Group seeks co-operation to avert winter unemployment

With a view to alleviating winter unemployment in this area, a group of public spirited men have banded together to conduct a campaign during the coming months. The aim of this group is to encourage citizens to provide employment by all possible means during the approaching winter season.

The committee directing this campaign has appointed George Lowe, of Lowe Bros. Dairy, to preside as chairman. Other members of the committee are Hubert Lemire, assistant Personnel manager at Ayers Limited, and Paul E. Barbeau, principal of St. Jean Baptiste School, Ayersville. This committee feels that the population must be made aware that everyone will benefit from steadier employment.

Mr. George Lowe states that the initial phase of the campaign commences today, and calls upon employers and general public to plan their winter work so as to afford a maximum number of jobs during the next few months.

At the first meeting of the committee, held last week, the chairman stated: "The public would be wise to have as much work accomplished during this winter as possible, especially due to the fact that a serious shortage of labor is expected next spring, when the construction of the Hydro dam at Carillon will absorb all qualified help. There will undoubtedly be a rise in the cost of construction due to higher wage demand created by a scarcity of manpower." Both Messrs. Lemire and Barbeau were in agreement: "To successfully obtain maximum winter employment, our citizens must be aware that seasonal unemployment is a waste of manpower and creates unnecessary misery, poverty and social problems," they stated. "Some forethought on the part of employers, municipal authorities and private individuals is necessary. We intend to bring this matter to their attention without delay. It is still early enough for everyone to review the situation, and we request the public at large to give serious consideration to the part they can play in providing winter employment."

The group noted that some local contractors had already lined up sufficient projects to maintain most of their men at work through most of the winter, but they will still have to contend with a lull. This is certainly not sufficient, and it is hoped that more public attention will be focused on the problem.

Since it is not feasible to have a representative from all local public and social organizations sit as members of the committee, it was agreed that each organization would be invited separately to present their views at committee meetings, to offer suggestions and help in attaining a maximum result. The committee hopes that business or social bodies will have representatives in attendance, when called upon to attend a business session.

Distribution and posting of publicity material has already commenced urging everyone to "plan now, and have work done in winter which would otherwise be delayed until spring".

Should anyone require information regarding available manpower, whether skilled or unskilled, they are asked to call the National Employment Service (LO 2-2481). The service will appreciate your support, and will do its utmost to locate workers most suitable to your needs.

Family ousted by blaze in west end

Flames gutted a section of a multiple-dwelling house, the former Todd store building on Main Street West, early Monday evening, forcing Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Hooper, tenants in the building owned by Deacon Enterprises, onto the street.

The flames were first fought by Deacon employees, many of whom are members of the volunteer fire brigade, who laid a line from the adjacent garage. With arrival of the fire truck seconds later, the pumper was put into operation, fog nozzles being used to force the smoke from the building and extinguish the flames.

Damage was considerable, but was confined to the one section of the rambling building. Operations were directed by Volunteer Captain Bill Deacon.

A portion of the loss was covered by insurance.

Quick action on the part of local constables foiled a break-in attempt at the Provincial Transport terminal here, owned and operated by Ben Marion, on Berry Street, and resulted in the arrest of an unidentified suspect who was picked up at the scene.

The incident occurred Saturday night when two local citizens saw the man break a window in the front door. They immediately notified the police and Constables George Taylor and Laurent Foucault rushed to the scene, making the arrest. The suspect was turned over to Provincial Police, since it was believed he is wanted by several other police departments.

* * *

Police Chief Fernand Trepanier reported an extremely quiet Hallowe'en this year, only minor pranks being reported. Six officers were on patrol during the evening.

Remembrance rites this Sunday, in afternoon

Remembrance Day rites at the cenotaph in the Memorial Park will be held this year on Sunday, November 8, at approximately 2.30 p.m., instead of the traditional "eleventh hour". This, according to the Legion p.r.o., is to enable a greater number of the population to attend.

The Legionnaires and veterans will leave the Memorial Hall on Foundry Street shortly after 2 p.m. The Legion members and color party will be followed by the 37th Field Regiment, Harrington Pipe Band, the Ayersville Air Cadets, Cubs, Scouts, Girl Guides, Brownies, C.G.I.T. members, etc. It is expected that there will be a good turnout of residents, and in particular, of younger citizens. There will be several distinguished guests in attendance.

As many wreaths as possible will be deposited prior to the ceremony, to avoid unnecessary standing by those in attendance.

(The cenotaph ceremonies are in addition to a Legion parade and Remembrance services in the various churches this coming Sunday — and a community ceremony the following Sunday, November 15, at St. Andrews East.)

Ayersville asks bridge to link north-south limits

The Ayersville Council session was chaired by Councillor Napoleon Corbeil, pro-mayor, in the absence of Mayor Gaetan Paquette. Councillor Wilfrid Durocher was also absent from the deliberations.

The month's accounts, totalling $2,743.97, were passed for payment.

It was agreed to make enquiries of the Hawkesbury town authorities relative to street-lighting.

A donation of $400 was voted to the Charities Federation.

It was decided to purchase a desk and chairs from Walker-Kingsbury Inc., for $75.

A bid of $300 per mile for maintenance of winter road, over approximately three miles in the municipality, was received from Welden Motors. This offer was held over.

Building permit was granted to Rosaire Quenneville for the construction of a private garage.

As it was now considered timely to plan for a bridge over the West River, to connect Providence Boulevard and the Brownsburg Road section with the established area of Ayersville, the question was brought up by Councillor Dumas. It was agreed to send a request on this matter to the Minister of Public Works, and to the Hon. W. M. Cottingham.

The local Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs are getting off to an excellent start in this year's activities. Through the courtesy of J. C. Wilson Ltd., the billiard room of the late E. H. Wilson home on Princess Street has been made available to the Scouts and Cubs.

A hall has long been the dream of the local Scout Group Committee.

Under direction of last year's chairman of the Group Committee, Mr. Idris Jones, and the Building Chairman, Mr. Gordon P. Dobbie, materials were solicited as donations, in some cases at cost price, or greatly reduced price in others. Mr. Dobbie devoted many hours of time to getting an extension constructed to the north end of the stone billiard room. The building construction was performed by Martin Neiderkorn, of Lachute Wooderaft. Large amounts of materials such as Turnall Trafford tile, flat asbestos sheeting, asbestos corrugated siding, and acoustic tiling, were very generously donated by Atlas Asbestos Co, Ltd. Practically all the lumber was donated by the Canadian International Paper Co. lumber mill at Calumet, while the insulation was donated by the Johns Mansville Co. Ltd.

Local Contributors

Local firms who have helped in this worthy cause and to whom the Group Committee extend sincere thanks, are:

J. C. Wilson Limited, Ayers Limited, Geo. Y. Deacon, Paul & Graham Reg., Wilson & Gordon Reg., T. McOuat & Son Ltd., John McFaul & Son Ltd., W. K. McArthur & Son Ltd.;

Public Spirited Leaders

The Group Committee is most appreciative of the good services being rendered by the following leaders who give faithfully of their time each week:

1st Lachute Troop, Mondays, 7-8.30 p.m. — Jim Murdoch, Scoutmaster; H. Richardson, Asst S.M.; Ian Duncan, Asst. S.M.

2nd Lachute Troop, Wednesdays, 7-8.30 p.m. — Buz MacRae, Scoutmaster; Jackie Laurin, Asst. S.M.

1st Lachute Wolf Cub Pack, Tuesdays, 6.45-8.00 p.m. — Mrs. T. Bignell, Cubmistress; Ronald Dawson, Asst. Cubmaster; Jack Partridge, Asst. Cubmaster, Miss MacGregor, Asst. Cubmistress.

2nd Lachute Wolf Cub Pack, Thursdays 6.45-8.00 p.m. — Hugh Dobbie, Cubmaster; Jack King, Asst. Cubmaster; Gerald Dunne, Asst. Cubmaster.

The Group Committee holds regular meetings on the second Tuesday of each month in the Scout Hall. The committee for the 1959-60 Scouting year is composed as follows:

Stewart Jones, Chairman
Sam Bradshaw, Vice-Chairman
Chas. L. Duncan, in charge of Leaders
Dick Pearson, Scout liason
Wm. Butterfield, Cub liason
Keith Boa, Transportation
Ernest Gordon, Finance Committee
C. McNair, secretary-treasurer
G. Dobbie, Building Committee

The Group Committee did not have sufficient funds to cover the cost of the extension, but a sum of $400 was borrowed to meet the outstanding obligations. This amount will be repaid after the annual February canvass for Boy Scout funds. The future of Scouting in this community looks much brighter now that a hall is a reality.

Mayor declares November 6 - 7 Poppy Days in Town of Lachute

Mayor James W. McGibbon has issued a proclamation declaring November 6 and 7 as Poppy Days in Lachute. The announcement coincided with a statement by B. A. Jenkins, chairman of the Lachute Legion's poppy committee, that November 6 and 7 will be the general poppy tag days.

The Mayor's proclamation urged all citizens to observe these days by wearing memorial poppies in honor of those who gave their lives in Canada's wars. It read:

Whereas men of this town gave their lives in defence of Canada and the democratic world;

And Whereas the memory of their service and sacrifice is a source of inspiration to all citizens as our nation faces new difficulties and dangers;

And Whereas their memory is kept ever bright by the annual wearing of memorial poppies in their honor and the honor of all other Canadians who died in war service;

Now Therefore I, James W. McGibbon, Mayor of the Town of Lachute, do hereby proclaim Friday and Saturday, November 6 and 7, to be Poppy Days in the Town of Lachute and do urge that all citizens observe these days by wearing the memorial Poppy of the Canadian Legion.

(Signed) James W. McGibbon, Mayor

Tourist promotion has high priority at Laurentides Ch. Commerce meet

Four local townsmen representing Lachute Chamber of Commerce attended a Laurentides regional meeting at Laval West last week. Those attending from Lachute were — Adhémar Cuerrier, president; Gaetan Leclair, 1st vice-president; Arthur Lafrance, 2nd vice-president; Gabriel Valois, publicist. The meeting dealt primarily with a project for promoting Laurentian tourism in connection with the coming National Winter Sport Show in New York.

Publicity for attractions of this province will be stressed at an exhibition of Quebec products from November 14 to 22 in the New York Coliseum, a booth for the Laurentian Resorts, and a boost for the Ste. Agathe Winter Carnival.

On the program will be a reception for U.S. newsmen, a banquet for state officials in New York City, and Quebec Day songs and dances featured on American TV broadcasts.

Recognizing the value of this publicity in terms of tourist prospects for the Laurentians, the Chamber of Commerce has given wholehearted approval and expressed appreciation to Mr. J. Ratelle, of the Ste. Agathe tourist bureau, for his part in promoting the district interests . . . Residents of this town or district who may be in New York during the period of this exhibition, are urged to attend.

It is planned to hold a one-day conclave on tourism, under provincial sponsorship, at the Chantecler, Ste. Adele. The local Chamber of Commerce will also be represented at this session, to be held shortly.

Gatineau Power president views developments in hand

"From present indications, we will be serving over 96,000 individual customers by the end of the year, and it would appear that we should pass the 100,000 mark before the end of next year," said Mr. Gordon Gale, President of Gatineau Power Company, at the annual dinner dance at the Gatineau "Employees Mutual Benefit Association" recently.

"To provide for our continuing growth in customers and power demand, widespread improvements and expansion of facilities are under way; over 1,200 jobs are in various stages of completion at the present time," said Mr. Gale, who made a brief reference to some of the important projects, as follows:

1. Changeover from 25 cycles to 60 cycles has been completed. All generating equipment is operating at 60 cycles.

2. In addition to the eight substations now serving Hull and the surrounding area, including Aylmer, the Gamelin Station has been added, with a capacity of 10,000 kilowatts, and the Tache Station with a capacity of 5,000 kilowatts.

3. At Templeton a substation is under construction with a capacity of 5,000 kilowatts.

4. At Papineauville a high-voltage substation has been completed with a capacity of 13,000 kilowatts.

5. At Vaudreuil a new office building, a garage, and a 5,000 kilowatt substation on Ile Perrot have been completed.

6. At Lachute the installation of a regulating transformer having a capacity of 75,000 kilowatts, has been completed.

7. A second high-voltage transmission line, between Lachute and St. Jerome, will be completed this year.

8. At the main substation in St. Jerome the transformer capacity has been increased by 28,000 kilowatts, and a new substation is under construction adjacent to the Autoroute, having an initial installation of 1,000 kilowats.

9. At Ste. Adele an addition to existing transformer facilities is planned, having a capacity of 10,000 kilowatts.

Associated with these major projects, widespread expansion of distribution lines at higher voltages is proceeding, more radio telephone equipment has been installed, and improvements have been made in the facilities for remote control of the power supply.

"I am very happy to be able to report to you that so far this year there have been no fatal accidents, and from the reports we have received covering the first eight months of this year, it is apparent that our record of lost-time accidents is more favorable than that of any other similar company in the Province of Quebec," said Mr. Gale in his brief report to the employees.

Grand Opera performance draws enthusiastic acclaim

An audience comfortably filling the assembly hall of l'Ecole Superieure enjoyed the performance of the Ottawa Grand Opera Association, a well-groomed troupe of entertainers, on their first appearance here last Saturday. Their presentation of Guiseppe Verdi's "La Traviata", under Lions Club sponsorship, was warmly received.

This was the first operatic venture since Chautauqua and the Gilbert and Sullivan performances here years ago. Approaching the same light atmosphere of treatment, Verdi's theme was happily suited to the place and occasion, and the performance, very creditably handled, drew favorable comment from those who saw it.

Mr. Roger Regimbal, a past-president of the Lions Club, gave acknowledgment to the Catholic School Commission for the hospitality of the school building, to the Ottawa Grand Opera Association for genial co-operation throughout, and to business and professional men for supporting the printed program. He spoke also of the Lions' 25th anniversary, to which this event gave emphasis as a gesture for social and community enjoyment. Mr. Regimbal then introduced Mr. H. Bramwell Bailey, conductor, and the opera proceeded from this point.

Cast and Personnel

With Mrs. Bramwell Bailey as producer, the cast included soloists, chorus and ballet dancers, with the Association's 16-piece symphony orchestra, totalling a personnel of 65 persons.

Chorus master is Mr. Leslie G. Smith, and the leading roles are sung by — Matilda Lazarowich, soprano (as Violetta); Robert Haydon of Lachute, tenor (as Alfredo); and Emmanuel Collin, baritone (as Alfredo's father). These and other soloists all sang their parts with sympathy and revealed a complete understanding of the theme and the characters they portrayed.

The audience showed their appreciation by prolonged applause, and in conclusion flowers were presented by young Convent students who served as usherettes — to the leading lady, Mrs. Lazarowich; to the producer, Mrs. Bailey; and to Mr. Haydon, leading male soloist.

Story of Opera

The costumes and settings were fitting to the Paris society of 1850, which the story depicted. The libretto was sung in English, and the theme may be briefly retold as follows:

The beautiful courtesan, Violetta Valery, regardless of ill health, spends her life in pursuit of pleasure until she falls in love with Alfredo Germont. She leaves Paris to live with Alfredo in the seclusion of country life, selling all her possessions to maintain them. Violetta's happiness is shattered when Alfredo's father begs her to leave his son, which she brokenheartedly agrees to do, writing a letter to Alfredo, saying that she no longer loves him.

The jealous and angry Alfredo follows Violetta and, finding her at the home of her friend Flora, publicly denounces her, whereupon Alfredo's father, in turn renounces his son.

Violetta, her health rapidly failing, is gradually forsaken by all but her faithful maid Annina and Dr. Grenvil, who knows that she has but a short time to live.

A letter arrives from Alfredo's father, stating that his son, at last aware of her love and great sacrifice, is hastening to her side. Alfredo arrives but only to hold his beloved Violetta in his arms as death parts them forever.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

Members and friends of the Legion are reminded to listen to a special half-hour program with a Remembrance theme on November 9 from 8.30 to 9 p.m. E.S.T. The program is produced by CBC radio and will be aired as the last half of "Assignment". The story will be of particular interest to Legion members because it is based on the life of Jack Moore, the past Dominion chairman, who dedicated his life to be a foster father to some 60 boys. He was the originator of the Legion's "Foster Father" program. Written by Norman A. Shannon, the script tells of Jack Moore's impact on the lives of these young men whose fathers were killed in war.

• • •

All team captains and assistants are urged to be at the Legion Hall for 6.30 p.m. on Thursday, November 5. This is important as the success of the door-to-door Poppy canvass is dependent entirely on the effort you put forth. We need all members for this effort, cars and a determination that every member of the community will have an opportunity to wear a poppy. For any member unable to face the elements, there will be a job at the hall!

• • •

Remember that November 6 and 7 will be Poppy tag days in Lachute, and again your assistance is solicited. We owe a debt of gratitude to the mayor of Lachute, James W. McGibbon, for the assistance he has given through declaring the above dates official Poppy Days in Lachute.

• • •

All members of Branch 70 and local veterans are reminded of the annual Armistice Banquet to be held in the Memorial Hall, Foundry Street, on Saturday, November 7, at 6.30 p.m. Com. President Tom Smith has completed arrangements for the turkey supper. Com. Alex Solomon, Director of the Vaccination Division, Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, Province of Quebec, will be guest speaker. Com. Charles L. Duncan will be master of ceremonies at the supper.

The Entertainment committee have lined up an orchestra for a social evening after the Remembrance Supper on Saturday evening. All friends of the Branch are invited to attend the dance, which should get under way by 9.30 p.m. Members in particular are urged to waste no time picking up their wives and friends as soon as the banquet is finished. An enjoyable time is assured for one and all!

A church parade will march off from the Legion Hall at about 10.30 a.m. Sunday morning, November 8, advancing along Fraser to Sydney Streets and thence to Bethany, where Roman Catholic members will fall out. Other denominations will march down Bethany to Main Street and west along Main, where Presbyterians, Anglicans and United Church members will fall out and enter these respective churches. It is expected that a pipe band will accompany the parade. All members are expected to be on parade, wearing berets and medals. Any veteran will be welcomed to join this parade.

The annual Remembrance Day parade will fall in at the Memorial Hall on Foundry Street, marching off to the Cenotaph at Lachute Memorial Park, near Barron's Bridge, shortly after 2 p.m. Again, rig of the day will be berets and medals, and all Branch members and unattached veterans are asked to be on parade at this time. There will be a fairly impressive procession made up of the Legionnaires and Color Party, 37th Field Regiment, Harrington Pipe Band, the Ayersville Air Cadets, Cubs, Scouts, Girl Guides, Brownies, C.G.I.T members, etc. It is expected that there will be a good turnout of citizens, and in particular, younger citizens. There will be several distinguished guests present. However, as many wreaths as possible will be deposited prior to the ceremony to avoid unnecessary standing by those attending.

A similar ceremony will take place on Sunday, November 15, when Branch 70 will take part in a Remembrance ceremony with their Comrades in St. Andrews East. This affair has been well attended in past years and it is hoped by the organizers in St. Andrews East that as many citizens from Lachute and district as possible will make it a point to be in attendance.

Branch 70 cribbage players are reminded of the inter-branch tournament to be held at the Brownsburg Legion Hall on Wednesday evening, November 4. All Lachute members are asked to support the local players at this invitation match.

• • •

Any resident of the district requiring the use of the Legion hospital equipment is requested to telephone Comrades R. A. Giles, Stewart Jones or R. R. MacLean.

Islander's interesting interlude, adventure in Fisheries research

"Outdoor Round-up" — by Bob Atchison

South Bay, Picton, Ont.

October 24 —

More visitors, this time the working kind, from the Department of Lands and Forests, Fisheries Research. Their boat came in and they expect to be around this end of the lake for a couple of weeks, staying on the Duck Islands — so we won't lack for company. I was fortunate in being able to accompany them yesterday and watch some more of their operations.

One very striking point was the charts they have of this lower end of the lake. One is apt to think that lake-beds are rocky with very little earth or mud. I sure had my eyes opened this trip; the charts are graded and marked off into squares of approximately 100 yds., and to see those squares denoting the nature of the lake-bottom—rock, mud, sand, etc, — sure takes your eye. The amount of hard work to make up a thing like this is forgotten by most, but as the "boys" say, at least they are doing something to help increase the fish yield, and if they can do that, they aren't interested in thanks.

The variety of instruments needed in this research development is unbelievable. They were not after fish or fry, on this trip — only placing their nets and other needed sample kits. It is a very complicated operation, and one I am going to observe, since I have been asked to accompany them on their trips around the Island. To see them checking the stomach contents of all the fish, to get a pattern of their feeding habits, is remarkable. Everything is weighed and sorted. Even samples of the scales are taken for study.

I know most of us never even give this research business a thought, but to see these experts in action puts an entirely different complexion on the thing. Right now they are working ashore, testing and sampling the water content, and they are also getting some very fine nets ready for the fry specimens they hope to catch. In this way they hope to determine the growth of these fish over a period of time. One of the nets to be used later is a trap affair; in this they are able to tag and release all the fish caught, recording times, places, weights, etc., on the release. Any of these fish caught they hope to have the tags returned and in this way get more data on their habits.

October 25 (Sunday) —

The better the day the better the deed, or so they say. Well, the good deed for today was sure a tough one. Late yesterday, a very bad wind-storm broke and drove the Research boat right onto the shore. If you can imagine a boat 20 tons being driven into the shore — so badly that a jeep, block and tackle, long rope anchors and trees, were used to get it back to an even keel and floating. It took about five hours to do this little job and everyone was beat, cold and wet by the time it was accomplished. Anyway, no damage was done, and the boat is out on the lake at present, 3 p.m., taking samples of fish. So everybody is happy. For awhile it didn't look as though it would be possible to be out in the water this week. It's a laugh to think of a few men digging into the earth to make holes for floating boats. I guess any sane person wouldn't have done it. (ok., who says I'm sane!)

The "boys" have just come back in, and we sure are in for a swell feed. They have 12 Doré, or Pickerel as they are called in this part of the world. There is about 60 lbs. of fish, and by the time they get it all fixed up there will be at least 25 lbs. of real eating meat. They are keeping these to see if they have been eating the spawn of the Lakers. Also along with this catch, there is about 300 lbs. of Bass and Whitefish. We don't want any of these, besides we couldn't keep them for any length of time. The stomachs will all be checked, and they will then be thrown away.

Some more Geese have been coming in; not terrific rafts of them, maybe the largest was 400 birds, certainly no more. A lot of Brant have been passing, and some of them have landed. These are not relished for eating purposes, nothing like the Canada Goose or for that matter, a Teal Duck. The Black Ducks have been increasing in size of the flights; then the Mallards will be in, for where the Black is, the Mallard can be found. As a matter of fact they flock together, but the Mallard flight is a flight all by itself, and to me this is one of the most colorful flights of all. The Fall ducks I'm talking aboout now, and not the Woods. This is one flight that is a treat to watch. The Mallards have a reasonably slow flight in comparison to the Black or Teal. They never seem to vary the beat of their wings, even when coming in to decoys. It seems as though once they have made up their minds to drop in, nothing is going to stop them, not even guns.

October 26 —

Ever see about 400 lbs. of Bass? That's what I saw today when the Research tug came in. Along with this catch in other boxes were Whitefish, Pickerel, Catfish and a few other varieties. All these fish are carefully examined, and the conclusion is being drawn that there are too many Bass in this end of Lake Ontario. Another capture that brought a little excitement was a Lamprey. It was attached to a Bass, and had the fish near at a point of death by extracting its blood. About 12 inches long, this specimen will be sent on to Maple just outside Toronto, for experimental purposes; it is being kept alive for this purpose. They sure are ugly looking creatures — just like an Eel, but with the mouth of a Sucker. It attaches itself to a fish by its mouth and with the rasp-like mouth gradually eats a hole through the skin of its prey, and drains the life-juices. There is no hard-and-fast rule as to how long this takes either. Some fish succumb in a few hours, others live like this for a few days. This is the first Lamprey that they have picked up in some time, so that it does look as though the parasite is really beat for awhile anyway. I guess it will be like the flies and DDT; remember how the chemical killed all of them, but now the darn things seem to thrive on it? It sure is a never-ending battle against the enemies of Nature. . . .

But the big battle is still being waged, and lost, against pollution. It seems that for every law introduced to curb pollution, there is some other factor that nullifies it.

Argenteuil 4-H winners at Ottawa Winter Fair

Six members of the Lachute 4-H Calf Club, and three members of the St. Andrews East Calf Club, and their calf exhibits were among top winners in the 4-H Calf Club Championship Show, held last Friday at the Ottawa Winter Fair. The Championship Show was open to Eastern Ontario, and for the first time this year, to Western Quebec — the six western counties including Argenteuil.

There were two classes, the individual 4-H calf competition and the inter-club 4-H calf competition, where a group of three calves of one breed were shown by each club.

The Lachute 4-H Calf Club had a group of three Senior Ayrshire calves shown by Douglas MacKenzie, Kenneth Rodger and Bobby Rodger, and a group of three Senior Holstein calves shown by Sheila Meyer, Daintry Wilson and Donald Hadley.

The St. Andrews East Calf Club had a group of Senior Guernsey calves shown by Yolande St. Jacques, Monique St. Jacques and Jacques Durocher.

In the individual calf competition, the judges placed the calves by groups on the basis of type and quality, instead of first, second and third, etc. A first-prize ribbon went to each calf in Group A; second-prize ribbon to each calf in Group B, etc. All the calves from Lachute won a first-prize ribbon for being placed in Group A.

The Championship classes were won as follows: The Senior Ayrshire Champion calf was won by Douglas MacKenzie; Senior Ayrshire Reserve Champion calf was won by Kenneth Rodger. Senior Ayrshire Showman winner was Douglas MacKenzie and Senior Ayrshire Reserve Showman winner was Kenneth Rodger.

The group of three Senior Ayrshire calves was won by the Lachute 4-H Club, Argenteuil County. In the Holsteins, the Senior Holstein Reserve Champion calf was won by Daintry Wilson. The group of three Senior Holstein calves was won by the Lachute 4-H Club, Argenteuil County.

In the Senior Guernsey Champions, Monique St. Jacques of the St. Andrews East Club, Argenteuil County, won the Senior Guernsey Reserve Champion calf; the Senior Guernsey Champion Showman was won by Yolande St. Jacques and Senior Guernsey Reserve Champion Showman by Monique St. Jacques.

These boys and girls are to be congratulated for their excellent standing, as there were 575 calves exhibited, presenting stiff competition. Classes such as the Senior Holstein calf class had 67 entries. So Argenteuil County did very well, as this was a new experience.

The Argenteuil County groups were supervised by Ross Oswald, the local club leader, and Mr. Paré, local Agronome.

The boys and girls also took part in two parades of 4-H members and calves in the Coliseum, and were guests of the Ottawa Winter Fair at the horse show and R.C.M.P. jumping demonstration Thursday evening.

The three outstanding players of the games were — 1 Nancy Hay, 2 Barbara Underhill, 3 Mary Beth Painter.

This Saturday the senior teams will play in the senior tournament at L.T.M.H.S.

On Friday night, October 30, the senior boys' basketball team played a game against the Grads of L.H.S. The "old pros" were too good for the LHS boys and defeated them 51-41. Another game is scheduled for Thursday night.

On Saturday the Junior O.V.S.A.A. volleyball tournament was held at St. Eustache. The boys' teams played exceptionally well, winning five games out of eight. They finished second in the tournament.

The three outstanding players were — Lloyd Elder, Keith Rogers and Edward Nichol.

One of the happy things about owning a Volkswagen is that wherever you go, efficient service is always close at hand. To serve you, as a Volkswagen owner, Volkswagen maintains a network of 280 authorized service-centres from the Atlantic to the Pacific . . . a dealer-service organization which is backed by a central 5-million dollar Spare Parts Depot.

A Factory-Training School at Toronto as well as Mobile Schools in the various provinces, ensure the consistently high standard for which Volkswagen mechanics have become known.

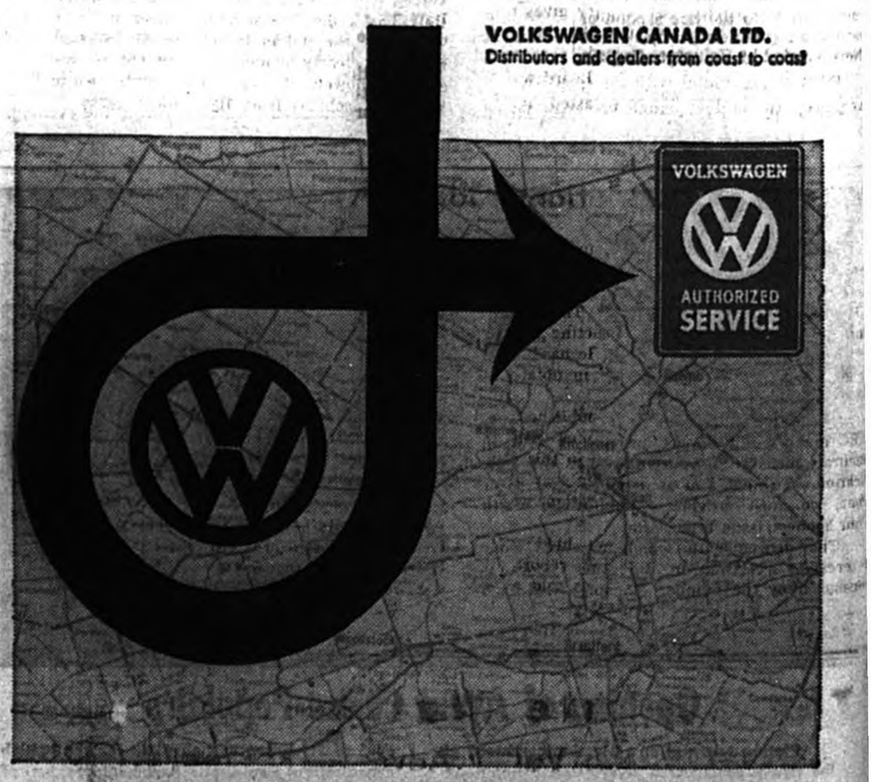

And when you think of it, isn't this the kind of service you would naturally expect from the company that was recently awarded the coveted Sperry Award "for advancing the art of transportation."

After all, it was Volkwagen that first mass-produced a car with the engine in the rear . . . air cooling . . . torsion bars front and rear for independent suspension.

This basic design has been maintained over the years and so has the superb workmanship . . . just two good reasons why Volkswagen enjoys such a high resale value.

A time for thought

LEGIONNAIRES face the month of November with mixed feelings. It is the month of re-unions, of tales mellowed with the years, of sad memories of buddies who didn't make it back or, having made it, have since gone to their rest — a time for serious reflection on the past; careful thought for the future.

Yes, so should many of our non-veteran citizens of this community face November with mixed feelings — to pause thoughtfully — mindful of the fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, sons and daughters of those gallant citizens who would have taken their rightful places in the life of this community, had it not been for the folly of mankind. To think reverently of those who had nothing more to do with the start of world wars than we who are left, but who had to pull up stakes, leave their loved ones, and to see that these wars ended — so that we who are left behind may live and love and work and play without fear.

The 69 men from this town and county whose names appear on the 1914-18 county cenotaph, and the 20 men whose names have been inscribed on the 1939-45 monument in our lovely Memorial Park at centre town — they have done their share — they have given their all . . . How about you and me? They have handed on the lighted torch to be held high. What happens from here on, depends on us. Every member of the Canadian Legion has made a solemn oath that he will do his share to keep the memory of those who laid down their lives for the ideals which we, as Canadians, cherish. To remember not only those who have died, but also those they left dependent and those who still suffer from honorable wounds and disabilities, so that neither their rights nor their interests shall be forgotten. And that their welfare and that of their dependents, especially the dependents of the disabled, sick, aged and needy, may always be safeguarded. Is it therefore any wonder that this is a time for sober thought — and for action? . . . Won't you help your Legion friend fulfill his trust, by wearing a Poppy in Remembrance? Your generous donation to the Legion Branch at this time of year will help him, to better help those left behind.

Provisions of new Farm Credit Act

CANADA'S NEW Farm Credit Act, passed by Parliament during the last Session, came into effect this past month. The Act succeeds the Canadian Farm Loan Act, and all assets and responsibilities of the Canadian Farm Loan Board will be taken over by the new Farm Credit Corporation. Assisting the corporation will be an advisory committee which will be appointed by the Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. Douglas S. Harkness.

Under the new farm credit system, up to $20,000 in loans will be made available instead of the previous maximum of $15,000, for the purchase of a farm or farm improvement. Interest on the loans has been fixed at 5 per cent to make it more equitable to borrowers than a fluctuating rate.

Further, provisions are now more flexible. For example, a loan can be based on 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farm instead of 65 per cent.

Tailored to meet the needs of the younger farmer, a new type of assistance — the supervised loan—can be made to applicants between 21 and 45 years, to allow them to set up an economical farm unit. This type of loan may be as high as 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farm and chattels, but may not exceed $27,500.

Arrangements are being made to have district supervisors and field officers under the Veterans' Land Act assist the corporation with the supervision of these loans.

Hearings on textile and clothing trade

A NEW IMPORT threat from Japan, where men's wear is currently being produced with the assistance of United States "know-how", could completely disrupt a major portion of the Canadian clothing industry — the Tariff Board was told in Ottawa just recently . . .

There were also references to items more significant to Lachute as a textile manufacturing centre.

The brief formed part of a three-day Tariff Board hearing into tariff items covering felts, blankets, and miscellaneous wool products. This study was one in a series of studies ordered by the Federal Minister of Finance.

Lionel Rubin, clothier, of Montreal, said that up to the present time the overall imports of Japanese wool clothing have not been of great importance "But this situation can change overnight." One U.S. firm has now begun shipping a substantial volume of Japanese made suits to the U.S. after three years of planning and establishing the operation. The firm was purchasing all-Japanese piece goods, had them sponged and shrunk there and then sent to its several plants in Japan. The firm was not aiming at the low-price markets as it sold a high-quality product — but at a very low cost. "Obviously, the more labor put into a product in a low labor-cost country gives it a decided advantage on a market like the U.S., where labor costs are high," he said.

Filed as an exhibit with the Board was a two-piece, two-button, single-breasted man's suit that had been purchased in a Toronto store for $11.99. The suit was Japanese-made of viscose rayon and featured a lot of hand tailoring.

"By hearsay, the Japanese have a similar production in wool," said T. Aplin, executive director of the Men's Clothing Maunfacturers' Association of Ontario. "I don't think it will be long before Japanese wool suits are coming on to our market." A later witness told the Board that in fact, Japanese worsted suits were already on sale in Montreal.

In discussing travel rugs, the brief mentioned the problems being caused by imports in this field from Italy. Statistics filed with the board showed that the Canadian manufacturers of travelling rugs held approximately 90% of the home market in 1952, and that by 1958 the figure had tumbled to only 37%. Imports of travelling rugs from Italy to Canada were nil in 1951, but by the end of 1958 the total was 104,000.

In evidence, Mr. R. Stewart, of Carleton Place, Ont., filed with the Board an Italian travel rug purchased in Ottawa. The retail price was $2.35. "Cheapest travel rug we sell is priced for retail purposes at $7.95," said Mr. Stewart. "With the various cost factors involved it is impossible for us to go any lower. Italy has a decided advantage over us." In describing the Italian travel rug, Mr. Stewart said the clearly evident oil content of the article showed it was made from waste material, probably from 100% waste yarns.

