Epigram of the Week

Forum ladies express views on Equality for Women

Lack of women's rights under Quebec law received a blast from Farm Forum wives and husbands alike when Farm Forums considered this topic recently. The biggest complaint is that women are severely handicapped in the business world as far as owning property or transacting business is concerned. The ladies also believe that a mother's signature should be accepted by hospitals in cases where an emergency operation is needed for a child. Other inequalities, say the ladies, are unequal pay for similar work and the "overbearing" and condescending attitude of men!

No agreement was reached on whether the women would be willing to accept full equality with men, including their responsibilities. Also the ladies were divided on whether they were willing to give up their privileges as women to obtain equality. Some replied, "What privileges?"

To obtain equality, the ladies would like to see a sweeping revision of Quebec law as it applies to them. They would like to share control of property, receive equal pay, have more women in public office, and have less "condescension" from men. Some would like more assistance around the home.

Creek Forum in Brome County reports: We would like the right to handle our own money or property, especially what was owned prior to marriage or is earned or inherited after. Women want a complete revision of Women's Rights in the Province of Quebec. The old French laws may have been good enough for our grandmothers, but they are not good enough for us!

* * *

Following are some opinions from Argenteuil branches:

Harrington — We think the law forbidding mothers to sign slips granting permission for operations on their children is foolish and unfair. Most parents have agreed together beforehand, and what difference should it make which one signs.

* * *

Arundel — There seem to be no inequalities that really bother the ladies present at this meeting.

* * *

Pioneer — Our women would like a better division of property. Also they are very strongly of the opinion that women should have equal pay for the same job, such as teaching school. The women are willing to accept full responsibility with men when they are qualified and capable. Our ladies refused to commit themselves as to the changes to obtain equality. (The men thought it was too near Christmas for them to complain, and we would hear plenty if this broadcast had been delayed till the New Year commenced!)

* * *

East Settlement — Five of our ladies said they would not accept full equality with men, including their responsibilities, and one was undecided. Our ladies feel that they do not have to sacrifice their privileges as women to obtain equality. Women should take their share in political life, such as members of County Council, School Board, etc. It should be noted that many of our men leaders depend a great deal on their wives for advice on how they should solve their problems. So many women are leaders in disguise!

* * *

Harrington — The five women here are agreed that the men can have the responsibility for big decisions on the farm even if it means a sacrifice of equality. We realize some women are in a very different position from farm women and we think women should be allowed to hold any position if they are qualified to do so. It seems to us that farm women should help and encourage their men in better and more modern ways.

Four vacancies in Ayersville

Ayersville Council vacancies will require the nomination of representatives for three seats and for the mayoralty. Nomination proceedings will take place next Wednesday, January 14, with election contests the following Monday, 19th, if necessary.

Mayor Maurice Champagne concludes his term, to which he was appointed from among the sitting councillors when Réal Morrissette resigned the mayoralty after a few months in office. It has been rumored that Gaëtan Paquette, predecessor in the mayoral chair, may again run for office.

The three councillors completing their term are Douglas Simon, Edgar Cyr and Rosaire Quenneville. Mr. Simon has held office for several years on the council, while Messrs. Cyr and Quenneville have each served one term.

Coroner's case at St. Andrews East

William Rockbrun, 68, of St. Andrews East, was pronounced dead last Saturday evening — death being declared due to natural causes. The victim apparently called Dr. Marcel Sylvestre, of St. Andrews, and informed him he was ill.

The physician left to attend to the sick man immediately, but found him dead when he arrived at the house. An investigation was carried out, and district coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur pronounced the death due to natural causes.

Six vacancies in council ranks for next civic year

The municipal electors of Lachute will be called upon, February 2 next, to send six representatives for vacancies occurring in Town Council — five aldermen and the mayor concluding their term of office.

Mayor Léopold Carrière, the only chief magistrate to be elected for three different terms, leaves many works and achievements completed in his two-year mandate. It is believed Mr. Carrière may be a candidate for West Ward alderman in the coming nominations.

Ald. Edgar O. Pollock concludes his term in East Ward; he has occupied the seat creditably for a number of years. Other representatives in office for this ward are Alderman Mozart Carrière and Stanley Holt — the latter completing the term of Ross Muir, who resigned several months ago.

In the Centre Ward, Aldermen Gerard Lefebvre and Lauréat Laurin are due to retire. The former was named to complete the term of Romain Desjardins, who no longer resides in Lachute.

In West Ward there are two councillors concluding their term, Messrs. Nelson Lepage and Wilfrid Morrissette. Third representative in this ward is René Belanger, whose term has run for one year to date.

Nomination day will be the last Monday in January, 26th, with election contests as and if required, on February 2.

Car burned on Route 8

A 1955-model sedan caught fire and burned on Route 8, near Calumet, at 2 o'clock last Sunday morning. Traffic Officer Albert Legault investigating the incident. The vehicle, which was driven by Romeo Lacourse, 26, was owned by Edmond Guindon, all of Calumet. The loss was covered by insurance.

Radio greetings from the Arctic

15 Fellowships given by C-I-L for advanced research

Montreal — Fifteen postgraduate students at various Canadian universities have been awarded C-I-L fellowships for advanced research in chemistry and related fields, according to recent announcement by Canadian Industries Limited.

The C-I-L fellowships include 15, valued at $2,000 each, for students seeking doctorate degrees and two valued at $1,200 each for those working towards masters' degrees. All fellowship recipients are chosen by their respective universities. In addition to the award made to the student, each fellowship carries with it a maintenance grant for the university. A total of 201 fellowships worth more than a quarter of a million dollars have been made available since this program was instituted 18 years ago to encourage research at the postgraduate level. The company's contributions in support of education generally run in excess of $100,000 annually.

First Trading Post

Snowdrifts stall school bus, Tuesday classes suspended

The abnormal winter reached a peak of severity Monday. Most services continued in regular operation except the local High School, which had to suspend classes on Tuesday due to uncertainties of highway travel. . . It was confidently expected that operations would be back to normal today, Wednesday.

Most bus drivers experienced difficulties returning home with the quotas of school pupils Monday afternoon. One bus, however, was completely bogged down in drifts. This was the case with Lloyd Kettyle's vehicle, which operates the run to and from Lachute High School via North River Settlement, Staynerville, and Mabel. It was not far from the urban limits that Lloyd encountered drifts, his bus being completely stalled near the Airport on the North River road.

The driver succeeded in communicating with Principal Fred Royal at the school, and the latter had a tow truck despatched from Deacon Motor Sales. The truck could not approach the stalled bus due to deep snow, but a cable was attached and the bus was hauled back to solid highway by means of the truck's winch.

Arriving back at school, some of the pupils were taken home by the main highway. Four others sought refuge with relatives here in town, while the remainder of the bus load were provided with food and refreshment brought in from a nearby restaurant.

To some of the marooned youngsters it was all good fun, but for the principal and driver concerned, and the parents aware of their children's plight, the situation was not without some anxiety.

Word came later that the Staynerville and Mabel roads were plowed, and that North River was now approachable via the four-corners intersection on Route 8. Driver Lloyd Kettyle set out again with his load, and the children were taken safely to their homes.

As the wind continued to drift loose snow on the highways, and the extreme cold weather remained unabated, orders were issued that there would be no school the following day.

State largesse and Liberty paradoxical — says Duplessis

Quebec (CP) — In his annual New Year's message, Premier Duplessis said continuous state intervention destroys personal initiative and ambition, and results in higher taxes.

"Public taxes, though they are necessary, must be held in check because in levying them the State reduces the freedom of the individual to dispose himself of the goods he has acquired," the Premier said.

"It is paradoxical . . . to ask the State to do everything and in the same breath to speak of Liberty."

He wished Quebec's citizens an "industrious and fruitful" year.

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — The slopes and hills are dotted with tourists enjoying the Winter Wonderland. With the abundance of snow this season, hotels and boarding houses are packed to capacity. The Village of Morin is a cheery scene with guests coming and going to the ski hills, the skating rinks, and enjoying sleigh rides. . .

Misfortune also struck, when one of the popular ski-tows was destroyed by fire, at the Alpino Lodge. However, it is hoped that this tow will soon be in operation again.

Laurentian towns via auto-route becoming fringe area of Montreal

(Rosemere Journal)

The year 1958 has been a year of growth in the district north of Montreal, particularly from the Ste. Rose and Rosemere area northward. Rural municipalities have become towns, some parishes are seeking town status, towns are expanding and new towns are springing up in areas which, not so long ago, were under cultivation as farms. There is every indication that 1959 will see a greater expansion.

South of the Mille Isles River, Ste. Rose and Fabreville have developed rapidly into communities of charming homes, with some industrial development taking place. Rosemere has become a town of around 6,000 people, and its development will continue with a new shopping centre. A civic centre, with Town Hall, Fire Hall (to house the new fire truck), and other municipal buildings, set in near proximity to parks and playgrounds is near at hand. Large housing developments in the north-eastern section are impending projects.

The Parish of Ste. Therese West is seeking wider powers to permit expansion. The Town of Ste. Therese hopes to soon be a city. Further north, almost every town and city is undergoing growing pains to some extent, as this area becomes more readily accessible, with the complete opening of the Montreal - Laurentians Autoroute in 1959, which will bring these areas within an hour's driving distance of Montreal. This applies to many new housing projects at places like Ste. Adele, and to the proposed Town of Esterel, which is to be developed at Ste. Marguerite.

While this northward trend toward all-year living in the northern areas continues, there is a great expansion of winter and summer sports and recreation activities. Skiing has become a sport for the masses, and with the opening of 10 new ski lifts this year, there are between 30 and 40 ski tows in the Laurentides district. And, for the summer and winter vacationists, there is the development of Mont Tremblant Park, which presents a vast unspoiled, natural vacation land at our doorstep.

Family affair draws sentence

Donat St. Jean and three sons, Roger, 22, Jean Guy, 19, and a 15-year-old youth, all of Brownsburg, were found guilty of a charge of theft of $60 worth of copper wire from the C-I-L plant at Brownsburg, upon appearing in St. Jerome Court recently.

The father was sentenced to a fine of $50 plus costs, while his sons each paid a fine of $5 plus costs. The theft took place early in November.

Truck crashes into diesel train

Three residents of Poltimore, Papineau County, were slightly injured at 9.35 Sunday morning when their truck slid out of control and smashed into the side of a C.P.R. Dayliner west of Pte.-au-Chene. It was the only accident of any consequence in the County during the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Edward Petit, 31, his 24-year-old wife and two-year-old daughter were treated at the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury. The truck, which turned over in a field following the collision, was demolished, and the train was delayed for 45 minutes.

Traffic Officers Lawrence Cruise and Ronald Massie investigated.

Annual visit to hospital

Since the Hon. W. M. Cottingham's representation of this constituency in the Legislative Assembly, he has made it an annual custom to visit the staff and patients at Providence Hospital during the holiday season. . . This year the Minister of Mines was himself on the convalescent list after a hospital siege with the grippe, but delegated his representative here, Mr. Roland Labonté, to pay his respects to the hospital and present souvenir gifts to the patients with his greetings and good wishes.

When the group arrived at Kirkaldy their new hosts from that and neighboring clubs were there to meet them, together with the usual representatives of the local press and photographers.

They were now in the "Kingdom" of Fife, a County which holds a proud and leading place among those of Scotland. Even before the Romans came to that land, this area was one of the seven independent Celtic provinces of ancient Alba. The people are credited with having a "peculiar independence of character" which has contributed to keeping them in the forefront of the Scottish scene from earliest times.

The remainder of that day was spent visiting points of interest in this section of the country. A few of the party were conducted through the John Haig Distillery at Markinch. This particular plant was primarily a blending and bottling plant. Whiskies were brought in from a number of distilleries located in various sections of the highlands to be blended into the well-known whiskey known on this side as Haig and Haig. It is all a very complicated business and it is interesting to note that, despite the fact that the demand exceeds the supply, there is no departure whatsoever from the routine which has resulted in this product of Scotland being famous throughout the world for so long. Even although there are thousands upon thousands of huge oaken kegs stored in warehouses, they will not be touched until the whiskey has been allowed to age the required length of time, usually ten years.

The program the next day consisted of two curling games, both morning and afternoon and lunch at the Kirkaldy Ice Rink. That evening the party attended an inter-club Rotary meeting at Cupar at which ten neighboring clubs were represented. When everyone was assembled at their places at the tables the haggis was piped in by Sir James Morrison-Low. After it was placed on the table in front of the chairman, it was addressed by Rotarian Tom McCallum in Scotch so broad that it was a total loss to all the Canadians. The menu consisted of haggis with bashed neeps and chappit tatties, Scotch broth (Sheep's Heid), Scotch rib of roast beef (Aberdeen Angus), sprouts with roast and stoved tatties, Scotch dumpling with brandy sauce or Scotch trifle followed by Scotch woodcock or cheese and bannocks and coffee. A special program was presented consisting of a number of monologues, and songs by a well-known Scotch singer, John Ritchie. All this together with the wonderful Rotary fellowship which prevailed throughout, contributed to make this one of the outstanding meetings of the tour.

At noon the next day the party gathered at the Kirkaldy City Chambers for the official reception by the Provost following which they were guests at the regular luncheon meeting of the local Rotary Club. It should be mentioned that at all these meetings, whether civic or Rotary, there were speeches and toasts of welcome, and more often than not, gifts for the guests of one kind or another, boxes of famous Scotch shortbread, ties of Scotch plaid and books or pamphlets providing information to the particular area. Linton, as leader of the party, replied to most of these, although some of the others did assist when and where it was possible to make such arrangements.

The next morning the visitors were driven to St. Andrews where they visited the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, said to be the home of golf and one of the most famous clubs in the world. Following a tour of the club house and especially the museum where a most unusual display of golf clubs, both old and new were to be seen, they were served coffee in the main lounge as guests of some of the officials of the club. The Town of St. Andrews, "where golf is almost a religion", is one of the oldest in Scotland and, while it is famous for its golf club it also boasts of the oldest university in Scotland, founded in 1414. It is interesting to see the students going from one class to another along the streets to the various buildings which make up the university, in their reddish-colored gowns, similar to those which have been in use for centuries.

From St. Andrews the party proceeded to Newport where they embarked on the ferry to cross the Firth of Tay for Dundee. James Bruce, president of that Rotary Club was on board to meet and welcome his Canadian guests. The new hosts were waiting when the ferry docked at the other side and escorted their guests to the hotel for lunch. After this everyone proceeded to the ice rink for a curling game. It was here that the Canadians met some of the toughest opposition of the tour as is indicated by the fact that the total score ended in a tie. Dinner was served at the rink following which the guests went to the various homes of their new hosts.

The next day, Saturday, was devoted to sight-seeing in Dundee and throughout the neighboring countryside.

On Sunday, the party was invited to attend morning service at St. Andrews Church in Dundee by the Rotarian Minister, Rev. T. R. S. Campbell. Dundonians are very proud of this church, which was built by the Trades of Dundee, and since then the Deacons are annually "kirked" in church. It was a special St. Andrews Day service in remembrance of those people from Dundee who are now living in other parts of the world. Linton Armstrong and Syd Drew took part in the service by reading the names of those Dundonians now living in Canada and the United States. Rev. Campbell read a chapter from the New Testament in broad Scotch, or what they call the Scot's Tongue. Needless to say, the major portion of this was lost to the Canadians. Most, if not all the service was recorded and the tape has since been sent to Linton.

That afternoon the visitors were taken to Perth where they met their new hosts headed by President David K. Thomson, at the Station Hotel where tea and coffee were served.

Perth is one of the most famous and most ancient cities of Scotland. It received its first charter from William The Lion and became a royal burgh in 1210 and it was from this period that it became the capital of Scotland. It was here that the famous Stone of Destiny had its origin. This was the stone which was stolen a few years ago from Westminster Abbey and became headline news. It remained in Perth for over a hundred years following which it was moved to Westminster by Edward I after the Scottish Wars of Independence. It was after the murder of James I, Scotland's Poet King, in 1437 that Edinburgh became the capital city.

The next morning the guests were driven to Pitlochery, a distance of about twenty-seven miles. After coffee at Fishers Hotel they visited McNaughton's Woollen Mill and Bell's Distillery. This was followed by a Rotary luncheon at the hotel, where the speaker, a lady, related some new facts which she had uncovered concerning some of the historical events in Scotland. It was a very interesting and enjoyable meeting. The party then returned to Perth Ice Rink where tea was served and a game of curling "laid on". A most interesting feature at this rink was the fact that at the same time the curling game was in progress, an equal number of men were enjoying games of lawn bowling in another part of the same building, a feature which is said to be unique throughout the country. Another item of interest was the collection of ancient curling stones on display. One in particular, proved a great attraction. It was three-cornered in shape and weighed 117 pounds.

After the game that afternoon, the Canadians were the guests of Rotarians for dinner at the Rink.

The next morning everyone gathered at the City Chambers for the official civic reception by the Lord Provost, John Buchan. The party then left for the ice rink where they were the guests of the Board of Directors of the rink for lunch. John Nairn, who was one of the Scots who visited Canada last winter, was chairman. His sense of humor and his great popularity contributed much to making this meeting a huge success.

There was more curling that afternoon. Tea was served after the game following which the party left for Lochearnhead where a special event had been arranged consisting of a banquet followed by a Curlers' Court. The hosts were the members of the Edinchip Curling Club and this was the occasion of their annual dinner. The President is Ewen Cameron, owner of the hotel where the event took place. He is a well-known individual who weighs in the neighborhood of 280 pounds and is recognized as the champion caber tosser of Scotland. There were about 150 in attendance, many of whom were former hosts and members who visited Canada last year. These were all looked upon as old friends by this time and it was a great pleasure to meet them again. Following a delicious banquet, the Canadians were introduced and welcomed. There were a number of speeches, all spiked with humor and then came the Curlers' Court. This is an institution peculiar to Scotland. Despite the fact that curling has been so popular in Canada for so many years, this particular feature has never been introduced into this country. Whereas some attempt is made to inject a serious note, it is conducted, for the most part, in a lighter vein, with everyone joining in the fun. All sixteen Canadians were duly "made" curlers together with seven local curlers and including one woman. There is no doubt but that this was one of the highlights of the entire tour. The fellowship was wonderful and the usual lavish Scots hospitality was much in evidence.

Richelieu Club festive party

Children of less fortunate families in Lachute and Ayersville were again royally entertained by the Richelieu Club during the holiday season. Around 200 youngsters assembled in the Catholic school basement for a bountiful supper and festive cheer; each child afterwards received a gift provided by the club — a gesture in which many citizens and Richelieu members contributed wholeheartedly.

Timely hints for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

With the holidays all over for another year, we can give some serious thought to the Fish and Game situation. To start with I have been trying to get some information on the lakes that were supposed to be stocked with various types of trout, but up to the present have had no luck. Perhaps some of you readers could give some information. My telephone is LO 2-6374; a call would be appreciated. Maybe we could get a little more action.

I've had the opportunity of getting around the country quite a bit since coming home, so that I feel a little better about some of the things I have been told about. I was told about some of the visitors who had been throwing their garbage out onto the highway. Even with the snow around, you sure can see this is not imagination on anyone's part. I wonder what we will have to do to get people to treat the countryside like their houses. Of course they might dump their junk in their front room, who knows? The new highway up towards Lakefield has taken a beating in this respect. I noticed, all over the Ontario highways there were signs warning "No dumping. Fine $50." Maybe a few of them around here would do the trick, along with the co-operation of citizens to report such offences.

The rabbits are still with us in great numbers; the only thing with this, is the depth of the snow. That is not too much, but it's hard getting them to run in it. . . There is one good thought about this condition, however. With winter and snow starting so early, it should be very good for the Partridge. I know there are a good number of them around. As long as there is no rain on top of the snow, we will be in for good shooting come fall.

We'll be going fishing pretty soon, through the ice. It won't be too long before we are getting the Perch again; and I'm looking forward to a nice feed of Perch. I have a few reports of the ice fishing around — at St. Placide, St. Andrews, etc. From these reports, the fish haven't started their winter schooling as yet. A few have been caught singly, but there is no definite pattern with them yet. I guess they are strays and won't start the real schooling until a little later. Maybe some of you sports would be interested in a little ice fishing? It's a lot of fun.

I don't know if any of you were out in the bush during the holidays; if you were, you will probably have felt the same as we did. The snow was so white and glistening that you had to wear snow glasses in order to see. Not a sound except the wind and the Chickadees peeping away. With the trees all covered with snow, it sure looked grand. And doesn't it make you feel good to see the Chicks come right up to you and show no sign of fear? I don't know of any wild animal that will show fear unless it has been chased or hurt by humans. I know there will be contrary opinions about this, but any animal will let you get close, if you don't try and sneak up on it. It seems that, so long as they can see and hear you they won't be too worried; once you start stalking, though, they are off. All wild creatures are curious and nosy in the bush. If you walk along slowly, whistle, and don't make any sudden moves — you will be surprised at how close you can get to game before it moves off. Even Deer will let you get close to them.

I've been along the river a couple of times and I am truly surprised at how clean the ice and snow is all along. Not a bit of garbage on the river. I know nothing has been said about this evil since spring, and by the looks of things, the citizens are just as fed up with the practice as all the sportsmen around. Let us hope that we are heading in the right direction. I sure think we are. . . I've just finished reading a folder from the American Streams Commission, and there was an article about a river that is a duplication of the North River all over again. This waterway was being killed by pollution from assorted towns and villages just the way the North River is — not only dry pollution but the raw, from the towns. It has taken some pretty serious legislation to get this river back to where it is a producer of sport. I don't mean exclusively from the fishing point of view, but from the swimming and boating facilities, etc. . . . In this case it seems to have been worthwhile for everyone to help. It has taken a terrific amount of work by everyone to do this job; even the women's clubs were enlisted in the drive, and to me that was a smart move; all we have to do is to look at some of the events the ladies' clubs get into, and the results they get. Perhaps we are missing the boat, here in Lachute. How about it, ladies?

* * *

Now for something that makes me pretty mad at times. I've been asked recently what happened to the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association. I don't think that needs any explanation at all. After all, if you don't get support from the members who make up the club, you can't do anything — that is, anything worthwhile. Another thing that a few of us thought was a mistake, was the $1 for admission to the Association, and what some of the members wanted for that buck! You also must WANT to have Conservation; it can't just be picked up at bargain rates. We all have to forego a little in the field to make it work, and the sooner we get that into our thick heads the better it will be for our "kids". It's them that this is going to help, not us, and surely that is something to work for. We all know that Conservation is a must. Other parts of the province seem to be behind it all the way. But here — we can't even get the members out to a meeting of the Association. Too much trouble. There is everything in this County that as sportsmen we can enjoy, but it is getting harder and harder to see. Even the knowledge that we can de something about it doesn't seem to help.

* * *

As you know, the wife and I have a weakness for dogs, any kind. Boy, have we a situation on our hands now! You may remember our Goldens, which I have told you about at times. Since they have been back off the Island it's been murder! They fight at every opportunity; and neither one will quit, so they haven't made up their minds yet which is the boss. When we came back late in August they started hostilities then; and they haven't quit yet. My wife had to let them out one at a time while I was back on the Island. I've tried a number of things to get them to agree, but without success. We'll be resorting to muzzles before too long. Even our canary gets into the act when they start to fight in the house.

Out in the bush back of Laurin's farm the other day, I spotted a beagle trailing a rabbit. I never did get close enough to find out who owned the dog, but that wasn't of much importance at the time. To hear this pup was truly a thrill. In the frosty air, the baying of the dog was as though it were only a few feet away. I guess it was one of Mr. Vary's dogs that someone has been fortunate enough to get.

That's all for this time. Hope you can give me some information on the lakes that were not stocked.

Kilmar team lost to Bombers in unpromising debut

Brownsburg — Sunday afternoon saw the debut of the Kilmar Intermediate Hockey Club in Brownsburg. Unfortunately for the league's newest entry, it was not the auspicious start that the team's fans hoped it would be. The Bombers made it look easy, as they completely outclassed the Kilmar squad by a 19-2 score.

Brownsburg scored four times in the first period, while the C.R.L. boys picked up two counters. At this point, although the Bombers had the best of the play, it appeared that the contest could have ended with a reasonable goals total. The picture changed however, as the Bombers scored 9 goals in the second period and picked up another 6 in the final.

Kilmar cannot be counted out yet, of course, but scores of this magnitude will do little to arouse spectator interest in these days of competition with television. While practice and team play are bound to bring an improvement, it could be that the coach will have to dig a bit deeper to come up with more talent. Admittedly, it was a bit rough on the team having to open their season against the unbeaten Bomber powerhouse. The boys might have fared better against one of the other league members.

Jacques Racine led the scoring splurge for Brownsburg with 7 goals and 5 assists for an amazing 12-point total. André Ouellette followed with 4 goals and 4 assists. Other Bomber points went to Bill Robitaille (5 assists), Bill Cribb (4 assists), Mason MacAdam (2 goals, 1 assist), Stewart Vary (3 goals), Jacques Leveille (1 goal, 3 assists), Red Charlebois (2 assists), Roy Cruise (2 assists), Jacques Legault (1 goal, 1 assist), Willis MacAdam (1 assist).

Brownsburg meets the Lachute Spitfires at 8.30 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at the Brownsburg Arena. This shapes up as a pretty fair contest, as the Spitfires were only two goals behind in the last meeting of these two clubs.

Tomorrow's world

IT HAS BEEN the custom for some time to compose snappy slogans for almost everything, including the decades as they roll along. After the First World War the slogan "roaring '20s" was given to the booming decade of hope and expansion which followed.

Then there were the "dirty '30s", so called by those who lived among them in Western Canada. For some reason, easterners prefer the label "dusty '30s," although dust was only one of the plagues to mar that decade.

Most were agreed that the war years between 1940 and 1949 were aptly called the "fighting '40s".

But what of the decade now beginning its last year?

The snappy slogan writers with a sale to promote have suggested these are the "thrifty '50s" and have enjoyed some success in the last eight or nine years. But another label, more appropriate to some, might be: "frightening '50s".

Has this not been the decade of the nuclear warhead, of frightening chemical weapons and the intercontinental missile? Some would claim it has been a time of frightening threat to the very survival of mankind.

But there is apparently another threat. Not long ago a young man was discussing with an oldster of 35 years the "angry young men" of recent years. He said to his senior: "You wouldn't understand. You were born before the war when there were causes and something to hope for."

That statement took the "oldster" aback. If this is a decade without hope, it most certainly is a frightening time.

But can it be? The beginning of a new year is a time to ponder that question and its answers.

The world has come quite a distance since the roaring '20s when the war to end all wars had just ended. It has learned at least this one thing: that the world's survival problems are not settled merely by force of arms. It has learned there is additionally the peace to win, as well as the war.

And that is what the world has been trying to do in the last decade. Its success is not yet fully assured, but the hope promised at this New Year's season is enough to give the lie to a lasting label of frightening '50s.

Furore over Art and the treasury

CANADA'S National Gallery officials were hot under the collar — even to a reported threat of resignation — over a $445,000 art deal that fell through when the government refused to provide the cash after the Gallery had confirmed the purchases.

Gallery Director Alan Jarvis denied there were resignation threats. However, the cabinet members confirmed there had been a deal made by the Gallery and that the government had decided such an expenditure would not be justified at a time when the federal treasury is tightening its belt.

Published reports said the Gallery had received verbal approval of the purchase from then Acting Citizenship Minister Fulton, but Mr. Fulton denied this. Nevertheless, New York art dealer Hanns Schaeffer who had been commissioned to purchase one of the paintings for $350,000 — a landscape by Breughel the Elder — said he completed the deal with the owner on the basis of a letter from the Gallery.

Meanwhile, Uno Who (in the little wooden barrel) rejoices to find his government for once hesitant over "non-essential" spending. . . And art lovers are indignant. Canada's name is now mud in the art world, they say.

States Robert Ayre, well known art critic: "One of the most depressing episodes of the year we have just left behind was the government veto of the National Gallery's purchase of two paintings, one by Pieter Brueghel and the other by Lorenzo Monaco. . . If we are really concerned about the welfare of the arts in this country, we will let the government know that pictures have a claim on our taxes as valid as the claim of rockets."

And this from an anti-modern, in a letter to The Montreal Gazette:: "If Mr. Jarvis had not squandered incredible amounts of the taxpayers' money on even more incredible trash, it would be feasible at this time to buy the two paintings in question."

Lots to look back on

There was the day that Whitby Dunlops turned on a scoring spree in the final minutes of the deciding game at Oslo last March, to whip Russia 4-2 and regain the world amateur hockey championship for Canada.

There was the day in February when Lucile Wheeler, 23-year-old redhead from St. Jovite, hurtled down the slopes of Bad Gastein, Austria, to become the first Canadian ever to win a world skiing title. Miss Wheeler won the women's downhill and giant slalom, two events which ultimately led to her selection as Canada's outstanding female athlete of the year.

In the Stanley Cup playoffs last spring, Montreal Canadiens defeated a tough Boston Bruin team to capture their third straight Stanley Cup championship.

Canada's track and field athletes met reverses. Considered by many before the British Empire Games to be one of our strongest teams in years, they failed to win a gold medal at the Games. But the University of British Columbia eight-oared crew rowed to victory in Wales.

In the Grey Cup game at Vancouver, Winnipeg Blue Bombers made a comeback which produced a spine-tingling 35-28 victory over Hamilton, the 1957 champions.

Two weeks later Yvon Durelle, Canada's fighting fisherman from Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., made a sensation in the world light-heavyweight title fight at Montreal, but was defeated by "ancient" Archie Moore in the 11th round.

Stan Leonard, former Lachute pro and one of the best golfers in Canadian history, won the $40,000 Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas and ended the year with nearly $40,000 in winnings. . .

Yes, altogether Canada had an exciting sports year in 1958, with plenty of humor, disappointment and success.

Winter driving

THERE ARE THOSE whose first answer to winter driving is: "Put the car in a garage and leave it there." But for those who would ride rather than walk, advice from the Canadian Safety Conference boils down to the fact that bad weather is a challenge to driving ability — not an alibi for an accident.

It's the challenge, of course, that counts. Part of the play-safe game rests on the old adage than an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Prevention includes overhaul for winter driving — making sure that the car, its brakes, windshield wipers and defrosters are working properly.

Safety experts suggest you take along chains for emergencies. And once behind the wheel, it's worthwhile getting the "feel of the road" to adjust to road and weather conditions.

