Woman's body found in river

The body of Mrs. Ovila Chretien, 56, of Main Street West, was recovered from the North River near the Ayers (lower) dam Tuesday afternoon at 3.40. Missing since Christmas Day, the body was discovered floating on the water by three Ayers employees, Harry Turner, Nelson Lepage and Leopold Rocquebrune, who were clearing refuse from the dam at the time.

They pulled the body to shore where it was recovered by District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur, assisted by morgue and police officials and employees of Ayers Limited.

The mother of 11 children, the victim was partially paralyzed at the time of her disappearance, following which the river was dragged for several days. Funeral service was held this morning.

Good percentage cast votes

Returning Officer Richard Valois reported in excess of 25,541 persons exercised their franchise to vote in Monday's election contest, there being a total of 30,718 names on the electoral lists. Rejected ballots have not been officially compiled.

This represents 83 percent of eligible voters — considerably higher than in last year's election. (In June 1957, the cross-country average of voting was 75 percent.)

Private detective sleuthed in act of breaking, entering

Montreal —

Guy Denis, a Private Investigator who has been operating from a Main Street, Lachute, office for the past six months, was arrested Tuesday morning of last week and charged with breaking and entering and attempting to make off with seven revolvers, a rifle, a typewriter and 15 boxes of ammunition from the store of International Firearms Co. Ltd., 1011 Bleury Street, Montreal.

Appearing the following day before Judge Redmond Roche, the 25-year-old man pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years.

Three Night Patrol and three Radio Patrol cars, from the Montreal headquarters, led by members of Det. Lt. Rowland Perron's Night Squad, following a tip-off, surrounded the building and nabbed the suspect.

"Why did you do this?" the judge asked Denis.

"I wasn't working and I have a wife and child to support," Denis replied. "What else could I do?" he asked, shrugging his shoulders.

"That is surely the wrong attitude," Judge Roche replied. "There are charitable agencies who give help to people who require it."

"I tried all that and I got nowhere," the man replied.

Reversal of sentiment thru Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes

Returning Officer Richard Valois yesterday morning announced final election returns for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, giving Progressive Conservative candidate J. Octave Latour a majority of 4,122 votes over Liberal candidate Bernard Gosselin. Georges Duhamel, who stood as a candidate on the straight Independent ticket, ran a distant third.

With all of the 148 polls reported, the total vote stood as follows:

Duhamel (Independent)	619
Latour (Prog.-Conservative)	14,473

Notary Latour, the deputy-elect, is Mayor of St. Benoit and ex-registrar of the County of Deux Montagnes. His easy victory over the Liberal contender, Bernard Gosselin, represents complete reversal of the political sentiment in last June's federal election, when Philippe Valois (Liberal) swept the constituency with a 1,258-vote majority. In 1953 Mr. Valois polled an imposing majority of 7,675 over his nearest opponent.

The local landslide is also in accord with the National surge in support of the Diefenbaker government. Cross-country returns give the Progressive-Conservatives a representation of 209 seats, with 47 for the Liberals, and 8 for the CCF party.

The District Returning Officer reported no trouble in any of the polls and, as far as Lachute proper is concerned, Police Chief Fernand Trépanier reported he did not receive a single call for election irregularities.

The winning contestant was met in Lachute by a packed Auditorium shortly following the assurance of the landslide victory, and was welcomed in no uncertain terms by party organizers, supporters and onlookers. He was first congratulated by Mayor Léopold Carrière of Lachute, chairman of the proceedings, who pointed out that, "Notary Latour was the choice of both Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes, taking a majority in both counties."

In thanking the population in general for the support accorded to him, Notary Latour paid special tribute to his general campaign organizer, Adhemar Cuerrier; he pledged his services to all, and in closing stated "I very much wanted to go to Ottawa, and now that I am on my way, I wish to assure you I will be at your service, for the population in general.

"This victory tonight is not my victory," he concluded, "but that of citizens of every poll in the constituency — just as our victory as Progressive-Conservatives is the victory of every village, town, county, province and — yes, Canada as a whole."

Following Mr. Latour's somewhat lengthy address in French and English — little Ginette Cuerrier, daughter of the local party organizer, presented Mrs. Latour with a bouquet of roses, after which Linton W. Armstrong offered the winning contestant the congratulations of the English population, adding, "I personally have waited a long time for this night, and must say the victory is sweet."

Others on the platform who addressed the gathering were Gerard Lefebvre, who thanked the population "for the intelligent vote of the day"; Dr. Jean Paul Dorion, organizer of the Lachute district, along with René Matte; and Bill Odellette, of Brownsburg.

Introduced by Mayor Carrière as a "wonderful support to the Conservative cause", was Gilbert E. Ayers, local industrialist, who opened his remarks with a comment on the faulty loudspeaking system. "But this is not the only Mike that is not up to par at the present," he quipped.

"It is a wonderful feeling to see the P.C.'s back in power and I am sure they are going there to do a joo that will help us all. I know what we in the textile industry have tried to do with the Liberal governments (three of them), and while we were received with courtesy, we got no action.

"We needed someone to do something for the distressed industries of Canada. I wish the new government godspeed and hope that Notary Latour will be the success in Ottawa that he is here tonight."

In closing the proceedings, Mayor Carrière thanked the various sections of the population for their overwhelming vote in favor of the Conservative candidate. He presented the newly-elected deputy with a poll-by-poll compilation of the results, assuring those present that "the man we asked you to support will represent us all with dignity, and be at the disposal of all."

Following this jubilant gathering, a party for supporters, friends and the general public was given by Mr. Latour in the village of St. Benoit.

Mutilated body found at roadside

Provincial Police are investigating the death of a man whose torso was found in a ditch near Montebello last Sunday.

Police described the headless body with both hands amputated at the wrists, as that of a man between 22 and 32 years of age. From the condition of the body, police believe that the victim was killed about six weeks ago.

Sgt. Gerard Vermette, of the Provincial Police traffic division, said the body apparently had been thrown into a ditch by a snowplow some time ago.

Legionnaires welcome 13 new members; promote venture for teen-age interest

With an initiation of 13 Legionnaire candidates, Branch 70 of the Canadian Legion held an enthusiastic meeting in the Lachute Memorial Hall, under chairmanship of Comrade R. O. (Dick) MacLean.

Among business discussed during the meeting were plans for a drawing and election of a Teen-age Queen for Lachute. This drawing is planned to raise funds to keep the hall in operation and to aid in community work. Each week the local branch of the Legion sponsors a dance for teen-agers, and no charge is made to them for this facility. The teen-agers have formed their own club, under the name of "Club 70", and have their own committees in charge of the Friday night activities. They are assisted by Legionnaires, who act as chaperons and advisers in this Legion community effort. The teen-agers charge a small yearly fee to their members, and apply this money to the use of their own organization.

These dances have proved very popular among Lachute and district patrons, and every Friday night, regardless of weather, the teen-agers fill the hall to capacity. They begin their evening's entertainment at 8 o'clock and end promptly at 11.30, and no one is allowed to loiter inside or outside the hall after this time. The Legion thus feel that they have fulfilled their object of creating an enjoyable atmosphere for the young girls and boys, and responsibility rests with the parents after 11.30 to see that their children find their way home.

Candidates for Teen-age Queen were elected and the following were nominated by ballot — Miss Shirley Pollock, Miss Marilyn Underhill, Mlle Louise Lajoie and Mlle Claire Lepage. Tickets for a drawing are currently on sale, and each ticket will entitle the purchaser to one vote for their choice of Teen-age Queen. Further information will be duly published.

Group excursion on CNR line to Hawkesbury

(Our district correspondent)

Cushing — Householders along the C.N.R. route from Hawkesbury to Montreal witnessed the sight of a train really packed and crowded last Sunday — even the spaces between the cars being filled with men. The trip was an outing arranged by a French-language historical group, on a circuit tour from Montreal — believed to be in connection with the withdrawal of steam locomotives and replacement by diesels shortly on this line.

Sunday was 'dial day' in Lachute

Just after 2 a.m. last Sunday the new dial exchange for Lachute was opened by the Bell Telephone Company, and today residents are conversing through modern telephone facilities.

The changeover from the old manual to the new dial equipment took less than two minutes to complete.

R. R. Pearson, Bell Telephone manager here, said that most of the telephone users have taken to the dial system "like ducks to water." They were so anxious to try out the new equipment however, that for a time the volume of "curiosity calls" had the exchange working to capacity, and many would-be callers experienced delays in getting a "dial tone" — the humming sound which signifies that the dial equipment is ready to take the call.

At cutover time, the scenes in the manual and dial exchanges were hectic. Two verbal comments — "pull coils" and "release switches" — were the signals for the actual cutover, and they climaxed the lengthy project which brought the dial system here.

At the signal "pull coils", crews of men wearing safety-glasses yanked out hundreds of tiny fuses, known as "heat coils", which connected telephone lines with the old manual switchboard — and the exchange was "dead".

Immediately a signal was sent over a special telephone line to the dial exchange, where the order "release switches" was given. A crew there pulled out thousands of little insulators known as blocking pics. At that moment the new dial equipment went into operation connecting calls.

LOrraine 2 in Lachute and LEcture 3 in Brownsburg were then the new numbers in use, and the old ones passed into history.

The local Bell manager, however, said that a good number of telephone users in Lachute do not seem to understand exactly how to use their new dial telephones. Here are a few tips given by Mr. Pearson:

First — make sure of the number you are calling, by looking it up in your new Telephone Book. Then — lift the receiver, hold it close to your ear — and LISTEN FOR THE HUM-M-M. That's your signal the line is ready so when you hear it, begin to dial:

(1) Place your finger through opening in dial where the first figure or number appears;

(2) Pull the dial around evenly until your finger strikes the finger-stop;

(3) Remove finger and let dial spin back to rest. Do not interfere with its return.

Now dial the remaining figures of the number in the same way, in their proper sequence. The telephone you are calling will then ring, or you will get a buzz-buzz-buzz sound (the "busy" signal). If you find you have made a mistake before completing a call, just replace the receiver and start over again.

Rotary completes election of slate year's officers

Berry Bourne was elected incoming vice-president of the Rotary Club at last Thursday's regular meeting — elected directors including Art Lapp, who was also a nominee for vice-president, Ron Barnette, Phil Grant and Jim Campbell.

Elected by acclamation the previous week were President Syd Patterson, Secretary Bob Wyse, Treasurer Sonny Ogilvie and immediate past-president King Amos to the board of directors. The new officers will assume their duties in July.

Attendance pins were presented to Larry Presseault and Wes Freeland, both five years, and Jack MacKimmie, one year — all effective January last.

President King Amos read a letter from Léopold Carrière, CNIB Advisory Board chairman, expressing appreciation for the donation which had made possible the purchase of the Trial Lens Kit. Rotarian John Chalmers, also a member of the CNIB committee, reported that the kit was used for the first time and the Montreal eye doctor had examined 11 patients, reporting further treatment was necessary in two cases.

In closing, Rotarian Chalmers added: "I think all members of this Club can feel proud of our part in purchasing this necessary equipment. It requires a specialist to handle it but, without the equipment, the CNIB could not obtain the specialist. If glasses are found necessary, the prescription is given and the glasses can be purchased wherever the patient wishes."

It was announced that this Thursday's meeting would take the form of the annual Children's Night.

New C.O. here for inspection of local Battery

Lieut.-Col. A. Malouf, who took over command of 37th Field Regiment, R.C.A., on March 27, accompanied by Lieut.-Col. D. B. Gibson, CD., former Commanding Officer of the 37th Field Regiment, inspected the local battery of artillery and expressed satisfaction with the training and general turnout of the unit.

The battery are continuing their training locally. After concentrating in the winter months on civil defence, they are now undergoing instruction with the new 105 guns, signals and truck driving. The gun training is under supervision of W.O.-1 G. Hannah, of "I" Staff in Montreal, who also gave instruction last year with the 25-pounders; these are now obsolete in Canada.

The change-over of command in the 37th Field Regiment took place last Thursday in Montreal, with Major-General J. M. Rockingham, CB, CBE, DSO, ED, General Officer Commanding, Quebec Command, presiding for the official change.

The Lachute Battery were thanked for their part in the ceremonies and received congratulations on their efficient turnout on parade, both by the retiring C.O., Lieut.-Col. D. B. Gibson, CD., and by Lieut.-Col. A. Malouf, new C.O., of the 37th Field Regiment, to which the local battery is affiliated.

Home and School Associations reaching out to New Canadians

This is the first in a series of short articles designed to create public awareness and interest in the important educational work being carried on by the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations.

Montreal, March 31 — Parents in the Province of Quebec can now read of the benefits of participation in local home and school activities in six different languages, according to a report made by the citizenship committee of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations.

William Asherman, chairman of the committee, points out that the translation is very desirable because of the considerable numbers of new Canadians not able to understand the purpose of home and school. The aims and objectives of parent-teacher groups are now available in Hungarian, Greek, German, Polish, Russian and Ukrainian.

The citizenship committee, though only formed in 1957, is very active — the main problem being the need for more committee members. In spite of this, plans are already well underway for its participation in the annual provincial meeting of the Home and Schools Federation to be held in Montreal on May 2-3. This committee is arranging for a panel of three outstanding personalities in the field of education to discuss a "Family Study" topic at the conference.

The citizenship committee maintains close contact and co-operation with prominent groups such as the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the Canadian Citizenship Council, the Montreal Citizenship Council and the National Film Board. One of the highlights of this year's activity was the co-sponsorship of a second institute on "Rearing Children of Goodwill", arranged by the Council of Christians and Jews in Montreal.

Ottawa River clear of ice

(Our district correspondent)

Cushing — The Ottawa River is almost entirely free of ice, which is quite early for the annual break-up. It should be noted, however, the centre of the river has never been frozen over this past winter — in contrast to some years past, when Ontario farmers drew wood for several weeks across the ice from their woodlots on the Quebec side.

District report on Easter Seals; Lachute lagging

A progress report on the Easter Seals canvass shows a gratifying response. It is reported Brownsburg and St. Andrews residents have done notably well, while welcome returns have been forthcoming from Morin Heights and other county communities canvassed by mail.

The response from Lachute residents, however, has been lagging so far. Several thousand envelopes were mailed to town addresses, and it is hoped before the campaign closes that Lachute will prove one of the largest contributing communities.

It is stressed that Easter Seals are the means of extending valuable aid to crippled and handicapped children, through the Quebec Easter Seals Society — and through the Lachute Lions Club, as sponsors in this district, the fund has been an instrument of immeasurable benefit in local cases of both children and adults.

Please help to promote this worthy endeavor!

The Fly Fisherman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

The average fisherman who is thinking of taking up Fly Fishing as a sport, reads up on the subject and listens to the so-colled "experts", and right away is scared off! Don't be fooled by these gents, as Fly Casting is a simple and inexpensive way to fish, and certainly one of the finest sports there is. I'm not going to tell you that it is necessary for you to have a Double Tapered Line or a Split Cane Rod costing a small fortune. Actually you can get a reasonably good fly outfit for $20 or $25, and instead of a lot of high-sounding tackle, I'll try and give you something you can understand.

• • •

First of all — Rods. We can start with the glass fly rod, you can get the solid or the hollow. The solid type is good for the heaving out of Bass Bugs and anything heavy, but nothing else. The reason for this is pretty obvious — the weight, lack of resiliency, etc. If you want a pole you can lift a stove with, O.K., but to fish, take along a block and tackle, your arm will need it.

The hollow glass rods have everything you want — lightness, resilience, strength. As you know, glass rods come in all prices; it isn't necessary to get an expensive one, unless you can afford it. You can get good ones for $15 - $18. Naturally, the more it costs the better the rod. When the glass is being spun, it is run off in fine, medium or coarse fibres. The finer the spinning, the better the rod. That is, of course, understandable, as the finer the fibres, the longer it takes to spin.

When you do decide to get your rod, try it out with a reel and a line. Most reputable dealers will let you do this, as they have reels with different lines on them for you to try out. Don't be satisfied with trying one line; after all, you are buying and using the outfit, and it's up to you to get the best possible combination of rod and line to suit yourself, both as to action and weight. These make a big difference to your personal comfort, whether you enjoy the day or not. So get something you can handle all day if necessary.

The lighter the rod you get, the lighter the line you will use and the faster action it will have. By fastness, I mean the speed that the tip section of your rod operates under normal conditions. Picking up line from the water and into the air. To find out if you have the right outfit, carry about 25 feet of line directly in front of you, bring your rod up with a smooth motion over back of your shoulder, apply power to the pick-up about ¼ of the way up to your shoulder. This will carry the line up and over your shoulder. If it goes up in a smooth flow, does not sag, drop or jerk, it is a pretty good chance you have got yourself a balanced outfit. This is the pick-up; you will find that sometimes on water you have to put more power into your pick-up, but it is all essentially the same. Of course, you aren't going to be flipping a Bass Bug 50 feet or so with it. But you have a Wet Fly and Dry Fly rod until you get another one. Distance is not of great importance; the longer your line, the less chance you have of hooking your fish. So forget all the experts that get their fish 75 to 100 feet away. Their imaginations do strange things for them. You will get more fish from the length of your rod to about 59 feet than they will ever catch at their distances, even if they could handle four rods in each hand.

One of the very good things about glass rods is that they take a great deal of punishment; they don't as a rule take a set, or warp in any way — so that, for the fisherman who likes to throw his tackle into the back of his car, then forget about it until the next trip, they are fine. . . Of course, it shouldn't be done, BUT.

The only real objection to them is that, if they do break at any time, they are very hard to have fixed. Some of the types can be fixed, but as a rule when they break, that is it. . . That is all for the Glass Rods.

Now we come to the Split Cane rods. These are another type entirely. You don't throw these into the back of your car and forget about them! The good fisherman either has one or is saving his pennies to get one. The price range is much the same as the glass ones. The more you pay the better the rod. They are dearer to start with, about $25 and up. Mostly UP. Don't be scared by this, though. There is a lot of time for you to get one. I have a split cane that cost me $90 before the 1939 fracas, and it is still one of my pets; it's good for years of fishing yet. It has paid for itself times over. It is treated right though — dried off after each using, etc.

There are a lot of Japanese rods on the market, supposedly split cane, colored in various shades, black, dark brown, etc. They are very cheap in price and I won't pass any comment on them except to tell you that — you get what you pay for.

If you are considering a cane rod, when you try them you will find this type is much faster than the glass on the pick-up, and has a shade more backbone, just a little stiffer. They run in all type of cuts 4, 6, 8 stripes is each section. The most used today is the six cut, it is entirely up to you what you get. The action varies very little in them. . . . That is just my opinion though.

The best cane rods are at present being made in England, not that they can't make them as well over here. Heddon Rods used to make a very good fly rod of split cane, along with a few others. The manufacturers today are only interested in the glass type, as their supplies for this variety of rod are much easier to get than for cane.

Cane rods must be looked after, wiped off, etc. They must not be left in cases as they will take a set or warp that is extremely hard to get out — if you do get it out. Anyone having a cane rod will not mind this though, because he has an investment in equipment that will pay dividends all his life."

• • •

Lines are a big question on any rod, glass or cane. The safest way to match your rod, I have already told you about. If you follow this you won't have any trouble, but if in doubt at all about it, try a few lines. I use a level line most of the time; as it will cast better in a wind; the only thing you have to do is lengthen your leaders.

Lines are always a big question on any rod, and a fly rod is no exception. Either glass rods or cane have to have the right line to get the best out of the outfit. The best way to have a correct outfit is to follow these simple tips:

H.E.H., the lightest;

H.D.H., middle-weight;

G.B.G., the heaviest line in the standard tapers.

In the Single-Tapered lines there is only the light tip on the one end, the main portion of the line is level. On the Double-Tapered, the light portion is on both ends of the line. The main portion is still level, but much shorter.

The level line is one that has no light tip to it, that is it's the same size throughout. They start at the very light —

F level, very much used for Dry Fly work by the experts;

C level, good for very windy days;

I could give you the dimensions of these lines, but that is just another way to confuse the fly man. Another thing, no two companies have the same specifications for their lines. The same applies to the gravity of the line. The safest way to get a line is to ask for either a floater, for dry fly, or a sinker, for wet flies. This way, you don't have to bother about the dimensions. If it's of any help to you, the gravity of a floating line is .98, for a sinker it's 1.03. These will vary with the manufacturer, so that is why I said don't bother with it. The Standard Tapered Line is 90 feet and the Torpedo 120 feet. If you are in doubt about the line you should get, try it out on your rod first. The following may help you a little when you go after your line; specifications for five weights shown in this order:

Weight of Rod (ozs.) — Length in feet — Level, and — Double tapered:

2½ to 3½ — 7 to 8 feet — F — H.E.H.

3½ to 4½ — 7½ to 8½ feet — E — H.D.H.

4½ to 5½ — 8½ to 9 feet — D — H.C.H.

5½ to 6½ — 9 feet — C — H.C.H.

6½ to 7½ — 9 to 9½ feet — B — G.B.G.

Anything heavier than 7½ ounces, you can use the F.A.F. Tadpole tapers.

• • •

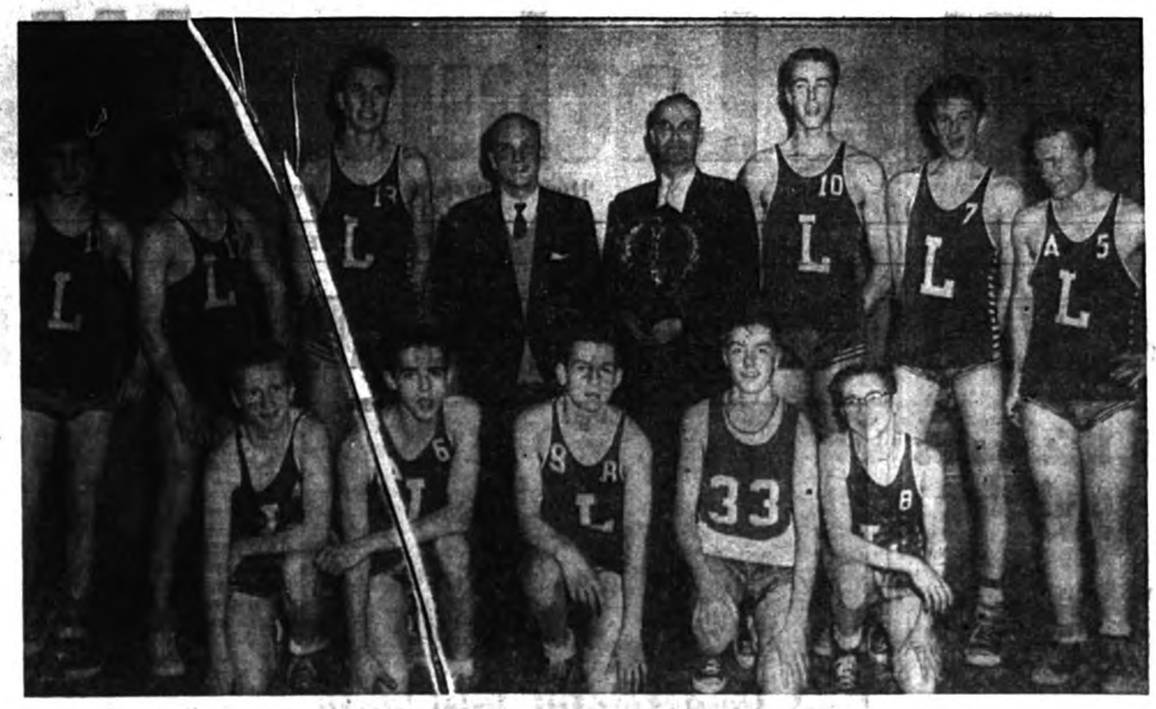

The leaders you use are the next step that can make or break you as a fly caster. Most of the leaders you buy already made up, are not as a rule much good. They are either too heavy, too short, too stiff — and I could go on about this for awhile yet. The best thing to do is to make up your own. Starting out, have your leaders about 1 foot shorter than your rod, and as you get used to the leaders you can lengthen them out to the size you can handle. The easiest way, besides the cheapest, is to buy yourself a spool of monofilament of different tests, 4 lb., 2 lb., and so on. Build the butt of the leader 4 lb. and lighten it out with your other tests. As an example, if the leader is 8 ft., make 4 ft. of it of the 4 lb. test, the remainder of 2 lb.; in this way you will have a good leader for flies that you are using singly. If you are going to use two or more flies on the leader, just tie in a dropper leader; that is, tie in a piece of mono about 18" long, making sure it's tied in tight. You can do this to as many droppers as you wish to use. More than three is very hard to handle, and also illegal in most of Canada. Stick to two flies and you will have all you can handle. The heavier the flies you can use, and you have to have a good heavy leader for Bass Bugs, and Tandem Streamers. Make sure the knots are all well tied, there are all kinds of knots to use on monofilament line. I am not able to sketch them in for you; but all the field magazines show these knots, so I'll leave it up to them.

The golfer's dream

If you've ever been lucky enough to make a hole in one in golf you've probably figured it was a "one in a million shot."

The odds aren't quite that big — but they're big enough that you have a right to feel proud.

The Golfer's Handbook, an authoritative British publication which devotes 19 pages to holes in one, estimates that if a golfer capable of hitting shots which would cover the top of the pin punched out shots continuously, he ought to make a hole in one from about 1,500 or 2,000 shots.

The first recorded hole in one was made by "Young Tom" Morris in the 1868 British Open championship. He made it on the 145-yard 8th hole at Prestwick, Scotland.

Art Wall, Jr., a touring professional from Pocono Manor, Pa., claims a total of 34 holes in one but not all are authenticated. Tommy Armour, another American, and England's Charles Cevalier made 25 each.

If you haven't had one yet, don't give up hope. It's recorded that a Briton, T. S. Smith, accomplished the feat when he was 91.

Hockey debate on passing-line

By Gerald Lougheed.

There's a mild controversy shaping up over whether the centre ice red line, introduced by organized hockey a few years back, has really improved the game.

The proponents claim that with the attacking team allowed to forward pass anywhere in its half of the ice the tempo of the game has speeded up.

The opponents say co-ordinated team play has almost disappeared with forwards hanging around the red line waiting for a long pass and then firing the puck into the enemy zone instead of attacking as a unit.

Bob Davidson, chief scout of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, can be counted among the latter group. He figures the red line is killing individual brilliance among the younger players.

He recently returned from a scouting trip in Northern Ontario — one of the Leafs' happy hunting grounds for the last two decades — and reported a sad lack of individual stars on the minor teams below the junior level.

He says the emphasis now is on passing rather than skating and stickhandling, two of hockey's most important fundamentals.

"Instead of lugging the puck out of their own zones, the kids now are passing it up to mates hanging around the red line. They move over the line and fire it into the other team's zone."

Under the present rules with the red line in vogue Davidson figures it's smart team play, showing that the coaches are taking full advantage of the regulations.

"But it cuts stickhandling and puck carrying to a minimum."

"And it also hurts in the skating department because boys are not moving as far or as fast when in possession of the puck."

Easter Time

THERE IS probably no other holiday or holy day, not excepting Christmas, which causes such an upsurging of hope in the minds of those who call themselves Christians. All the hopes of that memorable time had been built on the coming of a Saviour who had, in the course of a short lifetime, suffered injury and insult and eventual death. But, in spite of all this, he had promised his resurrection and it had happened — and all the promise which began with the birth of a Christ Child was fulfilled.

This holy time has been called Easter and is observed on the first Sunday following the paschal full moon, and this word "paschal" links up the old with the new testament in that it is derived from the Chaldee word Pascha, the equivalent of the Hebrew word Pesach. That name recalls the act of the Destroying Angel in passing over "the households of the Hebrews when he smote the Egyptians." So that this Easter festival commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ and the Hebrew celebration of the original "Passover".

That it falls in the spring of the year makes Easter fundamentally a season of hope. All the trivial bits of ceremony which we have come to associate with Easter have, in their way, a significance. The baby animals, the first spring flowers, the candy easter eggs, even the Easter finery, are marks of a new and happier season. The winter snow and ice are disappearing; new life will soon be breaking through the cold earth; gardens and buds will be straining to burst their bonds.

Easter is a happy and a hopeful time, never more welcome than today, with its promise and its fulfilment of an even older promise of life everlasting.

Revolt against filthy literature

IN THE WIDESPREAD agitation against the display and sale of obscene literature on news-stands, which has provoked action at municipal levels in Lachute and surrounding communities — there remains one apparent hitch, that is, the definition of "obscene." With commendable zeal this problem of immoral propaganda has been attacked throughout Quebec and elsewhere. Public opinion has swelled the matter to the dimensions of a national issue, so that, after years of fruitless protest, something is being done about it.

The Department of Justice at Ottawa is busy establishing the definition of "obscenity" insofar as it concerns literature and periodicals. Justice Minister the Hon. Dave Fulton made this statement in an election rally last week in Montreal. "We are deeply concerned about the flood of salacious literature inundating Canada," he said. "One of our major problems is the lack of definition in the Criminal Code of 'obscenity'. All we have is a judicial agreement made in England in the 1870's on what is obscene.

"We must give our courts a fundamental definition of obscenity that can guide them in whatever rulings may be necessary in future cases."

The difficulty, Mr. Fulton emphasized, is to ensure proper recognition of the difference between art and perversion. "We don't want to censor, or otherwise inhibit, art or literature. We do want to eliminate cheap, obscene matter produced only to appeal to the immature or the perverted." The Minister expressed an opinion that heavy minimum penalties should be imposed on producers of salacious literature to halt it at its source.

Meanwhile, where municipal by-laws give the go-ahead, local police and officials will doubtless be guided by their own discretion in cleaning up the news-stands. And — definition or no definition — the discretion of our town and village Councils should not be far wrong in these matters.

B.C. Imagination

THEY SAY out West that any excuse is good enough for a party — and British Columbia has a dandy.

The province is celebrating its Centennial this year and the sons of the pioneers are whooping it up in every centre from metropolitan Vancouver to remote Popkum.

The elaborate planning recalls another example of western imagination which shone in Vancouver three years ago when the Grey Cup football classic moved from Toronto to B.C. for a one-day stand.

Before the less exuberant got hold of the reins, Vancouver had an Indian salmon-bake set for the courthouse grounds, an assault on the world's five-room-house-building record on the main Granville and Georgia corner and other hi-jinks.

Totem poles would sprout like crocuses. Liberace of the bugle-beads and candelabra would play. . . But saner heads prevailed.

As it was, firecrackers banged long into the night and dragons danced in Chinatown. Beauty queens paraded and the biggest hall in town threw a gigantic party and dance.

Edmonton beat Montreal 34-19 and that night 50,000 cheering, drinking, snake-dancing people plugged the hotel district solid.

Another time, for no good reason, a road race of rickshaws was proposed from Vancouver 150 miles south to Seattle and return. Tickets would be sold on each entry and prizes would be valuable. Profits would go to charity.

"Gambling", said the saner heads, and the idea died.

For the Centennial, beards are in bloom throughout the province. RCN crews are rehearsing to re-enact the arrival of the SS. Commodore from San Francisco 100 years ago. A vintage car race is planned for Victoria. A pageant "From wilderness to wonderland" is slated for Shalalth and mule teams and an old-timers' parade for Popkum.

You've heard of a pound cake? A 10,000-pound birthday cake will be cut. A midsummer bonspiel is set for Nelson and a $50,000 golf tournament for Vancouver. The Grey Cup game is back, the dragons will dance again and the firecrackers bang.

If it isn't a bang-up party, it won't be for lack of imagination.

Good times or bad?

GOOD TIMES or bad times ahead for Canada this year? . . . According to an index that has yet to be proved unreliable, those who view the future with great pessimism are in error — asserts C. J. Harris, a much-quoted observer on the current scene. . .

The index in question is the forecast of capital spending prepared by the federal Department of Trade and Commerce. By predicting a total capital investment for 1958 of $8.5 billion it foresees no serious decline for Canadians in employment and income over the whole year. This same figure was forecast for 1957, and proved to be on the low side by $200 million when the total reached a record high. That this year's forecast allows for a decline of only two per cent certainly indicates no economic depression — this observer emphasizes.

Based on a survey of planned private and public investment by Canadian business, institutions, government and housebuilders, the Department's forecast has not been seriously in error in the ten years that it has been prepared. Its significance as an index of good times or bad is due to the fact that, in any country, the level of jobs and wages is vitally affected by the level of capital spending.

Capital expenditures are those made to replace, repair or expand such physical assets as homes, factory and office buildings, mines, shops, schools, farm buildings and implements, fishing gear and boats, hospitals, railways, roads, waterways, telephone lines, power installations, and machinery and equipment that enable workers to produce with greater efficiency a greater volume of goods and services.

Viewpoints and perspectives

"A NATION which only yesterday lived mainly on the production of raw materials is now one of the world's major manufacturing centres. As such, it is more concerned than ever before with the health of its manufacturing industries — and hence with the tariffs affecting them."

THE NEW SACK silhouette is nothing but a retread job on the flapper fashions of the 1920s. We suspect the whole sorry business is a plot cooked up by TV. It's going to be hard to tell whether the late, late show was filmed in 1958 or 35 years ago.

St. Andrews — Several parties have offered sites for permanent buildings for the Agricultural Society, and we hope we may be successful in getting them for this community.

A meeting of young people was held in the Victoria Hall, and an association was formed called the "Lachute Band of Hope" with Mrs. Leggo as superintendent.

Mr. Bannerman's rope factory has so increased its business that hands are obliged to work night and day.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey, the American evangelists, are now conducting a campaign in Ireland.

A legal action by Thomas Owens and William Owens, merchants of Stonefield, against John Cadieu, farmer, Township of Chatham, is [illegible] Superior Court for Lower Canada.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong, of Knox Church, Ottawa, recently lectured in Dr. Knox's Church in Belfast, Ireland, his subject being, "Canada, the future home of millions."

At Mr. Clarke's sale of livestock here, cows sold from $48.50 to $50. One ewe and two lambs brought $22½.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, April 3, 1908 —

Mr. G. Morrison has placed a new, up-to-date 75 h.p. engine in his mill at The Glen. The installation was made in record time by George A. Campbell, of this town.

Mr. J. G. Owens, of Stonefield, has taken up residence in Montreal. Accompanied by his sons Grant and Russell, he drove to the city on Friday with a pair of chestnut fillies and "Second Thought".

Fire broke out in the Singer Machine premises on Main Street. The town pump was on hand but was unable to use the only hydrant in town (on the private property of Mr. P. Rodrigue) as it was frozen up. Willing hands carried buckets of water and the fire was subdued.

Mr. H. W. Cliff has won a $100 scholarship at the Presbyterian College, Montreal.

Miss Violet Richardson, successor to Miss Lillian Smith, invites all ladies to her Millinery Opening, April 7. (Advt.)

It is of interest to every lady to hear Miss McClelland demonstrate the B & I Patent Bias Filled Corsets, at H. E. Burwash's store next week. (Advt.)

Mr. Paul Jousse, of Vankleek Hill, was in town to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Jousse (widow of the late Rev. F. J. Jousse, formerly of Paris, France).

Who was the first woman physician in Canada?

Emily Howard Stowe (née Jennings) was born in May, 1831, at South Norwich, Upper Canada. Educated at Toronto Normal School, she began a teaching career at the age of 15. She married John Stowe in 1856, and went on to complete her medical studies at the New York College of Medicine for Women (M.D. 1867). It was not until 1880, after a prolonged struggle, that she was admitted as a member of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, becoming the first woman authorized to practice medicine in Canada. She became a leading physician in Toronto, was active in promoting higher education for women, and was a leader in the woman-suffrage movement. She was principal founder and first president of the Dominion Women's Enfranchisement Association, 1893. She died, in Toronto, on April 30, 1903.

A fruit native throughout Canada, and found wild from coast to coast, and as far north as 64°N., the strawberry is cultivated in almost every district where the wild berries are found. The nation's most important small fruit, the cultivated varieties grown in Canada have been developed from European and American species, including the native strawberry of Chile. The total Canadian commercial production in a single year, in the 1950's was valued at $5,579,000. Ontario producing $2,022,000 of the total, B.C. $1,943,000, Quebec $1,330,000 and the Maritimes $284,000. In British Columbia the major producing areas lie in Fraser Valley, Vancouver Island, and the Kootenay Valley, with the largest Ontario production in the southern and southwestern parts of the Province. Another important area includes the Island of Orleans (Ile d'Orleans), in the St. Lawrence River. Popular varieties include British Sovereign, Premier, Dunlop, Sparkle, Valentine, Tupper, Elgin and Louise.

Who was Patrick Burns?

Patrick (Pat) Burns, born on July 6th, 1856, in Oshawa, Upper Canada, was the son of Irish parents. He went to Manitoba in 1878, and became a cattle dealer. It was in Calgary, Alberta, that he established the meat-packing firm that bears his name, and which was destined to become one of the largest businesses of its kind in the world, with branches in London, Liverpool and Yokohama. He held interests in several important undertakings, holding directorships in various banking, engineering and insurance companies. He was called to the Canadian Senate in 1931, relinquishing his seat in 1936. Mr. Burns died, in Calgary, on February 24th, 1937.

What is a stoneboat?

A stoneboat is a structure consisting of a few planks firmly fastened together to form a platform, and equipped with a coupling so that it can be drawn by horses or oxen. Much used in pioneer days to clear the land of stones, and to transport overland other heavy objects not easily lifted into higher vehicles, stoneboats are really forms of mud sleds.

Easter Seals — subscribe now!

Most of us, at one time or another, have seen a crippled child hobble down the street or across the room. Generally, a shiny brace of steel and leather was clamped on one or both of the legs.

Most of us, too, have probably thought of this unfortunate situation, but have failed to do anything about it. Perhaps, if the youngster belonged to us, the idea behind Easter Seals would strike home quicker and deeper.

But, let's hope we are not confronted with this sad thing happening in our family. Let's do something now to show thousands of crippled youngsters and adults that it doesn't matter who they are or where they come from. Let's buy Easter Seals and help these fellow Canadians get back on the road again.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Sunday driver

I confess to being one of those dawdling Sunday drivers you get-there-in-a-hurry motorists cuss about. If you see a station wagon loaded with kids poking along the highway on a Sunday afternoon, don't cuss at us too hard. We'll be off the highway and onto a side road as soon as a good one appears; meanwhile, even from the highway, the countryside is good to look at and we're gawkers from away back.

We don't plan our drives in detail, just the general direction. We start out early in the afternoon, knowing that we'll wind up in some small town for a meal about six o'clock, and a leisurely drive back home just in time for the twins to get to bed by nine. That small-town meal appeals to them, even when the cooking isn't perfect. It's the adventure that pleases them; and my wife enjoys almost any meal when she's free of the dishes afterwards.

We've often tried to figure out why we are such a gypsy-like family when week-ends roll around. On the humdrum week days we are stay-at-homes, even our teenagers. But the itch for motoring starts Friday and by Sunday afternoon we're eager to be off.

We take it easy. The kids like to pull up beside the road, toss gravel stones at poplar trees, or snap some pictures of anything that happens to be handy. We watch for birds or rabbits, tell stories, crack jokes, and sometimes climb a farmer's fence to look at cattle, sheep, horses. A dog that has come raging down a road to chew our tires, has been surprised to have us stop, doors fly open and a horde of youngsters rush at him. It is surprising how quickly the angry snarls and barks change to delighted tail-wagging.

Sometimes I find myself wondering, after one of these country excursions, about human values. Certainly my youthful plans for success didn't include Sunday afternoon dawdling over country roads, with a carload of athletic, noisy youngsters. Yet when I take stock of the really good things life has given me, those country jaunts are near the top. And I thank God I was lucky to be born in a free and prosperous country where a man of modest means can own a car and take his family for Sunday outings. We don't realize, sometimes, how fortunate we are.

From Stavanger, Norway, comes the rather depressing news that a replica of a 60-foot Viking longship, complete with 22 oarsmen and extra hands to cope with the sails, is to be put in service to carry tourists.

"Real mead, served in drinking horns, will be handed around, and every passenger will receive a 'Viking certificate'.

"At Molla, where passengers will muster before setting off on their 'raid', a Viking fortress will be set up, and here latterday rovers will be served roast meat on the spit."

There is no logical reason why anyone should be irritated by the prospect of paunchy, cigar-smoking visitors from Squirrel Prairie, Nebraska, staggering about the deck of a phony Viking ship drinking real mead.

If retired dog-biscuit salesmen and globe-trotting heiresses want to play at being Vikings, why shouldn't they, one may ask.

No reason. Clean fun. However, to get into the proper spirit of the thing, they should be prepared to go ashore and put some villages to fire and sword, and leave a few of their number behind, dead and wounded.

The trouble about replicas of Viking ships, and such devices, is that they are short of authentic trappings, like blood and stench.

The nobles of the old French court used to play at being shepherds and shepherdesses, in much the same fashion. This was purely a fancy-dress caper. If a real sheep had wandered in they would probably have run away from it in terror.

Tourists driving along certain highways in the United States are reminded by signboards that they are following the route of the explorers Lewis and Clark.

But they are following the route in plushy station-wagons and limousines with big tail-fins. And I'll bet that many of them feel a secret twinge of superiority as they glide past those Lewis and Clark signposts.

Inwardly, they feel that they are better men than Lewis and Clark because those old fuddy-duddies couldn't afford the down-payment on a Mercury.

So far nobody has thought of equipping tourists with tin helmets and gas masks and then have them pretend they are soldiers in one of the world wars. But it won't surprise me if they get around to it.

Looking over scenes of famous events is not bad in itself. Probably it is educational. There's no harm, either, in dressing up in masquerade spirit, and pretending that you are back in those gruelling old days.

But the trouble about tourism is that it means doing things the easy way. It means looking at things from the outside, cruising through a bitterly cold landscape in a heated car, and staring haughtily through the window at people blowing on their hands.

You never get the real feeling of the place unless you open the door and step out in the cold yourself.

No fairy godmothers need apply for job

Everyone has his own special dream — a place in the country, a trip back home, college for the boy. But, for many people it's just plain hopeless.

But there's no magic involved to make your particular dream come true. You don't need a fairy godmother to do it — just a little determination.

Simply plan to set aside part of your income in a Bank of Montreal savings account. Do it regularly, and watch the balance grow. Watch the B of M's two and three-quarters per cent interest help swell the amount too.

Regularity is the secret, as hundreds of thousands of the B of M's more than two million customers know. They save as much as they can spare each pay-day, and their dreams are turning into reality.

Ask George Sevigny, accountant at the Lachute branch of the Bank of Montreal, about it. He'll show you how easy it is — and how profitable — to open a savings account. See him soon.

Mrs. Geo. Hay, 89, esteemed resident in local past

The death of Mrs. George Hay, which occurred last week in Montreal in her 90th year, severs another link with old times and old families in this vicinity — Mrs. Hay her late husband and her family having played an active role in the social, community and church life of Lachute in its growing years.

Mrs. Hay, the former Margaret Annie Clunie, was the widow of the late George Hay and sister of the late Dr. G. A. Clunie, whose names are landmarks of the local past. She was born in Lachute and lived here until 15 years ago, when she moved to reside with her daughters in Montreal.

The funeral was held Thursday from the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, in the presence of numerous relatives and friends. The minister, the Rev Jas. Armour, officiated, assisted by the Rev. J. Chas. Hay, of MacVicar Memorial Church, Montreal. The pall-bearers were — Messrs. Allan Gordon, James and John Hay, F. A. Brennian and Geo. F. Calder.

The late Mrs. Hay is mourned by her daughters, Mrs. Jas. A. MacKenzie, of Winnipeg, Mrs. E. J. Prowse and Miss Cameron Hay, of Montreal, her son, Donald M. Hay, manager of the Bank of Montreal in Lachute, and five grandchildren, Ronald and Margaret MacKenzie, Bob, Barbara and Elizabeth Hay.

Was resident of Lachute Mills almost 50 years

Late James A. Logan

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at St. Simeon's Church, Lachute, for the late James Albert Logan, who died in Montreal on Wednesday of last week after a lengthy illness. The service was conducted by the rector, the Rev. C. R. Lang, interment being in the Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

The late Mr. Logan was born March 6, 1873, at Wanstead, Essex, England, and in 1897 was married to the late Lucy Mansfield, who predeceased him in 1953. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1947.

Coming to Canada in 1910 with his wife and four daughters, he settled in Lachute Mills, where he lived until his removal to hospital last June. For 33 years he was employed by the J. C. Wilson Company, having retired in 1944.

Upon his retirement he devoted himself to gardening at his home on Millway Street, where he took great delight in the growing of flowers.

He was predeceased, in addition to his wife, by three daughters. Surviving are three daughters and one son — Grace (Mrs. Fred Stein), of Lachute; Jessie, of Ste. Scholastique; Dorothy (Mrs. E. Ringe), of Ottawa; and James C. Logan, of the Town of Mount Royal.

Pall-bearers at the service were Messrs. Donald Beers, Gilbert Demerse, Angus Taylor, Fred Stein, Jr., Arthur Maxwell and Albert Winmill.

Cushing

Mr. A. T. Graham spent Saturday in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Pitt, of Montreal, spent the week-end at their summer home here.

Mr. L. Martin, of Verdun, and Mr. J. Dawson, of St. Laurent, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Coney at "Stonehaven".

Mrs. L. M. Gaston was the guest of Mrs. H. Logan, of Pointe Fortune, last Thursday.

Mrs. H. Bailey and daughter, Kama, accompanied by Mrs. R. T. Holmes, spent the week-end in Montreal.

Miss E. M. Graham was the guest of her mother, and brother at "Bayside Farm".

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson and son, of Montreal, were at their riverside cottage on Sunday.

Northern Grenville

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Moncrieff and Miss Hilda McCart, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McCart.

Recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cooke's were — Mrs. Murray MacCullough, of Renfrew, Ont., Mrs. Michael Hind, of Lachute, Mr. Percy MacLeod, of Cornwall, Mrs. Ross Warner and Miss Beverley Warner, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woodland and son, of Lachute, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Tomkiewiez; also Mrs. Ross Warner and Miss Beverly Warner, of Montreal.

Mr. Walter Gill and Mr. Johnny Gill, of Ste. Agathe, were visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Gill.

Mr. Clayton Young, of Thurso, visited with his brother, Wyman Young, and other relatives on Thursday.

Please note that services will be resumed in the Grenville Baptist Church on Sunday next, April 6, at 2 p.m.

John Duncan returned president of Social Club

Brownsburg — The annual general meeting of the Brownsburg Social and Athletic Club was held Friday of last week. Reports indicated a further improvement in membership and strengthening of the Club's finances. President John Duncan expressed his thanks to the outgoing board of directors for their complete co-operation and hard work, which had resulted in the further progress achieved by the Club.

Elections, which were conducted by Art Lapp, resulted in John Duncan's re-election for a third term by acclamation. Other officers elected were — Bob Sugden as vice-president, and directors—Miss Lucienne Whelan, Ken Stewart, Bill Brown, Bill Dimock, Harold Robinson, Ronald Cousineau, Conrad Perron, Jimmy Murdoch, Gerald Chapman, Miss Hazel Fortier and Harry McLaughlin.

The new Board will meet April 7, at which time chairmanship of the various sections will be established.

A Thankful Easter

(Contributed by the Reverend Horace G. Baugh)

Lord Jesus, we give thanks to Thee
That Thou hast died to set us free;
Made righteous through Thy precious blood
We now are reconciled to God.

May this Easter 1958 be the most thankful season you and your family have ever experienced. It is such an uplifting feeling to be truly thankful. Easter comes with its glorious triumph, its blessed truth; for it is the day death died. Death meets its Master. Life now goes on and on.

This miracle is the most sublime and promising fact of all world events. It lifts from the soul the burden of sin, with its fears and accusations. It gives hope to the burdened pilgrim on his way from time to eternity. It fills the heart of man with courage. It empowers man to go on through the valley of the shadow of death, to dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Science has made tremendous strides, man has accomplished great things, but none may compare with the RESURRECTION. Now everyone may live forever. "Because I live, ye shall live also." . . Such a happy thought. Really something to make you shout about. "Thank You!" That is where your Allelulas at Easter come in. . .

Your place on Easter Day is in your Church, raising higher and higher your joyous songs — making this your most Thankful Easter.

Thought for the week: "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. . . For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."
— I Cor. 15. 20-22.

Lachute United Church welcomes new members, Palm Sunday service

The welcoming of 20 new members, and a most impressive Communion service, were special features on Palm Sunday at Lachute United Church. The charge to the new members and congregation was given by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, who took as his sermon subject, "Our Need of a Spiritual Check-Up".

Following the prayer of dedication, the minister and two members of the Session, in the persons of Lorne Duncan and Glen Warwick, extended the right hand of fellowship to the new members.

During the service, the choir under the direction of Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, organist and choir director, rendered the anthem, "Ride on! Ride on in Majesty."

Easter message in over 1,110 languages

The Easter message has been carried to the world in over 1,110 written languages through the Bible Societies. The 24 major societies, including the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada, are linked in a co-operative association known as the United Bible Societies.

The Bishop of Bradford, Right Rev. F. D. Coggan, has succeeded the former primate of Norway, Bishop Berggrav, as president of the U.B.S. The general secretary is M. Olivier Beguin, and the honorary treasurer is Lord Luke of Pavenham. The chairman of the council of the U.B.S. is an Indian, Mr. P. Mahanty, general secretary of the Bible Society of India and Ceylon.

Among the members of the United Bible Societies is the Hungarian Bible Council, the only representative of Bible work on the other side of the "iron curtain."

Announce plans for enlarging St. Francis Church at St. Sauveur

Morin Heights — At the Skiers' Service at St. Francis Church last Sunday morning the rector announced, to a crowd which stretched out to the highway, that plans were being made to enlarge the church at the same time as the new hall was being erected. The church will take the form of a Cross, with transepts being added on either side of the present chancel. This will increase the seating capacity at least 50 per cent.

The previous day the Advisory Board had given final approval to the Hall plans, and three new members were added to the board — Mr. W. C. J. Meredith, Q.C., Dean of the Faculty of Law at McGill University, Mr. Arthur H. Carter, and Mr. Patrick Forbes. The board now consists of 30 members, prominent businessmen from Montreal and St. Sauveur. . . New aisle carpeting will be installed in the church for Easter.

The rector also announced he would be away on vacation for the month of June.

The financial campaign of the Brownsburg branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society officially closed last week, after having surpassed its objective by $64.16. The total of $1,664.16 set a new record for Red Cross contributions in the Brownsburg area. This creditable sum, which may never actually be used in our neighborhood, will certainly be returned to us in the knowledge that we are helping those in need of our assistance in other parts of the world.

Mrs. N. E. Smillie, president of the local branch, expressed appreciation to Mervin Cowley, Leon Tessier, Fred Gervais and Gaston Heroux for their organizational efforts, and joined Mr. Cowley, campaign chairman, in expressing sincere thanks to all canvassers and district captains, along with members of the clergy, The Lachute Watchman and Messrs. Maurice Pariseau and George Ouellette, for their help in publicizing the campaign. Special thanks are extended to Mrs. Margaret Clarke and Mrs. Gladys Cowley for secretarial duties so aptly carried out during the campaign.