What is a Circulation Auditor?

THE JOB of a circulation auditor is to keep publishers on their toes. . . . A representative of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a specially trained auditor, visits The Watchman periodically to make an exacting inspection of our circulation records. He has access to all of our books and records in obtaining the facts about our circulation.

His independent analyses, published by ABC in an Audit Report, provide us with an accurate measure of your interest in this publication. To keep you as a reader year after year, we must provide a publication worth your money, issue after issue.

The degree with which we hold your interest, as verified in the ABC report, is measured by the number of copies sold each issue, where they are sold, and how they are sold. Obviously, if you aren't interested you aren't going to buy. . . . Logically, this same information is of interest to our advertisers, too. The rate they pay for the advertising space they use is based on our paid circulation.

Thus, the ABC report is a guide for The Watchman in providing you with a publication which merits your support, and a guide to advertisers that they get what they pay for — your interest as readers.

Who was known as the Burns of Canada?

Alexander McLachlan, a native of Scotland, where he was born in 1818. After working in a cotton factory and being apprenticed to a tailor in Glasgow, he came to Canada in 1840 and farmed in various parts of Ontario. He settled in Wellington County in 1850 and moved to the vicinity of Orangeville in 1874. Having acquired a reputation as a lecturer, he was sent to Scotland in 1862 and 1874 to lecture on Canada. Known to his admirers as the Burns of Canada, he was the author of three volumes of verse, some of it in the Scottish dialect. A collected edition of his poetical works was published in 1900, four years after his death at Orangeville, Ont.

What Canadian ship disappeared in 1679?

The Griffon, first vessel to sail the upper Great Lakes. It was built for Rene Robert Cavelier, Sieur de LaSalle, at Niagara by ship carpenters recruited in France. The carpenters worked under the direction of Henri de Tonti, LaSalle's lieutenant. The Griffon was probably less than 60 feet in length and of about 60 tons. Launched on Aug. 7, 1679, she sailed on her maiden voyage, with LaSalle on board, on Aug. 27. She went first to Michilimackinac and then to Green Bay on Lake Michigan. There LaSalle left her. On Sept. 18, laden with furs, she sailed for Niagara and was never seen again. Wreckage found on the western end of Manitoulin Island probably indicates where she came to grief.

Half of the world's supply of fresh water is found in Canada. This fact has persistently influenced the development of this country. Without lakes and rivers penetration of the interior by explorers, traders and settlers would have been much more difficult. The marketing of forest products — timber, then lumber and pulpwood — was, and still is, dependent to a large extent on water connections between the cutting areas and world markets. Low-cost electric power, for domestic and industrial use, has been made possible by an abundance of water power. In the West, water reserves have also been harnessed to an extensive system of canals used for purposes of irrigation, thus rendering hundreds of thousands of acres fertile.

Behind Khrushchev's peace talk

— By Lewis Milligan —

"Notice where Russia wants Italy to sell them goods to the amount of $100-million on credit. With all this sudden desire for total disarmament and lovey-dovey peace talk by Mr. K., along with other proposals for more trade with the West, could it be that the Reds are in pretty bad financial circumstances? Mr. K. may be more worried about his own hide than world peace."

That is a quotation from a letter just received from a Second World War veteran who is hibernating in the country after a heart attack. He is thus on the outside looking in, and in that brief paragraph he has sized up Premier Khrushchev's latest dramatic performance on the world's stage. It is doubtful, however, that Mr. K's sudden change of front is due to financial troubles. That request for a mere hundred million dollars credit from little Italy is just a bit of strategic byplay to get into the big western market by the back door. There is no doubt that the Russian proletariat want peace and are getting vocally impatient at the delay of the promised Utopia of communism.

The American Exhibition in Moscow, with its rich display of consumer goods, was a revelation to the huge crowds of Russian people who attended it. Mr. Khrushchev himself was one of the spectators, and his later visit to the United States must have impressed him with the contrast between high standards of living under a free democracy and the bare existence condition of his own people under a social system that he had boasted would ultimately be adopted by the western world.

At the same time Mr. Khrushchev is unconsciously paying a backhanded compliment to the social system of the United States by telling the Russian people that the Soviet would catch up with American production of consumer goods. He must have a pretty low opinion of the intelligence of the Russian proletariat, when he condemns the capitalist system as obsolete and oppressive, and in the same breath holds up the standard of living of the greatest capitalistic country in the world as an example for their achievement.

There must be little comfort for the Russian proletariat in the fact that the United States is falling behind in the production of rockets and sputniks. If they were given the choice between free trips to the moon and a better standard of life on this earth, they would gladly dispense with the Soviet scientists and forget all about the vacuous regions of space. They would prefer to fill the vacuums in their own homes and stomachs, and they have recently been giving voice to that preference.

Mr. Khrushchev, in his "lovey-dovey peace talks", is more concerned with peace at home than in the world at large. The Soviet announcement, that it is going to provide the people with vastly more and better consumer goods, explains a lot. Tennyson put it into two lines of his Locksley Hall:

"Slowly comes a hungry people,
as a lion, creeping nigher,
Glares at one that nods and winks behind a slowly dying fire."

THE RAINMAKER
(Reprint from 1951)

There's always some sand on the floor of my car (in fact I'd feel lonesome without it). But when it gets over the tops of my shoes it's time to do something about it.

So once in a while I just roll up my sleeves on a day when it's windy and brisk, removing the sand and last year's autumn leaves with the aid of a short-handled whisk.

At last, having got the interior clean, I might as well wash the whole car. So out come the soap suds, warm water and sponge removing all tarnish and tar. I polish the chromium better than new, the windows both inside and out. No car in a showroom looks better than mine. It's clean beyond shadow of doubt.

I put on good clothes and start out on a trip, when storm clouds appear in the east, and in a few minutes I'm driving in mud for two or three hours, at least.

Some fellow out West makes a living, I hear, by causing some showers to fall. He makes a small fortune by making it rain; but me? — I get nothing at all.

Won't someone take pity and offer me dough for bringing wet weather around? I have my own system — I just wash the car, then everything near me gets drowned!

The Weather Forecasters are usually right when they say what the weather's to be. Doc Chase and his almanac says: "Warm and Bright" or "Rainy" or "Stormy at Sea". But once in a while their predictions go wrong, while my way is better by far — I just make the weather stay fine right along by simply not washing my car!

I stood in front of the war memorial in Ottawa, and looked up at those giant, weary figures trudging away from the battlefield — the figures of soldiers, sailors and nurses of 1914-18.

From somewhere in the group of statuary, there came an incongruous noise — a high-pitched giggle.

A face peered out from behind the leg of a giant cavalry horse. It belonged to a lad of about 14. Another boy was with him. Both of them wore leather jackets.

They obviously knew that they shouldn't be climbing up there.

* * *

"It's all right," one of them called down to me. "I'm just shoeing the horse." Grinning, he put his hand on an upturned hoof.

The other boy swung his way through a forest of bronze legs, and stopped by the figure of an infantryman, twice the size of himself, represented by the sculptor in a position of extreme fatigue, nearly ready to drop.

One great bronze hand was extended sideways for balance. The lad grasped it. "Shake hands, George," he cackled.

It was evident that the statues of warriors who had fought and died long ago meant nothing to these two boys.

* * *

And yet if it had not been for soldiers like the ones represented in the statues, these lads might be living under a military dictatorship and a foreign flag.

It made me sad to think that they had reached their teens with so little knowledge of their country's traditions, and so little feeling for the defenders of their country, that they could treat a war memorial in such a careless way.

The foremost lad peered out from behind the infantryman's massive legs with a cheeky grin. He didn't look malicious. The war memorial just didn't mean anything to him, that was all.

* * *

I tried to give him a look of stern disapproval as I walked away.

Was it possible that he was right in his attitude, and I was wrong?

UNUSUAL WELCOME MAT

Recently I read a press report to the effect that a Japanese corporation has "sent a team of experts to Canada's prairie provinces for the possibility of establishing factories for the manufacture of small goods in underdeveloped areas."

So we're an underdeveloped area, yet!

Anyhow, because I live in Winnipeg, where we have a big needle trade, I decided to pop this news report under the nose of a textile manufacturer to see what he'd say. He has been complaining that it is very tough trying to compete with exports from Japan, so I wanted to get his reaction to having one of their textile factories in his own backyard. He surprised me with his answer.

His exact words were, "This is a very silly idea, but I am all in favor of it.

"The Japanese firm would then learn what it means to manufacture in Canada, with Canadian taxes and wages, compared with the advantages they have in Japan.

"At present the Japanese textile people pay wages at about 15 cents an hour, with all sorts of encouragement from their own government. They then drop their products in Canada with the utmost ease, able to under-cut Canadian prices, which are, in effect, Canadian wages.

"If the Japanese gave up all of this and moved plants into Canada, their basic costs would then be the same as mine, and I would once more be able to compete for the Canadian market, and my workers would enjoy some security.

"Just why the Japanese should choose to do this I cannot pretend to know, but I am certainly in favor of it."

It will be interesting to see whether the Japanese experts go home and advise their manufacturers to come here, or to stay put in Japan. The local textile people say that the answer is certain; they'll stay in Japan.

RECIPROCATION

It should be a simple matter for duck hunters to check with a farmer before entering his land, yet it is amazing how often a hunter neglects this simple but important matter. When are the farmers going to set up their barbecues on city lawns in retaliation?

Death removes familiar figure on river front

The Late Davis O'Brien

Carillon and the surrounding district was shocked to learn of the sudden and untimely death of one of its most respected citizens, Davis Albert (Sonny) O'Brien, which occurred October 24.

Born at Carillon on March 31, 1908, he was the only son of the late Albert O'Brien and his wife Harriet Davis.

He spent practically his entire lifetime in this same community and had been employed by the Civil Service for the past 29 years. As chauffeur of the Carillon and Grenville Canal truck, he has been a familiar figure to the people along the "front road", as he transported the laborers to and from Carillon and Grenville.

In 1929 he married the former Alice Mary Gain, of Dunany, Que., and in this marriage they were blessed with nine children.

The funeral service was held October 27, from the St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, with interment at the St. Andrews Cemetery. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. Harold Reid, of St. Andrews.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, bearing silent testimony to the esteem in which the late Mr. O'Brien was held.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. Frank Gilbert, James Coney, Chester Gain, Anthony Barnes, Leon Decare and Wesley Morrow.

Besides his loving mother he leaves to mourn his loss his devoted wife, Alice, and nine children — six girls and three boys: Velma (Mrs. Melvin Noble), Eyleen, Winston, Shirley (Mrs. Ronald Webster), Mervin, Brenda, Patricia, Linda and Wayne; also four grandchildren and two sisters, Edna and Annie, who reside with their mother.

Complaint on butter disposal

Ottawa (CP) — While Prime Minister Diefenbaker last week heard a consumer complaint about the first 10,000,000-pound sale of Canadian butter in Britain, his government was looking into the possibilities of a second one.

The complaint came from the Canadian Association of Consumers whose president, Isabel Atkinson, told reporters the protest was against the disposal of Canadian butter abroad at less than the price available in grocery stores at home.

The government closed a deal last month under which 10,000,000 pounds of its surplus butter was sold to Canadian exporters for sale in Britain. The price to the exporters was 56 cents. It was part of some 100,000,000 pounds of surplus butter the government bought at 64 cents a pound.

Pages filled with thoughts of you,
Set deep within each heart.
And as we turn each precious page,
As we so often do,
We realize how much we lost

Just a memory fond and true.
Just to say how much we miss you,
Because we thought the world of you."

Drowning verdict in discovery of Bell Falls resident

The body of Windsor MacRae, 65, a widower and resident of Bell Falls, was recovered from the Rouge River on Thursday of last week, in shallow water a few feet from shore.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen of the Provincial Police reports that, contrary to rumors circulating, there was no evidence of foul play, the victim's house being in perfect order and there being no marks of violence on the body, which was found approximately ¼ mile from his house on the riverside.

The district coroner, Dr. Jules Lafleur, rendered a verdict of accidental death due to drowning.

Police were notified of his disappearance Wednesday, and the investigation which followed indicated that what was thought to be a broken lock on the door of his home actually had been broken for some time.

Sympathy is extended to many relatives and friends throughout the County.

Indian woman lone wanderer in coastal province

Tatla Lake, B.C. (CP) — Cars pass within a few yards of Chee Wit's camp but few travellers see the little Indian woman huddled over her campfire.

Her exact whereabouts, as often in the past, are not known but all the Chilcotin country is filled with stories of Chee Wit and wonder that she's still alive.

Her name is Lily Skinner, but the Indians call her Chee Wit, which means chickadee. The chickadee never goes south in the winter, and neither does Chee Wit.

In winters when temperatures have gone as low as 70 below she has survived without a tent or sleeping bag. A tattered man's sports coat, a skirt she made herself, a stocking cap, black cotton stockings, moccasins and blanket are apparently all that she owns.

Now about 55 years old, she has wandered the woods and meadows like a wild thing for at least a decade. The story is that she once was beaten by a man with a logging chain so fiercely that she could never again walk straight, and never could stand to live inside a cabin.

"Why her feet don't freeze I can't understand. 'Cole, Cole,' she'll say, but she will never stay long by the stove."

Ike gave her a sports coat, but Chee Wit doesn't want charity. Two days later she dragged a sack of moose meat across the snow to try to give it to Ike.

"I tell the Indian department about Chee Wit," said Thomas Squinas. "They give her blankets, but right away she's only got one blanket again."

"Poor Chee Wit," said a ranch wife at Anahim Lake. "She says people come and talk to her by her campfire, but when you ask her who they are it turns out all the people Chee Wit talks to are dead."

She used to have an old black horse, but the horse died and Chee Wit now travels on foot — sometimes to Nmiah Valley, sometimes to Anahim Lake 50 miles northwest of here; usually in the woods near Tatla Lake 200 miles north of Vancouver.

Last winter the Indian Affairs department made arrangements for Chee Wit to draw $22 worth of food or supplies each month from the Tatla Lake store, but it's doubtful whether she understands this is available.

"Mostly she lives on meat — rabbit or deer or moose," said Fred Linder of Tatla Lake ranch.

He hadn't seen her for two months, he told Paul St. Pierre, a Vancouver Sun reporter who was hoping to find Chee Wit. He found her campsite and the forelegs of a deer, indicating that Chee Wit's .22 rifle had brought her fresh meat again, but he got no glimpse of the shy woods woman.

FIRE PREVENTION NOTE

Death by fire is a horrible way for anyone to die, and the survivors are permanently scarred in mind or body. It is doubly tragic that so many victims are little children who are unable to protect themselves and who had relied on grown-ups to preserve their safety.

HYMN SINGING

There are a variety of reasons for the uninspiring hymn singing in our churches. Some members of the congregation simply aren't familiar with the hymns and make no effort to become acquainted. Others are a bit timid and keep their volume turned down low. Still others mutter unintelligibly; and some just stand with open book and closed mouth.

Junior Red Cross poses a challenge for teenagers

November 1 to 7 has been designated Junior Red Cross Week across Canada. This week marks an enormous advance in the work of this valuable organization. Relief given to other children, gifts freely donated — the only requirement being that of need — food, clothing and medicines distributed to children in stricken areas ravaged by disaster and war, are some of the aims and activities of the Junior Red Cross program.

Already, through contributions of $49,521 to a national fund, the Canadian Junior Red Cross has extended the hand of friendship to children in 25 countries. Assistance has been given in the form of grants to provide food for young victims of floods in Ceylon and drought in Ghana, sewing rooms and printing workshops in Ecuador, and laboratory equipment for an additional 13 high schools in Korea, thus augmenting the total of 22 Korean high schools equipped in 1957 by Junior Red Cross aid. Friendship gifts — health kits, school supplies, clothing, quilts and toys — are distributed to children in 72 countries throughout the world as a goodwill gesture of Canadian Juniors.

Another program well-known to this province is that for the Handicapped and Crippled Children's Fund, which provides assistance for physically handicapped children. Last year, Canadian Juniors contributed $198,747 to this fund, providing help for 2,887 children.

The manufacture of specialized equipment to aid cerebral palsied patients in children's hospitals, rehabilitation centres and special schools by boy members of the Junior Red Cross, is still another contribution of this group.

At the end of the 1958-59 school year in June, Quebec's total Junior Red Cross membership was 106,465 in 3,470 classroom branches.

In Canada, 1,304,662 girls and boys are enrolled in 40,116 branches in school classrooms from Newfoundland to British Columbia, among whom are 141,671 high school students and 2,941 children in the Canadian Department of National Defence schools in Europe.

This tradition of service by young Canadians has now become an important in-school project promotion by the Department of Education in every province.

BIG FUTURE

Victoria (CP) — Prediction that the British Columbia tourist industry would gross more than $1,000,000,000 within a decade, was made by Premier Bennett.

Couple celebrate golden wedding

Brownsburg — Mr. and Mrs. Nelson B. Jones, of West Medway, Mass., while on a visit recently to Brownsburg were pleasantly surprised by relatives here.

Mr. Jones was born in Greenwich, Mass., and Mrs. Jones (the former Mabel Tomalty) was born at Louisa, Que., where the couple were married in 1909. They have three children — a son, Gordon E. Jones, of West Brookfield, Mass., and two daughters, Ruth (Mrs. Fred Doubleday) and Mary Elizabeth (Mrs. Charles Thomas), both of Winchester, Conn. They also have seven grandchildren.

The family planned a turkey dinner in their honor. Following the banquet, the relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tomalty, where the rooms were brightly decorated with yellow roses, gold mums, ferns and autumn leaves.

During the evening the guests were pleasantly entertained with picture slides and musical selections. Mrs. Norval Blair, of Saskatoon, Sask., who was her sister's bridesmaid 50 years ago, gave the address, extending hearty congratulations and best wishes for their future. Two little grandnieces, Carol Creswell and Julia Tomalty, then presented the couple with a pair of gold-colored Ayers blankets.

Mr. Jones expressed their deep appreciation and thanks, after which the anniversary cake was cut and refreshments were served, bringing the happy evening to a close.

Ottawa S. Shore towns make start on pollution study

Sewage, not industrial waste, seems to be the principal factor in pollution of the Ottawa River between Rigaud and Como, Hudson and Hudson Heights municipalities just below, according to preliminary tests.

As one of the first moves to correct the situation, the three towns are going to take the matter up with Rigaud, according to a spokesman for a joint anti-pollution committee.

J. G. Nelles, mayor of Como and a member of the committee, said it was awaiting information on "the actual pollution existing over a period of time and identified with a particular source."

There has been criticism of Rigaud's sewerage system. An independent chemist hired by the seven-man suburban committee took samples of water in the Rigaud River and at its mouth where it empties into the Ottawa. His detailed report is expected to be made to a public meeting of Como - Hudson - Hudson Heights residents in November.

Mr. Nelles explained that Rigaud's sewerage system, authorized by the province, now empties directly into the Rigaud River without treatment. Such a system was not new in the province.

The cost of a sewage treatment plant was likely to be as high — about $300,000 — as that of an entire system of sewer pipes. The total cost of both projects would be well beyond the financial means of any small community.

But it is reported that a new "atomizing system" costing about $35,000 could handle the sewerage requirements of a town of 12,000.

Executives of Toastmasters met at Valleyfield

Toastmaster Club executives from District 61, Area 2, met in Valleyfield, Que., on the evening of October 21, for an educational conference. Area 2 consists of the Toastmaster Clubs from Hawkesbury, Cornwall, Chateauguay and Valleyfield.

Representing Hawkesbury Toastmasters were President Wes Freeland, of Brownsburg; Past-president George Watson, of Vankleek Hill; Secretary Frank McElheran, of Hawkesbury; Educational Vice-President Cliff Piprell, and Administrative Vice-President Don Hart, both of Kilmar.

The conference, under chairmanship of the Area Governor, Eric Bouffard of Valleyfield, opened with an address by District Governor Lloyd Taylor of Montreal. Mr. Taylor stressed variety at Toastmaster meetings, and the necessity of proper preparation to achieve this variety.

Four senior Toastmasters spoke on relevant topics, and each was followed by a 10-minute discussion period. For the final phase of the conference, separate discussion groups of presidents, vice-presidents and secretaries exchanged information and discussed mutual problems.

The Hawkesbury representatives attending the meeting came away with a better perspective of their various duties, and a wealth of new ideas for stimulating club programs.

— Jehovah's Witnesses —

Knowledge is Vital for Salvation!

Most persons just drift along, believing that if they do the best they can, that is all God requires of them. But such is not the case! God warns that he will bring "due punishment upon those who do not obey the good news about our Lord Jesus."

"I AM awake!" people will often say, and no doubt they are awake to many things. Yet how easy it is to overlook matters vital to one's well-being! To aid people to be awake to matters of greatest importance, Jehovah's Witnesses will offer a year's subscription for the magazine AWAKE for $1. New subscribers will receive free three enlightening Bible booklets.

Write: Watchtower, 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19, or ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet, anywhere.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

"Good-bye, Mummy!"

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

What happens when you leave your child with a baby sitter and go out for a short time? Is your small son or daughter in tears over your departure? Perhaps he rebels so violently that it takes the edge off those few golden hours when you are free from home responsibilities!

You cannot give in to his crying and stay home! But you can try to discover the reason why he makes such a fuss. Time has little meaning for a child. When he watches your departing back through the window, it may be he fears you will never return. No wonder he wails when he feels so desolate!

Never try to deceive your child by slipping away when he is having his afternoon nap. Don't vanish when he is pre-occupied with play! These methods destroy his confidence in you.

Prepare your child by telling him what you are going to be doing when you are away from him. State exactly when you will be back. "By Supper Time" or "Before Daddy comes from the office." If he is four or five, show him where the big and little hands of the clock will be when he can start watching for your return.

When you come back, take time to describe to him something you have seen or done. If possible bring some little surprise home with you, as a pretty serviette from an afternoon tea party.

It is much easier for your child to take your going "in his stride" if he enjoys the company of the grown-up who is caring for him. Have you discovered that there is no better substitute for mother than father? A man may feel awkward or inadequate in his first baby-sitting sessions. But there is nothing which will make him prouder of his youngster! Son or daughter discovers that it is fun to have Daddy in charge. Together they can wave farewell quite happily.

As baby sitters, grandmothers and aunts often rate high too. Most mothers have a list of two or three reliable older girls or women who are fond of children and know their child's schedule. Each friendly person who cares for your little boy or girl increases his confidence in other people outside the home circle. But too many different sitters are confusing to a little child.

One of the most inexpensive daytime child caring schemes is a barter plan between two mothers of small children. You care for Mrs. Smith's Susan in your home one afternoon and she looks after your Billy on another afternoon. If this is a regular arrangement, the two children will likely look forward to their time together.

A busy child is a happy child and you should plan possible activities for your child in your absence. Have a few toys, a favorite story book or dolly put away, which are only enjoyed at these special times. If father takes a turn at minding his youngster, perhaps he could make a set of home-made blocks, or a simple jig-saw puzzle, or a little pull toy, for Junior.

If your child attends Nursery School during the week, or a Nursery Class session during the morning church service, you will notice his growth in emotional independence. These short periods of time away from Mother are filled with interesting activity under a teacher whom he knows and loves. Why should he not be quite satisfied for Mother to leave him?

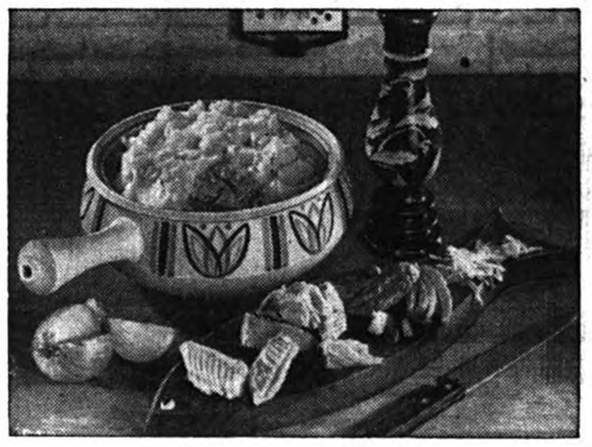

Occasionally pictures in a newspaper or conversation he overhears about a house being broken into or children being trapped in a burning home, make a child nearing school age terrified of burglars or fire. Mother should try to discover what is worrying him, if suddenly he clings to her and doesn't want to leave. If he can talk about his fears and be re-assured of his safety then he can once again call serenely when mother goes shopping or out with friends "Good-bye, Mummy!"

Salmon solves noontime problem

Mothers catering to the eager noontime appetites of students who've trod their chilly way homeward, are usually on the lookout for appealing lunchtime ideas. Aside from the primary considerations of good nutrition and flavor, preparation of the midday meal at home shouldn't take too much time away from other important household chores. A hearty soup and fruit salad luncheon is one happy solution for all concerned. Here's an ideal recipe for such occasions featuring canned pink salmon and creamy corn in a colorful and substantial soup. Pacific Chowder is specially designed to satisfy all comers these nippy fall days, and a recipe to keep in mind later on, for last-minute suppers.

One 1-pound can pink salmon, 3 slices bacon, 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper, 1 20-ounce can cream-style corn, 3 cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper, ½ teaspoon sage, 1 cup diced cooked potatoes.

Break salmon into chunks; do not drain. In a large heavy pan with lid, lightly sauté bacon until crisp. Remove bacon and crumble. In fat remaining in pan sauté onion and green pepper until soft. Blend in corn, then milk and seasonings. Cover and heat slowly, stirring, until mixture barely simmers. Add salmon, potatoes and crumbled bacon and continue heating over very low heat until piping hot, about ten minutes. Serve in large bowls, with a little butter afloat, and minced parsley if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Salmon Potato Puff Casserole

Picture-pretty potato puff

No self-respecting cook considers her recipe files complete without a good collection of those all-encompassing main dishes which answer to the general term of casseroles. Canned salmon finds its way into many of the heartiest and tastiest of these. To add to your repertoire of really delectable casserole dishes which can be served with equal pride and satisfaction to a hungry family or guests gathered for an evening buffet, the Fisheries Association of B.C. passes along the recipe for a picture-pretty Salmon Potato Puff. The incomparable flavor of pink salmon is set off by a piquant blend of celery soup and chopped dill pickles, lemon rind adding an intriguing accent of its own. A puffy crown of fluffy mashed potatoes with a sprinkle of shredded cheese is a regal topping for this main dish.

Salmon Potato Puff

2 1-pound cans pink salmon, 10-ounce can condensed cream of celery soup, ¼ cup chopped dill pickles, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 5 to 6 medium freshly-cooked potatoes, ¼ cup scalded milk, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese.

Preheat oven to 375 deg. F. (moderately hot). Grease an 8-cup casserole or baking dish. Combine salmon (do not drain — the liquid contains valuable nutrients), soup chopped pickles, lemon rind, salt and pepper. Mix lightly to blend. Place in casserole. Mash potatoes, blend in milk and butter, with salt and pepper to taste, beating lightly until fluffy. Fold in baking powder. Lightly pile on top of salmon mixture, lifting with bottom of spoon to get attractive raised effect. Sprinkle shredded cheese on top. Bake in preheated oven about 30 minutes, until thoroughly heated and top is lightly browned. Makes 6 servings.

Kabobs for quick main course

(Consumer Section)

Kabob is a delectable combination of juicy bites of meat and vegetables (or fruit) broiled together on a skewer. Popular in the Near-East countries for centuries, this quick method of cooking meat has really just begun to catch on with Canadians.

Those of you who have discovered the convenience of kabobs, probably have cooked them on the outdoor grill in the summertime. You will find that the broiler of your stove does a good job of cooking kabobs for fall and winter meals. The metal skewers you will require (between 6 and 8 inches long) are available for a few pennies apiece at hardware stores.

The beauty of kabob cookery is that it's so quick you can leave the actual cooking until only minutes before mealtime. Another attraction is the colorful, almost limitless combinations of meats, vegetables and fruits which can be used together. As for serving, kabobs can come to the table poised on a bed of fluffy rice, nestled in a noodle ring, or pushed directly off the skewers into hot dog rolls for easy, informal eating.

Here is a recipe for Lamb Kabobs as made in Canada's Kitchen:

Lamb Kabobs

1 Pound boneless lamb, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 clove garlic (minced), 1 teaspoon curry powder, 3 medium tomatoes (quartered), 2 medium onions (thickly sliced) or 12 pickled onions, 12 medium mushroom caps.

Cut lamb in 1-inch cubes. Let stand 1 hour in marinade of oil, vinegar and seasonings.

Make kabobs by threading alternate pieces of lamb, mushrooms, tomatoes and onions onto 6 metal skewers. Brush with oil and sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Broil kabobs in preheated broiler 3 inches from heating unit, 5 to 7 minutes each side. (Makes 6 kabobs).

FASHION NOTE

In store for the fashion-conscious this winter are bulky, loose, long-haired sweaters for women and the lithe cosmopolitan look for males — reports Ray Magladry in The Financial Post.

Stock up with holiday foods ahead of time

(Consumer Section)

Smart homemakers, at least those whose budgets bruise easily, like to begin their Christmas shopping early. Some extend this forethought to include food shopping, and it's a good idea, don't you agree? Nobody enjoys the prospect of having to cut down on food purchases in January in order to make up for going overboard in December!

Those of you who have home freezers have no doubt discovered the merits of stocking up with holiday foods well ahead of time. Besides spreading the extra expenditures over a longer period, this practice can save you a lot of last minute work and worry.

A peek into home freezers across the land right now would no doubt disclose many a Christmas corner heaped with goodies. For example, there might be a Christmas cake, plum pudding and the sauce to go with it, shortbread and all sorts of cookies, mince pies, butter tarts and homemade fudge. In some freezers there would be homemade rolls, tea biscuits or muffins; a bag of bread crumbs all ready for the turkey stuffing; cranberry sauce and relish and applesauce; a tray or two of hors d'oeuvres, nuts, crisp potato chips and crackers still in their sealed boxes or other air-tight containers. For hurry-up holiday meals a big batch of spaghetti sauce and one of baked beans; the family's favorite casserole and several really good pork pies (tourtières) would also be stored in the home freezer.

Of course, not all foods for the festive season require freezer storage. Christmas cakes and plum puddings, which should be made several weeks ahead of time for best flavor, will keep very well in air-tight wrappings or containers. Canned and bottled foods such as ham, chicken, seafood, juices, fruits, vegetables, pickles and the specialties you like to have on hand for parties, may be bought now and tucked away in a special spot in the back of your kitchen cupboard.

So, why not sit down immediately with paper and pencil and make out a list of the foods you're going to want for Christmas? If you pick up a few items on each shopping trip between now and the big day it will save you many last-minute, extra steps and at the same time cut down on your annual bout with the budget in January.

Now is the time to size up your house plants.

Specialists with the Ontario department of agriculture tell us to take a good look at our favorite house plants, then lower our eyes to the pots they're planted in.

The three usual reasons for repotting are: when the plant is too large and the roots are cramped; when the soil has become sour and the plant is unhealthy; or when the soil nutrients have been used up.

Coarser and richer soil than you would use for a seedling or cutting is used when you make a shift. Be careful not to damage the plant by letting it fall. The best method is to tap the old pot gently on the rim and keep your fingers over the soil.

After the plant is loosened from the old pot, remove a layer of soil from the top. Soil should be added on all sides in the new pot and made firm by pressing gently with your fingers.

If the new potting is done to improve the vigor of the plant, sandy soil, which is low in nutrients, should be used. Take the plant from the old pot and remove as much soil as possible by shaking and washing the roots with water. Use a pot just large enough to hold the roots, and water carefully, making sure none of the foliage gets wet. When the plant recovers, move it to good quality soil.

Christmas Bouquets

And now that summer gardens have failed to yield fresh bouquets of flowers, thoughts turn to next year's bulbs.

But before that, why not plan a pot of blooming hyacinth or narcissus plants for Christmas. The bulbs should be planted now with about three to a pot to form a full bouquet. Water thoroughly and put away in a dark, cool place. Occasional watering is necessary. Then about three weeks before the festive season bring the bulbs out into the warmth and light to start the top growth.

Garden bulbs, except for gladoli, begonias and dahlias, should be planted now if they are to be ready for the April showers.

Shotgun Fashions

Soon to be introduced in Canada are .410 gauge shotguns in red green, blue, pink, purple, black and yellow. Men may scorn this as feminine and frivolous, but actually the colorful guns have a safety feature. The bright colors attract attention if the gun happens to be carelessly laid down in the woods.

Now on the market are blown-up hangers which work on the same principle as balloons. The hangers are ideal for drip-drying clothes because the rounded shape allows air to circulate within the garment and the material does not stain wet fabrics.

Dogs at School

Police Chief Ira Davis at Trenton, N.S., said the kids will have to stop their dogs following them to school. He has nothing against dogs, but when they get together and fight on the school grounds the trouble starts. Chief Davis had to break up a scuffle involving nine dogs at the Diamond Street school the other day.

HAIRS ON YOUR HEAD

Head hair grows three eighths to three fourths of an inch a month — faster in summer than winter, faster during night than day, reports the October Reader's Digest. Individual hairs in the head live two to five years. Then the little tubes, of follicles, that produced them, shrink and go into a resting phase and the hair drops out. Thus, a certain amount of loss is normal — in the neighborhood of 80 hairs a day.

"THE GREAT PROJECT"

— By Ethel Kettyle —

It seems almost unbelievable, that in so short a time such complete changes have been made. Town and farm buildings torn down, now give place to green parks, and new towns have sprung up.

Strangest of all are the cemeteries; tombstones built into brick walls, with rows and rows of names, of people long deceased, and the various churches, to which they belonged.

PART 1 — MODERNISM AND ANTIQUITY

A cool morning in autumn seemed the ideal time for a trip along the St. Lawrence River. . . .

First, to the Museum in Morrisburg, Ontario — for the time being, situated on a quiet sidestreet, although it will at some later date be moved to a permanent spot near to the river.

Already the Museum contains hundreds of examples of some very fine craftsmanship of the United Empire Loyalists. These pieces have been gathered together by the Ontario - St. Lawrence Development Commission and consist of many early household articles, furniture and farm implements, representing the life of early times among Eastern Ontario's hardy United Empire Loyalists — the good neighbors of the early settlers in Quebec.

The assortment is destined to eventually furnish, probably, a dozen or more pioneer buildings, which will be located in the new park system being created along the north shore of the St. Lawrence.

Upon entering the Museum, one is greeted by a curator, or hostess, who graciously explains the many articles in the collection.

Primarily, the eye is caught by the huge, colorful oil paintings, which hang along two walls of the Museum. On the one wall is the work of the artist Frank Panabaker. These paintings are highly prized, as they are originals of many places along the St. Lawrence, as they appeared formerly, before such great changes were made. The collection consists of the following — (1) Galop Rapids; (2) Farron's Point; (3) Long Sault; (4) Long Sault (looking downstream); (5) Rapide Flot.

On the opposite wall is also a collection by the artist Manly McDonald, as follows — (1) Spencerville Mill; (2) Oxford Mill; (3) Chrysler Mill; (4) Glyndhurst Mill; (5) Dalhousie Mill; (6) Delta Mill.

