Campaigning this week for Concerts memberships

The annual canvassers' rally and supper, combining a mid-campaign checkup, is being held this evening (Wednesday) by the Community Concerts Association, whose drive for 1959-60 memberships is now in swing. The gathering at the Legion Hall will be attended by Mrs. R. Cameron, representative of Columbia Artists Corporation, New York, who is here to give impetus to the campaign.

During the past week, canvassers have been concentrating on the renewal of former memberships; but with the increasing population of Lachute and the growth of surrounding communities, it is hoped to enlist many new members in this non-profit project for community entertainment.

Information is available all this week at campaign headquarters, Bedard Ltée, Main Street, Lachute — where office space has again been placed at disposal of the committee by Mr. J. E. Leonard, proprietor. Joint chairmen of the campaign organization are Mrs. Jacques Bedard and Mrs. Don Titman. Current reports on progress are requested from all district representatives, so that the canvassing may be completed and the results ascertained by Saturday evening. Headquarters telephone is LO 2-5055.

Initial reports at this stage are encouraging, but these cannot be accepted as any accurate gauge of the outcome. It is stressed that the continued support of old members, and a good influx of newcomers, is the only means of increasing the budget and procuring the very topmost musical artists. Previous selections have met with general approval of the members, who come from points as far distant as St. Eustache and Hawkesbury, and the directors are sure that concert-goers will derive equal or greater enjoyment still, from programs to be heard in future seasons.

Spring Fair plans well advanced, says manager

Arrangements are in hand for a successful Lachute Spring Fair '59 — according to Kenneth Riley, secretary-manager. Every human provision is being made to ensure the satisfaction of all tastes. The only factor to prove a possible deterrent is the weather; no long-term forecast being available at this stage, the Agricultural Society directors are keeping their fingers crossed for a favorable break.

The four-day exhibition — June 17-18-19-20 — will feature Carnival Day for the opener on Wednesday, with cut-price admission of 25c to enable entire families to make the rounds and "do" the midway. King Reid Shows are signed to provide a full quota of rides and attractions in this section.

Closing date for all livestock entries is May 22, and according to Mr. Riley, there is indication of enthusiasm in new sources, which should pack the entry lists in all species and breeds, and ensure an especially good horse show.

The new life-blood introduced by service clubs in the grandstand programs is promising a bigger and better variety still, and it is hoped the efforts of these community groups will again draw public support. Rotary Club has the Thursday night grandstand program, the Lions Club will provide the Friday night show, and the Legion will again be responsible for Saturday night's entertainment. Definite news on these events as we go to press is as follows:

The Lions Club have booked a re-engagement of "Le Grand Robert", the popular hypnotist who amazed a packed audience with his performance last year. This re-engagement is in response to popular demand.

The Thursday evening grandstand show will be sponsored by the local Rotary Club and a committee headed by Rotarian Jack MacKimmie has a top-notch program lined up. It is expected that all but the last-minute details will be completed this week-end and that additional information will be available in next week's edition.

Interest keen at annual Art Association send-off

A good attendance at the annual meeting of the Argenteuil Art Association, held last Saturday in the St. Andrews municipal hall, gave indication of growing public interest and another successful season ahead. There were members present from St. Andrews, Lachute and district, Brownsburg, Morin Heights, Avoca, Kilmar, and also from Montreal.

Mr. Allen G. Talbot was re-elected president for the fourth successive year since inauguration of this Association, and a slate of officers was approved and elected

Mr. Talbot gave an encouraging review of progress, and cited the activities and experiences of similar Art groups in Eastern Canada as a pattern for possible developments in the future. He presented a constitution drawn up by Miss A. L. Wales, which was voted upon and accepted.

Mr. F. O. Peterson was called upon to express views on incorporation, and on a motion of Mr. L. T. Porter it was decided to obtain legal advice with a view to establishing the Argenteuil Art Association on a legal corporate basis.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Robin Smith for his services as secretary-treasurer, and to Mr. A. R. Moore, C.A., for his kind co-operation as auditor. The financial statement showed a working balance on hand for the current season.

Immediate plans on the Association's program include the fourth annual show open to exhibitor-members and friends, to be held May 23-30 inclusive at St. Andrews — with professional artists to be featured in other exhibitions during the season. A course in oil sketching and portraiture is being given by Mrs. Vivian Walker again this season, at her home in Carillon. Members are being informed of these matters by letter.

The afternoon concluded with a presentation of three colorful films by Miss Paige Pinneo, entitled "Crafts of Canada", "The Loon's Necklace" and "The Raven", all depicting phases of Canadian art and skill. The films were much enjoyed by the audience.

Cancer Crusade optimism appears well justified

Lachute's returns in the Cancer blitz last week proved the optimism of its organizers well justified . . .

With business and industry donations not yet completed, the contributions from Lachute and Ayersville are well over the top, exceeding last year's total. . . . These two communities, together with Brownsburg, have reached a figure exceeding $3,100.

Col. Ernest Emmett, campaign vice-chairman, filled a big undertaking in enlisting area captains for the rural districts — these have since appointed their canvassers and it is believed the rural canvass has made good headway. Following are the district captains:

Morin Heights, Christieville — Mrs. A. Whiteway.

Grenville — Mr. L. C. Neville.

Arundel — Mrs. Marilyn Zanth.

Huberdeau — Mr. Gaston Laurier.

Pt. au Chene — Mr. Germain Champagne.

St. Philippe — Mrs. S. Donaldson.

Staynerville — Mrs. K. Brown.

St. Michel, Laurel, Montfort — Mr. Romauld Bell.

It is reported that St. Jerusalem, in charge of Larry Paquette, is making good strides, and that St. Andrews — under Maurice Jutras, Miss Audrey Eaton and Mme Marie-Claire Turgeon — will give a good account of itself in this appeal. Dates for this particular community are May 12-13-14.

To all the canvassers, and those who have contributed to date, sincere appreciation is extended once again by the Cancer Crusade co-chairmen, Messrs, Léopold Carrière and R. O. (Dick) MacLean.

Citizen dies at St. Andrews

René Viau, a well-known merchant and former secretary-treasurer of the Village of St. Andrews, died suddenly at his home on Wednesday of last week. The funeral was held Saturday at the parish church at Carillon, with interment at the Catholic cemetery in St. Philippe.

Mr. Viau, in his 48th year, was stricken suddenly. After his breakfast on Wednesday, he collapsed and called to his wife for aid. Dr. A. L'Allier was summoned immediately, but the victim expired 45 minutes later.

Besides his wife (the former Marguerite Paquin) he is mourned by three sons and a daughter — Hubert, of Lachute, Raymond and Richard, of St. Andrews, and (Collette) the Rev. Sister Marie-René-de-Naples of the Ste. Croix Order, in Ontario. He is survived also by his mother, Mme. Olivia Viau.

Elaborate plans for Dollard Day at Carillon

Dollard Day — commemorating the courageous exploit of Dollard des Ormeaux on May 24, 1660 — is being fittingly celebrated at Carillon with elaborate plans to mark the anniversary. The day's program will centre on the site marked by a monument in the village, perpetuating the memory of Dollard's sacrifice with his 16 heroic companions.

The annual fete will have greater significance this year, as a warm-up to the 300th anniversary to be observed in 1960.

Open air mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m., with a suitable address by a special speaker. After a memorial dinner, there will be tributes and ceremonies at the monument.

Two bugle bands have been engaged to make the day more impressive, and the Ayersville Air Cadet Squadron will also take part in the parades, morning and afternoon. For the evening it is hoped to have a troupe of accomplished folk dancers to give a demonstration of their art.

Many notables from the St. Jerome and Montreal dioceses, and elsewhere in the province, are expected to attend this notable function. . . Chas. A. Schaffer, of Carillon, is chairman of the organizing committee.

Says Carillon project to employ up to 2,000

When the Quebec Government formally approves the multi-million Quebec Hydro plan for the Carillon power site on the Ottawa River, work will start at once. Between 1,000 and 2,000 men will be working in about six months on the project, which will generate from 400,000 to 800,000 horsepower — writes Charles Lynch in The Ottawa Journal.

The site is about 70 miles east of Ottawa, near Pointe Fortune. The water in the forebay by the new power dam site will be about 135 feet. An artificial lake about 10 miles long will be created to the locks above the Hawkesbury bridge, and there will be considerable flooding on the Ontario and Quebec sides of the Ottawa River — states the Journal reporter. The project will take three years to complete and it will rival the giant Ontario Hydro power plant at Des Joachims above Pembroke.

The proposed deepening of the Ottawa River from Ottawa to Montreal will raise the question of a navigation canal around the Carillon power development. This project will be one for the Dominion Department of Transport. It would put Ottawa and Hull on the St. Lawrence Seaway via Montreal — the Journal concludes.

Liberal meeting here next Monday

A meeting of party enthusiasts is being held Monday, May 11, in the Legion Hall, with a view to forming the Liberal Association for Argenteuil County on a sound footing.

Chairman of this assembly will be Alcide Courcy, M.P.P. for Abitibi West and chief organizer of the party. The agenda will include speeches and election of directors for the organization. All electors of the County are welcome to attend. The meeting will commence at 8.30 p.m.

Annual meeting marks 'finis' to successful curling season

A large and enthusiastic gathering of curlers assembled at the clubrooms last Wednesday, for the distribution of prizes, which followed an excellent meal prepared by the ladies and supervised by Jean Belanger.

In his opening remarks, President Howard Morrison thanked the members for having elected him to this office and paid tribute to the splendid work done by the board and various committees. Regret was expressed at the resignation of C. E. Richardson as honorary secretary; as President Morrison stated, "His interest in the Club's activities has been outstanding." Mr. Richardson's work is being taken over by Keith Rutherford. During the year numerous improvements to the Club were made, and further changes are being studied by the board.

From the curling angle, Lachute carried off the honors in the Centre for the Jubilee playdowns; in the finals at Montreal a very creditable performance was made by both teams.

Continuing, the president said, "I would like to congratulate Roy Fraser and his rink for winning the Vankleek Hill bonspiel; a Lachute rink was also runner-up. I might also mention that in several outside bonspiels Lachute advanced to the finals. Our Spring Bonspiel was another success, honors going to an Ottawa rink and Don Bradley gaining the finals. Several Lachute rinks qualified for final playdowns. The Directors' Bonspiel was quite popular; in this we entertained some 14 district rinks.

"Our golf tournament was another success, with 80 to 90 players taking part. This was won by Don McFaul. As a reminder, keep September in mind for the next golf tournament . . Once again, thanks for your co-operation."

Lorne Duncan, the new president, then took the chair and on behalf of all present thanked Mr. Morrison for the splendid manner in which he had filled his position during the past season. He expressed appreciation for the honor bestowed upon him, and promised to do his utmost in maintaining the high standards for which Lachute Curling Club is noted.

The meeting then adjourned.

Grass fires are season's hazard

Grenville, April 30 — A warning is prompted by an experience last week-end when a grass fire, intentionally and unthinkingly started, raced across a field to threaten two dwellings. Fortunately sand from the excavations stopped it just short of the buildings.

An experienced fire-fighter would have known at a glance that this was no time to start a fire. Three inches of flash fuel in the form of dried grass was on the ground, and the brisk wind was blowing directly towards the buildings. To the uninitiated, these signs didn't even register and he went as far upwind as possible before touching flame to this potential torch. The result was that 15 seconds after it was lit, the fire was out of control.

Now, there are ways of burning off such a field reasonably safely, but these methods are not for an amateur. The only safe rule, as far as fires are concerned, be it in forest or field, is "Burn Not".

Lachute's young orators win top honors and big awards

Top successes have rewarded two young orators from Lachute High School who, through contests organized by the service clubs, have been enabled to meet outside competition from a wide area — and in doing so have won laurels to the credit of their abilities and to their community. The two young students are Miss Lois Silverson and Roland Gow.

Winning the contests of the Lions Club District A in successive eliminations at St. Lambert, these two speakers and Rolande Gauthier, a girl student from St. Alexandre School, proceeded last Saturday to the finals for Ontario-Quebec, at Renfrew, Ont. They were escorted again by Lion Gerard Lefebvre, committeeman for the local club and Col. Ernest Emmett, in the English and French finals there were altogether 22 speakers. Lois Silverson competed among seven girls, and Roland Gow among eight boys, in the English-speaking divisions, and each took top place.

Miss Gauthier ranked fourth in the French division. In this class there were fewer finalists — three girls and four boys altogether.

As material awards for their prowess, Miss Silverson and Roland Gow each won a trophy, an individual cup, a cheque of $150 and a $100 scholarship. Miss Gauthier received a cheque of $50.

It is interesting to note that the cup brought home by Roland Gow was an award presented by J. S. Giles as District Governor in 1944-45, and is engraved accordingly. This is the first time this trophy has come to Lachute.

Simultaneously with his training for these contests, Roland Gow has also been competing in the Rotary Club public speaking contests. Ranking first among six contestants in the Hawkesbury district, he proceeded to higher competition against other district winners, last Thursday at the Montreal West Rotary branch. In this round, Roland and a competitor from Sawyerville were chosen as top semi-finalists. On Tuesday of this week the boys spoke in the finals, at the noon luncheon of the Montreal Rotary Club, sponsors of the competition, in which there were four contestants. Roland Gow came second, ceding top honors to the Sawyerville student, Eric French.

Roland Gow was accompanied on these expeditions by Rotarian Fred Royal, who is also the High School principal and much gratified by the success of his young protégé. His parents Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gow were also present at the finals Tuesday at the Montreal Rotary Club.

In reward for his standing in second place, young Gow wins a $300 scholarship award by the Rotary Club.

Trio sought in Caisse hold-up at St. Benoit

Two men and a woman are being sought by police in connection with two bank holdups last week in the Lake of Two Mountains district.

Police said the trio was last seen fleeing in a car with a bullet-pierced rear window received during a $1,200 Caisse Populaire holdup, at St. Benoit last Friday night.

René Laurin, manager of the Caisse, told police two masked men entered the office at 8 p.m. and forced him to hand over the money at gunpoint.

As the holdup men were fleeing the bank they were spotted by a St. Benoit municipal constable, who fired in the direction of the fugitive car. The constable told Provincial Police detectives two men and a woman were in the car.

Police believe the trio is responsible for a similar holdup the previous day at the Provincial Bank branch at Pointe Calumet, a few miles south of St. Benoit, in which the same amount of money, $1,200 was taken.

Fire equipment grant approved

Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon last week received word from the Provincial Department of Public Works that the requested 50 per cent grant would be forthcoming on the anticipated $34,000 fire equipment purchase.

Inter-school public speaking held at B'burg

The annual Public Speaking Contest sponsored by the Argenteuil Teachers' Association for the pupils of the County high schools, was held last Friday evening in the Brownsburg High School auditorium. A large crowd of pupils, teachers, interested parents and friends attended.

Acting as judges were Miss Ruth Evans, English teacher at Macdonald High School, Miss Shirley McNicoll, of the staff of Macdonald College, and Mr. Elston Robert, principal of Northview School. Mr. Lucien Rossaert, chairman of the Education Committee, organized this outstanding event of the school year.

First item on the program was the Grade VIII and IX Public Speaking. Competing were Gay Kelly, of Grenville High School, Reynold MacLean, of Harrington Intermediate School, Sandra Kerr, of Lachute High School, Treenie Maccauley, of Arundel Intermediate School, and Andrew Seary, of Brownsburg High School. The trophy was awarded to Andrew Seary for his speech, "Is War with Russia Inevitable?"

Combined groups from Grades III and IV in Grenville H.S., Brownsburg H.S., and Lachute H.S., presented Choral Speaking numbers. Brownsburg's group won this event.

Pupils from Grades VI and VII next competed in Public Speaking. The following took part — Donna Lynn Graham, of Arundel Intermediate School, Louise Freeland, of Brownsburg H.S., Ann Cunningham of Lachute H.S., and Patricia Druce, of Grenville H.S. Louise Freeland won this event with her speech entitled, "Nothing".

Grade V groups from Grenville, Lachute and Brownsburg High Schools took part in Choral Speaking, with Lachute's Grade V receiving the trophy.

The last event was the Grade X and XI Public Speaking. Rebecca Croft, of Arundel Intermediate School, Lois Silverson, of Lachute H.S., Marlene Morrow, of Brownsburg H.S., and Daniel Stote, of Grenville H.S., all participated in this competition. The trophy was awarded to Lois Silverson for her speech, "I Believe in Canada".

Awards were presented at the conclusion of each event, when the judges offered valuable and constructive criticism to the participants.

The organizers of this event, Mr. Rossaert, and the committee members in each school, deserve great commendation for their efforts to raise the standards of public speaking in Argenteuil County.

The Geese go North, and Seaway traffic Southbound

By Bob Atchison — "Outdoor Round-up"

Main Duck Island,
South Bay, Picton,
Ont.

April 21 —

Well, the fisherman didn't get in when we expected him. It has been very windy for the past couple of days, so they don't come out. Just a shade too rough for either small boats or planes.

A lot of snakes are showing themselves in the sun — with the result, a few snakes less on the Island. Just out of hibernation; they are very slow and dopey. You can get right up to them and slug them with a stick. One of them was shedding its skin and was really stupid.

Also the snapping turtles are starting to show themselves, but only one of these critters was given the coup-de-grace.

We have toured the Island pretty thoroughly and not a trace of Pheasants. We did find a couple of dead ones, and they were picked clean; just a few feathers, and they will be handy for flies. Also another Deer that didn't make it through the winter. I'm really surprised at the few that have been found. It looks as though a lot of them got off to the mainland on the ice. Let's hope that is what happened; unless they are somewhere on the place, this looks like the only logical conclusion.

We had our feed of Perch — five of them, and they were good; for flavor they beat Trout anytime. They were the channel type, so they were easy to fillet; you know the kind, about 1 lb. If this water ever warms up, we may get Doré pretty soon.

April 23 —

Today was one of those days you are glad to be alive. . . . Just before 5 a.m. we were awakened by a noise. Now that is not unusual in itself; but from Geese, that is different. We hurried outside and saw a sight we will probably never see again. Every place we looked — Geese flying. They were heading North, and stopped over for a rest. I think most of us have seen birds flocking together at night; as kids we used to say "a wedding of the birds". Well, the Geese were flying in just like that. There seemed to be a flock landing on or around the Island every few seconds. The noise they made cannot be described.

All day they stayed, feeding and sleeping, and just about now, sundown, I think they are going to move on.

One funny thing about all this is that the Gulls have been driven from their usual haunts; some of the Geese even landed on our road (?). I didn't try to get too close, as I knew they must be tired after their journey, but I did watch them from about 200 yards with binoculars.

After seeing a sight like this, it sure seems hard to put a money value on Nature. . . . While writing this the noise stopped, just as though an alarm clock was turned off; it seems uncanny. Why should they suddenly stop all noise; are they waiting for a signal to get going? Or what caused this sudden cessation of noise? How much there is to be learned and how little we do know. Seeing them come in, you could almost imagine that they were an invading army. But without the bloodshed. It did look like that when the Gulls got out of the way. Hearing these Gulls scream and squawk all day, it was a change to hear something else.

We also watched some Hawks getting a feed on these Voles that are out in force. They must have been hungry, as often we could see the birds with the Voles in there talons. Kind of rough on the furry pests, but we could do with about 50 Hawks, all very hungry, to cut these Voles down. The damage they do is terrific. I told you last year of how I had fenced in a bunch of small Red Cedars to protect them from the Deer, etc. It turns out now I should have sunk them about 3 feet into the ground. The Voles got into them and stripped all the bark off the small trunks and some off the limbs. I don't think I have ever seen as much damage done by anything as these pests. They seem to eat everything, including one of the Boss's boots!

April 24 —

The Geese stayed with us until this morning. I got up just before 4 a.m. as I was pretty sure they hadn't left during the night. I sneaked over to where I knew some of them were; sure enough, they were feeding and preening themselves after the night's rest. They were just as noisy feeding themselves as when they had first come in . . . and then once again they all seemed to shut up. Just before sunrise they started to get ready to move, and to me it looked as though they were waiting for some signal. They were very quiet for

3 Championships at stake Saturday in local bowling

Saturday evening will be a big time at the Bolodrome, when title games will end three well-contested tournaments for Lachute championships.

Alderman Mozart Carriere will be guest of honor representing the City Fathers. Highlights of the evening's program will be as follows:

7.30 p.m. Junior Championship — Jean-Pierre Belisle vs. Richard Pharand.

8.00 p.m. Sr. Women's Championship — Eileen Morrison vs. Juliette Guay.

8.30 p.m. Sr. Men's Championship — Florian Brunette vs. Marcel Brunette.

Women's tourney reaches climax in final this week

By Mrs. Ghislaine Brunette

Last Saturday afternoon in the semi-finals, Eileen Morrison, 478 (158, 147, 173) defeated Gisèle Brunette, 407 (135, 149, 123). Miss Brunette, who maintained an average of 133.2 for 12 games in this tournament, was in 5th place at the end of the season for the Mixed League, with 118 for 72 games.

Juliette Guay, 411 (135, 137, 139), defeated Mrs. Gisèle Larche, 353 (119, 133, 101). In this tournament, Mrs. Larche obtained an average of 116.2 for 15 games, and in the Mixed League, 108.7 for 69 games.

Congratulations to Mrs. Larche and to Gisèle Brunette, who both advanced as far as the semi-finals.

IN FINAL PLAY

Eileen Morrison

Juliette Guay

For the finals, Eileen Morrison and Juliette Guay will meet this Saturday at 8 p.m. There will also be finals for the Juniors, at 7.30 p.m., and the Men at 8.30 p.m. . . . Everybody is invited to watch these exciting games for the championships.

Miss Morrison is the first best average in the Mixed League, with 129.23 for 84 games, and in the tournament, still the first best average, with 159.1 for 12 games.

Miss Guay is the second-best average in the Mixed League, with 124.78 for 87 games; in the tournament, second best also, with 139.6 for 15 games.

It is hard to predict which one will win, but spectators may be sure of two excellent bowlers in determined competition for the championship honors.

Trout, deer contest for members of Fish-Game Assn.

A meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association, with 31 members in attendance and Dr. Jules Lafleur presiding, brought forth matters of interest both to the membership and the public in general.

A proposal will be sponsored at the next meeting (to be held May 21 at 8.15 p.m. in the Brownsburg Legion Hall) that the Department of Fish and Game be asked to cease renting or the granting of private use to clubs or associations of any kind, the lands and lakes which should be available to hunters and fishermen at large. It is the aim of sportsminded members of this organization to have Argenteuil County reputed as a hunting and fishing paradise; in this objective the co-operation of every citizen is needed. The Association is confident of such co-operation both from the Department in Quebec and the provincial representative for this County.

It is noted that other organizations are making plans to develop the Laurentians and Western Quebec for tourist appeal. The Fish and Game Protective Association gives assurance of its co-operation, especially insofar as Argenteuil is concerned.

Fishing, Hunting Contest

The Association is organizing a trout tournament, for members only. (Membership cards may now be obtained from Frank Bedard at the Sports Centre, Main Street.) There will be prizes to the value of $100 for the largest trout and the heaviest deer bagged in 1959. More details will be given at the next meeting, in Brownsburg, May 21.

Also on the current program is a drawing for a nice boat. Tickets are available from any member. Proceeds for this raffle will help the Association to promote its plans.

Minnow ban in 4 more counties

The 1959 fishing regulations, issued by the Quebec department, have extended the minnow ban to four other counties in the province, namely, Temiscouata, Chicoutimi, Jonquiere-Kenogami and Terrebonne.

The trout season extends from April 15 to September 30, and the day's limit, province-wide, is 25 trout or 15 lbs. by weight.

Badminton Club ends season

The Lachute Badminton Club wound up its 1958-59 season with the round-robin for the Tip Top trophy on Saturday, April 25.

The tournament was played at Lachute High School. The Hawkesbury team won in a close battle. Although leading most of the way, Lachute was overrun in the "grande finale" by Hawkesbury and Calumet. The three teams finished rather close, and a lot of action, keen competition, and excellent sportsmanship was experienced by everyone present. Also participating was a team from Kilmar. Brownsburg was the only club which did not enter a team. A fair number of spectators, representing all four communities, watched this most interesting event.

The Lachute club has had a most successful season and is grateful to all its supporters, and especially to the school authorities, who made the gymnasium available for play.

Badminton becomes increasingly popular. There are three clubs in Lachute and Ayersville. Most players of these clubs feel that a championship should be held next season to determine the best players of Greater Lachute. This championship, invitation tournaments, and the next round-robin, promise an interesting program of activities for next season.

Community Concerts membership drive

THIS WEEK the Lachute Community Concerts Association is holding its annual campaign for members, for the purpose of assuring a series of concerts by world-famous artists during the coming season.

Every community is improved by the advantages of schools, churches, libraries and organizations of a cultural nature. The availability of fine music is another advantage of inestimable benefit to those who make their homes in this district.

The Community Concerts Association conducts a one-week campaign during which those interested in music may join for the mutual benefit of all. This creates a closed association, and a fund in the bank with which to "buy" artists. There is no profit and no loss. The local committee selects the artists for the season and democratically represents the whole membership. Thus both the desired "stars" and the desired music are obtained. Whether the program is a bargain or costly, the cost to each member is the same. Concerts have become an established institution under this plan in over a thousand communities of all sizes on this continent.

Community Concerts have operated successfully in Lachute for the past 11 years. After the first few enthusiastic seasons, when sell-out memberships permitted the engagement of the Don Cossacks, the De Paur Chorus and other highly expensive troupes and performers, there was a certain apathy among the public, who assumed this venture would carry on without effort, of its own impetus. In the subsequent years it was only the zeal of a few indomitable organizers that made the enterprise possible, and ensured the continuance of fine programs for local music lovers.

Now, fortunately, this tenacity is paying off. Community Concerts appear to be well established and (a factor still more encouraging) their appeal has been implanted in the teen-age population, who have become regular concert-goers in increasing numbers.

But the movement is not self-motivating; Community Concerts need unfailing support. It is in the best interests of the district that individuals, business firms, social clubs and youth groups should subscribe annually for memberships, to make the concerts bigger and better.

Municipalities "abusing their privileges"

IT IS GOOD NEWS here that Quebec Solicitor-General Antoine Rivard has issued what he terms "a last warning" to municipalities which abuse their power to enforce traffic regulations and levy fines from motorists. The announcement was spurred by a brief submitted by a delegation from the Provincial Highway Safety Committee.

It is well known that a few municipalities have concentrated more on revenue from these fines than upon the reasonable enforcement of regulations; and more than a few motorists travelling between here and Montreal are left with an unsavory impression of towns in which they received discriminatory treatment.

We offer no defence for speeders, but first let town authorities prosecute their own offenders, so that strangers are not misled by common practice. The disregard of signs by local drivers (so often immune to police intervention) is a bad example; it is virtually a bait to strangers to do likewise — and pay up. . . And this inconsistency is not confined to places "abusing their powers" in the sense the Highway Safety Committee refers to.

The Quebec Solicitor-General states that, if the municipalities referred to fail to take note of this warning, he will ask the Attorney-General to withdraw their special privileges regarding collection of traffic fines.

Mr. Rivard was answering a committee recommendation that cities and towns be subject to uniform speed limits and traffic signals.

Gift to Queen

ONTARIO'S gift to Queen Elizabeth, to mark the Royal Visit this summer, is one that might well be emulated across the country.

Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay and Premier Leslie Frost announced that the gift will be a $500,000 scholarship fund.

The fund will be turned over to a committee comprising the presidents of the province's universities "with absolutely no strings attached."

"The money may be distributed by them in any manner they see fit," the announcement said. "It is our hope that this flexibility will provide assistance in cases which might not qualify under the more rigid types of bursaries."

Premier Frost has expressed the hope that the fund may open up chances to produce a medical or scientific breakthrough such as the Banting and Best discovery of insulin.

Establishment of the fund is in keeping with a wish expressed by Her Majesty that gifts to her be such "that they will broaden the opportunities of this great province and enrich her people," the premier added.

Royal visits are an occasion for showers of gifts, all graciously received but all too frequently, at best, mementoes.

A scholarship fund is a lasting tribute whose benefits are limitless. The Queen Elizabeth II Ontario Scholarship Fund will be set up so it may become larger in the future.

It does honor to the Queen and will be a cherished and valued award to those who are the recipients of its benefits.

It comes at a time when the demands on reasearch are at their greatest. Tremendous forward steps are being taken in science and medicine but there is a continuing shortage of experts in these fields.

More gifts of this nature will indeed enrich Her Majesty's people.

The motive power of society

CRITICISM on the "frills" of modern education is as prevalent in this community as elsewhere. By the "frills", one generally implies those extra-curricular activities dissociated from book-learning — the physical training, athletics, arts and culture, music and dramatics, student administration and social programs.

Character may be built in the classroom — but inadequately and incompletely, as we see it. It is the group association, teamwork and social collaboration which add personality to efficiency, and these school diversions count immeasurably in the moulding of young citizens.

In the following paragraphs from the monthly letter of the Royal Bank, dealing with "Character Building", we find sound arguments to stump the critics of the so-called "frills" of education. . . .

Character is of vital importance to young people leaving school and university to enter upon their life work. It is by character that they will be judged by their friends, their employers and society.

Some people say that knowledge is power. It is more correct in this vigorous and complex age to say that character is power. Mind without heart, intelligence without conduct, cleverness without goodness: all these have dangerous flaws.

The development of character has not kept pace with the advancement of science and technology. Human impulses have remained becalmed and almost changeless, while the physical surroundings of human beings have been transformed.

Moral strength and backbone need to be brought up to the level of our increasing intellectual enlightenment and our control over physical things.

Some people have a false idea of character. They think of it as being like the angels and cherubs of a great painter, portraying goodness without personality. . . . There is no need to seek examples in remote history. We may see people of character in our everyday lives, among teachers and students, among foremen and workmen, among neighbors, friends and family. They give an impression of completeness, poise and sincerity. They are, or will become, the motive power of society.

An approach to the Cancer problem

In a century-old, 23-room mansion on University Street, across the road from the McGill University Medical College in Montreal, biochemists from a dozen different countries are working under the direction of a grey-haired, intense man on projects that may ultimately benefit all mankind.

The establishment is the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute, and the man with the big ideas who directs it is Dr. J. H. Quastel, who over the past years has been associated with such notable chemical triumphs as the development of 2-4D weed killer. The largest percentage of projects now going forward in the Institute involve the highly complex chemical processes that take place within normal and tumour cells. Behind the cancer projects is the National Cancer Institute of Canada, which organizes most of the Cancer research in Canada, and the Canadian Cancer Society which to a large extent supports it.

The biochemical approach, Dr. Quastel believes, is the most hopeful one for the solution of the cancer problem. He defines biochemistry as the "chemistry of living things" and says that, "the biochemist is in a position to analyse with great exactness the difference between normal and cancer cells and to try to model some therapeutic agent." The practical aim of cancer biochemistry, he explains, is to "find a drug that will cure cancer or immunize against it."

From basement to attic every square inch of floor space in the old house, once occupied by the Morgan family, is covered with scientists or their equipment. The wide halls are cluttered with filing cabinets, deep freezes, centrifuges and other equipment. The spacious living room is a laboratory with a wooden bench heaped with test tubes, beakers, retorts and other gear running from end to end. Billiard room, bedrooms, music room — all are put to similar purpose. In the main hall of the basement is a photographic darkroom built by the staff.

"Of course we need about twice as much space as we've got," Dr. Quastel protests. "I've had to turn down first rate men and women who wanted to come here and work with us, because we had no room for them."

His present staff roster reads like the registration of the United Nations, including as it does graduate and post-graduate students from Pakistan, England, Latvia, the Phillipines, Scotland, Greece, Australia, Hungary, India, Japan, Poland and Canada. Their last progress report to the National Cancer Institute of Canada comprised 225 closely-typed pages.

A chemical process that is attracting much attention from the Quastel group is one that takes place in all living cells and is called "protein synthesis". Stated very simply, this means the building of proteins from chemicals known as amino acids.

Tumour cells – which are our own body cells growing in a rapid uncontrolled manner — naturally make protein much faster than cells of most adult organs, which are busy doing their special or functional job in the body instead of reproducing themselves. From the embryonic stage, as the cells get older and begin to make different tissue, they gradually lose this ability to carry on protein synthesis in the manner that cancer cells do. Some sort of control mechanism is working, that causes them to cut down on the amount of protein synthesis. . . . What is it and how does it work? . .

"When we know this we may have a good idea how to control the growth of tumour cells," Dr. Quastel explains.

This is just one of the numerous problems connected with cell growth. Although Dr. Quastel is convinced that the biochemical approach is the most hopeful, there are other investigators working not a hundred yards from him in other McGill establishments, who feel that the best hope lies in other approaches.

Total grants from the National Cancer Institute to McGill scientists amount to $115,225.

"We believe this is a healthy state of affairs," Dr. R. M. Taylor, executive director of the National Cancer Institute of Canada, explains. "In the more than eighty projects that we are presently supporting in institutions in seven provinces, are a number of different approaches to the cancer problem. Some of our people are working with viruses, others with tars and other cancer-causing chemicals, others with hormones. Until we have more definite evidence where the culprit lies it would be folly to neglect any approach."

The National Cancer Institute's budget for research this year amounts to over a million dollars, 82% of which comes from the Canadian Cancer Society.

Man's inflated ego

By Lewis Milligan

Before I was interrupted by my flight to the South, I was trying to solve the problem of inflation. I had discovered how we got into it by living beyond our means. We had more than sufficient for our needs, but our wants had multiplied beyond our ability or willing ness to work and provide for them. The obvious way out of that impasse would be to cut down our wants to the measure of our means, or to increase our means to the size of our wants.

In the first place, we might cut down our standard of living to something more than the bare necessities. But that could be done only by adopting the communist system, or by rationing both needs and wants as we did in time of war. The fact is that we are now living under a wartime economy — a cold war, with comparatively few casualties, but it is a costly and worrying business. Not only have we to provide for peacetime needs and wants, we at the same time have to produce and pay for enormously expensive armaments in preparation for actual war. Thus our peaceful wants to maintain our high standard of living have become necessities, and our needs for defence have extended beyond those of former warfare. We are now reaching out into space with mechanical satellites and we want to set up war-bases on the moon.

The whole trouble with the world today is that we are wanting too much, and our economic inflation is due to an inflated ego. Man has grown too big for his shoes. Not content with walking and riding on the surface of the earth, he made himself artificial wings with which to fly around it like a bird. His success in this inflated his ego all the more and he wanted to get off the earth. He invented a rocket to defy the law of gravitation and display his ingenuity in the creation of little moons and climb to the stars.

All of which reminds one of those words of Hamlet: "O God! I could be bounded in a nutshell, and count myself king of infinite space, were it not that I have bad dreams." Those dreams were Hamlet's suppressed ambitions, and Guildenstern replied: "The very substance of the ambitious is merely the shadow of a dream." And man in his dream of conquering space is inflated by a "vaulting ambition, which o'erleaps itself, and falls on the other."

There is plenty of scope for ambition within our atmosphere and on the solid earth itself with its umpty millions of human beings, the majority of whom have not the wherewithal to feed, clothe and house themselves in comfort and decency. And yet our scientists are reaching out to the dead moon and the vacuity of space — for what? In this inflated ambition they are being abetted and financed by governments whose first and last duty is to promote the peaceful welfare of their people and the world at large.

As for the United Nations and the proposed summit conferences, the whole business is described satirically in the Scripture: "Why do the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing? . . . The rulers take counsel together. . . . He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh; the Lord shall have them in derision."

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Socialist eggs

About five years ago, a Socialist M.P. and one-time parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Food in England, lambasted the Tory government for decontrolling eggs. The Tories had swept away the nation and the priority rights. This, said the Socialists, would mean that eggs would become a luxury only the rich could enjoy. "We are likely to have fewer eggs at higher prices," prophesied Mr. Willey. It was a "Tory sell-out of the housewife," he said.

Now, five years later, everybody in England can have ham and eggs for breakfast, without giving it a second thought. Instead of an egg a week, enjoyed under the old government-planned regime, even a poorer family can afford eggs every day. The price is cheaper, the product more plentiful. In other words, things turned out exactly the opposite to what the Socialists proclaimed so bitterly.

Indeed, if there is a problem now, it is a problem of abundance rather than scarcity. This the Socialists just can't understand. They had declared, when controls were stopped, that it would put eggs "out of the reach of many young children, invalids, and expectant mothers, who have guaranteed priorities under rationing and are now abandoned under the decontrol. Decontrol will not create any more eggs." They are proven wrong. What they should have recognized was that control, which they practised, did not control any eggs. Controls limit, restrict and inhibit producers. Decontrol — the setting free of the product — did for invalids, expectant mothers, and everybody, what rationing could not do. It lowered the price, it brought abundance rather than scarcity.

