FULL AGENDA AT COUNCIL —

New valuation, fire equipment and inter-municipal services

One unprecedented incident occurred at the Council session last Wednesday — a citizen turned up to thank the councillors for a public service! The grateful townsman was Aristide St. Jacques, who had previously appeared at Council to request paving repairs at the intersection of Wilson and Edwin Streets. . . .

Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon presided, and all councillors were present with the exception of Ald. E. O. Pollock. Building permit was granted for a house on Roy Avenue by Emmanuel Normand; while L. Jos. Dumais, seeking permit to erect a 15,000-gallon oil tank, was asked to submit his request in writing with all relevent details and specifications.

The secretary, Mme Yvette Raymond, was authorized to take legal proceedings to collect arrears of property and business taxes.

The fire committee were given the go-ahead to sell, for the best price possible, the older of the replaced fire trucks and the ladder truck. Railway Power Engineering had offered $600 for the two units. The town will retain the more recent truck while disposing of these two. It appeared that two nearby centres, Montpellier and St. Canut, were interested in purchasing the units in question.

Correspondence

Professional services of Fernand Legault, Q.C., have been retained to represent the town before the Public Utilities Commission, in a request from Ayersville Village to nullify the contract for water supply between the two municipalities.

On a request from Ayersville for better street-lighting on Hamford, it was decided the lighting committees of both municipalities should get together, and report back to the next assembly.

Another cummunication from Ayersville was a formal request for removal of the garbage dump, due to its proximity to the new hospital and other habitations. This request was tabled for study.

St. Jerusalem Parish was given permission to make two connections to the principal water main east of town on the St. Jerome road.

A petition was received from approximately 15 residents in the McGibbon "River View" subdivision, asking for the paving of their streets. This was held over for next meeting. . . . While on this question, the Mayor read a statement for paving of town thoroughfares sent by H. J. O'Connell Ltd., amounting to $16,818 for 5,480 feet.

Evaluation Roll

At this point it was stated by Mayor McGibbon the homologation roll would now be dealt with and adopted with the least possible delay. The evaluators (Bégin, Charland & Valiquette) have been asked to produce the cards listing all properties, descriptions, peculiarities, etc. On receipt of these they will be studied, and dissatisfied property-owners will have the opportunity to state their case. This should be completed within three weeks.

One proprietor registered a protest on this point — Horace Lafleur stating that his Grace St. apartment house was rated higher, for instance, than the Beaton Pharmacy building or the Pollock & Graves garage. He did not see why he should pay taxes for Main Street valuations, and suggested that assessments should be revised on this commercial artery.

Tenders and Purchasers

A tender from Decarie Automobiles, St. Andrews, for installation of a hydraulic unit for snow removal on a town truck, was held over for study. Amount of this quotation was $465.60.

Fifty insignia, to attach to the municipal vehicles, were purchased at a cost of $4 each.

Bills for the month, totalling $50,269.71, were passed for payment — less an account submitted by the firm of evaluators, for $3,596.50.

Sewer works on federal aid, winter program

It was made known at last Council meeting that the town will undertake extensive sewer works during the coming winter season, thereby benefitting from the federal aid to municipalities to alleviate seasonal unemployment.

In making this statement, Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon indicated the work would be directed to the region along the North River where improvements are needed in the sewer system.

An Ottawa news item last week quoted Prime Minister John Diefenbaker as stating, as the outcome of a cabinet session, that federal aid to municipalities will be raised to approximately $15-million — a 50 per cent increase on the $10-million spent last year. Winter works projects for government aid include — building or improving local roads, sidewalks, bridges, underpasses, sewer or water systems, and the clean-up or improvement of parks and playgrounds under municipal jurisdiction.

The program is operative from December 1 next, to April 30, 1960. And as last year, municipal corporations are asked to submit their projected plans through their provincial government as intermediary.

Police report for month of August

At the September meeting of Town Council, the engagement of two new constables was duly approved—Messrs. Raymond Leroux and Charles Armand being officially added to the force to replace Constables Richard Bell and Jeannot Laurin, resigned.

Permit to operate a bus service, at a fee of $50, was granted to Ben Marion. Stopping places on the town route will be carefully studied by the police department.

The police report for August showed — 380 service calls; 10 accidents; 24 occupants of police cells; 3,023 mileage on the patrol car; 23 tickets issued; 14 charges laid and cases concluded; 37 cases pending before the authorities. The sum of $46.25 was collected for bicycle permits, $8 for dog licenses, $35 in fines, and $200.90 deposit received for various violations.

Chief Trepanier is circularizing all dog owners liable for the payment of permits.

Two beaten up by hoodlum trio at St. Andrews

Three hoodlums in leather jackets, from Montreal parts, set upon two Carillon men at St. Andrews, in their twenties, last week-end, kicking them and inflicting serious injuries with a metal chain.

It appears the trio, two whites and a negro, had been hanging around St. Andrews in the past few weeks, causing anxiety to residents. They turned up again last week-end, and in the early hours of Sunday morning they engaged in a dispute with Gaetan Campeau and Albert Crevier near the Lapointe restaurant. The two local men were taken beside the Bradley garage, where Campeau was beaten with a chain from a motorcycle and Crevier was viciously kicked by the negro assailiant.

Campeau was found by passers-by slumped to the ground and unconscious. He was attended at the scene by Dr. André L'Allier of St. Andrews and the latter ordered his removal to the Hotel Dieu at St. Jerome; the man was suffering from severe head injuries. Crevier was treated by the physician for facial cuts.

It is reported the trio also tried to start a disturbance at the Riverside Hotel, but they were promptly ejected.

Provincial police were notified of the shameful incident.

Heavy loss as two barns burned near St. Andrews

Two neighboring farmers in the Beech Ridge settlement suffered heavy loss in fires which occurred within a one-day interval, completely destroying their large barns and contents.

The first blaze, of unknown origin, occurred at Gustave de Kover's farm on Sunday night, the barn being completely razed by fire.

The second fire was on Monday evening, caused in this instance by lightning, which struck the barn of Lucien Durocher. The structure, just newly rebuilt, was a complete loss.

The St. Andrews fire brigade responded in both cases, but the flames were so intense they could do nothing except concentrate on saving the nearby buildings.

The season's crops were also lost with the farm buildings.

Chairman for Charities drive

Bertrand L'Heureux, well known business man, has accepted the appointment of campaign chairman for the Lachute Federation of Charities appeal, which will be launched in October. President of the Federation for the current year is Notary Jacques Beaudoin.

Club hears progress report on new Argenteuil Hospital

A "case history" on the Lachute Regional Hospital was given by Roger Regimbal, personnel manager at Ayers Limited and a member of the Hospital building committee, as guest speaker at the Rotary Club last week.

Introduced by Rotarian Stewart Jones, Mr. Regimbal recalled the efforts of the original board in 1943, comprising Mrs. W. H. Ayers, Mrs. Leonard Ayers, Mr. and Mrs. Gaetan Valois and the Rev. Father Clouthier. In 1951 a new corporation was formed, when it was realized that a bigger and better hospital was imperative in this community.

The first government grant of $6,000 per bed was forthcoming in 1951. Mr. Grattan Thompson, an architect long associated here, was consulted—and for six years he gave his advice and services on numerous details gratuitously before being retained as architect for the actual construction. The local physicians were frequently consulted on aspects of modern hospital practice, and Dr. Harvey Agnew, a man of considerable experience in the layout of medical institutions, also gave valuable aid.

The total cost of the new Argenteuil Hospital, now taking shape on the Brownsburg Road, will reach approximately one and a half million dollars, including immoveable equipment, clinical installations, etc.

As preliminary plans for this big project became more complex, the committee, headed by Mr. Gilbert Ayers and the speaker himself, was augmented by five business or professional men — namely, Leopold Carrière, Herb Graves, Donald M. Hay, Simon Valois, N.P., and Armand Desrosiers . . . Just as there were many delays encountered in the planning, there have been obstacles also in the actual groundwork of construction. A small deposit of blue clay was found in the course of excavation, and additional testing and sampling of the sub-strata was required. Everything, however, is now progressing on schedule.

Incidental to the big construction job are plans for a 120-car parking area, and a municipal project to remove the nearby garbage disposal site. It is expected the hospital will be completed early in 1961. A special tribute was given to the support of the Hon. Wm Cottingham since the beginning of the project, and the speaker officially announced that a second instalment of $200,000 had recently been turned over to the hospital board by the local member of parliament.

Mr. Regimbal also paid tribute to the administration of the Providence Hospital, which, under supervision of the religious order of that name, has operated for so many years under trying conditions and with inadequate facilities. The speaker quoted round figures from the records of the present hospital — showing 15,000 patients treated; 8,000 births; 8,000 X-ray examinations; 10,000 laboratory tests; and 2,500 minor surgery cases.

The speaker was thanked for his address, and for his interest in this community project, by Rotarian Linton Armstrong.

Signs of activity on new west-end shopping centre

The new 15,000-foot IGA Foodliner and three additional units of the proposed Chatham Street Shopping Centre are scheduled to be ready for occupancy by December 1 — according to a reliable source of information.

At present, the land has been levelled, the contract for the construction awarded, and the contractor's shed is presently being erected.

The centre is to house nine units when completed, the majority of which have been leased to new businesses as far as Lachute is concerned. Location of the new centre is on Chatham Street, near the Brownsburg Road, across from the A. D. McGibbon & Sons office and lumber yard.

Weighty issue debated by city fathers

City Fathers have been scratching their heads over a problem without precedent — in the form of a soft-drink dispenser in the civic sanctum.

The police department is part-owner of this equipment (part-owner only, since it is being paid for in monthly instalments). The police department is virtually "in business" on this project, since it is corporate collector of profits (if any), from the sale of soft-drinks to the police, the civic staff, and any potential customer who haunts the halls of administration. However, the unit belongs to neither one nor another of the department, since police employees come and go — and going, retain no claim in the corporate investment.

All of which is doubly complicated by the fact that the town levies a rental of $5 monthly on this "business."

Is it illegal, for the guardians of the law to own and operate this equipment? It seems there are grave principles at stake. Some say yes, some say no. . .

In the course of last month's Council proceedings, Ald. S. Church, aided and abetted by Ald. L. Laurin, moved a hoist on the $5 monthly rental. This was not too cordially received. Some felt this was a legitimate source of revenue, and the police should pay rental for the particular premises occupied by this machine.

Not ready to abandon the controversy so easily, the Church Laurin phalanx brought the matter forward again last week, at the September session. It was Ald. N. Lepage who lit the fuse, however, proposing point-blank that the rental be abolished . . . A salvo from the opposition followed. Ald. Mozart Carrière moved, in amendment, that the levy should continue.

Mayor Jas. McGibbon, with his customary aplomb, summarized the situation then called for a vote on this weighty issue. Three stalwarts registered their support to the amendment—Messrs. Carrière, G. Lefebvre and Dr. J. P. Dorion. Opposed to the amendment were five equally determined councillors — Messrs. Lepage, L. Gibeault, L. Laurin, S. Holt and S. Church (Ald. E. O. Pollock was absent from the assembly) . . .

The champions of the cops had won their case! Police Chief Trepanier offered "cokes" all round — jubilant that there will be profits for shoe wax and brass polish to keep the police boys presentable.

Premier mourned

Hon. Maurice Duplessis, Quebec's colorful and controversial premier, whose name across Canada has become almost synonymous with the province itself — died following a brief seizure, in the early hours of Monday morning at Schefferville, Que. The premier's death terminates a long and tireless record of public service.

Accident verdict in Acres fatality

A five-man jury returned a verdict of accidental death last Thursday evening after having heard four witnesses testify to circumstances surrounding the death of Donald S. Acres, a 24-year-old Outremont resident, related and widely known in this district. The inquest was held in the Lachute Town Hall under direction of District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur.

S. Alex Acres, father of the victim, testified that he had identified the body of his son, while Traffic Officer Albert Legault, who investigated the fatality, gave evidence as to the location of the crash and the position of the vehicle when he reached the scene — adding he could find no witnesses to the accident, all concerned having left the scene and the two injured youths having been transported to hospital.

André Côté, 23-year-old son of Dr. A. R. Côté, of Brownsburg, and a medical student in Ottawa, gave testimony as to his leaving Lake Louisa around 9.15 p.m. and driving to the Montana Inn, near Pte. au Chene, where he met six friends. He reported having stayed there less than half an hour and having one pint of beer. When the group decided to leave, he invited one of the other boys to drive with him; two offered to join him in the car, a 1959-model Skoda sport coupe, and Donald Acres happened to be the one who accompanied him.

Mr. Côté reported he did not remember the time they left to return to the Lake, and had no clear recollection of what happened after passing the junction of Routes 8 and 8-A. The accident occurred one mile west of St. Philippe. He stated he remembered waking up in a strange place and being placed in an ambulance — his brother (a doctor) being beside him. He gave other evidence as to his driving experience, stating he had never been involved in a previous accident.

Denis Ross, a chartered accountant from Ottawa, gave evidence to the effect that he was following two cars west of St. Philippe the evening of the accident, and saw the second car force the Skoda off the road while attempting to pass a car in front. He stated the Skoda travelled on the shoulder of the road for approximately 75 yards and in veering back on the highway, turned over two or three times, passing extremely close to his own car. The witness reported having stopped and run to assist the occupants, one of whom was on each side of the car; while he could not be sure, his impression was that the car was not travelling at an excessive speed. He described the car which is believed to have forced the sports car off the road as being a 1950-model Chevrolet, cream and maroon in color and bearing an Ontario license plate. Mr. Ross added he was travelling approximately 35 to 40 miles an hour, and the unknown car was going at the same speed.

District Coroner Dr. Lafleur read the sections of the Coroner's Act relevant to the case, and expressed his thanks to Mr. Ross for volunteering his evidence; his identity had been unknown until he telephoned the police.

The jury deliberated only a few minutes before returning the "Accidental Death" verdict.

Polio clinic postponement

The Lachute Legion Anti-Polio Clinic, which was scheduled for September 17, has been postponed due to shortage of vaccine. Committeeman Bernard Jenkins has been advised that persons having received two shots may safely delay the third shot up to 18 months.

Further announcement on the clinics will be published next week.

Bread salesman in panel truck killed instantly

A Brownsburg distributor for Alexandria bread, favorably known to many, met a grim and tragic death when his panel truck collided with a three-ton vehicle last Friday afternoon on the Brownsburg Road. The victim was Vincent Langlois, aged 44, who died instantly at the scene of the crash about two miles north of Lachute beyond the shrine and apple orchard).

According to Sgt. Roger Massie, of the traffic patrol, who investigat with Sgt. Det. Ralph Allen — the victim swerved into the path of the truck on the wrong side of the road, indicating he might have suffered a seizure or momentarily lost consciousness. The three-ton truck, proceeding northward, was owned and driven by Alfred Dagenais, 36, of Lachute, working for H. J. O'Connell Ltd. Mr. Langlois, in collision with this heavy vehicle, had his left arm severed and his face badly mutilated. The body was brought to the morgue in Lachute. Alfred Dagenais, driver of the truck, was uninjured.

The district coroner, Dr. Jules Lafleur, gave a verdict of accidental death.

The victim, well known in the Brownsburg area, is survived by his wife, the former Gertrude Parisien, and a family of three children.

Brownsburg couple celebrate 50th wedding

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Wilson celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on September 1. They were married in the old Methodist Church in 1909, by the Rev. B. B. Brown of Montreal, a former pastor here. The Rev. Brown was away on vacation and unable to attend the banquet which was held in the Legion Hall here on August 31, when Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and their family — (Florence) Mrs. John Duncan and Mr. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wilson, also their grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Duncan, Miss Marilyn Duncan, Miss Marlene Wilson, Earl Wilson, Richard Wilson, Robert Wilson and Shirley Wilson, with the Rev. and Mrs. G. T. Spriggs of Lachute—were seated at the head-table. The table was beautifully decorated in golden-colored decorations and white bells, and centred by a large wedding cake. Large baskets of gladioli were used as a background on the stage and also on the tables.

Mr. John Duncan acted as m.c. for the evening. Mrs. Duncan presented her parents with a beautiful clock from the family, and little Shirley Wilson presented her grandmother with a large bouquet of gold-colored roses and white carnations, also a corsage of white and gold carnations. Mr. K. W. MacGibbon brought greetings and good wishes from all the guests, and presented the "bride and groom" with two beautiful gold-colored Ayers bedthrows and other gifts.

Mrs. C. L. Stephens presented Mrs. Wilson with a gold-colored guest book from the Brownsburg W.I. — an organization which she joined many years ago and of which she has been a faithful member, holding many offices, and is also a life-member.

Following the banquet, square dancing was enjoyed, and it was noted that the "bride and groom" were in the first dance enjoying themselves with the other "young" folks.

Mrs. James Stevens, a family friend from Windsor, was the guest soloist.

On September 1, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were at home to their friends, who enjoyed a cup of tea together and chatted about the "good old days" of 50 years ago.

High School enrolment 730; newcomers on teaching staff

Deep in preliminaries for re-opening of Lachute High School today (Wednesday), Principal F. H. J. Royal was interviewed in his office on Monday, busily oblivious to the Labor Day holiday.

With a staff of 32 in the school this year, and an enrolment of 730 pupils anticipated on re-opening, there has been a volume of detail in the planning of classes, timetables, and a hundred unseen incidentals which contribute to the smooth operation of the school schedule.

The enrolment at this time last year was 722; the increase to 730, anticipated, is not excessive but indicates the trend.

There are six newcomers on the staff, to be introduced to new pupils, new duties and new surroundings. Parents and the public will have ample opportunity to meet these new residents. Meanwhile, following is a brief reference as to their record and background:

Mr. George Demerson comes here from Saint John, N.B., with the degrees of B.Sc. (McGill) and B.Ed. (U.N.B.) Mr. Demerson holds a teacher's license and Class V certificate for New Brunswick. For the past two years he has been teaching Science at Saint John Vocational School. . . . In Lachute he will teach Physics, General Science and some Mathematics.

Mr. Bernard Fitch, from Kingston, N.S., holds a B.A. degree from Acadia University, has the teacher's Class II certificate for Nova Scotia, and has had four years' teaching experience in that province. . . He will specialize in History and Geography.

Miss Ann Olney, of Danville, Que., is a B.Sc. (Home Economics) graduate from McGill. She is the holder of a 1st Class teacher's certificate for Quebec, and will specialize in Home Economics, while also directing the school cafeteria.

Mrs. W. Cribb (the former Clare Mae Laurin of Lachute) is an L.H.S. graduate, now holding the elementary teaching diploma from Macdonald College. She took the French specialist's course at Summer School and has also been teaching French in the Ottawa school course. She will specialize here in the instruction of Junior French.

Mrs. Gary Payne, originally from Montreal, was married recently and is now residing in Lachute, her husband being employed with C-I-L at Brownsburg. Mrs. Payne has the intermediate diploma from Macdonald College, and has done considerable work towards her degree at Sir George Williams College. She has been teaching at West Hill High School for the past four years. Her assignment will be the regular teaching of Grade VI, in one class of this grade.

Mr. Clifford White, originally from Nova Scotia, holds the teacher's license and Industrial Arts diploma from that province. He is presently working towards his degree in Industrial Arts. Mr. White has taught for a number of years in Nova Scotia, and last year was a member of the school staff at Knowlton, Que. His subject will be Industrial Arts.

New season of activities for 'Toastmasters'

Hawkesbury Toastmasters Club will start its fourth active year Tuesday, September 15, in the Esquire Restaurant. At this time members from Hawkesbury, Lachute, Brownsburg, Kilmar, Calumet, Grenville and Vankleek Hill will get together for the first meeting since last May. Three regular weekly meetings will be held before the club undertakes an eight-week course in "Speechcraft".

Although the name of this organization may suggest that it is a bacchanal group with a rather frivolous purpose, nothing could be further from the truth. Toastmasters International is a non-profit, non-partisan and non-sectarian, educational organization of over 3,000 clubs, providing its members with opportunities to improve their abilities to speak in public, conduct meetings, and develop their executive capacities through practice, mutually constructive criticism, and assumption of responsibilities within the organization.

Each club is a member of Toastmasters International and receives services, supplies and counsel from the home office.

Anyone interested in Toastmasters should contact Wes Freeland in Brownsburg (telephone LE 3-6665) or Don Hart in Kilmar (ME 2-6326).

MORE TROUT

Fort Frances, Ont. (CP) — Speckled trout fishing now is available in the Fort Frances district of northwestern Ontario. Conservation officials announced that fingerlings stocked last year in Pal and Jump Lake in the Atikokan area now have reached legal size.

NOTES FROM ABROAD

Penzance, Aug. 28 —

We are now on the return part of one of the finest weeks I have ever spent on any vacation. We have seen so much grandeur and such beautiful scenery that it is impossible to portray it in wrting. So I have concluded the only way is to send you this itinerary of our 8-day tour, hoping that our readers may get an idea of the great enjoyment we have had in sightseeing through Devon and Cornwall.

The hotels are most comfortable, with excellent food, and the driver of our coach very obliging. How he manages to steer our large luxury vehicle through the many narrow streets, and around corners, with perhaps only an inch or two to spare at either end, has been a mystery.

Describing the lengthy autobus coach cruise which I mentioned in my last instalment, here is a summary of highlights, taken from the printed itinerary:

Leaving Brighton, we make a non-stop run to London by the most direct route.

Then leaving Victoria Coach Station, crowded London streets soon give place to the main Portsmouth road. By-passing the busy thoroughfares, of Kingston-on-Thames and Guildford, we gain the Hog's Back, a "grandstand" that overlooks many miles of Surrey.

We leave Farnham; through the Wey Valley runs the road to Alton, a market town that once had a large cloth-making industry. On the far side of it stands little Chawton, which was Jane Austen's home for several happy years. New Alresford lies ahead, and Winchester. This city was the Venta Belgarum of the Romans; of all its splendid things to show, Winchester has many, but none more noble that its cathedral, which is the longest Gothic church in Europe, and the shrine of kings and princes.

Leaving this city, our route takes to higher ground and soon comes to Hursley — called a "model village" — and then to the woods of Ampfied and past the abbey town of Romsey.

We come to the fringe of the New Forest; from Cadnam to Lyndhurst, the heart of the Forest, and we go on to Burley, our first night's stopping place. Day's mileage from Brighton, 149.

2nd Day—We strike across fresh Forest country to Southampton, where we reach the pier and embark for the Isle of Wight.

The journey down Southampton Water never lacks interest, no matter what traffic may or may not be on the move. Docks crowd on the lefthand side; beyond them the River Itchen merges its waters in this great stream. Over on the righthand bank of the water is Hythe. Abbey ruins are seen close to the water's edge. We glide down this estuary, between the sandy flats and wooded banks. We pass the mouth of the River Hamble and Calshot Castle on a promontory, then we cross the Solent to the landing stage at Cowes.

Taking the road again, we come into Newport, our route swings northwest to Ryde, Sandown and Shanklin. A winding road below the downs and, seawards, a glimpse of Luccombe Chine.

A picturesque undercliff road from Ventnor to Buddle, which is near the Island's southernmost extremity. From the village of Brook we see the Needles and their lighthouse.

We travel among woods and downs and through the villages of Chessell, Afton, Wilmingham. Then there is Yarmouth, a town of charm and individuality, guarded by Henry the Eighth's sturdy castle.

Leave Yarmouth by ferry. The Solent is narrow here, so our ferry boat soon reaches the Lymington River and moves up towards the slipway. This town is known to yachtsmen everywhere.

The rest of the day's run is through attractive country that brings us back to Burley for the night.

3rd Day — A drive towards Ringwood. We pass this little town and cross the River Avon, that weaves among its meadows.

Poole Harbour, the wide, island-dotted haven that has seen, in their turn, Danish raiders, French raiders, pirates and smugglers, out to plunder its shores or make it a base for their illegal traffic. To Upton, Lychett Minster and then Wareham, which was a port until the capricious sea deserted it. Thence to Weymouth, whose sweeping bay perfectly fits it to be both resort and naval base. It is, perhaps, needless to recall how it became the former, for most people know that George the Third's repeated visits "put it on the map". While on the seafront, however, you are, historically speaking, in another town. For centuries Melcombe Regis, and Weymouth existed side by side and wrangled fiercely over their respective rights in the harbour. Not until the reign of the first Elizabeth were they united as one borough.

The gradual climb out of Weymouth rewards the traveller with some superb views of Portland Bill, the Chesil Bank and Lyme Bay. Beyond Abbotsbury to the stone-walled, thatched-roofed village of Burton Bradstock, and to West Bay, which is the actual port of Bridport.

Bridport is a town with a long history, for in the reign of Edward the Confessor it had a priory and a mint.

A hilly road to Charmouth which Jane Austen liked so well, then dips into Lyme Regis. The charming hillside town has its own place on the Austen stage. But it also has certain claims on history. Three ships sailed out from here to play their part in defeating the Armada. Monmouth landed here on his reckless expedition, and close to its small stone pier, folk who had aided him paid their grim penalty to the hangman.

Hence we cross the valley of the Axe, by way of Axmouth.

Newton Poppleford is as pleasantly named as any place in Devon. Here we follow the countryside in which Sir Walter Raleigh spent his boyhood. From Salterton's red cliffs the boy Raleigh probably caught his first glimpse of the sea, over which he was destined to sail on his way to found the colony of Virginia.

In Raleigh's day this was a fishing village with, of course, the popular sideline of smuggling, then widely considered to be nearly as respectable as any ordinary trade. (At the old vicarage in East Budleigh a secret room was reserved for the storage of contraband goods).

Exmouth looks westward to the distant hills, and southward to the open sea. Here we spent the night at Exmouth's Imperial Hotel.

4th Day — On one side of the road to Exeter the land rises to the wooded commons that lie between the Otter and the Exe; on the other it falls away to the banks of the estuary, with here and there a village, such as Lympstone and Exton, straggling down the shore.

From its earliest days Topsham, lying between the Exe and the Clyst rivers, throve as a port, but its great time began late in the thirteenth century, when it came into the hands of a certain Isabella, Countess of Devon. This resourceful if grasping lady cast a covetous eye on Exeter's waterborne trade, and in order to divert it to her own port, ordered the building of a weir across the Exe. For over two centuries Exeter writhed under the loss of its former trade; not until the sixteenth century were the tables turned. Then the Exeter ship canal was opened and it was Topsham's turn to be denuded.

Thence to the town of Chudleigh, to which came William of Orange after his landing from Torbay. We cross the River Bovey, and at Buckfast we see a stately abbey which was built up with loving labor by Benedictine monks, on the site of an ancient foundation that fell into decay after the Dissolution.

Although South Dartmoor is less rugged than its northern neighbor, it has its own grandeur and mystery, while its hills are rich in traces of the Stone and Bronze Age populations who once dwelt there. The road leads to Plymouth, a city in which splendid memories go hand in hand with an eager modern life. Pride in its past and faith in its future are both manifest in the determined way in which it is rebuilding on its bomb-damaged areas.

After lunch at Plymouth, a short run brings us out to the Mayflower Quay, which is the spot from which the Pilgrim Fathers set out for the New World. From here, after a launch trip round the harbor we land at Torpoint, on the Cornish side, and there rejoin our coach.

Tea at Liskeard, the gateway to a fine road that runs beside the River Fowney. Thence to Bodmin, Eglos-hale, and the noble fifteenth-century bridge with which Wade-bridge spans the river.

There are few more beguiling towns than Padstow, which has a magnificent setting and the faintly medieval look that clings to its little streets. During the Middle Ages it was important as a ship-building town and harbour, but a sandbank almost closed the estuary and strangled its sea-going trade. Since this is magical Cornwall, of course there is a legend for the Doom Bar; this asserts that long ago a Padstow man tried to shoot a mermaid, who, for vengeance, raised the bar against his town. . . We dine at the Metropole Hotel. Day's mileage, 105.

5th Day — Our road climbs gently to the downs, and on the far side comes down to St. Columb Major and into Camborne, which was the birthplace of Richard Trevithick, the locomotive pioneer. Here he spent many hours at work on his model steam engines and ran them experimentally on the country roads. The story goes that one evening the worthy parson chanced to encounter one of them, and at first took the strange little monster to be an invention of the Evil One.

A few miles more, and we see the Atlantic shore again, when St. Ives' wide bay comes into view. From the town of Hayle, we cut across Cornwall at its narrowest point to St. Michael's Mount, crowned most romantically by priory and castle.

From Penzance inland to Land's End, the great rocky bastion that marks the most westerly point in England. (Penzance incidentally is much older than its present architecture, but at different times it suffered the depredations of Spanish raiders and Parliamentarian soldiers, the sum of whose work has been the destruction of almost all of its earlier buildings).

We take the bay road to Marazion, which was an old town while Penzance was yet a village, and to Helston, whose "Furry Dance", strange survival of a pagan festival in the merry month of May sets the whole town a-caper.

Over the Long Downs we glide down into Penryn and to Falmouth, which is high on the list of ancient ports and can boast a harbour that is second only to Plymouth Sound. Here, we go by launch through the famous Carrick Roads and up-river into Truro.

Truro has close on a thousand years of history behind it. In the twelfth century it was a port and market town, and it received its charter some 800 years ago.

After tea at the Red Lion, we proceed then to Carlyon Bay. (Dinner and night at Cliff Head Hotel). Day's mileage, 127.

6th Day — From Carlyon, and St. Austell, Cornwall's earliest 'clay town', across the windswept moor to Camelford, called the heart of the "Arthurian country", for legend links this place with Camelot, near which that king is said to have been slain in battle.

We travel through this legend-haunted country.

Stratton is older than its coastal neighbor, Bude, and has seen drama in its day. On the wall of the Tree Hotel, a plaque commemorates the Battle of Stamford Hill, in which the Parliamentarians were soundly defeated by the Cornish Army.

From Stratton to Clovelly Cross through country threaded with streams. This is a land rich, even for Cornwall, in the signs of long departed folk; camps and tumuli and barrows lie thickly among the grassy acres on each side of the road.

At Clovelly the village is entered on foot, for its one steep, cobbled street was not made to carry wheeled traffic. No words can describe the fascination of this little place, which clings to the hillside above the beach and harbour. Clovelly is set among trees; deep woods stretch from the hilltops to the shore below.

From this spot on our tour the high road leads to Bideford. It is high in a very literal sense; on one side, glimpses of the sea, and on the other a wide vista of countryside.

Bideford has been a port for centuries and its tree-shaded quay has rung to the footsteps of many seamen who have helped to make history. Five ships set sail from here to meet the Armada. Who will find it strange that "Westward Ho!" was written in this town?

Proceeding to Barnstaple, a town which claims to be the oldest borough in the country, we take tea at the Imperial Hotel. . . We are soon in the delightfully situated little town of Lynton which perches among the rocks, five hundred feet above the shore. (Dinner and night at Royal Castle Hotel).

7th Day — Lynmouth lies at the foot of the hill. Lynton is now high above us, but soon we climb over Countisbury Hill to County Gate, where Somerset begins. There, too, is the gateway of "Lorna Doone's" country.

Along the northern fringe of Exmoor, for one more breath of the sea we turn to Minehead, a resort which has retained many of the picturesque features of the fishing village in which it had its origin. We enjoy tea at the Beach Hotel.

From here we go down to Washford Cross, then Taunton, the county town. From Taunton's long story one episode comes most quickly to the mind — that of the "Bloody Assizes" of Judge Jeffreys, held in the hall of the castle. An eighth-century king of Wessex had a palace on this site. . . We spent the night at the County Hotel.

8th Day — We make an early start for the long homeward run. From Taunton we go to Mere, just inside the Wiltshire border; this is truly in the "Hardy country", for the scenes of "Tess" were set in this downland district.

Wilton stands a few miles to the east — a beautiful old town, long known for carpet-making.

Few county capitals have a older, richer heritage than has Salisbury. Its thirteenth-century jewel, the cathedral, would in itself lure folk from far away.

We cross a Roman road and pass below Figsbury Rings, an Iron Age camp. From here we go over into Hampshire via Stockbridge, in that Valley of the Test, so well beloved of anglers.

We climb now, over Crawley Down to join the old Roman road from Winchester. Thence to Ascot, the fashionable racing centre.

The run to London returns us to Victoria Coach Station, and after a brief halt the journey to Brighton is resumed.

At Southampton a boat tour took us round the docks and under the massive Queen Mary and needless to say we felt very, very small.

The Mauretania appeared small on the opposite side, and our ship, the Saxonia, was preparing to leave the following day. We regretted not being able to see Mrs. T. Maitland and family also Mrs. McGibbon off, but were a day too early.

Other sea trips along the coast showed the actual figurehead of William of Orange as built on the front of the old vessel.

In Plymouth 41,000 people lost their homes during the war, and new buildings are being constructed to accommodate them.

The home of Mary Newman, wife of Sir Francis Drake, was pointed out also the bowling green where he was playing bowls when the Armada sailed in and he is reported to have said "Let's finish the game first." This he did, and they then went out to conquer the fleet.

Ends chapter of public service

Regardless of one's political affiliations, there are few Quebecers who will be unmoved by the passing of Premier Maurice Duplessis.

Esteemed for his untiring energy, and for his tenacity and loyalty to what he considered the best interests of his province — it is fitting that Mr. Duplessis should die thus "in harness", terminating suddenly a long and colorful career, while on one of those little-publicized missions related to the promotion of Quebec's resources. He was fatally stricken in Schefferville, deep in the ore country of Northern Quebec which had sprung to life largely through his own initiative to build, exploit and develop.

In this particular field, and in many others, the late Premier Duplessis had made phenomenal achievements. Yet, despite some criticisms of autonomous and dictatorial policy, let it never be said that his long regime was a "one man band", for Mr. Duplessis called to his cabinet and his personnel men of undoubted sincerity and ability, whom he constantly consulted, and to whom he never hesitated to entrust full confidence and authority.

Right or wrong on many debatable issues, Mr. Duplessis must be revered as a premier of superhuman energy, earnest, and very personally active for his province. A look at the records in the past 19 years since he first became premier, will confirm his government's claim to notable achievements—a performance to which Duplessis himself has given the prime inspiration and momentum.

The advancing years and weight of responsibilities had shown in the countenance and bearing of this man. Among those who had noted these signs, the break was expected. . . . It came, suddenly; and while Quebec mourns, the truth will be recognized in fairness on all sides, that the ancient province has lost a stalwart champion for its interests and its progress.

Accuracy an after-thought

WE ARE nonplussed — not to say annoyed — by the slap-happy manner in which some people manhandle local place names. Lacking the effort to find out the authentic spelling, or in some cases just changing time-honored names to suit themselves, these people glibly letter their signs and post them in public view — regardless of local feelings and of official maps which, in the making, have involved much trouble and research for accuracy.

Two present examples of this practice may be mentioned. Both, we believe, were perpetrated without ill intent — but with no apparent effort to preserve accuracy . . .

On the Lachute - St. Andrews road a sign was erected this summer pointing to "Ile Chat" This spot, named probably as early as any of our Valley settlements, is being exploited for summer campsites; but the most casual enquiries, or reference to local maps and histories, would reveal the authentic name is Isle aux Chats (the "isle" appearing in the old French spelling, and "chats" in the plural — a place of Indians and prolific with wild-cats, according to earlier tradition).

But in this respect, individuals are sometimes no worse offenders than corporate authorities. The other example mentioned is in St. Jerusalem Parish, contiguous to Lachute, where a new street named in recognition to members of the Noble family, its first residents, is labelled "Nobel". . . . Sic transit gloria.

Is it too late, or too futile, to plead for the preservation of time-honored names in these parts?

Extra-curricular

IF YOU ARE one of the army of parents driving children to and from school this year, take advantage of the trips to teach young passengers traffic safety. . . You should be your children's best teacher, anyway. You have most opportunities for it, and they look to you for direction.

Pick one point each day, and look for chances on the ride to make it clear.

For example: Tell them about never passing a stopped school bus. Show them a stop sign. They should learn that the shape is always octagonal. That shape means STOP whether you can read the letters or not. Know that it is set low on the right hand side, close to the pavement, just before a dangerous intersection.

Know it means full stop — and wait to be sure the main road is clear of cars and pedestrians. Then go ahead. Never sneak through.

Teach them the shapes and meaning of other signs. Explain the various centre lines. Point out speed zones.

And interrupt any day's lesson to point out "case studies" in pedestrian behaviour and erratic cyclists — to make your children safer in traffic.

A little extra-curricular learning going to and from school will protect them now, and make better drivers later.

"Captivating" the audience

FAR TOO MUCH marketing emphasis is being placed today on so-called "captive audiences" and far too little on "captivated audiences," according to W. H. "Bill" Cranston, an ex-publisher now head of the Shoe Corporation of Canada.

No audience will remain "captive' for long simply by reason of some physical limitation of TV or radio signals — according to Mr. Cranston. It must be "captivated" in terms of personalized viewer or reader interest and, in this field, Canada's community-minded newspapers, daily and weekly, hold a large potential lead over other advertising media.

"Newspaper readers are held 'captive" for advertisers basically not because of any limitation of competitive signal strength, but because their horizons are coincidental with those of the editors, the reporters and the advertisers who jointly create the community journal."

Newspaper "captivation" (Mr. Cranston told weekly editors at their recent convention) consists essentially in the fact that their news, comment and advertising is personally purveyed by persons their readers know and can, therefore, personally evaluate.

"Other mass media seldom if ever approach the degree of influence which the good newspaper too often accepts as natural. It attains a degree of 'captivation' which is unknown to more remote and therefore more 'artificial' media.

"It is an acknowledged fact that the best selling method is person to person, that is, face to face," Mr. Cranston continued. "But the cost of selling this way is in most cases prohibitive. So the next best method is for a known person, that is a local dealer, to sponsor a product or service over his own name in a medium known and respected locally. This is where the local newspaper, with its 'captivated' audience, can do such a good job. It can be, and is, a key link between consumer, marketer and manufacturer."

The all-important component

"THE VICTIM was struck by a car." "The automobile went out of control." "The car struck and killed him." . . .

Phrases and sentences, day in and day out, blame the automobile for the accident, the injury, the death, the damage. Was it the car? Did a ton of steel, cloth and glass suddenly undertake to run down and kill or maim a human being? Or was it the person in charge of the car?