The rich and gorgeous colors of the oils lend an air of brightness and modernism to the otherwise darker atmosphere of antiquity.

Intriguing also, is the china. Among the collection is seen — the old Blue Willow; a set in the Tennyson pattern (circa 1850); Ironside (1838); a showcase filled with Royalty patterns, leading up to more recent dates.

Outstanding is the finely-grained, dining-room table of butternut, to which an interesting history is attached. We are told that a huge butternut tree, which stood on a farm, was long ago struck by lightning; the better parts of the wood were later used to make the fine table, which now is exhibited in the Museum.

Also among the ever-growing collection of Canadiana are costumes worn in 1860, and a chest of handmade coverlets.

Interesting, and probably quite expensive, is a beautiful writing case made of mother-of-pearl.

An English game table stands nearby, and surprisingly enough, one sees — a pressure cooker (1815); a low-set stove, which was used for both heating and cooking (1880); a peculiar-looking bathtub made of tin (1840); a sausage stuffer; hair crimpers; a huge bicycle (1880); gunswords; yokes for oxen; grain cradles; old pine and cherry tables; and (lo and behold) another pressure cooker, complete with safety valve (1885); an entirely wooden clothes-wringer; a tiny stove, around which five irons are arranged, standing on end in order that all may be heated at one time (probably long ago used by a laundry, we are told). There are many more antiques too numerous to mention — which makes us wonder if our present-day, modern equipment will all one day become obsolete.

The oil paintings were given to the Museum by the Government, but all of the antiques have been donated by residents of the immediate and surrounding areas. — And now to go on to the Chrysler Memorial Park. . . .

MOOSE MIGRANTS THRIVE

One migrant from the "mainland" that seems to have had no difficulty in getting accepted in Newfoundland is the moose, points out The Financial Post.

For some reason, there were none of these big animals in Canada's tenth province prior to 1900. Then in the early years of the century a couple of pairs were introduced from Nova Scotia and given protection. They have thrived "fantastically", and there are now several thousand scattered across the province.

It was a fortunate introduction because as the moose increased, the native caribou, plagued with disease, began to disappear. So Newfoundland has continued to be a mecca for big game hunters.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Is it possible to hypnotize yourself into an accident by concentrating on the white traffic line in the centre of the highway at night?

I have been assured by psychologists that, under certain condition, the monotony of the white line may lull a drowsy driver into such a dull state of mind he may completely forget the danger of oncoming traffic or the sudden darting of a car from a side road. And there are a few rare — but none the less real — cases where drivers have actually been hypnotized into sleep by the white lines.

The centre line is a top-notch safety device and a real life saver when you are meeting the glare of undimmed lights — but don't let it give you a false sense of security. The driver who glues his eyes to the line and ignores other hazards of the road may be courting a much longer sleep than he intends.

Take a tip or two from professional truck drivers on avoiding "centre line monotony": rest the eyes with an occasional glance to the sides of the road; never look directly into the glare of approaching headlights; be certain to dim your lights when meeting cars; check your speed, oil pressure, engine temperature and other instruments fairly often as a mental exercise; whistle or sing, if you like.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. How does the Unemployment Insurance Commission select claims which will be investigated?

A. For obvious reasons, full information on this subject cannot be given. However, certain routine checks are made by local offices on every claim. An inspector investigates a claim if it involves circumstances that have been common in cases where untrue statements have been made to obtain benefits. Of course, any claim is thoroughly investigated if the Commission has definite reason to suspect that false statements have been made. This information may come to the Commission's attention through routine checks, or a signed or unsigned report from some other person.

* * *

Q. A man who began work this week asked the boss for time off today. He told me he was going over to draw his unemployment insurance. How can he work and collect benefits too?

A. As benefits for one week are paid the following week, the benefit he drew today would be for last week. From the wording of your question it would appear this man was probably unemployed last week.

* * *

Q. I bought a truck in my name and I am hiring my husband as a truck driver. Can I give him unemployment insurance stamps?

A. No. Employment by a person's own husband or wife is not insurable.

Cheese booklet available, free

It takes eleven pounds of fresh, whole milk to make one pound of Cheddar cheese. As a result cheese, like milk, is an almost perfect food.

Canada's Food Rules recommend that cheese be eaten at least three times a week. Are you serving it often enough? If not, why not start right now to make this good food a habit in your house?

In the booklet "Cheese Dishes" you will find all sorts of suggestions and recipes for using Cheddar cheese in supper dishes, salads and sandwiches. This publication is available from — Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

STAMP DEALER PAYS $17,000 FOR PAIR OF STAMPS

A Canadian record for a single stamp auction session was set when philatelists forked over $78,000 for rare stamps in Toronto, Ont. Top price of $17,000 was paid by Toronto stamp dealer Mr. L. A. Davenport, right, for a 12 pence pair of 1851 Canadian stamps, shown at left. Mr. Davenport said after the auction that "it is the highest price I have ever paid for a pair of stamps but it was worth it."

Stress in poultry

Ottawa — The tempo of living in poultry houses has increased in recent years and specialists claim that chickens suffer from stress.

R. E. Smith of the CDA Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S., points out that stress has resulted from intensive methods in breeding, feeding and management.

Like humans they can experience stress from dirty homes and utensils, overheating, chilling, insufficient feeding and watering, poor lighting, unbalanced rations and certain drugs. While few chickens are drug addicts, their owners are prone to administer some of the more highly advertised dope to the reluctant birds.

Other causes of stress are improper handling and moving.

Mr. Smith suggests that the poultryman attempting to digest the rapidly unfolding mass of information on stress turned out by the researcher, is likely to fall victim to the disease himself. It would be wiser, he suggests, just to stress sound feeding and good management, thereby reducing stress all round.

Dairy cattle big business

Ottawa (CP) — Milking a barnful of cows appears to be a bigger financial operation than most milk-swillers realize.

A study by the federal agriculture department shows that the interest, depreciation and cash operating costs for a 20-cow herd is $8,500 a year, and for a 35-cow herd about $15,000.

Income would have to be enough to cover these costs and allow for family living.

On a 20-cow herd, the experts figure, the break-even point is where the farmer received five-per-cent interest on his investment and $220 a month for labor. That requires that each cow produce 10,500 pounds of milk a year.

Gov't butter deal eases shortage relieves stockpile

By Don Attfield,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — The first batch of a 10,000,000-pound shipment of butter from the federal government's huge surplus holdings left for Britain recently, and the balance was expected to be on its way by the end of October.

The government sold the butter, for which it paid a support price of 64 cents a pound, to Canadian exporters for 56 cents a pound — an estimated loss of about $900,000 on the deal. But it also made a dent into the 100,000,000 pounds it is believed to have on its hands.

It lost eight cents a pound on the butter price, about a cent a pound on the storage charges. The exporters will take care of selling the butter in Britain.

British butter dealers asked the Canadian government several weeks ago to sell some of its surplus butter in Britain to help relieve a shortage created by a summer drought in Europe this year.

The deal, however, had delicate diplomatic implications. The last time, several years ago, that Canada sold some of its subsidized butter in Britain it received strong protests from the traditional suppliers of Britons' butter — New Zealand, The Netherlands, Denmark and Australia.

Canvassed Suppliers

This time, on receiving the request from British butter dealers, the Canadian government privately canvassed the supplier governments involved. It is understood they indicated they would not disapprove of the deal, just this once, in view of rising butter prices in Britain caused by the shortage and the consequent risk of losing customers to other cheaper products such as margarine.

The other governments are understood, however, to have made it plain they are still opposed in principle to any selling on world markets of subsidized food products at below-cost prices.

RESTRICT DIET

Harrow, Ont. (CP) — The Harrow Agricultural Research Centre has found that poultry fed on a restricted diet before maturing lay more eggs than birds given a full feed. But they need feeding more often and require more attention.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

DOG DAYS

Right now is a good time to ask yourself how you're feeding your four-legged friend.

Which of these statements are true and which are false? . . .

If you bit for any, you don't rate high as a dog nutritionist.

These statements, says Dr. Leon F. Whitney in his "Complete Book of Dog Care", are all fallacies which for years have prevented people from feeding their pets intelligently.

Dr. Whitney has published 30 books, including many on the care and feeding of "man's best friend." He is founder of the Whitney Clinic at Orange, Conn., and a member of the Yale Medical School faculty.

A well-nourished dog is a happy, healthy pet who can resist infections and other diseases. If your dog does get sick, it's good to know that veterinarians can often take care of the trouble with penicillin or Terramycin, and with hormones and other modern drugs that work as well in pets as they do in human beings.

But all the better if you keep your pet healthy. And that's where rations come in.

Feeding Fido need not be a complicated chore, says Dr. Whitney. The important thing to remember, he advises, is that a dog requires a balanced diet of protein, carbohydrate and fat, just like other animals and people.

No need, however, to stand over a hot stove or work out special menus each day. A wholesome meal can be supplied by prepared dog food with or without family leftovers.

Dr. Whitney says a dog can digest anything you can, and a lot more besides.

Don't be afraid to feed your dog milk. Cooked fish — bones and all — is good occasionally and, says the veterinarian, so are corn, rice and potatoes — provided they are cooked.

MAY BE YOUR FAULT

By refusing to lower your headlights for an approaching car, whether or not the other driver dims his, you are blinding him. . . . Don't ever think you are the only one being inconvenienced on the highway.

Beavers enjoy trip by airplane

Geraldton, Ont. (CP) — Beavers airlifted by Ontario lands and forests department men under a redistribution program seem to develop a liking for flying.

The beavers take to the air as happily as they do to water, rangers have found. In fact some of them seem reluctant to leave the aircraft to start new homes when they arrive at the "planting sites."

Fifty beavers have been transplanted so far this year in the Big Trout region near Patricia, west of Lake Nipigon. Another 16 were recently reported to be held in pens at Kenogamisis air base awaiting transport to the Big Trout region.

Before being released the beavers are tagged on both ears for future identification. From returned tags valuable information is obtained on various aspects of beaver biology, including movement habits, their fluctuations in population, and length of life.

Star plowman honored by fellow agriculturists

Allan Hammond, Lachute farmer who, for the second time, will next year represent Canada at the World's Plowing Match, to be held in Rome, was paid homage Saturday evening at a surprise reception.

Hosts to this noted plowman of the Province of Quebec were the Hon. William M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, at whose farm the reception took place, the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, and the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association.

Allan Hammond won third place last month in the Canadian class of the World's Plowing Match held in Dundas, Ont. First place was taken by Bob Timber, of Mount Albert, Ont. Both he and Hammond will represent Canada at the World's Plowing Match to be held in Rome, Italy, in 1960.

Last year, Allan Hammond also represented Canada for the same event, held in Germany.

After being congratulated for his exploit and receiving the good wishes of his friends for the next world event, the winner was presented with a gift. In expressing his thanks to all those who had contributed to the party and to the gift, Allan Hammond gave assurance he would do his best to do honor to Canada when competing next year against the best plowmen of the world.

Among those present at the reception and supper were the Hon. W. M. Cottingham; Erskine Rodger and Ben Hammond, respectively presidents of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society and the Argenteuil Plowmen's Association, as well as the directors of these two groups; Mayor James McGibbon of Lachute; Mayor E. W. Smith of the Parish of St. Jerusalem; County Warden Clarence Neill; Arcade Larivière, president of the Provincial Plowmen's Association; J. A. Lafortune, secretary of the same Association, and others actively interested in the agricultural progress of this community.

Art works on exhibition Nov. 14-28

Friends and pupils of Vivian Walker at her country studio in Carillon, will be interested in the announcement of her fall exhibition of oil paintings, to be held November 14 to 28 on the mezzanine floor of the Laurentien Hotel, Montreal.

The Hon. Wm. Hamilton, Postmaster General, will officially open the exhibition at 4.30 this coming Saturday, and visitors will be welcome.

Mrs. Walker is exhibiting with two colleagues whose works are also known here, Irene Shaver and Edith Jackson Smith. The pictures with few exceptions will be landscapes, not previously exhibited. Mrs. Walker has concentrated on scenes in this county, including the Rouge River, Dunany, Carillon and the Laurentians, also the Maine Coast, while her companions have painted in Quebec Province and the Eastern States.

Plaque erected to Ralph Connor

The Eastern Ontario Review carries a news photograph taken recently at St. Elmo, Glengarry County, where a plaque was unveiled commemorating the famous Canadian author, Ralph Connor (the Rev. C. W. Gordon).

Ask town grant of $1,000 toward library enterprise

Notary Simon Valois and a strong delegation from the library enterprise, "Le Carrefour du Livre", appeared before the Council last week to request a grant of $1,000.

As spokesman Notary Valois outlined the aims of this organization, and its needs in order to ensure its continuance as a cultural venture. The library is an institution of a municipal character, he claimed; its doors are open to both French and English-speaking residents of Greater Lachute.

"It is known that provincial legislation is under study to bring aid to municipal libraries, but it is also realized the provincial government will take no hand unless the municipalities do their part," said Mr. Valois. "In St. Jerome, as an example, the city council grants $10,000 a year towards upkeep of the local library."

Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon agreed the request deserved consideration when the time came to draw up the civic budget, and he suggested that a committee be formed to study the matter. Aldermen Gerard Lefebvre, Stanley Holt and Mozart Carriere were appointed accordingly.

Ald. Lefebvre expressed an opinion that the first step would be to meet the various school commissions and come to some agreement prior to approaching the Council.

The grant of $1,000 requested by Notary Valois was suggested on a monthly payment basis.

The regular $250 bond drawing of the Chamber of Commerce was held last Friday evening at Boyd's Express offices. By coincidence two employees of that company, joint purchasers of the lucky ticket, won the prize; they were — Messrs. Romain Savage and Roger Guimond.

Remembrance Day rites observed at cenotaph in Memorial Park

In a crisp, sunny atmosphere last Sunday afternoon, veterans of three wars paraded to the cenotaph in the Memorial Park, headed by a color party and accompanied by members of local patriotic groups — including the C.G.I.T., Girl Guides and Brownies, Scouts and Cubs, all with their colors, the Ayersville Air Cadets, Army Cadets and the local reserve branch of the 37th Field Battery. Marching music was supplied by a drum and bugle band, from Vankleek Hill High School, composed of young boys and girls who added greatly to the proceedings by their smartness in both dress and action.

At the Memorial Park the customary placing of wreaths was followed, and after the two-minutes silence, marked by the firing a battery gun, the sounding of the Last Post and Reveillé, bagpipes and drum played "The Lament", which all proved most impressive.

While the gathering of citizens at the cenotaph could have been much larger, the whole scene was fittingly reverent, and the booming of the battery guns no doubt gave those present a slight idea of the sounds accompanying actual warfare.

Short addresses were given by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines; Mr. J. O. Latour, M.P.; Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon, representing Lachute town and the district mayors; the Rev. C. R. Lang, speaking for the Protestant churches; and M. l'Abbé St. André, representing the Roman Catholic clergy.

All spoke along similar lines, stressing the fact that we were present at this Remembrance Day service to pay tribute to gallant men who in past wars had paid the supreme sacrifice, in order that we might live. That they had left a heritage which is our leading light for the future, and that it is our duty to go forward, determined to build a better community, a better Canada, and a better world in which we may all live at peace.

The proceedings closed with the singing of the national anthem and all units marched off in order, a little extra performance being thrown in by the bugle band, which put on a demonstration of their marching skill, to the enjoyment of all present.

The grand parade was in charge of Comrade Bob St. Laurent, while Comrade Gordon Tabrett acted as m.c. for the proceedings.

Church Parade

On Sunday morning, veterans marched from the Legion Hall, first to Ste. Anastasie Church, then down Bethany and Main Streets, where Presbyterian, Anglican and United Church members attended services at these respective churches.

A Local Touch

It was interesting to note that in the Armistice parade held on Sunday, the Vankleek Hill High School Band was ably led by Miss Joan Cowan as majorette. Joan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cowan, former residents of Lachute.

BY CO-OPERATIVE AGREEMENT

Ontario expropriating land for Quebec Carillon project

Acquisition of some 2,600 acres of land has started in Eastern Ontario to make way for Hydro Quebec's Carillon power project on the Ottawa River — Ontario Hydro announced last Thursday.

Under a 1943 agreement between the two provinces, the Commission will buy the land, for lease by Ontario to Quebec.

The co-operative arrangement has already allowed Ontario Hydro to build three generating stations on the Ottawa, all of which flooded land on the Quebec side of the river. In each case, Quebec leased land to Ontario for the headpond area.

Ontario Hydro Chairman James S. Duncan said that, to provide uniform treatment and early notice to all property owners concerned, Hydro has filed expropriation on the 1,000 acres required in East Hawkesbury Township. Expropriation of the balance of land required will take place in two or three stages.

Each expropriation announcement will be placed in all local newspapers and property owners will receive written notice. Following this notification, negotiations will be conducted with each owner.

Altogether about 30 farms and parts of 30 others, 35 commercial and about 200 residential properties, most of them in Hawkesbury, will be involved.

"Although the Ottawa River divides Ontario and Quebec, it also forms a bond between electrical utilities in each province through the sharing of its waterpower," Mr. Duncan said.

"This co-operation has permitted Ontario Hydro to add 699,000 kilowatts to its generating capacity since World War II by building the Otto Holden, Des Joachims and Chenaux stations. These developments span the river upstream from Ottawa.

In each case, land on the Quebec side of the river had to be flooded. Now it is our neighbor's turn to benefit from the remaining hydro-electric potential allotted under the agreement," he added.

Expropriation of land for the multi-million dollar Carillon hydro project on the Ottawa River is meeting opposition in Hawkesbury — wrote Tom Kerr in The Ottawa Journal last Saturday.

Residents of an island called The Snye, the oldest section of the town, object to losing their properties and have come up with a counter-proposal that Mayor Rosaire Gascon terms "more sensible".

Favor Retaining Wall

They suggest that instead of inundating the land, a retaining wall be built around the riverfront side of the island. Council intends to bring the proposal before Quebec Hydro officials immediately.

Land is being expropriated by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission under a 1943 agreement between the two provinces. Most of the acreage needed is farmland. Notice of expropriation had already been filed on 1,000 acres immediately above Pointe Fortune, where the dam will be built. Another strip of farmland, running along the river front from Pointe Fortune to Hawkesbury will be expropriated next.

The third move is expropriation of The Snye, which includes 35 commercial properties and 200 residential.

There has been little, if any, opposition to expropriating the farmland. However, property owners in the Sny district met with town council, presenting a petition asking for reconsideration. The actual area to be expropriated hasn't been definitely worked out. It would, however, be bounded on the west by the Interprovincial Bridge at John Street and on the south by Main Street or a point near Main Street. The easterly point of expropriation is still to be determined.

One-Tenth of Town Submerged

"It would mean about one-tenth of the town going under water", said Mayor Gascon, "the part that

Pumpkin measures 5-feet around

A reader in the Brownsburg district, William Jackson of R.R. 1, took note of an item in The Watchman two weeks ago describing a pumpkin grown by Art Smith, Grenville Bay (21 inches around and 12 inches high). Mr. Jackson goes one better — having a pumpkin grown in his garden which measures 15½ inches in height, 58½ inches around, and "59½ inches horizontal". (It is assumed the girth is 58½ inches vertically and 59½ inches horizontally.)

The pumpkin is still unopened and may be seen at Mr. Jackson's. He enquires if anyone hereabouts can top these measurements.

(Incidentally, the fact of interest in Mr. Smith's specimen was that the pumpkin when opened produced 641 seeds, as reported by Lillian Hall, who counted them.)

Lions Club community rink re-opens with gala send-off

The most controversial figure in the N.H.L. playoffs of 1958-59, proved himself tops and 100 per cent in popularity when he appeared last week to give a sporting send-off to the Lions' Rink re-opening. The visitor was Red Storey, ex-chief referee of the National Hockey League, now public relations man for Thomas Adams Distillers Ltd. This time, Red filled a role less familiar to the screen-gazing public, as a highly interesting speaker and raconteur.

The occasion was a regular Lions Club meeting, held at the hospitable premises of Lowe Bros. Dairy (top-rankers among the Rink Committee's fairy godfathers). President Lorne Duncan presided, and the many guests included representatives of local clubs and sports organizations, numerous friends, as well as several local celebrities from sporting days of the older generation, and notables from the wider field of sports such as Art Skov, linesman and referee, and Dave Campbell, of senior hockey fame.

Caterers were Roger Chicken Products, who provided a barbecue supper, aided by the Shamrock pee-wee hockey team in green sweaters and white caps who served as waiters, and two valiant Lions, Bob Marcil and Gabriel Valois, all dressed for the part as chefs.

Incidental to club business, Lion Roger Regimbal gave a very gratifying report on public reaction and financial results of the recent opera presentation. It was voted to return a donation of $150 towards the fine work of the Ottawa Grand Opera Association.

Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon was at the head-table to bring good wishes from the City Fathers, and to recall, in humorous vein, some of the earlier town hockey experiences in which he had played a part. Another old-timer to recall these days was Wm. S. (Bill) MacKimmie, who served as arbiter on many a hockey game in the past. Another past hockey player present was Mr. Frank A. Brennian. The Hon. W. M. Cottingham had telephoned his regrets to the president, on his inability to attend; Mr. Cottingham had donated $75 as a gift for junior skating equipment.

The dynamic Horace Lamarche,

AT TOWN COUNCIL SESSION —

Building permits for lodge hall, residential and business sites

The regular Town Council meeting was held last week under chairmanship of Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon. Only member absent was Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion.

The bids for purchase of a new truck, with trade-in, received attention — the deal being awarded to Pollock & Graves Motors for $2,475, the lowest offer. Other quotations were received from Deacon Motor Sales, $2,690; Lacasse Automobile, $2,550; C & L Garage, $2,566; and Welden Motors, $2,636. . . . Ald. L. Laurin proposed, and Ald. S. Holt seconded, the purchase of the Mercury truck from Pollock & Graves. Ald. Pollock withheld his vote.

Mr. Denis Daoust, representing Sicard Inc., gave information on a snow blower which the Council proposes to purchase. He stated that delivery would take four or five weeks.

On behalf of the Cinema Lachute, Raymond Beaulieu, manager, asked for an adjustment of tax on that establishment for the period between its destruction by fire and its re-opening.

As regards the sale of a discarded fire truck and ladder truck, offers had been received from Deacon Motor Sales, from a Mr. Cayer of the Municipality of Greenfield, from Samuel Vivarais and from a Mr. Vezeau. The mayor and secretary were authorized to sell the vehicles at the best price available.

Building permits were granted to — Omer Church, for an extension on Main Street; A. D. McGibbon & Sons Ltd., for a warehouse on Chatham Street; J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, for enlargement of their bottling works; Gordon Elliott, for construction of a taxi stand; and to the Orange Lodge for a hall at the corner of Robert and Gilbert Streets.

Adelard Mallette, who is attendant at the town hall and memorial park, was granted a uniform salary of $55 a week the year around; in previous years he had received a reduced remuneration of $50 from November to April.

Chief Fernand Trépanier, through Ald. Mozart Carriere of the police committee, presented a bill of $224 for automobile insurance, which was duly approved.

Other bills passed for payment amounted to $22,664.55.

EVER HEAR OF TOGO?

Ted Hampson, Toronto's surprising young rookie centre, was born in a place called Togo, Saskatchewan. Hampson's last amateur club was the Flin Flon Bombers Juniors. He captained that club to the Memorial Cup, Canada's top prize for junior competition. That was in 1955-56.

Spitfires shaping for Lachute entry in hockey league

With Lachute, represented by Gaetan Malacket, entered in the Quebec-Ontario Hockey League for the coming season, the Spitfires are briskly engaged lining up a team which will creditably carry the colors for this town. Last call is now issued to any who desire and feel qualified to play — to communicate with Albert Malacket (LO 2-5111) or Laurent Brasseur (LO 2-6187) after 5 p.m., any day.

The Spitfires have a promising executive composed of Adhemar Cuerrier, chairman; Roland Renaud and Ovila Payer, 1st and 2nd vice-chairmen; Albert Malacket, secretary-treasurer; Raymond Laurin, Jacques Paul, Raymond Underhill and Buz MacRae, directors.

Drawing for Funds

The directorate is organizing a raffle to assist with the perennial problem of financing this team. Further details will be given on the sports page of The Watchman.

The team has held several practices, and the line-up will be selected and listed within the near future.

Overnight run, innovation tried by Auto Club here

Winners of the Hallowe'en rally of the Lachute Auto Club held on October 31 were Pierre Brousseau, driver, with Eric Berry as navigator. These two members of L.A.C. had also received second prize in the last summer rally held by the club.

The event was very successful. This was the first overnight rally, which will now be held annually. Twelve cars entered in the course, which covered approximately 250 miles, passing over all kinds of roads — first-class highway, paved country roads and gravel.

Starting time was midnight from the Lachute C.P.R. station yard, with the first car arriving back in Lachute at approximately 7.14 a.m. The route included Hawkesbury, Alexandria, North Lancaster, Morrisburg, Ottawa, Thurso and Grenville.

This being the most difficult rally yet, congratulations are in order to all members and visitors who participated. During part of the course, the average speed was measured in kilometers per hour, and some distances were also measured in kilometers. However, more interesting is the fact that the given route was not included in the instructions, and members participating had to rely on various indications, including landmarks, road signs, store signs, etc.

A short time ago a few local members entered a skill driving contest held by the Lower Canada Motor Club. Peter Haldiman, from L.A.C., took first prize in the American car class. Some of the members are participating in the Lower Canada Motor Club 200-mile rally to be held November 13.

Lachute Lions' Skating Rink

Activities and Highlights of the Week

Activities are now well under way at the Lions' Rink. The season's official inauguration took place Tuesday, November 3, when the members of the Lachute Lions Club held their regular semi-monthly meeting in Lowe Bros' garage, next to the skating rink. Several sports personalities, with His Worship Mayor McGibbon, the presidents of all the other service clubs in town, and other numerous guests were present to assure the Lions of their support in this worthy undertaking. "Red" Storey, the guest speaker of the evening, once again gave a good account of himself and surely pleased everyone with his humorous reminiscing and his up-to-the-point remarks. (A full account of the meeting can be found in another column of this paper).

The ice has been ready since November 1, and the little ones and the "not so little" are going at it with all their heart and soul. How about you, reader? You are welcome, at any time you please.

Lowe Bros. Dairy, Ayers Limited, Boyd's Lachute Express and Legion Branch 70 have agreed each to sponsor a team in the Pee-Wee Hockey League. Good luck to them all!

A Bantam League is now under formation. Anybody wishing to contact Lion Yves Gratton re the above can reach him by telephone at (office) LO 2-2471 and (residence) LO 2-5314.

Kindly note also the Rink telephone number — LO 2-9038.

Lion "Jos" Dumais, chairman of the Administration committee, has launched the Season Ticket selling campaign by giving each member his list of last year's subscribers and requesting him to contact them as soon as possible. This year's goal has been set at 500 subscribers, and it is hoped this minimum number will be reached and exceeded by far, since our skating facilities are already available.

Lion Horace Lamarche, president of the Rink Governing Body, made a plea in favor of 75 needy children (boys and girls of different ages) who would very much like to skate but their parents cannot afford the price of skates. Any reader of this column having discarded skates, is invited to donate them towards this good cause. Please forward them to Lion Jacques Bourgoing at the skating rink. Or preferably, bring them yourself if you can. This will give you the opportunity of judging for yourself what is being done at the Lions' Rink.

Thought of the Week

Those of you readers who can afford one or several subscriptions of $5 in the rink, but cannot make use of it either because you do not skate any more or perhaps because you have no more dependents — do you know that many, many needy kids in town would be more than pleased to do that skating for you; and on top of that they would be so grateful to you? If this is your case, please contact one of our members and give him your "Needy Kid" subscription. You sure will feel happy you have provided for many hours of good healthy recreation for a needy child this winter.

Fish research and photography diversions on island habitation

"Outdoor Round-up" — by Bob Atchison

October 28 —

The Dept. of Fisheries have pulled stakes for a few days so I will have an opportunity to give you the goings-on in their work.

This will start right from the very begining before they get the fish. First the net is soaked in lime solution, to stop the rot and the moss from clinging to it; next step is to dry it by hanging it on a rack for about 24 hours. It is then taken off the racks and put into metal boxes and coiled in such a manner that it will not bundle up or catch as it is dropped over the stern of the boat. As the boat is under power when this is done, you can see this is a very important part of laying the nets. There are two men who handle the nets all this time as it runs out; and the snarls and tangles that can happen if everyone isn't on his toes, is something to behold. The sinkers on the nets naturally hold them open once they are in the water, and they can be in water very shallow or very deep.

The water is then sampled, and this is another one of those tricky operations. A bottle is let down where the nets are, the stopper removed, put back on once the sample is taken then brought up. It is classed by depth and locality, then put away for shore testing. That being done, the next step is a bottom sample of the lake, be it mud, gravel or what-have-you. This is much the same procedure as the water sample, only instead of a glass for the sample it is metal, with claws on it. The same work as the water sample is then gone through. Then a thermometer is enclosed in a case, let down to the desired depth, taken out of the case and left under for a period of five minutes. On being brought up, the readings are taken and catalogued. In the cataloguing of this information cards are used — and boy, there are hundreds of them. Every bit of information relating to the water bottom, etc., is placed on them.

The nets are left in 24 hours and then lifted. The reason they are left in only 24 hours, is that a dead fish is no good for their work. On being lifted, the fish from that particular net with all the important data on it, are listed once more on cards; then they start the sampling of the fish. All the ones alive are killed, and the ones dead in the net are thrown away. This may sound funny, but when they are killed right at the time of lifting, they have a knowledge of the time of death. Not so with a fish dead on arrival at the top. This part of the operation is a time-consuming affair, as the stomach contents have to be checked for feed, etc., and also to see if any of the fish have lake trout spawn in the contents. Then from the stomach they are checked for parasites, then weighed, measured and looked over for freaks. A sample of scales is then taken, put in an envelope and put away for later study. This enables the Research group to give the age, etc., of the fish. Any of the fish that may present some freak question to be answered, are stored in bottles for later work.

All fish caught in the nets are treated this way, so you see, it is a huge operation. They are not through then, however. The nets have to be cleaned of any moss, etc., tangles taken out, then the whole process is started all over again. No matter how many fish may be taken, they are all treated in the same manner. And from my observations from start to finish, anyone who goes into this work has to be a dedicated person. To compensate for the rugged work, lack of sleep, wetness and cold — you would have to be.

It's a marvelous thing that there are people who like this work and know what the job entails in the way of discomfort; otherwise we wouldn't know much about the habits of the fish.

Now for some news of the Canada Geese. These are pretty well all gone by now, except for a few scattered flights. But the Brant are in, in very great numbers. A lot more are around than last year. It could be the feed being placed around, and one tells the other. I'm not too sure if the Snows will be along this way, as they are not an inland bird. The ones that did come in last year were most likely stragglers and working south another way. However, we have hopes of seeing a few of them.

The Ducks are really starting to come in. There was a big flight of Buffleheads that we were fortunate enough to play host to. So it looks as though the Ducks have made up their minds to move on for another year. I've also seen a few Whistlers and Canvas-backs, but up to the present there have been a very few Teal in.

Having had a little more rain, the marshes are filling up very well and the birds are feeding in them. For anyone wanting to gun, it is an ideal set-up. As a matter of fact, I know a few back home who would give their eyeteeth for a set-up like this. Just to make it a little worse for them — no decoys, no sitting in a boat and freezing. Just walk along the marshes and there you have it. Jump or pass shooting, at the very best. Too bad they aren't with us, just to see it. But it's still no shooting!

Sunday, November 1 —

Visitors yesterday, VIP's. It was very warm and a beautiful day, more like summer than fall. As usual, a tour of the Island was in order, and during this another Massasauga Rattler was taken. This one is alive, and we are hoping to keep it like this until we get back home to Lachute; 42 inches in length and wonderfully colored. Sunning itself on a rock, it was kind of dopey; it was a simple matter to pin its head and give it a wack, thus putting it to sleep until we managed to get it into a big glass crock. Right now it is all coiled up inside the house sleeping. This one is complete with rattles and everything else that goes with it.

Another interesting thing — there are a terrific amount of big crows on the Island. They came in the other day on the way south. I may say they are developing lead poisoning in a small way. Only five of them have been shot, so that won't help matters too much. I'd sure like to have a varmit rifle where you could reach out a couple of hundred yards and smack them. As it is, you've got to get close to them, and most of the time they are scared off. I don't think there is anything nicer than to see a Crow get his come-uppance from a slug. Maybe I'm bloodthirsty with crows. Only one thing I like about them is the fact that you get a lot of sport out of stalking them.

November 4 —

Some more visitors, but this time a radio message was sent. A camera crew from the Dept. of Lands (Public Relations branch). They are going to be with us for a few days taking pictures of the Deer, Ducks and other game. A fascinating operation, if ever there was one.

The Deer were first on the list, and naturally the weather didn't co-operate. Rain, snow, etc.; some pictures were taken, of course, and it will be very interesting to see them when they are processed. The crew are supposed to shoot 1,500 feet of the Island. I don't know all the equipment that is being used, but it is a large amount. Some of the cameras are huge. I have just been told this is the regular type being used by Walt Disney. I have also been promised a run of the film for our club in Lachute. When I have a little more time I will go into all the details of some of the gimmicks used in taking these pictures.

It will make you laugh to read this, and of the way the Canada Geese were stalked to get good pictures of them. One of the camera men smeared himself with mud, put on a covering of grass — and I do mean a covering. It is a rig made of canvas with twigs and grasses sewn into it, a very effective camouflage. I'm going to make one of them myself — come in very handy for sneaking up on the game to watch it.

There must be about a ton of equipment being used for these pictures. They are being shot in color and black and white, along with a few different systems I haven't even heard of.

November 7 —

The camera crew are having a tough time getting good weather for their films. Up to now it has rained or snowed every day, with just a few odd moments when the sky was visible. They have not shot enough pictures for a series on TV, by any means. It now seems possible they will call for a plane to pick them up. It wouldn't be a very good trip in a boat just now, due to the formidable waves. The temperature this morning was an even 20, not too cold; but consider a wind of 38 m.p.h, and you have something. Another thing, they are running out of smokes and it sure is funny the things that are going on to save the butts. Seriously though, there are complications showing up, due of course to the weather. There is also some talk of them coming back in the spring, to shoot a series of films on the birthrate, etc., of Deer.

Well, I'll end this on a little better note than usual. From the ominous reports on the radio from other parts, I will give our Lachute hunters a big hurrah for their care in handling firearms. Keep up the very good work.

FIRST "HAT TRICK"

Jean-Guy Gendron, hard working left winger of the Boston Bruins, was the first player in the National Hockey League to garner a "hat trick" this season. Gendron scored three of Boston's six goals as the Bruins defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-3, on November 1.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."

Your bank advertises in The Watchman, DO YOU?

Problem of the 31 per cent

A SERIOUS PROBLEM exists in Canada, which will become more acute in the years ahead unless some form of positive action is taken. Workers over 40 continue to experience real difficulty in obtaining employment because of arbitrary age barriers.

It is a problem which has been conscientiously met by a few employers. However, many business establishments still practise restrictive hiring policies based on broad assumptions which brand workers over 40 as "ineligible for employment."