This same dynamic impetus of freedom has been demonstrated so often you would think everybody would be convinced. Yet the Socialists, time and again, sell themselves the notion that a group in London, or Washington, or Ottawa can plan production so well that they can legislate us into prosperity. The fact is, we plan best when each interested individual does the planning — and suffers for his mistakes or gains by his wisdom.

Wisdom is something governments seem to toss out the window when they get involved in matters concerning food. In Manitoba, for example, housewives are allowed to buy margarine but they must color it themselves; it is against the law for the manufacturer to color it for them. Yet it is a food product listed for use in Canada's official Good Health Rules! How ridiculous can you get? In Canada there are strict laws to keep manufacturers from getting together on marketing plans; but at the same time, there is special marketing legislation which compels many farmers against their will to engage in such plans in the marketing of food products. What a weird and wonderful world!

Now they're opening tourist resorts in the Arctic! For only $1,500, a sportsman will be able to fly up to a fishing hole in the tundra country, pursue the Arctic char for a week, and come home refreshed.

There is also talk of amateur seal-hunting in one of the two resorts that are scheduled to open north of the tree-line.

More power to the clever entrepreneurs who launched the scheme. I hope the Eskimos cash in on the new northern tourist industry, as guides, motel owners and operators of muskoxburger stands.

But the $210-a-day fishing vacation — excellent value though it may be for the money — leaves me gasping for breath.

I'm primitive enough to look upon fishing as a quest for something to eat.

When I push off from the shore of the lake in the old rowboat, I go in the hope of returning with something I can use instead of bacon and eggs next morning.

What thoughts pass through the mind of the man who plonks down $1,500 for a week of Arctic fishing?

For this man, I suppose, fishing has become a mystic rite, an affirmation of his kinship with nature.

Long fed from the can, the deep freeze and the plastic package, sheltered in the air-conditioned urban cave, he suffers from a feeling of unreality.

Is there truly a world of living things out there beyond the glass, concrete and neon? Is he man enough to outwit wild creatures, and provide food for his family? Some such vague ideas may be drifting about the city-dweller's mind.

After a vast expenditure for tackle, gasoline and whiskey, he brings home a sardine-sized fish. But for him, it is worth every penny of the $95 a pound it cost, because that microscope fish has restored his pride, and brought him back to the real world.

I think that's the way it works. But, just as a man who drinks for relaxation may become an alcoholic, the man who fishes for spiritual comfort may become a compulsive angler. He's hooked.

To the fishing addict, a trip to the Arctic then seems the most natural thing in the world. But I would like to see the face of a man trying to explain to his wife how he happened to come home empty-handed, after a $1,500 week of fishing.

New organ planned for St. Francis church

Plans are being made for the immediate installation of a magnificent new organ in the rapidly growing Church of St. Francis, at St. Sauveur. A system of organ chimes will be installed at the same time.

One of the features of this church is the splendid congregational singing. Next fall it is hoped that a Junior Choir will be started, but at the present time the lack of space makes this impractical.

Family feted on departure

After having spent the past four years as manager of the A & P Supermarket here, Mr. Donald Streich has been transferred to a similar position at Arnprior, where he took over his new duties last week.

During his sojourn in this vicinity, Mr. Streich has seen the business in which he is so keenly interested, grow rapidly until larger premises were required and even today are considered much too small. This speaks well for one who, though quiet and unassuming, has gained the trust and respect of a host of friends in this vicinity.

Prior to his departure, a group of friends gathered at McArthur's Hall, where dancing was enjoyed and a social evening spent as a farewell party. Sponsors of this event were Mrs. M. Evans, Mrs. F. Campbell and Mrs. N. MacGeorge.

Following the arrival of the honored guests and the singing of the popular "For they are jolly good fellows", Ken Raymond, a local townsboy and the new manager, spoke briefly of the cordial relations that had existed between Mr. Streich and his staff, wishing him all success in his new location.

A presentation of travelling bags to Mr. and Mrs. Streich, and a radio to Miss Heather, was then made, each expressing in turn their sincere appreciation.

Refreshments and dancing rounded out a most happy evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bazinet wish to announce the marriage of their daughter, Edith Isabella, to Mr. Hugh Ridell, son of Mr. George Ridell and the late Mrs. Ridell, which took place on May 1, 1959, the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating.

Improved interior, Brownsburg United Church

Rebuilding of the chancel area and installation of new furnishings were marked by recent dedication services at Brownsburg United Church. The attractive layout and appointments are a credit to the community.

This marks completion of a second major step in the building program undertaken by the Brownsburg congregation, an extension to the rear of the building having been completed early in 1958.

Architectural design is by A. Leslie Perry, Montreal, and the chancel furnishings were built and installed by Charlebois & Fils, Reg., Lachute.

Women's League, Ste. Anastasie group

The monthly meeting of the Ste. Anastasie Catholic Women's League Parish Council was held on Monday evening at l'Ecole Supérieure.

Mrs. C. Robinson presided, with 25 members present. Reports from the various conveners were read.

The spiritual convener urged all members to participate in the May devotions, each Sunday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock.

Plans were made to hold a food sale and novelty table at the Cinema Lachute on Friday, May 22. Mrs. I. Oswald agreed to take charge of the food sale and Mrs. O. Stephens the novelty table.

The meeting closed with prayer, and a delicious lunch was served.

A Danish treat

The Danes have justly earned international fame for their cuisine. Their "melt-in-your-mouth" baked goods are in no small way responsible for the Danish reputation in culinary circles. Everyone can't visit Scandinavia to sample some of their delicious pastries, but we can transplant many highly popular Danish recipes to Canada. Danish Apricot cake is a delectable example of the type of baking at which the Dames excel. The rich, yeast-raised dough is topped with chopped apricots that have been sweetened with honey. After the cake is cooled, Confectioners' Icing is piped on top of the apricot mixture to add to the attractive appearance of the cake. Serve it with or without butter, at snack or meal time. Try surprising the family next Sunday brunch by serving it instead of toast.

Danish Apricot Cake

(Yield — 1 large cake)

1½ Cups chopped well-drained sweetened stewed dried apricots, ½ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope active dry yeast, 2 cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, ¼ cup granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, 1 well beaten egg, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind, ¼ cup liquid honey, ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon.

Prepare apricots. Measure lukewarm water into a large mixing bowl; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well.

Meantime, sift the all-purpose flour, the ¼ cup sugar and salt into a bowl; cut in shortening finely. Stir well-beaten egg, lemon rind and flour mixture into dissolved yeast; combine thoroughly — about 2 minutes. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1¼ hours.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas and shape into a roll. Roll out dough into a rectangle 12 x 7 inches. Place on greased cookie sheet. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about ¾ hour.

Meantime, combine chopped apricots, liquid honey and cinnamon. Make a slight depression all over top of dough to within 1 inch of edges. Spread with apricot mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool on a cake rack. Pipe a fine decoration on top of apricot mixture, with the following Confectioners' Icing: spread edges of the cake with icing and sprinkle with chopped nutmeats.

Confectioners' Icing

1 Cup sifted icing sugar, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, milk.

Combine icing sugar, vanilla and sufficient milk to make a stiff icing.

Mother, Do You Praise?

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

On Mother's Day, mothers bask in the bright sunshine of praise from their children and their husbands. They receive flowers and presents. Countless tributes are paid to them. They hear again the words of famous men who felt indebted to their mothers — Benjamin West's "A kiss from my mother made me a painter," or Abraham Lincoln's "All that I am, or hope to be, I owe to my angel mother." . . .

All this commendation is very pleasant. The Greek writer Xenophon, who lived over 2,000 years ago, called praise, "The sweetest of all sounds." Was he not right? Do you not remember with pleasure an unexpected compliment you received from a member of your family on your appearance in a new dress or hat, a cake or pie you just baked, or a bouquet you had arranged from your own garden?

There is a vast difference between praise and flattery. Praise comes from the word to price or prize, while flattery has the meaning of overpraising. Jean Paul (Richter)' in the last century, pointed out "It is easy to flatter; it is harder to praise."

Mothers who are honest, have a suspicion that there is a good deal of "overpraising" indulged in on the second Sunday in May. They know that they are human, they have "their little ways." Every day they fall far short of the kind of parent they would like to be. But all the same, all this hearty approval is very nice! Samuel Johnson once said, "Praise, like gold and diamonds, owes its value only to its scarcity."

It is strange that many mothers who enjoy praise so much, use it so seldom in their dealings with their children. Perhaps they fear that if they show their warm approval, their youngsters will become spoiled. No one likes a conceited little prig!

But honest praise from mother, not as a constant diet, but from time to time when it is deserved, is always good for a child. It warms his heart and brings the best out of him. He needs to think well of himself. Mother's approval builds up his own self-esteem. Praise is not likely to produce a conceited youngster who rests on his laurels. It is more likely to be a spur to even greater and better effort.

Not that mother wants her child to do something, "just to please mother." The child should find his satisfaction in the thrill of learning, the sense of achievement. But that personal reward is greater if it is shared with an understanding parent who can enter imaginatively into the moment of triumph. The spontaneous "Well-done!" will be treasured by the boy or girl who has struggled with a problem.

It is true that parents often see their children partly succeeding and partly failing in a special project. The child is aware of not scoring a bull's eye. But if a parent is looking for some little thing to praise he can usually find it. John's literature paper was marked B, but mother noticed how much his hand-writing was improving. She mentioned this and suggested that if he would read aloud to her a couple of evenings a week he might get a B plus or even an A on the next exam.

When it comes to praise, most women have discovered that their husband likes it just as much as their children. It costs so little to show how much you apreciate John fixing the washer on the kitchen tap in the evening when he was tired after his day's work. If he offers to put Junior to bed, while you have a few minutes to relax, why not praise him as a good father?

The nicest kind of praise is the unexpected, spontaneous word which expresses your joy in another's action. Never degrade praise by using it as a bribe to make a child be "good" or as a bait to get something from a husband! These methods will make them suspicious of your approval.

For countless years wise mothers, have praised their children. Thirty-five centuries ago, Harkhuf of Elphantine, the first explorer of the Sudan, in describing his home life, said:

"I was one beloved of his father; praised of his mother! whom all his brothers cared for." These words, inscribed on one of the earliest epitaphs of the world, give a pattern of home life which many families in the 20th century could well follow! Mother, do you praise your child even as Harkhuf's mother did? Your child, when he is grown, will treasure the memory of your words of approval.

Bacon solves many problems in hurry-up meal

Quick-cooking bacon with its tempting aroma and flavor can come to the rescue whenever you need a hurry-up meal or snack. Why not keep a pound of each, side and back bacon, on hand in your refrigerator so you will be prepared for emergencies like these?

Problem

You were planning to have bacon and eggs for breakfast, but have only half enough eggs to go around.

Solution

Simply fry more bacon than you planned to, mix the eggs with a little milk and make French toast by dipping slices of bread in the egg mixture and frying them in part of the bacon fat. Serve with good Canadian maple syrup for a "better-than-I-expected" breakfast.

Problem

Your husband's cousin and her family are in town for the day and you'd like to invite them for supper but — you bought only enough country sausage to feed four.

Solution

Break open that special pound of back bacon you bought; panfry the country sausage first (it takes 30 minutes over moderate heat), pour off the fat and fry the bacon (6 to 8 minutes). To serve, slice country sausage in 1" pieces and, portioning them out, arrange attractively on top of 2 or 3 overlapping slices of bacon on each plate.

Problem

Friends have dropped in for the evening — you haven't a thing on hand ready to use in sandwiches.

Solution

Turn on the broiler. Remove bacon from wrapping and arrange on cold rack of broiler pan; no need to separate the slices until you turn them. Broil 4 to 5 minutes. In the meantime butter the bread for sandwiches, then pop the hot bacon between the slices and toast the sandwiches in the broiler, turning once. For a change, have the buttered side of the sandwiches outside and include some cheese with the bacon in the middle. (Sliced tomatoes are good in these sandwiches, too.)

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Carolyn Willett, Canadian Press Staff Writer

It would appear that many Canadians are looking beyond spring cleaning to a holiday overseas.

At least, that seems to be a reasonable deduction from the fact that the passport division of the external affairs department is piled high with passport applications.

The division is issuing passports at the rate of 360 a day. Even at that rate, in this busy season it takes about three weeks to get the slim book required for tourists in many overseas countries.

But once the passport is stamped and delivered with its "that really can't be me" photograph, the traveller has bounded up one big step in the overseas trip.

Travel Prices

The next peek is into the pocketbook. And in this age of mobility, the competition for tourist dollars between airlines and steamship companies has pared European travel down to fairly reasonable prices.

Of course, there also is the instalment plan offered by many transportation companies and the "go now, pay later" plans have plenty of appeal. Many of these transportation companies offer the packaged holiday. With the most important arrangements made for him the tourist can relax without worries about where he'll stay, or eat, or what he will see.

At this point, just about everything fits into the attractive prospects of a holiday abroad. Things move so fast nowadays that you can plan a profitable holiday in Europe on an ordinary annual vacation schedule.

"Bank of Light"

One Canadian service club now is on a campaign that doesn't involve a cent out of any donor's pocket. The Canadian Association of Lions Club wants discarded eyeglasses.

They seek 1,000,000 pairs of eyeglasses to send to India where each lens will be classified and stored in an eyeglass bank to be handed out to those who suffer from eye diseases. And there are 2,500,000 of these.

This "Bank of Light" project originated in the United States with Chile as the recipient country. It proved successful, and oculists there found that once lenses were classified they could be matched and reframed to provide an effective sight-helper for many people.

Modern Version

The women's committee of the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra which annually throws a one-night party to raise funds for the orchestra, decided this year to produce a modern version of "Robinson Crusoe" as party entertainment.

With a Trinidad band and dancers, the committee has gone to Parliament Hill to fill the title role. Lester B. Pearson, national leader of the Liberal party, has been enlisted to play Crusoe.

Notes from Weekly "Scotsman"

"Chickenpox—now it's fit for a Prince", is the heading of an article about chicken pox in the Weekly Scotsman of April 9, which said "A little boy whom you and I and everybody else knows, is down with chicken pox. Yes, even Prince Charles can catch the bug. But he can be of good cheer, he will not be long alone. If there is chicken pox about, most school-aged children are involved, and even a few adults."

We know from radio reports that Her Royal Highness Princess Anne caught the chicken pox, just like any other little girl, from her brother, so that it can now be said that "Chicken pox is fit for a Princess."

The Scotsman went on to say that "It can be spread by speaking, coughing, or even breathing, but there is no suggestion that the last-mentioned (breathing) should be avoided to prevent spreading the disease!"

This article also said: "It has been calculated that the virus can be spread up to 15 feet through the air. A common method of spread is, of course, by infected articles of clothing", then adding, "Did you boil those handkerchiefs?"

They preferred a good two weeks' absence before children returned to school. And to the question, "Is there any tablet or specific cure for chicken pox?" the answer was regretfully — "Not yet".

New store opened on Main Street

Many guests attended the opening of the new Western Tire and Auto Supply store, opposite Lachute post-office, on Friday, April 24th. The Rev. Father Mailloux conferred his blessing on the enterprise, and brief speeches were given by Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon and Raymond Leblanc, company representative. Noted in the above group are — the Rev. Mailloux; Mayor and Mrs. McGibbon; Ald. Stanley Holt; the proprietor, Jean-Paul Hamel with members of his family, and others.

— Photos, Bertrand Studio

about two minutes and then a trumpeting sound up and down the shore. It was as though some message had been passed along, silently at first, because this alarm or whatever it was all seemed to go off at separate parts, almost as one.

Within about 20 seconds every bird seemed to be in the air, and to anyone seeing a Canada Goose take off from land, it's laughable. They are so big and clumsy, you swear they aren't going to make it, without a shove. All this time the noise was something; you have heard the sounds that come from a vacuum cleaner when it's shut off and there is a swish and shush from the air being carried into the tube without the power. That is just what the noise was like — a giant vacuum cleaner. Not one of these birds collided with another. What seemed to me to be a terrific traffic jam got all straightened away without a single wreck. By 6 a.m. there wasn't a Goose to be seen around or on the Island, nothing but a bunch of stupid Gulls.

Man, what we can learn from supposed dumb creatures! Take these Geese and their organization. If there had been as many humans packed into one small space like this, we would still be trying to decide something. . . . So much for the very welcome visitors, until next fall.

We found another Deer this afternoon, dead. Could be I'm going to have to revise my estimates. We almost stumbled over it in the marsh grass; in the swamps there may be a lot more for us to find. Edith has taken some pictures of the unfortunate ones for our records. On the first opportunity I'll bury the carcasses. One thing we do know now, is that the dead won't all be in the hardwoods.

A number of lakers have been going up and down, most of them being the Misner Lines. We are waiting for the opening of the Seaway tomorrow. With all the boats that should be going up, Lake Ontario will look like St. Catherine Street for awhile.

April 26 —

We have been waiting all day to see the first ocean-going steamers. Two of them have just gone by, 6.15 p.m. — both of the same nationality or registry, Dutch. There was only about three minutes between them and it looked as though they were in a race for the honor of getting there first — "where", I don't know. Maybe there's a prize in it for them. . . . At least we saw history being made today from Duck Island!

I guess I'll stop telling you of the animals found dead. Another Deer, also in the swamp. Also a Fox — now dead. That's one of the reasons for the shortage of Pheasants.

We were up into potholes this p.m. to look over the Ducks. There are so many it would be stupid to estimate them. Blacks, Whitlers, Baldpates, Grebe, Green Wing Teal, as a matter of fact Teal of all kinds. Goldie, our dog, had a great time trying to catch them. Boy is she stupid, and the Ducks know it too; they only paddle away into a deeper hole where they can swim rings around her. Not one bit afraid. No young were seen yet, as they are just making their nests.

If Goldie goes into the swamp after they start laying their eggs, she will get the biggest surprise she has had since she chased the Ducklings last spring! I can still see that. You will remember at that time we had two dogs. The way they came out of that swamp then was the funniest thing I had seen in a long time.

When the dog got tired of chasing these ducks, she decided to roll in the swamp grass and a few hundred pounds of dead fish. . . . Result, the odour of four nights in a stable perfume. Boy, is she high!

April 27 —

The temperature got down to 20 during the night. The lake is rough, and a wind blowing right out of the North at about 25 m.p.h.

A good number of steamers have been going up; there have been more up this morning than anytime during the day, last year. A steady stream of them since sun-up. The size of some of them makes the usual lake steamer seem very small. These sailors must think it funny, sailing more than 2,000 miles into a country to deliver their cargo!

April 28 —

Started to rain and hail about 9 a.m. It just doesn't seem possible to keep warm. Every little nook in the house seems to be as wide as a door. The rain is pouring down so hard it almost seems like a heavy fog; it is impossible to see anything, even the boats, we can only hear their fog signals.

Apart from the lake there doesn't seem to be a thing moving. Not even the Gulls are bothering us today. As a matter of fact since the Geese left the other day, some of the Gulls have pulled up stakes and headed elsewhere. That is really good, too. Some of the other birds are starting to show up in numbers — Crows, Swallows and Flickers. Some of the trees are sprouting a few buds and small leaves. But the Island still looks positively bleak.

April 30 —

Yesterday was a continuance of the storm; winds hit 61 m.p.h. for a short time. We also had company for most of the day. We could see people walking around the decks of the boats anchored in the lee of the Island. I should be getting used to these storms, but I don't suppose I ever will. There's always the unexpected to figure on.

Now it has turned into a swell day. The birds are out in force in all directions, before too long they will be all over the place. Mr. Dulles has a couple of books on birds so I'll borrow them and try and give you some of the names, which are strange to me.

The woman had taken the newspaper in the early morning from her neighbor's letter box, read it and had not returned it until after lunch.

WIN FIGHT AGAINST T.B. IN ESKIMOS

A healthy and happy life back in his Arctic homeland awaits this Eskimo youngster, once afflicted with T.B. and now in A-1 shape, thanks to "Operation Save the Eskimos." Nine years ago a survey showed that over 10 per cent. of Canada's Eskimos in the eastern Arctic were suffering from active T.B. and they were feared to be a doomed race. Government and hospital officials flew hundreds of them to the Mountain Sanitorium at Hamilton. There, with drugs, good food, plenty of rest and careful nursing, the majority licked the disease. Today, surveys indicate that the incidence of T.B. in their homeland has dropped to almost three per cent.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Mind your motor manners and you never can be accused of being a despotic driver or a rude dude of the road. Even more important, you'll greatly decrease your chances of becoming "an accident going somewhere to happen."

If you don't want to qualify as an automobile autocrat or a bumper-bender, you might make the following your "code of the road":

1. Don't cheat at a red light or a stop sign any more than you would at a game of cards.
2. Share the road instead of usurping the right of way from other cars and pedestrians.
3. Never use your horn to threaten or scold, but as a warning device in emergencies.
4. Dim your lights when meeting other cars at night.
5. Park so you do not use up other parking spaces or impede the movement of other cars.
6. Be considerate by driving at reasonable speeds.
7. Always signal your desire to stop, pull out or turn.
8. Be orderly by always keeping to the right, except when turning or passing.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. For over three years my husband and I worked for my father in his store as regular employees, and he put stamps in both of our books. When my father died a few months ago, he left me the business, and my husband and I decided that at least for the present I would carry on the business and he would continue to work for me. I don't see why the change should affect my husband's status as an employee but I was informed that I shouldn't put stamps in his book. It this correct?

A. Yes. The Unemployment Insurance Act specifically provides that a man working for his wife cannot be insured and vice versa.

Q. I ha e been in a sanatorium for a year, but am now well and can work again. Am I entitled to unemployment insurance benefits?

A. It is apparent that you cannot meet the qualifying conditions which require you to have 30 contribution weeks in the last 104 weeks, of which eight must be in the past 32 weeks. However, these periods can be extended, upon application, by the number of weeks that you were in the sanatorium and unable to work due to illness. Such an application will be taken at the time you file your claim at our local office.

Rose varieties for Canadian gardens

Ottawa — It is natural that Canadian gardeners should be influenced in selection of rose varieties by the great bulk of advertising in American periodicals. Every garden magazine one picks up sings the praises of roses patented in the United States — White Knight, Pink Lustre, Peace, Perfecta, Golden Masterpiece.

All of these are worthy hybrid teas, just as Fuseleer Spartan and Gold Cup are worthy florabundas, but a good many of them originated in Europe. White Knight started in Europe as Message, Peace was originated in France as Mme Meilland, Perfecta was originated by Kordes in Germany as was Gail Borden.

These Europeans were patented in the United States because they stood up so well under American conditions. There are other European varieties that have stood up well under Ottawa conditions that should be more widely used in Canadian gardens.

Confidence, originated by F. Meilland, won the Bagatille gold medal in 1951 and is a favorite of Warren Oliver, Horticulturist with the Canada Department of Agriculture, as a large flowered fragrant pink.

De Debat, also bred by F. Meilland, is a large fragrant fully double deep pink to coral that won the National Rose Society gold medal in 1950.

Mme Dieudonné, another F. Meilland origination is a fully double, long pointed bud. The color is vermillion with gold reflex. Growth is vigorous and bloom profuse.

Altesse is a vigorous, free-flowering rose with double globular strawberry red flowers.

Magali, originated by C. Malleri of France, is a vigorous upright free flowering bush, with medium sized cochineal flowers.

Tzigane has quite large cupped yellow and red flowers in profusion. The plant is upright and bushy with leathery foliage.

All these have been outstanding and better suited to our climate than many of the American introductions.

Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

When gladiolus bulbs are dug up in the fall young cormels or bulblets are usually found clustered about the parent bulb. The number of bulblets produced varies according to the variety of the plant.

If the bulblets are planted over a two or three-year period they will develop into full sized bulbs. The accompanying Garden-Graph shows stages in the development of bulblets to bulbs that are ready to bloom.

When planting the bulblets remember that moisture is very necessary to their germination due to the fact that they have very hard shells. Soaking the bulblets in tepid water for several days, even a week or longer, is advisable as the shells must crack before the grass-like leaves can sprout.

Plants the bulblets in a trench about two inches deep, as shown in the Garden-Graph. Then cover them with a low ridge of soil. Keep them well weeded. When the grass-like foliage is about six inches high give a feeding of plant food. Water during dry, hot spells to keep the bulblets from maturing prematurely. The longer the season of growth the better development of the bulbs

Agr. committee on humane slaughter of livestock

Ottawa — CP — To the House of Commons agriculture committee has fallen the job of hearing representations and drafting legislation dealing with the humane slaughter of livestock.

After hearing various charges of cruelty involved in commercial packing houses and abattoirs, the committee listened to angry words on the issue of preparing animals for Schechita, the Jewish religious method of slaughter.

The blunt criticism came from the Toronto Humane Society, which objected heatedly to the Canadian Jewish Congress brief saying the ritual method is humane. The Congress said the system is undignified, but not painful.

The Toronto group said that in some abattoirs, animals are shackled and then hoisted, sometimes by one leg, to be carried along a kind of conveyor belt to the Jewish official who administers the fatal knife-stroke.

The society called this a "barbarous" preparation for slaughter. Its brief described animals, once suspended, "bucking and thrashing and bawling in agony" while some animals "break their legs and tear tendons."

Religious Practice

In its submission earlier, the Jewish Congress said their religious laws require that the animals be conscious, healthy and whole at the time of killing. A requirement that animals be stunned before slaughter "would make it impossible for Jews to conform to the precepts of our religion."

The Humane Society, while disavowing anti-Semitism, said it believes that the key to Jewish opposition to compulsory use of such pre-slaughter methods as the casting pen, lies in economic considerations.

It said there is no justification for exempting ritual slaughter from any contemplated humane slaughtering legislation "on grounds which are obviously solely financial and nothing else."

And with these opposing arguments, there the matter lay in abeyance. The committee is believed prepared to accept more expert evidence on the subject before making any recommendations for legislation.

First survey on farm safety

Canada's first national survey on farm and farm home safety will be conducted over the next two months.

In making the announcement, Jack Whyte, chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said that the 73,000 enrolled in 4-H Clubs across Canada will be playing a key role reporting the accidents on their home farms.

"There are no adequate national statistics at the present time on farm accidents," said Mr. C. A. Douglas, president, Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs. "However, we do know that farm accidents, in addition to causing much suffering and hardship, are responsible for serious loss of time, production and income to the farm industry. It is hoped that up to date information on the kind, cause and incidence of farm accidents will facilitate the development of better farm safety programs in Canada."

Those concerned with the survey appealed to the farm parents and local 4-H Club leaders for assistance in supplying statistical data to 4-H members. Questionnaires, to be filled out, would cover the period January 1 to December 31, 1958, and it is hoped to have results tabulated by next autumn.

Agriculture and business have long been interested in such a survey, and are in agreement that a co-operative effort is needed to develop an effective program of national farm safety. Although some sectors of Canada have developed farm safety programs that have produced a lower frequency of deaths and accidents, much remains to be accomplished in this field.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

BATTLE IN THE BARNYARD

When it comes to farm management, an "ounce of prevention" can be worth literally millions of pounds — pounds of meat and poultry and dairy produce which the nation stands to lose through animal diseases. Since livestock products account for 60 per cent of farm income, protecting animals from disease is a major problem for Canadian farmers.

Livestock diseases often hit hardest in spring months, when the newborn animal population reaches a peak. The young animals fall easy prey to deadly microbes during the first few weeks of life, before natural defences can be mustered.

This spring, millions of pigs, calves and chicks will be added to the nation's barnyard population. But unless preventive measures are taken, diseases such as scours and pneumonia will cut down three out of 10 pigs and three out of 12 calves. Thousands of chicks, too, will be stricken.

Although the newborn animals themselves are defenceless against microbial onslaught, modern science in recent years has developed some effective means of protecting them against once-deadly diseases. Powerful antibiotics have proved effective in preventing and treating scours, pneumonia and other diseases of pigs and calves, and in clearing up open-wound infections. Added to drinking water, such biotics ward off infection and help both to reduce chick mortality and end laying slumps.

Animal diseases are still plundering farm revenues for millions of dollars each year. The Canadian Department of Agriculture believes, however, that much of the loss can be prevented by presently available means. And, the Department adds, "much more can presumably be prevented by further research."

Vegetable growth quicker up North

In the Canadian north, vegetables must grow quickly and mature early.

Growth of some is adversely affected by the north's long summer days. Result is taller plant growth and later maturity, which points up the need for breeding vegetables in the area for which they are required.

There are exceptions. Developed at the Morden, Manitoba Experimental Farm, Tiny Tim peas average nine inches tall at Morden and the pods, normally two inches long, are ready for use by June 20 from April 30 seeding.

In contrast, plants of the viriety grow 18 inches tall at Beaverlodge in the Peace River area of northern Alberta. The pods average two and a half inches and are ready by mid-July from early May seeding.

Although taller and later at Beaverlodge than at Morden, the Tiny Tim variety is well liked in the north.

A comparable effect is reported in the Morden F7735 sweet corn. At Morden, this variety grows 30 inches high, the ears average four inches in length and, when seeded May 20, are normally ready for use August 1. However at Kenville, in the Swan River valley of northern Manitoba, F7735 seeded May 25, grows 42 inches tall. The ears average five inches and are usually ready by August 18. The first fall frost may occur at Kenville as early as August 20.

In assessing the growth and maturity of early varieties, northern gardeners must make allowance for the effect of the long summer days. Toward this end, plant breeders at Morden are conducting a breeding program at the Kenville Illustration Station to develop vegetable varieties adapted to gardens in the north.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Coarse-Roughage Is Ballast for a Cow

The old-time sailing ships frequently carried heavy and sometimes rather valueless freight in their holds, so as to plow the deep more steadily and to keep the ship on an even keel. It was called the ballast.

Some of the roughage that we may need to feed at the end of a long winter and before the advent of the pasture season, reminds one of ballast, without the redeeming feature that this served in sailing ships.

Dr. Bohstedt

In some parts of the country, hay of any sort, and especially good hay, is scarce as a result of a dry growing season last year.

In consequence almost any kind of roughage will need to be fed. Corn stalks, straw, coarse hay, ground corn cobs, anything within reason may help fill the voids in the digestive tracts of the cattle before the onset of a new pasture season.

Let us hope that this poor grade of roughage is not the only feed, but that some silage and certainly grain, as needed, may supplement any coarse roughage of this kind.

If the bulk of the roughage intake is of poor quality, a milking cow is up against a tough proposition. This is the reason: coarse roughage is pretty well lignified, meaning that the plant cells are thick and "plastered" with what has been compared to a kind of cement which is lignin. This lignin is practically indigestible and renders anything to which it is attached pretty much indigestible too.

In the process of rumen digestion, a fine quality leafy forage is broken down rather quickly by the millions of bacteria. It may require a day, more or less, after which a cud at a time is brought up to the mouth for rechewing or rumination, then to be reswallowed to go down the rest of the digestive tract.

But a coarse, lignified kind of roughage may stay in the rumen twice as long for digestion before the mechanism of regurgitation takes effect. Here in the paunch it occupies valuable space that should by rights be taken up by better and more digestible feed in order to have the cow produce milk as she should.

For this reason it is necessary to do our best to compensate by feeding more of a suitable grain mixture, higher in protein than usual, and also well fortified with certain minerals including those that are supplied by trace mineralized salt.

Question: Why is it that cows when fed chopped green alfalfa, as obtained from a meadow, do not bloat as they do when pasturing the alfalfa?

Answer: The reason appears to be that when fed in a chopped or even a long condition, such green alfalfa has to be eaten whole, tops, stems and all. Pasturing in a field of alfalfa, the cows eat mostly the more palatable tops, even though they are bloat-producing forage. California investigators were able to produce many cases of bloat in the barn or yard when they simulated pasture conditions by feeding just alfalfa tops.

Town Council negotiates on prices for new fire trucks

A motion accepting the $17,425 grant on the purchase of two new fire trucks and other necessary equipment, was passed at the regular session of the Lachute Town Council on Wednesday evening last — Council also extending a hearty vote of thanks to the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, who presented the Town's request to the Department of Public Works and the Hon. Romeo Lorrain.

The grant will be payable over a four-year period, and it was decided to ask permission of the Department of Municipal Affairs to float a temporary loan in order to effect the purchase of the equipment.

The meeting adjourned to the office of Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon, where the tenders for two truck chasses were opened. The tenders were as follows: Lacasse Automobile Ltée, $5,814.13; Pollock & Graves Motors, $5,965; and Deacon Motor Sales Ltd., $6,025.

It was moved by Ald. Gerard Lefebvre, seconded by Ald. Mozart Carriere, that the Town purchase a truck from each of the two lowest bidders, on the condition that King-Seagraves (Railway Power & Engineering) accept these trucks, for installation of pumping equipment, etc., on the same condition as their original tender received by Council during the term of Mayor Leopold Carrière. (On this tender King-Seagraves were also to supply the actual truck chasses.)

The representative of the fire equipment company was in Lachute on Tuesday and, at latest report last evening, there was still a matter of several hundred dollars' difference between his quotation and the local garages. In the event an agreement is reached, both vehicles will be purchased and work on equipping them will commence at once. On the other hand, if no agreement is reached, it is expected the matter will once again return to Council.

Break occurs in town water main

Residents are requested to co-operate with Lachute civic officials in using as little water as possible until further notice. . . .

The 14-inch water main, running along the riverbed, has developed a serious break and all of Lachute, St. Jersualem and Ayersville is presently being served by an 8-inch pipe.

The break is in the lowest section of the river and a diver from Montreal is expected sometime today to attempt to make repairs. It is possible, however, that a new pipe will have to be laid, and this will take considerable time.

While water pressure is not too low for ordinary consumption, it is at a dangerous state in the event of a major fire. Town foreman Jos. Senecal reports the valves on the broken pipe have been shut off and that no river water is now entering the municipal chlorination plant. The break is on the upper side of the plant, so no danger resulted from the leak.

BANDIT NABBED IN BANK HOLD-UP

Leaving the Lachute police headquarters after the questioning of Jacques Lyons, 19-year-old Lachute resident captured in last Friday morning's armed hold-up at the Provincial Bank West End branch, are Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, Cst. Jacques Robidoux, the prisoner and Sgt.-Det. Germain St. Jean. Sgt.-Det. Allen assumed charge of the case pending arrival of the provincial hold-up squad officers from Montreal.

Accomplice makes escape, car found at St. Jerome

Fast action by Town Police Constable Gilles Poirier foiled a $3,500 armed hold-up at the West End branch of the Provincial Bank, at 11.20 a.m. on Friday last, and resulted in capture of one of the two bandits. The second member of the duo, also believed to be a local man, was waiting with a car in front of the bank when the policeman arrived, and as soon as the officer left the police car to enter the bank, made good his getaway.

Teller Jean-Guy Proulx, 23, reports the would-be robber, later identified as Jacques Lyons, 19, entered the bank while he was alone and pointed the gun in his direction, demanding money. He immediately sounded the alarm by means of a foot-button, and started handing over the cash he had in his teller's drawer. At this time, Albert Campeau, neighboring hotel-keeper and former Montreal policeman, entered the bank and was ordered to raise his hands. This he refused to do, placing his hands on the counter.

Lyons was just about to leave the bank for the waiting car, with $3,500 in one, two, five and ten dollar bills stuffed in his shirt, when Cst. Poirier pulled up in front of the bank in answer to the alarm. Lyons immediately hid behind a corner in the bank premises, and despite an attempt on the part of Mr. Campeau to warn the policeman, Lyons got the drop on him, shoving the gun in the policeman's stomach. The teller then made a move for his gun, and as Lyons turned his eyes in the latter's direction, Cst. Poirier overpowered him, taking the gun away. This later proved to be a .22 calibre pellgun, the pellets of which are capable of penetrating a two-inch board.

Police Chief Fernand Trepanier was on the scene seconds behind Cst. Poirier, but he reports the getaway car had left by the time he arrived.

Lyons was wearing an old hat and sun glasses when captured, these being his only disguise. A native of this district, he had recently worked in several local establishments. He was officially charged with "armed robbery" Friday afternoon in Montreal, where he was taken by members of the Provincial Police hold-up squad.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen assumed charge of the affair from the municipal police, pending arrival of the hold-up squad.

Cst. Gilles Poirier receives the congratulations of Police Chief Fernand Trepanier some time after the hold-up which he foiled. On the table may be seen the gun and $3,500 in cash taken from the captured bandit. Town and Provincial Police are still on the look-out for a partner in the crime, whose car was found the following day in St. Jerome.

Top entertainment features for grandstand nights at Fair

The program is about completed for that aspect of Lachute Fair which promises increasing community interest — the grandstand entertainment.