Pumping the brakes to stop and keeping a safe distance behind the car ahead are other safety hints.

In a season when a little skidding goes a long way, the experts say slowing down and turning the front wheels in the direction of the skid should be helpful.

The pedestrian also adds to the problems of the winter driver. The wacky-walker, of course, is a double menace as he crosses in the middle of a slippery street or dashes out from behind a parked car.

It seems that caution and common sense are the motorist's — and pedestrian's — best bet for the freezing season if either is to venture outside on foot or on wheels.

SIMPLE SOLUTION. — There is only one way to show a manufacturer that the public has decided his product is overpriced. If the price is too high, why buy? The solution is that simple. Only when there is a drop in sales does the manufacturer worry about such things as public opinions and excessive prices.

The next morning the party was driven to Falkirk for a special friendly curling game against those Scottish Rotarian curlers who visited Canada last year. This was a particularly enjoyable game. On the one side there were those Rotarians of Scotland who had made this wonderful tour possible, headed by that genius at organization, Willie Milne of Glasgow and his friend Bob Mackintosh, while on the other side there were sixteen Canadians who were nearing the end of a tour which had been so filled with true Rotary friendliness, fellowship and hospitality as to beggar description. By pre-arrangement, the last stone on the last end was not played. This game has not been completed and it is the earnest hope of all that at some future date there may be an opportunity to resume play.

Dinner was served after the game at the rink. As if they had not already done enough the hosts presented each guest with a gift to take home to his wife. This consisted of a beautiful silver brooch known as the "Luckenbooth" betrothal brooch and is considered the most romantic in the history of silversmithing in Scotland. It consists of intertwining hearts superimposed with a crown which is the symbol of Mary, Queen of Scots, 1542-1587. The original was made of gold and presented to the Queen and is and always will be the only one of that metal in existence.

During the afternoon the party moved on to Glasgow to the homes of those hosts with whom they had stayed near the beginning of the tour.

The farewell dinner was held in the Royal Scottish Automobile Club in Glasgow that evening. The chairman was Robert Danskin, Rotary Chairman of District No. 102. Among the prominent guests at the head table were J. H. Thompson, from London, President of Rotary International for the British Isles; A. C. Marshall, C.B.E., Chairman of Rotary District No. 101; Brigadier J. W. H. Gow, C.B.E., D.L., President of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club; Festus Moffat, O.B.E., of Falkirk; Willie Milne, M.B.E., Rotary Sports Convener for Scotland; R. B. Barr, Officer-in-Charge of Canadian Government Immigration Service and others. A beautiful leather travelling bag was presented to Willie Milne, that great Rotarian who had done such a magnificent job of organizing the tour, a tour in which not the smallest detail was overlooked. This came as a complete surprise to Willie and the audience thundered its applause. The three French Canadians sang "Alouette", which, said Rotarian Armand Champoux of Three Rivers would be their way of expressing their thanks for a perfectly wonderful time. Jack Riddell was there and sang his well-known song about the tourie on the bonnet. Following the many appropriate speeches the Bob Macintosh Trans-Atlantic Rotary Curling Quaick was presented to Linton to be taken back to Canada as a gesture of goodwill between Scotland and North America. This is a beautiful silver cup which has now crossed the Atlantic three times. Linton, in thanking the hosts stated that his vocabulary was inadequate to the occasion and called upon each of the Canadians to express his thoughts about the tour. This was exceptionally well done and each was warmly applauded.

Finally, the meeting was over. The tour of Scotland had now been completed. Good-byes were said. "Haste ye back", was heard all about the room and there were the sixteen Canadians trying to find the proper words to express the thanks they really felt, thanks for the opportunity to see so much of this beautiful country, thanks for the multitude of new friends they had made, thanks for the many generous gifts received, thanks for having been extended a degree of hospitality which could not be surpassed and finally, thanks to Rotary which had made it all possible.

AND THE SAME TO YOU.

I thought my friends had passed away, till the approach of Christmas Day when I began receiving cards with every sort of kind regards and wishes for a glad New Year from all my friends from far and near.

There is a good and valid reason why we all love the Festive Season — when we look back in retrospection on friends for whom we have affection — on friends we seldom have in mind — on friends we knew, so good and kind.

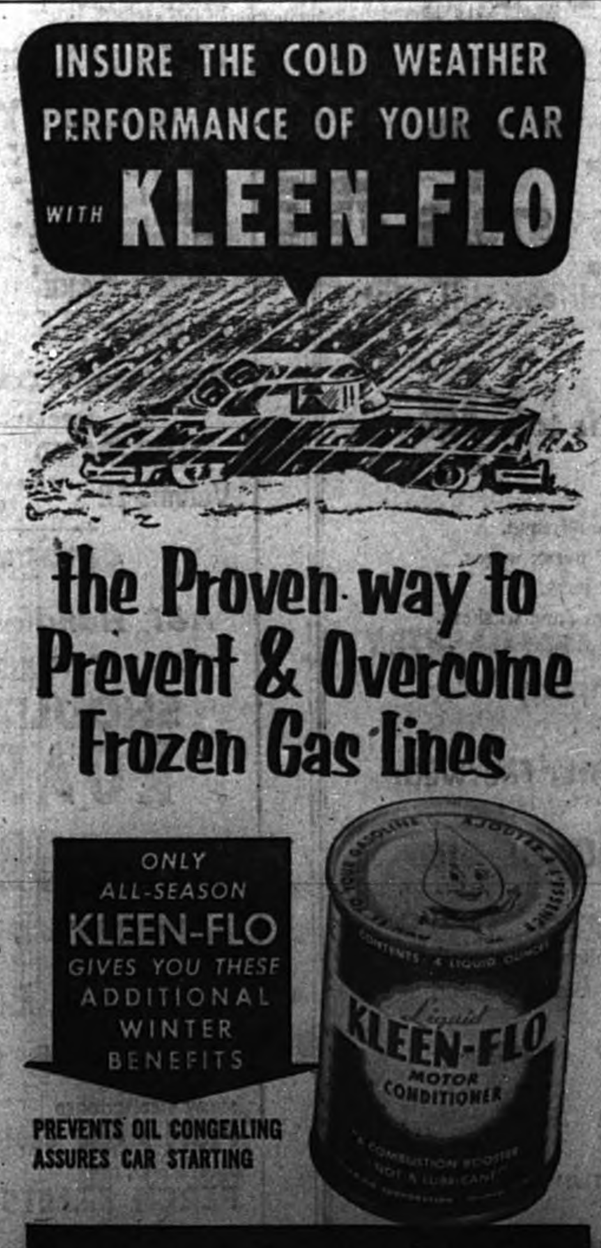

I wish that you could see the lot of Christmas Greetings that I got. But what brought out my warmest smile were those received from Argenteuil!

It's late. I'll have to call a halt.

Of Many Things

Don't be scared

In 1959, Canadians should stop being scared. Fear petrifies. Mostly, men fear change; yet change often brings enormous benefits.

Consider our unfounded fear of new inventions. Men expect each new invention to rob them of jobs. Instead, automation increased the number of jobs and made them easier.

Look at our textile industry. When man-made fibres were invented, timid folk thought they'd be put out of work. Instead, wiser heads in the Canadian textile industry adopted the new processes themselves, and today 50 establishments give direct employment to 15,000 Canadians, and pay $50 million a year in wages and salaries. True, some of these plants are going broke because they cannot compete with imports from countries where wages are pitifully low; but even that problem will be solved; if the industry makes a good case before the tariff board now holding hearings.

Attempts are being made to frighten farmers about vertical integration, contract farming, and the entry of businessmen into the farming business. Fright is not the proper reaction; fright paralyzes. Instead, there is a lesson to be learned when businessmen see high profits to be made. Businessmen are certainly not going into the farming business to spite anybody; they are going into it to make money, just as farmers have established quite a few businesses for the same purpose, and are perfectly free to establish more of them. If they are wise, however, they will examine their motivation — if you start a business for spite, you will lose money. The proper motive for establishing a successful business is profit — in return for service. But farmers have the edge over others in the farming business, because they have skill and experience, and they should not need to fear inexperienced competition. If they do fear it, some soul-searching is in order.

Fear fades when trouble is met head-on by intelligent action. Change will always come. It will bring benefits to those who act; pain only to those who want always to sit still.

Let's welcome 1959 with courage. Don't be scared; be active.

What is a Sugaring-Off Party?

In the spring, when the sap begins to rise in maple-sugar trees, sugaring-off parties are held in the sugarbush. Maple syrup, collected by the pailful, is boiled so that all impurities are removed. Children cluster around the huge kettles with pans of clean snow. The hot clear liquid is poured onto the snow and it hardens quickly into a sweet and sticky mass. Neighbors and friends from many miles come to sample the new syrup and sugar.

How Large is an Octopus?

Octopuses are found on both Canadian coasts. One species on the west coast grows to tremendous size — over ten feet in length, with arms more than 30 feet long. These creatures weigh about 75 pounds. The octopus is a mollusc, a group of soft-bodied invertebrates that includes oysters, clams, scallops, mussels, snails, slugs and squids.

Is the first Hudson's Bay Trading Post still active?

Yes. When the Sieur des Groseilliers landed in James Bay, at the mouth of the Rupert River, in 1668 he built a trading post. He named it Fort Charles for King Charles II, as Groseilliers was then in the employ of the English. Fort Charles was captured by the French in 1686 and renamed Fort St. Jacques. Permanently re-established by the Hudson's Bay Company in 1777, the fort — now called Rupert's House — still carries on its trading activities. It is today the centre of a 7000-acre beaver sanctuary leased from the Quebec government.

Now is the time to start preparing for Christmas, 1959.

Christmas has grown too big for the average man and woman to handle. Merchants have turned it into a big festival of dollars.

The people selling Christmas goods are professionals. But the buying is still in the hands of amateur fathers and mothers. It's no wonder that their heads are buzzing. They are playing out of their league.

Christmas should be handed over entirely to the professionals.

Ordinary people should entrust their lives to a professional Christmas Manager on December 26, or January 1, of each year.

By the time the Christmas advertising trumpets begin to sound in September, the client has built up a Christmas Club fund by advance payment. It won't be enough, but it will help. If the client loses his job, he gets his money back.

The Christmas Manager acts as a go-between for the giving of presents. Posing as a friend, he calls on or writes to aunts, uncles, cousins, wives, husbands, fathers, mothers and children, finding out, by devious means, their preference in gifts.

At the same time he confides that the client is broke, and prepares the way for the arrival of cheap gifts, or the non-arrival of any gifts.

He buys or chops down the Christmas tree, takes the children to see Santa Claus, listens to radio and television commercials on behalf of the client. He buys the Christmas food and liquor and (for de luxe clients) cooks and serves it himself.

He sends and receives the cards, prepares next year's list and writes an insulting letter to Dr. Brock Chisholm.

After the feast, he gathers up the wrapping paper for use the following Christmas, tidies the house, and arranges a scale of monthly payments to reduce the debt.

For extra-special clients, he goes down to the travel office in mid-December, books a pair of tickets for mamma and papa to Waikiki, and takes charge of the children until the parents return, January 15.

Census of Weapons

In Canada's early days the official census-taker was required to list the number of swords and firearms in each home.

Careless Driving Federal Court Case Says Chief Justice

Prosecutions for careless driving have almost stopped in Ontario, due to the ruling of Chief Justice McRuer, above, that such cases should be tried by federal courts. He quashed a careless driving conviction in the case of a driver accused of travelling at 80 mph. The Ontario Court of Appeals will review the decision of the chief justice.

Lachute townsman, Harold E. Carson, died suddenly

Friends of the late Harold Everett Carson were shocked to hear of his sudden passing, which occurred at his home on Bedard Blvd. early Wednesday morning, December 31. Apparently in fair health, he suffered a heart attack which proved fatal.

Mr. Carson was born at Ulverton in 1891, and received his early education at Sherbrooke. He later moved to Montreal, where he followed his occupation as an accountant. In 1937 he came to Lachute, where he has since resided.

Mrs. Carson, the former Edith Holstead, of Montreal, predeceased him in 1952. From this union one daughter was born, Enid (Mrs. Dixon).

Mr. Carson's second marriage was in 1955 to Mrs. Margaret Libbos, of Montreal.

A member of the United Church and the Masonic Fraternity, Mr. Carson was until recent years an ardent curler, well liked and well known in the community.

The funeral service was conducted on Friday afternoon by the Rev. Wilson Bridge in the Lachute United Church. Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Ross Muir, Stanley Boyd, Wm. Davis, R. A. Giles, Arnold Scott and Edmund McFaul.

Former resident of St. Andrews East died in B.C.

St. Andrews East — Word has been received here of the death of Mr. Victor John Austen Willett at Kelowna Hospital, on December 17, following a short illness.

The late Mr. Willett was in his 87th year. He was for many years in charge of the estate of Mr. William Fair on the North River Road here.

Rouge River Couple celebrate their 50th anniversary

On December 31, Mr. and Mrs. George McVicar, of the Rouge River Road, north of Calumet, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Barton (the former Olive McVicar) of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Heazel (the former Melba McVicar) of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton McVicar of Brownsburg, and Harold McVicar who lives on the home farm, were all present to help them celebrate this happy occasion. The immediate relatives presented them with a television set, and other friends and relatives called during the day to express their good wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. McVicar (the former Nellie Blackburn) were married in the Stonefield Baptist Church. The bride's sister, Minnie, now Mrs. Harold Brannan of Calumet, was bridesmaid and recalls a cold drive with horse and cutter on a stormy day to Stonefield and back to the Blackburn farm, a goodly distance for a horse-drawn vehicle.

Mr. and Mrs. McVicar have lived most of their married life on the Blackburn farm six miles north of Calumet Village, except for 12 years spent in Vankleek Hill. They both enjoy good health, and Mrs. McVicar is still organist in the Rivington Baptist Church.

Mr. Wayne Petley, B.Y.P.U. president, was in charge of the program. Miss Pat Warwick and Miss Helen Mason also took part. Hymns used were "He Leadeth Me", "Faith of Our Fathers", "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah", and "Standing at the Portal". Mrs. N. E. Lachute debutante represented Canada at international function

Miss Evelyn Ayers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ayers, of Lachute, represented the Province of Quebec and Canada at large, at the International Debutantes' Ball held at the Astor Hotel in New York on December 30. Miss Ayers had the honor of being invited and was the only Canadian debutante to attend this event.

— Garcia Studio

New York — A "global get-together of the summits of the debutante world" met in the main ballroom of the Hotel Astor in New York on the night of December 30, when the fourth annual International Debutante Ball took place amid colorful and patriotic surroundings.

Canada was represented by Miss Evelyn Ayers, of Lachute.

The fete will benefit the Kidney Disease Foundation of New York.

According to Mrs. Cleveland Amory, general chairman of the Ball, the international character of the event was heightened by the presence of a great number of ambassadorial, consular, United Nations dignitaries, and prominent families gathered to view the "coming out" along with a number of American girls.

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham and Mrs. Cottingham, and Mrs. Thomas H. Ayers, mother of the Canadian debutante, also attended this notable function.

England was represented by Miss Corinna Pierson-Dixon, daughter of Great Britain's Ambassador to the United Nations, Sir Pierson-Dixon and Lady Pierson-Dixon; Miss Zia Foxwell, daughter of Mr. Ivan Foxwell and Lady Edith Foxwell of London and Miss Zara Heber-Percy, daughter of Brig. Algernon Heber-Percy and Lady Poole of London.

New Year and the distant scene

The beginning of a New Year is the time for a look at the distant scene. Most of us stand appalled, if we think at all, at what presents itself before our eyes. The Scriptural statement, "darkness hath covered the earth, and gross darkness the people," seems to have come to pass in many forms. Is there any remedy? Surely, if we are honest with ourselves we shall see it in God's Word! Looking at the scene can only make a man fear if he has no inner confidence, no calm assurance, no faith in the ultimate triumph of good. These things are found in the quiet meditative study of the Bible. Read it each day, and you will be able to say with a great hymn writer — "One step enough for me."

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

In Its 80th Year and STILL GROWING!

— That's The WATCHTOWER Magazine!

In July, 1879, the first issue of this significant Bible journal was published. Small in number of copies printed — only 6,000 — this newborn publication was already far advanced in maturity of viewpoint. Today, in its eightieth year, The Watchtower has not only firmly established its Scriptural position in regard to doctrine and prophecy but its circulation has passed the 3,500,000 mark each issue (semi-monthly). Yet its subscription rate is still only $1 a year. — Subscribe now and receive free three booklets on Bible subjects. — Write 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19, Ont., or ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet anywhere.

Repartee

"That nervy woman at the desk asked what my husband does for a living. I told her he has his own business and spends his time minding it."

Sounds good! Logical, too! You see the normal job of the kidneys is to remove excess wastes and acids —so often the cause of backache—from the system. Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate the kidneys in this function and so may bring you that welcome relief from backache they have many others. Try just 3-a-day. You can depend on Dodd's—in the blue box with the red band. 64

Holiday Celebrations

Once more this little community has been wrapped in holiday attire. The municipal Christmas tree has stood at the village crossroads, welcoming home sons and daughters and visitors to a winter wonderland. Quite a few events took place, which will be remembered for a long while. . .

Arundel United Church held its Sunday school party. Refreshments at the end of the delightful program were enjoyed by all.

Special church services were held, with Christmas music, and a pageant by the Sunday school members. Those in charge deserve great credit for this performance.

Under auspices of the United Church Guild, a special carol service was held, and was enjoyed by the large attendance.

On Christmas Eve a group of church members with the acting minister, Mr. Greenough and Mrs. Greenough, went to the United Church at St. Jovite and conducted service there.

All these events, with a school concert (unreported here through lack of space) brought a very busy week to a close.

* * *

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"The first to greet me was you . . possibly the nicest of all," wrote Anne Frank, of a gift of a diary given to her on her twelfth birthday. How fortunate is the world that her parents chose this present for their daughter as she entered adolescence! This diary, with its vivid word pictures of two Jewish families in hiding in Holland during the War, has been read by tens of thousands and the play based on the diary has been seen by a great army of theatre lovers. One critic declared that more than any other work, it has aroused the conscience, not only of Germans but of people in many lands. The horror of Jews under Hitler's direction must never be repeated!

To the parents of adolescents, one of the most interesting discoveries in the page of Anne Frank's diary is how much writing in it meant to her. Here are two passages reflecting this: "Anyone who doesn't write, doesn't know how wonderful it is." and "I can shake off everything if I write; my sorrows disappear, my courage is reborn."

The span of adolescence has often been called the "tumultuous teens" and Anne reflects in her diary the warfare between two sides of her personality when she wrote: "My lighter superficial side will always be too quick for the deeper side of me and that's what will always win — ". Her diary, when she felt depressed and misunderstood was a great comfort to her. In one place she exclaims: "But still the brightest spot of all is that at least I can write down my thoughts and feelings, otherwise I would be absolutely stifled."

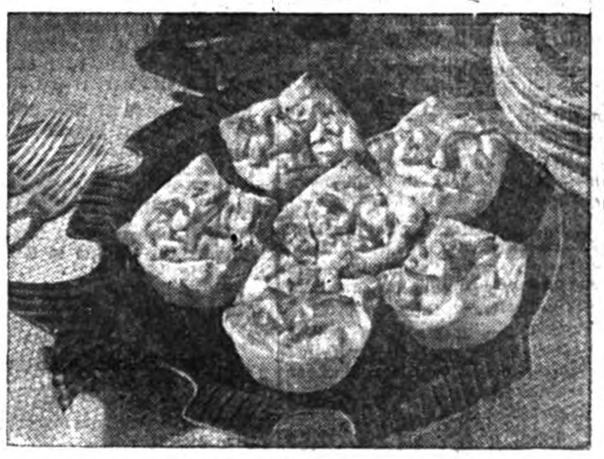

Emotions must have some outlet, and it is interesting to know that when her mother irked her most, she confided in her diary and got it out of her system. Later she reflected on her harsh written comments on her mother, "I soothe my conscience now with the thought that it is better for harsh words to be on paper than that Mummy should carry them in her heart. . ." In another place, Anne's courage and her philosophical nature shines through this sentence: "If the truth is told, things are just as bad as you yourself care to make them."

The fear of being discovered hung over the two families in hiding. Once when they are discussing this possibility, Anne's father comments, that if the police arrive, they will find his youngest daughter's diary. The most terrified member of the group suggested that the diary be burned. Anne's immediate protest was "Not my diary! If my diary goes, I go with it!"

Writing in a diary does not appeal to everyone, but from my own experience, I can recommend the pleasure which keeping a diary may give. When I entered Collegiate my parents gave me a red-bound book marked, "Journal" and in it I began to keep my diary. In time, other books were needed and in recent years, only special events or puzzling situations have been written in my diary.

Today there are three adolescents in our family, and in glancing over the pages of that first red-bound Journal, the past comes back to me vividly. . . Here I meet myself at thirteen, at fourteen, at fifteen. . . . Here I recapture, to a small degree, what it felt like when I was in my teens. . . I turn from my diary with new patience, born of understanding, for today's family problems and conflicts.

If you have a son or daughter of Collegiate age, I heartily recommend the reading of Anne Frank's Diary for its insight into the inner life of an adolescent. Perhaps you would like to give a diary a trial in your life. Stating a problem in your own written words then outlining briefly possible ways to face it, is one way of banishing anxiety and of arriving at a solution. Because it might mean much to your adolescent, why not give that boy or girl of yours a diary?

Canadian fish specialty

To Canadian consumers the unusually big sockeye salmon run means that our markets this winter will have an abundant supply of high-quality canned sockeye salmon, outstanding amongst native foods for its vivid color, rich flavor and adaptability to a number of appealing dishes — lunch box sandwiches to crunchy salads to popular casserole dishes for family and company meals — dishes which sparkle with lively flavor and eye-appeal, like Salmon Veronique. This is a gourmet-type specialty with the salmon featured in a rich smooth sauce taking its name from the unusual flavor and texture accent of seedless green grapes.

Salmon Veronique

Two 7-oz. cans salmon, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ cup minced onion, 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 cup chicken broth, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, dash cayenne pepper, 1 cup light cream, 1 cup seedless green grapes, 4 to 6 patty shells (homemade or from the baker).

Drain and flake salmon. Melt butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add onion and cook until tender. Add flour and mustard and stir until well blended. Remove pan from heat. Gradually add chicken broth (canned or made with 1 chicken bouillon cube and 1 cup hot water), stirring to blend. Add lemon juice, salt, cayenne, and light cream. Return pan to heat and cook stirring until thickened. Add salmon, stir to blend and cook until hot. Add grapes and cook a minute longer to heat grapes. Spoon into patty shells (or onto slices of hot toast). Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Cherished Privilege

Freedom to choose our own friends and companions is one of the freedoms we value most. For without it this world would be a lonely place to live in.

Accidents in childhood

According to a survey by Rodney S. Fowler, M.D., published last year in the Canadian Medical Journal, accidents have become a very important cause of mortality and morbidity in all age groups, but especially in childhood. In Ontario from 1951 to 1955, they were the leading cause of death in all age groups from one to thirty-five years.

More children die annually from accidents than from the ten leading infectious diseases combined. The decrease in mortality from infectious diseases has made accident mortality relatively more important in recent years.

In Canada from 1922 to 1926, in the age group 1 to 14 years, there were on an average 11,734 deaths yearly due to infectious diseases and an average of 5004 deaths yearly due to accidents.

In the years 1942-1946 deaths due to acute infections dropped to an average of 5110 yearly, while those from accidents rose to an average of 7315 yearly. During this 20 year period there was an increase in the population of Canada from about 9,500,000 to over 12,000,000.

The article continues that these mortality figures show only a small part of the problem. It has been estimated that for every fatality due to accident there are 100 accidental injuries and 10 permanent disabilities.

Some have estimated that for every fatal accident there are 150 non-fatal ones. Of 20,902 admissions to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto during 1956, 2006 (9.6%) were due to accidents, poisonings and violence.

Statistics from Europe and the United States also indicate a similar immense public problem, which is receiving all too little attention at present.

SOCIAL OUTLETS

Teas add something to the life of a small town. Ladies, as well as giving their own new chapeau an airing, manage to uncrumple a few of the crimps and creases marring their dispositions, brought on by too close a confinement to the house and with the children.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Edna Usher

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Corinne Trerice, director of nutrition with the Bakery Foods Foundation of Canada, is waging war on "health" foods.

She works for the national council of the baking industry, and on the council's behalf issues this warning to housewives:

"Too many Canadians have fallen prey to the food faddist. He appeals to your emotions, your desire for good health, and he will promise a quick cure. But it will cost money to buy his so-called health food or medicine."

She says the usual advice from "health" vendors is against ordinary foods like bread and potatoes. Instead, he urges possible customers to eat unusual foods like yogurt, blackstrap molasses and even millet seeds.

Favorite Targets

"Processed and refined foods are favorite targets of the food faddist. He would have us believe that foods like frozen vegetables, precooked meats, canned fruit juices and enriched white bread are not nutritious.

"Whether or not a food is 'natural' is not important. The nutritive value of any food depends upon its composition and the food value it supplies when we eat it."

She speaks out on the bread question: "When we compare equal amounts of whole wheat and enriched white bread — one a natural and one a refined fortified food — we find that although the whole wheat contains more niacin (a B vitamin) and more iron, the enriched bread contains more thiamine and ribaflavin (two other B vitamins) and more calcium."

Then Miss Trerice leaves it to housewives to decide which of these nutrients is more important.

Comfort, Color

More comfort and brighter colors mark the 1959 designs of dinette furniture. Chairs have contoured backs padded with foam rubber and erstwhile chrome plating on frames has given way to brass and bronze tones. Swivel tips are used on legs to ensure non-skid security.

Chair coverings are in bright new patterns and textures. There is a tapestry design which duplicates on washable material and subtle colors of rich woven fabrics.

Tasty Cookies

Here is a recipe for cherry macaroons: one egg white, salt, a quarter-cup of sugar, one and half cups of wheat flakes or cornflakes, half a cup of chopped cherries. Add salt to the egg white and beat until stiff. Add sugar gradually, then fold in flakes and cherries. Drop by teaspoonfuls on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake for 30 minutes in a moderately slow oven.

Chocolate-topped Scotch Chews need a third-cup of melted butter, two cups of rolled oats, a half-cup of brown sugar, a quarter-cup of honey, a half-teaspoon of salt, and one and a half teaspoons of vanilla. Mix the oats and butter well together. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly.

Budget for year allows for $16,612 surplus of revenue over expenses

Taxpayers will be called upon to meet higher levies in 1959. The real estate tax has been boosted by 10 cents on the $100, and the water rate has been increased $5. In other words, the municipal tax of $1.75 is now $1.85 per $100, and the water tax which was $10 now becomes $15. . . . There is minimal compensation in the fact that the 75 cents fee for chimney cleaning and the $3 charge for hose connection are both eliminated.

These changes were voted at the meeting last week terminating the Council year, after due study of the estimates for 1959. The increased taxation will bring increased civic revenue of $19,000 — to bridge the gap of $17,000 between income and expenditures ($200,900 and $217,512.75), with $2,000 to spare.

Breakdown of Estimated Costs

Administration costs are budgeted at $38,000 ($3,000 higher than 1958). There was a deficit of around $10,000 in this department last year; expenses ran to $35,105.39, whereas the estimate was $24,950.

There was a slight surplus in garbage disposal operations, under Ald. Nelson Lepage and his committee. (Cost, $9,873.13; estimate, $10,200.) — The estimate for 1959 is set at $10,000.

Street Lighting (Ald. Edgar Pollock) — Cost in 1958, $5,344.65; estimate, $5,300. — Estimate for 1959, $5,900. Street lighting also includes traffic lights.

Police and Fire (Ald. Mozart Carrière) — Cost in 1958, $30,978.88; estimate $35,400. — Estimate for 1959, $30,000.

Public Works (including machinery, roads, sewers and salaries involved) — expended in 1958, $32,488.46; estimate, $27,000; deficit, $5,400.

Waterworks — cost in 1958, $8,975; estimate, $7,500. Estimate for 1959, $9,000. (Salaries not included in this estimate.)

Machinery and Equipment — cost in 1958, $8,190; estimate, $9,900. Estimate for 1959, $8,000.

Municipal Buildings, including lighting, heating, maintenance, etc., town hall, municipal garage and memorial park — cost in 1958, $8,527.74; estimate, $7,700. Estimate for 1959, $7,500.

Social Welfare (Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion) — cost in 1958, $19,513.98; surplus of $5,500 over estimate. Expenditures included the following: direct aid $649.43; hospital expenses $16,000; orphans and foster homes, $900; Health Unit $1,400. Mayor Carrière complimented the chairman and members of this committee for their devotion to the job. Estimate for 1959, $22,000.

Debt Charges — for 1958, $34,030.94. Estimate for 1959 $44,112.75, including investments in a fire pump and snow removal equipment. The estimate provides for $31,500 payment on capital costs and $12,612.75 in interest due.

Estimate of Revenues

It is expected to derive $125,000 from general tax; $16,750 from business tax; $41,000 from water tax; $2,300 from amusement tax; $2,500 from special sewer taxes; $200 from dog licenses; $600 from bicycle permits; $3,500 from fire-fighting services; $4,350 from rentals; $1,600 from fines; $2,500 from various other sources; and $400 from interest.

Total of this estimated revenue is $200,900 — allowing for a $16,612.15 possible surplus over the year's expenditures.

Council assurance on satisfactory revision of roll

The valuation roll prepared by the Montreal firm of assessors, and subsequently rejected by Council due to the many protests it provoked among property holders, will be revised throughout at a nominal cost of $1 for this service — according to a letter presented to the Council last week at the regular monthly session.

It is recalled this roll was prepared by Bégin, Charland & Valiquette at a fee of $18,000. It did not meet the Council's requirements, however; several hundred proprietors registered their objections, and a committee formed to study the roll came to the decision it could not be homologated in its present form.

The assessors, in their letter, contended that the time limit imposed on them had not allowed sufficient lapse for the adjustment of last-minute differences to be expected in an undertaking of this kind — nor to permit the gathering of certain information which is customarily required after depositing such a roll. The letter gave assurance that the firm would produce a roll of valuations satisfactory both to the Council and to the taxpayers. It was understood, however, the $1 fee would cover only the revision of the roll, not the valuation of properties constructed, improved or otherwise changed since their survey last year.