Prejudices against older workers remain, despite the fact that industrial studies have shown that in most occupations age does not bring a slowdown of productivity, does not increase accident frequency, does not increase absenteeism through ill health, and does not appreciably decrease the learning processes, and that pension plans are seldom a legitimate excuse for refusing employment to an older worker.

The problem will continue to grow as long as arbitrary age limits persist. Advances in medical science are prolonging life. Seventy years ago, Canadians over 40 years of age constituted only 20 per cent of the population. Today 31 per cent of the population is in the "older worker" group.

Government alone cannot improve matters, but with the help of more enlightened employers, we could benefit thousands of fellow Canadians. Here is a reservoir of labor, possessing those attributes which come with maturity and stability, awaiting the realization of its potential by alert businessmen who are willing to hire on the basis of ability and merit, not by the calendar.

Democracy's ways are "catching"

IT MAY BE pure coincidence, but the recent unexpected decision of Moscow consumer goods stores to let Ivan and Katrina start purchasing on the instalment plan, came right on the heels of Mr. K's return home after his trip to the land where buying on time is as much a way of life as singing commercials, coffee breaks and ten-gallon hats in Texas.

Coincidence or not, one thing emerges clearly: Russian women are no different from their sisters in Paris or Toronto or San Francisco. The Associated Press dispatch noting the start of the "buy-now, pay-later" plan for Muscovites, reported that among the items in greatest demand were silver fox furs!

The Russian twist on the standard plan is that periodic payments due are not made to the store, but are deducted from the purchaser's pay cheque by his employer. Our system is better — suggests the Canadian Manufacturers' Association bulletin. Who wants the boss to know that we're buying a shotgun on time?

Animal instinct

TRAVELLERS now for several months are free of that summertime puzzle — trying to figure out which places are operating on daylight saving time. They're all on standard time, until the clock-switching starts again next spring.

This daylight saving business started in England in 1916, and the U.S. followed suit. In Canada and the U.S. daylight saving time was in effect all year round from 1942 to the end of the war, as a measure to conserve electricity. Britain in fact, adopted double daylight time — two hours ahead of standard.

Some places of course retain standard time. Alberta and Prince Edward Island, by provincial laws, are on standard time all year round. So are the Yukon and Northwest Territories, and among cities, Fort William, Port Arthur and Windsor in Ontario.

The animals, big and little, wild and domestic, keep time by their natural instincts, as every farmer and pet-owner knows. There was a particular illustration of this just recently in Toronto, which with a multitude of other places returned to standard time for the winter.

Tuffy, an elderly and sedate cat, had spent the summer nights outside in the garden, but as the weather turned cooler he moved indoors for the night.

In recent weeks Tuffy would arouse from slumber atop the television set and stalk into the home-owner's bedroom with piercing miaows, demanding to be let outdoors immediately — at 6.45 every morning. After a stroll around the garden, Tuffy returned for breakfast.

The house-owner had carefully changed all the clocks and his wristwatch back one hour before retiring on October 24, and looked forward to an extra hour's sleep. Early next morning Tuffy came into the bedroom. Startled, the home-owner looked at his watch. It was 5.55. He looked at the cat, which glared impatiently back, and thought to himself that Tuffy must be getting confused in his old age. Then he remembered the clock was an hour earlier than it had been at this same moment the day before. Tuffy had never changed from standard time.

Says civil servants well treated

INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS of the civil service, according to reports from Ottawa, have been neither amazed nor unduly concerned at Finance Minister Fleming's decision to reject proposals for a general salary increase — says the Fort Erie Letter-Review. Nor can it be said that civil servants individually elsewhere in Canada are dissatisfied with their lot. They enjoy security in their employment, numerous other benefits, and salaries that are sufficiently high to continue to attract new applicants in large numbers to government employment.

If such in fact is the attitude of individual civil servants, it may be wondered why some civil service organizations have indulged in rash talk of drastic action aimed at forcing the Government's hand on the salary issue, while at the same time civil service groups across the country are planning protest rallies with the dubious objective of persuading the public, who pays their salaries out of taxes, to support them in their efforts to get salary increases.

These protest rallies are most assuredly ill advised. Ordinary folk are likely to be annoyed rather than sympathetic in the face of such demonstrations from civil servants, who are already well-paid and who, by any standard, enjoy a far greater measure of job security than any other group in the country — says The Letter-Review in conclusion.

Close reckoning

COLUMBUS MUST have been a good navigator to discover America and find his way home . . . even if he was seasick much of the time.

With none of the modern luxuries that almost make navigation an electronic breeze, he had to rely on "dead reckoning." This means he figured out where he was going on the basis of direction, time and speed — according to The World Book Encyclopedia.

Direction was easy to find with the good compasses available. Time was measured by an hourglass, presided over by a ship's boy, who turned it over the moment all the sand had run out and kept a record with marks on a slate.

Distance was figured by multiplying speed by the time travelled. But there was no way to measure speed, so Columbus estimated it. The records show that the "Admiral of the Ocean Sea" overestimated his speed; but because he was consistently wrong, the mistake didn't prevent him from getting back to Spain.

Even with a more reasonable estimate, Columbus made good time. Ships like the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria — called "caravels" — usually made three to five knots in a light breeze. In a strong gale, they made up to nine knots and sometimes hit 12.

Columbus' ships averaged about six knots a day for five consecutive days on the trip to America, and on one day, whizzed along at eight knots. The Nina and the Pinta at times hit 11 knots on the return trip in 1493.

Maybe it was this fast clip that made Columbus seasick. Or maybe that story is just another of the legends that have grown up around the wool weaver's son of Genoa who turned Europe into an "Old World."

"TAINT FUNNY"
(Reprint of 1952)

There's nobody so sad and solemn
As he writes a comic column,
Unless it is a circus clown
Who usually tries to drown
His sorrows at the nearest bar
Comedians, and funny folks
Who make a living cracking jokes
Usually seem, in private life,
To be weighed down with woe and strife.
The reason for this is because
They thrive on laughter and applause
So when the show is over they
Have no incentive to be gay.
The curtain falls. The lights go out.
There's hardly anyone about.
So to his room the funny guy
Retires with a mournful sigh.
He's not invited out to dine
Nor loaded down with cakes and wine.
The folks who paid their dough to hear him
In private life would not go near him,
And so he says; "There may be money,

Just holler, "Hiya, Sourface!"
There's nobody so sad and solemn
As he writes a comic column.

Britain sends her drug addicts to a doctor. Canada and the United States send them to jail. Britain has 441 registered addicts, North America has many thousands.

When are we going to wake up?

Britain's addicts have drugs doled out to them by doctors. North American addicts deal with criminals, and become criminals themselves.

Britain's policy works. Ours does not. Then why do our lawmakers cling stubbornly to their ancient ideas?

Our treatment of drug addiction, it seems, is at the stage that the treatment of mental illness was 200 years ago, when the experts held that people went crazy from pure spite and wickedness, or because a devil had got in them.

Standard therapy for mental derangement was to chain the patient to the wall and beat him. In the 20th century we continue to apply the punishment technique, in a more refined way, to those who are enslaved by the narcotic illness.

North America's too-puritan conscience is the source of the trouble. It teaches all things are black or white, never grey, and that all men are totally responsible for what they do. And wrongdoers must be beaten to drive the evil out.

If the sinner dies of the treatment, it was for his own good.

Lawmakers imagine they are doing the right thing, when they punish addiction as a crime. In fact they accomplish as much good as the witch-burners did — perhaps less.

Of Many Things

THE IMPORTANCE OF HOME

I have had occasion to spend a good deal of time with older people lately, and in my dealings with them I have found one thing that seems always to come up. They insist, without exception, that when they look back over their lives the most important memories are of home . . . the homes they lived in as children, and the homes they provide for their own families. One old man told me sadly that, "I guess I put less effort into my home than anything, but got more out of it." He said that if he had it to do over again, he would work just as hard at being a good member of the family circle as he did at being a successful preacher.

That made me think of Maurice Chevalier who, at 70, is creating new and fabulous successes. Chevalier has been smart; he has made several fortunes, but he kept his life very simple. "My life has always centred in my home," he said recently. He spends his money carefully, and most of it goes into his home. None of it goes to bluff others about his wealth. He doesn't gad around. He spends many nights just watching television, and he goes to bed early. "I want to live the kind of life I believe in," he said, "and not the phony kind."

It seems to me Chevalier has the right idea. I am pleased that TV seems to be helping to make home a central part of our lives these days, although I wish it could be done without too much TV watching. A nation of citizens raised in good homes is going to be a good nation, and strong.

I read that in China the communists are taking children away from the family as soon as possible, and raising them impersonally in communes. I grieve for those children, and for China itself. What millions of fine memories are being destroyed! And worst of all, those who are perpetrating this terrible thing are doing it in the name of humanity. They are convinced they are being virtuous, because they believe that in the long run China will profit from it.

That, to my mind, is the curse of these "isms". They all claim great virtue. They all seem able to commit the most heinous crimes while mouthing pious platitudes about the systems they are building!

Let's hope Canada continues to make home a sacred place.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN

In small communities served by volunteer fire departments there is probably a wider awareness of fire problems than in larger cities, whose firemen are paid civil servants. — Sydney (B.C.) Review

Query on out-of-town fire service; promising outcome in Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Two items of major interest to all townspeople, and outsiders too for that matter, headlined the November session of the Brownsburg town council.

With the approach of the cold weather, the home fires are being set once more — and as is the case every year the fires are not always kept under control. This month the fire department was required to answer two alarms, one due to a faulty chimney, the other because the flow valve on a space-heater was left open at "full" after the oil was lighted. While discussing the subject of fires, Councillor George Therrien raised the question, "What happens in town when a fire occurs, if the fire truck is out of town attending a blaze?"

This question sparked some lively discussion, and as a result it looks as if better things are in store for the fire department in the way of equipment. The recommended procedure at the present time involves the readying of the town truck to carry a fire hose. The three volunteer firemen remaining on duty at the station in the absence of the regular equipment, must lower the hose onto the truck by means of a pulley system. Since this is a difficult and dangerous operation for three men, Council will provide two additional men to help with these preparations, whenever the fire truck is required to leave Brownsburg.

A much improved system has been promised, however. Council has indicated that they will provide Chief Robbins with a trailer so that the extra fire hose may be kept coiled on it ready for immediate transportation, should it be required in town. (All that remains now is for Council to provide the portable water pump that Chief Robbins has been asking for.)

The other item of major importance is the fact that the town has purchased a new Sicard truck with snow-clearing equipment attachments. For the sum of $16,134.95 the town should have snow-free streets this winter. Perhaps the sidewalks will receive some benefit from this acquisition too, since the equipment on hand at present was not used too successfully in past years.

Police Chief Richard Bell's report listed a total of 9 speeding tickets issued, 1 ticket for parking, and 1 for a red-light infraction. (The speed timer is barely earning its keep at this rate.) When asked about the fact that the police siren is very seldom heard in town, one of the councillors responsible for regulation of the police department stated that the town is depending on the speed timer to control traffic . . . Really ??

Rolland Lepine's application was accepted for the position of extra constable, replacing Phil Paquette. This move will provide a badly-needed second car for the force.

Council also voted to accept the Provincial Government's offer to equip the McGibbon bridge with lights, provided the town pays for upkeep and power consumed.

Payment was approved on monthly vouchers amounting to $2,409.16, and $676.51 additional costs for street improvements. This included sewerage facilities on Woodbine, and asphalt on various streets.

Toronto Baptist Seminary students visit Brownsburg this coming week-end

Brownsburg — Principal the Rev. G. A. Adams, the Rev. W. P. Bauman (professor) and several students of Toronto Baptist Seminary will hold services in the Brownsburg Regular Baptist Church this Saturday and Sunday. Students from England, Jamaica, the Fiji Islands, the United States and Canada, who are in training for Christian service in Canada and other parts of the world, will be among this group. Personal-experience testimonies of conversion and God's call to the ministry, accounts of pioneer missionary work, accordian music and vocal solos, are some of the items on the program.

The Rev. G. A. Adams will preach at both morning and evening services on Sunday. Mr. Adams was led to trust in the Lord by one of his fellow seamen while serving on H.M.S. (Aircraft Carrier) Indomitable during World War II. Following his naval service, he studied at Toronto Baptist Seminary and the University of Toronto, where he earned the Bachelor of Divinity and Bachelor of Arts degrees. He also held pastorates in Harriston and Toronto, Ont. Last spring, following several years spent as an instructor, he was appointed as principal of the Seminary.

At the Saturday night rally the whole Seminary group will take part. There will be a hearty sing-song, a musical hymn-quiz, with testimonies and special music. . . . Everybody is welcome to attend these services.

Echo from H&S conference Nov. 7 on traffic safety

"HOLD YOUR HORSES"
(Specially Contributed)

Speed is the No. 1 Killer on the highway today! Deadly, uncontrolled speed is nothing more than runaway horsepower. It was uncontrolled horsepower that caused almost half of last year's 38,000 deaths in Canada. . . .

This was one of the facts given to your delegate at the Quebec Federation of Home and School Traffic Safety conference on Saturday, November 7.

Traffic conditions today provide one of the major topics of conversation. Nothing seems to infuriate people more than this movement of vehicles and/or pedestrians — depending at which end of the movement you happen to be. Let us, and every parent, try to keep the next generation from a similar fate.

Poor Traffic Habits

"Elmer the Safety Elephant" program, sponsored by The Toronto Telegram, is the launching platform for our children's safety habits. Elmer emphasizes the six steps towards safe destinations:

1. Look both ways before you cross the street.
2. Keep out from between parked cars.
3. Ride your bicycle safely, and obey all signs and signals.
4. Play your games in a safe place, away from the street.
5. Walk when you leave the curb.
6. Where there are no sidewalks, walk on the left side, facing the traffic.

Elmer is a lovable little elephant who never forgets these safety rules.

Do you realize — that each day throughout Canada 71 children will go to school and not return home for supper!

Parents, please repeat these rules to your children in an attempt to rid ourselves of the ruthless waste of young lives.

Veterans of four conflicts attended Armistice banquet

Well over 100 veterans of four wars — the South Africa, the 1914-18, the 1939-45, and the Korean conflicts — sat down to a turkey dinner carefully prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Legion Branch 70, at the memorial hall last Saturday.

This annual event was under chairmanship of Comrade Chas. Duncan, who welcomed all present, stating that it was some 20 years ago that the idea of holding an Armistice or Remembrance Banquet had originated here; the attendance had grown considerably since the second world conflict. He spoke of a timely editorial which appeared in last week's Watchman, entitled "A Time for Thought", contributed by Comrade B. A. Jenkins, which referred to the 69 men from this town and county whose names appear on the 1914-18 cenotaph, and the 20 men whose names have been inscribed on the 1939-45 monument. 'They have done their share — they have given their all. . . . How about you and me? They have handed on the lighted torch to be held high. What happens from here on, depends on us."

Those were only a few thoughts from the article, which could well be read again and passed on for further guidance and meditation.

Mr. Duncan mentioned briefly the many activities this Branch has been interested in, such as the collecting of $760.68 in the March of Dimes campaign, activities in the Lachute Spring Fair, teen-age dances, purchase of hospital equipment, sports contests and the Poppy campaign. Moneys raised from the latter are used solely for the welfare of needy veterans or their families.

Among guests introduced were Mr. and Mrs. Solomon, Sid Berry, of Welland, Ont., Neil Moore, Mr. Bolton (England), Mr. Chambers, Sterling Pollock, of Remembrance Branch 75, Col. and Mrs. James (colonel of the Black Watch and a South Africa vet), Donald Duncan, and Miss A. Black, of Montreal.

The guest speaker, Comrade Alex Solomon, was capably introduced by 1st Vice-President B. Jenkins, who described him as a tireless worker who had been with the Canadian Legion since 1925, and its honored president in 1953-54.

If a title could be given to Mr. Solomon's address it would possibly have been, "Am I my brother's keeper?" for throughout his talk his theme was — What have we done, and what can we do, for others?

On an occasion such as this, he mentioned, we think back on our youth, our war experience, parades, and the loss of our comrades. But what they left is more than a memory — they are, and always will be, very near to us. They have left us something to live for — collaboration and a comradeship. All, both living and dead, can meet and re-dedicate their efforts and strength. We are not professional veterans but citizens, and outside of Lachute, we are all close neighbors. As such we live and learn the rule, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

The crest of the Canadian Legion is a proud badge to wear, he said, while complimenting Branch 70 on the varied activities in which they were taking part for the benefit of youth and the community.

Polio, the dread disease which came upon us so suddenly in August 1946, found us without preparation of any kind, and no funds whatsoever. Here was a public service that the veterans' organization could work on. The Parade of Dimes idea was conceived, and 160 telegrams were sent out by Comrade H. Paré, then the provincial president, who conceived the idea, appealing for funds and assistance. Within 48 hours, $48,000 had been received; iron lungs, braces, crutches and other necessary equipment was bought for an epidemic which, it was thought, would subside in one year — but that was 13 years ago, and we are still fighting and helping in many ways. One individual who was stricken has been greatly assisted, and in two years will graduate as a bi-lingual notary — an almost hopeless case that has been saved and rehabilitated.

The first clinic for anti-polio shots was held at Pte. Claire in 1958. Teams were sent all over the province and to date there have been over 300,000 inoculations. From July 1 to November 1, over 200,000 shots were given, and Lachute district, through the Legion's help, has given over 4,500. Service of doctors, nurses and assistants was all free. Then came the catastrophe when 75,000 shots of vaccine were stolen, just as a clinic was being held in City Hall. An appeal for its return was made from Laval des Rapides over the air, with a warning to the public; and within 48 hours it was returned. Yes, there have been increases and a further outbreak, but of the total, 97% of those stricken had not received the required treatment.

This work, he said, is "far better than any stone or memorial", and is an honor to those who paid the supreme sacrifice. We have created a feeling of Canadianism and thought for each other, that, "I am my brother's keeper."

"Our good works are growing, for we now assist in so many ways, with physical therapy training, donations to McGill for pulmonary equipment, buses, hospital beds, braces, and assistance in the disease of haemophilia. . . . And so it goes", he said, in closing, "we still have plenty to do, and we will need your help."

Mr. Solomon was ably thanked by Vice-President T. Coney, and the gathering dispersed prior to the evening dance, which was largely attended.

Physician's role topic of address at Lachute W.I.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute, Lachute branch, was held in the Legion Hall, with Mrs. A. Gordon in the chair.

An outline of the Health and Welfare program for the current year was given by Mrs. E. Rogers. This stressed the importance of immunization against polio and other diseases, for people of all ages. Attention was also drawn to the Red Cross first-aid classes, to be held in January at the High School.

Plans for a "Bring and Buy Sale" to be held at the December meeting will be under the direction of the Finance Committee — proceeds to be used for Christmas parcels for the needy.

Mrs. A. Gordon gave a brief report on the County semi-annual convention. A copy of the speech given by Mr. John Anderson at the Plenary Session, Ninth Triennial Conference at Edinburgh last August, entitled "Man's Hunger," concerning the fight against disease and starvation in many parts of the world — was read by Mrs. George McGibbon.

Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, guest speaker, chose as his subject, "The Changing Role of the Doctor in Society". He mentioned the primitive way in which the art of medicine was practised in ancient times and the superstitious beliefs up to the 19th century, when quackery and poor medical methods were used. Dr. FitzGerald spoke of the advances made towards research and preventative medicine, expressing the belief that this Dominion of ours could produce the best kind of organized medicine in the world; so long as doctors are given the position to act.

Mrs. E. Rogers expressed appreciation and sincere thanks to Dr. FitzGerald for his interesting address.

Remembrance

By Ethel Kettyle

They seemed so very far away,
We wondered if we'd meet again,
For they were o'er the sea at war
To strive a victory to gain.

We still dwelt safely in a land
Where was no sound of shot or shell,
While they were, oh, so far away,
To bear the agonies of hell.

Where soldiers fought and bled and died
To save our country and our homes;
For those who caused so cruel a war,
Could they for suffering atone?

Oh, is it greed that causes war?
At intervals they come and go;
Nothing can compensate for lives
Or for the sorrow and the woe.

For fathers, mothers, friends and wives,
Anxiety and pain and loss;
But He who suffered most of all,
Gave up His life upon a cross.

The funeral was held last Saturday at North Augusta United Church, with interment in Rosedawn Memorial Gardens, Maitland.

Marketing is topic for Forum opener

On November 16, the farmers will have an opportunity to listen to a broadcast on the subject of "The Marketplace".

It has been obvious to producers for quite some time that too much emphasis is being placed on production alone and not enough on marketing the product. It is realized that many products are not marketed in the most efficient way in Canada, and that the producer is the man who loses.

There are many ways by which producers, through their organizations, can influence the marketplace on which they sell their products. Not only may they change the method of sale, but they may often affect price, by bringing more buyers to bid competitively for the product. But there are major obstacles to the best-laid plans of the producers. Some of the obstacles are caused by their inability to agree on a workable marketing plan; others are caused by those who have long profited by the farmers' inability to co-operate for his own benefit.

This topic may well be the most interesting of the season. It will be followed by another broadcast and Farm Forum Guide, at the end of November, on the subject of "Farmers in the Marketplace", outlining the marketing programs which have been developed in Canada.

The first broadcast in this series on Marketing will be at 8.30 p.m. on Monday evening, November 16. Farm Forum Guides may be obtained from National Farm Radio Forum, 113 St. George Street, Toronto 5, Ont.

Brief presented on safe operation of school buses

The Province of Quebec Safety League has urged upon the provincial government a need for greater care in the operation of school buses throughout the province. In a brief presented to the Hon. Antoine Rivard, Q.C., M.P.P., Minister of Transport and Communications, the Safety League through its president general, Mr. John S. Farquharson, urged among other things medical examinations for drivers and an inspection of vehicles used to transport school children. The Safety League feels that the best way of promoting safety is to place the school buses under the control of the Transportation Board.

Claiming that the most important figure in safe school transportation is the man behind the wheel, the brief suggested a yearly examination for drivers on such points as vision, hearing, fast reaction time and presence of any disease which might make him collapse.

The brief also stated that some school buses were of sub-standard quality. Many accidents throughout Canada have been traced to such defects as badly worn tires, worn out brake linings, smashed headlights, rusted emergency doors or plywood cabooses built on light trucks.

The Safety League pointed out that some communities do not take their responsibilities in these matters seriously enough. Some contract for school bus services on the principle of the cheapest service, not the safest. The government should establish and enforce standards which would protect all children in the province using school buses.

After listening to the proposals, the Hon. Antoine Rivard, who is also Attorney-General for the province, said the recommendations would be handed over to the Transport Department officials, who are at present revamping the "code of the road". He felt sure that the requests and suggestions from the Safety League would be "taken in good part" by those responsible. Commenting on safety in general, he said traffic was mostly a question of education and he commended the Safety League for what it has done along those lines.

"THE GREAT PROJECT"

— By Ethel Kettyle —

PART II — A LIVING MEMORIAL

Along the St. Lawrence River, on the Ontario side, parks serve a twofold purpose: the preservation of the historical associations of the St. Lawrence Valley, and the creation of a recreational area. As the Seaway and power projects meet the material wants of man, so do the modern park areas serve his recreational needs.

Situated a few miles east of Morrisburg, Ont., Chrysler Park, a 2,000-acre combined recreational area and historical memorial, commemorates the victory of British and Canadian, troops over the American forces in 1813.

The park is now well underway and will contain historical and folk museums; picnic grounds; a working model of a lock and canal, a replica of the 18th century; a bateau, in which tourists may ride; a golf course and a large restaurant.

A War Museum is being built on a high mound of earth, and a memorial is placed overlooking the river.

Later we came to the (now being constructed) Upper Canada Village. Here, many men may be seen working on the authentic construction of U.E.L. homes, barns, churches, taverns and shops. Outstanding is Christ Church (Moulinette) 1836, which has been moved to the Upper Canada Village.

The village is separated from the Memorial Park by a brick and stone Memorial Cemetery. It is constructed by a wall of material salvaged from buildings situated in the area, which now forms part of the headpond for the power project.

As one stands and looks at the cemetery, it seems sad, strange and unique, for set into the wall are many tombstones dating back to the early days of first settlers, in the late 18th and the 19th centuries. The tombstones from the various congregations and religious sects are separated into different areas, stating to which denomination each belonged, with the names of such given as a heading.

Many of the stones are worn and cracked, but nevertheless, in years past, they marked the resting places of those who were dear to one or many.

In conversing with one of the men who was superintending the work in the cemetery, he explained that the stones built into the walls, were the stones taken from the unclaimed graves; other stones had been moved to cemeteries nearby.

One could almost visualize the water of the mighty St. Lawrence flowing over the former quiet cemeteries which commemorated the dead. But the busy world moves on, and there is little time for sentimentality. After all, our place here on earth perhaps is not really so important; it is the hereafter that counts.

Pre-Christmas Toy Project

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Boys and girls learn generosity by putting something of their own time and energy and money into their giving. There are always families with small children living in very crowded quarters where toys which will keep the youngsters busy and happy would be most welcome. Children's homes and hospitals frequently need toys. The Red Cross, the Children's Aid, Mission Centres, and many White Gift Services in the churches, or Service Clubs' Christmas Cheer baskets, are glad to receive well-made toys.

A mother can often enlist the interest and support of a teen-age girl or boy in "first-aid" to damaged toys. Painting is an absorbing occupation and it is wonderful what a coat of paint will do to brighten up a battered wagon or weather-beaten sleigh! Care must be taken that paint does not contain lead or injurious substances if it is used on toys for tiny tots who chew or bite anything they can put their fingers on during the tooth-cutting stage. Beware of loose parts, like wheels, or glass eyes, which can come off and might be swallowed! Sharp points which might harm a baby's eyes are also taboo. Up to the age of two, toys should be "sterilizable."

Puzzles are fun to design, based on attractive colored pictures in magazines. Instead of the usual curved jig-saw design, try marking off the back of the puzzle with light pencil lines into one half inch squares and then make your own design of L. T. Z. and other shaped pieces. This results in a different and very popular puzzle for a child of five, six or seven.

Even if there are no toys stored in the home, with a little thought and direction, an older boy or girl is often eager to make a plaything for a needy child or a small cousin. An attractive nest of cans can be constructed from tin cans of various sizes which will fit inside each other. They may be painted and pictures pasted on them. A drum or rattle may be made from a circular box (such as a cereal container) by covering it with colored cretonne or painting it.

A boy who is clever with his pen knife could carve some animals out of a large bar of ivory soap for bath toys. Objects carved from soap may be painted with tempera colors and covered with a coat of shellac for protection. A girl who is gifted at sewing or knitting can always delight a small girl's heart on Christmas morning by making dolly clothes.

Some other toys which are suitable for young children can be made with little expense. These include colored pictures. A child of kindergarten age appreciates a large, strong scrapbook, with a bottle of paste and a collection of pictures ready to be pasted into the book. A doll house made from two orange crates or from sturdy boxes is one project a brother and sister might undertake.

Attractive soft-stuffed dolls and animals are easily made and are playthings loved by small youngsters. The boy who is handy with a fret-saw can make pull toys and jointed animals which will fascinate a two, three or four-year-old.

The first Christmas season was marked by God's greatest gift to mankind, the Babe of Bethlehem. The Wise Men knelt before him and presented gifts of frankincense, myrrh and gold. A man or woman, a boy or girl, can enter into the joy of this glad season as they prepare a gift for a needy child, or plan to delight a small relative with a home-made toy. A Christmas toy project is one of the most rewarding pre-holiday activities!

Whitefish with variation

The fish and seafood realm provides delightful eating — from raw oyster appetizers through popular salads and sandwiches owing their good flavor to canned salmon, on to sophisticated cuisine such as broiled live lobster. This is an ideal time to enjoy old favorites and to experiment with enticing new fish dishes. Often a new one evolves by the simple device of a special sauce. This was the case at the National Fish 'n Seafood Buffet held by the Fisheries Council of Canada, in October. The culinary artists of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel paired succulent grilled whitefish fillets with Beurre Noisette for a truly unusually good-tasting treat. Beurre Noisette is nothing more or less than browned butter, yet such a simple touch does wonders for bringing out the finest flavor of the fillets.

Grilled Whitefish - Beurre Noisette

3 Pounds whitefish fillets, ¼ cup olive oil or salad oil, salt and pepper, 1 cup butter, lemon slices, parsley or watercress.

Allow frozen fillets to thaw on refrigerator shelf overnight. Place fillets, skin side down on preheated broiler rack. Brush with oil, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Broil about five minutes, then turn. Brush again with oil. Continue broiling until fish will just flake when tested with fork — about ten minutes per inch thickness of fish. Meanwhile, slowly heat butter in small frying pan until delicately browned. Keep hot. Arrange hot grilled whitefish on heated serving platter, pour Beurre Noisette (browned butter) on top, garnish with lemon slices and parsley or watercress. Makes 6 servings. (If desired, Beurre Noisette may be served separately in a sauce dish).

Bouillabaisse of Cod à la Marseillaise

Soup stew — a rare import

In the culinary world there are few creations as zealously enjoyed by gourmets as that renowned fish "soup-stew" known as Bouillabaisse. Epicures will travel out of their way to Mediterranean towns such as Marseille and Saint Tropez, where the preparation and serving of this dish are almost a ritual. Indeed, some establishments refuse to serve it if certain varieties of fish haven't been "biting" properly.

The continental Bouillabaisse features a mixture of many fish varieties native to the Mediterranean, slowly and lovingly simmered with vegetables and particular seasonings. Once the mingled flavors have mellowed to a succulent blend the brew is served to its appreciative audience. Some prefer the broth served separately as a soup, followed by the "main course" of fish and vegetables, others demand the mélange all at once — in large soup plates atop crisp French bread or croutons. Today we share with you a richly flavored Canadian adaptation — Bouillabaisse of Cod à la Marseillaise — from the chef at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal.

Bouillabaisse of Cod à la Marseillaise

1 Cup julienne strips of raw carrot, 1 cup julienne of onion, 1 cup julienne of celery, 1 cup julienne of leeks (optional), 1 cup julienne of fennel or chopped spinach, 1 teaspoon saffron or more, ½ cup olive oil, 3 28-ounce cans tomatoes or 2 quarts of fish stock (heated), ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 2 pounds fresh or frozen cod, 4 ounces vermicelli or thin spaghetti, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, hot sautéed croutons or French bread.

In large pan with lid, gently simmer vegetables in oil until soft. Sprinkle with saffron; add salt and pepper. Add boiling liquid; cover and simmer about 30 minutes. Add cod and vermicelli, boil gently until fish will just flake when tested with a fork — about ten minutes for fresh fish, a little longer for frozen. Correct seasoning. Add parsley.

This hearty soup can be served in two ways. Chunks of hot French bread are placed in large soup plates or bowls and the liquid and fish mixture poured over, to be eaten as an almost complete meal-in-a-dish. Or the alternate serving method in the manner of Marseille, is to pour the liquid over crisp croutons in bowls, to be eaten as soup, followed by the fish as main course.

Makes about 6 servings.

Do You Know That:

— Eggs sold in Canada must be graded as to quality and size. — For details get your free copy of "Buy by Grade" (revised 1959) from Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

— Eggs are sensitive. They should be kept under refrigeration because quality rapidly deteriorates when eggs are kept at room temperature.

— Eggshell color has nothing to do with the quality of the egg. Some breeds of poultry lay white eggs, others brown.

— Eggs should not be frozen in the shell because yolks when frozen become gummy. Either sugar or salt must be added for successful freezing of whole eggs and egg yolks, but nothing needs to be added to egg whites being frozen separately. (See "Freezing Foods" available from Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.)

Chicken dishes are captivating

Select one plump fowl — simmer slowly, season well, and take your choice of the many captivating chicken dishes you can make.

Because the fowl is a mature bird its flesh has plenty of good flavor and the long, slow cooking (about 2½ hours for a 4½ to 5 pound bird) tenderizes the meat.

The broth the fowl is cooked in has good flavor, too, and it is perfect for using in soup, chicken aspic, chicken pie, à la King, etc. When boiling a fowl the Consumer Section suggests using 5 cups water for a 4½ to 5 pound bird (either whole or cut up) and adding salt and pepper plus a carrot, 2 stalks of celery and a small onion, all cut into pieces. (Turn the fowl several times if cooking it whole.) If you have a pressure cooker use only 1 cup water and cook the fowl about 35 minutes.

So that the fowl has a chance to reabsorb some of the juice, let it cook in the cooking liquid. Then remove it and separate the meat from the bones, discarding skin. Strain the stock and skim off the fat, saving both. The fat helps to give additional good chicken flavor when used in making the sauce for chicken à la King, chicken pie and casseroles.

Food for thought on "Young Canada Book Week"

Mrs. J. Ward Rember, provincial convener of Education, Quebec Women's Institutes, gives some thoughts for Young Canada Book Week, November 15 - 22:

"As Young Canada Book Week approaches, it might be well to stop and think about how taste in reading develops. Dora V. Conover, the Janet Jean of the Hearthstone Circle, stated a few years ago that 'taste in reading is developed through sampling, comparing, evaluating, and deciding for oneself."

Naturally parents and teachers have a responsibility in helping their charges to develop good, healthy tastes in reading, but that does not mean either forcing or prohibiting. Both are more than likely to defeat their own ends. Your child will not "swallow" everything he reads, any more than you will, yourself. How can he ever discriminate if he does not sample?

Besides, it may be just possible that he may have developed a better taste in reading than you. With modern school libraries, many children are very likely to be better read than their parents. Older people may not even understand many of the newer technical books. Many, especially teen-age boys, devour these with the keenest enjoyment. On the contrary, many books which adults may think just wonderful, do not interest youth.

Women's Institute members, and others, are always glad when they discover in a community plenty of good reading matter available to the youth of our land, for then they know that prospects for an informed youth will lead to 'better things'.

An encouraging picture of the reading habits of Canadians is given in the words of the Dominion Archivist and Librarian, Dr. W. K. Lamb, when he said, "More books are being published and more books are being read. Books are not done for. Books are booming. I believe that books are an essential weapon in the struggle to preserve and develop what is best in civilization. Only books can give us the far-reaching freedom to pick and choose."

All those who believe the above to be an accurate statement, surely cannot overlook an opportunity to assist in making this year's Young Canada Book Week a success.

STRANGE BIRDS

Fort Frances, Ont. (CP) — About nine birds believed to be turkey vultures — found only in more southern parts—were sighted near here. The red-headed vultures are rare in this area.

Fashions

If something different in slumber wear interests you, then how about a sleep coat? This one is of white cotton with strips of bright blue marking the collarless neckline, the front and the hem. The push-up sleeves are ruffle edged. Inspired by an Italian smock, the coat is as comfy as it is cute.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman

By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A souffle isn't always something you eat. The word now is being used to describe the knit of a late fall and winter Canadian woollen fabric.

Those in the industry have found a revival of pattern interest ranging from tiny, shadowy checks to big horseblanket plaids.

The colors are muted into darkened greens, bronzes, golds, greys and browns — hence the souffle — for daytime wear. At night, fashion will be ablaze in brilliant shades of blue, red and green.

The result is expected to be a happy combination of Paisley and winter floral patterns, along with vivid single-color gowns.