Lastly, appreciation is expressed to the people and organizations who made this success possible. All campaigns must have committees and canvassers, but without the financial aid from people who feel a sense of duty and give their donations, the campaign is doomed to failure. . . To you, the Canadian Red Cross says "Thank You".

SORRY!
Tear out
We were too late for the new directory!

Sincere Thanks!

I express my heartfelt appreciation to all who assisted in my campaign, or who in any way supported my candidature — thus contributing to the great Progressive-Conservative victory in this riding.

My thanks are extended to both English and French-speaking electors, for whom the public interest has proved a prime consideration. Especially noteworthy is the friendship of the electorate in various sections with which I was not previously familiar. Support from such areas has been especially appreciated.

I pledge my devotion to the best interests of this constituency and to the good government of our country.

APPRECIATION

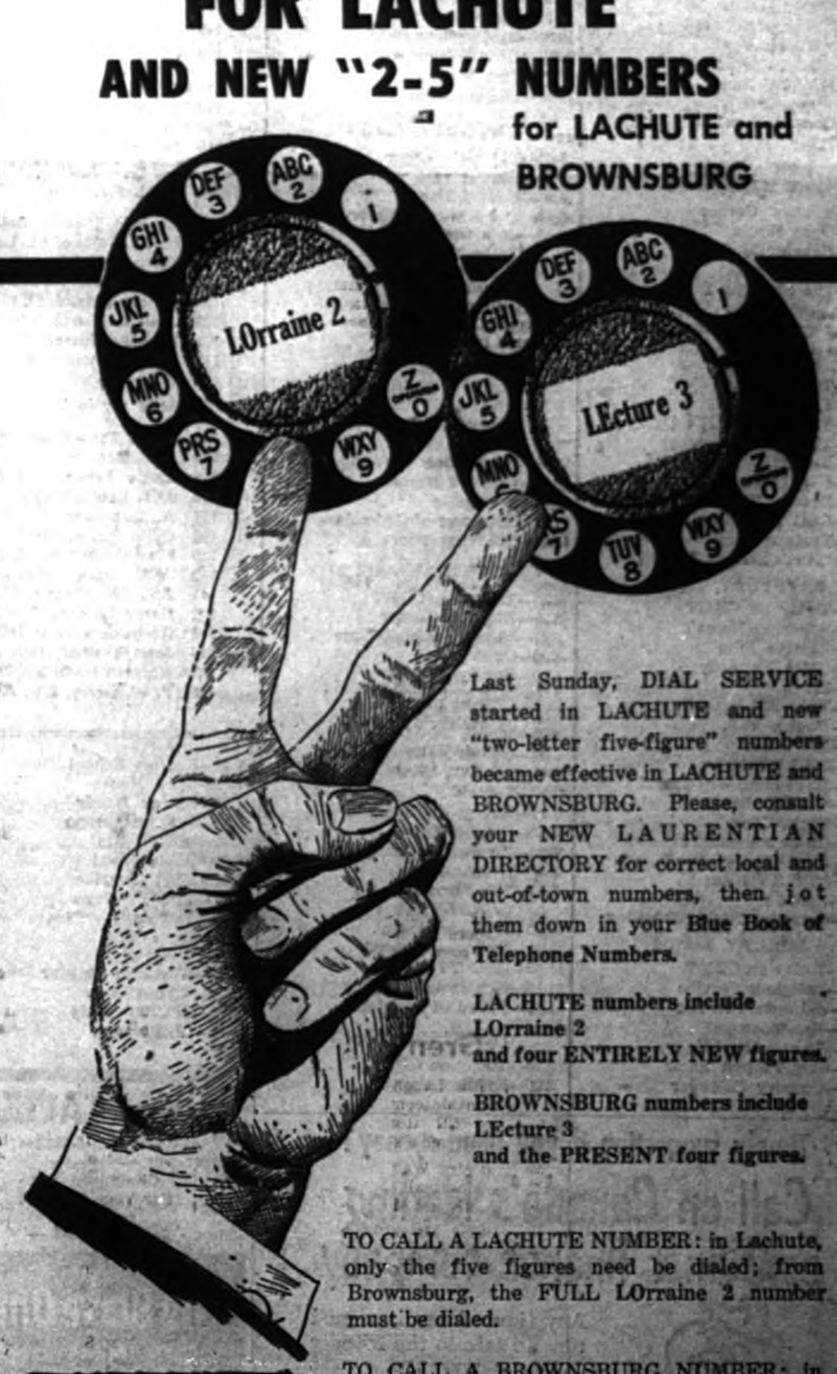

I take this occasion to sincerely thank the Liberal organizers and electors of Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes who supported me in the Federal election.

One cannot stem the tide of public opinion, and this county has voted as the electors saw fit.

I extend my congratulations to the victor in the local campaign, Notary J. Octave Latour.

Beaux Arts Trio April 12 to climax concert season

Praises for the Beaux Arts Trio have been echoed over and over again by the strictest judges of musical excellence, as well as by the continent's leading critics and enthusiastic audiences. This popular attraction will provide the climax for another successful Community Concerts season — appearing in the Lachute High School auditorium on Saturday, April 12.

At first organized only informally as a trio, Messrs. Guilet, Greenhouse and Pressler had long been urged to present the results of their musical collaboration to a wider audience, but it wasn't until 1955, when circumstances permitted these three international virtuosi to be together in the same country for a long enough period of time, that the "Beaux Arts Trio" was officially formed. They made their debut at Tanglewood in an all-Beethoven program, and the following debut tour of the U.S. and Canada was a sell-out success.

Background of Artists, Violinist, Cellist, Pianist

Daniel Guilet, violinist, is almost equally famed in Europe and America as soloist and as chamber musician. Born in France, he attended the National Conservatoire in Paris, studying and playing public performances with Jacques Thibaud and Georges Enesco. He has played as soloist under such conductors as Toscanini, Perlea and Cantelli, has recorded for Concert Hall, Vox and Columbia records, and has generally been acclaimed as one of the finest soloists and ensemble musicians of our time. He plays the beautiful "Earl of Darnley" Stradivarius, dated 1712.

Bernard Greenhouse, cellist, captured the attention of the music world when he made a 1946 Town Hall debut of which Virgil Thomson wrote in the New York Herald Tribune: "Bernard Greenhouse is a mature musician and an impeccable executant. If you can imagine a whole evening of cello music without one false note, one groan or one scratch, you can also figure out why the hall was full of cellists. The news had obviously got around that the boy is good." In the United States, at the present time, in addition to his annual tours, he is on the faculties of both the Juilliard and the Manhattan schools of music. He plays the famous "Visconti" Stradivarius cello, dated 1684.

Menahem Pressler, the brilliant young Israeli pianist, was born in Magdeburg, Germany, but fled with his family to Israel when Hitler came into power. He began his professional career in his adopted country, and jumped to international prominence when he won the Debussy prize at the age of 17, after flying from Tel-Aviv to San Francisco especially for the contest. . . . He returns often to Europe and Asia to fulfill concert schedules there. Mr. Pressler plays the Steinway piano, and records for MGM records.

The Local Farm Scene

Reply to Assn. secretary on arbitrary farm marketing

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Winnipeg, March 24, 1958

Editor,
The Watchman,
Lachute, Que.

Dear Sir:

Mr. Leslie Young writes a persuasive letter but I hope your readers were not nodding as they read, because he went far astray in his logic a few times, and he certainly failed to back up his assertion that my column was misleading.

I'll not deal with his arguments about advertising, although I feel they are defeatist arguments; I'll get to the main dispute — compulsory marketing which he favors and I am against.

First, he suggests that compulsory farm marketing must be alright because various governments, even some outside Canada, passed legislation authorizing them. Yes; but governments have passed plenty of silly legislation, under pressure from voting groups. For example, the ban on Margarine, an awful piece of legislation which deprives low-income groups of a good food. Pressure from farmers and dairy interests accomplished this, just as similar pressure brought the marketing board legislation.

Second — 75% of the producers represents a small part of the population of Quebec. Producers are given a vote, but consumers get no vote! Would the Quebec Farmers' Association approve if a group of manufacturers got together and voted for compulsory marketing of farm machinery? I think not. They'd want the Anti-Combines law brought to bear at once.

Third — If these boards can do all the wonderful things claimed for them, why must they be "compulsory"? Are farmers so stupid they turn down all these things because they are "in a juvenile tantrum" as he claims? I think not. They turn down such plans when they realize it means giving up many of their fundamental rights. To say that the compulsion involved in these marketing schemes is similar to traffic laws shows that Mr. Leslie Young has not thought this thing through. Read the Act. Does it compare in any sense with our traffic laws, where a person charged with a violation appears before the courts to be judged impartially, and to be considered innocent until proven guilty? Not at all. And traffic laws are made by all the people, pedestrians and motorists alike.

I would like Mr. Young to tell us why the marketing scheme must be compulsory. Also to tell us why marketing boards, if they take credit for increasing prices, will take the responsibility for falling prices?

Yours truly,
— Ambrose Hills

National meeting of Farm Forums

The annual meeting of National Farm Radio Forum will be held at the Seaway Hotel, Toronto, April 10 and 11 — announced Dr. E. A. Corbett, chairman of the National Executive. This meeting will replace the annual Conference usually held in early summer. The main purpose of the meeting is to discuss the proposed re-allocation of responsibilities between the provincial and national sponsors.

At the meeting the National Board will be faced with the problem of securing a National Secretary to replace Mr. Floyd Griesbach, who has resigned after eight years of service.

Wheat acreage down this year

Ottawa (CP) — A Bureau of Statistics survey shows Canadian farmers intend to reduce their wheat acreage this year by about 400,000 acres to 20,846,200 — the smallest prospective acreage since 1943 when a wartime acreage reduction program was in effect.

Acreage declines also were indicated for fall rye, flaxseed, corn for grain, and soybeans. Increases were expected for oats for grain, barley, mixed grains, potatoes, mustard seed, rapeseed, sunflower seed, spring rye and summerfallow.

This year's anticipated acreage for all classes of wheat, of 20,646,200, is 4,100,000 — or 16 per cent — below the 1952-56 average.

Lennoxville farmer collects sap via plastic tubing to sugar-camp

Lennoxville (CP) A web of plastic tubing threatens to draw off most of the romance, as well as the sap, from the sugar maple bush — and cut the labor.

The tubing, strung direct from trees to boiling pots, has been installed this year by Farmer Gordon Herring in the Lennoxville district of the Eastern Townships.

Farmers familiar with the system say it cuts labor costs 50 per cent, boosts sap production in quality and quantity, increases cleanliness, reduces spilling and provides a way of tapping maple sugar trees in rough terrain.

Replace the old wood-fired boiling-off stove with an oil stove, and there isn't a great deal left of the sugar-making process which used to depend on assorted containers, spouts, horses, back-breaking toil and other storied ingredients.

Plastic has made its entry into the industry, replacing buckets and cans in the form of bags slung over the sap spouts.

Some companies are producing kits of the tubes but many farmers make their own. Some prefer white polythene; others use brightly colored plastics that show up against the snow.

Pressure of rising sap is sufficient to force it along a network of tubes directly from the tree to the boiling pot. Gravity helps.

On a big operation individual taps hammered into the tree trunk drain into quarter-inch lines which in turn are coupled to branch lines of three-eights of an inch connecting groups of trees.

One-inch mains carry the sap to the sugar house. At full production the mains may be carrying the flow of 750 to 1,000 trees.

In smaller operations, a single line could run from tree to house.

Mr. Herring planned to tap 500 trees on this system. He is tapping another 1,500 under the bucket method, but hopes to have tubing installed throughout his sugar bush next season.

Cost of materials, he said, is about the same as under the bucket method.

Titley - Slocum

A quiet but pretty double-ring wedding took place March 22 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas [illegible] Ranch, N.Y., their only daughter, Shirley Anne, [illegible] in marriage to Mr. Lorne Edward Titley, of Harrowsmith, Ont. Officiating minister was the Rev. Sachmary, minister of the Free Methodist Church.

The bride wore a street-length gown of pale blue lace and carried a bouquet of tiny light-yellow roses centred with a white orchid.

The bride was attended by Mrs. George Gross, of New Brunswick, N.J., who wore a street-length gown of pink satin and carried a bouquet of tiny pink roses and forget-me-nots.

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a white lace purse with silk handkerchief. The groom's gift to the best man (his brother-in-law, Mr. George Gross) was gold cuff links and a tie clip.

The Easter Festival

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Is there anyone who cannot appreciate Easter? This year Easter Sunday is on April 6. This festival always falls on the Sunday after the full moon next after March 21. The idea behind this is that Easter should be celebrated at the Spring full moon. At this time of the Jewish "Pasch" moon Christ was crucified and rose again from the dead.

There are two theories about the origin of the word Easter. One idea which is advanced by Wheatley is that it is likely derived from the Saxon word "Oster" meaning "to rise" and marks Christ's resurrection. But the historian Bede traced the word to "Eostre" a Saxon goddess whose festival was observed each Springtime. The celebration of Easter is centuries old. Saint Ambrose is known to have written an Easter hymn back in the fourth century.

Easter eggs are no modern innovation. From earliest time the egg was considered by the Egyptians, Greeks, Persians and Romans as the emblem of new life. The Christians borrowed both the name Easter and the egg symbol. Coloring eggs is an old practice. The Jews boiled the eggs hard and decorated the shells. Possibly in the first place the Christians colored the eggs to represent the colors of the spring flowers, but later the eggs were mostly colored red, signifying the blood of Christ.

The Easter bunny, like the Christmas tree, is of Teutonic origin. The hare from ancient times has been a symbol of the moon, possibly because it is a nocturnal animal, coming out to search for food at night. The German children were told that on Easter eve a white hare would visit each home and leave colored eggs for good children. On our continent the European hare has been changed into a rabbit.

The custome of buying new clothes for Easter dates back to the reign of Emperor Constantine. He decreed that everyone in Rome should join in an Easter religious procession dressed in new garments. Today many joke about the women's "new Easter bonnets." Most families try to plan for some additions to each child's wardrobe. With the present high cost of living, and the amount of money necessary for even a small child's outfit, this custom of new clothes may be a perplexing one for families. There are many demands on father's paycheck, and mother's earnings, too where mother also goes out to work.

Learning to share is one of the most useful and most necessary disciplines in a home. At Easter, when each member of the family would like something new, why not discuss the clothes budget? This may be spread over the whole family as fairly as possible. The purchase of expensive articles like coats or suits, are usually made in different months. A son or daughter should be encouraged to see the entire family clothes budget in the proper perspective.

Boys and girls are interested in the origin of customs. Little folk love the gifts of colored eggs and chocolate bunnies at Easter time. But this great festival of the church should be more than a secular holiday with fun and fellowship for everyone.

To the Christian, Easter means Christ's resurrection and the glad assurance that the soul lives on after death. A child's questions about the end of life, whether asked now or on any other occasion, should be answered. Easter is a good time for a mother or father to discuss their own beliefs about immortality. They should know their church's teaching and be sure of their own conviction about the spiritual significance of this Holy Day.

"The Easter morn is sacred
For with each verdant spring
Our faith and hope return to us
Whenever robins sing."

W.I. promoting highway safety

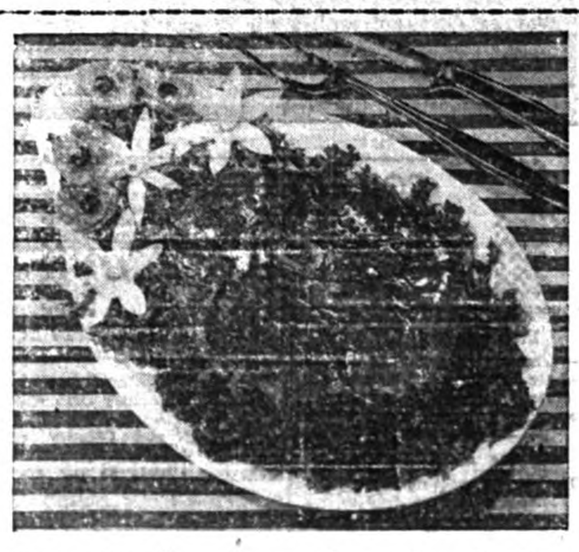

"What can we do to help in a highway safety program?" was the searching question asked by members of the Quebec Women's Institutes as they returned home after hearing Col. A. Bryce, Manager, Canadian Highway Safety Conference, speak at the convention last year.

Here is one practical approach that is being made by Fordyce W.I., near Cowansville in the Eastern Township. Posters were first obtained from the Quebec Safety League and erected on two main highways. Copies of the "Auto Code" were then purchased, one for every member that drives a car. These are thoroughly studied, and the recommendation made that every driver should have a copy. "How to Organize a Community Safety Council", a publication of the Highway Safety Conference, has also been studied and plans are being made to go all out to get the community interested in organizing a local Safety Council.

For next season, the Institute is going to work on the possibility of setting up a driver course as an extra-curricular activity at the Cowansville High School. Other organizations in the community will be approached and an effort made to secure their co-operation, and that of the school authorities, in implementing such a project.

NO SACK

As far as the shapely Italian actress Gina Lolobrigida is concerned, the sack look is the sad look. The latest fashion fad isn't for her, and other women should not hide their charms in the shapeless disguise either, Gina told Paris reporters.

Ham Steak – dressed up for Spring

What a truly delightful way to serve ham at your home during the Easter season. Ask your butcher for a 1 to 2-inch slice of uncooked ham. Bake it at 325°F., allowing 50 to 60 minutes per pound and basting frequently with maple syrup. Serve on a platter, garnished with curly endive or water cress, turnip jonquils and carrot black-eyed Susans.

To make the Turnip Jonquils: Cut very thin slices from yellow turnip. Make a daisy-shaped cardboard flower pattern for lower part of jonquil. Cut turnip slices into same shape by tracing around pattern with a pointed knife. Make centres in same manner as carrot curls (thin slice rolled up and held together with toothpick). Chill jonquil bases and centres in ice water, tinted bright yellow, for a few hours to curl. Remove toothpick. Cut hole in each base and insert centre part of flower, using toothpick underneath to hold it in place.

To make Carrot Black-eyed Susans: Cut carrot crosswise in thin slices. Insert toothpick through 3 or 5 slices (about half way betwen centre and edge of slice) overlapping them to look like a flower. Chill in ice water for a few hours to curl. Attach round piece of black olive to toothpick at centre of flower.

Easter time is ham time

(Consumer Section)

The wood-smoky aroma, the rosy pink color and the sweet-spicy flavor of ham are as much a part of Easter as gay posies and giddy bonnets. That's why every year at this time the home economists of the Consumer Section try to bring you some helpful suggestions about buying, cooking or serving ham.

There are so many delicious smoked pork cuts on the market that you may find it a little difficult to choose the one that will best suit your Easter requirements. These points about the various retail cuts should help you to decide which one to buy and how to cook it.

1—HAM (LEG)

The ham is a leg of pork which has been cured and smoked. It may be left whole, divided into shank and butt, cut lengthwise in two or more pieces, or sliced crosswise as ham steaks. Hams are sold bone-in or boneless. They may be partially or completely cooked. Hams marked as "ready to serve", "ready to eat", etc. may be heated in a 325°F. oven for 10 to 15 minutes per pound before serving. If cooking directions are given on the label it is wise to follow them. Otherwise the following timetable may serve as a guide for cooking. Allow the longer baking times for lighter weight cuts and the shorter times for heavier cuts:

Whole Ham — bone-in — 13 to 15 pounds — bake 20 to 25 minutes per pound in 325°F. oven.

Half Ham (shank or butt) — bone-in — 5 to 8 pounds — bake 30 to 35 minutes per pound in 325°F. oven.

Whole Ham — boneless — 9 to 12 pounds — bake 25 to 30 minutes per pound in 325°F. oven.

Half Ham — boneless — 4 to 6 pounds — bake 35 to 40 minutes per pound in 325°F. oven.

Ham Steaks — up to about 3½ pounds — bake 50 to 60 minutes per pound in 325°F. oven OR panfry OR boil, similarly to beef steak, until well done.

2—SHOULDER CUTS

The picnic shoulder is the lower part of the shoulder. It is sold either bone-in or boneless and may be sold with shank on or off.

The cottage roll is the butt (or upper) part of the shoulder which is boned and rolled, cured and often smoked. When cured only, it is sold as sweet pickled roll and if rolled in cornmeal it is called "peameal" roll.

These cuts may be baked, boiled or cooked in a pressure cooker.

To Bake (in 325°F. oven) — Allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound for Picnic Shoulder (bone-in) and for Cottage Roll (pickled, smoked), 40 to 50 minutes per pound for boneless Picnic Shoulder.

To Boil — Add hot water to cover meat. Cover. Simmer slowly until tender and well done (internal temperature of 170°F. as indicated on a meat thermometer). Allow a cooking time of 30 to 40 minutes per pound.

To Pressure Cook — Add 1 cup water to pressure saucepan. Cook meat at 15 pounds pressure for:

Allow pressure saucepan to cool slowly.

No-cook candy Easter eggs

A popular Easter recipe for which we have had requests is a no-cook candy which the small fry can make into colorful Easter eggs or in a pinch can double as a delicious icing for a cake. This easy recipe from the Poultry Products Institute is in two parts, one for the basic butter cream which may be stored in a covered glass jar in the refrigerator for as long as two weeks. The second portion of the recipe turns the basic butter cream into candy.

(a) Basic Butter Cream

½ Cup butter, 3 cups sifted icing sugar, 1 egg.

Let the butter soften at room temperature until easy to cream. Beat butter until fluffy, gradually add half the sugar. Beat smooth after each addition. Add unbeaten egg and mix thoroughly. Gradually beat in the remaining sugar. This mixture should be smooth and creamy. Yields 2 cups.

Note: If desired an electric beater or good hand beater may be used for mixing the Basic Butter Cream.

(b) To Make Easter Eggs

1 Cup basic butter cream, 1 cup sifted icing sugar, flavoring to suit (see note below), 1 egg white, slightly beaten, food coloring, coconut, nuts, maraschino cherries as desired.

Gradually mix the sugar into the basic butter cream. Divide candy into 4 portions, adding desired flavoring to each (see note below). Knead each portion on a baking board, liberally sprinkled with sifted icing sugar. Add more sugar as needed. When easy to handle roll candy into egg shaped pieces of the desired size. Nuts, maraschino cherries or other fruit may be rolled in the centre of each candy egg. Dip into slightly beaten egg white and roll in white or tinted coconut or chocolate shot. The candy itself may be colored, if preferred, by adding a few drops of food coloring with the flavoring. Place on plate and cover with pliofilm, waxed paper or aluminum foil and let stand a few hours or overnight in the refrigerator or other cool place. Candy may be eaten at once but is better if flavors are allowed to blend.

Suggested Flavorings:

1 to 2 drops of peppermint.

1 to 2 squares melted chocolate, and almond or vanilla extract to taste.

½ to ¾ teaspoon vanilla extract or almond extract.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Carolyn Willett, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Spring probably has inspired more flights of poetry than any other season.

But it's not only poets who are caught by fancy in the spring. It's a time for car change-overs after winter driving, a time when closets get shook up by fishermen hunting rod and reel, and a time when women find it almost impossible to pass a hat shop.

Many people call it "spring fever." But as old as the tag is, it's a little startling to find a Los Angeles university professor actually taking spring fever seriously.

Dr. Laurence E. Morehouse, a physical education professor who has done work on fatigue, says winter hothouse living grows spring fever.

In his view, the lassitude that sometimes creeps in with spring may mean a northerner is out of condition after a winter of staying close to a warm house and cutting down on physical activity.

• • •

Sap's Running

Well, man-science aside, sap's already running and maples with their own particular brand of spring fever are promising that very delectable Canadian item — maple syrup.

It takes anywhere from 50 to 100 gallons of sap to make one gallon of syrup. And there's also maple butter, candy and sugar.

The agriculture department's consumer section says April is the time when the flavor and texture of maple products are at their best.

As the color of syrup deepens, the flavor tends to become stronger. Perhaps that's why many people prefer "Canada Medium", a dark amber syrup with a stronger flavor.

The consumer section experts have found that maple syrup kept in its own container retains its natural flavor and aroma. Once opened the container should be stored covered, in a cool place.

Manchester Mother

Mrs. Sheila Winkley, 25-year-old mother in Manchester, England, who wants to give away her unborn child, has had a peck of problems since she made her offer through a newspaper.

Her neighbors snubbed her and her husband's colleagues were a bit hostile. Her doctor struck her off a list of patients who get free medical treatment under Britain's national health plan.

The young mother who can't stand the thought of diaper duty again also has been bombarded with hundreds of letters, most of them hostile. But about 80 were offers to adopt the child, expected in July.

COME TRY THE SMOOTHEST CHEVY THAT EVER WHISPERED "BUY"!

Silence says volumes about Chevrolet! Quieter engines tell of super smoothness never bettered by any car at any price.

And Chevrolet moves from a standstill to cruising speed like greased lightning without the thunder. Then ride Chevy — and be even more amazed: One of two new suspensions smooths your way like broadloom — while 23 kinds of insulation in its Fisher Body all but swallow sound completely. Absolute newness from road to roof supplies the answer!

First, on a 30% stronger X-built frame, Chevrolet's stylists placed the sleekest, roomiest and most luxurious body they'd ever planned. But not before Fisher engineers saw to it that Chevrolet's "Sound Barrier" body matched its beauty in practical protection.

Next, Chevrolet increased its power range with the most efficient V8's ever built . . . radically new, with machined-in-block precision for pace-setting performance and economy. Total engine choice is now six, with four cream-smooth transmissions. It's the widest selection ever—available in every Chevrolet made!

Talk about smoothness! Chevrolet tops it off with a choice of two new rides: Standard on all Chevrolets, completely new Full Coil suspension means a big advance in riding comfort. Deep steel coils at all four wheels soak up road shocks like a sponge! And Chevrolet engineers went even further to bring you the suspension news of the year — Level Air Ride — the lowest-priced air ride available!* You just have to try it to know how easy a ride can be!

Yet, with all its newness, this smoothest of all Chevrolets comes to you at its traditionally low price. Little wonder that Chevy's whispering "Buy!" to more Canadians than ever before. Come try 1958's most popular car at your Chevrolet dealer's soon!

Radome constructed here to special order

Long Sault Woodcraft Limited, of St. Andrews East, have recently completed this 55-foot diameter Radome. The photograph shows it when erected at the National Research Council at Ottawa for testing. It has since been shipped to the United States. The Radome is entirely constructed of reinforced plastic, and was designed and manufactured by Long Sault Woodcraft. It provides a weatherproof enclosure for a large rotating radar antenna. The Radome is entirely self supporting, and has no internal structure. It is designed to withstand winds up to 150 miles per hour. As may be seen from the photograph, the dome is built up of panels, the largest of which measures 6 feet by 12 feet. The height at the centre of the radome is 38 feet. The Radome weighs about 4 tons.

Daylight haul at freight yard, goods stolen

Two cartons of Ayers blankets, valued at approximately $350, were stolen from a freight car in the C.P.R. yard during the dinner-hour last Wednesday, the thieves apparently making good their getaway.

The theft was confirmed at 1 p.m. with the arrival of employees of the Freight Department; the local police were immediately notified. Preliminary investigation showed that two men had backed their truck up to the freight car, transferred the cartons and left the scene.

The two men were seen from a distance by a C.P.R. employee, but no identification could be established among several suspects questioned. Railway investigators were called to supplement the work of the local Police department.

Load limits in effect during road thawing

Maximum permissible trucking weights in Quebec during the road-thawing period — which have been in effect since March 29 — apply to roads in this district as follows ("permissible weights" meaning vehicle and load, inclusive):

Routes 2 and 17, Montreal to the Ontario border (Class A) — 2-axle vehicles, 23,000 lbs.; 3-axle vehicles, 27,000 lbs.

Route 8, St. Eustache to Hull, and Route 41, Lachute to Joliette (Class B) — 2-axle vehicles, 20,000 lbs.; 3-axle vehicles, 23,000 lbs.

Class C Roads (all not included in Class A or Class B) — 2-axle vehicles, 14,000 lbs.; 3-axle vehicles 16,000 lbs.

Dig frantically to release boy trapped in drain

Ten-year-old Gilles Gagné, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Paul Gagné, 203 Isabella Street, spent more than an hour trapped in a manhole at the corner of Isabella Street and Bedard Blvd. on Thursday last.

The youth was playing "hide-and-seek" with school chums, when he lifted the manhole cover and, crawling in, became tightly wedged. The local police were notified at 11.10 a.m., and Chief F. Trépanier, Lieut. Oscar Sabourin with a crew of Corporation employees, dug under the cement walls; they managed to free the youth at 12.25

Gaston Seguin, one of the town employees, worked to rescue the boy for the full time before he finally freed him, just as other employees were getting the compressor in readiness to speed the digging.

The boy was badly scared but otherwise escaped without injury.

Attending Forums' national meet

National Farm Radio Forum are holding a National Board Meeting on Thursday and Friday, April 10, 11, at the new Seaway Hotel in Toronto. Representatives from Provincial Farm Forums from all across Canada will meet with the National sponsors, where plans will be made for the reorganization of National Farm Radio Forum for the coming season. Ross Oswald, the Quebec representative on the National Board, will attend the two-day meeting, accompanied by Leslie Young, the Provincial Farm Forum secretary.

Council plans tough tactics on age-limit for grills, theatres

"Numerous complaints, which we believe well-founded, indicate that juveniles are again being admitted to hotels and grills, and that children are continuing to frequent movie theatres, contrary to orders which we issued some time ago. It is imperative that this practice should cease, and that the guilty and delinquent parties be punished if they see fit to disregard the laws and regulations." . .

This statement and formal warning was given by Mayor Loépold Carrière, addressing his fellow councillors at the last regular meeting of the municipal body.

"If the Chief of Police cannot force the operators to comply by imposing a fine, then we must find some way to amend the by-law so that the penalty falls upon the young people themselves who persist in defying established order and authority. We are pressed by various organizations, both religious and civil, and we have to put an end to this state of affairs:

"As regards licensed establishments," the Mayor continued, "I agree it is sometimes difficult for a proprietor to establish the exact age of a customer, and I believe our hotel-keepers have given proof of good intentions. But the situation is now back to where it started, and it must be remedied."

Asked to give his suggestions, Police Chief F. Trépanier stated that in Ontario and certain other provinces the law requires that a tavern-keeper or one of his employees must verify the age of a customer, and that the proprietor is in absolute authority. . . Ald. Ross Muir also emphasized that responsibility for any establishment rests upon the proprietor, and he must see to it that the habitués of his premises are of legal age.

"We are still receiving complaints, also, as regards the admittance of children in movie theatres," Mayor Carrière repeated. "I would favor commissioning the Chief to visit these places; and if under-age persons are found there, that a formal charge against the proprietor be laid before the provincial authorities. I'm sure the authorities will be ready enough to take proceedings — which will be too bad for any proprietors disregarding the law."

It was agreed by Council to act on the Mayor's suggestions; it was decided however that theatre owners should be warned of this policy to be put into action, before any formal charges are laid.

Two members of the 1st Brownsburg Boy Scout Troop, Brian and Wayne Gagné, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Albt. Gagné, of Brownsburg, waded to their waists in icy water Monday morning in a successful attempt to save a drowning police dog. The incident occurred in a water-filled pit on the property of T. P. Hall, near the Brownsburg dump road.

It was around 10 a.m. that the brothers were attracted by the dog's barking and, seeing his plight, they attempted to walk on the thin ice, which gave way under their weight. They managed to break the ice and, wading through the water, reached the struggling dog, which at this point was near exhaustion.

Ted Zimmer, a neighbor, was summoned to the scene and by throwing the boys a rope, aided in getting the dog out of the water.

The dog, which is believed to have entered the water while chasing a stone, thrown by unidentified children who left the scene, is owned by Mrs. Yvan Cyr, and still makes its home at the former Cyr Garage, where it is a familiar sight to gasoline patrons and customers.

Upturn in local participation seen, as plans shape for Spring Fair 1958

As the entertainment program shapes up for Lachute Spring Fair 1958, it is apparent there will be more local participation. And this, according to secretary-manager Kenneth Riley, is already reflecting greater interest from various quarters.

The objective of the management was to enlist the aid of local groups in sponsoring the nightly grandstand attractions. This has been achieved through an agreement with the Legion Branch 70 and Lachute Lions Club, along the following lines:

The Lions Club, show-makers for Thursday evening, will have a crowd-drawing attraction, something tops in vaudeville, which will be duly announced when negotiations are completed.

The Legionnaires will be responsible for grandstand entertainment on Friday and Saturday nights. On Friday they will stage a rock 'n roll and square dance contest, which will be a sure hit, judging by interest in these affairs in previous years. They will also announce the winner and bestow the crown on the Teen-age Queen. On Saturday there will be another attraction; tentatively discussed are plans for a horse-drawing contest.

With these local aspects of the Fair as an innovation for 1958, it is understandable there should be more interest apparent at this stage, as reported by the secretary.

Mr. Riley states the Prize List is now in circulation, and any not on the mailing list who desire a copy, may receive one by request. Closing date for the livestock entries is May 16, and the Fair dates are June 12-13-14.

There have been enquiries concerning rules applying to the Women's Handicrafts section. The list of classes to be exhibited was published previously in this journal, and the rules are largely the same as in previous years, as follows:

The Handicraft Competition is —

(a) Open to anyone wishing to participate.

(b) Entry fee 25c for each article exhibited.

(c) Handicraft, cooking and flowers — entries close May 31. Entries not accepted after this date.

(d) Judging on Thursday, June 12, commencing 10 a.m.

(e) Handicraft articles and potted plants must be brought in by 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 11. Cooking and cut flowers must be in by 9 a.m. Thursday, June 12.

(f) Persons exhibiting eight or more articles receive a pass to the grounds, good at all times.

The problem of immoral and obscene literature was again before Town Council at the last regular meeting, when Mayor Léopold Carrière read letters on this subject from the Department of Justice and Attorney General, and from the Hon. W. M. Cottingham.

The communication from the Federal Department stated that the government was seriously studying steps to be taken to amend the Criminal Code as regards the definition of "obscene" literature; while Mr. Cottingham advised the Council that this was a matter under the Federal jurisdiction. The Minister noted, however, that there is a provincial censorship law, and also a list of publications banned from news-stands. Mr. Cottingham added, in conclusion, that the request from Lachute Town Council would be brought to attention of the Solicitor General, the Hon. Antoine Rivard.

Mayor Carrière here produced the banned list, and remarked to his fellow councilmen that all were imported periodicals with the exception of two printed in this province. He suggested that the provincial authorities be asked to include papers and magazines published in Quebec rated detrimental to public morals.

Ald. Gerard Lefebvre suggested that, apart from imposing restrictions, the police should visit all newsvendors concerned and seek their voluntary co-operation in withdrawing undesirable periodicals from their stands.

Ald. René Bélanger reported that one of the local parishes had taken the initiative along this line, and where storekeepers agreed to co-operate, they were provided with a display-card advising customers that "condemned" papers were not on sale at these stores. The owners are also supplied with a list of the offending publications.

Ultimate decision was that the police committee should get together with Chief Trépanier to find a solution to this problem locally, and to procure the co-operation of merchants and citizens alike.

Building permits, assorted business at Town Council

Daylight Saving Time officially adopted, effective April 27

Town Council took steps, at the regular April meeting, to ease traffic movement on Chatham Street, requesting Gatineau Power to remove all its electric light poles from the south side of that thoroughfare. The power line will be re-located, and at the same time the light brackets will be replaced with more modern ones similar to those now installed on Main Street.

It was decided, on motion of Ald. Edgar Pollock seconded by Ald. Lauréat Laurin, that metal letters be purchased from Metal Craft Co. Ltd. (cost $425) to suitably identify the civic auditorium. The inscription will be bi-lingual, in letters 18" and 12" high.

On a motion of Ald. Laurin seconded by Ald. Lepage, it was also decided to purchase a garage door from L. St. Jacques Ltée, at a cost of $332.45.

Mayor Léopold Carrière read a letter of thanks signed by Bernard Jenkins and Hubert Lemire, for support to the Red Cross campaign; and accounts totalling $12,400 were approved for payment.

Building permits were granted to — Roland Menard, for a funeral home on Grace Street; Fernand Berthiaume, a private dwelling on Foundry Street; Lauréat Laurin, an apartment house on Grace Street; Gaetan Masson, a house on Robert Street; and George Paul, a house on Main Street.

Ald. Ross Muir was named pro-mayor for the ensuing three months, and among other business it was formally ruled that Lachute will adopt Daylight Saving Time effective April 27.

Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion and Ald. Laurin moved that congratulations be extended to Mr. J. Octave Latour on his election to represent this constituency in Parliament.

Total ban on minnow baits in Argenteuil

Argenteuil is listed this year in counties affected by a drastic no-minnow regulation, in the Department of Game and Fisheries rules just issued from Quebec. The regulation applies not only to the transportation of minnows, but also to their use as bait, dead or alive. This is now prohibited.

Trout fishing opens next Wednesday, April 16.

The only gleam of light in the rigid no-minnow regulation is one clause which permits transportation of live minnows "by land or air" to the south of Highway 8 in this county; and to the south of Highway 41, Lachute to Berthierville. This would seemingly give fishermen the privilege of transporting minnows, south of the said highways, to the Ottawa River — where, however, if one correctly interprets the regulations, fishing with minnows is still verboten within the boundaries of Argenteuil!

The "total ban" — which covers many northern and easterly counties but affects only Argenteuil in the southwest of the province (15 counties in all) — applies to "fishing, possession, sale or transportation of live or dead minnows."

Commenting on this measure, Isaak Hunter of "The Gazette" stated in his column this week:

"The inclusion of Argenteuil in the total ban area comes as a surprise, although Dr. Gustave Prevost tells me some elements of that county asked for such a measure two years ago.

"It would appear that Argenteuil is a sort of test area for the Prevost project of a total minnow ban throughout the province, even including such pike and doré watersheds as that of the Lièvre River. The seeking of such blanket restriction, of course, is based upon the assumption that predator fish such as sunfish and perch threaten the extinction of trout in our northern waters."

Sudden death of Grenville mayor, Stanley Cavanagh

P. Stanley Cavanagh, Mayor of Grenville, died of a heart attack on Tuesday, April 1, at the age of 46.

Mr. Cavanagh was born January 30, 1912, in Liverpool, England. After his primary school studies, he came to Canada and spent his first years working in the Western provinces. Afterwards he took the position of manager of Arnold Farms Ltd. in Grenville, which he held until his death.

In 1937 he married Myrtle Donaldson, of Vankleek Hill. Of their marriage were born two boys, Ronald and Wayne, and two girls, Caroline and Sheila.

In 1942, he served in the forces as a member of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

Back from his army service, Mr. Cavanagh ran as councillor for the East Ward in the Town of Grenville in 1947, and was elected as such. In 1949, he was elected Mayor of the Town of Grenville. He held that office until his death.

Besides his political activities, Mayor Cavanagh was a very active member of social clubs such as the Rotary and the Legion. He was also a Justice of the Peace.

Left to mourn his death are his wife, two sons and two daughters; his mother, Mrs. Emilie McMorin; his daughter-in-law, Marguerite, and two grandchildren, Gregory and Julie.

The funeral was held last Wednesday, from the Desforges Funeral Home to the Grenville R.C. Church of Notre Dame des Sept Douleurs. Interment was made in the Grenville Cemetery last Thursday.

Visitor victim of pilfering from car

Residents on Bedard Blvd. have reported pilfering from cars parked on the thoroughfare — an out-of-town visitor having lost two hubcaps and departed with a not-too-favorable impression of the neighborhood. While police are on a continual look-out for misdemeanors of this kind, car owners would be well advised to guard against thefts insofar as possible.

Famed trio in recital Saturday

The renowned "Beaux Arts Trio", who will climax the Community Concerts season with a recital at the High School in Lachute this Saturday, April 12, at 8.30 p.m. Daniel Guilet, violinist, Bernard Greenhouse, cellist, and Menahem Pressler, pianist, have won wide acclaim in concert and symphony performances, and as MGM recording artists. Their recital here is anticipated with keen pleasure by Community Concert subscribers.

Following the engagement here Saturday, the group will appear Sunday afternoon at the Pro Musica program in the Ritz Carlton, Montreal, and then will leave Monday for a European tour of recitals.

Expect Commons to convene May 8; speculation on Cabinet appointments

By Bernard Dufresne, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 5 (CP) — Canada's new Parliament, elected in a spectacular Progressive Conservative sweep in the general election of March 31, will probably open on Thursday, May 8.

"If it can be done, the House should open May 8." Prime Minister Diefenbaker told reporters after a long cabinet meeting last Thursday, the first since the election. "That is the earliest possible date, and it will be the date if the writs are in. All will be done to get the writs in by then."

By writs, he meant the legal documents declaring members elected. They must be returned to chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay in Ottawa.

Service Vote

The armed services' vote changed the election day result in only one riding, giving Liberal James M. Forgie a heavy endorsation in Ontario's Renfrew North to upset the slim majority his Progressive Conservative opponent received in the civilian count.

The service vote was heaviest for the Liberals, but they did not enjoy such a commanding percentage of it as they did in the 1957 election. However, the service vote did reduce some Conservative and CCF majorities in close contests.

The standing in the new Parliament based on the civilian plus service vote, is: Progressive Conservatives 208; Liberals 49; CCF 8.

Major Topics

Mr. Diefenbaker, who left during the week-end for a few days' holiday in Bermuda, set no date for the next cabinet meeting. But between now and the opening of Parliament the government will give attention to various major matters. He listed them in this order:

1. Action in connection with the unemployment situation, but there would be no announcement until the House meets because "any action will have to be taken by the House."

2. Setting of farm support prices under the agricultural stabilization act passed at the last session of Parliament.

3. Federal participation with the Saskatchewan government in the $97,000,000 South Saskatchewan River power and irrigation project.

4. Final study of government spending estimates for the 1958-59 fiscal year that started last Thursday.

Mr. Diefenbaker also indicated that the session might end before the end of July.

He said there will be no announcement of cabinet changes until his return from Bermuda. He gave a non-committal reply to published reports in Ottawa that Justice Minister Davie Fulton might replace Finance Minister Donald Fleming, but both ministers denied the reports.

Mr. Dienfenbaker has three obvious openings for new cabinet ministers: Citizenship and Immigration, held by Mr. Fulton on an acting basis; Defence Production, held by Works Minister Howard Green; and the vacant post of Associate Defence Minister.

Quebec, which now has three cabinet posts but normally would be expected to have five or six, likely will get some of the cabinet posts.

Bridge approach at Hawkesbury to be improved

Ottawa — To straighten out a curve and promote greater safety, the Public Works Department is calling for tenders for widening of the approach to the Perley Bridge between Hawkesbury and Grenville.

No alterations will be made to the main bridge structure, which was built some 27 years ago and is in good condition. The widening will be done to two somewhat short approaches to the main bridge. They are now 24 feet wide and when the job is completed will be 36 feet.

Works Department officials could not say for certain whether there will be any need either to purchase or expropriate land for the widening. It is believed that no such expense will be necessary because government usually leaves a safety margin when acquiring lands for engineering projects. The Perley Bridge was built on a cost-sharing basis by the Dominion government and the governments of Ontario and Quebec.

C-I-L 'Ammunition' 19 times winner of safety award

Brownsburg, April 8 — Nineteen is a number that more than 1,300 employees of C-I-L's ammunition plant can look at with pride. For at midnight Monday, they won the General Manager's safety prize for the 19th time, working for 886,000 man-hours without a single lost-time accident.

In announcing the latest award, K. W. MacGibbon, acting works manager, said that the safety record involved 130 calendar days. The last injury at the plant occurred November 28, 1957.

The Brownsburg plant, in addition to winning the General Manager's prize several times, has also won many other awards under the company's no-accident record plan. For their new safety achievement, the employees will be presented with individual awards in the near future.

NO OBJECTION

Sarnia, Ont. (CP) — City Clerk Murray Thomas feels sure there is no opposition to establishing a municipal airport here. The Ontario Municipal Board set a date for a hearing to register objections "but nobody came," he said.

Price index hits high record

Ottawa (CP) — Canada's consumer price index jumped sharply to a record 124.3 at the beginning of March from 123.7 at the start of February, mainly as a result of higher food prices.

The food sub-index rose to 121.3 from 119.9 as higher prices were demanded for imported food items, but five other sub-indices also rose to contribute to the increase in the index based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

Prices of imported potatoes, cabbage, onions and citrus fruits registered sharp gains along with Canada-produced eggs. There were further rises in beef and pork prices, and declines in fresh tomatoes, sugar, coffee and margarine.

Annual meeting of Home-School at Morin Heights

Morin Heights — The Morin Heights Home and School Association held their annual meeting in March, with Mrs. William Stock presiding.

The conveners read their reports and the new officers were installed.

Mrs. Kvendbo reported swimming classes were held at the Bellevue pool and proved quite successful.

Mrs. Whalley read her report and stated that several speakers had been invited — their topics proving most interesting and informative.

Mrs. Buxton stated that a dance was held in the school last September, with proceeds of $18.45. A dance was organized in February but had to be cancelled on account of a storm.

Mrs. Muncey reported that refreshments were served on several occasions at the school; also a food sale and tea were held, proceeds from the latter being $39.20.

The treasurer, Mrs. Leslie Seale, reported that $161 was given for gymnastics supplies, etc., and $81.58 to the school library to purchase books.

Mrs. George Watchorn moved a vote of thanks to the president and conveners for their efforts in the past year.

The president, in turn, thanked the members for their co-operation and expressed her best wishes to the in-coming officers for the coming year.

Many neglected response to appeal for Easter Seals

A reminder is given to any who have overlooked their contribution to Easter Seals for the benefit of crippled children. The Lions Club is sponsor of the appeal for this particular district, on behalf of the Quebec Easter Seals Association; and it is reported by the committee chairman, George Tattersfield, that while the response has been encouraging, there are still hundreds of envelopes unreturned. This indicates that many, who consider it a privilege to send their small contribution, have merely neglected to do so — and the unlimited scope of local and provincial welfare work for cripples, is curtailed to that degree.

If you have, not returned your pink reply-envelope and contribution, please do so NOW.

Rotary plays host to youngsters on Children's Night

Last Thursday's meeting of the Brownsburg - Lachute Rotary Club took the form of a Children's Night, to which the majority of Club members brought their families or young friends.

A Rotary song, and one for the children, were enjoyed by all, after which the children were the recipients of pens with the Rotary International crest, and other souvenirs. A series of four cartoons were shown, and minor Club business discussed by the members.

The Club was fittingly thanked by Miss Beverley Armstrong, daughter of District Governor Linton W. Armstrong.

At December 1, 1957, enrolment in Canada's universities was estimated at 88,500 full-time university-grade students, an increase of about 11 per cent from the previous year.

The Fly Fisherman

Now we come to one of the most enjoyable spots for a Fly Fisherman — picking his flies. There are two types of flies that you can use. . . . One type is the Attractor. That is, a fly that is depending on the colors in it and does not imitate any known insect. There are more of this kind used than any other; to name just a few of these, the Parmachene Belle was supposed to represent a trout fin at one time, but it has been changed so much that it is just about impossible to get the real Par Belle. The Mickey Finn is supposed to represent a minnow. The average Wet Fly tied by companies is much too heavily dressed, in other words it has too many feathers, body material and hackle to be a good Wet. A good Wet will sink fast and therefore have to be tied very slimly. So, for the average fly, get a pair of scissors and start trimming off some of the body and wings. When you get to the point where it will sink fast, then you have it.

The Imitators are the second class of wet fly. These are not used as much as the Attractor, but they are a much better producer, taken all around. This type is imitating some insect such as the Crane Fly, May or Bee. Any of this type will be tied right, as the commercial companies do not as a general rule bother with them. You cannot mass-produce these, and therefore they are of no interest to the manufacturers.

So much for the types. As for the patterns and styles, there are hundreds, but I'll not try to give you all the information, as I haven't got the time. The fly man should know these, though:

Single Wing. — 2 Wings, can be any way, down-wing, cocked.

Double Wing. — 4 Wings to each fly, 2 on each side.

Split Wing. — Wings have been drawn away from each other.

Rolled Wing. — Feather is doubled and then rolled.

Spent Wing. — When the wings lie flat on the water.

Fan Wing. — The feathers curve away from the body.

Then there are the hackle flies; these are also Imitators, spiders, caterpillars. Some of them are tied as Palmers, that is, the hackle is wound over the top of the body right from the tail. The Bi-Visible wet fly is the Hackle wound full over the body from the tail, but it has no body.

Most of the Hair Flies are Imitators also. These are tied with hair as the Hackle. There are, as I said, many more flies — so take your pick.

Now we come to the Nymph Fly, the most underrated among the flies. The Nymph is not imitating a flying insect, but an underwater one. It is made to represent the bottom-feeding insects that fish live on. If you watch any type of water you are bound to see this form of life. Most of the time they are on or near the bottom of the water, so that you may not spot them for a few minutes. All flies are hatched from Nymphs, either in the water stage or out on the bank; that is the dry Nymph. I could not give you any tried or true pattern for these insects as they vary from water to water. The best thing for you to do is catch a few of these and then have them copied, or examine the stomach of the fish you do catch. In Nymph fishing always cast upstream; let it drift down, covering all the water you possibly can. Just take in the slack in your line very easily, as that is the best way of controlling them. Doing this you can activate the Nymph a little, and give it a little more life. Don't set your hook too fast, as in this form of fishing the fish likes to mouth the bait before swallowing it, and it may swim off with it before swallowing it. You will soon get to know this feeling on your line and be able to identify the mouthing of the bait.

Now, if you do study these insects you will see that they always face into the current, even when drifting down stream. That is a very hard thing to do with a fly rod, but with a little practice you can throw a loop ahead of the Nymph, this way keeping the head of the hook upstream. Take plenty of time with this form of fishing, it is something that cannot be hurried. You may go over one spot half a dozen times before getting results. It is the instinct of these insects to get as close to the bottom as they can and stay there, so to get results, get your Nymph right on the bottom.

With these bottom-runners the fish go after them and often give false impressions of rising. The fish grubs into the bottom and sometimes breaks the surface of the water doing this. With the result, a false rise. This is actually called "tailing" and you can no doubt see why. If you spot this, get your Nymphs on fast and watch the results! This action is usually seen in medium-fast water along toward twilight. Do not fish them downstream in any form when you see this. You'll scare everything for yards around if you do. The only time the insects fight the water and current is when they are getting ready to shed or shuck their Nymph case, and they will be heading for the top of the water. They will emerge from the water with weak wings and have to dry them out before becoming a "winged insect". When this is going to occur you will find the fish feeding right near the surface, grabbing the Nymphs as they come up. This too is often mistaken for a rise. This is known as "bulging", and again the name describes it. The water just bulges, with maybe a fin breaking, but that is all. Looking the water over carefully will show you that there is no top-water activity — so again your Nymph, used dead drift, unweighted, will get you fish.