Since the service clubs took hold of this venture last year, enabling them to assist the Agricultural Society while bolstering their own funds for local charity — more voluntary helpers, more brilliant ideas, and more public support have added sparkle to the Fair. At least, for those not primarily interested in livestock — or unkindly disposed to barkers and the hurdy-gurdies. . . .

For their Thursday night assignment, the Rotary Club have booked the midget wrestlers, miniature mat-idols of the televiewers.

As announced last-week, The Lions Club have booked "Le Grand Robert", renowned hypnotist, for the Friday night performance. This is a re-engagement, by popular request, of the remarkable entertainer who so convincingly demonstrated his craft before the grandstand last year. Hundreds were genuinely amazed, amused and mystified by his powers.

Saturday's entertainment is in charge of Legion Branch 70, and here again, a full quota of interest is assured. For the afternoon, highland dancing and a bagpipe contest have been arranged, and a horse drawing contest in the evening. This event drew keen spectator interest last year. It is also hoped to have the RCAF Band from Ottawa, to play at intervals during Saturday.

Two of the service clubs, Lions and Legion 70, will stage the climax of summer drawings in aid of funds — the Lions raffling their traditional automobile prize, and the Legion a television set and several consolation awards.

In addition to these attractions there will be horse shows before the grandstand on all three afternoons and during part of the evening.

Carnival Day, with gate admissions at 25c, is an innovation for the opening date, Wednesday, June 17.

Kenneth Riley, secretary-manager, reminds all prospective exhibitors that the closing date for livestock entries is May. 22.

Clubmen discuss projects local and international

Club and community affairs again occupied a full session of the Lions Club, chaired by President Phil Tremblay at the semi-monthly meeting held in the Legion Hall.

A welcome guest at this meeting was International Councillor Gordon Blight, of Simcoe, Ont., who was introduced by a contemporary and past-District Governor, Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald.

In his talk Mr. Blight spoke of Lionism and its growth in the 40 years of its existence, and reminded the gathering of a fact which many have forgotten, that Lachute is the second oldest club formed in Quebec Province. He saw much opportunity for the promotion of fellowship between the two provinces, through interchange of Lions Club interests.

Greater still than the code and principles of Lionism, is the "sense of fairness to those less fortunate", said Mr. Blight, who cited a stupendous undertaking by one 60-member club in India, which is supplying one glass of milk free per day to 5,000 school children.

Successful leadership today, he asserted calls for the "I can" spirit rather than the "It can't be done" defeatism. America, known as the "bread basket of the world", is faced with this challenge on a worldwide scale—never forgetting, however, that charity begins at home. . . . "Service is the rent we pay for the space we occupy on earth", he quoted in conclusion.

The visiting speaker was thanked by Lion Gordon Higginson, who also presented him with a handsome Ayers blanket as a fitting memento of Lachute.

Club Affairs

On behalf of the nominating committee, Ernest Snadden presented a proposed slate of officers for next year's administration of the club.

Subscription was approved for 10 student memberships in Community Concerts, also an account for glasses to a needy resident, through the C.N.I.B.

Col. Ernest Emmett reported on the successes won by Lachute's young speakers in the Lions' public speaking finals at Renfrew. Mr. Ernest Gow, present as a guest at this meeting, received congratulations on the performance of his son, Roland, in this event.

Lion Ossie Carriere gave a boost to the annual car raffle, for which tickets were circulated.

Tony Zaplaski spoke on the Bank of Light, a Lions International project through which discarded eyeglasses may be sent to India for impoverished people who need them.

Mozart Carriere led in a brief song session.

Uptrend seen in subscribers for 1959-60 'Concerts'

Although official Campaign Week for Community Concerts closed last Saturday night, the lists are being held open this week to admit late returns. On a survey of signed and prospective members last Saturday, however, indications pointed with some certainty to a slight increase over 1958, when a total of 418 members were enrolled.

The round-up at this date shows a slight uptrend in Lachute (around 300 members), good support from St. Eustache, and a marked revival of interest in Hawkesbury. Decreases are noted in St. Jerome subscribers, also in Brownsburg and St. Andrews.

Campaign Rally

A pleasant gathering at the Legion Hall last Wednesday marked the formal opening of the campaign, and afforded a social sidelight to the activities of the workers, of whom there were 40 in attendance — from Lachute, St. Andrews, Brownsburg, St. Eustache and St. Jerome.

Jacques Bédard, secretary, made a check-up of progress, which indicated a good response. With President Simon Valois in the chair, various members of the executive spoke briefly to thank the canvassers and inspire them to greater achievements in the final stages of the campaign. Mrs. A. Cameron of Drummondville, representative for Columbia Artists Corporation, was among the speakers.

Supper and music were enjoyed.

Building permits and routine affairs at Town Council

The regular monthly session of Council was held last Wednesday evening, presided over by Mayor Jas. McGibbon with the full membership in attendance. Following the regular meeting, a closed caucus was held in the Mayor's office on the matter of fire equipment — results of which appear elsewhere on this page.

Building permits were granted to Jas. McMahon, for the construction of a house on Gordon Ave., in the Riverview subdivision; Jean-Paul Trichard, for a house on Wilson Street; Rosario Lemay, of St. Andrews East, for a house on Grace Street; and Leon St.Jacques, for a house on Wilson Street — all under the jurisdiction of the Roads Committee. A request by Claude Mallette for a permit to build on Cedar Ave., in the Cruise subdivision, was held over for further study, there being no water main or sewers in that immediate area.

A petition from the residents of Francis Street, presented by Owen Stephens and requesting sidewalks and lights, was held over for study of the Roads Committee. The petition also requested that the road be extended to Burroughs Street.

Several complaints as to a lack of water pressure in various sections of town were also aired and immediate study of these matters was assured to the residents concerned.

A letter was received and read from the St. Patrick's Society of Lachute, expressing thanks for use of the Auditorium and for assistance given by the Police Department in the annual St. Patrick's Day parade.

Mr. J. A. M. Clairoux requested Council to consider the extension of Bellingham Street, money for which he claimed was voted 13 years ago and then spent elsewhere. The matter was taken under consideration.

A committee comprising Aldermen Stanley Holt, Lauréat Laurin and Mozart Carrière was appointed to study the new zoning and building by-laws now being prepared by the town's legal advisor, Fernand Legault, Q.C., and Paul Laliberté, engineer. A request by Firmin Chenier, to have repairs made to his fence which was damaged by snow-removal equipment, was duly approved.

Accounts for the month, totalling $16,135.96, were approved for payment.

It was decided that a sidewalk be constructed in front of the Bertrand apartment building on Brownsburg Road.

The Mayor and secretary-treasurer were authorized to sign various legal documents in the name of the town, and with the completion of other business of a minor nature, the session adjourned to the Mayor's office, where tenders were opened.

Ch. Commerce has practical plan for Main Street lighting

Members of the Lachute Chamber of Commerce, headed by President Adhémar Cuerrier, were in attendance at the regular session of Council, held Wednesday evening of last week, and offered Council the sum of $7,000 towards a new system of lighting which they proposed for Lachute's Main Street. This amount will cover a little more than half the proposed cost, and according to the president, will be made up of donations by an estimated 90 per cent of the Main Street merchants.

It was proposed that the new lighting system be installed down the centre of Main Street and be composed of 23 pillars made of reinforced cement. The lighting standards would be composed of two arms fitted with fluorescent lights, on each pillar. These would be spaced the length of Main Street from Muir's Service Station to Barron's Bridge. Estimates have been obtained by the Chamber and it is figured the lighting will cost in the vicinity of $12,000 — one thousand dollars of this being the cost of installation.

Mayor McGibbon and members of Council expressed interest in the proposal, and following due discussion, a committee of Mayor McGibbon and Aldermen Gerard Fefebvre, Stanley Church and Edgar Pollock was formed to meet with representatives of the companies concerned in the proposal, and with the Chamber of Commerce committee consisting of President A. Cuerrier, Gaetan Leclair (chairman), Donat Saulnier, Roger Lamarche and Gerald Walker.

It is expected that a special session of Council will be called next week, and the committee is to have a report ready by that time.

Amateur thief gives himself up to Kingston police

Gilbert Bradford, an 18-year-old Lachute youth, gave himself up to Kingston police early Sunday morning, confessing to the theft of $147.42 from Lachute Auto Parts, where he has been employed for the past three months.

The robbery occurred late Friday evening when the youth returned home from a trip to Montreal with Mrs. Miville Trickey, wife of the proprietor. He left Mrs. Trickey at her home and returned the company vehicle to the business premises; here he gained entry to the building by means of a window, and, opening three unlocked drawers in various parts of the building, made off with the cash.

Police were notified of the theft Saturday morning, and when the employee failed to show up for work, they started to search for him. He is believed to have gone by taxi to Montreal, where he spent the night, and on Saturday left for Kingston. When he turned himself in to the city police there, he had only one cent in his possession.

He was brought to Lachute by Police Chief Fernand Trepanier and turned over to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who laid the charge of theft.

Lay theft charge

Julien Guindon, 31, of Grenville, was arrested by municipal police and turned over to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who laid a charge of theft of car parts.

The arrest was made Sunday morning following a complaint from a local hotel.

A Service Club Sidelight

'Mother of the Year' pays gratitude to Easter Seals

An unusual incident occurred at the Lions Club meeting last week — when a lady visitor was hailed by the enthusiastic attendance of 40-odd members.

Introduced by President Phil Tremblay as Lachute's "mother of the year" (thus honored at the club's Ladies Night in 1958) the visitor was Mrs. Lionel Rozon — who came, not as an emissary from some kindred cause or organization, but simply, and humbly, to express her gratitude to the Lions Club.

Mrs. Rozon is an eloquent example of good work made possible by Easter Seals, a fund promoted in this district by the Lions. Her story is not unknown to the general public. It is a long story of illness and disappointment, crowned by indomitable courage. A leg amputation and many years in a wheelchair — but she persevered in spirit and physique to surmount unbelievable handicaps.

Mrs. Rozon, the mother of five children (and, incidentally, widow of a Lions Club charter member) was fitted last February with an artificial limb, made possible by the Lions Club Easter Seals. The manipulation of this limb presented another stern challenge, to which the little lady applied herself with the same determination — taking halting steps in her home, holding onto furniture, and with the use of crutches and helping hands. . . .

It was in this manner that she visited her benefactors at the Lions Club, walked unaided for a few steps, and apologized for her slow progress; but she hopes to dispense with crutches entirely, as she becomes more proficient with this strange orthopedic device. It was evident that there was sincere gratitude in her heart . . . and, less obvious, a misty blur in the eyes of a few prosiac business men, as they saluted their visitor with a rousing "She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

Glamor, ceremony, sentiment, at High School graduation

Another colorful function to highlight the school year was enjoyed by senior pupils and a large attendance of parents and friends, last Friday on the occasion of the Graduation Dance at Lachute High School.

The school assembly hall was beautifuly decorated for this affair; and with the auditorium in semi-darkness, the feminine graduates and male members of the '59 class made a glamorous group on the brilliantly lighted stage.

Proceedings started sharp after the traditional rite of photographing the class and teaching staff.

Roland Gow was the proficient m.c., welcoming the audience and introducing the speakers. Brief talks were given by the school commission chairman, Mr. J. W. McGibbon, and the school principal, Mr. Fred Royal. Thereafter the graduates were narrators and spokesmen, to the conclusion of the ceremonies.

The "Class History" was presented jointly by Betty Rowe and Bryan Noble; the "Last Will and Testament" by Joan Girling and Ian Duncan; and the "Valedictory" by Lois Silverson, winner of many awards in student public speaking.

Speakers

Mr. Jas. W. McGibbon, in congratulating the young graduates, remarked that, after 11 years under guidance and instruction at school, they had acquired character sufficient to direct them in the future. Any advice from a platform speaker on this occasion, he felt, would have little or no effect . . . he therefore directed his remarks to other channels. He saw Lachute no longer on the sidelines of national progress, but in close proximity to one of the world's largest undertakings (the Seaway), and on the doorstep of an immense power project (Carillon); in step with these developments, Lachute, its educational and cultural facilities, were definitely on the advance.

Introduced by Roland Gow as "the man who had been a friend and guiding light to every pupil in the past twelve years", Principal Fred Royal observed that today's process of selection for business and professional leaders requires more and more education. Unemployment periods had hit the non-professional worker — whereas, in most of the professions there is a serious lack of trained personnel. The trend is an increasing demand for specialized education, and for this reason the completion of high school standards becomes more and more imperative.

Colorful Scene

On conclusion of the graduation exercises dancing was enjoyed to the music of Gordon Anderson's Orchestra. The Grand March by the graduates, their partners and escorts, made a colorful spectacle to launch this lighter diversion of the evening.

Girls of the senior grades served refreshments in the school cafeteria, where new motifs in decorating struck another interesting note.

Graduates

Graduates of the High School class of '59 are as follows:

Omah Alderson, Helen Black, Eileen Bryson, Leola Cays, Claire Cruise, Helen Derouin, Gail Dwyer, Joan Girling, Florence MacAdam.

Katharine McGibbon, Hilda Meyer, Carol Parker, Beverley Rice, Betty Rowe, Connie Rowe, Lois Silverson, Vivien Strong.

Ronald Boyd, Bruce Cairns, George Cowan, Fred Dorion, Ian Duncan, Roland Gow, Gordon Higginson, Frank Karch, Roger Labreche, Serge Labreche.

Turtles, muskrats cause island traffic problem

Main Duck Island,
South Bay, Picton, Ont.

May 3rd —

In the last couple of days, the weather has been warm and not too windy. As a result of this, the snakes are getting down to business, and turtles of all kinds are showing up in the queerest places. We were out for a ride around the Island this afternoon and stopped twice to pick small Turtles off the road and put them into a safe place. These were not the snapping variety, of course. A couple of Muskrats were chased out of the puddles too, along with some Ducks that were gaily swimming in the big ruts. Man, the traffic problems we have to put up with!

A few Deer were also seen. Strange, but they all seem to be very wild. Considering what they were like this time last year, and the way they were when I left, it's very hard to understand. All the ones we have seen have been Whitetails; not one Mule Deer. Also, it has been a long time since any were on the Island, that is, judging by the trees. The Muly will stand on his hind feet to reach up into a tree for feed, and from the condition of the trees, it has been a long time since anything like this happened.

The rare shopping trip is due for this week; we are getting short on supplies. The fisherman should be in some time this week. The wife is making out the list. . . . Too bad we have to eat like that!

So far we have seen more traffic on Lake Ontario than we saw in the whole of the shipping season last year. It sure is a sight to see at times. Last night it seemed there was a steady stream of boats going and coming; everywhere you looked, there were the lights of a boat. I don't know if it is common practice for these ocean-going ships to be lighted up the way they are. Maybe it's because they are getting into a new waterway and want to pass on their greetings. During the day you can see all nationalities and colors. Many are white, mostly Norwegian; grey, green, red, blue-and-red. They are a pretty sight.

Some more Geese came around; these landed out in the bar about half a mile distant. They sure could be heard, but not too well seen. They have all gone on their way.

The Voles I've been telling you about, are disappearing fast. Where they are going is anyone's guess. This is really queer. Maybe there is a lesson there, but I'm too dumb to see it.

One of my domestic assignments is to type Edith's diary. Even to what we have for meals, and what we have left, etc. This is going to be a diary to end all diaries! You know, helpful hints to the housewife on how to cook Muskrats, etc. Even I wouldn't have the nerve to tell anyone that — even though we like them. We should try the snakes sometime; could save money on the menu, for sure. Eat one of THEM, and don't eat anything any more! No diet for the D.T.s!

May 4th —

This is the kind of day when you can really sunbathe. I tried it while doing a creosote job on the cabin — with very drastic results. I itch and burn from the irritation of the creosote. Outside of that though, everything was peaches and cream, without the peaches, of the cream.

A few more Geese are landing for a rest — not many, but enough to make a shooter smile at the prospects for next fall.

The Ducks are really having a time. Last year a lot of the small ponds dried up later on in the season. Unless we have a very hot summer there isn't much prospect of that happening this year. The marshes and pot-holes are flooded deep and the birds are enjoying them.

There were a couple of small launches around the Island today, just out to see the lake. It is good to see them; after all, we do get kind of lonesome for something beside fishermen and steamers. I guess they were out to see the layout for fishing when the season opens. There isn't much change as far as I can see, but these guides know a lot better than I do. One good thing about the Seaway, the lake is now considerably deeper. In our cove it's quite noticeable, and much easier to get in and out with a boat.

May 5th —

Big doings today. The plane landed out in the bay about 10 a.m. and stayed until after 6 p.m. They brought in a portable radio receiver, so that I can be picked up anywhere on the Island. That is a good thing. Mr. D., I was informed, can be expected at the end of the month. It will be good to see him. There was another gent who took photos and aerial pictures to make a scale model of the Island. . . . Everything is back to normal now, and all that remains is to wait for the message of the proprietor's arrival.

Col. Benson, the pilot, told me of scaring up a raft of Geese out in the lake and all aboard agreed that there must have been at least 1,000. You know, if they keep going through here the way they are, they will have to file flight plans with the other Geese. After all, they only have so much room to land and feed.

Possibly the reason for this overcrowding is that last year the water was so low they couldn't get right into the land to feed, unless they landed right on the beach. Now they can land out in the lake; look things over, and then come in. It's a wonderful sight to see them just moving into a feeding place.

A rather funny thing with the party visiting. In walking around, a small snake was spotted, about 3 feet long. And I thought one of the bunch was going to take off without the plane! . . . They are really nothing to laugh at, but it's the getting used to them that bothers you.

Exciting climax in women's bowling championship

By Mrs. Ghislaine Brunette

Last Saturday night, Eileen Morrison and Juliette Guay met in the finals of the women's bowling tournament and Miss Morrison won the championship with 453 (135, 177, 141) against 408 (135, 131, 142).

The game was most interesting. In the first encounter, both had 135. In the second, Eileen was ahead with 177 against 131; then in the third game Juliette came back and finished the game with 142 against 141 — Eileen still being ahead by 45 pins.

Congratulations go to Eileen for winning this championship. She maintained an average of 157.7 for 15 games during the tournament; also she can claim the three highest triples played, 526, 505 and 478.

Congratulations also to Juliette, who maintained an average of 138.15 for 18 games during the tournament, and who played a triple of over 400 in each round.

The tournament is now concluded until next year, when Miss Morrison will defend her championship against lady bowlers who are continually improving their skill.

Good records in college sports

Special to Lachute Watchman

Potsdam, N.Y. — Mel Tomalty, of Brownsburg, and Bob Campbell, of Lachute, were awarded varsity letters at Clarkson College of Technology for participating in hockey this past winter.

Tomalty played centre on the No. 1 line and was the team's top scorer with 48 points on 24 goals and 24 assists. Campbell played right wing on the third line and finished with five goals and five assists for 10 points.

Both boys are playing on the Clarkson lacrosse club this spring. Campbell is the starting goalie, and Tomalty is a starter as a midfielder.

SAVING SPACE

Winnipeg — (CP) — City records dating back to incorporation in 1873 will be put on microfilm this year to save space.

Church Bowling season ends

The annual banquet and final game of Lachute United Church Bowling League was held recently in the church hall. The turkey dinner, now an annual affair with the league, was a tremendous success, and the festivities under the direction of the president, Mrs. Wilson Bridge, proceeded smoothly.

The finalists were East Settlement foursome, skipped by Les Gordon, playing against St. Pats (Miss Gladys Davis). The game was quite close, and the championship team was the St. Pats, who were presented with the first prize; the members of East Settlement were given runner-up awards. Prizes were also presented to Miss Margaret Gordon's team, The Beavers, who won the League leadership in the regular season's playing.

Reclaim Inter-Church Cup

The final games of the inter-church bowling season were also played recently, with contests between St. Simeon's, Margaret Roger Memorial Presbyterian, and the United churches. By a very close margin, the United Church team won the silver cup.

Motorcycle races at Rigaud Park

On Sunday, May 17, at 2 p.m., the official opening of the racing season will take place at Rigaud Park — the first events of the season in Quebec. Judging by the enquiries to date, there will be a record opening. Most riders have been idle all winter, and with this fine weather, they are "raring to go".

Competitors come from all parts of Canada and the U.S.A. These races are sanctioned by the C.M.A. and sponsored by the V.M.R.C.

Rigaud Park is situated on Highway 17—an ideal spot to spend an enjoyable afternoon.

Fish and Game (place of meeting)

The meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association announced last week for May 21 at the Legion Hall in Brownsburg, will be held instead at the Hadley Hotel (Flamingo Grill). Members and friends please note. Time, 8.15 p.m.

Don't lag on the highway

EXCEPT FOR the relative few who go highway-cruising for a winter holiday, there has been little fun in driving through the zero season. . . . Spring, however, brings back a modicum of pleasure to the job of "going places" — and it is well to think upon such habits as may spoil that pleasure, for oneself and others too.

Motorists, remember, these Sunday afternoons — if you do not keep going at a reasonable rate of speed, in tempo with other traffic, you may be responsible for an accident. By lagging behind, you oblige other motorists to by-pass you; and this can be a dangerous practice. So for your own good and that of others, follow the traffic rhythm. Common sense will tell you the right speed to drive at.

Play and tragedy — a warning

THERE ARE SOME three-and-a-half million ice boxes and refrigerators in use in Canada today, with about one hundred thousand old units being discarded each year — refrigerators that are often left lying in summer camps, back yards, porches, basements and garages.

Canadian manufacturers of refrigerators are advancing this year's campaign to guard against possibilities of children becoming trapped in discarded ice boxes and refrigerators. Last year the campaign was just being launched when two young boys suffocated in an abandoned refrigerator. Therefore, steps are being taken this year to draw early attention to the hazards of abandoning air-tight cabinets without removing their doors.

Servicemen and purchasers of new refrigerators are urged to remove doors, lids and latches from old cabinets before discarding them.

This annual warning is the result of a number of deaths of small children suffocated by being locked in airtight containers casually discarded.

A few tips are given on how these cabinets can be made harmless:

1. Remove the door. Even with the latch removed, many freezer cabinets of the chest type have lids too heavy for a trapped child to lift.

2. Remove latch stops so the door can't lock. This you can do, usually, by removing four screws.

3. Drill holes in the cabinet and remove the rubber gasket around the door.

While there have been comparatively few deaths from this cause, we must nevertheless be on guard against the danger involved.

Candid report on Quebec Province

WARM APPROVAL for the May 9th issue of Maclean's Magazine, devoted entirely to Quebec Province, is expressed in our contemporary, The Glengarry News, across the Ottawa River in Ontario. This issue, says the News, "rates kudos and we trust it will be widely read. . . .

"The outlook of French-Canadians is dealt with by Bruce Hutchinson in an authoritative and understanding manner and we doubt much fault will be found with his report on Quebec by even the most dedicated nationalist. Novelist Hugh MacLennan tells the story of the St. Lawrence River and Canada's development along the inland waterway. Included are a visit to the home of Rocket Richard, thumbnail sketches of Premier Duplessis and other French-Canadian personalities, short stories by Quebec authors.

"No punches are pulled, either, in the attitude of Canadians of other racial origins to the people of Quebec province. A newspaperman takes to task Montreal's two big English-speaking dailies for what he considers their lack of reportorial honesty. The church and its place in politics is also treated, very sympathetically, we thought.

"This is informative reading and we commend Maclean's for dealing with a subject, national unity, which too many publications completely ignore. As editor Ralph Allen points out in his editorial, 'We Canadians need more knowledge of each other as we really are, here and now. . . . This knowledge will confront both of us (English and French-speaking), with some facts we find distasteful, others we may find astonishing, but at least it will give us a foundation on which to build a better understanding'.

"Maclean's has shown steady improvment in recent years in its aim to be Canada's national magazine. The current issue is tops, and we trust it is widely read and digested by English-speaking Canadians who may thus gain a better understanding of French Canada, a most important segment of our society."

College graduates and employment

COLLEGE STUDENTS seeking employment upon graduation in 1959 are learning the hard way that jobs just don't grow on trees — observes the Fort Erie "Letter Review". Although campus recruiting by business and industry is brisk, the recession appears to have convinced not a few college students that they've got to show prospective employers what they have to offer. In campus interviews students themselves are doing the selling. There's far less emphasis on job security, on pensions and other benefits, and much more interest in the job itself.

Oldsters who went to college during the thirties knew that it was up to them to show that they had something to offer to the business or industry in which they sought employment. Nobody entertained the notion in those days, as has been the case during the post-war boom, that a college diploma immediately qualified the holder for a vice-presidency or something of the sort. The job itself was the thing, and most young people leaving college worked hard to get a job, and worked harder still to hold it.

Nobody likes a recession. Chances are, however, that it has served to bring home to college graduates a deeper sense of economic realism than they would otherwise have.

Audience at any price!

IN THE CURRENT issue of Health Magazine, an editorial by Dr. Gordon Bates reads, in part, as follows:

"The term yellow journalism, as applied to newspapers of a decade or so ago, referred to a tendency of some newspapers, in an effort to attract subscribers, to give excessive publicity to crime, divorce cases, and news which was of little value to the advancement of the community. The term 'yellow' was used as an expression to criticize journalistic methods which were not only bizarre and sensational, but unethical. Anything to get an extra dollar.

"One wonders whether a similar term might not be used in connection with some television programs. Guns and daggers might be considered of some value in war, but they are not in common use in the drawing room. Triangles and divorces may exist in life, but it is a question whether their exploitation on television programs is elevating for the youthful mind. There is such a thing as a gangster, but depicted daily on television programs he may become a hero in the eyes of juvenile television fans.

"Imitation is a natural human characteristic, and there have been numerous examples of youthful hangings, stabbings, gun fights, and other deviations from the normal conduct of youth, which may well be imitations of television programs.

"One wonders who is responsible for this choice . . . which suggests there may be yellow journalism in television as well as in newspapers. It would seem that there are some people in the centre of things in the television field who are not too impressed by the difference between right and wrong, but rather with the desire to bring in the dollars, whoever may be hurt in the process."

The foregoing article gives food for thought. . . . And our impression is that, lulled by a variety of entertainment which some of us may personally enjoy, we have come to accept the television thrillers as wholesome everyday fare for our children. In our hearts, to the contrary, we know it is time-consuming, negative and non-constructive. If we are honest, in fact, we will admit that to the more impressionable young minds it is both harmful and destructive.

When was Uranium first found in Canada?

More than one hundred years ago — in 1847. An occurrence of uranium on the shore of Lake Superior was reported in that year but the location of this ore deposit was described so vaguely that it was not until a few years ago that uranium was rediscovered in the area. Several finds of this element in other parts of the country were made in the early 20th century but the most important pre-war discovery was that made in 1930 by two prospectors of Eldorado Gold Mines Limited on the east shore of Great Bear Lake in the Northwest Territories. This discovery was brought into production in 1933 and a refinery was established at Port Hope, Ont., to treat the ore. The company's first interest was mainly in radium but, after the discovery of fission, it also supplied significant quantities of uranium for wartime atomic-energy developments. During the war, control of this company was acquired by the Canadian Government as a security measure and a Crown company, Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, was set up to take over the operation.

What was the first Anglo-Jewish weekly in Canada?

The Jewish Times, founded in 1897 in Montreal by S. W. Jacobs and Lyon Cohen. Cohen, who was born in Poland in 1868 and came to Canada as a child, became in 1919 the first president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, helping to bring together various communal factions to found the organization. He died in 1937.

Who was America's first Rhodes Scholar?

Chester B. Martin, eminent Canadian historian, who died in Toronto last year. Martin, who was born in Nova Scotia in 1882, was educated at the University of New Brunswick and in 1904 won the first Rhodes scholarship awarded in America. At Oxford he won additional scholarships and received his M.A. in 1907. He organized the department of history at the University of Manitoba in 1909 and remained there until transferring to the University of Toronto in 1929. At the latter institution he was professor and head of the department of history until retirement in 1952.

What Provincial Legislature lacked an Opposition?

In the summer of 1935 Walter Maxfield Lea and his Liberal followers were elected to power in Prince Edward Island with an unprecedented majority, not one opposition candidate having been elected. Unfortunately, Mr. Lea died the following January. He had been premier of the province in 1930-31 and was leader of the Liberal opposition from 1931 to 1935. A breeder of Holstein cattle and Percheron horses, he spent all his life on the farm and was known as the Farmer Premier.

WOODLAND IN THE SPRING

With the bees among the flowers, and the fleas among the bowers, there's nothing like a woodland in the Spring! When there's people of all classes looking through high-powered glasses to observe the different birds upon the wing. Every morn, when day is breaking and all Nature is awaking — that's the time to start observing Nature's ways, when the forest paths inviting lead on to scenes exciting in the realm of warblers, flickers, wrens and jays. Just see those birds a-nesting — ever working, never resting. To observe them is a never-ending joy. It's a pastime most entrancing to be cautiously advancing — if you're middle-aged you'll feel just like a boy. I'd rather be Tom Sawyer than a banker or a lawyer when the brook-trout start a-bitin' in the creek. With old clothes and bamboo pole near some silent fishin' hole, or better still, to camp there for a week! Take those bloated millionaires who are loaded down with cares. They simply wouldn't know what real life means. I'd rather be just me with a fishin' pole and free, with a sandwich and a tin of pork and beans. Squirrels, chipmunks, birds and flowers — I could live with them for hours — of life I wouldn't ask another thing, than just to be akin to young Huckleberry Finn, for there's nothing like a woodland in the Spring!

Be seein 'ya!

— By Ambrose Hills —

FARM CAUSE STRENGTHENED

I've just been looking at the front page of the Free Press Prairie Farmer and it gives a very gloomy impression of the outcome of the recent march to Ottawa. But is there really cause for so much gloom?

In my opinion, the time is now ripe for some real gains to be made by the agricultural community. Farmers, by their conduct on the trip and while in Ottawa, and by their personal contacts, made a wonderful impression. If their proposals had been as sound and sensible as their conduct, there is very little doubt but what they would have made some direct gains.

Governments — good ones — cannot be hi-jacked into unsound schemes. Mr. St. Laurent had the courage, when he was Prime Minister, to turn down the South Saskatchewan Dam project on the very eve of an election, until the project could be proven to be economically feasible. Now Mr. Diefenbaker, with equal courage, has insisted that certain questions be clarified before the government can say "yes" to prairie farmer demands. Surely plans should be devised that would meet with more general support than those brought forward so far by the farm leaders.

One requirement of any new schemes formulated would be that taxpayers are not asked to encourage farmers to produce grain which is then held for prices which can't be had. Perhaps farmers should quit trying to solve all their problems with one tool — and unrealistic price for their grain. Such a policy merely means huge surpluses and endless handling costs. It is an expensive way to solve a social problem.

There is another thing that individual farmers should watch most carefully when schemes are being devised for presentation to governments. That is, that the formulators of the schemes are really working for the benefit of the farmers, and not for some political purpose of their own, crusaders for causes which are not necessarily farm causes. They should not be allowed to mix their crusades. If their desire is to embarrass one government in the interest of some other party, they are not likely to come up with anything acceptable for general support. After all, the farm interest is to gain more of the national income — not to enhance some political or social theory!

Farmers have two problems; one, to sell their produce at the best possible price; two, to improve the standard of living of the farm community. It is not possible to solve both problems with the stroke of a pen — even an Ottawa pen! The farm cause is strengthened the moment that fact is faced.

MORE THAN 60 YEARS OF PERSONAL SERVICE

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Usually I am not a joiner of clubs, but I plan to apply for membership in the SEPPWLRTEP.

This organization, to list its full name, is the Society for the Encouragement and Preservation of People Who Like to Ride on Trains — Especially Pullmans.

Founder and chairman of the board is Paul Allingham, publisher of the Atchison, Kansas, Globe.

Atchison is an appropriate town, for the headquarters of the SEPPWLRTEP. It's the birthplace of the the famous Santa Fe Railroad.

"We . . . have no dues, and hold meetings by chance on trains," the head man of the SEPPWLRTEP was quoted recently as saying "We're in favor of saving passenger trains and small town newspapers."

Many people today are hypnotized by size and speed. Both these modern gods are frauds. They are mirages.

Large size does have advantages. Big towns, big companies, can produce and live more cheaply. But with large size often goes a dreary standardization, a sluggishness of procedure, a heavy weight of numbers that pinches and deadens perception and blurs taste.

If a big firm has fought its way to a position of monopoly, having crushed all rivals of any consequence, its muscles turn to fat. Slowed by its very size, softened by having the field to itself, such a concern leans arrogantly on the consumers, who must buy its services because they have nowhere else to go.

Mere bigness, without clever and enlightened management, is a curse. Yet the people of this continent worship bigness as a god.

Speed is another hallucination. Numerous people of North America skitter from conference to sales meeting to public speech, always hastening to be on time so that they can scurry off to another date.

They go so many places so fast that they never think anything through or complete any task in a proper way. They are human insects, bustling across the surface of events, never penetrating in depth.

Many people fly from one place to another, only to waste their time watching the same dreary television programs, exchanging the same sterile gossip or drinking the same thin whiskey as they did in their last stopping-place.

How much better to leave in a leisurely fashion, to think and relax and perhaps to work, on the way, to savor the country through which you are passing, and to be nearly certain of arriving regardless of weather.

Quite often, in period of fog and storm, the hasty traveller is still mooning around the airport waiting for the weather to clear, while the "leisurely" train traveller is arriving at his destination.

Train travel, as well as being more restful and providing a better view of the country, is sometimes faster as well. I will be sending my application for membership in the SEPPWLRTEP any day now to Mr. Allingham in Atchison, Kansas.

Aged resident of Calumet district

Late Mrs. Mary Laughren

The death occurred on April 30, of Mrs. Mary Laughren in her 89th year.

The late Mrs. Laughren was born at Calumet on July 9, 1869. Her husband, Thomas Laughren, and two daughters, Rhoda and Viola, predeceased her in 1942, 1949 and 1956 respectively.

Although blind for some years and in failing health for the past year, she remained interested in all events, up to the time of her death.

Former citizen tells grim story in magazine

The nightmare story of Victor DesGroseilliers, a former manager of the A & P store here in Lachute, whose family was bound and held at gunpoint in their Cornwall home one night in 1955, appears in the May 23 issue of Maclean's Magazine.

Mr. DesGroseilliers, manager of the Cornwall Dominion Store at the time, was taken from his home to the store at gunpoint, and forced to open the safe for the four bandits, where they stole more than $17,000.

The attention of friends of this former Lachute family is directed to the article, written by Mr. DesGroseilliers himself. The story gives first-hand information on the incident, which is believed to have speeded the death of Mrs. DesGroseilliers who passed away last year.

Auto industry v.p. visits dealership

The recently appointed Jaguar agents here, Welden Motors Ltd., were visited last Friday by Kirby C. Boyd of Montreal, chief of Jaguar of Eastern Canada, who was accompanied by the U.S. vice-president of Jaguar Cars Inc., C. Gordon Bennett, of New York. The two company executives are making a personal inspection of agencies handling these cars in Quebec and Ontario.

Mr. K. C. Boyd, an Australian, now Canadian by citizenship and outlook, discussed the prospects for English trade in the automotive field. Indicative of the trend perhaps was an increase of 41% in Jaguar sales for 1958 over the previous year, and a continuing increase this year to date. . . .

Of particular interest to The Watchman spokesman was an excellent impression these gentlemen received of this territory, and of their dealer's facilities. They found the premises, layout and display at Welden Motors completely to their satisfaction.

Judge dismisses contestation of village election

A contestation of election taken by four councillors of the Village of Carillon against the mayor, Adélard Castonguay, was dismissed by Judge Camille L. De Martigny on May 4. The suit was heard at St. Jerome on April 17 last.

Testimony showed that one of the plaintiffs was actually one of the signatories for the present mayor as candidate. It appeared also that the deposit required by law to institute the said action was furnished by the candidate.

The contestation of election was based mainly on two items: (1) that illegal votes had been cast; and (2) that essential formalities of the election had been omitted.

The Judge found there was no proof to establish that illegal votes had been recorded.

As to the omission of formalities, the Judge declared that, according to Article 14 of the Municipal Code, no real injustice had been proven and established, and consequently there was no reason to maintain the action.

The suit was therefore dismissed, with costs against the plaintiffs — and Mr. Castonguay, elected mayor of Carillon by one vote, remains lawful holder of that office.

Fernand Legault, Q.C., represented Mr. Castonguay in this case.

Telephone topic by local manager at Rotary Club

"Communications at your service" was the topic of an address to the local Rotary Club by Lachute Lions Club member Dick Pearson, manager of the local office of the Bell Telephone, at last Thursday's weekly dinner meeting.