Councillor resigns

RENE BELANGER, alderman for West Ward since the last elections, submitted his resignation to Council last week since he is no longer a property owner and lacks the necessary qualifications.

Staff appointments — municipal bills for machinery

A representative of the firm of Pierre Thibault, Pierreville, manufacturers of fire equipment, attended the Council session here and invited all members to see a pumper outfit presently on exhibition at the Motorama, in the Montreal Show Mart. Those in charge, he stated, would be happy to arrange a demonstration within an hour's notice. The equipment is mounted on a G.M. truck, but is adaptable to any make of truck chassis. This outfit, the representative added, was the same as that upon which his company had submitted tenders.

Mayor Carrière indicated that some of the councillors, with Chief Fernand Trépanier, might go to Montreal and inspect this fire-fighting unit.

Accounts totalling $25,537.08 were approved for payment — the Mayor remarking that this unusually high bill of expenses included $7,347.46 for purchase of a mechanical bulldozer and a payment of $7,000 to Ayersville in settlement of costs for the joint collector sewer.

The tender by Murdoch's Garage of $3,500 for a bulldozer and shovel on crawler tracks was accepted, also a bid of $2,534 for a snow-blower. (This is Monat-made equipment, and is now in service for local snowclearing.)

The voters' list prepared by the secretary-treasurer was approved, on motion of Ald. S. Holt, seconded by Ald. Lauréat Laurin.

Staff Appointments

Mme Yvette Raymond, employed in the town office for several years past, was officially appointed secretary-treasurer at an annual salary of $3,600. Appointed to assist her in this work is Mlle Nicole Filion, at a salary of $2,100. Both will have two weeks holiday with pay, each year.

In recommending these appointments, Mayor Carrière stated the Council was gratified with the work of the clerical staff in tax collecting. "Tax arrears are exceedingly low," he observed," being only $7,400 in municipal levies and $1,400 in water tax. Any municipality of this extent which has arrears less than $10,000 may be considered in an excellent financial condition. We owe this to the co-operation of our taxpayers and the efforts of our office staff."

The Mayor made further note that the municipality shows a $10,000 balance from 1958, where two years ago there was a debit of around $1,800.

Farewells and Au Revoirs at last Council meet

The mandate of Mayor Léopold Carrière and of five aldermen — Wilfrid Morrissette, Nelson Lepage, Lauréat Laurin, Gérard Lefebvre and Edgar Pollock — terminated at the Council session last week, when adieus and eulogies concluded the agenda of proceedings.

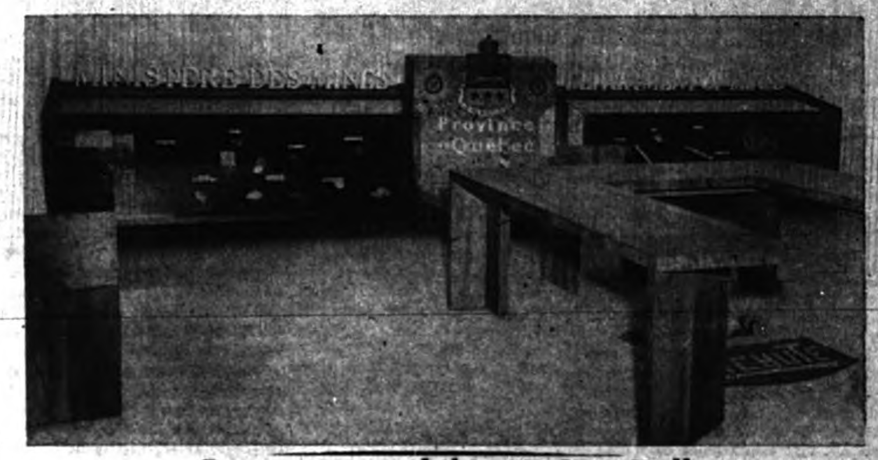

Mayor Carrière, popular and effective chairman of proceedings over the past two years, tendered his sincere thanks and bade farewell to his fellows. "It has been a real pleasure to work with you in the best interests of this town," he said. "Your collaboration, and the good will of the taxpayers, have made the job most agreeable, and I must say, this Council has proved one of the best and most efficient of the administrations I have worked with, in the three terms of office entrusted to me as Mayor."

The retiring Mayor also had a word of appreciation for The Watchman and L'Argenteuil, whose representatives had faithfully attended the meetings, and presented the facts and views of the Council fairly and accurately to their readership. "We have two excellent newspapers", he asserted, "and they form a valuable link of understanding between the Council and the population."

Ald. Gérard Lefebvre, as spokesman for the retiring councillors, thanked the Mayor for the impetus he had given to civic affairs and complimented him on the manner in which he had guided the Council's deliberations over the past two years in best interests of the municipality. . . "We will not say 'Goodbye', but 'Au revoir'," he added.

Ex-alderman to be contender

Apart from many rumors and probabilities concerning the Council seats becoming vacant — The Lachute Watchman has received personal assurance from Stanley Church, business man and a former councillor, that he will be a contender for Seat No. 2, West Ward. Occupant of this seat, up to expiry of the two-year term, has been Ald. Wilfrid Morrissette.

Permanent exhibit in City Hall

This illuminated showcase, with tasteful drapes and the provincial insignia, occupies the east wall of the reception hall in Lachute's civic building. Walnut stained furniture of solid but modern construction harmonizes with the display cabinet. This gift to the town is from the Quebec Department of Mines, through courtesy of the Minister and local deputy, the Hon. W. M. Cottingham.

Club forms separate body for management of ice rink

The unusual severity of the present winter — with December's 37-inch snowfall as compared with 11 inches last year, plus prolonged sub-zero temperatures — has imposed many problems in operating the Lions Club's artificial rink. These have been met with commendable success by the administrative committee, who are admittedly novices in the technicalities of rink maintenance and the management of a public centre. Most of the difficulties inevitable in this new experience have been successfully encountered — including even the heavy snowfall — and it is trusted the public patrons have suffered no serious inconveniences to date.

Horace Lamarche, Major Projects chairman in the Lions Club, discussed these matters at some length, at the club meeting last Wednesday. No fewer than 600 skaters had patronized the rink each week since its opening, with 1,000 skaters a week over the holiday season. Several hockey games have been held and there are requests for use of the rink for hockey and broomball. Hector Lepage, the caretaker, had given long hours and devoted service. Lowe Bros. Dairy had been johnny-on-the-spot to keep the ice-making plant in economical operation, and the Mayor and Council had helped meet the snow-removal crisis with the loan of a sidewalk blower. Lion Bert Rigg and his construction committee had given much thought, time and effort to the project. There had been generous co-operation all round. But there had been problems — there would be continued problems. . . And these could best be met by a complete co-ordination of effort, made possible only by the formation of a Lions' subsidiary to deal with and operate this rink. . .

This was the crux of the rink committee's report, as submitted by Lion Lamarche, and his recommendation was that such a group be organized immediately, to ensure continuity of interest in the rink's administration. The matter was debated from many angles, many club members giving constructive views, and it was voted to authorize the rink committee to proceed with this organization. Formal regulations or constitution will be drawn up by the legal advisor, Fernand Legault, Q.C., and presented for the club's approval.

(The organization was formed in accordance with this outline, at a meeting last week-end in the Lachute Creamery Ltd. offices. Lion Bert Rigg was elected president, and the officers and necessary committees were appointed.)

* * *

President Phil Tremblay chaired the lengthy meeting. Mozart Carrière reported on the recent bingo, which netted $413.37 for the club funds. . . Gérard Lefebvre reported on the annual school visits, in which Armand Desrosiers performed the role of Santa Claus; the itinerary included seven schools, and 10 Lions Club members had joined the retinue, with gratifying results. . . Col. Ernest Emmett thanked the club for co-operation received in his drawing for the Retarded Children's Association.

A broomball challenge was accepted from the N.D.G. Lions Club, for February 17 preceding the local meeting. A delegation from N.D.G. will visit here for this gala diversion.

Brownsburg — The January 5 meeting of Brownsburg Council got underway without any spectators (no doubt due to low temperatures). Two visitors made an appearance some time later, however, and livened the proceedings as one of them aired a "beef" about receiving too many traffic tickets. . . Well now!

Council approved payment of monthly vouchers amounting to $2,475.48. (Incidentally, for the benefit of those who are not familiar with this term, the total shown above is the amount paid out by the town for maintenance purposes, etc., during the month of December.)

A spirited discussion on parking problems followed, prompted by a report that parking on the "wrong" side appeared to be popular on certain streets where parking is permitted on one side only. Council was divided in its views on the subject, and shelved decision until the February session. Wrong-side parking would allow a driver who is proceeding east from the stop light on Main Street, to pull over to his left from the right-hand lane and park on the north side with the front of the car still facing east. — Not surprising that Council wanted time to consider the matter!

The mothers who were so interested in traffic safety on Maple Avenue South will be disappointed to learn that no definite progress has been reported in regard to construction of sidewalks in that area. . . . Perhaps the fires require further stoking.

Councillor Bill Ouellette stated that he had received many requests for snow removal on streets in town. The plow and the snow-blower have been working steadily, but with the snowfall to date, some streets must wait until the main thoroughfares are open. Motorists should note that, during the winter months, parking is prohibited on the streets between the hours of 12 midnight and 7.30 a.m. Parked automobiles which interfere with snow removal are liable to be towed away to a gas station and the owner then subject to a fine and towing charges.

The police report for the month listed the following offences: Parking, 2; Overnight Parking, 5; Red Light Infractions, 4; Speeding, 2. (A rather sudden drop from previous months. Could it be that drivers are learning the value of adhering to the speed laws, or is it just because of the snowy roads?)

Dr. Legault heads Société Médicale

Dr. Jean-Paul Legault, associate professor of urology at the University of Montreal and chief of urology at the Hotel-Dieu, has been elected president of La Société Médicale de Montréal for 1959. Dr. Legault is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

Well known in these parts, Dr. Jean-Paul is a brother of Fernand Legault, Q.C., and member of a long-established family in the local professions.

On directorate of new district unit of Truckers' Assn.

The Quebec Truckers' Association unit for Hull - Gatineau district, newly formed under the presidency of Earl J. Noël, elected a local resident — Clayton Robinson, of Boyd's Express Ltd. — to the directors of this group.

Chief aim of the organization is to concentrate the efforts of its 60 members on the numerous problems encountered in their business. Directors of the divisional body are drawn from the towns of Buckingham, Hull, Maniwaki, Montebello, Shawville, Chénéville and Lachute.

It is hoped to obtain a permanent inspector, to ensure the observance of all transport regulations applicable to truckers in the region. Representations will be made to the Quebec Minister of Transport and Communications to achieve this aim.

Old store closed at Brownsburg

It is noted that the G. I. McFaul general store at Brownsburg is now closed. The future of this long-established business, virtually a landmark in the village community, seemed uncertain since its proprietor, Mr. G. Ira McFaul, became unable to carry on the business, and his manager and trusted employee, Mr. "Tom" Anderson, was removed by death in the recent months.

Ira McFaul at one time owned a farm in Staynerville and was later in the lumber business with his brothers in Lachute. He opened his first store in Brownsburg in 1903.

Reception held at city chambers social event with triple purpose

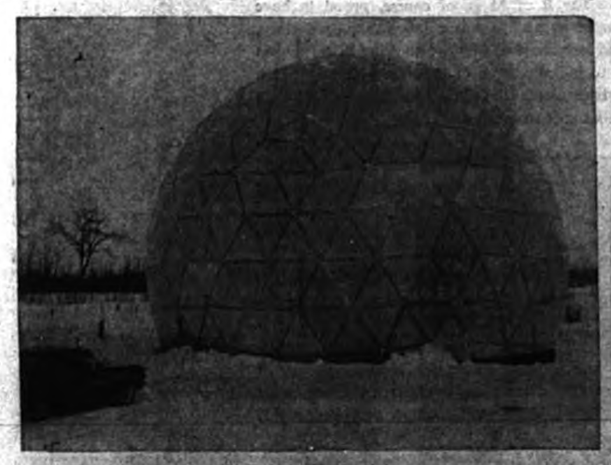

The annual New Year's reception of the Mayor and Council became a more glamorous affair this year, with between 150 and 200 ladies and gentlemen assembling at the city hall last Thursday evening for a social hour and refreshments. The occasion filled a triple function, not only exemplifying the good will of the Mayor and civic body, but simultaneously celebrating the erection of a display panel and furnishings in the public lobby, given by the Department of Mines, and also greeting the Minister of Mines, the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, on his 54th birthday.

Mayor Léopold Carrière extended a welcome. He thanked the Hon. Mr. Cottingham and members of his staff for the handsome gift from his Department, an illuminated display panel which notably dignifies the interior of the civic building. While illustrating the development of mining in Quebec Province, the display establishes a permanent link between this County and that Department, in which the local representative has given dynamic leadership since his appointment as its head. Extending birthday greetings to the Minister, the speaker then called upon the pro-mayor, Ald. Edgar O. Pollock, to present a small token of esteem — a collection of long-playing hi-fi records.

Mr. Cottingham expressed his thanks and warm feelings towards the populace. He paid unstinting tribute to his staff, a number of whom were present on this occasion — mentioning specifically the deputy minister, Dr. A. O. Dufresne, who had spent 40 years in the Quebec department, having, in fact, inaugurated the mining bureau as a subsidiary under another ministry, long before it became a distinct department of government. To Dr. Dufresne, Mr. Raymond Cormier and veteran employees at Quebec, and other loyal members of his staff, Mr. Cottingham paid tribute for the ready assistance which had implemented his endeavors.

Among those present were Mayor and Mrs. Carrière, Notary J. O. Latour, M.P., and Mrs. Latour; the Hon. W. M. and Mrs. Cottingham; Mayor Edmund Smith of St. Jerusalem; Erskine Rodger, president of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society; civic aldermen and their wives, and officials of the municipal administration; heads of local industries and business firms; presidents of local organizations, and numerous representative citizens. From the Quebec bureau of the Department of Mines were Dr. A. O. Dufresne, deputy minister; Raymond Cormier, Roland Tanguay and Mlle Gisèle Landreville, all of the secretarial personnel.

Radome for U.S. Government

Interest has been attracted by a big plastic Radome visible to passers-by on the Riviere Rouge road near St. Andrews, where the above structure is erected near the Long Sault Company's plant. Made by Long Sault to USAF specifications, this is the first of an order of 23 to be constructed for U.S. defence and observation purposes, to be used in the Far North and in Europe.

The structure is of light-colored plastic reinforced panels, assembled in dome shape with metal bolts. It is 55 feet in diameter, 50 feet across at the base, and 38 feet high. The size is indicated by a comparison with the automobile in foreground. Total weight is 7 tons. Shipped from the plant by truck, the panels occupy two full semi-trailers.

For CNIB building fund

Another welcome contribution to the CNIB (in this instance, designated to the Building Fund) is handed by the Lachute Catholic Women's League president, Mrs. Clayton Robinson, to Mr. Tony S. Zoplaski, fieldman and manager of the Argenteuil branch of the Blind Institute. The cheque for $150 represented part proceeds of the Catholic League's annual Christmas Cake drawing. An interested onlooker (right) is the Rev. Harold Conway, O.M.I., who was present at the League meeting.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

In my last column I mentioned a number of enquiries regarding the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association, and what had happened to it. This past week, I have had a number of calls asking if it could be started over again. I know it could, but before anything else is done I would like to give a few impressions. . .

The membership fee should be raised, even if it's only a $2 fee. All members who miss three meetings should be ousted and their cards called in. An active and working committee required, who would stay in touch with the Association. And members who are not just interested in their own fishing and catches. . . It takes a lot of hard work and loyalty by the whole Association to make things happen for the good of the County, and this includes our local M.P. . . Anyway, I think that most of the members only wanted a place to go some nights when they had nothing else to do. . . And don't say what can we do in the way of conservation and restocking! Boy, I will hear about this one for sure: How about the North River! All of us can get going on this. If you remember, it didn't take long for one man to get the oil cleaned up a couple of seasons ago. That man was our Health Inspector, who knows that something should and certainly could be done about a lot of this unlawful dumping. All it would take is a show of strength on the part of a few citizens. . . So much for that.

* * *

I have another "beef" too, so don't go away. I know that most of you sportsmen have been to a zoo in your lifetime. I had the opportunity of seeing some wild animals that a "Sport" keeps penned up. To me it was a pitiful sight to see. Animals, cooped up in cages, which should never have been taken from their habitat. Truthfully, can anyone say even animals in a proper zoo look good and healthy? Maybe the general public think so. To me it seems a disgrace that animals of a wild nature should be cooped up for the enjoyment of a small few. I know anyone who thinks about it will agree. By the way, this gent did not know it is against the game laws to keep wild animals. He knows now, though — with the proper results being taken.

* * *

We were up in the bush a couple of times — not that we got very far, or saw much. There were a couple of deer tracks down near the Black Bridge, and a few rabbits were around. The partridge are still showing signs of life, and a covey of about 12 were flushed. With the absence of foxes in the area the birds have shown a great increase over 1957. I don't understand all about the cycles of animals, and not very much is really known on this subject; it could be that this is the partridges' year for increasing. One thing is very sure, however. They need feed in a big way. Some corn on the cob strung up in the trees, would help them. I've spread ordinary corn around, but this is not much good after the first fall of snow. If anyone has ideas on this matter, please give me a shout. Perhaps we could get going on a small feeding program, not only for the game birds but for all of them. A little bit of suet, obtainable from any butcher, will be a big help; tie it on a string anywhere outside, and you'll have all kinds of little spadgers around. Give it a try; and thanks.

* * *

Ice fishing is really starting to pick up; some of the catches taken around St. Placide have been very good. Not only are the Perch being taken in good sizes, but also some very nice Pike are turning up. I would like to see more of this ice fishing; it's a lot of fun. The best results are with minnows, which are not too plentiful as yet around there. The best thing to do, if you are going, is to get the minnows a day before and then you won't be disappointed. In any event, try some red wool tied to your hooks. I also understand there is a neighbor who uses a chain saw to make the hole for you. I don't know the charge, of course, but it seems like a good idea.

Now is the time for you fishermen to give your tackle a going-over. It's not much fun going out on opening day and having some of your tackle break or come apart. So check all the ferrules, eyes, handles, whipping, etc., and start now to repair it. I hope your lines were not left on your reels; even monofilament lines shouldn't be left on for any length of time. As for your other lines, take them off and string them on wooden pegs to take the kinks out; do not string them on any type of metal, otherwise you will have no line next spring. And a thought for any who have a little cash left over after the recent "blitz" — go shopping for the rod or reel you want, now. Prices are now reduced in the sporting goods stores, and good bargains can be picked up around this time. Even a couple of baits will help you out in the spring, and also save you a little expense.

Two triumphs, one defeat for local Spitfires

Two victories and one defeat marked an uptrend in the fortunes of Lachute Spitfires last week, as the Quebec-Ontario hockey schedule continued.

A 6-5 score against Vankleek Hill on Tuesday, January 6, marked the first triumph for Dr. Eric Mongeon's boys, playing at Brownsburg Arena. Paul Desjardins scored a hat trick for Lachute, while Yvon Leduc (2) and Marc Belanger (1) accounted for the remaining tallies. McNabb (3), Contant and Burwash scored for Vankleek Hill.

* * *

Thursday evening it was 13-1, as the local team took a decisive defeat from Brownsburg Bombers. Leduc scored the only Spitfire goal, while Brownsburg's galaxy of stars shared the laurels in a big way.

* * *

Lachute won to the tune of 4-2 against the late-entry Kilmar squad on Saturday (at Vankleek Hill). Leduc (2), Trudeau and Lepage scored for the Spitfires, while Bougie and Lanctot tallied for Kilmar in the second and final periods.

* * *

Thurs., Jan. 15, at Brownsburg — Kilmar vs Lachute 8.30 p.m.

Sun., Jan. 18, at Brownsburg — Hawkesbury vs Lachute 2.30 p.m.

During the game tomorrow evening (Thursday) the lucky ticket will be drawn in the Spitfires' fund-raising raffle of a television set.

Bombers beat two opponents in league games

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg vs Lachute

Brownsburg — After playing a fine game against Vankleek Hill . . the Lachute Spitfires collapsed against Brownsburg on Thursday, as they went down to a 14-1 pasting; the Bombers completely overwhelmed the Spitfires. The signs were there in the first period as Brownsburg took a 4-1 lead on goals by Jacques Racine, Bill Cribb, Bill Dimock and Red Charlebois. Yvon Leduc scored Lachute's lone tally. The Bombers racked up five more goals in the second period; Mason MacAdam, Maurice Lamoureux and Red Charlebois counted singles, and Jacques Racine added two more.

The third period was a repeat, with Marcel Paul fanning on five of the Bombers drives. Jacques Leveillé scored twice and Red Charlebois picked up his third and fourth goals of the game by the midway mark. Stewart Vary completed the scoring at the end of the period as he took a pass from Jacques Leveillé, waited until Paul made his move, then leisurely flipped the puck into the net.

This was not the same team that came close to the Bombers the last time out. These boys were tired after they had shaded the Vankleek Hill squad two nights before. The Bombers were at their top form — so the result was not too surprising.

Side Lines

Yvon Leduc continues to show up in the Spitfires' scoring column — a strong skater, with a minimum of time in the penalty box.

Paul Desjardins played his best game of the season against Vankleek Hill. Against the Bombers he was back to the chippy hockey which produces penalties instead of goals.

Buddy Racine looks as steady as ever. Here's a boy who has played a lot of good hockey for Brownsburg over the years.

* * *

Hawkesbury vs Brownsburg

The Bombers continued their winning streak Sunday as they swamped the Hawkesbury Richports 9-2. The Hawkesbury squad was not up to usual form, and the Bombers capitalized on every opportunity. Racine, Charlebois and Dimock scored in the first period, with a single reply from the Richports.

Jacques Racine banged in three more tallies in the second, as the Bombers took a commanding lead.

Hawkesbury added their second counter at the 7.30 mark of the third period, after the Brownsburg crew had scored three goals in 4½ minutes.

Hawkesbury picked up 7 penalties, while the Bombers sat out 5 minors and a 10-minute misconduct.

Side Lines

By far the best line on the ice was the trio of Racine, Ouellette and Dimock.

Jacques Legault plays a solid defensive game, with the odd solo rush ending in a blistering slapshot. That shot is something to see.

Four ladies' rinks selected for Coronation play

There has been keen competition among the seven ladies' rinks entered in the playdown for the Coronation Bonspiel. Originally one rink from Lachute was invited to play in the Coronation, but an invitation came from Montreal to send four teams. In order to decide these rinks, a round-robin was played — each rink playing six games. The rinks and results are as follows:

Mrs. F. Stein (skip), Mrs. R. Cairns, Mrs. K. Rutherford, Mrs. Jack MacKimmie: — 5 wins, 1 loss.

Mrs. F. Brennian (skip), Mrs. W. Cottingham, Mrs. A. Giles, Mrs. Donald Hay: — 4 wins, 2 losses.

Mrs. Geo. Muir (skip), Mrs. D. MacTavish, Mrs. D. MacKimmie, Mrs. Jas. McOuat: — 4 wins, 3 losses.

Mrs. Geo. Mitchell (skip), Mrs. Jas. MacKimmie, Mrs. E. K. Wilson, Mrs. W. Freeland: — 3 wins, 3 losses.

Mrs. R. Fraser (skip), Mrs. S. Jones, Mrs. E. Rogers, Mrs. B. Bradford: — 3 wins, 3 losses.

Mrs. L. York (skip), Mrs. R. Muir, Mrs. D. Heggie, Mrs. A. Thorne: — 2 wins, 4 losses.

Mrs. G. McGibbon (skip), Mrs. J. Barbour, Mrs. A. Vessie, Mrs. F. Royal: — 1 win, 5 losses.

Since three rinks were tied for third place, a cut of the cards decided that Mrs. Muir and Mrs. Mitchell would be the third and fourth rinks. So Mrs. Stein, Mrs. Brennian, Mrs. Muir and Mrs. Mitchell will be taking their rinks to Montreal the week of January 19. . . Good luck and good curling to all!

* * *

A rink from Lachute made up of Mrs. S. Campbell (skip), Miss Mary Miller, Mrs. Simon Wilson and Mrs. A. Scott went to Rosemere on Monday to play in the Laurentian Trophy Bonspiel, and reported having a very good game.

Playdown for the Provincial Bonspiel takes place in Montreal this week, and the following rink is the entry from Lachute:

Mrs. F. Brennian (skip), Mrs. Jas. MacKimmie, Mrs. R. Fraser and Mrs. W. Cottingham. . . Again good luck!

On the home front, play is progressing in the doubles, the singles, the Club Trophy, and the MacKimmie mixed bonspiel. More news about these next week.

Loisirs teams in recent schoolboy curling bonspiel

Two Catholic schoolboy teams representing the Ste. Anastasie "Loisirs" played with credit in the recent juvenile bonspiel organized by the Royal Caledonian Club in Montreal.

These two teams comprised — Roger Lalande (skip), Donald Chevrier, J. P. Bélisle and Maurice Rochon; Claude Thibodeau (skip), Yves Blais, André Laurin and Gaëtan Paquin.

The Lalande team did better — losing 5-6 against St. Jean, then winning two other encounters, before bowing to the strong Pointe Claire representation in the quarter - finals.

Lachine were the champions this year. It is to be noted, however, that the Catholic boys here have been practising only a few weeks. They have been ably instructed by Jean Belanger, and the facilities of the Curling Club have been extended free of charge to encourage the boys in this sport.

Results were as follows:

"A" Group

Lalande 5, St. Jean 6.

"B" Group

Thibodeau 5, Mount Royal 7.
Lalande 10, RCAF St. Hubert 5.

Lalande 4, Pte. Claire 11 (quarter-finals)

"C" Group

Thibodeau 5, Mount Royal 7.

The boys were accompanied by two St. Viateur brothers, the Rev. Jules Dussault and the Rev. H. Chapdelaine, also Jacques Bourgoing, their organizer.

Ice carnival set for Jan. 25

An ice carnival organized by the Lions Club is arranged for Sunday, January 25, at the new community rink in Lachute's east ward. Chief Fernand Trépanier and Jacques Bourgoing have undertaken the organizing of this event.

Opening at 1.30 p.m. the program will include racing on skates, skis, snowshoes and a-foot, for all ages, with other novelties and competitive events. Prizes will be awarded to the winners on conclusion of the contests.

Non-curlers enjoyed themselves at bridge and other card games while the curling was in progress.

After curling, games, dancing and refreshments were enjoyed by everyone. Music for the occasion was supplied in a very enjoyable manner by Don Lupien's orchestra.

Bridge winners were Mrs. Alex Vessie and Mrs. Syd Drew.

The true story of one small borrower... and "MY BANK"

A few weeks ago, Julian Janvrin, an Englishman by birth now living in Toronto, came upon this headline in his daily newspaper: "Bank of Montreal Deposits Top the Three Billion Mark". A depositor at the B of M since shortly after his arrival in Canada five years ago, Mr. Janvrin was prompted by the headline to write a letter to Gordon R. Ball, president of the B of M, outlining his experiences as both a depositor and borrower at Canada's first bank. We thought Mr. Janvrin's story of his struggle against adversity was worth repeating, and with his permission, have made it the basis of this advertisement.

The Success Story of Julian Janvrin...

Julian Janvrin is the last person in the world to say that his is a success story. We think it is. But you can judge for yourself.

FIVE YEARS AGO, shortly after his arrival in Canada with his wife and three children, Mr. Janvrin had occasion to cash a cheque at his local B of M branch in Toronto. "Although I had told the manager that I was just an immigrant," he recalls, "he invited me to open an account, and it was gratifying to me to feel that my confidence in the future of Canada was reciprocated by the Bank of Montreal. Two or three weeks later I opened an account at that branch."

Like most newcomers to Canada, Mr. Janvrin had only enough capital when he arrived to get himself settled, and eventually he found himself short in meeting the final payment on his car, which was essential in his new job as a salesman. So he talked over his problem with his B of M manager, who considered him a good enough risk to advance him the money he needed.

But let Mr. Janvrin continue the story in his own words:

"I mention this because bankers are sometimes charged with being little more than moneylenders and usurers, but in this instance, I knew that the Bank of Montreal was acting as it were on behalf of the people of Canada in helping me to get established in much the same way as in pioneer days the Bank of Montreal must have advanced funds to immigrants to purchase seed, a few implements and maybe a team of horses.

"Soon afterwards I gave up selling, disposed of the car and took a regular job by night, while my wife by day quite literally took the holes out of doughnuts. One of us was able always to be with the children, two of whom were not then of school age.

"Fifteen months later we decided to obtain cheaper rental accommodation outside Toronto. A car, however, would then be essential. Again the bank went along with us.

"Two years ago the landlord of the house we were renting decided to sell the house. Again the Bank of Montreal helped us and advanced the down payment that prevented our home being sold over our heads.

"Get to know your banker," says Mr. Janvrin. "Your best collateral is his confidence." A spare-time free-lance writer, he spends many evenings at his typewriter while the children study.

"This summer my son, having passed through six grades in three years at public school, sat for the competitive entrance examination to a school for which I would have to pay an annual fee . . . For this, too, I am in large measure indebted to the Bank of Montreal, for in June my financial circumstances were such that had I not been confident of my banker's support, I might not have ever considered sending him to this school.

"We have now again moved into Toronto to be nearer the school, but our circumstances have improved, inasmuch as our teenage daughter has now left high school of her own wish and is now working; and as the two younger children are now at school, my wife in the New Year will be in a position to take an office job.

"This is not a success story, for the struggle, believe me, is still on. But our bank account is now in better shape than it has been for the past five years and will now perhaps bear scrutiny.

"I am now, therefore, at last in a position to write to thank My Bank and in particular my bank manager, for the confidence it placed in us and for the help, encouragement and courtesy it has always extended to us.

"To me it is no surprise that the deposits of the Bank of Montreal should have topped the 3-billion mark, for although from the short term point of view I myself am not yet in a position to make large deposits, it may well be from the long term point of view, that my son, as a representative of the coming generation, may be in a position to do as other sons of Canada are now doing."

* * *

The B of M is, of course, proud to have played its part in Julian Janvrin's success story, and is grateful to him for allowing us to publish it to indicate some of the many ways in which Canada's first bank works with Canadians—new and old alike—in every walk of life from coast to coast.