Plaid-mad is the description tagged on to teen-agers for the winter season. The new blanket surfaces, which adapt well to plaids, will be used in both separates and dresses.

Women and Money

Hold on to your purse strings! Mother Victoria, a teacher of family economics at Ursuline College in London, Ont., says a housewife in her lifetime may spend upwards of $100,000 as the family's purchasing agent.

Speaking at a meeting sponsored by the Canadian Association of Consumers, she noted the importance of a family financial plan. She had four recommendations: watch buying habits (if we demand good value, we'll get it by the way we buy); be alert and well-informed by following the consumer price index and the financial pages in newspapers; use consumer co-operatives, and try to establish a good sense of values.

To help reduce the food bill, she advised housewives to learn to use the cheaper cuts of meat; work skim milk into the menu; check the newspaper for specials and know when they really are bargains, and learn the government system of grading.

More Advice

Another Londoner, Dr. W. P. Percival, speaking in St. Catharines told members of the University Women's Club that a university-trained woman "is usually a delightfully interesting person to her husband and a great help to her children."

Mothers, he said, are responsible for both the physical and mental health of their families, and he called for boosting the prestige of homemaking as a career.

"The career mother who has learned her psychology well and knows the workings of the mind can swallow much that otherwise would irritate. She can create the atmosphere that can put all things right, and make a home a delight instead of a battlefield."

Sense of Humor

Delegates at the area convention of Southwestern Ontario Women's Institutes at Ridgetown were told to sharpen their sense of humor, to ease tensions and anxieties.

W. A. Young, padre and public relations officer for the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, said: "Living is an art requiring skill and practice. It is more than making a living."

People forget how to live, the speaker said, "because they are too absorbed in making the almighty dollar."

RESCUED FAMILY

Rosemere, Que. (CP) — Policeman Norman Trepanier escorted a woman and two children to safety recently after high winds toppled a tree, draping high-voltage power lines over the family's home.

was settled first when Hawkesbury advanced from a trading post." The artificial lake that would be formed by the dam would bring the water over the island.

The property owners suggested that a retaining wall would be more economical than expropriation . . . that town land is "more valuable than that on the Quebec side of the river".

"It's a very good suggestion", Mayor Gascon said. "Failing that, they could bring the level of the land higher than the rise the river will take."

Mayor Gascon said he understands that Quebec Hydro has already handed over $2,453,000 to Ontario Hydro for the expropriation.

"Surely it wouldn't cost as much" if a retaining wall was built. He intends to press for "this more satisfactory" arrangement with Hydro.

Said the ratepayers' petition to council: The power project will bring no benefits to Hawkesbury . . . town construction workers aren't even able to get work on the project.

An editorial in The Hawkesbury Echo reflects an uncertain attitude on the above protest. Following is the opinion voiced in the last issue of that newspaper:

"For some time now, the question of expropriation has been high in the minds of the people of Hawkesbury. Some, who were almost certain to be affected by it, signed a petition demanding that the Quebec Hydro build a retaining wall around the Snye to protect it from the flood which will be the result of the new dam.

"Now, something else comes seeping out of that venerable part of Hawkesbury. It seems that most of the people want the Quebec Hydro to reconsider their petition. They don't want to stand in the way of progress, even at the expense of seeing their homes inundated.

"Of course, they have good reason to think that their part of town won't be flooded. Some old-timers remember back to the days when Hawkesbury had an annual spring flood. The C.I.P. pulp yards were flooded as well as certain parts of town including John Street. It seems that the Snye was hardly affected by these once famous floods.

"Now it seems that the people of the Snye have thought the red-hot issue over and have decided that they won't need a dike at all. Progress must march on."

Woods conservation by practice

Louise Graham holds a young tree ready for planting, as Lindsay Laughren shovels. A 125-acre tract of land has been placed at the disposal of the students by Canadian International Paper Company to help them learn the principles of full land use. Louise is secretary and Lindsay president of the Students' Council.

Students learn woods practices at Arundel School Tree Farm

Students at Arundel Intermediate School are now being taught the principles and practices of full land use on a tree farm placed at their disposal by Canadian International Paper Company.

The 125-acre tract of land, now known as "Arundel School Tree Farm", is located in the Rouge River valley some three miles north of Arundel.

All students may use the area, which is under the direction of the Students' Council. Administration is handled by a local management committee, while technical assistance is being given by personnel from C.I.P.'s Grenville Woodlands Division.

Mansel R. Wilson, the company's resident manager, stated that the tree farm would be turned over to the school once it was on a sound footing and operating effectively.

On Friday, November 6, the students invited the management committee, members of the community and C.I.P. representatives to visit their farm. Following the visit, the guests were received at a dinner in the school gymnasium.

Following the meal, Mr. Wilson presented a roadside sign to Lindsay Laughren as president of the Students' Council. Two power saws were presented, one by Terry Machinery Co. and the other by Pioneer Chain Saws and Farmers' Supply Company, Lachute.

Principal Melvin Graham stated that the woodlot will also be used for recreational purposes by various student groups. It is hoped that, on occasion, courses of the regular curriculum, such as general science and biology, may be held there. The students hope to build a chalet for use as a meeting place on their farm.

The Students' Council is permitted to choose two members of the management committee—one from the school staff and one from the community. Their representatives are Principal Melvin Graham, who is also an active tree farmer, and John MacAulay. The other members, appointed by the School Board, are Messrs. Coral Swail, Stuart Cooke and W. H. Williams.

Members of the Students' Council are—Lindsay Laughren, president; Louise Graham, secretary; Helen Batty, treasurer; Tyrone Courte, vice-president; and the following representatives—Grade VI, Conrad Graham, Iona Miller; Grade VII, Arthur Craig, Dale Boyd; Grade VIII, Billy McMahon, Barbara Swail; Grade IX, Myrna Staniforth, Tyrone Courte; and Grade X, Hugh Williams, Louise Graham.

Tree Farm sign presented

At an executive meeting of the Chamber of Commerce chaired by the president, Adhemar Cuerrier, one of the chief items of discussion was the provincial seminar on tourism to be held November 28-29 at Ste. Adele. The president was named as delegate to attend these sessions, which will also be in the form of a general meeting for Chambers of Commerce from Quebec Province.

The conference will centre its attention on a brief emphasizing the importance of Quebec's tourist industry. Promotion will be studied from five angles:

(1) Publicity and external relations.

(2) Organizing of bodies, government units and other authorities to foster the tourist idea at home.

(3) The French characteristics of Quebec.

(4) Hotel and restaurant facilities, and a general atmosphere of welcome.

(5) Highway systems, rest spots, camping facilities, etc.

The Chamber of Commerce rates the tourist business as highly important. It must be developed and cultivated, if it is not to be siphoned to the benefit of other provinces, of the United States and even abroad.

On the Municipal Front

Among other matters dealt with by the local Chamber executive, was a suggestion to have two directors as official representatives at Council meetings. Also the Christmas decorating of Main Street, to be in charge of a committee including — Messrs. Donat Saulnier, Edgar Laurin, Guy Belanger, P.-E. Pariseau, Laurent Ducharme, Fernand Lagarde, Dave Schwartz, Antoine Malacket and Guy Lafortune.

Compliments were handed to those responsible for parking spaces provided at the rear of two stores — those of Jos. Malacket & Fils and Gaetan Malacket.

The Chamber is seeking a further consultation with Town Council on the matter of modernizing the street-lights on Main Street—keeping in mind the Chamber's existing offer of $7,000 towards this project.

Bertrand L'Heureux drew attention to the fact that a two-storey

Traffic cases before court

Three local residents appeared in St. Jerome Court during the past week on charges of driving while their ability was impaired. Judge Omer Coté handed down fines of $75 plus costs and license suspensions in all cases.

Three-month suspensions went to Marcel Tremblay, 42, of Lachute, and George Seale, of Louisa. Leo Forget, 53, of Lachute, had no driving permit when arrested, and was forbidden to drive a motor vehicle for a six-month period.

All charges were laid by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen of the local Provincial Police detachment.

Hunter, aged 73, dies of seizure

Garnet MacIntyre, a 73-year-old Kilmar resident, dropped dead Saturday while hunting in Harrington Township with Evan Young, of Calumet. The victim had climbed a hill and was starting down the other side, when he was fatally stricken. Investigation was carried out by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen and District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur; the latter declared the death due to natural causes. No inquest will be held.

One-room fire at hotel, male occupant asphyxiated

A Sudbury (Ont.) man was asphyxiated by smoke early Monday morning in a one-room fire at the Lachute Inn, on Brownsburg Road. The dead man was identified as Réal Mondou, 33, who was in Lachute attending the 25th wedding anniversary celebrations of his sister, Mrs. Romeo Poirier.

According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, the victim retired around 1.30 a.m. following the party held in Lachute on Sunday afternoon, and it is believed he fell asleep while smoking. A hotel employee awoke around 6.40 a.m. to the smell of smoke, and immediately notified the fire department, several members of the volunteer brigade answering the telephone alarm, along with Police and Fire Chief Fernand Trepanier. (No general alarm was sounded, the whistle being out of order.)

Police-Fire Chief Trepanier and two hotel guests managed to get the body from the smouldering mattress. The booster hose on the fire truck was used to extinguish the blaze in the bed. Only the one room was damaged by fire, smoke and water.

The investigation was turned over to Sgt.-Det. Allen. District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur declared the death accidental, the remains being taken to the local morgue. No inquest will be held.

Curriculum and method explained to parents at Home-School meeting

That the attitude toward education, by all concerned with it, has changed considerably in the present generation was well demonstrated November 11, when more than 142 parents and teachers crowded into the Music Room of Lachute High School at the regular monthly meeting of the Lachute Home and School Association.

The subject for the evening was "What your child will learn in school this year", and the large turnout proved that parents have become vitally interested in their children's education. In the past and previous generations, children were sent to school, and the teachers alone were expected to instil knowledge into them. Now the role of the parents in formal education is becoming more and more apparent, and so, through personal association, such as at Home and School meetings, the parents and teachers try to work more together for the benefit of the child, and to find out how each can supplement the work of the other.

The business part of the evening was presided over by president Mr. Garnet Pride, who introduced the new chairman of the Traffic Committee, Mr. Ernest Gow. Mr. Gow reported on a conference on Safety which he had attended in Montreal (most of which was written up in an earlier Watchman) and included ideas which could well be incorporated into the local Safety Campaign — ideas like: (1) The Elmer Plan; (2) Planned specific routes for children to follow to school; (3) Driving lessons for those over 16; (4) Bicycle tests.

Mrs. M. E. Walker reported on progress made in planning the military whist party (which was held November 18) sponsored jointly by the Scholarship Committee, the Clothing Bank, and the Students' Council, and which promised to be a very successful venture.

In speaking for the Scholarship Fund, Mrs. G. Dobbie stressed the importance of this work of the Association, and its need in order to encourage further education among deserving students. She also thanked those donors who contributed $40 to the fund.

ANNUAL DRAMA FESTIVAL HELD

Inter School dramatics, Oscars to young actors

Young performers from three district schools competing in a drama festival at L.H.S. last Friday, met with an encouraging attendance of parents and the general public. The event was an annual contest arranged by the Argenteuil Teachers' Association. Organizer was Miss Shirley Soule, of the Lachute teaching staff, who is chairman of the Education Committee of the A.T.A. The chairman of the program was Mr. Lucien Rossaert, also a member of the L.H.S. teaching staff.

Three plays were presented — one a tense drama by the Lachute group, and two comedies, by Brownsburg and Grenville schools, respectively. Titles and settings were briefly as follows:

(Brownsburg) "The Bathroom Door" — farce in a hotel.

Following the three plays the adjudicator, Prof. C. Wayne Hall of Macdonald College, was introduced by Mrs. K. Madden of Kilmar, vice-president of the A.T.A. Prof. Hall's comment and appraisal added both to the audience-interest and to the encouragement of the young actors. He commended the producers on the mechanics and technique of all three plays. Scenic adjuncts were simple but effective. The dialogues were line- and letter-perfect. And if the actors had lacked in any detail, it was in sincerity, he said; they had portrayed their parts well, but had not quite convincingly "lived" them — thus not fully capitalizing on the peculiarities for which the authors had created their characters.

This commentary on the merits and demerits of the performance revealed an apt and careful analysis. The adjudicator was thanked by Miss L. Primmerman, of Brownsburg.

Oscars were awarded by Prof. Hall to the following winners:

Trophy for the best all-round performance, to Brownsburg. Miss Nancy Freeland, who had played the leading lady of the cast, accepted the honors for her school group.

Trophy for the best actress — to Carolyn Binda, whose part in the drama by Lachute group lent itself to a sympathy of mood in which this young lady performed well.

Trophy for the best male actor — to David Fox of the Grenville cast, who played an interesting part in a setting full of surprises. Honorable mention in the male roles was accorded to Clarke Couture of Brownsburg, who was pinch-hitter on only three days' notice to play the leading man in the hotel comedy. Other special mention was given to Eric Cheslock, who played opposite the winning actress in the Lachute play.

As m.c. for the evening, Mr. Lucien Rossaert voiced his appreciation to the many who had assisted in this successful program.

Strong protests against abandonment of C.N.R. Montreal-Hawkesbury service

Hawkesbury—An attempt by the CNR to drop its Hawkesbury to Montreal service drew strong protests at a hearing of the board of transport commissioners in Hawkesbury last week.

More than 50 persons filled the local council chambers as the CNR told the transport board that the 54-mile line was losing money and that a bus operator had offered a revised bus service to take over from the train.

There were only six witnesses but the spectators who were allowed to ask questions gave all the appearance of being witnesses themselves.

A McGill University lecturer, a stock broker, a mining engineer and others who contended they commuted to Montreal daily fought to have the service maintained.

Despite the large number of people who said they used the line the CNR produced evidence to show that the dropping of the service would save $42,000 a year. On this section of the line from Hawkesbury to St. Eustache it was costing $2,000 per passenger. Only eight commuters travelled in one direction and five in the other and the daily average of passengers was only 20, including coach fares.

• • •

Previous Meeting, Resolution

It is recalled, as recorded in The Watchman, a meeting of interested parties was held on March 31 last, at Hawkesbury. A resolution was put forward at that time, as follows:

"That this meeting request the CNR to continue the present service for at least one year commencing April 30, 1959, in order that all interested parties may get together to ensure all railway facilities the company has to offer are placed before the public so they can take full advantage of the service.

"This will enable all concerned to study the matter from all angles in the best interest of the railway and the locality concerned, and ensure the general public the necessary service they require."

Extracts from Report in The Hawkesbury Echo

Final decision (on the future of the CNR line) rests in the hands of the Commission of Transport of Canada. The Deputy Chief Commissioner, Armand Sylvestre, Q.C., stated that a decision will be announced later. The reason for this was because there was a lot of translation to do and that the matter needed a lot of consideration. People from St. Andrews East, St. Andrews and St. Placide as well as St. Benoit gave testimony in the hearing, which lasted seven hours.

E. D. Angers, lawyer for the CNR, opened the session by calling on Edward I. Hardy, superintendent of the St. Jerome division, who elaborated on the deficit of the Hawkesbury - St. Eustache line. After a long enquiry on the average to take in order to reduce expenses it was found that a deficit of $42,000 still existed. Immediately after, a representative from the counties of Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes in the Province of Quebec, J. O. Latour, M.P., enquired why a train composed of seven cars and filled to capacity from Montreal to St. Eustache and gradually emptied from there to Hawkesbury was run. Evidently it appears that the CNR is not equipped to handle (this kind of transit).

Established in 1911

Alexander Gibson, assistant supervisor for the St. Jerome district, outlined the history of this line which was established in 1911 and until 1923 ran from Montreal through Hawkesbury and Ottawa to Toronto. In 1923 the line from Toronto to Ottawa was discontinued as was the line from Ottawa to

Death penalty for slaying of former Arundel banker

Ernest Cote, 36, of North Bay, was convicted in Hull Court Saturday of murder and was sentenced to hang March 11 for the shooting of Timiskaming bank manager Alexander Heron (who had served formerly in the Bank of Montreal at Arundel, and was favorably known hereabouts).

Mr. Justice J. P. Miquelon, in sentencing Cote said he had committed this murder shortly after being released from jail after serving 10 years of a 15-year sentence for armed robbery.

"You have shown by your remarks that you are a clever man, who could have earned a living in honest ways", said the judge, "but I am convinced the jury's verdict was the only one possible." . . . The all-male jury took only 15 minutes in reaching its verdict.

Evidence brought out by Crown Attorney Lionel Mougeot showed that Cote had shot the bank manager three times in attempting to rob the Timiskaming bank last May 15. The fatal shot was fired when Mr. Heron was lying on his back after being wounded twice.

The trial was moved from Timiskaming to Hull when difficulties were encountered in forming a jury in Timiskaming.

Canadian spirit urged by speaker at Richelieu Club

A seventh anniversary celebration of the Richelieu Club here brought together members, guests and ladies to a supper and dance last week — a gathering of approximately 100 persons, with the president, Raymond Beaulieu, as chairman of this pleasant function.

Special speaker for the occasion was Mme Solange Chaput Rolland, who was accompanied by her husband, André Rolland, of St. Jerome. This lady speaker has just completed an assignment to address meetings in various provinces, under sponsorship of the Canadian Club. Introduced by Roger Lagarde, she gave a thought-provoking address — in which she suggested one need only circulate outside our borders to realize that, in soul and spirit French-Canada is self-conscious and aloof. "We have been fortunate to be born in a country rich in culture, where bilingualism is one of the bonds of our Canadian unity. This bilingualism — one must love it to appreciate it, as a means to know each other better, to exchange ideas, and promote friendship."

The speaker delved into her experience with different audiences on her tour, and serious and humorous incidents she had encountered.

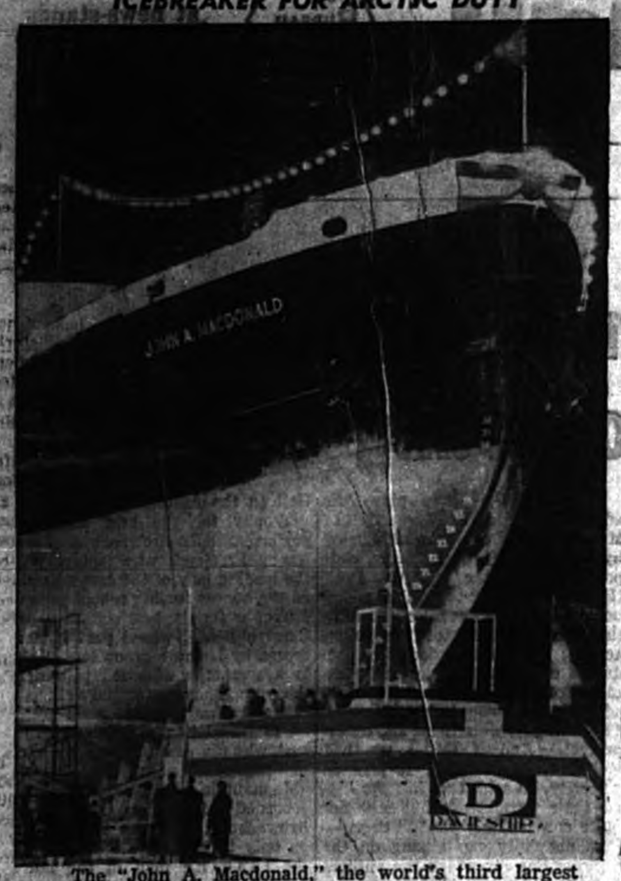

"Everywhere I have found an awakening curiosity on the part of English-speaking Canadians, towards fellow Canadians of French language. We are making an increasing mark in industry, in literature, arts and commerce. We have received much, but are we sure we have given much? We owe it to ourselves to play a more active part in Canada as a nation, and to radiate our joy of nationhood to the outside world."

Mme Rolland was cordially thanked by Mr. Paul-Emile Barbeau, principal of the Clement School, Ayersville. In conclusion she was presented with a crystal vase by the president, who also voiced his appreciation. A plaque was also presented to Notary Jacques Beaudoin in recognition of his devotion to the club as president last year.

Another speaker brimful of sparkle was Mr. Douglas Parker, who added zest to the spirit of this anniversary occasion.

ICEBREAKER FOR ARCTIC DUTY

The "John A. Macdonald," the world's third largest icebreaker was launched at Lauzon, Quebec, by Mrs. John Diefenbaker. The ship is headed for Arctic duty. Transport Minister George Hees says he expects the new breaker "to carry the Canadian flag farther north than any ship has ever attempted and to explore new waterways."

STRENGTH OF ICE

Each year a number of people lose their lives by falling through weak ice. Though conditions may vary, the following is a good guide regarding the strength of ice: Good clear ice two inches thick will bear men; four inches thick will bear horses and riders; six inches thick will bear horses and teams with moderate loads.

Boy Scout and Cub activities

By Barry Downing

The 1st Lachute Troop Boy Scouts challenged the Brownsburg Troop to a hockey game, at the Brownsburg arena, November 7. The latter, a more experienced team, proved tough competition for Lachute, and Brownsburg won 10-3. Richard Evans scored two of Lachute's goals and Howard Graham scored once. Lachute Scouts are practising for a return game.

Attendance has been exceptionally good at the last few meetings, and proficiency awards were given out at the last meeting. Second Class badges were presented to Scouts Barry Downing, Robert Gain and Howard Graham.

A few of the Scouts who took part in a recent camping trip qualified for the Camp Cook's badge. Scout Barry Downing had qualified for his badge at Tamaracouta and passed exams for it again on a more recent hike at the C.I.P. Harrington Tree Farm. Scouts Gerry Bignell, Russel Boa, Robert Gain and Howard Graham earned their award at Harrington.

The boys are showing keener interest in their activities since acquiring their new quarters on the J.C. Wilson Limited property.

Other entertainment will be provided.

RICH EXPERIENCE

It is refreshing to see amateur theatricals returning to favor. That the plays have shortcomings is all too obvious, but at the same time these dedicated part-time actors, actresses and directors are gaining rich experience the only way they can.

Doré's big muskie

The largest fish registered in the Molson's Tournament this year is a 37-pound maskinongé taken by Mr. Doré, a member of Lake St. Louis Fish and Game Club. This fish was taken near Windmill Point on Lake St. Louis, a stretch of water which has yielded many large muskies in past years.

The annual convention of the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations will be held in Hull, Que., on December 4-5. The Hon. Dr. C. E. Pouliot, Minister of Game and Fisheries of the Province of Quebec, will preside at the closing banquet.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

Local veterans have many happy memories of the 1959 Remembrance observance — the generous donations by business concerns and individuals; the co-operation of store owners who provided window space for displays; the many faithful friends of the Canadian Legion, particularly in outlying districts, who have once more helped to put the Poppy Campaign over the top.

Still fresh in our minds is the very inspiring address by the guest speaker at our Remembrance Supper, Com. Alex Solomon, which was ably reported by Com. R. A. Giles in last week's paper. — The many old friends who turned out for this supper. — The many new friends of Branch 70; such distinguished guests as Col. and Mrs. James (Honorary Colonel-in-Chief of the Black Watch) — Mrs. James being a veteran in her own right! — The very impressive "Lament" played by the R.C.A.F. piper and drummer during the act of Remembrance was the art of perfectionists; seldom if ever is this work done better, anywhere in the world. — The enjoyable social evening, well attended by veterans, wives, friends and townsfolk. — The Sunday-morning parade to four of the local churches; the impressive open-air service under a warm, sunny sky at the lovely Memorial Park, where members of government, business and service groups, and individuals, deposited wreaths of remembrance. — Flags dipped and then were hoisted skywards after the seemingly interminable two minutes silence, dramatically punctuated with booming cannons. — Gyrations of a well-trained junior pipe band from a neighboring community. — Long lines of veterans of four wars. — Youthful Cadets, Boy Scouts, Cubs, Guides, Brownies and C.G.I.T. members carrying standards high in the soft afternoon breeze. . . .

The sobering thought that, but a very few short years ago, we, the veterans, were standing in their ranks — shivering from the excitement of the occasion and the chill November days but not really comprehending the significance of the occasion. Back our minds speed to those carefree days. — A short prayer as the last notes of "Reveille" fade, that may it never be God's will that these youngsters be called to lay down their youthful lives in mortal combat between man and nations. . . .

Silently, as the parade disappears in the distance and the townspeople wend their way homeward, we shrug ourselves into reality — confident that in the coming year the living memorial which we in the Canadian Legion have carved during past years through acts of kindness towards our comrades, their dependents and all mankind, will grow and grow and grow.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."

Your bank advertises in The Watchman, DO YOU?

Problem of retarded children

THE PROBLEM of mental retardation is steadily increasing. Today's retarded children are becoming tomorrow's retarded adults, and more retarded infants are being born every day.

In the average Canadian community about 30 in every 1,000 children are estimated to be retarded in some degree — an incidence about 10 times that of crippling polio at its height!

This is not just a problem for the parents involved. It is a problem for everybody, because every family is vulnerable. More than half of the multitude of causes seem to have no connection with heredity, especially in the more serious cases. They are due rather to diseases or injuries that occur before, during, or after birth because of chance circumstances. Any family can be stricken.

The condition is so serious in about one-third of retarded children that they cannot benefit from ordinary schooling. They require expert assistance to develop simple skills, and they will need some degree of supervision throughout their entire lifetime.

To meet this problem, these things are needed:

(1) Diagnostic, treatment, and counselling clinics for the retarded child and his family.

(2) Visiting workers to assist parents in training home-bound infants and children.

(3) Pre-school playgrounds and nurseries for the seriously retarded.

(4) Special education and training matched to the different levels of ability among the school-age retarded.

(5) Vocational training centres and sheltered workshops for the young adult retarded.

(6) Social and recreational programs for all ages.

(8) Expanded accommodation and services in public Hospital Schools.

(9) And most important of all in the long view — well funded research to investigate causes and to lead the way toward prevention of mental retardation in the future.

We can count ourselves fortunate and express our thankfulness for children who are not retarded, by helping to finance research and services for those who are.

The school operated here by the Lachute Association for Retarded Children is a practical measure to meet this need. Apart from its local implications, this effort deserves support as an example of local initiative in meeting a large-scale social problem.

A good time to "Shop at Home"

WE ARE EVER promoting the policy of "Shop At Home." We cannot think of a better time to reiterate this important item in our day-to-day routine. With Christmas less than a stone's throw away, the big spending spree is apt to start any time. People are in a more liberal mood, they are buying gifts for loved ones, and for many it's a once a year spree at the gift stores.

It works both ways. For many smaller stores, laden with gifts, the revenue gained from the surge of buying in the next two months often means the difference between profit and loss for the whole year. That is why it is so important that we try to buy as much in the home town stores first, go elsewhere as a last resort.

Added to the lure of shopping in the larger city stores is the rash of so-called "wholesale" catalogues flooding the populace at this time of year. No doubt about the attractiveness of these catalogues, and the prices look good. Before you invest here, though, it is best to double check. Far away fields look awfuly green sometimes, and the bargains so well illustrated in some of these catalogues are probably no better than the ones being offered by the merchant down the street who depends on dollars being spent at home.

Our advice to Christmas shoppers is not to be lured by the prices that look better than the ones in the home-town stores. Investigate here first and generally the shopper will find that both service and price are as good or better than anywhere else. And by shopping at home the money remains in circulation in this area where it counts first. No matter how much you spend at home, you eventually get some of it back in one form or another.

As another weekly so aptly states, "Dollar for dollar, you do better to shop at home."

From swords to typewriters

THE OLD GENERALS who led the legions and the cohorts, the phalanxes and the squadrons, must be looking out of limbo with envious eyes.

Miltiades and Pausanias must have had their own ideas about each others' tactics for getting within spearing distance of the arrow-happy Persians; and of their respective strategies once they got there. But, alas, there was no way of putting it across to the folks back home.

When in 67 B.C. the Mediterranean was cleared of pirates in 40 days, Caesar undoubtedly confided to Claudia that it could have been done in three weeks if Pompey had stayed away from the circuses. But Julius had no printing press, no radio frequency, no TV channel. . . .

It's different now. Alanbrooke can accuse Ike, before a reading public of millions, of too much golf during the Battle of the Bulge. Ike's defenders can tell the same millions that the president never had a club in his hand, not once throughout the campaign. And when the irrepressible Monty says, "It's got nothing to do with me, this time," the whole world hears his chuckle.

Alanbrooke, Eisenhower, a dozen others who fought the world's biggest war (to date) have had their go in print. No doubt there's more to come.

To some readers it may appear undignified for these legendary figures to expose their feelings about each other, to second-guess. But perhaps it is a healthy sign to have these giants reveal themselves as so utterly human. Certainly the illusions of icy invincibility are gone forever. Out of the jumble of criticism and counter-criticism, thrown in as spice to these varying stories of the war, there emerges a picture of tremendous effort and of worrying, striving humanity.

Whether they know it or not, the generals in kicking certain pedestals have got down off their own. It is evident that it was not as supermen but as men (along with millions of others who never got into print, and those who made it only in the casualty lists) that they got the job done.

Financial statements "unrealistic"?

THE IMPACT of the "dangerous social disease" of inflation is not being sufficiently disclosed in financial statements — Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, has told the accounting profession. He was addressing the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Quebec, marking the anniversary of their incorporation in 1880.

When assets are acquired at one price level and consumed over a period of years during which money values change, financial statements which do not record these changes are suspect as being unrealistic, and indeed, misleading, the CNR president said.

"If recorded profits are inflated through the effects of changing money values, is it not reasonable to assume that real capital may be depleted through demands from shareholders for larger dividends, and from employees' rep-representations for higher wages?" he asked. "Is the life blood of industry being drained away?"

Calling for a program of education for the Canadian public in respect of the facts of inflation, Mr. Gordon said: "I believe that no one is better equipped than the qualified accountant to let people know the effects of inflation."

What was Canada's first Newspaper ad?

On March 23, 1752, the following advertisement appeared in the Halifax Gazette: "To be sold, by Procter and Scutt, at their store near the North Gate, cheap for ready cash, Choice butter, by the Firkin, or smaller Quantity." This was one of three advertisements to appear in the first issue of the Gazette, Canada's first newspaper.

Where was the first Ladies' College in Canada?

In Sackville, N.B., as part of what was to become Mount Allison University. The university is named in honor of Charles Frederick Allison who, in 1839, provided a gift of money and land for the foundation of Mount Allison Wesleyan Academy — a residential institution for young men of the Wesleyan Methodist faith — from which the university developed. In 1843 the academy was opened. In 1854, with further assistance from Mr. Allison, a similar institution was started for young women — the first ladies' college in Canada. Degree-granting powers were conferred on Mount Allison College in 1858 and the first college class graduated in 1863. Mount Allison has the distinction of being the first university in Canada (and possibly in the Commonwealth) to confer degrees on women. Grace Ann Lockhart was awarded the B.Sc. degree in 1875 and Harriet Starr Stewart was granted a B.A. in 1882. Mount Allison is now a United Church of Canada school, conducted on non-denominational lines.

Who first made Paper from ground Wood Pulp?

Charles Fenerty, who was born at Springfield Lake, Upper Sackville, in Nova Scotia in 1821. As a youth he worked in the sawmills owned by his family and he began to experiment in the making of paper from spruce pulp. The practicability of making paper from wood fibre had long been recognized by scientists and paper had been made experimentally by the action of chemicals on wood. As early as 1838 or 1839 Fenerty succeeded in making paper from ground wood pulp. He was the first man in North America to do so, and may have been the first in the world. Experiments were made in Germany almost at the same time as Fenerty's. Fenerty died at Lower Sackville, N.S., in 1892.

Space travel fiction

— By Lewis Milligan —

"Are we on the threshold of space travel!" That is the headline of a syndicated article by Charles Erentz and Robert H. Maudsey-Jones. The authors say "A dream countless generations of men have cherished is on the verge of realization." "Countless generations" to begin with, is an enormous exaggeration. There is nothing in ancient history or fiction to support it. The Bible goes back to the beginning of things and it contains no reference to a desire on the part of mankind to explore the realms of outer space. The Psalmist "considered the heavens, the moon and the stars," but his furthest flight was in imagination when he exclaimed, "though I take the wings of the morning and fly to the uttermost parts of the earth . . ." The mythical gods of Greece, after whom the stars were named, confined their operations to the earth, and the throne of Jove himself was no higher than Mount Olympus.

The big question-mark of space travel is whether it is possible for a human being to survive such an exploit. Experiments with dogs and monkeys, in which the poor creatures have returned alive, make sensational news items; but they only go to prove what we already knew: that no breathing creature can live outside the atmosphere without being encased in atmospheric conditions. The problem is not only how to create those conditions in a small capsule to enable a dog to breathe. Apart from the deadly radiation in outer space, we are told that "to function properly, the space traveller must be maintained within certain physical and chemical limits. He must have air-conditioned pressurized environment within the capsule. Even on a short trip this is a problem, but on a six months cruise to another planet it takes on gigantic proportions."

The absence of gravity is another problem: "Weightlessness has been experienced by humans for short periods up to 45 seconds in aircraft flights, but long term effects are a matter of conjecture." That is a mild way of putting it. The trouble is that gravity, unlike oxygen, is an intangible commodity, which cannot be condensed into a gas cylinder.

Moreover, "loneliness and strain through confinement for long periods in a small chamber are difficulties that can assume alarming proportions, perhaps affecting the mental well being of the space traveller." One could readily imagine many other mental and physical discomforts that would obtain in being shut in for only a few days in a telephone booth on terra firma, to say nothing of being cooped up in a miniature laboratory with several companions, whirling through a vacuum for six months. Life in a submarine for that period would be trying enough, with all its conveniences. But the crew would at least know where they were going, and there is always a way of escape at the surface.

The space enthusiasts will, of course, dismiss all these impediments as minor problems, which science will eventually solve. For the time being the thing is to get on with the preliminaries, and why spoil a good story for the sake of a few improbabilities? It will be all cleared up in the last chapter.

IS COMMUNISM A DEAD ISSUE?

A few years ago everybody was talking about Communists in Canada, and the dangers of infiltration. Today (perhaps because nobody wants to be called a witch hunter) you seldom hear boo about them. Does this mean Communism is a dead issue now?

Not according to J. H. Moore, of Hamilton, Ontario. In a speech to the Traffic Club of Hamilton recently, he warned us not to scoff at the notion that Communists could take over here. He made his point by showing that at V-J Day the Communists controlled eight million square miles or 10% of the world population, whereas now, without any major war, they hold control over thirteen million square miles and about 35% of the world's population.

Mr. Moore then went on to show that many things are happening in Canada today that will pave the way to Communism unless we are watchful. He referred to all sorts of legislation which, while profitable to some, has restrictive results on all. We are too inclined, he said, to give up individual freedoms in order to make a small financial gain or to please one pressure group or another.

Another fact used by Mr. Moore to prove his point was that today there are 200,032 people working for the Dominion government alone — whereas at the very peak of the War it took only 101,785 to administer our affairs. Mr. Moore says, "Our two older parties are socializing the country as quickly as the voters will accept it."

How does the individual help stop this drift?

Mr. Moore has some suggestions. First, vote every chance you get, after studying the issues. Then be sure you know the name and address of your representative in Ottawa, or your provincial capital, and let him have your views. On top of that, Moore would have us all adopt the following four freedoms:

1. The freedom to gripe and criticize, particularly at governments.
2. The freedom to change jobs.
3. The freedom to choose how to spend our own income.
4. Freedom to be right, even when what we know to be right is unpopular.

