TIMELY NOTE FOR SCHOOL OPENING ...

Local employment situation shows education prime asset to applicants

45% of males seeking work have only 6th year schooling or less

The employment situation in this area is considered as favorable, compared to the same date last year. Argenteuil County is served by the Lachute office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

The manager, G. A. Downing, advises that there are presently 362 persons registered for employment, of whom 150 are female. Forty-three of these are not drawing Unemployment benefit but have requested assistance in finding work.

In glancing at statistics of the end of August, a special study reveals that the females in general have a better education than their counterparts. We note that 45% of the men looking for work have 6th year schooling or less, and that only 26% of the ladies have this level of education or less.

The National Employment Service is doing everything in its power to find jobs for the workers, and workers for the jobs. In so doing, their experience has shown that people with little education have much more difficulty in finding work and especially permanent and better salaried employment. Most of these less fortunate must content themselves with unskilled work with less remuneration, and often in seasonal industries which attract a larger number of workers than there are vacancies available. It is therefore very important for the younger generation to acquire a maximum degree of schooling.

Textile manufacturing is still below normal, but sash and door factories and sawmills in general are still operating at a satisfactory rate. The construction industry continues at its usual summer pace, and for this reason it is sometimes difficult to locate the manpower required by employers of various skilled trades, in spite of the connections that the Lachute office has with others in this part of the country and elsewhere. The picture will however change in the next few months, when the number of available workers will double and will permit a most exacting choice for work to be effected at that time.

Mr. Downing foresees the possibilities of prospective builders commencing their projects immediately in order that they may benefit from the labor surplus which will then exist.

It is hoped that, as in other years, our employers will co-operate with the National Employment Service to help lighten Seasonal Unemployment. If each individual would do his share, winter unemployment would not bring the problem it creates each year and the waste of manpower it entails. In fact, everyone would benefit by the stabilization which would result.

There has been no demand for the transfer of labor to the Western Provinces to help with the grain harvest, and many district agricultural workers who regularly looked forward to this excursion will not be able to make the trip this year. This is in part due to crop conditions, as well as the more readily available manpower in the West, and the wider use of machinery for harvesting.

6 New teachers start duties on High School staff

As High School opens today to embark on the new educational year, there are six newcomers enrolled on the teaching staff and an undetermined number (at this date) on the roster of pupils.

Following are new members on the staff — some district residents known to this community, others more recently arrived but established residents, and at least two coming here from distant parts:

Mr. John Mills, from the British Isles, will teach Physics and General Science. A B.Sc. graduate from Queen's University, Belfast, he has taught for the past five years in England, latterly at the Blue Grammar School in Wells, Somerset.

Mrs. Eleanor Rigby, of Lachute, will be teacher of Music to all grades. The wife of Dr. G. R. Rigby, employed in the laboratories of Canadian Refractories Ltd., Mrs. Rigby is a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music, London, and has taught for 10 years in England; her last school was St. Dominic's High School, Hartshill, near Stoke-on-Trent.

Mrs. Elsie North, of Mountain View, Lachute, will take one of the divisions of Grade VII (which is divided into three classes this year). With an Intermediate Diploma, Mrs. North has been teaching in Grenville for the past eight years, and previously at Lakefield and Cushing.

Mrs. Doris Campbell, well known resident of this town, who has been in charge of the Retarded Children's School for the past three and a half years, will teach another of the Grade VII classes. Mrs. Campbell holds an Intermediate teacher's diploma.

Miss Ruth MacKenzie comes here from Dalhousie, N.B., to teach one of the three divisions of Grade V. She has been on the staff at Princess Elizabeth High School in Magog for the past two years.

Mrs. Geo. Rodger, of Rivière Rouge, St. Andrews, will teach pupils of Grade I, in one of the three divisions of this primary grade. Holder of an Advanced Intermediate Diploma, she has taught eight years for the Montreal Protestant School Board, and two years previously at Ile Maligne, Que.

Particulars on the pupil enrolment and other information will be available from Principal Fred Royal after school opening today.

Lachute 4-H team won cattle judging provincial contest

The Lachute 4-H Calf Club judging team, Donald Parker and Davis MacVicar, came first in the Provincial Judging Competition held August 25 at the Sherbrooke Exhibition. Donald Parker had the highest individual score, with 541 points out of a total of 600, and David MacVicar came 9th with 507 points. Parker and MacVicar won the Sir Henry Thornton Trophy for the first-place team, and Parker won the Stephen Boiley Trophy for the highest individual score.

The trophies were presented at a banquet held in the New Sherbrooke Hotel on Tuesday evening, August 26, for the 4-H club members.

The boys judged four classes of dairy cattle, Ayrshire, Holstein, Jersey and Canadian breeds. The Lachute team won 1,048 points out of a total of 1,200. Lennoxville came second with 1,036 and Abitibi third with 1,034. Eighteen teams took part in the competition.

Ross Oswald, the Club leader, and Irenée Paré, local Agronome, accompanied the team to Sherbrooke.

Donald and Davis will now attend the National 4-H Club Week which is held at Toronto during the Royal Winter Fair in November.

The local team wish to thank all those who helped in their training for the judging competitions.

Annual appeal issued here for Salvation Army

The Salvation Army annual appeal is directed to the readership of this newspaper, to enlist the usual kind support from Argenteuil citizens towards attaining a $950,000 objective.

The wide humanitarian activities of the Salvation Army need no elaboration here. The Army spends money where it will do most good, and every dollar contributed to this cause is a "working dollar". In The Army's hostels, havens, homes and hospitals, its trained and devoted workers labor unceasingly to restore to men, women and children who have fallen by the wayside, the opportunity and desire for upright, self-reliant living. Costs of administration are kept to a minimum. Salvation Army workers lead dedicated lives of service. To the broken and despairing they offer, not bread alone, but the message of divine Grace which transforms human lives.

In the role of chairman again for this area is Geo. Y. Deacon, with Donald M. Hay as treasurer, and Mayor Léopold Carrière, Dr. F. W. FitzGerald and Dr. Jules Lafleur on the committee.

Contributions may be mailed or handed in to Geo. Y. Deacon's store, or to D. M. Hay at the Bank of Montreal, Lachute.

131st Battery here embarks on third year of training

Lachute's Field Artillery contingent, the 131st Battery, a unit of the 37th Field Regiment, RCA, commence their third year of training here, in their quarters on Robert Street on Thursday, September 11.

This battery now has a strength of approximately 50 officers and men, and recruiting is underway to fill vacancies in the personnel. This unit is now under the command of Lieut.-Col. A. Malouf and Major R. A. Dingwall, officer commanding, who latterly took over command of the local battery from Major H. Stutt, CD.; the latter is at present in charge of training for the entire regiment.

Capt. Gordon Higginson is Battery Captain and with the aid of local officers and NCOs is in charge of training parades and administration. The training takes place every Thursday in the gun park on Robert Street. Training in gun drill, signals, and truck driving, under supervision of qualified personnel from Montreal, is carried out, and qualification courses are held each summer in permanent force camps. These are under supervision of regular force personnel, and actual firing of 105 field guns takes place during this time complete with all supporting components of artillery.

Among those who attended summer camp this year, were Capt. J. R. Watson, Unit Padre, Lieuts. K. Dalrymple, J. P. Merryweather and W. Butterfield, Sgt. J. Curtis, and Gnrs. Thomas Grondin, Jocelyn Brisebois, Claude deBellefeuille, Henri Larche and Brian Girling.

The unit plans to train with new 105 guns, tractor driving and signals during the early fall and winter months, meeting every Thursday night, and with Sunday and week-end schemes to augment the weeknight training. A comprehensive gun training course will be held, and when completed, the personnel qualified will be able to fire the 105 field guns at Farnham, Que., and during summer training at Gagetown, N.B. Plans are also under way for the battery to act as a civic assistance organization which would aid local authorities in civil defence, if the necessity should arise.

"THEY CUT DOWN THE OLD ELM TREE" ...

Trunk 12 feet in circumference at the base. Some idea of the tree's girth may be gathered by comparison with height of the picket fence at rear of this picture.

Landmark felled by saw and axe in Brownsburg High School yard

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — What has been known for many years as the "Big Elm" on Brownsburg High School grounds was laid low recently, when for safety reasons it was found necessary to have this mighty monarch cut down. Archie Robinson was given the contract for the job; he along with Russell Young soon brought the tree crashing to the ground.

It was estimated by "experts" who were present that this tree would be 200 years old. It was about 100 feet in height and 12 feet in circumference, branching out to twin trees higher up, one being 4 feet 8 inches in diameter and the other 4 feet 2 inches.

If the "Big Elm" could talk it would tell of the hundreds of children who had played in its shade during the many years of its life — children now scattered to the four corners of the globe.

A new wing to the school has just been completed under the supervision of contracter J. D. Lepine. . . Men can construct great buildings, bridges, dams, etc.; but, wonderful as these may be, "It is only God who can make a Tree."

Believe bonds from Grenville vault robbery

Perth, Ont. (CP) — An attractive red-haired woman reported to have cashed bonds believed taken in a $75,000 bank robbery is being sought by Ontario Provincial Police. The woman cashed $1,000 bonds in Perth, Arnprior and Carleton Place, which are believed to be loot from a Grenville bank robbery in December, 1953.

Youngster hit by automobile

Six-year-old Carole Quenneville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Quenneville, Bradford Street, Ayersville, was struck by an automobile one evening last week, and after receiving medical treatment by Dr. R. Lavigne, was removed by ambulance to the Hotel Dieu at St. Jerome.

According to Adrien Cyr, police chief of Ayersville, the child was struck on the sidewalk by a car operated by Marie-Marthe Deschamps, 19-year-old resident of Corbeil Street who, accompanied by her father in the car, was learning to drive. It is understood Miss Deschamps struck the youngster in attempting to avoid a group of children on the road.

In view of the fact that the young lady had no permit, Chief Cyr referred the case to Officer P. E. Perrier of the provincial traffic police.

Village blaze draws fire crews from 4 neighbor municipalities

Damage estimated in the vicinity of $60,000 resulted from a fire in St. Philippe Village on Wednesday afternoon of last week, where firemen and equipment from Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East and Hawkesbury were called to the scene but left unavailing without any water supply.

The fire was discovered in the late afternoon in a house owned by Georges-Etienne Marchand and occupied by Donat Laporte. Flames had made their way from a makeshift stove-pipe chimney into the walls of the frame building and demolished the $2,500 dwelling which housed the Laporte family of 12 children.

Two tanks of propane gas exploded when ignited by flames, and the fire quickly spread to a large building owned by Rodrigue Desforges housing his garage, store and living quarters. Different parts of this building succumbed to the blaze in that order. Heat was so intense that two brick-siding structures across the highway were scorched black, tar surface running down the front of the building in streams.

First to arrive at the scene was the Lachute department, and at this time the flames had not as yet become well established in the Desforges building. The water supply was extremely limited, however, the local firemen connecting with a small well across the highway, and before long the garage was a raging inferno. Despite the sweeping smoke and flames, several members of the local crew stayed within a few feet of the building in an effort to check the progress of the blaze, but the water supply ran out, and all that could be done was to retreat across the highway and save the buildings in danger there.

At this time, the Brownsburg crew arrived, followed shortly by St. Andrews East and Hawkesbury fire departments — these trucks carrying sufficient water to cool sections of the raging fire. A number of the firemen were at the scene until after 9 p.m.

Damage to the Desforges property, in excess of $50,000, was only partially covered by insurance. The properties across the highway owned by Philippe Lefebvre and Mrs. Adrien Rochon were damaged to the extent of $1,750, this also being partially covered.

Fire Chief gives recommendations at Chatham Council

A visitor at the regular session of Chatham Township council on Tuesday morning was Fernand Trépanier, police and fire chief of this town, who was on hand to give advice on the matter of fire protection.

At the outset, Chief Trépanier remarked that he spoke strictly as a citizen, not on behalf of the Lachute Council or the fire department. . . "The fire which occurred here last Wednesday", he said, in effect, "might possibly have destroyed a section of your village. On the other hand, it might have been confined and caused a minimum of damage, if we had had an adequate water supply. (He referred to the four fire brigades which were on the scene to combat the blaze.) Unfortunately, despite available water in the district, we could not get at it for firefighting purposes. . . The result was a loss of several thousand dollars in property, and a bill of some $1,500 to the municipality — which was costly but might have been moreso. There was 2,500 gallons of water available, but it would have been a superhuman feat to get it! . .

"In consequence — again voicing my strictly personal views — I would recommend that you build a 10,000-gallon reservoir and invest in a trailer pump. Then, with the services of one of two firemen, you could give adequate protection to your citizens. I repeat, this fire could have reached the proportions of a conflagration. An engineer could give you more expert advice on the water situation, but I would personally advise you to make some provision for a reserve supply."

As regards the telephone call summoning aid from Lachute, Mayor Noel Lemay affirmed that any citizen of the Village might summon help in case of fire without special authority from Council.

Charities Federation lays groundwork for fourth annual campaign in October

Groundwork for the Lachute Federation of Charities fourth annual campaign was laid at a meeting of the executive under the chairmanship of Jean-Paul Roy, president. The assembly was held at the Clement School in Ayersville.

Jean-Paul Roy, president

Principal subject for discussion at this session was the budget of the respective member organizations, and the objective of the campaign consequent upon these needs. The appeal will likely be launched in the third week of October.

Enterprises grouped in the Federation include the Ste. Elizabeth and Marguerite Bourgeois workshops for clothing of needy families; the Social Service; the Loisirs (recreation programs) in the three Catholic parishes; and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind — making seven distinct charity ventures affecting a wide segment of the population.

Dr. Charles Roy, local dentist, has accepted the onerous role of campaign chairman. His initiative and enthusiasm are qualities in which the executive place every confidence, and there is general optimism for a successful campaign.

Other officers with Mr. Jean-Paul Roy and Dr. Charles Roy (between whom there is no blood relationship) are — Notary Richard Valois, secretary; Raymond Beaulieu, treasurer; Romeo Legault, budget chairman; Fernand Berthiaume, publicity; Henri St. Onge, Bernard Gosselin and Maurice Dumas, vice-presidents. Rev. Dalmo Brisebois, is spiritual mentor of this big charity effort.

Closing events, annual meeting, at Louisa Club

A dance Saturday night and a well attended outdoor service Sunday, provided a traditional ending over Labor Day week-end to the social season at Lake Louisa. "Charley's Night", ah annual film program staged by Mr. Charles Johnstone, the official film recorder and impresario of this thriving lake community, was unavoidably postponed due to a storm Sunday evening and resultant power failure, but was held Labor Day.

The dance Saturday evening was held in the club's spacious Totem Lodge on the lakeshore, with Ernie Lefebvre's orchestra. C. E. Frost, retiring president, spoke briefly on the annual affairs of the club and presented the last of the season's athletic awards, the Frost Trophy for junior water skiing, to young Bryant Graves. A new trophy from proceeds of the junior club was presented by Brian White, the junior president, for competition next year. Mrs. R. A. Whiting, the ladies' president, conducted a drawing, which was won by Mrs. Eugene Raymond.

At the Lake Louisa Country Club annual meeting on Saturday, A. Van Wight was elected president, Ron MacLeod vice-president, Jack A. Davis secretary, and Marjorie Acres treasurer. Directors are — Herb Graves, Don McFaul, and Bob Giles, Jr., all of Lachute, and Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Gordon, Mrs. T. A. Heslop, Mrs. R. A. Whiting and Paul MacLaren, all of Montreal.

K. of C. Council lays plans for 25th anniversary

Lachute Council of the Knights of Columbus will give fitting observance to the 25th anniversary of its founding, at ceremonies to be held Sunday, October 26. Gaëtan Cousineau, ex-Grand Knight, is heading a committee comprising all former Grand Knights of the branch, to map out a program, and another ex-Grand Knight, Lucien Savard, has charge of publicizing the event.

All adherents of the Lachute Council 2752 are asked to enter wholeheartedly into the spirit of this celebration.

There will be initiation in three degrees of the Order preceding this occasion, on October 19, when a number of high officials, religious and lay notables — including Bishop Emilien Frenette and Justice T. Adélard Fontaine — are expected to attend.

New contract between Wilson Co. and Union local

Local 437 of the International Brotherhood of Papermakers signed a new agreement recently with J. C. Wilson Ltd. here, the collective contract being based on wage rates of $1.23 to $1.71 an hour plus bonus. By this agreement, for one year's duration, all employees will benefit by increases or adjustments in pay.

The Union and the local company entered their first agreement 17 years ago, in 1941, and genial relations have always existed between management and the workers.

In the recently-approved contract the Company was represented by Howard Wilson, president, and Robert M. Cairns, vice-president, while the mill workers were represented by Jack Lambert, Union official, and Messrs. O. Pilon, D. Williams, Remi Ledoux and L. Labonté, all officers of the Lachute local.

Young lawyer enters C.P. Rly's legal department

Jean-Guy Joannette, local advocate with the firm of Legault & Legault since 1954, has entered the legal department of the C.P.R. as joint counsel for the Quebec district. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Joannette, he has been practising the legal profession with Legault & Legault here since his acceptance to the Bar of the Province of Quebec.

With his wife (the former Lucille Landry) and two children, Mr. Joannette has taken up residence in Ste. Rose. He has been active in various clubs and social enterprises since residing here in Lachute.

Agriculture student is awarded CNE scholarship

Stuart Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Robertson, of Lachute, has been named Province of Quebec winner of the Canadian National Exhibition $600 scholarship, and left here Monday to be on hand for the scheduled presentation today.

A graduate of Lachute High School, Stuart last year attended Macdonald College and this spring applied for the scholarship, which is to be applied towards completing his education in Agriculture. He was named winner for the province last week, along with nine other provincial candidates.

The winners were chosen both on the basis of scholastic ability and agricultural activities, such as 4-H work, etc.; the local winner has been quite active in this latter interest.

Mt. Royal defeats locals in League tennis encounter

In an inter-club tournament schedule under arrangement of the Quebec Lawn Tennis Association, the local Ayers Limited representation lost by only a 3-2 count against the formidable Mount Royal aggregation. All the matches were closely contested and the Lachute players lost out by only a small margin.

It is encouraging to note the improvement of the local stars since last year, however. Lachute then had some difficulty in even qualifying for the league contest. This season, out of six engagements the Ayers players have won three victories.

Following are scores in the encounter with Mount Royal:

Singles

Jacques Bourgoing (Ayers) defeated Don Penner (M.R.) — 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

Keith Carpenter (M.R.) defeated Bernard Bélisle (Ayers) — 6-1, 3-6, 6-4.

K. McReynolds (M.R.) defeated Réal Martin (Ayers) — 6-4, 6-4.

Doubles

G. Carpenter, H. Westra (M.R.) defeated Serge Miron, Gilbt. Murray (Ayers) 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Rodrigue Quesnel, Conrad Larocque (Ayers) defeated B. Bastien, M. Patterson (M.R.) 6-4, 6-4.

Scientists are certain that the Sahara Desert was fertile and well-populated until about 4,000 years ago, says the September Reader's Digest. Keen competition in livestock, produce, at the Ste. Scholastique fall exhibition

The Ste. Scholastique Exhibition was held August 28-30, with fine weather and a larger attendance than last year, despite the late harvest season. The quality of the exhibits was excellent, with livestock, poultry, handicraft, fruit, vegetables, honey and maple syrup well represented.

The horses were judged on Thursday, dairy and beef cattle on Friday, and Saturday was the 4-H Inter-Club Competition, with eight clubs taking part. Clubs present were from Thurso, St. Jovite, Lac St. Paul, Ripon, St. André Avellin, Buckingham, Terre Neuve and Ste. Anne du Lac. A Tractor Rodeo was also held on Saturday, with Jean Guy Daout of St. Hermas the winner, and Serg Compeau of St. Jovite and V. Montreuil of Laval tied for second place.

Following is a round-up of successful exhibitors:

Remi St. Jacques, Lachute, won the Grand Champion with his Guernsey herd, with Jean-Philippe St. Jacques, Lachute, taking Reserve Champion.

In the Jersey breed, R. H. Mc Elroy, Lachute, had an excellent display of fine Jersey cattle.

Clifford Oswald, Ste. Scholastique, won the Grand Champion Ayrshire Male, and John P. Bradley & Son, Lachute, won the Grand Champion Female in this breed; prizes were well divided among the two breeders.

The Holstein exhibit was smaller than last year, but the quality excellent. Albert Daout, St. Hermas, and R. H. McElroy, Lachute, were exhibitors in this breed.

In the Beef breeds, Kenneth Stevenson, St. Andrews East, and Melvin Hammond, Ste. Scholastique, exhibited their Herefords, and L. T. Porter, St. Andrews East, showed his select herd of Aberdeen Angus.

Sheep were exhibited by J. P. St. Jacques, Remi St. Jacques, both of Lachute, and Delmer Copeland, St. Hermas.

Swine exhibitors were Carson Tomalty, Brownsburg, and Victor Leduc, Ste. Scholastique.

A large Poultry exhibit was displayed by Fred Stein, Keith McCaig, Alphonse Hooper, all of Lachute, and Melvin Smith, St. Hermas.

In the Horse section, Clydesdales were shown by Albert Cleland, St. Hermas; Belgian and Canadian horses by Gilbert Arnold and Arnold Farms, respectively, of Grenville; Percherons by Remi St. Jacques, Lachute, and Arnold Farms, Grenville; Draft horses by William Brass, Lachute, and Noel Lalande, Ste. Scholastique. Light horses were exhibited by William Brass, Lachute, and H. Beauchamp, St. Eustache.

Broadcast shake-up, Printing Bureau prime topics in debates at Ottawa

By Don Attfield, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 1 (CP) — Parliament waded through legislation at a speedy clip last week, heading for the end of a long and tiring sesion. It was expected to be finished this week or next.

It virtually approved the first major change in Canada's broadcasting setup in 22 years; heard government announcements of aid to universities, western farmers and, perhaps, to municipalities; and skated through departmental estimates. The Senate's Liberal majority cut down the government's estates tax legislation.

In the Commons, the Liberal and CCF opposition objected strenuously — but not too long — to some government moves. They too want to catch the tail end of summer at home. There will be a new session in January.

Broadcast Shake-Up

The Commons passed the main feature of new broadcasting legislation, setting up a new board of broadcast governors to take over regulatory duties governing both private and public broadcasting from the CBC board of governors.

The CBC remains essentially unchanged, except that the CBC board no longer has jurisdiction over private broadcasting, and the CBC itself may have to answer to the new board on occasion.

The Liberal Opposition voted against the bill, although it did not try to kill it, as it was at first thought it might, by any filibuster. Liberal opposition was mainly on the ground that the new legislation will leave the CBC open to interference through the proposed method of cabinet appointment of CBC heads.

Firm Witness

The Commons' public accounts committee found it heavy going when its Progressive Conservative members tackled Montreal architect Ernest Cormier, the supervising architect in charge of construction of the controversial National Printing Bureau building in neighboring Hull, Que.

The building to date has cost some $16,000,000, while the original estimate before the building was started 10 years ago — and before Mr. Cormier was engaged — had placed cost at $6,000,000.

The 72-year-old architect, on the witness stand most of the week, seemed to grow more confident as interrogation wore on. In the third day he criticized Parliament for approving expenditure of $700,000 to improve the bureau air conditioning system, originally costing $500,000, after complaints it was not doing a job.

It's Too Much

Mr. Cormier said the system could be made adequate by installing an auxiliary conditioning unit — for $200,000. He had recommended the extra unit during construction but was turned down by the then Liberal administration because of cost.

Mr. Cormier said the original $6,000,000 estimate, made before plans were drawn, must have been "pulled out of the air." Furthermore, he said, he never was informed of this figure, and he never was asked for an overall estimate of cost.

When public organizations such as the government need a building, they want it no matter what the cost, he said.

The accounts committee's printing bureau investigation was entering its fifth acrimonious week. It has featured the most uproarious sessions, with Conservatives and Liberals heckling each other and calling names that Parliament Hill has not heard in some time. But the report it is to produce is expected to be much less spectacular.

University Aid

The government announced it is increasing by half again its grants to Canadian universities, boosting the total to $25,600,000 this year. The money is distributed to universities in a province on the basis of $1.50 per capita population of the province. Grants formerly were figured on the basis of $1 per capita.

The government also announced an "informal" meeting here October 6 and 7 between the cabinet and representatives of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities. The federation requested the meeting, to place before the government the financial problems of municipalities across the country.

Senate Sits Up

For the first time since the Conservatives took office in June, 1957, the Senate has swung its Liberal majority to flatten a piece of government legislation. It imposed an amendment — which the government has said it cannot accept — on the proposed new Estates Tax Act, excluding certain types of annuities.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I am a labourer. During the summer I work on the farm, in winter time I work in the bush. I am paying unemployment insurance contributions, but this work is seasonal in nature and I am not able to work long enough to be able to draw benefits. Have I the right to ask the farmer, in summer, to pay unemployment insurance contributions when I am willing to pay my share?

A. No. Work on the farm is not insurable and contributions cannot be paid for work done there. If you become unemployed in the period December to mid-May any year, you might be entitled to seasonal benefit for which the number of contributions required is considerably lower than for regular benefit. Enquire at your local office should you become unemployed in the period mentioned.

'Pig Profits' means the Purina Plan

Up until very lately, pork has been so high in price that you could make some profit with pigs on any old feed. Of course, those who followed the Purina Plan did make more than those using any old feed. There was a fair margin of profit on so-called cheap feeds; but with the last drop in pork prices, you will need to watch your step if you want to make enough on your pigs to pay for the feed, interest on your investment, and wages for yourself.

MICRO-MIXED PURINA CHOWS

All Purina Chows are made, not to sell at a price but to make you the cheapest pounds of pork, poultry, meat, or dozen eggs. They are not pencil-formulated, but are the answer to feeding on the Purina Experimental Farm.

With pork prices where they are, you should feed your hogs by the Purina Plan — that is, if you are keeping hogs to make a profit. Sure it will cost you more by the bag than most other feeds, but each bag will make a lot more pounds of pork!

600 Lbs. Purina will grow you a 200 lb. hog in 5 months.

Our competitors will tell you their feed is just as good as Purina but cheaper. . . Prove it to your own satisfaction by feeding your hogs on Purina, and keep records. Won't you get a supply today? We deliver.

Saving lives – with no half-measures

TRAVEL AND observation turn up some interesting facts. Our visitor last week-end was Geoff (of Geoff's Journal, an erstwhile column on this page), who had just returned from a camping tour to the Pacific Coast; and being as fluent a raconteur as a writer, he told us his impressions.

With his travelling companion Geoff stopped several days at a Lions Club camp in Montana, and being also an ardent clubman, he was absorbing facts and figures on the operation of this centre when he noticed his colleague had gone swimming and was far out across the lake. Informed that these were cold glacial waters which sometimes play queer tricks on human endurance, he considered it wise to follow his friend in a boat. This he proceeded to do, but was unceremoniously detained till a lifebelt was brought and he was induced to buckle it on his person. A second life-jacket was thrown in also, to be donned by the swimmer on his return trip to shore. . .

In as much time as it takes to tell these proceedings, Geoff was informed this was the LAW in the State of Montana. In that State no person — man, woman or child, either swimmer or non-swimmer — may board a boat of any kind without wearing a life-jacket. Camp operators, game officials and others in authority, it seems, are commissioned to impose a summary fine of $50 upon anyone disregarding this law.

Montana, studded with accessible lakes, has experienced a grim toll in drownings, and has applied an effective remedy insofar as boat users are concerned — a lesson from which Canada might take a profitable cue.

Our friend Geoff had spent several seasons as waterfront director, and his friend had served as swimming instructor, at the Universities Settlement Camp at Chertsey. (Three from Lachute have served at the same holiday spot this past summer.) Presumably, neither of these gentlemen actually required a life-jacket, but in the State of Montana there are no half-measures or compromise in the matter of boating safety.

Logical, if not too realistic

WE FEEL really superior — affluent and wallowing in wherewithal — to read some of the Conversion Loan publicity directed towards us personally. Such suggestions, for instance, as —

- √ Examine all possible storage places in your homes or offices for possible bonds.
- √ Have you a bond or two hidden away in a biscuit box?
- √ Forgotten bonds have turned up in the strangest places, in old strong boxes, bureau drawers and country attics.

Here in the humble newspaper game, our few bonds are carefully counted, coffered and recorded. Maybe the brainwaves at Ottawa who write this stuff have bonds to spare and leave them lying around in attics. (We always maintained we were in the wrong line of business and well deserved a government job.)

* * *

However, overlooking this unrealistic approach, which may be applicable to one fortunate investor in a hundred, we do lend support to the government's re-financing plan, and we hand along the following advice from local bank and investment officials:

Local residents who have not yet exchanged their Victory Bonds for one of the new Canada Conversion Loan issues are urged to do so at once. (We are reminded the conversion offer ends September 15.)

(1) If you have any bonds in your possession, exchange them for the new Conversion Bonds right away.

(2) If you do not have any Victory Bonds but are looking for a good investment, ask your bank or dealer to buy some Victories for you and then convert them to the new issue.

(3) Consider the long-term 4½ per cent bonds as investments for your children, but remember there are three other shorter terms to choose from.

(4) The term "non-callable" does not mean you cannot sell your Conversion Bonds at any time. It simply means that you cannot be compelled to sell them until their maturity date.

During the war every community had a quota for each Victory Loan campaign. The Canada Conversion Loan quota is 100 per cent conversion of bonds still held.

Optimism – with preparedness

PRIME MINISTER Diefenbaker in the Commons outlined a plan for emergency government based on the principle of decentralization, to carry on in the event of atomic war. He would shortly approach provincial governments about the set-up, he said. Although details had not been worked out, the central federal authority would be based on a core of ministers, officials and military officers in Ottawa. As well as the central authority there would be regional organizations, corresponding where possible with provincial boundaries, made up of federal and provincial authorities. Zonal organizations would cover large metropolitan areas. . .

In contrast to this speculation on grim eventualities were encouraging statements on prospects of nuclear disarmament and peace in the Middle East, when Diefenbaker interrupted routine House business to declare that mankind may be entering "a new era for the achievement of world peace." It was based on word that Britain and the United States are ready to suspend nuclear tests for a one-year period, on certain conditions.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government would be glad to co-operate by providing facilities for control stations and inspection teams on Canadian soil. Canada had made clear in the past her willingness to open northern and Arctic regions for such inspection facilities.

Opposition leader Pearson visualized a lifting of the "shadow of fear", but cautioned it is only the first step toward international agreements, and Mr. Dienfenbaker expressed a profound hope that Russia now will indicate readiness to enter into serious negotiations with Britain and the U.S.

Viewpoints and perspectives

FARMERS who use the highways to transport hay and grain by tractor should always use the shoulders of the roadway to travel on. The Provincial Highway Safety Committee urges double precaution against farm vehicles becoming a danger to other highway traffic. And for the farmer with the wagon who travels after sundown, it is recommended that someone walk behind the rig with a light, so that there is no danger of accident. Tractors, too, should have rear lights at night.

AT ONE TIME, not so long ago, every village in eastern Canada had its fall fair. There are still a lot of village fairs, over 200 in Ontario alone this year, but, as with many earlier institutions, shrinking geography has made a big difference.

