Teachers get history lesson, early settlement of Argent'l

A regular meeting of the Argenteuil Teachers' Association was held in Grenville High School, beginning with dinner served in the school cafeteria by the Ladies' Aid of the United Church.

The business meeting, chaired by the president, Miss Ruby Primmerman, dealt with such matters as PAPT Credit Union; notice of motion to amend the Constitution; naming of a Public Relations Officer; and the coming Provincial Council of the PAPT. Mr. L. Rossaert, chairman of the Education Committee, reported that a very successful Drama Festival was held in November at Lachute. This committee's next venture will be a contest in Public Speaking, Choral Speaking and Reading, tentatively scheduled for May 8 in Brownsburg.

At an earlier meeting a committee consisting of one teacher from each school was given the task of searching for historical facts on early education in Argenteuil County. Mrs. Annie Burk, chairman of this committee, reported that much work had been done and many interesting items had been found, some dating back to the early 1800's. Although this work is being done at the request of the Centennnial Committee of the PAPT, results should prove interesting to teachers and many other residents of this county.

PAPT director G. King Amos, who represents the local Association on Provincial Executive, reported on matters concerning the Provincial Association. Efforts on the part of the Association to raise standards for teacher certification have resulted in several meetings between teachers and the Central Board of Examiners, but no changes have been made to date. Executive members of PAPT have expressed concern that most Central Boards are dismissing Supervisors, leaving the work of administration to persons who have had on experience in the educational field.

Guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. Reid, of Montreal, who, with her husband, Dr. Sanford Reid of McGill University, has made an intensive study of the early history of Argenteuil County. Mrs. Reid gave the meeting a very detailed and interesting account of the early exploration and settlement of this County, especially in St. Andrews, Carillon, Grenville and Lachute. She noted that the French settlers generally became farmers, while the English-speaking settlers, most of whom came from the New England States, were more interested in lumbering and other business ventures. Settlements on the bank of the Ottawa River were hives of activity until the building of the C.P. Railway established a new trend in settlement. It was then that Lachute became the focal point of the County. . . . The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Isabell Bailly and thanked by Mrs. Madden.

The local Association will hold its last meeting of the year in Lachute High School on May 28, when members of the Laurentian Teachers' Association will be guests.

L'Orignal lady, related here, has 100th birthday

Miss Jessie Litle who resides with her niece, Mrs. Tremaine Sheppard of L'Orignal, celebrated her 100th birthday on March 1.

Although paralyzed, she still has a remarkably keen brain, remembering many incidents and events of the early days. She still has good eyesight.

Miss Jessie Litle was born in Cornwall, Ont., she is the last surviving daughter of the late Watson Litle, one of seven girls. Being of the Anglican faith, she speaks of the fact that her late father with energy and enthusiasm instituted the first Service of Worship at L'Orignal, held in his own home.

The late Mr. Litle was a respected newspaper man in the Ottawa Valley. A striking figure of the good old school gentlemen whose writings were noted for their moderate tone, advocacy of public issues along reasonable, argumentative lines. He was a personal friend of the late Sir John A. MacDonald.

Miss Litle trained as a nurse, she went to the Canadian West where with her kindness and skill, she greatly assisted the pioneer families of that, then quite rugged country of ours.

Greetings from Queen, P.M.

Miss Litle received many visitors — members of her immediate family, friends and relatives, who came to greet her in a continual stream on this notable day. Miss Litle was specially touched by greetings she received from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, the Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker, Prime Minister; and Mr. O. F. Villeneuve, M.P. for Glengarry-Prescott. She also received many flowers and tokens, including a bouquet from the municipal corporation.

A point of interest in Lachute, is that Mr. Clem Meservy, well-known local business man, is a nephew of Miss Litle. Mr. Meservy was among the many visitors who tendered their congratulations.

Report returns most gratifying in Red Cross 'blitz'

Red Cross returns to date in the Greater Lachute area, following the "blitz" held Monday evening, indicate a total of $2,020 collected—an increase of approximately $300 over last year, reported Roger Gravel, chairman of the campaign.

In stating he was highly satisfied with the first returns, Mr. Gravel paid tribute to the various captains and teams, to whom he gave credit for the efficient manner in which the blitz appeal was carried out. The $2,020 amount was turned in to headquarters Monday evening, all sections of Lachute and Ayersville having been canvassed.

Donations from businesses and some rural sections received to date, have brought this total to almost $4,000, with still more areas to be heard from. Final returns will be listed when all canvassing has been completed.

Brownsburg area Red Cross drive; vandals strike unappreciative note

Each year across Canada a great many people devote a great deal of time and effort to Red Cross. This year is no exception. Willing workers have helped to plan the campaign, while others have visited the homes asking for our donation to this work of mercy carried on by Red Cross. One of the most important steps in a financial campaign is that of publicizing the event. This was done in the Brownsburg area by various means, one of which was the placing of a Red Cross flag on the pole of the Social Club. In order to complete the town coverage, another large Red Cross ensign was strung across Main Street in front of the Social Club. This was Saturday afternoon. Late Saturday night or early Sunday morning the ensign was cut down and taken away by persons unknown. While the cost of the flag to the local branch of the Red Cross is significant, even more significant is the fact that the flag was removed. This was no doubt a prank played by a number of "carefree" individuals. To those individuals — we hope you will not require the services of the Red Cross, but if you do, remember, the Red Cross is always willing to serve — even you!

Local breeder honored

Ayrshire breeders held successful annual meeting

A successful annual meeting was held by the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of Canada, February 19 in Montreal. President Roland Pigeon, of Vercheres, Que., in his presidential address commented on the large increase in business carried on by the Association and on the excellent co-operative spirit.

The secretary, Douglas MacKechnie, reported registrations increased from 10,153 in 1957 to 13,325 in 1958 for a 31% increase. Transfers totalled 7,274 in 1958 in comparison to 5,591 in 1957.

The Association's Type Classification Plan reached an all time high in 1958 when 4,161 cows were classified in 354 herds. R.O.P. certificates also reached a record number, 13,396 completed by the 550 Ayrshire herd owners on the R.O.P. testing program.

Presentations

The Association presented Production Plaques to the owners of the high producing cows in each age division for the year, and silver trays were presented to the owners of the high producing herds according to the year's Herd Average reports.

Local Breeder Honored

Honorary life membership certificates were presented to two longtime breeders of Ayrshires who have been active in promoting the Ayrshire breed — Erskine McOuat, Brownsburg, Que., and Art M. Gillespie, Hubalta, Alberta. Mr. McOuat has been a member of the Association for over 30 years and during this time developed a number of outstanding cattle. Some of the best known had the prefix "Topline's" and they were daughters of his herd sire Harleyholm Topline (Imp.) Mr. Gillespie has been a staunch supporter of the Alberta Ayrshire Club and has been a member of the Association for 17 years.

President Roland Pigeon presented the past-president's certificate to John McLennan, Martintown, Ont., in recognition of his service to the Association. Mr. McLennan was president in 1957.

New President

At the Board of Directors meeting, February 20, Alex Sutherland, of Paris, Ont., was elected president.

Quebec Directors Elected

The re-elected directors are: — Arthur Dagg, Shawville; Allister McArthur, Howick; Jack MacGeorge, St. Valentin; and Jean Paul Lizotte, Quebec. The newly elected directors are Mrs. Lucille Davis, Fulford, and Armand Lavoie, Ste. Anne de la Pocatière. Mrs. Davis is the first lady to be elected director of the Association.

Ayersville takes steps to set up its own municipal water supply

Municipal water supply continues to be discussed more and more seriously in Ayersville, and practical steps are even now under way as a preliminary — expert drillers having sunk three well shafts at different places.

Monday evening at the regular Council session chaired by Mayor Gaetan Paquette, it was decided to take an option on a piece of land owned by Councillor Douglas Simon. Dimensions of the land are 200 x 200 feet, making 40,000 square feet of area; option is taken for $5,000 — which includes also a part of Ayers Street.

Councillor Simon was not present at the meeting. In asking the Council to present a motion, the mayor stated the corporation should ensure itself the necessary protection before drilling a well on this property. If the water supply here is found sufficient, and meets the requirements of the Department of Health, the Council can then negotiate with the proprietor without forfeiting the option . . . The proposed water system would include wells, a reservoir and pump.

The firm of Desjardins & Sauriol, consultant engineers, have been retained for the preparation of necessary plans. According to Mr. Desjardins, who was present at the meeting, the system must be placed at least 100 feet from any dwelling or sewer installation.

Mayor Paquette stated that the present water consumption of Ayersville is around 123,000 gallons a day. It was intended to find a subterranean source of up to 500,000 gallons daily supply, with a view to serving future industries and population growth.

The option taken with Mr. Simon is for a six-months period. Notary Noel Campeau will prepare the necessary agreements.

Arrest follows hotel fracas

A 23-year-old Lachute man, James "Jim" Murdoch, was arrested on Monday and charged with "grievous assault causing bodily harm", following a fracas Saturday afternoon in the Windsor Hotel. Murdoch resides on Gilbert Street.

The other party involved, 22-year-old Ken Derouin, also of Lachute, is under treatment for a punctured lung in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Murdoch appeared before a Justice of the Peace in St. Jerome, following the charge, and bail was set at $950. He will appear in St. Jerome court on Tuesday next, March 10, for preliminary arraignment.

Derouin, who noticed some difficulty in breathing for some time following the incident, was examined by Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald and was rushed to hospital in Montreal where, on further examination, it was decided that no operation would be necessary.

The local police were informed of the incident Sunday morning, and turned the investigation over to Det.-Sgt. Ralph Allen, who laid charges. A full report has been prepared and sent to the office of the Attorney-General, prior to any additional charges being laid against a third party involved in the fight.

Mr. Laurier is manager of the Laurentienne Insurance.

As mayor of the village of Huberdeau, Mr. Laurier was elected Warden of Argenteuil at the recent County Council meeting here. He succeeds Leopold Charlebois of St. Andrews Parish, in the office of Warden.

Lumber cut may be affected

The heavy snows of this winter are having far-reaching effects on all phases of woods work. Many district sawmill owners expect that their cut this spring and summer may be somewhat lower than other years because of the difficulty wood-lot owners are having in operating their woodlots. The sawmills likely to be affected most are those which rely on custom sawing for the bulk of their business. Other sawmill owners are already making plans for a summer cut to make up their volume. Everything considered, the net result to the consumer may be slight delays in filling orders for lumber but the overall volume should not be too greatly reduced.

Infant girl burned to death in Grenv'l home

A 10-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Demerse, Grenville Bay, was burned to death on Thursday afternoon last, following an explosion in an oil-burning kitchen stove. Two other children escaped.

According to Det.-Sgt. Ralph Allen who, with Grenville Police Chief Laurent Davidson, investigated the mishap, Mrs. Demerse had left the three children alone in the house while she crossed the street to talk to her father. She left the children, Jean Guy, 4, and Denise, 2, playing, and the baby in the carriage.

Approximately five minutes after she left the house, she noticed smoke pouring out of the structure. Together with her father she rushed across the street to save her children. She was met at the door by the two older youngsters On entering the smoke and flame-filled building in an effort to save her youngest child, the woman was overcome and had to be rescued by her father, Cleophas Champagne. She suffered severe burns about the head, face and hands.

A younger brother of Mrs. Demerse, Armand Champagne, also attempted to enter the building by breaking a window, but was forced back by the flames.

Grenville firemen were unable to render any assistance, there being no water in the immediate area. The fire occurred at 11.30 a.m.

The baby was in a bedroom immediately beside the kitchen where the fire started. The frame building was demolished.

Ayersv'l by-law to change month of civic elections

Following a notice of motion at the preceding Council meeting, Ayersville councillors approved a formal proposal to change the date of civic nominations in that municipality from January to May — specifically, the second Wednesday of the month, with elections the following Monday if contests are necessary. The motion was sponsored by Councillor Maurice Dumas.

This measure, bearing the statute number of "By-law 30", will be duly adopted when sanction has been received from the Quebec Department of Municipal Affairs.

Atom generated commercial power forecast by 1970

Canadians may expect to see commercial generation of electric power from atomic energy by 1970 — according to Dr. A. J. Mooradian, Superintendant of Engineering Development for Atomic Energy of Canada Limited at Chalk River. Further development of our hydro electric potential will fall short of our expanding requirements by that time, while the higher cost of hydro power generated in ever remoter locations will hasten the day when atomic plants become economical . . . Dr. Mooradian was addressing the Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada on February 26 at the Abenaki Golf and Country Club.

For the next 20 years, Canadian atomic power plants will be built only where they can provide cheaper electric power than can be obtained by further development of conventional hydro or steam generating systems. Beyond that, Dr. Mooradian foresees the day when the energy requirements of Canada's expanding economy will require us to rely on atomic power to an ever increasing extent.

1959-60 Rotary officers approved; members hear 'classification' topic

A proposed slate of officers was submitted to the members of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club recently, the new officers were duly elected by acclamation, and assume their duties next July. Those elected are Berry Bourne, president; Bob Wyse, vice-president; Art Lapp, secretary; and Jim Campbell, treasurer.

An election for four directors will take place shortly, President Sid Patterson automatically becoming a director when his present term of office is completed.

Nominated for directors are — Dick MacLean, Bill Poley, Larry Presseault, Jack MacKimmie, Jean Belanger, Dr. John C. MacKimmie, Gordon Tabrett, Cliff Cunningham and John Giles.

At last Thursday's meeting, Past President Keith Rutherford inducted Duncan "Dunc" Graham, of C-I-L's mechanical development department, into the Club.

A combination raffle-bingo was announced for Friday, April 3, persons purchasing a book of raffle tickets being eligible for free entry to the bingo. Rotarian Dick MacLean was named committee chairman.

A Ladies' Night was announced for next Thursday, March 12, to be held in the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

Rotarian Georges Defosses informed the members of the Tree Farmers Association meeting, inviting all Rotarians to be in attendance.

The speaker for the evening was Rotarian Stewart Jones who spoke on "Classification as pertaining to Rotary".

"With controlled membership, an organization such as ours is able to get a complete cross-section from the community," it was pointed out as the opening remark, the speaker going on to enumerate the rules laid down by Rotary International, giving the members a local example in many cases.

To be a Rotarian, a person must be (1) active in some business in the community; (2) be classified for the principal and chief activity of his firm or profession; (3) the only active member of his classification. "In this way, the Club cannot become a club of any one group or organization."

Rotarian Jones pointed out that when the local Club was formed, it was laid down by Rotary International that the membership would be restricted to eight persons from C-I-L and two from Canadian Safety Fuse; even with this number, he added, the representation is highly diversified, and this was done so that the then Brownsburg Rotary Club could not become a "factory club."

Major classifications could be broken down, that is to say, there are different types of engineers and insurance salesmen, etc. "One thing is definite though, in that, if leaving a Rotary Club when moving to another community, you cannot take your classification with you. You have to be invited to join the Club in the new community, if your classification is open."

"I feel that this is one of the reasons why Rotarians remain Rotarians for so long."

In closing, Rotarian Jones asked all members to make sure they were living up to their classification in the Club, pointing out that it was through this classification that the Club was made known to the community.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Norm Somers and thanked by Rotarian Ken Riley.

Ayrshire's distinguished record and progeny

Woodlea Evergreen Florence (V.G.) of Erskine Rodger's local Ayrshire herd is the dam of Woodlea Evergreen Challenge, (born Oct., 1957) which counts a lists of successes — 3rd prize sr. bull calf at Lachute; 1st sr. bull calf at Maxville; 2nd sr. bull calf and reserve junior champion at Quebec; and 2nd at the Royal Winter Fair, which earned him selection for Honorable Mention in the All-Canadian competition for bull calves. This young bull was sold to sire the well known St. Blain Ayrshire herd of Clement Beauchemin at Verchères, Que.

Woodlea Evergreen Challenger, another son of the above dam (born Nov., 1958) was recently sold to head one of the oldest and best-known Ayrshire herds in Eastern Ontario, at Bonnie Brae Farms, owned by Sidney Moda . . . Both calves are by Dorland Ever Ready Challenge, an imported bull.

Winnings by Woodlea Evergreen Florence are numerous. They include many firsts, seconds and championships at Lachute, Maxville and Vankleek Hill; 10th 2-year-old in milk at the Royal Winter Fair; and again 4th 3-year-old in milk at the Royal. During most of these winnings she also produced 9,433 lbs. milk 4.08% butterfat.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

How many times have we, as fishermen, watched some fellow who had all the tackle, lures, spinners and what-have-you in his kit to catch fish — but no fish! You know, if a good look is taken at the water that is going to be fished, the reason could be there. Or it could be the "sport" himself; and most of the time that is the case.

All waters have some obstructions in them, and therefore some movement. The best way to discover this is get some small pieces of wood and flip into the water, this way the currents can be studied, and if you're observant, a lot can be learned. Any pockets in the bank, etc, can be fished with very good results at times. Logs around the edges, marsh, weeds, are all hangouts for fish. No matter how shallow the water may look, it pays to get into the little pockets behind all these obstructions.

One thing forgotten by most fishermen is that you've got to work at being a successful angler. I carry a small dip-net and study the insects, nymphs, caddis taken from the water, and the sand on the bottom. Studying the contents of fish stomachs will often tell you what they are feeding on. Ninety per cent of all food taken by fish is of the insect variety, be it flies, nymphs or caddis. Nymphs are only flies on their way up to the top of the water to become flies. They have shed their cases in which they were known as "caddis cases", that is, the unformed nymph — or to understand it easier, the worm off the fly. When a spinning outfit is not paying off, try and figure out why. It may be that the lure is being drawn in without any action, and a few twitches on the line or a sudden stop will achieve this necessary action. Cast over one spot and change the depth of the cast. All kinds of little gimmicks may get you fish that otherwise would be a lost cause!

All the bars, riffles, tongues, shallows can and do have fish in them. As a matter of fact, some of the best catches may be taken in water where you hold your rod up as high as possible and reel like hang, so as not to get hung up! One of the biggest kicks that can come out of spinning is to watch a fish chasing your lure in shallow water. The most forgotten thing about fishing is, take your time!

I was told of some deer carcasses around Pine Hill. I don't know of any other place, but think possibly there are all kinds lying around because of the lack of food, and deep snow. I was told that they had died of starvation. It's too bad that the Association couldn't have got some food scattered around.

I do know of this, for sure — the Moose I told you about last year, is still hanging around our district. It is sure to be having a rough time of it, in the way of feed. Maybe we can help it in some way. Food. I do know also, the Deer that were yarding around my area have all disappeared for the time being. The same goes for the Partridge, but not the Rabbits. There sure are a heap of them around. It should be exceptional shooting next fall, if nothing happens. The crows are also starting to enter into the spirit of spring. A few are around and I don't think they were winter birds. They may have been, however. (Let's hope not.)

Any of you who have been putting out feed for the birds during the winter, can do a lot of good to them just now. With the poor feeding conditions, they need more feed just about this time of the year than any other. So give them a little more. Any fat that may be hanging around from the roast will give them an extra treat; so how about it!

Gadgets

I think most manufacturers of fishing tackle figure that all fishermen are nuts. Maybe we are, but after seeing some more of the new stuff on the market that we are expected to buy, there can't be any doubt about it. A new reel now on the market for us, made in Europe, is the tops of them all. This one has all the levers, nobs and springs that is possible to put on. The big thing about it is that it's an automatic retreive. You know, the auto fly-reels that wind in themselves. This is exactly the same; has to be wound up about every half-hour. Weight 14 ounces, cost $45. Even if you can afford it, forget it! Can you imagine the grief that will come of this. If you can't wind in yourself, you shouldn't go fishing.

There was also a float for the still-fishermen that will set and catch the fish for you. The new weedless lures have not changed very much, they all have the attachments fitted to them to foul you up — and all fishermen will know what I mean by this. Some of the spoons and plugs have a new type of finish that I mentioned before, and they seem to be about the best as attractors.

I don't know if any of you have read about the Ruinous Rat, in other words the Nutria. There was an article in Sports Afield, and also a lot of literature has been put out by the Fish and Wildlife Service of the U.S.A. The damage from these pests is unbeleivable, it runs into millions of dollars. One sugar cane farmer in Louisiana lost half his crop in one night. It seems these pests were brought in from Argentina about 1932; from then on it has been a fight to keep them under control. With hurricanes and such breaking the farms, etc., the rats escaped into swamps, and before too long they were on their way to ruining everything.

It seems the pelts of the rat are not much use commercially. They are so hard to skin that most trappers won't touch them; 20 muskrats can be skinned in the time it takes to skin one Nutria. On top of that, the skin is so hard to process that it would cost at least triple the price of other skins. A bounty is being considered on them now, so there may be some progress made toward getting rid of them. It sure is a good point in our favor they don't like cold weather, otherwise they would be up into Canada.

Ice fishing is still showing good results; some of the catches have been very good. The Perch are full of spawn and make excellent eating. I know most people throw the eggs away, but if you try them in an egg batter and well fried, they are a nice tasty morsel. Along with the fillets you will have a real feed. Some Pike are being taken and these right now will make excellent steaks, or bake them with a white sauce. I think this is the best part of ice fishing. The eats afterwards! Some of the Pike that have been taken were real good ones, even though they are not too plentiful. At least we are getting some fresh air.

This is a little left over — I told you that all the Partridge had cleared out. This afternoon we saw a covey of about 40 birds. They evidently travelled down into our district looking for feed. It would be a swell thing to keep them here, and I'm sure a little feed spread around would do the trick. Maybe is can be arranged for this once.

Curling Club roof collapsed at Maxville

Maxville, Ont. — (CP) — A 10-foot section of the roof of the Maxville Curling Club collapsed on Monday, but there were on injuries. A crew was busy shovelling snow from the roof when the collapse came at the opposite end. Steel reinforcing cables there snapped suddenly allowing metal and wood materials to crumble.

B'burg Bombers eliminate Kilmar

The Brownsburg Bombers sewed up the semi-final series in their Q.O.H.L. battle on Sunday as they downed the Kilmar C.R.L. squad by a 7-3 score. The Kilmar boys looked as though they were up for this one as they forced the play and Pilon beat Buddy Racine from a close-in scramble 49 seconds after the opening whistle.

The lead was short-lived however, as Mason MacAdam banged in a relay from Racine and Dimock at the 2.38 mark. Five minutes later Jacques Leveillé picked up a pass from Vary and Cribb and fired the disc home to put the Bombers into the lead. Red Charlebois hit the scoring column at 9.30 as he converted passes from Dimock and Racine.

Jacques Racine picked up his second goal of the afternoon at 2.02 of the next period on passes from Dimock and Leveillé. The Bombers kept the pressure on and picked up two more goals before the period ended, by Charlebois and Dimock. Willis MacAdam, Lamoureux and Robitaille were credited with assists. Seguin and Paige had put the C.R.L. boys back in the game with a goal each, but André Ouellette ended the scoring at 18.10 of the final stanza on passes from Dimock and Racine.

Brownsburg picked up 7 of 13 penalties given by referees Gagné and Poitras. Only one resulted in a Kilmar goal, but the boys in blue came close on three other occasions.

Side Lines

So ends the 1958-59 hockey trail for Kilmar. The boys tried hard and exhibited the most valuable quality any team can possess — sportsmanship.

The coming series between Hawkesbury and Brownsburg should be worth seeing. Hawkesbury has the drive to be in there at the finish provided they have bench strength. From here though — it looks like the Bombers, within five games.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

Education Week, March 1 - 7

A challenge to Canada

WITH CANADIANS once again observing "Education Week" and having become more blasé about artificial satellites, the discussions concerning the status of education in this country have become somewhat more rational. Recently, however, a national weekly paper carried a new challenge — the claimed superiority of English schools as compared with their Canadian counterparts. The storm raged anew, and it seems appropriate to examine the response of the Director of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal who stated: "This attitude (that of English pupils) towards study stems from the society and traditional concern of parents for their children's education."

Other educators repeat, at brief intervals, that Canadians get the education they want, as a nation, whether it is good, better, or the best possible. What is often implied is that we, as citizens, often claim we want one type of education whereas, in reality, we are prepared to provide support for a very different type — usually cheaper. Surely, during Education Week, we owe it to ourselves, our children and our nation to do four things. First we should find out what type of education we have. Secondly, we should decide where we think improvements are possible. Thirdly, we should determine how much financial sacrifice we are prepared to suffer in order to permit the improvements. And lastly, we should get up in public and defend any proposed changes we approve.

If we examine our present system and find that our attitude as parents is what most needs changing, are we prepared to change? If we find that classes are twice too large, are we prepared to fight the unpopular battle for doubled taxes? If we find that teachers' salaries, even if we think some of them are too high, are not sufficiently high enough to attract the required number of good teachers, are we prepared to pay more for what we want? Perhaps most important, if our own Johnny can't read, are we prepared to admit that he may not be a genius, as we had hoped, and not insist that he be promoted to the next grade whether ready or not? The Russians and the English both face up to all of these realities where they reach a higher level af achievement in education. The English prepare only the top twenty per cent for entrance to University, while the Russians probably handle a smaller proportion chosen much more ruthlessly.

Do we, as parents, refrain from criticizing the teacher or the school in front of our children? Do we boast about our success without advanced education, judging success only in terms of money, and without realizing that the need for education is constantly growing; or without admitting that we would be more comfortable mentally if we were better prepared educationally? Have we faced up to our responsibility for the Canadian educational system, or do we attempt to prove that all the weaknesses are within the building that houses Johnny during school hours?

There are many possible answers to the question we have posed but surely, in Education Week 1959, there are a sufficient number of poor answers to give each of us a starting point if we remember that "Education is everybody's business" — and that includes you and me.

A check on unscrupulousness

AT THIS TIME of year, it is not unusual to hear remarks passed about persons who would rather draw their unemployment insurance benefits than work . . . The implication is that there is no particular difficulty about doing so.

In actual practice, however, every person who is in receipt of benefit must declare, every time he receives money from the Unemployment Insurance Commission, that he is able, ready, and willing to work. Moreover, anyone refusing an offer of suitable employment is likely to be disqualified from receipt of benefit.

In order, however, to test the sincerity (or insincerity) of a person's declaration that he is able, ready, and willing to accept work, the UIC must have a suitable job opening to which that person can be referred. Here is an area in which employers might well work more closely with the Commission.

The Commission's National Employment Service is designed specifically to find the right worker for the employer's job and the right job for the unemployed worker. Matching the worker to the job is a highly skilled occupation, and the NES has the staff to be of great assistance to employers in this regard.

Incidental to providing this service to workers and employers, the Commission would be placed in a much better position to check on the availability for employment of claimants. Canada's unemployment insurance plan was created to help the unemployed through periods of genuine unemployment. We are all losers when those who are unscrupulous abuse the plan.

Case of the retarded child

THOSE WHO have youngsters of their own may remember the moment of terror in the hospital when fleetingly they prayed that the baby would be normal and healthy.

It happens to all parents, the dark dread in the back of the mind is that, as the medical profession knows, abnormality, retardation, brain injury are no respecters of race, creed, or economic station in life — and that in every town and village one has seen or heard of a child that "wasn't right".

All too often — the statistics say in 3 cases out of every 100 — the tragedy of abnormality occurs. And often it does not declare itself at once, but over the months and years that follow birth.

What happens to these children from whom nature has withheld the full development of the faculties?

Only too often, parents have sought to hide what they were made to think of as their "shame". And healthy, happy families have been shattered by the effect of a retarded child's plight on mother, father, brothers and sisters.

The Association for the Help of Retarded Children is an expression of the new enlightenment that says this does not have to be.

Yes — we live in an age of Sputniks, and moon rockets and inter-planetary travel is on the agenda. But science has been at work also on the cause of human tears and heartbreak, and we do have some answers to the problems of the retarded child.

But we must bring this business of mental retardation out into the light — tell the world about it — get the world to face not only the facts but also the consequent responsibilities and duties.

There are thousands of retarded children in our midst. The Association is doing its utmost to help as many as possible, however, there is a long waiting list. They need funds to help more of these children. Neither federal nor provincial governments has yet reached officially the point of coming to their aid. But they are helpless only if we do not help!

Many people, many organizations in this district, have counted it a privilege to aid the work of the Lachute Association for Retarded Children — either by contributions or by voluntary effort, transportation, refreshments, etc., in connection with the local school conducted for these youngsters. But continued support is needed, and any who can contribute to this enterprise locally, or in the broader appeal of the Association (Quebec branch campaign, 7440 Cote St. Luc Road, Montreal) will find ample satisfaction in helping those less fortunate.

The future is here

YOU DON'T have to ponder the possibilities of space travel to get a glimpse of the future — there are stirring advances much closer to home.

Two such developments are the rush to secure oil exploration rights in Canada's Arctic islands, and the recent mid-winter arrival of an ocean freighter at Quebec City.

Canada's islands in the Arctic now are seen as a likely source of oil and gas. Canadian and U.S. companies have been applying for exploration rights, mainly in the Queen Elizabeth Islands. Many such leases have already been granted in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

The recent underwater crossings of the North Pole by U.S. atom-powered submarines point the way to movement of large freight-carrying submarines through regions long hidden from all but the intrepid bands of explorers.

Passenger planes now are flying regularly over the North Pole, and scientific stations have been established on huge ice islands, a startling change since the Arctic for centuries was about as unknown as the ever-hidden far side of the moon.

The arrival of the 5,000-ton Danish freighter Helga Dan at Quebec early in February was another dramatic demonstration of man's triumphs over Nature. Up to now the earliest arrivals have usually been recorded in mid-March.

Captain Henrik Bjerregaard, who tied up his vessel at Quebec 15 days after leaving Denmark's Jutland peninsula, was courteous about the assistance given by the Canadian government icebreaker Labrador in the Cabot Strait between Cape Breton and Newfoundland, but he said he could have made it alone.

This was because the specially-built Helga Dan, with its reinforced hull and special bow and stern construction for travelling through ice, has a broader beam than the icebreaker and still had to crush the edges of a path opened for it.

But the significance of the voyage, during a winter more severe than usual, was pointed up by Marcel Fortier, president of the industrial and trade bureau of Quebec. It could bring "interesting new developments affecting the whole Canadian economy," he said.

What do Cheddar, Ermite and Oka have in common?

They are all delicious cheeses made in Canada. Canadian Cheddar is one of the finest cheeses in the world. Excellent varieties are made in the countryside of both eastern and western Ontario. They have a firm, flaky texture with a clean, sharp taste. Ermite cheese, made by the Benedictine Fathers in Quebec, resembles both Roquefort and Gorgonzola, but has an enchantment all its own. Oka which is similar to the French Port-Salut, is firm yet creamy and is made only by the Trappist monks at the small community of Oka on the Ottawa River. There are other cheeses native to Canada — such as St. Basile, Mme Clermont, Camembert and Ile d'Orleans — that are worthy of attention.

What Jargon was widely used on the West Coast?

During the 19th century, the Chinook jargon developed as a trade language on the coast of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia. The Indians spoke many languages, and the Europeans generally found these difficult to master. As maritime trade grew, Indians were taken from post to post and a simplified language developed. There may have been the beginnings of such a language before the coming of Europeans, but the increased contact, coupled with the white man's difficulty in learning native tongues, increased this tendency. The basis of the Chinook jargon is the language of the Chinook Indians of Oregon, but it was supplemented with words of Nootka origin, to which were added others of French, English and Spanish derivation. This language could be learned quickly and served as a satisfactory medium in routine matters, such as trading or trapping.

However, the jargon was almost useless for purposes other than trading or trapping unless words from the language of local Indians were added. It varied with each tribe up and down the coast and, indeed, with the knowledge or ability of the individual speaker. The grammar was simple and the basic vocabulary limited. The Chinook jargon flourished during the 19th century; it has practically disappeared today.

Needs and Wants

By Lewis Milligan

Arithmetic was my pet aversion at school. I entirely agreed with the writer of that old rhyme:

Multiplication is vexation,
Division is as bad;
The Rule of Three doth puzzle me,
And Practice drives me mad.

The very sight of a column of figures made me drowsy, and the mere mention of economics could put me into a sound sleep.

With this apology to the reader I am venturing into the realm of economics, and if what I have to say is not clear and convincing, it may be explained by the probability that I am talking in my sleep.

The best and briefest definition of economics that I have come across is as follows: "The study of the supplying of man's physical needs and wants." It is brief and yet all-inclusive. If economics were confined solely to the supplying of man's physical needs it would be much simpler and might be an exact science like mathematics, for man's physical needs under certain conditions can be estimated and supplied. In Central Africa, for instance, there is no need for economics where the natives live on bananas and other wild-growing vegetation, build their own kralls of rushes, wear no clothes and do not need television sets for entertainment, which is provided for them free in the form of war-dances in the open air.

Economics originated in colder countries when man found that he could not live without working regularly for his physical needs. He needed a substantial home and clothing for protection against the weather and something more than wild vegetation for his sustenance. He had to cultivate the soil, sow seed in season, breed cattle and store his products for the winter.

Thus man developed an elementary economy to provide for his domestic needs. If the process had stopped there, all might have been well. But man became socially conscious and had to form some sort of ordered society and he developed what we now call a political economy. He was not satisfied with his bare needs, he developed wants.

It is the multiplication of these wants that has bedevilled our political economy today. We call it INFLATION. There is no remedy for that condition other than cutting down of those wants or the building up of the means of providing for them at prices we can afford to pay. In Soviet Russia they have solved the problem of eliminating the wants in accordance with the Marxian doctrine of "To every man according to his need." On the face of it, that seems a simple solution, but its application under conditions of advanced civilization and scientific progress is not so simple, because wants have become absolute needs for the maintenance of our standard and way of living.

The question arises as to whether we can go on wanting more and more indefinitely without running into debt and thus devaluing the purchasing power of the dollar? The economist's answer to that question is NO. He would tell us that we are living beyond our means, and that we must cut down our wants according to our ability and willingness to work and pay for them.

Pin Money

The term "pin money" comes from the time when pins were scarce and valuable, and were sold only on the first two days of the year. According to the World Book Encyclopedia, wealthy women flocked to the shops to buy the pins with money provided for this purpose by their husbands.

What is the Western Name for a Small Horse?

The term cayuse is used both in the western United States and in western Canada for a small horse or pony. The name comes from an Indian tribe in Oregon and Washington that specialized in breeding horses.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

So now I'm a reactionary?

Well, now I have been called everything!

An irate reader sends this nice note, "Mr. Hills, you are an incurable reactionary, with your ranting about free-enterprise and your constant criticism of the government and government agencies. Don't you know that you are as old-fashioned as a bowler hat? Like free-enterprise itself, you are dead but you won't lie down."

Well, I sure do believe in free-enterprise, and I think the government has gotten itself involved in too many things; but is this reactionary? Is free-enterprise old-fashioned?

Ah, no, my irate friend! Freedom is a new idea. Remember when Ma and Pa chose daughter's hubby for her? Remember when the peasants scrambled from the road when the Lord drove by? Remember the old experiments in Socialism, Serfdom, Absolute Monarchy?

The new thing is Freedom — of religion, of the ballot, and of enterprise! The old thing is the notion that a few should plan for the many; the new thing is that the government should be responsible to the people, as servants and not as masters.

Sure there are lots of things wrong in the country. Don't blame that on free-enterprise. There are lots of things wrong in Socialist Russia. Socialist Britain was far from perfect, and Socialist France was no Utopia. The old idea that a group of "experts" can do better at running our lives than we can do for ourselves keeps cropping up from time to time — an old-fashioned idea that we free people on this free continent have proved to be no good for us at all.