Mr. Pearson pointed out various means of communication, from the primitive smoke signal and tom-tom to the most modern, that of the telephone. "Canadians make well over 21 million calls daily in fact, we talk more over the telephone than any other people in the world." He went on to point out the various improvements since the invention of the telephone, adding a few that residents of this area will see in the future, that of Direct Distance Dialing, where, by simply dialing the correct 13 digits, subscribers will be able to call direct o most parts of Canada and the United States; and the picture-phone, which, when switched on, will allow the persons talking to see one another.

Mr. Pearson pointed out the important part that communications of all kinds and the telephone in particular, play in our everyday lives, and closed with an up-to-date accounting of the Bell Telephone Company's progress in this field.

The speaker was introduced by fellow Bell employee Rotarian Bill Poley, and thanked by Rotarian Bob Glies, Jr.

FAMILIES ON THE MOVE IN CANADA

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Have you and your family ever gone through the physical and emotional upheaval of moving? It can be grim! Home sickness has afflicted individuals in every age. Perhaps you know this cry in the Psalms from the heart of a captive Jew: "By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yes, we wept. . . . We hanged our harps upon the willows. . . . How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?"

Did you ever think of the vast number of families on the move in our country? Tens of thousands of families from lands across the sea have come here in the last decade. "Canada 1958", the official Handbook of present conditions and recent progress, which is an excellent book for both "new" and "old" Canadians, points out that in a recent year 59% of the immigrants had other than British origin. The Hungarian refugees numbered 33,000, the Germans 29,000, the Italian 18,000 the Netherlands 13,000. The remainder were of forty different nationalities, including 8,000 from Denmark and 6,000 from France.

Thousands of native-born Canadians have also moved from one locality to another, often from one province to another when fathers have found new jobs. Everyone realizes the shift of population from the rural to urban districts. Over six million Canadians now live in the fifteen metropolitan areas. Those who have moved there from the country may miss the friendliness of a smaller community.

Figures may seem cold and impersonal, but who has not come into close contact with a family from overseas? Who has not a relative or friend who has come into the city in search of a job?

When the family moves, naturally, the father is fully occupied getting used to his new occupation. It takes time to learn new techniques, to become acquainted with a different working situation, with a strange boss and unknown fellow workers.

Mother has frequently found the task of packing up and moving the family a bit exhausting and without any lull in special tasks, she is often overwhelmed with all the demands on her of a family settling in a new community, such as finding new places to shop. There is no let up in the job of unpacking and getting things in order and at the same time keeping up with the housekeeping.

Some children settle down quickly to a new environment. Others can feel very unhappy and lost. It is particularly hard for adolescents to part with their old friends and make their way among strangers.

The contrasting school standards for different grades in different provinces makes adjustment for school age children in many cases very painful. Parents should encourage their children to be kind to the new scholar.

The painfulness of this uncomfortable time may be lessened. Being hospitable to newcomers, especially to a child, is one of the best ways to make a whole family's moving happier.

When a family moves, anything other Canadians can do to be neighborly is all to the good. Newcomers can be very lonely. Kindness is understood by people of any race, whether or not they speak our language! A visit of one homemaker to another, the gift of a little baking, help with shopping, baby-sitting or transportation, a cordial invitation to church and community functions, any of these can soon make the new house seem like home!

TOMMOROW'S 45-MINUTE DINNER

Mushroom Soup or Tossed Salad
Baked Pork Chops Sesame
Sweet Potatoes
Apple Slices Saute
New Cabbage
Deep-Dish Tutti-Frutti Pie
Coffee Tea Milk

To save time in preparing this dinner, use canned mushroom soup and prepared salad greens. Open a jar of vacuum-packed sweet potatoes or use pre-cooked potatoes. Use canned fruit cocktail or fruit compote for the deep-dish pie filling. Make the pie crust with pastry mix.

Measurements are level

Baked Pork Chops with Sweet Potatoes: Trim excess fat from 6 good-sized pork chops. Rub chops with ½ tsp. each powdered sage or oregano, 1 tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper. Brush with vegetable oil; cover with 1/3 c. each fine dry bread crumbs and seasame seeds, mixed.

Place in well-oiled pan. Surround with halved cooked or canned Jersey sweet potatoes. Cover with foil.

Bake 25 min. in mod. oven, 350 degrees F. Turn; bake uncovered 20 min., or until well-browned.

Note: Presure-cooking will save 20 min. time.

Apple Slices Saute: Core, peel and slice 3 tart apples into rings ½" thick.

Spread with 1 tbsp. sugar and ½ tbsp. butter or margarine creamed together.

Place in buttered pan. Add ⅛" hot water. Bake 20 min. in mod. oven, 350 degrees F.

Trick of the Chef

Make a sauce for new cabbage by mixing 2 tbsp. melted butter or margarine, 1 tbsp. sweet pickle vinegar and ⅛ tsp. horseradish.

Canned ham ready to serve

(Consumer Section)

Convenient, thoroughly cooked canned ham is one of the many time-saving pork products finding favor with Canadian homemakers. This meat can be used in all of the ways other hams are used and in most cases may be kept on the kitchen shelf for emergency use without fear of spoilage (canned hams marked "Keep Under Refrigeration" should, of course, be stored in the refrigerator).

Because the bones have been removed and fat trimmed from the meat before processing there is no waste in canned hams. In some cases gelatine has been added to the liquid surrounding the meat. When the can is chilled before serving, as suggested on the label, the jellied mixture may then be sliced right along with the meat. If the canned ham is to be served hot, the liquid (or jelly) will give good flavor to the sauce to be served with it, for example, tomato, orange sauce, raisin sauce, etc.

Quick Hot Meals using Canned Ham

Canned ham is probably served cold more frequently than hot. However these suggestions are given for the homemaker who prefers to serve a hot meal —

(1) Broil ½-inch slices of ham with slices of leftover boiled potatoes or patties made from leftover mashed potatoes and halves of hot house tomatoes brushed with butter and sprinkled with crumbs. Serve with canned corn, heated.

(2) Pour maple syrup over ½-inch slices of ham to glaze in the oven, at the same time heating frozen French fried potatoes. Make a cream sauce using a combination of milk and part of the liquid from canned peas; add the drained peas and reheat. Serve ham, potatoes and peas with sliced hot house cucumbers.

(3) Heat sliced ham in one frying pan and panfry thinly sliced raw potatoes and also sliced green onions with butter in another. Serve with quick cooking frozen green beans and a spring salad, for example, lettuce or young spinach and radishes, celery and asparagus, tossed together lightly with French or Italian dressing.

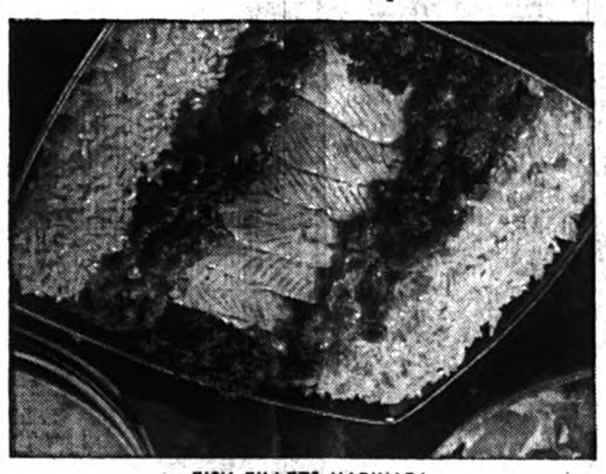

(4) Use diced canned ham in place of hamburg to make a quick supper chili. Brown sliced onion as usual, add the meat, salt, pepper, tomato juice and canned kidney beans. Cover and simmer slowly, about 30 minutes to blend flavours. Serve with coleslaw or lettuce and salad dressing.

(5) Add chopped or ground ham to omelet or scrambled egg mixture and cook. At the same time, cook tender green asparagus and open a can of tomatoes to be served either hot or cold in a side dish.

A marine masterpiece

FISH FILLETS MARINARA

The men of the countless tiny villages marking the Mediterranean coastline take their living from the sea as have done generations before them. And just as the fishing lore and skills are passed from father to son, from mother to daughter pass the inspiration and culinary know-how to create from the catch, simple enticing fish dishes which are menu mainstays in these picturesque marine communities. Fillets Marinara is exemplary of these seafood specialties which have delighted the palates of North Americans fortunate enough to sample them in their native surroundings. Our recipe features the tender white fillets poached in a spicy rich tomato sauce, characteristic of the authentic version. Fillets Marinara satisfy the demands of eye and appetite appeal and are within the bounds of the most rigid budget.

Fillets Marinara

1 to 1½ Pounds of fresh or frozen fish fillets (cod, sole, haddock, etc.), 2 tablespoons salad oil, ¼ cup chopped celery, ½ teaspoon garlic salt, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon cayenne, ½ teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon oregano, ½ teaspoon basil (optional), 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 28-ounce can tomatoes.

If fillets are frozen thaw on refrigerator shelf. Heat oil in a large frying pan. Add celery and cook until soft. Add remaining ingredients and cook over low heat until liquid is reduced and mixture is slightly thick, about 20 minutes. Separate fillets and place in sauce. Cover pan and let cook about 5 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with sauce and hot fluffy rice. Makes 4 servings.

(Consumer-tested recipe released through Fisheries Council of Canada.)

By Carolyn Willett, Canadian Press Staff Writer

One way or another, when spring overtakes winter with a promise of summer, some strange things happen.

In Rye, N.Y., a woodpecker issued a spring love call on a television antenna. In Toronto a loose steer ran amock in a shoe shop and in Downsville, a Toronto suburb, housewives got so much dust in their houses one mother complained that she had to vacuum her children before she sent them to school.

The woodpecker really had the Richd. Spath family in a tizzy. They heard a knocking and banging early one morning and the plumber, the heating engineer and the gas man all were called in, to no avail.

Mr. Spath finally found the woodpecker pounding away at the TV antenna. The Audubon Society explained the bird wasn't being mean — he was using the antenna as a sort of sounding board to issue a spring love call.

Met Its Match

The loose steer in a Toronto shoe shop found his match in 70-year-old Mrs. Rosalia Steedman. The animal was being led to an abattoir when it broke loose, crashed into the shop and wrecked counters, show cases and the cash register.

But when the police arrived, plucky Mrs. Steedman was giving the 1,500 pound steer the scolding of its life. And when the animal caught his reflection in a mirror and stopped to lick the glass, he got a rope around his neck.

The Downsview housewives complained of a "mystery dust" that new screens and storm windows couldn't seem to keep out of their houses. It had works department officials puzzled, and made the housewives hopping mad.

One woman said she had collected about a pound of dust every day. Another said she had to have a separate garbage pail for the stuff.

A Montreal pediatrician says modern mothers are overworking his profession.

Dr. Alton Goldbloom contends that nowadays mothers are over-inclined to run to their doctors for advice concerning their children.

He told a women's club, however, that doctors themselves have to take some of the blame for the situation because doctor-experts are "frightening young mothers into thinking they can't live without us as authorities."

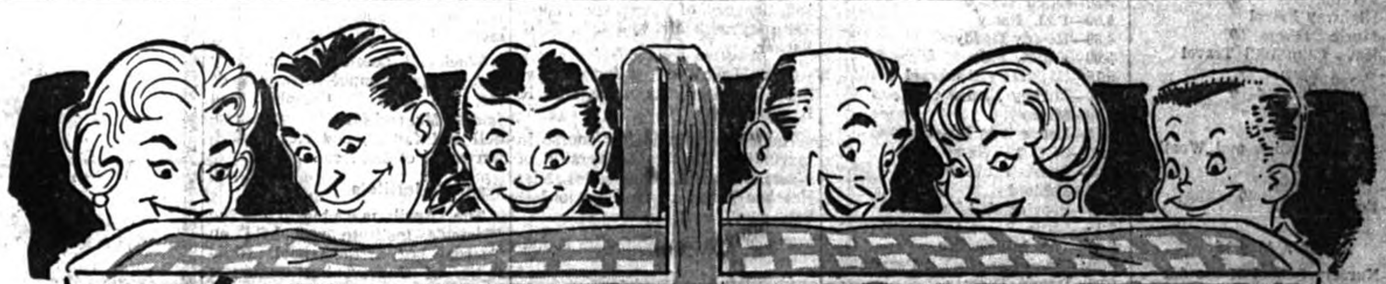

But, he said, he gets questions about whether it is all right for a baby to go barefoot, or about what kind of shoes a baby should wear. And mothers worry about how much the window should be opened in the baby's room.

"All these questions really have not much to do with pediatrics," he said.

Calm Centenarian

In Victoria, Mrs. Susan Moore has just celebrated her 100th birthday. "This is the last one," she said smilingly. "I can feel it." But the presentiment didn't dampen her enthusiasm for the party.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

What kind of driver has the most accidents? The rank beginner? The skilled but too-daring youngster? The older, over-cautious driver?

If you picked any of these, you're wrong.

The fact is that the so-called "average driver" has most of the accidents. As one of this country's top traffic safety experts said recently, "The real key to traffic safety is the fellow who sits behind the wheel, the fellow who decides whether his car shall travel 50 or 80 miles an hour; whether to halt at a stop sign or barge through; whether his car will blend itself sensibly and safely into the traffic stream or create turmoil, confusion and danger".

He goes on to say that although we like to think there is a special class of "careless driver" flouting laws and enjoying discourteous actions, this is not so. Actually, there are a few habitually careless drivers; eliminating them wouldn't start to solve the whole problem.

What to do? First of all—realize you are the average driver, and practice safe driving yourself, all the time. Remember that you are "the other fellow" to "the other fellow".

Some safe driving tips: Avoid over-confidence, emotional disturbances, hypnotic, unattentive driving, poor mechanical condition of car, distractions while motoring.

Don't be an average driver. It's not good enough by far.

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Branch 70 Correspondent

Our members are now occupying themselves preparing for their part in the Lachute Spring Fair. The horsepulling contest which evoked such high interest last year is definitely on. This event turned out to be one of the highlights last year, and Branch 70 received high praise for the manner in which it was conducted. This event can fairly late in the evening to a packed grandstand, but it is hoped that even more people will be able to see it this year. Plans are being formulated for a town-long parade to the Fair Grounds, which it is hoped will include color parties, bands, etc. Other events are also being prepared.

The monster drawing has been completely organized. Tickets have been distributed to members for sale, and they are urged to start working on these immediately. Items to be drawn on Saturday, June 20, at the Fair Grounds, include a television set, Lazy-Boy chair, bicycles for boys, and girls, and tricycle for children. Tickets are very reasonable, so it is hoped that sales will be high.

Comrade MacLean is scheduled to attend the Provincial Convention next week, and any newsworthy items will be passed along.

Members will note with pleasure that Coms. Eddie Jones and Charles Duncan are on the mend after their respective hospital sojourns.

Branch members attending the provincial cribbage tournament, May 10, included Coms. F. Pring, D. Ogilvie, V. Elliott, J. Coney, R. Paulson, D. Kettyle and H. Ward. Branch 70 won the trophy last year, the first time it was played for, and was honored with a suitable inscription thereon which included the names of the winners, Fred Pring and Don Cockburn.

This year other teams were more determined. Coms. Fred Pring and Howard Ward, and Coms. Doug Kettyle and Rene Paulson, forming two Branch 70 teams, lost out in the first round, and the team of Coms. V. Elliott and J. Coney lost the second round.

For anyone privileged to do so, a visit to Ottawa is urged during the weeks May 15-30, the period of the Canadian Tulip Festival, during which time the National War Memorial site is a real beauty spot. The burgeoning lawns and flower-beds constitute a living pledge, renewed each year, to honor the 100,000 Canadians who sleep their last long sleep in far-off lands.

Lest We Forget —

May 10, 1940 — Germans sweep into Holland and Belgium, blitzing Allied forces, who never recover. Within two weeks the enemy is at Calais.

MOUNTED POLICE AS GAME WARDENS

Charlottetown, P.E.I.—(CP)—Under a new Fish and Game act passed at the last session of the legislature, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have taken over the duties of game wardens. Previously members of the fish and game association were ex-officio wardens with the right to search and arrest.

Since the opening of the angling season April 15 however, the fish and game members have not been completely out of the picture. They have become "honorary wardens," without power to search and arrest.

"We can't be everywhere," said RCMP Inspector E. L. Martin. "Any enforcement of the fish and game act must of necessity be a mutual undertaking by citizens and enforcement officers."

M.P. files protest on discontinuance of CNR St.Andrews line

Notary J. O. Latour, M.P. for Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, has submitted a petition to the Board of Transport Commissioners in Ottawa, that the Board reject a plea of the CNR for permission to close their spur operating between Montreal, St. Eustache, St. Andrews and Hawkesbury.

The petition, on behalf of all municipalities, industries and interests served by this line, is a five-page document enumerating many arguments for continuance of the service — among which are the following:

"St. Eustache and vicinity is undergoing great residential and industrial expansion and, in the next five years, the population of this region will have more than doubled.

"Expansion is imminent in the Carillon region, not far from St. Andrews and normally serviced by the CNR via this station."

The brief adds further: "All the representatives of municipalities, Chambers of Commerce and others concerned, met twice to study this request by the CNR. The last meeting was held at St. Andrews on April 16; official representatives of the CNR attended, and the discussion revealed that the CNR had already made its decision, that the trains would be cancelled as of the pre-determined date and that, according to the impression given us, the decision of the Board of Transport Commissioners was a pure formality.

The CNR (the brief contends) has taken no means at its disposal to meet the so-called unfavorable situation of this line, such as:

"It has never taken steps to increase its publicity, in order to get commuters to travel by rail.

"The CNR has never wanted to improve its line for more efficient or speedier service.

"The CNR has not kept the line in good condition for a good many years.

"Tremendous quantities of gravel are transported from a site at St. Andrews by long heavy trains, with the result that the rail line between St. Andrews and Lafrenière is in an absolutely dangerous condition . . . and because of this condition, passenger trains must move slowly."

It is noted also as follows:

"Cancellation of train service would deprive the people of their daily mail delivery.

"Freight is transported to St. Andrews once a week, or thereabouts, by the train which circulates between Montreal and Lac St. Rémi and, because of the poor service, our people have to use the CPR to obtain freight delivery, at better rates, according to distance.

"The company's total business, for all freight entering and leaving Hawkesbury, is over a million dollars per year.

"In the CNR's request it is stated that cancellation of the Montreal-St. Eustache-Hawkesbury trains, as well as certain Hawkesbury-Glen Robertson trains, would entail a savings of $68,000 per year. . . . At the meeting April 16, the CNR officials . . . were unable to justify this claim.

"We believe that the Montreal-St. Eustache-Hawkesbury line, as it presently exists, is not a loss and that, if all sources of revenue tied in with each of these municipalities were credited to this same line, there would be a surplus."

Bible Society work

In a report to the recent Lambeth Conference of Bishops of the Anglican Communion, Dr. N. J. Cockburn stated, "In the past the Bible Society has provided the Scriptures as the evangelistic instrument of the Christian Missions in the west, which have taken the Gospel to the ends of the earth during the last one hundred and fifty years."

These Missions have created all over the world the so-called younger Churches. In the future these younger Churches might themselves, as evangelizing bodies, be the main distributors of Scriptures. Nonetheless, viewed in terms of practical possibilities, they will necessarily require the continuance of the greatest historic Bible Societies, of which the British and Foreign Bible Society is the mother.

The British and Foreign Bible Society will continue the maintenance of translation work viewed with world rather than local perspective, and production of Scripture of the greatest historic document circulated by the world Bible ures perfected by a century-and-a half of practical experience with which to maintain the work of evangelistic distribution.

Hell Drivers in thrilling program

Known as the "Fearless Frenchman", Pierre Hauri will be displaying his daredevilry Friday, May 15 at Lachute Fair Grounds, as a featured member of the Lucky Hell Drivers.

Pierre came from Paris, but his old friends probably wouldn't recognize their erstwhile bicycle-riding champion now. For Pierre is a jack-of-all-stunts with the Hell Drivers, which is now on a tour through Canada.

When the program calls for some able-bodied daredevil to perform the "slide for life", then Hauri volunteers — dropping from the rear of a speeding auto into a pool of blazing gasoline.

He also rides the hood of one of the Hell Drivers' new Ford cars through a wooden barrier as it blazes wickedly after being doused with high-test gasoline. For this "human battering ram" feat, Pierre wears only gloves and a helmet, other than his uniform.

More than a score of the greatest stuntmen, some of them directly from Hollywood movie lots, will be with the Hell Drivers, which is unequalled for excitement and tension. There are 28 special events in the two-hour program, and a troupe of 22 performers to carry out the death-defying feats.

Among the bright new performers is Chance Chesterfield, of Halifax, who served his apprenticeship with U.S. thrill shows, then spent a hitch in the Navy. He rejoined the Hell Drivers recently, and is keen and eager to resume his thrill producing stunts at the wheel of speeding autos.

Power engineers to organize in this district

The monthly meeting of the Cornwall Branch, Institute of Power Engineers, was held in Hawkesbury on May 2.

Sixty members and guests were in attendance. The program included a tour of the Canadian International Paper sawmill at Calumet, a business meeting held at the Hawkesbury Curling Club, and a dinner served at the Abenaki Golf and Country Club.

New members were initiated at the meeting.

Adding to the success of the meeting was the attendance of visitors and guests from Montebello, Lachute, Calumet, Montreal and Ottawa.

A cordial invitation was extended to all stationary engineers in the district, to participate in the formation of the Hawkesbury Branch, to be inaugurated in September.

Junior winners at 'Toastmasters' father-son night

At a recent meeting of the Hawkesbury Toastmasters Club, Wes Freeland of Brownsburg was elected president, heading the new executive pictured elsewhere in these pages. The executive includes members from Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill, Kilmar, and Brownsburg.

The final weekly meeting of the season was held Tuesday, May 12, at the Esquire Restaurant in Hawkesbury. This meeting took the form of a "Father and Son" night and included, as special guests, the winners of the public speaking contests from the local high schools.

When the meetings resume in the fall on eight-member "Speechcraft" course will be presented for non-members as well as Toastmasters. This course, a condensed outline of the fundamentals of public speaking, will be conducted by the senior members as a part of the regular meetings.

The Hawkesbury Toastmasters Club was organized over two years ago, by Archie Bruce, a former member of the Valleyfield Club. Meetings of the group are held regularly each Tuesday (except during the summer) at Hawkesbury.

This club is one of 3,500 in Canada, U.S.A. and 30 countries of the world, forming Toastmasters International. It is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization of business and professional men, devoted to the improvement of communications and executive development, through better speech. More productive, businesslike meetings — wherever they be held — is part of their aim, through parliamentary procedure.

SMOKERS CAUGHT

New acquisition by Steinberg's

Mr. Sam Steinberg, president of Steinberg's Limited, and Mrs. Sam Palef, president of Ottawa Fruit Supply Ltd., jointly announced that Steinberg's Limited has acquired Ottawa Fruit Supply Ltd. (A number of local groceries under the "Best-Valu" aegis are supplied by the Ottawa company.)

Ottawa Fruit Supply Limited is a wholesale distributor of grocery, produce, and tobacco products. Through its subsidiary, Allied Food Markets Limited, it also operates two food markets in Ottawa.

Mr. Steinberg stated that Ottawa Fruit Supply Limited will continue operations under the same management and general policy, and will in addition service the Steinberg's stores in the Ottawa-Hull area.

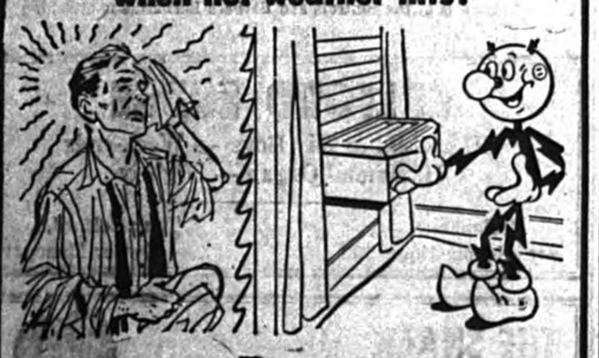

FARMER'S HEART

Of all tradesmen, the farmer works hardest to create the impression that he's as hard as an acre of bare land at frost time, while in reality he's as soft as a spring-plowed field. He's got a good heart but he's afraid to let other people know it.

SPANNING THIRTY-FIVE YEARS

Men and machines at either end of the scale offer a portrayal of the RCAF's progress during the celebration of its 35th anniversary this year. At left, the RCAF pilot of 1924 leans against the wire-braced wings of his 95 mph Avro 504 to peer at the camera from a bulky and cumbersome flying suit lined with fur. At lower center is a 504 seaplane, showing the open cockpit which made his bulky clothes necessary, even in the low altitudes at which he flew. At right, today's CF-100 pilot climbs into the heated and pressurized cockpit of his "Canuck" in a light, unrestricting garment in which he'll be comfortable at 45,000 feet and more than 500 mph. At top center is his aircraft in flight.

JAY-WALKING BAN WORKS IN OTTAWA

Ottawa, — (CP) — Ottawa pedestrians are slow in learning their lessons, and city police aren't sparing the rod.

But they say there has been a marked improvement since the Ontario legislature passed a law a year ago obliging pedestrians to wait for red lights at intersections just as cars must. Authorities say the law has been good for traffic, but they still charge an average of 10 delinquent pedestrians a day. Most are let off with a warning.

Sees rural roads out of date

It's time for some revolutionary thinking on rural municipal geography to keep pace with the revolution that is taking place in Canadian agriculture, declares The Financial Post.

The average size of the farm in Eastern Canada today is 50% larger than at the beginning of the century and at the present speed of expansion it will double in a few more years. Yet township roads and many other services remain as they were when settlement started 150 years ago.

An excellent and practical suggestion is made by the editor of Durham (Ont.) Chronicle. He says close up half of our little-used side roads and concession lines, and relocate the few scattered homes concerned along the main roads. This would reduce road maintenance costs. Of even more important, there would be a better and happier life for farm families living closer together, far less isolation and inconvenience.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Your vacation trip will be easier and more fun if your children know how to be safe passengers.

Here are some tips for teaching them:

Have them sit squarely on the seat. Adult passengers should hold very young children on their laps. Use special car seats for infants.

For water and soft drinks en route, use paper cups.

Break up long stretches of driving by frequent stops to keep the children from becoming too restless.

Do not permit any climbing from the back to the front seat while the car is in motion. Always pull off the road and stop before permitting such a change.

No leaning out of windows, no fooling with door handles, shift lever, or ignition key.

No candy wrappers (or other waste material) should be tossed out of the window. No toy airplanes — for example — to be held out the window.

No roughhouse allowed. Guessing or word games should keep older children entertained. For the very small fry — toys of plastic or rubber.

The dont's are basic. But the games and toys are important. Keep the children interested, and it's easier to keep them happy and safe.

Test Pilot Honored

Jan Zurakowski, former test pilot for Avro has been awarded the McKee trophy for his outstanding contribution to Canadian aviation. The trophy is awarded for meritorious service in the advancement of Canadian aviation. The emphasis is laid on performance throughout the year rather than on any single achievement. The ace pilot won the trophy for test-flying the Avro Arrow.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I am a married woman with two children and have been steadily employed for the past three years. Two months ago I had to resign as my babysitter became ill. I have now engaged another babysitter. Can I collect unemployment insurance benefits if I am unable to obtain suitable employment?

A. If, in addition to being unable to find suitable employment, you are ready, able and willing to work, you may be entitled to benefit. This can only be determined after you have filed a claim.

Q. I worked as a waitress for almost ten years and when I was laid off about a month ago, began collecting benefits. I would prefer to work as a typist as I have had experience in that line. Could I take a refresher course in typing or a course as a stenographer and still collect my benefits?

A. You should discuss this with your local office. Claimants may be directed to training when there is no suitable employment available for them. If there were a suitable job as a waitress available for you, you would be expected to take it and could not be directed to the course you suggest.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

The Behavior of Salt-Starved Cows

The late and revered Doctor S. M. Babcock of the University of Wisconsin used to tell the writer of his observations of salt-deprived cows that were on this test soon after the turn of the century. Half of the herd got the usual amount of salt and behaved as normal cows should. The other half had no salt added to their ration, and notice what happened.

Dr. Bohstedt

When turned out in the morning for pasturing, the herd had to cross University Avenue at a corner where there was a switch in the street car track. Some of the cows would run ahead of the rest to get to lick the soil around the switch. It was always the unsalted cows that showed this behavior. Why? Because that soil still had remnants of rock salt that had been used the winter before to keep the switch working properly.

At one time a circus had had its customary stand on the pasture and the cows were kept off this pasture for the time being. A few days after return to the pasture, the men observed a sizable hole had been chewed into the ground. Again, why?

Because the area was where the brine that had accumulated at the ice cream stand had been dumped when the circus moved on. Don't many of us remember making ice cream by hand-cranking a freezer, rotating in cracked ice, daubed with generous amounts of salt?

The salt-starved cows had detected this salty spot in the pasture and had made the most of their opportunity!

Around the barn these same cows would try to lick the perspiration-encrusted and therefore salt-encrusted jumpers and overalls of the attendants — anything to satisfy their craving for salt.

The payoff came with the approach of calving time. The unsalted cows had run down in condition and long before that in production. They had a starey coat of hair and lusterless eyes. The calves came weak at birth, a number of them dying soon after—a terrible toll to pay for omitting or shortchanging the cattle on salt, one of the cheapest and still most necessary of all feeds.

Question: What causes cannibalism in swine? Why do sows at times eat their pigs, or why do growing pigs chew each others tails?

Answer: It used to be thought that in the absence of animal protein such as meat scrap or tankage in a sow's ration, she might develop such a craving for that kind of protein that she would turn to cannibalism.

But might the reason be a craving for salt that we know is carried in greater abundance in tankage or skimmilk than it is in oil meals or mill feeds.

This seems all the more plausible in that cannibalism in chickens has been prevented at the University of Wisconsin and the U.S.D.A. by giving them salted water to drink for a day or two. The birds are restricted for at least a day to water salted at the rate of one tablespoon per gallon.

Forest studies lagging — says tree pathologist

Some forest diseases of recent years have been difficult to study because of gaps in scientific knowledge, Dr. V. J. Nordin told the Centennial Forestry Conference held in Cornvallis, Oregon, recently.

The forest pathologist is Associate Director of Forest Pathology of the Forest Biology Division, Research Branch, Canada Department of Agriculture.

He referred to pole blight of western white pine, birch dieblack, needle blight of eastern white pine, sweet-gum blight and sugar-maple blight as not being associated with specific disease organisms and most difficult to study.

When a catastrophic dying in the New England states and the Atlantic Provinces from birch die-back occurred, research was lacking on the normal rooting water and temperature relations, and growth habits of trees.

Much data is required on oak wilt, Dutch elm disease, Beech bark disease, various cankers, decay and root organisms and dwarf mistletoes.

Disease prevention should be undertaken through prior research on diseases of native trees planted in foreign countries, said Dr. Nordin. Disease surveys of a permanent nature need to be established and expanded, though a good start was made on these lines in Canada in 1952.

Required too are methodical programs on viruses of forest trees, and the ecology, biology, and physiology of disease pathogens and tree hosts and their inter-relationships in forest stand development. The basic mechanisms of resistance must be explored to find why a tree that is disease resistant in one locality is not resistant in another.

As the forest industries use up mature timber stands, more attention must be paid to obtaining good operative control for the managed second growth forests and plantations. At the present time such research is of assistance to forest management priority cutting schedules and utilizing timber previously considered incorrectly as beyond economic salvage.

New vistas in the management and utilization of forests may be opened by the search for new products through cellulose chemistry and other research endeavors.

Tree breeding as a means of disease control, although beset by difficulties, is important in long range control planning. To minimize these difficulties research is needed to define the conditions under which a tree will remain resistant to various diseases.

MAILMOBILE—A BOON TO POSTMEN

Postmaster-General Wilbert Hamilton sits in "mailmobile" which was unveiled in front of the parliament buildings in Ottawa. It is slated for testing in the suburbs but may be used in residential areas, too. The Mailmobile carries up to a quarter ton of mail including large parcels, allows easy entry and exit, is manoeuvrable in traffic and is easy to park.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

DOG DOLDRUMS

Dogs are living longer and better lives — thanks to the same miracle drugs that help humans, says Dr. Abraham Barton, New York veterinarian.

But in their later years, dogs are subject to many of the same ills that afflict their masters. Kidney ailments account for at least half the deaths of very old dogs, according to Dr. Barton. Cancer, especially in females, may be as common among dogs as among people.

Certain forms of arthritis often cause a painful limp and reduced activity iu ageing canines. Old tired lungs cause asthma and chronic coughs. Cataracts blind the eyes and deafness may result from untreated ear-infections.

But, says Dr. Barton, there are many ways to keep dogs active and healthy past their middle years. Substituting milk and eggs for part of the animal-protein in the diet will relieve the strain on tired kidneys. Hormones usually relieve arthritic conditions. In small doses these powerful drugs are a fine tonic for senior canines.

Vitamins and good nourishment are never more important than in the later years. Illness and infection should be treated promptly. Inspection and treatment of minor ear infections may prevent deafness.

Clean skin, bathing and grooming, are most essential. Teeth too should be kept clean. Any loose teeth should be removed.

And, say the veterinarians, plenty of love from a dog's best friend may still be the best medicine you can give him.

Herbicides for forage crops

Ottawa — Science is studying the use of herbicides in establishing stands of legumes, with a view to reducing the threat of weeds.

Farmers generally seed forage with a companion crop of grain for protection against weather and weeds, says H. A. Friesen of the Lacombe, Alta., Federal Experimental Farm, but more productive stands result from seeding without the companion crop.

Agronomist Friesen says seedling alfalfa, red clover, alsike clover and white clover, may be treated with 2,4-D or the MCPA amines at three to four ounces per acre of active ingredient, or MCPA sodium salt at three to six ounces. Spraying should be early — preferably when the first trifoliate leaf stage is reached.

These treatments control susceptible annual weeds such as lamb's quarters, stinkweed, wild mustard and Russian pig weed.

Where weeds were moderately heavy and legumes seeded without a companion crop, forage production significantly increased.

In the past three seasons, phenoxy-butyric herbicides such as 4-(MCPB) and 4-(2,4-DB) have given similarly good control of the weeds.

For the clovers, other than sweet clovers, 4-(MCPB) at 16 to 24 ounces per acre of active ingredient in 20 gallons of water is suggested, while 4-(2,4-DB) applied at the same rates is suggested for alfalfa. The butyric forms are much costlier because of their higher price per ounce of chemical and the higher rate of application.

Trials with various formulations, 2, 4-D and MCPA, and the phenoxy-butyric compounds, 4-(2, 4-DB) and 4-(MCPA) on sweet clover have shown this crop to be more sensitive to herbicides than the other legumes. Consequently, spraying appears justified only where weed competition is severe. Under such conditions, use of MCPA amine at three to four ounces per acre of active ingredient is suggested.

Crop acreage expected

Quebec — CP — Acreage to be seeded in Quebec this year is expected to be about the same as in 1958. Last year farmers seeded 1,500,000 acres in cereals and 1,307,000 acres in oats. The two other main crops were mixed grains and barley.

EXPERIMENT

A Lethbridge Experimental Farm field continuously cropped to wheat for 46 years gave a wild oat count of 2,772 seeds per square yard of surface soil. Soil was sampled to a depth of three and one-half inches.

Quebec — CP — Work is expected to begin soon on a new provincial agriculture school at Oka, 40 miles north of Montreal. The Trappist monks, who run the present school, will no longer teach Agriculture.

TWO FATAL ACCIDENTS, OTHER MISHAPS TAKE TOLL OVER HOLIDAY WEEK-END

Municipal and Provincial police report extremely heavy traffic over the Victoria Day holiday week-end, and close to a dozen accidents occurring in this district. Many of the mishaps were of a minor nature — although two proved fatal, causing two deaths, and others inflicted injuries requiring hospital treatment for the victims.

Car crash cuts phone circuits

Two L'Abord à Plouffe men escaped serious injury late Friday evening when their 1958-model sedan swerved out of control on a sharp curve near Andrew Cleland's, two miles east of Lachute on Route 8. They were treated at the Providence Hospital and released the following day. Norman Rumer, 31, and Phillip Sewell, 34, were returning from a fishing trip when the accident occurred, the car sliding out of control across the highway and breaking a telephone pole on the main Ottawa-Montreal trunk line.