In the old horse and buggy days the local fair, no matter how small the community, was the big event of the year. No one thought of missing it and a whole day was needed to get there, see it, and get home again. Now with a car almost anyone in a day can take in one of the big regional exhibitions. So the big fairs have grown bigger and bigger, but the village fair in many cases has had a tough time to survive.

THE STORY of the growth of any area has been one of communications, first and foremost. Water and other services on a community basis have followed roads and bridges.

JOBLESS OUTLOOK. — Unless the economic climate changes sharply, unemployment problems may be more difficult next winter than they were last winter, The Financial Post reports.

Right now, employment is continuing at the general level predicted earlier this year.

The total with jobs is fractionally lower than a year ago, and the unemployment problem is not expected to be bothersome for the remainder of the summer season.

But over the winter, it will not be just a matter of total numbers unemployed.

Next winter, the danger is that a substantial proportion of the unemployed may not have had a job as much as a year. In such cases, their entitlement to Unemployment Insurance payments will not be renewed. Their savings are likely to have reached a pretty low level.

Total unemployment no higher, or even lower, than last year might still mean more hardship.

THE ACCIDENT TOLL continues to be a substantial one. A little more care should considerably reduce the total and it is to be hoped that motorists and pedestrians alike will take this fact actively to heart.

Pioneer lumber activities in Argenteuil; 1883 Louisa-Lachute timber slide project

In The Watchman in 1933 the following story was quoted from an issue half a century before. Relating to the industrial strides of this County now 75 years past, we find it equally interesting today — even though this timber slide project never materialized — and the outline is here reproduced for the interest of our readers:

JOHN NEWTON, while preparing wood for the Bobbin Factory of Lachute, met with an accident, being struck in the breast by a piece of scantling thrown from a circular saw. Had it struck him anywhere else, it might have killed him, and his death would have been a serious loss to the people of the back townships of Argenteuil. . .

Mr. Newton has just completed another mill-dam in the rear of the Township of Wentworth, in the new settlement known as New Island. The dam is built of cedar and stone, 15 feet high and 150 feet long. The people there turned out like brave men and helped to build the said dam without charge for their labor. Newton intends having a Saw and Grist Mill ready for work at that place in about a year from now. The men are so anxious to get a mill in the neighborhood that they are giving three or four days' work each without pay.

Newton's Saw Mill, at Lake Louisa has been running since last March, and is second to none in the County save the celebrated steam mill at Lachute. . . The cord wood and timber slide from this mill to Lachute is likely to be commenced before another year rolls around; and if the already partly-formed company does not go ahead, another company will take their place, as letters have already been received from parties outside the Dominion who say, if the thing is practicable, they will go into it at once — this is placed beyond a doubt, as a survey has been made sufficient to show that there is no engineering difficulty in the way. There is sufficient proof that 1,000 cords of wood can be sent down this slide in ten hours, if built three feet wide. The company can buy wood at Lake Louisa at $2 a cord less than it can be got in Lachute, as it is worth $2.50 to haul wood from this point to Lachute by team. As it is, farmers around the Lake are now obliged to pile up their wood and burn it before the land is fit for cropping. A company could put men in the bush at once, and if the slide was ready for use next spring, and sufficient wood on hand to keep it going for 30 days at 100 cords a day, it would pay the whole cost of construction in that time.

Newton intends having a buckwheat flour mill of his own invention in his mill at Lakefield this fall, as well as at the Morrison mill. The millers of Argenteuil may expect a challenge this fall for $100 for quality and quantity of gray buckwheat flour from J. Newton!

"I go a-fishing"

— By Lewis Milligan —

When Peter said, "I go fishing", he was disappointed and fed-up. His companions felt the same way and replied, "We also go with thee." They went out and fished all night and "caught nothing." But that was not the whole story.

Three weeks ago I was fed-up, along with most readers of the news about the negotiations for a summit conference, and I suddenly decided to go a-fishing alone. I fished all day for two of those weeks and caught nothing. That is not the whole truth either, for I did hook two small bass and a fairly large pickerel about this (————————) long. It was longer than that, of course, proportionately, but you get the idea.

Speaking of fish measurements always reminds me of a cartoon in Punch many years ago which depicted a man returning home along a country lane at midnight from an angler's dinner, at which the members compared notes on the sizes of fish caught in the past season. Meditating upon the fish stories he had heard, the mellow angler's attention was attracted to a scarecrow with its arms outspread at right angles. "Liar!" he exclaimed.

All fishermen are said to be liars, more or less. But on the fishing grounds or at the lodge where their catch is displayed in the evening, the dead fish lie there and tell the whole truth. The successful fisherman may be excused for a little dramatization of how he lured that big one to the bait, and how long and skillfully he wrestled with it before landing. And no fish story is worth the telling that does not include a thrilling account of the bigger one that got away.

Personally, I can testify to the extraordinary size of a fish that gets away. In the first place, it must be big or it would never get away. And no angler with any pride in his art would admit that a normal sized fish beat him to the draw. Moreover, how is he to know the exact size of the thing he has got on the end of his line if it does not leap out of the water? Most big fish are caught at depth and must be tired-out before bringing them to the surface. Admittedly there are occasions when, after playing adroitly for half an hour with a big one at the bottom, the tired angler may haul up the branch of a tree or an old boot.

But the true Waltonian, unlike the golfer, never or hardly ever gives way to profanity on such occasions. Even though at the end of a laborious day he returns empty-handed, he is never discouraged. He may casually remark that the fishing is "not as good as it used to be" in those waters, although in his heart he knows that it never was. But he is an incorrigible optimist and will go out early next morning armed with the latest tackle and every kind of live and dead bait in the firm belief that there are more and bigger fish in that lake than ever were caught — and catch nothing. He will return as cheerfully as he went out. A cheerful idiot.

Now Mr. Khrushchev, what was that you were saying about a summit some weeks ago?

For whom was McGill University named?

James McGill was a merchant and philanthropist of Montreal who died in 1813. He willed a large part of his estate to found and endow McGill University. Born in Glasgow, he attended Glasgow University in 1756, but does not appear to have taken a degree. Emigrating to the American colonies, he engaged in the fur trade and wintered in the Indian country as early as 1766. From about 1774 on he made his headquarters at Montreal. He represented a Montreal constituency in the Lower Canada Legislature and was appointed to the executive council in 1793.

What did the Ashburton-Webster Treaty settle?

Several outstanding disagreements, especially with relation to boundaries, were settled by the Ashburton-Webster Treaty, which was signed at Washington on August 9, 1842. In the negotiations, Britain was represented by Lord Ashburton while Daniel Webster represented the United States. The Maine - New Brunswick controversy was ended by giving the United States seven-twelfths of the disputed area and Canada five-twelfths. The boundry line was fixed also along the head of the Connecticut River, the north end of Lake Champlain, the Detroit River and at the head of Lake Superior.

Maude Abbott

Maude Elizabeth Seymour Abbott was one of the first women doctors in Canada and one of the relatively few Canadian doctors who have become known internationally. Born at St. Andrews East, Que., she was educated at Bishop's College and McGill University. From 1912 to 1923 she was a Fellow in Pathology at McGill, and thereafter a research professor on that university's medical faculty. She wrote a number of books, including several on congenital heart diseases, and a History of Medicine in the Province of Quebec which was published in 1931. She died at Montreal in 1940.

Who was founder and first president of the National Council of Women?

Lady Aberdeen, whose husband served as governor-general of Canada from 1893 to 1898, was instrumental in founding the National Council of Women and served as its first president. She also was active in organizing the Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada. Both Lord and Lady Aberdeen took a sincere and active interest in social welfare. The couple collaborated in writing We Twa, a volume of reminiscences which was published in 1925. Lady Aberdeen's journals are in the public archives at Ottawa.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Negro youths occupied all the seats in an Oklahoma City soda fountain until they shamed the manager out of his Jim Crow policy, and he agreed to serve them.

They did the same thing in Wichita, Kansas. The National Association for the Advancement for Colored People seems pleased about it. But how much are such victories worth?

You can't force people to be your friends. I doubt that any group of people can advance the cause of racial equality by making an unwilling soda jerk serve them strawberry sundaes.

Surely the battle for human brotherhood is won in the mind rather than at the soda counter.

Millions of southern Americans, and some Canadians too, had the white supremacy myth woven into their thoughts from childhood up.

Some of them outgrew it. Some — especially those with limited minds and a record of personal failure — found that if they could hate and blame Negroes (or Frenchmen or Englishmen) it took their minds off their own troubles.

The mass of race-hate merchants kept their feelings alive because they had been conditioned that way from the cradle onward, and there were numerous people of like mind around to strengthen their beliefs.

A head-on attack surely does not cause such people to change their minds. It only makes them mad, and probably deepens their hatred.

Wouldn't it be wiser to convert them by persuasion and example?

Such powerful agencies as movies, television and magazines have not done much to help, so far.

I would like to see a movie in which a white man marries a Negro girl, or a group of persons of mixed race go around together as friends — without making a crusade of it, but just as a matter of normal behavior.

The only time I have ever seen inter-racial friendships and love-affairs in the movies, they have been heavily charged with emotions and guilt feelings. Why not make a film — maybe set in Hawaii — which shows a number of people of varied races treating one another in a casual, friendly way?

Movie studios are in a position to make heroes and heroines. Why don't they build up a few glamorous movie stars of Negro ancestry, and give them sympathetic roles?

No cows on Main Street – no Court House

August 31, 1883 —

A fine cow owned by Mr. Jno. Hope was killed on the street crossing at the Court House. Caught by the cowcatcher of the westbound train, the animal was lifted bodily and hurled over the bridge into the river. . . .

For the interest of old-timers we culled the above item from the news of 75 years ago.

The Court House, it is recalled, was situated at the corner where the memorial park now presents a restful scene overlooking the river. Some older residents may remember when livestock grazed upon the greenery of Main Street — while cattle-guards on the railway tracks at level crossings are within comparatively recent memory.

The late Mr. Hope, town baker and confectioner, later Customs officer, was an early business leader still favorably remembered. His luckless cow met a hasty end. Today there are no cattle on Main Street, and the Court House stands removed from the busy thoroughfare.

Dance - Hay

The marriage of Shirley Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hay, of Lachute, to Frederick Robert Dance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin H. Dance, of Pointe Claire, took place on Saturday, August 30, at four o'clock in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lachute — the Rev. James Armour officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Wayne Riddell played the wedding music and the soloist, Miss Margaret Milne, sang The Lord's Prayer and "I'll Walk Beside You."

The floral decorations were pink and white gladioli.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white faille with embroidered appliqué around the portrait neckline and on the skirt. The long sleeves, ending in points over her hands, also had the appliqué trim. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a tiara made of the same appliqué as that used to trim the dress, and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses and stephanotis.

Miss Eleanor Hay, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore a waltz-length gown of Mardi Gras blue faille, fashioned on similar lines as the bride's gown. Her headdress was a wreath of matching petals and feathers, and she carried a bouquet of yellow carnations and white baby mums.

Miss Heather Graham and Miss Violet Steele, as bridesmaids, wore identical gowns and headdresses, and they carried bouquets of yellow and white Shasta daisies and baby mums.

Mr. David Dance acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. David Crandall and Mr. George Taylor.

The bride's mother wore a gown of Dior blue silk organza over taffeta, with matching shoes and feather hat and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Dance, mother of the groom, wore dusty rose embroidered silk organza over taffeta, with matching velvet hat and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

The reception was held at the Lachute Legion Hall, where the floral decorations were carried out in pink and white.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Dance left by motor for the Eastern States, the bride wearing a light blue suit, white feather hat, black accessories, and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Among the out-of-town guests were — Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Allely, of Lindsay, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gray, of Kingston, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Silk, Mr. and Mrs. R. Morrison, of Toronto. A number of friends also attended from Pointe Claire and Montreal.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

Preaching the Kingdom in Unity

"The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he will rule as king for ever and ever." While this inspired utterance was written about 1,900 years ago, it is in our time, since 1914, that Jehovah God has taken his "great power and begun ruling as king" by the one he has appointed, Christ Jesus. This means the long-prayed-for kingdom is established! (Matt. 6: 9, 10). And within this generation the King Christ Jesus will destroy all wickedness, visible and invisible, and thereafter "for ever and ever" surviving mankind will enjoy unending life and happiness on a paradise earth under the blessings of the Kingdom. It is this good news Jehovah's witnesses unitedly preach, by word of mouth and by printed page.

Two Bible study aids that will help you are the books, "Let God Be True" and "The Kingdom Is At Hand", the two may be had for only one dollar.

Write 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto, or ask any Jehovah's Witness whom you may happen to meet.

WHEN LIGHTNING STRIKES

REDDY HELPS YOU

Summer is a wonderful time, admittedly—but the storms it brings with it present some formidable problems to an electrical utility such as this Company.

We know from past experience that we receive our fair share of electrical storms.

When the electrical industry was in its infancy, and the uses of electricity somewhat limited, electrical storms did not have the serious consequences that they do today, with so many of the comforts of home dependent upon electricity, and hospitals and industry entirely dependent upon it.

This Company, like electrical utilities everywhere, takes extensive precautions to ensure the best possible service to its customers at all times. It does so with modern electrical transmission systems and extensive use of protective equipment designed to keep outages at a minimum.

So, this summer, when lightning strikes, remember, the Company's linemen, with service vehicles equipped with radio-telephones to facilitate prompt restoration of power, as well as the best electrical equipment available, are working to keep the electricity flowing to your home and place of business.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

United Front

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

No matter how many or how few children there are in a household, it is imperative that Father and Mother present a united front in dealing with childish problems as well as in disciplinary action. If Mother has established a time for the children to go to bed, Father, if left alone with them at bedtime, must make certain he carries out his wife's schedule.

Unexpected situations do arise where it is difficult to maintain this close working agreement. Grandmother arrives in the middle of the morning, bringing a large box of chocolates for her favorite grandson. Father smiles indulgently, with no thought of denying son the right to have a candy or two then and there. But Mother remembers the doctor's orders that Billy must not eat between meals. Therefore, their duty to their guest and their duty to their son collide.

If parents disagree on any phase of a child's upbringing, they should discuss the situation in private and reach a decision acceptable to both. Dr. Donald Soper, the great church leader, stresses unity in the home and when asked about juvenile delinquency he said that the great majority of delinquents are unhappy, bitter youngsters from broken homes. Far from supporting each other, Mother or Father has walked out and left the child feeling deserted at a critical time of life.

"We have made some blunders in bringing up our tribe," a mother confided to a friend. "But there's one principle my husband and I agreed on before our first child was born. We decided that no youngster of ours would play off one parent against the other."

Bringing up children certainly is not an easy job in this age or at any other time. If parents have not talked over their ideas of child guidance, and if they discuss their conflicts in front of their child, they make their task even more difficult. Children need loving, firm discipline. It is confusing to them if Mother vetoes an action which Father believes is permissible under special circumstances.

It will often simplify matters if parents keep in mind that they must think of their child's welfare not only today, but tomorrow as well. Little Susan has certainly got herself into a hot scrap with Mary and Jean. In the argument over her chum's doll, the doll was broken as Susan grabbed it. Susan should be made to realize that restitution must be made for a damaged plaything, and the happy way is to make up and be friends again.

Mother and Dad are also thinking of their long-range goal for Susan. They want her to grow into an adult who is responsible for properly she damages. They also hope she will get along happily with others. If both Mother and Dad are sincerely concerned for Susan, they will be able to agree on the method by which Susan will accept the consequences of her actions. One of the most important decisions Susan's parents will make on her behalf in this and other crises is to stand by each other.

Flowers brighten winter months

Dull winter days may be considerably brightened with flowering bulbs grown in pots if a little trouble and foresight are used, points out horticulturist D. H. Dabbs of the Experimental Farm, Scott, Sask.

Tulips, narcissus, hyacinths, grape hyacinths and crocus are easily forced for winter bloom indoors. The only requirements are a cool dark corner in the cellar or basement, a good friable soil mixture and the clay pots, bulbs and patience.

A good compost for pot culture may be prepared by mixing three parts of good garden loam, one part of coarse sand and one part of leaf mould or peat moss. Good drainage can be secured by placing a piece of broken pot over the drainage hole, followed by about an inch of coarse, open soil, with the prepared soil placed over this.

Store in Dark

The soil should come to within about a half inch of the top of the pot and the tips of most bulbs should protude slightly when the soil has been firmed around them. They should then be well watered and put away in a cool, dark location to make root growth. Tulip bulbs should be barely covered with soil.

With few exceptions, bulbs for indoor flowering will not produce satisfactory flowers if they do not have a long enough rooting period after potting, in cool, dark storage before bringing them into light and heat.

Watch Temperature

The Paperwhite Narcissus is one of the exceptions and its storage temperature should not fall below freezing.

The potted bulbs should not be kept too warm when brought into heat and light. A temperature of about 65 degrees F. is most suitable. The pot must contain well developed roots, and top growth must have commenced before the bulbs are ready for forcing.

Flower buds will often fail to develop properly if forcing is done too rapidly. The soil in the pots must be kept well moistened at all times while in cool storage and after they have been brought into the warm atmosphere.

2 Budget meals for September

Are you experiencing the annual after-holiday Budget Blues? If so, you'll welcome these two good but thrifty meal-in-a-dish recipes recently developed in Canada's Kitchen. Each recipe will provide eight generous servings. Serve either casserole with a salad made from plentiful summer vegetables and for dessert, how about a pie or pudding made from juicy fresh apples, blueberries, peaches or plums.

Scotch Hot Pot

1 Pound tomatoes (6 small), 2 apples, 1½ pounds skinless sausage, 6 medium potatoes (sliced), 1 cup sliced onions, 1 clove garlic, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup consommé or tomato juice.

Blanch, peel and slice tomatoes. Peel, quarter, core and slice apples. Cut sausages in two, lengthwise. In a large saucepan arrange ingredients in layers in the following order: potatoes, sausages, tomatoes, apples, onions, garlic; potatoes, sausages, tomatoes, apples, onions, potatoes. Add salt and pepper to the consommé or tomato juice and pour over layers. Cover and cook over low heat until potatoes are tender and sausages are cooked — 1 to 1¼ hours. Eight servings.

Oven Method:

Arrange layers of ingredients in a lightly greased 12-cup casserole in the same order as above. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) until potatoes are tender and sausages are cooked, 1¼ to 1½ hours. Eight servings.

Ragout Alsacien

1½ Pounds boneless stewing lamb or pork, 6 medium potatoes (sliced), 3 cups sliced onions (about 4 large), 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon thyme or marjoram, 1 cup consommé.

Trim most of fat from meat, then cut into 1-inch pieces. Mix together the salt, peper and thyme or marjoram. In a lightly greased 12-cup casserole arrange all the potatoes, meat, and the onions, sprinkling each layer with a third of the seasoning mixture. Slowly pour in the consommé. Cover and bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) for 1½ hours. Uncover and continue baking until meat is tender, about 30 minutes: Eight servings.

Real corny!

The variety of vegetables available at this time of the year provides the homemaker with a gold mine of nutrition and flavor combinations. For example, fresh corn makes an interesting addition to the menu in the form of Corn Fritters. This fritter delicacy in the puffy brown jacket is at home with the meat course when served plain, or if you prefer it may be topped with syrup. At this time of the year these light and tender fritters may be made with fresh corn but at other times of the year we suggest they be made with cooked frozen corn or canned corn kernels. This recipe also calls for chopped chives or parsley to spark the flavor interest.

Corn Fritters

(Yield — 10 to 12 fritters)

1½ Cups cooked corn kernels, 1 cup once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 1 cup plus 3 tablespoons once-sifted pastry flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons chopped chives or parsley.

Cut sufficient corn from cooked cobs to yield the required 1½ cups corn kernels (or use cooked frozen corn or drained canned kernel corn). Measure all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder and salt into a sifter.

Beat eggs well; stir in milk, prepared corn kernels and chives or parsley. Sift in dry ingredients and mix until batter is smooth. Cook spoonfuls of batter in deep fat heated to 375° (a cube of bread should brown in about 60 seconds), turning once. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve piping hot with ham, chicken or other suitable meat or with syrup.

Women are planning to enter the international field with a vengence, judging by reports from the Canadian Federation of University Women.

The group held its annual meeting recently, and suggested establishing an international school to study world cultures.

The aim is to produce a science of international relations. It would involve examination of national cultures. The group plans to work through the United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization.

Incidentally, the university women have increased membership by 1,600 to 9,000, and now have 95 clubs.

Teachers' Thoughts

Another women's group that has been making news is the Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario.

Ruby McLean of Leamington, the president, told teachers they must not be afraid to speak up about education, and they must not be overawed by the "experts".

"While we do an appalling amount of talking among ourselves, we seem to be afraid to go into the cruel, cold world to tell what we know about education.

"The greatest need is for clearer thinking — there is too much lazy thinking behind current attacks on education because the only alternative the critics seem to provide is to go back to methods current 25 to 50 years ago," she said.

Miss McLean urged women teachers to offer leadership in education, and to examine philosophy and policy.

Apples Again

Apples are coming on the market again, and while they may be a little sour yet for eating raw, in pies and applesauce they are really good.

These early apples, incidentally, are the best for storage, and applesauce made from them can be packed in cartons and frozen.

Canned applesauce can also be made, by packing it in hot glass sealers or cans, and plunging in boiling water for 15 minutes.

Honey is invading the vegetable seasoning field. It is being used in salad dressing, sauces and fruit drinks, and candies. Honey also makes a perfect glaze on ham, and adds a sweet finishing touch to southern-fried chicken.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Have you ever thought of utilizing a trip to get acquainted with your neighbors? This may strike you as a novel idea, but thousands of Canadians take friendship field trips every year.

When I use the word "neighbors", I don't mean your next-door neighbors, but rather those who live in other towns, cities and provinces. Neighborliness doesn't imply contact only with those people in your immediate proximity, but with those who, though far removed by distance, are closely akin to you in interests and hobbies. Webster has a simple definition for "neighborliness". He defines it as "friendliness", and this is what I mean, too.

When I travel, I am as interested in the people in a new community as I am in the sights. A highlight of many of my trips is exchanging recipes with housewives from Vancouver to Newfoundland. Fishermen the country over search out local anglers and exchange pointers on flies, rods and reels and regale one another with tales of the "one that got away."

An elderly lady of my acquaintance is an enthusiastic amateur violinist. She always takes her violin along on trips. When she arrives in a community, she looks up the local instrumentalists and joins them in long, pleasant evenings of chamber music. I know another woman who collects salt and pepper shakers from all over the country. While at home she corresponds with collectors in other provinces. When she travels, she looks them up and thus makes new friends and neighbors away from home.

Travelling brings home the fact that your neighbors aren't restricted to the people who live next door. Your neighbors in interest may be across the continent.

The driver who speeds along at 85 is literally killing time.

Another gesture for community progress

Presentation of a cheque from the Lions Club to the Regional Hospital Fund, representing proceeds from the Calcutta Sweepstakes invitation tournament held this summer at Lachute Golf Club. At right, Lions President Phil Tremblay hands the donation to Roger Regimbal (representing Gilbert E. Ayers, Hospital president). Lions produce a club quartet and cheque for hospital fund

Starting the new Lions Club year with several innovations, the 1958-59 president, Phil Tremblay, introduced his new executive and key committeemen at an enthusiastic supper meeting last week. With over 40 in attendance at the Legion Hall, the meeting was devoted strictly to club affairs, the only diversion being a brief song session, featuring another new addition in the form of a club quartet — Royal and Mozart Carrière, Roger Regimbal and Cleighton Robinson.

A report was given by Secretary Keith Clarke, and an outline of the year's financial budget by Treasurer Donald M. Hay. The Activities budget includes estimates for outlays to the Retarded Children's School (transportation); Crippled Children; Educational Loans; Sight Conservation and Blind; Health and Welfare; Christmas Party; Ice Rinks; Public Speaking, and Community Concerts — to a total of $2,250.

Report was given on a mid-summer venture for the Regional Hospital Fund — the operation of a pari-mutuel for the Calcutta Sweepstakes golf tournament here, by which proceeds of almost $500 were earned and turned over to the Hospital's financial committee.

It was approved that an increase be adopted in annual fees, and it was announced that meetings would commence at 6.30 p.m. without fail. Various committees were announced by President Phil Tremblay, and the respective chairmen were called upon to outline their plans and functions. Notable among these were:

Horace Lamarche, in charge of "Major Projects".

Léopold Carrière, chairman on "Fund Raising".

Jos. Dumais, "Membership" (objective, at least 10 new enrolments).

Bill Butterfield, "Attendance" (with a target of 85% average).

Dick Pearson, "Program" committee; Gerald Heath, assistant (with a ladies' night featured early in the club calendar).

Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, "Information". . . The latter, with a rich experience and observation during his year just completed as District Governor, will keep the membership informed on developments at the Local, District and International levels, and should contribute much to the invigoration of the local group.

Lion Gabriel Valois came up with his first Bulletin of the season, and produced a very creditable edition. This semi-monthly brochure is a matter of pride with the local Lions, having frequently drawn favorable comment from other groups and from senior club levels.

New road signs advertising the club and its meetings were on view, and the replacement of the old disfigured signs was left to Lions Gabriel Downing and Rod Carreau.

Accident near Pte.-au-Chene

Hawkesbury — A 53-year-old plumbing contractor is undergoing emergency treatment in Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, for injuries received in an auto accident which occurred last Sunday morning.

Eugene Labelle was transferred from Notre Dame Hospital, Hawkesbury, on Sunday at noon for an emergency operation for a severe skull fracture. The man was injured when his late-model car went out of control on No. 8 Highway on a trip home from his cottage at Pointe-au-Chene. He was alone in the car when it crashed into a roadside ditch.

Dr. Charles E. Lafrance treated the man and ordered his transfer to Montreal.

Hospital project reported almost 'ready to go'

Roger Regimbal, member of the Regional Hospital Fund executive, reported last week on the progress of this long-mooted project.

Plans for the structure, on a site south of the Brownsburg Road (the Allan Hay farm), have been approved and are now in the architect's hands for the purpose of preparing the specifications. When these are ready, tenders will be called and the building contract awarded.

The government grant has been approved and other funds are available to start, with cash donations and pledges being honored up to full expectations. There is little doubt that within six months the project will be underway.

The appeal to the English-speaking population will be issued at an opportune time, and although the details take time to complete, there is every incentive to maintain high interest in the undertaking.

Mr. Regimbal was speaking on behalf of Gilbert E. Ayers, the president, on accepting a cheque donated by the Lions Club last week.

A bumper crop

Seventy-nine tomatoes on one plant is really a bumper crop, especially when these tomatoes are large in size — reports the current issue of C-I-L Contact.

John Duncan, foreman in the Ammunition plant at Brownsburg, can well be proud of this crop. The tomatoes are the Bonnie Best variety and his average plant is approximately five feet in height.

John attributes his success in his gardening hobby to "C-I-L fertilizer, patience and a reasonable amount of care."

Record enrolment at High School makes building plans imperative

Lachute High School opened last Wednesday with a record enrolment of 722. The increase of over 58 more than the initial enrolment of last year, has crowded the facilities to the utmost. Anticipating some of this increase, the School Board has made every effort to have facilities available. To increase the accommodations, two new classrooms were opened in the basement; in addition to these, the 23 regular classroms and special rooms are all in use. It was necessary to increase the staff by three more teachers, which makes a total of 32. There are now three classes each of Grades 1, 5 and 7, and two each of the remainder. During the summer the Board had purchased 40 new desks, but they have found that these are inadequate and 15 more are now on order. Extra textbooks and supplies have also been ordered and should be here shortly. Within a minimum period, pupils will be settled into their regular routine.

Although the enrolment has not yet been broken down into districts, the following is a close approximation. From the three main areas comprising the Lachute School District there are: Lachute Town, 310; Parish of St. Jerusalem, 180; and Chatham, 110. From the outside areas: St. Andrews East has 60 and Gore 20. Of the remainder some are Roman Catholic, some are from various other areas in the Lachute School District, while a very few are from outside areas.

The School Board is now in the process of purchasing land in the vicinity of the existing school, on which to build a new primary school and relieve the congestion in the present building. Considerable time is required, however, for the architect to draw plans, have them checked, and for the Board to arrange the necessary financing. These matters are being hastened so that a contract may be given and the building commenced in the spring. In the meantime the board is making only a minimum of repairs to the oldest section.

Mr. Maillete, a building engineer for the Department of Education, inspected the present building in May, and the following report was given by the department: "Mr. Maillette's recommendation is that your Board purchase a suitable piece of ground on which to erect a school to be built on a plan of this Department. When the new school has been completed the oldest section of the High School can be demolished and six classrooms added to the most recent extension."

The Lachute School Board is endeavoring to accomplish these ends as quickly as possible.

$18,300 objective in Charities appeal

Objective for the Lachute Federation of Charities drive — fourth annual appeal of this group charity enterprise — has been set at $18,300. The campaign will be launched October 14-21 next, under the chairmanship of Dr. Chas. Roy, local dentist.

To establish this total, the directors accepted a budget for eight affiliated organizations, as prepared by Romeo Legault, budget chairman. These include:

Marguerite Bourgeois workshop, Ayersville, $2,000; l'Ouvroir Ste. Elizabeth (workshop), Lachute, $2,000; Diocesan Social Service, $5,000; C.N.I.B., $2,300; Ayersville Loisirs (recreation) $1,800; St. Julien Loisirs, $1,500; Ste. Anastasie Loisirs, $1,500; Regional Hospital Fund, $500. . . These figures total $16,600, an additional 10 per cent being required for administration and publicity, bringing the grand total to $18,260.

The directors' meeting to arrive at this budget was chaired by Jean-Paul Roy, president of the Federation. Romeo Legault, in presenting the needs of the affiliated groups, stated emphatically these were the absolute minimum of their estimates. The objective remains substantially the same as in the past two years, and the directors are confident the public will give their usual adequate support.

Anti-polio clinic free for adults, at Brownsburg

On Wednesday, September 17, an anti-polio vaccination clinic for Brownsburg area adults will be held at the Brownsburg Legion Hall. Vaccinations will be given from 2 to 3.30 in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening, free of charge.

It is hoped that as many adults as possible will take advantage of this protection; especially those in the 20 to 40 age groups are urged to attend. A second clinic will be held on Wednesday, October 15, in order to give the second "shot".

The vaccine is made available free of charge by the Provincial Department of Health, in co-operation with the Quebec Chapter of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, which is sponsored by the Canadian Legion Quebec Command.

Local chairman of this clinic is R. R. Summers, of the Brownsburg Legion.

Lumber company formed here

Quebec Official Gazette of August 30 announces the granting of letters patent to a company comprising Roland Legault and Chevigny Frenette, two Lachute business men, and Miss Roberte Smith, secretary, of Montreal, for the following purposes:

To promote wood-cutting and forest operations, to own sawmills, planing and pulp mills and sell lumber, under the name of Polex Lumber Company Limited, with a capital of $50,000 divided into 500 shares of $100 each.

Headquarters of the company will be situated in Lachute.

Young motorists injured in mishap during rainstorm

Gerard Lacoste, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Lacoste, Bedard Blvd., was treated in the Sacred Heart Hospital at Cartierville, following an accident at 8.45 p.m. Saturday on Route 31 between Lachute and St. Andrews East.

