction projects being presently experienced will probably last until the middle of April, when milder weather will permit excavation for new projects.

Householders are nevertheless encouraged to have repairs and renovation done during the winter months while labor and building materials are in plentiful supply. This reasoning is supported by the Winter Employment Campaign conducted on a National basis, and endorsed by all Laobr Unions and manufacturers as well, from coast to coast.

Drivers' tests

The district registrar of automobiles, Mrs. Chas. Bedard, has been advised the "mobile clinic" for auto drivers' tests will visit Lachute on Tuesday, March 11, and will be stationed at the government garage (off Bethany Road) from 9 a.m.

Boyd's Express Ltd. opens warehouse near St. Jerome

A new warehouse was officially opened recently by the firm of Boyd's Express Ltd., in St. Antoine des Laurentides, near St. Jerome. The occasion was marked by a reception tendered to a number of invited guests.

This enterprising firm — which last fall took over the extensive business of the Todd Express, St. Jerome, thus embracing a considerably wider field of transport — now has offices at four strategic points, namely, Lachute, Buckingham, St. Jerome and Montreal.

Among those at the reception on opening of the new warehouse at St. Antoine were — Nat W. Boyd, president, and his son, Garth, vice-president; Clayton Robinson, general manager; Roger Guimond, Montreal manager; Romain Savage, traffic manager; Yvon St. Denis, of the Lachute office; Howard Ward, despatch chief; H. Cowan, manager of the new St. Jerome depot, and assistant, P. Watson; E. J. Todd, former owner of the Todd Express; Dr. A. Cherrier, mayor of St. Jerome; Bruno Aubin, mayor of St. Antoine; aldermen of the municipality, and others.

Ayersville Council aids winter carnival effort

At the Ayersville Council session, notice of motion was given by Councillor L. J. Bigras, that at next meeting he would submit a by-law to enforce muzzling of dogs, or that owners keep them on leash.

Councillor Bigras, a newcomer to the civic board, also gave notice he would introduce a by-law to zone that subdivision of the municipality situated on part of Lot 649 in the Richelieu Blvd. section.

Winter Carnival

In connection with the winter carnival, February 15-18, it was moved by Councillor E. Cyr, and seconded by Councillor Bigras — (1) that police would cooperate with the carnival committee to direct traffic; (2) that the municipal flags and decorations be displayed for this occasion; (3) that lights owned by the corporation be loaned to the committee; and (4) that the cost of lighting in connection with the carnival be borne by the municipality.

Lachute's Offer Declined

A letter was presented from Lachute Town Corporation offering a sum of $6,543.41 in settlement of joint costs for the installation of a collector sewer from Ayers Street to the North River. The offer was rejected, on motion of Councillor W. Durocher, supported by Councillor Doug Simon.

Bills were passed for payment, and other details of business were dealt with. The various committees were also formed.

Councillor R. Quenneville was absent. Mayor Maurice Champagne, presiding, congratulated the two re-elected councillors, Messrs. A. Foucault and W. Durocher, and welcomed the councillor-elect, Louis-Joseph Bigras. As a preliminary to the meeting, the three office-holders were sworn in by the secretary, Conrad H. Legault.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

The last few days have been very good for the ice fisherman. Some of the catches taken around the district have been terrific. A number of perch caught at St. Placide were very big, the biggest I have seen for a long time. The biggest ones would run nearly 2 pounds; and they are BIG for this species. The pike are also very good, very firm and lots of good eating on them. It's still minnows they want; the odd one is being caught on other baits but not often. . . Did you give it a thought recently? Spring isn't very far away, then all you trout men will be tearing around getting your tackle ready. Better start now!

• • •

Up in the bush yesterday I spotted another wolf. It probably was the same one I saw awhile ago. There must be a few of them around, as there were a number of trails visible. Also the foxes are really thick, and they will be well fed too. As I mentioned before, the rabbits are out in force. You can't walk 100 feet without scaring one up. The same applies to the partridge too; not quite as thick as the rabbits, naturally, but still out in profusion. Judging by the amount of game around, we will have very good sport next fall.

• • •

You boat owners might take the time to look over your coverings on the boat you stored last fall. In all probability they will be getting loose, so tighten them up. It is a good time to check for rot on the boat itself, too. With the wood being frozen, you can pick at the rotten spots and mark them for when the weather gets a little warmer for repairs.

It does seem early to be bothering about your boat. When you consider this though, it isn't. The wood will be decently hard so that it will be easy for you to pick out the soft spots. All the sound wood will be very firm; the pulpy wood, soft. Another thing, doing it now you won't have to bother about the rain getting onto your job. Check over everything. Transom or stern; stem or bow; the inner or outer keel; ribs, planking; and be sure to check the rub rail — there is nothing worse than getting the boat all fixed up and then finding the rub rail is rotten in spots.

• • •

How many of you sportsmen have been out in the bush recently? Looking around different spots we begin to get the idea that this is a good part of the country to live in. Seeing the trees covered with snow, when you are just walking around and not after rabbits or anything — you can see just how much you miss in the way of beauty when out hunting! At least, that is the way with a few of us. I think most of us just walk around in the bush and forget to take a look at the beauty surrounding us; and I don't mean only in the fall.

• • •

One of the sports near me bought a Beagle pup from our old friend, Mr. Cary. It's a beautifully marked little thing; but this isn't what I want to tell you of. Our dogs are always playing around the front of the house, and with the snow being deep, it's often hard to see them clearly. Well, the pup has been over to play also, and believe me, this is something to see. Really funny! All the pup has to do is yap, and our two take off for parts unknown. From the bark on this pup, you would swear she was going to tear my dogs apart. To see two grown dogs trying to find the other in the snow! You know, when dogs play they look rough, and I have often wondered just how they know when to let go with their teeth without tearing the other dogs. The pup is absolutely soaked when they decide to quit. . . Just watch your dogs when they are playing and you will see what I mean. It's wonderful.

There was an article in one of the sporting magazines that interested me very much. It is about Northern Pike — a collection of all the dope they have on these fish. As you know, I've talked a lot about the Northerns in the North River. One of the writers who has caught fish all over the world states that, for plain and fancy fighting, the Northern can't be beat. He would rather take a Northern than any other fish, and this includes trout, salmon and the deep-sea fish. Another gent calls them the shark of fresh water. He gives a few examples of their savagery. A lady swimming with a good luck charm on her ankle was attacked by a pike and received a badly lascerated leg. A man was washing his hands with his ring on and lost two fingers to one of these fish. Dogs swimming have been attacked, ducks have been swallowed. Nice fish! But the chance of getting bitten by one of these fish is about 1,000 to one. For all that, they are great fighters on light tackle. The North River is a paradise for them, and this I KNOW, along with plenty of the boys from Ayersville. Ask them. Some of the fish that have been seen around would in all probability break a world record for this type. They lie just like logs in the shallow water; anyone wanting to see them should get out in a boat at night with a spotlight during the summer, and they are in for a big surprise.

Some of the fishermen around these parts are thinking of making their tackle, lures and the rest of the junk that goes into a tackle box. I'll be having a few of them up to start them on fly tying. It's a great thrill to catch a fish with one of your own baits, be it fly or spinner. After a couple of lessons anyone can tie a fly for their own use. Admitted, it might not be so hot on looks, but looks don't catch fish. Some of the most misbegotten baits get fish. You know this as well as I do. At least there will be plenty of laughs about them!

School curling play-offs Feb. 17 for national title

Rinks from every province of Canada will play off in Charlottetown February 17 in attempts for the Canadian School Curling Championship, and the new national Pepsi-Cola Trophy. Last year, the finals were won by the Ontario rink from Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

This year marks Newfoundland's entry into the Canada-wide competition.

The first Canadian School Curling Championship play took place in Quebec City in 1950, with a team from every province entered.

With the increased distances to be travelled for Championship play, school curling entered a critical phase and continued only with some difficulty. This year, the Pepsi-Cola Company of Canada, Limited, entered the picture with a new national trophy and offered to pay travel expenses, thereby insuring the future of high school curling in Canada.

Charlottetown is going all out to make the playdowns a memorable occasion, with a parade and a magnificent Victory Banquet planned.

Town of Mount Royal High School won the Quebec School Curling Championship, after knocking off Kenogami Protestant School 11-4 in a playoff game.

The Montreal crew, skipped by Fred Fowler, will represent the province at the Canadian Championship in Charlottetown.

Activities at peak for lady curlers

There have been several rinks from the Ladies' Curling Club playing away from home during the past two weeks in friendly bonspiels and competitions. The following rinks have participated in the Hudson ladies' annual bonspiel:

Mrs. A. A. Hills, skip, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, Mrs. A. G. Giles, Mrs. Donald Hay.

Mrs. Roy Fraser, skip, Mrs. Douglas MacKimmie, Mrs. W. W. Freeland, Mrs. Douglas Hay.

Mrs. George Muir, skip, Mrs. D. McTavish, Mrs. Jas. D. McOuat, Mrs. E. O. Pollock.

A rink skipped by Mrs. Fred Stein (Mrs. R. M. Cairns, Mrs. Keith Rutherford, Mrs. Jack MacKimmie) played to the quarter-finals of the main event, for the Wood Trophy Bonspiel in Ottawa last week. They were defeated by Mrs. E. Poulin, 7-6, who won this contest.

The following ladies visited Vankleek Hill for a "friendly" game last week — Mrs. J. R. McOuat, skip, Mrs. John MacKimmie, Mrs. E. Rogers, Mrs. L. Bedard.

The doubles competition is continuing through this week. There are rinks presently competing in Montreal, at Chantecler Curling Club, and at Hudson in various bonspiels; more about these games next week.

The Cottingham Cup double-rink competition games have resumed. Two Lachute rinks won the cup from two Hawkesbury rinks last week, and Club de Granite rinks visit Lachute this week to compete for the trophy.

Members are asked to note that Gala Day is scheduled for Thursday, February 20 — luncheon for playing members, and tea will be served in the afternoon for all members.

SNOWSHOERS MEET AT SHERBROOKE

Sherbrooke — More than 900 people travelled on two special CNR trains to take part in the International Snowshoers' Rally, held this year in Sherbrooke.

The two colorful groups, perpetuating the traditions of the coureurs des bois, formed part of a total of 2,000 snowshoeing enthusiasts that descended on the city for a week-end of festivities. One of the special trains started from Montreal and the other from Montmagny, each picking up passengers en route.

Brownsburg leads semi-final series 3 games to 0 against Ste. Anne's Brownsburg — The second game of the semi-final series between Brownsburg and Ste. Anne's ended in a 7-1 victory for the local boys. The first period indicated the game would be won in convincing fashion when Renaud scored on passes from Bouvrette and Norbonne, 1 minute and 25 seconds after the opening. Norbonne made it 2-0 at the 9-minute mark on a pass from George Potvin. "Red" Charlebois combined with MacAdam and Leveillé to put the Bombers 3 up at 12.15. Three minutes and ten seconds later Renaud passed to Racine, who poked the puck past Myers to make it 4-0. The trio of Dimock, Oullette and Racine passed well, coming close on a number of occasions.

The second period was scoreless as Ste. Anne's seemed to gain strength, even though they were limited to nine players.

Ranger produced Ste. Anne's only counter, on passes from Taylor and Moon in the third stanza, but Geo. Potvin nullified this 22 seconds later, with Legresley assisting.

Bouvrette was credited with an unassisted goal at the 6.15 mark when his low shot was partially blocked by Ranger but the puck slid in past Myer, who had been drawn to the other side of the net by Bouvrette's drive. Ouellete made it 7-1 three minutes later, after being set up by Dimock and Racine.

The second and third periods featured heavy body-checking, which drew groans from the crowd at times. A total of six penalties were handed out to Ste. Anne's, while Brownsburg suffered five. Coach Murdoch left the Bombers' bench for hearing-aid repairs late in the third period after he scuffled briefly with Taylor of Ste. Anne's. (Taylor, who had been penalized, entered the penalty box and attempted to retaliate physically to rather mild remarks directed at him by young Leslie Murdoch. Although engaged in the serious business of coaching a winning team, Jim demonstrated that he was also a father.)

The Bombers took a 3-0 lead in games on Sunday when they took Ste. Anne's into camp with a 4-1 score. This was faster hockey than that exhibited in the second game, although Brownsburg's passing was off.

Long passes by Ste. Anne's showed possibilities at times, but they were unable to capitalize. The first period, which had been played as straight time, was scoreless.

In the second period Giroux scored the opener on a knee-high shot from 25 feet out, after a brilliant solo rush. Ste. Anne's was short-handed at the time, with Lalonde sitting out a tripping penalty.

Renaud scored an unassisted marker at 4.33 of the third period, and Norbonne added to this two minutes later on passes from Renaud and Bouvrette.

Lamarche picked up Ste. Anne's only goal at 14.43 with Rainville assisting.

Renaud scored his second tally just two seconds before the final buzzer. Bouvrette and Norbonne assisted. Ste. Anne's was penalized for only 4 minutes, while Brownsburg was assessed a total of 16 minutes, 10 of which were assigned to Geo. Potvin in the form of a misconduct penalty for talking back to the referee.

Outside impetus on fire equipment

DURING THE terms of the past three mayors, we have been campaigning for additional fire equipment and, in particular, a new Class "A" fire pump; and at long last, it appears as if an order for the equipment will be made before too long.

On Thursday last, J. Marcel Bahl, Professional Engineer with the Canadian Underwriters Association, commenced a test of the Lachute Fire Department's equipment and according to preliminary reports found the equipment far from sufficient to protect Lachute proper, none the less and adjacent municipalities. The report is not completed but we are awaiting its receipt by the municipal authorities.

We are sure that the report will read that in order for Lachute to retain its present fire insurance rate, an additional Class "A" fire pumper will have to be purchased immediately along with new and more modern ladders and other equipment. In addition to this, an improvement to the fire alarm system summoning volunteers will be recommended. These are items we have been crying for for years, along with ex - Fire Chief Geo. Y. Deacon and Police-Fire Chief Trépanier.

While no councils in the past took the suggestions or recommendations presented to them in a serious manner, the present Council under Mayor Léopold Carrière is going to have to act on the recommendations of the Canadian Underwriters Association, and act fast to prevent an increase in insurance premiums.

The time for preliminary action is now, and it is now that the Police and Fire Committee comprising Alderman Mozart Carrière, chairman, and Aldermen Ross R. Muir and Gerard Lefebvre, get together with members of the Fire Brigade and ex-Chief Deacon to find out the type of equipment most suitable for local conditions.

To go off on their own in calling for tenders, as was done by a previous committee, will be a big mistake. Good advice is available free of charge and it is hoped this council will take advantage of it. What looks good on paper may be of no use in fighting a fire, and the best man to point out the pros and cons is none other than ex-Chief Deacon. We hope he is consulted.

To ease Main Street parking

THE OBJECTION TO parking meters by several Main Street business men would seem to be unfounded, judging by several reports we have seen from Ontario communities.

"Installation of parking meters in Smiths Falls has proved to be one of the most successful pieces of legislation ever approved by council," one report reads, while others are along similar lines.

The Smiths Falls report continues: "Not only have the parking meters provided an annual revenue of $10,000 but they have partially solved this Eastern Ontario town's parking problems. Some of the local businessmen opposed the installation of the meters in 1950, but they are now satisfied with them."

It appears that the Smiths Falls problem was similar to the one facing Lachute. We have sufficient parking facilities on Main Street if local businessmen and their employees would not park their cars there during store hours. In many cases, these are the men we hear complaining when their prospective customers cannot find a place to park.

The subject of parking meters has come up in Council on many occasions, the pros and cons discussed and the matter tabled "for further study." Other towns have installed the meters and found them successful; Lachute definitely has a need for some means of restricted parking on its Main Street, and meters seem to be the only answer.

Possibly it is time the question was once again "brought up for discussion."

National Electricity Week

CANADA'S SECOND National Electrical Week is being observed across the country February 9 to 15.

Purpose of this observance is two-fold — to focus attention on the many benefits to be derived from electricity, and at the same time to tell Canadians more about the industry which has been responsible for developing electricity to the point where it has become an all-engulfing force in civilization today.

Electrical Week, sponsored in Canada by the Canadian Electrical Council, is timed to coincide with the anniversary of the birthday of Thomas Edison, inventor of the first practical incandescent lamp and known as the father of North America's electrical industry.

In the Province of Quebec, the week's program has been organized by a committee under the chairmanship of Lucien Tremblay, M.P.P., president of the Corporation of Master Electricians of Quebec. The Week is being actively supported by electric utilities, electrical manufacturers and distributors, and by electrical contractors.

Today, February 12, is being observed as Electrical Day in Montreal, the main event being a luncheon in the Windsor Hotel, at which more than 500 guests will see the crowning of a Provincial Queen of Electrical Week and hear an address by Hon. J. S. Bourque, Quebec Minister of Lands and Forests and Hydraulic Resources.

Give thought to good vision

TECHNICAL EXPERTS claim that most Canadian homes are poorly lighted. Eye physicians and lighting engineers agree that sharp contrasts of strong light and deep shadows in the home cause eye strain. Reading and sewing under a strong lamp with poor background lighting make sensitive muscles inside the eye work overtime adjusting alternately to light and dark. This is also true with prolonged TV viewing in a darkened room. It is not the TV that is harmful, but the sharp contrast between the bright screen and the dark room. Light the area around your set and let your eyes feel the difference.

It is a tragic thing when someone loses his sight. Last year over 2,000 Canadians became blind. About 7 per cent of these lost their sight through accidents. Then there are the thousands who escaped blindness, but who lost the sight of one eye or damaged their sight to some degree.

"You, the sighted, have supported the rehabilitation program for the blind so that every year more and more of us are able to take our place beside you as independent self respecting persons. Therefore, we are intensifying the sight conservation program to urge YOU to take care of your eyes," says Mrs. W. C. Bending, president of the Canadian Council of the Blind.

Mrs. Bending exhorted everyone to give thought to good vision, to use care with sharp instruments, and to develop good lighting arrangements.

"These principles are particularly important in our homes where children are learning to see, to read and to study," she said. "Our tip for White Cane Week is 'Prize Your Eyes. They're priceless'."

The changing scene

ECONOMISTS who have made a study of Canadian population trends report there is a gradual movement to the larger cities.

They suggest it is an "illusion" to think that the spirit and essence of Canadian life is still to be found in small towns.

Their prediction is that soon perhaps one-half the total population will be living in cities with populations of 100,000 or more.

But the pride of people living in smaller communities and rural areas shouldn't be hurt by this because another report gives increasing indication that they're acquiring more and more of the so-called advantages of the big city while still managing to avoid the major disadvantages.

Some of the disadvantages are obvious — the apparent unfriendliness of big cities; the transportation difficulties; the problems of finding reasonably-priced living quarters in pleasant areas.

Up to a few years ago the city dweller was likely to brush off pointed remarks about the disadvantages by pointing to the facilities for easier living readily accessible.

But the situation has changed.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics in Ottawa has issued figures which show that the kerosene lamp, washboard and outhouse are rapidly disappearing.

For example, nine-tenths of the more than 4,000,000 households in Canada have electricity. At the beginning of the year 3,894,000 homes had at least one radio, 2,536,000 had television sets and 3,084,00 had telephones. Six of every 10 households have cars; four of five have piped water, electric washing machines and refrigerators, seven of 10 have bath facilities and flush toilets, and about six of 10 have furnaces, more than half burning oil.

Added to these conveniences is the fact that any village and town can provide as much live entertainment, organized and otherwise, as most big-city dwellers would care to have.

And for folk living on farms, the availability of TV, radio, telephones, cars and improved snow-removal provides opportunities for winter-time life that is little different from that in the cities, towns and villages.

What is the origin of Canuck?

A Canuck or Kanuck is a nickname for a Canadian, often combined as Johnny Canuck, and used as an adjective as well as a noun. The origin of the term is obscure, though it has been suggested that it is a corruption of Connaught, a name given by the French-speaking Canadians to the Irish. Its earliest use seems to have referred to the French Canadians. In 1840 the Boston "Transcript" referred to "the French-Canadian or Conuck, as her Majesty's provincial subjects of English and American extraction sometimes called him." It has also been suggested that it is the first syllable of "Canada" joined to the Algonquin noun-ending "uc" or "uq".

NO HEARTS AND FLOWERS IN COMIC VALENTINES

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Educate yourself

When I was very young I taught school, all the grades from one to eleven, in a country classroom. Too many youngsters, too many grades — it might have been a frustrating experience had I not made a discovery that has served me well ever since.

Most children, and many adults, are capable of educating themselves if they know how. Fortunately, a normal school teacher, Mr. J. W. Gordon (I'll thank him to the end of my days) had told me the secret of self-education.

"You should know," he told our class one day, "that education is an inner process, a personal process. It is not a matter of merely cramming heads with facts. It's a three-step process, always used by men like Alexander Bell, Edison, and other thought leaders. Teach your pupils to take these steps — observe, remember and compare!"

That was back in 1929, and it was something that stuck with me when I faced a classroom of assorted sizes in which some of the smaller ones couldn't even speak English. I soon had to devise ways to keep them all busy and learning on their own, for I couldn't split myself up into enough parts to be teaching them individually.

I remember sending a lad from Grade 9 out for a pail of water, so that he could then come in and write out in detail how he thought the water was brought to the surface. That lad did quite a bit of thinking that day, I'll tell you, and from his own observation, memory, and some thoughtful comparison, he learned more science from the pump than I had time to teach him. At night, after school, I spent a great deal of time thinking up questions: for I discovered that if I asked the right questions, the students built answers they remembered and understood. I am afraid too many teachers content themselves with giving students a lot of answers, instead of directing them to think through to the answers on their own.

This year, I am glad to say, my own youngsters have excellent teachers. Our encyclopedia is getting a real going over. Some scientific experiments (sometimes to the chagrin of my wife) are being undertaken at our kitchen sink. Questions are flying, and at the dinner table the old man has been stumped a few times, but it has perked us all up — and I feel my children are now getting a real education.

They'll need it in this modern world. A man who cannot observe, remember and compare is putty in the hands of politicians or salesmen. He will fall for the sheerest nonsense handed out as pure logic. But a self-educated man is no blotter for every new kind of political tomfoolery urged upon him; he observes, remembers and compares.

Cornwall, Ont. (CP) — The St. Lawrence seaway project's clearing department recently cut down a tree unofficially estimated at 500 years of age or more. The tree stood 100 feet high and was 10 feet through at the base.

Forty miles of double tracked CNR main line between Cardinal and Cornwall, Ont., had to be relocated due to power developments connected with the St. Lawrence project.

The fireman's hat is a symbol of protection.
So is your fire insurance policy.

When fire strikes, alert firemen are soon on their way, accepting risks themselves to protect your life and property. And when fire strikes, fire insurance steps in to offset disastrous financial loss.

Every week, some 1,400 fires break out across Canada. Companies writing fire insurance pay out more than one hundred million dollars annually in claims. And yet virtually all the fires which take the lives of more than 500 Canadians each year are preventable.

Fire insurance safeguards your property. But only you can guarantee against loss of life.

Safety pays dividends . . . saves lives, helps to lower your insurance costs. Be Careful.

Since 1951, the Chamber of Commerce has done a lot to put St. Andrews on the map. With quiet, persistent effort, the organization has achieved an enormous job towards the industrial development of the town and region.

Under the presidency of Paul Labrèche, an organizaion was started to develop the Ottawa River possibilities for transportation. A committee is now working on this project. The secretary of the committee is Mr. J. S. Giroux, of Hull, Que., who is also the secretary of the Western Quebec Regional Chamber of Commerce. The other local members on this committee are Messrs. Antoine Paré, legal advisor, Tupper Porter, engineer, as technical advisor; the mayors of the municipalities, and the president of the local Chamber, S. W. Rodger.

Besides industrial activities, the Chamber has also contributed its effort in social gatherings, such as a festival for the children, under the management of Remi Rocquebrune; excursions to Ottawa and other places; banquets and regattas, under the presidency of J. L. Pilon.

There is every assurance that, with the Chamber's new board of directors, there will be good cooperation betwen the Chamber and the newly-appointed Municipal Council of the Village of St. Andrews East, and that the interests of the whole community will be adequately looked after.

Day of Prayer Service in Lachute

The World Day of Prayer service for Lachute will be held in the United Church, on Friday, February 21, at 3 p.m. Women of all denominations are invited to take part in this observance.