A minute percentage of traffic mishaps can be traced to vehicle failure by itself. When a mechanical fault results in an accident, the blame is almost always with the owner or driver of the car who failed to maintain his vehicle in a safe condition. Regular checks of all parts of the vehicle will discover and correct flaws that could kill if left alone. The newspaper, radio or television reports should place the blame on the guilty party, not on an assemblage of parts and accessories that only do as they're directed.

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, Aug. 29, 1884 —

The Montreal Herald's annual picnic is being held in Lachute again this year, at Barron's Grove.

The past week has been unusually warm, the thermometer registering 110 to 115 — too hot for men to work outdoors.

Bitterness against the Jews in Russia resulted in recent assaults which assumed the threat of a general massacre.

Mr. Campbell of Lachute Mills is busy day and night manufacturing flour for the farmers.

King Burke & Co's great "American Allied Shows", museum and trained animals, was presented last Wednesday on the Agricultural Grounds at the rear of the Medical Hall.

An English jury returned the verdict, "Died by the hereditary visitation of God", in the case of a man who had broken his neck when drunk, and whose grandfather had met with a similar fate.

Miss Emma Christie, daughter of Dr. Thos. Christie, while trolling near Power's Bridge on the North River, caught a maskinonge weighing nearly 18 lbs.

50 YEARS AGO

We are pleased to publish an article this week by Mr. R. D. Hepenstal of Brownsburg, on the subject, "Shall Canada Have a Navy of Her Own?"

A challenge has been sent out from Dominion Park to the Argenteuil tug-of-war team for a contest in the near future.

Mr. L. Seft has opened up a business next to the Bell Telephone here, for the purchase of scrap iron, rags, old rubbers, horse and cow hair, copper, lead and bones.

Mrs. Thos. Todd, 87, sailed for the Old Land this week aboard the S.S. Victorian. She was accompanied to Montreal by Mr. H. Slater.

At the Agricultural Society Annual Fair in September the dining hall will be in charge of Mr. W. G. Staniforth and outside booths supervised by the Hockey Club.

The aldermanic exposure in Montreal resulted in an injunction withholding all road-paving contracts. The Laurentian Granite Co. has been obliged to close down its quarry at Brownsburg.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Sept. 6, 1934 —

Death — George Vary, a native of Dalesville, died at Timmins, Ont., at the age of 67.

Bazil E. Jackson, of Brownsburg, is building an enviable reputation as a dog fancier, having won awards with his spaniels at two recent shows.

The Rev. Roger Lafleur, of Chambly, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lafleur

Mr. Roland Cruise, of the Bank of Montreal staff, has been transferred to Richmond, Que.

Argenteuil has its recollections of this week just 74 years ago — when the Prince of Wales (later King Edward VII), while visiting Canada, entrained from the landing at Carillon to travel overland to Grenville, thence embarking on a steamer again for Ottawa. . . . The colorful story of this royal visit to Carillon is told in Dr. B. N. Wales' "Memories of Old St. Andrews", now in course of publication.

Miss Juliette Rodrigue gave a piano recital at the Notre Dame Convent in Quebec, in connection with the Tercentenary celebration of the Ancient Capital.

What is Colonialism?

— By Lewis Milligan —

At the recent meeting of the Couchiching Conference one speaker declared that Russian occupation of countries in Eastern Europe was no worse than British colonialism. That word, colonialism, has been bandied about as if it were a synonym for an aggressive and ruthless imperialism. I have consulted several dictionaries in vain for a definition of the term colonialism. The Annandale merely describes it as a "phrase or idiom."

The word colony is defined more definitely as: "A body of people transplanted from their mother country, and remaining subject to the jurisdiction of the parent state; a body of settlers or their descendants; the country planted or colonized."

Even the word "colony" has fallen into disrepute among some Canadians whose forebears were all colonists and proud of that title. Yet it dies hard. Travelling on my holidays through Ontario by the Colonial Coach Lines (sic) I was everywhere reminded of those "bad" old colonial days. The name still survives nostalgically in old hotels and, of all things, in one of those very modern caravanserais, under the title, "Colonial Motel"! The motor car has swept the highways and rural byways of the colonial horse and buggy, but one comes upon a lone hitching post in the villages, while remnants of the snake fence on farms are reminiscent of the strenuous and hopeful toil of the pioneer colonists who laid the foundations of our present state. Even in the United States the word Colonial is proudly preserved. As far south as Florida the name still flourishes in the Colonial Inn of Miami Beach. Colonial architecture has attained a permanent status among the classics of that art.

So there is no reason why we should be ashamed of our colonial ancestry. It was the rock from whence we were hewn, and Canada is still a colony, as witness the thousands of immigrants from the old countries who are settling in this Dominion annually. Canada is still "a body of settlers or their descendants," and Disraeli once declared that "colonies do not cease to be colonies because they are independent." Burke, the great British statesman, speaking of the connection of the colonies with the mother country, said: "These are ties which, though light as air, are strong as links of iron." That mystical bond was recently manifested in the joyful Dominion-wide reception accorded to the young Queen Elizabeth II by the descendants of those colonial pioneers. Blest be the tie that binds.

Where is Boat Encampment?

Boat Encampment was an establishment of the North West Company and later of the Hudson's Bay Company at the Big Bend of the Columbia River, near the mouth of the Canoe and Wood rivers, in what was to become British Columbia. It was founded by David Thompson in 1811 and was the point of transshipment between the pack trains that crossed Athabaska Pass and the boats that travelled up and down the Columbia River. Boat Encampment remained in operation for about 50 years and in 1864-66 witnessed the gold rush in the Big Bend country. By-passed by the railways, it came once more into prominence on the completion in June 1940 of the Big Bend Highway, a link in the Trans-Canada Highway. The present Boat Encampment Lodge is a mile from the original site.

What Disease hit one out of six Canadians?

Influenza. The 'flu epidemic of 1918 affected one person in every six of the population and brought death to more than 30,000 Canadians. The epidemic appears to have originated in Spain, from where it spread quickly to the troops in France. It reached Quebec in August 1918 and soon spread to Montreal and then to Toronto. Within three months it had struck all parts of the country. Influenza is a virus disease. Epidemics occur when a new strain of the virus, to which no one is immune, is produced by reproductive mutation.

What connection has Wolfe with Boischatel?

Boischatel is a village in Quebec's Montmorency County, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence about eight miles below Quebec City. It was named in honor of an officer of La Sarre Regiment during the French regime. It lies in farming and dairying country and it serves as a residential area for Greater Quebec. According to tradition, the village contains an old house that was used as headquarters by General Wolfe in 1759.

Which CPR President began as a Newspaperman?

D'Alton Corry Coleman, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway from 1942 to 1947, was city editor of the Belleville, Ont., Intelligencer in 1888. The following year he entered the service of the CPR as a clerk in Fort William. He rose in posts at Nelson, B.C., Calgary and Winnipeg, becoming vice-president of the company in 1934 and president in 1942. Mr. Coleman, who was born at Carleton Place, Ont., in 1879, retired from his CPR post in 1947 and died in Montreal in 1956. One of his sons, Jim Coleman, is a well-known sports commentator on Canadian TV.

Facts a-plenty in new edition

Some items culled from the new and enlarged edition of a pocket encyclopedia that contains more than 25,000 facts about Canada:

One of the small Canadian five-cent pieces is valued by collectors at up to $400 — the small silver coin dated 1921, the year the change was made to the larger nickel coin.

Every year in Canada about 1,060 boys are born for every 1,000 girls — apparently nature's way of compensating for a slightly higher male infant mortality.

Natural gas, one of Canada's fastest-growing industries, increased its number of customers during 1958 from 645,646 to 1,032,930. . . .

These are some of the items contained in the 15th annual edition of Quick Canadian Facts, 35-cent pocket annual of facts about Canada just released by its publishers, 810 Lumsden Building, Toronto.

Among the thousands of other facts about Canada noted in the new book are:

Of the 24 national elections held since 1867 the Conservatives and Liberals have each won 12, but nine Conservative leaders have held the office of Prime Minister compared to only four Liberals.

In the years 1929-1958 football's Grey Cup was won ten times by Toronto teams, Hamilton five, Winnipeg four, Edmonton and Montreal three, Sarnia and Ottawa twice, and Calgary once.

In the current year family allowances and the universal old age pension will cost more than $1 billion, or about one dollar in every six collected in federal taxes.

In 1958 Canada suffered a deficit in international trade of $326 million, and the cumulative trade deficit for the three years 1956-1958 exceeded $2 billion.

More than one-third of all fires in Canada are caused by smokers' carelessness; in the fuel classification electricity is the principal fire cause, oil-fired equipment ranks second, solid fuel (coal, wood, coke) equipment is third and gas-fired equipment is fourth.

The world-wide influenza epidemic of 1918 killed more than 20 million; between 30,000 and 45,000 Canadians died in the epidemic.

The new edition of Quick Canadian Facts, which carries up-to-date information on all significant aspects of Canadian life, was released just recently to newsstands and bookstores.

All Aboard

by G. E. MORTIMORE

Metz, France — I wish I could tell you what General de Gaulle is thinking. Many newspapermen can do it easily, the minute they step on French soil.

The best of them can read the general's mind without going to France at all, from as far away as Vancouver, or Dallas. I have before me the Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune, containing an analysis of Gen. de Gaulle's motives, and advice as to what the president of the French Republic should do next — all of it drawn up by an editorial writer in New York.

But here I am in France itself, and I haven't picked up any mental messages from the general. I have never seen the general, and I doubt if I will. His retreat is a long way from here. So I am unable to write a psychological think-piece about him, and about France.

I feel ashamed of myself, because I have been in France for one whole day, and I still haven't formed any final conclusions. But there it is.

All I know is that France is a beautiful country, and I like it. I had the pleasant journey down from London to Dover in the Golden Arrow and across the Channel in a ship (second class). During the Channel voyage, an announcer delivered the following message on the ship's public address system: "Any attempt by second-class passengers to infiltrate the first-class section of the ship will be taken as a desire to pay the first-class fare, which is 14 shillings extra."

After oozing through a densely packed herd of people at the exit from the ship in Calais, I stood in line until a cheerful French customs woman put a chalk squiggle on my cases.

Then I was in a train rolling past the fields of France, sharing a compartment with an Italian who spoke no English or French.

Quite a number of men walked in a loose-jointed, carefree way, and had cigarettes hanging from one corner of the mouth. Drowsy fishermen dangled lines in canals. A woman, driving a hay-wagon that looked as though it had carried aristocrats to the guillotine, turned and waved.

The harvest fields were quiet. But grass-grown concrete pill-boxes, buildings pock-marked by shells, and place-names that were famous in the annals of war, reminded the traveller of all the blood which had fed these fields.

Late at night I arrived in this old city of Metz in Lorraine, one of the provinces that France lost to Germany and took back once more.

I sat in a sidewalk cafe beside a cobblestoned street next afternoon, and drank a beer. It is a national pastime here, I believe, to occupy an outdoor table and see how long you can make a drink last, while observing the parade of humanity.

Many things are shaped differently in France. Hydrants are tall and graceful. Telephone poles often have extra curlicues on them.

But from my sidewalk vantage point I noticed one thing in particular: Girls are the same shape, or more so. It may be my imagination, but I think that French girls move with special grace.

THE SONNET OF THE SODA

(Reprint from 1950)

I wish I were a soft-drink man
There must be millions in it.
One can't keep pace with all the brands —
A new one's born each minute.
You see the signs on every hand
In rich and gaudy hues
Inviting you to have a drink
Of Bogswamp's Bitter Booze.
And as you journey down the road
Around the curving hill,
A poster smacks you in the eye
For Swivelton's Swell Swill.
Then there's another further on
Where all the traffic stops —
A neon sign — red, white and blue,
For Hiccup's Hicecold Hops.
Across the road's another one
But nearly twice as big,
Inviting you to try a glass
Of Swineherd's Swivel Swig.
Another one that's popular
And made from pumpkin pulp
And advertised in magazines
Is Gumboot's Gurgle Gulp.
The surface hardly has been scratched.
I've mentioned just a few.
So let's go in and have a drink
Of Gloopott's Gastric Goo.
Aw, come on in. I'll pay for both.
T'will only take a minute.
It cannot do you any harm
'Cause you don't know what's in it.
The advertiser says it's pure
And he would not be fickle,
And seven ounces of the stuff
Will only cost a nickel.
Not thirsty now? Oh, very well.
Come in and have some pie
While I mop up a tall, thin glass
Of Coffdrop's Caustic Lye.

A fertile field for Bible distribution

A feature of the British and Foreign Bible Society Conference in Swanwick, England, last June was the dedication of two Bible vans for Madagascar. These vans are the joint gift of the Norwegian Bible Society, which was represented by Mr. Lief Erikson, and the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Madagascar, which has a population of about five million, throughout which are scattered about sixty-thousand Europeans, and eighteen thousand Asians, is a fertile field for Bible distribution. In the north of the Island the people speak Tsimihety in which only portions of the Bible have been translated. In the South where Malagasy is spoken the people have the whole Bible in their own tongue.

Special service of re-dedication at Lachute Baptist

The service re-dedicating the renovated auditorium at Lachute Baptist Church was held August 30 at 7.30 p.m. Special speaker for this occasion was the Rev. R D. Holmes, from Westboro, Ont. Mr. Holmes spoke on the subject "The Church", under three headings: (1) Its Definition, (2) Its Foundation, and (3) Its Purpose.

During the service there were special numbers in song by Miss Doris Austin and the Rev. K. R. Miller.

A history of the foundation of the church, and the erection of the original building was read. Those present were interested to hear that the layout of the original building was the first of its kind in North America, and that the total cost of the property and construction was $4,000; the building itself was equipped with every modern convenience of the time (1887), and could be envied by the large city churches of that day.

Farewell supper and presentations as pastor leaves Lachute - Dalesville

Approximately 65 members and friends of Lachute Baptist Church gathered in the church hall on Saturday, August 29, for a farewell supper for the Rev. and Mrs. K. R. Miller.

The Rev. K. R. Miller

In recognition of the many hours Mr. Harold Carpenter of Brownsburg had labored in the renovation of the church without charge for his services, Mr. Miller presented him with a cheque. In making the presentation, the Rev. Mr. Miller stated that the church could not adequately repay the work done by Mr. Carpenter, but this cheque was a token of their appreciation.

A presentation of a beautiful bouquet of gladioli was made to Mrs. Miller by Miss Lynn Nixon. Following this, Deacon J. P. Merryweather presented Mr. and Mrs. Miller with a cheque for $100 on behalf of the church. This presentation was made as a parting gift in appreciation of the work done by the pastor and his wife, especially for the extra time and labor spent at the church during the recent renovation.

In reply, both Mr. and Mrs. Miller said that they had enjoyed the time spent in this district, and that they hoped to be able to return for a visit before too long. Mr. Miller then closed the evening with prayer.

Social Evening and Presentation in Dalesville

On Thursday, August 20, after the prayer meeting in Dalesville, Mr. Lorne Tomalty presented the Rev. K. R. Miller with a cheque for $200 as a parting gift, on behalf of the members of the church. Mr. Miller responded briefly.

Those present then adjourned to the hall, where they enjoyed a social time together, gathering around the tables for refreshments. The singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" brought the evening to a close.

Plan new Angl. church in Laurentians

Concerning plans for the new Anglican Church in the Laurentian resort area, "Fitz" of The Gazette commented last week as follows:

Establishment of a new Anglican church at Ste. Marguerite Station in the Laurentians is to be discussed at a meeting in the Alpine Inn, which has been authorized by Rt. Rev. John Dixon, Bishop of Montreal. The idea for a second Anglican church in the mid-Laurentians has been sparked by the success of the Church of St. Francis of the Birds in St. Sauveur; and by the wishes of the large number of Anglicans residing in the Ste. Marguerite Station area. A site has been selected on the road between Ste. Adele and Ste. Marguerite, and plans have been readied. Prominent in the organizational work of the new congregation are: R. J. Beaumont, W. Johnston and E. Illingsworth. The new church is to be called St. Christopher's; and with its church hall is expected to provide a centre for many community activities.

Minister inducted in St. Mungo's and district charge

(Our District Correspondent)

Cushing — The induction service held in St. Mungo's Church on Tuesday evening, September 1, was very impressive. The service was in charge of the Rev. F. A. C Doxee, who is president of the Montreal - Ottawa Conference, substituting at this time for the Rev. Dr. D. M. Grant, chairman of the United Church Presbytery, who could not be present.

After the organ prelude played by Miss A. Davidson, who presided at the organ for the occasion, the hymn of praise was sung from Chalmer's Collection of 1749, "I joyed when to the House of God," and the Call to Worship and Invocation; the Scripture reading was by Rev. R. DeWitt Scott, secretary of the Montreal United Church Presbytery.

The sermon was by the Rev. Abel Parsons, newly inducted to the pulpit of Ste. Therese, who brought a bit of humor into the proceedings. Speaking from the high pulpit in St. Mungo's Church he remarked that for once he was "privileged to go over the heads of those above him," who were in charge of the management of church affairs. The sermon itself was instructive and enlightening, and much appreciated by the audience.

The Rev. R. DeWitt Scott then previous to the coming of the Rev. borough (who had been ministering to the charges for nine months previous to the coming of Rev. Kirk Feltham) to relate the steps leading up to the Induction. The Rev. Mr. Rosborough here spoke of the most friendly relations he had had with the people of the different congregations. The members of these congregations are also especially grateful to the Rev. Rosborough for continuing to serve them in their time of need.

The Rev. Mr. Doxee then proceeded to induct the Rev. K. Feltham to the various charges. Following the closing hymn, "The Church of God," the Rev. Kirk Feltham invited all present to a social hour in the church hall, then pronounced the Benediction.

There were several other clergy from the Presbytery present, including the Rev. W. Bridge of Lachute, the Rev. G. Bruce of Brownsburg, Rev. J. Sherman of Hudson, and Rev. E. McIlwain, of Montreal, — all of whom, together with some of the visiting laymen, were asked to stand by during the induction service.

APPRECIATION

Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Wilson wish to thank all relatives and friends for their very kind wishes, cards and gifts, on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Your child learns to dress

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Let me dress myself". At an early age small boys and little girls demand this step towards independence. The mother's reaction to this request is important, because dressing is part of every day's routine.

It is so easy for mother to say, "Wait till you are older," or "Le mother do it this time."

There are so many things to b done in the home, and mother often feel rushed and weary. A parent can certainly dress a smal child much more quickly and effe tively than he can do it himself It is rather significant that in a re cent Canadian tragedy, the young mother of two little tots had writ ten the words "tired" along with "love" in her farewell note in her Bible to her husband. But it is a mistake for a mother not to en courage the child's first signs of eagerness to clothe himself.

Interest is necessary for all learning. Enthusiasm to master a skill, even on the part of a small child, makes accomplishment much more possible. If a child is discouraged by his mother in his first trials in putting on socks or underwear, it may be a long time before he shows any eagerness to become self-sufficient in dressing himself. A parent may even wonder at his indifference to get himself dressed, forgetting that he was denied the choice when he first wanted to try to look after himself.

A mother does well to meet her children half-way. If it seems essential demonstrate how to put on a certain article and then let the child struggle to do it himself. His fingers may seem to be all thumbs, but mother must stay in the background. Give only the assistance which is necessary. Encourage the child and praise him for even a small measure of success. Be careful, however, that Junior is not trying to dress himself just in order to get warm words of commendation from mother! Let small Junior get increasing satisfaction from becoming more proficient in his own ability to put on his clothes.

A year-old child, or even an older baby may occasionally attempt to put on an article of apparel. But most two-year-olds are quite eager to dress themselves. Their interest wanes from time to time. Not until they are almost five will they be able to assume full responsibility. Tying shoe laces and doing buttons up at the back are often not done correctly till a child is old enough to start to school.

Zippers are a real boon in small children's clothes, providing they are sturdy and carefully inserted. Buttons must be large enough for small fingers and button holes roomy. Modern children are fortunate in the well cut, simply made garments which can be donned with the minimum of effort.

All children do a certain amount of dawdling. Mothers sometimes wonder how in the world their children can consume so much time in the simple process of dressing. To nag or to scold a child who is a bit of a "slow-poke" is worse than useless. If necessary give a youngster a little help. Try to cut out unnecessary distractions or interruptions. Plan for some interesting activity right after dressing is completed.

New leaf for breakfast-skippers

Is breakfast time hectic in your household and hard on you, the homemaker? Many housewives claim they run a short order restaurant most mornings Then comes the morning the alarm clock doesn't go off and in the general scramble no one will wait for breakfast.

On such mornings don't let the family short-change themselves on nutrition and efficiency. Give them a quick-to-prepare and quick-to-consume, liquid breakfast. This breakfast, says the home economist of the Poultry Products Institute, is a real time saver and best of all it does provide some top quality protein, in the form of an egg per serving, to keep that all-gone feeling at bay until lunch time.

What is a liquid breakfast? If is made of milk it is an eggnog; or when made with tomato, vitaminized apple juice or orange juice, it is a "Peptail", and when it is made of the children's favorite ice cream it becomes a milk shake. Any version is good and literally "made in a shake". All you do for each serving is add a beaten raw egg to a glass of seasoned milk, chilled fruit juice or a mixture of milk and ice cream and shake or beat together to blend and drink. Raw egg flavor? Not a bit of it, not even when you add it to the apple juice. Try the simple Peptail before you say "I don't believe it". You'll be surprised.

Why more breakfast skippers don't turn to this quick, easy food combination is a mystery. Too many people are afraid to try something different, and what a shame! For generations home nurses have known the nourishing effects of simple eggnogs when someone is recuperating from an illness. So it stands to reason a liquid breakfast would be nourishing for someone who is healthy also.

Looking for ideas for a lunch box? Try the following suggested menu from the Poultry Products Institute: Creamed eggs and mushrooms (in wide-mouthed vacuum jar), buttered corn muffins, turnip sticks and celery, peanut butter cookies and fruit. Served at home or out of a lunch box, it would still hit the spot.

At Canadian Couturiers showing

A Montreal couturier shows this mode in brushed viscose jersey for his Fall '59 collection. Above, the neckline dips low to a point, branches into a fringed bow. Below, the skirt swirls from tiny waistline tucks into deeper folds, stops short just below the knee. The Canadian fabric is luxurious brushed jersey. A black velvet cocktail hat, flippantly veiled, adds to the charm of this outfit.

Fall fashions shown in pairs and threesomes

Canada's top designers predict that fashion will go to pieces this fall.

It will be a season of fashion in pairs, or threesomes, matching suit to coat, evening dress to its full-length cape, or daytime outfits to three-quarter length coats.

This fashion trend was borne out last week in the Association of Canadian Couturier's fall '59 collection unveiled in Toronto's Lord Simco Hotel.

Elsewhere, Canadian couturiers separated after-dark fashions into threesomes, combining the cocktail dress with its cover-up jacket and adding a matching cape or coat.

The far-flung couturier association, which includes members from Vancouver to Montreal, also predicted a season of elegant fabrics woven by Canadian mills, with soft brushed jersey, challis and wool for daytime, and glittering fabrics for after-dark cocktail and evening gowns.

For the most part, Canadian couturiers have shed the short suit jacket for fall. They have lengthened the jackets to below the hips, often stretching them to three-quarter length. Suit skirts are slim, shirred, or faintly box-pleated, but seldom escape to knee length. Jackets are often trimmed with up-raised bows, back draping, or effective use of oversize buttons and collars.

Colorwise, the couturiers have painted the fashion in autumn gold, bright olive, burnt orange and red deepening into russet, vermilion, tan and black.

Maladies defined

An exact definition of three conditions which may confuse the layman — arthritis, neuritis, and bursitis — is given in Health Magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada.

"Itis", states the article, means inflammation; "Arth" means joint; "Neur" means nerve; a "Bursa" is a sort of soft envelope filled with slimy matter like soft jelly, that is found in spots that are apt to rub, as at the elbow and knee.

One finds that these terms are very badly misused:

"Arthritis", then, means inflammation of any joint. There are four main kinds and about twenty rarer kinds. Osteoarthritis, due to wear and tear, is the commonest.

"Bursitis" means an inflamed bursa, and may occur over the knee-cap (housemaid's knee), the elbow, or in the shoulder, notably. It is usually caused by injury, friction, or unaccustomed use.

"Neuritis" is an inflammation of a nerve. It may result in pain, numbness, or paralysis in the part supplied by that nerve. Alcoholism, chemicals such as lead, and certain infections, including diphtheria, are common causes.

Broccoli bouquet, all edible

(Consumer Section)

Broccoli is one of the flowers of the cabbage family. The flower, stem and tender leaves are all edible.

When shopping for broccoli, select clean, dark green, compact clusters with tightly closed buds and tender, firm stalks. If leaves or buds are yellowish and stalks seem tough or woody it means the broccoli has passed its prime. One pound of good quality broccoli, requiring little trimming, will provide 3 to 4 servings.

Use broccoli soon after buying, while it is still crisp and fresh. If you must keep it for a day or two, wrap in waxed paper, foil or film and store in your refrigerator hydrator.

Broccoli tastes best when cooked in a small amount of salted water until just tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Stems will cook more quickly if slashed lengthwise up to the flower.

This vegetable is also good served raw with other vegetables on a relish tray or in tossed salads. Broccoli blends well with many flavors and seasonings: serve it hot simply with salt, pepper and butter; try it with hollandaise, cheese or lemon butter sauce; or sauté some fresh mushrooms briefly in butter and pour over the cooked broccoli just before serving.

Home Frozen Broccoli Easy to Prepare

Simply trim off and discard inedible parts, cut through stalks so that pieces of heads are not more than 1 inch thick, and wash carefully. Blanch (dip in boiling water) for 2 minutes, chill quickly, drain and pack in freezer bags or packages. Freeze.

To cook: one "pint" container of frozen broccoli, add ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ cup boiling water to broccoli in saucepan. Cook 3 to 5 minutes, using a fork to break vegetable pieces apart during heating, so they will cook uniformly.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

While you were having fun on your summer vacation, your faithful family car was working hard.

To keep it operating at its best, take it to your local service station for a post-vacation checkup. Service station operators will be glad to:

1. Check your tires for cuts and bruises. Switch the tires and see if the wheels are correctly aligned.
2. Test the car's generator and entire electrical system.
3. Give the car a thorough lubrication. Drain the oil and replace with the correct weight of oil he recommends for fall driving.
4. Check the air cleaner. Motoring near the shore or on dusty back roads can clog it up.
5. See if the radiator screen is clean. Bugs you've accumulated during summer motoring can clog air passages; without proper ventilation, it can boil over.
6. Wash the car and give it a complete waxing job. The wax will protect the car's finish against winter weather and insure a better trade-in value.

Vegetable oils aid victims of acne

Vegetable oils, commonly used in cooking and in salads, have come to the aid of diet-conscious teenagers who suffer from acne, the so-called "pimples" of adolescence, according to the American Medical Association.

Apparently, corn oil used as a dietary supplement prevented weight loss and fatigue, often associated with low fat diets, a frequent acne treatment.

Working with three different groups of acne patients, Dr. W. R. Hubler, Corpus Christi, Texas, said that corn oil was especially well tolerated and "made unpleasant low-fat diets more palatable."

"Unsaturated fatty acids in the form of corn oil helped maintain weight and vigor in the average patient with acne," he said.

In one group there was a remarkable improvement in the skin and general condition of five patients. "None of the patients became worse when corn oil was added to their diets," he said.

In another group of 180 patients studied, the acne condition "seemed to subdue more rapidly than in patients treated prior to the use of corn oil." He pointed out that out of the 180 patients, he had to resort to X-ray treatment in only five in order to produce clearing of their acne.

Even patients who suffered from acne in its worst form improved with remarkable rapidity with oral use of corn oil.

The Texas physician said that in his studies he found that ingestion of corn oil did not influence the normally low cholesterol levels of the teen-agers in any way.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman
By Edna Blakely,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A robin has been holding up progress in Whitby, Ont. Construction on a $350,000 water filter plant was held up while workmen waited for some baby robins to hatch.

Mama robin selected a niche in the wall of the building under construction in which to build her nest. Workmen completed the brickwork on the wall but left the four-foot-square niche untouched.

Contractor Douglas Miller halted work in that section of the huge building so the hatching process could go on uninterrupted. When the birds hatched, the workmen probably shifted the nest to a nearby window so mama robin could look after her young until they could fly.

Fast Frozen

A new mobile pea harvester allows peas to be harvested and shelled in one process. The peas are then put in tanks of cold water and taken to plants where they are frozen. The new process reduces the period from harvesting to processing and quick-freezing by 75 per cent.

A national producer has devised a free-flowing package, a great advantage over the former blocks of frozen foods which must be used once the package is opened. The new pack allows the cook to use a little or as much of the vegetable or fruit as is needed for one meal.

Paint When Possible

Worn linoleum isn't much good, but linoleum which has the pattern worn in spots can be easily repaired with paint. Not only can you give the floor a new surface, but you can change the color or pattern if desired.

The first step is to get the floor clean. A good scrubbing with soap and water should be followed by a once-over with turpentine to remove traces of wax. Then apply floor paint or good quality enamel.

Let the paint dry. Now your creative ability can go to work. To make a stippled effect in a contrasting color, dip a piece of household sponge in a shallow pan of paint and dab on the floor. White on black achieves a marble appearance.

A spatter pattern is tricky but effective. Strike a paint-filled brush against a stick held in the other hand. Naturally the size of the spatters will vary with the amount of paint in the brush and the distance between the brush and the floor.

An extremely gay effect can be obtained by using several colors. A coat or two of clear varnish will protect the new floor surface.

Les Saguenéennes

To date, no one has refuted statements from the men of the Saguenay area in Quebec that the Saguenay girls are the last of a species gradually becoming extinct in Canada.

They claim the girls are "charming, alluring, coquettish and very, very feminine" with emphasis on the feminine.

The men speak loudly of the manner of dress, hair styles and personality of the women they call "les Saguenéennes." They claim the girls, living in the rugged Saguenay district east of Lac St. Jean, have maintained something of the charm of old-world Quebec despite the encroaching of modern influences.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Almost as straight as the crow flies the two diesels sped across the three provinces of Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Behind them I sat in one of the coaches watching the thousands of acres of lush green bush and forest. Literally hundreds of lakes, the little ones chocolate brown, the bigger ones an ebony hue, made me wonder why our Canadian scientists would ever worry about greenbelts and conservation areas. Surely here was enough water to keep this part of the old world from drying up for many moons.

Like all problems relating to man's relationship with nature and his needs such as coal, oil, gas and lumber, transportation has always been a poser. The engineering brains of the country are even now considering a means of piping water from the Great Lakes to the central, heavily populated regions of Canada. There suburban municipalities are facing a water shortage more severe each year as wells dry up. But it is not likely in the lifetime of most of us that those still, deep bushland waters will be disturbed by anything more commercial than an outboard motor or a fishing rod.

I was amazed to hear a fellow traveller remark that she wouldn't care if she never saw another tree after two days of travelling through this amazing greenbelt. To me it was restful and at the same time exciting. Outside my mobile picture window at one point I saw an eagle's nest atop a hydro tower. A few miles farther on, there beside the tracks nestled a lone grave fenced with rickety wooden palings. It must have been painted white years ago, but now was just a dirty gray color. A single spindly cross, leaning at a precarious angle marks the last resting place of someone who had been loved enough to have this little woodland shrine built to his or her memory in the midst of the almost primeval forest.

At many of the small stations as the train whizzed by, red-brown Indian children played. They looked out of character in their modern jeans, T-shirts and leather shoes — the little girls wearing plastic hair bands. The white man has made little dent in these forests, but he has everlastingly influenced the tastes and habits of Canada's first citizens.

Still if one looked deeply into those woods, one could spy a tepee here and there beside a squatty old log cabin. Perhaps the Indians had erected them for the overflow of children, for these northland natives are famous for the size of their families, yet we hardly ever spied a sign of life near these primitive abodes. I came to the conclusion that the whole family goes fishing or berry picking.

How could one ever become bored with such wonderful scenery? Wild flowers in brilliant hues abound in profusion, blending their blues and bright orange with the clean white of the daisies that grow everywhere, even in the crevices of the rugged rocks. Bird watchers with trained eyes could easily spot the red on the wings of the black-birds or spy a duck flying from one watery rice field to another.

While the lady ranted about "trees, trees and more trees" another couple, whose home is almost in the heart of the largest city in the world revelled in the vast distance their glance could cover. They reckoned their tourist dollars well spent for the privilege of viewing this bit of Canada in its wild, natural setting.

The most spectacular act nature staged for us during the last evening before a Regina visit was the sunset. A long, thin pattern of clouds resting on the prairie horizon turned from a billowy white to a deep turquoise. Then, as the sun sank, a vivid red line framed the tree tops that stood out in black silhouette against a lemon yellow sky and blended into a midnight blue where a new moon hung. Still there are those who miss these spectaculars of nature because they cannot see the forest for the trees.

GOES TO SEA

Vancouver (CP) — The 105-foot tug Granthall will go to sea after 30 years on Kootenay Lake. It will be shipped to Vancouver and used in the coastal towing trade.

Quebec Gov'mt shows over-all surplus

Quebec (CP) — The Provincial Government announced an over-all surplus of $373,738 for its financial operations of the 1959-59 fiscal year ended March 31. Ordinary expenditure was $453,041,819 and capital expenditure $93,444,148. Total revenue was $546,859,705.

The over-all surplus is within a few thousand dollars of the estimate made by Finance Minister John Bourque during the last session, when he forecast revenue would reach a record $537,252,000 and over-all expenditure of $536,873,000.

In issuing the statement it was observed that Quebec is one of the few governments in Canada in a position to report an over-all surplus during the last fiscal year.

The Auditor General reports the consolidated debt of the Province stood at $318,105,440 on March 31.

Annual Achievement Day held by the Lachute 4-H Calf Club

Fine September weather contributed to the success of the Lachute 4-H Calf Club Achievement Day, held last Saturday at the Lachute Fair Grounds.

There were 33 head of heifer calves shown by the club members, which is an increase over last year. The judge for the day was Mr. Arnold (Buddy) Hughes, Agricultural Fieldman from Macdonald College, who did an excellent job of placing the animals.

The trophy winners were Kenneth Rodger, who won the Walker McArthur Rose Bowl for the Champion Herd; Richard Thompson, was reserve. Sheila Meyer won the Bank of Nova Scotia Trophy for the Champion Holstein Calf. Kenneth Rodger won the Bank of Montreal Trophy for the Champion Ayrshire Calf. In the Showmanship classes, Howard Todd won the Alex Bothwell Memorial Trophy for Junior Showmanship, and Douglas MacKenzie won the Alex Bothwell Memorial Trophy for Senior Showmanship.

Parents and many interested spectators were present to watch the proceedings. The judge commented on the fine quality of the calves shown, and the boys' and girls' good work in preparing them for the show.

The Lachute 4-H Club members wish to express their appreciation to the directors of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, for use of the Fair Grounds. Also to the donors of the trophies for their interest in the 4-H Club work; and a note of appreciation to Arnold Hughes for the fine work he did in judging the classes.

New Premier of Quebec

Hon. Paul Sauvé

Only a few hours after the impressive funeral ceremonies and burial of the late Premier Maurice Duplessis, the Hon. Paul Sauvé, member of the Legislative Assembly and representative for Two Mountains, agreed to form a new government and become Premier.

Mr. Sauvé, with 29 years' experience in provincial politics, despite his relatively young age, sat at Mr. Duplessis' right in the Legislative Assembly — traditionally the seat of the second in command.

Charities Fed'n launches appeal Sept. 26 to Oct. 3

The Federation of Charities appeal, to finance nine affiliated funds in Greater Lachute, is being held in the very near future — from September 26 to October 3. The objective, based on requirements of the various member groups, is set at $19,800.

Assurance is given by the Federation president, Notary Jacques Beaudoin, and by the campaign chairman, Bertrand L'Heureux, that the demands of each charitable enterprise have been studied carefully and the budget kept to a strict minimum.

The nine outlets of assistance comprise eight established charities of top importance, and a coffer for emergency needs. Included with the charities are clothing centres, playgrounds, Social Service, and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The Federation has rendered valuable service since its formation here, while minimizing the number of appeals to public generosity and co-ordinating humanitarian effort to prevent waste of both effort and expense.

Priest as missionary to Haiti

Construction company anticipates 25 homes ready by mid-December

A representative of "Riverview Construction Company", Mr. H. Macsé, met with members of the Ayersville Council at their regular session to inform them on his company's plans to erect about 100 homes on the site purchased recently from Dr. Roger Lavigne and Paul Laliberté, engineer.

Mr. Massé stated the development would offer three different designs of homes, of which it is hoped to have 25 completed by December 15 next. His immediate concern was to ascertain that the Corporation would provide sewerage service, and to enquire if the present assessment rate could be "frozen" for 10 years or so, as a step to encourage buyers.

Mayor Gaetan Paquette expressed the pleasure of the Council to learn of these plans, and assured the visitor that he could count on their co-operation. As regards the evaluation rate, he stated there was no change foreseen for several years; but if there were any change at all, it would be lowered, rather than increased. The Council did not favor granting any exemption or special privileges in regard to municipal taxation, he added.

Finances

Accounts totalling $5,065.91, were approved for payment at this meeting. A bill from Paul Laliberté for services in connection with the Gauthier and Bradford Street sewers was held over for next meeting; the bill amounted to $1,534.92.

An account from Edouard Lajoie for $115 for use of his car on valuation work, was also held over.

A financial statement up to August 31 showed a bank balance of $11,093.28, with property and business tax arrears of $29,943.42. Receipts were $111,284.70; disbursements $99,891.42.

Correspondence

A letter was read from the Department of Municipal Affairs concerning a new redemption schedule on the $120,000 loan issue for sewer works at the new hospital. Also an acknowledgment from the Public Health Department, of Ayersville's resolutions regarding the Lachute garbage depository.

Various Matters

The police chief's report showed $290 revenue from tickets issued for violation of town regulations.

It was resolved to install five fluorescent lights on Hamford Street.

Letters of condolence were sent on the passing of Premier Maurice Duplessis . . . and the business of the Council was adjourned to September 15.

Outremont arrest led to recovery of goods stolen here

Robt. Matte, merchant tailor at Brownsburg, reports that he has recovered around $850 worth of suits, men's clothing and merchandise from the $10,000 stock looted recently from his store.

