Locals win provincial tourney in a field of 344 top-flight golfers

Top-flight golf was played Friday, July 25, by Mrs. A. Stephens and Laurier Carrière, who brought honors to Lachute by winning the cup for the Provincial Quebec Golf Association mixed two-ball tournament.

Leading one of the largest fields in the history of the event (344 golfers, as compared to 288 last year) the Lachute winners came through with a sparkling gross 77.

To top the victory for the Lachute Golf and Country Club, Miss Eleanor Sortome, a Montreal week-end player, and James MacKimmie, of local fame, scored first low net with a sizzling 64½.

The P.Q.G.A. Mixed Two-Ball has been played at Lachute for the past four years, and draws the best players from the Province to compete for the cup.

Contests in July

July events at the club include the Opening Junior Tournament, won by Miss Patricia Lafleur and Christian Lafleur. . .

The Mixed Two-Ball, won by Mrs. Eric Mongeon and René Dansereau.

Husband and wife Tournament, won by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Regimball, low net, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Ayers, low gross.

Invitation Event

A novel event is billed for the local course next Sunday, August 10, in the Lachute Hospital Fund "Calcutta Tournament" — an invitation best-ball contest which is expected to draw many participants and interested followers, from a wide area in this province and the Ottawa district. The Calcutta will feature 30 teams in 18 holes of play, each team representing a club with its pro and three amateur players. Besides the trophy awarded to the winning team, there will be attractive individual prizes for various performances.

Vacancy in municipal office with resignation of secretary-treasurer

A municipal employee for the past several years, Jacques Poitras — who had served first as office assistant then as interim secretary-treasurer — handed in his resignation last week. The resignation was accepted, and Mr. Poitras quit his office forthwith.

The resignation was accepted on proposal of Ald. René Belanger, seconded by Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion. Pending the appointment of a new permanent secretary, it was moved by Ald. Laureat Laurin, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock, that Mme Yvette Raymond, employed in the town office, be engaged as secretary pro tem. (Mme Raymond being presently a patient in hospital, the functions of the office are being performed by Germain Filion, financial advisor to the civic body.)

The Mayor and members of the finance committee are authorized in the interim to conduct such business as is necessary for the smooth operation of affairs.

Mme Gaetan Guilbert was temporarily engaged, at a remuneration of $1.50 an hour, as office assistant.

(Advertisement for applications to the secretarial job appears on page 6 of this issue. The position presently offers a salary of $3,900 per annum.)

At the same special meeting Mayor Léopold Carrière reported to Council the resignation of Lieut. Oscar Sabourin as assistant police chief. Acceptance of this resignation was held for the agenda of the regular August session (held Wednesday, August 6th).

Stubborn blaze in farm buildings

A raging fire discovered at 2.35 a.m. on Thursday last, gutted the outbuildings on the old Hammond farm, now owned by O. Bruce, Route 8, near the Ayersville limits.

Police-Fire Chief Fernand Trépanier reports the local fire brigade was on the scene for four hours, and five lines of hose were laid in a successful effort to save surrounding buildings.

The blaze broke out again the following day, necessitating a return of the equipment and men for a period of several hours. No estimate of the damage was available.

Civic notables at funeral of B'burg chief of police

Relatives, friends, police colleagues and civic representatives were noted at the funeral of Chief William Lepine, which was held from the St. Louis de France parish church in Brownsburg. Chief Lepine succumbed to illness July 23, at the age of 51.

Besides police and security officers from neighboring and suburban municipalities were noted — Fire Chief Edward Harper of Westmount; Cpl. P. Berthiaume, RCMP, St. Jerome; Inspector Chas. Gilbert, Montreal Police Department; Ivan J. Sheehan, superintendent of the Montreal Transport Commission investigation department; Jean Belanger, of the CPR investigation department, and many others. Mayor T. P. Hall, members of the Council, Fernand Legault, Q.C., legal advisor, and municipal employees were present from Brownsburg. Chief Oscar Sabourin of Thurso, a former co-frère on the Lachute Police Force, was also present.

Prior to assuming his position in Brownsburg Chief Lepine had served in Lachute, latterly as assistant chief, for seven years.

Pall-bearers were Chiefs F. Trépanier, Latour, Brunelle, Davidson, Lecôt and Tassé.

Chief Lepine is survived by his wife, the former Irene Séguin, and two daughters, Mme Roland Séguin (Suzanna) and Gisèle Lepine, both of Brownsburg.

Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan extends welcome; exhibition continues to next Sunday, 10th

The first professional show of 1958 under auspices of the Argenteuil Art Association is now open to the public, in the municipal hall at St. Andrews East, every day through to, and including, August 10. Judging from the throngs that visited the exhibition last Saturday at the opening, and the warm commendations heard, it would appear that the young Art Association had once more justified its existence in bringing paintings of high quality to the community, in this showing of 25 oils and monoprints by Helmut Gransow of Morin Heights.

The paintings are highly pleasing, full of movement and life. The style is broad and simple; the color muted and subtle. One has walked these country roads of Mr. Gransow's; one has waded through the snowbanks; marvelled at the running brooks amid the snows of the spring break-up; and glimpsed the turns and twists of the distant Laurentians.

Gransow has a quick artist's eye for the picturesque but his painting is far from photographic. You will declare, however, that you know this road, or that "Old Farm House", "The Northern Lake", and "Old Elm"; and while the motif is oft repeated, to each is brought a new mood, as in "Windy Day", "Late Afternoon", and "Moody Sky". The exhibition includes a fine warm study of a nude, and a strong, beautifully painted portrait, "Head of an Older Man". Gransow shows a quick understanding and a tender kindness in his work. The old houses have been homes, perhaps still are; the long path up to the barns must be shoveled in winter; lumber jacks are just out of sight in the paintings of the old mills; the shrubs in the snowy field promise the spring that is to come; and his landscapes team with living, hopes and plans, roads that people use, and growth and life and movement.

His work is devoid of detail but has that quality of all good work, producing in the eye and heart of the beholder a wealth of detail drawn from one's own experience. And this is one of the reasons why this show will doubtless attract many visitors, and why it will be remembered in this community.

Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan, C.M.G., D.S.O., Mayor of St. Andrews East, opened the exhibition with an address in which he referred to Mr. Gransow's early European background and experience, and commented as well on how truly the work of this "new Canadian" had become so richly Canadian. Maj.-Gen. Phelan congratulated the Art Association on its activity, extended the support of the St. Andrews Council in the use of the hall, while regretting that the Village had no more suitable hall for this purpose. He expressed a hope that arrangements might be made to put to full use the capacities of the Museum at Carillon, where (he said) "surely the donor must have envisaged, within its walls, such a wealth and beauty and satisfaction as these paintings show."

Mr. A. G. Talbot, president of the A.A.A., presided and spoke briefly in the opening proceedings.

4-H Club team are winners in district elimination

The Lachute 4-H Calf Club judging team were top winners at the Montreal District elimination field day, held at Macdonald College on Friday, July 25. Davis MacVicar of Brownsburg and Donald Parker of Lachute were the top two judges in the competition, against eight other clubs.

For the first time this year, the top two individual members take part in the Provincial competition, whether they are from the same club or not — instead of the top team, as in the past years. As it happened, Davis MacVicar came first with 407 points out of a possible 450 points. Donald Parker came second with 406 points — just one point between the two boys. The Cowansville 4-H Calf Club came second and Howick third.

Davis and Donald will take part in the Provincial Judging competition to be held at the Sherbrooke Exhibition on August 25.

CNIB planning fund campaign in northern areas

The Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind announces that a financial campaign is being organized in the following areas — Morin Heights, Lac St. Denis RCAF Station, Christieville, 18 Island Lake and St. Adolphe de Howard, commencing on Monday, August 11.

The financial chairman for this entire section is Mr. Mark Sims. The captains are being contacted, and a list will be given in the following issue of The Watchman.

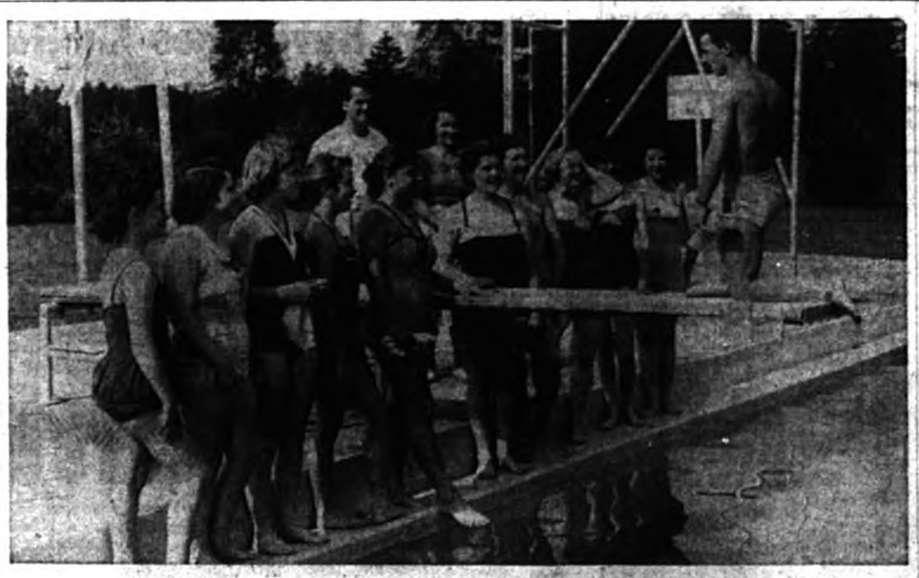

It is emphasized that this work is being done voluntarily, and that the canvassers will be personally known to all whom they solicit. It is hoped the public will give the canvassers the same courtesy as in the past and be as generous as possible.

The objective this year for the entire county is $5,100. The total number of blind cases in Argenteuil registered with the Institute is 46. The blindness prevention program has made remarkable strides during the past year. It is hoped with financial support to be able to expand this work.

Vacation hike by College duo

Yves Chevrier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Liguori Chevrier, Lachute, and a fellow student at Rigaud College, Yvon Faille, of Valleyfield, made a hitchhike itinerary through the Lake St. John region, Gaspé, the three Maritime Provinces and three of the Eastern States — enjoying an interesting and economical tour after seven years of study in the classical course. They returned happy, with pockets full of souvenirs, and with the memory of many new acquaintances made en route.

Three-man team and coach leaving for Championship meet in Vancouver

On Tuesday of next week, three High School gymnasts, Ronnie Cairns, Garry Cruise, Reggie Stansfield, and their coach, Mr. Arne Petersen, will leave by plane for the Open Dominion Gymnastic Championships being held in the Colliseum at Vancouver, B.C.

For more than eight months the boys have been practising for the championship games, most of the time in excess of 30 hours a week, even after school closed for the holidays. They have worked out both during the day and at night, when Mr. Petersen came from his summer job to Lachute and trained with them.

The lads had a number of setbacks, but never gave up. First Ronnie Cairns sprained his thumb very badly; for awhile it was thought to be broken, but after X-rays at the local hospital showed no break, it took only a week before he was working hard again. Reg Stansfield was overweight about 15 pounds and had to go on a diet, he is now at his best weight, 145 pounds. The worst misfortune happened to Garry Cruise, who only a week ago dropped a bail on his foot; it had swollen up so badly he still cannot jump on the injured foot, but it is hoped it will be perfect before they reach Vancouver.

The boys are looking forward to the trip, and hope they will be able to bring a championship or two back from Vancouver. But if they do not succeed, it will not be from lack of conditioning or trying. It must be remembered, the best gymnasts from Europe, U.S.A. and Canada will participate, most of the gymnasts coming directly from the world championship in Moscow, Russia.

The team will return by plane the following week-end, arriving in Lachute sometime during Sunday night.

Safe-crackers net $1,000 in Main St. store robbery

The first local safe-cracking in some time occurred Monday evening on the premises of the R. A. Beamish Stores, Main Street, when thieves repeated a July 16, 1957, break-in, smashed open the safe, and escaped with an estimated $1,000. Last year's robbery netted the culprits $1,100, and while several suspects were questioned by local and provincial police, no arrests were made.

LONGER SERVICE

Winnipeg (CP) — Frank H. Keefe, a CNR employee for 47 years, was honored at a testimonial dinner when he retired. He rose to be general manager of the western region for the company.

The incident was all but an exact replica of last year, when thieves entered the building by means of a downstairs window. This time, however, they broke open the inside door, rather than breaking through the wall. They dragged the safe some 20 feet to the ladies' restroom, where they opened the safe.

Local and Provincial police were notified of the robbery at 7 a.m., and following preliminary investigation, the Hold-up Squad in Montreal, were called on the case. Police Chief Fernand Trépanier and Sgt.Det. Ralph Allen are continuing the investigation.

The store manager, Leo Holt, was absent this week on vacation, being relieved by a replacement assigned from head office of the company.

Boating is fun, but remember that swimmers have equal rights on Canada's waterways. Don't fool around near swimming areas. Approach a dock or beach with care and at low speed. Play safe.

No connection with theft culprit

A similarity of names has caused some embarrassment to a Bell Telephone employee at St. Jerome, J. W. Gaetan Lamoureux (son of Lionel Lamoureux), of 383 Grace Street, Lachute.

The latter would like it to be known he is not the Gaetan Lamoureux who was implicated with another culprit in the theft of a car in Lachute, a case which was reported in this paper among charges heard in St. Jerome court. Mr. Lamoureux received a number of phone calls following the report, but The Watchman is pleased to state this citizen was not involved.

Brownsburg youth scores in Maxville Highland Games

Among the athletes participating at the Highland Games in Maxville last Saturday was Ken MacGibbon, aged 16 years, of Brownsburg.

In the 110-yard dash, 18 years and under, Ken took a bronze medal for third place; in the 220, open to all ages, he placed fourth; in the High Jump he made 5'2".

Competition included athletes of all ages and from many clubs who had spent much time in practice. Ken was complimented on his ability, and as a result has been invited to visit the St. Lambert Club for coaching and to enter their meets. He has recently been accepted as a member of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Robbery at B'burg Legion Hall

Entry was gained to the Brownsburg Legion Hall Monday evening and following a preliminary check by Legion officials and Provincial Police, approximately $75 and a small quantity of cigarettes was reported stolen. Entry to the building was gained by means of a downstairs window.

Dedication of church hall attended by friends, clergy at St. Mungo's, Cushing

Cushing — Recently at St. Mungo's Church, a service of dedication was held for the new church hall. The church was filled for the occasion.

The service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. J. Ralph Watson. Also taking part in the ceremonies were the Rev. Eric D. Errey, minister of Queen Mary Road United Church, Montreal, and chairman of the Montreal Presbytery; Rev. John W. Patterson, D.D., minister of St. Andrews Church, Lachine, who was the guest speaker; and the Rev. Wilson Bridge of Lachute.

The first part of the service was held outdoors when the date-stone was laid in place. This was followed by worship in the church, when Dr. Patterson preached on the theme "Onward With Christ". Then the large gathering moved slowly through a communicating doorway into the new hall, where the Rev. Eric Errey, as chairman of Presbytery, conducted the dedication.

The keys of the new building, here presented by L. St. Jacques, of Lachute, who was general contractor, were received by Leonard Wilson as chairman of the Building Committee and given to the chairman of Presbytery. After the dedication Mr. Errey handed the keys to the minister of St. Mungo's, who received them on behalf of the congregation.

Greetings were brought by several visiting ministers — the Rev. Wilson Bridge of the United Church in Lachute, the Rev. Joseph Lynn of the United Church in Hawkesbury, the Rev. William Holmes of the United Church in Vankleek Hill, the Rev. P. Raymond Stote of the Anglican Church in Grenville, and the Rev. B. Smith of Temple Baptist Church, Montreal. The Rev. Eric Errey brought greetings from the Presbytery.

The minister thanked all present who had contributed so much in time, interest, money and encouragement to the erection of the Hall. He then presented an illuminated address to Mrs. Archie Graham of Cushing for her generous contribution towards the project. Mrs. Graham's gift was made in memory of her late husband, who was for many years an elder in St. Mungo's Church. The Graham family have been connected with St. Mungo's since the beginning of the congregation, and some of the early members of the family actually worked on the construction of the original church building.

A letter of good wishes was read from the Rev. James M. Fraser of Thornloe, Ont., whose father was minister of St. Mungo's Church for 40 years.

A social hour followed the ceremonies, and tea was served by the ladies of St. Mungo's. Members of the Building Committee conducted interested friends through the new hall.

Various events played here by lady golfers

The ladies' branch of the Lachute Golf Club entertained golfers from Hawkesbury, Dunany, St. Andrews and Cornwall Country Clubs on July 18. It was a beautiful, sunny day and the ladies enjoyed 18 holes of golf and a delicious buffet.

Following were the winners for the four clubs:

St. Andrews —
1st low gross — Mrs. D. Millar
1st low net — Mrs. G. Simpson

Cornwall —
1st low gross — Mrs. V. Watson
1st low net — Mrs. A. Hoople

Lachute —
1st low gross — Mrs. R. Stephens
1st low net — Mrs. G. Ayers

Hawkesbury —
1st low gross — Mrs. E. MacAllister
1st low net — Mrs. E. Leopold

Dunany —
1st low gross — Mrs. M. Leslie
1st low net — Mrs. N. Holmes

Despite the wet weather, July was quite an active month for the lady golfers.

Miss B. Brown won the Drew Trophy, with Miss M. Graham runner-up — both Montreal members.

Mrs. R. Fraser and Miss F. A. Carrière won the Captain's and Vice-Captain's prizes respectively. C Class Captain's Prize was won by Mrs. R. Dansereau, of Montreal.

The Mystery Event was won by Miss R. Guilbert (A Class), Miss Anne David (B Class), and Mrs. M. Carrière (C Class).

Ten lady members reduced their handicaps in A and B Class during July — Mrs. G. Ayers, Miss P. Baird, Miss F. A. Carrière, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, Mrs. A. R. Côté, Mrs. R. Fraser, Mrs. F. Johnson, Miss C. MacKenzie, Mrs. R. Stephens and Mrs. H. Watson. Also, congratulations go to Mrs. Cottingham for shooting a 93 and reducing her handicap to 21, and for playing her usual steady, dependable game under unusual strain the day after her recent trying experience with burglars.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE LIGHTS GO OUT

1. Find out if your neighbours' lights are out too. If they are not, it is quite likely that the trouble is in your own wiring.

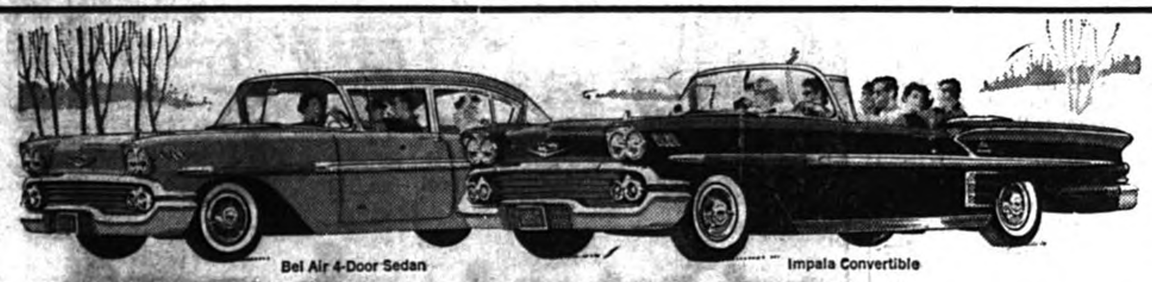

2. Pull the main switch and examine the fuses. If a fuse is burned, look for the cause. It may be caused by too many appliances on the same circuit or by defective appliances or cords. It may be due to a short circuit in the wiring. Be sure to find the cause, as a burned fuse indicates trouble somewhere.

3. If there is lightning or heavy winds in the district, and your neighbors' lights are out, it is probably due to trouble on the power company lines. Wait for a few minutes to see if the power is restored; if not, call the local office of the power company and report the trouble.

4. If it is a clear day, the power company may be working on the lines; a car may have struck a pole, or someone may have felled a tree over the lines. Wait a reasonable time to see if service is restored. If it is not, please report your trouble to the local office of the power company.

By reporting directly to the power company you are taking the most effective method of correcting the trouble.

Matters of finance — national and personal

DURING THE WAR, many people bought Victory Bonds. They did so partly to help the war effort and partly, too, because it seemed a sound way of investing savings at a resonable rate of interest.

Down through the years, millions of Canadians have kept their Victory Bonds, clipping the coupons every so often and feeling secure in the knowledge that a modest nest-egg lay in reserve, to be used in case of emergency, to help pay for the children's education, or to help them enjoy their own retirement.

The Canadian government has now issued an invitation to exchange old bonds for new ones of the Canada Conversion Loan. The reason for this is that five of the old Victory Loans will mature over the next few years. Rather than wait for each, in its turn, to fall due, it seemed more sensible to refund all five at the same time, by means of a single new issue.

No one, of course, is compelled to accept the government's offer. It is a matter for each person owning a bond to decide for himself. But because a rate of interest higher than on the old bonds is offered, and because the other basic attractions of government bonds remain unchanged, indications are that most people will accept.

Experts in money matters say that besides refunding the old debt the new Canada Conversion Loan will also stabilize many factors affecting the borrowing of funds, and clear up many uncertainties which now add to the difficulties of bond financing. This should make it easier for municipalities and other borrowers to obtain the new money they must have in order to pay for the growth of essential services. This will be welcome news to cities, towns and villages, many of which have found it difficult in recent months to sell their own bonds.

Textiles and tariffs

WHAT SHOULD be done about those Canadian manufacturing industries which are in serious trouble as a result of foreign competition?

There are several such — notably textiles, rubber footwear, electrical appliances, chemicals and steel. And, if you eliminate the "don't knows", there are broadly two schools of thought on the subject. . .

One believes, quite simply, that Canadian industries which can't meet foreign competition as it now exists don't deserve to survive and should be allowed to decline and die.

The other believes that Canada's future growth and prosperity demand that everything reasonably possible be done to ensure that home industries not only stay alive, but flourish and expand.

Which of these policies is in the best interests of Canada and Canadians? Which should prevail? The answer, perhaps, is to be found in considering the consequences of each of them.

Allowing even one of the above industries to decline and perhaps die must result in the nation's productive capacity, and therefore its wealth, being diminished; in large-scale unemployment for thousands of Canadians now at work; in the blighting of whole communities; in falling demand for many goods and services, and in reduced government revenues from the taxes paid by both corporations and individuals.

So much for the consequences of the first policy. What of the alternative?

Ensuring that home industries live, flourish and expand means tariffs on the imports of their foreign competitors which are both adequate and flexible enough to do the job tariffs are intended to do.

That job is, or should be, to reduce the overwhelming price advantage with which the foreign manufacturer starts by virtue of vastly lower wages and/or lower unit production costs resulting from large scale production. In other words, assure that competition between domestic and foreign producers for the Canadian consumer's dollar is reasonably fair and genuine.

Because many existing tariffs are anything but adequate and flexible, adoption of the second policy necessarily involves their realistic upward revision. (And soon, if such action is not in some cases to be too late.)

One major consequence of this would be that certain imported products, which sell in competition with those we produce ourselves, would not be available to Canadians as cheaply in the future as in the past.

These, then, are the alternatives. As has been shown, each has its price. . . But which is the lesser?

Isaak would grieve!

A ONCE-FAMILIAR figure is slowly vanishing from the Canadian outdoors. He wears hip waders, a tattered hat dotted with odd-colored bits of feather and fluff, and leather harness supporting a wicker basket.

Forty years ago the devoted fly fishermen dominated our finest fishing waters. Today, in many parts of the country, he's a rare specimen.

The decline of the purest form of the angler's skill is reflected in the rod racks of the sporting goods shops. Where 10 years ago fly rods made up one-third of the assortment they rarely rate more than a tenth of the display space today.

A great new crop of fishermen has been created in the last decade by the upsurge of the automobile and the development of highways which have brought good fishing waters within the reach of most people.

But these new anglers are turning to spinning, casting and trolling equipment. They prefer the flashing lures, bobbing plugs and impaled live bait on equipment which is easy to use, hooks more fish and lands them faster.

It is doubtful if one of every 100 game fish caught in Canada this year will be lured to his doom by a tiny hook cloaked in the merest bit of feather and fur, dropped gently to the water and given an enticing twitch by the quivering tip of a long, slender cane rod.

How in the world did fishing ever deteriorate to the point where the production of fish has become the mark of an angler's skill? Any fool with a stick of dynamite can win that sort of distinction.

Three centuries ago in "The Compleat Angler" Izaak Walton wrote: "Doubt not but angling will prove to be so pleasant that it will prove to be, like virtue, a reward to itself."

Those who gain the greatest relaxation and contentment from fishing realize that it is not what you catch but how you catch it that truly denotes angling skill. And angling skill is best reflected in fly-fishing, which reduces the element of luck to its minimum.

A fly fishermen seeks to land the largest possible fish on the smallest possible fly. A one-pound trout may thus give him as much personal satisfaction as a trolling-rod fan gains from a 10-pounder.

Today, an era in which it appears public results count more than private satisfaction, most of our anglers seem to be losing sight of angling's true virtue. It is a sad commentary on one of man's noblest pursuits.

Bird hunting made easy

THEY'RE taking the "hunting" out of bird hunting. . . The feathered victims didn't have much of a chance before, but now United States hunters are cutting out most of the guess work — and part of the fun.

U.S. sportsmen say their shooting preserves are the answer to the country's dwindling supply of game. But are they not simply the answer for the lazy hunter who hates to get up early and walk all day without being sure of bagging a bird?

There now are more than 1,000 preserves scattered throughout the U.S. The vogue is expected to move into Canada.

The typical preserve has 400 to 500 acres of land stocked with pheasants or ducks, chukar or quail.

Visitors wander through the bird-filled acres popping off as many birds as they want. There is no bag limit. They pay about $5 a bird on the less expensive preserves and more at clubs where lodges, meals, hunting dogs and refreshments are provided.

Other preserves release ducks to fly from a tower and across a few acres to a lake. The hunters, lined along the flight route in steam-heated blinds, shoot at will.

There are still hunters who maintain that getting up before the sun, driving and trudging for miles, and sitting half-frozen for hours behind a blind is part of the fun of hunting.

Others get a thrill out of slipping Indian-like through the brush, never knowing when — if at all — a bird will flutter into their sights — the hoped-for and yet unexpected game.

Proponents of the preserves maintain you still need the skill to hit your bird, but isn't it like shooting ducks at a penny arcade?

Viewpoints and perspectives

WE MUST make sure that every reasonable thing is done to encourage visitors to think well of us. We must provide adequate services, give him a square deal, and see that he has no valid complaint as to his treatment.

HARNESSING THE FLOOD

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

My blood pressure

My doctor tells me that unless I have an accident of some kind, I ought to live to be a hundred. He checks me every year, listens to my bill of complaints about this ache and that pain, then laughs at me. "Not a darn thing wrong with you, skinny," he says. "You'll just have to put up with it — you're healthy as a young chipmunk." A month ago, however, he found something wrong.

"Ummm,' said he, "your blood pressure is pretty high for you."

"Ha," I told him. "I knew darn well there was something wrong . . been getting those dizzy spells again. A bit of migraine headache, too, and I get tired if I have to run, and . . . "

"Hold it!" he said. "Let's not go all through that again." He fixed me with an accusing stare. "No reason, physically, why your blood pressure should be up," he said, as if I wanted to have high blood pressure. "What's the matter? Have you got a hate on? What's bugging you?"

"Nothing's bugging me," I said, "except that I guess I'm in pretty bad shape, and that's what I came here for. If you weren't just a quack, you'd fix me up." My doctor is a crank, you see, and you can talk to him that way sometimes without getting hit on the head with a stethoscope.

"Try to think," he said. "Something's bugging you. Somebody cut in on you driving over here? Or did some discriminating publisher send you a rejection slip instead of a cheque for that drivel you turn out? Think, now, it's important."

"Well," I admitted, "there was a guy in a green coupe — darn near clipped me, wasn't watching where he went . . . "

"Ah," said the doctor. He had his instrument strapped to my arm and was pumping merrily away. "Probably you were dawdling or something, and he had to get around you — "

"Dawdling!" I said. "Why — "

"Ah," said the doctor, "you gained ten points just talking about it. You're plugged full of resentment. You — "

"You tricked me," I said.

"You're tricking yourself," he answered. "Come back next week and we'll check. Try to grow up in the meantime."

I have been back twice. Blood pressure normal. Except that the doctor gave me one heck of a lecture.

"Resentments can kill people," he said. "Regulate yourself, not the other guy. Men can't afford resentments. You drive your car, let the other fellow drive his. That goes for lots of other things, too. Don't try to regulate anybody but yourself."

Well, I guess the old quack was right. He usually is, but it sort of puts my blood pressure up to admit it!

KNOW YOUR Canada

What is a Scoot?

In the 1920's at Sans Souci, a small island community often isolated in the winter, a small speedy craft propelled by an aircraft motor, with its propeller mounted at the back, was developed for winter travel. Today the scoot, as it is called, is used primarily for general travel, hauling supplies and mail and for ice fishing among the Thirty Thousand Islands of Georgia Bay. It is the only known craft capable of navigating without loss of speed in various conditions of ice, slush, snow and open water.

The typical scoot is a homemade craft. A framework of hardwood strips is covered with plywood and sheeted on the bottom with either 14-guage galvanized iron or steel, curving slightly fore and aft to give it a smaller riding surface when travelling on top of ice or snow. A small ice rudder or sometimes air rudder is used for steering. For a 900 pound scoot with a 125 m.p.h. engine a cruising speed of 40 to 50 m.p.h. is usual, though on smooth ice upwards of 100 m.p.h. has been attained. Scoots are used in any weather and under any condition except in high sea.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Cars and airplanes are governed by strict laws. But motorboats are allowed to run almost anywhere and anyhow their owners please.

In some waters, speedboats have already become a dangerous nuisance. Feather-headed yokels at the wheel have struck swimmers, severed fishing lines, nearly swamped tiny children wading near the shore and driven waterfront dwellers out of their wits by roaring around in circles just off shore, for hours on end.

Some of them run their motorboats at night when they do not have the smallest chance of seeing a swimmer's head in the water.

When people in my locality demand action, police always reply that the complainants will have to get the license numbers of the boats and lay charges themselves.

But the boats don't always have license numbers, and when they do, the numbers are so small that they can only be read from close quarters. Nobody could make out the license number of a boat screaming past at 40 miles an hour, and the police know it.

There just are not enough policemen to patrol the waters. So when police get complaints, they alibi their way out of attending them.

Airplanes are forbidden to fly low over cities. Cars must observe speed limits. They may not drive around playing fields or parks, but are expected to stay on the roads. Drivers and pilots must pass tests.

But motorboats may be driven anywhere by anyone who has the strength to climb into the driver's seat.

A small lake with a number of houses around it is very much the same as a public park or playing field. One is water, the other land. The authorities would never allow racing cars to roar around and around the public playground at all hours of day or night, running down children who were trying to play baseball or marbles, raising a dust that covered the washing, and making a noise that gave headaches to everyone who lived within a mile of the field.

Yet they allow motorboat men to scream around and around a settled lake, making just as much nuisance of themselves as racing car drivers would be in a park.

Surely it would be reasonable to ask motorboat people to stay within certain limits, just as car drivers must do.

On big lakes they could be allotted sizeable areas of their own, to use whenever they liked, and on middle-sized lakes moderate areas which they could use two or three days a week. As for small settled lakes, power boats should be ruled off them altogether, just as racing cars are ruled off parks and playgrounds. Speedboats should also be barred from lakes that are wildlife sanctuaries.

The Federal government, which at present has jurisdiction over navigable waters, should pass a motorboat code which is just as strict as the provincial vehicle code. Some of its features should be:

Thorough examinations for all motorboat drivers. No drunks, half-wits or persons under 16 allowed to drive a motorboat, on pain of a heavy fine. License numbers to be printed on the side of boats in letters two feet high, as letters are printed on aircraft wings.

A license fee of $2 a year on all motorboat drivers, and from $5 to $20 a year on all marine motors, outboard or inboard, according to horsepower; the proceeds to be used to finance a force of water police who would keep an eye on motorboat drivers and arrest them when they broke the law.

Medical research aims at a longer, happier life for you and your children

Thanks to untiring research, many dangerous diseases are under control today. A number of other "killers", however, are still unsolved problems.

In the over-all research effort being made to solve them, the medical schools of Canadian universities are playing an important part.

To help strengthen and develop their research programs, the Life Insurance Companies in Canada are providing research Fellowships to these universities, every year.

Fellowships are awarded to graduates who have been appointed to teaching or research staffs of Canadian medical schools. During the past nine years 107 Fellowships of this nature, amounting to half a million dollars have been granted.

Esteemed citizen, Joseph McMahon, laid to rest

After an illness of several months an old citizen of Lachute, Joseph McMahon, passed away at his home on Bethany Street on Friday, July 25.

Born in Crystal Falls on June 7, 1877, "Joe" (as he was affectionately known), was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McMahon. In 1908 he was married to Mary McAllister.

In 1930 he and his family moved to Lachute, where they still reside.

Left to mourn his passing are his wife, four daughters, Gertrude, Agnes (Mrs. J. Pearson), Grace and Ruth, also three grandchildren and two brothers, William and Samuel, five nieces and three nephews. Two sons, Douglas and Clarence, predeceased him in 1928, also a sister, Mrs. D. Leishman, in 1929.