Now don't be fooled about this type of fishing. Nymphs are not fast hatchers. Some of them take as long as two years before they get to the stage of shedding their case. It goes on all the time and is very dependent on the weather. Warm water will bring lots of activity, cool water will slow it right up, but it is going on all the time. There are a lot of explanations and information on how to fish a Nymph. You will have to find this out for yourself, as no two days will be the same. One thing I am sure of, you will get more action from Nymphs than any flies. I usually carry about five Nymphs to every fly. In very fast water you can use a small split-shot ahead of the Nymph and thus get it on the bottom. It won't alter the action of your Nymph much.

Now we come to the very tops in fly fishing. This is the Dry Fly method. A fly that is floated on top of the water, so that is does not sink, drag or pull, most of the time — it is floated "dead", not activated in any way except by the wind or current. I cannot tell you how to fish a dry fly as that is one type of fishing you have to learn by trial and error. So once again, you'll have to find out for yourself. I can give you a few tips that will help you to master it, though.

First dress, or wax your line, polish it until it will float on top of the water without any sinking or dragging in any way. Change your leader to about the length of your rod; use as fine a one as possible. Use one fly to start; the type of fly will make a big difference to you, so try a Bi-Visible, or Palmer tied fly. This kind float high, are easily seen, and not too difficult to lay on the water at medium distances. Use a waterproofing oil for flies, then dry the excess off in the air by waving your fly back and forth. (Oil can be bought very cheaply so there is no use in trying to make it.) Use a lighter line if you can handle it, as the lighter it is the better your fly will float. We will assume you are using your rod for both wet and dry flies, so that the rod action will be just a little slower than with a wet. If you buy yourself a dry fly rod, be sure it has a fast tip action. You see, the faster your tip the better your fly will be presented and picked up. I will try and give you the best of the dry flies for the beginner.

The Bi-Visible. — A fly tied with the hackle wound around the complete body of the hook. It has no separate body like other flies. Always has a white hackle tied in front of the other hackles. They are very good floaters, can be seen very easily. Thus their name. Tied in any size hook.

Palmer Tied. — This one is like the Bi-Visible, only it has a body with the hackle wound over it. The head can be of any color. Also a very good floater, not quite as easy to see.

The Spider. — Just what the name means; very stiff hackle wound at the head of the hook, so that it rides high on the water, Slim body.

The reel on your fly outfit is not as important as in other kinds of fishing. As a matter of fact, the reel is just a line holder. So it is not necessary to spend a lot of money on a reel.

A fly rod can be used for any type of fishing, so experiment around with it and you will get a lot of fun out of it.

Bass Bugging is one of these. This in my estimation is nearly tops with a fly rod. The Bass Bug hasn't changed very much in the last few years. Still the plastic, bakelite, hair and cork. I like the hair bug best of the bunch. It is practically unbreakable, floats high and is easy to pick up off the water. They can also be had in any color. The only big objection to them is they are very hard to cast in a wind, and you don't get much distance with them. But that isn't a very big objection, as far as I'm concerned When you twitch or pop these things on the water, I've seen Bass go almost nuts trying to get at them. Another way is to use a small spinner along with a streamer fly when they aren't hitting.

* * *

Now here are some tips that may help you on your fishing jaunts:

Use a light fly at the end of your leader and a heavier one on the dropper. This will give the bottom fly a lot more action.

Use a small propeller spinner, also known as a Halcyon spinner, in front of your streamer flies.

If your Wet Flies are not sinking fast enough, rub them in mud, or put a small split-shot on the bend of the hook.

To make a floating Spider Bug, cut a piece of sponge the shape you want; thread some nylon into a heavy needle, draw through the sponge, cut off where you want it. Legs.

If you want to make yourself some natural Nymphs, melt some acetate film with acetone. Make it thick enough to shape on the hook. You can get this at nearly all drug-stores.

To make a caddis case on the acetate film, when it has dissolved a little, sprinkle some chopped fur on it.

If you are getting false strikes, cut some of the tail and wings off the fly.

I've tried to give you the best and simplest (also the cheapest) dope on this business of fly fishing. Don't get the idea that I'm an expert; that isn't the case. The only thing is that I had to find this out for myself, with very little help from the "experts", and it has taken about 25 years to gather this information the hard way. If I can give you any advice on Fly Casting in any way, that would be a very happy day, as I would like everyone to try this way of fishing.

Beagle Club formed in district

And now we have the Lachute Beagle Club (notes Isaak Hunter in his Outdoors column of The Gazette) — complete with officers, exclusive running grounds, plans for a clubhouse, a not too far away fun-trial and eventually licensed trials, of course. This is the result of efforts by Dr. George Coombs and Dunc Galloway.

United Bowling title to Margaret Gordon's team

After a season-long battle with the Teenager foursome, the Beavers won the Lachute United Church bowling league championship, on the last regular night of the league. The final standings are listed below.

Playoffs start next Monday, with all teams participating, and facing the possibility of immediate elimination, as all games will be sudden-death this week. The line-ups are as follows:

7.15 p.m. —
Beavers vs. All Stars (A)
Teenagers vs East Settlement (A)
Thistles vs Redwings (B)

8.15 p.m. —
Maple Leafs vs St. George's (B)
St. Pats vs St. David's (B)
St. Andrews vs Bluebirds (B)

The following week, the winners of the first four teams (A) listed in the league, will play-off, and the survivors of the other eight teams (B) will play to a finish to enter the final on April 28. The annual banquet will be held that final week.

Pro athletes go golfing

By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There have been several cases of athletes in other sports who switched to golf as a daily diet and made good at it.

Ellsworth Vines went from big-time tennis to the fairways. Sammy Byrd gave up major league baseball to make good on the links. And Mike Souchak, a golf star of today, was a football star of yesterday.

The newest addition to the pro golf caravan is Bill Ezinicki, the former National Hockey League player from Winnipeg. After the last war, Bill was a pretty fair forward with Toronto Maple Leafs and later with the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers.

But he says: "Golf was always my first love. I'm playing the American PGA tour this winter to improve my game."

Ezinicki figures his love for golf cut short his career as a hockey player. During his eight NHL seasons, he reported to training camp on time only twice. He was too busy playing golf.

Golf is not a game which usually improves tempers, just the reverse in fact. But it has helped Ezinicki's. He was one of the most penalized players in the NHL during his hockey days. But on the golf course the man they used to call Wild Bill is a model of deportment.

Now a club pro at Stoneham, Mass., Ezinicki isn't bowling them over on the golf circuit like he used to on the ice. In four or five tournaments so far this winter he finished out of the money. Ezinicki isn't worried, however — not yet. He remembers that Ben Hogan played the tournament trail for nearly two years before getting a good pay day.

Speaking of golf. . . Stan Leonard and Toronto's Al Balding are having fair success on the winter circuit. (Stan Leonard ranked for a $1,968.75 award just last week in the 22nd Masters tournament at Augusta, tying for third place.)

Up to the end of February, Leonard had won some $3,500 and Balding about $3,400 in eight tournaments south of the border.

National Wildlife Week —

Protect your property!

CANADA IS STILL a comparatively young country among world nations. Canadians are all concerned with freedom. We have come to know that freedom is the base of our civilization and we have also come to know that our freedom is, in large part, a product of the lands and waters which made possible the prosperity on which to build our nation.

Canada's western and northern areas were developed as our forefathers settled in some of the richest lands in the world. This applies to Quebec, as well as to every other province in Canada. These pioneers found land free for the taking, and in too many cases, the men who took those lands were indifferent to the wastage of resources for which they were responsible.

There were, however, others who were more foresighted. These were the men who established our first National and Provincial Parks, and in this province, kept a vast area as Crown Lands, which are managed for the people as a whole. The opportunity to save and protect these public lands, and our public waters, comes at a time when we are mature enough to learn important lessons from the experiences of other nations. Those lessons have taught us among other things that no nation can be prosperous, and its people happy, if its natural resources have been ravaged through misuse.

This is National Wildlife Week. Its observance, in this province, is sponsored by the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations and warmly supported in this district by the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association. The theme of Wildlife Week, 1958, is: Protect your property. Your property includes all provincial parks, fish and game reserves, and Crown Lands. These areas are the homes of wildlife — fish and game and birds — which are also your property. You are asked to take time, during Wildlife Week, to learn more about these assets of yours, and the way in which they are administered.

Our public lands and waters contribute greatly to our everyday living needs and our enjoyment of the out-of-doors. Our treatment of public lands, however, does not always stack up with that of lands we own privately. In some cases, we have failed to provide the funds required, and to support our conservation agencies, who manage these lands for us, to give them all the care and protection they need. As a result, we are getting only a small part of what we should from these public properties, at a time when there are increasing demands upon them.

While there have been shortcomings in the management of this public domain, residents of Quebec can take some pride in the fact that it has remained under public ownership, and that they intend to keep it so for the future. It is from these public lands and waters that Quebec draws much of its economic strength. These lands and waters are our property. It is up to us to recognize the critical need to care for and protect this public estate, so that it may produce to the limit of its capacity.

These problems call for careful consideration, during National Wildlife Week, and during every week of every year.

World Health Organization

WORLD HEALTH DAY (observed on Monday of this week) marks the tenth anniversary of the founding of the World Health Organization; and it is encouraging at this time to review the progress towards better health made during the last decade throughout the world.

There have been great scientific advances — new drugs, new vaccines, new or improved insecticides and better methods of combatting and preventing disease. This new knowledge is being rapidly applied where it is needed. In the last ten years the flow and exchange of scientific information and practical experience have perhaps been greater than ever before. More scientists and health workers than ever before have gone from country to country to learn, to teach and to demonstrate.

Even more important is that an increasing number of people everywhere realize that health is a way of living and thinking, and not merely the absence of disease and infirmity. Governments have come to accept their responsibility for the health of their peoples, and their obligation to provide, besides the classical hospitals and institutions, improved environmental conditions, health care for mothers and children, and safeguards for food and nutrition.

Underlying the accelerated progress in health, however, has been a profound change in thinking and in method. At an international health conference held in New York in 1946, 61 governments asserted that low health standards anywhere in the world are a common danger, and that health is consequently a world concern and not simply a national concern. Health, like peace, is one and indivisible. They laid down new principles for international health co-operation and embodied them in the Constitution of the World Health Organization, which came into force two years later.

The Nations that banded themselves together to set up this world co-operative for health have since been joined by 27 others, bringing WHO's membership to 88. Their action has already brought a number of benefits to all. Rapid pooling of information and experience makes it simpler to contend with diseases like influenza and poliomyelitis, to meet the threat to mental health that grows from modern conditions of life, to adapt medical education to changing needs, and to study emerging problems like that of the hereditary effects of radiations.

From all this one fact emerges clearly — what, ten years ago, was little more than fine words on paper has now become a living reality. What was a vision seen only by a few farsighted men has, with all its imperfections, become a trusted instrument in the service of all countries.

Rhodes in reverse

FOR MORE THAN half a century the Rhodes Scholarships have been taking Canadian unversity graduates to Britain for further study at Oxford. Now (writes C. J. Harris, commentator on the current scene) the members of the recently-formed Canadian Association of Rhodes Scholars plan to reverse the process and bring out to Canada each year one graduate of Oxford for a year's post-graduate study at a Canadian university of his choice. Candidates must plan to return to the United Kingdom and value of the scholarship will be $2,000 a year, payable after the scholar arrives in Canada. Announcing the plan, the Association noted that its members "have all benefitted under the terms of Cecil Rhodes' will and they wish to acknowledge their indebtedness to Oxford."

Rhodes was the son of a clergyman and was preparing to enter the Church when his health broke down at the age of 16. He joined an older brother farming in Africa, then successfully prospected for diamonds and was wealthy before he was 19. Africa had restored his health and he returned to England to enter Oxford, but another breakdown sent him back to Africa with only six months to live. Actually, he lived to be 49, became one of the biggest of the big businessmen of his day, a prime minister of his adopted country, and a man dedicated to the service of the British Empire.

Rhodes left the bulk of his vast wealth to finance his scholarships. In recent years the annual awards have brought to Oxford 11 men from Canada, six from Australia, two from New England, three from Rhodesia, eight from South Africa, 32 from the United States, and one each from Bermuda, India, Jamaica, Malta and Pakistan. In a codicil to his will Rhodes allotted five annual scholarships to Germany, but these were annulled during the First World War and finally discontinued in 1939.

The retention of the unity of the Empire was Rhodes' chief hope. It was a vain ambition, but not an unworthy one, and perhaps the Canadian Rhodes-Scholarship-in-reverse will help keep alive the Rhodes ideal.

Views and perspectives

That means about $900 million in jobs, and spending right across Canada. Our road building bill is almost certain to hit that record this year. All we need now is the weather.

There's every indication that spending will be increased at all levels — federal, provincial and municipal.

PROBLEMS AHEAD. — We wish the two old line parties would forget about worrying who caused the unemployment and start explaining how those who still have jobs will be able to pay the taxes to support all the increased social services that are being promised.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of Encyclopedia Canadiana

When did Canada's sugar industry start?

Canada's sugar refining industry, with the exception of maple sugar manufacture, commenced in the 1850's. The first plant was located in Montreal, with other plants being established in the seaport cities of Halifax, Saint John, and Vancouver, where they were accessible to the ocean-borne raw sugar. Five cane-sugar plants now produce 80% of Canada's sugar requirements, with the other 20% being derived from beet sugar. The raw material for cane sugar comes mainly from Jamaica, British Guiana, Australia, British East Africa, Cuba, Fiji and Barbados. It is estimated that about 600,000 tons of the raw material is imported each year to supply Canada's needs. Not only is the refined sugar of value, but now the by-products of the refining industry are used to make mineral supplements for poultry and livestock foods.

Of Many Things

The spiritual side

I've never met Leon Ackerman, 910 Seventeenth Street, N.W., Washington 6, D.C., but I intend to write him a letter one of these days to thank him. I'll tell you why.

Yesterday I was thumbing through a big financial paper trying to keep posted on the world of business. My thoughts, I assure you, were 100 percent materialistic. Then, staring up from the paper at me was a full-page advertisement, which must have cost Mr. Ackerman a pretty penny. Here's what the advertisement said:

"Love . . . the greatest gift. He who understands love understands God, for God is Love.

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you.

"If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?

"And this commandment have we from Him, That he who loveth God loves his brother also.

"Perfect Love casteth out Fear."

And the advertisement then ended with a layman's prayer:

"Father may we be ever mindful that it is in loving our fellow men that we truly love Thee."

As I say, I don't know Mr. Ackerman and haven't the slightest notion what his purpose might have been in spending all that money to quote Scripture in a financial paper. Whatever his purpose, he succeeded in shifting the thoughts of one reader from materialistic matters to spiritual ones.

Not that I am ashamed of materialistic thoughts. Christ was extremely practical and did not hesitate to put His mind to materialistic matters. Charity requires that someone pay a great deal of attention to producing the wherewithal, upon which charity often depends. I've no liking for the dreamy do-gooders who preach charity but fail to buckle down and do the work that has to be done before there's anything around to give. And I detest the socialist who wants to share the fruits of everybody else's labor, but gets quite cagey when it is suggested that he share what he possesses.

Nevertheless, it was a thrilling experience to leap from concentrated attention on material things into the more important spiritual level of thought, and read again, in the bold type of an advertisement, about the Divine Paradox. So I owe Leon Ackerman, who ever he may be, a vote of thanks.

BUT DUBIOUS PETS!

Explorers call the Arctic musk ox one of the most dangerous of game animals. But farmer John J. Teal, Jr., who is raising a herd he got from Canada on his farm in Huntington Center, near Burlington, Vermont, says in the April Reader's Digest, they are easily the tamest animals he has. They love being petted, and if you ignore them, they will rub against you — which is sometimes upsetting, since a musk ox weighs half a ton.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Lately I have visited a number of people in communities beyond the range of television.

It seems to me that non-television people are wider awake, mentally more vital and more interested in persons and events.

Maybe I imagine this, but I don't think so.

Like muscles gone to fat through lack of use, the feelings go soft and mushy. The capacity for fresh, vivid response is worn away by floods of emotional clichés and ersatz passions.

Millions of people now live in a bluish-colored, passive half-world, where all the action takes place on the other side of a small lighted window, and there is no real talk except: "Pass me another beer."

In the living rooms, and maybe in the kitchens and bedrooms, of North America, the whole of life is becoming a spectator sport.

Hostile critics abroad will see this as the final stage in our decadence.

For a long time we have been hiring people to play baseball and football on our behalf.

It is also a time-honored custom to employ actors to laugh and cry for us. All this saves fatigue, and wear and tear on the emotions.

It may even have a stimulating effect, in small amounts.

My inclination — if I had TV, which I don't — would be to treat the thing as carefully as the medicine cabinet. Have it fitted with a door, and open it when you want a pep pill or an aspirin.

Indecisive driver causes highway hassle

Canadians have always believed in plenty of freedom for everybody. It's in our blood to value things like freedom of religion, of speech, of the press, of sleeping in on Sundays if we want to.

Of course, some people do take unusual liberties with liberty. Like that woman who is always dashing around town. She was out for a drive last week and had a collision — with a man.

The policeman on the scene was a gentleman, so naturally he cross-examined the man first, about why he hadn't given the lady her half of the road. The man was pretty mad. He said he was ready to do just that as soon as he could figure out which half she wanted! Which is a good example of what comes of indecision.

Maybe Canadians are not always models of decision, but there is one thing a lot of us made up their minds about a long time ago — and kept it made up. That's the importance of saving regularly for the future at the Bank of Montreal.

A savings account at "My Bank" can mean so many things — an education fund for the children, help for the whole family if there's a rainy day, a down-payment fund on a new home. If you haven't yet started your own plan for regular saving, plan to visit the Lachute branch of the Bank of Montreal soon. George Sevigny, the accountant there, will be glad to show you how easy it is — and how profitable — to operate a B of M savings account.

Former resident mourned at Weir

Late Mrs. Jos. Gelinas

Weir, Que. — The funeral of the late Mrs. Jos. Gelinas was held from the Verdun Gospel Tabernacle on Tuesday afternoon, April 1, with the Rev. J. D. Piper officiating.

Mrs. Gelinas, the former Violet Maude Williams, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Weir, Que., and had never relinquished the home ties as she visited here as frequently as her time would permit. She was pre-deceased by her husband in October 1950.

Left to mourn her passing is one daughter, Lois Esther, and six sisters — (Lucile) Mrs. A. H. Moore, of New Liskeard, Ont., (May) Mrs. E. J. Craig, of Weir, (Clara) Mrs. Roy Staniforth, of Arundel, (Vera) Mrs. Geo. Clifton, (Amy) Mrs. John MacLean, and (Inez) Mrs. Stanley Craig, all of Longueuil; also three brothers, Henry, Alex and Douglas, all of Weir — all of whom were present at the funeral.

Two favorite hymns of the deceased were sung, "Rock of Ages" and "The Old Rugged Cross".

Interment was made in Mount Royal Cemetery.

Church Welcomes New Members

The welcoming of 16 new members, and a most impressive Communion service, were special features at the Good Friday evening service at the United Church. The service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. C. G. Westhaver, who took for his subject "The Seven Last Words."

Following the prayer of dedication, the minister and clerk of Session, in the person of Mr. Geo. Watchorn, extended the right hand of fellowship to the new members.

During the service the choir rendered the anthem, "The Crucifixion".

In an over-packed church, the Easter Sunday service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. C. G. Westhaver. The chancel of the church was adorned with beautiful flowers in memory of loved ones. The choir rendered the anthem "He Lives" and also a duet was sung in French, by members of the choir, and was enjoyed by all, especially the French-speaking members of the congregation. Holy Communion was also observed at the close of the service.

DISTRICT NEWS FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Arundel

Easter in the Churches

Easter was observed in the traditional fashion in our churches here. In both the Grace Anglican Church and the Arundel United Church services were held on Good Friday evening. On Easter Sunday Grace Church held its Easter Communion service. The church was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, placed in memory of departed relatives and friends. The service was conducted by the Rev. F. Bussell and a large attendance of adherents and friends filled the church.

Easter services were held Sunday morning in the Arundel United Church. A large attendance filled the church. Spring flowers were on the Communion table, placed there by relatives in memory of Mr. Stanley Cooke and Hughie Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bennett of Sudbury. . . Special music by the choir was rendered, the anthem being "Low in the grave He lay" and "In Joseph's lovely garden". Solo parts were taken by Mrs. Stuart Cooke, Mrs. Gordon Cooke and Mr. E. A. Bulley. The service was conducted by Mr. J. Stern.

A succesful Easter supper was held in the Arundel Church hall on Saturday evening under joint auspices of the Ladies' Union and Church Guild. The large attendance did ample justice to the traditional home-cooked meal. The proceeds will be devoted to the work of the church. Congratulations are extended to the workers, on this successful event.

Sacred cantata drew favorable comment

After several weeks of preparation, members of the Brownsburg United, Maple Avenue Baptist and Lachute United Church choirs rendered two performances of Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion", the first at Brownsburg United Church on Tuesday evening, and the final recital at Lachute United Church on Good Friday. There was a fine public response to these presentations by the combined choirs, which resulted in proceeds of $137.

"An excellent rendering", "a most fitting cantata for Holy Week", "something that cannot fail to give encouragement to the organist and choir director" . . . these were but a few of the favorable comments heard after the two performances. The choristers were under direction of Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, organist and choir director of Lachute United Church, while Mrs. K. R. Davis, A.R.T.C., L.T.C.L., of Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg, presided at the organ.

The leading soloists were Messrs. Syd Drew and Lundy Pearson, taking the tenor and bass solos respectively, while the Rev. K. R. Davis and Mr. C. L. Duncan gave effective assistance in their parts. The choir was well-balanced throughout the entire recital and gave a really creditable performance.

After the Brownsburg rendition, the combined choir was served refreshments by interested ladies, and an expression of thanks was given by Mr. J. F. Gorman. The choir director, Mr. L. B. Hopkins, expressed his thanks to the soloists and organist, and to the choir for their fine support.

On Good Friday in Lachute, the ladies of East Settlement United Church prepared and served refreshments to the singers and guests, and were cordially thanked by Mr. C. L. Duncan. Mr. Hopkins again expressed his appreciation to the soloists, organist and choir members, and hoped that this would not be the last time the combined choirs would join their talents in a rendition of this kind.

Easter observances at Brownsburg United

Brownsburg — The Easter Tea on April 29, sponsored by the W.A. "B" Group of the Brownsburg United Church, proved a success. Mrs. Barnett, president, and the members of the group, are deeply grateful to all who helped in any way.

On Tuesday evening, April 1, "The Crucifixion" by Sir John Stainer, was touchingly rendered by members of Lachute and Brownsburg choirs. The singing was directed by Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, with Mrs. K. R. Davis, A.R.T.C., L.T.C.L., at the organ. The tenor soloist was Mr. Syd Drew and Mr. Lundy Pearson baritone soloist, while Rev. K. R. Davis and Mr. C. L. Duncan also took special parts.

A Good Friday service was held at 11 a.m. on April 4.

On Easter Sunday morning the church was filled to capacity, and an inspirational message was delivered by the Rev. G. Bruce, taking as his text, "If Christ had not been raised, your faith is vain". Special Easter music was rendered by the choir, with Mr. Frank Steere taking a solo part.

New district secretary for Bible Society

The Rev. T. Dale Jones, Ontario, has been appointed district secretary for Quebec of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada. He succeeds the Rev. E. Ralph Adye, who has been transferred to Toronto.

Mr. Jones will be responsible for the work of the Quebec auxiliary in the eastern part of the province, but will make his headquarters in Montreal and will share the duties in the Montreal auxiliary with the Rev. DeCourcy H. Rayner.

Travelogue with slides at Lachute W. Inst.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lachute Women's Institute was held in the Legion Hall on April 1, with the president, Mrs. J. A. Gordon, in the chair. The budget for the coming year was presented. The question of raising funds to fill requirements was discussed and left in the hands of the financial committee.

The program was under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. Y. Shearsmith, Publicity convener, who welcomed Miss Hanna Smith, a retired teacher. Miss Smith was one of 17 teachers sent by the Department of Immigration to the Netherlands, to teach Hungarian refugees wishing to come to Canada. During that time she toured parts of Europe, including Holland, Germany, Belgium, France, Switzerland, England and Scotland, photographing scenery and points of interest, especially the Dutch flower festival.

Miss Smith gave a very interesting description of her stay in Europe, illustrated by color films, which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. G. Y. Deacon expressed appreciation on behalf of the Institute members.

April meeting of W.I. at Brownsburg

Brownsburg Women's Institute held its meeting on Thursday, April 3. President Mrs. N. E. Smillie gave a short address on the occasion of this first meeting of the W.I. year, in which she extended a welcome to the visitors and stressed the need for interesting, well-planned programs in order that the membership continue to expand.

The short but impressive ceremony of the installation of officers was conducted by Mrs. R. Crosby.

Mrs. L. Wilson, Agriculture convener, introduced Mr. Salm, manager of the Harrington Forest Farm. Mr. Salm proved an able speaker. He discussed the "characters" of trees and discussed new scientific methods of Forestry as practised at Harrington. Following and augmenting his talk, Mr. Salm showed a beautiful colored film on the subject. . . Incidentally, this branch hopes to arrange a visit to the Harrington Tree Farm later in the year, in response to an invitation from Mr. Salm.

The meeting concluded with an auction of seeds, slips and bulbs brought by members, and refreshments were enjoyed by the gather-

40th Anniversary of Upper Lachute couple

Relatives, friends and neighbors gathered at the Legion Hall in Lachute on April 3 as a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. Allan Boa on their 40th wedding anniversary — given by their family, assisted by relatives and friends.

Dancing was enjoyed to the music of Mr. Lawrence Silverson and Mrs. Arthur Goldup at the piano, who were assisted also by Mr. Russel Silverson and Mrs. Lloyd Hume at the piano.

Mr. Russel Silverson, on behalf of those attending, presented the honored couple with a beautiful kitchen set — the table being centred with a three-tiered wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Boa thanked all those present for this acceptable gift, and an enjoyable evening was spent, with refreshments served in conclusion.

Inspiring services at Easter season in Parish of Mille Isles

Morin Heights — The largest number of Easter worshippers in the history of this Anglican Parish attended services that were filled with the inspiring message of the "Risen Christ".

At Trinity Church, Morin Heights, the 7 and 11 a.m. services had record attendances. Super-imposed above the brass altar cross was a huge gleaming white foam cross, with centrepiece of lilies, while many other flowers were placed in the church as memorials.

Over 600 joined in the 8 and 9.30 a.m. services at the Church of St. Francis, those outside being able to participate through the loudspeaking system. One hundred Easter lilies were used to frame the large stained-glass window over the altar, while many others were used throughout the church. Special framing material had been secured for holding the lilies.

At Christ Church, Mille Isles, the evening snowstorm prevented many from attending, but a most uplifting service was held, with Miss Lily Pollock as soloist singing the Easter anthem, "Open the Gates of the Temple."

The rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, was able to conduct all services, despite his serious illness last week.

Good Friday services were conducted by the Rev. Canon C. W. P. Baugh and by Lieut. J. Perry.

The Children's Service at Trinity Church on Saturday morning saw the church filled with the combined Sunday Schools from Morin and St. Sauveur.

NOTICE of MODIFICATION to the decree relating to the Barber and Hairdresser Trades in the counties of Argenteuil, Deux-Montagnes, Terrebonne and Laval.

The Honourable Antonio Barrette, Minister of Labour, hereby gives notice, pursuant to the provisions of the Collective Agreement Act (R.S.Q. 1941, chapter 163 and amendments), that the contracting parties to the collective labour agreement relating to the Barber and Hairdresser Trades in the counties of Argenteuil, Deux-Montagnes, Terrebonne and Laval, rendered obligatory by the decree number 140 of February 27th, 1952, and amendments, have petitioned him to amend the said decree as follows:

1. The words "radius of three (3) miles from their limits" appearing at the end of the first subparagraph of article II will be replaced by the words "radius of five (5) miles from their limits."

2. Paragraphs "a" and "e" of article IV will be replaced by the following:

"a) For Barbers and Men's Hairdressers.

Zone I

Fifty (50) hours per week distributed as follows:

Monday: 8.30 a.m. to 6.00 p.m.
Tuesday: 8.30 a.m. to 6.00 p.m.
Wednesday: 8.30 a.m. to 12.00 (noon).
Thursday: 8.30 a.m. to 8.00 p.m.
Friday: 8.30 a.m. to 10.00 p.m.
Saturday: 8.30 a.m. to 6.00 p.m.

On the eve of holidays and on working days between December 20 and 31: 8.30 a.m. to 9.00 p.m.

Exceptions: i. In the electoral district of Deux-Montagnes and in Jesus Island, the weekly holiday may be taken on Monday afternoon instead of Wednesday.

ii. In the town of St-Jérôme, work may cease at 6.00 p.m. on Thursday.

iii. In the town of Mont-Laurier, work may cease at 6.00 p.m. on Thursday and at 10.00 p.m. on Saturday.

Zone II

Fifty-six (56) hours per week, distributed as follows:

Titley - Slocum

A quiet but pretty double-ring wedding took place recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Slocum, Long Branch, N.Y., when their only daughter, Shirley Anne, was united in marriage to Mr. Lorne Edward Titley, of Harrowsmith, Ont. Officiating minister was the Rev. Sachmary, minister of the Free Methodist Church.

The bride wore a street-length gown of pale blue lace and carried a bouquet of tiny light-yellow roses centred with a white orchid.

The bride was attended by Mrs. George Gross, of New Brunswick, N.J., who wore a street-length gown of pink satin and carried a bouquet of tiny pink roses and forget-me-nots.

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a white lace purse with silk handkerchief. The groom's gift to the best man (his brother-in-law, Mr. George Gross) was gold cuff links and a tie clip.

CALF STARTENA

Twenty-one years ago Purina produced the first bag of CALF STARTENA. . . That is only part of the story, for 20 years before that Purina Research had been working towards this goal, and for the last 21 years they have still been "researching", to find improvements to add to it. In this work more than 2,000 calves have been raised on it so the calves could show which ingredient gave the best results. The calves were the judges, not the pencils. (Any d—— fool can push a pencil.)

Now NURSING CHOW has been added some time ago — to save milk, grow bigger and better calves, and do it cheaper.

If you are not now using Calf Startena, you are missing out on your calves at a time when they have the urge to grow.

W. R. DWYER
Manager
Canadian Wiper Corporation

"Wouldn't use any other make!"

"The first truck we bought when we went into business 10 years ago was a GMC one ton panel job. Of the 25 trucks purchased since then, 23 have been from General Motors. We need reliability—our trucks have to stay on the road, seven hours a day, six days a week. GMC trucks give us that reliability. When things do go wrong, we need fast service, and we get it from our GMC dealer. Wouldn't use any other make!"

"GMC provides the greatest selection of all!"

"These new 9600 Series stake body models are already giving good service—on every kind of road—with all manner of loads. About GMC in general, we know that for G.V.W.'s, models, engines, axles and transmissions—every possible specification—GMC provides the greatest selection of all!"

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Dean Neville Scarfe, one of Canada's top educationists, pointed out some time ago that children are given less guidance than they need, but they will be all right if they are educated for responsibility and freedom.

Parents who are inclined to issue too many commands to small children may be inclined to disagree with Dean Scarfe on this point. The togetherness that should be a part of the relationship between mother and child may be seriously impaired by never-ending censorship of language and actions.

Children do need a good deal of direction in their activities. Only through their own experiences will they acquire knowledge and learn new skills. Mary learns to count by the simple method of counting herself, rather than by imitating her mother. Tommy learns to tie his shoe laces by trial and error. Children love to branch out for themselves at an early age, but they need supervision by adults as they learn to play with each other.

In directing a child, a parent must always keep in mind that the goal of child training is not the immediate one of making the child obey. The real goal is so to discipline them that when adulthood is reached they will be able to take full responsibility for all their actions and endeavors.

Parents use different methods to achieve this aim. Some put their faith in strict and sometimes severe punishment. This form of discipline undoubtedly contributes largely to the increase of mental illness now so prevalent. A child should not be scared into being good by threats of a whipping or a bogey-man!

An ineffective method of control is that of deceiving a child. Every child needs the security which comes from knowing that his parent is one in whom he can have faith, confidence and trust. Rewards and bribes have the distinct disadvantage that a bright child is apt to hold out for a bigger reward, a better bribe each time. Blackmail is not just reserved for grownups! Reasoning, like a river, can go on forever. This is a poor way to control a child in a situation where prompt obedience is essential. At other times, giving a brief reason why a certain request is made, often increases a child's spirit of willing co-operation.

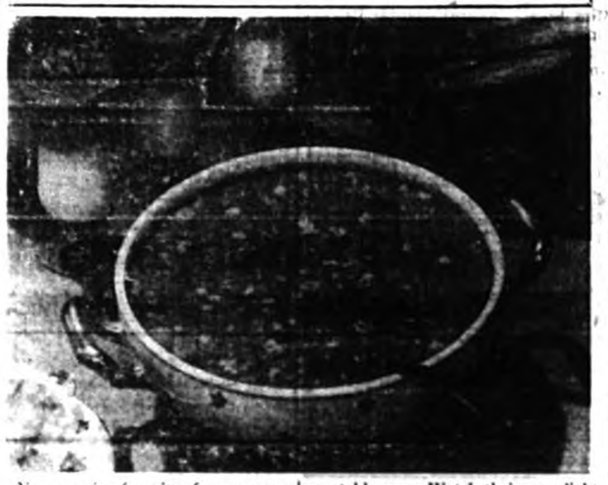

Control of a small child by a parent cannot be maintained by an adult who cannot say "no" because he is afraid to make a decision. Once he has taken a stand, he must see to it that the child follows it. Most parents realize a command should never be given unless it is necessary. Neither should they place themselves in a position where, having given an order, they are not in a position to enforce it. Getting rattled, or angry, or unloving are all mistakes in control. After all, the ruler must be able to rule himself.

The parents must have a mixture of decision and authority, along with a serenity of spirit. Children, with few exceptions, respond to a parent who makes it a practice of formulating and carrying into execution a reasonable behavior pattern.

LET'S HAVE SOUP

Yes, soup is a favorite of everyone on all occasions. From early morning until late at night, soup hits the spot.

Soup starts the day . . . hot, steaming mugs of tomato soup . . . and all are off to a good start. You'll find it's a real star on breakfast menus, especially on cold, brisk winter mornings.

Lunch time at last! . . . and what could be more welcome than a tureen well filled with a rich Trio Chowder. It's a delicious combination of three kinds of canned soup. Have plenty on hand to fill those requests for seconds.

When Dad and your children ask "What's for dinner?" . . . you need only mention the first course, chicken vegetable soup. Watch their eyes light up for they love this brand new soup that comes condensed style.

Start your New Year right . . . resolve to keep a well stocked pantry shelf of canned soups. And meal planning will be "a breeze".

SOUPER LUNCHEON

Trio Chowder
Relish & Cheese Tray—Corn Sticks
Chocolate Pudding Parfait

TRIO CHOWDER

1 can (10 ounces) condensed bean with bacon soup
1 can (10 ounces) condensed tomato soup
1 can (10 ounces) condensed meatable soup
3 soup cans water.

Blend soups and water, heat. Makes 6 generous servings.

Cottage Pudding — easy and popular dessert

Cottage pudding is a simple, tasty cake similar to a plain butter cake, but usually containing less butter and sugar. This seems like a good idea, especially if the sauce to be served with the pudding is rich or quite sweet.

In summer, cottage pudding is popularly served with fresh fruit. Right now you'll find it good served either with a sauce made from frozen or canned fruit, or with one of the sweet sauces such as butterscotch, chocolate or a honey sauce like this one, tested recently in "Canada's Kitchen":

Honey Sauce

½ Cup water, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup honey, 2 tablespoons butter.

In a saucepan mix cornstarch and water to a smooth paste, then stir in honey and butter. Bring slowly to a gentle boil. Serve hot with cottage pudding or white cake OR chill over ice cream or blanc mange. Makes about 1¼ cups sauce.

Women's Institutes crafts on exhibition

Some of the results of the craft program of the Quebec Women's Institutes may be seen at the Handicraft Exhibit being held this week in the display room of the Canadian Handicraft Guild, 2025 Peel Street, Montreal.

This exhibit has been arranged by the Handicraft Department of Macdonald College, and will carry on until Saturday, April 12. It publicizes the work of that Department and points out the many interesting careers that may be followed by its graduates.

Each section of the exhibit is designed to illustrate these varied activities. Extension work is one, and the technicians employed by the Q.W.I. are invariably graduates of this Department. Several Institutes have sent in articles for the Q.W.I. section. These include weaving, rug-hooking, and leatherwork. All have been made in classes conducted by the technicians in the individual branches, and the quality of workmanship reflects the excellent training given those taking this one-year Handicraft Course at the College.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Woman's Travel Authority

Your children will be better behaved, safer passengers if you teach them these safety rules before starting on your motoring vacation:

1. Don't stick arms or head out of the window.
2. Don't play with the cigarette lighter or any dashboard controls.
3. Don't distract the driver by shouting, jumping, or bumping his arm.
4. Touch only the handle when opening and closing car doors. Keep the other hand completely off the car — to avoid mashed fingers.
5. Keep the car doors locked. There are special safety locks available for the rear doors.

Avoid sudden starts and stops. Concentrate on the road. Pull off the road and stop the car to settle squabbles. Turn the front wheels to the curb when parking downhill. When leaving children in parked cars, remove ignition key, set handbrake firmly, leave car in gear (or in "park" position for automatic transmissions).

Season's most delectable crop; Buying and storing maple syrup

(Consumer Section)

"What's new in April. . . Of course, it's maple!"

Yes, there's a brand new crop available, so now is your chance to stock up on the type of maple syrup you like best and to sample the fresh maple butter, candy and sugar, too. At no other time of the year are the flavor and texture of these maple products better than they are right now. Sweet, delicate and pleasing — maple is one of nature's most miraculous blends of aromas and tastes.

Maple products are an exclusively North American contribution to the sweets of the world. In fact, the sugar maple tree grows almost entirely in Eastern Canada and a few of the New England states. It is interesting to note that it requires anywhere from 50 o 100 gallons of sap to make one gallon of syrup, depending on the age and shape of the maple tree and on the weather conditions.

In 1957 Quebec produced 88% of Canada's maple products; Ontario 10.8%; New Brunswick 0.9%; and Nova Scotia just under 0.3%. In the province of Quebec alone over 20,000 people are employed in this important industry.

Buying and Storing

Although maple syrup can still be purchased in gallon and half-gallon containers most homemakers find it more convenient to buy syrup in the smaller cans or bottles. They are easier to store and they keep the syrup perfectly. Even after the container has been opened a small quantity of syrup like this generally will be used up before there's any chance of it crystallizing or fermenting. One popular size is the can containing 26 ounces (net weight) of maple syrup, or about 2½ cups.

Most of the maple syrup sold in Canada is graded. The grades are: Canada Fancy — very light amber, delicate flavor; Canada Light — light amber, mild flavor; Canada Medium — dark amber, stronger flavor; and Canada Dark — dark, sometimes has a trace of sap flavor or fermentation.

As the color of maple syrup deepens, the flavor tends to become stronger. In fact, because of the stronger flavor, many people prefer Canada Medium Grade maple syrup over the top grade, Canada Fancy. The regulation for density of maple syrup is the same for all grades — a gallon must weigh at least 13 pounds, 2 ounces.

The label on containers of maple syrup must indicate the net weight of the syrup and the name of the packer.

Maple syrup kept in the container in which it is bought retains its natural aroma and flavor. Once the can or bottle is opened it should be stored covered, in a cool place.

DISTRICT NEWS

Morin Heights

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bickerdike and sons, Tommy, Eric and Tim, of the Town of Mount Royal, are spending the long Easter vacation here at the cottage of her father, Mr. J. Douglas Davis. We are sorry to report that Tommy, 7, broke his leg while skiing on Saturday. Mr. Davis spent Sunday here with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hulley and family, of St. Laurent, spent Good Friday here at their cottage. They were accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Frank Goldthorpe, who remained for the week-end as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Doherty.

Mrs. Gerald Boyd and sons, Wayne, Rodney and Bryan, of St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, spent the long week-end here at the Alpino Lodge. Mr. Boyd spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Seale and family left Thursday to spend a week in Toronto with her mother, Mrs. Jas. Michie.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Ward and son, Steven, of Mille Isles, and Misses Madeleine and Lillian Page, of St. Jerome, spent the long week-end here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Page.

Miss J. Woodward and John Goodfellow, of Montreal, spent the long week-end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Goodfellow.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Thomson, of St. Laurent, spent the holiday week-end in Mille Isles, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Riddell.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Goodman spent the week-end here with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. Colin Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ward and family spent the week-end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Morrow.

Mr. Ernest Gallagher, of Montreal, spent the Easter week-end here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Kirkpatrick.

Miss Joan Elder, of Mille Isles, spent the week-end in New York City.

Mrs. Jack Millar, of Prince Albert, Sask., returned home after spending several weeks visiting her daughter in Detroit, and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirkpatrick in Mille Isles.

Guests of Miss Theresa McConnell and her father, J. A. McConnell, over the Easter week-end included — Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Tousignant and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vic LeBlanc and daughter, Suzanne, and Mrs. Geo. Kennedy.

A new kind of glue is so powerful, Reader's Digest reports, that one drop of it will support 5,000 pounds. To prove this, a technician put one drop of the stuff between the tips of two steel rods, and held them together with his fingers for 20 seconds. Then the glued-together rods were hooked into a crane, and they lifted an automobile with four passengers off the ground.

BACKACHE May be Warning

Backache is often caused by lazy kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest or that tired-out and heavy-headed feeling may soon follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. 51

Large attendance of fraternity here for dedicaton of Masonic Temple

Saturday was a red letter day for Argenteuil Lodge No. 67, when their new Masonic Temple was officially dedicated, the afternoon ceremony being attended by well over 300 members of various lodges in both the Ontario and Quebec Districts.

The proceedings were impressively carried out by the Most Worshipful Grand Master, Bro. J. McL. Marshall, who was accompanied by a distinguished delegation of Grand Lodge officers, including Wor. Bro. Fred Witham, Grand Director of ceremonies and Master of Argenteuil Lodge in 1941.

Following the consecration service, a District meeting was held in the lodge rooms.

A buffet supper was served in the spacious dining quarters of the new Temple and toasts given to Grand Lodge, the Queen, and the visitors.

Those taking part in the program were Wor. Bro. Wm. White, the sitting Master, who welcomed the visitors and was in charge of the local proceedings; Rt. Wor. Bro. A. G. Talbot, Rt. Wor. Bro. F. O. Gauley, Wor. Bro. Neal Moore, Rt. Wor. Bro. Albert Barton, Wor. Bro. G. Connelly, Wor. Bro. H. Mason, Bro. A. McCulloch, Wor. Bro. H. D. Graves and V. Wor. Bro. R. A. Giles.

Highlight of the evening was the Grand Master's address, in which he dealt with various phases of Masonry and how members could best carry out and live up to the high ideals that the Order calls for.

Many complimentary remarks were passed about the Temple, its

Trio scores hit, recital receives warm acclaim

The performance of the Beaux Arts Trio, last Saturday night at the High School, fulfilled all expectations of the Community Concerts membership, which turned out in good numbers to enjoy this concluding program of the season.

The perfect accord and understanding of three talented artists — Daniel Guilet, violin, Bernard Greenhouse, cello, and Menahem Pressler, piano — produced a treat of chamber music which drew well-merited applause. Adding to the appeal of their selections was the fact that many of these were popularly known numbers, like the well-loved "Clair de Lune" (Debussy), Chopin's spectacular "Grande Polonaise", and Saint Saens' "Le Cygne".

Highlights of the repertoire were examples from the works of Beethoven and Mendelssohn played by the ensemble, each featuring four movements in pleasing contrast. As a concluding encore they presented a trio selection from Haydn.

Other portions of the program, however, starred the individual artists with their instruments — in each case accompanied by the hard-working pianist, a young man who himself excelled in two piano solos. The last of these was the "Grande Polonaise", a consistent bell-ringer which pulled down the house — the pianist then obliging with a Brahms berceuse in marked contrast of mood and tempo, as an encore.

Mr. Guilet's violin presentations included the old favorite, "Clair de Lune", "Banjo and Fiddle" (William Kroll), which called for top dexterity both in the solo instrument and on the piano; and a novelty number which simulated pipers approaching and receding — bagpipes in Brittany, of all places.

Mr. Greenhouse, with his less-spirited instrument, showed surprising agility even on the bulky cello. The violincello revealed itself as an appealing medium under his adept fingers — especially in the Saint Saens extract "Allegro Appassionata", followed by "The Swan" by the same composer, as an encore.

Altogether the program was a treat amply justifying the reputation which preceded the appearance of these outstanding artists, and a fitting climax to the season's concert series in Lachute. It will doubtless give impetus also to a successful membership campaign to be launched next Monday by Community Concerts Association canvassers.

Following their appearance here, the Beaux Arts Trio performed Sunday at the Pro Musica afternoon in the Ritz Carlton, Montreal. After a tour in Ontario, including Smiths Falls and the Parry Sound region this week, they leave for Italy and a tour in Europe.

Service vote trims Latour majority slightly, by 103

Official recount reported by District Returning Officer

Official counting of the ballots, last Wednesday at the District Returning Officer's bureau, had the effect of a slight diminution on Mr. Latour's majority. According to the D.R.O., Notary Richard Valois, the final majority for J. O. Latour, Progressive Conservative, is 3,990 votes. (Provisional majority reported on election night was 4,122.)

Latour (P.C.)	14,483
Gosselin (Lib.)	10,493
Duhamel (Ind.)	619
Ballots rejected	291
Majority for Latour	3,990

The slight change developing since the provincial count is due principally to the Service vote. Returns from Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes voters in the armed services gave Bernard Gosselin, Liberal, a 103-vote preference. The 'soldiers' vote" was as follows:

Gosselin (Lib.)	126
Latour (P.C.)	23
Duhamel (Ind.)	3

With two ballots spoiled, this means that 154 servicemen from the two counties in this constituency recorded their votes.

Evidence that the federal election this year created greater interest among the local electorate is apparent in the fact that 25,893 voters exercised their franchise out of 32,177 eligible — a proportion of 81%.

Ottawa team win annual invitation curling event

The annual Spring Bonspiel (No. 10) of the Lachute Curling Club, came to a successful conclusion on Saturday evening after a two-week session of hard-fought games among curling teams from near and far.

With 144 rinks taking part during the 'spiel, finals were narrowed down to eight teams, and on Saturday evening Ottawa, with G. Anderson (skip), A. Butterworth, L. Rodgers, and R. Waldie, defeated Pointe Claire, represented by D. Fuger (skip), B. Fuger, W. Matthews and R. Melister.

In the Consolation win Cornwall, with P. McKay (skip), G. McDonald, R. Evans and K. McLellan, outshot Hawkesbury, whose team comprised M. Wilson (skip), D. Morrison, J. McGibbon and Dr. Aird.

President Nat Boyd extended greetings, and warm thanks to all who had attended and helped in making this event so successful. Special praise was given the ladies for their untiring efforts in supplying such acceptable meals for the benefit of both players and members.

Mrs. J. Stein, president of the Ladies' Branch, thanked her helpers and stated that it had been a very pleasant undertaking.

Four teams defeated in the elimnations received a gallon of maple syrup for each player, while the winners and runners-up were given a choice from a large number of attractive prizes.

The annual general meeting of the Curling Club will be held on Wednesday, April 30.

A stag dinner for members and shareholders will be served at 6.30 p.m. before the meeting.

To conclude the season's activities a mixed curling party will be held on April 19, afternoon and evening, with a buffet supper and closing dance.

Officers elected for Home-School

The Home and School Association met in the music room of the Lachute High School under direction of the Rev. J. Watson.

The main business of the evening was the new slate of officers for the ensuing year. The following will assume their responsibilities for 1958-1959:

President, Mr. K. Riley; 1st vice-president, Mr. G. Pride; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. G. Higginson.

Treasurer, Mr. F. Jeffries.

Publicity, Mr. E. Gow.

Program chairman, Mrs. Jack Thorpe.

Membership — Mrs. E. Hooker.

The film for the evening was unfortunately a very short one entitled "Your Health". However, two films from Ayers Limited enlightened parents on the complex process of cloth and blanket making, and also drew their attention to the fact that good fabrics are made in Canada for Canadians.

The Rev. J. R. Watson paid tribute to the executive for their cooperation in the past year. He stated that his experience here in Lachute would be of great assistance in his future plans.

The meeting adjourned for refreshments.

3 Brownsb'g boys for investiture as Queen's Scouts

The 1958 Queen's Scout Recognition Ceremony will take place this Saturday, April 19, at 3 p.m. in the Legislative Council Chamber, Parliament Buildings, Quebec City. The presentation will be made by His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, who will give a short address.

The Brownsburg Troop has three Boy Scouts eligible for this award — Wayne Gagné, Michael Gervais and Paul Villard, Jr.

The candidates for this high honor, with their sponsors and parents, will travel by bus, train or private cars. A pool train will leave Windsor Station, Montreal, at 10 a.m., arriving at Palais Station, Quebec, at 2 p.m.

Following the ceremony, buses will make a tour of the histpric parts of the city. The train will leave Quebec at 6 p.m. arriving at Montreal at 10 p.m.

Hobby crafts by Guides, Brownies

Two hundred Brownies, Girl Guides and Rangers from Brownsburg, Grenville and Lachute are holding an exhibit of hobbies and handicrafts on Saturday, April 19, in Brownsburg High School, from 2 to 5 p.m. Exhibits will include art work, plants, snapshots, dolls, hobbies and badge work. There will also be a singing competition among Girl Guide Companies. Prizes will be awarded.

A film, "The Wider World", in color, will be shown at 3 o'clock. Children will be admitted free of charge; 25 cents admission will be charged for adults and for everyone over 12 except Guides and Rangers in uniform. Proceeds will help with camping expenses this summer.

Permits indicate building spree in Ayersville

Numerous permits for building or remodelling were approved at the regular Council session in Ayersville. The meeting was held last week with Mayor Maurice Champagne presiding; only councillor absent was Douglas G. Simon.

Following were the permits granted: Paul-Henri Campeau, renovations, Champlain Street; Ernest Bélisle, warehouse, Chatham Street; Arthur Gravel, remodelling, Tessier Street; William Lepine, Brownsburg, repairs, Champagne Street; Roland Joanisse, new residence, Ayers Street; Réal Joly, new dwelling, Chatham Street; Emile Xhignesse, of Ste. Therese, new house on Bradford Street; Bernard Gauthier, new house, Chatham Street; Alcide Desjardins, residence on Hammond Street.

Accounts amounting to $1,156.76 were approved for payment — with a bill from Gabriel Décarie of St. Andrews ($900 for winter road clearing) held over for study.

Gilles Lavigne and Jean-Paul Perreault were given permit to operate a French Fried wagon within the municipality, providing they conform to regulations.

By-law for the laying of a sewer on Gauthier Street was passed by the Council, which will be put before the proprietors concerned, in a public referendum April 28, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. There are 11 property-holders involved, and the work will require a loan of $7,041.54.