The recovery, as reported to Mr. Matte, was incidental to an arrest of three men caught by Outremont police in connection with a suburban break-in. Keys found on one of the culprits led to a long hunt which ended in a city apartment, and to a cache of stolen goods from several robberies. Mr. Matte was informed some articles of clothing bore labels and markings identifying them as goods from his establishment, and the owner was not long in recovering the goods.

Polio clinic date set for October 22

Confirmation has been received from the Canadian Legion March of Dimes director, Alex Solomon, that the next free adult Anti-Polio Clinic has been scheduled in Lachute for Thursday, October 22.

Persons who have received two shots of Salk vaccine in the current series are reminded that immunization is not considered complete by medical authorities until the third shot is received. However, Mr. Solomon pointed out that a delay of 12 to 18 months between the second and third vaccinations is considered satisfactory.

Mr. Solomon advised that current supplies of Salk vaccine are barely sufficient for child immunization requirements, but that new batches will be released from testing laboratories early in October.

For the information of the local public, Mr. Solomon and his staff whose office has been sponsored by the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion, have been doing a terrific job. Far and beyond the normal call of duty, this office has been receiving and sending urgent calls around the clock. Shortage of vaccine and orthopedic equipment — and hysteria in some quarters during the current Montreal epidemic — have all contributed to make their task difficult.

Locally, everyone concerned has been very patient and the chairman for Branch 70, Bernard A. Jenkins, is keeping in close touch with Mr. Solomon's office to insure that local clinics will be held at the earliest possible date.

Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion is pressing the Attorney General's office for the Province of Quebec for early apprehension and conviction of those responsible for the recent theft of Salk vaccine from the laboratories at Laval des Rapides, Que. This theft touched off the shortage experienced.

Fire Prevention stressed with Chief's report at B'bg Council

Brownsburg — Although two items of importance were emphasized in Fire Chief A. Robbins' report at the September 8 meeting of Brownsburg Council, these are so closely related that they could be treated as one subject . . .

Chief Robbins stated that once again no fires had occurred in town during the month. This in itself is good news, but citizens who take note of such things might well consider the fact that the cooler weather now in evidence could be the cause of a completely different report next month. . . . This leads to the other item of importance, "Fire Prevention Week", which will be held during the week of October 4-10. While authorities are interested in the statistics involved in the reduction of fires during this particular period, it serves mainly to produce an awareness in people — to make us conscious of the fact that, with a little effort on our part, we can prevent fires in our homes.

Strangely enough, no one accepted the town's offer for free fire inspection last year. Perhaps "Fire Prevention Week" in October will prompt home-owners and tenants to request the service this year.

Police Report

Police Chief Richard Bell reported a record of 37 speeding fines for the month. The majority of the speed violators were ticketed as a result of the laying out of an electrically-operated speed timer, which the town recently purchased. Council has made it clear that the device was purchased to help control speed through the town, not to fill the coffers of the financial department! Since the device can be operated by one officer, Chief Bell is free to cruise other areas of the town for speeders while an assistant runs the timer.

Also listed in Chief Bell's report were two accidents, three arrests for disturbing the peace, one robbery, and one parking offence.

A request from a number of Cottage Street residents asked that Council consider the installation of water and sewerage facilities in their area. As the town is just completing a $35,000 water and sewerage project, Council was not able to provide an immediate solution to the problem, but scheduled it for further study.

It took the councillors very little time to approve in principle the proposed subdivision submitted by Mr. John McVicar. When the necessary road construction is completed, this area will provide an additional number of building lots for those desirous of building homes in Brownsburg.

Prisoner problems and approaches told by John Howard Soc. president

Speaker at the Rotary Club last week was a former Lachute boy, Mr. Lloyd Canning, who has devoted much time and study to a worthy, humanitarian cause — being now president of the John Howard Society, a crusading agency for the improvement of society through concern for society's offenders and their treatment. Mr. Canning — accompanied by one of the professional workers in his organization, Mr. John Cumas — was introduced by Rotarian Mac Walker and thanked by Rotarian Stewart Jones.

Following is a resumé of his interesting story:

Back in 1888, a group of young men started visiting prisoners in the old Montreal Jail in the east end of the city. Six years later, the first Prisoner's Aid Society was founded. From 1894 until 1931, there were various groups of people working to help men and women when they came out of prison. In 1931, these small groups joined together under The Prisoner's Aid and Welfare Society. In 1947, the name was changed to that of the John Howard Society. . . . John Howard was an Englishman very interested in prisoner aid work.

The John Howard Society of Quebec is a Red Feather Agency receiving the greatest part of its financial support from Welfare Federation funds. As an agency, the Society has a Board of Directors who serve voluntarily.

Responsible to the Board for the Society's work, is a group of professional case workers and other clerical helpers. In nine of the ten provinces of Canada, there is a John Howard Society, and in all but three provinces, these are staffed with professional case workers, people who are university graduates with post-graduate training in social work.

Lloyd Canning, speaker

Work of the Society

The Society is active in two main areas — (1) Rehabilitation of people who have come into conflict with the law; (2) Promotion of penal reform.

Rehabilitation Work

In the old days, it was thought that if a man was placed in prison and punished harshly, he would automatically come out a reformed character, and that then all that was needed was for some public-spirited citizen to find him a job, give him a suit of clothes, a few dollars to carry him until his first pay and all would be well. There seemed to be little effort in those days to try to understand why a man or woman had been unable to adjust to society and to lead what we call a law-abiding life.

Today people are beginning to understand that behind every so-called criminal act there are often many deep-seated problems, and that, perhaps, the emotional environment in which a child grows up is far more important than the physical environment.

Among our "clients", some are university graduates, some high school graduates, some primary school graduates and some have never gone beyond second grade. Some come from wealthy homes and some from poverty-stricken homes. Therefore, we have to accept the fact that their failure to adjust to society was not due merely to lack of money but, in a very large part, to unresolved emotional problems dating back to childhood. In nearly every case that comes to our office, we find there is a background of discord or broken homes.

This then is the reason we need a trained staff, not only to help these men and women themselves to gain understanding of their inner pressures, but also to motivate them to want to change their way of life.

Then, our professional staff must have the support of the community — of citizens like yourselves. A man who comes out of prison often feels isolated from the so-called good society. Where does he get a job? Where does he live? How does he become a part of the community? How does he make friends? . . . As one man known to us, who had served ten years, put it, "If I tell people I have served time, they shudder and look on me as a leper."

Here, of course, is where we in the community can help. We must realize, as Dr. Bendiner, a well-known psychologist in the States put it, "Prisoners are people — not a race apart but with the same

Public interest as Ayersville adopts peace-and-quiet by-law

Following notice of a motion at a previous meeting, the Ayersville councillors at their regular session adopted a by-law to curb excessive noise and prohibit disturbance of the public peace within the community.

The by-law was drafted by the Corporation's legal advisor, Philippe Valois, who explained that it was not so much a punitive measure as a provision to enable the maintenance of peace and order. About 30 citizens attended the meeting, held in the school hall. Mr. Valois answered numerous questions arising, and at times the discussion became quite heated. The crowd applauded warmly on the adoption of the by-law. Councillor Douglas Simon was the only member absent from the board.

Outline of By-law

Broadly, the regulation makes it a culpable offence to disturb the peace and rest of village inhabitants with any instrument — radio, television or musical device — creating an excessive noise.

It prohibits the use of any loudspeaker, indoors, outdoors or attached to an automobile, to broadcast radio, television or mechanical transmission, capable of being heard in the streets or public places.

It prohibits the use of a loudspeaker operating on more than 5-watts capacity, anywhere in the municipality without special permission of the mayor or police chief.

The by-law also prohibits any excessive use of an automobile horn, loud playing of automobile radios, also defective mufflers, or motor vehicles not equipped with mufflers. Sirens on motor vehicles are also forbidden, unless authorized by the mayor or police chief.

Violators of this by-law will be subject to a fine of $20, with or without court costs, or in default of payment, a month's prison sentence.

Zoning and Building By-law under study for adoption

Broad principles of the Zoning By-law prepared by Fernand Legault, Q.C., and Paul Laliberté, civil engineer, were explained to the Council by Mr. Legault at the last regular session. The latter illustrated on a town map the proposed division into five zones or sections — specifically (1) Residential, subdivided into four categories; (2) Commercial; (3) Light Industry; (4) Heavy Industry; and (5) Rural.

Residential Zones

The Residential zone is divided into "A", "B", "C" and Parks. "A" comprises — (1) The area bounded west by Fraser Street; north by a line 100 feet to the north of Grace Street; east by Lot 329; south by the Parish of St. Jerusalem. — (2) The area bounded southwest by the Brownsburg Road; west by Ayersville; north and east by the Parish of St. Jerusalem; south by a line in continuance of Cottingham Blvd. — (3) The area situated between Hamford and Ayers Streets, the North River and the proposed Industrial Zone No. 3

"B" Residential zone comprises — (1) The area bounded west by Ayersville, south by the West River and the southern limit of Mountain View, and to the northeast by the Brownsburg Road. — (2) The area bounded south by Henry Street, west by Mary Street, north by a line 100 feet north of Grace Street, and east by a line 100 feet west of Bethany. — (3) All land situated in the East Ward and not included in other specified zones.

"C" Residential zone comprises — (1) All land in St. Julien parish not included in Commercial zones or in Residential zone "A". — (2) The area bounded south by Court Street and its continuation, east by Clyde Street, north by the Light Industrial Zone 3 and the North River, west by a line 100 feet from Harriet Street. — (3) The area situated between St. Jerusalem limits, Mary Street, Grace Street, and bounded to the west by Commercial Zone 4 and Industrial Zone 1.

The Parks zone comprises — (1) Land presently owned by the Town and occupied in part by the Town Hall. — (2) That part of Lot 907 not subdivided.

Commercial Zone

The Commercial zone contains — (1) A tract of land 100 feet deep on each side of Main Street, extending from Fraser Street in the east, to a line 250 feet east of Barron's Bridge. — (2) A tract of land 100 feet deep on each side of Bethany Street. — (3) A tract of land 200 feet deep along Hamford Street from the C.P.R. to Ayers Street. — (4) A tract of land 120 feet deep on each side of Main Street from the C.P.R. crossing to Cruise Blvd.

Light Industries

The zone prescribed for Light Industrial use comprises — (1) The area bounded north by the West River, west by Hamford Street and its prolongation, south by the C.P.R. — (2) The area bounded north by the C.P.R., east by the North River, south by Edwin Street, and west by Wilson Street. — (3) The area bounded north by the North River, west by Bellingham Street, south by a line 100 feet to the north of Meikle Street, and east by Clyde Street. — (4) The area bounded north by a line drawn 100 feet south of Main Street, east by a line drawn 100 feet to the west of Bethany, south by a line lying 120 feet south of Robert Street, and west by a line drawn 100 feet to the east of Main. — (5) A tract of land 300 feet deep along the C.P.R. from Gilbert Street to the west boundary of Lot 329.

Heavy Industries

The zone prescribed for Heavy Industries comprises — (1) The area bounded west and north by the North River, south by the St. Jerusalem limits, and east by a zone situated 250 feet to the west of the Lachute - St. Andrews road (Cruise's). — (2) The area bounded east by the North River, north by Millway Street, west by Princess Street (Wilson's). — (3) The area presently embraced by Ayers Limited. — (4) The area occupied by A. D. McGibbon & Sons adjacent to Mountain View.

Rural Zones

The zones to be designated Rural comprise — (1) The area bounded to the south by a line drawn 100 feet south of Paquin Avenue and its prolongation, to the east by the Dunany road, to the north and west by the North River. — (2) That section of Lot 329 situated to the south of Main Street.

In addition to defining the above zones, the consultants have marked a detailed street map with the types of buildings permitted in each zone.

O.A.C. professor glimpses into changing future of agriculture

Ottawa CP — Canada's farmers face an agricultural revolution in the next 10 years that likely will far surpass the sweeping changes of the last quarter-century.

That's the view of Prof. D. R. Campbell of the Ontario Agricultural College.

The revolution will be in the production of meat, poultry and eggs, he says. It will be brought about by new developments in science and technology.

It will bring in its train fresh problems: a further fall-off of farm population; continued over-production and the related need for price supports and other government aid; adjustments for farm people in marginal areas unable to keep up with the changes.

Prof. Campbell, president of the Agricultural Institute of Canada, says the old idea that increased farm production requires new land is outmoded.

The 1940s saw a revolution caused by farm mechanization applied to crop production. There now are limits — caused by problems of management and the like — in the development of big farm organizations for the growing of crops. But those limits don't apply with the same force in the raising of hogs, chickens and turkeys.

"The revolution through mechanization of the '40s is likely to be greatly surpassed by the revolution of the next 10 years in the management of hog, broiler, egg and turkey enterprises."

The size of economic farms specializing in these fields has grown tremendously and "there is good reason to expect to see it expand even more rapidly in the future."

Similar changes will come later for beef and dairy herds, once the problem is overcome of providing forage for herds. One answer may lie in the pelleting of forage — compressing it into a form that can be shipped and sold economically.

Feed by Pellets

"The day may not be far off when one can buy a ton of hay in bulk pellets from a feed dealer, just as one now buys dairy ration."

The change to large, specialized beef and dairy farms is "almost inevitable."

What will all this mean?

For one thing, says Prof. Campbell, there will be a continued decline in the number of farm people. There will be wider disparities in income between marginal farms and those able to adapt to the new techniques. Marginal farmers may have to leave the farm community, or else small industries could be encouraged to establish in rural areas to provide alternate jobs.

Seaway expansion, Welland ship canal

Ottawa CP — Plans are afoot to unstopper the bottleneck in the St. Lawrence Seaway. The bottleneck is the Welland ship canal, crossing the Niagara escarpment between Lakes Ontario and Erie.

In the first year of navigation on the Seaway, embarrassing tie-ups occurred at either end of the canal in the rush of shipping unleashed by the new waterway into the heart of the continent.

Now the Canadian government plans to spend $7,500,000 to increase the canal's passage facilities by 25 per cent, without levying additional tolls on vessels.

At present the canal can pass 13 or 14 vessels up and an equal number down daily. The government hopes to have new facilities ready by the opening of navigation in 1960 to increase this by one-quarter.

needs we all have — the need for love and attainment and above all, acceptance by our fellowmen. This may seem difficult for many of us to understand as, fundamentally, we still believe in punishment — but, if you could meet some of these men and women you realize that they are people like ourselves and not lepers to be shunned. You would realize that they still have much to contribute to society and, if you could only know some of their personal history, you would wonder with me, not that they become entangled in a life of crime but rather, how they have developed the strengths and the motivation to want to change.

Our case workers visit regularly at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, the Federal Training Centre, Bordeaux and Fullum Jail and help those inmates who wish it, to formulate their post-release plans. This often necessitates working with the families of these men and helping these families to work through their own problems.

Penal Reform

The second and very important function of the John Howard Society is — promoting penal reform. Penal reform in Canada has lagged behind some other Western countries but, in the last few years progress has been made. Perhaps two of the most important contributions have been — (1) the report submitted to the Minister of Justice in April, 1956 by Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux and his able committee; and (2) the first and second Canadian "Congress of Correction".

The first Congress of Correction was held in Montreal in May, 1957, and I might say here that the instigation and success of that first Congress was in no small measure due to the vision and work of the Quebec Provincial Government and of our own John Howard Society. The second Congress was held in Vancouver in May of this year, when outstanding men and women in the penal field were invited as guest speakers — from England, Europe, the United States and Canada.

Dr. P. A. H. Baan, a noted penologist from Holland, gave us a glimpse of a "country without prisons". Will it ever be possible here in Canada? Apparently, the dream is being realized now, in part, in Holland. How are they doing this? At the end of World War II, the traditional thinking regarding the treatment of offenders. Now, they are sending people to prison only when every other resource has failed. — The result? Only 1,800 persons out of a population of 5,000,000 are in prison and they are all receiving intensive therapy. In Canada, 18,000 persons are in prisons at any one time, and instead of moving toward being a country without prisons, we are feverishly building more and more institutions to cope with overflow prison populations.

Here in Canada we are still thinking pretty well as we did in olden times. For one thing, we are still treating as legal problems, in court, many people who are from every rational point of view, medical problems.

In Holland, courts have become places where the judiciary seek the help of social scientists and the psychiatric profession in planning a program of treatment for those found guilty of anti-social behaviour. As part of their new program, they opened treatment centres where good staff and community communication is available. Everybody, including the offender, works together as a team. Human dignity was considered virtually important. The families of the inmates visit frequently, and the inmates go out visiting their own and other interested families in the neighborhood.

The inmates all receive full wages, from which they have to pay for their treatment and for the support of their dependents. — Here, in Canada, our national appraisal of the worth of a prison inmate is reflected in the ten to twenty cents a day given penitentiary inmates.

All this treatment program in Holland is expensive. But the eventful overall saving in cash and human suffering is immeasurable.

"A country without prisons" — dare we look forward to this in Canada? We can certainly work toward it if enough groups of citizens across Canada believe in and press for the implementation of such a program here. . . "The greatest contribution to evil is when good men do nothing."

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

A worthy successor to Premiership

A FRIEND and neighbor to this County, the Hon. Paul Sauvé, has succeeded to the premiership and the responsibilities so ably borne by his predecessor, the late Premier Maurice Duplessis.

While gratified that this signal honor has been accorded to one personally acquainted in these parts — the Hon. Mr. Sauvé having succeeded his father, the late Arthur Sauvé, to represent Two Mountains in the Quebec Legislature 29 years ago — Argenteuil takes pride with the province at large, in a record which most admirably equips this man for the high office of premier and leader of the Quebec Government.

Quoting from the record of his public and military service — Paul Sauvé (now aged 52) was first elected to the Legislature when only 23, and the provincial constituency of Deux Montagnes has been represented by father and son for more than half a century.

His father was the leader of the Conservative Opposition in Quebec in the Liberal ascendancy of Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. L. A. Taschereau. When he decided to move to the federal field (where he became Postmaster-General in the cabinet of Prime Minister Bennett) the provincial Conservative party held a nominating meeting at Ste. Scholastique to choose a successor. The meeting unanimously chose his son. On that occasion the Hon. Arthur Sauvé said to the crowded audience in the hall: "You will understand the emotion I feel at a time like this . . . I would ask God to watch over the one in whom I have full confidence and for whom I have the greatest hopes for the future."

Paul Sauvé was appointed Speaker of the Legislative Assembly when only 29 years of age. And with the outbreak of World War II, was given important rank, having already served in the militia for many years.

It was he who took command of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal on the D-Day landings. While he was leading his regiment in the fighting in the Londe Forest of Normandy, a general election was taking place. In his absence, it was his wife who spoke and worked for him, and he won that election.

As colonel of his regiment, he took part in the campaigns in France, in Belgium and the Netherlands. In 1943 he wrote to a friend from overseas: "Yes, the young man who wishes to profit by what he learns for the benefit of his future and to serve his country well in the days of peace, if God sees fit to keep his life, will return to his country with a valuable accumulation of knowledge. This is my hope, my desire, my will, and my determination. I would feel that my military value would be lessened if I did not have this after-war objective."

Back in the Legislature, Paul Sauvé was appointed by the late Premier to head a new department, that of Youth and Social Welfare, in which he has made progressive achievements in keeping with the development of this province.

With such evidences of sincerity — with such record of patriotism and accomplishment — and with personal feelings to this neighbor in its next-door constituency — Argenteuil is satisfied that its provincial government has a helmsman to fill the role with credit. . . . This community extends congratulations and good wishes.

Immunization — national theme Sept. 20-26

CANADA'S SEVENTEENTH National Immunization Week sponsored by the Health League of Canada in co-operation with Departments of Health, is scheduled this year for the week commencing September 20. This event second in importance only to National Health Week, involves the co-operation of all publicity media in Canada. Undoubtedly because it brings a knowledge of how to prevent the various communicable diseases of childhood by means of immunization into virtually every home in Canada it has been a factor in the tremendous fall in incidence and death rates over the years.

The record for 1958 shows evidence of a steady fall in incidence and death rates over the period during which National Immunization Week has been observed. There were during the year 1958 66 cases of diphtheria and 6 deaths, the lowest incidence in history. There have been no cases of smallpox in Canada during twelve years. Whooping cough with 6,932 cases and 40 deaths in 1958 is also the lowest recorded in history. There were twenty-six deaths from poliomyelitis, an all-time low, but the incidence of 323 cases is a little worse than the previous year.

However, Canada's record is not as good as it might be. In diphtheria prevention, for example, Canada lags behind Great Britain (England and Wales) which with a much larger population only had 37 cases and 6 deaths in 1957. In all three diseases some provinces are better than others. One wonders why.

In any case Canadians during National Immunization Week should learn a lesson that diphtheria, smallpox, whooping cough, poliomyelitis and tetanus are diseases which are largely preventable by means of immunization. Many years ago the late King Edward VII said of tuberculosis, "If it is preventable, why not prevent?" This is true of the diseases mentioned in this editorial. Doctors, nurses, health departments and clinics throughout the country stand ready to do their part. It is now up to parents to see to it that their children are protected.

Drivers should be curious

PRYING CURIOSITY into the affairs of neighbors is bad manners. Yet it is strongly recommended by the Ontario Safety League — to drivers, who are urged in fact to be "downright inquisitive".

Cultivate a curiosity about everything that's going—or stopping. Especially stopping. Try to find out if, when, why and where other drivers are going to stop.

Ask yourself why the man in the passing lane is slowing down: is he turning left or is he waiting for an unseen pedestrian? Speculate about the ball that bounces into the roadway — is there a retriever right behind, either the two or four-legged type? Check on the car parked at the curb with the engine running — is the driver keeping warm, or is he about to move off?

Give a thought to the tires of the car you are following at 60 m.p.h. — what happens to you if one of them blows out? Weigh the possibility that the Highways Department put down those double white lines ahead because the curve is dangerous — and not just because they like to use up paint. Use imagination and patience — not the gas pedal — to find out why the driver ahead is braking sharply when the road is apparently clear.

Curiosity may have killed the cat, but it has saved a lot of drivers. Make everybody's business your business, when the business is moving in traffic. A healthy curiosity on the road sometimes avoids a very unhealthy crash.

Viewpoints and perspectives

WHY SCHOOLS COME HIGH. — "Cobourg ratepayers will vote on the question of raising $12,000 by debentures to build a new collegiate." . . .

That little item appeared in a local newspaper the other day, but, explains The Financial Post, in the "sixty years ago" column, not as current news. To build a new collegiate today Cobourg ratepayers would have to raise 15-20 times $12,000 in debentures.

Of course, for that kind of money they would expect more trimmings than were supplied in 1899 or for many years later. Few of the old collegiates had swimming pools, or auditoriums or expensively equipped laboratories where pupils are taught cooking, carpentry, sewing and a lot of other things they were expected to learn at home a generation or two ago.

MORE SCHOOLING. — One, two, or maybe three years more in school can make the difference between a job and a position, and can give you a great deal more of the equipment with which to lead a happy and useful life.

HUMAN RESOURCES. — To be able to meet the challenges which this age presents, we must make full use of our most valuable asset — human resources.

HELPS LEADERSHIP. — School discipline is good training for the day when you will have the same discipline exercised over you on the job; and good training and experience for the day when you, too, may be in a position of leadership.

NOTES FROM ABROAD

— By R. A. Giles —

Brighton, Sept. 7 —

My last letter to our readers included a description of our 8-day Southdown Coach tour which was one of the highlights of our whole trip. With 25 congenial people from Australia, Canada, U.S.A., Wales and England, we were for a week, one happy family. The coach was large and comfortable and our driver particularly kind and attentive. Morning tea (if you wanted it) was served in your bedroom at 7.00 a.m. and breakfast was at 8.00, before which all travel bags were put outside your door for collection. By 9 a.m. we were generally on our way for another day of interesting events and wonderful scenery, with stops for lunch, afternoon tea and dinner at around 7 p.m.

Passing on the tour through Weymouth which was during the war so important as a naval base, we were fortunate in having time to again visit relatives and were able to have a cousin to lunch with us at the Burdon Hotel, right on the sea front. We were then in the county of Dorset where ruins have been traced back to the early stone age, 3,000 B.C. Inhabitants then practised agriculture, made pottery and wove cloth, and through the ages there have been various evidences of early villages and the mode of life then practised.

Most impressive of the many local Roman remains in this section is the huge amphitheatre known as Maumbury Rings with space on its terraces for some 12,000 people. Ancient village houses have also been uncovered.

Everyone I think has heard of the "Bloody Assizes" which term got its name from a series of trials, held in early days, when Judge Jeffreys earned notoriety for his ruthless savagery and men were hanged for sheep stealing. We saw the narrow passage-ways and court room where many had received their sentences, and although it was much too late, deeply sympathized with them.

Numerous cathedrals and castles were visited but it would be impossible to try to portray them to you only at great length, other than to say that the architecture is gorgeous and marvellous. Marble pavements, mural paintings, intricate mosaic work, tapestries, stained glass windows, combined with the delicacy and majesty of the roofs make one stand in awe and wonderment at the time taken and splendid workmanship shown in these famous buildings.

At Salisbury Cathedral we saw a clock made nearly 600 years ago, presumably the oldest one in England, which struck the hours for 498 years, and now after a lapse of 72 years through being misplaced, is once more in complete working order. It has been calculated that it must have ticked more than 500 million times — a great tribute to the workmanship of those who made it.

Salisbury Cathedral is one of England's larger cathedrals, constructed in the Early English Gothic Style. It was built almost entirely between 1220 and 1258 an unusually short time for such a great building. The famous spire built between 1334 and 1365, is 404 feet high, the tallest in England.

At Winchester Castle there was King Arthur's Round Table a massive structure which accommodated his 48 knights. In October 1645 the Castle surrendered to Oliver Cromwell after a 7-day siege. The great hall part was sold to the county for £700 ($2,100) and is now used as a Court House for criminal cases.

Another famous castle is "Arundel", which dates back to before 900 and is thought to have been built by King Alfred. It has been handed down from generation to generation and was besieged 3 times. The worst siege was in 1643 and lasted 13 days. Cannon ball marks are still to be seen. Up to that time it was in good repair but in the siege was badly damaged. Final repairs were made in 1890 to 1903 and the present Duke and Duchess of Norfolk now reside in one certain part. There are a great many large and spacious rooms — one in particular, the "Great Hall" is 133 ft. long, 37 ft. wide and 50 ft. high. The roof is of carved oak, the walls ashlar faced and wainscotted in oak with a floor of similar wood all taken off the estate.

On either side there are huge paintings, beautifully rich in color. Several times a year, balls are held with often 1,500 present and the proceeds go to charity. The gorgeous red robes as worn by the Duchess are on view together with seats they occupied at the coronation. Altogether there are 5 different sets, representing 5 coronations.

Many of these old castles and estates have now been opened to the public with an admission being charged to help out with the ever increasing cost of maintenance.

During World War I, I was in hospital at Taunton, Somerset, and on the tour it was our good fortune to stay overnight in this city, so we had the pleasure of having my nurse at that time (41 years ago) to dinner with us. A pleasant evening was spent chatting over old times and about midnight I wandered down to the old hospital where I had been so well treated, and quietly thought of the many pleasantries that had happened during my convalescence.

Monday evening we were back to our Brighton headquarters again, tired but delighted with our 8 days of extra sightseeing for we had been right down to Land's End in the south of England.

Other cousins (Don T's brother and his wife) were our next ones to contact and a most enjoyable weekend was spent at Bristol. This city dates back to about the year 1050 and has surely done her share in shaping the history of Britain and the world. Heavily bombed during the last war, she is still progressing and little now remains of the old Bristol, although there are still buildings to remind us of the times she wined and dined Edward III on his return from the French wars, saw Richard II off to Ireland, and John Cabot on his more peaceful journey to the uncharted continent across the unknown ocean. Close to its centre are the cobbles and streets which Chatterton, Coleridge, Wordsworth and John Wesley knew and buildings which were already old when they saw Daniel Defoe, Admiral Penn, Dr. Jennifer and Humphrey Davy.

People still enjoy walking in England and there are hundreds of downs and commons where one can stroll in comfort for miles away from the hazardous of motor-traffic which is growing rapidly. Clifton Downs at Bristol comprise some 442 acres of space, 300 feet above sea level bordering a deep gorge and reminding one of Niagara Falls. A grand panorama may be had from this vantage point which includes the famous suspension bridge, 287 feet above low water with a span of 705 feet from pier to pier. This at night was brilliantly illuminated with thousands of lights, a really wonderful sight, and it was our privilege to drive over it several times.

And now we start to come to the end of a wonderful 2 months holiday for we are now packing for a few days in London prior to sailing on the Cunard liner Sylvania from Liverpool, September 16, and which voyage we trust will be as pleasant returning as was the Saxonia coming over.

To sum it all up briefly — "It has been a wonderful holiday, meeting old friends and seeing new country, but the old saying "There's no place like home," is starting to ring more loudly and it will be nice to get back to Canada, Lachute, our relatives and many friends."

Meanwhile au revoir and see you soon.

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, Sept. 12, 1884 —

Frost was evident last Sunday — the mercury falling from 90 in the shade on Friday, to freezing point Sunday night.

Mr. Robert Newton, son of Jno. Newton, met his death in a cave-in while repairing the flume at his father's mill in Glen Morrison.

On Friday the Methodist parsonage took fire. There being no fire engine and a scarcity of water, the buildings, house, stables, etc., were speedily consumed.

Jno. Rodger, Sr., shot a 400-lb. bear, which he saw in his field while homeward-bound with a load of grain.

Messrs. McOuat & McRae have completed the first part of their contract, some 700-lb. castings for the Carillon - Grenville locks.

Action of the Agricultural Society and of the County Council over the erection of permanent Agricultural buildings, has been set aside by the court. It is presumed the annual show meeting will be held alternately at the usual places holding them.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, Sept. 10, 1909 —

Horses passing through Brownsburg should be grateful to Mr. J. McDonald for his thoughtfulness in building a watering trough by the roadside.

The West River is getting its annual tired feeling and the D. C. Co'y at Brownsburg has hardly enough water to keep the plant running.

Mrs. Geo. Staniforth was hostess at a china shower in honor of Miss Kate Pollock, of Hill Head, whose marriage to Mr. George Paul takes place September 22.

There was a drizzling rain, and Argenteuil's challengers at tug-of-war in Dominion Park, failed to turn up. The local team — W. G. Rogers, H. W. Neill, Walter Wert, P. Funcheon, J. Moore, S. Clifford, Geo. and Robt. Silverson, W. J. Rogers, O. Lefebvre and Robt. Todd (captain) — brought home the cup.

A fatality occurred at River Rouge when a rifle lying on a pile of harness in the corner of Jos. Fournier's barn, was unaccountably discharged, killing Mr. Jos. Giroux' 15-year-old son, who was helping at the threshing.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Sept. 13, 1934 —

While praying over the grave of her mother — a 16 Island Lake resident, Mrs. Aimé Perras, was gravely wounded by a bullet which pierced her stomach. The mishap was attributed to boys hunting in the region.

Mrs. Jason Stewart, 75, and Mrs. Lily Robinson, 73, of Brownsburg, walked to Louisa one day last week — making the return trip, also on foot, two days later.

Stonefield — School has again opened, with Miss D. Armstrong as teacher.

GREAT INVENTIONS
(Reprint from 1950)

Many, many years ago a man invented a device that swept the country. He called it a broom. Another man invented the means of seeing right through the stone walls of a house. This was known as a window. Down through the ages clever guys like these keep on inventing gadgets that we now take for granted, and every time a new one appears on the market I always say to myself, "Now, why didn't I think of that?"

At last it happened! Out of a blue sky came an idea that will bring me recognition and have all the tired housewives from coast to coast clamoring for my autograph. I don't want money. If I had any I'd only spend it. I am only interested in public service. So here is my idea. It is called The Magnifrying Pan. The pan itself is just an ornery pan. The secret lies in the lid, which is made of transparent, oven-proof glass ground to an optical precision so that it will magnify any object placed under it. Thus a one-minute steak weighing two ounces will look like a Sunday roast when in the Magnifrying Pan.

A black velvet blindfold is supplied with each set, to be worn by the user just before taking off the cover after the steak is fried. The retina of the normal eye will, in darkness, retain the image of the last thing seen. This is the purpose of the blindfold. The user will visualize the meat as he saw it last. He eats directly out of the pan, so there will be no loss of time for the vision to disappear. When the last morsel is eaten the blindfold is removed and the user is pleased to find dishwashing reduced to a minimum, and more than pleased to find that he has eaten such a large steak in these days of soaring prices.

If and when the Magnifrying Pan gets into mass production I want every reader of The Watchman to have one absolutely free. All you have to do is enclose a box-top. A box-top from any piano box will do. It's going to a a long, cold winter and I can use a lot of firewood.

You may have heard of the man who invented a stepladder with no rungs. For cleaning cellar windows. Or that other fellow who created the double-breasted doormat with Welcome on one side and Scram on the other. While waiting for material to build my Magnifrying Pan factory (four storeys and a freight siding), I'm working on another invention that will be a boon to the camping fraternity. It is a two-storey tent with a canvas staircase. I may even add an attic room for rheumatic campers. But that's another storey.

Be seein' ya!

The law of circulation

— By Lewis Milligan —

Circulation is the supreme law of the universe; there could be no universe without it. From the atom to the Milky Way and the remotest spiral nebula, it is circulation that forms and sustains everything. There is no such thing as dead matter. Even a dunghill is seething with life and, indeed, it is life in process of recirculation. So-called "dead matter" is the most powerful of all fertilizers.

The human body is an organism that is entirely dependent for its healthy functioning upon the circulation of the blood. When that is interfered with at any point, disease sets in and if it spreads to the central pumping station the circulation stops and the body, as an organism, dies.

No, — this is not a lecture on physics or physical ailments, and the foregoing is not a quotation from text books on those subjects. I made it up entirely out of my own little head from my own observations of the material universe and the human organism. It all arose out of a matter-of-fact consideration of the current problem of political and domestic economy.

Ever since Confederation the people of Canada have passed through varying degrees of prosperity and depression. The most acute of these in the last fifty years were due chiefly to the vicissitudes of two world wars. Before those wars there was a general decline in circulation of world trade and commerce. War created an artificial boom by the release of the nation's reserve funds into circulation and there was no unemployment. When those funds were exhausted, governments had to borrow and increase the national debt to keep up the circulation. The close of war reduced the circulation to a minimum and the whole system was depressed.

The secret of maintaining a condition of prosperity is therefore to keep up the circulation of money throughout the whole social system. This can be done artificially by inflation, but that, like war, leads to deflation and ultimate depression. Inflation is the result of a spiral race between costs and prices, and while it increases the volume and velocity of currency circulation, it reduces its purchasing value. That encourages the import of cheaper foreign goods and disables home industries in competition for world markets.

Money has been termed the "life-blood" of trade and commerce, and anything that interferes with its normal circulation impairs the health of the nation. Such interference may come from restriction of credit, from labor slowdowns and strikes, or from excessive taxation. Real money must be backed by the collateral of valuable industrial production and services. A strike, such as the steel strike in the United States, not only lowers that value, it cuts off the circulation of the life-blood of trade and the strikers' very subsistence.

Any strike is a hunger strike, and there is no law against a man quitting his job and starving himself if he is not satisfied with his pay or working conditions. But there should be a law to prevent any group of men deliberately organizing a mass hunger strike which would close down factories, suspend large and small business operations and stop the circulating of the life-blood of trade and commerce. There is a law against attempted suicide, and it should be extended to attempted economic mass suicide.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

NOBODY BRUNG MAGGIE

Our Winnipeg papers gave a great deal of space to the efforts of the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress to agree on general principles for a new political party to take the place of the CCF, which has failed to win over the farmers. I read all the reports, and they made me think of the old story about the hillbilly who came to the city for the first time.

He stood in front of a bank of elevators in one of the big buildings, and he was completely fascinated. An old lady, bent and wrinkled, hobbled up to an elevator, pressed a button, and the doors opened. She hobbled in and the doors closed. The hillbilly listened to the noises and stared at the flashing lights for a couple of minutes. Then the doors opened again, and out stepped a lovely young woman. The hillbilly gawked and shook his head. He was convinced some magic had changed the old woman into a young beauty, "Holy cow!" he exclaimed, "I shoulda brung Maggie along."

Only trouble with that story is that you don't hardly find no hillbillies like that no more. Leastwise, not in the neighborhood of Winnipeg. The meeting had plenty of noises and flashing lights, but there wasn't a farmer for miles around who didn't realize that the old woman who stepped into the seminar was still around the premises somewhere.

This reaction on the part of farmers, who are far from being hillbillies, was most annoying to Mr. David Lewis, the CCF president. He was sure they must have been taken in by the propaganda of big business. After all, the new party was dressed up specially to appeal to farmers, and it was pretty dull of them not to be impressed. A few farmers came and took a look, but only on their own. None of them rushed home to fetch Maggie.

Retired Railroad Engineer Died Recently in Toronto

The death of W. R. McAdam occurred recently at the Tyndale Rest Home in Toronto.

Mr. McAdam, a reader of The Lachute Watchman for over 57 years, retired as a C.P.R. engineer in 1938, and since that time had made his home in Toronto. His wife, the former Matilda Boyd of Chapleau, Ont., predeceased him 13 years ago.

The funeral was held August 28, conducted by the Rev. Garnet Lynd. A previous service was held in the funeral home by members of the Oddfellows Lodge. Pall-bearers were members of the Masonic Lodge, and the funeral service was held in Trinity United Church at Chapleau.

The late Mr. McAdam is survived by two daughters, (Lillian) Mrs. A. B. Tonn, of Toronto University, and Miss Beulah McAdam, of Burlington, Ont.; his sons, David, of Toronto, Percy of Sudbury, and Allan of Windsor, Ont.; and a number of grandchildren — also by one sister, Mrs. Ella O'Brien, of Chatboro, Que.

Floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful. Interment took place in Chapleau cemetery.

Miss Lillie Gertrude Dewar

Grenville — On Friday, September 11, after a lengthy illness, Miss Lillie Gertrude Dewar passed to her rest at the Deslauriers-Sortais Convalescent Home, Vankleek Hill Road. Miss Dewar had been a patient at the home since March.

IN MEMORIAM

KIRKPATRICK — In loving memory of a very dear sister, Maggie, brother-in-law, Charlie, and two nephews, Norman and Erle, who were accidentally killed on Sept. 19, 1958. — Always in my thoughts, Sister and Aunt Maudie.