Funeral services were held from Lachute United Church on Monday afternoon, the Rev. W. Bridge conducting the service. A favorite hymn of the deceased, "No Night There", was sung by Mrs. Fred Shaw, of Hawkesbury. The previous evening, the rites of the Masonic Order were observed by brothers of the fraternity, at a service in the MacKimmie Funeral Home.

Pall-bearers at the funeral were Messrs. Matthew Elder, William Doherty, Albert Stewart, Thomas McMahon, Drs. Lewis Lloyd and Russel McMahon.

Interment took place in Lachute Cemetery.

Late Mrs. Robert J. Millar

Former friends regretted the passing of Mrs. Marian E. Millar, wife of a former Presbyterian minister at St. Andrews East, the Rev. Robert J. Millar. Mrs. Millar died July 20 at Fredericton, N.B., and her remains were brought for burial in the family plot at Lachute Cemetery. She was in her 85th year.

The Rev. and Mrs. Millar filled the pastoral charge at St. Andrews for about six years, then moving to Fort Coulonge, Que., for several years. They returned to St. Andrews in their retirement, later living in the east ward of Lachute, where Mr. Millar supplied occasionally in the Presbyterian pulpit. He predeceased his wife by many years. Mrs. Millar has since resided in Montreal, and latterly in New Brunswick.

Surviving are two daughters and two sons — Mrs. Cecil Guy, of Houlton, Me., Mrs. Lenore M. Kempton, of Montreal, R. Marshall Millar, of Saint John, N.B., and T. Holden Millar, of Temple City, Cal. Among her many grandchildren, Robert Woods, now of Barrie, Ont., is remembered by associates of the family here. There are also several great-grandchildren.

Service at the MacKimmie Funeral Chapel, and rites at the graveside, were conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. Harold Reid, minister of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church.

Bereaved by death of business leader

Late W. A. S. Ayerst

Sympathy is expressed to a Lachute resident, Mrs. J. K. (Doris) Campbell, in the death of her father, Mr. W. A. S. Ayerst, which occurred last Monday in the Montreal General Hospital. The late Mr. Ayerst was one of the founders of the firm of Ayerst, McKenna & Harrison, Ltd., pharmaceutical manufacturers, and was widely known in business, fraternity, athletic and social circles. The late Mr. Ayerst and his family had a summer residence on Lake Macdonald in this County.

He is survived by his wife, the former Cecilia Charlebois; three daughters, Mrs. Campbell, of Lachute, Mrs. G. D. Tilley (Margaret), Mrs. G. A. McCoy (Eileen), both of Montreal; a son, Fred A. Ayerst, of Lake Macdonald; a brother, Douglas Ayerst of Elkton, Maryland; six grandsons and one granddaughter.

The funeral was held today (Wednesday) in Montreal, with burial in the Mount Royal Cemetery.

(Our District Correspondent)

Calumet — The annual meeting of the Calumet branch of the Bible Society was held last week in Holy Trinity Church.

The Rev. DeCourcy Rayner, district secretary, conducted the business. He mentioned the loss of the late Mrs. T. G. Foreman, who for the past 12 years had been president of the Bible Society here.

The following officers were installed for the coming year — president, Mrs. G. B. Murphy; secretary, Mrs. Percy MacLean; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. John Hawkins.

Mr. Rayner then showed a color film entitled "For Every Man", which told the story of Bible Society work throughout the world, particularly in Canada and South America.

The Rev. P. R. Stote thanked Mr. Rayner for his interesting address and wished him good luck in his new position as editor of the Presbyterian Record in Toronto.

Bell Falls

Mrs. Rolland Racine and four little daughters have been spending a vacation at Warren's Cottage — to be joined by her husband and son, Robert, who have attended the world convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in New York City.

Early opening of new Main St. store

Encouraged by the increasing support of the local public, the management of Jos. Malaket & Sons Inc. has decided to open a ladies' lingerie branch in Lachute. The firm was first established here in 1913.

This new establishment will be situated in the former Bank of Nova Scotia premises at 472 Main Street. The firm of Omer Laurin & Fils, contractors, have been completely remodelling the site, while the interior furnishing is in the hands of Jacques Paquette, specialist in woodwork finishing.

It is hoped to hold the official opening of this ladies' shop around August 15.

TO THE PUBLIC:

Contrary to rumors, Dr. Marcel Sylvestre, of St. Andrews East, would like to inform all friends and readers that he is remaining in St. Andrews East and not moving his practice elsewhere.

McGibbon - Murdoch

The marriage of Willa Kathleen, daughter of Mrs. Murdoch and the late Mr. Theodore Murdoch, to Mr. James Gordon McGibbon, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McGibbon, took place recently in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute.

The floral decorations were carried out in pink and white gladioli, Shasta daisies and gypsophilia. The Rev. James Armour officiated. Mrs. W. M. Cottingham played the wedding music, and Mrs. Robert Blakely sang "The Lord's Prayer", "I'll Walk Beside You" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. J. A. Murdoch, the bride wore a full-length, white bridal gown of silk organza with short sleeves, scalloped neckline and the bodice of Chantilly lace delicately traced with seed pearls and multi-colored sequins. The full skirt was enhanced with lace appliqués and sequins. A small crown of matching lace, embroidered in seed pearls and sequins, held a short veil of tulle illusion. She carried a bouquet of pale pink roses with touches of green ivy, and wore the gift of the groom, a strand of cultured pearls with matching earrings.

Her sister, Miss Frances Murdoch, as maid of honor, wore a ballerina-length gown of petal pink organza fashioned with a full skirt and fitted lace bodice. She wore a large picture hat of white Swiss mohair, trimmed with pink velvet, and carried a cascade bouquet of white Shasta daisies.

Miss Marlene Murdoch, sister of the bride, and Miss Ann McGibbon, sister of the groom, were dressed alike in light turquoise ballerina-length gowns of silk organza. They also wore matching hats of white mohair trimmed with pink velvet, and carried bouquets of white Shasta daisies.

Miss Gretchen Foltz, as junior bridesmaid, wore a ballerina-length dress of white organdy, embroidered in pink. She wore a small picture hat of white mohair, trimmed with pink, and carried a small bouquet of pink nuggets.

Mr. Steve Sura, of Edmonton, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Jamison, Mr. Jim Campbell, Mr. Jim Murdoch and Mr. Ken Burnham.

Mrs. Murdoch, mother of the bride, wore a sheath organza frock of rosewood with navy accessories. She carried a corsage of white gardenias. Mrs. McGibbon, mother of the groom, was dressed in a lace frock of periwinkle blue with navy accessories, and wore a corsage of split carnations. Mrs. James Murdoch, grandmother of the bride, wore a teal blue gown and hat, with navy accessories.

Following the reception at the Lachute Golf Club chalet, Mr. and Mrs. McGibbon left by plane for Bermuda, the bride wearing a silk sheath frock of mint-green with matching jacket, moth accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. A. MacKenzie, Miss Lorna MacKenzie, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Alton Murdoch, of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Robert Foltz, Miss Gretchen Foltz, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. Hunter, of Clarenceville, Que.; Mrs. John McGibbon, of Powassan, Ont.; Mr. Bert Easton, of Sudbury; Mr. T. Wagg, of Toronto; Mrs. M. Davies, Mrs. M. Ferris, of Ottawa; Mr. Steve Sura, of Edmonton, Alta. A number of friends also attended from Montreal and vicinity.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

Many Races, Many Nationalities, United Under God's Kingdom

This is what true Christians have really been praying for: "Let your kingdom come. Let your will come to pass, as in heaven, also upon earth." The uniting of nations has already begun in the New World Society of Jehovah's Witnesses, and this is always expressed at their great assemblies held in different parts of the world. So interested persons may know the happenings from July 27 through August 3 at the Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses at New York City, the Watchtower Society will make available a complete report on the convention. You will want a copy of this 128-page report that will contain a goodly number of striking pictures of this assembly. Its cost will be merely 30c.

Ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet, or write — 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19. The book will be published August 15, or before that date.

Awarded Music Scholarship

The Ada Wagstaff Harris Scholarship in Music has been awarded to Miss Felicity Reading, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reading.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. Duncan Shaw wishes to thank kind friends in Harrington, Avoca, Calumet and Lachute for their letters, cards and flowers, during her recent illness.

Cushing minister to pastorate of Laval W. and St. Eustache

The Rev. J. Ralph Watson of Cushing has accepted a call to the United Church in Laval West and St. Eustache Village. His appointment will be effective October 1 next.

The Rev. Mr. Watson has been minister of the United Churches in St. Andrews East, Cushing, Grenville and Calumet for the past five years. For three years now he has also been supervising minister for Harrington, Avoca and Kilmar.

In his new charge Mr. Watson will be minister of a comparatively new congregation at Laval West and a very old congregation in St. Eustache Village. Both these communities are growing rapidly as part of the suburban development of Montreal.

Lachute United Church guest preacher from Fort St. John, B.C.

During the vacation period of the Rev. Wilson Bridge, several guest preachers have been arranged for the pulpit supply at Lachute United Church.

For the next two Sundays, August 10 and 17, the Rev. Robert F. Smith, of Fort St. John, B.C., will preach. He is a graduate of the University of Alberta and of St. Stephen's College, and was ordained to the ministry at Banff by the Alberta Conference last June.

The Rev. Mr. Smith is the first ordained minister at St. Luke's United Church, Fort St. John, a thriving community that has mushroomed in three years from 600 to over 5,000. It is situated in the heart of British Columbia portion of the Peace River Block, where farming and ranching enterprises have been eclipsed by the new petrochemical industry.

Mr. Smith will spend his vacation at Long Lake.

Last Sunday, the Rev. Dr. Heyworth, of Chicago and St. Andrews East, was the guest preacher. For over 30 years Dr. Heyworth has been coming to Lachute during the summer to conduct services.

C.W.L. retreat held at Ste. Marguerite

The first closed retreat sponsored by the St. Jerome Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League was held recently at the Manoir d'Esterel, Ste. Marguerite du Lac Masson.

Manoir d'Esterel, bought by His Excellency Bishop Frenette of St. Jerome this year for a diocesan retreat house, is ideally situated for this purpose. A winding road leads to the peninsula around which Lac Masson lies in a horseshoe, and the calm and peaceful atmosphere is broken only by the bells ringing for prayer and the call of the whippoorwills in the trees at night. The spacious grounds, the attractive rooms, and the warm hospitality of Rev. Father Pageau and the staff of Oblate Missionary sisters, combined to make this week-end a calm oasis of meditation and prayer in these harried days of atom bombs, cold wars and rising costs.

The retreat was attended by 16 members of the Catholic Women's League from St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac, Lachute and Rosemere, and was conducted by the Rev. Joseph McGreel, C.S.S.R., of Montreal.

Those attending from Lachute were Miss Lydia Lowe, Miss Lillian Harrison, Mrs. Martin Lowe and Mrs. Jules Lafleur.

WINS A FIRST

Winnipeg (CP) — Sandra Clarke, a pupil of St. Thomas' Sunday School, was awarded first place in Canada in the junior division of the General Board of Religious Education examination of the Anglican Church. She competed against hundreds of Sunday School pupils across Canada.

Bailly - McOuat

The marriage of Isabel Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Stewart McOuat, St. Andrews East, to Mr. Robert William Bailly, of Lachute, son of Mr. Elvin David Bailly and the late Mrs. Bailly of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, took place on Saturday, July 19, at three o'clock in St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, St. Andrews East. The Rev. W. Harold Reid, D.D., officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mr. Lowell Hopkins, of Montreal, played the wedding music and Miss Ruth Evans, of Lennoxville, Que., sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white pure silk organza and Alencon lace, fashioned on Princess lines with a portrait neckline. A yoke of lace adorned with sequins and cap sleeves prettily decorated the dress, which swept into a full flared skirt of organza over taffeta. A headdress of sequins and pearls held her veil of embroidered tulle illusion. She carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations and baby's breath. The bride's only ornament was a string of cultured pearls, the gift of the groom.

Her sister, Miss Frances McQuat, attended as maid of honor, and wore a ballerina-length dress of Romance blue pure silk organza over taffeta, with matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of white nugget pompoms.

Mr. Russell Burton, of Hudson Heights, Que., acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Mount, of Montreal, and Mr. Lucien Rossaert, of Lachute.

Mrs. McQuat, the mother of the bride, wore a silk gown of midnight blue, with navy and white accessories and a corsage of pink gladioli. Mrs. Bailly, the groom's step-mother, wore an afternoon gown of rosewood-colored silk, with a corsage of multi-colored sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailly will reside in Lachute.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. W. R. Skinner wishes to thank her many kind relatives and friends who remembered her while in hospital with flowers, cards and other expressions of their good wishes. Their thoughtfulness is sincerely appreciated.

Pardon us . . . while we "Point with Pride"!

When an after-dinner speaker starts "pointing with pride", experienced banqueters get settled for a long, wordy session. But relax! This is no after-dinner speech. . .

The kind of pride we point with, can be covered in four short words: Pride-in-the-Product!

Right from the time, nearly 65 years ago, when the first PURINA was hand-mixed with a scoop shovel and largely sold to local livery stables, there has been a pride in the quality of the product which has grown with the business.

Maybe we should put it the other way, for that is how it actually happened — the business grew because Purina people did take a real pride in the quality of their goods.

So pardon us if we "point". Customer response over the years has been so remarkable, so gratifying, we simply had to talk about it.

Sales of Purina passed the 50-million tons over two years ago, and are now within "shouting distance" of the 60-million-ton mark. That's more than any other feed manufacturer in the world has made — far more! And here's something really significant: More than half of that huge amount has been made, sold, and fed DURING THE PAST 10 YEARS. In other words, more feeders keep on coming back for more chows. . . They must have found that it pays to feed Purina!

about exchanging your
3% wartime Victory Bonds

1. What is the Canada Conversion Loan of 1958?

It is an offer to replace all unmatured 3% wartime Victory Bonds with new 25-year 4½% Canada Conversion Bonds. (Other bonds of shorter term, bearing interest rates of 4¼%, 3¾% and 3% are also available.)

2. Why is the Government making this conversion offer?

In order to reorganize the national debt on a longer term basis and thus reduce the volume of Government refinancing over the next few years. There is widespread public and business agreement that this is a sensible idea and will help protect the soundness of the Canadian dollar.

3. What interest will I receive on the new bonds?

On the 25-year bonds the interest rate is 4½%—this is 50% greater than the old Victory Bond rate. The increase on the 14-year and the 7-year bonds is also substantial.

4. As a Victory Bond holder, will I be required to make any additional payment?

No. On the contrary, you will receive an immediate cash adjustment.

5. Do I have to convert my Victory Bonds?

You may, if you wish, hold your Victory Bonds until maturity and on the due date you will be paid their full face value. The Conversion Loan offer is open only to Victory Bond holders; and the "right" to convert gives Victory Bonds a special value until the offer expires. This is because there are many people trying to buy them in order to invest in the new bonds.

6. What will be the total of my cash adjustment?

It will depend on the type of exchange. For example, a $500 8th Victory Bond exchanged for a $500 Conversion Bond paying 4½% will give you $8.75 in cash immediately. This includes earned interest.

7. Does this offer apply to Canada Savings Bonds and other Government of Canada Bonds?

No. This offer is limited to unmatured wartime Victory Loan Bonds only.

8. What steps should I take if I am away from home on vacation and wish to take advantage of this offer?

You should write immediately to your bank, investment dealer, stockbroker, trust or loan company, requesting literature and application forms.

9. Does it matter that the Victory Bond I hold is very small?

Every holder of a Victory Bond, even though the amount held may be only $50, should take advantage of this offer. It is in his best interests as well as in the best interests of Canada.

10. How long is this offer open?

Until September 15, 1958, but it is to your advantage to convert as quickly as possible and have the benefit of the immediate cash adjustment.

11. Where can I exchange my Victory Bonds?

At any bank, investment dealer, trust or loan company, or through your stockbroker.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Learning to obey

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Now these are the Laws of the Jungle, and many and mighty are they;
But the head and the hoof of the Law and the haunch and the hump is — Obey!"

So wrote Kipling in the refrain of the Law of the Jungle. Learning to obey Akela, the Wolf Cub leader, obey at once, and without question, is the first real training in obedience that many small boys receive.

Why is this? Is it not because many mothers and fathers are a bit confused on the subject. They see the over-strict parent who has been a dictator at home, demanding instant, unquestioning obedience is not training a child to stand on his own feet and make his own decisions as a grown-up. On the other hand, the too-indulgent parent who lets a child do as he likes or gives an order and does not see that it is carried out, also fails his child. He is not preparing him for a world where there are certain things he must carry out.

A child is unlikely to obey every time mother or daddy speaks to him! Sometimes his failure to obey is partly his parent's fault because the directions given to him were too complicated for a little child to follow. At another time he is absorbed in his play and mother does not make sure that he heard and understands her command. It is little wonder that he does not do what he is told!

There is always a reason, (although sometimes it is hard to find!) for contrariness. Disobedience may be a bid for attention from a child who longs for a little more loving or more interest in his small affairs on the part of the mother or dad. Every healthy pre-school child passes through a "negative" stage when he wants to say "No! No!" to almost every suggestion.

What are some practical suggestions to parents struggling with the problem of avoiding conflict and establishing the habit of obedience?

Make it easy for a child to obey! Parents should agree on the minimum essential things to which the child must conform in his daily routine. Never let Junior set one parent's word over against the other parent's wishes, in order to get his own way! Mother's request should never be disputed or questioned by father, and vice versa.

Never give a command unless you are in a position to see to it that your child carries it out. Give as few orders as possible, mean each command you give, and expect obedience from your child. Tact and courtesy are as important in dealing with a child as in any relationship.

Never shout or whine at a child in order to frighten him or arouse his sympathy to get obedience. Last, but not least, put yourself in your child's place when you give an order. Is it a reasonable request?

Is this command consistent with the "rules" which he had to obey yesterday? A normal child will usually respond to sensible orders, which he knows he must carry out. Mother and father should see the habit of obedience as a necessary part of character training, but parents should not expect never to be opposed.

Is it not strange how often imperfect fathers and mothers expect perfect obedience all the time from their child? This is setting too high a standard for any healthy normal youngster with a will of his own.

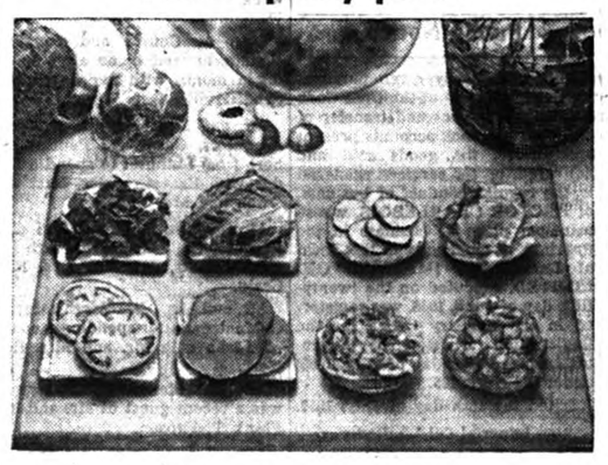

Learning to obey the requests of parents and those in authority is a slow process. Mothers and fathers usually agree that in thinking of obedience they must keep in mind training a child to grow into a self-disciplined adult. The little child needs a good deal of definite direction from mother and father. But as the years pass, a boy or girl should become increasingly responsible for his or her actions. Possibly Keith Preston was thinking of this when he wrote:

"I am captain of my soul;
I rule it with stern joy;
And yet I think I had more fun
When I was a cabin boy."
— from An Awful Responsibility.

LESSONS IN PLAY

At Timmins, Ont., more than 50 persons attended the Northern Ontario playground leadership training course. They were taught how to teach children to play, and how to supervise children's games and arts and crafts.

Pack a pretty picnic

A picnic means different things to different people. It may be a pack-up lunch for the family to eat out in the backyard, or it may involve foods to cook out on a fire at the beach. The picnic menu may be either simple or elegant. The choice of foods for the picnic depends on many things . . . such as the distance it must travel and the equipment available for keeping foods chilled in transit. Sandwiches made from a variety of breads and rolls are the mainstay items of most picnics. It's a good idea to take along the "makings" for sandwiches . . . such as salad greens, vegetables fresh from the garden, cream cheeses, shrimp and lemon juice and a tuna salad, the recipe for which is given below. Of course suitable dressing must also be taken along as well as crisp relishes, olives and pickles. To complete the menu we suggest cookies, fresh fruit and your favorite beverage. A few suggestions for sandwiches are also given below. Those in Group 1 travel easily; but the items listed in Group 2 must be kept on ice or in insulated bags while in transit.

Group 1 — Peanut butter, Jellies or Jams. Tomato, green pepper or other vegetables. Anchovy paste.

Group 2 — Seafood or fish. Eggs. Meat. Chicken or poultry. Cottage or cream cheese.

Tuna Sandwich Filling

Yield — sufficient filling for 4 large sandwiches (8 slices of bread).

1 can (approx. 7½ ounces) tuna, 1 tablespoon chopped capers or toasted almonds, 1 tablespoon finely-chopped parsley, mayonnaise or other thick dressing, salt and pepper.

Drain and flake tuna; add capers or toasted almonds and parsley; moisten to desired consistency with mayonnaise or other thick dressing. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Keep refrigerated.

Canadian W. Institutes to be represented at Triennial Conference

Topics connected with the next Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World were on the agenda of the Q.W.I. executive meeting in Montreal last week. This international gathering will be held next year in Edinburgh, and all constituent societies are asked to have nominations and resolutions in at the head office, London, before September 1 this year.

Provinces are also being canvassed to ascertain the number of W.I. members who may wish to join a Canadian group which will tour the British Isles prior to the convention. Mrs. J. H. Adams, past president, Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, is in charge of arrangements and is asking for this information as soon as possible.

Wedding ceremony at Brownsburg

MacIntyre - Tomalty

Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday, July 19, when Miss Joyce Elizabeth Tomalty, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Tomalty, became the bride of Mr. Leonard Erwin MacIntyre, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin MacIntyre, of Grenville, Que.

The church was decorated with baskets of white lilies and blue delphiniums for the 3.30 o'clock ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Wm. Toller.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white embroidered nylon net over satin, which was designed with fitted bodice, buttoned to the waist in the back, a sabrina neckline, and long sleeves coming to a point over the hands. A coronet of pearls and sequins held her shoulder-length veil of nylon tulle illusion, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Grace Tomalty, as bridesmaid, wearing a ballerina-length gown of sky blue nylon over taffeta with matching headpiece; she carried pink carnations.

Miss Sheryl Lynn Tomalty, niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore pink nylon organdy and carried a nosegay of white baby mums.

Mr. Gary Crooks was best man and the ushers were Mr. James Tomalty, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ronald Cavanagh, cousin of the groom.

During the signing of the register, Mr. Linton Tomalty, cousin of the bride, sang Mendelssohn's arrangement of "O Perfect Love", and Mrs. Cedric Wheeler played the wedding music.

The supper was held in the church hall, and later in the evening a reception and dance was held at MacIntyre's Hall, Grenville, where about 300 guests were present.

The happy couple left later for a trip to Lake Placid, N.Y. For travelling the bride wore a moss green two-piece ensemble with white accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. Jas. Tomalty, of Leduc, Alta., Mrs. Arthur Pollock, of Galt, Ont., Mrs. Ernest Tomalty and Miss Jean Tomalty, of Montreal, and Mr. Robert Gibson, of Ottawa.

Marriage rites at Avoca church

Kelly - Bates

In St. Andrews United Church, Avoca, the marriage took place recently of Margaret Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bates, of Avoca, to Mr. Thomas David Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kelly, also of Avoca.

The Rev. Ralph Watson officiated, assisted by Mr. George Clifford, student pastor. Mrs. Russell Owens played the wedding music, and summer flowers were used to decorate.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of imported Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin. The bodice was fashioned in a low, scalloped neckline encrusted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The long sleeves ended in points over the hands, and the bouffant skirt was of Chantilly lace and tulle. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a matching lace headdress encrusted with seed pearls, and she carried a crescent bouquet of Better Times roses and stephanotis.

Attending the bride was Miss Enid Bates as maid of honor and Miss Joan Vaillancourt as bridesmaid, in gowns of pure silk organza, styled alike with scooped necklines and brief sleeves. Bows and sashes fell from the V-shaped backs, with bouffant skirts falling from elongated waistlines. They wore matching petaled bandeaus and carried crescent bouquets of aqua and yellow carnations. Miss Bates was in aqua, and Miss Vaillancourt in yellow.

Little Miss Dianne Trineer, niece of the groom, as flower girl, was in a white bouffant frock of nylon organdy with a wide sash and bow. She wore a bandeau of flowers matching her crescent bouquet of miniature mums and feathered carnations.

Mr. Jack Kelly, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Robert Dobbie, Mr. Cecil Young and Mr. David Bates.

Mrs. Bates, the bride's mother, was in a ciel blue costume of pure silk. She wore a matching petal hat white accessories and a corsage bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Kelly, mother of the bridegroom, wore a printed silk dress with matching navy duster, white hat and accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of white carnations.

The reception was held in Campbell's Hall, Bell Falls, where summer flowers were used to decorate.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Kelly left for their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a ciel blue silk linen suit, matching hat, white accessories and a corsage bouquet of pink carnations.

They will reside in Hartland, N.B.

Auto driving tests

The next series of driving tests will be held at the Government Garage in Lachute on August 12 and 13.

Pretty wedding at Morin Heights

Axford - Watchorn

The marriage of Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Watchorn, to Mr. John Roger Axford, son of Mr. John Axford and the late Mrs. Axford, of Montreal, took place recently in Trinity Anglican Church, the Rev. H. G. Baugh officiating.

White baby mums and greenery were used to decorate the church. Mr. Carl Elder played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white embroidered nylon over taffeta and net, fashioned with a fitted bodice and full, bouffant skirt, the front being draped in panier-effect and caught at the side by a bow. Her veil of tulle illusion fell from a band of sequins, and she carried a bouquet of white daisies.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Keith Garayt, wore a ballerina-length gown of shock pink organza over net, and matching feather hat, and carried yellow daisies.

Nancy Payne, junior bridesmaid, wore pale blue nylon with a matching band of daisies in her hair, and carried a basket of daisies.

Mr. George Payne acted as best man, while Mr. Keith Garayt and Mr. Murray Elder were ushers.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Watchorn, wore a printed silk gown with white accessories and a corsage of pink gladiolus.

After a reception at the Alpino Hotel, the bridal couple left for a motor trip to Atlantic City, N.J., the bride travelling in a mint-green sheath frock with matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow mums. Upon their return they will reside in Montreal.

Bible Society Meeting

A well attended meeting of the Bible Society took place on Sunday evening in the United Church hall. Mr. Rayner, guest speaker, gave an interesting address on the work of the Society, and also showed interesting pictures in connection with the work.

Bazaar and Entertainment

The Ladies' Union of the United Church held their annual bazaar Saturday evening in the school. Despite the many other attractions on the same evening, there was a fair attendance, and the various booths were well patronized. A short program was given, composed of duets, solos, quartets and ending with a skit by members of the Ladies' Union, who appeared in sack dresses, adding much to the fun. A rendition of old favorite songs brought the program to a close. A substantial sum of money was realized which will be used in the work of the church.

The Ladies' Guild of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. S. Swail. Routine business was conducted, and refreshments were served.

Recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. S. Swail's were — Mr. and Mrs. J. Neill and family, of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. D. Kilpatrick and family, of Morin Heights, Mrs. D. Campbell and family, of Toronto.

Week-end visitors at the home of Mrs. Alvin Graham were Mr. and Mrs. G. Keuster, Margaret Graham, and Mr. B. Toeppner, all of Montreal.

To all holders of VICTORY BONDS

The Minister of Finance has announced an offer to replace all unmatured 3% Victory Bonds with the new

Canada Conversion Loan 1958

You are now offered the opportunity to convert into the new non-callable maturities as follows:

25-year	4¼% bonds	due 1 Sept. 1983
14-year	4¼% bonds	due 1 Sept. 1972
7-year	3¾% bonds	due 1 Sept. 1965
3½-year	3% bonds	due 1 Dec. 1961

In no case will the bondholder be required to make any payments to convert into the new longer term bonds on which you will receive a higher interest rate. In most cases there will be an immediate cash adjustment payable to you on presentation of your old bonds.

We strongly recommend that all holders of unmatured Victory Bonds take advantage of this offer and turn in their old bonds to us immediately.

Calcutta Tournament winners

The winning team was widely acclaimed in their decision to return to the Lachute Regional Hospital Fund $2,000 of their winners' purse. This amount is to be added to the total of $3,412.50, which was the hospital's share of the total take. In all, 31 teams took part in the event.

Richelieu Club annual field day and harness racing

Details organized for successful venture this Saturday afternoon

The big Richelieu Club field day is billed for this Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds, including the annual harness racing classics which attract enthusiastic interest. All profits go to the Club's fund for the aid of underprivileged children.

Roger Martel, committeeman for the racing program, indicates a number and quality of entries to ensure keen competition. There are eight harness events with purses from $100 to $175. Horses entered to date are listed from Brownsburg, St. Eustache, Ste. Genevieve, Alexandria, Maxville, Angers, St. Jerome, Rigaud, Grenville, Oka, St. Paul l'Hermite, and Wales, Ont. In two of the events, young lady drivers will vie for the honors.

A bingo, with $500 in prizes, will be played between the racing events. Maurice Richard, idol of hockeydom, will grace the occasion — by courtesy of Dow Breweries and their agent here, J. René Laurin. Another highlight of the field day will be the grand drawing for an automatic washer-dryer provided by collaboration of J. Roger Lamarche, local dealer. Tickets have been on sale for some time; the booklet cover gives admission to the grounds.

Jean-Louis Blais and Eugène Rochon are in charge of general arrangements of this fourth annual Richelieu charity event. The first race on the afternoon bill is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Wins $200 award in national essay contest

Raymond Campeau, 18-year-old graduate this year from l'Ecole Secondaire, Lachute, has won a $200 prize in a national essay contest sponsored by New York Life Insurance Company.

Subject and title of the essay, in which some 370 communities sent entries, was "My Career in Canada During the Next 25 Years". The topics ranged all the way from astronomy to zoology. Campeau's essay dealt with a career in the world of commerce.

Top winner in the High School division in which the local student competed, was Marielle Tetreault, 17, of Stanstead, Que. A pupil at the Ursuline Convent in Stanstead, she wrote about her future career as a librarian. Winning $350 for a regional award, she will also receive a trip to Toronto and visit points of interest, as the national winner.

Lawrence P. Burns, 20, of Leduc, Alta., a third-year student at the University of Alberta, was national winner in the University division of this contest. His regional prize was $500, with an additional $500 award as grand prize winner.

City Fathers speed proceedings, heat oppressive, business light

Heat, humidity, and a light agenda curtailed proceedings to a minimum at the August session of Council, presided over by Mayor Léopold Carrière last Wednesday. Details had been dealt with in a caucus the previous day, and the order of business was a general adoption of decisions and their entry in the minutes. Germain Filion, now a veteran of many Councils, occupied the secretary's seat.

On request of Clifton Scott, president of the new Lachute Automobile Club, permission was granted for use of the auditorium from time to time for the showing of films and for other public assemblies to promote traffic safety and courtesy. The Mayor commended the formation and objectives of this group, and extended good wishes of the Council.

Ald. Edgar O. Pollock was named pro-mayor for the ensuing three months.

Ald. Pollock, seconded by Ald. Stanley Holt, moved acceptance of a resignation from Lieut. Oscar Sabourin, with good wishes for his success in the position of Police Chief at Thurso.

On recommendation of Germain Filion as financial advisor, Ald. W. Morrisette gave notice of motion for a measure prescribing mode of payment of a special tax (By-law 202), payable by owners of Brownsburg Road properties served by a sewer constructed under that by-law. The measure will likewise determine credits allowed, if any, for payments made in 1948, 1953, 1957 and 1958 by proprietors concerned in those years.

Recent rainstorms have caused flooding in certain sections of town; and a claim of $523 for damages caused by alleged backing-up of water in the basement of J. C. Desjardins' store premises on Evelina Street, was one sequel to these tribulations. The claim related to a deluge which occurred July 6 last. The Council assigned its special investigator, Chas.-Emile Dorris, to ascertain whether the complaint was well founded, and to report his findings at next meeting.

A request from B.A. Oils for permission to raise the level of their fuel tanks situated in the C.P.R. yards, was tabled. The secretary was asked to acknowledge this request, at the same time suggesting this might be an appropriate time for the Company to remove its tanks to some other place than the centre of the town.

Accounts amounting to $29,062.25 were passed for payment. One item in these current expenses was $18,000 for the property valuation survey now under way.

Gaetan Blais was given authorization to lay an extension to a sewer branching west from Chatham Street through the McGibbon property and emptying into the West River — the installation being made at the proprietor's expense.

Town finances for first half of current year

A financial statement for the first half of the civic year, terminating June 30, was presented to Council by the firm of Corry & Moore, chartered accountants. Commenting on the document, Mayor Léopold Carrière observed that the town finances were parallel with, or slightly better than, those shown for the same period last year. If there is a deficit at the year's end, it will be a minimal figure. A sum of $73,000-odd is available for administration costs in the next six months, but demands will be heavy on this fund.

Immoveable assets appear on the statement at $934,891.16; accounts payable, $37,505.75; present surplus $73,061.93.

In the matter of revenues, the Mayor drew attention of the Police Committee chairman to a divergence between estimated receipts and actual receipts in this department during the first half-year. The budget estimate of revenues had been set at $3,000, whereas the actual takings in fines and fees amounted to only $227 — representing a difference of $2,773.