Health inspector speaks on Rabies

On Tuesday of last week the Lachute Women's Institute heard a timely talk from Col. E. Emmett, County Health Unit inspector, on the subject of Rabies.

Col. Emmett explained Rabies as a virulent and contagious disease. It is not spontaneous, he stated, it only develops after an accidental lesion, the disease being transmitted by biting, licking or scratch of a mad animal — the virulent product above all being froth or saliva from the infected animal's mouth.

The speaker said that at present the disease was most prevalent among foxes, and mentioned districts in this county where the disease has occurred. The members were surprised to learn that cases were on record from practically every municipality of the county.

Col. Emmett commended those who had had their pets inoculated, also Lachute Town Council on their prompt action in passing a by-law whereby owner-less dogs must be destroyed. Mad dogs must be penned, kept under observation, and then destroyed. Dogs bitten by a mad animal must be destroyed.

Col. Emmett also urged parents to alert their children to the danger of infection from animals, as none are immune to the dread disease.

Brilliant young pianist for Community Concert

Theodore Lettvin, young Chicagoan and international laureate, to play in a recital here February 25.

The career of the brilliant American pianist Theodore Lettvin (who will appear here February 25 under auspices of Community Concerts) shows fulfilment of a prediction made by the late Maestro Frederick Stock when Lettvin made his orchestral bow at the age of 12 with the Chicago Symphony — that he would have a great future on the concert stage.

At the age of 15 he won a scholarship to the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, where he studied for the following seven years with the world-renowned artist, Rudolf Serkin. His career was interrupted for service with the United States Navy during World War II.

The young Chicagoan has since been the recipient of many national awards, and gained international honor as a laureate with an attendant command performance before a spellbound Queen (Elizabeth of Belgium).

In recent seasons Theodore Lettvin has been heard as soloist with notable symphony orchestras, and in the recital field, has distinguished himself in cities large and small. Theodore Lettvin's most recent success was at the Phillips Gallery in Washington, D.C., where he won unanimous raves last season.

Lettvin is head of the piano department of the Cleveland Music School Settlement. When the pianist made his debut last fall in a faculty recital at the School, the Cleveland Press wrote: "A brilliant new satellite streaked across Cleveland's firmament last night." Lettvin's duties in Cleveland did not prevent the busy artist from fulfilling a concert tour of 50 engagements all over the country.

Not the least notable of Theodore Lettvin's triumphs was his recent pinch-hitting for an indisposed colleague on one day's notice. The Johnstown Tribune-Democrat headlined its story: "Substitute Pianist Scores Big Hit", in reviewing "one of the finest concerts we have had in many years."

Meanwhile John Sheldon, one of Columbia Artists' eastern representatives, reported to headquarters: "Would that more artists would portray the 'human touch' between audience and artist as Lettvin did so beautifully in Johnstown. This was not an easy task, we all realize; however, Ted carried it off as if it were all planned. . . I was exceptionally proud of this accomplishment, as I know you must be."

Community Concert-goers here are eagerly anticipating the visit of this young star to Lachute on Tuesday, February 25.

Life Insurance aids Heart Foundation

Many people are making good recoveries from severe heart attacks. New advances in medical science and surgery are saving their lives. However, many more lives may be saved if, through research, the causes of heart disease can be determined.

Research of this nature is a long range project. It requires highly trained workers and the most modern equipment. These cost money.

Last year, with timely financial assistance from the Life Insurance Companies, the National Heart Foundation of Canada began to correlate and step up the tempo of research into the causes of heart disease.

This is just one of many ways in which the Life Insurance Companies in Canada are encouraging medical research that will help Canadians live longer and more happily.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

Life In A New World

"The Earth abideth forever". — Eccl. 1: 14

Unto us a son is born, and the government shall be upon His shoulders, and of His government and peace there shall be no end. — Isaiah 9: 6,7.

For Jesus must reign as King, until God has put all enemies under His feet. — 1 Cor. 15: 25.

A complete end to all political corruption guaranteed. What a relief! This is but the beginning of earthly blessings under the rule of God's heavenly Son, Christ Jesus.

The meek shall inherit the earth: and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace. The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever. — Psalms 37: 11.29.

The new world will be a free world. No want or fear will lurk there. Clean speech and true worship will be established as the worth-while freedoms that will be completely realized for the first time. The prophet Micah sketches some idea of this for us, saying: "But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of Jehovah of hosts hath spoken it. For all the peoples walk every one in the name of his god; and we will walk in the name of Jehovah our God for ever and ever." Yes, even freedom from war: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." — Micah 4:4, 5, 3.

Such unbroken peace can be a wonderful contribution to profitable works. At any rate we are promised that in the new world no building, planting or any labor will be in vain: "And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat; for as the days of a tree shall be the days of my people, and my chosen shall long enjoy the work of their hands. They shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth for calamity; for they are the seed of the blessed of Jehovah, and their offspring with them." — Isaiah 65: 21-23.

Total peace on earth will mean peace among all living things. Peace among men: The righteous King "will judge the poor of the people, he will save the children of the needy, and will break in pieces the oppressor. In his days shall the righteous flourish, and abundance of peace, till the moon be no more." (Psalm 72: 4, 7, 8). And, wonder of wonders, peace will destroy enmity among wild beasts and between them and man:

"And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah, as the waters cover the sea." — Isaiah 11: 6, 7, 9.

This earth-covering "knowledge of Jehovah" will make possible the very best use of time — and think of the good works possible when renewed minds and bodies do not suffer the relentless inroads of degeneration inherited from Adam! As faithful Elihu illustrated it: "His flesh shall be fresher than a child's; he returneth to the days of his youth." (Job 33: 25). No more will death cut short lives filled with right works. And what of those long dead? The King, Christ Jesus, who is the "resurrection and the life", easily springs the latch on the grave, releasing all who have been retained in the memory of God, indicated by the expression "memorial tombs" which he used as shown at John 5: 28, 29:

"Do not marvel at this, because the hour is coming in which all those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come out, those who did good things to a resurrection of life, those who practiced vile things to a resurrection of judgment." For God-fearing persons, gone forever all sting of death! At an end are all victories for the grave!

Hay yields and effect of fertilizers

Ottawa — Dr. B. J. Finn of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa says the intelligent use of fertilizers is as important with hay crops as with any other crop.

Among factors to be considered in determining the quantity of fertilizer for any particular crop are the nature of the soil and the previous treatment of the land in manuring and cropping. Information relevant to soil texture, drainage, lime requirement, and the availability of plant food constituents is most helpful in deciding the fertilizer needs of a crop.

The effect of fertilizer elements in 29 hay tests, over a period of 13 years on different soil types in Carleton County, varying in texture from sand to clay loam, indicates the following results: Applications nitrogen to the oat crop produced an average decrease in the yields of first-year hay by 232 pounds of dry matter per acre. Phosphorus treatments increased the yield of hay, particularly on the finer textured soils, showing an average increase for all tests of 771 pounds of dry matter per acre. Applications of potassium resulted in a slight increase in the yield of hay on all soils except the clay loams, increasing the dry matter per acre, in all tests, by an average of 145 pounds.

The farmer interested in grain alone, should apply nitrogen in addition to phosphorus and potassium, but when the grain crop serves as a companion crop for a legume hay seeding, a relatively lower level of nitrogen will be required, with emphasis on phosphorus and potassium treatments.

Grass and legume crops provide more and better hay if use is made of fertilizers. Farmers are advised to fertilize hay according to Provincial recommendations.

CANADIAN FARM POLICY

"Up to now 'commonsense and broader vision' have kept Canadian farmers and Canadian taxpayers out of most of the expensive farm folly so rampant in the United States. But with a general election looming and both major parties striving desperately for the farm vote," says The Financial Post, "there is grave danger unless more realists speak up, that Canada will find itself getting deeper into the same sort of a farm policy of rigid price supports and controls that the United States is trying to discard as unworkable."

New farm policy adopted in France

A long-term program for French agriculture developed by the Government early last fall is designed not only to raise farm incomes but also to increase exports and reduce imports of farm products in the years ahead. V. F. Wightman, Canadian Agricultural attaché in Paris, reports that the latter objective recognizes the contribution which agriculture can make to the balancing of the foreign exchange accounts.

The French Government has put into effect a system of target prices for the chief agricultural products. This method was adopted to influence the pattern of production and thus more effectively boost exports and decrease reliance on imports Canada's trade with France in agricultural products, however, is not likely to be much affected by the new policy because the farm products we sell to France consist almost entirely of essential commodities. Sales in the immediate future may instead depend primarily on price and supply.

Our steadiest market in France is for oilseeds, principally flax.

Macdonald College announces 'Royal'

Macdonald College will present the 11th annual Macdonald College Royal on Thursday, February 20. The Royal is organized and produced by the students of this college to demonstrate in a practical manner the work carried on in the various departments. Its aim is to aid students in choosing their careers, and it offers an opportunity for parents and friends to see the College at work.

All three faculties of the College take full part — the School for Teachers, School of Household Science, and the Faculty of Agriculture. Some of the outstanding features are — the booth displays by each department, the livestock judging and showmanship competitions, horticulture and machinery displays, fashion show, textile displays and cooking demonstrations and at the end of the day the Green and Gold of '58, a musical comedy stage show. The Green and Gold will be showing also on Wednesday, 19th, Friday, 21st, and Saturday, 22nd.

The theme of the Royal this year is "Advancement through Knowledge", and the show is to be opened by Dr. J. D. MacLachlan, president of the Ontario Agriculture College.

Agriculture show opens Thursday

The stage is set for the Sixth National Salon of Agriculture, to be held in Montreal from February 13 to 23.

This year's show will feature a big array of modern farm implements — for the large, medium and smaller-type farms, also for market gardeners, fruit growers and florists. Many Quebec farms are operated on the intensive system and there should be ample opportunity for these farmers to see equipment designed expressly for small acreages.

Since its start in 1953, the National Salon of Agriculture has kept in mind its two main objectives — to serve as a sales promotion medium for manufacturers and distributors, and, secondly, that the Salon has to have an educational value for the farmer. This education is not simply to educate the farmers in good husbandry, but also in modern mechanization methods, and ways to get the job done better, quicker, and more efficiently.

Quebec farmers have shown themselves keen to follow the trends in mechanization, in better livestock, and other phases of agriculture. And these people have been well cared for by the show authorities. The ladies, of course, have not been overlooked — for there will be cooking demonstrations, fashion shows, handicraft exhibits, etc.

The central organization of the Salon have kept in close touch with the federal government and the provincial Department of Agriculture, thus enabling them to take advantage of every facility these two governments have to offer.

Square dancing competition for Agriculture Salon

One of the most popular events staged at last year's National Salon of Agriculture in Montreal's big Show Mart was the Square Dance Contest, with seven teams competing, mostly from close to Montreal. This year for the Sixth Salon the interest in this typical rural activity has become really province-wide, and it is expected that a dozen teams may be entered. Already, entries have been chosen from Sherbrooke, Joliette, the Laurentians, as well as Montreal; and Lake St. John and Lower Quebec are staging elimination contests.

Because of the large entry expected, the contest will start on the first night of the Salon (Thursday, February 13) and continue through to Tuesday, February 18, when the final winners will be announced.

Sponsored in most cases by their local branches of the Quebec Women's Institutes, the many preliminary dance contests are sparking a lively interest in the Salon, and the competition for the provincial championships is bound to be keen. The splendid trophy, a golden bas-relief, is presently held by a team from Ste. Martine.

White Cane Week February 9-15

"This year's White Cane Week theme 'Prize Your Eyes!' is a message from thousands of Canadians who have a marked degree of restricted sight," said Mr. A. C. (Tony) Zaplaski, Field Secretary for Argenteuil in the CNIB. "Not all these people are blind, but the term applies to more than 22,000," Mr. Zaplaski emphasized.

Blindness in Canada means that visual efficiency has been destroyed and that the remaining portion of sight is not improved by glasses or other visual aids. Mr. Zaplaski pointed out that, "when a person carrying a white cane is seen actually looking at something, he is using his tiny percentage of sight as best he can. And who would quarrel with that? If you lost the use of nine fingers, would you not try to use the remaining finger if there was a job it could do? I think so, and considering how important sight is, one can hardly criticize those with limited vision for using it to its fullest extent."

Sometimes a partially-sighted person appears to see things better at one time than another. There may be many reasons. The extent of the eye injury, the nature of the disorder and the person's own background are important factors. Different kinds of visual handicaps affect different parts of the eye. These factors result in different degrees of sight.

In many cases of blindness the central portion of the field is destroyed by an injury to the optic nerve. This means that the sight is no longer useful at the centre. A person with no central field may well be able to see by moving his eyes from side to side or up and down so that the blank spot moves to the side. But when he looks directly at something it just isn't there. He could get about the street easily, but might have difficulty in locating a packet of cigarettes in front of him. His type of sight is always confusing to the fully sighted until it is explained properly.

This is White Cane Week, the time each year when the blind ask those who see to "Prize Your Eyes". You can never replace them.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

You'll have less trouble starting your car these cold winter mornings if you'll follow this routine:

(1) Shift into neutral and step on the clutch to free the transmission and ease the engine turnover.

(2) Before you turn the ignition key, push down on the gas pedal two or three times. This primes the engine so ignition will take place quickly.

(3) If your car has a hand-operated choke, pull it out all the way.

(4) Turn the ignition key and step on the starter. If the engine doesn't respond, take your foot off the starter and try again.

(5) When the engine starts, depress the accelerator slowly to avoid flooding the engine. Push the choke three-quarters of the way in. Give the motor a few minutes to warm up, then push it all the way in.

And most important — never race a cold motor. Let it idle for a few minutes before you back out of the garage.

Milk shippers take no decision on collective selling

Montreal —

A meeting of Montreal milk suppliers concluded last Saturday afternoon with less than one-third of its business completed.

The Milk Producers' Co-operative elected a new board of directors but ran out of time before new officers were named and a vote taken on a proposal for a milk marketing plan.

The directors' promised to have a new slate of officers named by February 17 and all other business was tabled until an April 12 meeting to be held in the Sheraton-Mount Royal Hotel.

Some delegates blamed the delay in business on a clique within the organization which was said to be seeking a representation on the board of directors.

The milk marketing plan, a major issue before the producers, has been suggested as a means to deal collectively with retailers in Montreal. Under the present arrangement, dealings between the retailer and producer are handled individually.

"The farmer today feels that while he is not in complete agreement with the tactics of organized labor he needs some method of collective bargaining if he is to maintain his livelihood in an age of rising costs," an official said.

Sun Life Reports Record $917 Million New Business

Continues to sell more life insurance than any other Canadian company; $7¾ billion insurance now in force; $34 million in policyholders' dividends.

With $917 million of new business during 1957, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada once again sold more life insurance than any Canadian Company has ever sold in one year. Policyholders' dividends during 1958 will amount to $34 million, up $2½ million from last year.

George W. Bourke, President, in presenting Sun Life's 87th Annual Report, stated that family security is of paramount importance, and the ability of life insurance companies to ensure that this security is maintained depends in large part on the activity of the company's representatives and the development and expansion of well-trained and efficient agency organizations. The Sun Life is meeting this challenge successfully and the $917,737,000 of new life insurance just sold is an increase of $63 million or 7% over 1956, the previous record year. Group insurance contributed materially to the 1957 new business figure, amounting to $243,185,000, or 26% of the total.

Total insurance in force increased during the year by $719,116,000, a record increase for any year, and amounted to $7,749,409,000 at the end of 1957, or more than twice the amount in force ten years ago. Included is $2,871,181,000 of group insurance, representing an increase of 13%. Annuity payments to be made by the Company either immediately or in the future under individual contracts and group pension plans increased during the year to $181 million per annum, equivalent to $2,400,807,000 of life insurance and bringing total life insurance and annuities in force to the equivalent of over $10 billion of life insurance. The number of Sun Life policies and group certificates now in force is 2,350,000.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS

During 1957 the Sun Life paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries in benefits under its insurance policies and annuity contracts a total of $155,111,000. This amount is $17 million more than the benefits paid out in 1956. Of the 1957 total, $49 million was paid to the beneficiaries of deceased policyholders, representing a substantial contribution to family welfare. Payments to living policyholders and annuitants amounted to $106 million. The total paid to policyholders and beneficiaries since the first Sun Life policy was issued in 1871 now amounts to $3,295,955,000.

$67 MILLION NEW MORTGAGE LOANS

Total assets of the company at the end of the last year amounted to $2,115,915,000, an increase of $107 million over 1956. Under investment conditions prevailing during 1957, Mr. Bourke stated, it has been possible to make investments at improved interest rates over those of recent years. The gross interest rate earned on the Company's assets increased in 1957 to 4.46% from 4.32% in 1956.

Sun Life mortgage loans now amount to $493,273,000. A total of $67 million was advanced in new loans during the year of which $50 million was advanced on residential properties and $17 million on industrial or commercial properties. Since 1935 the Company has advanced $359 million in Canada under the terms of the Government's Housing Acts, contributing greatly to the provision of homes for persons of modest means. Sun Life is proud of the fact, Mr. Bourke said, that it was the first company to support this important means of providing much-needed housing.

THE ROLE OF LIFE INSURANCE

Mr. Bourke also discussed the meaning of life insurance for the individual. It is the Company's responsibility to give the individual advice best suited to his needs, he explained, and this advice must withstand the test of time. The fundamental life insurance needs are still so far from full satisfaction that the life insurance industry has a great deal of room in which to grow and prosper. "The confidence placed in life insurance rests soundly on long years of performance," he concluded. "The record of Sun Life's 87 years of service to the public justifies us in looking forward to further achievements."

A copy of Sun Life's 1957 Annual Report to Policyholders, including the President's Review of the year, is being sent to each policyholder, or may be obtained from J. R. Paiement, Guy Paiement or O. H. Lagarde, Local Representatives.

Conditioning Cows

What can 100 lbs. of cow condition mean to YOU?

Repeated tests at the Purina Research Farm have shown that 100 lbs. extra body condition will produce up to 2,000 lbs. of extra milk in the following lactation. It takes from 5 to 7 bags of DRY & FRESHENING CHOW to do it. At a cost of approximately $28.50 for 7 bags, you get 2,000 lbs. of milk, which at $4 per cwt. gives you $80 — a profit of over $50 (or at surplus prices you make over $25.)

This is the most profitable milk you can produce, because it is EXTRA milk.

Cows conditioned on Purina D. & F. CHOW have a reserve of strength and condition to carry them through the ordeal of calving. This helps them calve easily and to clean quickly.

Try conditioning a few cows with Purina D. & F CHOW or D. & F. SPECIAL, formerly known as D. & F. Mixer, if you have plenty of your own grain to mix with it — and see the results for yourself!

Body condition is the key to milk production. Order your supplies today; we deliver.

Learning to Talk

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

A baby learning to talk is a fascinating process for parents to watch. Babies like to coo and babble and make sounds, long before they can recognize certain words and respond to commands. Among the first sounds babies make are "m-m-m" and "da", which are usually soon transformed into "ma-ma" and "da-da", to the delight of their good parents! Most children begin to say one syllable words between their eighth and ninth months. At one year a great many children have a vocabulary of from three to six words. In this mechanized age "car" is frequently a first word. "Go!" is another favorite which covers a lot of action!

By their first birthday average babies have a vocabulary of from three to six words. Cartoonists make a lot of jokes over a woman having "the last word" and loving to talk. It is no surprise to them that girls usually master the art of conversation before boys. Before they are two, little tots are forming very short sentences. Most of them, by then have acquired a vocabulary of almost thirty words.

At three years of age a child can probably use two hundred words. By the time he starts to school he can often talk fluently. "Only" children, because they are so often with adults, are sometimes early talkers. Twins have each other for company and are thus sometimes slow to begin to talk. Mentally retarded children are delayed in speaking, but sometimes quite bright youngsters are in no hurry to start.

If a baby is very slow to talk, the parents are often anxious. They wonder if there is anything they can do about it. At the same time they do not want to "fuss"!

Once in a while a bright youngster shows his resentment over his mother boasting to a visitor how well he talks, by suddenly not saying anything. If he is a little older and mother repeats his "baby talk" or odd pronunciation of a longer word, this may anger him. Children at any age love a joke, but they want mother to laugh WITH them not AT them!

Occasionally there is a physical reason for a child having difficulty in learning to talk. It is easily understood how a child who is in poor health may be very tardy about speaking. Malnutrition has the same delaying effect. Occasionally a child's hearing is so poor that he cannot hear sounds clearly enough to imitate them. The deaf child needs help from an early age.

Mothers sometimes wonder if their child's tardiness in talking is the result of being tongue-tied. This condition is rarely the cause of speech difficulty — not because so few children have it, but it seldom handicaps a child's speech. The baby who has been operated on for hare-lip or cleft-palate may require special speech lessons.

It is quite likely that there is no real cause for alarm. Perhaps the baby feels no need to talk. His devoted mother can read his sign language and his little cries are understood by her. If he points to his teddy bear with an urgent cry, she hastens to bring it to him. A little less alacrity to answer his every wish might help him to see the value of expressing his desires in words!

It is quite possible that his parents have been too ambitious for him to talk. They may have either nagged him or given too much attention to his occasional utterance. In self-defence he has retired behind the wall of silence. Baby will talk when he really wants to!

Country Women's gift fills need in Greenland

Wool from Australia to Greenland is an exchange reported between constituent societies of the Associated Country Women of the World. Exchanges of one kind or another are continually taking place between the various groups in the ACWW but this is the first of its kind.

At a conference of the Country Women's Association in New South Wales, it was suggested that this be done. As a result, wool valued at £44 was sent to the Women's Institute in Greenland to be made up into warm garments The shades selected reflected the colors of the summer landscape when the snow slopes give way to vegetation, green, blue, pink and yellow.

The item in "The Countrywoman", the ACWW publication from which this item is taken, states there is a shortage of skins in that country so for economic reasons many of the women have had to discard the traditional leather costumes.

Hospitality and Coffee Gossip

Probably just about everyone has heard of "Kaffee Klatsch". It's a German term which means a ladies' coffee party. Literally translated, it means "coffee gossip". The Kaffee Klatsch has become a popular custom in many Canadian suburbs and communities. This recipe for Danish Twist which is native to Denmark gives a delectable tidbit to go along with the hospitality and cups of tea and coffee served when neighbors and friends drop in. This pretzel-shaped twist with a crisp, interesting topping and filled with raisins is especially good served warm but it may also be served cold, if preferred. Served with butter, this yeast-raised coffee cake is a homemade work of art that brings a sense of accomplishment and pride to its creator.

Danish Twist

(Yield — 1 twist)

¼ Cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope active dry yeast, ¼ cup milk, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 well-beaten egg, 2½ cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1 well-beaten egg, icing sugar.

Measure lukewarm water into a large mixing bowl; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well.

Meantime, scald milk; stir in the ¼ cup sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Stir into dissolved yeast along with well-beaten egg and 1½ cups of the flour; beat until smooth and elastic. Stir in raisins and sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 1 cup more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Form dough into a roll about 28 inches long. Twist the roll by turning ends in opposite directions. Carefully lift the roll onto greased cookie sheet and shape into a large "pretzel" by forming the roll into a crescent then drawing ends into the arch and tucking them under to keep dough from untwisting. Brush with well-beaten egg and dust generously with icing sugar. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

BACKACHE May be Warning

Chili Con Carne or Chili Con Pescado
Southern Corn Bread
Coleslaw
Brown Sugar Custard
Coffee Tea Milk

(All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.)

CHILI TWO WAYS

Chili Con Carne (Meat)—In a frying pan, combine 2 tbsp. savory drippings, 1 minced large onion, 1 minced, seeded large green pepper and ¾ c. chopped celery. Saute 3 min.

Add 1 lb. chopped beef chuck put through the chopper twice. Stir-fry until nearly browned.

Add 1½ tsp. chili powder and 1 tsp. salt.

Meantime, combine and heat 1 (1 lb.) canned tomato and 2 (No. 2) cans red kidney beans in a 2-qt. saucepan. Add to the meat mixture. Simmer 30 min.

Next, prepare the rice.

To do this, brown 1 c. uncooked rice in 1 tbsp. bacon fat or butter. Add 2 c. water. Cover. Boil 20 min. or until dry and tender. Stir into the chili. Pass corn bread.