Mr. Janvrin's story provides a sincere and unsolicited testimonial to the fact that "When you ask for a loan at the Bank of Montreal, you do not ask a favour".

When money is a problem with you, why not see your B of M manager? If your proposition is sound and reasonable there's money for you at the B of M . . . at the lowest rates and on the fairest terms.

Nine-year-old Robert Janvrin, seen with his younger sister, Patricia, is a student at one of Canada's top preparatory schools, thanks to a timely B of M Personal Loan.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all. — Edmund Burke

Getting across

A WELCOME bouquet came our way last week when, both personally and in public, Mayor Carrière declared this newspaper an instrument of public service in relaying to the taxpayers of Lachute the intentions and the fulfilments of their Council.

Included in his eulogy, of course, was our French-language offspring, L'Argenteuil, which is equally effective in Lachute and Ayersville. Mayor Carrière paid tribute to our reporters for accurately recording the affairs of the municipality — thus forming a valuable link between the City Fathers and the hundreds who are conspicuously absent at the Council deliberations.

We acknowledge this tribute. We do our best, while always conscious that errors may occur through misinterpretation.

Come to think of it, our policy of electing representatives with apparent enthusiasm (we pride ourselves on this) — then leaving them horribly alone to act for us through a two-year mandate—is, to say the least, paradoxical. Shall we say, unfair and irresponsible? Only when matters arise to affect us personally — to imperil our properties, deface our frontages, or threaten our peace — do we exhort our aldermen to "do something". During the remainder of their two-year term they may scratch their heads in perplexity, hold committee meetings, attend contentious sittings, and give their valuable time to our civic problems, OUR problems, without a word of guidance from the people they represent. Providing for the poor, the sick and workless; installing public services for OUR growing community; spending OUR tax money for necessary streets and sidewalks, lights and sewers, for fire and police protection, the safeguarding of public health, and the ensurance of OUR general satisfaction.

When problems come up for decision — big problems sometimes, for this has become a big community in terms of non-urban centres — we leave our councillors severely alone. We pay them nothing, give them no support (except when they call for our opinion on a formal ballot). And we criticize if their opinions are at variance with ours, even though we have given them no prior indication of our views.

So, the newspaper gets it across to the reading public. We of The Watchman and L'Argenteuil faithfully endeavor to place all doings at the Council board before the absentee citizens. In Brownsburg, too, our reporter plays a conscientious role, and we find the Village councillors and officials turn to his news column as a voice to reach the people.

Mostly, of course, this is a one-way track of communication. But taxpayers too are privileged to express their views through these pages, though we feel this should be a last resort and no substitute for personal approach; both mayor and councillors' are as easily accessible as the telephone in our homes.

Generally speaking, the newspaper's role is about as thankless as the civic representative's, but in this instance we are happy to receive the commendation of Mayor Carrière as spokesman for our hard-working councillors.

A job well done

FURTHER to the efforts and accomplishments of Town Council, a report on the year's expenditures gives a more detailed idea of the activities over which our councillors are honorary supervisors.

Springtime will bring the inevitable criticism over broken asphalt and pitted pavements — but at the present season we feel it would be ungrateful to overlook a job well done by this same department of the civic personnel. We refer to the expeditious manner in which snowclearing had been tackled this winter. (The only exception coming to our attention is Mountain View, where complaints have been heard.)

It is well to realize that snow fell to a depth of 37 inches in December, as compared with 11 inches last year. After the many sizeable snowfalls in the past few weeks, machinery has been put into prompt operation on most of our trafficked thoroughfares. Government graders, town bulldozers and plows have been operated through the night. And on Main Street particularly, the town snowblower and trucks have been on the scene early next morning to remove the snowpiles left by the plows.

When one recalls the high barricades of snow down the centre of Main Street, which in previous years remained through much of the winter, it is apparent that the town has made great strides in snow removal. This year it has been given priority attention, despite extremely cold temperatures which have presented an additional challenge.

The Council committee on Roads comprises W. Morrissette, E. O. Pollock, and Laureat Laurin. To these aldermen, and the town employees, the performance this season has so far been a distinct credit.

Seasonal precautions

WITH SUSTAINED cold waves across Canada, there have been tragic reports of loss of life and injury caused by fires.

An increase in the number of fires logically accompanies colder weather. Loss of life can be minimized, however, by eliminating all possible fire hazards in the home. But, in case fire should strike, it is helpful to observe these precautions:

(1) Know the telephone number of your local fire department (in Lachute, LO 2-2442; Brownsburg LE 3-4242). For those who live in larger centres, make sure everyone in the home knows the location of the closest fire alarm box.

(2) Have at least one fire extinguisher in your home, and learn to use it properly. Your local fire department will gladly give advice.

(3) Make certain baby sitters are supplied with the number of the fire department's telephone number and instructions on how to reach you in an emergency.

(4) Report any fire immediately. The first sign of smoke should be reported; do not wait until you see flames.

(5) When fire strikes, move occupants quickly from the house.

(6) At first sign of fire, close all doors and windows except those needed for escape.

(7) Wrap children quickly in blankets; do not wait to dress them fully.

(8) Keep family away from the house; smoke alone can be dangerous.

(9) At all times, keep exits unobstructed by boxes or furniture. And make sure everyone knows the safest points of escape in event of fire.

The "leisure-stricken"

A 20-HOUR work week, "probably very soon" is the forecast of Dr. Boris Pregel, retiring president of the New York Academy of Sciences. The world will need fewer man-hours of work, Dr. Pregel believes, because of three factors; the cultivation of algae, still in the laboratory stage, promises virtually unlimited food supplies; there will soon be an abundance of cheap nuclear energy; automation of industry will step up industrial production while reducing human labor.

Dr. Pregel is a physicist, born and educated in Russia. But even as a scientist he does not regard the possibility of a 20-hour week without misgivings. We will, he thinks, replace the poverty-stricken with a new "class of leisure-stricken individuals."

It is not a very pleasing prospect — writes C. J. Harris, commenting on this possibility — but perhaps Dr. Pregel knows more about physics than he does about people. It may be that at some future date a 20-hour work week will provide a high standard of living. But even if that is the case there will be many who will want a higher standard of living and whose ambitions will not be satisfied on only 20 hours of productive effort. And there will be still others whose spur will be accomplishment and who will never keep a tally of their hours of work — says Mr. Harris.

Not many years ago it probably seemed that the advent of the 40-hour week would bring its problem of "leisure-stricken individuals." To a degree it has, but not for those who would be leaders.

Viewpoints and perspectives

THEY'LL GET BIGGER. — Farm units in Canada are going to get still larger, with greater capital behind them, run by more competent managers and more highly skilled employees.

That's what E. D. MacPhee, Dean of Commerce at the University of British Columbia, predicted before the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture. "We may not like these trends," added Dean MacPhee, "but I know of no action on the part of any government or other administrative body which can reverse them."

In a little over a generation, comments The Financial Post, the average size of the grain farm in western Canada has doubled and few would argue that there is any end in sight to such expansion or that it will be confined to grain growing. The odd 100-acre mixed farm of pioneer days will soon be as much out of place in modern agriculture as the corner general store would be alongside today's supermarket — in this forecast.

A MAJOR DISASTER. — When a flood destroys a community, or fire sweeps through a town, we plaster it on our front pages as a major disaster. Relief pours in as it did for the victims of Springhill. Yet, 3,400 persons are expected to die on our highways this year and we take it calmly as an everyday occurrence. — Stanstead (Que.) Journal

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of Encyclopedia Canadiana

According to the West Coast Indians, a tribe of giants live in the vicinity of Harrison Lake, about 60 miles from Vancouver, although some have been seen as far inland as Kamloops. The Saskehavas (wild men) are described by Indians who claim to have seen them as hairy monsters between seven and nine feet tall, of subhuman appearance, with wide flat noses and abnormally long arms. The Chehalis Indians of the Harrison Lake area believe that they are descendants of two bands of giants who were almost exterminated in battle many years ago. They inhabit remote mountain caves and meet periodically near the top of Morris Mountain; fires have been seen on this mountain at regular intervals for years.

White men have been somewhat sceptical about these creatures. However, a Hudson's Bay trader, Alexander Anderson, established a post near Harrison Lake in 1846 and frequently mentioned the wild giants in his reports. In 1932 the remains of a long-extinct race of giants were found in Mexico; this encouraged the belief that the remnants of a prehistoric race of troglodytes may have survived in British Columbia. Several small search expeditions have explored the Harrison Lake area looking in vain for the Sasquatch (the white man's term, meaning hairy men).

Why is the phrase "Red Indians" wrong in two ways?

The people who were called red Indians by European explorers were neither red nor Indians. When Columbus landed in the New World in 1492 he believed he had landed in the vicinity of India and so called the native inhabitants Indians. A few years later Cabot carried back to Europe a statement that the natives of what is now Newfoundland were red-skinned. What he meant was that they were in the habit of painting the skin with red ochre, but he was misunderstood. The two mistakes were combined and have never really been corrected in the minds of many people.

Was Slavery ever accepted in Canada?

The marketing and use of slaves was common in Canada until the beginning of the 19th century. French explorers and fur-traders used Indian slaves. In the 17th century Negro slaves were imported into the colony. In 1689 many were brought from the West Indies to relieve a labor shortage, and were widely used throughout Canada, largely by merchants and fur-traders.

After the Conquest, slavery became more firmly established. In Nova Scotia the British who settled at Halifax in 1749 brought with them a large number of slaves. The migration of American colonists during the revolutionary period resulted in a further influx.

By the end of the 18th century anti-slavery feelings were becoming widespread. John Graves Simcoe persuaded the legislature of Upper Canada in July 1793 to pass a law forbidding the import of slaves into the province and providing for the freedom of slave children when they reached the age of 25. In Lower Canada the courts refused to recognize the rights of a master over his slaves, thus in effect abolishing the legal status of slavery. In Nova Scotia in 1787 the legislature refused to include a reference to slavery in a piece of legislation on the grounds that slavery did not exist there, and the courts of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland invariably interpreted the law against the interests of slave owners. After 1800 public sentiment in the British Colonies in North America was so pronouncedly opposed to the slave system that only minor vestiges persisted, and these were erased by the formal abolition of slavery by the British Parliament in 1833

WHO'S KIDDING WHO?

To the average denizen of Dixie Land who has never been away from the Southern States, Canada is a far-off country as remote and uninhabited as the moon. Nobody lives there but Indians, and all transportation is by dog teams. So when I got into conversation with two strangers on a Greyhound bus travelling through Louisiana a few years ago, they were much interested in the fact that I was a Canadian. These two well-dressed, prosperous - looking men were in the tobacco business, and according to their conversation they each owned a ranch or farm, or whatever you call a place where they grow tobacco. Plantation, I think is the word.

"If you were here in the right season," one of them said to me, "We would invite you to our plantation, lend you a basket and let you pick as many nice ripe cigars and cigarettes as you wished."

I looked up in time to catch the sly wink he gave to the other man, who nodded approvingly. "Of course," he continued, "you'd have to look out for snakes. The deadly water-moccasins infest the plantations as soon as the picking season starts."

"But I thought those kind of snakes were found only in swamps," I replied. "Cottonmouths — isn't that what they're called?"

"Yes, cottonmouths," he continued. "They stay in the swamps and bayous all the time until the cigars are ripe. Then they move in and eat the cigars. We found one last year in one of the sheds who had eaten so many he was helpless. We killed him and cut him open and found fifteen cigars, some still in cellophane."

"What is the principal industry in Canada?" said the second man, changing the subject.

"Snow removal," I replied. "Every able-bodied man, woman and child is engaged in it for ten months of the year. And during the brief Arctic summer most of the inhabitants make maple sugar."

"Maple sugar!" said the first man. "Tell us about it. It is used in the tobacco industry for pipe tobacco, I believe."

"Well," I continued. "The sugar ripens about July 1st, when the worst of the winter is over. A man equipped with spurs climbs to the top of each maple tree and shakes down the lumps of sugar which weigh from two to five pounds each. Other men, dressed in steel helmets and football uniforms, pick up the sugar from the snowbanks and pile it in wheelbarrows."

"Well, you can imagine," I said. "Being hit on the head with even a two-pound block of sugar falling from seven hundred feet, which is the height of the average maple tree. It would either kill a man or cripple him for life."

"The next stop is ours," said the first man, starting to reach for a suitcase on the rack, "It's been a pleasure to meet a Canadian."

"The pleasure is all mine," I replied. "You sure taught me something I never knew before about cottonmouth snakes."

"Tell me," said the second man; "About this maple sugar — can you eat it?"

Be seen' ya!

NO ARSENIC HERE

Canadians needn't get too scared about new U.S. findings on cancer-causing arsenic in cigarettes, says Leonard Bertin, Science editor of The Financial Post. Cigarette men and Ontario government agriculture officials say no arsenic sprays are used on Canadian tobacco, which supplies all domestic needs.

PETER PAN FAN

Carrying a muff to keep out the cold, a jaunty Sir Winston Churchill leaves the Seala theatre where he saw his daughter, Sarah Churchill, play the part of Peter Pan. He and his grandchildren chuckled when Sarah "flew" around the stage, with the help of wires, in true Peter Pan style.

Viewpoints on liquor advertising

You cannot advertise a bottle of beer in a Manitoba weekly paper. It is against the law. You might corrupt the family. At least, that's what the pressure groups tell the government. I wonder how many of those pressure-group members subscribe to the Reader's Digest?

Reader's Digest, says the editor of the Durham Chronicle, contained in its Christmas issue 11 full pages of beer advertising; 7 pages for whiskey; 4 pages for wine; 2 pages for gin, and one full page for rum. Many of these advertisements in this "family magazine" are in full, rich, appetizing color.

How many of the pressure-group hypocrites will cancel their Digest subscriptions? Not very many, I'll wager! Ministers will continue to quote it from the pulpit, others will praise its high moral tone.

I like Reader's Digest. I'll continue to read it. I am told that the publishers, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Wallace, are the very finest of people and very closely connected with the church. I know they devote a great deal of space to articles dealing with the spiritual side of man's nature, and I thank them for that. And while I am a non-drinker, I know that beer and whiskey exist and are purchased and consumed by better men than me, and I see no reason why they should not be advertised, and advertised attractively.

What I object to, and find morally reprehensible, is the attitude of the Manitoba government in banning such advertising from the weekly newspapers, who need the revenue, while at the same time allowing other publishers to flood the province with such blandishments. Maclean's leans heavily on liquor advertising; so do Saturday Night and Liberty magazines. Liberty is a very popular magazine in Manitoba, and you see many young people reading it. Maclean's is also popular with young and old alike. If they are to be corrupted by such advertising, the deed is already accomplished, without the intervention of our government.

If the government is not too dainty to engage in the retailing of liquor itself, surely it is being hypocritical in the extreme to take this attitude about liquor advertising.

A highway near my old home town used to meander in a vaguely northward direction, a narrow, twisted and cluttered thoroughfare hemmed in with houses and auto courts.

It was slow and dangerous. So they built a new highway through virgin country, where there were no buildings.

For a time it was a clear 50-mile-an-hour road. Then a new school was built nearby. Parents demanded a crosswalk. Traffic lights went in at an intersection. Service stations and trailer courts appeared. On parts of the road, the speed limit was lowered to 30.

Soon the new highway is going to be as badly clogged as the old one. Then, perhaps, a new, new highway will be needed to relieve the pressure.

The same thing happens all over the country. Wouldn't it be simpler to build underpasses?

A lot depends on the purpose for which a road is built. If it is to be a local communication road, meant to open new stretches of country for houses, stores and factories, then you expect to have a number of side roads running into it.

But if it is meant as a long-distance highway to serve coming generations, a way should be found to stop it being crowded with local traffic and choked by a barnacle growth of roadside stores and houses.

Laws against "ribbon development" should be sternly enforced. Unfortunately, such measures offend some people. Their full benefit is not felt until years later. The trouble is that posterity has no vote.

Costs within reach of the poorest

"Not much more than 150 years ago, copies of the Sacred Word were so costly as to be quite beyond the reach of the poor, and even the great Revival of Religion had not quite awakened men to a sense of responsibility of giving the word of life to nations beyond the pale of Christendom. Out of the spiritual quickening which gave birth to the great missionary movements of the early 19th century came the British and Foreign Bible Society. It was a time when men's hearts failed them for fear, when trade was poor, the country on the brink of ruin, in fact the most inauspicious of all times to begin a new movement. How significant then, that the century turned out to be the century of unparalleled progress.

Since its beginning the Bible Society has maintained its objective of "A Bible for every man, in his own tongue, at a price he can afford to pay," and wherever the objective has been met, there has followed physical, moral and spiritual uplight among the nations.

The Rev. Harold Conway, O.M.I., director of the Sub-division, complimented the members on the amount and variety of the work achieved so far this season.

Mr. Tony S. Zaplaski, field supervisor of the C.N.I.B. for this County, was presented with a cheque for $150, part of the Cake Raffle proceeds — for which he thanked the members and friends in a brief but interesting talk.

Annual meeting of United Church Missionary Soc'y

The Women's Missionary Society of Lachute United Church held their annual meeting and installation of officers, January 8 in the hall of the church.

The meeting opened with devotions. Annual reports were read, showing an increase financially. The allocation had been attained.

The Supply committee gave a gift of $10 to the Vacation School. $5 worth of yarn was knitted into baby articles, and 490 pounds of quilts and other articles were shipped overseas. $61 was earned by making and selling two quilts, three crib quilts and one sweater, and by quilting a quilt.

The Community Friendship committee have made 584 home calls and seven to hospitals.

Associate Members have enjoyed a good year, and have contributed $508.66. They have a total membership of 210 — 139 in town and 71 in the county.

Christian Stewardship was kept in prominence all year. Dr. Catherine Whittier in India, the "prayer partner", was remembered with a little gift at Christmas.

The Literature secretary added four books to the library during the year. . . The younger groups have also contributed generously.

Mrs. J. R. Watson, Presbyterial vice-president, conducted the installation service, followed by an address based on Jesus' charge to Peter, "Feed My Sheep", in St. John's Gospel. She ended her talk with Laura Armitage's poem, "Prayer for the New Year".

EXPENSIVE DYING

With Canada's new Estate Tax Act in effect since January 1, the cost of dying in the central provinces will become sharply higher than in the other eight provinces, points out The Financial Post.

Alone among the 10 provinces, Ontario and Quebec will continue to impose succession duties even after Ottawa has abandoned succession duties in favor of a tax on estates.

The result will be a marked difference between total taxes in these two provinces and in the other eight.

Specialists in the work of administering estates see no immediate likelihood that the Big Two will depart from their declared position — which is that the British North America Act gives them prior rights in this field.

If you want a REAL home improvement

get FULL housepower

Inadequate or faulty circuits in your home can turn electricity into a dangerous enemy instead of a helpful friend.

This unfortunate situation is likely to arise in those homes which were wired many years ago, when few appliances were available, and house circuits were designed merely to carry sufficient current to provide light.

The dimming of lights when appliances are turned on is an indication of inadequate wiring. Burned fuses are a positive sign of overloaded circuits.

Modern home wiring can pay for itself in increased comfort, efficiency and safety.

Your electrical contractor can contribute to your safety by his knowledge of what is sound and what is unsafe in electrical work.

The steady swing to electrified living, with its many modern appliances, has placed upon old circuits loads which they were never intended to carry. The only permanent solution is a rewiring job to provide adequate circuits.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

You do more after-dark driving in winter — so it's especially important to have your headlights in perfect order.

When's the last time you had yours checked?

Provincial inspections show that nearly half the cars on the road today have mis-aimed headlights. Since they're detachable, road shock is likely to jar them out of aim after only a few months of driving.

Headlights aimed too high or too far to the left can blind oncoming motorists. Headlights aimed too low or to the right do not shine far enough ahead to pick out obstacles in the road in time for a safe stop — especially in winter.

When lamps are aimed only 3 inches too low, nearly half the light is lost 300 feet ahead. When they're aimed three inches high, glare is up 76 percent.

Be safe. Have your headlights checked NOW.

Other night-driving advice:

If your lights flicker, have the wiring and battery tested.

If all the lights go out, it's probably defective wiring or a blown fuse. Always carry spare fuses. If you don't know how to replace one, any service station attendant can show you how.

Check your tail lights, too. It's easy to drive for miles without knowing one is out.

Carry a roll of reflector tape in the car. If lights fail, apply some tape to the bumpers so other cars can spot you.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY, COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 (Lachute) Correspondent

Well, a new year is upon us, and as we progress forward into 1959 it becomes apparent that the problem of the Service Organization is not to find new projects (which are always present in a growing, active community such as ours) but rather to enlist the membership to execute even more efficiently than last year those routine items which must be done.

To this end the newly-elected officers will be duly installed in Branch 70 next Saturday evening, when they will promise to do their best for the interests of the Canadian Legion and its work.

While the executive officers have much to do with the success or failure of the Branch, the membership at large must be willing to support its executive with every project and every request, in spite of personal inconvenience. For those who are willing, personal inconvenience can be surmounted, and the good feeling of participation and accomplishment is a reward beyond compare.

The routine chores of the Finance chairman, Sick & Relief chairman, House chairman, Public Relations, Entertainment, Publicity and Membership chairmen — all of these persons require assistance. They have the reins of office in hand to guide the destiny of our Branch, and how well they succeed depends entirely on how willing you, the membership, are to work. So Comrades, although 1958 was a most successful year — let's rally to make 1959 a better one!

* * *

Members are expected in fairly large numbers at the installation of officers to be conducted in the Legion Hall on Saturday evening, January 17. The installation officer will be Comrade T. O'Neill, Deputy Commander, District 12, of Ste. Agathe des Monts. Tom is a past-Commander of our District; he is well versed in Legion affairs, bilingual, and a good speaker, so this should be an interesting event. Com. Doug Ogilvie has lined up an orchestra for the dancing to follow, and the executive have authorized a cocktail hour to precede the installation ceremonies. Members are invited to bring along a limited number of guests.

* * *

The two parties held by the Branch during the Christmas season were highly successful socially, and it is hoped that more of these events can be arranged during 1959. This is an opportune time to thank Doug Ogilvie for the fine job he does regularly in obtaining the music and handling the arrangements for these dances. These details do not just happen, they have to be planned and executed, and in this connection all members will agree that Doug deserves much credit.

* * *

The Finance chairman, Com. Tom Smith, has provided more Legion-sponsored items for the canteen, and we particularly draw your attention to the Canadian Legion's memorial calendar for 1959. Selling for about 50 cents, it is packed with pictures, statistics and anniversary dates of interest to all citizens of Canada, and in particular to all Veterans.

* * *

The Darts and Cribbage enthusiasts are completing their tournaments and finalists will be named shortly.

Plans are also being made for the annual Legion Curling Bonspiel. More details on this next week.

Did you know that the total value of Legion scholarships and bursaries exceeds $65,000 a year?

See you next week!

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

REVOLUTION ON THE FARM

The last ten years have witnessed an amazing revolution in animal agriculture. Broilers, turkeys, hogs and cattle are producing more meat on less feed than ever before. Layers have increased egg production every year in the last decade. Milk production per cow continues to rise as the dairy business becomes more and more specialized.

Credit for many of these spectacular advances belongs to the feed industry. Year after year feed manufacturers have continued to pack more and more nutritional and disease-fighting benefits into their feeds, thereby successfully meeting the challenge from livestock and poultry producers for economical feeds that would protect their investments while reducing costs.

Strangely enough, it was science's search for new drugs to deal with incurable human diseases that led to the barnyard revolution. The amazing antibiotic Terramycin which routed infection after infection in hospitals around the world was found to promote rapid weight gains in animals and permit hens to lay more eggs — with thicker, stronger shells. Likewise, vitamins and hormones became invaluable supplements to animal feeds.

New agents to add to the impressive successes achieved by those now in use are constantly uncovered. Soon to be released in Canada are two such products, proven in experimental studies conducted in laboratories and field trials. One, a powerful antibiotic, has potential qualities claimed by many to be superior to those of the original wonder drug penicillin in combatting disease-causing bacteria. The second product is a tranquilizer which, unlike its counterparts used in human therapy, acts not as a sedative but as a growth promoter. While science cannot explain this phenomenon at present, researchers found that very minute quantities when added to cattle feeds boosted weight gains and also added appreciably to the feed efficiency.

Scientists at the Pfizer research farm in Indiana, say this is only a hint of what the next five — ten — twenty years will hold. The revolution down on the farm has only begun.

Help for the Child who Stutters

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

If your child stutters, do remember that it is easier to help a child than an older person who has had this trouble for years. There are several things parents may want to do which will be more harmful than helpful. Junior must not be punished or shamed for his stammering. The stuttering child lacks self-confidence, and repressive punishing measures only make him more unsure of his ability to speak fluently.

Neither must mother form the habit of asking Junior to speak more slowly. He should not be told to repeat the word or sentence over which he has been stumbling.

It is a big temptation, but Mother must not supply a suitable word for which Junior is frantically searching. If Junior's mother feels impatient with her child's struggles to express himself she should not show it. The stuttering child must neither be worried nor hurried.

If Junior is left-handed do not force him to use his right hand. Most modern parents know that it is suspected the inner tension arising in a child from trying to change a left-handed person into a right-handed person may account for a tendency to stutter. The part of the brain controlling speech is closely associated with the control of the hands. Teachers today seldom urge a left-handed child to use his right hand.

Junior's speech difficulties should not be discussed with other adults in his presence. Mother and father should not fuss over Junior nor show anxiety or concern for their child.

Stuttering is common among little children of two or three years who are learning to speak. In the great majority of cases, if handled wisely, it gradually disappears. In time of strain, or in new situations as when Junior starts to school or enters adolescence, stuttering may crop up again.

If Junior complains to mother that his playmates laugh at him and that he "c'can't t-t-talk right," mother should reassure him that "Lots of children have difficulty learning to talk!" Mother should not urge him to try harder to talk correctly nor should she attempt to cure his speech problem by rewards or bribes.

Learning to speak without stuttering is a little like learning to swim. A child must not be afraid. Trying too hard defeats its own purpose. The relaxed child can swim more expertly and can talk more flently than the tense youngster.

Parents can help their child who stutters by seeing that he gets more rest and by building up his general health. A mother can keep a record of the situations which precede or provoke her child into having a speech "block" and try to avoid these if possible.

Children are born imitators and parents can discipline themselves to talk more slowly. In a child's ears, the tempo of adult talk is very fast. It is little wonder they often cannot understand grown-ups.

Parents can also speak more simply and in shorter sentences. The stuttering child needs a quiet, relaxed home atmosphere, in which mothr and dad speak to each other calmly, and not in an excited, upset fashion.

Singing is often a joyous activity for a stuttering child, because in singing he is not bothered with his search for words. Specialists in speech difficulties have found by experience that reading in unison or choral reading is often a help for the scholar with this weakness.

If a speech defect persists over a period of time or is causing the child real unhappiness, do not delay in consulting your family doctor. Ask him where you can get expert help. In a number of centres there are speech clinics where a child may receive expert assistance. His parents also find guidance in how best to encourage their child to overcome his difficulty.

No parent wants his boy or girl to go through life with an unnecessary handicap! Mothers and fathers can do a great deal to help Junior out of the stuttering group.

Fashions

Vivid hues like bright, strong blues and deep reds are outstanding in evening satins. This one is in sapphire blue. While it is daytime length, it has plenty of evening-dress authority. The bodice, with its square neckline and narrow shoulder straps, is draped to a bow at one side. Skirt has asymmetric draping with an unpressed box-pleat arrangement under the bow.

Freeze your own barbequed chicken

Perfect, tender, 2 to 3 pound chickens continue to be a pleasing sight to budget-minded shoppers. The good quality and reasonable price of these young birds makes them just about the best choice in meat for January.

If you are one of the over 300,000 Canadian consumers who has a freezer in her home, you have probably been stocking up on these small birds. And if you like to keep some prepared foods on hand, ready for emergency meals or parties, you will want to try this suggestion for freezing barbecued chicken. You can use your own recipe for the Barbecue Sauce but if you would like a copy of the one used in Canada's Kitchen write to the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

To Barbecue the Chicken

For 6 to 8 servings use 5 to 6 pounds chicken legs, breasts and wings. Dry the pieces to absorb excess moisture. Dip pieces into the Barbecue Sauce to coat thoroughly. Arrange skin side down in greased shallow baking pan. Place pan on low rack in very hot oven (425°F.) 30 minutes. Turn chicken skin side up and baste with additional sauce. Bake 10 minutes. Baste and bake 5 minutes longer. (If you plan to freeze it for reheating later don't let the chicken get too brown.)

To Package

After barbecuing the chicken, chill thoroughly. Package in special freezer bags or cartons along with some of the sauce and freeze. (Sauce may be frozen separately, if preferred.)

To Thaw

Place un-opened packages or cartons of chicken on a wire rack and thaw at room temperature, allowing 2 to 3 hours, OR thaw overnight in the refrigerator.

To Reheat

Place thawed chicken and sauce in a greased shallow pan. Arrange pieces skin side down, one layer deep, and cover pan completely with a piece of aluminum foil (dull side out) or other type of cover. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) for 20 minutes. Remove foil, turn pieces skin side up, baste with sauce from pan and continue cooking, uncovered, until thoroughly heated, 15 to 20 minutes longer.

Note: Tests were also done on reheating the frozen barbecued chicken without thawing. The flavor was excellent but the appearance did not score quite so high. If you wish to use this method the home economists suggest that you keep the pan closely covered throughout the reheating time and allow 50 to 60 minutes in the oven. (After the first 15 minutes in the oven, pieces of chicken that were stuck together may be pulled apart easily.)

Accidents cause most deaths among children

Accidents are the leading cause of death and permanent disability in childhood, according to an article written by Dr. F. W. Jeffrey, chairman of the Ontario Medical Association Committee on Child Welfare, in the current issue of "Health" Magazine, publication of the Health League of Canada.

"Four out of every ten fatalities among Ontario children between the ages of one and fourteen are due to accidents, and 80% of them are preventable," states Dr. Jeffrey.

The author says that three factors which apply to childhood accidents, whether they occur on the road, at home, or on the water, are the nature of the child, his social environment, and his physical environment. All three factors are shaped by the parents, he says, and that is where the great part of responsibility lies.