The statement, presenting an accurate picture of the municipality's financial affairs, was unanimously adopted. The only councillor absent was Ald. Lauréat Laurin.

Runaway car on Kilmar hill at Calumet

Four occupants of a 1946-model car escaped serious injury Sunday evening when their brakes failed near the intersection of the Kilmar Road and Route 8 at Calumet. The car was driven by Lionel Cousineau, 17, of Chute à Blondeau. Despite his efforts to stop the auto, it ran wild down the hill, through the intersection and came to a stop on the C.P.R. tracks a considerable distance across the highway.

Three occupants of the car were taken to the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury, where they were treated for minor injuries.

At Bourbonnière Camps

Robert Cariduff, 27, of Montreal, early Saturday morning lost control of his 1957 sedan near the Bourbonnière Camps, Route 41, and turning around twice on the pavement, hit a pole, demolishing the car. He was not seriously injured. Both accidents were investigated by Traffic Officer Paul Perrier.

Calumet businessman combines historical museum with grocery and restaurant

The August 17 edition of La Patrie devotes a double-page story, with numerous illustrations, to the antique-collecting hobby of Harry Druce, owner of a restaurant and service station at Calumet. Mr. and Mrs. Druce and their family are pictured among the firearms, ancient tools, missiles, weapons and domestic devices which Harry Druce has gathered through the years. The fact that these relics are displayed around his shelves, in proximity to the groceries and canned goods which he sells, adds a rare touch of interest to his place of business, and a modern contrast to his ancient exhibits. . . In the words of Hervé Lepine in La Patrie: "Travellers who stop at Les Bouleaux Restaurant to buy provisions, or to fill up with gas, invariably stop a while longer than elsewhere — attracted by the bombs and guns, the deer horns, the old churns and weapons, standing side by side with his candies, preserves, soft-drinks and soap powders." . . .

Mr. Druce, who came here from Lancashire, England, in 1919, speaks excellent French and typifies the bonne entente existing between the residents of both nationalities around Calumet and Grenville. His wife and three children promote the same friendly spirit. (Mrs. Druce, incidentally, has been The Watchman's Calumet district correspondent for many years.) Continues the article: "Harry Druce is always looking for antiques. He buys, but never sells. . In his basement he showed us a 'toaster' used in days of cooking and heating with open grates. There were kitchen utensils used by the first settlers of New France . . . ancient clocks . . . old paintings . . . primitive carpenter's tools . . . old letters dating back to the 1700's in handwriting very different from the style of today."

"If you are passing Calumet on Route 8, stop off with some useless antique, which may be a 'white elephant' to you but will delight the heart of Harry Druce," concludes this story, in effect. . . And readers may do just that. Perhaps even the residents around may visit this collector and find rare interest in his hobby!

Numerous building permits show expansion in Ayersville property

Many more building permits were approved in Ayersville Municipality at the regular Council session last week, under presidency of Mayor Maurice Champagne. . . Councillor Douglas Simon (who dissented on the recent measure to re-name Brownsburg Road within the Ayersville limits) was conspicuously absent.

All accounts for current operations were approved with the exception of a bill from the Town of Lachute. The Mayor suggested that this account, for $525, be set aside pending adjustment; the bill pertains to a fire on the night of July 30-31, in which the Lachute Fire Department was engaged for seven hours in subduing the blaze, charged at a rate of $75 an hour.

On request of the Rev. Louis Roux and of Ronaldo Lascelles, president of the Loisirs fund, the Council voted a grant of $150 to this recreation effort.

A letter from Roger Regimbal asking installation of water and sewers to the site of the new Hospital construction, was tabled pending the advice and services of an engineer.

Building permits were granted to — Roger Girard, for construction of a garage on Tessier St.; Pierre Malette, a restaurant; Théodore Ménard, extension to his property on St. Augustin; Lionel Charron, renovations; Albert Seguin, extension to a house on Ayers St.; Pierre Malette, a private garage; Palacien Desforges, a house on Corbeil St.; Gilles Malette, private garage; L.-J. Bigras, a store extension.

Before conclusion of the meeting, Councillor Maurice Dumas was called upon by the secretary-treasurer to establish his qualifications for office, in regard to property ownership; the changing of a name on the valuation roll on his acquisition of property; his status as a school teacher, etc. It appears certain residents had doubted his eligibility to the Council seat, and it was to clear up these doubts that he was asked to state his qualifications.

Street crash disrupts power, damages home

Power was temporarily disrupted at 7.55 Saturday evening when a car owned by Ken Paulus and driven by Emerson Albert, 23, both of Montreal, swerved out of control while meeting another car and crashed into a pole at the corner of Foundry and Main Streets, near the North River. The 1954 sedan then careened across the street, smashing a portion of the verandah on the corner house, owned by Fred Roberts.

Sgt. Marcel Therrien investigated the accident. As yet, no charges have been laid.

Catholic School Board allotted almost quarter-million dollar grant

A recent assembly of the Lachute Catholic School Commissioners was officially informed of a $231,862.50 grant from the provincial government, payable over 15 years. The advice was sent in a letter from the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines and representative for Argenteuil.

It is recalled that in 1956 Quebec Government passed a bill nullifying school debts, but due to certain technicalities the Catholic School Commission here could not take advantage of this concession. The current grant for almost a quarter-million dollars comes by way of compensation.

One immediate effect of this adjustment is to permit an increase in teachers' salaries without raising the school taxes. It will also provide wherewithal to meet additional costs for construction of school premises, and repairs made to certain school structures.

The grant is given by the Provincial Secretary, who has worked in collaboration with the local school authorities, the Department of Education and the Hon. Mr. Cottingham, insofar as school finances are concerned.

At the recent meeting of the Commission, Fernand Legault, Q.C., was re-elected chairman for the 12th consecutive term. Other members of the board are — Gérard Lefebvre, Gaëtan Leclair, Albert Legault and Dr. Roger Lavigne (recently re-elected).

Several charges of impaired driving

A 1958-model car recently acquired by the local detachment of Provincial Police was struck by an auto owned and driven by Viateau Major, 18, of Plantagenet, Ont., on Saturday evening, causing $130 damage.

The police vehicle was in charge of Traffic Officer Paul E. Perrier at the time of the mishap, which occurred at Grenville. The officer arrested the Ontario driver and laid a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol. He will appear in St. Jerome court next Tuesday, August 19.

Also appearing on charges of driving while their ability was impaired were R. Claude, 34, of St. Michel de Wentworth, who was arrested in Brownsburg, and Omer Allard, 51, of Carillon, arrested in St. Philippe.

Traffic Sgt. Roger Massie stresses the fact that these arrests are just the start of a continuing campaign on speeding and impaired driving.

Youth drowned in Lake near Christieville

A 19-year-old Montreal youth, Robert Masson, was drowned last Thursday evening at Lac Groulx, near Christieville.

The accident occurred after the victim had finished unloading a truck of lumber with several friends, who were planning to erect a summer camp. Masson, who could not swim, donned a bathing suit, and despite warnings of others nearby, jumped off a wharf into 11 feet of water, apparently believing the water was considerably shallower.

The body was recovered about two hours later by A. J. Whiteway and Gordon Allan, of Morin Heights, who along with others were summoned for assistance.

District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur pronounced the death accidental, due to drowning. Det.-Sgt. Ralph Allen, invistigated.

Brownsburg Council debates village sidewalks in asphalt

Zealous campaign underway to curb speeding and traffic infractions

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — The August 4 meeting of Brownsburg Council opened on an ominous note for traffic offenders in this village. Richard Gagnon, who had been appointed constable on a temporary basis only two weeks before, served notice that he intended to ensure that speed laws were obeyed within the town boundaries. He reported that 13 drivers had been fined for speed-limit violations and that a great many more had been given a warning. Fines for one red light and one stop-sign infraction had been assessed, along with one for disorderly conduct and another for indecent exposure.

Councillor George Therrien reported that he and Roland Lepine had teamed up the week-end prior to Constable Gagnon assuming the police duties, and issued 11 speeding tickets, two for red light and one for stop-sign violations.

Mr. Gagnon will be kept on in his present temporary status for another month, at which time a regular Police Chief will be appointed. Tenders for the position will be accepted at the office of the town secretary from 5 p.m. August 18 to 5 p.m. August 29. (An official notice to this effect appears elsewhere in this issue.) It should be noted that the office of the secretary will be closed from August 11 to August 15, inclusive.

Fire Chief A. Robbins reported another "good" month, with only one fire causing an estimated $50 damage, in an automobile.

Council approved payment of monthly vouchers to $2,621.56, and also passed a motion to pay Mr. G. Legault the sum of $1,153.29 for services rendered in drawing up plans for proposed water and sewerage systems. The request for permission to borrow money in order to build these proposed systems on Maple Avenue North and South, and 1st and 2nd Streets N.W., is now in the hands of the Hon. W. M. Cottingham. If approved, these projects will benefit Brownsburg greatly in providing serviced areas for those desirous of building homes.

While on the subject of town services, the Councillors discussed a request from residents of Bank Street N. to have a sidewalk constructed on one side of their street. Those requesting the improvement might gather from opinions expressed that the use of relatively inexpensive asphalt might provide sidewalks for more Brownsburg streets in the not-too-distant future.

A request from a number of McMaster Street residents asked that Council take action to curb the noise originating in their area on weeknights when the taxis congregated to wait for shift workers leaving the C-I-L plant at 12.30 a.m. Constable Gagnon was to be asked to investigate.

The meeting ended with a word of warning to the vandals responsible for destroying the two large light fixtures located on the Main Street bridge. Each of these fixtures costs the taxpayers $30, and with the rather tight budget being run by the Council, something or someone has to suffer. The Councillors were unanimous in stating that they would do all they could to ensure that chief among those suffering would be the ones responsible for willfully damaging public property.

Mid-town mishap—crashed into bridge

A Montreal driver, Guy Chausse, narrowly escaped immersion in the North River last Thursday afternoon while turning left from Main Street onto Barron's Bridge. Chausse, driving a 1953-model station wagon, stated he did not see a tractor-trailer approaching on the bridge, and in an effort to avoid an accident with the formidable vehicle, swerved into the end of the structure, smashing the railing — and the station wagon. The driver escaped injury. The accident was investigated by Officers Labelle and Poirier.

Light-keepers avert disaster on storm-swept Lake Ontario

Island exile ruminates on nature, dogs, human folly

By Bob Atchison

Main Duck Island,
South Bay, Picton, Ont.
July 14, 1958

Dear Editor:

A little better weather for a change, and a little swimming. Even though it's colder than the hinges of you-know-what. Of course, this lake never warms up to a degree of comfortable swimming, but who cares, as long as you can get a good wash comfortably. The joys of being a dope! No comforts of home on this job, for sure. At least, we have running water and an electric pump that gives us electricity (sometimes). A lot of fun. . . But we wouldn't trade it for anything. You know I haven't been off this island for over three months; it will be another three months at least, and most likely not then. . .

Now more about this electric pump. It's a Kohler gas pump really, that generates the electricity; it swills oil by the gallon, as a matter of fact as much oil as gas. It's a good job we only use it at night. At least we manage to get TV from the States. Not that it is so good. Some of the shows that we get the producers must think everyone looking at them are morons or just plain stupid. . . O.K., maybe I am, but not this bad.

This last week-end there was a beaut of a storm. The lightning was honestly frightening. Seeing it over so much open water, you begin to get it into your head just how small people are. Naturally there were no fishermen out on the lake, but on Saturday night I spotted two small cruisers trying to make the lee of the Island. No fooling, no big ships had even tried to come down, and here were these two dopes out in 18-foot runabouts. The Lord sure looks after FOOLS and DRUNKS! They were all mixed up in their charts (that is if they had them) and were heading right for the big reef that runs out from the tip of the Island. The only reason I spotted them was the fact their running lights showed through the rain once in awhile. It was 12.30 p.m., and there being no way to warn them of the reef even though the lighthouse was throwing out a powerful beam, the only thing to do was to stop the rotation of the light and try and get their attention by playing the beam on their boats. They finally managed to see it and heave to. The light was then thrown onto the whitewater over the reef. Boy, did they get out of there in a hurry. Anyway, they got close to the Island and stayed the night. They left early in the morning with no damage done except to their feelings. (I wonder why.) . . But all this makes life interesting for us. I'm glad I'm a teetotaler. Starting now.

Now some information on the fishing. It's the best I've ever seen. The Island just sticks out of the water, so naturally with it being like this, deep water starts about 100 feet from shore. You can walk almost right out to the ends of the ledges. The fish all hang around these spots just waiting for us. You never can tell what you will run into — pike, musky, greys, bass, perch, you name it and they are here. I really mean this. There are very few days that Edith and I don't get at least 100 keepers to put back, to say nothing of the smaller ones. I'm beginning to see why all the guide boats come out this way. The carp are still with us, but it won't be too long before they head for deep water.

Just a little sidelight. . . A couple of gents (and I use that word with my tongue in my cheek) were out for a couple of days. Naturally they were friends of the Big Boy. One of them was gun-happy. Everything that moved — a shot! Even the fish took a beating. About 25 carp were shot by him and not even taken out of the water, let alone used for food. Boy, I sure had a slow burn on. All I can say is, God help anyone on the Island in the fall when the Ducks and Deer are in season, if he comes back. Me, I'll get right off; I'm not paid to get shot!

We had a visitor this week-end. A beautiful cruiser anchored alongside on Friday night, and stayed until Sunday night. I was invited aboard. Wow! The boat was 52-feet long, powered by two Chrysler marine motors of 300 h.p. each. Top speed 40 m.p.h. Gas consumption — not miles per gallon, gallons per mile. Stateroom, two bedrooms, lounge, galley, showers, TV, phone, radio (ship to shore), and more carpets on the damned thing than any house. Cost? A guess, $40,000 to $50,000. It is owned by a Mr. Tobin, who is the head of the Tobin meat packing plants of Rochester, N.Y. Pin money to him, I guess. He sure was very generous with his liquids. I just remembered I'm a teetotaler. He also gave us a sample of his meats, etc., that is, Edith and self. They were good, too; naturally being free, they were better. When he heard how tough it was getting meats, etc., he stated he was coming back within a couple of weeks for some fishing and he would bring us a case of meats with his compliments. Maybe he will be back, maybe not.

The carp are just about finished spawning. A few late ones, but the fishermen have stopped coming out. Not worth their while to make the trip. I'm glad really. You see, if they get caught in a blow they land, and as they haven't any food with them, it's a free lunch. But they still charge us to bring our supplies. Great appreciation!

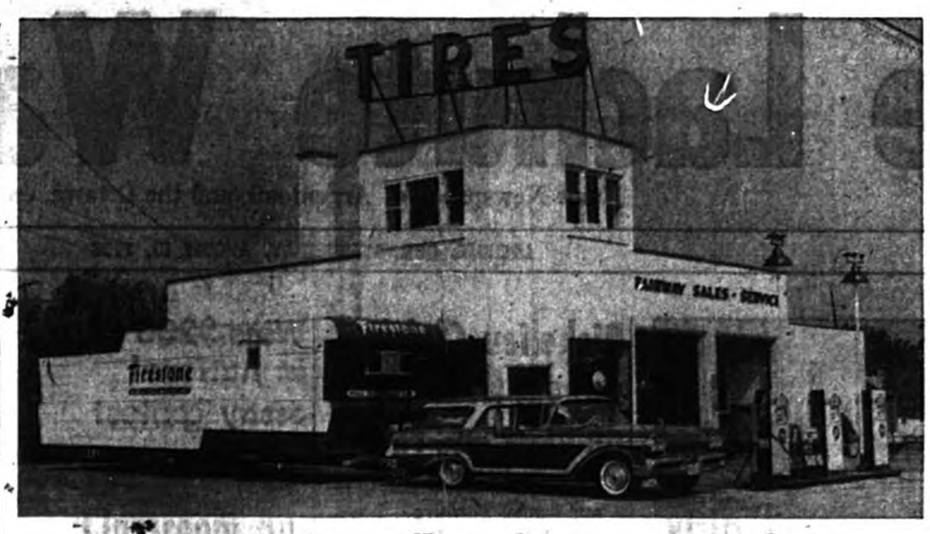

The weather is wonderful right now. It has been for the last week. Edith has been picking strawberries, the wild ones. If a person had the patience to just pick them, he would get bushels. Boy, are they good. Even the jam that Edith made is extra good. I'm just waiting for the raspberries to come out. I'm partial to them. Everywhere you go, there are wild canes. If this weather keeps up they won't be long, either. One thing about this place, nobody has been picking before you. I guess that way we get fussy, just the big ones. Spoiled? I think we are, too.

The snakes are still very plentiful; water type. I have been saving bullets on them. I use my fly rod and cast over them to try and hook them. It's not very successful, but maybe I'll improve on my retrieve. Even the dogs get into the act. They have fits when they spot the heads going through the water. Goldie now dives right under the water after them. That's the truth. She swims nearly as good under as on the top. Dusty is trying to copy her, too; so far she get her head under, but that is as far as she will go. It is queer to be in about 10-feet of water and see a dog come up. You can't keep Goldie out of the water, either. If she isn't after seagulls, it's rocks up from the bottom. It's funny to see them after the snakes; they haven't got enough brains to know they have no chance of ever getting them. At least, we say so. But they keep on anyway. Another little thing they both have picked up. Any dead fish they find along the shore, they roll in them. They come back proud as punch thinking they smell nice! If they only knew it, they are ripe. Especially when they come into a warm house. Boy, do they get chased out in a hurry! Thank goodness there are no skunks on the place; I hate to think what it would be like then. Another thing they like — there are thousands of moles around. They root into every place for them, and have been very successful at catching them. What do they do with them? Why, bring 'em home, of course. There are enough dead moles around to make coats of!

I haven't made up my mind if they are smart or just plain stupid, these dogs. I guess I'll end up saying they are smart, though. You know what dog owners are like. Their dogs are always the smartest!

July 30 —

This will be very short now. There is a fisherman coming our way. If he gets close enough for me to get out to him, this letter will be posted on time. Let's hope so anyway. As one of the American announcers on TV says, "Holy Toledo, I'm off"; truer words were never spoken.

Classroom and travelling showcase visits here

One of the most unusual classrooms in the country literally "rolled" into Lachute recently, stopping at the garage premises of Roger Legault, local Firestone dealer.

The classroom is really a 38-foot air-conditioned trailer painted a brilliant red and white, which made a stop here for the purpose of acquainting dealers, salesmen and fleet operators with the latest sales and service information about Firestone products. The giant trailer is equipped to handle meetings for 24 people at one sitting. In addition to its use as a classroom, the unit is also designed as a travelling showcase of Firestone products.

It is pulled by a station wagon and includes such meeting aids as a 16 m.m. projector, slide films and tape recorders. Sales training and product information films are combined with lectures and demonstrations to acquaint dealers on all phases of merchandising and selling.

The mobile training unit is the first of its kind in the Canadian rubber industry. Since 1955, it has covered about 50,000 miles from coast to coast across Canada. About 115 classes have been held each year.

Mr. Legault said the unit is presently making a 16-city tour of Quebec. The instructors are Mr. B. K. Ziemann, Mr. R. Vetterli, veteran Firestone salesmen.

Jacques Bourgoing takes Seigniory tennis title

On the Seigniory Club tennis courts at Montebello the Seigniory tournament, played last week-end by members and guests, was won by a local star, Jacques Bourgoing.

Bourgoing defeated his opposing finalist, Gérard Sauvé, also of Lachute, 6-3 and 6-0.

In the feminine division, Miss B. Ann Asche won the title against Miss L. Kenny, of Montclair, with 6-0, 3-6 and 6-2. Miss Asche, of Houston, Texas, is a member of the resident cabin colony at Seigniory Club.

Backstage sparring

By Milt MacPhail

Sometimes the best shows are backstage.

That's the way it was at New York's St. Nicholas arena a couple of weeks ago during a light-heavyweight bout between two relative unknowns, Willie Dockery and George Benton. Benton, the favorite, was upset in a close bout.

Arriving in his dressing room, Benton opened up with . . . "I don't know Frankie Carbo. I never saw the man in my life."

Carbo, a shadowy underworld figure, has been accused from time to time of pulling a lot of strings in boxing.

When the fight treasurer asked Benton to sign a receipt for his evening's pay the boxer shouted: "I won't sign anything. I'm not getting into trouble."

Seems Benton had been questioned that afternoon by New York State Athletic Commission officials. They wanted to know if he was acquainted with any underworld figures.

Gilles Despratto wins boys' tourney in local tennis

The Brunette Bros. trophy to the juvenile tennis star went to Gilles Despratto, while the Ayers trophy to the junior female champion was won by Denyse Patry.

The conclusion of the tournament here indicated that Lachute will boast some top-calibre players in the next few years. It will be interesting to watch the performance of these local juniors in the coming provincial tournaments.

There is still a boys' series under way, in which Serge Miron and Gilbert Murray are finalists competing for the Léopold Carrière trophy.

Golf champion, St. Andrews Club

Georges Langevin, of Carillon copped the amateur championship of St. Andrews Golf Club in a final round against Lorne Gates last Saturday.

Langevin had previously eliminated Normand Pesant, Jean Vezina and Pierre Crevier in successive rounds, finally defeating Gates for the amateur title.

'Secret weapon' from B'burg goes behind Iron Curtain

Montreal — Official wraps were removed this week from the "secret weapon" which the Canadian trap team will use at the world shooting championships at Moscow, August 13-27.

The "secret weapon" consists of two new types of shotgun shells especially developed by Canadian Industries Limited at its ammunition plant at Brownsburg. Several thousand rounds have been shipped by freighter to Moscow. It is the first time Canadian-made ammunition has ever been sent behind the Iron Curtain.

According to A. G. Elliott of C-I-L's ammunition division, the shells were especially developed for use on the Olympic-style trap shoot — the kind used in international shooting. Such traps were installed this year for the first time in Canada at Vancouver and Brampton, Ont.

The Olympic trap, Mr. Elliott said, hurls the clay targets much faster and farther than the standard trap equipment to which most Canadians are accustomed. Furthermore, he explained, at international matches, a shooter — if he misses the bird with his first shot — is alowed to take a second shot at the target which by now is farther away.

"It was these factors which prompted us to develop the new shells," Mr. Elliott said.

The first type of shell — used as shell number one in the gun — is a "pigeon" load containing No. 7 size shot instead of the smaller No. 7½ pellets of the standard trap load. This heavier shot has greater smashing power at the extreme range the Olympic trap is able to throw the target.

The second new type shell is also loaded with No. 7 shot and has a heavier powder charge, but the lead alloy pellets in this are nickel-plated. It is used as number two shell in the gun and is fired if the target is missed with the first shot. The nickel plated shot, the manufacturers claim, maintains a more regular pattern right up to the impact point. The heavier powder charge gives the pellets greater smashing power at the longer range at which this shell will normally be employed.

These special shot shells as well as skeet loads and other types to be used in the pistol and running deer events were donated by C-I-L to the Moscow-bound shooting team. Several members of the American team to Moscow who tried the new shot shells at a recent workout on the Olympic traps at Brampton, also decided to equip themselves with Canada's "secret weapon" for the world shooting championships. They purchased all their requirements.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all. — Edmund Burke

Commonplace but potentially dangerous

POWER MOWERS are labor-saving tools, but they can be deadly machines that maim and kill, according to an article in "Today's Health", published by the American Medical Association. A total of 1,085 physicians reported 737 power lawn-mower accidents — 69.6% of the injuries by direct contact with the mower and 30.4% caused by objects thrown by the mower.

Many people do not realize that a four-cycle engine, turning a 20-inch blade at 3,000 revolutions a minute, can pick up a nail or stone and hurl it at 170 miles per hour. (In a recent incident here, the missile was a meat bone, which hit a child and fractured his leg.)

Of the accidents reported by U.S. physicians, 82% were caused by the gasoline rotary type, because the blade whirls at a higher rate of speed. It is estimated that during one summer 10,000 persons throughout the U.S.A. were injured by rotary lawn mowers.

The article continues that the following points are important when buying a new mower:

(1) The handle of the mower should be long enough so that the operator cannot pull the mower back onto his feet.

(2) Wheels should be large enough to give easy operation over rough or uneven terrain.

(3) The mower should be equipped with a switch so the power can be cut off in case of emergency.

As further precautions, bystanders and pets shouldn't be in the immediate area of mowing.

Don't leave the mower unattended when the motor is running.

Don't let the mower pull you. To maintain control, slow it down; never run or trot.

Don't cut up and down on hills. If you slip, the machine may slide down over your toes. Cut sideways.

Don't refuel the engine when it is hot — it may burst into flames.

Never attempt removal of any object from the mower until you are certain the blades have stopped turning. The blade may still be whirling for one or two minutes.

Making it easy

A FEW YEARS AGO there was a popular song built on the theme "Take it Easy". In a general way it was dedicated to the idea of getting things done with a minimum of effort.

More recently the refrain seems to be echoed in the advertisements of many products. Hundreds of items ranging from quick-frozen TV dinners to automatic washers are sold with the well-founded assumption that they will make work and play easier.

There's nothing against the host of devices which save time and effort, but the philosophy raises a question: Are people in danger of forgetting the satisfactions of a tough job well done?

The ready-made dinner that can be removed from the freezer and prepared for the table in a few minutes is fine for the lady of the house, when she's unable to get into the kitchen until just before meal time.

But wouldn't it be rather sad if the art of home-made cooking, with mouth-watering aromas filling the house throughout the day, were to disappear?

And many of the old-timers will tell you there is little today to match the satisfaction of starting with a rough piece of wood, stone or metal, and toiling through to see the finished product. No automation for them.

The whole new apparatus of industrial science might impress the youngsters of today with the idea of doing things the easy way, to the extent they lose interest in tackling difficult personal tasks.

To take a long leap on these lines, it might mean that in future there would be nothing to match the fabulous exploits of men like Sir Edmund Hillary, who with Norquay Tenzing conquered Mount Everest, or Dr. Roger Bannister, who first ran the four-minute mile.

Because if Hillary had wanted to see the top of Everest the easy way he could have flown over it. And if Bannister had wanted to cover the mile quickly without effort he could have driven.

However, the gadgets are here to stay.

Need more stable trade conditions

RECURRING THREATS to Canada's markets in the United States "make Canadians feel as if they are living on the edge of a precipice," economist John Deutsch told the Western Advertising convention in Vancouver this month.

Often, minor action taken by the U.S. has terrific impact on Canada's economy, heavily dependent on exports to the U.S. — according to Mr. Deutsch, head of the University of British Columbia department of economics.

"Hardly a day goes by that one doesn't hear of new attempts by groups in the United States to shut out Canadian imports and increase tariffs. When whole industries and areas in Canada are dependent for their prosperity and livelihood upon exports to the U.S., such threats are a source of worry and concern.

Twelve percent of Canada's national income is derived from exports to the U.S. Only one percent of the U.S. national income, however, comes from exports to Canada. "It is very important, therefore, that conditions under which we export to the U.S. are stable and reliable. It is vital that we should not be looked upon as a marginal supplier of raw materials which the U.S. takes only when it suits her."

Mr. Deutsch made these points: U.S. government price supports for agriculture and agricultural exports each year equal the entire Canadian federal budget;

Some 85 percent of Canadian exports to the U.S. are raw materials, but 85 percent of U.S. exports to Canada are manufactured goods;

Canada exports 20 percent of her production, while the U.S. exports only five percent of hers, and Canada is one of the world's greatest debtor nations, borrowing 75 to 80 percent of her capital from the U.S.

A territorial "triumph"

CANADA IS NOW basing its Arctic claims largely on "effective occupation".

The Canadian Government has never doubted who owns the Arctic archipelago. The 450,000 square miles of bleak and windswept islands are Canadian territory — says Leslie Wilson, reporting from Ottawa to The Financial Post.

We used to base our claim primarily on the "sector principle" — the idea that a country could claim all the unoccupied land between its own northern or southern border — and the north or south pole. We wakened up to the fact, about 1950, that schools, townsites and airstrips on the islands are a far more effective claim than legal arguments.

There has been an enormous increase in government activity in the archipelago since. Some 400 Canadians, three quarters of them civil servants of a dozen government agencies, now live there permanently.

Viewpoints and perspectives

LOWER YOUR headlights when you approach an oncoming car, or when you are following. A motorist must be given every chance to see the road he is travelling on at night, and blinding headlights are certainly no help. The reflection in his rearview mirror has the same effect; it causes him distraction, and possible accident. Accidents occur through this thoughtless practice. Place yourself in the other driver's position and you will lower your headlights automatically.

COMMUNITY development offers no magic solutions to local problems. There is no substitute for hard work and dedicated community leadership.

THE OUTSTANDING characteristic of the U.S.A. is speed. Canadians worry about U.S. speed, because it can work both ways. One example is that, in 40 years the U.S. has managed to get itself into the dog-house thither and yon. It took the English much longer.

WITH VERY FEW exceptions, our town councils are composed of people intent on protecting those with small incomes, yet providing enough services and improvements to satisfy the more ambitious and monied citizens. Theirs is a responsible and onerous task, one which should earn for them the sympathy, appreciation and assistance of Mr. Average Citizen.

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, Aug. 17, 1883 —

The boom in real estate has assumed a lively aspect, and Lachute now resembles any place in the famous North West for the sale of lots.

Railway engineers are laying a siding between the level crossing on Barron Avenue to the lumber yard of Messrs. Campbell & Co.

The annual picnic of St. Simeon's Sunday School was held on Mr. Ireland's grounds below Alderman J. C. Wilson's Paper Mills.

Messrs. Campbell & Co. are commencing to build dwelling houses for their sawmill employees.

The body of Captain Webb, renowned swimmer, was found floating on the Niagara River, following an unsuccessful attempt to swim the rapids.

Two men were brought back to Lachute from Hawkesbury and fined $5 each plus $12 costs for leaving the employ of Hamelin & Ayers without due notice.

Mr. John Young, of Lachute Bobbin Co., has gone to England on business, and to bring out his family.

A Constantinople correspondent to London reports the discovery of Noah's Ark on Mount Ararat.

At a public meeting convened by the Agricultural Society, Lachute was finally selected for location of the Society's permanent buildings.

John Newton of Morin Flats, while preparing wood for the Bobbin Factory of Lachute, was struck by a piece of scantling thrown from a circular saw, suffering slight injuries.

Slow Down and Live!

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Be free!

I have a friend who is a slave. He has earned freedom, but squandered it. And I am afraid he will be a slave until the day he dies.

He has made very good money in his day, but spent it foolishly. When others were buying Victory Bonds, he felt quite smart because he sold his as soon as he got them. He was a selfish spender, last to pick up the check in a restaurant, but first to buy every new gadget for himself. Today, he is paying a high price for his selfishness.

The other day a few of us planned a fishing trip; but our spend-thrift friend could not join us. "I'm broke," he said, "and I sold my fishing gear over a year ago."

I had a long chat with this man last night. It was a sad story of mishandled funds, impulse buying, lack of investments either in bonds, or, indeed, in friendship. He had spent none of his resources on others and consequently there weren't many people ready or willing to help him.

He still has his job, but to him the future looks grim — as soon as he gets his cheque, his creditors are after him. Or he has kited cheques he must cover. Yet he still feels that if he could get one more big loan to "consolidate" his debts, he would be all right.

I felt sorry for him, but irked with him at the same time. Even yet, if he settled down to it, he could be free from debt and on the road to independence within less than two years. And to do so he would not have to deprive himself of any of the real necessities of life.

What is the basic trouble with this man? I think the trouble is that he does not love freedom. He does not value independence. His cheque is merely the passport to satisfaction for his daily whims or appetites.

Freedom is a precious thing. That's what many of us work for, one of our great incentives. Every child should have instilled in him the love of freedom, just as every nation should strive to be free. It is worth passing up a few present luxuries in order to enjoy the greatest boon of all — freedom and independence.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of Encyclopedia Canadiana

Where are the first canal and lock ever built in Canada to be found?

In the early days of settlement oxen hauled canoes and bateaux through the upper part of the rapids on the St. Mary's river, which connects Lake Huron to Lake Superior. In 1797, however, the North West Company, which operated a trading post at Sault Ste. Marie, built here the first canal and lock in Canada. Today the Sault Ste. Marie canal, by-passing the rapids, is one of the busiest waterways in the world.

Those rapids, incidentally, were an ideal gathering spot for Indians long before the arrival of the white man, for in winter here was the only open water for miles around and tribes came to live in peace and fish. Named Pau-wa-ting or Baw-a-ting, the "place of the water over the stones", it became the Objibwa hunting and fishing ground later immortalized by Longfellow in his poem "Hiawatha".

What was a Remittance Man?

The Remittance man was an immigrant from the United Kingdom, who came to Canada (especially in the years preceding the First World War) at the instigation of his family, and who was assured by them of at least a minimum subsistence income here. There were various reasons for the father or family not wanting the son to stay at home. However, he often became self-supporting before he had been in Canada very long.

Where was the first Anglican Church in Canada?

The first regular services of the Church of England were in October, 1710, despite the fact that English-speaking people set foot in Canada with John Cabot in the 16th Century. These regular services took place at Port Royal, afterwards named Annapolis Royal.

In 1728 the Society of the Propagation of the Gospel gave Reverend Richard Watts a salary of £10 a year to start a school, but there was no place of worship erected until 1750, when St. Paul's Church was built at Halifax. Serving the needs of the growing number of English settlers, it was the only Protestant church in Canada at that time, and was regularly used by other sects.

With the arrival of the United Empire Loyalists from the rebelling American colonies, the need for episcopal ministrations increased, and in 1787, Charles Inglis, himself an Empire Loyalist, was consecrated Bishop of Nova Scotia.