Chili Con Pescado (Fish)—Follow the recipe for Chili Con Carne. Instead of chopped meat, use 1 lb. small-diced fresh or frozen fillets of any firm-fleshed fish.

Southern Corn Bread: This corn bread has a moist, close texture and is not sweet

Combine the following ingredients: 2 c. enriched corn meal, ⅞ tsp. baking soda, 1 tbsp. sugar, 1wel l-beaten egg, 2 tbsp. melted shortening, 2 c. buttermilk and ¾ tsp salt. Beat thoroughly.

Transfer to an oiled 7"x11" cake pan. Bake 35 min in a moderate oven, 375 F. or until golden brown.

Brown Sugar Custard: Slightly beat 3 eggs. Stir in 3 c. cold milk, ½ c. light brown sugar, ⅛ tsp. salt and ½ tsp. pure vanilla extract.

Transfer to 6 medium-sized custard cups. Dust with a little cinnamon. Place in a pan of hot water.

Bake in a moderate oven, 350 F. about 30 min. or until a knife inserted in the centre comes out clean.

Remove at once from the hot water. Serve chilled.

Individual touch to old favorite

It's always a good idea to give an old favorite a new lease of life with a variation or two and a dash of imagination. For example meat loaf takes on added eye-appeal when given a new shape. In this recipe for Beef 'n Bacon Loaves we suggest the loaves be baked in individual baking dishes rather than one large loaf pan. The addition of bread crumbs gives a porous texture to these gay, individual meat loaves and a variety of ingredients that are sure to be staple items on your kitchen shelf lend an interesting flavor touch.

Beef 'n Bacon Loaves

3 Slices side bacon, 1 pound of minced lean beef, 1 cup coarse soft bread crumbs, ¼ cup finely-chopped onion, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon bottled prepared mustard, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup milk.

Grease 5 individual baking dishes. Preheat oven to 350° F. (moderate).

Cut up bacon and fry until crisp, then drain on absorbent paper.

Turn beef into a bowl and break up with a fork.

Sprinkle with bread crumbs, onion, parsley, salt, pepper and bacon; mix lightly.

Beat egg slightly; stir in mustard, Worcestershire sauce and milk. Pour over meat mixture and combine lightly.

Turn into prepared dishes and press into dishes lightly.

Bake in preheated oven — about 45 minutes.

Drain off any excess fat from loaves and turn out for serving.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Mary Fran Burke
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto (CP) — It may be easier to allow others to do the thinking when it comes to interior decorating, yet nowhere is it more important or more rewarding to be yourself than in your own house.

This was demonstrated by Mrs. Lissa Taylor of Montreal during her showing of co-ordinated home furnishings and fashions at the Canadian Furniture Mart exhibition here.

In her presentation of "Live Up to Your Personality" Mrs. Taylor provided suggestions on room decorating that would appeal to four different personality types.

She makes use of wallpaper, broadloom, upholstery and drapery samples. With these she showed a co-ordinated design appropriate to the tastes, interests and activity of the very feminine, the vivacious modern, the "avant garde" careerist and the woman who favors the traditional.

For color or texture arrangement Mrs. Taylor's advice is: "Try it on. See if it fits. Decide whether it contributes something worth while to you and your home. If it does, adopt it. If it doesn't then no matter how attractive it looks, it's not for you.

"Every room in your home, as well as every mirror, should reflect your own personality," she said.

If green is your favorite color, use it. Make it the dominant shade in your living room and emphasize it again in dining-room accessories. Or, if it's bright red that lifts your spirits, bring it out in gay startling accents in your home and wardrobe.

Modern Paints

There's been a revolution in home decorating, a "do-it-yourself" movement brought about by new types of paints. Modern paints are tailor-made for the homemaker who wants to do the job alone for they go on smoothly and quickly. Many have little odor and dry in just a few hours.

But before you take brush or roller in hand, paint experts have a few tips for easier and more effective painting.

They advise enamel for kitchens and bathrooms and a good flat or semi-gloss paint for halls and other rooms.

Walls, especially in the kitchen where a greasy film collects, should first be washed and rinsed. All loose paint should be removed by scraping and bare patches spot-primed with suitable undercoat. Fill all cracks and holes before painting begins.

It's best to take all light fixtures off the walls before starting to paint and to mask hinges and knobs which can't be removed. This makes for quicker painting and results in a more professional job.

Stir the paint until the color is completely uniform and the paint is of an even consistency. Never mix an oil with a water-based paint. A roller makes fast work of painting — but make sure it isn't dripping with paint.

To keep frost from forming on the windows this winter, rub the interior panes with a solution of one ounce of glycerine to one pint of rubbing alcohol.

Lipstick Shade

Canary red is the newest shade in lipstick. Experts say it is red with a touch of orange, and is just the color to go with a black, brown or navy outfit.

Fashions

Moygashel linen in stark white has been worked into a dress that is extremely smart, youthful and attractive. Its casual air makes it fine for evening and easily played down for day wear. A square neckline fore and aft is dressed up with three rows of fringe. The line is not quite chemise, but is definitely looser than a sheath.

Sun Life shows year of record insurance sales

Montreal — Sun Life Assurance Company broke all Canadian life insurance company records by selling $917 million of life insurance last year, seven per cent more than previous record in 1956.

George W. Bourke, president, told the annual meeting that total Sun Life insurance in force increased to $7,749 million (group insurance accounting for $2,871 million). The combined life insurance and annuity business in force was the equivalent of more than $10 billion of life insurance. Fifty-one per cent of this amount is in force in Canada.

Mr. Bourke said $155 million was paid to policyholders and beneficiaries in 1957, of which $106 million went to living policyholders. The total was $17 million more than was paid in 1956.

In 1957 $67 million was advanced in new mortgage loans, while the company's total mortgage holdings new stand at $493 million.

The company earned a gross interest rate of 4.46 per cent on its invested assets during 1957. Higher interest rates of today over those of many years past have resulted in expanding income.

Mr. Bourke said the company's surplus, which operates as a safety margin to cover the responsibility of the company to its policyholders, was increased to $150 million.

Sixty per cent of the death benefit payments made during the year by the Sun Life were as a result of death from heart and circulatory diseases. This was by far the largest cause, cancer ranking second, and accounting for 19 per cent of the death benefits paid.

"The high proportion of death claims arising from these causes indicates the need for extensive medical research in this field, and the Sun Life is continuing to make substantial contributions for this purpose," Mr. Bourke said.

Laurentian road to cost 40-million

Quebec (CP) — Finance Minister John Bourque stated that the 29-mile toll highway under construction between Montreal and St. Jerome will cost the provincial government about $40,000,000.

In his budget speech in the legislative assembly, Mr. Bourque said the government will have spent $12,500,000 on the project when the current fiscal year ends March 31.

The highway is to be administered by the Laurentian Auto-route Board. It is to be Quebec's first toll road.

At rabies inoculation clinic

Busy sessions as clinics staged for rabies inoculations

Three Federal veterinarians were kept on their toes during the morning and afternoon clinics yesterday, when a total of 221 dogs and 35 cats were inoculated at the Lachute Fire Station. Blustery weather did not have any deterrent effect on those seeking the free needle for their pets.

The first clinic was held in St. Philippe last Monday when a good turn-out was also reported, and clinics continue throughout the county for the next two weeks, the schedule appearing below.

Police-Fire Chief Fernand Trépanier advises that any dogs without inoculation tags attached will be summarily destroyed if found loose or straying after today. In addition to this, Dr. J. Frechette, one of the federal veterinarians, pointed out that, following the inoculation, a dog must be kept under close surveillance for a 30-day period.

Notary Latour chosen candidate for Progressive Conservatives

Notary J. Octave Latour, mayor of St. Benoit and registrar for the County of Deux Montagnes, was again chosen as standard-bearer of the Progressive Conservative party for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, in the coming Federal election. The choice was made decisive at a convention of the party, attended by delegates and supporters from all corners of the constituency, last Sunday in the parish hall at St. Hermas.

Mr. Latour, whose name was proposed by Mayor Léopold Carrière of Lachute, was the only nominee for the candidature; therefore a vote was unnecessary.

Opening Salvo of Campaign

The candidate, addressing the gathering, lauded the chief of the Progressive Conservatives, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, "He has fulfilled his election promises, he deserves the confidence of our people in this Province of Quebec, which has no right to confine itself to one party. We must now present a concerted effort to re-elect the Conservative government, which, in seven months of administration, has done more than the Liberals in ten or fifteen years."

Mr. Latour decried the recent Liberal convention as an indignity to the ex-leader, the Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent.

Without the support of Quebec, it is impossible for one party to adequately guide the affairs of state; we have present proof of that fact. It is no time, therefore, to divide the country politically, but to rally with the rest of our compatriots in voting the Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker back into power — Diefenbaker who has treated the Quebec electorate fairly, giving the province three cabinet ministers, two deputy ministers and three senators — while we gave him only eight M.P.'s."

Other Speakers

John Bumbray, Q.C., from the Montreal central committee, president of the convention, reviewed circumstances which had necessitated a second Federal election within one year; he spoke of the promises pledged by Mr. Diefenbaker, who was elected "in spite of the opposition from the Province of Quebec — not because the people lacked confidence in his party but because the Prime Minister of the time was a French-Canadian." Mr. Bumbray in conclusion urged the Quebec electors to vote at least 50 candidates into the Progressive Conservative government, including Notary Latour.

The Hon. Paul Comtois, deputy for Nicolet - Yamaska, Minister of Mines and Technical Surveys, was the principal speaker, reviewing the achievements of the government since its election to office last June. He spoke of conventions which he had attended recently, all supported by highly enthusiastic crowds. He compared the present prime minister with the Hon. John A. McDonald and Sir Georges Etienne Cartier. "Mr. Diefenbaker", he said, "is a man who fulfills his duty, concerns himself with the interests of both young and old, the disabled and the veterans, the farmers and city-dwellers. He gives himself wholeheartedly to the service of his country."

Among others who addressed the gathering were Mayor Carrière, co-chairman of the meeting; Gilbert E. Ayers, who "found in Mr. Latour an excellent candidate," and also indicated his wholehearted support; Notary Guy Blanchard, of Ste. Therese; Gérard Lefebvre and Linton Armstrong, both of Lachute.

Addressing the gathering, Mr. Ayers stated "a few people thought I should go into politics, but I feel we have an excellent candidate in the person of Notary Latour, whom I will support wholeheartedly."

Boyd's Express Ltd. receives mention for safety record

In the Quebec Safety League's annual contest for commercial vehicles, the 1957 fleet awards in the Inter-City Operation category include Special Mention to the local firm of Boyd's Express Ltd.

Among companies in this category having an operation of over one million miles, Hamel Transport, of St. Felicien, takes top award for safety, with an accident-frequency rate of 0.35 per 100,000 miles. (Total mileage 1957 — 1,700,000.)

Boyd's Express Ltd., which merits Special Mention in this class, had an accident-frequency rate of 1.9 per 100,000 miles. (Total mileage 1,445,000.)

Presentation of the fleet awards, including winners in the City Operation class, will be made at the 35th annual meeting of the Safety League to be held February 25 at the Mount Royal Hotel.

It is interesting to note that, while 0.35 is the lowest accident-frequency in Inter-City Operation, the lowest score for City Operation is 2.1. Winning company in this section was Bell Telephone.

The creditable record held by Boyd's Express in this annual contest is evidence to substantiate their motto, "Ship the Safe Way".

Reasonable efficiency, although Lachute police staff inadequate

Year's summary of department work given at Council

The annual police report was presented to Council by Police-Fire Chief Fernand Trépanier, at the regular session of Town Council held recently in the Town Hall. The report covers all aspects of the combined departments from January 1 to December 31, and reads as follows:

1. Service calls received by telephone, 1,726.
2. Complaints made and registered at the police office, 136.
3. Automobile accidents investigated, 192.
4. Vehicle mileage on patrol, 29,132.
5. Dossier cases (files kept in local office), 199.
6. Service calls by Fire Brigade, 62, of which 17 were outside the town limits.

"As you know, gentlemen," reported Chief Trépanier, "the Police and Fire Department has been extremely busy during the past year. In addition, we have had other duties, including controlling traffic generally, at funerals, at special church occasions, etc. All this work has been accomplished by five officers for the majority of the year. In order to do it, it has been necessary to divide a day into two 12-hour portions, and each man has had to work six days of 12-hour shifts each, before getting 48 hours off. In the event of urgent matters, even this time off has been cancelled. This has happened quite often, and I can honestly say that a week of 72 hours was rare.

"I would like to add that, during the past year, the department has functioned in an efficient manner considering the number of men and the hours each one has worked. There is room for improvement, but the main problem lies with an insufficient number of officers.

"I would like to thank all members of Council on behalf of myself and my men, for their support and collaboration, and I feel sure that the same situation will hold for 1958. I would also like to extend thanks to the population in general, without whose help we could not have accomplished anything."

Stole from autos in garage yard

Three district men pleaded guilty last week to charges of stealing merchandise from Laniel's Garage, Hawkesbury, and all were sentenced to jail terms. The three appeared before Magistrate Lalonde in L'Orignal.

Jean Dulude, of St. Andrews East, was sentenced to three months in the county jail; James O'Brien, of Carillon, received a six-month reformatory sentence; and François Roy, of Carillon, was sentenced to "three months indefinite."

Charges were laid by Hawkesbury police following the theft of merchandise from cars parked in the garage yard.

The three were questioned by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen and Police Chief Trépanier concerning thefts from cars parked in Lachute and St. Andrews, and following statements obtained from them, a report has been sent to the office of the Attorney General prior to any further action.

Roads, sewers biggest item in 1957 civic operation cost

Financial statement for year 1957 shows $13,050 surplus

Biggest bill of expense in the various departments of operation came under Roads and Sewers, amounting to $38,295.63. Costs for Police and Fire departments were $30,065.29, and Social Service $26,289.53. Town administration costs represented an item of $23,424.49 on the expense account for 1957.

The statement of town finances for the year 1957, as presented by the auditors, Corry & Moore, was a subject for study at the February council meeting.

The statement shows a surplus of $13,050.55 on the year's operations — with revenues $199,217.19 and expenses $186,166.64. Civic indebtedness in the form of loans and debentures stands at $292,500; while bonds redeemed and interest paid during the year amounted to $33,631.87.

Disturbing peace

Roger Ladouceur, 34, and Jean Charles Poirier, 27, both of Lachute, were arrested last week and charged with disturbing the peace, following two separate complaints lodged by local citizens.

They appeared before Judge Omer Coté on Friday last and were each sentenced to costs of the case and made to furnish a $200 bond to keep the peace for one year.

Youth defiant, draws sentence

A local 16-year-old youth collected a two-year jail sentence through his indifferent attitude in court last Friday, when he appeared before Judge Omer Coté charged with the theft of $15 from Jacques Poirier, also of Lachute.

Judge Coté listened with a sympathetic ear to certain aspects of the case, including a plea from the youth's mother. When asked if he would make an attempt to reform if allowed to go home rather than to jail, the rock 'n roll fan shrugged his shoulders and told the judge to do whatever he felt like.

"It doesn't seem to bother you one way or the other", remarked Judge Coté, "Two years might change your attitude."

Echo of thefts in Huberdeau

Jacques Gaudreau, 18, of Mont Laurier, was arrested last week and charged with breaking into the Huberdeau Orphanage restaurant, where the sum of $5 and $25 worth of cigarettes and chocolate bars was reported stolen.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen also laid a charge of theft of a vehicle from Huberdeau, and he reports he is looking for a second man in connection with the case.

French-language laurentide weeklies form organization

Groundwork for the organizing of an association of Laurentian editors and publishers was completed at a recent meeting at the Hotel Maurice in St. Jerome.

Eight French-language weekly newspapers were represented, and it was aimed to group publications from Ile Jésus north to Mont Laurier, and from Lachute east to l'Assomption, in this organization of similar interests.

Fernand Berthiaume, of L'Argenteuil (Lachute) was appointed president, and Marcel Léonard of Terrebonne, secretary, both pro tem.

Next meeting will be held at Ste. Therese during April, when representatives of at least 15 weekly newspapers will be invited.

Richelieu Club urges clean-up on obscene literature

The Richelieu Club, at its last semi-monthly meeting, voted to support the current public morality campaign throughout the province — specifically by requesting the town authorities to see that newsstands are purged of all obscene periodicals and publications.

Notary Jacques Beaudoin, president, expressed his opinion that — even though child welfare was the prime objective of the organization — the club should take an equally definite stand and voice its convictions on a public evil such as this corruption of morals.

There was no speaker, and the program was devoted entirely to club business. About 30 members attended.

Monday evening, February 24, the Lachute group will join other Richelieu Clubs of the district to greet the District Governor, Marcel Toupin, at a supper meeting in Ste. Therese.

Charge of theft

Following investigations by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen and Lachute Police Chief F. Trépanier, Roland Malette, 27, of St. Jerome, was arrested and charged with theft with violence from the person of Nicholas Vampack, also a St. Jerome resident.

The theft took place in Lachute last Wednesday evening, February 12. The accused appeared in court at St. Jerome on Tuesday for preliminary inquiry.

Carnival at Ayersville is colorful mid-winter event

Ayersville folk were in a gala mood for the four-day frolic which concluded Tuesday evening — the first winter carnival held in this comparatively young community. The event was planned by a group of citizens to aid the "Loisirs" committee. Heading the group was Maurice Dumas, whose enthusiasm infected his able assistants and enlisted the generous support of many collaborators.

The program of proceedings opened Saturday night, when Mayor Maurice Champagne presided for the inauguration. Feature attraction at this stage was the crowning of the Carnival Queen, Miss Thérese Bélisle, which was followed by dancing in the two school halls of the parish.

A parade Sunday afternoon, in unco-operative weather with snowflurries and general unpleasantness, gave an impetus to the second day's proceedings. A spaghetti supper (à la Jean Marani) was held that evening in the Clément School. The occasion was a complete sell-out.

An amateur program was held later in the Immaculate Conception School, featuring 24 items and over 40 contestants. Young Jacques Lafortune, ten years old, was the singing star judged finest in the contest. Second prize-winners were Lise and Ghislaine Pharand who sang a duet, "Song of the Carnival", of their own composition — which was adopted as the carnival theme song. The Jolly Mountaineers, instrumental duo (Pierre-Paul Bedard and Roger Laframboise), won third prize, while Miss Claire Lepage and her trio won fourth award. Guest entertainers for this occasion were the popular Marlette Vaillant and Omer Dumas, folklore specialists, accompanied by Americano Funaro, accomplished guitarist.

Monday was devoted to juvenile attractions, with games and contests for the pupils of both Ayersville schools. Philippe Joly, chairman of the school commission, supervised the day's activities.

Highlight for many of the younger residents was the grand masquerade winding up the program Tuesday evening. This was the time for presentation of the prizes. (Maurice "Rocket" Richard, who was to have appeared on this occasion, had to cancel the engagement.)

Streets were appropriately lighted and decorated, an ice palace regaled the scene, while ice sculptures and the traditional "Bonhomme Carnaval" completed the general festivity attending this successful carnival in Ayersville.

Mentioned for Liberal candidature

Bernard Gosselin, left, a chemist at the Brownsburg C-I-L, and Antoine Paré, St. Andrews East and Montreal lawyer, who have both announced their intention of allowing their names to appear before the Liberal Convention, to be held in Lachute Auditorium March 1. Mr. Gosselin is well known from his Provincial campaigns in the last two elections, while Mr. Paré was a candidate in last June's Federal election.

Commissioners on quiz panel at Home and School meeting

The Lachute Home and School Association met in the music room of the High School on Tuesday, February 11, under the chairmanship of the Rev. J. R. Watson. Business was quickly dispensed with and the chair turned over to Dr. J. MacKimmie, who acted as question-master. He introduced the panel — Messrs. J. McGibbon, L. Duncan, D. Bradford and E. McOuat, members of the local School Board. . .

From here on the meeting took the form of a discussion, from which the parents learned how members of the board are elected, and what qualifications are required for the position.

The question of finances appeared to be the most important — income being derived from various sources. The main contributions come from general assessment and provincial grants. The bulk of the expenses is most naturally for instruction, which eats away 76.3% of the total.

The biggest problem which faces the school management is the question of space, with the ever growing numbers of young people around school age. Parents were assured that plans were under consideration and that the problem is receiving the attention it deserves. Parents were invited to inspect emergency measures which could be used immediately if desired. . . School transport is another item which needs more attention, for at the present time over 50% of the pupils travel by bus to and from school.

The question was asked if Crossing Patrols could not be provided for the younger children. Principal Fred Royal pointed out that, if the older students undertook the task, some 60 pupil-hours would be lost each week. The loss of this time would hamper classes a great deal. Furthermore, it is a technical point as to whether a crossing guard has the authority to stop traffic in order to assist children, or merely confine his duties to stopping children.

The Board expressed a desire to co-operate with the Association, to maintain as high a standard as possible for Lachute High School.

The meeting was then adjourned and members retired to the Household Science Room, where coffee was served.

The next meeting will be on March 11, on the theme of Vocational Training, when experts on Nursing, Banking and the Bell Telephone will give short talks, designed to assist parents whose children are almost ready to leave school. If this type of lecture is favorably received, Dr. MacKimmie, program convener, will arrange for more at a later date.

Carnival queen crowned

Proceedings of the Ayersville Winter Carnival officially opened last Saturday evening when the Queen (Therese Belisle) was crowned by "Bonhomme Carnaval". Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

The Province of Quebec Association of Guides and Outfitters are asking that the Moose season be made two weeks earlier. That means right into the rutting season; so that all they will have to do is go out and shoot them. The outfitters give the reason as ice forming on the lakes, etc. They could be right, too. I'm sure that there will not be any change by the Department of Fish and Game until everything is checked out. I don't think they will change it, though.

• • •

I didn't hear of any great catches of perch being taken around St. Placide this past week. Not very many fishermen were out in the cold. Another thing, the minnow situation is not good. From what I have been told they are going all the way down to Missisquoi Bay trying to get them — with not much luck. This ice fishing gets into your blood in a big way!

• • •

I was up toward Lakefield on Sunday. I didn't get that far because of the roads, but had a lot of fun. I see someone has been fishing through the ice at Sir John Lake. Taking a chance? The number of deer tracks around the sandpit on Ted Hammond's property, is terrific. I know I should keep quiet about this, but I don't think there is much danger of anyone going in there unless they are all equipped for darned deep snow! There didn't seem to be many partridge around, but the rabbits were out in force. The foxes also seem to be doing all right.

• • •

Reading an article on the Gypsy Moth that was bothering the timber men in New York state. That's the caterpillar that makes those big clusters you see on some trees. They strip the leaves right off. They hatch into the moth and go on about their business of laying more eggs. The Forestry Service sprayed the forests with various solutions; they were so anxious to get rid of it that in some cases they used concentrations of poison 10 times stronger than wildlife can survive in, with the result that a terrific amount of trout were killed in the world-famous Neversink Stream. The landowners in most cases were not consulted about the spraying, with the result that no official opposition to the job was ever thought of. One group got an injunction to have it stopped, but no luck. The article states that it will never be known how much damage was and is being done by this spraying. It's strange that they should be so strong on conservation of wildlife and then blow the whole thing by doing this. The trouble seems to be that there is no co-operation between the different departments. I'm sure though, that something will be done about this, as the Neversink attracts people from all over the world for its trout fishing. I'm not sure about this, but I believe that you must use artificials on this river; flies or nymphs.

I had a good look at the water in the North River this past few days, and it seems to be reasonably clean. The last couple of winters this river has been sluggish, so that the water never had a chance to clean itself. This year the water is flowing much faster, with the water being much cleaner, and no garbage on the ice.

Believe it or not, but the collection of the garbage around our area is still being thought of. There doesn't seem to be one person with a truck who will pick it up. Not that I really blame them, as it will make their trucks pretty grubby. But I hope we can get something done shortly. Maybe our Mayor could help us in this job. It doesn't seem to be a very good subject for a sports column, but this is all connected with conservation; and as I said before, about the mess on the river at other times, it doesn't make you feel so good. But one thing I will say, most of the people along the river HAVE done something about it. There is so little garbage on the river at present it doesn't seem the same place! Could be that it will be dumped in when the ice breaks up, but I don't believe that will happen. It's really great; all I can say is, keep up the good work, and thanks! It won't take long to get this reasonably clean, and then we will be proud of our river — instead of having to say it's polluted, be able to say it's clean. . . I know it is not polluted, but most of you think that it is, so I won't argue about this.