Free-enterprise is not as popular as it ought to be. Too many of us take freedom for granted. We let it go, for some immediate gain — and in the long run we lose by it. Free enterprise ought to be popular. It works. It is new and dynamic and challenging. Left-wingers want us to sneer at the words "Free-Enterprise." I won't sneer at them!

Well, if thinking this makes me a "reactionary," let it be so. I'd hate to think how I'd feel if I lived in one of those "modern" countries where the government runs everything and criticism is simply not allowed on pain of death or Siberia.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Would we and the Russians get along any better if we spoke the same language? I believe so.

Talking through translation is like trying to see through muddy water. Ordinary things appear as dark, threatening shapes.

People of East and West are separated by miles and by basic differences of political thought. But some of the hatred between them would melt if they could see and understand one another.

International visits, by political leaders and by plain citizens, have been suggested as a means of promoting goodwill. Visits probably are useful. But they have a serious defect: They are too short.

There is only one way to understand a foreign nation — to speak the language and to live in the country for several years.

Russia and the English-speaking people do not understand each other in this way. If they are sincere in their wish for "peaceful co-existence," they should try to know one another better.

Selected groups of children — with their parents' consent—should learn Russian in school as a second language. Groups of Russian children should learn English.

Our children would get a solid course in government, and taught why we believe parliamentary democracy to be the best system.

They might also be instructed in one or other of the manual trades, like plumbing or carpentry.

Then there would be a mass exchange of senior high school and university students, between the Soviet Union and the western world; and an exchange of workers in many professions and trades: Doctors, loggers, farmers, carpenters, actors, musicians, bricklayers, bartenders and garbage collectors.

They would live among the ordinary people of the other nation, sharing their food and entertainment and speaking their language.

The system might lend itself to spying. Precautions would have to be taken against that.

When their term abroad was finished, the citizen-ambassadors would return home with a clear, detailed picture of the foreign country. Such a program has never (as far as I know) been tried anywhere. It would be costly. But we could buy a lot of understanding for the price of one atomic bomb.

Are the Russians afraid to try it, or are we? If we don't try something bold and new, most people on both sides may soon be dead.

Canadian Quiz

1. The new St. Lawrence Seaway will handle ships of what maximum draught?

2. By how much has inflation decreased the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar over the past twenty years?

3. Which of Canada's provinces produces the most wheat?

4. What is the origin and meaning of the word "Sioux?"

5. By how much did Canada's gross national product increase in 1958 over 1957?

ANSWERS: 5. By about two per cent, but the increase was due only to higher prices, not a rise in volume of production. 3. Saskatchewan, usually produces more than half of all Canadian wheat. 1. Up to 25 feet; by comparison, Suez takes ships up to 42 feet, and Panama up to 40 feet. It is from an Ojibwa word meaning "the enemy." 2. By slightly more than half.

PROJECT '59

CBC radio

Last October an exciting event took place on CBC Radio when a new series of one hour programs started. Its planners called it simply—"Project '59".

Its purpose was two-fold—to keep Canadians informed and to do it in an entertaining way. Since its inception Project '59 has won plaudits from both press and public.

Since that first radio program (which explored the world of radio) Project '59 has gone to Gaza to visit Canadian troops—looked in on the revolt in Cuba—talked to Canadians about their leisure time activities—told the story of West Germany—gone to a concert by the famous Red Army choir (especially arranged for CBC's Project '59). It has even featured programs consisting almost entirely of sound!

Project '59 is alert. Recently, an opportunity arose to present a special program on Field Marshal the Viscount Montgomery. Project '59's planners immediately took advantage of the opportunity.

Project '59 is another CBC presentation contributing to the exciting new sound of CBC Radio. Be sure you stay tuned to your local CBC network station.

For full details of the many other exciting things happening on CBC Radio and on CBC Television, may we suggest you subscribe to CBC Times at the special introductory rate of 4 months (16 weekly issues) for $1.00 (yearly rate $3.00). Write CBC Times, Box 500, Terminal 'A' Toronto, Ont. for a sample copy.

The Catholic Women's League regular monthly meeting was held March 2 in the l'Ecole Supérieure.

Gospel worth $3,000

"What, the Gospel of St. John worth $3,000!" exclaimed a gentleman recently while in conversation about the Scriptures in many languages.

Recently, a copy of the Gospel of St. John in Mohawk, one of the few remaining copies of the original two thousand books printed in 1804, was presented by the British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada to the Iroqoin Institute of Studies on the Six Nations reservation in Brant County.

An Indian lady, Mrs. Jamieson of Brantford, who has made a special study of Indian history, languages and literature, possesses one of those rare copies of the Gospel of St. John. Mrs. Jamieson values her copy at about $3,000 in Canadian currency; its actual value to her is much greater, because it conveys to her the real meaning of life.

Increasingly, people in all walks of life are discovering the Bible has a message for our generation.

Catholic League at Brownsburg

A campaign was organized among the members to promote the devotion of the Sacred Heart. Contributions will be sent yearly to the Sacred Heart radio program to help with expenses, and all were urged to listen to the program as often as possible.

On adjournment of the meeting, coffee was served by Mrs. B. Molloy's committee, and Father Hurtubise opened a cross-table discussion. The evening proved most interesting.

A congregational supper was held recently in the Brownsburg Presbyterian Church hall, at which Mr. Harry Gardiner, senior member of the congregation, presented Mr. John Connelly with a purse of money in recognition of over 50 years of faithful service in Sunday School work. Mrs. John MacVicar, representing the Ladies' Aid, presented Mrs. Connelly with a corsage of red roses.

An electric meter is the finely-adjusted machine which records the customer's use of mankind's Most Valuable Servant.

Under Federal law, no one is allowed to tamper with the inside of an electric meter while it bears the Government seal — neither the power company nor the customer.

Under Federal law, too, each meter must be removed from service and tested by the Government every six to eight years.

If it has been recording LESS electricity than has actually been used, the customer seldom hears about it. Federal laws provide adequate safeguards to see that the customer is not overcharged.

Each year Gatineau Power replaces an average of 12,000 meters with newly sealed meters. The ones which have been removed are cleaned, adjusted and presented for the testing and sealing by a Government inspector.

Branch 70 Correspondent

At a special meeting of Branch 70 held last Wednesday under the chairmanship of Com. President Tom Smith, it was decided to proceed with a major project, which will include rewiring the hall, improving the lighting and replacing fixtures where necessary. This has been the subject of discussion by the Executive Committee for some time now, and was finally brought to a head by a lighting failure in the hall recently. The general body voted unanimously to commence work on this project immediately.

The Legion's third Dominion curling championship will be held at Lloydminster, Sask., starting on March 16. Curlers from every province, the top of an estimated 10,000, are expected to attend. Drummondville's top Legion team, skipped by Com. Cliff MacDonald will represent the Province of Quebec. Taking top honors in this province at finals played in Drummondville on Friday and Saturday, February 27 and 28, Com. MacDonald's team edged out St. Lambert by a high score after taking Hudson Heights 9-1.

The St. Lambert rink defeated our own Lachute team 7-5 on Saturday. Some eight rinks competed in the Provincial Finals. This Legion District was represented by the Branch 70 team of Bill White, Stewart Jones, Roger Gravel and Sid Drew (skip).

The second Broomball game of the schedule for Branch 70 was played last Monday evening against the Chamber of Commerce. The game was a close one all the way, with the Legion old-timers holding their own. With a score of 2-1 in favor of Branch 70, a Commerce man batted the ball home from above the shoulders. Sportsmanship ran high, however, and the point was allowed — final score 2-2. This observer feels that these games would have a much greater spectator appeal if every team were represented by its own members. These were possibly two or three qualified members on the Commerce team, the remainder of the players being much younger and more fit than the veterans.

Attention all teen-age members of Club 70: The regular Friday evening dance has been postponed until Saturday evening, March 7, for this week only. Please remind all your friends.

Did you know that, when completed, Vetville, Quebec's first low-rent housing project at Chateauguay, will have 128 apartments, accommodating 192 tenants and will be the largest non-profit housing development in Canada — according to Norman H. McLeod, president of the Quebec Legion Memorial Housing Corporation, which owns and operates the property on behalf of the Legion's Provincial Command. Only war disability pensioners or recipients of War Veterans' Allowance or Widows' Allowance are eligible to rent these premises.

Live broadcast, world hockey final

The CBC will carry a "live" play-by-play description of the world hockey final, Sunday, March 15.

Veteran hockey commentator Foster Hewitt and Thom Benson will be in Prague, Czechoslovakia, to bring listeners a colorful account of this annual tournament.

Starting time for the hockey final, which is expected to find Canada playing Russia, has not been determined as yet.

Broadcast arrangements were made by the CBC in co-operation with the European Broadcasting Union. Transmission by land line will be made from Prague to London, England, and then via the Atlantic cable to Canada.

Immediately prior to the broadcast of the game there will be a special 15-minute world hockey review.

Your child's birthday

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Mummy, for my birthday this year could you and daddy give me a little ring set with my birthstone? Janey was born in February and she has an amethyst ring . . . "

"We'll have to look up the list and find out what is your birthstone."

"I've got it here — and one of the stones for October is an opal."

"I'll talk it over with your father tonight," Helen's mother promised.

This is Helen's list of birthstones by months: January—garnet; February — amethyst; March — aquamarines and bloodstones; April diamond; May—emerald; June—moonstone; July — ruby; August—peridot and sardonyx; September —sapphire; October—opal and tourmaline; November—topaz; December—turquoise and zircon.

Whether or not you can give a daughter a ring with her birthstone, do make your child's birthday a special family day!

Birthdays have a great fascination for boys and girls. They want to know not only what day they were born, but they long to be told how much father and mother wanted a little son or daughter. A child will listen eagerly to the story of mother going to the hospital, of mother's and dad's first glimpse of him, of what he looked like when he was tiny.

A birthday party is a great treat for a child. It does take extra work and careful planning—but it is well worth all the trouble. This special event gives a child happy memories to look back on when he is grown and away from home. Part of the secret of a successful party is to let the child share in making the plans for it and assist in the preparations. Encourage a child to print his own invitations and if possible, deliver them.

Janey, a 10-year-old girl, asked her mother. "Couldn't I have a doll dress-making birthday party?" Her mother was willing to follow Janey's suggestion. Each little girl invited to the party was asked to bring a small doll. Two of the other mothers helped cut out the doll dresses. The happy guests sat around the table and chattered like their grandmothers at a Quilting Bee 50 years ago. They took home their partly-sewn doll dresses instead of the usual party favors. They all considered this one of the best parties they had attended — and it started a wave of doll dress-making!

Billy, who was six, asked his mother if his guests couldn't be Indians at his party. The mother bought light-weight cardboard and cut out headbands with cardboard feathers sticking up from them. When they arrived each guest was given a head-band and seated at the kitchen table with a small box of crayons. What fun the boys had coloring their Indian headgear! These and the crayons they took home with them at the end of the party as "loot."

In some families, everyone attends a movie together as a birthday treat, providing there is a suitable show for the younger children. If a mother finds that entertaining at home is too much for her strength, the guests attending a movie is a substitute for games. In some households, a birthday meal at a good restaurant or hotel gives Mother a pleasant holiday from the kitchen. A family expedition to a local place of interest can be a satisfactory birthday "spree."

Children love the birthday verse about the days of the week. If your child asks for this annoymous little verse which was quoted almost seventy years ago in Harper's Weekly, here it is:

"Monday's child if fair of face,
Tuesday's child if full of grace,
Wednesday's child is loving and giving,
Thursday's child works hard for a living.
Friday's child is full of woe,
Saturday's child has far to go,
But the child that is born on the Sabbath-day
Is brave and bonny, and good and gay."

Whatever the plans for a birthday, it is the love expressed not only in gifts but in a happy shared experience which make it a Red Letter Day. Birthday celebrations knit members of a family together. Thus they are significant, not only for the child whose natal day is being celebrated, but they also have value for the home as a unit. Birthdays are indeed important! Why not make different plans for the birthdays in your family this year, and not just follow the same pattern of other years?

SUNDAY DINNER ITALIAN STYLE

Ravioli with Mushroom Sauce
Chicken Cacciatora Risotto
Tossed Spinach Leaf-Lettuce Salad
Spumoni Frozen Strawberries
Coffee

All measurements are level; recipes for 4 to 6

Chicken Cacciatora: Clean a 3-lb. broiler-fryer chicken as necessary. Wash, dry and section. Heat ½ c. olive oil in heavy kettle. Gently fry chicken until golden brown.

Add 1 diced, peeled onion and 1 minced, peeled section garlic. Cook until yellowed.

Add 1 (No. 2) can tomato, 1 tbsp. chopped parsley, 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ½ c. water and, if desired, a shredded green pepper and 4-oz. can sliced mushrooms.

Cover and simmer 45 min., or until chicken is fork-tender and liquid mostly evaporated.

FISH DINNER

Tomato Bouillon
Broiled Lake Trout or
Halibut Slices Maitre d'
Potatoes Creamed with Green Peas
Tossed Salad
Jellied Applesauce
Coffee Tea Milk

FROM THE CHEF

Creamed Potatoes and Green Peas: In France, canned peas, the famous petit pois, are a national institution. In this country, they are very plentiful and not expensive. We should use more of them.

For example, boil 2 lbs. peeled, small white potatoes; drain and heat in 2 c. white sauce, made as usual, but use drained liquid from a (1 lb.) can of peas, the balance milk.

Pour over potatoes, add peas and heat.

Wife Preservers

Nail a scrub brush upside down in a convenient spot outside the door so that snow and mud can be brushed off shoes before entering the house.

"Longing for help from outside world"

Not many Canadian women know much about Laos, a country bordering Thailand in Asia, but those of the Women's Institutes of Canada should learn something of these people now, as the women of Laos may soon be affiliated with ACWW.

Mrs. de Mel, Area Vice-President for Asia, has recently visited Laos on the invitation of the Laos Women's Association, which has branches in most of the provinces. Mrs de Mel was royally welcomed and entertained, but she also saw the work the women in the Association were doing. The president, along with a three-week-old baby, was managing a school of over a thousand people. Her husband is in charge of a training project for young people. They are sent in teams of ten throughout the country to teach and show the villagers how to improve living conditions, making fences and drains, protecting wells and treating minor ailments. The girls teach sewing, cookery and nutrition. They also encourage work in crafts, such as the making of gold jewellery.

It is, in our terms, a backward country, with little transport and poor roads and few health services, but they are working hard to improve the lives of the people and, to quote Mrs. de Mel "are longing for contact with and help from the outside world."

Canadian girl has travel tips on Moscow visit

Ottawa — (CP) — Thinking of taking a trip to Russia soon and planning to stay a while? Then it might be a good idea to see your dentist first. And be sure to take your own supply of sugar.

And take enough clothes to last while you are there, says pretty Carolyn Wood, who has just returned to Ottawa after a two-year posting at the Canadian embassy in Moscow.

But why see a dentist first? That, says Miss Wood, is a good idea because Soviet patients are a lot more stoic than Westerners and don't expect local anaesthetics for minor molar repairs.

As for sugar, that's just advice given by the external affairs department. It seems Russian sugar is not so refined; sort of lumpy.

Additional advice by the department includes a well-stocked clothes closet and light medical supplies difficult to find in Rusia.

Food Extras

As for food, Miss Wood says most Canadians arrange to import supplies like tea, coffee, tinned goods and biscuits from Denmark to supplement their regular Russian diet.

"Not that Russian food isn't good. It's just plentiful and there's too much of it," says Miss Wood.

"We had a Russian maid in our apartment who did the cooking but she always made twice as much as we could eat and then felt hurt because we couldn't finish it," said the attractive secretary...

Most Russians have healthy appetites.

"Three hours is par for dinner, and that's probably one of the reasons they don't have night clubs there."

For their own entertainment, the embassy staff usually attended the American House Club, organized on a non-profit basis by the U.S. embassy. It sponsored dancing, movies and bingo games and was "just like home," she said.

Miss Wood lived at the Canadian embassy during her first year in Russia, but later moved into an apartment building on the outskirts of Moscow. "It was just an overflow from the embassies. There wasn't a Russian living in the building."

She travelled freely in the Soviet Union by air and rail, and visited Kiev, Leningrad and the resort town of Sochti and Yalta on the Black Sea. She says she hopes to go back some day, "but not until I've had a little time in Canada first."

At Lions' annual oratory contest

Four winners were selected by a panel of judges at the annual Lions Club public speaking contest, held last week. Out of eight young contestants (six girls and two boys), a male and female speaker in both the French and the English languages were awarded top honors, with the opportunity to enter district eliminations and possibly the Quebec-Ontario finals.

School students match merits at Lions' speaking contest

Eight promising young orators from French schools in Lachute-Ayersville, and from the Protestant High School, provided material for an interesting program following the Lions Club meeting last week. The occasion was the annual public speaking contest, and a considerable gathering of friends and relatives accepted the invitation to witness this event, in the Legion Memorial Hall.

President Phil Tremblay extended a welcome on behalf of the Lions Club, and the proceedings were then directed by Fernand Legault, Q.C., chairman of the club's Education committee. A panel of judges comprised — Roger Regimbal, Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, A. Desrosiers, Gordon Davidson and Dr. Eric Mongeon, who appraised the speakers' performances on the merits of both material and vocal delivery.

The entrants were — Miss Lois Silverson, Lachute High School; Jacques Joanisse, Ecole Secondaire; Miss Gloria McIntyre, St. Alexandre School; Roland Gow, L.H.S.; Miss Diane Legault, Ste. Alexandre School; Miss Ghislaine Pharand, Immaculate Conception, Ayersville; Miss Grace Donaldson, L.H.S.; and Miss Rolande Gauthier, Ste. Alexandre School.

Called to the platform in that order, the speakers gave five-minute discourses on their own selection of subjects, ranging all the way from youth and career problems to questions of national economy and the evils of alcoholism. After a brief respite, each was called for a two-minute impromptu treatise on a choice of topics handed to them on short notice. These subjects gave similar variety, in order to provide themes within the knowledge and ability of the speakers. In this more difficult assignment, the boys and girls gave an excellent account of themselves. The merit of the entire presentation was a credit to the competitors and their tutors, and it was felt among the audience that the contest was a valuable medium for promoting originality, self-confidence and qualities of leadership.

The judges awarded top honors to Lois Silverson and Roland Gow among the English speaking entrants, and Rolande Gauthier and Jacques Joanisse among the French students. Prizes were presented by the president, who thanked all who had participated, including also the school teachers for their guidance and encouragement.

It is recalled that several Lachute students proceeded to the semi-finals last year, and that four of these qualified for the Lions Club Quebec-Ontario finals at Trenton, Ont. One of them, Miss Hélène Lorange, won the title in the French-language group, a notable achievement. Two of this year's entrants here last week — Lois Silverson and Roland Gow — were among those who participated in the 1958 finals.

Boy Scouts' fund campaign

This week the annual campaign for funds to carry on the work of the Boy Scouts has been on the go, and to those who have donated the collectors wish to say "Thank-you."

If by chance any have been overlooked they may still make their donation to the chairman, Mr. Gordon Higginson, at the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The need for funds is greater this year than ever, as it is proposed to build a Scout Hall, where the boys can meet and learn many of the necessary things that in later years will be of great benefit to them.

Give generously to a worthy cause.

Fire Chief and Councillor —

B'burg duo offers free inspection of home premises for fire hazards

The March 2nd meeting of the Brownsburg Council opened with Police Chief Richard Gagnon's report. Speeding offences were up to nine this month, with two fines levied for red-light infractions, four for parking and three for overnight parking.

The fire department had a good month, with no fire alarms listed in Chief Robbins' report.

Council approved payment of monthly vouchers amounting to $2,589.64, then proceeded to the discussion of new business . . .

A sure sign of approaching spring — a motion was passed to adopt "fast time" when the system goes into effect in the province.

The news to the effect that "wrong-side parking" would be legal on certain Brownsburg streets was a bit premature. Seems as though an old "right-hand parking" by-law was never repealed, so Councillor Georges Therrien, who was against the change from the beginning, is able to relax once more. Motorists take note! . . . "Wrong-side parking" is no longer allowed on Brownsburg streets. This applies to everyone.

Councillor Therrien and Fire Chief Robbins are credited with an excellent idea for aiding in the elimination of fire hazards in the home. These two gentlemen, experts in their respective lines, will form an inspection team which, on request, will inspect the electrical service entrance and furnace area in any home in Brownsburg in order to point out fire hazards which may not be too obvious to the layman. The service is free to house-owners and the only payment expected by Messrs. Therrien and Robbins is the knowledge that they have done their best to prevent fires in our homes. The inspection will be extended to other parts of the house if requested, and all information relating to conditions therein will be confidential. Any citizens wishing to avail themselves of this service are invited to leave their names with the town secretary — phone LE 3-6687.

Five tenders for the purchase of a town bond issue were opened. The decision as to assignment of the sale of the bonds will be made by government authorities. The money is to be used for the water and sewerage extension in Brownsburg. During discussion of this project, Council passed a motion to ask for tenders for the installation of these facilities.

The most time-consuming item on the agenda was the discussion and subsequent approval of the financial statement for 1958. Council agreed that, with the following figures to back them up, the Corporation of the Village of Brownsburg had a successful year:

General Fund

	Expected	Actual
Revenue	48,733.93	61,781.06
Expenses	36,862.87	55,368.86
Surplus	11,871.06	6,412.20

Waterworks Fund

Grim discovery in local barn; suicide verdict

The body of William (Willie) Pariseau, 65, a life-long resident of this area, was found hanging from the rafters of a barn-storehouse on the property of A. D. McGibbon & Sons, Chatham Street, on Sunday afternoon — Dr. Jules Lafleur, district coroner, declaring the death a suicide.

The victim was separated from his wife and is survived by two brothers, Alfred and Arthur, both of Lachute.

He was last seen alive around eight o'clock Sunday morning by Harry Labonté, a McGibbon employee, who on entering the barn to feed the horses, noticed Pariseau sleeping in a stall. According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated with municipal police officers, Labonté gave the victim a blanket and left him sleeping in the stall.

Upon returning to his duties around 1.30 p.m., Labonté found the victim hanging from the rafters and notified authorities, who in turn called the Provincial Police.

The victim had been working for Jim Bates, R.R. 1, Lachute, but left the farm on Thursday. He was reported to have been in contact with Mr. Bates on Saturday.

Auto blaze leads to stolen car

A car, reported stolen from the Montreal area, was discovered on the St. Jerome highway a short distance past Lachute on Sunday morning. Traffic Officers Albert Legault and Lawrence Cruise made the discovery following a report that a car had caught fire and been abandoned.

The 1951 sedan was demolished by the blaze, the two persons who occupied the car having made off on foot towards St. Canut. At that place an hour later, another car was reported stolen.

To date, no report has been received on the culprits involved.

March lion is rampant; drifts tax snow-movers

If Old Man Winter has been vengeful all season, intent on humiliating mere mortals who defied him — he proved even more venemous last week-end.

After a few spring-like days which lulled Quebecers into assurance that the worst was over, the weatherman staged his worst blizzard of the year, and deposited another foot or so of snow on the total of 108.7 inches to the end of February.

The local High School was closed Friday when drifting snow deterred school-bus drivers. Motorists and truckers who braved the drifts out of town encountered the hazard of blinding snow as gusts whipped the snowbanks and reduced visibility to a few yards. Motorists drove with lights on, but still the danger was intense.

Every piece of snowclearing machinery was in action. Those with blowers, blades and mechanical shovels worked overtime to meet the demand from proprietors with snow-blocked yards and premises. Main Street was the scene of many stalled cars and trucks. The height of the blizzard came during busy week-end shopping hours, when heavy traffic made snow-plowing on Main Street impossible.

The general sentiment: "Surely this is the last!"

2-Band parade for St. Patrick's this Saturday

The Saint Patrick's Society of Lachute will hold its fourth annual Saint Patrick's Day Parade on Saturday, March 14.

The parade will move off from the Muir Bros. Service Station at 3 o'clock and proceed along Main Street to Bedard Blvd., then to Bethany Road and returning to Muir's Service Station at 4 o'clock. It is stated that the Mayor and members of Lachute Town Council wil officially lead the parade.

This year the Saint Patrick's Society has planned a gay parade suitable for the entire family. Featured will be 15 horses with gaily-dressed riders, the Lachute Boy Scouts and Army contingent, the Ayersville Air Cadets and many decorated floats sponsored by local merchants. Once again the ever-popular Saint Patrick's College Band from Ottawa will be featured, and a new addition to the parade will be the 75-piece band from Ste. Scholastique.

Followers of this event will be interested to hear that the old-vintage cars will be parading, and there will also be an opportunity to view the new 1959 cars.

To help cover costs, and to ensure a successful parade, tags will be offered Friday night and Saturday morning before the parade, and also during the afternoon while the parade is in progress. It is hoped that the Irish spirit will prevail and that the parade on Saturday will be well patronized

Signs of activity on Carillon power site

Information from a dependable source indicates that work on preliminaries of the Carillon power development is not far distant. Two Quebec Hydro officials, Messrs. Cousineau and Villeneuve, were at Carillon Monday to arrange for the delivery and placing of four million board feet of lumber, and were also reported to have visited the Registry Office here for a cadastral map of Carillon and vicinity.

According to our informant, construction plans by Quebec Hydro will leave Carillon Lock No. 1 as it is now, while a new lock will be installed between the present No. 1 and No. 2 locks, dispensing with No. 2 as it now exists.

Premier Duplessis' statement in the Legislature some time ago, and observations on the scene this week, give indication that the project is now well in hand.

Concert-goers enthralled by brilliant pianist

Among Community Concert audiences since this organization was started in Lachute years ago, rarely has there been such unanimous endorsement of an artist or a troupe, as the approval accorded here last week to George Feyer, pianist, in his recital at the High School. Tastes vary — some listeners prefer the classical, others the popular, and invariably there are some who lack conviction in their acclaim. But, as stated, seldom has there been such general and wholehearted acceptance as on this occasion. George Feyer rang the bell with a well-varied selection of classical and operetta pieces familiar to the greatest number. And when he combined the former with the mood of the popular stage, as in his "Musical Parody", he showed a complete mastery of both forms, and won hearty applause.

The parody, entitled, "Heavenly Echoes", was an original conception by Mr. Feyer of such masters as Chopin and Rachmaninoff playing their versions of familiar airs from the contemporary musical, "My Fair Lady."

In the classical selections were such numbers as the Warsaw Concherto (Addinsell), which opened the recital on a key twixt the modern and the traditional; Voices of Spring (Strauss); Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 (Liszt), and short excerpts from Bach, Chopin and other immortals.

There were lilting extracts from the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, "The King and I", from "Oklahoma", and others — many of them in Feyer's own arrangement — and George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue", which has outlived its composer and a million fleeting jazz compositions, to rank among the classics of the past generation.

Responding to enthusiastic applause, the pianist played several encores in the popular vein.

George Feyer, of Hungarian birth, is counted among the most successful concert pianists. His repertoire is literally limitless. He has appeared many times on Voices of Firestone and on the Ed Sullivan Show, and has made numerous recordings for Vox.

He is at ease on the stage, meeting his audience at colloquial level in both French and English.

During the intermission, President Simon Valois acknowledged the gesture of Willis Pianos, who kindly loaned the grand piano used on this occasion.

Ch. of Commerce visited by prov'l assistant manager

The first get-together of the Lachute Chamber of Commerce under direction of the new president, Adhémar Cuerrier, was held Monday evening at the Legion Hall.

Following a hearty meal, the guest speaker, Mr. Jean-Paul Letourneau, assistant general manager of the Province of Quebec Chamber of Commerce, was introduced by Bertrand L'Heureux, a past-president.

Outlining in general the constitution of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Letourneau defined it as "A group of civic minded citizens combining their experience and certain funds in order to promote the economic, civic and social welfare of their community."

The main activities of such an organization are (1) Industrial promotion, which comprises a survey of land and the essential requirements of industry — making a survey — and presenting both advantages and disadvantages, endeavoring of course to eliminate the latter. Also trying to find out what type of industry has real advantages in locating locally; (2) Commercial promotion; (3) Touristic promotion; and (4) Municipal Affairs, included the decoration of our stores and streets during the festive season, the matter of parking which was simplified to some extent by our fine wide Main Street, and co-operation with the local Council in matters of general interest.

The speaker emphasized the Chamber of Commerce as the "most important businessman's organization in the world." It is international, functioning successfully in 83 countries, with some 800 branches in Canada and 165 in Quebec Province, taking in over 25,000 businessmen.

Mr. Letourneau was thanked by president A. Cuerrier for his very fine address.

In thanking the members for their attendance Mr. Cuerrier out-

Dance halls, snow shovellers raise queries at Council meet

One of the few citizens to attend the last Council meeting, Mr. Pierre Soumis, offered a suggestion that the municipal by-law on dance halls be amended. Mr. Soumis is proprietor of the Windsor Hotel . . . The matter came up at the regular March assembly.

By-laws 190 and 203 order that proprietors or operators of such establishments stop all music at midnight on weekdays, and forbid orchestra or dance music on Sundays . . . Mr. Soumis recommended revisions to permit music and dancing until 1 a.m. on weekdays, and orchestra and dance music from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Sundays.

The question was taken up by Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion, who asked whether the present municipal regulations were unsatisfactory to hotelkeepers. Mr. Soumis, who had just signed his dance hall permit, replied, without hesitation, the Windsor was the fourth hotel he had operated, and this was the first time he had encountered such restrictions.

Reasons for Protest

"With the restrictions which you have imposed on dance halls, it is practically impossible to meet our expenses," he said, "especially when we employ an orchestra. I would suggest that you amend your by-law so as to allow orchestra music until 1 a.m. and closing at 2 a.m. It would be to general advantage to entice visitors to Lachute rather than encourage them to go elsewhere — and I would enquire what difference there may be whether people drink to the accompaniment of records or of 'live' music."

When questioned on the municipal jurisdiction in these matters, Mr. Germain Filion (the Council's 'vade mecum') stated the civic authority had powers to ease restrictions on dance halls but not on hotels as such.

Mayor McGibbon confessed he was not familiar with the exact nature of these laws, but affirmed it was the duty of the Council to see all by-laws were observed by all taxpayers.

More Questions

A query of a different aspect was put forward by Ald. Nelson Lepage, who asked a yes or no on this one, most appropriate to the season: "Have citizens the right to throw on the street the snow which they shovel from their properties?"

The Mayor believed this was forbidden, since the practice constituted a danger to motorists. He asked the police chief, and Jos. Senecal, town foreman, to keep an eye open and warn anyone seen committing this offence.

"However," he added, with the proverbial wisdom of King Solomon, "we must be fair to everybody concerned. Sometimes in the course of the winter, the municipality has been guilty of pushing snow onto private properties!"

Finally, as a compromise, it was agreed that the dumping of snow might be tolerated, but when it came to ice — if the shovellers had to dispose of it at all costs, then they must break it up in small pieces. It was a matter of using discretion, so as to cause no public hazard or accident.

Therefore, in answer to Ald. Lepage — they may — but — provided that — etc.

2 More donations, personal cheques for Lions' rink

Perhaps inspired by the action of an anonymous donor of $100 whose generosity was reported in the Watchman, two other benefactors have come to the aid of the Lions Club and given appreciable donations to the Artificial Ice Rink funds.

With stiff liabilities in their late start and in unfavorable weather conditions, it is doubtful whether the rink committee will make ends meet in their first winter of operation. This precarious state of finances is quite apart from capital costs. A considerable debt was incurred by the club at the outset, for which interest charges and repayments must be duly met.

The second cash donor reported by Lions President Phil Tremblay was the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, who sent a cheque for $100 as instalment on a more substantial donation. Also, at the last Lions' meeting, a veteran club member, International Counsellor Jack Giles, handed in a personal gift of $100.

These worthwhile donations are greatly appreciated, and are here publicly acknowledged by the rink committee.

SPEAKER AT ROTARY —

Says orator has 'atomic power' of communication

The man who can accept an invitation to speak with confidence can bring both himself and his company considerable credit, John McCormick of Montreal told a Brownsburg audience last Thursday evening.

Mr. McCormick, who is supervisor of general advertising, Canadian Industries Limited, said at the dinner meeting of the Rotary Club that it is important for business men of today to be able to communicate effectively their ideas, whether it to be a large audience in the community, in the board room or before a group of employees.

Even with the best of intentions, he pointed out, many speakers fail to inform and stimulate their audiences by committing the cardinal sins of speaking. He cited the example of speakers who begin with an inappropriate story, talk on and on, have little real information of value, talk in generalities and read their speeches. He suggested that such speakers bore their audiences, do little to increase their personal stature and, in reality, do a poor public relations job for their company.

Mr. McCormick, who is also district governor of Toastmasters International for Quebec and Eastern Ontario, said the best advice he could give to the business man who is called upon to speak, is to accept, provided he has something to say, he wants to say it, and he can say it with some enthusiasm.

With regard to the preparation of a speech, some hints were given on how to illustrate a talk with ex-

Resignation of Ayersv'l foreman and police officer

Verbal resignation was received by the Ayersville Council from Adrien Cyr, who has served as police chief and works foreman to the municipality since June 1957.

The resignation was received last Friday, and a special meeting of the Council is being held Wednesday evening, March 11, to discuss the question of a replacement. It is understood that tenders will be called for the vacancy.

In temporary charge of municipal works is Philias Lévis, acting foreman.

Routine affairs on March agenda at Town Council

Sunny climes claimed two absentees from the Council table — Alderman Stanley Church and Gérard Lefebvre — at the March session held in the civic chambers last week. Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon presided.

On motion of Ald. Stanley Holt (still sun-tanned from a similar vacation) Richard Bell was engaged for a further month's period as police constable.

Ald. Nelson Lepage moved, and Ald. Ludger Gibeault seconded, that remuneration to Lucien Bellefeuille for garbage removal be increased from $135 to $150 a week, but that the contractor must defray the cost of insurance for his employees — the policy for same to be kept at the municipal office.

The St. Patrick's Society obtained permission to hold a street parade on March 14, and to use the civic auditorium for a kiddies' reception. Use of the auditorium was also extended to the People's Church, on March 18.

A letter from the C.P.R. concerning various level-crosings and flasher signals, was tabled for study. Similarly, a letter from Begin, Charland & Valiquette, assessors, requesting a meeting with the Council to discuss resumption of their valuation work.

The auditors' report for 1958 was accepted, on motion of Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion, (seconded by Ald. Gibeault.

Accounts totalling $15,527 were passed for payment, on motion of Ald. L. Laurin, seconded by Ald. E. O. Pollock.

Council has adopted a new procedure in the reading of the minutes which, presented hitherto in both languages, has occupied about 20 minutes of the Council's session. From now on, each councillor will receive a mimeographed edition beforehand, and only one version will be read at the meeting — alternately, in English and in French.

Ald. Edgar Pollock remarked the Council had received no request at this meeting for building permits. "The matter gives reason for concern," he believed, "for at this time of year there is usually considerable building activity.".