Paul Sauvé to replace deceased mayor of Grenv'l

After due deliberations, Paul Sauvé was chosen and named to fill the unexpired mayoral term. Mr. Sauvé was serving as a council member prior to this appointment.

Two plead guilty in bank hold-up

Montreal — Two men who pleaded guilty at St. Jerome to armed robbery, will be sentenced next week.

The men, Jean Pierre Giroux and Jean Louis Pelletier, both of St. Jerome, were accused of the hold-up of the Caisse Populaire at Ste. Scholastique on February 1.

At the time of the theft police reported four masked men broke into the bank during the night and forced the manager to open the safe. They escaped with $18,000.

Has no jurisdiction—

Ayersville backs down on obscene literature by-law

Whereas there was a recent notice of motion to frame a by-law banning obscene literature in Ayersville, it apears the move was premature, and the Council is now adamant on the matter of legislation. . . The reason? This question, as other municipalities have found out, is a federal matter and governed by provisions of the Criminal Code.

At last meeting of Council, the members received a petition signed by numerous school pupils and parents. They heard a plea lodged by the parish priest for the banning of immoral periodicals on newsstands; and the councillors resolved to do something about it.

Mayor Champagne, however, made known the reversed decision. He quoted a letter received from the city clerk at St. Jerome informing Ayersville of the federal supervision of such matters. "Neither Lachute nor St. Jerome have any by-law to cope with this problem, and we would be ill-advised to establish a by-law which we could not enforce," said Mayor Champagne.

The law governing obscene publications is not too clear, said the mayor, and it would be illogical for the municipality to adopt a statute which would be legally ineffective.

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The April session of Town Council was again enlivened by the discussion of a number of matters outside the normal routine of the town's governing body.

Messrs. K. Amos and L. Pressault attended, to present a brief on behalf of the Rotary Club, asking that the town consider helping to provide more adequate supervision at the local swimming pool during the summer months. The brief stated that the pool is used by an average of 2,000 persons a week for a period of 10 weeks, 50 percent of this figure representing Brownsburg residents. In the past the Rotary Club has borne the cost of employing a supervisor, but the club members feel that to provide proper protection for both life and property of some 20,000 people during the summer, the services of two responsible persons are required. This cost, added to that of regular maintenance and a planned expansion program, will bring expenses to an estimated $1,500 for the year. . . . The request was held over for detailed study.

Mr. J. Binette requested Council to consider increasing the water service capacity on Bank Street North, by replacing the existing pipes with ones of larger diameter. The Council declared that, since the street is not the property of the town, it cannot undertake improvements. This information prompted a spirited discussion on waterworks in general. Provincial law stipulates that municipalities cannot take over dead-end streets within their boundaries unless a turn-about of 40 feet radius is provided at the closed end.

Another interested citizen opined that this, and the apparent unavailability of money for water and sewerage projects, has kept such necessary civic improvements to an absolute minimum in the town. Because of this, numerous people who are desirious of building homes in Brownsburg are prevented from doing so because of the lack of serviced areas.

The Council members agreed that this situation deserved investigation, and under the sponsorship of pro-Mayor Stanley Harris and Councillor George Therrien, stated that early efforts would be made to rectify the condition.

Police Chief Lepine's report led to further discussion when the Council was asked to enforce speeding laws more rigidly. During the month, a total of 29 bicycle licenses and seven dog licenses were issued. Fines were assessed for 3 parking offences and 1 red light infraction, while 1 speeding ticket was issued.

Fire Chief A. Robbins reported two grass fires had occurred during the month, with no property damage involved. Council approved the purchase of a new back-pack tank to aid in the control of bush and grass fires. Consideration is being given to obtaining a special control valve for the fire truck which would enable the firemen to get the hoses into action in less time.

Councillor Therrien expressed a desire to have special attention given to cleaning the sand and other winter refuse from the streets. Thought was given to the rental of a vacuum-type cleaner, but no decision was reached.

Arrangements are presently being made to have the master plan of the town map completed by a local draftsman. Copies should be available to the public in the near future.

Council approved payment of monthly vouchers amounting to $3,181.25, in addition to a payment to the Provincial Government of $354. in fines which the town has collected over the last year. A percentage of this amount will be returned to the town treasury. A total of $930.31 was approved for payment for social welfare work in Brownsburg.

3 LHS athletes to gymnastics meet

At the Eastern Canadian Gymnastics Meet held this Saturday at Windsor, Ont., three local boys, Reggie Stansfield, Ronnie Cairns and Gary Cruise, will participate.

Reggie Stansfield, last year's champion, will again participate in the Junior Men's section. Ronnie Cairns and Gary Cruise will start in the Novice Men's division.

The boys have been working very hard for two or three hours every day during the last couple of months, and with a little luck they should have an opportunity this year to bring to Lachute both the Junior and the Novice championships — specially young Ronnie Cairns, who has shown outstanding form; if no mishaps intervene, he should do very well.

The boys will leave by car for Windsor Thursday afternoon, and hope to be there sometime Friday afternoon, so that they will have a good night's sleep before the meet. The contests start at 9 in the morning and will go on right to 11 o'clock that night.

If the boys do well at Windsor, and if money can be raised, it is hoped to send them to the Dominion meet at Vancouver on July 3 and 4.

Demented fox nips pet terrier

A valuable Kerry Blue terrier belonging to Mrs. A. S. Cockhill, who lives across Copeland's Bridge on the river road, was in a skirmish with a fox on the lawn of the residence yesterday. The owner heard the commotion and found the dog bitten and badly scared. The marauding fox was very much in evidence; it had to be shoo-ed from the door-yard where it was parked. Mrs. Cockhill called her neighbors, and John Welden promptly shot the animal — which, he reports, was making towards him as he approached, and would doubtless have attacked if given the opportunity.

Mrs. Cockhill's dog was inoculated recently, and although being kept confined, it is believed safe from rabies infection.

Rover Scout dinner planned, St. George's Day

The first Rover Scout Dinner to be held in what was formerly known as the Laurentian District of the Boy Scouts Association is to be held on St. George's Day, April 23, at the Ste. Rose Restaurant in Ste. Rose, Que. St. George is the Rover Scout patron saint, and the Rover flag is the St. George's cross.

Mr. Robert Herron, leader of the Foothills Rover Scouts of Ste. Rose, and Mr. Harry Lambourne, District chairman, are in charge of most of the details in connection with this event. Linton W. Armstrong, Assistant District Commissioner, will be the guest speaker.

All Rover Scouts, Senior Scouts, Scouters, Group Committee members and all others interested in Boy Scout work are invited to attend.

Among the special guests will be General Ernest Walford, of Montreal, Mayor O. Payette of Ste. Rose, District Commissioner Jim Reid, of Rosemere, the Rev. G. A. Norman, of Ste. Therese, and the Rev. Father Guy Allard.

Scholarship by four industries of this district

The Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada announces the establishment of the Prescott - Argenteuil Industrial Scholarship. The award for 1958 is made possible through contributions from the following industries in the two counties.

Canadian Refractories Ltd., Kilmar.

Canadian Safety Fuse Company Ltd., Brownsburg.

Norda Limited, Vankleek Hill.

The award will be administered by the Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute.

The purpose of this scholarship is to promote interest in the science of chemistry among students in the secondary schools, and to assist a student of outstanding ability to coninue his education at the university level. In 1958, the Prescott - Argenteuil Industrial Scholarship will have a value of $500.

Eligibility

All students attending Grade XI in Argenteuil County or Grade XI. in Prescott County are eligible for this scholarship, which will be awarded on the basis of an examination which will be set and marked by the scholarship fund committee of the Chemical Institute of Canada. The examination will be held simultaneously at Hawkesbury District High School and Lachute High School on May 31.

Application forms and particulars are available from district school authorities or from Dr. D. B. Mutton, Box 882, Hawkesbury.

Lions Club hears diplomat on Netherlands' problems

Report on Easter Seals; fund raising and plans of public interest discussed

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Lachute Lions Club was held Tuesday, April 8, with a large percentage of the members present. The members of this club are chosen for their interest in civic and social matters, and are consequently often tied up with such work on meeting nights. Many have two and even three meetings scheduled for the same evening.

Lion George Tattersfield, as chairman of the Easter Seals campaign, reported that donations for the Crippled Children were ahead of last year, with still more contributors to be heard from in the next two weeks. This nation-wide campaign for funds is sponsored by service clubs to enable needy crippled youngsters to obtain medical and orthopaedic treatment, as well as prosthetic services.

The Club has in the past few years held a car raffle coinciding with the Lachute Spring Fair. This fund-raising method will again be used this year to build up the reserve earmarked for the Arena Project, which the Lions Club sincerely intends to realize. Co-chairmen for the organization of this raffle are Lions Col. E. Emmett and L. J. Dumais, and the former announced that the car to be drawn will be a Vauxhall, obtained through the co-operation of Lion Armand Desrosiers.

The climax of the evening was a talk on the Industry and Land Reclamation of the Netherlands. An extremely informative narration was delivered by a very competent authority on this matter, in the person of Mr. Van der Vossen, secretary of the Royal Netherlands Embassy at Ottawa. Mr. Van der Vossen, who has been with the Dutch Diplomatic Corps in Canada for the past four years, explained that the size of his country can be compared to about half the size of our province of New Brunswick. Their major problem is in finding sufficient land to accommodate the population of 11 million people, which figures at approximately 840 persons per square mile, compared to our 7 per square mile or 1 person for every 2 acres. This problem is by no means a new one for the Dutch people, who have been hard at work in building dikes and dams for the past few centuries to push back the ocean's water, and use the ocean bed for more space in which to live. Their program of land reclamation is still underway and the present plans call for dams to be built during the next 25 years to greatly increase the southwestern area. Due to the numerous indentations on the water edge, the total length of the coastline is about 2,000 miles.

Mr. Van der Vossen paid tribute to Canadians for having so warmly received 130,000 of his countrymen since the end of the war. It is a necessity that Dutch people emigrate, as the population is growing at the rate of about 30,000 per year.

The speaker was introduced to the members by Lion Gerry Lefebvre (who fared very well after having been assigned this task on the spur of the moment). Lion Dr. P. W. FitzGerald's oratorical ability also did credit to the club when asked to thank the diplomat without prior notice.

Spinning

— By BOB ATCHISON —

This type of casting and fishing is comparatively new in Canada and the U.S.A., having only been popular about 15 years. But it has been carried on for untold years though in England and Europe. Their style of spinning differs greatly from ours, in that they use a double-handed rod most of the time, in lengths of 7 feet to 11 feet. I'm not going to tell you about this, as it's of no use to us in our fishing. It is for Salmon, but there are very few Salmon fishermen in this country, that is, in proportion to the population. The single rod is what we are interested in, so . . .

The rod is, as always, an important piece of equipment; it can be a glass or a split-cane rod. As in the fly rod, comfort for the fisherman is of great importance. So right from the start we'll rule out the solid glass rods. The hollow ones are the best for all types of spinning — strong, light, flexible, etc. It isn't at all necessary to spend a small fortune on your rod, it has to be a decent one, but it is not the rod in this case that is important, so that a medium priced one will be all you need.

The big thing in spinning is the reel. If you buy one of these cheap ones that are being flooded onto the market today, you might as well throw your money away. I'm not suggesting you should spend $30 or more on your reel. As I see it, they are no different in their operation from the medium-priced one, at $10 to $20. But I'm not going to tell you what is best for you; that is a question you will have to answer yourself. Here are a few reasons why I use a medium-priced reel:

They are mostly made on this continent; they are made by reputable companies; they are easy to service.

Now, in buying a Spinning outfit, if you have to cut down on expenses (and who hasn't!), do this on your rod and not on the reel, as this is the most important piece of equipment. More of this later, though. Your rod can be from 6' medium-action up to the 7' 6" length. The best all-round lengths are from 6' to 7'. Over these lengths you are getting into a very flexible outfit, with the result the line is hair-thin — very small baits — to make it short, a very delicate outfit! The stiff-action rod is not much use for spinning, as you will have difficulty flipping any kind of lures with it. Once again, if you buy a split-cane spinning rod you are going to pay from $25 up. The results will be better naturally than with the glass; the tip is faster, stiffer and able to carry any type of lures.

The reel you get should be the best you can afford. Don't buy any of these reels that sell for a few dollars, unless you just fish to kill time. (If you are that type of fisherman you won't have read this far anyway.) I know it's easy for me to tell you what to buy, but I have the opportunity of trying-out all types of reels and I've come to the conclusion, no matter who makes the reel, you get what you pay for. Don't get me wrong on this though, I'm not suggesting you should pay $30 to $50. The medium-priced reels are all very good, from $10 to $20, that is, if they are home-made products. By no means get yourself any of these reels if they are not made in America. There are some reels on the market made in foreign countries that just aren't worth buying. Notably some of those made in the Far East. I have been given about 10 of these to try out, and they are not worth spending the time to do it. . .

One in particular, I would like to tell you about, and maybe save you a few dollars. It is an almost exact duplicate of a Continental reel that sells for around $30. This one sells for about half that. They look very good, but that's where it ends. I tried seven reels of this make before I got one that would work consistently on a number of casts. The big trouble, and still is, that the retrieve will not retrieve under any pressure, current, etc.; so what happens when you get a fish? . . . So forget about these; the way I have described it, you shouldn't have any trouble figuring this one out.

Another type has all kinds of fancy gadgets on it; length of cast, etc. This one is from Europe, and it isn't much better than the other one I've just described. Don't get any type of reel with all kinds of fancy levers on them. Stick to the plain ones, and you will find that you will get a lot more satisfaction. You should also be able to get extra spools for the reel you buy, and this is not possible with the imported ones, unless you pay a lot for them.

The fishing you can do with a spinning outfit has no limits except your own imagination. Don't stick to one form of getting your lures out. Experiment; cast sideways, under, over, on your knees, everything. One I will tell you about that you may not know — the Bow Cast. This method is very good for heavily wooded areas. . . Grasp your lure in your left hand; pull your right hand against your left forming a bow in the rod; keep the tension on your line until the release. Let the lure go with the release of the line. After a few casts you will be pleasantly surprised at how well you can do. Make very sure you don't hold your lure in your hand, otherwise you will get a mitful of spinner! Use your fingers on the bend of the hook.

Another thing that will perhaps help you to enjoy your fishing a little more: Try moving your reel on the handle. I know all the pictures of outfits show the reel up at the head of the handle; this is a left-over from the English way of fishing with a 10' rod. It was needed that way then. With the reel down nearer the butt of the handle, you may find it a better-balanced outfit, and much easier to use. One thing is sure, you get much better control of your lure.

Baseball season gets underway

By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Another baseball season is under way and like most things, baseball has undergone some radical changes in the last 25 years.

A quarter of a century ago the Braves were in Boston instead of Milwaukee, the Athletics in Philadelphia instead of Kansas City, the Dodgers in Brooklyn instead of Los Angeles and the Giants in New York instead of San Francisco. The Orioles of Baltimore were then the Browns of St. Louis.

Washington Senators, who haven't finished in the first division in more than 10 years, won the American League pennant in 1933 with shortstop-manager Joe Cronin leading their drive. Another player manager, Bill Terry, directed the Giants to the National League title that year and then guided his club to the world series championship.

Babe Ruth was drawing to the close of his fabulous career in 1933. Lou Gehrig was to set a major league consecutive game record that season and Jimmy Fox swept the triple crown of batting and the American League's most valuable player award. Chuck Klein, who died recently, won the National League batting crown. Among other idols of that year were Lefty Grove, Dizzy Dean, Al Simmons, Lefty Gomez, Carl Hubbell, Paul Waner, Lon Warneke, Pepper Martin and Mel Ott.

Today the fans cheer Ted Williams and Stan Musial, who were teen-agers dreaming of the big leagues in 1933 . . . or Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays, who were mere infants . . . or Hank Aaron, who wasn't born then.

Final play on Saturday for bowling championship

Marcel Brunette, Jim Duncan in tournament climax

Marcel Brunette and Jim Duncan are finalists in the Bolodrome showdown for the local championship this Saturday — these two stars have eliminated contenders in the semi-finals and will compete in an exciting climax for top honors.

The event will be staged at 2 p.m. Saturday, 19th, and Mayor Léopold Carrière will honor the occasion to present the winner with the Bolodrome championship trophy. It is expected there will be a good attendance of fans and spectators.

Denis Lauzon, 146-159-161, was eliminated by Marcel Brunette, 199-267-157, in the semi-final — Brunette's second game of 267 brilliantly topping the previous Bolodrome record of 259 by Fernand Bouchard.

In the other semi-final tilt Jim Duncan defeated Bud Langille by a good 49-point lead — Bud starting out with an off-form score of 123 to Jim's 174 in the first round.

The final brings together two consistently high scorers in the season's league games, and the climax should be highly interesting to watch.

Marcel Brunette eliminated Denis Lauzon, 623-466

Rifle organization campaigner for safe handling of firearms

Montreal — A province-wide campaign to encourage education in the safe use of firearms, has been announced by officials of Dominion Marksmen. The plea, to be directed at leaders in all phases of community affairs, service clubs and associations, will emphasize the need of organized shooting clubs with the aim that any person using firearms will be a shooter trained both in accuracy and safety.

The program was initiated following suggestions from Quebec fish and game associations that the government place sanctions on persons responsible for hunting accidents. Dominion Marksmen, a country-wide organization with a membership of over 19,000, believes the solution lies not in government legislation but in proper instruction and practice for those who are now, or will be, using guns.

For the regular meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association, to be held Monday, April 21, in the Legion Hall, Lachute — Bob Provencher, public relations representative of Quebec North Shore Paper Company, will present an interesting film.

Mr. Provencher is a master woodsman, a professional forester and an authority on conservation. He is an enthusiastic angler and hunter; in the latter pastime he favors the bow and arrow, and with this ancient weapon he has shot a variety of species from rats to bears. He is author of the book, "I Live in the Woods."

Bob Provencher, the son of a Three Rivers lawyer, studied Forestry and became chief forester for both the Quebec North Shore and the Ontario Paper companies. He is an expert photographer and the films he will exhibit here are a masterly example of his efficiency in this art. He accompanies the films with narrative in both French and English.

Leonard Bedard, who succeeded Bob Atchison as president of this organization, states there will be special attractions in the form of door prizes, which will be numerous and of worthwhile value.

An interesting program is assured, and a good attendance is expected at this meeting.

The City of Moose Jaw, Sask., takes its name from an Indian word that meant "The place where the white man mended his cart with the jaw of a moose."

The Lachute United Church Bowling League play-offs were started Monday evening, and the following games eliminated six teams. The scores were: Beavers 14 - All Stars 3; Teenagers 8 - East Settlement 6; Thistles 9 - Red Wings 5; St. Georges 10 - Maple Leafs 5; St. Pats 14 - St. Davids 5; Bluebirds 17 - St. Andrews 2.

7.15 p.m. — 10 Ends
Series B—Thistles vs. St. Georges.
7.15 p.m. —
Series B — St. Pats vs. Bluebirds.
7.30 p.m. — Ten Ends
Series A—Beavers vs. Teenagers.
8.15 p.m. — 8 Ends
Winners of B Series playoff.

On Monday, April 28, the finals will be played between the two teams surviving Series A and Series B. The annual banquet and prize awards will be held on this occasion.

THE DIESEL FIREMAN DISPUTE ON CANADIAN PACIFIC

TWO YEARS AGO, in April 1956 the Firemen's Union demanded wage increases and other benefits involving substantial increased costs.

AT THE SAME TIME Canadian Pacific proposed that, as firemen were not necessary, they should no longer be carried on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service.

CANADIAN PACIFIC also proposed dropping both arbitrary wage payments for which no service was rendered and differential wage rates in mountain territory.

IN DECEMBER 1956 a Federal Board of Conciliation recommended substantial wage increases and other benefits. At the same time, it found that firemen were not required on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service and made provision for protection of their employment. It also found that payment of arbitraries and mountain differential should be modified.

CANADIAN PACIFIC accepted the Conciliation Board's report.

THE FIREMEN'S UNION rejected the report and called a strike on January 2, 1957.

THE STRIKE WAS ENDED on January 11, 1957 on the following basis:—

1. Canadian Pacific agreed to pay the substantial wage increases retroactive to April 1 of the previous year and other benefits recommended by the Conciliation Board.
2. The Union and Canadian Pacific agreed to refer the DIESEL ISSUE as well as payment of arbitraries and mountain differential to a ROYAL COMMISSION.
3. The Union and Canadian Pacific agreed to negotiate these issues in the light of and immediately following the publication of the ROYAL COMMISSION'S Report.

THE KELLOCK ROYAL COMMISSION of three senior judges devoted ten months to hearing 119 witnesses and, at the request of the Firemen's Union, made on-the-ground investigations across Canada and also made observations on four major European railway systems. It was the most extensive and thorough investigation in the history of labour relations in Canada.

IN ITS UNANIMOUS REPORT published February 4, 1958 the ROYAL COMMISSION found that:—

1. Firemen are not required on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service on Canadian Pacific either for safety or any other reason.
2. The proposal of Canadian Pacific for protecting firemen from loss of employment and seniority is fair and generous.
3. Arbitraries have become unrealistic and should be dropped and payment made on the basis of service rendered.
4. Mountain differential payments should be dropped and replaced by valley differential.

CANADIAN PACIFIC accepted the report of the KELLOCK ROYAL COMMISSION as it had undertaken to do when the Commission was appointed.

THE UNION rejected the report, stating that nothing in it was acceptable to them. They did so knowing that not one fireman would suffer loss of railway employment who was hired before the proposal to discontinue firemen on freight and yard diesels was made in April, 1956. All across Canada there are less than 100 firemen hired after that date and now working who face possible lay-off.

ALL EFFORTS of Canadian Pacific to settle the dispute through negotiations with the Firemen's Union have failed.

FOR TWO YEARS firemen have enjoyed substantial wage increases. During these two years action on the diesel issue has been postponed while the Union had every contention it could advance investigated by two enquiries.

CANADIAN PACIFIC has a duty to the public to operate the railway efficiently and economically.

CANADIAN PACIFIC, to fulfill this duty, has given notice to the Firemen's Union that the findings of the KELLOCK ROYAL COMMISSION will take effect on May 11, 1958.

An ideal worth supporting—

Finer things for this community

NEXT WEEK is the occasion of the annual Community Concerts membership campaign. . .

Community Concerts has been active in Lachute for nine years. Over this span, many fine concerts have been presented. Those who listened to public comments after these concerts, feel a sense of pride that such an opportunity exists in this town and district. This feeling has never been more apparent than on the reaction to last Saturday's recital by the Beaux Arts Trio.

Community Concerts has been a national institution for the past 30 years. Throughout the continent there are over one million members in cities ranging from the smallest, numbering less than one thousand souls, to the largest centres of population. No method of bringing concerts to a membership organization has been as successful as has the Community Concert plan.

Community Concerts is a non-profit organization. Nobody wants to make any money out of this. No canvasser is "working his way through college." All the enthusiasts are giving freely of their time, purely in order to bring finer things to Lachute. Not the least of their motives is a determination to give our children the advantage of attending concerts — concerts of the finest type — during the formative years when their taste and discrimination will be largely determined. We are glad to note that, in this respect, the Association here has always enjoyed the fullest co-operation of our social clubs and school directors, who realize that this is an essential and important part of youth's development.

But no one on the committee of Community Concerts considers his efforts are purely cultural, or purely educational. They are sold on the realization that these concerts are as thoroughly entertaining as anything else available during the season.

Most of us at one time or another have gone to a concert, or to an opera in one of the major cities. We pay our $3 up to $5 for a good seat, we go in and sit down. To the right, to the left, in front of us, in back of us, are strangers. We cannot communicate our feelings to them; they do not communicate theirs to us. The result is a pretty isolated type of musical enjoyment. Community Concerts is precisely the opposite. We go as friends; we go as neighbors; we enjoy it together, and this is one of the most important factors of the Association. The more members enjoying these concerts together, the finer concerts we will be able to afford. For this reason, we urge upon all readers to help make the local Association a still greater success.

Turmoil in the minnow pail

TALK ABOUT a tempest in a teacup! . . The new 1958 fishing regulations have stirred an uproar in the minnow pails of this County.

The ban on minnows, which includes Argenteuil this year (as the only southwest Quebec area) with 14 other counties, is complete. And despite doubts and queries expressed last week on our publishing this news, we mean complete. With others interested we have scrutinized the regulations, and find no loophole to permit fishing with minnows in Argenteuil, whether it be in lakes, rivers or mud puddles.

(If we are in error we will recant, as we have done before — the Fish and Game regulations in Quebec being proverbially confusing, year after year. This time, however, they appear clear enough.)

. . . And drastic, as far as Argenteuil County is concerned! It was stringent last year to be denied the sale or transporting of minnows to one's favorite fishing spot, the use of minnows being restricted to those taken from the actual waters to be fished. But this season the angler in Argenteuil cannot do even that, and it will be a bonanza year for bacon rinds, and dealers in artificial lures and baits. Not even pickled minnows in a jar!

As we remarked last week, the only deviation from this rule is that one may transport live minnows "by land or air" on the south side of Routes 8 and 41. As we interpret the regulations, you may fish with them in the Ottawa River only east of the Deux Montagnes boundary or west of the Papineau line; but in Argenteuil, God forbid! . . . We can imagine weather-beaten fishermen from La Baie to Pte. au Chene scratching their heads over this sacrilege; but as far as it appears in black and white, not even THEY are excepted.

Against this trifling with tradition, there will doubtless be many protests from this County. Whether there will be formal protests from our fish and game organizations remains to be seen. But general sentiment is very averse to having Argenteuil a guinea pig or "test centre", for conservation moves in which there doesn't seem to be much sense. We mean particularly the one which denies the practice of fishing with minnows taken from the same waters. If the objective is to eradicate predator fish from trout lakes, this would seem like one way to help the process.

But we are not authorities on conservation. Perhaps someone will explain.

Local industry promotes education

THERE HAS been much well-meaning propaganda to shoulder Industry with the responsibility to promote education in the Sciences. Industry in turn has responded to the need for graduate engineers and scientists, which becomes increasingly apparent, by offering scholarships and bursaries to promising students.

Our last reference having any bearing on industrial interests here, was concerning the Wildlife Conservation scholarship awarded by Canadian Industries Limited — which company has expended over a million dollars since its inception, in post-graduate scholarships, prizes and endowments for construction and facilities, and for professorships in Science and Engineering.

We are gratified to note this week that Argenteuil and Prescott Counties are providing a university scholarship, exclusive in this area both as to sponsorship and application.

The "Prescott and Argenteuil Industrial Scholarship," just announced, is administered by the Hawkesbury Section of the Engineering Institute of Canada. Awarded to a suitable and deserving applicant from the secondary schools of these two counties, it is made possible by contributions from four industries, namely — Canadian Refractories Limited, Kilmar; Canadian Safety Fuse Company Limited, Brownsburg; Industrial Cellulose Research Limited, Hawkesbury; and Norda Limited, Vankleek Hill.

The purpose of this scholarship is "to promote interest in the science of chemistry among students in the secondary schools, and to assist a student of outstanding ability to continue his education at the university level."

The gesture is another tribute to the public spirit of Industry in this area.

Bits and pieces

IN CONNECTION with the current railway dispute, a local observer remarks that thousands of dollars spent by the railways in maintaining firemen on diesel engines, could be more profitably expended in saving lives at railway crossings. One local instance within the past few months is cited, in which a gate or warning light would have averted a tragedy.

There are dozens of unguarded crossings on the CPR local line at which the hazard for motorists, especially in bad weather and poor visibility, is undeniably increased by the speed of diesel trains. These hazards exist — their removal is a challenge to the railway companies — meanwhile the Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and Firemen disputes a Royal Commission finding on the dispensability of firemen on yard-operating diesels, and would thus maintain unnecessary costs of operation.

In the capital city, retail sales in almost every line — from furniture to finery — climbed to a new high level in January, February and March; and April shows signs of even greater consumer demand.

Ten leading department stores claim significant sales increases for the first three months of the year, by comparison with the first quarter of 1957. The upswing ranges from "slight" to more than 20 percent — says a news story from Ottawa.

Anyone seriously influenced by current recession talk, would do well to read and digest this item.

YANKS ARE COMING — Look for a tourist boom in Canada when travel-conscious U.S. citizens start rolling along highways for annual vacations, says Vince Lunny in The Financial Post.

Early forecasts are that automobiles entering Canada on travelers' permits for more than 48 hours will reach an all-time high of 2.6 million.

Optimistic forecasts are based on these facts:

Tourist bureaus across Canada report more requests for information than a year ago.

U.S. Government estimates are that Americans will spend 8% more for travel than they did in 1957.

Sportsmen ask minister explain new regulation

LETER TO THE EDITOR

Lachute, Que.

Editor, Lachute Watchman

Trout fishing throughout the Province gets underway April 16, and for the first time in the history of the County of Argenteuil, a total ban on fishing with minnows is in effect.

The basic idea of not transporting minnows from one body of water to another is excellent and possibly the present law should have been put into effect many years ago. However, as it is possible to count the number of coarse-fish free lakes in the county on one hand, what is the point of the new law?

In many local lakes, the only feasible way to legally catch Grey Trout at certain times of the year, or by still fishing, is with minnows, this including Lake Louisa, Lake MacDonald, Long Lake, and many smaller bodies of water. In addition to this comes the problem of minnowless fishing in the popular Ottawa River, where in many cases, minnows are all but a necessity.

The Hon. C. E. Pouliot, M.D., Provincial Minister for Game and Fisheries, has stated the request for the law was made by residents of the County. We know for a fact that the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association had nothing to do with any such request, nor were they consulted in any manner.

In any event, we understand the Department have plans for poisoning the majority of fishable waters in the County, re-stocking all the lakes, and then opening the fishing on a no-minnow basis after a three-year period. We feel the law would make sense and definitely gain the support of all sportsmen, as well as the population in general. However, as it stands at present, we feel it makes Little sense, and cannot see the logic behind it.

We feel it is in order to ask the local Minister, the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, for an explanation. Then it will be up to the general public at large to do as they wish in expressing pleasure or displeasure with the new law.

Signed:

Argenteuil Sportsman

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of Encyclopedia Canadiana

Wha was the first white man to climb the Rockies?

David Douglas, a Scottish botanist, spent several years in the Pacific Northwest between 1823 and 1833, exploring, discovering new varieties of trees and plants and collecting seeds and specimens. The great Douglas Firs of the Pacific slope were named in his honor. In little more than two years he had travelled about 10,000 miles on foot or horseback, by snowshoe, canoe or rowboat.

Hoping to return to England by way of Russia, he left the Columbia in 1833 and travelled north to Fort St. James by way of the Okanagan Valley, Fort Kamloops, Fort Alexandria, then by boat up the Fraser, Nechako and Stuart Rivers. He hoped to take a ship from Sitka to Siberia but abandoned his plan and returned to the Columbia, narrowly missing death when he lost his canoe, notes and equipment in the Fort George Canyon.

Douglas is the first white man known to have climbed a mountain in the Canadian Rockies, as well as the Cascades, Blue Mountains of Oregon and the two great Hawaiian peaks. It was while on a mountain-climbing expedition in Hawaii that he lost his life. He fell into a bullock pit and was gored to death by a trapped bullock. Some believe that he may have been a victim of foul play.

What was a Durham Boat?

The Durham boat was a craft used for river transport by the early settlers in Canada. It was similar to the "batteau" but larger, with a rounded bow, and was steered by means of a rudder. The boatmen stood on either side of the craft and each in turn pressed a stout pole against the river bed, walking from stem to stern along the gangways as the boat moved forward. At night the crew camped on the river bank. Passengers, moreover, had to provide their own food and blankets for their trips.

Exports now account for about one-fifth of Canada's national production, compared to almost one-third 30 years ago.

Pedestrian raps speed frenzy on town streets

The following letter, from a civic-minded townsman, indicates the spring speed mania is in early evidence around town. Reference is made to two areas which are perennial sore-spots for complaints. As far as we can see, the speed limit signs are erected, and the stop-signs plain to observe. But appreciating the writer's sincerity, The Watchman commends this letter to the attention of our police committee and town authorities.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Edior, The Watchman

Observance of traffic regulations in our town would appear to be almost entirely ignored. Cars and trucks travel far too fast for safety, especially on Main Street East and Bethany Road — fifty miles an hour is commonplace, and apparently permitted.

Whilst it is not our policy to find fault, we do think constructive criticism in this respect is very appropriate and timely.

In the interest of safety and civic pride, I feel that immediate steps should be taken to have suitable signs installed, showing very plainly the speed limit, also stop signs at various intersections, and that our police department be given instructions to see that the regulation is strictly adhered to — impose heavy fines on the offenders, for it is only by severe measures that this thoughtless practice will stop.

It is suggested also that a plain-clothes officer be hired, who, judging by the present careless attitude towards the regulations, would more than justify the expense involved in a very short time.

Let us co-operate and make our town a safe place for pedestrians.

Something to think about: how do you drive when passing through St. Eustache? Hats off to that town — her regulations are respected, which cannot be said of Lachute.

Yours respectfully,

"East Ender"

Of Many Things

Is Socialism done for?

The other night, when the political landslide took place, a friend turned to me and said, "Well . . . that's the end of socialism in Canada!" I shook my head.

Socialism doesn't die because a few CCF members are tossed out. I wish it did spell the end of political socialism, because I frankly admit that in my opinion political socialism is immoral, even though some very fine persons have preached it.

Anything good about socialism can be practiced any time, anywhere, by any of us. True believers in true socialism are very rare birds indeed — they are the persons who are ready, at any time, to give of their substance to others less fortunate. No laws are needed for this sort of thing.

Political socialism, on the other hand, proposes to level us all to the same standards by law or force. It leaves no need or room for charity. It legislates our moral life in that area. It robs Peter to pay Paul and does it all in the name of morality. To me it is a great sham and pretence, a horrible hoax, and I want no part of it. But I am not naive enough to think it is by any means dead.

As long as it may be preached by a politician that he will give to John out of the pocket of Joe, there'll be a certain number of Johns ready to vote for political socialism. As long as it can be made to sound like a political party dedicated to the poor and the unfortunate, there will be innocent, high-minded, well-meaning persons ready to work for the party.

But Canadian voters are about the best-informed voters in the world, relatively speaking. The fact that they've shown, so clearly, that they do not want political socialism is cause for celebration.

Not too much celebration, however, for both the Liberals and the Conservatives have been willing to use lures from the bait box of the socialists to hook voters. The urge for pie in the sky doesn't die in a hurry.

Two or three makes of very small cars, like roofed-in motorcycles or wingless planes, are on the market.

If they sell by hundreds — displacing the inflated tin-and-chrome monsters that clog the streets — will they help solve the parking problem in our cities?

In towns where there are no parking meters, and on non-metered streets of the bigger towns, they may ease the situation.

But they will do no good in metered Streets, because in fact the average city doesn't want to solve the parking problem. All the city wants is money from the meters.

The owners of miniature cars will soon find this out when they try to save space — and money — by parking two or three cars to a meter.

Three of the smallest cars will fit snugly in one meter space. Then what happens?

A policeman tells the owners of two of the cars to move along; or else he hands them tickets. In many cities, it is against the law to park more than one vehicle at a meter.

Even before the latest, smaller cars arrived on the market, there were many chariots of a size to fit two to a meter. But they weren't allowed to do it.

Every year or so the city fathers in the average town splutter about downtown parking garages and stiffer fines for meter violations.

There is a way ready to hand for adding dozens of parking spaces in the average middle-sized city. But instead of encouraging people to use this method, city fathers do the opposite. They punish people for it.

By this action they show quite clearly that meters are no longer there as a traffic device. They are revenue machines, planted there so that a greedy city can charge rent to the motoring public for use of the publicly-owned streets.

In dozens of cities, parking congestion threatens downtown merchants with loss of business. Many motorists, already soaked with four or five taxes, are fed up with paying rent for the use of their own streets.

One day businessmen and motorists together might come to their senses, throw the tax-hungry group out of office and elect aldermen who can offer a sane parking policy.

Milady votes for independent action

The ladies, bless 'em, have improved their lot a good deal since the days of the kitchen woodstove. Now bright, white appliances stand ready for their command; frozen foods are in the freezer; and little cans of pre-cooked goodies line the shelves.

Makes you wonder why they need a stove at all — a can-opener and a few candles to beat them might do fine!

Actually, all these kitchen improvements are a good thing. With fewer chores at the stove, milady has much more time to enjoy life, and who can blame her for taking advantage of progress? A wife should have independence; it makes for happiness all around.

Nowadays, if the modern wife wants to visit in the next city, she goes; if she feels a new hat coming on, she buys it without reference to the Master for every penny she wants to spend. That's financial independence. A wife likes to feel she hasn't lost all her independence to become "just a housewife".

You know, it's surprising how quickly this 'independent' feeling grows when she has her own Bank of Montreal savings account. She deposits small amounts regularly, and when she wants ready cash for a new hat or a pair of shoes, it's there at the B of M, with interest.

Why not visit the Lachute branch of the B of M soon? The accountant, George Sevigny, will be glad to show you how easy it is — and how profitable, to open a B of M savings account.

Sudden death of esteemed lady resident

The Late Mrs. R. C. Picken

Sadness has been cast over this community by the sudden passing of Mrs. Ruby Christina Picken, whose death occurred following a very brief illness. Taken sick on Saturday evening, Mrs. Picken passed away late Sunday night despite all possible care and medical aid.

Born in Beech Ridge in 1890, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Smith, Ruby was married in 1915 to Mr. Douglas Picken of Hamilton, Ont., by which union two children were born — Jean, Mrs. (Dr.) A. L. Danforth, of Watertown, N.Y., and Douglas, of Montreal. Her husband predeceased her in 1920. Following his death in Montreal, Mrs. Picken and children spent several years on the old homestead at Beech Ridge, then taking up residence on Bethany Street, Lachute, which has since been the family home.

Visitors at the Picken residence were many, and all who entered were made welcome.

Left to mourn her passing are her daughter, Jean, son, Douglas, three brothers, Lawrence, of Star City, Sask., Leslie, of Aurora, Ill., and Gordon, of Beech Ridge, together with one grandchild, Douglas Danforth, and a host of friends by whom she will be greatly missed.

The funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock in the Presbyterian Church, of which she was a member and ardent worker in the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies. The Rev. Jas. Armour officiated.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, and In Memoriam, etc., $1.00; 5 cents per type line extra for verses, with In Memoriam (estimate 8 words per type line).

BIRTHS

GILES — At the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, on Friday, April 11, 1958, to Mr. and Mrs. John D. Giles (née Mabel Acres), a son, Timothy Stephen.

KIRKWOOD — On April 8, 1958, to Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Kirkwood (née Marguerite MacRae), a daughter, 7 lbs. 14 ozs.

DEATHS

McGALLIARD — At the home of his niece, Mrs. A. F. Bothwell, 713 Main St., Lachute, Que., after a long illness, John McGalliard, in his 89th year. Funeral held from his late residence on April 16; interment in Avoca Cemetery.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

CAVANAGH — Mrs. Stanley Cavanagh and family wish to express heartfelt appreciation for floral and spiritual tributes, expressions of sympathy and other kindnesses received from relatives and friends, in the sudden death of the late Mayor P. S. Cavanagh.

GRAHAM — The family of the late Mrs. Andrew Graham wish to extend sincere thanks and appreciation to friends and neighbors, for kindnesses in their bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

MacTAVISH — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Margaret MacTavish, who was called home to rest on Easter Sunday, April 21, 1957. — Always loved by Gordon, Shirley and grandchildren, Ronnie and Julie.

"She cherished the Old Rugged Cross
'Til her trophy at last she lay down,
She clung to the Old Rugged Cross
And exchanged it at last for a crown."

The Late P. Stanley Cavanagh

Patrick Stanley Cavanagh, Mayor of Grenville, passed away suddenly in that community at the age of 46 years. He was the son of the late Patrick Cavanagh and Emily McMorin.

Born in Ireland, he came to Canada in his youth, and in later years took up residence in the Village of Grenville, of which he became Mayor, and at the time of his death was serving his fifth term. He was the permanent Justice of the Peace for the District of Terrebonne.

He served in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps as Sergeant-Major, and in Grenville he was office manager of the Arnold Farms Ltd. He was a member of the Notre Dame des Sept Douleurs R.C. Church at Grenville.

An ardent sportsman, he took keen interest in his summer cottage at Lake MacGillivary, where many local and district residents had joined him in fishing and hunting.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, the former Myrtle Edith Donaldson; four children, Ronald, Wayne, Carol Lynn (Kitty) and Sheila; a daughter-in-law and two grandchildren; also his mother, one sister and one brother, in Liverpool, England.

The funeral service was held from the Desforges Funeral Home on April 4 to Notre Dame des Sept Douleurs R.C. Church for Requiem High Mass.

The Legion, the Rotary Club and Hawkesbury Curling Club, of which he was an active member, formed a guard of honor at the church and at the cemetery, and the mayors of the County of Argenteuil acted as honorary pall-bearers.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Gilbert Arnold, Jr., Jeffrey Arnold, Roland Lemay, Shirley Mahon, Donat Lascelle and Roy Nixon.

Noticed among those in attendance were the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Notary J. O. Latour, M.P.-elect, and Mr. Bernard Gosselin. Walking in the funeral procession were representatives from the Hawkesbury Legion, Rotary and Curling clubs, fellow members of the Village Council and fellow mayors from many surrounding municipalities.

Interment was made at the parish cemetery. Semi-military honors were observed at the graveside, as the Legion played the Last Post.

The first steamboat to ply the St. Lawrence River was the "Accommodation", built at Montreal in 1809 by John Molson for river service down to Quebec.

County citizen laid to rest in birthplace, Avoca

The Late John McGalliard

Following an illness of some 16 months, Mr. John McGalliard passed away on Monday, April 14, at the home of his niece, Mrs. A. F. Bothwell, 713 Main Street, Lachute. He was in his 89th year.

Born in Avoca, Que., on June 15, 1869, he was the eldest child of the late Gideon McGalliard and his wife, Jane Craig. Of a family of five, he was the last surviving member.

Devoted to his home and to the working of his farm in Avoca, Mr. McGalliard nevertheless found time for community interests, both as councillor and mayor of the Township of Grenville and Augmentation. He has lived in Lachute since his retirement in 1939.

He is survived by several nieces and nephews — Mrs. J. N. Gillies, of New Carlisle, Que., Mrs. Bothwell and Mr. Gordon Dobbie, of Lachute, Mr. John Dobbie, of Harrington, Mrs. J. R. Shepherd and Mrs. R. H. Gale, both of North Bay, Ont.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at his late residence, conducted by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, with interment in the Avoca Protestant Cemetery.

Wor. Bro. H. D. Graves, who supervised the entire undertaking, was heartily congratulated, along with Bro. J. Maitland, head of the construction project. Others specially mentioned were Rt. Wor. Bro F. A. Brennian and Bro. Geo. Paul, both having contributed a great amount of time and ability to the undertaking. These four Masonic brothers each received a framed testimonial of appreciation, for which they expressed their thanks.

Most Wor. Bro. J. McLean Marshall, was also presented with a similar certificate in appreciation of his splendid work in the cause of Free Masonry and for his officiating role at this dedication service.

An outline of the work of building the Temple was given by Wor. Bro. Graves, who thanked all who had helped in any way, stating that they had been so many that he preferred not to mention any names, for fear of leaving some out.

Maitlands were also complimented on the tasty meal provided, and the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save the Queen.

Few people have ever heard of the worst fire disaster of World War II, the explosion of the munitions ship "Fort Stikine" in Bombay, India. The blast on April 14, 1944, the Reader's Digest reports, almost wiped out the port of Bombay, and left an estimated 1500 persons dead or missing. Twenty-seven ships were sunk or gutted at their piers. It took 8,000 men six months to clear wreckage and get the port working again. The cost of the disaster has been placed at more than a billion dollars.

Princess Margaret to visit Canada this summer

Ottawa (CP)—Princess Margaret's wish to visit Canada will come true in a big way this summer. Her month-long visit, starting with two weeks' participation in British Columbia's centennial celebrations, is to include a subsequent 15-day tour across Canada to the Atlantic coast, pausing at two national parks and at least 10 cities.

An Ottawa announcement said details still have to be worked out but the Queen's sister has approved an outline of the itinerary. She will be in B.C. from July 12 to 26, then pay a brief visit to Ottawa and have about the same amount of time in three major areas — the West, July 26-30; the central provinces, July 31 - August 5, including two days in Ottawa, and the Atlantic region, August 6-10.

Among places to be visited outside B.C. will be the Banff and Prince Albert national parks and the cities, Calgary, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Hamilton, Montreal, Quebec, Fredericton and Halifax. The Princess also will attend the Shakespearean festival at Stratford, Ont.

The announcement from Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office said formal and ceremonial events are being reduced to a minimum lest the schedule become too tiring. Another consideration, it said, was "the thought that Her Royal Highness should have a general glimpse of Canada, both urban and rural, at work and play in summer."

Ottawa wedding of interest to district friends

Summerby - Hill

The marriage of Dr. Mary Catherine Hill, of Montreal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Hill, of Ottawa, to Dr. John Hall Summerby, of Montreal, son of the late Prof. Robert Summerby of Macdonald College, and of Mrs. Summerby, Senneville, Que., took place recently in Dominion United Church, Ottawa. The Rev. Robert Hall, D.D., uncle of the bridegroom, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Maurice R. McLuhan. Mr. Melville S. Yeo played the wedding music, and spring flowers arranged with greenery were used as decorations.

The bride, given away by her father, was in a gown of hand-embroidered poult de soie, fashioned with a fitted bodice, having a scooped neckline appliqued with sequins and seed pearls, and long sleeves, and a very full skirt ending in a chapel train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of sequins and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white freesia.

Mrs. J. Gilbert Hill, of Montreal, as matron-of-honor for her sister-in-law, and Miss Ruth Merrill, of Toronto, and Miss Martha Horwood, of Sault Ste. Marie, as bridesmaids for their cousin, wore bouffant frocks of turquoise shantung, with matching bandeaux and carried bouquets of spring flowers.

Mr. Robert Summerby, of Brockville, acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Donald A. Hill, Dr. J. Gilbert Hill, brothers of the bride, Dr. Keith N. Drummond and Dr. Lindsay A. Graham, of Montreal.

The bride is a medical graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, and the bridegroom graduated from McGill University faculty of Medicine.

Catholic League elects officers

The regular monthly meeting of the Lachute Sub-Division of the Catholic Women's League was held last Sunday in l'Ecole Supérieure. In the absence of the president, Mrs. T. Dwyer, Vice-President Mrs. C. Robinson was in the chair.

The Rev. Father H. Conway, of St. Patrick's College, Ottawa, Director of the Lachute Sub-Division of the C.W.L. addressed the meeting, congratulating the group on their variety of activities and on the success of each venture, made possible only by the close co-operation of all members. He further observed that, in the five years of the League's operation here, a great deal had been accomplished in improving conditions for English-speaking Catholics. Father Conway encouraged the members to have their families attend the semi-monthly English mass, and stated that every family should be represented there. Special credit was given to the Catholic School Commission for their interest and action regarding education of English Catholic children. Father Conway closed by encouraging co-operation, in all activities and with other organizations, in furthering the ideals and principals of the League.

President, Mrs. C. Robinson; vice-president, Mrs. J. Lafleur; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. J. Martel; secretary, Mrs. C. Lowe; treasurer, Mrs. J. Lowe.

Councillors — Mrs. C. McGill, Mrs. F. Hanlon, Miss L. Lowe.

It was announced that the feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel is on April 26, and that all members should try and attend mass and communion on that day.

There being no further business, the meeting closed with the League Prayer, after which refreshments were served.

Home and School Association have available material to aid problems

Continuing a series of short articles designed to create public awareness and interest in the important educational work being carried on by the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations.

Every parent is familiar with the problems that arise from time to time in the educational development of their children. There are many, however, who are not aware that expert assistance is readily available for the solution of these problems.

The main purpose of the parent education committee of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations is to develop in parents an understanding of the normal growth and development of children. This is accomplished through close co-operation with the local home and school associations which sponsor special instruction and discussion sessions for parents. This gives fathers and mothers an opportunity to discuss areas of mutual concern in bringing up their children.

The program of the parent education committee is not directed at "problem children" or "problem parents" but is for everyone interested in the welfare of their children. This year they are sponsoring a total of 12 continuing discussion groups, composed of from 20 to 25 people each, meeting in weekly group sessions. In addition a large number of one-night sessions are held.

The work of the parent education committee is supported by the program committee which supplies, on request, program material to local associations. This committee works closely with all the other Quebec Federation committees, gathering material which is suitable for home and school meetings. The main sources of program material are educational journals and individual associations.

Braille Bibles at fractional cost

For the thousands of blind people in this country the Braille Bible is made available at a fraction of its cost by the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada.

The Braille alphabet and signs are composed of six dots arranged in 64 combinations, and the complete Bible is produced in 39 volumes. This is a shelf of books seven feet long, weighing 150 pounds. One ton of paper is required to print 15 Braille Bibles, and this special paper costs the Society about $400 a ton.

The printing of the Bible in Braille is done from 3,356 master plates impressed on the heavy paper, and these plates take one man eight years to prepare.

Braille in languages other than English is also printed by the Society. There are only two persons in the British Commonwealth who are able to make foreign language Braille plates, and these are both employed by the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Dom. life membership presented to old W.M.S. 'faithful' at Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The annual meeting of the Maple Avenue Baptist Mission Circle was held in the church on Tuesday evening last. Following are those elected to office:

Hon. president, Mrs. T. Morrow; president, Mrs. Mason Crosby; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. Kennedy; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Linton Tomalty.

Treasurer, Mrs. Robert Creswell. Secretary, Mrs. C. E. Prosser.

Following the business session a very special ceremony was conducted by Mrs. J. A. Campbell, Mrs. A. Kennedy and Mrs. N. E. Smillie, when one of the older members, Mrs. J. A. McKenzie, was presented with a Dominion life-membership and pin. Mrs. McKenzie has been a faithful member for many years, and the Circle members were pleased to honor her in this way.

Mrs. A. Kennedy was also presented with flowers for her faithfulness to the organization.

Missionary speaker from Korea heard at St. Andrews East

St. Andrews East — Miss Anne Davidson, missionary on furlough from Korea, was the guest speaker on Sunday evening, April 13, at the thank-offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church, St. Andrews East.

Miss Davidson was appointed to the Korea Church World Service in 1952 to assist in the work for widows and orphans, the Women's Missionary Society's contribution to relief in that country. Much of her work in Korea is done on local committees. One such body is now drafting the first law to protect children. No law as yet exists there for legal adoption. Another aspect of the work is the distribution of welfare goods which run to such odd items as 60,000 Dutch duck eggs.

"We can't expect democratic maturity in Korea yet," Miss Davidson says. "After the Japanese left, the people went back half a century for ideals to live by. Many of their leaders were killed in war. The country itself has been drained. We must give it time to re-establish the life of its people."

Miss Davidson expects to return to her work in Korea in August of this year.