The accident occurred at 10.20 p.m. and Traffic Officer Lawrence Cruise was on the scene with Bell Telephone employees until after 6 a.m. when all the damage had been repaired. Assisting at the accident were Traffic Officer Paul E. Perrier and Sgt. Roger Massie. Bell officials report the Hawkesbury-Lachute lines were temporarily out of operation, but the main Ottawa-Montreal cable was not damaged. Both policemen and Bell employees were severely hampered by the heavy fast-moving traffic. — Bertrand Studio

Fifteen-year-old bicyclist killed by diesel train at Barron Ave. crossing

Robert Lajeunesse, 15, succumbed to injuries early Saturday morning in the Montreal Neurological Institute, following an accident Friday evening in which he was struck by a westbound C.P.R. Dayliner at the Barron Avenue crossing. The lad was a Lachute resident — his mother and family having recently moved however to Fabreville.

According to witnesses questioned by Cst. Gilles Poirier, who investigated the mishap, the victim was standing on the tracks with a bicycle and talking to two friends, Mario Gasse, 13, and André Guimond, 12. Apparently he did not hear the approaching train which had just left the station, and was thrown some 78 feet, landing on the tracks.

Unconscious and in critical condition, he was taken to the Providence Hospital where he was treated by Dr. F. Walter FitzGerald and Dr. André Sauvé, then immediately transferred by ambulance to Montreal. He was suffering from fractures to his legs and one arm, a skull fracture and various other injuries.

The diesel budcar had just left the station, and was detained some 30 minutes by the accident. Engineer of the train was Norman Smith, while the conductor was J. O. Racicot.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lajeunesse, parents of the young victim, had recently moved away from Lachute, Mr. Lajeunesse meanwhile retaining his job here as manager of a local hotel. The youth was employed by a local restaurant.

He is survived by three brothers and sisters. Funeral was held at his Fabreville home on Tuesday morning, the body being then brought to Lachute, where service was held at Ste. Anastasie parish church, followed by burial in the local Catholic cemetery.

An inquest will be held in Lachute Town Hall, the tentative date having been set for May 26, at 8 p.m.

Consultation with expert on street lighting

The civic improvement committee of the Chamber of Commerce, together with a committee of councillors, met last week with Mr. B. J. Monaghan, lighting expert of the Northern Electric Company, to discuss proposed new street-lighting on Lachute's main thoroughfare.

The visitor, having taken stock of the lighting system in this town, gave his opinion that Lachute was about 25 years behind the times. Good street-lighting, he believed, is a factor to reduce robberies, accidents and juvenile delinquency; it is a protection for both pedestrians and motorists — quite apart from its improvement in brightening the street.

Another argument for good civic lighting was the inducement to tourists to stop over in bright surroundings, thereby supplementing town revenues.

As regards the cost of operation, the lighting expert said a modern system would be more economical. Present bulbs are of 300-watt capacity with a life of 1,000 hours, while fluorescent tubes have a lifetime of three years operation. Maintenance would also cost less, and it was suggested the present light-brackets and lamps could be installed on other streets now inadequately lighted. Among cities and towns which had recently revamped their street-lighting, he mentioned Montreal (notably on Sherbrooke and Pie IX Blvd.) Laval des Rapides, Lévis, Mont Laurier, Hawkesbury and other centres.

Mayor Jas. McGibbon, in attendance at this discussion, admitted that Lachute's lighting system left much to be desired, and other members of the Council committee appeared favorable to the project.

The Council was represented by Mayor McGibbon, Aldermen Gerard Lefebvre, Stanley Church and Edgar Pollock. Those present on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce were Gaetan Leclair (committee chairman), Adhémar Cuerrier (president), Donat Saulnier, J. Roger Lamarche and Antoine Malaket.

Diver inspects under-river pipe

Town authorities engaged the services of a frogman to discover the leak last week in a 14-inch main crossing the riverbed, which put this pipe out of commission and thereby reduced the town water supply to an 8-inch secondary pipe. Seen above is Lucien Plante, diver, working just east of White's Bridge where the main traverses the North River.

A Montreal city constable, Plante also works as a professional frogman. For two months he was on loan to the Seaway project, and is also diving instructor to the naval school. . . . His helper and a town employee are seen in the rowboat, which bears the Lions Club insignia — having been donated to the Town several years ago for use in drowning emergencies.

$34,507 contract awarded at B'burg for waterworks and sewer extensions

Brownsburg — Due to lack of visitors at the May council meeting, the session opened with Fire Chief Robbins' report, which listed a total of five fires. The major fuel in three of these was grass and leaves. Thousands of people burn dead grass, leaves and accumulated rubbish each spring, and thousands end up with fires which they cannot control, simply because they do not provide adequate safeguards to prevent them from getting out of hand. Two simple precautions could save a great deal of worry and expense — before starting the fire, bring the garden hose to the immediate area, then keep the fire confined to a small area.

Council approved payment of monthly vouchers amounting to $1,932.44, in addition to a further $2,860.15 as payment for social welfare and insurance — then proceeded to the discussion of subjects of more immediate interest to the average citizen. . . .

Another encouraging note for those women who joined forces and asked for protection for their children on Maple Avenue — the survey has been completed and the next step in the program to obtain sidewalks will be to determine the amount of land required from each land-owner to provide a street 40 feet wide. Since the present roadway is 33 feet wide, a strip approximately 3½ feet deep will be required from each property.

Another item of major importance was the passing of a motion to authorize the mayor and one councillor to sign the contract for sewer and water extensions. The contract for installation of the system had been awarded to B. & P. Hall Bros. Construction Co., at a special meeting held April 29. The tender submitted by the Hall Bros. stipulated a cost of $34,507. A lengthy discussion on the subject of which section is to be started first, ended in a decision to begin with Bank Street. When this area is completed, Council will decide which area is to be next on the list. Mayor Hall (speaking as T. P. Hall, contractor) declared that availability of materials would allow his firm to begin work in a few days.

Pedestrians will be pleased to learn that $1,000 has been assigned to sidewalk repair in Brownsburg. Since asphalt surfacing is available at moderate cost and apparently stands up to winter salt application, it is probable that this material will be used more frequently, both in repairs of present sidewalks and in complete construction of new ones.

A request from a local citizen to have his water tax reduced, was tabled for future study. Council agreed that a swimming pool with a re-circulating pump did not use sufficient water to warrant a $100 tax. In order to reduce the tax it may be necessary to revise the by-law, and this could cost the town money. However, since all councillors appeared to favor the use of pools, it may be that a change will be made. The original by-law was put into effect during the water shortage some years ago.

The last official act of the sitting Council was to pass a motion to take over 3rd Street N.E. (Woodbine), provided a number of minor conditions are met. The conditions are presently being fulfilled, and as a result, a further excellent building area is made available.

Slain banker was former manager at Arundel B.M.

Mr. Alexander Heron, Bank of Montreal manager at Timiskaming, Que., who was slain by a gunman in a hold-up last Friday, was well-known in Arundel, where he served as branch manager from 1946-1951.

He had spent almost his entire banking career in the Ottawa Valley — at Pembroke, Arnprior and Almonte. He went to Timiskaming from Arundel in 1951.

Ernest Cote, 28, and Ronald Kyle Brush, 22, both of North Bay, were arrested by Ontario Provincial Police and North Bay police at Feronia, Ont., following a tip from a murder witness James Lynn, who was outside the bank repairing a car when the attempted robbery took place.

One gunman ordered teller Jacques Tremblay, 22, to let him into the bank at 8:45 a.m. Bank manager Alexander Heron called down to Tremblay from his upstairs apartment. When the teller failed to answer, Heron went down. He scuffled with the would-be robber and was shot twice. He died soon afterward.

The bandit ran outside to a waiting car driven by his accomplice. Lynn told police he saw them speed down Highway 63 toward North Bay.

Two Ontario Provincial Police constables saw a car answering the description provided by Lynn speed through Feronia. They alerted another cruiser car down the highway where Cote and Brush were captured without a fight.

Police found makeup and adhesive tape inside the car. The gunman who got into the bank had attempted to disguise himself with tape and lipstick.

Local man killed instantly when car swerves in gravel, hits culvert

Frank Grimes, a 23-year-old employee of Lowe Bros. Dairy, was instantly killed around 5 p.m. Sunday when the car which he was driving swerved out of control, turning end for end on the new section of Route 41, near the Bourbonniere settlement.

Sgt. Roger Massie, of the local Provincial Police, reports the victim — accompanied by Roch Lalonde, 22, of Lachute R.R.2, and Raymond Carpenter, 23, of Brownsburg — was driving westward towards Lachute when the car swerved out of control in the gravel. Occupants of the car stated the right wheels were on the embankment and before the driver could regain control, the wheels struck a culvert, throwing the car violently. The victim's death was instantaneous, caused by a broken neck and fractured skull.

(Rites, from the Menard Funeral Home, are being held this morning, Wednesday, with service at Ste. Anastasie and interment at Lachute. Sympathy is expressed to the bereaved relatives.)

Chatham election

In a mayoral election for the Township of Chatham on Tuesday, Leslie Tomalty won the honors by a decisive vote of 455-163 against Wm. Chambers.

Three seats were filled by acclamation — Claude Foucault re-elected to Seat No. 1, Leo Forget re-elected to Seat No. 2, and Wm. C. Morrow replacing Leslie Tomalty in Seat No. 3 — according to report to the municipal secretary, Wm. S. Robert.

Liberals form Argenteuil County organization

At a recent meeting to organize the Liberal Association of Argenteuil County, held in the Legion Hall at Lachute, Bernard Gosselin was elected president of the provisional committee. Present to help with the organization of this group were Alcide Courcy, M.P.P. for Abitibi West, chief organizer for the party in Quebec; Potier Ferland, secretary of the provincial Liberal Federation; and Mme B. Hétu, of the National Liberal Organization's feminine section.

Other officers elected were — Stanley Rodger, St. Andrews East, vice-president; Ralph Nelson, Brownsburg, secretary; directors — Antoine Paré, St. Andrews East; J. P. Brosseau, Huberdeau; Noé Patry, Lachute; Sidney Swail, Arundel; David Morrison, Harrington; Réal Rochon, St. Philippe; Dr. R. Lavigne, Roger Lagarde and Lucien Lacoste, all of Lachute; Georges Proulx, Ayersville; W. S. MacKimmie, Lachute; Paul Frappier, Laurel; Mrs. Ethel McGibbon, Dalesville.

To clarify a point on democratic procedure, Mr. Ferland stated that candidates before any election will be chosen by the delegates, and that in the case of one already a parliamentary deputy being brought forward as a candidate, he also must be formally named and elected by the convention.

During the preceedings, one minute's silence was observed in tribute to the late Hon. Georges-Etienne Dansereau, who represented this constituency at Quebec for 13 years.

Bernard Gosselin was chairman.

Riverfront visitor hurt in mishap

Robert P. Casement, 42, of Toronto, was treated in the Hotel Dieu at St. Jerome for a broken arm and other injuries, following a mishap on the Tannery montee between St. Philippe and Cushing, early Sunday evening.

The motorist was returning to Cushing from Lachute when the accident occurred. He apparently lost control of his 1957-model car, ending up in a small creek. He was alone at the time of the accident.

(The Casement family were visiting in Cushing over the holiday week-end. His association here being not immediately known to the police, his wife and relatives were deeply concerned—not being notified of the accident until early Monday.)

Sgt. Roger Massie, of the local Provincial Police detachment, investigated.

Girl in hospital, hit by auto

Marguerite, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Beausejour, Ayersville, was hit by a car last Friday evening and suffered head injuries. The victim was removed to the Hotel Dieu at St. Jerome by ambulance, after receiving first-aid treatment at the Providence Hospital in Lachute.

A seventh-grade pupil at the Immaculate Conception School, the girl was walking home at noon. In crossing Chatham Street she was hit by an automobile driven by Georges Laframboise, hotelkeeper at St. Philippe.

Chief Marcel Therrien of Ayersville investigated.

Crash at Carillon

Joseph Roy, 52 year-old Carillon resident, escaped serious injury Sunday evening when his car swerved out of control on the St. Andrews-Carillon highway. He was accompanied by his wife; both were treated at the scene and at the Smith Clinic and later released.

Traffic Officer Lawrence Cruise investigated.

Minor break-ins and robberies

Lachute Auto Parts establishment, Barron Avenue, was the scene of two minor thefts towards the end of last week, when on two successive nights the premises were entered. On Thursday evening change totalling approximately $17 was reported stolen, while the following evening some $4 was taken. Entry was gained by breaking a small window in the door.

The premises of L'Heureux Dry Cleaners, opposite, were also entered on Thursday evening by a person or persons unknown, and although a thorough search was made of the establishment, nothing was reported missing.

The municipal police investigated these cases, along with a robbery at the Notre Dame de Lourdes Shrine, Brownsburg Road; this latter incident was turned over to Ayersville Police Chief Marcel Therrien for investigation.

Council shuffle and two contests for mayor and councillor at Brownsburg

Five acclamations were recorded last Wednesday in the re-vamping of the Brownsburg Council, while nominations resulted in a contest for the mayoralty and one other council seat.

It is recalled that, following a change in the procedure of civic representation, all councillors automatically terminated their mandate. The mayor and councillors from now on will sit for a three-year term, instead of two years.

Acclamations

At nominations, Fernand Brisson, contractor, was acclaimed for Seat No. 1 to replace René Lafleur, who decided to try for the mayoralty.

For Seat No. 2, Georges Therrien, foreman, was re-elected.

For Seat No. 3, Roger Raymond, manager, was also re-elected.

For Seat No. 5, Ernest Gagné, foreman, received an acclamation to replace Stanley Harris, retiring councillor.

For Seat No. 6, Ernest Legault, clerk, was re-elected.

Two Contests

René Lafleur, merchant and former councillor, and Ernest Ouellette, restaurant-keeper and also a former councillor, contested the honors Tuesday in an election for Mayor. Lafleur polled a decisive majority against Ouellette, with 747 votes to 302.

For Council Seat No. 4, Georges Lacasse, farmer, was in contest with Keith Graham, foreman. The latter won against Lacasse with 524 votes to 511.

Pleads guilty in bank hold-up; accomplice held

Jacques Lyons, 19-year-old resident who was captured in the recent Provincial Bank hold-up on Main Street West, pleaded guilty to a charge of armed robbery, in St. Jerome court on Tuesday of last week. Sentence is expected to be handed down this Friday, May 22.

Euclide Harding, 26-year-old Brownsburg man wanted for questioning in the hold-up, last Wednesday morning gave himself up to Police Chief Fernand Trepanier in the company of a local lawyer, Philippe Valois. He made an initial plea of "not guilty" to a similar charge, and in the event this plea is not changed, the date for trial will be set for Friday also.

A third suspect has been questioned in connection with the affair, but as yet no action has been taken by the Provincial Police, who are now in charge of the investigation.

Fatally stricken, Marelan man falls from verandah

Leopold Lafleur, 49, of Marelan, died instantly at his home in a fall early Tuesday morning. Death was declared due to natural causes, by District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated, reported the incident occurred at approximately 12.30 a.m. when the victim went out on the verandah and, while standing near the railing, fell and landed on his head. The coroner's inquiry revealed the death was caused by a heart attack, and no inquest will be held.

Home and School hears reports from Conference delegates

The Lachute Home and School Association met on Tuesday, May 12, under the chairmanship of Mr. Ken Riley.

The treasurer's report was read and it was announced that $100 would be handed to the Scholarship chairman. In this matter it was encouraging to note that another project had been realized.

Unfortunately the three delegates to the Home and School convention in Montreal were not overwhelmed with encouragement, since only 25 people greeted their reports.

Mr. P. Aitken, as Program Chairman for 1959-60, attended the "Workshop of Program Planning", where he gathered information which will be used to stimulate interest next season. Mr. Aitken spoke of lectures he attended entitled "Parent Education", a title which did not create the right impression. Several aspects of this study was brought into focus by a judge, a headmaster, and a member of the National Hygiene Institute.

Mrs. I. Jones covered the Resolutions, and reported that this major concern of the conference was hinged on "Road Safety". Attempts were being made to revise such laws as stopping to allow bus passengers to alight.

Mr. G. Pride, attending in his capacity of president for 1959-60, felt that a great deal could be learned at such gatherings. He was actually surprised at the amount of genuine and useful co-operation between the Home and the School in various parts of the province. It was suggested that in future members of Home and School and the School Board should interchange visits to keep both parties well informed.

Mr. Pride spoke of various experiments being carried out, such as — the best methods of assisting pupils who do well in, say eight out of ten subjects, and not so well in the remaining two, so as not to impede the progress or the class in general. Another question under observation is: Should pupils be promoted by class work as a whole or by subjects?

The speakers did not have time to cover the ground thoroughly, and only touched the salient points of interest. No doubt more will be heard next season.

Following these reports Mr. Riley observed the rules laid down in the constitution and installed the new officers for the ensuing year.

Young orators guests of Toastmasters Club

A group of youthful orators, all winners in their respective high schools and some in advanced contests on a provincial level, were special dinner guests of Hawkesbury Toastmasters Club recently, at the Esquire Restaurant, Hawkesbury.

Although the young speakers were not asked to deliver their talks, volunteers were requested and two of the youngest performed, to the admiration of the audience of 40, most of whom are accustomed to public speaking.

To see such self-confidence and ability of expression being developed in our children is a credit to the teachers and a school system, which does not always receive the praise it merits.

Wondrous ways of wildlife; lake's flotsam and jetsam

By Bob Atchison — "Outdoor Round-up"

Main Duck Island
Picton, Ont.

May 9 —

Well, we made our trip in for supplies — but we got over to Picton on a Wednesday afternoon and, the same as Lachute — closed tighter than a drum! However, we were fortunate in having the merchants let us get our supplies. That was nice of them, as we had made arrangements for going back Thursday morning and it would have been impossible to have done all the shopping and still get the tug at the right time. All's well that ends well.

As it was, we didn't get away from shore until after 3 p.m. because of the storms and wind. It sure did blow; and most of the time the only thing to be seen was spray and waves. By the time we had got to the Island, we were black and blue in spots. We thought sure Goldie would have been seasick, but she's a good sailor. But she was awfuly glad to get on shore — we too. The fisherman came in for a couple of cups of tea and left right after. Give them credit — they are a hardy breed. The fisherman wouldn't spend the night with us. He came in today and told us that he didn't get home until after 11 p.m.

I'm sending a couple of pictures of some of the spots on the Island, it may give you some idea of what it is like. There is one of a dead Deer, that is sent along just to let you see them. They all look the same. As soon as the weather warms up a little there will be some of our pals the Snakes, and Snappers. That is, just before they meet with a fatal accident. The Ducks will be worth a few films alone, so the first opportunity, I'll pass them along. I mentioned a Wood Duck and his mate that I had managed to spot. There are really seven pairs of them, and I think they are the most beautiful of all the Ducks. They are not too scared of humans, so they will be easy to watch.

We were told when in shopping that there are Deer around Prince Edward County, so I guess they did manage to get off the Island during the winter. I guess some of them got into the State of New York also, along with the Pheasants. It makes me feel terrible to think of them being killed, they are just like pets to us, and there certainly won't be any thrill for the hunters killing them. It will be just like shooting a cow. If hunters had the opportunity of watching them the way we do, I don't think there would be so many Deer hunters. They are truly a beautiful animal. As for the Pheasants being shot—it makes me sick to think of that.

I told you about Edith keeping an eye out for a Duck's nest she found. It's funny all the action that goes on at times. Any crow that comes within 200 yards of it, and the shotgun swings into action! The fact she won't hit it at that distance doesn't seem to bother her one bit. At least it scares the crows. . . . The old girl better hurry up and hatch her brood, or Edith will worry herself sick.

The Snakes are starting to get around now, and with the warmer weather, their mortality rate is going to be high. So far I don't think we have killed anymore than 25. We have hopes of getting at least 200 before the summer is over.

The other night we walked the beach on the south side. At least we call it a beach, but the amount of sand could be carried home in one very small pail. It's all rock and gravel. These are some of the things that were washed up on the shore; how they got there I don't know: 1 bedspring, 1 front seat of a car (vintage not known), tires by the score (none good), 1 kiddies' play cart, chairs, windows without glass, a fortune in empty beer and liquor bottles, wire fencing — as a matter of fact you name it, we have it. Thousands of feet of lumber of all sizes, from 1 x 2 to 18 x 12. The last one is about 40 feet long; it's a pip. Too bad I can't bring it home.

The birds are nearly all back with us now. Some of them look pretty grubby early in the mornings though (who doesn't!) Some small Thrush are hanging around the cottage, and with our canary at the window, he hears them singing and he has to outdo them. You'd think he was going to burst, the way he puffs up just to make more noise than the visitors.

Now I've got a story to tell you about Goldie. She's forever picking up old rags, wood, etc., and shaking them. The other day she picked up a piece of cloth that had some spring steel wire attached. When she pulled the rag the wire caught in some debris and held on until she loosened it with her tugging. Now, this is the funny part: the wire came back with a swish and cracked her right on the button. You never saw such a surprised dog! I think she thought it was a snake as she barked at it for about two minutes, then tried again — and the same thing happened. We nearly laughed ourselves sick!

Now this is a beef. I noticed in The Watchman where the Laurentian resorts and towns are going to have more publicity. Maybe I read it wrong, but where was Lachute on this? As usual, "good enough for father, good enough for me." If only someone in Lachute could get some of the supposed "live wires" sparking instead of talking, maybe something could be done. One of the stores up this way had a sign in the window for the local citizens: "Do it now, the Tourist is your bread and butter." I thought that was good. We in Lachute have, as I've always said, the best fishing spots in the country. That includes the North River too. To most people it's just a stinking old river. If it is, then THEY made it like that, not nature. Just civilized people. With just a little more care being taken, the results would show themselves in very short order.

When you stop and figure things out, the more money brought into a district, the lower the services cost. But to put it very plainly, the only thing most people care about in Lachute is themselves. That's plain enough!

Today the fog was so thick that you could really see it moving through the trees. The boats out on the lake had a field day, blowing their whistles and horns. It sure sounded queer, not seeing a thing yet knowing there was something out there. Even the horns sounded muffled; and on top of that all the lighthouse fog horns were blowing — and when you figure that there are about 10 houses within 20 miles, you sure do pick up some noise. I'd like to have a tape recorder just to get some of the sounds we hear; of course we all hear these noises but in the city or town you just don't pay any attention. . . .

The same with the birds and insects. There isn't the time to stop and watch all these things. It's too bad, in a way, because we can learn a lot. Ever try watching a Spider and the way it weaves its web? Or how about watching a bird building a nest? The finest builders in the world can learn from them. We have a swallow in the barn that has built a nest on a single thin wire about 16 feet in the air. All that is holding it is the wire. I know there isn't a human going that could build anything in proportion to that nest, and have it hold. The way the grass and twigs are woven into it and around the wire, it's hard to believe that it's just a bird that did it. . . . That goes for the Ducks and any other bird. . . Truly we aren't so smart.

Finally, a tip for the sportsman: A sportsman is also a gentleman. Respect other people's property and rights as if they were your own.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

What is an ideal vacation?

Everyone has his own answer. And everyone is right.

According to a leading psychiatrist, the most satisfying — and beneficial — vacation is "time to spend as you like, for playing in contrast to working. A vacation must fit the individual, his resources — and his needs".

He says that this sort of vacation helps prevent emotional problems from forming and improves present mental health.

There are three points to check in planning your ideal vacation:

(1) It should "refuel" you — that is, afford mental relaxation. Don't think about your job. If you like physical exercise, go ahead. Afterwards, you can rest. But mental weariness leads only to tension.

(2) It should enrich your interests. As the doctor says "New techniques, new information may be as satisfying to acquire as a new coat of tan". For some, this means travel — seeing new places, learning new customs. For others, reading, visiting museums, going to music festivals, even writing a book.

(3) It should provide a change. If you're a city-dweller, motor to the wide open spaces. If you deal with people all the time, head for the woods or a lonely beach.

Doré restocking program completed

The restocking of lakes and rivers with doré from Missisquoi Bay has been completed this year without the loss of a fish — Richmond Pelletier, director of Molson's Fishing Club, reports.

This program is sponsored by the Quebec Department of Fish and Game, which supervises the netting of the doré by commercial fishermen. Molson's Fishing Club transports the doré free for the clubs and associations. The total number requested by clubs and associations this year was slightly less than last year, and it was possible to fill all requests. The trucks, equipped with special tanks, travelled 12,879 miles, and delivered 15,733 doré to 22 different lakes and rivers without the loss of a fish.

An increasing number of anglers have shown their interest in the Molson's Fishing Tournament, and to date 91 clubs and associations have registered in the contest. Several are planning one or two-day derbies as part of their summer activities.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

For preservation of property

THE DANGER of grass fires spreading beyond control was illustrated by an instance cited two weeks ago in C.I.P. Woods Notes, and quoted in these pages. Such stories are a warning in themselves; they need no editorial emphasis. However, there are always folks who do not care to heed them.

To a report on local fires, this week our Brownsburg correspondent adds a comment which we reproduce herewith, as most appropriate to this column:

"The Fire Chief's report listed a total of five fires. The major fuel in three of these was grass and leaves. Thousands of people burn dead grass, leaves and accumulated rubbish each spring, and thousands end up with fires which they cannot control, simply because they do not provide adequate safeguards to prevent them from getting out of hand. Two simple precautions could save a great deal of worry and expense — before starting the fire, bring the garden hose to the immediate area, then keep the fire confined to a small space."

Industries are a community boon

NORMALLY few of us give much thought to the impact of industry on a community — says a weekly exchange. Only when there is a disaster or a major strike in a one-industry town — Springhill and Sudbury are practical examples — do we realize how much we ordinarily take for granted.

In this, as in most other matters, there is some advantage in beginning at the beginning. Thus, the building of a new factory in or near a community means, of course, more jobs for those who live in the area.

But it goes much deeper than that. Usually, this sets off a chain-reaction which results in the expansion of the whole community, making for a pronounced increase in the level of local prosperity. The availability of jobs attracts workers from elsewhere; there are more marriages, more sales for local merchants, more services, more development, more children.

These things are well brought out in the results of a study recently undertaken by the research and development department of Canadian National Railways, and published in pamphlet form under the title "What Increased Manufacturing Employment Meant to Community Growth."

The study considered the economic changes which took place in nine different Canadian communities between 1941 and 1951. Six of the communities are in Ontario (Belleville, Chatham, Cornwall, Peterborough, Stratford and Woodstock), and three are in Quebec (Granby, Joliette and St. Jerome).

Briefly, the study revealed that 100 additional manufacturing workers meant to their community:

427 more people, 131 more households, 66 more school children, 117 more workers employed other than in manufacturing, 187 more motor vehicles registrations, 393 more telephones, 3 more retail establishments, $939,000 more retail sales per year.

Those responsible for the study stress the inadvisability of generalizing from the particular conclusions detailed in the pamphlet (all the nine communities' studies conformed to certain important criteria). Nevertheless, theirs is a valuable guide that points up in vivid terms the effect of manufacturing expansion on community growth.

Railway matters and taxpayers' interests

AUDITOR-GENERAL Watson Sellar said just recently that every civil servant lives in "fear" of Parliamentary committees. . . . But as the Commons railway committee began looking into multi-million-dollar operations of the CNR, the railway's president, Donald Gordon, indicated he may be among the exceptions.

Putting his $75,000-a-year job on the line, Mr. Gordon snapped at the committee: "If you come to the conclusion that we are not an efficient management, for God's sake fire the lot of us."

Mr. Gordon contended the committee was wasting time on minor matters. He said it should be more concerned with how the publicly-owned CNR is to eliminate its deficit — forecast at $34,400,000 this year — rather than with train meals.

Concerning this immense enterprise which is of very direct interest to Canadian taxpayers — questions by the members elicited these points:

The CNR expects to have its program of switching to diesel locomotives completed by the end of 1960 at a total cost of about $480,000,000.

Soon the CNR will seek $15,000,000 from the federal treasury to increase its trucking service substantially.

The line dropped $38,000,000 on passenger service in 1958, but now has no thought of discontinuing some trans-continental lines; CNR management had erred in considering this last fall.

Foreseen by the railway: the day when trains, controlled automatically, may be running without crews on some specialized services.

The CNR has no intention of building new hotels anywhere; the Queen Elizabeth hotel in Montreal was the only exception — at a cost of $25,000,000.

Trans-Canada Air Lines, which comes under the CNR, is fearful of Canadian Pacific Airlines competition and also is facing a "somewhat horrid" prospect of keeping up with newer planes.

Outside the House, the railways were pushed into a safety measure by the Board of Transport Commissioners — and this, too, is of personal interest to all mobile Canadians: Both the CNR and CPR were ordered to start putting reflecting markings — easily seen by motorists — on the sides of boxcars for a 20-month trial.

Life in Parliament

THE FACT THAT a recent national sport spectacle on television coincided with a scanty attendance in the House of Commons, was noted by Ottawa observers!

The subsequent speculation seems to boil down to this: Are members of parliament, like many other Canadians, particularly fond of hockey, and is there in fact any connection between low attendance in Commons and hockey on television?

Or is it simply that a lot of MPs feel they have more urgent business than listening to each other in debate?

Perhaps both schools of thought apply.

The circumstances are that, during the eight-day debate on the budget, attendance in the 263-member Commons dropped to lows of 24, 25 or 30 and 40. This is getting to the point where House business ceases because of lack of a quorum — which is 20 MPs including the Speaker.

The budget debate speeches may be a contributing factor. The budget debate — like the debate on the speech from the throne — is one of the few occasions when the backbenchers get a chance to speak on almost any subject they choose.

What happens then? Many choose to talk about the place they know best — their own constituency with its charms and problems.

Thus, other MPs are regaled — if they are present — by the state of affairs in Huckleberry-Bowsnitch, that little chunk of Eden rich in pitprops, loganberries, cod, or wheat, oil and beautiful scenery.

In all fairness, it cannot be said that this constitutes the soul-stirring oratory guaranteed to pin listeners to their seats. In fact, it is understandable that the appeal of a television screen featuring two teams fighting for the highest hockey award may be considerably greater.

There is a dilemma here. But, for one, The Ottawa Journal has no doubt about which alternative should be followed, and it said so bluntly in an editorial: "Members of Parliament were not paid to come to watch hockey games on television."

Viewpoints and perspectives

BIG CROP OF TEENAGERS — From the high schools all across the country there are emerging this summer some 200,000 young graduates. Of these about 10% — no more — will be heading for University. Others will stay outside the permanent labor force for other reasons — including, in the case of the young women, matrimony. But there will remain a larger number of eager young first-time job applicants than our economy has been accustomed to absorbing.

This year's graduates, of course, are just the leading edge of the wave of young Canadians born in the days of the baby boom. From now on, we will have to deal seriously and effectively with the problem of fitting these young people smoothly into jobs.

What Blind man founded a well-known firm?

Sir Charles William Lindsay, founder of the Montreal firm of C. W. Lindsay, which became one of the largest musical-instrument businesses in Canada. Sir Charles, who lived all his life in Montreal, was born in 1856 and died in 1939. At the age of 19 he lost his eyesight but immediately went to a special school where he became an expert in piano tuning. Two years later, at the age of 21, he established his firm. He was a generous benefactor of many Montreal hospitals and welfare institutions and in 1935 he was knighted.

What Canadian settlement was occupied by U.S. Marines?

Argentia in Newfoundland. This fishing settlement was occupied by a detachment of United States Marines on Jan 25, 1941, to establish the first lend-lease base acquired from the British Government. Most of the 700 inhabitants at that time moved to Freshwater, a new town a few miles away. Argentia is situated on Placentia Bay on Newfoundland's south coast, about 82 miles from St. John's. The anchorage used by Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt for their Atlantic Charter meeting in August 1941 was near Argentia. To commemorate this event a memorial chapel has been built at the base.

Who adopted his father's murderer as a foster father?

Maskepetoon, the great Woodland Cree warrior chief and peacemaker, who was born about 1880 and died in 1869. Having established his reputation as the greatest warrior in what is now Alberta, he forsook his warlike ways while still a young man to attain even greater fame as a peacemaker. When his father was murdered by a Blackfoot warrior, he set an example of magnanimity be adopting the killer as a foster parent. Maskepetoon Park, a wildlife sanctuary on the Red Deer River, was dedicated in 1957 to the memory of the Indian peacemaker.

Who provided a Canadian refuge for Jefferson Davis?

Publisher John Lovell of Montreal. Not long after the American Civil War the former president of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis, took refuge with his family in Lovell's Montreal home, situated on the present site of Morgan's department store. Lovell, who was born in Ireland, came to Canada with his parents at the age of ten in 1820 and set up his own printing shop in Montreal in 1835. He is best known as the publisher of the first Canadian school textbooks and of a series of directories. He imported the first steam printing press brought to Canada. Lovell died in Montreal in 1893.

Old resident has memories of long-ago scenes

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The writer of this letter was born in Ottawa in 1874, a son of Thomas Weir who died in Cushing, Que., in 1925. He recalls that his father worked on the Dufferin Bridge in 1873-74; this bridge is now a thing of the past. . . . Many old readers will be interested in Mr. Weir's recollections.

2 Caroline Ave., Ottawa

Having lived in Lachute when I was a young lad about 1882 or 1883, I have memories of various scenes and happenings; I sometimes wonder how many of these are remembered in Lachute today.

While in Lachute my father was engineer in the Campbell & McKenzie saw mill. This mill was at the bend of the street which followed the curve of the river. The logs passed under the street to the mill. On this street was the Baptist Church and Todd's Store. The mill did not last very long.

I attended school just opposite Fish's Bridge — just one room. . . . Mr. Fish was my Sunday School teacher, and I thought him a very fine man.

We had a cow and pastured her down on Cruise's Farm. Peter Cruise went to school when I did; he was a little older than I.

On my way home after pasturing the cow, I would look in the windows of the McOuat & McRae Foundry, quite amazed to see the sparks fly about when they poured the molten metal. I became a great admirer of Mr. T. McOuat, and still count Arthur as a good friend.

Another memory is the Rope Walk; I would go with Pete Cruise to round up their horses, to haul rope to the station, or hemp from the station to the rope walk.

Another figure prominent in my memory — and one I would like to know more about, is Mr. Ireland— who I understand was experimenting on rolling oats. He used a part of the grist mill. I felt I was helping him a whole lot. He had a device for raising a bag of oats to an upper floor, and I would hook a hook which was attached to the end of a rope into the top of a bag of oats. Then pull a cord which put the device into action, and up would go the bag through a pair of trap doors to the upper floor.

Up to this time we used oat meal, so I wonder if Mr. Ireland was the inventor of rolled oats, if so why have we not heard more about it — and him.

Sincerely,
Arthur Weir

Responding to popular demand, we take pleasure in re-printing some of Uncle Walt's earlier verses (1950-1951). This one and others were specially contributed and exclusive to The Lachute Watchman.

UNCLE WALT'S GARDEN

Each Springtime I am fired with a yen to do some deeds — that mainly are inspired by a Catalog of Seeds. This Spring is no exception, so in my easy chair — with a newly sharpened pencil, my garden I prepare. — There were a lot of reasons that past crops had to die — for they were caused by seasons too cold, too hot, too dry. . . . This year will be a honey for Spring is here at last. I'll save a lot of money, my stuff will grow so fast: I'll make the neighbors jealous, they'll watch my garden grow, and lots of City Fellows will offer me their dough for products of my Beanstalks, my Cabbage and my Kale, my Celery and Green Stuff — they'll buy it by the bale!

"Gigantics" and "Colossals", the Catalog says here. None of those shrivelled fossils, that I dug up last year. One year I made an error. I specialized on Corn, and worked like holy terror till I was tired and worn. I seeded and I weeded and I fired at the crows. I got the things I needed, like shovels, rakes and hoes. Then one night in September, beneath the Harvest Moon, I vividly remember, there came a fat Raccoon. He called in all his neighbors. They chewed off every ear and nullified the labors on which I'd spent a year. . . .

With Catalog and Pencil, my list is now complete. By using common sense I'll have more than I can eat. I'll have a lot left over — enough to feed a hog. Have you seen the pretty cover on the new Seed Catalog?

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

When our dog was run over I made the usual resolution: no more dogs.

Some kind people telephoned, and offered me a new one. "Thanks, but we've decided against having any more dogs," I said.

"Wonderful with children," said the voice at the far end. "We happen to be driving past your place today. Could we drop in and bring the dog, just so that you could take a look at him anyway?"

"Certainly," I said. "Of course, nothing will change my mind."

We now have a dog. He's a small, black-and-white, excitable fellow, one-year old, mostly border collie, known as Sunday. He came to us already equipped with that name.

He was fairly subdued at first, and never barked, but wandered away the first time he was let out of the house, and disappeared for about an hour.

A small boy arrived to report that the dog had been sighted near the store. We went after him with the car, and soon spotted him weaving amiably along in company with a spaniel. He jumped into the car as soon as we called.

He vanished again the next day, and we began to fear that he was a real tramp dog, one of the kind that acknowledge no home. His tendency to wander was one reason why his old owners got rid of him.

