"Hospital project still much alive," states president, Gilbert E. Ayers

"We cannot understand why anyone should have the least doubt at this time, that our hospital project has been suspended or even delayed indefinitely'. Nothing could be further from the truth." . . This was the statement made by Mr. Gilbert E. Ayers, president of the Hospital Board, following a directors' meeting on Monday morning. "We have had the confirmation of the $550,000 grant from the Provincial Government and, as a matter of fact, we have hopes of getting even more," he continued.

"However, we cannot expect to have this money turned over to us at the exact moment that would suit us. These things take a bit of time to arrange, and we must follow procedure. Our Member of Parliament, the Hon. Wm. M. Cottingham, has given us full co-operation to date, and has kept us informed on every move being made in Quebec to hasten the delivery of our grant. We also have correspondence from the Hon. Minister of Health, who has assured us of his complete support. In other words, we are all ready to go, but we mustn't get over-upset if we are delayed for a few weeks. The main thing is that we fully expect to get action as soon as it is possible."

About various rumors which have circulated in recent weeks, Mr. Ayers stated that only the persons who actually started these rumors know they are groundless. He asserted finally that any change in this whole matter would be announced officially by the Board of Directors as soon as it developed, so that any information coming from the so-called grapevine should be discounted.

Farmer injured, clothing caught in tractor pulley

Allan Walker, Bethany Road farmer, escaped serious injury on Wednesday morning last, when his pant leg became caught in the power take-off of a tractor he was operating on his farm.

It is believed the wind blew the clothing into the machinery pulley which was turning at such speed that it ripped two pairs of pants, the boot and stocking completely off the victim, who was taken unawares.

Dr. John C. MacKimmie was called to the scene and reports that nine stitches were necessary to close the deep gash in the left ankle. Although no bones were broken, Mr. Walker will be bothered by the injury for a month or so.

While the victim is able to walk with the aid of crutches, the injury to his leg is very painful.

Firemen subdued staff-house blaze at Golf Club

A raging fire gutted the living room of an apartment in the Golf Club staff-house here last Saturday morning, causing considerable smoke damage throughout the remainder of the building occupied by Golf Club employees. Total damage was estimated at several thousand dollars, most of which is covered by insurance.

The apartment in which the fire occurred was occupied by Johnny Delage, head waiter at the nearby Golf Club chalet, who attempted to extinguish the blaze with water from the adjacent kitchen. In the meantime, the Lachute fire brigade had been called by Mrs. Howard Watson, who occupies an upstairs apartment.

The auxiliary fire truck was first sent to the scene, and with the water supply in the booster tank, the blaze was confined to the one room and extinguished. An additional line of hose was laid from the nearest hydrant, nearly 1,000 feet away, as a safety measure.

While other residents of the staff-house managed to carry effects from the building when it was thought to be doomed — the occupants of the burning apartment had to leave all clothing and belongings, and severe smoke damage resulted.

Queer evidence indicates rabies

A strange case of suspected rabies was reported by the Stanley Donaldson family, residing two miles west of St. Philippe — who, following their return home at 10.30 Thursday evening last, found evidence of an unknown animal having entered their house.

Mrs. Donaldson reports that the screen on the door was torn off, the glass smashed, and the surrounding wood covered with teeth marks. Evidence in the house showed badly scratched walls and paw tracks considerably larger than those of a fox or collie dog. Three pets in the house at the time, a dog and two cats, were apparently unmolested by the intruder.

Sections of the glass remaining in the door were covered with a white froth, and there was blood in evidence, although the animal itself could not be found.

A local veterinarian indicated that, while it would be best to keep a wary eye for any animals roaming on the loose, he believed that the marauder, whatever it might be, was apparently so far advanced with rabies that it would die within a short time of the incident.

The Donaldson pets are being kept under close observation for some time, in case any infection took place.

Local girl student wins French Que.-Ont. contest in oratory

Hélène Lorange top speaker of French-language group in Lions-sponsored contest

Bright and early Saturday morning Lachute's representation of four entries in the Ontario-Quebec public speaking finals, accompanied by their parents and Lions Club escorts, left by plane from Lachute Airport for Trenton, Ont.

The air trip was made possible by the generosity of a fellow Lion, Gilbert E. Ayers, industrialist, in order to save time and expense for the club and all concerned. . . . It transpired, however, that bad weather prevented the return of the party by air, and they travelled home from Trenton by night train on Saturday — or early Sunday morning.

Those who made the trip were the four successful semi-finalists following the recent St. Lambert eliminations — Hélène Lorange, of St. Alexandre School; Roland Gow, of L.H.S.; Reynald Bell, of l'Ecole Supérieure; and Lois Silverson, of L.H.S.

(Lois Silverson had not originally been scheduled for the finals, but qualified when Carol Vance of St. Lambert withdrew. The latter had defeated Lois by a 0½% rating in the semi-finals.)

Accompanying the four students was, in each case, one of their parents; also the Lions Club president, Ernest Snadden; the Education Committee chairman, Gerard Lefebvre; the Inter-Club chairman, Col. E. Emmett; and the secretary, Keith Clarke.

In the French-language group, Hélène Lorange and Reynald Bell were entered with three other finalists — Denyse Lechasseur, of Aylmer, Que., Juliette Benoit, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., and Donald D'Aoust, of Perkinsfield, Ont. The Lachute girl gained an easy first, and Reynald Bell ranked fifth. This contest was in the evening finals.

The English-speaking girls and boys, with a larger entry list, began their contests early in the afternoon. Lois Silverson met six competitors and ranked third in the finals. First and second were competitors from Walkerfield and Renfrew, Ont., respectively.

Roland Gow pitted his skill and persuasion against seven other young male orators, but failed to rank among the four evening finalists.

The contests were staged at the Trenton High School. The visitors were entertained at lunch by the Trenton Lions at the Gilbert Hotel, and again at the Old Dutch Mill for the club dinner in the evening. The finals in the school auditorium at night drew keen interest.

The cup for French-language oratory returned to Lachute with the local victor, Hélène Lorange. (It was held last year by another local winner from St. Alexandre School, Viviane Renaud.) In addition, Miss Lorange holds a personal replica of the cup, permanently. Other awards she received were a statuette alarm-clock, combined; a beautifully bound book from the French consul in Toronto (who, with his secretary, acted as judge in this group); $75 in cash; and a $100 bursary to be used if the winner chooses to enter a profession. This award is available to the winner any time within the next five years.

Lois Silverson received an acceptable cash award of $35, and a nicely bound volume.

Altogether, the young contestants, their parents and Lions Club escorts had a full and interesting day. They encountered bad weather soon after the morning take-off, and their craft made an instrument landing in minimum visibility at Trenton. Planes were grounded at the airport later that day, and on their return the party boarded a train for Montreal during the night. There was a disruption of plans when it was found that half the local party were awaiting the train at the wrong station; but word was conveyed to this contingent and the homeward-bound train was held up for their arrival. All reached home duly fatigued but without mishap, and the Lions felt well rewarded for their effort in bringing home a champion.

All aboard for Trenton

Dr. F. W. FitzGerald assumes presidency of Quebec Division, Medical Association

20th Annual conference held last week at Chantecler, Ste. Adele

The Quebec Division of the Canadian Medical Association held its annual sessions last week at the Chantecler, Ste. Adele-en-haut, and Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald, well known practitioner of Lachute, assumed the office of president for the 1958-59 term.

The Quebec Division is one of 10 autonomous provincial units of the 12,000-member Canadian Medical Association. Through its activities the Division works to protect the medical interests of the residents of the province and the profession in Quebec (not just its own 1,500 doctor-members). Through its partnership in the C.M.A., the Division contributes to the welfare of the Canadian public and the profession on a national scale.

Each year the Division brings together its members — English and French — for scientific and business discussions, as well as social activities. Several outstanding physicians from outside the province participate in these annual meetings, bringing new thoughts in medicine to their Quebec colleagues.

Retiring president of the Division is Dr. Georges Leclerc, of Montreal.

Dr. FitzGerald, president-elect, was educated at the Bishop Field College in St. John's, Nfld., and at McGill University (M.D.C.M. 1933). He took post graduate study at Cook Hospital, Chicago, and Northwestern University, Chicago. He is a member of the British Medical Association, of the College of General Practice of Canada, and of the Montreal Medico-Chirurgical Society.

Dr. FitzGerald practised in Cornerbrook, Nfld., for five years before coming to Lachute 19 years ago.

Rotary Club pays tribute to Dis. Governor L. Armstrong

The local Rotary Club paid tribute to one of their members last Friday evening at their annual anniversary dance at Lachute Golf Club, when President King Amos presented Linton Armstrong with an inscribed silver tray, and Mrs. Amos presented Mrs. Armstrong with a bouquet of red roses. This was in recognition of the former's successful year as Governor of District 704 of Rotary International.

In making the presentation, President King explained that, over a year ago, the members of the Club decided to make an effort to have one of their members elected to the high office of District Governor. This became a fact when Linton Armstrong was the unanimous choice at the annual District Conference in Kingston in October 1956. The new Governor began his term of office on July 1st, 1957. Among his first duties was that of paying an official visit to each of the fifty-one clubs in the district. Nineteen of these clubs are located in Northern New York State: Adams, Alexandria Bay, Antwerp, Au Sable Forks, Canton, Carthage, Chateaugay, Clayton, Gouverneur, Malone, Massena, Ogdensburg, Philadelphia, Plattsburg, Potsdam, Saranac Lake, Theresa, Tupper Lake and Watertown. Sixteen are in Eastern Ontario: Brockville, Chesterville, Cornwall, Eganville, Gananoque, Hawkesbury, Kemptville, Kingston, Napanee, Ottawa, Pembroke, Perth, Prescott, Renfrew, Smiths Falls, and West Ottawa. The remaining sixteen are in Quebec: Aylmer, Beauharnois, Brownsburg - Lachute, Gatineau, Hull, Huntingdon, Low, Maniwaki, Montreal, Montreal Westward, St. Jerome, St. Laurent - Mount Royal, Shawville, Valleyfield, Verdun and Westmount. Each official visit consists of a business meeting with the officers of each club and attendance at the regular luncheon meeting where the Governor is the principal speaker.

Mr. Amos stated that the numerous letters received by the local Club clearly indicated that their fellow member was fulfilling the duties of his high office with outstanding distinction, and that, as a result, he had brought honor to his Club and the community. He also announced that Governor Linton had been elected as official representative of the District on The Council on Legislation which was meeting in Dallas, Texas, just prior to the annual world Convention of Rotary International on June 1-5. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong would be leaving about the middle of the month, first to attend and take part in the District Conference of a fellow Governor, Al Cooke of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and then proceed south to Texas to attend the

Argt'l 3rd annual art show planned

The executive of the Argenteuil Art Association met Sunday afternoon at the home of the president, Allen G. Talbot, in Brownsburg — one of the principal items of business being the planning of the Association's third annual exhibition. This show, the first of a series of four anticipated by the group this coming season, is arranged for the week of May 24-31 inclusive, to be held in the municipal hall above the fire station at St. Andrews East.

Regulations governing this exhibition will be the same as those of previous years, all paid-up members of the Association being entitled to exhibit two pictures, in whatever medium they choose.

Hours of the exhibition will be from 2 to 4 p.m. daily; from 2 to 9 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday; and evening hours 7 to 9 additional on Wednesday and Friday. If tentative plans materialize, tea will be served at a nominal charge on the opening day, Saturday, May 24. The public will be cordially welcomed to this annual show, for which there is no admission charge.

It is hoped to have a good representation of works from members in all parts of the County, with a few loan exhibits from professional artists to add to the popular interest.

A weekly course in oil painting with Vivian Walker, professional artist, as instructor, was planned to commence this month. On finalization of the dates, all members will be notified by the secretary, Robbin V. S. Smith.

Prov'l biologist to explain minnow ban and re-stocking

To address Fish and Game gathering next Monday in the Legion Memorial Hall at Brownsburg

The Board of Directors of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association yesterday announced their unanimous approval of the minnow ban on fishing in Argenteuil County — offering their wholehearted support to Dr. Gustave Prevost, Director of the Quebec Biological Bureau, in his minnow-less fishing law and program for poisoning and re-stocking County lakes.

In making the statement, President Leonard Bedard mentioned that, due to Dr. Prevost planning on a Monday-evening meeting in the Brownsburg Legion Hall, the regular meeting of the Association planned for the following week has been cancelled. He made a special appeal for all members and other interested sportsmen to turn out to hear Dr. Prevost on Monday next, at 8 p.m., when this noted outdoors authority will answer questions, and generally explain the why and wherefore of the minnow ban. The program for poisoning and re-stocking County lakes will also be outlined at this time, it is believed.

"People in the County have been asking why something is not done about fishing in this locality, and now we have a golden oportunity to achieve something concrete, with little or no cost to the residents," M. R. Wilson, Association director and C.I.P. conservationist, pointed out, adding he personally would gladly go without minnow-fishing for 10 years if it would help replenish the lakes with trout.

Another director commented: "Residents of the County and province as a whole stand to gain much more than they could possibly lose, and Dr. Prevost should be given every chance to put the program into effect."

Youngster killed running across busy highway

Jacques Aubin, a 6½-year-old Ste. Rose boy, died en route to the St. Jerome hospital Sunday afternoon after being struck by a car near the outskirts of Brownsburg, on Route 31.

The accident occurred shortly after 2 o'clock Sunday, when the child was playing with two friends at the roadside. Sgt. Det. Ralph Allen reports the three were pulling bullrushes and throwing them across the busy thoroughfare. As one of these fell in the middle of the road, the young victim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aubin, of Ste. Rose, ran across the highway to pick up the object, and instead of returning to his playmates he continued across the highway in the path of a car driven by René Carreaux, 40, of St. Martin, who was accompanied by his wife.

The youngster, bleeding profusely about the head, was treated at the scene of the accident by Dr. Jacques Castagner, of Brownsburg, and then was placed in Menard's ambulance, which had rushed to the scene from Lachute. Death occurred between Lachute and St. Jerome, and the body was brought back to the morgue in Lachute.

The Aubin family was visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gagné, who reside in the vicinity of the accident near Watchorn's Garage, and the victim was playing with two of the Gagné children when the mishap occurred. Traffic Officer Ronald Massie investigated, with Sgt.-Det. Allen.

District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur reported no inquest would be necessary, declaring the death accidental.

Councillor resigns at Ayersville

Aurelien Foucault, member of the Municipal Council of Ayersville for the past two years, on Monday evening tendered his resignation, which was accepted with regret.

Mayor Maurice Champagne extended a vote of thanks to the retiring councillor for services rendered during his term of office, and announced that a replacement would be named to the vacancy at a special meeting 15 days from the date of resignation. Any eligible person in the municipality could be named to the post.

Aged villager hit by auto

Adrien Rouchon, 75-year-old St. Philippe resident, suffered a dislocated shoulder and severe cuts about the head and face Sunday evening around 8.40 when struck by a car driven by Leo Dubois, 50, of Ste. Therese.

The accident occurred as the victim was leaving the church in the village. He was taken to St. Jerome hospital by ambulance.

Traffic Officer Lawrence Cruise investigated.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie hoped that the Mackenzie River would lead him out to the Pacific, but when it took him instead down to the ice floes of the Arctic Ocean he named it River Disappointment.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

Cribbage and Darts finalists go to the Provincial Championships at Legion Headquarters in Montreal on Sunday, May 11. At the time of writing the winner of the Cribbage semi-finals to be played off in Section 2 (Fred Pring, Doug Hay and P. Lecorre) will meet the winner of Section 1 — Jim Puckett, Don Cockburn is high man at Darts at the present time.

* * *

The Silver Dollar Bingo will be past by now, and all Legion members are asked to get behind the sale of tickets for the Holiday Tour. Winner will be chosen at the Fair Grounds as part of the Legion activities. First prize will be valued at $300, second at $100, and a $10 prize goes to the seller of the winning ticket. Sales have gone very well to date. See Comrade Carl Demerse for your supply of tickets.

Incidentally, did you know that in two stretches Comrade Demerse has completed four years or over as Branch Treasurer. His job is made easier if every member will support these efforts. Accounts cannot be paid without a working balance in the bank. Carl reports that our finances have improved somewhat in recent weeks.

* * *

Plans are being formulated to install an administrative office on the balcony of the hall in order to provide facilities for the Secretary Treasurer and Executive Committee.

* * *

Congratulations to the Town Council, in particular the Park Committee, for the care and attention given the Memorial Park. In spite of some vandalism, we note that lights which flood the two memorials are kept burning, the grass is well trimmed, and flower beds kept in very good condition.

* * *

Bill Blakely is kept busy dispensing smoked meat sandwiches for the boys. The unit recently installed in the clubroom provides a tasty sandwich at a reasonable cost; ask for one the next time you are in.

* * *

Saw Comrades Doug Ogilvie and Stan Morrison repairing a sound system for use at the Bingo. The Branch has much use for one of these outfits.

* * *

Members of Branch 70 were sorry to hear of Comrade Frank Bedard's unfortunate accident.

* * *

Several members have mentioned their interest in Saturday afternoon fishing trips as an activity. A list of names of those interested on the clubroom notice board is all that is needed. Surely someone in the area would undertake to permit four or five veterans the use of their fishing facilities of a Saturday afternoon. Remember fellows — no minnows!

* * *

Comrade Doug Ogilvie chairs a meeting every Wednesday evening in the clubroom to plan out activities at this year's fair. He will certainly welcome constructive suggestions. The program is shaping up. Give him a call and let him know you are willing to assist. He will no doubt find a job for you.

* * *

We understand that there is a good chance of the Lachute High School gymnasts going West this year, thanks to an active committee now working out the plans.

We understand that for certain reasons this committee chose not to be affiliated with any organization. But count up the Legion members who will have an active part in this project!

* * *

By the way, any member knowing of any veteran or veteran's family seriously in need of assistance, should contact the President or the Sick & Relief Committee immediately.

* * *

There is a Dominion Convention this summer. Will try to keep you posted on the highlights.

See you next week!

Officers elected, trophies awarded at Curling Club

A stag dinner, followed by the distribution of prizes and election of officers for the ensuing term, was held at the Curling Club on Wednesday, April 30, with an attendance of over 80 members.

Minutes of the last semi-annual meeting were read by the honorary secretary, C. E. Richardson, and duly approved. The honorary treasurer, Gordon Higginson, read the financial report, which showed the Club to be in a prospering condition, with many improvements and changes having been made during the past year.

President Nat Boyd expressed his sincere thanks for the co-operation he had received during his term of office, and bespoke the same for his successor.

The slate of officers for 1958-59 was then presented and unanimously accepted.

Howard Morrison, as newly installed president, said: "I consider it a great honor to be named your president for the coming year — it will be a difficult task for me to emulate Mr. Boyd and other past-presidents who have done such outstanding work for our club.

"The president has to rely on team-work for the success of the club, and I am sure that with the help of the officers and members of the various committees, and with the co-operation of all members, I will have no worries or sleepless nights about the operations of the club.

"Past-president Boyd has made certain recommendations to your new board; these suggestions will be duly discussed later on.

"I thank you for the signal honor of being your president for the ensuing year and I will, to the best of my ability, do my utmost to maintain the standards set by my predecessors — I thank you."

The following officers, board members and committees will be in charge of operations for the coming season —

R. Howard Morrison, pres.; Lorne R. Duncan, vice-pres.; C. E. Richardson, hon. sec.; Gordon Higginson, hon. treas.; N. W. Boyd, past-pres.

Inter-church carpet bowling ends season

The Inter-Church Bowling League met at St. Simeon's hall Monday evening, and two keen games were played, in which the Presbyterians took the cup from the United Church, champions of last year.

Mr. W. Y. Shearsmith, president of the Anglican League, called upon Mrs. D. Smith to present the cup to the Rev. James Armour, who made a few well chosen remarks. The Rev. C. R. Lang then spoke briefly and invited the guests for refreshments, served by the ladies of the Anglican Church.

A most enjoyable social evening was spent with the Anglican bowlers as hosts. The Rev. Mr. Armour thanked the Anglicans for their hospitality.

Following are results of the evening's contests:

Game paradise is answer to Outdoorsman's dream

Following is a letter from The Watchman's former outdoors columnist, Bob Atchison, who left recently to assume an unusual job as guardian on an isolated game reserve, "in the teeth of the weather" between Ontario and New York State. Mr. Atchison's impressions on exploring the property are sent along for the interest of outdoor enthusiasts and former readers of his column.

Lake Ontario.
April 4, 1958

Dear "Ed":

I have finally managed to cover this Island, and to see what it is all about. It took me nearly all day to get around it, and to cover it the way it should be, will take a lot longer. What I'm to tell you will make you think this solitude has made me "island happy" — but not yet, anyway.

The western end of the Island is very heavily wooded, nearly all hardwood. It is also very swampy from the overflow from Lake Ontario. There are ponds the size of washtubs extending for acres. Now this is where there will be doubts of my SANITY. All these ponds, from the smallest to the largest, are alive with Ducks, Teal, Widgeon, Mallard Blacks, Whitlers — you name them, we have them! Imagine all these things homesteading right on my back door! I have never seen anything in my life like this, even up at the old place at Jack Miner's. A sight I will never forget. The noise from them is terrific. I never imagined that so much noise could come from birds.

That was the start of things for me. I was still drooling about them when I spotted some Deer. I just about had a fit seeing 12 of them, standing right there watching me come up to them. They didn't take off until I was within about 50 feet of them, and not in a hurry either, just an amble. It will be a tough job to try and tell how many there are here, as I saw Deer about every 100 yards or so. Another thing, they only trot away for about 200 hundred yards, stop, and go right back to feeding. I could be counting the same Deer all over again. Allowing for all this though, I think a figure of 50 would be a very conservative guess.

By the time I got down to the east end of the Island on one side, I was speechless from the game I had seen (and you know that is something I very seldom am). Raccoons are like kittens, they follow you right up to the house and if they don't get something to eat they raise hell — crawl up the screen door and chatter away. Harry Dunn, the Dept. of Transport operator, tells me that in the summer they get to be real pests; never leave the door open or else — a cyclone! The muskrats are nearly as bad, they just get out of your way and that is all. There is a jeep on the Island to ride around in, and the rats get into some of the ruts that are filled with water; they won't even get out when the horn is blown at them.

It is a paradise for game. It makes you stop and think a lot when you see all these animals living in harmony, with just the odd little scrap. Maybe us humans could take a lesson from them, and from Nature. Maybe we will, before it gets too late.

Tonight is very clear and reasonably warm. On one side of the lake is Kingston, Ontario; on the other side, Oswego, New York. Kingston is 34 miles away, Oswego about the same distance. There is a U.S. coastguard on another island 11 miles from this one. I've talked by radio phone to them a couple of times so far, and from talking to them it seems they have some good stories to tell. Maybe I will have the opportunity of meeting them later. I hope so; anything of interest I'll pass on. There is a radio beacon and lighthouse on the Island for protection of the ships in the Great Lakes. A weather report is sent in to Kingston three times daily, to the Meteorological Service. Also two to the American side.

I think by the time I get off this spot, sometime in December, it should be an experience that I will remember for a long time. A very important gentleman owns the Island; I can't tell you who without his permission, but I hope to be able to get that, one of these days. By then I hope to have the history of the Island put up into a reasonable letter. Some of the places around tell stories all by themselves, and you don't have to have a good imagination to figure them out either.

Well, that's all for this time. I hope to be able to get this posted by some stray fisherman; for the last four days we haven't seen even a rowboat.

Brownsburg Guides camp at Piedmont

Brownsburg — Ten Brownsburg Girl Guides passed a fun-packed week-end at the Guide Ski House at Piedmont. Two Guiders, Capt. Joan Green and Lieut. Mrs. R. Sugden, accompanied the group. Hikes and trails kept the girls well occupied and everyone enjoyed the well-planned menues arranged by Mrs. Sugden. On Sunday the group attended the beautiful St. Frances Anglican Church in St. Sauveur.

The Guides returned home wishing this treat could have lasted longer. It is hoped to plan more of such enjoyable excursions for the Guides in the future.

HUNTING HOBBY

Silver Harbor, Ont. (CP) — Henry Ranta and his two sons are making a family hobby of ridding this northwestern Ontario district of wolves. Mr. Ranta and his son Wally have each downed a wolf and Eino Ranta bagged another, within a short time.

Costly havoc from 'harmless' minnow

(Quebec Biological Bureau)

Damage to game fisheries by live-bait minnows is so extensive and costly that 30 provinces and U.S. states either ban or restrict this form of fishing.

This appears from a survey by the Quebec Biological Bureau, which to date has established that two provinces and three U.S. states impose a total ban, while 25 enforce restrictions.

Dr. Gustave Prévost says that the extent of damage already done amounts to actual millions of dollars. This figure is arrived at by a simple calculation of what it would cost to rehabilitate lake chains which, formerly the habitat of speckled trout, pickeral, bass and other game fish, now have been ruined by coarse fish from anglers' minnow pails. It does not take account of the inevitable loss of tourist revenue after our lakes are ruined.

Suckers, perch, crappies, shiners, chub and other non-game species supplant game fish by crowding them out or communicating parasitical diseases. This is the actual finding of experiments conducted at the Mont Tremblant Biological Station. It is also the consensus of the majority of fish and game authorities in Canada and the United States, including a number in provinces and states where restrictions do not yet apply.

Doré, bass and pike, as well as the various trout species, are all subject to the evil. Not only competition for food but also contamination by parasites is the cause.

The pests, ranging from tiny organisms which infest the gills and long spaghetti-like "worms" which bloat and kill the fish, attack all species, according to post-mortems. There is grave danger of their spread to Quebec's northern watershed.

Fishing with live minnows is totally prohibited in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Utah and in the fresh waters of Washington and Oregon. A similar ban also covers two-thirds of the State of Montana.

Restrictions as to regions or, in a few cases, minnow species, are imposed in Quebec, Ontario, Wisconsin, New Mexico, Virginia, New Jersey, New York, South Dakota, North Carolina, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Arizona, Florida, Colorado, Massachusetts, Connecticut, California, Maine, Wyoming, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Grenville student for 'adventure in citizenship'

Elsie McVicar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor McVicar, of Rivington, has been selected by the Hawkesbury Rotary Club as the candidate from surrounding schools to visit Ottawa as an "adventurer in citizenship". During the four days, she will attend the opening of parliament, May 12-15 and receive citizenship papers. She and her fellow adventurers, who will come from various parts of Canada, will be shown points of interest in the Capital as well as participating in such activities as banquets held in the ballroom of the Chateau Laurier and meeting people of political importance.

Elsie was born in November 1940. She attended the Bell Falls and Kilmar Intermediate Schools, and at present is an active student with good scholastic standing at the Grenville High School, where she is completing her final year. She is president of the Student's Council, captain of the Senior Girl's Basketball team; an eloquent public speaker; an actress and an ardent sport participant excelling in Basketball.

Athletic Assocn. planned for local High School

A number of gentlemen, interested in sport activities met recently and formed what will be known as the Lachute High School Graduates Athletic Association. The idea behind this move is to build up a reserve fund so that students of Lachute High School may be able to participate in athletics and sports of all kinds.

The first objective will be to raise sufficient funds to send some of our local boys who have already made good and show promise of greater achievements to Vancouver where the Dominion Championship Contests take place early in July.

In order to start the ball rolling a Stag Dinner is being held at Lachute High School on May 26 starting at 6.30 p.m. Following this there will be a gymnastic display and an address by Tex Coulter, famous football star. Price of the tickets is $10 each and these may be obtained from Don Hay at the Bank of Montreal or R. McLean, president of this newly formed association.

The Cancer campaign

IN THE PAST few years, Cancer has emerged from the innuendo and come out into the light. It is already somewhat difficult to realize there was an unspoken stigma to the disease and its sufferers, only a very few years ago. . . Education and public awareness have changed all that.

Psychologically we have made great strides in grappling with Cancer. Unfortunately, medical advance in prevention and cure has not gained ground with the same rapidity. So, while Cancer is no longer a stigma, it is still undeniably a major scourge upon mankind.

There was a parallel in smallpox — in diphtheria — in tuberculosis — in poliomyelitis. All have been subdued, held in check, by medical discoveries; in the latter two instances, the conquest has been so recent (and in the case of polio, so spectacular) that it appears phenomenal in our time and generation. These triumphs against disease were made possible by research — costly, time-consuming and arduous research. And behind that research, of course, was the essential backing of financial resources.

Can we doubt that the same success will some day reward our scientists waging war against Cancer? To doubt the final outcome would cast a bleak, despairing outlook on generations yet to come. Yet so many homes and families are immediately concerned (who among us has not lost a relative or loved one through the ravages of this disease?) — that it behooves us, one and all, to give our personal prayers and material aid to the promotion of this cause, the conquest of Cancer. . .

We can do just that, in a modest but constructive way, by responding to the annual appeal next Monday. The Argenteuil objective is $4,000. Many willing subscribers, without undue sacrifice, can help to achieve and exceed this quota in short order.

Attention to roads overdue

SEVERAL complainants have urged this column to express disapproval of the deplorable roads around town. We have exercised forbearance, in the realization that winter damage to street surfaces was extensive, and that springtime has imposed a full quota of demands on the town crewmen in many departments.

However, it is now time for our town thoroughfares to be given a priority rating. Main Street, which carries the heaviest volume of traffic, is the most notable example. The building which we happen to occupy is so shaken by the thump of passing transports that the foundations endure a formidable strain. The "thump" incidentally is caused not by pot-holes, but by depressions over recently-laid sewers. If Town Council is depending upon the provincial roads department to restore the surface of Main Street as a through-artery, it is time pressure was brought to bear, or at least some news announced on progress towards this project.

Apart from this, however, there are many badly broken side-roads, for which the provincial department has no responsibility. It is up to the corporation to have these repaired.

We direct the attention of our town authorities to the immediate need for action, in the interests of drivers and for the satisfaction of our populace at large.

Doctors look at tranquillizer drugs

EXTENSIVE publicity and increasing consumption of miracle drugs for the mind, is causing serious concern to public health authorities — in the opinion of Dr. H. E. Lehmann of Verdun, speaking last week at the 20th annual meeting of the Quebec Division of the Canadian Medical Association. It seems that pharmaceutical claims for therapeutic effectiveness of new tranquillizer drugs are not always substantiated.

The doctor mentioned that a new scientific discipline has been developed to deal with theoretical and clinical problems insofar as these drugs are concerned. Ingenious new test procedures, through the use of animals, are now being put into effect during the investigation of the drugs.

"All psychotropic drugs produce some side effects, and occasionally complications which may become dangerous," Dr. Lehmann said. He also pointed out that all tranquillizing drugs have, as their target, symptoms of anxiety or emotional tension which may be due to aggressive impulses.

"However", continued the doctor, "while these drugs have had an almost revolutionary impact on the therapy of psychotic conditions, they have been somewhat disappointing as regards the treatment of neurotic anxiety. Physicians and patients must clearly understand, that in the treatment of ordinary nervousness, anxiety and other neurotic complaints, the new drugs play only an ordinary role and cannot be relied upon as a specific cure." Dr. Lehmann added that in many instances, some of the minor tranquillizers may be a useful adjunct in the treatment of neurotic tension.

Spring malady

THE VIRUS that thrives in the spring is once again abroad in the land.

It strikes only at a select group, and its sufferers fervently believe it is the happiest malady ever to afflict mankind. Others may feel its repercussions even though its nature is beyond their comprehension.

The chief breeding grounds of the germ lie far from city pavements, but it has been known to bite in strange places, such as parks, aquariums and the sidewalk in front of sports store windows.

The gestation period may be lengthy and the early symptoms difficult to detect.

A victim's fellow office worker might note some of its signs in a distant look of the eye, a tendency to stand for long periods just looking out the window and an absorption in weather forecasts.

His wife might become suspicious when he spends solitary evening hours in the basement, rummaging through closets or littering a workbench with what might appear to the uninitiated as the working parts of an elaborate watch.

When his neighbor detects the probings of a flashlight beam on the lawn just about the time of night that the dew worms emerge from the earth, there is little room left for doubt. . .

No need to call the cops. It's just a bug-bitten fisherman on the loose. Phoning the doctor won't help either.

Only one kind of medicine will do any good, and around about now it's being swallowed in large doses. Fishing seasons are getting under way across the country.

In Ontario and Quebec, opening day of the trout season produces a fever that almost amounts to mania and stacks up anglers elbow to elbow at the more accessible fishing holes.

Views and perspectives

WHY PILOTS? — Regardless of what finally prompted Washington to support the St. Lawrence Seaway, Canada's main interest has always been low cost transportation. But that, remarks The Financial Post, doesn't seem to have carried much weight with the U.S. Congress. At least one measure now being discussed there certainly runs counter to Canadian policy.

This is a bill before the House Committee on merchant marine which would require every vessel of any size on the Great Lakes to employ a qualified U.S. or Canadian pilot.

No one objects to the use of local pilots in the Seaway itself or in entering and leaving harbors on the lakes. But in the main areas of these waters navigation is no more difficult or dangerous than in the open sea.

If the Seaway is going to do the job it was intended for, there is no room at all for featherbedding.

Which was the only ship to travel the North-West passage in both directions?

The St. Roch, a wooden motor schooner, 104 feet long and of 197 tons gross, was built in North Vancouver in 1928 for the Arctic patrol service of the RCMP. In 1940 she was ordered to proceed from the Paeffic to the Atlantic by way of the Arctic. The ice conditions were so bad that she was forced to spend two winters in the Arctic, reaching Halifax in 1942. She was the second ship to traverse the N.W. Passage, Amundsen's "Gjoa" having made the voyage in 1903-06 from the opposite direction. With a newly fitted, more powerful engine the St. Roch again sailed for the Arctic in 1944. This time she followed a northern route via Lancaster Sound and Barrow Strait, reaching Vancouver, taking only 86 days to travel the 7,295 miles. She thus became the only vessel to traverse the N.W. Passage in both directions. On both trips she was commanded by Sgt. Henry Larsen, RCMP. She is now preserved in Vancouver.

Which is the oldest Hudson's Bay Company trading post?

The oldest trading post of the Hudson's Bay Company is Rupert's House, situated on the Rupert River near its mouth on James Bay. Built in 1668, by Sieur des Groseilliers, it was first called Charles Fort after King Charles II. In 1670, however, the post, river and territories around were granted to the newly-formed Hudson's Bay Company: Prince Rupert, Charles' cousin, being first governor of the company. The fort was captured in 1686 by the French, who renamed it Fort St. Jacques and it was not permanently re-established by the Company until 1777. Since then, however, trading has been carried on continuously and Rupert's House is now the centre of a 7,000 acre beaver sanctuary leased from the Quebec Government. Rupert's Land, the original territories granted to the Hudson's Bay Company, has ceased to exist as a separate territorial entity, but the name still persists as that of an ecclesiastical province of the Church of England in Canada.

From where do we get the word "shanty"?

The English-Canadian word "shanty", meaning the hastily erected huts of a bush camp, is derived from the French word "chantier" — a logging camp or centre of pulp woodcutting in French Canada. "Dans les Chantiers" is one of the best known of the lumbermen's songs in French.

BACKWARD LOOK

An unsolicited testimonial for Lachute

Following is an excerpt from a letter received here from Ronnie Armstrong, an Assistant Accountant with the Bank of Nova Scotia in Winnipeg:

"Last night there was an Accountants' Club dinner, and after the dinner a bunch of us went up to the Bank Inspectors' hotel room. We were talking about different parts of Canada, and I asked the Inspectors (there were seven of them), if they had their choice of any town to live in, which would they choose. Incidentally, none of them came from the Province of Quebec. One said Victoria, B.C. Two of them said the nicest little town in Canada was St. Andrews East, Que., and the other four said — Lachute! None of them knew where my home-town was — but I soon told them! They said that their dream was to retire, take the family, and make Lachute, Quebec, their home-town.

So, I guess the old town isn't so bad after all, because these boys have seen a lot of places. One of them has been on the road for thirteen years. The one that said 'Victoria' has never been to Lachute."

Of Many Things

A Tribute

This is a tribute to a labor lawyer, a man who has spent most of his life defending the rights of Labor. I remember, back in the days when I was a young school teacher. The so-called "New Deal" was in process down in the States, and this man seemed to me to have gone for it with his eyes closed. He was one of the authors of the National Industrial Recovery Act. His name was Donald R. Richberg.

I had forgotten about him until just the other day when I read a review of a book called "Labor Union Monopoly". It pointed out in powerful language that while the people have been keeping vigilant guard against the formation of business monopolies, apparently numerous labor union monopolies were established behind their backs. The labor union movement in United States has fallen, to a large degree, into the hands of political reformers rather than working-class representatives. The aim of many of these men, it seems, is to create a tyrannical political force "with the objective of establishing a socialist labor government." The author says it is no longer a movement of workers banded together to protect their legitimate interests.

Reading this, I turned again to read the name of the author. It was Donald R. Richberg himself!

Whether a great deal of the damaging evidence he presents is entirely accurate or not I cannot say. But one thing I am sure of — it must have taken tremendous courage for him to write that book. He must have asked himself a thousand times what it would do to him among his friends in the Labor movement.

It is easy to write about the diffusion of light through a butterfly's wings, or about the natives of Bongo Bongo, and there you get into no trouble. But it takes courage to write forcefully about real evils in your own country, particularly in a movement with which you are closely associated. Reprisals come fast and are often aimed at destroying the writer rather than the arguments he has presented.

Men and women in the Labor ranks, however, will owe Richberg considerable gratitude. He has dared to expose the manner in which some American Labor leaders are wandering far from the finer traditions of trade unionism and turning collective bargaining into collective coercion.

Immigrants settle in cities rather than farms

Ottawa (CP) — Unlike their predecessors of the 1920's, immigrants of recent years are winding up in cities rather than on farms.

The Labor Department, in a summary of last year's immigration, said last week, "Immigrants have shown a growing tendency to settle in the most industrialized areas of the country during the last several years." Heaviest concentration has been in the Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver areas.

Canadian rivers are sweeping away thousands of tons of topsoil every year.

On a journey through parts of British Columbia I saw the Fraser, the Thompson, the Chilcotin, the Nechako, Bulkley and Skeena, all of them chocolate brown with rich earth looted from the fields and range lands and the charred slopes that used to be forests.

The brown blood of the land is pouring away to the sea and the lakes, all across Canada.

There is nothing new about soil erosion. It was in progress long before agriculture came to the western part of North America, when the Iroquois to the east were still scratching the ground with sticks to grow corn.

The luscious islands of silt at the mouth of the Fraser River were made before the sails of the first white men appeared.

Since farmers and loggers began striping off the trees and grass, however, soil has run away more quickly than before. Scientific farming in many areas holds back the flow of earth. Elsewhere, erosion continues unchecked.