Experience Counts

Reader's Digest spotted this Situations Wanted advertisement in the Vancouver, B.C. Sun: "Boy 16 wants summer employment. Lifetime experience carrying out orders."

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

The radio announcers are far too young. They betray their extreme youth when announcing records. "Here comes a real, real oldie," they gurgle.

And out jumps an almost new tune, written about five years ago.

Or at the most, their "oldies" turn out to be 10 years old.

If a tune of five seasons is "old" what word would a disc jockey use to describe Rome? Or the skeleton of a dinosaur?

However, I guess this is only the envious mumbling of a fellow who notices himself slipping too fast down the gulf of years, and is angry when reminded of it. The 30's of a man's age shouldn't be a time for nostalgia, but it seems to work that way for me.

As a matter of fact, I wish the radio stations wouldn't play "oldies" quite so often. I like to keep each "old" tune as a key to unlock some door of the past. It does this trick rather neatly by association.

Tunes, and odors, have a power to vividly re-create the earlier time and place when a person knew them.

But if the tune is played too often, the key becomes worn and it loses most of its associative power, the ability to open up that particular room of the past. After a while, the melody means little to me exeept the sound of a brash young disc jockey saying, "Here comes a real oldie, folks . . . "

And then, again, some tunes that are presented as new are actually old ones after all. Young people imagine they are getting Tin Pan Alley's latest product, yet if they only knew, it is a tune their mothers and fathers danced to.

I've never had this experience, not being a parent of grown-up children, but I have heard that some young people, when informed that this week's hit tune is a warmed-over version of the melody that pleased an earlier generation — just refuse to believe it.

How can you convince them? Just tell them at intervals, for 30 to 40 years. After that time, I understand, young people are more likely to believe their parents.

CAUTIOUS TO THE LAST

A Londoner, reports the Reader's Digest, shared the train-carriage with an elderly Scot. At each stop the old man rushed out, ran down the platform, then rushed back, panting. The curious Londoner finally asked why. "Well", said the Scot, "I saw a specialist in London about my heart. He says I might drop dead any time; so I'm just booking from station to station."

Late David Brash was citizen with many affiliations

The sudden passing of Mr. David Alexander Brash on Friday afternoon, August 8, at his summer cottage, "Langside", Lake Macdonald, came as a shock to friends and relatives, since he was apparently in excellent health.

Mr. "Dave" Brash was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1882. He came to Canada in 1907 and was married to Miss Matilda Gallacher, also of Scotland, at Montreal on June 18, 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. Brash lived in Toronto and Clarkson, Ont. In the latter town he took an active part in community and church activities.

Mr. Brash was a member of the United Church, a 32nd Degree Mason of the Scottish Rite, a life member of the Glasgow Rangers soccer team, a holder of the Diamond Belt for amateur boxing in Scotland, and a member of the Dickens Fellowship. In this latter connection he had made an intensive study of Robert Burns' works and was frequently called upon to lecture on this subject.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Tilda (Mrs. S. G. Tiers), of Pickering, Ont., and three sons, Robert, of Richmond Hill, Cornwall (Bud), of Pointe Claire, and David, of London, Ont.

Service was held on Monday at the MacKimmie Funeral Chapel, the Rev. G. Moore officiating. Interment was made in Lachute Protestant Cemetery.

Late Mrs. James Milner

Mrs. Lillian Milner, widow of James Milner, died recently in an Ottawa hospital after a short illness. She lived in Overbrook.

Born and educated in Avoca in this County, she was the daughter of the late William Young and Mary Jane Bates. In 1916 she married James Milner in Vankleek Hill.

Surviving are two sons, Gordon William and Ernest James, both of Ottawa; two daughters, Mrs. Harvey (Violet Lillian) Couillard, of Winnipeg, Mrs. Donald (Bessie May) Loyer, of Ottawa; two brothers, Harry Young and Edward Young, both of Avoca; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Young of Ottawa; 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral service was held last Thursday in Ottawa.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, August 9, at the Dalesville Baptist Church, when Margaret Isabel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Dixon of Dalesville, was united in marriage to Mr. Harvey P. Vokey, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey F. Vokey of Dalesville, and formerly of Verdun, Que.

The Rev. G. B. Hicks officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Keith Morrison, of Dalesville, played the wedding music. Standards of white and pink gladioli, arranged with greenery, were used to decorate.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of embroidered lace over net and satin, with long sleeves ending in points over the finger tips, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and baby's breath. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a headpiece of seed pearls.

Miss Ruth Dixon, of Toronto, as maid of honor for her sister, wore a strapless street-length gown of yellow nylon and net over taffeta with matching bolero, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations with baby's breath and mums. The Misses Judy and Shirley Dixon, sisters of the bride, acting as bridesmaids, wore identical street-length gowns of aqua silk organza, with matching colonial bouquets of yellow roses and baby mums.

Mr. Alex Milne, of Lachine, Que., acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Arnold Hughes, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, and Mr. Rod McComb, of Toronto.

During the signing of the register, Miss Margaret Milne, of Lachine, sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

Mrs. Dixon, the bride's mother, wore a navy gown of Moygashel linen, with white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Vokey, mother of the groom, was dressed in a pale blue gown of silk, with white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Later a reception was held in the Brownsburg Legion Hall, where pink and white gladioli were used to decorate. The couple left by motor, the bride travelling in a blue dress and matching three-quarter length coat, with black and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Out-of-town guests were — Miss Ruth Dixon, Mr. Rod McComb, of Toronto; Mrs. Bethel Steele, of Niagara Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Titley, Mr. and Mrs. Lexie Titley, of Kingston; Mrs. Alice Vickers, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Vokey, Mr. and Mrs. George Vokey, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vokey, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Vokey, Mr. John Vokey, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jean Louis, Mr. Alex Milne, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Milne, Miss Margaret Milne, of Lachine; Miss Mary Lou Jarand, of St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac; Mr. Arnold Hughes, of Macdonald College; and Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Johnson, of Cowansville, Que.

WERE YOU THERE? . .

Thousands were — from more than 120 lands!

"Let your kingdom come. Let your will come to pass, as in heaven, also upon earth." The uniting of nations has already begun in the New World Society of Jehovah's Witnesses, and this is always expressed at their great assemblies held in different parts of the world. So interested persons may know the happenings at the inspiring and impressive Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses at New York City, the Watchtower Society has made available a complete report on the convention. You will want a copy of this 128-page report that will contain a goodly number of striking pictures of this assembly. Its cost will be merely 30c.

Ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet, or write — 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19. The book will be published on or before August 15.

Lachute girl is bride in ceremony at United Church

Bartlett - Ogilvie

The marriage of Jean Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ogilvie, of Lachute, and Mr. William George Bartlett, son of Mrs. Rupert Bartlett and of the late Mr. Rupert Bartlett, of Montreal, took place August 9 at 3 p.m. at the Lachute United Church.

The Rev. George Moore officiated. Mr. Lowell Hopkins played the wedding music, and Mrs. Gordon Bartlett sang during the signing of the register. Pink and white gladioli were used as decorations.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of white tulle with appliqués of Chantilly lace fashioned with a round neck and cap sleeves. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a headdress of the same material, and she carried a bouquet of red roses with stephanotis and Scotch heather.

Mrs. John McKenzie, as maid of honor for her sister, wore a ballerina-length gown of frosted blue nylon and matching gros-grain headdress, and carried a bouquet of cornflowers and stephanotis.

Mr. Gordon Bartlett acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Robert Ogilvie and Mr. Robert Cockfield.

Mrs. Ogilvie, the bride's mother, wore a frock of mint green with beige accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Bartlett, the groom's mother, wore a frock of navy blue, with navy blue and white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett left for the Eastern States, the bride travelling in a suite of beige shantung with brown accessories and an orchid corsage.

Married recently in Lachute

The marriage of Pearl Annabelle, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman McRae, to Mr. Gerald Lawson, only son of Mr. John Lawson and the late Mrs. Lawson, of Smooth Rock, Ont., took place Saturday, August 2, in the Lachute United Church — the Rev. G. Moore, of Montreal, officiating.

Mixed gladioli were used to decorate the church, and the guest pews were marked with white satin ribbon. Mr. Hopkins played the wedding music, and Mrs. Leonard Armstrong sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of white embroidered nylon chiffon over taffeta. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a headpiece trimmed with sequins and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and baby's breath, and wore the gift of the groom, a single strand of pearls.

Her only attendant was her cousin, Miss Marion McRae, dressed in sky-blue nylon chiffon over taffeta with matching hat, and carrying yellow roses and baby mums.

Mr. Wayne McRae, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Donald Steele, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Harold Going, brother-in-law of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a periwinkle blue lace-over-taffeta dress and a corsage of yellow roses, with white accessories.

The reception was held in the Legion Hall, Lachute. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson left on a wedding trip to various points in the U.S.A., Niagara Falls and Welland, Ont., the bride wearing a blue and white printed silk dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. On their return the couple will reside in Ottawa.

Out of town guests were from Welland, Niagara, Smooth Rock, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

"Sermons from Science" Moody Institute films at Harrington School

Four films from the series entitled "Sermons from Science" will be shown in the Harrington Intermediate School, Monday through Thursday, August 18-21. Each evening's program will begin at 8.30. These films were produced by the Moody Institute of Science and are worth every effort to see. The film for Monday evening is "Hidden Treasures". A thrilling look through the microscope at the invisible world all around us — the picture reveals treasures in snow, treasures in crystal caves deep in the earth, treasures in the desert and the sea. It demonstrates through the realm of nature the scriptural emphasis that nothing is too small to escape God's attention. The succeeding films are "Voice of the Deep"; "The Stones Cry Out"; and "Prior Claim".

The three local churches are co-operating in this venture and it is hoped that as many as possible from the community and further afield will be present.

Jehovah's Witnesses report with enthusiasm on International Assembly

Lachute delegates to the Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses, held in New York City, July 27 through August 3, returned home with reports of a joyful and successful event.

Mr. P. A. Rae, speaking for the local delegates, said: "We were amazed to see the crowds that overflowed Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds, 253,922 persons being in attendance on the final day to hear the public address delivered by N. H. Knorr, president of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society, on the subject, 'God's Kingdom Rules — Is the World's End Near?' To the vast audience assembled Mr. Knorr said, 'We do not know the day nor the hour but we do know that this world's end is near'."

Those who packed the stadiums and overflow areas during the eight-day convention were addressed by delegates from 123 lands. The opening event was the sounding of the "Divine Will" keynote in which speakers expressed themselves on the theme, "We are glad that it is the Divine Will that we are here." On the second day of the assembly Mr. Knorr delivered a remarkable lecture entitled, "Signs and Wonders in the Time of the End." Many high points were given from the stirring prophecy of Isaiah, chapters seven and eight being especially considered. Mr. Knorr pointed out, "This is the most remarkable day of signs and wonders in all the history of mankind. If we concentrate on furthering the Divine Will throughout God's green earth, this assembly will serve as a sign and a wonder from Him."

Wednesday forenoon of July 30 witnessed what was probably the largest mass baptism service known to our era, when 7,136 new ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses were immersed at Orchard Beach.

APPRECIATION

Mr. Gordon (Dick) Hampton, of Lachute and Grece's Point, wishes to thank the many friends who have remembered him and extended kindnesses during his convalescence from an ankle fracture.

Three lady artists exhibiting in next A.A.A. attraction

An exhibition of paintings in oil-color is being arranged by the Argenteuil Art Association. The exhibitors on this occasion will be Rita Mount, A.R.C.A., Irene Shaver and Vivian Walker. The show will be held in the Municipal Building at St. Andrews East from Saturday, August 23, to Labour Day, September 1, inclusive.

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, has graciously consented to open this exhibition at 2.30 o'clock Saturday, 23rd.

Plane crash victim was known in this locality

Staff Sergeant Stanley S. Rothwell, 49, of the RCMP, Vancouver, along with two other members of the force, was killed Wednesday, August 6, in a plane crash in the Penticton Valley when their plane exploded and burned. They were taking part in a giant search for a would-be killer when the crash occurred.

S/Sgt. Rothwell had been a member of the force since 1930.

He spent three years of his early life in Shrewsbury with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morrison. His father, Samuel John Rothwell, of Fairlight, Sask., was a former resident of Shrewsbury.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Pineapple-Orange Coupe
Chopped Beef Chuck
with Mushroom Balls Pan-Cooked Potatoes
with Young Onions
Tossed Lettuce Spinach Salad
Blueberry Charlotte
Hot or Iced Coffee or Tea
Milk

All measurements are level

Chopped Beef Chuck-Mushroom Balls: Put 1 lb. beef chuck, ½ lb. washed fresh mushroom caps and stems, 2 small peeled carrots, 1 medium-size peeled onion and 2 sprigs parsley through the food chopper twice to blend.

Beat in 1 egg, ½ tsp. thyme, 1 tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper. Form into flattened balls containing 1 tbsp. each.

Slow-brown in 2 tbsp. fat in a heavy skillet.

Pour in tsp. beef extract, dissolved in 1 c. hot water. Cover.

Simmer 30 min. Serves 6.

Blueberry Charlotte Russe: This dessert should be refrigerated at least 4 hours before serving.

Charlotte Filling: Empty 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin into a qt. saucepan. Add 1 c. milk. Let stand 3 min. Stir in 1 c. additional milk and stir-heat to boiling point.

Remove from heat.

Add 6 tbsp. sugar, ¼ tsp. salt and 2 tsp. vanilla. Cool.

Refrigerate until beginning to thicken. Then whip 1 pt. heavy cream until stiff; fold in.

To Put Together: Line a 3-pt. mold with split lady-fingers, arranging them horizontally. Spoon in charlotte cream.

Refrigerate at least 4 hrs.

To serve, unmold and fill center with softened fresh cultivated blueberries.

Softened Blueberries: You will need 1 qt. fresh cultivated blueberries; reserve ½ c.

In a saucepan, combine 3½ c. blueberries, ½ c. each granulated sugar and water, 1 tabsp. lemon juice and ½ tsp. aromatic bitters.

Quick-cook 5 min. (Be careful, this scorches easily!)

Strain off the juice and add to a fruit cocktail.

Chill cooked berries. Fold in reserved ½ c. blueberries for that special glamor look. Serves 12.

Refrigerate remainder to use next day.

Pets for children

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"I'd love to have a pussy! The neighbors' cat has kittens and they said I could have my pick. I want my own pet!"

How many mothers have listened to urgent requests for a pussy, or a puppy, or some other animal? Any pet must be well looked after, as well as loved! Some families do not seem to realize that if a child is going to have a pussy, that cat must have a bed and the right food and sufficient grooming. A healthy cat is the result of good care. Owning a pet is apt to be a long time arrangement. It is cruel for both the child and the cat to rush into allowing a youngster to bring home a pussy and later discovering that you don't want to be bothered with the animal!

Cats love comfort — and they need their own bed in a quiet corner. A wooden box where a cat can retire and have an undisturbed nap without fear of a small owner suddenly pouncing on her is a good idea. It will help prevent pussy from becoming irritable and may save Junior from being scratched.

A shelf in the box, raised several inches off the floor for the bed, keeps drafts from pussy. Cats love cleanliness and the cat's bed must be kept clean. Use a folded piece of cloth or a cover over pussy's pillow which can be washed often. In the hot weather, a cat can sleep with comfort on a newspaper which can be changed often. Don't let pussy go night prowling — insist that she sleep in her own bed!

A kitten can be fed from a medicine dropper the first week of life and can learn to lap milk the second week. However, it is best to have a kitten fed by the mother cat the first two or three weeks and gradually encourage it to take its milk from a saucer. Kittens have at least three or four meals a day. A cat is full grown before a year is up and a mature cat should be fed twice a day — and not allowed to "piece" all day long.

Fresh water should be available at any time for a pet. A cat is a flesh eating animal and must have a certain amount of meat (as well as the mice she catches). Serve meat scraps with vegetables in a stew or pussy will pick out the meat and leave the rest. Feed salmon or liver sparingly or the cat may want only these delicacies. Milk, a raw egg and table scraps, or reliable cat food, and also cat nip are all enjoyed by pussy.

A child may be eager to feed his pet, but mother must see to it that the cat is not forgotten. No animal should be teased when eating, and a child must learn never to annoy pussy at her meal.

A cat spends hours grooming herself, and takes pride in a shiny coat. Long haired cats need careful brushing and combing with a dull-toothed comb. This too must be done under an adult's supervision or pussy may scratch if treated too roughly. Cats seldom need a bath, and they can be "dry cleaned" with corn meal. However, if a tub bath is necessary, use warm water and dry pussy right after with a towel so she will not catch cold. Flea soap or powder should be used at intervals to keep her free from these pests.

A cat is a creature of habit and with patience even a small pussy can be house broken in a short time. The cat's box of sand or earth should be kept in the same place and changed each day.

A child sometimes inflicts pain on a pet without intending to be cruel. Consideration of animals is learned by loving and caring for a pet. Father or mother may forget how much a pet means to a child — but they can see how much happiness pussy gives to a son or daughter.

SOUP FOR SUMMER MEALS

During hot summer days . . . when appetites become wilted . . . light but nutritious meals are in order. No matter what the temperature . . . soup is the answer to satisfying meals which supply an adequate diet. It brings double dividends in food value when smoothed to a creamy goodness with milk or other dairy products.

With so many canned condensed soups available and so many wonderful ways to serve them, your summer meals will be welcomed treats. Canned condensed cream of chicken soup prepared with milk and served hot or frosty cold is sure to make a hit. Or if you're especially fond of tomato soup . . . try it topped with sour cream for a "something special". The sour cream topping can be varied, too, with chopped chives, parsley, or watercress.

Assorted sandwiches . . . along with celery, olives and carrot sticks complete this easy yet well-balanced menu.

Hot weather ideas for freezer

Since the refrigerator is the spot about which most families orbit on a scorching summer day, here are some cool thoughts on 'frig-centred living:

Popsicles for the children can be made easily at home. Fruit juice, left-over syrup from canned fruit or any bottled soft drink can be used, and vegetable coloring added if desired. Pour the liquid into individual polythene ice-cube molds — they're a good size for small mouths — and freeze slightly. Then flat wooden sticks can be poked into the popsicles before they freeze completely. They make excellent party treats.

Left-over coffee from breakfast time becomes a mid-afternoon refresher if frozen in the ice-cube molds and served in iced coffee. Ice cubes with a cherry or mint leaf frozen in them add festivity to a cool thirst quencher.

When a cool day comes along, the refrigerator can be stocked for hot days to follow. For instance, a loaf of sandwiches can be made up with different fillings and an assortment for each member of the family can be placed in individual polythene bags and the packages frozen. At lunch time on the next hot day, each of the hungry crowd can pick up a bag of sandwiches and carry it out to the lawn for a picnic. The sandwiches thaw in a few minutes.

There's no excuse for wasting left-overs in hot weather through fear of spoiling. Plastic refrigerator boxes and polythene bags are made-to-order for freezing small quantities of food. They are moisture-tight, will not crack in the freezer and can be dropped in a pan of warm water to thaw their contents quickly.

Nearly one million Canadians are drinking fluoridated water

According to an article in the journal of the Canadian Dental Association, nearly one million Canadians are drinking water fluoridated by their communities. In addition, thousands of Canadians are drinking natural fluoridated water. In a great number of municipalities plebiscites have been held, resulting in votes in favor of fluoridation, but equipment is not yet available to fluoridate the water.

According to a survey held by the C.D.A., three cities in Nova Scotia, including Halifax, are fluoridating their water supplies; three in Quebec; eight in Ontario; three in Manitoba, including Winnipeg; seven in Saskatchewan and four in British Columbia — totalling in all 24 municipalities of 971,128 people.

Fashions

A simple black crepe sheath with narrow shoestring shoulder straps is topped by a white organdy chemise blouse The blouse has coin-size eyelet embroidery and solid white organdy collar and flaps. For the final touch, there is a long black streamer tie at the neckline.

Visitations by two W.I. demonstrators

Miss Ruth Runnells, of Macdonald College, has left for an extended trip to the Gaspé Peninsula. As Handicraft Technician for the Quebec Women's Institutes, she will be visiting Institutes in Gaspé and Bonaventure Counties, where classes in glovemaking, advanced leatherwork and weaving have been arranged. Some time will also be spent with the junior group at Fort Daniel-Shigawake.

Another member of the QWI Staff, the Home Economics Director, Miss Anna Christie, was attending Camp Laquemac at Manoir d'Esterel, Ste. Marguerite.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for
The Lachute Watchman
By Edna Usher
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Salad eating is on the increase across Canada, according to the Canadian Horticultural Council.

The council bases its assertion on a bureau of statistics report that about 20 per cent more salad dressing is being sold now than in 1955.

An established summer standby in Canada, salads really come into their own at the beginning of August, when the Council sponsors a 10-day "Salad Week".

More than 30 varieties of home-grown fresh fruits and vegetables are plentiful and prices are low.

For Men, Youngsters Too

Women waistline watchers already know the value of a salad diet, but salads are adequate diet for hardworking men and growing youngsters, says the council. The plate should include plenty of meat, fish, poultry, eggs or cheese.

Salad suppers are cheap, and most can be prepared in advance. A typical salad dish is molded chicken salad on spinach leaves, served with diced potato and egg salad, sliced tomatoes, applesauce and cinnamon rolls.

The moulded chicken is made with a tablespoon of gelatine, quarter-cup of cold water, two tablespoons vinegar, a 10-ounce can of undiluted cream of chicken soup, two cups diced and cooked chicken, one cup finely diced celery, quarter-cup diced pimento, quarter-cup chopped canned mushrooms and a half-cup salad dressing.

Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Heat soup, then add gelatine and stir to dissolve. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Turn into a large mold or into individual molds and chill until set for about one hour. Makes about four cups. This salad can be stored frozen and will keep for a month.

Apple Bread for Variety

Apple bread is another Salad Week suggestion to lend variety to meals.

Use quarter-cup shortening, two-thirds cup of sugar, two eggs, two cups sifted flour, one teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups peeled, finely shredded apple and a half-cup chopped nuts.

Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream well together. Add eggs and beat thoroughly. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Shred apple, then add alternately with the dry ingredients. Stir in nuts. Spread batter in a greased lined loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about an hour.

FLAMING SUN

Owen Sound, Ont. (CP) — An early morning sun shining through a window and reflecting on to a set of curtains set them ablaze in Maurice Hewitt's home here. Before firemen could find where the smoke was coming from, the small fire burned a hole about a foot square in the curtain.

INDIAN BURIAL SITE MAY BECOME NATIONAL PARK

At Tabor's hill, Scarboro, Ont., carved Indian figures recall the story of an early Indian community there. And, if present plans materialize, the site will soon become a national park. Two years ago construction crews uncovered evidence of an Indian burial ground there and dozens of skeletons, being examined by Jack Chester, left, of the Scarboro health department, were dug up. Ontario Indians then held a convention and reburied the bones of their ancestors and were promised the land would not be disturbed again.

To discuss problems of theatre business

PAUL VERMET, executive-secretary of Quebec Allied Theatrical Industries, will preside Monday, August 18, at the Lapointe Hotel, in St. Jerome, Tuesday in Mont Laurier, and Thursday in Rouyn, at four respective gatherings in the interests of "theatre men" of the regions concerned.

Problems of the moment, propress and future perspectives will be main items on the agenda of these reunions. The gatherings will be an opportunity for all interested in the theatre business to discuss their problems with a specialist of the cinema industry.

Rainy day at a vacation resort

By Carol Lane

What do you do on a rainy day at a vacation resort?

The usual reply to this, I have found, is a groan. After all, what is left when you can't swim, sun, sail, bike, play golf or tennis?

Well, before you bury yourself in a book or the local cinema, try investigating the indoor sightseeing possibilities in the area.

Buy yourself a local guidebook, consult one of the townspeople, or call up the Chamber of Commerce, and you'll probably be amazed to find a wealth of things to explore — under roofs, and handy too.

Almost every town has at least one fascinating old house, museum or institution well worth visiting. Perhaps there's a "haunted" house with a mysterious history. Local industries are often happy to conduct you on a tour of their plants.

Dull skies won't make a dull day when you let your imagination shine.

Water-Ski with Caution!

Water skiing is lots of fun. But remember, there must be two people in the boat — one to drive the boat and the other to watch the skier. Water skiers, especially beginners, should wear life jackets. Play safe.

New postage stamp commemorates milestone

A new postage stamp will be issued October 2 to commemorate the beginning of democratic government in Canada. The first House of Representatives, in what is now Canada, met in the City of Halifax on October 2, 1758. This first Assembly of Elected Members became the forerunner of representative government in Canada.

The design of the stamp features the Mace and Speaker's Chair as the two most popular symbols of the parliamentary system of Canada. In addition the words "The First Elected Assembly of Nova Scotia marked the beginning of our Democratic Government" are an integral part of the design. The stamp will be dark blue in color.

DO YOUR CAR WHEELS NEED BALANCING?

4 out of 5 do!

Yes, even most NEW cars need wheel balancing jobs

A good wheel balancing job with a modern Hunter Balancer pays for itself fast. That's true because unbalanced wheels pound your tires to an early death—and increase wear and tear on the front end of your car.

You get more pleasure out of driving—greater comfort, smoother riding, easier steering when you get a wheel balance job done with the modern Hunter Balancer. Yours will be a safer car on the highway, too.

Get your wheels checked FREE—in just 2 minutes. Stop in today.

Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

SPACING EVERGREENS

Many people make the mistake of not giving evergreens the proper amount of elbow room. Here are a few suggestions for proper spacing:

Tall growing evergreens should not be planted too close to the house. It is better to use them for specimen plantings. This means they should be properly placed—and spaced—in an open lawn.

Pines and spruces require a great deal of room. If crowded, they soon lose their beauty. Most pines and spruces reach a height of from 40 to 60 feet at maturity.

One of the boldest and handsomest of the species is the Red Pine (Pinus resinosa), with its long, dark green needles. Even more decorative in a picturesque sense is the Austrian Pine (Pinus nigra) shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. It is also interesting in bloom in the spring and again in the fall, when it bears cones, as shown in the Garden-Graph.

Rugged and irregular in outline, the Scotch Pine (Pinus sylvestris) is fast-growing and makes a splendid wind-break.

The Norway Spruce (Picea excelsa) is probably the most widely planted evergreen. Relatively quick-growing, it is excellent for mass grouping in full sun.

Pine trees can be grown where the soil is too light, sandy and dry for firs, spruces and hemlocks.

Disinterest in sheep farming

Observers find it hard to understand (the Financial Post reports) why, in the years 1944 to 1956, Canada's sheep population dropped from 3.7 to 1.6 million. Although the total recently has begun to climb, the increase is much too slow, experts say.

Advocates of sheep farming are quick to point out, sheep are the only farm animals that can produce a prime product from grass alone. Return per dollar invested is higher on sheep than any other farm animal.

In addition, according to the agricultural experts, there are thousands of acres of idle land in Canada that could be put to work raising sheep.

Importance of safety boots

Harrington — Another incident has occurred on the Rouge River drive where safety boots prevented a serious accident. The drive crew were rolling a heavy drive boat across a portage when one of the rollers slipped and the boat came down on the foot of one of the crew who was wearing safety toe boots. An X-ray examination showed no injury to his foot and the man returned to work. If he had been wearing ordinary boots, his toes would have been crushed and he would have been laid up for a considerable period. Another example of the importance of wearing safety clothing!

Farmers bid for long-record souvenir

Quebec (CP) — Quebec farm families are searching attics and parish records looking for proof that may bring them a souvenir plaque on August 31.

On that date plaques will be presented to all families who have farmed the same tract for 200 years or more.

The ceremony — being organized by a committee under Albert Rioux of the province's Rural Electrification Bureau — is tied in with Quebec City's 350th birthday this year.

Fifty years ago at the city's 300th anniversary 273 families who had farmed the same fields since 1708 or before were given souvenirs.

Provincial title trapshoot contests

Around 75 shooters are expected at the Quebec provincial trapshooting championships, which will be held at St. John's, Que., on August 17. They will be competing for a total of $850 in cash prizes and trophies valued at $500.

Defending champions are members of the Valleyfield Club, who scored a clean sweep of the top honors in last year's meet.

In the line-up of events this year, the two-man and five-man team championships will be held at the same time as the 16 yard singles event. The Lewis class system will be used for distribution of purses in the three classes in the 25-pair doubles and handicap events.

Chief referee of the championships is Rosario Rochefort, Sr., of Valleyfield. Other referees are Bob Hendershott, Jr., of Lachine; Alcide DeBellefeuille; Yvon Bourassa, member of last year's championship two-man team; John Duncan, of Brownsburg; Armand Dumouchel, of Huntingdon; Emile Leduc, of Ste. Barb; Orville Cullen and Paul Lemlin, of Montreal. Lemlin has captained the Quebec all-star team two years in a row.

HEAVY EGGS

Buy eggs by the pound? States The Financial Post, the Interprovincial Farm Union Council is asking Ottawa to set egg prices by ounces and pounds rather than by dozens. Reason: Producers are finding that a dozen eggs frequently weighs more than the minimum set down for a particular grade.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Do you believe in signs? Not portents or prophecies — but highway signs. You should believe in them because they are "signs of life" for every motorist.

Highway signs make driving safe in three ways: (1) They state the law, (2) They help you prepare for potential danger, and (3) They aid you in making caution and courtesy keynotes of your traffic etiquette.

The shape of a highway sign gives you the key to its message. These are the four basic sign shapes and the meaning of each:

1. Eight-sided signs always mean STOP — not "slow down" or "proceed with caution." So be safe and stop until the way is clear.

2. Oblong signs give specific rules, speed limits, turning and passing prohibitions, etc.

3. Diamond-shaped signs warn of dangerous conditions on the road ahead. When you see a diamond-shaped sign, slow down and stay alert.

4. Round signs warn of railroad-highway intersections ahead. Slow down and be ready to stop if necessary.

Remember that the shape of a sign is your clue to things to come and you'll drive with more assurance.

Seeding time, winter cereals

Ottawa — It is important to seed winter cereals at the right time and in well prepared soil, stresses A. G. O. Whiteside, of the Canada Department of Agriculture.

If sod is to be turned down, it should be done several weeks before seeding and the soil worked three or four times to avoid competition from grasses.

In most areas of Eastern Canada, winter wheat should be seeded early in September and winter rye about the same time or a little later.

Genesee wheat, according to Mr. Whiteside, is well adapted to the main winter wheat areas in Ontario and has become the most widely grown variety. It is a high yielding white winter wheat, resistant to loose smut but susceptible to stinking smut or bunt. It lacks in straw strength but is generally well liked by farmers.

Dawbul and Richmond are other good wheat varieties recommended in Ontario. Kent, a soft red winter variety, is being tried out for the first time this year. It is higher in protein than Genesee, Dawbul and Richmond, and is resistant to loose smut and leaf rust.

Rideau, a more winter hardy variety, is grown to some extent in Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. Kharkov 22 M.C. is preferred in the more easterly areas of Quebec, where winters are more severe.

Winter rye is used not only for grain, but for pasture and for plowing down in preparation for other crops. Tetra Petkus is especially suited to rich soils on account of its strong straw.

Of the older varieties, recommended are Imperial and Horton, which begin growth early in the spring. Dominant, a new variety developed in The Netherlands and recently licensed for sale as seed in Canada, has given excellent yields of grain in Eastern Canada, particularly in the Maritimes.

BETWEEN THEM IS LOTS OF SPACE

Even standing on a chair, five-foot Freyda Berman is not as tall as her teammate, Marie Dupree, who stands six feet four inches. The Vancouver girls and other members of Canada's team have been competing in the British Empire Games in Cardiff, Wales.

FREIGHT RATES

Wheat normally accounts for one-third of Canadian railway freight traffic, and by federal law all grain hauled off the prairies for export must be carried at freight rates that applied in 1899.

Marked reduction in polio cases reported

The journal of the American Medical Association reports that three years of increasingly widespread use of killed poliomyelitis vaccine have coincided with marked reduction in reported cases of polio.

Up to November 15, 1957, there had been 1988 cases of paralytic polio reported in the U.S.A. compared with 6196 for the same period in 1956 and 9796 for 1955. Estimates suggest that protection against paralytic disease approached 90% in patients who had received three or more properly spaced injections of vaccine. The use of vaccine during two epidemics in 1955 and 1956 did not show any beneficial effect on the course of the epidemic. This emphasizes the importance of doing vaccination ahead of time and all physicians are urged to co-operate by complementing immunization.

HAVE YOU 'WORMED' YOUR PULLETS AND PIGS?

Your pullets and pigs should be wormed at about 12 weeks of age, as it takes about that length of time for the worm eggs they may have picked up, to develop and get around in their cycle to where you can get at them.

If not removed they both consume your feed at no profit to you, and they also give off a poison that is injurious to the birds and pigs.

It costs enough to raise the birds and pigs to market or laying, without feeding a bunch of worms!

Purina Liquid POULTRY WORMER takes all the work and most of the cost out of the job. Just add it to the drinking water, and the birds do the rest. Takes only 2 ounces to treat 100 birds. They should be wormed again about a week before they are housed in the poultry house, so that they will leave the worms outside.

Purina PIGTAB GRANULES will clean out your pigs of worms, and help you get your pigs to market earlier and with more profit for you.

Won't you take home a bottle of Poultry Wormer and a can of Pigtab Granules next time you call? Or we deliver.

Golfers' shelter struck by lightning in electric storm Sunday afternoon

Golfer injured by lightning

Four treated at local hospital; brush with death at Golf Club

A crowded shelter off the 10th green of Lachute Golf Club course was hit by lightning in a severe storm which came up suddenly Sunday afternoon, and several of the 20 or 30 occupants received shocks and burns.