Campaign week for Concerts Assoc'n April 21-26

Final details of the membership campaign of the Lachute Community Concerts Association, to be held beginning Monday, April 21, are well in hand — according to this year's president, Notary Simon Valois.

The campaign rally is billed for Monday evening in the dining room of the Windsor Hotel, Lachute, when Mme Sylvia Gervais, Columbia Artists representative and organizer, will be present and the canvassers will receive material for their annual membership drive.

The campaign will close provisionally on the following Saturday. Headquarters at Bedard Ltée, Main Street (by courtesy of the proprietor, Mr. J. E. Leonard) will be open during the entire week, for the daily reports of canvassers and for such help and information as they need.

Following the usual procedure, the executive will meet after results of the campaign are known, and will select next season's recitals in accordance with the Association's financial resources. . .

This is the fact of most immediate concern to local music-lovers, for the quality and popular appeal of next year's programs depends directly upon the budget; in other words, on the number of contributing members.

The cost of membership is unchanged — $6 for adults or $3 for students — and it is hoped there will be an encouraging enrolment in this non-profit community organization.

Corn for grain and silage

Ottawa — Corn hybrids used for grain or silage should be carefully chosen, because there is a wide variation among them and not all hybrids are equally good.

Among the most important factors to consider in choosing a hybrid are yield, maturity or adaptation, and standability. These are important whether the hybrid is to be used for grain or silage.

Ability to produce a high yield is essential, but it must be related to proper maturity. For example, a good silage hybrid should mature to the stage where the ears are in the late milk or dough condition at the time of cutting, which should be normally before the frost occurs. At this stage the corn contains about 70 per cent of moisture, which is just about right to make good silage. To have the corn reach the late milk or dough stage may mean choosing a somewhat earlier hybrid than some growers have been accustomed to using, but though this may mean some loss in bulk, the better maturity and ear quality will compensate for this loss and produce silage of higher feed value.

In the case of the hybrid to be used for grain, one should be chosen that will mature well in the average season. In eastern Ontario and southwestern Quebec the moisture content of the ears should be down to 25 to 30 per cent at harvest and in western Ontario 20 to 25 per cent of moisture. This is essential for safe crib storage. Properly matured corn will pick and husk easier than corn that is immature. The well adapted hybrid yields higher on the average than one that is too early or too late.

Standability is more important in grain corn than silage corn because it remains standing longer in the field before harvest. While most hybrids have good root strength and are resistant to lodging, they vary in resistance to stalk rot, which affects the lower part of the stalk. Stalk rot, and consequent stalk breakage, does not affect corn that is immature and therefore silage corn is harvested before it develops. But as corn matures stalk rot may cause affected plants to break over below the ear. Where this occurs the ears may be lost because the picker will not handle them or they may rot through contact with wet soil. While there are no known hybrids that are immune to stalk rot, there are some that are either more resistant or tolerant than others.

If a grower finds it difficult to choose from among the hybrids because of lack of knowledge concerning them, he should contact his local Agricultural Representative, or Experimental Farm officials for advice.

Agriculture exports declined in 1957

Forest products as a group retained first place among Canada's domestic exports by a wide margin in 1957, in spite of a slight decrease of about 4 per cent compared with 1956. With agricultural and vegetable products, according to a recent issue of "Foreign Trade", they were responsible for almost 50 per cent of total domestic exports last year. But agricultural products, exports of which were down 5 per cent from 1956, yielded second place to non-ferrous metals which accounted for over 20 per cent of the total.

The decline in agricultural and vegetable products was due mainly to the smaller sales of wheat (which continued to be the second leading single export) and other grains. Wheat sales fell by more than 25 per cent and the smaller decline in the group total resulted from increases in the export of seeds and tobacco.

The fall in exports of forest products and of agricultural and vegetable products were more than offset by increases in other groups, notably in iron and steel goods (up 10 per cent), non-ferrous metals (20 per cent), and non-metallic minerals (7 per cent).

Leaflet on control of grubs in turf

Turf damage by a certain type of white grub can be quite extensive in Eastern Canada and is a serious menace to lawns, parks, terraces, golf courses, cemeteries and ornamental gardens. A leaflet on the control of this pest has been prepared by Entomologist G. H. Hammond and can be obtained from the Entomology Division of the Science Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, Science Service Building, Carling Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

Work on poultry cross-breeding

Tests conducted at the Federal Experimental Farm at Fredericton, N.B., show that pullets obtained from crossing males of a broiler strain with females of certain dual-purpose strains may lay as many eggs as the maternal line. At the same time, the crossbred males may equal the paternal line in rate of growth. These results show interesting possibilities for poultry breeders, since some of the high egg-producing dual-purpose strains now available, when crossed with outstanding broiler strain males, might be suitable for the economical production of good broiler chicks, and the pullets might be suitable for layers where a dual-purpose type is desired.

ARE YOU CONDITIONING YOUR DRY COWS?

Many dairymen, seem to think that a dry cow, being a non-producer, is just that much nuisance. She has to be fed, cleaned, and cleaned out, for nothing. They feed her accordingly — throw her some straw, silage or a little poor hay. They may throw her a handful or two of some meal, to keep her quiet. . . And when she freshens they most likely get a small calf, or if the calf is normal, the cow has taken just that much more out of herself. They also are likely to have plenty of calving troubles — retained after-birth, caked udders, etc.

BUT IS SHE REALLY A NON-PRODUCER, as she seems to be? During the last two months before freshening, that cow SHOULD and if fed right, WILL be growing a calf at the rate of over a pound a day; and at the same time she should be adding as much to her own body to replace what she has given you in milk in the last lactation. That means she should be making over two pounds of weight each day. And that is all a STEER ON FULL FEED can do, so it is impossible for your dry cow to do it on straw, silage or poor hay!

Around 600 lbs. of DRY & FRESHENING Chow, depending on the size of the cow and her condition at the start of the dry period, plus lots of good Alfalfa or Clover hay, will do the job, and make you money even at Creamery prices.

Won't you start them on it today? Your order will have our prompt attention; and we deliver.

"Looking around for more business? The BNS can help you."

SHOULD I TAKE on other lines? Is now a good time to expand . . . or retrench? What are other businessmen in the same position doing? A businessman's success hinges on questions like these—questions that the BNS can help you answer.

Take the case of Joe Carruthers, for example. Joe's lakeside grocery flourished in the summertime, but in the winter it wasn't profitable. Joe wondered if it would be a good move to set up a lunch counter to cater to the ice fishermen who were on the lake every winter.

He went to his BNS branch for advice, and the manager promptly called other branches in similar resort areas. Quite a number reported thriving local businesses serving coffee and snacks to the ice fishermen. They even offered some specific suggestions on how to get started.

Joe's next step was to apply for a low-cost BNS loan, to pay for the necessary alterations to his store. Joe got the loan, and soon he was in business . . . a mighty profitable business, as it turned out.

Like Joe, you'll find that the BNS is ready to help you with many kinds of services and information. Drop in soon—the BNS would like to do business with you.

House or Home?

By NANCY CLEAVER

A house and a home are not always the same thing. There are families living in houses, some of them fine houses, some of them poor houses, which are not real homes. Just what are the qualities necessary for a house to become a home?

A home is started when two persons care enough for each other to think in terms of "we" and "ours", instead of "I" and "mine". It is built on mutual love and trust. A home is much more than a place to eat and sleep — it is a place where each member of the home finds happiness, security and a chance to grow.

In all good homes there is a sharing of work and of play between the husband and wife. The children have their part, too, in the tasks and the fun of the family group. The members of the family enjoy each other's company. Dad is more than the money-maker; Mother is not just a housekeeper; the children are not just "boarders."

A mother of a large family was asked how she ever managed to keep up with her work and still have time and energy to enjoy some leisure with her boys and girls. She answered quickly: "Each child has his daily task. When the day's work is over their father and I try to do something with the children which they all enjoy."

This family lived on a farm, and the problem of giving each child a chore was much easier than in a city home. Nevertheless, there are jobs in every household which boys and girls can do. The time to start children sharing in the work of a home is when they are young and eager.

One of the best things to be said about TV is that in many cases a common interest in TV programs has drawn members of the family together. Instead of the children going off in various directions, they are much more likely to stay home in the evening especially if their friends are made welcome. Homework should be completed first and this rule should be laid down early and rigidly adhered to.

Families need to play together as well as work together. Here again, the habit of doing things as a home group should be started early. It is too late for a father to wait until a boy is in his teens before taking him on his first fishing trip. What fun a little lad can have with his father, fishing on a Saturday afternoon! How much a dad is missing who does not give his son some of his play time!

Families can enjoy good times on walks in the woods, or by the lake, or along a country road. Just being together following the simplest of pursuits, builds a togetherness which is good and which is lasting.

The most important thing about a home is not the size of the house, the quality of the furnishings, or the convenient equipment. The most important thing is the family closeness. In a real home even a stranger can sense the bond which exists between members of a family. There are occasional conflicts which arise from the clash of personalities, but that is all a part of life in a group. But, because father and mother are united in their ideals about a home and their desires for their children, in spite of some friction between individuals, there should be an underlying affection and understanding in the family.

It seems rather sad that J. Howard Payne, who wrote "Home Sweet Home", was himself a wanderer, with no treasured memory of peaceful years under one roof. But he expressed a universal emotion when he wrote:

"Mid pleasures and palaces
though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble,
there's no place like home."

Two recipes for a spring delicacy

Maple Cookies

1 Cup shortening or butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 eggs well beaten, 6 tablespoons maple syrup, 1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring, 3 to 4 cups pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt.

How to Prepare. — Cream the shortening and blend with sugar. Add the eggs and mix thoroughly Stir in the maple syrup and vanilla. Sift and measure 2 cups of flour, sift again with the baking powder and salt; combine with the creamed mixture. Add as much of the remaining flour as is necessary to make a dough stiff enough to roll. Chill. Roll thin and cut in any shape. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a moderately hot oven (350°F.) for six to eight minutes.

(Makes about five dozen cookies.)

Maple Fudge

1½ Cups maple syrup, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup cream (15%), ½ cup broken nuts.

How to Prepare. — Put the syrup, sugar and cream in saucepan. Don't let the mixture boil until the sugar is dissolved. Then boil until the mixture forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water, or to 234°F. Cool the mixture to about 100°F. Beat until it is fairly thick. Add the broken nuts and pour in a greased pan. Mark in squares and cut when firm.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Spring Salad Bowl
Sweet Potato-Sausage Bake
Kale with Tomato
Cottage Cheese Cake
Coffee Tea Milk

All measurements are level, recipes proportioned to serve four to six.

Sweet Potato-Sausage Bake: Put 1 lb. sausage meat into a cold frying pan; stir with a fork to separate. Then saute until lightly browned. Stir to keep the pieces separate. Drain off the fat.

Meantime, peel and grate 6 large sweet potatoes. Oil a 3-pt. casserole. In it, arrange a layer of ⅓ of the grated potato. Dust with ½ tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper.

Cover the potato with a thin layer of the sausage meat. Repeat, making 3 layers of potato and 2 of sausage. Dust the top with ½ tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Add ½ cup hot water. Cover.

Bake 50 min. in a moderate oven, 325-350 deg. F.

Kale With Tomato: Wash 2 lbs. kale. Cut off and save the tender tops. Remove and discard all tough ends.

Peel and slice the remaining stalks. Cover with 1-in. boiling water. Add ½ tsp. salt. Slow-boil 20 min., or until tender. Then cut and add the tender tops, ½ cup boiling water and 1 (8 oz.) can seasoned tomato sauce. Cover; simmer 15 min., or until tender.

Serve "as is," or with grated cheese.

SUGGESTION OF THE CHEF

To make a thin creamy dressing to toss in a spring salad, beat together with a fork ¼ cup each not-sweet French dressing and mayonnaise, with 1 tsp. table mustard and 1 tbsp. chopped scallion.

Sardine Pizza

— Department of Fisheries of Canada photo

Just reach for a can of sardines, and you're headed for one of the tastiest main dishes or snacks anyone could wish for. According to the dictionary, a sardine is any tiny fish with rich flesh and weak bones suitable for preserving in oil. Very good are these little fish preserved in oil; however, they are also very good preserved in tomato sauce or in mustard sauce. In addition to their fine flavor, sardines are low in cost and high in food value, two qualities which make them ideal for use in luncheon and supper dishes such as the following two recommended by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries.

Sardine Pizza

2 (3¼ oz.) Cans Canadian sardines in oil, 1 cup biscuit mix, ½ cup milk, 1 cup old Cheddar cheese, grated, 1 (7½ oz.) can tomato sauce.

Drain and separate the sardines, reserving oil. Combine prepared biscuit mix with milk. Knead, then roll out and fit into a large, greased 9 or 10 inch pie plate. Flute edges of dough lightly; brush all over with oil from sardines. Arrange half the sardines on dough and sprinkle with half the grated cheese. Add tomato sauce, then sprinkle with remainder of cheese. Place rest of sardines on top of pie in spoke design. Bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) for 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Sardine Luncheon Sandwich

4 (3¼ oz.) Cans Canadian sardines in mustard sauce, ½ cup butter, 6 slices bread, 6 slices processed cheese, paprika.

Drain sardines, reserving 2 teaspoons of the mustard sauce. Soften butter and add to it the 2 teaspoons of sauce. Mix to spreading consistency; spread on bread. Place sardines on buttered bread and cover with cheese slices. Sprinkle with paprika. Place on baking sheet. Toast in hot oven (450°F.) for 8 to 10 minutes or until cheese melts. Serve hot. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Fashions

Citrus—in all its lovely, vibrant shades—tops the color card for spring and summer wear. Dull orange is the color of a sheer cotton voile overblouse, sleeveless and scoop-necked, that is worn over a camisole-topped pleated skirt. The latter is printed in orange, yellow and white tones. A bow of print is pulled through slits in the blouse to unify the two pieces.

New apple treats for coffee time

(Consumer Section)

If you have been looking for something good to serve with morning or evening coffee, look no further, for the Consumer Section has sent us two newly tested recipes for you. One, Applesauce Cinnamon Sandwich, is very quickly prepared as it's made from sliced bread and toasted in the waffle iron; the other, Apple Circles, starts with hot roll mix and ends in attractive, golden circles. Both snacks have a spicy, fresh apple flavor that blends perfectly with coffee — and milk, too!

Apple Circles

14-Ounce package hot roll mix, 3 medium apples, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Prepare hot roll mix according to directions given on package (or you can use your own recipe for roll dough). After dough has risen the first time, punch down, roll out on a lightly floured board into a circle ¼" thick. Cut out rounds with a 2½" biscuit cutter and set 2" apart on a lightly greased baking sheet. Pare, quarter and core apples, then cut into thin slices. Make a well in the centre of each round by pressing 6 apple slices into dough, leaving a ¼" ring around outside.

Mix sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle 1 teaspoon of mixture over apples. Cover and let rise in a warm place until dough is double in bulk — about 30 minutes. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) until "circles" are lightly browned — 12 to 15 minutes. Makes about 15 "circles".

Applesauce Circles:

Applesauce Cinnamon Sandwich

2 Slices bread, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinamon, 2 tablespoons applesauce.

Butter the bread. Sprinkle one slice with brown sugar and cinnamon. Cover with other slice to make a sandwich. Toast in waffle iron, using same temperature as that used for waffles. Remove when waffle pattern shows a golden brown. Spread with applesauce and serve hot. Sandwich may be served whole or cut in halves, quarters or "fingers".

Two women in 265 M.P.s — no change

By Carolyn Willett,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — When Parliament opens in May with an unprecedented number of Progressive Conservatives in government seats, there will be no changes in the women's section.

Only two women — both former members — made the grade March 31 and won seats in the 265-member House of Commons.

State Secretary Ellen Fairclough — appointed last year as the first woman federal cabinet minister — and Margaret Aitken both did themselves proud in the contest for votes.

The women, both Progressive Conservatives, topped the 10,000 mark in pluralities over male opponents. In Hamilton West, Mrs. Fairclough won handily with a plurality of 13,885, more than double the margin by which she won in 1957. In York-Humber, Toronto newspaper columnist Margaret Aitkin piled up a plurality of 15,082.

Small Number

The small number of women candidates — 21 among 831 candidates across the country — and the fact that only two were returned to Parliament, provides food for thought.

The Commons, along with provincial legislatures and elective municipal offices, have never been swamped with women members. One reason, of course, is that only a handful of women ever run for the posts.

And what happens to those who do make a bid for Parliament, for instance? Well, some people — including Charlotte Whitton, defeated Conservative candidate in Ottawa West — contend that women too often are put in the "slaughter-house ridings", meaning constituencies in which the party figures defeat is virtually certain, and where no man wants to run.

However, the capital city's former mayor gave Liberal candidate George McIlraith a close race and missed winning the seat — held by Mr. McIlraith since 1940 — by only 1,000.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

The safest (or most dangerous) feature of any automobile is the driver. But there are certain safety features that the manufacturer can build into his car. Here are some of the latest safety ideas incorporated in various new models.

Hoods are generally lower, enabling the driver to see both fenders without straining.

Many cars have dual headlights (either side by side or one over the other) which are said to give up to 50% more visibility.

Some station wagons have the third seat reversed. This is a good idea when you're travelling with small children; sudden stops are less dangerous.

One car has a radio selector switch on the floor. You can keep both hands on the wheel while changing stations.

Another car has a built-in "policeman". It sounds a warning when you pass a certain speed limit.

Most '58 automobiles have the "deep dish" steering wheel. It gives the driver better protection in case of a collision.

Dashboards have fewer knobs, less shiny surface area. Some are padded plastic that'll "give" upon impact.

NEVER WINS BUT NEVER DISCOURAGED

It was 25 years ago that Mrs. Lucy Cole Down of London, Ont., first ran for public office. She was defeated then and each of the other 25 times she has run for office since. Now 70, she is still not discouraged and will run in the civic election again this year. "I feel there should be more women on municipal bodies," she says.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for
The Lachute Watchman
By Carolyn Willett,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

All year small, sometimes hand-printed signs announce church teas and bargains in home baking. Now is the season for "daffodil" and "tulip" teas, with spring flowers for trimmings.

Usually, the teas and sales are held as fund-raising events — to make money for missionary work or to add to church facilities.

However, there seems to be some hard thinking going on among Ottawa church group leaders about the fund-raising events, as opposed to free-will giving.

A non-denominational organization, "The Women's Church Year," which is organized in several Ontario cities and one Quebec centre, contends that teas and sales become an obligation and as such tend to take away from the Christian spirit of giving.

This organization would have all methods of commercial fund raising replaced by voluntary giving to church organizations.

When an Ottawa newspaper approached a number of women leaders, opinions appeared to be split on the question of how to raise church funds.

Many women said they were in favor of voluntary giving, but they also said that getting a cake or cookies donation was easier than getting a cash donation, in spite of the fact that a housewife's baking might well cost her more than the product sells for.

Other leaders found that the co-operative effort of holding a tea or sale brought women together and broadened the idea of Christian fellowship in a church.

Which pretty well brings the question back to where it started — "to bake, or not to bake."

United Naggers

There was every indication it had to happen sometime. There's a women's group in England with the motto "Naggers of the World Unite."

Behind the motto is a local branch of the Angry Young Women's Association. While the term "angry young men" has been applied to a group of young British writers, these women have confined their writing to letters — urging the wives of British, American and Russian leaders to nag their husbands into organizing a summit conference to discuss peaceful solutions to world problems.

And perhaps the young women have something to chew on. Already five earth satellites have been launched to whirl in orbits far above the clotheslines.

More Readers

One-quarter of Ottawa's population or some 65,000 persons, are registered at the capital city's public libraries. A library report shows they borrowed an average of 13 books each last year.

QWI program for leadership course

Programs for this year's leadership course, "Facts, Fingers, Fun", conducted annually by the Quebec Women's Institutes at Macdonald College, have been distributed to all branches.

This course is held at the end of May. Some form of craft is always taught, and practical instruction and discussions arranged on topics connected with the effective functioning of an organization, with particular reference to the Women's Institute.

Attendance is limited to 40, and applications are already beginning to come in from all sections of the province.

"How can I get this message across to every married woman in the town?" an advertising agent asked a publicity man.

"Very simple", was the reply. "Just address letters to every married man in the town and mark them all 'Personal'."

At the Eastern Canadian Gymnastic Championships meet, held at Windsor, Ont., last Saturday, Lachute High School was represented by three boys — Reggie Stansfield, who participated in the Junior Men's class, Ronnie Cairns and Garry Cruise, who participated in the Novice Men's class.

In the Novice class 23 gymnasts from parts of the U.S.A. and Eastern Canada participated. Here Ronnie Cairns won four championships and came third in three others. Ronnie won the Still Rings championship, the Parallel Bars championship, the Freehand Callisthenics championship and the All-Round championship. Garry Cruise came second to Ronnie in the Still Rings, and fifth in the All-Round championship; also two local boys came second in the team championship, won by Windsor's representation of six men with 38 points to Lachute's 37½ points.

Reggie Stansfield won the Junior men's Pommel Horse championship and the High Bar championship. Reggie also came second in Parallel Bar, Still Rings, Long Horse and Freehand Callisthenics.

Altogether the boys brought home 15 awards, 6 gold medals, 6 silver medals and 3 bronze medals.

At the meet two directors from the University of Michigan told Mr. Arne Petersen, L.H.S. physical education instructor who accompanied the trio, that as soon as the three boys graduate from school a complete four-year scholarship, worth $1,500 a year, is waiting for all three boys.

Now the young athletes are looking forward to the Dominion championships being held at Vancouver, B.C., on July 3-4. However, it will cost approximately $1,000 to send them, and as it stands now there is not sufficient money available. Only if some interested citizens volunteer their financial aid, will these athletes be able to go and to bring honor to their school and town.

Cancer Society objective $4,000 for May 12 appeal

The Canadian Cancer Society, Argenteuil Section, is launching its annual appeal in the form of a one-day canvass on Monday, May 12 next. Objective for the County, to promote the activities of this organization both on a national and local plane, is $4,000.

President of the Argenteuil group is Dr. Jacques Castagner, of Brownsburg, while the campaign chairman is Gérard Lefebvre, of Lachute, with Col. E. Emmett as co-chairman.

Sod-turning ceremony at Baptist Church

Scene at a sod-turning ceremony, prelude to the building of a church-hall extension on the Lachute Baptist Church. The traditional rite was performed by Mr. Walter Wert, of Brownsburg R.R. 1, senior deacon and oldest living male member of the church, at a well attended gathering last Sunday evening. Standing with Mr. Wert above is the Rev. Kenneth R. Miller, B.A., B.Th. (right), pastor of the Lachute and Dalesville Baptist Churches.

W.I. Branches report activities, month of April

Arundel W.I. branch, with 16 members present, held a discussion on the semi-annual report, and a questionnaire on the W.I. handbook and "Do's and Don'ts" for Q.W.I.

Brownsburg branch held an auction of seeds, slips and bulbs.

Mr. Salm, manager of the Harrington Forest Farm, addressed the members on "Tree Characters" and discussed new scientific methods of Forestry as practised at Harrington. A beautiful colored film on the subject was shown.

Frontier branch held a contest on Home Economics. There were also short items on Education.

The program subject was Oddities and Comments.

Jerusalem-Bethany branch catered to a wedding, and sent flowers to sick members and Easter cards to shut-ins.

Lachute branch had a talk illustrated by colored film on Europe, by Miss H. Smith.

Pioneer branch presented a life-membership certificate to the past-president, Mrs. Maude Armstrong.

Plans were made for a military whist on April 29, at St. Andrews Golf Club.

Reports of the F.W.I.C. convention and County Board meeting were given and items about Easter were read.

Upper Lachute - East End, with 23 members and three guests present, had an exchange of slips and bulbs. Mr. A. Ogilvie gave an interesting talk on "How to Improve Home Surroundings."

A wedding is being catered for in May, and the luncheon at the W.I. annual convention.

Attractions for grandstand shows at Spring Fair

An entertainment attraction procured by Lachute Lions Club for Thursday, June 12, the first night of the 1958 Spring Fair, is no other than "Le Grand Robert", renowned mesmerist who has been seen a number of times by local viewers on television.

Lachute Lions had undertaken to sponsor the grandstand entertainment Thursday evening, and with the realization that their presentation had to be "something good", they negotiated and signed a contract for this sure-fire attraction — confident that "Le Grand Robert" will be a thriller for the grandstand crowd.

The Lachute Branch of the Canadian Legion plans to hold a series of events on Friday, among which will be a teen-age Rock-and-Roll contest, and the crowning of the Teen-age Queen for Lachute — the latter being part of the Legion drawing in support of the teen-age dances in the Lachute Memorial Hall.

The big event planned by the Legion will be on Saturday, with a Horse Drawing Contest. Bill Brass and Watson Berry are in charge of arrangements, and it is reported there are 27 teams already entered for this event.

Ayers personnel active on Textile Conference details

First industrial convention in Montreal's newest, biggest hotel set for May 6-7-8

Lachute is playing quite an active part in the Canadian Textile Conference, to be held May 6-7-8 at the Queen-Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal.

Here are some interesting facts about this event: Organizing the Canadian Textile Conference has taken almost two years, and the labor of some 125 people. It will be the first industrial convention to be staged at the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel. Québec and Ontario textile communities are staging local events to coincide with the Conference.

Some 800 delegates are expected to attend the Conference, while 26 top Canadian models will be used during the Conference fashion shows.

As regards participation by the local Ayers industry in this event, it is noted that several members of the management and personnel have accepted organizational and committee jobs — on the registration, displays, fashion shows and panel discussions. In the Industrial Relations panel discussion, Roger Regimbal, personnel manager here, will be the speaker; his subject is "Know the handicaps on both sides."

Big theme of this big conference is: "Canadian Textiles for Canadians"; and in an effort to stress this slogan where it counts, namely, at the point of sale, it is expected the Conference and Canadian goods will receive prominence in the consumer's eye wherever fabrics and textiles are on the market. Garments made from Canadian textiles will be identified as such. Dealers in Lachute are likewise being approached to feature the "Buy Canadian" theme during this conference.

To counsel on academic training

The Minister of Defence, the Hon. George L. Pearkes, has recently invited Monsignor Pierre Decary, P.D., rector of Ste. Therese Seminary and president of the Fédération of Classical Colleges of this province, to become a member of the advisory committee for the colleges of armed forces all over Canada. This Commission has been appointed to counsel the Department of Defence on the academic aspects of its three military colleges — St. Johns, Que., Kingston, Ont., and Royal Roads, Victoria, B.C.

GETTING ALONG

Scottish historian Dr. Annie Dunlop, lecturing in Montreal, said Scotland can set an example when it comes to world politics.

Says Dr. Dunlop: If Scotland can learn to live with England — and it has — there's no reason why the rest of the world can't get along too!

District campaign this week for Community Concerts membership

3 Students qualify for Ont.-Quebec oratory finals

Three juvenile orators sponsored by Lachute Lions Club emerged successfully from the district Public Speaking eliminations last Saturday at St. Lambert, to qualify for the Ontario-Quebec finals to be held May 3 at Trenton.

The three local speakers were Hélène Lorange of the local St. Alexandre School; Reynald Bell, from l'Ecole Supérieure; and Roland Gow, from Lachute High School. A fourth contender from Lachute, Lois Silverson, made a worthy effort but lost by 0½% rating to Carolyn Vince of St. Lambert. Roland Gow met competition from Richard McCow of Cowansville and Peter Humphries of St. Lambert. The French-speaking entrants were incontested; they acquitted themselves very creditably and won warm commendation, however.

Miss Lorange chose as her subject, "Television", while Reynald Bell spoke on "The Importance of Education" and Roland Gow on "An Atlantic Crossing."

The foursome from Lachute were accompanied by Gerard Lefebvre, Lions Club committeeman on this project. The contest was held at St. Barnabas Anglican Church, St. Lambert. On their return trip through Montreal they stopped off for a tour of inspection through the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel, arranged by Mr. Lefebvre for the interest of his young protégés.

The cornerstone of Canada's parliament buildings was laid in 1860 by the then Prince of Wales, who later became King Edward VII.

Suspects commit theft, seek bunk in police cells

Notified of the finding of two valises last week stowed underneath the CPR platform near the express office, Police Chief F Trépanier investigated and found contents of an unusual nature, besides a wallet with papers connecting the baggage with two young transients who had sought lodging in the police cells overnight.

The suitcases were found on Tuesday around 11.30 a.m. It happened that the two transients turned up again Tuesday night for accommodation at police headquarters. They were detained and questioned Wednesday morning, and eventually admitted taking the suitcases and contents from "a big house" in Oka.

The haul was easily identified as the property of Mr. Warwick Chipman, a retired ex-diplomat residing at Oka. The possessions included antique silverware, foreign coinage, clothing and an engraved silver box inscribed "Señor Warwick Chipman" and expressing appreciation from the Argentine government.

The wallet, and a birth certificate, belonged to one of the youths who had misappropriated these valuables — Gerald Sylvain, 19, of Sherbrooke. Sylvain and his companion, Germain Lebel, 20, were taken in charge by Sgt. Det. Theoret of St. Eustache. Escorted to the scene of the theft at Oka, they were then charged with breaking and entering before a Justice of the Peace at St. Jerome, and detained in jail pending the hearing.

Canvassers optimistic for increased enrolment with new subscribers

A highly promising rally of campaign workers, Monday evening in the Windsor Hotel, augured well for an uptrend in the popularity of Community Concerts — as canvassers are busy this week and optimistic for an increased membership.

The luncheon meeting was chaired by the president, Notary Simon Valois, who welcomed all workers in this 11th annual campaign of the Association.

Speakers included the organizer and representative of Columbia Artists, Mme Sylvia Gervais, of Sherbrooke, Que., also Miss Juliette Rodrigue, co-chairman of the campaign, and Willard M. Steeves, who has been treasurer since the inception of the movement here in Lachute.

The attendance included canvassers from Lachute and a few from the surrounding districts; the gathering numbered over 40 persons, and the general outlook was enthusiastic.

Mme Gervais, who has been campaign chairman in her own community (Sherbrooke) for the past seven years, stressed the importance of personal solicitation, and the desirability of enrolling young members — the students of today who "will be tomorrow's audience". Two factors in Community Concerts membership are — to enrich our knowledge of music, and to enjoy the entertainment of top artists.

Miss Juliette Rodrigue instilled in the gathering some of her own notable enthusiasm. While regretting the unavoidable absence of her co-chairman, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, she gave assurance of the latter's encouragement and active participation in the campaign. Headquarters of the campaign are at Bedard Ltée, Main Street, where the canvassers are asked to report (tel. LO 2-5055) after each day during the week.

Mr. Steeves, treasurer, reported a small balance in the treasury. He stressed that, with 30 canvassers each enrolling three or four new subscribers in addition to renewals, the Society should have a $3,000 budget to finance three popular, first-rate concerts next season.

The president, in conclusion, voiced a sentiment that appeared unanimous at this meeting — expressing appreciation for the tireless interest of Miss Juliette Rodrigue, not only as corresponding secretary to the Association, but as the prime motive force of this local enterprise over the years.

The campaign, aiming at an enrolment of between 400 and 500 members, is continuing this week. An appraisal of the returns will be made on its conclusion Saturday night.

Daylight Saving effective Sunday

You'll miss one hour's sleep this coming Saturday — but better to set the clocks ahead at midnight, than to neglect the matter and miss a good sermon Sunday morning. . . Be wise, and you won't be late for church!

Daylight Saving Time, effective this week-end, will afford longer evenings for outdoor leisure. It indicates the arrival of spring, just as surely as the robbins and the budding lilacs. Generally speaking, it is a welcome signpost on the year's journey.

Named president of hotel concern

Perhaps the most dreadful result of the sudden loss of eyesight is that it often leaves the person concerned in a state of depression and bewilderment. Dalesville sawmill burned; dates back over a century

Fire of unknown origin razed the Campbell sawmill at Dalesville last Thursday evening. The outbreak, starting below the slab box on the south side of the mill, was first seen by Russell Seale of Louisa, who drove to Urbain Tomalty's store in Dalesville Village and immediately raised the alarm, also advising the proprietor, Arthur Campbell, of Brownsburg, by telephone.

Brownsburg volunteer fire brigade hurried to the scene, also Paul Richer, fire ranger at St. Michel, who came with his portable pump on being notified of a bush fire in the vicinity. However, the blaze spread so rapidly that efforts were in vain to save the building and machinery, which were totally destroyed with a certain quantity of sawn lumber — the loss being estimated between $20,000 and $25,000. Many willing helpers assisted the firefighters and extinguished fires caused by flying sparks igniting the surroundings.

The loss is partly covered by insurance. It is understood the proprietor, Mr. J. Arthur Campbell intends to rebuild the mill. There is a large accumulation of logs at the site for sawing.

* * *

The demolished Campbell Mill is something of a landmark, having been built by the owner's father in 1904. The original Dalesville mill, however, dates back well over a century; it was erected in 1852 as a saw-and grist mill by Daniel Dale from whom the settlement took its name. This mill, situated higher up the stream just west of the highway was sold to one named Henry, then to McGee, and in 1870 to John Campbell. He moved operations downstream to the present site in 1904, and on the death of John Campbell in 1909, the business was taken over by his son, the present owner.

Sawmill fire at Dalesville

Ruins left by a fire last Thursday evening which wiped out the Campbell sawmill at Dalesville, a familiar scene to residents and summer resort-dwellers who pass this spot on the highway. The smouldering structure and machinery are seen in a blackened pile, with sawlogs to the left and dam providing water power for the mill at the right. (See story on this page.)

Continuing a series of short articles designed to create public awareness and interest in the important educational work being carried on by the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations.

Improvements could be made in public school education in Quebec if more money were available, says Douglas Walkington, chairman of the school finance committee of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations.

Some areas which could be improved upon, he points out, are teachers salaries and training, school buildings, and special classes for handicapped children. All such innovations depend on the public and their approval of the spending of more money for education in the province of Quebec.

The finance committee keeps close contact with the financing of education and is available for consultation with local home and school groups throughout the province on financial problems. Recently their efforts have been devoted almost entirely to planning and participation at the Canadian Conference on Education held recently in Ottawa and the forthcoming annual meeting of the Quebec Federation of Home and School associations in Montreal on May 2 and 3.

On studying the results of the Canadian Conference on Education the committee found that financial problems in Quebec as well as in other provinces require immediate attention. For one thing the method of reporting educational statistics by the various local school boards is inadequate; often it is very difficult to obtain even basic financial information.

Another problem which must always be considered is the rising cost of education. For example in 1946, 2.25% of the gross national product was used for education while in 1957, 3.2% was needed. It is estimated that by 1965, 4% of the gross national product will be needed to finance education at all levels.

Mr. Walkington emphasized, however, that whatever the amount spent in our province the results have been at least as good as those of any other public education system in Canada.

Premier adamant on financial aid to universities

Quebec (CP) — Premier Duplessis indicated he will not back off the firm position he has taken against more financial aid for universities and their students.

Asked at his press conference whether he was considering a brief submitted this year by student associations at the province's six universities, he gave no direct answer but stated:

"I will never be disposed to help those who don't help themselves. Their (the students) situation today is infinitely easier that it was years ago."

The Premier has been under pressure to hear the students' pleas. A one-day boycott of classes was staged at five universities and three Montreal students have appeared at his office each week-day since March 7 trying to get him to agree to meet a student delegation. This week the three ran their total of refusals to 28.

Spinning

Your leaders are another thing that can make a pleasant day of fishing turn into a nightmare. Most leaders on the market are either plain wire or nylon-covered; they are pretty stiff and rob your lures of a lot of action. Make your own with Monofilament line and swivels with snap fasteners. With the line spinning or coiling onto your reel, the leader must be flexible enough to let your baits ride level and not turn over. The swivels run free at all times; try working them in your hands before you start fishing. Or you can use plastic keel-heart sinkers, if you are having trouble with your baits turning. But as a rule these will not be necessary. Cut your leaders at various lengths; sometimes the length makes a very big difference in the action of the baits.

You can also make yourself a few spinners and spoons, to give you just that much more pleasure out of fishing. These can be made from numerous types of materials. An old kitchen spoon makes a very good wobbler and a small twisting wobbler. Cut the spoon off from the handle; sand all ragged pieces off; drill two holes, one in each end of the spoon; insert split rings; put your hook in one end, your swivel and snap-on in the other; paint it — and you have a good bait.

The handle part can be twisted a little to give it a revolving action, finish off as the wobbler, and you have another type of bait. These are good as I've tried them a lot, and taken good fish on them.

Use single hooks on all your spinning lures, they don't retard the action of your lures as much as the treble, and are better for untangling from weeds, brush, etc.

You will be surprised at the number of lures you can make out of materials kicking around your house. I've even tried clam shells and found them good! The only drawback to these, they are so brittle, and they can't be used in shallow water. But there are a lot of things that will make baits. If you have a big cork, round it out; cut a big V across the cork; press your hook through the cork; bind some light wire around to hold in place; paint any color — and you have a "dream" of a surface bait. Keep it working on the top of the water and watch the Bass come and get it! Another is made of fine wire. Put a button on, then a colored bead, then another button, and so on. Don't get the buttons all in the same eye as it will just pull through the water, but having he wire in different holes gives it a wonderful action. You may have to put on a couple of beads between each button, but you'll find this out yourself. . . A small piece of copper pipe about as long as your hook; flatten the end nearest the bend, not too much; leave a slit that the water can get out of. Just flip it out and watch the retrieve; there will be a bunch of bubbles following right along with the bait — and if you don't think this is disturbing to Bass, don't use it!

As you can see by this, there are hundreds of doo-dads you can use, and give yourself a lot of fun doing it. . . Some old inner tube cut fine and wrapped around the end of the hook makes a very attractive bait, and you don't have to use a spinner ahead of it, a few split-shot of different sizes on a hook makes another one. The big shot goes up at the head of the hook; and grade it down. Paint it, and you have another.

There is sure to be some bits of cedar hanging around and these will make you some very good spinning plugs. You'll have to fool around with the spoon on the lip, but any old tin will do the trick; single hooks and snap-swivels, screw-eyes. You have unlimited color displays. A bit of fine mosquito netting (wire) and you can put on scale finish to give them that "extra" look.

Use your streamer flies with the spinning outfit, just put on split-shot at the shank of the fly, and you have more lures.

Another way is to wrap lead wire around the body of the fly, you won't get the action from a weighted fly that you do from the others, but a little action on the rod-tip will more than make up for any deficiency in the fly.

This does not cover Spinning in any great degree, as you must all know of dozens of ways of making baits that I haven't put down on this list. Just remember that fishing is a sport — and to me, a very great sport. It isn't the number of fish you can get, but the way in which you can get them. After awhile you will be using barbless hooks, so you will be wanting to let the fish go back again. To me, that is the greatest thrill you can get: beat a fish in his own environment and then return him for another day. . . Anyone doing this, in my opinion is a SPORTSMAN and a FISHERMAN!

Bowling tournament champion

Despite a brilliant start with a 171 score, Jim Duncan ceded the championship laurels to Marcel Brunette, who outscored Jim's 39-point lead to mark 168 against 119 in the second encounter, and chalked up a 497-409 supremacy in the third. Duncan's bad luck in the last two rounds made Brunette an easy winner.

Mayor Léopold Carrière was on hand for the grand finals Saturday at the Bolodrome, and presented the trophy to Marcel Brunette as the season's local champion.

Brunette had eliminated all top-scorers at the Bolodrome in the following order—Guy Pager, Hervé Lortie, Jean-Paul Brodeur, Hubert Viau, Denis Lauzon, and finally, Jim Duncan. He really excelled himself in registering a 173.16 average for 18 games, with triple scores of 447, 570, 476, 517, 623 and 497.

Jim Duncan has attained the finals with a fine string of triumphs, including his victory over one of the topmost local performers, Bud Langille. Bud had scored a 562 triple in his climb up the ladder. Another notable scorer was Denis Lauzon, with a 245 single.

Many spectators were on hand to view this exciting climax to the championship race, and to cheer their favorite to top achievement.

Fish and Game authorities heard at meeting of Argenteuil Association

An enthusiastic meeting of the Fish and Game Protective Association was held on Monday with well over 100 members in attendance to hear two outstanding men in the fishing and hunting field, in the persons of Dr. G. Provost and Mr. Paul Provencher, of the Quebec North Shore and the Ontario Paper Companies.

Dr. G. Provost answered many questions on the minnow situation, which will be discussed next week in detail in this paper. He also promised that if he received co-operation, he would supply a sizeable percentage of production at the St. Faustin Matchery.

It was planned to hold a fish derby at Lake Louisa on May 24, sponsored by the Association.

To highlight the evening Mr. Paul Provencher gave an interesting account of a few of his experiences in the outdoors. He narrated his own films in a manner only a man with his long experience could master.

A question and answer period was held by the district Game Wardens, Gordon Cooke, Fernando Lamarche and Adelard Gagné, and also by the Department Inspector, Mr. LaRuche.

The annual banquet and final games will be featured at the Lachute United Church Bowling League next Monday evening — the dinner to commence at 6.30 p.m.

The league-champion Beaver team (Miss Margaret Gordon) have also earned a place in the finals, by defeating their year-long rivals, the Teenagers (Glen Swail). The other finalist, St. Pat's (Miss Gladys Davis) had to defeat two other foursomes on Monday in order to enter the final.

After the games, prizes will be presented to the winners and league champions.

Guides-Brownies held successful crafts exhibit

The exhibit of hobby crafts held last Saturday afternoon, in Brownsburg High School by the Rangers, Guides and Brownies of the Argenteuil Division, proved very successful. The school gymnasium was well filled with girls, parents and friends, who considered the articles on exhibit well worth attention.

The Guide Companies entertained with several Guide songs. An excellent film, "The Wider World", in color, showed activities of Girl Guides in other countries.

Dolls — Swallow Patrol of Brownsburg Guides, for a doll dressed as a Scotch lassie, and Canary Patrol of Brownsburg Guides, for a doll dressed as an Eskimo mother with baby on her back.

Pencil Sketches by Rangers — Linda Graham, of Brownsburg, and Heather Anne Lessard, of Grenville.

Snapshots — Rangers Judy Donaldson and Virginia Helmer, of Brownsburg.

Judging of the art work and snapshots was done by Miss Lila Primmerman, of Brownsburg, and Mr. Robert White, of Calumet. Mrs. Joseph Martin and Mrs. K. Bourne, of Brownsburg, judged the dolls.

Sports greats from "Down Under"

By Gerald Lougheed, Canadian Press Staff Writer

It seems there's no end to the amazing list of sporting achievements coming out of Australia.

The country's mastery over world tennis is unquestioned. Australia's successful defence of the Davis Cup against the United States in December proved that.

And although John Landy's time for running the mile — three minutes 58 seconds — was eclipsed by Britain's Derek Ibbotson, the Australian still holds the world record for the distance because Ibbotson's mark of 3:57.2 still hasn't been recognized officially.

A few weeks ago a 19-year-old Australian, Merv Lincoln, became the youngest runner ever to complete the mile in less than four minutes. Showing it was no fluke, he turned the trick again just a week later when he and his closest competitor — Jim Bailey, another Aussie — both hit the finish line under four minutes.

Late in February the Australian national swimming championships were held and 14 world records were broken. If the International Swimming Federation recognizes the times it will mean that the Australians hold all the men's world free-style records as well as a few in the women's division.

Compact Thoroughbred

As if that weren't enough for a country of 10,000,000 population — sports-mad Australians are all excited over a new hero — an ungainly-looking animal named Tulloch who has a knack of winning horse races.

Tulloch looks anything but a thoroughbred champion. He is slightly sway-backed, stands little more than 15 hands high and is compactly built.

He hasn't the long, lean look of the late Phar Lap, who has been acclaimed as Australia's greatest gift to racing but whose exploits are being overshadowed by this ugly duckling.

Last November Tulloch established an Australian turf record by winning three derbies — the Australian Jockey Club, Victoria and Queensland events, a feat which evaded the great Phar Lap.

In the Queensland, Tulloch was 15 lengths behind on the back stretch but rallied to win by seven lengths. He was such a favorite that most bookmakers refused bets on him.

During the Caulfield Cup, one of Australia's feature races, Tulloch was third from last in a field of 17 going around the final turn and boxed in by a half-dozen rivals.

His jockey applied the whip and Tulloch broke loose. Sailing between horses he smashed to a four-length victory in the Australian record time of 2:26.9 for the mile and a half.

Tulloch has won nine races in a row and earned about $150,000, with more than six months to go as a three-year-old. Australia's birthday date for equines is August 1 instead of January 1 as in North America.

Playoffs staged in Anglican bowling league

First Round

Victorias 6	Swallows 4
Spinners 6	Spares 4
Comets 20	Rockets 5

Second Round

Spinners 11	Victorias 8

Finals

This proved to be the most exciting game of the evening. The Comets emerging the winner by only one point.

Final Score was —

Comets 9	Spinners 8

The distribution of prizes was made by the chairman, Mr. W. Shearsmith, to the following —

League Champions 1957-58 — Stars: G. Silverson (skip), Mrs. A. Neill, Mrs. E. Morrow, Mrs. L. Hodge.

Third Position — Spinners: Mr. E. Gow (skip), Mr. D. Brown, Mrs. E. Evans, Mrs. G. Dougall.

The man drove his sleek, powerful car into the filling station. "Fill 'er up," he called to the attendant.

After a while the attendant called to him. "Better shut your engine off . . . you're gaining on me."

Football hopefuls seek contracts on Canadian teams

By Milt McPhail, Canadian Press Staff Writer

At last count, about 25 U.S. college stars drafted by National Football League clubs had passed up pro offers at home to sign with Canadian teams.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers grabbed seven players drafted by NFL teams. They include end Willard Dewveall from Southern Methodist University, second draft choice of the Chicago Bears; tackle Frank Rigney from the University of Iowa, third pick of Philadelphia Eagles; and University of Michigan quarterback Jim Van Pelt, fifth draft choice of Washington Redskins.

Tackle Francis Woidzik from the University of Buffalo and halfback Bob Mulgado of Arizona State College are two other highly-rated college players who inked Canadian contracts. Woidzik, fifth draft choice of Los Angeles, signed with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Mulgado, fifth pick of Philadephia, took an offer from Saskatchewan Rough-riders.

Several more U.S. college players not picked in the NFL draft signed contracts with Canadian teams during the winter. This list includes Jim Bakhtiar, an all-American halfback from University of West Virginia, who will play with Calgary Stampeders and John Harris, a fleet back from Santa Monica, Calif., grabbed by Toronto Argonauts.

But it's not all one-way traffic. Former all-America guard Bill Glass, with Saskatchewan last year, was recently released to sign with Detroit Lions. Winnipeg guard John Michels, another import, has signed as line coach for Texas A. & M.

"Our Students' Council have again been given the honor by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada of sponsoring an International Gymnastic Meet.

"Gymnasts are expected from U.S.A., Mexico, Cuba and Canada, with last year's winner, Nino Mariani of Michigan University, as one of the favorites. Stiff opposition is expected from the two Cuban entries, and also from Reggie Stansfield of Lachute, who last year captured the Eastern Canadian championship.

"Gymnastics was once described by a leading statesman as 'More than an Art, it is beautiful like a ballet, requires the strength of a bull and the daring of a race driver'.

"It all looks like an outstanding meet, and a full house is expected. Tickets at $1 are now on sale at the school and at Cliff Cunningham's store on Main Street.

"Date: Saturday, April 26, 1958.

"Time: 7.30 p.m.

"Place: Lachute High School Auditorium."

"Canadian textiles for Canadians"

THE CANADIAN TEXTILE industry is joining, on May 6-7-8, in a great co-operative effort. On those three days all segments of this great enterprise will meet together in the newly-opened Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, to discuss problems of the industry, to demonstrate its products and to show to the people of Canada the great place this industry holds in the economy of the nation.

Lachute may be regarded as typical of the many communities whose welfare hinges largely on the prosperity of textiles. If one can conjure a gloomy picture of this town with its textile mills shut down, and the stark problem of interrupted incomes causing havoc in bright homes and happy families — one can realize how intimately Lachute is concerned with the stability of this major industry.

Multiply this by hundreds, and its importance in the Canadian economy is readily realized.

The Canadian textile industry is most vulnerable to the inroads of foreign competition; there is no other threat more formidable to its sound progress. And with this conviction clear and plain, the theme of the coming conference — "Canadian Textiles for Canadians" — has still greater emphasis. The popularity of our textiles is being consistently promoted beyond the home market. Here, at the scene of their production, we need no convincing on the score of quality. But if we fail to show our preference for Canadian goods, we not only set an unworthy example, but we break faith with one of our prime obligations. . . When it comes to textiles, let us lose no opportunity to BUY and BOOST Canadian!

Enroll this week for Community Concerts

THIS WEEK the Lachute Community Concert Association is holding its eleventh annual campaign for members, for the purpose of assuring a series of concerts by world-famous artists during the coming season.

Every community is improved by the advantages of schools, libraries, churches, and organizations of a cultural nature. The availability of fine music presented by renowned musicians is another advantage which adds to the prestige and residential appeal of a town. Such cultural assets are valued by thinking people as one of the important elements of our national heritage.

Community Concerts has made music a living thing in the community, rather than a treasure to be kept under glass in a museum. In Community Concerts everyone participates and enjoys the benefits of good music, not just a select few.

The Community Concert Association conducts a one-week membership campaign, during which those interested in music of all kinds may join for the mutual benefit of all. This creates a closed association and a fund in the bank with which to buy artists. There is no profit and no loss. The local committee selects the artists for the season and democratically represents the whole membership. Thus both the desired "stars" and the desired music are obtained. Whether the program is a bargain or costly, the cost to each member is the same.

Concerts have become an established institution under this plan in over a thousand communities of all sizes on this continent.

It is to the advantage of Lachute as a progressive and pleasant place to live — and it is to the immeasurable advantage of our youthful and our adult citizens — to make Community Concerts still bigger and better. We urge all present members to renew their subscriptions, and we commend this enterprise to the support of our newcomers and all others appreciative of fine entertainment.

To avert possible tragedies

TWO THREE-YEAR-OLD boys were suffocated recently in a refrigerator stored in the basement of a duplex near their homes in Lachine. . . This tragedy has prompted Canadian refrigerator manufacturers to step up their campaign to prevent children becoming trapped in abandoned ice boxes and refrigerators.

Appliance servicemen and purchasers of new refrigerators are being urged to remove doors, lids or latches from old cabinets before discarding them. Precautionary measures include reminders to dealers, and warning stickers which are placed inside new Canadian refrigerators.

"There are some 3,400,000 ice boxes and refrigerators in use in Canada today," said R. A. Phillips, chairman of Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' household refrigeration section. "About 100,000 old units are thrown out each year, and the old cabinets usually wind up in summer camps, backyards, basements or garages." Mr. Phillips warned that this hazard "also applies to trunks, chests and other airtight containers as well as iceboxes and refrigerators. Any cabinet being sold for scrap should be completely destroyed. Where a cabinet is being held for resale or temporary storage, then the doors, lids or latches should be removed. If this is not feasible, then the cabinet should at least be placed with its doors against a wall.