Young Lacoste was driving a 1953 sedan, which was demolished. The victim suffered a broken collar bone and minor injuries, while Gilles Lepage, 19, of Brownsburg, was released after having 25 stitches for injuries to his face and head.

The accident occurred on a curve, when Lacoste met another car and was apparently blinded by the approaching lights, at the height of a heavy rainstorm. He lost control, and the car swerved into a ditch and struck a large tree.

* * *

The following evening, Sunday, 12 persons were treated for minor injuries following a two-car collision on La Branche, near St. Philippe. A 1955-model sedan, owned and driven by René Vadnais, 36, of Plaisance, and a 1957 sedan owned and driven by Azaria Meunier, of Rouville, Que., met on a curve, causing approximately $1,850 damage. None of the occupants was seriously injured although all were treated in hospital.

Traffic Officer Ronald Massie investigated both accidents.

N.Y. youth missing from Christieville

Montreal — Police are continuing their hunt for a 17-year-old boy who disappeared from a rented Laurentian cottage around July 24, while his mother made an urgent appeal for his return.

Dale Thomas Hall disappeared from the cottage at Christieville, near Morin Heights, while on vacation with his mother from New York. He is five feet eight inches tall, has blue eyes and brown hair, medium stature, and weighs 135 pounds.

His mother said she wanted him to know he had passed two entry tests for the RCAF. She said this had been one of his ambitions. He was also needed in New York to testify in a lawsuit resulting from injuries he had received in an institution, she said.

Residents request utility services for Brownsburg Road and River View

The mayor and all councillors were on hand for the regular town session, and the small volume of business was expeditiously dealt with — Germain Filion again being assigned to the secretarial duties pending the appointment of a new incumbent.

In connection with this appointment Ald. Gerard Lefebvre advised the Council that notification of the vacancy had been sent to the Province of Quebec Corporation of Engineers, the Engineering Institute and the Polytechnical School, with the idea of seeking applicants for a town engineer and registrar.

A reply from British American Oil Company on the suggested removal of their tanks, stated there was no provision in the company's immediate plans for such removal, and the request was reiterated for permission to raise the present tanks. The Council gave authorization accordingly.

A request from residents in the new McGibbon subdivision, that the town take over such roads as are now open to traffic in this development, was approved by the Council.

A signed petition from a group of Brownsburg Road proprietors asked the Council to take over their sewer system. This request met a tentative rebuff. "It is not practicable," said Mayor Carrière, "since the sewer is installed on private lands." However, if agreeable to the proprietors, and providing there were sufficient manholes, the town would attend to cleaning of the main.

Another letter was read by the mayor in which the Corporation of Ayersville asked whether the $2,500 annual agreement between Lachute and Ayersville, for fire protection of the latter municipality, had been approved by the Department of Municipal Affairs. The mayor stated he was not aware such a contract had to be approved, but it would be attended to nevertheless.

Chas. Emile Dorris, the town's special investigator, wrote concerning the $523.01 claim by J. O. Desjardins for flood damage to merchandise in his basement, during July. The report stated there had been considerable damage, but Mr. Dorris could arrive at no accurate estimate. He had suggested half the amount of the claim, but the applicant had flatly refused, threatening to take proceedings if the loss was not made good. . . It was decided to consult the town's legal advisor, Fernand Legault, Q.C.

Building permits were granted to L. J. Dumais, for construction of a service station and office on Main Street West, also to Emile Raymond and Albert Landry.

Mayor Carrière reported on a demonstration of fire extinguishers witnessed by himself and Chief F. Trépanier. The extinguishers were far superior to those in present use. The matter was held for further consideration.

Vouchers amounting to $11,463.76 were approved for payment.

In connection with building a sidewalk for Brownsburg Road residents, Mayor Carrière had been in conversation with Mrs. Wilson, who, he stated, was ready to co-operate with the Council but objected to its present construction as she did not see the immediate need. Ald. Lauréat Laurin observed that residents were now obliged to walk on the road. Since this sidewalk was to serve, among others, the occupants of the new Bertrand apartment building, Ald. René Belanger suggested that it be built in front of this structure only, on condition that the owner accept responsibility for it until next year in the case of damage by frost. . . To close this question Ald. Gerard Lefebvre suggested that the request be tabled for more detailed study.

Ayersville makes no headway in plea for further safeguard at Simon's Crossing

At the Ayersville Council last week, correspondence was read following requests for added safeguards at Simon's Crossing on the C.P.R. The letters were from J. O. Latour, M.P., and the Federal Department of Transport, indicating that it was considered unnecessary to act on the Council's request since there had been no fatal accidents reported at this level crossing.

According to Councillor Doug Simon (who has apparently resumed his seat after recent dissension on a Council issue), there is rarely a week passes that there is not an accident at this crossing. "These are not all fatal, of course, but they are sufficient that we should take notice to safeguard the lives of motorists," he said. The secretary was asked, as a further step in the crusade, to confer with the provincial police and draw up a file on all accidents at this spot in recent years.

Many more building permits were granted, for private and business construction and repairs.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. Marchesseault, of the legal firm at St. Jerome, recommending that the share of costs in the collector sewer between Lachute and Ayersville should be based on population served by the said sewer, rather than on the length of installation in the respective municipalities. The matter has been in litigation for several years now — Lachute having apportioned the cost on length, while Ayersville pressed for a basis of properties served. The legal advisor, however, suggested further consultation with a civil engineer.

There was discussion on the committee dealing with parks and playgrounds — as to whether this should be a separate department or combined with the civic and receptions committee; it was voted to add these functions to the already established committee.

Mayor Maurice Champagne presided, and a small bill of expenses for the month, totalling $220.44, was passed for payment.

Purchase New Truck

At a special meeting Monday evening, chaired by Councillor Doug Simon, the Council considered tenders for a new town truck to serve general purposes and for winter road clearing in the coming season. After due study it was voted to purchase a 5-ton 1958 International from the local dealer, Ayersville Motor Truck.

Five tenders were received — the bidders being required to submit offers for 4-ton and 5-ton vehicles, with trade-in of a Dodge 1954 presently owned by the municipality. The offers were as follows:

Lacasse Automobiles Ltd. — Chevrolet 4-ton, $4,500; 5-ton, $5,133.

Pollock & Graves — Mercury 4-ton, $4,400; 5-ton, $5,250.

C & L Garage — Dodge 4-ton, $5,021.30; 5-ton, $6,056.

Deacon Motor Sales Ltd. — Ford 4-ton, $4,400; 5-ton, $5,000.

Ayersville Motor Truck — International $3½-ton, $4,500; 5-ton, $5,540.

Mayor Maurice Champagne and Councillor Durocher were absent from the meeting.

Legion held teen-age corn roast

A happy group of teen-agers are pictured here at the Legion 70 corn roast, held in the yard of the Memorial Hall, Foundry Street, preceding the regular juvenile dance last Friday evening. Caldrons are suspended from a steel tripod over the fire, which is set in a circle of cement blocks on a bed of sand. Presiding at this outdoor kitchen are three adept Legionnaires (right to left) President R. O. (Dick) MacLean, Jack MacKimmie and George Kirby.

Fire and Police reports are highlights at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — Once again, one of the highlights of the Council meeting turned out to be the police report. At the September 2 session, Constable Richard Gagnon's account of his duties left no doubt that motorists were to continue to be aware of his presence in town. A total of 20 speeders were fined during the month of August, along with three red light and four parking zone violators. A number of other motorists received warnings for exceeding the speed limit — and are further warned that one caution should suffice, since individual citizens as well as all Council members are becoming increasingly interested in observance of the speed limit on all streets within the town boundaries. For the benefit of those who maintain that they are confused by the "odd" location of signs stipulating various speed limits, the placement of signs is being standardized and all signs will indicate that the speed limit is 30 m.p.h.

Constable Gagnon reported also that a number of radio aerials had been broken off automobiles by vandals. He warned that the person or persons found breaking one will pay for all those previously damaged.

In connection with police duties in general in Brownsburg, Secretary Vincent Charboneau opened five sealed applications for the position of Chief of Police. Varied qualifications and backgrounds of the five applicants provided Council with a problem of selection, which required further deliberation, so the tenders were tabled for study. The offical decision will be handed down at the October meeting.

Fire Chief A. Robbins' report on the fire at St. Philippe, August 27, also proved to be a popular topic for discussion. Three telephone calls from citizens of St. Philippe were required to finally bring the Brownsburg firefighting crew to the blaze. It seems that on occasions in the past, the Brownsburg Fire Department has had difficulty collecting fees for services rendered to other municipalities. While a cursory examination of this reasoning may fail to show justification for thinking twice about going to a fire in a neighboring village a more thorough knowledge of the facts provides vindication. The residents of Brownsburg have purchased approximately $25,000 worth of firefighting equipment for their protection. If some of this equipment is being used at a fire outside town, Brownsburg citizens are without some of the protection they have paid for. The Councillors were unanimous, however, in believing they should help neighbors who are in trouble. As a result, Chief Robbins has the O.K. to use his own discretion when other municipalities ask for assistance. Provision is being made to ensure that Brownsburg's stand-by unit is ready to go, in town, should the occasion demand it. Chief Robbins suggested that if small communities without fire departments could purchase a 250-gallon-a-minute portable pump and provide a source of water (even a shallow creek), firefighting would be simplified and certainly more productive. The final item on Chief Robbins' report was a reminder to residents that members of his department are presently cleaning all chimneys in town.

Incidentally, for those who are desirous of knowing, the fire siren code is as follows:

1 Long blast (curfew excepted) — fire out of town.

2 Short blasts — east side of West River.

3 Short blasts — west side of West River.

Council passed a notice of motion to the effect that, at the next meeting a vote would be taken to determine whether a three-year term for the mayor and councillors would be adopted. In the event that this by-law is passed, a general election for all seats will be required next spring.

Monthly vouchers amounting to $1,602.42 were approved for payment, along with an additional $334.42 to be paid to the Social Welfare organization. This brings the year's total to $2,022.18 as the amount paid out in helping those in dire need of hospitalization, etc.

On the more practical side, Council has decided to try a sample of a new sidewalk resurfacing material, in an effort to rid the sidewalks of the many holes and crevices produced by the application of calcium during the winter. Also approved was the purchase of signs to be mounted on the town building, indicating municipal offices, etc.

One of the Council's final acts before adjourning was to accept 1st Avenue N.W. (Bank St. North) as fulfilling all necessary requirements to be town-owned.

4-H Achievement Day and School Fair held

The Lachute 4-H Calf Club Achievement Day and School Fair was held Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds. Despite heavy rain, the day was a success, with many of the parents and visitors present to watch the proceedings.

Thirty-one calves were shown and, although somewhat fewer than last year, the quality was excellent. Judges for the day were Oakley McRae for the Holsteins and Robert Ness, for the Ayrshires; both judges come from Howick. They did an excellent job of judging as the calves were very difficult to place.

A. D. McGibbon & Sons gave four cow halters to the first and second placing in the two-year-old Holstein and Ayrshire heifers. The winners in the two-year-old Holsteins were Judy Hadley and Donald Maidens; for the two-year-old Ayrshires, Kenneth Rodger and Gerald Dawson.

In the winners of trophies, the Bank of Montreal Trophy was presented by Donald M. Hay to Douglas MacKenzie for the Grand Champion Junior Calf. The Walker McArthur Rose Bowl for the Champion Herd was presented by Oakley McRae to Donald Maidens. The Alex Bothwell Memorial Trophy for Junior Showmanship was won by David Bradley, and was presented on behalf of Mrs. Bothwell by Erskine Rodger, president of the Lachute Spring Fair. The Alex Bothwell Memorial Trophy for Senior Showmanship was won by Kenneth Rodger and presented by Robert Ness. The Laurentian Ayrshire Breeders' Club and the Lachute Holstein Club presented a cheque of $5 to each club member showing these respective breeds.

At the close of the day Ross Oswald, the Club Leader, thanked the judges for their excellent job. He also thanked the Argenteuil Agricultural Society for use of the grounds and also the donors of trophies for their interest in 4-H club work. He complimented Donald Parker and Davis MacVicar for winning the Provincial Judging Competion, and also Stewart Robertson for winning the CNE Scholarship.

Suggests troops fight forest fires

A suggestion that troops be used for forest fire fighting, gets approval from The Financial Post, which says: Fighting forest fires would be a lot more useful than the endless drill and mock exercises that take up much of the peacetime warrior's time. He would be grappling with a real enemy of the nation and doing a socially valuable job.

Certainly the idea is a sound one; and there may be other non-military jobs the services could tackle with benefit to themselves and the community.

Water system to be shut off

Effective this Sunday, September 14, Town Foreman Jos. Senecal advises that the water supply for Lachute, and all sections served by Lachute Town, will be shut off from midnight until 6 a.m. for the duration of the week.

Mr. Senecal states the action is necessary to permit cleaning of the water mains, a customary procedure at this time every year.

OUTDATED

A Montreal couple who own one of those ultra-modern homes, Reader's Digest says, are wondering whether or not their teen-age daughter really approves. She'd just come back from visiting some new neighbors, and her mother asked, idly, what their house was like inside.

"Oh, it's very nice and all that," said the girl, "But it's frightfully old-fashioned. Why, some of their furniture was positively comfortable!"

Thoughts on labor, youth's foibles and closing of lands to trespassers

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

At Sunnyacres itself, all is calm. In the evenings now we are glad to sit before the blazing fire. Peter, the cat, prostrates himself on a rug before it, something of a fire-worshipper in his attitude. When it becomes too hot, he shifts to my lap, and snores blissfully. Often in the morning, he is in exactly the same spot where we left him the night before. The master of the house affects to be dismayed by this reversal of the usual feline habits.

It is true that Peter has hardly spent five nights out in his eight years, but from kittenhood he has been accustomed to retire to bed about nine, and he thinks all cats do that. Come to think of it, there's an argument for the environment vs heredity people, but I am not sure just what it proves. Peter stays in, but if he ever had an offspring, its instinct would still be to be out at night.

The garden, shamefully neglected because of illness, is just now getting to its best. The last phlox bush put out its blossoms only yesterday, the golden glow is bright against the green of the trees, the marigolds are fluffy balls of orange. In the front, the pansies bloom faithfully, and the crysanthemums have large buds. At the foot of the front lawn, Betty is trying to resuscitate an ancient brook. So far, her efforts are merely painfully reminiscent of the Seaway of suburbia. Peter watches these operations, his eyes bulging with disbelief. Cats detest anything out of routine.

Margaret Cook, with strength renewed, looks for blackberries with which to make jelly. So far, we have about 50 ounces. There is a good crop this year. The high bushes are beautiful and arresting (no pun intended), but the lowly little black ones close to the ground make the best jelly. Seems to me there is a wonderful chance to tell a fable or point a moral in that, but you may make up your own. The head of the house is just entering the blissful season of mushrooms. Whenever he is missing for some time, and I begin to think in terms of strokes, heart attacks, broken ankles — he appears with a basket full of these peculiar growths. The Almighty must have been in a whimsical mood when He turned His attention to the fungi. From now until snow-fly, I shall be a fungi-widow. Oh well, it might be wine or women. ("Too expensive", comments the mushroom hunter.)

Along with so many other households, ours is concerned with shopping for the young things who are about to set out on their own. Some are going to college, some to work, others to hospitals for training; and, of course, many will become that efficient creature, a secretary. Now is the time of year when all sentimental parents will talk wistfully of the end of childhood, and how empty is the little bedroom. The unsentimental will tuck their offspring into his or her appointed place and then go home and offer up a prayer of thanksgiving. They will go happily to bed, without worrying if the occupant of the little bedrooms is in bed or not. For the sentimental, let us recommend these other blessings — no dirty dishes in the living-room, mute reminders of the incessant snacking; no raucous sounds on the radio; no bewildering changes of mind about the opposite sex, food, religion, clothes, books — in fact, anything. We know one harried Mother and Sister who gathered their sense of humor about them, and made a secret list of all the things about which the other Sister said, "I just hate that." Adolescence is a trying time, both for the youth and for its friends. . . Our little adolescent is beginning to look suspicious, so adieu for now.

Labor Day — dull and cool. We can hear on the road the sound of the wheels fleeing the mountains, and we gurgle happily. From now until snow-fly, the Cooks will be one of the few "foreign" families in these hills. We can roam the hills without meeting anyone except the occasional hunter. Most of these we know and stop to have an extended chat. The ones who are strangers are just as willing as we are to pass by hurriedly; they probably think they are trespassing on our land, and quite often they are. On our part, we are sometimes on a neighbor's territory and are anxious to get away. More and more land is being posted, as the lakes become ringed with cottages. We have never put up trespassing signs, feeling they are often just a challenge, and that, anyway, there is enough outdoors for everybody without being mean about it. But if the countryside becomes more populated, we may be forced to get severe ourselves. There is always some careless, selfish person willing and able to spoil things for others.

A case in point is the recent closing of the only beach on Long Lake. The daughter of the house reports that such was the conduct of some cottagers, that she is not surprised at the eviction. Littering the sand with bottles, spent cigarettes, paper and bottle caps, is bad enough, but the filthy habit of some people of using a public beach as a large bathtub is horrible, not to mention other more disgusting habits of the young male. Manners may not make a man, but they do make him less objectionable.

We suppose we should salute Labor on this day, even though the holiday will be long past when this appears in print. We do salute labor, but not necessarily the capitalization. All money is the result of someone's labor, if you must reduce labor to monetary terms. But the Labor Unions have succeeded so well in their objectives that they are now merely tilting at windmills. They have won higher wages and shorter hours, and now nothing remains but to drive cars and watch TV. Everybody, including Labor, needs to re-assess his values.

With the end of summer came a flurry of social affairs in our small community. The people of Long Lake had a regatta and a corn boil, while the members of the Women's Institute held a Military Whist. We attended the latter, and were amused and relieved to find ourselves playing. Generally, we are one of the feverish ones behind the scenes. This was a successful effort, and everybody seemed to be having a good time. One of the many prizes went to the woman with the most grandchildren, and we were surprised and pleased to know that Canon and Mrs. Baugh have 15 of these little blessings. . . Remember the famous Baby Race of the Miller Will in Toronto?

Before we forget, some more about the crows mentioned in our last article. They were "crow-napped" as babies by Amos' grandson and a pal. Had they realized the attention necessary to rear baby birds, maybe they would not have shinnied up that tree. The birds had first to be fed by eye-dropper, later by teaspoon. The mash that is given to hens proved acceptable to the crow stomach, but feedings were every few hours, and everybody was pressed into service. Even the lady of the manor took a hand. But, so far as the crows were concerned, the grandson was Crow Papa. Even yet, they fly to him on sight. When we last enquired, three crows were still about the farmyard, one had joined his wild brethren. We wonder if they will stay the winter.

Lachute to enter team in Que.-Ont. hockey league

Resolved to keep the spark of hockey aglow despite the lack of a local arena, a handful of Lachute players, with a few from Brownsburg, formed a team here last year to represent Lachute in the Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes league. The team was unsponsored, so the players themselves had to meet all expenses.

This coming season, however, headed by Paul Desjardins, the young bloods have decided to link up with the Quebec-Ontario League — of which Ronald Hebert, of Ayersville, is president and Gaetan Malaket, of Lachute, secretary. The league comprises teams also from Brownsburg, Hawkesbury, Rigaud, Vankleek Hill and St. Placide — a total of four from Quebec and two from Ontario.

An executive meeting will be held next week, when more information will be available for sports fans.

Tickets for a drawing are now on sale to raise funds, and any wishing to give financial support may profit by this effort and perhaps win a worthwhile return.

Gymnast trio scores again at CNE International meet

At the Canadian National Exhibition's international gymnastics, held September 4, 5 and 6, the three local representatives, young Reg Stansfield, Ronnie Cairns and Garry Cruise, took an active part and gave outstanding evidence of their ability. The competition was a team championship, with two females and two males on each team. Reg and Ronnie represented the two men from the Province of Quebec but unfortunately one of the ladies, Marie Larsen, from Montreal, the Canadian Junior Champion, sprained her knee and was unable to continue. However, this team still came second on the outstanding performance of the two Lachute boys. Stansfield was the all-round top gymnast; he came first in five events out of seven and placed second in the other two. Cairns was third all round, and was highly encouraged to beat the gymnast who won over him at Vancouver by such a close margin. Ronnie's all-round mark was 91.6, compared to the other entrant's 88.4 (W. Sandy, Toronto). Stansfield's all-round mark was 99.6 — a very high record.

During this trip to Toronto a gymnastics clinic was held, with some of the most outstanding coaches from Europe and the U.S.A. attending. Also present were officials from a number of Universities with an eye to gymnasts enrolling in their colleges, especially in Michigan State University, Pennsylvania State University, and the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. These were all interested in giving the two local boys scholarships.

Hopes for TV Appearance

On Tuesday, September 16, an Olympic Gymnastics meet will be held and televised in Montreal. Preliminaries will be staged on Saturday, 13th, to select the first three performers in each event, who will then compete again to decide the final winners.

The meet will be televised over Channel 2, Montreal, commencing at 5 o'clock, and high hopes are held that Stansfield and Cairns will be among the first three.

Welcome and Dance

A welcome home and presentation dance in honor of the three gymnasts, Stansfield, Cairns and Cruise, for their achievement at the Dominion Championship contest will be held in the Masonic Hall on Wednesday, October 1, sponsored by the newly-formed Lachute High School Graduates' Association. Tickets will be on sale shortly, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance to show appreciation to the trio and their untiring coach, Mr. Arne Peterson, who have brought honor not only to themselves but to this town and district.

Who Said Flies?

Yes, they are a sure crop, and while they may be a bit late this summer, they are here — plenty, too.
Many take flies for granted. They have always had them and expect to always have them; so they don't do much about them, for they figure they aren't costing them any money.
Flies don't actually dip into your pocket and take out your money, but they prevent the money from getting there, which is just as bad, and they keep plenty of it out!
Flies can cost you up to 35% of your total milk production; 50 lbs. of beef per head; and do much damage to hogs, poultry and humans. . . How?
Well, a cow is losing your milk when she is charging around the pasture with her tail over her back. And flies can spoil milk for you, or cause the cow to kick and spill your pail of milk. And a beef animal running around is not making beef; also warbles damage the hide, as well as annoying the animal — both of which cause losses.
Flies bother pigs. They are host to the tape worms and spread them. Also they carry disease germs from place to place. . . . All these cost you money.
With PURINA FLY CONTROLS so efficient, there is no need to take chances. Ask about the Purina line-up of fly killers; and if you want to see a real demonstration of fly killing, just sprinkle some PURINA FLY BAIT on a sunny window sill!

A new look at Canada

WELCOME NEWS for many Canadians is that the Federal Mines Department will publish an Atlas of Canada, December 1. Canadians have been nearly half-a-century without an up-to-date atlas devoted entirely to Canada. The last Canadian atlas, also published by the Mines Department, is dated 1915.

In more than 40 years, not only has the concept of an atlas changed greatly, but the nation has undergone astounding changes in social-economic structure and in population growth and shifts. There has also been considerable exploration of Canada's resources and of her hinterlands in a period that encompasses two world wars.

The atlas will include 450 maps graphically showing Canada's historic, economic and social-cultural development. The maps depict land, water, plant and animal resources, population areas, climatic conditions, types of soil, and trade and travel routes.

Ten years in preparation, the atlas was produced with the co-operation of federal, provincial and municipal authorities, as well as the skills of carial photographers and map makers.

The atlas also is an example of geography in its broader concept. It is a volume of geographic maps that tells the story of a nation's development rather than simply pinpointing the location of places, rivers and roads.

It also is a volume to compare with those of other nations which already are modern-atlas conscious, and a publication that will fill a too-wide gap on Canadian reference shelves.

Significant facts and figures

A REVEALING issue of The Royal Bank of Canada's "Monthly Letter" presents an inspiring survey of the natural resources of this country. Here are items from the survey:

Today Canada is not only a rich storehouse of materials but an industrial nation fabricating natural resources into usable goods. In 1955 our net value of primary production was $4,315 million. After processing these resources in our factories, we exported goods to the amount of $4,282 million, after supplying our own needs of domestic products.

About 44% of the land area of Canada is covered by forest growth. There are 582,000 square miles of commercially productive forest. The forest land bears 150 species of trees, of which 31 are conifers. The lumber industry had 7,333 establishments in 1955, employed 58,586 persons, and its gross production was valued at $644 million; the pulp and paper industry employed 62,205 workers, and turned out $1,327 million worth of goods.

During 1955, 36 per cent of the total exports of Canada were forest products. The pulp and paper industry leads all other manufactures in gross value of production.

Canada is today the chief world producer of nickel, the platinum metals, and asbestos. It ranks second in the production of gold, zinc, cadmium and selenium; third in silver, molybdenum and barite, and fourth in copper and lead.

Zimmerman, in his book "World Resources and Industries", contrasting the seven million farmers in North America with the tens of millions in Europe and hundreds of millions in Asia, remarks — "A better example of the effect of machine energy and of the capitalistic method of production on the extent of land utilization and the determination of cultivability can hardly be imagined."

Electricity common cause of farm accidents

FARM ACCIDENTS involving electricity are all too common these days, according to John Clark, Mechanics Division, Kemptville Agricultural School, who feels they would be less likely to occur if electric systems were treated with caution and respect.

Electricity is now so widely available that "familiarity breeds contempt" and chances are taken in operating equipment and making repairs. One common but dangerous practice is to replace burned out fuses with anything handy. People know they should use only 15 amp. fuses, but use anything available at the time, often intending to replace it with the proper fuse later on, but because the equipment works, forget all about it and leave the way open for a fire to start.

Another source of trouble is overloading outlets. People string extension cords around the room, quite oblivious to the fact that an outlet is meant to supply only so much electricity.

Electric wiring, like most other things, will deteriorate with time and use. A car, a tractor or a water system will show signs of wear; not so with electric wiring. The electricity flows silently and unseen with no indication that the work load has become too great for the present system or that time has taken its toll, until a fire starts.

Electricity is like dynamite. Properly handled, with the necessary safety precautions observed, it will serve well and usefully. Become indifferent or careless in handling or maintaining it, and it can be extremely dangerous. As in everything else, Safety Pays.

Polishing-up on propaganda

THE INTERNATIONAL Society for Educational Information in Tokyo, established in September 1957 by a group of leading businessmen and educators, has undertaken a campaign to correct misleading information about Japan found in some text books used in schools in foreign countries.

A close study of some 40 texts has disclosed incorrect or misleading information. The Society has collected 420 text books from 36 countries. They are books used by elementary and high schools in the study of geography, history and social science.

The surveys made so far suggest that the authors of many school books base their work on long outdated information, sometimes treating Japanese habits and customs as they were 50 to 100 years ago. Illustrations and photographs in the books are even worse than the text, the Society reports. Most of them show Japan as it was in the 19th century, with the Japanese people still in old-style Chinese dress and not in Western clothes, or kimonos, as they are today, and riding in rickshas and not in automobiles.

For the time being, the Society is concentrating its efforts on collecting and examining foreign school books. Its eventual aim is to distribute up-to-date information to foreign publishers, authors and educators.

Viewpoints and perspectives

MONEY IN ROMANCE — One of the most important business indicators in the next years will be the state — or rather the temperature — of romance, says The Financial Post, which explains that soon the baby-boom babies of the forties will be reaching marriageable age. Instead of a net gain of 60,000 new families a year (the present rate), we'll be gaining 100,000. The number of marriages taking place each year will be greater than ever before in our history.

These brides will keep Canadian business very busy. When she's setting up a new home, a modern bride buys (according to a recent survey) three quarters of all the sheets and towels she'll buy in her married life, two thirds of the blankets and other household items, and a third of her lifetime supply of furniture and appliances. Her family and friends spend upward of $3,000 on and around the wedding day. Even a simple wedding starts the cash register bells, as well as the church bells, ringing.

NEXT TO PARENTS, no group more directly influences the lives of children than the teachers with whom they spend so much of their time.

— Grenfell (Sask.) Sun

TO MOTHERS who have children going to school, we stress the necessity of drilling their kiddies to cross the streets only at intersections, and before crossing to look to the left and to the right for oncoming traffic. Children on country roads should be warned also to walk on the left-hand side of the road so that they will see any approaching vehicle. Children forget too quickly; they must be told and retold what to do, and when to do it.

SMILES HELP. — Lots of sentimental things have been written in prose and poetry about a smile, but its plain, practical value is easy to prove in winning and keeping personal friends. Anyone can gain almost miraculous results for himself by a personal experiment in smiling. — Winkler (Man.) Progress

OUTBREAKS OF school vandalism are symptomatic of serious trouble. It might be wise to see if there is any relationship between it and the current policy of using anything short of outright coercion to keep unwilling and uninterested students in schools.

LIGHT FOR THE LADY

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Welcome Home!

About two months ago my wife and brood settled in at our summer cottage and I began batching it. "Ah," said my impish friends, rolling their eyes, "you'll be having a time, won't you?"

Two months have gone by. Twice I sat up until half past two playing an innocent card game with the boys, cussing myself the next drowsy day for such nonsense. But, after all, when the wife's away a fellow must play, or else he's accused of brutally murdering tradition.

Last night I went to work with broom, duster and vacuum cleaner, and to my eyes the place looks pretty shiny; but I know, when the family troops in, all sort of lint and stuff will suddenly place itself on the rugs and furniture just to make me look punk.

This week-end, they'll be home. Gone will be the quiet in which I had dreamed (two months ago) of accomplishing great things — some meditation, a bit of writing, a chance to think. Now, when I go to the typewriter, the twins will be looking over my shoulder to say, "Whatcha doin' Daddy?" and when I shave, Kathy will be there to ask the same question. Or when I settle down to plan an article or column, my wife will call out, "Coffee's made. Will you join me?"

Yes, the place will be loaded with distractions, thank the good Lord!

Distractions? I'm ready for them! I'm so fed up with silence I could yell. And if you think those are pork and beans coming out of my ears, you are right, ma'am — that's what they are. I still can't figure out why I never got around to cooking up those fabulous steak dinners I had promised myself. There are other things I can't figure out, either.

How come my wife always gets so much prettier when we've been separated for a spell? And what happens to those five wild Indians of ours to make them become such beautiful, charming, pleasant children? A summer in the country sure changes my family — or maybe it's me?

Excuse me. (No, twins, daddy isn't playing. This is a typewriter, and I'm trying to get some work done. I think I hear your mummy calling you. Yes, darn it, I am typing — can't you see I'm typing? Now run along, and daddy will be able to finish this and buy you something at the store if you'll just get out of here now and let me work!)

Yes, as I say, there is a long winter ahead of us, but next summer, when the family goes to the lake, I'm going to get a lot of writing done, cook myself some mighty fine meals and really have myself a time.

Canada Then and Today

— By Lewis Milligan —

"The Granary of the Empire". That was the proud title by which the Dominion of Canada was known in the first decade of the present century. Those were the horse-and-buggy days in eastern Canada. Ontario had emerged from the pioneer stage of its agricultural development. The lumber camps were receding northward, yet the river-drivers were still busy guiding the logs with the spring freshets to the saw-mills on the lake shore. But all eyes were turning westward, attracted by the pictures of the Prairies clothed with golden grain. Thousands of emigrants were lured across the ocean by those pictures and the promise of free land on which they could share in the prosperity of the Granary of the Empire.