The golfers hurried to the shelter around 3 o'clock, converging from nearby greens and tees. A bolt of lightning at the peak of the storm struck a tree and streaked through the shelter. The building was undamaged but at least four of the occupants were taken to the Providence Hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Frank Feldman, a member of the club from Montreal, was standing under the canopy when the bolt tore a shoe from her foot, scorching and shredding one side of the shoe and severely burning her leg.

Seated on the other side of the disused counter was Ernest Snadden, Lachute townsman, who received the force of the shock in his lower limbs and was burned in the right leg and right forearm. The shock, according to Mr. Snadden's description, left him paralyzed from the waist down for almost half an hour — the sensation in, and appearance of the limbs, indicating complete stoppage of the circulation.

Two caddies standing near Mrs. Feldman also caught the effect of the lightning bolt. Young Wayne Cox received only a mild shock, but Raymond Gibeault, 14, was burned on one foot. This lad was detained in hospital until Monday, the other sufferers being released after treatment for burns administered by Dr. F. W. FitzGerald and Dr. Jules Lafleur.

Tree farmers on woodlot tour at Harrington

Local tree farmers had an opportunity to pick up a number of tips on good woodlot management during a tour of the Harrington Forest Farm of the Canadian International Paper Company held last week.

Argenteuil County, Hudson and Rawdon were the areas most heavily represented among 75 tree farmers and members of tree farm sponsoring committees who accepted the invitation of C.I.P. resident manager M. R. Wilson to visit the Forest Farm.

Aspects of the Forest Farm included in the four-hour tour were a typical white spruce plantation; a demonstration of tree marking and selective cutting practices; various fire protection tools and techniques; and a series of experiments showing the effect of tillage and chemical fertilizer on hybrid poplar.

The tree farmers watched cutting operations conducted by a five-man crew, working with two teams of horses and three power saws to cut, skid and load pulp logs on a pallet. This crew has been able to record about 1.8 cords per man day of production.

The purpose of the conifer tree nursery at Harrington, designed to produce 1,000,000 trees per year beginning in 1960, was explained

Rotary district golf tournament staged here

The annual golf tournament of Rotary International District 704 was held at Lachute Golf and Country Club last Wednesday, with 166 Rotarians from Ontario, Quebec and the Northeastern States taking part.

The event was under chairmanship of Jim Campbell, a member of the host Brownsburg - Lachute Club, who despite the headache of numerous last-minute entries, kept the event in full swing along with his committee.

District Governor S. Herman Macy was in attendance, and along with the local president, Syd Patterson, and immediate Past District Governor Linton Armstrong, addressed the large attendance. Hull, branch with the largest team, captured the team trophy, and all other prize winners were from outside this locality.

Gymnasts' fine showing in open championship meet

At the Open Canadian Athletic Championship Games held at Vancouver, B.C., August 14-15-16, Reg Stansfield, Ron Cairns and Garry Cruise made a very fine showing and Lachute can indeed be proud of their achievements.

In very keen competition the boys together brought home three championships, two silver medals and four bronze medals.

Ron Cairns won the Pommel Horse and Parallel Bar championships, with Reg Stansfield taking the Long Horse championship. A very near First All-Round was scored by Cairns, whose average came to 68.4 points. The aggregate winner, W. Sandy of Toronto, came up with 68.5 points. Ronnie also placed third in the Still Rings.

Garry Cruise came third in the High Bar and the Pommel Horse, a pleasant surprise, for it proved a much better showing than had been expected from this young athlete.

Reg Stansfield, besides winning the Long Horse event, came second in the Parallel Bar and third in the Pommel Horse, an excellent performance considering that this class was an Open Championship and that all other events were won by gymnasts from the U.S.A.

A further honor has been given the boys — Stansfield and Cairns were selected to represent Canada at a Dual Gymnastic Meet between all the states in the U.S.A. and each of the provinces in Canada. This event will be held at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto on September 4 and 5.

These lads are to be heartily congratulated, with special praise going to their coach, Arne Petersen, whose untiring efforts in the realm of sports and in training these boys has been largely responsible for their success.

Thanks are also due to the public who, by donations and other means, made the trip to Vancouver possible for this team and their coach. Their efforts have been well repaid by the successful achievements of the boys and the honor they have brought to this community.

Hole-in-one scored Sunday

Jim MacKimmie, Lachute businessman and a veteran of the golf course, scored a hole-in-one at the club here last Sunday afternoon. Jim was one of those who experienced a less pleasant adventure in the shelter which was struck by lightning.

Playing with Dave Campbell, Frank Feldman and Howard Watson, Jim MacKimmie executed his rare feat on the fifteenth — which is fraught with water holes and other hazards.

Service station ablaze in Whisselltown

A stubborn blaze last Thursday evening gutted the service station operated by Gerald Louis-Seize in Whisselltown causing an estimated $25,000 damage. Included in this figure was a new 5-ton truck owned by Bruno Robert, of Lachute, and a recent-model automobile.

The call was answered by a crew of volunteer firemen from Lachute under Chief Fernand Trépanier; they battled the flames for three hours. Leaving Lachute shortly after 9 p.m., the local crew ran into considerable trouble at the scene, as the road to the water supply near the village was blocked and it took considerable time to clear the way for the fire truck.

Altogether 39 lengths of hose were laid and despite heavy winds which whipped the flames towards adjacent buildings, the fire was confined to the one structure. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Annual meeting of Ottawa Valley Developm't Assn.

The annual meeting of the Ottawa Valley Development Association will be held this Saturday at the chalet of the St. Andrews Country Club, the proceedings to open with a luncheon at noon.

The program is under convenership of Paul Labreche, president of the organization. There will be reports from the secretary and from the technical and legal advisors. Later in the afternoon it is planned to visit the waterways and surroundings of St. Andrews and Carillon, to the head of the Lake of Two Mountains.

Expected among the attendance are representatives of the Quebec Union of Chambers of Commerce, besides those in the Montreal region and in Ontario interested in the development of Ottawa River navigation. Also expected are members of several municipal councils and federal deputies from both Ontario and Quebec.

New store opens Friday morning

The management of Jos. Malaket & Sons confirmed today that their new ladies' wear store will be ready for opening Friday at 9 a.m. Residents will be welcomed to visit and inspect the premises, situated next to the new Bank of Nova Scotia, which are in every respect ultra-modern and in good taste. The store will be managed by Mrs. Hector Lepage and Mrs. Alice Belanger.

An old-vintage veteran

This Ford Model-T runabout was a stately job when it first hit the highways in 1926-27. The 30-year veteran is now owned by Omer Denault, watchmaker at Yvon Cadieux' jewelry establishment, and is reported to be in good running order. Mr. Denault acquired it eight years ago; it is painted red, with appropriate wisecracks. It was originally owned by Bob MacVicar of Brownsburg, and was purchased from George Y. Deacon.

The exhibit had caught our eye for several years, visible from Main Street in a carriage shed at the rear of the Cadieux block. Last week we noticed it had been removed and the shed was being demolished. Enquiries revealed that this structure was of a vastly older vintage, dating back to the 1880's when it was built by J. R. McOuat, a pioneer storekeeper, to serve as a granary, warehouse and carriage shed.

Local residents win CNE awards for handicrafts

Toronto — Aage Madsen, of Piedmont, won a first prize at the Canadian National Exhibition in the handicraft competition class for wood carving. Mr. Madsen received the special award for the Best in Show of articles carved from wood which covered seven classifications.

Other winners from Quebec include the following from this vicinity: Brownsburg (Work of the Blind Class) — Mrs. Fred Jordan. Lachute (Work of the Blind Class) — Mrs. Juliette Ladouceur; Miss Austin, R.R. 3, 2 prizes each.

Mrs. Elsa Jenkins, manager of C.N.E. Women's Activities, said that this year increased quantity as well as marked improvement in quality kept the judges busy for four days. More and more people entered from such widely separated points as Texas and Scotland, as well as from all parts of Canada.

Three gifted artists featured in A.A.A. exhibit opening Saturday

Closing exhibition of 1958 season arranged by Mrs. Vivian Walker

The work of three gifted women artists will be presented at the final exhibition of the 1958 season to be held in the Municipal Hall, St. Andrews East, from August 23 to September 1, inclusive.

The senior artist of this group, Miss Rita Mount, A.R.C.A., a Montrealer of French-Canadian and Scottish descent, will show eight pictures. One of these, a portrait of the late Mme Augustin Ladouceur, will attract special interest in this locality. The figure of the white-capped old lady, seated in her rocking chair by a low window overlooking the east end of the main street in St. Andrews, will be well remembered by many of the villagers. After studying in Montreal, Paris and the United States, Miss Mount won her way to recognition. Her paintings were exhibited in the National Gallery, Ottawa, the British Empire Overseas Exhibition, 1923, the Collection of Contemporary Canadian Paintings circulated through Commonwealth countries in 1936, and in the Overseas Coronation Exhibilton in London in 1937. Miss Mount has also given successful one-man shows at the Quebec Provincial Museum, where specimens of her work hang in the permanent collection, and in the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Mrs. Vivian Walker is a talented artist whose charming landscape paintings are well known in this and other parts of the country. Born in Hawkesbury, a descendant on her mother's side from one of the pioneer families of Argenteuil County, she studied drawing at l'Ecole des Beaux Arts, and painting at Sir George Williams College and the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, with special instruction from Sherriff Scott. On repeated occasions her paintings have been hung in the Museum of Fine Arts, and in the Manoir Richelieu, Murray Bay. She has given one-man shows at Albert College, Belleville, and at the Golf Club House, St. Andrews (under the auspices of the A.A.A.) and was partner in a two-man show at the Cowansville Art Centre. At present she is giving instruction to groups from the A.A.A. and the Recreation and Community Clubs of the Town of Mount Royal.

The third artist in this group of exhibitors, Mrs. Irene Shaver of Montreal, has been a keen student of drawing and painting for some years. In 1948 she attended a class at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, following this course with studies under George Severe Massé and Harold Beament, R.C.A. Her first show was held at the Y.W.C.A., Dorchester Street, in October, 1954. Later she exhibited at the Handycraft, Peel Street, with Vivian Walker and Ida Huddell, in Gallery XII, Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, in the Arts Club, Victoria Street, and with the Square des Arts, Dominion Square. Since 1950 she has been an active member of the Independent Art Association, showing at Granby, Cowansville, St. Helen's Island and other centres.

The members of the A.A.A. anticipate a very fine exhibition from the brushes of these three artists, and hope that many visitors will take advantage of the opportunity to see the pictures. The Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, has graciously consented to open the exhibition, at 2.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Big crowd attends Richelieu annual harness races

Fine weather favored the Richelieu Club charity field day last Saturday and an enthusiastic crowd packed the grandstand at the Exhibition Grounds to witness eight spirited harness races. Bingo games, the drawing for an automatic washer-dryer, and the presence of Rocket Richard, hockey idol, were highlights in this fifth annual program which was voted a complete success.

According to Jean-Louis Blais, one of the key committeemen, financial outcome of the effort exceeded all previous years. At the pari-mutuel tables, bettors speculated in sporting spirit. In the second race event, the winning horse paid off $25 to his backers, while wins in the other races ran from $3 to $13. Purses to the owners varied from $100 to $175.

Notary J. C. Latour, M.P., was guest of honor, and brought luck and happiness to one young married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Brunette, by drawing their number from the revolving drum to win the grand prize. Married less than a year, Mr. and Mrs. Brunette, of 194 Hamford Street, plan to build a home next year and were thrilled to win the Inglis washer-dryer, supplied to the Richelieu Club by collaboration of J. Roger Lamarche, dealer.

Accompanying Maurice (Rocket) Richard on this outing was his young son Normand, and J. René Laurin, through whose graces the Rocket was here under sponsorship of his company, Dow Breweries.

The Richelieu Club is keenly appreciative of the public support in this venture, which will contribute notably to their work on behalf of underprivileged children in the Lachute community.

St. Andrews lady at 101st milestone

Mrs. Lucien Larocque, of St. Andrews East, received greetings and congratulations Tuesday on attaining the ripe old age of 101.

According to reports, this venerable lady enjoys good health and still does a small share of household duties in her home. Affectionately known to the village folk as "Ma" Larocque, she retains the faculties and vitality of a septuagenarian — apart from the deafness which is her only real affliction.

Announce sale of Williamson diamond mine

According to a Reuters news despatch the Governor of Tanganyika announced last week that a representative of the De Beers diamond company and the Tanganyika Government would forthwith sign an agreement for the sale of the rich Williamson diamond mine.

Governor Sir Richard Turnbull said the price had been set at £4,140,000 ($11,592,000), plus the death duties on the estate of Dr. John Williamson, native of Argenteuil County, who discovered the mine in 1940.

The mine, at Mwadui, is regarded by some experts as the richest in the world. It employed more than 2,600 men and produced £3,025,000 ($8,470,000) worth of gems and industrial diamonds last year.

The agreement, which is subject to ratification by the Legislative Council, provides the Government and De Beers with equal holdings, with four directors each on the board.

The De Beers directors will be Harry Oppenheimer, Philip Oppenheimer, Anthony Wilson and I. C. Chopra. The government directors have not yet been named.

The Government will put a bill before the Legislative Council to enable it to accept 320 shares for estate duty, and to purchase another 280 shares from De Beers for £1,317,000 ($3,687,600) to be paid over 20 years out of dividends.

After interest has been paid on the capital sum, two-thirds of the income will go toward paying off the capital figure and the remainder will be government revenue.

Lumber expert fills important position in CNR

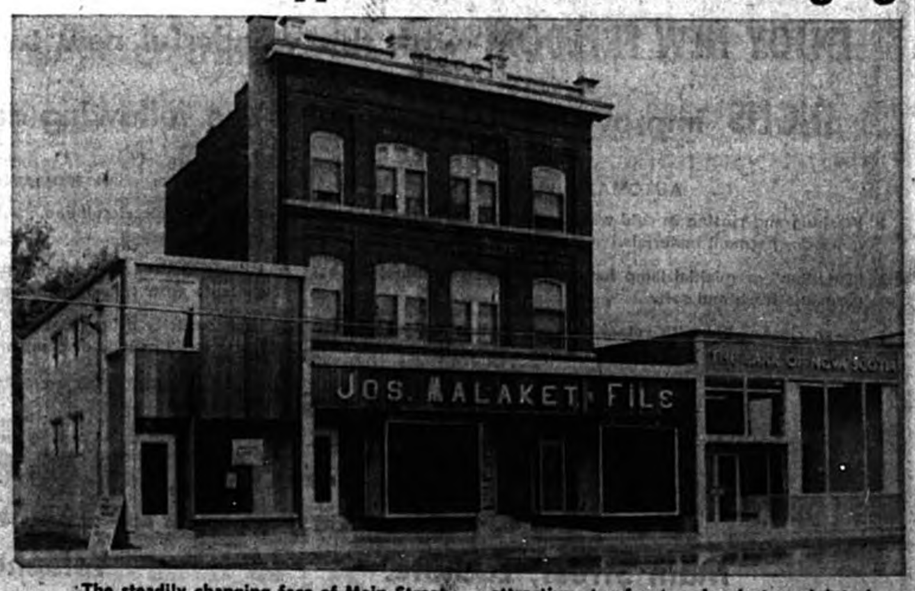

Appointment of David W. Gill as assistant general tie and timber agent for the Canadian National Railways, was announced in Montreal last week.

Born at Grenville, Mr. Gill attended Montreal High School and worked for a period in his father's lumber business. He joined the railway in 1939, as an assistant tie inspector, later being promoted to inspector and, in 1955, to chief inspector.

Mr. Gill served in the RCAF from 1941-46 and became a pilot instructor, being demoblized with the rank of flight lieutenant.

In his new post, Mr. Gill's duties involve supervision over the purchase and distribution of forestry products. The railway spends about $24,000,000 every year buying lumber.

Typical of Lachute's changing business section

The steadily changing face of Main Street is illustrated in this modern styling of one of Lachute's oldest business blocks, the Bank of Nova Scotia building. The Bank has been rebuilt in the latest trend (right). The original structure has been revamped (centre) with an attractive storefront and a last-word interior. Meanwhile an addition has sprouted on the east side (left) in the form of a store and two apartments above. Contractors for this extensive remodelling were Omer Laurin & Fils Ltée.

Above is the Bank of Nova Scotia building, a town landmark, undergoing changes. Here the familiar front and interior are completely torn out to make way for a new store. The two-floor residence above stands unchanged.

New ultra-modern quarters, housing the Bank on the west side of the old building, were constructed by Jas. Pollock, contractor.

Hunting season to open Sept. 27; Game Law Summary now available

A summary of the Quebec game and hunting regulations for 1958 announces the deer hunting season for this area (now designated as Zone D) from September 27 to November 16. The bag permits male, female or fawn of this species.

An innovation in the rules this year, limits to five the number of persons who may participate in a drive for deer. The law allows 48 hours for the registration of a deer killed, and a special seal will be used this year.

Zone D is north of the St. Lawrence and the Ottawa rivers, embracing this section. Hunters are advised to ask for a copy of the Game Law Summary when buying their permit. Other information is available from game wardens (in Lachute, Fernando Lamarche, tel. LO 2-4783, or Adelard Gagné, LO 2-2215.)

The partridge season runs from September 27, while ducks in the Southern district may be taken between September 20 and November 28.

More views and adventures from our mid-lake wildlife columnist

Main Duck Island,
South Bay, Picton, Ont.

Dear Editor:

It's me again. More on the subject of snakes. You may remember I told you I was going to try and get them with a fly rod. Of course, they don't go for flies, but casting out at the snakes and laying the fly over them, you sometimes manage to snag them that way. It's not very often that I did, but every one helps. The weather has been very warm, with the result the snakes are out in force. The lake is just crawling with them. Yesterday we saw some of these varmits in one of the bays that has the name "Schoolhouse". There were all kinds of minnows, and we watched four of the snakes for about half an hour. They would swim right through the minnows, eating as they went. With a little looking, you could almost see the things growing in girth. We saw two of them floating on top of the water, and they looked just like an inflated inner-tube of a bicycle. As there were visitors on the Island, I naturally didn't have my rifle. But we made up for it today, got eight of them, and if this weather keeps up we will get a lot more.

There are still plenty of guide boats around. You would think, with the hot weather, the sports would have called off the fishing, but as I mentioned before, this lake never really warms up, I don't imagine the fishing is very good for them. It won't be until the middle of September. Boy, what I would give just to be able to show some of these boats the type of fishing around Lachute. I've tried telling a couple about it, but they were neighbors from the south and they thought I was exaggerating.

These visitors use a unique type of fishing. It's called the Heave and Yank. It's funny at times seeing fish fly through the air. If you get too close to the boats you're liable to get slapped in the kisser with a fish head. The way some of them are yanked out of the water it's a wonder that doesn't happen. I heard one gent say when he went after fish he wasn't fooling around with them, they were going into the boat as fast as he could get them. (He wasn't fooling either.)

I also told you about some of the ducks nesting on the Island. Well their broods are being taken out into the lake for their lessons. Some of the families only include two or three youngsters. One old lady has nine of them, though. (Years of experience there, I guess.) It's funny to see them go skittering along the lake and get out of line. Then the old ladies really go to town. Boy, do they womp the young with their wings. From the looks of things I would say there are no "delinquent" ducks. If there are, it won't be because of the old adage, "Spare the rod and spoil the duck."

Now I'm going to tell you about some of the viewing we get on TV. Most of the stations are from the other side of the border; boy, are they good for a laugh! The nearest to us is Watertown. You should see and hear some of the ads. This is one I'm sure the ladies of Lachute would like. . . A shoe sale. Regular price $15.95, sale price $1.95. And what's more, they will get someone to believe that. Of course, tops in that field are the Beer companies. To hear some of the ads, you'd think THEY started the idea of Beer. But no matter which company it is, theirs is the very best that money can buy. (I've had the unfortunate experience of drinking some of it. Phooey! A poor grade of mouthwash.) . . . But I started out on the ads so here's some more. Now, this is a Canadian news item from Kingston, Ont., and it was on the TV news. "Police are looking for the vandals who chopped the heads off two goldfish today, and have a good lead." I'll bet the alley cats around the town took a beating. Honest, that really came over the news. A real big scoop too, from the announcer's voice; real drama and emotion in it.

The Raspberries are out by the carload now. How sick I'm going to be depends on how many I pick. I just know it's going to be tough, as I am a pig for these morsels. It's too bad they don't stay a little longer, say till around Christmas.

We are supposed to have some V.I.P.'s this month. For how long, is anybody's guess. It's all right saying, sure you love the outdoors; but when they get out and find nothing, boy they've had it. Particularly if they run out of Refreshments! You know the type I mean. They can't hop down to the store for it whenever they like. By the time the plane or a boat gets to them, they are going around picking butterflies out of the air that aren't there. Just a touch of Island Happiness.

I guess you will think this is not a very good Canadian-American Relations letter, in spots. I don't intend to be critical but I just give my impressions. And sometimes it makes me just a little more proud to be a Canadian.

Well — more later.

— BOB ATCHISON

Lachute duo met in finals

Finalists at the Seigniory Club's recent Members' and Guests' tennis tournament: Left, runner-up G. Sauvé, of Lachute, and right, J. Bourgoing, of Lachute, who defeated him 6-2, 6-0 in the final to win the tournament.

Valleyfield man Trapshoot champ

Gerry Fletcher, Brownsburg, is close runner-up

Robert Howson, a comparative newcomer to trapshooting, won the high overall crown in the Quebec provincial championships at St. Johns, by downing Gerry Fletcher, of Brownsburg, in a shoot-off amid a light downpour.

Howson, 22, from Valleyfield, who took up trapshooting three years ago, broke 24 targets in the 25-bird tie-breaker, one more than Fletcher. Both had scored 147 out of a possible 200 in regulation firing.

Gilbert Murray takes junior tennis title trophy

Gilbert Murray was winner of the Léopold Carrière trophy emblematic of the Junior tennis championship. He defeated 13-year-old Serge Miron 6-2 and 6-3 in the final.

The ladies' and gentlemen's Senior tournament is now in swing. The schedule of games and participants is posted at the club. Marcel Brunette has reached the quarter-finals, having ousted André Joly 2-6, 6-4 and 7-5 in two and a half hours of play. Joly, only 14 years of age, is a highly promising young player.

"Fantastic waste" is charged in government public building

Ottawa (CP) — Fifty members of Parliament visited the national printing bureau across the river from Ottawa at Hull, Que. They were continuing investigation of why the building cost $17,000,000 instead of estimate of $8,000,000.

Earlier E. A. Gardner, chief public works architect, told the public accounts committee of the Commons that the works department had objected when the main contract was let in 1952.

The visiting MPs were stunned. They found running streams of water in the sub-basement, an elaborately appointed bathroom with glass-walled shower for the Queen's Printer and an air-conditioning system that didn't work.

CCFer Harold Winch said the temperature in one part of the building was 94 degrees but in winter men had to wear hats because of cold.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all. — Edmund Burke

A traffic trouble-spot

AFTER-DARK accidents at the western approach to Barron's Bridge were monotonous by their regularity — some years ago, that is, before a flashing signal at the Chatham Street (Route 8) intersection provided an effective remedy. The victims were mostly late-night celebrants befogged in their senses, and the repetitious crashing through the manse fence at that spot is still vividly remembered.

Accidents at the Main Street end of this bridge have been far fewer, but there was one pictured in The Watchman last week which serves to illustrate the confusion and uncertainty experienced by drivers at this spot, year in and year out. It is remarkable, in fact, that there are not more accidents at this junction, especially in the noon-hour rush.

The remedy here requires expert study, both on the basis of similar situations elsewhere, and with on-the-spot knowledge of driver tendencies. Between the two joining highways, the driver to the right would logically have the right of way. But not all local drivers observe this; and the fact must be even less obvious to strangers and casual users. Whether a traffic light or a warning blinker is the answer, is for the town authorities to decide. Without the proper pavement markings, neither might be of use — causing only traffic tie-ups and obstruction. One thing is significant, however: that when the present Police Chief had this pavement strategically marked with traffic paint a year or two ago, there was less confusion and converging traffic kept to its appropriate lane.

We solicit Town Council's attention to this trouble-spot on our busy thoroughfares.

An argument for the Arts

THE FRONT PAGE of a familiar Montreal daily remained in our field of vision for more than its customary time, one day last week. We were loath to remove it from our desk, in fact, by reason of that serene and simple picture which commanded priority space at the top of the page. . . The picture showed a storied balcony in old world Verona, immortalized by Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, where a memorial stone had recently been laid.

"Wherefore art thou, Romeo?" . . . Verily, in this era's news of strikes and riots and international wrangles — in our journalistic diet of illustrated atom blasts, rockets, gun-whipped crime and disaster — it is not surprising that this unpeopled scene of a medieval courtyard should capture our attention and briefly soothe the furrowed brow. We may be branded a dreamer, or a colossal crackpot, for reacting in this manner. But who will deny that, by comparison with the commonplace happenings of our day, even the starkest dramas of Shakespeare seem to move at a quiet, restful pace.

There is one conclusion from this experience worth noting. We mean, the thought that literature, music, drama and the arts have a very practical value in human affairs. Those who can find time for their enjoyment, either in a passive or a creative way, derive great psychological benefit. In the torrid living of our day, the arts are an oasis to refresh the temperament and re-focus the human outlook.

Let's try practical sympathy

IT HAPPENS every year around this time. We listen with tearful tolerance to the woes of the hay fever victims (of whom there are at least four in our small circle of daily associates). And this time, as the sniff-and-sneeze season reached its stride, we did conscientiously endeavor to put ourselves in the sufferers' shoes, and to realize what it is all about. It was a poor attempt, perhaps, for there is nothing so grim as the real thing. Standing on the sidelines among those fortunately exempt, it seems no stretch of imagination could attain the degree of misery experienced by those luckless individuals allergic to the pollens of the season. . .

And they are legion — the luckless ones, we mean. Medical science comes up with new combative procedures, while the pharmaceutical manufacturers continue to produce new remedies, preventives and antitoxins. These momentarily raise hopes that a miracle has dawned . . . but the sniffs continue unabated, the sneezes grow louder.

Coming back to home territory, it has been suggested — with some spirit and indignation too — that the Lachute authorities should take a hand to curb this scourge. Ragweed, the principal offender, is flourishing now in yards and vacant lots, its pollen wafting in whichever direction the wind blows. Other towns and suburbs have successfully campaigned against the weed, through onslaughts by juvenile and organized groups, and by penalizing property owners who allow ragweed to grow on their lots.

In the question of applying this idea to Lachute, it has been argued that there are so many vacant lots, even fields and farmlands, within the municipal limits, that extermination would be impossible. Maybe so, but we are informed that ragweed spreads its affliction only within a reasonable radius; therefore, if only lots and properties adjoining populated streets could be attacked, at least the result would be beneficial to the larger concentration of inhabitants.

We commend the idea to hay fever sufferers, who, as those most immediately concerned, should organize and see what can be done. Also, of the civic authorities we ask a sympathetic ear, and any practical gesture which might launch a serious attack on this problem.

Current treasure hunt

A TREASURE HUNT that began last month is turning up substantial quantities of a most sought-after object in Canada today, the one-hundred dollar Victory Bond.

During the war, according to the Bank of Canada, people in cities, towns and villages across the country bought more one-hundred dollar bonds than any other denomination. Next most popular were the fifties. For this reason, more bonds of these two classes are outstanding than of any other. And hence the job of finding them and getting them exchanged into the new bonds of the Canada Conversion Loan is receiving major attention.

Officials in Ottawa, anxious to see each bond converted, say that before the new loan was announced roughly 1,898,000 one-hundred dollar pieces and about 857,000 fifty-dollar pieces of unmatured Victory Bonds were outstanding.

Where these millions of valuable pieces of paper are today, no one really knows. But chances are that most of them are owned by perhaps as many as two million holders in communities large and small throughout the nation.

Some of our local residents engaged in the search have been poking through old desks and rummaging in strong-boxes. Some have been opening safety deposit boxes for the first time in years, on the chance of discovering a forgotten bond or two. One elderly lady in Quebec found some in the bottom of an old tin biscuit box.

Bank managers in some communities have reported that many of their clients are surprised to learn that the government is really interested in getting every single fifty-dollar and one-hundred dollar bond converted. Typical of many was a reaction from a farmer, who turned up at his bank in a small Western Ontario town carrying two fifties. "I don't suppose they care much about these" he said, "but I thought I'd bring them in anyway."

Response from individual bond holders, especially in smaller communities, is growing each day. In many places, staffs of banks and investment dealers have been working late into the night to keep up with the flow of applications.

Viewpoints and perspectives

BEST STUDENTS EVER — If the Government is casting about for ways to assist Canadian universities and students without offending provincial susceptibilities, it could do worse than study the workings of the last large-scale Canadian student aid plan, declares The Financial Post.

This was the university training scheme under the Veterans Rehabilitation Act. By any standard it was an outstanding success; and it could well serve as a model for a new measure.

In all, the Act sent 55,000 veterans to college. The Government paid their fees and gave each man a basic $60 a month living allowance. The universities got supplementary grants to provide facilities. Of the $134 million cost, $85 million went for allowances, $49 million for university support.

Because of their greater age and experience, the veterans, taken as a group, were the best students our universities ever had. Canada is — and so are they — the richer for their training.

When were the first stamps issued in Canada?

The history of Canadian postage stamps began in 1849, when the British Government passed an act empowering the colonial government of British North America to establish independent postage systems. On April 23, 1851, the first postage stamp was issued in the province of Canada — the stamp commonly referred to as the 3-penny Beaver. Shortly after the original stamp, two other denominations were issued: the 6-penny, exhibiting a portrait of Albert, the Prince Consort; and the 12-penny, with a portrait of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria. The Nova Scotia stamps, issued in 1851, bore heraldic emblems, with the 1-penny stamp having a likeness of Queen Victoria superimposed. The New Brunswick stamps also bore heraldic designs. Prince Edward Island's first stamps bore the likeness of the Queen.

Although the introduction of the stamp in 1851 gave to Canada the method of prepayment of postage introduced by Roland Hill, in Great Britain in 1840, it was not compulsory to use this means of prepayment. Indeed, stamps were not used to any great extent until 1855. By the 1870's the same postage stamps were common to all provinces but Newfoundland.

What Canadian town has needle-making as its principal industry?

Bedford, Quebec, on the Pike River, 50 miles southeast of Montreal has the manufacture of needles as its principal industry. It was in 1817 that Martin Rice of Rhode Island established a trip-hammer shop in the area. Originally known as Stanbridge Falls, the name was changed to Bedford, and was incorporated as a town in 1890. The manufacture of needles began in the early days of the community. At first knitting needles were the only kind made, but now various types of needles are produced in a large concern employing approximately 700 workers.

Who was the first British Subject to fly an aeroplane?

Frederick Walker (Casey) Baldwin, aeronautical pioneer and engineer, born in Toronto, in 1882, was educated at Ridley College and the University of Toronto. Upon graduation, he joined Alexander Graham Bell and others in the Aerial Experimental Association, at Baddeck, N.S. On March 12, 1908, at Hammondsport, N.Y., he became the first British subject to fly an aeroplane, although he subsequently discontinued flying in 1911. Baldwin was Manager of the Graham Bell Laboratories from 1909-1932, specializing in the study of Hydrofoils. He became internationally known for the development of devices used in naval and aerial warfare. He was elected to the Nova Scotia Legislature in 1933, and became President of the Nova Scotia Conservative Association in 1937. He died in Neareagh, N.S. in 1948. In 1954 a naval craft employing hydrofoil principles was called the KC-B (Casey B) in his honor.

When did a railway locomotive first operate in Upper Canada?

The first railway locomotive in Upper Canada ran to Aurora, Ont., from Toronto, in 1863, a distance of 18 miles. Formerly known as Machell's Corners, the settlement was renamed about the same time after Aurora, Goddess of the Dawn.

Who published the first newspaper in the Northwest Territories?

Patrick Gammie Laurie travelled west by ox train and in 1878 he founded the Saskatchewan Herald at Battleford, then capital of the Northwest Territories. For two years, his was the only newspaper in the territories. His accurate and faithful reporting while Battleford was beleaguered during the Riel uprising makes the Herald a valuable historical source.

What is the Arctic Institute of North America?

Scientific study of the northland becomes increasingly important as increasing industry poses technical and social problems and the northern coasts are developed as an important defence line. The institute was established in 1945 by the United States and Canada for integrated study of the Arctic region. A Danish representative sits on the Board of Governors to provide a link with the work in Greenland. The problems of the north are to a considerable degree alike, whether in Alaska, northern Canada or Greenland; and there is a great advantage in dealing with the region as a whole from the point of view of scientific research, free from the limitations of national boundaries. The results of investigations are embodied in reports submitted to the institute and later published in scientific journals for the benefit of all those interested. The journal of the institute, The Arctic, has become the standard North American publication on Arctic investigations.

Bee Jelly

A friend of mine who never seemed to have much energy has suddenly become quite a bundle of get-up-and-go. I asked him where he'd picked up the pep, and he grinned a bit sheepishly. "Haven't you heard about royal bee jelly?" he asked me.

I had noticed something about it in the magazines, but paid very little attention to it. Apparently, it is the substance the bees feed to their queen, so that she gets to be several times bigger than her subjects and outlives them several times over. Seems to me those worker bees are a bit silly not to swipe a bite or two of the jelly for themselves instead of feeding it all to the queen.