He feels that if we maintain those four freedoms, we'll have gone a long way toward maintaining the four freedoms enunciated by President Roosevelt.

I think he has something there!

It happened in November

Nov. 5 — Guy Fawkes Day, 1605.

Nov. 6 — John Philip Sousa born, 1854.

Nov. 14 — Prince Charles, Duke of Cornwall, born, 1948.

Nov. 20 — Wedding of Queen Elizabeth and Duke of Edinburgh, 1947.

Women know that they are better than men — smarter, stronger and saner.

Not long ago that notorious traitor to his sex, Dr. Ashley Montague, used up tons of printers' ink and paper to convince the English-speaking world that Eve was an improvement on Adam.

Women pretended to be amused and even shocked by Montague's findings. But when they thought they were out of the sight of men they smiled their little secret smiles and said to one another:

"The poor man ought to tell us something we don't know."

* * *

Now a professor at the University of Manitoba has also succeeded in proving the self-evident.

Dr. John Zubek, head of the university's psychology department, has been imprisoning student volunteers one at a time in a dark, silent isolation dome and observing what happens to them. The results may be useful in planning space travel.

The men came out chewing their nails, complaining of headaches and reporting that they had been seeing things that were not there. One man lasted only three hours.

The lone woman came out looking cool and bored. "The silence was rather pleasant," reported Wilma Sansom, a 29-year-old psychology student. "It was similar to being in the middle of a deep forest."

* * *

Dr. Zubec said that charts of her brain waves showed fewer disturbances than the charts of the men. "There is plenty of documented evidence to show that the female is better able to stand stress and strain," he said.

You don't build a scientific theory on one woman's performance. Others will have to go through the same test, for the sake of proof. But everyone knows what the result is going to be: That women are smarter, stronger, etc. Also, they smell sweeter and they're a nicer shape. Who's arguing?

From the Manitoba experiments it may turn out that women will be more efficient crew members in space-ships than men.

* * *

If the all-female space ship becomes a reality, men can say goodbye to their last pretence of equal status. Already North American women induce men to do most of their housework, and they spur men on to work hard, die early and leave women their money.

Until now, however, women have been careful to bolster men's self-esteem by letting them think of themselves as the adventurers and conquerors.

But this illusion will vanish like smoke when the first rocket with an Amazon crew lands on another planet.

From that time onward, men will cease to be bosses and bread-winners. They'll become mere household pets, kept only for companionship and love — but wait a minute! What's so bad about that? — Bon voyage to Venus, girls.

ORIGIN

The name of the Mississippi River in Ontario comes from two Indian words — "missi" meaning great, and "sipi" meaning river.

Flag issue to be aired next session

Ottawa (CP) — The long standing issue of a national flag is due to get an airing at the coming session. A Quebec Progressive Conservative Maurice Allard, has filed a two-page private bill proposing that a day be set aside as Canadian Independence Day and empowering the Canada Council to select a distinctive national flag and anthem.

Mr. Allard, M.P. for Sherbrooke, proposes that December 11, anniversary of the 1931 signing of the Statute of Westminster, be recognized as Independence Day. Under his bill the Canada Council would sponsor a national competition to select a flag and national anthem. The flag would be "free of the emblem or emblems of any other country." It would be submitted to the Queen for her approval, after being sanctioned by a joint resolution of the Commons and Senate.

The national anthem also would require joint approval of the two houses.

Cenotaph rites at Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Although 14 years have passed since the last shot was fired in World War II, and World War I ended more than 40 years ago — tribute was paid on November 11 to those who gave their lives in these conflicts and also in the Korean War.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

ELECTRONIC WORD-MAKER

Ever hear of Abechamycine? It's not a new antibiotic, although some day it might be. Right now it's just a name without a drug, the first of 42,000 in a new dictionary compiled by an electronic word wizard.

Automatically prepared by a huge electronic brain, the 198-page dictionary is used as a source book for naming new drugs developed in the laboratories of a leading pharmaceutical manufacturer.

One way of naming new drugs is simply to ask people for suggestions, but suggestions become stereotyped and stale after a while. To get around this problem, the company turned to the International Business Machines Corp., and the result has been the new dictionary.

Rules were devised to guide the machine in its screening operations. The new words must be easy to pronounce, spell and remember, easy to trans-literate into foreign languages, and should have a scientific or medical sound.

A survey showed that the most suitable drug names, like Terramycin and Tetracyn, are composed of a two-syllable prefix and a one-or-two-syllable ending. By sampling medical literature in several languages, the manufacturer was able to select a group of word endings to be combined with various sets of beginning syllables.

Instructions on punched cards were fed into the electronic processing unit which first turned out 22,000 words that failed to meet requirements.

The machine's super-human drug vocabulary includes not only usable trade names, but some words that can't be used for publication. A human censor is still essential to sort out those.

LONESOME

"Why did that Canadian officer ask us how long we were going to be out of Canada? Is it any of his business?" This was a voice in an automobile as it approached Buffalo from the Canadian shore.

"Oh," said the more affable passenger, "he probably is lonesome and would like us back in Canada as soon as possible."

Stone Age artists painted good work

Kingston, Ont. (CP) — In 50,000 years of drawing and painting man has produced nothing to beat the works of stone age artists in the Luscaux Cave in France.

This the opinion of André Bieler, fine arts professor of Queen's University here, who visited the cave recently.

"These paintings which primitive man achieved at the very dawn of mankind are just as fine as anything that man has done since," he says. "In their simplicity, forthright force and realism we have nothing better."

The cave was discovered in 1940 by a boy whose dog became stuck in the narrow entrance. It is big enough to hold 100 people. The walls are covered with animal pictures in brilliant ochres, reds, yellows and blacks.

"The decorative effect is magnificent," said the professor.

In this primitive "art gallery" were found brushes, pipes for blowing on color and even a crude air-gun.

At the Musée de L'Homme in Paris, Professor Bieler studied one of the best collections of primitive Canadian art he has ever seen. It was sent over to France in the early days of French exploration in Canada, and includes some beautiful painted animal skins, the work of Sioux Indians.

Activities at peak in W.I. branches through County

Arundel W.I. members viewed two very interesting films, "Trail of 98" and "Land of the Midnight Sun."

Brownsburg branch entertained the teachers, members of the School Board, and the Home and School executive of Brownsburg High School, at their regular meeting.

Dalesville ladies were guests of Frontier W.I. After a short business meeting by each branch, a debate was held on the question, "Are our modern girls better off than our great - great - grandmothers?" The affirmative side was taken by two Dalesville members, the negative side by Frontier. The discussion proved both interesting and humorous. The visitors won, after which a singsong and contest were enjoyed.

At Jerusalem - Bethany branch, the roll-call was, "Tell something interesting about our province." Plans were made to cater at a wedding in December.

Lachute W.I. planned a Bring-and-Buy Sale for December. Dr. F. W. FitzGerald spoke on "The changing role of the doctor in our society".

Pioneer branch sent flowers to a former member in hospital. Several cards are sent each month to sick members. Flannelette is to be bought and a "bee" held, to aid in the layette-set appeal for the Unitarian Service Committee.

Upper Lachute - East End had a visit from the County president, who gave a talk on Citizenship.

Most W.I. branches in the County reported buying poppies and wearing these emblems at their meetings. The new Fair List was read, and plans made for the Christmas meetings. It is also interesting to note that nearly all branches reported having several visitors; it is to be hoped that many of these will become active members in the near future.

Mission topic by travelled couple at thank-offering

The fall thank-offering of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the United Church on Thursday evening, November 12.

Guests speakers were Mr. and Mrs. Lovell Baker, who have just returned from the Assembly of the Moral Re-Armament at Mackinac Island. . . Mrs. Baker, a former president of the Presbyterial, has spoken here before.

Mr. Baker showed 160 colored slides of their recent 25,000-mile trip to Africa. As interested Christians they visited many parts of Africa, and especially in areas where the United Church has workers.

Starting from Capetown at the extreme south and travelling north to Northern Rhodesia and Angola, they visited a leper colony of 2,600 patients and were amazed to find not one active case. They were impressed by the love, care and need of these people.

The Means School for Girls, also supported by the W.M.S., was visited in Chissamba. In Northern Rhodesia they visited a fairly new mission field in the Copperbelt area. This great country is in the forefront of the world news and United Church mission activity, and it was a privilege for the gathering to see and hear something of the conditions and attitudes of its people, from these two alert observers.

Sister Antonia, a member of the Sisters of Our Lady order in Toronto and the nun who designed St. Michael's Roman Catholic church in Windsor, Ontario, is now busy making giant mosaics to adorn the outside of the church and the walls inside the main door. Sister Antonia is shown above beside the seven-foot-high mosaic, a representation of St. Michael, which she considers her best work.

Invitation timely in 'Young Canada Book Week'

By Marcel Therien, Publicist of "Le Carrefour du Livre"

A committee of young supporters was formed last week to aid the librarians of the "Carrefour du Livre" and to promote the good work of this local library. Their job will be to cultivate reading habits among French-Canadians of the community. A similar committee will be formed to promote good reading among English-speaking residents — to complete a well-rounded program and policy in this venture.

It is hoped these committees will achieve good work for advancement of the library, which has been in preparation, formation and actual operation, over the past three years.

There is a mistaken impression that the "Carrefour du Livre" is exclusively a French-language enterprise. It should be known, however, that the library contains a wide selection of English literature, and when the hoped-for grants are forthcoming from the municipalities concerned, and from the provincial government, it is intended to offer a still greater variety of English-language volumes.

During the current "Young Canada Book Week", the management invites all residents to visit this library, on Main Street West, to enquire what it has to offer, and to learn the extent of its contents.

APPRECIATION

I would like to thank my relations, classmates, teachers and friends, who remembered me with gifts, cards and kindly messages during my stay in the hospital.

Adventure Through A Book
By Ethel Kettyle

A book takes you to other lands,
Where mountains and rivers you cross,
Where oceans deep the wild winds sweep,
And you see angry billows toss.

You go where the sun shines brightest,
Far away to a sunny clime;
There you will visit homes of the wealthy,
Where all things are great and sublime.

Far away to storm-washed beaches,
Where at night purple shadows fall;
Out on the rim of the ocean,
You may hear lonely sea-gulls call.

In winter, far to snow-capped peaks,
Where the sun disappears like gold,
Behind a crested horizon,
Of which beauties cannot be told.

Then someone softly calls your name,
Brings you back to reality —
And you realize you're at home,
Instead of beyond the deep sea!

Bible translation in colloquial Russian

After eight years of work by a team headed by Bishop Cassian, who worked for long periods in a remote village of Northern Spain, a translation of the four Gospels in colloquial Russian was produced and has now been published by the British and Foreign Bible Society. The Russian traditional Bible, in the old Slavonic liturgical forms, no longer appeals to younger people.

These Russian scholars were associated with the Orthodox Institute of St. Sergius in Paris. Microfilm copies of the documents which formed the basis of the new translation will be sent for use in Russian theological centres.

Scriptures in Japan

One hundred years ago, six years after Commodore Perry opened the door into Japan, the first Christian missionaries began their work in that land.

While Karl Gutzloff, a Prussian doctor who worked under the Netherlands Bible Society, had learned Japanese from three shipwrecked sailors and had transplanted the Gospel and Epistles of John in that language in 1862, it was not until 1866 that a committee was set up in Japan to translate the whole Bible. Jonathan Goble, a former Mountie, became a Baptist missionary and in 1871 brought out the Gospel of Matthew. Wood blocks cut by hand in hard teak, were used. In 1879 the New Testament was first published by the American Baptist Missionary Union.

The changes in language made it necessary to put the Bible into the colloquial speech of the people. So the Kogatai New Testament was published in 1954 and the whole Bible in 1955. This was the work of five dedicated Japanese theologians.

The Kogatai version was published by the Japan Bible Society and has been enthusiastically received. Since 1955 the circulation of the Scriptures has more than doubled throughout Japan.

Curriculum and method explained at Home-School

Mrs. I. Jones reported on the Skate Sale which was held October 31 and November 7, and which was disappointing in attendance. However, 42 pairs of skates were exchanged and about $15 was made for the Home and School; thus the sale did provide a good service, which is its main function. Before closing the business meeting, Mr. P. Aitken, Program chairman, announced that the Book Fair, which had to be postponed, will take place at the next meeting, Wednesday, January 13.

The members then proceeded to their children's classrooms, where the teachers explained the course of work for the year, the books used and methods followed, and answered questions on the work in general. This type of meeting necessitated a great deal of thought and effort on the part of Principal Fred Royal and his staff, and the parents deeply appreciate their work. It was an extremely interesting meeting, and all parents who attended derived much benefit.

Forums differ on subject of price supports

Deficiency payments recently announced by the federal government to apply to hogs and eggs are getting a mixed reception from farmers. Quebec Farm Forums are divided on the issue, two out of three groups favoring the deficiency payment type of price support and one third being vehemently opposed.

Under the deficiency payment scheme the government agrees to pay the difference between a guaranteed price and a national average price calculated over a period of one year. Payment is made directly to producers at the end of the year and is based on quantity sold and the difference between the guaranteed price and the national average price. Thus the producer receives a supplementary payment based on the national average price and not on his actual price. The government has imposed a limit on the amount of produce per producer which it will subsidize in the case of hogs and eggs.

Quebec Forums are not sure they should cut back production. The surpluses, they say, are not caused by family farmers but by large packer - and feeder - financed units and by in-and-outers. They believe small farmers will survive low prices but that these other producers will be forced out eventually.

* * *

Quotes

Farmers equipped to produce commodities such as hogs and eggs should stay in the business and there would then be a steady supply of produce. It is the in-and-outer that spoils the markets and causes fluctuations, especially in the hog business. — Lachute Road Forum, Argenteuil Co.

The way the Deficiency Payments read, we think it will automatically cut production when the farmer can only collect for a limited amount of his produce, no matter how much he raises. — Trout River Forum, Huntingdon Co.

Farmers should cut production, but not go out of production entirely. Most of the surpluses have come about because of the big feed companies speculating on hogs and eggs. — Frost Village Forum, Shefford Co.

"We just can't get ahead"

By Lewis Milligan

Labor union leaders emphatically deny the charge that their persistent demands for higher wages and fringe benefits are responsible for the rise in prices and the consequent inflation of currency. Assuming that that is a debatable question, they cannot truthfully deny that strikes which follow those demands rob the workers concerned of their immediate means of livelihood and also of their savings.

This is illustrated by a cross-country survey taken by "U.S. News & World Report" of attitudes of steelworkers toward the long steel strike. The findings of the survey showed that pay raises which force price increases are no longer popular among union workers. They are seriously questioning the usefulness of the strike weapon. Many are said to be showing interest in the final determination of labor disputes by arbitration. Others say that rank and file union members should have more say when anything as serious as a strike is contemplated.

Among the developments likely to emerge from the steel strike is a desire among union members for a longer-term contract — some are said to speak favorably of a five-year contract. One Pittsburgh steelworker gave his reasons for this as follows:

"I got married in 1948. This is the fourth strike I've been through. We just can't get ahead, can't seem to get anywhere. You save up a little money and then you're using it all up while you're out of work."

If nothing more were said on this question, that simple and heartfelt statement by a working man on the effects of strikes should be enough to convince union leaders of the folly and cruelty of this antiquated and futile method of settling labor disputes; to say nothing of the disrupting effects, not only upon the industry involved, but also upon other industries and business generally.

"THE GREAT PROJECT"

— By Ethel Kettyle —

PART III — HUGE VESSELS

Back in the town of Morrisburg for lunch, where all of the business places have been combined into one shopping centre, including modern cafes. Then on to the Control Dam near Iroquois, where there is beauty and motion. A huge boat from Panama was just passing through, and the river, in all its beauty, was dotted with boats, both large and small.

The grass along the canal was still green, with great splotches of sunshine here and there. The yellow and green of the grass, and the blue and green of the water, with the colorful boats upon its surface, gave the huge white Control Dam an appearance of majesty and strength against a colorful setting.

Then on to the town of Iroquois, which only months ago had been a place of mud and rubble, with buildings being moved on the giant mover.

Now the town had apparently had a face-lifting, especially in the residential section. Stately homes and well-kept lawns flanked the river. New churches now stood in place of the old ones, which had been torn down. The whole town had a look of prosperity.

The winding highway, leading to Cardinal, at a distance looked like a white ribbon along the very bank of the river, and the trees along the way showed autumn nature in all its beauty.

A familiar landmark had been "The House of Treasures", an Antique Shop formerly situated near Iroquois. The proprietor had moved her stock to a stone building between Cardinal and Prescott, carrying on in a new location. However, the building had recently been razed by fire, and we saw only a blackened shell, with the big sign "Antiques" still standing.

By the "Great Project", homes of long-standing had been uprooted, families moved to new areas. But among tears, prayers, and perhaps joyfulness on the part of some, great changes had taken place, for better or for worse.

On to Prescott, where a new bridge over the St. Lawrence River will be a great connecting link between Canada and the United States. The bridge is now nearing completion, and it is a work of art, in a mechanical sense.

A WONDERFUL WORLD UNFOLDS IN BOOKS

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

One of the red letter days in my childhood was the afternoon I walked into the children's section of the Fergus Carnegie Public Library. I pulled out a book to look at the pictures. Suddenly I discovered I could read the words on the first page. They made sense to me. Thrilled, I hurried home to tell Mother, "I can read now!"

How quickly children today learn to read! When Mother and Dad went to school possibly there was no kindergarten and no talk of "reading readiness". Perhaps they struggled for days with the old-fashioned phonetic system of learning sounds for each letter or certain combinations of letters of the alphabet.

Today's methods of teaching reading are certainly different. Many critics complain about the effect on spelling but youngsters seem to read at a much earlier age than those of a generation ago.

It is usually confusing for a child if parents try to teach him to read before he starts to school. It is very likely the teacher's techniques will be different. Instead of a child having an advantage over his classmates, he may just be all mixed-up when the teacher attempts to teach him to read.

Grown-ups often forget that learning to read requires a certain maturity and quite a number of skills. A child must be able to focus both eyes on one object. He has to follow a line of print across a page then swing back to the next line without losing the place or sense of the sentence.

It isn't always easy for a sociable youngster to work all by himself and concentrate on the book in front of him for a long period without assistance. It is unlikely the average youngster below six years is ready to read, in the opinion of most educational authorities.

This does not mean that the home has no vital part. The desirability of learning is demonstrated each day by parents who quite evidently enjoy reading.

The child's own attractive picture books with colored illustrations should be kept in a convenient place. Perhaps mother has sewn white cotton on cardboard squares together to make a sturdy picture scrapbook. There is a shelf too, for story books, the old favorites and Mother Goose rhymes and fairy tales. Reading aloud a story book is one of the most enjoyable events in the child's day.

Where is there a more appreciative audience than the small boy or girl who begs, "Read me a story?" Parents may grow a bit tired of "The Three Bears" and other favorites, but what child wearies of these characters?

Mothers and fathers might pick up some tips on how to read a child's story aloud from one of the several excellent radio children's story tellers on CBC children's programs and Kindergarten of the Air.

If their child seems to be a very slow reader, naturally parents are worried. They should be careful not to let him sense their anxiety. He is likely discouraged too, and needs support and faith that this problem can be solved.

At the same time parents should do something about his tardy reading. Check again with the child's doctor to make sure this does not stem from faulty hearing or poor vision. Have a chat with the teacher. Discover if your child's difficulty is from his confusion about left and right. If this is the case he will be seeing words backwards: "bad" becomes "dab". If this is the case, many child specialists advocate that the old-fashioned phonetic (or sounding out the letters) method be used.

YOUNG CANADA'S BOOK WEEK

Family life enriched by — reading aloud

By DR. HILDA NEATBY, Patroness of Young Canada's Book Week

It has recently been said in Canada that a bad book can do no harm. Is the converse true? Can a good book do no good? I would emphatically dissent from both propositions. Books are a potent force for good and for evil, and especially for good or evil in the lives of the young. Nothing is more certain than that young people will find bad "literature". It is of immense importance that they should also meet good books.

I once was shown a work of a factual nature with the remark that it was "very educational". I resented the implication that such works are more educational than others, although it is indeed a source of satisfaction that the mass of useful information needed by young people today is available to them in well-written and well-produced works with abundant illustrations.

But education, broadly conceived, demands above all works of imagination: poetry, drama and fiction. Education, we are told, is growth and is life. If this broad general meaning is accepted, then works of imagination must be among the primary materials for education. Children cannot really grow, they cannot truly live, without them. We grow by experience. The relatively narrow and restricted experience of the child's life is immensely extended and enriched by those books which lead him into other worlds, and then return him to his own with a new vision and with a deeper insight.

As for living, we live through close and clear contacts with other human beings. In the world of books the child meets people, his contacts with them are free and familiar. He can frequent his book friends as he chooses. They never repel him. They provide a perfect form of escape when his contacts with the world are difficult. But book people, if they are the real people of good books, will return him to the world of his contemporaries more perceptive and more human.

Books are sometimes set aside (as slightly anti-social) in favor of a "group activity". It is too often forgotten that a book may be the centre of one of the best of all group activities, reading aloud. Librarians have set an admirable example in maintaining or renewing this almost forgotten art. At one time it was a central activity in almost every good home. Life in some Canadian homes is still enriched by it. In too many, however, it is now practised only for benefit, of those who cannot read, instead of bringing all together for common enjoyment of the kind of pleasure which once really tasted never palls.

Young Canada's Book Week is dedicated to the mission of making good books better known to all young Canadians, and to their elders. It is a pleasure and privilege to be allowed to act as patron in such a splendid cause.

VICTORIAN ORDER HEARS STRAIGHT TALK

Ottawa (C) — Delegates to a Victorian Order of Nurses conference in Ottawa heard some straight talk from a prominent Canadian concerned about the direction of Canadian development.

"One of the great dangers of our present-day society," said Dr. Alexander Laidlaw, national secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada, "is that we shall all become so alike from worship of conformity that individual initiative, new ideas and creative activity will be utterly snuffed out."

For rehabilitation of polio victims

Quebec (C) — The Provincial Health Department has announced a rehabilitation program for paralytic polio victims will be started next January.

Its purpose will be to bring them to specially organized hospital centres for physiotherapy treatments.

Dr. A. R. Foley, of the Department, estimating the province's polio total for 1959 will top 1,000, said residents in rural areas are often unaware of the restoration of affected limbs that can be obtained through physiotherapy. The Department plans to contact all those who suffered some form of paralysis during the 1959 outbreak.

Dr. Foley also said that records indicate 95 per cent of the persons treated for polio this year had not had Salk anti-polio vaccine.

Baker's delight

Light, tender and airy would best describe these puffy Cream Buns. They're an old bake-shop favorite many home cooks will want to try their hand at making. The buns themselves are not overly sweet. The sweetened cream filling gives them their dessert character. If preferred, half a dozen of the buns could be served as is . . . with just a sprinkling of powdered sugar . . . and the remaining dozen buns given a more generous amount of the whipped cream filling. The simplicity of these favorites provides a welcome contrast to the richer and more traditional festive fare — so file this recipe for pre-Christmas use.

Cream Buns

(Yield — 1½ dozen buns)

½ Cup milk, 3 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ cup shortening, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope active dry yeast, 2 well-beaten eggs, 4 cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon unflavored gelatine, 1 tablespoon cold water, ½ pt. (1¼ cups) whipping cream, 2 tablespoons sifted icing sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Scald milk; stir in the 3 tablespoons sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, well-beaten eggs and 2 cups of the flour; beat until smooth and elastic. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 2 cups more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into two equal portions and shape each portion into a 9-inch roll. Cut each roll into nine 1-inch pieces. Cover with a tea towel and let rest 10 minutes. Shape each piece of dough into a smooth ball and place, well apart, on greased cookie sheets. Grease tops. Cover with a tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk—about 45 minutes. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Cool completely on cake racks.

Soften gelatine in the 1 tablespoon cold water, then dissolve over hot water. Beat cream until softly stiff; add softened gelatine and continue to beat the cream until stiff. Beat in icing sugar and vanilla.

Split cold buns horizontally almost through. Open them up and fill with the whipped cream (when available the use of a large rosette tube on a pastry bag makes the cream attractive). Sift a little icing sugar over bun tops.

Women who conscientiously plan well-rounded meals may go astray when they actually prepare the food. And vegetables are the most often sinned against. Food values are lost through improper, over-long cooking.

To prepare properly, cook in a small amount of rapidly boiling water, say experts of the Ontario home economics service. Cover tightly, then reduce the heat and cook until just done. For the best flavor, some of the "bite" should be retained.

Attractive color, crisp texture, good flavor and nutritive value is the result of using the minimum amount of water, a tightly-covered pan and the short cooking period.

Mashed Potatoes

Brian Mercer, an English engineer, was inspired to a new invention while helping his wife in the kitchen of their Lancanshire home. He was putting potatoes through a ricer when he noticed the neat streams produced. It occurred to him that they could be interwined, so he notched the metal edge of a ruler to guide the movements of the potatoes. The result was a mashed potato netting. Mr. Mercer realized the same principle could be applied to plastic and developed the method in England.

The material is being introduced in Canada. As a fine flexible mesh it's expected to appear as hair-nets and crinolines. Rigid open mesh looks like fencing.

The Canadian manufacturer says potential uses include packaging where netting or mesh serves as a container or decorative wrap, novelties, buckram, belts, luggage, handbags, fencing material, room dividers, filters, coasters, radio grills, lamp shades, pan scrubbers, playpens and garden chair upholstery.

Saucered and Blowed

Word comes from the United States that "saucering and blowing" coffee is being revived. The once-popular custom was a favorite with the father of the household.

A strong will and a steady hand was needed to pour the steaming coffee out of the cup into the saucer.

Saucering started in Europe before the coffee cup was invented. As late as 1700, coffee was served in England in shallow bowls, similar to deep saucers. Gentlemen in London coffee houses balanced dishes of coffee on the tips of their fingers and blew gently until the coffee was cool. Later the handled cup was invented to prevent seared fingers, but the shallow dishes remained popular in men's coffee clubs.

With the industrial revolution came the mass production of chinaware which made cups and saucers available to everyone. Gradually the cup and saucer took hold, so that by 1900 "saucering" had virtually disappeared.

It DOES matter which Oil Burner you buy!

If you're in the market for an oil burner, there are dozens for you to choose from. They all look very much alike. They all burn oil. Some are pretty efficient, others lots so. But, unless you're an engineer, there's no way for you to decide which burner is best for your needs, except by trusting on one made by a reputable, long-established manufacturer. Like Smart's, for example. We recommend Smart's series "A" oil burners because when we sell one we know that the customer is going to be satisfied with the deal for a long time. If that seems to you to be a good reason for buying a Smart's oil burner, let us show you the complete range, and tell you all about them.

"Peanuts not for little boys, girls"

An unidentified, 18-months-old boy from Plattsburgh, N.Y., was admitted to Montreal Children's Hospital, suffering from serious respiratory trouble. He had been in a Plattsburgh hospital three days.

A doctor on the Montreal Children's Hospital staff said several pieces of peanut finally were removed from the boy's respiratory tract with a bronchoscope.

He added that there still existed the danger of complications, perhaps a piece a peanut still in the lung or partial lung collapse caused by foreign bodies in the respiratory system.

The doctor, who wished to remain anonymous, told a newspaper reporter 50 per cent of foreign bodies which find their way into a child's "breathing apparatus" consist of peanuts.

His advice to parents of children under six years of age: "Keep peanuts out of their reach."

French-Canada at the Winter Sports Show, New York

New York City travel writers, ski personalities and sports editors will be guests of four Quebec Province groups at a French Canadian Dejeuner in the Park-Sheraton Hotel in Manhattan today. It is part of French Canada Day, one of the highlights of the National Winter Sports Show in the Coliseum there all this week. Host groups are the Province of Quebec Hotel Association, the Laurentian Resorts Association, and the Tourist Bureaus of Montreal and Quebec City. Hon. Paul Beaulieu, Quebec Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Robert Prevost, director of Quebec's publicity department, will be guests of honor at the luncheon. The Laurentian Resorts Association and the Town of Ste. Agathe are exhibitors in the show; with Adelard Ratelle, director of the latter's tourist bureau, organizing a Canadian night which will also be a highlight of the affair.

Oppose closing of CNR line to Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury, leaving the Montreal-Hawkesbury line.

Mr. Gibson announced that freight will be delivered by truck. According to him this would be a better system.

Manager of the Passenger Service, S. N. Vincent, said that an average of eight persons took the train one way while there were five going the other way.

Mr. Gibson, while he was in the witness box, had to answer a host of questions thrown at him by the audience. It was at this moment that Mr. Latour arose to interrogate the witness to learn whether his company had made a full investigation of the situation. He stated that the Carillon project was sure to cause expansion in St. Andrews and St. Benoit.

On this Mr. Gibson replied that identical situations had been presented before and that no difference as far as patronage was concerned had occurred.

In order to prove to the Commission that the surrounding district will not be isolated by the removal of the train Mr. Angers called Georges Duhamel, proprietor of the bus line from St. Andrews. With the aid of a schedule Mr. Duhamel demonstrated that he would be able to establish a competent service between Grenville and Montreal.

It was then that a citizen from St. Andrews stated that this particular bus line was not perfect. Mr. Lorenzo Pilon stated: "I am content to have a good transport service. I don't care about the mode of transport as long as it is good." Following this declaration several persons profited from the occasion to ask the witnesses whether or not during the winter months the service had been constant.

Duhamel stated that he has the permission of the Quebec Transport Commission to use a car instead of a bus when he has only a few passengers.

Rather Have Train

On Tuesday morning the Commission heard the opinions of people who would rather have the train. Among those who testified from the witness box were Tupper Porter of St. Andrews, Fred Whitehead from the Junior Chamber of Commerce in St. Andrews, and Mayor Rosaire Gascon from Hawkesbury.

Mr. Latour represented the people from Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes counties. He never stopped arguing against the removal of the passenger train between St. Eustache and Hawkesbury.

Around 45 members and two guests attended an enthusiastic Lions Club session last week, chaired by Vice-President Gérard Lefebvre in the absence of the president, Lorne Duncan.

An interesting talk on the subject of Traffic Safety was given by Mr. André-Paul Joly, entitled "Thou Shalt Not Kill" (reported elsewhere in this issue). The speaker was introduced by Gabriel Valois and thanked by Ian Gordon. As former publicist for the progressive centre of Granby, it seems, Mr. Joly had been instrumental in sending a pair of Canadian beavers from that city as a wedding gift to Prince Rainier of Monaco, and his lovely Princess Grace.

The Lions' Rink held the spotlight in business matters dealt with by the club. Rink "super-manager" Jacques Bourgoing came up with a mimeographed report for the first 16 days of operation, including weather and technical records, admissions and financial details. Jos. Dumais, Administration chairman, reported on season ticket sales and reminded all members that the economic aspects of operation depend largely on this source of revenue. Horace Lamarche, as chairman of the rink governing body, was gratified with the outlook but also urged full club support. He intimated there would be a club Ladies' Night at the rink shortly, with a repeat of the recently successful chicken barbecue idea.

An interesting feature of this meeting was the presentation of an engraved desk set to ex-President Phil Tremblay as a token of his devotion as helmsman of the club last year. The presentation was made by André Lefebvre.

Gérard Lefebvre, as chairman, advised that next meeting would be marked by the official visit of District Deputy Guy Raymond, from Ile Bigras club.

It was decided that a children's parade and prizes at the rink, would be substituted for the usual Santa Claus visit to schools in the pre-holiday week. For the club's annual "family night" supper, the previous experience of Bob Marcil as committeeman brought the reward of his re-appointment to that job.

Ch. Commerce - Council deliberations on Main Street lighting improvements

Members of the Chamber of Commerce executive conferred Monday with Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon and a Council committee comprising Aldermen Stanley Church and Nelson Lepage, on the Main Street lighting project. The discussions were held in the amicable atmosphere of a luncheon conference — Adhémar Cuerrier, the Chamber president, welcoming the municipal representatives, and Gaetan Leclair, chairman of the Chamber committee on this improvement, directing the discussions.

It is recalled that the Chamber of Commerce has offered to defray part of the cost for installation of new lights on Main Street — to the extent of $7,000 to be subscribed by storekeepers and business men concerned.

An alternative suggested by the Chamber committee is that each storekeeper would pay individually for the recommended light unit and undertake to have it erected on the existing light pole opposite or nearest his premises. The suggested units are 4-tube fluorescents, 4 feet long, the cost of which is about $150 each.

Ald. Stanley Church read a report prepared at the request of the Council, and stated that Gatineau Power Co. did not favor fluorescent lighting, which apparently is being superseded by the mercury-vapor type; this, according to Ald. Church, is superior in illuminating qualities and also less expensive.

Mr. Jacques Bedard, an expert in this study and invited by the Chamber to attend the discussions, stated that fluorescent is the newer type of lighting, and as regards power consumption, there is little difference between this type and mercury vapor.

Mr. Cuerrier then read an exchange of correspondence with Bernard Laframboise, electrical engineer at Hawkesbury, in which the latter recommended incandescent lighting in the case of Lachute.

Mayor McGibbon was asked for his impressions and the opinion of the Council on these matters. He first thanked the Chamber group and expressed appreciation for their help in this matter. . .

"You are aware, of course, that many public works have been undertaken and others are in the course of planning. You are asking the Council to proceed with an improvement in one particular section of town. I am in favor of improved street-lighting, but on condition that such lighting should cover all the business interests of the town, and that it will be undertaken entirely by the municipal council. It should not be placed on the shoulders of a few taxpayers. . . . I will help you to promote the idea along these lines, for I realize our town will benefit by better lighting."

Mayor McGibbon was applauded for these sentiments. He then asked that the Chamber prepare a detailed report on the two suggested systems. (He also requested the Chamber of Commerce to study the Zoning by-law draft at the city offices.)

"I am no expert in these matters," he added, "and you know, as I do, when anything new is to be introduced, everybody considers himself an expert and insists his viewpoint is the only one to be adopted. With a detailed study of the facts, the Council will be in a better position to decide the steps to be taken."

Present of behalf of the Chamber of Commerce were — Mr. Adhémar Cuerrier, president, Messrs Gaetan Leclair, Bertrand L'Heureux, Miville Trickey, Roger Lamarche, Edgar Laurin, Guy Lafortune, Gabriel Valois, Donat Saulnier, Marcel Grondin, Guy Bélanger and Arthur Lafrance.

Committee exploiting ways, means to promote winter-time employment

The local Winter Work Committee, under the chairmanship of George Lowe, met last week to continue its study of the area's employment situation for the coming winter months. The committee has made a survey of the construction projects presently in progress in the area, and of those known to be in the planning stage and scheduled for the early part of the winter. After taking these factors into consideration, it was found that although there are several projects, the number does not equal the activity present in summer months. This means that many hundreds of workers will be subject to periods of unemployment shortly after the New Year.