But he came back to us after an absence of an hour, wriggling his whole torso with pleasure. Apparently he had accepted us and the house.

He goes upstairs every night with the boys, and lies down to rest on their bedroom floor. Early in the morning he barks to be let out. When we open the door he rushes out and back in almost at once, and begins to paw and lick at the older boy's faces, until John is awake.

While he was still unsure of himself, he would sit quietly in the car and wait for us. Now that he has gained confidence, he yips and barks impatiently until we come back — even if we have dodged into a store for half a minute.

He has already chewed up a slipper and torn a sheet beyond repair. He's a sniffling, pawing, barking nuisance. But when any of us leaves the house for even a short while, he welcomes us as though we were pilgrims returned from the East.

We have a dog.

May meetings of Women's Inst. county branches

Reporting for the month of May, the Women's Institute branch at Arundel enjoyed pictures of a recent trip to Mexico, shown by one of their guests.

Indications point to a busy summer for the Brownsburg branch. Plans were made for exhibiting at Lachute and Ottawa Fairs, as well as catering for the graduation supper and a wedding.

Dalesville members had as their roll-call "A Tourist Attraction in Argenteuil." The publicity convener spoke on ways and means to publicize the Institute.

Frontier members heard an article on "How to beautify the back yard." They held an auction of plants and bulbs, and are planning a home-cooking sale on June 27 at Elliott's Hall.

Jerusalem - Bethany branch is planning a picnic in July. A gift was sent to a bride, also one given to a member who is moving to Ontario.

Lachute ladies heard a talk on the Care of Eyesight.

Lakefield branch made plans to cater to a wedding reception and sent fruit to two sick members.

Morin Heights had two speakers on Health and Welfare topics — a nursing-sister who spoke on "Keeping Healthy" and the local police officer, on "Relationship of Youth and the Police." Two new members were welcomed at this meeting.

Upper Lachute - East End held a cookie contest, and discussed holding a card party as a means of raising money for the proposed Home for the Aged.

To sing in opera this week

Singing in the 10th season production of the Ottawa Grand Opera Association (Verdi's La Traviata) to be presented May 21 and 23 in the Ottawa Technical School — is a local tenor, Robert Haydon, of Upper Lachute. Mr. Haydon sings the leading male role as Alfredo. He has attended rehearsals for this opera under the baton of H. Bramwell Bailey during the past few weeks.

Prominent speaker on Education

The Argenteuil Teachers' Association announces it will sponsor a public lecture on Education, at 8.30 p.m. on May 27, in the Lachute High School auditorium. The address will be on "The Crisis in Education". The speaker will be Prof. C. Wayne Hall, of the Institute of Education, Macdonald College. Prof. Hall is a graduate of Bishop's University, a former supervisor of English, a former inspector of schools, the author of several articles on Education, and presently is professor of Education at Macdonald College.

Two hundred teachers from Two Mountains, the Laurentians and Argenteuil will attend.

The Association urges that the public take this opportunity to attend and hear the latest views on Education as presented by one of the best and most authoritative speakers in this field.

Holiday rally held by Associated Gospel Churches

A group of the Associated Gospel Churches in the Province of Quebec were entertained at the People's Church, Lachute, over the Victoria Day holiday.

The afternoon was spent in recreation and the People's Church, Montreal, and the People's Church, Lachute, combined against the Onward Gospel Church, Verdun, and the Grace Gospel Church, Ville La Salle, in a very spirited softball game. The Onward combination held a slight edge in the play until the ninth inning, when People's combination pulled up even. With the score tied at 13-13, an extra inning was played and the Onward team won out 15-13.

The volleyball game was also hotly contested and enjoyed by all who participated.

Appreciation is due to Mr. Cres Hadley for granting the use of his field for the sports events.

At 5 p.m. the guests sat down to a picnic supper, and the ladies of the Lachute church did a commendable job in supplying tea, milk and lemonade.

The old folks sat around and enjoyed the quiet and calm of the countryside, which was a pleasant change from the busy city.

The evening service was held in the Lachute Auditorium, and about 150 people gathered there for the devotions. The Rev. Britton led in the opening prayer, representing Grace Church on the platform, and Bro. Henry Robinson, choir leader from the People's Church, Montreal, led in a rousing song service. The Rev. John Dempster read the Scripture.

The Rev. Ed Erickson, a world-travelled evangelist, was the guest speaker and brought an interesting and inspiring message.

Each of the churches represented contributed special music, and one of the young men from People's Church, Montreal, closed with prayer.

Pastor C. W. Sorley, of the host church conducted the service.

A very favorable impression was created upon the guests by the beauty of the countryside, and the hospitality of the people in Lachute.

The local congregation are grateful to the Town Council for permitting the use of the Auditorium for this happy occasion.

Sermonette — contributed by the Rev. John C. Shrier, pastor of Brownsburg Pentecostal Assembly.

This is a court scene in the corner of a palace. The place is a city called Caesarea about the year A.D. 60. King Agrippa is on the judgment seat. His sister, Bernice, is at his side as outwardly fair and she is inwardly rotten. King Agrippa, in the silence following Governor Felix' address, speaks and says unto Paul, "Thou art permitted to speak for thyself." . . . Thus the setting of our text "This thing was not done in a corner."

The Works of Jesus

The Works of Christ which he performed in his three years of earthly ministry were not done in any one corner. Luke 4:14-15 says, "And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee, and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about. And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all."

In a corner of Nazareth he taught in power. In a corner of Capernaum he commanded demons to depart until people being gathered together were amazed, saying "What a word is this." All such teachings and works carried such import for the world that they became universalized.

I want you to see Christ, not as a street corner preacher but, rather, as the greatest influence and power ever to contact man in word and deed. He was the effulgence of heaven 'brightening the pathway of humanity by his personal actions.

The Work of Calvary

Calvary, that epic pageantry of blood and sweat, of struggle and tears, was not done in a corner. The work of Calvary is the time clock of History, all before it being B.C., all after it A.D. Christ was the centre of all conversation and thought. His death was the greatest interest to the then known world.

At the foot of the cross all worlds were represented. The priests mocking him represent the religious world. The passers-by wagging their heads represent the world of common folk. The soldiers, that brought him to the governor's hall then led him to the brow of Calvary's hill, represented the military world. The thieves "casting the same in his teeth" represented the underworld.

It matters not what world you live in you too stand at the foot of Calvary and the question is "What will you do with Jesus?" As these have accounted for what they saw so will you give account.

The Work of the Holy Spirit

The person of the Holy Spirit, acting in the capacity of a Paraclete, came to work miracles through Jesus' name. The work of the Holy Spirit, coming to replace the personal presence of Jesus, was not done in a corner. He came in an upper room. This would seem to limit Him to that corner but the miracle accompanying him caused it to be "noised abroad."

The suppositions advanced by man provoked Him to stir Peter's heart to preach. His work began in Peter but finished in the souls of 3,000 men, transforming them into "new creatures."

The Work of the Holy Spirit did not end there, it spread across the then known world like fire. This work showed itself everywhere, transforming crippled bodies and breaking the chains of sin in sunder. The end of all God's doing, unlike fleshly gratification, is to glorify His Son — and this is not done in a corner.

BELL LINES

by Dick Pearson
your telephone manager

The question often has been asked of us: "Why do you take the trouble to advertise when you know that for most of us in Ontario and Quebec it's got to be Bell Telephone service or no service at all?" Were it simply a case of providing service of some sort or another here and there without thought of anything more, possibly we wouldn't advertise; but this is not the case at all. We want people to have the sort of service that is best suited for their requirements; we like to see them get their full money's worth from the services we provide. In order to do this, people need to know something about the many services we have to offer. And so we advertise to inform the public about our services. But more than that, we advertise to tell people about our employees, our plans for the future, even our accomplishments and our problems. In this regard, we strive for increased public understanding and co-operation, which we are convinced brings greater satisfaction, higher revenues and lower-cost operation, to the advantage of customers, employees and shareholders alike.

Here we show an apparatus you may have seen working around Lachute, called a Teista-Lift. It's not a crane to erect poles or lift materials, but is used only to lift a lineman and some of his small hardware up to the poles to place wires and cables. This eliminates the tedious climbing and many hazards and allows us to get at poles that are practically inaccessible because of heavy snows or wide ditches. Electric outlets are provided in the "basket" which enables the use of power tools. These operate from electric generators run by a separate gas motor which also moves and places the "basket" wherever the lineman wants it. There is two-way radio communication between the "basket" and the driver in the truck. Made in California, this machine is estimated to cut down the heavy work of our linemen by 30% or more, enabling us to give our customers the telephone services they need more quickly.

In assuming that the kitchen telephone is something more than a convenience you could be "quite white" — and this is no typographical error, for white is what housewives have asked for and white is what the Bell Telephone now has to offer. New, glittering white wall telephones are the latest thing; they match appliances such as stoves and refrigerators to perfection. Once the busy housewife starts work in the kitchen she cannot easily tear herself away; nor should she for the sake of a telephone call. The kitchen is a logical place for an extension telephone and white is the logical color for it. When you see the white kitchen wall set (now on display in our office), you'll agree that it is, in every sense, "quite white."

Turkey in new form – now drawn and quartered

Spurring sales in poultry is the comparatively new idea of half or quarter turkeys. This fills the bill for the housewife who wants turkey — but not the 20 pounds of it at one time.

The Agriculture Department and the Poultry Products Institute are co-operating to introduce this new merchandising approach on a national scale. It has already become popular in Toronto and Montreal.

If your fancy runs to turkey but you can't handle a 20-lb.-plus bird, ask for a quarter or a half. The trade is offering cut-up turkey attractively packaged, as an inducement to the consumer who can't get a poult and doesn't want a heavy-weight. For contrast a whole bird is shown (left), and the quarter section demonstrates a neat cutting job (right).

Monthly meeting of Lachute W.I.

The monthly meeting of the Lachute branch of the Women's Institute was held in the Legion Hall, Mrs. J. A. Gordon in the chair.

A report on the County Convention was given by Mrs. G. Leggett. Members exhibiting handicrafts at the Fair were reminded that entries should be sent in on the Tuesday morning. Items of W.I. news are now being published in the Macdonald Magazine, copies of which sent to all members.

The program was under the chairmanship of the Publicity convener, Mrs. W. Y. Shearsmith, who introduced the speaker, Mrs. E. J. Rogers. The talk concerned the care of the eyes, and Mrs. Rogers showed how by exercises the muscles could be strengthened. Eyestrain could be avoided, she said, by relaxing and rest. To ensure good eyesight, the inclusion of foods containing vitamins A and B2 in the diet is advisable.

Mrs. Shearsmith thanked the speaker, after which tea was served.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's been some buzzing among various large organizations of women in Canada about a gift for the Queen. The suggestion is a scholarship or scholarships for Canadian women.

The idea got rolling when Anne Francis, an Ottawa newspaper columnist, wrote that a British friend of hers had suggested that a good gift for the Queen would be a couple of scholarships for outstanding women equivalent to the Rhodes scholarships for men.

The idea apparently will come in for a lot of discussions — and possibly some action — before Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrive in Canada June 18 for their cross-country tour.

On a national basis, the Canadian Federation of University Women has proposed that Canada's gift be in the form of donations to establish a permanent fund for graduate scholarships for women. The suggestion has gone to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Much Support

A "what-do-you-think" poll taken in Ottawa found plenty of support for the scholarship idea from club women and other interested citizens.

Dr. A. W. Trueman, director of the Canada Council, said he thought scholarships would be a "most appropriate gift," and suggested this might be a project for the country's national women's organizations.

"A fine idea," says Davidson Dunton, Carleton University president. But he said the awards should go to men and women on an equal basis.

Then, there were reports that the Queen herself had suggested that money which might otherwise be spent on gifts might go toward establishing Queen's Scholarships.

But as Canadian Esmond Butler, assistant press secretary to the Queen, put it, the question of gifts is something that in the final analysis must be left to the giver.

Tulip Festival Time in Ottawa

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Ottawa is a beautiful city at any time in the year. Once we motored through it, after visiting the Parliament Buildings, on a golden summer day. We have been there in the Autumn when the maples were aflame with color, and we have seen it covered with a mantle of snow. But best of all we have visited Canada's Capital during the Tulip Festival in May. This colorful event is one of Canada's greatest tourist attractions, second only to Niagara Falls.

There we saw many of the million tulips in bloom, the largest public display on this continent. There were 29 main beds along Ottawa's Tulip Route of 33 miles through the heart of the city, along the Driveway past the Governor General's Residence, in Rockcliffe Park and out to the Experimental Farm.

The wild tulips received their name because to the Turks they resembled turbans. The Federal District Commission has planted large beds around the Parliament Buildings and monuments and on the slopes and curves of the roads so that they can be easily seen by both motorists and pedestrians. There are over two-hundred varieties of tulips. The other flowering bulbs have not been forgotten and there are a million and a half blooms of these, mainly daffodils and crocuses.

Tulips were planted in Ottawa over 60 years ago. But it was not until after World War II that Canada's Capital became famous for her Tulip Festival. Queen Juliana of the Netherlands sent a gift of bulbs to Ottawa as a thank-you gift for the haven this city had been to her and her family during the war. She pledged additional bulbs each year during her life time. The people of the Netherlands added more bulbs to her gift, to show their appreciation for all the Canadians had done to liberate their beloved country from the Nazis.

One thing the dazzling beauty of Ottawa's Tulip Festival has done is that it has made Canadians more flower conscious. The only place in Canada where flowering bulbs can be produced for commercial marketing is in certain areas of British Columbia. The great bulk of our bulbs is imported from the Netherlands. In the spring, after the long winter, tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocuses, scillia and grape hyacinths are most welcome.

A visit to our Federal Capital, especially during Festival time, is a never-to-be-forgotten pleasure for a Canadian of any age. Do take your son or daughter to visit your provincial capital, if you cannot get to Ottawa! Some time in your life, if at all possible, plan to make this Ottawa visit when the spring flowers are at their best.

When we lived in the East we took our three children, when they were public school age to visit first their provincial capital and later to Ottawa. This was very worth while.

The English poet, A. E. Housman, wrote in "Later Poems" these lines referring to cherry blossoms:

"And since to look at things in bloom
Sixty Springs were little room
About the woodland I will go,
To see the cherry clothed in snow. . . "

Perhaps if he had visited Ottawa in May he might have substituted for the last two lines words something like this,

"About the Driveway I will go,
To see the tulips where they grow!"

Wife Preservers

Now that winter's over, wash fleece-lined boots (rubber, plastic or nylon) inside and out, dry thoroughly, fill with tissue and store in a cool, dark place.

Let's Eat

BY

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Chicken Soup Giblet Balls
Tongue Braised with Potatoes
Horse-radish Sauce
Spinach with Celery
Banana-Strawberry Cup
Coffee Tea Milk

TRICK OF THE CHEF

Stir into cooked, drained spinach and celery one tablespoon flour, ¼ teaspoon onion powder and ⅓ cup cream. Stir until bubbling.

Serve very hot. Garnish with sizzling croutons.

To Cook Poultry Giblets: Wash and cut open the heart; remove any tubes. Pull the inner lining from the gizzard. Look the liver over, and if any part looks green, carefully snip it out with scissors.

Put the heart and gizard in a saucepan. Add two cups boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt and one bayleaf. Cover. Simmer-boil 45 minutes.

Add the liver; simmer 15 minutes more. The liquid will be largely evaporated.

Ways to Use Cooked Poultry Giblets: Small-chopped, cooked poultry giblets are very good for breakfast or lunch when added to an omelet. Or combine with poultry gravy, spoon into shirred egg dishes or little cocottes, break an egg into each, add salt and pepper, a dot of butter and bake until firm.

Side Dishes

For side dishes at dinner, I recommend adding the chopped giblets to Spanish rice or wheat pilaf to accompany poultry. They are also very tasty when simmered in a ragout of spring vegetables.

My favorite is giblet balls for chicken soup, homemade or canned.

Giblet Balls for Chicken Soup: To one set chopped, cooked chicken giblets and the liquid, add ½ cup leftover cooked brown rice and ½ unbeaten egg white.

Sir in ⅛ teaspoon thyme; continue to stir until the mixture holds together. Cool; make into balls containing a heaping tablespoon each. Poach five minutes or until firm in a little of the soup.

HOMES FOR AGED

Edmonton (CP)—Provincial government officials are putting the finishing touches on plans to start construction of 52 homes for the aged throughout Alberta.

Skim milk powder versatile product, proved by tests

(Consumer Section)

Instant skim milk powder is one of the most amazing and versatile food products available on your grocer's shelves. Tests by the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, confirm this fact, as you can readily see from some of their findings.

In taste panels of impartial judges, it has been proven that, for increased food value, skim milk powder may be added to many foods without altering the taste or texture appreciably. For example, skim milk powder may be included up to ¼ cup per pound of meat in meat loaves or meat patties; up to ¼ cup (for 6 medium potatoes) in mashed potatoes; or up to ¼ cup for each cup of water used in cooking cereals such as cracked wheat, farina and oatmeal.

Light Desserts

Another interesting phase has been the development of many new recipes for light desserts. These desserts score both for their delightful flavors and the fact that most desserts made with skim milk powder are not too high in calories.

All of these desserts start with Basic Whip made from skim milk powder, cold water and lemon juice. Sugar and fruit, maple syrup, cocoa or nuts, etc. are folded or beaten into the mixture to make whips, frozen desserts and (with the addition of gelatine) sponge desserts.

Basic Whip

½ Cup cold water, 2 to 3 teaspoons lemon juice, ⅔ cup skim milk powder, few grains salt.

Measure water and lemon juice into a deep bowl. Add skim milk powder and salt, blend well, then whip until mixture stands in firm peaks. This takes about 5 minutes beating with a rotary beater or with an electric beater set at medium-high speed.

Orange Whip (a favorite)

Make Basic Whip using 3 teaspoons lemon juice, add ¼ cup sugar gradually, beating until blended. Then beat in ⅔ cup fresh orange juice adding a little at a time. Finally, stir in ¼ teaspoon grated orange rind. Serve in sherbet glasses; 6 servings.

Note: 3 to 4 tablespoons concentrated orange juice may be used in place of the fresh juice and rind.

Orange Frosty

Make the same as Orange Whip. Turn mixture into freezer trays and freeze for 1½ to 2 hours; 6 servings.

Mocha Frosty

Make Basic Whip using 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Mix together ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cocoa, ½ teaspoon instant coffee and stir in 1 tablespoon water. Blend quickly but lightly into Basic Whip and immediately turn into freezer trays. Freeze 1½ to 2 hours. Serve with a garnish of sliced Brazil nuts; 6 servings.

Strawberry Sponge

Thaw one 15-ounce package frozen sliced strawberries and let drain in a sieve 10 minutes, reserving syrup. Soak 1 tablespoon gelatine in ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes, then melt over hot water.

Meanwhile, make Basic Whip using 3 teaspoons lemon juice. Beat in ¼ cup sugar and the melted gelatine, then the strawberry syrup.

Combine strawberries with 1 tablespoon lemon juice and fold into whipped mixture. Turn into a mold and chill until firm, about 3 hours; 6 servings.

Back to Childhood Home

It is not given to many men when they give up farming to retire to the home of their childhood — as Mr. Earl Bryerton has done. Having sold his farm to Mr. Bilodeau of Montreal, he moved this week to his old home on the outskirts of Carillon. Mr. Thos. Chambers and sister, Harriet, of St. Philippe, purchased the house from Mr. Bryerton, Sr., and in turn left it to their niece, the late Mrs. Norman Rogers of Lachute, who in her lifetime sold it to a Mrs. Morrin from Montreal. The latter in turn has sold it to Mr. Bryerton. . . . Mr. Bryerton's farm home in Cushing is at present occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Du Fort and family, of Montreal, who are working the farm for Mr. Bilodeau.

Mrs. A. Kelly visited friends in Vankleek Hill, overnight Sunday, also on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cushing and daughter, Sherry, of Montreal, were at their cottage for the week-end.

Miss Olive Hartley, of Montreal, spent the long week-end with her sister, Mrs. J. D. Weir.

Carillon visitor wrote sonnet to Long Sault hero

Nathaniel A. Benson, well-known Canadian poet, with his wife and son Charles, spent a short holiday some time ago with his old friend, F. W. von Allmen, Carillon's ex-mayor, at the latter's "Ferme des Ormeaux". The occasion marked Mr. Benson's first visit to the historic site of Adam Dollard's immortal exploit at the Long - Sault about which Mr. Benson wrote his epic poem "Dollard: A Tale of the French Régime", in the early 30's. This poem of 1,100 lines in blank verse was termed by the late Sir Charles G. D. Roberts "the finest epic poem in Canadian literature".

Visiting the monument, the Musuem and the locks at Carillon, as well as viewing the rapids at sunset, Mr. Benson wrote a new short poem of 14 lines in tribute to Dollard, a sonnet which we are privileged to print in The Watchman by permission of Mr. Benson and his recent host, Mr. von Allmen.

HOMAGE TO DOLLARD DES ORMEAUX

Deep afterglow of sunset's royal gold
Flooding the swift Long-Sault's majestic reach
In homage to those paladins of old
Whose huge bateaux rest high on Honour's beach —
Broad sombre River, whose eternal song
Is linked forever with this matchless deed,
This flaming banner flung against brute-wrong,
A world-exemplar in all time of need. . . .

River of no return, deep golden Light
Bright Blazon kindled in heroic hearts:
Your three-fold symphony, through time's long night,
Still thunders forth, lightens our lesser parts,
Exhalting victory, glorying of the right
Won here so fiercely, once, that Memory starts!

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

If you're a passenger in a car, you can help the driver and have a more enjoyable trip if you'll follow these rules:-

(1) Don't open the rear windows. It causes a draft on the back-of-the neck of those in the front seat.

(2) Don't lean forward and breathe down the neck of the driver. Just sit back and speak loudly enough to be heard clearly in front.

(3) Keep small children from climbing over into the front seat, from standing behind the driver, clutching at the back of the seat and blocking his rear vision.

(4) Don't turn on the overhead light at night unless the car is stopped. It will blind the driver.

(5) Don't shout instructions or say anything which will distract the driver, make him nervous or take his eyes off the road.

(6) If you're the "navigator", give directions far enough in advance so that the driver can make the turn easily.

(7) If driving conditions are bad, let the man at the wheel decide whether to push on or stop.

When you're a passenger, remember that it's the driver of the car who is the boss.

Tug-o'-war

— By Lewis Milligan —

"The progress of human society consists in the better and better apportioning of wages to work." . . .

That was written by Thomas Carlyle, the Scottish philosopher, about the middle of the nineteenth century, when wages were out of all proportion to work, and poverty was the lot of the workers of England. There were no labour unions in those days; but there was a movement on foot against the exploitation of labor by employers, which kept the workers in a state of poverty. It was not a socialist movement, but rather a religious one. Its prime leader was the Earl of Shaftsbury, a man of deep religious convictions who entered Parliament at the age of 25. He had studied conditions in London slums and was the first to propose measures of social reform. He secured the passage of a Factory Act, which limited daily hours of work to ten.

There was, therefore, a justification for Carlyle's statement, which went to the root of the problem of poverty at that time. Low wages were undoubtedly responsible for the prevalence of poverty and, on the other hand, for the wealth and luxury of the upper classes. Carlyle was appealing for a levelling-up of the rewards of labor to a fair proportion with the profits of their employers. He foresaw that it would be a slow process — "a better and better apportioning of wages to work." Since then that has been brought about partly by the organization of labor and, latterly, by collective bargaining, but mainly through invention and research which have increased the productivity of the average worker.

But the movement in recent years has run into reverse, and if Carlyle were writing today he might say that industrial balance and progress consist in the better apportioning of work to wages. That adjustment is not as simple a problem as the original one of the better apportioning of wages to work. With the advance of science and mechanics, and particularly the development of automation, the problem has become more and more complicated. So many factors, other than that of manual labor, contribute to production. A recent analysis by expert economists came to the conclusion that "there is no index yet to tell whether productivity rises enough to cover increased wage costs."

As I see it, there has been a constant tug-o'-war going on between organized labor and industry, and while labor appears to have won in this contest by obtaining higher and higher wages and fringe benefits, the general public has suffered higher prices, which have reduced the purchasing power of their wages, salaries, pensions, etc. Industry connot guarantee in advance a continual rise in wages, any more than it can assure a similar rise in profits to meet its maintenance depreciation and extension requirements. Any increase in production costs means higher prices for the products, which in turn deplete the buying power of the dollar and cancel out the wage increases of the workers themselves.

That is inflation. It puts more dollars into circulation, but with every "raise" they are lowered in value. Moreover, our back-log of savings and insurance has diminished in the process to a tithe of its original estate value. Thus inflation is all-round deflation. We cannot take out of the bank more than we put into it, but we are already overdrawn in credit and the government is backing us by increasing the national debt. The remedy is to put a stop to this perpetual tug-o'-war between organized labor and industry. It is a waste of energy which should be put into increasing production and trade. That is the only means of defeating inflation and maintaining our high standards of living.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

VERSATILE VITAMINS

Thanks to the British Navy we know the value of vitamins, for some 200 years ago the Admiralty accidentally learned that a daily ration of vitamin-rich lemon or lime juice would protect its sailors from scurvy. It was not until the early 1900's, however, that the name "vitamin" was actually applied to the naturally occurring substances since found so necessary for healthy life.

Modern scientists have determined the amounts of specific vitamins that man needs and thus enabled physicians to prescribe vitamins, either individually or in combination to combat dietary deficiencies.

Special formulations of vitamins help bolster the patient during especially trying periods of his life. For example, one multi-vitamin is specifically designed to fortify health requirements of the expectant mother. Also, multi-vitamins have been formulated to fill special needs of the patient undergoing physical or physiological stress, such as surgery, severe burns and serious infections.

The vitamins are quite versatile. Having proved their value in medical practice, they have also been put to good use in many industries, including cosmetics, baking, food packaging and photographic supplies.

Some of the vitamins are now being manufactured synthetically and are tailored to meet the specific needs of industry in which they are used. One of these, synthetic dry vitamin A, has been found useful as a skin nutrient in cosmetics. It is also used to enrich dry milk and other food products.

It is through the pioneering of the British Navy that we today recognize the versatile vitamins and enjoy healthier and happier days.

JOLSON NOTES

By Irvin R. Warwick

Since assuming increased responsibilities with the Al Jolson Memorial Club, I have found it difficult to find time to maintain this column on a regular basis. However, what better time to resume activities than on Al's birthday, occurring on May 26. To commemorate the occasion, we have writen to these radio programs for tributes on that date:

Rendezvous with Rod, CJAD 9-11 a.m.
Steve's Place, CFCF 6-7 p.m.
At Ease, CJAD 7.15-7.45 p.m.

There has been an upsurge in Jolson interest during the last several months. This has been sparked by the release of Al's old movies on TV. The first "talking picture", "The Jazz Singer", was revived in theatres in American cities with considerable success — of which more details later. The latest development is the issuing of another LP of songs by Al, entitled "Al Jolson Overseas". This is so new that even I have not heard it yet; however, judging from the list of song titles, Jolson fans are in for another treat.

YOUR HOUSE MAY NEED ANOTHER COAT

Experimental data presented by the U.S. Forest Products Laboratory shows that durability of paint depends on adequate thickness of coating regardless of the number of coats. Also, although sufficient thickness was attainable on new wood in two coats with paints formerly available, present paints may require three coats to attain the same thickness.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. I worked for a plywood company and was laid off when the plant was shut down for a week for repairs. At the end of the week the company informed me that there would be a further delay to secure new parts for the machines, and the plant would not re-open for about a month. I didn't put in a claim when I was first laid off because it wasn't worth while. Could I collect from the day I was laid off?

A. Your claim cannot be allowed from an earlier date unless you were prevented from filing because of circumstances beyond your control. This does not appear to be the case.

Q. I was on benefit six months ago, but I was disqualified as I left my job because of pregnancy. Can I collect benefits again?

A. If you are now genuinely interested in obtaining work you should register for employment at your local office. If there is no suitable work available you may then make a claim for benefit. Benefit will be allowed if you can meet the conditions and have made adequate arrangements for the care of your child in the event that you find work.

Veteran air pilot emphasizes safety

Victoria — (C) — White-bearded pilot O. P. Jones has flown 4,000,000 miles and says it is safer flying an airplane than driving a car. The 61-year-old "founder pilot" of Imperial Airways and of British Overseas Airways Corporation was here in the course of a world goodwill lecture tour.

"In the 1920's it was more dangerous to fly the English Chanel than it is to 'flip' the Atlantic today," he said.

He recalled flying the Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales, from Paris to London in 1926. "He was my first royal passenger and the first member of the British royal family to fly in a plane. The prince enjoyed himself hugely, but there was some headshaking at Buckingham Palace. They thought it much too dangerous."

Capt. Jones has flown kings, queens and princes all over the world. He piloted the first royal transatlantic flight when the Queen, then Princess Elizabeth, and Prince Philip flew to Canada in 1951.

A dapper, energetic figure looking much younger than his 60-odd birthdays, Capt. Jones has filled 22 logbooks and is working on No. 23.

Routine affairs at Ayersville Council session

Five tenders were received by Ayersville Council for the $30,000 bond issue authorized for public works on Bradford Street. Bids from Crédit Canadien Inc., J. F. Simard Ltée, René T. Leclerc, Crédit Québec Inc., and Bélanger Inc., respectively, were opened at the regular meeting chaired by Mayor Gaetan Paquette; they were held over for study and deliberation.

Councillor Wilfred Durocher gave notice that at a future meeting he would present a by-law for water and sewer works for a stretch of 400 feet on Richelieu Ave.

Councillor Maurice Dumas recommended that the next thoroughfare opened in the municipality be named "d'Youville" street. The proposal was left with the committee concerned.

Council decided to notify proprietors to keep their garbage on their own property, rather than place receptables on the street on collection day.

Councillor N. Corbeil proposed the purchase of an adding machine from Walker-Kingsbury Inc., as quoted; this was carried unanimously. Two other firms had submitted offers.

A communication was read from Canon Paul Manseau, director of Social Service for the diocese, inviting the Council to attend the annual meeting of this enterprise, at St. Jerome.

A protest was received from Mme A. E. Coderre on dimensions of her lot as inscribed on the property roll.

Tariffs topic at H'wksby group Chemical Institute

Canadians should insist on a national tariff policy consistent with national interest, according to Mr. R. B. MacPherson, economist with DuPont of Canada. Mr. MacPherson's lecture was delivered to the Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada on April 30 in the conference room of Industrial Cellulose Research Ltd.

Tariff protection should be extended wherever it can be shown that the higher cost of locally manufactured goods to the Canadian public is balanced by the increased purchasing power resulting from the transfer of a portion of the labour force to a higher productivity field. In general, this will not justify tariffs higher than 15 per cent. On the other hand, protective tariffs should not be granted to industries where economical production could only be achieved at volume levels far beyond domestic demand. Such industries would be forced to rely on exports to underdeveloped countries which are themselves rapidly industrializing. These propositions have been advanced in Mr. MacPherson's recently published book "Tariffs, Markets and Economic Progress."

Mr. MacPherson plans to describe his ideas on tariffs in a forthcoming coast-to-coast lecture tour.

The Hawkesbury Section of the C.I.C. will conclude its program for 1958-1959 with its annual general meeting and film night on Thursday, May 21.

Ayersville protest from home owners in hospital area

A dozen property-owners from Providence Blvd., Roy and Dupré Streets, appeared at the regular Ayersville Council session to lodge a protest against proposed water and sewer installation plans for this part of the municipality. Jean-Jacques Dupré, as spokesman for the group, presented a petition signed by 90 per cent of the proprietors involved.

Protest from Proprietors

According to these citizens, they have incurred considerable expense to sink individual wells and cesspools; now the Council proposes to burden them with the cost of public works, whereas the material used in their water systems and septic installations is all new, and adequately fills their needs.

One estimate on the cost of the proposed works sets the figure at $20 a foot of property frontage.

Mr. Dupré assured the Council, the ratepayers in that section had no objection to sanitary installations required for the new hospital, but they felt it was unnecessary to replace newly-installed systems in their homes a considerable distance from that site. "In a few years' time", said Mr. Dupré, "we will be ready to fall in with these plans, but for the moment we think they are premature, especially in view of the expense we have incurred."

Mayor Paquette, looking over the petition, expressed surprise to note the name of a former mayor who, during his term, had been instrumental in having the water and sewerage plans drawn up for this area. . . . "The Council will take your request into consideration," he said. "The best we can do for you at the moment is to re-study the whole problem."

Branches represented at W. Inst. 39th annual County convention

The Argenteuil Women's Institutes held their 39th annual convention in Arundel recently, with 130 members present. The meeting was chaired by Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, County president.

The proceedings opened with the reciting of the Ode and the Mary Stewart Collect, and a theme for the convention was suggested by Mrs. McGibbon, namely, "The Spirit of a Team."

The minutes of the 1958 convention were read by the secretary, Mrs. S. Smith, who also reported there were now 345 members in this County.

Mrs. L. Armstrong gave the treasurer's report, also stating that the Scholarship Loan Fund was the same as usual.

The County conveners then gave their respective reports. Mrs. C. Prosser, Fair Work Convener, advised the members that exhibits must be at the Exhibition Grounds on Tuesday, June 16, between 1.00 and 1.30 p.m., and must be left until Saturday, 4.00 p.m.

Mrs. M. W. Wilson gave a report on the proposed Home for the Aged. It was suggested that each branch have a special event and publicize it on behalf of the Home, to raise money instead of taking it out of the funds.

Mrs. McGibbon stated the County Institutes were proud that an essay by one of their members, on "Things My Grandmother Taught Me", had been chosen to be sent to Britain. This essay was written by Mrs. A. Graham, of Frontier branch.

It was also reported by Mrs. McGibbon that during the past year she had visited eight branches, and she hopes to visit all branches this year. However, Mrs. McGibbon expects to be away from July 14 until early in September, being a voting delegate at the A.C.W.W. Convention in Edinburgh, Scotland. She will welcome any small gifts to take along with her as souvenirs for exchange. It was voted that $50 be given as a gift from the County.

The meeting was then adjourned for luncheon, and an excellent meal was served by the Arundel ladies.

After lunch the guests at the head-table spoke briefly. They were Mrs. G. D. Harvey, Provincial president; the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines; Mr. J. D. Latour, M.P.; Dr. W. L. Morrision, Mayor of Arundel; Mr. G. Laurier, County Warden; Dr. L. Turcotte, County Health Officer; and Mr. I. Paré, Agronomist.

At the close of the luncheon, Mrs. G. Cooke was presented with a life membership pin from Arundel W.I. Mrs. Gibbon, Arundel president, and Mrs. Harvey, both commended Mrs. Cooke on the interest she has taken in W.I. work.

At the afternoon session, Mrs. C. W. P. Baugh read the names of members who had passed away during the year. They were as follows: Mrs. J. Boyd, of Jerusalem-Bethany; Mrs. A. Doig, of Upper Lachute-East End; and Mrs. H. Maslin, of Lakefield. A minute's silence was observed after a short prayer.

Mrs. Baugh then introduced as guest speaker Mrs. G. D. Harvey, who brought greetings from the provincial executive. She stated that there was still room for more members to attend the Leadership Training Course, May 25-29. Citizenship Day is to be observed this month. Each branch was asked for articles for the Handicraft Exhibit at the provincial convention. Provincial projects for the year are: to endeavor to increase the membership; continued interest in School Fairs, and mentally retarded children and the pasteurization of milk. She mentioned that a ½-hour film was available entitled, "Woman on the March". She also mentioned that the Institute fees must be between 25c - $1.

Mrs. Harvey then spoke on the forthcoming Jubilee Celebration, to be held in 1961. Each County will be given a project. The project for Argenteuil is to be Mrs. Geo. Leggett's suggestion of the "Old Family Album." Mrs. Leggett consented to be chairman of the project.

In closing, the speaker said it was always a pleasure to come to Argenteuil, and closed with a short poem. . . . Mrs. L. Armstrong tendered the thanks of her listeners.

Officers

Mrs. C. Stephens then presented the new slate of officers, as follows:

Past-president, Mrs. M. R. Wilson; pres., Mrs. Geo. McGibbon; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Sherman Doig; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. Howard McOuat; secretary, Mrs. M. Crosby; treasurer, Mrs. L. Armstrong.

Conveners —

Agriculture, Mrs. T. Zimmer.
Citizenship, Mrs. H. McDonald.
Education, Mrs. W. Seale.
Home Economics, Mrs. E. Coulsen.
Health & Welfare, Mrs. W. Graham.
Fair-Work, Mrs. Foster Campbell..
Publicity, Mrs. B. Clark.