I enquired at a drug store about the jelly and found it costs quite a bit. So I'm telling myself that my droopy friend has brightened up not so much because of the jelly—but because he thinks it peps him up. It is surprising what power of suggestion can do! Meanwhile I feel good about what I've saved.

For all I know, the bee jelly may be all it is cracked up to be. But there are other ways to increase your pep, and I think they ought to be tried first. I'll tell you a few that work for me.

I'm a naturally lazy guy, yet I plow through a tremendous amount of work in a day, which astonishes my friends who know how much I like to loaf when I can. Here's how I do it, and you might want to give it a whirl.

First, I give myself a pep talk as soon as the old orbs open. In this matter, I took the advice of Sir William Osler who cried, "Be your own daysman! and sigh not with Job for any mysterious intermediary, but prepare to lay your own firm hand upon the helm." I find that when I start the day right, with some zeal and determination, I am often able to accomplish more in a morning than some of my friends get done in an entire half-hearted day. I also use the old slogan of Abe Lincoln, who said "Most men are as happy as they make up their minds to be." By making up my mind, first thing in the morning, to be gay and spry, I get more done. You can't work well in a mood of depression — and such moods can be banished.

Then, aware of my own laziness, I ply myself with incentives. If I work hard I'll have more time free. I can make it to the cottage for a swim tonight if I dig in right now and do my best work. Such a thought acts on me like a gasoline additive.

Royal jelly? That's for the bees! Give me a good start on the day, and plenty of incentives as I go along, and watch things fly. I'm happy when I'm working smoothly and efficiently; I feel punk when work piles up. So lazy or not, I'd better hustle! You'd better do the same thing, friends! It makes life much more pleasant.

with G. E. MORTIMORE

For many children of the 1950's, it is Christmas all year round.

They get presents for going back to school, presents for the middle of the term, presents for graduating, presents to console them for failing, and presents to encourage them to study for their supplementals.

Soon the newspapers will be dotted with advertisements urging people to coax the young back to their books with bait like new gowns, fur-trimmed bicycles and kid-sized cocktail glasses.

As white men used to approach the Indians when the Indians had them outnumbered, parents now aproach children with extreme care, carrying gifts.

The conversation doesn't even start until the kids have looked over the wampum and decided whether it is worth the effort.

Reward for high performance is a sound idea. But why throw the dog a marrow bone every time he fetches a stick.

Don't write me off as an old fogey. I'm still a fairly young fogey. But I can't help feeling that by subjecting the youngsters to an endless shower of gifts, parents do them real harm.

They're equipping the children with a Santa Claus complex which will be a real burden when there is no father or mother around to pay the bills.

The lad or lass who expects the world to be delivered gift-wrapped, as a graduation present, is in for a nasty surprise.

The old motto that a man has to work for everything he gets in this world is, of course, mainly humbug. A glance around will show you a number of people reaping where they have not sown. They're lucky, or crafty, or they had rich fathers. More power to them. I would gladly be one of them, if I could.

However, a great number of people do have to work for what they get. Raise a youngster with the idea of work in his head, and you do him a favor. If he does get anything handed him on a plate, it will come as a happy surprise.

Many of today's generous parents were depression babies who grew up in the 1930's when the money was spread thin, and boys thought themselves well treated if they got birthday presents, let alone back-to-school presents, get-well presents and gifts for not playing hookey.

Now, I suspect, they are trying to make up for what they missed by smothering their children with kindness. They'll be sorry.

DISTRICT NEWS FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Late Mrs. F. Gaston was lifelong county resident

After a lengthy illness, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Gaston passed away August 5 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cain, Lachute.

Born at Centerville on September 20, 1880, she was the eldest daughter of James Hammond and his wife Ellen Knox.

In 1904, she married Frank Gaston and resided at Cushing for many years. She was predeceased by her husband in November 1939.

Left to mourn her passing are her son, Roy, of Cushing, her daughter, Mildred (Mrs. Cain), of Lachute, three granddaughters and one great-granddaughter. There remain also three sisters, Harriet (Mrs. Wm. Chambers), of St. Philippe d'Argenteuil, Lily (Mrs. Albert Mitchell), of Lachute, Laura (Mrs. Charles Thompson), of Ceylon, Sask., and one brother, Robert, of Verdun.

Funeral services were held at the MacKimmie Funeral Chapel on August 6, the Rev. G. Moore officiating.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Lemuel Hammond, James and Ferguson Kettyle, Edward Gauley, Daniel de Hertel and Sidney Wilson.

Interment took place at the St. Andrews East Cemetery.

Late Mrs. Wm. Alexander

Mrs. E. R. Alexander, a former resident of Lachute, and widow of the late Dr. Wm. Alexander who practised here for many years, passed away in Highland Park, New Jersey, on August 11 after a short illness. She was 87 years of age.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Max Gideonse (Isabel), of Highland Park, N.J., her son, Edward Ryckman Alexander, of Westmount, four grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Fredericka R. Dale, of St. Mary's, Ont.

A private funeral service was held at Highland Park on August 13, interment taking place in Mount Royal Cemetery.

Older residents of this community will remember the Alexander family, whose home was in the large house north of the Gall & Jones business, with a lovely lawn at the present site of Muir's Service Station.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, etc.

Births, Marriages, Deaths, and In Memoriam, etc., $1.00; 5 cents per type line extra for verses, with In Memoriam (estimate 8 words per type line).

Deadline, TUESDAY noon.

IN MEMORIAM

LOUDIN — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Bob, accidentally killed Aug. 17, 1946. — Always remembered by Mother and sisters, Kay, Margaret and Eleanor.

"Memories in our hearts today
Mean more than words can ever say;
It only takes a little space
To write how much we miss you,
But it will take the rest of our lives
To forget the day you left us."

MILNES — In memory of a loving wife and mother. — Tom, Sam and Joyce.

"Ever with us."

MILNES — Treasured memories of a loving sister, Martha Ann Milnes, who passed away suddenly Aug. 21, 1957. — Bessie and Tom.

"In heavenly love abiding."

YOUNG — In loving memory of our dear son, Lloyd Young, who passed away Aug. 24, 1954. — Always remembered by Mom and Dad.

"Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past,
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

GASTON — The family of the late Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Gaston wish to express their sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for their expressions of sympathy and floral tributes.

LEPINE — Mrs. William Lépine and family, of Brownsburg, wish to thank relatives and friends for their many acts of kindness, expressions of sympathy, masses, floral offerings, telegrams, visits in their recent bereavement, and for attendance at the funeral of the late Police Chief William Lépine.

CARRIER'S REWARD

Niagara Falls, Ont. (CP) — David Plato, a 15-year-old newspaper carrier, found $1,000 on the street and told police. Later a car dealer reported he had lost his $1,000 bank deposit. The dealer got his money back and rewarded the boy with a bicycle and $10.

Brownsburg

Mrs. Margaret Conners and twin daughters, Misses Leona and Leola Conners, of Ottawa, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Smillie.

Mission Circle

Mrs. J. L. Kennedy and Mrs. Allen Kennedy were hostesses for the Maple Avenue Baptist Mission Circle meeting which was held at the latter's home on Tuesday evening last. An interesting paper was read on Baptist Missionary work in Bolivia, and a committee was appointed to make plans for the Mission Band which will resume activities in September.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Taylor and son, Peter, of Calgary, Alta., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. MacAdam and other relatives here.

Mrs. Chris Button, who has been visiting with her brother, Mr. Wm. Witham, for several weeks, sailed aboard the "Ivernia" last Friday morning for her home in Bournemouth, England. She was accompanied to Montreal by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Witham and Mr. and Mrs. George Witham and family.

Morin Heights

Mrs. Wm. Nesbitt entertained about 20 ladies on Monday last to afternoon tea. The two guests of honor were Mrs. Edith Davis and her daughter, Margaret, who are visiting in the community from Victoria, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Seale and son, Huntley, spent a few days' vacation in various points of Ontario last week. While away they were guests of Mrs. Allan at North Bay.

Rev. W. Bridge, on pastoral vacation, sends impressions from South Bend, Ind.

South Bend, Indiana.
August 14, 1958

Editor, Lachute Watchman.

Dear Friend:

By the time you receive this letter we shall be making plans for our return journey to Lachute. At the moment we are undecided as to whether we shall return by the outward route — Hawkesbury, Cornwall, Thousand Islands bridge, and the New York thruway (which we joined near Syracuse), or to come back via Michigan State, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, North Bay, and Ottawa. Whichever way we take must be covered in two and a half days — at least that is our plan.

We had a good journey down to South Bend, and found the New York thruway a safer proposition than the ordinary highway. All traffic is moving in the same direction — and it moves at 50 to 65 miles per hour. This is the legal speed but not all drivers adhere to what is legal or safe.

From information we received on the journey, the New York State thruway (which links up with thruways in Ohio and Indiana) when completed, will be the largest express highway in the world with a total length of 562 miles. The average cost per mile of construction was $1,340,000. The Thruway Authority acquired some 20,700 acres of land for its construction of which 80,000,000 cubic yards were excavated for the Thruway.

This 80,000,000 cubic yards would fill 10,000,000 large dump trucks, and if lined up bumper to bumper, they would encircle the earth nearly four times. Its construction took 8,900,000 barrels of cement; and if placed end to end, the blue prints for the New York City to Buffalo section would stretch 315 miles. When the project is finally completed the Thruway will have direct connections with similar expressways in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Canada.

Incidentally, there are service areas every 30 miles or so, and one is assured of good food and service for the automobile. So far we have had excellent service, and the Meteor is satisfactory in every way.

When we arrived here on the last Thursday in July the congregation of the Westminster Presbyterian Church held a reception for us, thus enabling us to meet with some of the people before the services on the Sunday. There are two services, 9.30 and 11 a.m. At 11 a.m. we have about 115 of a congregation, but at 9.30 a.m. a full house. This is a most encouraging thing during a holiday month, and gives us a great lift.

The other Thursday we attended a 9.30 a.m. breakfast sponsored by the Senior W.A. group, at which approximately 60 were present. The meeting was held at a farm house about 10 miles out from South Bend. For our repast the hostess provided scrambled eggs and bacon, etc. Quite an undertaking, I assure you, but it was a most enjoyable meal.

Lake Michigan is about 28 miles from here and offers safe boating and a guaranteed tan assured by sunshine and the breeze from the lake. It is gratifying to know that we can beat the heat by going to the lake — and that was not possible when we were in Charlotte, North Carolina, last summer.

You will be interested to know that we have a delightful manse here, though no better and not as spacious as our home in Lachute. It is on the Colonial style, and furnished with a good deal of antique furniture, some of which is very valuable. Between now and the end of August we have a number of engagements to fulfil, after which we look forward to returning to Lachute, where, this fall, I hope to begin the sixth year of my ministry at the Lachute United Church and East Settlement.

I am afraid that this letter is somewhat disjointed, nevertheless it will give you some idea of how we are getting along, and at the same time will assure you that, although we are down in the States, it is not a case of "out of sight, out of mind."

Greetings and kind regards to everyone,

Sincerely,
(Rev.) WILSON BRIDGE

Early by-elections in two ridings

Ottawa (CP) — By-elections in two federal ridings will be held Monday, September 29, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced. They will be the first contests since the sweeping Progressive Conservative victory in the March 31 general election.

One by-election follows the May 11 death of A. Clair Casselman, Conservative member for the Ontario riding of Grenville-Dundas. His widow is seeking the seat.

Resignation of Hon. Jean Lesage in the Quebec riding of Montmagny - L'Islet after his election as Quebec Liberal leader, makes the other by-election necessary.

Slight tariff boost on woollen imports

Ottawa (CP) — The Liberals and CCF called it "a return to Tory protectionism," but the Progressive Conservative majority swamped them and pushed through increases in the duty on British wool cloth imports.

Opposition leader Pearson charged the tariff boast threatened to damage Anglo-Canadian trade relations and to reduce the effectiveness of the forthcoming Commonwealth trade and economic conference in Montreal. Mr. Hamilton denied this, saying the boosts were not big enough to engender British resentment.

August meetings of W.I. branches

During the summer months several W.I. branches suspend their meetings. The following groups however have reported their activities:

At the Arundel meeting Mr. Irené Paré, agronome, gave a talk on the work of the School Fair. A bazaar was held July 12, proving very successful. A picnic was planned for August at Bark Lake.

Frontier ladies held their annual picnic which was well attended by members and firends.

Jerusalem - Bethany reported they had catered for two weddings. They also held further discussion about the proposed Old Folks' Home and the Jubilee Anniversary.

Mille Isles group heard a talk by the Citizenship convener on the International Peace Garden on the U.S.A. - Canada boundary. Plans are being made for a social evening in September.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. William Maxwell, Brownsburg, wishes to thank her many kind relatives and friends who remembered her while in hospital with cards, flowers and other expressions of their good wishes. Their thoughtfulness is sincerely appreciated.

For Parents Only...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Beware poisoning!

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

An interesting experiment in saving more children's lives from poisoning is planned for British Columbia. Dr. Geoffrey Robinson, medical director of the Children's Health Centre at the Vancouver General Hospital is the chief sponsor and Dr. John Dean, of London, will be head of this new venture. The Community Chest and the Kinsmen's Polio Fund are giving financial assistance for this twenty-four-hour-a-day service.

When a child accidentally swallows poison, parents will be able to phone the centre from anywhere in our most Western province. There, an index will be consulted with six thousand cards listing all poisonous household substances. Such a large number of possible poisons sounds alarming! But none of them would be likely to be a threat to a child's life, if parents would carry out the practical suggestions made by the Canadian Red Cross in their excellent little booklet, "Health, Home Nursing, Emergencies."

Homemakers are reminded there that poisons should be treated as snakes (poisonous ones!) and kept away from the family just as carefully. The Family Medicine Cabinet should be kept locked with the key hung in plain sight, high out of reach of little hands. Poisons, such as rubbing alcohol and iodine, should be placed on the cabinet's top shelf and they should be plainly labelled. Many people use an adhesive strip around the bottle with POISON printed on it and another strip over the cork or stopper, to remind the person touching it that it is dangerous.

The medicine cabinet is not the only place where danger lurks. Small children are curious and they go exploring into any cupboard or corner they can reach. Unfortunately, forbidden places have an attraction and in a spirit of mischief, a child left alone may sample Paris Green he discovers among the gardening things, or lye he finds in his mother's cleaning cupboard. Take a good look at your supplies of any kind. Are all poisonous ones where your youngster can't get them?

List your doctor's phone number beside your phone and call immediately if poison has been swallowed. Tell him, or the nurse who answers, if you can, what poison has been swallowed. In most cases it is well to dilute the poison by giving the patient lukewarm water with soapsuds or salt in it. Encourage the child to vomit. If necessary, tickle the back of the throat with your finger to make him "bring up."

Time is precious and immediate vomiting is absolutely essential. Don't waste precious minutes searching around for the correct antidote if medical aid is on the way. The doctor will direct this. If it is hard to reach him, don't panic!

However, if the doctor cannot be located, it is just as well to paste the following suggestions in your Cook Book. If lye or some other caustic substance has been swallowed, after vomiting, give vinegar. Whites of eggs are fed a patient who has swallowed arsenic or Paris Green, after the stomach has been emptied. Iodine poisoning calls for generous amounts of starch or flour, mixed with water, then vomiting. In rat poisoning, (phosphorous ingredient) induce vomiting, give permanganate of potash, four or five grains in a glass of water, then Epsom salts — but no oil or milk.

People have dreaded poisoning from earliest times. A legend grew up about Mithridates, King of Pontus, 1st century B.C. who came to the throne at eleven years. He was said to have made himself immune from poison by mixing up an antidote with 72 ingredients, to protect himself from an enemy at court poisoning him.

Your child will likely never need an antidote for poisoning, if you are extra-careful to keep all dangerous substances out of his reach! Don't take any chances!

Milk

All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 2. For 4, double ingredients.

Broiled Kidneys and Bacon en Brochette: Remove fat from 6 lamb kidneys. Soak kidneys 15 minute in cold water to cover, containing 1 tsp. salt.

Drain. Cut out white "eyes." Split kidneys lengthwise.

String a square of bacon on a metal brochette or skewer; then string on a half-kidney. Continue until skewer is filled. Dust with salt, pepper and onion salt if desired.

Preheat broiler.

Suspend brochettes over a pan containing a little hot water. Broil 7 minutes about 4 in. from heat. Turn once.

Nice with hot mustard.

Parslied Potatoes (15 min.): The trick is to dice the potatoes.

Peel 3 medium potatoes (a potato peeler is useful). Cut into 1-in. cubes; rinse.

Place in 1-qt. saucepan. Pour in 1-in. boiling water. Add ½ tsp. salt, cover and boil about 15 minute, or until fork-tender. Uncover the last 5 minutes. The liquid will almost evaporate.

Drain. Add 1 tbsp. butter and snip in 1 tbsp parsley, using kitchen scissors. Serve very hot.

Warm Gingerbread Squares Surprise: Use a gingerbread mix, following pkg. directions with this exception: Stir 1 tsp. instant powdered coffee into batter when mixing, for surprise flavor.

Bake in oiled 8-in. square pan. Serve warm, cut in squares. Top with whipped cream and dust with fine-chopped nutmeats.

Enough for 2 meals.

Refrigerate in wrapped aluminum foil.

Broiled Fillets al fresco

The lack of outdoor cooking equipment doesn't mean you must forego dinner outside and enjoyment of early evening breezes these late summer days. Al fresco meals can be satisfying and easy to prepare, with just a little planning and kitchen organization. Keep the menu simple, use trays to transport cutlery and food and enlist the aid of the family for shuttle service. It's wise too to choose as the one hot dish something which can be cooked at the last minute and carried right to the table in its attractive double-duty cooking dish. Broiled fish fillets are at their most flavorful and flaky best when cooked quickly, perfect for an al fresco supper on the porch or under the trees in the garden. To complete the menu and please all hands, cook included, we suggest tiny canned potatoes and sweet onion rings that heat in the same dish while the fish cooks, half tomato shells filled with crisp cucumber slices, and piping hot rolls — homemade or brown-and-serve variety. Dessert could be warm fresh peach pie topped with ice cream, or a selection of summer fruit and spicy cookies, accompanied by glasses of sparkling iced tea or coffee.

1½ lbs. fish fillets, ¼ cup French dressing, 1 28-oz. can potatoes, 1 Spanish onion (thinly sliced and borken into rings), 2 tablespoons mint or parsley (finely chopped).

Place fillets on flat pan and pour half of French dressing over them. Meanwhile preheat broiler. In a shallow ovenproof baking and serving dish, arrange potatoes and onion rings at each end. Sprinkle with salt and brush with half of the remaining French dressing. Place under broiler (set at low flame) and heat slowly about twenty minutes. Increase flame. Arrange fillets in centre of baking dish with vegetables; place dish about two to three inches from source of heat. Broil two to five minutes; then turn fillets, brush with remaining French dressing and continue broiling just until fillets will flake easily when tested with a fork, about five minutes for fresh or thawed fillets. Sprinkle fish and vegetables with mint or parsley and serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Fashions

Simple and feminine for late-day dress-up duty is this frock of pongee-type silk that comes in such luscious colors as pink, orange or yellow. Subtle seaming creates a compromise chemise that should be acceptable to people on both sides of the chemise controversy. The fringe-edged bow knot at waist and neckline is a nice detail.

Is your child a poor eater?

When a pre-school child has a poor appetite, offer him attractive foods, but don't force him to eat or show concern over his refusal to eat, advises Dr. Harvey Bakwin, a New York pediatrician, according to "Today's Health", August issue, received by the Health League of Canada. "The child probably does not need as much food as he used to, because his tempo of weight-gain has slowed down. Also he is getting smarter and if he is cajoled he learns that not eating is a way of getting attention or of annoying his parents," said Dr. Bakwin in addressing the Illinois State Medical Society. "Youngsters may also become quite bored with baby food at this age, and food needs imaginative preparation," he continued.

Canadian women first voted in Ontario in 1884, but it was in municipal elections only and only widows and spinsters got the ballot.

Wife Preservers

Driftwood can grace your home after a stiff scrubbing. To bleach it, brush with 20 ounces of oxalic acid in a gallon of water. Let stand 15 minutes, rinse, dry and shellac.

HUBBY CALLS

Guelph, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Gladys Dormer says she received a "wonderful surprise" this August — a trans-Atlantic phone call from Rafa, Egypt. At the other end was her husband, Pte. Ken Dormer, serving with the Royal Canadian Engineers in the UN Emergency Force.

Styles for juniors

Fur trim is an important feature of new Canadian children's coat styles for fall and winter. Here the little girl's coat, which shows the fashionable "trapeze" line flare, has a mink collar. Coat, leggings and matching hat are made of "sealskin" wool. Her young escort is equally stylish in a duffle outfit in tweedy wool with a mouton-lined hood which unzips to form a collar. The fabrics and styles are all-Canadian.

Automation in the home threatens to rob Canadian women of their originality, says Helen McKercher, director of the home economics extension service of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

"Cake mixes and ready-made clothes mean that homemakers lose their joy of achievement," said Miss McKercher. "Anybody can make a cake with a cake-mix, but there's real pleasure in making a cake yourself. In the same way, it's more fun to make your own clothes."

She claims that Canadians eat too much and don't select ornaments for their homes with sufficient care.

Send Out Courses

Miss McKercher's job is to see that women living in rural areas have a chance to improve their knowledge and skills. This opportunity is provided through courses in cookery, clothing and other subjects, prepared through her department and distributed through Women's Institutes and similar organizations. Miss McKercher has a staff of 50 in Toronto and around the province.

"Canada is an overfed nation," said Miss McKercher. "Much of our teaching is aimed at publicizing good nutrition. We are also concerned with good color sense and an eye for line.

"We want teacups that are teacups, and not a butterfly taking flight; we want ashtrays that will hold cigaret ash and lamps that will give light where it is needed."

August Sandwiches

Sandwiches are to the fore this August, with the food industry in Canada pushing an "August is Sandwich Time" campaign. Sandwiches, say the experts, are seldom made from written recipes, but a cook can use her ingenuity to use whatever food is in the house.

Salad greens lend color to sandwiches, and chard, curly endive, lettuce, parsley, spinach and watercress are useful fillings, plus tomato, cucumber, chopped egg, and chopped meat of any kind.

The consumer section of the agriculture department has some bright leads about sandwich fillings. It suggests blending chopped green pepper with chopped bacon, walnuts and mayonnaise. Cucumber can join grated onion and sour creams, sliced tomato is good with chopped mint or chives or thymes, and sauteed mushrooms are tasty with choped onion, pimento, cayenne and mayonnaise.

The experts add these tips to sandwich making: taste as you go; try the filling with bread to ensure it has enough seasoning and flavor interest and make sure the filling is moist enough to prevent a dry sandwich, but not sloppy enough to seep into the bread.

Pep up fillings that taste flat by adding salt and pepper, lemon juice, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, chopped pickles or onions, according to type of filling used, and have something crisp or crunchy in the filling, such as sliced or chopped cucumber, pickle, nuts, celery or carrot.

Modern bungalow for lucky patron at Ottawa "Ex"

Some fortunate patron of the Ottawa Exhibition, to be held August 22-30, will be awarded a modern bungalow valued at $35,000. This is the famed exhibition display home being sponsored by the Shrine and Richelieu Clubs and the Central Canada Exhibition.

Included with the home will be a 1958 model car, a fur coat, complete home furnishings and a full lot to go with the house.

The home is of ultra-modern design.

It will contain a living-room, fireplace, dining area, kitchen, three bedrooms, breezeway and attached car-port.

The kitchen will be a housewife's dream with all the latest gadgets and equipment such as a washer and dryer, refrigerator, etc. The home will be heated by a special zone-controlled system.

The person gaining the home will have it moved to the lot at the sponsors' expense. The lot, 100' x 150', is located off the Metcalfe highway.

L. L. Coulter, chairman of the display home committee, has a tender spot in his heart and hopes some young married or engaged couple will receive the home. He recalls that previous exhibition homes went to a bachelor and a maiden lady. "This would be a wonderful gift for a young couple," Mr. Coulter says.

The draw for the display home will take place on Saturday evening, August 30, in front of the grandstand.

Accidents go up with temperature

Children's accidents are most likely to occur in the afternoon of a warm day. The victim probably will be a small boy who fell while playing at home and lacerated his head.

A study of childhood accidents reported in The Canadian Medical Association Journal found that the "frequency of accidents increases directly in proportion to the elevation of temperature"; except in cases of poisoning, more boys than girls suffer accidents. Up to 80% (especially among the toddlers) are injured while playing at home under supervision of the mother. About three out of five injuries involve the head. Lacerations are the most common type of injury. When a child is a poisoning victim, he probably ingested aspirin or something else from the medicine cabinet. About 30% of the types of poisons catalogued in the study, including pesticides and petroleum products, were not in their original containers.

Purpose of the survey, based on emergency ward records of the Royal Alexandra Hospital at Edmonton, was to analyze causes of children's accidents to provide knowledge for preventing recurrences.

A small number of cases may involve so-called "accident-prone" children who relieve their aggressions by striking at inanimate objects or by placing themselves in a dangerous situation, thereby sustaining an injury. It was pointed out that many accidents occur "when the child is doing something forbidden by the parents". However, the article charges that adults must be held at fault in the vast majority of cases. It is the adult who drives the car, who leaves the revolver loaded, who puts the turpentine in the pop bottle, or who leaves the aspirin on the bottom shelf of the medicine cabinet.

UNIFORM SPEEDS

Banff, Alta. (CP) — Speed limits on the Trans-Canada highway in Banff national park have been increased by 10 miles an hour to 60 miles per hour for cars and 50 for trucks. The increase makes speed limits in the park uniform with those in the rest of Alberta.

43 Eastbound trips by Cunard next year

Montreal — From April 15 to November 27 of next year, the Cunarder liners Saxonia, Ivernia, Carinthia and Sylvania will make a total of 43 eastbound crossings from Montreal — according to a Cunard Line announcement. On all these sailings the four 22,000-tonners will call at Québec to embark passengers for Europe.

The Carinthia will open the Cunard Line's St. Lawrence River season sailing from Montreal on April 15 bound for Liverpool via Greenock.

Next year, calls at Quebec on eastbound crossings will be made by the Carinthia and Sylvania on all sailings from Montreal. In the past, only the Saxonia and Ivernia called at Quebec while en route to Havre and Southampton.

Don't leave the boat if it capsizes. Cling to it until rescued!

Bible in Portugal

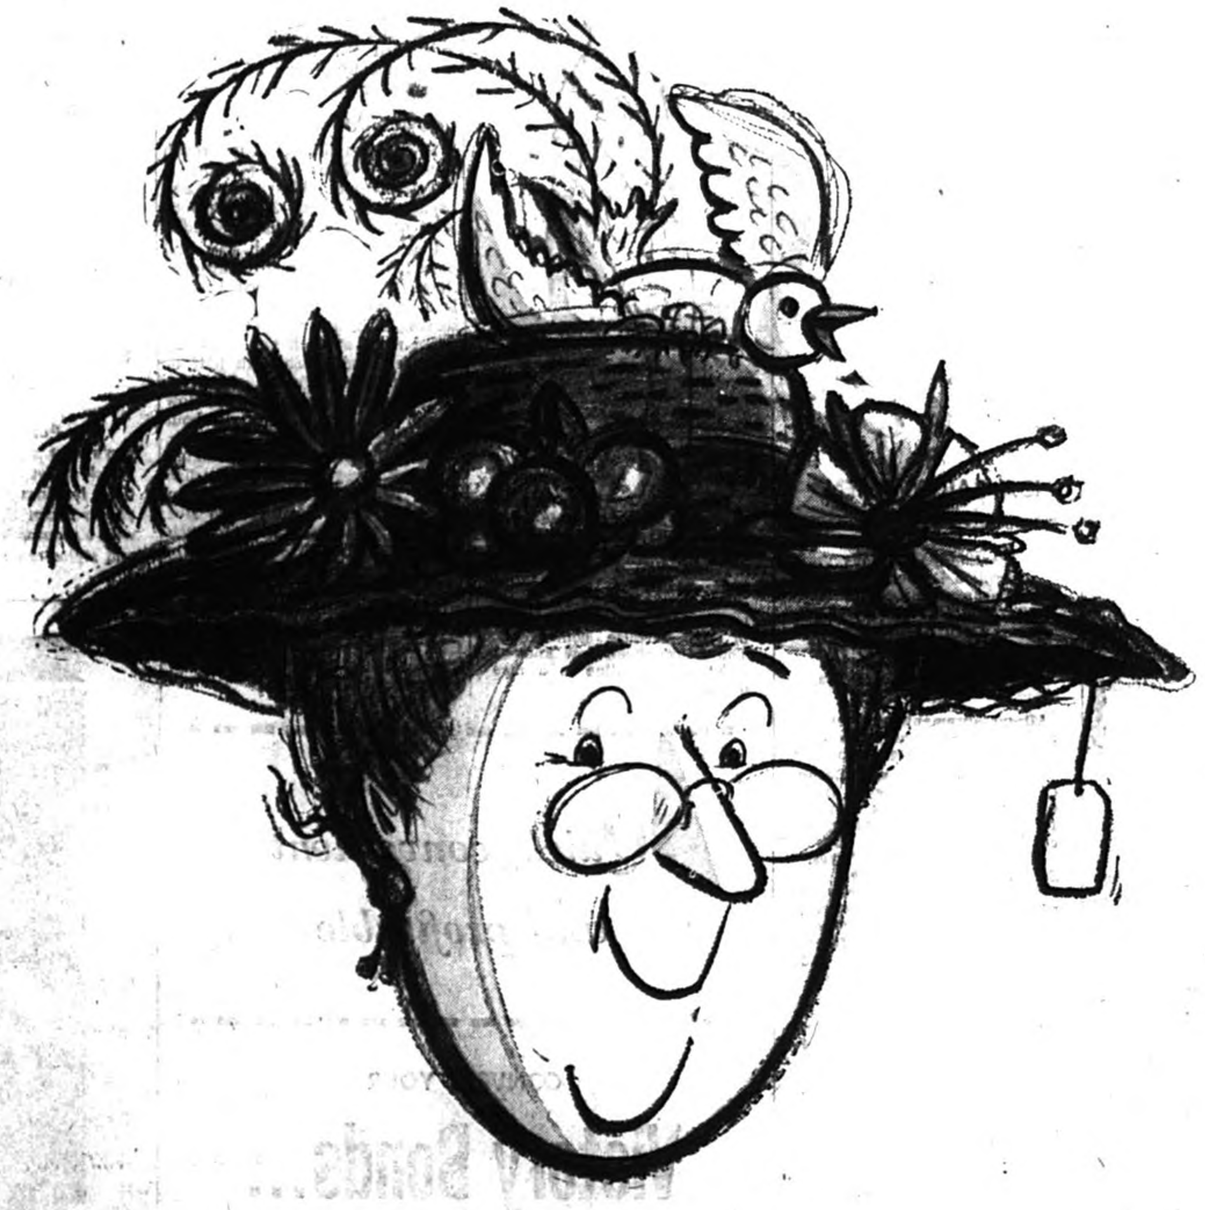

The new trend, in Portugal, is a return to the Bible. Right now there is being published, in Portugal, a new Roman Catholic edition of the Scriptures entitled "Edicao Monumental da Biblia Sagrada"; it is coming out in folios, and has articles of introduction and full-page illustrations.

Previous editions of the Bible have always been translations from the Latin Vulgate; this will be the first time that a translation has been made from the original Hebrew and Greek languages. The Roman Catholic Church has also authorized the publication of a one-volume commentary on the whole of the Bible, intended mainly for university students.

Look who's wearing her 'immediate cash adjustment'!

Gracious! What next? A body can hardly keep up with things these days. What with dogs spinning around in the sky and all. And now all this excitement about changing over your Victory Bonds, I was sorry to see mine go. Had it so long you know. But when the young man at the bank explained that these new bonds paid more interest. Well! I know a good thing when I see it. And besides, he gave me a nice cash adjustment—which I straightaway spent on a new bonnet. Like it?

Offer applies only to wartime Victory Bonds.

FOR EXAMPLE: a $500 8th series Victory Bond exchanged for a $500 Conversion Bond paying 4½% will give you $8.75 in cash immediately. The higher interest will yield $22.50 per year instead of the present $15. See your investment dealer, stockbroker, bank, trust or loan company today.

A Virus and a Humming-Bird; A Summer lost in rumination

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

The humming-bird has done it. I mean it has given me courage to write some more of these local articles. . . .

Ever since Sunnyacres has figured in our lives, a pair of humming-birds has lived near us, and it was a daily joy to look out at breakfast or supper and see those jewelled mites hovering around the flowers. But this year, no little bits of color were around, and we were sad. Too much cold in Florida last winter, we opined. Just a few minutes ago, to our delight, we looked up and there was Mrs. humming-bird examining each flower of the phlox in a business-like way. We wonder now if our choice of flowers this year was displeasing — giant, fluffy marigolds, miniature zinnias, evening primrose, sweet William, roses. There is a distinctly pungent odor to a marigold which is very pleasing to me — but then I am not a humming-bird.

The writer has been ill. We offer this bit to those of you who may have missed us. A wandering bacillus found its home in my kidney, and wrought havoc there for over a month. The doctor said crisply, but not elegantly, "Kidney trouble makes you feel lousy." The thought of tapping out one of these effusions was abhorrent. Food tasted like sawdust, noises sounded like thunderclaps, and there was always the fear of another chill. Now I know how malaria victims feel.