One of the members of the committee, Hubert Lemire, drew attention to the fact that quite a few local employers had already demonstrated keen interest in the committee's work; this is very encouraging. He also suggested that representatives of the J.O.C. (Young Christian Workers) be invited to the next meeting to bring forward their viewpoints on seasonal unemployment and how it affects younger workers. From these, they will then be in a better position to determine ways and means of assisting youth in the problem to which they are subjected.

A remarkable spirit of teamwork exists in the group, and it is expected no stone will be left unturned until pertinent items have been solved.

Paul-Emile Barbeau saw eye-to-eye with the way Mr. Lemire felt regarding the youngsters, and his experience will be helpful indeed in bettering their situation. Mr. Barbeau reiterated his oft-repeated stand, that a youth today must have at least 11th-year graduation if he is to meet with any appreciable success in his future business career.

The committee noted with great satisfaction that posters had been distributed throughout the area urging the public to "plan now" to have work done in the coming winter—work which would otherwise be put off until spring.

The group intends to direct public attention to certain examples of winter construction and initiative on the part of local individuals who are conscious of the problem, and the action they have taken to bring some measure of relief.

Red Cross meeting at Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — Mr. Laurent Morin, Provincial Field Secretary for the Canadian Red Cross Society, was guest speaker at the Brownsburg Branch meeting, held in the Legion Hall last Tuesday evening.

Mrs. N. E. Smillie, president, welcomed all present and introduced the speaker, who gave an interesting talk on Red Cross work, especially on the annual Financial Campaign — stating that more money will be needed in the future to carry on the ever-encreasing activities of the organization. Mr. Morin also mentioned that there were several new amendments to the by-laws, and gave the date of the annual Provincial convention. He congratulated the branch on the efficient way in which business was conducted and work done in the different departments of the organization. . . Mr. J. R. Dubois, vice-president, thanked Mr. Morin for his visit.

During the business session it was decided to hold the annual Branch meeting in the Red Cross room at the Social Club on Monday, December 7, at 6.45 sharp.

The public are invited to attend; officers for the coming year will be elected.

Hearing on Lachute-Ayersville cancellation of water contract

Representatives of Lachute and Ayersville were summoned recently to a hearing before the Public Utilities Commission in Montreal, relative to water supply between the two adjacent communities.

It is recalled that Ayersville served notice to Lachute for annulment of its contract, some time ago when arrangements were made to develop its own water resources. Ayersville has these plans now under way, to sink artesian wells and install pumps so that the community will be independent of Lachute as regards water supply.

At the recent hearing, the spokesmen for Lachute intimated there was no objection to a cancellation of the contract, but they made it clear that the termination must be definite — that Lachute was faced with a re-planning of its waterworks, and intends to make provision for a certain number of consumers according to foreseeable population; the system would not be elastic in its resources.

Ayersville, meanwhile, hopes to be self-dependent in a matter of six months — date for completion of the works having been set at May 1960. If it was found impossible to fulfill this expectation, however, the Town of Lachute would have to continue supplying water until completion of the project.

Ayersville was represented by Philippe Valois, advocate; Robert Hodge; the engineers of Desjardins & Sauriol; Mayor Gaetan Paquette; Secretary Jacques Poitras; and Councillor Rosaire Quenneville.

Representatives for Lachute were Fernand Legault, Q.C.; Alderman Mozart Carrière; Paul Laliberté, engineer; and Germain Filion, financial advisor.

District canvass for Social Service

Chairmen and committeemen of various parishes in the Social Service canvass for this district met recently to plan their campaign. The financial appeal will be held during December, for funds to meet the increasing needs in all parts of the area. A veteran campaigner of this town Gerard Lefebvre (top row, third from right) is general chairman of the drive. Secretary is Patrice Ouellette, Social Service worker (top row, third from left).

Organize for Social Service appeal

The Social Service, which has operated in the St. Jerome Diocese for six years past, is issuing an appeal for public support. The Charities Federations of three centres — Ste. Therese, Lachute and St. Jerome — have turned in their contributions to this agency, but these are definitely insufficient.

Lachute's contribution of $5,000 from the local Federation makes no provisions for the child welfare work performed by other social workers than Mr. Dufresne, who occupies the Lachute bureau and attends to administrative duties. Since the municipal treasury cannot be assessed with the full cost, a supplementary appeal is being issued in centres where this Social Service is giving benefit.

The committee here is headed by Gerard Lefebvre, with Patrice Ouellette as secretary. The regional appeal extends from Ste. Scholastique westward to Pte. au Chene.

Keymen from all parishes met last week at the Immaculate Conception School in Ayersville, with members of the Catholic clergy from various parts concerned. Canon Paul Manseau, Social Service director for the Diocese, elaborated on family and child welfare work in the respective centres, showing how changed conditions were posing new problems. Questions were asked on various aspects of administration and procedure.

In the next week or so the parish representatives will have their teams lined up, and a concentrated canvass will be conducted early in December throughout the region. The organizers hope for a generous public response to permit the continuance of Social Service in proportion to the growing needs.

Found guilty, sentenced in school bus highway death

Germain Lacoste, local business man, was found guilty in court last week on a charge of criminal negligence in the death of Linda Chambers, who was killed last autumn while crossing the road from a school bus at St. Philippe. The case came up in Fall Assizes, heard before a jury November 16 at St. Jerome, with Judge George Challies of the Superior Court presiding.

The sentence was handed down on Monday morning last, Mr. Lacoste being sentenced to three months in jail, a $500 fine (or in default of payment, an additional month in jail) and a three-year suspension of his driving permit.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who laid charges following the investigation, reported that an appeal has been entered by Mr. Lacoste's lawyer following the sentence.

Following the trial, Mr. Lacoste was released on $1,000 property bail. With the handing down of the sentence, he was detained in jail at St. Jerome.

(According to court authorities contacted Tuesday evening, Mr. Lacoste will be held pending the official filing and acceptance of his appeal by a judge, sometime Thursday. At this time, bail may be set or he may be held in custody, depending on circumstances of the appeal.)

The charges were laid under Section 191 of the Criminal Code.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

At the regular meeting of Branch No. 70, held last Wednesday evening, President Tom Smith reminded those present that the 16th annual Canadian Legion Christmas Tree Campaign will commence Friday, November 27 at 10 a.m. with the opening of the tree on the ground floor of Jas. A. Ogilvy's Department Store, (St. Catherine St. West, at Mountain St.) and the campaign will last until Christmas Eve. Comrade Tom felt that all local citizens, as well as the Legionnaires, should assist with the 5,000-gift objective on behalf of the veterans in hospital. These gifts will be distributed to all veterans in all the D.V.A. hospitals throughout the province, and wherever else they can be found.

As in former years, the gifts should be inexpensive but useful, the stand-bys being cigarettes, tobacco, pipes, playing cards, cribbage boards, toilet articles, shaving sets, handkerchiefs, pens, candy, biscuits, socks, slippers, sweaters. Also, do not forget the women veterans, of whom there are quite a number.

All gifts should be wrapped separately, and it is important that a label be attached showing the contents and the name of the donor, and in the case of wearing apparel, the size. The gifts should be taken or sent to the Canadian Legion Christmas Tree at Ogilvy's. If desired, the gifts may be taken to the Tree unwrapped, where you will find courteous attendants to wrap and label them.

Donations of money are also welcome, and all cheques should be made out to the Canadian Legion Quebec Command, Christmas Tree Committee, 1191 Mountain St., Montreal 25, Que. The committee will do the purchasing and account for the spending of the money.

Donors are asked not to send or place at the tree any matches, lighter fluid or other readily flammable material; and please do not send pocket novels.

President Smith wishes to advise the local public that, if any person wishes to donate money or gifts, he will undertake to personally convey these to the Ogilvy Store for the Canadian Legion Christmas Tree.

• • •

Just as important to the local Branch, but on a lesser scale, Com. R. A. Giles and members of the Sick & Relief Committee were authorized to purchase and distribute to needy veterans families of this area Christmas baskets containing food, clothing, etc.

• • •

The Branch 70 Christmas Tree Committee under chairmanship of Com. C. Demerse have booked films and are making preparations. All of the 1,000 souvenir pens are in the course of being sold and members are asked to turn in the proceeds immediately to Com. Demerse.

• • •

The Sick and Relief Committee were authorized to purchase back and leg-rests for a wheelchair. Applications for free use of sick-room equipment may be made to Comrades R. A. Giles, Stewart Jones or R. O. MacLean.

• • •

An outline of Executive Committee proceedings was made by Chairman R. O. MacLean. It was mentioned that a Christmas dance was decided upon and the date set is Saturday, December 19. Arrangements are being made for a very enjoyable evening and all Legion members and their friends are requested to set this evening aside for this dance.

• • •

In his final report on the Free Adult Anti-Polio Clinics, Com. B. A. Jenkins reported that 4,200 vaccinations were given at four separate clinics. At a conservative estimate of $3 per shot, the Legion has been responsible for saving residents of the district over $12,000. In addition, an untold amount of suffering and incalculable expenses have been avoided through the availability of this Salk vaccine. This fact is proved by the information release during the Montreal epidemic that over 97% of the cases encountered had not received any anti-polio vaccinations. Twenty four nurses and 15 doctors volunteered their services locally, thus realizing for the March of Dimes a further saving of approximately $350. Branch 70 underwrote all incidental expenses. . . . Comrade Jenkins expressed sincere thanks, on behalf of the Legion, to the local medical profession, press, Ladies' Auxiliary and individuals who assisted; also to personnel at local industrial firms where the vaccinations were given.

• • •

Com. Jenkins, as chairman of the 1959 Poppy Campaign, reported that approximately $1,000 will be realized from the poppy and wreath sections, for welfare work in this district during the coming year. All returns have not been received from outlying districts, and all collections have not been made on wreath sales. However, it is hoped that a complete report may be issued very shortly. The chairman asked that individuals who have not yet forwarded their wreath donations kindly do so immediately, in order that this campaign may be closed out and the cost of the wreaths sent on to the Canadian Legion Provincial Command as soon as possible.

• • •

Com. President Smith thanked all members, on behalf of the St. Andrews Armistice Parade for turning out. He felt that the event went off very well.

• • •

The Junior League of the Red Cross have set the week of November 23 as "Haemophiliac Week". This is a nation-wide drive to recruit new blood donors so as to ensure adequate reserves of frozen plasma for the treatment of haemophiliacs. Veterans are urged to support this worthwhile Red Cross effort. In addition, any local haemophiliac is requested to register with the Canadian Legion in order to benefit from services available. There is no charge for this service and the patient need not be a veteran.

See you next week!

League opener draws 800 fans at Hawkesbury

The first scheduled game of the Quebec - Ontario league was played Sunday afternoon at the new Hawkesbury Arena. The Hawkesbury Richports were hosts to the Brownsburg Bombers, with the Bombers winning the game 5-3.

A crowd of over 800 fans was in attendance at this opening game, which was very gratifying to the Hawkesbury officials and an indication that the league is starting out under very favorable conditions.

The first home game for the Brownsburg Bombers is this coming Thursday, November 26, when they go against a much improved Lachute team; and on Sunday, November 29, at 2.30 p.m. Lachute will be hosts to Hawkesbury at the Brownsburg Community Rink.

Hockey fans are assured of a good season — so why not turn out to cheer your favorite team on to victory. Watch for a complete hockey schedule, which will appear in this paper in the near future.

Legion sponsors Pee-Wee Bantam hockey teams

Members of Legion Branch 70, Lachute, at their last general meeting held in the Memorial Hall, November 18, voted a sum of $500 for sponsorship of Pee-Wee and Bantam hockey teams in the local league organized by the Lions Club.

When approving this sum for the benefit of children in this community, the veterans recognized the fact that they must organize their talents to increase their annual budget by this amount; however, they are confident of the support of the citizens of this district for such a worthy effort, which embraces two very important community services — providing wholesome organized sport for the development of our young citizens, and that of assisting the Lachute Lions to fulfill the larger purpose of their community rink project.

Assisting with the primary organization were Comrades Doug Ogilvie and Rene Paulsen, the latter taking over actual coaching duties. This venture comes under the control of the Sports and Entertainment Committee, of which Com. F. Pring is chairman.

Members authorized the purchase of goaler equipment, stockings, sweaters, crests and incidentals. It is expected that ice rentals for the two teams will approach the $100 mark, with uniforms costing $150. Any veteran or other public spirited person wishing to assist the Legion financially with this latest endeavor, may make cheques payable to Branch 70, Canadian Legion Hockey Fund, and official receipts will be issued. (A substantial donation has already been received from Argenteuil Plumbing & Heating Reg.)

The organizers have sent queries to all Legion members concerning the enrolment of their children, and after the first practice session on Saturday last, Coach Paulsen stated that many of the children in the Pee-Wee group did not appear. "The inclement weather may have had something to do with it, however; it appears we will require several additional boys closer to the 12-year mark, as those who did turn out were quite light," said Mr. Paulsen. Boys do not have to be the sons of veterans to join this group; however it is hoped that all interested youngsters in this category will try out for the two teams.

Pee-Wees are eligible up to age 12 years as of July 1, 1960, and Bantams up to 14 years as of the same date.

Any person wishing further information may call Mr. Paulsen or Mr. Ogilvie.

Lachute Lions' Skating Rink

Activities and Highlights of the Week

Well over 400 skaters, a good number of them adults, patronized the rink last week-end. We are certain these people had a wonderful time, besides enjoying healthy exercise and plenty of fresh air. Thanks to all for their patronage. This kind of support surely helps in sustaining the Lions Club dream of building an arena in the not-too-distant future.

While on the subject of an arena, we would like to invite all sports organizations in Lachute and vicinity to rent our ice sheet as often as possible for hockey, broomball, etc., both for game and practice time. Rates are very low, and this revenue is of great importance. Every little bit counts, and it will serve to bring closer the day when we can provide for enclosed accommodation.

The selling campaign for season memberships has been underway for two weeks now; unfortunately, the results so far are not as good as anticipated. The chairman of the campaign, Lion L. J. Dumais, invites each and every citizen to seriously consider lending a hand in this project of providing our community with a Winter Recreation Centre worthy of its citizens. Each and everyone should participate, and to do so, we have a choice of one of the following categories:

$4 for an individual subscription; and finally —

$4 for a "Needy Kid" subscription — for those of you who do not skate, who do not have dependents, but who feel the Lions are doing a grand job with this rink and would like to contribute for one or more subscriptions.

These tickets are available from all Lions members, at the Skating Rink, at Cliff Cunningham's, 557 Main St., and at Dupré Sport Shop, 552 Main St.

Subscribe to our rink . . . this week . . . won't you?

Spitfires play first engagement

Lachute Spitfires made their debut for the season last evening (Tuesday) in the Brownsburg Arena, where they were hosts on "home ice" to the Thurso team of the four-club Quebec - Ontario League. Outcome of the game was a 3-2 victory for Thurso; this was a keen contest.

On Thursday at 8.30 Brownsburg will be the visiting team to play against Lachute on Brownsburg ice.

On Sunday Lachute will play again, against Hawkesbury — 2.30 p.m. at the Brownsburg Arena.

All Lachute home-games will be staged at Brownsburg, and the local public are urged to attend and give encouragement to their team. The enrolment of two or three new and promising players should give good impetus to Lachute's representation in the league this season.

• • •

The sale of tickets on a bond drawing to raise financial backing for the Spitfires, is now in progress. Savings bonds to the total value of $500 will be awarded to the winners, and the drawing is planned for Thursday, December 17, at a Bombers - Spitfires engagement in Brownsburg. Tickets are available from Adhemar Cuerrier (LO 2-5248), Albert Malacket (LO 2-5111) or any member of the club.

As this is, to date, the only visible means of financing the local team, a generous response on the part of the public will be appreciated.

Quebec-Ontario hockey league discusses referees

Hawkesbury — Last week representatives from the different teams in the league met to discuss the choice of referees. Also discussed were last-minute details to be straightened out before the season opened.

The secretary of the league invited Eugène Leblanc, who represents the Ottawa District Referees Association, to try and come to an agreement with the different representatives of the league. After a long discussion it was concluded that referees would be paid 10c per mile which they travel to referee a game.

It was then decided to get referees from the immediate district. The farthest they could go would be Ottawa. And the most that it would pay them would be $27.10, paying ten dollars to each referee plus ten cents for one referee for each mile travelled in getting to the game.

No Public Criticism

Eugène Lebanc asked the owners and instructors of the different clubs not to criticize a referee in public. "If you are not satisfied with the work of the referee, don't criticize him while he is on the ice. Make a report to the secretary of the league, who will contact me if I have not already heard."

Schedule

The secretary of the league, Bill Pressault, presented a schedule of 36 games, which was accepted by all members. . .

The season opened Sunday at Hawkesbury when Brownsburg played the Hawkesbury Royals.

The semi-finals and finals will be played the best four-out-of-seven.

Lachute appeared to have a problem in finding good hockey players — thus presenting difficulties in the formation of a team.

On Friday, November 20, the senior boys played their first league basketball game against St. Eustache. It was a very close game — St. Eustache winning by a score of 28-26. The three local stars were Lindsay Green, Ron Cairns and Reg Stansfield.

On Saturday the junior boys and girls travelled to Ste. Agathe, where they played two enjoyable games.

FISHING SCHOOL

Caraquet, N.B. (CP) — A new $1,000,000 22-classroom school in this northern New Brunswick community, in addition to regular courses for 350 pupils will have a new three-phase course in fishing for both beginners and professionals.

Curling club season's activities now in swing

The annual general meeting of the Lachute Curling Club was held November 11, and was attended by about 80 members. A stag dinner was served before the meeting, and the Refreshment Committee was complimented for an excellent meal.

In addition to the regular business, a motion was approved to again hold a Spring Bonspiel. It was also decided to have a mixed buffet dinner on December 5 for members and their guests. An orchestra will be provided for dancing later in the evening.

The meeting was advised that John Miron had been engaged as ice-man. He was previously on the staff at the Golf Club pro-Shop.

The notice board is packed with outside invitations and several have been attended by local curlers. Geo. Muir's rink, consisting of Leona MacKimmie, Jean Stein and Jack MacKimmie were runners up in the main event at Hawkesbury Invitation Bonspiel.

Curling began November 16 for the Match Committee Competition, and the first round was completed last Friday.

Wednesday night practice games were started last week. Teams or individuals wishing to play must post their entries weekly instead of for the season. The winning rinks last week were skipped by Bob Wyse, Dick Richardson, Jim Campbell and Linton Armstrong.

The Saturday afternoon and evening mixed parties were started, and a fair attendance took part in the curling, cards and dancing last Saturday.

Eight new members joined the club, and there are several more applications being considered.

The annual Turkey Bonspiel will commence November 27, entries for which will be received up till the 24th.

Engine in the rear? Why, of course!

American and European automobile manufacturers have now adopted the sound principle of the rear-mounted engine. Something once considered unorthodox is now recognized as plain engineering common sense.

You see, Volkswagen's rear engine gives direct drive to the wheels, saving weight and power. It is the most efficient and economical design. And the rear engine gives your rear wheels better traction. In mud, sand, ice, snow, where other cars skid, you go.

What is more, the Volkswagen engine is air-cooled, a decided advantage when you think about it. No water to boil over in summer, or to freeze in winter. No anti-freeze needed. No radiator problems.

The engine is ingeniously cast of aluminum and magnesium alloys and is very light and powerful; undoubtedly the toughest 198 lbs. going.

It is beautifully machined for minimum friction; you will probably never need oil between changes. And so efficient that top and cruising speeds are the same. Your Volkswagen will run at 70 m.p.h. all day without strain. You get an honest 32 miles to the gallon (regular gas—regular driving).

How much for street lighting?

A NUMBER of merchants in the "Main Shopping Centre" are pressing for improved lighting on Main Street, working through the Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Council committee on these matters.

There are several residential sections meanwhile which, even to the casual eye, are inadequately lighted. This condition is hazardous, primarily in respect to personal safety — in the winter, in terms of pedestrian safety — and to a lesser extent also in traffic safety.

These facts need no emphasis; they come up for frequent discussion. But expense is the major concern in any step towards improvement, and on this subject the experience and opinion of others may offer some guidance. We feel it is not untimely to present the following views:

"According to the recommendations of street lighting specialists, a municipality should spend from $2.50 a year per inhabitant for towns with heavy population, to $4.50 a year for sparsley settled areas," stated F. E. Rinfret, engineer and manager of the Commercial Department of the Southern Canada Power Company, in the course of street lighting conferences given in five municipalities of the Eastern Townships. (It would be interesting to compute Lachute's expenditure on a per capita basis.)

Mr. Rinfret pointed out that it was fairly easy to determine whether or not a particular street was sufficiently lighted. Associations, such as the Illuminating Engineering Society, have published street lighting standards varying the light intensity per street according to the amount of traffic and whether the street was commercial or residential. But it is much more difficult when the whole network of streets in a municipality has to be taken into account. The role of each one of the streets has to be determined, and then we can find out whether or not a sufficient part of the budget is set aside for lighting purposes.

"A survey made by the Southern Canada Power Company in its service area has produced fairly precise statistics with regard to street lighting. The study covered more than 200 municipalities the most important of which have a population around 40,000. For example, it is easy to establish for a municipality how much per capita street lighting costs. In our territory it varies between $1.50 and $3.50. Faced with these figures, municipal authorities cannot disguise the fact that they are neglecing this essential service, particularly when we remember that street lighting experts maintain the minimum expenditure per person is between $2.50 and $4.50 depending on the density of the population.

"Still according to figures compiled by Southern Canada Power, some cities served by the company set aside 4% of their budgets for street lighting while others with the same density of population allot only 1.5%. The same applies to towns and small municipalities.

"There is still another method of deciding the efficiency of a municipality's lighting system and that is to find out the intensity of light available for every 100 feet of street. Take for example two municipalities where one provides 1,500 lumens per 100 ft. and the other 3,000 lumens. Since a 100 watt light gives around 1,500 lumens, we can deduce that the first municipality has a lighting system consisting of 100 watt lamps installed every 100 feet. Certainly, a locality such as this which boasts several main and commercial streets, does not have sufficient lighting.

"The progressive improvements made over the years in the technique of street lighting bring out the importance it has achieved and attract the attention of municipal administrators. Prevention of accidents, the campaign against delinquency, beautification and tourist appeal in a town, all these demand improvement in lighting on at least the same scale as other municipal services."

Good year for forests

SNOW HAS FALLEN over most of Canada's forest areas and fire-rangers are breathing more easily. But they warn that fire danger lurks until the snow comes to stay.

With the danger period virtually over, Canada looks back over a year during which losses from forest fires have been well below average. Stepped-up publicity campaigns have helped, but in the main it was rainfall, coupled in some areas with high humidity, that kept losses down.

The lowest toll for thirty-five years is indicated in Ontario. A preliminary report issued by the department of lands and forests states 5,279 acres were burned over. The next best season in the province was in 1952 when 12,421 acres were burned.

Behind the good record for the country as a whole lies the development of forest protection. Crews have been better trained, better equipment is available and communications, supported by airplanes and helicopters, have been vastly improved.

Federal assistance is another factor. In 1957 the federal government broadened the implementation of the Canada Forestry Act by providing financial assistance to the provinces for forest-fire protection. A total of $5,000,000 was made available for a five-year period.

Federal contributions are applicable to capital expenditures, such as the cost of fire-protection equipment and improvements, and of access roads, trails and buildings required for forest-fire protection.

Forest fires constitute a widespread hazard in most provinces. Since 1945, the average number of fires each year has exceeded 5,000 and the average fire has burned nearly 300 acres. This makes an annual total of more than 1,500,000 acres destroyed.

Canadian capers

THIS IS THE WEEK Canada becomes united through division.

Incongruous? No more so than anything else that happens during this crazy, mixed-up period of carnival and combat known as Grey Cup Week.

United? You're a football fan this week whether you like it or not. You'll need ice water in your veins to avoid it.

Division? You have no choice. You're an Easterner or a Westerner. It's as simple as that.

At what other time of year does the weather bureau put out special forecasts for a sports event?

When else do staid business men from the granite skyscrapers of downtown Toronto don 10-gallon cowboy hats and snake dance through hotel lobbies? Even though they may never have been west of Oakville, Ont.!

The football game is just the climax to Grey Cup Week that began Monday with the arrival of the Blue Bombers in Toronto from Winnipeg.

Dinners, presentation of awards, selection of a queen and, on Saturday morning, the parade of floats through streets jammed with thousands of people, are the build-up for the meeting of the two teams that have emerged after four months' play as the best in East and West.

Not all of them will get to the game. The Canadian National Exhibition stands will seat 30,000-odd fans but on this one day of the year probably twice as many tickets could be sold.

It matters little that the stars of the game may come from Oklahoma or California or South Carolina or elsewhere in the United States. The names of these players are as familiar as those of the Canadians on the field.

And when it is all over, some time about 3.30 p.m. EST Saturday, bets will be paid off. There'll be a final outburst of post-game revelry in which supporters of the losers as well as the winners will take part, then all will be quiet for another 12 months.

That's Grey Cup Week — as Canadian as the maple leaf in its autumn glory and equally as colorful.

Anti-apathy drive

FROM COAST to coast in Canada, motorists and pedestrians will be called on to shake off the apathy that makes them easy targets for death on the highway — when the nation-wide Safe-Driving Week campaign opens next Tuesday, December 1. The drive against motoring and walking apathy will last for a week, to December 7, sponsored by the Canadian Highway Safety Council with active co-operation of many federal, provincial and community organizations.

Calls have been issued by both the Prime Minister and the Governor-General for the people of Canada to shake off the indifference so many hold against the dangers of highway travel. It is pointed out that the great highway toll of past years has been largely the result of apathy of drivers and pedestrians who refuse the realize the imminence of death, injury and serious economic loss through traffic mishaps.

Christmas Seals emphasize Quebec low in support, highest in disease

Montreal — Among Canadian provinces Quebec ranks high in its rate of tuberculosis and low in its support of the Christmas Seal campaign to fight the disease — Judge Thomas Tremblay, president of the Quebec Anti-Tuberculosis League, said recently.

Speaking in support of the perennial campaign Judge Tremblay, who is chief judge of the Quebec Court of Sessions of the Peace, said that there seems to be a direct connection between the sale of Christmas Seals and the rate of tuberculosis in the various provinces.

In Ontario and Manitoba where the sale of Christmas Seals is high, the respective tuberculosis rates are 3.2 and 2.6 per 100,000 of population, Judge Tremblay said. In Quebec where the sale of Christmas Seals is low, the tuberculosis rate is 10.3 per 100,000 of population.

Judge Tremblay stressed that tuberculosis, while less of a menace than it used to be, is still a major public health problem in many areas.

In Canada, he said, about 24,000 people with the disease are living outside sanatoria, and 7,500 new cases were detected across the country last year. The Province of Quebec, he said, accounts for more than half the new cases and for more than half the mortality from the disease.

Where was the first Music Festival in America?

In May 1908 the first music festival on the North American Continent took place at Edmonton, Alta. The groundwork for music competition festivals in Canada was laid in 1905 at the inaugural ceremonies in connection with the formation of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The Governor General, Earl Grey, who was present, expressed interest in doing something practical to promote interest in music and allied arts and later he suggested a Dominion-wide festival. A group in Alberta, after studying the rules and regulations laid down for Earl Grey's competition, decided they were more interested in the type of competition that had been sweeping England and Scotland — the music competition festival. After studying a collection of syllabi from the principal festivals in Great Britain, this Edmonton committee under Howard Stutchbury drafted a syllabus that provided for choral competitions, vocal solos, duets, trios, quartets, piano and violin solos, and so forth. Saskatchewan soon followed the lead of Alberta and had its first festival in 1909.

Where is the Graveyard of the Gulf?

Anticosti Island at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River, once known as the graveyard of the Gulf because of the many ships that were wrecked along its shores. The weather in the area is very severe and navigation is dangerous. Since the Canadian government built four lighthouses on the island, the number of shipwrecks has been greatly reduced. This large, low-lying island, a part of Quebec's Saguenay County, is 135 miles long and has a maximum width of 30 miles. It lies about 13 miles across the Jacques Cartier Passage from the north shore of the St. Lawrence and about 45 miles from the Gaspe coast. The island is owned by a pulp-and-paper company.

Who was first Intendant of New France?

Jean Talon (1625-1694), who was appointed to the position in March 1665 after having been intendant of the province of Hainaut in France. The intendant, governor and bishop formed the triumvirate that guided the progress of New France and it was the intendant who shouldered most of the administrative responsibilities. With the advice and support of Colbert, one of the King's ministers in France, Talon in three years achieved a remarkable expansion of the infant colony. He literally re-created New France on a sound economic basis before returning to France in 1668. He again served as intendant from 1670 to 1672.

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Why do so many people stop to look at a hole in the street? I can offer a guess.

It isn't so much the sight of men at work that catches the fancy of passers-by. It's the earth itself, inside the hole.

A city is an artificial place. It seems to be made entirely of steel, wood, glass and concrete. The city-dweller begins to think of the streets, sidewalks and buildings as things that have always been there and always will be.

Then a street gang sets to work, revealing earth and rocks. It comes as a surprise for many people to learn that the old earth has been there all the time, under the wheels and the hurrying feet.

So they stop and stare, and pass along thoughtfully. Suddenly they have realized — in a minor flash of enlightenment — that their city which looks so important is only a thin overcoat laid on the primal dirt.

The residents of certain North American cities, after years of jostling each other on narrow streets that run between closely-packed buildings, have decided to open some downtown ventilation space and let the earth free again.

In an effort to cure the traffic blight that threatens the hearts of cities, planners in towns like Kalamazoo and Toledo have closed some streets to vehicles, ripped up paving and put in flower beds, fountains and playgrounds.

They are remedying the errors of 50 and 100 years ago, when the cities were spilling across the earth in bursts of rude, chaotic growth. People were making fortunes.

Plans to control the growth of cities, and persuade citizens to cooperate for the common good, were seldom proposed. Any that were proposed soon got shouted down.

A man who dared put forward such wild schemes was regarded as a bolshevik. But the people in some of the cities are learning better now. They are re-discovering the earth.

NEW FUR FASHIONS
(Reprint from 1951)

I have before me a book that has been in our family for many years, entitled, "The Treasury of Natural History — A Popular Dictionary of Animated Nature", by one Samuel Maunder, published in London in 1849.

Although more than a century has passed since this book was compiled, I still go to it in preference to far more modern books on similar subjects, for it is a veritable encyclopedia of over 800 pages of very small type containing exhaustive descriptions of mammals, birds, fish, insects, sea creatures, and has many illustrations. All the animals mentioned in my following verses are actual and not fictitious; in fact, I have seen many of them in the Bronx and Central Park Zoos in New York. So here we go:

I've lately been asked to submit new ideas for the great Fur Designers' Convention. But of all the ideas that came into my head, there's only one worthy of mention.

Though fashions in fur change a bit with the years and styles show the latest creation, yet the furs that are used are the same every year and unchanged with each generation.

Now my big idea is to stimulate sales by using the skins of such creatures that never before have been seen in a store — new furs with unusual features.

Instead of conventional Muskrat and Mink, we'd have Margay and Oryx and Koodoo, or Lemur or Loris or Fennec, I think. I like 'em — I don't say that you do.

The wide use of Rabbit is only a habit that's hard to break off with the fur men, and if I'm not mistaken their place could be taken by all kinds of African Vermin.

There's all kinds of varmints which made into garments, would make the dames dress up for Sundays in coats made of Kinkojou, Serval or Potto, or jackets of soft Coatimundi.

A long coat — a beauty, of sleek Ungkaputi — and then there's a smart-looking cape to be advertised soon of Mandril Babboon with trimmings of Barbary Ape.

Just leave it to me and next season you'll see those lovely Rhinoceros muffs, and a three-quarter coat made of Crocodile skin with Porcupine collar and cuffs.

Be seein 'ya!

— Uncle Walt

Late resident of Brownsburg was 93 years of age

Mrs. William Tomalty

Death has once again claimed an old, respected resident of Brownsburg in the person of Mrs. William Tomalty, who passed away on November 14. The former Florence Clara Colbourne, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Colbourne of Stroud, England, she came to Canada in the early part of the year 1913 to visit her brother and his wife, the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Colbourne, at Brownsburg. In the latter part of the same year she became the bride of the late William Tomalty.

Mrs. Tomalty was a faithful member of the Brownsburg Baptist Church, having also served as a Sunday School teacher for many years.

The late Mrs. Tomalty is survived by two nieces, Mrs. Lemuel Wilson, of Brownsburg, and Mrs. Arthur Payton, Stroud, Gloucestershire, England.

The remains rested at the MacKimmie Funeral Home, Lachute, until November 17, the funeral service being held at the Brownsburg Regular Baptist Church at 2 p.m. The service was conducted by the Rev. Geo. B. Hicks, who took as his text Revelations 22-17, and spoke also on Psalm 91, Verse 16: "With long life will I satisfy him and show him my salvation", the verse seemed very applicable, as the deceased had attained the ripe old age of 93 years, 6 months and 1 day.

The hymns sung were "In the sweet bye and bye" and "Jesus paid it all". Mrs. Roy Jackson was organist.

Relatives attending from a distance were — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McKiddie, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Tomalty, Red Deer, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Tomalty, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Davis and Mr. John Hall, of Montreal.

The beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem in which the deceased was held. Interment was in the Ogdensburg Cemetery.

MOST ARE PAID

The mess that hockey-minded Belleville, Ont., got into over the financing of its world champion team, the Belleville McFarlands, can't be much of a surprise to any but the happily innocent, declares The Financial Post.

Most so-called amateur hockey teams today aren't amateur in the true sense of the word — as any fan with an ounce of common sense knows. Most players on the more important teams anyway are paid somehow, although, granted, not always in cash or by the taxpayer.

Preparing for Christmas

Contributed by the Revd. Horace G. Baugh

Everyone is now preparing for Christmas, and we begin to think about our Christmas gifts. In fact, gifts and giving play a large part in the Christmas story.

First of all, Christianity began with a gift from God to man, the gift of His Son, the Child of Bethlehem. Before that Child was many weeks old, men came bringing their gifts to Him who was God. We know them as wise men, coming to worship, and expressing their devotion through gifts worthy of themselves and of Him to whom they offered them.

The whole life of Jesus was one of giving, of all that He had and was, always to the Glory of God and the enrichment of His fellow men. Sight to the blind, and strength to the crippled, forgiveness to the living and eternal life to the dying, such were His gifts to men. Above all, His giving reached its climax when He gave His life on the Cross, withholding nothing that would save all nations. Truly God has set us a high standard of giving.

Our gifts, too, play a large part in the celebration of Christmas. Those little gifts passing between friends, relations, and neighbors. How they sweeten our life in this drab world! How we miss some friend who has forgotten us. How we open our hearts to help the unfortunate ones, and enjoy being able to do it. It is all a real part of our Christmas.

But is all this enough? Should not our gifts show our loyalty and devotion to God in return for His gifts to us? Shall He be left off our list, when all others are remembered? Being Christians, surely we should strive to be truly Christian in everything. We should remember that, if our lives are to be truly Christ-like, our standards of giving must be Christian as well as our standard of morals, of prayer, of faith, of service. . . . Does your Christmas list include God and His Church?

Grateful for aid in "Hallowe'en for UNICEF" drive

TO THE EDITOR

Lachute, Nov. 24, 1959

Editor, The Watchman

Dear Sir:

The result of the "Hallowe'en for UNICEF" drive was $338.