While there have been comparatively few deaths from this cause, one must fully recognize the danger involved. If these simple precautions can but save the life of one child, the widespread warnings will be well repaid.

"Blunt instrument" — How soon obsolete?

No, these are not the words of a company president, nor yet of any other representative of management — says "Industry", bulletin of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. These words come from one Mr. Alfred Robens. And Mr. Robens, for the record, was a union official until his election as a socialist member of the British House of Commons a dozen years ago. Now a leading member of the Labor party's 'shadow cabinet' (and as such a probable Minister of Labor should his party win the next election), he may be said to speak with some authority on the subject of strikes.

But Mr. Roben's pungent statement is of interest to Canadians right now for reasons other than its source. Pulp and paper workers in British Columbia in particular can speak feelingly of the "dangerous propensities" to which he referred.

They have but lately returned to work after a strike lasting nearly three months; returned on terms hardly more favorable than those offered in the first place. The essential difference, of course, was that a settlement which could have been made in November with a minimum of inconvenience to all concerned, was instead accepted only in February after long weeks of wasteful idleness and hardship.

In hard cash, the strike cost the pulp and paper industry in British Columbia upwards of $50 million in lost production, while business and government lost indeterminate sums in sales and taxes.

What of the strikers and their families? They came out of the strike the poorer by $6 million in lost wages — wages which they never can recover. (There is grim irony in the thought of self-inflicted unemployment on such a scale through much of a winter in which more Canadians than usual sought jobs in vain.)

The British Columbia pulp and paper strike was an object lesson in futility. Will the lesson be learned in other industries, and the words of Mr. Robens taken to heart?

Quick change

THE ASTRONOMERS say summer officially arrives at 4.57 p.m. EST on June 21, when the sun crosses Cancer. All right, but what happened to spring?

Seems we rush right from winter into summer weather in Canada. One day in mid-April Winnipeg had a temperature of 84 degrees, and Winnipeg that day was warmer than Havana, Miami and Los Angeles.

Of course, Canada is a big country, and it can be summer in one place and winter in another. The same day that Winnipeg was basking in the heat, it was below zero at Cambridge Bay, in the Northwest Territories.

The generally mild winter meant that most farmers got an early start on seeding. British Columbia had its mildest winter on record, and the Prairies generally also had an easy winter with frost leaving the ground fast. It was also a mild period, comparatively speaking, for Ontario and Quebec, while the Maritimes enjoyed an early spring.

Now the birds are in full chorus across the land. The migratory flights are well under way to the far north. At Hillspring, Alta., a large white swan attracted attention the other day when it dropped out of north-bound flight and wandered around the streets for a while before resuming its long journey.

But there's a thought-provoking note about these bird songs which bring joy to many a nature-lover. The National Geographic Society calmly suggests these musical cries are really warnings to other birds to keep off.

The male birds are the first arrivals in the north. They choose an area that offers enough food to support a family, then start singing.

The bird songs aren't really invitations to romance, or concerts put on for the benefit of human ears, these experts contend. The songs tell other male birds that the property is taken.

Then, this report says, having established his own territory and fought off other males, the bird is ready to advertise for a wife.

Who was the Giantess from Nova Scotia?

Anna Swan, who was born, it is reported, on August 7th, 1846, at New Annan, Colchester County, Nova Scotia, was the third child in a family of 13, all but herself being of normal height. At an early age she commenced her remarkable growth, and by the time she was 11 years of age she was 6 feet 1 inch tall. At 17 she was 7 feet 6 inches, and when P. T. Barnum exhibited her at his New York Museum, with Commodore Nutt, the shortest of men, she was billed as the tallest girl in the world, with a height of 8 feet 1 inch. After Barnum's museum was destroyed by fire, she returned to Nova Scotia, then went to England. While there she was received by Queen Victoria, who presented her with a gold watch. She married Capt. Van Buren Bates, the Kentucky giant, in 1871, in London. One inch shorter than his wife, Capt. Bates and Anna toured Europe and the U.S. for 14 months, then retired to Seville, Ohio, where they built a house suited to their height. Their two children weighed over 20 pounds at birth, but both died in early infancy. Anna died herself on August 6th, 1888.

Which Canadian city has doubled its population in a space of seven years?

Between 1946 and 1953 the population of Sarnia, Ontario, doubled, indicating the city's rapid growth as the centre of Canada's "Chemical Valley". Unlimited water supply, salt resources and its position as terminus of pipelines from Alberta and Texas, to mention a few, have accounted for its phenomenal growth. Here are located Canada's largest Fiberglass plant, only synthetic-rubber plant, first glycol plant and only carbon-black plant. Oil refineries, steamship docks, grain elevators and flour mills, together with the greatest concentration of petro-chemical industries in Canada, and other local industries have brought Sarnia a long way from a small settlement once called The Rapids. The name Sarnia, once the Roman name for the Channel Island, Guernsey, was suggested in 1835 by Sir John Colborne, a former Lieut.-Governor of Guernsey, and later Lieut.-Governor of Upper Canada.

Who died of "Colonial mis-rule"?

An Upper Canada pioneer, Robert Randall, who came to Canada in 1798 from the American South, settled in Niagara Falls, where he built a sawmill, and established an iron foundry from which came the first wrought iron manufactured in Upper Canada. He also established a flour mill, in which was ground the first flour sent from Upper Canada to the British Market. He founded a mercantile business in Cornwall and erected the first mill unit of a projected development at the Chaudière Falls on the Ottawa River. He owned 950 acres of Crown-granted land in what is now Ottawa and valuable tracts in other parts of the province. Failure on the part of his British agents resulted in his arrest for debt in 1809, and he spent seven years in prison at Montreal. His holdings were sold for a fraction of their true value, though his holdings were much more than sufficient to meet his indebtedness. Randall spent many years in fruitless efforts to obtain redress for this, but after he had been elected to the provincial legislature in 1820, and re-elected in 1825, he gained the friendship of William Lyon Mackenzie, who made a political issue against the Family Compact out of Randall's case. Randall's tombstone in the military cemetery at Lundy's Lane bears the inscripton: "He died of Colonial mis-rule."

What is the specific meaning of the term "Range"?

The word "range" occurs in the Dominion lands-survey system used in the Prairie Provinces. These provinces are surveyed in blocks of six miles square, north from the U.S. Border (49th parallel) and west (east in one case) from the Meridians. Counted north from the Border, the blocks are numbered as townships, but counted from the west (or east) from the Meridians, they are numbered as "ranges".

Diagnosing the recession

By Lewis Milligan

Everybody is talking or thinking about unemployment and wondering what happened to upset the apple-cart of prosperity we have been enjoying in the last ten years. "The first thing is to locate the cause of the trouble," says one writer on the question. "What unemployment we have can be traced to the loss of our export market. We have priced ourselves out of the markets." But we have also priced ourselves out of the home market. We can't afford to buy our own products.

The export market is undoubtedly an important factor in the maintenance of prosperity, but that market has been falling off for several years and yet our home market has been booming and there has been little unemployment until quite recently. Why could we not have gone on buying ourselves into prosperity? The answer to that is: because we have been living beyond our means. We have been living on credit and we are up to our eyes in debt.

That is nothing but the truth, and it is useless to blink at it. It is the old story of Micawber: "Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen nineteen six, result happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds ought and six, result misery."

Like Micawber, we have been living on the pawn shop, and we have little left to pawn for collateral. That is practically what the Bank of Canada told us when it put the clamps on credit a year ago. Whether or not that was a wise thing to do, or whether the Bank overdid it, is a matter for the economists to decide. Perhaps it would have been kinder if the clamps had not been put on so hard, or wiser if they had been put on earlier and gradually. The same thing happened immediately before the slump in 1929 when the banks called for reductions of overdrafts and increased margins on stock purchases.

It is quite easy to explain how we got into this recession. It is the result of a runaway inflation. The continual rise in costs of production and services, with the increase in taxation to provide for "free" social security, have called for more money in circulation. We have inflated the currency, but in doing so we have deflated its value in purchasing power. We thought we were getting rich quick by increasing our income of dollars, but the fact is we were more quickly getting poorer. Not only did our dollar depreciate to fifty cents but our savings in insurance and other investments for a rainy day proved to be diminishing assets.

It might logically be argued that the cure for that condition is to reverse the process that brought it about, but the question is: where should we begin? Economists tell us that money and credit are the lifeblood of our free economy, and yet it was the economists who suggested the reduction of credit as a cure for inflation. That was equivalent to saying that the only way to save the life of the patient was to stop the circulation of the blood. They resorted to the old method of bleeding the patient; there was less or

38c Slump

I'm a great believer in advertising, so perhaps I've grabbed at this story because it proves my point.

Alan Donnahoe, a tough-minded newspaper man, took a sharp look at the business slump in the United States (the same one that has been reflected here) and boiled it down to figures we can all understand.

Consumer spending dropped a billion dollars. Sounds like a lot, doesn't it? But when you shake it up and look at it, it means only 38 cents per family per week. American families tightened their purse strings to that extent — and stores quickly began to liquidate their inventories. Americans weren't tightening purse strings because they didn't have the money — they were adding to their net savings at the rate of 20 billions a year.

What is needed, then, to start things humming again in the U.S.A. and Canada?

Very simple, says Donnahoe. If every family starts to spend at the old rate again — another 38 cents per week — we're off and running.

Now this may be an oversimplification of the problem. Simple or not, it makes a great deal of sense. And it presents a challenge to those who are in the business of advertising — whether buying it, selling it, or writing it.

I visited a small Manitoba town the other day where business is humming. This town, Steinbach, hasn't a very large population, but it has all the zip and zest of a city. Store fronts are bright, there are smart advertising signs everywhere, and the local weekly newspaper is full of clever advertising. I doubt that the merchants of Steinbach pay much attention to recession talk.

Advertising has helped this town, there is not a bit of doubt about that. Advertising can do wonders — I've seen it happen again and again. It bothers me when people who should know better treat advertising with disdain, or attack it as "commercialism."

I believe it is time we all stopped advertising the so-called recession. Instead we should start to advertise our tremendous resources, our abundance of good things, and our faith in a big future for Canada. Gloom, lack of confidence and fear are the only things that can stop us. Confidence, good advertising and smart merchandising can keep the wheels spining in any community. After all, it was only a 38 cent slump. Let's trade it in on a 50 cent boom!

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

More and more movies have grown-up villains and teen-aged heroes.

Recently I have seen two motion pictures that purported to give an account of life in penal institutions for young offenders.

The youngsters were such a wholesome and likable crowd that the watcher was at a loss to understand how they had ever been sentenced to a term in the coop.

And even when they displayed minor foibles, like a tendency to smash the furniture, it wasn't their fault. Some adult was to blame.

In one of these movies, a crooked judge was leagued with her boy friend, a sinister cotton planter, in a plot to have youngsters sent up to a farm as cheap labor.

Except for the lack of a mustache, the planter might have stepped from a Victorian melodrama. He leered and pawed at the girls, who rejected his advances while managing to look as sexy as a corps of pagan priestesses.

He let a sick girl die of neglect. He fed the kids on dog meat. But a clean-cut youth thwarted his plans, led the wholesome young delinquents in a revolt against authority, and brought the woman judge to her senses just in time.

The judge was a pathetic figure. From the teen-aged viewpoint, she was too old for love; somebody's Mom who had forgotten her years and gone astray.

Luckily she repented, brought the wicked planter (an old, old reprobate in his 30's) to justice, and settled down to her proper role as a harmless old biddy who stayed home at night.

Another movie dealt with a number of sweet girls who had wandered into prison school for young offenders, and got locked in somehow.

The aged (about 45) woman principal of the school didn't understand what was wrong with them; because of grown-up wickedness, they had been starved of love.

When one of their number smuggled in a live baby, and they contrived to care for it in secret, they blossomed into the mushiest crowd of little mothers you ever saw.

But the baby was found and taken from them by the wicked grown-ups. They expressed their annoyance in a perfectly natural way by wrecking the joint. One girl, a particularly lovable type, went over the wall to join her boy-friend, who had just been paroled from prison.

Nothing was ever said about how they got into prison. They were just a couple of sweet, misunderstood kids. So when the news came through they had been riddled with bullets in a gun-battle with police, there wasn't a dry eye in the house.

In the final scene the girls sat around weeping for their lost baby and their martyred friend. On this maudlin note, the movie closed.

I pondered for a moment or two on the wisdom of the movie-makers in presenting young people an image of themselves as an ill-used group at war with the perfidious grown-up world. Why not let them see themselves as young but fallible human beings?

Then I remembered that 41 per cent of movie-goers (by survey) are between the ages of 15 and 29. I remembered that several hundred teen-agers were sitting in the theatre. And I turned up the collar of my coat and sneaked out quietly, hoping nobody would notice that I was an adult.

Second look essential on farm, city girl finds

Tom, the village philosopher says the best education doesn't come from books and blackboards and such, but from taking a second look at things. That's the one that counts, he figures, and a second glance can often save you from making a fool of yourself.

To illustrate his point, Tom tells the story of his niece, Dolly, who visited from the city a couple of weeks ago.

"I took her around to see my brother Ed — the one who runs a farm. 'Oh, what a strange looking cow,' says Dolly, 'Why hasn't she any horns?' So Ed says, 'Well, some cows is born without horns and never had any, and others shed theirs, and some we de-horn, and some breeds ain't supposed to have any horns at all. There's all kinds of reasons why some cows ain't got horns, but the reason this one ain't is because she ain't a cow. She's a horse'!"

Which leads us to wonder if a second look isn't called for in personal planning sometimes. If you find your money slips through your fingers, consider regular savings with a Bank of Montreal savings account. Deposit so much of each pay-cheque into a B of M savings account. In that way you make sure of getting your share of your own income.

Riverfront mourns member of old pioneer family

Late Mrs. Andrew Graham

Cushing — Another member of an old pioneer family has been lost to the community in which she lived, with the sudden passing of Mrs. Andrew R. Graham, of Monalea Road, on April 11, quite close to the home of her childhood.

The former Jeannie Somerville, daughter of the late John Somerville and his wife Mary Spratt, was united in marriage to Andrew R. Graham in the autumn of 1903 and came to Cushing to enjoy the home her husband had built for his bride, on the farm adjacent to the present farm of A. T. Graham. Twelve years later Mr. and Mrs. Graham, having purchased the farm of the late Wm. Somerville, moved with their two sons, John and Cecil, to their new home, where they have resided ever since.

Mrs. Graham leaves to mourn her loss her husband, her son, John, on the home farm, Cecil R. Graham, of Lachute, one daughter, Mrs. Jan Kapruslak, of Montreal, and five grandchildren. She is survived also by four sisters — Mrs. Amos Scharf, of Cumberland, Mrs. Alice Crapper and Miss Mabel Somerville, of Ottawa, and Miss Nora Somerville, of Montreal, and a number of nephews and nieces, also one sister-in-law, Mrs. Archie Graham of Cushing.

The funeral service was conducted in the home by the Rev. James Armour, of Lachute, assisted by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid, of St. Andrews East, and the remains conveyed to St. Andrews East for interment.

There were many beautiful floral tributes. The pall-bearers were her son-in-law, Jan Kapruslak, her grandson, Kenneth Graham, and four nephews, James, Allan and Cecil O. Graham, and Edmund Scharf.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, and In Memoriam, etc., $1.00; 5 cents per type line extra for verses, with In Memoriam (estimate eight words per type line).

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

LEBLANC — The family of the late Adelard Leblanc wish to thank relatives and friends for their many acts of kindness, expressions of sympathy, floral offerings, masses, visits received during the recent loss of their father, and for attendance at the funeral.

PICKEN — The family and immediate relatives of the late Mrs. R. C. Picken wish to express their appreciation for floral tributes sent, and for the many kindnesses extended, in their recent loss and bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

PAGE — In loving memory of dear father and grandfather, David C. Page, who passed away April 25, 1956. — Always remembered by Joe, Mary and Bobbie.

"Like falling leaves the years slip by,
But memories of you will never die."

PAGE — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, David C. Page, who passed away April 25, 1956. — Always remembered by Robert, Hilda, Donna and Cynthia.

"You are not dead,
You are just away,
And we think of you
Dear grandfather, every day."

SCOTT — In fond and loving memory of our dear brother, brother-in-law and uncle, Frank, who passed away April 27, 1956. — Stella, Charlie, Heather and Scott.

TOMALTY — In loving memory of a dear son, Howard, who was called away April 22, 1953. — Ever remembered by his mother, Mrs. David Tomalty, sisters and brother.

"You left a beautiful memory
And a sorrow too great to be told,
And to us who loved and lost you
Your memory will never grow old."

Late Hervé Filfe was well known businessman

Hervé Filfe, manager of the Quebec Liquor Commission store here and a former merchant-tailor on Main Street, died Saturday at the age of 57. Mr. Filfe was well and favorably known as a businessman in this community. He was a fourth degree member of the Knights of Columbus (Curé Labelle Assembly, St. Jerome).

The late Mr. Filfe resided on Gilbert Street. He is mourned by his wife, the former Marie-Lourdes Cholette; two daughters — Mrs. Marcel Bergeron (Magella), Mrs. Raymond Normandin (Germaine); and three sons — Gerald Filfe, Montreal, Jean-Yves Filfe (advocate, associated with Lucien Thinel, Q.C., at St. Jerome) and Jacques Filfe, Lachute.

He leaves also a brother and two sisters — Orphée Filfe, of Ste. Therese, Mrs. Arthur Plante, Quebec, and Mrs. Donat Major, North Lancaster, Ont.

The funeral, very largely attended, was held Tuesday from the Menard Funeral Home to Ste. Anastasie Parish Church, with burial in the Lachute Catholic Cemetery.

Adelard Leblanc died at St. Philippe

The death of Mr. Adélard Leblanc, widower of the late Elizabeth Houle, occurred on April 13 at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Thos. Hooper, at St. Philippe. He was in his 84th year.

Surviving are five daughters — Mrs. Thos. Hooper (Marie), St. Philippe, Mrs. Adélard Lascelles (Amanda), Hawkesbury, Mrs. Jean Hooper (Ida), St. Philippe, Mrs. Josaphat Brodeur (Eva), Lachute, and Miss Léonie Leblanc, Verdun. He is survived also by one brother, Mr. Honoré Leblanc, with numerous nephews, nieces and grandchildren.

Service was held at the Parish Church in St. Philippe.

Rivington

Mr. Stewart Trineer, of Vancouver, visited his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James Trineer.

Week-end guests at Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Young's were — Mr. and Mrs. John Young and family, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Young and Dawna, all of Ottawa, and Mr. Bill Andrews, of Arnprior. . . Sunday guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Broomfield, Mr. and Mrs. John Provencal and family, of Grenville.

Mr. Bert Smith returned home Friday after visiting friends in Brownsburg last week.

Sympathy is extended to relatives of the late Mr. John MacGalliard, who passed away quietly in Lachute, on Monday of last week.

Frontier W.I.

W.I. members held their April meeting in Elliott's Hall, Cushing, with the president, Mr. N. Morrison, in the chair.

This being Honorary President's Day, an interesting program on "Oddities and Comments" was given by Mrs. A. Graham. A contest was also held.

Members are looking forward to the May meeting, to be held in the evening at the home of Mrs. W. Y. King, Cushing, when Mr. Douglas Morrison, of C.I.P., will be the speaker, and the annual auction sale of slips and bulbs will take place. Roll-call will be, "An outdoor tip to keep Canada beautiful."

RCMP constable to Bell Island

Mabel —

John Clark, an RCMP constable from this community, was among a three-man detachment sent to Bell Island to reinforce the officers stationed in the area of a recent wave of vandalism and crime. The St. John's (Nfld.) Evening Telegram reported from Bell Island as follows:

Three RCMP constables came here last week from St. John's. They are Gerard O'Halloran, John Clark and Dale Henry.

Constable Henry is not a stranger to Bell Island, having been a regular member of the detachment up to November 15, 1957.

Constables O'Halloran and Clark arrived in Newfoundland from Ottawa March 24, and were posted to Bell Island April 9. They have specialized training in dealing with the type of crime which Bell Island has been suffering for the past two months.

(Cst. Clark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Clark, Mabel.)

Brownsburg

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, of Ottawa, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Clarke.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Muriel Brown in her bereavement. Her mother, Mrs. M. Mulcahy, passed away last week at the age of 95.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Mutter, of Ottawa, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Stephens.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Williams and family, of Buckingham, Que., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mason.

Interesting Topic

All who are interested in beautifying their homes (especially the "men folks") are welcome to attend a meeting in the United Church hall on Wednesday, April 30, at 8 p.m., when a demonstration will be given on "Interior Decorating". Questions will be answered in regard to color schemes, etc. A collection will be taken.

Extensive program for new parliament opening May 12

By Roy LaBerge,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — The new Parliament opens May 12 with a "fairly extensive" legislative program and possibly a system of simultaneous translation of debates in operation — from French to English and vice-versa.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, announcing the date to reporters following a cabinet meeting, declined to speculate on the length of the session beyond saying the legislative program would be "fairly extensive." However, it was thought the Commons might sit until mid-summer or even later.

Commons approval will be needed before the translation system can go into operation, but it is considered doubtful the three parties in the House would turn it down.

Modern System

The chamber is already almost completely wired for it — through a wiring system aimed primarily to provide hearing aids to amplify the basic sound system of microphones suspended from the chamber's high ceilings and individual speakers at each member's desk.

Addition of a selector switch box — enabling the MP to listen either to the original speaker or the interpreter's version — is all that is needed.

When Parliament opens, one of the government's first acts will be to seek parliamentary approval of thinner blood to circulate and the patient is now suffering from pernicious anaemia. The obvious cure for that condition would seem to be a blood-transfusion.

As I am neither a doctor nor an economist, I have no right to prescribe a remedy for either physical or economic anaemia. But, as one of the patients, I have a right to my own opinion of the diagnosis of the disease and the proposed operation to cure it. If the cause of the disease was inflation, it certainly cannot be cured by further inflation, and that is exactly what organized labor and quack-politicians have been insisting upon in these latter years. Higher and higher wages for less and less work, more and more government-guaranteed social security, have bled the national economy white and weakened the individual and corporate constitutions.

Ceremony held for building project at St. Francis

Morin Heights — Following the Sunday morning service at the Church of St. Francis in St. Sauveur des Monts, a very colorful ceremony took place when Mr. Robert Crichton turned the first sod for the construction of the new parish hall and church extension.

Leading the procession from the church to the adjoining lot were eight altar boys, with Mr. John Minshall as flag-bearer. The rector described the exact location of the trancepts to be added to the church, and then asked Mr. Crichton, first churchwarden when St. Francis was built, to turn the sod. Looking on were the members of the Finance and Building Committees and the large number of people who had attended the morning service.

The sanctuary of the church will be moved back about 20 feet, making room for a communion railing on three sides in place of the present one, also room for a choir. An office will be provided for the rector, behind the sanctuary. The hall will contain facilities for all social functions of the church, in addition to the Sunday School and ladies' groups. Interior decorating will be in charge of a special committee consisting of Mrs. John H. Molson, Mrs. J. C. Nelles, Mrs. A. P. Clark and Mrs. W. Bridgeford.

Montreal donor provides three translations of Scriptures for Africa

Three translations of Scriptures for Africa will be provided early in 1958 by an anonymous donor in Montreal, the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada has announced.

A cheque for $3,112 has been received to cover the cost of these three translations. The first is an edition of 20,000 copies of St. Mark's Gospel in Kikuyu, printed in large type for use this spring among the Kenya tribe in which the Mau Mau movement originated.

The second is a diglot publication in Luchasi-Portuguese of 5000 copies of the book of Genesis, to be used in south-east Portuguese Angola.

The third is for completion of the New Testament in Gourma, a tribal language in use in French West Africa. The contribution will cover the cost of printing the second half of the New Testament and of binding the whole book.

The anonymous donor has previously paid for publication of three African translations out of his modest income, because of his desire to see the Christian gospel made available to all people in their own language.

At annual meeting of Temperance League

The Rev. G. T. Spriggs, representing Argenteuil County, attended the annual meeting of the Quebec Temperance League held at the Y.M.C.A. building in Montreal on April 16.

The resignation of the secretary, Miss C. C. Sifton, was accepted with regret. A committee is arranging for a successor.

The Rev. John Linton, secretary of the Canadian Temperance Federation, gave an interesting address on the Temperance situation in Canada dealing extensively with the so-called "government control system" in the various provinces.

Sod-turning for Baptist Church building extension

Last Sunday evening the congregation of Lachute Baptist Church held a sod-turning service to inaugurate their proposed new building extension. Mr. Walter Wert of Brownsburg, R.R. 1, senior deacon and oldest living male member of the church, officially turned the sod for the commencement of the building program. In the worship service which followed, Pastor K. R. Miller spoke on the subject, "Building and Blessing", from a text in I Kings concerning the erection of Solomon's Temple.

The proposed extension will be constructed in brick and will include provision for numerous comforts and conveniences for the services of the church. Comprising two storeys, the addition will consist of Sunday School classrooms, washroom and kitchen facilities and a sizeable hall. An automatic oil-fired heating system will be installed to serve both the existing building and the new extension.

The plans for the proposed building were drawn by Mr. H. Rigg, of Lachute, and general contractor for the project is Mr. Fraser Watson, of Cushing, Que. Paul & Graham Reg. of Lachute, will install the heating system. Construction is expected to be completed in August.

Ministerial Association discusses alcoholism, and child adoptions

The regular April session of the Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association was held recently in the Lachute Baptist Church. The chair was taken by the president, the Rev. Wilson Bridge.

After the opening devotions, the secretary, the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, gave a short address and then read the brief issued by the Canadian Temperance Federation to the Federal Government last January. The Canadian Temperance Federation is a group of the 10 Temperance organizations of churches, both Protestant and Roman Catholic. The brief deals with many subjects, such as "Drinking and Driving"; over 3,000 people were killed in Canada in 1956 in highway accidents, all attributed to alcohol. Another subject was the use of alcoholic beverages on the domestic flights of aircraft; also the advertising of liquor. In dealing with the problem of alcohol it is urged that Canadians need to devote more time and money to Research, Rehabilitation of the Alcoholic, and Education.

The Ministerial Association has appointed a committee to study provincial regulations regarding the adoption of children.

Plans are being made for a joint meeting of the members of the Eastern Ontario Ministerial Association and the Ministers of Argenteuil, to be held in May, and the annual picnic of the ministers and their wives and families, towards the end of June.

FARMER'S CHEQUE

Saskatoon (CP) — Farmer Martin Loewen had just collected his mail when he laid it down as he stopped to dig a waterhole on his way back to the farmhouse. When he turned around, a placid steer was finishing the last of three letters and a cheque.

Mr. Loewen says he doesn't know how much the cheque was worth, but that it would probably buy quite a bit of hay. He has applied for another.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

LOYD W. WAS AN ALCOHOLIC

Man's most severe struggle for faith is within himself. This is because his own sins condemn him. They stand before him when he gropes for contact with the Infinite. As long as this is true, faith cannot be very effective. But St. John said that "if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence (faith) toward God" (1 John 3:21).

Now I imagine this question presents itself: "Does a person have faith whether he is right with God or not?" The answer is, "Yes, he does." For God gives a measure of faith to every man. But there must be a total commitment to God for faith to accomplish all that it could.

I am reminded of Loyd W. who for 15 years was an alcoholic. At various times through those years the measure of faith or God-consciousness within him would try to guide him aright. But the demon of alcohol would take control. Loyd's story is too long to relate here but I want to give a portion to illustrate how even a measure of faith will work in a human life.

"All through those harrowing years, deep within me, there was a God-consciousness. One time when I was in Red River Parish, Louisiana, I stopped in a town and rented a hotel room. I bought some liquor and went to my room to drink. I had taken only a few drinks when I fell asleep. Sometime during the night I had a vision of the Lord. He had a crown of thorns upon his head and the blood was slowly oozing down his face. His eyes had a look of love mingled with pity.

"I felt so naked and ashamed and sinful. He never spoke a word to me; he just stood there in pity and sadly shook his head. The look was so penetrating that I wanted to cry out to him for forgiveness.

"Often before, I had felt a desperate need to serve God and be free from the deadly clutch of drink. Somehow, that night, I felt that God in his infinite mercy would forgive me. But I needed something in addition to forgiveness. I needed complete deliverance from alcoholism. But I didn't know how, nor was I yet ready, to accept the deliverance I so desperately needed."

You see, Loyd found out what everyone else will find—faith cannot do its best work as long as there is sin in the person's life.

Sin is a dominating thing, and it produces a division in the soul. The body and mind are keenly responsive to the soul. It feels the impact of the soul's fears and weaknesses. This produces an easy prey for mental and physical ills. But when you turn from your sins and open your life completely to God, your faith will make you WHOLE.

Loyd, I am happy to say, did yield his all to God. He was delivered in mind, soul and body. Today he is a sober, healthy and happy young man. Complete faith brought complete wholeness.

Extensive program

expenditures made under Governor-General's warrants since the last Parliament dissolved February 1.

The government has obtained some $747,000,000 by use of such warrants, in the absence of authority of the last Parliament, for operating expenses. These funds run out at the end of April, which means the government will have to present promptly its spending estimates for the fiscal year that began April 1 if it wants Parliament to vote an interim money supply.

Major Issues

It is also possible Parliament may be asked to implement four of Mr. Diefenbaker's election campaign promises. These are:

1. Extension of the period for payment of supplementary unemployment insurance beyond the present May 15 cut-off date, should unemployment make this necessary.
2. Establishment of a semi-judicial board on broadcasting to rule on disputes between private broadcasters and the publicly-owned CBC.
3. Legislation to enable a July 1 start of federal payments under the hospital insurance plan.
4. Legislation on federal-provincial tax-sharing agreements. The government's present changes on the current agreements are effective only for this year but the old agreements run until 1963.

Two other issues, while not necessarily involving legislative action, may spark considerable debate.

One is what government policy will be on export of natural gas. The other is the government's announced new policy of considering applications for air services licenses from transcontinental routes in competition with publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. Mel Wilson wishes to thank her many friends for their cards, flowers and visits during her recent stay at Smith's Clinic, Hawkesbury.

MAYFLOWER MAY BE SEAWAY'S FIRST SHIP

When the St. Lawrence seaway is opened to ocean traffic Mayflower II, the ship built in Plymouth, Eng., as an exact copy of the original ship carrying the Pilgrim Fathers to America, may be the first to go through the locks. This committee of U.S. citizens is promoting the voyage, which would take place in 1959. Left to right, Henry Hornblower, Sen. Charles Potter and Aubrey Strohpaul. They are in Washington to get an o.k. from the U.S. government.

"Now is the time to awake!" — Romans 13:11

The Mission of the Journal, "Awake":

News sources that are able to keep you awake to the vital issues of our times must be unfettered by censorship and selfish interests. "Awake!" has no fetters. It recognizes facts, faces facts, is free to publish facts. It is not bound by political ambitions or obligations; it is unhampered by advertisers whose toes must not be trodden on; it is unprejudiced by traditional creeds. This journal keeps itself free that it may speak freely to you. But it does not abuse its freedom. It maintains integrity to truth.

"Awake!" uses the regular news channels, but is not dependent on them. Its own correspondents are on all continents, in scores of nations. From the four corners of the earth their uncensored, on-the-scenes reports come to you through these columns. This journal's viewpoint is not narrow, but is international. It is read in many nations, in many languages, by persons of all ages. Through its pages many fields of knowledge pass in review — government, commerce, religion, history, geography, science, social conditions, natural wonders — why, its coverage is as broad as the earth and as high as the heavens.

"Awake!" pledges itself to righteous principles, to exposing hidden foes and subtle dangers, to championing freedom for all, to comforting mourners and strengthening those disheartened by the failures of a delinquent world, reflecting sure hope for the establishment of a righteous New World.

Get acquainted with "Awake!" Keep awake by reading "Awake!"

SLOBS? NOT TO THIS EXPERT

When Lloyd Percival, Sports College director, gave a test to 300 youngsters ages six to 12 years, he drew nation-wide attention to the fact that over 50 per cent. of them were flabby, unable to do simple exercises, and were more interested in television than they were in participation in sports. A number of doctors supported Percival's conclusion and called today's children anything from "stall-fed slobs" to "overweight goons." But Rae Speirs, director of physical education for Toronto schools, disagrees emphatically. He says that it is after the age of 12 that the better nutrition of Canadian children begins to show and that soon the Canadian youth is more active than his European counterpart. He points out that of the 55 per cent. of applicants for the armed forces who were rejected in 1950-52, 44 per cent. were rejected for reasons other than muscular fitness. He calls Canadian children the healthiest in the world.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Gardens

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

One of the hobbies which attract and hold the attention of small children is gardening, flowers and vegetables. The wonder of small tots finds ample reward in watching things grow. It helps to answer some of their questions. And, of course, there is always the reward in the harvest.

Some large centres have special projects encouraging boys and girls to learn the art of growing things. On the edge of the Hamilton gardens, sixty school children have small plots for flowers, fruits and vegetables. A youngster who has shown by his perseverance and intelligence that he is a good gardener, is allowed in his second year to grow special crops, such as popcorn and peanuts.

Horticultural societies in some cities sponsor children's gardens. They award prizes for best gardens, best vegetables and best flowers. In Winnipeg children make a specialty of growing gladiolus. In diminishing juvenile delinquency gardening is helpful as the City of Hamilton has proved. If there is no gardening project for children in your neighborhood, hunt around until you locate a group which will sponsor it.

Boys and girls living in homes built on small lots must be content to cultivate a small plot. Often they specialize in one or two vegetables. One junior girl made a success with pansies and violets. A small boy grew delicious leaf lettuce and carrots. Sweet peas, morning glories, scarlet runner beans are all vine crops which can be planted by children in narrow strips beside a fence.

Apartment block dwellers encourage children to use large flower pots, or better still, window boxes for gardens. Children love tiny things and tending a miniature garden fascinates them. Last season an eight-year-old boy won first prize at the Royal Windsor Horticultural show for a miniature garden grown on a dinner plate.

In many ways, the child's best garden is the one right on his own property. But, if Junior is to become an enthusiastic gardener he must be afforded the chance to help in his father's garden while he is still a small boy. It takes time and patience to delegate jobs to a child. But be careful not to kill his enthusiasm by refusing to let him do certain things. Some times this trial and error method makes more of an impression on the youthful mind. If his enthusiasm is squelched at a tender age, he may shie away from a garden for good.

Some of my happiest memories are gardening with my father when I was quite small. Father always called it "our" garden and I carried the basket with the seed packages in it, helped him put in the stakes, wound string to keep the rows straight. With what care I soaked in a cup and then planted the seeds such as peas, beans, cucumber pumpkin, sunflower and nasturtiums! These were large enough for tiny fingers to handle. When we weeded, Father worked beside me so that weeds and not plants would be pulled out! From my own childhood experiences I know what fun a child's garden can be and now, with children of my own, I have tried to pass on joy in "a green thumb."

TAPERED BOB

A profile study of Princess Margaret shows her newest hair style. It seems to be a short, tapered bob with curls at the ears and a fringe, or bangs, over the forehead.

Venetian blinds go colorful

The Venetian blinds of today let more than sunlight into a room. By selecting from the vast assortment of unusual slat materials and colors now available, the imaginative homemaker can use her windows as a focal point in her decorating scheme.

An unusual decorating technique is achieved through the use of blinds with alternate colored or finished slats to create striking muted or candy stripe designs. In a Colonial room where wood finishes are all important, blinds with wood grain slats provide an effective window treatment. By using this innovation every fourth or fifth slat, an unusual but simple pattern is created. The clean lines and charm of the Colonial pieces are accentuated by the continuity of the warm wood tones in the blinds.

New ideas in Venetian blinds are not confined to wood textures. Terrazzo finishes add elegance and softness to bathroom or dressing room, while a bedroom or living room is a proper setting for the handsome simulated linen slats. The young lady's room features blinds with slats of delicate pastel shades. . . .

Looking ahead to year A.D. 2,000

"Assuming that we do not commit mass suicide by means of atomic warfare, there will be five billion people on the earth in the year A.D. 2,000, as compared with 2½ billion in 1950," claims Prof. F. Baade, a German economist.

The fact that the population of the world may double within 50 years, for the first time in history, poses a problem as well as an opportunity to those interested in reaching people with the printed page.

The Bible Societies, including the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada, at their present increased rate of production, go less than half-way towards meeting the current growth of the world's population.

Protestant people everywhere are being asked to increase their Bible Society support, to make it possible to provide Scriptures for the millions of new readers who are being added to the world population each year.

Rarebit stuffed fillets

Here's a tasty dinner suggestion that holds appeal in flavor and good looks even though it bears the stamp of economy if its cost is tallied up. It's Rarebit-Stuffed Fillets in which the inexpensive flaky fish fillets are molded around a peppy cheese and bread dressing. This delectable main dish is edible proof of the delightful flavor blends that result when fish and cheese are combined in wholesome dishes.

Rarebit-Stuffed Fillets

4 Fish fillets, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, ½ cup milk, ½ pound grated Cheddar cheese, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, pinch of Cayenne pepper, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 cups soft bread crumbs.

Grease four large muffin cups. Twirl fillets around inside of muffin cups to line them. (If necessary, trim fillets). Combine milk and butter in top of double boiler and heat. Set over hot water; blend in all remaining ingredients except bread cubes. Heat until smooth and blended. Remove from heat; add bread cubes. Spoon rarebit into fillet twirls. Bake in moderately hot oven preheated to 375°F. for 15 to 20 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. To serve, loosen around fillet with a knife, carefully lift with spatula or spoon onto serving platter. Makes 4 servings.

New look for baked apples

Next time you have the oven on, how about trying Frosted Apples? They're cooked in the same way as ordinary baked apples but are dressed up first with fruit and nut filling and a coating of cocoanut. Here's the Consumer Section recipe:

Frosted Apples

6 Cooking apples, ¼ cup butter (melted), 6 tablespoons sugar, 6 tablespoons dessicated cocoanut, 3 tablespoons chopped dates or raisins, 3 tablespoons chopped nuts, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup water.

Core and pare apples. Roll each apple in melted butter, then in sugar (using the 6 tablespoons sugar) and then in cocoanut. Place apples in baking dish and fill centres with a mixture of the dates or raisins and the nuts, allowing 1 tablespoon of mixture for each apple. Combine the ½ cup sugar and water and bring to a boil, then spoon syrup over apples. Cover baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) until apples are tender when tested with a skewer — 30 to 35 minutes. 6 servings.

Trophy for essay on women's topic

Senator Cairine Wilson is donating a trophy to the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada for a competition under "Citizenship". The National Board had suggested that this take the form of an essay on the topic, "How can I train my child to be a citizen of the world?"

Sen. Wilson has expressed her approval and Institutes across Canada are being notified by Mrs. George Benett, of Simmie, Sask., former National Convener of Citizenship, who is in charge of the project.

Essays are not to exceed 1,000 words in length and must be typewritten. Five will be accepted from each province (10 in Ontario with its larger membership).

Essays are to be collected by each provincial office. Those submitted by Institute members in Quebec must be in the Q.W.I. Office, Macdonald College, by February 1, 1959.

Part of chores

Mrs. Margaret Barlow of Montreal sometimes doesn't even bother to remove her kitchen apron before stepping in front of a TV camera. That's because her husband, Michael, is an amateur TV enthusiast and he often calls on her as a subject to try out his home-built equipment.

Mr. Barlow, a TV station salesman, and five other men formed a branch of the British Amateur Television Club. They spend their evenings building equipment and transmitting patterns on a closed circuit.

Fashions

Pretty sweaters are out in force at the various southern sun spots. Jacquard knit marks the front of this cashmere beauty. It is white and beige with plain white sleeves and back, to go nicely with either a white or beige skirt. This season's sweaters seem to be made more for actual wearing than for being shrugged across the shoulder.

Wife Preservers

Colds can sometimes be avoided and headaches and nervous tension can often be minimized with proper breathing. Shallow breathing is quite often the cause of nasal congestion, even of colds. Practise breathing deeply, slowly, through the nose only. Control should come from the diaphragm.

When morning coffee parties and end-of-the-evening snacks seem to need a perking up foodwise, an apple might do the trick.

The agriculture department's consumer section has at Ottawa been trying some new recipes using Canada's apples and has come up with an "apple sauce cinnamon sandwich."

The recipe calls for two slices of bread, one tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon of brown sugar, one-quarter teaspoon of cinnamon and two tablespoons of apple sauce.

Butter the bread. Sprinkle one slice with brown sugar and cinnamon. Cover with the other slice to make a sandwich. Toast in a waffle iron, using the same temperature as that used for waffles. Remove when the waffle pattern shows a golden brown, then spread with apple sauce and serve hot.

The sandwich may be served whole or cut in halves, quarters or "fingers". Either way, the snack has a spicy, fresh apple flavor that blends well with coffee.

Savory Smelt

Over in the fisheries department's kitchen, the expert cooks are talking about smelt — the small, silvery fish that has a fine flavor.

The smelt, as well as being good eating fried, baked or pickled, also is a fat fish, closely related to the oolichan of Pacific waters.

Indian tribes could dry the oolichan, thread it with a reed for a wick and turn it into the candle-fish.

No Pushover

Would-be bandits should take a hint — never tangle with a woman bank manager. The hand that holds the till may also wield a pistol.

Mrs. M. Roy, who runs the Provincial Bank of Canada at Cap Chat, Que., a Gaspé Peninsula community, reeently was faced with a man who passed a note reading: "Give me your money or I'll shoot."

Wig Fashion

In the fashion world, styles have gone to the head and the sack has gone to sea.

The latest Paris fad centres around wigs. If you're bent on being a fashion chameleon, with a stack of wigs you can change your hair with your dress. Or if the man in your life keeps wishing you were a redhead, you can fix that, too.

Meantime, the chemise has sneaked to the bathing beach with designers offering the sack look in swim suits. At most, the seaside sack covers more than a bikini. Some pessimistic observers predict the beach this year may be a bore.

Women Peers

There's rumbling and grumbling in England's House of Lords, where women soon will join the ranks.

The tables have been turned and along with the hereditary peers, the upper chamber now will have peers and peeresses appointed for life.

Despite the mutterings about the upheaval of tradition, the door to women is expected to open next month with the formal assent by a woman — the Queen.

"Songs of My People"

Folk songs from European countries are brought to Canadian listeners each week by various groups of ethnic singers on Songs of My People over the Trans-Canada network of CBC Radio. For many Canadians who trace their origin to the old countries, this weekly broadcast of traditional European music provides a link with the past. Czech soloist Jan Rubes is a regular guest singer and Ivan Romanoff is conductor, violinist and arranger on the show.

Grow, Harvest, and Protect say Forester Farmers Planning For Future

Research too Plays Big Role in Modern Forest Development

Montreal — Fifty years or more for a single crop. That's how long it takes for most trees to grow from seedlings to maturity.

During their long growing period, trees, just like a farm crop, must be tended and protected. When the crop is mature it must be harvested. If it is not, the trees will be wasted as they rot in the forest or fall prey to insects, wind storms, and disease.

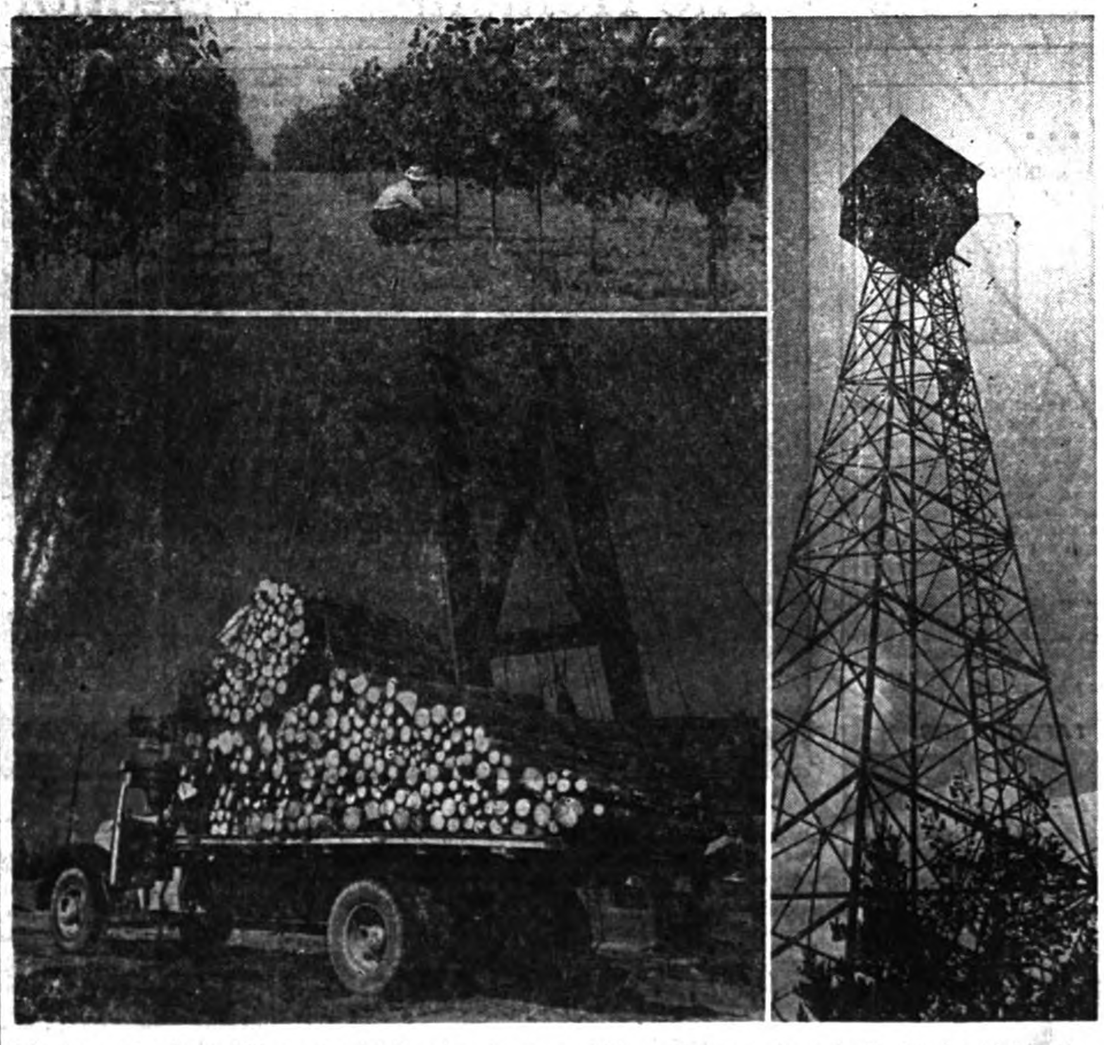

These are the facts of forest management about which professional foresters and woods operators talked at the 40th annual meeting of the Woodlands Section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, held recently in Montreal.

The Woodlands Section of C.P.P.A. plays an active role in the management and protection of the forests. Working committees of the Section participate in research projects, investigate new protection techniques, and help design new logging equipment.

Forest management, as it was discussed at the meeting, is more than a conservation and protection program. It is creative. It includes and makes use of advanced scientific research. It provides the continuing and overlapping cycles of natural reseeding, growing, and harvesting that will bring forth sustained annual crops to enrich Canadians and the nation.

Commenting on the future of Canada's forest resources in his announcement of the Montreal conference, W. A. E. Pepler, manager of the Section, said, "Over the next twenty-five years Canada will have the exciting opportunity of doubling its output of pulp and paper and, at the same time, increasing by some 40 per cent its output of other forest products. Most of this output will earn money for Canada through sales abroad."

"In terms of wood volume," Mr. Pepler continued, "the nation's forest resources are sufficient to sustain such an output. But such extensive forest development will naturally create some problems for forestry officials and woods operators," he said. "That is why the Woodlands Section, and its members throughout the pulp and paper industry, continually strive to improve all aspects of their forest management and harvesting operations. Our concern is for future as well as for immediate harvests."

A forest researcher, (upper left), examines hybrid poplars at a commercial forest plantation on Manitoulin Island in Ontario's Lake Huron. These trees were planted as cuttings in 1955. By the following mid-summer, when this photo was taken, they were more than six feet tall. Careful breeding produced these amazingly rapid-growing trees which may be ready to harvest in ten years. (Lower Left), Eight foot pulpwood logs are loaded for delivery to a pulp and paper mill. They are part of the annual harvest from Canada's woodlands. (Right), a fire tower, symbol of forest protection, stands out against a clear summer sky. Forest protection also includes insect and disease control.

New BNS building near completion

The Bank of Nova Scotia's new building on Main Street is nearing completion, and in a few weeks' time Lachute's newest bank will be ready for occupation.

For almost 50 years the BNS has operated in its present location at 472 Main Street. In 1919, the BNS merged with the Bank of Ottawa which had opened their Lachute branch in January, 1899. Since the merger, the local branch has participated in the program of progress the BNS has pursued in regard to establishing new branches and re-designing existing ones. In the post-war period, the Bank has opened more than 260 new branches — an average of a branch every 11 working days — and, in addition, has renovated almost as many existing branches.

Today, there are almost 500 branches of the BNS from coast to coast in Canada and more than 30 branches in Caribbean countries. Forty-two BNS branches operate in the Province of Quebec. The three offices nearest to Lachute are at Brownsburg, St. Andrews East and Grenville, and the new Lachute premises were designed to provide every customer convenience in banking services. The inclusion of a night depository in the new building affords round-the-clock banking security and the 4,500 square feet of parking, at the rear of the bank, will prove a welcome convenience for customers.

Canadian Singer Expected To Be 'Rock 'n' Roll Star

In one week, Vanda King, 14-year-old singer of Scarboro, Ont., has been called to New York to sign a two-year recording contract, has been given a spot on a television show, and has been given a part in a movie. It was a whirlwind rise for Vanda, who has been singing around Toronto for the past three years. When one of her songs was recorded and heard by a New York record maker, he had only one thing to say: "Get that girl down here." She is expected to become one of the top rock 'n' roll singers of the year.

Issue 1957 report on progress of Quebec mining industry

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Quebec Minister of Mines, has released for distribution a report entitled, "Outlines of Progress of the Mining Industry of the Province of Quebec, Year 1957".

This publication presents a concise and accurate record of the developments which took place in the industry during the last year.

The report contains preliminary statistics on the mineral production of the province in the year just closed, as well as descriptions of the many outstanding developments which assure the growth and prosperity of this industry for many years to come.

Studies safety factors for boating enthusiasts

Ottawa (CP) — E. V. C. Hamilton is a federal civil servant who has spent all winter thinking about summer boating.

That's his job, as small boat operations officer, a post recently created by the department of transport. Mr. Hamilton has been assigned to check the growing toll of accidents on Canadian waterways since small boats have come to be a big thing.

"We try to educate people in the ethics of sportsmanship," he said in an interview. "It pays off better than too many regulations."

Since transferring to his new job from the National Defence Department Mr. Hamilton has travelled across Canada to spread the water-safety-and-courtesy gospel. He soon will be heading for the west coast to get an early start on the sailing there.