That is the historical background as I saw it myself when I came to this country in 1911. Agriculture at that time was Canada's basic and paramount industry. The foreground of the industrial picture of Canada today was strikingly presented by Stuart Armour, Canadian economist, in a speech to the Canadian Electrical Association at Banff recently. In his opening remarks, Mr. Armour paid a tribute to the "men of vision and great tenacity" who carried the building of the C.P.R. across the Prairies to its completion. "Without the C.P.R. there would have been no Canada as we know it today," he said. "Had all Canada remained primarily agricultural — as it was when the building of the C.P.R. gave us the first boost along the road to industrialization and nationhood — we could not have achieved or sustained the present dazzling position in the world."

Mr. Armour emphasized that it was only with the emergence of our manufacturing potential that Canada took her place as the country with the world's second-highest standard of living. "No other country has matched our record," he said.

In support of this he quoted the following official statistics:

"Between the year 1946 and the year 1956, agriculture contributed a total of $18,900 million to our national income. But manufacturing contributed $52,600 million, or nearly three times as much. Mining, oil wells and quarrying contributed $6,400 million. Forest industries $3,500 million; fishing $750 million and construction $10,700 million."

Manufacturing contributed in those ten years $12,000 million more to the national income than all the other industries combined. "And yet," said Mr. Armour, "many persons, even residents of Canada, still look upon this country only as a producer of raw materials . . . while manufacturing seems to be regarded as a sort of black sheep." He was referring particularly to the excessive proportion of taxation borne by manufacturing industries. He declared that encouragement of manufacturing was "the only certain way of ensuring the growth of the variously and fully employed population, without which our economy will not continue to grow at the phenomenal rate we have achieved in the past decade."

Mr. Armour gave some surprising figures of the imports of Britain, Germany and the United States, compared with those of Canada. He showed that Canada, with only one-tenth of the population of the U.S., imported manufactured goods to the value of $4,397 million, which was actually $19 million higher than the U.S. of $4,378 million.

The above is a bare outline of an informative and thought-provoking address which I felt should have had a wider audience of Canadians.

Which Canadian spent a fortune on Calendar reform?

Moses B. Cotsworth, who lived 33 years in Vancouver, held such strong views on calendar reform that he spent a considerable fortune and much of his lifetime in promoting them. Cotsworth's calendar, pushed by the International Fixed Calendar League, which he formed, involved the creation of a thirteenth month, to be called Sol. Each month had 28 days, making a fixed year of 52 seven-day weeks. The 365th day, at the year end, and the quadrennial leap-year day, were recorded but not counted.

Visiting more than 60 countries, Cotsworth talked up his calendar, and won considerable support for it. He met with opposition in 1929 when Elizabeth Achelis of New York put forward an alternate plan. She founded the World Calendar Association, which proposed 12 months with four equal quarters of 91 days each, with an annual World Day after December 30th, and a quadrennial Leap Year Day after June 30th. Cotsworth's plan and that of Miss Achelis were the two which won out when the League of Nations sifted some 200 calendar reform plans submitted to them. Gradually, however, Cotsworth's plan lost favor, and that of the World Calendar Association became the one advocated by most groups in Canada and elsewhere.

Since any change from the Gregorian calendar to the World Calendar must most logically be made when the former begins a year on Sunday, there are only certain years when a change-over can be most satisfactorily made. Calendar reform missed the years 1933, 1939, 1944, 1950 and 1956. The next years beginning on Sunday are 1961 and 1967.

Where is the world's longest Covered Bridge?

The world's longest covered bridge — 1282 feet — is at the town of Hartland, N.B. The town was settled by United Empire Loyalists and incorporated in 1918.

The town is a very busy potato-shipping point and operates a large potato-chip plant and a potato starch factory. The area's weekly newspaper is The Observer. The famous salmon pool of the St. John River is among the town's attractions.

BLONDE BEARS

Fort Frances, Ont. (CP) — Two blonde bears have been spotted on the shores of Rainy Lake. Resort superintendent Roy Houghton said they are among triplet cubs of a brown bear, with peculiar tastes — they were seen eating potato peelings doused with gasoline.

There are some things that I know already, and don't need to be told.

Yes, the days are drawing in. In the last week, a dozen persons have brought this phenomenon to my notice.

I am also aware of the fact that the evenings are growing cooler lately, and that it won't be long.

Yes, I have seen the leaves beginning to turn yellow. But I don't want to talk about the vegetation, or about the length and temperature of the days.

I find these subjects so depressing that I would rather avoid them.

However, I know that people are just being polite when they bring up such topics. They are trying to establish communication.

Their remarks don't have much more meaning than "Hello" or "Goodbye." In time, perhaps, the ordinary exchange of pleasantries will be abbreviated, and people will be able to hold short-hand conversations, thus fulfilling social obligations without the need to ruffle their brains with a single thought.

"The days are drawing in" will be shortened to "Daysin."

"Well, I see the leaves are beginning to turn yellow," will be rendered "Leavesellow."

A typical conversation might run like this:

"Morning."
"Morning. Lookwell."
"Youtoo. Zwife?"
"Wellthanks. Hmn. September."
"Hmm. October. Daysin."
"Yes. Leavesellow. Nightscooler."
"Winter? Hawaii? California?"
"Broke."
"Tough."

A standard patter could be worked up to meet a few other everyday situations: For example, the fact that people have altered in appearance. (Lostweight?" "Yes. You—grownbeard?" "Have. You—lostfinger?" "Yes. Powermower." "Badluck.")

After such routine greetings have been exchanged, people will be feeling reasonably well at ease, and ready to begin a real conversation.

Many at Harrington paid last tribute to drowning victim

The Late "Pat" MacTavish

On August 20, the community of Harrington paid its last tribute to William Richard "Pat" MacTavish, son of Mrs. Emily MacTavish and the late Duncan MacTavish.

Thrown out of a boat while making a turn on a lake in the LaTuque area on August 17, his untimely death by drowning at the age of 40 was a shock to the many friends he had made here and elsewhere.

He received his early education at Harrington East and Lachute Academy, having won the Perley Scholarship in 1932. Meanwhile, from the age of eight, and for the next 20 years, Pat served Harrington and the surrounding countryside on a milk route. This was not just a business. Anyone in trouble could call on him, so that through the years his customers became his friends. Many people in the community remember with gratitude his help in time of emergency, whether it were a serious illness or a favor desired. Pat always had "time" and somehow the means.

He carried this spirit of service with him when he went to work for the Canadian Refractories Limited as a mechanic, and for the past 10 years in the responsible positions of Mechanical Superintendent at Cann, Master Mechanic at Sanmaur, and Field Mechanic at Lake Wayagamack in the St. Maurice Division of the Canadian International Pulp and Paper Company. Even here, though she had known him only a short while, an old lady of 70 mourns him.

There were 54 floral tributes bearing testimony to the esteem in which he was held. Friends came from West Hartford, Conn.; Nashville, Tenn.; Port Colborne, Allanburg, Chippawa, and Ottawa, Ont.; and Montreal, Three Rivers and LaTuque, Que., to attend his funeral.

Miss Dora Trineer played for the hymns "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and "Will Your Anchor Hold" at the funeral service, which was held in his sister's home. The Rev. G. W. Bruce conducted the service, assisted by Mr. Geo. Clifford, student pastor.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Delbert MacTavish, Lawrence MacTavish, Dougald MacRae, Richard Champagne, Harry Pond and Bill Hawkins.

Pat will be sadly missed by his mother, who has the memory of a good and loving son to sustain her, his sister, Elsie (Mrs. Coral Young), his brothers, Duncan, of Harrington, and Carlyle, of Chippewa, as well as the many friends and co-workers who had the privilege of knowing him.

Warwick - Graham

The marriage of Heather Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Graham, of Lachute, to Robert Archibald Warwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel A. Warwick, of Brownsburg, took place Saturday, September 6, in the Lachute United Church — the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Wayne Riddell was organist, and the soloist, Mrs. Leonard Armstrong, sang The Lord's Prayer and "Where'er You Walk". Baskets of pink and white gladioli decorated the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz-length gown of white peau de soie, the fitted bodice being fashioned on Empire lines, with a decollete neckline trimmed with seed pearls. The long sleeves ended in points over the hands, and the bouffant skirt was of unpressed pleats, with a large bow at the back. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held by a lace cap trimmed with brilliants, and she carried a bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Leslie Harland, as matron of honor, and Miss Audrey McOuat and Miss Margaret Doig, as bridesmaids, were in gowns styled alike in Verde green crystal charm. The gowns were fashioned with bateau necklines, elbow-length sleeves, draped waistbands ending in the back with matching flowers, and bouffant skirts. They wore matching bandeaux and shoes and carried bouquets of bronze and white mums.

Mr. George Pasco acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Bernard Golphin and Mr. Leslie Harland.

The bride's mother wore a Dior blue silk faille gown, with a rosewood colored hat, black accessories, and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Warwick, mother of the groom, was in a gown of mink brown crepe, and wore a dark brown hat and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following a reception in the church hall, Mr. and Mrs. Warwick left by motor for the Eastern States, the bride wearing a Loden green faille suit, white feathered hat, black accessories, and a corsage of coral Sweetheart roses. The couple will reside in Picton, Ont.

Couple to reside at Vankleek Hill

Livock - Robertson

The marriage of Frances Beverley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Robertson, of Lachute, to Mr. Gary A. Livock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Livock, of Vankleek Hill, Ont., took place Saturday, August 30, at five o'clock in the Lachute United Church — the Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Wayne Riddell played the wedding music and Mrs. Leonard Armstrong was the soloist. The floral decorations were pink and white gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de faille and imported French lace. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice of lace, having a scalloped lace neckline and brief sleeves, and a bouffant skirt with draped swags of faille forming a bustle and bow at the back, falling into a slight train. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held by a matching cap encrusted with seed pearls and diamants. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of pink Delight roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Claud McNabb, of Vankleek Hill, as maid of honor, wore a street-length gown of Romance blue organza over taffeta, fashioned with a portrait neckline and bouffant skirt. Her headdress was a small feather hat of matching blue, and she carried a bouquet of yellow and white mums.

Miss Lorna Clark and Miss Margaret Robertson wore identical street-length gowns of Periwinkle blue organza over taffeta, fashioned with portrait necklines and bouffant skirts. Their headdresses were small feather hats of matching blue, and they also carried bouquets of yellow and white mums.

Mr. Claud McNabb acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Stewart Robertson, brother of the bride, and Mr. Harvey Livock, brother of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a beige pure silk jacket dress with matching feather hat and gloves, brown accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. Livock, mother of the groom, wore a bouquet blue crepe dress with matching feather hat and a corsage of white carnations.

The reception was held at the Masonic Temple, where the floral decorations were carried out in pink and white gladioli.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Livock left on their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a brown suit of French Venetian wool, a pink feathered wig, pink gloves, brown accessories and a pink rose corsage. . . The couple will reside in Vankleek Hill, Ont.

"Have whiskers, will travel"

A sidelight at Lachute Lions Club was a query on the whereabouts of Santa's wig and whiskers. . .

The question arose in a preliminary briefing for the club's festive effort — the ordering of candies and Christmas stockings for Santa's annual visit to the schools.

It was revealed that the wig and whiskers were in safekeeping, in Lion Bertrand L'Heureux' fur-storage vault at Lachute Dry Cleaning!

Lion Roger Regimbal, who has personified Saint Nick more often than he cares to remember, was the one most concerned. On his recommendation the club is investing this year in a new suit of scarlet with snowy trim.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

Preaching the Kingdom in Unity

"The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he will rule as king for ever and ever." While this inspired utterance was written about 1,900 years ago, it is in our time, since 1914, that Jehovah God has taken his "great power and begun ruling as king" by the one he has appointed, Christ Jesus. This means the long-prayed-for kingdom is established! (Matt. 6: 9, 10). And within this generation the King Christ Jesus will destroy all wickedness, visible and invisible, and thereafter "for ever and ever" surviving mankind will enjoy unending life and happiness on a paradise earth under the blessings of the Kingdom. It is this good news Jehovah's witnesses unitedly preach, by word of mouth and by printed page.

Two Bible study aids that will help you are the books, "Let God Be True" and "The Kingdom Is At Hand", the two may be had for only one dollar.

Write 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto, or ask any Jehovah's Witness whom you may happen to meet.

County couple wed recently

Jackson - Hoare

The marriage of Laura Gwendolyn daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hoare, of Calumet, to Mr. Donald William Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Jackson, of Lachute, took place Saturday, August 23, at 4 o'clock in St. Mungo's United Church at Cushing.

The Rev. William Holmes, of Vankleek Hill, Ont., officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Russell Owens played the wedding music and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoare, of Toronto, sang "Still, Still With Thee", before the ceremony, and Mrs. Fred Hoare sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length white bridal gown of pure silk organza over taffeta with matching lace yoke, short sleeves, round scooped neckline and full bouffant skirt. A small headpiece of matching lace, embroidered in seed pearls, held her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and wore small pearl earrings and a single cultured pearl necklace, the gift of the groom.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Donald Smith, of Valois, Que., sister of the groom, and Miss Bernice Hoare, sister of the bride. Miss Linda Hanly was the flower-girl. The bridesmaids wore identical street-length dresses and headpieces of midnight blue pure silk organza over taffeta. They carried nosegays of pink carnations and gladioli. The little flower girl wore a similar dress of blue nylon over taffeta. She carried a little nosegay of pink carnations also.

Mr. Donald Smith, of Valois, acted as best man for his brother-in-law and the ushers were Mr. Robert Hoare and Mr. Harvey Hoare, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Hoare, mother of the bride, wore a frock of Dior blue crepe, with matching lace yoke and sleeves, and had black accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Jackson, mother of the groom, was dressed in a navy and white linen dress with navy accessories, and wore a corsage of dark pink carnations.

Following the reception at the church hall, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson left for Atlantic City, N.J., the bride wearing a beige dress of woven tricot jersey, in blouson style with straight skirt and jewel neckline, tangerine hat and gloves, and black patent leather accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

The couple will reside in Brownsburg, Que.

Among the out of town guests were — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoare, Toronto; Mrs. John McDougall, Mrs. Archie Gay, Miss Winnifred Hastings, Ottawa; Miss Marilyn Jay, Mr. William Smith, Kemptville, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Graham, Stittsville, Ont.; Mrs. Alan Liddiard and Miss Diane Liddiard, Beaconsfield, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Whone and Mr. Grant Whone, Dorval, Que.; Mrs. Lois O'Connor, Westmount, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, Valois, Que.

Surprise by radio – husband's voice

When a Bell Falls resident, W. Harry Warren, set out with a neighbor to Ottawa recently, he was exhorted by his wife to see her CFRA favorite, Joan Baxter, at the Exhibition and to "radio a message home". It was all in fun, of course; neither of them took the idea seriously.

It was with casual interest that Mrs. Warren heard Bob Walters broadcasting from the "Ex" later that day, but when the announcer went down into the crowd and picked a random conversationalist who happened to be her husband, Mrs. Warren was all ears! She not only heard his voice, but she received a dozen red roses and a box of biscuits on his return — compliments of the program producers.

Home Study Schedule

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"What is the secret of your success with your school studies?" a reporter asked a sixteen-year-old New Canadian who topped her class in the examinations with 94 percent average. This was the best record of marks ever made at this school by any student. The girl being questioned came from Sweden. Six years ago she could not speak a word of English.

"I keep up wih my lessons and I don't cram at the last moment. In addition to school work during the day I regularly do at least two hours each night," she answered.

In a great many of our schools the New Canadians maintain a high level of achievement. Quite a number of teachers have commented on how quickly, with their determination to learn, they overcome the language barrier. They seem to appreciate more than native Canadians the opportunity to get an education. Their parents expect them to apply themselves to their school work and they do work hard.

Ability, plus a sensible schedule, usually produces results. Parents want their children to do their homework, but at the same time consideration should be given to a satisfactory setting for concentration.

When a child is in the lower grades in public school and begins to have homework, a parent can see that there is a definite place, with good lighting, where the student can work. The child's own room is a good spot. The dining room table is undesirable if there is too much going on around the youthful student. The minimum of interruptions is essential and so is proper lighting. This helps to avoid eye strain. A comfortable chair and steady table are needed.

In some homes children claim they can study well with a radio going full blast. But how can a child absorb the radio program and also keep his mind on his work? Music, conversation and announcements mixed with homework give the pupil a poor showing the next day at school.

A boy or girl often needs a little encouragement in planning a schedule for homework. Here again there should be a fixed time every school night for studies. Shortly after supper, at seven or seven-thirty, according to the age of the student, has been found satisfactory in most houses. The study period should be long enough to complete the necessary assignments without feeling hurried and with a short break every half hour.

Youngsters need to be free between four o'clock and supper to see their chums, to follow their own special interests and to play. They like a little time right after their meal and at bed time to relax and read or do some handicraft or whatever appeals to them. But, if Studying Time is fixed by the clock — this saves Mother from nagging at them that they "should begin soon."

The parent's interest in the child's progress is of great assistance. They should accept him as he is, and not expect a brilliant record if his ability with books is only fair. Possibly he has a mechanical bent or a flair in some other line in which he will be successful in earning his living, even if he is not among the honor students.

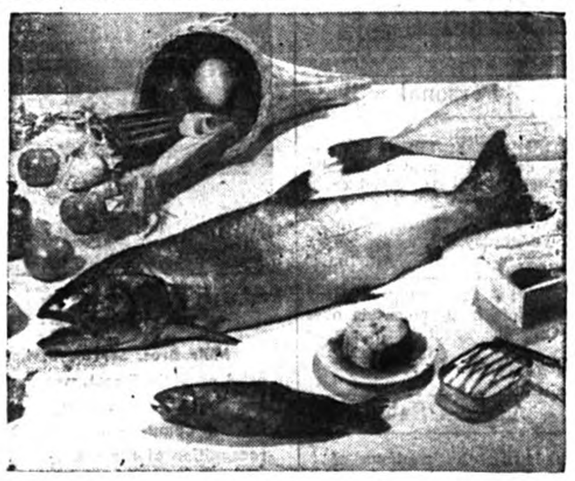

Faithful, efficient studying usually prepares a child well enough that when tests or exams confront him, he won't be in a panic. Cheating in an exam is never a temptation to the student who knows his work. If he keeps up with it from day to day, he should have confidence in his ability to pass.

There are all kinds of people in the world, and in every school the I.Q. of different pupils varies greatly. The genius is rare and it is interesting to know that as brilliant a man as Albert Einstein was considered by his schoolmasters a stupid sort of child. The slow learners are in the minority, and many schools have special classes for them. The great majority of boys and girls have average ability. Their progress depends both on their work in the classrooms and on their studies at home.

Cross-Canada Fish Dish

FALL FARE — Complementing the harvest from the seas and inland waters is the bountiful fall harvest from the land. Combine the two for wonderful meals during National Fish Week, held this year from September 22 to 28.

A whole planked fish, together with three or four of the season's most colorful and decorative vegetables, makes a festive and delicious dinner. Any fish suitable for baking or broiling may be planked. Some commonly planked varieties are shad, haddock, lake trout, whitefish, and small salmon.

The American Indians taught early settlers on this continent how to secure a fish to a hardwood plank and then grill it by tilting the plank up before a hot fire. Today the use of planks for cooking and serving is being revived.

Hardwood cooking planks of oak, hickory, or maple come in various sizes and shapes for individual or family service. They should be about 1½ inches thick and grooved around the edge to catch cooking juices. If you are purchasing a plank, follow the manufacturer's instructions for seasoning it.

Planking in the modern sense is more a method of serving than of cooking fish. The fish may be stuffed or not, as desired. The general procedure is simple. The fish is placed skin-side down in the centre of a well oiled, pre-heated plank, then baked. Shortly before the allotted cooking time is up, the plank is removed from the oven and surrounded with a border of mashed potatoes, often put through a pastry tube. Freshly cooked vegetables of contrasting color and texture are arranged in the space between the fish and potatoes. The plank is then returned to the oven and baking continued until the fish is cooked and the potatoes are lightly browned. For serving, the plank is placed in a holder or on a large platter.

A labor-saving way to "plank" a fish is on aluminum foil. Here are their directions for foil "planking" a 3 to 4 pound fish:

Foil "Planked" Fish

1 Dressed fish weighing 3 to 4 pounds, salt, *minted bread dressing, melted fat or cooking oil, *Duchess potatoes, 6 medium-sized tomatoes, 1/3 cup dry bread crumbs (buttered), 12 small whole carrots (cooked) and buttered, lemon slices, parsley sprigs.

Wipe fish with a damp cloth. Sprinkle on the inside with salt. Stuff with Minted Bread Dressing (see recipe). Place fish in centre of a lightly greased rectangle of heavy aluminum foil on a baking sheet. It is recommended that a double thickness of the heavy foil be used and that it be turned up at the edges to hold cooking juices. Have it extend well beyond the fish on all sides. Brush fish with melted fat. Bake in a hot oven (450°F.) allowing 10 minutes cooking time for each inch of stuffed thickness, measured with a ruler at the thickest part.

Ten minutes before the cooking time is up, remove "plank" from oven and quickly arrange a border of Duchess Potatoes (see recipe) around fish, at foil edge. Remove a slice from top of each tomato, season tomato and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Place tomatoes and buttered carrots between potatoes and fish. A suggested arrangement is to place 3 tomatoes on either side of fish and pile carrots at either end. Return "plank" to oven and bake food for 10 minutes or until fish will flake on testing with a fork and potatoes are lightly browned.

Slide foil onto a large serving platter, lifting by the edges. Remove top skin from fish. Garnish fish with lemon twists and nestle sprigs of parsley between tomatoes. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Duchess Potatoes

6 Medium-sized potatoes, 1 egg (separated), 1/4 cup soft butter, salt and pepper to taste, hot milk (about 3/4 cup).

Peel potatoes, cut into uniform pieces, and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain well; mash. Beat egg yolk slightly and add to potatoes. Stir in butter. Add hot milk gradually and beat potatoes until very light. The amount of milk needed will depend on the mealiness of the potatoes. Season mixture to taste. Force through a pastry tube onto the greased foil to form a wall, mounds, or any desired pattern. If a pastry tube is not available, drop from a tablespoon onto foil. For a glazed look, brush potatoes with egg white. Brown in a hot oven (450°F.). Makes 6 servings.

Minted Bread Dressing

1/3 Cup chopped onion, 1/3 cup chopped celery, 3 tablespoons butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon dried mint, 3 cups soft bread crumbs.

Pan-fry onion and celery in butter for about 5 minutes or until tender. Add cooked vegetables and seasonings to bread crumbs; mix thoroughly. This quantity of stuffing is sufficient for a 3 to 4 pound dressed fish.

Women's Institute at Brownsburg

The meeting of Brownsburg W.I was held Thursday, September 4, under the convenership of Mrs. P. McAdam.

It was announced that the Brownsburg Institute had gained three prizes with articles exhibited at the Ottawa Exhibition. Final arrangements were made for the annual tea and handicraft fair, held on September 10.

Later in the evening Mr. Dave Atkins kindly showed pictures of his vacation in Florida, followed by scenes of the St. Lawrence Seaway, and other pictures of local interest.

Lions Club aids in education of paralyzed child

Lachute Lions Club directors, dealing with a request from the CNIB for assistance to a handicapped child, voted $200 last week in aid of this particular case. The child, a cerebral palsy sufferer, is sent to attend school for the handicapped, and the grant is required to assist in payment of board and lodging in Montreal. The same amount was contributed by the Lions Club for this child during the past school year.

This is another instance in which the Lions serve as an instrument for public welfare. The funds in this case are made available through the annual Easter Seals appeal for the rehabilitation of crippled children.

A warm acknowledgment was received by the Club from Tony Zaplaski, field secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Green tomatoes good fried or baked

Do you always wait until tomatoes have turned red before eating them? If so, you've been missing a treat, for green tomatoes are delightful when baked or fried. Here's how the home economists in Canada's Kitchen cook them:

Fried Green Tomatoes (three ways)

1—Cut washed tomatoes in half-inch slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Fry uncovered, in hot bacon fat or butter until slices are tender and lightly browned on both sides, allowing 10 to 15 minutes altogether.

2—Dredge tomato slices with seasoned flour (flour, salt and pepper) and fry as in (1).

3—Dip tomato slices in beaten egg seasoned with salt and pepper, then in bread crumbs and fry as in (1).

Serve fried tomatoes as a dinner vegetable or accompaniment with meat and potatoes, or with ham or bacon and eggs for breakfast.

Baked Green Tomatoes

Arrange washed green tomato halves, cut side up, either on a rack set on a baking sheet or in a small amount of water in a shallow baking pan.

Top with one of the following:

1—Salt, pepper and melted bacon fat or butter.

2—Bread crumbs mixed with chopped onion, marjoram, salt and pepper and a little melted butter.

3—Chopped onion with melted butter, curry powder, salt and pepper added.

4—Bread crumbs, grated cheese, melted butter, salt and pepper mixed together.

Bake in moderately hot oven, 375°F. until tender — 40 to 50 minutes. Serve as a vegetable or accompaniment with meat.

The Lachute Watchman

Now that the evenings are getting chillier, government home economists suggest adding soup to sandwich suppers.

The experts say that with so many ready-made soups — canned, frozen and dehydrated — homemakers have forgotten how easy it is to make their own soups.

Cream soups can be made by adding cooked vegetables, either diced or pureed, to vegetable-cooking water, seasoning and a thin cream sauce.

Canned tomatoes and cream-style corn are both good with only milk, butter and seasonings added. For tomato soup, milk and tomatoes should be heated separately before combining, and a little sugar added to the soup will sharpen the tomato flavor.

Crockery Care

If you are short of cupboard space, don't be tempted to pile the crockery too high. It can be scratched, not to say broken, more easily that way.

Here's some hints on taking care of crockery: Do not stack plates more than 12 high, and stack them by sizes. Separate plates with a paper or cloth mat. Cups should be hung on cup hooks.

Never allow food to harden on plates for any length of time. Use a rubber mat on the bottom of the sink or dishpan, and don't use too much detergent. Don't put your best dinnerware in the refrigerator.

Cooking Haggis

You don't need to be Scottish to cook and enjoy a haggis, Scotland's national dish.

It tastes something like a rich dressing for turkey, only heavier. Cooking a haggis is not so difficult if you first overcome the problem of finding a sheep's paunch, and pluck the heart and liver.

Soak the paunch, or stomach, for several hours in salted water. Turn inside out and wash thoroughly in several waters. Wash the pluck. Cover liver with cold water and boil for 1½ hours. After 45 minutes add the heart and entrails.

Chop half the liver coarsely, the rest finely, with the heart and other ingredients. Mix, add a half-pint of oatmeal, pound of beef suet, two chopped Spanish onions, two tablespoons salt, with pepper, nutmeg, lemon juice and 1 pint of stock or gravy.

Stuff these ingredients into the paunch and sew up the opening, leaving space for the oatmeal to swell. Put the haggis in boiling water and cook gently for three hours. During the first hour, pick the paunch occasionally with a needle to let steam escape.

The Scots have been eating haggis on ceremonial occasions for centuries. Others may find it too rich for everyday eating, but still a tasty dish.

Cereal Tips

A new free booklet, "Cereals", now available from the information service of the federal agriculture department at Ottawa, provides a good deal of information on the types and uses of cereals made from Canadian grains, as well as tested recipes.

Barbecued Spareribs

As a change from hamburger or hot dogs on that outdoor fire, barbecued spareribs are appetizing.

Take five to six pounds of spareribs in serving-size pieces, one cup of strong coffee, half-cup molasses, quarter-cup prepared mustard, tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, half-cup cider vinegar.

Arrange spareribs one layer deep in large, shallow roasting pans. Combine remaining ingredients, heat and stir until blended, and brush lavishly over ribs. Bake uncovered for two-and-a-half hours, basting frequently with remaining sauce.

Ever-growing need for qualified technicians, says W. M. Cottingham

Dinner speaker at presentation of scholarship

"Our main problem is not to produce more and more engineers and technicians, but to produce better and more highly trained scientific personnel", Mines Minister W. M. Cottingham, Member for Argenteuil, said last Friday at Hawkesbury.

The Minister was addressing the members of the district branch of the Chemical Institute of Canada, at a dinner given on the occasion of the award by the Institute of a $500 scholarship to Miss Elizabeth Jean Taylor, top Lachute High School student. This scholarship will enable Miss Taylor to enter the Faculty of Science of McGill University.

Mr. Cottingham, who was guest speaker at the dinner, pointed out in his speech that more scientific discoveries and inventions have been made during the last 50 years than during the 2,000 years preceding them.

"Science is an endless frontier", added Mr. Cottingham, "and all nations are in need of men and women of high calibre who are willing to devote their lives to research."

ADVANCE NOTE, CHRISTMAS MAILING . . .

Postmaster asks residents to ensure incoming mail has complete address

TO THE LOCAL PUBLIC

Soon it will be the end of a season and the beginning of another, with the trees dressed in their multitude of colors. . . For your public servants at the Post Office, it is a preparation for the Christmas period.

Last year, we asked you to inform all your correspondents of your complete address — civic number, name of street, etc. Even with your co-operation, our Directory was overtaxed, for we were adopting the new system of delivery.

This year, if you wish to make it so, things will be different. We all have the experience, and service will be better.

Indeed, our reference directory for addresses is now less crowded and only a small percentage of mail is sent to the Dead Letter Office, thanks to your co-operation.

There is still room for improvement, however. Please be alert and advise all your friends immediately of your complete address. We would suggest that you send your good wishes first, before they do, so that they may be advised of your address.

It will be a pleasure for the Letter Carrier to call at your door with mail well addressed, but if we have to send it to the Dead Letter Office, it is disappointing for everyone concerned. . . Our very first duty is to deliver your mail, we do not wish to return it. A full Directory at our office means more work and more expense.

If you wish to use a card (Form 86) to advise your correspondents, do not hesitate to ask for these at the wicket.

The local Post Office personnel appreciates your co-operation, and we thank the editor of the "Lachute Watchman" for his usual ready assistance.

— F. GUITARD, Postmaster.

Key personnel named for Charities campaign

Key workers in the coming campaign for Lachute Federation of Charities have been announced by the chairman of this year's fund appeal, Dr. Charles Roy. Campaign officers are as follows:

Notary Simon Valois and Mme Réal Morrissette, vice - presidents; Roger Regimbal, captain for industries; Gaëtan Leclair, captain for business firms; Gérard Lefebvre, captain for schools; Roger Lagarde, special names.

Hubert Lemire, Philippe Guénette, Gustave Joannette, Roméo Legault, Laurent Lamarche, Royal Carrière, Lévis Clément, Lucien Hamel, Armand Desrosiers, Mlle Annette Courtien, Roland Raymond, Mlle B. Dallaire, Mlle T. Filion, Mme Lucile Lemay, Jean Belanger, Jas. Lowe, canvassers for their respective places of business; and P.-E. Barbeau and Chas. E. Dorris, canvassers of teaching staffs.

In addition there are co-chairmen for the respective parishes, namely Mlle Françoise Valois and Philippe Raymond, for Ste. Anastasie; Mme Roger Regimbal and Bernard Gosselin, for St. Jûlien; Mme M. Gagné and Ronald Hébert, for Immaculate Conception.