With the weather being cold for the past few days, it doesn't seem that anything would be around; but the crows are! A couple of them were seen on Thursday. So if they keep coming, we'll have some fun. They probably have been around all winter, though. It won't be long now for the crows, then the guns will get another work-out. . . Have you figured out how many days to fishing? Count them; not too long now, eh?

I guess you fishermen will be looking over all the new tackle that is being put on the market. Boy, they sure are getting some doozers. Imagine an electric reel, operated by batteries. What with auto reels, electric fish-callers, perfumed baits, etc., we will have to have a special car to take us fishing. Nearly all these gimmicks are from the States, so I don't think we will be getting them too soon.

If any of you gents have read the Fishing Annual, take another look at the article "Be Different, Catch More Fish." Some good reading in this. The hints in it have been gathered over a period of time. One of the hints that I liked was, if you weren't getting fish trolling the ordinary way, that is, slow — try speeding it up. Some of the fishermen have been pulling their baits through the water like speedboats and getting very good catches. Boy, if all the angles on how to catch fish were ever written up, it would make the world's biggest volume — and I'll bet one of the most read!

The members at the Association meeting in December will remember our secretary, Bob Giles, asking Mr. Bourque, the Superintendent of Fish and Game, why the names of hunters convicted of any offence were not published in the papers. At that time he stated that most of the papers were not interested in printing this material. But The Gazette in its article by Izaak Hunter (February 8) gave names, etc., of three Magog hunters caught for jacking deer and carrying loaded rifles in the car. That is one of the biggest deterrents to violating Fish and Game laws that we have, and the more publicity given these offences, the better it will be. The thanks of every sportsman should go out to the wardens who had the guts to go out and get them. Especially Warden E. Goudreau. Some of the biggest offenders in this are just a little west of our area. They are going to get careless once too often, then our wardens will be very happy to get this cleaned up. Lots of luck to them!

You know I mentioned about the junk being thrown out of cars. Take a look at some of the roadsides right around Lachute just now, and see what I mean. There's no excuse for that. I guess the people are just too lazy to take it or have it taken to the dump. Or maybe they are like us, can't get anyone to take it. But surely they could hold it until some arrangement is made.

Bombers enter Quebec-Ontario league finals

Brownsburg — The local Bombers coasted into the Quebec-Ontario Hockey League finals by trouncing Ste. Anne's 7-3, in Ste. Anne de Bellevue on Monday night.

The first period ended in a 1-1 deadlock after Ranger had opened the scoring at the 9-minute mark, and Dimock passed to Charlebois for the equalizer four minutes later. Ste. Anne's was short-handed at the time, with Harris off for holding.

The local squad racked up an impressive four-goal lead in the second period. Bouvrette scored on passes from Renaud and Norbonne after 7 minutes, and Legresley countered a minute and a half later with Charlebois and Racine assisting, Norbonne picked up his second point when he beat Daigneault, after being set up by Jean Guy Renaud. Ste. Anne's was short-handed again at the time, with Taylor sitting out a tripping penalty. Marc Bouvrette added goal number five two minutes before the end of the second period, when he combined with Norbonne and Renaud.

Scoring was even in the third period, with both teams netting two counters. Dimock fired the Bombers' sixth marker at 13.30 assisted by Charlebois and Racine. Ste. Anne's replied one minute later, when Harris and Moon passed to Gregg, who beat Buddy Racine. Two minutes later Willis MacAdam picked up Brownsburg's 7th goal, unassisted. Harris completed the scoring, netting Ste. Anne's third marker three minutes before the final buzzer.

Ste. Anne's players spent 12 minutes in the penalty box, while the Bombers had a total of eight non-productive minutes.

The first game of the finals between Brownsburg and Cornwall takes place on Thursday in Brownsburg. It is probable this will be a hard-fought series, since Cornwall appears to have improved in their games with Buckingham. They are a "hot" team at the moment, and Brownsburg has had a week of inactivity. Subsequent games are scheduled for Friday, February 21, in Cornwall and Sunday, February 23, in Brownsburg.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

And still it burns!

Only as recently as last month, Lachute Town Council again issued instructions to stop all burning at the local dump. However, for three days last week, a scene similar to this was in evidence at the site.

Council has a large sum of money invested in equipment to bury garbage, but at the present time it is being used to clear the streets. If this can be done after the work at the dump, and still not damage the machine, all well and good, but the thick smoky stench from the dump has to stop.

Council has issued orders, and it is up to Council to see the orders are carried out.

Night-time fire alarms

IT HAPPENED again early Sunday morning and again, members of the Lachute Fire Brigade were fortunate enough to extinguish all signs of fire.

It was shortly after 2 a.m. Sunday when the fire call was phoned in from Ayersville. Two of the three policemen on duty answered the call, taking the fire truck and police car. They arrived at the scene to find it "a little bigger than expected" and only following that, was the general alarm sounded. This meant a loss of a good five minutes from the time of the call before volunteer members of the brigade were at the scene.

It can work in the daytime, if an experienced man is on the truck and knows exactly what assistance is needed, but it cannot even be attempted at night. The five minutes lost was sufficient to have a raging inferno that would have burnt to the ground. With people sleeping in the building, it would have been just that much worse.

Seconds count, and due to this, it is going to have to be made a standing and fast rule that after 10 p.m., every fire call is answered by means of a general alarm and all equipment. If not, perhaps it will backfire the next time.

Facts about rabies

STUDYING the information on rabies, it is difficult to crystallize the facts of this disease into a definite pattern, for the reason that there is much variance in the period of incubation and also in the behaviour of infected animals.

Available knowledge of the disease is summarized in a leaflet issued by the Canada Department of Agriculture (Animal Diseases Research Institute, Hull, Que.), which may be procured from federal or provincial health and agricultural officers, or the local police station. Advice on times and places of the inoculation clinics in this County has been duly publicized. For the further information of our readers we quote the following paragraphs from the above-mentioned pamphlet:

Four or five days before an affected animal is visibly ill, and during the entire period of its sickness, the virus is present in certain body fluids, particularly in the saliva.

All species of animals are susceptible, some in greater degree than others — the dog, wolf and fox being the most susceptible.

Transmission of Disease

Any means by which the virus is transferred from an affected animal into the tissues of another animal or individual, serves as a means of transmission. The usual means however is by a bite.

There is great variation in the period of incubation. Why this period should be variable is not known. The animal is not dangerous until four or five days before the disease actually manifests itself. But from this time on, a dangerous virus is present in the saliva.

Owner's Responsibility

When rabies is found present in a district, owners of dogs, cats and farm animals must co-operate with the authorities if the disease is to be eliminated. Too often owners will object to confining, muzzling or maintaining dogs on a leash, apparently under the supposition that nothing can happen to their animal. It is this false kindness that perpetuates rabies in a district and lengthens the time of eradication.

Vaccination against rabies does not necessarily mean an animal will not develop the disease. Consequently an animal that has been exposed to the disease, whether it has been vaccinated or not, should be kept under control until the danger period has passed.

In a district where rabies is known to exist care should be taken in the handling of animals that are ill from an undetermined cause. A veterinarian should always be called.

Care of Exposed Persons

When a person is known to have been bitten or scratched by an animal that may be affected with rabies the family physician should be called promptly, and the would should be thoroughly washed with soap and water for 15-20 minutes, changing the fluid frequently. Following this, tincture of iodine should be applied to the depth of the wound.

Diagnosis

In general, symptoms of rabies infection are characteristic and recognizable by a competent person. This does not apply in the early and late stages of the disease, nor of course when the animal has died without being observed. In such instances the diagnosis must be made by laboratory study of the animal's brain.

Observations

Neither weather, food nor location have anything to do with causing rabies. Only the specific virus is responsible.

The quarters of a rabid dog are likely to become infected. Bedding and utensils will have been smeared with virus-contaminated saliva. Everything pertaining to the animal must be cleaned and thoroughly disinfected before they are used again.

Milk and flesh from an infected cow are dangerous for food purposes.

Care should be taken against the possibility of the virus gaining entrance to the body through cuts and skin scratches.

Education in the spotlight

ONE OF THE most representative meetings ever held in Canada is seeking solutions for the country's educational problems this week.

Nineteen professional, commercial, labor and veterans' organizations, with more than 2,000,000 members, sponsored the Canadian Conference on Education which opened at Ottawa, February 16. The delegates represent all those bodies and about 70 others, and came from all parts of Canada.

All the country's religious denominations are taking part.

The conference was set up to study every aspect of education — pupil needs, teacher training and recruitment, courses of study from elementary school to university and beyond, and building requirements.

The conference is not expected to bring immediate results. The idea of the sponsors was to put the spotlight on education in all its phases — to pinpoint the good points and the bad points of the educational system and suggest ways to improve it.

Education is everybody's business. Nearly 120,000 teachers, school principals and administrators work in Canadian schools to educate more than 3,000,000 children. The cost of public education services is estimated at more than $750,000,000 a year.

Provincial grants to local education authorities amount to about one-fifth of all provincial revenue and municipalities spend from 30 to 50 per cent or more of their revenue on education.

It has been estimated that within 10 years the school population will need more than 38,000 new classrooms; and that within 20 years the secondary school population will be tripled and university enrolments will have increased four times. A serious teacher shortage is imminent.

The hope is that findings of the conference will be widely discussed across Canada — at meetings of parents and teachers, union meetings, women's club gatherings and so on. Out of this discussion may come a crystallizing of public opinion to guide the governments that must take action if important results are to be achieved.

Who was the first woman university graduate in Canada?

Grace Anne Lockhart, born in Charlottetown in 1855, graduated from Mount Allison University in 1875, with a B.Sc. degree. This was the first university bachelor degree granted to a woman in Canada. It may have been the first in what is now the British Commonwealth, except for a medical degree conferred by the University of Edinburgh in 1812 on a woman masquerading as a man. In 1881 Miss Lockhart married the Rev. John L. Dawson; they had three sons.

Which orphan became the head of, and gave his name to, a chain of groceterias?

Theodore Pringle Loblaw was born at Elm Grove, Ontario, in 1872. Left an orphan, Loblaw went to work in a Toronto grocery store, owning his own shop in 1900. In 1919, in partnership with J. Milton Cork, he founded the Loblaw Groceterias Ltd. They built up a flourishing business, which, at one time, included an American chain of 158 stores. By 1948 they owned 119 stores in Ontario. Upon the death of Loblaw in 1933, Cork succeeded him as president of the company.

Which was the first National Park in Canada?

Banff National Park owes its origin to the discovery of hot springs of medicinal value on the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains by engineers surveying for the main line of the C.P.R. The Government with considerable foresight retained these lands as the property of the people of Canada as a whole. In 1885, therefore, the Rocky Mountains National Park, as it was then called, was established with an area of 10 square miles. There are 28 parks stretching across Canada with an area of more than 29,000 square miles.

Life Insurance aids Heart Foundation

Many people are making good recoveries from severe heart attacks. New advances in medical science and surgery are saving their lives. However, many more lives may be saved if, through research, the causes of heart disease can be determined.

Research of this nature is a long range project. It requires highly trained workers and the most modern equipment. These cost money.

Last year, with timely financial assistance from the Life Insurance Companies, the National Heart Foundation of Canada began to correlate and step up the tempo of research into the causes of heart disease.

This is just one of many ways in which the Life Insurance Companies in Canada are encouraging medical research that will help Canadians live longer and more happily.

Self-improvement

I picked up an old, old book the other day and found some fascinating information about self-improvement.

The book was written almost a century ago, but I checked up with some important present-day authorities and find that the facts are all in order.

If you want to improve yourself, you can take courage from these findings.

If, for example you exercise your right arm in order to make it stronger, you will discover, much to your surprise, that you have strengthened more than your right arm. Your left arm will also appear to be stronger, even though you did not use it in the exercise. According to the old book I've been reading, there is a reason for this. In your exercising you strengthened your will. A good deal of your strength lies in the will, rather than in the muscles. Many a husky man has found this out when floored by a skinny, weak-looking opponent — with a strong will!

Self-improvement is all embracing. Practice charity, for example, and your faith will be strengthened too. Practice thrift and your earning power will increase. One virtue contributes to another; there is a progression which works in your favor once you take the first step forward towards virtue.

This progression explains why some specialists have also a remarkable variety of additional skills. In becoming truly great in their specialty, they have strengthened the will. A good doctor, for example, could become a fine mechanic quickly.

So, do not be too concerned about the position you now hold in life. Do it really well, and you strengthen yourself in countless ways, ready for fresh opportunities. A really fine store clerk increases his ability each day to become the owner and operator of the business.

It must be admitted, however, that the same rules apply in reverse. Do a poor job in one line, and you deplete your ability to do any other kind of work. The lazy, sloppy contractor who dreams of becoming a great contractor dreams in vain, because he has climbed on the skids which are greased with his own shortcomings.

Whatever this day brings you to do, do it as well as you can. Then you'll be ready to do a better, more important job tomorrow. It can't be otherwise. These are laws of nature. Work with them and you succeed. Disobey them and you fail. It is that simple, and that difficult!

Some people think that newspapermen know everything. Others firmly believe that they are not only ignorant, but nearly illiterate.

There does not seem to be any middle ground. I have friends in both groups. Long may they disagree! And long may they continue buying the paper — as both of them do.

Both parties like to call the newspapers and ask questions. They are equally welcome. But the first group — those who think we are all-knowing — cause us the more worry of the two. They really expect us to snap back with the answers, and are disillusioned if we cannot.

Knowledge is more highly prized than it used to be. Russian scientific achievements have fired politicians with zeal for starting algebra in kindergarten.

Quiz contests have turned millions of persons into human jackdaws, plagued with a neurotic itch to seize shiny facts and carry them off to their nests.

The result is that people are asking the newspapers more questions than ever before. Some of them ask because they really want to know. Others ask because they know already, and get a kick out of proving how dumb newspaper folk are.

In either case, it is a pleasure to answer questions. When they come five minutes before a deadline, haste dulls the enjoyment somewhat. But answering is fun, all the same.

Since newspaper folk are an inquisitive crowd in the first place, the queries often catch their imagination to such an extent that they can't rest until they find the answer.

"Hold the phone a minute," they say, and then they go rummaging through their books and files.

After a newspaperman has turned the office and library inside out in a search for Genghis Khan's middle name, he is inclined to get violent when the questioner says: "Oh never mind; it doesn't matter."

A questioner may get away with this over the telephone. But if he attempts the same trick while visiting the office, he is in danger of being knocked on the head by a volume of the encyclopedia.

Dalesville man pioneer prospector and trapper in B.C.

Late Duncan McGibbon

The funeral of Duncan Lothian McGibbon took place in St. Paul's United Church, Burns Lake, B.C., on January 27, with Mr. W. G. Gibson officiating. The simplicity of the service was in keeping with the character of this pioneer.

Being a veteran of the First World War, the coffin was draped with the Union Jack, on which lay wreaths of popples. The pall-bearers were all members of the Canadian Legion.

Born at Dalesville in 1888, Duncan was the son of the late William and Mary McGibbon. He went to B.C. in 1907 and worked as a logger. In 1908 he moved north to Copper River which is now known as Terrace, where he worked carrying mail by canoe and dog-team through the area.

While staking claims on Nine Mile Mountain near Hazelton in 1912 he met Roy McDonell with whom he became a close friend and partner. While prospecting in the West Tahtsa country, the two men struck silver, lead and zinc ore and staked out the well-known Emerald Glacier Mine.

Mr. McGibbon served overseas in the First World War and on his return, finding that times were hard, he went to Vancouver Island for a while. The call of the north was too strong, however, and he returned to his beloved Ootsa Lake and his many friends. There he remained in his little cabin, prospecting and trapping.

He enjoyed good health until his final illness, passing away in hospital at Burns Lake on January 24.

He is survived by one sister, (Alice) Mrs. Gordon Townsend, of Montreal.

He is survived also by his mother, Mme Calixte St. Jacques; his two brothers, Aristide and Henri, of Lachute; and three sisters, Mme Lionel Pilon, Lachute, Mme M. Arbic, St. Eustache, and Laura.

Mines Minister bi-linguist; sparks in two languages!

It seems that the Hon. "Bill" Cottingham set something of a precedent in Quebec last Friday, and the Premier sparked an incident which drew sharp repercussions from the Opposition. Here are the facts as reported by Wilbur Arkison in The Gazette:

Quebec, Feb. 14 — For the first time in the Legislative Assembly's history, a Minister of the Crown today gave his answers to questions by the Opposition in both the French and English languages.

Involved was Hon. William M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, who managed the nearest approach to "simultaneous translation" witnessed.

The performance was given during discussion of the estimates of the Department of Mines and occurred after Premier Maurice Duplessis whispered to the mines minister to "speak French".

At the time of the Premier's interruption, Mr. Cottingham was being questioned in English by Paul Earl, Liberal member for Montreal - Notre Dame de Grace.

Tells Premier "Very Kind"

Mr. Earl objected to the Premier's intervention and told Mr. Duplessis he was 'very kind' to minorities when he asked an English-speaking minister to reply in French.

"And I know the Premier knows that my knowledge of the French language is limited," declared Mr. Earl.

Premier Duplessis answered that both languages were "official" in the Quebec Legislature. He reminded in the Legislature.

ed Mr. Earl that the majority of members in the House were French-speaking.

"Under these circumstances it would be courteous for the minister to reply both in French and English so all the members can understand," the Premier said.

Emilien Lefrance, Liberal member for Richmond, speaking on a point of order, declared: "The Premier should not order his minister to speak in French when he is answering an English-speaking member."

Mr. Duplessis replied again that the majority of the members of the Quebec House were French-speaking and both languages were official.

"Under these circumstances," said the Premier, "when a minister answers in English he should also answer in French."

Opposition Leader Georges Lapalme said he felt confident all members of the Assembly understood both languages.

Mr. Lapalme declared that the Premier was "lacking in courtesy" when he ordered an English-speaking minister to speak French, particularly when he was answering questions put to him in the English language.

The Premier said minorities in Quebec received better treatment in this province than "minorities anywhere in Canada."

Mines Minister Cottingham reminded the House that he was an English-speaking Protestant who represents a county where French-Canadian Catholics were in the majority.

Says rabies in foxes not least exaggerated

[Contributed by Norman Thorburn]

It grieves me much, that a columnist for The Gazette should have derided the rabies scare around Lachute. (I was offered a position on the reportorial staff of that famous newspaper, almost 33 years ago.)

Here are some facts for you to chew upon, Mr. Hunter! Just a week or so ago, Mr. Kopec's dog was bitten by a rabid fox. The fox and dog were both destroyed. This man lives about three miles east of our farm.

Glen Warwick, our milk-truck driver, saw one on the Vide Sac road, while driving past Mr. Fred Wilson's home. He tried to kill the obviously-diseased animal with his truck, but failed to do so. Travelling several miles farther he stopped his truck, and the Wilson home was contacted by phone. Fred Wilson and his father chased the fox with pitchforks, and alerted their neighbor, Mr. Harold Wilson, who shot the crazed animal in his yard.

A few days ago, Harold Wilson was driving along the Vide Sac montée when he espied another rabid fox, in a ravine near Stanley Smith's. He proceeded to Lachute, to the home of a well-known citizen. That citizen took down his trusted gun and followed Mr. Wilson, in his own car, to the spot where the fox had been seen. The man fired at the fox, and seemingly wounded it, but it took off into the bush. . . The man who fired that shot wore a clergyman's collar! The population of Upper Lachute thank the Rev. Mr. Bridge for his public-spirited act.

And just yesterday, Bert Dodd, the Clark brothers' helper, saw a fox following his horses and sleigh. The fox was acting curiously, so he called for help, before the crazed animal bit his horses. Ken Clark, the remorseless slayer of wolves, and foxes, brought out his reliable shot-gun. He saw a strange sight before his eyes, a menacing animal advancing towards him. One shot from this veteran of the trails sufficed.

Henry Kopec, Mr. Kopec's son, has a half-mile of wooded terrain to travel to reach his school bus. My own son has the same distance to walk, to reach the school bus. Young Kopec has been seen with a nail-studded club in his hands, which I don't doubt the lad would use in an emergency; the Poles are a brave race. My own son took a maple club with him this morning.

The fox trails used to be countless around here. Now there are few — an enemy more terrible than the guns of man, has them in its toils — rabies.

Public Notice

Notice is hereby given that local public meetings will be held in the different parts of the county for the selection of delegates for the Liberal convention to be held in Lachute, at the Auditorium on March 1st, 1958, at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Liberal electors interested should contact the local Liberal organizer as to the exact hour and date of this local meeting to be held, at the latest, before the 25th of February, 1958.

Spotlight on Red Cross financial appeal

Miss Alice Riddell, one of the senior members of the local branch Canadian Red Cross, points to calendar indicating date of the "blitz" appeal for financial assistance to be launched in Lachute and, simultaneously, in Brownsburg. The interested onlooker is Bruce Jeffery, youngest Lachute member of the Junior Red Cross, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffery.

Keep porch lighted for Red Cross canvassers Mch. 3

All citizens are requested to leave their porch lights on to welcome the Red Cross volunteer canvassers on Monday night, March 3, when the "blitz" drive for funds will be carried out simultaneously throughout Brownsburg, Lachute and surrounding areas.

It is imperative that the canvass be as near complete as possible on the one evening, and local residents are asked to have their donations ready so as not to delay canvassers any more than necessary.

Bernard Jenkins, chairman of the Lachute campaign, pointed out that "the canvassers are giving their time, and the organizations will appreciate anything the general population can do to make their task easy."

The humanitarian service of the Red Cross organization is well known, and it is also common knowledge that the majority of emergency workers, such as are found in the local branches, are unpaid volunteers.

"Emergency relief food and shelter, bedding and clothing, blood bank equipment and other Red Cross services, have increased in cost at no less a rate than our day-to-day household items," a worker pointed out, adding, "The local campaigns will provide funds to assist with the purchase of these items."

"The local branches of Red Cross must have sufficient funds with which to operate," said M. E. Cowley, chairman of the Brownsburg district campaign. "Our quotas for the provincial organization must be turned over besides, and it is this money which will return to the area in much larger quantities in the event of a local disaster."

In the event that canvassers may miss any local residents, contributions can be sent to either the Lachute or Brownsburg branches of the Red Cross.

Morin Heights — At the first congregational meeting in the new Christ Church at Mille Isles, Mr. Gilbert Ryan was re-elected people's warden, and Mr. Garnet Woods re-appointed rector's warden.

Vestrymen elected were Messrs. Max Ryan, Ronald Patterson, Melville Dawson, Victor Ward, John Ward, Albert Ward, Arnold Patterson, Norman Patterson and Matt Noble.

The total cost of the new church had been $15,077.16, including landscaping. Donations had been received to cover all but $6,500 of this amount. The use of offering-envelopes was introduced for the first time. Receipts for the year had been at a new high, and all current accounts had been paid.

It was unanimously agreed that good wishes should be expressed to Col. G. M. Strong for his leadership in the building of the new church, and with a hope for his speedy recovery from his recent operation. . . The Rev. Horace G. Baugh presided.

At St. Sauveur Church of St. Francis

At the Church of St. Francis in St. Sauveur on Sunday morning, the altar was decorated with a huge floral Valentine, placed behind the Cross, specially made for the church to blend with the rector's message on "The Heart — Love, and the Cross." Dozens of red and white carnations were in the foreground. Several hundred skiers crowded the church and joined heartily in this popular 40-minute Sunday service.

Top-rated pianist in recital Feb. 25

"Here is a truly extraordinary pianist, one of the most exciting young Americans to flash into the concert world in many a day." . . "Music-making such as we seldom have the opportunity to hear." . .

These two extracts from the Washington Evening Star are typical of plaudits in the wake of Theodore Lettvin, wherever his recitals have been heard on this continent and elsewhere.

This young Columbia Artists star will be welcomed by district music-lovers in a Community Concert performance at Lachute High School next Tuesday.

The Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada asks you to share this satisfying experience. Join in the wonder and the work of the World Day of Prayer!

County health officer gives facts in humorous vein

Members of the Rotary Club were fortunate in hearing an address by Dr. Lorenzo Turcotte, Director of the County Health Unit, in which he explained some of the duties carried out by himself and the members of his staff.