But all that is now happily past, and I have emerged somewhat shaken, but with a respect for modern medicine. Gone are the days when the doctor reluctantly diagnosed a kidney complaint, advised the victim to drink quantities of liquid and to refrain from this and that food, prescribed an antiseptic and sat back to see whether the victim or the germ would win. Now the hospital laboratory eliminates the guess-work. Back comes the report: "Specimen shows colon bacillus. Sensitive to —" and there follows a list of different antibiotics. So one takes the antibiotic, drinks immoderately, and a test is made once or more a week. When the specimen shows no pus, no bacilli, one is cured. Wonderful! I asked the doctor, as a matter of morbid curiosity, what would have happened if the bacilli had not been discovered. She replied that I would now be either delirious or in a coma. Great is the name of Pasteur, to whose diligence and intelligence we owe the recognition of bacilli, and to Fleming for his work in penicillin. Out of gratitude, we are currently reading a nice little thing, called "Devils, Drugs and Doctors".

Being ill, one has that rarest of gifts, leisure. While we were still at Sunnyacres, I lay and watched the clouds form and reform themselves into various improbable shapes — here a horse, there a camel, a boat, a piece of veiling. We were reminded of a small nephew who remarked, looking in wonder at the clouds sailing overhead, "I bet Grandpa is having a good ride up there." Grandpa had recently died.

We also made out in our mind a report that must be written next January. We planned Fall wardrobes, we read everything readable, mainly detective stories. For serious reading, we had "Aku-Aku", the fascinating story of Easter Island. We thought of life in general, and of ours in particular. We even got so far as to decide to be buried at Lakefield — which will delight Canon Baugh. It is not only that we are attached to these parts, but also because churchyards around churches are becoming more and more rare, and, like all good Anglicans, I wish my bones or ashes to be close to Mother Church.

To lighten the atmosphere (which you may find oppressive) allow me to tell you the story of the Tea-Baggers. It is a true story, told me by a young friend. In England, the home of Churchill, Brussels sprouts and eccentrics, is a society of people who make a hobby of collecting the little labels that are attached to the tea-bags one encounters in the better restaurants. One of the family in a happy mood enrolled the eight-year-old daughter of the house. Following that, she received a welcoming letter from the secretary, as well as various notes from members, telling her of their collection and requesting details of hers. Finally, one of the adults had the youthful member write the secretary. A courteous letter came in reply, saying, among other things, that she was undoubtedly their youngest member. . . Thereafter the stream of letters from fellow-members dried up.

Here at Sunnyacres there are various items of local interest, principally, we feel, the four pet crows now living around the home of our friend, Amos. Just how they were acquired, we do not know, but it is a fact that they were man-reared, and when released from their cage, seemed to realize that here was home. So all day long, they wing their black way from tree-top to chair-top to outstretched arm. They even perch on heads. Anything bright attracts them, and they are the original "Give me a cup-of coffee" beggars. They provide endless entertainment.

Farther down the road, an ambitious neighbor is damming up a tiny stream, and building breast-high retaining-walls around what is at present merely a depressed portion of the land, but which he hopes will become a shallow swimming pool, or, at least a wading place for children. After that, he reasons people will flock to buy lots. There is already a house for sale nearby. We wish him luck. One rejoices in this evidence of personal initiative, but cringes at the thought of these quiet hills filled with the raucous cries of uninhibited youth. But there are always the school months, when blessed quiet will still reign.

Of the countryside, I can tell you nothing, for two weeks were wasted in the city, and a walk is still an adventure. The phlox are coming out, and one branch of a tree near the shed is no longer truly green, a kind of rusty green, so Autumn must be approaching. So far as we are concerned, there has been no Summer. We hope our readers have had better luck.

Peter, the cat, is sitting near me on the table. He was eight years old recently, but does not look his age. He is quieter at night, and occasionally has fits of petulance, but that is all that denotes the passing of his happy years. He is inclined to be jealous of the typewriter, which he considers takes altogether too much of my time. What is known as a "strict mother", I am a doting mistress to the cat, so, to please his feline majesty, we'll call a halt to what we feel is a highly unsatisfactory effort.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Women's Travel Authority

If the word sightseeing suggests only tired feet and jumbled memories of battlefields and museums, you probably have the wrong slant on sightseeing. It should be synonymous with summer fun, and it is — if you combine it comfortably with a well-planned tour. Here are some of the guides you might follow as you view the sights on your vacation trip.

1. Remember that you aren't "boning up" for an examination. When you get home, you won't have to pass a test on the number of girders in the Lion's Gate Bridge or the number of windows in the Royal York Hotel. If you aren't interested in museums or art galleries, forget them. Concentrate on sports, local industries or whatever takes your fancy.

2. Attend a few special events, festivities and celebrations. They'll make cultures and customs come alive for you.

3. See a few things thoroughly, rather than many things superficially. That is the advice given to European tourists, and it is good for Canadians touring in Canada.

4. Take pictures, but don't be such an avid "camera bug" that you see everything through a camera lens.

5. Discover a new city for yourself by wandering up and down the streets and exploring out-of-the-way shops and districts.

6. Finally, keep an open mind, as well as an open eye, toward the new and different — and you'll make your tour more rewarding.

by Jaap Salm, superintendent of the Forest Farm.

Red pine, white spruce, and jack pine are the species which will be grown to a plantable size within three years after seeding in this 10-acre nursery. They will be sold at cost price — probably about $10 per thousand trees — to restock privately owned woodlots in the area, Mr. Salm said.

A four-man delegation represented the tree farm section of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, the sponsoring organization in Argenteuil County, consisting of: Albert Moore and Kilgour Hardie, both of Lachute; Leonard Wilson of Cushing; and Sidney Stilwell of Brownsburg.

At an outdoor chicken barbecue which followed the tour, tree farm certificates and signs were presented to two Rawdon tree farmers, J. A. D. Campbell and Marcus Gilmour, by G. Dennis Austin, chairman of the tree farm committee of the Rawdon Chamber of Commerce.

Lyman T. Chapman, of the Hudson Farm Forum, presented a tree farm certificate to a new Hudson tree farmer, A. William Davidson. Certificates for Argenteuil County had already been presented last May at a meeting held in Brownsburg.

Among those who participated in the tour and in an evening discussion on the tree farm program were J. L. Van Camp, general manager of the Canadian Forestry Association; W. A. E. Pepler, manager of the woodlands section, Canadian Pulp and Paper Association; A. R. C. Jones, lecturer in woodlot management, Macdonald College; and Roch Delisle, director of the forestry extension bureau of the Quebec Department of Lands and Forests.

Suggestions that certified tree farmers found a formal, regularly organized association to exchange information and to present their views to industry and government were made from the floor and enthusiastically received by those present. A preliminary organizational meeting for this purpose was scheduled for 2 p.m., Saturday, September 27, at the home of C. B. Clarke of Carillon.

Seek new tomato for easy harvest

Harrow, Ont. (CP) — Bill Shumovich, canning crop specialist at the Dominion Experimental Farm here, is attempting to develop a new tomato strain that would change the method of harvesting the crop.

He said in an interview the ideal tomato is one which would mature rapidly with all the fruit reaching maturity at the same time.

"Then the crop can be harvested in one sweep. This would make mechanical picking possible."

Could Plan Harvest

Development of such a type of tomato would be cost-saving as farmers would not have to repick plants as their tomatoes developed unevenly. Farmers could plant their fields and plan work schedules for harvesting.

Development research on the ideal tomato has been underway here for two years. A similar project has kept on for 14 years in California.

J. M. Fulton, research officer for soil work at the farm, said the laboratory feels it has a certain method of determining corn yield by measuring nitrogen content in the plant leaf.

Other studies are underway seeking disease-resistant types of tobacco, melons, and other plants grown in southwestern Ontario.

Of the 282,164 immigrants who came to Canada in 1958, 177,157 were women and children under 18.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I am a carpenter. A year ago I was laid off the job where I was working. I decided to build a house for myself before taking another job. Can I be given credit for this time that I have been working for myself?

A. Contributions are only payable by persons who work under a contract of service or apprenticeship. When you are working for yourself, you are considered not unemployed and you are not insurable.

Q. I was working for a firm which closed up because of a strike four months ago. For the past two months I have been working steadily at another place. This second job was different from the first but I like it and would have stayed on if shortage of materials hadn't caused a layoff. I don't intend going back to my old job after the strike is over. Can I claim benefit?

A. If you can establish that you have made a definite and permanent change of occupation and that you intend resuming your old occupation you may be entitled to benefit, if otherwise qualified.

It's the "Results Factor" that tips the scales!

Two brands of feeds may weigh the same. They may look much the same, smell much the same, carry analysis tags that read much the same. But when one of them is PURINA, there may be a big difference — the RESULTS FACTOR.

For the best possible results, a feed has to have proper ingredients in the proper quantity and mixed in the proper way. There can be no compromise in any steps of the process. Even if you can't tell the difference between feeds by looking at them, your livestock can show you the difference by the way they perform on it.

Purina Chows have been formulated, mixed and fed in many ways to discover the best combination of all factors. It took a long time, a lot of work and a lot of money, to find these secrets, but the results our customers achieve prove that the effort was worthwhile. Purina Chows give results. . . R-E-$-U-L-T-$.

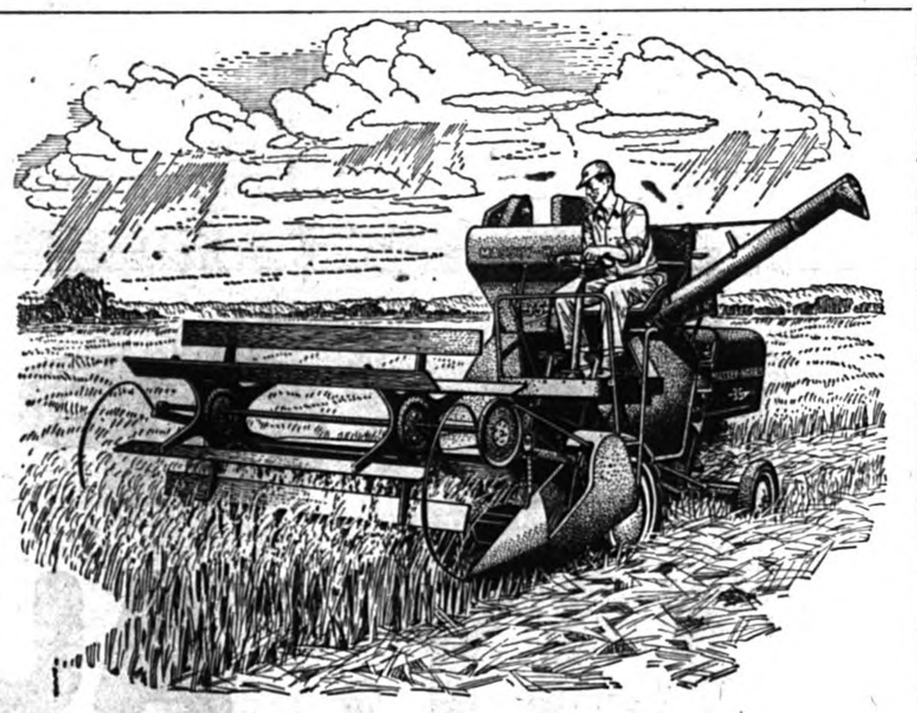

There are three important "tags" to look for when you choose your feed. They are Ingredients, Price and Results. All are important in arriving at a proper choice — but somehow, the Results tag sometimes gets ignored.

If it is results you are looking for, just feed Purina and you will get it. If it is just a cheap feed you want, you can get it from Whittle, the Price Chiseler. . . WE handle only Purina, because of the Results factor.

In these days of man-made planets we tend to overlook this old, but still miraculous, earth that feeds and provides for us all.

That over 60,000 babies are born into this world each day—more than enough to repopulate the whole of Canada in less than a year—goes unnoticed. That these 60,000 new mouths will be fed on the produce of this small earth does not make headline news!

Yet, when we consider this astonishing growth in the world's population, we must wonder how it is that our standard of living—measured in terms of food consumption—remains so high. How is it possible when there has been little appreciable increase in the world farm acreage and a decline in the actual farming population?

The answer lies in farm mechanization in a scientific approach to food cultivation and the development of modern machine methods to increase output per acre and per man-hour worked.

In this development Massey-Ferguson plays a leading role throughout the world—in Canada, in the United States, in France, South America, Great Britain, South Africa, Germany and Australia.

All the world over, wherever farming is mechanized to meet our ever-growing needs, there we find Massey-Ferguson machines hard at work in the fields.

VOLUME 81, NUMBER 34 | LACHUTE, QUE., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1958 | 8 PAGES THIS ISSUE

Dr. André Louis Welcker, 61, and his wife, Jane Mary, 62, were accidentally killed last Thursday, when their car was involved in the above-pictured accident near Cushing. The mishap occurred when the car, driven by Dr. Welcker, swerved out of control and crossed the highway smashing into a truck driven by Ken McOuat, 24, of St. Andrews East. The driver of the truck saw the car approaching out of control, and in an effort to avoid the collision, pulled off the pavement (the edge of which is indicated by an arrow). The head-on crash occurred partially on and partially off the pavement — truck-driver McOuat being cleared of any blame by Dr. Jules Lafleur, District Coroner, who declared no inquest would be held under the circumstances of the accident. — Photo, Syd Drew

Montreal couple meet death in Riverfront highway crash

Two Montrealers were killed late Thursday afternoon of last week when their car slid across a slippery highway after a heavy rain, and crashed head-on into a truck loaded with show cattle near Cushing. The truck, en route to the Ottawa Exhibition, was owned by L. T. Porter, St. Andrews East, and driven by the Porter herdsman, Ken McOuat, 24, also of St. Andrews, who narrowly escaped injury. Two other persons in the car were taken to Sacre Coeur Hospital at Cartierville.

Dead are Dr. and Mrs. André Welcker, 663 Champagneur Ave., Outremont, while two passengers in the back seat, Mrs. Hervé de-Lourmel, and her daughter, Marie-France, also of Outremont, were not seriously injured.

The accident occurred at approximately 5.20 p.m. Thursday when the car driven by the Montreal chemist swerved out of control on a slight downgrade curve. Ken McOuat, driver of the truck, saw the approaching car sliding on the highway and pulled his vehicle off the pavement against a fence so that, at the time of impact, only three feet of the front of the vehicle was on the pavement.

According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated the accident with Traffic Officer Paul Perrier, "the car slid across the road and smashed head-on into the all but stationary truck. Mrs. Welcker died instantly, death being caused by an open fracture of the skull, Dr. Welcker died in the ambulance while en route to hospital in Hawkesbury; his death was declared due to a crushed chest and broken neck.

The impact was sufficient to demolish the 1958-model car owned and driven by the deceased, and to damage the truck beyond feasible repair, the truck body being moved forward some eight inches into the cab. The gasoline tanks of both vehicles were severed and the truck operator was all but trapped in the truck cab, all doors being jammed and the driver being pushed tight between the seat and the steering wheel. He managed to break a window and to scramble from the truck in this manner.

Many fines on impaired driving, other charges

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen reported a busy Tuesday, last week, when eight persons were sentenced to fines and penalties before Judge Omer Coté in St. Jerome court. Several other cases were postponed for various reasons.

Gaetan Lamoureux, 22, of Lachute Mills, and Jean Paul Durocher, 18, of Lachute, were each sentenced to two years in jail following their conviction of car theft in Lachute. They had appeared before Judge Coté several weeks ago and sentence was postponed until this time.

Albini Tremblay, 38, of Lachute, was sentenced to a fine of $125 plus costs and forbidden to drive for a one-year period following his arrest August 16 in St. Philippe on a charge of "driving while ability was impaired" as well as driving without a license.

Omer Allard, 51, of Carillon, was sentenced to a fine of $75 plus costs and forbidden to drive for one year, when convicted of a similar charge.

On straight "impaired driving" charges, Arcade Claude, 37, of Pine Hill, and Viateur Major, 18, of Plantagenet, Ont., were sentenced to fines of $75 each and three-month license suspensions following their arrests. The former was picked up in Brownsburg August 9 and the Ontario driver the day following, after he was involved in an accident in Grenville in which he rammed a Provincial Police vehicle.

Gaetan Larocque, 21, of St. Andrews East, pleaded guilty to passing a false cheque and was sentenced to one day in jail, a fine of $10 plus costs, and ordered to repay the value of the cheque issued.

BOY WANDERER

Port Dover, Ont. (CP) — Seven-year-old Mike O'Drowsky of Guelph became so absorbed collecting shells on the Lake Erie shore here that he walked off from his mother. After she told police, the boy was located at Turkey Point — 14 miles away.

Ottawa Valley Development Assocn. presses for deep water navigation

Efforts to obtain deep waterway facilities up the Ottawa River extending the St. Lawrence Seaway channel depth as far as Hull, received an impetus from member municipalities of the Ottawa Valley Development Association, assembling for their annual meeting at the St. Andrews Golf Club.

More than 60 mayors, reeves and other officials of some 25 to 30 municipalities in the Valley region took part. A committee was set up with Mayor Rosaire Gascon, of Hawkesbury as chairman, to report back on economic aspects of the seaway extension and problems of getting joint federal and inter-provincial action on the matter.

Agitation for improved access from the St. Lawrence and up the Ottawa River dates back nearly half a century. In recent years the Association, member municipalities and other interests have been pressing for works to raise the level of Lake St. Louis to give deep-draft vessels access into the Lake of Two Mountains without using the locks at Ste. Anne de Bellevue; and for a new dam and locks to pass vessels around the falls at Carillon.

The project at Carillon would require joint agreement between the Federal Government and hydro-power authorities of Quebec and Ontario, as generation of power at the site would also be involved.

Saturday's meeting was opened by Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan, Mayor of St. Andrews East, and Paul Labreche of St. Andrews, president of the Ottawa Valley Development Association, was chairman. Representatives of the municipalities of Hull, Ottawa, Hawkesbury and Rockland, Ont., and of the Eastern Ontario Development Association, attended.

Seated at the head-table besides Mr. Labreche, the chairman, and Notary J. C. Latour, M.P., were — Maj.-Gen. Phelan; Stanley Rodgers, president of the St. Andrews Chamber of Commerce; E. K. Quipp, president of the Development Committee for West of the Laurentians; Dr. Joseph Matte, president of the Western Quebec Chambers of Commerce; Irving McCabe, director of Montreal district industrial promotion; F. W. Allman, mayor of Carillon; Victor Langevin, vice-president of the Vaudreuil-Soulanges regional development group; J.-P. Letourneau, co-director of the Quebec Senior Chambers of Commerce; Mayor J.-P. Hurtubise Templeton; Ald. Alexander Rodgers of Ottawa; Mayor Lucien Lacroix of Thurso; Mayor R. Gascon of Hawkesbury; Mayor T. P. Hall of Brownsburg; Mayor N. Charlebois of Cumberland; Sylvio Moderie, representing the Hon. W. M. Cottingham; Harry D. Callan, executive manager of the Eastern Ontario Association; L. T. Porter, engineer; Antoine Paré; J. S. Giroux, secretary of the Ottawa Valley Development Association.

After the assembly a number of the delegates made a tour of inspection on the Ottawa River and Lake of Two Mountains, on power-boats made available by Lachute Chamber of Commerce boating enthusiasts. Others meanwhile enjoyed viewing the river by air from Mr. L. T. Porter's plane.

The midday luncheon was organized by the St. Andrews East Chamber of Commerce.

It is stated the Ottawa Valley Development group are asking the Department of Transport to hold up plans for a Hydro-Quebec dam at Carillon if adequate locks are not provided. Secretary J. S. Giroux said the motion consisted of two parts. The first called for a meeting with Quebec Minister of Resources Daniel Johnson to determine if Hydro-Quebec intended putting adequate locks in the dam. The second part, to be implemented if the locks were not planned, called for the Transport Department to delay approval of the plans until an economic survey into the justification of the project was completed.

The board laid the groundwork for the survey by approving plans to set up a committee and undertaking to raise funds by assessment.

LHS graduate is awarded valuable McGill scholarship

Jean Taylor, 1958 graduate from Lachute High School, received word last week that she had been awarded the Morris W. Wilson bursary for McGill entrance, a scholarship providing tuition fees, board and residence for attendance at the university for the current year. Eligible in Arts, Science, Engineering or the degree course in Agriculture, the award is also renewable, providing for continuance of study in ensuing years if the student's progress warrants.

Jean Taylor

A promising student at Lachute High, Miss Taylor had also recently won the Prescott-Argenteuil Industrial Scholarship of $500 arranged through the Chemical Institute Hawkesbury Section and financed by four district industrial firms. This was awarded on merits of an examination May 31 last, entered by 27 senior students from the two counties.

Jean, who has been employed this summer at Kerr's Farm, Lakefield, took the week-end off to join her parents, vacationing near Pembroke, and to share the good news. The young lady will be leaving shortly to enter the Science course at McGill.

Doubles champ, Aggregate runner-up

New provincial doubles champion, Gerry Fletcher of Brownsburg (left) receives the William Haynes trophy from Phil Dumas. Fletcher shot down 42 out of 50 clay targets to take the title. He was also runner-up in the high overall, losing to Robert Howson of Valleyfield by one bird, in a tie-breaking shoot-off.

3 Artists exhibiting this week in A.A.A. show at St. Andrews

The increasing attendances at successive shows sponsored by the Argenteuil Art Association are apparent again in the fourth and final exhibition of this season, which opened Saturday at the St. Andrews municipal hall and continues this week and over Labor Day. The public interest was emphasized by Allen G. Talbot, president, as evidence that the Association had achieved one of its initial aims, namely, to awaken a consciousness and appreciation of Art in this community.

Exhibitors at this display are three gifted and recognized artists in oil colors, Miss Rita Mount, A.R.C.A., Mrs. Irene Shaver and Mrs. Vivian Walker — the latter being responsible for the arrangements and for collaboration of the high talent represented in the collection.

Special patron of the opening event was the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, who gave the inaugural address Saturday afternoon and extended due credit to Vivian Walker for her organizing. St. Andrews, he remarked, had always been known as the cultural centre of Argenteuil, and it was notable that the village was still doing so much to foster art and culture... Mr. Talbot having thanked Mr. Thos. Fournier for his hospitality to the local art classes, and the Mayor, Gen. F. R. Phelan, and Council for use of the municipal hall — Mr. Cottingham here echoed the same sentiments in French, on behalf of the Association and the public.

Rita Mount, A.R.C.A., showing eight examples of her work, depicts with confidence the homely scenes of quiet villages and sunlit shores — subjects she seems to love the best. A Newport, Gaspé, fishing cove is typical; this is her largest canvas on show. In contrast is one majestic scene of towering mountains, painted in the Rockies. The only life study in this array of almost 40 pictures is one of local interest by Miss Mount — a portrait of Mme Augustin Ladouceur, a venerable old resident of St. Andrews Village some years ago. The picture, loaned by Antoine's Art Gallery, has aroused deserving comment.

Of Irene Shaver's landscapes and seascapes, two are Argenteuil County scenes, at Dalesville and on the Rouge River. In the latter this artist exploits the subject of turbulent water, in which she seems to excel. This is apparent also in waves breaking over rocky shores. The only snow scenes in the display are two by this artist, depicting "Laurentian Winter" and "St. Margaret's Station". The beloved province is typified also in one of its characteristic rural scenes, the sugar camp (Bedford, Que.). Irene Shaver employs a bold stroke and defined color; she has 14 pictures on exhibition.

Vivian Walker, also with 14 varied canvases, show landscapes and coastal vistas of a composition best adapted to her talent, which revels in dimension and muted distances. The mood of hill and vale, the tempo of stream and waterfall, are set down with able technique — but still more impressively, with her understanding of color. Through this medium she gives warmth to a bare road, enchantment to a distant skyline. The contours are softer, more diffused, in resemblance somewhat to the landscapes of an earlier century. "Ausable River, N.Y.", depicts a waterfall, while sunlight and shadow glamorize the commonplace in "A Lower St. Lawrence Farmhouse"... To those who have followed the progress of this local artist, her return to the brush in preference to the palette knife may be detected in these examples; it is also noted that she has included no portraits, despite her successful experience in this specialized craft.

While differing in style, all three artists are conventional as to subject and treatment. There are no abstracts — no cubes, gyrations or geometrics — no distortions of life and nature as God made them. This is a quiet portrayal of eye-pleasing subjects — a collection which has drawn favorable comment from the many who have inspected it this week. The exhibition remains open until Labor Day, from 2 to 4.30 daily, and from 2 to 9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Stubborn fire in two-dwelling Lachute residence

Smoke, stubborn flames and water resulted in considerable damage to a Lachute residential building on Wednesday afternoon last, when local firemen battled a blaze for almost an hour before bringing the flames under control. The building, at the corner of Foundry Street and Barron Avenue, is owned by Dr. Roger Lavigne, and contains two tenements, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. André Bergeron and Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Gratton and family.

Firemen were summoned at approximately 4.30 and commenced to fight the outbreak from the Gratton kitchen, where the fire apparently started. In the short time before their arrival, however, the flames had worked their way from the stovepipe into the immediate wall and into sheds and the spacious attic, necessitating the removal of a considerable portion of the tin sheeting over the tinder-dry cedar shingle roof. Finally the flames were extinguished at 5.45 p.m.

Three lines of hose were laid in an effort to combat the blaze, which was confined mainly to the Gratton dwelling, on the Barron Avenue side of the property. Damage to contents here was estimated in the neighborhood of $2,000, while the Bergeron family collected $1,000 in damages. Insurance on the house amounting to $6,000, was paid in full.

Weeklies convene September 4-5-6 in Queen City

Toronto — Weekly editors and publishers with their wives and families, representing most of Canada's 690 English weekly newspapers, will gather at the King Edward Hotel here September 4-5-6 for the 39th annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

The three-day meeting will centre around discussions of the problems facing the industry and sessions will be held with representatives of advertisers and agencies and the Audit Bureau of Circulation.

Highlighting the discussions, both formal and informal, will be the matter of better promotion of the weekly newspapers as an important medium for local and national advertisers.

This is expected to bring official sanction by delegates for the inauguration and support of a full-time promotion and public relations department in the CWNA national offices in Toronto.

According to William Telfer, CWNA managing director, promotion of weekly newspapers as an important medium will go a long way towards increasing revenues, thereby assisting many weeklies now finding it hard to hold advertising and subscription rates at present levels and still meet rising costs.

Combined circulation of the English weeklies in Canada has now passed the 1¼-million mark, Mr. Telfer said.

A number of national associations and companies will entertain delegates at various luncheons and the Government of Ontario will give a dinner.

Among guests expected will be John Thomson, managing director of the Northcliffe group of weeklies in the United Kingdom. He is currently touring Canada.

Lucien Fontaine, of Val d'Or, president of the French Language Weekly Newspapers of Canada, is also expected to be present at the convention as will several representatives of weekly newspaper associations in the United States.

Bond 'blitz' of wartime flavor

Ottawa (CP) — The federal government's Victory Bond conversion program will soon be carried into small communities in bond 'blitzes' reminiscent of the Second World War.

The Bank of Canada said bond dealers and local businessmen are making plans in at least 80 cities and towns for pressure drives involving parades, heavy advertising and prizes. The idea is to penetrate to small bond owners, believed to hold the balance of the $6,400,000,000 worth of wartime bonds since corporation and other large owners accounted for most of the $4,000,000,000 worth already converted to the higher-interest bonds.

Student priest is drowning victim at northern camp

Abbé Marc Delorme, 24, a student for the priesthood at the Seminary in Montreal, was accidentally drowned at a summer camp for Roman Catholic priests on Lac Gemont, at 4.35 last Friday afternoon. The lake is situated between 16 Island Lake and Weir.

The young man, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Delorme, of Montreal, was out alone in a canoe when a sudden gust of wind overturned his craft. Witnesses reported the wind to be that of a "twister" type, and it apparently caught Abbé Delorme, who could not swim, unawares.

The body was recovered at 8.40 p.m. the same day by other residents of the lake, and death was declared accidental by District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur. The accident was investigated by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen and Traffic Officer Paul Perrier.

Local council decision to engage full-time engineer and recorder

The possibility of retaining the services of a professional engineer and registrar as a permanent town employee, was under lengthy discussion at a special Council meeting summoned yesterday by Mayor Léopold Carrière.

The subject was discussed after a study by the finance committee of 24 applications for the position of town secretary-treasurer, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Jacques Poitras.

Mayor Carrière pointed out that, with one exception only, none of the applicants had experience in this line of work. The exception was a bid for the position from Antonio Laurin, who had previously filled this office.

"We have come to the conclusion", said Mayor Carrière, "that it is time to improve our secretarial set-up by dividing the job into its two aspects, namely, the actual secretarial work and the registration and recording of plans, documents, etc. An engineer would command a proportionately higher salary, but at the same time would save professional fees — which amount to $2,500 or $3,000 annually."

By way of furthering this proposal with factual guidance, the professional engineer now serving the town, Paul Laliberté, had been asked to make an offer. Mr. Laliberté had submitted a suggestion of $600 monthly remuneration, plus expenses for car and instruments to the extent of $100 — making a total of $8,400 a year.

Ald. Gerard Lefebvre gave his opinion that, with this investment, the town would have the service of a competent man, one capable of preparing by-laws, sewer and water plans, supervising zoning and building practices, and preparing assessments, etc. The alderman felt that Mr. Laurin could not perform these technical functions; his experience had been in secretarial duties.

Ald. Lefebvre recommended that other tenders be invited from men of such qualifications as Mr. Laliberté, so that the Council might make a choice.

Interesting viewpoints were heard from all the aldermen, who were generally in favor of the proposal, and finally it was unanimously adopted in principle that an engineer-registrar be engaged, and that appropriate professional bodies be contacted for likely candidates.

Ald. Edgar C. Pullock was the only councillor absent from this meeting.

A long shot at Trapshoot

Long John Duncan of Brownsburg adds a cubit to his already extensive stature in an effort to fend off the rain that beat down during the latter half of the Quebec provincial trapshooting championship at St. John's, Que., August 17. Five Brownsburg shooters competed in the championships and one of them, Gerry Fletcher, captured the doubles crown by shattering 42 out of a possible 50 birds. He also tied with Robert Howson of Valleyfield in the high overall event. Both men scored 147 out of a possible 200 birds. In the shoot-off Howson defeated Fletcher by one bird, scoring 24 out of 25.

In heavyweight boxing circles

SPORTS CAMERA

By Gerald Lougheed, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Floyd Patterson, one of the lightest - punching heavyweight champions of all time, may rule the roost for a number of years.

Don't laugh. The way his wily manager, Cus d'Amato, has been selecting opponents and spacing out the champion's fights, Patterson — who's only 23 — could conceivably go on until his reflexes begin to slow.

Patterson won the crown in 1956 by knocking out veteran Archie Moore in five rounds. Moore, the light-heavyweight champ, is a stiff puncher and knows all the tricks of the trade.

They met to decide who would succeed slugging Rocky Marciano, who had retired undefeated. Moore generally had been picked to win but Ancient Archie uses some highly unorthodox training methods and possibly Patterson caught him not in top shape.

Strange Opponents

But that's history. What has Patterson done since then? In two years he has had three fights against unusual opponents, side stepping the logical contenders.

First there was wild-swinging Hurricane Jackson, with only a so-so record. Patterson knocked out Jackson, who soon afterwards was made to retire because he couldn't protect himself adequately in the ring.

Then came Olympic heavyweight champion Pete Rademacher, who got a crack at the professional title in his first pro bout — one of the oddest matches in ring history.

Rademacher, awkward and green, went out in six rounds but not before flooring Patterson — who's easily hit — in one of the early rounds.

By-passing Zora Folley and Ed Machen, rated the No. 1 and 2 contenders, d'Amato next picked Roy Harris. Harris's record looked good — undefeated in 22 pro bouts — but all his fights had been in his home state of Texas. Many of his opponents were second-raters and his victories in some of the others were put down by experts as "home town decisions".

Harris, a 6-to-1 underdog, knocked Patterson down in the second round August 18 but wasn't able to answer the bell for the 13th.

Folley's manager, Arizona millionaire sportsman Bill Swift, has long been after a title for his boy, who at 26 has met most of the top heavyweights. He has won 39 of his pro bouts, lost two and drawn two — the best record in the division.

Says d'Amato: "Patterson won't fight anybody who has fought for the International Boxing Club."

The IBC is a big bogey for d'Amato because of what he considers injustices done to him. And Folley has fought under IBC auspices.

After the Patterson-Harris fight, d'Amato was in the middle of a tirade against the IBC at a press conference when Swift butted in: "I want to go on record that Zora Folley is available for any promoter, at any time." D'Amato froze and he said nothing as Swift casually walked out.

The first YMCA in North America was organized in Montreal in 1851, seven years after the founding of the Young Men's Christian Association in London, England, by George Williams, a dry goods clerk.

Current report on Rabies given by Dept. of Agriculture

Ottawa — While outbreaks of rabies have persisted in Ontario this summer, loss of livestock has not been as great as some reports would indicate, according to the Hon. Douglas S. Harkness, Minister of Agriculture.

All suspected cases of rabies are referred to the Department's animal pathology laboratory for confirmation. In the past fiscal year, ending March 31, rabies in all of Canada claimed 101 cattle, 10 horses, 14 sheep, four swine and one goat. In the first quarter of this fiscal year, the disease was confirmed in 77 cattle, three horses, 20 sheep and four swine throughout the country.

The confirmed cases of rabies continue to be predominantly in wildlife — particularly in foxes. These constituted 68 per cent of all cases in the last fiscal year, and the percentage is running the same so far this year.

The current outbreak of rabies in Ontario is the result of the natural spread of the disease in wildlife from the Northern Territories, where it was prevalent a few years ago but where it has now virtually disappeared.