Chairman for the English-speaking section is Léopold Carrière.

The $18,260 campaign gets underway October 14 — with a send-off Saturday, October 11, in the form of a street parade. A thermometer outside the Town Hall will indicate progress as the appeal continues.

Antiques provide topic at W. Inst.

Members of the Lachute Women's Institute held their September meeting in the Legion Hall, with Mrs. J. A. Gordon presiding.

It was reported that new books had been added to the library, which is open to members and the public.

Mrs. G. Davidson, Home Economics convener, provided a display of antiques, which included articles of furniture and china. In her talk, Mrs. Davidson gave the history of these articles, in a manner which proved most instructive and interesting.

Mrs. W. E. Butterfield spoke of the Hallowe'en "Shell Out" program in aid of UNICEF, requesting volunteer helpers to contact her by phone.

Our District Correspondent

Brownsburg — September 23, 1958, is a day to keep in mind. . . On that date the Red Cross blood donor clinic will be held, in the C-I-L plant from 1.30 to 5.00 p.m. and in the Legion Hall from 7.30 to 10.00. It is hoped that all those who have donated in the past will once again return to help build up the area bank. For the benefit of those who have never donated blood, the following information is published in order to answer various questions which might have arisen and prevented them from becoming donors in the past:

Questions and Answers

What is the Blood Transfusion Service?

A service operated by the Red Cross to supply whole blood free to any patient in any hospital participating in the service. All blood is provided by volunteer donors.

Will I be tested before donating?

Yes, every donor is first given a haemoglobin test.

Who benefits by my gift?

Some man, woman or child who is in need of a transfusion because of accident or illness.

Does anyone have to pay?

No! Your gift and the transfusion equipment are supplied without charge to the patients.

Is the donating of blood painless?

Yes! There is no discomfort experienced in the giving of blood.

Are there any diet restrictions?

No.

Who may donate?

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 65 in average health.

Is a doctor's certificate necessary?

Only in special cases of high blood pressure. Your blood will be tested when you call to donate and will not be taken if you are anemic.

How often may blood be given?

A man may donate every three months. A woman, under normal circumstances, every four months.

How much blood will be taken?

380 c.c. or 13 ounces.

How much blood is there in the body?

200 ounces.

How long will it take to give my donation?

The actual giving of blood only takes approximately 4 to 5 minutes. However, donors are given a haemoglobin test; a blood group test is also made and each donor is registered. Following the giving of their donation they rest for a few minutes, after which they are served refreshments. Approximately 30 to 45 minutes should be allowed for the entire procedure.

Is any blood wasted?

No! If it is not used as whole blood, it is processed into blood fractions which keep indefinitely.

Do donors receive any recognition?

An identification card indicating their blood group and recording their blood donations will be sent to each donor. Various button awards are also presented to donors.

Is this service endorsed by the proper authorities?

Yes, by Church and Civic Authorities, by Provincial and Municipal Departments of Health, Collège des Médecins et Chirurgiens de la Province de Québec, the Canadian Medical Association and similar bodies.

Why is whole blood needed?

Whole blood is vital for haemorrhages in childbirth, for many operations, accidents and other illnesses.

Can I give blood if I have had jaundice (infectious hepatitis)?

No! Because there is a possibility that a patient receiving the blood may be adversely affected.

Will blood be accepted from a donor who has had malaria?

Yes, provided one year has elapsed since the last attack.

Where can I give my donation?

At C-I-L Metallic canteen from 1.30 to 5.00 p.m. and at the Brownsburg Legion Hall from 7.30 to 10.00 p.m. on Tuesday, September 23.

Will I be able to donate blood even though I have just had inoculations against polio?

Yes! Salk Vaccine shots will not prevent donors from giving blood.

* * *

Since all C-I-L plant employees have been contacted, a great many will be giving their blood at the plant clinic. While this appeal is intended for them too, it is directed mainly to the mothers, fathers, wives, brothers and sisters at home or employed elsewhere.

Will you donate a little of your time and blood to save the life of a fellow Canadian? Remember — "The blood you give may let another live."

For auto drivers' examinations

The provincial government trailer for auto permit examinations will be at the Court House on Grace Street, on Monday, September 29, from 1 to 5 p.m., and on September 30 all day — according to information given by Sgt. R. Massie of the local traffic squad.

Body of Hawkesb'y business man found in river

The body of a Hawkesbury man, Henri Marleau, 45, was recovered from the Ottawa River at Grenville last Thursday, after the discovery of his automobile on the river bank led police to commence dragging operations.

The victim, who lived on the Vankleek Hill road, had been a dealer for John Deere farm equipment for a number of years.

It appears that Alfred Filion, a Grenville resident, was approaching the vicinity of the wharf at 9.30 a.m. Thursday when he noticed an auto which seemed to be abandoned, and also a man's hat beside the wharf. Suspecting something unusual had happened, he looked inside the car and found a note; this he took immediately to the village police chief, Laurent Davidson. A search was initiated and within two hours the body was brought to the surface by two residents who joined the operations, Dr. Henri Larocque, dentist, and young Norman Cameron. Artificial respiration was applied by Sgt. J. Villeneuve of the Hawkesbury police force, but the victim had been immersed too long in the water, and efforts to revive him proved in vain.

The deceased is survived by his wife, the former Ange-Aimée Ravary, four sons and two daughters. Funeral rites were held Monday at St. Bernadin, Prescott County, with burial in that place.

When is an egg not an egg?

This one, which took a freak twist in delivery, was found in the poultry house at Louis Renaud's place, St. Philippe d'Argenteuil. With a little imagination one can visualize a doll's arm, or again a performing seal.

Blood clinic had glamor girls and helicopter

The Quebec Division bulletin of the Red Cross this month records a highly successful blood clinic staged by the Kiwanis at St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac; 861 pints of blood were collected during their annual 12-hour blood derby on August 9 last.

The story is complete with picture of the St. Eustache blood derby queens, four charming demoiselles in white, with the campaign chairman greeting Red Cross officials at the Lake of Two Mountains High School yard, where they arrived from Montreal by helicopter.

Subs for Canada ?

Ottawa (CP) —

The Canadian Navy has never owned any submarines — until now an offensive weapon which didn't fit into the navy's defence role. Military planners now are wondering whether to revise that policy. Navy thinking is that the best way to fight a submarine may be with another sub. This view was strengthened by the recent cruises of two U.S. nuclear-powered submarines beneath the polar icecap.

Defence Minister Pearkes said last month at London, Ont., that Canada may have to go into the submarine field — "possibly the submarine-hunting submarine" — to guard against the threat posed by Russia's 500 subs.

Montreal conf'ce to foster trade in Commonwealth

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA
By Alan Donnelly

Ottawa (CP) The big Commonwealth Trade and Economic Conference opened in Montreal this week — a meeting that the Diefenbaker government had worked for since taking office 15 months ago.

On the eve of the talks, the outline of Canada's position in several fields became evident here. In furtherance of the government's desire to boost trade with Britain, this country appeared ready to urge Britain to strip away her remaining import curbs. These curbs against goods from dollar countries were erected to protect Britain's currency exchange position. Canadian experts said they felt that reason no longer was valid.

The experts also said there would be no move to boost Commonwealth tariffs against non-Commonwealth goods, as was done at the 1932 Commonwealth Trade Conference. Instead there would be attempts to expand Commonwealth trade by other means, perhaps through economic aid to help under - developed Commonwealth partners to grow and prosper.

Political Travel

As Prime Minister Diefenbaker planned his late-fall Commonwealth world tour, heads of the other two federal parties disclosed their plans for political fence-mending travels close to the Canadian electors.

Lester B. Pearson faced a three-week trip starting in Vancouver, September 25 to raise Liberal party funds and rebuild party organization. His tour will take him through the four western provinces, where no Liberals were elected March 31, then to the lakehead and on to New Brunswick. This schedule may be expanded later.

But his trip will start on a non-political note. At Vancouver both he and Mr. Diefenbaker will receive honorary degrees from the University of British Columbia.

Hazen Argue, CCF Commons leader, announced he will make a speaking tour of every province in October. Details of his trip were not immediately made known.

McGill to honor president of Tower Company

J. George Jacobsen president of the Tower Company, Lachute, is one of four notables to be honored with doctorates (honoris causa) at the Founder's Day convocation of McGill University on October 6.

The degree of honorary Doctor of Science will be conferred upon Mr. Jacobsen and Sir David K. Henderson, an honorary Master of Science on Charles Henry, and Doctor of Laws upon Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president-elect of the University of Toronto. All are leaders in their specialized fields of activity.

J. G. Jacobsen is a noted meteorologist. The Tower Company of which he is president is one of Canada's pioneer enterprises in the field of northern development. Mr. Jacobsen has done pioneer work in the problems of building and maintaining heated structures on permanently frozen ground, has led scientific parties in Axel Heilberg Island, and been first in the field in the solution of many of the problems found in northern construction.

Rotary studies suggestions to improve Park facilities

The Park Planning Committee of the Brownsburg - Lachute Rotary Club met recently, submitting their report at the regular Thursday dinner meeting of the Club.

In attendance were Chairman Fred Royal, Keith Rutherford, Sid Stilwell, Keith Hickson and King Amos, all past-presidents of the organization, with Club President Sid Patterson and the Park Committee chairman, Cliff Armstrong. The following work schedule was drawn up and submitted to the Club, to be discussed at a later date:

1. Increase size of pool, immediately.
2. Purchase adjoining land to the south-east side of the park.
3. Clear area when purchased.
4. Obtain copies of ground-plan of park.
5. Items and facilities to be located on ground-plan include:

(a) Building to include washrooms, dressing rooms, office, check room, canteen and storage room;
(b) Septic tanks;
(c) Drinking fountains, possibly in building;
(d) Barbecues;
(e) Kiddies' playing area;
(f) Artificial wading pool;
(g) Picnic tables;
(h) Horseshoe pits;
(i) Shuffle board;
(j) Trees and shrubs.

Several other suggestions were made in addition to these, which are to be discussed further by the Club members.

* * *

At the regular dinner meeting, a financial report was given showing the Club's status as favorable, although far from sufficient to accomplish required work and projects.

Honored guests at the meeting were Bill Brown and Basil Jackson, President and Shop Steward, respectively, of the Union Local, who were fittingly thanked by Club President Patterson for their local's annual donation of $100 towards maintenance of the Community Park.

Plans for a bingo were started, Keith Hickson being named chairman.

Guest speaker at the meeting was John Defeyter, who presented a film on the Netherlands and answered numerous questions on his native country. He was introduced by Ron Barnett and thanked by Wes Freeland.

Legion bids farewell to padre, plays host to District No. 12 assembly

The annual church parade of Legion Branch 70, Lachute, was held last Sunday at St. Mungo's Church, Cushing. The lesson was read by Comrade President R. O. MacLean. The parade was held in Cushing to wish farewell to the Legion padre, the Rev. Ralph Watson, who is leaving in a few weeks' time for a church in St. Eustache.

In the afternoon the Lachute Branch played host to the Laurentian District No. 12 Council, meeting at the Memorial Hall on Foundry Street.

The meeting, under chairmanship of the District Commander, Comrade E. Kneeland, was called to order by the local president, Comrade R. O. MacLean.

Reports of the District branches were presented to the District Commander and Deputy Commander, Comrade T. O'Neill, by Comrades J. Coney of Lachute Branch 70, M. Stein of Ste. Agathe Branch 9, H. Steele of Brownsburg Branch 71, and the secretary of the Council, H. Elias, Morin Heights Branch 171. It was noted with regret that two Branch delegates, of St. Sauveur and Montebello, were unable to attend. Numerous interested members of Lachute Branch were present and at the close of the assembly a buffet supper was served by the local Ladies' Auxiliary.

1952 Flood damage claim before Ayersville Council

An adjourned meeting of the Ayersville Council last week devoted considerable time to the purchase of a truck (as reported in last issue). Other details occupying the session, under chairmanship of Councillor Doug Simon, included the granting of construction permits — one to Albert Meyer, Rivington, for a residence on Brownsburg Road, and another to Hervé Lalonde, for a house on Tessier Street.

A letter was read from the Mayor of Lachute, requesting a joint meeting between the two councils to discuss settlement of costs in construction of the collector sewer, and also a sewer to serve the future Regional Hospital.

Claim for Flood Damage

Zenephon Plouffe, watercourse surveyor, was called upon to report his findings in connection with an overflow which damaged the basement of Mme Bernadette Ranger's property in January, 1952. He stated there was no doubt that overflow from a blocked ditch was the cause; water had flowed from its normal course and circulated around the property.

Mme Ranger was present, and stated that her foundation had been undermined by water repeatedly flooding the basement. Damage was as high as $2,000, and she insisted that the damage be repaired. Her husband had appeared before the Council in March 1952 and the mayor at that time had assured him the repairs would be made. Mr. Ranger had died shortly afterwards, there had been changes in mayors and councils, and in spite of her continued requests the claim had been neglected to a point where the house was now almost inhabitable.

Councillor Doug Simon, in the absence of the mayor, reminded the claimant that the present council had formed a committee of inquiry on her complaint, and they had reported the foundation of the house was inadequate. He now suggested — and the proposal was unanimously accepted — that a contractor be asked to investigate and report on the exact state of the foundation and the house.

Councillor Wilfrid Durocher was appointed pro-mayor for a three-month period, and the meeting was adjourned until Monday, September 15.

Legion 70 sponsors adult anti-polio vaccine clinic

Argenteuil Branch 70 of the Canadian Legion is sponsoring an anti-polio vaccination clinic for adults, to be held Thursday, October 2, in the Legion Memorial Hall on Foundry Street. Vaccinations will be administered to adults free of charge during the afternoon hours, 2 to 4 p.m. and in the evening between the hours of 7 and 9.

Local doctors and nurses will be in attendance to give the polio vaccine shots to all adults of Lachute, Ayersville and surrounding areas. Persons who missed the recent Brownsburg clinic are cordially invited to attend.

Any adult, especially in the 20-40 age groups, desiring protection from paralytic polio is urged to take advantage of present Salk vaccine supplies, which have been made available at no cost by the Provincial Department of Health, in co-operation with the Quebec Chapter of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, which is sponsored by the Canadian Legion Quebec Command.

Three shots of Salk vaccine are necessary. The second clinic will be held on Thursday, October 30, and the final clinic will be held approximately six months thereafter — the date to be announced later. These shots will be available only at the specified clinic dates and anyone missing the first shot on October 2 will be unable to commence shots in this clinical series.

Of special note is the fact that there are three types of polio virus and a person who has recovered from disease caused by one type is not necessarily immune to the other two. . . The vaccine protects against all three types.

The Lachute Legion has annually supported the March of Dimes campaign, and is proud to sponsor this clinic for the benefit of all adults in the area as one of its community service projects for 1958.

Arrangements for the clinic are under the chairmanship of Bernard Jenkins, Lachute Legion, and final details will be announced next week.

Estimated new capital investment in Canada in 1958 with respect to construction, equipment and machinery, and repairs will be $8,521,000,000, about 2.3 per cent lower than in 1957.

LEGION NOTES

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

Well, the fall season has been launched with many activities around the branch for all members.

The combined Teen-age Dance and Corn Boil was a real success, as evidenced by the small amount of corn left from some 100 dozen ears prepared. The method employed in the preparation was original and many people commented on the flavor of the just-ripe corn.

The annual Picnic, although held rather late in the season, was also a complete success. Horse shoes, pony rides, races and nail-driving, provided events for all, and were much enjoyed. The most entertaining event was the veterans' high jump. We note that Ken Riley cleared two feet gracefully? It was a gala day for the kiddies, with a gift for each one present. The committee in charge of this event are to be congratulated. Special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bradford and family for the use of their spacious North River grounds and facilities.

The annual Legion church parade was held on Sunday, September 14, to St. Mungo's United Church, Cushing. Marching from Com. Elliott's store, some 40 veterans, including lady members, filed into this ancient stone church situated picturesquely in a maple grove close by the Ottawa River. The colors were received by Com. Rev. J. R. Watson, Padre of 131 Battery (Reserve Unit). The scripture lesson was read by Legion President R. O. MacLean. While the children filed out of the church to Sunday School in the newly-erected hall to the strains of "Birds are Singing, Words are Ringing", we could not help but think how well these words suited the day. The sun streaming in through the stained window glass — our thoughts went back over the years to other children who had frequented this building, and to those hardy souls who had built such lasting quality into this structure. Plain, true, but a quaint beauty which has been preserved over the years. From the heavy pews, the checked balcony supports, to the very high pulpit located at the extreme front centre of the church, a solidarity exists which may well endure another hundred years. Truly, this is a link with the past which should be preserved, if at all possible.

The Rev. Watson in his opening remarks felt that he had never before seen so many familiar faces among guests attending church from another community. He welcomed the officers and members of the Lachute Legion on behalf of the session and congregation. During his sermon the Rev. Watson outlined for the congregation the purpose and value of the church in the midst of the community which it serves. He pointed out that community life gathered and scattered from this central point, but that as the members scattered to their daily tasks, homes and organizations, they would take the church with them.

Members of Branch 70 wish Padre Watson every success and happiness in the new charge which he has accepted.

We acknowledge with thanks the police escort provided by L. N. Cruise, of the Provincial Traffic Department.

A meeting of the Council of all District Branches was held in the Memorial Hall here Sunday afternoon, September 14, under chairmanship of District Commander E. A. Kneeland.

Members present represented Brownsburg, Ste. Agathe, Morin Heights and Lachute.

Several important issues were discussed among which were included:

(1) Existing vacancies for qualified veterans or their families in the new Chateauguay low-rental housing project.

(2) Increased per capita tax, part of which will contribute to the National Youth Training scheme.

(3) The strong feeling among veterans that November 11, Remembrance Day, should be declared a national holiday.

A lovely buffet lunch was served to delegates and friends after the meeting, by members of the Branch 70 Ladies' Auxiliary.

Tribute

We are sorry to record the passing of one of the stauncest members of this Branch, in the person of Comrade Thos. Stewart. Ever ready to assist with any project, he will be sorely missed. The late Thos. Stewart for many years served as chairman of the Sick and Relief Committee, Branch 70, and there were many instances where the relief given came from his own pocket. A veteran of the 1914-18 World War, Thos. Stewart served his country well under arms. On one recent occasion while visiting him in the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital, he gave us the outline of one action in which he took part, and we hope to record this, when details can be verified.

To the members of the Stewart family and their friends we, the members of Branch 70, offer our sincere sympathy.

Coming events include a Bingo to be held on Saturday, September 20, and the first Adult Anti-Polio Vaccine Clinic, to be held on October 2. All members are urged to support and assist with these two events.

Memento of Canada

A cozy beaver hat is modelled by Dr. Theodor Heuss, as the Germany community in Toronto welcomed the president of West Germany during his one-day visit to the city. The fur chapeau was presented to "Papa" Heuss as a memento of his visit to Canada, the first time a German head of state had set foot in Canada.

Symbols of triumph from top gymnastics meets

All these and lots more — bear testimony to the prowess of Lachute High School's three star gymnasts, coached by Arne Petersen to high triumphs in the Canadian Athletic Championship Games in August at Vancouver, and the Canadian National Exhibition more recently at Toronto. The two display boards bear the evidence of these recent successes.

Curlers' annual golf tournament and dinner Sept. 24

The second annual golf tournament of the Lachute Curling Club is being held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club on Wednesday, September 24. The competition will be followed by a dinner and social gathering in the evening.

The course will be open for play all day and players may start at any time, preferably before noon, in order to complete the 18 holes in good time.

If you plan to attend you are asked to advise the Club, so that dinner arrangements can be made.

Post-entries will be accepted by contacting H. Morrison or G. Davidson.

NIAGARA FRUIT BELT

A famous place for viewing almost the entire Niagara fruit belt is "The Point", on the escarpment overlooking the town of Grimsby, Ontario. The town, originally called The Forty, was settled in 1783 by United Empire Loyalists. One of its three parks is part of an 1812 parade ground.

Industries include a basket factory, winery, canning factory, planing mill, artificial-ice plant, and producers of hospital beds and equipment, stoves, furnaces and electrical equipment. Services include the weekly newspaper, six churches, a community centre with artificial ice, a hospital, district high school, and a library.

In the 10-year period 1948-1957 production of oil from Alberta well increased from 10.9 million barrels to 137.5 million barrels.

Dansereau Store "club" winner

L. Jos. Dumais is seen here receiving from L. P. Tremblay, the owner of Dansereau Store, Main Street, a certificate entitling him to $100 merchandise at the store.

This was the third "Gift Club" drawing at Dansereau's — the two previous drawings having been won by Miss F. Robertson and Miss Margaret MacKimmie, respectively.

This Club idea provides the means of accumulating one's purchases to $100, and thereby qualifying for the drawing of another $100. Mr. Tremblay reports the idea is becoming increasingly popular.

Pre-season view on NHL hockey

By Ron Andrews
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The six clubs of the National Hockey League soon will be in the midst of weeding out their best 19 players for the coming 1958-59 season.

With football nearing its peak and the World Series of baseball less than a month away, hockey crowds its way into the sports world with pre-season training.

At least 40 players are expected to drill with each team and the six coaches must choose what they consider to be the best to start the 70-game schedule.

For the first time in several years, most of the clubs will have nearly all last-season's players back. News of trades, which usually flourishes during the summer, was scarce this year. What bartering occurred was mainly confined to the minor leagues. None of the NHL teams seemed willing to part with players unless they could come up with a "battleship-for-a-rowboat" deal.

Montreal Canadiens sold left winger Bert Olmstead to Toronto Maple Leafs. During the summer he was sentenced to six months in a Vancouver jail on a charge of assault occasioning bodily harm. The conviction is under appeal.

St. Laurent to Hawks

The other Canadien regular to leave Montreal was defenceman Dollard St. Laurent, who went to Chicago Black Hawks in a cash deal.

Canadiens, who need players about as much as New York Yankees of the American Baseball League, picked up veterans Danny Lewicki and Dave Creighton from New York Rangers through the annual draft.

A few other Rangers were bought through the draft by other NHL clubs, and Detroit Red Wings made a deal which is yet to be completed with Chicago for veteran defenceman Gus Mortson.

Most of the lineup changes in the league will come from the minor leagues.

New York has some hot prospects from its American Hockey League farm team in Providence, R.I., and from Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Chicago also expects to strengthen with the addition of some farm hands. The Detroit team will be little changed from last season, according to reports out of the Wing front office. But from past performances, the Wings will probably insert some new talent before the training season is over.

There's been little news from Boston Bruins, who gave Canadiens a tough struggle in the Stanley Cup finals last year. On their play-off performance, Bruins seem to need little strengthening.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who finished in sixth place last season for the first time in the club's history, hope they have strengthened defensively with the addition of goaltender Johnny Bower and defenceman Steve Kraftchek, both acquired from Cleveland Barons of the AHL in the minor-league draft. Bower is expected to alternate goaltending duties with Ed Chadwick, last year's regular.

Most experts are already predicting Montreal to wind up in first place far ahead of the rest of the league, and then take the Stanley Cup for an unprecendented fourth straight year.

That leaves the other five clubs to battle for the other three play-off positions. Before the season ends next March the farm hands might prove to be the deciding factors.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I paid unemployment insurance contributions steadily from 1941 to 1957. I then moved to the U.S.A. where I make my permanent home. I think I am entitled to what I put into the fund with interest. Can I get it?

A. No. The unemployment insurance fund is not a savings account and therefore a refund of your unemployment insurance contributions cannot be made. However, under an agreement between the United States and Canada, to which nearly all the States have subscribed, you may have a claim for benefit taken by the U.S. office of Unemployment Insurance Compensation Board in your locality, should you become unemployed in the United States. You may be paid any benefit for which you qualify under the Canadian Unemployment Insurance Act.

Q. Does an employee lose his right to benefit if, after contributing for some time, he becomes not insurable because he is over the ceiling?

A. No. His rights are protected in any case for a further period of two years. It is also open to him, provided he has made at least 30 weekly contributions in the two years immediately preceding, to elect to continue as an insured person. (In such case his employer can require him to pay both the employer's and the employee's portion of the contributions.)

* * *

Q. My husband owns a store and employs me at $15 a week. Am I entitled to participate in the unemployment insurance plan?

A. No. Employment where the person employed is the husband or wife of the employer is expressly excluded by the Act.

DON'T USE IMPROPER FUSES

"Faulty wiring" is given as the cause of a surprisingly large number of fires. In many cases it might better be "Improper fuses".

The use of metal inserts or oversize fuses is dangerous.

In case of excess current or short circuit the wires will overheat and might cause a fire.

Fuses are safety devices. If fuses blow frequently, you are either overloading the system or something is wrong with the wiring or devices on that circuit.

Call a competent electrician in case of trouble.

the RENAULT Dauphine
lets you brag about being modest!

Tell your friends you average 44 m.p.g. in your RENAULT Dauphine and you're being modest! In a motor sports club Economy Run held in June, 1958, at Hamilton, Ont., a RENAULT Dauphine was the best, averaging 81.6 m.p.g. over a 90.7 mile course. Another very popular European car was second with 62 m.p.g. But, as the 81.6 m.p.g. were made under very favourable driving conditions, we of RENAULT would never claim that mileage for the type of driving you would do in a RENAULT Dauphine.
When choosing a car, be careful of exaggerated claims. Remember, the RENAULT Dauphine will average 44 m.p.g. really! And, it costs only $1825 fully equipped in Halifax, Saint John, N.B., Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.
For a demonstration, phone RENAULT at RI. 8-9661 or AV. 8-4291.

School and parental responsibility

FROM THE manager of the Lachute office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, Mr. G. A. Downing, came a statement headlined recently in this newspaper, to the effect that 45% of the men looking for work have 6th year schooling or less, and that only 26% of the ladies have this level of education or less.

These figures were quoted for the month of August. The report added: "Experience has shown that people with little education have much more difficulty in finding work and especially permanent and better salaried employment. Most of these less fortunate must content themselves with unskilled work with less remuneration, and often in seasonal industries which attract a larger number of workers than there are vacancies available. It is therefore very important for the younger generation to acquire a maximum degree of schooling." . . .

In a recent broadcast on the theme "Stay in School", Mr. Ira G. Needles, speaking on behalf of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, properly emphasized parental responsibility.

"Parents", said Mr. Needles, "should take the time and trouble to talk to school officials, join the home and school association, learn as much as possible about employment opportunities and needs in the locality and, above all, take a deep interest in the subjects and work of the student at school.

"With your guidance as a parent, children and young people will begin to realize that educated people are the ones who will benefit in the technological era in which we dwell. There will always be those people who work to live and there will always be others who live to work. It is my earnest hope that your child will live to work in the fascinating adventure of progress which will be the world of tomorrow." . . .

Sound advice. We commend it to all parents concerned, that they may never in later years have anything with which to reproach themselves.

A shadowy boundary line

HEART WARMING and illuminating is the September release of Royal Bank's "Monthly Letter" which — in facts, figures but chiefly sentiments — deals with the subject of Canada and her neighbor, the United States. We extract this morsel of philosophy and information on the physical boundary between these countries:

Once these two peoples were enemies, and now they are friends. They didn't make the change by thinking high and obscure thoughts about the brotherhood of man, but by learning in the uneasy school of experience that it is better business to be friendly, and only common sense to be neighborly.

Both nations are proud of their record in having one of the most artificial boundary lines in the world, a boundary whose shadowy quality is attested by many amusing incidents. In Rock Island, for instance, a man may get his hair cut in Canada and his shoes shined in the United States at the same time; and nearby a car driving along the highway from east to west is in Canada, but if it is going from west to east it is in the United States.

This boundary is crossed by more trade, travel, tourists, money, television and radio programs, trains, cars, newspapers, hockey, and goodwill than any other frontier in the world. Canadians and Americans do much the same things, and frequently do them together.

If anyone wishes to really understand the completeness of the disregard shown the border line, he should stand anywhere along the Niagara - Buffalo boundary on the first or fourth of July. Whether it be the celebration of American Independence or of Canadian Confederation, the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jacks are all mixed up together, as tourists pour back and forth over the international bridges.

It took a hundred years to lay out this boundary, about 3,300 miles in length between Canada and the United States, and an additional 1,540 miles between Canada and Alaska. It was not done without mistakes, some of them laughable now, though headaches at the time. For example, after the Americans had erected a fort at great expense near Rouse's Point, a survey revealed that it was on the Canadian side of the line. Did the countries go to war about the fort? The solution was simpler than that; they just moved the boundary line, so that the fort was on United States soil.

Northwest, where Ontario, Manitoba and Minnesota come together, a mistake in draughtsmanship made a little jog in the line, which encloses a section of mainland 10 to 12 miles, and about 100 islands. It contains the most northerly post office in the United States, and has a population of 100, but it can only be reached through Canada or by boat over Lake of the Woods.

Immunization Week coming up

NATIONAL Immunization Week will be celebrated for the 16th consecutive year throughout Canada commencing September 22. The observance is sponsored by the Health League of Canada in co-operation with Health Departments.

During this week it is specially stressed that every child in Canada should be protected against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, poliomyelitis and smallpox. Immunization against these diseases has been developed to a high point of efficiency, which has been instrumental in lowering the toll of death and sickness, but it is only through repeated reminders that Canadians will take advantage of immunization and safeguard their families. . . . National Immunization Week is designed to overcome this apathy.

Fisheries vital in world economy

THE POPULATION of the world is increasing at a faster rate than man can boost production of food from the soil.

Many countries, including Canada, recognize this as a potential danger to mankind and are attempting to develop methods to increase food production.

This includes greater per-acre productivity and the opening of non-arable land for production of foodstuffs. The latter objective may be reached through fertilizers.

However, man also is looking to the seas of the world to provide more food. Some scientists say that if the world's population continues to increase at its present rate the seas, along with rivers and lakes, may become the main source of food.

Canada and other countries are doing some research in connection with the conservation of fish stocks and methods to increase them. But fishery scientists say the work will have to be vastly stepped up if the sea in the future is to become a major source of food.

Less than two per cent of man's total food intake comes from the sea. Despite this, fishing waters in many areas of the world are showing signs of becoming exhausted. One of the reasons for this is that edible fish usually take relatively long to mature.

One major challenge facing fishery scientists is the threat to edible fish posed by starfish, snails and crabs. These sea creatures consume about four times as much food per weight unit as the edible fish and also multiply more rapidly. As supplies of fish food are not inexhaustible, these species therefore threaten the growth of the edible sea creatures.

Fishery scientists also are investigating the possibility of extracting new forms of nourishment from the sea. A great deal of this work is being done by Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland.

Viewpoints and perspectives

LACHUTE, it seems, was not caught napping in a situation which is peculiar to thriving towns and suburbs. Our contemporary, The Huntingdon Gleaner, says: "The time is ripe for our school boards to be on the lookout for desirable school sites, that may be required in the not too distant future. The school population in Huntingdon has doubled during the past decade. What will be the case in another 10 years time?"

NOW THAT school's in again, youngsters will be coming and going at the usual hours. So be on the lookout, Mr. Motorist. Your caution will help to avoid accidents.

— Trenton (Ont.) Trentonian

CYCLISTS who travel along the highway in a group should always ride in single file. Children riding their bikes to school should not ride side by side with other cyclists. The cyclist has no chance whatsoever to avoid injury or death when an accident occurs.