Mrs. Harvey then conducted the installation of these officers.

Resolutions

Mrs. Keith McCaig next reported for the Resolutions Committee.

Whereas: We have with us today Mrs. G. D. Harvey, Provincial President of the Quebec Women's Institutes;

Be it resolved: That we express our thanks to her and to our Provincial Board for their co-operation in the work of the branches of our County.

The meeting closed with the national anthem.

Starter fertilizer for tomatoes

Ottawa — Chemical fertilizer applied in solution to tomatoes immediately after transplanting, even in fertile soil, will stimulate early fruit ripening.

C. Walkof, of the Morden Experimental Farm, says tomatoes treated in this way ripened 4 to 5 days earlier and yielded up to 10 per cent more ripe fruit than those not treated.

Fertilizers used in starter solutions are specially prepared. They must be easily soluble and have an immediate effect on the transplants.

Excellent results have been obtained at Morden with a complete fertilizer, 10-52-17. Most commercial fertilizers such as those designed for use on field crops, namely, 11-48-0 and 16-20-0 ammonium phosphate are not suitable for plant starter solutions because they dissolve with difficulty in water and do not produce the desired effect on tomatoes.

The recommended rate of applying fertilizers in the form of starter solutions must be followed for best results. One half pound of 10-52-17 starter solution should be dissolved in 5 gallons of water. Apply a cupful of solution at the base of the tomato plant either by hand or by the special attachment used for this purpose on field transplanting machines. This should be done when plants are set in the garden or field. Excessive use of starter solution should be avoided.

One application of starter solution is all that is required. Additional quantities may actually defeat the purpose of the starter solution by stimulating excessive growth and delaying fruit production.

Toastmasters at annual district conference

"Communications" is the basis for the progress of our civilization, said the Hon. W. M. Hamilton, Postmaster General, at the annual district conference of Toastmasters International, held just recently in the main ballroom of the Mount Royal Hotel.

The cabinet minister's stirring address gave much food for thought. Never was there such a mass of communication, such as mass of words and ideas, available to us, through TV, radio, books, magazines, newspapers, advertisements.

Never was there a greater need for conviction regarding our worthwhile ideals. Ideas and ideals uncommunicated lie buried like unused natural resources, oil, coal, uranium — sources of power, undeveloped.

He quoted John Milton, who said, "Good, the more it is communicated, the more it grows and develops."

Twenty-four Clubs, including the local group at Hawkesbury and such widely separated centres as Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Joliette and Valleyfield, were represented by about 200 delegates and their wives. The head-table was graced by Hon. and Mrs. Hamilton, Toastmaster District Governor John McCormick, his wife and many business and professional men of the area, who are members of Toastmasters. The Hon. Mr. Hamilton was made an honorary member of Toastmasters International, a title which he well deserved as indicated by his address.

The District speech contest was held, in which Russ Grant of Hawkesbury spoke very creditably on the subject, "Are We Becoming Soft?". Breaking the four-minute mile, scaling Everest and crossing Antarctica were cited as examples of the hard, pioneering spirit.

Special entertainment and a dance concluded the evening.

The conference also included business and educational seminars, in both French and English during the afternoon, Talks and discussions, on such subjects as "How to Listen", "Education is our Business", and "New Horizons", brought forth valuable ideas and enthusiastic discussion.

The local club was well represented by members and wives, including Wes Freeland, president, Gordon Leonard, secretary and Chas. Stephens, all of Brownsburg, Lloyd Thomas and Len Madden, of Kilmar; Russ Grant; all with their wives, and Vice-President Edgar Charron of Hawkesbury.

It is hoped that some of the ideas learned will be incorporated in a series of eight lectures on "Better Speech and Clearer Communications", to be offered by the Hawkesbury Club next fall as a community service to business and professional men of the area.

Stone quarry owner rates Chevrolet the toughest truck going

"Put a Chevy out there and it stays!"

At the Snyder Stone Quarry, you see Chevrolet trucks of all ages. "They get better and better every year," Mr. R. G. Snyder says. "My '59's keep going with no downtime at all for major service . . . moving more material at less cost per mile than any other make of truck I've had". The grades are steep from quarry to crushing mill, the loads are big and punishing. That's why Mr. Snyder specifies Chevrolet. "Put a Chevy out there and it stays," he says.

"You never do wear one out. You just get tired of looking at it and get a new one".

The truck you see up above is taking on a mountain of a payload — yet Mr. Snyder states, "It moves over the road like a light truck".

That kind of performance is a specialty of the house. Chevrolet turns out heavy-duty trucks that keep their poise no matter what you put in them. They're beating the big, oversized rigs at their own game, showing that precision-engineered chassis components and super-efficient V8 power make up for a locomotive-looking build any day of the week.

Today you sure can't assume that because a truck is trimlined and good looking it doesn't work every bit as hard as those old-styled steam rollers. Put a Chevy on your run and see what a little pure efficiency can do. Your Chevrolet dealer will arrange the details.

Cuts gas costs by 20% on multi-stop schedule!
This bakery firm is sold on Chevrolet's "easy driving and fuel economy". Their Chevies keep at it 10 hours a day, averaging 78 stops, covering about 3,500 miles a month!

Long Sault exploit commemorated in Dollard Day observances at Carillon

TRIBUTE TO COURAGEOUS FEW — Group photographed on the platform at Dollard memorial ceremonies in Carillon last Sunday. (Left to right) Chas. A. Shaffer at the microphone; André Levac; Adelard Castonguay, Mayor of Carillon; Gaston Laurier; Paul-Emile Robert; Mgr. L. J. Rodrigue; the Rev. Father Joseph St. Martin, the Rev. Dalma Brisebois, the Rev. Normand Alexandre, Fernand Berthiaume and Dr. André L'Allier. — Photo Studio, Lachute

Despite a rainy prelude to last Sunday's proceedings, the Dollard Day observances at Carillon proved gratifying to the organizers. There was a good attendance, with a number of notable guests, impressive speakers, cadets and buglers to liven the street parade, and a troupe of folklore dancers.

Unfavorable weather necessitated the holding of the memorial mass indoors, in the little parish church at Carillon. However, the sun shone over a cheerful scene in the afternoon and evening, and the events were attended by an enthusiastic gathering.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Marcel Plamondon, of Montreal, with Mr. Paul-Emile Barbeau of Ayersville taking part in appropriate dialogue, and Mgr. Louis-J. Rodrigue of St. Eustache preaching the sermon.

The Ayersville Air Cadet Squadron, the bugle band from St. Eustache, also buglers from the Adelard Langevin school in Montreal, and the Ayersville Guides, formed the afternoon parade.

Notables took their place on the platform near the Dollard monument. (In addition to the group noted above in the accompanying photograph were others, including Mr. Claude Aumont, of Montreal, also an old and esteemed St. Andrews resident Mr. Euclide Ladouceur.) Most of these voiced appropriate sentiments, to impress upon the audience the epic courage of Dollard Des Ormeaux and his compatriot band, whose memory was revered in this demonstration near the site of their historic stand against the Iroquois.

Highlight of the evening was a demonstration by experts in folklore dancing, from Montreal, who led the throng in the church square and enthused them with the grace and charm of old-style rhythm.

Mr. Claude St.Onge, of St. Andrews, called the honor roll of heroes of the Long Sault exploit; the crowd joined in patriotic national songs; and the notables signed the civic "golden book" of Carillon.

Chairman of the organizing committee, and master of ceremonies for this successful program, was Mr. Chas. A. Shaffer, business man of the community.

Sentences given on theft charges and traffic counts

Gilbert Bradford, 19-year-old Lachute youth, was sentenced to two years in the Laval Rehabilitation Centre, St. Vincent de Paul, after pleading guilty to a charge of theft. The sentence was handed down by Judge Omer Coté in St. Jerome court last Friday.

Bradford gave himself up to Kingston police several days after entering the Lachute Auto Parts establishment, where he was employed, and taking some $150.

Lachute municipal police investigated, then turning the case over to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen.

Julien Guindon, 31, of Grenville, was sentenced to a $10 fine and court costs, also to time in jail, following his arrest by Lachute municipal police. He was charged with the theft of hub-caps from parked automobiles.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who laid the charge, stated that Judge Coté also levied a $200 bond to keep the peace for a one-year period.

A 24-year old Oka resident, Marcel Brisebois, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired and was sentenced to a fine of $75, his driver's permit being suspended for a six-month period.

Brisebois was arrested in St. Andrews East recently, following a traffic accident. The charge was laid by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen.

Drastic steps made necessary by break in town water main

Mayor James W. McGibbon and Ald. Stanley Holt issued a joint statement declaring a state of emergency in the Town water supply, due to the recent break in the main pipe. The mayor and the chairman of the Water Committee made the statement following the second special session of Council called to deal with this matter, on Monday evening.

Tenders were called for at this time, and are to be in the hands of Council this evening (Wednesday) at 8 o'clock, when another special meeting will be held to finalize procedure on repairing the break.

Informing Council of the diver's report, Mayor McGibbon pointed out that the eight-inch pipe supplying the water to the Greater Lachute area was suspended above the river-bed for some 60-odd feet; he added, "This is something that cannot wait, as the pipe could break at any time, then we would be without water." The emergency resulted from a break in the 14-inch main crossing the river at the same point, and, for the past three weeks, all water used in the town has been supplied by the eight-inch pipe.

In attendance at the meeting were Mr. Carren, engineer for H. J. O'Connell, and Lucien Letendre, a consulting engineer, both of whom offered several possible solutions of crossing the river both on the river-bed and above the surface. It was the general feeling of Council that these solutions would be of temporary nature and none of them could be effected for less than $35,000. Soundings and samples taken from the bottom of the river indicate silt and quicksand.

Weighing the pros and cons, it was the unanimous decision of Council to lay a new pipe from the present location and across White's Bridge, seeking permission to do this from the Department of Public Works. Tenders were called for — the work to be completed within three weeks of granting of the tender — and all specifications were made available at the office of the Secretary. Three alternatives were specified for the completion of the tenders: (1) to install all-new 14-inch pipe; (2) to move the existing 14-inch pipe to its new location and supply the remaining amount of new pipe required; (3) to install an additional 12-inch pipe in the new ditch at the same time.

In the event Council decides to install the additional pipe at the same time, as was suggested by Ald. E. O. Pollock, the water from the present eight-inch pipe would be re-routed through this larger conduit, and when expansion and the need for additional water arises, the larger pipe would be continued on to the source of supply.

Ald. Mozart Carriere was absent from the special meeting.

At a special meeting prior to this more critical situation, it was then unanimously decided to replace the broken pipe immediately with 16-inch mechanical-joint pipe, at an estimated cost of close to $6,000. Town employees commenced work immediately following this decision and, after new difficulties were encountered, another session of Council was called for Monday evening of this week, as reported above.

Restriction set on use of water, Greater Lachute

Acting under By-law 186, Section 13, passed during the term of present Mayor McGibbon, the mayor and the Water Committee chairman, Stanley Holt, declared a state of emergency until the present water supply problem has been solved.

No water in the Greater Lachute area is to be used for the purpose of fountains or watering lawns, until further notice. The mayor added that the Police Department was being instructed to strictly enforce this section of the by-law, and that offenders will be liable to a $40 fine plus costs, or in default of payment, 30 days in jail.

Brownsburg works C-I-L safety record broken by mishap

Brownsburg — At approximately 1 p.m. on Monday, Gerard Renaud, Charging operator, received minor burns to his face, arms and hands as a result of 40-20-40 composition igniting at one of the electric blasting cap charging operations at the C-I-L plant. After treatment in the plant hospital Mr. Renaud was sent home. His injuries are such that he will be unable to resume work for a few days.

At the present time an investigation is under way at the plant, to determine the cause of the accident.

The last lost-time injury occurred at Brownsburg Works in November, 1957, when an employee fell and broke his arm while sanding an icy sidewalk. During the interval approximately 3,740,000 accident free manhours were worked at the plant and a number of prizes were won by employees under the C-I-L No-Accident Record Plan for their safety achievements. The plant also received awards from the Quebec Industrial Accident Prevention Association and the National Safety Council during this period.

Brownsburg Home-School concludes season with election of new officers

The Brownsburg Home and School Association brought its 1958-59 season to a successful conclusion on Wednesday evening last, when interested parents gathered to hear a report on the Quebec Federation Home and School Conference.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Grant Tomalty, who attended the assembly in Montreal with Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Cowley. Mrs. Tomalty ably narrated the highlights of this two-day session attended by representatives from many parts in the province. Included in her report were a number of program suggestions which will help the organization to maintain the high interest shown by parents in past years.

During the meeting, President Mervin Cowley confirmed the date of the "Athletes' Dinner" as May 29 (6.30 p.m.), and asked for the co-operation of all parents in helping to make the banquet a success.

Vice-president Dudley Boal announced that the Bicycle Safe-riding Program would be held on June 6. With preliminary instruction having been given in the school, the interest in observance of traffic regulations can already be seen in the groups of younger bicycle riders.

Questionnaires returned from parents indicated that a total of 180 books would be available to start the lending library. The books will be collected and processed during the summer, to enable the library to begin operation in the fall.

The students of the school will benefit from this particular meeting in that a motion was passed to purchase a new movie screen. Since more and more use is being made of educational films at the school, appreciation for the purchase was expressed by Principal King Amos.

The proposed slate of officers for the 1959-60 term was then accepted, with the addition of two members who were nominated from the floor. Those selected to act on next year's executive are as follows:

President, D. R. Boal; vice-president, W. Moncrieff; secretary, Mrs. A. W. Lapp; treasurer, G. A. Chapman; corresponding secretary, C. Armstrong.

Program chairman, S. Abercrombie, Mrs. P. Tomalty.

Publicity, Mrs. A. Morrison.

Membership committee, D. Graham, W. Morrow.

Past-president, M. E. Cowley.

Before retiring from the chair Mr. Cowley expressed sincere thanks to all members of the executive for the assistance given him during the year, and congratulated Mr. Boal on his assumption of the presidential duties.

3-Year term for duo convicted in bank hold-up

Jacques Lyons, 19, and Euclide Harding, 26, appeared before Judge Omer Coté last Friday and, both pleading guilty to charges of armed robbery, were sentenced to three years in jail. Harding, who turned himself over to police several days following the hold-up at the West End branch of the Provincial Bank, changed his plea from not guilty just before the trial. He was represented by Philippe Valois, local attorney, who, according to informants, did a commendable job in appealing his case to the judge.

Georges Champagne, 22, also of the Lachute area, was arrested by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen on Friday morning last and charged with plotting to rob the bank. He pleaded not guilty, and was released on three separate bails of $950 each. Preliminary inquiry was set for Monday of next week, June 1.

Fourth annual Art display this week at St. Andrews East

The fourth annual exhibition of the Argenteuil Art Association, continuing this week at the municipal hall in St. Andrews, has afforded pleasure to a considerable number of spectators, exhibitors and friends.

The official opening of this event took place Saturday afternoon, when the mayor of St. Andrews, Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan, gave a brief inaugural address, extending a welcome to the crowd and good wishes to the Association in its endeavors. Maj.-Gen. Phelan is honorary president of the movement. He was introduced by Mr. Allen G. Talbot, president, who also voiced appreciation for the co-operation extended to the Association by the St. Andrews Village Council.

Specially encouraging to the organizers was the increasing interest displayed by art groups in two distant points of this County, Morin Heights and Kilmar. There was a good representation of exhibits also from Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews, Dalesville and other parts. Equally encouraging was the notable uptrend in quality and serious effort towards improvement — both of which are avowed aims of the A.A.A.

A total of 73 exhibits are tastefully arranged in this show, which remains open to the public (without admission charge) each afternoon until Saturday, May 30, inclusive. The majority of exhibits are oil-colors, with a few in other mediums of expression, and one a wool tapestry design by a versatile Brownsburg enthusiast.

It would be impossible to enumerate all the subjects and techniques represented. One is particularly attracted, however, by still-life studies and virile landscapes from Morin Heights, where an art group has flourished for several years under professional tuition. A mill dam and an autumn hillside are most typically Morin. There are also scenes, still-lifes and portraits by pupils of Vivian Walker at Carillon. Mrs. Walker, incidentally, is one of the few professional exhibitors to patronize this show. Another is a young Lachute enthusiast, Ray Church, who is a commercial artist. Miss Freda Pemberton-Smith of Cushing has two small scenes in the rugged style which characterizes her work.

A successful canvas from Kilmar depicts the prosiac subject of a swamp with remarkable realism. A young housewife and business woman from St. Andrews has produced a portrait of her husband with astonishing likeness; while an outdoor enthusiast has painted a sugar camp, with fallen leaves of a crispness one can hear underfoot. These are soft floral arrangements, languid river scenes, and more turbulent seascapes. Farmhouses, fields and streams that are typically Argenteuil — some so authentic that one could look from the windows of this hall and see them in reality. And the snow scenes, without which this collection would not be representative of Quebec.

The pleasure of viewing this display is excelled only by the pleasure derived by its participants. They have exploited their talents; they have captured, in line and color, the characteristics of familiar things, often unseen by too-busy fellow men.

This is the first of a series of exhibitions for the 1959 season. Others will be presented by all-professional artists — the first of whom will be Mrs. Ruth Tomlinson Wilson (July 4-12). The exhibitions committee of the A.A.A. responsible for these events includes — Miss Paige Pinneo, Mrs Vivian Walker and Don Titman. Information is available from these members.

Meeting of local 4-H Calf Club

A meeting of the Lachute 4-H Calf Club was held at the farm of Harold Wilson last Thursday evening, May 21. About 30 of the 36 members were present, for a demonstration on how to judge a dairy cow, which was given by Ross Oswald, the Club leader. This was followed by the members judging a class of dairy cows.

The business meeting was held, with Carol Parker in the chair, and Eleanor Hay in the role of secretary. A committee was named, with Judy Hadley as chairman, to decorate the 4-H Club barn for the Lachute Spring Fair. Members who are showing their calves on Junior Day (June 20) at the Fair, made their entries.

Ross Oswald welcomed the new members who had joined the club this spring. He also paid tribute to Donald Parker on being selected for the trip to the National 4-H Conference in Washington, and said every member should work hard to win a trip such as this, as it is well worth working for.

Driving tests here June 1-2

Information is given that the mobile unit for drivers' tests will be in Lachute from noon Monday, June 1, and all through the following day, June 2, situated in the Court House yard (Grace Street and Barron), Lachute. Candidates for driving permits are requested to apply at that time.

Council orders new fire trucks to replace present equipment

A final order for the long-awaited fire trucks and other necessary equipment, was signed last week by Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon. Contract to supply the equipment was given to Railway Power & Engineering Co. Ltd., the two truck chasses being purchased from Pollock & Graves Motors Ltd. and Lacasse Automobiles Ltd., respectively.

Delivery of the equipment will be in six weeks from receipt of the trucks; this is expected to take several weeks' time. The representative of the company stated his wish to deliver both vehicles at the same time.

At a special session of Council on Tuesday evening last, Mayor McGibbon informed the councillors the contract had been signed, and suggested that serious study be given to disposing of the present fire-fighting apparatus. It is expected this will be done at a later date.

Cancer Crusade quota exceeded

Léopold Carrière, co-chairman with R. O. (Dick) MacLean in the recent Canadian Cancer Society appeal, is pleased to inform readers of this newspaper that the $4,000 objective for Argenteuil has now been exceeded. When complete returns are reported, it is believed the total will surpass this target by 10 per cent.

Wolf Cubs' district field day held at Forest Farm campsite

The first District Cub Rally and Field Day proved to be a very successful event, both for the Wolf Cubs and adults alike!

Held in a beautiful setting, in the emerald valley at the C.I.P. Co. Forest Farm Centre, Harrington, amid a circle of green wooded hills rising to the sky-line — the youngest members of the Scout family and their leaders set up their "dens" in the early morning amid Nature at her best.

Close by the hub of activities, a few of the lads took the opportunity to visit the wildlife enclosure beside the artificial lake — feeding the deer, observing imported wild turkeys and Canada Geese, looking at interesting tree specimens, watching fish dart about in the dark depths of the pond, or just skipping a flat stone over its smooth surface. These pleasures, so dear to boyhood and so obviously enjoyed by the lads, were a source of satisfaction to those officers of the District Council who have strived, over the years, to provide facilities such as these. The Council appreciates the generosity of Canadian International Paper Company for the free use of this property as a District campsite — and of Farm Manager Mansel Wilson (District Commissioner) and his friendly staff, who have shown personal interest in this Scout project and have been most helpful.

Transported from their respective headquarters by bus and car, the uniformed Cubs and Leaders arrived at the Forest Farm early last Saturday morning. Immediately after the March Past, with District Commissioner Mansel Wilson, accompanied by District President D. N. Atkins, receiving the salute — the boys performed the Grand Howl and then proceeded to the campsite to erect their tents,

Found dead near Calumet

Ivan F. Gray, a 49-year-old resident of Ville St. Laurent and Canadian International Paper employee, was found dead early Saturday morning by fellow employees at a company camp north of Calumet.

The Montreal group was at the lake on a fishing trip. According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, the victim retired early Friday evening, and was discovered dead early the following morning.

Council approves Shopping Centre plan; committee confers on Main St. lighting

Plans for a new I.G.A. Shopping Centre were approved at last Tuesday's special session of Council, a permit for the construction (to approximate 33,000 square foot) being approved unanimously.

Construction of the Foodliner and seven other stores is expected to get under way within a matter of days. The plans call for the store premises to be erected along the rear of the lot, with no buildings near the highway. Parking space for 267 cars has been allotted in the front and at the side of the modern-appearing structure.

Ald. Gerard Lefebvre was absent from the meeting, chaired by Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon, at which several other building permits were also granted. These were as follows — Dr. Lyall A. Middleton, for a residence in the East Ward; Noe Patry, an extension to his house on Charles Street West; Wilfred Caron, a garage on Robert, near Elizabeth Street; and Rolland Lajeunesse, a house in the Cruise Development. This latter permit was granted following a discussion on water and sewers in this area; it was decided to have a plan of the necessary installations prepared and submit this to the Board of Health for approval.

Mayor McGibbon reported on the joint meeting of a Council committee and Chamber of Commerce group at which the Main Street lighting proposals were discussed. Several alternative solutions to this question were presented, he reported, and the Council committee was now awaiting information and plans to be supplied by the Chamber of Commerce, at which time the matter would be studied in earnest, a decision arrived at, and, if the plan was approved, how it would be financed.

Lions Club officers named for activities in 1959-60

Club business — much of it affecting community welfare in a broader sense — occupied the Lions Club meeting last week, under the presidency of Phil Tremblay.

Vice-president Col. E. Emmett reported to the members on the various activities under his jurisdiction.

Tony Zaplaski also reported on the Bank of Light project, by which lisused eyeglasses and lenses are being sent for needy recipients in India. A gratifying number of these had been turned in locally, at the Dansereau Stores on Main Street, and it was asked that the collection might be completed for early shipment.

Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, as propagandist for Lionism, made some interesting observations on Conventions and the practical benefits of attending District and International functions of this kind.

Ossie Carriere gave a boost to the annual car raffle, for which he is chairman, and Gerard Lefebvre spoke on plans for the club's "Friday Night at the Fair" with Le Grand Robert, renowned hypnotist, as highlight for the grandstand entertainment June 19.

Member deadline July 1 for Assocn. fish-hunt contest

A regular meeting of the Argenteuil Fish and Game Protective Association was held at the Flamingo in Brownsburg last Thursday, with the president, Dr. Jules Lafleur, in charge of proceedings and about 20 members present

Leonard Bedard was appointed entertainment chairman, and fulfilled his assignment by presenting at this meeting an interesting film on fishing, by courtesy of Molson's.

It was decided to set a time limit for membership enrolment to enter the Association's fishing and hunting contest (previously announced); the deadline date for enrolments is July 1, 1959.

It was approved that this group be affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations, by which members are entitled to participate in the Molson's fifth annual fish derby. Any enthusiasts interested may procure information as to rules, regulations, etc., from the sponsors' district representative, Leonard Bedard.

The secretary, J. Henri St.Onge, urges all sports-minded residents to obtain their membership in the Association, and to attend the next meeting, June 25 at 8.30 p.m., in the Legion Hall, Lachute.

Beauty of birds in Nature's setting

"Outdoor Round-up"

By Bob Atchison

Picton, Ont.

May 12 —

Just watching birds and wildlife in their natural state makes everything peaceful. At least they aren't trying to knock themselves and others out — they are just living. Certainly the birds have their odd scraps, but with the exception of crows and hawks, they never fight anything but their own kind. Another thing, the way both male and female look after the young, is an inspiring example to humans. . . .

I guess we seem queer, living like this just because we like nature. But I bet there are plenty of people who would do just the same if given the opportunity.

This would be a great place for you, Mr. Ed, as an artist. You could almost take your pick of the birds for models. Some of the colors you would have difficulty in matching. I never would have believed birds could be so handsome, if I hadn't been tyeing flies and seen some of the feathers. There is one group that mystifies me. There are a lot of books here on birds, but so far I haven't been able to spot this one. It is coal-black on the body, with yellow stripe on the head, crimson-edged wings with the odd white feather set in. It is one of the prettiest birds seen so far, about the size of a Red-Wing Blackbird.

Some of the Geese are going to stay with us, as there are nests in one of the swamps. That will be another great thing to watch — especially the Blessed Event. I guess before it is finished I'll be a "bird sitter." Can you imagine that? Sitting watching birds while mother and father step out!

This has been a vicious sort of day. At 9 a.m. it was 42, with very strong winds, and during the day it has got steadily colder and windier. There was no pleasure in Nature, or anything else, for that matter. Just like a late fall day, when you are expecting the worst. Even the birds are trying to get out of the cold. Bet they are wishing they were back down south!

High School pupils score success in Spring concert

The annual Spring Concert of Lachute High School was held last Friday evening, with only a fair audience to encourage the young performers. The theme of the concert was "Canada", and introductory remarks were made by Principal Fred Royal.

After the singing of "O Canada" and "A Prayer for Canada", with a solo by Miss Bonnie Gain — Miss Lois Silverson, prize-winner of the Lions' Oratory Contest, then spoke on "I Believe in Canada", and her poise, delivery and confidence gave her audience some idea of the reason she has won so many awards for public speaking.

Miss Gail Dwyer then gave a piano solo, a waltz by Chopin, nicely interpreted by this young musician. A pleasing vocal duet, a "Madrigal of Spring", was then sung by the Misses Joyce Plummer and Judy Matthews.

The fourth item was by members from Grades 5A, B and C, who gave a splendid performance of choral speaking, under direction of Mrs. K. Fraser. The subject was a beautiful bit of prose named "The Creation", and the response of the girls and boys to their director made this item one of the hits of the evening.

Younger boys and girls from Grade 3A capered through their square-dancing routine, and this number was enjoyed immensely.

A girls' choral group, under direction of Mrs. G. Rigby, music teacher of Lachute High School, sang three numbers, "All in an April Evening" by Sir Hugh Roberton, "On Wings of Song" and the familiar "Country Gardens". All were pleasingly interpreted.

After the intermission, three young gentlemen from Grades 9 and 10 performed in a humorous scene from "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Moliere; the audience thoroughly enjoyed the performance.

The girls' chorus again sang, in a more modern vein with a scene from "The Quaker Girl", the solo number being taken by Miss Joyce Plummer.

For a change of pace and rhythm, a percussion band was next on the program, performing to the music of "Soldiers March", "Prelude" by Chopin, and "Jingle at the Windows".

Another prize-winning student in the public speaking field, Roland Gow, gave a speech sympathetic to the concert theme, "Is Canada Dependent Upon the United States. Culturally?" He stated his opinion on this controversial topic in a forthright manner. His conclusion led up to the singing of the Lachute High School song in unison, followed by "God Save the Queen".

Principal Royal expressed appreciation of the school and of the audience to Mrs. G. Rigby, who sad spent much time and energy in the preparation of the concert, and little Lee Patterson presented Mrs. Rigby with a floral bouquet.

Cubs' rally and field day held at Forest Farm with identifying colors flying in front of each. Later, an evergreen tree was planted by each pack at a special location not far from the campsite. Also of note, was a wild plant-life display prepared by Mr. Jaap Salm, of the Harrington Forest Farm staff.

The period before noon was occupied by several softball games which were keenly contested by the boys. Order of play was as follows —

2nd Lachute vs 1st B'burg Pack.
B'burg Mowgli vs 1st Lachute.
B'burg Mowgli vs 1st Grenville.

The final game between winners of the above series was a see-saw game ending in a 6-6 tie with Brownsburg Mowgli and 1st Brownsburg packs dividing the honors.

Lunch-break, of course, was one of the day's highlights. Sandwiches and cookies supplied by parents, served outdoors, were relished with cooling refreshments kindly donated for the occasion.

The afternoon's activities were launched by Starter Russ Summers, assisted by Frank McCaffery and Bernard Jenkins. Judges included D. N. Atkins, Noel Racine, and L. G. (Lud) Thompson. All events were announced over a loudspeaker system by Jesse W. Humphries (m.c.), District Cubmaster, ably assisted by Mrs. Humphries. Others called on included Noel Robillard, Fred Gervais, Don Graham and Dudley Boal.

All events were keenly contested and good sportsmanship was in evidence at all times. — Even the weatherman, who waited until after the prize presentation by District Commissioner Wilson during the closing ceremonies and the Grand Howl, before the first drops of rain were in evidence.

Members of the District Council wish to thank the following Leaders for their part in this rally as, without them, the whole affair would not have been possible —

1st Brownsburg pack — C.M. Paul Villard.

1st Grenville Pack — C.M. Mrs. Putnam, A.C.M. Mrs. Reppert.

1st Lachute Pack — C.M. Donald Parker, A.C.M. Ronald Dawson.

2nd Lachute Pack — C.M. Miss June Pollock, A.C.M. Mrs. Bignall.

Mr. Hugh Dobbie also assisted the Lachute packs.

In addition to the C.I.P. Company, the District Council wishes to publicly acknowledge the following generous donors, whose assistance is much appreciated:

Dairy Queen, Lachute, (Albert Mady, proprietor), who donated Dairy Queen Dilly Bars.

J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, Lachute, who donated Coca-Cola and soft drinks.

Brownsburg Community Rink, for use of P.A. system.

Legion field day for B'burg children

Brownsburg — Legion Branch 71 is holding a big Field Day for all school children of the town on Saturday, May 30.

The activities will begin with a big parade from both schools, followed by all-day games at the picnic grounds, with prizes for the winners. Ice cream, hot dogs and soft drinks will be available. All parents are cordially invited.

In case of rain the Field Day will be postponed to June 6.

4-H member goes to conference in Washington

The Quebec Department of Agriculture has announced that Donald Parker, of Lachute, has been selected to represent the Province of Quebec at the United States National 4-H Conference. The Conference is to be held in Washington, D.C., June 13-19. Canada is sending 10 delegates, one from each province, in exchange for the 10 American delegates who attended the Canadian National 4-H Club Week last fall in Toronto during the Royal Winter Fair.

Donald Parker will meet the other Canadian delegates in Ottawa on June 12. They will be given a tour of the city and will spend the night at the Chateau Laurier. Next morning they will leave for Washington by plane, arriving shortly before noon; and they will return to Montreal by plane on their way home (June 20).

While in Washington they will be staying at the Raleigh Hotel, headquarters during the conference. During the week they will visit historic sites including the White House, the official residence of the President. Group discussions, folk singing, talks by experts on subjects of interest, is only a small part of the week's activities.

Donald Parker has been a member of the Lachute 4-H Calf Club for a number of years, and is a past-president of the club. He was chosen for this trip because of his outstanding work in his own club as well as in district and provincial competitions. He is to be congratulated; it is felt he will indeed be an excellent ambassador to represent the Quebec 4-H Club members at the National 4-H Conference in Washington.

Speed of trains at crossings

WE HAVE FOUND IT extremely interesting to watch the gradually increasing speed of trains passing through Lachute during the past week and a half — from a near dead-stop at every crossing for three days following the recent fatal accident, to the present high rate of speed that most residents are accustomed to seeing.

Motorists travelling through this and all other towns are subject to a 30-mile per hour speed limit. As one member of Council points out, "It's kind of difficult for them to see our 25 and 30 m.p.h. signs when they are travelling twice that speed, but still, they are there." We see no reason why one means of transportation should be speed-controlled while another is permitted to "fly low" through the limits of this and other municipalities.

Fast-moving trains have killed quite a number of persons in this district during recent years; many of these cases were no doubt the fault of the victims. Diesel engines run faster and, at the same time, do not give the appearance of this higher speed, fooling many persons at crossings. The speedometer needle hits 85 to 90 m.p.h. on many sections of the Dayliner run between Montreal and Ottawa, and while this speed is not maintained through towns, we feel whatever it is in normal times, it is much too fast.

It would be more in the interest of all concerned if the C.P.R. would add an extra five or ten minutes to their local run, and thus allow a little slower speed where danger lurks at every crossing. If this is done, the possibility of a few people living a little longer may possibly be increased.

Born too soon for eloquence!

ONCE AGAIN, for those too ready to criticize the "frills" of education, there is a remarkable example of achievement in recent pictures and news stories appearing in this paper, which provide food for changing of opinion. We refer to the growing prowess of our district school students in the art of public speaking. At least three service clubs, the Argenteuil Teachers' Association, and other groups, have sponsored contests this spring, and those who have heard the young contestants have been really inspired by their self-confidence and ability.

In the days "way back when", there was little or nothing of this kind to encourage school youngsters in this art. Just the odd school debate, the occasional theatrical or dramatic show, but no serious training in coordination of thought, voice, expression and the techniques of oratory. Those of us who left school a quarter-century ago or more, literally tongue-tied when confronted by a public audience, now realize what we missed — what some of us have since endured in perspiration and panic to overcome this lack of training. Looking back, many of us have experienced career handicaps and business obstacles which stood seriously in our way. Executives, salesmen, community workers — how earnestly we wished we were equipped with this training which our young people enjoy today.

Of all the "frills" which seem superfluous to academic education — the ability to mix and work with one's contemporaries; the character built of competitive effort; the interests acquired in extra-curricular hobbies and pursuits — this ability to speak effectively and persuasively is one of the most valuable assets in the upbringing of our younger citizens. We are all for it!

Adults and vaccine

POLIO, once a dreaded killer and crippler, has faded fast in Canada under an all-out public health offensive armed with Salk anti-polio vaccine.

But minor outbreaks of the disease — like one in Manitoba last year — stand as a sober reminder that the battle has not yet been won.

Federal and provincial health officials are satisfied that most Canadian children in the five-to-18 age group have been vaccinated, along with the bulk of pre-school children. The objective, of course, is to have all children protected.

However, health officials are concerned about the lack of interest being shown by Canadians in the 18-to-40 age bracket. People in this age range are susceptible to polio but efforts to convince them have not been very successful.

The federal health department has issued a special appeal to adult Canadians to get their polio vaccinations before the onslaught of the summer polio season. Every effort should be made to ensure vaccination by the beginning of June.

Dr. G. D. W. Cameron, deputy health minister, says "vaccination is the soundest insurance policy adult Canadians can buy — and the cheapest."

He says the incidence of polio is shifting to the after-school group, to those in the 18-to-40 age bracket. However, this group of Canadians, he says, appears to be unaware of the danger for very few of them have been vaccinated.

"It must be remembered," Dr. Cameron, says, "that a child who has received the vaccine still can be a polio carrier, transmitting it to someone who is not protected."

There have been more cases where polio has struck down persons more than 40 years of age, including a 50-year-old man.

"We urge all adult Canadians to get polio protection," Dr. Cameron says. "It costs very little; in some communities it is free."

Old friends return

CANADIANS who remember the Royal Visit of 1939 are likely to be impressed with an important difference between that and the forthcoming coast-to-coast tour by the Queen and Prince Philip.

The difference is that when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth travelled across Canada 20 years ago the moments of informality were unexpected, usually promoted by a whim of the royal visitors themselves.

This time the informality will be deliberate and, if tour planners have been successful, it will be much more widespread.

With few exceptions Canadians will approve of the arrangements insofar as they are intended to give the Queen and Philip an opportunity to see, and be seen by, as many Canadians as possible in all walks of life.

When the people responsible for planning the forthcoming tour laid down an over-all policy, they were emphatic that formal functions be kept to a minimum and that the program for the six weeks should be kept as interesting as possible.

Thus, Elizabeth and Phillip will be treated to such spectacles as a performance of "As You Like It" at Stratford's Shakespearean theatre; the Queen's Plate, oldest horse race in North America, at Toronto; the official opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway at Montreal, and visits to such off-the-beaten-track places as Uranium City in Northern Saskatchewan, Yellowknife in the Yukon and Knob Lake in Quebec's iron-mining territory.