C-I-L President visits B'burg plant

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Some good news from the Fish and Game Association: the map of district lakes open to fishing is going to be printed, and will be ready before the opening of the fishing season. It will be for members only, from what I have been told. This may not be such a good idea, even though those wanting the map will have to join the club. I thought it would have been sold to anyone at a nominal price, for those who wanted to have it. I'm probably wrong, but it would create more interest in the Association by being available to the public at all times, with the number of summer tourists landing in Lachute, it might have been a good idea to have this map for sale in some of the stores. — As we all know by now, people can't be forced into an association just to get a map. The amount of work that has been put into the Association to get members to join is better forgotten. It has got down to the point of giving a prize for members attending! There are only a few sportsmen interested in the preservation of our natural resources; for the rest it's just an evening to attend as they haven't anything better to do. With all the help being given by the Provincial Government just for the taking, it is hard to understand.

Some answers on Nymph fishing. This is not only for the fly man, it's for everyone. As most of you know, the mainstay for fish looking for food, is of the underwater variety. With the Minnow Ban in our county, a lot of anglers will have to start all over again.

Just a little on the Nymph itself, and then the use of them. . . . All flies in and around water either lay their eggs directly in or near it. Some of these eggs take up to two years to develop into a fly; others, a matter of days. If you carry a killing net, that is, a piece of cheesecloth on a wire — take a couple of samples from the water you are fishing to find out what the fish are feeding on in that part of the water. This changes over distances and type of water, all the time. To use the artificials properly, it is necessary to use a longer leader than what you are in the habit of using. Make it at least 12 ft. and no sinkers; just let it drift with the current — in other words let it float free with no check on it. Most of the time fishing this lure up-river is the best, but that will be up to you. It can be used downstream with fair results. Another thing, don't expect a sudden strike from the fish; most of the time it is just a tightening of the line and then the steady pull as it is taken into the current. A slack line under control is the answer to all Nymph fishing.

There is no limit to what can be used in the way of lures. Even if live bait is used the same thing applies. Use the long leaders with a split shot and you will be getting into the light tackle class. There are crayfish, frogs, clams, insects and grubs of all kinds around, so use them. Even with heavy-flowing water it is still possible to have a lot of fun this way. Just use a little imagination with your fishing, and the results will surprise you. One good thing about the minnow ban is that everyone is going to have to use lighter tackle, and you're going to have to work for your fish. Don't take any more than will give you a meal; after all we are supposed to be sportsmen. Fish are never meant to go in a garbage pail! It isn't the catch that makes you a good sport. Trout do not feed much in the winter; and with the melting of the ice, they suddenly come to life with the abundance of underwater activity with the nymphs. These will have to be fished deep, as with lures, but it can be done. This is something that you will have to find out for yourself, I won't try and tell you.

Another thing that should be remembered is that some of these Nymphs, are very small, only about a 16th of an inch long; so a small hook is the order. As a matter of fact, no hook over a No. 8 should be used, and preferably 10 or 12. Anyone wanting to make artificials can make them this way. Wind some waxed thread around the shank of the hook, starting at the eye and going back to the bend of the hook. Don't cut the thread off. Wind some wool over the top of the thread, tieing it in with the thread, then wind back to the eye. Tie in a head, use a little of your wife's nail polish to hold it together, and there you are. Do not cut it smooth, as the rough appearance is best. It may look like a Heinz (57 varieties), but don't worry about that, it will catch fish. I know that some of the lakes and streams around that are supposedly fished out can all yield good catches with insects. The real beauty about this type of fishing, is that it can be carried on at any time of the season, and the sudden changes in weather don't seem to have the effect on it the way it does on other types . . . So much for the Nymphs.

A word to the boat owners . . . Had a look at your boat recently? Spare a little of your time and go do it. Clear some of the snow and ice away from it, otherwise, with it melting steadily now, it may give you a little grief later on. Check on the supports you used to hold the boat off the ground. See they haven't fallen over and left some part on the ground. It won't take long, so take these precautions.

A few more crows are showing up, so anyone wanting a little "live" shooting should get busy. Before too long they will all be back, and it will pay to get your shooting in before that time. It will be very hard to decoy them in just now, especially if you haven't a caller. An old sheet pulled over you, and maybe a stuffed owl if you can get one, a few squawks out of your caller, and you might at least get a shot. Don't forget to be well hidden for the first few shots, let any of the dead birds lie right where they are, and this will keep the others diving for a shot.

I know there isn't too much in the sporting field to be done right now, so you'll have to make your own sport. Even a little target shooting up around some of the pits can be fun.

The Association have given me the dates for the next meeting, March 19 is the night. So watch for further news on this, and make up your mind to be there this time.

Bombers suffer first defeat this season

The Brownsburg Bombers went down to their first defeat of the season on Sunday afternoon, as the Hawkesbury Richports squeezed out a 5-4 win. The Bombers went into the final period with a one-goal lead, but defensive lapses allowed the Richports to tie the count at 4-4 then go ahead with less than five minutes to play. This was a long, hard-checking affair, but did not come close to Wednesday night's contest where penalties were concerned. The Bombers picked up only two minors, while the Richports sat out a total of four minors and one misconduct.

Jacques Racine opened the scoring for the Bombers after one minute and two seconds, assisted by Willis MacAdam. André Ouellette was also credited with an assist. Hawkesbury tied the count at 1-1 five minutes later as Proulx tallied in the lower left-hand corner of the net. Hawkesbury went one up at the 13-minute mark on a solo effort by Bender. Red Charlebois evened the count with Robitaille and Lamoureux assisting.

The Bombers went out in front again at 2.01 of the second period, when Charlebois and Lamoureux passed to Bill Robitaille, who beat Larriviere from close in. André Ouellette made it 4-2 at the 4.50 mark on a relay from Racine and Dimock. Proulx ended the scoring in the second stanza as he picked up a pass from Larocque and Villeneuve and fired the puck home, at 15.27. Buddy Racine pulled off a fine save on Morten when the latter broke away at centre ice with nobody to beat, just before the period ended.

The Bombers seemed to tire in the last period, and St. James and Chamaillard picked up a goal each to make the final score 5-4 for Hawkesbury.

Side Lines

Had Joe Larocque been in attendance, the score could have been increased in favor of the Richports. The Bomber defence lacked its usual stone-wall appearance and Joe is a fast boy with the puck.

Willis MacAdam is hitting his peak now. He plays a good, solid defensive game and combines this with a steady type of play on his rink-length rushes.

Business ladies' invitation spiel successful event

A successful bonspiel was held by the Business Ladies' Section at the Lachute Curling Club last Saturday. Eight outside rinks were invited to participate, and even though the weather was so poor, only one rink was unable to make the trip. Teams came from the Wentworth Club in Montreal, Town of Mount Royal, Three Rivers, Vankleek Hill and Hawkesbury. The Valleyfield team were unable to attend.

Games started at 9.15 a.m. and continued until 5 p.m. The Town of Mount Royal team — Maureen Cumbers (skip), Helen Ritchie, Marjorie Barber and Cay Kennerly — won the main event. The Vankleek Hill team made up of — Agnes Hunter (skip), Marg Rutherford, Marion McDonald and Frances Livock — won the consolation event.

The Lachute ladies served a delicious lunch, and also served tea in the late afternoon.

Due to the condition of the roads several teams decided not to drive back to the city in the evening. Suitable accommodation was found in Lachute and many of the girls attended the Club in the evening to enjoy more curling and dancing afterwards.

Inefficient fire alarm system

THE QUESTION of the local fire alarm has been one of contention with members of the Fire Department for several years now, and as yet, nothing has been done to remedy the situation. This could prove to be highly dangerous, especially as only a small percentage of the members can hear the alarm at all times.

There are various solutions, all of which have been presented to previous Councils, but all for some reason or other were turned aside. We will not go so far as to say that a personal alarm system in each residence or place of business is necessary, although it would be a big asset, but the need for some improvement definitely is necessary.

The alarm, along with the fire equipment in general, was condemned by the Fire Underwriters' Association, and while solution to the latter items is out of the hands of Council at the present time pending word from the Provincial Government as to a grant, the alarm is something that could be fixed immediately, even if only as a temporary means of improving the system.

It is hoped that something will be done before it is too late.

Canada's baby boom

IF THE NUMBER of new births is any indication — and most people would agree that it is — last year's economic setback did nothing to shake the confidence of Canadians in their future. The recession notwithstanding, more babies — close to half-a-million in all — were born in Canada in 1958 than in any previous year.

This is news to gladden the hearts of more than the million or so fond parents directly concerned. Manufacturers of such indispensables as baby foods and powders, diapers and, safety pins, layettes and carriages — to mention but a few — will be understandably delighted.

Likewise Ottawa, although it's rejoicing that the number of prospective taxpayers is increasing at such a fast clip will doubtless be tempered by regret that they are not yet all grown up and at work.

The nation as a whole, of course, has good reason to welcome the arrival of nearly half-a-million infants in a single year. It stands to gain most of all. It will benefit immediately in that this population boost will, of itself, contribute in no small way to economic recovery. And it will benefit no less surely in the long run, for natural increase on this scale promises well for our national future.

There is added cause for satisfaction. While our birthrate continued to hold at around 28 per 1,000 of the population (one of the highest in the world), the national deathrate fell below eight per 1,000 for the first time in Canadian history. Total number of deaths in 1958 (133,000) was nearly equalled — and, therefore, cancelled out — by the number of immigrants admitted during the year.

Making due allowance for emigration, our net gain in population in 1958 was almost 400,000 — a satisfactory figure, all things considered. But it will be a matter for much gratification if we do even better this year.

Kipling was wrong

RUDYARD KIPLING'S famous lines "Oh, East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet" may have been true of the 19th century in which he lived, but in today's world East and West are going to have to get to know each other better or the future of mankind is not very bright.

A meeting taking place in Montreal this week will decide how Canadians can best help in promoting understanding between East and West. The first national conference of the Canadian National Commission for UNESCO will discuss an imaginative plan by which the members of the United Nations are working to encourage mutual understanding between the nations of the Occident and the Orient.

This is a phase of the work of the United Nations that is too little known and appreciated. A ten-year project that has already been two years in operation, it has been taken up by more than 30 countries each developing a program of action best suited to its own conditions. For example, Scandinavian countries are preparing two exhibits: one of Scandinavia to tour the Orient, and one of the Orient to tour Scandinavia. Japan is working on translations of representative literary works and has held an international seminar on the treatment of the West in school curricula in Asian countries. India is emphasizing the true interpretation of the West in secondary school studies and teacher training colleges. The United States has held an International Theatre Week with plays by Asians or about Asia, in universities, colleges and children's theatres. The United Kingdom has set up a continuing program in schools.

UNESCO recognizes the difficulties to be overcome and that they are mostly psychological and political. There will be no magic change but by patient and sustained effort it is hoped that conditions will gradually be created for development of a world civilization in which all cultures can co-exist and collaborate, retaining their own original qualities while engaged in fruitful exchange based on mutual respect. This is truly work for peace "at the grassroots level".

Canada, with one coast fronting the Orient, has a vital stake in the success of this significant project for international understanding. The decisions made in Montreal will be awaited with interest.

Playwrights get help

CANADIAN playwriting, an exacting art that is still only in its awakening, has received a boost from the Canada Council. The assistance is in the form of two grants of $5,000 to the Crest Theatre of Toronto and La Comedie Canadienne of Montreal, for the commissioning of two original Canadian plays.

The sums are probably among the largest ever paid for such writing in Canada, a country where the theatre is acquiring new supporters year by year. Playwriting in Canada received its greatest impetus when television was established nearly seven years ago. The demands of TV for fresh new plays are large, and many writers took up the challenge to fill those needs. While the technique of television and stage writing are not exactly the same, TV provides a training ground for budding playwrights.

Two examples of this are Arthur Hailey of Toronto, who scored his first major hit in television and now has been commissioned to write a play for a leading theatre group in New York, and, among the French-language playwrights, Marcel Dubé of Montreal. The latter has developed just as quickly into a leading author of the Canadian theatre, some of his works being adapted into English.

And television viewers, weaned on some of the better plays staged on TV, have begun to turn to the live theatre for more substantial fare, especially Canadian efforts.

The Canada Council was aware of these developments when it announced the awards for plays written especially for the two theatrical groups by Canadians.

The Crest has commissioned a musical play with book and lyrics by John Gray of Toronto and Louis Applebaum, musical director of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival. Gratien Gelinas, French Canada's bright theatrical star and director of the bilingual Comedie Canadienne, is expected to announce shortly his choice of playwright and play.

Viewpoints and perspectives

LUNAR INTELLIGENCE — The following letter from a reader appeared in a recent issue of a daily newspaper:

"In view of the great expense and difficulty in firing rockets to the moon, I would suggest that future attempts be made when the moon is full. There would be a better chance of hitting this larger target than hitting the thin crescent present at the time of the latest Russian attempt."

No doubt all those brilliant Russian scientists will kick themselves for not having thought of this first. — Industry

ONTARIO TO ADOPT DEMERIT SYSTEM OF TRAFFIC CONTROL

Every province in Canada is trying plans and schemes to protect pedestrians from motorists and motorists from themselves. Too many children are killed or maimed in spite of elaborate precautions to direct them across intersections. After studying the results of various plans in force in other provinces, Ontario authorities are adopting the demerit system whereby traffic offences, major or minor, are listed and when a specified total is reached an offender's license is revoked.

What is the mystery of the Lemming?

The lemming is a small stout rodent belonging to the same family as most Canadian mice. Two kinds live in northern Canada: the brown lemming and the collared or varying lemming. Both occur on the Arctic mainland and on the southern Arctic islands.

Lemmings are subject to violent fluctuations in numbers, reaching a peak about every four to five years. In peak years the brown lemmings of Norway, for instance, for a reason still to be discovered, engage in mass migrations. Thousands of them march down to the sea, hurl themselves into the water, swim out and drown. A shortage of food has been suggested as an explanation for this behaviour.

What makes the pattern in wood?

Wood is composed of thousands of tiny cells that are packed closely together. The arrangement of these cells and the thickness of the cell walls determine the texture and pattern of the wood. Of great importance are the growth rings, layers of thin-walled and thick-walled cells. Many kinds of cell, however, contribute to pattern. Conifers are made up of tiny tube-like fibres, the ends of which are closed and pointed. These tracheids, as they are called, have pitted walls through which the sap runs. In broad-leaved trees, the cells are much shorter and smaller in diameter. Their ends are open, so when it is seen in cross section the wood appears very porous. The pores are arranged in rings in chestnuts and oaks, but scattered at random in maples, birches and poplars.

In addition to cells arranged vertically, there are horizontal cells. These are known as rays and can be seen as silvery lines in oaks.

Who was kicked in Kicking Horse Pass?

Dr. James Hector was kicked there. The pass, in the Rocky Mountains to the northwest of Banff, is at an altitude of 5,339 feet. So far as is known, the first European to use it was Dr. Hector, a Scottish geologist and surgeon who had come with the Palliser expedition to investigate the agricultural possibilities of the West. He crossed the mountains by way of Vermilion Pass and returned by way of Kicking Horse Pass in 1858. The name was given by his men to commemorate the fact that Hector's horse kicked him on their way through the pass.

TOWN AND COUNTRY

An American business man on a hunting trip in the Ozark mountains of Arkansas or Missouri, became separated from his companions and was hopelessly lost all that day, all night and most of the following day. Towards sunset he staggered into a small clearing in the woods in which stood five log cabins. One of these displayed a sign, "General Store". He entered to find the proprietor arranging a small stock of groceries, explained his predicament and was told that he was 12 miles away from the point where he entered the woods. There was no chance of getting out that night, but he was advised to see the Widow Smith who occupied one of the other cabins. The storekeeper felt sure that she could put him up for the night.

The Widow Smith gave him a light supper and a bed, and he slept the sleep of utter exhaustion until nearly noon the next day. Feeling much refreshed, he paid for his lodging and thanked the widow, complimenting her on her cosy, clean cabin and her good meals.

"It must certainly be wonderful to live in the country," he told her. "I guess so," she replied. "I wouldn't know. I've never lived in the country. I was born and raised right here in town!"

This fictional story is not so far-fetched as you might imagine. In 1940 a friend of mine who was assistant physical director at Montreal's Central Y.M.C.A. had an identical experience in the Ozark mountains. After being lost for about two days and a night, he came across a solitary cabin in the woods, in which lived a woman who had not seen anyone except the immediate neighbors, the nearest of which was two miles away, for over 30 years! She put him up for the night and fed him, and next morning started him on a trail by which he eventually found his way back to "the outside", as the rest of the world is known to the mountaineers. She had heard of horseless carriages and electric light, but had seen neither.

What happened to girl calendars? A wave of puritanism seems to have swept through the ranks of calendar makers. They have swung away from the female shape, toward such less exciting scenery as mountains, trees and men in hip-boots catching fish.

Old, covered bridges are replacing young, uncovered girls as calendar subjects.

A friend first drew this to my attention early in the year, since then he has dropped in at regular intervals to complain about it. He talks in an accusing tone, as though it was my fault.

All I can do is broadcast his grievance, and hope it sets the right ears burning.

I certainly do not go around seeking cutie calendars, but when I find myself in the same room as one, I make an effort, lasting about three seconds, to avert my eyes — and then I spin on my heel and confront her fearlessly.

Cutie calendars are usually found in such male haunts as garages and welding shops. They brighten many an idle moment that a man spends waiting for the mechanics to align the flooble wheel with the zommet, and install a new regurgitator.

Sometimes on these occasions, I find the calendar so absorbing that the mechanics are forced to tap me gently on the skull with a wrench, to restore consciousness and let me know that the car is ready.

In the absence of girl calendars, the average garage will be a bleak place, with nothing to look at but cans of oil and rust eliminator, and nothing to take the car-owner's mind off his impending repair bill.

If garagemen know what's good for them, they will tell the calendar makers to get back on the right road or take their trade elsewhere. With no girls in filmy garments to catch their attention, many car-drivers will take to looking critically over the mechanics' shoulders, and asking questions. That could lead to frayed tempers, and trouble all around. So let's have the calendars back. There is no time to be lost.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Injection

It has been a long, cold, miserable winter here in Winnipeg, and it has made some of us pretty hard to get along with, and a bit droopy about our work.

Two things have happened, though, to give me an injection of goodwill and pep.

First, and perhaps most important, I got into a word battle with another man in which we smote each other hip and thigh — and then, through correspondence, we became good friends, each with considerable respect for the other. Ah that' all such battles could end so agreeably for the combatants.

Secondly. I found I had to make a trip, and my work was already behind. Funny what you can do when you must. I burned the midnight oil two or three nights in succession, and I was at my typewriter at sun-up for a while — but when this column is written and checked for spelling I'll be right on top of my schedule and ready to grab a plane with a free conscience. And it feels good to have extended myself to the limit — haven't even had time to notice how miserable the winter has been.

I suppose that when the trip is over I'll come back to another work load, but I propose to trick myself by setting a deadline and making myself some promises. Perhaps we all need deadlines of one sort or another, even if we must impose them on ourselves. Work is a terrible thing, until you get at it and do it — and then, surprisingly enough, it can be more fun than loafnig.

If you've been down in the dumps or functioning like a carbinned-up motor, try setting a deadline and see what it does for you! Soon you'll be into your work with real vigor and getting a tremendous bang out of it. At least, that's the way it has been with me this week. Maybe I ought to hire someone to follow me around and kick me in the shins when I loaf? I hope you are too busy to apply for the job!

Mother-daughter banquet by Guides at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — In the United Church on Tuesday, March 3, the first mother-and-daughter banquet held by the local Girl Guides, proved a successful venture.

After all had partaken of a delicious dinner, Mrs. Lapp introduced the guest speaker, Miss Daphne Montefiore, who treated the Guides to some informative facts about International Guiding. Miss Jean Rutherford, a patrol leader, offered the speaker the thanks of the company.

Following the making of flags of different countries, and speaking about Guiding in those countries by each Guide, Miss Joan Green gave her report as Captain, and Mrs. S. Rose gave the report for the Local Association.

For sponsoring this successful event the Guides wish to thank the Women's Association, Group A, and also for the use of their church hall.

Thoughtless Parking

The old idea that Spring is just around the corner makes us wonder just how long it takes you to turn a corner! Some people turn our road corners too quickly; and others try to make them even more dangerous. The corner just west of Mr. Lavigne's house is a dangerous spot at all seasons of the year, yet ice-fishermen from outside the district are making it even more dangerous by parking their car directly on the corner, already almost too narrow to permit proper driving. Persons coming around a bit quickly could scarcely help smashing into this parked car.

Report on Quebec Divn. annual meet is highlight at local Red Cross session

Women's Work described by president as "backbone of the Red Cross"

The monthly meeting of Lachute branch of the Red Cross Society was held last Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Linton Armstrong presiding.

Mrs. George McGibbon moved a vote of thanks to the retiring officers, mentioning especially Mrs. Leonard Bedard, for efficient services as secretary for the past four years.

Report on Annual Meeting

Mrs. Harry Booth, a delegate to the 49th annual meeting of the Quebec Division of Canadian Red Cross, held in Montreal, gave a very interesting report. Mrs. Booth said a special tribute was paid by Mr. Collie, the president, to the "Women's Work" which he described as the "backbone of the Red Cross". During the year 742,753 articles were produced, which was an increase of 1,664 over 1957. Requests for articles of clothing continue to be received from Red Cross Societies all over the world particularly for countries where disasters have occurred. During the past year articles were sent to Poland, Switzerland, Austria, Pakistan, Tunisia, Egypt, Germany, Geneva, Greece and many others. The president announced that Mrs. Boudrais had resigned from the "Women's Work" department and Mrs. E. Smith has taken her place.

Hospital beds and wheelchairs are available from headquarters on request and during the year 86 wheelchairs and 53 hospital beds were purchased. There were 481 disasters dealt with during the year and 3,468 individuals were helped, at an approximate cost of $51,100.

The great need for blood was stressed by Dr. Harris, who also pointed out the advantage of having lists of people's names willing to donate blood when it is required. Fewer veterans applied for help in 1958. The total number assisted was 6,970. Due to increased help and interest in the field of Arts and Crafts, there was a tremendous increase in the number of artieles produced by veteran patients.

Dr. MacAuley gave a very interesting talk on his work with the International Red Cross, and in particular his visit to Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia, where he was warmly welcomed. The Red Cross of these countries co-operated with him in every way possible, and he was instrumental in uniting over 100 people with their families in Canada. He was very happy to report that Canada's Red Cross Society is held in very high esteem in every country he visited, and he felt that the international recognition is mainly due to the devoted efforts of the workers in the small branches of the Society all over Canada.

Mrs. Booth was thanked for this splendid report, by Mrs. Linton Armstrong.

Report on Work Completed

Mrs. Fraser Morrison reported her committee had shipped on February 4 the following items:

1,055 Swabs, 128 diapers, 35 baby vests, 15 baby nightgowns, 5 baby blankets, 40 combinations (2 yrs.), 25 pairs pyjamas (2 yrs.), 5 boys' shorts (10 yrs.), 10 girls' blouses (10 yrs.), 2 quilts (large), 7 pairs men's socks, 3 children's sweaters, 4 baby sweaters, 2 prs. mittens, 1 pr. child's socks, 1 pr. bootees.

Donations — 2 baby sweaters, 1 pr. bootees.

Special observances by Jehovah's Witnesses, March 17 to 23

Lachute congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses are anticipating a special week of activity March 17-23 with services and meetings to be held in their Kingdom Hall, 572 Main Street. The event will be the semi-annual visit of their circuit representative, Mr. André Aveline of Montreal, whose visit will be coupled with the annual observance by Jehovah's Witnesses of the Lord's Supper.

Commenting on the event, Mr. P. A. Rae, presiding minister, said, "This entire week of Mr. Aveline's visit will be one of 'incitement to love and right works'. He will meet with local ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses on Tuesday, March 17, and at 7.30 p.m. will join with them in their weekly Ministry School and Field Activity Meeting, giving counsel and instruction with a view to improving their ministry. Throughout the week Mr. Aveline will lead local Witnesses in house-to-house ministry and in conducting home Bible studies as part of a training program conforming to that of the early Christians.

"A public address will be featured on Sunday, March 22, at 3 p.m., when Mr. Aveline will speak on the subject, 'What is the Divine Will for Our Day?'

The meeting on Monday, March 23, at 8 p.m. will be conducted in observance of the Lord's Evening Meal. This memorial of the Lord's death is observed by Jehovah's Witnesses each year on its anniversary date, which corresponds with the Jewish Nisan 14, reminding us of the words of the Apostle Paul, 'Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us' and of Jesus' command to His disciples, 'This do in remembrance of Me.'

New Canadian grateful

"That book tells me the meaning of life," declared a New Canadian immigrant as he placed $5,000 in cash into the hands of a British and Foreign Bible Society representative.

A Roumanian immigrant came to Canada a few years back and settled as a farm laborer in the Niagara Peninsula. A Bible Society colporteur left with him a copy of the New Testament in his native tongue. This immigrant found in the Scriptures the answer to his heart's deepest need, and by consistent reading he grew in grace and knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ.

When asked by a Bible Society representative, "What does this book mean to you?" this Roumanian declared, "That book tells me the meaning of life!" and placed $5,000 in savings bonds in the hands of a Bible Society representative, adding, "Tell the Bible Society to print more Gospels for my fellow New Canadians."

In 1958 the Bible Society distributed 362,000 copies of Scriptures in 70 languages in Canada.

amples and how to use word pictures to visualize the ideas presented. In dealing with the problem of knowing when to stop, Mr. McCormick said this should not exist as it is only necessary to follow an outline and when the speaker's last point is made, the important points should be summed up and the speaker should sit down.

In conclusion, he stated that public speaking, although not easy, was worth the effort. Moments of nervousness will always confront the speaker, but giving a talk comes a little easier with practice. He said that Rotarians, important leaders in their community, have an opportunity and a responsibility to give people the facts as they see them and also to speak up for the various community projects which they undertake. He called on his listeners to realize fully the great potentiality that lies within each of them — the "atomic power" of communication.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Wes Freeland and thanked by Rotarian Art Lapp.

The sale of combination raffle (a week-end in New York) and Bingo (Lachute Auditorium, April 3) tickets got underway at the meeting, under the chairmanship of Rotarian Cliff Cunningham. A book of five tickets entitles the purchaser to a chance on the New York week-end, or $150 cash, and entrance to the Bingo and 10 free games. Tickets can be purchased from any Rotarian, and proceeds from the event will go towards maintenance and development of the Community Park.

lined briefly some things in mind for the future, one of which was a good Filtration Plant to improve our drinking water, which at present is not up to standard. Such a move has been made recently in Hawkesbury with most satisfactory results.

A delegation will shortly visit Ottawa to present a brief on the plan for development of the Ottawa River. Further notice of this will be given at a later date.

Business men are urged to lend their support to the Chamber of Commerce, for without it nothing worthwhile can ever be accomplished.

Report issued on Prov. Quebec mining industry

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, has authorized publication of the annual report entitled, "The Mining Industry of the Province of Quebec in 1957."

According to this report, the value of the mineral production of the province in 1957 was slightly lower than that of 1956: $443,808,980 as compared with $463,680,968.

However, this decrease was caused mainly by a smaller production and lower prices of certain metals only, such as copper and zinc.

On the other hand, the report shows that the industrial minerals and the building materials were in greater demand in 1957.

The report contains also details on the operations and developments in the mining industry, statistics on employment, salaries and accidents. There is also a description, illustrated with a map, of a vast project which has not received very much publicity: the moving of part of the town of Thetford Mines.

Copies of this report may be obtained upon request to the Department of Mines in Quebec, or from offices of the Department elsewhere in the province.

Happy Days!

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

How many things go into making a little child's day?

Mothers often think of caring for their children in terms of nourishing meals, attractive, suitable clothes, a comfortable bed, and a place of his own in the home. But happiness, woven in and out of a child's day, is very important, too. Frequently, emotional upsets or undesirable habits can be traced to inner turmoil and unhappiness. What are some of the elements that make for normal growth and a satisfying day for the average preschool youngster?

He needs to know what to expect in his day. That's where a routine comes in — not a very rigid one, where mealtime cannot change by five or ten minutes when an unexpected event occurs, nor yet such a flexible one that it is scarcely a schedule at all. A child needs a routine whereby he gets up, goes to the toilet, washes, dresses, has his breakfast, and carries through the rest of his day with the minimum of discreet commands. Mother shouldn't have to give continual orders, because his meals, playtime, rest, and so on, follow a similar pattern each day.

Another constituent in a happy day is a great deal of activity out of doors. A boy or girl needs a safe place for fun outside and enough play equipment to escape boredom. A homemade ladder, a slide, a little playhouse, a sandbox, a barrel with the ends knocked out, a ball, large blocks — these form inexpensive outdoor play material that a child can use to advantage. A child wants to run and play and swing and slide.. His big muscles crave exercise in the fresh air and sunshine. The child on a farm, who can roam his Dad's fields, has a distinct advantage over his city cousin.

A child requires suitable indoor playthings, too, and, if possible, open shelves to house his treasures Orange crates, painted a bright color, become excellent shelves for toys and blocks. Books, paints and crayons, plasticine, blunt scissors, paste, a scrapbook and old magazines from which pictures can be cut, a blackboard and chalk — all these are constructive toys which keep a child occupied.

After a child is two and one half or three, he needs companions his own age. He discovers that it is more fun to play with his toys if another youngster is also playing in the same yard or room. In some families the church nursery class or the kindergarten helps to meet this real need for companionship.

City mothers may often leave their children where there is an opportunity to play with other children. Rural mothers arrange co-operative daytime baby-sitting plans, which free mothers for an afternoon, and give children an opportunity for play.

The child who does have the chance to play with other children soon shows how much he enjoys their society. Children should always be supervised to some extent in their play, and provided with play equipment that is suitable. This is an exacting job, but it does make happy youngsters and makes them better prepared to start school.

Of course, the biggest factor in a young child's satisfying day is the loving relationship with his parents. Mother and Dad loom so large in his small world. If he is accepted as he is, if he receives affection and patience and understanding, he may feel like Christopher Robin when he said: "Thank you, God, for a happy day!"

Are you giving your child the experiences he needs for a childhood of happy days!

Stormy Petrel dies out of normal habitat

Montreal — A stormy petrel which alighted on the deck of the Cunard liner Caronia in mid-Atlantic recently was cared for by one of the ship's company and carried to Southampton.

Southampton's balmy air, however, was ill-suited to the little ocean flyer, whose body was designed to weather the gusts of the Atlantic and the icy winds of Greenland, and it died.

The bright-eyed little bird is known to seamen as Mother Carey's chicken. Legend has it that the birds earned this name through their reputation as the messengers of stormy weather. Used in the plural — Mother Carey's chickens — their presence round a ship is said to portend snow. Another story contends that it is unlucky to kill one, for each stormy petrel carries the soul of a dead mariner.

The Caronia's little visitor has been stuffed and now perches in the museum of the Zoology department at Southampton University.

Traditional and tasty

The ancient Greeks, Egyptians and Romans made buns marked with crosses which they thought possessed powers to prevent illness. Hot Cross Buns of the Christian era first appeared around 1250 A.D., when they were sold to Easter Sunday communicants as they left the church. In the sixteenth century people began to eat these small, cross-marked buns on Good Friday. Here in Canada the Hot Cross Bun season starts on Ash Wednesday and continues all through Lent. The buns are much the same as they were in days gone by — yeast-raised, touched with spices, and raisins or currants, and iced with a white cross in a sweet frosting. This recipe has a special tasty addition — a little grated lemon rind and mixed candied peels.

Hot Cross Buns are especially good when served piping hot. To do this they can be placed in the top of a tightly covered double boiler over rapidly boiling water for about five minutes. The buns can also be wrapped in foil or in a moistened, heavy brown paper bag and heated about ten minutes in a moderate oven preheated to three hundred and fifty degrees.

Hot Cross Buns

(Yield — 2 dozen buns)

1-¼ Cups milk, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 2-½ teaspoons salt, ¼ cup shortening, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, 2 envelopes active dry yeast, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 5-½ cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons ground cinnamon, 1 teaspoon grated nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon ground mace, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, 1 cup seedless raisins, ½ cup chopped mixed candied peels and citron, 1 tablespoon water, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar.

Scald milk; stir in the ¼ cup sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Beat one whole egg and one yolk together. Add egg and lukewarm milk mixture to dissolve yeast; stir in lemon rind. Combine in sifter, 3 cups of the flour, cinnamon, nutmeg, mace and cloves. Sift into yeast mixture; stir to combine, then beat until smooth and elastic. Mix in seedless raisins and candied peels and citron. Stir in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 2½ cups more. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1-½ hours. Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 2 equal portions. Form each portion into a roll 12 inches long. Cut each roll into 12 equal-sized pieces. Shape pieces into smooth round balls; flatten slightly, then arrange on greased cookie sheets. Grease tops. Cover with a tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 45 minutes. Beat remaining egg white and the 1 tablespoon water together slightly. Brush on the risen buns and sprinkle with the 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Mark an "X" on each bun with a little confectioners' icing.

All-Canadian Girl

It was a dirty murky day, all the worse for not being cold. The roads were quagmires of melting snow.

"Don't you wish you lived in Miami or some such place where the sun always shines?" I teasingly inquired of Lucille-with-the-sparkling eyes.

"Certainly not!" she scornfully retorted as she fastened on her plastic boots. "I'm sorry for those people who have never known the joy of four seasons as we know it in Canada.

"Oh, sure, winter can be dreary and pretty grim sometimes — days like this for instance. But there are compensations. The snow has a beauty of its own. Even dodging the slush thrown up by the cars as they swish by can be fun!

"And who in the right mind would want to be denied the anticipation of spring, the fulfilment of summer or the bitter-sweetness of our fall?

"I've been to Miami, to Bermuda, to California. They're nice places to visit, provided you don't stay too long. But live there? — no sir! Give me Canada every time." And with that she was gone.

An all-Canadian girl, that's Lucille. — Industry

Ottawa — (CP) — At a time when the necessity for having a "sharp" figure is echoed from the pages of almost any women's magazine, a distinguished Canadian has suggested there is something to be said for a sharp mind.

Governor-General Massey chose the Women's Canadian Club of Ottawa to put across his suggestion that on education in general, the example of the home may be important. To be more specific, he suggested that if, for example, all persons over the age of 30 attended diligently to the improvement of their minds there might be less reason to complain about the minds of youngsters.

He didn't suggest that everyone should try to become an intellectual. But again, he had a specific suggestion for what he termed an age of escape literature.

"Is it too much to oblige ourselves to read carefully and thoughtfully one really worthwhile book every month — or if that is too much, every three months?" he asked.

On the basis of two remarks he made about women, it's possible that Mr. Massey felt he had a receptive audience for his suggestions.

At one point, he said women are "notoriously more conscientious than men." He also said that contrary to general belief men are the flighty and unreliable sex; "women take things seriously."

Caribbean Post

Carman Lusan, the genial Caribbean area secretary of the YWCA, has just finished a seven-week visit to Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal.

"It's a refresher course," said Miss Lusan, who hails from Kingston, Jamaica, and happily reported that a friend loaned her a fur coat for her Toronto stay.

For nine years Jamaica general secretary, she was appointed to her present job six months ago. Her main task is to recruit leaders and strengthen seven small associations within the 12-association Carib bean area.

Amusement Era

Canadians are living in a "funmentality era," the Chant royal commission on education was told at Vancouver by Harcourt Roy, physical education expert.