'Hello' to them in the same old way.
To see their faces and watch them smile,
And sit and talk with them awhile."

Presentations to Choir members at Lachute United Church

The first choir practice of the season at Lachute United Church was marked by presentations to three members of the group. A "bon voyage" wish was extended to Miss Marie Jacqueline Schoendoerffer, who is returning to her home in France in the near future, and in making the presentation of a maple leaf brooch, Mrs. Wilson Bridge extended all good wishes on behalf of the choir.

The second presentation, of silver coins arranged in a "25", was to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Duncan, who have just celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. This was made by Mr. Jack Gorman, who reviewed some past history when Mr. Duncan was the choir director, and also wished the recipients many more years of choir service and good health.

A committee composed of Miss K. MacGibbon, Mrs. Don MacCullough, Mrs. L. Armstrong and Mrs. Merlyn Evans, provided refreshments including a cake tastefully decorated with "bon voyage" and "happy anniversary".

The choir director, Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, expressed his appreciation to all those who had made the occasion a success.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN SEEING GOD'S WILL DONE?
For centuries the nations of the world have been competing for supremacy. The result has been untold misery and death. Today two of the strongest opposing forces ever developed in government are desperately seeking the "ultimate position" in order to gain self-preservation or world conquest. What will the outcome be? Is the future in this conflict foreseeable?
Centuries ago the Almighty God caused his prophet Daniel to record a series of prophetic visions that are now so clearly seen in fulfilment that their message to this generation is unmistakable. You will want to consider them in detail for your protection and salvation in the calamity all nations face in the immediate future.

Does soil acidity reduce your farm's productivity?

ALCAN AGRICULTURAL LIMESTONE IS THE ANSWER

Money spent on good seed, fertilizer and labour can be wasted on strongly acid soil. Its value is proved. Soils treated with this high grade limestone yield larger and better quality crops.

ALCAN AGRICULTURAL LIMESTONE has an exceptionally high neutralizing value, making it a grand soil conditioner. It also has an important residual effect: because of the variation in particle size, it aerates the soil and improves microbial growth and drainage. So you continue to get its benefits through many years.

MAGNESIA, too! Alcan Agricultural Limestone also has magnesia. It gives you a bonus, because magnesia is recognized as essential food for potatoes, tobacco, alfalfa and many other crops.

FREE SOIL ANALYSIS—ALCAN is ready to test your soil FREE of charge, so you can apply the right amount of limestone it requires and avoid overliming. (If your soil does NOT need limestone, our soil analysis report will tell you.) Use the handy coupon below to get full information and the forms to fill out to arrange for this FREE analysis.

TRANSPORTATION SUBSIDY — Alcan Agricultural Limestone qualifies for maximum federal and provincial government assistance. Contact your local agricultural representative or agronome for more information.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Helping the Handicapped Child

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Do you remember when your son or daughter was born, how eagerly you asked the doctor, "Is he normal — or has he any defect?" Perhaps while you were waiting for his arrival, you watched a small girl on crutches or a boy in a wheel chair go down the street. Instantly a prayer arose from your heart, "Oh, God, may my child not be handicapped."

But in spite of your prayers, and of your care, perhaps the little child who came into your home had some defect. It may be that he was quite normal in every way except for one specific disability. Poor vision or hearing, a clubfoot, a crippled arm, a cleft palate, a hare-lip, the list of physical handicaps is a long one. How much heartache this disability caused you as parents, only other fathers and mothers of handicapped children can know!

You sought the best medical aid you could afford — and if your financial resources were very slender, perhaps a Service Club or a church group or a hospital came to your assistance. You accepted for your child, what you might have hesitated to take for yourself. This little handicapped son or daughter was infinitely precious. You wanted to enable him to live as normal a life as possible.

In countless cases the family doctor has been an "angel in disguise" in comforting and advising parents of children with physical disabilities. Sometimes a specialist gives practical advice to distraught parents.

The consultant on psychology to the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Dr. Edgar A. Doll, has pointed out the importance of both the parents and the handicapped child accepting the defect or deficiency and concentrating on the rest of his personality which is not handicapped. "It is a great help to his inner poise if he can accept his own disability without bitterness and not constantly "feel handicapped," this specialist once wrote.

If his trouble has fallen on him through some childish accident or illness, it is imperative that neither parents nor the child should be blamed. "What's done is done" and this burden is heavy enough for them to carry without the extra weight of disapproval!

As parents you likely have often wondered whether you are helping your child from day to day as much as you can. It is often puzzling to know what to do! You have a specially tender place in your heart for your "little bird with a broken wing" — but it is wise to make exceptions for him in taking responsibility for family chores?

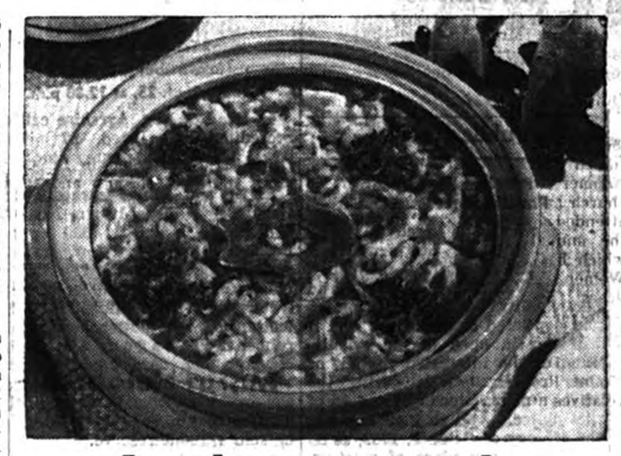

Guidance can be found in some of the case histories in an excellent recently published book "Mastering Your Disability" by H. A. Littledale, (Rinehart & Co. Inc.) in the chapter "Getting On With Your Folks." These throw special light on sensible family patterns for a family with a handicapped child.

A young man says from his own experience, "Disabled persons like to be and ought to be treated just as much like others as possible. They shouldn't be babied and seldom like it when they are." An adolescent girl wrote: "When I was first hurt, everything was done for me. . . . as I got stronger I took great pride in being able to wipe the dishes for mother. Now I take care of my room, make the bed, dust the floor and keep it picked up. It's my job and I'm proud of it".

The playtime of a disabled child frequently worries parents. In this connection it is interesting to know that a youngster who had had a spastic paralysis from birth paid this fine tribute to her parents training: "If I was playing with my brother and sister or any other children, the games were not changed for me. I played when I could, and when I could not, I watched. This was the same principle at home. I was brought up to fit in and not to feel that I was the odd one."

No one likes to be "the odd one." Special attention is apt to make the handicapped child feel conspicuous. He wants, as far as possible, to be on an equal footing with the other children in the family and with his chums at school.

He requires the best of medical care to make his body as normal as possible. As he grows o-l-d-e-r, it is his right to be educated to take his place as a useful citizen in the adult world. But most of all the handicapped child needs the loving understanding of mother and dad, who will refrain from blaming themselves or him for his trouble, and who will rear him in a happy home atmosphere.

A salmon casserole

Winning teams aren't confined to the realm of sports. There are plenty of culinary combinations and partners that are hard to beat even when the opposition is a rigid budget, finicky appetites or even lack of time. Canned salmon, for instance, has endless menu possibilities. Give the popular and inexpensive fish a partner in the form of canned soup and many more enticing features come to mind. Snappy Salmon Supper Casserole is such a recipe. It stars succulent canned B.C. pink salmon blended with a delectable and simple sauce of condensed green pea soup and piquant seasonings plus sharp cheese that lends added flavor. Finally there is macaroni, a household staple that makes a penny-wise foundation for many appealing supper items.

Snappy Salmon Supper Casserole

8-oz. Package macaroni, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 can B.C. pink salmon (app. 7 ozs.), 1 10-oz. can green pea soup, ½ cup cream or evaporated milk, 1 small pepper (chopped), ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 canned pimientos, 1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese.

Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). Cook macaroni according to package directions. Drain and turn into greased 8-cup baking dish. Add butter; toss until the butter is melted. Drain salmon and flake; blend in undiluted soup, cream or evaporated milk, onion, green pepper, salt and pepper, and one pimiento chopped. Stir in one-half cup of grated cheese. Toss fish mixture with macaroni. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Bake in preheated moderate oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Garnish with remaining pimiento. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Apples and ham well suited

Whoever first discovered that pork and apples were "made for each other" certainly deserves a medal. Apples harmonize just as well with the smoked pork cuts, as they do with the fresh. Try these suggestions from the Consumer Section, for serving ham and apples together.

1. Cover a ham steak (about 1" thick) with thin slices of apples; sprinkle with brown sugar and dot with butter. Bake the Apple-smothered Ham in a moderately slow oven, 325°F., for 50 to 55 minutes.

2. Using a heavy frying pan, glaze slices of cooked turnip and wedges of uncooked apples together in butter and brown sugar. Use equal quantities of butter and brown sugar (e.g. ¼ cup of each will be sufficient for glazing six 3" x ½" slices of turnip and 2 medium apples.) Serve with cold or hot ham.

3. Baste baked ham with apple juice and glaze with apple jelly.

4. Simmer apple rings in honey until tender. Serve with ham.

5. Toss diced, cooked ham with chopped apple, sliced celery and salad dressing to make a fine salad.

6. Make Cinnamon Apple Wedges to serve with ham.

Recipe

2 Cups sugar, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon vinegar, ¼ cup red cinnamon candies (about 2 ozs.), ¼ to ½ teaspoon red food coloring (optional), 2 pounds firm apples, peeled and cut in wedges.

Combine first 5 ingredients, heat to a boil and simmer 5 minutes. Cook apple wedges a few at a time (only 1 layer deep in pan), until barely tender — 4 to 8 minutes, depending on variety of apples and size of wedges.

Nova Scotia boy studies Chinese

Middleton, N.S., CP — Four years ago, Charles Best, 12, of South Williamson near here, could write some 50 characters in Chinese.

Last month he received from the Oriental Society in British Columbia a citation for "expert Oriental Calligraphy". The award noted the progress he made in his penmanship in such a short time.

The youngster is fluent in five languages, English, French, Latin, Greek and Chinese. He graduated from Middletown Regional High School this year with an overall average of 91.9 per cent.

Charles began studying Chinese four years ago with the help of John Jew G. Hong and Bee Lee Ling, Halifax restaurant operators. He said "anything that interests me I keep on with."

The boy speaks both Mandarin, the official language of all China, and Cantonese, a Canton dialect. "Both are written the same, but are pronounced differently", Charles says.

GREAT CANADIAN

Retirement as Governor-General will not, we are sure, write finis to a public career that is one of the most distinguished in the history of Canada. Mr. Massey is a man of great culture and unusual ability. Therefore we are sure that he will find other fields of endeavor in which to serve the Canada that he loves so well.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

THE GIANT FOE

One of the most striking achievements of modern medicine has been its success in routing tuberculosis.

This story is well-documented with statistics. In the United States alone, for example, the disease has plummeted from a first-ranking cause of death to tenth place, leaving hospital after hospital emptied of its victims.

Most TB specialists credit this drop primarily to the new anti-tuberculosis drugs developed towards the end of World War II, for the period in which these drugs have been available has encompassed the most rapid decline in tuberculosis mortality the world has ever seen.

The drug streptomycin marks the starting point of this chemical attack on the disease. Recently, the first human patient treated with the drug was re-visited, and a "before and after" report was made in the American Review of Tuberculosis and Pulmonary Disease.

The patient, a 21-year-old girl suffering from advanced tuberculosis, was given streptomycin in 1944. Now married, she is "the mother of three robust children, born in 1950, 1952 and 1954 respectively," the report states.

This happy ending of an apparently hopeless case has been duplicated thousands of times since the TB wonder drugs were first developed, and new advances in therapy are today constantly adding examples. A more recently developed drug links the two powerful anti-TB weapons streptomycin and isoniazid, so they can be given in a single injection.

Medical specialists from Harvard University, reporting on its use at the recent third annual Antibiotics Symposium, stated that this drug produced more rapid clinical improvement than did either isoniazid or streptomycin given alone. In addition, it helped to eliminate major problems arising from the prolonged use of the other drugs — problems such as dangerous side-effects and resistance.

Tomatoes are plentiful and particularly delicious at this time of year. They are a good source of vitamins A and C, and are appetizing in many different recipes.

In selecting tomatoes be sure they are firm, but not over-ripe. Completely ripened tomatoes should be stored in the refrigerator. Those not yet ripe should be spread in a cool spot. Remember a sunny window may produce splotchy tomatoes.

For a change, try baking, broiling, stewing or frying tomatoes. They will also add color and flavor to soups and sauces.

Here's a recipe for French dressing which may be varied by adding further ingredients:

French dressing: ½ to ¾ cup oil; ¼ cup vinegar; ½ tsp. salt; 1 tsp fruit sugar; ½ tsp. dry mustard; ½ tsp. paprika.

Put all the ingredients in a sealer and shake well. Chill thoroughly. Shake well before using. Yields ¾ to one cup. If using olive oil, remove from refrigerator about one-half hour before serving since oil solidifies when chilled.

For a change add sieved cottage cheese, crumbled Roquefort cheese, finely chopped parsley, sweet pickle, dill pickle, olives, garlic, green pepper or hard-cooked eggs.

Or you might try adding red currant jelly, jellied cranberry sauce, catsup, chili sauce, Worcestershire sauce, whole cloves or horseradish.

School Clothes

Back-to-school means shopping for many mothers. Among the popular materials for children's clothing are cotton knits. Specialists suggest the knits be purchased a little large, to allow for shrinkage.

"Cotton T-shirts and cotton sweaters, popular as they are both to buy and wear, frequently prove disappointing from the laundering point of view," the clothing experts say.

Some shrink. Others stretch. Shrinking and stretching appears to be due to the manner in which the fabric was knitted or finished.

The tiny loops are generally relaxed but during the knitting process, they may be stretched or pulled until they become long and thin, or oval instead of round. During washing, the stitches return to their natural shape and the whole garment becomes shorter and wider.

All cotton knits apparently are bound to shrink to some extent and for this reason it's wise to buy the goods a little on the large size.

When choosing cotton knits, avoid uneven stitching. A closely knit tricot in a heavy weight is recommended.

Painted Offspring

Recreation officials in Montreal's suburban Town of Mount Royal used 15 gallons of body paint to decorate 300 children for "Indian Week," an annual park celebration. "I hope their mothers understand when they climb into the bathtub," said one official.

Not Wrinkled

A Minnesota bride devised a way of getting to the church without getting her dress wrinkled. Jane Marks and her attendants travelled the four blocks from her home to the church standing up in a laundry truck.

The majority of children in the 4-8 year group killed in tractor accidents last year were riding a tractor, not operating one — just along for the ride. PRIME MINISTER MEETS RESIDENTS

Group at the head-table, at an informal coffee party for Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Left to right — the Hon. Henri Courtemonche, deputy for Labelle and Secretary of State; Mr. Marcel Deschambault, deputy for Terrebonne; Mrs. Cottingham and the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Quebec Minister of Mines; Mr. Diefenbaker; Mrs. Latour and Notary J. O. Latour, deputy for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes; Mrs. Diefenbaker; Mrs. Jas. W. McGibbon and Mayor McGibbon, addressing a civic welcome to the Prime Minister on his visit here. Seen on the table is the Golden Book, which was signed by the distinguished visitors and local guests.

Brief stop-over, informal reception at auditorium

A pleasant interlude in the routine of this town occurred last Saturday morning, when Prime Minister John Diefenbaker paid a visit here while en route from Ottawa to the Laurentians. His stop-off was announced on short notice, with the Prime Minister's expressed desire to meet some of the people of this community, in the course of his tour through Quebec centres.

It fell to the Lachute Town Council's reception committee to summon a representative segment of County residents, and thus provide an opportunity for them to welcome and to meet the Rt. Hon. Mr. Diefenbaker. That opportunity, informal as it was impromptu, was happily arranged in the form of a coffee party at the civic auditorium.

Through this means, around 200 citizens and ladies were privileged to meet the Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker personally; they found them both gracious and friendly, and there was a generally appreciative sentiment that this busy couple had seen fit to visit Lachute in their itinerary.

Arriving at the Town Hall at 10 a.m., Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker were accompanied by Mr. J. O. Latour, M.P. for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, and Mrs. Latour, also Mr. Marcel Deschambault, federal deputy for Terrebonne, and the Hon. Henri Courtemanche, deputy for Labelle—into these two latter constituencies, and to other engagements, the party were continuing their "holiday" tour.

Present to welcome the visitors were Mayor and Mrs. Jas. J. McGibbon; the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Quebec Minister of Mines, and Mrs. Cottingham; members of the Lachute Council and the County Council, representing most of the district municipalities; also the former mayors of Lachute, the clergy, presidents and representatives of school boards, and various civic and social organizations. Many ladies accompanied their husbands and shared the pleasure of the occasion.

Mayor McGibbon welcomed the visitors in his usual happy manner. From personal acquaintance with Mr. Diefenbaker and proximity to the affairs of federal administration, he was sure the Prime Minister well warranted a "coffee break" such as this, and he warmly welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker to the community.

The Prime Minister's reply was informal and humorous. Mayor McGibbon had been a colleague and contemporary in the House of Commons during the war years. "While your representatives at Ottawa do not always agree," he said, "I assure you that each one within his capacities is serving your interest to the best of his ability — and in so doing, whatever our opinions may be, we build up great friendships." The Prime Minister added a few words in French.

Mr. J. O. Latour also extended a greeting on behalf of his constituency. At this point little Johanne Cuerrier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adhémar Cuerrier, stepped forward and presented Mrs. Diefenbaker with a bouquet of roses, and Mayor McGibbon invited the guests to approach the head-table and personally meet the Prime Minister, and to add their names to his signature in the Golden Book.

The gathering enjoyed light refreshments, served by ladies of the Catholic Women's League, and the visitors left within a short time for further engagements in Mont Tremblant and Ste. Agathe.

The civic reception committee — Aldermen Stanley Church, Lauréat Laurin and Nelson Lepage—assisted by Germain Filion, Police Chief F. Trepannier and his personnel, performed a creditable job, and the public were duly appreciative to the civic representatives for arranging this function.

"L'Argenteuil" wins award

Lachute's French weekly, "L'Argenteuil", won recognition again at the annual conference of the French-language Weekly Newspapers of Canada, rating second place (for the second year in succession) for the Best Weekly Journal. In 1957 L'Argenteuil topped all competitors and won first prize.

School opening and prize distribution ceremonies at L.H.S.

The annual school opening ceremonies and prize distribution were held Friday evening at Lachute High School. Having outgrown all reasonable bounds, the event was confined this year to the senior grades; in consequence the attendance in the auditorium was less numerous and the usually lengthy program was somewhat shorter.

Mr. Jas. W. McGibbon, chairman of the School Commission, called upon the Rev. C. R. Lang to pronounce the invocation; also tendered regrets of the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, "a good friend of this school", who was unable to attend. . . . "This is an important night in our community," said Mr. McGibbon. "It is an occasion to pass along to the parents the enthusiasm of the school board, the teaching staff and the pupils, to promote the progress of this school." While conscious of the present inadequate premises, with two classes now being held in the school basement, the board hoped by next September to have accommodation to meet all current needs, Mr. McGibbon stated. . . . The chairman introduced two recently-elected commissioners, Mr. John Douglas of Chatham and Mr. R. O. MacLean of Lachute. Also on the platform was Commissioner Lorne Duncan.

The Rev. Wilson Bridge, introduced as speaker by Commissioner Douglas, delivered an appropriate message. He opened with a denial of that old shibboleth, that "school days are the happiest days of your life" — realizing that, for adolescents, growing up and adjusting themselves to adult life was a most difficult and disturbing process. This, however, was an age of revolution, an age of challenge, and definitely a "great time to be alive".

The Rev. Jas. Armour, another speaker on this occasion, was introduced by Commissioner MacLean. "Today," said the Rev. Armour in the course of his address, "there are more facts to be absorbed than at any previous time in history. But, the prime purpose of education is not to turn out 'walking encyclopedias'; more important is the development of a well founded, well balanced personality — to give our young people independence of mind to carry out their own convictions, and to help produce good citizens."

At this point a very acceptable recital of folk songs and other selections, in parts and harmony, was presented by the girls' choir, trained and accompanied by their instructor, Mrs. G. R. Rigby. One of these items, "Prayer for Canada", included a solo part, which was excellently rendered by Bonnie Gain. . . . Mrs. Rigby and her choir were commended on presenting this fine program on very short notice.

Principal Fred Royal, in his annual report, echoed a sentiment previously expressed by the Rev. Wilson Bridge — in congratulating a staff member, Miss Elizabeth Stanton, for winning the M.A. degree with special mention, from Chicago University. "This teacher

Legion invests poppy proceeds to community aid

The Canadian Legion, Argenteuil Branch 70, Lachute, has taken a further step in community service work, when at last Wednesday's general meeting its members approved the purchase of approximately $400 worth of sick room equipment. Included in the initial purchase, according to B. A. Jenkins, chairman, will be an outdoor-type wheelchair, hospital bed and mattress, bed screen, adjustable crutches and canes. This equipment is primarily for the use of veterans and their families, but will, it is expected, be available to the general public. There will be no charge for this service. The above equipment, now on order, will be delivered within the next two weeks. In the meantime a committee is drawing up a program covering use of these items. The Legion members hope that this equipment will be added to from time to time. One wheelchair has previously been purchased, and has been in use about a month by a veteran amputee.

Mr. Jenkins, chairman of the 1959 Poppy campaign, pointed out that this service is made possible through receipts from the annual sale of Poppies. In addition, during the past year, several hundred dollars have been spent locally for assistance of needy veterans and their families.

Dom. Command Legion bursary to local student

It was announced recently by George Brown, chairman of the Educational Committee, Provincial Command, Canadian Legion, that a Dominion Command bursary of $100 has been approved for student Eileen Bryson, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Bryson, St. Andrews East. The bursary received by Miss Bryson was one of eight granted in the Province of Quebec, out of 30 applicants. Eileen commenced studies in St. Andrews, graduating from Lachute High School last June. These bursaries have been granted throughout Canada annually for the past several years and, in this instance, is intended to assist Miss Bryson with expenses at Macdonald College, where she has undertaken a course in teaching. It was obtained through the efforts of the Lachute Legion branch.

Hon. Cottingham officially re-sworn into cabinet

The Hon. William M. Cottingham, after being sworn in as a member of the Sauvé cabinet, issued a statement thanking the new government leader for this distinction conferred upon the constituency of Argenteuil.

"Premier Paul Sauvé," declared Mr. Cottingham, "has asked me to continue to serve as Minister of Mines in his government, a post entrusted to me by the late Premier. This is a high honor, for which I am deeply grateful, but above all it is an honor conferred upon the people of Argenteuil who have elected me as their representative.

"In confirming this re-appointment, the new government leader has expressed his will to maintain unbroken the team his predecessor had gathered around him, and to carry out the program which has so successfully placed the province at the head of all other provinces in achievements.

"There have been few fields of endeavor in which Quebec has forged ahead so dramatically as that of mining activities. And other developments are expected in the near future which will make us even more conscious, if possible, of the extraordinary wealth of our mineral resources. . . . Under direction of the new government leader, with the help of my colleagues and with the encouragement of the people of Argenteuil, I shall continue to do my full share to ensure this progress goes on undiminished, in this field for which my department is responsible."

It will be recalled that, following the death of Premier Duplessis, members of both the Lower and Upper House, by unanimous agreement, petitioned the Lieutenant-Governor to call upon Mr. Paul Sauvé to form a new government. The latter then submitted to the Queen's representative a list of his ministers.

Elderly passenger dies of injuries in highway crash

Joseph A. Parisien, a 77-year-old Papineauville resident, died in a Hawkesbury hospital Saturday morning following injuries he received while driving with his son north of Pte.-au-Chene the previous evening.

The accident occurred on the Aveca road around nine p.m. Friday, when Elie Parisien, 40, also of Papineauville, was headed towards Pte.-au-Chene. Traffic Officer Albert Legault reported that another car, owned and driven by Jean Laframboise, 43, of Grenville, was proceeding in a northerly direction, and in turning left across the road, met the Parisien car head-on. Traffic was reported as being extremely heavy, and visibility poor, due to dust.

The three injured were taken to hospital in Hawkesbury, the elder member of the Parisien family succumbing to his injuries the following morning.

Lions re-convene to discuss season's plans, rink reopening

The opening meeting of the season for Lachute Lions Club, held last Tuesday in the Legion Hall, was chaired by Lorne F. Duncan, the new president. There were 40 members present and two guests. The meeting was devoted to club business, with Clifford Lowe in the role of tail-twister, adding a spice of humor to the proceedings, Roger Regimbal led a brief song session.

On the program this year is the presentation of the Ottawa Grand Opera Company in "La Traviata" (l'Ecole Secondaire, October 24) as a cultural effort for community enjoyment and also to mark the club's 25th anniversary year in Lachute. Lion Regimbal and Bob Haydon, a baritone in the Ottawa troupe, spoke on plans for this venture, which is foreseen as "an outstanding event in the musical history of Lachute".

Lion Bertrand L'Heureux spoke on behalf of the Federation of Charities campaign, of which he is chairman this year.

Treasurer Donald M. Hay gave an enlightening resumé of the club's finances, which reflect a good record of community service in the past year. (This statement is summarized in this issue for public perusal.) Horace Lamarche, as president of the Lions Rink governing body, elaborated on finances connected with the first year of the rink project.

Three vice-presidents, Gerard Lefebvre, Col. E. Emmett and Dr. E. Mongeon, were called upon in turn to announce chairmen of the numerous committees under their jurisdiction.

Ex-president Phil Tremblay thanked his fellow Lions for kindly gestures during his recent term in hospital, and Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, as Information expert, gave a brief talk on aspects of Lionism, while intimating he had pleasures in store with a narrative and films from his recent tour overseas, including visits to various Lions Club branches in England and France.

Clarence Neill county warden

At the last regular quarterly meeting of the Argenteuil County Council, held in the court room of the Court House here earlier this month, Clarence Neill, Mayor of the Township of Wentworth, was elected Warden of the County of Argenteuil for the term of one year.

Alberta merchant's 50-year record; former resident

The following editorial in the Stettler (Alberta) Independent is a recent tribute to Herbert A. Blair, a former Lachute resident and business man, who went west and has now completed 50 years of business in the Alberta community. The Watchman also takes this opportunity, together with his many former friends, of congratulating Mr. Blair. . . .

Stettler, Alta. — The Independent joins a host of friends throughout the community and all over Alberta in offering congratulations to Mr. H. A. Blair who completed 50 years in business at Stettler on Sunday, August 16th.

His contribution to the business community during this half-century has been great. He has been an outstanding booster of his community, and the modern town we have today has resulted to some extent from the groundwork laid by Mr. Blair. For 18 years he was Mayor of Stettler and he has held almost every other post this town could offer.

It is pleasant to be able to report that Mr. Blair is still actively engaged in his business and will be around to observe further anniversaries. He and his son, Mr. George Blair, are now building one of Stettler's finest business blocks.

Stands trial on charge of robbery at B'burg store

Alex Palesinski, 39, of Montreal, has been charged with breaking and entering with theft, and receiving, following an investigation conducted by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen into the recent robbery at Bill Matte's tailor and haberdashery store, Brownsburg.

Three men were recently arrested by Outremont city police, and upon discovering merchandise stolen from the Brownsburg store, Sgt.-Det. Allen was notified here. The other two apprehended were charged by the city police — the local officer stating there was not sufficient evidence on which to charge any other culprit in the Brownsburg break-in.

Trial has been set for this week, Palesinski being held in Terrebonne Jail until that time.

Charities Federation canvass to open Saturday with parade and ceremonies

The Federation of Charities appeal for $19,800 will be brought before the public this Saturday — the campaign continuing until the following Saturday, October 3. Bertrand L'Heureux, chairman of the drive this year, is confident that, with the customary co-operation and response, this objective will be attained. Mr. L'Heureux stresses the fact there are many families in Greater Lachute requiring help in some form or another, from one of the eight agencies supported by the Federation.

Notary Jacques Beaudoin, president of the organization, took occasion to explain to The Watchman how the Federation operates, since this is apparently misunderstood in certain quarters. "Some people think they need only apply to the Federation for money or for clothing. But this organization does not exist to assist individual cases; it is rather a central unit and an intermediary between the agencies affiliated with it and the general public. All donations in this campaign are transmitted to the various funds, and the agencies themselves administer them in their particular sphere of aid or charity.

"In this manner", added Notary Beaudoin, "gifts to the Federation are assigned to the aid of blind and sight-impaired citizens, through the C.N.I.B. — to children's welfare, through the playground committees — to the clothing of poor families, through the "Ouvroirs", parish clothing centres. As for the Social Service, the $5,000 allotted to this enterprise is only a very small portion of the monies entailed in this work; Social Service spends many thousands to help needy families, foster homes, etc., in the area. . . So it should be understood, the Federation does not dispense 'individual' charity, but rather 'supervises' the agencies doing that job."

The $19,800 objective is the highest yet in the five years of campaigning by this organization, due to the fact there are a growing number of people and families to assist.

The budget for 1959-60 is made up as follows: Social Service, $5,000; (Ouvroir) St. Elizabeth clothing centre, $2,000; St. Julien clothing centre, $500; Immaculate Conception clothing centre $2,000; Ste. Anastasie playground, $2,000; St. Julien playground, $1,500; Ayersville playground, $2,050; Canadian Institute for the Blind, $2,650.

An inaugural parade will be held this Saturday afternoon terminating at the Town Hall, where a symbolic "thermometer" will be set up to indicate the progress of the campaign.

Forum programs start Nov. 2

In just a few short weeks, on November 2, farmers across Canada will have an opportunity to meet together at Farm Forum. Over 500 of the community discussion groups will meet in schools and halls across Canada to listen to a special 1½-hour broadcast over 51 CBC stations, dealing with their problems.

This year the emphasis will be placed on the major adjustments which farmers are being requested to make in order to remain in business. The first broadcast, which will originate at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, will deal with the small farmer and his special problems. It will draw from the farmers and their leaders, assembled for the Annual Meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, their views on the small farmer and his plight and proposals aimed at improving his lot.

Although a good deal has been said about the subject before, this series of Farm Forum Broadcasts and Guides ought to assist many thousands in their decision-making. Consider the following sample topics:

The Small Farm — A Special Case. Should new policies and programs be developed to deal with small farmers and their problems?

Where is the Marketplace? How are prices determined? Who sets the final price on any farm product? What should farmers do to influence the price of their products?

Adjustment in the Number of Farms in Cahada. Who should leave? Who should stay? Who should decide?

Adjustment in Price Supports. Are price supports hindering or helping the agricultural industry to adjust to changing times? Are they subsidizing inefficiency? Are they subsidizing the large-scale producer? What should price support do?

Adjustment in Farm Credit. What should credit be expected to do? Have we too much freedom in obtaining credit or too little? How can farmers best use their available credit?

These subjects are the vital farm issues of the day, in many respects. Decisions involving the answers to many of them must be made by every farmer if he is to remain in business. Farmers from Newfoundland to British Columbia may use Farm Forum to equip themselves with new facts and to help them arrive at the right answer.

For further information on National Farm Radio Forum, or for copies of the Farm Forum Guides as they leave the presses, write National Farm Radio Forum, 113 St. George St., Toronto.

Lecture course for chem. technicians

The results of the first term of the Course for Chemical Technicians were reported at a recent meeting of the Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada, and it was generally agreed that this project is meeting with considerable success.

This course was initiated in January 1959 by Mr. F. G. Hurtubise, as part of the activities of the local section of the Institute. The lectures were given two evenings a week at the Hawkesbury District High School with the approval of the principal, Mr. Comtois, and of the school board. This course was designed to help the large number of high school graduates who take positions as laboratory technicians in various industries of the area. As is the case in a few other sections of the Chemical Institute of Canada in Ontario, the entire course covers a three-year period. It is hoped the course will eventually be recognized by the Ontario Industrial Education Council. Thirty-six students attended regularly and 29 students passed the final examination.

The students were employees of Canadian Safety Fuse and C-I-L, at Brownsburg; Thurso Pulp and Paper Company; Canadian International Paper Company, and Industrial Cellulose Research Ltd., at Hawkesbury. The program covered in this first term consisted mainly on Ontario Grade XII and XIII chemistry, but for the next two years more advanced subjects will be presented to the students.

The second part of the course will start on October 6, at 7.30 p.m.

Mr. G. Hurtubise, who gave most of the lectures last year, has agreed to continue for another term. He will be assisted by other members of the Chemical Institute of Canada. Persons who did not attend the first term of this course but would be interested in following the courses this fall, should contact Mr. Hurtubise as soon as possible (ME 2-3506).

Attitude on university grants

By Leo LeBlanc

Quebec (?) — Quebec's new premier, the Hon. Paul Sauvé, announced that no by-election would be held to fill the vacancy left by the death of Premier Maurice Duplessis in the Trois-Rivières constituency. The seat would be contested only in the next general provincial election, probably in June.

The provincial cabinet declared 20 classical colleges eligible for a $25,000 annual provincial grant. These grants now will cost the province $2,000,000 annually compared with $1,000,000.

Mr. Sauvé commented on the issue of federal grants to universities. He said the whole controversy is far from being near solution. He said his attitude towards the grants is the same as that of his predecessor. Quebec universities have refused the federal sums since 1953.

Mr. Sauvé announced the appointment of Robert Prevost of Montreal as Director of Quebec Province Tourist and Publicity Bureau, and press information officer. Mr. Prevost formerly was the public relations officer with Mr. Sauvé's Youth and Social Welfare Department.

Phenomena of earth and firmament; coastguard work on Lake Ontario

Aug. 21 —

Still managing to keep this one-finger system of mine going. Here's an observation that I think was very interesting. . . .

Last night was very dark until the moon came into view. That was around 9.30. As it has been very warm, we were sitting outside listening to the radio and watching the lights on the boats. The moon was a reddish-gold, and this is what I'm trying to tell you. Before too long the Minnows and Alewives started to jump. It was the queerest thing we have ever seen. The lake was just like a big mirror with not a ripple on it, and when these minnows jumped, with the reflection of the moon on their silver sides it gave the impression of one big bowl of molten metal. As far as the eye could see it was the same. Not even the Ducks skidding across the water to get out of the rays could compare with this. We sat out until well after 11 p.m. watching this, and then it stopped just as it had started. As though someone had pulled a switch and turned off the lights.

Another funny thing noticed yesterday afternoon: Northern Lights during the day! O.K., they weren't Northern Lights; but until someone comes along with a better explanation, that's what they were to me. The clouds seemed to be a mass of flickering bars in all the colors there are. It wasn't a rainbow, as the clouds just seemed to dance with the lights. I guess there is some scientific reason for it. But it's past me.

If these phenomena could be photographed by fellows like me, I guess they would need an explanation.

As I mentioned before, the fishing has been fantastic; that is the only way to describe it. Edith tied into a Bass that kept her busy for about 30 minutes; close to 4½ pounds of fish, and it sure deserved to be put back. It jumped seven times before it quit, and in fairness to the fish, it didn't quit. When it was put back it was so tired that we had to pull it through the water with our hands so it could breathe properly. At least, we know now that it will be around waiting for the right fly, to give us another good tussle. Pound for pound I don't think anything can touch one of these for a real fight. It's a good job we use barbless hooks, or we would be eating fish for all our meals. At times our arms get so tired we wish the fish wouldn't be so anxious to get caught.

From what we have been told, the fishing in a sporting way is the best it has been for a good number of years. Even the Lake Trout have been taken better this season than for a good number of years. Some of the catches are just like old times, from our informant. It sure looks as though humans had a lot to do with their dying out. Also another thing that should help a lot, is that all the Lakers must be sold to the Department of Lands and Forests, and they in turn put them on the market; that sure sounds like a good idea to control the catch.

Naturally the Lamprey is blamed for the Lakers getting out, and possibly that is true to a great extent. But Lampreys don't throw garbage, etc., into lakes or streams. I guess there are a lot of people that would like us to believe that. It's a good job there are no Lampreys in the North River or they would be blamed for the pollution junk in our river.

Maybe you'll remember a Mr. Tobin I mentioned last year, with the 55-foot express cruiser from Rochester. Well, I haven't seen him around at all, but we did see his boat, and were wondering why he hadn't called here. Anyway this is the story, as it was told to us. . . . It seems the Captain of his boat was getting just a shade too rambunctious; as the Captain was 'going steady' with the owner's housekeeper, they couldn't fire him, as they were afraid the housekeeper would quit. So — sell the boat; and that's what they did! Everyone is happy except the Captain. Man, the things they have to do to keep a housekeeper! (Wish I were one.)

Aug. 22 —

The winds have picked up to a nice blow today, so there is no small traffic to bother us. A huge tanker went up this afternoon, for crude oil at Sarnia I presume. I guess it could carry about four times as much oil as the ordinary lake tanker, and then some. We are looking forward to seeing the warships of the U.N. pass by on their way to the Ex at Toronto. I understand that 17 nations are sending some sort of warship through for it. Maybe, we'll be able to have one come in for a little protection for the Island!

Aug. 23 —

The first two warships just went by, both of them were Canadian. They sure looked good, paint work gleaming and the air of tidiness about them that goes with a good ship. They passed about 7 p.m., under full power; you can even hear the big turbines sucking the air as they go by.

Aug. 24 —

Saw four of the battle wagons go by today. What a sight! To see them miles behind some laker and to overtake it as though the lakers were going the other way, will be hard to forget.

Some of the sights seen during a day, never fail to start you wondering. For instance, we spotted an object one day that had us really wondering. From a distance it looked like a barge with a tent on it. It was a houseboat, with an awning up. I guess they figured the awning would either blow down or stay up, and I don't think they were too interested either. Another was a speed boat, with nothing very much in it except a bar — and I do mean bar. Hardly any room to move in the thing because of their liquor supplies. Of course, they have floating bars at some of these yacht clubs in the U.S., so that shouldn't have been too unusual. At least, if they run out of gas they wouldn't care too much, that is, not until everything was gone. Pretty rugged.