Mark Capacity

He also is arranging tests in co-operation with small-boat manufacturers to determine the capacity of various craft. Soon, small boats will be labelled with recommended horsepower of outboard motor to be used and number of passengers to be carried.

Boats are Mr. Hamilton's second love — next to airplanes. He flew with the Royal Flying Corps in the First World War, getting his wings after only seven flying hours.

"I soloed after 1½ hours," he recalled. "Everybody did. The machines weren't so complicated then. If you got up and down without breaking anything, you passed."

Weir is locale for Otter Lake Music Centre

With the approach of the holiday season, many amateurs who enjoy fine music-making are eagerly anticipating the sixth season of Otter Lake Music Centre, which will be held this year from June 29 to July 27.

The locale will again be Round Lake Inn at Weir. Here participants will be offered a wide choice of courses during the mornings, while afternoons will be free for sports or relaxation. Evenings will be given over to concerts by the members and invited artists, and to folk singing and folk dancing.

The program includes courses in recorder playing, choral singing, chamber music, elementary theory, etc., as well as school music, folk singing and folk dancing. The lake nearby provides facilities for swimming and boating, there are tennis courts close by and a golf course within a reasonable distance. The Centre is perfectly bilingual, and all activities are conducted in an atmosphere of relaxing informality.

For more detailed information, apply to the Secretary, Otter Lake Music Centre, Inc., Box 195, Outremont, Que.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. My husband is in the R.C.M.P. and is frequently moved around. I have to move with him. Sometimes he is near a city and sometimes not. I am a comptometer operator and I don't want any other employment for fear of losing my skill. At present I am not employed. Can I claim benefit?

A. By limiting yourself to acceptance of employment only as a comptometer operator you may be disqualified as not being available for work, particularly as in some of the places to which you move such work is non-existent.

* * *

Q. I had to leave my job this winter because of sickness. Now I am told I cannot collect even though I have always paid in. Why is this?

A. Payment of benefit may be continued to a person who falls ill, or becomes injured, or is quarantined, while already receiving benefit. Benefit is not paid to a person who loses his employment because of illness, etc., and is incapable of doing any work.

* * *

Q. At the present time I am drawing unemployment insurance benefit. I have been offered employment for three hours per day, five days a week, as a bookkeeper in a garage. My earnings would be $12 per week. (1) May I accept this job without losing my benefits or having them reduced? (2) Will this employer be required to affix stamps in my insurance book if I accept the job?

A. (1) Your benefit may be reduced. A claimant is allowed to earn up to a certain amount without loss of benefit. When this amount is exceeded benefit is reduced by such excess. Without knowing the rate of benefit that you are receiving it is not possible to give a more precise answer. (2) Yes. These contributions may be of value in helping you to requalify on a subsequent claim for benefit.

* * *

Q. Why am I restricted to receiving benefits based on my last two years of contributions when I have made contributions ever since unemployment insurance started?

A. The two year period was chosen so that a person may show that he has had some recent attachment to insurable employment. Such a period must be long enough to prove that an insured person has a substantial interest and to provide a sufficient test for qualification.

First floor prices announced on farm products

Ottawa (CP) — Agriculture Minister Douglas Harkness announced new support prices for three farm products: 64 cents a pound, for delivery at Montreal, for butter — a six-cents increase; $25 a hundredweight for Grade A hogs delivered at Toronto, up from $23; deficiency payment for wool — not previously supported — of 60 cents a pound, grading western range choice 58/60s, half blood staple, free on board at Toronto.

The supports were the first set under the new Agricultural Stabilization Act, which replaces the old Agricultural Prices Support Act. Additional supports were to be announced later.

Views on 'low income' farmers

500 Farm Forums across Canada discussed "The 'Low Income' Farmer" on one of the last programs of the season. Of these groups, 75% felt that there is a special problem of the "low income" farmer and specific policies should be developed to help him. 61% of the forums thought that these programs should be to help him increase his income from the farm, especially if the individual is efficient, prefers farming as a way of life, but lacks the resources to establish an economic unit. He should be helped to become established in some other industry if he is not suited to farming, said 21%.

35% of the Forums suggested that extension and education courses in farm management, and soil conservation would be one way of helping the "low income" farmer. Long term, low interest loans to enable the "low income" farmer to establish an economic unit would also help, said 15% of the forums. 10% thought that the loans should be supervised.

FIRE' PROTECTION FOR TULIPS

Watch tulips this pring for signs of "fire." This fairly common tulip trouble is known by several names. Botrytis blight. Fire blight and Tulip Fire

"Fire" disease breaks out with small spots on leaves and blossom petals, as shown in the accompanying Garden Graph. The follows "blighting" at the edge of the leaves causing them to become distorted. Often after a rain brown patches appear covered with a gray fuzz. Mold appears on the flower petals, causing them to rot and drop. Buds turn yellow and fail to open.

Tulip "fire" also attacks the bulbs underground, damaging or destroying them.

If you discover "fire" among your tulips, lift and burn all infected plants to prevent the spread of infection to healthy plants. The fungus spores can be carried to healthy tulips by wind, insects or contact with contaminated garden tools. After digging up diseased bulbs both the soil and the tool used should be disinfected.

There are soil disinfectants which will control the spread of "fire" disease. They can be obtained at most seed or garden supply stores.

Tulip plantings also can be protected against "fire" by spraying the foliage with fermate from the time the leaves develop in early spring until they ripen and die down.

Farmers' Association secretary replies on Producer Marketing

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Macdonald College, Que.
April 17, 1958

Editor, The Watchman,
Lachute, Que.

Dear Sir:

In reply to Mr. Ambrose Hills, re producer marketing boards, I first of all object to the term "arbitrary farm marketing", in connection with marketing boards. The dictionary, Blackie's, defines arbitrary as "done according to one's will or discretion", despotic or tyrannical. As I attempted to point out in my previous letter, these boards are the result of producers' requests. Also, they are subject to state supervision and control in any matter which may affect the welfare of the general public. Therefore I hardly think that arbitrary is a very apt term to describe them.

(See editor's note)

As to whether I failed to prove that Mr. Hills' column is misleading, only the reader's can judge that. I did present the other side of the story for marketing boards, and since only one side of the argument was presented in Mr. Hills' column, I do believe that I am correct to say that it was misleading.

I beg to differ with Mr. Hills that my arguments concerning advertising of farm products are defeatist. Rather I think they are realistic. I cannot see the point of costly advertising when it is a known fact beforehand that advertising cannot have the desired result.

Whether some government legislation is silly, is not for me to answer but rather the responsibility of an informed public. In saying that other governments had passed legislation authorizing producer marketing boards, I was only attempting to point out that Canada is not the first country to introduce such legislation. A producer marketing board was established in Australia in 1920.

Mr. Hills himself answers his second argument. He says that if farm machinery manufacturers tried compulsory marketing of farm machinery, farmers would bring the Anti-Combines Law to bear at once. Does he think that if producer marketing boards were not operating for the welfare of the general public, the same law would not be used against them?

It should be remembered that producer marketing boards are a method of improving the bargaining power of producers who are almost without such power as individuals. They are a means of counter-balancing the resources of large commercial organizations. They are a natural development in this era of commercial giants, and as I pointed out before, farmers developed them because they were forced to do so.

Producer marketing boards are of three types. First, there are boards which negotiate minimum prices. The only function of these boards is to determine with buyers the minimum prices at which produce is sold. Most of the Quebec boards now functioning are of this type.

Second is the negotiating-agency type of board which negotiates prices, and may supervise selling and collect and distribute payments for produce. Such boards now exist in Ontario for asparagus, beans, etc.

The third type is the central selling agency. It handles the buying, selling, grading, distributing, transporting, etc., of the produce.

As I pointed out in my previous letter, only a very small minority of producers feel the compulsory aspects of producer marketing boards. Unfortunately, in the agricultural industry a minority of producers may undermine the welfare of the majority. They may do this by not respecting grading regulations, marketing inferior goods, and by marketing that little extra produce needed to create a surplus. The compulsory powers of marketing boards are to cover either of these two eventualities. They apply only to those producers who do not accept voluntarily the regulations approved by the majority for the benefit of the agricultural industry and the general public.

In this respect we should remember that farming has been revolutionized in the last two decades. Many farmers are now specialists — wheat producers, vegetable growers, and dairy farmers. A check will show that producer marketing boards developed first in the more specialized branches of agriculture. The compulsory features were introduced to discipline those producers who could not or would not adjust to conditions — accept grading and other regulations. Without some regulation the development of the whole industry would have been retarded. But as previously pointed out, boards can be compulsory only if in the public interest and supported by the majority of producers.

As to Mr. Hills' last question, I said that "such boards cannot do away with all the vagaries of prices," and that they could increase prices to producers by a limited amount only. I expect that whether they take the responsibility for falling prices depends on conditions at that time — quantity of product, technological and demand changes, and the national economy.

In closing, I should state my personal views of marketing boards. I dislike them because of their obligatory aspects. On the other hand, I do not think they are as bad as Mr. Hills and other critics would paint them. I do think they are a necessity under today's conditions. Because of the structure of our present economy, and the rapid changes experienced by the agricultural industry, I think they are the farmers' only immediate salvation. However, if family farmers are to control their own destiny, I think that wherever possible producer marketing boards should be gradually replaced by voluntary co-operatives.

— Leslie G. Young, Sec.,
Quebec Farmers' Assn.

(Ed. Note: The word "arbitrary" appeared only in the title above Mr. Hills' letter — for which please no not blame the writer; it is the editor who pens the headlines. Mr. Hills' term applied to farm marketing was "compulsory.")

Crop rotation and root rot

For the past three years the relation between crop sequence and root infection of cereals has been studied in selected fields near Edmonton, Alberta. Dr. L. E. Tyner of the Edmonton, Plant Pathology Laboratory, Science Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, reports that the lowest infections on barley seedlings were from soils that had been planted to one or more crops of oats during the three year study.

Oats is a resistant crop to root rot infection. This cereal does not provide food for the root rot fungi so they decrease in number. On the other hand wheat and barley are susceptible to root rot fungi in the soil so whenever they are planted the fungi tend to increase rapidly. The three fields in the test near Edmonton with the most severe infections had been cropped to wheat or barley for three successive years. Infection in these fields ranged from 44 to 52 per cent.

The severity of root rot infection was assessed by actual observation of the plant roots in the field and a record of the crops grown was obtained from year to year. Other factors such as type of soil, tillage methods, elevation and moisture conditions, were also taken into consideration.

In the late summer of 1957 samples of soil were secured from each field and these were placed in pots in the greenhouse and planted to barley. After three weeks growth the root rot symptoms on the seedlings were estimated. Seven samples produced infection ranging from 31 to 52 per cent, and with only one exception these soils had been cropped to wheat or barley for two of the three years since 1955.

STINGING PESTS

Vancouver (CP) — The black fly is an enemy to head-hunters in the mountains of New Guinea, as it is to Canadian campers at certain times of year. Dr. John Smart of Cambridge University, en route home after visiting New Guinea, said he found 25 species there, 21 more than had previously been known on the big island north of Australia.

"Oh, how my pasterns ache!"

That is probably what old Bessie, with the long, upturned hooves, says over and over again. . . If you don't believe this, take a 2 x 4, lay it on the floor and then stand on it with your heels on the floor and the ball of your feet resting on the edge of the 2 x 4. Stand straight this way for five minutes, and note the pain in the back of your legs.

It is an old established fact that, when cows are uncomfortable, they will not produce the maximum amount of milk. . . After being in the stable all winter, most of them will have upturned hooves.

Trimming hooves is a good job for a rainy day. If the surplus growth is kept trimmed off the end of the hooves, the long, turned-up toes will not develop. The surplus growth can be easily trimmed off by means of a hoof-nipper, or a carpentes's chisel with a long handle, and a mallet. When using the latter method, the cow should be placed on a plank floor and between two poles which are set about 30 inches above the floor. If the cow is blindfolded, the ends of the hooves can be easily and quickly chiseled off.

Another way I have seen this done, was to tie the cow's foot up to the litter-carrier track, and then you can pare the under part with a paring knife. . .

Then, when you have finished trimming, give them a good feed of PURINA DAIRY CHOW. You can get them here. We deliver; so better order now and have some ready.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Check Depraved Appetites

A reader writes, "one of my neighbors is having trouble with his cows not eating their feed, but when turned out for the day they go directly to the manure pile and start eating. My neighbor feeds silage, alfalfa mixed hay and concentrates, so I wonder why the cows go for the manure pile?"

Dr. Bohstedt

Usually such depraved appetites result from a nutritional deficiency, but sometimes the animals are merely tired of the roughage, perhaps of too common a quality and fed for months at a time. Lack of salt is one of the most common causes of such depraved appetites and you can easily cure these cases. Just be sure that the cows are getting one per cent added salt mixed in their grain rations. In addition to the salt in the ration, which serves both to increase its palatability and to meet the physiological need for salt, it is always wise to have salt, either loose or block salt, available free choice for the animals.

Experiments at Cornell University with dairy cattle showed one of the early symptoms of salt deficiency to be a depraved appetite and the experimental animals would lick urine or eat dirt or other objects to satisfy their need. When sufficient salt was made available the appetites returned to normal.

At times cows or sheep will refuse to eat their feed if the feed has been grown on soil that is severely deficient in one or more minerals such as phosphorus or cobalt.

For instance, range cattle on phosphorus-deficient land in South Africa have been known to chew carcasses of other cattle that had died from infectious diseases, in order to obtain phosphorus from the bones, and even from the meat. In our own country sheep that are grazing on cobalt-deficient pasture, or fed hay grown on such land will go off their feed. Even though these sheep may be fed all the corn they want in addition to the cobalt-deficient roughage in their ration they will stop eating, become emaciated and succumb unless the cobalt deficiency is remedied.

Free-choice feeding of a simple calcium-phosphorus mixture and trace mineral salt should be ample insurance against the more common causes of depraved appetites in dairy animals.

Question: Can salt be overfed in a ration?

Answer: Not ordinarily. Beef cattle producers on range areas can adjust the amount of protein supplement consumed by beef cows or steers by mixing in salt and self-feeding. Beef cattle have been known to consume as much as one pound of salt daily for long periods of time without any injury whatsoever. Of course, plenty of water must be available when feeding such large amounts of salt.

What truck buyers can learn from the big Fargo fleets...

Look behind the scenes and you'll soon discover why more and more haulers are making the swing to FARGO. When successful fleet operators such as Kleyson's Cartage Company, Limited, Winnipeg buy forty big Fargos at once, you know Fargo's got something special to offer!

Kleysen's Cartage typifies the truck fleets that find real day-after-day, year-after-year satisfaction with Fargo on the job. There are plenty of reasons for that satisfaction, too.

Take economy, for instance. New Fargo V-8's pack up to 234 horsepower, yet their unique combustion chamber design wrings bonus miles from every tankful of gas. And no other engine has the famous-for-thrift reputation of Fargo's efficient Six!

Ruggedness is another reason. Fargo rear axles in all models are heavy-duty engineered, specially treated for fatigue-resistance. Rear springs on high-tonnage D700's have been increased to 3 inches wide, are extra long and resilient for greater strength. Frames have double-width front crossmembers, and extra-deep centre and rear crossmembers.

Fargo's a better deal for the driver, too, with shorter turning diameters, smooth, super-responsive steering, an independent parking brake that adjusts from inside the cab.

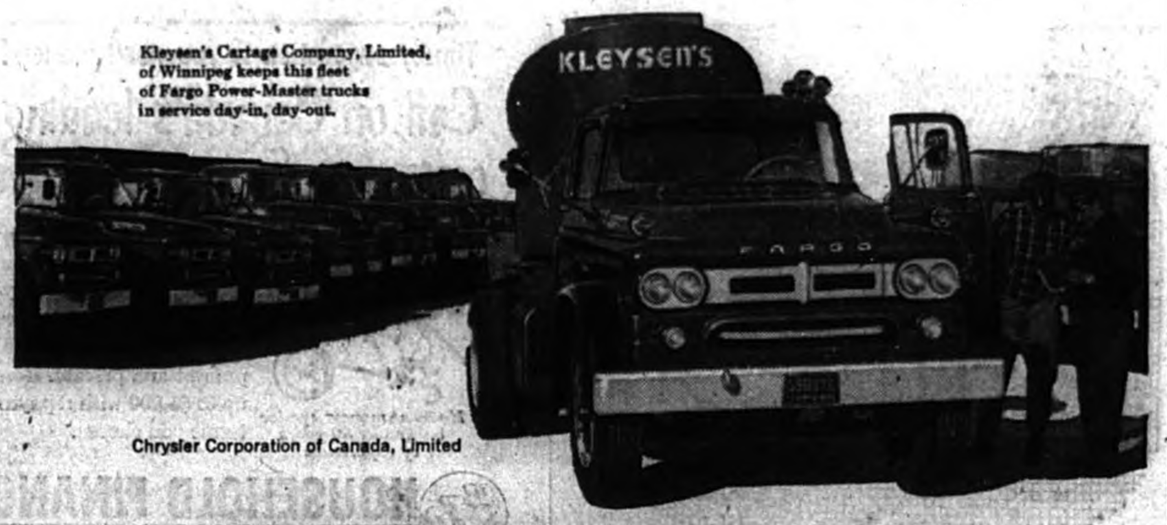

So why not follow the lead of successful truck operators like Kleysen's Cartage Company, and check into '58 Fargo Power-Masters now? Come in right away—see how you're farther ahead when you haul the FARGO way!

Aces at International gymnastics event here

— By Roland Gow, Lachute High School —

At the International Gymnastics Meet held in Lachute High School last Saturday, top gymnasts from Europe, Canada, and the U.S.A. participated and some outstanding feats were witnessed.

The All-Round Championship and all the Individual Championships, except the Pommel Horse, were won by Wilhelm Wieler, of Boden, West Germany. Wieler, who is participating in a number of meets in Canada before going to the Pre-World Championships in Los Angeles, California, on May 10, was the premier gymnast of the meet, and the people of Lachute had an opportunity to see a gymnast of really top-ranking class.

Richard Montpetit, from Michigan University, a member of the U.S.A. Championship team, gave Weiler a close fight. However, Montpetit came second in the All-Round and won the Pommel Horse event.

Frank Grmek, formerly of Czechoslovakia, now a resident of Toronto, came third in the All-Round and presented some amazing gymnastics, especially in the Free-hand Callisthenics and in the High Bar.

The local competitor, Reggie Stansfield, placed sixth in the All Round — a remarkable achievement when one considers the world status of the other participants, and and the fact that he was the only Junior in the meet. Nonetheless, Mr. Arne Petersen, P.T. instructor here, believed he should have done somewhat better. "But, he said, "Reggie never seems to do well at home."

The Students' Council of Lachute High School would like to thank all those who patronized the event.

Concerts campaign extended to include late subscribers

The annual Community Concerts campaign was extended for an additional week or so, on a tabulation of results by the executive last Saturday night. This is more or less a regular procedure, as it is virtually impossible to complete the canvass and have all returns reported within the prescribed time.

The committee notes an encouraging influx of new members, but despite this fact, the enrolment is below requirements for a satisfactory budget. It is hoped and expected that, when all district workers have completed their calls, there will be a membership equal to, or exceeding, that of last year.

Canvassers reporting late returns may call at the office of the president and secretary, Valois & Valois, Notaries, within regular business hours this week or next. Meanwhile, prospective subscribers, and any still undecided, are asked to act immediately and give every support to the success of the Community Concerts campaign.

Fine response to Easter Seals

A report on the Easter Seals campaign, presented at the Lions Club by George Tattersfield, committeeman, shows a very gratifying result this year, with gross receipts of $1,600 as compared with $1,220 last year.

Net proceeds after deducting expenses will approximate $1,250, half of which is remitted to the Quebec Easter Seals Association and the other half remaining in the local funds (that is, net local proceeds of $625). With this fund the Lions Club is instrumental in extending help to crippled residents, retarded children and other victims of crippling maladies in this district.

The portion of the proceeds remitted to headquarters is used in broader administrative work and research, also in hospital treatments, orthopaedic aids and rehabilitation work, among cases in hospitals or brought to the attention of the Society.

A vote of appreciation was given by the Lions to Mr. George Tattersfield for his good work. The secretary was directed to write a special message of appreciation to Mrs. D. D. Mitchell, who for the past several years has undertaken all clerical work in connection with this campaign.

The Lions Club also take this opportunity to express their warm acknowledgment of the public response. The directors appreciate the privilege and public trust which enables this Club to do good work where it is most needed in the community.

Liberals appoint delegates to attend Quebec convention

The Argenteuil Liberal Association met Monday evening in McArthur's Hall under the chairmanship of Bernard Gosselin, at which time 10 delegates and substitutes were chosen to attend the Liberal Convention in Quebec, May 30-31. Heading the list are Philippe Valois, ex-Deputy; Bernard Gosselin, defeated Liberal candidate in the recent Federal election; and the Hon. Georges E. Dansereau, another former Member of Parliament for this constituency.

The seven remaining delegates were Roger Lagarde, of Lachute; Antoine Paré, St. Andrews East; Leon Tessier, of Brownsburg; Fernand Legault, Q.C., Dr. Roger Lavigne, and Bernard Jenkins, all of Lachute; and Gaetan Dansereau, of Pte.-au-Chene.

Substitutes chosen were Wilfrid Morrissette, of Lachute; Stanley Rodgers, St. Andrews East; Henri Lemay, of Brownsburg; Notary Simon Valois, Dr. Charles Roy, and Mrs. Bernard Gosselin, all of Lachute; and Thos. Fox, of Kilmar.

A vote of appreciation and recognition was extended on behalf of Georges Emile Lapalme, leader of the Quebec Liberals for the past eight years. The motion was made by the Hon. Mr. Dansereau and adopted by the assembly.

Fernand Legault, Q.C., acted as secretary of the meeting.

A full agenda at the Lions Club session last week was devoted mostly to community service (the "raison d'être" of this organization) and in consequence presented numerous demands on the Club's treasury.

President Ernest Snadden gave a highly satisfying report on the students' Public Speaking entries sponsored by this club, and sufficient funds were voted to send the three successful speakers, and their escort, to participate in the final Eastern Canada competitions at Trenton, Ont. (A news report on the achievements of the Lachute students was given in this newspaper last week.)

Dr. Eric Mongeon, sparkplug of the Little Major League baseball, outlined the requirements of this Lions-sponsored effort in both material and personal assistance. He enlisted several volunteers to aid in supervising the 100-odd boys who depend on this recreation every summer, and the Club voted necessary funds to equip the six teams which it is proposed to organize for the league this season.

A number of underpriviliged children are being treated to a trip to the Hamid & Morton Circus in Montreal, May 12-13, as guests of the Shriners. On invitation of the local chapter, the Lions Club agreed to arrange bus transportation for the local children, and to attend to necessary supervision and arrangements.

On a representation by Lion Don Titman in connection with the Community Concerts campaign, the Club again voted to provide 20 season tickets for school students to attend the 1958-59 concerts.

Club and inter-club business also occupied the attention of the gathering. The annual car drawing, to be held at Lachute Spring Fair, is in the hands of Lions Jos. Dumais and Ernest Emmett as joint chairmen. Lion Armand Desrosiers was thanked for his consideration as supplier of the Vauxhall 1958 car, and appreciation was expressed to J. P. MacKimmie & Sons for repainting the sign used in displaying the car.

There was some lively discussion — on community ethics in connection with the selling of merchandise for charity work; on the comparative merits of active workers and "knife and fork" clubmen (those who attend suppers only); and on the possible achievements if all "joiners" were hard-working, operative members. . . The philosophy emanating from this banter might be applicable to any and every organization, and even to communal living on a broader scale.

Lion Roger Regimbal gave a boost to the District "A" convention at North Bay, June 1-4; and Miville Trickey, president of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke of a conducted tour of the St. Laurence Seaway workings, arranged by the Chamber for May 24. Next meeting of the club will be District Governor's Night.

Membership Chevrons

A highlight of the proceedings was the presentation of "Monarch" certificates to two 20-year members — J. S. Giles (the oldest Lion member in Quebec, in point of age) and Nat Boyd; five 15-year members — Léopold Carrière, Geo. Y. Deacon, Dr. R. Dumais, Fernand Legault, and A. Gordon McOuat; and chevrons to six 10-year members — Ian Gordon, E. M. Jones, André Lefebvre, Bertrand L'Heureux, Robt. Marcil and Gabriel Valois.

Five-year perfect attendance chevrons were awarded to Roger Regimbal (1951-55), Gordon Davidson (1953-57), and Phil Tremblay (1953-57).

Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, District Governor, read the citations and presented the tokens to these deserving clubmen.

Keith W. Clarke filled a busy role as secretary.

Cancer crusade

Fresh in memory is the fight against polio. In Canada and the United States we contributed almost $500,000,000 over the space of 18 years. Can anyone doubt it was worth the Salk vaccine? Let's keep this in mind when we hear a knock and open the door to a cancer crusader.

Townsman victim of road mishap, seriously injured

Frank Bedard, 29-year-old Main Street businessman, was reported still on the "serious" list by doctors at the Montreal Neurological Hospital this morning, following an accident Friday morning in which he suffered severe head injuries.

The mishap shortly after midnight, occurred at the corner of Foundry and Main Streets, near the North River, and according to witnesses, Frank Bedard, who was on a motor-scooter, was driving about 15-20 miles an hour when he hit the utility pole.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Iddon and Mr. Fred Roberts were in front of the Roberts residence at the time, and the latter reports seeing Bedard driving along Main Street in the heavy rain and high wind. Mr. Roberts reported the driver was going slowly and just seemed to swerve into the post, falling to the ground.

He immediately called police, Mr. Iddon rushing to the victim to see what aid could be rendered; and with arrival of the police, an ambulance was summoned and the victim taken to the Providence Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Roger Lavigne. He was then rushed to the Montreal Neurological Hospital where, although still on the serious list, he is believed to be on the road to recovery.

Sgt. Marcel Therrien and Cst. Gilles Poirier were called to the scene; they reported that the victim was bleeding profusely and apparently unconscious, but he regained consciousness in the ambulance and spoke to the officer.

A five-hour operation was performed early on Friday by Doctors Crone and Bertrand, and latest reports indicate that no permanent injury will result.

Vandalism and thefts at many summer camps

Serious damage and thefts have been reported from nearly 40 camps in the county, according to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, of the local Provincial Police detachment. In giving details of the break-ins, the detective asked that any information regarding the incidents be forwarded to his office.

Malicious damage, with little apparent thought of theft, was in evidence in several camps at Lake Louisa, while damage and theft were reported in some 15 camps on the Ottawa River in the St. Andrews East - Carillon area. In addition to this, some 20 summer residences were broken into on Barron's Lake, near Lakefield, and a number of camps looted. It is believed the majority of stolen articles have been recovered, however — a large quantity of loot having been found in one of the camps.

While police have clues and suspicions, no arrests have been made to date.

Sgt.-Det. Allen, in appealing for information connected with the above-mentioned cases, stated that for the past two weeks the local office, situated in the Court House Building, has been open until 1 a.m. in an effort to improve the police service. Phone number of the office, now open from 8 a.m. to 1 a.m., is LO 2-2233. For more efficient service, all calls should be directed to that number.

Aerial advertising for pharmacy

The legend appearing on this balloon reads: "Beaton's Pharmacy — Free Delivery — LO 2-5218." The balloon, launched last week-end, floats conspicuously over the store and Main Street shopping crowds. Inflated with helium gas, the "non-dirigible" measures 17 feet long by 8 feet diameter. It floats at an altitude of 300 feet.

Reminiscent of the Graf Zeppelin and R-100 in miniature, it is emphasized by the proprietor, Donat Saulnier, that this gimmick is strictly a symbol of peace, progress and (he hopes) prosperity.

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The regular meeting of Brownsburg Home and School Association was held in the school cafeteria on April 16, with President Fred Gervais in the chair.

During the discussion of new business, Mr. Gervais read a letter of appreciation from the Students' Council expressing their gratitude for the Association's provision of food at the "Hags' Drag" dance.

The members were asked to nominate three of their number to be official delegates to the Home and School Association convention. Mrs. G. Tomalty and Mrs. C. Low accepted and will attend the sessions to be held May 3, at McGill University.

This being the final regular meeting of the year, a nominating committee was chosen to select a proposed slate of officers for the 1958-1959 school year. Mrs. W. Hamilton, Mr. K. Dalrymple, Mrs. C. Armstrong, Mrs. G. Connelly and Mr. J. Gervais were elected, and will present their new executive nominees at the next meeting, to be held on Wednesday, May 14, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Phil Grant introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Andrew McGerrigle, principal of Grenville High School. His subject, "Education from a Teacher's Point of View" was a light, and at times humorous, treatment of the teacher's responsibilities to the students. These responsibilities range from confirming, by telephone, the fact that classes will or will not be held on stormy winter mornings, to the investigation of special cases where pupils are having difficulties with their schoolwork as a result of personal troubles. Mr. McGerrigle expressed the thought that problems associated with responsibilities of the latter type may best be solved by following Christian principles.

It is also the responsibility of teachers to encourage student participation in sports, since TV appears to be producing a nation of spectators. These same sports activities often provide the teacher with many otherwise unavailable opportunities for approaching students on other than academic levels.

A most important phase of every teacher's work is that of instilling a sense of responsibility in the pupil. One of the most successful ways of doing this is to share with the 16 and 17-year age groups, the plans and information on intended projects. It was also stated by the speaker that teachers must sell education to the students, and he concluded his remarks by stressing the importance of encouraging students to complete their high school education.

The speaker was thanked by vice-president Merrin Cowley, who voiced the opinion of all those present when he stated that Mr. McGerrigle's visit had been thoroughly enjoyed.

Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. D. Dixon, and the meeting adjourned until election night, May 14.

Minnow Ban is priority topic at Argenteuil Fish and Game meeting

Debate on the recent legislation imposing a total "minnow ban" in Argenteuil County is warming up considerably with the opening of the Trout season, and many local fishermen have unofficially voiced their opinions, the majority apparently being in favor of the ban in the event that a poisoning and re-stocking program is going to be followed through — as was stated by Dr. Gus Provost at last Monday's meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Association.

The total minnow ban is, according to the fishing regulations, restricted to Argenteuil County and was put into effect with this re-stocking idea in mind, an idea that has been carried out in many of the States.

The idea of Argenteuil County becoming a laboratory for the proving of Dr. Provost's contention (that Quebec must have a total minnow ban to save the trout) has been approved by many local fishermen provided that positive action is taken in the immediate future to realize these aims.

Members of the executive of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association have, as individuals, voiced approval of the new law, and this has also been done by the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations.

At last week's meeting, at which some 70 persons were present including the three district game wardens, Dr. Provost cited the case of the Eastern Townships where, he said good fishing has been provided through these methods operated from the biological station at Baldwin's Mills. He mentioned such waters at Baldwin Pond, Lake Lyster, etc., on which a carefully-kept creel census is held as demonstration of the contention that there is good fishing out there. If the line is held against those who are demanding the repeal of the Argenteuil absolute minnow ban the plan would be to switch the main effort of the department's biology department from the Townships to our neighboring county. And if the Argenteuil experiment is successful Dr. Provost expects it to pave the way to the achievement of his main objective — the total ban of minnows throughout the province.

Officers elected for Argenteuil Forum council

Business from the previous meeting was discussed. Ross Oswald, Quebec representative on the board of National Farm Radio Forum, gave a brief talk on the recent National Board meeting held in Toronto.

Elections were held to appoint new officers for the coming year. Davis MacVicar was elected president; with Ross Oswald, who retired as president, named vice-president; and Mrs. Allan Walker elected secretary-treasurer in place of Miss Margaret Brass, who has so capably filled this position for the past two years.

The next meeting is to be held around May 22, at which time plans for the refreshment booth at the Lachute Spring Fair will be finalized. . . The meeting was then adjourned.

Campaign meeting for Cancer drive

Gerard Lefebvre, chairman of the fund campaign for Argenteuil Section, Canadian Cancer Society, reports there will be a meeting of all captains of the canvassing organization in the Lachute Town Hall next Monday, May 5, at 8 p.m.

The campaign will be held on Monday, May 12, and all concerned are requested to be in attendance at this preliminary meeting.

Keen interest in textile conference Montral, May 6-8

Delegates from all over Canada will gather in Montreal on May 6-7-8 for an event unique in world textile history. With "a place for all", the Canadian Textile Conference will be the first gathering of its type ever held.

It is expected that more than 800 men and women representatives of the vast Canadian primary textile industry will register for the business sessions, and that some 5,000 people will see the mammoth fashion shows scattered throughout the three days.

Personnel and management of Ayers Limited, Lachute, are taking an active part in arrangements for this big undertaking.

More than a year in the planning, the Conference will cover almost every phase of textile industry business with more than 30 speakers, many of national and international fame. Two separate programs have been arranged to provide the ladies with alternate events during the more technical business sessions.

The Conference is organized entirely by the primary textile industry and its member groups and is designed to attract technicians, designers, marketing experts, economists, accountants, management, etc. At the same time the program includes a place for chemical suppliers, garment manufacturers, retailers and consumers.

"First industrial conference in Montreal's new Queen Elizabeth, this gathering has attracted advance registrations from British Columbia to New Brunswick. Many "textile towns" in Ontario and Quebec are staging special events, such as mill visits and displays of textile products, during Conference week under the general slogan of "Canadian Textiles for Canadians." Hundreds of display cards bearing this inscription and the Conference motif are being exhibited.

The street festivals of Italy and Spain had fireworks at Christmastime. America now has illuminated community trees. In some places, fireworks still persist.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

Well, folks, this is a new Legion activity! Frankly, there are so many activities around Lachute Branch these days that we believe it is time you, the Public, and some of our less active members, be brought up to date. In addition, the job of Publication Officer goes automatically with the office of 2nd Vice-president in this branch and it's time the P.R.O. accepted his responsibilities — so here we are!

• • •

We hope to keep you posted on activities behind the scenes and items of interest at the Branch, Provincial and Dominion Command levels.

• • •

Two indications of a healthy organization are (1) new members and (2) voluntary labor projects. Both are much in evidence at Branch 70. Eighteen new members joined at the last two meetings. Bouquets to Comrade Mrs. H. Simpson and her active Membership committee. Her efforts have been rewarded with success. One sidelight on membership — a new member told me he was discharged from the army 40 years ago — just now decided to join the Legion. We wonder how many more prospective members are in the same boat. Speaks well for present Legion administration.

We now have 135 paid up and 25 prospective members — so pay up — you are only a prospective member until you do so!

• • •

Although generally thought that we can stand some building expansion, it has been decided to hold off until the kitty is built up a bit — in the meantime then we will keep you up to date on the progress of the clean-up program. The ceiling of the Club Room has been painted a light green, several pieces of worn-out furniture discarded, fire extinguishers repainted and generally the atmosphere is taking a new lease on life. The president and a few stalwarts swung paint brushes until midnight last Friday and polished off the balance of the ceiling the next afternoon. Two members made substantial donations towards the cost of the paint. The House Committee chaired by yours truly, is very grateful. Special mention is given to Comrade Joe Bailey who came all the way down from Cushing to assist.

• • •

Other plans include a Silver Dollar Bingo (see advt.), Holiday Tour Raffle and entertainment projects at the Lachute Spring Fair. We can only say that there may be some big-name persons attending the Fair in connection with the Legion effort. Will keep you posted as plans unfold.

• • •

Cribbage and Dart Tournament has reached semi-finals. Winners compete for Provincial Championships in Montreal during May.

• • •

A newly poured concrete step and a steel rail still to come will enhance the rear entrance to the Memorial Hall.

• • •

Congratulations to Comrade President Dick MacLean for the efficient manner in which monthly meetings are conducted. The newly adopted rituals certainly add dignity and meanfulness to the sessions.

• • •

Lady members are becoming more numerous. Lady Veterans, a hearty welcome will be extended to you at the Hall. See Mrs. H. Simpson for membership application forms.

• • •

Sorry to hear of Comrade Secretary Bob Bradford's resignation. The business of daily commuting to the city is a little rugged so he is moving his family closer to his work. Good luck, Bob! Incidentally, Mrs. Bob was secretary for the Ladies Auxiliary.

See you next week!

Role of huskies in opening Northland

Huskies have played an important role in opening up the Canadian North, according to the new Encyclopedia Canadiana.

In an article on sled dogs, the encyclopedia credits them with having served as a means of transportation for explorers, surveyors, trappers, hunters, fur-traders, prospectors, and the RCMP. They have hauled mail and cargo and have been used in search and rescue work.

The diet of the husky varies with the locality. On the coast he may subsist on fresh seal meat and blubber. In the interior his mainstay may be dried salmon, or he may eat his driver's fare of rolled oats and bacon.

Huskies have been known to pull heavy loads on little or no food for several days. They have a strong affection for and loyalty to their driver and often have died in harness from starvation and exhaustion.

There are four distinct and recognized breeds of northern dogs: the Eskimo, which is thought to have originated in Greenland, Labrador and the northeastern part of the continent; the Malamute, which is the oldest native dog known to Alaska; the Samoyed, and the Siberian husky, which originated in Siberia.

Ski chalet at Nymark's burned

An early morning fire last Sunday destroyed a one-storey ski house at St. Sauveur. The building, at the foot of Hill 70, is owned by Nymark's Lodge of St. Sauveur. It had previously served at the Laurentian headquarters of the Nordic Ski Club.

The house was being rented to individual skiing groups.

Un. Church League bowling banquet and final play

The Lachute United Church Bowling League rolled up the carpets Monday evening, after a splendid season of bowling and fellowship under the presidency of Mrs. Doug Smith. The annual turkey banquet was held, and the refreshment conveners, Mrs. Cliff Cunningham and Mrs. K. Boa, did a superb job of culinary preparation, which was duly appreciated by 60 members and guests.

Mrs. D. Smith headed the proceedings. The Rev. Wilson Bridge extended a warm welcome to the guests, and also thanked the refreshment committee. The Rev. Jas. Armour and the Rev. C. R. Lang expressed their pleasure at being present.

The bowling final was then played — with the leading team among the winners (Miss Margaret Gordon's Beavers) playing against St. Pat's (Miss Gladys Davis). This was one of the best finals seen in years, and not until the last ball was thrown was the outcome decided. The St. Pat's went ahead by 3 in the first end, then the Beavers pulled up even with 3 singles. The Irish again forged to the front with a 2-ender, then again the Beavers had three singles. At the 10th, St Pat's were leading by 3 points, but the league-winners showed their real spirit, scored a single, and in the final end came through with a miraculous 3-pointer, to win 10-9.

The president invited Mrs. Wilson Bridge to present the prizes. The Beavers included — Cliff Matthews, Mrs. Fred Roberts, Mrs. Len Dion, Miss Margaret Gordon, while their opponents were Mrs. John Douglas, Mrs. Ed Armstrong, Miss Laura Davis and Miss Gladys Davis. Both skips spoke briefly, and tribute was paid to the Teen-age team which had played so well and sportingly throughout the season.

The inter-church games will be played next Monday at St. Simeon's Hall, and these two teams will represent the United Church league.

Hotels prepare for summer

The great outdoors beckons vacationers from all parts of the continent to Canadian Pacific's chain of summer resorts from coast to coast. In the upper picture, Banff Springs Hotel and its famous Bow River Valley golf course bask in the sun, showing a few of the many delights of the Canadian Rockies for holiday-makers. Picture at lower left shows the swimming pool at Banff Springs Hotel, which is open this year from May 23 to September 16. The sister resort, beautiful Chateau Lake Louise, will be open from June 10 to September 5. In the sea-conditioned Maritimes on the east coast, Canadian Pacific hotels will be open again this year with their many seaside attractions such as sailing (lower right) near the Lakeside Inn, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. This hotel, and the Digby Pines, Digby, N.S., is open June 27 to September 1, while the Algonquin Hotel at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, N.B., is open June 8 to September 14.

The Battle of the Atlantic

A nightmare recalled — a memory revered

IN THE GRIM and glorious memories of World War II, there is no more poignant epic than the Battle of the Atlantic. As an example of human endurance, determination and sacrifice, it is memorialized in an annual observance known as Battle of the Atlantic Sunday (this year on May 4).

The Battle of the Atlantic is so tragic, yet so illuminating, a chapter in human history that it should be seared in the memories of those who lived during the World War period. And in the consciousness of those unborn, or then too young to realize, it should be instilled as an all-time example of humanity at its finest. . . Fortunately, the story IS preserved for us in literature — in the official records, in vivid factual novels and motion pictures. There is also a fine narrative of Canada's part in the Atlantic nightmare, which we recommend for thought-provoking reading. ("The Far Distant Ships", by Joseph Schull.)

Fifteen years ago was a turning point in a momentous struggle. The year 1943 was the one which saw the Allies at last gain upper hand over the German U-boat menace. It was the year of the invasion of Sicily and Italy and the rejection of the other Axis partners by the Italians. It was the year in which, at last, victory could be seen ahead.

Never had transcendency in the Battle of the Atlantic been more important than in 1943, for on the preservation of the ocean lifeline depended the success of the Allied operations both in that year and the one ahead. Not only did the forces then in action have to be sustained, but the build-up for the great invasion could only be achieved through the safe arrival of ships in Britain.

Yet, the year before had been a tragic one for the Allies in the North Atlantic. In 1942, losses hit their peak and 1,006 ships totalling 5,471,222 tons were sunk.

In this sea of death, Britain was providing 50 per cent of the escort forces and Canada 48 per cent. The United States, with forces committed to the North African invasion, her own coastal convoys and the Pacific war, could contribute only 2 per cent, and early in 1943 indicated she would have to withdraw even this support. . .

These are but remote and cursory glimpses. It is too long a story to recall here; but remembering Canada's part, it is worth noting that, by coincidence, Battle of the Atlantic Sunday this year falls on the 48th anniversary of the establishment of the Naval Service of Canada, which later was designated the Royal Canadian Navy. (The Naval Service Act was assented to on May 4, 1910.)

That same year, two over-age cruisers were acquired and Canada had a navy in being, which was to grow during the Second World War to a force of nearly 400 ships and 90,000 officers and men — a major contribution to the five-and-one-half year struggle on the Atlantic, the longest single battle of the war.

An example of self-help

THE CANADIAN Textile Conference in Montreal next week (May 6-8 in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel) is a commendable example of self-help, by an industry so important in the economy of our country and so closely related to the stability of many Canadian communities.

The Conference is, logically, of special interest to Lachute, where almost every phase of activity is associated with, and in some measure dependent upon, the prosperity of the textile enterprise in our midst.

Efforts of the Canadian textile industry to obtain government relief from the pressure of imports must be supported by evidence of the industry's willingness to help itself — says H. Roy Crabtree, president of the Primary Textiles Institute, who describes the coming Conference as "a demonstration by a vital industry which is making a valuable contribution to the life of all Canadians."

We wish success to the Conference, and to members of the local industry. Ayers Limited, who are contributing their efforts to this big venture.

Adventure in advertising

ANSWERING THE CHARGE that farmers are always asking for help, Dairy Farmers of Canada, the national producers' organization, points to the three million dollars of their own money that farmers have put into advertising during the past eight years. It has cost the participating farmers an average of about 30 cents per cow per year to play an important part in keeping their milk and milk products before the consumer. If all dairy farmers had participated in the program (which is financed by a set-aside deduction of a cent-a-pound on butterfat marketed during the month of June) about five million dollars would have been available for advertising during the last eight years.

As regards the solid accomplishments of their advertising and promotion program, Erle Kitchen says the program has had a subsidiary effect in helping to weld together the 36 member-producer groups which go to make up Dairy Farmers of Canada, of which he is secretary-manager. He feels that the advertising program is a continuing, tangible project which is paying off for the dairy farmer and the industry at large.

W. B. Rettie, an active dairyman as well as president of Dairy Farmers of Canada, thought the population trend indicated that for a long time to come the promotion of dairy foods would be a "must" if farmers were to keep their share of the domestic market.

Age and experience

IN SOME WAYS the older people have become the forgotten citizens of the last few decades.

One reason has been the movement of population from farm to city. On farms there seems more room for old people, and more work for them to do. As the report of the Gordon Royal Commission on Canada's economic prospects puts it: "Old farmers are rather like old soldiers. If they sometimes die, they seldom retire."

Another reason is the change in city dwellings. Families once lived in roomy houses with a yard and garden plot, but no central heating. Many chores were needed to be performed. But the roomy, old-fashioned house is giving way either to the apartment or the small home chock full of labor-saving appliances and designed for the young family.

In such a home there is often just no place for the old relative, who is moved to an institution or suffers a worse fate, described thus in the commission's report:

"In spite of social security measures and the efforts of charity, there are still old people slowly dying in back bedrooms on which the rent is long overdue."

The problem has been increased by the tendency, since the Second World War, for retirement of workers at a stated age. More often than not, it is compulsory retirement.

Nevertheless, there are indications that they may be restored to the place of dignity and importance merited by their age, wisdom and skills.

Church and welfare groups are forming senior citizens' clubs where older people can get together. Some groups are building low-rent housing units where husband and wife can spend their last years together. Industry seems on the verge of rediscovering the productive value of experience, as when retired persons are hired again in the role of trusted messengers.

A Montreal heart specialist, Dr. Harold N. Segall, said in a recent speech that with more complex technology, more experienced workers will be needed. "These people should remain in vigorous health until the late 60s or 70s, working at their special tasks," he said.

SPRING PROBLEM — All is not brightness and warmth when that spring sun warms the earth satellite, a schoolmaster in Prague was to be a fisherman. The age-old conflict will rear its ugly head. . . To have a garden, or not to have a garden?

— Stanstead (Que.) Journal

• • •

SOON AFTER THE launching of the Soviet earth Satellite a schoolmaster in Prague was telling his class about the splendid achievement of Soviet scientists. "Today we have the earth satellite circling our skies," he said. "Tomorrow our scientists will be on the moon; the next day we shall be visiting the planets, and crossing the illimitable spaces to the stars."

A small boy stood up at the back of the class. "Please, Sir," he asked, "when shall we be able to visit Vienna?"

NO RECESSION HERE. — Look around and you will find a surprising number of businesses out of step with the "recession blues," says Stanley Malinoski in The Financial Post.

They are too busy keeping pace with increasing demands for products and services, and setting their sights on higher records.

Balmy weather across the country is adding to the boom-in-the-gloom ranks. It appears that most consumers are still spending freely — but carefully — for a good many products and services. Examples are cited as follows:

Latest reports from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show retail chain store sales up 9.6%, grocery chains up 13.4%, department stores up 5.7%.

What was Canada's greatest disaster?

On December 6, 1917, Halifax, Nova Scotia, was rocked by a giant explosion, which broke windows at Truro 60 miles away and damaged every building in the city itself. The explosion was caused when the Norwegian ship "Imo", sailing out of the harbour, collided with the incoming French ship "Mont Blanc" carrying munitions. "Mont Blanc" exploded into fragments of steel that fell like hail on the north end of Halifax, and an anchor, weighing half a ton, was carried by the blast into some woods two miles away. A square mile at Richmond in the north end was demolished and part of Dartmouth destroyed, with property damage of $35,000,000. A great tidal wave broke ships' moorings, drowned those near the shore and ruined the waterfront. Sixteen hundred and thirty people were killed and several thousand injured. The raging blizzard that followed found thousands living in tents or windowless houses.

Cadieux was the name of a French Canadian coureur de bois and his story belongs as much to legend as to history. Cadieux and his family happened to encounter on Allumette Island in 1709, a party of Iroquois on one of their raids for furs at the Ottawa portages. Acting as a decoy and firing while on land, he enabled his folk, in their birch bark canoe, to shoot the rapids and escape to Montreal. Left alone, Cadieux died of starvation, after digging his grave. According to legend, he wrote his "complainte" with his own blood on a piece of birch bark and fixed it to a tree. There it was found close to his half buried body, along a portage trail. A wooden cross and then a stone monument were erected to commemorate his deed.

Cadieux's "complainte" or death song, is one of the best folk songs of the truly Canadian repertory. It has been the object of special mention in a number of early voyageur chronicles, as well as in later works, having been recorded a number of times since the 1860's.

Louis Rubenstein, the son of an old Montreal Jewish family, was born in Montreal in 1861. At the age of 18 he won the Canadian skating championship, scoring 45 of a possible 48 points. He held this title for many years and won the U.S. championship in 1885, 1888, and 1889. At St. Petersburg in 1890, Rubenstein won the world figure skating championship, with medals for diagram skating and special figures. In 1900 he became world amateur skating champion, establishing a record that still remains unbroken.

In the business field he was a partner in the family firm of Rubenstein Brothers, silver-platers and manufacturers. He was also alderman of St. Louis Ward, Montreal. The Rubenstein Baths were named in his honor and a monument to his memory was erected in Montreal in 1939.

Opening celebration for B.C. Centennial

Ottawa (CP) — Giant bonfires blazing in 200 communities from Victoria to remote villages in the north country on Sunday night started province-wide celebration of the British Columbia Centennial.

Sunday was designated a day of thanksgiving to mark B.C.'s 100th birthday. "The theme of thanksgiving is one which should be uppermost in our minds," said L. J. Wallace, chairman of the centennial committee.

Victoria was the centre of the opening ceremonies starting with the arrival last Saturday of the SS Commodore, a replica of the side-wheeler which brought the first gold-seekers to B.C. on April 25, 1858.

Lest We Forget — The Battle of the Atlantic

TURN OF THE TIDE. — Fifteen years ago, in 1943, the Allies at last began to gain the upper hand in the Battle of the Atlantic. Across Canada, this important anniversary will be observed on Battle of the Atlantic Sunday, May 4. Ships of the RCN accounted for five submarines in 1943, using depth charges, as pictured above, with telling effect.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

$5,000 A Year

The average worker at the steel company in Hamilton makes about $5,000 a year. Wage rates now run at about $2.56 per hour worked. This is much more than workers in other manufacturing plants get; and I'd guess that many farmers and storekeepers — even though they've big investments in land or property — would be happy to wind up a year with a cash profit that high.

So it would seem that the appeal now being made by the steel company to the union to hold the line on wage demands this year would win the sympathy of most observers. It is to be hoped the union gives the appeal plenty of consideration.

This is not a good year to make big demands. The union at Hamilton has asked the steel company for bigger wage increases than ever; but it is hoped they'll reconsider in the light of the present unstable situation in our economy — and in other countries.

Customers of the steel company already have trouble paying for high-priced steel. Some of them are operating at only 50% of capacity. Other countries won't pay our high prices for steel. They get it cheaper elsewhere.

True, workers at the steel company want more money, and that is human enough. No one can be told that his wage is fixed and can go no higher. But they are only being asked to hold the line for one year. Surely that is not too much of a hardship.

If they refuse, and if the steel company knuckles under and pays the additional demands (an extra 66¼ cents per hour worked), the price of everything containing steel will surely go up. Some plants will close down. Unemployment will increase.

On the other hand, if they accept, they'll give a boost to business, and they'll win the approval of consumers everywhere — consumers whose patience with union demands has been wearing thin lately.

Unions, as a matter of fact, have reached the stage where they are bound to act with a great deal more caution and responsibility or they are going to lose the loyalty of the rank-and-file worker. Some unions have already lost quite a bit of that loyalty. Others are in danger of losing it. If the process is not halted, the power and prestige of the union movement are slated for a rapid downward skid. The Canadian public has proved more than once that it can quickly dethrone anyone who abuses power.