TO KEEP UP with all these products that manufacturers insist are necessary for even a decent standard of living, a family cannot live on the earnings of the average man, and either the woman works or the family lives below modern standards. So housekeeping is joining the ranks of the lost arts.

What Radio History was made from Glace Bay?

Radio history was made at Glace Bay, N.S., when it became the first place in North America to establish radio communication with Europe. Marconi, inventor of the radio, first made contact with Europe by radio in 1902 from a nearby promontory named Table Head. The settlement is described as primarily a mining town, with the Dominion Coal Company operating the highly-mechanized coal mines that stretch far out under the sea. Other industries include the shore fisheries and two plants to freeze and process the fish. Glace Bay was named for the spring ice, blown in from the Gulf of St. Lawrence, that often packs the bay.

Who was Klondike Mike?

One of numerous famous participants in the Klondike and other gold rushes around the turn of the century was Klondike Mike, who gained fame for his feats of prowess and endurance. Michael Ambrose Mahoney was born near Buckingham, Quebec, in 1878, and died at Ottawa in 1949. Among his feats was a winter trek out from Fairbanks with the body of Judge Humes of Seattle. He once carried a piano over the Chilkoot Pass. At the age of 14 he went to Michigan where he worked for three years in his uncle's lumber mill and gained a reputation as an athlete and fighter. He was in Washington State when the Klondike gold rush began, and after a series of adventures arrived in Dawson in October, 1897. During the next two winters he carried mail out of Dawson; between 1901 and 1904 he carried mail from Nome to Prince of Wales.

He took part in more than half a dozen rushes in the Yukon and Alaska, and after making a rich strike in 1910, returned to Ottawa to engage in business.

When was the First Canadian Yachting Club formed?

Sailing, once considered a rich man's sport, now is an extremely popular form of recreation with several hundred active clubs representing every province. The first step toward organization of yachting was the formation in 1837 of the Halifax Yachting Club. It has now become the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron. Other early organizations included the Toronto Boat Club — now the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto — formed in 1852, and a Quebec City group organized in 1861.

The first yacht-racing association, the Lake Yacht Racing Association of Lake Ontario, was founded in 1884. Its member clubs did much to increase interest in sailing. The St. Lawrence Valley Yacht Racing Association sponsors winter training courses for its junior clubs. As a result, the North American Junior Sailing Championship was won for Canada for the first time in 1954 by Harry Jemmett and his crew of the Kingston Yacht Club.

The Earthly House

The following poem was reproduced in a recent issue of Canadian Lions News, dedicated by the editor to "a much loved and venerable friend, International Counsellor Lion JACK GILES". It was read at the Argenteuil Women's Institutes annual convention this year, and is re-printed in response to a special request at that time.

"A house . . . eternal in the Heavens" 2 Cor. 5: 1

You tell me I am getting old, but that's not really so,
The house I live in may be worn and that of course I know,
It's been in use a good long while and weathered many a gale,
I'm therefore not surprised to find it's getting somewhat frail.

You tell me I am getting old, you mix my house with me,
You're looking at the outside, that's all that most folks see,
The dweller in the little house is young and bright and gay,
Just starting on a life that lasts through long, eternal day.

The color changing on the roof, the windows looking dim,
The walls a bit transparent and getting rather thin,
The foundation's not so steady as once it used to be
And that is all that you observe, but it's not really me.

I patch the old house up a bit to make it last the night,
But soon I shall be flitting to my home of endless light.
I'm going to live for ever there, my life goes on, it's grand;
How can you say I'm getting old? You do not understand.

These few short years, can't make me old, I feel I'm in my youth,
Eternity lies just ahead, full of life and joy and truth.
We will not fret to see this house grow shabby day by day
But look ahead to our new Home which never will decay.

My house is getting ready in the Land beyond the sky,
Its Architect and Builder is my Saviour now on high;
But I rather think He's leaving the furnishing to me,
So its "treasure up in Heaven" I must store each day you see.

(Beth Coombe Harris, The Haven, Heathfield, Sussex).

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Stay Young!

A magazine gathered a group of experts for a barnstorming session and came up with 143 ways to stay young. A careful reading of this mass of ideas disclosed one strong central suggestion common to them all:

To stay young, welcome change!

One expert, for example, recommended trying a new route to the office or job for a change. Another suggested changing pace, working at top speed for a whole week to get a feeling of zest and accomplishment. A third expert (a woman) recommended increasing your wife's household allowance voluntarily!

All the way down the line, the hint was there — to experience a new lease on life, be willing to change . . . indeed, initiate some changes of your own. How much sense does this make?

I can only say that simply reading these ideas made me feel younger. That is the inevitable result of change and challenge! Boredom and apathy disappear when you toss away a few blueprints and jump free from old ruts. That's why smart homemakers frequently rearrange furniture, or change the color of the living room drapes.

Did you ever wonder why pioneers leave their homeland and strike out to newer, younger countries? They keep young in mind and spirit by getting away from the old, from the cut-and-dried routine of a safe but dull existence.

Men and nations need the challenge of change to keep young and vigorius in spirit. That's why those countries which adopt some central blueprinted plan, like socialism, thrive very briefly at the beginning of the experiment and then fade quickly into dullness and finally into poverty. The zip and zest of change is gone when a central authority places rigid controls on citizens, instead of leaving them maximum freedom to change and experiment and grow.

Men often let the years stamp them with that same rigidity. How foolish! Tomorrow, for a change, get out and romp with the youngsters — find a new route to your office or job — wear a flower in your lapel — bring home a present for the family. Make a change. It will keep you young.

Eloquent Warning

We noticed the following slogan on a State of Vermont Motor Vehicle Dept. inspection slip:

Drive like a Christian
Not like the devil;
The rites you demand
May be your last.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Recently I paid a visit to the Canadian National Railway's museum train which has been rolling across the country for five years.

It was almost my last chance. Soon the train will be shunted into a siding and put in mothballs for an indefinite time.

The train was crowded. Railway fans who ranged in age from greybeards to small children were gazing with affectionate interest at the antique rolling stock and the assortment of last spikes, potbellied stoves, curious old lanterns, luggage racks entwined with Victorian curlicues, sections of rail, including a chunk of ironbound wooden rail from the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway — Canada's first — china and silverware carrying the monograms of half-forgotten roads, and other tools, comforts and documents from the past.

As I edged my way through the train, I wondered whether an antique airplane or an aged moon rocket would get the same attention from future generations as the old train drew in our time.

After thinking the matter over, I doubt it. No other form of transportation over land has ever reached the public heart in the same way as the train. An airplane is an exciting vehicle, but it zooms into the sky and vanishes. It doesn't rumble along through cities and orchards, over bridges where kids are fishing in the creek, past urban back yards where women are hanging out the washing, and lonely farmhouses where small boys wave to the engineer and the engineer waves back.

A train conveys the feeling of adventure and far places; and yet it never loses touch with the earth and with people. It is attainable. An airplane is aloof. It waggles its rudder at the populace, roars with contempt and whirls away into a foreign element.

A train, like a ship, seems to have a personality. It is a living town on wheels, with city limits that stretch away out in distance, and away back in time, and it makes a man think of the summer days when he saw the train go thundering past, the engineer's hand lifted in greeting from his high perch; and the nights when he heard the old whistle of the steam locomotive, on its way to far, unimaginable places.

Some people say that passenger trains are losing money, and that they will soon be obsolete. I hope it isn't true. To my mind train travel is the most enjoyable way to get from one place to another, on land. It unrolls the country for you like a movie, close enough so that you can see the trees, houses and people. It gives you time to relax and think.

A lot of people are interested in trains — old trains and old railway gear, such as the CNR has been showing to the nation, and modern trains too. The railways have a huge reserve of public goodwill to draw upon. All they must do is convert some of that goodwill into cash at the ticket window.

Automation Now Is Bread-Maker

This machine has put automation into the bread-making business. It cost nearly a million dollars to build and install and its end product is a 22-cent loaf of bread. But it can turn out 4,500 loaves per hour, taking in flour, sugar, salt, water, milk and shortening at one end and spewing out wrapped, sliced bread at the other. It is in operation in Toronto and is the third such machine on the continent.

North Battleford, Sask. (CP) — This bustling prairie city claims to be the transportation hub of west-central Saskatchewan. From it run 12 railway lines and nine highways.

Electronic cockpit trains TCA pilots for new jetliners

Trans-Canada Air Lines' pilots will be "flying" sleek, 550-mile-an-hour DC-8 Jetliners in September of 1959 — months before many of them ever see one.

They'll do their "flying" in a DC-8 simulator — a million-dollar electronic mock-up of the DC-8 cockpit, complete in every detail and capable of doing anything the aircraft can do, except leave the ground.

Built by Link Aviation Company, of Link Trainer fame, the simulator will be installed in TCA's new $20,000,000 maintenance and overhaul base at Dorval Airport.

Both flight crews and ground crews will be "checked out" on the machine, saving the airline may hundreds of thousands of dollars and countless man-hours each year.

It costs close to $1,000-an-hour to fly a DC-8 jet; $35 an hour to "fly" the simulator.

The simulator will be fully electronic, employing many of the same principles used to guide "moon" rockets into outer space, including a "magic brain" of multiple computers, digesting information and resolving it in the form of instrument readings and machine reactions.

One of the "accessories" available for the machine is a closed circuit TV system which "flies" with the simulator around a scale-model airport, complete with trees, buildings and telephone poles. The camera portrays the airport as appearing from cloud cover at 300 feet. Pilots can do "visual" approaches, runway circuits, landings and take-offs as though they were actually sitting in the cockpit of an airborne DC-8. . .

It is not yet known whether or not TCA will purchase this accessory which will require a wall at least 90 feet long on which to erect the model airport.

INSPIRED

The notion that modern invention comes exclusively from richly endowed laboratories peopled with white-jacketed teams of men with doctorates is false, says the September issue of Reader's Digest. Thomas Edison, for example, was limited to three months in public school. A distraught father, 100 years ago, bent a piece of wire into the world's first safety pin, thus taking the sting out of life for millions of infants. Household complaints and accidents have inspired such inventions as dishwashers, automatic clothes dryers, electric mixers.

The Bible Today

The Bible is the great book of Revivals. Wherever there has been Bible Study, there has followed a deepened Spiritual life, new missionary activity, and fresh philanthropic effort.

This has been seen in history, in the Puritan era in England and America; in the Pietist movement in Germany, and in the 18th century Evangelical revival in England. This last alone, for instance, resulted in such a demand for Bibles that the British and Foreign Bible Society had to be founded in 1804. That the Society has kept the faith is shown in its tremendous record to date of over 650 million scriptures issued at a cost of well over 80 million dollars. And still the demand increases and the work expands! Truly, by God's grace this great Society possesses a unique and unearthly power.

PUBLIC NOTICE

W. A. Cox, former Lachute man, takes bride at Kitchener

Cox - MacKay

The Rev. O. P. Hossie and the Rev. J. Ure Stewart, of Moorefield, a cousin of the bride, officiated Saturday, August 30, at the wedding of Marion Elizabeth MacKay and Mr. William Archibald Cox, of Kitchener, Ont.

Standards of white gladioli and candles provided the setting at Trinity United Memorial Chapel. Mr. John Pearce was organist, and the soloist was Mr. Fred Lehman.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs James M. MacKay and the late Mr. MacKay, of Kitchener. The bridegroom is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cox, of Lachute.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. R. Laurence MacKay, of Embro, the bride wore a formal gown of silk nylon organza styled with fitted bodice and brief puff sleeves. The bouffant skirt, worn over bridal satin, formed a chapel train, and her fingertip veil was of tulle illusion. A double cascade of white gladioli and chiffon roses was carried by the bride.

Miss Mary Stadelbauer, of Kitchener, was maid of honor, and bridesmaid was Miss Naoma Bauman, of Elmira. They wore ballerina gowns of mystic blue silk faille featuring fitted bodices, deep folded necklines and bouffant skirts. They wore matching accessories and feather headdresses, and carried double cascades of pink gladioli and stephanotis.

Mr. Russell Noble, of Lachute, was best man for his brother-in-law, and ushers were Mr. J. Willard MacKay and Mr. Dwight M. MacKay, of Embro, cousins of the bride.

Receiving at the Walper Hotel, the bride's mother wore a blue crepe dress trimmed with lace inserts and black accessories. A pink rose and carnation corsage completed her ensemble. Mrs. Russell Noble of Lachute, sister of the bridegroom, assisted, wearing a Copen blue silk dress and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses and carnations.

For travelling to the Laurentians, the bride chose a Royal blue suit and black accessories. A blue carnation corsage and a necklace, the bridegroom's gift, enhanced her costume.

The couple will live in Kitchener.

Battle of Britain Sunday recalls epic endurance

Battle of Britain Sunday, in honor of the famous "few" who fought and died in the vital air battles to save Britain in the dark days of 1940, was marked at RCAF units on Sunday by church parades and special services.

The dates of July 10 and October 31, 1940, have been accepted as marking the opening and the termination of the Battle of Britain, which reached its peak on September 15, 1940, when the Luftwaffe suffered its major defeat over Britain. Each year since then, members of the RAF and RCAF have commemorated the victory on Sunday, September 15, or the nearest Sunday after the 15th, as Battle of Britain Sunday.

First seeking to crush RAF fighter defences by heavy attacks on airfields, aircraft factories, harbours, shipping and radio-location factories, Goering's airmen then turned to London. Swarms of bombers and fighters smashed at the British capital in an attempt to bring the people to their knees. But the tireless efforts of the small band of RAF pilots in their Spitfires and Hurricanes dealt such stunning losses to the German attackers that Hitler was forced to ease his daylight aerial offence. Although night bombing continued, the Battle of Britain was won and the immediate threat of invasion removed.

The historic battle has special significance for the RCAF. It was the Force's baptism of fire when, in August 1940, No. 1 Squadron of the RCAF (later designated 401 Squadron, flew into action against the enemy near London, won its first victories and suffered its first casualties. Another fighter squadron, No. 242 of the RAF Fighter Command, and composed of Canadian pilots in the RAF, also won for the RAF and Canada great distinction for its action during the prolonged air battle.

Forty-seven Canadian officers and men serving with the RAF and RCAF gave their lives in the Battle of Britain. They served not only in Fighter Command, but in Bomber and Coastal Commands as well.

Minister is married in ceremony of district interest; to reside in Penticton

Kendall - Davis

In the Ephraim Scott Memorial Church, Montreal, the marriage took place recently of Sheila Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie T. Davis, of Notre Dame de Grace, to the Rev. Frederick Ralph Kendall, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kendall, of Ottawa — the Rev. J. S. McBride officiating. Mr. Michael Witham played the wedding music and the soloist was Mr. Val Smiley. Pink and white gladioli and chrysanthemums were used to decorate.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white delustered satin, with yoke, long sleeves, and front panel of Chantilly lace and having hand-cut appliques of the same lace extending down the front of the bodice from the yoke and around the neckline, being embroidered with tiny pearls. The skirt was very full, with unpressed pleats, falling from a dropped waistline. Her four-tiered circular veil of tulle illusion was held by a tiara headpiece of tiny pearls and crystal of red roses and tiny white nuggets. She wore a string of cultured pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Patricia Kendall, sister of the groom, acted as maid of honor for the bride, and Misses Sylvia Scott and Marilyn Wermett as bridesmaids. All three attendants were dressed alike, in princess dresses of crystal charm having large bows and streamers at the back — the maid of honor being in turquoise and the bridesmaids in coral. They all wore crownless hats made of the same material as their dresses, having hand-made rose petals around the crown. They carried nosegays of pink and white carnations.

Little Miss Robin Gilbert, second cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl. She was dressed in a very full and short skirted dress of turquoise crystal charm, with a large back bow and trimmed with tiny pink flowers. She wore a hat similar to the other attendants and carried a basket of pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. James Hutchison, of Ottawa, was best man for Mr. Kendall. The ushers were Mr. Goodwill McDougall and Mr. John Kendall, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Davis, mother of the bride, wore a sheath gown of Dior blue, pure silk organza over taffeta with appliques of lace embroidered with tiny pearls. There was an overskirt caught up at the left side with a large bow. She wore a hand-made feather hat, the same shade as her dress. Her corsage was made up of pink roses. Mrs. Kendall, mother of the groom, chose a dress of white lace over beige taffeta with a full bustle-type back. She wore a large matching hat and mink stole. Her corsage was of yellow roses. Mrs. Helen Scott, grandmother of the bride, wore a gown of old rose crepe and lace with black hat and accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

The reception was held in the vice-regal suite of the Ritz Carleton Hotel, where the floral arrangements were of pink snapdragons and white mums.

Later the Rev. and Mrs. Kendall left to take up residence in Penticton, B.C., stopping off at Winnipeg and Banff en route. The bride travelled in a navy blue English wool suit, white imported feather hat, white blouse and gloves and red shoes and purse. She carried a light beige overcoat. Her corsage was of red Sweetheart roses.

There were out-of-town guests from Ottawa, Winnipeg, Cleveland, Ohio, Pottstown, Pa., Philadelphia, Pa., Brownsburg, Que., Asbestos, Que., and South Burnaby, B.C.

The bride is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Davis who resided at Brownsburg for many years — Mr. Davis and other members of the family being employed at the C-I-L plant there. (Mr. J. B. Davis also contributed prose and poetry to The Watchman under the pen name of "Ryhos".)

Burning of mortgage on parish house at Morin Heights

Morin Heights — A ceremony attended by church and civic dignitaries was held on the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Voce in Morin Heights last Saturday afternoon, to burn the mortgage on the Anglican Parish House. Greetings were brought by Mayor Charles Campbell, the Rev. C. Westhaver, and Mr. Donald MacLeod. The mortgage papers stubbornly refused to ignite for some moments, but with the persistence of the treasurer, Mr. S. J. Voce, the ceremony was fittingly carried out by the rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh.

Among those present were Mayor and Mrs. Campbell, Col. and Mrs. Garnet M. Strong, Col. and Mrs. J. H. Wallis, Mrs. John H. Molson, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Fisher, Mr. Jack Kennedy, and others representing the parish.

Afternoon tea was served, and the sum of approximately $205 was realized.

Golphin - Warwick

The marriage of Eunice Ethel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Warwick, of Brownsburg, to Bernard John Golphin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Golphin, of Brownsburg, took place Saturday, September 13, at 3.30 o'clock in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg — the Rev. K. R. Davis officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. K. R. Davis played the wedding music and the soloist, Mrs. Leonard Armstrong, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love". Baskets of pink and white gladioli decorated the church.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of peau-de-faille fashioned on Empire lines, with a fitted bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace, having a decolletage neckline, encrusted with seed pearls and sequins, with long sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a very full skirt with pouffs forming a bustle effect at the back. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a matching lace and faille headdress and she carried a bouquet of deep pink Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. William Todd, as matron of honor for her sister, Mrs. John Blute and Miss Joanna Steele, as bridesmaids, were in gowns styled alike in emerald green taffeta, fashioned with decolletage neckline, brief sleeves and bouffant skirts, with back panels falling from draped waistlines. They wore matching feathered hats and shoes, and carried bouquets of bronze and white mums.

Mr. William Todd acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Irvin Warwick and Mr. Robert Golphin.

The bride's mother wore a gown of bouquet blue crepe and lace with a decolletage neckline of lace. She wore a matching petal trimmed hat, white gloves, black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Golphin, mother of the groom, wore a sapphire blue sheath gown, coral hat and gloves, with black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following a reception in the church hall, Mr. and Mrs. Golphin left by motor for Niagara Falls and points in the United States, the bride wearing a brown wool suit, mint green hat and gloves, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The couple will reside in Montreal.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

"Healing of the Nations Has Drawn Near!"

Only God's kingdom, which you pray for in the Lord's Prayer, will heal all nations. Six thousand years of a violently changing pattern of governments have proved man's inability to rule himself in absolute justice and peace. But relief is already in sight! In our generation the start toward universal reconstruction has been made! Already Jehovah God is gathering together the beginning of a new nation destined to live on earth forever. Its nationals come from all families of the earth. You can join them! Read . . .

"HEALING OF THE NATIONS HAS DRAWN NEAR".

Price 5 cents, or 3 copies for 10 cents.

Write 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto, Ont., or ask any Jehovah's Witnesses whom you meet, anywhere. They will be glad to serve you.

Written Specially for
The Lachute Watchman
By Edna Usher
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The balloon back and the Empire line have spread from dresses and suits to the latest in fur coats, judging by the fashion display by a leading Italian fur house of garments manufactured in Canada.

Stoles, capes, boleros, jackets, three-quarter and full-length coats have been adapted to the new silhouette, and even the chemise line has been modified for presentation in fur.

This winter's fur coats, too, will probably be more colorful than in the past, with lighter shades of brown and grey prominent.

Trimmings in contrasting fur have been used at cuff, belt, hem or collar. Furs used include chinchilla, mink, Russian sable, Persian lamb, Brazilian otter and Alaska seal.

School Lunches

Now the children are back at school, the lunch box problem has returned for mothers. Dorothy Batchellor, home economics director for the Poultry Products Institute of Canada, says there's a danger that mothers may satisfy the child's appetite without providing adequate nutrition.

A jam sandwich, for example, satisfies hunger pangs but does not provide needed substance for body building and repair. But a meat, poultry or cheese sandwich will satisfy "the hidden needs for growing young bodies."

She advises mothers to tack up a copy of "Canada's Food Rules" in the kitchen, and check the menus by them.

These show that every lunch box should contain: milk in some form (beverage, soup or dessert); meat, poultry, fish, eggs or cheese; fruit or vegetable; bread, rolls, or muffins and butter or margarine.

If you have the essentials, extras like candy, cakes, cookies or pastries can be added.

Most houses today are escaping farther and farther from traditional lines. Two new types recently shown the public involved the latest in split-level design, and featured a games room in addition to the usual living, sleeping and dining space.

In one house, the lounge and games room were in the basement, opening directly on to the lawn, and the kitchen on the upper ground level was just off the hallway.

Ideas in furnishing included wall television (inset in the wall, it looks like a hanging picture); and vertical instead of horizontal venetian blinds.

Fall Clothes

Some odd notes appear with the fall fashion. Some stores are selling wigs of brightly-colored nylon material as the pages of time are turned backward.

But clothes generally will be less ornamented. Materials will be chunky and rougher (mohair is expected to be popular) and colors will be rich rather than gaudy.

A "Fish Week" Adventure . . .

Broiled fish – coffee flavor!

Broiled Steaks au Beurre Café

The fishing industry's annual Fish and Seafood Buffet held in Ottawa to mark the opening of National Fish Week presented ample opportunity for guests to sample enticing fare from our coastal and inland waters. There was awesome appeal for eyes and palates in the whole salmon and whole halibut decked out specially for the occasion by the chefs at the Chateau Laurier. Such dishes rank with the most regal fare.

It's not necessary to wait for a special occasion, however, to enjoy these fish. Steaks are always available, fresh or frozen, and prices and supplies right now are good. The control of time and temperature when fish is broiled is a sure guarantee of moist flavorful steaks. The following method uses a surprise ingredient in the form of instant coffee which has an unusual effect in complimenting the naturally good flavor of the fish. The Fisheries Council of Canada recommends it particularly for halibut steaks, and we think you'll like it too with varieties such as salmon and cod.

Broiled Steaks au Beurre Café

2 Pounds fish steaks (halibut, salmon, etc.), 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon instant coffee, ¼ cup melted butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon onion salt.

If steaks are frozen, let them thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature. Combine lemon juice with instant coffee; add to melted butter with onion salt and parsley. Brush liberally on fish steaks. Broil, 3 inches from heat, 5 minutes. Turn fish; brush again with butter mixture. Broil 5 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Brush again with butter mixture; sprinkle with more parsley if desired and serve. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

(Consumer-tested recipe released through Fisheries Council of Canada.)

MUSIC FOR CHILDREN

Montreal (CP) — When Eugene Kash was a youngster, he had to seek out adults to share the excitement music gave him, because he found few children his own age interested in music.

The former musical director of the National Film Board now has a musical television program, "Magic of Music," and has become a one-man mission bringing good music to youngsters.

Mr. Kash, who began playing the violin at age five in his native Toronto, said: "It's important that children become interested at an early age. You cannot be as successful with teen-agers who have built up an ego and tend to resist."

If people would dare to speak to one another unreservedly, there would be a good deal less sorrow in the world a hundred years hence. — Samuel Butler

Leotards for kids

Leotard tights, a recent high-style sportswear creation, are being made for Canadian children for the first time this fall. It is a style that seems ideal for this climate. Most are made in the new stretch nylon yarns which offer warmth as well as rugged wear.

They are shown with one co-ordinated ensemble for girls which includes a middy top and "scampies", which are a combination of Bermuda-length shorts and a pleated skirt.

The leotards are in vivid colors and also seem suitable for wear with the shorter-length chemise and trapeze fashions which have a "leggy" look.

Ayers fabric in fall fashions

Coat and hat news for fall in a Canadian wool fleece fabric by Ayers Ltd., Lachute. A high, wide and handsome hat echoes the fullness released from a wide-seamed yoke in the double breasted coat. Designed by Lore Maria Wiener of Vancouver, this was shown in the premiere of the Fall-Winter Collection of the Association of Canadian Couturiers in Vancouver, B.C., on September 15, and will be shown in Calgary and Winnipeg.

The flapper look

The flapper look of the chemise with the pleated hemline flounce, newest interpretation of fashion's favorite silhouette, is shown in a Toronto design. The fabric is a Canadian-made acetate tissue faille and the dress is untrimmed except for the back streamers.

Many ways to serve peaches

When asked to describe their favorite fresh peach dishes, Consumer Section staff had so many good suggestions, it was decided to share them with you! Why don't you get a basket of peaches today, while they are still available, and try them all these favorite ways, too?

Peaches Served Raw

1. Well washed with a brush to remove fuzz, then either cut into a few pieces or left whole and eaten out of hand.
2. Peeled and sliced with nothing else added, OR served with white or brown sugar and cream if desired.
3. Served sliced (with or without sugar) over vanilla ice cream.
4. Sliced and let stand in mixture of wine and honey for several hours before serving.
5. Diced or sliced and mixed with other fruits in a fruit salad cup.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

The one-child family

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

The one-child family is fairly common in Canada and usually parents are anxious that their child should not be spoiled. They have heard the old saying: "Only child — lonely child" and they are eager to compensate for the lack of brothers and sisters.

Contrary to the ideas of many people, scientific research has shown that only children are likely to become self-confident, aggressive grownups. Their security is not threatened by others in the family and this preferred position often produces youngsters who are individualists. But usually they adapt themselves to the demands of others, and are capable of assuming responsibility for leadership in games or enterprises.

A modern father and mother as a rule acknowledge that adult companionship can never fill the child's need for friends his own age. No matter how understanding a mother may be, or how devoted is a father's love, still parents are only parents. They, belonging to the world of grown-ups, are not "Little People!"

The only child, rarely if ever, suffers from neglect, but rather from too much attention. Since birth he has held the centre of the stage. Because there was only one baby in the family, he seemed extra precious. Mother was tempted to be too protective in her attitude to him.

Thus it happens that unless parents guard against the dangers in the only child's environment, they may develop either a little "show-off" or a "mother's baby." Neither of these roles is popular with playmates. Nor does it make for happiness.

A certain amount of rough and tumble play for school age children, especially boys, is inevitable. The mother of an only child must not prevent him from climbing trees or riding a bicycle, or doing any of the numerous things a small boy delights to do. If his chums suspect a child is "tied to his mother's apron strings" they will taunt him.

His mother's fears for his personal safety may be catching. She should be just as anxious for his emotional developments as his personal safety. If she is too careful and too strict about everything he does, this is bound to produce a feeling of frustration and isolation. This may encourage a sense of inferiority or self-pity, which is far from healthy!

Parents of an only child sometimes question: "Would it be wise to have another child in our family, if necessary, by adoption?" Many families in recent years have discussed how happily their own child and an adopted brother or sister have gotten along. This may be impossible, but there are still practical ways to prevent the only child from being stranded on an island of loneliness.

He should have many chances to play with other children. His friends should be made welcome in his house. Vacations may provide a camp holiday or the opportunity for a cousin or friend to visit with him. When he is older, likely Cubs or Explorers will enrich his life.

A pet and hobbies are very important to the happiness of an only child. A love of music and reading are two resources for an only child. So is enthusiasm for the out-of-doors. These are a partial compensation to the child without brothers or sisters. All his spare time should not be spent on TV or listening to the radio or reading the comics.

A dress that is out of style or worn around the arms or collar can often start a new life as a jumper. Cut out neck and armholes and bind.

39th C.W.N.A. CONVENTION URGES :

Promote weekly newspapers as an important medium

There is an encouraging evidence that business and industry is beginning to realize more than ever the important market that weeklies serve in Canada, Hugh E. McCormick, of the Montreal Monitor and incoming president of the CWNA, told more than 400 delegates attending the 39th annual convention recently in Toronto.

But, he said, there never has been a time in the long and colorful history of the weekly newspaper industry in Canada, when there was a more urgent needs to promote weeklies as a key advertising media in the business of the nation.

The five million readers served in Canada by the weeklies were making an impression on advertisers, he said.

"For 100 years the weekly press has had its problems but nothing like today when competition from other media, rising costs, employee demands and so on, threaten our very existence as a force in our national life," Mr. McCormick said.

Mr. McCormick felt that the Better Newspapers Competitions of the CWNA were raising the excellence of weeklies. "An attractive looking paper is an added inducement to the advertiser," he pointed out.

Mr. McCormick said that the 725-odd weeklies in Canada were a big potential market whose impact on national life cannot be overestimated. He noted that of the 265 constituencies with seats in the House of Commons, 194 at last count, were served by weekly newspapers.

Mr. McCormick's keynote challenge was further supported by similar comment in several committee reports tabled at the convention.

One of the most important steps, he said, in advancement during the past year was the setting up of a promotion and public relations department at head office.

Cecil Day, of the Liverpool (N.S.) Advance, retiring president in his address opening the convention, hailed the formation of the promotion department as "a move long overdue."

Rising costs of publishing and printing were forcing weeklies to the crossroads, Mr. Day said. He felt many weeklies in Canada were now relying on their commercial printing but even with this, they were finding it difficult to satisfy the demands of employees on one side and the banker on the other.

Mr. Day appealed for united effort through CWNA. "Unless we are united," he said, "the road may be rough. When a weekly goes from a town, the town folds up too."

At Weekly Newspapers' annual convention

Gathering at the display of this year's entries in the Better Newspapers Competition at the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association's convention in Toronto recently, are left to right Bert Smith, CWNA convention chairman, the Port Credit (Ont.) Weekly; Fred W. Beattie, the Annapolis Royal (N.S.) Spectator; H. E. McCormick, (new) president CWNA, the Montreal Monitor; G. Cecil Day, immediate past-president, the Liverpool (N.S.) Advance; Helen Marsh, the Dauphin (Man.) Herald & Press; Lucien Fontaine, president, Association of French Weeklies and publisher of the L'Abitibien, Val d'Or (Que.)