The ducks are starting to raft up now, and from all appearances they will be doing that until the cold weather sets in. We have noticed a few of the flight ducks out in the lake; evidently they are the vanguard of the main flock. It's marvelous the way they seem to follow a set pattern of flight, year after year. One wonders, just what form of instruction Nature takes to guide them on their way. Of course, we call it instinct —but there must be a better reason than that. Take the young ducks, when they are just tiny little balls of fluff. Anything they don't understand, they immediately seek cover and they hide; things like that make you wonder a little.

The everyday life of these little creatures, and indeed everything in connection with Nature, is one fight for survival — not with other birds, but just their daily living. Maybe that is Nature's way of weeding out the misfits.

Some of the stories that are being told on the eventual use of this Island are sure doozers. A few of the supposed in-the-know versions are here for your pick. A private shooting reserve; national park; bird sanctuary; high class resort; repair island for the Seaway. It's funny how everyone is supposed to have the real inside dope. But there isn't much use even trying to guess.

Aug. 25 —

Even the winds are so hot and stifling today that, instead of being cooled off in the air, you only feel worse. Everything has turned yellow. The leaves are turning real yellow, and the few cedars on the place are so brittle that when you touch them all the spines drop off. Some of them look as though they were (pardon the expression!) nude.

Sept. 3 —

Last evening there was a very bad storm. Bad from the point of view of small boats on the lake; not for us though, as it rained nice and heavy. Around 3 a.m. we were awakened by the sounds of a motor and a siren. Getting out after what seemed like a long time, we found it was the coastguard from Galloo Island who had been alerted to try and find a small cruiser lost. It had left Oswego, N.Y., at 1 p.m. on the 2nd, and was supposed to go to Cape Vincent, N.Y. Not having turned up, the coastguards were notified. . . .

Sleep was forgotten right there and then. The lake was very rough, and the men aboard the Guard were not too hopeful of finding the cruiser with the occupants aboard. As a matter of fact the only way they were figuring on finding the boat at all was upside down. We were asked to keep a watch along the south beach, as there was a chance they had cracked up there. After going all over the place looking, we returned in time for the Guard to come back in at 6 a.m. and give them the news nothing sighted.

By this time all the towns along both sides of the lakes had been alerted. The guards at Oswego, Galloo and Cape Vincent were out in their boats; all the police were asked to check on their waterfronts; the RCMP at Kingston were on the job, and all the lakers were notified to keep a look out for them. One coastguard stayed right at the Island to centralize the search in this area and the traffic that came over their radio from all boats, was really a job to keep track of.

At 7.30 came the word that everyone had been waiting for: cruiser sighted ashore on Wolfe Island. A good way out from its original destination. The sighting boat was instructed to go in as close as possible for survivors; however, none were aboard. Naturally the cruiser was heavily damaged. Then the climax of the whole thing. Everyone safe! They had run out of gas and had been driven off their course, finally pounding up on the island. There they managed to contact someone, who got a message through to the Coast Guard. The guards pulled out of the harbour about 8.15, very tired, but also happy at the way things had turned out. As one of the boys said over coffee, "You can always get another boat, but damned if you can get another life."

Urges independent farm machine tests

Winnipeg (?) — Agricultural engineers say farm machinery should be tested by independent authorities before it is sold.

A group attending the annual convention here of the Agricultural Institute of Canada felt that farmers' lack of knowledge of the machinery they buy often leads to purchase of the wrong type.

P. H. Southwell of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, said performance testing of machines is the responsibility of the purchaser. But, he added, no farmer can afford scientific testing facilities.

He called for tests of equipment by Independent government or farmers' association agencies.

Saskatchewan Tests

In 20 countries, he said, such facilities already exist. Pressure by farmers resulted in their establishment.

J. T. Kyle, Saskatchewan department of agriculture engineer, said work in Canada on farm machinery performance testing already has begun.

Tests were made in the field in Saskatchewan by three crews of engineers and technicians. Manufacturers co-operated fully.

An example of the Saskatchewan findings: A high-speed mowing machine was advertised as being capable of working at 15 miles an hour. But the manufacturer neglected to mention that a tractor driver would be bounced off his seat at that speed on a plowed field.

Lions Club statement reflects community work in past year

Presented at the opening meeting of Lachute Lions Club was an interesting statement of finances, prepared by Donald M. Hay, treasurer. This statement is published as a matter of public concern, in view of the fund-raising endeavors in which Lachute citizens so generously co-operate from time to time.

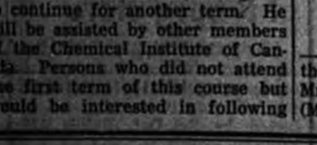

It will be noted that, due largely to the Community Rink project in which the club invested substantial amounts last year, there is a bank debt of over $6,000 outstanding, to which the Lions Club members are personally pledged. . . . However, in view of the purchases paid for during previous years (including ice machinery plant and equipment) the Lions Club have equipment or investment in their Skating Rink valued at approximately $25,000, which is being used during the winter season for the benefit of the community at large and the children in particular. This, it is hoped, is one way to assist the children to become better future citizens.

BELL LINES
by Dick Pearson
your telephone manager

Imagine, if you will, that a friend or relation has promised to call you about something or the other, and that it's now late evening, and you still haven't heard. You want to retire to bed, but not if it's going to mean getting up again and rushing downstairs to answer the phone. So you sit and wait . . . and you wait. And then you find you can't wait any longer; important as the call may be, you've got to get some rest sometime. So you retire to your bedroom. You've barely turned out the light when — yes, the phone rings downstairs. . . This theme, often with variations, is by no means uncommon. You wake up in the middle of the night, remembering suddenly that you promised to call someone; or you're unwell in bed and alone, and you yearn for the comforting words of a friend; or you seem to lose that certain feeling of security at night.

. . . What do you do about it? Well, you don't have to call a psychiatrist. — Call your Bell business office. Obviously what you need is a bedroom telephone. . . A phone in the bedroom can be almost as important as the bed itself. It affords you convenience, privacy of conversation, a sense of security, and even a touch of elegance. You have a choice of colors; and you can have a bedroom set with a built-in night light which glows in the dark, and brightens when you lift the receiver so that you can see what you're doing. Considering the many advantages that a bedroom phone has to offer, it makes one wonder how people manage to live — or sleep — without one, doesn't it?

The hunting set in this community has started excursions to the great outdoors. . . . When it comes to deer hunting, experts will tell you nothing is quite as important as moving exceedingly slowly, with extreme caution — you simply cannot hurry after deer. In duck-hunting a large part of the art is in how you position your decoys. It's generally agreed that decoys should be set out in a way that will enable waterfowl to approach them without having to fly over land. That unpredictable and highly individualistic bird, the grouse, is even more wild and erratic in windy weather, and hunters on such days usually have a tough time. . . . While on the subject of hunting, we at the Bell have a certain amount of trouble each year due to damage to wires and cables caused by bullets. If you hunt, we would ask you to avoid firing in the direction of wires and cables, glass insulators, or microwave towers. Your carefulness in this regard will help to protect services that are vital to you and to people you know. — Happy hunting!

We'd like you to meet Robert G. Bell, who has just moved to Lachute with his family to take over as our Plant Foreman. Bob's family consists of his wife, Gwen, and two girls and a boy. Bob plays golf, and plans to partake of this sport as much as he can. He is a stamp collector and is also interested in woodworking. Bob has 18 years service with our Company; he was born and raised in Sherbrooke, and comes to us from Montreal. Say, "hello" to Bob if you should see him and welcome him to our community.

Robert G. Bell

Well, the kids are back at school. It's been quite a good summer in these regions, and the youngsters have been able to get plenty of sun, fresh air and exercise; but now they'll be spending more of their evening hours indoors, tackling their homework and — what's the betting? — talking on the phone. . . . With youngsters, the act of using the telephone takes on the appearance of a ritual more than anything else. — They seem to go through all sorts of contortions, often employ a strange language and, what's more, they keep it up for hours. A friend of ours — father of two teen-age girls — who found it close to impossible to place a call from his house, or even receive one, decided to take action. He ordered a separate line for his daughters with the stipulation that they should contribute to the cost of the service out of their monthly allowances. The plan evidently worked out fine. There were a few little arguments between the girls as to who was using the phone the most; but having to pay for the phone out of their own money gave them a clearer appreciation for the value of the telephone — and, of course, their parents regained control of their own line. . . . This might be an idea for you to consider should you find yourself with the same problem.

Immunization Week re-emphasizes a need

THIS IS THE seventh year in which Immunization Week has been sponsored by the Health League of Canada, supported by departments of health in all parts of Canada.

Have you ever wondered why, with all the complacency of the protected, that we should still need education on this subject? Here are some of the reasons:

Although many people in Canada today are protected through immunization, the immunizing qualities may have waned to a dangerous level in some of these persons through lack of obtaining necessary boosters. Others lack any immunization at all, relying on the immunization of others to prevent spread of the disease. . . . To show that we are not immune as a nation, witness the case of the large city in Western Canada, only two scant years ago, when diphtheria broke out, attacking 69, killing 6. Both deaths and cases were restricted to an area where diphtheria toxoid had been ignored. In that same year, 166 cases and numerous deaths were reported from a large U.S. border city.

Remember the recent threatened epidemic of poliomyelitis which frightened hundreds of citizens into lining up in the streets of Montreal to receive their polio shots, although they could have had their immunity previously. Last ditch thinking like this may result in the loss of life of some member of your own family.

Over a million cases of smallpox took thousands of lives within the past year in Pakistan. Pakistan is a long way from Canada in terms of miles, but only hours away in terms of jet travel. One has only to recall the swiftness of the spread of Asiatic 'flu a short time ago to realize that there are no physical barriers to disease, aside from that of immunization.

Some persons feel protected without immunization merely because they are adults, and therefore past contracting childhood diseases. This is dangerous thinking indeed, for in the case of poliomyelitis, those between the ages of 20 and 45, and pregnant mothers in particular, are proving more and more susceptible to this disease. But everybody should be immunized.

In Toronto in 1920, there were 2,256 cases of diphtheria, and 224 deaths. Once toxoid was put into general use, this killer began to vanish, and in 1934, Toronto had its first year without a diphtheria death — first city of over 500,000 population in the world to achieve this miracle. There were no diphtheria cases in Toronto in 1958. . . . But the fact that diphtheria has become so rare is no reason to neglect immunization.

When we know that immunization protects, why don't we employ it universally? — This is why we need Immunization Week.

Different ideas on how to relax

CANADIANS are back at their jobs, schools and homes after the summer season, with memories of travel or an enjoyable stay at a country resort or lakeside cottage.

Those Canadians who delight in a typical family sojourn amid calm outdoor surroundings, would be amazed at how many Britons get their summer enjoyment in a holiday at Lancashire's famed Blackpool beach.

At Blackpool, in the early morning, with the tide halfway in and a cool breeze sweeping from the Irish Sea, it looks for a moment like any Canadian beach on Atlantic or Pacific. The gulls screech, and there are few people on the sands.

But turn away from the sea and there's the promenade, with Blackpool Tower thrusting into the sky above the close-packed theatres, hotels and restaurants, souvenir stands and shops of every description.

Blackpool with a permanent population of 145,000 entertains 3,000,000 holiday visitors a year, the peak crowds coming in the first week of August when many of Lancashire's towns virtually close down to spend a week at the seaside.

The visitors swarm on the sands as the day wears on. They parade endlessly on the promenade and fill the many amusement spots. There's even a Madame Tussaud's waxworks, crammed with about as many waxen heroes and villains as its sister establishment in London.

They love eating, either on the run or sitting down, and are always mindful of the racing and cricket and soccer results. If it's too early for the English soccer season they fill out football coupons on the schedule in Australia.

Only three hours away by bus is the heart of the scenic English lake district around Windermere, but the Blackpool crowds don't seek peace and quiet; they come to enjoy themselves in their own fashion.

Some hours after sunset, the beach again is deserted. Accompanying the never-ending swish of the waves is the muffled roar of traffic struggling through streets jammed with pedestrians. . .

It's a long way from a quiet Canadian lake!

Yukon dreams revived

THE RECENT discovery of oil and gas in the Eagle Plain area of the Yukon Territory was a landmark in northern history. The news caught both the imagination and the headlines with the realization that the Yukon's dream of riches was far from dead.

Another landmark in the development of the vast Territory went by relatively unnoticed last spring — the formation of the Yukon travel bureau.

The present economy of the Yukon depends on its mining industry, supplemented by fur trapping and tourist travel.

The oil and gas strike, first such discovery in the Yukon, when developed will benefit the mining industries — the gold mines near Dawson City, the lead and zinc mines near Mayo, the known deposits of iron and nickel.

The Yukon travel bureau, working under less spectacular circumstances, hopes to benefit the also-important tourist industry. At its first annual meeting early next year, directors will be elected to represent districts throughout the Yukon.

The Yukon, once so difficult of access, now can be reached by water, rail, road and air, and its tourist industry is booming. Ticket sales to the Yukon are doubled this year compared with 1958, the bureau reports. Hotels are booked up almost every night. Use of camp grounds and lunch spots along the highways has increased.

The volume of U.S. funds cleared through Whitehorse during June reached $300,000 — an increase of 30 per cent from the same month last year. Letters of inquiry have been pouring in, brochures have been pouring out.

Dramatically beautiful, the Yukon also has the glamor of a last frontier and the lure of the unknown. At Dawson, relics of the gold-rush days stand as ghosts of another era.

The bureau has many projects planned. Already the graves of the gold discoverers have been cleaned up, a modern trailer and camping area have been cleared outside Whitehorse, and rustic-style signs dot the highways.

Development of the tourist industry also is an important factor in the development of understanding. Canadians are beginning to realize that they have in their own country attractions of inexhaustible variety. The Yukon is one of them.

Let's spread Welcome mat for our guests, the plowmen

(Contributed by Norman Thorburn)

The County of Argenteuil has been chosen this year, through the local Plowmen's Association, to provide the site for the annual plowing match of the Quebec Provincial Plowmen's Association.

The Argenteuil Plowmen's Association is acting as host to the numerous plowmen from all sections of the province, who will be coming on October 7-8 to the Lachute district.

The beautiful site chosen, is on Cres Hadley's and the Norman Thorburn farm, on the Vide Sac Road.

At the time set for the match, the maples and other trees will be bedecked in the richest hues of their autumnal glory, and will be seen to advantage in the Laurentians to the north of this site.

Let's spread out the welcome mat for our distinguished plowing guests! Let's make our welcome one they will always remember.

Come and see these soldiers of the soil — these "shock troops" on our food production front — these ardent conservationists — drilling, parading in motorized platoons, one hand on the steering wheel, one hand on the lever, neck craning forward and backward, alternately. See how they regard the kind of terrain in front, and the results of their work in the rear of their operations.

We need, more than ever, the conservation of our fertile fields. There are 3½-million new mouths to feed in the U.S.A. and Canada every year.

Every day 3,300 acres of fertile land in the U.S.A. and Canada are gouged with the bulldozers to provide dwellings for this increment. About 75 acres of good farm land is being destroyed daily in Quebec alone.

I am reliably informed, that there is less fertile land in Canada than there is in France, a country which could be placed in a corner of Canada. Most of Quebec's fertile land lies in the St. Lawrence and Ottawa valleys, and in the Eastern Townships. The island of Montreal, the garden of Quebec, has been largely destroyed for farming.

The president of our Plowmen's Association, Mr. Ben Hammond, and the directors, have given much time, unselfishly, for the promotion of conservation and good farm practices. . . . Let us aid them in entertaining these guests, and in making these forthcoming plowing matches a resounding success! There will be a large display of farming machinery of all kinds, and other attractions.

A sumptuous banquet, dancing, the distribution of prizes and trophies, will be held Thursday evening, October 8, at 8 o'clock. The public are cordially invited to attend.

"We, the People"

— By Lewis Milligan —

With the general decline of the CCF in recent elections, the remnants of that political party have started a movement for its revival by seeking to enlist the support of the Canadian Labor Congress and farmers' organizations. By this combination they propose to form a "People's Party." A member of the CCF, in a letter to the United Church Observer, says, "The CCF was formed to create a classless society;" and he points out that "in every country where economic and social democracy are increasing there is a socialist government whose backbone is composed of the people who do the useful work of the community."

But socialism does not create a classless society. In countries where classes exist it creates enmity between them, and if it succeeds in abolishing them, as in Soviet Russia, it creates new class distinctions, which are more invidious and oppressive than those it has abolished. Under absolute socialism in Russia the people are divided into various classes, from the Presidium and the bureaucrats down to the slave workers in the salt mines and the labor camps of Siberia.

The actual aim of the proposed new party is to create a class consciousness in Canada. To speak of it as a "People's Party" is to use a misnomer. The word "people" is an all inclusive term, and to apply it to the CCF is a falsity, for at its best showing it has proved to represent a small part of the Canadian people. Even with the official support of the Labor Congress and farmers' organizations it could not truthfully claim to be any more than a class party. Moreover, the average member of a labor union or a farmers' organization does not regard himself as belonging to a distinctive social class. They are not so narrow minded and ignorant as to claim that they are "the people who do all the useful work of the community." And when it comes to an election they exercise their democratic freedom to vote on politics as they please.

President Lincoln summed up in a few words the democratic form of government when he said: "Government of the people, by the people, for the people." That does not preclude the formation of political parties. Disraeli declared that "without party Parliamentary government is impossible". He defined party as "organized opinion." There are many and various opinions on politics, and if there were separate parties organized for the promotion of every shade of opinion, politics would become a bear garden and there could be no settled or orderly form of government. France is an example of this with its multiple splinter parties and its frequent changes in policy and administration.

The two-party system has worked very well in Canada because, while both parties stand firmly for the fundamental principles of the constitution, they contend with each other in the formation of public opinion on political policies. Neither party claims to represent the political opinions of all the people. An election is a compromise to discover which party is supported by a majority of the people.

Any sectional organizations have a perfect right to organize and promote their political opinions, but for such a group even to think of themselves as a People's Party is an absurd piece of political arrogance. The best answer to that is the reply of Job to his comforters: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you."

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

Albertans get annoyed when anyone shows fear of natural gas as a fuel. Of course, natural gas is an old story to Albertans, and they simply cannot understand why it should be feared when statistics prove without a doubt that it is one of the safest of fuels.

I lived in Alberta for many years. In those days, gas was so cheap we didn't bother to turn it down in the winter even if the house got too hot — we simply opened the windows instead. In all our years there, I can't remember a fire caused by gas or a death caused by gas. If people committed suicide in our neighborhood, they did it some other way. One poor chap jumped off the high level bridge; and when they found him, it was noted that he had tied his ankles together so that he would not be able to swim if he changed his mind.

A member of my own family is afraid to fly. My son keeps quoting figures to her to prove that you are safer in an airplane than in many other vehicles, but she refuses to pay any attention.

Some reasonable fear is a good thing. Natural gas, like any other fuel, must be treated with respect. Electricity, too, presents hazards, as do coal and oil. One should be wary of going for airplane rides with careless pilots, or to sea in leaky boats. However, to deny oneself the use of a good fuel, fast transportation or a leisurely ocean voyage through fear, is something else again.

What Alberta can do to reassure people about natural gas, I don't know. They can console themselves, I suppose, with the knowledge that some day someone will come up with a brand new fuel, and then the fearful will transfer their fear to it.

Information for blood donors and volunteers

The following information to readers and prospective volunteers is published in order to answer various questions which might have arisen and prevented them from becoming donors in the past:

Questions and Answers

What is the Blood Transfusion Service?

A service operated by the Red Cross to supply whole blood free to any patient in any hospital participating in the service. All blood is provided by volunteer donors.

Will I be tested before donating?

Yes, every donor is first given a haemoglobin test.

How often may blood be given?

A man may donate every three months. A woman, under normal circumstances, every four months.

How long will it take to give my donation?

The actual giving of blood only takes approximately 4 to 5 minutes. However, donors are given a haemoglobin test; a blood group test is also made and each donor is registered. Following the giving of their donation they rest for a few minutes, after which they are served refreshments. Approximately 30 to 45 minutes should be allowed for the entire procedure.

Is a doctor's certificate necessary?

Only in special cases of high blood pressure. Your blood will be tested when you call to donate and will not be taken if you are anemic.

Who may donate?

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 65 in average health.

Are there any diet restrictions?

No.

Is the donating of blood painless?

Yes! There is no discomfort experienced in the giving of blood.

Will blood be accepted from a donor who has had malaria?

Yes, provided one year has elapsed since the last attack.

Can I give blood if I have had jaundice (infectious hepatitis)?

No! Because there is a possibility that a patient receiving the blood may be adversely affected.

Does anyone have to pay?

No! Your gift and the transfusion equipment are supplied without charge to the patients.

Will I be able to donate blood even though I have just received inoculations against polio?

Yes! Salk Vaccine shots will not prevent donors from giving blood.

How much blood is there in the body?

How much blood will be taken?

380 c.c. or 13 ounces.

Why is whole blood needed?

Whole blood is vital for haemorrhages in childbirth, for many operations, accidents and other illnesses.

Is any blood wasted?

No! If it is not used as whole blood, it is processed into blood fractions which keep indefinitely.

Is this service endorsed by the proper authorities?

Yes, by Church and Civic Authorities, by Provincial and Municipal Departments of Health, Collège des Médecins et Chirurgiens de la Province de Québec, the Canadian Medical Association and similar bodies.

Who benefits by my gift?

Some man, woman or child who is in need of a transfusion because of accident or illness.

Zweibrucken, Germany — Not all jet pilots are youths of 20. There still are plenty of elderly men in their 30's and 40's wheeling fighter planes through the sky at a ten-mile-a-minute clip.

These relics of the 1939-45 war, many of them veterans of Hurricanes and Spitfires, expect to be good for several more years of useful service in the air. So I learned on a visit to No. 3 Wing of No. 1 Air Division, Royal Canadian Air Force.

Such men have far outlasted the planes they flew. For many years after the war, Hurricanes and Spitfires have been flown in ceremonial fly-pasts, as a reminder of the days when "The Few" saved Britain.

Recently, however, it was announced that the wartime fighter planes were unlikely to be flown even for display purposes, because there was no guarantee that they could be brought up to the proper standard of safety and service ability.

The news brought a pang of nostalgia to people who were old enough to remember the war. It reminded them forcibly how much time had gone by.

But some wartime pilots are still flying fast planes. I met several of them during my visit to this fighter wing and to other RCAF stations. All of them swore that they were in good physical shape, and they must have been telling the truth, because they must pass rigorous physical tests at intervals.

This doesn't mean that any of us elderly Caspar Milquetoasts can go knocking on the doors of the RCAF and expect to be signed up as fighter pilots. This isn't so. They have to start young.

However, the fact that any jet pilots in their 30's and 40's exist at all struck me as reassuring news in days when the cult of youth is raging.

Shelagh Delany, the teen-aged wonder girl playwright from near Manchester, England, was recently quoted in Good Housekeeping magazine as saying: "The world should belong to the young people, don't you think? But the old hang on with both hands."

What does she want old people in their 30's and 40's to do — commit suicide? And why should the world belong to young people, in particular? Surely they should have to earn their place in it, first?

But statements like Shelagh's are so common nowadays that they give many of us triogenarians and quadragenarians an unwanted feeling.

That's why it comes as a pleasant surprise to learn that old men are still flying fast planes and making a good job of it.

I saw some other words of encouragement in a Paris newspaper, which referred to a 33-year-old as a "young man."

All of this nerves me to say that a lot of us old fogeys intend to hang on with both hands for a good many years.

Sewage disposal vs. contamination of North River

TO THE EDITOR

Picton, Ont., Sept. 16, 1959

Editor, The Watchman

We all know the past few months have been trying ones for all the mothers and dads in our own area, because of the polio outbreak in the province. As we all know, so many reasons have been given for this outbreak that it would be a superhuman job to pinpoint the causes.

Dr. Adelard Groulx, the Public Health Officer of Montreal, has this to say: Montreal is an island surrounded by polluted water; the chief reason given for this is the raw sewage being run into the water from various municipalities adjoining the city.

Isn't this a good time to try and get something done for our own town? We dump raw sewage into the North River, and we could have the same tragic results as Montreal. Did we ever stop and think this one over! Spend thousands of dollars building a hospital for the cure and treatment of disease, but not one cent is spent in trying to get a Sewage Disposal Plant built for the prevention of disease. I guess it's a case of the cart going before the horse!

I know other towns along the North River also dump their refuse into it, and that we cannot do anything about this until we clean house ourselves. It is up to all citizens of Lachute to show the rest of Canada, that it can be done by a determined effort by everyone. Maybe if all interested parties, and that should mean everyone, donated $10 to the town for this purpose it will bring results. I think that's a cheap life at $10.

Carefully tested

The blood collected by Red Cross has to be carefully tested before being administered to sick and injured patients in need of transfusions. For these tests and analyses, the Red Cross technician uses a sample of blood taken in a small vial at the same time as a blood donation. In the Province of Quebec a minimum of 2,400 pints of blood is required each week.

Blood donor mobile unit at Brownsburg next Tuesday

Brownsburg — A blood donor clinic will be held in Brownsburg next Tuesday, September 29, and the objective has been set at 300 pints. This was announced by Wm. Morrow, chairman of the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic.

The clinic will be held in two different places. During the afternoon, employees of the C-I-L will have the opportunity of contributing to the Red Cross blood bank. The mobile unit will be at the plant from 1.30 to 5.

The evening clinic, which will be held at the Legion Hall, will be open to the general public from 7 to 10 o'clock.

Mr. Morrow is seconded in the organization of these two clinics by Mrs. N. E. Smillie, president of the Red Cross, Brownsburg Branch; Mr. L. Carignan, co-chairman of the Blood Donor Committee; and Mrs. C. Armstrong, in charge of publicity.

The district covers all of Brownsburg to the outlying areas of St. Philippe, Cushing, Ogdensburg, Dalesville, Pine Hill and St. Michel de Wentworth.

"The Red Cross supplies 2,400 pints of blood each week to 114 hospitals of the province of Quebec," said the chairman. "We get our share of this blood and we should take advantage of this occasion and make our contribution to the blood transfusion service." Giving blood is painless and causes no ill after-effect . . . Anyone in reasonably good health, between 18 and 65 years of age, can give a pint of blood. An adult has from 12 to 14 pints of blood and can spare one pint," said Mr. Morrow, on behalf of the Blood Donor Committee.

The soft drink which is offered to the donor prior to the donation, plus the cup of coffee that the donor drinks after giving blood, replace immediately the quantity of liquid represented by a blood donation. Mr. Morrow gives assurance that most people don't even feel anything while the bottle is being filled with the precious liquid. "The only bad moment," he said, "is the prick of the needle at the tip on one finger, when the nurse draws a few drops of blood for checking the haemogloblin for the donor and establish his or her blood type. But women who sew, tell me that a prick of a sewing needle hurts a lot more."

It is suggested that people who have already given blood to the Red Cross bring a friend or two with them at the next clinic. "If our regular donors do that, we can be reasonably sure to go over our objective," said Mr. Morrow.

COUGH CONTROL

The cough is a pretty complicated phenomenon that can have plus or minus value for us. On the one hand, it's one of the principal devices for protecting the lungs against foreign material like a partical of soot or too much mucous. And on the other, it's a common and troublesome symptom of illness.

Since coughing is a result of irritation of the throat or bronchial passages, it has as many different causes as there are different irritants. Dust, for instance, or hot dry air and, of course smoking. Asthma, lung or chest infections, disorders of the nerves involved in the cough reflex, or ear disorders can all cause coughing. Coughing can even be a matter of habit, like a facial tic.

Physicians place coughs in two classes, productive and unproductive. The former helps clear obstructions, especially of mucous. A cough may be unproductive because there's no obstruction to remove, or you may not be able to cough as hard as necessary.

In treating cough the physician tries to end the unproductive kind or to make it productive and then stop it as soon as its usefulness is over. Drugs that will suppress cough by hitting at the cough reflex are the object of intensive laboratory research. Codeine used to be the main cough-suppressant but it was never satisfactory because of its narcotic nature as well as undesirable side-effects.

Researchers in recent years have been screening large numbers of chemical compounds to find non-narcotic anti-cough drugs. Recently, an effective and safe drug was discovered to act specifically and swiftly on the cough reflex. Clinical tests showed there was no danger of addiction and that it caused no drowsiness or constipation.

New teachers confer with Principal Fred Royal in his office at Lachute High School. Left to right — Mr. George Demerson (Physics, General Science and Mathematics); Mr. Bernard Fitch (History and Geography); Mrs. R. Payne (Grade VI); Miss A. Olney (Household Science); Mrs. C. Cribb (the former Clare Mae Laurin, assistant French specialist); and Mr. Clifford White (Industrial Arts) . . . Principal Royal at his desk is not, in this case, signing a Golden Book but is consulting the curricular timetable.

is making a very valuable contribution to education in our community," said Mr. Royal; and Miss Stanton was warmly applauded by the audience. The principal also named this year's additrons to the teaching faculty. He acknowledged the valuable work of the Home and School Association, also the interest and efforts of the St. Andrews and the Gore School boards, and in conclusion he solicited the continued co-operation of the parents for still finer achievements in Lachute High School.

At this point Mr. Garnet Pride, representing the Lachute District Home and School Association, presented a scholarship made possible through the Association's membership fees. The recipient was Leola Caya, who graciously thanked the Association. Mr. Pride added a word to solicit the interest and support of all parents and friends of the school, to become members of the Home and School group.

Principal Fred Royal then proceeded with the distribution of prizes, first expressing sincere appreciation to the donors. He made mention of a Legion Dominion Command Scholarship for further studies, awarded to Eileen Bryson, a recent L.H.S. graduate. There were seven endowments and numerous prizes to encourage the pupils in their york.

Apart from the school awards, Mr. Bob McIlroy, president of Lachute School Fair, was called upon to present a prize to Grace Donaldson and to Terry Swail, winners of highest points for girls and boys, respectively.

Arundel man takes bride in Guelph ceremony

Smith - Bird

St. George's Anglican Church, Guelph, Ont., was the setting for the marriage on September 19 of Susan Ruth Bird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sven Bird, of Guelph, to Dr. Harry John Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith of Arundel, Que. The Rev. Dr. Kirk, the rector of St. George's, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of French brocade lined with taffeta, with a fitted bodice, a portrait neckline and lily-point sleeves. Her princess-line skirt was caught at the back into pleats, which fell into a slight train. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held by a bandeau of woven French brocade. The bride wore a strand of cultured pearls and earrings, the gift of the groom. She carried a white prayer book banked by an orchid with white streamers and stephanotis.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Herb Teskey, of Guelph, as matron of honor and Mrs. Leonard Craig, of Cobourg, sister of the groom, and Miss Clo Dunne, of Ottawa, as bridesmaids. The attendants all wore identical gowns, formal length, of mauve taffeta with fitted bodices with wide regulation necklines in front to a deep V in the back. The skirts, worn over crinolines had inverted pleats joined at the waistline to the bodice. The attendants all wore cummerbunds at the waist, woven taffeta bandeaux and shoes to match. Those of the matron of honor were in a purple shade, and the bridesmaids' in a pale aquamarine. All attendants wore pearls and white gloves, and carried bouquets of white and tinted mauve mums.

Dr. Philip Taylor, of Toronto, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Bill Bird, of Toronto, brother of the bride, and Mr. Gerald Trineer, of Montreal, brother-in-law of the groom.

Receiving at the Royal Hotel following the ceremony, the bride's mother wore a dress of silk brocaded taffeta in a sea-blue color, with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a dress of copper-blue wool with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Prior to her marriage the bride was on the staff at the Experimental Farm at Ottawa. In 1958 she attended the World Fair at Brussels and visited Denmark and Sweden, her parents' homelands.

Dr. Smith is a graduate of Arundel and Lachute schools. He received the degree of B.Sc. from McGill in 1954 and the degree of D.V.M. from O.V.C. in 1958, and is at present furthering his education towards a degree of M.V.S.

Guests at the wedding were present from Arundel, Montreal, Ottawa, Sault Ste. Marie, Cobourg, Toronto, Lakeport and Rochester, N.Y.

Record enrolment at Seminary in Ste. Therese

The seminary at Ste. Therese has started a new academic year, the 135th of its history, with a record registration of 662 students. The number has doubled since 1951, when the registration was 333.

Statistics of the registrar show 416 boarders and 246 day-school students: 477 students come from the Diocese of St. Jerome, or 72% of the total. There are 462 pupils in High School and 200 in College; 182 pupils are registered in the First High. The teaching staff, priests and laymen, has increased to 58.

Due to the increase in students — 101 more than last year's enrolment — the seminary had to refuse many pupils. This means that the institution must expand to face increasing demands for higher education.

Formal blessing of cemetery statues given by old resident

A ceremony performed by Mgr. C. W. Lacourse, parish priest, on his annual visit to the Catholic Cemetery here, was the blessing of two statues donated by Mrs. Zotique Rochon. Another canon of the diocese, Mgr. L. J. Rodrigue, priest at St. Eustache and former resident, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

The two statues, each measuring over 6 feet in height and weighing around 1,200 lbs., represent respectively, Notre Dame des Sept Douleurs and St. John. They are set adjacent to the crucifix erected in 1935, and make a very imposing setting.

Mrs. Rochon, born in the nearby County of Deux Montagnes, has been a resident of Lachute since 1890.

When was the Nelson River discovered?

This 40-mile river, which drains Lake Winnipeg into Hudson Bay, was discovered in 1612 by Sir Thomas Button, who named it after his sailing master who had died on the voyage. Its mouth in Hudson Bay was for many years the scene of bitter struggles for the fur trade. The Nelson's drainage basin extends from the Rocky Mountains for 1600 miles from the source at the Bow River; it includes the North and South Saskatchewan Rivers, the Assiniboine and the Red, with a total area exceeding 440,000 square miles.

Women's Institute branch meetings for September

Arundel Women's Institute, at their September meeting, discussed and made plans for the School Fair. A travelogue on Ireland was shown to Brownsburg W.I. The ladies also held a Handicraft Tea, which proved very successful. Gifts were presented to two members who are leaving for France and England.

Dalesville members heard a talk on Banking given by Mr. Gervais, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Brownsburg.

A film entitled "Three of Our Children" was shown to Frontier branch. The case history of a woman with muscular dystrophy was read by the Health and Welfare convener. This W.I. served refreshments at the Fair Grounds on the School Fair and 4-H Achievement Day.

Jerusalem - Bethany branch heard a talk on work done by the Lachute Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society. They plan to hold a military whist party. This branch held a tea and presentation in honor of one of its members who was recently married.

Lachute W.I. held an open meeting which was attended by members and friends — nine of the eleven branches being represented. Mrs. George McGibbon, County president, gave a most interesting account of her recent visit to Glasgow as a delegate to the A.C.W.W. Convention. Mrs. Nelson Morrison also spoke on her trip to Ireland. The ticket on a quilt donated by Jerusalem - Bethany W.I. was drawn at this meeting — D. Castell, of Montreal, being the lucky winner.

A film about the various enterprises of men of the Bell Telephone Co. was shown to Pioneer branch. This meeting was open to the public, and proved most interesting as well as educational.

Upper Lachute - East End collected cottons for the Cancer Society. They are planning a card party in support of the Home for Senior Citizens.

Separates in autumn tones

Russet tones of browns and yellows are used in these young separates for fall. The skirtwaist blouse and softly belted skirt are of fabric which keeps its fresh crispness, washes easily, and will never need the touch of an iron.

STANDARDS

What difference would it make to you if you were on a ship at sea without a compass or any instrument of navigation? What difference would it make to you if there were no standard time by which to adjust clocks and watches? What difference would it make to you if the principles of Jesus disappeared some night, forever?

The church is not a compass of standard time or Christian principle. But it is the guardian and the mediator of all Christian principles. Support your church!

— Jehovah's Witnesses —

No Will but God's Will

CAN SOLVE THE COMPLEX PROBLEMS CONFRONTING THIS GENERATION.

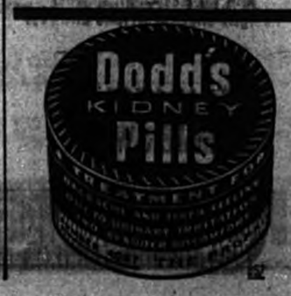

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN SEEING GOD'S WILL DONE?

For centuries the nations of the world have been competing for supremacy. The result has been untold misery and death. Today two of the strongest opposing forces ever developed in government are desperately seeking the "ultimate position" in order to gain self-preservation or world conquest. What will the outcome be? Is the future in this conflict foreseeable?

Centuries ago the Almighty God caused his prophet Daniel to record a series of prophetic visions that are now so clearly seen in fulfilment that their message to this generation is unmistakable. You will want to consider them in detail for your protection and salvation in the calamity all nations face in the immediate future.

Send 50c for your copy of the book "YOUR WILL BE DONE ON EARTH."

Write: Watchtower, 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19, or ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet, anywhere.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Obeying isn't easy!

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Tommy come inside this minute and get washed for dinner!" Mother's voice is clear and urgent. Her son acts as if he did not hear a word she said — Tommy goes right on playing. Mother repeats her command, raising her voice. Tommy stirs a little. He looks up when mother calls a third time and says defiantly, "No! No!"

Tommy's mother advances on her rebellious son with a glint of fire in her eyes. She murmurs to herself, "If that child of mine says No! No! flatly to me again today — I'll teach him different — or I'll go stark mad!"

A mother of a first child should be prepared for just such an experience as this scene describes. There is a vast number of little boys — and little girls too — in the two to four year old period who are constantly saying "No! No!" It is provoking and puzzling to parents who have enjoyed the baby's dependence on their care and the comparative ease in following this routine. Now the mother or father is confronted with this uncompromising negativism expressed by the child's "No! No!" How best can a parent meet this refusal to obey?

It is important that a mother should try to put herself in her child's place. The world is a very exciting place. He is beginning to get around "under his own steam," and all kinds of things fascinate him for short periods of time. He wants to run his own life and is very adverse to being "bossed." Likely he has had pleasure from seeing what a commotion he can create by defiance. Even at this early stage he is struggling to assert some degree of independence.

Parents need a great store of patience and good humor — and also firmness when dealing with this "No! No!" period. There are certain things in a child's daily routine such as going to the toilet, washing his hands, coming to the meal table which he must do. But there are certain techniques which make it easier for a child to conform to necessary requests.

Obeying is not easy. But if Tommy had been prepared for the call to dinner, by a five minute warning, he would have been more willing to drop his playthings and come. Tommy's mother would have been wise to use the indirect command, "Twelve o'clock. Dinner time now!" and then take Tommy by the hand and start him indoors, than the direct order.