As children imitate and reflect the behaviour of their parents and other adults, adults must first critically examine their own characters. "As parents, we must improve our own safety attitudes and practices, for they may become the safety habits of our children."

"Our chief responsibility as parents is to develop for our children a comprehensive safety program — one that combines adequate protection with progressively increasing education in the fundamentals of safe behaviour. It must be related to the development level of the child and be integrated into the normal day-to-day rearing program. There must be a gradual transition from complete protection at one year of age to more dependancy on safe behaviour, wisdom and experience at five or six years."

"A child safety program must extend beyond the home, to the school and into the community. Such a program to be effective will require the active and co-ordinated participation of all of us. Let us not evade this moral obligation," Dr. Jeffrey concludes.

Population increase

The world population is increasing by almost 40 million persons yearly. At this rate of increase, our 2½-billion population will double itself in less than fifty years.

Manufacturers can get in a jam with their jams and jellies if they do not observe the rules of grading.

Canada's laws say grade of jam or jelly must be shown on a label. If coloring, pectin, corn syrup or a preservative is added, that must be shown too. When jams and jellies are sold in glass, tin or waxed paper containers, the contents in fluid ounces must be marked.

In pure jam, grading rules state it must contain sugar and a specified amount of named fruit. A very small amount of acid or pectin may be added to make up a deficiency of natural acid or pectin in some fruits.

"Jam with added pectin" contains sugar, a specified amount of fruit and a lot of pectin. Coloring or a preservative may be added but must be declared on the label.

In jams combining apple with some other fruit, sugar and a given amount of the more expensive fruit may be added. Pectin, glucose, corn syrup, coloring or a preservative may be added but the label must say so.

Jellies are governed by grade laws, too. Pure jelly has only sugar added to the fruit juice. Jelly with pectin must contain not less than 32 per cent of the named fruit juice, and pectin, a coloring and a preservative may be added if shown on the label.

Egg Cocktail

If you want to serve eggs in a new and attractive way, here is a recipe for egg tulip cocktail.

You need six hard-cooked large eggs, shelled, a quarter-cup mayonnaise, a tablespoon of prepared mustard, and an eighth of a teaspoon of hot-pepper sauce. For the cocktail sauce you need three quarters of a cup of chili sauce combined with a half-tablespoon of prepared horseradish. The garnish requires six lettuce cups and three ripe olives.

Cut the eggs lengthwise into quarters; remove yolks and mash them. Add mayonnaise, mustard and hot-pepper sauce, then mix well. Press yolk mixture back into egg whites.

Line sherbet glasses or other serving dishes with lettuce cups and spoon two tablespoons of cocktail sauce into each. Stand eggs in sauce, petal fashion, and garnish centre with a generous slice of ripe olive.

Stuffed Eggs

Curried stuffed eggs are also easy to make.

Ingredients are six hard-cooked small or medium eggs, four teaspoons of vinegar, two tablespoons of butter, one tablespoon of mayonnaise, a half-teaspoon of salt, a teaspoon of sugar, three-quarters of a teaspoon of curry powder, and a dash of hot-pepper sauce.

Cut the eggs in half lengthwise and remove yolks. Mash yolks with a fork, then add remaining ingredients and blend until smooth. Refill egg whites with the mixture, piling lightly to give a fluffy appearance. Garnish and serve on a tray with other hors d'oeuvres.

Reciprocation

A young Montreal matron stalled her car at a traffic light one winter day. She stamped on the starter, tried again, choked her engine, while behind her an impatient citizen honked his horn steadily. Finally she got out and walked back.

"I'm awfully sorry, but I don't seem to be able to start my car," she told the driver of the other car. "If you'll go up there and start it for me, I'll stay here and lean on your horn."

Slight rise in phone rates here from Feb. 10

Because the Lachute - Brownsburg local calling area has outgrown its present telephone rate group, increases will go into effect February 10, to bring rates into line with those charged in other centres with a similar number of telephones — according to R. R. Pearson, Bell Telephone Manager for this region.

The increases are relatively small. For example, the monthly charge for two-party residence service will be only 20 cents higher and individual residence service 25 cents higher.

The move of Lachute and Brownsburg into a higher rate group was directed by the Board of Transport Commissioners following Bell company reports issued October 30, 1958. The reports stated that the number of telephones in the Lachute-Brownsburg calling area had increased by more than five per cent beyond the maximum limit of the present rate group.

Telephone rates for Lachute and Brownsburg are governed by the number of telephones in the local calling area, recognizing the principle that the value of service to each customer increases as the number of telephones increases. The Bell company is required to report to the Board, twice yearly, the status of exchanges whose total telephones have increased by more than five per cent beyond the limits of their group.

The Lachute-Brownsburg area has expanded steadily in recent years and its progress has been accompanied by a parallel growth in the number of telephones. Telephone customers served by the Lachute and Brownsburg exchanges now have 5,402 telephones in their local calling area.

Fertilize for better pastures

Ottawa — Fertilizing pastures annually brings better results than applying fertilizer once every three years, according to tests carried out at the Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S.

L. B. MacLeod described the results of putting 400 pounds of 0-20-20 per acre every year on a permanent pasture that had been in sod for 15 years. The herbage yield over a period of three years was 10 per cent greater than from a similar area which received the same amount of fertilizer but applied at three year intervals.

Both areas received an annual blanket application of 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre in early summer.

It was also noted that the quality of herbage was better from the area fertilized annually, because there were fewer weeds. On the other hand the area demanded more cost in labor. Mr. MacLeod recommended that high-producing pastures should be fertilized at least every two years.

This is the time of year we lose Poultry customers!

Around this time of the year we hear complaints of hens not laying as they should. November and December are usually dark. Cloudy days, along with short daylight, keep the hens from working and they barely eat enough to keep themselves. And as the egg supply dwindles the complaints get louder. They seem to think when they buy a good feed like Purina, that the eggs should come no matter what. We tell them what to do, but that is just wasted time. They go home and change to XYZ feed; it is CHEAPER BY THE BAG. What then happens is that, as they are feeding XYZ feed, the days begin to lengthen and the sun shines more often, the days get a bit warmer and the hens pick up in laying. So they are SURE XYZ feed is the cheapest!

The way to find out which feed is the most profitable would be to divide your flock and feed one part XYZ feed and the other PURINA LAYING CHOWS from fall through to spring — then you could know, provided you kept a record of the feed each ate and the eggs they laid.

But again there is the question mark — how many do keep records of what their hens do? Feed PURINA anyway — it is the most profitable.

Ceremony and social function at Legion and Auxiliary installation

The dual ceremony of installation of officers in Legion Branch No. 70 and the Ladies' Auxiliary was held Saturday evening at the Legion Hall.

The meeting was conducted by Comrade President R. O. MacLean, who welcomed all present and explained briefly what the Legion had been able to accomplish during the past year through its various activities. Considerable social service had been done, and assistance given the Lions' Rink Project by the loaning of their loudspeaker system. Close co-operation with the management of Lachute Spring Fair had enabled both to profit financially and at the same time the large attendance was given a much better grandstand performance. (More details appear in the Legion Column in this issue.)

Installing Officer Comrade T. O'Neill, Deputy District Commander with his assistant Comrade Marc Stein, Q.C., both of Ste. Agathe, then proceeded with the main work of the evening, and those who will guide the affairs of both Legion and Auxiliary for the coming year are as follows:

Legion —

Ladies' Auxiliary —

President (re-elected), Mrs. N. Lavis; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Wm. Bradshaw; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. T. Smith, secretary, Mrs. T. Smith, treasurer, Mrs. S. Bradshaw, Sgt.-at-Arms, Mrs. G. Tabrett.

Appreciation was expressed to all who had taken part by the new president, Com. T. Smith, who also invested the retiring president, Com. R. O. MacLean, with a jewel in recognition of his services. Mrs. N. Lavis, as president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, thanked the gathering for their co-operation and pledged her services once again.

Attending from out-of-town were: Mr. and Mrs. T. O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Marc Stein, all of Ste. Agathe, and President Com. R. Cloutier of the Ste. Agathe Branch; Com. O. Carriere, representing Brownsburg Branch, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Kneeland, of Morin Heights (District Commander).

To round out the evening's entertainment a three-piece orchestra provided lively music for dancing, in which all participated.

Ayrshire breeders held annual meet

The annual meeting of the Laurentian Ayrshire Breeders' Club was held in the High School here last Wednesday evening, with about 50 in attendance. The following were elected as directors for the year 1959:

President, John Heatley, Jr., vice-president, Doug Smith; secretary-treasurer, Ross Rodger.

Directors — Gerald Dawson, Allan Hammond, Ken Hanly, Ken Kettyle, E. J. McOuat, Forbes McOuat, Keith Pollock, Harold Smith and Fred Wilson.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Geo. McGibbon, of Pine Hill and Lachute, who gave an interesting and amusing talk on his recent trip to England and Scotland.

Mothers' March on Polio Jan. 29 in B'burg and surrounding villages

Brownsburg — As in the past years, the Canadian Legion Branch 71 is sponsoring the annual campaign for the Quebec Chapter of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis in the Brownsburg area. Volunteer ladies will conduct their "Mothers' March on Polio" on Thursday evening, January 29, between 6.30 and 7.30, in order to raise funds for this worthwhile cause.

The money collected will be used to assist Polio victims, either directly or indirectly. The Quebec Chapter not only sponsors a rehabilitation program, but also provides bursaries for training physiotherapists, sponsors medical research, and gives financial aid to rehabilitation centres and clinics.

The need for assistance for polio patients is greater than ever, because old cases that require rehabilitation are being uncovered every day. Many of these cases have needed treatment for many years, but have not been able to receive it. Those who have received anti-polio vaccinations will be particularly appreciative of the need for funds.

The usual generosity is anticipated from residents of the Brownsburg and surrounding area. In addition to the Village of Brownsburg, the canvass will also cover — Dalesville, Pine Hill, St. Michel, St. Philippe, Staynerville, Marelan, Grenville, Calumet, Kilmar and Harrington.

Local family have subscribed for 74 years

A document which possibly establishes a record in Watchman readership, is a receipt dated November 23, 1885, for subscription to this newspaper in that year. The subscriber was John Doig, Upper Lachute farmer. . . Mr. Doig, his son the late Alex Doig, and his granddaughter Mrs. Norman Thorburn, have been continuous subscribers for 74 years since 1885 (and possibly longer). This is a notable continuity of readership in one family, still in the same community.

The receipted bill confirming this record is signed by the then proprietors, Simpson & Kerr (per G.B.). The billhead designates The Watchman office address as Lachute Mills, and the subscription rate $1 per annum.

Fish and Game reorganized

A proposed slate of officers for the 1959 season of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association was drawn up at nomination and re-organization proceedings in the Lachute Legion Hall last evening, the slate to be proposed to the general membership at a meeting in the Lachute Legion Hall, Thursday, February 12, at 8.30 p.m.

Numerous suggestions were made, and the sitting executive, many of whom were in attendance, were retained on the board.

Youths held over for trial on breaking-entering

Three district youths, Gaetan Larocque 21, and Raoul Mallette, 20, both of St. Andrews East, and André Dewar 20, of Hawkesbury, were held over for trial at the fall assizes, when they appeared before Judge Camille de Martigny in St. Jerome court on Monday. The three were charged with breaking and entry with theft into seven summer cottages in the St. Andrews area. A fourth member of the gang, Jean Guy Decaire, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to three months in jail.

Bail was set at $950 property-bond in the cases of the two younger members of the trio, while Larocque's bail was set at $2,000 property. In the latter case, the preliminary inquiry into 10 cases of issuing false cheques will be continued on Monday of next week. The cheques in question were cashed throughout the district last fall. Charges were laid by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen.

St. Jerusalem would install hydrants; need written consent of proprietors

A petition signed by 18 property owners was presented to the Council of the Parish of St. Jerusalem, requesting the installation of seven fire hydrants to service the populated section of the St. Jerome road east of Lachute. The Council signified its willingness to proceed with this project, providing they have the written consent of all owners involved.

There are 37 proprietors concerned, with a valuation of approximately $83,150. To each of these owners a letter has now been addressed with a reply postcard, showing the cost, and the advantages to be derived from insurance rates reduced by at least 25% if hydrants are installed.

Realization of this protective service is contingent upon the signatures of the property-holders concerned, on the postcards provided for that purpose.

Local firms supply pipe for Ayersv'l works project

Excavating for water, sewerage now underway

A loan was procured from the Immaculate Conception church building fund, to the amount of $7,041.54, in order to permit an immediate start on the Ayersville winter works project, to install a water main and sewerage on Gauthier Street. The loan is repayable in instalments of $1,400 annually plus interest charges.

Superintendent for the job is Hermas Leroux, to be paid $1.10 an hour; he is authorized to engage labor for the pipe-laying at $1 an hour and ordinary laborers at 90 cents — with discretion to discharge any worker found unsatisfactory (with approval of the public works committee). In order that the municipality derive benefit from the federal aid plan, it is required that employees on this work be, insofar as possible, residents of Ayersville registered with the Unemployment Insurance office.

Tenders Accepted

Two bids were received for water pipe and three for sewer conduit.

For cast-iron water pipe the tenderers were Francis Hankin, Montreal, and R. McArthur & Son Ltd., Lachute; the latter firm was given the contract to supply 800 feet of 6-inch pipe.

For sewer pipe, bids were received from Viroc, St. Placide; St. Jerome Cement Products; and A. D. Whissel, Whisseltown. Contract was awarded to the latter to supply 900 feet of re-inforced cement pipe 12 inches in diameter.

It was planned to commence the project yesterday (Tuesday).

Police curb under-age patrons, test case against grill keepers

Local police, under Sgt. Marcel Therrien, made a thorough check of all hotel dance halls on Friday evening of last week and escorted 20-odd persons under the age of 20 to the police station where they were questioned and later released. The hotels were checked under By-law 206, passed September 18, 1957, amending By-law 190, passed June 3, 1953.

The officers asked all habitués whom they thought to be underage for identification, and in such cases where none was immediately available or which showed the persons were under the admitted age of 20, the parties concerned were taken to the police station, where a record was made of their names, along with those of their parents. The youths were later taken either to their homes or to one of the teen-age dances being held at the Legion Hall and the Knights of Columbus Hall.

No charges will be laid against the young people questioned, but Police - Fire Chief Fernand Trépanier reported that the hotels would be charged under By-law 206, making this, the first offence, a "test case" to see just how valid the by-law is.

Principal amendments to the original By-law are (a) hours of operation on Sunday and religious holidays, from 8 a.m. to midnight; (b) dancing forbidden, also orchestra music, shows and singing acts on Sundays and religious holidays; (c) youths or girls under 20 years of age not admitted to "grills"; (d) violations of this regulation are the exclusive jurisdiction of the Municipal Police Department.

Commenting on the by-law at the time of its adoption, Mayor Léopold Carrière stated, "99 Percent of the population are with us for rigid enforcement of this control," and added he was sure the police force would see it was respected.

While officers have been checking hotels on closing hours, this is the first time any check has been made on the age of patrons on such an all-out scale, as four officers took part in the investigations.

Plans drawn for water and sewer in Hospital area

At an adjourned Council meeting in Ayersville, waterworks plans to serve the area of the new Regional Hospital were submitted by Lucien Letendre of the firm of Lalonde, Girouard & Letendre, civil engineers. It was agreed that the engineers be authorized to approach the Department of Health for approval of the plans.

A citizen, Georges Clément, enquired when work would be started on the Bradford Avenue water main and sewer. He was informed this work would be undertaken as soon as authorization is given by the Department of Municipal Affairs at Quebec.

A donation of $125 was voted for the Ayersville Hockey Club.

It was decided to have plans and specifications prepared for the building of a fire station, to be used tentatively as a municipal garage.

The meeting was chaired by Louis-J. Bigras, pro-mayor. Councillors in attendance were Edgar Cyr, Maurice Dumas, Douglas Simon and Rosaire Quenneville.

Air Cadet unit now attached to Lac St. Denis

Ayersville squadron 648 of the Air Cadets, formerly responsible to the Lachine RCAF base, is now attached to Lac St. Denis base, Morin Heights. Jacques Boutet, liaison officer from Lachine, bade farewell to his young charges and their officers, and will be replaced by J. M. Seaver, section officer.

First inspection of the group by representatives of the parent unit takes place tonight (Wednesday) at 8 o'clock.

The squadron now has 84 Cadets, from Ayersville, Lachute and Brownsburg. It is regretted, however, that more local youths are not benefitting by this training. There is room for an additional 15 or 20 boys in the squadron.

Rotary curlers' movies shown at club meeting

Perfect attendance pins were presented to Wes Freeland (six years), Jack MacKimmie (two years), and Art Lapp (one year) at the regular dinner meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club.

President Sid Patterson read congratulations from Rotary International in connection with the School, Tree Farm, and Community Park projects, and stated that with plans underway for a local farmers' organization to take over the administration of the Tree Farm movement, it was time the members started looking for another worthwhile community project that needed undertaking.

Rotarian Jack MacKimmie was then introduced by fellow Rotarian Edgar Pollock, and showed movies he had taken on the recent curling trip to Scotland and tour to Switzerland, adding to the previous week's commentary on this trip given by Rotarian George McGibbon.

Holstein Club has entrant for Dairy Queen '59

Mrs. Harold Wilson, East Settlement

Directors of Lachute Holstein Club have chosen a young housewife from East Settlement, Mrs. Harold Wilson, to try for the Dairy Queen honors of the Quebec Holstein Club at this year's Salon of Agriculture, which takes place next month in the Montreal Show Mart.

Regulations require that the entrant must be the wife of a club member, and merits are judged on personality and proficiency at milking. Competitors are between the ages of 18 and 35.

Mrs. Wilson (the former Phyllis McRae of Harrington) will take part in one of the preliminary appearances running for four days, February 15-18, hoping to qualify for the final judging February 19 at 8 p.m. . . . Friends, peighbors and supporters hope she will score top honors.

Last year's contestant from Lachute was Mrs. John W. Hadley, Willowdale Road, who was runner-up on the final day.

The Home and School Association met in the Music Room of the Lachute High School on Tuesday of last week, under the chairmanship of Mr. Ken Riley.

One of the main items of business was the suggested creation of a Scholarship. It was moved by Mr. Jefferies that a committee be formed to investigate the possibility. This is a worthwhile project which requires co-operation of as many parents as possible, and it is urged that any parents who have not yet attended the meetings should do so and lend their support in the future.

Mrs. J. Thorpe introduced the speaker, Mrs. G. V. Clarke, a trained group discussion leader from St. Lambert. Mrs. Clarke provided three sketches drawn from everyday life, entitled:

(1) Junior and his Homework.
(2) TV Invades the Dinner Hour.
(3) Teen-Age Trouble.

These were enacted on the plat form and provided the topics for discussion. Arguments both serious and amusing were brought out, to everyone's enjoyment.

Mr. E. Gow thanked the speaker for her excellent contribution to the evening.

The next meeting will be in the form of a "Book Fair" — the time and date to be announced. This novel idea is worthy of all parents' consideration and co-operation. It is designed to help parents help themselves, and also to help replenish the Reading Room book shelves at the school.

Theft charge

Lucien Ladouceur, 34, of Pte.-au-Chene, was arrested January 12 and charged with theft of a radio, and with receiving stolen property.

No date has been set for the preliminary inquiry — according to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who made the arrest.

Home and School asks enforcement of highway clause

A resolution has been forwarded from the Lachute and District Home and School Association to the Department of Transport and Communications, also a copy to the Hon. W. M. Cottingham. The resolution and accompanying explanation reads as follows:

"Be it resolved that a letter be sent to the Department of Transport and Communications requesting that the public be made aware of the existing Regulations regarding stopping behind or approaching stopped school buses on the highways when these buses are taking on or discharging passengers, namely school children, and provide more adequate police supervision to ensure that the latter is being obeyed, with provision for severe punishment to offenders."

This Association feels that through the medium of radio and television or any means at your disposal, an offending motorist could be warned against this dangerous and disgraceful practice, with the probable result that more thought will be given to the safety of innocent children.

Trusting that this suggestion will be given serious consideration by your Department in its constant effort for the improvement of Highway Safety.

President

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

I can now report definite news on reorganization of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Assoc- our advantage to work on this, everything can be ironed out before too much time goes by. The stocking of fish in Argenteuil could become a reality, and certainly would give the County a shot in the arm. I have been assured that we could have this done IF there are steps taken by the Association. As far as I can see, it will be to our advantage to work on this. More details next week.

I received a call the other night that there were wolves around in considerable numbers. From all enquiries, however, the wolf situation seems to be very definitely under control. The same applies to foxes, so there doesn't seem much to worry about in that respect.

The ice fishing has been very good in all our local spots, with some very good catches of Perch. Pike have not been too numerous but there is the odd one being caught. I heard of one being taken that weighed a shade under nine pounds, and that's a nice fish for anyone to take. As the winter draws on they will become much more numerous, and certainly a lot hungrier. You know the best part of this ice fishing is that you never know just what will turn up next. There is at least two months of ice fishing left for the enthusiast. I think if more people tried it there would be a lot of converts.

As most of you can guess, the bush is very hard to get into these days; for those who take the time and trouble though, it is well worth it. We have been out a number of times — a little tough on the dog, and us, but after awhile you don't notice it (much). Going out with the intention of staying until dark, you begin to realize how little anyone knows of wildlife — especially me. One of the days with the temperature just hanging on to zero, we saw a raccoon. True, the sun was out in full force, but certainly there was no heat from it. From everything you are told and read, the raccoons hibernate until spring; they also may come out in fine, warm weather in the winter. So what happened to this guy, to bring him out in this kind of weather! Could be he had a belly ache or was sleep walking; he didn't say. Another thing, he sure looked stupid, and was in no hurry to lose himself in the tree.

For any of you who take a day in the bush, don't forget to take extra socks with you. More cold feet are caused by your socks becoming damp from perspiration than anything I know of. It doesn't take much time to change them, and is certainly worth the trouble. Also, when you are boiling the water for your tea, cut about four logs 3 or 4 feet long and use them as the bed of your fire. Light the fire right on top of them, and in that way it will prevent melting snow from dousing the fire. Another little tip: snow is a great insulator, so burrow into the snow, cover the bottom with evergreens and you can eat your meal or change clothes in comfort. It's funny but the temperature can be well below zero, and just a few inches below the snow will make as much difference as 40 degrees. . . Don't believe it; try and see for yourself!

Most of us, at this time of year, are at a loss for something to do at night. I usually work on my tackle and find that it pays off in a big way come season's opening. The rods come first, the handle being the first check-point. As it usually becomes loose towards the end of the previous season, it usually needs re-glueing. Heat the cork handle in warm water. A pail is best for this, as the whole thing can be immersed, making it a lot easier to get off the glass rod itself. You'll have to twist the handle very gently to break the glue. Having done this, clean the butt of the glass very well. Make sure that all bits of glue, thread, etc., are off. Having done this, use coarse thread and whip it around the butt, trying it for size in the corks. If there is too much thread on, sooner or later your corks will crack. Now coat it thoroughly with a good waterproof glue; let it stand for a short time; pour glue into the holes in the corks (not too much); let stand; when it is tacky start to force the glass butt into the corks. Take it easy, otherwise you will break the cork. Let it dry for at least 48 hours, and you will have a handle that will give you no trouble.

Some of the eyes on the rod may be bent or nicked; replace them, as you can never get a perfect eye again by straightening it.

Any of the whippings that are ragged, or loose, should be replaced. When you have this all done, give the whole thing a coat of clear varnish. A new rod is the result, and it sure does repay you in trouble-free fishing.

The same thing applies to reels. Clean them in light oil and make sure to spread all the innards on a paper so that there will be none lost. Any worn parts — now is the time to spot them, not later. One thing that wears most on spinning reels is the bail, so check that well. You may find a small ridge in it from the line. Get a new one; the cost is very small compared to a few lost baits.

Your lines should be washed; luke-warm water and a good grade of soap suds, no detergents. Rinse them VERY well, hang up to dry on wooden pegs (not steel), and you will be surprised at how long these things will last. True most lines are inexpensive today, but if you learn to look after these now, there won't be any trouble when you start getting more expensive lines. This applies to mono lines as well as Fly. One more thing on lines. Make sure the water is luke-warm. Not hot.

The baits you use will be just that much better fish-getters if you take the time to clean them up a little; a polishing cloth will work wonders on them. Take out any bumps or nicks in the blades or bodies, check the swivels and snap-on. . .

This will take care of a good number of winter evenings and is well worth the trouble for the good fisherman.

It's unfortunate that the Lions Club have decided not to sponsor the Dog Derby this year. It is understandable, when their big project, the rink, is considered. Maybe next fall something can be started, to bring this back into the fold, with the resultant good for everyone concerned. It has been pointed out to me numerous times, there is no spectator interest in the race. That is true to a point, but if this race could be run around the race-track for a few miles and finished in the town, it might just be what the people want. After all, there should be something that will make it appeal to Lachute. It appeals to other cities in a very big way, so why not Lachute?

I haven't as yet got the figures on the Moose kill for this year, nor the Deer. That is one that I will be happy to get. From what we are told, the Deer situation is very good. It may be in some sections of the country, but I'm pretty sure the County of Argenteuil is not showing an increase in the Deer population. This is one problem that we in the County have to solve for ourselves. Maybe the closing of the season for a couple of years around our district would solve the problem. I know this would not meet with any great enthusiasm from anyone in the area, but if it's necessary to do this, it should be done. Of course, this would have to be studied and the count of the kill taken from this district, before anything could be done. You know as well as I do, that if this is necessary it's our own fault. As I've said before, true conservation cannot be bought at bargain prices. Maybe one of these days as much attention will be paid to this as all other laws that are made to protect all else. Most of us have to read all about places that have been cleared of all forms of animal and fish life. When you see them though, the lesson is driven home in a big way. Can you imagine not seeing birds, animals or any form of life in or around Lachute? Not a very pleasant prospect.

United Church Bowling League

The Lachute United Church Bowling League is now half-way through the schedule, and a close race for the championship has been evident all the way. Mrs. W. Bridge's St. Andrew's team has been leading all season, but after this week's game, the leadership went to Owen Todd's St. George's squad.

There will be a short meeting next Monday at approximately 8 p.m., for the purpose of presenting reports and electing new officers.

Good program for Lions Rink ice carnival

Ted Vachon, activities chairman for the Lions' Skating Rink, and Jacques Bourgoing, organizer, have together planned an interesting program for the ice carnival to be held at the rink on Sunday, January 25, commencing at 1 p.m. Following are the principal events:

This program has been planned to provide high interest for all ages, both participants and spectators, and the organizers anticipate a good turn out to make the event a success.

All-local team making good show in hockey league

Honors were divided in the Spitfires' hockey games last week, with victory Thursday against Kilmar and defeat Sunday against Hawkesbury. Dr. Eric Mongeon, coach, is gratified with the club's improvement, evidenced in the fact that both of these decisions required an overtime period. . .

It should be noted that, perhaps for the first time in years, this promising team is an all-Lachute aggregation, with no outside talent.

Kilmar vs. Lachute

In the first encounter, the final score was 5-4 against Kilmar. Kenny Underhill was undisputed star, scoring the initial goal for Lachute and the deciding tally in overtime. Frank Hanlon and Roch Trudeau scored a quick-firing two-some near the end of the third period; and only a second before the final bell, Paul Desjardins levelled the score 4-4 to force the game into overtime. . . Underhill then clinched the triumph.

Hawkesbury 3 - Lachute 2

A larger crowd was on hand Sunday at Brownsburg Arena. Mongeon's squad again played excellent hockey, but were beaten 3-2 in overtime play.

Underhill took the scoring lead, with assists from Desjardins and Trudeau. John Rodgers made it 2-0 on an assist from Guy Lopage.

In the second period J. Larocque tallied for Hawkesbury; and in the last three seconds of the final, Marcel Larocque evened the count for Hawkesbury.

It was Parisien of Hawkesbury who dashed the Spitfires' hopes, with the deciding goal in overtime play. Spectators were on their toes at this climax of excitement.

Standing

Spitfires are now in third place in the Ontario-Quebec League. Up top are Brownsburg and Hawkesbury — with Vankleek Hill and Kilmar following Lachute, in that order.

Spitfires will play Thursday evening at Vankleek Hill, and next Tuesday at Brownsburg against the Bombers. Local enthusiasts are cordially urged to support the local team at this game.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons: but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

For "over-organized" townsfolk

IN THIS HECTIC pace of living many of us should be looking for ways to slow down. Such is not the case. In addition to heavy business routines which last often into the evenings, we find ourselves busy with outside activity in the work (and play) of one or more organizations.

Lachute has a lot of groups — and lots of members. Without them the town would be a poorer place. But, as the Smiths Falls Record-News says, "one can join too many of them." Says an editorial in this Ontario exchange:

"Too many evenings spent on serving too many committees can disrupt family life. What 'joiner' mother has not had her children or husband ask at the sight of a nicely baked cake: 'Which is it for, the Rebekahs or the Legion Auxiliary?' Or what wife has not wished her 'joiner' husband would show a little of the enthusiasm around home that he does at a service club event, or sweep the walks with a bit of the energy he shows in the curling rink.

"Organizations are wonderful and the community would be a lot poorer without them, but one cannot join them all. You have to pick out two or three that interest you most and continue to say 'no thanks' to all the others. A minister once advised people to restrict themselves to a church organization and one other. Perhaps we could make it three — one to minister to our spiritual needs, one to stimulate us mentally, and one which will include physical exercise." . . .

One fact not mentioned in this view is that, besides our physical capacities, our loyalty to group membership also suffers by the diversion of too many interests. If you have chaired a club or committee session where two or three key members must withdraw at the peak of a critical debate to attend some other meeting — you will realize this point and its obstacle to co-ordinated effort in any club.

Shelving the hot potato

THE CANADIAN FLAG issue will be a contentious one as long as it remains unsettled. As an ideal to cement the nation in united patriotism, it may well be an instrument whose forging could rip the seams apart, while sparking differences between our racial groups. A happier thought is that it might be settled amicably and swiftly. But looking at the facts, it is clear that our legislators will avoid the subject as long as possible, and things will go on just as they are.

But let's face it — here, at least. . . There are many loyal-to-Canada Canadians who use some other flag than the Union Jack or the Red Ensign. And while this continues, two facts are self-evident — (1) they themselves are only confusing the issue and contributing to Canada's anonymity, and (2) we are still missing the boat by sidestepping a symbol which every Canadian would adhere to, that is, a working instrument of unity. . . Like it or not, we must admit these facts.