Late Thos. Burns lived 70 years in The Glen

Thomas Burns, who lived all his 70 years at The Glen of Harrington, died at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, on August 31, and was buried in The Glen cemetery on September 2 from the Church of St. John the Divine in that community. The Rev. Frank Bussell, rector of the parish, conducted the service. The Rev. Gordon Phillips, former rector of the parish and an old friend of the family, preached the sermon. He paid tribute to Mr. Burns, who gave so unstintingly of his time and energy and assisted financially with the re-opening of the church in 1929. Mr. Burns was churchwarden for many years, until his failing health forced him to discontinue activities outside his home.

The late Mr. Burns leaves one sister, Miss Margaret Burns, to mourn his loss; he is mourned also by his many close friends and relatives, who will miss his quiet good humor and his friendly help.

Almost 150 years ago, the first Thomas Burns came to the little valley from the Township of Chatham. He built a log cabin within hearing distance of The Glen River, facing a mountain that was green all summer and white during the winter, and there he raised his three sons. One, Thomas, became "Uncle Tom" to everybody who knew him, a patriarchal old gentleman with a fine sense of humor. He, too, raised his family of seven in The Glen, among them the third Thomas; his children attended the little country schoolhouse, went to church, were baptized, married and buried, in the valley they loved. In a time when families and parts of families are on the march throughout the world, when strife infests even our own backyards, it is good to know people whose roots are deep in the soil and whose gentleness and sincerity are as sturdy as the hills that surrounded their coming into the world, their dwelling in it and their leaving it.

The fight against costly Bang's Disease

"Hey, Take It Easy, Doc!" Drawing a blood sample for a brucellosis test is Dr. F. O. Read, a regional veterinarian of the Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Agriculture.

Extend control of Brucellosis

A brucellosis control program, spreading gradually across Canada has so far seen 10 areas declared free of the disease.

Testing is proceeding in 24 areas, where there are an estimated 430,500 head of cattle.

Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Ariculture, reports that 247 areas have been accepted for testing, over and above the ten completed. Cattle under supervision total 2,878,551.

The national eradication program was started in April, 1957. Prince Edward Island was the first area to be certified.

Overall level of infection in the initial test is about one per cent. In some areas, however, as high as five per cent of the animals have been found to be infected. On a herd basis, the rate is roughly 14 per cent, although in some areas this figure has been as high as 25 per cent.

Brucellosis costs the livestock industry about $9,000,000 annually through decreased milk production, loss in calf crop and the subsequent replacement of breeding stock.

Weed seeds cause beef odours

A number of beef carcasses are condemned in meat packing plants every year because of undesirable odours.

What causes this waste?

Tests have shown that weed seeds, such as stinkweed, fed in refuse screenings right up to slaughter, may leave an objectionable odour or flavour.

Thousands of tons of screenings are available each year from terminal grain elevators, flour mills, and seed-cleaning plants. Most of it is fed to cattle, sheep and other livestock.

Two Canada Department of Agriculture experiments were conducted to determine whether feeding screenings containing a high proportion of stinkweed seeds to fattening beef cattle would result in objectionable odours or off-flavors in the meat.

One test was made at Vancouver, B.C., and the other at the Lethbridge Experimental Farm; involved were 44 yearling steers.

Nine of 12 steers slaughtered, immediately off screenings, had a slight to strong odour in their carcasses.

There were no objectionable odours in the carcasses of animals that were off screenings 24, 48 or 96 hours before slaughter. Since cattle are off feed for at least 24 hours in normal commercial slaughtering, chances of objectionable odours or off-flavours occurring are slim.

Two animals slaughtered, immediately off screenings, and one held off screenings for 48 hours before slaughter, had off-flavours in the meat when cooked.

Officials also concluded from the tests that weed seeds other than stinkweed may cause odours in meat.

Information officer for Agr. Federation

Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, has announced the appointment of R. W. (Bob) Carbert, well known farm broadcaster from CKNX in Wingham, Ontario, as information Officer and Assistant Secretary of the Federation.

Bob Carbert, ten years ago assumed the post of Farm Director at CKNX, the Ontario Farm Station in Wingham, Ontario. He organized the Farm Broadcast department there and when that station branched into TV three years ago, he became one of their daily commentators.

This 36-year-old former broadcaster, will assume the responsibilities of preparing and releasing information material, and in this field, his wide experience should certainly help farmers and farm organizations all across Canada.

Farming, 1958

Everyone knows that being a farmer is a difficult life. The farmer has to get up early, early in the morning to milk the cows. And he has to milk them again in the evening.

Down in Vermont, where folk are hard-working but independent in their thinking (they probably get this from their neighbors across the line in Quebec's Eastern Townships) there is a farmer who will not go along with a thing just because everyone says it must be so. He does not like getting up in the morning, so he sleeps in every day. In fact he does not get the cows milked until nearly noon. And since he has learned to like old movies on TV, it is no problem at all to stay up till midnight to milk them again. The cows, bless their contented hearts, go along with him in his new fangled notion.

A Canadian agricultural expert who knows cow-milking, both theoretical and practical, admits there is no biological reason why any farmer's cows cannot be conditioned to this type of conformity. But he hastily warns that not everyone is that fussy about TV. And who but a person of singular determination can go on watching old movies night after night. What happens when he tires of Clara Bow but still has to stay up to milk the cows?

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Feed Flavors In Milk

We are told that some of the most expensive perfumes are trapped in fatty substances, even in whale blubber, showing that oils or fats have a great affinity for odors or aromas.

What applies to whale blubber applies also to the butterfat of milk. It easily acquires an odor and by-taste. This is understandable when we consider that taste has been said to be nine-tenths smell.

Dr. Bohstedt

It is wise then not to let freshly drawn milk stand exposed to barn or feed odors. The finely dispersed butterfat at the surface is bound to attract and hold odors or flavors.

And that's not all. Feed flavors or odors can also be absorbed by the milk from the cow herself, depending on what feed she has been getting shortly before milking.

The writer some years ago was a guest at Farm and Home Week at the University of Nebraska, where an appropriate demonstration was staged in the stock pavilion.

A quart or so of milk was drawn from a cow in the arena, and the milk was passed around to the visitors in the bleachers. It had the wholesome odor of any good sample of milk.

The cow then had a feed bag fitted to her muzzle, the inside of which had been rubbed with onions. After the cow had breathed the onion smell for only a very few minutes, another quart of milk was drawn from her and passed around. It had a most nauseating onion smell. In a matter of seconds the odors inhaled into the lungs and absorbed by the blood had reached the udder.

This shows that the thin membranes separating the blood and milk systems in the udder permit at least a small amount of exchange of volatile oils and other materials that carry odors and by-tastes.

If these odors pass from the blood into the milk, they can likewise pass from the milk back into the blood. It is, therefore, advisable not to feed strongly flavored feed, including some kinds of hay, silage and pasture, immediately before milking. Some of these are rye, and rape pasture, even green alfalfa, and especially certain weeds.

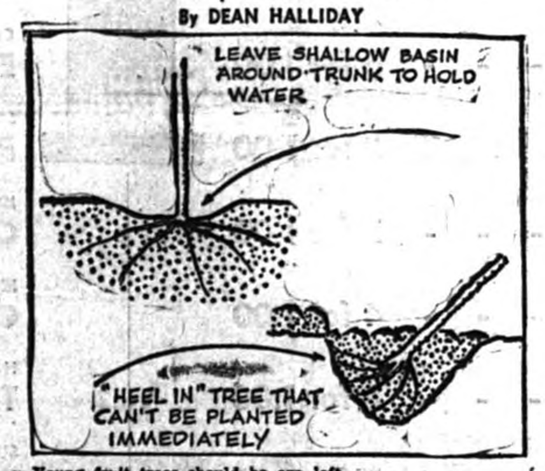

To avoid the possibility of odors or off-flavor in the milk you should permit an interval of about four hours before milking in order to give the cow time to breathe out these acquired odors or flavors. After "ventilating" her system she will produce desirable and appetizing milk.

Question: Is it possible to snap a good proportion of the ears on maturing corn and still have about as good silage from the remaining stalks?

Answer: It is difficult to eat one's cake and still have it. This was put to a comparative test at Wisconsin, with the result that harvesting and cribbing the ears and ensiling the still fairly green stalks produced no more milk in a dairy herd than when the crop was ensiled in the normal way and then fed.

Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Young fruit trees should be planted as soon as you get them, if it is possible. If it isn't, then "heel" them in, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

If there is more than one tree, "heeling in" means to dig a trench, lay in the young stock, and then cover the roots with soil. A good precaution calls for soaking the roots of the trees thoroughly before heeling in.

However, putting a lot of water in the hole just before planting is not good practice. It is apt to puddle the soil, which then bakes hard as it dries out.

Water should be allowed to drain away, leaving the hole free of standing water before a tree is planted. Mellow soil then should be filled in among the roots so that no air pockets are left.

It is always best to transplant young trees on a cloudy, cool day because this lessens exposure of roots to wind and sun. Wind may have a more drying effect on the roots even than sun.

After a tree is placed in the hole and earth is filled in around the roots, it should be tramped down gently. Add more earth as needed and also tramp it down. Plenty of water should be poured over this, then more earth should be put on top. This layer of earth should not be tramped down for tramping on soil when it is wet tends to cause it to bake.

Leave a shallow basin-shape depression around the trunk, as shown in the Garden-Graph. This will hold water and allow it to soak slowly down to the roots.

Harvesting on the Prairie

Combine with pick-up attachment shown harvesting wheat from the swath — a familiar fall scene on the Canadian prairies.

Swathed grain ripens faster than a crop left standing. This enables the farmer to make the most of the limited time available to him for harvesting.

Usually a portion of the crop is swathed and the remainder straight-combined. By the time the swathed grain has been harvested, the standing crop is ready for combining. For the latter operation the pick-up attachment must be removed from the combine and replaced with a reel and cutter-bar.

Finds no recession down on the farm

Kitchener, Ont. — There's no recession down on the farm. Agriculture tire sales continue to provide a bright spot on the economic horizon of the tire industry. Farmers are buying replacement tires for their equipment at a clip that promises to make 1958 the biggest farm tire sales year in a decade.

For the first six months of this year industry shipments ran 16% above the same period in 1957, according to B. F. Goodrich Canada Limited. From January through June, the industry total was about 58,000 units, compared to 50,000 units during the same months of 1957.

Mr. Flora gave credit for the increased agriculture tire sales volume to increased farm incomes.

"In previous years farm costs have been rising while farm prices have dropped. Reversal of this trend in favor of the farmer is the big factor in boosting purchasing power for products such as replacement tires," said W. B. Flora, vice-president of sales for B. F. Goodrich.

Here is something I believe will pay you to think about, if you have pullets in the growing stage: Whether you follow a full feeding or a restricted feeding system, the feed you DO give them has to carry ALL the growth essentials if they're to develop size and strength and stamina to make good layers of big eggs!

You just can't afford to miss much of the summer and fall price peak — so make sure they get what they need for FULL development of bone and body.

PURINA GROWING RATIONS are built and balanced for that full, complete development . . . built and balanced so that when your birds are old enough to lay they're developed enough to lay and keep on laying.

Highway crash kills four members of family

Fifth person in critical condition; driver of other car also killed

Four died on the Trans-Canada Highway 15 miles east of Ottawa at 7.15 Friday night after a two-car smash-up in which the cars welded into one tangled mass, spun 10 feet above the highway after the impact.

Four of the dead were members of one family from Mille Isles, namely Norman and Earl Kirkpatrick, 50 and 49 respectively, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick, 75 and 73 years of age respectively. Also killed in the mishap was Rene Savage, 32, of 143 Montreal Road, driver of the second car.

Mrs. Norman Kirkpatrick, 49, was rushed by ambulance to the Ottawa Civic Hospital where she is reported suffering from multiple fractures and concussion. She regained consciousness during the night following the mishap and was reported improved yesterday.

The Kirkpatrick family was returning home from a holiday at Moose Jaw, Sask., while Savage was returning from Cornwall to celebrate his first wedding anniversary Saturday last. He was a cook with the C.P.R.

It was the worst smash ever on "Death Alley" — the name which local residents have given to this straight stretch of highway between Rockland and Cumberland. Several have died there in the past two years.

Ronald Nuttal, 23, of Cumberland, was travelling behind Savage's car. He told police the two cars met head-on.

"There was a sickening crunch and the two cars lifted straight off the highway and spun in the air about 10 feet above the road. Then they fell in a cloud of steam and dust," he said.

As the cars whirled, three bodies were thrown 20 feet to the ditch. They were twisted and broken.

So fierce was the crash and so mutilated the bodies, it took police eight hours to get positive identification. So much debris was strewn over the highway that Montreal - Ottawa traffic was rerouted for an hour.

Gilles Voisine, 22, of 415 Pie XII, Eastview, said he knew his cousin René Savage was dead before he was told.

"It was the strangest experience I have ever had", he recounted.

"My wife and I were driving in Eastview. We saw the ambulance go through and for some unknown reason I said 'Let's follow the ambulance'. I have never done that before.

"We followed it 15 miles and all the way I knew I had to keep going.

"When I arrived I knew it was René. I knew he was dead. "The body had been removed but I knew his car. A miniature train signal on his key chain made me certain."

Jean-Guy Daze, 24, of 93 David Drive, Ottawa, Savage's brother-in-law identified the body. He said both families are from Limoges.

"This is a grim tragedy", he said, "my sister Lucille and René were so happy. They were just married one year ago. We had all planned a big family party for the anniversary."

Three of the bodies were taken to the J. Brunet Funeral Home, Rockland. Savage and Mrs. Norman Kirkpatrick were taken to St. Louis Marie de Montfort Hospital.

At the accident scene police picked among the debris for identification of the Kirkpatrick family. Handbags, clothes, and toilet equipment were strewn about the wreckage. A wallet identified Norman Kirkpatrick, but no one knows who was driving the car.

Another wallet, empty, lay in the ditch. It bore the arms of Saskatoon. It said: "Good luck from Moose Jaw".

A birthday party in Limoges saved the life of 13-year-old Paul Daze. Savage stopped at Limoges an hour before the accident to take his young brother-in-law into Ottawa for the anniversary party. At the last minute Paul decided to attend a friend's birthday party.

Police said today they were trying to trace a black and white 1958 Meteor which left the scene of the accident.

The driver of this car, which bore Ontario plates, is asked to contact Ontario Provincial Police at Rockland.

A full-scale investigation was going on. Snap estimates put the closing speed of the two cars at 120 m.p.h.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kirkpatrick, who celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last year, are survived by a daughter Thelma (Mrs. Harry Lister), of Morin Heights, a son Elmer, of Montreal, eleven grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

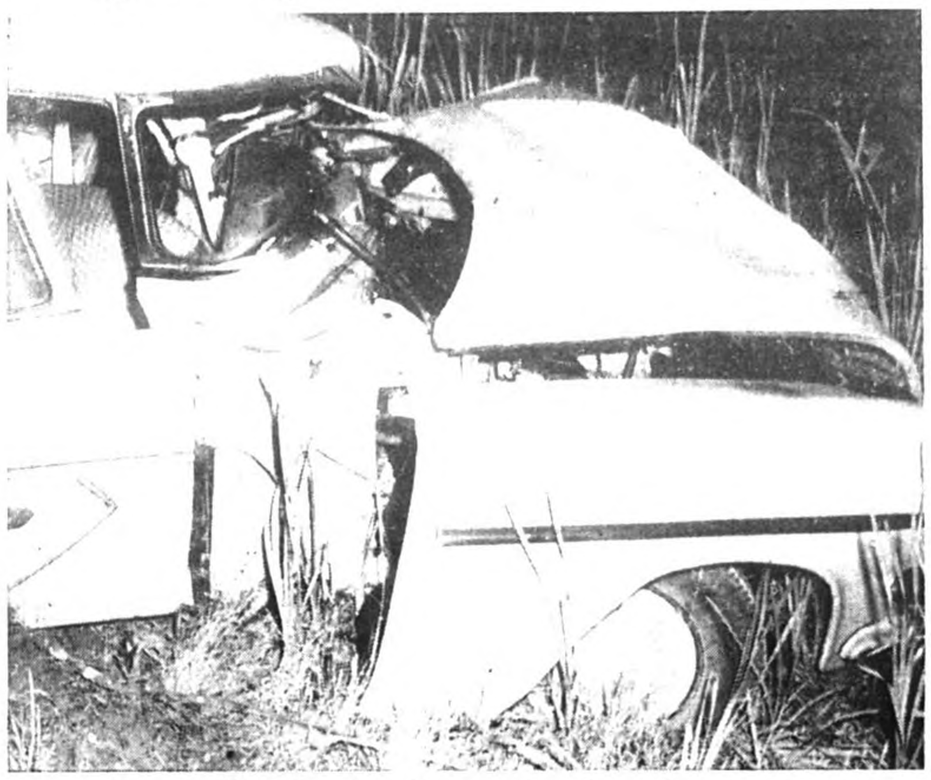

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, formerly Margaret (Maggie) Ward, of Kilkenny, is survived by two sisters, Ida (Mrs. Raymond Copping), of Montreal, and Maud (Mrs. George Kilpatrick), of Mille Isles, and five brothers, Jack, of Mille Isles, Willie and Albert of Kilkenny, and Ernest and Harry of Lachute.

Mr. Charlie Kirkpatrick is survived by five sisters, Lottie (Mrs. Gardner) of New York and Montreal), Edith (Mrs. Pritchard) of Moose Jaw, Sask., Irene (Mrs. Thos. Noble) of Lachute, and Annie (Mrs. W. J. Dawson) and Mattie (Mrs. Jack Lunan) both of Montreal, and one brother, Walter of Mille Isles.

Mr. Norman Kirkpatrick is survived by his wife, formerly Agnes Smith, of Montreal, and four children — Geraldine (Mrs. A. Bigras) of St. Martin, Marion (Mrs. Ross Roberts) of Verdun, Stanley and Winston, of Mille Isles, also five grandchildren.

Mr. Earl Kirkpatrick is survived by his wife, formerly Bridget Williams, one daughter Beverley, and a son, Kenneth.

The funeral took place in the Mille Isles Presbyterian Church on Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Stanford Reid of Montreal, officiating. Burial took place in the Mille Isles Presbyterian Cemetery.

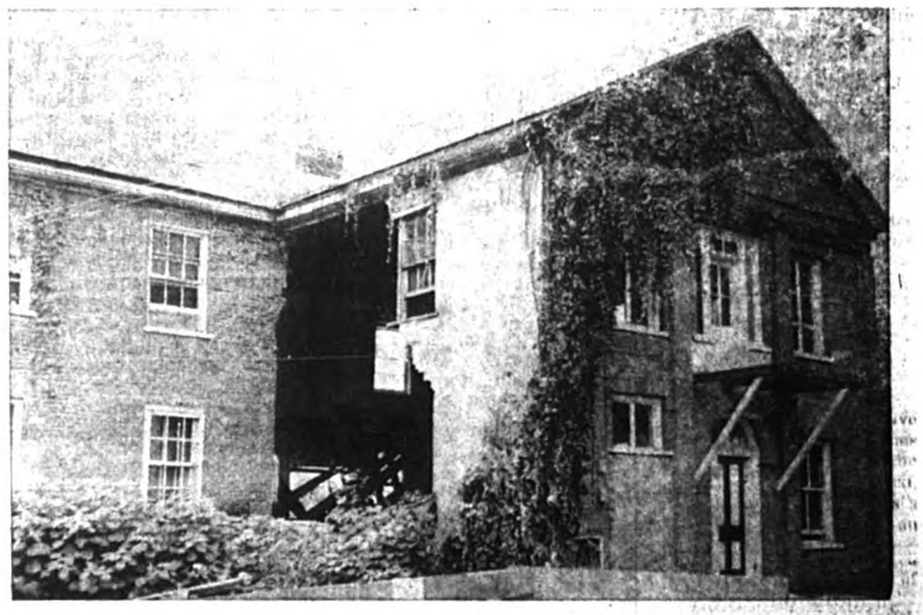

Mille Isles family met death in above car

Ontario driver killed in head-on crash

Four members of the Kirkpatrick family, of Mille Isles, died in the wreckage of their car (top) following a head-on smash on the Trans-Canada Highway, 15 miles east of Ottawa on Friday night last; an Ottawa district man also being killed. The cars locked together after the impact, spinning 10 feet above the highway. A full-scale inquiry into the accident is underway.

100-year-old landmark collapses, academy, armoury and residence

The original old Lachute Academy — a tall two-storey brick structure standing back from Main Street almost opposite the Scott Monument Works — all but collapsed one evening last week. The interior floors and beams crashed down and brick and plaster collapsed to leave a gaping hole in the east wall.

On this side of the building an adjoining wing was occupied as a dwelling by Mrs. Ernest Townsend and her family. Mrs. Townsend and her son-in-law were in the cellar splitting wood when they heard the thud and crash of masonry above them. Much frightened they hurried upstairs when the uproar had subsided, to find crumbled plaster and brick strewn in their kitchen, debris on their dining table and furniture damaged.

Another near-victim of this incident was Martin Niederkorn, proprietor of the old property. A builder and realtor by trade, Mr. Niederkorn had had men working during the day, to excavate in the shallow basement for installation of a new sewer pipe. In the evening he went to inspect the work. He had emerged from the basement only 10 minutes or so and left the building, when he heard a rumble and looked back to see a cloud of dust. One wall had sunk from sight. Inside the shell of the remaining walls, was a tangle of collapsed beams and partitions.

The main part of the building had been unoccupied. It was the owner's intention to convert it into more salutary and modern apartments — but his plans were unceremoniously shattered.

Niederkorn had bought the building a year or so ago from George Gunn. It was built just a century ago. Since its dignified beginnings as a seat of learning for the Village of Lachute, the old Academy had been used as an Armoury, then successively occupied as a dwelling by numerous tenants through the years.

The old Academy, from which nearby College Street takes its name, was built for the school in 1858-59. The increasing school population necessitated the addition of an eastern wing in 1879; this wing and a frame addition at the rear, remains standing. The school was abandoned in 1891-92 when the new Academy was erected on Harriet Street. Few citizens remain to recall the days when they attended school in the old brick building, which now is a pile of brick and rubble.

The cave-in occurred at 8.30 last Tuesday evening. Police Chief Trépanier had the area barricaded as a danger zone, and on orders of a provincial building inspector next day, within 24 hours machinery and men were brought to tear the structure down.

Mr. Neiderkorn had $6,000 fire insurance on the property, but it is believed he had no coverage to meet an eventuality such as this.

Annual Plow Match set for October 18 by new executive

A meeting of the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association was held in the local Court House on Monday, September 15, 1958, to elect directors for the coming year.

The ten directors elected were as follows: Fred Pring, Charlie Maisonneuve, Watson Berry, Ben Hammond, Carson Tomalty, Lloyd Hume, Keith Gordon, Stuart Armstrong, Basil Clark and William Brass.

Ben Hammond was elected president; Charlie Maisonneuve, vice-president and William Brass, as secretary-treasurer.

Due to weather conditions this year, it was decided to postpone the Plowing Match until Saturday, October 18. The directors are now looking for a suitable field for the occasion and it is hoped that we will have a good turn-out of both plowmen and spectators.

The members and directors of the Association extend best wishes to Allan Hammond, one of our local plowmen, who this week, leaves for Germany to compete at the World's Championship Plowing Match.

Eyeglass bank is Lions' gesture for sight conservation

Sight conservation on an international scale extends to massive populations and impoverished lands, and one of the major problems is to provide eyeglasses for the numberless needy cases detected. The situation was ably described by a Lions Club member, Tony Zaplaski, a sightless citizen who is also field secretary of the C.N.I.B., and as a practical aid in this difficulty the local club has inaugurated an "eyeglass bank". Discarded or disused glasses may be left at the Dansereau Store on Main Street, Lachute. They will be duly forwarded to a supply contributed by Lions Clubs across Canada and the United States. The glasses are classified and shipped to depositories in less fortunate countries, and eventually reach a recipient needing spectacles of specified lens strength.

This measure and other topical business was dealt with at a largely attended Lions Club meeting with Phil Tremblay presiding. The head-table officers and ex-officers were introduced by Secretary Keith Clarke. Among the attendance were two fellow Lions from Northmount branch and local guests; the gathering numbered over 50.

Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, new "Information" committeeman, spoke briefly on the origins of the Lions Club movement, the adoption of its name, objects and constitution.

There was discussion on a Ladies' Night, many divergent views being referred to the program committee, to arrange a function to afford the greatest pleasure to the largest number.

Dr. Eric Mongeon, Health and Welfare committeeman, introduced Comrade Bernard Jenkins, pilot of the Legion-sponsored Anti-Polio Vaccine Clinic for adults on October 2. In explaining this free inoculation clinic, Mr. Jenkins stated the Legion was gratified to be able to bring this public service to the community, which had for so many years supported the "March of Dimes" and other efforts for the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis.

Lion Jos. Dumais gave a boost to the membership drive, to which special attention is devoted at this time of year.

A highlight of this meeting was the vocal harmony contributed by the newly-formed quartet — Lions Royal Carrière, Mozart Carrière, Roger Regimbal and Clayton Robinson. This feature promises to be a worthwhile asset to the club gatherings.

Lion Dick Pearson presented an interesting film, "Sky Watch on '55", made available by his company, Bell Telephone. The subject dealt with the building of the Mid-Canada Line, an immense undertaking in Canada's defence program.

Reg Stansfield, High School gymnast wins Olympic Gymnastic Championship

Three local high school students, Reggie Stansfield, Ronnie Cairns, and Gary Cruise participated in the T.V. Olympic Gymnastic Meet held at the Immaculate Conception Centre, Montreal, on Tuesday last.

The preliminaries to select the three first gymnasts in each event were held the previous Saturday. Here, Reggie was the only gymnast to place among the first three in every event. Ronnie Cairns placed in the long horse and pommel horse. Unfortunately, Gary Cruise fell and broke two of his toes in the first event, the freehand calisthenics, and had to withdraw.

At the televised meet on Tuesday, only three of the boys' events were shown, as there was not enough time for all six events, and unfortunately viewers did not see the two events Ronnie participated in. In pommel horse, Reggie won and Ronnie placed second. Reggie also won on the long horse with 9.3 points, and Ronnie a close second with 9.2 points. Reggie also won the freehand calisthenics, the parallel bar, and the all-round championship. Altogether the boys won nine first and second prizes.

This meet was the last meet for the boys this year, but they are not resting. "They plan on working harder than ever before, as the Pan American games are to be held next year in U.S.A., and we hope some of the local boys will place on the Canadian Team", stated Coach Arne Petersen.

Thieves gain entry to local hotel; escape with cash, cigarettes, liquor

Entry was gained to the Tavern and Grill of the Hotel Windsor, located at the corner of Bethany and Berry Streets during the night of Wednesday - Thursday of last week and thieves made good their escape with $410 cash and approximately $600 in cigarettes and liquor.

The culprits entered the building, now under the ownership of Pierre Soumis, by means of the grill door located on Berry Street, where they appear to have unscrewed the lock on the door. Both cash registers were open and the cash was scooped from these and from two locked cupboards located in the kitchen. They left the building by means of a kitchen door, taking a large quantity of cigarettes and liquor with them.

The proprietor, his family, and guests at the hotel report hearing nothing unusual during the night and it is taken for granted that the robbery took place during the time the 3.20 freight train was in the station.

The robbery is under investigation by both Chief Trépanier and Det.-Sgt. Ralph Allen, of the local Provincial Police.

Plan stamp club for collectors

Plans for the formation of a Stamp Club for the Lachute District are underway and two of the main organizers, Messrs. Fred Royal and Bob Wyse report that the first meeting will be held in the Lachute High School at 8 p.m. Monday next, September 29.

All persons interested are invited to attend.

Anti-Polio Clinic plans underway for local adults

Preparations are nearly complete for the first adult anti-polio vaccine clinic to be held in Lachute. Salk vaccine will be administered free-of-charge by local doctors in a series of three clinics at the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall on Foundry Street. The date for the first two shots in the series have been confirmed as Thursday, October 2 and Thursday, October 30 respectively. The date for the third and final clinic will be announced later.

Bernard Jenkins, chairman, reports that local industries have given this immunization program its full support with the result that the Polio Foundation has deemed it advisable to plan special clinics for three of the major concerns. Families of employees who will be vaccinated at these firms are urged to attend the afternoon or evening clinics to be held in the Legion Hall the following day, October 2.

Nearly all district service clubs and fraternal organizations will be contacted before the first clinic and bilingual information sheets are available. Of special significance is the fact that His Worship, Mayor Léopold Carrière has seen fit to proclaim the month of October as official Anti-Polio Month for the Town of Lachute.

Mr. A. "Tony" Zaplaski has volunteered to contact members of the local chapter of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

All adults from Lachute and surrounding districts are urged to attend this free clinic and to cooperate in the effort to stamp out polio.

LEGION NOTES

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

The monthly meeting held in the Memorial Hall last Wednesday evening promised many interesting things to come on the Legion program.

A shooting match is scheduled for October 11, under chairmanship of Jack MacKimmie. We understand that Thos. Dwyer, of C-I-L, Brownsburg has accepted a request to act as range master. Watch for details to be advertised.

A donation of $10.00 was approved to assist the Salvation Army in its work.

Comrade Dick MacLean is working out plans for the annual Poppy Sales, Armistice Day Service and banquet.

The House Committee Chairman reported progress on the office plans. In addition, a typewriter has been purchased and members were requested to report any opportunity to obtain a legal size filing cabinet at a reasonable price. The Executive are also considering the purchase of more suitable furnishings for the club room.

Some time was spent by Com. B. Jenkins, Chairman of the Anti-Polio Vaccine Clinic project, in order to bring members up to date on its progress. Perhaps the most interesting highlight of this community service project is the fact that for several years now the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion has sponsored the March of Dimes campaign on behalf of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis. Money has been collected in this area by Branch 70 and turned in to the March of Dimes. Therefore those who have contributed to the March of Dimes will be happy to know that they assisted in providing this miracle vaccine for residents in this area.

As most parents of Teen-Agers are aware, Branch 70 has seen fit to make a few changes in the operation of the Friday night dances. Complete details of this operation will be outlined in this column within the next week or two.

Members in charge of arrangements at the 1958 Spring Fair were so happy with the outcome that they have already communicated to the Argenteuil Agricultural Association that they would be prepared to embark on a similar venture in 1959, and have asked the Fair Directors to reserve Friday for the Legion program. The 1958 results have convinced most of those concerned that the idea, which seemed far-fetched at first, was not so crazy after all.

See you next week!

Construction underway on Vankleek Hills' new curling rink

Vankleek Hill curlers' dreams of having an artificial ice rink are turning into a reality as work progresses rapidly on the site of the new rink on the former Collegiate Institute grounds.

Last week bulldozers have been busy in doing the necessary excavation and fill on the grounds and actual construction of the building will commence very shortly. A contract for the ice-making plant has been entered into with the Canada Ice Making Plant Co. of Ottawa, who have had wide experience in the installation of artificial ice plants in curling rinks, hockey arenas and other like establishments and the first payment has already been made on the purchase and installation of this plant and equipment: orders have been placed for the lumber and other material required and there is every prospect that curling will be under way in the new quarters reasonably early in the 1958-59 season.

Canadian Refractories Quarter Century Club

A most enjoyable evening was experienced on Friday last September 19 by members of the Quarter Century Club of Canadian Refractories Limited, who gathered at Lachute Golf Club for this special occasion.