There is nothing to be gained by repeating a command over and over or by arguing with a rebellious child. Tommy's mother should make sure she has his undivided attention before making her request. But once she has given her direction, Tommy's mother must see that he does what he has been told to do. A slightly older child may ask "Why?" just to stall for time, but the parent will find it well to state briefly the reason for an unexpected request.

"We will put on your new sweater because Granny knit it for you, and she will be proud to see it on you in your picture."

Parents should avoid unnecessary issues. Most mothers, if they will check up on themselves will discover that they give their children many unnecessary orders. Reducing commands to the minimum is one way to remove the number of opportunities for saying "No! No!" A mother will also perceive that sometimes a child says "No! No!" when he does not know his own mind — almost from habit — he may even mean "Yes!"

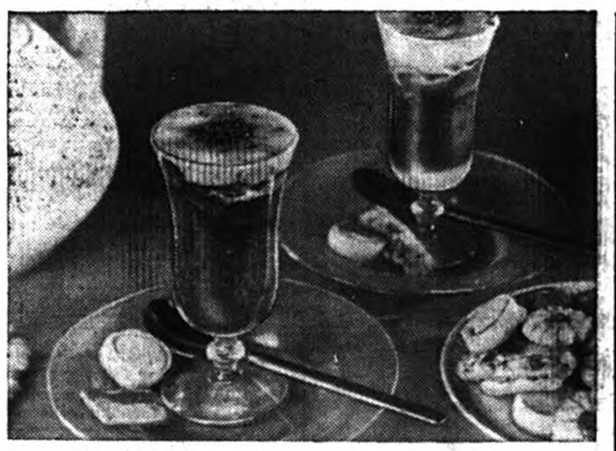

In a different form from "No! No!" dislike of authority is apparent in an adolescent's development. Parents, if they could only remember, went through these very same phases. So they should not be too much dismayed at the pre-school child's negativism or the teenager's yen for freedom from parental supervision.

A good parent's goal is not a child who never questions authority or who never defies a command. The goal in child training is an individual who in time, will be able to "put on the brakes" and say "No! No!" to himself or to his companions when he knows he should. A "Yes Man" is not a valuable citizen nor a happy person.

Fashions

Wide wale corduroy combines well with plain velveteen in this lounge pyjama set. The short, double-breasted jacket is bound and trimmed in black. Pants are black. It comes in red, beige or turquoise, all with black. Designed for a maternity wardrobe, it will serve at other times as well.

A dessert to delight

Of all the dishes on the menu, dessert is one that ought to be an unalloyed delight, and usually is, unless the cook holds back from concocting dessert because she thinks it is too much work and takes up so much time. But with short cuts on the market such as instant pudding mixes, the housewife can now turn out what were previously time consuming dishes in less time than it takes to make a pot of coffee. . . . leaving herself looking as cool as the dessert she had made.

Before the advent of instant pudding mixes, making a recipe such as this one for Chocolate Peppermint Pudding required a great deal of mixing, stirring and pot watching. Now this delicious dessert can be whipped up in next to no time and left in the 'frig to cool while the rest of the meal is being prepared. The sauce that tops the pudding is made by melting marshmallows and adding peppermint extract to taste. It is then tinted a delicate green and spooned over each pudding dish just before serving. Shaved chocolate or chopped nutmeats sprinkled over the sauce add a final note of eye and flavor appeal. Serve the pudding with a plate of assorted cookies.

Chocolate Peppermint Pudding

(Yield — 5 or 6 servings)

One package (approx. 4½ ounces) chocolate-flavored instant pudding mix, 2 cups milk, 3 cups miniature marshmallows or 20 cut up large marshmallows, ¼ cup corn syrup, ¾ cup milk, peppermint extract, green food coloring.

Prepare instant pudding according to package directions, using the 2 cups milk; pour into 5 or 6 dessert glasses — leave about ½ inch head-room on each glass. Chill.

Put marshmallows into top of double boiler; add corn syrup and the ¾ cup milk. Heat over boiling water, stirring often, until marshmallows are melted and mixture blended. Remove from heat and stir in peppermint extract to taste and tint the sauce delicately with green food coloring. Cool. At serving time stir sauce until smooth; top each chocolate pudding with a generous layer of the peppermint marshmallow sauce and sprinkle with shaved chocolate or chopped nutmeats.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE THRIVES IN NORTH

A group of women in Whitehorse, Yukon, decided they needed a club, and after examining a number, chose the Women's Institute.

That was in 1957 and two years have certainly shown a busy group. Following a talk by an agronome, they started gardens — no mean task in the North. Also a new school and a library. They are having a Handicraft Exhibit and Fair this fall. Every Saturday the children have a "story hour" and films.

But it is not all work. They also organized a curling bonspiel with six teams; a play, and a "Sourdough Shindig" to celebrate the Yukon's Jubilee. They are also making a quilt with the 10 provincial flowers in appliqué.

Something new in shortcake

Meat prices along with everything else have jumped considerably since World War II. Since the average family insists on meat as a staple of its diet, the Canadian homemaker often has to tax her ingenuity to the limit to feed her family interestingly and well . . . but stretch her money doing it. A good meat stretcher, and money saver as well, is bread crumbs, used in today's recipe for Beef Pattie Shortcake. This novel and appetizing main course dish can be concocted from an economical and highly nutritious cut of meat. After the meat has been shaped into patties they are placed into a baking pan and fried onions with beef gravy are poured over them. The dish is then topped by a tender, baking powder biscuit type of crust. A green salad, followed by fresh fruit and cheese, is all that is needed to complete this highly satisfying and easy-to-prepare meal.

Beef Pattie Shortcake

1 Pound minced lean beef, 1 cup coarse soft bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, 6 medium-sized onions, 3 tablespoons shortening (heated), 1¼ cups (or 1 can, approx. 10 ounces) beef gravy, 1¾ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 2 cups once-sifted pastry flour, 3½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup chilled shortening, ¾ cup (about) milk.

Grease a 9-inch square cake pan. Preheat oven to 425 deg. F. (hot).

Break up meat with a fork; sprinkle with bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper and 1 egg; mix lightly. Shape into 6 oblong patties. Broil or pan-fry until browned on both sides. Arrange in bottom of prepared pan. Peel and cut onions into ¼-inch thick slices; fry slowly, stirring often, in the 3 tablespoons heated shortening until onions are tender and delicately golden. Arrange over beef patties, and pour gravy over onions and meat.

Sift together into a bowl the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder and the remaining 1 teaspoon salt; cut in the ¼ cup chilled shortening finely. Make a well in dry ingredients; add the ¾ cup milk and mix lightly until blended, adding a little milk, if necessary, to make a soft dough. Turn out dough on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead for 10 seconds. Pat or roll out into a 9-inch square and place in prepared pan. Bake in preheated oven 30 to 35 minutes. Serve hot.

Each generation of women should do what they can to keep the ball rolling "until it will not be such an issue every time a woman runs for office."

This was a declaration some time ago by Grace Hartman of Sudbury. She has just been elected president of the Ontario Municipal Association.

A native of Markdale, Ont., the former high school teacher at one time taught English in France and French in England. She went to Sudbury in 1940, two years after her marriage to George Hartman.

In Sudbury, she has "kept the ball rolling" by becoming the city's first woman deputy mayor, and the first woman controller on council. She has served on the board for the home of the aged, the public library board, Sudbury's council of friendship, the Canadian Club, the University Women's Club and the YWCA.

Baked Chops

Tired of panfried pork chops? Try them baked.

Rub a hot pan with fat cut from the pork, or if the meat is lean, add a small amount of fat. Brown over moderate heat allowing three to four minutes each side. Pour off excess fat. Turn meat and place uncovered in the centre of moderately slow oven (325F). Bake one-inch loin and rib chops 10-12 minutes each side: one-inch shoulder chops 16-18 minutes each side; add one-inch steaks 26-28 minutes each side.

For further variety, try one of the following:

Breaded chops — Coat with seasoned flour and dip into slightly beaten egg mixture (2 tbsps. water to one egg). Roll in fine dry bread crumbs. Bake as above.

Stuffed chops — To stuff one-inch chops before baking cut a slit along the outer fat side of the chop almost to the bone. Fill this pocket with well-seasoned dry, bread stuffing. Skewer and bake as above.

Stuffed chop roast — Make about three cups well-seasoned dry bread stuffing. Brown six 1-inch rib chops well on each side. Place chops fat side up in a greased loaf pan, alternating chops and stuffing. Skewer or tie chops and stuffing together as a roast. Bake in centre of a moderately slow oven for one-and-three-quarters to two hours. Six servings.

Fashions Unveiled

Black and brown are the big colors for winter this year. The two colors were used almost exclusively in a recent showing by 13 of Canada's top couturiers in Toronto. Jewel-bright blues, reds and greens were also shown, but the costumes were outnumbered by sophisticated black ensembles. Necklines of the daytime dresses hugged the neck while late day and formal fashions were daringly bare — cut low both front and back.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

With the arrival of the fall season Argenteuil Branch 70 has commenced a round of activities seldom, if ever, surpassed in the history of this branch.

A Saturday Night Dance will usher in these activities, when Branch 70 will be hosts to Maisonneuve Branch 66 from Montreal. Com. Doug Ogilvie has completed arrangements, which include an orchestra. All Legion members and friends are invited to attend.

Following closely will be a Turkey Shoot, to be held behind Murdoch's Garage on Mr. Alex Pollock's farm (a mile east of Lachute), on Saturday, October 3. This will be a small-bore shoot, and will be organized by Jack MacKimmie.

Com. Fred Pring, chairman of the Sports and Entertainment committee, has announced he is working on several other items of interest between now and the year's end. Watch this column and special ads elsewhere in this paper, for details.

Several important items of business were reviewed by a full turnout of the Executive Committee and Executive Council, at a meeting held September 9 under chairmanship of Com. R. MacLean. Among other items, it was decided to send the annual donation to "the Last Post Fund". This fund is sponsored by the Canadian Legion to insure that needy veterans receive a respectable burial, that their graves are suitably maintained, and their memory perpetuated.

Branch 70, Lachute, were hosts to the District 12 Council meeting, held on Sunday, September 13, in the Memorial Hall.

Outside branches were well represented. The 1959-60 Council for this District includes Commander R. O. MacLean, and Com. Doug Kettyle, Lachute; Deputy Commander Hec Steele and Com. R. R. Summers, Brownsburg; Com. E. Kneeland, Morin Heights, and Com. Marc Stein, Q.C., Ste. Agathe. Com. C. Demerse, Lachute, is secretary.

Com. MacLean reported on the Provincial Full Council meeting held in Montreal the previous day.

Highlight was the presentation of a Past-Commander's medal to E. Kneeland, Morin Heights, and a special thanks to Com. H. Elias, retiring District secretary, also of Morin Heights. Argenteuil branch Ladies' Auxiliary provided a tasty buffet lunch for those attending.

A large agenda was dealt with on Wednesday evening last, when the regular monthly meeting was held under chairmanship of President Tom Smith.

In the absence of Com. R. A. Giles, Sick and Relief chairman, President Tom reported on three branch members in hospital — Comrades G. Driver, of St. Andrews East, H. P. Lecorre and R. Thorburn, of Lachute.

A new member was inducted, in the person of Grant Staniforth. Com. Staniforth should be an inspiration to all members. Originally from Arundel, he attended Lachute High School and after his wartime stint in the Royal Canadian Navy, which included service on the North Atlantic, he was proprietor at the opening of the Shell Service Station on Main St. Later moving to Montreal, he was the victim of an unfortunate accident which left him sightless. Through a lot of effort and concentration on his part, Com. Staniforth has mastered bicycle repair, and has set up a shop in a building provided by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 145 Drew St., Lachute. In addition to repairs, Grant sells parts, new bicycles (several makes), also repairs and sells tennis and badminton racquets. As though this were not enough, Grant has become local president of the Social Club for the sightless and has offered to assist with this year's Legion Poppy Drive. Com. Staniforth is married and has two children.

Com. Smith announced that the Armistice Supper will be held in the Legion Hall on Saturday, November 7, and that he expects Com. Alex Solomon, Quebec director of the Legion March of Dimes, to attend as guest speaker.

Com. Smith also announced confirmation of a Canadian Legion Dominion bursary, obtained through the efforts of Branch 70 on behalf of Miss Eileen Bryson, St. Andrews East, which will be used towards her attendanee at Macdonald College.

Com. B. Jenkins, chairman of the Adult Anti-Polio Clinics, advised that the tentative date for the next clinic is October 22. Watch for more information as the date approaches.

Com. Ray Holmes, Cushing, another sightless veteran who attends our meetings regularly, conveyed greetings to members from his brother-in-law, Com. Joe Bailey, now stationed at Frobisher Bay.

Com. B. Jenkins was appointed chairman of the 1959 Poppy Campaign. In accepting this duty he solicited assistance from all members, pointing out that this campaign covers a large area and cannot be a complete success otherwise.

The Nominating Committee comprising President Tom Smith and Past-presidents R. MacLean, R. St. Laurent, H. Ward and V. Elliott (chairman) were requested to present a proposed slate of officers for 1960 at the October meeting.

Com. Charles L. Ducan spoke in favor of holding Teen-Age Dances during the coming season. It was pointed out that assistance may be required from parents, other than Legion members, for chaperon duties. Com. Smith felt that this should be decided upon at the next Executive meeting.

The Branch accepted an offer of several volumes of "History of First World War", in memory of the late Comrade W. E. Hammond.

Members unanimously agreed to a proposal presented by Com. B. Jenkins covering the purchase of sick room equipment for use in the district. A committee comprised of Comrades Jenkins, R. O. MacLean, Tom Smith and Jos. Martel, had obtained quotations on the basic equipment necessary, amounting to nearly $400. This committee will prepare a program for distribution and maintenance of these items.

1,000th Diesel locomotive

Termed a significant milestone in Canadian Pacific's system-wide dieselization program was the delivery Sept. 10 of a diesel locomotive No. 8023, a 1,000-horsepower road switcher, which was the 1,000th unit of the efficient diesel power to go into service on the C.P.R. Shown (inset) in the cab making a final inspection of the unit at the time of its delivery to Windsor Station, the railway's Montreal headquarters, are C.P.R. President N. R. Crump (right) and G. W. Miller, president of Montreal Locomotive Works, builders of the unit. Several directors and officers of both companies were on hand to witness the acquisition by the C.P.R. of its 1,000th diesel, which brings total dieselation of the 17,000-mile railway system a step closer to the 1961 target date set by Mr. Crump in 1955. Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Keep a camera in your car this autumn. The pictures you take will prolong your pleasure all through the year.

Here are some tips on how to get the best pictures while motoring:

First — if you want to take pictures from a moving car, let someone else drive.

Adjust your shutter speed to the distance and angle of the subject you are shooting. You need faster speeds for nearby subjects, and those at right-angles to the car's movement. Open the aperture accordingly.

Try framing your pictures for variety. Include a portion of the dashboard and window. If you want the "frame" to be in focus, close the aperture to get greater depth of field. You'll need a slower shutter speed, then.

For fuzzy "frames," leave aperture open, focus sharply on subject.

Avoid shooting through closed side windows. They may have "waves" in them. The same for extreme sides of the front, wrap-around windshield.

Don't leave your camera in the glove or trunk compartment or on the shelf by the rear window. Heat can damage the lens and ruin film.

If you stop to take a picture, pull off the road. Don't creep along a busy highway, looking for something scenic to shoot from the car. You may be a photographer, but you're a driver first of all — so observe the rules of safe driving.

What's in the bag? A loaf of bread — broken up to last longer. Father is the photographer — with mother and baby brother well back behind him. For this is a highlight of a "camping out" holiday, so carefully planned that expenditures didn't exceed the sum of money set aside for it.

The budget of the Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources at Ottawa covers a number of departmental branches. Among these are National Parks, Water Resources, Forestry, and Northern Administration and Lands. His expenditures involve millions of dollars.

Money for all departments of government comes through the Minister of Finance who gets it largely in taxes from Canadians such as you. When more money is spent than is collected in taxes, government must borrow from you . . . or else create new money. The creation of new money is one factor that leads to inflation . . . which means your dollar buys less and less.

The government has been spending more than you have been paying in taxes. To narrow the gap between income and expenditures, new taxes have been imposed.

The next step should be to reduce expenditures, or at least hold the line. Undertaking new commitments — adding new welfare or other services — will only make it that much more difficult to pay our way. Tell your M.P. at Ottawa that since you are trying to save, you expect government to do the same.

You also help when you save more by means of life insurance, savings deposits, and the purchase of government bonds. Your savings help to create a SOUND dollar; and this, in turn, helps to create job security for you and more jobs for other Canadians.

A SOUND DOLLAR MEANS A BETTER LIFE FOR YOU

A PUBLIC SERVICE MESSAGE FROM THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

Nation-Wide Car-Inspection Programs

(This is one of a series of 10 articles compiled under the direction of the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company, and is offered to this newspaper as a public service to its readers.—The Editor)

By
RUDOLPH F. KING
Registrar of Motor Vehicles
Chairman, Massachusetts
Highway Safety Committee

Every state and province should have a periodic motor vehicle inspection law. Experts constantly tell us and our records show that the states using this safety regulation have the lowest number of accidents caused by defective equipment. We must recognize the importance of maintaining motor vehicles in safe mechanical condition when operated upon the public ways. No airline would knowingly allow a plane to take off if it were defective; no railroad would knowingly run a passenger train in any way defective; and yet there are those who are not too concerned that thousands of motor vehicles upon our highways have defective equipment and are being driven day after day on congested highways, a menace to life and limb.

If we are to reduce traffic accidents and deaths on the highways of this country, every area authority must have periodic motor vehicle inspection. We encourage people to visit in our respective states, and thousands do so, travelling by automobile. They should be allowed to travel only in cars that are mechanically safe.

The equipment section in a motor vehicle department is one of the most important units. Among the many and varied functions of the equipment section should be motor vehicle inspection. The inspection program should be divided into two important parts; first, the school bus inspection which guarantees to a great extent the safety of our children, that is, those children who use motor vehicle transportation to and from school; and, second, the semi-annual general inspection of all motor vehicles that protects the public as a whole.

All school buses should be inspected at least every other month during the school year by properly trained and authorized motor vehicle equipment inspectors. The safety of our children is the most important single subject we can talk about, and there should be no disregard of proper regulations for their protection.

A vehicle found with defective equipment should be taken off the road at once, or the owner given a limited time in which to put it in safe condition, depending on just what defects have been uncovered and how serious they may be.

There should also be a requirement that second-hand motor vehicles purchased between inspection periods be inspected within a given number of days after registration.

Inspection of equipment of motor vehicles is made by two different systems, state-owned inspection stations, and privately-owned state-controlled inspection stations. The value of these systems could be argued for days and possibly we would never come to a solution satisfactory to everyone. Regardless of the system used, every state should adopt one of them.

The importance of vehicle inspection has too often been overlooked. However, those states which have made effective use of vehicle inspection as a safety tool offer testimony to the fact that under appropriate administrative guidance such a program can be a major contribution to the economic well being of its citizens.

Approximately one out of every three cars checked in a recent nation-wide sampling of vehicle condition was found to be in need of maintenance attention to one or more parts affecting safe operation. Of the 10 items "Safety-Checked," brakes, tires, and lights stand out as parts most frequently in need of service attention.

The findings of inspection vary in detail checked; however, in 1954 Colorado reported defects in 19.8% of vehicles inspected. New Hampshire reported 44.8% and Pennsylvania reported 53.1%. In New Jersey, after 19 years of motor vehicle inspections, approximately 40% of vehicles are rejected on their first appearance for the first inspection. In 30% of these rejections, the defect could have been discovered by the driver in advance.

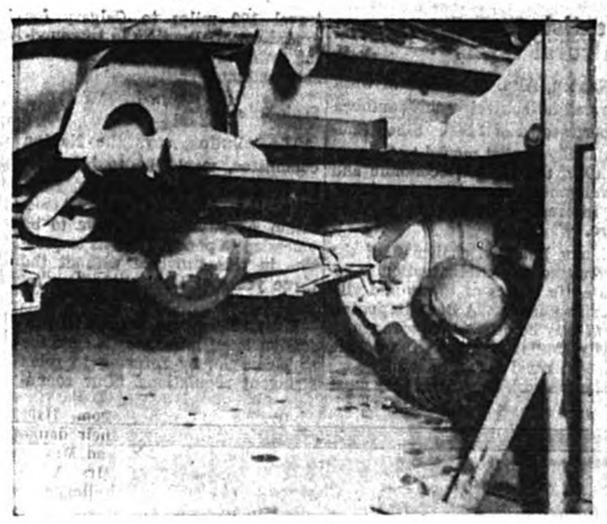

In Massachusetts where periodic motor vehicle inspections are held in April and October, it is significant that with more than one and one-half million motor vehicles registered, there were slightly less than 1200 violators who were cited for non-compliance with the law after the April inspection and but 537 violators following the October inspection. This is concrete proof that the motoring public will respond and cooperate when the law is properly administered.

It is worthy of note that on a national average, about 6 per cent of all vehicles involved in accidents had defective equipment, while in Massachusetts where we have compulsory inspection, less than one per cent of automobiles involved in accidents had defective equipment — proving the need and value of having cars "serviced for safety" periodically.

The next, and final article in this series, "... That We Become a Nation of Better Drivers," is written by Burton W. Marsh, Director, Traffic Engineering & Safety Department.

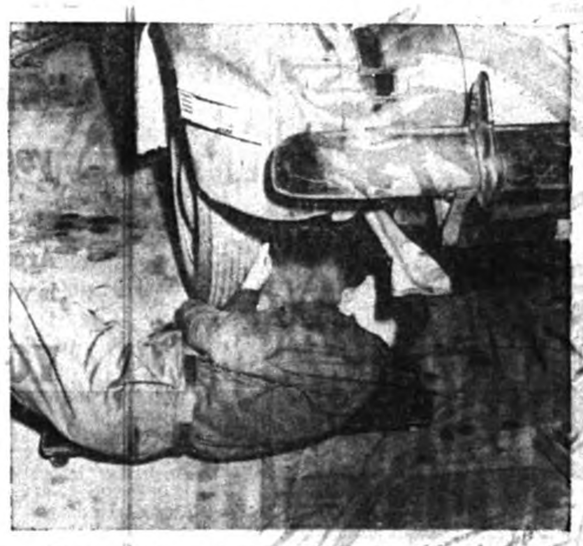

How safe are your headlights? Inspection programs tell you.

Lives depend upon your brakes. Are they kept mechanically safe?

A perfectly functioning windshield wiper helps to see you safely through a storm.

Semi-annual authorized inspection protects the motoring public.

A vehicle with defective equipment should be taken off the road.

Brakes, tires, lights are parts frequently in need of service.

Moose Jaw finds marine fossils

Moose Jaw, Sask. (CP) — Residents of this central Saskatchewan city are fossil-hunting in their backyards, following the discovery of two ammonite fossils.

The ammonite was a marine animal possessing a chambered shell. It is an extinct relative of the modern squid and octopus. The ammonites disappeared from the seas about the same time dinosaurs were becoming extinct on land.

The rounded, horned creatures lived from 70 to 100 million years ago, when figs grew in Alaska and tropical swamps covered most of what is now Saskatchewan.

An ammonite of the straight variety was unearthed last spring, and the most recent discovery was made about three blocks distant. John Lupul was digging in his basement when he uncovered the fist-sized fossil.

It was identified by Bruce McCorquordale of the Saskatchewan Museum of Natural History as a member of a less common coiled species.

Mr. McCorquordale said discoveries from the crustacean period are fairly common in the Regina plains and southern Saskatchewan. This strata lies just below surface glacial deposits left later.

It DOES matter which Oil Burner you buy!
If you're in the market for an oil burner, there are dozens for you to choose from. They all look very much alike. They all burn oil. Some are pretty efficient, others less so. But, unless you're an engineer, there's no way for you to decide which burner is best for your needs, except by insisting on one made by a reputable, long-established manufacturer. Like Smart's, for example. We recommend Smart's series "A" oil burners because when we sell one we know that the customer is going to be satisfied with the deal, for a long time. If that seems to you to be a good reason for buying a Smart's oil burner, let us show you the complete range, and tell you all about them.

Dept. of Agriculture experts visit U.S.

Ottawa — A group of senior Department of Agriculture officials have begun a two weeks' tour of sections of the United States to examine and report on U.S. rural development programs.

The tour stems from a recommendation in July of the special Senate Committee on Land-Use, which was concerned with problems of the low-income farmer in Canada.

Flying from Washington, D.C., to Kentucky, the Canadian experts will visit Wisconsin, to be in Minnesota September 23 and in Michigan on the 26th, returning to Ottawa September 29.

The group will view demonstration projects in these states, the basic aim of which is to help raise the income levels of operators of small farms. United States Department of Agriculture officials are acting as guides, and have cooperated fully in the development of the program. State College officials are arranging for transportation of the Canadian delegation.

Dentists scarce — in rural towns

Nanton, Alta. (CP) — Dental work is a painful subject in this southern Alberta town of 1,200. Since Nanton's only dentist moved to Calgary in 1957, the Nanton economic and development committee has failed to interest a dentist in settling here.

James Laidlaw, chairman of the committee, says the situation is repeated in scores of towns and villages in Canada. A dental appointment may be difficult to arrange in a city, but it is almost impossible in some rural areas, he said.

Nanton residents claim they must travel 100 miles to Calgary for dental work. Dentists in surrounding towns are too busy to take outside patients.

Seek Solution

The solution, says the Nanton committee, would be to bring 25 or 50 dentists from Britain. However, the Alberta Dental Association Act would first have to be amended to permit dentists to practice in this province without the three years of local study now required.

Mr. Laidlaw says the dental profession itself is responsible for the shortage, by refusing to relax stringent regulations. "Our committee feels this shortage has been created."

The Alberta Dental Association replies that it has the least stringent requirements for obtaining a license of any province or state. However, Alberta dentists aren't prepared to lower their standards.

Nanton's problem was carried to the provincial department of economic affairs, which inquired in Britain whether dentists were interested in coming to Alberta. All replied that they couldn't consider attending university here for three years before going into the business.

The Nanton committee says it won't drop the question until a solution is found. "We cannot afford to stand still in this matter," says Mr. Laidlaw.

Sewage now problem in Winnipeg waters

Winnipeg (CP) — The name of this city had its origin in the Indian name for the lake 40 miles north, meaning "muddy waters," and today the muddy waters are found right in Winnipeg.

Pollution from sewage in the Red and Assiniboine Rivers in Winnipeg has reached the doubtful stage, according to a recent count.

N. S. Bubbis, general manager of the Greater Winnipeg sanitary district, says: "This is the time for decision; we must have some answers and a plan."

These are mild statements compared to those of the Greater Winnipeg investigating committee, which has termed the waste of the waterways "sheer folly" and "urges river pollution problems be tackled on a metropolitan basis."

The dumping of waste into rivers grows as new industries and areas are developed.

It has been estimated that a modern sewerage program for the metropolitan area would cost $14,000,000. On a household basis this means the annual sewer rental charge would be about $24 compared with the present $4.84.

Many officials believe the solution is in a sewer construction program connecting with processing plants to remove all the sewage from the tributary flow.

Eyesight saved by safety goggles

"My safety goggles saved my eyesight and, believe me, I'm thankful I was wearing them."

With these words, George Pasco, Brownsburg C-I-L, joined the privileged members of the Wise Owl Club — people who have had their eyes saved because they were wearing safety eye protection.

George's mishap occurred in the tool shop department while he was working with a grinder. The grinding wheel suddenly shattered and pieces of the wheel flew against the right lens of his goggles. Although George had a "shiner" for a few days, his eye was saved.

The idea of the Wise Owl Club originated from an organization called the "Caterpillar Club" in which membership was restricted to fliers who saved their lives by using parachutes. Identification of members was by means of a small, gold badge, shaped like a caterpillar.

Wise Owl

After the war an employee of the American Car and Foundry Company thought that this idea might be adapted to industry. Members of the club would be industrial workers whose eyesight had been saved by wearing eye protection.

Subsequently the Wise Owl Club was sponsored by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Members of the club received a badge shaped like an owl, traditional symbol of wisdom.

Window and sign blackout to show lighting deficiencies on Main Street

A number of projects of interest to the town public were discussed at a directors' meeting of the Lachute Chamber of Commerce. President Adhémar Cuerrier occupied the chair.

The question of water filtration will be aired at the October meeting; and the idea of a commuter train has been definitely abandoned, the C.P.R. having turned down the request as impractical.

Main Street lighting has been under study for some time past, and the directors were unanimous in their determination to push this project. The lighting of the Memorial Park is also due for particular study. . . . As regards the shopping section, the Chamber is requesting all storekeepers to turn off their illuminated signs and window lights for an experimental period — Saturday, October 3, from 6 to 9 p.m. — with the idea of demonstrating the need for better lighting on this thoroughfare.

Public transportation was also discussed — the Chamber of Commerce having agreed to meet the cost of a municipal permit for the operator who applied for the franchise. An official inauguration will mark the start of this local bus service.

A request has been directed to the Highways Department to set a reduced speed limit through the Whisseltown settlement on Route No. 8.

New flagpoles will be purchased by the Chamber for the council room in the Town Hall, to replace those now holding the flags and to improve the general appearance. This gesture towards the civic council was suggested by Donat Saulnier.

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham will be kept informed on the affairs and projects of the Chamber of Commerce.

Piano duo for first concert — makes music 'fun'

Bill and Pat Medley, duo-pianists, are appearing at the Lachute High School October 15 in the first of this season's Community Concerts here. Last season this couple made a new world's record in piano recital tours — playing in 119 cities, in every part of the United States from Maine, Long Island, and the Florida Keys to 20 cities in California, also in Washington, Oregon, and several cities in Ontario and New Brunswick.

They strive to make great music "fun" for everybody, with friendliness, charm, musical abilities, and and endless desire for perfection.

Some writers call them "great artists" and "extraordinary talent" with "flair". Others describe the joys of their people, from "unalloyed pleasure", "spellbound" and "richly satisfying", to "big chords ringing in their ears and happy little notes dancing ahead."

Luboshutz and Nemenoff, with whom they coach, praise this "natural ensemble" of the handsome young Southerners. Many claimed their TV show was the most popular program in the South. They were guest artists at the Hot Springs National Federation of Music Clubs convention, and the Sigma Alpha Ioton Golden Anniversary Chicago convention.

Lachute Community Concerts directors are confident that all members and subscribers will acclaim this program as a successful opener to the season's series.

Critical injuries in mishap with two motorcycles

Four persons were taken to the Hotel Dieu at St. Jerome early Saturday evening, following a two-motorcycle accident on Route 29, near the Porter farm at St. Andrews East. In critical condition Tuesday was Miss Noella Harding, 15, of Brownsburg, who sustained a probable fracture of the skull and other injuries. Miss Astrid Eclus, 15, also of Brownsburg, was being treated for serious injuries to the left leg.

The accident occurred around 8 p.m. Saturday when the two motorcycles, which were following one another, went out of control on a curve and into a pile of rocks and stumps on the far side of the ditch. The vehicles were driven by Robert Audette, 17, and Maurice Daigneault, 23, both of Valleyfield; neither driver was seriously injured.

The accident was investigated by Traffic Officers Lawrence Cruise, Gerard Loyer and Paul Perrier.

Impaired driving

Lucien Beaudin, 27, of Ste. Therese, was sentenced to a fine of $125 plus costs, his driver's license being suspended for a six-month period, when he appeared before Judge Omer Coté on a charge of driving while his ability was impaired. The charge was laid by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen following a recent accident.

Teachers hold annual convention next week

On Thursday and Friday, October 8-9, the High School of Montreal will be the scene of the 95th annual convention of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers. Over 4,000 teachers, principals and educationalists from all parts of the province will participate in this well-planned program. The general public are cordially invited to attend many of the meetings.

The convention will be opened unofficially on Wednesday evening at Verdun High School, when a group of talented students under the direction of Mr. Eugene Jousse (formerly of Lachute) will present "Iphigenia in Tauris". Mr. Jousse, in the past, has won praise of the critics for his productions.

Miss Patricia Maybury, principal of Ahuntsic School, Montreal, and president of the P.A.P.T., will address the first session Thursday morning on "How Professional Are We?" The Thursday evening public meeting will hear Dr. William Cornog, superintendent of the New Trier Township High School, at Winnetka, Ill. Dr. Cornog speaks on "The Role of the Humanities Today".

The John Rennie High School of Pointe Claire - Beaconsfield has adopted subject promotion this year, and there will be interviews on the pros and cons of this new idea to the Quebec educational system.

Some 30 sectional programs are designed to give teachers practical guidance for the year's work. For example, one workshop has been specially prepared to answer the questions of beginning teachers, and another will cover pressing problems of primary grades. Other difficulties in both elementary and secondary grades are being dealt with in demonstration lessons, panel discussions, and lectures by experts.

The annual business meeting of the P.A.P.T. will include discussion on a revised "Guide to Professional Conduct", increased emphasis on public relations, raising minimum standards of teacher certification, and other matters.

New valuation roll studied, reduced and homologated

Revisions adopted and long-discussed valuation accepted by Town Council

Lachute's new "scientific valuation roll" was homologated at 12.15 a.m. Tuesday following a lengthy session of Council Monday evening held under the chairmanship of Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon. Ald. Stanley Holt was absent from the special meeting, which was attended by about a dozen interested ratepayers.

The new roll shows a taxable valuation of $12,292,335 as compared to $7,229,575, which was the 1958 figure. Complaints were aired by a number of persons present and adjustments recommended by the valuating firm of Begin, Charland & Valiquette, represented at the meeting by Mr. Charland. (The above figure is prior to any adjustment of the roll.) Reductions in valuations ranged from a couple of hundred dollars to $8,500 in one case and $7,500 in another. There were several reductions in the vicinity of one, two and three thousand dollars.

Prior to the valuations being homologated, Mayor McGibbon stated he felt the roll had been well examined and checked, adding it was the general feeling of Council that it was too high, and he recommended a total reduction of from 15 to 25 per cent of the roll.

A motion was proposed by Ald. Stanley Church, seconded by Ald. Gerard Lefebvre, and unanimously passed, reading: "This Council, after having studied and examined the projected valuation roll and studied the complaints thereon, is of the opinion that such valuation, according to local and neighboring standards, should be uniformly reduced by 20 per cent of the whole, and homologated in accordance with the revisions recommended by the valuators" — after-which the meeting was adjourned.

200-Name petition by teen-agers; Legion dances resume, rules cited

Canadian Legion and Auxiliary members, at a well-attended meeting held last week in the Legion Hall, decided to resume the Friday night dances for teen-agers on October 2. This will be the third consecutive year for this community service project, and a 200-name petition from French and English-speaking young people of Lachute and district is ample testimony of the popularity that these Friday night hops have attained. The Branch was a little slow to announce the commencing date for these dances, until all plans were completed, and this delay resulted in the spontaneous petition, above mentioned.

Chaired by Com. Doug. Ogilvie, the group assembled gave assurance that this Branch activity would be even more successful than in past years.

Teams have been selected as follows to supervise the dancing and the refreshment counters:

C. L. Duncan (captain), G. McNair, R. A. Giles, S. Bradshaw, Mrs. S. Bradshaw, Mrs. D. Ogilvie, D. Legault.

J. Martel (captain), A Phillips, B. A. Jenkins, R. Thorburn, Mrs. R. Thorburn, Mrs. W. Bradshaw, C. Demerse.

A. Gauley (captain), D. Ogilvie, R. Noble, K. Kettyle, Mrs. K. Kettyle, Mrs. June Skinner, R. MacLean.

F. Maidens (captain) Mrs. J. Duncan, Mrs. M. Lavis, F. Pring, R. Paulsen, D. Kettyle, C. Graham, Mrs. C. Graham.

V. Elliott (captain), C. Martel, J. Coney, W. Starnes, R. Holmes, T. Smith, Mrs. T. Smith.

It was agreed that any member of a team unable to attend would be required to provide a replacement.

For the information of those who anticipate joining "Club 70," and also for the parents concerned, the Legion Branch asks only that a few minor rules be observed:

(1) An application must be completed and signed by the parent or guardian.

(2) Membership is limited to those between the ages of 13 and 19, inclusive, and costs $1 for the season (to help defray cost of records and cleaning up).

(3) A new metal identification badge will be issued to each member and must be shown before entering the hall. Any member not having a badge will be fined 25 cents for entry, but may be required to show it before entry to any Friday night dance thereafter.

(4) Smoking by teen-agers will not be tolerated in the Hall.

(5) Any teen-ager who smells of liquor, or with liquor on their person, will be refused entry to the Legion Memorial Hall.

(6) Juveniles may not enter the Branch clubroom.

(7) Jeans, slacks, leather jackets, outdoor clothing, snow boots, etc., will not be permitted on the dance floor. Members should be properly dressed at all times.

(8) Hours for dancing will be from 8 to 11.30 p.m.

The Committee hopes to provide special attractions from time to time during the coming season.

This effort is important to the welfare of the younger members of our community, and those adults who give up their Friday evenings to make it a success deserve much credit.

Blind Institute appeal in B'burg

At a recent meeting of the Brownsburg financial committee of the C.N.I.B., it was decided to conduct a campaign to commence Monday, September 28. This year the canvass is under the joint direction of Mrs. C. L. Stephens and Mrs. W. Richardson. The volunteer workers for Brownsburg are — Mr. and Mrs. B. Bourne, Mr. Hector Mason, Mr. Kenneth Ball, Mrs. Gordon Abercrombie, Mrs. Ross Keatley, Mrs. Kenneth Murdoch, Mrs. Thos. Hall, Mrs. Theo. Zimmer, Mrs. Eugene Hebert, Mr. William Mann, Mrs. Douglas Dixon, Mrs. S. Bradshaw, Mrs. E. Bazinet and Mrs. R. Goldthorpe.

The Institute sincerely hopes that this year's campaign will be as successful as the one held in 1958. The total amount subscribed last year for Brownsburg was $840 and the objective for this year will be $850.

Any residents not called upon, are asked kindly to contact one of the canvassers, or the financial chairman.