Toronto (CP) — Gerald Peters, president of the Piccadilly Club here, is going to fly his own design of a Canadian flag on the club's bus when it tours 12 countries including Russia next summer.

The club, originally founded by immigrants from England, took a summer trip to Hollywood in 1957 and it has just been decided to take the bus, Jenny, a 10-year-old former Toronto Transit Commission vehicle, on an extended European tour.

Mr. Peters said: "I've designed a distinctive Canadian flag because no one else had the gumption to do anything concrete about our lack of one." Measuring five by three feet, royal blue in color, it has 10 crowns for the provinces and Northwest Territories and a fleur de lis for Quebec, arranged around a central maple leaf.

— See what we mean?

Centralization presents a problem

HOW'RE YOU GOIN' to keep 'em down on the farm . . . ? Now it seems that gay Paree is presenting a problem for the French themselves. Paris has become such a mecca that its magnetism is draining the vitality out of other French communities.

Bordeaux, Lille, Marseille and Lyons all have their attractions and characteristics, but there's no place like Paris.

The enormous pull of Paris has had unfortunate side-effects. It has helped make France one of the most centralized countries in the world. The nation's economic comeback, now under way, may be hampered by anomalies in administration and distribution caused by excessive centralization.

Fruit and vegetables from one part of France, for instance, have to go to the central market in the heart of the metropolis — described by Emile Zola as the "belly of Paris" — before being shipped to a final destination perhaps only a few miles from the point of production.

Centralization has particularly affected the south-central and southern parts of France. In recent years, parts of these areas have become virtually derelict, helping to bring to the forefront such flashes in the French political pan as Pierre Poujade, the tax-hating bookseller.

The problem has reached such proportions that General de Gaulle has decided to send economic experts to see what they can do about reviving the depressed areas.

The project deserves every encouragement. France is a surprising blend of dazzling modern techniques and appallingly old-fashioned traditions, slowly and painfully giving way to progress.

It is to be hoped that Paris will not prove too popular for the good of the nation.

No need for Examination jitters

SCHOOL EXAMS don't need to be nightmares, according to a communication from the American Medical Association.

Worst enemy of students is the feeling of fear. Most young people are not trained in methods of taking examinations, and remarkably few work out a really efficient system, despite the frequent occurrence of tests.

A feeling of preparedness can be achieved through consistent study during the school year, rather than a last minute boning-up, the communique stated.

Make yourself comfortable in the test room. Try to sit near a window in good light — loosen your tie and perhaps take off your shoes.

Before starting to write, check the entire exam so that you know and understand what you have to do.

Allocate your time wisely. By answering the easy questions first you will conserve time and energy for the hard ones. Watch for these common errors which may cost you dearly: mis-spelled words, punctuation mistakes, sloppy writing, right answers on the wrong lines, correct answers with erroneous steps or processes, and puzzling abbreviations.

Above all, read over what you have written before you turn in your paper. Many errors can be detected in the final moments of a test.

Viewpoints and perspectives

THE PRESENT SYSTEM of loans and grants does not seem to have the desired effect of making the Quebec farmer a prosperous businessman, which is what he deserves to be for the long hours he is obliged to work, and is what he must become, if the economy of the Province is to continue at a high level.

COMMENTS SUCH AS "the government did this" or "the government failed to do that" are all very well, but the government after all is merely a reflection of the energy and attitude of the people. An industrious, alert population provides for itself.

A sweeping indictment

— By Lewis Milligan —

Two hundred years ago Edmund Burke, the great British statesman, said: "I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against an whole people." It has remained for the editors of two Saskatchewan newspapers to perform that operation, and they have made a thorough job of it.

The Regina Leader-Post and The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix are on the war-path against Inflation. They have issued two thundering pamphlet broadsides against what they regard as the most potent enemy of our democratic institutions. One blast is entitled, "Inflation Spells Ruination!" It reminds us that "history is filled with examples of unchecked inflation and its disastrous results — destruction of people's savings, disruption of their lives and the wrecking of national economic systems. Empires have fallen because of it."

The other blast booms out: "Stop Thief!" It declares that "the hard-earned savings of millions of Canadians — savings in the form of bank deposits, insurance policies, pensions, bonds and so on — are being robbed right, left and centre."

"The Shrinking Dollar" is the cause of this alarm. And well it might be, for we are reminded that "Lenin advised his Communist followers that inflation was one of the chief weapons for the world revolution they hoped to bring about. Lenin said the best way to destroy capitalist countries was to demolish the purchasing power of their currencies." And we are told that Canadians themselves are doing that very thing without any prompting from behind the Iron Curtain. I quote:

"Let's look at ourselves; collectively we have indulged in unsound, wishful thinking. Most of us have wanted something for nothing from our governments. We farmers have wanted handouts, we business men have wanted easy money, low interest rates. We manufacturers have wanted tariff protection from foreign competitors. We workmen have wanted constant employment with more pay, shorter hours, and expensive security provisions. We have expected our governments to accomplish the impossible. Now the shocking truth has caught up with us. We find that we have paid for these unearned handouts by progressive destruction of the value of our hard-earned money saved for our retirement in pension funds, saved for the protection of our wives and children in insurance benefits, saved for future use for a rainy day in bank accounts, in bonds."

That is indeed a sweeping indictment of the people of Canada as a whole. Nor is the indictment confined to the people. Government is named as the "chief offender" and accused of aiding and abetting the "legalized robbery." Evidence for this is cited from a recent address at Montreal by Mr. D. E. Kilgour of Winnipeg, vice-president and manager of the Great-West Life Assurance Company, as follows:

"It has become almost a political axiom on this continent that the way to get elected is to promise to spend more money. In their spending, the governments of both Canada and the United States are living beyond their means. They are spending far in excess of their tax revenues. They are unable to make up the differences by borrowing the savings of the people largely because the people are losing faith in government bonds as investments in the face of the inflationary threat. Both governments have had to borrow from their central and commercial banks. This, in effect, creates new money as surely as if the dollars had been printed."

But Mr. Kilgour is convinced that inflation is not inevitable: He believes governments can help to reverse the trend by changing their approach. He believes "Canadians are strong enough and able enough to face up to this problem that presents a simple choice between right and wrong. . . Can rise to meet a challenge that is so clear and prove to the world that free people can, and will discipline themselves."

The cougar is the largest member of the cat family to be found in Canada. It is also known as a puma, mountain lion, panther and catamount. The coat of the adult is a plain yellowish brown, reddish brown, or grey; the underparts are a dirty white and there is a black tip on the tail. Adults are from 6 to 8½ feet long and weigh from 100 to 175 pounds. The cougar is usually restricted to the mountainous regions of southern British Columbia and Alberta, but some have been seen in Saskatchewan and New Brunswick.

Cougars prey on a wide variety of animals, from insects to deer and domestic animals. In some areas sheep-raising is impossible because of their depredations, and they kill many colts in horse-ranching areas. They are quite capable of killing a man, though there are few instances of their having done so.

Which Sea Creatures have Both Eyes on One Side of the Head?

Not sea monsters, but a common group of fish called the flatfish have both eyes on the same side of the head. These fish lie on the sea bottom. The lower side is usually white, and the upper takes on the coloration and pattern of the bottom on which the fish lies. Young flatfish are normal in having one eye on each side of the head. They swim upright, but soon they show a tendency to lie on one side on the bottom and the cranium becomes twisted, with the eye on the lower side moving to the upper surface. Members of this group are the following — brill, flounder, halibut, plaice, sand dab, sole and witch. The most important is the halibut. It is found on both the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, and is probably widely distributed in the Arctic. The Pacific halibut may reach a size of 470 pounds and an age of 35 years or more.

PAT AND MIKE AGAIN!

Stories about those two indestructible Irishmen are not so common nowadays as they were years ago, but here's one you may not have heard — at least, not lately. And the teen agers probably haven't heard it at all.

It seems that Pat and Mike pooled their resources and bought a cow betwen them. Then a dispute arose as to which half of the cow each one owned. They tossed for it, and Pat won the toss. He chose the front half of the cow, so Mike had to take what was left — the rear part.

When milking time came Pat started for the barn with a pail but Mike halted him. "You have no right to my half," he told Pat. "The milk comes from my part, not yours."

"If that's the way you want it," replied Pat, "you'll have to feed the cow yourself."

"Nothing doing!" said Mike. "Your half is the part that does the eating. Feed her yourself."

So this went on for about a week, Pat feeding the cow, and Mike taking all the milk to town and selling it. But one day, after returning from town he went to the stable and found the cow was no longer there.

"Where's the cow?" he shouted to Pat, who was taking it easy on the front gallery.

"A travelling butcher came long," said Pat. "He wanted to buy the cow, but I told him that I could only sell him my half. So I did."

"Well, he killed my half — and I guess your half died!"

And there's just about time to tell you the one about the three Southern planters.

And the third one owned a coffee plantation, and he used to live on the grounds.

— And speaking of coffee, I heard one day that doughnuts were invented by a Scotchman named Duncan. I don't believe this because it is supposed that the first pancakes were fried by the ancient Romans, and that the first doughnuts were fried in Greece.

Corny, eh? I'll try and do better next week.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Are you blue?

Anybody in the audience feeling blue? Well, Mister, I can tell you how to cheer up, but fast!

Simply get up off whatever you are sitting on and do something fine for somebody else. Try it — go on! Go and give your wife a kiss, or pat one of your youngsters on the head, and make yourself smile.

Everybody gets blue. Everybody can get over it. Abe Lincoln tells us that the average man is about as happy as he makes up his mind to be. So make up your mind, buddy!

When I get blue I lecture myself. I have a few 3 by 5 filing cards on which I type out things I like to remember. One of the items is a cheerer-upper, written long, long ago by some fellow called Marco Morrow. I read it this morning when I got out of bed tired and gloomy, with a head cold and too much work ahead of me — work which I could have had done if I'd been less lazy. I'd like to pass those words along to you. Cut them out and paste them in your hat.

"It is a glorious privilege to live, to know, to act, to listen, to behold, to love. To look up at the blue summer sky; to see the sun sink slowly beyond the line of the horizon; to watch the worlds come twinkling into view, first one by one, and then myriads that no man can count, and lo! the universe is white with them; and you and I are here."

Cynics may point out that here in Winnipeg, where I'm writing this, the temperature is 22 below this morning; the sun is getting up, not sinking, the sky is grey with clouds, and the smoke from the Central Heat plants is pushed straight south by the icy wind. Sure, that's so. But the frost is lovely on our windows, the den where I write is warm enough, the smell of percolating coffee reaches me, the rent is paid for this month, and I'm alive.

Best of all, I'm the white-haired boy around home. This morning, at breakfast, I said to my wife, "Boy, you're looking lovely this morning." She was, too, but she nearly dropped dead with surprise when I said so. Giggled, too. And suspiciously asked me what deviltry I was up to. I didn't tell her. I'm not going to tell you, either!

Provincial Flags

Two Canadian provinces have their own flags. Nova Scotia's, granted by Royal Charter in 1621, shows a blue St. Andrew's cross on a silver field with the Royal Arms of Scotland on the cross. Quebec authorized a provincial flag in 1948, a white cross with four fleur de lis on a blue background.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

There's one good thing about the column business. It puts you in touch with nice people who smooth your way with kind words.

One of them accosted me, a benevolent soul who was itching to pass along a compliment. The conversation went something like this:

"I met a man who reads your column, the other day. Thought you'd like to know."

"Yes. Good of you to tell me. Who was it?"

"I don't know, but he was quite a fan of yours, that piece you write — what do you call it?"

"All Aboard."

"Yes, 'All Aboard'. Frankly, I must confess that I don't read it myself. I'm too busy."

"I'm sorry to hear that."

"That's all right. But this fellow I met — wish I could remember his name — he read your column, anyway. I thought you would like to hear about it."

"I certainly would."

"This fellow doesn't always see the paper. But he was telling me, he just happened to be cleaning out some shelves for his wife, and he found your column under an old jar of pickled walnuts that had gone mouldy."

"Is that so?" I said without enthusiasm.

"Yes. And he got tired of cleaning up, so he read your column. He really liked it. So he said to me, 'If you ever see Mortimore, you tell him I really liked that piece he wrote.' So I'm telling you."

"Thanks," I said.

"He told me what it was about, but I'm darned if I can remember now."

"Ah, well, that can't be helped."

"Anyway, he liked it, but mind you, he said, he didn't agree with what Mortimore wrote. It would be a funny thing if we all agreed about everything, wouldn't it?"

"The millenium would be here," I said.

"And then he happened to find another column of yours wrapped around some eggs. He didn't like that quite as much as the first one, but he told me to say hello to you anyway, and keep up the good work."

"Thanks again," I said.

"You're welcome. Why wait until a man's dead to praise him? Tell him some of the nice things while he's still alive, I always say. Well, I thought you'd like to hear about that man. Keep writing, Mortimore."

Proverbs Gone Wrong

Let's examine a few proverbs for leaks . . .

"What goes up must come down." (False. Russian rocket now circling the sun; will never return to earth.)

"You can't change human nature." (False, Communism, collective farms, brainwashing and high-pressure advertising have made a liar out of this old saying.)

"Good fences make good neighbors." (False. The Eastern and Western powers have built a high fence of armaments and propaganda between them. They are worse neighbors than they ever were.)

"Many hands make light work." (False. Somebody has to pay the hands. Figuring out the payroll is hard work. And now we have automation. Whole factories run with no hands.)

"A penny saved is a penny earned." (False. We have inflation. In 10 years, the penny will be worth only half a penny. Meanwhile, the government has billed you for another half-penny in taxes. New proverb: "A penny saved is a penny lost.")

"The bigger they are, the harder they fall." (True.)

Late Mary I. Miller

The death of Miss Mary Isabel Miller, a lady resident well and favorably known, occurred last Friday night in her 62nd year. She suffered a severe stroke while curling at the local club that afternoon, and died at her home a few hours later.

Mary Isabel Miller was the daughter of the late Andrew Miller and Ann Miller of Cote St. Louis, Ste. Scholastique Parish.

She graduated from school in Lachute; during her schooling she resided with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Miller at 719 Main Street. Afterwards she took a business course in Ottawa, and later entered the Women's Hospital on St. Catherine Street West, Montreal, where she trained as a nurse, graduating in 1918. She worked for a short time in the Homeopathic Hospital in Montreal, and later went to New York, where she took up private nursing for several years.

Recalled to Lachute due to the last illness of her uncle, the late Wm. C. Miller, it was not long before she settled down to be companion to Mrs. Wm. Miller and her brother, Thomas Miller, until their deaths, which occurred in 1955.

The late Mary Miller was a loyal worker for the Canadian Cancer Society in Lachute, the Red Cross and C.N.I.B., and was a member of Lachute United Church. Other interests were gardening and curling, and most of all, fishing. These interests she shared with her friend, Miss Lillian Harrison, R.N., who had made her home with Miss Miller since 1955.

The late Miss Miller is survived by one brother, Wallace, of Montreal, two nephews, four nieces, and eight grand-nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from her residence, 719 Main Street, the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating. There were many floral tributes, to evidence the high esteem in which she was held and recognition of her effort and contribution to charitable works.

Fate or destiny of small farmer next Forum topic

The increasing problem of the vanishing small Canadian farmer will be the topic of a special 90-minute radio broadcast, Monday, January 26. National Farm Radio Forum will present the broadcast at 8.30 p.m.

The topic, "Will the Small Farmer Get the Axe This Year?" will be discussed in the first portion of the program by a special panel of experts at the Bessborough Hotel in Saskatoon, where the Canadian Federation of Agriculture is holding its annual meeting.

During the past few years thousands of small Canadian farmers have left their farms to seek employment elsewhere. Many experts believe that this year the exodus will be at a faster rate. . . Demands for greater efficiency, more expensive machinery, contract farming and guaranteed prices for the delivered product have streamlined production to the extent that many small farmers find it impossible to cope.

Opening panel participants include: Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Dr. P. H. Thair, Economics Division, University of Saskatchewan, and Mr. Olie Turnbull, a farmer and vice-president of the Saskatchewan Farmers Union.

Five other special farm groups, located at Winnipeg, Barrie, Ottawa, Moncton, and Lacombe in Alberta, will also participate in the broadcast. During the opening half-hour discussion they will listen to the panel opinions, and then report back their observations in the final half-hour at 9.30 p.m. EST.

Quebec approves new Oka school of Agriculture

Quebec—A government measure authorizing a new agricultural school at Oka, was adopted unanimously last week in the Legislative Assembly.

Sponsored by Agriculture Minister Laurent Barré, the legislation is designed to provide Oka with a new agricultural school by 1960 when the Trappist Fathers will give up their teaching work in the present school.

Premier Duplessis said the government had been advised several months ago that the Trappist Fathers would not renew their contract for the teaching of agriculture.

"This contract expires in December, 1960," Mr. Duplessis said, "aid it is essential that a new school be built without delay if teaching is to continue without interruption."

Opposition Critical

The Liberal opposition criticized the government for insisting that the new school be built at Oka. Alcide Courcy (L—Abitibi East), chief opposition spokesman on farm questions, said agricultural experts favored a re-organization of superior agricultural education in the province. He maintained the government should consult with these experts before proceeding with its plan.

Premier Duplessis said his government would always welcome suggestions for the re-organizaion of agricultural education. But it was nevertheless essential to provide students at Oka with a well-functioning agricultural school by 1960.

Opposition leader Georges Lapalme said the government had failed to prove why the school had to be built at Oka instead of elsewhere. Social Welfare and Youth Minister Paul Sauvé might want to keep the school in his county, but this was no valid reason, he said.

Centralizaton Opposed

Mr. Duplessis said his government is just as oposed to centralization of farm training as it is to centralization in other fields.

"The tendency of wanting to centralize everything is contrary to the interests of agriculture," he told the house.

There were agricultural schools in the various sectors of the province and it would be out of the question to deprive the Oka area of the benefits of a farm training institution, he added.

For all races and all languages

It was Pentecost which first impressed the disciples of Jesus with the truth of his greatest lesson, that their message was for all races of men, and to be translated into all languages. Their own experience now taught them that Christianity can speak in all tongues. For the last 155 years the Bible Society has been attesting that if men have any human language at all, it is possible to tell them about God's love for them in that tongue. Every year the translators break into about 20 new language groups, and another 20 gates are opened to the teaching and leadership of the missionary.

Wherever people live . . .

Jesus said: "This good news of the kingdom will be preached in all the inhabited earth for the purpose of a witness to all the nations, and then the accomplished end will come." Wherever possible the people must be reached, not just once but many times, so that they will have full opportunity to know that God's kingdom is here and that the end of this world's systems is at hand.

All of this means that this preaching activity — its extent, its progress, its effectiveness — is of vital importance to you, because when it is finished this world's end will come. Viewed in this light a report of the work throughout the world takes on new meaning. It is just another reason why you will want the 1959 Yearbook of Jehovah's Witnesses. You will want to acquaint yourself with the response this preaching work is receiving world-wide. The experiences encountered in the remote corners of the earth will inspire hope in you too as the good news reaches out farther and farther toward its final accomplishment. Send 50c today.

Write to 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19, or ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet, anywhere.

Canadian Chosen Royal Photographer

Selected to take the official photographs of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip for the royal tour next year, Donald McKague of Toronto considers the assignment a great challenge. He will have 1½ hours with the royal couple in London to make the portraits. He expects to make 10 or 12 different photographs, from which the Queen and Prince Philip will choose two or three for publication.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

As all who attended will know, the Branch 70 Installation of Officers for 1959 was a very successful function. Before handing over the gavel to his successor, Comrade R. O. MacLean commented briefly on the major accomplishments of the Branch during his term of office. They included — participation in the Lachute Spring Fair, weekly Teen-Age Dances and Free Adult Anti-Polio Clinics. In the limited time at his disposal there were many things he could not mention. Therefore, in our capacity of Public Relations Officer, we take this occasion to enlarge a little on his remarks. . .

This is done with mixed feelings of pride and modesty. However, if the Legion is to become the vigorous, living service organization intended by the Dominion and Provincial Commands — if it is to fill the vital role it can, and is willing, to assume in making Lachute a better community — we must know more and more of the Branch activities. The Canadian Legion is uniquely gratified to undertake community service work, in that its only qualification for membership is Loyalty and Service under arms to our reigning Sovereign and to Canada. It is democratic, non-sectarian, non-political, and embraces members from all stations in life.

Further services Comrade Dick could have mentioned would include — in addition to assistance to local veterans, the innumerable handouts to veterans and their families en route through Lachute; the use of the Memorial Hall by several worthy organizations at a fee below the cost of clean-up afterwards; awards to students in the local schools; assistance to local junior athletes and, only recently, the loan of our loudspeaker system to the Lachute Lions Club for use at the Community Rink during the winter months. . .

The above are secondary to the Branch's most important function of the year — the November 11 Memorial Service. Our Branch is dedicated to perpetuate the memory of those who died in battle for their country, or as a result of service for their country. To this end Branch 70 will insist on and continue to arrange an annual public memorial service so long as it retains a local charter.

Branch 70 has been administered carefully from a small beginning, through post-war expansion years and a building campaign. Today it is debt-free, with a membership in excess of 170, and, as confirmed by Deputy-Commander O'Neill, is looked to for leadership among the Branches in District No. 12. The addition of some 50 new members during 1958, thanks in no small measure to the efforts of Comrade Hildred Simpson, is ample testimony to the fact that the Branch is alive, and that the community is going to feel its influence. This knowledge is particularly satisfying to the handful of veterans who, 24 years ago, applied for and received the Charter for Argenteuil Branch 70.

Yes, we are justly proud of the Legion record in Lachute, and we are sure that under the competent leadership of the new president, Com. Tom Smith, and his executive officers, it will continue to grow in value to the community and to be respected accordingly.

* * *

Plans are progressing for the annual Legion Curling Bonspiel, and it has been tentatively arranged that the finals will take place at Lachute Curling Club during the day and evening of February 7, climaxed by a social evening. Letters will go out to all branches in the District as soon as possible.

* * *

Did you know that more than 20 items of veterans' legislation, requested by the Legion, have been passed by the Federal Government within two years?

Lest We Forget

January 4, 1944. — After continuous and desperate fighting throughout December, the 8th Army drive on Rome ground to a halt because of weather. First Division troops dug in on a long salient from near Ortona westward to beyond Castel di Sangro. There followed three miserable months of fighting, cold, rain, and mud, as well as a strong enemy.

See you next week!

W.A. Meeting

The Women's Association of the Morin Heights United Church held their January meeting in the church hall on Tuesday last. At this meeting the installation of officers for the coming year took place. During the meeting the retiring president, Mrs. C. Moore turned the chair over to the newly elected president, Mrs. Isabel Watchorn. Members of the Association take this opportunity to express their sincere thanks to Mrs. Moore for her never-tiring efforts and hard work during her term of office; and to wish Mrs. Watchorn every success and assure her of their continued support.

Plan Church Hall Opening

The Guild held their January meeting on Tuesday last — high light of the meeting being the plans for the opening of the new Church Hall. Plans were made for the opening to take place on Saturday, January 31, at which time a buffet supper will be served by the ladies of the church, for the nominal fee of $1.00. The money raised will be to defray expenses on the new building. Make your plans to be present and support this worthy cause.

School Hockey

A double-header was played last week between the Morin Heights Intermediate School and the Shawbridge Boys' Farm hockey teams. The first game was played on Tuesday at Morin Heights the score being 8-2 in favor of the home team. The second game was played Friday evening at Shawbridge, the game ending in a two-all tie. Competition was keen and a spirit of good sportsmanship was in evidence.

The Sunday morning service of Morin Heights United Church was conducted by the minister, the Rev. C. G. Westhaver. At this service a beautiful Pulpit Chair was dedicated, the donation of Mr. and Mrs. M. Sims in memory of their parents, Prof. Dr. Bruneau and Mr. and Mrs. W. Sims.

Sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late Mrs. W. W. Kennedy, who passed away last week.

Mrs. Ramsay, of Montreal, has returned home after spending the past two weeks visiting with Mrs. Laura Kinlock and Mrs. R. Goodfellow.

Mrs. Willis Seale and daughter Helen spent Saturday last in Montreal visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Densil Kilpatrick spent last week-end in Montreal as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kilpatrick.

Mrs. McBaine, of Dorion, returned home recently after visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Muncey.

U.N. Charter of Human Rights

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

James Russell Lowell in "The Present Crisis" wrote "They have rights who dare maintain them," and ten years ago the delegates to the United Nations dared to adopt the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, December 10, 1948. This was marked by fitting observances all across Canada.

Discussion of a Bill of Rights for Canadians has focused attention on the Charter of Human Rights approved by the United Nations. This is not a legal document. It expresses the world's collective conscience on the relationships which should exist between individuals and groups. Here is a measuring rod by which actions may be judged.

Discrimination against anyone because of his race, color, sex, language, religion, political opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status, is condemned. So is slavery, torture, arbitrary arrest and exile. Many of the articles deal with the rights of everyone — the right to life, liberty and security of person, the right to recognition everywhere as a person before the law, the right to travel, to marry and found a family, the right to own property, to free choice of work, to education.

Only one article (29) deals not with rights but with duties. It states "Everyone has duties to the community to which alone the free and full development of his personality is possible." The many rights try to define and make clear how a free man or woman should be able to live. The Charter interprets the four great freedoms — freedom from fear, from want, freedom to worship, and freedom of speech and of the press.

When fathers and mothers attended school they learned about the Magna Charta. Today's boys and girls should also be familiar with this most recent of international documents on freedom, The Declaration of Human Rights. In our homes, school children must be encouraged to take an interest in the world in which they live. Every Canadian should know just what this Charter contains. Parents should not leave it to school teachers to comment on the importance of this document adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1948. Copies may be obtained from the United Nations Association in Canada.

During the last decade a number of clubs and groups in youth Model United Nations Gatherings have studied this document. From time to time reference to it is made in the press and on the radio. One women's group assigned the thirty articles of the Charter to different members to read aloud and comment on briefly. The discussion which followed was a lively one. This blue print could be used by any club featuring a Public Affairs night and librarians at our public libraries would be glad to assist in the search for interesting material.

There is value in thinking in terms of all human beings who are — (or should be) — as article one points out, motivated by "reason and conscience to act in a brotherly way." Unfortunately sometimes the zealous promoters of human rights forget the last phrase "in a brotherly way." Confucius said in 500 B.C., "S z hai dj nui qua hson - di, ye" — (Within the four seas all men are brothers.) In Matthew's gospel Jesus gave the fundamental reason for brotherhood: "One is your Father . . . and all ye are brethren."

The ideals behind each article are essentially Christian, although men and women of other faiths contributed to this writing. One commentator has dared to call this Charter the greatest event in human history since the birth of Christ. Another has named it, after the Beatitudes, as the finest statement of "the good life."

High Waist Effect

Cheese Bubble Loaf

Cheese baked right into your bread is definitely a novel and nutritious idea. Sandwiches made with this bread provide plenty of good eating that will help you keep pace with the bracing round of winter activities. This recipe is for a pull-apart loaf that's delicious and different in shape and texture. The addition of a simple ingredient — shredded Canadian Cheddar cheese — helps make the difference. It's a moist bread with a definite cheese flavor. You'll find it an ideal companion to soups and salads, or as base for your favorite strawberry jam.

Cheese Bubble Loaf

(Yield — 2 loaves)

¾ Cup milk, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ cup shortening, ¾ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope active dry yeast, 4½ cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour, 2 cups shredded old Canadian Cheddar cheese, melted butter or margarine.

Scald milk; stir in the ¼ cup sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into large bowl; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in 2½ cups of the flour and beat until smooth and elastic. Smooth in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 2 cups more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour.

Prepare cheese. Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Halve the dough; form each half of dough into a roll 12 inches long and cut into 24, ½-inch lengths. Shape pieces into smooth balls. Cover bottoms of 2 greased loaf pans (8½ x 4½ inches, top inside measure) with balls of dough. Brush lightly with melted butter or margarine and sprinkle with half the shredded cheese. Top with remaining balls of dough, brush again with melted butter or margarine and sprinkle with remaining cheese. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 30 minutes. Bake in a moderately hot oven, (375°F.), about 40 minutes, covering the loaves with a sheet of lightly-greased brown paper for the first 20 minutes of baking.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

With a ilttle bit of know-how and a little bit of practice, parallel parking can be easy. Here's how:

First, learn to judge the length of parking spaces. They should be at least five feet longer than your car.

Then, when you have selected a suitable space, signal for a stop and pull up beside the car in front until your rear bumpers are side by side. Wait until oncoming traffic is clear.

Steering sharply to the right, begin to back slowly. Continue until your front wheels are opposite the back bumper of the car ahead. You should now be at about a 45 degree angle to the curb. Stop; turn your steering wheel to the left, and continue backing slowly until your rear wheels are near, but not touching, the curb. Stop; turn your front wheels to the right and go forward slowly. This should bring your car parallel to the curb. Next, straighten your wheels and back up until your car is midway between the car in front and the car in the rear.

Something for gay blades

SKATE GUARDS which keep blades sharp for fancy spins and jumps are now being made of polythene plastic instead of the traditional wood or rubber. The guards can safely be worn from dressing room to ice without fear of slipping and the light but tough plastic does not tear or rot.

Teatime Topics

By Edna Usher

Canadian Press Staff Writer

There was a day when hens laid eggs, housewives cooked them, the family ate them, and that was that But not any more.

The egg business these days is big business, and according to the Canada department of agriculture cooking eggs is a minor art.

They should be cooked at a low temperature because excessive heat makes them tough and leathery. To poach them drop eggs into boiling salted water, and swirl water around each egg as it is dropped in before cooking below boiling point.

To avoid having shells of eggs crack while soft or hard-cooking them, start the cooking in cold water. After hard-cooking eggs put them immediately into cold water to prevent a dark ring forming around the yolks. This also makes them easier to peel.

Good Thickener

Add eggs to foods for thickening purposes — one egg is considered equal to one and a half teaspoons of cornstarch or one tablespoon of flour in thickening power.

When adding eggs to puddings and sauces, combine the beaten eggs with a little of the hot mixture, then stir into the pudding or sauce.

Use eggs to make light cakes and cookies. Beat whites and yolks separately for best results — whites until stiff and yolks until thick and lemon-colored. One egg is about equal to a half-teaspoon of baking powder.