"The play-way of living has been allowed to dominate our lives," said Mr. Roy, executive director of the central fitness council. "We ought to be able to develop a program where fun comes from effort. The athletic scene is dominated by a few naturals who don't really need to be taught."

Mr. Roy proposed three physical education periods for seven days at school and criticized modern dancing "in which people just lean against each other with the lights low."

Ballroom dancing was helpful because it encouraged self-possession, but dancing should be low on the list of necessary elements of a physical education program, he said.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I have been told that the Commission has to try to find work for me of the same type that I had previously and at the same rate of pay, and that I do not have to accept anything else. Is that correct?

A. No. Every effort is made to help you find work of the same kind and under similar conditions to those which you previously enjoyed. However, if, after a reasonable period, these efforts are unsuccessful, refusal to apply for or accept employment of another kind at the going rate of wages for that occupation may affect your entitlement to benefit.

Q. It has been one year now since my husband filed an application for unemployment benefit but by the time he received his forms, he left for the hospital. I returned the forms. Now he has been unemployed for 14 months and the only work he could perform would be that of an attendant. Can he still get benefit from his old stamps?

A. It may be that your husband could now qualify for benefit if he can prove total incapacity during some part of the 14 months to which you refer and provided he is now able to do work for which there is a reasonable demand in the area in which you live. He should make an application for benefit at his local office, giving full particulars. Only then can it be determined definitely whether or not he is entitled to benefit.

Q. I was working for two employers, and earning a total of $50 a week. I lost one of these jobs. The second employer is paying me only $20 a week. Am I entitled to draw benefit because of having lost one of these jobs?

A. You would be entitled to benefit because you are, presumably, working less than your full normal week. A claimant, whilst on benefit, is allowed to earn a certain amount each week, such amount depending upon the rate of benefit. Any earnings in excess of the amount permitted, are deducted from the weekly rate of benefit.

Q. After death, can someone draw our benefits if we have always paid contributions without drawing benefit?

A. No. The Unemployment Insurance Act only insures the contributor against the risk of losing his employment. His insurance is against that contingency occurring, just as fire insurance protects him against the loss of his house by fire. If the contingency does not occur no indemnity is payable.

Nova Scotia established the first parliamentary government in Canada when a 22-member elected Assembly met at Halifax in 1758.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

If you're the driver of a car, you're responsible for the comfort of your passengers as well as for their safety. Here's how to keep your back-seat companions happy:

(1) Avoid drafts. Air that the driver scarcely feels from the window at his elbow, goes back to create a draft on the back-of-the-neck of his back-seat passengers.

(2) Make sure the radio is loud enough so the people in rear can hear easily.

(3) Don't flip cigarette ashes or butts from the window. They are often sucked in an open rear window. (This practice is also a fire hazard.)

(4) If your heater has no back-seat outlet, provide a lap robe.

(5) Don't drive too close to the car ahead or weave in and out of traffic. You may have plenty of room, but it will look like a close shave from the back seat.

Remember that, as the driver, you are the host. Treat your passengers as you would guests in your own home.

CHICKENS

The total hatch of 123,543,868 chicks in registered hatcheries in 1958 was an all time high. It exceeds the chick production of 1957 by approximately fourteen and one-half million chicks. All of this increase was in broiler type chicks.

Pulpwood Operations Provide Big Farm Market

13 million lbs meat, 19 million eggs in annual woods fare.

Fruit juice, flap jacks, porridge, fried potatoes, sausages, bacon and eggs, doughnuts, pie, milk, and coffee — that's typical breakfast fare for rugged pulpwood loggers whose appetites spell a big market for Canadian farm produce.

Each year, for their woodsworkers alone, the pulp and paper mills buy 13 million pounds of meat, 19 million eggs, 10 million pounds of flour, 3.5 million pounds of butter and other fats, 3 million cases of canned milk, 400,000 cases of other canned goods, and 6.5 million pounds of powdered milk and dry foods.

There are 15,000 permanent employees in the pulp and paper woodlands. In addition, some 200,000 agricultural and other workers help gather the pulpwood harvest in their off-season. All are hearty eaters.

The forests, like the farms, are traditional mainstays in the Canadian economy and, in many areas, agriculture and forest operations go together. Both are managed to yield annual crops. Trees, just like a farm crop, must be tended and protected. When the crop is mature it must be harvested.

Pulp and paper foresters practice silviculture just as farmers practice agriculture. In short, they cultivate the forests. This is more than a mere conservation and protection program. It is creative. Regeneration is encouraged and young growth is tended. And the annual growth exceeds the yearly crop. Thus, through continuing and overlapping cycles of natural reseeding, growing, and harvesting, the forests are maintained to provide annual crops for ever.

Pulp and paper woodsworkers (top) are hearty eaters. Dinner features soup, at least two meat dishes, vegetables, salads, and plenty of sweet buns, pies, cake, milk, and steaming coffee. The men in the bush eat well on Canadian produce. (Bottom) A forester checks soil samples around young jackpine in a tree farm.

Nova Scotia air in souvenir can

Truro, N.S. (CP) —Truro restaurant-owner Donald Hay has reached the ultimate in salesmanship. He sells air — at 59 cents a can.

The cans of "Scotia Breeze" don't contain just ordinary air. They're filled with "tangy Scotia air." Emblazoned with the province's flag, the label bears the directions for use:

"Open tin. Mix with a liberal amount of imagination and inhale. Can't you just scent the mixture of salt air, rum, poverty and fresh cod that's so typical of our beloved province."

The first newspaper ads introducing the new product created an immediate demand. More than 150 "20-airy-ounce-size" cans were sold the first week. Most buyers want tins as souvenirs for friends and relatives outside the province.

Mr. Hay says with a straight face that he's seriously considering bringing out a family-size can.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

MIRACLE ON THE TRACK

The "miracles" which modern surgical techniques and drugs have created in human medicine are now occurring in the field of veterinary practice. One such miracle operation was performed on Hickory Chuck, a well-known race horse who had severed a major tendon in his right knee during a race.

A three-year-old pacer, Hickory Chuck faced destruction unless the attempt to treat the injury by "firing" the tendon with a hot needle to draw the parted muscle together succeeded. The attempt, however, ended in failure.

The horse's fate was in the hands of its owner, Dr. C. F. Webb, who, rather than shoot Hickory Chuck, decided to try surgery. The animal was shipped to the Kansas State Agricultural College and operated on by a well-known American orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Garrett Pipkin.

The two-hour operation involved drilling bone tunnels in the horse's leg and threading an undamaged tendon through them to replace the damaged one. Known as a tendon graft, the operation was the first of its kind ever performed on a horse.

As difficult as it was, the operation was further complicated by the administration of the anaesthetic since a horse's reaction to drugs varies from that of other animals. In this particular case, nembutal was given over the two-hour period, being reinforced by regional nerve blocks. Even then the horse became restless during the operation, but not so much so as to disrupt the repair work.

The leg was placed in a cast and four or five hours after the operation the horse was on its feet, although somewhat unstable. Massive doses of the antibiotic Terramycin were administered for a week to forestall infection.

Ten months later, Hickory Chuck returned to the races and won his first effort by three lengths. He went on to win 10 of his next 13 races, showing vast improvement.

But the real miracle occurred at a track outside New York when the game pacer, who at best should have been at pasture if not dead, broke his own record — a mile in two minutes and seven seconds.

DISTRICT NEWS FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Morin Heights

Proudly They Flew

On Monday, February 23, the Guides of 1st Lac St. Denis Group proudly flew their Union Jack and Company Flag on the Intermediate School flag-pole, in honor of the birthday of Lord Baden-Powell, founder, and of Lady Baden Powell, the world Chief Guide. Their birthday, February 22, is also known as Thinking Day — on which Guides, Scouts, Brownies and Cubs all over the world think of each other in the light of world friendship.

Appreciation is expressed to Mr Roy Williams, principal of the Morin Heights School, for giving permission to fly the flags on this notable occasion; also to those who have been so kind and helpful to the movement at all times.

Commissioner's Visit

On Saturday, March 7, the 1st Lac St. Denis Guide Company and the 1st Lac St. Denis Brownie Pack entertained their Commissioner, Mrs. King, of Rosemere, and their Division Camp advisor, Miss Medding, of Rosemere, with a sleigh drive and supper. The sleigh ride concluded at the Morin Heights School, where games were played and supper was greeted with hearty appetites.

Thanks go to the School Board for the use of their cafateria, and to Mrs. George Watchorn and Mrs Colin Cameron for the preparation of the meal.

Women's Institute

On Tuesday evening last at the Intermediate School, the Women's Institute held their March meeting. The evening commenced with a pot-luck supper, which was followed by the installation of officers for the coming year. The installing officer was Mrs. Gordon Cook, of Arundel, provincial treasurer. Thanks for the loyal efforts of the retiring officers were expressed by the members, and all support for the year ahead was pledged to the newly-installed officers. There was a good attendance, and a successful evening was reported.

S.S. Sleigh Drive

The United Church Sunday School recently held their annual sleigh drive. Over 75 pupils and teachers enjoyed the drive and a bean feed which followed in the church hall. The superintendent, Mr. M. Sims, and the Sunday School teachers, extend thanks to all parents who were present to assist with refreshments, and to George Watchorn and Willis Seale, who generously took the children for the sleigh drive.

Education Week

Education Week was observed at Morin Heights, the teachers taking part in the church services. The principal, Mr. Roy Williams, spoke at the Anglican Church and Mr. G. MacPherson spoke at the United Church. On Thursday an open meeting was held at the school, with an encouraging attendance of parents and friends. A most interesting and constructive address was given by the principal. The parents then visited the classrooms, where exhibits of the pupils' work were on display. The Home and School sponsored this event and ably handled the refreshments. The evening was voted an outstanding success by all those who attended. Members of the community consider they are fortunate in having such an able principal and staff this year.

Mrs. Bert Edwards, of Montreal, was the week-end guest of her mother, Mrs. Mary Campbell, at Campbell's Farm.

Friends of Mrs. M. Urquhart are sorry to learn that she is ill and confined to her home; all wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hamilton spent Wednesday last in Montreal.

The Rev. C. G. Westhaver and Miss Doris Watchorn spent Tuesday last in Montreal, attending the March meeting of the Montreal Presbytery, held in St. James United Church.

St. Andrews East

Mr. R. F. Cameron and young son, Mark, of Montreal, were recently guests of the former's aunt, Mrs. McPhee and Mr. McPhee.

Miss Agnes Rodger, R.N., of the Montreal General Hospital, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. W. Geo. Rodger, River Rouge.

Mrs. C. C. Clattenburg came home from hospital last week. Miss Janet Clattenburg spent last week at Picton, Ont., with Mrs. Pete Clattenburg while Pete was a patient at Kingston Military Hospital. Bruce left Thursday to spend the week-end there — to be accompanied by Janet when he returns.

Mrs. Willoughby, of Westmount, Que., is visiting the Misses Wales.

The congregation of the United Church was happy to be back in the church for the Sunday services, after extensive repairs on the interior of the building.

Resident Leaves

Having sold her house to Dr. M. Sylvestre, Mrs. I. N. Draper is leaving this week to take up residence in Guelph, Ont., where her son, Mr. Stewart Lindsay, resides. The townfolk regret losing a good neighbor who has been a resident here for over eleven years. Mrs. Draper has always taken an active part in the Anglican Church, and will be greatly missed.

Bereaved

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Douglas Rodger on the death of her sister, Evelyn, Mrs. Alex Y. Mitchell.

In Barracks Fire

Petty Officer Wm. Bryson, son of Mr. W. Geo. Bryson, was in the fire which razed the Stadacona Barracks, Halifax, N.S., early Friday morning, February 28. He was one who escaped by sliding down a rope from the third storey. Firemen from the dockyard and city fire departments fought the stubborn blaze from its outbreak at 3 a.m. . . The only injury Bill Byson sustained was rope burns.

Avoca

Messrs. Lambert and Harold Kelly, of Port Colborne, Ont., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Young — the latter, their mother, being quite ill.

Mr. Evan Bates returned home from hospital, and is now progressing satisfactorily.

Mr. Shoddie Young, who has been on the sick list, is steadily improving in health. Mr. Elmer McCallum is also reported improving.

Best wishes of this community are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lockwood (the former Beverley Young, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne Young) who were married in Montreal last week.

The Rev. Mark Beaufoy will hold service at the home of Mrs. Chas. Storey on Sunday afternoon, March 15, at 2.30; Evensong and sermon.

Mrs. A. McPhee would like to thank all who have sent donations to the Red Cross campaign so promptly; it is hoped to hear from many more without undue delay before reporting to district headquarters.

Harrington

Mrs. J. D. Shaw, who has been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bennett, left for Montreal on Saturday last.

The March meeting of the Harrington Ladies' Aid is being held at the home of Mrs. H. Bennett on Tuesday of this week.

Miss Elsie McVicar, of Macdonald College, and Mr. and Mrs. P. McLeod, of Calumet, visited with Mr. and Mrs. V. McVicar on Sunday.

Farm Forum

The Harrington Farm Forum will meet Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dobble to discuss "The Use of Extension Services to the Farmer."

Parents Visit School

Last week being Education Week, the Harrington School took Wednesday as visitors' and parents' day. A number visited the different classrooms and saw each class at work — then adjourned to the auditorium, where refreshments were served.

Kilmar

Miss Shirley Young, of Avoca, spent the week-end at the home of Miss Joyce Dewar.

Badminton Tourney

A badminton tournament was held recently at the Kilmar Community Hall — Hawkesbury being the visiting team. The result was a tie. Following the games, a lunch was served and all players and spectators reported an interesting evening.

The weekly Lenten Service was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Noble.

Miss Terry Cormier, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dewar.

Jimmy Holt, 10, was taken to hospital to have his appendix out but he didn't like the idea. So he told the nurse he was too warm and wanted the window open. As soon as her back was turned, out he went. He was found several hours later with his legs frozen up to his knees.

Urea As A Protein Substitute

Some twenty-five years ago, if anyone had proposed the idea of using urea instead of protein in cattle or ruminant rations, he would have been disbelieved by probably 99 out of every 100 listeners.

To be sure, this white crystalline substance, urea, could be manufactured and sold for fertilizer, but not to feed it! Why, it was a natural constituent of urine, and how could it be any good to a cow or steer or lamb when all these animals discarded it in the first place as an end product of their body metabolism.

Dr. Bohstedt

But some early work by German investigators had suggested that this nitrogen fertilizer had a stimulating effect on the bacteria of the paunch of ruminants, or on that "inside farm" of theirs, just as it had on the bacteria of the soil. Furthermore, through natural fermentation processes the urea could be made available to the host animal as well as to the plants growing in the soil.

What happens is that the bacteria use the nitrogen of the urea, converting it into their own body protein. There is the theory that the billions of bacteria are then consumed by the larger organisms of the paunch, the protozoa. These in turn end their cycles and then are digested by the cow like so much feed protein.

Research work at the University of Wisconsin during the thirties led to the now commonly accepted rule that one pound of urea plus about six pounds of corn or other grain are worth as much as seven pounds of soybean oil meal in feeding value.

When oil meals or other protein concentrates are relatively cheap in comparison to corn or other grain, there is no advantage in feeding urea-supplemented mixtures.

Urea has a logical place in ruminant rations when oil meals are relatively high priced, or when costing from 40 to 60 per cent more than corn, ton for ton, and when the saving in cost due to cheaper urea is passed on to the purchaser.

Urea has value only for ruminants and not for pigs or chickens or other animals with single stomachs.

Question: Large integrated organizations in animal production and marketing have advantages over small independent ones. But what are some of the problems that go with integration?

Answer: According to Doctor Grummer of the University of Wisconsin, integration will cause growers to need more capital and therefore more credit. Larger operations will increase the disease problem and will require more medication in feeds; the grower will have to operate on a smaller margin; he will be purchasing more grain, possibly in the form of more complete feeds. The feed supplier will have to become more efficient and mechanization on farms will revolutionize feed handling.

War on diseases of livestock saves farmers money

Canada's policy of stamping out certain diseases before they can get a strangle-hold on the country's livestock industry has saved farmers thousands of dollars.

Canadian agriculture runs the risk of losing valuable export markets if contagious animal diseases are allowed to become established, and federal veterinarians agree it is cheaper to the producer and the entire industry to eliminate these diseases.

Foot-and-mouth disease is an example of how it pays to wipe out certain dreaded diseases. Only once did this killer get a toe hold in Canada, but the results were costly.

Direct losses from the foot-and-mouth outbreak in Saskatchewan seven years ago amounted to $1,000,000. Markets to which Canadian livestock and agriculture products normally moved were immediately closed, and it was estimated that the drop in potential value was $648,278,00.

There are other costs to be considered. Health of Animals Divn., Department of Agriculture, estimates a vaccination program for hog cholera would cost swine producers $6,800,000 a year.

This is based on the fact that in the United States it costs $1 per hog up to market age to control cholera, and on the fact that Canada's swine population is about 6,800,000.

Instead of living with the disease and depending on vaccination, Canada halts any outbreak by slaughtering diseased hogs and compensating the owners. Over the past decade there have been seven outbreaks in which 3,459 pigs were victimized. Compensation costs were $96,590.

The worst cholera epidemic since the turn of the century occurred in 1940-41, when $204,176 was paid out in compensation to farmers.

Cost of completely driving out this disease, though, is only a shadow of what it would be to live with it.

Scrapie Program

Canadian sheep producers have been told that any relaxation in this country's scrapie eradication program could jeopardize the export of pure-bred breeding stock and feeder lambs to the United States.

In fact, it is felt that certain segments of the U.S. sheep industry will press for more rigid control on import and on inter-state movement.

Veterinarians of the Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, sounded this note of warning at meetings of Western Canada and Ontario sheep growers.

Scrapie is a chronic disease of sheep involving the central nervous system and characterized by nervous symptoms, such as itching and lack of co-ordination, ending in paralysis and death.

Ford innovation in tractor transmission

A revolutionary new tractor transmission unit, representing the most significant improvement in 20 years in tractor operating ease and capacity for work, has been announced by Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd.

The new unit combines the convenience features of an automobile's automatic transmission with the advantage of on-the-go gear shifting through 10-forward speeds.

The company is marketing the unit in Canada early in March.

Anti-brucellosis program speeded

Technicians will be allowed to collect blood samples under the national brucellosis eradication program — according to Dr. K. F. Wells, the Veterinary Director General.

It is the first time that technicians have been used by the Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, for this type of work.

Dr. Wells said the move was being taken to step up the brucellosis control program "to meet the urgent needs of the livestock industry".

A practicing veterinarian, employed by the Health of Animals Division, may hire and train one technician. Before carrying out blood tests, the technician must be approved by the federal department.

The technician will be the direct employee of the part-time or casual veterinarian, and at all times will be under direct supervision.

Dr. Wells said it is realized many practicing veterinarians are too busy to devote a great deal of time to disease eradication work, but that brucellosis testing could not be extended over a long period as has been the case of tuberculosis testing.

Farm price supports continuing, year's federal loss over $18-million

By Don Attfield, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — (CP) — The government, in accumulating stockpiles of farm products under its support programs, is exporting some of these products at below cost, with the federal treasury absorbing the loss.

"But this is not dumping," said Agriculture Minister Harkness in an interview. "We are selling agriculture products in competition with the United States and other countries. Naturally we have to meet general world prices."

Under support schemes, the administration has accumulated a wide assortment of products, including cheese, butter, pork, skim milk powder and eggs. Because of a world glut, it has found milk powder particularly difficult to sell, or even to give away.

Most of the surplus cheese has been sold to Britain at slightly below cost, and surplus eggs are moving steadily into export markets, mainly Venezuela, again below cost.

Support Continues

Officials said this trend of subsidizing exports is continuing this year. Last year the government boosted the support price on eggs to 44 cents a dozen, basis Grade A large at Montreal, from 38.

Just how far the government is running in the red in its egg operations has not been made public, but Mr. Harkness estimated that on the administration's over-all price support operations for the current fiscal year, the federal loss may run to $18,700,000, one of the largest in recent years.

The major portion of this loss may be in milk powder. The egg operations loss may be $2,000,0000. Smaller losses may be borne in dealing with surplus pork, canned tomatoes and others of the 23 products under support.

Some consideration is being given to whether some support prices should be reduced. Mr. Harkness told a federal-provincial conference in November that if serious surpluses develop which cannot be sold, "it will become impossible for us to maintain the present levels."

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture told the federal government in a brief that deficiency payments for western grain growers are urgent and "altogether necessary."

Federation President H. H. Hannam said the cabinet received the brief favorably. He said he got the impression deficiency payments are not yet out of the question.

A march on Ottawa by Western grain growers was scheduled for this month to further impress on the government demands for payments to provide additional returns to farmers on wheat, oats and barley delivered since the 1953-54 crop year. The payment on wheat would be 22 cents a bushel on 1953-54 deliveries and 36 cents on deliveries in subsequent years. Delegation representatives will propose a limit of $1,500 per farm, in deficiency payments.

COWS IN DEMAND

Dairy cows, both grade and purebred from listed herds, are in demand in eastern Ontario — says a Department of Agriculture note. Grade first-calf heifers are bringing from $275 to $325 and purebreds from $325 and up. Cows with size for age and plenty of indication of dairy characteristics are required. Dairy stock from non-listed herds are not in demand and can be purchased at much lower cost.

Does Health mean anything to you?

Farmers are naturally born kickers. They kick about low prices for what they sell, and about the high prices they have to pay for what they buy. They kick about milk surpluses, etc., and they are so busy at this that they miss other more important things. One of these is the HEALTH of their cattle. A healthy animal in the main will do better, and milk better. The way a milking cow's ration is mixed, can have a decided effect on the cow.

You can mix a ration that you think is good, and the cow will eat it either greedily or gingerly, according to how well she enjoys it. But it can have too much proteins or too little, or too something else, to match the other elements; consequently she has to struggle through this extra stuff she doesn't need, to get enough of what she DOES need. Some of this extra passes out in the manure, some in the urine and some in the milk. But with Purina's work in their Research Labs and in actual feeding experiments on their Experimental Farm, they are away out ahead of the "pencil mixers". They have by actual tests found out the right combinations of grains and concentrates that will give you the most return for your dollar spent, and also will keep your cows in better health. Won't you give us your order today?

Yours for healthier herds —

Plaque to C.N.I.B. Auxiliary in recognition of fine work

At the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, held at 145 Drew Street last Wednesday, March 11, the Quebec Division of the Canadian Council of the Blind presented a provincial plaque to the ladies for their outstanding work among the blind people in this community.

Besides looking after the Argenteuil White Cane Club, clothing is distributed to the needy blind people and their families. The eye clinic, which serves a very useful purpose in the field of prevention of blindness, is a project the ladies are also deeply interested in. Volunteer workers assist the opthalmologist at the clinic.

Mr. L. A. McClintock, supervisor of Field Services, congratulated the ladies for their outstanding work in this county. Mr. Marcil Lequin, Provincial Chairman of the C.C.B., presented the plaque to Mrs. Lillian Richardson, president of the Women's Auxiliary.

Members of the Auxiliary witnessed this presentation, along with the following guests — Mayor and Mrs. J. McGibbon; Mr. L. Carriere, chairman of the C.N.I.B. Board.; Mr. W. Richardson, vice-chairman; Miss L. Preece, treasurer; Mr. Richard, observer; and Mr. A Zaplaski, Field Secretary for Argenteuil.

Rumor of panthers recalls reports from this area

Evidence of the presence of three panthers in the Montreal Lakeshore area being prominent at the present time, The Gazette's Izaak Hunter reports that in the past, similar stories were circulated in the Lachute area and carried in his column. It might be added also, mention was made at the time in "Argenteuil Outdoors", a Watchman exclusive by Bob Atchison.

Three years ago, Edward Dow, of 459 6th Ave., Verdun, reported the sighting of a tawny panther by John Molson on his place at Morin Heights, and also by Wesley Dawson, caretaker of the Boy Scouts Camp at Mille Iles, Lake Tamaracouta.

And H. L. Whittaker, 138 Dieppe Ave., Pointe Claire, last September reported having seen a black panther in a swamp five or six miles above the Kerr Farm at Lakefield.

Midget races this Saturday at Morin Hts.

The "mighty midget" ski races at Morin Heights, sponsored for the past six years by Paul Baumel, are being held Saturday, March 21, at the Alpino ski hill.

The program — commencing with registration at 12 noon and racing at 1 p.m. — includes classes for boys and girls up to 12 years of age, with a giant slalom for the various ages. There is no admission charge. Prizes will be awarded immediately afterwards; also hot chocolate will be served after the races.

In the event of unfavorable weather, this annual event will be held the following day, Sunday.

Reduced charge brings fine and court costs

Before Judge Omer Côté in St. Jerome court on Tuesday, Jas. Murdoch, 23, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of Simple Assault, and was sentenced to a fine of $25 plus the costs of the case.

With J. J. Gadbois, Montreal attorney, representing the accused, an agreement was made with representatives of Ken Derouin, 23, also of Lachute, to pay all medical expenses resulting from the recent incident in which Derouin was injured.

Murdoch was also ordered to post a bond of $200 to keep the peace for a one-year period.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who laid the original charge of grievous assault, has received no word from the Attorney General's department regarding any additional charges.

The proprietor or employees of the hotel where the incident occurred were in no way involved, except in attempting to quell the disturbance.

First of Spring — Saturday ends arduous winter

Listless puddle - hoppers, discouraged by the long arduous winter, won't notice any change at the time, but spring this year arrives at 3.55 a.m. EST. on Saturday, March 21. That's the time set by the astronomical calendar, not the weatherman. . . .

The arrival of Spring will give even greater cheer than usual to most sections of Canada that have gone through a long, tough winter.

Caw-Caw!

A snow flurry last Monday, whipped by the strong wind which was doubtless the fringe of Ontario's big gale, reached the proportions of a blizzard, and many private roads and highways were again impassable.

In the wake of this unpleasantness, observers here on Tuesday morning saw the crows back in force. There had been many previous reports of these harbingers on the wing, but this week's influx has been something more significant than isolated instances. The crows are a welcome sight.

Tops in Ayrshire judging contest

John Oswald, of Ste. Scholastique, was one of the top winners with a perfect score in the All-Canadian Ayrshire Judging Competition sponsored by the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of Canada. The All-Canadian nominations were published in the January issue of the Ayrshire Review with their picture and prizes won at different fairs.

The contestants had to choose the All-Canadian and Reserve All-Canadian in each class and send their entries to the Ayrshire Breeders' Association before February 21. There were eight classes to judge . . . The winners have just been announced, with John Oswald as one of the top three, with a perfect score.

John is a well-known ROP Inspector and former Lachute 4-H Club member who was top judge at the National 4-H Judging Competition in 1954. He was a judge at the Howick Ayrshire Calf Club Show last year.

LHS gymnasts score again

Five Lachute High School gymnasts took part in the City of Montreal championships, held recently at McGill University.

Lachute competed for the first time in the Tyro class with two young local gymnasts entering, Herbert Underhill and Jimmy Lavis, both only 11 years old; and considering the fact they were in competition against boys 15 years of age, they did very well. Out of 23 gymnasts Herbert placed sixth all round, and Jimmy placed eighth. In a year or so these two boys will be giving a good account of themselves.

Gary Cruise and Ronnie Cairns also competed for the first time in the Novice class, and taking into consideration that both had only been practising for a week, they did fairly well. Ronnie won the pommel horse competition, came third in the long horse and parallel bars, and placed third all around. Gary Cruise placed sixth all round.

Reggie Stansfield competed in the Senior Men's event and won three championships — long horse, parallel bars, and free-hand calisthenics. He came second in the high bar competition and placed second all round behind Buczo, a newly arrived top Hungarian gymnast.

City audience hears C.I.P. Company's successful experiment in Argenteuil

An address by Vernon E. Johnson, president of Canadian International Paper Company, presented before the Canadian Club of Montreal recently, gave to his city audience a description of the Company's experiment in Argenteuil County, in woodlot and forestry promotion in connection with the pulp and paper industry . . . Following are extracts from Mr. Johnson's address of particular interest here.

The scene . . . lies in Argenteuil County, on the north side of the Ottawa River about halfway between Montreal and Ottawa. About eighty-five per cent of the county is made up of the mountainous Laurentian area, where stony soil makes farming a difficult and marginal business. In fact, there are many farmers there who have tried to farm land which should never have been cleared for agricultural crops.

Our company's pulp mill at Hawkesbury, across the Ottawa River, was built in 1898. It was a small mill then, making 75 tons of unbleached chemical pulp per day. Now its capacity is 260 tons of dissolving wood cellulose per day.

Forest industries have always been important in Argenteuil County. So the demands of the pulp mill were added to those of the sawmills, which were already making inroads in the spruce and balsam stands. At that time spruce and balsam were the only woods which could be used at the mill. As the years passed, we had to go farther afield to supply the mill — and by the late 1940's, we were no longer in a competitive position. Mills closer to their wood supply had such a cost edge over us that we faced the serious possibility of having to shut down our Hawkesbury mill — with all the suffering to the community which that would have involved.

But we decided to look around for another course of action. In Hawkesbury our subsidiary, Industrial Cellulose Research Limited, operates the finest cellulose research laboratory on the Nort American continent.

Our scientists at I.C.R. investigated the possibility of manufacturing dissolving pulp from hardwoods. They said it could be done. There were plenty of hardwoods in the Argenteuil County region. So we decided to convert the Hawkesbury mill to hardwoods, at a cost of over eight million dollars.

Hit-and-run offender fined, permit suspended

Marcel LaCroix, 30, of Stonefield, was fined $75 and costs, or 60 days in jail, and his license suspended for a one-year period, after pleading guilty on Tuesday to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

The charge was laid in connection with a recent accident in Brownsburg, in which Stanley Campbell, 37, was injured. The victim was walking up the French Hill at the time he was struck.

The charge was laid by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen.

Canadian Cancer Society crusade, month of April

"Guard Your Family" is the new rallying cry of the Canadian Cancer Society Crusade which opens here in April.

The family theme has been added to the phrase, "Fight cancer with a checkup and a cheque", which was used successfully last year in a joint fund-raising and educational drive.

The new theme is based on the fact that two out of every three families in this community, as well as every other town in the country, will eventually experience cancer's heavy burden. The slogan also effectively expresses the Society's determined effort to save more lives from cancer.

As in previous years, the Society's April "Cancer Crusade" seeks to raise funds to continue its three-pronged program of research, education and service to cancer patients. "While research offers the best hope for victory over cancer, the nation's No. 2 disease killer, the crusade is not limited to raising funds. It is a top priority educational effort, on a national scale, to stimulate regular health among all adults for early detection of cancer. Cancer in its early stages can be cured."

Free literature about the disease will be distributed by Canadian Cancer Society volunteers throughout the Crusade month.

Bombers take series 4-1, win Quebec-Ontario title

Brownsburg, March 16 —

The Brownsburg Bombers increased their lead in the Q.O.H.L. finals on Sunday afternoon as they nipped Hawkesbury Richports by a 6-5 score. The Bombers won with an identical score on Thursday in the Vankleek Hill arena, but had the time not run out on the Richports, the Brownsburg squad might not have been able to hold on.

Tom St. James opened the scoring for the Richports at 5.25 of the first period, on passes from Chamaillard and Larocque. Both teams were short-handed at the time with Jacques Leveillé and Berniquer serving 5-minute penalties for fighting.

Parisien put the Hawkesbury squad two-up after 5 minutes of play in the second period, but Mason MacAdam combined with André Ouellette two and a half minutes later to set up Jacques Racine for the Bombers' first goal. Racine scored again at the 12.27 mark with Ouellette and Dimock assisting, while Bender was serving a 2-minute slashing penalty. Parisien struck again four minutes later, however, to put the Richports out in front again by a 3-to-2 score.

The Richports were still hot when the third period opened, St. James beating Buddy Racine on a pass from Belisle at the 1.36 mark. Willis MacAdam cut the Hawkesbury lead after a further two minutes of play as he banged in a relay from Lamoureux and Legault. Jacques Racine tied the count 4-4 at 5.50 of the third, after being set up by André Ouellette, but St. James and Belisle combined again at 7.06 to put the Richports out in front for the last time. André Ouellette converted a Dimock-Racine relay at the 11.05 mark to square the count at 5-5, and Bill Dimock scored his own marker in another minute and a half, on passes from Mason MacAdam and Jacques Racine. This left the Bombers on the long end of a 6-5 score and out in front 3-1 in games

This was another fast, hard-hitting contest, as were the other two games in this final series. Easily the best hockey played this season, these games provide all the thrills any hockey fan could desire. The only disappointing feature has been the consistency in late arrival of the Hawkesbury team — a condition not appreciated by too many people.

Trio arrested with stolen car

Three Montreal men were arrested Thursday evening of last week following an accident at Simon's Crossing in which they were involved with a stolen car. None of the three was seriously injured.

According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, the trio was headed towards Lachute at a high rate of speed, after having stolen gasoline at a Chatham service station. They failed to make the curve at the crossing, in the blinding snowstorm at the time.

Provincial and municipal police co-operated in making the arrests, and the following morning the trio were turned over to the Montreal city police, who have laid charges.

Fined and bonded to keep peace

Ernest Zimmer, 23, of Brownsburg, was fined $20 plus costs, and placed a $200 deposit to keep the peace for six months, when found guilty of a charge of "interfering with a police officer."

Zimmer was charged following a minor accident in the Brownsburg vicinity.

Wheat farmers' march on Ottawa not too promising in subsidy results

BY Don Hanright, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, — (CP) — A thousand Prairie farmers ended their Ottawa visit last week with a show of confidence that was surprising in view of the apparently cool government reception to their subsidy proposals.

The delegation, claiming that some grain growers will go broke without immediate federal aid, was on Parliament Hill for three days to argue for an extra $300,000,000 in government payments on the last three crops of wheat, oats and barley.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker promised "the fullest and most continuing consideration" to this plea for deficiency payments, but noted he had given no answer to his earlier objection that such payments would mean the most benefit to those larger farmers who needed it the least.

Besides, said Mr. Diefenbaker, it was likely that if Canada began paying subsidies on oats and barley in this manner, the United States would impose restrictions on those two grains, and the U.S. is a sizeable export market for both.

Continue Fight

Jack Wesson, 77-year-old president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, main organizer of the "march", said he hasn't given up the fight. Delegation leaders would return later to Ottawa to continue their argument, and meanwhile MPs would be approached by mail.

"I don't see how, eventually, this government is going to refuse to provide the deficiency payments to save the prairie grain economy," he said. Before the government's long-range plans for agriculture materialized, "we may all go broke."

The delegation's argument was based on statistics purporting to show that farmer's costs have risen 51 per cent in 10 years, that wheat prices have tumbled 21 per cent, and the purchasing power of a bushel of prairie grain has dropped to the lowest point since the depression of the 1930s.

As the farmers boarded their four special trains for the return to the prairies after one of the most orderly mass lobbies here in history, there was general confidence among them that the government would come through with some form of assistance. Commented one delegate: "A rose by any other name is just as sweet."

Plant taken over by Arnolds of Grenville

This aerial picture shows the Steroid Laboratories Ltd. plant at Grenville, which is a joint venture between Chas. E. Frosst & Co. and the Arnold Farms Ltd. of Grenville. After several years of operation this plant, comprising four concrete-block buildings, has now been taken over by Arnold Farms Ltd. The manufacture of hormone products will be discontinued next June, and in July the Arnolds intend to start converting for a food-products cannery, and for possible manufacture of other chemical sidelines using local raw materials as a base. This will be a further development in the meat packing industry which the Arnolds have operated for some years on their property.

Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

I know all sportsmen will feel the same way I do after they finish reading this. Mr. Lumsden, the Provincial Wildlife co-ordinator of Ontario, has this to say: 150,000 Deer in the Province are dying through snow conditions cutting off their feed. A conservative estimate places the death total at 50,000 before the snow melts enough for a deer to browse, , ,

This is a ghastly situation that cannot be cured by humans; only Nature can do this. The very big worry is what happens to Quebec. It would be safe to estimate 75,000 will die in the province before spring. To anyone having seen animals die from starvation, it is a sickening thought. I can only hope that they don't suffer too much, and the Big Boss makes it as humane as possible. Such is Nature; cruel at times.

This I am going to write with real pleasure and satisfaction. A Federal judge in the U.S.A. has just given an offender 30 days in the hoosegow for making himself a public nuisance by littering and spreading garbage on the highways. On top of that, the culprit was forced to post a bond for two years. That is really getting results; or 30 days. The judge stated there was too much crying and not enough action being taken; so he has started it. Could be some of that action could rub off onto some of our officials. Let's hope so, anyway. Perhaps the County of Argenteuil could make some easy money with its highways being used as dumping grounds.

Some news for the trout fisherman, and the deal that is going to revolutionize the fishing. New trout! Yep, that's the thing. Ever hear of a Tiger trout? It's crossed with a Brown and Brook trout, to give the Tiger. The name is a real give-away on the thing; from all reports it is just a mean critter — nasty disposition, unpredictable habits; sounds just like the Big Northern. In other words, a great game fish.

There is also the Brookinaw, crossing of a Lake and Brook trout. In other words a Splake. The Quebec Provincial fish hatcheries have experimented with this for a number of years now. Unfortunately, these fish do not reproduce as Splake. They seem to go back to the original parent. There is also the Brownbow, (Rainbow and Brown crossed). The Sambrown is a Landlocked or Ouaniche salmon and a Brown trout. In water where salmon have failed to thrive, they are hoping the Sambrown will fill the bill. The last should be a killer, that is, if it can reproduce itself.

Imagine getting a Landlock and a Rainbow crossed to be a Sambow. This is not a new idea, as it has been going on for a good number of years. The first organized attempt was as far back as 1877; the know-how they had obtained from these attempts was buried in the usual red tape peculiar to all governments. Splake have been tried out in some of B.C.'s lakes, and from there on it spread across the country into Quebec.

Most of us know that trout are not a hardy fish as far as diseases of the water are concerned, that is why there is so much cross-breeding going on to try and get a fish that will be a little more hardy. Some good results have been obtained in some of the crosses. For instance, the Splake as we know it, is a cross offspring of the female Laker and the male Brook trout. They are experimenting with a male Laker and a female Brook. In this way they have hopes of reproducing a new fish. If some of these fish fertilize, it would really make history in the fishing field.

You all know how I keep on raving about the North River, and the wonderful fishing it has. The Field and Stream fishing contest for 1959 in the Northern class weighed in at 36 lbs. 4 ozs. That was the biggest for the whole country. The same with the Walleyes, or Dore as they are called; 17 lbs. was the winner in this class.

I know the river can and has beaten these fish, so from now on every decent fish that is caught in the North should be looked at with a very critical eye. You could have a record, and these are worth big money to the catcher.

Still on the subject of the river, it is very pleasant to be able to write that the dumping of junk on the ice seems to be a thing of the past, at least this year. As a matter of fact, the short time I've been able to see it I would say that the improvement is so marked you wonder how this all happened. It sure looks as though there are a good number of sportsmen and women who are as interested in this as anyone . . . Thank you, and keep up the good work.

Edith and self expect to be going back to Main Duck Island very shortly; if conditions permit, it will be around the middle of this month when we start doing a little phoning to find out the conditions on Lake Ontario. We had expected to go in by helicopter, and still may do this. The drawback to this is — a kerosene freezer, gas stove (Propane type) and a lot of our junk that is needed. It will be a load, with 2 dogs, 1 canary, 2 humans and all the equipment needed. But we'll work it out some way. I hope this year the mail can be arranged a little better than it was last year. At least there is a 24ft. power boat being supplied this time, and a lot of other equipment for our comfort . . . I do know that there will be some good "column" material.

I was told that the feed plane was only able to get in once for a drop. I'm afraid the deer will have taken a very bad beating.

Cameras are also being allowed this time, so that some good pictures will come out of the Island.

To answer a lot of queries as to why we like it there — one word would cover it: Peaceful . . . Good enough reason? . . . But all of us know there is a thrill in being alone and living like a king. Being cut off from all modern living as we know it today and finding out all this rush and bustle isn't necessary. Also in finding out you don't know anything at all in the way of wildlife. And how true that is, if you are honest with yourself. I think the greatest thing we all should realize, is that all animals are trustful of human creatures — until humans give them evidence to the contrary.

If you did the numerous little jobs to your fishing tackle, before you put it away for the winter, you won't have much to do. If you didn't give it a thought though, get busy, now. There isn't too much time left to do a good job.

A very good friend has been telling me of a farmer who has been feeding the deer this winter. It is not too far from our district, and he doesn't belong to our Association. Which proves that conservation does not have to be carried on by any group. Individuals can and do make it work. Some of you will say, "Sure, why shouldn't he do this. At least he is going to get deer, come fall." That is logical, but he is not going to shoot all the deer that have been looked after by him, and no party going into the bush is going to be able to get them all. This is the evidence of a True Conservationist. More power to him for his good deeds. With just about 100 like him in our district, we would have the best game area in Canada. This is not just a dream. One of these days people will get the idea it is more important to see wildlife in its natural habitat, than in a zoo or stuffed as trophies.

When you have seen some of the results from interested parties concerned with the conservation of our wildlife, and the good it has done to everyone concerned, it seems there is a very definite lack of something in our district. Is it that we are just not interested, or afraid it will cost us something? You may remember, last spring up on the Island, I told you of the advertising and publicity carried on by some very small towns in Ontario for their Bass fishing. Everything in the way of accommodation was sold out for months ahead of the season. Our opportunities around Lachute for the tourist cannot even be counted, and with a little showing on the Town's part, the influx of money into the district would be terrific. There is no need to say it can't be done. How about St. Jovite, Val David and all the many towns that are not content to sit and wait for good to come by itself? Worth doing something about, isn't it? . . . Could be though some toes are being stepped on, some place along the line. ("After all, why change; it's cheaper this way.")

The ice fishing is still very good, but it won't be much longer. Taking stock of results over the winter, the sport has been good. The main fish, of course, has been the Perch; 2¼ lbs was the largest, from what I heard, but I'm sure bigger ones were caught. The largest Pike heard of was a 16-pounder, and there were a number over 10 lbs. taken. So I don't think that there will be too mank kicks about the ice fishing in our district.

First round of women's bowling now in play

By Mrs. Ghislaine Brunette

The first round of the women's bowling tournament is now in progress. Last Saturday, about 20 women played their games; some appeared a bit nervous, but still managed to bowl very good games. Five triples were over 400, and the highest one was by Mrs. Doreen Burton, 455 (170, 161, 124). She won over Mrs. Dot Woodland, who played 311 (119, 89, 103). Mrs. Burton, being the 8th best average in the mixed league, had a total of 21 marks (12 spares and 9 strikes).

Mrs. Agnes Scott had a triple of 431 (132, 132, 167) to win over Mrs. Peggy Simon, 367 (111,147,109).

Miss Eileen Morrison, who has the top average in the mixed league, defeated Mrs. Anita Parisien from Hawkesbury with 400 (169, 89, 142) against 337 (101, 126, 110).

Surprisingly Mrs. Pauline Théorèt, who is 6th best average in the mixed league, was defeated by Miss Claudette Danis. Mrs Theoret lost by a margin of 5 only, as Miss Danis won with 370 (132, 139, 99 against 365 (125, 133, 107). Miss Danis has an average in the mixed league of 104. This contest was exciting all the way.

Here are more of the other encounters:

Mrs. Lacroix, Hawkesbury, 421 (132, 142, 147) defeated Miss Monique Perrault, 298 (87, 109, 102).

Miss Juliette Guay, 2nd best average in the mixed league, played a triple of 405 (153, 129, 123) to win over Mrs. Lila Murdoch, 286 (92, 89, 105).

Mrs. Cécile Gravel, 388 (141, 128, 119) defeated Miss Jeanette Larivière, 374 (122, 103, 149).

Mrs. Marge Martel, 374 (114, 134, 126 defeated Mrs. Lorraine Drouin, Hawkesbury, 307 (115, 81, 111).

Miss Mance Bastien, 358 (115, 116, 127) defeated Mrs. Laura Rodger, 316 (104, 97, 115).

Mrs. Marcoux, Hawkesbury, 335 (103, 150, 82) defeated Mrs. Hénault, 198 (64, 68, 66).

Last Sunday, Miss Monique Brodeur, who is the third best average in the mixed league, had a triple of 413 (137, 129, 147) and defeated Miss Pauline Brunelle, who played 283 (89, 115, 79).

Up to now, high scores have been played and more are to be expected during the tournament. The first round is on till March 29 at midnight.

Parents visited Harrington school

By Pat Smith

(Intended for last issue)

"Open house" was held at Harrington Intermediate School on Wednesday during Education Week. The pupils are appreciative of the number of parents who visited the classrooms throughout the day.

Grades VIII and IX had a new and different part to play in their English subject. Mrs. MacCabe, principal and teacher for Grades VIII and IX, called on Harvey Bates and Georgina Crookes, of Grade VIII, to make impromptu speeches, and from Grade IX she selected Reynald MacLean, Judy MacRae and Pat Smith to speak.

Towards the end of the afternoon, refreshments were served by Grades VIII and IX. The occasion proved enjoyable all around.

The local teams will appreciate the public support.

Fancy-skating was abandoned last week, due to stormy weather, but instruction will be resumed this Thursday.

The local Shamrocks defeated a pee-wee team sponsored by St. Lambert Lions, 9-1, last Saturday.

On Sunday the pee-wees from Ahuntsic Lions defeated the Lowe Bros. Shamrocks 3-1. In a second engagement, a team composed of All-stars in the bantam class trounced Ahuntsic 8-3 to avenge the locals' previous defeat. Dan Maidens scored four goals . . . Jacques Bourgoing was referee for these two games.

Doré restocking of Quebec lakes and rivers

The restocking of lakes and rivers with doré, or as it is more commonly known, "Operation Doré", will start in a few weeks. Once again the program is under the direction of the Department of Game and Fisheries of the province.

The Molson's Fishing Club and Molson's agents will absorb the cost of transportation of the doré to those areas authorized by the provincial authorities. Associations which have purchased doré for restocking and wish to have this free transportation service should apply to their local Molson agent.

The Department of Game and Fisheries works in collaboration with public organizations and particularly those groups belonging to the Federation of Fish and Game Associations of Quebec, and both the department and Federation help defray the cost of the operation.

In the past four years more than 137,000 doré from Missisquoi Bay have been distributed in hundreds of lakes and rivers throughout the province. This successful program will be under the supervision of the director of the fish hatchery in the Eastern Townships. Anglers within a 150-mile radius of Missisquoi Bay will benefit from this joint operation by the fishing associations, the Department of Game and Fisheries and the Molson Fishing Club.

Buy and use – Easter Seals!

EASTER SEALS are making their appearance on personal and business correspondence in the mail — symbols of the altruism which shares, in spirit, the misfortunes of the physically handicapped — symbols of the kindliness of human hearts, and the realization that there is more real happiness in giving than in receiving . . .

For Easter Seals are an instrument through which the poor, the rich, the busy, and the indolent, may extend a little help to crippled children. These little "helps" across the nation snowball into an effort whose impetus spells Big Things: research in therapy and rehabilitation, orthopedic aids, braces, crutches, wheelchairs and other devices to aid crippled folks, both young and old, enabling them to share in some measure the privileges of more normal fellow beings. These "helps" and monetary sacrifices reflect even in little things — like the grateful smile of a crippled child — little things that can raise a lump in the throat, or swell a heart to the very fullness of joy.

Across Canada the service clubs are regional campaigners for the Easter Seals Society, bringing the appeal to people who are glad to share. In Argenteuil County it is the Lions Club, which has brought the campaign to the public for many years. Great satisfaction has rewarded the club each year, in remitting this community's donations to the provincial fund, with the privilege of retaining a portion for the help of needy cripples right in this town and district.

Readers who receive these seals are urged to return their donations in the convenient envelope provided. (Please do not return the seals; this means only added expense to the committee in paying for the return mailing.) Any who have not been contacted and who would like to contribute, may call or remit to this newspaper, and seals will be mailed to them.

Loosening restrictions

MANY BRITONS now in Canada, and others yet to come, are affected by a new British Government move to increase the amount of money that may be taken out of Britain.

Those living in Canada now may bring out the full amount of any legacy they received since 1951. Hitherto the maximum amount of each legacy that could be taken out of Britain was about $1,500.

When a legacy of more than that sum was left in Britain to a person living in Canada or the United States, the amount above the $1,500 allowance was credited to them in Britain or was invested in sterling securities.

In 1954, Britain announced that it would move by stages to alter the limits of legacies being taken out of the country. Now that it has completely freed them, the full legacy back as far as 1951 — two years after this restriction first was imposed — can be claimed.

In addition to this relaxation, Britons emigrating to Canada now may bring out a maximum of about $14,000 a family, almost three times the previous maximum. The new maximum for emigrants to dollar-area countries equals the maximum that has been in effect for non-dollar countries.

This allowance relaxation has another important feature. Previously the allowance was about $2,800 a family plus about $700 additional a person up to the $5,600 maximum. The allowance now is based on the family unit regardless of the number of members emigrating.

Besides an unknown number of Canadians who may have been left legacies by persons in Britain, there is a potential of about 1,000,000 persons living in this country who were born in Britain and might be left money by relatives or friends.

The effect of the relaxation won't be apparent in Canada until later this year. The immigration flow usually is slowest in winter and the new regulation affects only those who may have applied to come to Canada after February 16.

No estimate is available on the number who may come out this year, although it is likely to be somewhat less than the 26,800 who emigrated from Britain during 1958.

The old school ties

THE LITTLE RED schoolhouse is gradually disappearing from the rural Canadian scene and it's often assumed that only sentimental graduates with hazy memories are prepared to mourn its passing.

But folks with fond memories of years spent in the tiny, one-room school buildings may have found a sympathetic friend among authorities on modern education.

He's Murray G. Ross, vice-president of the University of Toronto, and his views on the trend toward centralization of rural schools were given in a recent address to an aducation conference.

He said it isn't unusual for a secondary school today to have as many as 2,000 students and listed some of the disadvantages he feels result from such size.

"One," he said, "is that there must be established many mechanical routines for operating the school. Objective tests become the desired method of examination, established student-traffic routes must be insisted upon, deviations from any established procedure are difficult to handle, assignments must not place unusual demands upon the library, and so on.

"Now, I know there are advantages to the large school, but there is also the danger of the mechanization of education. Another result of mass education is that education becomes impersonal . . . Bigger does not mean better — in schools, at least, and we are very slow in awakening to this fact."

It's apparent that the trend toward consolidation isn't going to be reversed. Several provinces have laws which encourage the combining of rural schools.

There may be some people who truly favor the old one-room school in which one teacher had to apportion the day's teaching time to children from just about every grade. But even they are probably realistic enough to recognize that progress won't be halted.

About the best they can hope — and work for — is that, in the headlong rush toward modern education facilities, the people in charge won't forget that the personal relationships of the little school had something really worthwhile to offer.

It may not be possible to preserve a great deal of this flavor in the big new school buildings but it is to be hoped that the educationists of the present day keep in mind they are working with individuals and not merely numbers.

Viewpoints and perspectives

TRULY COMPREHENSIVE. — A neurotic man who, during periodic fits of depression, takes out his dentures and jumps on them, is to get half the cost of a new set from his local health committee in Dorset, England.

Seems to us that news of this kind is enough to drive many an irate British taxpayer to tear out his hair. And that raises a nice question: Would he then be entitled to half the cost of a wig? On balance we think so (in Dorset, England, anyway).

Ah well, at least we know that those Canadians who glowingly describe Britain's national health insurance scheme as "truly comprehensive" aren't exaggerating one little bit.

EAST'S WINTER. — After this winter it should be a long time before easterners start pointing to the west and northwest and telling dire tales about the chilly, wintry "frontier" country. Before they start talking about the "frozen north" again, easterners should remember what happened to them this winter.

SPUD DIET. — It is a great pity the way diet-conscious people are cutting down on potatoes. But two shippers from this area are doing something about it. They are including in each package of spuds an article proving that potatoes aren't fattening.

— Hartland (N. B.) Observer

ISSUES BRING VOTERS. — Cochrane recently held a special election, when 1,408 people turned out to vote in favor of dining and liquor lounges. At the municipal election last December only 376 voters were interested enough to visit the polls.

FINE PROMISE. — "I promise to do my best." That's one of the promises a Boy Scout or a Wolf Cub makes when he is invested with due ceremony into the local troop or pack to which he belongs. Think what a better world this would be in so many ways if all of us did our best, day in and day out.

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, March 14, 1884 —

Employees of the Windsor Hotel in Montreal have not closed their eyes for 48 hours, in the rush of business due to the Carnival.

Messrs. G. and M. Simpson, of St. Andrews, will sell by public auction their entire stock of store goods.

Mrs. James McCluskey, of the Irish settlement of Wentworth, has fulfilled the scripture addage of "bringing forth and replenishing the earth"—for she has been only 20 years married, and has brought forth nine sons and five daughters, the last weighing 13 lbs. at birth.

The steam whistle at the paper mills sounded the alarm of fire Tuesday night. We hastened to the scene and found it was the new drying house put up last fall by Mr. Ireland for the Bobbin Company. People flocked to the fire with buckets, but the building was quickly consumed . . . The need of a fire engine for Lachute is again emphasized.

The Watchman is indebted to the Hon. J. J. C. Abbot, M.P. for Argenteuil, for the receipt of parliamentary books and papers.

A friendly game of curling was played this week between the Carillon and Lachute clubs . . . On Thursday evening Mr. Kelly dined the St. Andrews Curling Club at his residence in Carillon.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, March 12, 1909 —

Mr. Ernest Noyes, of Cushing, has left for Nelson, B.C., to join his brother who is a mechanical engineer of the Yale Lumber Co.

A meeting was held in St. Andrews Town Hall to consider the wisdom of building an iron bridge over the North River.

Although our City Fathers purchased the Victoria Hall some years ago, it is too small for present needs. We have a beautiful new post-office which, when completed, will cost $26,000. The Odd Fellows are seriously considering the erection of a $9,000 building . . . This is the age of Progress and it is up to the town to meet present needs with a new town hall.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of Encyclopedia Canadiana

Can you "Hear" the Northern Lights?

Some observers have said that during intense displays, the northern lights are accompanied by a sound like the rustling of silk. These lights, known as the Aurora Borealis (the northern lights, as opposed to the Aurora Australis, the southern lights), are widely visible in Canada during autumn and winter. The shapes assumed by the lights are indefinite in number and very fleeting. The colour may range from flame to a greenish hue. The most frequent appearance is that of an arch of fire, from which great streamers flash toward the zenith, ranging from pale red or yellow to deep red. The phenomenon is caused by the passage of electricity through the rarified air of the upper regions of the atmosphere.

Why do Trees have Roots?

The widespread system of roots performs many functions for the tree. Roots anchor the tree, allowing it to withstand winds of great force; roots also absorb moisture and minerals. A tree needs huge quantities of water, and the surface through which water can be absorbed is increased by the growth of hairs along the root behind the tip. Roots help to hold the soil and to prevent erosion. At the same time, they break the soil and loosen it, making passages through which rain can penetrate deep into the earth. Roots grow only at the tips. A hard cap forms over the tender growing shoots and acts as a protective sheath to the tips as they push their way through the earth. The spreading root system in the earth is usually as complex and far reaching as the network of branches above the ground.

Of Many Things

Farm brains wasted

This is going to get me in dutch with some farmers but I want to tell the story anyhow.

There was a corner of Manitoba where eleven farms were owned by eleven men. Eight of those men were darn good farm operators; two of them got by fairly well; one was in deep trouble.

Each year, the eleven men climbed on eleven tractors and tilled their eleven farms; all did the job well. All of them, at the same time, mulled over their farm problems and made decisions.

Then one morning farmer Johnson was struck by the fact that here they all were — eight extremely fine brains, two good brains, one poor brain (but good tractor operator), bouncing around the fields. It was inconceivable that those brains were fully occupied all the time.

So he thought, "Why don't we get together. Eight of us could raise quite a bit of money, two could raise a little, and the eleventh, if we supervised him, could operate an enterprise. He'd have a ten-man Board of Directors meeting once a week, if need be, to direct him — and he could use the fees we'd pay him. Then, when we're all sitting on our bottoms on these tractors, we could be using our brains to solve the problem of the other enterprise."

He called a meeting. They decided that with a certain amount of money they could put up a good piggery on a portion of the farm of the eleventh — they'd lease the land from him, provide management for the piggery, and a small wage for any work he did. He saw it as a way out of his difficulty; and he was smart enough to know that he'd learn a great deal by association with men who were "natural" farmers with experience.

They made plans, visited the bank supervisor in a nearby city. The bank looked over the proposition, okayed the financing. The piggery went into operation, and made a fine profit. The farmers are making more use of that brain power they possess, and now they are considering some additional ventures, perhaps a turkey farm. After all, why not? The extra profits seem to come so easy.

Now, unfortunately, the above story isn't true. I know so many farmers with terrific brains operating them on one cylinder only, looking to Ottawa when they could be looking around them and finding answers for themselves.

Or could it be these things just look easy, when you are sitting behind a typewriter?

Atomic-powered ships that skim across the Atlantic at more than 100 miles an hour may soon be built.

Preliminary tests seem to show that it can be done. Now the United States has commissioned Grumann Aircraft to build an 80-knot, 100 passenger experimental ship driven by gas turbines.

Its hull will rise clear of the water above the waves on stilts and underwater wings.

They'll test it on the oceans of the world in 1961, and if it works, hydrofoil ships may soon be crossing the Atlantic in a day.

Popular Science magazine carries a fearsome-looking colored plate of one of the new ships on stilts, racing over the sea.

Only a few years ago, a person could dismiss such dreams with a tolerant snicker. Now that truth is running such a close race with science fiction we can believe anything on earth.

To a generation that has seen a rocket circling the sun, a mere ship travelling at 100 knots places no strain at all on belief.

If it works, then what? Maybe, a ticket from Halifax to London for $50. A week-end in Jamaica, Honolulu, or Ceylon, for any tired stenographer.

It is an exciting prospect. Cheaper ocean travel may do a lot to make the people of the world better acquainted with one another.

Like other devices to shrink the size of the globe, it is worth much praise. However, science has not yet invented a way to abolish armed guards and customs officers.

The greatest advance in human affairs will come when we break through the stupidity barrier.

CFRA Concert at Capitol

Mrs. Frank Ryan, wife of the president of CFRA Limited, presented a beautiful bouquet of red roses to Miss Teresa Stratas, guest soloist at the CFRA Concert at the Capitol Theatre on Sunday, March 8. The concert, which featured the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra, directed by Thomas Mayer, was held to inaugurate the opening of CFRA's separate programming on CFRA-FM.

Ottawa event marks stride by Station CFRA

Ottawa — On Sunday evening, March 8, a capacity audience at the Capitol Theatre in Ottawa, thrilled to the music of the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra for the official inauguration of Radio Station CFRA's separate FM programming. The orchestra, conducted by Thomas Mayer, was warmly received by the near 2,400 guests of CFRA President Frank Ryan. The highlight of the evening was soloist Teresa Stratas who sang her way into the hearts of all present. Later in the program Terry Kielty, m.c., announced that Miss Stratas was one of five finalists in the auditions for the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York. The results for this Met contest had just been made known to Miss Stratas during the evening. The crowd at the Capitol joined Terry Kielty in wishing Miss Stratas the best of luck in succeeding in the Met contest finals.

After the intermission of the concert Ottawa Mayor George H. Nelms told in glowing terms of how CFRA rose from its new position in the community 10 years ago to its top spot today. How it had branched out at the beginning with a new broadcasting technique, and how now it was bringing the best of music to the capital and district listeners via its new separate programming on CFRA-FM. Mr. Frank Ryan thanked the Mayor, and stated CFRA-FM would be presenting a new type of programming that would be a great benefit to the area by featuring works by the world's best composers, and featuring a very high standard of broadcasting.

Later in the evening, the charming Mrs. Frank Ryan presented a bouquet of flowers to Miss Stratas.

Was Community Figure

Former friends regret to learn of the death of Dr. J. E. Lalande, D.P.H., who was first county health officer on establishment of the Health Unit in Argenteuil, a former Grand Knight of the K. of C., and a community figure during his residence here in Lachute. Dr. Lalande died Tuesday in Montreal, at the age of 69. He is mourned by his wife and three sons.

The late Dr. Lalande was born at St. Hermas, and practiced privately at Grenville before assuming the public medical office for this county.

The remains are resting at the Urgel Bourgie Parlors (N.D.G. and Decarie Blvds.); funeral rites will be at the Notre Dame de Grace church on Saturday morning.

Year reviewed at W.M.S. Presbyterial recent annual meeting in Montreal

Mrs. E. D. Errey was re-elected president of the Montreal Presbyterial of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada, at the annual meeting held recently in St. Andrew's Church, Westmount.

Mrs. Hugh Taylor, Executive Secretary of Overseas Missions, was guest speaker. Mrs. Taylor spent 10 years as a missionary in West China and has twice visited United Church Missions in India, China, Japan, Korea, Africa, and Trinidad. Title of her address was "The Christian Mission at This Hour". This was the theme of the great Missionary Conference held in Ghana last summer which Mrs. Taylor attended.

"What is really meant by a Christian Mission, and what is the nature of Christian obedience?" These are the two questions so often asked. At a conference of the British Missionary Societies, the answer was given as total responsibility of obedience to the purpose of God. There are no geographical limits. The church must go in the world wherever there is need, physical or spiritual.

In the early days of Missions, missionaries were sent out and churches established. They were supported by the home church. Now, in many cases, they are self-supporting, served by ministers of their own country and missionaries from the sending country. At home, whether one was interested in Missions or not used to be a personal affair. Not so now. Missionary enterprise is the direct responsibility of every Christian Church member. There is nothing in the New Testament to indicate any exceptions.

What is our share? We have a responsibility in material things, and a responsibility in the proclamation of the Word. It is important that the right kind of woman be chosen to go in the Mission field. She must be a woman with mature Christian faith; she must be professionally trained, and she must have deep convictions. She must be able to answer the question "Why are you a Christian?" This is of paramount importance to non-Christians. The basic need is the presentation of the Gospel.

Our service as Christians is in the field of relief, and so help in the raising of the standard of living. It is a partnership in obedience, a common obedience to the command of Jesus Christ, said the speaker in conclusion of this stirring address.

Reports from the different secretaries showed a year of activity during which the 4,100 members raised $65,187 for Missionary work.

40-Voice choir to present cantata, "Olivet to Calvary"

At the Lachute United Church on Good Friday evening, a 40-voice choir composed of members from Lachute United Church, Maple Avenue Baptist Church (Brownsburg), St. Simeon's (Lachute) and Brownsburg United Church, will present the pre-Easter cantata "Olivet to Calvary" by J. H. Maunder.

This cantata rich in musical composition, has not been given in Lachute for about 30 years. The solos and recitative presentations are full of pathos and beauty, and are taken by soprano, tenor and baritone voices; these will be sung by Mrs. Don Barbour, Mr. Robert Haydon and Mr. Lundy Pearson, respectively.

At the console of the organ will be the director of this presentation, Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, who has given a great deal of time and energy during the past two months in developing the cantata.

It is hoped that a good support will be given to this combined community and church effort, and that as many as possible will attend this very fitting presentation for Good Friday evening.

Circuit convention of Jehovah Witnesses, Montreal, March 27-29

Montreal has been chosen as the scene of the 1959 circuit convention of Jehovah's Witnesses — it was announced by Mr. Peter Rae, presiding minister of the local group.

The theme to be featured at the meet is, "Be a teacher of the Good News."

Platform Bible talks and dramatizations will be presented in keeping with the "teaching" theme. This theme has been selected because it most clearly demonstrates the teaching work of the Witnesses.

"We are an international preaching fellowship, and this three-day training program is designed to improve the house-to-house teaching of our local ministers," said Mr. Rae. "Our teaching methods are patterned after Jesus and the apostles, and this explains why we have become the largest united body of preachers in the world."

The rally is scheduled to open March 27, at the Canadian Slovak Hall, Park Extension. Highlights of the program will be the public talk on Sunday March 29, at 3 p.m., when Mr. Laurier Saumur, district supervisor of the group, will speak on the subject, "Appreciating Your Privileges at the World's End."

All sessions will be open free of charge.

Speaking to millions of human hearts

About 2,500 languages and dialects are spoken by the billions of human beings populating this earth. The problem of communicating a single message to all is a formidable one, yet the Bible Society has succeeded in the amazing achievement of translating and publishing the Christmas story, and more, in 1127 of the world's languages and dialects.

As a result, God is speaking to millions of human hearts. In marble cathedrals and mud huts the same timeless truths are read, heard, taught, and discussed in words men know. In the past year some 27 million Bibles, Testaments, and Portions of Scriptures have been placed in eager hands by the Bible Society.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. Edward Andrews wishes to thank all friends who were so kind to her during her recent illness, in sending cards letters and phone calls; also for their visits.

DEVILLED FISH STICKS

'Tis said that variety is the spice of life, and, nutritionally speaking, the Lenten season gives us a chance to put this old adage to the test. Fish is the dish to highlight many Lenten meals, and fortunately, there is a type of fish to please every palate. The manner in which fish can be served is almost limitless. It's not necessary to have your own freezer to enjoy the taste of "fresh" fish the year round. Practically every kind of fish is now being frozen and packaged commercially.

It's a simple matter to buy fish fillets or sticks and devise an uncomplicated yet distinctive sauce to dress up your fish dish. The recipe for Devilled Fish Sticks illustrates the point. Use the frozen fish sticks of your choice and spread them with a mixture of tangy condiments, onion, butter and lemon juice. Broil or bake them and presto, you have a luncheon or dinner dish that is truly a taste treat. You can garnish the platter with vegetable slices, lemon wedges and parsley. A tossed salad, potato chips and beverage complete this satisfying meal.

Devilled Fish Sticks

¼ Cup very soft butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, 1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, dash of tobasco, 2 teaspoons grated onion, ¼ cup finely chopped parsley (optional), 2 packages fish sticks.

Combine butter, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice, Tabasco, onion and parsley. (Mixture will not be completely blended). Place fish sticks close together in broiler pan; spread with butter mixture. Broil, 4 inches from heat, about 7 to 8 minutes or until golden and done. Or bake at 450 degrees F. 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

(Consumer-tested recipe released through Fisheries Council of Canada.)

Easter ham

Legend has it that ham is a discovery of a lucky accident many, many years ago. Somewhere, some time, the story goes, threat of an invading tribe caused some villagers to hide their treasured supply of fresh pork by burying it in the sand near the sea. The tides came in and the cool salt water seeped through the sand to bathe the pork in this natural brine. When later the meat was removed and hung by the open fire to cook, the smoke brought further changes in color, aroma and flavor. One can imagine the celebration and rejoicing at the discovery of a new flavor treat and a way to keep the pork from time of plenty for use when food supplies were scarce.

Again, and 'tis but legend, this discovery came in the spring of the year after a long cold winter. So the feast day became a yearly celebration for early spring. Whatever the origin, it is known that the Egyptians had learned the secrets of curing and smoking pork. Drawings on the walls of the pyramids show a slave presenting ham with great fanfare to a kingly warrior.

The primitive ham was a far cry from the scientifically prepared masterpiece of today, but the basic principles are the same; that is, curing pork by immersion in a brine containing — salt for cure, sugar for flavor, and nitrate for color; then smoking in hard wood smoke to bring out the fine red color and distinctive flavor.

Today, in every step from the selection of the pork and the curing ingredients through the smoking, wrapping, and distribution, exacting skill is used to produce the tender, fine-flavored, uniform Canadian ham that will be the centre of interest on Easter tables throughout the land.

Colored Easter Eggs

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

In a poem by Mary Root Kern, the poet urges the Easter Rabbit to waken in his home in the forest where he has been sleeping during the winter. She writes:

See, the sun is shining clear;
Wake and hasten, Rabbit dear!
Easter Rabbit, sit upright,
Lift your ears, so long and white
Easter Chimes are clearly ringing.
Easter voices sweetly singing.
Bring the eggs, all red and blue
Many children wait for you!"

This and many other delightful poems and interesting tales are found in "The Easter Book of Legends and Stories" by Hazeltine Smith. This would make a charming gift for reading aloud in a family where there are children or for a school book shelf or a children's hospital.

Many of the selections would be a fine addition to an Easter program given either for a children's or an adult audience. Because there are so many Hungarians who have sought refuge in Canada, the story "Easter Eggs" by Kate Seredy, is particularly appropriate. The main characters are Jancsi, a boy living on a ranch on the Hungarian plains and his cousin Kate from Budapest. Another collection of stories, called Easter Chimes, compiled by Wilhelmina Harper, has a delightful story on the origin of colored Easter eggs adapted by Katherine Dunlop Cotter.

Shortly after we moved to Winnipeg we attended a handcraft demonstration. One of the most attractive booths showed two Ukranian women in costume decorating very ornate and pretty Easter eggs. The Ukranians are the third largest racial group in Canada and there is a special mention of writing and coloring of Easter Eggs (pysanka) in the book "The Ukranians in Manitoba" by Yuzyk. In it he points out that this craft dates away back to pagan times. The egg was symbolic of the renewal of life, the rebirth of hope. This egg-decorating art was incorporated in a modified form by the Christian Church in the Ukraine as an Easter custom.

The decorated eggs were given as tokens of friendship or of high respect. There was a wide range of different shades. Each region boasted its own special designs and color combination. Geometrical patterns were most popular, but many symbols such as the sun's rays, stars, wheat, flowers, fish, birds, animals, and the cross were common. These were written with a stylus, using hot beeswax (instead of ink) which was later removed. Because the handwork on a well-decorated egg would take six to ten hours of work by an expert it was valuable. One or two coats of varnish helped to preserve the lovely designs.

All over the world boys and girls decorate Easter eggs. Parents might do well to encourage them to make their own patterns. If a school-age child is artistic he or she might receive real satisfaction from producing an original design for an egg.

Even small children have fun coloring eggs. It is difficult for little fingers to prick both ends of an egg and blow the contents out into a bowl, without smashing the shell. An older school-age child can take pride in his task, but parents of small children do well to stick to hard-boiled eggs for coloring.

There are various inexpensive packages of coloring material and transfers of pictures on display on store counters at this time. A set of small bottles of vegetable colors, which mother uses in baking, make an excellent substitute. A child's box of paints can serve. In some homes where pennies must be counted very carefully, the dark red water in which beets have been cooked, and the yellow from onion skins, and the scarlet of berries, and other home-made dyes are pressed into service.