Death of infant

Richard Boyd, two-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Trenton Boyd, 264 Bethany Road, St. Jerusalem, was found dead in his crib early Tuesday morning by his father — death being attributed to internal strangulation, by the district coroner, Dr. Jules Lafleur, who stated that the infant had choked on his milk feeding.

According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated, the baby was fed at 10 p.m. and again when he awoke at two a.m. When Mr. Boyd awakened around eight a.m. Tuesday, he discovered the child had died during the night.

Two caught while making off with parked taxi

Two Calumet men, Augustin Leveille, 23, and Gerard Robillard, 21, were charged with the theft of a taxi early Monday morning, later being released on bail, pending their hearing in St. Jerome Court.

The incident occurred the previous evening in Grenville, when the two entered a taxi owned by Roy Nixon, and finding the keys in the ignition, took off. The owner was standing in the immediate vicinity and, seeing his automobile leaving, followed in another car. One of the culprits jumped and ran into the bush, Mr. Nixon catching the other in the car. Police Chief Laurent Davidson of Grenville apprehended the second member and turned both over to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who laid charges.

Appointed Co'y vice-president

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of J. C. Wilson Ltd., Mr. R. M. (Bob) Cairns, manager of the local plant for several years past, was appointed vice-president and general manager of the company — which is now subsidiary to Price Bros. Co. Ltd.

Affairs of Catholic playground at Brownsburg

The Brownsburg (Loisirs) playground committee ended its fiscal year recently and elected officers — with Larry Presseault as president, Roger Martel vice-president, Omer Carrière secretary and Maurice Grondin treasurer.

The treasurer's report showed expenditures of $278.84 for repairs and $83.46 for upkeep of the swimming pool at Bouchard School; lifeguards' salaries $540; schoolchildren's supper $140.46 — totalling $1,042.76.

Mr. Presseault reviewed the affairs of this group since its formation in July 1958. He envisioned a recreation centre complete with swimming pool and sports facilities for all ages, on a site convenient to both east and west side residents, as a future objective. The C-I-L has ample land on the limits of Brownsburg, and it was a matter of getting together between the Loisirs and the Company officials. It is hoped this will be arranged and results forthcoming, so that some announcement will be issued within reasonable time — upon which, the Loisirs will explore means of financing the project.

Mr. Presseault suggested that the municipality should have provided for the purchase of recreation space long ago; but this having been overlooked, the investment today would be proportionately higher. According to town-planning standards today, a community of 4,000 residents should have a playground site of three acres.

It was intimated that, perhaps before very long, it would be necessary to demolish the outdoor swimming pool at the Bouchard School in order to make way for extension of the school building.

Interfered with police officer

Wm. Duford, a 44-year-old Ste. Adele resident, was sentenced to a fine of $25 plus costs, when convicted of interfering with a police officer in the function of his duties. The incident occurred following an automobile accident in the northern section of Argenteuil County.

.22 bullet pierces youth's lung

Russell Woodbury, a 16-year-old Grenville youth, is recovering from a .22 calibre bullet wound, received Saturday while he and several friends were target practising and the ancient-model gun accidentally discharged — according to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen who investigated.

The victim and Claude Forget, 19, were sitting near one another and in passing the gun, it discharged, the bullet passing through Woodbury's left arm and into his lung. The bullet was later removed, and the boy is in satisfactory condition.

Argenteuil Teachers' Association held constructive session at Arundel, Que.

Arundel Consolidated School was the scene of the first meeting of the Argenteuil Teachers' Association for the current year.

Following a delicious dinner, served in the school auditorium by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Arundel United Church, a lively business meeting was held. Mr. Robert Bailly, chairman of the Athletic Committee, gave instructions regarding the Track Meet to be held at the Brownsburg Picnic Grounds on Saturday afternoon, October 3.

A modest accumulation of funds prompted the meeting to ratify a proposal of the Executive that a committee of three be appointed to work out a plan for a yearly Student Bursary.

On a motion of Mr. F. H. J. Royal, principal of Lachute High School, the meeting agreed, after animated discussion, that a protest on the authorization of a new General Mathematics Text for Grade VIII be forwarded to the Executive of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers.

A report on the P.A.P.T. executive meetings of June 6 and September 19 was presented by Mr. G. King Amos, principal of Brownsburg High School and P.A.P.T. Director, representing the Argenteuil and Laurentian local associations.

After a short recess, a public meeting reconvened to hear an address by Mr. Gordon Heslam, former principal of the High School of Montreal and presently Field Secretary of the P.A.P.T. In his address, entitled "The Role of the School in Education", Mr. Heslam first observed that education has definitely become "everybody's business." He noted the interest taken by people in all walks of life, one result of which has been the convening of numerous conferences to study educational problems in the hope of finding solutions. He reminded the audience of several books published recently by authors who are dissatisfied with present methods of teaching, and of the many experiments which are being carried out by schools. Of particular interest in this province at present, is "subject promotion" in High School, a departure from the regular system of Grades, which does not require a student to repeat a subject in which he has passed. This method of promotion is now under experiment in several large High Schools in the province.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. John Macaulay, of the Arundel staff, and thanked by Mr. Royal.

Province awards 125 scholarships

By Leo LeBlanc

Quebec (C) — Premier Paul Sauvé made public a list of 125 young men and women who have been awarded Provincial Government scholarships for study abroad. The scholarships have a value as high as $2,000. Thirty-five are Music and Theatrical Arts scholarships, 32 Engineering, 18 Medical, 13 Economics and Commercial Sciences, 12 Law, 8 Sociology and Pedagogy, and 7 Graphic and Applied Arts.

In Quebec City Omer-Julos Desaulniers, Superintendent of Public Education, said a record 9,976 future teachers are registered in the province's Normal Schools this year. Last year's registration was 9,623.

Theft of auto

Two Lachute youths were placed on a year's probation, the elder one being fined an additional $25 plus costs, after pleading guilty to two separate charges of taking a car without the owner's permission.

Carillon Dam preliminaries under way, Quebec Hydro releases first statement

To the immense quantity of lumber stockpiled near the present Carillon Dam on both sides of the Ottawa River, considerable machinery has been added in the last few weeks, and there is plenty of evidence that the long-mooted "Carillon project" is now definitely rolling.

Locally it is known that riverside residents and farmers, from the west side of Carillon Village to a point near Cushing, have received official notice that their land will be required. It is noted this week that one large-scale farmer near the immediate scene of operations (Mr. F. W. Allmen, Carillon) is holding an auction sale of his entire livestock and equipment. It is also known that two farms have been taken over near St. Andrews as a source of ballast fill.

To the many evidences of local activity, Quebec Hydro has given confirmation in its first public statement on the project. The cover of the Hydro journal "Entre Nous" (for September, its last issue) features an aerial photo with plan of the new dam and canal superimposed. Following is the first official news release.

Hydro-Quebec has initiated preliminary construction on its 840,000-horsepower Carillon generating plant. It is estimated that this new source of power will be producing towards the end of 1962.

Although the second half of the twin Bersimis development, on the North Shore of the St. Lawrence, will be operating shortly, and the third section of the Beauharnois project is nearing completion, increased demands for electricity have dictated such steps as Carillon to satisfy future demands.

This new Carillon project will be a peak plant during the winter and a run-of-the-river station in summer. It will contain 14 generator groups of 60,000 horsepower apiece, benefitting from a 62-foot head.

The Ottawa River is 2,200 feet wide at the site of the proposed plant, and Hydro-Quebec plans the construction of a building more than 1,300 feet long, 65 feet wide and 55 feet high. The 785-foot spillway will incorporate 12 gates of 50-foot length and 32-foot width, permitting passage of 380,000 cubic feet of water per second.

Two dykes of 30-foot average height will be constructed, the one on the north side of the river to be 16,000 feet long, or slightly more than three miles, and its companion on the Ontario side to be some 2,407 feet in length. These dykes will be a combination of water tight clay and gravel.

Present indications are that the construction will require some 850,000 cubic yards of concrete and 1,500,000 cubic yards of clay, gravel etc.

Following the example set for the Beauharnois and Bersimis developments, work on the Carillon project will be pushed through regardless of season, and it is anticipated that the payroll will vary between 1,500 and 1,800 employees. Work will be started on the south shore, with a coffer dam to permit realization of the spillway. Subsequently, the power house will be built near the north shore.

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

R. O. (Dick) MacLean, Commander of District 12.

Highlight of last week's activities around Branch 70 was the inter-Branch visits on Saturday. During the afternoon the "Horse Shoe Pitch" was the order of the day. With two regulation pits set up ingeniously on the paved parking lot by the chairman of sports and entertainment, Com. Fred Pring, some 16 teams were in close competition for the honors. In particularly good trim were two Brownsburg (Branch 71) teams composed of Coms. Irwin Martin, John Duncan, Don Graham and Bob Sugden. In fact, Don and Bob were finalists against the Lachute team of Coms. P. St. Laurent and R. Paulsen, whom they edged out by the bare two points required, after an exciting round. All participants and hecklers looking on thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and the Brownsburg boys wanted assurance of a return match, which will be duly arranged.

When evening fell, there arrived two busloads of Legion comrades from Remembrance Branch 75 and Maisonneuve Branch 66, respectively. Together with their wives and friends, and couples from the Lachute area, a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all. Endowed with a lot of singing and dancing talent, the visitors provided a full round of entertainment, with encouragement from M.C. Doug Ogilvie. The evening came to a close all too quickly for most of the visitors, and it was the wish of the visiting branch presidents, as well as host Tom Smith, that these inter-branch visits will continue at frequent intervals during the coming season.

Com. Pring has also announced that a further inter-branch activity will include monthly Cribbage Tournaments with Brownsburg No. 71, to be held in the first Wednesday of each month. These tournaments will alternate between the two branches. To enter, or for information, contact Coms. D. Ogilvie or F. Pring, Lachute, or Keith Lowe, Brownsburg.

Congratulations to Ste. Agathe-des-Monts Branch 9, on the official opening of their new meeting hall recently. Prime Minister Diefenbaker, accompanied by Mrs. Diefenbaker, cut the ribbon after being presented to some 120 guests, among whom were Com. and Mrs.

Hole-in-One is feature at curlers' golf tournament

The Lachute Curling Club held its third annual golf tournament at the local course on Wednesday, September 23. Sixty-five members and guests participated in the competition. Among the visitors were curlers from Buckingham, Maxville, Montebello, Ottawa, Outremont and Sherbrooke.

In the absence of Mr. Lorne R. Duncan, president of the Curling Club, Mr. Leopold Carrière, vice-president, presided over the gathering of 76 who met for dinner and the presentation of prizes. Mr. Carrière extended thanks to all who had contributed to the increasing popularity of this annual golf tournament. In particular, he congratulated the golf committee on a well organized event; he welcomed the visitors and thanked the outside curling clubs for their fine representation, expressed gratitude to the Golf Club and its staff for their splendid co-operation, and conveyed sincere appreciation to the numerous donors of prizes.

The mayor, Mr. Jas. W. McGibbon, presented Mr. J. S. Drew with the trophy which is annually awarded to the Lachute Curling Club member with the lowest net score. Mr. Louis de Breyne won the low gross prize. The visitor's low net prize went to W. Gallagher, of Outremont. Art St. Onge, of Sherbrooke, and Don Westphal, of Buckingham, tied for visitor's low gross, with scores of 79.

One of the highlights of the tournament was a hole-in-one at the thirteenth, by N. F. Towsey, a local curler, who was warmly applauded when he received a special prize for this outstanding feat.

Thanks to a few civic-minded citizens, the Lachute Lions Club are completing their plans and preparations to resume winter operations on their skating rink by November 1 — weather permitting. Messrs. Jim and Colin McOuat are again lending the spacious piece of land east of the Lowe Bros. Dairy on which the rink is built, while the Lowe Bros. will provide again for the housing of the restaurant, dressing and waiting rooms, as well as housing and operating the ice-making machinery. Thanks of the Lions Club are again extended to these good friends.

The 1959-60 Rink Governing Body will be composed of the following members of the Lions Club:

President, Lion Horace Lamarche; 1st vice-pres., Lion Herbert Graves; 2nd vice-pres., Lion Clifford Lowe; secretary, Lion K. W. Clarke; treasurer, Lion Donald M. Hay; technical advisor, Lion Herbert Rigg.

This body has appointed members to fulfill the following functions:

Manager of Rink — Jacques Bourgoing, well known sports enthusiast of this town.

Construction and Maintenance Committee — Miville Trickey, chairman;

Administration Committee — L. J. Dumais, chairman;

Publicity — Phil Tremblay, chairman;

Activities Committee — Yves Gratton.

Needless to say, with such a group of members, activities will be energetically conducted throughout the long winter season, for the benefit of our younger population particularly. In fact, long skating periods are being reserved; hockey leagues are already being formed among the Pee-Wees, Bantams and Juniors; broom-ball leagues are in formation; numerous variety programs, including masquarades, carnivals, etc., are being planned; fancy skating lessons will be available, etc.

All this in accordance with the Lachute Lions Club's ideal, viz:

To provide healthy and interesting entertainment for the young folk.

To help them develop a spirit of competition, honesty and fair play, under proper guidance and supervision.

It is hoped the Lachute population will assist in keeping our children off the streets and away from other dangers next winter season, by sending them to the Lions Rink as soon as it is ready for operation.

Watch for the column every week to keep you informed on various rink activities.

SPORTS CAMERA

By Jim Bastable,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Howls of anguish, disgust and self-reproach are as much a part of the racetrack as horses. Usually they come from the two-buck bettor.

But a horseman will tell you the biggest gamble in racing is at the yearlings sales ring, not the parimutuel windows. And this is the time of year for these sales.

Some horses have looked mighty fancy in the auction ring, commanded high prices and turned out to be busts on the track.

The highest price ever paid for a thoroughbred at auction in the United States was the $87,000 Mrs. M. E. Lunn shelled out for Rise 'N Shine three years ago. The colt won only four races and $16,965.

Great Success

Mrs. Josephine Bay Paul paid $63,000 for Idun, a record for a yearling filly in Lexington, Ky., also in 1956. Idun was voted champion two-year-old filly of 1957 and the best three-year-old filly last season. Her winnings: $369,407.

A horse called Clem was picked up by Mrs. Adele L. Rand in Kentucky four years ago for $8,500 and has earned over $530,000.

Then there was an oat-burner named Pericles. He brought $63,000 as a yearling but never won a race.

If you're interested in purchasing a four-legged star here are a few tips, supplied by successful racing man Leslie B. Coombs III of the U.S.:

"There are four important considerations. They are breeding, soundness, conformation and action.

"You should carefully check the breeding of the yearling, and be sure you are getting the best. If you don't know bloodlines, then consult somebody who does. Your best bet are yearlings from families who are producing stakes winners. I like the progeny of proven stallions out of the young mares."

Expert View

Coombs, who organized the syndicate which bought Nashua for $1,251,200 adds that in conformation a buyer should pay attention to the head, jaw, distance between the eyes, shoulder, hocks, cannon bones, the pastern, calves, hips, knees, foot and the back. He stresses soundness and the action of the horse in walking.

"I like one with the swing of a country boy going to school. If a horse walks sloppily, he's likely to be sloppy in other ways."

Now, if all this is confusing you'd better stick to betting. Then again, maybe it would be best to stay at home.

Sometimes mistakes pay off. Ernest Webb, a clerk at the $5 mutuel at Woodbine track in Toronto made a happy one recently.

Webb's error was in punching out a ticket on Sir Saugeen, a 60-to-1 shot in the eighth race. It wasn't the ticket the buyer had ordered so Webb was stuck with it.

Sir Saugeen won. Webb was $310 richer.

ALCAN AGRICULTURAL LIMESTONE IS THE ANSWER

Money spent on good seed, fertilizer and labour can be wasted on strongly acid soil. Its value is proved. Soils treated with this high grade limestone yield larger and better quality crops.

ALCAN AGRICULTURAL LIMESTONE has an exceptionally high neutralizing value, making it a grand soil conditioner. It also has an important residual effect: because of the variation in particle size, it aerates the soil and improves microbial growth and drainage. So you continue to get its benefits through many years.

MAGNESIA, too! Alcan Agricultural Limestone also has magnesia. It gives you a bonus, because magnesia is recognized as essential food for potatoes, tobacco, alfalfa and many other crops.

FREE SOIL ANALYSIS—ALCAN is ready to test your soil FREE of charge, so you can apply the right amount of limestone it requires and avoid overliming. (If your soil does NOT need limestone, our soil analysis report will tell you.) Use the handy coupon below to get full information and the forms to fill out to arrange for this FREE analysis.

Spoiling the hunt

THE EVE OF another hunting season: the prospect of a hunter getting shot to death or badly wounded — a hunter becoming lost for a day or a week or for good — a hunter bagging more than his limit.

All of these things will happen this year, as they did last year, despite the advice of the game wardens, conservationists and good sportsmen.

Some hunter crashing through the bush will aim and fire at a noise or a movement where he can see nothing. Someone will die while climbing a fence, or leaving a car or boat with a loaded rifle or shotgun. Probably, too, a loaded gun will be left around where there are children.

Some novice, improperly shod and wearing not enough or the wrong kind of clothing, will wander into unfamiliar terrain without so much as a compass or waterproof matches, and without the barest knowledge of how to handle himself if he does become lost or injured while alone.

A pessimist's outlook? . . . Perhaps, but these are the things that spoil the hunt for those sportsmen who know what they're about, know and respect their firearms, and who realize that Canada's wildlife in all forms is not among the natural resources that automatically renew themselves.

There will always be the hunter who, having filled his deer ticket with a mediocre doe, will shoot again when confronted with an easy crack at a big buck; and who, once he has bagged his limit of ducks, will yield to the temptation of hundreds of others whistling overhead. Why not? he argues. There seems to be plenty.

His definition of plenty will be a far cry from the journals of the early settlers. Historian Bernard DeVoto, for example, writes of trader Alexander Henry's trip nearly 200 years ago along the Red River, the Assiniboine and the Saskatchewan:

"Spring and fall such flights of ducks, geese and swans as no one will ever see again darkened the sky. Pelicans and cormorants, the eagles which the Indians trapped, and many popular species of water and land birds, stayed all year.

"Grouse and quail were as numerous as the fleas you picked up from the grass or the ticks that covered your body with welts.

"There were even more bears. Grizzlies came hurtling out of the bush on their inexplicable manic spring, but the regional infestation was black bears, which were everywhere."

Accompanied by such pictures as these, the often-overlooked generalities of the conservation authorities come to life. It is the type of picture that is remembered by those hunters who know what they're about, and the sort of thing that should be drummed into those who don't.

CANADA'S 1958 LOSS in fires amounted to over $115-million.

This represents only the cost in property and, at that, excludes Forest Fire losses. The cost in lives is equally high with some 529 persons, 217 of them children, having died in fires during 1958.

Although it may be deeply buried in the past, a little tug at the memory will rekindle the sense of horror and anger you felt the last time you saw, heard or read about a fire which took lives, particularly the lives of children.

Do you not remember the tragic holocaust of a school fire in Chicago last year, in which almost one hundred children perished? Many of them were found still sitting at their little desks.

It could have been your school and your children! . . . Where will it happen this year?

Fire Prevention Week is being observed next week, October 4 - 10, inclusive. The Board Insurance Companies, through the co-operation of Canadian newspapers, radio and television stations, banks, railways, fire departments, commerce and industry, are spreading the gospel of Fire Prevention throughout the country.

These messages are directed at you, the potential victim of fire. Listen! — Learn! — Remember!

Most fires (over 75%) are preventable. In other words, they are caused by carelessness! People, as a rule, are seldom careless about big or important things; it is the "little" things that they are inclined to gloss over quickly or forget, and it is these "little" things that cause so many fires.

For example: Running a lamp cord under a carpet where, unseen, it can become worn and frayed to the point of shortcircuiting. . . . Replacing a blown 15-ampere fuse with one of a higher rating, and thus inviting disaster from overheated wiring. . . . Not bothering to have the furnace checked before starting it up for the winter, because it "looks" alright. . . . Buying and using electrical and other appliances that do not bear the Underwriters' Laboratories label. . . . Permitting rubbish to accumulate in attics or basements. . . .

These "little" things cause more than their share of fires, fires that must all be basically charged to carelessness!

How much longer can we afford to be careless with lives and property? Canada's per capita fire loss record is among the worst in the world; and it won't improve until we and you, as citizens, practise the basic rules of Fire Prevention on a year-round basis.

Cows are fussy

YOU DON'T usually associate manicuring with dairy farming, but take it from an authority who knows: you'll have happier cows if you trim your fingernails.

This is some of the sage advice given to the farmers of Missouri by the American Dairy Association. On the assumption that cows of the United States and Canada have the same likes and dislikes, the advice should be just as applicable here as across the border.

The American Dairy Association distributed a pamphlet at the Missouri State Fair entitled "Mr. Moo Reports."

Possibly with the interests of the less-knowledgable city folk at heart, the pamphlet advised that if a cow stares at you stare right back at her.

It came up with the juicy bit of knowledge that: "The cow does not give the milk. You take it away from her."

That established, the milker should: "Use both hands. The method which makes you an expert is to squeeze one hand, then the other. Either start on the two front spigots, or work the diagonal method. A cow has four spigots located toward the rear and low."

With that basic information provided, the Association then got into the subject of fingernails. — Cut them, its pamphlet said. "Nothing unnerves a cow so much as a set of long, sharp nails. . .

"She shows her displeasure by (a) stepping into the milkpail; (b) stepping on your left foot; (c) clonking you soundly in the neck with her tail; (d) hoisting you, stool, pail and parts of the barn, into the air with her back feet."

In these days of mechanical milkers, the need for a manicure probably is not what it used to be, but it's good to know that someone still has the interests of the cows at heart.

Music in the barns has been recommended for some years for its soothing effects. Now, with trimmed fingernails, life on the farm is really looking up.

Viewpoints and perspectives

HOMES FOR THE AGED. — Announcement was made in a news article recently that the Quebec Government is planning to build a number of homes for the aged in various parts of the Province. This announcement is to be lauded as such homes are needed, and badly needed.

A comfortable home for aged people is a necessity in almost every community, but of course it would not be possible to erect one in every town and village. However, if a home could be erected in a central part of an area to serve that area, it would be more convenient for all concerned.

We put it this way. Most old people do not want to be too far from their relatives and friends, they like to have them call in and see them as often as possible. Oftentimes, homes are located at some distance and the old people do not see their sons and daughters only at long intervals. This makes them unhappy and discontented.

Favorable comment on Canadian flag designed by CNR agent at Grenville

In view of a recommendation from the Young Liberal Federation's convention in Ottawa last week, urging the adoption of a distinctive Canadian flag featuring the Maple Leaf but "without the Fleur-de-Lis or the Union Jack" — the following story is of timely, if contentious, interest.

in The Montreal Star

A new design for a distinctive Canadian flag, the work of a Grenville, Que., railway stationmaster, is emerging as a possible contender if a selection is ever made.

It was flown for the first time in this province just recently from the flagstaff of Notre Dame College, across from St. Joseph's Oratory. Previously, it was exhibited in Ontario and the western provinces where it won some acclaim, according to its designer, Florian Lagacé, 33-year-old bachelor station agent for the CNR.

The railroader, commonly known as "flag ace" to his railway friends, who have joined his first initial and his surname to create the title, has been conducting a one-man nation-wide campaign to promote his flag.

Thus far many important personages, including Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Hon. Ellen Fairclough, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration and M. J. Coldwell, former CCF leader, have expressed their interest in the design. Mr. Coldwell said he did not recall "seeing anything which would be as striking, suitable or appropriate" as Lagacé's flag.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Ensign is being used generally as Canada's official flag throughout Canada on such places at city halls, court houses and in parades.

The station agent has been working on the idea of a new flag for Canada since 1945 when the issue was raised in newspapers and other media.

The main stumbling block toward a new flag which Lagacé encountered was the spread between English and French thinking. With this in mind, he has developed what he hopes is a compromise embodying both cultures and including other nationalities.

According to Lagacé, the colors, red, white and blue are colors which can be found in many flags in the world. The scarlet red is for the British, blue for the British and French, and white for the other nationalities. The Maple Leaf had additional meaning. For instance, the top point of the leaf is for Canada, pointing ever upward and towards the sky. The Maritime provinces are attached to the next four points. Ontario and Quebec, the two largest and richest provinces, are signified by the two largest points, on either side of the leaf. Manitoba and Alberta flank Ontario on the left while British Columbia and Saskatchewan flank Quebec. The districts of Keetawin, McKenzie and Franklin, which constitute the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, complete the points of the leaf.

The green leaf represents more than the Irish element in Canada, says Lagacé, who contends that green is the natural color for this country. It also illustrates the young and vigorous nature of Canada.

During the last 14 years, designing, travelling and promoting his flag, and answering correspondence, have taken up much more of Lagacé's leisure time. Summarizing, Lagacé reports that people who have seen it have been more than polite. "They liked it very much," he added.

Some years ago a leading CCF-er wrote a book called "Left Turn, Canada!" It was a well-written if poorly reasoned book, but Canada wasn't paying much attention. Even the CCF party, instead of turning left, began to veer a shade or two to the right.

It doesn't seem more than a couple of years ago that they ditched the old Regina Manifesto.

It was only yesterday that they began to state openly that nationalization, one of their pet theories, must also be ditched except when drastic measures are called for.

In other words, the order of the day for the CCF and their friends has been a decided "Right Turn!"

This is all to the good. Nationalization, like most socialist schemes, won't work well either in agriculture or industry. Farmers manage their farms as well as they can; industrialists run their industries to the best of their ability. Both are motivated by a desire for profit and an eagerness to serve. Neither farmers nor industrialists are angels, perhaps, but one will get you ten that they are as good as or better than politicians and bureaucrats, morally and intellectually, on any scale with which you care to weigh them.

Indeed, there is quite a body of opinion holding that political socialism is immoral. This does not imply that individual followers of a political socialist party are personally immoral, but that they have been misled into attempting to further a fine cause by shady methods.

To share with one's neighbor, for example, is a fine and highly moral idea. It loses a good deal of its moral tone, however, if one's notion of sharing with one's neighbor involves stealing those of his possessions which are in excess of one's own. Socialism, as a political force, makes no bones about its intention of doing that very thing!

Political socialists, it seems to me, can also be charged with preaching hatred. They seem determined to set class against class.

The new party, if it is to succeed, ought to appeal to higher motives. Otherwise, it will fail to get a large following of common-sense Canadians who simply want a country that is well and honestly governed. Canadians are not likely to elect many candidates on a platform that involves hatred, seizure of property, or anything that goes against the moral grain.

B of M triumphs on advertising

Montreal — The Bank of Montreal ranks first among the nine Canadian chartered banks and second among the 15,000 banks on the North American continent in a survey of bank advertising conducted by Vincent Edwards & Co., New York, and set forth in the annual "Bank Ad-Views" review of financial advertising in Canada and the United States.

The First National Bank of Minneapolis placed first among all North American banks.

With the exception of two years, the B of M has been rated first among Canadian banks in the "Bank Ad-Views" survey for the past 14 years and has received a "Socrates Award" each year.

Twice during the same period, the Bank of Montreal rated first among all North American banks; in 1946 and 1954 it received the "Socrates High Award of the Year."

Another award in the same field, but confined to Canada, was the recent selection of the B of M's special judging committee of the Association of Canadian Advertisers, who studied several hundred entries in choosing "Ten of the Best Ads of 1958". The B of M's ad was the only banking piece of the ten national advertisements chosen.

What is Dual Representation?

This is a term that was applied to a practice existing in Canada for several years after Confederation in 1867, by which members of the Legislatures of Ontario and Quebec could also hold seats in the Dominion House of Commons. A number of prominent men exercised this privilege, but in 1872 Ontario passed legislation making it impossible for members of Parliament to sit at the same time in the provincial legislature. Two years later Quebec outlawed dual representation here by passing similar legislation.

Which Governor General was born in Italy?

Frederick Temple Blackwood, 1st Marquess of Dufferin and Ava, was Governor General of Canada from 1872 until 1878. He was born on June 21, 1826, in Florence, Italy, the son of Price Blackwood, 4th Baron Dufferin in the Irish peerage, and Selina Sheridan, a granddaughter of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, famous author of The School for Scandal. Before becoming Canada's third Governor General, Lord Dufferin had served as lord-in-waiting to Queen Victoria, under secretary for India, under secretary for war and chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. While in Canada he dealt with the problems of the newly united provinces and displayed tact and judgment in handling the Pacific Scandal crisis of 1873. The Quebec City Council followed his suggestion in 1875 in preserving the ancient city walls that are unique in North America; Dufferin Terrace was named in his honor. He also proposed the creation of national parks at Niagara Falls by the U.S. and Canadian governments, a suggestion that was later adopted. After leaving Canada, Lord Dufferin served as ambassador to Russia, Turkey, Italy and France and was Viceroy of India from 1884 to 1888. He died in Ireland in 1902.

Who bequeathed 10,000 Coins to a Museum?

Robert Wallace McLachlan, antiquarian and numismatist, who was born in Montreal in 1845 and lived there until his death in 1926. A coin-collector from boyhood, McLachlan became the leading Canadian authority on numismatics and was a founder and curator of the Chateau de Ramezay Museum, to which he bequeathed his collection of more than 10,000 coins. He was a governor and honorary curator of the Numismatic and Antiquarian Society of Montreal and edited the society's Journal for many years.

Where is Rupert's Land?

The area formerly designated as Rupert's Land has been since 1869 a part of Canada and the term is no longer used for the vast region that, in its widest interpretation, included all the territories watered by rivers flowing into Hudson Bay. This area was granted by Charles II in 1670 to the Hudson's Bay Company and it took its name from the fact that Prince Rupert, cousin of Charles II, was the first governor of the company. The name still persists as that of an ecclesiastical province of the Anglican Church of Canada.

What Cereal Grain makes Best Use of Poor Soil?

Rye makes better use of dry, poor and sandy soil than any other cereal grain. It is also drought-resistant. Rye is used as feed for livestock, for flour production and for the manufacture of whisky. In Canada its primary use is for feed, but about 300,000 bushels are milled annually into flour for bread-making and about 750,000 bushels are used for distilling purposes. Production of rye in Canada has varied from 8,000,000 to 28,000,000 bushels a year since the Second World War.

(Reprint from 1951)

The leaves are softly falling upon the forest floor. Only a few are down as yet, but each day more and more.

The leaves that fell in bygone years now feed the living trees, and they in turn will shed their leaves with every Autumn breeze.

And so it is with human lives — when people in their prime look after those of tender years until they reach a time, when they in turn become mature with young ones of their own — the old die off as years slip by — those old friends we have known.

The plants that flourished in the fields now sere and withered lie. Their seeds are cast, and in the Spring new plants will multiply.

There's wisdom in all Nature's ways, perpetuating lives. We in our homes, birds in their nests, and bees within their hives.

'Twas ever thus in Nature's Book. The old, before they're gone, will pass the torch to other hands so they can carry on.

No matter where you look you'll see Old Age give way to Youth. And that's the way it has to be. It's tough — but it's the truth.

— Uncle Walt

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Marville, France — It takes work and worry to keep Canada's air force ready for action.

The officers in charge of Canada's 12 jet fighter squadrons in NATO Europe must concern themselves with details like sweeping runways clear of stones, trimming down over-plump stomachs to size.

Every such detail is important — more important than a civilian might think.

The stones? They are cleared away with a giant vacuum brush, because a loose object can cause havoc if it is sucked into a jet engine.

The stomachs? The food is so good that in spite of a good program of sport, some people gain weight. Orders have gone out that officers and men must pare themselves down to the standard weight for their age and stature.

Fat boys — the air force contends — can't work or fight with full efficiency.

Every now and then a group of flyers is taken for a long ride, turned loose and told to act as though they have baled out in enemy territory, and must find their way home without being caught.

Police and soldiers hunt them down ruthlessly. If the pursuers catch the escapees, they put them through tough questioning in an attempt to extract information.

"They can do anything but make a physical attack on us," a jet pilot said. "They can make us stand up in the mud with no clothes on, in a cold wind. They can put a bucket over a man's head and beat it with sticks. They can use nearly all the tricks an enemy would use.

"This is taken so seriously that a man who cracks under the questioning is in danger of being sent home."

A phrase you often hear among the men of the RCAF is "they don't fool around." It's true. And it applies just as much to the survival and escape exercises as to the alarms that send scores of jet planes whining into the sky minutes after a suspected hostile aircraft crosses the West German border.

At Zweibrucken, Germany, I met some Sabre jet pilots in their "Zulu hangar" — the place where on-duty crews and their aircraft stand by 24 hours a day, the starters plugged into the planes, pilot's headsets slung over the rims of cockpits.

Seconds after their loud-speaker proclaims a "hot scramble" — suspected hostile aircraft — they are leaping into their planes faster than firemen sliding down the brass pole.

Meanwhile, ground crews are starting the planes. Pilots close the canopies over their heads, and whistle down the runway. There is no delay. Jet engines do not require to be warmed up.

The pilots in the Zulu hangar, wore their G-suits — full length garments resembling overalls, which automatically fill with air and press inward to prevent the blood from flying out to the extremities and causing greyouts or blackouts — partial or complete loss of consciousness.

"Hold your nose," a pilot warned. "The G-suits soak up perspiration, and they get pretty high. They'll almost climb in and out of an aircraft by themselves."

"I can't smell anything," I said, and in fact I couldn't. All the pilots were cheerful, polite and full of jokes. But I got a feeling that they were continuously listening with one ear for a signal while talking to me — that they were braced for an instant getaway, like runners at the starting line.

I also noticed that they were able to do several things at once. They picked up questions from two separate conversations and answered them coherently.

In fact they are required to have ability of this kind. One of their numerous entry tests demands that they carry out a number of simultaneous actions, in the style of rubbing the stomach while patting the head.

From here, a jet plane can reach the Iron Curtain in about the time it takes a man on the ground to smoke a king-sized cigarette. But a 60-mile buffer zone, inside which Allied pilots do not generally go, cushions the sensitive border.

Golden wedding celebration at Morin Heights

(Our District Correspondent)

Morin Heights — On Saturday evening upwards of 400 friends and relatives gathered at the Alpino Lodge in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Black, of Mille Isles, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on September 22. Among those present were their eight children — Mrs. Roy Rickaby (Barbara), Percy, Allen and Earl, all of Montreal, and Freddie, Willis, Clifford and John, of Mille Isles, also 16 grandchildren, and a nephew, Albert Noble and Mrs. Noble, of Ottawa. The head table was decorated with vases of autumn leaves and a wedding cake. The bride wore a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses and the groom had a yellow carnation on his lapel. They were presented with a television from their immediate family, and many other beautiful gifts from friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Black were married in the Lakefield Anglican Church in 1909. Miss Edith Noble was bridesmaid for her cousin. The best man was Mr. Wm. Black, brother of the groom, and the Rev. Wm. Garner officiated.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Dreamily watching the miles slip by while the train sneaked its way across the prairies recently, I found myself recalling with a grin my first encounter with a roomette, not so many moons ago.

On that occasion, when I bought my sleeping accommodation for an overnight jaunt to Ottawa, I thought "roomette" sounded like the answer to a feminine need for privacy. What more could any woman want than a powder room and bedroom combined? I watched the night conductor quickly rip off my ticket and marched toward "Car 3002, No. 16".

"Step right this way m'am," said the porter, relieving me of my train case and giving me a welcome grin.

There it was, a designer's inspiration, my own room for the night! The porter showed me the handle that released the bed, then the closet, washing facilities and other conveniences and then left me with the admonition, "Don't strain yourself lady, if the bed she don't come down easy, you ring for me."

I was absolutely fascinated by the fact I hadn't needed a shoe horn to get me settled, but the heavy steel door with its patent lock gave me some misgivings. They might need a can opener to pry me out.

I soon discovered there is a routine that must be observed in making preparations for retiring in a roomette. First I locked the door, then found I was trapped between the door and the bed I had let down half way. Up she went again and I opened the door and again released the bed. I had it all nicely settled with the safety lock in place, when I discovered my train case was underneath.

I felt like a fool, I can tell you, as I peeked out of my door to see if anyone were in the aisle, then crawled under the bed to retrieve the bag. Once more aboard the mattress, I prepared to disrobe. Heavens! The cubby-hole where the wash basin had a home was half way under the bed-frame. Out I crawled again into the aisle and gave the bed a huge heave. What a sigh of relief I let out; how proud I was of my muscles. But where was my train case? Why, folded up in the bed of course. By this time the bed and I were on wrestling terms, but it knew I had all its little tricks figured out. I took my balancing stance again, pulled down the bed, grabbed the train case, pushed the bed up again and there I was right in the middle of the nicest little powder room you ever saw.

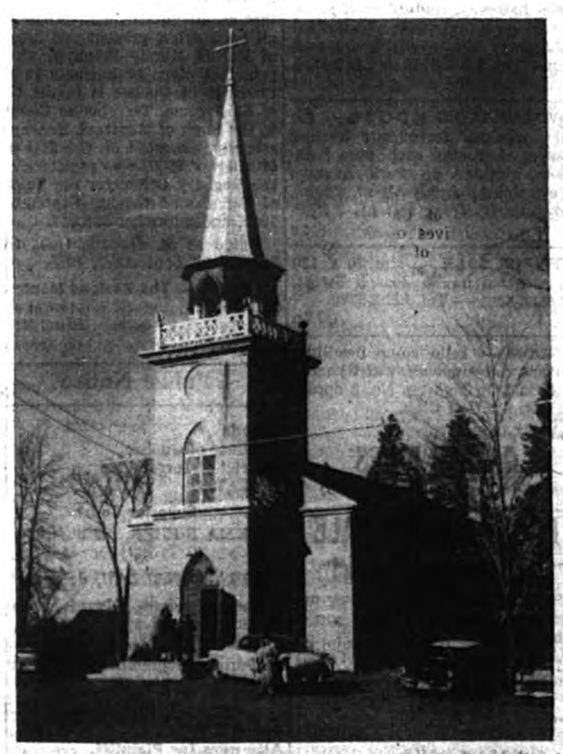

When I had removed my make-up, washed my sticky hands and put my shoes in the locker for a neat shine by the porter, I flexed my muscles again and down came the bed, as co-operative as a folding sun-cot. Beside me in a neat little portion of the daytime seat, which the bed did not hog, were my slippers and dressing gown. I would be properly costumed for the morning stint of opening the door, raising the bed and preparing to dress for a graceful exit from Car 3002.