In the cattle country of British Columbia's Chilcotin Plateau, I saw large gullies where land had washed away to the river.

"What about it?" I asked a man who had a share in a smallish Chilcotin ranch of only a few thousand acres.

"I guess we've lost about an acre a year for the last 40 years," he said comfortably.

"Anybody doing anything to stop it?"

"Nope," he said, and shrugged his shoulders as if to indicate that there were plenty more acres where those came from.

There was no sign of any attempt to plant trees and brush to hold the earth at the bluffs above the river.

A lady just back from the country near Battleford, Saskatchewan, told me that numerous farmers, greedy for wheat land, tore up trees and brush cover to make more room for grain.

"There isn't a bush anywhere," she said. "Won't they ever learn? It will serve them right if the land blows away, as it did in the south."

Should a farmer be free to let his land blow or trickle away? Or should the law compel him to hold his land in trust for coming generations? A good case might be made for a nationwide anti-erosion policy.

AN OILY PARALLEL

By Lewis Milligan

Byron, in his satirical poem Don Juan, has a couplet which runs:

"In virtue nothing earthly could surpass her,
Save thine incomparable oil, Macassar!"

For the information of the younger generation it should be explained that Macassar Oil was popularly used by young sparks in Byron's day as a hair-oil. It not only gave an attractive gloss to the bushy hair worn by the mashers in those days, it also had a subtle aroma which was alluring at close quarters to the fair sex. But later, to that same sex, as housewives, it became a nuisance and they made anti-macassars to protect their furniture from the greasy smudge.

Even in these days the teen-aged and later beaux are plastering their shaggy hair and sideburns with some sort of thick pomade, a la Elvis Presley. One of the virtues attributed to macassar oil was that it promoted growth of the hair. But that is very doubtful, for it resulted in a crop of bald heads among our grandfathers, while their whiskers, on which they used nothing but soap and water, grew profusely to the end of their days. My theory, as an old fellow who has kept his top hair on, is that hair is a vegetable and needs frequent watering at the roots.

But all that is a digression from what I had intended to write about. My only excuse is that I was led astray by Byron in his reference to the ladies or to a certain lady with whom he compared "thine incomparable oil, Macassar." If the poet were writing today he would have an excellent subject for satire in the present situation in the Middle East, where the rulers of the various Arab countries are considering the question of forming a united Arabian Empire under the incomparable dictator Nasser. And, appropriately enough, oil is the principal commodity at stake in the creation of an Arabian Empire in the Middle East. It isn't hair-oil this time, but a far more valuable and widely-used lubricant and fuel combined, which is largely applied to airplanes, so that there is at least a phonetic similarity between air and hair, Nasser and Macassar.

There is an abundance of oil in the Middle East, and while it has been freely flowing into the western world markets, the Arab states have been peacefully prosperous. To preserve that condition, all they need now is an effective anti-MacNasser.

Brownsburg W.I. and guests hear school welfare idea

Brownsburg Women's Institute held its meeting last Thursday under the convenership of Mrs. R. Moncrieff. During the business session, plans were made for another visit to the Valleyfield Cotton Mill early in June to enable members and friends to purchase cotton fabrics, sheets, towels, etc., at bargain prices.

Following a recommendation by the Board, members voted unanimously to use funds saved in Bonds for the past 15 years or so, to make interest-free loans of $100 to Grade XI students of merit who are in need of funds for further education. The amount of money at disposal of the branch at this time is limited, but the hope was expressed by President Mrs. N. E. Smillie that that branch would endeavor to raise more money for this purpose during the coming years.

Mrs. Moncrieff, who had invited members of the Home and School Association and the School Board to this meeting, then introduced the speaker, Miss Lorraine Howe, Supervisor of the Quebec Junior Red Cross. After a brief look at the work of the Junior Red Cross, Miss Howe spoke on the subject of cooked lunches in school. Aside from the obvious advantages to the children, members were pleased to learn that the scheme can be made to run cheaply by means of employing a full-time cook, supported by volunteer students. Miss Howe stated that the Junior Red Cross would donate money for the purchase of equipment, but beyond this the scheme must be self-supporting, and she quoted numerous examples to show that this was possible even at the low cost of 25 cents per meal.

Miss Howe proved a winning and persuasive speaker, and later members of the Home and School Association and the School Board inspected the kitchen with her. It remains to be seen whether the Brownsburg W.I. has been instrumental in obtaining a hot lunch service for the "Soup and Sandwich set" at school.

The meeting closed with the serving of refreshments.

St. Simeon's parishioners hear impressions on Diocesan Synod

The congregation of St. Simeon's Church were well informed on general activities at the recent Synod of the Montreal Diocese, when Mr. Bernard Jenkins, lay delegate from this church, gave his impressions to an attentive audience at the service last Sunday morning.

The report, which took the place of the regular sermon, gave an impression of virile spirit and satisfactory progress in affairs of the Diocese, and reflected an underlying theme of greater support as the need of mission enterprise, both in Canada and abroad. The mission commitment for St. Simeon's had been increased this year, the speaker noted, and this phase of church promotion needed the support of every member and adherent.

The previous Sunday, the Rev. G. T. Spriggs occupied the pulpit here when the rector, the Rev. C. R. Lang, preached at St. Andrews. The Rev. Mr. Spriggs had attended the Synod that week, and on this occasion gave impressions from the clergy's viewpoint. The congregation, in this manner, received a comprehensive outline of the proceedings.

1957 Translations in 17 new tongues

Scriptures were published last year in 17 languages that did not previously have any part of the Bible, it has been announced by the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada.

Official translation figures received from the United Bible Societies show that the complete Bible is now in 215 languages, the New Testament in 269, and a gospel or other whole book of the Bible in 643.

The Bible was completed in five languages and the New Testament in four during 1957.

A survey by the United Nations shows that there are 2,000 major languages, and some 500 minor dialects, in use today. Sixty different forms of script are used to write these tongues.

Brownsburg and Lachute church choirs enjoy joint social evening

A pleasant evening was spent last Thursday, when members from the Brownsburg United, Maple Avenue Baptist and Lachute United Church choirs met in the hall of Lachute in order to listen to the recording of the cantata, "The Crucifixion", which was presented during the pre-Easter season by these combined choirs.

Those present were favorably impressed with the reproduction, and a very interesting period was spent evaluating the presentation.

Refreshments were prepared by a committee from the local church, and Mr. Cedric Wheeler, of Brownsburg, expressed appreciation to the Lachute choir and the committee for their hospitality on this occasion, and in the recent co-operative enterprise. Mr. Syd Drew also voiced a vote of thanks to Mr. Ian Duncan, who so ably and patiently operated the recording machine during the Lachute presentation of the cantata. Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins again expressed appreciation of the fine co-operation he had received from the three choirs, and hoped, in the not too distant future, to be able to present "The Holy City", with a choir of at least 75 or a hundred voices.

Special features mark Sunday service at Presbyterian Church

Next Sunday morning the special preacher in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church will be the Rev. John R. Cousens, B.A., B.D., the son of the late Rev. Dr. Henry Cousens, a former minister. Mr. Cousens, who has just graduated from the Presbyterian College, Montreal, with the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, is soon to take up an appointment in Englehart, Ont.

The many friends who knew him when he lived in Lachute will look forward to meeting him again, and to hear him preach. The Rev. John Cousens will also conduct the service in Brownsburg at 3 p.m.

The guest soloist next Sunday, both in Lachute and Brownsburg, will be Miss Margaret Milne of Montreal, who sang with great acceptance on a recent occasion.

The ministry of music and of preaching are of very great importance in the life of the Church, and, since both these will be conducted by visitors, it is anticipated that there will be a very large congregation in attendance at this service.

Other marked features of next Sunday's services are that May 11 is observed as Christian Family Sunday, a day when all members of the family should endeavor to worship together, and also marks the 26th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the present church.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

Uncertainty and Confusion grip the world.

Are YOU caught in their net?

In today's divided systems only one source of wisdom remains sound and unshaken. That is the Bible. Do not be deceived by the religious disunity of the world. Religious confusion does not alter or affect the source of wisdom, the Bible. But how can you be sure?

Go to the Bible yourself. This is easily possible with the helpful Bible handbook "MAKE SURE OF ALL THINGS". This 416-page pocket-size book sets forth 70 principal Bible themes and gives you a balanced picture of each by using scriptures without comment from the Bible. In this way, the Bible speaks for itself. Get your copy today. Send only 75c.

Rotary tribute to District Governor Linton Armstrong

largest and most important event in the Rotary year.

In thanking his fellow members for the lovely and unexpected gifts, Linton stated that he was deeply conscious of the high honor which had been bestowed upon him, and that he owed a great debt of gratitude to the Club for making it possible. He reminded his audience that it had been understood from the first that the office of Governor for this year was to be considered as a Club project, and that, although the duties necessarily were in the nature of an individual effort, he had never lost sight of the fact he represented his home Club and any success he had been able to achieve he owed to his fellow club members. He said that it had been a wonderful experience. He had visited all of the 51 clubs at least once, attended numerous special meetings such as ladies nights and anniversaries and travelled over 10,000 miles for Rotary.

Among the other duties which a Governor has during his term of office is the preparation of a letter each month which is sent to all club presidents and secretaries in the District, together with a report on the membership attendance of each club; the organization and conducting of the District Conference, which is usually held in the fall and the organization and conducting of the District Assembly which is in the nature of a one-day "school" for in-coming presidents and secretaries. This year's Conference was held in Watertown, N.Y. last October. It is a three-day event and was attended by about 400 Rotarians and their wives. The Assembly was held at Smiths Falls on April 14.

At the same time the Governor must endeavor to establish new clubs wherever possible, assist at special events involving one or more clubs and attend to the many problems which arise from time to time. Among these is the organization of a district golf tournament. This year this event is to take place in Lachute on August 13. Another involves work in connection with such an event as the tour of the Scottish Rotarian curlers who visited Lachute and other parts of eastern Canada last fall.

Appreciation of Mother

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"The most perfect singing I ever heard was my mother's when I was a boy," Caruso is reported to have said.

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, the famous doctor who served in Labrador so many years, in his autobiography wrote: "When as a youth I attended Marlborough College in England, my dear mother used to post me a box of flowers each week. The picture of my mother, with a thousand demands and worries, finding time to gather, pack, address and post each week with her own hands, so fleeting a token of her love, has a thousand times arisen in my memory."

If we are fortunate to have our mothers still on this earth, should we not on Mother's Day, let them know that we, too, look back on our childhood and treasure memories of their loving care? There were four children in the family in which I grew up. One winter when we four were all sick in bed with flu, night after night, mother read aloud to us under the central light in the upstairs hall. That was the time I came to love the beauty and rhythm of poetry.

In every language men and women have expressed their appreciation of mothers.

A very touching little picture is found in Southey's lines:

"Oh, when a Mother meets on high
The Babe she lost in infancy,
Hath she not then, for pains and fears,
The day of woe, the watchful night,
For all her sorrow, all her tears,
An over-payment of delight?"

How true this experience related by June Taylor is, everyone knows:

"Who ran to help me when I fell,
And would some pretty story tell
Or kiss the place to make it well,
My Mother."

The Scotch poet, Burns, gives a very homey scene in these two lines:

"The mother, wi her needle and her shears, Gars (makes) auld claes look amaist as weel's the new."

The French writer Victor Hugo wrote:

"Mother's arms are made of tenderness, and sweet sleep blesses the child who lies therein."

There are a number of brief, but pithy sayings about mothers from different lands.

"Mother's love is even in its spring." (French).

"Who takes the child by the hand, takes the mother by the heart." (German).

"Children are the anchors who hold a mother to life." (Greek).

"A mother's love will draw up from the depths of the sea." (Russian).

"The Mother's breath is aye sweet." (Scottish).

"No mother has a homely child." (Yiddish).

"A mother does not hear the muses of the dance when her children cry." (German).

"Better the child cry than the mother sigh." (Danish).

Among all this eulogy it is interesting to find Disraelli voicing a criticism of the ways of mothers in his words:

"The author who speaks about his own books is almost as bad as a mother who talks about her own children."

Another observer points out the truth that "Simply having children does not make Mothers."

An often quoted comment on children and parents is one which mothers on Mother's Day, (and fathers too) might well consider:

"Children begin by loving their parents, as they grow older they judge them."

May we so live that our sons and daughters will not have too much to forgive!

Ice cream sponge ring for a delicious dessert

Ice Cream Sponge Cake is a useful dessert idea to fall back on when you need a really pretty dessert that's light, but luscious. It's one of those desserts that tastes its best when it has a cup of good coffee to keep it company.

Top off any evening with ice cream, cake and coffee and you're sure to have a hit on your hands! For a new arrangement of these old favorites, here's Ice Cream Sponge Ring with Fresh Orange Syrup.

To begin with, sponge cake baked in a ring mold looks incredibly decorative just the way it is. But in addition, it lends itself perfectly to being dressed up. This way, doused with an ambrosial orange sauce and garnished with orange slices, it's center piled high with scoops of ice cream, it becomes food for the gods as well as a feast for the eye.

What beverage goes with such a celestial sweet? Coffee, of course; coffee piping hot, freshly fragrant and served in your prettiest server. Its taste will add the final touch of perfection to Ice Cream Sponge Ring — our old friend in its delectable new guise.

Ice Cream Sponge Ring

2 Eggs (separated), ½ cup sugar, ½ cup sifted cake flour, few grains salt, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ teaspoon vanilla, orange syrup*, coffee ice cream, 1 cup orange sections.

Beat egg whites stiff. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Beat yolks until thick and lemon colored and fold into egg whites. Mix and sift flour, salt and cream of tartar and fold in gradually. Add vanilla. Bake in greased ring mold (9-inch diameter) in moderate oven, 350°F., 45 minutes. Invert on cake rack to cool. Remove from pan and pour about a third of the orange syrup slowly over cake. Add orange sections to remaining syrup and serve separately. Fill centre of sponge ring with ice cream. Makes 8 generous servings.

 Fresh Orange Syrup

Combine 1 cup sugar, 1 cup orange juice and 2 teaspoons grated orange rind in saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves and simmer 3 minutes. Cool.

Fowl suggested as economical buy

To many a homemaker the term "fowl" means any poultry but in the language of the trade and of Canada's grading regulations a fowl is a laying hen. Homemakers buying graded poultry can tell by the marking on the bird whether it is chicken or fowl. Most homemakers when thinking of fowl call it stewing chicken because to make it tender it must be cooked in moist heat.

There is a good supply of fowl available across the country according to the Poultry Products Institute and as a result prices should put this flavorful bird high on the list of good buys. Those who like the so-called "old-fashioned rich chicken flavor" will find it in these stewing chickens.

How to Use Fowl

Moist heat and long slow cooking or the quicker pressure-cooking method will produce a fresh, flavorful meat. Steamed stuffed fowl (steamed until tender) may be finished in a moderate oven to produce a roasted golden brown bird. Stewed chicken whole, or cut up with dumplings or made into pot pie are popular with most men.

What Size to Buy

Fowl (stewing chicken) may vary in weight from 2½ to 5 pounds or more and the careful shopper often wonders which size is the best to buy. The Poultry Products Institute assures us that according to cooking tests the small birds are equally as good a buy as the large ones. In other words 2 birds of 3 pounds would give approximately the same quantity of cooked meat as one 6 pound fowl. The explanation is simple when you consider it. Stewing chickens are fully grown, mature birds and the size depends upon their breed, some breeds producing small birds others producing large.

To estimate the quantity of fowl to buy allow ½ to ¾ of a pound per serving depending upon how it is to be used. If extending it with dumplings and vegetables the smaller quantity would do. However, it is always better to allow a little extra to be on the safe side when catering to hearty appetites.

"When a woman gets to 40, she has to forget about development and attend to maintenance" — Mr. Stanley Dawes, President, Institute of the Motor Industry, London.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Carolyn Willett, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada wore her springtime finery when the Lord Mayor of Coventry, England — Mrs. Pearl Hyde — made a 10-day visit to eastern centres.

And the silver-haired Lord Mayor went home sporting some Canadian finery — two hats she bought in Hamilton. The hats were "full of colors and flowers . . . like Canada," Mrs. Hyde said with many more complimentary words about Canadian hats.

She also left with the enthusiastic feeling that she will be the envy of her countrywomen in her new hats, the number she bought restricted mainly by the packing problem.

The chief citizen of Coventry — the city where the legendary Lady Godiva once rode — also said she thinks Canadian women are "just grand".

And Canadian women may still feel a tie with Mrs. Hyde's historic city, badly bombed during the Second World War. During that time, women on this side of the Atlantic packed clothing and wrote letters to help the people of Coventry through a trying time.

Hard Worker

Mrs. Hyde placed a hefty shoulder to the wheel during the war years and in the post-war period of rebuilding. She organized food kitchens and clothing centres in the face of enemy raids. Now she works as a welfare officer in an automobile factory.

At official functions in Ottawa, the Lord Mayor wore long black and gold robes of office — without a hat. Her commanding presence recalled a story about her that probably will be part of every biography.

It happened just two days after a heavy bombing raid on Coventry in November, 1940, when King George VI visited the city. Mrs. Hyde declined the honor of being presented to the King because she was "too dirty".

And, the story goes, Mrs. Hyde also explained that she was not only too dirty, but she was too busy — organizing survival facilities — and she was wearing the chief constable's trousers!

Street Banking

If banking is a bother for mothers with carriage-age children, just listen to this: a Montreal bank has designed a walk-up counter leaning out on the sidewalk.

It is designed as a boon to mothers wheeling baby carriages, as well as to people too busy to pop inside the bank.

The "walk-up" is sheltered from the weather so business on the run can be done as easily in rain as in sunshine. The cashier is protected by a steel-encased bullet-proof window.

So far, the Montreal bank is the only one offering these street banking facilities, but bank officials say there soon will be more across Canada.

New Office

Mrs. J. D. Williamson of Ottawa is the new executive secretary of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and will be in charge of a new national office in Ottawa.

In open bookshelves, dusting can be minimized by cutting a piece of transparent plastic or film to fit over the top of the row and tuck under the outer cover at each end.

At Fashion Show

Wide flaring sleeves give dramatic impact to a starkly simple chemise dress designed by Jacques Michele, youthful Montreal member of the Association of Canadian Couturiers. The dress is of silk linen and the sleeves, viscose velvet, both fabrics made in Canada. This style is among the large collection of fashions being shown at the Canadian Textile Conference in Montreal.

Afternoon tea for Mother

(For Children and Dad only)

Mother deserves special consideration all year 'round, but why not make Mother's Day, May 11, an extra pleasant time for her? Try to think of something she would really enjoy — like breakfast in bed, dinner at a restaurant, a drive in the country, or perhaps just a day off from housework.

One way you could surprise and please her at the same time, is to invite a few of her friends in for Sunday afternoon tea. Dad won't mind making the tea, but it will be up to you, the family, to prepare the food and serve it.

It would be a good idea to serve two kinds of sandwiches, don't you think? The home economists of the Consumer Section suggest some meat, cheese or egg sandwiches and perhaps a few easy-to-make peanut butter and banana pinwheels. You'll need about 3 or 4 little sandwiches for each person at the tea but better make more in case you and dad decide to eat some, too.

If you haven't made pinwheel sandwiches before, you probably don't know that you should buy a loaf of unsliced bread for these. For the pinwheels, cut off all the outside crusts of the loaf (be sure to save them for mother to use as crumbs), then, using a sharp knife, cut long thin slices the full length of the loaf. Spread each slice with butter and peanut butter and place half a banana at one end. Roll it up snugly, like a jelly roll, so that the banana is in the centre, then wrap tightly in waxed paper.

Just before serving time on Sunday afternoon, you'll cut these little rolls into slices and the ordinary sandwiches into diamonds, squares and fingers — all tiny, one-bite size, and arrange them attractively on a pretty plate. For a touch of color, place an apple in the centre of the sandwich plate and into it insert toothpicks with small pickles, pieces of celery or carrot curls on the ends.

Had $18,000,000 — but all a dream

For three weeks, Mrs. Maizie Eady of Sarnia was walking on clouds of million-dollar bills. The clouds have disappeared now but it was nice while it lasted. She had discovered a number of certificates of an oil stock among the effects of her late father. Taking them to a stock office, she was told by an astonished broker that it looked as if she was worth $18,000,000. But after three weeks she was told it was a mistake as the stock had been transferred by merger with another company, and now represented less than what it showed on the face of the certificates. So Mrs. Eady, instead of receiving $18,000,000, will receive $4,300.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

A sleeping man at the wheel lets his car wander onto a soft shoulder. A motorist becomes hypnotized by the white line. A drowsy driver nods over the wheel as he approaches a sharp turn.

These results of driver fatigue are frequently responsible for motor vehicle accidents, according to the nation's safety experts. Even a momentary relaxation of vigilance, brought on by physical fatigue, can make you completely lose control of your car.

Driver fatigue can come from so-called hypnosis of the white centre line, the glaring heat of the sun on the car's roof and windows, a dirty windshield clouding visibility, or the pressure to arrive at your destination.

You can eliminate your own driver-drowsiness when you take your summer trip by stopping frequently en route. To keep myself alert at the wheel, I have devised what I call a "60-minute formula." It's a simple practice, which I always follow, of stopping the car and relaxing for five minutes every hour. It clears away that drowsy daze.

Driver fatigue is just one of the many causes of traffic accidents. The nation's women are playing an increasingly important role in educating the public to these and other causes and helping to eliminate them.

Mau Mau troubles again stir Kenya

Victoria (CP) — The Mau Mau trouble in Kenya colony again is getting bad, said Mr. and Mrs. A. S. MacBride in an interview here.

Mr. MacBride is chief accountant for California-Texas Oil in the Red Seas area, operating out of Nairobi Kenya. With their 15 year-old daughter, Jill, they are spending three weeks here.

"If I go to a bridge party," said Mrs. MacBride, "Jill comes, too, and sleeps in the home of my hosts. Children are never left alone with the native servants for five minutes."

Mr. MacBride said that when his family first arrived in Kenya everybody wore guns. "One of the first sights that impressed me were the ladies in formal clothes wearing pistols, and one unforgettable man in evening dress with a shiny patent leather holster for his revolver."

The Mau Mau trouble levelled off for a time, but is getting worse again, the couple said.

Mrs. MacBride is too horrified of firearms to learn to shoot, but she sleeps with a Panga (curved sword) by her bed and two boxer dogs are guardians.

"In every other regard," she said, "life is very pleasant. The country is high above sea level. There is a good social life and Jill goes to an excellent school.

"Kenya High is attended by some 650 girls, most of them boarders, and I think it is one of the finest schools in the commonwealth."

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I work in Montreal and earn $1.75 an hour. At 40 hours a week, this gives me a salary of $70 a week. I pay for unemployment insurance stamps of the highest denomination, those of 60 cents. When I lost my job in January, I received only $21 a week, whereas I should have received $23. My co-workers who became unemployed at the same time as I have been receiving $23 a week, yet they receive the same salary as I do. What is the amount drawn by persons paying only 50 cents a week, and by those paying 60 cents a week?

A. The rate of benefit is based on the average of the last 30 contribution weeks, immediately prior to a claim. Thus if the earnings for each of those 30 weeks were from $45 to $50.99 the average weekly contribution would be 52 cents and the weekly rate of benefit $19 if the claimant is single. Or, if the earnings were $57 and over in each of the 30 weeks, the weekly contribution would be 60 cents and the weekly rate would be $23. (single). It is likely that you had some broken time during the 30 weeks prior to your claim so that your contributions did not average 60 cents per week throughout.

* * *

Q. If I am unemployed and receiving unemployment insurance benefits can I move to another area in the hope of finding a job without losing my benefits?

A. You may if you first inform the local office to which you are reporting, of your intention. It is pointed out, however, that the employment service with a full knowledge of employment needs throughout the country is at your disposal and it would be well to consult with an employment officer before going to any expense in travelling around the country.

Canadian individuality stressed in Textile Conference this week

Montreal, Que., May 6 — Fashion presentations unique in Canadian history are being staged at the huge Canadian Textile Conference in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel here.

Monday night's gala preview, the first of three shows, was unique for several reasons. First it was the most comprehensive collection of all-Canadian fashions, for all ages and all occasions, ever assembled in one show.

It displays the designs of members of the Association of Canadian Couturiers as well as of top Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver manufacturers of men's, women's and children's wear; all in Canadian-made fabrics. Its presentation and staging is also unusual.

Designed as a showcase of the primary textile industry's wares, theme of the show is "Canadians and their way of life." Cities across the country are identified in the various scenes depicting daily life high-lighted by music and dancing.

The musical ensemble led by Miriam Simon, featured a harp, the first time this instrument has been used for a fashion show. Canadian ballet star Olivia Macdonald is the featured dancer, and even the stage hands are part of the act as they move scenery and props in full view of the audience. The latter are students from the Sir George Williams School of Retailing.

The show will be seen by thousands during the three-day textile conference. It represents the combined skills of members of the 40 associations participating in the conference in addition to their allied trades.

The show commences with an early morning "wake up" scene which leads from sleepwear fashions and housecoats through daytime wear, as the family starts for school, play or work. Coats, suits, dresses and playclothes are all included.

By noon the scene changes to clothes suitable for shopping, luncheons, meetings or other home, social or business activities. Throughout the many practical, easy care qualities of modern Canadian textiles are emphasized. As the show progresses, afternoon styles lead to dressier more luxurious clothes for parties, dinners and finally gala evenings. The latter group all designs by Canadian Couturiers.

Sportswear shown includes fashions for all types of favorite recreation in both summer and winter, from bathing suits to ski clothes. The traditional bridal scene includes fashions for the wedding guests.

In her commentary, Doris Clark pointed out that today Canadian fabrics are unexcelled in styling and quality. Although the show includes all the latest fashion trends, it is not designed to show or set new trends, she said. Rather it illustrates the infinite variety of fabrics and clothing made in Canada and the excellent styling and workmanship available to all Canadians.

She pointed out that the textile and clothing trades behind the styles, were the largest employers of manufacturing labor in the country, representing the jobs of 200,000 Canadians.

Further showings of the fashions will be held May 7 and the entire production will be staged at 4 p.m. on May 8 for a huge audience of representatives of women's organizations of Montreal and district.

CONSERVATION AUTHORITY PLANTS 400,000 TREES

Co-operation between provincial and municipal authorities is resulting in the planting of close to 400,000 trees in the Metropolitan Toronto area this spring. They are being planted by machines, as shown here, on private and public land in the 950 square mile area surrounding the city and most of reforestation is being done on marginal farm plots. On private land, the city's conservation authority provides the men and equipment at a cost of $5 per thousand trees with a minimum of 1,000 trees and a maximum of 30,000 for any one landowner. The reforestation plan will result in the conservation of soil and water.

Former schoolma'am from North River gained international repute as Northwest naturalist

How a modest country schoolma'am came to be internationally known as an authority on the flora and fauna of the Northwest, is the story of a North River girl, Eva (Bradford) Beckett — sister of Douglas and Bruce Bradford of these parts — which reads like a veritable fairy tale.

Miss Bradford once taught in the North River schoolhouse, also was principal at St. Andrews East. While teaching at Portage du Fort, Ont., she met and married Russell Beckett, who joined the Ontario Hydro and subsequently the National Harbors Board, filling a role which led to Churchill, Manitoba. . . From her interests developed in the Northwest, it appears Mrs. Beckett is now a consultant to botanists, entomologists, and ornithologists connected with museums and Departments of Agriculture on at least two continents.

Mrs. Beckett, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bradford, has a brother, Cecil, in Winnipeg, and a sister, Grace (Mrs. Russell McGibbon), in Calgary, besides her two brothers here. Following is the news story released last week, which gives more details on this colorful character.

(Women's News Service)

Churchill, Manitoba — A gentle grandmother is probably the only woman in the world to have a sawfly named after her.

Mrs. Eva Beckett, teacher, naturalist, bird-watcher and long-time resident of the Canadian sub-Arctic, is not the least disturbed that her new namesake is a vicious pest with an appetite for tender young leaves, and the stalks of nearly-ripened wheat.

The honor was bestowed on Mrs. Beckett following a request from the British Museum, London, for a collection of willow gills — the tiny cherry-like welts found on the underside of willow leaves — containing the developing sawfly larvae.

First findings released last September revealed a new species which the scientists promptly dubbed "Pontania Beckettae."

A lifetime passion for birds, a deep interest in plants and flowers and a solid grounding in nature study at Macdonald College, prepared Mrs. Beckett for the years she was to roam the frozen tundra at Churchill, Man. This is adjacent to Fort Churchill, one of the links in the Canadian-American chain of northern defences.

Fascinated by Plants

Mrs. Beckett's alert eyes found the Arctic wastes teeming with color and interest. Fascinated by the abundance of plants, birds and animals of both Arctic and sub-Arctic zones, she kept a careful watch on these little known flora and fauna for 25 years.

Although she never realized an early ambition to write a bird book, she used her knowledge as a background for nature study articles which found a ready market in specialized and general-interest magazines. Plans for the future — now that her husband has retired as electrical superintendent with the National Harbors Board at Churchill — will include more free-lance writing.

The Becketts will make their home at Fort William, Ont., where Mrs. Beckett kept winter headquarters when their children were little, spending the summers at Churchill with her husband. She has lived continuously at the northern post for the past 12 years.

Mrs. Beckett has also developed a high degree of skill with a camera and recently realized the fulfillment of a shutterbug's dream — the sale of a color photograph to a magazine.

Her familiar figure will be missed "at the end of the steel" — the railroad's terminal point — as will the not uncommon sight of 200 multi-hued birds clustered below her dining-room windows.

She will be missed most of all by the children of the community who accompanied her on field trips and helped her gather specimens for the many collections she has made for universities, museums and research programs in Canada, the U.S. and Europe.

A teacher before her marriage, Mrs. Beckett has tried to instill in the youngsters her own love for the wonders of nature, and her respect and optimism for the future of the north — feelings now shared by big business.

The children proved their worth in one of the last projects she undertook before leaving the Arctic — an assignment from the Amsterdam (Holland) Zoological Museum, where a persistent scientist requested a collection of northern bumble-bees.

Mrs. Beckett had turned down the request twice. "I'm sorry", she wrote, "I have neither the time nor equipment to do this for you." But several weeks later an assortment of mysterious parcels arrived by mail from Holland. The never-say-die scientist had bundled up all the equipment needed to gather bees — complete with bottles of cyanide.

Mrs. Beckett relented, and wrote to find out how many bees the scientist wanted — "thinking 25 should be sufficient."

Back came the answer — 2,000, thank you kindly. Mrs. Beckett rounded up all her young friends, including white, Indian and Eskimo children and the offspring of American and Canadian army personnel. Among them they rounded up all but a few of the required total.

"My, we learned a lot," she recalled, with the gentle, faraway look in her eyes which is a trademark of those who have known and loved the north.

The Becketts have come south for a time, but the odds are even that they will return often to enjoy northern summers in the area they helped to pioneer.

PILOTS "ARROW" IN RCAF TESTS

Flt.-Lieut. Jack F. Woodman, 33, of Saskatoon, became the first RCAF pilot to try out the CF-105 "Arrow" in an hour's flight out of Malton airport, Toronto. Attached to the RCAF's Central Experimental and Proving Establishment, F/L Woodman will be in on RCAF flight testing of the aircraft should the government decide to buy the delta-winged interceptor. This initial flight was for familiarization. He spent five months with the USAF flying the delta-winged F-102, a similar type of aircraft, in preparation, and has flown the "chase" aircraft in the Arrow's previous flights.

Radiation hazard seen minimal in X-ray examination

Ste. Adele, Que. — If an X-ray examination is indicated, do not hesitate to carry it out, advised a Montreal radiologist to doctors attending the 20th annual meeting of the Quebec Division of the Canadian Medical Association, last week.

In his address on the hazards of radiation, Dr. Marvin Lougheed said that the amount of radiation caused by a chest X-ray was small in comparison to that brought about by wearing a wrist watch with a fluorescent dial, or the use of shoe-fitting fluoroscopes.

Natural sources of radiation can cause damage to the body and the human race as a whole, said Dr. Lougheed. He stated that the sources of radiation include: contamination of water by radium, radio-active materials, nuclear explosions, the medical use of radiological apparatus, fluorescent dials on watches, and shoe fitting fluoroscopes.

The immediate concern of the medical profession, and the general public, was the radiation damage caused by the last two groups mentioned. The doctor also pointed out that this source of radiation will not make itself known to the individual, but it may become apparent in his or her descendants.

The doctor also stated this form of radiation is a hazard to the human race when large segments of the population are exposed to an excess amount. He also pointed out that this type of radiation will have no bearing whatever on a patient who is incapable of bearing a child, or past the child-bearing age.

Cadillac

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

It's an Easy Step from Dreaming to Driving!

Almost all of his adult life, he has looked forward to the day when he would own a Cadillac car.

And now here he is at last—just a few miles out of his initial journey—with his hands on the wheel and his head in the clouds. It's his!

And yet, truth to tell, he does have one regret. For he knows that he needn't have waited this long, had he but realized what an easy step it is from dreaming of a Cadillac to driving in a Cadillac!

Like a great many motorists, for instance, he was not aware that a Cadillac—in view of its obvious virtues—could be so modest in price.

Nor did he appreciate, until the facts were presented to him, how economical a Cadillac is to maintain—or how wonderfully the car holds its value over the years.

And little did he suspect how accommodating his dealer would be—from every possible standpoint—in welcoming him to membership in the great and distinguished family of Cadillac owners.

So, if you have your heart set on a Cadillac, you should hesitate no longer to investigate this happy set of circumstances.

In fact, why not visit your dealer today? He will be happy to help you select your favorite Cadillac with your favorite Fleetwood interior—be it the luxurious Sixty-Two Coupe or the magnificent Eldorado Brougham.

And he has had long practice in the art of making dreams come true.

International Trade Fair in Montreal to open May 30

Montreal — The Hon. Gordon Churchill, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, will officially open the 2nd Montreal International Trade Fair, May 30.

The opening ceremonies will be attended by Federal and Provincial officials, representatives from various embassies and legations in Canada and leading businessmen and industrialists. The Fair will run for 10 days.

This year's trade fair will feature exhibits from 15 nations representing both government and private industries. Products on display in the 229 exhibits range from consumer goods and handicrafts to heavy industry.

Agriculture – internationally speaking; an appraisal of supply and demand

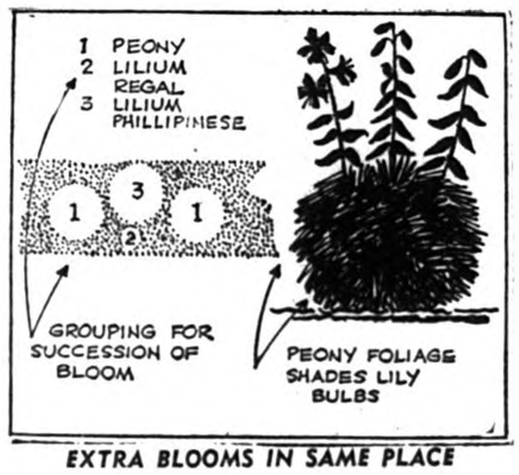

Ottawa — More than 50 delegates from the United States, Canada and Mexico attended a two-day conference of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers (North American Region) in Ottawa recently. The delegations were led by the heads of the farm organizations in the three countries. The Mexican delegate, Don Alberto Salinas Ramos, president of the Asociacion Nacional de Cosecheros, was elected chairman of the next meeting, which will be held in Mexico next year.

During the debate which led to the resolution urging U.S.-Canadian leadership in constructive international consultation on wheat, the delegates were told that in 1957-58 for the second consecutive year and for the third time in history, world trade in wheat probably would be more than one billion bushels. At the same time, wheat production is going up in both wheat importing and wheat exporting nations. This is expected to leave an excess supply of at least one billion bushels by the end of July, 1958. It also was noted that, while wheat trade will be high, the upward trend in production in deficit countries may spell trouble for the maintenance of such high level trade in wheat.

One of the liveliest discussions at the meeting concerned contract farming and vertical integration. The subject was added to the agenda at the request of the Canadian delegation. All participating organizations made highly constructive statements on the matter and it was decided to establish a working party to make a more detailed study of the issue. The working party will report to the next meeting and provide a background for a broader discussion at that time.

The delegates also heard reports on what the European Common Market will mean to farmers in North America. In a staff paper, these forecasts were made:

1. Europe probably will import less wheat generally, and there will be greater emphasis on importing types of wheat which are complementary to the kind of wheat grown in Europe. For example, Europe likely will take more high protein, hard wheat to mix with European soft wheat.
2. Europe probably will import more feed grain from North America, although this feed grain will run into stiff competition from Argentine maize.
3. Europe probably will import more oilseeds.
4. Europe probably will considerably reduce imports of animal protein foods (meat, eggs and dairy products).
5. Europe probably will import less fresh deciduous fruit and import more dried fruit and citrus fruit.
6. Europe probably will import more cotton, although much of this extra cotton may come from outside the Western Hemisphere.
7. Europe probably will import less tobacco.

EXTRA BLOOMS IN SAME PLACE

Sometimes garden space seems too small for all the flowers one wants to grow. The answer lies in growing two plants in the area usually given to one. With proper grouping, there will be twice as many blooms.

An example of "double planting" is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. In this case, lilies and peonies are happily growing together. The peony foliage keeps the lily bulbs shaded and cool.

One suggestion for double grouping is pictured. It calls for the use of peonies, lilium regal and lilium philipinense. This grouping will give succession of bloom in comparatively small space. The peonies bloom in June, the regal lilies in July and the phillipinense lilies still later.

Most lilies thrive in the same type of soil as peonies. When planting the lily bulbs, do not place them too near the base roots of the peony plants. Keep them at least six inches away.

The regal lily grows from three to five feet high. It produces large trumpet-shaped flowers, pure white with a canary throat and is rose-purple outside. Set the bulbs eight to 10 inches deep.

Lilium phillipinense also produces long trumpet shaped flowers, slightly marked externally with reddish-brown. The plants grow two to three feet high.

Do not plant the Madonna lily under peonies, since this lily does best when sunlight can directly reach the soil which covers the bulb.

Improved varieties of garden beets

Ottawa — Improved shape, smaller and smoother crowns, better color and earlier yield are distinctive features of a number of new varieties of garden beets introduced in recent years. These varieties all have wide adaptation. V. W. Nuttall, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, says some have been tailored for specific usage, such as the early-maturing short-top types for market bunching, and other types with superior color for canning whole, or for dicing.