In this machine age it is a good thing for boys and girls to find delight in making things with their own hands. Handcraft in the home means planning for mother and supervision during this activity. She can protect her floor with newspapers and the children can wear plastic aprons. Encourage them to give one of their nicest colored eggs to a grandparent or some older person who would enjoy it— In the fun of coloring eggs. don't forget to plan to attend the church of your choice on Easter Sunday. Let your son or daughter follow the suggestion of the ancient canticle:

"Come ye children, praise the Lord,
Raise your song with sweet accord,
To His name all glory bring,
Day and night His praises sing."

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman
By Edna Usher
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Imagine going to a party at a house without furniture. It does sound madcap, but Ottawa hostess Aidrie Cruikshank has a reputation for throwing some of the capital's most interesting and original parties.

Besides, there was a reason for the lack of furniture — the Cruikshanks were leaving the city after a 10-year stay. The furniture was gone, but the party went on.

Diplomats, cabinet ministers and other Ottawans were among the 200 people who sat on stair steps, boxes or just stood around having a gay time.

Part of the moving-day party was food, of course, and this time friends came laden.

Mrs. Cruikshank, an attractive woman full of vitality and ideas, has a party philosophy that goes like this:

"I just try to give a new and funny twist to parties. Anything to take the stuffiness out of them."

Most guests say they love Mrs. Cruikshank's parties, but wouldn't have the nerve to follow her example.

Pembroke, a lumber centre about 100 miles northwest of the capital, is the new home for Mrs. Cruikshank, who once gave a luncheon for Mrs. John Diefenbaker, wife of the prime minister, and persuaded all her friends to come dressed as butlers and maids.

Natural Look

Paris designers this year have been criticized for a lack of originality — their styles have gone back to the natural look.

However, it is reported that the buyers are buying, and shoppers will find hemlines just comfortable below the knees, and waist in its place and a neckline decolletage that is wide rather than low.

Although the season boasts a multitude of colors, greens appear to be the most popular.

Piano Prodigy

In Winnipeg, nine-year-old Emmanuel Ax has been impressing experts with his piano talent. The boy, who arrived in Canada from Poland with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joachim Ax, played Bach, Beethoven and Mozart for Victor Feldbrill, conductor of the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra. He said Emmanuel apparently has "a photographic memory of music. He has absolute pitch, a rarity in someone so young."

Stern Spouse

When a Detroit judge granted Antonas Waitkunas, 74, a divorce, he commented: "You shouldn't have married such a young girl."

Mrs. Waitkunas is 64.

Mr. Waitkunas testified that when he retired in 1954 his wife said: "No work, no eat."

His wife got his $150 pension cheque. She gave him $10 a month, cut him down to one meal a day, moved him into their basement and rented his upstairs room.

STUDENTS LOSE BATTLE OF BEARDS

Keith Brian, left, and Chris Campbell have bowed to authority and their beards are now just something they'll see in their family albums. They are two of seven students, at the Burlington, Ont., high school, who spent three months growing Van Dykes, moustaches and full beards. Finally school authorities said: Those beards gotta go—or you go instead. The beards went and the students stayed.

Flying saucer by Avro Aircraft

Ottawa CP — Any person in Toronto or vicinity who thinks he sees a flying saucer in the next few months may well be right. Canada's flying saucer, under development secretly for six years, is scheduled to take to the air for the first time in May or June.

"Flying Saucer" is not a misnomer because the machine is round, about 18 feet in diameter and carries two or three men. Avro Aircraft Limited of Toronto, the company developing it, is not yet sure it will work, since it embodies new principles.

If the machine does work, there is a possibility it will be mass-produced for the United States Army and perhaps the Canadian Army. The U.S. took over financing of the project when Canada withdrew after spending $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 on it.

The flying saucer — or the aerocar, or flying jeep, as its developers describe it — would take off and land vertically, and would be able to hover like a helicopter or dart off in any direction at subsonic speed. A supersonic model may be produced if this one works.

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Branch 70 Correspondent

Com. President Tom Smith and members of Lachute Branch 70 were hosts, a week ago Sunday, to several members of Alexandria, Ont., Branch No. 423.

Headed up by Com. President Hugh MacQuaig, the group from Alexandria included Comrades Harry Main, Marcel Pattyn and Donald McDougald, Executive Committee members; Roddy McDougald, Sports Committee; Alden MacMillan, Building Committee; and Gavin MacDonell, Canteen Committee. In view of the fact that our Ontario neighbors are about to construct a new Legion Hall in their community, it was felt their visit here would be of interest and value to them. During the course of the afternoon they were given many valuable pointers on building design, construction and Branch operations.

An enjoyable social hour was held after the business session. Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Auxiliary under Chairmanship of Mrs. Norman Lavis, president.

In his remarks of appreciation, Com. President Hugh D. MacQuaig thanked the local Branch for their generosity and, in pointing out that there should be more social interchanges between the various Branches, invited any member to visit the Alexandria Branch, assuring that they would be most welcome.

Plans for participation in the 1959 Lachute Fair were discussed at the Executive meeting held last Wednesday evening. Other plans included an after-Lenten dance and Branch activities.

Members are again reminded to drop around and pay their 1959 dues. There are only a very few who have neglected to do so to date, but our ambition for 1959 must be a larger paid-up membership, if we are to keep in stride with the country-wide surge. In looking through last month's copy of the Legionary, it is surprising how many Branch units doubled their membership during 1958.

Members will be pleased to hear of the continued recovery of Com. Eddie Jones. We hope to see him home soon!

Incidentally, members going to Montreal would do well to call Com. R. A. Giles, chairman of the Sick and Relief Committee, for the names of hospitalized members. In most cases a short visit would be much appreciated.

Did you know — that the exploits of Canada's heroic 1st World War pilots are recalled in a new exhibit at the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa? Momentoes of three famed pilots, each a winner of the Victoria Cross are being displayed this month and the rest of the year, to coincide with the celebration of the 50th anniversary of powered flight in Canada.

Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., D.S.O. and Bar, M.C., D.F.C., and Lieut.-Col. W. G. Barker, V.C., D.S.O. and Bar, M.C. and two Bars, were probably the best-known of all the intrepid flyers who in World War I fired the imagination of Canadians with their daring victories in the air over France, and led Canada into the age of aviation

Souvenirs of their fighing days, and also of Lieut. A. A. MacLeod, who was awarded the V.C. at the age of 18, form the new exhibit.

Highlight of the display is the fuselage of the Sopwith "Snipe" which Barker flew in his Victoria Cross action on October 27, 1918. The fuselage still bears the bullet holes of the furious engagement.

At the left of Barker's aircraft is the R.C.A.F. uniform of Air Marshal Bishop and the propellor and blue nose-cap from his famous fighter, the "Bluenose". Beside the display case are four of the many awards Bishop received for shooting down 72 German aircraft, for his pioneering work in aviation, and for his dedicated leadership in the R.C.A.F. during World War II.

The display dealing with Lieut. MacLeod includes his flying suit, goggles, gloves and helmet, his log book, his uniform, a model of the Armstrong-Whitworth aircraft he was flying when he won the V.C., and a fine bust of the gallant pilot by the Canadian sculptress, Mrs. Hilliard Taylor.

The Canadian War Museum plans other exhibits on Canada's aviation history during this anniversary year.

Lest We Forget

March 21, 1918 — Germans began break-through offensive towards Channel ports. Canadian motor machine-gun brigade played an important role in stopping them in front of Amiens. For four months the Canadians and British harassed the enemy to bring the offensive to a stop, and finally prepare a counter-blow.

Fire damaged garage re-opens

In this issue an advertisement announces the re-opening of the Fairway Sales & Service garage on Bethany Road . . . The announcement recalls a costly fire which was little known except to regular customers at this service station; and to the proprietor, Roger Legault and his staff — for the damage and interruption of business were sufficient to discourage even the most enthusiastic operators.

Mr. Legault and his staff, however, tackled an oily, smoky, dirty job. They encountered costs which doubled the original estimate of damage; and the result today is a garage with all service equipment repaired or replaced, the building revamped, redecorated and improved in many ways, and every facility for still better service to customers . . . Mr. Legault deserves much credit for his initiative, and attention of the motoring public is directed to the announcement of his re-opening.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

One of the best bargains you can drive today is gasoline. Not counting taxes, it costs about the same as it did 30 years ago. But it is so much better that two gallons of today's gasoline does as much as three gallons used to do.

A bargain like that is worth taking care of. Here are 10 tips on how to make a good buy seem better — by getting more miles per gallon:

Start, drive and stop smoothly.

Drive at a moderate speed.

Turn the engine off during long waits.

Keep your tires at the pressure recommended by the manufacturer.

Make sure your carburetor is in good condition.

Don't let the engine get overheated.

Use the right lubricants for the season in which you're driving.

Keep the ignition system correctly timed.

Replace worn piston rings.

Shift to a low gear when going up steep hills.

To Mrs. J. Ward Rember, provincial convener of Education, who was also present, goes much of the credit for this award.

RCAF Girls Operate Pine Tree Equipment

There were strange, but nonetheless capable hands manipulating the radarscopes and other machines of the Pinetree spotting station near Barrie, Ont., when the regular staff took a holiday. The new hands were the RCAF Reserve girls who receive training, as part of their Reserve course, that acquaints them with the airplane spotting equipment. Sgt. Lois Brown is shown here at the radarscope. It was the Reserve's first trial on the Pintree equipment.

Candidate plans campaign by sled

Churchill, Man. — (CP) — Don Wray of Swan River, Man., plans a 40-day dog-sled tour of the big northern Manitoba provincial riding of Churchill to bolster his chances as the Liberal-Progressive candidate in the next Manitoba election.

"I've never mushed a dog in my life, but I'm willing to try," he said in an interview. He was defeated in the last provincial election by E. J. Williams, Progressive Conservative.

His only companion on the trip will be a former Navy buddy, Joe Green. Though neither of them has travelled by dog team in the north, they don't intend to employ a guide.

Equipment for the journey, in which Mr. Wray hopes to shake hands with 7,000 constituents, is being assembled by friends at Churchill, 610 miles from Winnipeg. Former trappers, they will see to it that the adventurous pair has everything necessary for the trip.

The vast constituency extends from Ontario on the east to the Saskatchewan boundary, and north from The Pas to the Northwest Territories.

Do outboards scare fish?

For generations, anglers have been admonishing each other to "be quiet or you'll scare the fish". With the advent of the outboard motor there were unfounded fears that the exhaust, the noise, the wake — something was bound to disturb the fish. Factual evidence, however, was lacking to prove or disprove these theories.

To discover the true relationship of outboarding to fishing and fish mortality, the Outboard Marine News Bureau offers this information based on factual studies, proving that outboard motors have little or no effect on angling success or fish supply. This conclusion is supported by leading naturalists and conservation experts . . .

In a 1957 Congressional hearing in the United States, Richard H. Stroud of the Sport Fishing Institute told lawmakers: "In our considered judgment as pro-experienced fish conservationists, based on evaluation of the scientific data available, that there is no factual basis to indicate that use of outboard motors on our waterways is in any way harmful to fish populations or to their tendency to strike an angler's bait or lure."

One of the first truly scientific studies on the subject was conducted in 1950 by Prof. Karl Lagler of the University of Michigan. Experiments conclusively proved that outboard operations have no harmful effect on fish nests, mortality, reproduction or catch by anglers. A more recent research program was conducted by the Texas Fish and Game Commission in 1955-56, and substantiated the earlier findings.

In its report, the Commission stated: "Surface noises apparently have little or no effect on fish at depths of over 10 feet. A 10 H.P. outboard motor is used frequently in diving areas where observations are in progress. No difference in the number of fish seen or general activity can be seen during periods of extensive use of the motor and periods when the motor is not in use. On one occasion, the boat was run at full speed back and forth over a test area. The fish in the area completely ignored the motor noises and continued normal activity. With the exception of a small whirring noise, no effect of the motor below 10 feet was noticeable."

Additional research programs by scientific groups and conservation agencies have reached the same conclusions, and it can only be concluded that while motor noise and wash may be bothersome to some fishermen, the evidence proves that outboard operations are not in the least harmful to fish or fishing.

Hotbeds heated by electricity

A flick of the switch is all that is needed today to grow vegetables and bedding-out plants for spring transplanting.

Electricity has taken over the job of heating hotbeds, replacing decomposing manure, which, while used successfully for many years, caused occasional failures due to overheating and underheating.

Big Savings

Gardeners requiring large numbers of plants can realize substantial savings by growing the plants themselves, says Horticulturist W. E. Torfason of the Lethbridge, Alta., Experimental Farm.

The federal horticulturist points out there are three basic requirements for making an electrically-heated hotbed: (1) A suitable frame, complete with glass or plastic sash; (2) Soil heating cable; and (3) A temperature regulating thermostat.

Heater Cable Needed

The frame can be of two-inch planking and ordinary storm sash or specially-constructed two-layer plastic sash may be used. Heating cable can be purchased in lengths of 60 or 120 feet, with the shorter length being used on a 110-volt power supply and the larger length on a 220-volt power supply.

Each 60-foot length of cable will heat 36 square feet of frame space. This is sufficient to start 1,000 to 1,200 plants. Multiple arrangements of cables may be used where more space is required. A reliable waterproof thermostat will maintain the hotbed temperature at any desired level.

Flats Preferred

Plants may be grown in a bed of soil covering the heating cable, or in flats that can be set on a framework above the cable. Use of flats is preferred because of the ease of handling and greater heating efficiency, particularly in cold weather.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

INFECTED EARS

Ear infection is a year-round hazard. Swimming and diving in summer and wet feet or chilly drafts in winter are often blamed.

Infected ears have long been difficult to treat because as many as five different germs — fungi as well as bacteria often strike at the same time. But fortunately, today's physician has drugs deadly to all of them.

A natural choice is a broad-range antibiotic like Terramycin, effective against more than a hundred human disease germs. This powerful antibiotic, combined with another called polymyxin, routs the group of bacteria that are common culprits in ear and nose infections.

In one recent study in Winston-Salem, N.C., Dr. R. Ausband, treated 23 infected ears with this solution. A total of 37 different kinds of germs were found in these infections, but the antibiotic combination cleared all but six of the ears. Four of the six were middle ear infections, which rarely respond to local treatment. The other two were long-established stubborn cases.

Such treatment can ease much of the pain and distress of ear infections, but a few simple rules of personal hygiene can often avert trouble entirely. Wash the ears gently, thoroughly and often. Don't poke inside with makeshift instruments. Doctors often advise patients to use ear plugs if swimming bothers them. And take care of a sore throat or common cold to avoid complications.

If you do come down with an earache, a hot-water bottle or an ice-pack may sooth the pain, but it's wise to let the doctor prescribe the treatment.

Canadian Is Extrasensory Perception Champ

A Canadian who dabbles in hypnosis as a hobby topped the class in a world-wide extrasensory perception test conducted by Jack Lancaster of Philadelphia for Duke university. Bob Howe, above, 37-year-old Toronto advertising executive, scored 266 points out of a possible 500 in the test which required him to pick up "targets" or thought waves transmitted by Lancaster, 500 miles away. Closest of his 46 rivals was a Texan woman who had 195. Every evening for 20 days, Lancaster "sent" a target, which could be any one of these 25 symbols in five different colors, or any combination of them. The next morning the contestants wrote down their answer, and at the end of each week the score card was mailed to Lancaster.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I came to Canada in 1956 and worked from February 1, 1956, until August 30, 1956, when I became ill and was ill until the end of April, 1958. I returned to work on April 7, 1958 and worked steadily until September 13, 1958, when I was laid off. Do you think I am eligible for benefit? I know you have to have thirty weeks' contributions in the past 104 weeks.

A. The normal 104 week period may be extended, upon application, by the number of weeks you were unable to work due to illness during the 104 weeks immediately prior to filing your claim. If your application is granted your claim would then be examined to see if you had sufficient contributions in the period consisting of the previous 104 weeks plus the period of the extension, to enable you to qualify.

Q. How long can I collect unemployment insurance if I am laid off? I have been working steadily for three years.

A. You are entitled to one week of benefit for every two contribution weeks made on your behalf in the 104 weeks immediately prior to filing your claim for benefit. The maximum number of benefit weeks which can be authorized for a claim, however, is thirty-six.

Q. I am a young girl. Since the Commission offered me a job which I refused because I did not think it suitable, can I be disqualified for more than six weeks, considering that I have always declared myself available in my locality?

A. This would depend upon the normal opportunities for employment in your locality. If you are residing in a small village where opportunities for employment are very limited, and you are not willing to accept work elsewhere, you may be considered to be not available for employment within the meaning of the Unemployment Insurance Act and, therefore, not entitled to benefit.

Riverview, N.B. — (CP) — Wiley Darrel stoked up his pipe as he prepared to celebrate his 91st birthday and claimed that the pipe never grew cold. He was a millwright earning 12 cents an hour at the time of his marriage.

Urges Research

Montreal — (CP) — The recent Canadian Lumbermen's Association convention was told by Maurice Hecht of Toronto that the industry is losing ground to other building materials, because of failure to promote and develop the technical potential of wood. He said the amount of research done in logging and sawmilling "is pitiful".

CONCERNING THE LADIES

Canned fruits and vegetables sized to suit shoppers

(Consumer Section)

Canned foods are used by large and small families in every income bracket, in every section of the country. There are canned foods to suit all of these families and to suit all tastes.

One evidence of this is in the number of sizes of cans in which fruits and vegetables are available. There are six main sizes:

10 fluid ounces — 1¼ cups
15 fluid ounces — 1⅞ cups
20 fluid ounces — 2½ cups
28 fluid ounces — 3½ cups
48 fluid ounces — 6 cups
105 fluid ounces — 13 cups

The sizes of cans which may be used for fruits and vegetables are outlined in detail in government regulations. In addition to those already mentioned, a few special sizes of cans are allowed for baby foods, juices, a few vegetables, soups and spaghetti.

The term "fluid ounce" means the measure or volume of the can, not the weight of the food in it. However, the weight of the fruit or vegetable which must be present in each size of can is specified in the regulations and it is the same for each grade. For example, in a 15-ounce can of peach halves in syrup, whether the grade is Canada Fancy, Canada Choice or Canada Standard there must be 9 ounces (by weight) of fruit; in a 15-ounce can of sliced peaches in syrup there must be 10 ounces of fruit.

The fruit and vegetable processors aim to please budget-minded shoppers and that is why they pack their products in several different sizes of cans. Since many homemakers seem to prefer to buy smaller cans of certain fruits and vegetables a greater proportion of these are made available now than previously.

In the Canadian Table of Food Values a 4-ounce serving is suggested for most canned fruits and vegetables. This means you would probably buy cans containing:

10 fluid onuces — for 2, or for 2 adults and 1 small child.

15 fluid onuces — for 2 adults and 2 children.

28 fluid ounces — for a family of 6 or 7.

Of course, if second servings are popular in your home, you will need to buy a larger can than the size listed here for your family.

Pork tenderloin economical, no waste

Consumer Section

There are many cuts of pork — all good — but perhaps the best of all is the tenderloin. Because it is all fine-grained, tender, lean meat with no waste, pork tenderloin often is well worth the extra cents a pound it costs over other cuts.

Pork tenderloins may be bought either whole or cut in thick slices which are sometimes "Frenched" (or flattened) to make the slices larger or thinner. Whole tenderloins on the average weigh from ½ to ¾ of a pound and vary in length from about 7 to 10 inches.

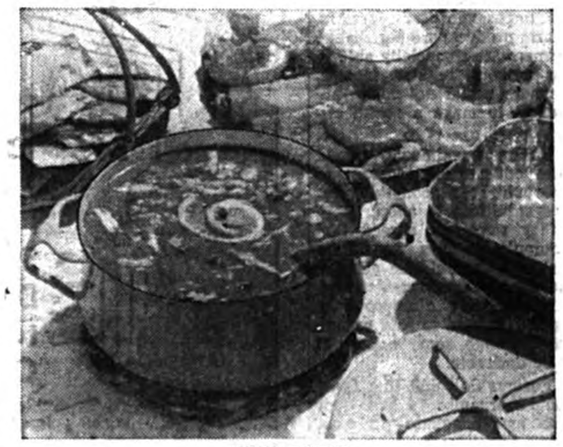

Two whole tenderloins when split lengthwise, stuffed with bread stuffing and tied together — then roasted, will provide 4 to 6 servings. The stuffed tenderloin is excellent when sliced and served cold, too, and it makes a fine filling for lunchbox sandwiches.

"Frenched" tenderloin may be braised, panfried or baked and breaded tenderloin is a popular entrée on many restaurant menus. To make breaded pork tenderloin dip the "Frenched" slices in flour seasoned with salt and pepper, then in egg (mixed with 2 tablespoons of water) and finally in dry, fine bread crumbs. Cook similarly to fried chicken — in about ½ inch layer of hot fat in skillet — until outside is crisp and golden and meat is fork tender, 20 to 25 minutes.

Directions for the other cooking methods mentioned for pork tenderloin are included in the book "Meat, How to Buy—How to Cook" available for 50 cents from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa. This interesting and informative book contains directions for all cuts of pork and many tempting recipes you will want to try while pork is so plentiful and reasonable in price (e.g. Sweet and Sour Spareribs, Boiled Pork Hocks, Glazed Ham, Stuffed Pork Chops and Tourtières.)

Chowders... "Easy Come, Easy Go"

LENTEN FEATURE

"Easy come. Easy go."

When you stir up a kettle of chowder, you see how fittingly this carefree old slogan fits the savoury eating that comes forth. And how timely for this Lenten season. March winds send appetites soaring like kites. And your hungry hoard sails in for supper, ready to eat everything in sight. As early New Englanders and Maritimers found, best buffer to March winds is a steaming kettle; with seafood and vegetables adrift in a tantalizing broth.

Many a historic feast has centered around a peppery chowder. Who hasn't read Moby Dick; and hungered for a whale-size bowl of the fish chowder which perfumed the air of Nantucket inns! Descriptions of French and Italian coastal villages often tell glowingly of soups that magically mingle seafood and vegetables — like those we can enjoy from Atlantic to Pacific shores.

Coast to coast, all across the U.S. and Canada, families scurry to the kitchen when chowder sends out savoury signals. In true 1959 style, they often find Mom busily brewing . . . mixing cans of prepared soups to make magnificent chowders. This is the kind of beautiful broth she can render up — without setting foot near ocean or stream.

CRAB-VEGETABLE SOUP

1 can (10 ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1½ soup cans milk
1 can (10 ounces) condensed vegetarian vegetable soup
1 cup flaked cooked crab (small can)

Blend mushroom soup with milk; stir in vegetarian vegetable soup and crab; heat. Garnish with grated lemon rind, if desired. 6 servings.

LIVEN BREAKFAST WITH V-8

Put a tingle into breakfast with sparkling red V-8 juice. Perch a wedge of lemon or lime on the edge of each glassful for those who like extra zing. On a cold morning, heat the juice for a pleasing chill-chaser. It wakes up appetites for proper appreciation of the ham and eggs with cinnamon toast.

SOUP HONOURS ST. PAT

"Wearin' o' the green" for St. Pat's day includes a bright touch of colour on the dinner table. Start with savoury hot bowls of green pea or cream of asparagus soup. Gently slide a puff of whipped cream (unsweetened) or sour cream atop each bowl. A sprig of watercress at the tiptop will look for all the world like a shamrock. Still another garnish idea — croutons cut like shamrocks. Then on to the Irish stew or your pet holiday dish.

Evening elegance

A sleeveless wrap of sheer "Terylene" bouclé over a printed cotton sheath was used in this ensemble for the spring collection of the Association of Canadian Couturiers. In shades of cocoa brown and white, the attached stole forms a cowl neckline and falls over the shoulder in a short train.

Prime Ministers

Of Canada's 13 Prime Ministers, three were born in the United Kingdom, one in New Brunswick, and three each in Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario.

Where does Canada's Governor General Live?

The official residence of the Governor General of Canada since Confederation has been Government House, popularly known as Rideau Hall, in Ottawa. A large limestone house in the Scottish style, it was built about 1838 by Thomas McKay near the junction of the Rideau and Ottawa rivers. Originally the surrounding estate contained about 1100 acres. First known as The Castle, the house was leased to the Canadian Government in 1865 as a residence for Viscount Monck. Three years later, it, together with 65 acres of land, was purchased by the government and it has since been used continuously as the vice-regal residence. Additions to the original building have been made.

Canadians urged to eat more apples

An attractive 20-page brochure containing dozens of suggestions for preparing and serving Canadian apples can be obtained free from Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Prepared by experts in the Consumer's Section, this brochure also describes grading, storing and packaging of the fruit, and includes a calendar indicating when each of the 18 Canadian varieties is on the market.

180-Day study of milk yield

Ottawa — By studying the milk yield for 180 days, dairymen can determine with 90 per cent accuracy how their cows rank.

This was brought to light by a comparison of 180-day and 305-day yields at Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

By taking advantage of the shorter period, breeders could decide earlier what animals to sell or cull; production certificates would be available sooner; fewer incomplete records could be processed in milk-testing programs, which would make progeny tests on bulls more accurate; and culling of poorer producing cows could be completed on official records well in advance of subsequent calvings.

Part of the lack of accuracy in the shorter period is because some of its high and low points in production are not as accentuated over the entire 305 days.

However, this could be overcome by considering the rate of decrease in yield throughout the 180-day period. By making proper allowances for this rate of decrease, the 305-day yield can be predicted accurately.

Lack information on available farm services

Asked why farmers don't make more use of extension services, the Farm Forums say that the main reason is that farmers don't know what services are available to them. Secondly, many groups think that some farmers lack initiative and interest in finding out what services are available. Some farmers are afraid of the cost of following new procedures and adopting new methods, and others are just stuck in a rut — according to the Farm Forums. The Forums also feel that many farmers are busy and just never think about using extension services.

More publicity is needed about extension services and the Forums suggest that provincial farm organizations should be responsible for this publicity. They also think provincial organizations could make suggestions about new methods and agriculture techniques.

Local groups could hold field days, and visit experimental plots and encourage members to visit practical demonstrations. They could also sponsor short courses and invite good speakers to meetings. Farm Forums could study existing services and encourage members to write for more information.

Here are two opinions from groups in this district:

"The farmer is careless about taking advantage of these services. Those that are interested enough to go after these services get the advantage of them. Most farmers will not bother to enquire to find out where to write for these services." — Arundel

"A lot of farmers are just beginning to realize the help they could get from extension services." — Lachute Road

NOT NEEDED

We don't like those notices about "my wife having left my bed and board, I'll not be responsible for her debts." . . . Advertising of this nature can do nothing but further gossip, and the good Lord knows that a newspaper is not needed for that.

— Windsor (N.S.) Hants Journal

Today, eighty per cent of the wood which feeds this mill consists of various hardwood species.

We went a step further. We knew it would be profitable for the farmers of the region to harvest this wood on their farms — if we could show them the right way to go about it. This would provide them with a much-needed cash income. So in 1952 we established the Harrington Forest Farm on the Rouge River. We bought up some abandoned farms so that now we hold about four thousand acres of land of our own, right next to several thousand acres held under lease from the Quebec Government.

Harrington is primarily a demonstration centre. Our extension forester is available to work with anyone interested in getting some help on his own land. We meet with interested groups, like the Farm Forum, Women's Institute groups, and a new association of certified tree farmers which is just getting organized in the region.

In working with the individual farmer, we are not concerned with his pulpwood crop alone. If we can get him to grow more wood on his land, we know that we will get our share of what he grows. It is to his interest — and ours — to grow the trees which will produce the best return for him. This means that his wood may be marketed as sawlogs, plywood logs, poles or posts, just as well as pulpwood.

Above all we're interested in getting across to the people of Argenteuil County the fact that trees are the best farm crop for certain soils and for certain conditions. There is no better evidence for that statement than some of the abandoned farms right in the county.

Our decision to convert the Hawkesbury mill to hardwoods and to rely on farm woodlots in the immediate area for its source of supply proved to be the right decision. It has opened up new potentialities for us and for the woodlot farmer. I would like to extend a cordial invitation to all of you — and particularly to those of you who are owners of farm woodlots — to come to Harrington and see for yourselves what we are doing.

Farmers are against strikes

Farmers should not strike — according to Quebec Farm Forums. The Forums feel that strikes are unfair to other sections of the economy, which must suffer some effects; that strikes are generally a financial and economic loss to strikers a well as others, and that they cause bitterness. Some Forums believe that a farmers' strike would be morally wrong, when people in other countries are hungry. The groups also pointed out that practical considerations make strikes impossible for farmers. Some farm products are perishable, few farmers are financially able to survive without regular income, and farmers would not co-operate sufficiently to make a strike effective.

The Forums unanimously agreed that the educational program of unions would be a good thing for farm organizations to adopt. However, they were not agreed that the compulsory dues system of labor should or could be adapted for the use of farm organizations. They unanimously disapprove of forcing all farmers to join organizations, although some believe it would be desirable.

The Forums do think that farmers should organize to sell their products and negotiate prices. Following are two opinions from branches in Argenteuil County:

Striking would lose more than it would gain. A "Closed Shop" and "Dues System" would not be feasible. Not enough farmers would be willing to stick together to work towards these ends. Not many are willing to pay $5 to belong to Farm Forum, consequently there would be less who would be willing to pay $50 to $60 to belong to a union. Farmers should be educated to make more money. — Brownsburg Road

Many farmers pride themselves on their independence, and lack of co-operation would make a strike ineffective. Farm commodities are perishable and must be sold right on time. Small farmers with limited resources could not absorb the losses. — Arundel

$78,838 year's revenue from 1% Education sales tax levy

The one-percent sales tax adopted in this region with provincial government sanction four years ago produced, in a one-year period from July 1, 1957, to June 30, 1958, an appreciable revenue of $78,838 for the Catholic and Protestant school commissions of the area. Based pro rata on the number of school-age children from 5 to 17 years in the municipalities concerned, the tax was apportioned $60,219.79 to the Catholic bodies and $16,228.29 to the Protestant. Included in the former allotment is $2,365.15, or 3 per cent of the total, as costs of collection — this being undertaken by the Lachute Catholic School Commission. Auditing costs were $75.

For the one-year period mentioned, amounts were allotted to the various school corporations as follows:

Lachute Catholic, $27,458.96;
Lachute Protestant, $8,894.31;
Ayersville Cath., $10,857.36;
St. Andrews Village, Cath., $3,980.69;
St. Andrews Parish, Cath., $1,105.13;
Brown's Gore, Cath., $332.60;
St. Andrews, Prot., $955.80;
Carillon, Cath., $1,082.04;
St. Philippe, Cath., $4,764.20;
Brownsburg, Cath., $9,812.24;
Brownsburg, Prot., $5,773.15;
St. Michel, Cath., $776.57;
St. Michel, Prot., $268.78;
Lakefield, Prot., $275.53;
Dunany, Prot., $60.72.

It should be noted that Lachute Catholic school area includes children in St. Jerusalem Parish, and Lachute Protestant school embraces St. Jerusalem and families in a part of Chatham. St. Andrews Protestant school includes also Carillon. St. Philippe Catholic school includes Chatham. Brownsburg Catholic school includes Pine Hill, and Brownsburg Protestant school includes part of Chatham.

Appointed Chief of Ayersville

Sgt. Marcel Therrien of the Lachute Police Force has received the appointment as police chief and works officer for Ayersville. He will assume his new duties this Saturday.

The appointment was made at a special meeting of the Ayersville Council last Friday. Two other bids were received for the vacancy left by the resignation of Adrien Cyr. There were two other applicants, one from Laprairie and the other from Lachute.

Plan large wing as extension to Clement School

The Ayersville Catholic School Commission plans to start shortly on the construction of a new wing to the Clement School, to accommodate some 240 additional pupils. This extension to the main building will face on Hammond Street, opposite the Immaculate Conception School.

The 140 x 55-foot addition will include a gymnasium 82 x 45 feet and eight new classrooms, making a total of 18. The exterior will be in brick and fieldstone. Architects for the two-storey wing are Dufresne & Boulva, of St. Laurent.

It is estimated there will be an enrolment of 349 pupils at this school next September, and 320 at the Immaculate Conception girls' school. The latter provides education up to 11th year, while the Clement boys' school teaches only up to 9th grade.

3-Year suspension of driver's permit, fine and costs

Gerald Pilon, 34, of St. Philippe, was found guilty last Friday of driving while his ability was impaired, and was sentenced to a fine of $50 plus costs, his driver's permit being suspended for a three-year period.

Pilon was arrested on Wednesday last by Traffic Officer Gerard Loyer, and the charge was laid by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, both of the local Provincial Police detachment. He appeared Friday before Judge Omer Côté in St. Jerome court.

The stiff license suspension resulted from a previous charge laid against Pilon, which was turned aside by the jury due to lack of sufficient evidence. On July 14, 1956, Pilon was involved in an accident on Route 8 near St. Philippe, in which Paul Alain, 25, of Victoriaville, was fatally injured. In that case Pilon was held criminally responsible by the coroner's jury and later brought to trial, but was not convicted.

Tree Farm Night at Rotary Club

A "Tree Farm Night", with a marked shortage of persons in attendance to accept their certificates, was the program of last Thursday's Rotary Club meeting. George Paul, of Paul & Graham Reg'd, was inducted into the Club at this meeting by Past President King Amos.

An additional five certificates were scheduled for presentation—Henri De Puygalon, representing the Gatineau Power Company, being the sole recipient in attendance for the presentation. Others who have earned their certificates but who were not in attendance are — Allan M. Mitchell, Lac Brulé; R. M. Chisholm, Lost River; Dan Club Tree Farm (Allan Herrgen, St. Jerome); and Dr. H. L. Mussels and R. D. Percy, Dunany.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Doug Morrison, of C.I.P.'s Woods Division, Grenville, who brought members up-to-date on the plans for forming a Tree Farmers' Association. (A complete report of these plans will be published in next issue.)

Mr. Morrison was introduced by Rotarian Don Barbour and thanked by Rotarian Georges Defosses, who also made the presentation of the certificate to Mr. De Puygalon.

On tour with Trade envoys

Ottawa — Nine Assistant Trade Commissioners, who have completed their training in Ottawa, left last week on a tour of Canada to familiarize themselves with Canadian industry before leaving for the trade offices to which they have been posted. During the next two months, they will visit plants from coast to coast, meet managers and personnel with whom they will likely be in correspondence, and learn somthing of the problems they may be called upon to solve in the foreign field.

The group includes Clayton G. Bullis, of Hawkesbury, who received his B.A. degree from Queen's University in 1954 and his M. Comm. degree from the University of Toronto in 1956. He has been posted to Kingston, Jamaica.

Star gymnast in action

The sensational Wilhelm Weiler of Germany, who won the International Gymnastics held here last year.

International gymnastics meet at High School here April 4

Again this year (on Saturday, April 4, at 7.30 p.m.) Lachute High School will have the honor of playing host to the International Gymnastics Meet.

Most of the outstanding gymnasts who participated last year will enter again, and with most of them in serious training for the Pan-American Games, this promises to be even a more spectacular event than last year, when the sensational Wilhelm Weiler won the meet.

The local gymnast Reg Stansfield will participate and with his new routine in Parallel Bar and High Bar stunts, which are close to being fantastic, he may surprise some of the competing gymnasts.

This meet at Lachute is known as one of the most outstanding gymnastic competitions in Canada.

Tickets are now for sale at the Cliff Cunningham Store, Main Street, Lachute.