Roomettes of course, have been whizzing for years now, over the tracks that cross this continent. While I had been jockeying a typewriter chair before by vagabonding began, the railroad had been right in step with this modern age, but it has taken me a little while to catch up with it. Now that I have the technique down pat, my repeated dates with a roomette are the happy experiences they were planned to be by railroad engineers.

I recall now how pleasant it was on that earlier trip to open my eyes and see the sun reflected in the windows of the factory close to the tracks in Perth. I knew I had plenty of time to lie there lazily and contemplate my sojourn in Ottawa. It wasn't so long ago, that a woman had to be up at the crack of dawn when travelling, if she wanted to wash her teeth before the train pulled into a station, or not have to struggle like a contortionist to get into her clothes. Bless the brain that invented roomettes.

THANKS

Mrs. C. B. Deady and Mrs. W. E. Hammond wish to express thanks to the many friends who came to their assistance in their recent chimney fire.

Two Bishops at St. Andrews Sunday for Christ Church 140th anniversary

Historic Christ Church at St. Andrews, the pioneer Anglican church of the Ottawa Valley, will celebrate its 140th anniversary on Sunday, October 4.

The church building was commenced in 1819 and the first services, conducted by the Rev. Joseph Abbott, were held in it the fall of that year. The church was completed about 1826 and was consecrated by Bishop Stewart of Quebec on October 1, 1829.

On Sunday next, at the 11 a.m. service of Thanksgiving, the Rt. Rev. John Dixon, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., L.L.D., Bishop of Montreal will deliver the sermon. At the 7.30 evening service, the guest preacher will be the Rt. Rev. Ernest S. Reed, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., Bishop of Ottawa.

When Christ Church celebrated its centenary in 1919, Bishop Farthing of Montreal and Bishop Roper of Ottawa were present. It is therefore fitting that, 40 years later, their successors should take part in these anniversary services.

With 140 years' record behind it, this church is unique in that many direct descendants of the original members of 1819 are still living in the parish, and will take part in the celebration. It is also unique insofar as it is the first church in date of consecration in what is now the Diocese of Montreal.

The Rev. C. R. Lang, L.Th., R.D., priest in charge, with the Rev. G. T. Spriggs, honorary assistant, will welcome the many visitors, assisted by Kenneth R. Stevenson, Rector's Warden, and Ben A. Howell, People's Warden.

AWE AND WONDERMENT

A survey of some teen-agers revealed that pathetically few of them had ever felt awe or wonder!

Do you share with your children or other youngsters, appreciation of the God-given beauties of the sunsets and stars, of flowers, of storms, of recurring seasons, of new little lives?

Do children learn with you the awe that comes from worship, in the home, the church, on mountaintops and in woodlands, and from the great music and services of the church? Or have you yourself forgotten or never learned how to feel the wonder and awe that make us keep silence before God?

APPRECIATION

I wish to thank my many friends for their visits, flowers, gifts and cards, and kindness shown during my stay in the Providence Hospital, also to the nurses, sisters and Dr. F. W. FitzGerald.

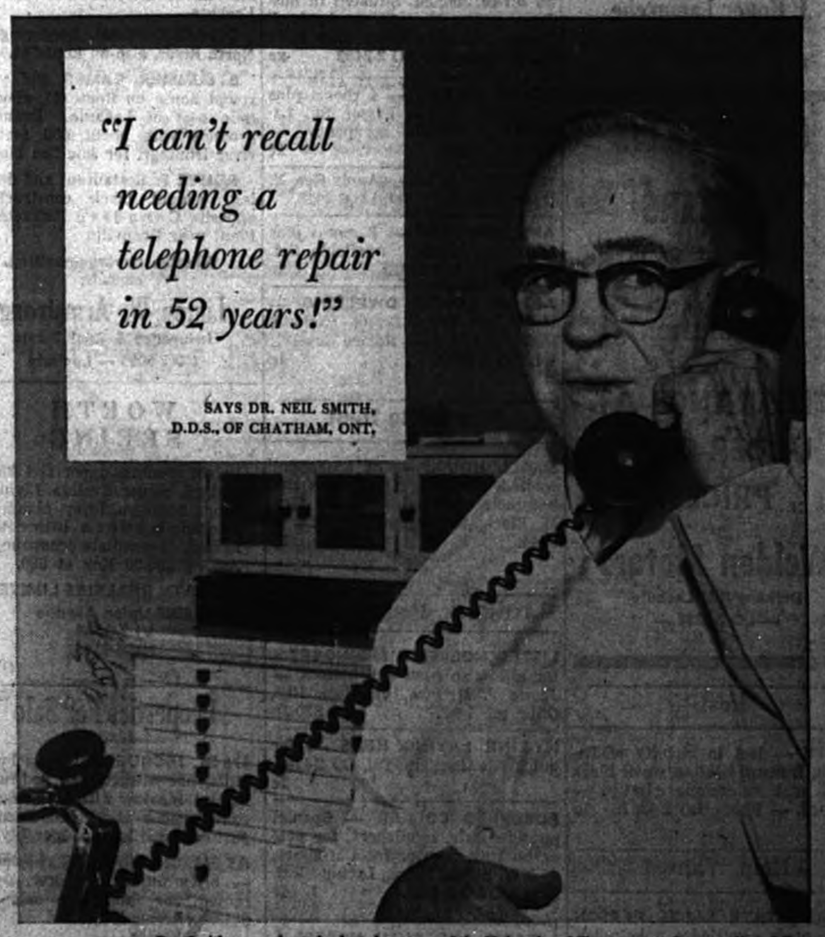

— (Signed) Edith Robinson

"Since 1906, I've had different phones as they developed better and better ones — and not once do I remember calling a repairman!"

Many other long-time users have to think hard to remember when they last had to have their telephone fixed. In this modern "Age of the Repairman", such dependability means a great deal.

Of course, like any mechanical device, your telephone or the equipment that makes it work may require repairing some day. But you can be sure it will be done quickly and efficiently — and you'll have no repair bill to pay.

When you stop to consider the pleasure and convenience you enjoy with never an extra repair expense, you may well agree that the value you get for your telephone dollar is truly unique.

Children's home quarrels

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

What do you do about the quarrels between the children in your home?

Suppression of any disagreement by force may seem to "work" in the present. An apparent harmony may seem to reign, but at the same time, tension, perhaps resentment and antagonism may develop between members of the household. Taking the long view, and thinking of the importance of the family living as a preparation for life at school and in the outside world, suppressing all quarrels certainly does not "work"!

A certain amount of conflict is healthy in a family. It is a necessary part of the clash of interests when brothers and sisters are growing up together. Children need to learn, not the avoiding of all discussion, but peaceful and fair ways of settling their differences. Mothers soon discover the wisdom of non-interference in brother-sister squabbles unless one child is likely to be harmed or property is in danger of being destroyed.

Of course, a home where there is continual bickering is a most unpleasant place — and not a suitable atmosphere for growing children. Sons and daughters learn more from example than by direct teaching. If mother and father get along agreeably with few "tiffs" the children are likely to follow their lead. Parents cannot be too careful to have a "united front" and not take sides in children's quarrels against each other.

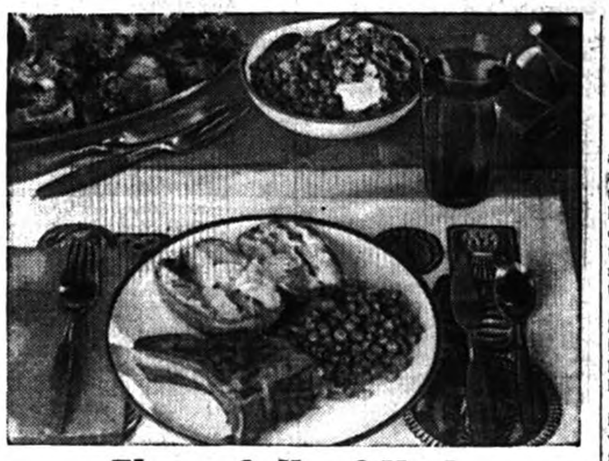

Mother and father will likely realize that there are certain situations which seem to provoke fights between their children. The ownership of toys, the possession of clothes, following a schedule, the relationship with other people, are all "hot spots."

Parents can avoid many minor wars between their children if certain rules are recognized and followed by all of the members of the family. Each child should have his own playthings, and another child has no right to touch them without the owner's permission. Respect for ownership of articles of clothing is also important. The younger child should not always be clothed in "hand-me-downs". He needs new shoes, a new coat or dress or suit occasionally to encourage pride in his own appearance.

In the family routine, the younger child must accept the rule that an earlier bed time for him than for an older brother or sister is quite fair. Each boy or girl has a right to some play time with his own special chums without a smaller brother or sister tagging along.

It is also essential to family harmony for each child to feel secure of his own place in his father's and mother's affection. If parents can plan to spend some leisure or some work time with each child each day, this is one of the surest ways to reduce the number of brother-sister squabbles. Jealousy is the hidden underlying reason for many children's quarrels.

If a child is certain of his parents' love he feels no necessity to fight with a brother or a sister to prove his importance in the family circle. The "chip on the shoulder", the angry, argumentive child often can be led to more peaceful ways, not by punishment but by more affectionate attention from mother and dad. Love is the best medium for the fever of fighting!

Flavorfully filled

Pork is in plentiful supply this year in Canada, and thus a good menu choice for all budgets. Here is a recipe for Braised Stuffed Pork Chops that is different, delicious and easy to make. The chops are split to the bone to form a pocket and filled with a flavorful stuffing made from soft bread crumbs and such seasonings as sage, parsley and onion. They are then braised in strong coffee . . . an ingredient which can often work wonders for the flavor of a meat dish. Serve them with baked potatoes, a hot vegetable and perhaps a green salad.

Braised Stuffed Pork Chops

(Yield — 4 servings)

4 Thick pork chops, 1 cup coarse soft bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon sage, ½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate (optional), 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 slightly-beaten egg, 2 cups strong coffee, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¼ cup milk.

Have your butcher split each chop to the bone to form a pocket to hold stuffing.

Prepare bread crumbs; sprinkle with salt, pepper, sage, monosodium glutamate, if being used, onion and parsley. Combine lightly. Moisten with slightly-beaten egg. Fill pockets in chops with stuffing and fasten with string or skewers. Brown the chops on both sides in a little heated shortening; drain off any fat. Pour coffee around meat (use left-over coffee or make it up fresh — perhaps with instant coffee); sprinkle with sugar. Cover pan and simmer the chops, turning once, until completely tender — ¾ to 1 hour.

For serving, lift chops onto a heated platter and remove string or skewers. Skim fat from liquid in pan; stir in a thin paste of flour blended with milk and cook, stirring constantly, until gravy is thickened and comes to the boil. Strain over chops.

Pork hocks economical buy

(Consumer Section)

If pork hocks were as popular as drumsticks, they would be about as scarce as frogs legs, and around the same price! Fortunately for hock-heeders this is not the case, even though each pig supplies only two hocks (from his front legs) the same as each chicken supplies only two drumsticks (his only legs).

In these days of plentiful pork, hocks are one of the most economical buys at the meat counter. One pound of hocks, costing only a few pennies, will serve two people.

There's no fuss or bother to cooking pork hocks — just wash them well, cover with hot water, add a few seasonings and let simmer away until tender, 1½ to 1¾ hours. Remove from cooking liquid and serve.

For 3 pounds of hocks the Consumer section recommends 6 to 8 cups hot water, ½ cup sliced onion and 1 tablespoon each of salt and mixed pickling spice. If you use a pressure saucepan, use only 1½ cups of water and cook the hocks 30 to 35 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Allow pressure saucepan to cool slowly.

For a real good fall meal, serve pork hocks with parsley-buttered potatoes and crisp new cabbage. For extra fine flavor cook the cabbage in some of the cooking liquid drained off the hocks, allowing 10 to 12 minutes cooking time for either wedges or coarsely shredded cabbage and 4 to 5 minutes for finely shredded cabbage.

Immigrants bring new tastes and talents

Not too many years ago the cheeses normally associated with a particular country were made almost exclusively in that country. Canadians with a taste for blue cheese could choose between Danish Blue of French Roquefort. There was no domestic equivalent. Today, however, many cheesemakers are at work in Canada producing old world cheeses to satisfy the taste of a large new Canadian population and that of an ever growing native Canadian market.

Italian cookery; pizzas, Lasagna, Raviolli, has made an impact on Canadian tastes and has brought a demand for such cheese as Mozzarella and Parmesan. Many hostesses have added Canadian made Swiss, Blue, Edam and Gouda to cheese tray offerings.

That these and many more foreign-type cheeses are now made in Canada is due to the cheesemaking skills brought to Canada by many newcomers who learned their art in the countries where the cheeses originated. In the province of Ontario alone, more than fifty types of cheese are now being made.

Add to this the traditional liking for Canadian Cheddar and it's easy to see why cheese is worth promoting in October.

New potato book with 50 recipes

(Consumer Section)

A new publication, "Potatoes," is now available from the Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Prepared by the home economists of the Consumer Section, the booklet contains interesting facts and tips on the production, buying, storing, cooking and serving of potatoes. There are almost 30 tested recipes for serving potatoes as a vegetable and over 20 (among them, three provided by the Department of Fisheries) for using potatoes in economical and flavorful supper dishes and soups. Recipes for potato candy, potato stuffing and for cheese dips to serve with potato chips are also included.

Homemakers will find the recipes for supper dishes particularly useful. The ones in which pork and potatoes are combined are particularly recommended at this time. Some of these are: Potato and Pork Golden Brown Bake (using minced raw pork); Potato Pork Scallop (chops); Potato "Scotch Hot Pot" (sausages); and Potato Stew (boneless pork). Leftover cooked pork may be used in any of the recipes calling for ground or diced cooked meat, such as the following:

Eggplant Stuffed with Potatoes

3 Cups mashed potatoes, ½ pound cooked ground or diced meat (lamb, pork, beef), 4 tablespoons butter, 4 cups diced eggplant (1 large), ½ cup chopped onion (1 medium), 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, ¼ cup grated cheese.

Cut eggplant lengthwise, remove the pulp leaving the half shells intact. Dice pulp into ½" cubes. Heat butter and cook onion and diced eggplant until they are tender, about 15 minutes. Add meat, mix and combine with mashed potatoes. Season, add parsley. Turn into the eggplant shells. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°F) until browned, about 20 minutes. Six servings.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The forecast for furniture is elegance in style.

Now, more than ever before, traditional and contemporary pieces are blended to achieve the elegant trend.

Those in the furniture field say that just as high-priced Paris originals influence the fashion industry right down to budget-priced house dresses, so in furniture the expensive styles filter down the line.

This fall, the English lounge type of sofa will be featured. Luxurious fabrics are being used, with many traditional weaves being revived. Continental styles will also remain popular, with the beige and brown colors being replaced by champagne and coffee shades. One of the most popular accent colors is blue.

Pumpkin Time

With the first hint of frost thoughts turn to Thanksgiving, and with it turkey and pumpkin.

Known in old China as the "emperor of the garden", the pumpkin is the symbol of fertility, health and prosperity. . . . In Burma an ancient myth says that after the pumpkin was created, the spirits came down and one by one added new characteristics until man himself evolved.

The French, until the 18th century, honored the pumpkin at a feast in the Paris market. The largest one was crowned with tinsel, then cut up and auctioned off.

And the Indians were baking pumpkins in their campfires when the French and English settlers arrived in Canada.

Of course, no one has yet found pumpkin quite as useful as Cinderella in the fairy tale. With the help of her fairy godmother, she made a pumpkin into a golden coach.

Pumpkin Bread

Here's a recipe that's not quite that magical, but it does make two delicious loaves of pumpkin brown bread:

One pint milk; two tsps. salt; one cup water; one 20-ounce tin pumpkin; ½ cup maple syrup; ½ cup melted butter; 2½ cups cornmeal; three cups whole-wheat pastry flour, ½ cup honey and one cake fresh yeast.

Method: Dissolve yeast in ½ cup lukewarm water. Mix milk, salt, water, melted butter, honey and pumpkin together. Add the yeast mixture to the pumpkin mixture. Beat in half the flour and all the corn-meal. Add remaining flour and beat again. Cover. Let rise until double in bulk. Stir down and place in two oiled eight-inch by three-inch bread pans. Cover. Let rise until light. Bake at 375 or 400 degrees for one hour, placing a quart can of water in the oven to add to the gloss.

Frozen Foods

Should there be a power failure or a mechanical breakdown of a home freezer, the food inside will remain frozen for one or two days if the freezer is kept closed. Several pieces of dry ice scattered over the top of the food packages, will help to keep the required low temperature.

October is Cheese Month

The discovery of the method of making cheese is lost in antiquity, but it is known to have been earlier than 2,000 B.C. An old legend tells of an Arabian merchant, Kananah, about to undertake a long journey, filling his sheep's-stomach canteen with milk. After he had spent a day and a night on the road he opened the canteen and found the milk had been transformed to curds, and of liquid, only the whey remained. He ate the curds and found them good. Thus, when he told the story, others began making curds by design and the making of cheese developed.

Modern cheese making bears little resemblance to this accidental process. As a matter of fact there are many different types being made in many different ways. In Ontario alone more than 50 types are presently being made. Many of these are cheeses one normally associates with European countries and does not consider Canadian products. That they are now being made domestically is due to the presence of European cheese makers who brought their unique skills with them from many different countries. Cheddar cheese which is most familiar to Canadian palates requires all of the milk produced by about 170,000 cows each year. It takes more than 10 pounds of milk to make a pound of cheddar, which is evidence of the nutritional qualities of this fine food. This cheese finds great flavor in other countries, too. Canadian cheddar is considered the world's best and has won many awards so honoring it. It is extremely popular in England, where until recently, a dollar shortage prevented Britishers from buying as much as they would like. Canadian consumption of cheese has risen steadily over the past few years. Last year Canadians ate 6.75 pounds per capita, whereas in 1952 we accounted for only 5.82 pounds. Americans eat about one pound more cheese each year than their Canadian cousins.

Canadian farmers derive about $30,000,000 annually as their share of the money that Canadian consumers spend on cheese. They are, naturally, interested in seeing the consumption of cheese kept at a high level and sponsor the October Cheese Festival each year with a view to increasing the popularity of cheese. Through their national association, Dairy Farmers of Canada, they advertise in newspapers, women's magazines, and other media to show new ways in which the homemaker can make better meals with cheese. This activity has been at least partially responsible for the increased consumption which has been noted over the past few years.

Cheese is an important source of nutrition, a versatile and palatable food, and it plays an important role in our economic life. From any viewpoint it's good advice for Canadians to "eat more cheese".

Tips on Touring

by Carol Lane

You are as generous as the next person, and your sympathy is aroused by the sight of a lonely hitchhiker. But my hardened advice to you is: don't pick him up.

You may just be asking for trouble.

Reports indicate that two out of five thumbs raised to beg a ride have prints which are on file with the police. True, most hitchhikers don't intend to do the motorist harm, but enough criminals use this method of finding a victim to make picking up a stranger not worth the risk.

Even if the hitchhiker just wants a ride — not your money or your car — you're opening the door to trouble if you pick him up. In many cases, Good Samaritan motorists have been sued heavily by hiking passengers who have been injured in an accident. This is really adding insult to injury.

So, although you might feel that you are being hard-hearted, the safest way in the long run is don't pick up hitchhikers.

(Our District Correspondent)

Avoca — A pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Owens, of Grenville, last Thursday evening, September 24, the occasion being their 40th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Clifford Cook had given a dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. Owens and the Rev. and Mrs. P. R. Stote, and upon their arrival home, about 100 guests greeted them at the door. The couple were presented with a beautiful bouquet of red roses, a corsage and boutonnière, the gift of Mr. John Desforges, also a bouquet of 40 roses from their seven grandchildren. Mrs. Percy MacLeod played the "wedding music". Their daughter, Mrs. Nixon, presented them with a large tray loaded with cards and congratulations from their many friends — after which Mr. and Mrs. Owens thanked the gathering for this most pleasant surprise.

Mr. Thomas Arnold, who had been Mr. Owens' best man, was present for the occasion. Mrs. Johnston, of Thetford Mines, who had been bridesmaid for her sister, regretted her inability to attend.

A pleasant social evening was spent, after which delightful refreshments were served. Mr. Owens took great delight in passing around the wedding cake, which Mrs. Owens had made, thinking it was for a friend whose anniversary fell on the same date.

Among those present were their son, Mr. Russell Owens, and his wife; their daughter, Mrs. Nixon, with her husband and four children; a sister, with her daughter and son from Ottawa, and friends from other parts.

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

It is fitting, since the first summer column included a diatribe on the subject of roads, that this, the first autumn one, should pay tribute to the excellent road now completed from Hill Head to Lake Sir John on Route 30. Everybody in the district enjoys this scenic bit of road, and as for the roadbed, it is superb. We watched the gargantuan machines and the robust men toiling in the midst of what resembled the upheaval of an earthquake more than anything else, and wondered if anything passable would ever emerge. It seemed improbable, but there it unrolls, mile upon mile of firm, black hardtop on an impregnable rock bed. We feel that our local Member has an enduring monument to his endeavors. The road should be named Cottingham Drive. Only one thing is lacking, that is tables, benches and trash-cans at strategic points. We would suggest the shore of Lake Sir John, already a favorite parking spot for fishers and bathers. But for sheer picturesque value, we nominate the cutting through the rocks where the vines hang down, green curtains swaying in the wind. This is about a mile south of the Lake Sir John hill.

We said Autumn, but is it? As we write, the thermometer is edging toward 70, and yesterday afternoon was nearly 80. Down here (suburbia) everybody is grumbling. "A summer to end all summers", opines one of our friends. Polio and heart attacks vie for first place, and most people complain of being tired. There are some very queer-looking faces about —I refer to color, not features. When a tan fades, there is an in-between period when the prevailing color is lemon. As we do not tan, we escape this peculiar hue, and feel smug. Fact is, we could never see the beauty of a skin tanned to the point of resembling burned toast, and we have always held the theory than hides, tanned or otherwise, were best protected by lots of grease. Now, we have lived to see the day when doctors and cosmeticians agree with this opinion. One of the many blessings of living to maturity and beyond, is that of seeing the immutable law of cause and effect work out its havoc or blessing. We have lived (this took a mere fifteen years) to see a young lady who ate improperly, have the greatest difficulty in childbirth, and the unfortunate offspring with a bone malformation. We have seen compulsive drinkers come to a bad end, and little, whining children grow up into large, nagging women. . . . Life is fascinating.

Although we have styled ourself "Exile," we still shuttle back and forth to Sunnyacres, where the Autumn advances slowly. As of the middle of September, there was still little change in the coloring, but the cherries had fallen or been eaten, also the apples that we did not pick. We have always felt badly about the waste at the farm, but we recently read an excellent article about the blessing of waste, and were comforted. It is quite true that Nature provides abundantly, in anticipation of waste on a grand scale. We do know that our many four-footed friends enjoy the fruits at Sunnyacres. Recently, we had a meeting with two half-grown raccoons, who were ambling along our lane. So fuzzy were they, and so inconspicuous their marking, that we thought we were confronted by Peter, the cat. They were not shy, but climbed nimbly up a tree and perched to look at us. There are deer about, but they are seldom seen; the partridge are becoming scarcer, knowing full well that the season of slaughter is upon them. The mice seem to have disappeared, so that the cats bring in mostly shrews. These votive offerings we find on the door-step. Life is all around us in the mountains, but a shy, retiring life, quite unlike that of us humans who are apt to be loud, aggressive and domineering.

We are reminded of the truth of that statement by the raucous voice of the telephone, which says please would we get a speaker for a church group of four hundred. Generally, a sudden request like that paralyzes the alleged brain, but this time a remarkable lady's name was projected onto the screen of my memory all in an instant — which proves that the summer must have revived us! It was a good summer for holidaying. (The phone rings again: the daughter of the house says will we please send out a special dress for a special date 24 hours away; all this in three minutes.) As we were saying — for holidays, the summer was fun, but the little gremlins that delight in gumming things up provided the only totally wet day of the season for some friends of ours to take a drive to the mountains. First of all, and as they all do, they got lost, so arrived an hour after the appointed time; so we hurried over to the hotel near us for dinner. But then there was the long, long afternoon. It could have been deadly, especially as the company varied widely as to age and interests. For the sake of those hostesses similarly dismayed, let me record that we had a pleasant time, consisting of two walks in the rain, some apple-picking in the rain, some corn-popping at the fire on the hearth, and talk. Since the advent of TV, one has forgotten how lovely is communication between friends. It is one of the better things of life, to sit by an open fire and talk with open hearts. Then, of course, there was that other delight, food. Never underestimate the power of good food! We had fried chicken and brown rice, and a tossed salad. There were home-baked rolls, and for dessert, cantaloupe iced with cream cheese and stuffed with fruit and jello. Lovely to look at, better to eat. Meanwhile the fog was creeping in "on little cat feet", so we accompanied our friends to the cutting in the road where the drop on one side is a good twenty feet; then we returned in the mud and rain. — A very good day.

The telephone has rung twice again — I might as well give up. This time, would I like to go to hear a man speak of the difficulties confronting Church Union. No, I would not. We are only too well aware of those difficulties, and unity of purpose must come before mechanical union, otherwise there will be a repetition of the union that was not a union of thirty years ago. The telephone rings — .

Que. Legislature session to revise road safety laws

Legislation to revamp the present highway safety code will be introduced by the Provincial government at the next session of the Legislature — Quebec Transport and Communications Minister Antoine Rivard announced last week.

Noting that the present Motor Vehicles Act was enacted some time ago, Mr. Rivard said the new highway code will be "brought entirely up to date in keeping with the increase of the number of vehicles and population."

He made the announcement at the 29th annual convention of the Canadian Association of French Language Doctors, held in Montreal.

Mr. Rivard, one of the speakers dealing with the medical aspect of highway safety, said the new code would be "strictly defined" and would spell out the duties and regulations for every driver, as well as his rights and responsibilities as a user of Quebec highways.

He pointed out that the number of registered autos in the province in 1953 was 649,652 and in 1958, 1,020,608. The number would be greatly increased in 1959.

Uprooting origin and history of provincial plowing match

(Contributed by Norman Thorburn)

A request to Mr. René Trépanier, deputy minister of agriculture for Quebec, has produced some interesting information on the history of the Quebec Provincial Plowmen's Association. Following is the text of Mr. Trépanier's letter:

Dept. of Agriculture
Prov. Quebec.

Dear Mr. Thorburn:

The agricultural records relate that local plowing matches were held at Portneuf in 1892, at Ste. Adèle de Terrebonne in 1899, and at Ottawa in 1900.

However, it was not until 1921 that the first Quebec Plowmen's Association was formed under the jurisdiction of the laws of the agricultural and dairying societies.

From the records it appears that plowing matches were held before 1894, in various localities.

From the reports of the Commission of Agriculture and of Colonization, for the year 1894, we extract the following passage in the section of the Council of Agriculture:

'The agricultural societies can establish matches in parishes or counties for fall plowing. The ground used must not be less than 50 acres in extent.

'To determine the merits of each participant the judges will have to judge all the plowing done by the participants in the fall plowing.'

Plowing matches in a fixed and predetermined place were thus one of the activities of the Agricultural Societies and the Institutes. The records of these societies were not perpetuated, and thus it is difficult to make a complete review of plowing matches.

The first Plowmen's Association of Quebec organized provincial matches which were held in the following places and dates:

2nd — At St.-Eustache, Deux Montagnes, in 1922.
3rd — At Lennoxville in 1923.
4th — At Rivière-du-Loup in 1924.
5th — At Berthierville in 1925.
6th — At St. Constant de Laprairie in 1926.
7th — At Farnham in 1927.
8th — Lastly at Plessisville, in 1928.

The Provincial Plowing Matches were then discontinued.

Four years ago, the Agricultural Society of the County of Laval reinstated the plowing matches. This new organization for the last few years has held regional and provincial matches at Macdonald College, at St. Luc, County of St. Jean, and at St. Benoit.

The 1959 match will be held at Lachute on the 7th and 8th of October.

René Trépanier,
Deputy Minister of Agriculture

We Argenteuil plowmen thank Mr. René Trépanier, for his trouble in furnishing this information.

Many local people visited the Provincial Match at St. Eustache in 1922. Some took part in it.

I would like to add also that, according to Mr. Paré, our local agronomist — Mr. Leo Brown, who still works for the Ministry of Agriculture at Quebec, was one of the guiding spirits in the early days of the provincial plowing matches.

Ottawa — Deadline for receipt of applications from hog breeders concerning distribution of Lacombe stock, has been set back to October 12.

Forty breeding groups and 100 boars will be distributed on a nation-wide basis by a public draw at the Lacombe Experimental Farm on October 19. The last distribution of breeding groups, each consisting of three females and one boar, was last spring. There are now 58 private breeders of purebred Lacombes across Canada.

Volkswagen's success is world-wide. New in design, unorthodox in concept, its many unique features have won wholehearted approval in 110 countries from laymen and engineers alike.

The engine is mounted in the rear. You get better traction in snow, mud or sand. The engine is air-cooled. No water to boil, no anti-freeze to buy, no radiator to leak. Torsion bar suspension with independent springing on all four wheels. Greater comfort, safer road-holding. Just as important, maximum use of aluminum and magnesium alloys. Lighter weight, greater efficiency, more miles per gallon.

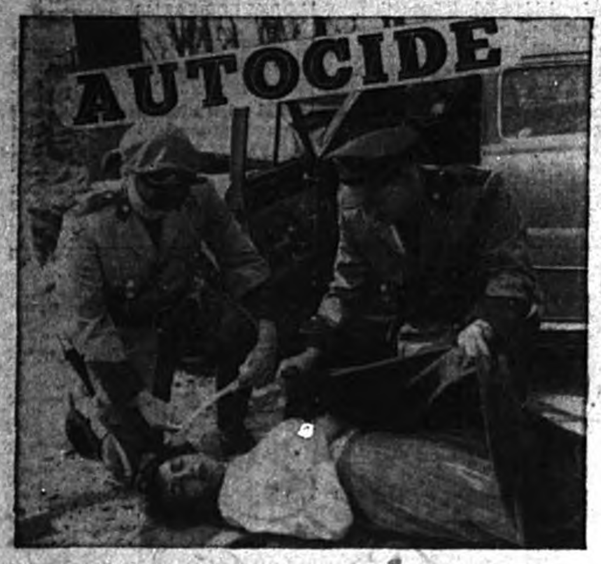

All these features were pioneered in mass-production by Volkswagen . . . proven right by millions of drivers . . . proven right for low-cost, troublefree transportation. Already some of Europe's largest manufacturers have followed Volkswagen's lead. Now American companies are also adopting these advanced engineering principles. And only recently, leading American engineers awarded to Volkswagen the coveted Sperry Award for "advancing the art of transportation."

Improvements? Yes, they are being made constantly. But the basic design is maintained and so is the quality of workmanship. The happy result, an extra-ordinary high resale value.

Volkswagen service is as good as the car itself. From coast to coast, 280 authorized Volkswagen service centres are equipped with genuine factory parts and factory-trained mechanics to give you efficient, inexpensive service . . . ...That We Become a Nation of Better Drivers'

By
BURTON W. MARSH
Director Traffic Engineering & Safety Dept., American Automobile Association

How ridiculous the term "a nation of drivers" would have seemed only a few short years ago! Yet we are rapidly becoming just that — a nation of drivers. While the number of motor vehicles zooms rapidly upwards, the rate of increase of drivers is even greater. A short decade from now we can anticipate upwards of 100 million drivers compared to some 70 million now. And these folk are going to drive — so we must anticipate large increases in vehicle-miles of traffic.

The American and Canadian way of life is undergoing very great changes — highway transportation is playing a mighty important role in the changing scene. There is a sharp trend towards urban and suburban living. The consolidated school supplants the one-room rural school and requires the largest bus fleet in the world. Work weeks are shortening, and folks are going places and doing things with new leisure.

We are great travellers — mostly by automobile — eager to see new sights, meet p e o p l e of other sections, enjoy changed horizons. Family earnings are increasing, as is our standard of living. Cities are changing — with more and more people seeking suburban homesites, gigantic outlying shopping centres with their thousands of parking spaces, drive-in theatres, restaurants, banks, and what not. Because of such changes, many more families are becoming owners of more than one car.

These are but some of the changes already going on — and many more are to come!

From the traffic and safety viewpoint — what? Well, it may surprise you, but we're doing rather well — all things considered. Do you know what several recent European visitors, studying traffic here, have said? "One of the most outstanding features which we note is the orderliness of your USA traffic!" We do not deserve too much credit — the very growth of traffic has forced greater orderliness.

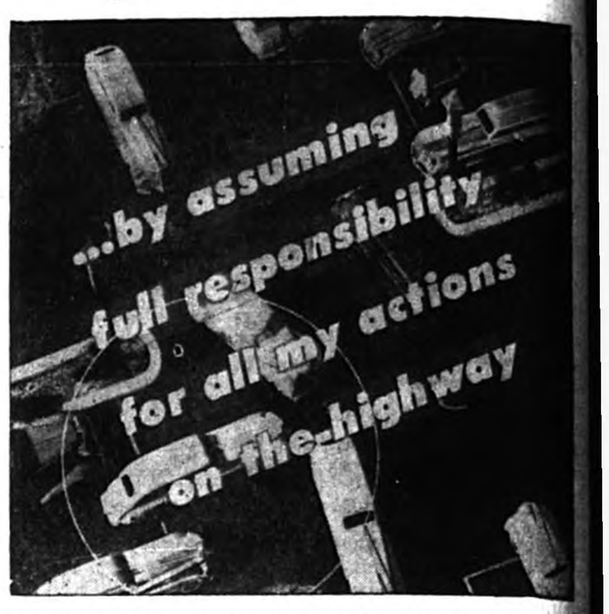

Accidents? Well, from one viewpoint, the record is really not so terrible. One fatal accident for every 18,000,000 vehicle-miles of highway travel. One injury accident for every 670,000 vehicle-miles. A study of accidents at 420 non-urban intersections in Los Angeles County showed one accident for every 2,000,000 vehicles passing through. Furthermore, consider the very large number of possibilities for a crash per vehicle-mile — the number of cars met and passed, the other cars at intersections, crowding on narrow roads, too short sight-distances, etc. The conclusion is inescapable that we drive — and walk — well enough so that there is only one serious accident to many million possibilities.

However, these figures do not mean that our accident toll is unimportant, or that we can be complacent about it. Not at all!

They do show that we are dealing with a problem gigantic in totals but considered so unlikely to occur to an individual this week or next that it is not easy to get him personally aroused as to the great need for more effective action. Yet the huge tolls, the human suffering, the billions of dollars of annual waste through traffic accidents demand more effective action. And we are especially challenged by the experience-records in many places proving that the serious accident toll can be cut in half — or better!

Our needs are critical! What we must have is a greatly-improved attack all-across-the-board. We must build better and inherently safer roads, better protective features such as islands, barriers, grade separations and cars in which likelihood of injury is greatly reduced. We shall probably come to the day when electronic devices will do much toward preventing vehicles from crashing. Yes, much must be done by engineering to produce improved physical features. However, we cannot realistically hope to bring accidents down to the irreducible minimum by physical features or devices alone. For we are also dealing with a huge social problem — and the main need is to change people and to bring up new generations of properly traffic-conditioned folk. This is an educational problem of the greatest importance.

These are not easy tasks, but they are attainable. We need better and more uniform traffic laws, uniform signs, signals and markings; better and more thorough driver licensing; re-examination programs designed to maintain good driving among licensed drivers; improved enforcement; greatly extended and improved traffic education for both youth and adults; driver education, pedestrian education, citizen and voter education. Cars must be kept in better condition.

There must be very greatly stepped-up and improved research into fundamentals, such as basic causes of accidents. There simply must be developed much improved attitudes about one's traffic responsibilities, courtesy in traffic, duties one accepts afoot or awheel, keeping one's vehicle in a safe condition, and the sound activities of our police and other public servants dealing with traffic.

In this increasingly motorized civilization which we face, every citizen needs to have a driver's point of view whether or not he is, at the moment, driving a motor vehicle. So, especially as we think of the future, with huge growths in traffic, we must realize that it is essential that we become a nation of much better drivers — better walkers too!

This we must do — can do — will do — our way of meeting and solving problems.

Says optometrists have responsibility in highway safety

"War on Highway Murder and the Responsibility of the Optometric Vision Specialist" was a subject dealt with by Dr. Edmund F. Richardson in addressing optometrists of the Laurentian and Montreal areas recently, at the Cercle Universitaire in Montreal. Dr. Richardson is Director of Study Groups for the Optometric Extension Program, a non-profit and international foundation dedicated to education and research in vision. His home is in Hollywood, California.

"It is s t r a n g e indeed," Dr. Richardson told his audience, "that a driver of a motor vehicle will give almost religious attention to the oiling, greasing and servicing of his car before taking a long trip, and then nonchalantly embark wearing a visual correction that may be as much as five, or more, years old. The most important safety feature any car has is its driver, and it is our duty as optometrists to alert the public to the fact that good vision and proper mental attitude are tremendous safety boosters on our nation's highways.

"The 'murder' rate on our roads is a national disgrace. Most collisions are not 'accidents' in the sense that they are unavoidable. Overdriving one's vision is recognized as a major cause of highway disaster. By the time the driver can see the danger, it is too late to stop the car."

Holding that clarity of vision is a major factor in safe driving, Dr. Richardson indicated the required stopping distances, under best highway and visibility conditions, in the case of a "stop" sign with five-inch letters, in relation to "acuity" of vision, speed of travel, etc.

Among other important faculties on the road are — the ability to judge depth accurately; wide fields of vision on both sides; the ability to see well in dim light; quick recovery of normal sight after exposure to glare of headlights; the ability to q u i c k l y and accurately change the fixation of eyes.

"Every driver should consult a vision specialist at least once a year, and he should have his visual abilities brought to the highest standard possible by glasses, visual training or both. If so advised, he should wear his glasses always when driving. When it is not possible to attain all the skills needed, but the patient has enough visual ability for limited auto driving, it becomes the moral responsibility of the optometrist to advise his patient of the limitations he must impose upon himself as to speed and other driving conditions for reasonable safety. We optometrists are charged with doing our part in cutting 'murder' on the highway."