Canadian Refractories Limited is situated at Kilmar and Marelan combining three divisions, plants 1 and 2 and the mine. All were well represented at the gathering.

Before being chartered in 1933 Scottish Canadian Magnesite and North American Refractories had worked the properties for many years.

On the occasion of this get-together, employees were present who had worked for C.R.L. since the charter date, and may be seen in the above photograph.

Mr. Norman Pitt, president and managing director presented each man present with a gold lapel pin and tie clip, suitably inscribed, as a token of appreciation from C.R.L. for loyal and faithful services rendered. In turn Mr. Pitt was inaugurated into the Club by receiving similar tokens from a fellow worker Hayes Villeneuve.

Mr. Pitt, in his address, gave a short history of C.R.L. and stressed the branching out of open hearth clinker into a brick, possibly primarily because that was his long suite and through his efforts and those of Jim Craig (who took a bow at this moment) C.R.L. had become what it is.

It was an evening long to be remembered by all present and from comments heard next day such as "I wouldn't have missed this for $100", "The nicest dinner I ever attended", and "why wasn't this done 25 years ago?", it would appear that everyone had a good time.

Members of the Quarter Century Club are Edward J. Boyd, S. Charles Brown, Alfred Carrière, Joseph G. Carrière, Victor M. Champagne, James W. Craig, Olivier Desabrais, Samuel Dodd, Wilfrid D. Dumoulin, Frank M. Firth, Fredrick O. Gauley, Tancrede J. Labelle, G. Ernest Larocque, Leonard H. Madden, Joseph F. Larocque, Alfred McGill, Sandford J. McVicar, Wm. Dean Moncrieff, Fred L. Moore, Henry C. Page, Norman P. Pitt, Michael Polly, W. Stephen Stewart, J. Omer Thomas, J. Hayes Villeneuve, Coral A. Young and Evan A. Young.

Absent were Victor Champagne and Frank Firth, the latter being prevented through illness.

Local championship race at Rigaud Park Sunday

Latest interview with Rigaud Park promoter R. G. Labelle discloses that this Sunday, September 28, will see a local championship held. Most riders have had ample practice on the track and the races will be judged on speed alone, which should prove breath-takingly thrilling. The trophy is well worth the risk involved, it is a bronze rider on his bike mounted on marble base.

Judging by past meets, the Rigaud track is known to draw riders from across Canada and many points in the U.S.

So for speed and excitement come to Rigaud Park this Sunday, September 28 at 2 p.m. to see your favorite riders compete for the 1958 Rigaud Park trophy.

Lots of thin cows this Fall!

Grass has been, and is, extra good this season and cows have milked accordingly, but for the same reason there will be more than the usual number of cows go into the stable thinner than usual.

A celebrated dairyman once said that the only reason there weren't more dairymen in the poor house was because the grass season did not last long enough! . . That saying is only too true. Lush grass is more than ¾ water (to be exact, 85%); so IF a cow could eat 100 lbs. of grass in a day (which is not possible) she will only have about 15 lbs. of real feed out of it — which is not enough for her body requirements, let alone to make milk. She does make milk, however, but not out of the feed. She takes it off herself, or she is literally putting herself in the milk pail. A very expensive way to make milk!

By feeding BULKY LAS, DRY & FRESHENING, PROTENA DAIRY or MILK CHOW, you can keep the flesh from running off as fast, and while you may not make as much per day now, you will make more over a very much longer period, which is better and more profitable. And your cows will be in much better shape, either to look at or to sell.

Come in and let us show you these chows. They aren't made to sell at a price, but to MAKE THE FEEDER THE MOST PROFIT FOR HIS $ SPENT. We deliver.

IMMUNIZATION WEEK

"Be wise – immunize"

IMMUNIZATION WEEK focuses our attention on a miracle in health care protection.

It was not many years ago that such diseases as diphtheria, whooping cough, smallpox, scarlet fever and poliomyelitis took the lives of thousands of Canadian children. Many of these young lives could have been saved under the present method of preventive medicine — through the miracle of inoculation.

Such miracles do not "just happen". They are earned through the pioneering efforts of research workers — technical know-how of the manufacturers of biological products — and the daily application of preventive immunization by doctors and public health nurses.

This miracle in health care protection is also brought about by the intelligent cooperation of all parents who are anxious to safeguard their children from infectious diseases. As the risk of disease is always present, it is most important that immunity be kept at a high level. In other words — see your doctor at regular intervals. He may prescribe "booster" doses if deemed necessary.

The resources are available to prevent many communicable diseases. Vaccines and sera, however, are useless if they stay in their bottles. It requires a decision by the parents, to give their children this essential protection. Consider the immunization state of your own family, and if deficiences are present consult your doctor. After each member of your family has received an inoculation, it is further recommended that a record be kept of the type and date of the injection; often one's memory cannot be relied upon in these matters.

The Canadian medical profession wholeheartedly endorses the message of National Immunization Week, which is sponsored by the Health League of Canada.

Recalling the famous "Few"

Members of the RCAF across Canada commemorated the famous "few" on the 18th anniversary of the Battle of Britain, marked by church parades and special services on Sunday, September 21. The battle, which had special significance for the RCAF in that it was the Force's "baptism of fire", is recalled by this wartime scene as the airborne defenders of Britain patrol over bombed-out ruins. The battle reached its peak at this time 18 years ago, and although the skies over Britain were not completely cleared of enemy aircraft, the Battle had been won, and the immediate threat of invasion removed.

The "brains" go places

AS SOON as schools appear to be settling down for the new term, parents here and there get anxious accounts from worried offspring about how tough the new class and the new teachers are proving to be.

This situation may be more likely to arise in the later high school years, and it's true that senior high school students carry a large load of lessons and homework.

Some seem to thrive on it, others work and worry long hours at school and at home, and still others seem utterly deaf to teachers' warnings. The latter are the ones who may not graduate.

In many high schools, teachers assigned to the graduating class, whether it's fourth or fifth year, start right out in September by emphasizing the amount of work and study that has to be done if the pupil hopes to matriculate. This puts real alarm into a certain proportion of students.

But the teachers are working on an accepted theory: the boy or girl aiming for university has got to study in earnest to get the required college entrance papers.

The "studying student" with consistently good marks might be labelled a "brain" by companions in high school, and be regarded by them with suspicion. But when they get to university they find the bookworm is as important as the type who considers athletic prowess or social activities just as necessary as academic work. . .

This point was stressed the other day by Prof. David C. Corbett of the University of British Columbia, speaking at the first national seminar of the National Federation of Canadian University Students at London, Ont. He was making an appeal for a return to intellectualism in Canadian universities, and he said Canada needs a research type of institution, such as the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton University, or the Australian National University, which latter he attended as a Visiting Fellow last year. . . Only the "brains" get to such places, he emphasized.

Rights – and lefts

GOLFERS (remarks the Fort Erie Letter-Review) will have a rough time wherever Communism holds sway. That's clear enough from press reports from Singapore telling of decision of leftist-dominated City Council to terminate its ground-lease arrangements with the Singapore Royal Island Golf Club on the ground that golf is not a constructive pursuit. Golf, says the Singapore City Council, doesn't fit in with the socialist thinking of the new Asia.

Canadian men whose wives complain about being golf widows — or any other kind of widows because of fishing, sailing or some other sport that socialist planners would denounce as "not a constructive pursuit" — will find at least one bit of good in Singapore City Council's decree. Nagging wives in future may be hushed up with a hint that objections to their husbands having fun on their own and unaccompanied constitute a grave threat to Western democracy and border on disloyalty to democratic traditions.

Collecting taxes

THE TAX COLLECTOR'S LIFE is never easy. This is understandable. Nobody likes having to pay taxes — not even when politicians point to the supposed glories of the Welfare State and tell people that paying taxes, like eating spinach, is for their own good.

Natives of New Guinea, down in the South Pacific, aren't any different from other folk when it comes to taking a dim view of taxes. A Reuters dispatch from this territory, administered by Australia, tells of the woes of tax collectors whose job it is to collect £2 per annum from each resident of the area's 9,000 villages. Steaming jungles, swamps and mountains are not the only headaches the tax collector must face. Some are man-made, and the latest is the determination with which the natives have stacked the tents of visiting tax collectors with garbage and refuse while these unfortunate officials were going about elsewhere in the village collecting taxes.

Pity of it is that the tax collectors, rather than the politicians who devised the tax laws in the first place, should be the ones to receive so malodorous a welcome.

Atlantic Provinces Union

ATLANTIC UNION will be a fact within 25 years.

It will combine New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland into a single province.

The big province's probable name: Atlantica.

So believe scores of serious politicians and planners in the Maritimes, says The Financial Post.

The Atlantic Union dream has been revived this year with more high-level discussion — serious and semi-serious — than for many years.

(The idea was first proposed in 1794 by the Duke of Kent, Queen Victoria's father, when he was commander at Halifax).

When something falls

THERE'S MORE THAN a mess of steel when a building under construction suddenly falls down, says Dalton Robertson in The Financial Post. Dealing with the collapse of the steel work of Union Carbide's new Toronto head office building, Robertson writes:

"Right now, Union Carbide, its contractors, sub-contractors, architects and the insurers and lawyers of each have a tangle of responsibility to straighten out what's even more of a mess than the twisted steel lying on its Eglinton Avenue property in Toronto.

"First job will be finding the reason for the collapse. That's likely to take months of careful investigation and discussion and perhaps litigation.

"Then will come the determination of who — if anyone — is liable for the cost of the loss and to what extent liability is covered by insurance.

"In most similar cases over the past years, the pattern has been to avoid court cases and, through agreement among the parties concerned, arrive at a settlement."

Junior Red Cross Week

The period from September 21 to 27 is being observed as "Junior Red Cross Week in Canada". In over 38,000 branches in schools in every province from Newfoundland to British Columbia, the 1,270,000 young members are planning activities for another year — one that is destined to be most interesting.

Next year the Red Cross world will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of the Red Cross idea, and Junior sections of over 45,000,000 boys and girls in 71 nations will participate. Here in Canada, the Canadian Red Cross Society will celebrate its 50th anniversary and Juniors will play an important role in plans to commemorate the occasion.

One of the features of the 1959 celebrations will be an International Junior Red Cross Study Centre to be held next August at the University of Toronto. Canadian high school Juniors will be hosts to Junior Red Cross representatives from more than 30 nations.

During Junior Red Cross week, Canadian Juniors will plan their participation for their three funds to assist less fortunate children in Canada and throughout the world. Through their fund-raising projects they will assist the Handicapped and Crippled Children's Fund, the Fund for International Help and Understanding and the newly-created "If", the International Friendship Fund. The latter fund has been organized by the Juniors to assist their own delegates to attend the study centre and to bring to Canada a number of delegates from other Junior sections who are not in a financial position to attend such a conference.

During the next school year Junior Red Cross members in Canada will devote considerable time to the promotion of safety on the street, in the water and at home. This project was launched last year and will be greatly intensified in the schoolrooms during 1959.

The Junior Red Cross is the largest youth organization in the world. In Canada, it is an important in-school project and has the endorsation of the Departments of Education in every province.

It is expected that more than 100,000 children in 350 elementary and high schools of the Province of Quebec will be enrolled in the Canadian Junior Red Cross this year.

Is Labor a social caste?

— By Lewis Milligan —

Speaking at the first annual seminar of the National Federation of Canadian University Students recently, a "leading Canadian labor official" was reported in the Toronto Globe and Mail as saying: "A problem facing labor was that it had been unable to find a way of keeping students — especially those from working families — from becoming bourgeois."

But what is wrong with a student from a working family becoming bourgeois? Let us look up the dictionary and see what that bad word means. — Here it is: "Bourgeois: A citizen; a burgher; a man of middle rank." In the plural: "The middle classes of a country, especially those dependent on trade."

Well, are we not all citizens? Are not all working families and the labor unions themselves dependent on trade? And as for classes, does organized labor regard working families as a fixed social class? Would the unions bar a student from a working family from aspiring — or descending — to a position in trade or one of the professions?

That would indeed seem to be so, for Gerard Pelletier, director of public relations for the CTCC, giving "an outsider's view of the university," is reported to have said: "The average person felt that the university was an impressive place of isolation, and that they were afraid of getting lost there." Presumably of losing their status in the untouchable or unchangeable labor family caste. To explain what he meant, Mr. Pelletier is reported as saying:

"An ever present question in the minds of labor is, who owns the university? Some, he said, felt that capital owns everything, the university is part of everything and therefore the average laborer is afraid of the university because it is owned by his adversary — capital."

Mr. Pelletier was apparently speaking as a socialist who believes in the State ownership of universities and everything else. That, of course, is communism, and he emphasizes his point by referring to capital — private enterprise — as the "adversary" of labor. It is just this attitude of regarding employers as the enemy of labor that is the cause of most of the disputes and strikes which bedevil the relationships between those two partners in industry.

There are bad employers and bad workers under the capitalist system; but the State is a ruthless taskmaster, and the worker an absolute serf under socialism. There are no free labor unions and no disputes in Soviet Russia where the State really owns everything, including the workers and their families. Socialism may be the best system for the Russian people who for centuries have never known what freedom was, but I don't think Mr. Pelletier or Canadian working families would like it.

It's only money – the taxpayer's

Men are never so careless or so generous as when they are spending other men's money. Thus, the recent disclosures in Ottawa of waste in the expenditure of government funds (pardon us, the taxpayer's earnings) are not in themselves surprising.

Nor is the unwillingness of the Department of Defence Production to pinpoint responsibility for its purchase, at a cost of nearly a quarter-of-a-million dollars, of 124,353 pairs of khaki drill shorts, every single pair of which turned out to be "of improper design, being too tight across the seat in all sizes." (In ALL sizes, mark you!)

Clearly, the identity of those who could so shamefully miscalculate the girths of Canada's brawny sons must forever remain shrouded in mystery. For, once the full facts surrounding such an embarrassing and expensive blunder were laid bare for all to see, how would they ever live them down?

Still, it's some consolation to know that this humiliating faux pas did not result in total financial loss; not quite, anyway. The shorts were eventually disposed off for some $33,000 (presumably for use by less rugged and well-developed specimens than are to be found in the Canadian army). Thus, in the end (we swear no pun is intended), the taxpayers lost only about $210,000 on the deal.

This is bad enough, of course, but it is mere chicken-feed against the several millions now revealed to have been spent on at least one major federal project of dubious soundness, over and above the original estimates. And, to add insult to injury, quite a bit of it appears to have gone on foreign building materials and products in preference to Canadian.

Girl bank tellers in the savings account section spend half their time looking for something.

They are a pretty sight as they bustle from one cluster of account files to another, like little bees sampling the honey in a number of flowers.

At last the girl finds the account card she is looking for, and comes buzzing back to her wicket, where a queue of waiting people has formed.

She serves a few customers without difficulty, but a minute later she is off on another search that carries her all through the bank.

This time she comes back empty-handed. But the customer passes her some money and a slip of paper, and the people move forward.

Soon another problem customer reaches the wicket, and a new search begins. All along the line of savings wickets, the tellers are skittering back and forth in the same way. They look so decorative that they should be set to music.

But some bank clients are too busy to enjoy this little pantomime of frustration. For the benefit of the cross money-grubbers who can't wait, the banks will eventually have to streamline their methods.

Someone will devise an electronic sorting device for account cards. Each card will be marked with a key pattern. The card will be sent automatically to have interest calculated or loan payments deducted. It will be returned the same way.

The teller won't have to move from her post. She will simply press a button, and the customer's card will pop up, or a lighted panel will inform her where the card is.

Bankers are cautious, conservative men — as they should be, since they handle other people's money. They won't rush to adopt new-fangled machines. I'm glad about that. A bank won't be nearly such a pleasant place, when science ends the dance of the girl tellers.

ORIGINAL SEA SERPENT?

A monstrous brown fish that reared up out of the sea, looking like a giant lion sitting on its haunches, was sighted by the crew of the East London fishing vessel "Golden Flame" off Cintsa, on the Eastern Cape coast, some time ago.

An East London report states that the crew watched the fish for fully a minute as it reared out of the water and glared at them before submerging again.

Anti-Polio Clinic at Brownsburg

Results of the first adult Anti-Polio Vaccine Clinic held in Brownsburg were gratifying to members of Branch 71 who sponsored this event.

The final tally showed that 605 adults from this area had been immunized free-of-charge, thanks to the efforts of the Canadian Legion. The Salk vaccine used was made available by the Provincial Ministry of Health, in co-operation with the Quebec Chapter of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, which is sponsored by the Canadian Legion Quebec Command.

These shots were available at clinics held in the Brownsburg Memorial Hall during the afternoon and evening of last Wednesday, 17 September. Arrangements had been well prepared and waiting was at a minimum as the attending doctors and nurses did yeoman service in passing approximately three to four persons per minute during the rush peaks. Orderly lines of adults proceeded to a registration centre and on to the vaccination centre, leaving the building by the side entrance. Parking facilities were at a premium much of the time.

Arrangements were planned under chairmanship of Com. R. R. Summers and Com. President J. W. Humphries in co-operation with Nurse Mercier from the Foundation.

Perhaps the most surprising thing to those who receive this vaccine is the fact that the shot is painless and any reaction from this Salk vaccine is rare indeed.

The Brownsburg Branch of the Canadian Legion wishes to thank the local churches and organizations for the very valuable assistance they gave in making this clinic well known to the public and consequently bringing about it's good success.

St. Matthew's Anglican Church, Grenville, holds 126th anniversary

"They brought their religion with them." —

So said the special preacher, the Rev. Canon F. C. Ireland, of Dorval, in reference to the Royal Staff Corps and the lay people of Grenville, when one hundred and twenty-six years ago they built St. Matthew's Anglican Church.

On Sunday last, St. Matthew's Day, September 21, this church celebrated its 126th Anniversary. The three congregations of the Parish, St. Matthew's, Holy Trinity, Calumet, and the Anglican Congregation at Kilmar, filled the Mother Church for the 11 o'clock service on Sunday morning, joining in a service of praise and Thanksgiving to God for its founders, builders and sustainers, as well as for the beautiful stone church as it now stands.

The Rector, the Rev. P. R. Stote was the celebrant at the service of Holy Communion. The recently dedicated Cruets, given by the Genest family, in memory of the late Maurice A. Genest, were used for the first time.

The Special Preacher, the Rev. Canon F. C. Ireland, for many years Rector of St. Philipps' Church, Montreal West, gave an inspiring address, making special reference to the Rev. Joseph Abbott, founder of the Parish, the Rev. Wm. Harris, (Mr. Ireland's brother-in-law), the Rev. W. J Ellis, the Rev. A. E. Hawes, Rector of Valois, as well as laymen, such as the Pridham family and the Royal Staff Corps, who helped in the life of the Parish.

This service will be long remembered by the large congregation.

"Your Will Be Done on Earth"

This is a splendid book of 384 pages that gives a detailed explanation of much of the Bible book of Daniel. Learn how the book of Daniel foretold world events hundreds and even thousands of years in advance. If, when reading Daniel, you have puzzled over the meaning of the image with the golden head or the goat with the big horn that split into four horns you should read "Your Will Be Done on Earth". The explanation is fascinating. Send 50 cents today.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training

Gifts from grandparents

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Did you ever wonder who gave Yehudi Menuhin, that musical genius, his first violin? It was none other than his grandmother! The story of this present is told in Robert Magidoff's biography of Menuhin (Doubleday) which is a book that will fascinate all music lovers.

The Menuhin family was settled in San Francisco and little Yehudi had often been taken with them to hear the symphony concerts, because they could not afford a babysitter. The violin section was of great interest to the little boy, and when his fourth birthday approached, he declared he wanted to play the violin. His parents thought this was just a child's fancy, nevertheless, they bought him an inexpensive toy violin.

When his presents were brought in at the birthday celebration, the violin was the one he wanted to examine. He tucked it under his chin and drew the bow across the strings. An ugly screeching sound resulted. He tried again with no better success. Hurling the tin violin to the floor, Yehudi stamped on it, exclaiming, in anger and disappointment:

"It won't sing!"

His mother, considering this a bit of a joke, wrote an account of this to her mother in Palestine. But the old grandmother, with the warm sympathy and keen imagination which so many grandmothers have, put herself in the boy's place. She decided to send twenty-five dollars for her little grandson's first real violin and so she mailed a letter with a cheque at once. Thus Yehudi, when he was not yet five years old, received his start in a career which has so enriched the world.

How many grandmothers have sacrificed to give their grandchildren gifts! Because of their generosity, how many boys and girls have made a beginning, at an early age, at their life work! Recently, many educationalists have been regretting that the doors of universities are closed to so many Canadian youths of lower income families. There is a great need in our country. Many young people whose parents cannot send them to college, are helped by grandparents, who must sacrifice greatly to give this assistance.

The small child's world is his own home, bounded by his neighborhood, with occasional excursions further afield. Not long ago a business man mentioned that the happiest memories of his early days were the fishing expeditions with his granddad. His own father was dead, but grandfather knew what fun a small boy could have with a fishing pole and a lunch and a whole Saturday stretching before him. Grandfathers, as well as grandmothers, can often share a favorite hobby with a youngster.

Not far from us there is a man who is a born gardener. His flowers are a delight to all who pass his home from early spring until the first frost. There is no more eager admirer of the lovely blooms than a small girl who appeared to be a grandchild. One morning I saw her kneel to look into a red tulip. As she glanced up I recalled the poet's lines:

"And children's faces looking up holding wonder like a cup."

Hans Christian Anderson had a granny living near him who had a "green thumb". She came each day to see him, and often in the summer she brought a bouquet. She allowed Hans to arrange the flowers himself and admired the artistic effect which the small boy achieved. Hans used to say, "Flowers know very well that I am fond of them."

A growing number of mothers, for economic reasons, find they must work. Many of their children receive excellent care in good day nurseries. Countless others are looked after by grandparents. This is no new plan. How many famous men and women recall the influence of the grandparent who cared for them in Mother's absence!

The great French painter, Jean-Francois Millet, was born in a peasant's home in Normandy. There were eight children and the mother often had to help her husband in the fields. Their granny loved each child and Jean-Francois remembered how she would awaken him in the morning with these words: "Wake up, my little Francois. Thou knowest not how long the birds have been singing the glory of God!"

Who would have dreamed, a generation ago, that a type of superior chicken to cook in all ways would sometime be on the market; that it would be the best buy in high quality protein, quick and easy to cook and available the year round?

Yet this has come about with the development of tender broiler-fryer chickens.

Delicate Flavor

"I find the meat of the broiler-fryers to be very delicate in flavor," says the chef. "Because of this, the seasoning for roasting should be carefully chosen."

The interior of the bird always should be dusted with 1 tsp. monosodium glutamate to help bring out the natural flavor. Then dust in a little powdered ginger, or perhaps some dry Italian salad dressing mix; or add a quartered, peeled onion with a sliced, peeled baby carrot and a dusting of crushed rosemary.

Brush outside of the bird with corn oil, then dust with salt and pepper and perhaps rub over with the skin of a lemon to give a zippy flavor.

Place the bird on one side in a roasting pan on a rack, hip bone uppermost, so that the fat it contains can help baste the rest of the bird. Roast until golden brown.

Brush again with oil and turn.

Continue to roast until a meat thermometer placed near the leg joint registers 190 degrees to 200 degrees F., or until no pink juice exudes when meat is pierced with a fork at the joint. Baste twice with melted butter or margarine.

To roast a broiler-fryer chicken to perfection, for a stuffed bird allow 35 min. per lb.; if unstuffed, 30 min. per lb.

Care of woollens is stressed for smart service and good appearance

Early fall probably finds more people in new clothes than any other time of the year. Particularly the younger set, as they make the big change from vacations or summer jobs back to the classroom. Smart new outfits in wool will give the maximum in comfort and appearance, especially if they are properly cared for. Here are a few pointers on how to keep new clothes fresh and new-looking long after graduation has come and gone.

Once the press has been put in a pair of wool trousers, a skirt, or what have you, it will stay sharp longer if the garment is properly treated. Always hang clothes up when not wearing them. Shaped wooden hangers are best for coats and jackets. Inexpensive pant and skirt hangers will add weeks to the freshness of wool trousers and pleated skirts.

Wool has the unique and natural ability to regain its freshness after it has been worn. Given a rest in the closet on the right type of hanger, wool clothing will shed wrinkles without the touch of a pressing iron.

A thorough and regular brushing, paying particular attention to cuffs and the tops of pleats, is a good idea.

Wool is probably the easiest of all materials to press, but there is still a right and a wrong way to do it. Skirts, for instance, should always be pressed on the wrong side, using either a steam iron or a regular flat-iron with a dampened pressing cloth on a padded ironing board or table.

If a steam iron is used, wool garments may be pressed on the wrong side without a pressing cloth. If pressed on the right side — as men's slacks must be — a pressing cloth must be used to prevent the fabric from becoming shiny.

Whether using a steam iron or a dry iron and damp pressing cloth, a light touch should be used at first to allow the steam to penetrate the cloth. Since wool has the uique ability to absorb up to 30 per cent of its own weight in moisture vapor without feeling damp, it becomes very pliable and can be easily molded and creased when the fibres are saturated with steam. Stop pressing while there is still a little steam rising from the garment and hang it to dry and set. At this point gentle brushing with a soft brush — and with the grain of the fabric — will bring up the surface beautifully.

A tip on pressing trousers or slacks: Always move the iron toward the crease — that is, at right angles to the length of the trouser leg, pushing the iron toward the crease that is being set.

Finally, a brief word about knitted sweaters and suits. Never put them on a hanger. The ideal way to store them is to fold them neatly, put them into a plastic bag and lay them in a bureau drawer.

If followed, these few suggestions will result in fine wool clothing looking bandbox fresh for months or even years after it becomes a part of your wardrobe.

Grapevine news is good this year

Reports from the Canada Department of Agriculture indicate that this year's crop of grapes will be about 15% larger than that of 1957. This is good news for the Canadian homemaker who looks forward to making up her annual batch of grape jelly and jam. It's good news, too, for the rest of the family, for who can pass by a decorative bowlful of grapes without taking some — they're so refreshing and handy to nibble.

In Canada's Kitchen they have developed a few recipes for grape desserts, the basis of which is an unsweetened grape purée made from blue grapes such as Concord. The puree can be made up in quantity and canned or frozen, for using when the Canadian fresh grapes are finished. Because of the purplish color it gives desserts, as well as the fine fresh flavor, grape puree would be especially nice to have on hand next spring, especially at Eastertime.

Unsweetened Grape Purée (6 cups)

One 6-quart basket blue grapes (about 15 cups stemmed grapes).

Wash and stem grapes. Into a preserving kettle measure enough grapes to cover bottom, then crush with a potato masher. Add remaining grapes, cover, bring slowly to a boil, then boil gently for 20 minutes stirring occasionally to prevent sticking and to crush fruit. Rub through a coarse sieve to remove stems and seeds.

For Canning

Return sieved grapes to kettle bring to a boil and pour into sterilized sealers. Process in a boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

For Freezing

Chill sieved grapes. Pour into freezer containers, leaving ½ to ¾ inch headspace, seal and freeze.

(Grape purée may be made in smaller quantities, if desired. For 1 cup purée allow 2½ cups fresh grapes.)

Grape Bavarian

1 Tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1 cup unsweetened grape purée, ¼ cup sugar, few grains salt, ½ cup whipping cream, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes. Meanwhile heat grape purée just to boiling. Remove from heat and add soaked gelatine, the ¼ cup sugar and salt, stirring until dissolved. Chill mixture until quite firm — about 45 minutes. Whip cream and sweeten with remaining sugar. Whip grape mixture until smooth and foamy, then fold in whipped cream. Turn into a mould, and chill until set — about 1½ hours. This is a very rich dessert.

Grape Chiffon Pie

Follow recipe for Grape Bavarian, but use 1½ cups grape purée instead of 1 cup.

After folding in whipped cream, fold in meringue made from — 2 egg whites, 4 tablespoons sugar.

Chill until very thick, about 2 hours. Turn into baked pie shell and chill until set, about 1 hour.

Grape Sauce (1 cup)

Serve hot or cold with cottage pudding, ice cream or blanc mange.

One cup unsweetened grape purée, 1/3 cup sugar.

Heat grape purée just to boiling. Remove from heat, add sugar and stir until dissolved.

There are still diphtheria cases in Canada

Sixteen years ago, in Canada, in one year there were 2,804 cases of diphtheria with 287 deaths, 6 cases of smallpox with no deaths, 19,082 cases of whooping cough with 416 deaths. It was in that same year, 1943, that Canada saw the birth of what has become an annual reminder to all Canadian parents, that their children are not safe from those diseases unless they are immunized — National Immunization Week.

The success of this Week, sponsored by the Health League of Canada, in co-operation with the departments of health throughout the country, is shown by the figures for 1957 — 142 cases of diphtheria, with 20 deaths; no cases of smallpox; 7,459 cases of whooping cough with 63 deaths; 273 cases of polio with 26 deaths.

Although we have discovered the means of combatting these diseases, they are still with us, and it is especially remarkable that Ontario still has 25 cases of diphtheria; Quebec 32; Manitoba 29; Alberta 39; British Columbia 5; Newfoundland 12; while the other provinces, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have not a single case of diphtheria to report in 1957.

What is the reason that some provinces are not able to master the disease diphtheria? Are there still parents who do not care and do not immunize their children.

It has been clearly demonstrated that by immunization such diseases as polio, smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping-cough can be considered as preventable diseases.

The Health League of Canada during National Immunization Week again calls upon all citizens to immunize their children.

Be Wise — Immunize.

Canada's first woman ambassador abroad is Miss Margaret Meagher, newly-appointed to Israel. It was a logical advance for the former school teacher, born in Halifax. Five years ago she had become the first woman in the Canadian service to be posted to diplomatic rank overseas when she was appointed as first secretary at Canada House at London.

Miss Meagher, 47, was one of a small group of brilliant women taken into the external affairs department at Ottawa as special assistants early in the Second World War, forming the nucleus of the present number of women holding rank in the department.

An economist, who also studied political science at Dalhousie University, Miss Meagher started in 1942 as a clerk in the external affairs department. She served as third secretary at the Canadian embassy in Washington and also held a post at Mexico City. She was a member of the Canadian delegation that attended meetings of UNESCO for three successive years, at New York, Geneva and Santiago, Chile, the latter in 1951.

In Israel she will work with that country's female foreign secretary, Mrs. Golda Meir.

Sweet Touch

Honey can be a most agreeable ingredient in many desserts and main dishes too.

It can be used in salad dressing, sauces and fruit drinks, or to replace part of the sugar in puddings, pies, cakes or candies. Honey makes a perfect glaze on ham, and is often served with southern fried chicken.

Lesser known ways of using honey are to combine it with butter to glaze squash, turnips, carrots, parsnips or onions. Drizzle honey over the precooked vegetables, season and dot with butter and bake 10 to 15 minutes uncovered in a moderately hot oven, basting once or twice.

Here is a way of using honey for a sweet-sour sauce for beets:

Ingredients: three cups cooked beets, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, two tablespoons honey, half-cup water, half-cup vinegar. Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and honey, stirring constantly. Gradually add water and vinegar. Cook until slightly thickened, about five minutes. Add beets and re-heat.