The price is $500, take it or leave it, for two weeks' grizzly bear hunting in the rugged B.C. Bella Coola region, with famed Indian guide Clayton Mack.

"The Canadians try to beat me down in my price, and get me to go out for $350. I tell them no.

"I refused 13 guys last year because I couldn't handle them. I wanted to get a bear for every one of them. If they come back with nothing, they go away mad."

Grizzly bear hunting is strictly for glory, prestige and thrills. Grizzly meat isn't very tasty. In the fall, like most bear meat in the region, it tastes strongly of the salmon that the bears feed on.

"There was an American wanted to take a hind quarter back to the States, but he found it was full of pin-worms."

Mack doesn't shoot grizzlies himself. They are no particular use to him. But guiding trophy-hunters is a profitable business.

A number of witnesses declare that grizzlies are not as aggressive as they are reputed to be. Unless you alarm one, or get between a she-bear and her cub, you have a good chance to escape being attacked. However, don't count on it.

Clayton Mack says that he has had four close shaves in his guiding career. Once, he swears, a grizzly threw him in a somersault over his back.

"You won't believe this," said David Moody, a younger Bella Coola Indian, "but Clayton once killed a grizzly bear with rocks."

"We were looking for old cables and straps from a logging camp, but we had our guns with us. Clayton shot this grizzly. It fell on some flat ground. Seemed to be dead.

"Clayton left his gun behind and circled around so that he was higher up the slope, looking down on the grizzly. I was coming toward it from below, when the grizzly started to move. Clayton picked up a big boulder, and threw it down from where he was and hit the grizzly. Then he jumped down with a rock in his hand, and beat it on the head until he smashed its skull."

Baby Bonus can help buy college education

Most parents are only too well aware that it takes a good deal more than brains for a boy or girl to go to college. That's why far-sighted mothers and fathers who want to give their children the best possible in life plan far in advance for the rising costs of higher education.

For many Canadian parents, the monthly family allowance cheque provides an opportunity to lay the groundwork of a savings program designed to cover the costs of higher education for their children.

Family allowance cheques for one child, if deposited in a B of M savings account until the age of 16, will total more than $1,800, including interest the bank pays. It's a tidy sum towards a college career.

If you're in doubt as to what it might cost in the long run to send your boy or girl to college, why not drop in at the Lachute branch of the Bank of Montreal. Donald Hay, the manager, will be glad to give you a copy of the B of M folder outlining a typical education savings program which can easily be adapted to the special requirements of your youngster.

Bank of Canada interest rate down

Ottawa (CP) — The Bank of Canada interest rate dropped sharply again last week, indicating a further easing in the demand for money.

The rate fell to 1.83 percent from 2.14 a week previously. Last week's rate was the lowest level since August 4, 1953, when it hit the all-time low of 1.50 percent, first established February 8, 1944.

The drop in the bank rate reflected a lower rate for short-term government of Canada treasury bills. The lower bill rate — down to 1.58 percent from 1.89 a week earlier — indicated a stronger-than-usual demand for the treasury bills.

"Let Them Stop Fishing"

Dr. Provost indicated he is not receptive to the contention that there are times of the fishing season when minnows are the only effective lure for various species — northern pike, walleyes and lake trout. He says if this is indeed true it is up to anglers and the manufacturers who produce artificials to find something to fill the gap. And if nothing can be found, he says they can just stop fishing for that period.

A Dedicated Biologist

From reports of the meeting, the fish and game department's director of biology is truly, fervently and honestly convinced that minnows, particularly perch and sun fish are far the greatest menace to Quebec's speckled trout. He would rather issue licenses for dynamiting, netting or any other illegal means of fishing than to license the use of minnows, according to a statement made.

He Met With Opposition

Persuasive and knowledgeable fellow that he is, Dr. Provost didn't meet with complete agreement at this meeting although some of the audience went along with him. He could not but admit that there was nothing wrong with fishing with minnows taken in waters which are their normal habitat. But he said it has been proven that half-way measures do not work. They tried it for a time in California, he pointed out, but were forced soon to impose the complete ban. Asked how the regulation was going to be enforced, he cited the case of California again, saying that in that state the minimum penalty for using minnows for fishing is a fine of $250 and the maximum is $1,000 or six months in jail.

Imagination Challenged

It has been pointed out that the local minnow ban will be something interesting to watch. To supply even Argenteuil County with trout after lakes have been poisoned will undoubtedly call for hatchery expansion, and to carry on the same program throughout the province is something which challenges the imagination.

Intriguing Speaker

Paul Provencher, of the Quebec North Shore Pulp and Paper Company, was the scheduled guest speaker for the evening and showed several films on hunting and fishing, at the same time backing up Mr. Provost in regard to the ban on minnows.

He gave a talk on some of his own experiences in hunting and fishing, his main interest being hunting deer and bear with a bow and arrow, and screened films of the results of the hunts.

Due to the unavoidably crowded schedule, President Leonard Bedard has expressed the hope that Mr. Provencher will be able to visit the organization at a later date.

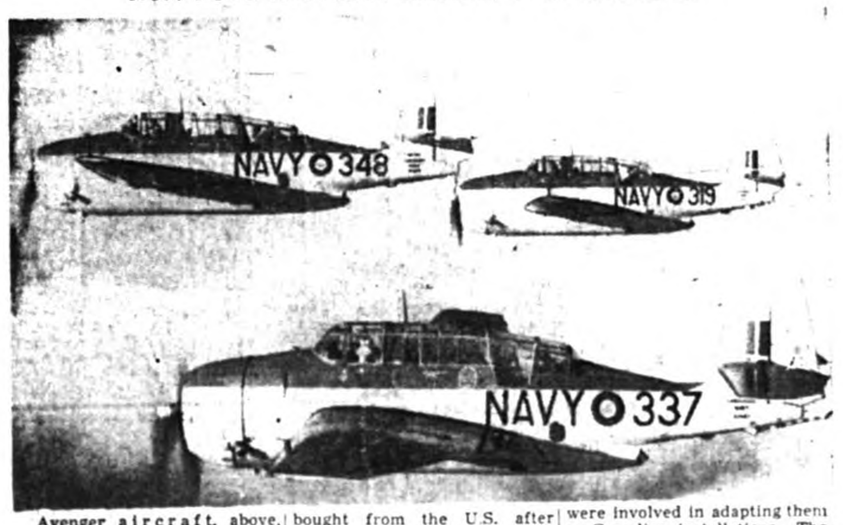

Cabinet disallows phone, freight increases

Ottawa (CP) — The cabinet this week has disallowed railway and telephone rate increases for which applications have been under study. Increases were previously approved by the board of transport commissioners, but were suspended by the cabinet until May 1, pending the hearings.

The phone increases were opposed by 36 Quebec and Ontario municipalities, including all the major centres in the two provinces. They would average about three per cent and amount to some $10,300,000 a year for the Bell Telephone Company.

Eight provinces — all but Ontario and Quebec — entered appeal against the 3.6 percent freight rate increase suspended by the cabinet until May 1. They also asked cabinet to rescind a four percent increase that went into effect January 1, 1957. Both amount to about $25,000,000 a year for Canada's railways.

RCN PUTS AVENGER AIRCRAFT UP FOR SALE

Avenger aircraft, above, since 1952 used by the RCN as torpedo bombers, are now up for sale. Cost of the ships, bought from the U.S. after they had proved serviceability in World War II, was $100,000 plus whatever alteration costs were involved in adapting them to Canadian installations. The RCN is now using Tracker aircraft built by de Havilland Aircraft Co.

Pastor addresses Rotary Club

The Rev. Wm. Baxter, pastor of the Verdun Baptist Church and president of the Verdun Rotary Club, last Thursday evening addressed the local Rotary Club, leaving the members with many thought-provoking ideas on the ideals of Rotary International. General business was discussed at the meeting and preliminary reports on the season's fund raising schemes were given, including that of the Annual Rotary Dance which is to be held in the Lachute Golf and Country Club this Friday evening, May 2.

"Throughout more than 50 years of Rotary History, Rotary has gained distinction and public recognition as a Service Club, he stated in opening, adding "Composed of businessmen who are expected to be interested in profit, our motto is 'Service above Self' and our philosophy of life is expressed in the text found neither in the Bible nor in Shakespeare; "He profits most who serves the best."

"The idea of the kind of service offered by Rotary Clubs is not new, nor is our type of organizaion a new thing as Monastic Orders in Medieval times were similarly organized to render similar services.

The Rev. Baxter went on, stating "in seeking among the ancients a prototype of our organizations, I thought naturally of Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves. The number seemed about right, the fraternity was apparently cordial, and they gathered their financial resources from other people, but added that there, the similarity ends, as they had a cave of jewels, which we have not; they were thieves, which we are not and their manner of conducting a financial campaign was somewhat bizarre, not quite up to our standards.

The speaker then went on to Robin Hood and His Merry Men, whose motto was similar to that of Rotary International, but while they stole from the rich to give to the poor, our method of extraction is somewhat more refined. What we take from our fellow citizens, however, is more than money. What we should expect to take from them is more than their cash. The gift without the giver is bare. We seek, expect, and should have their Good Will, Respect and Sympatny.

We then advance to King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table. There we find no cut-throat thievery or outlaws hiding in the woods, but law and justice, order and industry and the splendors of nobility, and there gentlemen, you have the ultimate source of those true riches of life that we covet for ourselves and would distribute among our fellows. Riches, that, were they possessed by all men everywhere, would bring peace on earth and good will among men. Wealth, not of gold and silver, and precious stones, but of personality, character and spirit.

Paper collection this Saturday

A Boy Scout paper canvass will be held in Lachute this Saturday, May 3. Householders and storekeepers are asked to bundle and tie waste paper securely, and place in readiness for collection. It will be appreciated if newspapers and magazines are tied in separate bundles, distinct from cartons and other waste. The trucks will start their rounds at 9 a.m.

Women's League at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — The regular monthly meeting of the C.W.L., St. Louis-de-France Sub-division, was held April 21 in the parish hall, with Mrs. L. Hall in the chair.

Monthly and yearly reports were read by the conveners. The food sale which was held last Friday proved successful.

Saturday, April 26, being the feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel, all members and their families were urged to attend a special mass and communion at 9 a.m.

Plans were made for the forthcoming convention in June. Elections took place, and new officers were appointed as follows:

After the installation, Mrs. L. Hall presented the gavel to Miss M. Jackson and wished her well in her new office.

The evening ended with the League Prayer, and refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Raymond's group.

CNIB whist held at Brownsburg

A successful military whist party was held by the Women's Auxiliary to the CNIB in the Brownsburg Legion Hall last Wednesday evening, with Mr. Thos. Iddon, m.c.

The winners were as follows:

The proceeds are being used to help furnish the new CNIB centre located at 145 Drew Street, Lachute. Contributions of furniture or household articles of any kind which could be used to help in this project will be appreciated. Anyone with anything to donate, please call the CNIB office, Lachute.

Thanks are extended to Miss Sandra Hall, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Hall, of Brownsburg, who sold her old toys and comic books, and donated the proceeds of $2 to the CNIB to help with their work.

Battle of Atlantic Sunday observance

Battle of the Atlantic Sunday (May 4) this year has a special significance, marking as it does the 15th anniversary of the events at sea which marked the "turning of the tide" for the Allies in World War II.

Sunday services and observances will be held across Canada, with the exception of Halifax, where the commemoration day has been delayed to May 11 because a large portion of the Atlantic Command's ships will be absent on exercises on May 4.

The Gospel of Mark

Why is the Gospel of Mark usually the first book of the Bible to be put into a new language? This question is often asked, and has been answered in simple terms by a modern translator, the Rev. Pham Xuan Tin of Vietnam, as follows:

1. Mark is the easiest Gospel to translate from the literary standpoint.
2. Since Mark is the shortest of the four Gospels, it takes less time to translate it and it can be revised quickly.
3. This book does not contain a lot of proper names which are hard to translate.
4. The tribespeople understand it easily when they read it.
5. I have seen many people saved as the result of reading this book.

ABUNDANT LIFE
BY ORAL ROBERTS

TURN ME LOOSE — I'M GOING TO WALK

The world cannot hear this message too often, "God is a good God." He is able and willing to help you. Our problem is to turn our faith loose.

Anna's history was pretty bleak. In January 1951, she was in a train-car wreck and sustained a severely fractured right leg and complications. When Anna was released from Hermann Hospital, Houston, Texas —she was on crutches.

Sgt. Bill W., the friend with whom Anna was riding when the train-auto accident occurred, fell in love with her and they were married. However on September 22, 1952, she was stricken with polio and rushed to Jefferson Davis Hospital, Houston's Polio Center. The baby, little Benjamin Rex, was born January 7, 1953. Two weeks later, Anna left the hospital—still on crutches.

April 25, 1955 they arrived in Wichita Falls, Texas where Bill was stationed at Sheppard Air Force Base. On the first Sunday, Bill and Anna and another young couple were watching a religious television program in their home. The program was concerning God's love and His power. He was presented as a good God. One Who is able to heal. At the close of the program there was prayer for those viewing the program.

Bill shot a quick glance at his wife sitting across the room from him. He and the other couple were praying quietly to themselves. He said, "At that precise moment a strange feeling entered into Anna's frail body and she said there was a general tingling throughout her body. Her legs felt strange and alive. An overwhelming compulsion told her to GET UP AND WALK."

Bill watch apprehensively. She lurched forward with staggering, unsteady steps. In panic, Bill grabbed for Anna's hand and attempted to steady her. "Turn me loose!" she exclaimed. "I'm going to walk. God has hold of me."

Anna W. did walk. Her unsteady steps grew firm. She tossed back her head and cried exultantly, "The Lord has healed me!"

She picked up little Benny, raised him high over her head and laughed with the thrill of full motherhood. This was her child and although he was 28 months old, this was the first time she had ever had strength to lift him.

What an excited group of people! Anna was crying and laughing, and Harold and Bill were giving happy shouts of praise for the miracle of deliverance. Anna was healed! Anna is walking today.

Here is the story of the Wichita Falls miracle that has been published in every major newspaper in the United States and broadcast over several radio networks. It happened on May 1, 1955 at 1:53 p.m., Sunday afternoon.

WMS meeting theme 'New Look— Our Faith in It'

The Women's Missionary Society of Lachute United Church held their Easter thank-offering meeting April 18.

The Auxiliary president, Mrs. G. Y. Deacon, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Watson, sectional vice-president, chose as her Scripture reading 2nd Timothy, showing how two Christian women influenced the Christian world — Lois and Eunice, mother and grandmother. By teaching and example they brought up Timothy to be a missionary to follow Paul. "We too have a Christian responsibility. Do not leave it to the Sunday School teachers. It is up to present day mothers and grandmothers to keep the faith and show a good example."

Mrs. Deacon introduced Mrs. Eric Erry, Montreal Presbyterial president, and P. Stafford — retiring branch president, and welcomed out-of-town Auxiliaries and Associate members.

Mrs. Stafford brought greetings from the Auxiliary of the South Minister Church, Ottawa. She gave a report of a meeting at which Miss Evelyn Wilson, executive secretary of the Dominion Council, spoke recommending that United Organizations be set up. She said that the W.M.S. has more at stake than the W.A., which has only local interests. The committee is studying all angles of this proposal, and there will be an interim report at the General Council.

Mrs. Erry, who brought greetings from the Montreal Presbyterial, spoke on "The New Look and Our Faith In It," stating that a new look has grown up between the boards of the United Church and the boards of the W.M.S. Also a closer relationship between our church and the U.S.A., all creeds and colors.

The theme of Mrs. Erry's address was the question of the boy Jesus in the temple, when he said, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" She spoke of progress being made in Angola where they are learning to help themselves to a better way of living; Northern Rhodesia, which has been opened to us since China has been closed; and India, where 15 churches are self-supporting and sending missionaries elsewhere. . . God was the first missionary. He sent Christ, and Christ sent "the twelve".

Even if we cannot be missionaries we can still be about our Father's business' by study, prayer and use of our money, and by visiting the sick in hospitals and homes. By helping immigrants, refugees at home and overseas. By our Supply work. By our Medical work. . . This is our challenge."

Mrs. Wilson Bridge thanked Mrs. Erry, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Stafford and Mrs. S. Campbell, organist.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

God's Purpose

The purpose of God toward this Earth as stated by Him in Eden is certain to be accomplished! . . That is, Populated, and subdued under Man's Dominion. The Righteous New World, or system of things, will come in during this generation, after God's War of Armageddon. — See Revelations 16:14, also read Matthew, Chapters 23 and 24 complete; these chapters make this plain.

God created man to live forever. The first man, Adam, never would have died had he obeyed his Creator. Because he sinned death came upon all men. But that is not the end of the matter.

Christ Jesus, by His death, provided a release from sin and laid the foundation of a new world. That new world will come in during this generation — after God's War of Armageddon. The Bible tells us what that new world will be like and how God "will wipe out every tear from their eyes, and death will be no more, neither will mourning nor outcry nor pain be any more." — Revelation 21:4.

So pain, sorrow and death are not man's inescapable fate. God wants this earth filled with righteous people, all living in perfect peace, health and happiness. Accept God's purpose for man; learn about the new world and what the requirements are for gaining life in it. Learn why this is the grandest time to be living in all history. Learn more about the real purpose of man by reading the Watchtower magazine. Twenty-four issues of this hope-inspiring journal (a one-year subscription) are yours for only $1.

Quebec Home-School groups meet this week-end for annual session

Continuing in a series of short articles designed to create public awareness and interest in the important educational work being carried on by the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations.

More than 350 delegates from Home and School Associations throughout Quebec will meet in Montreal on May 2 and 3, when the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations holds its annual provincial conference.

Business and workshop sessions for the delegates, representing some 20,000 Quebec parents, will be held in the Physical Sciences Centre at McGill University. The conference dinner and other social events will take place in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

"Interest in this year's Conference has reached a record high," said Mrs. C. E. Woolgar, President of the Quebec Federation. She attributed this interest to the increasing emphasis being placed on education within all segments of the population. "The Canadian Conference has served to spark a new concern for educational problems and the role of parents in helping to achieve solutions", she said.

A highlight of the conference will be the first major discussion in Quebec of a national project known as "The Canadian Family Study". A panel of three educators will discuss the subject "What values do the family want to preserve and create." Panelists will be Dr. Alastair MacLeod of the Mental Hygiene Institute, Professor Arthur Lermer of Sir George Williams College, and Mrs. P. DeNeeve of Thomas Moore Institute. Panelists will be introduced by Mrs. J. D. Taylor of Hamilton, Ont., president of the Canadian Federation of Home and School and Parent-Teacher Associations.

The speaker at the conference dinner will be Dr. C. E. Hendry, director of the School of Social Work, University of Toronto, who will discuss changing patterns in home life since pioneer days.

The two-day conference is arranged by a Commite of the Quebec Federation, chaired by Mrs. J. C. Partnuff, of Montreal.

SHIRLEY HARMER GETS FILM CONTRACT

Blonde song-bird Shirley Harmer of Thornton's Corners, Ont., is now on the payroll of a Hollywood studio. For several seasons she was a CBC television star and under the terms of her seven-year movie contract she will still be able to do television shows here. It is rumored she will play opposite Danny Kaye in "The Red Nicols Story."

Two fleas came out of a theatre and discovered it was raining. They stood under the marquee waiting for the rain to stop. Finally one flea turned to the other and said: "Shall we walk or take a dog?"

For Parents Only...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Angry parents

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

The irritation which parents sometimes display toward their children very often stems more from fatigue than from the fact the child has misbehaved. Every parent becomes tired, at one time or another, and what is more natural than to vent peevishness on the nearest object — the child? Very often such fatigue or anxiety concerns an unsolved problem in which the child has not the slightest concern, yet it is punished, perhaps unwisely for a condition for which it was not responsible and over which it had no control.

Children can be terribly aggravating at times, and often this condition is manifested at a time and place where punishment cannot be administered. If your reactions to your child's behavior are occasionally violent, you have lots of company. When you find your own offspring annoying, and even provoking at times, you are not an unnatural parent. You face a problem similar to that of countless mothers and fathers.

Anger can arise in a parent or a child of any age, and it is often over a comparatively minor thing. Some parents and children at certain ages seem to be allergic to each other. Differences in outlook and habits can be exceedingly annoying.

In a home parents feel responsible for directing their children in sensible behavior. Children of all ages long to be independent and be their own bosses, but adolescents want to be treated like grownups, even though they lack the experience of adults.

It is during this period of adolesence that explosions of wrath by parents and children are likely to occur. Parents have good reason for feeling there are some mistakes too tragic to risk, such as trusting the young lad with the family car.

A boy wants to drive a car to impress his girl friend. Parents are dubious about their son's driving skill in an emergency. Is it any wonder there are so many fixed battles over use of the family car?

The Family Council has been a real help in many homes in preventing anger situations from arising or from becoming common occurrences. In other homes, time for talking things over at regular intervals between a parent and child has proven its worth. Before an adolescent has the use of the family car, that adolescent should agree to certain rules. These are safeguards against accidents, and they forestall too great a drain on the family budget. These regulations he must observe, or the use of the car is denied.

There is no magic formula for avoiding all friction. But part of the problem of being a parent is to be able to look at a problem objectively. Good mothers and fathers try to find a solution which is fair and satisfying for both parties. Compromise is always better than angry dictatorship.

The strain of modern living tends to make parents quick to anger. Many adults experience difficulty in controlling their tempers but, because they want their children to show the effect of good discipline, they must demonstrate at all times that their anger can be controlled.

Few modern parents desire to play the role of angry parent. It is unpleasant, damaging to health, to peace of mind, to family happiness. These situations may be avoided to a large extent by parents thinking ahead, trying to forsee situations which might lead some one to lose his temper. They also should try to remove the cause of disputes. Through mutual understanding and co-operation a close association which will make for better family living can be fashioned.

Centuries ago, in Proverbs, XVI, verse 32, a wise man wrote this good advice which is still true today: "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty, and he that ruleth his spirit then he had taken a city."

APPETIZERS ARE THE KEY TO PLEASANT DINING

By Anne Marshall

It's easy to put diners in happy spirits. Set the mood by taking time out for appetizers. A bowl or mug of satisfying soothing soup . . . chilled glasses of V-8, or fruit juice. Most any starter will please if it tempts the appetites. Families and guests take to this refreshing pause before the main food event. So there is no extra work for you, Mrs. Hostess, arrange it in lazy serve-yourself style.

Tonight, start with a tureen or pitcher of soup. Note the cheerful response. What could be more springlike than these soups and garnishes—

After such elegant soup, you'll want to serve a real spring-festival dinner. Try barbecued chicken drumsticks to keep company with . . . buttered green beans, raw vegetable relishes (with sour cream dip), butterscotch layer cake and coffee. Directions go like this:

BARBECUED CHICKEN DRUMSTICKS

Brown 1 dozen drumsticks in hot shortening in a skillet. For sauce, finely chop 1 medium onion, mix in a saucepan with 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ cup ketchup or ½ cup condensed tomato soup, ¾ cup water, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon brown sugar. Bring to a boil and simmer 5 minutes. Pour over chicken; cover and simmer 30 minutes, basting now and then. Serves 6.

RELISHES WITH SOUR CREAM DIP

Arrange a tray of chilled raw vegetables—carrot curls, radishes, green onions, celery, tomato wedges, chunks of cauliflower and brpccoli flowerettes. For the dipping sauce, mix 1 cup chilled sour cream with 1 tablespoon soy sauce and 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

SOUP SCOOPS

PARTY FINALE—HOT CELERY CONSOMME

The "complete" hostess may serve departing guests cups of hot celery-consommé for extra warmth during the late walk or drive home. Heat together a 10-ounce can condensed cream of celery soup, a 10-ounce can condensed consommé and a soup can milk for 4 to 5 servings.

Revised freezing book now available

(Consumer Section)

Improved and enlarged edition of Consumer Section Bulletin No. 892, "Freezing Foods" has come off the press just in time to help usher in the home freezing season.

If you're one of Canada's almost 300,000 home freezer owners, no doubt you are already making plans for freezing asparagus, rhubarb, strawberries, peas and many of the other delightful fresh fruits and vegetables that take well to freezing. This bulletin will tell you how to go about it.

Details are given as to what foods freeze best, how to prepare and package the various foods for freezing and how to serve them to your family when the time comes. Different cooking methods for frozen vegetables, including baking and panfrying, and several new servi...g suggestions have been added to the revised issue of "Freezing Foods". The sections on packaging materials and home freezer management also have been considerably enlarged.

For your free copy of the bulletin, write to: Information Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. (No stamp necessary).

By Carolyn Willett, Canadian Press Staff Writer

For more than 10 years the Canadian Association of Consumers has protested the sales promotion practice of offering dishes, toys or other prizes, premiums and coupons with such consumer articles as cereals, soaps and detergents.

However, Dr. W. Malcolm Drummond of Guelph, Ont., a member of the Royal Commission on price spreads, says many women talk one way and act another.

Dr. Drummond says that while women might complain about various sales gimmicks they still keep buying the items.

One housewife - CAC member appearing before the commission, Mrs. Elizabeth Mills of Victoria, said consumers want what they buy without gimmicks because they realize the cost of the giveaways enters into the price of the package.

There also have been complaints about the prizes themselves. Imagine the housewife who happily collected a series of soap-box saucers and then had trouble finding any cups to match!

The CAC has written letters to more than 200 manufacturers of soaps and cereals protesting that over-advertising is "a perversion of sound economics."

The consumer group contends this type of advertising is expensive, increases and keeps up the product's price, and in the long run doesn't create permanent goodwill for a particular product.

Long Tradition

The Victorian Order of Nurses, preparing for this year's annual meeting in Ottawa, is a home nursing order with more than 60 annual meetings behind it.

At the annual meeting VON officials representing 118 Canadian communities hear reports, participate in conference discussions and talk about the order's future steps.

The VON has a pioneering tradition that even includes services rendered during the Klondike gold rush. In its first years, the order was geared to serve a scattered, mainly-rural population.

There still is an element of pioneering facing the VON. Canada's cities and suburban areas are growing rapidly. Canadians are living longer and the older population is larger, providing a larger group of citizens in need of home care services.

There are new plans for hospital and medical services which will affect the VON. So it is little wonder that the 1958 annual meeting agenda provides plenty of opportunity to explore the VON's most effective place at a time when the need for home nursing is great.

Fashions

Many women prefer a coat cut on chemise lines to its dress counterpart. This one is done in a shadowy gray-and-white checked wool, set off by large white pearl buttons. The straight line of the chemise look is relieved by the deep V yoke with the sleeves cut in one, a neat device.

LIFE EXPECTANCY

Since 1931 life expectancy of Canadian males has increased by 7.6 years to 68.5 years; life expectancy of Canadian females has increased in the period by 11 years to 73 years.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Lettuce Chiffonade
Braised Beef Cubes
Spring Vegetables
Baked Popped Potatoes
Rhubarb Tapioca
Coffee Tea Milk

All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.

To serve 6, remove the fat from 2 lbs. beef; dice into inch cubes. Dust with 2 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper and 1 tsp. monosodium glutamate.

Slow-brown in ¼ c. meat fat or shortening.

Bake in a slow-oven, 325 deg. F. from 3 to 4 hrs., or until very tender. Cooked this way, all the fine flavor of the beef is retained.

Rhubarb Tapioca: Heat 2½ c. well-sweetened stewed rhubarb until boiling. Stir in ¼ c. quick-cooking tapioca, ⅛ tsp. salt and the grated rind of 1 lemon.

Simmer, stirring occasionally, about 10 min., or until the tapioca looks clear. Then add 1½ tsp. lemon juice. Taste. If necessary, add a little granulated sugar.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

Summer nightwear gaily modern

Summer nightwear has taken gaily to the chemise look. This baby doll with the middy collar is in a cool blend of 65 per cent "Terylene" and 35 per cent cotton, which looks like cotton yet keeps its freshness and seldom needs ironing. The collar is trimmed with lace and the little skirt is permanently pleated.

ANTIQUES HELPED

Port Hope, Ont. (CP) — More than 200 people crowded St. Mark's rectory to see an exhibit of antiques loaned in support of the church's building fund. Many were 17th century silver articles.

Time to houseclean the freezer

(Consumer Section)

Time flits by so quickly that soon you'll be starting to refill your home freezer with the new crop of fruits and vegetables. So, while you're in the mood for housecleaning, why not give this important appliance some attention?

About twelve hours before you plan to start, turn the temperature control of the freezer to its coldest position, in order to get the food that's left as cold as possible. If it is necessary to remove the food while housecleaning, wrap it in several thicknesses of newspaper or pack it tightly in heavy cartons. Blankets can be wrapped around it, too, as an added precaution against thawing.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture recommend that, for specific instructions on defrosting and cleaning, you refer to the service manual supplied with your own freezer. Here are three additional suggestions from the home economists:

(1) Never use hot water or a sharp tool to remove ice from the freezer as you might damage the coils or liner. Instead, to hasten defrosting, use an electric fan to blow warm air into the freezer or set the fan inside the freezer to blow out cold air.

(2) If there is an odour in your freezer, wash it well with a solution of vinegar and water (about ¼ cup vinegar to 8 cups water), rinse with clear water and dry well.

(3) Sort the stock of frozen food carefully, bring your inventory up to date and plan to use the remaining fruits and vegetables as soon as possible. If you find that there are several bulky packages of soup bones taking up valuable space, now is the ideal time to get rid of them. Place the soup bones in a large kettle with water and seasonings and simmer several hours. Cool quickly, remove the meat from the bones and package it in freezer containers for use in meat pies, sandwiches, etc. Strain the stock and freeze it in ice cube trays. Remove the cubes, package and store in the freezer. They will be handy for making quick soups and richer gravies during the summer months.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane — Women's Travel Authority

An army travels on its stomach, the old saying goes, and so — in a very important way — do you, when you and your family motor on your vacation.

I always have advocated proper eating schedules on the road, particularly when you're taking the children along. Breakfast is called by nutritionists the "most important meal of the day." This guide to proper diet doesn't change when you're touring. A nourishing breakfast with real staying-power is still essential, but the added dictum — avoid heavy foods — must be heeded, too. To satisfy both requirements, why not try soup for breakfast?

Seem strange? It did to me at first. But it's good. It will stimulate the hardest-to-coax morning appetite. It's also practical, particularly if you stay at motels or tourist homes where breakfast isn't served, or if you like to make an early start before restaurants are open. How about a "stirrup cup" of soup upon awakening and then a regular breakfast an hour or so later? Soup first thing in the morning is a good eye-opener, and canned soup is easily prepared on a portable hot plate or pocket size stove. If you'd rather not heat it yourself, fill your thermos with hot soup the night before.

A woman was consulting a tombstone dealer with regard to a memorial for her late husband. "How would a simple 'Gone Home' do?" asked the dealer. "Perfect," said the widow. "It was always the last place he ever thought of going."

The Hon. William Hamilton, Postmaster General, announces a new design postage stamp to be issued on June 4, 1958.

The new stamp will honor Pierre Gaultier de Varenne, Sieur de la Verendrye, famous French explorer of the early 1700's who penetrated to what is now western Canada via Rainy River and Lake of the Woods. La Verendrye was also responsible for the opening up of extensive trading activities in the western regions.

The stamp was designed by Gerald Trottier, Ottawa, who used the figure of La Verendrye and an Indian from a sculptured monument created by Emile Brunet of Montreal. This monument was unveiled by the St. Boniface Historical Society at St. Boniface, Manitoba, in 1938.

A father brought the cheerful news home to his six-year-old son that the stork had just brought him a lovely baby sister. The youngster's reply: "Aw I was hoping for an older brother."

A Maritime favorite

JOLSON NOTES

By Irvin R. Warwick

"Though April showers
May come your way . . ."

— I was to hear him sing it many times afterward, but I'll never forget that first time.

It was my introduction to Al Jolson.

Actually, my story has its beginning in the very first time I heard him sing, in The Jolson Story. I sat through the picture three times that day, and, literally, with my mouth open. I had found something. I didn't quite know what, yet, but it was something that hit me down deep.

Let me say that this was, for me, unusual. Living in Hollywood had made me take all show people with a grain of salt.

So when Lou Silvers, then orchestra director of the Lux Radio Theatre, invited me to The Jolson Story rehearsal, I jumped at the chance. The rehearsal was scheduled for 12 noon, and that's when we got there. Joley had not been content with that, however: he had come some hours earlier.

And there he was, that first time I saw him: a robust man with a sun-tanned face, sport clothes, and an unbuttoned collar — singing "April Showers".

Was he standing quietly by the mike, as you'd expect a singer to do? He was not! Joley was bouncing all over the place, frequently interrupting himself and the orchestra when he thought they weren't playing it right. (After all, Lou Silvers only wrote the song he didn't have to sing it!) I sat there, spellbound, for three hours while Joley sang, as only he could, all those wonderful songs from The Jolson Story. "April Showers", "Mammy", "Toot, Toot, Tootsie," "California, Here I Come" — he sang 'em all, not once but many times — without sitting down once!

And of all his songs, "April Showers" has always been my favorite, for it introduced me to the World's Greatest Entertainer.

— By Caryl Dietz

Decca has done it again! Sometime before Easter they released more NEW Jolson material: the record "Easter Parade" backed by "Remember". May I repeat, these songs by Al have just been issued by Decca for the first time, and they are taken from his radio show, "Kraft Music Hall". This new record has possibilities of becoming an annual favorite each Easter, similar to Bing Crosby's "White Christmas". Could be, too, that Decca will release Al's version of "White Christmas" before the year is out.

A musical comedy producer explained the chief difference between Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, and Georgie Jessel. "Jolson", said the producer, "has six million dollars and is worried that he's going to lose it. Cantor hasn't got six million dollars and is worried that he isn't going to get it. Jessel is worried that Cantor is going to get it."

Gasoline a bargain on travel budget

By Carol Lane,
Women's Travel Authority

Gasoline is one of the biggest bargains on your travel budget, so make the best of it. Here are some tips on how to save gasoline on your motoring vacation:

1. Don't race the motor when you're starting or waiting at a stop light.
2. If your car has "over-drive", use it for turnpike and highway travel.
3. Drive smoothly — not with sudden bursts of speed. When you've left the highway, slow down. The faster you go, the fewer miles per gallon you'll get.
4. Keep your tires inflated to proper pressure. Soft tires overwork the engine.
5. Sluggish spark plugs, a dirty carburetor, leaking fuel line, slipping clutch — all waste gasoline.
6. Avoid excessive use of low gear and choke.
7. When coming to a stop, let up on accelerator well in advance, and allow car to slow down. Then apply brakes gently. Zooming up to a red light and jamming on your brakes wastes gasoline and wears the brakes. It's also dangerous.

Auto Dare Devils coming May 16

After completing 12 years of successful operation all over the North American Continent, the famed New Canadian Auto Dare Devils will travel from coast to coast in Canada this season, covering more than 25,000 miles and visiting more than 150 communities from Halifax to Victoria.

This Canadian-owned and produced show will present one performance in Lachute, at the Exhibition Grounds, on Friday, May 16.

Exhibitions of precision driving, motorcycle acrobatics and flaming "Slide for Life" are included in the two-hour, 28-event program, which will be climaxed by the most daring stunt ever presented to the thrill-loving public. This is the famous Leap to Leap, or "The Courtship of Death", in which a Chevrolet convertible jumps from one ramp to another, landing on a narrow run-down ramp after hurtling some 80 feet through space.

For the utmost in thrills, chills, and spills, the Canadian Auto Dare Devils has been acclaimed in both Canada and the United States as one of the most exciting shows.

Quick Canadian Quiz

1. The provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick entered Confederation in 1867. In what years did the other six provinces enter?

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. In the case of regular benefit the amount of benefit is based on the average rate of the last 30 weekly contributions made in the 104 weeks prior to date of claim. What is the amount of benefit based on in the case of seasonal benefit when there may have been only 15 (the minimum) weekly contributions in all?

A. In this case, the rate of seasonal benefit is based on the average rate of the contribution weeks since the end of the previous March.

* * *

Q. Is it possible for someone who has been steadily employed for eleven years and paid into the unemployment insurance fund, to collect it when he goes into business for himself and is no longer collecting a wage?

A. A claimant who is employed on his own account is not unemployed and therefore is not eligible for unemployment insurance benefit.

* * *

Q. If an employee who maintains a home in another city is requested to return home owing to family illness would he be entitled to unemployment insurance benefits if he complied and left his employment?

A. Benefit is paid only to persons who are ready, able and willing to immediately accept suitable employment. If a person is not able to accept work because of illness in his family, he is not entitled to benefit.

* * *

Q. If an employee who has temporarily left his home and wife for employment in another city subsequently finds he is unable financially to keep up with living expenses at both ends, is he entitled to unemployment insurance benefits if he left his employment and returned home?

A. This would depend on whether the facts are such that just cause for leaving the job can be established. If there are no exceptional circumstances disqualification for a maximum of six weeks would likely be imposed.

* * *

Q. I have ben receiving seasonal benefit since January 1 and won't be getting work until April 15. How many stamps will I need to qualify for benefit in December 1958, if I happen to be out of work in the construction field?

A. To qualify for seasonal benefit in December 1958, you must have at least 15 contribution weeks after March 30, 1958.

* * *

Q. Please tell me if a stamp which represents a working week is the equivalent of a benefit week or just a day to which I would be entitled.

A. Each weekly stamp that can be counted to arrive at the length of entitlement represents a half-week's benefit.

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

Instead of frost fronds on the window, tender shadows of shy leaves of the syringa . . . instead of drifts of dirty snow, scatterings of daffodils and of scylla . . . instead of old rubbers, old bones, old mittens, fresh shoots of asparagus . . . instead of a prevailing grayness, an increasing greenness . . . it's April, it's wonderful!

Something else comes in April — Daylight Saving. We, in our ignorance, had always thought of it as an unmixed blessing except to the farmers who had to do with unprogressive cows; but a young matron of our acquaintance avers, "I just hate Daylight Saving, and, what is more, Dr. Black agrees with me. "According to her, Daylight Saving is a real health menace, as well as a trial to the nerves. She is the mother of three, and it seems the little dears strenuously resist bed until the sun sets and the full-throated cries of the Canadian youth on the nearby playground die down. Thus, in early summer, it is after nine o'clock before they are all tucked away and she and her husband are at leisure. Then, she say, they are often so exhausted that they too, go to bed — so, there is, in effect, no evening to enjoy.

Speaking as the mother of one normal child, I think she has something; but I also think this is another example of parents shirking their duty. I do not refer to the aforementioned lady, who has a mind of her own, but to thousands of her sisters who have merely a wish-bone instead of a backbone. What is wrong with saying, quietly but firmly, that bedtime is at such an hour, and sticking to it? You may not be popular with the younger set, but is that important? It seems to me that too many parents live in fear of two things—what the neighbors say, and what will the children say? Both would seem to be irrelevant to everyday living, so long as your ideas are Christian ones, of course. There is nothing un-Christian about trying to preserve one's children or one's sanity. As Micah says, "O man, He has told you what is good; what does the Eternal ask from you but to be just and kind, and live in quiet fellowship with your God?" I must admit that the bedtime problem was easy for our household, since we were blessed with a child who was retarded about time-telling; she went to bed when I suggested it, without query about time, and fell asleep. A mother of six tells me that her brood does likewise. They do not play outdoors after supper, they do go to bed on time, and they do fall asleep. It is our opinion that much of the general cussedness of children from four o'clock on is due to exhaustion, unrecognized by either themselves or their parents.

We seem to have forgotten about Easter. Where we were, in Springfield, Vermont, it was rather grim at 7.30 in the morning when we arrived at the little church where we made our Easter communion. The sky was grey, promising snow, the earth was hard, and snow lay about. Inside the church, daffodils blossomed in every window, hyacinths banked the organ and all around the altar were rows and rows of tiny plant pots each containing one small marigold in bloom. As each pot was wrapped in silver foil, the display was quite effective — but puzzling. Only on leaving, did I discover their purpose was financial, not decorative. The two acolytes were selling the little pots at 50 cents each, the money to go toward a fund for the removal of the church to a new site.

Later in the day, we motored through a heavy snow storm from St. Johnsbury to Newport. Once we crossed the border, the snow changed to rain, so that we arrived home safely, but saw one car in the ditch. The pleasant part of the day for us was the few hours we could spend with a cousin in St. Johnsbury. This cousin has a record, we believe, for long courtship — twenty-four years to my knowledge, and some unknown before my time. Now over seventy, Cousin Norman says with a smile and a Vermont nasal drawl, "You know that fellow in the Bible (he means Jacob), he was just a piker to me!"

• • •

We are currently involved in a Fashion Show. One of our older and more respected firms in the city is coming over to present fifty "pieces", with seven professional models and seven more of our amateurs. In case any organization in Lachute is thinking of having a show of this magnitude (seven hundred tickets out), let me warn that, after the selling of the tickets, the hardest task is the readying of the hall. The job of setting out chairs, building ramps, setting up microphones and spotlights, is really trying. By the time you read this, it will be all over, and we shall be the richer by some $700. Every time we do a thing like this, we say grimly, "Never again!" but public memory is mercifully short, and we shall undoubtedly do it, or something similar, all over again next year. . . Women!

• • •

Also, by the time you read this I shall have been at Sunnyacres, after an absence of four months. The head of the house and the daughter were there earlier in the month, and report all well and untouched, except that the mice had had what is popularly called "a ball." Evidently, when the Cooks move out in November, the mice move in. Under the pillows in the blue room was their dining-room, as witnessed by a neat pile of cherry stones. In one corner of a cupboard was the mouse toilet. Once spring comes, they all move out again. Not a mouse was to be seen or heard. These are the big-eared, long-tailed mice called field mice, or deer mice. Pretty little creatures, but a nuisance.

• • •

To end with a lighter note from a British book of school-boy howlers: Note on Bach — "Johann Sebastian Bach was a great musician. He was married and had eleven children. This made it difficult for him to work so he used to practise in the attic on a spinster."

• • •

The younger set is returning for lunch, the dogs are being walked, the whistles blow, and the head of the house begins to prowl uneasily, so perhaps we had better stop being Mary and become Martha. Poor Martha, we have always felt sorry for her, so exasperating to work away in the kitchen and know the fair sister is looking soulfully at the guest. . . And now to lunch.

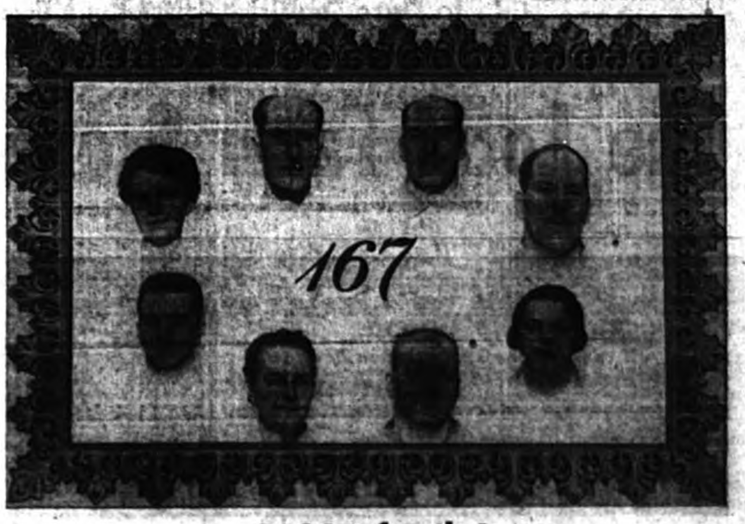

Must come direct

After May 1 all immigrants, with a few minor exceptions, must come direct to Canada, according to a new ruling from Ottawa — reports The Financial Post.

Almost a quarter of last year's record total of immigrants arrived through the U.S., and the great majority of these were carried by U.S. transportation companies.

This was nearly three times as many immigrants as came via New York in 1956.

The Port of Halifax estimates that it lost $500,000 in revenues of all kinds because of this diversion; and the Canadian railways estimate their loss at $2 million for passengers and freight.

Girl Guide, Brownie luncheon held at Lac St. Denis

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The spring general meeting and luncheon of the Laurentian Division of Girl Guides, Brownies and Local Associations, took place at the RCAF Station at Lac St. Denis last Saturday.

A training session for Guide and Brownie Guiders was held from 10.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

A buffet luncheon was then served, the table being centred with a cake especially decorated for the occasion.

The members were welcomed by Mrs. A. Ronnie, president of the Local Association at Lac St. Denis.

The general meeting opened with the enrolment of Guider Mrs. Nielsen, of Ste. Agathe, by Mrs. R. King, Divisional Commissioner.

Mrs. K. King announced that Mrs. Freda Dart, retiring Divisional Commissioner, had been chosen as Eastern Canada representative to tour the United States, in order to observe U.S. Scouting.

An interesting and successful report of activities was then presented.

A Division Day for the Guides and Brownies will be held at Ste. Agathe on September 13 next.

A letter was read from Mrs. Dart thanking the Division for the parting gift of a silver cigarette box, which had been presented to her at a dinner given in her honor recently. At the adjournment of the meeting a delicious luncheon was enjoyed by all present.

Shrubs for home beautification

Ottava — In choosing shrubs for home beautification it is important to consider the purpose each shrub is to serve, foliage characteristics and flowering and fruiting habit, to give variety and a complete appearance to the grounds.

H. T. Allen, of the Lacombe Experimental Farm, says the kinds of plants to use about the house itself depend upon the type of building but generally the larger shrubs should be confined to the corners or to cover expanses of blank wall. Smaller shrubs should be used under windows or to help blend larger plants into the surrounding landscape. Plants with long lasting qualities such as evergreens or deciduous kinds with colorful foliage can be used to emphasize some architectural feature such as the front entrance.

Color in the landscape need not be confined to annual or perennial flowers, since many shrubs are very colorful during their blooming period. For early bloom, such shrubs as the flowering almond, flowering plum and nanking cherry can be used. These are followed by spireas, mock orange, flowering currant, shrub roses, honeysuckles and lilacs. The more tree-like plants such as rosybloom crabapples, May day tree, chokecherry, pincherry, native mountain ash and lilac species could also be added to this group. Not too many shrubs provide bloom late in the season but often some of the shrub roses blossom for a second time in late August and such shrubs as the shrubbery cinquefolia, and Froebel's spirea, bloom throughout most of the summer.

Some kinds are noted for their foliage characteristics and will provide color from late spring until fall. Included in this group are: golden elder, ninebark, silver leaved dogwood, Schubert cherry, buffalo berry, purple leaved plum, red barberry and the purple leaved Rosa rubrifolia.

Plants such as high bush cranberry, burning bush, cotoneaster, mountain ash and cherry prinsepia are noted for their fall foliage colors. To add further to the beauty of the fall season there are such kinds as black and red berried cotoneaster, red elder, mountain ash, highbush cranberry, ornamental crabapples and hawthorns that produce colorful fruit, much of which remains well into the winter period.

Runaway horses were old worry

The band was formed in 1891 and Bill Gray, retired now after 51 years of service with the band, recalls the days of horse carriages, long dresses and poke bonnets.

"When the mud on Stephen Avenue (now 8th Avenue and Calgary's main business street) got too deep we took to the sidewalks," he says.

Runaway horses, frightened by the music, were the number one worry, Mr. Gray recalls. He says many's the time the bandsmen had to leave their instruments to round up the horses before resuming their program.

He says he is not in a position to say if it was just the sound of the musical horns or the brand of music that frightened the horses.

ALL-CANADIAN

Though originally from Siberia, rhubarb is now an all-Canadian plant and has no competition from outside our boundaries. All rhubarb sold in Canada is grown here, the Rhubarb Growers' association says as part of its campaign to make more friends for the plant. April, the association wants the world to know, is the month when the winter-grown variety is most tender and best flavored

Annual meeting of Chemical Inst. at Hawkesbury

The annual meeting of the Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada was held at the Abenaki Golf Club on April 17. The outgoing executive reviewed the past year's activities.

The Scholarship Committee reported that $500 had been raised through contributions of industries within the boundaries of the section. Two representatives of the section will be visiting the High Schools in the area explaining to students what is expected of them during the scholarship examination to be held on Saturday, May 31, and to advise students on what careers are available in chemistry, and at what Universities courses are offered.

T. H. G. Michael, who was visiting the section for the first time in his new capacity as General Manager of Chemical Institute of Canada, congratulated the section for the interest which it has shown in education and for its initiative in establishing a high school scholarship.

The meeting discussed a proposed act drawn up by the Ontario Section of the C.I.C. which would make registration of chemists in Ontario compulsory. Those present seemed to agree in principle to the need for such legislation.

The nominating committee presented a new slate of officers which was approved by the membership. The 1958-59 officers of the section are as follows:

Chairman, J. A. Dixon; immediate past-chairman, F. G. Hurtubise; vice-chairman, J. L. Neal.

Publicity, Dr. D. E. Rivington.

Membership, J. P. Rioux.

Brownsburg representative, M. R. Palmer.

Kilmar representative, R. Hutton.

The meeting concluded with the showing of a motion picture depicting the fight of science against cancer, and a picture which traced the history of aviation.

Garden-Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

GROWING GRASS IN SHADE

It is difficult to grow grass in shade, but it can be done. The growth of grass that enjoys full sun all day is contrasted in the accompanying Garden-Graph with grass that struggles in the shade all day.

To grow grass in shade successfully, one should start with a grass seed mixture that will thrive in the absence of sunlight.

Adequate feeding is also of major importance in helping grass to thrive under the adverse conditions resulting from too much shade cast by trees. About 40 per cent. of tree roots are in the upper soil and grass roots must compete with them for food and moisture.

A medium sized tree can assimilate 30 pounds of fertilizer a year and the lawn around it an equal amount. Thus 40 pounds of fertilizer should be applied to every 1,000 square feet of lawn under or near large trees.

Apply fertilizer in two or three feedings of the lawn, one in April, another in May and the third in September.

Trees should be fed so they can obtain their sustenance from the subsoil instead of taking the surface food from the grass. Drill or punch holes deep in the ground into which the fertilizer can be placed so that the fibrous tree roots will grow down to get it.

Syrup produced at Tamaracouta, now tree farm

The Boy Scouts Association in Montreal, with the advice and assistance of the provincial Department of Lands and Forests, has worked for a number of years on a long-term conservation project at Camp Tamaracouta, Mille Isles. The Camp is now a Certified Tree Farm, and this year was the scene of a new project, the production of maple syrup. A shack and evaporator were set up on the north side of the lake and about 700 trees tapped. A very high grade of syrup resulted, and upwards of 200 gallons was produced, being sold by the Association in quart lots.

This project is in line with Scout training: emphasis on conservation and the effort to be more self-supporting within its own membership and its resources.

The chairman of the Conservation committee of the Quebec Provincial Scout Council is R. Cameron McCutcheon, a vice-president of the council. R. B. Moffit is chairman of the Camp Tamaracouta committee of the Montreal Regional Council, and L. C. Houldsworth is Factor (Director) of the Camp.