There are probably various reasons why the planning of this tour should differ so much from royal visits of other years.

One may be that since 1939 we're a more sophisticated people who feel there's more to entertaining royal visitors than having them perform such unexciting tasks as laying cornerstones, signing dozens of guest books and shaking hands with an endless procession of officials.

Another could be that royalty is no longer a novelty in the eyes of Canadians. Prince Philip has been in Canada four times before and Elizabeth will be here for the third time.

There's no doubt they'll be welcomed with enthusiasm but the tenor of the reception is likely to be set more by the feeling of saying hello to old friends returning and less by simple curiosity.

Viewpoints and perspectives

IT APPEARS to be a trend of the times, but nevertheless it is a trend we most heartily deplore — that individualism is steadily being lost in controls, regulations and government edicts.

"Teachers mold the minds of men"

Specially contributed — by Norman Thorburn

Let me take you back to the fall of 1923. This was the last year of "hazing", a severe form of initiation at McGill University. We, freshmen, had suffered untold indignities heaped on us by the sophomores.

Once they overpowered us, rolled up our pant-legs, turned our ties backwards, painted our faces, tied us to a long rope, paraded us along St. Catherine Street. When night fell they took us up to Molson's Stadium and gave us another round of torture.

Shortly after this, in early November, they stripped the clothes off one unco-operative freshman, and tied him up in a bush in Montreal West. He took pneumonia and almost died.

One day I was walking some distance behind Clayton Bourne, the leader of the freshman class. I noticed the leader of the second year students, coming from the other direction; he accosted Bourne. He was a powerful youth from New Brunswick, and weighed about 200 lbs. His name was William Doig. Both men were over 6 feet tall. "Get off the sidewalk and walk on the road," said Doig.

This was too much for Bourne. Clayton Bourne was a splendid boxer, the fastest short-distance swimmer in Canada, and an Olympic star. With a scream of rage, he tore into the powerful Doig, with smashing rights and lefts to the face and body. Then they clinched and Doig tried to wear out Bourne's tremendous energy by wrestling. Over and over they rolled, down the terrace and onto the campus.

Sometimes Bourne would break loose and deliver telling blows. Suddenly, a Pierce Arrow limousine stopped in front of the warring collegians. Out of the car stepped one of the biggest men I have ever seen. He must have weighed 300 lbs., and was over 6 feet 6 inches tall. He grabbed each of the students by the collar and yanked them to their feet, and drove away with them in his car. That man was Sir Arthur Currie — soldier, teacher, principal of McGill.

I often watched a young and handsome football hero named Frank Roncarelli, breaking loose through the opposing line on the McGill campus, or up at the Molson's Stadium. Little did I know that, some day, this Italo-Canadian would wage a private vendetta for the sake of religious liberty in this province.

When his perseverance was running low, when his funds were almost exhausted, in the late afternoon of his life, he knocked once more on the portals of his old Alma Mater, to solicit the aid of a great McGill teacher, Frank Scott. With his aid, he plunged through the most formidable line he had ever faced, to score a touchdown in the Supreme Court of Canada!

In the hall of the Arts Building, we students used often to rub shoulders with Stephen Leacock, the Mark Twain of Canada. I attended only one lecture by Leacock, and I remember it mostly for the many humorous sallies in it.

Much has been written about Leacock's ragged gown, his dishevelled hair, his merry, twinkling eyes, and his fuzzy moustache.

Once I was standing beside one of Leacock's Jewish students, when Leacock appeared. "I am leaving for Palestine in a few weeks," the Jewish student told Prof. Leacock. "Well," said Leacock, "A few of my Jewish scholars have expressed a desire to go there, and I often wonder why more have not expressed such a wish. You are the first to announce your intention of going there shortly." The collectors of anecdotes about Canada's celebrated humorist can have that.

The French teacher was just an ordinary little Parisian, who wore a funny little Parisian hat but spoke the most beautiful French I have ever heard. His name was Monsieur Messac. When he became angry with a student, he would say, "Passe par la porte," which he would pronounce like this: "Passuh par la partuh!" If you can say that properly, you are speaking French like a member of the French Academy of Arts and Letters. Not long after his return to France the following year, Monsieur Messac was elected to membership in that august society which France reserves for but few of her literary sons.

Once, when I was walking with him along Milton Street, I happened to ask him how he liked Montreal, the second city of French culture in the world. With a note almost akin to sadness in his voice, he replied, "Montreal ce ne'st pas une ville française, c'est une ville cosmopolitaine." (The e's at the end of the words une, ville, française, etc., were pronounced like uh.)

The next year at McGill I had a very comical Greek teacher whose name was Mr. Slack. He had taught English for many years at Leipzig University in Germany. This university is now called Karl Marx University, named after a Jew, whose race the Nazis had so lately persecuted.

Our Greek teacher could recite whole passages from Plato by rote. Once, while reading Plato, he came to this passage: "K———" Heavens, I wonder if I have written this right. Can The Watchman typesetters write in Greek? (Sorry, brother—we cannot handle that! Just English, French, Latin. — Ed.) Anyway it looks too much like Russian; and who would want The Watchman to print in Russian!

Anyway, these Greek phrases sound like this: "Kay Kata gain Kay Kata Kalathain." The old Cornish professor stopped after he read these words and spoke to us, "Aren't those words beautiful! I suppose that is about all the most of you will remember about Greek, a few years hence."

A student spoke up: "Why don't they simplify things? Why don't they simplify English spelling, for example?"

The face of the old Cornishman, an Oxford graduate, grew very red. Ten thousand Cornishmen were beside him; Trelawney shall not die! The veins on his temples stood out. He shoved to one side his Plato, and the Comedies of Aristophanes. . . . "Would you destroy the English language, the finest vehicle for the expression of human thought ever devised by man — Attic Greek not excepted! Would you destroy the whole history of our tongue, often the only remaining link with other languages of the same origin? In Saxon times these words were pronounced as they are written still. . . ."

Strangely enough, 35 years later, the advocates of simplified spelling have made little progress, even in the U.S.A. The word plough is now often written plow, but in a recent article in a U.S. magazine, I saw it written both ways. . . . I prefer to write it as Gray did. "The ploughman homeward plods his weary way."

What is the Oldest Federal Scientific Service?

The Geological Survey of Canada, now a branch of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys. It dates from 1841 when, at the first session of the first legislature of United Canada — the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, which had been united by the Act of Union — funds were voted to "defray the probable expense in causing a Geological Survey of the Province of Canada." In the following year William E. Logan was appointed as the first director. In 1856 Logan was knighted by Queen Victoria for his contributions concerning Canadian geology. He remained as director of the survey until his retirement in 1869.

What Street recalls Fur-Trading Days?

Beaver Hall Hill in Montreal. The earliest trade centred in Montreal was that of furs and the city is still a great centre of the manufacture and sale of fine furs. Beaver Hall Hill, in the downtown area of the city, commemorates the locale of the early trade.

Who Won Five World Wheat Championships?

Seager Wheeler, who between 1911 and 1918 won the five world awards in addition to many awards for other field crops. Mr. Wheeler was born in 1869 on the Isle of Wight and in 1885 migrated to Canada. In 1897 he bought a farm near Rosthern, Sask., and seven years later began the selective breeding of hard spring wheat, developing a number of varieties. In later years he devoted much attention to developing hardy fruits spited to prarie conditions.

What was Canada's First Incorporated City?

Saint John, New Brunswick's largest centre of population. In 1785 the communities of Carleton and Parr Town were incorporated by Royal charter into the City of Saint John. Situated at the mouth of the St. John River on the Bay of Fundy, the modern city developed in 1783 with the arrival of the United Empire Loyalists. This wave of colonization made New Brunswick a province the following year. The Loyalists settled on the eastern side of the harbour in Paar Town (named at the request of Governor Parr of Nova Scotia), on the western side of the harbour in Varleton, and on the north in Portland. Portland became a part of the city in 1889. Saint John was named for the river which had, in turn, been named by its discoverers, Champlain, Monts and Poutrincourt, who sailed into the harbour on the anniversary of St. John the Baptist, June 24, 1604.

Is a Tipi a Wigwam?

Strictly speaking, no. The wigwam, a conical Indian tent used by various Indian tribes, consisted of a framework of saplings covered with birch bark, cat-tail rushes or pine bark. The word "tipi" is usually restricted to the skin-covered tents used by Indians of the plains and by some of the tribes of northern Saskatchewan and Alberta.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

The travelling carnival is phoney, but it's fun. The boys heard it was coming, and they have talked about it for weeks. Now the day is here.

"Let's go to the ferris wheel," says John, as soon as he gets within sound of the mechanical organ and the shrieks of the people who are being whirled in circles. But we steer the boys to some smaller children's rides first.

The brothers, each holding tight to a 10-cent ticket, climb into a small switchback ride shaped like a sea serpent.

Each time they glide past, they wave and grin with a look of pure enjoyment. Other parents are standing at the rim of the ride, focussing fond stares on their respective infants.

Then there is a visit to the candy cotton booth. The boys smear pink candy cotton juice liberally on face and hands. The party threads its way past the wheels, shies, dips, galleries and booths to the ferris wheel.

Small Michael begins to have second thoughts about the ferris wheel, but decides to go.

Repeatedly cautioned about holding on tight, the boys hold the rail grimly. They look white-faced and anxious — different boys altogether to the carefree pair who swung past on the sea serpent ride.

As the chair flies higher, they look even more anxious. "I'm frightened," wails John. Two years ago he rode the wheel fearlessly, but he's old enough to be afraid now.

"Look, you can see the whole fair," says their father, with false heartiness (feeling somewhat hollow inside, himself). "Look at all the people," he urges.

After a seemingly endless whirl, the ferris wheel stops, lets off the boys and their father. Their mother is waiting.

"I wasn't afraid," says John, untruthfully. "I cried once, but I liked it most of the time," confesses Michael. And soon they are both as cocksure as ever.

They enter a "wild animal" show, where they take delight in viewing a morose-looking chimpanzee and some other monkeys.

As they leave, each boy is clutching a creature on a stick which he describes as a "bear," but which is, in fact, a skunk made of synthetic fur. These two ersatz animals cost the boys' father $1.50 each.

It is robbery. But although the skunks on a stick are probably worth about 50 cents, they give the boys $5 worth of enjoyment.

The opportunities that will arise in Canada in the next generation will be greatest in the Canadian northwest. The Peace (region) is on the verge of the greatest development it has ever seen.

LEARNING FROM PAST

Bringing up comparisons of working conditions and economics as they are today with those of past eras, is bound to prompt some people to say it's a waste of time unless all changed factors are taken into account. We would agree with that point of view in many cases — but sometimes it would be a good thing for us to look back at our yesteryears to gain a better perspective of what we should be accomplishing in our community today.

School of Ballet demonstration here Saturday

The second demonstration of the Lachute School of Ballet is being held this Saturday in Lachute Auditorium, at 8 p.m. Last year there was a capacity audience to encourage these young performers, and no doubt many will recall the interesting demonstration they gave.

Most of the 60 students are completing their second year in this ballet school, and their progress will be evident. The same teacher, Miss John Bouchard, has been in charge of the four classes, and the pianist this year is Mrs. A. Pringle — both of the Elizabeth Leese Ballet Studio, Westmount.

A touch of color will be added to some of the more advanced numbers, as effective costumes have been prepared. The talented instructress, Miss Bouchard, will dance in two numbers, and several students from the Westmount Studio will also perform.

The teachers, students and the organizer, Mrs. E. Gow, have worked hard all season in preparing this ballet school for the demonstration, and it should be well supported by interested people, so that this activity may continue in the community.

It has been the policy of the Lachute School of Ballet to keep the fees low, so that any family can afford the send a daughter to study ballet, if so desired. Any surplus accruing from this demonstration is urgently needed to take the school "out of the red", as expenses in operating a ballet school increase in proportion to any other worthy enterprise. . . . Your support is solicited on Saturday, May 30, at the Auditorium.

CNIB Auxiliary meeting held

The regular monthly meeting of the CNIB Women's Auxiliary was held May 19 at the Institute's headquarters on Drew Street.

A nominating committee was formed to elect officers for the coming year.

Final plans were completed to cater for the Grenville school graduation banquet (held May 22).

A date was set for the annual White Cane picnic, to be held at the Brownsburg Rotary Park. The date is to be July 2. All members were asked to keep this date reserved.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held on June 16, at the CNIB Centre.

Opening tea held by lady golfers

The opening tea of the ladies' section of Lachute Golf and Country Club was held in the Terrace and Catalogne Rooms at the chalet Saturday. Mrs. de Breyne and Mrs. Duquette poured tea and the president, Mrs. R. Cairns, welcomed the 90 members present, and wished them all a successful season.

Mrs. H. Watson, Match Captain, gave a short address regarding the promotion of Junior golfers, stating that three of the Junior members, namely, Miss A. FitzGerald, Miss K. de Breyne, and Miss H. Neill, were that day attending a Junior get-together in Montreal at the home of Mrs. Victor Whitehead, chairman of Junior Development for the province.

Mrs. Watson urged the members to take part in National Golf Week June 7-14, for the fee of $1, proceeds going to Junior development.

Mr. Louis de Breyne is offering group lessons for "C" Class players of both weekly and week-end members, and as soon as holidays start, free group lessons will again be given to Junior golfers.

Prizes for the weekly tournament were presented to Mrs. J. Huggins and Mrs. P. Levesque.

Mrs. H. Watson then introduced a Montreal guest, Mrs. R. Jeakins, Quebec Handicap Manager, who gave a brief talk on the entry of women into the game of golf in the early 1900's, leading to the formation of the C.L.G.U. and the handicapping system. Mrs. Jeakins closed by extending best wishes to the local club from herself and Mrs. Shipley, Quebec president of the C.L.G.U., who was unable to be present.

Honors in Maritimes to students associated here

Mrs. Geo. McGibbon and Miss Catherine McGibbon were in Wolfville, N.S., last week attending the 116th annual convocation of Acadia University. They were particularly interested in the graduation of their niece, Miss Betsy Burrows, daughter of Mr. Stan Burrows and the late Mrs. Burrows. Betsy, who received her B.A. degree, was also winner of the Canada Council Scholarship which entitles her to $1,000 for study at McGill University.

It was interesting to note that the grandfather of the president of Acadia University, Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, was in a large measure responsible for raising the money to build the Dalesville Baptist Church. . . . Also during the visit they met Dr. MacGregor Fraser, whose aunt was the wife of the Rev. Mr. Higgins, the first Baptist minister of Lachute. Now professor emeritus of Philosophy, he is presently compiling a book from the manuscripts of the Rev. Mr. John King, who for 40 years was pastor of the Dalesville Baptist Church.

Another co-incidence was the visitors' meeting with Michael Consiglio, who matriculated from Horton Academy. This family spend their summers regularly at Dalesville.

Congratulations are extended to Miss Burroughs for her splendid accomplishment, and also to Michael on his graduation.

— Jehovah's Witnesses —

DEATH COMES TO ALL
— but does death end all?

Some say Yes. Many say No. Others say: "No one ever came back to tell us." But still others say: "Not so. Messages are received from the dead every day."

Are you confused? Would you like an authoritative answer? Then why not ask: "What do the Scriptures say about 'survival after death'?" The answer may surprise you, but you can be sure it will be to your eternal welfare. Can you open your Bible and turn to texts on all features of the subject? You will have them at your fingertips with the 96-page booklet entitled "What Do the Scriptures Say About 'Survival After Death'?" Order your copy today for only 10c.

During June, Jehovah's Witnesses will continue to offer the new 156-page Bible-study aid "From Paradise Lost to Paradise Regained" and an informative Scriptural booklet, on a contribution of 75c. Return calls will be made on all interested persons with a view to starting home Bible Studies.

Write to 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19, or ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet, anywhere.

Timken Silent Automatic CUSTOM MARK II oil furnace developed by TIMKEN SILENT AUTOMATIC . . . revolutionizes oil heating . . . greatest advance in years!

with instant clean flame. Unequaled for clean comfort, low fuel bills and trouble-free performance

Comfort
With the Iron Fireman CUSTOM Mark II furnace you use a supersensitive thermostat which operates the furnace with the slightest variation of room temperature. This gives you shorter, more frequent firing periods, with remarkably uniform indoor temperature. No matter how often the furnace starts, the flame instantly burns clean—no smoke, no soot, no fouled combustion chamber, no wasted oil.

Trouble-free operation
Cuts service calls to the vanishing point. No burner adjustment required; no draft troubles; no soot-fouled furnace or carbon clogged nozzle.

Operates without chimney draft
The CUSTOM Mark II furnace provides its own positive induced draft with precision control. No natural chimney draft required.

Cleanliness
With the instant clean flame there are no flecks of soot blowing from your chimney or escaping into your home. Hundreds of tests made with smoke-detecting instruments show a flame that's absolutely clean from the very moment it's turned on.

Down go fuel bills
CUSTOM Mark II furnaces report remarkable fuel savings. Instant clean flame eliminates wasteful smoky warm-up period.

Quiet
The easy-burning globular flame is a pleasant change from the blowtorch roar of the conventional oil burner. Fan has resilient mountings to dampen vibration and is sized for large capacity at low, quiet speeds.

A Good Hike -- Any Month of the Year

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"O who will walk a mile with me
Along life's merry way?
A comrade blithe and full of glee,
Who dares to laugh out loud and free
And let his frolic play."

Hiking is one of the least expensive and most enjoyable of hobbies. It is not seasonal; a good walk may be a pleasure any month in the year. The rising cost of living need not affect the fun of adventure out of doors.

The parents who enjoy hiking themselves and who take their children with them as soon as they are old enough to be pushed in a go-cart and later to walk on their short legs, have a lot more fun than their stay-at-home neighbors.

Individuals who enjoy walking are in a minority on this continent today. Visitors to the Old Country and Europe are amazed at the long walks men and women take regularly, and with great enjoyment. Little paths, especially for hikers, are kept in good repair in many areas. Here in Canada, with the beautiful countryside in reach of most of us, we are fast becoming a nation which is losing the habit of walking. Instead, we ride in cars, and forget how much we are missing which the hiker enjoys.

Be A Happy Hiker

It is important to be suitably dressed for a walk. A happy hiker can forget about his clothes because they are comfortable and just the right light weight. Foot comfort is absolutely imperative. On a long hike, take a change of stockings or socks along for each member of the family—and when you are sorting the children's socks, check to make sure they are long enough. Too short footwear — either socks or shoes—can cause such discomfort that they ruin the enjoyment of walking. Poorly-fitted shoes, either too big, too narrow or too short, soon produce red marks and blisters—and what limping youngsters can be expected to be enthusiastic about hiking?

Children love the excitement of seeing a complete change of scenery. For that reason some families with a car motor out into the country, turn down a side road and park a mile or so off the highway. Then from this central point the family starts out on a walk in a district which they have never explored.

Other parents use the bus or the train and ride a short distance. Then they have a walk from the terminal or station and give themselves sufficient leeway to get back in plenty of time for their return trip. Teenagers enjoy taking their bicycles, or using a bus or train and hiking home. Some families with older children use bicycle hiking too.

Outdoor Hobbies

There are many outdoor hobbies which fit in with hiking, such as photography, bird study, collecting leaves, stones, etc. Action shots taken on a walk of Junior climbing a rail fence, or Mother and daughter looking at a waterfall, or Dad balancing to get a rock specimen are much more attractive than the ordinary picture of people standing still in a straight line staring at the camera. Snapshots of scenery, of an elm against a sky with great white clouds, of the birches reflected in the water of a bay, or a clump of wild roses or columbine by the roadside, provide a record of a hike.

A variety of interests, family fun in the out-of-doors, provide the kind of training and zest for living in public school years which make any problem in juvenile delinquency highly improbable during the terrible teens! Make no mistake, time spent on family hikes is never wasted. It is sound insurance against aimless idleness tomorrow. Hiking yields the best possible returns in health and companionship, and awareness of the out-of-doors today!

MILK DELIVERIES

Edmonton CP — The five-day week for milk deliveries is winning general recognition in Canada, says R. B. Nells, managing director of a dairy company at London, Ont. Some Ontario municipalities however retain the six-day delivery week, he said.

Fashions

The empire look is expertly achieved in this walking suit prepared to decorate the spring scene. The fabric is striped, corded rayon and cotton in beige tones. The half-belt in front extends from the wide, triangular, set-in piece from the under-arm seams. Back is semi-fitted. Skirt is straight. The suit lends itself nicely to many an accessory change.

Stir-fry for flavor

In China, fish and vegetables are often cooked together by a quick stir-fry method known as ch'ao. This method is similar to sautéing. Foods are sliced and then pan fried in a small amount of very hot vegetable oil or lard. Vegetables cooked by this method keep their crisp texture and vivid colors, and protein foods such as fish retain flavourful juices. Though the technique is simple, the secret of its success lies in knowing when to add what and when to stop cooking the ingredients. The following recipe is typical of this method of cookery. The recipe has been supplied by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries, and it will provide a treat in fine flavor if directions are followed carefully.

Fillets and Asparagus Tips

1 Pound fish fillets, 1 pound fresh asparagus, 3 tablespoons cooking oil, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon corn starch, ½ cup water.

Thaw fillets if frozen. Separate fillets and cut into pieces about 2 inches by 1 inch. Trim asparagus; remove and discard tough ends. Rinse tender green stalks and cut on the diagonal into 1-inch slices. Heat 2 table-spoons of oil in skillet. Add wet asparagus cautiously to avoid spattering. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt. Cook over high heat, stirring constantly for 5 minutes. The asparagus is cooked when it is a bright green color and its texture is crisp but tender. Remove from pan to heated dish. Add remaining teaspoon of oil to pan. Fry fish for about 2 minutes, season with remaining ½ teaspoon of salt, then turn. Cook for another 2 minutes or until fish has lost its watery look and is a milk-white color throughout. Remove from pan to dish containing asparagus. Thicken any juices remaining in pan with corn starch dissolved in water. Cook until gravy is clear, Pour over fish. Serve hot. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Eggs in variety for picnic meals

Whether we like picnicking in the back yard, on a boat, at a camp-site or favorite fishing spot, we can indulge our fancy for a wide variety of food nowadays. But still one of the easiest foods to prepare when cooking out is eggs. They offer a wide choice of flavor combinations, can be prepared in a number of different ways to produce entirely different looking main courses and best of all they cook quickly. Eggs are approximately 90% edible, so one isn't carrying a lot of potential waste when eggs are added to the food supply.

Cardboard cartons, in which the eggs are sold, make good carriers although partitioned plastic egg boxes offer more protection against crushing in the haversack or food box.

Following is an easy recipe from the Poultry Products Institute of Canada, guaranteed to satisfy the huskiest outdoor appetites. Served either on a plate or as a generous filling for buns, Corn Egg Scramble goes well with crispy accompaniments such as celery, carrot sticks, radishes or crunchy pickles.

Campfire Corn Egg Scramble

2 Tablespoons fat, 8 eggs, 1 can (15 oz.) cream style corn, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 cup cubed processed cheese.

Melt fat in heavy frying pan over campfire, then set aside to cool slightly. Meanwhile open can of corn. When pan has cooled a bit (you don't want eggs cooking before they are mixed) break eggs into it and beat with fork enough to blend yolks and white slightly. Add corn and seasoning and blend together. Return to heat and cook, stirring occasionally until partially set. Add cheese cubes and continue cooking until eggs are set to desired degree. Do not over stir as cheese should remain in cubes. Yields 4 to 6 servings depending upon size of appetites.

The Poultry Products Institute offers this bit of information regarding cooking scrambled eggs. Eggs will continue to cook for a moment after they are removed from the fire, so if you like them creamy remove them from the heat before they are set quite as much as you like them. By the time they are served, chances are they will be done to the right degree.

Teatime Topics

By Carolyn Willett,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There seems to be a rush in recognizing the contributions by New Canadians to their adopted country.

Two people — an Edmonton doctor and a Toronto housewife — have been given awards by two different organizations.

Polish-born Dr. Konstantine Kowaleski received the first National New Canadian award at a biennial convention of the National Council of Jewish Women.

Dr. Kowaleski, 45, is associate professor of experimental surgery at the University of Alberta medical school and assistant director of the McEachern research laboratory. Through his medical research work, the Jewish women's organization said, he has made an outstanding contribution to his new country.

Danish-born Mrs. Lilian Spiess, 33, won the title "New Canadian Mother of the Year," in a recent competition by an international flowers-by-wire florists' association.

A shy, blue-eyed, brown-haired woman, Mrs. Spiess was nominated for the award by a German friend of her Swiss-born husband.

The florists decided she should have the title because, as well as being a mother to her two-year old son, with her husband's help she has made more than 600 toys for children in the Toronto Children's Aid and Infants' Home.

New Leaders

With the convention season already under way, two Canadian women's organizations now have new presidents.

The 5,000-member National Council of Jewish Women elected Mrs. N. I. Zemans of Calgary to succeed Dr. Reva Gerstein of Toronto at an Ottawa convention.

At the Winnipeg convention of the National Federation of Liberal Women Mrs. Robert A. Kinnear of Port Colborne, Ont., was elected president succeeding Mrs. A. J. Caldwell of Saskatoon.

The Liberal Women's organization came up with a whopping request of governments at all levels — a precise definition of obscene literature.

The convention said nothing can be done to curb the "increasing volume of undesirable publications now on sale" until the words "obscene, scurrilous, indecent, immoral" mentioned in the federal law are defined.

Music Hath Charms

Could be that soon we'll all be able to sit in the dentist's chair and yell "ouch" to music.

Dr. Edwin Sturgis, president of the Massachusetts Dental Society, told the group's annual meeting that teeth already have been extracted with no other pain killer than a process called "audio analgesia."

Receivers are put over the patient's ears while the dentist regulates the volume on tape-recorded music selected by the patient. Such an innovation rather lends itself to a play on Shakespeare's famous lines from Twelfth Night:

"If music means a painless pull, play on."

Get Ready For Outdoor Meals

With a long weekend holiday sparking the zest for open spaces, outdoor eating in most sections of the country will begin again.

Salads are ever so popular at these informal affairs. Here's one that will be doubly welcomed . . . Beans and Pork Slaw. It combines favourite canned beans and pork with tomato sauce and crunchy shredded cabbage. You'll be delighted with the flavour and crispness. Served in your prettiest salad bowl, this salad will be a star at many of your parties during the "outdoor eating" season.

A nice go-along is a platter of assorted cold cuts (stuffed with cheese cubes) and relishes . . . carrot and celery sticks, radish roses, olives, and sweet gherkins. Complete the menu with frozen peach pies and coffee.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

A heavy schedule of business was dealt with at the regular monthly meeting, held Wednesday last in the Memorial Hall, under chairmanship of Com. President Tom Smith.

A new member was initiated, in the person of Roger Guimond, and several other members who have been absent for some time for various reasons were in attendance.

Major events scheduled for the very near future include the District Council Meeting to be held in Morin Heights on May 31; the Legion Golf Tournament to be held at Ville LaSalle on June 19; the Royal Tour at Montreal on June 25-26; and the Lachute Fair during the week of June 15.

The president urged all members and their families to attend the District Council session as this is the annual meeting, at which new Council members will be elected.

The Golf Tournament at Ville LaSalle is open to all members, and applications must be in the hands of the committee not later than June 8. For further information, call Com. Smith or Com. Secretary Mrs. Graham.

Speaking of golf, any local Legion enthusiasts interested in organizing a tournament for this District are asked to phone Com. Jim Duncan. He has tentative plans for one, and will give you the details.

Plans are being made to include delegations from all Quebec branches to assist with Security during the Royal Tour, June 25-26. As many local veterans as can make it are requested to hand in their names to Com. Pres. Tom Smith. Volunteers will be given further information as it becomes available.

Com. Doug Ogilvie reported that the Teen-Age Dances remain popular with the young fry. Assistance from parents and members is welcome at all times. So any Friday evening you can spare an hour or two, drop in and see Doug — there'll be something for you to do!

Members are pleased to hear that Com. W. Hale is recuperating from his recent bout with a thunder storm, and expects to be released shortly from the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital.

Com. R. O. MacLean reported he was very impressed with proceedings at the Quebec Provincial Convention. The office of provincial president was very keenly contested, with Com. Ed Struthers emerging victor over Com. Norman McLeod.

Com. Pres. Smith announced the names of the various Fair committees, and asked that all members assist with this undertaking. Volunteers were enlisted for duties at the Fair Grounds. Any member whose name has not been taken is urged to contact Com. Smith immediately.

A special meeting on Fair arrangements is scheduled for Monday evening, June 1, at the clubroom.

Comrade C. Demerse asked that members push the sale of their raffle tickets, and advised that all unsold books and all stubs be turned in to him not later than June 15.

Further details concerning Fair arrangements will be released next week.

Com. B. Jenkins announced that the third and final series of Anti-Polio shots will be given shortly.— Watch for announcements.

Lest We Forget —

May 27, 1940 — Evacuation of Dunkerque began. In nine days, an armada of naval ships, private yachts, fishing boats and barges pulled 338,000 men from the closing jaws of a powerful Nazi war machine.

May 28, 1940 —

See you next week!

CATCHING ADS

A would-be agriculturist we know sent a money order in response to an ad that extolled the unfailing efficiency of a certain plant-bug exterminator. In due course he got two blocks of wood by express. The directions said: Catch the bug, put him between the blocks and strike smartly with a hammer.

Graduation dance colorful spectacle at Arundel school

Arundel — The graduation dance for the class of 1958 took place in the school auditorium, with a large number of guests in attendance. The hall was effectively decorated in a springlike theme. From a rather chilly atmosphere outside, on entering one stepped into spring itself. In the centre of the hall was a tall maypole decorated with the school colors, from which there were myriads of green and gold streamers forming a canopy over the heads of the crowd. At the base of the maypole were ferns and banks of flowers, and the indirect lighting gave a beautiful effect. The whole centre area space was enclosed by a white picket fence surmounted by window boxes, filled with spring plants and flowers. Tables were placed outside this space for the guests. The whole scene was lighted with Chinese lanterns.

The stage had a background of an imitation stone wall, on top of which were more window boxes with ferns and cherry blossoms, against a silver background. The stage was lighted with floodlights and Chinese lanterns. The background for the orchestra was a motif done in black with silver bars of music, which gave an appropriate effect. On each side were banks of flowers and ferns. Around the walls were mural cutouts of spring flowers and flower pots filled with creepers. . . . It was a scene of fairyland beauty, and the committee in charge are to be congratulated on their efforts.

The guests were received by Miss Judy Cooke and Lindsay Laughren, two of the graduates.

At nine o'clock, led by four pipers, the Grand March formed and entered the hall. First were two majorettes, Misses Dale Boyd and Gayle Morrison, and the usherettes and ushers, followed by the graduates, the Students' Council and the staff. After they had performed a colorful routine they broke up for regular dancing, led by the music of A. Stirling's orchestra.

Mr. Melvin Graham, the principal, then extended a brief welcome, and called upon Mr. Wilson, of the International Paper Co., who made a presentation of a tract of land to the School Board that is to be used as an educational project for the school students. Mr. Leslie Cooke thanked Mr. Wilson in reply, and gave a short resumé of the work the school is doing.

Mr. Graham then introduced the graduates, who made a colorful picture — Miss Judy Cooke, in pale blue net over blue silk; Rebecca Croft, in rose net over rose silk; Verna Godin, in pale pink net over silk with bodice of lace, and Jakkie Van Wieren, in white brocaded silk; and the male graduates, Kenneth Batty, Glen Boyd, James Sinclair and Andries Jansen. Rebecca Croft voiced a short reply of thanks on behalf of the graduating class.

Specially invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Reppiert, of the Canadian International Paper Co., Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. Hess, Mayor Wm. Morrison and members of the Council, Dr. and Mrs. Henry, the Rev. and Mrs. Bussell, Mr. and Mrs. Greenough, and members of the Arundel School Board.

Among the gathering were also many out-of-town guests and friends.

The Grand March was re-formed after the serving of refreshments, after which dancing was injoyed into the late hours, thus bringing another graduation dance to a successful close.

Better Roads For Safer Travelling

A picture story worth a thousand words.

(This is one of a series of 10 articles compiled under the direction of the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company, and is offered to this newspaper as a public service to its readers.—The Editor)

By
HENRY A. BARNES
Director of Traffic
Baltimore, Maryland

While visiting a large city in the South recently, an overpass was observed which has a left-turn lane, overpassing a divided highway, only 10 feet wide. Even though this is sufficiently wide for the safe travel of a motor vehicle, the facility appears so narrow that many drivers become panicky and crash into the guard rail.

During a trip to one of the southwestern states, it was noted that a white cross had been installed at every point where a motor vehicle fatality had occurred during that year. Driving a distance of only 300 miles, 68 white crosses were observed — most of them immediately adjacent to a small culvert with a raised curb about 12 inches high and about 3 feet off the edge of the road and the right height to catch the cross member on the automobile frame. Even though painted white, it offered a tremendous hazard, particularly after dark.

It is realized that new facilities cost tremendous amounts of money. The new Boston Freeway cost as high as $23,000,000 a mile, and I am sure figures approximating that amount can be found in most cities. Even so, however, safety should not be compromised in the interest of economy, and no highway should be constructed unless every precaution possible has been taken to assure the users that it is safe — not only from today's standpoint, but, also, from that of the future. All too frequently, highways are designed to meet certain budget standards, and facilities are constructed that do not meet good highway standards. It would be better to postpone that facility altogether, rather than to build one which will mean someone's death.

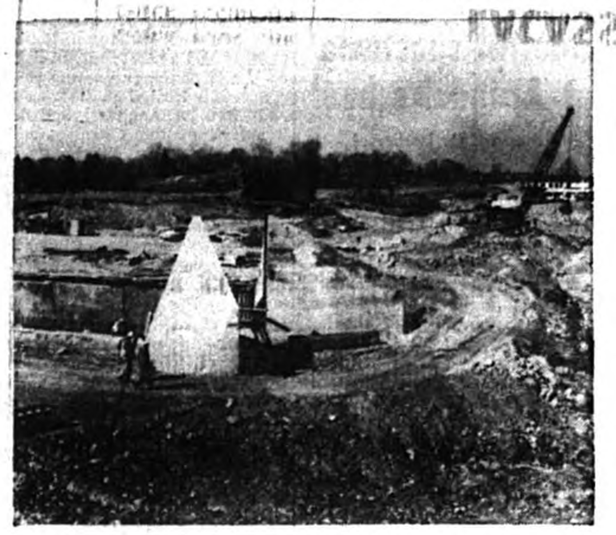

While new facilities are important, particularly today with all the discussions of Federal aid, we should not overlook the fact that our existing street systems will, at one time or another, carry every vehicle which also uses the new facilities.

Most people have the mistaken belief that traffic signals, for example, will eliminate accidents. In some cases, they do; but, at the same time a signal which is not properly engineered will more often than not be a greater hazard than if it did not exist.

The idea is gradually being accepted that modernization of existing facilities is just as important, if not more so, than the construction of new highways because if a city is just embarking on a new highway project, say 10 miles long, it is unlikely that the facility will be fully opened to traffic for at least 10 years. During that period, existing facilities must do the job, and the only way they will anywhere near suffice lies in the possibility of using the most modern engineering methods and equipment possible. Such things as fully reflectorized stop signs, modern electronic signal control equipment, channelizing of complicated intersections, median strips on hazardous highways, and lots of paint, along with good street lighting and good regulations, can certainly improve our present situation tremendously.

In fact, a traffic engineer has a tool that will do almost everything, except tighten the loose nut behind the steering wheel, who, too often, is already tight!

The next article, "More and Better Driver Training," is written by Alfred L. Moseley, of Moseley and Associates, consulting phychologist for the Institute for Safer Driving.

MORE PROOF... IT PAYS TO FEED PURINA

ON THE HOOK OR ON THE HOOF... Well Up in the Prize Money

Werner Romahn of R.R. 2, Petersburg, Ont., has been breeding and showing high-quality Yorks at the Royal Winter Fair, C.N.E. and other leading exhibitions since 1939. At the 1958 C.N.E. he exhibited the Junior and Reserve Junior Champion Boar and First Get-of-Sire. At the All-Canadian show at Brandon, he scored four firsts—Junior Sow, Junior Boar, Junior Herd and Get-of-Sire. The win in which he takes greatest satisfaction, however, is his First in the Carcass class at the 1958 Royal—proof that breeding and feeding have been directed along the right lines.

Take a tip from this skilled hogman. He conditions his sows with Sow Chow, gets his pigs away to a flying start with Baby Pig Chow and Pig Startena.

See us about the details for this profit-proved Purina Programme. We'll be happy to talk it over with you.