King Red and Ruby Queen are two new beet varieties recommended for both the home and market garden. Both are suitable for bunching. Ruby Queen may be superior for canning whole because of smoothness, size uniformity and freedom from zoning. King Red has a slightly longer top and a more intense exterior color. New Early is a home garden type with a short top and very short top-root making it easy to pull. Though it has good color, a tendency toward shoulder scurfiness in some seasons makes it less attractive for bunching purposes. Red Ball is similar to New Early, but has a shorter top. It also becomes scurfy occasionally. Detroit Small Crown is among the better strains of the rather large number of Detroit Dark Red types presently available. The Small Crown strain is recommended for late bunching. In choosing a second improved strain of the Detroit Dark Red type, a grower must select the one most suitable for his or the market's requirements.

It is recognized that the decision as to the worth of a variety rests with those who grow, market, or use it. Therefore, it is suggested that growers try the newer varieties at first on a limited scale, until they have proved their value.

$10,000,000 "voice highway" links remote Northern Quebec by telephone

Dialing "O" for operator, a telephone user in the new exchange at Goose Bay, scheduled for service June 1, will signal the operator in Quebec City, 670 airline miles away.

The $10,000,000 communications system linking that remote Air Force station with the national telephone system — and the world — is not being built merely to serve an exchange of 2,000 telephone lines. It's a voice highway erected by Bell Telephone Company of Canada and Québec Téléphone to help open up the vast resources of Northern Quebec and Labrador for development.

A strange phenomenon known as "tropospheric scatter" makes economically possible the provision of scores of telephone chanels north to such remote centres as Schefferville (Knob Lake) and Goose Bay.

200-Mile Leaps

Ordinary microwave-radio transmission requires relay points an average of 30 miles apart — in "line of sight" with one another. Tropospheric scatter permits relay stations to be located up to 200 miles apart — "over the horizon" from each other.

At Goose Bay, the new dial office will serve several hundred members of the Royal Canadian Air Force and of the Department of Transport, as well as residents of the neighboring Labrador community of Happy Valley. These people, and several thousand members of the United States Air Force stationed there, will now have regular commercial long distanee telephone service for the first time.

Because the new exchange is not readily accessible to telephone maintenance men from a larger centre, as would be the case with most offices of its size, the Bell Telephone Company has had to build permanent living quarters for 20 men, a garage for six vehicles, and a storehouse and work-shop — just to maintain Goose Bay's service alone.

Linked to Trans-Canada System

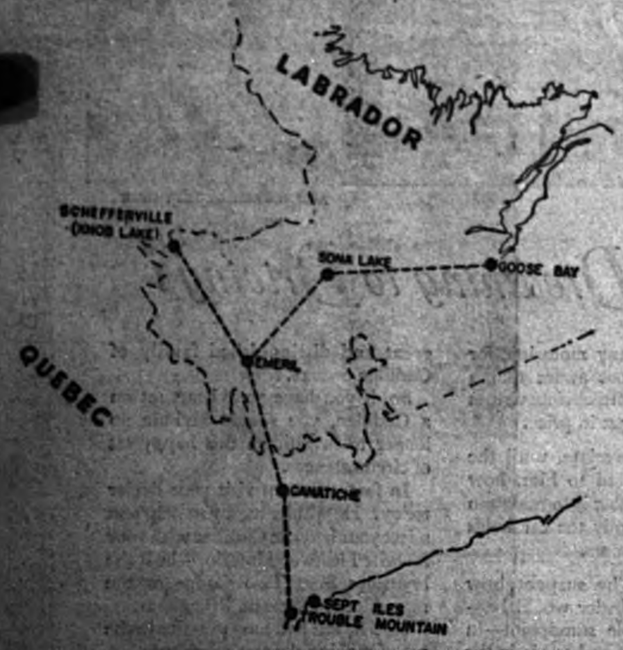

From Quebec City, conversations will travel along a section of the Trans-Canada Telephone System's coast-to-coast microwave network to St. Athanase, Que., then switch over to a new microwave relay link being built by Québec-Téléphone to carry the signals east to Trouble Mountain, 15 miles from Seven Islands — rail gateway to the vast iron-ore mining territory.

At Trouble Mountain is located the first station, operated by Québec-Téléphone, of the tropospheric scatter system. Relay stations have been under construction by the Bell Telephone Company through the past winter at Canatiche, Que., and Emeril, Nfld., on the Quebec North Shore Railway, and at Sona Lake, Nfld., near the famed Grand Falls on the Hamilton River. From Trouble Mountain to Goose Bay is 460 miles by the tropospheric scatter route.

At Emeril another leg of the system reaches 118 miles north to Schefferville in the Knob Lake mining district. The dial telephone exchange at Schefferville is served by La Compagnie de Téléphone d'Ungava, a subsidiary of the Iron Ore Company. Long distance service is already available to telephone users in Schefferville, but the microwave link will provide additional facilities as required.

Route of the "tropospheric scatter" radio relay system being built by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada and Québec-Téléphone to serve the Quebec-Labrador mining area. It is scheduled for service June 1.

HOW DO YOU FEED YOUR CALVES?

Most people have their own way to feed calves. Some ways are good and some not so good.

The main thing to remember is that all young things have an urge to grow, and that is the time to go after GROWTH. Any system that will give maximum growth at this age will give good results, but a system that lets down on growth lets down for the rest of the animal's life. You don't get the size nor ability that you should.

The PURINA Calf Growing Plan has been developed over many years on thousands of calves and will do all you want it to do, if you will use it right.

Purina says to start the calf on CALF STARTENA at 4 days old, and only one gallon of milk a day for large breeds, less for smaller breeds, and milk for only the first 4 weeks — no hay till 2 months old. Now this is where most of the troubles are. Many insist on feeding much more milk and complain the calf won't eat the Startena. Calves are just like children. Children won't eat bread if they can get cake. They don't give a hoot what is best for them. So by limiting the milk to 1 gallon or less a day for the first four weeks, you get them on solid feed sooner and easier, and this plan will grow a much bigger animal than to humor the calf. Others continue the milk for two or three months, and others add water to the milk. This is just filling up the calf with water, of which some is necessary, but there is little growth in it.

Feed Purina Calf Startena but FEED IT RIGHT. . . Your orders will receive our prompt attention.

Discarded iceboxes and other airtight cabinets are a hazard to children when chosen as hiding places in their games.

Do not let your old refrigerator be a menace. If you are discarding it, remove entire door, or at least remove the latchstop. This is usually fastened with screws on the frame and is easily removed.

If used as a general storage cabinet, drill holes through the body of the refrigerator and remove the gasket around door or lid, so that anyone caught inside could breathe.

These operations together—though not singly—will unseal the compartment and allow air into the box.

If you have a refrigerator in temporary storage make it safe by taking off the latch-stop.

REMEMBER—the child you save may be your own! Take these precautions today with your discarded refrigerator or freezer!

Ch. of Commerce brief on evaluation; Council to engage expert assessors

Following up its civic improvement role promoted so vigorously last year, Lachute Chamber of Commerce came forward at the Council meeting with a brief on municipal finance, dealing specifically with the matter of valuation.

It is recognized that this question is one of prime importance in budgeting for, and the administration of, town business. It has been brought frequently before the Council for study, realizing that valuation on a scientific basis would benefit both the town and the taxpayers.

A brief presented at the Council last week by Gabriel Valois, on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce drew attention to the inequable valuations in effect and the lack of a basic system of evaluating property in this town.

To remedy the situation, the Chamber of Commerce emphatically recommends that qualified experts be engaged to study the situation, make a complete and dependable valuation throughout while establishing a sound basis of appraisal, and also to determine the types of buildings for different sections, which will later serve as a basis for zoning purposes.

"Even if we do not confuse an evaluation roll with a tax roll, we are sure that the tax roll will be fairer because of its accuracy," the text of this brief continued.

"Over and above serving the population fairly, a scientific evaluation will:

"(a) Stabilize the evaluation roll allow us to state here that our industrial development could be enhanced by a well done evaluation roll, in effect, even if industries do not object to supporting the tax load to which they are subjected, they are not favorable to an eventually unjustifiable evaluation even if this be below the real value. This is also true for existing industries as well as those who would in the future consider establishing themselves here.

"(b) Basic information gathered in the process of establishing a scientific evaluation roll would equally serve in the future for — expropriation; parking; traffic; new developments; zoning; construction, and other various improvements.

"(c) Needless to say that even if the financial status of the Town is in good standing it could benefit from better rates of financing its present debt, and without a doubt the first to benefit from this would be the taxpayer."

Resolutions Adopted

The presentation of this brief led up to a Council resolution worded in the following terms:

Whereas, in order to supply various public services a municipality needs revenues, which are secured through taxation;

Whereas, it is the duty of municipal authorities to distribute the tax burden in a uniform and equitable basis, the whole according to the dispositions of the law;

Whereas, the main source of municipal revenue is obtained from the tax on real estate;

Whereas, the real estate tax is levied and figured according to the valuation roll;

Whereas, it is evident that the valuation roll must be prepared in a uniform and equitable manner as to burden no ratepayer unduly;

Whereas, the budget of the Town of Lachute is increasing from year to year;

Whereas, within a very few years, the Town of Lachute will be called upon to undertake public works of great extent with a corresponding increase in the municipal debt;

Whereas, as a rule, the municipal debt is guaranteed and paid for by the real estate;

Large gathering at Bank reception in new building

If austerity has been traditionally associated with Banking, there is no evidence of this quality in the new surroundings in which the Bank of Nova Scotia now conducts its business here . . .

On Saturday afternoon the Bank held open house in its brand-new premises at 470 Main Street, when local and district friends accepted a general invitation to look over the new building and to meet the manager, staff and officials.

The premises are bright with tasteful shades of finish and decoration, cheerful drapes and comfortable appointments. Floral baskets sent by the contractors, sub-contractors, clients and supervisory officials of the Bank, enhanced the surroundings.

Altogether, over 400 persons attended this informal reception, inspected the new Bank and enjoyed refreshments, served by the Evening Group of the United Church W.A.

Mr. G. C. Hitchman, Assistant General Manager, of Toronto, with Mr. A. L. Ormiston, Supervisor, and Mr. W. Radford, Special Representative, of Montreal, joined with the branch manager, Mr. G. C. Higginson, Mrs. Higginson and the staff, in receiving the guests.

The new Bank of Nova Scotia building, constructed by Jas. W. Pollock, embodies the most modern features of present-day banking, including straight-line counters for speedier service, re-inforced concrete vault, with vault door and steel cabinets by Chubb of Canada. The quarters provide all required facilities for efficient service and for the convenience of both staff and customers.

Objective exceeded in Cancer "blitz"

Incomplete returns from the blitz drive Monday evening on behalf of the Cancer Society, Argenteuil Section, indicate this campaign will meet all expectations.

The campaign chairman, Gerard Lefebvre, gave the following results up to noon on Tuesday:

Greater Lachute

Donations in hand, $1,823; definitely anticipated from Special Names, $500, Stores and Industries, $500.

Neighboring Centres

Brownsburg, $600; Grenville $300; anticipated minimum from other communities, $1,000.

The grand total, conservatively stated, is therefore $4,723 — well over the objective of $4,000.

Dead is Francois Carrière, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Carrière. André Taillefer, 6, is in serious condition in Hotel Dieu Hospital, St. Jerome, police said. Driver of the car was Maurice Lafond, 29, of Ste. Scholastique.

District Coroner Dr. Jos. Pagé opened an inquest, which was later adjourned.

Progress report on Lachute Fair plans for June 12-14

Several directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society met with the Hon. W. M. Cottingham Monday afternoon in connection with Lachute Spring Fair. Sincere appreciation was expressed to the Minister for his practical support and assistance to the Fair over the past years.

A notable to be present on the Saturday of Fair Week — according to Manager Ken Riley — is the Federal Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. Douglas Harkness.

Mr. Riley draws attention to the fact that livestock entries close May 16. There is already an extensive list of draft horses, hunters and jumpers entered from many noted stables, both local and distant; these include also six-horse teams. For the cattle classes many large entries are coming in, and it is indicated this may be a record-breaker for livestock exhibits in the long history of Lachute Fair.

The engagement of "Le Grand Robert", noted hypnotist, is confirmed for the Thursday evening grandstand show, sponsored by the Lions Club.

Keen interest will be evident in the Teen-age Queen contest Friday, under auspices of Legion 70. On this day an added attraction will be the Shriners' Oriental Band from Karnak Temple.

Saturday grandstand features, also in charge of the Legion, will include the exciting horse drawing contest with valuable cash prizes.

Lions welcome District Governor Dr. W. FitzGerald

Guest warmly acclaimed on official visit to home-town club

The semi-monthly meeting of the Lions Club was held Tuesday of last week, and the highlight was the official visit of the District Governor.

The Lachute Club was very proud to play host to this high-ranking officer — specially so because the dignitary is a local member in the person of Lion Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, who has occupied this post since last June.

One of the duties of the District Governor is to visit each club in the District at least once during his term of office, to acquaint himself at first hand with the progress under his leadership. Lion Dr. FitzGerald certainly has done what was expected of him and his devotion to the task caused him to travel even as far as Schefferville, in New Quebec.

The distinguished visitor drew warm applause from his fellow-members after encouraging them to put more interest into the club's activities. He stated that the motive of each Lion member in the district is clearly that of being of service to the less-fortunate and underprivileged, regardless of color, race or creed. Dr. FitzGerald expressed a warning against complacency; his words of inspiration were directed not only to the Club in general, but also to each member individually.

It was the president of the Club, Lion Ernest Snadden, who introduced the guest and presented him with a motion-picture camera as a token of esteem from all the members of the home club.

Former Deputy District Governor Horace Lamarche thanked Dr. FitzGerald on behalf of the Club, and emphasized the many qualities which the Governor had shown during his term of office.

An announcement was made that the Club was sending 46 underprivileged local youngsters to the Hamid Morton Circus, currently being staged in Montreal.

Colorful '58 graduation ceremonies witnessed at Lachute High School

Lachute High School graduation exercises, held last Friday evening in the school auditorium, ran true to form, introducing that touch of youthful sentiment which finds expression only on such rare public occasions. The graduating class this year numbered 23 students, somewhat fewer than in other years, but the glamor of the occasion was no less evident, and the decorations in the hall carried the motif of the occasion with refreshing ingenuity.

Notable from the adult viewpoint was the fact that Jas. W. McGibbon spoke in the role of School Commission chairman for the eleventh successive occasion — a term of community service which deserves comment; and that Principal Fred Royal spoke in that capacity for his twelfth year at a graduation ceremony. This factor of continuity has been a standing asset to the school in terms of measured progress.

Mr. McGibbon's humor fitted the mood of the occasion, with good wishes and good advice interjected. The school enrolment, he noted, was now almost 700. It has become a larger enterprise than any had ever expected, and an addition to the school premises would be necessary in the near future. "However, it is the stature of our graduates, rather than the size of our school, which is the real criterion," he added, with warm commendation to the pupils terminating their high school years this June.

Mr. Royal made reference to an "esteemed and much talked-of" predecessor, Principal Charles McBurney, and compared the graduates of forty years ago with those of today — their opportunities, their environment, their distractions. Despite the appearance of a carefree attitude towards learning, Mr. Royal voiced a personal assurance regarding the pupils of today — that, in academic terms, they were deeply and sincerely concerned. "I fully believe that the youth of today will make excellent citizens tomorrow."

This, however, was the students' day. . . The murmurings of the scholastic fathers were but incidental to the theme. Walter Nymark was master of ceremonies on behalf of his fellow graduates, and called the tune for the general proceedings.

Ruth Silverson introduced the graduates individually to the considerable audience of parents and friends.

The traditional Last Will and Testament was recited by Bonnie MacTavish and David Pollock. The Class Prophecy was read by Beverley Hadley and Grant Rogers, and Jean Taylor was the very capable Valedictorian.

On conclusion of the formalities, the stage was cleared for Stan Bankley's musicians, and the Grand March by the graduates, their escorts and partners, led off the session of dancing and social interchanges.

During the intermission, feats of magic were performed by a talented entertainer, Mr. Ronald Bell, a former Air Force associate of one of the teaching staff, Mr. James Whitley.

Noted biologist outlines proposals on lake poisoning and re-stocking

Dr. Gus Prevost, Director of the Quebec Biological Bureau, on Monday evening was met by a highly appreciative group of fishermen in the Brownsburg Legion Hall, and once again explained his reasons for the minnow-bait fishing ban in Argenteuil County. Only one person in the packed hall questioned Dr. Prevost in a prejudiced manner, to which he replied, "Argenteuil County is not a 'sucker county' as you suggest, but the first so privileged county in the province, and other counties have already started looking in this direction, so they can get on the band-wagon for some free and sensible re-stocking of their lakes."

Dr. Prevost, who was introduced to the gathering by Leonard Bedard, president of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association, illustrated his various points with appropriate slides, and touching on the poisoning of lakes, stated, "It would cost more than $100,000 to poison Lake Louisa at the present time, but we are now working on a new poison which we are sure will do the job for $5,000 or less. Before this is done, however, we have to know more about the lake and, as an experiment, we are this week going to stock Lake Louisa with 2,000 yearling salmon. We know enough about it to realize it could be a good salmon lake — which might surprise you," he added, "In addition to this, there will be 15,000 Brown Trout; 10,000 Rainbow Trout, and from between 2 million to 3 million Smelt eggs. We want Smelt to get permanently installed in the lake, as they make good feeding fish for Lake Trout." Dr. Prevost pointed out that this was being done as an experiment, only and that more positive action would probably be taken in the future.

Talking prior to the meeting, Dr. Prevost pointed out that over the week-end, two members of his staff made a survey of the residents of Lake Louisa at the same time as they were making biological tests of the lake, and all persons contacted were in favor of the new law against minnows. "We have already tested more than half of the 200-odd lakes in the County and, when we finish, will decide which lakes to poison and re-stock. By doing this properly, ten lakes will be sufficient for all residents of the County."

Dr. Prevost went on to inform the gathering of the Trout's direct and indirect enemies in the water, the direct enemy being a type of fish which will eat the Speckled or Red Trout, and the latter minnows as they eat the Trout eggs, and the Trout does not, as a general rule, eat them. "A pair of Suckers will lay 50,000 eggs a year; Sunfish and Perch are the worst enemies, not only of Trout, and yet most of our lakes which are Speckled Trout waters, are filled with these fish." He pointed out that Perch will even give Bass trouble, but the latter, put in the right waters, will make ideal fishing. "They might be okay in Lake Macdonald, but we can make that a perfect Trout lake."

The noted biologist showed slides depicting the various types of disease spread by minnows, and gave examples of various local lakes in which this occurred.

"Let me remind you," he stated, "that the Montreal Anglers and Hunters Incorporated spent $1,800 on improvements to Lake Vingt-Sous (Twenty-Cent Lake) near St. Adolphe d'Howard last year. The work was done in co-operation with the Game and Fisheries Department and the municipal council. First the undesirable fish were wiped out and the lake was re-stocked with 20,000 Speckled Trout, and more have been placed in the lake this spring. These waters," he added, "are open to you, the public, to fish on at any time in compliance with the law."

Question Period

Dr. Prevost then opened the meeting to the audience, who questioned him on various aspects of the minnow ban and other fishing problems, portions of which follow:

. . . Fishing with minnows in Washington State means a minimum fine of $250 with a maximum of $1,000 and a year in jail, this also being in effect with just having minnows in your possession. In commenting on this, he pointed out that if you realize the damage a couple of minows can represent in dollars, this is entirely justified.

. . . It is impossible to enforce a partial ban of minnows as the wardens have no way of telling whether the minnows were caught in the lake the party is fishing in or not.

. . . It is possible that in certain lakes, only minnows will catch trout. We can't take the chance of contaminating the whole countryside just to please a few people who want to fish during that period. Dr. Prevost brought out his point here by stating that in nearby Terrebonne County, one lake was poisoned three times, and each time re-stocked, and is again full of coarse fish.

President Leonard Bedard and Dr. Gustave Prevost

. . . Most of the re-stocking done to date has accomplished little, as we didn't know the requirements of the waters concerned. We have stocked close to 100 lakes in Argenteuil in the past 15 years on this basis and are finished with that policy.

. . . For efficient results, the chain of Barron Lake (Long Lake), Lake Dawson, Lake William and Lake Sir John will have to be poisoned, and we won't do anything along these lines until we have protection on the lakes.

. . . Pickled minnows are not allowed, however on the south of Route 8, from the western limit of Argenteuil County to Lachute, and on the south of Route 41, from Lachute to the eastern limit of the County, transporting and fishing with live minnows is allowed. It is understood that this kind of fishing is also allowed on that portion of the Ottawa River which is in the County. However, transporting and fishing with lampreys remains forbidden everywhere in the Country.

. . . The ban is not too late as there are no Perch or Sunfish in Lake Louisa.

. . . Each lake is a special body of water and has to be treated as such. In general, minnows are not Trout food and are in fact a small portion of their menu. This may vary in your particular lake, however.

Dr. Prevost was thanked for his interesting and informative address by Basil Jackson, of Brownsburg.

County Women's Institutes adopt a major undertaking

Decision to raise fund for old folks' home affirmed at 38th annual County convention

The 38th annual convention of the Argenteuil County Women's Institutes was held on Saturday, commencing at 9.30 a.m. The meeting was opened with the singing of the Opening Ode and the repeating of the Mary Stewart Collect.

The ten branches in the County were represented, and it was reported there were 90 members present out of a total of 328 members in the County.

Mrs. M. R. Wilson, County president, welcomed the members and guests to the convention and business got underway. The outstanding business of the morning was the discussion of last year's resolution stressing the need for a home for elderly people. After considerable discussion and reports from delegates, it was moved, seconded and carried by the meeting that a fund be started for this purpose. Mrs. N. E. Smillie, president of the Brownsburg Branch, donated $10 to this fund on behalf of her group.

A delicious luncheon was served by the members of the Upper Lachute W.I. to the convention and guests, who were as follows: Mayor and Mrs. Leopold Carrière; the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A.; Mr. J. O. Latour, M.P.; Mr. Jas. McGibbon, chairman of the School Board, and Mrs. McGibbon; Mrs. Ossington, 2nd provincial vice-president; Dr. L. Turcotte, County Health Officer, and Mrs. Turcotte; Mr. J. S. Giles; Mr. Erskine Rodger, president of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, and Mrs. Rodger.

At the afternoon session Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh conducted a short memorial service for members who departed this life during the past year.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Ossington, who was introduced by Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh. She spoke of all phases of W.I. work and told of the new stamp which will soon be issued, that of Adelaide Hoodless, the founder of W.I's. She also announced there was a new Home Economics director in the person of Miss Christie. She commended the president and conveners on their fine work.

Mrs. G. McGibbon thanked Mrs. Ossington for being present and giving such a stimulating talk.

Council's obligation in moral welfare—

Persistent demands in Ayersville to suppress obscene literature

Ayersville councillors were "on the carpet" again, at their regular meeting last week, on the matter of immoral news-sheets sold in local restaurants. No fewer than 40 ratepayers attended the Council sitting and heard a letter presented by the village priest, the Rev. Dalma Brisebois.

Briefly, this letter charged that the Council was responsible to the taxpayers not only in financial and tangible matters of municipal administration, but also, and more so, in moral aspects, social welfare and preservation of the Christian way of life.

"If you consider it in order to spend thousands to remove material waste, to maintain cleanliness and sanitary surroundings, would it not be fitting to find means and spend a few dollars to remove the pollution of morals, the roots of crime and sexuality, implanted by these rotten periodicals in our society?" the letter continued, in part.

Apart from criticism and censure, however, the curé's letter suggested two remedies. The first was that a solemn proclamation, signed by the councillors individually, be issued appealing to the citizens to respect their Christian dignity, urging them not to buy these corrupt periodicals and to forbid them in their homes; also asking vendors not to lend themselves to the dissemination of this filth. . . Secondly, that the police appear at offending news-stands immediately on the delivery of the editions and buy them out completely—which would be a strictly legal procedure. . .

"We would call this crusade a 'clean-up of moral corruption.' Nor would there be anything to prevent our publishing, without comment after the second such clean-up, the names of offending news-vendors. . And if you grudge this small expense to clean up the 'garbage', I will undertake to pay for the first clean-up myself", concluded the letter.

The curé stated he would consider it his duty to support the Council in whatever measures they saw fit to fulfill their responsibility.

Council Defers Action

After due discussion, Mayor M. Champagne declared that legally the Council had little jurisdiction. He read extracts from the press concerning the Department of Justice seeking to set a definition for "obscenity". However, the Council was "prepared to do whatever it possibly could, to rid the municipality of this literary trash."

The Mayor suggested the forming of a vigilant committee composed of non-council members.

The whole matter was held over till last Monday, when citizens, news vendors and all concerned would be invited to an open meeting and the suggested committee would be appointed.

Debate Resumed

A forceful debate Monday evening was the sequel to this protest. Notable for their absence were the merchants and restaurant-keepers concerned, although one businessman, Chas. Edouard Gauthier, spoke on their behalf. He felt that the merchants were suffering from the standpoint of their reputation, and that, if customers did not want the type of literature in question, the newsman would not sell it. The affair could be easily settled if the government would take steps.

The Rev. Dalma Brisebois here remarked that, if the merchants would rid themselves of these things, the problem would be just as easily settled. Nine newsvendors had signed such an agrement.

Germain Poulin suggested that the Sacred Heart League could draw up a list, and the Council levy a special tax on the offending journals, to discourage their sale.

Mr. Gauthier thought that the best solution would be a tax on the actual distributor — thus attacking the circulation at its source.

Mayor Maurice Champagne, referring to the priest's proposal at last meeting, felt the Council would have no authority to spend the taxpayers' money to buy up this filthy literature.

Rev. Brisebois: "Have you any special authorization to spend money to remove garbage?" There were certain expenditures, he felt, which were virtually "without price".

The debate was closed with the adoption of a resolution, as follows:

"That this Council encourages good literature, but urges the population and news-vendors to cooperate in eliminating papers, books, magazines and periodicals which provoke evil by their illustrations or descriptions. Also, this Council asks immediate action by the competent authorities against the publication, distribution and sale of all literature exciting sexual disorder."

Copies of this resolution will be directed to the Department of Justice at Ottawa and to the Attorney General of Quebec.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

It was with saddened heart that we saw the Union Jack floating at half mast on the Legion Hall flag staff for our late Comrade Frank E. Earle. Frank served overseas with the 52nd Battery during the First World War. He was past-president of Branch No. 70 (1946-47) and always had its welfare at heart. It was during his time that Highland pipers were brought to Lachute to lead the local Legion at Remembrance Day parades. The pipers invariably finished off the day by wending their way up and down the aisles of cut-glass, bone china and sterling silver in Frank's Main Street store, followed by a group of old-die-hards. This he enjoyed. . . Frank Earle will be remembered by a host of people, many of whom have left these parts, for his generosity and his sense of humor.

What child of school age during Frank's stay in Lachute cannot remember the numerous gifts that had to be bought (most always with a few cents or dollars short of the selling price). Frank made sure they got it with the funds they could raise, packaged it in a gift wrapper and often supplied a suitable gift card to boot! He was a poet of his own type — his more intimate friends will long remember the jottings in his "book of poetry."

A true testimonial to the memory of Frank was the turn-out of Legion members to accompany him to his last resting place in Lachute Cemetery. In muted silence they marched behind the hearse, some 30 strong; each placed his Poppy on the casket and saluted in Remembrance. That is as he wanted it.

To Mrs. Earle, daughter Elsie, and other members of the family, we extend our deepest sympathy.

* * *

We are sorry to report the passing of another Veteran, Normand Cleland. Mr. Cleland, we are told, joined the armed forces of the First and Second World Wars. Although we could find no record of membership in Branch 70, members were proud to be of assistance in his case. Our sincere sympathy to his family.

At the time of writing, Comrade Thos. Stewart is hospitalized in Montreal for the second time in recent months. . . Comrade Frank Bedard returned home last Friday.

Local members going to Montreal should make a point of visiting any veteran on the sick list. You will get a lot of satisfaction for the small effort involved!

* * *

Finalists slated to go to Montreal are Comrades P. Lecorre and H. Ward in the Cribbage Tournament and Comrades D. Cockburn, F. Pring, R. MacLean and D. Hay in the Darts Tournament.

* * *

A most interesting sidelight of the recent successful Bingo held by the Branch was the facial expressions of little 10-year-old Monique Sabourin when confronted with stuffing the grand prize, 25 silver dollars, into the two pockets of her little red blazer. Needless to say, it was not long until she was homeward bound — tearing down the Auditorium steps two at a time.

Notable were the double wins by the Elliott and Moreau families and by Miss Patricia Mitchell. In all, two hundred silver dollars were given away!

If you expect visitors in June this year, ask them to be sure to stay over for the Friday and Saturday night Legion activities at the Lachute Fair Grounds — June 13 and 14. The Horse Drawing Contest will be a feature attraction on Saturday evening starting at 8 o'clock. Comrades Fred Pring and Doug Ogilvie are busy sending applications to out-of-town contestants, and it is hoped that local entries will be heavy. The prize money is good, with $600 cash and two trophies already listed. There will be two classes of entries — Light and Heavyweight, with $100 cash and a trophy going to the winner in each class. Tentative plans call for scaled-down prize money for the 2nd, 3rd and 4th place contenders in each class, and a refund of entry fee to those teams not placing among the first four. We are assured of a well-run event with judges W. Brass and Watson Berry officiating. Watch for details in the advertising section, on this event!

Confirmation has been received that the Hon. Douglas S. Harkness, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has accepted the Legion invitation to be present. It is expected that the Agriculture Association will also entertain him during his stay in Lachute.

See you next week!

Organize season for junior golfers' greater interest

Events being arranged this season by a special committee for Junior golfers, include free golf clinics and field days at the Lachute Golf Club.

The season of 1958 will see Juniors featured for the first time in National Golf Week — June 5 to 9 — when Betty Stanhope, 1957 "Open" champion, will play the "Beat the Champion" round at Mayfair Golf and Country Club, Edmonton. Miss Judy Darling of Whitlock Golf and Country Club, 1957 Junior champion, Stan Leonard and Al Balding will make up the foursome. Proceeds from the event, which will be played in clubs across the country, will be used by the Royal Canadian Golf Association in the promotion of golf instruction for girls and boys.

According to a recent survey there are 15,000 Junior golfers swinging clubs around Canada's 631 courses.

Of special interest to Junior members is the decision that entrants now must not have passed their 20th birthday by the day of the Junior Championship. Also the handicap limit for Junior teams has been raised to 22.

The Provincial Junior Girls' Championship (all districts) will be held at Whitlock Golf and Country Club, Hudson, on July 3-4. Girls must have three scores of 120 or under to qualify, and will be billeted in private homes.

Inter-Provincial matches for Junior boys will be held in Toronto in the fall.

Boys admit entry into summer camps

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen reports four boys, 11 and 12 years old, have admitted breaking into 18 camps in the St. Andrews East - Carillon district. All stolen material has been recovered, he stated.

The youths, all residents of the area, have been released pending instructions from the Attorney General's department.

Caught at Lac Simon

This fine specimen of Speckled Trout, weighing 5 lbs., was caught on a light rod at Lac Simon. The angler was Roland Rochon, a C-I-L employee at Brownsburg. He entered his prize in the current season's Molson's Fishing Contest.

Ch. of Commerce presents brief on evaluation

Whereas, it is only fair that the debt burden be shared on an equitable basis;

Whereas, on any occasion, the Department of Municipal Affairs, does recommend to the municipalities to have their valuation rolls prepared in a scientific manner.

Whereas, the Lachute Town Council considers as an urgency to prepare the valuation roll in a scientific manner.

Therefore, it is moved by Ald. Mozart Carrière, seconded by Ald. Gérard Lefebvre, that the Lachute Town Council declares itself in favor of the principle of preparing the valuation roll in a scientic manner, the whole subject to price and conditions to be determined by the Council after due consideration.

Putting this motion more specifically in effect, another resolution was adopted as follows:

Moved by Ald. W. Morrissette, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock — that sealed offers of services be invited from at least four firms of repute to execute in its entirety the scientific valuation of the Town of Lachute. . . The offers of services for a fixed amount shall mention the detail of the work to be done and the price desired and shall take into account the fact that the valuation roll must be completed and deposited not later than October 31, 1958.

They shall also supply the Town with the systematic basis of a zoning by-law to be prepared by the Town of Lachute. The offers of services shall be opened on Saturday, May 17, 1958, at 1 o'clock p.m. The Council binds itself to accept neither the highest, the lowest, nor any of the offers received.

Basketball team inter-school victors honored at banquet

Winners of the provincial Inter-Scholastic Basketball contest, who as a team captured the Visser Trophy for the first time in the inter-school tournament at Lennoxville, Que., were honored guests recently at a dinner in the Lachute High School.

School commissioners, parents of the boys, members of the Students' Council and others were present for the occasion, and Mr. R. Cairns, as chairman, called on numerous ones present for a few remarks. All expressed appreciation of the honor brought both to the Lachute High School and to the town by the splendid showing of the team, and high praise was given the coach, Mr. Arne Petersen, who was also the recipient of a gift from the boys.

The team comprised — Wayne Bradford, Arthur Gauley, Reggie Stansfield, Kenneth Underhill (captain), Bruce Cairns, Jackie Lavis, Del MacTavish, Ronnie Peters, Ian Cairns, Ronnie Cairns and Gary Cruise.

Laurentian District Boy Scout mentors inspect campsite, Harrington forest farm

Members of the Laurentian District Council of the Boy Scouts Association assembled last Saturday morning at the C.I.P. Harrington Forest Farm for a one-day camp familiarization visit.

Mr. M. R. (Manny) Wilson served a dual role, presiding over the session as Laurentian District Scout Commissioner and, together with his special staff, in his capacity as manager of the Wood Lots Division was host to the group.

In order that the program might serve as a typical outing which could be arranged by a leader for a group of boys, breakfast and lunch were prepared and served outdoors. The program consisted of a round-table discussion of camping conduct and woods etiquette, tours of nature trails, instruction and practice in the use of map and compass, points of interest around farm headquarters, surveying campsite and surrounding areas, and discussion of prospects for use of the campsite.

Mr. Wilson stressed the fact that he did not wish to adopt any rigid rules for use of the campsite, but wanted Cubs and Scouts visiting this area to feel at home. He pointed out the explosive nature of the wooded areas during very dry seasons, and that use of the camp would only be restricted when his staff felt that the woods were unsafe for travel due to fire. His staff will be prepared to teach boys the fundamentals of safe camping practice, fire protection and how to raise an alarm, but stated that supervision of the groups of boys must be entirely the responsibility of the Scouter (leader) in charge.

The group felt that one major problem will be to supply sufficient leaders to take boys to this camp, but left the meeting resolved that this problem will be overcome. Consideration was given to special familiarization trips for any qualified volunteer leaders from this community.

The group are most indebted to the Canadian International Paper Company, to Mr. Wilson and his staff members (Messrs. Doug Morrison, Dick Reppert and Ernie McRae) for making this campsite and its many facilities available to the Boy Scouts Association, and for their personal assistance.

Members of the Association attending included — D. N. Atkins, B. A. Jenkins, W. F. Armstrong, J. W. Humphries, J. R. Golphin, I. W. Jones, R. R. Pearson, K. G. Ball, W. Tanner and Scout George Armstrong.

The clean-up season

FOR MANY YEARS it was our perennial custom to ring a Clean-up note, around the time these columns were boosting the Lachute Spring Fair. We still think it was a well-timed custom, realizing that the Fair brings many out-of-town exhibitors and enthusiasts from a distance who stay overnight, patronize our hotels, stores and eating places, and circulate to some extent around the town. It is unfortunate that our bright, clean residential showplaces are not on the beaten track for these visitors; their "circulating" is more generally on our older, narrower, industrial streets to reach the exhibition grounds.

If The Watchman can prevail upon all residents alike to look over their properties and clean up their lots, both back and front — this, of all seasons, is the time to do it! Springtime has ushered in a spell of cold, dispiriting weather; but any time now, we can hope for warmth and sunshine to spur the efforts of gardeners, home owners and tenants.

The "little woman" has set a commendable example indoors. Housecleaning is a traditional "must" on her springtime program. So let us put our shoulder to the wheel, our hand to the rake and spade and paint-brush.

If we need an added impetus, a Sunday trip through other communities will provide the necessary stimulant. It's good to put oneself in the shoes of a visitor from the outside, to note our reacation on entering other towns and villages, and to realize how visitors must feel about our own home-town, Lachute. If we have one whit of civic pride, that sort of experience will do the trick. . . Now let's get busy!

Home ownership

GONE ARE the days when a healthy young Canadian, contemplating marriage and a home of his own, cleared a stretch of woodland with his axe and, using some of the felled logs, built himself a cabin into which to take his bride. Life now is more complicated and municipal housing regulations require standards, comforts and conveniences undreamed of in pioneer days.

Modern dwellings, though as far from the pioneer cabin as the car is from a saddle horse, still appear to be within reach of a large proportion of Canada's wage earners — so Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation statistics indicate.

In 1955, the latest year for which figures are available, the corporation says 49.8 percent of the families in urban areas that took out National Housing Act mortgages to build homes were in the "middle third" family income group of $3,513 to $5,423. This includes incomes of dependents as well as of the family head.

But only 6.8 percent of borrowers were from the lower third income group, under $3,513. This indicates large numbers of low-income families still cannot attain home ownership under the NHA.

The CMHC figures, which apply only to centres of 30,000 population and over, show that 43.4 percent of borrowers were from family groups with incomes over $5,423.

Another CMHC statistic shows that the percentage of "double-up" families — those sharing the same dwelling with one or more other family groups — declined from 9.8 percent to 7.7 between 1951 and 1956. Of the 285,335 doubled-up families in 1956, more than one-half were living with relatives.

This is an encouraging figure. Social workers say one of the most important requirements in a home is that the family has privacy in it — both privacy for the individual members and, even more important, privacy for the family from other families.

Lessons to learn from far-away places

IF, FROM THE week's observations, we should turn a trick to the advantage of the weekly press, we believe the editor may be excused for this occasional sign of weakness.

From an authoritative survey we note that weekly newspaper advertising shows a decline from 1957 to 1958 — that is, in tabulations for the first four months of the year. We may be excused also for remarking that the much-talked-of recession may perhaps be directly related to hesitancy in newspaper advertising. There is a parallel too marked to overlook; and the hacking of advertising budgets, by the way, came BEFORE the drop in consumer buying. . .

But this philosophy is only incidental to what we have to tell. If you think we are straining a point on the power of advertising consider this extract from Jan Burger's column in the Johannesburg Star, which describes the "emancipation" of the African Native:

"A friend just returned from the platteland expressed surprise to me that all the Native servants on his brother's farm seemed to have radios in their homes. He also said that he noticed an inordinate number of motor-cars around, all belonging to Natives working on farms.