Dr. Turcotte, introduced by Rotarian Jim Campbell, pointed out that a Health Unit, being a non-commercial organization, does not benefit from large publicity drives — as do patent medicines. "Of course, we do get some free publicity from dissatisfied taxpayers and editorial writers, but this is only stimulating, and it is not this which makes our faces red. . . It is rather a flush of satisfaction when we look at our 1957 report and find that almost every item of our educational program has been covered. We made 4,058 contacts for education and organizations; 84 talks to more than 3,000 sleepy listeners; and handed out more than 3,200 health pamphlets.

"We personally met 4,364 babies during the past year, the majority of whom came with their mothers to seek simple formulas for sound nutrition; sleeping formulas (for baby, mother and dad); painless teething formulas, and many others. These were the children brought to the 178 'Well Baby Clinics' throughout the County.

"Included in our work last year were vaccinations and inoculations against diphtheria, whopping cough, tetanus, polio, smallpox, TB, and even Asian flu, for a total of 8,499 persons. It is here I would like to point out that the permanent staff of the County Health Unit is composed only of one medical officer, a sanitary inspector, four nurses and a secretary — which is not many, when you consider we have the whole County to cover and protect.

"Your Health Unit is not a hospital, a treatment centre, or even a Victorian Order service. Prevention is our specialty; we prefer stopping a wife-tired husband from jumping in the river, rather than using artificial respiration after he has drowned. It is cheaper to give Salk vaccine than to buy iron lungs or wheelchairs.

"The local organization is not a detective agency. Nevertheless, we do track down a few contagious cases: 156 homes were visited, 40 children sent home from school, and 51 suspicious cases examined. The most alarming epidemic at the present, however, is rabies in foxes," added Dr. Turcotte.

"The anti-TB League last year took 6,995 chest X-rays throughout the County, our organization supplementing this with an additional 1,045. Eight new TB cases were found, of which six are now in sanatoriums or already returned from treatment.

"We are not members of a hunting club, although we do hunt such things as lice and similar pests, both in and out of season! Also, we are not (and I am serious at this point) an agency to help Mr. Troublemaker get even with Mr. Busybody, with whom he has a bone to chew. More than 60 per cent of our complaints received originate from personal grudge, and I doubt if two per cent are made with genuine public health interest in mind. To explain the procedure that must be followed in answering a complaint would take more time than I have at my disposal, but during 1957, our Sanitary Inspector answered 260 such useless calls.

"In addition to these calls, he made 88 visits to slaughter houses and butcher shops; inspected 258 pasteurizing plants in dairies and milk-producing farms; 293 wells, waterworks and sewer systems; 56 schools, hairdressing parlors, public halls, swimming pools and beaches, hotels and taverns; 153 restaurants, grocery stores and bakeries; collected 288 samples of water, milk, cream and so forth; corrected 43 contaminated water supplies and confiscated 251 pounds of meat, fish and 9,680 pounds of milk.

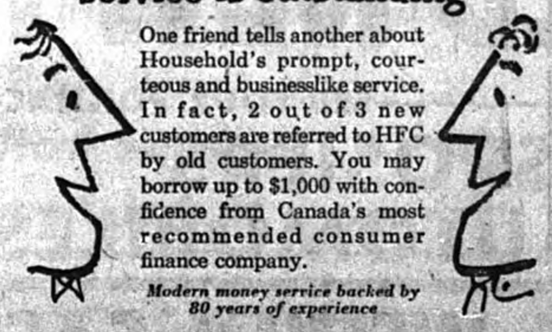

"A total of 66 dwellings were investigated and inspected last year following complaints, and steps were taken to rectify those complaints considered legitimate under Provincial Health laws.

"A Health Unit is not a dictator," Dr. Turcotte added, "as hygiene is somewhat like a religion. It has to be believed in, not imposed on. It is an independent, impartial advisory board, having at its disposal highly qualified and experienced specialists in each branch of its activities, conscious of its responsibilities and able to make sound and reliable recommendations on Public Health matters.

"Last year, 5,118 homes were visited by our three nurses, a total of 50,347 miles being recorded for duty only." In this domain, Dr. Turcotte pointed out, car owners receive only five cents per mile, while the cost of operating the average car is set at ten cents a mile. "The local Unit operates on less than $1 per person per year; and you do not need your pocketbook when entering, as everything is free."

In closing, Dr. Turcotte informed the group that more complete details could be found in the Department of Health's annual report. "There you will see how your Health Unit shows up in the general picture, and especially, the results of our work in the TB, infantile and contagious disease mortality rates."

Prize-winning beef steer was fed on whole-wheat bread

Mrs. Ethel McGibbon, Dalesville, is pictured patting the prize-winning steer which was judged third best in the entire "Salon of Agriculture" show in Montreal last Thursday. The animal won first in the Fat Steers in the Shorthorn breed. Mrs. McGibbon's sister, Mrs. Geo. Coombes and herdsman Bill Brass proudly look on. —Engraving courtesy N.D.G. Monitor

One of the most amazing stories to come out of rural Quebec is surely that of a Dalesville steer, entered in the sixth annual "Salon National de l'Agriculture." . . .

The steer is the youngest in the Show this year, just 11 months old and weighing some 750 pounds. It was entered under the name of Mrs. Ethel M. McGibbon of Dalesville, Que., and when judged last Thursday evening, it came off winner of the Fat Steers in the Shorthorn Class.

When contacted at the home of her sister, Dr. and Mrs. George Coombes of Westmount, Mrs. McGibbon told one of the most fantastic stories to come to our attention in many years — the story of the steer's regular diet. It seems that he was continuously fed on A & P's Jane Parker whole wheat bread, which Mrs. McGibbon is in the habit of purchasing at the A & P, Lachute, when it has supposedly become what is called on the second day "stale" and sold at a reduction off the regular price. Mrs. McGibbon said that on many occasions, as the supply of "stale" whole wheat is limited, she tried time after time to slip her steer some white, carefully concealed under the brown, but nothing doing, the steer would eat the whole wheat and deliberately push the white aside.

It certainly is a strange story, and just what it proves, we will leave to you, but we do know that when the steer was rolled (or examined, as the layman would have it) it was found that there was no excessive fat on the animal, just solid meat.

When A Boy Wants A Gun

An illustrated booklet supplying the answers to numerous questions that arise when a boy or girl wants to use a rifle, is being made available in Canada by Canadian Industries Limited.

The booklet, entitled "What Every Parent Should Know When a Boy or Girl Wants a Gun", explains the instinctive desire in every youngster to handle firearms. It answers such questions as: Is he old enough? what benefits will he receive from the sport? and how can he participate in organized, supervised shooting with only a nominal expenditure?

Copies of the booklet can be obtained free of charge by writing to Dominion Marksmen, P.O. Box 10, Montreal.

Profitable Hog Production

If a sow farrows a small or weak litter, or if the pigs fail to make fast growth during their first few weeks, you are up against a hard handicap. You simply can't make much on that lot. So feeding and care of the brood sow and nursing pigs are basic to Profits.

The average litter on Canadian farms when weaned is 6.2 pigs, and the average at Purina Research Farm, on Canadian Yorks, is 10.2. That is 4 extra pigs at practically no cost. . . Or take it the other way — say it cost $30 to feed the sow and litter to weaning; then each pig would cost you $3, against the small litter cost of $5 each. Now, if you were buying them, you'd sooner pay the $8 for the pigs that cost $3 to raise, than $3 for the pigs that cost $5 to raise! By feeding your sow and raising your pigs to weaning age, there should be $50 extra profit for you, if you follow the Purina Feeding Plan.

See us for your supply of PURINA CHOWS and ask for the Purina Plan. Let us help you make some real money! We deliver.

Roughage feed for beef calves

Roughage in the form of silage or hay can be fed with equal success to beef calves being wintered for growth. W. A. Jordan, of the Central Experimental Farm in Ottawa, says corn silage or grass silage is equally suitable and the choice between these roughages should be governed largely by which one the farmer can produce best and most economically in his farming program.

At the Experimental Farm, fall-weaned calves which received either grass silage or corn silage to appetite, along with four pounds of mixed legume and grass hay and two pounds of meal daily, did equally well. Both rations produced an average daily gain of .8 pounds. Approximately 80 per cent of the dry matter consumed was supplied by the roughage.

Lennoxville Experimental Farm reported similar gains when rations of mixed legume and grass hay, grass silage, and meal; or hay and meal were fed to beef calves. They also found that grass silage and meal produced a slightly higher gain, indicating that good quality grass silage can be the sole roughage when fed with a small amount of meal.

The gains made by the calves in these various tests were very satisfactory for growth and development and, in all cases, were obtained by making maximum use of roughage and minimum use of grain.

District Forums take look at farm market legislation

The Harkness Bill came in for some criticism by the Farm Forum following the National Farm Radio Forum broadcast, which dealt with the more important aspects of it.

Those Argenteuil County Forums which commented on it, think it is a good beginning, but as East Settlement says, "It will not fill the farmers' dream of a healthy market with good prices." Ogdensburg points out that it might help farmers in their present dilemma, but the extent that it does so well depend upon the manner in which it is applied and administered. The Agricultural Prices Support Bill was criticized for the same weaknesses by other Forums in the province, and several remarked that they do not believe it will have any beneficial effects.

At the same meeting the groups took a look at the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and their own local organizations. A good summary of opinion is that of Harrington: "We consider that the CFA is doing the best job it can under very difficult circumstances. It represents many organizations scattered over Canada's many miles, and our farmers have so many varied interests, that what pleases one group may not suit another. However, farmers as a whole would be badly off without CFA." Lachute Road branch agrees and supports the argument by pointing out that freight assistance on feed grains was obtained by the CFA. Odgensburg, as a number of other groups in Quebec, would like to know more about the work of the CFA. They think CFA should carry on more publicity. Some groups would like CFA to be more firm and demanding on their behalf. Still others would like a stronger organization, and emphasize the necessity of all farmers joining it.

Grading standards for Christmas trees

Ottawa — The Department of Trade and Commerce announced that the Christmas tree industry of Canada has taken initial steps to establish national grading standards for Chrismas trees.

At a meeting in Ottawa held in January, a committee representing the industry, governments, and related agencies, and convened by the federal Department of Trade and Commerce, reached agreement on the grades to be adopted and on ways and means to bring these grades into use.

The annual production of Canadian Christmas trees is valued at more than $8 million and annual exports at over $5 million. As the bulk of Canadian production is marketed in the United States, the Committee adopted a system of standard grades similar to that recently established in that country. It was agreed that the application of these grades should be voluntary. Since the grading of individual trees will, therefore, be carried out by producers, dealers, shippers or others in the trade, the Committee decided to prepare a manual on grading. This manual will be supplemented by practical training in the field provided by qualified instructors.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Your child at school

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Public instruction should be the first object of government," Napoleon once said. Our boys and girls must attend school until they are sixteen. Do we as parents give much thought to all the different kinds of things they are learning there?

The home and the school must have not only harmony but understanding of the purpose of school training. Life is more complex today than a generation ago and teachers must teach much more than "The Three R's" to our boys and girls. Schools are trying to guide the intellectual, the physical, the social and the emotional development of scholars. These are not four separate compartments of life, but are inter-related. The teacher in each grade has a school curriculum of various studies which she must teach to her class. At the same time, she treats each scholar as an individual with different capacities and needs.

The training of the intellect is much more than the memorization of facts and the acquiring of knowledge. This is necessary of course, but a scholar must also learn how facts are related to life. A little child does not first learn arithmetic from abstract tables, but from counting concrete objects. He knows that there are two wheels on big brother's bicycle and four wheels on his little wagon. Mother has helped him count the wheels himself, not once but many times .. "one . . . two; one, two three four . . ."

The older scholar learns where to look for information and to observe carefully and record accurately what he sees. The teacher opens for him the wonders of the changing seasons, and turns the pages of the Book of Nature. Boys and girls find at school the answers to many of their questions. They are encouraged to think to arrive at their own conclusions. In many centres a whole classroom visits the Public Library with their teacher every other week.

The physical training at schools includes time set aside for organized games and exercises in the yard outside or the gym. Under a competent teacher, boys and girls benefit greatly from this instruction. They also grow in their own idea of the sensible rules which contribute to good health.

The importance of being able to get along with other people is widely recognized in today's world.

Scholars develop as social beings not so much by reading text books, but by working and playing with others. In the projects in the classroom under the teacher's direction, pupils add to their store of knowledge and they also practice co-operating with others towards a definite goal.

A grown-up who is emotionally ill-adjusted cannot be considered a truly educated person. Many of the fears and worries from which men and women suffer can be traced back to experiences in childhood. Parents need to give a child the feeling of security which accompanies the knowledge that he is loved and has his own place in the family.

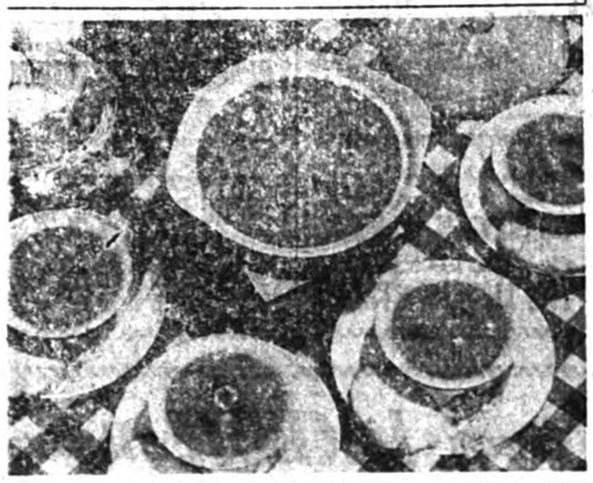

At school he must "take turns" and conform with the rules of good sportsmanship. Gradually a scholar leaves behind temper tantrums, sulking, crying — the explosions he used as a little child when life was too difficult for him. One of the most valuable ways in which a teacher helps a pupil is by giving him the encouragement he needs in order to achieve emotional control.

There is no greater task in all the world than the training of a child to become a useful well-adjusted happy member of a community. The future of Canada rests with those boys and girls sitting behind their desks in the hundreds of schools scattered across our land, in the valley of the Rockies, on the wind-swept prairies, in the North Country, in Central Canada and the Eastern provinces. What your child learns at school depends not just on the teacher or on her equipment but also on the understanding and cooperation of the mothers and fathers. How much "backing" do you give your child on the road to receiving an education?

PLAN "WINTER WEATHER" MENUS

Brisk winter weather brings a tide of fresh enthusiasm and equally enthusiastic appetites. New ideas in the cooking department are always welcome.

Here is an idea that will be met with approval by the family when they come home to lunch. Sit them down to steaming bowls of clam chowder with grilled cheese and bacon sandwiches.

Cold night? Give everyone a warm welcome home with fragrant steaming tomato soup, hotdogs and orange and grapefruit salad.

To win praise from guests plan a soup supper. Pass brimming bowls of vegetable soup, with a new twist. Mix and match vegetable soup and bean with bacon soup and just for fun add browned ground beef. Then the meal is complete with toasted cheese bread and relishes. Here are the directions for a truly new winning beginning.

VEGA-BEEF SOUP

½ pound ground beef
1 tablespoon shortening
1 medium onion, chopped
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed vegetable soup
1 can (1¼ cups) condensed bean with bacon soup
1 soup can water

Brown beef with shortening in a saucepan. Remove beef. Brown onion in pan. Pour in soups; blend well; stir in the water. Simmer a few minutes to blend the flavours. Add beef to soup mixture just before serving and heat together. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SOUP SCOOPS

COOK POTATOES WITH CONSOMME

Rich flavour steeps into potatoes when you cook them in condensed consommé. Just peel about 4 to 6 medium potatoes; cut into chunks about 1 inch size. Simmer these in ½ can (⅔ cup) condensed consommé in a covered saucepan for 15 minutes. Then remove lid and cook over low heat about 10 minutes or until potatoes are tender and sauce is slightly thickened. Serves 4.

SPAGHETTI-HAM MAKES A MEAL

When you've just a little ham left, turn it into a complete dish by mixing with a can of spaghetti in tomato sauce. Combine about ½ cup cooked diced ham with the can (15 ounces) of spaghetti with tomato sauce. Heat well. Serve on a platter garnished with browned onion rings. 3-4 servings.

HEAT V-8

Guests anytime will "go for" a snack of hot V-8 juice with cheese and crackers. To fix juice simply heat it and pour into large size mugs. Drop a pat of butter atop each mug-ful.

Gold-frosted spice cake

Here's a new variation of the ever-popular spice cake that is sure to be appreciated by all who taste it. This delicately spiced cake with an unusually good volume is complemented by a Golden Frosting which is practically fool-proof to make. Swirls of Golden Frosting turn this cake into a thing of beauty, which, because of the frosting, should be served with a fork.

Spice Cake

(Yield — one 8-inch square cake)

1¾ Cups once-sifted all-purpose flour (or 2 cups once-sifted pastry flour), 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ground ginger, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup fine granulated sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Grease an 8-inch square cake pan and line in the bottom with greased waxed paper. Preheat oven to 350°F. (moderate). Sift the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg and cloves together 3 times.

Cream shortening: gradually blend in sugar. Add eggs, part at a time, beating in well after each addition. Combine milk and vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture, alternately with flavored milk. Turn batter into prepared pan and spread evenly. Bake in preheated oven about 50 minutes.

Stand cake in pan on cake rack for 10 minutes, then turn out on rack, peel off paper and allow cake to cool completely. Frost with the following Golden Frosting:

Golden Frosting

(Yield — Sufficient frosting to cover top and sides of an 8-inch square cake.)

1 Egg white, 1 cup lightly-packed brown sugar, ¼ cup cold water, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Combine egg white, brown sugar and water thoroughly in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water and beat constantly with a hand rotary beater or electric mixer at high speed, until frosting will stand in definite peaks — about 7 minutes. Remove from heat and beat in vanilla; continue to beat until frosting is of spreading consistency.

The chemise silhouette is here to stay, despite various objections.

At a recent fashion show in Toronto all styles were variations of the chemise. Toronto and Montreal dress houses say they're making them to keep in business even though they dislike the new silhouette.

A compromise was also noted in the collections — it is a line that is fitted in front and loose at the back. It was also shown with a half-belt.

At the recent spring showings in Paris three of the world's leading fashion designers, Jacques Hein, Pierre Cardin and Patou, showed the chemise but with a very short skirt.

Hein's skirts were 18 inches from the floor, baring half the kneecap, while Cardin's hemlines flirted with the kneecap and Patou's came barely below the knee.

The trend this spring is to more and heavier jewelry since the casual lines of the chemise silhouette demand it.

Colors for spring include japonica red, coral red, geranium red, lemon and grapefruit yellows, stem and foliage greens, spice tones, and lake, sky and royal blues. Black has taken a back seat, for the first time in years.

Tasty Touches

Uncooked cereals, such as oatmeal, cracked wheat, farina and other granular cereals, will give crisp, tasty coats to panfried or deep-fat fried poultry and other foods like chops, fish and croquettes.

Dip food to be fried in a well-beaten egg with a tablespoon of milk. Then roll in uncooked cereal and fry in heated fat.

Beauty Plan

How would you like a beauty plan so simple, so direct, it need take only a few minutes each day?

Here are the essential steps to beauty — simple daily exercise for the lithe young figure, a sensible diet, rich in fresh fruit and leafy vegetables, sufficient sleep, and most important of all, thorough complexion care.

A basic routine of cleanse, refresh and smooth is the secret of a glowing complexion. First, rotate cleansing cream over the face and neck, letting the heat of your fingers melt the cleansing oils that float deep-down dirt out of the pores.

Next, tissue off all cream and go over the face and neck with a cotton pad saturated with skin lotion. Then use a fresh pad, more lotion and a brisk patting to arouse the circulation. Always pat upwards. This helps to tone and firm the muscles and to refine or tighten pore openings.

After the skin is cleansed and refreshed apply a night cream according to the requirements of the skin. Then with fingertips, pat briskly until the skin tingles. This patting helps to further stimulate circulation and makes the skin more receptive to cream. Tissue off gently, leaving a thin film on the skin overnight.

Wife Preservers

A colorful and tasty salad can be made with coarsely grated carrots mixed with raisins and crushed pineapple, tossed with mayonnaise and served on crisp greens. The mixture can also be molded in a lemon or gelatin base to make a delicious and colorful salad.

Tashions

A soft, curly fabric, a blend of mohair and wool, is worked into this distinctive coat. It can be worn for regular wear or for dress wear. Because it takes nicely to almost any accessories, the large collar can be draped to suit and is placed above a wide tuck that describes a yoke line. Two flapped pockets complete the model in the new "egg" silhouette.

Red Cross drive reaches peak with 'blitz' canvass Monday

All is in apparent readiness for the Red Cross "blitz" to be held in the Greater Lachute and Brownsburg areas on Monday, March 3, getting underway at 5.30 p.m. Objective of the Lachute organization is $3,200, exactly double that of the Brownsburg committee, and any funds collected in excess of these amounts will be put to use by the local organizations — the above-mentioned sums going to headquarters for work of a wider nature.

The "blitz" in Lachute will be touched off by parades in both the East and West Wards of town, these being organized by Colin McOuat and Georges Défosses. Canvassers will start knocking on doors at this time, and they will turn cards and collections over to their respective captains as soon as their sections are completed. The captains in turn will report to Treasurer C. E. Richardson at the Lachute Auditorium, where he and his committee will verify the cards and complete the reports. A similar set-up will be in operation at Brownsburg, where the Social Club is being used as headquarters.

Mrs. Mac Walker, Mrs. Jacques Bedard and Mrs. J. A. Gordon have headed the organization in Lachute East, West and sourrounding communities, respectively, while Donald M. Hay recruited captains for the businesses of the district — the canvass of which, incidentally, is all but completed. Outside Districts were organized by Doug MacKimmie.

The campaign is progressing favorably in each of the outlying sections, according to all reports, with similar word coming from Mrs. C. E. Richardson and Mrs. J. E. Leonard, in charge of "names for special attention."

"Householders of all districts are urged to leave their porch lights burning until the canvasser has called, and to be as generous as possible," pleads B. A. Jenkins, chairman of the Lachute campaign. He, and Hubert Lemire, co-chairman, report a most enthusiastic response from all contacted to assist with the organization, and both have voiced their confidence in its successful outcome.

Rabid foxes grow more venturesome, enter town limits

Rabid foxes appear to be drawing closer to the town boundaries, according to all reports — Police Chief Fernand Trépanier having been called out to Ayersville Tuesday morning to shoot one of the marauders, which was captured and lodged in a woodshed by Albert Montpetit, 156 Hamford Street.

The fox was first noticed by Mr. Montpetit crossing under his verandah. He reports grabbing it by the neck and throwing it in the woodshed; he then immediately notified the Lachute Police. Chief Trépanier shot the animal through a hole in the wall; the first bullet hit the animal between the eyes, but it took another two to fell it.

The animal, which was frothing at the mouth, had other noticeable symptoms of rabies, and the carcass was turned over to the Federal veterinarians who are presently in this County holding inoculation clinics for household pets. Another fox was on Monday reported to have been seen in the vicinity of the Lachute Curling Club.

A Labrador Retriever dog owned by Paul Laliberté was destroyed on Tuesday, following a battle with a fox which was found dead a short distance from the Laliberté home, across Copeland's Bridge, east of Lachute.

Evidence of the battle, which took place in the Laliberté yard, led to an investigation and although the carcass of the fox was found on the road, between Laliberte's and Moore's, the dog was found to have been bitten near the eyes, and had to be destroyed.

From Calumet, it is reported by our North Grenville correspondent that Bruce Rourke was attacked by a mad fox, and although he suffered no ill effects, his rubber footwear bore tooth-marks in two places.

Lettvin, pianist, is warmly acclaimed by Lachute Community Concert audience

Theodore Lettvin's performance here Tuesday night, in a pianoforte recital at the High School, fulfilled every expectation of Community Concert members who had read the accounts of triumphs scored by this young artist in many concert engagements. It was the second program of the three-concert series here this season, and there was a fair crowd in attendance to enjoy the rare musical treat provided.

Lettvin — a young man whose artistry in no way isolates him from the human qualities of his audience — proved himself on equally understanding terms with the Masters, Bach, Schubert, Beethoven, Chopin, Prokofieff and Liszt. In his repertoire of varying moods, themes and tempos, he interpreted these in such manner as would statisfy the most exacting maestro. Lettvin's superb technique complemented his understanding — through the passion of Bach and the rhythm of Chopin, through the disturbing harmonies of Prokofieff and the stirring tumult of Liszt in Lenau's "Faust". Although but few of his selections were familiar to the lay audience, they sat enthralled for two hours, while this young musician worshipped at the shrine of the great composers.