Before folding egg-whites into cake or puddings, beat into the whites some of the sugar called for in the recipe. One tablespoon of sugar per egg-white is a good proportion.

If you cannot use all the unbroken leftover egg yolks the same day, cover them with cold water and store them in the refrigerator. Use within a few days.

CIVIC PROGRESS

London, Ont. (CP) — "What would I do if I were reeve" was the topic for a Women's Institute meeting. Replies included — interest ratepayers in municipal affairs, and divide work among capable instead of the nominal party members.

Use egg yolks in making custards, salad dressings, sauces, eggnogs, ice creams, pie fillings or to coat croquettes or French toast or to bind meat or vegetable loaves.

Use egg-whites in making frostings, fruit whips, gelatine desserts, meringues, sherbets, pudding sauces, angel cakes or for clearing coffee or soup stock.

Children's Snack

You need an eight-ounce package of cream cheese, two and a half cups of sifted icing sugar, two one-ounce squares of melted unsweetened chocolate, a quarter-teaspoon of vanilla, and a dash of salt.

Cream the cheese until it is soft and smooth, slowly blend in the sugar. Add the melted chocolate and mix well. Add the vanilla and salt and mix until blended. Press into a greased shallow pan to a depth of about half an inch. Place in the refrigerator until firm.

Weak Tea

The Tea Council of Canada suggests many people brew tea too weak for full enjoyment and that they are "departing widely from recommended brewing practices." And most people get three or four cups of tea from a tea bag meant to produce no more than two.

Who Built Underground Log Cabins?

The Salish Indians, living in the mountain-valley region of southern British Columbia, were faced with the problem of building houses able to provide warmth in the intense cold of that region. They solved the problem by building their houses partly underground. Covered with layers of earth and lined with cedar bark, the huts were very warm. Water often seeped in, however, if they had been inadequately waterproofed.

Which Will Be Yours?

You have Grain and Roughage to sell — and much of it is sold as milk. So the cheaper you produce milk, the more profit you make on your grain and roughage, labor investment, etc.

With the poor quality of grain and roughage we have this year, your grain alone will not produce more than 1½ lbs. milk to 1 lb. grain, and your grain mixed with Purina Supplement will produce 2 lbs. milk for each lb. of the mixture. . . Let's see which will give most extra profit.

1ST PLAN		2ND PLAN
2 Tons home grains producing 6,000 lbs. milk @ $4	240.00	2 Tons Purina & your grain will produce 8,000 lbs. milk @ $4	320.00
Less value of grain	100.00	Less value of this mixture	140.00
To pay for your roughage, labor, etc.	140.00	To pay for your roughage, labor, etc.	180.00

Which do you want — $140 for your roughage, labor, etc., or $180? The decision is yours, and whether you decide to change or not, you are still the one who either MAKES the extra or LOSES it.

Change now to the PURINA PLAN, and get started making more money. We deliver.

JAS. W. McGIBBON ACCLAIMED MAYOR

4 Council acclamations; 2 contests, West Ward

James W. McGibbon, long-time lumber merchant in this area, was on Monday elected to the mayoralty by acclamation, replacing Léopold Carrière, who for the past two years has been chief magistrate of Lachute. Mr. McGibbon served a term as mayor in 1951-53, and was Liberal representative for Argenteuil County in the House of Commons from 1940-45.

Jas. W. McGibbon (Mayoral acclamation)

Also elected by acclamation were — Edgar O. Pollock, Seat 3, East Ward; Gerard Lefèbvre, Seat 2, Centre Ward; and Laréat Laurin, Seat 3, Centre Ward.

Next Monday's elections will be held for only two seats, both in the West Ward. West Ward Seat 1 was also left vacant by the recent resignation of Alderman René Belanger, and was to have been contested by Léopold Carrière, retiring mayor, and Ludger Gibeault, former alderman. Mr. Carrière, however, withdrew his papers Tuesday noon, Mr. Gibeault therefore being given an acclamation.

Two candidates are contesting the honors in the two remaining seats, namely:

The elections in all cases will be held Monday next, February 2, the polls being open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

About 30 businessmen, merchants and citizens gathered last week at a general meeting of Lachute Chamber of Commerce, held in the Windsor Hotel.

Other officers elected were — Gaëtan Leclair, 1st vice-pres.; J. A. Lafrance, 2nd vice-pres.; Marcel Grondin, secretary; Rodrigue Quesnel, treasurer; Notary Richard Valois, advisor; Gabriel Valois, publicist.

President Miville Trickey spoke briefly, welcoming the gathering and reviewing the Chamber's activities over the past year. The financial statement, prepared by the secretary, showed a slight deficit.

Mr. Cuerrier thanked the members for their confidence in electing him president. Among projects to be studied, he mentioned an amendment of the charter; the publication of a map of Lachute district; a giant bingo for benefit of the Regional Hospital; a monthly drawing for $250 in bonds; continuance of exterior decorations over the festive holidays, etc.

President Phil Tremblay was in the chair, and Horace Lamarche as Major Projects chairman gave a good accounting on affairs at the new rink — showing how, in 10 days since re-organizing under a separate management, more had been accomplished than in the previous six weeks under general club supervision. Five active committee chairmen gave practical evidence of this — Miville Trickey reporting on Construction; Jos. Dumais on Administration; Gerald Heath on Publicity; Ted Vachon on Activities; and Herb Graves on Finance — the latter calling for more season-memberships to help meet the current expenses.

André Lefebvre, as representative of the club to the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, reported Friday night, June 19, had been allocated to Lachute Lions to provide entertainment attractions at the Spring Fair.

Col. E. Emmett, with Mozart Carrière, is "engineering" the next bingo event, to be held February 13 at the Auditorium. It is hoped the public will attend in large numbers, to assist financially in the skating rink venture.

Roger Gravel had a surprise assignment in introducing the head-table, a duty which he performed with credit. Phil Roy gave a brief informative talk on the broader aspects of Lionism; and the club quartet, bursting into the realm of spiritual renditions, gave a really fine performance.

GOOD BUILDER

Granby, Que. (CP) — I. Marinelli was named winner of a building contest sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce to encourage private construction of dwellings.

Club group visits French-language embryo library

A small delegation from the Lions Club, visiting "Le Carrefour du Livre" — the French-language library now in formation — found a handful of sincere, public-spirited young people engaged in this venture which has turned out to be a mammoth undertaking.

In cramped space somewhat resembling garret quarters over the Giles Publishing plant (kindly loaned to them by the management), these enterprising few have painted and decorated, covered floors and installed desks and cabinets, to provide a bright workroom in which to tackle their job. To the assembling and classifying of over 3,000 volumes, with index references as to subject, author and a host of details, the devotees have given many long hours of their leisure evenings.

It is hoped to open this venture to the public in the form of a subscription library, by next March. Plans and dreams of greater things are always in the vision of these workers — permanent, more spacious quarters; a reading room with comfortable chairs and lighting; other appointments to make the centre attractive to young readers — with a prime objective in view, of contributing something worthwhile to their community and to the building of better citizens.

One or two of the young enthusiasts have devoted five nights a week to the organizing of this library — the careful covering, numbering and cataloguing of volumes, and an immense amount of work undreamed-of by the uninitiated. They will be in readiness to enroll subscribers shortly.

The visiting Lions were impressed by the contribution these workers are making to the town. Those largely responsible are — Jean-Marc Belzile, president; Claude deBellefeuille, secretary; Georges Labonté, propagandist; Miss Gisèle Brunelle, treasurer; Misses Cécile Bélanger and Denise St. Jacques, librarians; Rev. Yvon Mailloux, chaplain.

Education is Forums' topic

These questions are a sample of those raised in the Farm Forum Guide for February 2. On that date, Farm Forums across Canada will try to give their opinion on these subjects and will express their views regarding our national education problem.

They will be tackling a subject which affects every Canadian parent directly, and every other Canadian citizen in a more indirect way. The work of teachers' groups, Parent - Teachers Association, Government organizations and practical educators will be discussed. Also, a revealing study of Russian education are included in the Guide.

Meeting held by Ottawa River developm't group

St. Andrews East — The eight different communities represented in the Ottawa River Development Association sent their members to a monthly gathering of this group, held last week-end at Hull, Que., under chairmanship of Mayor Rosaire Gascon of Hawkesbury. This district was represented at the assembly by Messrs. Paul Labrèche, Antoine Paré and Tupper Porter, Jr., all of St. Andrews East.

It is to be noted that the word "Valley" formerly used in the designation of this body has been changed to "River" — inasmuch as the organization is concerned primarily with the development of the river and its facilities, which are closely related to the progress of the Valley and its communities.

Rotary Club speaker heard on topic of Boys' Clubs

Sid Patterson, president of the Brownsburg - Lachute Rotary Club, read several letters of thanks from recipients of Christmas parcels, reporting that a total of 16 such food baskets had been distributed in the area.

The report, and other general business pertaining to the Club and community, took place at the regular dinner meeting, at which D. Fraser Woodhouse, Eastern Area Regional Director of Boys' Clubs of Canada, was a guest speaker.

Mr. Woodhouse, who was introduced by Rotarian Phil Grant, entitled his address, "Our Town Needs a Boys' Club; Does Yours?". He began by outlining the need for any community to accept the fact that there is a need to do something for youth, as a basis for our whole discussion. He pointed out that in any given community, if even 10% of the total population were willing to give just two hours a week of their time, then there would be really not too much of a problem in being able to provide reasonably adequate service to the young people in the community, and went on to state that most of us can find plenty of time to curl, play bridge or do other things that give us personal pleasure, but we are not too happy at all about giving of our own time for other people.

"We are remiss in our thinking, when we feel that giving service to other people does not have valuable returns. If we do a little planning, thinking and preparation for work of this nature, we would undoubtedly find that the returns in personal satisfaction would be far greater than that of learning to do an in-turn or out-turn on the curling rink." "Although we grumble about having to pay of our own money to various organizations doing this type of work, I am sure we would be more willing to give our money than to give of our time, if this was given as an alternative."

He went on from there to point out the place that the Boys' Clubs of Canada plays in this total development, stating that the Boys' Club movement is above all interested in services to boys between the ages of eight to eighteen years, and that they provide assistance to community groups in organizing at the board level, in setting up methods to raise their finances and in surveying community needs. Once this preliminary work has been done, the local community can expect support through assistance in program materials, training facilities and detailed professional help in plans for the construction of a club or the renovation of facilities that are already in existence. The Boys' Club office also provides a supply service and professional leadership that will work on a close continuing basis with the local operation. He was very careful to point out that the local operation is autonomous and that the organization only asks that the group "abide by our standards in remaining affiliated with us."

The most important points in affiliation with the Boys' Clubs of Canada are that the organization must be non-sectarian, they must have a varied program that will meet the needs and interests of the people that they are serving, they must have an adult committee that is ultimately responsible for the operation and they must have facilities for their program. We are hopeful of course that any operation will develop to the point

Lachute district Polio canvass Feb. 5

Legion Branch 70 will sponsor a house-to-house 'Mothers' March", starting at 6.30 p.m. on Thursday, February 5.

It is expected that Legion members will captain teams of Auxiliary ladies and volunteers for the collection.. All citizens willing to assist with this campaign on behalf of the Quebec Chapter March of Dimes are requested to contact Bernard Jenkins, campaign chairman.

Members of the local Branch hope the public will respond to the call for financial assistance by the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis and Rehabilitation, especially those persons who have benefitted by the free Salk vaccine. All monies collected will be turned over to the Foundation for the continuing fight against Polio, in research, in professional education and in the free Salk vaccination program. In addition, the Foundation has announced an expanded program, going beyond the field of polio care into new areas of rehabilitation (in other diseases which merit public assistance). The March of Dimes campaign committee require $150,000 to carry out this stepped-up program for 1959, and it is felt that the citizens of Lachute will do their fair share to assist.

With some 70,000 adults already vaccinated (1,600 are at present participating in the free immunization program through efforts of the Lachute Legion), this free service will be expanded as the Chapter intensifies its preventive program against polio.

It is hoped that arrangements can be made to accept contributions in St. Andrews East, Cushing and other outlying districts.

Householders are asked to leave porch lights on as a welcome to canvassers. Please have donations ready — donations large or small are welcome.

Any person not canvassed or wanting information is urged to contact the Branch 70 Polio chairman, Bernard Jenkins, or President Tom Smith.

Foundation extends its activities to research, rehabilitation, other diseases

Chapter extends efforts, requires more funds

A result of the success of the Salk vaccine has been a fourfold increase in the case load of the Quebec Chapter — A. C. Solomon, chairman of the Chapter, told a March of Dimes pre-campaign rally.

The increase is due to the fact that success of the vaccine in preventing new cases of polio has permitted the chapter to seek out "old polio cases", who had had the disease and were still in need of rehabilitation.

"Rehabilitation of these people is one of our main objectives," said Mr. Solomon. "Others are to continue and expand the Salk vaccination of adults, provide rehabilitation for victims of hemophilia and other diseases where needs are still unmet, and continue support for research and the training of physiotherapists and occupational therapists."

Mr. Solomon said that providing rehabilitation and medical programs for the Chapter's 2,400 cases, helping with the cost of leg braces and other appliances, and conducting a survey to discover "old polio cases" in the province had cost about 35 percent of the chapter's $146,000 budget during 1958.

Salk vaccination clinics in 150 communities and 211 industries represented 16 percent of the budget.

Mr. Solomon said that the chapter's plan for aiding "unmet health needs" had already started, with assistance given to hemophiliacs, victims of multiple sclerosis, birth deformities and other diseases and disabilities.

Participation in a recreational program for victims of all types of crippled persons is another of the Chapter's objectives, in co-operation with other members of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies.

Brunette Bros. now sole owners of Bolodrome

The Bolodrome, situated above the A & P Supermarket on Main Street, has been purchased this past week by the Brunette brothers (Marcel, Florian, Guy, Denis and Jean-Marie), who are now sole proprietors of the business. The enthusiasm which these boys have put into the sport and its organization in the past few years, is ample promise that the bowling fraternity will meet every satisfaction, and that the sport will continue in popularity hereabouts.

There have been four successive owners of the Bolodrome, on the death of the original proprietor, Marcel Deschamps, the establishment was taken over by a syndicate comprising Messrs. Gaetan Leclair, Paul Desnoyers, Albini Lamarche and Miss Lily Adams. Later the business was purchased by Barclay Yuile, and in 1955 it was rented to the Brunette brothers, who have been the lessees ever since.

Bowling enthusiasts were in suspense for awhile, when it became known that the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, lessees of the building (owned by Mr. Ewen W. Albright), declined to renew the Bolodrome's lease. After considerable effort, the management succeeded in procuring a 12-month extension, and latterly has received assurance from head-office that, recognizing the orderly maintenance of this enterprise, the A & P had approved indefinite renewal of the Bolodrome lease with the owner of the building — thus ensuring the continuance of the bowling alleys for at least 10 years.

Having finally taken over the Bolodrome from the Yuile interests, the Brunette brothers are now studying the possibility of improving the premises. With continued public support, they hope to give still better service and facilities to the sport-loving public.

Dr. Jules Lafleur, district coroner, in his annual report to the provincial Department of Trade and Commerce, gave a count of 41 inquests in 1958 — 35 of which were heard before a jury.

Total — 23 men, 7 women, 4 boys, 7 girls.

A coroner is appointed by the provincial government. The law demands that a coroner be notified immediately in the case of any sudden or violent death, or any death which may appear to be due to unnatural causes.

Annual meeting of St. Andrews East Ch. of Commerce

St. Andrews East — The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held here January 22, with a large number of members present.

Mr. J. E. M. Jutras presented the financial report, which was a credit to the Chamber — a balance remaining in the bank after all obligations had been met.

The following officers were elected for 1959:

President, S. W. Rodger; vice-pres., Henry Labreche; treasurer, J. E. M. Jutras; secretary, F. W. F. Whitehead.

Directors — Paul Labreche, Antoine Paré, F. L. Payne, F. A. Robertson, Dr. Marcel Sylvestre, S. W. Allman, Thos. Fournier, Claude Giroux.

After the business meeting, motion pictures were shown through the courtesy of Long Sault Woodcraft Ltd. and Ayers Limited. Refreshments were then served to the members and guests by Mr. Pilon.

The citizens of St. Andrews should realize that their Chamber is ready at all times to be of service in any way it can, so please call on its members in matters of municipal interest and progress.

— By BOB ATCHISON —

The untimely death of Mary Miller, one of the best sportswomen in this district, will be felt by everyone in the fishing personnel of this district. "Mary", as she was known to all of us, probably was the greatest advocate of the North River as the Best. I know, from personal experience, that more was known about the river by Mary than anyone hereabouts. A fisherwoman par excellence, even to the extent of tying her own flies, and a keen sport. It is with deep regret we lose a true disciple of Isaac Walton; she will be greatly missed.

* * *

Some of you Sportsmen doubtless had the opportunity of reading Isaak Hunter's column in The Gazette recently about the Partridge, or lack of them. One reader from Shawinigan Falls blamed the killing of the birds on the very heavy frosts in June. However, he did not pay much attention to the cycle of birth. We know that weather does have a great deal to do with the growth of all animals, etc.; this could and probably does have much to do with it, but also the biologists have come up with a few very important facts on the cycle theory. Nearly all sportsmen will agree that there are peak and low periods in all animal species. As an example of this, last year at this time there were all kinds of Foxes around, and we also had the Rabies taking care of them. With the result, this year very few Foxes can be seen. Consequently in our district the Partridge are plentiful.

Of course, we also know the feed has a terrific amount to do with these cycles. With the birch disease that has plagued us for awhile, now starting to clear up, more Birch Partridge will be seen around, and for a few years they will be on the upswing.

I know there is really not much known of these periods, but there is a reason for them.

About six years ago I was asked to go out to New Zealand with another gent, for the purpose of killing deer (vermin in N.Z.). At that time the government of New Zealand estimated that there were six million deer on the loose. They were paying a bounty of one shilling per deer. All that was required to collect the bounty was the tail, the rest was just left there. From later accounts they started to drop off just after this period, for unknown reasons. They are reported to be on the increase once again though.

* * *

Now for some news on the Ice Fishing. . . Reports are that the Perch are once again back in force. Some extra-special catches have been taken, the Pike are also showing signs of coming in to feed. There is a lot of fun to be had if you try flies at this time. You use them just the way you do a minnow, with the exception of the sinker. Use a split shot only, as the fish bite so lightly on a fly that, anything bigger and you won't hook him. At the first sign of a ripple on the water, strike and you'll more than likely have a fish. I use a float and have fair results with it. It will take a little time to get used to the very light strike, but once you do, you'll have a lot of fun. . . Also, if you like your cup of tea, get a can, cut the top out of it, punch a few holes in the sides and bottom. Get a couple of logs to put the can on, and you're all set. Even with your Anti-Freeze along with you, it's still nice to have it warmed up a little.

* * *

The Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association is once more showing signs of growing pains. I'm glad some of the members have seen fit to try and get it going once again. There are some people who won't agree with this — but any association needs and expects work from its members, and not talk. Dr. Jules Lafleur, the proposed president, is well known in the sporting field and the proposed directors are all fellows who want a strong association and are not afraid of a little inconvenience.

* * *

Last week I mentioned the sprucing-up of your rods, lures and lines. If you have a cane rod, you will have to scrape it right down to the raw cane. The best way is to use a razor blade or sharp knife. Take care to use it flat on the cane, otherwise you will nick the cane. It will be a little harder to cut the whippings this way, but much safer. Whipping it will be a little harder on you if you haven't tried it before, but it's not difficult. I cannot give you any diagrams, but give me a call and maybe we can get together on it. One thing to remember, use either a pure silk or nylon thread, otherwise you will have to burn the whippings too much. If you do scrape with a blade, be sure you do not scrape the cane; if that is done the action of the rod may be spoiled by softening of the cane. It's a tricky problem, so don't rush it. Do not use a varnish remover unless the label specifies Fishing Rods.

Ice Carnival

Despite the bitterly cold weather, approximately 300 persons attended the Lions' ice carnival, held on Sunday, January 25. The winners of the various events are listed on page 5.

The success of this carnival was largely due to the efficient planning of organizers Jacques Bourgoing and Ted Vachon; Adelard Gagné who assisted as referee and starter; and the Carnival master of ceremonies, Horace Lamarche.

Eleventh win in successive Bomber victories

Brownsburg — Bombers racked up their 11th straight league win on Sunday, with a 5 to 1 victory over the Hawkesbury Richports in a rough, hard-hitting contest. Referees Gagné and Poitras were the two busiest individuals on the ice, as they handed out a total of 17 penalties.

The game was only 1 minute and 57 seconds old when Jacques Racine and "Togo" Larocque were chased for high-sticking, after André Ouellette had opened the scoring at the 28-second mark. Bill Dimock and Racine had combined to set André up for the quick opener. The line repeated the sequence at 6.32, to put the Bombers out in front 2 to 0.

The second period was underway for 2 minutes and 20 seconds when Jacques Racine banged in a relay from Ouellette and Dimock, making the score 3-0.

The rough-housing began at the 10-minute mark, as the boys seemed to forget about the puck for ten minutes and devoted their time to slashing, boarding, charging and tripping. Hawkesbury picked up seven penalties as the players became frustrated by the Bombers' solid defensive work and passing ability. The Bombers were assessed two 2-minute penalties during this period.

The Richports scored their only goal of the game at 12.08 of the third period, when Chamaillard and Marcel Larocque passed to Tom St. James, who managed to get the puck past Buddy Racine. Jacques Racine picked up his second goal of the game four minutes later, with Ouellette and Dimock assisting. André Ouellette completed his "hat trick" one minute later, with Dimock in on the play again; Willis MacAdam was also credited with an assist on this goal.

Side Lines

Togo Larocque came up laughing after he tried to body Jacques Legault but found he wasn't quite big enough.

Spitfires meet Vankleek Hill on Thursday

Spitfires of Lachute figured in only one hockey engagement during the past week, again suffering one of those narrow-margin defeats, 4-3, against the closely-matched Vankleek Hill squad. This was the third time the two teams had been forced into overtime for a decision.

For the coming week there will be only one game for Spitfires, who will again be matched against Vankleek Hill, tomorrow (Thursday) at the Brownsburg Arena.

The Quebec-Ontario League standing to date is as follows:

	P	W	L	D	Pts.
Brownsburg	10	10	0	0	20
Hawkesbury	10	6	4	0	12
Vankleek Hill	10	4	5	1	9
Lachute	11	3	7	1	7

To the West Ward Electors:

I am glad to offer my services as a representative of West Ward in Lachute's civic election, and I make note herewith of my past activities in business and public life . . .

I was educated at the Sacré Coeur College in Sudbury, Ont. In 1928 I qualified for my electrician's papers at the L. L. Cook School in Chicago. From September 1929 until March 1941 I worked for Gatineau Power Company in Lachute, then being employed with C-I-L at Brownsburg for two years. Since 1943 I have been in business for myself, having operated successfully as an electrical contractor, thanks to the support of my many customers. . . In 1950 I was elected treasurer of the Master Electricians (Laurentian Region) for two years. In 1954 I was made a provincial director of this trade organization. In 1955 I was named vice-president of the Laurentian Region, and for the past five years have served on the trade disciplinary committee of this corporation.

I am a member of the Knights of Columbus, and since November 1957 have held office as Grand Knight of the Lachute Council 2752. I have also been an active member of the Lions Club for the past five years. . . In Lachute Town Council I was alderman for a two-year term, and gained valuable experience, which would be to the benefit of the taxpayers in the event of my election for another mandate.

In soliciting your vote, I am aware there is much work to be accomplished and that the public support is essential to its achievement. YOUR SUPPORT TO MY CANDIDATURE NEXT MONDAY will assure you of my utmost effort and concern for the public welfare in Council affairs.

Yours sincerely,

— H. S. Church,

Candidate for West Ward.

The mid-winter thaw

IT HAS ALREADY occurred here, and other places can expect it — the mid-winter thaw. Meteorological studies show that this marked mild spell comes too regularly to be accidental. For the continent as a whole, it generally comes in the third week of January.

The January thaw is mentioned in literature of the New England States as early as 1798. In Boston, a U.S. Air Force meteorologist charted the month's weather records for 80 years up to 1952. He determined the daily "normal" temperatures, and found a pronounced increase around the three-day period of January 21-23 — which coincided exactly with our experience in these parts last week.

Many old proverbs warn of thaws in January, such as the folklore saying: "If January calends be summerly gay, 'twill be winterly weather till the calends of May."

And if the January thaw turns some to thoughts of spring, that's still a long way off — officially arriving March 21.

Winter weather will continue here for several weeks. And the average date of the last killing frost of winter is as late as June 28 around Churchill, Man., and June 14 at Kapuskasing in Northwestern Ontario. (The average table shows May 11 as the latest for Quebec City; March 18 in Victoria, B.C.)

The January thaw is just one of those things; scientists have no technical explanation for it. Canadian scientists not long ago made the interesting discovery that there seems to be a warming in the stratosphere over the Arctic in late January, which may have something to do with it.

I have been asked to give the regulations concerning mail delivery. I have pleasure in complying with this request. . .

"Business firms may choose delivery either by Letter Carrier or through Post Office lock-boxes. However, insofar as facilities permit, consideration will be given to boxholders who, owing to special circumstances, wish to retain their box."

It is important that you should advise all correspondents of your full address, giving lock box number — since, if an article is addressed to the street number, it will be sorted in the Letter Carrier section and delivered at your home. One is apt to blame the Letter Carrier or the Postal Clerk, but the regulation states that "all mail matter will be delivered in accordance with the address appearing on it."

There is also a big snow problem at this time. The regulations state: "Pathways leading from the roadway or streetline must be provided, kept in good condition and properly maintained during all seasons of the year." May I add that residents living on a second storey should maintain the stairway in such manner as to avoid accidents.

It is well understood that it is impossible to keep a pathway clear actually during a snow storm, but it is inconceivable that the same pathway be packed with snow two or three days after.

If you wish to have efficient daily mail delivery, you must help however, and allow the Carrier to reach your home.

In the rural parts, the problem is not quite the same. It is actually a little worse. Some people think that the Rural Carrier is a man of great endurance; he should go over or through snow banks. In some cases he cannot find the mail box because it is buried in snow, and we have even had a telephone call from a party complaining because the Rural Carrier did not shovel the snow around their box!

"All approaches to mail boxes must be clear of snow, parked cars, etc., to enable your Carrier to place mail in the box."

It is your responsibility to ensure a daily mail service by allowing your Letter Carriers and your Rural Carriers to reach your homes.

MYSTERIES OF MATERNITY

Perhaps the following story is not new to you, but it was told to me only a few days ago and is one of the few that I have not heard before.

It concerns a small boy who came home from the movies after seeing one of Walt Disney's True Life pictures entitled "The Vanishing Prairie." One of the scenes shown was the actual birth of a buffalo calf, taken from nature right out on the prairie. After he had excitedly told his mother all about the entire picture, she thought to herself that now would be as good a time as any to tell little Tommy about the facts of life.

"I'm glad you saw the picture, Tommy," she said. "Especially the part about the little buffalo calf being born. That's the way that all little babies are born, Tommy. The little lambs in the springtime, the little calves, the young colts, the puppies and kittens, the dear little Easter bunnies, and even your little sister Susie." . . . "What about me?" asked Tommy. "Was I born the same way?"

"Yes, my boy. You were born the very same way."

Tommy was silent for the next few minutes and seemed to be thinking hard. At last he said: "Say, Mommy, how did I ever get inside the buffalo in the first place?"

— Be seein' ya!

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Suddenly I feel older. I heard a girl tell a co-worker that he was "a middle-aged man." . . . He is the same age I am, a man in his 30s!

I fancied I saw him droop visibly, like a tired geranium in one of those elapsed-time movies.

This was a girl of 20. Later I heard her tell another thirty-ish colleague that he was middle-aged.

He did not immediately scrunch himself up into a little crooked gaffer, but by the look of dismay that passed over his face I knew that he was wilting inwardly, like a denizen of Shangri-la taking his first step into the outside world.

All of us knew how old we were. But we only knew it in our heads. The girl made us feel it.

The meaning of words does change. In a newspaper file dated less than 100 years ago, I saw a man of 50 described as "elderly".

Now that the lifespan has extended, we hesitate to use that word for anyone short of 75.

Nevertheless, a man of 38 is fully half-way along the human journey. Those years between 30 and 40 should be among the most lively and colorful of the whole route, but they have a trick of sliding past with deceptive smoothness, like snowbanks past a train window.

Then you feel a hand on your shoulder. You have slept all the way through the Rocky Mountains; you are now looking at the back of a warehouse, and a brash young conductor is demanding to see your ticket.

That was how it was, I think, when the girl shook us awake with those words: "middle-aged."

Now we are making a joke of it. We pretend to hobble around. We call each other "triogenarians" and "quadragenarians," and ask after one another's health in quavering voices.

Privately, though, we don't think it's funny at all.

Argent'l weather inspires eulogy on B.C. climate

Written by B. A. Howell, of Victoria, B.C., on learning of the recent mild spell in Argenteuil County! (Mr. Howell, 81 years past, is the uncle of Mr. Benj. A. Howell, St. Andrews East.)

GOOD OLD B.C.

How thankful I am that I live in a land
Where the climate is normal and sunny and bland,
Where no thunder-storms come and a blizzard's unknown
And you don't need hot bricks when you're sleeping alone;
Where the grass is not hidden by six feet of snow
Where we pick Christmas roses our tables to grace,
And can travel at will, any time, any place;
With no need of a snowplow to pull us along —
Oh it's not to be wondered if I break into song.
Yes, the East has its points, but it's westward for mine,
And the farthest Out West — till you stop at the brink
Of Pacific's old Ocean, the limit I think —
For it's there you will find nearest Heaven to be;
On our Vancouver Island — Victoria, B.C.

NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK, FEB. 1 - 7 —

THE FIFTEENTH annual National Health Week is being observed in Canada from February 1 to February 7, inclusive.

National Health Week is one of Canada's most notable publicity ventures. It has been made so by the support of thousands of people all over the country. The object is to permeate the entire country with educational material in order that, during one week at least in the year, all may have the opportunity of getting the facts, not only as to the seriousness of disease but as to the means which should be taken to combat disease.