Home and School meeting held panel discussion

One of the most interesting of the current season's meetings held by the local Home and School Association was enjoyed by some 60 people at the High School recently.

A nominating committee was formed to elect a slate of officers for next year, and they will present their slate at the meeting in April. The nominating committee includes Mr. George Rodger, chairman, Mrs. C. L. Duncan, Mr. S. W. Milnes and Mr. K. Clarke.

A very worthwhile project has been taken on by the Association in the form of a Scholarship Fund. The Association plans to present $125 to the fund, to be given to some student this year who meets the requirements set up by the Scholarship Committee. This committee, including Mr. F. H. J. Royal, Mr. R. Bailley, Mr. H. D. Graves, Mrs. G. Dobbie, Miss E. Stanton, met in February and drew up a list of recommendations and requirements as follows:

1. The scholarship shall go to any student to further education of his or her choosing.
2. The student must be recommended by the principal, and approved by the committee.
3. A needy student will be considered first.
4. The student must pass all the examinations required for entrance to the college, universtiy or educational institution of his choice.

After the business meeting had been completed, Mr. K. Riley, the Association's president, then introduced the program for the evening. This took the form of "Fighting Words," patterned after the TV program, with a moderator, Mr. P. B. Aitken of St. Andrews East, and a panel of four, Mrs G. M. Pride, Dr. C. J. MacKimmie, Mrs. Kenneth Fraser and Mr. R. N. Wyse, the latter two being members of the teaching staff of the high school.

The topics discussed were:

1. Children should be allowed to progress according to ability, not age.
2. Teenagers of today are lacking in ambition.
3. The emphasis in our schools should be placed on academic rather than vocational training.
4. The Canadian home of today does not train its children to be responsible citizens.

All of the topics sparked lively discussion, and the conversational ball was tossed freely among the panelists — and the audience. The members of the panel are to be highly commended for the care and thought they put into this stimulating evening.

Mr. Wyse brought in an interesting sidelight when he gave out statistics of a poll he had taken among 38 of the high school students on the topics for discussion. The students proved to be more critical of themselves than their parents were!

Next month's program, which will take the form of a Career Night, also promises to be an interesting one. There will be three speakers — Mr. M. R. Wilson, speaking on Forestry Engineering, Mrs. R. N. Wyse, whose topic will be Household Science, and Mr. T. H. McFarlane, of Montreal, who will discuss careers in the chemical industry for high school and university graduates.

Former townsman named head of welfare society

Lloyd R. Canning, a former townsboy and Lachute Academy graduate, was elected president of the John Howard Society of Quebec, a Red Feather agency, at the annual meeting held last week in Montreal. Mr. Canning is personnel superintendent of the sales division of Northern Electric Co. Ltd.

The retiring president, O. R. Brumell, in his final report after three years in office, said "the beginning of real changes" in the penal field is being seen in the province. He called for a diagnostic centre or forensic clinic for persons before the courts, and adequate probation service, and staff appointed by the courts to provide pre-sentenced reports.

"The average person should be helped to realize that the isolation of men from society only increases their dependence and inability to operate in a free society," he declared.

Mrs. Kathleen Campbell, executive director of the society, said the agency received 1,167 applications for help during 1958.

Magistrate T. G. Street, chairman of the newly-instituted National Parole Board, said there is a "calculated risk" involved in the parole system, but recent cases of rehabilitation have proved the principle worthwhile. He cited instances to prove his point.

Library to open next week in Main St. quarters

After a lengthy period of organization and groundwork the French-language library, established in premises above the Giles Publishing House (hitherto loaned gratuitously by the company), is now ready to occupy permanent premises. The group "Carrefour du Livre" has leased a store property at 283 Main Street West (opposite Deacon Motor Sales), where the enterprise will officially open on April 4.

These plans were announced by the president, Jean-Marc Belzile, at an informal reception at the library quarters, where 20-odd guests were given an insight into the long preliminary task of classifying 3,000 volumes and of preparing all details to launch this library as a public facility. The visitors were impressed with the ardour and effort displayed by the committee under Mr. Belzile's guidance.

A formal directorate will be appointed to operate the library. A provincial charter will be applied for. Operation costs will be financed by membership subscriptions. The Loisirs arganization of Ste. Anastasie Parish has also pledged its support.

For you, it means a richly-rewarding spiritual experience, and comfort for every day of your life. Come to church ... come to worship on Easter.

Plan program for Dollard Day at Carillon

Undaunted by the inconsiderate weather which, on several past accasions, has nullified the best-laid plans — preparations are under way to celebrate Dollard Day on May 24 at Carillon. Carillon is the site (controversial, but in these parts generally accepted) of the heroic Dollard des Ormeaux stand against the Iroquois invaders heading downstream to Montreal. A monument commemorating this historic exploit stands in the parish church yard, presumed to be near the scene of the defenders' stockade.

An elaborate program is planned for the anniversary occasion, with a community-wide committee at the helm, under presidency of Chas. A. Shaffer, Carillon. Other officers are — Marcel Décary, Carillon, vice-president; Miss M. P. Shaffer, secretary; Rev. Jos. St. Martin and Leopold Crevier (Carillon), Dr. André Lallier (St. Andrews), P. E. Barbeau and M. Dumas (Ayersville), Chas. E. Shaffer (St. Andrews), and Fernand Berthiaume (Lachute), directors.

New B. M. manager at Arundel

Chas. C. Farran, appointed to Arundel branch

Peter Hebert, transferred to head office

Charles C. Farran has taken over as manager of the Bank of Montreal's branch at Arundel, it was announced this week. Mr. Farran succeeds Peter Hebert, who has been transferred to the bank's head office in Montreal.

Mr. Farran is a native of Wales, Ont. He joined the B or M in Sarnia, in 1930, and went on to serve in many communities in Ontario. He was appointed accountant at the Shawville, Que., branch of the bank in 1954, and in 1956 became accountant-in-charge of the office at Camp Petawawa, Ont. It is the latter post he leaves to take up his Arundel appointment.

The new manager is married, and has a one-year-old daughter.

Mr. Hebert is well known in the Arundel community, having been local B of M manager since 1954.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

As some of you know, Main Duck Island is once more calling us. We have been in contact with the fishermen who will take us over to "Paradise." Up to now, however, the reports on ice conditions have been pretty grim. But, just as soon as we are advised that conditions will permit a landing, we will be on the way.

A number of times I have been asked just where Main Duck is. If you have a map of Ontario, find Kingston, then Napanee; to the south you will find Picton. Still heading to the Lake, you will find South Bay. Still further toward Lake Ontario down to Prince Edward Point — that is where we will get the boat. About 3 miles from shore False Duck Island can be seen; another 15, and Main Duck comes up. By water it is about 40 miles from Kingston; about the same from Oswego, and about 15 to Sacketts Harbor. These distances are not far if going by car, but up to now they haven't got a car that will swim! So it's still by boat or seaplane.

As I mentioned before, the weather is the very big factor in getting off or on. Once we are on the island there will still be the heavy snow to contend with, as the cycles of weather change very much by being surrounded by water. When trees are leafing on the mainland, it will be up to two weeks before they start for us. It is remarkable, there are no light greens in the vegetation, all very dark. That is because of the water all around, from what I have been told.

I know there will be some Deer to bury, as the feed plane only managed to get over once this winter, due to extreme weather conditions that seem to have been general all over. So it's a foregone conclusion that some of them didn't make it. Let's hope not too many died.

The Pheasants will have had a little better forage than the Deer, still they must have been hard-pressed to survive. The rest of the animals will be alright for now. As for the snakes, they hibernate, so that, come the first good weather, they will be out driving the dogs crazy. Of course, it will be a couple of months before we will be able to get off the Island for eats, and that job will be left to the lady of the house, who can handle it much better than I. Besides, once I'm on, it's until next December!

From what I have been told, there will be a few changes on the Island — not in personnel, but in the operation of stand-by's to get off the Island at any time. These will be from the shore, of course, and in any emergency it makes you feel good to know there is someone there at all times.

It seems that I am also to be authorized as Customs Agent and Game Warden. Any boat or plane that comes into Canadian water is supposed to be checked. From past experience, there will not be very much to do in this line. As you also know, all game is protected — except the crows. (I hope the bounty for dead crows has not been forgotten this year — 50 cents a crow, and they will take a beating for sure). This year I'm not going to run short on ammunition for the snakes, either. No bounty on them, but I just don't like the indiscriminate way they kill. Maybe I shall pickle some, just to show to anyone who may be interested — the fair-sized ones, 6 feet or over. There will also be some pictures, which I hope may find their way into this column.

Once more, have you got your rods fixed up for fishing? Leaving it later, you may possibly miss some good fishing. Now is a very good time to start on it.

This story just has to be told. What you will think afterwards won't be fit to print (I think).

There is a young collie pup around our way, a very nice, friendly pup. A week or so ago it tangled with a cat. The right eye was pretty badly cut. Now this is what I'm getting at. The treatment — nothing. Yep, that's right. Not even wiped off. The pup has been around our place every once in awhile for the last few days, and Edith has been trying to get it fixed up a little. Naturally, the pup not being in our vicinity all the time, there isn't much luck. This morning, the real payoff though. We were going in to Lachute to bid our friends so long until next fall, and there was the pup outside. One look at the eye — and we spent about an hour trying to get it cleared out. Blind!

To me this is the most callous form of cruelty. If it had been possible to get the S.P.C.A. in on this, it would give me very great pleasure in giving them all the help I could. If people can't look after their pets, they shouldn't have them. How humans can treat animals with cruelty takes a lot of understanding; this could have been stopped with just a little kindness and care. Thank God most of us love animals.

An ever-present thought, this coming season: Gasoline and alcohol don't mix very well. That applies to boating as well as driving. So don't just be a memory!

Brownsburg team defeated Hawkesbury to clinch district league championship

Brownsburg — The Brownsburg Bombers brought the Quebec-Ontario Hockey Association championship back to the "Burg" on Tuesday evening of last week with a 7 to 4 win over the Hawkesbury Richports. A crowd of over 500 fans saw the Bombers jump into a three-goal lead in the first period, blow this advantage in the second, then outscore the Richports again in the third. The Hawkesbury team was tough and even dangerous, but the game ended with the Bombers on top by a fair margin.

Brownsburg took an early lead in the game, when Gary Keatley dug the puck out from behind the Hawkesbury net, took a pass from Red Charlebois, and beat Marcel Paul at the 3.25 mark. Paul had been called on to fill in for the regular Richport net-minders, both of whom were on the injured list for this and the previous game. Stuart Vary made it 2-0 at the 6.15 mark on a pass from Bill Cribb, and Mason MacAdam and the local "production line" put the Bombers 3-up after another six minutes of play, as Jacques Racine fired home a relay from André Ouelette and Bill Dimock.

The Hawkesbury team officials became panicky at the beginning of the second period, and made it known that they were intending to protest the game because the Bombers were not starting the second period with their original starting line-up. The C.A.H.A rules provide no basis for the protest.

The Richports came flying back in the second period, picking up three goals from the sticks of the Laroeque brothers. The second of these came at the 8.41 mark, while Roy Cruise was sitting out a hooking penalty. Jacques Racine netted the Bombers' only goal of the second period when he stole the puck off the stick of Togo Larocque just inside the Richport blue-line, coasted in on Paul, and blasted the puck into the net.

Red Charlebois set Gary Keatley up in fine fashion at the 2.44 mark of the third period, and Gary got in close, beating Paul with little trouble. Hawkesbury came back four minutes later, with Bender converting passes from Tom St. James and Yvon Chamaillard to bring the count to 5-4. Jacques Racine and André Ouelette made a picture play at 16.24, when Racine picked up a pass from Roy Cruise, broke up centre ice, then headed for the corner, drawing both defencemen with him; he then fired a perfect pass back to Ouellette, who had been trailing. André scored on a sizzling 20-foot drive on which Marcel Paul had no chance. Gary Keatley ended the scoring with less than two minutes to play, on a solo effort after intercepting a pass at centre ice.

So ends another game and another season — a season filled with good hockey, some poor hockey, some arguments and alas — an attack on a referee by a Hawkesbury player. To those who witnessed this inexcusable outburst, it seemed all the more brutal by the fact that none of the Hawkesbury players or the coach made any attempt to stop it. Referee Conrad Gagné observed all the rules of a good official by not doing anything more violent than holding off his attacker. At that, he appeared to be in better condition than his assailant when the fracas was over. . . . Police Chief Richard Gagnon ended matters when he put in an appearance and spoke a few kind words to the offending player.

Side Lines

Referees from this locality or any other should have the protection they deserve. Rule 67b of the C.A.H.A. is clear on the subject, but will the rule be enforced? Possibly the league requires a regulation with a few more teeth in it in order to keep the players in line. Perhaps a clause added to the playing contracts which each player must sign, could make each one subject to a fine or a civil suit if involved in a physical attack on any official.

Tom St. James played a standout game for the Richports. Bender and the Larocque brothers also showed up well. Marcel Paul played as well for the Richports as he did for the Lachute Spitfires.

Buddy Racine played a big part in bringing victory to the Bombers, in this game and in the series. Willis MacAdam was very strong defensively, while Bill Dimock was very effective in his usual polished role as stickhandler deluxe.

Gary Keatley's three goals were well deserved — his tenacity combined with an opportunist characteristic, showed up well in his freshman year.

Lachute Lions' Skating Rink

Activities and Highlights of the Week

BUCKINGHAM WINS OTTAWA VALLEY BROOMBALL TITLE

Lachute Lions' rink was the scene last week-end of a district broomball tournament, which provided some exciting contests in this game which becomes increasingly popular. Broomball, less strenuous and less hazardous than hockey, is a healthful and inexpensive sport. It requires little equipment; it inspires good sportsmanship — for rough tactics accomplish little in scoring efforts.

Ted Vachon and Jacques Bourgoing, in their first experience in organizing a tournament of this kind, met with good co-operation all round, and felt the venture was well worthwhile in sportsmanship.

Buckingham defeated St. Jerome in the final with a close score of 2-1 after 17 minutes of overtime.

The Dow team, favored locally to win the tourney, were eliminated by Buckingham 1-0; this decision also required an overtime period.

Bert Rigg kept the games on scheduleed time through Saturday and Sunday. Romeo Legault, as announcer, kept the spectators and participants informed. Referees for the games were Jacques Poitras, Conrad Gagné, Roland Decoste and Victor Guitard. Horace Lamarche was the ever-present co-ordinator. Hector Lepage made a superb job of preparing the ice, in defiance of Saturday's snow and wind. . . . And altogether this was a fine co-operative venture in which many played a contributory part.

1st Round

Legion 70 4	Boyd's Express 2
Masson Store 11	Bell Tel. 0
Buckingham 2	Hwksby Hotel 1
Dow, Lachute 7	Ste. Therese 0

2nd Round

Buckingham 1	Dow, Lachute 0
Blue Coal 2	Christieville 0
St. Jerome 5	Ecole J. Cartier 0

Semi-Finals

Buckingham 5	Masson Store 0
St. Jerome 6	Blue Coal 0

Senior H.S. boys win O.V.S.A.A. championship

Last Saturday, Lachute High School basketball team played against Hull High School at Hull for the Eastern Quebec basketball title, known as the O.V.S.A.A. Championship.

The game was one of the most exciting played all this season. The Lachute boys were trailing most of the game by 6 or 8 points, and at ¾-time were behind by 12 points. With three minutes left in the game, Lachute changed their defence to man-to-man and Hull did not seem to be able to beat this strategy. Lachute slowly caught up to Hull, and with only 20 seconds to go they were leading by one point. Arthur Gauley, outstanding player of the game, dribbled the ball for the remaining 20 seconds. The Hull boys did not have a chance to get the ball, and the final result was 45-44.

For the first time Lachute brought home the coveted trophy.

Boy Scout teams in hockey match

To prevent drifting on highway

SPRING IS HERE, and with the fast disappearing snow, we would like to make a suggestion to the Provincial Roads Department in our neighboring County of Deux Montagnes.

Having made numerous trips by road to Montreal during the past winter, we have run into considerable difficulty with blocked roads on the St. Hermas flats. The Roads Department, in Deux Montagnes as well as Argenteuil, has done an exceptional job this winter but we feel that their job could be made a lot easier by the simple planting of a few rows of trees in places such as these to cut down on the drifting snow.

Both sides of St. Hermas are bad and a section near Belle Riviere is not much better, and it no doubt costs the taxpayers a considerable sum of money to keep these sections open.

Trees have done the trick in other areas and we feel they are well worth a try here. One thing is sure, they would do no harm.

"Wake up and read" campaign

CANADIANS — who rank near the bottom in the world in their amount of reading — have become the target in an unprecedented national campaign to stimulate more active reading.

Supported by people ranging from Prime Minister Diefenbaker to interested volunteers across Canada, the campaign is designed to snap Canadians out of lethargic reading habits. The theme "Wake Up and Read" is being promoted by citizens' committees in hundreds of Canadian communities until the campaign culminates in Canadian Library Week, April 12-18.

It is pointed out that almost 40 per cent of the Canadian population is not served by a public library, according to the latest government survey. Of the 61 per cent within a library's area, the rate of book borrowing is a lowly 3.4 volume a year on the average.

Similarly, with one book store to every 18,125 people, Canada ranks 14th among the world's nations in book shops per capita. By way of comparison, Austria has a book store for every 2,754 people.

Furthermore, the most recent Gallup Poll on reading habits showed that 32 per cent of those surveyed had not read a book in a full year or more.

"This is a shocking record," says Dr. J. R. Kidd, National Director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education. "Sir William Osler used to say that 'money invested in a library gives much better returns than mining stock.' But it is pretty clear where Canadians put all their investments. A famous editor once wrote that 'Canada has the money, but would rather spend it on whiskey than on books.' Naturally we know Canadians must spend money on other things than books and libraries, but our aim is to improve the lamentable situation of reading in Canada with an active 'Wake Up and Read' Campaign."

Housing — time to take stock

CANADA'S HOUSING shortage has been reduced to the lowest proportion in at least 30 years, says the Bank of Nova Scotia in its current Monthly Review. And since most of the people now marrying were born in the 'thirties when birth rates were low, pressures on housing should not be intense for the next few years.

But although the housing situation has improved there are no grounds for complacency. . . . Many houses now standing are approaching the end of their life expectancy. By 1980 one million houses will be more than 75 years old, and another million will be between 50 and 75 years.

Before long a new generation (the bumper baby crop in the late 'forties which is now crowding its way through the schools), will be marrying and needing accommodation. A study prepared for the Gordon Commission estimated that between 1955 and 1980 the housing stock might have to be almost doubled, and that most of the growth would occur in towns and cities. To those who have watched the face of the country changing over the post-war period, says the Review, this prospect is at once alarming and challenging.

Canadians clearly prefer single-family dwellings; these represented two-thirds of occupied housing at the time of the 1951 Census, and have accounted for about 70% of new construction since. The outstanding exception to this pattern is Montreal, where in 1951 90% of dwellings were multiple units, but even there single-family houses are becoming more popular. Apartment blocks, of course, are most common in the large cities, especially Montreal and Toronto.

What is the trend in new building? It has been suggested that there will soon be regional cities in continuous strips across whole stretches of the continent. Such a regional city is already solidifying along the northern shore of Lake Ontario, from Oshawa to beyond Hamilton. The severe strain experienced by municipalities in the path of new development has brought a new emphasis on community planning.

In 1956 the National Housing Act was emended to broaden the Federal Government's participation in urban redevelopment, and since then 18 redevelopment studies have been undertaken across Canada, with such projects actually under way in five cities. As this program gathers steam, the provincial governments are also showing interest.

Our fanciful physicians

THE AVERAGE PERSON would no more think of curling up with a medical text than he would of paying a social visit to his dentist — but he might be pleasantly surprised if he did. Tucked away in the vast, formidable field of medical literature are little nuggets that can be unearthed by anyone with a bent for browsing.

One such happy hunting ground is the medical writing of the great Canadian physician Sir William Osler. It includes spicy comments on almost every subject ranging from warnings against overeating ("the glutton digs his own grave with his teeth") to unusual matrimonial advice ("choose a freckle-faced girl for a wife; they are invariably more amiable").

Other examples are as unexpected as they are lively, cropping up in such unlikely places as footnotes in weighty medical texts or printed lectures to learned societies. They even make the medical dictionary, one expert feels, "a work to cuddle up with."

Imposing technical titles, too, can be deceptive. A case in point is a presidential address "A Study of the Umbilicus," delivered some years ago before the Southern Medical Society of Glasgow. Its main purpose is to prove that the human being "is badly constructed for locomotion by road or by tree. The slowest fish swims faster. Man is adapted primarily for rest." This is a thesis that might be expected to have wide audience appeal.

Perhaps such literary outcroppings from the medical field should not be too surprising. The profession has long been noted for an international literary roster which includes such famous members as the rollicking French humorist Rabelais, the English A. Conan Doyle who created Sherlock Holmes, and the American poet-essayist Oliver Wendell Holmes. It has even been prescribed as a starting point for a literary career. "I do not know a better training for a writer than to spend some years in the medical profession," claims W. Somerset Maugham, himself an ex-doctor.

Viewpoints and perspectives

DEFENCE BURDEN. — Did you ever hear one individual raise his feeble voice to protest the cost of weapons of destruction? And yet he'll groan because it's going to cost something to better his community, his nation and his children.
Minnedosa (Man.) Tribune

HAPPY THOUGHT — Dr. Linus Pauling, in his book entitled "No More War," says that all of the explosives released during the whole of World War II by all the participants on both sides, amounted to the equivalent of three million tons of TNT. Thermo-nuclear bombs have now been produced, and exploded, with a single bomb releasing an explosive force equal to that of 15 million tons of TNT. In other words, we now have in one bomb five times the total amount of explosive force set off during the whole of the second world war.

NICE OUTING. — If you are dissappointed with your present income; don't like your boss; if you find working conditions preclude sufficient time for curling or golf — or if you have any particular beef . . . then organize a March on Ottawa. It really doesn't matter if results from these junkets are not up to par — it's nice to have an outing and get away from the rigors of the winter.
— Melita (Man.) News-Era

SURPRISE. — All in all, more than 100,000 of the immigrants who have entered Canada since the end of the Second World War have come from the United States. This is a highly respectable total which will surprise more than a few Canadians . . . It should also give pause to any young people who, having acquired their training and skills in this country, now contemplate leaving it.

Easter is Day of Blessing to All Mankind

In this painting the artist shows Christ blessing His disciples. With His resurrection at Easter, His blessing is extended to all mankind.

— By Ambrose Hills —

Inspired rhetoric

I visit frequently at the home of a couple where the wife, a beautiful woman, is in the habit of embracing her husband and asking him, "Who do you love?"

Jim is supposed to reply, ardently, overlooking the bad grammar, with a whispered, "You, of course, darling!" At least I presume that is what is expected, but it is not what comes out.

Jim looks sheepish, slightly annoyed, and reluctantly mutters, "You." He even giggles nervously — and Jim is not the giggling type. This seems to satisfy his wife; she giggles a little, too, and shrugs, and looks over at me with a sort of "Canadians-are-lousy-lovers" expression. Then she cooks up such a peach of a dinner, and behaves so charmingly for the balance of the evening, that I forget her one bad habit and Jim looks moon-eyed at her and all is bliss . . . Seeing this obvious happiness, I refrain from pointing out to her that if she must discuss love in the presence of visitors, she should simply say, "I love you, Jim," and avoid the rhetorical question.

In fact, I even get to thinking that maybe I am wrong, and she is right. Certainly, all of us should give some thought from time to time to the persons we love. The man who is not up to his neck in love with someone — woman, child, or friend — is leading only half a life. I know a man who is desperately in love with an absolutely no-good wife — but in my opinion, he needs and would ask no pity. It is better to love a loon than to love no one but yourself.

So who, or whom, do you love? Give it a thought from time to time. And when you know the answer — tell it to the lucky boy or girl! And cut out those rhetorical questions!

CAWS FOR COMPLAINT

"We've caws for complaint," said
the Carrion Crow
As he silently flew o'er the vast fields of snow.
Fed up, but not fed, and quite down in the mouth —
Though black, he felt blue as he longed for the South.

"We've caws for complaint," said
his sorrowful mate.
"Our eggs will not hatch for the season is late.
We can't keep them warm in this Nor-easter blow."
"Nor Easter Eggs either," retorted the crow.

"We've caws for complaint," said
the Carrion Crow
to blow.
"We daily grow weaker when we should grow stronger.
We can't carrion in this way any longer."

"We've caws for complaint," said
the Carrion Crow,
When out came the warm sun, and out went the snow.
So quickly they flew to a Crow-Bar to dine.
Their cro-cussing stopped, and they're now doing fine!

Who set sail from Victoria in a canoe and reached England three years later?

John Claus Voss, a German sea captain, made this perilous journey. On May 21, 1901, he set out from Victoria in the Tilikum, a Nootka Indian dugout canoe. He was accompanied by Norman Luxton as far as Suva and then proceeded on his way with a Belgian sailor, Louis Begent, who very shortly afterwards was lost overboard in a storm that also deprived Voss of his compass. Steering by the stars and sun, he was carried by wind and wave to Sydney. Exhibiting his canoe at various places to raise funds, he sailed via Tasmania, New Zealand, South Africa, Brazil and the Azores to England. He reached Margate on Sept. 2, 1904 — 3 years, 3 months and 12 days after leaving Victoria, completing a 40,000-mile voyage in a small craft solely under sail. For this remarkable feat he was elected a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

Voss abandoned the Tilikum on the banks of the Thames. Reconditioned in 1930 by members of the Greenwhich Yacht Club, it was returned to its home port of Victoria, where it is on display in Thunderbird Park.

COASTAL LINK

Victoria — (CP) — Provincial Highways Minister Gaglardi of B.C. said he welcomes a Washington State proposal to build a combined $18,000,000 bridge, ferry and highway system to link Bellingham, Wash., with Vancouver Island. "It was my dream, but they beat me to it," he said.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

The two little boys are not tall enough to look over the swinging door, but their father can hear them coming.

There is a high-pitched shout from the office lobby and a face appears in the swinging door. A boy clutching a knitted rabbit hurtles across the room and lands on his father's knee.

The boy's father, who had been seated at a desk trying to do some work, leans away as though from a heavy wind, and braces himself for the arrival of his younger son.

Sure enough, the younger son (holding a shapeless black woollen dog) slams through the swinging door, points himself toward his father, sails through the air and lands with a bone-cracking thump on the other knee.

While the two boys pummel and tug at their father (both talking at once) their mother makes her leisurely way in.

"Get them out of here," the boys' father says.

"Money, please," she replies.

"Daddy," says the older boy, "give us a ride in the thing. In the train."

The vehicle he has in mind is one of those big waste baskets on wheels.

Not long ago, the older boy couldn't see over the top of the big waste basket. Now the top of it reaches only to the middle of his chest, and even the small brother can look around comfortably.

So the boys' father lifts both of them into the waste basket and trundles them around the desks and chairs and back to the starting place.

Luckily, it is early in the day, and there are not many people in the place. It seems to Daddy that the indulgent smiles of his co-workers are beginning to look a trifle strained.

"Get them out of here," he repeats to the boys' mother, talking from the side of his mouth.

Without a word, Mummy stretches out her hand, palm uppermost. Daddy plants a banknote in it. Promptly the boys' mother shepherds the two little creatures through the door and vanishes down the lobby, shooting a sly grin back over her shoulder.

The boys' father settles back in his chair and applies his fingers tentatively to the typewriter.

"Aahh!" he sighs. "They're out of here. But it's blackmail."

Wearily, he removes a piece of sticky candy from his desk and gets back to work.

CEMENT MADE IN CANADA

Practically all the mortar and concrete used in Canada is made of Portland cement produced here from materials quarried and refined by Canadian industry. Special cements have now been developed to meet specific building needs. In a typical wet-process mill, limestone is crushed, mixed with clay-and-water solution and fed by conveyors into giant kilns where it is heated until the liquid is driven off and solid particles become fused. The resulting clinker is ground to a fine powder and mixed with gypsum. It is then bagged for shipping.

Manager reports high production at C-I-L in '58

Brownsburg — The 1958 production of sporting ammunition, detonators and signal flares at the Brownsburg works of Canadian Industries Limited was at a high level in 1958 — according to Ken W. MacGibbon, works manager here.

Employees totalled 1,263 at the end of 1958. Mr. MacGibbon pointed out that modern facilities for mechanical development and research, completed during the past few years, greatly assisted the improvement of products and production techniques. In addition, economies are beginning to be realized from the installation of modern machinery for the assembly of electric blasting caps.

Products of the Brownsburg ammunition plant receive nation-wide distribution. Ammunition is used by growing numbers of sportsmen for target shooting and hunting. Mining, construction, logging and seismic prospecting are important markets for detonators, which are used in blasting. Signal flares, in demand as safety and warning devices, are sold to railway companies, provincial police, transport companies and motorists.

Safety education continued to receive major consideration during 1958. As a result there were no lost-time accidents, and the plant has now accumulated well over 3,000,000 injury-free manhours — Mr. MacGibbon stated.

A comprehensive study of safety activities within the company was made last year by L. C. Thompson, now technical manager of the ammunition division. Some of the recommendations resulting from this study will be carried out at the Brownsburg plant, and employees will also be encouraged to participate more directly in the safety program.

"Kenny Stewart Day" and hockey exhibition game at Brownsb'g Arena

Brownsburg — In the near future the citizens of Brownsburg will have the opportunity to honor one of the town's busiest community workers. . . . On Sunday, April 5, the Brownsburg Community Rink will sponsor a "Kenny Stewart Day."

For 10 years, Kenny has served as manager at the rink in Brownsburg. While a great many people have given their time and assistance for various periods over years past, Kenny has "mothered" this $100,000 project from its infancy to its present successful position in the community. For eight months of the year, 30-35 hours per week are devoted to community rink activities by this dynamic individual, who asks nothing in return and is genuinely embarrassed when people extend a thank-you for a favor granted. His interest in sports and sports arenas has taken Ken far afield in search of ways and means of improving and maintaining our own rink — this again without thought of personal gain.

"Ask Kenny!" "Get Kenny!" "Where's Kenny!" . . . These exclamations are a common sound at the rink, and if the sought-after gentleman is not handy, things just don't seem to run smoothly until he is in the building.

Let's face it, Brownsburg — this is the man who made our arena what it is today! Would any of us be willing to donate as much of our time to the furtherance of a community project?

On April 5, everyone will have the opportunity to express appreciation of Kenny's efforts and enjoy what promises to be a fine hockey game. At 2.15 p.m. on that date, the Thurso Lumber Kings of the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League will take on the local Bombers, winners of the Q.O.H.A. championship.

While no further information is available for publication at this time, it is expected that two well-known personalities from the sports world will be on hand to assist in the program. More details will appear in next issue of the Watchman . . . Tickets are now on sale for "Kenny Stewart Day".

Mr. and Mrs. Allan McPhee and Mrs. Catherine Young spent Sunday with Mrs. Wm. H. Kelly and daughters, at Aylmer, Que.

INDIANS FORM NEW COUNTRY IN CANADA

Meet Chiefs Joe Logan, Sr., left, 80, and Dave Thomas, two of the 50 hereditary chiefs who were returned to power, after a 35-year wait, in a bloodless revolution at the Ohsweken Indian reserve near Brantford, Ont. Chief Logan led 1,000 Six Nations Indians in their march on the council house, where they drove out the elected 12-man council. The new hereditary council, claiming that the RCMP no longer has authority on the reserve, has organized its own police force and formed a new country independent of Canada—the Grand River country.

"Olivet to Calvary" sacred cantata this Friday evening

J. H. Maunder's cantata "Olivet to Calvary" is to be presented on Friday evening in the Lachute United Church. Before this rendition, an organ recital of approximately 15 minutes will be given by Mr. Lowel B. Hopkins, organist of the church.

The cantata is divided into ten parts, recalling simply and reverently the scenes which mark the last days of the Saviour's life on earth. There is the rejoicing of the multitude with hosannas and palms; the view of Jerusalem from the steep of Olivet; the Supper of the Passover; the pathos of the Garden of Gethsemane; and the violent mob scenes before the crucifixion. Maunder's dramatic music and clashing chords convey the spirit of the crowd crying "Crucify Him."

The augmented choir of 50 voices gives fine support to the leading soloists. Mrs. Don Barbour is the soprano, Robert W. Haydon, tenor, Lundy Pearson, baritone, and Clayton Robinson, tenor. The director and organist is Lowell B. Hopkins.

A collection will be taken to defray expenses.

A Bible Quiz

A Bible Quiz sponsored by Israel offers to the quiz winner a trip to Israel.

In Argentina, South America, a "Bible Quiz" is sponsored by Israel as a part of its tenth anniversary celebration. The program is transmitted by Radio Belgrano, which has international coverage. All questions are based on the Bible, and judges are a Jewish rabbi, a Roman Catholic priest and a Protestant pastor. Each participant receives a copy of the Scriptures, and the winner is to receive a trip to Israel.

The British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada will provide gratis on request a list of daily Bible readings for the year.

W.I. branches report activities, month of March

All Women's Institute branches reported having their annual meetings. The roll-call in each case was the payment of fees, and the program included conveners' reports and the election and installation of officers.

Arundel branch plans to hold a bazaar in July, and the usual School Fair in September.

At Dalesville a demonstration was given on "Short Cuts for Home-Making, Luncheons and an Easter Dinner."

Frontier branch decided that two prizes would be given to encourage Fair Work in their branch. One will be awarded to the member with the most exhibits, and the other to the member receiving the most prizes.

Fair work was also discussed by the members of Jerusalem-Bethany branch.

Lachute reported that the C-I-L Fashion Show proved a very successful event. A donation was voted in support of the proposed Home for the Aged.

Lakefield members are planning to hold a bazaar in July. Their project for the year is helping pay to have a needy crippled lady kept in a comfortable home.

Membership was renewed in the C.A.C. by Mille Isles branch. The group regrets that one of its members is leaving the community.

The Morin Heights W.I. sponsored a handicraft exhibit for girls of the Intermediate School. Prizes were given according to age groups, when the W.I. members entertained the girls and their mothers. This branch took over the canvassing for the Red Cross drive in the Morin Heights district.

Pioneer branch members brought clothing to the meeting, for the Unitarian Service Committee.

A quilt was completed for the Red Cross by the members at Upper Lachute-East End.

C.W.L. Held Successful St. Patrick's Supper

The members of the Catholic Women's League held their St. Patrick's supper on the "great day" itself. The Legion Hall was decorated with shamrocks, and during the evening Irish music was played by Mr. Lupien of Brownsburg, with songs by the Lions Club quartet.

Thanks to donations from a number of merchants, and the support of many friends in Lachute and district, the venture proved an outstanding success. . . . The members of the C.W.L. wish to convey an Irish "Thousand thank-you's, and God bless you!"

The Church Triumphant

(Easter Message, Specially Cantributed)

That is the proper title for the Christian Church at Eastertime — The Church Triumphant.

Throughout the year we often seem to fumble in our worship, and many of our so-called Christians do little to help the cause of Christ. But on Easter Day there is a certain something which touches the heart of all Christians — the call to acknowledge the Risen Lord. Men, women and children come from far and near to join together in a fellowship of holiness experienced at no other time during the year, a beautiful, rich feeling that can be sought nor found anywhere else.