Fish and Game meeting held

The regular monthly meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association was held last week in the Legion Hall, Lachute — 18 members being in attendance.

Main point of interest at the meeting was a motion by Jean Jacques Dupré, seconded by Frank Bédard, that any director of the Association who misses three meetings during the year be automatically relieved of his duties.

A report on the recent "Through-the-Ice" fish derby was heard, indicating a loss of approximately $46.

Several members "wondered" why the local game wardens were so conspicuous by their absence at the majority of the meetings.

A silver collection of $4.06 was taken up and turned over to Secretary Georges Sevigny, and a decision to notify members by postcard of all coming meetings, was unanimously approved. The meeting was then adjourned, until March 17 in the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

Oblate missionary, Rev. R. Lafleur, to conduct pilgrimage

The Rev. Louis-Roger Lafleur, of the Oblate Order, is personally conducting an air pilgrimage to the Lourdes Centennial this year. . . Brother of Dr. Jules Lafleur and member of a well known local family, Father L.-Roger Lafleur is well remembered by many in Lachute, despite his infrequent visits to his former town.

This is one of 10 pilgrimages that will be flown to the European Continent in 1958 by the Catholic Travel League in conjunction with Sabena Belgian World Airlines.

Father Lafleur's group will depart June 5 from New York. Members will spend 16 days abroad visiting all of the major shrines in Europe. The group will arrive at Shannon Airport in Ireland. The complete itinerary of the air pilgrimage includes visits to Ireland, Belgium, France, Spain and Italy. In all of these principal countries in Europe, the pilgrimage will visit many shrines and places of historical and cultural interest.

Minister procures grant for Chamber of Commerce; tourist bureau re-located

The president and directors of the Lachute Chamber of Commerce gratefully acknowledge receipt of a $500 grant from the Provincial Department of Trade and Commerce.

The president of the local Chamber, Miville Trickey, advises that application for this amount was made through the Hon. Minister of Mines, W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A. for Argenteuil, and that it was required to subsidize expenses accrued in publicizing this area to tourists.

Until last fall the Chamber of Commerce maintained space at the Caisse Populaire on Main Street, to answer enquiries from tourists and also distribute literature and brochures on points of interest in the area.

Inasmuch as Saturday is the most likely day to receive enquiries of this nature, and due to the fact that the Caisse Populaire is not open on that day, the Board of Directors unanimously agreed to relocate the Tourist Information Bureau to the Dupré Sport Shop at 507 Main Street, Lachute, to be in a better position to inform tourists at the more likely times of enquiry. Little activity is experienced in this field during the winter months in this area but summer brings an avalanche of requests of a great variety.

The Provincial Department of Trade and Commerce is responsible for the Tourist information, and operates many offices and booths for this purpose throughout the province.

The local Chamber of Commerce will now be in a better position to continue its work in this field, thereby developing trade as much as possible when it is to be had.

Convention Saturday to select official Liberal candidate

Both Liberals and Prog. Conservatives open election campaign this week-end

The convention of the Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes Liberal Association — in which delegates from the polling divisions of the two counties will select a candidate for the coming Federal election — is called for Saturday, March 1, at 2 p.m. in Lachute Auditorium.

The Hon. George C. Marler, former Minister of Transport in the Quebec cabinet, will be here to preside for the selection of a candidate, and will also officially represent the Central Liberal Committee in Montreal.

Some 300 accredited delegates will decide upon one of the two known candidates for the nomination — Bernard Gosselin, chemist, in the employ of C-I-L at Brownsburg, and Antoine Paré, advocate, of Montreal and St. Andrews East. The candidates will be allowed several minutes to address the convention and outline their program, the delegates then being required to cast their votes.

These proceedings will be followed by a public meeting of old-time political flavor, in which several notables of the Liberal ranks will launch the opening salvos of the campaign for the party in this constituency. Among the speakers will be Senator J.-Eugene Lefrançois, Lionel Bertrand, ex-M.P. for Terrebonne, the Hon. George Marler and others.

Conservatives announce opening public meeting

It has just been announced that the local Progressive Conservative campaign in favor of J. O. Latour, of Ste. Scholastique, official candidate for this constituency in the forthcoming election, is to begin with a grand opening in Clement Hall, Ayersville, at 2.30 p.m. this Sunday, March 2. Supporters from every section of the two counties of Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes are expected to be on hand to hear a number of notable speakers in French and English.

Mr. Latour, Registrar for the County of Deux Montagnes and Mayor of St. Benoit, was the unanimous choice for candidate at a convention, held in St. Hermas a week ago Sunday, when delegates and supporters from every corner of the two counties packed the parish hall to capacity.

Rotary finds club cannot assist in operation of Lachute Spring Fair

King Amos, president of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, announced to members last Thursday that "the Board of Directors does not see how the Club can in any way help the Argenteuil Agricultural Society in the operation of the Lachute Spring Fair." The decision was reached following a meeting of the directors with several members of the Society, and followed a considerable amount of study. The resultant feeling was that "any money spent at the present time would be money down the drain."

President Amos, continuing his informal report to the members, announced with regret the resignation of Dudley Boal, and named Phil Grant as director of the International committee.

Dates for special meetings were announced — March 20 being designated as Ladies' Night; April 3 as Children's Night; March 13 as Nomination Night, with the election of officers to be held March 27.

A donation request from the local branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind resulted in considerable discussion at the meeting of directors (President Amos added), with the result that the board approved the purchase of a kit for the use of an opthalmologist to be used in examining eyes, the doctor expecting to be in Lachute once a week. The purchase price was announced in the vicinity of $250. Commenting on the approved purchase, President Amos stated: "The prime object of the CNIB is to prevent blindness, and this kit will help them do just that."

A report on the Rotary Park was presented, indicating funds at a low level and an increase in personnel necessary during the month of July, when as many as 250 persons at a time use the facilities of the park. A decision was reached that a committee of Rotarians approach the Councils of Brownsburg and Lachute, requesting that they pay the salaries of superintendents of the park, allowing the Rotary Club to spend additional funds towards its improvement.

Following an appeal for new members, an interesting film on the search for oil was screened.

Six resolutions passed at Conference on Education

By Roy LaBerge,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — A national conference was held here last week to discuss the kind of person education should produce, but that aspect was mentioned only indirectly in resolutions adopted at the close.

The Canadian Conference on Education, a 4½ day gathering of more than 850 delegates from all parts of Canada, adopted 32 resolutions in all. They dealt with grants, research, curriculum, student aid, buildings, teachers, and the role in education of the home, industry and commerce.

Lt.-Col. Kurt R. Swinton, of Monreal, chairman of the conference organization committee, said at a press conference at which the meeting's accomplishments were summed up:

"Perhaps we have not talked enough about what we want the educational process to produce — I wish we had done more."

Finance Problem

Conference director George Croskery of Ottawa said "the whats, wheres and hows of education" had been injected in the program, but such a gathering was bound to be aware of the primary need of education, "which is finances."

He said the conference had enabled "a new sense of oneness in education — it has created a new climate of understanding among the various areas involved."

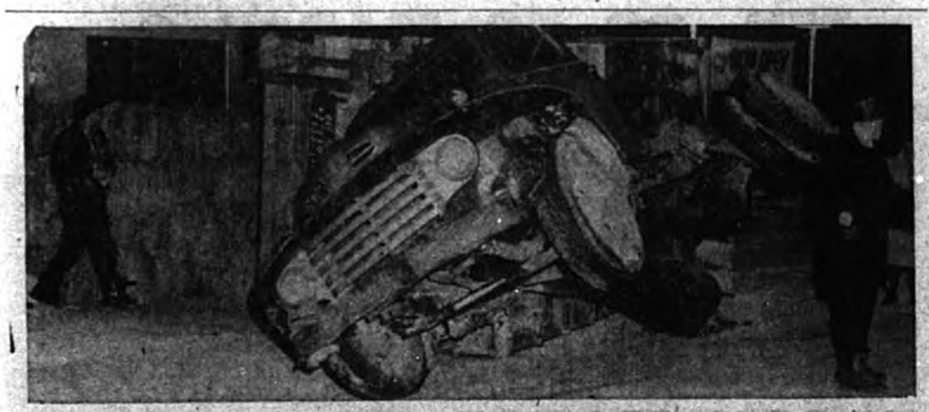

Six resolutions mentioned grants outright — federal, provincial, or federal-provincial — and one urged an adequate student aid program from "provincial and federal governments and industrial, business and other institutions."

Recommended were higher federal grants for universities, technological institutes and adult education; federal-provincial grants for handicapped children; grants towards the eradication of inequalities of education.

The conference favored higher pay and stiffer training for teachers and their participation in setting teachers' standards now laid down by education departments.

One resolution favored introducing French at Grade III or IV in English-language schools, and English at the same level in French schools.

Conference workshop discussions are to be published and a continuing conference secretariat set up — its form to be decided later. One responsibility of the continuing organization would be to forward the resolutions to appropriate authorities and convene a similar assembly in three or five years' time.

Hay load topples

This local feed truck toppled over recently, spilling a load of baled hay en route to Montreal. The box of the truck became dislodged, causing the load to shift. The driver, Clarence MacCallum, of Ayersville, was unhurt. The truck was proceeding at a slow speed up the Bethany Street incline, and the load fortunately fell into the new Berniquer service station yard, without injury to person or damage to property. Officer at the scene is Constable Gilles Poirier.

New armorial crest designed for Village of Ayersville

A dignified coat-of-arms has been prepared for Ayersville Municipality by the Collège Canadien des Armoiries, institute of armorial research and design.

The crest, here illustrated, has its origin in the arms of the d'Ailleboust d'Argenteuil family, who were first holders of the seigneurie which gave this county its name.

Research into seigneurial history reveals that at one time judicial action was brought by the Sulpician seigneurs of Deux Montagnes to annul the adjacent Argenteuil boundaries, claiming the seigneurie had never been ceded by the crown. In 1722, however, the Sovereign Court and royal tribunal in Montreal ruled in favor of Madame d'Argenteuil, widow of Pierre d'Ailleboust d'Argenteuil, as rightful owner. From the d'Ailleboust heirs the seigneurie passed through various hands, and the last seigneur of the domain was Captain Johnson.

Features of the Ayersville crest extracted from the d'Ailleboust armorial bearings are a blue ermine cloak and gold cords, and three red stars. The background suggests a cascade to depict La Chute, the parent municipality from which Ayersville was segregated in January 1952, and symbols suggesting the Ayers industries. The armorial shield is circled with two maple branches, and beneath is a scroll inscribed "Consilio patientia" (By Skill and Perseverance).

This emblem of prestige to the young but progressive Village of Ayersville was made possible by subscriptions from a number of civic notables and community leaders.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

It won't be long until the fishing, now — that is, for the Trout type. Some of the catches being taken around this district by the ice fishermen have been slightly less than terrific. I saw a bag full of these fish that came from St. Placide and they were dandies. The minnows are still very hard to get, so that anyone going down to St. Placide should make sure they have some way of getting them. For you Pike men, there are some nice fish being caught. So, go out and get them!

* * *

I had the pleasure of meeting one of the veterinaries who were inoculating the animals in this district, Dr. J. L. Frechette. He gave me a lot of information on this business of Rabies. I know that a lot has been printed about it, and a lot of criticism on "so-called epidemics", but the government sent the vets up here so it must have been. So much for that. Dr. Frechette told me that there would in all probability be cases of it around until next fall. Also, for everyone going into the bush to watch out for any animal that was acting strangely. Kill it! Incidentally, any fur-bearing animal can and does get Rabies; no feathered creatures get it. I certainly learned a lot about this disease. Too bad I can't give you all the information on it.

* * *

There hasn't been very much doing in the bush for the last few days. The snow has tied down everything, so that nothing will be travelling. I hope to get up to Hammond's pit this Sunday, and I'm very sure there will be plenty to see. If any of the wolves that have been seen around get into there, it will be too bad. But there are not very many wolves around at present.

* * *

There was a phone call for me the other day — a gent who took up fly fishing two years ago. He had called in at the Sports Centre to see the gang. I was shown some pictures of Trout and Salmon that he had taken. He had just come back from Florida, and if you would see a fly-fishing addict — he is it! He is getting his flies ready for the opening here. For anyone who has thought of taking up this sport, but didn't because they thought it would be too expensive — it is no more expensive than spinning. As a matter of fact, the actual baits for fly fishing are cheaper than spinning. Anyone can pick it up in about 15 minutes.

I received a fishing catalogue recently, and we sure are getting good. They have a fish caller — no batteries, no springs, no gadgets, as a matter of fact no nothing. But they'll be sold by the thousands. They may work too, at times. This one can be used for all kinds of fishing — trolling, still, deep-sea, everything. They even have minnow pails made of polyethelene. That is something. I know the old-style minnow pails rust pretty badly and are a nuisance to carry.

If you are starting to get yourself more flies for your spring fishing, don't forget that the best flies in the spring are the streamer type. The small variety are not much good until later on in the season. The streamer is actually the imitation of a minnow, and with minnows not being very plentiful, the streamer fly is the next best thing. The artificials — that is, the ones that are colorful and don't seem to be like any minnow that ever existed — are the best for the first week or so.

Of course, this kind get fish all the time but as a rule they are best in the early fishing. This doesn't mean that some of the flies shouldn't be imitations of insects; after all, humans like a change in diet, so why not fish.

Now that I'm talking of this, take another look at your lines. I hope that it isn't set or kinked too much. If you think it is, steep it in luke warm water for about a half-hour. Dry it with a rag, and put it back on your line-drier. Then you will have to change it around about twice before using it. Check your ferrules again, and your whippings, and the varnish; if they are loose tighten them, re-whip and varnish — you'll have a new outfit for spring.

The conservation group have been worried about the Seaway destroying the fish around the Laprarie-Verdun basin. It has at times given very good fishing. The Association is afraid that it is spoilt because of the work. I know that area very well, as it has been a favorite stamping ground for my wife and self for a good number of years. Even though the fishing is very poor compared to our North River, we still fished it. A few of my friends who fish there regularly tell me the fishing has not been as good for years. The perch and pike are running to a very nice size. You may remember I mentioned a couple of months ago about the big doré that had been taken, and that opinions were that the blasting had chased them out of their deep spots and forced them to look for new places. Evidently the perch have been chased out in the same way.

* * *

Our Association is managing to stagger along for the time being; but from the few members that were out last meeting, we have good hopes of it getting into a working condition. Most members forget that we are a conservation club and not a fishing club. It's a big job ahead of the Association to educate all the people to conservation. But it can be done. There has to be understanding in all sportsmen that sport is only as good as we make it. That means, very simply, use moderation even in fishing. We were talking to an old gent at one of our meetings, and the laments were, that this sport is not as good as it used to be. We all know that, and personally I hope it never comes back to the point where trout — or for that matter, any fish — are netted out by the sackful. That was in the old days true, and will never happen again, except in the case of poachers; and they will be got rid of eventually I know of one case in particular where our hardworking warden, Gagné, nailed a couple of them. It is up to everyone who has any feeling for the law, to look out for this kind of fisherman. All that has to be done is to get on the phone, and the rest will be taken care of by our wardens. That's what they are there for; they can't be expected to know of every offence without a little help from us. I know if you saw anyone breaking into some establishment you would phone the police, so the same thing applies to breaking the fish and game laws. Maybe the thought is "squealer". But figure it out yourself. More damage is done in one day by nets than all the rod fishermen in this county if they ALL broke the laws.

This business of conservation is a never-ending job that has to be hammered into the public, most of you sportsmen know what I am getting at; the public doesn't. The best way to start this is get the youngsters into it. They are the ones that will get the benefit of everything; the sooner they are educated on field and stream conditions, the better.

Boats, outboards in special display at local dealer's

Boating enthusiasts in this area will see the latest in marine equipment when Deacon Motor Sales Ltd. stages an exhibition of 1958 water craft and outboard motors, opening this Friday.

Called the "All-Family Boat Show" and scheduled to take place in every boat basin centre in Canada between February 28 and March 8, this presentation is designed to bring the boating public up to date on the tremendous strides made in marine design and engineering during the past year. The 1958 boats, motors and equipment on show will represent the most impressive array of marine equipment ever displayed in this community.

The automotive influence is apparent in boat and motor styling alike, with new emphasis being placed on raciness in appearance as well as performance. Johnson Motors has even adopted the highway-proved V-type cylinder arrangement for their big new 50 horsepower motors, to provide added power yet retain the handsome low line of the smaller outboard models.

Biggest engineering triumph of 1958 is the tremendous advance made by outboard motor manufacturers in noise abatement. One such manufacturer has developed a silencing method which actually reduces the noise level of their motors to no more than is found in the family automobile — good news for cottagers, too!

Water skiing equipment will also be on display at the boat show. It is claimed that more people now ski on water than snow, and with the number of high-powered boats increasing each year, almost anyone interested in water sport can become a water skier.

Included in the Deacon Motor Sales showroom fleet will be hulls of plywood panel, moulded plywood and aluminum construction.

Gala Day held by lady curlers, highlight event

Last Wednesday afternoon the Wilson Challenge game was played, when Mrs. Roy Fraser and rink (Mrs. Douglas McGibbon, Mrs. E. Rogers, Mrs. Douglas Hay) challenged the holders of the Cup, Mrs. George Muir (skip), Mrs. Douglas MacKimmie, Mrs. D. McTavish, Mrs. E. O. Pollock. Mrs. Fraser's rink won the game.

In the Broomstick Challenge, Miss Margaret Scott (skip), Mrs. F. Wood, Mrs. D. Heggie, Mrs. L. R. Duncan were challenged by Mrs. Albert Giles and rink (Miss Lila Giles, Mrs. W. S. Gordon, Mrs. G. E. Ayers), who won the game.

The annual Gala Day last Thursday was once again a "gala" occasion. Curling began at 9.30 a.m., and continued through mid-afternoon. Luncheon was served and teas in the afternoon, at which time Mrs. George McGibbon presented her many humorous prizes, not only to winners but to those less fortunate as well. Mrs. Mitchell's rink (Mrs. E. O. Pollock, Mrs. W. FitzGerald, Mrs. Bruce Bradford) won out with the high-plus of the day.

In the Junior Doubles played last week, Mrs. F. Hungerbuhler and Mrs. Donald McFaul defeated Mrs. Albert Stewart and Mrs. Donald Bradley.

The Match Committee bonspiel is presently in progress, and continues through this week.

Members are reminded that meeting day is Monday, March 3 — and tea will not be served on this date, but instead on March 11, which is Visitors' Day.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmond Burke

Just "people helping people"

IT HAS BEEN said that the work of the Red Cross is "people helping people."

Through its long history of doing good, the Red Cross has never been concerned about a lack of volunteers. Here in Canada, millions serve the Red Cross in one capacity or another. They range from our youngsters, who participate in Junior Red Cross activities, to hundreds of women who willingly knit and sew long hours for the Women's Work Committee. There are thousands who are regular blood donors to the Canadian Red Cross. And most Canadians financially support the Red Cross.

The people who volunteer their time, talent and energy for the Red Cross come from all walks of life, have varied religious beliefs and political opinions. They are of many colors and many nationalities. In turn, the work they do is done in the traditional manner of the Red Cross and benefits mankind regardless of color, creed or political belief.

Those of us unable to actively participate in the Red Cross do, however, have an opportunity to share. We are able to do so through our dollars. They will form a powerful weapon when disaster strikes, here at home or in any part of the world. We know the Red Cross will be on the job doing the things we would like to do for victims of fires, floods and famine. The Red Cross is a never-failing friend to the unfortunate, and through our interest we can share our good fortune.

In war and peace, the Red Cross has achieved an enviable record of service to humanity. In peace, its work is equally as important as in war.

Next Monday — in Lachute and Brownsburg — when the volunteer canvasser calls at your home or office — think, then give generously. In the district communities, when representatives solicit your support, remember — March is Red Cross month, and a great humanitarian enterprise depends upon your practical aid.

Far from home, but rooting, tooting

WHILE TIME and distance have become minimized by Science, it is sometimes difficult to realize, also, how these changing times account for strange developments.

It sounds almost matter-of-fact, for instance, that when Canada's Whitby Dunlops step on the ice in Oslo next month in quest of the world hockey crown they'll have an imported, all-Canadian cheering section rooting for them from the sidelines . . . and even (who knows?) among the crowd there might be boys from this very town and district.

Here's how things are shaping up. . . The enthusiasm will come from members of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group on NATO duty in West Germany, whose members have booked a special train to carry them to Oslo for the final games of the series.

Behind the project is a Hamilton, Ont., officer on the Canadian brigade headquarters staff, Capt. Tom W. MacDonald, the formation's welfare officer. Through a special deal with "Touropa", West Germany's largest travel agency, Capt. MacDonald has arranged for a five-day excursion to Oslo at an almost all-inclusive price of $60 per soldier.

All the soldiers will have to shell out, apart from the price of the tour, will be for one or two meals a day, and a few kroner (14 cents) for whatever other games they want to see. The tab also includes accommodation in one of Oslo's first-class hotels, breakfast, transportation to and from the station, guide services and, of course, reservations for the games.

Capt. MacDonald arranged this tour to coincide with the final games of the series. The special train will leave the Canadian brigade's headquarters town of Soest on March 5 and return March 11.

Discretion will prolong your stay

WHETHER OUR Watchman editorials ever saved a life, is a matter for hopeful conjecture. In all the years of safety campaigning, however, we like to believe some ideas may have been implanted to prevent a few of the more common self-exterminating practices. And so this week we feel impelled to echo a warning on another hazard of the winter season. . .

In the wake of last week's snowplugs, the opinions of two prominent medical men in Montreal re-emphasized that snow shovelling, particularly for those who are unaccustomed to this kind of work, can be "very dangerous."

Dr. Adelard Groulx, director of the city's Health Department, said that "all those over 40 should be very careful" before tackling a snow shovel and trying to clear the sidewalk or driveway.

Dr. H. N. Segall, Montreal heart specialist, said that "those over 65 are in a particularly hazardous position when they shovel snow. The main trouble is that they may have an unknown heart ailment, and strenuous exercise like shovelling snow can bring the ailment to the fore with serious consequences."

Dr. Segall agreed with Dr. Groulx about those over 40 mainly because "working at removing snow involves the use of muscles and limbs that are rarely used by a man driving to and from work, or even one who is in what he thinks is good physical condition."

He advised those working on snow to "take it easy" and to "stop and catch their breath" when they find themselves becoming overtired. The combination of working with muscles and limbs unaccustomed to strenuous work, plus the cold weather that adds an extra burden on the functions of the heart, makes it "most advisable for persons — especially those over 65 — to be careful."

Hardy breed of warriors

TIME IS running short for the happy breed of warriors known as ice-fishermen — many of whom have appeared this season on the Ottawa River. The warming sun and the winds of March will soon take their toll, honey-combing the ice and breaking it up into dangerous floes.

Ice-fishermen have been much in the news since early winter when a half-dozen huts from the tommycod waters 50 miles upstream were seen floating past Quebec on the St. Lawrence River tide. The huts were empty but they were evidence of the part the weath plays on ice-fishing.

The summer angler worries about his tackle and his bait, the horse-power of his motor, and black flies and mosquitoes. In winter, all these worries are secondary to the elements and their effects.

Some of the most exciting stories every winter concern fishermen. First it is those who try to force the season and lose their cars, and maybe their lives, by driving across ice too thin. Then come those too-venturesome men and women marooned on lakes by blizzards that trap them in their huts. Some of the rescue stories do justice to Antarctic expeditions. And finally there are the spring fishermen who brave the softening ice in one last bid to catch elusive lakers that weren't biting during the winter. They are taken off in boats from drifting floes, possibly sadder but certainly not wiser.

These, of course, are the exceptions, and for every fisherman in the news there are hundreds of others who sit quietly beside sputtering, smoky oil stoves, regularly bringing in their quota of "petits poissons" whitefish, perch, or whatever the waters have to offer.

Except for the hardy ones who spurn stoves and cabins and crouch beside a hole on the open ice, there is little to exhilarate an ice fisherman, but neither is there much excitement fishing for hours on a blazing summer day. It's just that fishermen are fishermen, be it spring, summer, autumn or winter. . . And once that's said what more is there to say?