"This trend does not really surprise people who have investigated the position, such as advertising agents, for example. They have discovered that the Bantu's purchasing power and desire to have Western luxuries have become very considerable. . .

"With electricity now gradually being extended to Bantu homes, one can expect a big demand for refrigerators and other electric appliances in the future.

"More than 80 per cent of all 'quality' hats sold in South Africa are bought by Natives."

Some interesting deductions are made here from the Natives' soap-buying proclivities — to which the columnist adds other increasingly popular commodities. . . .

"The large-scale use of face creams is not entirely the result of 'glamor' advertisements. It is really a continuation of the krall Native's custom of rubbing fat on to his body, for a Native likes his skin to shine. Here one can distinguish three stages — the animal-fat stage, the stage of petroleum jelly, and the face-cream stage.

"There is a humorous side, too, to this predilection of the Native for Western goods. Pharmacies report heavy sales of laxatives! The reason given is that the Bantu's contact with Western foods have upset his diet and brought a train of stomach complaints which were previously unknown to them."

The columnist remarks that such newspapers as, till now, have catered almost exclusively to the needs of Whites, will meet a growing challenge. "With Afrikaans prominent in the school syllabuses, one can expect the Natives will read these papers to a much greater extent." . . . And the ads too, of course.

Alcohol induces false confidence

PUT ALCOHOL with gasoline, add a pinch of over-confidence, shake well at speed . . . and sooner or later the mixture will turn to blood. The change is instantaneous, and irrevocable — warns the Ontario Safety League.

The good driver realizes precisely the danger-effects of alcohol; he knows the measure of the enemy. He knows that excessive confidence is the catalyst in the deadly mixture. Alcohol slows up reactions; impairs sight and hearing; fogs judgment; disorganizes habit systems. Other adverse conditions can also give rise to these driver-deficiencies — e.g., bad weather, toothache, emotion — but they are not nearly as dangerous if the element of super-confidence, induced by alcohol, is absent.

In fact, a driver can adjust his performance, by reducing speed and using extra care, to compensate fully for any adverse driving condition; except the state of mind that has lost fear-of-consequences, an inevitable effect of alcohol and certain drugs.

Even the smallest quantity of alcohol is extremely dangerous. A little may be worse than a lot. The befuddled drunk who assesses his own condition and weaves homeward slowly in second gear, using back streets, may be less dangerous than the man who has "just had a couple" but expresses his feeling of exhilaration by doing 70 m.p.h. through city streets. Though both equally deserve jail!

"I drive better after a drink; it steadies me up," a man may delude himself. Utter nonsense! He merely thinks he drives better. However hard the impaired driver tries to keep his brain in control of his performance, success can only be partial; impulse and inclination will begin to take over — demanding more speed for sensations, less concentration on conditions and possibilities, more unthinking abandonment to the alcoholic glow.

A glow that, all too often, flares up into the blinding flash of impact, then dims to final darkness for a human being.

Fifth wheel to a coach

There is perhaps some excuse for "making jobs" during a recession, but in normal itmes and especially in periods of prosperity, which labor has enjoyed in recent years, it is utterly vicious and suicidal to create jobs that are not necessary. An example of this latter has come to my knowledge through a friend who has just returned from an extended visit to the United States. While there he had met a building contractor who was recovering from a nervous breakdown, due to worry over excessive demands of union labor, which held up the work and rendered his contract unprofitable.

One instance was when the contractor unexpectedly "ran into water in the foundation." He had decided to put in a powerful pump, but the union insisted that he must use six pumps and employ an engineer on each pump. This meant the employment of 18 engineers for the three shifts every twenty-four hours, instead of three required to attend to the one big pump. He claimed that there was no need for a fully qualified engineer for the job because all that was required was to turn the pump on and off.

That, said the sick contractor, was only one instance of interference which held up the process of construction and added to his costs of the job. Before he started he had to pay for "permission" for various local requirements, and during the course of construction "accidents" would happen which he said were obviously "fixed". One of these was a deliberate plugging of the drains. All of which, he said, had worried him into his nervous breakdown.

This may have been an extreme example of corrupt union practices in the United States. But we have in Canada at the present time a similar instance of stupid fifth-wheel-to-a-coach duplication in a railway union insistence that the CPR keep an extra man on a diesel engine where he is not required. This is not a mere matter of making jobs for the idle men — like digging holes and filling them in again — which at least would be a job of healthy exercise. But the extra man on the diesel engine has no job at all, and must be paid for doing nothing.

Of Many Things

For a man in a hurry

I was given a little card the other day on which was printed a prayer "For a Man in a Hurry." I liked it and want to pass it along to you, together with a word of caution.

Do not use this prayer as an excuse for loafing! That is not the real meaning of the lines which follow:

"Slow me down, Lord!

"Ease the pounding of my heart by the quieting of my mind. Steady my hurried pace with a vision of the Eternal reach of time.

"Give me, amidst the confusion of my day, the calmness of the Everlasting Hills. Break the tensions of my nerves and muscles with the soothing music of the singing streams that live in my memory. Help me to know the magical, restoring power of sleep.

"Teach me the art of taking one-minute vacations, of slowing down to look at a flower; to chat with a friend; to pat a dog; to read a few lines from a good book. Remind me, each day, of the fable of the hare and the tortoise; that I may learn that the race is not always to the swift; that there is more to life than increasing its speed.

"Let me look upward to the branches of the towering oak and recall that it grew great and strong by growing slowly and well.

"Slow me down, Lord! Inspire me to send my roots deep into the soil of life's enduring values that I, too, may grow toward the stars of my greater destiny. In Jesus' name, Amen."

I like that prayer. It makes me think of the English cabinet maker, who seems always to putter at his work, but who gets it done in due time and in a manner to make him proud. The English accomplish great things by steady, careful, continuous effort. Too often, we, in Canada, start with a flurry — then quit. We get little pride or pleasure from our work because we are too eager to see the end result and claim the prizes.

If you are a Man in a Hurry, I suggest you clip this column and read that prayer from time to time. Then, instead of going all to tops, you'll get your roots down deep into the soil of life's enduring values.

Restaurants in some towns have already lifted the price of a cup of coffee to 12 cents, and certain of them are talking about 15 cents.

But the average cup of restaurant coffee at any price still tastes like swamp water.

I hadn't realized what an inferior grade of coffee the restaurants were unloading on their clients, until I enjoyed some real coffee in a railway dining car.

The dining car charged 30 cents for a pot that held two cups of coffee, but it was worth every nickel. This rich, fresh-smelling beverage was so far ahead of the pale bilge of the restaurants that it didn't deserve the same name.

Next time the waiter came my way, I said: "This is the first decent coffee I've had for about a year."

"Glad you like it," the waiter said.

"What do the restaurants do to make their coffee so tasteless?" I asked. "It must take real hard work and planning, to drain all the life out of the coffee like that."

"They just try to get too many cups out of a pound," the waiter said.

He muttered something to the chef, who was sitting at a table himself, the dining car being almost empty. The chef nodded and grinned acknowledgment toward me.

"Humph," said the conductor with heavy jocularity, from a nearby table. "It's the first day the coffee's been any good."

They served me another pot — maybe as a bonus for the words of praise.

The railway dining car, with its white tablecloths, deft waiters and good food skillfully prepared, has always been a favorite resort of mine when I'm riding the train and have the price — which isn't too often. Dining car prices are somewhat above the level of the hash-joint or the sandwich shop. But they are fair prices for an excellent product.

It comes as a cheerful surprise to find a place of business still devoted to quality, in a world that is too much inclined to condone expensive, inferior goods and services and praise the vendors as clever merchants, because they wring a profit from their short measure.

There is a tendency now to introduce the shiny, brittle, coffee-shop style of service to the railways. This may be more thrifty for the traveler; but if the old-style dining car should vanish as a result, railway travel will become less exciting and comfortable, by a long way. And where will a man be able to get a good cup of coffee then?

The owners of some restaurants probably don't know that they are serving such a wish-washy style of java. In that case they would do themselves and their customers a good turn if they rode a railway dining car and asked the chef to share some of his coffee-making secrets.

Where in Canada is the Swastika a symbol of good fortune?

A community in the Timiskaming District, five miles west of Kirkland Lake, Ontario, takes its name from the cross supposed to denote good fortune. Beautifully situated on a lagoon from which tumble the waters of the Blanch River, Swastika was at first a tiny bush village on the Ontario Northland "pioneer railway". It became a centre from which early prospectors searched for minerals and from it the trail to Kirkland was blazed.

During the 2nd World War its name fell into disrepute for the swastika was a nazi emblem. Determined efforts were made to have the name changed to Winston in honor of Sir Winston Churchill, but the people refused to relinquish the name. Swastika, as it had become for them a symbol of good faith, good luck and good will.

Who is believed to have been the first Dane to set foot on Canadian soil?

Captain Jens Munk landed on the west coast of Hudson Bay in 1619, while trying to find the North West Passage to China. He occupied the country, spending the winter there, and he called the country Nova Dania in the name of King Christian IV of Denmark. His camp was probably located where Churchill, Manitoba, now stands. Unfortunately the expedition ended in tragedy. The whole crew, with the exception of Captain Munk and two others, died of scurvy. The three survivors sailed their smallest ship, the "Lamprenon" back to Denmark.

Last respects to Montrealer at Cushing burial

Cushing W. — On Saturday afternoon at St. Mungo's United Church Cemetery, Cushing, the interment took place of the remains of the late W. J. Holliday, of Montreal.

The following editorial from the Montreal Star of March 5, 1958, at the time of Mr. Holliday's death, is a tribute to his life of service. —

"It is impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy the number of Canadians who benefitted from the wise counsel and enjoyed the helpful friendship of the late William John Holliday. In the course of nearly half a century of selfless service, surely no man gave himself more wholeheartedly to the cause of the YMCA and latterly to the lay work of the United Church of Canada.

"Mr. Holliday's labors on behalf of the young people of this city over the years are his memorial. He founded Camp Kanawana and was active in the organization of Camp Otereke.

"In the two World Wars he served overseas in the interest of the 'Y'. Many an ex-serviceman will remember him for his tireless endeavors at London's Beaver Club and at Farnborough. His contagious cheerfulness meant much to the troops on a lonely leave away from home.

"When retirement age arrived, Mr. Holliday was too young in spirit to sit back and be a mere spectator of passing events. He took up an appointment as secretary for lay activities of the United Church of Canada, in which post, to use the words of a colleague, he successfully sought "to deepen the spiritual life of the laymen of the Church, to secure among them an increasing knowledge of, interest in, and loyalty of the Church, and to enlist and develop an active working force and consecrated leadership among laymen in every conference, presbytery and pastoral charge."

The community is indeed the better for the life of this truly dedicated man.

His wife, the former Ethel Louisa Watson (sister of Mrs. Wm. Usher, and Mr. C. Fraser Watson, of Cushing, of Mrs. N. S. Dowd, Ottawa, Mr. W. M. Watson, Maniwaki, and Mr. R. Murray Watson, Arnprior) predeceased him in 1911, leaving a daughter, Phyllis.

She and her husband, Mr. Gordon Campbell, of Montreal, were present at the committal service, conducted by the Rev. J. Ralph Watson, minister of St. Mungo's. Other relatives attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. John Hair, Mrs. Edith Wenham and Mr. Chas. Robertson, Montreal; Mrs. Ed. Pugler, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Dowd and Miss Patricia Dowd, Ottawa; Mr. Owen W. Keatley, Cornwall; and Mr. Franklyn and Evans Keatley, Arnprior. These, with members of the local families, were later entertained at a buffet tea at the home of Mrs. Usher.

At the end of his talk he answered questions asked by the various members.

Candidate for leadership Provincial Liberal party

Quebec (CP) — Jean Lesage, Minister of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources in the former Federal Liberal administration, announced last week he will be a candidate at the leadership convention of the Quebec Liberal party here May 30-31.

The 45-year-old Quebec City lawyer called upon youthful elements of the party and all opposition groups to get behind him to achieve the Liberal party's first aim. That aim, he said, is to "overthrow of a dictatorship" and return of freedom both in the Legislature and in the provincial government administration.

Mr. Lesage said he will decide later whether he will give up his Ottawa seat. It is thought he will hold it until the next party leader is chosen.

The decision of Mr. Lesage brings the official candidate count to four. The three others are René Hamel, provincial member for St. Maurice, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, a Montreal lawyer, and Dr. Aimé Fauteux, Montreal dentist, who is brother of former Quebec Lieutenant-Governor Gaspard Fauteux.

Georges Lapalme, former leader of the party, said he will not support any particular candidate. The 51-year-old Montreal lawyer announced his resignation as party leader recently, stating at a press conference that he would have resigned even if Jean Lesage had not entered the leadership race.

Preacher is son of former pastor

The 26th anniversary service since the laying of the cornerstone of the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church was one that was most gratifying to the pastor as well as the members of this church. It seemed quite fitting that the Rev. John R. Cousins, B.A., B.D., son of the late Rev. Dr. Henry Cousens, who was minister here at the time of the laying of the corner stone, should preach this anniversary service.

In his sermon, the Rev. Cousens likened the mind to a garden, which if not cared for will become cluttered with undesirable things. He suggested rather than try to eradicate the undesirable from our minds, to fill them with lovely thoughts as exhorted in Philippians chapter 4, verse 8: "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Two sacred selections, "The Lord's Prayer" and "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth," were beautifully rendered by Miss Margaret Milne, of Montreal and Dalesville.

At the close of the service the congregations in both Lachute and Brownsburg were glad to have the opportunity to chat with the Rev. Mr. Cousens, his mother, Mrs. H. Cousens, and his brother, James, also to meet his fiancée, Miss J. Miller. . . To Englehart, where the Rev. Cousens goes shortly to take up his charge, go the best wishes and prayers of local friends, that "his work shall be blessed."

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

Uncertainty and Confusion grip the world.

Are YOU caught in their net?

In today's divided systems only one source of wisdom remains sound and unshaken. That is the Bible. Do not be deceived by the religious disunity of the world. Religious confusion does not alter or affect the source of wisdom, the Bible. But how can you be sure?

Go to the Bible yourself. This is easily possible with the helpful Bible handbook "MAKE SURE OF ALL THINGS". This 416-page pocket-size book sets forth 70 principal Bible themes and gives you a balanced picture of each by using scriptures without comment from the Bible. In this way, the Bible speaks for itself. Get your copy today. Send only 75c.

Received degree in Theology at convocation

Kenneth W. Trickey, B.A., was awarded his Licentiate of Theology at an impressive annual Convocation ceremony of the Montreal Diocesan Theological College, which took place Friday evening, May 9, in the College Convocation Hall under the presidency of the Lord Bishop of Montreal.

After the processional of graduates and robed dignitaries, the ceremony was opened with the national anthem and a special hymn written by Dr. G. A. Abbott-Smith, principal of this College from 1928-1939, for the 60th anniversary of the founding of the College.

During his address the principal, the Rev. Canon R. H. Slater, M.A., Ph.D., included remarks on Kenneth's progress, and that as senior student this young man was required to give up much of his personal time to assist the principal.

An inspiring Convocation address was delivered by the Most Reverend W. L. Wright, L.Th., D.D., D.C.L., Archbishop of Algoma, upon whom was conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity (de jure dignitatis) during the ceremony.

Resolutions passed at this meeting were as follows:

Whereas — we have with us today Mrs. J. Ossington, 2nd vice-president of Q.W.I.;

Be it resolved — that we express our thanks to her and to our Provincial Board for their co-operation in the work of the branches of our County.

Whereas railroad crossings continue to take their toll of human life, and whereas this danger has become increased by the use of diesel motors;

Ballet School first performance Thurs., May 29

The Lachute School of Ballet which started last autumn, is to present its first public performance in Lachute Auditorium on Thursday, May 29. This school, composed of over 60 young girls, is affiliated with the Elizabeth Leese Ballet Studio of Wesmount, a studio that has developed dancers for the National Ballet of Toronto.

Miss Elizabeth Leese, who started the school in Montreal over 10 years ago after extensive experience in ballet dancing and teaching in Canada and Europe, has trained her students with the famed Cecchetti method.

Enrico Cecchetti (1850-1928) developed his method of training ballet pupils and had many famed ballerinas as students, including the renowned Anna Pavlova. After many years of study with Russian and European ballet schools, Anna Pavlova finally met Cecchetti, and found his method such a challenge and needing such strict discipline, that she insisted that any pupils of hers must take the Cecchetti training method.

The local teacher is Miss Joan Bouchard, who is a graduate of the Elizabeth Leese School and exponent of the Cecchetti method.

Meeting of Arundel Cemetery Corpn.

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — The annual meeting of the Cemetery Corporation took place Friday evening in the church hall.

This cemetery always shows evidence of the loving care that keeps it looking beautiful, and great credit is due to the committee appointed to that work. However, there is a monetary obligation that cannot be ignored, and it is earnestly requested that any residents who have overlooked to forward their dues, will do so as soon as possible.

There was a very poor attendance at the meeting, which is discouraging to the shareholders who would like the public to be there and express their views.

Some effort will be made in the coming future to place a hedge around part of the fence surrounding this cemetery.

The election of officers resulted as follows: president, Dr. Wm. Morrison; secretary-treasurer, M. Graham; vice-president, Douglas Williams.

Auto Dare Devils Friday, May 16

The Exhibition Grounds here will be a scene of calculated calamity on Friday night, May 16, when the Canadian Auto Dare Devils take over for two hours of what one national magazine describes as "automotive fury and motorcycle insanity."

The show will feature two, three, and four-car precision driving and motorcycle stunts performed by the best known names in thrilldom. These drivers exhibit skill and nerve unexcelled in Canada or in the United States. They defy death as they race, crash and smash their way through 28 events and two hours of thrills, chills, spills — and humorous interludes.

Climaxing this fantastic program, which ranges from precision driving to a flaming "Slide for Life", will be a stunt that has awed the entire continent for the past decade. A 1958 Chevrolet convertible will leap over the top of another speeding car to land on a narrow rundown ramp some 80 feet away.

Reception and Presentation

A pleasant event took place in Elliott's Hall on Saturday evening when Miss Elaine Berry and Mr. Donald Fuller were presented with a case of silver by the Rev. J. R. Watson on behalf of their Cushing associates and other friends in the nearby communities. Mr. Watson also made a second presentation of a nice card table and four chairs, on behalf of friends from Thomas' Gore, Lachute and Brownsburg who were present to share in the evening's pleasure with the Cushing people.

Previous to the gift presentations, the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. Fuller, Donald's mother and Donald himself, were presented with corsages by four small girls — Maureen Swail, Kama Bailey, Enid Owens and Maureen Villeneuve.

Dancing was enjoyed to music furnished by Mr. Henry Villeneuve, of Ottawa and Cushing, accompanied by Mrs. H. V. Elliott and Mr. A. Thom.

Specially attractive were the decorations in the hall, carried out with a professional hand in white ribbon and pink satin bows. Highlights were an immense bouquet of pink artificial roses on a background of green cedar, silk and satin drapes on the grand piano and a cascade of white balloons which had been suspended above the crowd.

Cushing residents are pleased that this young couple have chosen Cushing (where the prospective bridegroom is building a home) for their future residence.

1,216 Bibles presented in notable occasion at Montreal's new Queen Elizabeth Hotel

Local officers and supporters in attendance representing Laurentian Gideon Camp

— By Ethel Kettyle —

On a recent May evening, an impressive and inspirational event took place at the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, when the "Gideons International in Canada" presented the hotel management with 1216 Bibles — the largest presentation of Bibles ever made in Canada up to this time.

Meeting in the lobby of the huge building were visitors from local and far-away places, and considerable time was spent in interchanging greetings.

Attending were upwards to 500 people, who then proceeded to the Duluth and McKenzie Rooms, which had been reserved for the presentation of the Bibles to be placed in the various rooms of the hotel.

Mr. Frank J. Kettyle, president of the Montreal Gideon Camp, presided, with His Worship the Mayor of Montreal and other officials on the platform.

The large room presented an interesting scene, with the huge stack of Bibles filling one corner. They were so placed as to form a red cross on a black background, with a large banner bearing the words "The Light of the World."

Reporters and photographers were present and cameras flashed at intervals.

Following the opening ceremonies, introductions of the various officers and speakers took place, and Mr. Kettyle gave a vivid outline of the event. Presentations of the Bibles were made to the Mayor and others, and Mayor Fournier was then called upon to speak. He thanked the donors profusely for his Bible and the gist of his speech was on the various religions in the world and about how each sect or denomination worshipped in various ways, and each had their own special name for God. He stressed the fact that each individual — be they saint or sinner — must have a small corner in the soul in which there must be some good. He spoke also of the many modes of transportation by which the people attending this event had been brought to Montreal — by aeroplane, boat, bus, car and train. As his engagements prevented him from remaining for the entire evening, he excused himself and proceeded on to various other duties awaiting him.

After the presentation of the Bibles to Donald Mumford for the Hotel, a prayer of dedication followed, by the Very Rev. H. Dowker, vice-president of the City Council of Churches.

The vice president of the Canadian National Railways then spoke and greetings from Donald Gordon were offered.

An anthem was rendered by the choir, in which the Misses Smith, Kettyle and Riddell took the trio part.

The scripture was delivered by the Gideon Chaplain, taken from Psalm 48, verses 1-6; and Bro. Wm. Gardiner then introduced the guest speaker, Orvis Kennedy, from Edmonton, Alta. Mr. Gardiner gave a brief outline of Orvis Kennedy's life, stating that he formerly had been a hardware merchant, later going into politics and sitting in the House of Parliament at Ottawa, and working with Premier Manning for many years.

Mr. Kennedy spoke in detail about the Bible, and said that, as well as being God's word, it was "a book of poetry, love stories, adventure and drama". He also pointed out that many of the slogans used today were originally taken from its pages — such as, Clear as Crystal; The Light of the World; Cast your Bread upon the Water, etc. He remarked on the many discoveries and inventions down through the ages — such as the telephone, electricity, the motor car, the aeroplane, the greatness of the atom — how wonderful at first, but how, through time, they all become so customary then more or less obsolete; but the Bible and God's word is ever new and inspiring, and has lived on and on, all through the years. Calls have come through from Mexico, South America and Hong Kong in recent times for Bibles — and at all times the calls have been responded to, and Bibles are being placed in schools, hospitals, rest homes and hotels.

After the events of the evening were completed, all attending proceeded to a luncheon room, where refreshments were served.

Among those attending from Lachute and Brownsburg — were Mr. L. Tomalty, president, and Mr. Wm. Prosser, secretary, of the local Laurentian Gideon Camp.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Your child's posture

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

What a pleasure it is to watch a child with good posture walking along the street, wide-awake, healthy, full of energy! He gives the general impression of a happy youngster in excellent physical condition. What about your own child's posture? Is it good, medium or rather poor?

Mothers and fathers are so busy and their children are so dear to them, that it is hard for them to take a critical look at the way their own youngster carries himself. "Asking a parent to be objective, is almost like requesting him to climb out of his own skin!" one father protested. But it is important to check up on Junior's posture. Is his body held in a natural easy position with the weight resting on the ball and outer side of his feet? Are his knees straight, his tummy held in? Is his head held up, with the chin in? What about his shoulder blades — do they not protrude unduly?

A child should gradually develop the use of all parts of the body with the right balance. Faulty posture is often a factor in excessive fatigue. Good posture and good health are inter-dependent.

A well-balanced diet is of great importance. To build bone and muscles, the child needs green vegetables, fruit, milk, protein in the form of meat, eggs, fish and cheese. Cod liver oil in the months when there is not much sunshine is also essential.

A child's clothes must allow for plenty of freedom for movement. Tight belts hinder the activity of the abdominal muscles. Care must be taken that a child's stocking garters do not pull down on the shoulders. The supports should be on the side of an underwaist, with a built-up neck. Shoes, stockings and nightclothes must all be large enough for comfort.

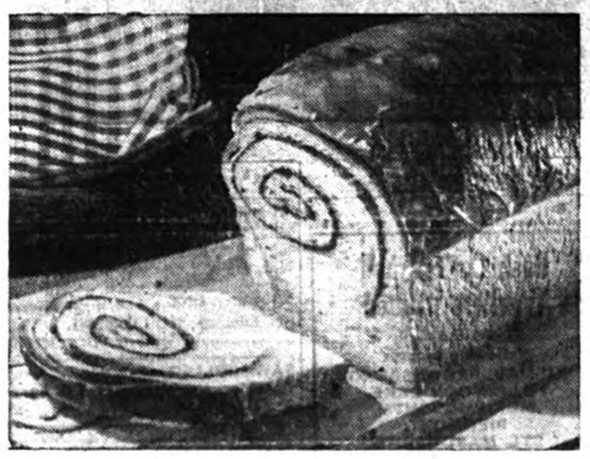

Some parents have the mistaken idea that any bed will do for a small child, so long as he gets to sleep quickly. Each child should have his own bed with a firm, flat mattress and springs. A pillow is not necessary, and if used should be a small flat one. The coverings should be light and not too tight. A sagging bed can do real damage to a child's posture.

Ask your doctor about your child's posture next time he has his annual medical examination. Your doctor may comment on some defects in your child's posture and make some suggestions for ways to overcome faulty positions.

A child is much better with furniture built to his own size. Sometimes a child develops a slouching position when sitting because he is uncomfortable in his chair. His feet should not dangle insecurely in the air! A father who is handy with tools might be able to construct a child's table and chairs. Junior's own chair, which supports his back and feet, helps him to sit up straight and relieves his muscles of unnecessary strain.

At bath time, Mother can often encourage a little child to develop good habits of posture by praising the way he stands up straight and holds his tummy in. If a child needs special help in posture, instead of using a set of exercises which must be done as duty, choose certain games which will accomplish the same end and be fun as well.

Oriental women, who carry articles on their heads, are famous for their graceful walk. If you have a daughter approaching adolescence, she might enjoy practising walking with a book on her head occasionally. Gym periods at school also encourage a good carriage. If you are concerned about your collegiate child's posture, the gym teacher might give you some excellent practical tips. Why not ask for them?

Swirl Loaf for coffee break or unexpected callers

During the spring and summer months friends seem to drop in on a more casual basis. This Coffee Swirl Loaf is the ideal accompaniment to the cups of tea and coffee served to unexpected callers. To add flavor interest, this sweet loaf is given a filling made with instant coffee, sugar and cocoa and topped with a coffee-flavored icing.It's an easy way to add interest to the mid-morning, or mid-afternoon coffee break, to evening snacks and family meals.

Coffee Swirl Loaf

(Yield — 1 loaf)

½ Cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, 2 envelopes active dry yeast, ½ cup milk, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons instant coffee, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ¼ cup shortening, 2 well-beaten eggs, 3½ cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour, soft butter or margarine, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 2 teaspoons instant coffee, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 tablespoon water.

Measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well.

Meantime, scald milk; stir in the ¼ cup sugar, salt, 2 tablespoons instant coffee, baking soda and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Measure out 1 tablespoon of the egg for use later. Add milk mixture and larger amount of beaten egg to dissolved yeast. Add 2 cups of the flour and beat until smooth and elastic. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft but not sticky dough — about 1½ cups more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Roll out dough into a 9-inch square. Brush generously with soft butter or margarine; sprinkle with a mixture of the ¼ cup sugar, the 2 teaspoons instant coffee and cocoa. Roll up, jelly roll fashion. Place in greased loaf pan (5½ x 10½ inches, top inside measure). Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour. Brush top with a mixture of the 1 tablespoon well-beaten egg and 1 tablespoon water. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) about 30 minutes. While loaf is still warm, frost top with the following Coffee Icing.

Coffee Icing

½ Cup once-sifted icing sugar, 1 teaspoon instant coffee, few drops vanilla, 1 tablespoon (about) milk.

Combine icing sugar, coffee, vanilla and sufficient milk to make an icing of spreading consistency.

TRIED, PROVEN

It's a safe bet that people who sleep like a baby don't have one.

Output of Red Cross work rooms relieves privation in many places

The number of knitted and sewn articles produced by volunteer workers of the Women's Work Committee of the Red Cross in 1957 far surpassed their effort in the previous year.

The number of cases of relief supplies shipped direct to nations overseas and the cost of the contents were increased one-quarter more than in 1956, reported Mrs. Huntly Christie, national chairman, the Red Cross annual meeting in Toronto. Increase in the distribution in Canada was in the same proportion.

Mrs. Christie praised the volunteer workers for their effort. Every province, she reported, had increased their output. The work was done in Red Cross workrooms and in homes of the workers in communities from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

Direct shipments were sent to Austria, Ceylon, Ecuador, Ethiopia, France, Germany, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Korea, Pakistan, Poland, Turkey, Vietnam and UNWRA for distribution in Gaza, Lebanon and Syria. Articles produced for overseas relief are also forwarded to the League of Red Cross Societies for stockpiling in their warehouses at Geneva, Marseilles and Istanbul. In this way, Canadian Red Cross relief supplies are usually on the scene of a European or Middle East disaster within hours after news of the catastrophe has been announced. Shipments to Bulgaria, Greece, Spain, Tunis and Yugoslavia were handled in this way.

The distribution of Women's Work supplies in Canada consisted of 76,890 articles. These were supplied to disaster victims, for veterans' and general relief, at port nurseries, to nursing stations and outpost hospitals and to a number of other Red Cross services and programs. The workers also prepared 2,745,991 surgical dressings for the blood transfusion service and the Red Cross hospitals.

In her report, Mrs. Christie mentioned one unusual aspect of this voluntary effort. A man in the Northwest Territories wrote to Alberta Division requesting wool, and this was delivered to him by the RCAF. In return, he forwarded 12 beautifully knitted sweaters as his contribution to the program.

PICNIC POINTER

Never leave perishable picnic food in a hot car or unprotected in the hot sun — recommends the Poultry Products Institute of Canada. Always place picnic hamper in the shade if possible or cover with newspapers or motor rug to protect from the heat. Perishable foods deteriorate rapidly if held for long periods once they become lukewarm and could lead to possible food poisoning.

Warm weather storage of poultry and eggs

With the arrival of warm weather, proper food storage takes an added importance. The Poultry Products Institute of Canada points out that eggs and poultry being perishable products, should be kept cool and used within a reasonable length of time. Eggs should not be stored at room temperature nor left for long periods of time in a hot car during shopping expeditions. While eggs have a possible storage life of between two to four weeks in a good refrigerator, for best quality use them within seven days.

Fresh poultry should be stored in the coldest spot in the refrigerator after removing it from its store wrapping and rewrap loosely in waxed paper, foil or pliofilm. Use it within two to three days.

Frozen poultry should be kept frozen until time to thaw it for cooking. It is preferable to thaw it in the refrigerator. When thawed cook within 24 hours if it can be refrigerated, otherwise cook at once.

Fresh or frozen poultry may be frozen once it has been cooked. For ease in storing and to save space, remove meat from bones. Store small scraps of meat in one package for use in sandwich fillings, salads or creamed dishes. Wrap large meaty pieces for serving sliced or reheating in gravy or dipping in egg and crumbs or batter for deep fat or shallow fat frying.

Really Angry

At London, Ont., a woman who became angry in a restaurant soothed her ire by breaking three dozen dishes. Her husband paid the proprietor, and took his wife home.

Women's groups win Carol Lane awards for ideas in promoting highway safety

Winners of the 1958 Carol Lane Awards for the promotion of traffic safety were named last week at the Canadian Highway Safety Conference in Edmonton.

Their campaign to promote the use of white umbrellas, especially by children and elderly people, during bad weather when driver visibility is poor, earned for the 7th St. John's Cub and and Scout ladies' auxiliary of North Vancouver the first Carol Lane award. The $1,000 savings bond and bronze statuette symbolizing women's protective instinct were presented to Mrs. D. Humphreys of the Auxiliary by Carol Lane on behalf of the Highway Safety Conference at a luncheon in the MacDonald Hotel. Part of the money will be used by the Auxiliary to buy umbrellas for needy old people.

Second-place award went to the Odekkah Club of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Mrs. E. Carline accepted the prize from Miss Lane. The club received a $500 savings bond and a brass relief plaque for a traffic safety campaign conducted during the winter. Third prize of a $250 bond and plaque was won by the Canadian W.C.T.U. and was received by Mrs. A. E. Peacock, of Moose Jaw on behalf of her group. The winners were congratulated by the Hon. Gordon Taylor, chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Conference and Minister of Highways for Alberta.

Guest speaker at the awards luncheon was Mrs. A. E. Shelmerdine of the National Council of Women of Canada, Edmonton, who discussed the subject "Sharing our Traffic Burden". Chairman of the board of judges which selected the award winners was Mrs. Rex Eaton of Vancouver, president of the National Council of Women of Canada.

The Carol Lane awards have been created to recognize, foster and reward women's achievement towards the preservation of lives through traffic safety programs in their communities, province or nation. They are administered by the Canadian Highway Safety Conference through a grant from Shell Oil Company.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Carolyn Willett, Canadian Press Staff Writer

May seems to be a traditional moving month, and some families decide to move into older houses offering more space than a modern bungalow.

However, old houses do tend to have oddly-shaped windows, many nooks and crannies, and high ceilings.

But color consultants say that a careful choice of decorating colors can work miracles and hide all sorts of defects. In effect, with plenty of paint and a brush, it is a case of creating an optical illusion.

For example, a ceiling that looks too high can be "pulled down" by painting it a darker shade than the wall color.

Or, if the room seems to be cut up with dark trim around windows and doors, it can be made to appear more spacious by painting the trim the same color as the walls.

Sometimes, in a room that is less-than-perfect, it is a good idea to pick out the best wall and make it the centre of interest by painting it a contrasting color. Then, with an interesting picture, or furniture grouped facing it, the most attention will be focused on the room's best wall.

It's also well to remember that dark shades tend to draw walls in, while light colors push them out. So the colors chosen should be determined somewhat by whether you want the room to appear larger or smaller.

Loaf Squeezers

Housewives shopping for fresh bread have a habit of squeezing the loaf to make sure it is fresh. This little squeeze may be costing them money.

The royal commission on price spreads, doing some sleuthing at Fredericton, learned of the squeezing habit — and its repercussions — from the baking industry's national council.

The chain reaction moves something like this:

The housewives are squeezing the loaf.

The habit led bakers to produce a softer loaf.

The softer loaf meant that new wire baskets had to be developed for shipping bread, so that higher distribution costs resulted.

Ayersv'l counselled to protest Lachute water rate boost

The regular Ayersville Council business was sidetracked by the large attendance of taxpayers intent on discussing a prime issue of the moment (reported elsewhere on this page). Further business was therefore adjourned.

Request for a sewer installation was presented with the signatures of eight proprietors. Councillor R. Quenneville gave notice of motion that an engineer be commissioned to estimate on the costs, preliminary to a public referendum on borrowing the necessary funds.

Council acceded to a request by Edouard Lajoie for the laying of sidewalks on a section of Ayers Street.

Arthur Lanthier asked the Council to approach the federal government to take some measures to reduce risk of accidents at Simon's crossing, on No. 8 Highway. It was also requested that signal lights be installed at the Bradford Avenue rail crossing.

Permit for a dance hall at the Tino Restaurant was requested by Réal Labonté. Council will implement a by-law establishing hours and age-limits of habitués at such places.

A letter from Camille DeMartigny, advocate, advising Ayersville to contest the higher water levy demanded by Lachute Town, was read by the secretary-treasurer. It was suggested that the services of an engineer be retained on this matter, recommending the firm of Lalonde, Legendre & Girouard, Montreal. (Ayersville presently pays 11 cents a thousand gallons; Lachute meanwhile is asking 24½ cents to continue the water supply from its system.)

Several permits — for construction, renovation and for a business establishment — were approved by Council.

It was decided to take a $20 advertising space in the Lachute Spring Fair program.

A letter from the Hon. W. M. Cottingham stated that a fire commissioner would visit Ayersville to study requirements of a fire truck.

The secretary reported on a referendum regarding sewer construction on Gauthier Steet. Six out of 11 proprietors, with a valuation majority of $10,850, had voted in favor. Bylaw for the installation, at a cost approximiately $7,041, was passed accordingly.

The business was adjourned to last Monday, May 12.

Standing room only, as citizens air views at Brownsburg Council

The May session of the Brownsburg Council proved to be one of the better attended of recent times, and there was "standing room only" for a number of the visitors.

Following the usual procedure Mayor Thos. Hall invited interested parties to bring their civic problems before the Council, and the citizens needed no urging. Mr. G. Jolicoeur expressed deep concern over the fact that so many automobile drivers ignore stop-signs and speed limits in the St. Joseph - Maple Avenue area. He asked that something be done to combat this flagrant disregard of municipal traffic laws, and was supported in his views by Mr. Ward Moncrieff and another Maple Avenue resident. It was pointed out at this time that no fines had been levied for speeding infractions during the last month. . . Once again, the Council indicated their intention of correcting the situation.

Led by Mr. G. Lacasse, a group of citizens from Maple Avenue South presented a petition to have town water facilities extended to Lacasse's gate, from their present terminus at the corner of St. Joseph Street and Maple Avenue. Mr. Lacasse reiterated views expressed by another townsman at the April meeting, in regard to the lack of development of water and sewerage services in Brownsburg. This prompted further Council discussion of plans outlined last month, when it was proposed that a full-scale investigation be made into the water-sewerage problem. It was concluded that arrangements for consultation with government authorities should be made as soon as possible.

Fire Chief A. Robbins reported that the fire department had responded to five alarms during the month. Four of these were of a relatively minor nature, but the April 17 trip to Campbell's Mill involved a four-hour stay with a reported $25,000 loss, as the buildings were burned to the ground.

Police Chief Lepine reported that he had issued three parking tickets and levied one fine for a red-light violation.

Council approved payment of monthly vouchers amounting to $1,776.72 and sanctioned the purchase of a number of new traffic signs for strategic points in the town. Secretary Vincent Charbonneau reported receiving a cheque for the amount of $304, as a rebate to the town on traffic fines assessed in Brownsburg and sent to the provincial government last year.

It was decided that a notice be published for submission of tenders for the removal of a number of trees on Maple Avenue. (The notice appears elsewhere in this issue.)

A shortage of funds forced the Council to turn down a request to asphalt the surface of the sidewalk from the Main Street bridge to the Convent.

Seizure of sweepstake stubs consigned here for pick-up

Thousands of Irish Sweepstake ticket stubs have been turned over to Provincial Police by local express officials, following their receipt at the local office, and provincial authorities report similar seizures have taken place in other places throughout the district and province.