There is something miserably wrong with a person's soul when they have no desire to participate in the Easter celebration. The devil himself has gotten a strong grip on that soul. But thanks be to God for the multitudes who will be together on this Easter 1959, blending voices young and old alike in the uplifting message: "Jesus Christ is Risen Today." . . . Feel yourself a vital part of The Church Triumphant.

— Revd. Horace G. Baugh

Circuit convention of Jehovah Witnesses

The 1959 circuit convention of Jehovah's Witnesses gets under way in Montreal this week-end. Mr. Peter Rae, minister of the local group, stated: "We are making plans for the whole congregation to attend. We are dedicated to improving men mentally, morally, and spiritually; we expect to receive instructions at this training program that will help us to be of better service in spreading the knowledge of God in the community."

The program is slated to open Friday at 7 p.m., in the Canadian Slovak Hall, Park Extension, and will continue for three days.

The climax of the rally will be the public talk by Mr. Laurier Saumur, district supervisor of the group, who has chosen as his subject, "A Paradise Earth Through God's Kingdom."

"We are particularly interested in this subject," Mr. Rae said, "because, what with the hydrogen bombs, and intercontinental missiles, this earth has become a dangerous place in which to live."

BELL LINES

by Dick Pearson your telephone manager

Did you know that many long-time telephone users in our town have told me they've never yet had to call our repairman? But, did you know that any necessary repairs to your telephone are part of our service to you? Your telephone is guaranteed forever. If anything ever does go wrong with your phone, you can count on an Installer like Gil Kirkpatrick to get it back in working order as quickly as possible. He's kept pretty busy putting in telephones and keeping them ready to serve you at all times. I know you appreciate that, and also the fact there's never a repair bill included in your account.

Every year, Bell drivers travel thousands of miles, and what matters most, they do it safely. Our drivers take special courses in "defensive driving" in order to prevent accidents. Two of our local Bell men are pictured here—Bruce Mason, Cable Splicer, and Jack Gordon, Storeman. They are members of the Lachute Auto Club which was organized in April, 1958 and at present has about 25 young men of Lachute in its membership. A couple of these latter are also Bell men well-known hereabouts — Cliff Scott and Peter Haldeman. The club held a winter Auto Rally last February 21 which required participants to drive safely over a specified course of 80 miles and do it in a regulated time. Bruce and Jack actually tied for third place in the total standing, but were the first of the Club's members to complete the run. They are shown holding the handsome Sport Centre Trophy awarded to them. The Club plans on holding its Auto Rally twice yearly and is hoping for a Road-eo this summer. We wish to commend this group for their public spirit and wish them luck in their endeavours. Their motto reads in part that they are an organisation " . . . devoted to securing public co-operation by promoting courtesy and safe driving on the roads." A very worthy aim!

Going away for Easter? Lots of people tell me they are planning trips if the weather is fine. Why not phone ahead to make sure plans for the weekend are all set. Even if you're staying home, give the family a call. It's almost as much fun as saying "Happy Easter" in person.

By the way, don't forget Bell has a lot of interesting films available for your group meetings. If you're program chairman I think our catalogue describing the free films that I can get for you would be interesting. Come in and see me, I'm sure we've some films of interest to your club.

— Jehovah's Witnesses —

Is YOUR faith that strong?

It can be. But how? The Bible says faith follows the report, and the report is through the word about Christ. No place aside from the Bible itself is the word about Christ Jesus given more prominence than in the columns of THE WATCHTOWER. As a result this outstanding Bible journal for almost eighty years has been building faith in its readers and stimulating them to works of faith. It has carried them through severe trials that have tested their Christian integrity to the limit. But more trials and more serious testings are still ahead. Fortify yourself. Build your shield of faith so strong it can even quench the fiery missiles of God's adversary, the Devil.

INTEREST IN BIRDS, A FAMILY HOBBY

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

The English language has quite a number of sayings in which birds feature. Some of the most well-known are: "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." "A little bird told me so." "Birds of a feather flock together." "Fine feathers make fine birds." "To kill two birds with one stone." The proverbs of a country often reflect the interests of the people.

Boys or girls who study birds learn to admire and love them. They will never want to harm them or plunder their nests. A child gets real satisfaction from befriending the "feathered company," who are indeed friends of man. From studying birds, children may want to build houses for them or establish a feeding station for the birds.

A bird enthusiast should write to the provincial government for pamphlets on birds. The Canadian Wildlife Service, Department of Resources and Development, National Parks Branch, has three excellent free leaflets, "Bird Houses and their occupants," "Attracting Birds with Food and Water, and "Three Lessons on Bird Protection," which are mailed on request. Literature on Migratory Birds' Protection may also be obtained from this department. A booklet with black and white illustrations, "Some Familiar Canadian Birds" and a set of sixty colored postcards may be ordered from the National Museum of Canada, Ottawa.

It is satisfying to get a good collection of bird pictures such as those issued by the Audubon Society for the walls of a bedroom or a living room. Artists such as Allan Brooks and R. Bruce Horsfall have painted the birds in their natural surroundings and their pictures are very satisfying. A print of Frank Panabaker's appealing painting of his own little daughter looking out a window at a cardinal would grace any small child's room.

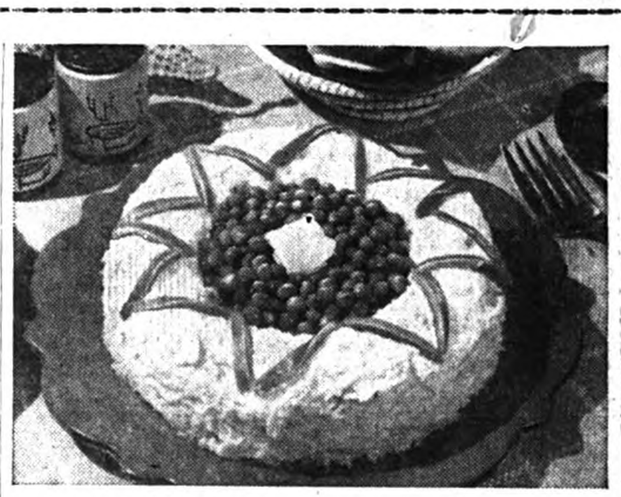

A bird hobby may have different ways of expressing itself. The person who is musical will delight in the song of the birds. He may want to jot down the notes on a black score sheet as he hears them. Or he may try to imitate their different calls. One of the excellent phonograph records of bird calls would make a fine gift for a nature lover.

The methodical person will want to keep a complete, accurate record of each bird which is seen, the date and time of day, as well as the location and a comment on the bird's flight or activity. A quick sketch of a bird adds to the attractiveness of this diary. The nests, eggs, food habits, and migration of birds all form fascinating subjects for investigation.

The older boy or girl who is a camera fan may want to take pictures of birds or of their nests. This is no easy feat! The naturalists who have snapped outstanding bird pictures have often built a "blind" or hiding place. They have waited patiently for long periods for their bird or birds to appear.

First or Second Class Boy Scouts can earn a proficiency badge as Bird Warden. The requirements for this award include, knowing the habits, calls, and appearance of at least 12 distinct species of birds in the district, feeding birds, finding nests and knowing how to make three types of bird houses. An interesting section of this badge asks a Scout to find out the chief natural dangers (animal, bird, etc.) to which the birds are exposed and how to counteract them.

In a world where there is so much hurry and worry, where so much recreation is expensive and so many leisure time activities are passive spectator ones, the leisurely, inexpensive personal enjoyment of birds is in a class of its own. If you have not tasted the joys of a bird hobby do give it a trial! It is a grand family hobby!

It's called "Mermaid's Delight"

Frozen Fish Fillets plus common household ingredients and a ring mold are the basis for this flavorful Decorative Fish Mousse. Fill the centre of the ring with buttered peas and decorate the top of the mousse with pimiento strips. Or fill the centre with carrot slices or slivered green beans and decorate the top with sliced olives or pickles. Another idea is to fil the centre with tender Brussels sprouts and ring the outside with tiny pickled crabapples. A centre filled with corn, chopped green pepper and pimiento is another alternative. No matter what you decide to do about the trimmings before you pour the mixture into the mold, be sure to oil it well so that the ring will come out easily. And unmold the mousse immediately on a hot plate to help keep it hot while you decorate it before serving. The delicate texture and attractive appearance of this fish ring makes it an obvious choice for luncheons and bridge parties, as well as at the dinner table.

Decorative Fish Mousse

1 Pound fish fillets or 2 cups flaked cooked or canned fish, 2 cups light cream, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 medium onion minced, 4 egg whites, pimiento.

Put raw fish fillets through food chopper, using fine blade. Heat cream to boiling point but do not boil. Add butter or margarine. Remove from heat and stir in bread crumbs, salt and minced onion. Stir in fish and blend well. Let mixture cool to lukewarm. Beat egg whites until very stiff and fold into fish mixture. Pour into greased 8-inch ring mold. Place mold out onto platter. Garnish top with pimiento strips. Fill centre with peas of other vegetables. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Apple Sauce is versatile

Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture

For Salad or Dessert — Dissolve a package of lemon jelly powder in 1½ cups boiling water. Chill, but before it sets fold in 1 20-ounce can (or 2, to 2½ cups home-made) applesauce. Pour into individual moulds or a large mould and chill until set. Unmould and serve with other fruits and cottage cheese on a fruit salad plate; or alone on lettuce as a side salad with pork; or with cream for dessert.

Creamy Apple Topping — goes beautifully with gingerbread. To make it fold ½ cup whipping cream, whipped, into 1 cup chilled applesauce.

Twenty-minute Apple Dessert for 6 — is no trouble at all to make! Pour a 20-ounce can (or 2 to 2½ cups home made) applesauce into a greased small baking dish. Combine 1 cup dry bread crumbs, ¼ cup brown sugar and cut in ¼ cup butter. Sprinkle mixture over applesauce. Bake in moderately hot oven, 375°F. until top is golden brown, about 20 minutes.

For Stuffed Baked Pork Tenderloin — or chops with a fruity, fresh pork-apple flavour, use applesauce in place of liquid to moisten the stuffing.

To make bright red Cinnamon Applesauce, add ¼ cup red cinnamon candies to 2 cups hot fresh or canned applesauce. Serve warm over spice cake or gingerbread or chill and serve with cream.

You can whip up Apple-Honey Sherbet in a spare moment, pour it into a refrigerator tray and freeze for a busy day.

Simply combine 2½ cups (1 20-ounce can) sieved applesauce with ¼ cup white honey, a few grains of salt and 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar. Beat 2 egg whites until stiff, adding 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar gradually, beat until mixture stands in peaks and fold into the applesauce mixture. Freeze in refregerator tray.

The tags that tell of good design will go on 42 new consumer items, winners of the 1959 Design Awards.

Since the awards were initiated in 1953, the distinctive "design award" tags on articles have stood for good design on the basis of appearance, usefulness and good value.

This year, shoppers will find the tags on products which include a take-apart-train toy and a rug "shampooer."

Among the interesting items in this year's winner list are light, attractive spun plastic lighting fixtures that come in various shapes.

The awards are sponsored by the National Industrial Design Council, a group of Canadian manufacturers, designers, consumers and interested citizens who work to encourage good design in Canadian products.

Canned Foods

This is the time of the year there are apt to be special bargains in canned fruits and vegetables, says the consumer section of the federal agriculture department.

To make way for the new summer crop, there's a general campaign to clear warehouse and grocery store shelves of last year's cans. There is a larger quantity of canned peas, corn, peaches, pears and cherries on hand than usual, and special prices will probably be featured on such products during this time.

As for fresh fruits, apples still are the best buy.

Just in case you wonder what the various grades of canned foods mean, the consumer section provides a helpful guide.

The highest grade is "Canada Fancy" and is the best buy when uniformity of size and color is important.

"Canada Choice" is a grade where peas, for instance, may vary in size, color and maturity but still have a good flavor and are tender.

"Canada Standard" products are prepared from fruit and vegetables of good quality, but not necessarily of the uniform size required in higher grades. This grade is a good buy when appearance is not a consideration — for use in soups or casserole dishes, for example.

Scientific Colds

In this season of sniffles, it might come as some consolation to know that even a test tube can catch cold.

Admittedly, it did take some working at by a doctor in a Sheffield, England, hospital laboratory. The doctor took a swab from a sniffling orphan girl, infected living monkey tissue with the sniffly swab and incubated it in a test tube for several weeks.

Result: the batch of monkey cells turned pale; they had caught the cold. And one cold virus — called HA-1 — was isolated as a valuable aid to research on the common cold, but by no means provided the cure.

Pre-spring reveals unlovely remnants; the missile age — youth's premonition

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

By the look of the mantelpiece, it must be nearly Easter. Anyone coming into our home, can tell the time of year by the cards on the mantelpiece. At Christmas, they make a gay frieze against the apricot wall, they spill over into the tops of the book-cases, and even sit on top of the piano, proving, according to Beverly Nicholls that we are high brows manqués. A true high-brow according to that whimsical writer puts nothing on top of the piano. After Epiphany, the china horse, the two milk-glass hens and conch shells have the terrain to themselves until Valentine's Day. Some time between the gay hearts and the pretty shamrocks of St. Patrick's, a plain white folder bearing a cross in purple takes possession. No one knows it is Lent. The birthday cards of the head of the house show up then, too. But now, another plain folder with a cross on the outside, and an admonition about Easter communion inside warns us that the season is at the turn. . . . Thank you, cards, one would never know it from the prospect outside!

It is true that the drifts on either side of the front walk are no longer higher than my head, but they are nearly shoulder-high, and of an appalling dirty-grey color. If one has the stomach for it, one can read the history of the winter's progress in these revolting mounds of snow-cum-refuse. Always there are rubbers, mittens, toys, bits of milk bottles, orders for groceries or milk. One reads that Mrs. Neighbour would like a carton of orange-juice and two quarts of milk and some cottage cheese (proving to my cynical husband that some one else eats the stuff). One also sees that Sammy got only Fair in Arithmetic. Ours is a quiet neighborhood, I mean so far as the more vulgar manifestations of human nature are concerned, so all the revelations are of a like drabness. No fun at all. Somewhere under all this hodge-podge lies my penguin. No, dear reader, we do not keep penguins in the back-yard; I refer to a china replica about an inch high, which the daughter of the house bought for me out of her allowance on her first trip to New York City. Early in the winter, I snatched the lace cover from the bureau in the bedroom and shook it vigorously out the window. Exit master penguin. Come really spring and the neighbors will decide the daft Cook woman has finally gone round the bend, as they see me scrutinizing each blade of grass.

Meanwhile, the drifts are retreating; for about six inches on each side of the walk and against the house, there is a band of grey vegetation that will, in due course, be grass. But the bulbs are still sleeping; generally at this time of year the first green shoots have appeared, but nothing this year. Easter this time will be strictly a matter of faith. Our faith is fairly good but we shall seek confirmation of the rumor of spring as soon as the daughter returns to college, in that supposed perennial spring-place Dale Virginny. Undeterred by tales of friends who have visited Virginia at this time of year, and who have returned chilled to the bone, we are determined to essay it (meaning Virginia). We were there two years ago at Easter, and while it was quite clammy, it was not tooth-chattering. So next time, we shall have something fresh to write you about. . . . Or is that a good idea? Methinks it is the old songs that are most beloved.

We think longingly of Sunnyacres these days. It seems a long time since we saw its cheerful yellow walls shining through the trees. Did the old shed topple under the weight of snow? Are the bulbs stirring under their white blanket? Is there a panther prowling up the path from the well? Or is it merely an avid land-dealer? All of us in that district are, we fancy, wondering what has triggered the rampant land-hunger. Twice in the last month, we have had offers to buy Sunnyacres. There are rumors of missile sites, but, having been brought up in a business household, we are inclined to think that various people are willing to gamble that new homes will follow the newly-paved Route 30, so they buy now cheaply, and sell lots later, perhaps much later, at $1,000 per acre. Money can be made in real estate, and fortunes are often lost, too. Long accustomed to the vagaries of the Stock Market, we view these activities without racing pulse.

Speaking of racing pulse, did you know that, according to a teacher friend, the youth of the country, meaning ten-year-olds, are seriously disturbed about the "A" bomb, the hydrogen bomb, and all the other unpleasant missiles designed to erase life from the Earth? She says that the effect of these science lectures, comics, pictures on TV, is serious, so far as our children are concerned. Childhood is no longer the halcyon, carefree period so beloved of the writers of yesteryear.

If you recall, we have often mentioned in the column our scorn of this theory, now here is proof coming from the mouths "of babes and sucklings". These poor little harassed moderns besiege their teacher with searching and fearful questions as to the fate of the planet. In their minds, the Russian bear has become a ruthless monster. Come to think of it, we know some grown-ups who seem to have much the same idea. Thus did the British children of the early nineteenth century whisper about the horrid "Boney", and watch the eastern horizon for the invading French. In the 20th century children of Europe suffered the assaults of bombs, and centuries before, the children of Greece and Rome watched with fear the Goths and Huns advance from the north. Fear is not a new thing; it has its own face in each era. Those of us who know a modicum of history realize that, and adjust accordingly, but the poor little innocents have no experience to fall back upon and we fear, hear little of history or philosophy at home. . . . His story? That's for the birds!

But there is one bit of history that no one lightly derides, and that is the beauty and joy of Eastertide. — Happy Easter to everybody!

EASTER GREETINGS!

BEHIND THIS DOOR...

Behind this door is a car! But this is more than just a car, it is a tradition. For fifty-eight years now, people have used its name... Buick... as a synonym for excellence. Now, this car has excelled even itself. In pride and prestige, in beauty and mechanical perfection it has surpassed every great thing its name has ever stood for. Truly, Nineteen-Fifty-Nine is Buick's vintage year. A year in which one thing is certain... better automobiles are being built... and Buick is building them. Drive one... ten minutes will tell.

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Branch 70 Correspondent

Comrade Frank Maidens was elected to fill a vacancy on the Executive Committee at the general meeting held last Wednesday evening. In addition to Com. Maidens, the Executive Committee is now made up of Comrades George Kirby, Fred Pring, Doug Ogilvie, Ken Riley, Jack MacKimmie and R. O. MacLean, chairman.

A new member was inducted, in the person of Com. Art Phillips.

Special notice to teen-agers and members: The Legion Memorial Hall will be closed all day March 27, Good Friday. — The weekly teen-age dance has been advanced to Thursday evening.

The Executive are busy selecting new electrical fixtures as required for the hall, after consultation with a lighting engineer who made certain recommendations during his recent visit.

A dance is scheduled to be held in the hall next Saturday, March 28; an orchestra will be in attendance and all friends of the Legion are invited.

Remember, Comrades, any cases of needy veterans or their families should be turned over to R. A. Giles, chairman of the Sick and Relief Committee, immediately.

The Branch 70 broomballers went into action in the Lions' tournament over the weekend, defeating Boyd's 4-2 in the Saturday night tilt in Brownsburg and bowing 12-0 to the Masson Store team in Lachute the next day. Guess it's just a case of old-age beginning to show. To all appearances it won't be many years until the Branch will have to sponsor a team, rather than enter one from active members!

Did you know that — Steve Pawluck has been once again elected president of the Ukranian Veteran Branch of the Canadian Legion in Toronto, establishing a record of service which will be hard to equal by other Legion Branch presidents. Mr. Pawluck has been in office as president of this Ontario branch for 14 years.

Lest We Forget:

March 27, 1917 — An artillery bombardment opened, which became a prelude to the Battle at Vimy Ridge.

March 29, 1945 — The 3rd Canadian Division fought its way into Emmenich, Germany, a pulverized shell. Across the Rhine, the 4th Canadian Armoured Division used its entire tank strength as artillery support. Repeated counter-attacks were beaten off by the 7th Infantry Brigade. The 8th occupied the hill north of the city.

Happy Easter to all! . . . See you next week.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Women's Travel Authority

"Meet 'em half way." That's the secret of success in business — and it can also lead to a successful "travel reunion." Here's how it works: Let's say you live in the East and have friends in the West you haven't seen for years. Plan your travel reunion for a good "half-way" spot. By driving three to four hundred miles a day, you should reach your destination within a day of each other. Rent motel cabins side by side, and have a wonderful time catching up on the years.

The "travel reunion" is a good idea for former neighbors who are now hundreds of miles apart. Two families I know pick an interesting place between them twice a year, drive there in time to rent inexpensive cabins next door to each other, and enjoy each other's company. Many families use an annual special event to bring them together. For example, there are rodeos in the West, outdoor music concerts, and summer theatres in many sections of the country.

So get in touch with some far-away friends now, and plan a "travel reunion". It'll be fun, and neither family gets stuck with having to play host (and, for that matter, guest).

Annual Church Meeting

The annual meeting of St. Mungo's congregation, which had been delayed by stormy weather, was held in the church hall on Wednesday night, with the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, interim minister, in charge. A surprising amount of work had been accomplished since the annual meeting of last year. Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I am working for a contractor in a sawmill. I work ten hours a day and my salary is $5 for ten hours. I eat at home and it costs me $2. To what denomination of stamps am I entitled?

A. The value of the stamp to which you are entitled will depend upon the amount you earn each week. If you work five days in a week and earn $25, you will be entitled to a 60 cent weekly stamp. If you are on a six-day work week and earn $30, you will be entitled to a 72 cent weekly stamp.

Q. My husband was hospitalized, and I hired my boy so that we could make ends meet. If I had not hired him, I would have been obliged to hire another. Can I give him stamps? Please give me all the information I need.

A. Without knowing the type of business you are engaged in and the nature of the occupation of your son we are unable to determine whether he should be insured. We would suggest you write to the nearest local office of the Commission, giving full particulars regarding the nature of his work, hours worked, amount paid to him as shown on the pay roll, and his insurance number if he has had previous insurable employment.

Q. Can a man refuse two jobs and draw benefits just the same? How many jobs can he refuse? Can a man with eight stamps draw regular benefits?

A. A person is not disqualified from receiving benefit for refusing employment which is not considered to be suitable within the meaning of the Unemployment Insurance Act. A person with only eight contribution weeks cannot qualify for benefit.

Hanging on autos a dangerous practice

Quebec City Police recently gave an apt lesson to a 14-year-old boy who was arrested for hanging on to the rear of a car. Taken to a police station, he was only released when his parents came to pick him up. The Provincial Highway Safety Committee (Prudentia) says that the police act served as a double lesson: the boy now understands that his little game is a dangerous one, and the parents now know that if they had given more counsel to the child they would not have had to go to the police station to pick him up.

At Weston Bakeries' safe driving banquet

The entire sales staff and several invited guests attended the 10th annual Safe Driving Banquet, held recently in the Weston Bakeries' cafeteria. On this occasion 91 route managers were honored with awards for driving throughout the year 1958 without having an accident.

The photograph shows the entire sales staff of the Cornwall - Hawkesbury - Lachute Division. The complete staff once again received awards for a year of accident-free driving.

Henri Gonthier of Public Industrial Reitalons Ltd., gave an excellent talk on "How to Improve Public Relations while Driving a Vehicle." Later Mr. Gonthier and James White, garage superintendent of Weston Bakeries, presented the award cheques to the "accident free" route managers.

U.S. import curbs blow to Canada's oil industry

Ottawa (CP) — The Canadian oil industry awaits the Federal government's next move in attempts to free Canada from U.S. oil import curbs. Prime Minister Diefenbaker has promised continued representations to Washington.

About a year ago, President Eisenhower asked importing U.S. firms to reduce their foreign oil purchases and thus give more incentive to domestic exploration — drilling to prove reserves needed in time of emergency. Last week he made the restrictions compulsory, saying some companies had refused to comply with his request.

Canada had asked several times to be declared outside the import quotas on the ground that loss of U.S. markets would further restrain investment in the Canadian industry at a time when continued expansion was important for continental defence.

Under the U.S. restrictive program, American companies are free to buy foreign oil where they please, within over-all quotas. This means they will buy it where it is cheapest — whether in Canada, the Middle East or Venezuela. And this, in turn, has led to price-cutting by the exporting countries.

In 1958, Canada was virtually priced out of about half her 1957 market in the United States, and exports to that country were down to 31,679,000 barrels from 55,574,000 a year earlier. With the mandatory quotas, Canada cannot hope to increase that market, and industry spokesmen say Canadian firms now face "a very grave situation."

Growth chamber speeds tests in plant breeding

Modern technology has accelerated plant breeding research through new scientific tools such as the growth chamber.

Several growth chambers have been constructed at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, allowing the planning and precise control of environment conditions for plant growth studies.

And, says J. G. Kemp, engineering section of the Canada Department of Agriculture, investigation and development of this type of equipment continues.

Insulated growth chambers consist of a panel of lights, temperature and humidity control equipment and an air circulation system.

Fluorescent lights are commonly employed as they emit light quantities that are well suited to plant growth. However, specific problems often arise when certain phases of plant growth do not develop properly under fluorescent lights. Such problems are overcome by corrective measures which often require the combination of various types of lights to obtain the desired light qualities.

A suitably designed growth chamber enables a plant physiologist to control light intensity, light quality, light period, air temperature and humidity. With these environmental conditions controlled, more detailed study can be made on each factor which affects plant growth.

By this means, and because of the fact that four or five crops can be grown in one year, the plant scientist is able to obtain information many times faster with far greater detail and accuracy than formerly obtained by studies conducted in greenhouses or in the field.

Declares dividend after 47 years

A company which had its origins at the time of the "trail of '98" has declared the first dividend in 47 years, reports the Financial Post.

The first White Pass and Yukon Route train arrived in Whitehorse, Y.T., from Skagway, Alaska, in June, 1900. It carried supplies to the Klondike gold fields. . . . The intervening years have seen:

A decline in population as the gold petered out, and a general decline in the economy, which reached its low immediately prior to World War II.

A period of brisk traffic when, after Pearl Harbour, the U.S. Army took over the railway and used it to build the Alaska Highway.

Increased capital expenditures when the railway reverted to private management after the war . . .

Now, on March 15, shareholders of record January 16 have received 10c a share!

Ford lays preliminaries for Canadian production of "economy car"

Toronto — Shareholders of Ford Motor Co. of Canada were told at their annual meeting that the company "has made preliminary moves which would permit us to begin production of an ecomomy car in Canada, if and when such a car is placed in production by Ford Motor Company in the United States, and providing market conditions and other circumstances at that time justify production in Canada."

Rhys M. Sale, president, said Ford of Canada management is keeping fully abreast of the development of an economy car by the parent company, which recently announced plans to introduce such a car during the 1960 model year, barring changes in the market or other circumstances.

Through research, cancer will be one of "controlled diseases" in our time

Some of the best scientific minds in the country are working in laboratories in almost every province to find out what causes cancer, and so put an end to the nation's No. 2 disease killer. Their research is financed by the Canadian Cancer Society, whose annual crusade will be promoted here in April.

Research is termed "the golden key which will unlock the mystery of cancer and ultimately end it as a scourge." The research attack on cancer has been described as "the greatest and costliest single undertaking in medical history."

Intensification of the research war against cancer is one of the purposes of the Society's 1959 Crusade. Impetus has been given to the drive because of the record of disease already conquered through research.

The victory against polio, although the most spectacular case in point, was not won without the expenditure of great sums for research as well as for service. From 1938 through 1956 there was more than $468,000,000 in voluntary public support, plus millions of hours of labor contributed by volunteers. The Salk Vaccine was the result.

Because of the miracle of penicillin, another research triumph, the death rate in a number of diseases has declined spectacularly. Penicillin came into general use in 1946. In the following two-year period, resulting from its general application, rheumatic fever mortalities declined 74 per cent; pneumonia and influenza, 41 per cent; appendicitis, 70 per cent; syphilis, 71 per cent; acute nephritis, 64 per cent. There also have been sharp drops in the death rate due to other infections.

Earlier scourges, like cholera and smallpox, are today practically unknown. Typhoid is extremely rare. Infant mortality continues to decrease, and maternal deaths have been cut 69 per cent — all due to laboratory research.

Nothing, apparently, is impossible to research scientists. Given time and the tools—which includes generous public support — the Canadian Cancer Society is certain that Cancer will be added to the list of controlled diseases in our time.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

KIDDIES AND CARS

"Daddy, stop the car!"

Usually this urgent command means time out to nurse a youngster in the back seat who's in the clutches of nausea.

Medical researchers say motion sickness strikes four out of five children. Up and down movements (elevators) disturb them most; side-to-side movements least; fore and aft motions moderately. Surprisingly, car and train riding upsets them more than trips in planes and ships.

Statistics are all well and good, parents agree, but the children are not. What can be done for them?

Medical science has a good answer these days. Recently-developed drugs have clinched the battle against nausea on land, sea and in the air.

All drug stores now carry these drugs, which provide all-day protection; one such product comes in a single fruit-flavored tablet which children can chew without water. The medicinal in the tablets, tested on 17,000 Armed Forces personnel, proved over 90 per cent effective.

If it's too late for preventive medicine, Dr. I. Newton Kugelmass, consulting pediatrician of the New York City Health Department, has some therapeutic suggestions.

Combat a mild attack of car or train sickness "by keeping the head in a steady fixed position, flat in the horizontal position or backward in the sitting position, always exposed to fresh air," prescribes the doctor.

"The pillow should be adjusted to reduce to a minimum any side-to-side motion of the head. The child's eyes should be kept closed."

Take it easy on the fluids for the first few hours — then give just small sips, "gradually replaced by fresh fruit juices or tea and supplemented by lollypops or hard candies to maintain blood sugar and hydration." Stay away from solid foods for awhile.

How many kinds of Birds have been seen in Canada?

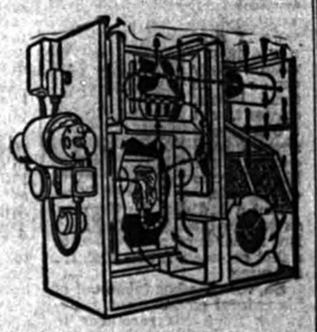

Over 500 species of wild birds, representing 63 families and 18 orders, have been recorded in Canada and its coastal waters. The country's vast area and its greatly varied climate and topography produce complex geographical and seasonal patterns of bird distribution. The long coasts, dense forests, vast plains, great mountains and remote Arctic tundra all have birds peculiar to them. A great many birds spend the summer in Canada, nesting here and then flying to warmer countries for the winter. Other birds, like the black-capped chickadee, downy woodpecker and Canada jay, are permanent residents throughout the year.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Pigs In Northern Winters

If it were not for man's stewardship, pigs would have rough sledding in more than one way during northern winters.

If turned loose in the fall of the year they would surely head south with the Canadian geese, and never come back, for their natural habitat is the tropical and subtropical woods and swamps where they can root to their hearts' content, eat tender sprouts and catch their kind of game on the side.

Dr. Bohstedt

Not a bad diet, by the way, as to the quality of the feed. But it makes more for speed or a fast get-away rather than for fattening.

So, with the hog taken out of his natural environment, it devolves upon his caretaker to provide him with the necessities of a complete diet, and the research work of the past decades has added immeasurably to our understanding as to what is necessary and desirable for this purpose.

The list would first of all include high energy rations, therefore low in fiber. Next would be a sufficiently high level of protein of the right quality, meaning all 24 amino acids in the proper amounts and proportions. Furthermore, both major and trace minerals, including salt, and both fat-soluble and water-soluble vitamins. All these may already be included in many practical dry-lot rations that we have been feeding for years.

Then we come to the various additives that keep increasing in number: antibiotics, including those that have vermifuge properties; other drugs or medicaments, and hormones, all of which are being produced and tested for their efficacy and safety.

It seems a far cry from the turn of the century when concrete floors were blamed for causing rheumatism in hogs in the winter. Actually, it was rickets caused by a nutritional deficiency in the feed.

For a long time it was solemnly stated that suckling litters of pigs in early spring needed to be on the ground instead of on concrete or wood, in order to thrive, as if Mother Earth in some mysterious way, as with her legendary son, Anteus, could send strength into their bodies. More recently it was found that the milk they got from their dams lacked copper and iron, which they would get by nuzzling and chewing a bit of soil. These needs are readily supplied nowadays by means of a swab or pill.

The expression, "as independent as a hog on ice," therefore is not very convincing to those of us who know something about his needs.

Question: In several instances where pigs have died for no obvious reason, the cause has been attributed to salt poisoning, although the mineral mixtures used had less than ten per cent salt in them. Does this diagnosis seem reasonable?

Answer: It does not. The symptoms may have suggested salt poisoning, but such symptoms are not so highly specific but that any one of several other causes may be responsible.

Farm safety survey by Ontario dept.

The first province-wide farm accident survey to be carried out in Ontario got underway just recently.

Undertaken by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, through the branch offices of the Department in Ontario counties and districts, the survey will seek to record and classify all accidents occurring on Ontario farms between March 1, 1959, and February 29, 1960. The results obtained will assist the Department in planning a safety education program for Ontario farmers and their families. The Department will be assisted by local persons and organizations.

The survey is a further step in the Department's safety program which it has conducted for several years with the 4-H Junior Farmer organizations, and through exhibits, publications, and co-operative programs with the Ontario Provincial Police.

"I have no doubt that Ontario farm people will welcome this undertaking which seeks to diminish the number of farm accidents and the economic loss that inevitably accompanies them," states the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. "I know they will do all in their power to assist the Department in this project and thus contribute to a better social end economic life in the province.

Output, demand for powder dry skimmed milk

Up to 110,000,000 pounds of Canadian dry skimmed milk will be used this year.—D. B. Goodwillie, Canada Department of Agriculture dairy merchandising expert, has predicted.

He told the Canadian Milk Powder Manufacturers' Association in Toronto that 100,000,000 pounds were used in 1958 — or ten per cent more than ever before.

At the same time, stocks at the first of this year were the highest on record.

Mr. Goodwillie noted that 1958 production was a record 186,000,000 pounds, four times greater than just seven years ago, due to the growth of whole milk creameries, price, and increased milk production.

Quality Down

Because of the new plants and capacity or over-capacity operations, quality last year was the poorest since 1951.

However, exports of almost 50,000,000 pounds were highest on record. World prices today are from eight to ten cents — somewhat higher than a year ago.

The Agricultural Stabilization Board bought about 100,000,000 pounds of powdered milk in 1958, about 75 per cent being spray process. All of it came from Ontario and Quebec. The Board is still being offered several cars a week, but purchases are currently running about half of a year ago at this time.

Purchases are expected to be heavier before May 1, though, Mr. Goodwillie added.

BETTER OUTPUT

Edmonton — (CP) — Average butterfat production of cows under the Alberta cow testing service last year was 347 pounds, an increase of about 40 pounds per cow during the last five years.

$10-Million wheat sold to Poland

Ottawa — (CP) — About 5,490,000 bushels of Canadian wheat worth $10,000,000 has been sold to Poland, bringing to 21,000,000 bushels the total sales to that country since the Communist regime signed an agreement with Canada three years ago.

In addition, Trade Minister Churchill told the Commons recently that negotiations are proceeding to sell 4,590,000 bushels of Canadian barley to Poland, and the government hopes to sell wheat this year to Russia as well. Poland buys Canadian grain with 10 per cent down, the balance payable in three years.

Mr. Churchill said Canada other wheat-exporting countries hopeful that the United Kingo will eventually join the new In national Wheat Agreement a an absence of six years. A agreement was signed last week Geneva and it provides a 10-cent duction in the maximum price $1.90 a bushel, though the $ minimum remains unchanged.