Rocking the base of man's existence

A HIGHLY successful farmer from Elora, Ont., said something in a recent Toronto speech that will come as a shock to some people — says The Financial Post. . . Alfred Leatherbarrow stated that 40% of the farmers in Canada produced 80% of the total farm output. The others were marginal operators and "subsidies would not solve their problem of low returns."

The public, including the farmers, he said, has had the benefit of mass production in practically every industry except agriculture. He challenged industry to get into farming, to operate large holdings, with expert managers and boards of directors, like other business, and operate with eight-hour labor shifts and holidays with pay. Marginal farm producers, declared Leatherbarrow, would be far better off working for these big company farms than trying to run their own uneconomic places and getting by only with the aid of government handouts.

Viewpoints and perspectives

WHAT WITH the recent strike in the Bahamas, freezing temperatures in Florida, snow in Mexico, civil war in Cuba, and assorted revolutions and earthquakes elsewhere in sunny South America, those well-heeled Canadians who by now are usually to be found somewhat nearer the equator have no doubt decided that the best possible place to await spring this year is — home. — Industry

AGAINST DEFEATISM — "It lies within our power to destroy the . . . sputnik of defeatism and of panic before it ever gets off the ground: if we are positive in our outlook: if we are confident in the future of our community and our country: and if by our words and our actions we demonstrate that confidence at every opportunity."

When was the first Canadian school for the blind founded?

The first school for the blind was the Nazareth Institute, founded in Montreal by the Grey Nuns in 1861. There are five other schools founded in the following order: Halifax School for the Blind (1863), at Halifax, Nova Scotia; Ontario School for the Blind (1871), Brantford, Ontario; Montreal Association for the Blind, Montreal, Quebec; British Columbia School of Deaf Mutes and Blind (1915), Vancouver, B.C., and the Louis Braille Institute (1952), at Westmount, Quebec.

There are about 21,000 blind persons in Canada, the great majority of whom have lost their sight in adult life; only about 300 are below school age. Nearly half the adult blind are over 65 years of age. The two main causes of blindness are senile cataracts and glaucoma, with accidents, often thought a leading cause, rated seventh in importance.

Two national voluntary organizations exist to take an interest in the problems of the blind. These are the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, with headquarters in Toronto, and the Canadian Federation of the Blind, with headquarters in Regina. It was in Regina that White Cane Week was first observed. Now the CNIB, besides its other activities, promotes the White Cane Week — annually devoted to informing the public of the limitations and achievements of the blind. This year's White Cane Week was held during the week of February 9th to 15th.

Harriet Ross, born about 1741, in France, was the daughter of one Dionne Le Jeune. Married at 13 in Paris, she was soon afterwards left a widow with one son. She then married a Captain Briand and accompanied him to Louisbourg, where he was stationed. Widowed for a second time when he was killed in the siege of 1758, she was to survive him by 102 years. She made her way to Little Narrows, where she married James Ross, by which marriage she had two sons and two daughters. They moved to North East Margaree, Nova Scotia, about 1800, Mrs. Ross being the first white woman resident. She nursed the sick of the area, even during a smallpox epidemic, and often travelled miles through the woods on horse or on foot to act as a midwife. Known as "Granny" by her grateful patients, she continued her ministrations to her ailing neighbors well past her hundredth year. She died at North East Margaree, Inverness County, N.S., in May 1860.

Who was called "the White Savage"?

T. Boyd used the title "the White Savage" in writings about the frontiersman, Simon Girty who, during the American Revolution, acted as Indian interpreter at Detroit for the British. Among the Americans he acquired a reputation for savagery that does not seem to have been entirely deserved. Girty was born near Harrisburg, Pa., in 1741. He was captured by the Senecas and released three years later. After the evacuation of Detroit by the British in 1796 he settled on a farm near Amherstburg, Upper Canada.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held in Creswell's Hall, and excessive charges of the Dominion Express Co. were again discussed. The matter is now in the hands of the Railway Commission.

25 YEARS AGO

Adding another trophy to her collection recently in the Teachers' Badminton finals — Miss Doris Campbell suffered misfortune last week in a theft of valuables from her apartment in Montreal. A total of 15 sports trophies and other effects were stolen.

There was general sorrow throughout the Village of St. Andrews East last Thursday, caused by the death of Mrs. Chas. Treadwell Wales.

Cushing West — The front road below Grece's Point was the scene of a hotly contested mile race run by five of our local athletes. First honors went to Alan Graham, who won by a slim margin over Henri Leblanc.

Last Friday evening three or four free-riders were put off the Ottawa-bound train after it had pulled out of the CPR station. The men seemed unusually aggressive, and Conductor Howe had difficulty in removing them, having to stop the train twice between the station and the North River bridge.

There are 16 radios for every 100 farms in Canada. Quebec has the least, with 6 per 100 farms.

PAY-AS-YOU-SEE TV.

Pay-as-you-see TV is coming to Canada — reports The Financial Post.

A Montreal firm, it says, is ironing out details of a system to permit subscribers to view first-run movies, sporting events, opera, ballet and other attractions on their own TV sets on a subscription basis.

No scale of charges has yet been fixed but present thinking is that these might be equivalent to low-level admission fees to such events — maybe $2 for a football game and $1 for a movie.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Advertise eggs

The High River, Alberta, Times recently quoted a statement by a speaker on the egg marketing question as saying, "If every person in Alberta ate one more egg per week, there would be no surplus." The editor went on to say that an all-out vigorous and imaginative advertising campaign could accomplish something like this.

"Individual producers," he wrote, "can do nothing by themselves in advertising, but in co-operation through their farm organizations they could, and in doing so would perform a tremendous service for agriculture with no compulsion or no subsidies involved for anyone. It is one way in which agriculture could endeavor to stand on its own feet."

I agree, and I would be willing to wager several crates of eggs that if the editor of the High River Times wrote the advertising copy, he'd sell so many eggs there's be no more talk of compulsory marketing; so much butter there'd be no more foolish restrictions on margarine; so much lamb or mutton we wouldn't need to worry about all the quick-frozen food products being imported these days from the States.

Listen to his words: " . . . the various merits of eggs, their sunshiny color and appetite appeal, health-building potential, ease of preparation, economy and versatility, could double or triple the demand for cackleberries and put them in the place where they belong in the food-product world. The flavor and gourmet pleasing qualities of roast lamb with mint sauce, lamb chops with currant jelly, and a reminder that real Irish stew is always made with lamb or mutton could be invitingly placed before the public — so that the sheep producers' main marketing problem would be to keep up with the demand."

Now doesn't that make you want to crack an egg into the frying pan, and scramble it until it's a sunshiny glow on a white dinner plate? Or sink your teeth into a tender lamb chop garnished with tangy mint jelly?

Remember when liver used to be a glut on the market, when the butcher gave it away for free? Then its merits were advertised through stories in the papers about its health-giving properties. Recipes were published showing how to cook it so that it made mouths water.

It seems to me that if the farm organizations would get together, buy modest space, and hire or shanghai the editor of the High River Times to write the copy, the sale of Canadian farm produce — eggs, butter, pork or what have you — would soar.

I don't know about you but just typing out his words made my mouth water. I'm going to lunch — lamb chops, eggs or Irish stew will get the nod from me today!

Contests and sweepstakes may be bad, but at least they give people something to hope for.

In millions of drab lives, the Irish sweep offers the only escape route to wealth and excitement.

The odds against winning are even longer than the chances of being struck by a thunderbolt. But a ticket is a passport to a magic world of sports cars and Hawaiian cruises.

Three dollars is a small price to pay for so many dreams.

And then there are the people who moon about the house listening to quiz programs, and writing down all kinds of footling information about the sponsors, in the hope that the radio station will call up and award them $500.

It is all very well to say that they could pass the time more profitably at some spare-time job that would earn them the $500 in short order.

In fact, however, a job wouldn't be nearly as rewarding. The inveterate quiz-listener, like the addict ticket-buyer, spends his money several times over in his head, and gets enjoyment from it each time.

The same can be said of the photo-night addicts who drag their way in to certain theatres faithfully once a week; each one of the people hoping that the management will choose to buy his picture for $800.

Come rain, come shine, come sickness, come Tarzan, Dracula and Elvis Presley, they get to that show every Monday night.

It wouldn't surprise me to hear that photo-night fans are faithful beyond the grave. There may come a day when a spectral voice answers the call, and a white figure glides on the stage to get the money for which it has been waiting so long.

Numberless other people are snipping labels off cans and packages and mailing them to radio announcers, in the hope that their letters will be chosen from the heap and that their guesses at the famous Canadian or the hidden personality will be correct.

You may think of them as a pathetic crowd, with their collection of anonymous silvery cans, eating dog food by mistake in their sandwiches, opening soup for dessert.

You may think they are wasting time and money that could be more usefully employed. Nothing could be further from the truth. They are enjoying themselves to the full, investing in dreams.

IN THE OUTPOSTS

Red Cross nurses at Outpost Hospitals and Nursing Stations attended almost 3,000 births last year. You help welcome these young Canadians when you give to the Canadian Red Cross.

Following a lengthy illness caused mainly by advancing years, Mrs. Wm. J. Rogers passed away at the home of her son, Clarence, on Monday, February 24.

She was predeceased by her husband, the late William John Rogers, in 1933. From Hill Head Mr. and Mrs. Rogers moved to Lachute in 1914, where they lived in retirement.

Mrs. Rogers was a member of the Lachute United Church, contributing to its welfare in numerous ways. During the war years in particular her gifts included a great number of knitted articles.

To check abuses in traffic fines

Quebec (CP) — The Quebec Assembly has passed a bill giving the provincial cabinet the authority to withdraw from any Quebec municipal corporation the right to pass traffic by-laws and collect its own fines.

The Liberal Opposition expressed some disagreement over the measure because of what it called the blanket power the bill turned over to the cabinet.

The bill follows complaints that some municipalities trap unwary motorists and levy fines against them for traffic violations.

Current Observation

We sometimes wonder if there is some special significance in the name of our new telephone exchange, which comes into being the end of March. Are we being specially honored in this choice of a name?

Essay contest on alcohol problem

The Intercollegiate Association for the study of the alcohol problem has announced its annual essay contest open to all students of universities, colleges and junior colleges in Canada and the United States.

This international contest has been frequently entered in the past by Canadian students. The title for the 1958 essays is "Motivation for Drinking." The essay length allowed is between 500 and 800 words. The deadline is April 30, 1958.

The prizes range from the first award of $150 cash, plus a scholarship to the summer intercollegiate school of $30 and travel costs up to $150, all the way to 22 separate awards of $10 each.

The summer school will be held in Waterloo College, Waterloo, Ont., from August 23 to 28, 1958. Students interested in the contest or the school can get detailed information from the Intercollegiate Association, 12 North 3rd Street, Columbus, 15, Ohio.

February events at United Church in Brownsburg

Since February 2 the church services have again been carried on in the body of the church, as redecorating is now almost complete. A new section has been added to the main building, consisting of a new kitchen, with all modern conveniences; a pastor's study; a ladies' parlor; two washrooms; a new furnace room; complete redecoration with light fixtures and telephone.

On February 3 the Hi-C Group held their meeting in the form of a sliding party, after which refreshments were served. A good time was enjoyed.

On February 9, the morning service was taken over by the Sunday School, with the Rev. G. Bruce and Mr. C. Wheeler, S.S. superintendent, presiding. Ushers were Joanne Murdoch, Pat Warwick, Everett Clausen and Paul Villard. Class promotions took place and two prizes for Class Merit were awarded in each class. Eight scholars had perfect attendance and 14 received honorable mention.

The annual church supper took place on the evenings of February 18 and 19, sponsored by the Woman's Association. Despite the inclement weather, the supper was considered a success.

It is hoped that Mrs. H. Elliott, W.A. president, and Mrs. J. Hazel, Jr., W.A. secretary, who have both been somewhat incapacitated through minor accidents — also Mrs. J. Donaldson, who has been ill for some time — will all have fully recovered soon.

Five ladies from both of the W.A. organizations recently attended the Presbytery meeting held in St. James United Church, Montreal.

Flowers at the church altar on February 16 were in memory of the late Mr. Alex Walker, placed there by his wife.

Sympathy is extended to the members who so recently lost their mother, Mrs. Alex Chambers.

Appreciation is due to all who have helped to make the church more beautiful, and to those who contributed to the success of the church supper.

John Higgins, Baptist campaigner, built church here, served as first pastor

In the 1880's, "explored town of Lachute . . organized a church"

"The Fellowship Baptist" reprints the biography of one, the Rev. John Higgins, whose influence in the early religious life of the Ottawa Valley is a matter of record in Baptist annals. In person or in fame he is still remembered by a number of older residents in these parts, for he served as the first resident Baptist pastor in Lachute, and ministered in the surrounding pastorates, and in numerous churches of the Ottawa area.

The biography is reprinted from an old pamphlet, penned by the late C. J. Cameron, one-time student pastor at Dalesville. We extract the following paragraphs concerning "the last of the pioneer preachers of the Ottawa Valley, John Higgins":

Bro. Higgins was born in Montreal in 1834. Early left without father or mother, he was placed in an orphanage. At the age of twelve years he was indentured to a farmer at Dalesville, a Scottish settlement in the Laurentian Mountains, north of the Ottawa River.

During the ten years he remained on the farm, his school days were few — about two months in each year. Yet he had a great thirst for knowledge and read all the books within his reach. The conditions of life in the "staney braes" of Dalesville and his close contact with nature developed in the young lad those qualities which, when refined by culture and grace, gave him in after years irresistible eloquence — the eloquence of his own heart experience.

It was not until he had reached the age of 18 years, that during a revival in the Dalesville Sunday School, he found peace in believing. Among the fifteen others who were baptized on this occasion by Rev. John King — the pastor of Dalesville for two score years — was Robert Stuart MacArthur, who in later days held the pastorate of Calvary Church, New York, for over 40 years.

Higgins' entry into the ministry was the natural sequence of his conversion. He had been delivered from the thraldom of sin, and was eager to have others set free. He held meetings in barns and in groves, in log-cabins and in school houses throughout the back townships.

After serving his time on the Dalesville farm, and spending a season river-driving, he entered the Lachute Academy, working evening and morning for his board. This two years' course was his preparation for the Canadian Literary Institute at Woodstock, whither he went the autumn of the year 1861.

During his College course Bro. Higgins served the churches of Nissouri and St. Mary's, Cote St. George and Lancaster.

After graduating from Woodstock C.L.I. in 1866, he took charge of the Papineauville church, and in the same month was married to Miss Mary McGregor, daughter of Deacon Malcolm McGregor, of Dalesville.

While pastor at Papineauville, Bro. Higgins did heroic service in exploring the back settlements, establishing preaching stations, and strengthening those already in existence. He organized churches at North Nation Mills, South Clarendon, and Renfrew.

Bro. Higgins accepted a call to the Thurso church, where he remained for eight years. As a result of special meetings at Lochaber Bay 50 people were baptized. The towns and settlements on the Upper Ottawa again heard his voice in an evangelistic campaign which resulted in many conversions, and the beginnings of Baptist churches.

In 1878, Bro. Higgins accepted a call to the churches at Ailsa Craig and East Williams. After two years he returned to "the land he loved the best," the Ottawa Valley, and took charge of the Pembroke Church. During this pastorate he carried on regular week-end services in the surrounding lumbering camps.

After four years' labour at Pembroke, Bro. Higgins went to Osnabruck. While in this pastorate the Home Mission Board asked him to spend a month exploring the town of Lachute, the result of which was a number of baptisms and the organization of a church, thus preparing the way for a student pastor.

When the student returned to College in the autumn of 1886, Bro. Higgins became pastor of the Lachute Church. It was in this pastorate he did his greatest work. The beautiful church edifice was made possible by his collecting in a few months $5,000.

It was in the spring of 1889 that the greatest revival of his ministry took place. It was at Dalesville, the old mountain home of his boyhood, where he conducted five weeks of meetings, night after night preaching in the old stone church, holding prayer-meetings at noon time, and visiting incessantly from house to house, throughout the rest of the day. Religion became epidemic in the community, wherever people met. Notorious sinners were subdued and saved. In this revival a total of 80 were converted, about 60 of whom Bro. Higgins baptized. In evangelistic services the following summer at Edina, Dunany and Wentworth he was assisted by the writer of this article, then student-pastor at Dalesville. The gracious effect of these revivals was the marked change in the life of the settlement, quarrelling neighbors became the warmest friends and the members of families long estranged were now reconciled.

In 1894 Bro. Higgins resigned the Lachute church, and made his home in Ottawa.

Bro. Higgins kept in the harness of active ministerial service until July, 1910. From the time he began to preach just before going to the Lachute Academy until his final retirement, was a period over fifty years.

On December 22, 1911, the spirit of the old veteran passed from his frail tenement to his heavenly reward.

Catholic League at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — The February meeting of the Brownsburg CWL St. Louis de France Sub-Division was held on the 17th, with Mrs. L. Hall in the chair. Reports were read by the conveners. The epistle for the previous Sunday was read by the Spiritual convener, Mrs. G. Anderson, and then explained by the Director, the Rev. Father Hurtubise. Miss M. Jackson, the Educational convener, read and explained some of the procedure and by-laws of the League. She and some of the members organized a card party on St. Valentine's night to raise funds to purchase good literture for the children. A periodical "For Young Catholic Readers" will be distributed to each school-age child this week.

Plans were made to hold a "Get-Acquainted Evening" in honor of St. Patrick, on Saturday, March 15, at the Bouchard School auditorium.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. S. Yunker's group.

Pinball machine brings jail term

Montreal — A former l'Abord à Plouffe restaurant owner was sentenced by Judge John O'Meara to three months in jail when the man admitted having a pinball machine in his cafe.

The accused, Roland Benoit, of l'Abord à Plouffe, appeared stunned when the judge imposed the sentence.

The penalty was probably the stiffest since the Supreme Court of Canada decision last year bringing the owner of premises in which a pinball machine is operated under the Criminal Code definition of a common gaming house.

The charge against Benoit was punishable by up to two years imprisonment. Provincial Police told the court that it was a third offence for Benoit, who only recently had closed up his restaurant.

Lt. Omer Auclair, of Provincial Police, Quebec City, seized a pinball machine at the restaurant on January 8.

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Most fathers enjoy giving their child a present. There is a vivid picture in Graham Porter's charming book "Small Wonder" (Macmillan) of Phillip Templeton, a new father watching his wife nursing their daughter the first evening after he gets them home from the hospital. The author writes of Phillip's thoughts: "Now he knew that a father could not just wish for raises at the office — he had to work for them; he had to make sure. All too soon the Templeton budget would be faced with dolls and bicycles and a college education. And he would never let his daughter down — never."

With the best intention in the world, just because they are so busy earning money to support a family, many fathers, as the years pass, do fail their child by neglecting to give them their companionship. There is no more important gift a parent can give his child than a little of his leisure time each week.

A father plays a very special part in a daughter's development. His word of praise about her appearance in a new dress gives her confidence in her feminine appeal. When she is upset over a quarrel with a little chum or if she is not getting along well at school, father can usually help her by just listening to her tale of woe. He is likely to be more objective than a mother and he can encourage her to see that there are two sides to every story. A happy solution can usually be worked out for most childhood problems.

It is good for children as they grow older to know something about the way their father earns a living. If they have no opportunity to learn about his work, they are apt to take him very much for granted. It is partly his own fault if father becomes just an "animated pay cheque."

There is nothing a small boy appreciates more than his father taking time to do things with him. Giving him playthings or money or paying for a treat at the movies — none of these are substitutes for a father-and-son adventure. With his dad as a companion, a boy gets a glimpse of a man's world which is so fascinating — and which he must enter some day.

Small boys cannot keep up with grown men, but a father can moderate his pace so that his son won't be completely out of breath. It means so much to a boy for his dad to include him in his leisure time plans once in a while. How can they get to know each other if they are not alone occasionally? When a boy reaches adolescence he will be "off with the gang" — Father will not have the same chance then to spend time with him.

A father can often influence his children in their attitude not only to his own job but to all work. If Mother's task is home-making and Dad earns the money, he sees more of the outside world than his wife. For that reason he can frequently be more helpful to a son or daughter in the choice of their own life work — providing father realizes that this is a decision a young person must make for himself or herself!

Children need BOTH parents. If they lose a father by death or divorce they are apt to be bitter. But it is quite possible for them to lose touch with a father if he is indifferent to them, if he is too preoccupied with making money or if he is away from home a great deal of the time.

The children who are unadjusted and unhappy frequently come from homes where father as well as mother has not given them loving understanding and guidance. The mother has the major responsibility for the children's upbringing, but the father provides necessary ballance. In a family where a mother and father work and plan and play together with their children, boys and girls are prepared for adulthood when they will have homes of their own. Building a home is a co-operative enterprise. Dad, are you a companion to your child?

Eggs combine well with other foods

Why not try a new way now and then? When you serve them for the main course you will find that eggs combine well with other foods and add colorful interest to the meal. Shown in the picture are: macaroni casserole garnished with sliced hard-cooked eggs and sprigs of watercress; creamed hard-cooked egg wedges with mushrooms and peas, served in a ring of spinach and garnished with tomatoes; and individual servings of eggs baked in mashed potato nests. Women's influence on car design

By Carol Lane

It may be a man's world, but in the world of car design we women exert a tremendous influence. Here's how:

Women are nearly always consulted in the selection of the family car, so automobiles are fashioned more and more to appeal to them. The feminine eye looks for color, fabrics, comfort and convenience — and the manufacturers oblige.

One large auto manufacturer, for example, has women artists and designers. Market research analysts constantly consult the distaff public about likes and dislikes in car styles. Another automotive company set up a national women's panel to discuss design innovations. One result was the increased use of linen for upholstery. It doesn't wrinkle easily, is static-free, feels comfortable in summer and winter, and lets clothing slide easily — all requirements desired by women.

The feminine trend in car design has been apparent for some time. Automotive experts agree that the glove compartment, assist straps, floor carpeting, inside lighting, and non-skid tires are the result of the ladies' influence.

One third of all motorists are women. So the car is designed to make it easier and more comfortable for the woman to operate. Two results: power steering, power brakes.

Other suggestions by women: a door button that won't break fingernails, better back-up lights, wider doors, glove drawers, mirror on back of sun visor.

Menu magic with macaroni

Whether you are fasting or feasting you can make marvellous meals from macaroni and other popular members of the pasta family such as spaghetti and noodles. These foods with their bland flavor form a happy partnership in casserole dishes with eggs, cheese, fish, vegetables, poultry or meat. They can also fulfill a gourmet's dream when cooked alone and served with a tangy sauce liberally sprinkled with your favorite cheese.

Macaroni foods are made from a stiff dough of wheat flour and water. They are given a great variety of shapes ranging from slim rods through sea shells to alphabets. Some have added flavors. Each type has a different cooking time. Be sure to read the label on the package, especially the cooking directions as they are your most accurate guide. When macaroni foods are ideally cooked they are tender — yet retain their firmness or "bite". So time them carefully, and DO NOT OVERCOOK.

Users of these foods frequently become collectors of recipes containing them. Below is a recipe to add to, or start you on a collection of easy to prepare, budget-wise dishes. And in case you don't already know, macaroni, spaghetti and noodles almost always may be used interchangeably in recipes.

Macaroni, Cheese and Tomato Casserole

4 Ounces macaroni broken in 1" pieces (2 cups), 1½ cups grated Cheddar cheese, 20 ounce can of tomatoes (2½ cups), ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons grated Cheddar chese, 3 tablespoons buttered dry bread crumbs.

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water for 8 to 10 minutes, or according to directions on package. Drain well. Return to pan and stir in cheese, tomatoes, salt and pepper. Turn into a greased two-quart casserole. Sprinkle with grated cheese and top with bread crumbs. Bake in a slow oven (300°F.) about 40 minutes. 6 Servings.

Written Specially for
The Lachute Watchman
By Mary Fran Burke
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Every Thursday morning a group of housewives in a subdivision of Kitchener, Ont., take a holiday for two hours and 15 minutes.

It's part of a decentralization program provided by the Kitchener-Waterloo YWCA, pioneers of the project in Canada. When the plan was outlined for the first 10-week course last year, the "Y" learned the women preferred a morning program in their own neighborhood since their pre-school children napped in the afternoon.