The case is under the investigation of Lieut. Wilfrid Bissette, Morality Squad, Montreal. At present, no local persons appear to be involved, Lachute being used only as a shipping and pick-up centre.

Packages and envelopes seized in the latest shipment come from Kamloops, B.C., Field, Ont., Belleville, Ont., Peterborough, Ont., Deerhorn, Man., North Battleford, Sask., Westbank, B.C., Maxville, Ont., Medicine Hat, Man., Beauharnois, Que., Campbellford, Ont., Musquodoboit, N.S., and Wabegoon, Ont. They were addressed to such fictitious names as John Guthril, Lachute, Que. — ACE Photo Inc., Lachute, Que. — Tom Bowers, 1900 Water Street, Lachute, Que. — and Tom Andrews, Lachute, Que.

The above shipment is the third such turned over to police, and according to estimates, there will be a goodly number of persons who will not receive their "official" receipts.

According to information which could not be confirmed, some member of the organization would make the rounds of the various pick-up centres and claim the packages, taking them with him. The police would make no comment on the believed identity of the person or how the local shipments were discovered, other than to say "no local persons appear to be involved."

Power interruption Saturday night for new installations

An announcement affecting all electricity consumers in Lachute, Centerville and on part of Route 8 adjacent to the town, is inserted by Gatineau Power Company in this issue of The Watchman. The notice gives warning of a complete power shut-off between midnight Saturday and 6 a.m. Sunday, to permit Gatineau linemen to put into service a new substation on Grace Street.

Householders and others concerned are asked to take note of this power interruption, and to govern themselves accordingly.

According to Rod Carreau, district manager at Lachute, these changes by Gatineau Power are part of their continuous expansion program to provide efficient service for growing demands. They will provide a 5,000 kilowatt capacity to replace a present 3,075-kilowatt circuit. Open-air fuses will meanwhile be replaced by automatic oil-cooled "reclosers". Automatic capacitor banks will be introduced to regulate voltage, and a second circuit will be provided for West End consumption, making a total of four circuits to supply Lachute Town. . . These changes, however technical they may sound to the uninitiated, all add up to better, safer electric service — according to Mr. Carreau.

Council resolution supports plea for Carillon dam and navigation facilities

Giving weight to the movement to develop the lower Ottawa River from a navigation angle, while at the same time seeking to provide public works and stimulate employment in the Valley region — Lachute has followed the lead of other neighboring municipalities with a resolution supporting this project. The motion, adopted at the May meeting, says in effect as follows:

Whereas in the Counties of Vaudreuil, Soulanges, Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes (Quebec) and Prescott and Russell (Ontario) there is increasing evidence of unemployment;

And whereas the development of electric power would promote the expansion of industries in the said counties;

It is therefore resolved that representations be made to Quebec Hydro and Ontario Hydro to urge the immediate construction of a dam and power plant at Carillon.

The motion was sponsored by Ald. Dr. Jean-Paul Dorion and seconded by Ald. René Belanger.

In addition, it was moved by Ald. Gerard Lefebvre, supported by Ald. Lauréat Laurin, that the Federal Department of Transport, and the Quebec and Ontario Governments, be asked to undertake immediate works to improve navigation on the river, including the installation of dock facilities.

In this connection, Messrs. Miville Trickey and Donat Saulnier were named delegates from Lachute, to accompany an Ottawa Valley Development committee presenting these requests before the said governments.

Art Association opens exhibition this Saturday

The third annual "home product" exhibition of the Argenteuil Art Association, opening Saturday afternoon in the municipal hall at St. Andrews East, should reflect the progress of this young County organization, in a manner interesting not only to Art enthusiasts but to all concerned with the cultural spirit and expression of this region. Allen G. Talbot, of Brownsburg, has been president of the group in its two formative and most difficult years.

It is planned to hold a series of exhibitions this season. A similar series was held last year at the St. Andrews Golf Club. The initial show will feature largely the works of Association members, which include a number of highly talented amateurs and a few professional artists. In addition, however, it is hoped there will be canvases by one or two professional Montrealers who have more than a passing interest in this County.

Mr. Antoine Paré, who gave practical support by his hospitality to the Association's exhibitions last year, will give a brief address at the opening, between 2.30 and 3 o'clock on Saturday.

A.A.A. members have been notified by letter of this approaching event, which is to be held in the newly decorated hall at St. Andrews and is open to the public without admission charge. On the opening afternoon this Saturday tea will be served at a nominal price, on the island property of Mr. Thos. Fournier adjacent to the hall. Hours and dates of the exhibition are announced in the Coming Events column.

Mrs. Vivian Walker, professional artist, is conducting classes at her Carillon home each Saturday afternoon. A number of Association members are participating, and expect to benefit considerably from this course.

Know it was Sunday?

Young deer seen in town limits

About 9 o'clock last Sunday morning as Mr. Bert Mitchell was on his way to open up the United Church for service, he was greatly surprised to see a young doe trotting up Main Street. Fortunately there was little traffic on the road at the time, and after prancing by one passing auto, the young animal headed across an East End lawn and made for safer regions.

Two assemblies Ayersville Council to tackle backlog of civic business

At two meetings last week to deal with overflow business, Ayersville Council disposed of a considerable agenda — including, among other items, the granting of a dance hall permit to the Tino Restaurant operated by Réal Labonté on Hamford Street. The regulation stipulates a minimum age of 16 for habitués, with 9 p.m. closing hour, with the exception of Sundays, when dancing is prohibited.

Ten property-holders were signatories to a petition for sewer and water installation on St. Jean and St. Antoine Streets. The request was held over for deliberation.

With foresight on possible complications, it was decided to ask the Hon. W. M. Cottingham to furnish this municipality with Roads Department plans regarding Route 8 at the Ayers Street junction, so that Ayersville will know exactly where it stands in allowing building projects in that area. The motion was sponsored by Councillor Quenneville, seconded by Councillor Durocher.

Councillor Douglas Simon gave notice of motion for a by-law on construction and repair of service conduits within the Village limits.

The secretary-treasurer read the financial report for the period April 8 to May 5, in which revenues amounted to $1,703.68 and disbursements $1,261.58.

It was voted to subscribe $25 for membership in the Union of Municipalities. Request for a donation to the Cancer Society was tabled for consideration.

A citizen committee named as evaluators comprised — Messrs. Edouard Lavoie, Chas.-E. Gauthier, Emile Xhignesse, Albert Seguin and Hermas Leroux, with the first-named to act as secretary.

The services of Paul Laliberté, consulting engineer, were engaged to estimate costs for sewer installation on Bradford Street.

Assorted problems occupy agenda at town council

Some important decisions were before Town Council at the regular May sitting held under the chairmanship of Mayor Léopold Carrière. Principal of these was a step to systematize property valuations, in accordance with a brief submitted after due study by the Chamber of Commerce. (This matter was dealt with in last issue.) . . . Ald. Ross Muir was the only councillor absent at the assembly.

A grant of $250 to the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, plus $60 for an advertisement in the Lachute Fair program, was moved by Ald. W. Morrissette, seconded by Ald. N. Lepage, and approved. Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion dissented.

A donation of $25 was voted to the Cancer Society, Argenteuil Section, on motion of Ald. Lauréat Laurin seconded by Ald. N. Lepage.

In answer to a letter from Gatineau Power, the Council agreed to the installation of 300-watt bulbs on Chatham Street light-standards after January 1, 1959.

Ald. Gerard Lefebvre and Ald. W. Morrissette moved that a 10-minute parking limit be indicated by signs on the north side of Chatham Street. Aldermen M. Carrière and L. Laurin dissented.

Building permits were granted to Mme Hector Laurin, Notary Noel Campeau, Lachute Baptist Church and Kenwell Investments (M. Marshall).

Accounts totalling $9,629.58 were passed for payment.

The hiring of a man to take the municipal census was left to the secretary-treasurer, as in previous years.

On motion of Ald. M. Carrière and Ald. R. Belanger, a committee comprising Aldermen Muir, Lefebvre, Morrissette and Laurin was appointed to study the waterworks question in the Town of Lachute.

Ald. E. O. Pollock proposed, and Ald. W. Morrissette seconded, that $100 be voted to Chief F. Trépanier as expenses to attend the Police and Fire Chiefs' convention in Granby. Ald. M. Carrière moved in amendment, and Ald. Dr. Dorion seconded, that the sum be raised to $150. The Mayor, casting his decision on a split vote, upheld the original motion.

Teacher named for Ayersville vacancy

Maurice Dumas, a teacher at the Léo Clément School in Ayersville, was named councillor to the municipal administration, at a special meeting of the Village Council last week. The appointment was made necessary by the recent resignation of Councillor Aurélien Foucault in Seat No. 3.

To speed young athletes

Mr. Dave Campbell, noted sports enthusiast, on behalf of the Sportsmen's Association, Montreal, presents a cheque of $50 to R. O. (Dick) MacLean, president of the Lachute High School Graduates' Athletic Association. Several young entrants are booked for the Dominion Championship contests in Vancouver early in July, and the Association fund is to aid in sending representatives to such events as this.

Truck hits pole, disrupts power in Vankleek Hill

A new dairy refrigerator truck from Lachute, driven by Raymond Legault, of Ayersville, struck a hydro pole in Vankleek Hill last week, and a 600-pound transformer was thrown onto the sidewalk, disrupting power service in a certain section of the town.

The truck belonged to Lowe's Dairy. The vehicle was badly damaged, and had to be towed to Lachute. When the electrical connections were torn apart as the transformer fell, one of these flew through the front door glass of the newspaper office.

A few minutes following the accident both the hydro and telephone crews were at the scene and had temporary power connections in little more than an hour. The Bell Telephone system, whose wires are on the same pole, had a damaged 51-line cable, but no disruption in telephone lines occurred.

More evidence of rabid foxes in Dalesville, Louisa

A Montreal family at their Lake Louisa cottage for the first time this season, report having found two fox carcasses under their house last week-end.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. George McGibbon, out walking on their Dalesville property last Sunday, came upon a fox which gave evidence of rabies infection by its intrepid attitude towards humans, and its strange actions. Sighting the fox, Mr. McGibbon returned to the house for a gun. He fired at the animal across the river, striking it with birdshot pellets. The fox leaped in the air then swam across the river towards the couple. It was within 20 feet of them when felled by another cartridge.

Mrs. McGibbon reports that, when first sighted on the river bank, the fox was wielding a nine-foot piece of driftwood in the air over its head, holding the timber in its teeth.

See Hackney exhibits unexcelled, horse and cattle entries at peak

With livestock entries now closed, it is believed by Manager Kenneth Riley that the list of exhibits in the 1958 Spring Fair will top previous years. The big event is scheduled for three days, June 12-13-14.

Interesting entries in various breeds, weights and classes indicate a specially outstanding horse show. In Hackneys at least, it will be unexcelled even by the Toronto Royal.

Among well known stables represented are ABC Farms, Brampton; Georges Godin, Montreal; CFRA Stables, Ottawa; Stan-Pat Farm, Lachute; Liberman & Campbell, Ken. Pritchard and A. T. Cleland — the latter three exhibitors having six-horse teams, an unfailing attraction in the horse show each year.

Holstein and Ayrshire cattle also appear to be entered in a record number.

Afternoon and evening performances before the grandstand will be of a nature to enlist high local enthusiasm.

The Lions Club are sponsoring the noted hypnotist, "Le Grand Robert", on Thursday evening, and advance tickets are on sale for seats in the grandstand.

The Legion "Teen-Age Queen" contest will hold the spotlight Friday evening. This contest is exciting keen interest especially among the younger citizenry around town, and the highlights will be broadcast on the CFRA Campus Corner, a popular Saturday afternoon feature.

Another big night under Legion sponsorship will be Saturday with its Square Dancing and Horse Pulling contests, for both of which there will be valuable trophies and prizes.

On invitation of the Legion, the Hon. Douglas Harkness, Federal Minister of Agriculture, will be in attendance Saturday and will lend support to the Legion doings that evening.

An objective of the Agricultural Society is to increase the annual membership. Manager Ken Riley states the new membership cards are now on sale, which entitle holders to admittance to the Fair Grounds at all times.

Liberal leadership candidates will visit constituency

The Hon. Jean Lesage, former cabinet minister at Ottawa and present M.P. for Montmagny-L'Islet, will be in Lachute this Friday evening, in order to meet delegates and substitutes appointed to attend the convention to elect a provincial leader for the Liberal party later this month.

Meanwhile, Mr. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, another contender for the leadership role, plans to visit St. Andrews at 5.30 p.m. Sunday, to meet delegates and substitutes from the two counties of Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes.

Besides the two candidates mentioned, two others — Mr. René Hamel and Dr. A. Fauteux — are in the running for the Liberal leadership in provincial politics.

Ottawa Valley Fox Hunting Assn. elects officers

Members of the Ottawa Valley Fox Hunting Association gathered at the Carillon Hotel recently for their second annual meeting. Antonio Scarborough was re-elected as president and other officers were appointed as follows:

Keith Boa, Lachute, 1st vice-pres.; Réal Gauthier, Carillon, 2nd vice-pres.; Aurèle Castonguay, Lachute, sec.; Paul Fournier, Lachute, joint sec.

Directors — Irvin Clark, Lachute; P. M. Gagnon, St. Hermas; Harvey Hutt, St. Philippe; Gordon Bradley, Isle au Chats; J. P. Ladouceur, St. Andrews East; Antonio Roy, Carillon.

A number of new members enrolled at this meeting.

Synthetic diamonds provide topic at Chemical Institute

A new form of an old compound — boron nitride — which will scratch a diamond, was described to the Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada at the Abenaki Golf and Country Club recently. The speaker was Dr. R. H. Wentorf, a member of the group at the General Electric Research Laboratories in Schenectady, N.Y., who pioneered the manufacture of man-made diamonds in addition to the new super-hard substance, cubic boron nitride or borazide. The industrial future of both products should be bright, since the supply of naturally occurring industrial diamonds — indispensable for many drilling, grinding and machining operations — cannot keep up with today's demand.

In its normal form, boron nitride is a soft, greasy substance very similar to graphite. When graphite is subjected to pressures around a million pounds per square inch at high temperatures, it is converted into diamond. Mother Nature knows how to do this, but it wasn't until G.E.'s research team built the apparatus to develop these very high pressures that the extra-hard borazide was discovered.

Synthetic gem diamonds and borazides are still for the future, said Dr. Wentorf, because the largest synthetic stones are no more than one one-hundredth of an inch in diameter. However, this is no handicap for many industrial purposes which have always relied on diamond dust from chips and imperfect stones.

Fish Derby cancelled

It has been announced by officials of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association that the proposed Fishing Derby at Lake Louisa has been cancelled. No future date has been announced for the event.

Finance committee studies tenders for town evaluation

At a special meeting Saturday afternoon, Mayor Léopold Carrière opened tenders submitted for a systematic town evaluation. Out of seven firms contacted on this proposal, three entered bids, as follows:

Begin, Charland & Valiquette	$21,000
Canadian General Evaluation Co. (Lucien Meloche and D'Arcy St. Pierre	$14,850
Rosario Frigon, civil engineer and municipal assessor	$18,000

The latter bidder, who was present at the meeting, obliged by replying to numerous questions put by the councillors.

The Mayor suggested that the tenders be studied by the finance committee, who will report at a special meeting of Council, and Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion was asked to serve on this committee in place of Ald. Mozart Carrière, who is in hospital at St. Jerome under medical observation.

Present at this meeting, with Mayor Carrière, were Aldermen Gérard Lefebvre, Edgar Pollock, Nelson Lepage, Wilfrid Morrissette and Dr. Dorion.

First donation for Old People's Home fund

The County Women's Institute fund to establish a home for elderly people received its first donation from the Brownsburg W.I. — Mrs. N. E. Smillie, branch president, handing a cheque of $10 to Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, county president. Other donations have since been forthcoming, and contributions large or small will be gratefully received.

In the above photo appear (left to right) Mrs. Mansel Wilson, past County president, Mrs. McGibbon, Mrs. Smillie and Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh. The fund committee comprises Mrs. McGibbon, Mrs. Baugh, Mrs. Wilson and a fourth member, Mrs. J. R. McOuat.

It is understood the Hon. W. M. Cottingham has signified his willingness to donate land on his farm for the building site.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

The new Provincial Legion low-rental housing project at Chateauguay will receive a lot of well-deserved attention from here in. This $280,000 project will house 128 veteran families who are required to live mainly on Disability or Old Age pensions. Some well-directed publicity might interest the powers-that-be in a similar housing unit for this area.

• • •

Small favors often mean a lot to a Service organization such as ours, where funds to carry on are not easy to come by. We would like to publicly acknowledge four such favors recently extended by the L'Heureux Reg'd (Dry Cleaners) — Lachute Decorating, Main Street West (Painting Supplies) — Mr. P. Tremblay, of Dansereau Stores (Electrical Gift Shop) — and Ed. Jones (Insurance & Real Estate).

• • •

Watch closely for meeting dates and other announcements during June — there may be a few changes from the regular Branch schedule due to the many projects in progress during the month.

• • •

There are many new developments in the Legion project at the Fair Grounds. One thing certain is a full night's entertainment organized by the Veterans for Friday and Saturday evenings. The Shriners' Oriental Band will be in attendance on Friday evening. This will be a colorful, fearless group of zanies. We can't vouch for the quality of the music, but it is said there is no doubt about their ability to entertain!

Arrangements are now being worked out for advance interviews through C.F.R.A., live broadcasts and possibly TV coverage of part of the Legion show.

Of special interest is the generous $100 donation from Canadian International Paper Company obtained through the courtesy of M. R. (Manny) Wilson, manager of the Woodlots Division. This money has been donated for the winning Square Dance team.

Wilson Black is chairman of this contest and will be pleased to accept applications immediately. Again it is hoped that there will be heavy competition by local dancers. Dance teams may bring their own music; however, a fiddler will be on hand for the use of all contestants. Remember, there is no age limit! All dancers, age 4 years to 400 years are welcome!

• • •

Permission has been secured from the Town Fathers, and Veterans, accompanied by a Queen-elect, will take up a Friday evening location on Main Street from now until Fair time, for the sale of tickets on the Holiday Tour drawing. The public are asked to be generous in their purchase of these tickets. You vote for your favorite Queen when you buy your tickets. — She will be pleased to have your support; you will be pleased if you win a vacation allowance.

• • •

Please note that any local industry or business firm interested in donating prizes or trophies for the Legion events should phone Comrade President R. MacLean, immediately. There is room for several more. The following have been gratefully received to date:

First prize in Square Dance event — Canadian International Paper Co. — $100.00.

Teen-Age Queen (2nd place) — Bank of Nova Scotia, Lachute Branch — Engraved Cup.

Teen-Age Queen (3rd place) — S. Greenspon & Son, Lachute — Engraved Cup.

Teen-Age Queen (4th place) — Kerr's Restaurant, Lachute — Engraved Cup.

We have championship-calibre Cribbage players in our midst. Our boys brought home the bacon from the Provincial Tournament, in the form of a specially-made Cribbage Trophy, something to be proud of. Last year's champions were put to sleep by Comrade President R. MacLean and Comrade Don Cockburn. In the final round Comrades Fred Pring and Don Cockburn carried off the honors. In addition to the team trophy, individual players received musical steins.

However, our dart artists were no match for the boys with the waxed moustaches, balanced darts and sharpening-stones — thus they bowed gracefully out of this event.

• • •

Comrades R. A. Giles, R. MacLean, B. A. Jenkins and George Kirby visited Comrade Thos. Stewart, patient in the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital, and were pleased to find Tommy in a very much improved state of health. Tom was loud in his praise of the hospital and its many services. The visitors were quite impressed with its cleanliness and air of quiet efficiency. Tom expected to be home shortly.

See you next week!

Some safety tips for young cyclists

Cycling is one of the easiest sports for a willing youngster to learn. The experts suggest these helpful rules:

Ride slowly until you become accustomed to the exercise.

Adjust the seat and handlebars to your own height.

Sit in a comfortable position.

Ride with the ball of your foot on the pedal, not the instep or heel.

Keep the knees close to the frame.

Don't let your shoulders wobble.

Look straight ahead.

If you ride in hilly country, walk your bike up the high hills.

Stag dinner by Athletic Ass'n

Sponsored by the Lachute High School Athletic Association, the stag dinner being held at the school on Monday, May 26, promises to be well patronized.

The purpose of the newly-formed organization is to build up a fund so that students of Lachute High School may be able to participate in athletics and sports of all kinds.

Following the Banquet, there will be an address by "Tex" Coulter, famous football star. A gymnastic display will also be given by local boys of the High School.

Some of the local boys have shown great promise as gymnasts, and through this effort will have the opportunity of competing in the Dominion Championship contests being held at Vancouver early in July.

For any interested in helping to send these boys to compete, there are still some tickets available, which may be purchased from Messrs. Donald M. Hay, Fred Royal or Richd. MacLean.

If unable to attend the dinner, a donation will be most acceptable.

Wives, sweethearts and friends of those who have purchased tickets, or made donations, are invited for the program which will commence at 8 p.m.

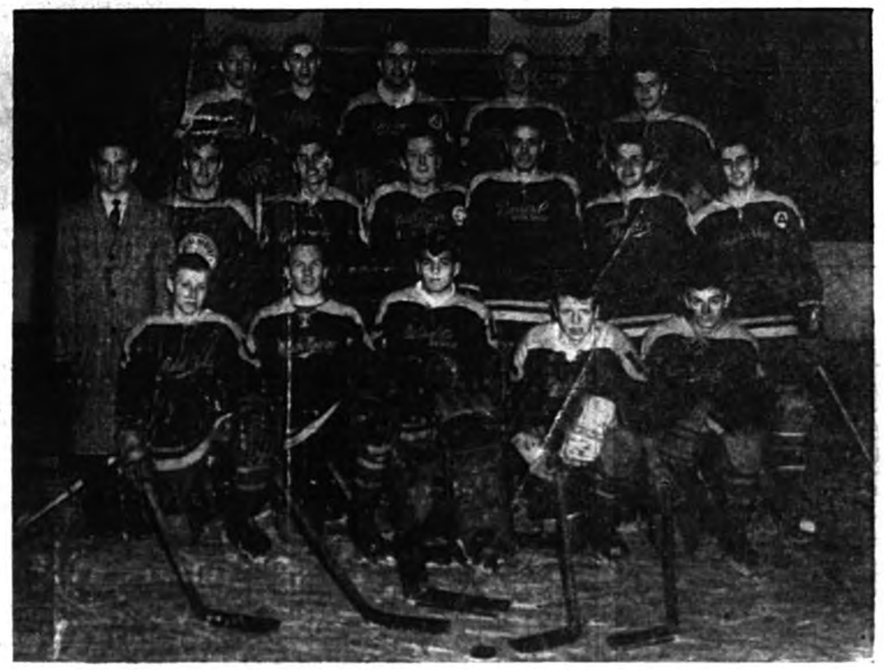

90 Clubs entered in Molson's fishing contest

St. Jean Iberville Association leads the 1958 Molson's Fishing Tournament — despite cold, inclement weather at the outset of the season. The Montreal Anglers and Hunters and the Ste. Agathe Club are in second and third positions, respectively, although entries have, so far, not been numerous.

One of the best catches of the season reported up to May 9 was made by Gaston Cloutier, who took a 4 pound 9 ounce brown trout in the North River. Although the weather has not encouraged sportsmen afield, a record number of clubs and associations have already registered in the 1958 tournament.

Clubs or associations wishing to participate should send their registration forms to headquarters as soon as possible. Late registration may inconvenience members who have good luck on their early fishing trips.

Sport fishermen are reminded they must be members of a club or association which is a member of the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations, to be eligible to participate in this province-wide tournament.

The club and manager express appreciation to the Molson and Dow Brewery representatives and the local business men who have given material support and encouragement to the club's operations this past season.

Motorbike races at Rigaud Park

On Sunday, May 25, the first motorcycle races of the season will be staged at Rigaud Park. Last year more than three thousand persons witnessed these events. None were disappointed, since thrills and spills were never lacking.

This year, the directors of Rigaud Park have quite a few programs on their agenda, the first of which will be this Sunday at 2 p.m.

This race track is considered among the finest in the province. The riders are able to attain maximum speed, and without diminishing too much on the curves; the fans cheer them on their exciting finish.

Sunday's program will be presented by the Verdun Motorcycle Racing Club, under sanction of the Canadian Motorcycle Association of Canada.

GOOD SWIMMER

Vancouver (CP) — Mrs. Ann Meraw will attempt to swim the 38-mile stretch of Okanagan Lake from Penticton to Kelowna in July. She failed in 1956, but set a woman's endurance record of 25 hours, one minute.

WESTERN STYLE

Canada's white-collar women are to meet in Edmonton July 8-11 for the national convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women.

However, for easterners among the 400 delegates expected, there will be play before work. They plan to stop off at the Calgary Stampede for a day before the conference starts.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

An investment for the future

THE AWED indignation which was ready to explode with the minnow-bait ban in this County, has all but given way to general acceptance. It is expected there will be passive, if not enthusiastic, co-operation on the part of district anglers — which shows what can be done by Authority with a diplomatic and comprehending approach. Fish and Game Department officials were asked to explain their reasons and proposals. A request to that effect was directed to the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, and the Department complied with courtesy and promptness — Dr. Gustave Prevost, biological expert, having taken much trouble to address a meeting here and to answer relevant questions.

We can express the general idea in no better words than those of "Manny" Wilson, one of our own top conservationists, who wrote in a recent issue of his C.I.P. "Woods Notes" as follows:

How can our trout lakes be reclaimed and good trout fishing be brought back? The best way, the fish scientists tell us, is to remove the trash fish so that once again only trout will be produced. In recent years various chemicals have come into use in reclaiming lakes after which they can be stocked with trout only. Dr. Gustave Prevost and the Quebec Biological Bureau have begun a program of lake reclamation with many projects planned for Argenteuil County. Logically, there would be no sense undertaking such a program without first creating the means for preventing the reintroduction of trash fish through their use as bait. This then is the purpose for the recent ban on the use of minnows and other fish as bait in Argenteuil County.

Residents of Argenteuil County as well as of the entire Province can be proud of the attitude of the Department of Game and Fisheries toward the growing importance of the fishing recreation in Quebec. With the scientific knowhow at its disposal and the necessary fishing regulations now in force, the Department of Game and Fisheries should make great progress in its efforts to improve lakes which for so many years have furnished poor trout fishing. The Department of Game and Fisheries will need the co-operation of everyone in carrying out the terms of the new regulation prohibiting the use of minnows and other fish as bait in Argenteuil County. We should realize that in accepting and obeying the new law we will be making an investment in the future which promises far better trout fishing than we have had in the past.

Is this hospitality?

ONE TOURIST we know of left Lachute Friday evening with a bad taste in his mouth, and on his next trip north from the United States, plans to steer clear of this town.

While driving up Main Street looking for a parking spot to stop for supper, this resident of Massachusetts was passed on the wrong side by a horn-blowing, loud-swearing member of the local police department, accompanied by a local Provincial Police officer.

While the officers were not in uniform, the tourist was informed of their status, and, to say the least, was far from pleased. The local Chamber of Commerce is looking forward to the tourist trade, but incidents such as last Friday's will do more harm than all the good publicity in the world.

It is about time that all the law enforcement officers took this into consideration, as the ones that do now are apparently in the minority.

Hands across the border

WITH THE tourist season approaching, there will be a flow of Canadians across the border destined for vacations in the United States. This may be an appropriate time to mention a little-known phase of the Canadian Red Cross blood transfusion service.

Most of us are aware that residents in this community receive free of cost any blood or plasma needed for transfusion therapy. Also it is generally known that a similar service is available to them almost entirely throughout Canada, even in some hospitals not served by the Canadian Red Cross plan.

Few citizens, however, are aware that Canadians under treatment in American hospitals may receive free blood transfusion through a reciprocal agreement between the Canadian Red Cross Society and the American National Red Cross. Americans in hospital in Canada also receive free transfusions through the Canadian Red Cross.

Canadians who receive blood transfusions in American hospitals should advise their doctor or the Canadian Red Cross blood transfusion service in their province. This notice should specify the patient's name and address, the name and address of the hospital, the name of the surgeon or principal physician, and the number of transfusions given. This notification must be made within three months after the patient has left the hospital, but as soon as possible after the transfusion is recommended.

This may sound a bit complicated, but in reality it can be effected by the patient, his doctor or the hospital in a very routine manner.

This plan is assuring to tourists who may require blood transfusions during illness or accident while far from home. It is another instance of a hands-across-the-border gesture by two humanitarian organizations of two great nations.

A Western crop menace

THE CALENDAR is moving on toward the warm summer months, bringing what the Prairie farmer knows as one of his worst hazards — the crushing hailstorm.

Most hailstones are small, perhaps a quarter-inch in diameter. But bigger ice balls sometimes plummet to earth. These chunks of ice are formed when raindrops are carried by strong turbulence in a thunderstorm to higher, colder levels where the drops freeze.

As they come in contact with bits of snow and super-cooled droplets the hailstones build up in layers, like onions. They can then pound down to earth to destroy a crop in a few furious minutes.

The most costly hailstorm on record, around Wichita, Kas., on June 23, 1951, caused more than $14,000,000 damage to crops and property.

In Canada last year, Prairie farmers suffered the worst hail damage on record. The annual meeting of the Canadian Hail Underwriters' Association at Winnipeg in February was told that claims valued at more than $4,000,000 were paid by member companies, compared with $3,200,000 in 1956.

Claims totalled 9,837 in 1957 compared with 8,362 the previous year. Saskatchewan suffered the worst loss in 1957, figured at $2,780,000, followed by Manitoba with $1,390,000 and Alberta with $383,000.

In the United States in 1956 hail damage reached $75,000,000, according to the National Geographic Society.

The nature of hailstones is being studied by scientists and agricultural groups in many places. They are seeking a method of turning hail into rain, or some way of diverting storms from farming and populated areas.

It's an old threat, of course. In medieval Europe they rang churchbells in an effort to shift the air pressures, and in later years fired cannons and rockets. In more recent times men have tried "seeding" the clouds.

But scientists so far have been unable to find conclusive evidence that any of these methods do any good.

Views and perspectives

TAX COLLECTORS in Canada doubtless have their troubles — says the Fort Erie Letter Review — but it is doubtful whether tax legislation and tax regulations in this country are quite as baffling or as hard to administer as some of the rules dreamed up by lawmakers in the U.S. At any rate, no one in Canada has yet been moved to offer a prize for a simple exposition of the meaning of a sentence in tax legislation.

A news story from Salt Lake City tells of an offer made by Senator Arthur V. Watkins of Utah of a copy of the book "Simplified English" or of the Bible (known for the simplicity of its prose) to anyone who can figure out the meaning of a 212-word sentence in the U.S. Internal Revenue Code.

No contestant in Senator Watkins' unique contest has yet come up with the right answer. Chances are there just isn't any.

ICE FREE ST. LAWRENCE SOON. — Winter navigation in the lower St. Lawrence may be relatively commonplace a couple of years from now, says Michael Barkway in The Financial Post. . . By 1960 the Canadian government expects to have adequate facilities and trained personnel to provide necessary services. By 1961-62 it will have 10 fully-protected icebreakers and five more lightly fortified ships to station at intervals all the way from Montreal to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

CAR INSURANCE. — True, the cost of insurance is high, but a fatality also costs an awful lot. If one cannot afford insurance he should not be allowed to drive a car, especially in these days when a busted fender on an expensive new car may amount to over $100; let alone when life is at stake.

The importance of books

By Rev. J. Ralph Watson, B.Com., B.A., B.D., Cushing, Que.

"Except a living man there is nothing more wonderful than a book."
— Charles Kingsley

If you were asked whether or not you considered books to be valuable, undoubtedly you would answer "Yes" — but why? Why are books so important in this modern age with its movies, TV, and radio to help us in our education?

To be sure, the modern methods of imparting information have an important role to play in education, but books are nonetheless extremely valuable and necessary!

Books for Knowledge

First of all, books provide us with knowledge. It is from our reading of books that we learn of the past — of our cultural heritage — that with a sound understanding of our heritage we may build wisely for the future.

Books also record for us the findings of science over the years and preserve the accumulated data which is so necessary for the progress and achievement of science in our world today.

Then too, the great literature of every age helps us to better understand ourselves so that not only can we learn to conquer "outer space" but our "inner-selves" as well.

Books for Pleasure

Secondly, books can give us many hours of pleasure and adventure as in imagination we share and enjoy the experiences of others. John Milton had found this experience in reading books and wrote "A good book is the precious life-blood of a master-spirit."

Books for Preciseness

Thirdly, apart from knowledge and pleasure, the reading of good books — well written — increases our vocabulary and teaches us to express ourselves with clarity and preciseness. "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body." — Addison.

"Books are here to stay"

"Books Are Here to Stay" is the title of an interesting article in this year's March 23 issue of "Saturday Evening Post". The author is the well known TV personality Bennett Cerf — who is also president of Random House, one of the leading book publishers in the U.S.A. "Anyone", writes Cerf, "fortunate enough to have learned the joys of reading in his formative years knows that there never has been and never will be a substitute for a really good book." He then strongly advises that "the time to start driving home the idea that books can be a source of lifelong pleasure . . . is when a child has turned six — and is barely beginning to learn to read."

A Library

A library is a collection of books and resource material of various kinds and on many subjects. The advantage of a good library — whether large or small, public or private — is that it offers a selection of books on a number of subjects — when we want them. A library in the home or in the school or in a town or city can be like an oasis in a desert. It can provide, for young and old, good resource material of all kinds, books that will stimulate their thinking and offer them access to treasures that will enrich their lives!

What was a Red River Cart?

Used by the Metis of the Red River area on their buffalo hunts, and for freighting goods between Fort Garry and St. Paul and between Fort Gary and Edmonton, the Red River cart was a two-wheeled vehicle constructed entirely of wood, except that shag-a-nappi (rawhide) was sometimes used as a tire to bind the wheels. Made principally of the ordinary hardwoods to be found on the prairie riversides, the axles were usually of maple with the hubs of elm. The deeply dished wheels were normally 5 or 6 feet high; with 8 to 12 spokes, and gave to the vehicle a considerable degree of stability. The two shafts were attached to the axle, and a platform, surrounded by a light railing, was mounted on the shafts and between the wheels. In use, the draft animal, either a pony or ox, was harnessed between the shafts, and loads of 500 to 1,000 pounds were normally hauled on the cart. The vehicle was light, strong, easily repaired and was capable of being used over rough, trackless or even soft ground.

For river crossings, the wheels could be dismounted and strapped to the underside of the platform, thereby providing a buoyant and fairly navigable raft. When used in cart trains, the carts were organized into "brigades", of 4 to 6 carts, managed by one driver. During the hunt, the carts, placed around the camp, served as a defence. Although they were used extensively in hunting, for carrying the buffalo meat, their use extended to such service as freighting and even farm work. They originated, most likely, from French Quebec and the Highlands of Scotland, and there is mention of their use as far back as 1801.

Who was "everyman's friend and never locked his cabin door?"

Henry Fuller Davis, a trader and gold prospector, came to Canada in 1858 from the California goldfields to join the Fraser River gold rush. He earned the nickname of "Twelve-foot Davis" when, in the Cariboo, he discovered two claims in excess of regulation width and mined $15,000 in gold from the twelve-foot space between them. He was one of the discoverers of the Omineca goldfield in Northern B.C. Later he became a trader and his friendliness to pioneers, travellers and Indians was legendary in the Peace country. Indeed, his tombstone on a high hill overlooking the Peace bears the inscription "He was everyman's friend and never locked his cabin door."

The Mere Living

Last night I began to read a book which did not seem to promise much excitement. It was called "The Mere Living", written by Hazel McDonald Parkinson, and sub-titled "A Biography of the Hartney District." Hartney is a small Manitoba town and I feared the story might be dull. Its opening chapter was full of sentences such as "Our bedroom was on the north side and overlooked the sloping roof of the back shed." In the springtime we climbed out the window and daringly sat upon the roof, which became, in turn, a buggy in which we drove with our dolls to town for supplies, a gypsy caravan when we had been reading a gypsy tale, or after we had travelled by train to Souris or Elgin, a railway coach in which we journey with all our possessions and our doll family." Obviously, The Mere Living was no Peyton Place! And yet I found myself reading on.

What constitutes the charm of this book? Now, having reached Chapter 9, I think I know.

It sets down in print, without any pretence, life almost precisely as it has been lived in the Hartney district for a couple of generations. It does not seek drama, or tragedy, or any of the effects commonly supposed to make best sellers out of books. But the reader who was raised in just such a district unaccountably feels a lump in his throat or a pounding in his heart at certain passages — perhaps because he senses much of what goes on behind the serenity of placid community life.

Ox-travel, livery stables, blacksmith shops — all are there, recounted simply. "He arrived late in 1891, and lived with the Parsons family while he built a little shop south of the livery stable and secured from Fred Spencer a small shack which he moved onto East Railway Street, three doors south of Dr. Woodhull's cottage, for a temporary home. Mrs. Batty and their two children, John and Eva, joined him in 1892." Do you see what I mean? If you're a small-town boy, somewhere in those lines there's a nostalgic emotion sure to hit you.

What "The Mere Living" accomplishes, really, is to capture the history of the older families while it is still available. I wish more writers would do the same thing for their communities. I wish more men and women would start putting down on paper (whether they are professional writers or not) the simple history of their generation. It beats Peyton Place for good reading, in my opinion. How's about it, old-timers? Get those pencils flying! Let the youth of this generation know how you struggled for things they now take for granted, or expect someone to provide for them free. It is a story that needs telling.

New postage stamp to commemorate founding of Quebec

The Post Office Department has announced a new postage stamp to be issued on June 26, to mark the 350th anniversary of the founding of Quebec by Samuel de Champlain.

While the first white man to visit the site of the present day City of Quebec was Jacques Cartier, the French navigator in 1535, it was not until July 1608 that the first permanent white habitation was established by Champlain, who also gave the settlement its present name.

The new stamp will be of the large size, horizontal format and printed in two colors, green and brown. It will be of the five-cent denomination.

Three men who have made it . . .

A coal-miner in a business suit who gave me a ride the other day.

"The mine where I work only runs in the winter," he said. "So when it's closed, I'm an interior decorator.

"Just to fill in, I also sell musical instruments." He waved toward a number of odd-shaped cases and packages in the back seat of his car.

"I start up bands in one town or another, and I sell them all their instruments."

"It pays to be versatile around here," I said.

"I also sell ready-made suits," he informed me. "For every so many suits I sell, I get one for myself — besides the commission."

I thanked him for the ride, watched his big plushy car vanish around the bend of the road and said to myself: "There's one man who doesn't spend any time hanging around the unemployment office."