While there is a continuing danger of domestic animals contacting rabies from infected wildlife, the main threat both to domestic animals and to humans would be if rabies became established in dogs.

The department's major effort in dealing with rabies has been in conducting widespread dog vaccination clinics in the infected areas.

Clinics are still being held in central and eastern Ontario.

This program has been successful so far in preventing rabies in dogs thus reducing the hazard to humans. In the current outbreak, there have been no cases of human infection.

Issue booklet on game birds

A handy little booklet describing all upland game birds in Canada, their distribution and environment, and how to hunt them, has been published by the ammunition division of Canadian Industries Limited.

Titled, "Upland Game Hunting Hints", it is just the size a hunter could comfortably carry around in his hunting-vest pocket. Printed in two colors and illustrated by the well-known Toronto artist, George Bradford, the booklet covers the following birds: ruffed grouse, spruce grouse, pinnated grouse, sharp-tailed grouse, blue grouse, Wilson's snipe, Hungarian partridge, American woodcock, band-tailed pigeon, ring-necked pheasant and ptarmigan.

The first section of the publication gives other common names for each bird, tells where in Canada they are most likely to be found, relates their feeding habits and describes the physical appearance of each bird. The centre section takes the hunter into the field and tells him how to actually hunt upland game, how to choose a gun and what type of ammunition should be employed. Valuable hints are given on leading and snap shooting.

The final portion of "Upland Game Hunting Hints" talks about bird dogs, their training and care; clothes for the upland game hunter; field care of game and, finally how to maintain good farmer-hunter relations and the 10 commandments of safety.

The booklet cautions against hunting one of the grouse species — the pinnated grouse (alias prairie chicken, square tail, prairie grouse, prairie hen, Minnesota grouse). It says: "the pinnated grouse is almost extinct in Canada. Their range was primarily throughout the prairie provinces but only small pockets of them are left. They should not be shot. They are included here for identification purposes so the hunter will not confuse them with the sharp-tailed grouse, as both types are sometimes seen together."

Requests for copies of the booklet should be addressed to: Canadian Industries Limited, Ammunition Advertising, Dept. L-75, P.O. Box 10, Montreal, Que. (Distribution will be made in Canada only.)

Canadian Quiz

1. What was the color and date of issue of the first Canadian stamp?

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all. — Edmund Burke

Threshold of 100 years

WHEN THE Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association meets next week in Toronto for its 39th annual convention, delegates will have in mind that association of weekly editors and publishers as a group is almost 100 years old. Next September, 1959, will see the 100th birthday of the founding of the Canadian Press Association, which included weeklies as well as daily newspapers.

There are in Canada today, more than a dozen weekly newspapers that were charter members of the Canadian Press Association when it was formed in 1859. A number of years ago the dailies and weeklies separated to form their own associations, and thus the CWNA and the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association were born. Both groups, of course, still retain membership in the century-old Canadian Press Association.

To put it another way, Canadian weeklies have stood together as a fraternity since long before Confederation, enlarging their membership as the various provinces came into being. Today the CWNA has 517 members from coast to coast representing every province and virtually every community.

Delegates to next week's convention will come from far away Newfoundland and from Vancouver Island. They will meet to discuss common problems in publishing Canada's well read weeklies.

To the producers and the "consumers" of weekly newspapers, many of the problems to be discussed next week will have real meaning — problems such as the rising cost of materials and equipment, the shortage of experienced workers, and the constant fight to keep advertising and subscription rates from rising. To this can be added, of course, the rapid growth of our Canadian communities, which means that weeklies must expand their plants and buy new equipment. These are some of the problems that will confront delegates next week, and in attempting to find their solution they will be giving real service to the industry, to the newspaper subscriber and the reading public.

Like all conventions the CWNA get-together will have its social side when delegates will greet old friends and make new ones. But over and through these pleasures will run the serious thread of discussion in the interests of members and the public.

And lest we be thought ungrateful, may we say as we have before that the faithful subscriber is still the keystone of a newspaper's being.

Improving hunter-farmer relations

RECORD NUMBERS of hunters are expected to take to the field this fall. But before country folk scurry for shelter, they should know that quite a number of sportsmen will be as intent on "fence mending" as on shooting game this season.

Fish and game clubs and provincial game departments are actively trying to improve hunter-farmer relations, according to an article published in the August issue of C-I-L Oval. Concerned over the effect which isolated cases of vandalism and arrogance have had upon the availability of private lands, many clubs are including hunter-farmer relations in their training programs. For example, it will be part of a hunter training program which is being started this fall by Montreal Anglers and Hunters.

Hunters are instructed in rules to follow when hunting on private lands. They are told to avoid damage to crops and fences, not leave gates open or shoot in the direction of farm buildings. But such a list is useless, it is emphasized, if the essential principle — courtesy — is overlooked. A hunter who asks for permission to hunt and who respects the landowner's property is only doing what he would expect of a visitor on his own property.

Why highways are congested

CANADIANS IN 1957 travelled more miles in their cars than ever before. The 4½-million vehicles in use travelled 36.8 billion miles. This compares with 33.6 billion miles in 1956 and 15.1 billion miles 10 years ago. The 1958 edition of "Facts and Figures of the Automotive Industry", released by the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce, reveals that 3.4 million passenger cars and 1 million trucks were registered last year. There is now a vehicle in Canada for every 3.7 persons and a passenger car for every 4.9.

New passenger car sales were valued at $1,087,620,000 and new commercial vehicles at $281,311,000.

The number of licensed drivers in the nation climbed to a new peak of 5.3 million. The year's driving consumed 3.1 billion gallons of gasoline.

Employment in motor vehicle manufacturing during 1957 averaged 38,516 monthly and total annual payroll was $166.5 million.

Canada's motor vehicle purchasers paid $165 million federal sales and excise taxes.

Provincial governments collected $324.2 million in gasoline tax revenues and $128.4 million in registration fees.

Highway expenditures in 1957 for all roads and streets totalled $886 million.

Imports of motor vehicles totalled 80,011 including 70,796 cars and 9,215 trucks. Exports were 16,244 cars and 3,876 trucks.

A smaller world

SPACE satellites, ocean-spanning air travel and other aspects of scientific progress are taken for granted.

But the recent Arctic Ocean crossing by an atom-powered American submarine was an event to capture the popular imagination. The journey under the ice from the Bering Sea to Iceland in four days inevitably recalled the epic struggles of the old explorers and death in the Arctic wastes.

The Nautilus travelled for 96 hours under the ice. It was navigated by dead reckoning, aided by electronic devices that the old navigators never dreamed of. A steam turbine powered by a nuclear furnace drove the submarine along at a steady 18 to 20 knots.

At the North Pole, they found the ocean was 13,410 feet deep. Through their closed-circuit television they sometimes could watch the ice layer above them — in some places thin enough to reflect bright daylight above the frozen sea.

The obvious military implications of the event were not mentioned by President Eisenhower when he presented the Legion of Merit to Cmdr. William R. Anderson at the White House, and a citation for the crew. "This," he said, "points the way for further exploration and possible use of this route by nuclear-powered cargo submarines as a new commercial seaway between the major oceans of the world."

The voyage cut the sea distance from London to Tokyo, for instance, from 11,200 miles through the Panama Canal to 6,300 miles under the North Pole.

"Old Dobbin's" shoes

THERE WAS a time when ringing the peg with a horse shoe was considered quite an art. For that matter it still is, only there are fewer artists—observes The Winchester Press.

Like "Old Dobbin", the game of Horse Shoes has just about died out. There are still a few places where the game is played but in this age of spectator sports this real game has given way.

It's too bad! Many of this generation have probably never seen a horse shoe, let alone thrown one. No reason, though, why this trend has to continue. A few years ago it was not uncommon for the average family to have its own horse shoe pits in the back yard and the game was played morning, noon and night. So popular was Horse Shoes that it used to be quite competitive and the champion ringer was a man of high regard in his community.

There are still a few good players left, and we wish they would play more. We heard just the other day of a man rigging up pits, acquiring horse shoes and inviting his friends to partake in this friendly, skilful game. More people should do this.

It's the type of game that takes little capital to get started, and the upkeep is trivial. Most homeowners, too, could have a set-up for the game on the lawn behind the house.

In a fast jet age of tranquillizer pills, not enough nights in the week, and hydrogen bombs, getting back to some of these old reliable, easy-going games might be just the thing a lot of us need to ease the tension. . . It's worth a try.

Deplores attitude on teen-agers and liquor

(TO THE EDITOR)

I was interested in a letter your paper carried several weeks ago concerning the sale of liquor to teen-agers and another article on the importance of education of people on the facts of alcoholism.

I am speaking not with any feeling of superiority but with hope that I may influence more people to give this problem some serious thought.

A friend of mine says, "In my opinion our teen-aged sons and daughters should be advised that alcoholic beverage at a social occasion is not harmful, providing they guard against becoming intoxicated. We cannot deprive anyone of the privilege to drink if they so desire." Another man accepts a social drink in the presence of his teen-aged son to show him that a man can drink and not become intoxicated.

Is this kind of leadership proving successful in combating the problem of alcoholism. Would it not be wiser to show our sons that we can get along very well in this world without it? Do these people not realize that one drink so often leads to another? What if your child becomes one of the ten destined to be an alcoholic?

The Alcoholic Research Foundation of Ontario recently estimated that the Province had 80,000 alcoholics and they were increasing at the rate of 4,000 each year.

Cardinal Leger of Montreal warns that "Unless within ten years Canadians start to practice temperance and economy, they will cease to exist. A people which spends nearly one billion dollars on alcohol each year is a people which has signed its own death warrant."

Let us picture what this amount of money would do in sending different kinds of help to the countries of the World which are on the verge of turning Communist. It would certainly lessen the danger of War.

Do we expect the alcoholic to do something about this situated? No, with him it is a disease; but they are made from moderate drinkers. The alcoholic is the finished product. As one man sums it up "The moderates are the backbone of a system and of an industry, which brings untold misery to thousands of men, women and helpless children.

Laws do little to influence the rate of alcoholism but you and I can do something about it. We can choose to abstain, so that we will avoid setting the example which will ultimately lead others to becoming alcoholics, and I believe it is our duty as professing Christians to do so. The future of our civilization depends upon the individual example that each of us set. We all play a part. Is it too great a sacrifice? Would it not be a joy?

In a Dictatorship, people are disciplined but a Christian Nation depends upon a self discipline of its people in the hope to survive. Liberty is not the right to do as one pleases but the privilege to please to do what is right.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

"Dear Jim"

"I am writing you to say that you are a lucky boy. You have had your last loan from me, and you need pester me no more. Your mother and I, after a long and painful talk, decided last night that you must make your own way from now on. Looking back on your past performance, we are sorry that we did not make this decision the day you finished High School. However, we have made it now. You are lucky that we found the courage at long last. Good luck to you on your own."

I saw that letter last night. Jim showed it to me. It was dated 1954. Jim has carried it with him always and today he shows it off very proudly. He can afford to; he has that self-confident feeling that goes with ability — an ability he discovered within six months after parental apron strings were severed.

I am not suggesting that fathers and mothers should be heartless. But Jim had been one of those lads whose first thought when difficulties arose was a letter to Mom and Dad for help. He had been bailed out of several jackpots of his own making. He had quit jobs for no good reason — except that he didn't like his foreman or the hours were long or he felt like a change. Father had always come through with an allowance to ease the suffering.

"For a couple of months after Dad cut me off" he said, "I was mighty bitter. It seemed unfair; yet somewhere in the back of my mind I knew he really meant it when he said I was lucky, for he was never a sarcastic man. He meant it. So I started to learn a trade — right on the job.

"Today, I'm a good, efficient worker. Barring a bad depression, I can make good money steadily, and I have every chance to make a great deal more. Fact is, I'm saving money right now in case a chance comes along to buy up a small service shop and have a crew of my own."

Apron strings are all right for the very young. They're bad business for those who ought to have reached maturity. They are bad for an indivdual, bad for a nation. Government apron strings, parental apron strings — get rid of them early, if you want to give self-reliance and manhood a chance.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of Encyclopedia Canadiana

When did a white man lead the Indians against his own race?

At the time of the Red River uprising of 1870, André Nault led the Métis Indians, who seized Fort Garry, and commanded the firing party at the execution of Thomas Scott. Nault was born in 1829 in the Red River Settlement. Though he had no Indian blood, he spent his life among the Métis and was regarded by them as one of themselves. After the uprising he took refuge in the U.S. but returned to Canada some years later to die, at St. Vital, Manitoba, at the ripe old age of 95.

Which was the first French regular regiment in Canada?

The Carignan-Salières constituted the first and only regiment of regular troops sent out from France to serve in the small colony and subjugate the Iroquois. The regiment arrived in the summer of 1665 after repeated requests from New France, but its work was only partly successful. Of the 1000 men sent out, more than 250 died from disease and frontier warfare. About 400 remained in Canada after 1668, taking up land and continuing to act as a guard for the small colony.

Who was John Gyles?

John Gyles was the 12-year-old son of a judge at Pemaquid, Me., who in 1689 was carried off by a Maliseet Indian during a raid. After six years of great hardship he was sold to the Sieur de Chauffeur, who held a seigniory on the Saint John River. When he was 19 Gyles was responsible for having his master's property spared by New England raiders. This won him his freedom and after an absence of nearly nine years he returned to New England. His "Memoirs of Odd Adventures, Strange Deliverances, etc., in the Captivity of John Gyles, Esq. . . . Written by Himself" is one of the most famous narratives of Indian capacity; it is also the most important account in English of life in New Brunswick during the 17th century. After his release, Gyles acted as Indian Interpreter for the Massachusetts government and served as captain of several garrisons.

Which provincial capital was once called "Pile of Bones"?

Regina, capital of Saskatchewan, was once called "Pile of Bones". In pre-settlement days, the area had been a favored buffalo-hunting ground for the Indians and Metis. The herds were run into pounds constructed along the creek. Bone piles, accumulated from the frequent slaughters, gave the creek its name, which in Cree is Oskana or Wascana. Such a name was deemed inappropriate for a capital, and Princess Louise, the then Governor-General's wife, renamed the site, Regina, in honor of her mother, Queen Victoria. The location of the C.P.R. railway determined the choice of Regina as capital by the Federal Government and the C.P.R. officials in 1882. The old capital of the province, Battleford, proved to be too far north of the railway.

Our dog Sachie couldn't stand being left out of a conversation. When she felt she was being ignored, she came wagging and squirming up with a piece of kleenex or a plastic toy in her mouth.

If I danced with my wife to music from the radio, the dog reared up on hind legs and pawed at us, to get in the act.

So each of us grabbed a paw, and anyone who looked in the window would have been treated to the sight of two people and a dog dancing in a circle.

Given to us against our wishes by the landlady of a house we used to rent, she was a neurotic and touchy dog who combined the worst points of cocker and Labrador, the two breeds she was reported to be made of.

She had a furious hatred for milkmen, bakers or anyone who came near the house. She announced their approach in a loud voice, any time of the 24 hours.

Once she bit a policeman on the boot. "Its all right, Mam", the policeman said, calming my wife's fears. "That's what those boots are for."

As soon as people came inside the house, she accepted them as friends. But if anyone — indoors or outdoors — made what she took to be a hostile move against one of the two little boys, she went for them, and seized an arm or an ankle.

Only lately the five-year-old boy had induced his mother to buy a chain for Sachie, and for a few days he took the dog everywhere with him, even to bed.

One night she came up to the road with me to see off some visitors. Thinking she was going for a ride, she crossed over to our parked car, then ran back. A car going too fast hit her.

Two days after I had buried Sachie in the garden I still hadn't gathered strength to tell the small boys about it. They asked after the dog several times in a casual way, but I didn't answer them. They thought she was still somewhere around.

Then one night the older boy asked from his bed: "Please, can Sachie come up when she has had her supper?"

So I told him that she wouldn't be back. His face crinkled. "I want to go down and see," he said. "Bring her back." I consoled him. "We'll get another dog one day, when we move away from the road," I said. "I just got her a new chain," he said crying. "I want my Sachie."

His three-year-old brother didn't understand. "Sachie will come back, won't she," he piped. But John was old enough to know. I couldn't do anything to stop him crying. It's a hard world for a small boy, when he loses his dog.

2 By-elections on resignations from provincial cabinet

By Tom Mitchell,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec (CP) — Quebec's veteran Minister of Health, also a relative newcomer to the provincial legislature, resigned this week and by-elections were called to fill the vacancies.

Dr. Albiny Paquette, member of the Legislative Assembly for Labelle constituency since 1935 and Health Minister for the last 14 years, and Paul Sauvé, member for Roberval since 1956, both resigned and Premier Duplessis announced by-elections will be held October 15.

The Premier made the announcements at a surprise press conference after the second meeting of the provincial cabinet in two days. Neither the conference nor the cabinet meeting had been expected and only one reporter was on hand at the press gallery. Others trickled in during the 40-minute conference.

Mr. Duplessis said both Dr. Paquette, 68, and the 51-year-old Union Nationale member for Roberval are suffering from ill health.

No further appointments were announced for them, but speculation ran high in legislature circles that Dr. Paquette will be called to fill one of three vacancies in the Legislative Council — the provincial Upper House.

Besides the three vacancies in the Council the standings now are — Union Nationale 10; Liberal 10; Independent one. It is thought Mr. Duplessis will fill the vacancies with his party members before the next legislature session this fall.

Present standing in the 93-seat Legislature is — Union Nationale, 71; Liberal 17; Independent three; vacant two.

Lachute girl recent bride in church ceremony

Swaine - Walker

The marriage of Ruth Rae, daughter of Mrs. Charles Walker and the late Mr. Walker, of Lachute, to Mr. John Arnott Swaine, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Swaine, of Westmount, took place here recently in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, the Rev. James Armour officiating.

Mr. Wayne Riddell played the wedding music and Mr. Syd Drew, cousin of the bride, was soloist. Standards of white and shrimp-colored gladioli arranged with greenery were used to decorate.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. John K. Dixon, the bride wore a model gown of white peau de faille fashioned with a portrait neckline trimmed with Chantilly lace and seed pearls, short sleeves, and tiered bouffant skirt having lace appliqués and falling into a chapel train. Her chapel veil of silk illusion was held by a small crown of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

Miss Marge Walker was maid of honor for her sister, and attendants were Mrs. John D. Walker, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Walter Scott.

They were gowned in shrimp-colored silk organza fashioned with Sweetheart necklines, cap sleeves, and ballerina-length skirts, having butterfly bows. They wore open-crowned picture hats of matching mohair trimmed with organza bows, and carried bouquets of shrimp-colored gladioli.

Mr. Colin Irving, of Westmount, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. John D. Walker, brother of the bride, and Mr. Walter Scott.

Mrs. Walker, mother of the bride, chose a gown of rosewood silk shantung, with black accessories and a corsage of white split carnations. Mrs. Swaine, mother of the bridegroom, wore a suit of blue silk shantung, with matching accessories and a corsage of pink split carnations.

Following a reception at the Lachute Golf Club chalet, Mr. and Mrs. Swaine left for Prince Edward Island, the bride travelling in an ensemble of aqua silk shantung with a mink fur piece and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

The couple will reside in Beaconsfield, Que.

Governm't offer to repatriate troublesome sect

By Don Attfield, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Aug. 18 (CP) — The federal and British Columbia governments last week offered to help send the troublesome Sons of Freedom Doukhobors back to Russia, the homeland they left in the 1890's because of persecution.

Ottawa offered transportation expenses. B.C. offered to pay for resettlement up to the amount the federal government pays. Although the move could cost more than $2,000,000, it could end bombings and burnings which have plagued B.C.'s interior for years.

Doukhobors wishing to go must apply by September 30. If they go they must also renounce Canadian citizenship.

Free Children

The government plan would meet one of the sect's greatest complaints, the enforced confinement of their children at a provincial government school. Parents had refused to send these children to school at all.

The government will restore the children to their parents — but only for those parents who apply to go to Russia.

The government offer was to be considered by the Doukhobors' semi-secret governing body, its "fraternal council". A four-man Doukhobor delegation went to Russia recently and was promised a Siberian site about 1,600 miles east of Moscow.

Yet even as the governments were preparing their offers there were new bomb blasts. The bombs and burnings have been blamed on the radical Sons of Freedom, who describe themselves as pacifists but refuse to obey Canadian laws.

Minister Embarrassed

The shame of Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton over American military posts in the Arctic turned to embarrassment later last week.

Mr. Hamilton had stated that it was a matter of "national chagrin" that Canadian officials have to obtain United States permission to visit the Canadian North.

Opposition Leader Pearson urged Canada take over control of U.S. defence installations in the North as soon as possible.

The U.S. state department immediately denied Mr. Hamilton's statement; saying a Canadian "obviously" is free to travel to DEW line sites in the Canadian Arctic.

Later Prime Minister Dienfenbaker said arrangements for travel to U.S.-manned Arctic posts in no way interfere with Canadian sovereignty.

New Rail Strike

It was learned here the biggest of the 15 non-operating unions tackling the railways for new wage boosts will reject the report of a federal conciliation board.

The 26,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees was reported undecided whether or not to go along with the rest of the 130,000-member union group if it accepts the report.

The railways, who offered no increase, have yet to accept the conciliation board's majority report. Although signed by the union's representatives, it recommended less than half the increase the union sought. The railways estimated cost of implementing wage recommendations at $60,000,000.

The Bible Today

Some years ago a President of the Republic of Argentine declared that the immense superiority of North America over South America was due to the Bible which the Pilgrim Fathers made the basis of their life in the new land.

Today there is hope for South America in the increased interest in, and study of, this great Book. Last year in Brazil alone the third largest distribution figure in the world was reached — 3½ million copies. Evangelical Christianity is on the march among our Southern neighbors. In this forward movement the Bible Society is playing its part in bringing a new unity to the many tribes, with the message of God's redeeming love in Christ Jesus.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Starting to School

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Do you not think that there is something very appealing about a little child on his first day of school? He is leaving the known world of home for the unknown adventure of school. No longer will mother and father be the final authority on every question. He will soon begin to quote "teacher says so!" Likely he has played with four or five youngsters in his block or with a brother or sister on a farm but now he must make his way with twenty-five or more boys and girls, many of whom are strangers to him. He has been used to playing all day, now he must know the discipline of following instruction and sometimes sitting still when he longs to run about.

When mothers speak of getting son or daughter "ready for school" they are usually thinking of their child's clothes. Wise is the parent who discovers what type of clothes is worn by most of the youngsters his age at school! A small child on the first day at school can be acutely miserable if he feels his clothes are too different from his classmates, especially if they are too dressed-up! Boys detest that certain appearance which calls forth the fearsome word "sissy" from other small lads in their playground.

Kindergarten teachers and teachers of first grade notice a good deal of difference between children starting school for the first time. What are some of the ways parents can prepare their youngsters for a good beginning of their school career?

A child should have a visit to both doctor and dentist to check on his general physical condition and on his teeth, if at all possible before September. If there is any doubt about good vision, his eyesight should be tested too. A great many children have inoculations against whooping cough; toxoid to prevent diphtheria and vaccination as a protection for small pox when they are quite small. If all school children received this care before their first day of school, how much sickness, anxiety and expense could be avoided!

Boys and girls who have had little play with chums are ill-equipped for the give-and-take of school life. A child who has rarely been away from his mother and seldom left in another person's care, is also apt to be most unhappy at school. The adjustment to an environment of sharing with other children under the direction of a strange grown-up is a big one. It is a real help to a small child if he knows some other little child in the same kindergarten or first grade class.

A child should be capable of dressing himself, putting on his outdoor wraps and his rubbers, with very little help by the time he begins school. He should of course, be able to attend to his own toilet needs. He should have been taught to look both ways and cross a road carefully. Late in August it is a good plan for a mother to walk to school with her child, making very sure that he knows the route. She should impress on him again about taking care in crossing the road.

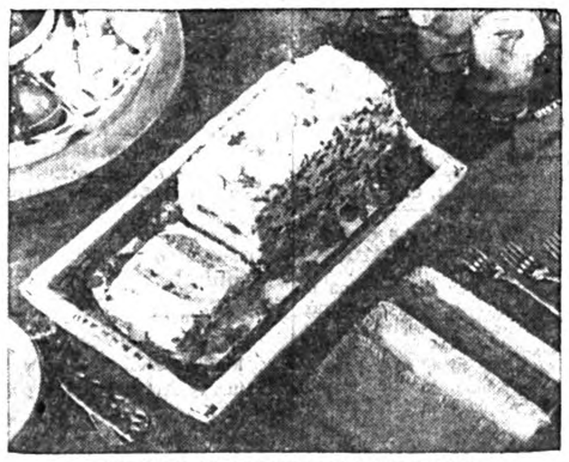

Mothers can help, too, in talking with a child about his first day at school, anticipating that he will enjoy it and find the teacher is a friend. It is sometimes enlightening to discover what notions a child has about what school will be like! A parent may thus prevent the disappointment of a small boy who returned home to dinner after his first half day at school and announced:

"My school's not much good and I've a poor teacher. She didn't even teach us how to write our own names this morning!"

Pension Deficit

In the year ending March 31, 1958, the universal old age pension cost $473.9 million; in the year receipts from the special taxes earmarked for the fund totalled only $371.5 million.

Serve sandwiches and desserts for family fare and entertaining

SANDWICH LOAF WITH SUMMER FRUITS

Why not suprise your family with an attractive sandwich loaf for lunch? This one has four different layers of filling — ham salad, cheese with chopped nuts and olives, devilled ham spread and egg salad. It is frosted with cream cheese that has been blended with mayonnaise to spreading consistency.

For dessert, serve assorted fruits such as whole plums, cherries and apples, along with cubes or balls of cantaloupe and watermelon.

— Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture

For Family Lunch

Everyone in your family is sure to enjoy lunch served outside on the back porch or patio. As for the food, what could be more pleasing than mealtime sandwiches, interesting and filling, followed by a cool dessert? Try these suggestions from the Consumer Section:

Make plain ham, chicken, pork or canned luncheon meat sandwiches and French fry them. To do this dip the sandwiches in a mixture of egg and milk (about 2 tablespoons milk to 1 egg) and brown quickly on both sides in a hot buttered skillet. For dessert serve peach ice cream on sliced honeydew melon.

If you want to serve cold sandwiches which are a little out of the ordinary, why not make a salad sandwich loaf? First, remove the top and bottom crusts from an unsliced loaf of bread, slice the bread lengthwise into four or five even slices, then remove side and end crusts. Spread butter on one side only of top and bottom slice but on both sides of other slices. Use a different filling in each layer — for example, ham salad, egg salad and chicken salad along with cheese-olive-nut filling is a good combination. Frost the loaf with cream chese which has been beaten with a little cream until fluffy. Decorate with watercress, chopped parsley and radish slices. Chill for several hours. Cut salad sandwich loaf into hearty slices and serve on salad plates with salad forks. For dessert, serve assorted fresh summer fruits along with iced tea and milk for the children, of course.

For Box Lunch

A box lunch for picknickers, hikers or school fry need not be a problem, for sandwiches and desserts are ideal in this capacity, too.

Sandwiches of sliced cheese along with sandwiches having chopped ham or bologna and celery filling are a good combination and all pack well. To eat with the sandwiches, pack in carrot and turnip sticks wrapped in waxed paper. For dessert, make the most of August fruits by including blueberry muffins and ripe red plums.

Another good lunch box combination is sandwiches made by spreading vegetable salad on one side of the bread and thin slices of beef or pork on the other, and sandwiches with a filling of peanut butter and chopped apple. A lunch box surprise may be made by hollowing an unpeeled cucumber and stuffing it with pimiento cheese. Cut the stuffed cucumber into slices, wrap and pack into the lunch box. For dessert send along crisp ginger snaps and a fresh peach or apple.

For Afternoon Tea

Sandwiches and desserts go petit and fancy for your party, and what an excellent time to entertain your friends!

Here is a serving tray centrepiece which can double as a pleasant dessert for your tea party. Hollow out a medium-size half of ripe honey dew melon and heap with berries. With picks, attach a "handle" made from a curved half-slice of melon. Arrange fancy sandwiches, such as rainbow ribbons, lily rolls and open-faced sandwiches, around it on the serving tray.

Fashions

Young and charming as a summer dance dress should be is this frock of white organdie and cotton print. The bodice is of print highlighted by scattered colored sequins. Four vertical bands of print mark the skirt topped by a looped bow.

Tossed Vegetable
Lettuce Salad
Glazed Beef Tongue
Horseradish Sauce
Potatoes Boiled with Tongue
Corn on Cob
Pickled Beets
Pineapple, Orange and Grape Ambrosia
Hot or Iced Coffee or Tea
Milk

All measurements are level:
Recipes for 4 to 6

Glazed Beef Tongue: Place a four pound smoked beef tongue in a kettle. Half-cover with boiling water.

Bring to boiling point. Skim. Cover and simmer three hours or until fork-tender and skin curls back.

Half-cool in the water.

Before tongue cools pare off outer skin and remove bones with a sharp knife.

Rub over with ¼ cut brown sugar mixed with ½ teaspoon apple-pie spice and vinegar to moisten, preferably drained from sweet pickles.

Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven 375 degrees F. Slice to serve hot or cold.

Pineapple - Orange - Grape Ambrosia: In a serving bowl, layer and chill two cups each thin small slices Mexican King pineapple and seedless oranges, interspersed with seedless green grapes. Between the layers put a light film of flaked coconut. Top with coconut flakes. Garnish with green grapes.

FROZEN HORSERADISH SAUCE FROM THE CHEF

To ¾ cup unsweetened whipped cream, add 1½ tbsp. drained prepared horseradish and one tsp. sugar. Spoon into a small mold; freeze one hour. Unmold and slice.

Wife Preservers

When possible, make headings at both ends of curtains or drapes. Then switch ends after each washing or cleaning, to even up the wear and light-bleaching.

Good apple year is foreseen

Apple enthusiasts will be pleased to hear that from all reports there's a good apple year ahead. This means plenty of fine eating all fall and winter and even into spring and summer since the controlled atmosphere storage of apples is working out so well.

Right now it's early apple time and what a treat these freshly picked, crisp apples are! Better known varieties such as Melba, Duchess and Transparents are quite generally available across Canada at this season of the year and besides these in certain districts you'll find Close, Lodi, Astrachan Red and others. The first of the main crop apples, Gravensteins and Wealthies are coming in now, too, so you can pretty well "take your pick".

All the late summer and early fall apples, though a little on the sour side, are quite good for eating raw but it's in pies and applesauce that they really shine! You can use these apples in other apple desserts, too, but remember, they are juicier than other apples and, because they are tart, may need a little more sugar added.

The home economists in Canada's Kitchen have found it best to add just a little water and to keep the pan covered during the cooking of applesauce made from Duchess or Transparent apples. Cook the sauce over low heat, they suggest, and stir it occasionally to prevent scorching, then sweeten to taste. It won't take long for the steam to soften the apples and bring out their own full-flavored juice.

If you have a home freezer you really should freeze some of the good applesauce made from these early apples that are not available for very long. Simply pack the cooked, cooled applesauce into freezer cartons and freeze it.

You can make your own canned applesauce now, too, for these early apples are especially good for canning. Make applesauce as you usually do, then pack it into hot glass sealers or cans and process in a boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

Teatime Topics

The Lachute Watchman
By Edna Usher
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fun and games are the themes of modern houses, judging by a "House of Ideas" at a national chainstore.

The house includes a child's playroom, rooms for music, games, hi-fi, and hobbies, with kitchen and living room incidental.

A new imitation leather material is used to cover furniture and the makers claim it can be washed and will wear well. A chair and pouf in the nursery are in white.

Other innovations from the "House of Ideas" are hanging cushions on the walls behind a divan (harness medallions make a decorative hook), a deep-framed picture which opens to reveal a miniature cocktail cabinet, and a lamp hanging so low from the ceiling it has the effect of a table lamp without taking up space on the table.

Dancing with Danger

Inexpert teaching in ballet can result in curvature of the spine, fallen arches, collapsed instep, bunions and weak ankles, according to Celia Franca, artistic director of Canada's National Ballet Company.

At the moment she is in charge of a summer school in ballet in Toronto, teaching young Canadians and Canadian teachers the right approach to ballet.

She says that children should not start to learn dancing until they are about six years old, though they can be taught rhythm and to act nursery rhymes earlier. Children should not try to stand on the points of their toes before they are 11, because the strain can cause physical defects.

Good ballet dancing rests on the quality of the teacher, says Miss Franca. "Mothers should choose ballet instructors for their children with the same care they would choose their doctor."

Eskimo Stewardess

A 23-year-old Eskimo girl who can throw a harpoon and drive a dog team now flies over Northern Canada as an airline stewardess.

Ann Witaltuk was born on an island in James Bay; she attended school at Fort George, Que., and at Moosonee.

When she was 16 she went to Hamilton to study to be a nursing assistant, and she has been home only once since. She is now qualifying as a stewardess.

Dessert

Jelly on an August day is just what the doctor ordered, especially if staying slim is as important factor. By using a non-caloric sweetener, calory content can be minimal.

Ingredients: two cups drained dietetic apricots, three-quarter cup apricot liquid, unflavored gelatin, six whole cloves, cup of boiling water, four teaspoons synthetic sweetener, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two teaspoons lemon juice.

Rub apricots through sieve or food mill. Mix apricot liquid with gelatin, set aside. Add cloves to boiling water; cover and simmer five minutes; remove cloves. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved; remove from heat. Add gelatin, synthetic sweetener, salt and lemon juice to sieved apricots. Pour into molds and chill till firm. This is enough for six servings.