The public have been so occupied with the importance of looking after people when they are sick they have forgotten that it would be much better to keep people well and vigorous. People even speak of "health insurance" when they mean "sickness insurance". So called "health insurance" as it is generally understood does nothing but provide for the care of people who are sick.

During National Health Week, Departments of Health, doctors, dentists, nurses and nutritionists will combine with national societies in the field of health to utilize all of the media of publicity and co-operate to carry the message of health to all parts of the country.

For those who decry the importance of weeks of any kind, it is pointed out that by the device of National Health Week the co-operation of all national publicity media is ensured to the end that by radio, by television, by pamphlet or press, in the church or in the school, every single citizen in Canada will have the opportunity of learning something of every phase of health.

It is recognized that every week should be a health week, but it is only during Canada's National Health Week that it becomes possible to use all national publicity media to the end that everyone be informed.

It is hoped that our readers will do their best to help spread information about health in their various communities.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Jan. 11, 1934 —

For the first time in many years, Hawkesbury has elected an English-speaking mayor, in the person of James Holland.

This issue records the deaths of — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goodfellow, of Hill Foot; and Mrs. William Kidd, formerly of Morin Heights and Lakefield.

Brownsburg — The Choir and a few friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Reid as a surprise in honor of Mrs. Reid's birthday.

Cambria — Mr. Jas. Dawson's big residence, the White House, was destroyed by fire. It is little over a year ago that Mr. Gilbert Ryan's house was similarly destroyed.

The remains of Mrs. Thos. White were taken from Ottawa to Montreal by special CNR coach for interment in Mount Royal Cemetery. The late Mrs. White, mother of Lady Perley, had a long association with the political life of this country and with affairs in the Capital.

Dr. L. P. Sauvé has been appointed District Coroner, succeeding Dr. B. N. Wales of St. Andrews after 25 years in this office.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

What is inflation?

A fellow I've always thought bright asked me a surprising question the other day.

"Say," he said, "I see everybody's talking about inflation. Just what the heck is it? And what can I do about it?"

Maybe you, too, haven't bothered to find out what inflation is, what causes it, and what you can do about it? Some people are so busy at their own affairs they can't take time to study such things. So here's what I told my friend.

"If your wife makes soup," I said, "and it tastes good, would you ask her to put another gallon of water in the pot so there'd be more of it?"

"Heck, no," he said. "That'd spoil it."

"Well, then, you understand inflation. If she puts in more water without adding more meat and vegetables, she's inflated your soup. She made more soup, but she deflated every bowl of it. Put money in the place of water, and goods and services in place of the meat and vegetables, and you've got a fairly good analogy."

He grinned. "As an old soup-eater, I've gotcha! But nobody around our place would try to get away with watering the soup — or the whiskey, either. Who's guilty?"

"You mentioned whiskey," I said. "Who waters it?"

"Gotcha again," he said, "the government, of course. Might have known you'd blame it on the government. You blame everything on the government."

"Not entirely," I said. "I blame the people who vote for political candidates because they promise to spend money all over the place, money that doesn't produce anything or help get anything produced. That kind of money is like more water on the same meat and vegetables. Governments are to blame to a great extent for not having the courage to hold the line, while they ask others to hold it."

He grinned. "What about me? How can I fight this thief that's eating into the value of my bankroll?"

"You," I said, "can quit loafing. Do a full day's work for a day's pay. Make sure any product that comes from your hand is made as well and as quickly as you can make it. Produce more per hour before you ask for higher hourly pay."

"Ummmmm," he said. "Does that go for you, too?"

"It goes for me, too. For everybody in Canada. It's the unit cost of things that kills us. What's the use of producing plenty if it costs so much per piece that we can't sell it? Let's get costs down and productivity up — then see how much you can buy with your pay check!"

"I go along with you, pal," he said.

What is the Oldest Living Thing in Canada?

Trees live longer than any other living thing. In Canada, the trees that outlive all others are Douglas firs and the western red and yellow-cedars of British Columbia. They may live for over 1,000 years. The oldest tree found in Canada was felled at the age of 1092 years; this Douglas fir had lived from before the days of the earliest European exploration of the continent through all the centuries of building this new country. Douglas firs are also the largest Canadian trees. One was found that towered 417 feet into the air; it was straight and smooth for 200 feet, where the first branch grew.

Hazard on the home front

SOCIAL SERVICE workers of both Protestant and Roman Catholic churches have blamed the practice of married women working outside the home, for the disruption of good family life. Also criticized is the practice of "moonlighting" — which may be described as holding two jobs or working two shifts in the 24 hours.

The new Anglican diocesan journal, The Montreal Churchman, points to another common practice which endangers family, community and church life. This is the growing custom of companies with branches in many parts of the country transferring their employees at very short notice. We know of one case where a father of two received instructions on Friday afternoon to report for work on Monday morning at a city over two hundred miles away.

Not all moves are, of course, so sudden. But in these days when parenthood very often involves purchase of a house, a considerable time is often needed to arrange the sale of a house in one community on terms which will provide the down payment for another somewhere else. In the meantime the mother is left alone to care for the children and handle the family business.

In some cases — at the cost of spending much of the week-end on the road — the father is able to see his family every week. In others not even this is possible.

WEEKLY ADVERTISING PAYS. — Says A. R. McGinnis, Chairman, Milwaukee Advertising Agency:

"It is my opinion, although not officially documented, that subscribers of weekly newspapers will come closer to being cover-to-cover readers than any other print medium available.

"I don't subscribe to the thought that the way to get maximum return on the client dollar is necessarily that of buying as much circulation as possible.

"Along with the obvious advantage of reasonable column rates, is the fact that a full-page ad in a weekly will hit the reader's eye like a rocket burst and he will remember that advertiser's name and product because it is not buried in 40 or 50 pages of newspaper."

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE. — This is just the month for a penetrating look around the home. The outer atmosphere is a bit uncooperative for examining the grounds outside, but before spring cleaning starts, make a tour with a pad and pencil. Just sit down in each room of your house and look around with a critical and constructive eye.

A little paint or paper here and there, or a new picture, or a dyeing job. It doesn't always mean money — sometimes just removing too many things, or rearranging. In fact, you get a big lift to the ego if you do it mostly with brains. Try it.

MORE ROOM FOR TOURISTS. — There has been considerable expansion in Canada's tourist accommodation, reports The Financial Post.

According to a recent survey by the Canadian Tourist Association, $22 million was invested in new motels, cabins, resorts and additions in 1958. This does not include the multi-million investment in major, big-city hotels.

Reflecting the growth of motor travel in Canada was the increase in motel accommodation. With 250 new motels and additions to existing ones, 4,000 new units went into service across the country in 1958.

Greatest expansion was in Ontario, where a record-making $6.5 million was invested in motels — an increase of $1 million over 1957.

Value of new tourist accommodation facilities reached nearly $3.5 million in Quebec, in Manitoba and in British Columbia.

EACH HOUR history is made in village, town and city. To the faithful chronicler of those events, the writer on the weekly newspapers, it is indeed proof of the importance of the local newspaper in keeping the threads of events and personalities flowing into the loom of history.

Governor-General at skiers' service, St. Francis church

Governor-General Vincent Massey spent the week-end in St. Sauveur, a guest at the home of Duc Dimitri de Leuchtenberg de Beauharnois.

On Sunday morning His Excellency attended the skiers' service at the Church of Saint Francis, and read the Lesson. The rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, and his two wardens, Messrs. Ronald Booth and Leonard Fisher, welcomed His Excellency and his party, who occupied the first two pews. Brigadier J. Aird Nesbitt was honorary A.D.C.

The Lesson was from John 1 (v. 1-18). The rector preached from the text, "Now we see through a glass darkly." Two members of the St. John Ambulance Society were honorary ushers.

Rotary speaker heard on topic of Boys' Clubs

where they can hire at least one full-time staff person, but we are fully appreciative that in the initial stages this is not possible and we do have operations where it has not been possible to get to this point for several years, but they have continued affiliation with us.

From this point he went on to a discussion of what a Boys' Club is and what it offers in a community and pointed out that when he referred to a variety of programs, that it should include such things as athletics, arts and crafts, dramatics, cultural programs, friendship groups and any other type of program that is valuable in the total development of an individual. He pointed out that the difference between a Boys' Club and most recreational organizations is that we attempt to provide guidance to each individual in the Club and feel that the important thing is the relationship that is developed between the adult leadership and the boy membership. We are not primarily interested in developing experts and championship teams, but rather we are interested in providing ample opportunity for all those who hold membership to take an active part in the program. If this is handled properly, then the development of skill in any given area and championships is usually an ultimate out-growth of this type of program. It should not however be a major goal.

In closing, the speaker outlined the function of a service club in assisting in the development of a Boys' Club, and stated emphatically, he did not think any service club should take on any project that they could not see the end of. . . This does not mean, however, that any service-club should not get into something that might take three, four or five years to complete. I do emphasize, however, that there should be a conscious effort on the part of the club to be able to establish just who is going to ultimately operate the operation and how the finances would be raised. It is our experience that if a service club gets into something where there was no end to it, and it just kept going on and on and on and used up all or the bulk of the money that they raised, that eventually this could have a detrimental effect on the club and very definitely would affect the operation of a Boys' Club. In many cases, service clubs had been the organization responsible for promotion of a Boys' Club and have set about to raise the money that was necessary to get the whole operation started and then turned the operation over to the community. This I feel is sound and necessary and has to be clearly understood in the initial stages or eventually problems arise that are of a serious nature.

The speaker was thanked by Rotarian Wes Freeland, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Reddy Kilowatt Says:

Enjoy all the pleasures, advantages and conveniences of having Reddy on the job everywhere in your home. He'll make your work easier, the jobs faster!

Greater electric usage means better living!

In this winter season lighting is necessary earlier in the evening and later in the morning; more use is made of radio and TV, there is extra cooking and washing, and more use of hot water brought from a lower temperature!

Chances are your electric bill will be higher during the winter season — doing all these jobs for more hours!

Here are a few ways in which you can control the amount of electricity you use — and keep your "light bill" from going much beyond other periods of the year:

Turn off lights, radio, TV and appliances when they are not required; when cooking utensils come to a boil, turn the elements to "Low" or "Medium"; turn the water heater off when you do not require a large amount of hot water immediately; avoid the use of several heavy current consuming appliances at the same time!

Remember, an insulated tank will keep water warm overnight!

By exercising such control you will get better service from your electrical system within your home, — and avoid the risk of fire from overloaded wiring!

Is Your Will the Will of the Creator?
For centuries men have prayed to God, "Thy will be done." Yet the world's problems continue unsolved. Is God responsible, or have men prayed and then ignored their own request? The Bible's answer leaves no doubt.
The history of this world's wrongful course was written centuries in advance — as prophecy. The record of these events as they have actually occurred, provides a priceless revelation of God's will for us today. Yet the nations continue to ignore it — while continuing to claim to know and to do the divine will.
Are you sure where you stand on this important issue? It is your life that is at stake. To learn what God's will is for you and for all who will survive the crisis ahead, obtain and read the new book "Your Will Be Done on Earth." Based on the prophecy of Daniel, it is a startling and revealing account of the nations' futile — and fatal — struggle against God's righteous kingdom now at hand. Make your will God's will. . . Message on Withdrawal of Candidature

A few weeks ago, a group of prominent citizens of the West Ward requested me to represent them, to complete the term of Alderman René Belanger. Since then, Mr. Ludger Gibeault has become a candidate for this same seat.

I think that Mr. Gibeault is fully qualified to represent us, and seeing that the reasons that motivated my candidature as alderman no longer exist, I therefore withdraw from the contest. Having served as Mayor for the last two years, it is time to concentrate on my personal business and on my family.

I take this opportunity to thank the population of Lachute, and specially my good friends of the West Ward, for the confidence they have always placed in me.

I wish to assure you that I shall hold a pleasant memory of my civic service, for which I am very grateful.

I congratulate Mr. Gibeault and wish him a successful term of office.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

The first general meeting under the chairmanship of the new president, Comrade Tom Smith — although not too well attended due to the extremely bad weather — turned out to be a lively business affair.

Comrade Bob Haydon was duly initiated into the membership of Branch 70 and welcomed by the meeting.

Sports activities were reported by the respective chairmen to be hitting a peak for the winter months. Comrade Stewart Jones, chairman in charge of arrangements for the Legion Curling Bonspiel, reported that certain teams in the district would have difficulty attending an all-day bonspiel, therefore he had suggested that these teams arrange play-offs on their own ice, the finalists only to play off in Lachute. Comrade Jones warned members that the names of players on each team must be in his hands not later than January 30. Only paid-up members in good standing may participate. The district finals have been arranged to take place on February 7, through the courtesy of Lachute Curling Club. Their hospitality has been experienced in the past and we feel sure that any Legion member and, wife or friend who does not accept the invitation from the Curling Club executive to attend the mixed social evening on the 7th, will regret it. The winners of this event will participate in the Provincial finals in Montreal, where representatives will be determined for the Dominion playdowns.

Comrade Howard Ward reported the formation of a service club Broomball League and requested all interested members to leave their names with him. Incidentally, age must be taking its toll, as Howard reported that already five Legionnaires had volunteered to be goal-tenders!

The meeting was livened up when Comrade "Publisher" Giles and Comrade "Undertaker" MacKimmie engaged in some good-natured banter resulting from Comrade Giles' motion of thanks to Comrade D. Ogilvie for the splendid orchestra he provided for the social evening following the recent installation of officers.

A special request went out to members asking that all records belonging to Branch 70, Canadian Legion, be handed in immediately to the secretary, Mrs. Cecil Graham, or be left in the new office.

President Tom Smith asked that a March-of-Dimes campaign be conducted in Lachute, and Comrade B. Jenkins was appointed chairman. (See elsewhere in this issue for details).

Did you know that, effective September 6, 1958, the Children of War Dead (Education Assistance) Act was amended to extend eligibility to certain children previously excluded, and to increase from $25 to $60 the monthly allowance paid to such students who have reached the age of 21? The purpose of this Act is to assist those children whose fathers' deaths have been ruled by the Canadian Pension Commission to be attributable to military service, to obtain university or equivalent advanced education. It provides for the payment of tuition fees up to $500 per year, and for a monthly allowance of $25 up to age 21, and $60 after that age is reached. The assistance, available in Canada only, is limited to four academic years or 36 months, whichever is the lesser, and may not be continued beyond the student's 25th birthday.

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

How are the roofs? Several here in suburbia have been damaged. The commonplace sight is that of figures resembling Martians, or other interplanetary beings plodding around the tops of houses, laboriously shovelling snow. Last Sunday, just before the sun set like a blood-orange, two figures passed down the street, carrying a long extension ladder. They were etched in black against a cold, rosy sky, and were worthy of a place on the cover of a national magazine. They symbolized a Canadian winter. We can afford to philosophize for our slates are still securely on, the head of the house having had the foresight to have the roof attended to last fall, but bits of a neighbor's roof are strewn even now about our back yard.

Now that we are in the midst of winter, the days are crowded with house work, church work, curling work, dance work, and just plain work. But if the evenings are not likewise taken up, now is the time to catch up on the reading. We are currently intrigued by a Medicology, published in 1905, by the University Medical Society. It is seven inches thick, and is supposed to be ten volumes in one. That, I have no reason to doubt. Always having been interested in the study of medicine (we wanted to be a doctor, but Father thought it too degrading a profession for a lady) I am having a lovely time reading the medical viewpoint of fifty years ago. Chart 2 in the book shows in color the whole thorax and abdomen, with movable parts. Thus, I lift back the abdominal wall, and there are the intestines snugly coiled like sausages, I lift another flap and there is the bladder, like a stratospheric balloon; two layers down, I come upon my beleaguered kidneys, much farther back and higher up than I had realized. The heart, so generally conceived as being far left of centre, is almost in the middle, and high up near the neck. . .

Fascinating. . . Fascinating, also, is the word for some of the reading material. People with kidney disease are urged to eat little proteid, and not drink very much. This is the exact reverse of the present-day treatment. The book says firmly, deep-seated cancers are nearly always fatal, but offers a cure for skin cancers. It also professes to read character from the shape of the head and the face. A student of words is enthralled. Have a sample: "Philoprogenitiveness". This, boiled down, means "regard for offspring, pets, etc."

Farther on, there are recipes for "Hygienic Cooking". There are thirty-nine pages of this. But I think I like best of all the colored plates of common herbs and flowers. Listen to this on Lily of the Valley: "In small doses this drug strengthens the heart, in large quantities it quietens it. (Hint for would-be murderers.) It increases the flow of urine and reduces dropsy. An infusion is made by taking one part of the underground stem and rootlets to three parts of water."

This book is borrowed, but, come summer, I intend to have it again for some time, and work up some of the herbal recipes from common plants at Sunnyacres. . . Enemies, beware of drinks at our house.

• • •

So, you see, life goes on much as usual in this house, but I often think of the life around the country home. Particularly we speak of the so-called "wild cats" that are supposed to inhabit the ravine behind Amos' esablishment. Do they in fact survive these winters, and if so, how? Do they burrow in the snow and thus have a snug retreat from these icy blasts? How do they feed? On mice only? Very slim fare, I should think, but the cat folk are very canny and resourceful. We find them an unending source of amusement. We met one of the man-about-town type in Montreal the other day. He was dirty, scratched, disreputable, undoubtedly cold and hungry, but still unbeaten. He was also repulsive, but interesting. Our own pampered pet, who looks as if he spent his whole life on a silken cushion, is not above a good, old-fashioned wrestling match. Occasionally, when we relax our vigilance, he evidently meets one of his low-brow cousins, and then comes in with a scratched eye, a smug look and a large appetite.

We think too, of the deer bogged down in all this snow, and an easy prey to animals of less weight. We hope there are no wolves in the Lakefield district. The raccoons are probably sleeping soundly. As for the mice, they have undoubtedly taken up residence in the house, where we shall find little mounds of cherry stones in appropriate places, such as under pillows. Well, there are worse tenants.

• • •

Thus, the quiet thoughts of middle-age. Now let us have a peep into the lives of the young. There is a legend about, that school and college days are the "happiest ones of your life." Never was an untruer word said. Cynical, too. Anyway, the daughter of the house reports that she is the only one of a group of fifteen that has not had a crying fit since their arrival in the halls of learning. All the embryo teachers have just come off their first tour of actual-teaching, a two-week stint in various schools in the city. One night this week, seven damsels wept on the shoulder of our daughter. Dampish. As she is one of the youngest ones, we do not quite comprehend why she is chosen as house-mother. But so it is. At midnight, the room-mate and one other gal were "having words" and sobbing, so were firmly separated by our hearts' delight. Subsequently (for which read 2 a.m.) the contestants sobbed themselves to sleep. The walls are evidently thin, for sobbing is clearly audible between rooms. As the teachers in the city must rise at 6.30 in order to take the bus at 7.45, one can easily figure out the arrears of sleep being piled up. These are the carefree college days.

The nights, too, are not conspicuous for their brilliance. There is always the hovering doubt, "Shall I be invited to thus and thus by this and that?" . . .

Looking back, I am convinced that I must have been retarded. I cannot even remember caring if I were invited any places. I cannot even remember facing my first class. Yes, definitely retarded, but happier! But even so, I never did believe those were the happiest days. Happier days should lie ahead, and so they did. Those whose loveliest times were in their youth, must have had a notably drab existence since.

• • •

Eggs have just arrived from our good neighbor near Sunnyacres. Peter, the cat, loves the smell of the crate. He generally lies on it. I suppose it must remind him of outdoors, and feathered things. It reminds the writer that she must spread the glad tiding that the eggs are here, before our customers buy extra for the week-end. So Mary becomes Martha, until next time.

"Yes, Doctor...Wednesday will be fine!"

When it's time to have the dentist check daughter's teeth, Mrs. Smith naturally reaches for the telephone, that helpful "member-of-the-family" with the habit of getting things done.

When you look back over your day, it's sometimes surprising to realize in just how many little ways the telephone has helped you . . . how it adds so much convenience and comfort to everyday living.

Keeping baby safe and well

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Keeping a baby safe and well is a 24-hour-a-day job! The mother's greatest enemy in following a safety program is often her own fatigue. In many homes she must get some sleep in the daytime when the baby sleeps. Extra housekeeping jobs which are not absolutely essential must be cut during this exacting time.

It is in the ordinary events in a child's daily routine that many mishaps occur. The following definite precautions when dressing baby, at meal time, during play period and at bath and bed time have been endorsed by a woman doctor who has brought up her own four children, as well as helped countless parents with special child problems.

Baby wakes up, and must be attended to, and in carrying a small baby to a dressing table, Mother should be careful to give the baby plenty of support for his back and head. Hurry causes many people to trip or stumble and mother must not have a fall with her baby — or let her baby fall!

The table where baby is changed should be of a convenient height, and a mother cannot leave an active baby alone for a second for fear he might roll off the table on the floor. Baby powder with stearate of zinc should be avoided because a fatal form of pneumonia develops in an infant who swallows this powder. Safety pins must be kept closed and out of reach, and baby should never see mother putting pins in her mouth. Be sure that there are no buttons which baby can remove from his clothes and swallow.

The temperature of baby's bath water must always be tested. Many mothers use their elbow to see if it is luke warm. Too hot water will frighten and burn baby's tender skin and too cold water will not be to his liking, either. A mother must have all the bath things she needs assembled before she starts to bathe baby. When he is wet and active, he is exceedingly slippery. Make sure of a firm hold before lifting baby out. A towel placed in the water on the bottom of the tub helps to prevent baby having a fright by slipping under the water from a sudden movement.

Baby's meal time should be a happy occasion and a child should not be forced to eat if he is not hungry. A mother needs to choose a high chair which will not tip and is easy to keep clean. Before many months baby may graduate to a little chair and table, and he should be encouraged to be independent and feed himself. Food should be strained for your infants and chopped or minced for the older baby and should neither be too hot nor too cold. Small, hard pieces of food, such as peanuts should never be given to baby or he might choke.

Baby's play time is safe from accidents if he has a sturdy, roomy, play pen, which is a splendid investment — almost a necessity. Toys should never be painted with paint containing lead, as it will produce lead poisoning if eaten. Playthings should be large enough so that they cannot be swallowed and they should have no removable parts for the same reason. Many a baby has choked on a wheel off a tiny cart or a glass eye which he has pulled from a Teddy bear.

A firm mattress is essential and no pillow is needed for baby to sleep on. Many a tiny infant has smothered by burying his head in a feather pillow or soft mattress. Beware of drawstrings at the neck of sleeping bags or outdoor garments. Care must be taken that the covers are kept in place so they cannot smother baby. Baby should never sleep with mother or any one else. Many infants have been injured by being rolled on or smothered by heavy covers being pulled over the child's face by an adult while asleep.

When baby sleeps outside in a carriage be sure the brake is on and that it is a strong one. Never place the carriage where it might start to move into danger. One mother left her baby in a carriage outside a grocery store on a steep street which led down to a wharf. The baby or a passer-by jiggled the carriage and it went downhill and right into deep water. An expert diver immediately extracted the baby from his harness and applied artificial respiration. The baby's life was saved — and mothers stopped parking their carriages on that front for a time.

A new lift for leftovers

The Sunday ham was a great success, but how can you transform the remnants into a delectable dinner feature! This recipe for Glazed Ham Patties has been designed to solve just such a problem in a simple, yet imaginative way. Minced cooked ham is blended with appropriate seasonings and shaped into patties. As the patties bake, their sweet, spicy coating further contributes to their piquant flavor, and they emerge from the oven with a rich, shiny brown surface. This highly satisfying dish is equally successful when cooked cottage roll or canned luncheon meat is substituted for the ham.

Glazed Ham Patties

(Yield — 8 ham patties, 4 servings)

2 Cups minced cold cooked ham, 1 small onion, 2 cups coarse soft bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, 1 slightly-beaten egg, 1 teaspoon thick brown condiment sauce, ¼ cup milk, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon thick brown condiment sauce.

Put through food chopper, using a medium blade, sufficient cold cooked ham to yield the required 2 cups. Peel and quarter onion; put through food chopper. Add to meat along with bread crumbs. Sprinkle with dry mustard and cloves; toss lightly with 2 forks until well mixed.

Combine egg, the 1 teaspoon condiment sauce and milk. Drizzle the liquids over meat mixture and again toss lightly. Shape into patties about 2-inches in diameter and arrange in prepared pan. Combine brown sugar and the 1 tablespoon condiment sauce; drizzle over meat patties. Bake in preheated oven until richly browned — 25 to 30 minutes. Serve hot.

WRONG FUR

North Bay, Ont. (CP) — A farmer who took the black fur of an animal caught in his trap to the Ontario Lands and Forests Department station for sealing, learned it was a cat's fur. He thought it might have been a fisher.

Tb control long way off

No country in the world has brought tuberculosis under control. Even those with the best public health programs have only reached a point where control is in sight — at some unspecified date.

This is the opinion of Dr. Johannes Holm, Director of Tuberculosis Services for the World Health Organization. Dr. G. J. Wherrett, Executive Secretary of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, agrees. Canada is among the countries where control is within reach — but he cannot forecast when it will be achieved, he said in an interview for National Health Week.

"There is no doubt we are making headway against tuberculosis," Dr. Wherrett states, "but we might get along faster if we faced TB as it is in the 20th century instead of flaunting our triumph over it as it was 300 years ago, when John Bunvan sat in Bedford jail and wrote his famous description of it as 'the captain of these men of death'."

"Naturally we are complacent about dislodging tuberculosis from its grisly eminence in other centuries," Dr. Wherrett stated recently, "but we pay quite a price for not facing the 20th century situation squarely. More than 1,000 Canadians die yearly, and last year there were approximately 7,000 new cases and this was a new low. TB costs Canadian taxpayers 40 million dollars annually and it costs patients and their families an even larger sum in lost wages. What it costs in anxiety and fear cannot be calculated. And all this is the price of a preventable disease. King Edward VII, a pioneer in the crusade against TB, once asked 'If preventable, why not prevented?' It is time we put the question to ourselves again."

At what point might public health officials consider that tuberculosis is under control?

Dr. Holm at the Commonwealth Conference on Tuberculosis last June suggested a gauge which workers on this continent seem ready to endorse. It is that authorities may consider tuberculosis is under control when only one percent or less of boys and girls of school leaving age react to the tuberculin test.

Women of the Christian World

You are invited to take part in the World Day of Prayer on Friday, February 13. This year the service was prepared by women of the Near East who found their inspiration in the writings of the Early Church in Egypt. They have known persecution; may we, through our prayers and offerings, add to their our witness and our service. He said, "Lord, I believe," and he worshipped Him.

Few branches report on W.I. month's activities

Due to inclement weather and holidays, several W.I. branches have not reported this month.

Arundel ladies were shown an interesting movie about South Africa. Members decided to make a book of Grandmother's quilt blocks to be entered in the Tweedsmuir Contest.

A Grandmothers' Night was held at Brownsburg, and several prizes were given, including one to the grandmother who had the most grandchildren. The non-grandmothers provided the refreshments, and the grandmothers provided the entertainment.

Dalesville branch was given an interesting talk on the founding and early history of that community. Members recited a poem as the roll-call. Demonstrations are being planned for the summer.

Twenty-six members and friends of Frontier had a conducted tour of the Ayers Limited plant in Lachute.

Jerusalem - Bethany was given a talk on Girl Guiding. Plans are being made to quilt a quilt in the near future.

The Health and Welfare convener of Upper Lachute - East End reported attending a meeting of the Canadian Cancer Society. Plans were made to have a card party in February.

Several of the branches reporting, held discussions and suggestions about the proposed Holiday House.

It is part of a return to pioneer and colonial days. Experts on furniture say that colonial type furniture — chairs and tables which emphasize curved wood rather than angular metals — is the coming fashion.

Classroom Color

Schools are being "color conditioned" by specialists to provide the best possible background for study. Youngsters work in surroundings of gay yellow, peach, blue or green, instead of the dreary browns of past days.

The change has been made because specialists believe rooms that do not reflect enough light will cause eyestrain, headaches and fatigue. Studies show that children in classrooms with properly distributed light learn faster and tire less quickly.

North rooms receive little sunshine and therefore seem cold. This can be offset by using warm colors for walls such as yellow, peach or rose. Southern exposures get plenty of sun, so grey greens and soft blues give a cool feeling.

The experts say the younger the child, the more lively the color should be. Active small children are fascinated by vivid reds and oranges. Older children who are concentrating on studies need a more relaxing atmosphere and greens and blue-greens are most often used.

Here is a recipe for baked eggs in ham nests: one and a half cups of finely ground cooked ham, three tablespoons of dry bread crumbs, a third-cup of graded medium Cheddar cheese, a quarter-cup of water, a tablespoon of pickle juice and six eggs.

Mix ham, bread crumbs, cheese, water and pickle juice together in a bowl. Divide into six portions. Place in custard cups and press against bottom and sides to make nests. Break an egg into each. Bake in moderately slow oven until egg is set. Serve immediately.

World Day of Prayer

February 13 is the World Day of Prayer. Millions of people of varying cultures and conditions will find spiritual fellowship in using the same theme of worship on that day. Find where the service will be held in your community, and become a part of this vast company. — Friday, February 13.

THE PRICE OF EGGS

Whenever the Poultry feed goes up in price, we hear plenty about it. And when the price of eggs drops, we also are expected to drop our feed prices too.

However, that seldom is the case. The Cold Storage people are running the egg business to make money, and they manipulate prices to that end. The feed people are doing the same, but they don't always work to the advantage of the poultry man. But why complain to the feed man; he can't do much about it, and anyway, the egg packer is the worse offender.

The amount of feed it takes to produce a dozen eggs varies with the different feeds and with the different breeds of hens. Some feeds like Purina are most efficient, and some hens like Hy-line hens are also most efficient (although you pay more for both than others).

For this example we will try to strike an average. Say 100 lbs. of Laying feed cost you $5.04 per cwt., and you get 18 dozen eggs at 40 cents a dozen. Out of that 100 lbs. Laying feed then, each dozen eggs will cost you for feed alone 28 cents a dozen, or you have $2.16 over egg cost for profit and expenses. Now if your Laying feed should go up to $5.22, your cost per dozen will just rise one cent; but if they drop the egg price by 5 cents a dozen, then they have cut your margin by 90 cents a cwt. . . Now which is worse?

Feed PURINA LAYING CHOW and keep HY-LINE HENS for more profit per 100 lbs. Laying feeds. . . We deliver.