* * *

. . . Another man who turned bad news into money.

The bad news was the closing of the Silver Standard mine where he had worked. He asked the company whether he could buy some of the houses that accommodated the mine staff.

The company sold six of them to him at $500 each, complete with plumbing and wiring. He bought six building lots in another town nearby for $50 each, and let out a contract to a mover and builder to transport the houses to their new location.

The houses completely furnished and ready to be occupied will cost him $3,000 each. They will be worth $7,000 to $9,000. He will rent them out. If there is a depression on, this man hasn't heard of it.

* * *

. . . A third man living near a tiny lake.

It is scarcely more than a pond, and it swarms with large, hungry trout. I'm not going to tell you where it is. Recently it was on television; those publicity-grabbing fish should keep out of the limelight for a while.

He knows every twig and pebble in the lake. When the water weed grows thick at one end, he knows exactly where to drop a fly to get a trout.

"You have to heave 'er in as soon as she hits, or she'll be so tangled in the weed that you'll never get 'er untied.

"Well, sir, there was one day in the duck season I took a shotgun along with me in the boat. I made a cast and zing! there's a fish."

My friend waved an imaginary rod. "Just then some ducks go over. There's the decision — get a duck or land the fish . . . "

"Drop the rod, pick up the gun," he said, going through the motions in pantomime. "Bang! There's a duck. Pick up the rod, pull in the fish. Lucky, he's still in the clear.

"And that's how it goes for the next two or three hours. Drop the rod, pick up the gun. Drop the gun, pick up the rod." He was acting it out so vigorously that I stepped back a pace.

"Boy, I tell you, I wouldn't have changed places with anybody in this world, that day on the lake."

Showing the right spirit!

LETER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

While returning from Mountain View on Monday afternoon, I was attracted by a number of young fry all gathered together. There was a row of chairs and boxes on which were seated a somewhat rowdy and impatient audience. Wondering what was going on, I stopped and enquired and was informed by the leader, Miss Donna MacLean, that there was a "Circus" being held with local (Mountain View) talent. Admission price was 1 cent, and the proceeds were being given to the Red Cross. Already they had raised 56 cents, to which I added 26 cents and was almost mobbed by the youthful gang who thought I had dropped from heaven!

If our youngsters are taught, and put into practice, ideals such as this, we surely will have less juvenile delinquency to worry about.

McBride who had a tinsmith shop on Main near the intersection of Water Street).

In 1910 he went to Oxnard, Calif., and entered the employ of the Oxnard Plumbing Co., with whom he was still employed as shop foreman at the time of his death.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Myrtle M. Hamilton, of Oxnard; two daughters, Mrs. Aleta N. Owens, of Oroville, Calif., Mrs. Louise Kerr, of Oxnard; and three grandchildren. School grad dance at Arundel proves colorful, spectacular affair

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — Over 300 guests attended the Graduation Dance held in the school auditorium on Friday evening last. Special guests were the School Board members and their wives, Mayor Dr. Wm. Morrison and Mrs. Morrison, with the rest of the municipal councillors and their wives.

The hall was beautifully transformed into a typical ranch scene. Rustic fences enclosed the dancing space. In the middle of this was a curved rustic bridge, under which was an artistic pool banked with rocks and flowers. A large flowering tree stood beside the bridge, which was illuminated and gave a subdued lighting effect. The stage was decorated with a large mural the whole width of the platform, depicting a mountain scene. This, too, was very effective with indirect lighting. In front of the stage was a space enclosed to represent a patio, which was reserved for the staff, special guests, and the graduates. At each side of the orchestra was a rock garden banked with flowers. Over all there was a canopy of streamers which lent a roof effect to the whole hall, and which was interspersed with lanterns and festoons of garlands in the school colors. . .

Over all, the indirect lighting on banks of spring flowers, the bright summery dresses of the graduates and the scholars, transported one for a few hours from this prosaic old world into a fairyland of charm. Congratulations were heard from all sides for the committee and their helpers who had created such a wonderful effect, but did not half tell the labor involved to produce this scene.

The orchestra of Ernie Lefebvre added to the evening's pleasure and gave the last touch needed to a perfect setting.

The 1958 graduating class included — Shirley Craig, Henriette Drouin, Lois Gray and Gilbert Young.

At the stroke of nine two majorettes led in the six little usherettes, who looked charming in red and white bell-boy costumes and jaunty pill-box hats, and led them through an intricate drill which was executed with perfection. Those taking part were — Majorettes Dale Boyd and Joan Courte, Usherettes Lize Jensen, Gary Van Weren, Wayne Madison, Ronald Cooke, Lynne Cooke, Linda Crone, Bonnie Dobbie and Paul Tonan. A general dance followed the drill.

After a short interval the majorettes departed and returned leading the grand march, headed by Principal and Mrs. M. Graham and followed by the staff, their wives and husbands. Then followed the graduates in their long, bouffant-style dresses and the boys in their blue blazers and smart ties. Another drill was performed, after which the guests joined in the general dancing.

Later during the evening the graduates were introduced individually to Mrs. C. Stuart, representing the Arundel School Board, then to the assembly. Mr. Graham addressed the graduates and the guests, and introduced Mrs. Stuart, who said a few words of encouragement and congratulations to the graduates. Miss Shirley Craig very capably replied for the graduates.

Supper was served at 11.30, another drill was executed by the majorettes and usherettes, who were this time led in by Piper Gilbert Young in Scottish costume. Dancing then occupied the remainder of the evening. . .

And so ended another graduation dance till next season, with new graduates entertaining the same high hopes and dreams, which we hope will all be fulfilled.

People's Church here host to visitors from fellow congregations

People's Church, Lachute, was the host church to other Associated Gospel congregations in Quebec on Monday, the Victoria Day holiday.

Softball and other games were played in the afternoon, the combined teams of Verdun and Ville LaSalle defeating the People's Church, Montreal, in a very closely-contested game.

At 7 p.m. the people gathered on the spacious lawn for the devotional service. The president, the Rev. A. Olsen, pastor of the Onward Gospel Church, Verdun, was in charge of the service. The Rev. Hugh Gordon, a missionary on furlough from Pakistan, whose parents are members of Onward Church, led in prayer. The Rev. John Dempster, pastor of People's Church, Montreal, read the Scripture portion.

Miss Carol Kettyle, of Montreal, sang two beautiful solos, accompanied at the organ by Miss Barbara McKnight, of Verdun.

The Rev. Don Webster, who with Mrs. Webster will be going to Alaska in the near future to work under the Wycliff Translators, brought the inspirational message of the evening, from the Book of Jonah. Pastor C. W. Sorley pronounced the benediction.

The churches represented were — People's Church, Montreal; Onward Gospel Church, Verdun; Grace Gospel Church, Ville LaSalle; People's Church, St. Eustache.

Many complimentary remarks were heard from the visitors about the beautiful countryside in and about Lachute. All went away with a pleasant memory of their visit to this community.

Increasing demand for Scriptures

"In 1945 the British and Foreign Bible Society circulated 5,800,000 copies of Scripture. In 1950 the annual circulation had gone up to 6,400,000. In 1957, we circulated almost 10,000,000 copies of Scripture," so stated the Rev. Dr. W. J. Platt recently while addressing a meeting in Hamilton, Ont.

The Bible Society supplies Scriptures for the mission fields of the world at no cost to the Mission Societies. Of Scriptures requested in 1958, the Bible Society will be obligated to retard production orders by over $30,000 despite the urgent demand for these editions.

Demonstration of ballet method

The local public will be given their first opportunity to see the basic training of ballet students, next Thursday (May 29) when the Lachute School of Ballet, with 60-odd girls, will demonstrate some of the lessons they have had in first-year work.

They will be dressed in their leotards, the standard ballet attire, and although it is usually not practiced with first-year students, in two short sketches they will have limited accessories.

According to information received from the Elizabeth Leese Studio of Classical Ballet, four girls from that school will augment the local students, though the demonstration will be kept as simple as possible, so that parents and friends will see the benefit of the basic training, and not see a "performance".

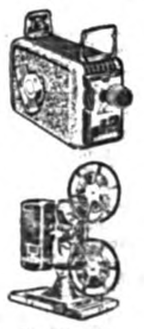

There is a possibility that Miss Elizabeth Leese will be present, if not, Miss Juliette Fischer, principal of the Westmount studio, will do the honors and give the introductory remarks. Miss Joan Bouchard, who has been the teacher for the first year, will direct the demonstration, and Mr. Peter Basch will be the accompanist at the piano.

Miss Leese has announced that a scholarship will be given to the most promising student in the Lachute School of Ballet, which is the general policy of the Elizabeth Leese Studio of Ballet.

The demonstration will be presented in Lachute Auditorium on Thursday, May 29, starting at 8 p.m. sharp.

CBC producer to 'officiate' at St. Andrews service

Winston Curry, one of Canada's foremost CBC radio and concert artists, will be heard in person Sunday evening, June 1, in the Presbyterian Church at St. Andrews East. The service will begin at eight o'clock and will be part of the celebrations marking the 140th anniversary of the arrival of the first Presbyterian minister in this district.

Winston Curry's radio program, "Sweet Hour of Prayer", is now in its 21st year on the CBC network, and is known and loved in Canadian homes for its kindly philosophy, poems and hymns which bring cheer and comfort to all who listen.

On Sunday evening Mr. Curry will present his radio program exactly as it is heard over the air. He will sing many of the well-loved hymns which have become so popular over the years, along with the recitation of favorite poems and narrations. It was back in 1938 that Mr. Curry presented to the CBC his first program of hymns and poems, and since that date he has been heard twice weekly over the CBC network. No other "sustaining" radio program in Canadian history can claim this distinction of over 20 years' continuous broadcasting.

Percy Kelly attended Avoca School, Grenville Consolidated and Grenville High. He will complete his engineering education at Queen's next fall. During his summer vacation from Carleton, he worked on the construction of the Camp Gagetown project in Gagetown, N.B.

First girl baby born to family in 150 years

The first "Miss Danforth" in more than 150 years was born last Friday in hospital at Watertown, N.Y., according to the Daily Times of that city. The parents are Dr. and Mrs. Albert L. Danforth, 323 South Indiana Avenue — the mother being the former Jean Picken of Lachute. The child, Christina Susan, is the first girl born in the Danforth family since before 1800.

Dr. and Mrs. Danforth also have a son, Douglas Albert, 9. Dr. Danforth is the son of Mrs. Guy R. Danforth and the late Dr. Danforth, of Watertown. Dr. Danforth, his father, his grandfather and great grandfathers for an uncertain number of generations were all one of a family of boys. Even Christina Susan's cousins are all boys.

Finding Christ, behind prison bars

"And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also." . . . So read a zealous young Communist who was a college graduate, spending some time in an Indian prison cell.

An Indian evangelist gave the prisoner a copy of the New Testament and asked, "Well, how's that for real Communism?"

That was the beginning. How strange these words of Jesus sounded! The prisoner had always been taught to fight for his rights. He read and re-read it, experiencing a violent tug away from old values and ambitions. He has recently written: "For years I have looked for the way of life expressed in the Bible. I have searched all over India for such an expression of Life. I have found the answer in a completely new way of life. Now life has purpose, and I found it in Christ, behind prison bars."

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

"Getting filled with God's spirit."
(Eph. 5: 18)

The Bible must be studied — it is inspired and inspiring!

To have God's spirit is a matter of greatest importance. Jesus showed this by saying that the heavenly Father would be more pleased to give the holy spirit to those who ask him than earthly parents are to give good things to their children. (Luke 11: 13). Asking for the filling of God's spirit precedes acquiring it by "seeking" and "knocking". We seek and knock by diligent study of the Bible and by applying its instructions to our way of life. Through these means one keeps filled with the spirit of God.

The Bible must be studied, as it is inspired and inspiring. The Watch Tower publications are provided to aid such seekers. During May Jehovah's witnesses will offer people the opportunity of obtaining two bound Bible-study aid books of prepared spiritual food and two Bible booklets on a contribution of $1.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Family Picnic

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

What little child ever failed to show eagerness about a picnic just with the family? But school age children want to play with their own pals, and it is often a good plan to include one of your children's friends in the family picnic group. Adolescents frequently prefer an outing with their own gang to family functions. There is not much use trying to establish a family picnic pattern once the children are almost grown!

As mother has the major responsibility for preparing meals, the decision about the frequency of picnics and their menu is often made by her. A picnic basket, packed ready with plastic dishes, "second best" silverware, thermos, cookie tin, and small plastic bags is a real boon when the family want a picnic on short notice.

Most homes have an emergency food shelf which can be raided on the arrival of unexpected company. Why not add a few extra tins which will help in giving variety to family picnics and simplify the preparations of the food? If there are school age youngsters, discover from the members of the family what picnic dishes are most popular with them and what new goods they would like to have on a picnic. If children and father, too, have a part in planning, this will increase their enjoyment.

Many households have discovered that picnics don't have to follow the sandwiches and pie pattern. Not that anything is the matter with this combination! But a change is appreciated. Perhaps mother has almost completed preparations for the evening meal when a member of the family bursts into the kitchen saying, "It's such a marvellous day! Couldn't we eat out?"

Some of the happiest picnics take place when the meal is just transferred to the backyard, providing there is shade and privacy and a convenient place to sit on one's own property. A barbeque is always an invitation to cook out-of-doors, and an outdoor table and chairs are handy, but hundreds of families relish picnics without this equipment.

Leisure to relax and enjoy one's food is part of the picnic pattern. Mother or daughter both appreciate a compliment about cookies, cake or special dish. When the meal is over, everyone should have a part in tidying the picnic spot and packing the dishes and supplies. Boys and girls can be encouraged to develop pride in leaving the place they have enjoyed a meal without any papers or rubbish lying around. This is one small but important way of demonstrating good citizenship qualities.

From sad experience, most parents have learned in families with small children, not to talk about a special picnic expedition until the day arrives and proves to be suitable. Little boys or girls are bitterly disappointed if weather, sickness or some other unexpected event make it necessary to postpone the outdoor treat.

One of the greatest compliments to a parent is recorded in that delightful book, "Only Parent" (Lippincott) by Louise Dickinson Rich. This mother had had to arrange for another adult to take her son Rufus and her daughter and their friends on an expedition. Rufus exclaimed when he discovered that she would be absent:

"But gee, Ma, you don't understand! Things are more fun with you!"

Would your son or daughter say this about you after a family picnic?

Tailored to the Party taste

CHEESE AND BACON ROLLS

Here's a menu suggestion specially tailored to graduation parties, showers for the bride-to-be, trousseau tea and bon voyage parties. It's something to highlight the gaiety of the occasion and something that isn't likely to be served to the same group at a similar event within the next few days. This recipe makes the most of one of the top teams among flavor-giving foods . . . cheese and bacon . . . which combine in this recipe for yeast-raised rolls to give a savory combination that's bound to draw plenty of oh's and ah's from everyone at the party.

This recipe is also made with mashed potato which adds an interesting texture, and it calls for ripe olives to spark the flavor of the cheese and bacon. For the hostess planning a late supper menu we suggest these rolls be accompanied by devilled eggs or seafood salad, either of which gives a wonderful flavor blend. Apart from showers and late evening entertaining, these rolls would add new interest to breakfast . . . or any meal of the day.

Cheese and Bacon Rolls

(Yield — 3 dozen rolls)

1 Cup mashed potato, 1½ cups lightly-packed shredded old Canadian Cheddar cheese, 8 strips bacon, 1 cup milk, ¼ cup potato water, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons bacon dripping, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons graulated sugar, 2 envelopes active dry yeast, 5½ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, ¼ cup chopped ripe olives.

Prepare mashed potato (saving potato water); shred the cheese. Fry bacon strips until crisp, drain and crumble into small chips (save bacon dripping).

Scald milk and ¼ cup potato water; stir in shortening, mashed potato, cheese, salt and bacon dripping. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Add milk mixture to yeast. Stir in 2 cups of the flour; beat well. Cover with a damp tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 35 minutes.

Stir down batter; add bacon chips and olives. Mix in remaining 3½ cups flour. Turn out dough on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 50 minutes.

Punch down dough. Turn out on a lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 3 equal portions. Shape each portion into a roll 12 inches long; cut each roll into 12 equal pieces and shape into smooth balls. Place in greased muffin cups or well apart on greased cookie sheets. Grease tops. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 30 minutes. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) 15 to 18 minutes.

Diet is best preventive for tooth decay

The best preventive for tooth decay is the development of teeth with a "high resistance" to decay, according to a report from the American Medical Association Council on Foods and Nutrition.

A good diet during the period when teeth are forming will help develop caries-resistant teeth, Jas. H. Shaw, Ph.D., Harvard School of Dental Medicine, Boston, said in a special report for the council.

The child's diet during the formation period should consist of a "generous selection of foods from all the basic food categories." They should be carefully cooked to preserve the original nutrient values.

An ample supply of vitamin D (obtained mainly from vitamin D fortified milk and sunshine) should be provided daily, Shaw said.

A highly desirable factor in overall diet planning for the development of caries-resistance is the growing availability of fluoridated water supplies. Small amounts of fluorine help prevent tooth decay.

After the teeth are fully formed and have erupted into the mouth, the same attention must be paid to the diet. In addition, the eating of sticky high-carbohydrate foods that adhere to the teeth should be restricted.

He noted that experimental studies in animals have shown that tooth decay does not occur unless food containing a readily soluable form of carbohydrate is present in the mouth. It is not a matter of the total amount of carbohydrate eaten by the individual.

"Of infinitely greater importance" are the form of carbohydrate and the circumstances that lead to its retention in the mouth, he said. This is in contrast to the common feeling that all carbohydrates are harmful and should be eliminated as completely as possible.

Shaw recommended that snacks and desserts containing large amounts of carbohydrate that sticks to the teeth be replaced with fresh fruits, vegetables, fruit juices or milk.

While a restriction of carbohydrates will help reduce tooth decay, the "greatest hope . . . lies in the development of teeth with a high resistance to tooth decay. This goal is no longer based on wishful thinking, as it appeared to be as recently as two decades ago."

Shaw concluded that his nutritional recommendations are not "uniquely designed to produce optimal dental health," but they are recommendations that will result in an over-all good nutritional state for the individual.

Here is a chemise designed for the slim figure. The fabric is printed crepe on a bright yellow ground. The waistline is high in front where it is marked by a centre bow. Two side panels slim down to about mid-thigh and then are eased to form an overskirt. Such details give interest and individuality.

Miss Hikmet Ishmen of Turkey, a post-graduate student at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont., has joined the ranks of non-smokers but it has nothing to do with the statements about incidence of lung cancer.

Miss Ishmen says that whole fields of tomatoes could be contaminated by a tobacco smoker, because one of the viruses which cause mosaic disease in tobacco caused streak disease in tomatoes.

And the virus can be transmitted by a person who has handled tobacco in any form — it is not necessary for the person working with tomatoes to be smoking at the time, she says.

Miss Ishmen is in charge of tomato streak disease investigations at the O.A.C., under supervision of Dr. B. H. MacNeill.

Dog Has Its Day

A dogsled carried Mr. and Mrs. Fred Liversey of Fort George, Que., on their honeymoon after their marriage at St. Phillip's Anglican Indian Mission.

The bride, the former Miss Lavine Flockeman, Hamilton, is supervisor of the mission and her bridegroom, from Kingsville, Ont., is assistant engineer.

Their mission is reached by a 250-mile plane flight from Moosonee, followed by a two-mile trip. That was where the dog-sled came in, taking them to the end of the island where a two-room cottage known as "Honeymoon Lodge" has been built.

Orange Flavor

That old tummy-filling standby, bread, can become a dish on its own with a few minor changes in recipe. Currant orange bread is a useful item to add to the lunch box or picnic basket.

Three cups of flour; three teaspoons of baking powder; salt; ½ cup brown sugar; two teaspoons grated orange rind; 1½ cups currants; beaten egg; cup of milk and four tablespoons of melted shortening.

Combine the dry ingredients, including the orange rind, then add the mixed egg, milk and shortening. Bake in a greased loaf pan in a moderate oven for an hour.

The result is a cake-loaf of smooth orange flavor.

THE SNACK EVERYONE LOVES

JOLSON NOTES

By Irvin R. Warwick

Ethel Waters' impressive appearance on TV's "Tabloid" earlier this month brought to mind the following excerpt from her autobiography, "His Eye Is on the Sparrow":

When we played "Rhapsody in Black" in Chicago, Al Jolson was down the street from us in "Wonder Bar", and Ben Bernie gave a night for him at the Sherman Hotel. Fred and Adele Astaire and other great stars from shows playing all around Chicago appeared as representatives of their various companies. I was sent there to represent "Rhapsody in Black". And it was like an Oscar night, with an orchestra playing your music as you arrived to the heart-warming reception. All these terrific people went on. Even Jolie himself went on, before anyone thought of calling on Ethel Waters.

Jolie was never a slacker. Until he died, and for good reason, they called him "the world's greatest entertainer". From the day he first stepped on a stage Jolie always sang as though he expected the next note to be his last "wah wah" or "bebee mine" or "I loav you, honey, I loav, loav you" or "Californyah, heah I come, Golden Gate".

On his Chicago night Jolie sang everything he knew, played everything from shoemaker to baker, with his heart and his lungs bursting. He worked on the stage for an hour and a half, worked in a sweat until exhausted. And he wasn't the only one, because Jolie's singing is all uppercuts, and if anyone ever told him to restrain himself he gave them the deaf ear.

Al Jolson sat down, after having stunned and amused and mesmerized his audience for that solid hour and a half. Ben Bernie — whom I always loved, and he was the sweetest natured of all entertainers — got up and said:

"But the evening would be hardly complete if our girl, Ethel Waters, didn't at least rise and smile."

Ben was trying to give me an easy out. Because nobody was ever expected to follow Jolie. The folks were supposed to stagger to their feet and go home. That's why acrobats were invented, to go on the stage and throw each other around after stars like Al Jolson were finished and the audience is starting for the doors marked "Exit! Walk, Don't Run, in Case of Fire!"

But I was never one to duck a challenge, and I went on and sang seven songs. And Ben gave ME a night only two weeks later, at that same Sherman Hotel. There was never anyone tougher to follow than Jolie or Will Rogers. And if you don't believe me, ask any acrobat.

Shortage of qualified teachers perennial problem in education

Continuing a series of short articles designed to create public awareness and interest in the important educational work being carried on by the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations.

Did you know that ten per cent of the teachers in the province of Quebec have had no formal training? Were you aware that each year 500 teachers are required to fill vacancies and that provincial institutions are only making available from 300 to 350 qualified teachers yearly?

These statistics are startling but according to Alex R. Hasley, chairman of the Federation of Quebec Home and School's teacher recruitment committee, they serve to illustrate the teacher shortage in the province. The next leading question is, "Are there any solutions to these teacher problems and if so what are they?"

Mr. Hasley points out that education leaders in the province have found two ways in which the shortage of teachers can be alleviated, with the primary method being the recruitment of qualified teachers from other areas of Canada and from the United Kingdom. Even now a team of education officers are in England and Scotland recruiting teachers for next year. The other alternative in filling teacher vacancies is the return of married women to the teaching profession and Mr. Hasley reports that almost 50 per cent of all licensed teachers are married women.

In fulfilling their purpose the teacher recruitment committee has a two-fold objective: (a) to inform home and school groups in general of the seriousness of the teacher recruitment situation and (b) to present the teaching career to to senior grade high school pupils in the province.

Fellowship to teacher at Granby High School

Cornell University has awarded a Shell merit fellowship to John David Savage, Physics teacher at Granby High School. The award is one of 10 given this year to Canadian teachers who have shown exceptional merit in their fields and who have demonstrated above-average qualities of leadership.

The Fellowships provide special leadership training at summer seminars at Cornell, N.Y., and Stanford, Calif., through a program sponsored by Shell Oil Limited. Under the Fellowship terms, the teacher receives travel allowance, all tuition fees and living expenses on campus, and $500 in cash to help offset the loss of potential summer earnings.

After completing High School at Grand'Mere, Que., John David Savage earned his B.A. degree in Mathematics and Physics at Bishop's. He served overseas with the R.C.A.F. during the war, and in 1947 received his High School diploma from McGill. He has been a director of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, and is presently vice-principal of Granby High School, where he has been teaching for the past 10 years.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

You can ease the burden on your budget by making sure your car isn't guilty of "gasoline guzzling." If your automobile eats up more gas than it should, the fault may be yours, and not the car's.

Here are some proven and practical hints to help you save gasoline:

1. Don't race the motor. Stepping on the accelerator unnecessarily while the motor is "idling" and gears are in neutral forces more gasoline to the engine than necessary.
2. If your car is equipped with "over-drive", use it when you're in the country on a high gear highway. This permits reduced engine speed and greater mileage per gallon.
3. Drive at a calm, even speed. Excessive speed, by spurts and jerks, burns up more gasoline. You'll get more mileage out of a gallon of gas at moderate speeds than you will as miles per hour mount.
4. Turn off the motor when your car is parked at the curb. An "idling" motor uses a cup of gasoline in 10 minutes.
5. Keep your tires firm and round. Soft tires overwork the engine.
6. Remember that driving in low gear and excessive use of the choke burn up gasoline.
7. An incorrectly-adjusted carburetor is a gasoline glutton. Have a first-rate mechanic check and adjust your carburetor, when necessary.
8. Sluggish spark plugs, dirty carburetor, leaky fuel line and a slipping clutch all waste precious gasoline.

so drab and dank;
Still, we mustn't neglect to always thank
Him — tho' the morn dawns mournful.

Secure in His wisdom — safe under His wing.
Our Saviour loves sunshine, His creatures do too;
So He's hardly neglecting it's vital to you!
Grant sun needs rain and rain needs sun —

Canadiana in Europe

Hard on the heels of the circulation of the first three volumes, and with another volume about to come off the presses, Encyclopedia Canadiana is forging ahead with its plans to tell the world about Canada. Although research work on the Encyclopedia has been going on for over five years, it was early last year that the Canadiana Company Limited was formed to distribute the reference work. A subsidiary of the Grolier Society of Canada Limited, Canadiana has been building up its sales force this side of the Atlantic, but now is ready to expand its operations to Europe.

Realizing the need for an authoritative reference in the overseas fields of education and business, the Company has appointed a European representative, with headquarters in London, England. Operating from Stanhope House, in stately old South Kensington, amidst museums and colleges, Morris Berenson will seek the ear of educators, businessmen and diplomats with his story of a Canadian triumph in printing and publishing, scoring a "first" in the presentation of an encyclopedia devoted to one country.

Berenson commenced his European campaign in April, introducing Canadiana to libraries, universities, colleges, schools, businesses, exporters, and any other group or individual likely to benefit from a greater knowledge of Canada. With France, Germany, Holland, Italy all having an exporting drive on in Canada, it seems logical that Europe should now come under the scrutiny of the North American reference book publishers, as a potential market.

With the recent Canadian Trade Mission to the United Kingdom now completed, it is appropriate that Canadians should look for business that works both ways. Canadiana is working on the principle that one can help Britain by selling her an encyclopedia about the country to which she intends to sell. With the U.K. push for Canadian trade, it would appear that Britons may now start to "curl up with a good book," to improve their trade relations with Canada. Berenson will see to it that they get the books they need.

Increasing demand for Scriptures

"In 1945 the British & Foreign Bible Society circulated 5,800,000 copies of Scripture. In 1950 the annual circulation had gone up to 6,400,000. In 1957, we circulated almost 10,000,000 copies of Scripture;" so stated the Rev. Dr. W. J. Platt recently while addressing a meeting in Hamilton, Ont.

The Bible Society supplies Scriptures for the mission fields of the world at no cost to the Mission Societies. Of Scriptures requested in 1958, the Bible Society will be obligated to retard production orders by over $30,000 despite the urgent demand for these editions.

Honor conferred on past-president of Federated W. Inst.

Mrs. J. W. Adams, immediate past-president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Law from the University of Saskatchewan, at the convocation held recently. She also delivered the convocation address.

Mrs. Adams states that this is a great honor to the rural women of Canada, but Institute members everywhere know that it is also an individual honor to her, as one who has made an invaluable contribution to rural life, not only in her own province of Saskatchewan, but across Canada.

Women's Institutes in Quebec join with other provinces in congratulating Mrs. Adams on this occasion.

Mrs. Adams has just returned from a trip to London, where she attended an executive committee meeting of the Associated Country Women of the World. She is Area vice-president for Canada and a member of the ACWW resolutions committee.

A government-operated diagnosis centre planned for Montreal

Quebec (CP) — A former hospital for children in Montreal will be made into a modern government-operated diagnosis centre, Premier Duplessis told the press last week.

The centre will be set up in the former St. Justine's Hospital, which was bought by the Provincial Government after the hospital moved to modern quarters last year. It will be the first in a series which have been approved by the Legislature and towards which $12,000,000 has been voted.

Services of the centre are to be available to the public free or at low cost. Experience gained from operation of this first centre will serve as a guide in establishment of others.

Mr. Duplessis said an important point is that it will place hospital laboratory and test facilities at the disposal of family doctors and general practitioners — few of whom have access to hospitals.

Garden-Graph

BULBS THAT BLOOM ALL SUMMER

If willing to go to a little trouble, one can have beautiful bulbous plants which, while only half-hardy, are desirable in the garden since they bloom all summer. In many areas the bulbs must be planted in the early spring, taken up in autumn and stored over winter.

The blooms of two of these half-hardy bulbs — Montbretia and Tigridia—are shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

The Montbretias have a color range which includes rich shades of orange, apricot, chrome yellow and scarlet.

Tigridias, or Tiger Flowers, may be had in scarlet, spotted with crimson or in a vivid red with orange-yellow bowls marked with brownish red spots.

Montbretias can be planted now. They prefer a light, well-drained soil to which decayed cow manure has been added. They want a sunny location. Plant the bulbs about four inches deep and six inches apart. Mulch the plants well with leaves, peat or manure. They grow 24 to 48 inches high.

Tigridia bulbs can also be planted now. The flowers often have a six-inch spread, although they last for only one day. However, as long as the growing season lasts, new flowers are produced.

The bulbs should be planted three inches deep and spaced four to six inches apart. They grow best in light, rich loam.

May spur revival of sheep breeding

Famous Scottish Half-bred Ewe (Border Leicester x Cheviot), with twin lambs sired by a Down ram. . . The Scottish Half-bred is the most prolific ewe yet developed and the backbone of the British commercial sheep industry. This type of ewe is being developed in Canada from similar crosses and could spearhead a real revival in Canadian commercial sheep flocks. Crossbreeding for multiple births is a direct expression of hybrid vigor.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Salt On The Farm

For purposes of this column the primary use of salt on the farm is salt for the livestock. Mixed in the rations and fed free choice salt serves to assure efficient production of meat, milk, wool and work.

Adequate salt, or its two elements, sodium and chlorine, are vital to the health, growth and reproduction of all classes of livestock. Indeed, some animals will die if denied supplemental salt for lengthy periods. This was dramatically demonstrated in research with dairy cattle at Cornell University within the last few years.

Dr. Bohstedt

Countless research projects have shown that the various classes of livestock suffer retarded growth, poor reproduction and losses from generally poor health when denied salt in their rations. For instance, a study at Purdue University showed that salt-fed pigs gained two-and-a-half times as fast as pigs fed identical rations but denied salt.

Besides its vital role in animal nutrition salt serves many purposes in livestock management and general farm use.

Salt becomes a labor saver on rangelands where, mixed with protein supplement, it controls the daily supplement intake to the desired levels for self-fed cattle and sheep. The feed may be put out once a week or even less often, in contrast with daily feeding required when salt is not used as a "regulator."

Since livestock will consume a remarkably constant amount of salt each day and then retire from the salt or salt feed—this makes salt-regulated self feeding practical—it is also used as a carrier of medicines, minerals and other animal needs.

Salt plays a part in conservation too. Placement of the salt and mineral boxes is often used as a conservation measure to aid in controlling the grazing pressures.

As a condiment, salt is used to increase the consumption of rather unpalatable feeds, often permitting the use of feeds which would otherwise be wasted.

In some areas salt is used in soil amendment, principally East of the Mississippi. Experiments at the University of Wisconsin showed that sodium in the soil produces a marked increase in the yield and quality of many crops. Common stock salt was used as the sodium source in experiments with celery, barley, wheat and oats, as well as many other crops. The amount of salt (200 to 800 pounds per acre) depends on soil conditions and other plant foods to be applied.

Recently, salt has been reported an aid to fish growth in farm ponds. Some South Carolina farmers having trouble despite recommended pond fertilization practices reported increased fish growth with the "add sodium" remedy suggested by Clemson authorities. The farmers provided added sodium in the form of mineralized livestock salt blocks at the rate of one 50-pound block of salt per acre of pond surface, applied every three or four months.

These are just a few of the many uses of salt on the farm.

Question: Is there any feed value in thistles?

Answer: Yes, there is considerable feed value in thistles, as there is in a good many other weeds provided they are harvested or fed at a relatively young stage of growth. Weeds, at times, do not differ greatly in their composition from ordinary forage crops such as the grasses. About the best way of making use of weeds is to ensile them, and they are regularly ensiled right along with a corn or hay crop.

To visit Lachute Spring Fair '58

The Hon. D. Harkness, Federal Minister of Agriculture, who has signified his intention to visit the Lachute Spring Fair on Saturday, June 14.

Crop report on seeding activities

Ottawa (CP) — The Bureau of Statistics last week issued the first of its 1958 telegraphic crop reports. Based on data telegraphed from field correspondents May 7, it said seeding was becoming general throughout the prairies after cold weather and late-April blizzards had temporarily held up field work.

Before the cold and stormy weather, seeding was general in the southern regions where up to 50 per cent of the wheat had been seeded in all three provinces. By May 7, seeding had started in northern Manitoba and southern Saskatchewan. Little had been done in central and northern Alberta.

Moisture was satisfactory for seeding but good rains would be needed to promote growth.

In the Maritimes, the season was earlier this year and some early seeding had been done. Nova Scotia had a considerable area of potatoes planted for early market. Grass growth was good. Cool weather had affected both Ontario and Quebec.

Dwarf fruit trees for home garden

Ottawa — Dwarf fruit trees can be restricted to a six to eight foot height and are suitable for the home garden. They will eventually require a circular area of about ten feet. According to Blair and Spangelo of the Central Experimental Farm, a well grown six-year-old McIntosh tree on Malling IX roots should produce a half bushel of apples, but, they say much will depend on good pruning, fertilizing and spraying. Only varieties recommended for your district, should be selected.

The old method of dwarfing fruit trees is drastic pruning. Horticultural research has provided the modern gardeners with trees that remain dwarfed and this is accomplished by the use of dwarfing rootstocks.

The Malling IX rootstock is the most suitable for apples. Although this rootstock is sometimes injured by severe winter conditions it is recommended in all districts where apples are commonly grown.

The Angers quince rootstock is suitable for pears. This rootstock is not as hardy as the Malling IX apple stock and therefore can be recommended only in those districts where commercial pear varieties are grown.

Plums can be dwarfed by propagating certain varieties on Prunus besseyi. This rootstock and Prunus tomentosa, are suitable for dwarfing peaches. The graft union should be placed above the soil level at planting time. Trees will not remain dwarfed if this is not done. It is well to remember that dwarf trees are shallow rooted and require staking. Trees should be tied to angle iron, strong wooden posts, or a wire trellis.

Much more detailed pruning is necessary for a dwarf tree than for a standard tree. The top third of the tree should be removed at planting time so that lateral branches will develop. Thereafter annual pruning should be carried out in early spring. Develop the tree with six main lateral branches, with the first one no farther than twelve inches from the ground.

Dwarf fruit trees will require an annual application of fertilizer. A complete fertilizer fairly high in nitrogen such as a 10-5-10 should be applied in the spring when the young leaves first appear. The amount to apply will depend on soil fertility but a general recommendation is one pound for each inch of trunk diameter.

Dwarf trees are easily protected from troublesome insects and diseases by the use of a hand sprayer. Spray materials are readily available.

Quebec Forum and Farmers' Association annual meet at Macdonald, May 31st

Dr. H. H. Hannam will speak at the annual meeting of Quebec Farm Radio Forum and Quebec Farmers' Association, to be held at Macdonald College on Saturday, May 31. Dr. Hannam, long associated with organized agriculture, is president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and a past-president of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers.

Another feature of the meeting will be a display by the Coopérative Fédérée of farm products now being processed by co-operatives in this province. Quebec farm co-operatives now prepare canned fruits and vegetables, dairy products, and a variety of meats.

The meeting is open to all Farm Forum members and friends. Mrs. Carl Anderson, Huntingdon, president of Quebec Farm Radio Forum, will chair the first part of the meeting, and Keith Greig, president of the Quebec Farmers' Association, will preside over the last part of the meeting.

To show U.S. Explorer prototype, at coming Montreal Trade Fair

Montreal — A prototype of the United States' newest earth satellite, Explorer III, will be exhibited for the first time outside the United States later this month. The Special Projects Branch of the U.S. Army revealed that it will display this unit at the 2nd Montreal International Trade Fair taking place at the Show Mart, May 30-June 8.

Explorer III is the closest to the earth of any satellite orbited to date. It has a tremendous sweep from 117 to 1,740 miles above earth.

The display will be brought to Montreal by military escort and will be manned during the Fair by a crew of U.S. Army technicians. The display consists of the satellite itself, animated sections, cutout diagrams and other pertinent data.

The Explorer III will be one of more than 200 exhibits at the Fair in which 16 countries are participating.

Plants to choose for a low hedge

Ottawa — For a low, decorative hedge the species that naturally does not grow to a great height should be chosen, rather than one that can be kept as a low hedge only by systematic and regular pruning. John Walker, Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head, Sask., says the informal, low hedge is in keeping with modern trends in home styles where height is minimized. On the other hand, a low hedge cannot be counted on to be an effective windbreak or a screen to provide privacy in the home surroundings.

One important reason why hedge plants should be permitted to grow and develop without pruning is to permit them to display their natural beauty to the utmost throughout the year, in blossoms, fruits, foliage and bark. A desirable nutritive balance between crown and root becomes established, and the natural processes of flowering and bearing seeds can go on without interruption.

Listed below, and described very briefly, are a number of species which make desirable dwarf hedges:

Japanese Barberry — drooping clusters of blossoms and red fruits, fine foliage attractive in the fall.

Pygmy Caragana — tolerant to drought, spiny, golden yellow blooms, small leaves.

Russian Peashrub (Caragana) X "Globe" — non-flowering, compact in habit, attractive foliage.

Dwarf Winged Euonymus — leaves rosy scarlet in early fall, fruits brightly colored, broadly winged branches conspicuous in winter.

Bush Cinquefoil — tolerant to drought, bright yellow flowers, long season of bloom.