Four recreation rooms became the base for "housewives' holiday". In one home, gym routines, under physical education instructor Mrs. Gustav Straus, included exercises from slimming and pocture improvement to combatting tension and "housewife's kinks". At the second course which began two weeks ago, Mrs. Straus introduced ballet drills.

Another recreation room became the setting for millinery classes where, under the direction of Mrs. I. H. Plomske, bright straws, veiling and trimmings slowly take chic shapes.

The other two recreation rooms are for children. Here the nursery group, consisting of 14 tiny tots, are looked after by grown-up baby sitters, all volunteers.

Mary Hackett, YWCA assistant executive director, said a number of housewives now are interested in other courses being set up. The current courses include a session of floral arrangements and Easter egg decorating.

A 10-week course costs $5, plus 25 cents for each child receiving supervision.

Pre-Teen Fashions

Whether the pre-teen set, a strong-minded group, endorses the chemise is a matter of interest in children's clothing circles.

Semi-chemise fashions are being offered by manuacturers in their spring line but how they will sell it's too early to say.

Jack Rubin of Montreal says that pre-teens are unpredictable about their fashions.

"They don't follow Paris, New York, their mothers or older sisters", said Mr. Rubin. "They please themselves and they don't want originals like their seniors. They all want to look alike."

There is a big market in pre-teen clothes in Canada and Mr. Rubin, who has designed clothes for Hollywood moppets, including teen-age star Natalie Wood, says these youngsters create their own fashion trends and the manufacturers must go along with them.

"Our motto is don't fight 'em, join 'em," he said. "A girl now becomes fashion-conscious at the age of six when she first goes to school. Even at that age she wants to outdo her playmate in the fashion world."

Pre-teen fashions this spring are boxy, loose fitting styles with bloused backs. Slim skirts are vogue but for summer manufacturers will return to the billowy, soft-pleated cotton skirts.

Separates — both mix and match, match and mate — are popular with the Canadian youngsters. Colors for spring are carnation pink, soft blue and silver.

JOLSON NOTES

By Irvin R. Warwick

I would be remiss in my reporting of "Jolson scene" were I to omit further mention of one of the happiest events of 1957. This was the showing in Montreal of "The Jolson Story" in early November. It was screened at eight theatres simultaneously; consequently, it was difficult to accurately assess the public response. However, I think it is fair to say that the attendance was good. Teen-agers showed up in large numbers, and it was apparent that viewers of all ages really enjoyed themselves.

"The Jolson Story" was later shown in several other theatres in Montreal and suburbs. Earlier in 1957, July 9-11, it was presented at the Drive-In Theatre at St. Thomas, Ont. Reported "The Jolson Journal": "Jolsonair Holly Fuller, who managed the theatre and arranged the showing, received the following telegram of good wishes: 'May I extend my best wishes to you and your patrons and tell you how pleased I am at the release of my late husband's picture. It is fitting that The Jolson Story is being released in Canada, because he always had fond memories of your country. Sincerely — Erle Jolson Krasna.' Holly reported to us that the movie played to a packed house each night. A special featurette, 'The Great Al Jolson', showing scenes of Jolie himself, was included in the programming."

The year 1957 also saw the conclusion of another successful membership drive, in which 40 new members were added to the roster. Major prize winners were — 1st, Derek Woolley of England, oil painting of Al Jolson; 2nd, Dick Bonesteel, of Washington State, 8 x 10 photos of Al; 3rd, Weldon Carpenter of Ohio, year's free membership in club; 4th, Irvin Warwick, of Quebec, one 8 x 10 Jolson photo.

Coupled with these achievements was the issuing by Decca of the LP "Among My Souvenirs", and the single "When Day Is Done" / "That Old Gang of Mine", as previously reported here, and increased activity among the members in England and Montreal.

Obviously, li'l ol' 1957 was quite a successful year for Jolson entertainment and its devotees. May 1958 be even more so!

* * *

Returning from an Alaskan camp tour, Al Jolson tells the story of the Eskimo wife, swathed in luxurious furs to her ears, crying to her mate all during the long winter night, "Darling, when are you going to be able to afford to buy me a cloth coat?"

Quebec measure settles dispute on Oka waterworks

Quebec (CP) — The Legislative Assembly recently passed by a vote of 62 to 14 a government bill giving the municipality of Oka the authority to proceed with the construction of a waterworks system. The measure was subsequently approved by the Legislative Council.

The vote came after a lively debate during which Welfare Minister Paul Sauvé accused the Liberal Opposition of voting against the bill because the council had expropriated part of the property of the Provincial Liberal Party's Treasurer, Antoine Geoffrion to build a filtration plant on it.

René Hamel (L—St. Maurice) charged Mr. Sauvé was attempting a bill to justify the actions of the Mayor of Oka, René Trépanier, deputy minister of agriculture and "a National Union Party organizer."

The bill was introduced in the Assembly against a background of legal suits undertaken by Mr. Geoffrion to halt expropriation of part of his property on Lake of Two Mountains.

The waterworks project itself was approved in a referendum by property owners in the municipality.

The bill provides that the expropriation is legal and valid, that an order of the Public Service Board is legal and executory, and that the municipal council is authorized to perform all acts which "it may deem useful or necessary . . ."

One clause that aroused heated opposition provides that members of the Oka council and the officers of the corporation of Oka cannot be sued personally for any act performed in the exercise of their functions.

Mr. Hamel argued that the clause in effect "places the council above the law." Mr. Sauvé replied that the clause was necessary to block further action from Mr. Geoffrion that would delay construction of the project.

* * *

The Legislative Council last week adopted the bill making the expropriations "legal and valid".

Liberal members in the Upper House opposed the bill on the grounds that the measure should have been a private bill instead of a public bill.

Hon. F. Philippe Brais said that if a private bill had been introduced "the various parties involved in the proceedings could have come before the Private Bills Committee and explained their points of view."

Mr. Brais said the bill "takes the case away from the courts . . . and declares that members of the municipal corporation cannot be sued for any action they take in connection with the construction."

Government Leader Edouard Asselin replied that the Corporation of Oka "has been trying for more than two years to build the filtration plant but that a single taxpayer has instituted more han 18 court actions in an effort to block the project."

Mr. Asselin said "the health and safety of the residents of Oka are at stake" and declared that the government had decided to take action "to put an end to the endless court actions taken to halt the project."

Final-day broadcast of Canada-Russia hockey

A radio broadcast of the Canada versus Russia game on the final day of the World Hockey Championships at Oslo, Norway, will be carried live on the CBC Trans-Canada Network, Sunday, March 9, from 12.55 p.m. EST. After full consideration it was decided not to schedule the games on CBC television. A delay would result during processing and mailing of films back to Canada. Film highlights will be made available for use on regular CBC TV newscasts.

Foster Hewitt will be the play-by-play commentator for the radio broadcast while Tom Benson of the CBC Outside Broadcasts Department will handle the color. In addition to assisting in the broadcast of the final game of the tournament, Benson will be heard daily on radio from Oslo with reports on the Canadian team. The first of Benson's reports will be heard February 27, at 5.45 p.m. EST., on the Trans-Canada Network. He will be heard Monday to Friday at that time replacing "Roving Reporter", on March 1 and 8. Benson's reports will be heard at 7.15 p.m. EST while on Sunday, March 2, he will broadcast at 7 p.m. EST.

The live description of the game will be relayed from Oslo to London, England, and via the Atlantic telephone cable to Montreal and then to Toronto for final transmission.

To Assure Uninterrupted Electric Service

Heavy, overhanging tree limbs breaking off; limbs sagging under the weight of thick ice coating; or sometimes merely swaying branches in a gale-like windstorm, can cause serious interruptions to your electric service. Oftentimes these conditions cause "shorting out", in a line by merely rubbing the wires together while at other times they cause a complete break, snapping the lines in two. Whatever the cause, the result is that you are without electric service when it happens.

You can help avoid much of this trouble and annoyance by notifying us of any hazardous tree conditions in your neighborhood or on your property. Look for heavy limbs overhanging our lines and trees that are growing up into the lines.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

If you're planning a vacation trip to Mexico, include your automobile in your plans. It's the perfect way to see this fascinating land.

Before driving off:

1. Get a Mexican tourist card. You can get one from a Mexican Tourist Bureau. They're $3 per person.

2. Obtain a Canadian passport from the Department of External Affairs, Passport Office, 40 Bank St., Ottawa. The charge is $5.

3. Obtain a smallpox certificate from your doctor.

4. Make sure you have evidence of car ownership. If you're borrowing a car, get an affidavit from the owner stating that you have his permission to take the car into Mexico.

5. Check your car insurance to see if it covers Mexican travel. If it does not, you can buy such insurance at the Mexican border.

Once in Mexico, you might find these tips useful:

If you drive far from the larger cities, always carry an extra supply of gasoline.

Keep a raincoat and topcoat handy. Sudden, brief storms are common, and nights can get delightfully cool.

Don't worry about getting lost. The majority of Mexican highways are well marked, in Spanish of course. (Free booklets and maps are available to help overcome the language barrier and to answer many other travel questions.)

For the best sightseeing in large cities, park your car and hire an official Mexican guide with a limousine. You'll see more, learn more, and relax more.

Buen Viaje!

High school pupils in Los Angeles are taking "trips to the moon." It's part of a newly conceived program to interest youngsters in science and methematics. Engineers from an airplane manufacturing company visit the school, conduct the theoretical moon trip, explain how a jet plane is constructed, show a film and answer questions — and hope they have sown the seeds of scientific interest.

TV and child discipline; Winter brings snow while the laughing gods upset the hod!

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

Well, I hope everybody has enough snow at last. It would seem always to be a fatal mistake to bewail the lack of anything. The little impish gods at once gleefully set about to make us rue our wails! "They want snow, do they!" chortles a fat little god, and turns the snow-hod upside down. So, we have snow — snow halfway up the apple tree in the back yard, snow even with our shoulders as we pass down the walk to the street, snow that hurls itself at every opening, that flings itself happily into the vestibule, tries to blow the sparrows feeding on the sill, into the room. The snow packs itself onto the slates and clogs the gutters. At the height of the storm, we were five people out shovelling, because our doctor neighbor must be kept mobile. The official and professional shovellers invariably show up some hours after the storm is over, looking hurt because there is no work. Snow piles up on the railways, so that, leaving Montreal at 6.30 for the normal run of twenty minutes to our suburb, the weary suburbanite arrives home at 8.15. Fortunately for the daughter of the house, it was mid-term holiday at her school, so she was spared that ordeal.

Enough about snow; you will have gathered that we have snow. . . In the Laurentians, I expect the inhabitants are progressing from building to building along runways, even as do the rabbits. Shovelling is hard work, but less noisy than the sidewalk machine that whined up and down the streets all last night. Every two or three houses, it stopped and panted while the men caught up. I lay and pictured yellow Sunnyacres buried in the white stuff, and no noise except the faint bark of a fox. . . I wished I were there.

* * *

Now at mid-winter, everybody is caught up in the usual round enumerated in our last bit. This is the heyday of television. Some nights I think, "If I hear once more about my little girl who got chocolate, etc., all over her dress, I'll shriek!" Such an exposé of mamma's lack of training! The little brat looks quite big enough to have learned to eat properly. Had my daughter been such a messy eater at her age, I would have kept her at home. Also, someone should indicate to mamma that the voice should not seem to issue from the back of the throat. One is always reminded of Jerry Cruncher. The advertisement about the lad with the unruly hair reminds us of a friend; and we adore the Chinese baby that will eat only gelatine. But best of all is the cow that moos the name of a well-known powdered milk. That sends us! . . . The entertainment, the features themselves? Fair to trash. But full marks to the BBC's programs for children. But why prolong them so long? We know several families where the children have not sat up at table for dinner, for months. Also, while on the subject of television, why are the French programs so much better than the English?

We were at a lecture recently, where the lecturer made a good point. "The only vision that some parents have," said she, "is television." Too true. The speaker was a doctor working with the Social Health bureau of McGill University, and she had hardly a good word for television. The sleeping habits of Canadian children also came in for a few comments. No, she is not an alien, but a good Canadian from Manitoba. As one of the few mothers on this street that insisted that her child go to bed early, I preened myself. Truth to tell, we were blessed with an offspring that liked to go to bed. Also, she was retarded in her time appreciation, so that she happily went to bed at 7.30 for years until she finally achieved the ability to tell time. (What a lovely time the psychoanalysts could have with that nugget!)

This lecturer also had a good word to say for discipline. She spoke to a text, "Underneath are the Everlasting arms," and, without being irreverent, managed to tell us that the "underneathness" (her word) is what is needed by a child; not "smother" love, but support. And discipline is underneathness, or support. With it, the child may occasionally feel frustrated, but he also feels secure. Can it be that the pendulum is at last swinging back? As a woman, I was proud of that lecturer — still young, petite, uninhibited as to vocabularly, the words just poured out for 40 minutes. Then, as she said, "The mind can absorb only as much as the seat can bear," she closed the lecture, to the regret of all. How wise! We have just come from a women's prayer service where the leader prayed so long that one forgot what was the petition. We do loathe prayers that tell the Lord things of which He must, in the nature of His Being, be well aware. To thank the Deity for a beautiful day is one thing, but to begin "Lord, it is a beautiful day, and we worms thank You for it," always makes me want to giggle.

Speaking of giggles, we hear from an executive of the Diocesan W. A. that she disgraced herself at a recent Deanery meeting at Lakefield by laughing out loud in church at one of the reverend Canon's sallies. She also told us about the shy wife of a clergyman who was in swimming when the Canon, then a much younger man, called. She decided to stay in the water until he left, as she was wearing one of the new one-piece suits (that must have been about 1920). After eons of time, the visitor told her, "You might as well come out, for I am going to stay till I see that suit!" . . Apologies to the Canon, but it is too good a story to keep. After all, the best stories are never printed.

But here's a printable one. — We have a neighbor who is precise in all his doings. Everything around his house is in perfect running order, and should one of the distaff side express a desire for a little gadget, he just runs it up himself. All doors close properly, no floor boards squeak more than once, no faucets drip in the family mansion. So, he was horrified to discover that a smell of burning oil pervaded the house when the furnace was on. He got in touch with the engineering department of his outfit and unearthed the fact that an oil furnace requires 400 cu. ft. of air per minute. Now, due to his mania for efficiency, he had, earlier in the season, sealed up all the windows in the cellar, and, of course, the cellar door in that house was always shut, so the frustrated furnace was simply bringing in the air via the chimney and, with it, the smells, and we presume the gases, of the burning oil. Our hero, instead of ripping off the weather stripping on the windows, further complicated things by closing the open hearth, and opening the little door in the chimney downstairs where normally one takes out the ashes. So now the furnace breathes via the living-room hearth, and everybody in the family goes about with a pure and shining conscience.

* * *

We have just made waffles and they were awful! Somehow that sounds like the beginning of an Elvis Presley ditty. One of our pleasanter thoughts these days in a sergeant putting Elvis through his paces. Thus do we while away the long winter nights. With all this snow, can Spring be far behind? And how about Valentines. One of ours said, "I ain't askin' nobody to be my Valentine, 'cept you", which I thought a noble sentiment. The original Valentine would be surprised if he knew what he started.

Lachute serviceman in Arctic, cold-weather vehicle testing

Army's new plastic shelter in tow

A test team from the Army's Vehicle Experimental and Proving Establishment near Ottawa is presently at Fort Churchill, Man., with Capt. A. J. K. Rasmussen, of Hamilton, in charge. Their purpose is to test a new-type snowmobile, a plastic wannegan (a towed shelter for living or working), truck tires, tire patching equipment and other pieces of equipment designed to facilitate movement in the Arctic. Ideal weather for such tests is anything colder than 40 degrees below zero.

One of the major pieces of Army equipment being cold-weather-tested this winter at Fort Churchill by Capt. Rasmussen and his 12-man crew is the Army's new light-tracked vehicle known to troops as "The Rat". The small amphibious articulated vehicle also was tested last year but, according to Capt. Rasmussen, last year's tests were carried out in soft snow below the tree-line.

With the three test drivers putting "The Rat" through its paces in bitterly cold wind and weather is Pte. Rollie Laplante, of Lachute.

This year's tests with the vehicle are what Capt. Rasmussen calls "cold starting and operating tests" and are being carried out on the barren, wind-swept tundra well above the protection of the tree-line.

The new-type wannegan being tested — unlike the cumbersome wooden box-like structures hauled behind most tractor trains operating in the north — is constructed of a plastic material. A trained crew of four can assemble the wanniegan in about 90 minutes. The mobile shelter is heated and was described as being "quite comfortable".

District honors at Agriculture Salon

L. T. Porter's beef steer won Grand Champion rating in the fat stock show at the Sixth National Salon of Agriculture, which concluded last week-end at the Show Mart in Montreal. This 840-lb. animal from the well known Aberdeen Angus herd at St. Andrews was sold by Mr. Porter for a good price in the beef auction.

Reserve Grand Champion award went to the Hereford entry from Smythdon Farm at Ste. Scholastique, while third place in the show was won by Mrs. Ethel McGibbon's beef Shorthorn (pictured in The Watchman last week). The steer, top animal in the show for this breed, was subsequently sold to Steinberg's at $1 a pound. It tipped the scales at 750 lbs.

Other high-ranking cattle from this area were from the herds of Dr. G. R. McCall, Lachute (Aberdeen Angus); Mrs. T. C. Stuart, Arundel (Shorthorn); and Clelands, St. Hermas (Hereford). Irwin Cleland's steer was purchased by Hygrade Food Products.

In the livestock judging contest, Donald McOuat, of Lachute, an agriculture student at Macdonald College, won the prize in judging of Hereford beef cattle, receiving a cash award of $50. Donald also placed lower in two other classes. (Stewart Robinson, also of Lachute 4-H, was unable to participate due to illness.)

Beauce gold find could be one of world's largest

Quebec (CP) — A Toronto firm has staked 75,000 acres in Beauce County and there are indications the area could hold one of the world's largest placer gold deposits.

M. J. Boylen, head of the firm and an active figure in Eastern Canada mining, said in an interview the area, 50 miles south of Quebec City, shows "important possibilities." If tests which were begun last summer continue to show sufficient values he plans to recover the gold by dredging — an operation never tried in Quebec.

Kosti N. Nordlund, 61-year-old engineer with 30 years in placer mining, is directing the Boylen exploration crew. He said, while no conclusion has been reached . . . "On the basis of my experience, it could be a very big find."

Mr. Boylen said his organization would likely spend about $2,000,000 and production could possibly start by summer. Testing with churn drills now is going on 24 hours a day, and when frost leaves the ground seismic tests are to be run.

To prevent a gold rush from developing, an order-in-council was published in the Quebec Official Gazette placing a ban on staking along 35 miles of the Chaudiere River and a half dozen of its tributaries.

Special staking permits may be obtained if the Mines Department is satisfied the interested parties can meet the conditions established for exploitation.

IMPORTANT ASSET

No doubt the farm pond will be useful in supplying water for livestock, or as a place for swimming, or even as a pool for fish. However, in most cases, its greatest value is as a source of fire protection. Every farm should have a pond for this reason if for no other.

TOUGH SOLUTION

With its failure to control wheat surpluses by many devious and expensive methods the United States is arriving at a more realistic viewpoint. Its Committee for Economic Development has made a tough-minded recommendation for a long-term retirement of whole farms and the shift of many farmers to other pursuits in towns and cities.

New bulk delivery truck unit pipes feed into farmer's bins

Farmers' Supply Company has added another innovation for better feed service with the "piped-in" system, made possible with a new truck and equipment which cost around $12,000. The feed-piper is aimed to save the farmer considerable time, money, space and labor.

This new delivery equipment is mounted on a 3-ton truck with sealed-in box made of plywood. Total capacity of the load is 9 tons, with three different compartments, meaning that three 3-ton lots of different kinds of chow may be delivered in the same load. On the floor of the truck are three unloading traps which open on a belt conveyor. A rotary feeder is installed at the back, regulating the flow of feed entering the pipe. The feed is blown up by a pump installed in front of the truck, and an air line brings it to the rotary feeder.

In order to obtain the fullest profitable use from Piped-in Feeds, it is necessary that the farmer prepare for them. Bulk feed is loaded into the truck at the mill. The truck then parks near the farmer's bulk bin setup. From the truck the feed is conveyed through flexible hose into permanent piping leading to the farmer's bin. Delivery is fast and efficient. In a properly constructed system, there is absolutely no dust. Unloading is fast, and is done with a minimum of trouble.

With the Feed Piper, there is no bin that is inaccessible. Deliveries around corners, high in the air and at long distances horizontally are possible. The farmer's bin can be located for his own convenience, where he needs the feed, rather than at the convenience of the delivery truck. In most cases, the feed bins are located convenient to either the animals or the method of feeding the animals; for example, over poultry feeders or centrally in a dairy barn so that the feed may be conveyed a minimum distance in feed carts.

It is claimed that Feed Piper service offers the cleanest feed delivery available. Dusting is absolutely eliminated when truck to bin connections are made with a closed system. The truck operator does not even enter the building where the feed is piped, thus eliminating the threat of spreading possible disease from farm to farm. Also, the delivery man does not have to go near the birds or animals in making the delivery.

Farm aids for low-income group

Who is the "low income farmer"? Has he special problems and if he has what programs can be designed to help him? These questions and others will be answered by a three-man panel chaired by Bob Carbert, farm broadcaster from Wingham, Ont., on March 3.

National Farm Radio Forum panel members are Dr. David MacFarlane, Macdonald College; Howard Conquergood, Canadian Labor Congress, Ottawa; and George McCague, vice-president, United Co-operatives of Ontario.

Many people say support prices, import controls, marketing improvements, etc., are not going to help the low income farmer, that really his problem is special and needs a particular type of help. Is this true?

For instance, do you think that the present direction of extension work should be changed? Is it possible that our present extension programs are directed too much toward helping the better and more successful farmer become even more successful? Consider the policies of some provinces which give help to men who couldn't afford to buy a purebred sire on their own. Once the sire has been purchased for them, is any advice or assistance given on how to feed that animal, or how to use his progeny to establish a better grade of livestock on the farm?

Runner-up for dairy queen title

Mrs. John W. Hadley of Willowdale Road, Lachute Holstein Club's favorite for the Dairy Queen contest of this show, was runner-up in the final competitions on Sunday. Mrs. Hadley had won the elimination round the previous Wednesday and was favored as a prospect for the final laurels. First place in this personality and proficiency contest event was won, however, by Marie-Reine Verville, 29-year-old blonde from Arthabaska. She received a mink stole and a bouquet of roses.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Mineral Deficiencies Reduce Stock Profits

The farmer's livestock profits are becoming more and more a matter of efficient management and efficient feeding. Rations deficient in major and trace minerals rob the farmer of part of his profits by causing mineral deficiency diseases and promoting inefficient use of feeds for growth and production.

Dr. Bohstedt

A sound mineral feeding program begins with the soil itself, when the farmer makes good use of stable manure, lime, and any necessary commercial fertilizer to grow crops that then are well supplied with essential minerals as well as with other materials.

A second step in providing vital minerals for livestock feeding is in feed crop selection. Legumes ordinarily are richer in minerals than grasses.

It is not often possible to supply every mineral requirement through good feed alone, so the program must include mineral supplement feeding.

In areas known to be deficient in trace minerals, give free access to a divided mineral box with trace mineralized salt on one side and bonemeal or other suitable phosphate and ground limestone on the other side. Often it is a good idea to mix a little salt with the bonemeal, or the limestone-bonemeal mixture, merely to keep it from getting dusty and unpalatable.

Considering their ordinary base feeds, cattle need primarily phosphorus added to their rations rather than lime or calcium. If intended for cattle, mineral mixtures, whether home-made or commercial should as nearly as possible have the phosphorus as high as it is in steamed bonemeal (14%) or even higher.

To make sure of enough phosphorus for dairy cattle, add one per cent bonemeal or other suitable phosphate along with one per cent salt to the grain mixture. Other ruminants, or dry cows that may not be getting grain, may be given voluntary access to minerals.

To make sure of enough calcium for swine, if fed all-plant rations with no animal protein, add 0.75 per cent ground limestone, or about one per cent of a mixture of limestone and bonemeal along with 0.5 per cent salt to the total ration. Merely free access to ground limestone has in some experiments given good results.

When meat scraps or similar animal by-products make up the major proportion of the protein concentrates, no additional calcium or phosphorus is necessary.