Russian Almond — tolerant to drought, flowers deep pink in bud, early flowering, spreads by root suckers.

Oriental Spirea — flowers cream-white, very early flowering, hardy, plant in sun or partial shade.

Spirea X "Density" — compact in habit, white blooms, medium early flowering.

For a partially shaded location two dwarf evergreens might be considered. Common Juniper and Globosa selection of Eastern Arborvitae.

Young plants or small divisions are recommended in the original planting for a low hedge. The plants should be severely pruned at planting time to cause branching near ground level; not the evergreens, however. Later, dead or "straying" branches should be nipped back individually. Occasionally also it may be necessary to cut off near ground level the older stems that become weak and unhealthy. By pruning in the manner indicated, an attractive low hedge can be maintained with little effort!

IS YOUR WIRING OVERLOADED?

Suppose you own a half-ton truck. As long as the load does not exceed a half-ton you expect it to give good service and operate satisfactorily at normal speeds.

If you overload it with one or two tons, you don't expect it to operate in the same manner as it would while the load is no more than the truck was designed to carry. Nor would you expect a truck which was several years old to carry an excessive load.

People who would not overload a truck or car do not seem to realize that the electric wiring in their homes can also be overloaded. Just check up on the number of appliances you have added in your home in the last twenty years. What have you done to provide for the extra "load" these appliances add to your electric wiring?

The first step to take to bring your wiring up to date is to talk your wiring problems over with your electrician.

2 Contenders for Liberal leadership heard by Convention delegates here

Cordially received by Party enthusiasts at Lachute and St. Andrews

Two candidates for the Opposition leadership in Quebec visited this constituency last week-end in a pre-Convention campaign for support. The Liberal party Convention for the leadership appointment is on this week at Quebec, and delegates or substitutes will be present from the various divisions of the Argenteuil electoral constituency.

The Hon. Jean Lesage was received here at Lachute Golf Club chalet last Friday evening, and Mr. Paul Gérin-Lajoie was the guest of the Liberal Association at the Yacht Club quarters in St. Andrews Sunday evening.

The Hon. Mr. Lesage, former minister in the St. Laurent cabinet and present M.P. for Montmagny - L'Islet, was introduced by the Hon. Georges-E. Dansereau, of Grenville, and thanked by Mr. Philippe Valois, ex-M.P. for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes.

Mr. Gérin-Lajoie, at the gathering in St. Andrews, was also introduced by the Hon. G.-E. Dansereau, and Mr. Antoine Paré thanked the visitor following his address.

Both the visitors were heard by attentive audiences, and voiced their one ambition to rid the province of the Union Nationale regime. They replied to many questions posed by their listeners on aspects of policy and administration.

Mr. Lesage, talking informally to the gathering, touched upon his experience both in federal and provincial affairs. "I am ready to put that experience to use, towards freeing the school commissions, the municipal councils, the universities and all the population of Quebec", he said. "Most of the electorate of Lachute and elsewhere dare not express their true ideas on the Union Nationale regime, for fear of the suspicion spread by the government on all sides." The Hon. Mr. Lesage was accompanied on his visit here by Mr. Alcide Courcy, M.P.P. for Abitibi West.

Mr. Gérin-Lajoie avowed it was his aim to abolish patronage and instill a sense of security in school affairs, municipal affairs and works administration in the province. "Patronage directs the electoral funds, controls contracts and government grants," he said, in effect. The Liberal party, he declared, could beat the U.N. electoral machine if it could command the public confidence and introduce a sound platform of policy.

"What I offer this province is not my university degrees and qualifications, but my determination to defeat our adversaries — and to restore to the Liberal party its former prestige and public confidence," he concluded.

Woodwork and teen-age fashions in annual High School exhibit

The annual Lachute High School fashion show, Industrial Arts and Household Science displays were presented last Friday afternoon and evening in the High School.

The fashion show, "Fashions by the Yard", under the direction of Mrs. Margaret I. Clarke, Household Science teacher, was presented at 2.15 and 7 p.m., the girls of Grades 6 to 11 modelling the clothes they had made in their Household Science classes.

The presentation began with the Grade 6 girls modelling their aprons in blue and white broadcloth, the school colors. The girls had to master the use of the sewing machine and simple hand stitches in order to make these aprons. They embroidered their initials on the corner for easy identification.

Next, Grade 7 girls modelled their cotton skirts, in gathered or pleated styles, suitable for school or casual wear in a variety of prints and colors. Some of the girls modelled cotton jumpers, dresses and wool skirts.

The Grade 8 girls modelled a variety of dresses in various types of cotton materials. Some of these were in prints and some had contrasting buttons, collars, cuffs and bows. A few were worn with contrasting or matching jackets, some in the fitted sheath style and some in the new chemise style. Also modelled by these girls were cool, casual shortie pyjamas.

The Grade 9 girls modelled wool and corduroy jumpers in smart styles. Also some girls modelled cotton skirts and dresses.

Modelled by Grade 10 girls were jumpers, skirts and dresses suitable for many occasions and in d.e.-ent style.

To bring the fashion show to a close the Grade 11 girls modelled a corduroy duster, a two-skirted suit and a chemise dress.

The girls in the high school grades made their creations from material such as cotton, wool tweeds, ginghams, taffeta, corduroy and rayon tweed.

The commentator was Grace Donaldson, while Jean Taylor supplied the music. Miss I. McOuat, Roslyn Croucher and Joan Girling were among those helping the girls with make-up and dressing.

The carpet samples were kindly loaned by Lachute Flooring Reg'd. The theme "Fashions by the Yard" was carried through by the bolts of material used in decorating, which were loaned by Lachute Yard Goods.

At the close of the fashion show the parents were invited to visit the Household Science display of sewing, stencilling, posters, books and pamphlets, and from there on to the Industrial Arts display where one of the highlights was an office desk made by Bob Armstrong and an upholstered chair by Art Gauley. While the fashion show was being presented by the girls, the Grade 11 boys gave a lathe demonstration — Spindle turning by Bob Armstrong and Face Plate turning by Art Gauley.

An outstanding piece of furniture was a Hollywood headboard in a blond finish, made by Reggie Stansfield, which proved to be of great interest, and a gun rack by Robert Bedard.

Those who made coffee tables were Ronald Cairns, Claude Bertrand, Bobby Hay, Wayne McRae, Tom Dwyer, Robert Silverson, Wayne McDonald and Reggie Beers. Boys who did very well at making step-end tables were Bryant Graves, Rodger Titman, Wendell Hyde, Keith McDonald and Wayne McRae while Bernard Brown and Lloyd Elder made very attractive end tables.

Many built lamps, which were of very good workmanship, including — Bryant Graves, Robin Fraser, Andy Graham, Ian Black, Claude Bertrand, Henry Hodge, Cameron Rodger, Carl McCrae, Terry Scott, David Bradley, Edward Nicoll, Robert Nicoll, Wah Hing Fung, Wayne Neill, George Silverson and Alexander Bridge.

Very beautifully styled bookcases were made by Brent Oswald, Cameron Rodger, Lindsay Green, Robert Nicoll, George Rodger and Del MacTavish, while Donnie Peters, Wilson McDonald and Wah Hing Fung made very attractive bookends, and small chests were made by Walter Karch, David Black and Eric Cheslock.

Very well made record cabinets were produced by David Heggie, Ralph Bedard and Douglas MacKenzie. Nut bowls were turned by George Silverson, Stephen Pride, Henry Hodge and Jimmie Ibberson. There was also one upholstered stool made by Wayne McRae, and two smoking stands by Art Gauley and Keith Rogers, while a cheese board and knife set was made by Alexander Bridge.

Among the smaller projects were birdhouses, toolboxes, shelves, sewing kits, trays, window-sticks, hammer handles, teapot holders, shoeshine boxes, model cars, wall plaques, knife holders and magazine racks.

Noted football great is speaker at stag dinner for young athletes

"A ten dollar donation well spent" was the general comment heard leaving the High School gymnasium here Monday evening, following a stag dinner sponsored by the L.H.S. Graduates' Athletic Association, in an effort to raise funds to send three local athletes to the Dominion Gymnastics Championship meet in Vancouver this July.

Association President Dick MacLean welcomed the 90-odd citizens in attendance, thanking them for their support. "Little did we realize there were so many sports-minded citizens who would turn out to support this event," he said. He paid tribute to Coach Arne Petersen, for time spent on the gymnastics team in particular, and his accomplishments at L.H.S. in general, and introduced the three gymnasts whom it is hoped to to send to Vancouver with Mr. Petersen.

In presenting Reg Stansfield, Garry Cruise and Ronnie Cairns, President MacLean gave a run-down of their accomplishments during the past several seasons, and offered these accomplishments as testimony that the boys deserve the support of all in an effort to make the trip possible.

Dave Campbell, well-known sportsman and a graduate of the same local school, was called upon to introduce Tex Coulter, former star with the Montreal Alouettes, who addressed the gathering — his career in football forming the basis of an informal talk. The 6'4", 290-pound star was thanked by Robt. Cairns for his informative talk.

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham paid tribute to coach Petersen and his work with the athletes, and thanked all who had supported the dinner.

Following the dinner, Association president Dick MacLean reported that donations were still required in order to send the four-man team to the Vancouver meet. While no definite returns are available for publication, the executive estimate they are still short of the $1,200 needed for this project, and indicate that any further donations will be gratefully received.

A film on the East-West Shrine Game was screened, to the enjoyment of all present, after which the three gymnasts gave an excellent display of routines on the various bars, rings and horses, with a commentary by Coach Petersen.

Seated at the head-table were Mayor Léopold Carrière, Wm. "Bill" Wray, Governor of the Big 4 Football League, Dave Campbell, Tex Coulter, Dick MacLean, Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Arne Petersen, Jas. W. McGibbon and Principal Fred Royal.

Operation Peanut sales campaign planned by Rotary

Plans are rapidly becoming finalized for "Operation Peanut", sponsored by the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club during the middle part of June. Peanut sales will get underway in Lachute and Brownsburg Friday and Saturday, June 20 and 21, in the form of a general on-the-street canvass, while door-to-door sales will be held Monday to Wednesday of the following week, June 23, 24 and 25.

Proceeds of the drive, the objective of which has been set at $1,680, are to continue making improvements to the Rotary Community Park — according to Committee Chairman Wes Freeland.

Headquarters are being set up in the Brownsburg Social Club gymnasium and the area planning committee is laying out the various canvassing areas for club members and other helpers.

"Peanut men" costumes are to be supplied by Planter's as an aid to the campaign, which will feature a 15 ounce can of peanuts, $1; two 15 ounce jars of peanut butter, $1; and a three-can nut package, selling for $1.50. The local organization has purchased the merchandise from the company concerned, and makes a small margin of profit on each sale made.

Rotary members are on the look-out for volunteer canvassers, and any persons so interested are requested to contact a member of the organization.

Argenteuil Art Association shows vitality in third annual exhibition

The exhibition staged this week by the Argenteuil Art Association, the third annual venture of its kind by all-member artists, has proved satisfying to the organizers and provided interest for a large number of visitors. The viewers were there in largest number last Saturday, when fine weather favored the afternoon opening in the St. Andrews East Municipal Hall, and the tea which followed, on the island property of Mr. Thos. Fournier nearby.

The purpose of the Association (said the president, Mr. A. G. Talbot, in a brief public address), namely, to encourage interest and active participation in artistic expression, was being fulfilled — as evidenced here by the embryos and newcomers of varying talent, whose works were displayed without discrimination. Be it said, however, that the pictures, mostly in oil-color, struck a high average of merit, an indication of competent tutoring or inborn talent. There were 60 pictures on display. Besides the amateur entries there were a few professional contributions, enhancing the quite-pleasing spectacle in bright, well lighted surroundings. The St. Andrews hall lends itself acceptably to a display of this kind, and the Association directors appreciate the use of this locale for their current and future exhibitions this season.

The show, which is open to the public without charge, continues this week, until Saturday afternoon. (Hours advertised in "Coming Events".)

Mr. Antoine Paré, of St. Andrews, and Mayor Léopold Carrière of Lachute, spoke briefly to declare the exhibition open. Mr. L. T. Porter also took this occasion to invite the Association members to view his collection of works by Canadian artists, on Saturday, June 21 — for which the president, Mr. Talbot, thanked him cordially.

Club affairs at Rotary meeting

The financial report from the recent Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club anniversary dance indicated a profit of $285.94, it was reported at last Thursday's meeting of the Club.

Guest speaker at the dinner meeting was Bengt Léopold, of Hawkesbury, who spoke on his native land, Sweden.

The Vocational Service committee reported a highly successful occasion on Friday afternoon, May 16, at which time students from the graduating classes of Lachute and Brownsburg High Schools were given a first-hand inkling of the business world, spending several hours in various business offices, etc., throughout the community in which members of the Rotary Club work.

It was announced that the guest speaker at tomorrow night's meeting would be Dr. F. Walter Fitz-Gerald, District Governor of the Lions Club, and that on June 5 the cheque for the newly-purchased optical equipment for the CNIB Centre would be turned over to that organization.

Business at Lions Club meet includes election of officers

Nominations were the order of the day at the regular Lions Club meeting last week, and officers to conduct the affairs of the Club next year, 1958-59, were elected as recommended by the committee.

André Lefebvre reported a successful (if exhausting) trip with the Lions' quota of 44 young bus passengers, to the Hammid Morton Circus show sponsored by the Shriners.

Gabriel Downing outlined the Chamber of Commerce trip planned for a visit (last Saturday) to the Seaway workings around Cornwall.

On the recommendation of Horace Lamarche, a promising student at the St. Alexandre School was voted financial assistance to follow a teachers' course at the normal school in Mont Laurier.

A request for assistance to a number of pupils to attend a naturalists' camp at St. Donat this summer, was presented by Phil Tremblay, and ways and means were found for the pupils to co-operate with the Lions Club and raise money towards this venture.

A newcomer, Gerald S. Heath, local manager of Household Finance Corporation, was introduced by R. R. (Dick) Pearson and inducted into the Club by Phil Roy, an ex-president and charter member.

A boost was given to the Lions' newest venture in entertainment — sponsoring the grandstand show at Lachute Fair on Thursday, June 12. Booked as the highlight of this show is the noted hypnotist, "Le Grand Robert". Tickets were distributed for sale, and it was hoped this effort would receive good public support.

President Ernest Snadden chaired this meeting, which was devoted exclusively to current business of the Club. Those elected to office for the ensuing year are:

Secretary, K. W. Clarke.

Misfortune dogs Dollard devotions; again rained out

For the third consecutive year, the Dollard des Ormeaux parade at Carillon was rained out last Sunday. Annual ceremonies at the Dollard monument were cancelled, and the only mark of commemoration was the attendance of a number of participants at 11 a.m. mass in the parish church. Among these were the trumpet band from Le Plateau secondary school, Montreal, and a group of the Catholic Youth Association (AJC), also from Montreal. All afternoon arrangements were cancelled.

Latour puts question on cattle deaths in Thurso area

Ottawa — Agriculture Minister Harkness told the Commons that an investigation by his department indicated that death of cattle in the Thurso area was due to the wrong rabies vaccine being used by a veterinarian in private practice. The minister said that latest reports were that 45 cattle had died and 40 were sick.

900 Vaccinated

Nine hundred cattle and a few horses were vaccinated about two weeks ago but it was not known how many had been inoculated with the dog vaccine.

Asked about reports of cattle sickness last Thursday the minister in his statement to the House said:

"Preliminary reports of the investigation indicate that the private practitioner used vaccine intended and labelled for use in dogs rather than the vaccine designated for use in cattle."

J. O. Latour, Conservative member for Argenteuil-Two Mountains, raised the question of the cattle sickness in the Thurso-Montebello area.

Mr. Harkness said that cattle rabies had been reported in the area and inoculations of cattle had been undertaken.

Animals afterwards showed symptoms of rabies but lab tests by his department indicated this was a reaction to the vaccination and not an attack of rabies. The animals could not transmit the disease.

Outside the House, authorities said that a weaker vaccine is used for cattle than is normally used for dogs. Cattle are susceptible to rabies and dogs and other animals in recent months have been infected in the area.

While their investigation continued, departmental officials could make no guess as to whether the other 40 sick animals would also die, but the closest possible watch was being maintained and efforts to save the animals were being made.

Others to receive decorations

Added to the list of papal and ecclesiastical decorations to be presented June 1, at 8 p.m. in the cathedral at St. Jerome, are four lay Catholics of this community to be honored by Bishop Emilien Frenette, as follows:

Gold Medal, diocesan order of merit — Louis-Joseph Dumais and Bernard L. Gosselin, Lachute.

Silver medal, diocesan order of merit — Roger Gravel, Lachute, and René Viau, St. Andrews East.

Merit awards to three Brownsburg Red Cross faithfuls

Brownsburg — At a special meeting of the Brownsburg Red Cross, held in the Presbyterian hall on May 20, three local ladies, Mrs. M. Gardiner, Mrs. M. Reid and Mrs. John Connelly, were recipients of badges of merit and certificates as reward for years of faithful service in Red Cross work.

Mrs. M. E. Smillie, president of the Branch, welcomed those present and spoke fittingly of the loyalty of the honored guests to the work of the Red Cross.

Presentations of the badges were made by the Rev. J. Armour, the Rev. Father Clement, and Mme Boudrias. The latter represented Red Cross Headquarters in Montreal on this occasion.

The certificates were presented by Mme Omer Legault, Mayor T. P. Hall and Mr. W. C. Morrow.

During the social hour which followed, refreshments were served.

Farmers rally to seed grain crop for injured neighbor

(Our District Correspondent)

Mabel — The usual spirit of country friendliness and helpfulness was evident here Saturday at the home of Mr. Thomas Hooper, who had the misfortune to break his leg when working alone in his woodlot about two months ago. Mr. Hooper has been wearing a cast since that time and has been able to move about on crutches, while his wife and a young man have tended his large herd of cattle.

It is needless to say how great was Mr. Hooper's appreciation when some of his neighbors, with their tractors and other necessary implements, moved in, prepared the soil and sowed his entire grain crop. The eight tractors working there at one time were those of Messrs. John Heatlie, Jr., Murray Stewart, Paul Emile Leblanc, Norman Leblanc, Leslie Tomalty, Nelson Tomalty and Mr. Hooper's, operated by his hired help.

Spring Fair needs support, interest of all community

Two weeks hence, Lachute Spring Fair will be opening for its three-day run — with the Agricultural Society directors optimistic for an upturn in the fortunes (and the gate receipts) of this big annual venture. Towards this objective new blood has been transfused, in the form of Service Club participation in the grandstand entertainment, thus enlisting a wider local assistance and the benefit of new ideas.

As an instance of this trend one notes an innovation to the musical interludes, which have been something of a bugbear to entertainment committees of the past. The Shriners' band, a sure-fire hit, will be here from Montreal for a one-night stand this year. (For other entertainment attractions, the reader's attention is directed to an advertisement on page 10 of this issue.)

Secretary-manager Ken Riley affirms that the livestock entries are definitely at a high record — as intimated last week when the compilation was incomplete. Mr. Riley stresses again the need of increased membership, to ensure the economic stability of the Society. Membership tickets are available from him; these entitle holders to admission to the Fair Grounds during Exhibition days.

There has been a good demand for commercial space, indicating an attractive layout in this sector of the show. The immense strides in agricultural and woods equipment in recent years has drawn the interest of all wide-awake spectators to these evidences of progress. There will doubtless be "lots new" in machinery again this year, not to mention the boats, vehicles, household devices and other displays on the grounds and in the industrial building. In the latter premises will be the customary stands for W.I. and Cercle des Fermières exhibits in cooking, needlecraft and flowers, also the school entries in Industrial Arts.

Altogether, indications point to a good show — and one which deserves the interest, support and attendance of every local family, their friends and visitors too.

Chamber of Commerce members view immense St. Lawrence power project

A bus-load of Chamber of Commerce members, some accompanied by their wives, had the privilege last Saturday of seeing the St. Lawrence power project. Under supervision of the local president, Miville Trickey, some 35 persons, including a considerable number from Ste. Agathe, left at 8.30, arriving at Cornwall for a conducted tour. Prior to this a movie was shown of the several power plants, and how the water was cut off and diverted during the construction of the dams.

Towns have been re-located, houses moved by huge tractors, the inhabitants having breakfast in the morning on the old location and enjoying supper in their same house that evening on the new location. New schools, churches and shopping centres have been built, and as one views the remains, only a sidewalk or bit of pavement, the whole development and change strikes one as fantastic.

The project is, of course, International. Started in 1954 it will take another two years until completed, during which time some 10,000 men will have been employed. Initial power is expected this year and by 1960 the two power-houses will have a combined installed capacity of 1,640,000 kilowatts, to be shared equally by the U.S. and Canada.

Some 6,500 Canadians have been re-located and the land of their former abodes will become the basin of a huge lake.

The water flooding this vast area will be let in gradually, starting July 1, and should take several days for complete coverage. Meanwhile, it is not too late to view what is considered to be one of the greatest projects undertaken anywhere.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

Prime Minister Diefenbaker officially opened the Canadian Legion's 17th Dominion Convention at Edmonton on May 25. The ceremony took place in the Jubilee Auditorium Sunday evening and business sessions began on Monday.

A Legion member of long standing, the Prime Minister first joined the Prince Albert branch. Mr. Diefenbaker is the only Prime Minister with overseas war service.

The Edmonton meeting marks the first time that a national Legion convention has been held in Alberta. Almost 1500 delegates from all parts of Canada were expected to attend the 5-day sessions, and some 250 resolutions awaited them.

The convention features a display of Canadian war art from the National Gallery, Ottawa. Some 41 works by commissioned war artists are on public display at the Jubilee Auditorium. On Monday evening the visiting veterans were entertained at a western style barbecue. At noon on Tuesday there was a parade to the cenotaph with Lieutenant-Governor J. J. Bowlen, LL.D., taking the salute.

• • •

A busy monthly meeting took place here Wednesday evening last, with Comrade President R. O. MacLean in the chair. Reports were heard from various committee chairmen and indications are that many of the Branch activities will carry over into the summer. An appeal was made by Comrade MacLean to all Legion members for assistance with the many activities, particularly those in connection with the Lachute Fair.

The Branch is pleased to announce the appointment of a new General Secretary in the person of Comrade Mrs. Dorothy Graham. Mrs. Graham will take on her duties immediately, replacing Comrade R. Bradford, whose resignation has been duly accepted.

• • •

It is the intention of the Fair committee to locate a Legion booth between the Main Building and the track. This booth will serve as a central meeting point for Legionnaires and a sales centre for raffle tickets. The public are urged to get behind this raffle. Some lucky person will get the equivalent of a free vacation trip and the proceeds will go towards maintaining our Teen-Age program, which currently includes a free dance every Friday evening in the Legion Hall.

• • •

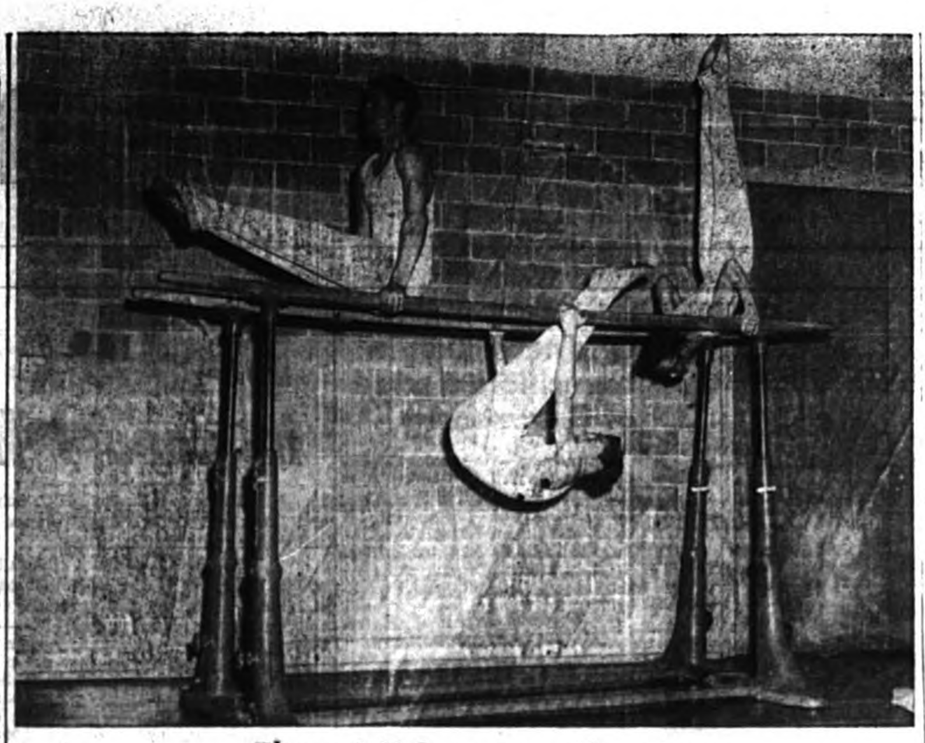

Congratulations to two new members in the persons of A. Belanger and Keith Hickson, who were inducted at the last monthly meeting. Membership now stands at 170.

• • •

A suggestion was brought forward at a recent meeting that the Branch should resume its annual church parade. It is hoped that this will be possible in the near future.

• • •

A Legion news sheet points out the fact that the long arm of the Canadian Legion's Dominion Service Bureau reaches out to assist Canadian ex-servicemen in such places as Pakistan, Guatemala, Australia, the United Kingdom and the United States. Wherever Canadian ex-servicemen may be, it costs only 5c (postage) for Legion assistance.

Three L.H.S. gymnastics stars

The three-man gymnastics team slated to enter the Dominion Championship events at Vancouver — funds permitting. An annual report was read by the president, Mr. Antoine Pare, with a resume of coming events for 1958. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Antoine Pare; vice-president, Leverton York; manager-professional, James Sullivan; captain, Frances Cleverly; chairman of greens committee, James Dunn; secretary, Harold Simpson.

In the evening Gordon Kerr and the "Smooth Tones" of Montreal played for the dancing pleasure of members and their guests.

Harness racing to open at Rigaud Park track

The directors of Rigaud Park announce the opening of their harness racing season on Sunday, June 1 with events planned every Sunday thereafter during the summer.

Horses from Quebec and Ontario will be competing for honors on the occasion, in all four classes presented on the program.

The directors of the Park have spent considerable time and money to provide more comfort for the spectators, and better racing conditions for the horses.

To observers near the track this spring, practice has appeared keen, and, judging by the sporting rivalry that exists among the trainers, an exciting season is anticipated.

Opening event for ladies' section of Golf Club

The opening tea of the Ladies Section of Lachute Golf and Country Club was held May 20 in the colorful new Terrace Room of the club chalet. Mrs. W. M. Cottingham and Mrs. Léopold Carrière poured tea, and Mrs. R. Gravel, president, welcomed all members and wished them a happy golfing season.

Twenty-six lady golfers teed off at 1.30 for a nine-hole "Inch" tournament. Each player was given tape measuring the number of inches corresponding to her handicap — inches to be used in any way she chose. Mrs. R. Richardson was two inches from the hole with one of her putts, and was able to cut these inches off the tape and call the putt in. Mrs. Armand Desrosiers used six inches to move her ball out of the edge of the water on the 2nd and save a stroke.

Winners were as follows — Class A, Mrs. R. Coté; Class B, Mrs. J. P. Martin; Class C, Mrs. Mozart Carrière.

Match Captain Mrs. H. Watson outlined an active golfing schedule and on behalf of C Class Captain, Mrs. R. Stephens, announced that Mr. Louis de Bryne was offering special group lessons for C Class beginning Tuesday, May 27. Mr. de Bryne also gave a brief talk to the ladies on golf etiquette and rules. He said that as soon as holidays start free group lessons will again be given to Junior golfers.

(Those interested are urged to register on the notices provided.)

Social members played bridge in the Tartan Room before tea, and Mrs. R. Quinn was presented with the bridge prize.

On Saturday, May 24, the Entertainment Committee — Mrs. Leonard Bedard, Mrs. Mozart Carrière, Mrs. Louis de Bryne and Mrs. Don Heggie — were again busy arranging a get-together high tea in the Terrace Room for 40 Montreal business girls and week-end players. These golfers played a medal round tournament, and at 5.30 p.m. Mrs. J. Huggan, the Montreal secretary of the Ladies' Section, and Miss Ann David, treasurer, poured tea.

In her welcoming address, Mrs. Gravel said how pleased the local members of the committee were to have this opportunity of meeting the out-of-town members, as so few are able to attend the mid-week event.

Ayersville badminton trophy night

At the closing of the badminton season in Ayersville, a soiree was held recently for the presentation of prizes. Four teams competed for the honors in a well contested round of activities. Above, some of the enthusiasts are seen proudly holding their trophies and awards.

Richelieu plans annual field day and harness racing

Plans for the annual Richelieu Club charity field day at the Exhibition Grounds, Saturday, August 16, are in charge of two active clubmen, Jean-Louis Blais and Eugene Rochon. Big feature of this event, as usual, will be a harness-racing program, and all proceeds go to the fund for benefit of underprivileged children in Greater Lachute.

Experience gained over the past four years since this event was inaugurated, contributes on each occasion to a smoother-running program and ensures the satisfaction and keener interest of all patrons. The actual racing entries are the responsibility of another clubman, Roger Martel, who is lining up some sure-fire competition, with the benefit of attractive prize purses and pari-mutuel betting.

With the collaboration of J. René Laurin, Dow distributor, Maurice "Rocket" Richard, the idol of Quebec hockeydom, will again visit Lachute for this special occasion.

Other entertainment features will include bingo games, with worthwhile prizes; and a washer-dryer, supplied through generous cooperation of J. Roger Lamarche, will be top prize in a drawing — the purchase of a book of tickets entitling the holder to admission to the grounds.

THE A. A. A. ANNUAL EXHIBITION —

Amateur dissertation on Art

A NEW YORK art critic stated some time ago that 50 per cent of artists should be in some other line of business. He was talking of professionals.

We, thinking in terms of amateurs, remark that, of the artists and would-be artists represented at the current County exhibition, probably 98 per cent, no less, are in some other line of business. The minute minority are professionals, but for 98 per cent painting is FUN, in large letters.

If the output of this fraternity is not superquality by professional standards, it should be observed that they are impelled by an ideal strangely lacking in the "moderns" of the professional ranks — the ideal that Art should be eye-appealing (to the modern extremists, a sacrilegious thought!). The local amateurs have found pleasure in self-expression, and their viewers will likewise find pleasure in the finished product. There is a difference whereas the modern finds pleasure in expression, it takes an abnormality to derive pleasure from the viewing!

Our impression of the landscapes, still-lifes and portraits at St. Andrews may best be conveyed by contrasting them with the other type, the soul-shattering paroxysms with which St. Helen's Island is synonymous today — and infecting the more traditional repositories of Art. Here, for instance, is the way Robert Ayre, Montreal critic, described a display of non-objective works which terminated last week at the Beaux Arts. In a recent issue of The Montreal Star he recorded, in part, as follows:

> Only two of these artists appear to have studied with Hofmann, but the Hofmann touch — if touch is not too delicate a word — is on the show. There is more of German expressionism in these explosions than French subtlety.
>
> At first you may feel taken by assault, shaken by the detonation and the crash of color . . . In the black smears of "Coup-de-main" and in "Painting with Red", the artist's energies seem to be dissipated and I would say that "Uplift" would be a better word for another painting than "Upsurge".
>
> On the other hand "Storm Centre" is a solid, physical core of concentrated violence and there is nothing vaporous about "Wild Trumpeter" and "Primordial Fire." Real forces are released here in compositions that carry authority. . . There is a powerful drive in "Structure", a gigantic engine organized for action. . .

That describes an exhibition by the Ontario group of "Painters Eleven" . . . But St. Andrews is very different! The Argenteuil Art Association painters — 40 of them, or more — have expressed themselves in much happier terms, and have experienced pleasure in so doing. We liked this show, the third annual affair of the Association in which we have been personally privileged to lend a hand. The showing continues this week, and we commend it to all interested in the arts, cultures and less materialistic preoccupations of local people — all neighbors and day-by-day associates.

May need forceful persuasion

THERE HAS BEEN a gradual change of opinion regarding the ban on minnows in Argenteuil, and with public opinion slowly moving behind the new program, we feel that it is time for the provincial authorities to show they mean business.

In the event this law should be put into effect throughout the province, it will run into millions of dollars, and the only possible manner to properly enforce it is to put strong teeth in the law. This can only be done by fines that are fines and not jokes.

We do not advocate $1,000 and a year in jail, as in Washington State, unless fines of $100 are ineffective. However, to stop minnow fishing by some persons, the authorities are going to have to hit them where it hurts, and this means the pocketbook.

We hope that when it hurts, it hurts long and hard.

Clarification of an issue

THE WATCHMAN regrets any unfavorable results or conclusions drawn from a recent editorial appearing in this column, and for speaking in generalities of local law enforcement officials while citing a specific incident.

We feel, following a talk with Police and Fire Chief Fernand Trépanier, the incident concerned could have been handled much more efficiently through other channels, especially due to the fact that both persons concerned appear to have no recollection of the incident, it apparently being one of those things that on occasion, happens to all motorists.

In an effort to close the matter and not cause unintentioned trouble or difficulty to anyone, we offer our sincere apologies to all parties concerned for the manner in which the incident was taken-up, and hope we may continue to count on their co-operation in the future as we have had it in the past.

Writing on the wall

CANADIAN National Railways in 1957 operated at a deficit of $29.6 million. In the long run, today, tomorrow or the next day, the taxpayer pays the deficit.

Canadian National Steamships took their business elsewhere, registering their freighters in Trinidad. Labor held up the government-owned company for impractical wage rates. The company (Labor claimed, in effect) should operate at a deficit. The taxpayer would make good — today, tomorrow or the next day.

Observers have been watching developments in this impasse, awaiting the sequel to this drama. The Seafarers' International Union called a strike against the CNS to back up demands for wage increases and other benefits. The company claimed it was unable to meet the demands owing to the pressure of competition from ships of other nations which operated more economically.

Last fall the company tried to beat the strike by changing the ships' registry from Canada to Trinidad. However, British and West Indies crewmen refused to take over the vessels when acquainted with the labor dispute.

Now, logically enough, the company has decided to sell its eight freighters. CNS is going out of business.

If this is not a fitting example to Labor of what will happen if its demands go on increasing — we can think of no more conclusive demonstration of the trend.

Check your car — Check accidents

THE PROVINCE of Quebec Safety League is making an all-out effort to ask motorists to check their cars — their driving — and their accidents. "It should not be necessary to urge any intelligent driver to have his car checked," said the Safety League's president, Charles Desgroseilliers. "His own safety and the safety of everyone he meets in traffic depend on the safe operating condition of his vehicle. Even a small neglect of any item needing attention can lead to a serious accident."

This is an "action" program to create public awareness of the need to have vehicles safety-checked periodically. "The lives of thousands of Canadians depend on the owners to keep their vehicles in a perfectly safe condition. One out of five motor vehicles is in need of immediate attention affecting its safe driving condition. Take time to check around and under your vehicle," said Charles Desgroseilliers.

The best way to prevent a sudden mechical defect is by frequent inspections of the vehicle you are driving. It's up to every driver to accept his responsibility for public safety and to do his part. The Province of Quebec Safety League points out that the success of this whole campaign depends upon the response of each individual driver. Today's inspection is tomorow's protection!

Viewpoints and perspectives

IT WOULD be impossible to estimate the number of people who are alive today only because they were able to replace their dwindling supply of blood with a small part of the blood of some other person, or of several other people. Blood donor clinics must be a success, not once and for all, but again and again.

Russia today has the largest Army, and the largest Air Service in Europe. . . Of the original money loaned to Russia for war purposes by Britain, there is still £1,066,480,000 outstanding, and interest accumulating at the rate of £53-million a year. Which major city was founded as the capital of a temperance colony?

The Temperance Colonization Society, an Ontario organization supporting the principle of temperance, was chartered in 1882 and acquired 100,000 acres of land from the Dominion Government for colonization purposes. That same year John N. Lake led a party west from Toronto to select an administrative centre for the proposed colony. He chose the site of Saskatoon, Sask., and named his capital after the Cree word "Missaskatoomina" for a berry found in profusion in the vicinity. Settlement started in 1883 when a party came out by train and overland trail. The colony failed to preserve its temperance principles but the town developed as a trading centre. When the railway was built across the river, from the original townsite, and the new settlement outstripped the old, the name Saskatoon was apropriated to the village there, while the old temperance site took the Indian name Nutana, meaning "first born". However, in 1906, Nutana was amalgamated with the new Saskatoon village and surrounding settlements to form the large modern city of Saskatoon we know today.

Who haunted the barracks of Sydney, Nova Scotia?

One of the most famous and best attested of Canadian ghost stories tells of an apparition seen by Capt. John Sherbrooke and Lt. George Wynyard in the barracks at Sydney, N.S. at 4 p.m. on October 15, 1785. The two men saw a figure Wynyard recognized as his brother, Lt. John Otto Wynyard, then serving in India. Eight months later, news reached Sydney of the brother's death at a time found to correspond with the appearance of the apparition in the Sydney Barracks.

Even more convincing were the ghostly sounds heard by Chief Factor Roderick Macfarlane of the Hudson's Bay Co. and his companion during the convoy in 1860 of the exhumed corpse of Augustus Peers, from Fort Macpherson in the Mackenzie Delta to Fort Simpson, 800 miles south, for reburial. Warning calls were apparently heard, which had the effect of protecting the corpse from the ravages of dogs and wolves, et cetera.

Which famous explorer was eaten by his friends?

Etienne Brûlé came to Canada with Champlain in 1608. He was exchanged for a Huron, whom Champlain took back to France, and Brûlé spent the winter 1610-11 with the Indians. He adopted Huron ways and stayed with them for the next few years, acting as interpreter for Champlain. He was probably the first white man to reach Georgian Bay and he discovered Lake Superior and perhaps Lake Erie and Michigan. In 1616 he was captured and tortured by the Iroquois. Acting as pilot on the St. Lawrence in 1629 he encountered the English Kirke expedition and helped pilot it to capture Champlain and Quebec. When he returned to the Great Lakes he was murdered and eaten by his former friends, the Hurons, the reason for his death is unknown. However, it was not unknown for some Indians to eat the flesh of a dead hero or victim, believing that in this way they would acquire the wisdom, strength and courage (or whatever characteristic they had admired) of the dead person.

How did the Columbia River get its name?

Robert Gray was an American navigator and fur trader who spent 1788-89 trading on the N.W. coast of America, wintering at Nootka Sound. It was in 1789 that he took command of a ship, the "Columbia" and sailed home to Boston via China, this being the first vessel flying the Stars and Stripes to circle the world. Gray returned to the N.W. to winter in Clayoquot Sound in 1791, and in May 1792 discovered the Columbia River, which was named after his ship. After this momentous discovery he again returned to Boston via China, spending his later years in the merchant service.

Of Many Things

Rewards

Any person who has tried to organize a Rodeo in a country town knows one thing for sure — the prize money must be big if you want to attract top talent. Rewards, incentives, prizes, call them what you will, are important to the success of most ventures.

I thought about this when reading a book called "The Future of the Welfare State", which consists of a series of seven Oxford lectures. Throughout the book, it is pointed out again and again that part of the trouble with Britain's economy has been the whittling away of the incentives which once spurred the people to high ambition.

"So long as we offer to people of responsibility and skill," writes Peter Goldman, "incentives that are laughable by American or Russian standards, and fiscally punish our top productive talents with the heaviest weight of direct taxation imposed anywhere in the world, progress will be slow. The significant growth of our national income is going to depend, as it always has done, largely on the activities and decisions of exceptional things of which they alone are capable; it is part of the very mechanicism of creating the necessities (and the luxuries) of life for the nation as a whole."

Many of us will never get to claim the really big prizes — but those prizes should be there, just the same, to beckon us. We all like to think that there is at least a remote possibility that we may strike it rich. Today, when anyone is fortunate enough to get a windfall of any kind, there seems always to be some catch to it — the government steps in to take a whopping big share.

Canada still offers great opportunities — greater, I think, than Britain. Yet there is a tendency here, too, to grudge the winner his prize. It has become altogether too popular to soak the rich, or to keep anyone from becoming rich.

I was at the Shriner circus last night, and I watched a brave young blonde do the most daring acrobatics high on the tightrope. I hope she was well paid. I am sure she was, and that none in the audience would say that she did not deserve it. Hers was a remarkable talent, and I am quite sure that it would not have been developed to such a remarkable degree if the rewards for her performance were the same as, say, those of the clown who strolled about on the ground in perfect safety.

Let's continue to reward our risk-takers in a handsome way. Otherwise, we'll lose them, and Canadians will all stay safely on the ground — safe and poor.

C.N.I.B. Corner

It is the small, irritating limitations of blindness that are the most exasperating to the sightless person. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind reminds you that you can help a blind man a great deal more by pointing out a spot on his tie, picking up something he has dropped, or reading a letter for him, than by treating him as a tragic figure and showering him with unwanted pity!

Why library books?

John Herbst, B.Eng., M.A., Ph.D.

No one individual can be expected to have been in contact with even a fraction of the facts and ideas known to modern man. These have been accumulated by generations of men, and are available to us because we possess something which sets us apart from animals — language. Language enables us to communicate our experiences and ideas to others to whom these experiences and ideas are new. Furthermore, a written language allows more and more accurate recording and presentation of the multitude of knowledge and ideas that have arisen and are now arising in our culture. One of the problems facing a parent in a small community is how to provide his child with the opportunity of meeting with, and evaluating, this knowledge so necessary to the successful citizen.

How can the parent provide his child with this knowledge? A well-chosen library is the only practical answer. However, we all know that only a few of our parents are financially able to supply their children with a truly adequate selection of books. Another problem arises as the parent is confronted with a seemly unlimited list of children's books. How can he make an intelligent and useful choice from the material available? Unless he is personally familiar with these books, the problem is difficult.

In larger communities public libraries provide youngsters with interesting and informative books on a wide range of subjects. These books are chosen by highly trained and qualified specialists, and they bring many hours of happiness to children to whom those pleasures, under other circumstances, would be denied. Thus the parent can be sure that his child will have the chance to choose from an array of the best kind of reading material.

The school also plays an important part in the reading education of our children. And in a small community it is often the only source of reading material for a great many young people. The community is responsible for the outfitting of its school library. We are the ones who must see to it that our children have the necessary facilities to increase their knowledge and enjoyment of life. We must ask ourselves if we are handicapping our children by denying to them the opportunity of exploring the vast expanse of knowledge and ideas so readily available in a well-balanced library.

In sports meets a century ago

(Encyclopedia Canadiana)

A century ago, whenever militia, firemen, or churches planned a picnic or holiday celebration, they arranged a series of games, for sports played a prominent part in the community programs of Canada's early settlers. The games included hurling the hammer, heaving iron balls, throwing cricket balls, sack races, three-legged races, hurdle races, high jumping, vaulting and the like. Sometimes, as a way of variety, instead of only men contestants, men and horses competed against each other in exciting races of three to five miles. Some of the events, besides being amusing, showed great originality. The Water Can Derby, for example, required that each competitor should dash down the course, balancing a pail of water on his head. When the first three crossed the finish line, their pails were examined, and the runner having the most water left in his bucket was proclaimed the winner.

During the same years, Canada was developing track and field stars who could give outstanding performances in international competition. For example, during the 1870's Hugh Lambe of the Toronto Argonauts won the half-mile and the mile championships. C. C. McIvor, from the Montreal Lacrosse Club, won the 100 yards United States title, and Hanry Pellatt, representing the Toronto Lacrosse Club, also held the American mile championship.

Dr. Ritchie Bell guest speaker at St. Andrews

Very Rev. Dr. C. Ritchie Bell to visit St. Andrews

The Very Rev. Dr. C. Ritchie Bell will be the preacher at the morning service in the Presbyterian Church at St. Andrews East on Sunday, June 1, commemorating the 140th anniversary of the arrival of the first Presbyterian minister, the Rev. Dr. Archibald Henderson, in 1818.

Dr. Bell is a former Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada who, after a successful pastorate in MacVicar Church, Montreal, was called to be professor of Pastoral Theology and Homiletics in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, where he has served with distinction for several years. He is well-known as a popular speaker and fearless preacher of the Gospel, and for some time past he has been heard every Sunday morning on the radio over station CKVL Verdun, on the program "Make Life Worth While."

The Presbyterian Church in St. Andrews East has much of historical interest connected with it, and the present church building is the original one erected in 1819. In the early days of Dr. Henderson's ministry he preached throughout the whole district and founded churches in Lachute and Chatham, etc., and in those days people used to walk from as far away as Dunany to St. Andrews to attend church.

On the occasion of this anniversary, it is hoped that many former members and friends will be able to attend either the morning or evening service.

Misnomer

The City of Three Rivers, Que., is at the junction of only two rivers, the St. Maurice and the St. Lawrence, but the St. Maurice divides itself into three main branches at the point where it empties into the St. Lawrence.

Clergy groups hear topic, gospel of church architecture

(Our District Correspondent)

Cushing W. — The annual joint dinner meeting of the Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association and the Eastern Ontario Ministerial Association, was held recently at the rectory in Grenville. The Argenteuil ministers acted as hosts for the dinner, under the leadership of their president, the Rev. Wilson Bridge of Lachute.

Following the dinner, the Rev. J. Ralph Watson of Cushing, president of the Eastern Ontario group, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. C. James Menendez, of Ottawa. Mr. Menendez, an architect with the firm of Balharrie, Helmar & Morin, spoke on "The Gospel of Church Architecture". He traced the development of church architecture through the different periods of history and then spoke on the trends of the present day. Following the address, time was allowed for discussion of the topic.

Scriptures published in tribal tongues of South Viet-Nam

Today there are more than 200 evangelical churches in South Viet-Nam, with an active membership of 40,000 — it is reported by the secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Indo-China, the Rev. H. Curwen-Smith of Montreal.

The four gospels and the Book of Acts have been printed in three major tribal languages spoken in the hills, Radee, Koho, and Joral. The entire New Testament is ready for the press in Radee. The gospel of St. Mark has also been published in Chru and Bahnar, two other of the 60 dialects spoken in South Viet-Nam.

In addition to this translation activity the British and Foreign Bible Society employs six full-time colporteurs, who sell the Scriptures from door to door in that area.

Circulating the Bible in Formosa

"To listen to these words is just like having an arrow go through your heart" — is the way in which an Amis Church elder in Formosa expressed himself as he listened to the reading from the Epistle of St. James. He went on to explain, "We Amis Christians still do not know much about the things of God, and our language has never before been used to express thoughts like these. It was just as if an arrow went through my heart."

A rigorous, Bible loving church continues to develop in Taiwan (Formosa). Distribution has increased, and demands for supplies have been embarrassing to the packing staff in Hong-Kong as well as to the postal services. To meet this problem, plans are in hand for the printing of Gospel portions in Taiwan. Last year the second volume in Sediq (Acts), the result of the careful work of Rev. R. Covell and his team of advisers, was prepared.

Officers elected for Brownsburg Home and School Association

Brownsburg — The final meeting of the Brownsburg Home and School Association year was highlighted by the appearance of Mr. Herbert Matheson as guest speaker, and by the election of officers for the 1958-59 year.

Mr. Matheson's talk was devoted to an explanation of the proceedings at the Canadian Conference on Education, held in Ottawa. Mr. D. N. Atkins expressed the thanks of the group, and assured Mr. Matheson that his words were most informative and greatly appreciated.

Mr. Fred Gervais, as chairman of the nominating committee, presented the proposed slate of officers for next year. As was the case last year, the slate was accepted unanimously. Those citizens who will act as officials when meetings resume in the fall are as follows:

President, Mervin Cowley; past-president, Fred Gervais; vice-pres., Dudley Boal.

Treasurer, George Donaldson.

Recording Secretary, Mrs. Chas. Low.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Cliff Armstrong.

Program chairman, Mrs. Arthur Lapp.

Publicity, Miss Dawn Lowry.

Membership chairman, Mrs. Wm. Campbell, Mrs. Hector Mason.

Advisory committee, Mr. K. G. Amos.

Social convener, Mrs. D. N. Atkins, Mrs. George Gates.

Mr. Gervais pointed out the healthy condition of the Association, as indicated by the fact that seven of those elected had not previously served in any executive capacity. He expressed his appreciation to last year's officers, and to all members of the Association in general, for the support he had received over the last three years.

Mr. K. G. Amos spoke on behalf of the entire organization when he expressed sincere thanks to Mr. Gervais for his devoted work for the Home and School during the past three years.

Mrs. H. Tomalty and Mrs. C. Low reported on their attendance at the Quebec Home and School Conference, earlier this month. It is hoped that benefits may be derived from this visit when the organization becomes active again in September.

The one remaining item on the books for the present term is the Athletes' Dinner, to be held at 6 p.m. on May 30. The dinner, sponsored by Brownsburg Home and School, will serve as a means of honoring those students who have participated in the various athletic activities during the school year. Approximately 110 boys and girls are expected to attend.

OLD CURIOS

Cornwall, Ont. (CP) — A visitor to the St. Lawrence Seaway construction area found two curios of the last century. One is a recording secretary's cash and order book of the Independent Order of Foresters, dated 1892; the other a hand seeder for planting corn and pumpkin seed.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

FATHER RECOVERS HIS SON'S FRIENDSHIP

Are you happy about the way you look? And what about your personality . . . do you get along well with others?

I suppose that all of us at one time or another have wished for the beauty, strength or charm that someone else possesses. The terrific sale of cosmetics and beauty aids testifies that almost everyone feels the urge to acquire a better personal appearance. And "how to improve your personality" courses are being marketed by the thousands.

But it may be that we are working "wrong-side-out." Perhaps it is not new cosmetics, new hairdos, new dresses or new neckties that are most necessary. Even a course in personality improvement might not do the trick. If what is inside your heart is ugly, no matter how hard you try, you can't hide it. No cosmetics or beauticians in the world can prevent that from being seen.

Jesus has a formula that guarantees improvement of personal appearance and personality, and it does not take six months to acquire. This is given in Mark 11:22: "Have faith in God."

I have a good friend in a large city in New York State. His name is George G. He has served for several years as president of New York State Automobile Dealers Association. But with all his success as a businessman, he was never satisfied. He could not get along with other people, and especially with his son. George and the boy had never been able to agree. Whose fault was it—who knows?

But George found Christ as Saviour and Lord. Then he adopted this as his philosophy: "I will have faith in God. For God is a good God and he is able and willing to help me in everything."

It affected him so much that his entire life was different. People enjoyed being around him, and his son found fellowship with his dad.

But let George tell you about it: "My oldest son is 33 years old. He came out of college and went into the Army as a first lieutenant. After serving overseas for 33 months he came home a major.

"However, our disagreements became worse. The breach widened between us. For some reason he and I had never been close. Even in our business we were at odds. It worried me.

"After he had heard my story and seen the change in me, he came to me one day and put his arms around me. With tears in his eyes, he said, 'Dad, since I was a little boy I have been uneasy in your presence. Think God, that's all gone now. I don't feel uneasy any more.'

"A thrill went through every fiber of my being. Through the power of God that had changed me, I had at last revealed my true self to my son. The wall of separation was removed. A new relationship existed between us and, for the first time, my son and I felt close to each other."

The Town of Blind River, Ontario, on the north shore of Lake Huron, was given that name by early fur traders because they could not see the river mouth there as they came up the lake by canoe.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

"Getting filled with God's spirit."
(Eph. 5: 18)

The Bible must be studied – it is inspired and inspiring!

To have God's spirit is a matter of greatest importance. Jesus showed this by saying that the heavenly Father would be more pleased to give the holy spirit to those who ask him than earthly parents are to give good things to their children. (Luke 11: 13). Asking for the filling of God's spirit precedes acquiring it by "seeking" and "knocking". We seek and knock by diligent study of the Bible and by applying its instructions to our way of life. Through these means one keeps filled with the spirit of God.

The Bible must be studied, as it is inspired and inspiring. The Watch Tower publications are provided to aid such seekers. During May Jehovah's witnesses will offer people the opportunity of obtaining two bound Bible-study aid books of prepared spiritual food and two Bible booklets on a contribution of $1.

Nursing as a Career

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

All kinds of nurses are needed in every part of Canada — private duty nurses, nurses for staff and research positions in hospitals, for industrial jobs, for doctor's and dentist's offices, Red Cross, Victorian Order, Public Health, and other special types of community service nurses, as well as nurses for home and foreign missionary work. The nursing field is expanding continually and new jobs, such as a nurse's position on an ocean liner, are appearing.

A capable nurse need never fear unemployment. The majority of girls work at some job for a few years and then marry. A number of newlyweds continue to nurse, and other married women return to nursing after their families are grown. There is no better preparation for homemaking than a hospital course.

The wages and hours of work are improving in nursing. The financial remuneration varies, and a private duty nurse must budget for holidays without pay. Although few nurses become wealthy, a nurse's earnings compare favorably with other vocations requiring similar education and experience. The highest salaries are paid to the superintendents or directors of large hospitals and sanitariums.

A number of probationers are not accepted because they are unsuited for nursing. Others are not strong enough or become discouraged and leave. A student nurse would be less apt to give up if she had some accurate picture of a nurse's life before she enters training.

The discipline is strict, and life, to a great extent, seems regimented. Often social events cannot be enjoyed because they conflict with hours on duty. Nurses in a residence have good times, but they cannot expect institutional meals to be like "Mother's Cooking."

During her training a nurse must pass examinations as well as qualify in practical work. The comfort and welfare of a patient is always of first importance. Sometimes nursing tasks are unpleasant, but a trainee must remember they are always important.

A probationer soon learns to take the bitter with the sweet, and a nurse needs to have a faith which will not be shaken by pain or suffering, or even death.

The entrance age for a student nurse is usually 18 to 30. The academic standing varies but the minimum requirement is at least two years of high school or collegiate. In most schools students are asked to complete three years high school work before becoming probationers.

Many of the best institutions prefer four years' work, at least in some subjects. A knowledge of the sciences, of correct spelling and speech, and accuracy in mathematics are essential for a nurse. Several Canadian universities have a course specializing in the study of nursing with a number of hours on duty in hospital wards each week. Graduates win both their university degree as well as their R.N.

Because so much responsibility rests on a nurse, she must be more reliable and more accurate than the average person. A careless reading of a doctor's orders might end in a fatality. The administering of medicine may be a matter of life and death.

A girl who is attracted to nursing should write to the executive secretary of the Registered Nurses' Association in her province for a list of approved schools. Details about textbooks and uniforms may be obtained from several schools. The cost of training is less where a small monthly allowance is made. Medical care, laundry, board and room are usually provided free by the training school. The competition for good probationer material is keen, and inquiries are welcomed.

To find out if your daughter is interested in nursing, visit a hospital in your neighborhood. Talk with graduate nurses and girls in training. Perhaps she could get employment as a volunteer hospital worker or as a nurse's aid for one season, and thus learn about hospital life from the inside. For complete information about nursing as a career, write to Canadian Nurses' Association, Miss Pearl Stiver, 270 Laurier Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

HERE'S A SATURDAY MEALTIME SPECIAL

By Anne Marshall

It's the time of year when Saturday becomes an extra busy day at home . . . especially for working folks.

There's gardening . . . painting . . . spring house-cleaning and a "dozen and one" chores to be done. Yet with all this, there's lunch and supper to prepare. Rely on the pantry shelf for a quick and easy meal. Make it one that requires little effort on your part.

Canned beans and pork with tomato souce combined with dried apricots and prunes or with orange sections makes a "something special". Both recipes are easy to prepare . . . one done in a skillet on top of the range, the other in a casserole in the oven.

Served with canned steamed brown bread and a crispy cabbage salad with sour cream dressing. Lunch or supper will delight everyone.

For dessert . . . cup cakes (made from a mix) with chocolate sauce. And to go along . . . lots of hot coffee.

FRUITED BEANS AND PORK

1 cup chopped dried apricots and prunes
½ cup water
2 cans (15 ounces each) beans and pork with tomato sauce

Cook dried fruit in water in covered saucepan until water is absorbed. Stir in beans; heat. Makes 4 generous servings.

BEANS AND PORK WITH ORANGE TOPPING

2 cans (15 ounces each) beans and pork with tomato sauce
1 orange, peeled and cut into sections whole cloves (2 per orange section)
2 tablespoons brown sugar

Pour beans into a shallow pan or casserole. Stick cloves into orange sections; arrange on top of beans; sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Flavorful cookies with no cooking, no baking

This recipe for Sherry Delights is so easy to follow even the inexperienced cook would have no trouble making it unassisted. There's no cooking or baking . . . and it's made from such inexpensive ingredients as bread crumbs and icing sugar with a bit of sherry added for an exotic touch. These attractive cookies with a distinct sherry flavor are at their best within 24 hours after they are made.

Sherry Delights

(Yield — about 2½ dozen balls)

1 Cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1 cup sifted icing sugar, 3 tablespoons cocoa, ½ cup finely-chopped filberts, 3 tablespoons corn syrup, ¼ cup sherry, chocolate shot.

Combine bread crumbs, icing sugar, cocoa and filberts in a bowl. Add the corn syrup. Gradually stir in sherry and combine well. Shape into one-inch balls and roll the balls in chocolate shot.

Fashions

By VERA WINSTON

Since lingerie should follow clothes lines, it behooves us to don new underpinnings when essaying new dress silhouets like the chemise or trapeze. Here, then, is a new slip, a chemise slip of nylon tricot. It has a camisole top, with the lace mitered to meet the diagonal seaming that lends just a bit of shape to an almost straight silhouet. Cut quite short to meet new hemlines, it is slit at either side.

For showers and gay occasions

Graduation parties, showers for the bride and weddings are traditionally associated with the month of June. Such gay occasions call for food that is attractive to look at and even better to eat. This three-layered Maid-of-Honor Pie is something distinctive and different to add charm and gaiety to a party menu. It's made by placing cake batter in a pastry-lined pie pan and then topping this with a sweet sauce made with chopped peaches and toasted almonds. This dessert gets its name from its similarity to the little cake-filled pastries known as "Maids of Honor". The rich topping blends throughout the layer of cake as the pie bakes to give a melt-in-the-mouth goodness. Maid-of-Honor Pie is also a delectable dessert to serve warm with table cream at family and party meals.

Maid-of-Honor Pie

(Yield — 6 to 8 servings)

1 Unbaked 8½ inch pie shell, ¼ cup butter or margarine, ½ cup lightly-packed brown sugar, ¼ cup corn syrup, 3 tablespoons water, ½ cup diced canned peaches (well drained), ½ cup once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons once-sifted pastry flour;

1½ Teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 egg (well-beaten), ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup coarsely-chopped toasted almonds.

Prepare unbaked shell. Preheat oven 350°F. (moderate). Combine butter or margarine, brown sugar, corn syrup and water in a saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved, and mixture comes to the boil; boil rapidly for 2 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in peaches. Cool to lukewarm.

Sift the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder and salt together once. Cream shortening well; gradually blend in granulated sugar; cream until light and fluffy. Add well-beaten egg and combine thoroughly. Combine milk and vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with the flavored milk, mixing just until combined after each addition. Turn batter into prepared pie shell; gently pour peach mixture over batter. Sprinkle with toasted almonds. Bake in pre-heated oven until set — about 50 minutes. Serve warm with pouring cream.

Arthritics enjoy swimming periods

Montreal (CP) — Ronald Steppacher, 23-year-old swimming enthusiast, once a week drives two or three arthritic sufferers to the O'Connell Pool for therapy and takes a dip in the pool with them.

Mr. Steppacher, a salesman, was one of the first volunteer drivers when the Montreal branch of the Canadian Arthritic Society started therapeutic treatment for 20 persons living in widely-separated parts of Montreal. There are nine drivers now, but Mr. Steppacher is still the only ardent swimmer.

For the arthritic victims temperature of the water in the pool is increased to 86 degrees from a normal 75.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Edna Usher

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian Home Economics Association has broken the strings tying it to the kitchen sink and allied objects and has entered the press relations field.

The Home Economics Association is a group of home economists, who, among other things, work closely with women's organizations, advising on numerous topics to do with running a house.

They have prepared a booklet about press relations which advises on how to publicize organizations to which a housewife might belong.

For Use of Branches

The booklet is intended primarily for branches of the Home Economics Association, but will be available on request by other organizations.

It tells how to assist newspapers in publicizing a group, how to prepare reports and advises on promptness, accuracy and "off the record" remarks.

It is neatly laid out, brightly written and easy to understand.

Oppose Liquor Acts

A women's group has taken up the cudgels against liquor advertising.

The Ontario Provincial Council of Women resolved recently to ask the provincial government to "protect Ontario homes from pressure to buy liquor." Speakers contended that advertisers evaded the spirit of the law by advertising in magazines printed outside Ontario.

Urge Small Units

Of interest to all family-minded persons is a report from Windsor, Ont., where housing authority managers discussed problems.

The managers reported some parents are forced to leave apartments when their children have grown up and left home.

This happens when housing projects are specifically for families.

The housing managers decided future housing plans should include one-bedroom units for the use of couples in this position, and that more homes for senior citizens are needed.

Tasty Dish

On the kitchen front, canned beans and pork with tomato sauce combined with dried apricots and prunes makes a tasty dish.

Recipe and instructions are simple: 1 cup chopped dried apricots and prunes, half cup water, two cans beans and pork with tomato sauce. Cook dried fruit in water in covered saucepan until water is absorbed. Stir in beans; heat. This makes four servings.

NOW, THROUGHOUT THE LAND —

"A mass migration heading toward the summer shack"

"SUNNYACRES SKETCHES" — by MARGARET COOK

We write from Sunnyacres, dear Sunnyacres — she of the primulas under the apple tree, and the drifts of daffodils and grape hyacinths, of a few, lingering spring-beauties and the medley of adder's tongues, at the foot of the front lawn. Sunnyacres where peace and quiet reign along with mice and black flies. . .

If our style is a trifle ornate, excuse it, please. We are steeped in ancient Latin authors, which we are reading with daughter Betty. The style is, perhaps, a thought too precious by modern standards, but the same old human nature shines through the stilted words. Cicero, in exile, complains to his wife that his "officiosissimus" (kindest) friend, Plancius, insists that he use his house as his own, whereas Cicero would prefer something more remote from spies and possible military. Just to show that he is not unaware of Plancius' mixed motives, he says that he (Plancius) hopes to return to Rome with Cicero. A lad with an eye to possible advancement, undoubtedly.

* * *

To leaven the Latin authors, we read Hutchison's "Canada, Tomorrow's Giant", and are delighted with the following: "Now, throughout the land, a mass migration is heading toward the summer shack. The student of our folkways will find on every road out of town a steady stream of cars overloaded with food, bedding, lumber, tools, paint, cement, and no one knows what else — more than enough, you would think, to sustain an army's campaign. All the passengers are bound for some quiet waterfront by the outer gate of paradise, for a dilapidated house of no conceivable value, and thus valuable beyond price." And again, farther on — "Opening camp is not really a labor. It is a transfiguration. No doubts about the future alarm the shackman. He mends his roof as if it would last forever. He adds a clumsy porch as if he were building for the ages. If the final bomb should drop and civilization perish, somewhere, somehow, a shackman and his wife will survive — the first Canadians and the last." . . . A fine, understanding account of what goes on under our eyes at this time of year. We came up behind a car loaded very much as the author describes. Truly, as we have remarked before in this column, it is the country home, not the city one, that is beloved.

* * *

We have made some observations independently of Mr. Hutchison, having to do with the evolution of a lake. First of all, it is virgin territory. We can remember when a trip to Lakefield was an adventure, undertaken once in a while at the invitation of an elderly friend, who drove a pair of spanking bays. At about the same era, we made the trip precariously with the ex-Fire Chief and his wife, in a sturdy car. It needed to be sturdy, for the roads were indescribably bad. Now, some thirty years later, the roads are fair and getting better by the year, and the lovely, long, winding lake is two-thirds surrounded by cottages. As soon as it becomes totally surrounded, evolution will have been accomplished and devolution begin. When every house on its hundred-foot frontage is filled with people seeking to escape the city, the said people will discover to their dismay that the air is filled with gas fumes and the full-throated cries of children at play, and they will seek to unload the cottage on an unwary and less fussy urbanite. Today's children become tomorrow's parents, and father seeks something more remote with better fishing; and so, the "For Sale" signs go up. In another thirty years, all the houses will have different inhabitants, and this will be just another lake dedicated to the unquiet weekend. . . I, thank heaven, shall not live to see it.

* * *

And that reminds me of the last bit of literature that is consoling my lighter moments, a bit entitled "House Party", by Virginia Rowans, she of the biting tongue. It was quite a week-end, but then I, too, as a hostess and a guest, have experienced some queer ones.

The most satisfying one we recall at the moment had to do with a bit of femininity which the head of the house found attractive. On the theory that it is always best to keep an eye on the enemy, we invited her and her husband for a week-end at Sunnyacres. I am happy to report that she turned out to be a city creature, so feeble that she could not even walk across the floor for a drink of water. Rain plagued us, mice annoyed us, and the fair guest acquired a cold, which made her cough loudly and unrestrainedly. It so happens that the head of the house fears and avoids coughers, and there he was shut up in a car with one beside him for two hours! The romance withered.

Then there was the more recent guest who, after devouring my good home-cooked dinner, wiped her mouth, and sighed, "My only regret is, that Fido could not enjoy it." Fido had died some months previously of cancer of the liver, brought on, we always thought, by high living. He was a loathsome, spoiled, smelly dog.

But the worst week-end was at Ottawa, where the hostess served up delicatessen turkey, which poisoned us all slightly. Our face, never a grade-A possession, was covered with pimples for a week thereafter.

* * *

Between all these literary, and quasi-literary pursuits, we labor out of doors at the thousand and one tasks that one must perform to hold one's own with the encroaching wild. Grass sods form in the flower garden; rocks are everywhere; the vegetable garden must be seeded, the lane built up so that the car will not scrape its low, expensive belly on the road; trees must be pruned of deadwood; firewood has to be chopped, the fires kept going, because of the cold, and water carried — as well as the usual household tasks.

One such task will soon be a thing of the past, that of washing lamp-chimneys. In a way, we shall regret that soft yellow light. As the head of the house remarks, we drive fifty miles north and fifty years back. Ours is a pioneer life, except for not having to cut down trees or build a house. And we still have peace; once in bed of a night, no sound disturbs us, no diesels moaning horribly, no Seaway pump coughing through the hours, only the occasional call of the whippoorwill, or of the white-throated sparrow.

One sleeps long, undisturbed hours, and arises rested and hungry. Making breakfast here is a chore and an adventure. At the city, it is merely the chore. No peddlers of brushes, pins, apples or lace assault the door, and if one has an extra dollar one can keep it, for either there are no disabled persons here, or somehow they look after themselves. When we think upon the young men we have helped through college, the blind we have paid for brooms, the useless raffle tickets we have been stuck with, our soul revolts. The worst episode was that of the poor, dumb young man from whom we bought needles at the request of a card he carried. Walking through the park that evening on our chaste way to an uncle's house, we were enraged to hear the same disabled one, sitting on a bench, call out, "Hello cutie!" . . Yes, verily, a city dweller merely by necessity.

Spinsterhood of the highway

By Carol Lane

Some distaff drivers regard travelling alone or with other women as "spinsterhood of the highway." They are prey to fears and doubts about their ability to cope with emergencies. This little phobia came to light in a recent survey of women motorists.

Yet, despite this uncertainty on the part of a few — the popularity of one-woman or several-women vacation trips by car is growing by leaps and bounds. In the course of my extensive travels, either alone or with other women, I have learned a number of ways to dispel distaff difficulties.

The first and most important rule for the woman traveller is to have confidence in herself and her own ability to make all necessary arrangements en route. Next, she should be sure that her car is put in perfect condition before she leaves. For example, the carburetor should be adjusted if the trip is to include mountain driving.

Also, the fear of boredom seems to figure in the lone woman's concept of car travel. Good boredom-relievers for the woman who wants to "drive alone and like it" are listening to the radio, observing changes in the landscape or noting different styles of architecture. But never pick up hitch hikers, no matter how harmless they may look.

Avoid driving late at night over lonely stretches of road. Stay on the safe side by stopping for the night about 4 or 5 o'clock. This also will help you avoid fatigue and drowsiness. Always stay at well-recognized and respected lodgings.

Several women travelling together can eliminate financial frustration by having a car "kitty". Each woman puts a certain amount into the "kitty" to defray each day's expense, and one member of the group is selected to be bookkeeper. You'll find identification cards and travellers checks highly useful, while your driver's license and ownership permit are "musts" on any trip.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. As a salesman I am employed on a straight commission basis. May I contribute to unemployment insurance?

A. You must contribute if you are an employee and not an independent agent and your net income (after deducting expenses) does not exceed $4,800 a year and if you are not mainly dependent for your livelihood on some other occupation. However, insurance agents, securities salesmen and real estate agents paid by commissions are specifically excluded from coverage.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Women's Travel Authority

The more money you save on that forthcoming motoring vacation, the more you'll have to spend on another tour.

Here are some ways to cut costs while travelling:

Drive at a steady rate, and don't speed. The faster you go, the more gasoline you use — and the more you'll have to buy.

Check your roadmap for good roads that offer scenic variety yet don't meander too far out of your way.

Take picnics whenever possible — and don't limit them to lunches. A good picnic breakfast (milk, coffee, cold cereal, fruit) can be prepared at your motel the night before. This saves money and permits an early start in the cool of the morning.

Like coffee while motoring? There are percolators you can plug into the cigarette lighter receptacle. A box of doughnuts, and you're all set. (And think of the tip money you save!)

If you're rugged, you can camp out, saving hotel or motel expenses. Sleeping bags and a tent will do. And now, they've come up with car-top platforms that can be converted into tent-covered beds, turning your car into a real home-away-from home.

Controlled grazing of dairy cattle

Ottawa — Controlled grazing of dairy cattle has been found to be an effective means of obtaining the highest productivity from pasture areas at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. V. S. Logan reports that several systems have been experimentally tested to overcome seasonal variation in pasture growth and minimize losses from animal activity.

The marked variation in pasture growth has been shown with common pasture mixtures where up to 80 per cent of the annual growth occurred before the end of July. It has been estimated that with the usual free range grazing, approximately 40 per cent of available forage may be wasted by contamination with animal droppings, by tramping, and by animals lying down.

The first system of controlled grazing was rotational pasturing, and the harvesting of early-season surplus grass for hay or silage. This method has not been adopted widely in Canada, probably because of the extra fencing and watering required.

A more recent system of controlled grazing, termed "daily strip grazing", has been tested. This method consists of confining cows by means of electric fencing to an area that will provide grazing for one day. One electric fence is stretched between two permanent fences along the advance side of the day's grazing area. A second fence is strung behind the cows to protect aftermath recovery. The latter is strung in a manner to provide direct access to the day's grazing through the entrance to the pasture field. A constant water supply is located near this entrance. The advance fencing unit is easily moved at the same time each day. It is sufficient to move the rear fence at weekly intervals. As aftermath recovers sufficiently on the initially grazed area the cows are moved back to begin another cycle. At this time surplus grass from the ungrazed area is harvested for silage or hay.

Experimental evaluation of "daily strip grazing" at Ottawa has shown that up to 26 per cent higher productivity can be obtained than with the usual free range method.

A study is now in progress to determine the possible value of "mechanical grazing", which consists of machine-cutting the daily grass requirements, and feeding the pasture to cows in the stable or dry lot.

THERE ARE OTHER THINGS IN LIFE

Last summer a lady in Vancouver who can look back on 72 summers learned to swim for the first time in her life. She took her instruction under the guidance of a Red Cross swimming instructor and has been swimming regularly ever since. She says she did not realize what she was missing!

Late blight in potatoes

The use of antibiotics for the control of late blight in potatoes appears to have possibilities, as indicated by tests at the Fredericton Laboratory of the Canada Department of Agriculture.

In 1956, plots of Green Mountain potatoes were inoculated with spores of the late blight organism and a moderate outbreak of the disease developed. Some plots were treated with the antibiotic dihydrostreptomycin and others were left untreated. By September 19, the untreated plots were half defoliated but the treated plots showed less than one per cent defoliation. Although the plots sprayed with dihydrostreptomycin yielded higher than untreated plots the difference in yield was not great.

In the 1957 experiments late blight outbreaks occurred without the aid of artificial inoculation. By September 14 (of that year) untreated potato plots were almost completely defoliated and those sprayed with dihydrostreptomycin showed only 6 per cent defoliation. For comparative purposes a fixed copper fungicide C.O.C.S., was included in the 1957 trials. Plots sprayed with dihydrostreptomycin and those with C.O.C.S., both yielded appreciably higher than untreated plots, but the yields of plots sprayed with the antibiotics were essentially the same as those protected by the copper fungicide.

PRIVATE APARTMENTS FOR PIGS

These buildings are called pigloos and, developed by a U.S. company, may revolutionize pig-raising throughout the continent. The pigloos are individual family units where pig-litters are born and raised in regulated, disease and danger-free privacy. Over 5,000 pigs are now being raised in these "apartments" or 16-unit suites and so far the results have been impressive to farmers. The pigloo itself is a low, prefabricated wooden structure with 12 sides designed to prevent the litter from being crushed by the mother and to allow control over feeding and heating which results in healthier hogs.

New editor for Forum 'Guide'

Roger Schwass has been appointed editor of Farm Forum "Guide". His duties commence June 1. Mr. Schwass comes from TV station CKNX at Wingham, Ontario, where he has been assisting with the production of farm programs. He has been closely associated with Farm Forums in the Wingham area.

Mr. Schwass will also be responsible for the administration of the National Farm Radio Forum office. The new position of "editor - office administrator" combines the duties of the former secretary and editor. Mr. Schwass will not be expected to assist provinces with Farm Forum organization as Mr. Griesbach, the former secretary, did. Mr. Griesbach resigned to accept a position with the Department of Citizenship and Immigration.

Ross Oswald, representing Quebec Farm Forums on the National Farm Radio Forum board and executive, says that some changes in the Farm Radio Forum program have also been planned. He will make a detailed report of changes to the annual meeting of Quebec Farm Radio Forum to be held this Saturday at Macdonald College.

Farm Mechanization

Although Canada's total agricultural production has been steadily increasing, over the past 10 years the number of farm workers has declined by an average of 30,000 persons annually.

Fertilizers for annual flowers

Ottawa — There are many brands of fertilizer on the market today from which the amateur gardener can choose an extra stimulant for his flower border. This presents a confusing problem to the average householder who has a meagre knowledge of soil chemistry.

Two factors assist him. Regulations in Canada compel the manufacturer to print the analysis of his product stating the percentages of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash contained which are the most important elements. Then, as plants are fairly tolerant, little damage results from using fertilizers of different formulae according to directions, provided the fertilizer does not come in direct contact with leaves or roots.

Tests at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, over the past two summers, showed that on sandy loam soil, annual flowers responded best to 2-4 lb. per 100 square feet of a 5-10-13 fertilizer (5 per cent nitrogen, 10 per cent phosphorus, 13 per cent potash). Too much fertilizer, or fertilizer that supplies too much of one element, is of course wasteful.

This fertilizer combination proved best on the local sandy soil which is naturally low in available phosphorus and potash while on clay soils, a fertilizer with less of these two elements would probably prove as satisfactory.

To get the best results it is advisable to determine what is in your soil by analysis. Soil test kits are available from any good seed store which give fairly accurate results if directions are followed carefully.

Transportation Note

Electric headlights on locomotives were first used early in 1886.

Born and raised in a pigloo, these porkers look healthy and haughty about their status in the pig world. But their destiny is the same as others in spite of their exclusive upbringing since the ultimate aim of the pigloo is to produce more pork chops more cheaply and with less trouble.

SANITATION!

The Why and Wherefore

You spend money and your time on feeding and care of your animals and poultry. Even Purina (cheap as it is) costs you money, but without Sanitation, will not do for you what it is made to do.

If your animals or poultry are unhealthy, or infested with worms inside or with lice and flies outside, it will take much more feed to do a given job than it will without them. The Purina Company realizing that GOOD FEEDING went hand in hand with CAREFUL SANITATION, have brought out many Sanitation products to correct these conditions so you would get full value of their chows.

Probably the most important of these sanitation products is DISINFECTANTS. The proper disinfectant used in the proper way kills the disease germs and stops their spread. "An ounce of Prevention is better than a pound of Cure" is an old and very true saying. We have seven disinfectants for different ways, needs or conditions.

In INSECTICIDES & SPRAYS we have applications for 15 different insects and conditions—from Home Spray to Rat Control.

In VERMIFUGES, for treatment for worms, we have six different ones for all kinds of birds, animals and conditions.

In TREATMENTS, for different diseases that have gotten in, we have 12.

AT YOUR SERVICE

It is impossible in this short article to give a detailed description of the many Sanitation needs I mention above, but let us know your need, and we will gladly do our best to help you overcome it. — Remember, Sanitation DOES NOT COST you, it PAYS you!