On behalf of the Lachute Women's Institute I wish to thank all those who made this project possible. — In particular, Mr. F. H. J. Royal and staff of the Lachute High School, for their co-operation at all times; Lowe Bros. Dairy for donating containers; The Lachute Watchman for the wonderful publicity. Also a special thank you to the children, who gave their Hallowe'en night so generously. Thank you, Ogdensburg and district children, also Dalesville, for your splendid effort. . . Thank you and well done, children, everywhere.

(Signed) Geraldine W. Butterfield

Home and School whist party

The Lachute Home and School Association held a most successful "military whist" November 18 in the High School auditorium. There was a record number of 74 tables, and the card-playing routine was very capably directed by Mr. Thos. Iddon. This event netted a gratifying sum of money for the worthy projects carried on by the Home and School, the Scholarship Fund, and the Clothing Bank. Candy, made by Association members, was sold during the evening by girls of the Students' Council, who also served coffee and cake later, in the cafeteria. The boys of the Council ably took care of the setting up and taking down of the tables.

2nd — Mrs. G. Higginson (captain), Mrs. C. Cunningham, Mrs. K. Boa, Mrs. A. Comba.

Bereavement

Sympathy is extended to Mme Philippe Valois in the death of her sister, Mme Elphège Perreault (Simone Dubeau), of Montreal, who succumbed to a lengthy illness last Sunday. The funeral rites were held Monday in Montreal.

The late Mme Perreault is survived by her husband and two sons in Montreal, her mother, in Joliette, and her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gordon and sons, Gregory and Blair, of Cornwall, and Lieut. Robert and Mrs. Gordon and son, Kim, of London, were here last week owing to the death of their mother, the late Mrs. Archie B. Gordon.

Mr. Thos. Iddon was m.c. for the annual military whist held by the Home and School Association at St. Jerome last Friday. Cards were played at 22 tables, and the affair proved a successful venture. Mr. Fred Roberts accompanied Mr. Iddon and enjoyed the occasion.

The exact nature of his malady or possible injury, according to reports, has been perplexing the doctors in attendance. (It is learned the boy was operated on, Monday of this week.)

Sudden Bereavements

Sympathy of many friends is extended to families and relatives in three sudden bereavements in Lachute during the past week or so — in the death of the late Mrs. Archie Gordon; of the late Mr. Stanley Smith, Upper Lachute; and of the late Mr. Trenholme Bishop. News of Mr. Bishop's death circulated among friends and neighbors in the East Ward Tuesday morning; under medical treatment for some time, his death occurred quite early Tuesday morning, a few hours after his admittance to the Royal Victoria Hospital.

Rev. B. B. Brown speaker for special service at Un. Church anniversary

An important event in Lachute United Church will be the occasion of the church anniversary, which is being celebrated this week-end. The guest preacher will be the Rev. B. B. Brown, D.D., assistant minister at St. James United Church, Montreal. Dr. B. B. Brown was at one time minister of the Lachute Methodist Church, and spent several very happy years in the Lachute pastoral charge.

Quite a number of people living in the area acquainted with Dr. Brown will be happy to know that he has expressed a wish that many of his old friends shall attend the service, and he will be happy to meet with them after divine worship.

The devotions will commence at the usual hour, 11 a.m. The Rev. Wilson Bridge, minister of the church will conduct the service, and Dr. Brown will deliver the anniversary sermon.

At East Settlement

In the afternoon, at 2.30, a special service will be held in the East Settlement United Church. At that service a memorial plaque will be unveiled by Dr. Brown in memory of the late Dr. McClure, who was born in East Settlement, and who eventually served for 50 years as a medical missionary in China. At this service the Rev. Wilson Bridge will be the preacher, his sermon topic being, "Our Generation Judged by the Past."

Friends from far and near will be welcomed at these services.

Cleric on radio

"Plain Talk", a regular morning devotional period over CBM, at 8.50 a.m., will be conducted by the Rev. Horace G. Baugh for one week, beginning November 30.

Christening

After the morning service last Sunday in the Lachute United Church, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Moore, of Mountain View, was baptized. The child was given the names William Albert — the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating at the ceremony.

School for Retarded in need of funds

This newspaper is informed by Col. E. Emmett, president of the Lachute Association for Retarded Children, that funds are at a low level to meet operating expenses of the retarded children's school. The costs in connection with this venture include rental of premises, telephone, supplies, and daily transportation for pupils in Lachute, St. Jerusalem, Grenville and Calumet. This costly item alone amounts to $140 a month — towards which the Lions Club has contributed $60 monthly since the inauguration of the school.

Any readers desiring to contribute to this good work may kindly send donations to Col. E. Emmett, R.R. 1, Lachute. (All donations will be acknowledged by receipts for income tax purposes.)

BELL LINES

by Dick Pearson

If you're an executive or a secretary — even if you just know one or the other — we've got some good news for you; we are now introducing to Canadian businesses this handsome and compact telephone unit designed specially for the person who makes or takes a lot of calls. Known as the "Call Director", this phone is probably the most versatile and advanced ever offered to business-minded people. Available in 18-button or 30-button size, it allows for inter-communication just by pushing a button, the holding of one call while taking another, the addition of one or more persons to any telephone conversation and the picking up of as many as 30 lines. A square push-button lights up instantly a line is in use, and the volume of the bell can be controlled as well. Of eye-catching design, the Call Director has a slanted panel for easy use, and is available in green, grey or beige. Call us for information about this new concept in telephone service.

Our Laurentian Telephone Directory is usually issued every December, but this year it has been delayed until the end of May 1960 in order to accommodate several number changes in centres switching over to dial service. Our supply of directories of the December 1958 issue is getting quite low. In view of this we are unable to replace directories except in emergent cases, and can only supply them to new customers. We would ask customers who are moving in town to take their directories with them. We would be very glad to send out a Blue Book of Telephone Numbers to assist in keeping frequently-called numbers close at hand. A call to our Business Office is all that is required to obtain one.

It's a problem! — It's a problem to know just what to buy people for Christmas. And, you know, Christmas is just 4 weeks away. For instance, what can you get for brothers and sisters, for aunts, uncles, nephews and nieces, for sons and daughters or, for that matter, husbands and wives? — What can you get that's different, and colorful, but at the same time, practical? — Well, one suggestion I'd like to make is a telephone. A telephone for the kitchen, bedroom, or basement, makes an exciting gift — especially in color — and it serves to constantly remind the recipient of you in a nice way. For the gift of a telephone to a friend or relation, the cost to you would be $2 installation and, if in color, a one-time $9 color charge. We'll gladly send a gift certificate in your name to anyone you choose or, if you prefer, you can pick up a gift certificate at our Business Office for personal presentation. Give us a call if this idea interests you, or if you'd like other telephone gift suggestions. We're here to help you.

I'm sure you'd like to join me in saying "Welcome back" to Jim Menzies, who has just returned home after 18 months away. Jim has been on assignment to our Goose Bay office where he performed various tasks including operating, cable repair and splicing, and all phases of Central Office work. There are 21 Bell employees located there permanently and Jim tells me they have comfortable living quarters; but of course, due to the location, recreation is quite restricted. Some of the men have become Hi-Fi addicts. We of Lachute are proud that fellows like Jim, Louis Guillotte, Bruce Mason and Bill Poley had a large part in "pioneering" the first telephone services to Goose Bay. Incidentally, Jim tells me that through our facilities the CBC is now able to transmit current shows to that area, instead of the previous long-delayed shows on tape. . . . We're glad to see you again, Jim.

Chris Brown passed Second Star skipping. Allan Rice was presented with his Observer badge, and Wayne McArthur passed the Cub Salute and Grand Howl.

The last 15 minutes of the meeting was spent around the camp fire, with the boys telling jokes and singing campfire songs.

Main item on the program is a thorough study of a brief devoted to Tourism in Quebec, including:

1. Publicity and public relations as to tourist attractions offered by the Province;
2. The structure of governmental tourist departments and other organizations doing tourist promotion work;
3. Maintenance of the French atmosphere in Quebec;
4. Hotels, restaurants, and in a general way, how to treat our visitors;
5. Highways, campsites and roadside parks.

Mr. Meloche, the Chamber's president, stated: "It is expected that the tourist industry in Quebec and Canada will suffer a setback in 1960". He bases his forecast on the fact that the opening of the Seaway and the visits of Her Majesty the Queen and the President of the United States, attracted thousands of visitors. There is no comparable event foreseen for 1960.

Furthermore, our neighbors to the South have launched a big campaign to retain tourists in the United States and attract foreign visitors. President Eisenhower subscribed to this campaign, and millions of dollars have been earmarked for publicity.

Added to this the intensive competition of European countries, favored by exchange rates and fare reductions on air and sea travel.

Quebec also has to meet the competition of the other Canadian provinces.

Mr. Meloche went on to say: "Yet our Province is surely well prepared to greet wealthy tourists. Luxurious establishments, hotels, restaurants, in the Laurentian, Murray Bay, Quebec and Montreal districts, and the Gaspé Peninsula, attract a class of tourists many would like to see visiting their region.

"The French atmosphere of Quebec should be preserved and enhanced, because it is an important touristic attraction. It is the only place in North America where it is to be found. Let's not spoil it by cheap imitations of American concepts. The French atmosphere of Quebec is a very valuable touristic asset.

"There is no question our tourist industry is a major one. We must organize to develop this source of wealth, if we want to meet the competition instead of losing our tourist trade to U.S.A., South America, Europe and other Canadian provinces."

CNIB Auxiliary plans events for White Cane Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the C.N.I.B. was held November 17 at the C.N.I.B. Centre, Lachute, with 17 members present. Mrs. Leslie Cowan presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Muriel Leishman.

Main business was the final planning for a Christmas dinner for the White Cane Club of Argenteuil, which is to be held December 10. Plans were also made to hold a Handicraft Sale and Tea, on December 2 in the afternoon, at the Legion Hall in Lachute. The object of this tea is to display and sell goods made by the White Cane Club members. This club is comprised of sightless members and has been organized about three years. The display is the first venture of this kind undertaken by them, and the public are urged to attend and see these articles, which will make ideal Christmas gifts. (The articles will be displayed prior to the tea, by one of the local merchants on Main Street.)

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held in January; there will be no meeting in December.

Christmas Cards

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"And, round about December,
The cards upon his shelf
Which wished him lots of Christmas cheer,
And fortune in the coming year,
Were never from his near and dear,
But only from himself."

Perhaps A. A. Milne in his lines in "King John's Christmas" was poking fun at the amount of enjoyment most people get from their Christmas cards! The custom of sending cards is only a little over a hundred years old — but what pleasure countless people receive from them! The popularity of Yuletide Greetings has grown steadily all over the world. In Canada Christmas cards costing a large fortune are mailed each December.

There is some dispute whether the first Christmas card was a sketch drawn by a Mr. W. C. Dobson in December, 1844, which symbolized the spirit of Christmas or whether the credit for originating a Christmas card should go to Mr. J. C. Horsley who two years later sent an elaborate card to his friends. This had two allegorial designs showing needy folks being fed and clothed and a family group gathered around the festive table.

Many of the other designs which are shown from year to year can be traced far back into the past. Mistletoe, holly and ivy were all esteemed by the early Britons. Wreaths were used by the ancient Romans. Candles were popular hundreds of years ago with the Jews and were used in their annual "Feast of Lights". The Christians in the Middle Ages likely adopted the use of candles from their Jewish neighbors.

The Christmas tree may be traced to Germany in the Seventeenth Century. It came to England when Prince Albert erected a Christmas Tree in Windsor Castle in 1841. The early German settlers on this continent brought their love of Christmas Trees with them.

The use of miniature art scenes on Christmas cards has become popular in recent years. Not only reproductions of famous religious paintings such as Lerolle's "Arrival of the Shepherd" or Raphael's "Madonna", but pictures by modern painters are also used. There are several very fine Canadian Artists Series of cards with fine color prints of typical Canadian scenes. These are of special interest to friends in other lands.

Some Canadian art galleries including the National Art Gallery of Canada at Ottawa have colored reproductions suitable for Christmas greetings. These prints can be glued to red or green construction paper. Especially attractive Yuletide greetings are the following National Gallery prints: Clarence Gagnon — "Village in the Laurential Mountains"; Lawren Harris' — "Snow"; Maurice Cullen — "Ice Harvest"; F. S. Coburn — "Winter Morning".

Art or construction paper should be bought in large sheets from a printer or a stationery store. Figure out how it can best be cut economically into a size which will fit a standard envelope and still be a good background for your colored print. Too large or too small cards are a nuisance to the postal employees, especially in this rush season.

Christmas cards with informal snapshots of members of the family are quite popular, especially with older relatives. They are always amazed to see how much the children have grown!

A message written in red or green ink on white paper makes a pretty contrast. If a child has learned to block print or to write, do encourage him to send a little note with the Christmas cards to those who remember him at Christmas time. It means so much, especially to grandparents, to know that they are loved and remembered. Christmas cards "keep the grass from growing" on the paths of friendship.

Avoid plastic panic!

By Mrs. Helen R. Hewson,
Central Vice-President, Canadian Home and School Association

Many years ago we heard an old Scottish woman crooning a lullaby, "Hush ye my little one, hush ye my pretty one, the Black Douglas shall not get ye." . . . In the old days, caring for children included protecting them from the enemies of the family, clan or tribe.

Family feuds that threaten human life have died out in our western world. Father no longer works with one eye on the plow and a sharp lookout for the enemy lurking in the underbrush. The protection of the family has been taken over by the police and firemen and public health officers.

The old enemies that were a threat to life and health have been vanquished, but many new dangers now come right into our homes. One of these is the limp plastic bags now in common use. There have been a few panicky outcries that their manufacture and distribution should be prohibited. What are the facts concerning this recently recognized menace?

In Canada, since January 1959 there have been about 10 infant deaths due to suffocation by plastic film. These deaths are certainly a matter of grave concern, but they are a small fraction of the total accidental infant deaths in Canadian homes during the same period. Falls, fire, poisoning, food suffocation, firearms, drowning and submersion have all taken their toll of child life.

How then can we protect our children? By taking care that accidents don't happen. . . In the matter of plastic bags, the parents are constantly being alerted to the dangers of their misuse. And the ultimate responsibility is the parents'. If limp plastic bags come into your home, keep them away from all children; destroy them or burn them (they make excellent garbage containers!) Do not use them as make-shift covers for crib or furniture; there is a heavy-gauge plastic produced for this purpose, safe and inexpensive.

Potential dangers in the modern home include such universal comforts and conveniences as fire, water, headache tablets — thousands of household items in common use. We would not wish to have these taken off the market — but, like the parents of long ago when the enemy came in human form, we can take care!

Chili-glazed pork loin roll

(Consumer Section)

For a meaty, tender roast try boneless pork loin roll, a fairly new addition to the list of retail pork cuts. After roasting, dress up the meat in fine fashion by covering it with a bright red chili sauce glaze. Here are Consumer Section directions:

Place a 3 to 4-pound pork loin roll on rack in uncovered roasting pan. Roast 45 to 50 minutes per pound in moderately slow oven, 325°F, until well done (185°F internal temperature on a meat thermometer). A 3-pound roast will take about 2½ hours to cook.

Now mix together ¼ cup thick chili sauce and ¼ cup corn syrup. Spread it over the cooked roast and return to 325°F oven for an additional 15 minutes.

Mild fish with piquant sauce

Fast cooking fish fillets readily assume an air of simplicity or glamor, depending on the cook's mood and the occasion at hand. When it's a busy day dinner, fish fillets can be broiled or pan fried to flaky perfection in next to no time. It is well worth the little extra effort to set them off with enticing sauces or toppings when time is not a major consideration. Today we suggest Curried Fish Fillets, an adaptation of a popular Indian dish in which tender, mild-flavored fish fillets are served with a piquant sauce. Curry powder is a light flavor accent in this recipe; devotees of the tropical seasoning may like a little more than is suggested below. The addition of chopped apple and dry wine lift the sauce from the commonplace. Incidentally, when wine is used in a sauce such as this, the alcohol completely evaporates, leaving only the tangy influence of wine in the tasty sauce.

Curried Fish Fillets

½ Cup chopped onion, ½ cup chopped apple, ½ cup chopped green pepper, 5 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon curry powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 chicken bouillon cube, 1½ cups boiling water, ½ cup dry white wine (or 4 tablespoons lemon juice and 4 tablespoons water), 1 to 1½ pounds fish fillets, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine.

Sauté onion, apple and green pepper in 5 tablespoons butter or margarine until tender. Blend in flour and seasonings. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water, blend into above. Cook, stirring, until thickened and smooth. Simmer an additional five minutes. Meanwhile, in heavy skillet, sauté fillets in butter or margarine about four minutes on each side, until they are just tender and flake easily with fork. (Frozen fillets should not be thawed. They will take almost twice as long as the fresh.) Remove cooked fillets to a hot platter and pour hot sauce over fillets. Makes four or five servings. Serve with rice, and, if desired, chutney and toasted almonds.

Bacon adds flavor to other meats

(Consumer Section)

What would we do without bacon? It is so good on its own, and it teams well with almost every food including other meats, poultry, eggs, cheese, beans and other vegetables, all kinds of macaroni and spaghetti, bread and many fruits.

Side bacon, with its alternate fat and lean strips, is particularly attractive as well as useful when cooked with other meats. Because young, tender meats such as veal, lamb and the smaller chickens and turkeys tend to be rather dry and bland, bacon is very often cooked with them for added juiciness and flavor.

Bacon is good, too, with beef. Gourmet chefs wouldn't think of serving filet mignon (beef tenderloin) without a strip of bacon wrapped around it before cooking. You can get the same effect by wrapping lean hamburg patties with bacon, fastening it in place with a wooden pick which should be removed after cooking. Remember, too that bacon strips placed on top of a meat loaf will keep the top of the loaf from drying out and add good flavor at the same time.

Most cuts of pork do not need any fat added to them during cooking but pork tenderloin is an exception. It is generally suggested that bacon strips be placed on top of stuffed pork tenderloin to keep it from drying out during baking. Here is an interesting adaptation of stuffed pork tenderloin — the recipe was recently tested and approved in Canada's Kitchen.

Tenderloin Birds

1½ Pounds pork tenderloin, prepared mustard, 2 cups bread stuffing, 4 slices side bacon, 1 cup thin cream, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, salt, pepper, paprika.

Cut tenderloin into 3 inch pieces. "French" (flatten) to ½ inch thickness. Spread one side of each slice with a thin coating of prepared mustard then with ¼ cup of the bread stuffing. Roll and skewer. Cover each roll with a half slice of side bacon. Makes 8 birds.

Note: If desired, omit cream, lemon juice, salt and paprika, and bake the birds in 1 can cream-of-celery soup diluted with ½ cup milk. Season with ½ bay leaf and ¼ teaspoon pepper but do not add any salt as there is sufficient in the soup.

To organize Christmas dinner preparations

Write out a Christmas menu and from it compile two shopping lists, one for non-perishable and one for perishable foods. Shop a week or two in advance for the first list and as far ahead as refrigeration or storage facilities will allow for the perishable foods.

List all items which can be prepared several days before Christmas such as cranberry sauce or jelly, pastry, salad dressing, etc.

Allow ample time for frozen turkey, goose, chicken or duck to thaw before roasting Christmas day, suggests the Poultry Products Institute. Approximately 5 hours per pound will be required if poultry is thawed in refrigerator or cold storage around 38° to 45°F. If thawing at room temperature allow about 1 hour per pound.

Fashions

Lounge wear is sharply defined this season in well-tailored separates, pieces that go perfectly together and manage, also, to be at home with other garments. The black velveteen pants are tapered in the prescribed manner with curved pockets. Good with casual shirts or sweaters, they are shown here with a blouse of the "important" type, the fabric of white satin. The large collar and the laced shoestring closing are current sartorial signatures.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman
By Edna Blakely,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Place eggs with the large end up in a covered, container in the refrigerator for the best storage. The covering (advises the home economics service of the federal agriculture department) keeps the eggs from absorbing odors and losing moisture.

The differences are in grades. Grade A are recommended for the delicate flavor wanted for poached or fried eggs or angel food cakes. Lesser grades are fine for scrambled eggs or for cakes and pudding.

A high quality egg has a high standing yolk, well-centred and banked in thick white when broken out on a plate. As the egg deteriorates the yolk floats to the side or top of the egg and will be flatter when broken onto a plate.

Baked Eggs

Baked eggs, which are often overlooked, are a delightful touch to any meal. Here are three variations:

The eggs require a slow oven — 325 degrees — for 12-15 minutes.

To Suit Taste

Apple Sauce can be as sweet or tart, and as pale or rosy, as you like. It's up to the cook to decide what she wants. Peel apples, and you get a white sauce with pale green tinges. Half peeled, the sauce turns out to be a delicate pink. The entire peeling produces shades from pink to orange depending on the kind of apples used.

If you happen to get a good buy on apples, they may be made into apple sauce and stored in the freezer. The frozen sauce will last up to nine months, providing a delicious last-minute dessert for those rushed days.

Follow the usual recipe — ¼ cup of water to each quart of apple slices. Strain, if you prefer it that way, cool and sweeten, using ¼ to ½ cup sugar to each quart of sauce. Pour into rigid containers leaving headspace for expansion, seal, and freeze at zero or lower temperatures.

PASS THE GRASS

Grass, leaves, weeds and even ferns could form part of your diet in the future, says The Financial Post. It reports that a U.K. inventor has a machine for converting vegetable matter into edible, nutritious protein in the form of flour. It's even more efficient than a cow in protein conversion, he says.

Grim traffic toll viewed by speaker at Lions Club

Every eight minutes a person is injured by a car — someone is killed every three hours, and every 48 seconds Canada registers a traffic accident. These were some of the grim statistics given at the Lions Club by Paul-André Joly, speaking on behalf of All Canada Insurance Federation which represents more than 250 fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies.

"In 1953, we had 650,000 registered vehicles in the Province of Quebec and 901 people were killed in auto accidents; in 1957 there were 300,000 more cars than four years previously, but the number of traffic deaths was reduced by 22. Again, last year we had over a million cars registered in our 'belle province' but still the number of deaths in car accidents was even more substantially reduced to 821 — a drop of 80 over 1953."

Even though the number of people killed has been considerably reduced compared to the increase in the number of registered vehicles, Mr. Joly told his audience that there was still room for improvement and that more caution was still required to reduce this still-too-large number of traffic deaths.

Four major factors are responsible for 85% of traffic accidents — speeding, drinking, driving on the wrong side of the road, and refusal to yield the right of way. Speed alone is responsible for 50% of all traffic accidents and 99% of those accidents could be avoided.

Each week, these accidents cost over $6 millions to the Canadian economy. Minor accidents, that is, those causing only material damages, are steadily increasing.

Answering those who constantly criticize the high cost of automobile insurance, the speaker mentioned that the cost of automobile insurance is in direct proportion to the number and cost of accidents involving insured cars in each section of Canada. We all know that an accident is much more expensive today than it was ten years ago. There are more cars on the roads; the cost of repairs has increased due to cars being built with many expensive improvements; and the cost of hospital care is also greater.

In conclusion, the speaker said that safe driving was the best means to save money as well as save human lives.

Farmers affected by Machine Age

The technological revolution in agriculture is reducing the number of farms, and in some cases causing the size of farms to increase. Reports from Quebec Farm Forums indicate that the effects of rapid mechanization vary from one area to another. In the farming district west of the Richelieu River and south of the St. Lawrence, and in the County of Argenteuil where land is easy to cultivate and quite fertile, farms are slowly increasing in size. However, existing houses are usually bought by city people, and this tends to maintain the rural population.

In Brome and Missisquoi Counties and the Laurentian foothills the land does not lend itself to machinery cultivation and is less fertile. In these areas there are many vacant farms already, but these are being bought as summer homes for city dwellers. However, some of these farms present a conservation problem.

The Counties of Compton, Sherbrooke and Stanstead, and parts of the upper Ottawa Valley, are experiencing a rapid reduction in the rural population. At the same time some farmers are buying more land.

The biggest impact on rural communities seems to be the loss of local social functions, the difficulty of supporting churches and schools, climbing taxes on farm land, and the lack of young people interested in farming.

Only a few Forum groups believe that policies should be undertaken to counteract these trends. Most groups would like better marketing facilities, more co-operation among farmers, and more credit for expanding operations.

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

This is the first day we have put out food for the birds, so it must be winter. All winter long, we put crumbs, cereal, and on mild days, fruit on a window-sill upstairs, where the feathered mites feast happily. What is food to them is as TV to the cats, who love to sit just inside on a desk and watch the show. The teeth of the felines chatter with desire; from time to time they look imploringly at me, "Won't you please, please, open the window just a bit?" Some brave souls keep both birds and cat in the house, but I have never dared.

Which reminds me of an amusing bird story from suburbia, the next street, in fact. — A friend recently moved into another house, taking, of course, the budgerigar along with her. After a couple of days, the bird became very excited, fluttering against the sides of the cage, uttering plaintive cries. The family said what a clever bird he was, missed his old home, and they tried to soothe him. But the beating and crying continued. Suddenly, like a beam of light, the reason pierced our friend's mind. She had not fed the poor thing for several days!

The budgies which talk are delightful creatures. We know one that says quite distinctly, "Merry Christmas." He also says, just as directly, "Go to hell." This always distresses his elderly owner, who says worriedly, "I don't know where he hears that."

* * *

Do you know what a "climbing tree" is? No, not a tree that climbs, but a tree for climbing. A friend of ours built a house practically in the fields some ten years ago, but such is progress in our fair city, that today it is surrounded by other houses and most of the lovely trees are gone. But our friend is a good mother, and realized that children and trees go together, so several trees on the lot were spared, and one in the back was marked for climbing. The other trees are taboo, but this one is solely for the delight of the children of the neighborhood. The gang used to play in our yard because we had two trees. It is hard to believe that just four short years ago, our small, but dignified daughter was daily to be seen at the top of the big tree at the front. Climbing is a necessary part of every child's growing up.

We began with winter and meant to progress to Christmas preparations, but became side-tracked. To return — we have not really done much shopping yet, but have made a preliminary survey. We have a list with what we hope are appropriate articles opposite each name, but it is not a law, merely a list, subject to revision. Every year the shops seem to bear down hard on some one thing; it seems to me this is a slipper year. There are literally scores of designs in as many different materials. There are slippers in brocade, gay with spangles or coins, reminiscent of the harems of the east. There are warm, cosy ones of wool, or fur, or both; there are gay mules in pastels, just a whisper of foot covering; there are real leather moccasins; there are satin smoothies, and Japanese shapeless things gathered around the ankle, looking like the footwear of the jesters of the time of King Arthur. Yes, I think some of these must go on the list. We are one of those silly people who like their Christmas presents to be slightly useless — that is, beautiful first, useful second. These slippers seem to be just the thing, although I would not sneer at a bottle of really good perfume.

Speaking of perfumes, we read an article lately which advised buying your canine friends some perfume, made especially for them. It cited particularly Wagnolia and Kennel 5! If I were manufacturing a cat scent, I would name it Purrfume. ... Forgive these wandering, not to say, wanton ideas.

* * *

Now that the delights of Sunnyacres are over for the year, we are thrown back on the resources of our own mind, or of the city. There is a beautiful documentary film of British Columbia at a West End theatre. We went to see the British picture, "The Captain's Table", but were much impressed by the Canadian one, which was not advertised at all. As a nation, we do seem to have an inferiority complex; not that we, or any other nation, could turn out such a bit of fluff so perfectly developed as do the British. They are masters of the gentle art of spoofing. A friend of ours who takes a cruise each holiday, says that the exaggeration is slight; there are, indeed, very queer goings-on on a cruise. "The Big Fisherman", also currently showing, I have not seen. But a friend assures me that there are more beautiful women in it, than she has ever before seen. It would appear that poor Peter plays second fiddle to all this pulchritude. It is, I believe, just another spectacle. As a small person, I am loath to believe that because a thing is big, it is necessarily good.

Outside the snow falls steadily; it means business this time. I think fleetingly of a young Australian friend who is to spend Christmas with us, and hopes we shall have a white Christmas, because he has never seen one. In the vernacular, "Brother, you haven't seen anything." In Australia the thermometer nears the hundred mark at Christmas. Our friend, now in Toronto, asks if we will advise him about winter motoring in Canada. This, I decline, and refer him to the Royal Automobile Club. But just to scare him, I did say that it was advisable to carry a shovel and 50 lbs. of sand!

When we write next, Christmas will be imminent. Now is the time to address cards, make cakes, lists, fill the cellar with provisions, get out the overshoes and shovels. We are a hardy race; we have to be. But you know what? I was tired of that summer, it seemed to go on and on. Winter has its charms too; so snuggle down by your hearths and enjoy it — for a month. After that it becomes grim.

Glengarry County brucellosis free

Ottawa — Six Ontario counties have just qualified as brucellosis certified areas, bringing to 65 the number of areas in Canada that have been certified since a national eradication program was launched in 1957 — according to Dr. K. F. Wells, Veterinary Director General.

For an area to qualify for certification, not more than one per cent of all cattle and not more than five per cent of all herds can be infected with the disease.

Officials of the Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, say just over one million cattle are involved in all certified areas.

The six counties, Leeds, Brant, Wentworth, Glengarry, Carleton and Peel, have been certified for a three-year period.

The 65 areas by province: P.E.I. 3; N.S., 7, N.B.,10; Quebec 3; Ont., 12; Man., 6; Sask., 19; B.C., 4; Yukon, 1.

Another 338 areas have been accepted and testing is being carried out in 122 of them. At the present time, approximately two and a half million cattle are being dealt with under the program.

STILL LIKE TEA

Influx or non tea-drinking Europeans has failed to shake it from its top rank. So has the continuing influence of coffee-drinking U.S.

The three of four Canadians who like it, emptied more than 11,500 million cups in the year ended June 30, 1959.

This points up a dramatic difference between beverage tastes of U.S. and Canada. We drank five times more tea per capita than Americans.

This month the fire fighter's spotlight is on muscular dystrophy. Firefighter Ted Dakin, with his associates across Canada, will help annual March for Muscular Dystrophy raise funds for medical research to save lives of 20,000 or more Canadian victims of mysterious muscle disease. He is shown here with patient Richard Clouthier, 8.

Sees trading boom in major baseball

By Milt MacPhail,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This winter should see the greatest trading boom in the history of major baseball.

There are two reasons for that. One, the fact that for the first time trading will be permitted between the two leagues. Starting November 21 and continuing for three weeks there will be straightaway trading between the National and American Leagues with no waivers required.

And second, there are so many dissatisfied teams, clubs that just have to make some kind of a move.

The nearest thing to a standpat team probably will be the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, who have a young club that may even get better.

Milwaukee Braves will be hot in search of a second baseman. San Francisco Giants need secondary pitching, they could use a second baseman and would like another catcher.

New York Yankees are a cinch to trade. They badly need some new blood.

What is your medical I.Q.?

What is your MD I.Q.? If you are a victim of muscular dystrophy, praying for a cure that will save your life, your muscular dystrophy intelligence quotient is likely pretty high. After all, it's your life.

If the disease hasn't touched you or your family or your friends perhaps you don't know as much about it as you should.

The reports of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada make sober reading. The Association reckons that in Canada alone there are between 20,000 and 30,000 victims of this terrifying crippler — most of them children. Despite the hundreds of thousands of dollars donated by a generous and sympathetic public to support medical research, science does not yet have the answer.

But the search goes on and is marked again this year by the sixth annual March for Muscular Dystrophy in a bid by the Association for continued public understanding and funds to carry on the relentless battle. Their goal this year is over $300,000. They know that Canadians will not let them down.

79 Scholarships granted in Mining and allied studies

The Quebec Minister of Mines, the Hon. William M. Cottingham, has just announced 79 scholarships have been granted by his department to students in Geology, Mining and Metallurgy, for the 1959-60 academic year.

Financial assistance to students in these highly specialized fields is one of the most important initiatives of the Department. In announcing the new scholarships, Mr. Cottingham emphasizes that the training of specialists in mining and allied enterprises is one of the prime concerns of his Department.

"The increase in our mining production," he said, "has been tremendous. It is therefore important that the government, as well as the companies exploiting our mineral resources, be able to find among graduates from Quebec universities the many specialists they require. The present government has seen long ago the necessity of assisting students wishing to follow these careers. In addition, the government has financially helped universities in the establishment of science faculties. That of Laval University, among others, is a fine example of the results of this collaboration."

The scholarship program of the Department of Mines goes back to 1936 when the Legislature voted $18,500 for that purpose. This amount has been gradually increased to $60,000 for each of the last three fiscal years. A total of $677,208 has thus been voted up to now, for 1,146 scholarships granted to 490 students.

Mr. Cottingham has stressed the fact this marks an outstanding progress. There was a time, in the not too distant past, when it was rather difficult to find among university graduates the specialists required by our mining companies.

The scholarships may be obtained from the Department of Mines when engineering students have reached the third year of their studies, at which time they choose their specialized field. Some are granted each year for post-graduate studies.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Your car will stay smart-looking lots longer if you keep the upholstery immaculate. Here's how to cope with stains that mar a well-groomed look.

Stains on rayon, wool or nylon upholstery: sponge first with cold water. Use it sparingly, blotting with a clean cloth as you work so you don't soak the cushion. If the spot remains, try warm water with soap suds. This will usually clean nylon. If stains are stubborn on wool or rayon, rub gently with a good foaming-type cleaning fluid such as that used for rugs.

Special stains: for grease, a petroleum based cleaning fluid usually does the trick. For ice cream, first use cold water and then warm soapy water. Chewing gum can be rubbed with ice until it hardens, then scraped off. All stains are easiest to remove when new.

If you have leather-type upholstery, use warm water and soap suds for stain removal and for general cleaning. Shampoo the upholstery in small areas, wiping it dry with a clean cloth as you work. Never use harsh cleaners or bleaches, which are hard on leather.

Vacuuming and brushing fabric upholstery once a month will help to protect it from the damaging effects of road dust.

Breeder awards by Ayrshire Association

The Ayrshire Breeders' Association of Canada are going to honor members of the Association who have contributed to the improvement of the breed. The award will be known as the Superior Breeder Award and it will be given for distinguished achievement in breeding Ayrshire cattle.

HERE'S Corvair BY CHEVROLET
WITH ENGINE IN THE REAR
WHERE IT BELONGS
IN A COMPACT CAR

We knew Corvair's engine had to go in the rear if we wanted a compact car with big car ride, big car room, big car performance — and maximum efficiency. And that called for the most drastic revolution in auto design and manufacturing Canada has ever seen. What does a rear engine mean to you as driver or passenger?

MORE SPACE — The floor is virtually flat. The short "opposed six" engine takes up less space, leaves more for passengers.

FAR BETTER RIDE—Every wheel can sop up a bump without affecting any other. So the ride is far softer—and the wheels cling to the pavement better.

GREATER TRACTION—Try a Corvair on mud, or snow, you'll be astounded by the difference in road-grip and control.

BETTER BRAKING — Corvair is designed to put an almost equal brake load on every wheel; the rear end maintains solid, sure traction for smooth, straightline stops in virtually any situation.

LESS NOISE, LESS HEAT — Engine noise, heat, fumes are behind the passengers; carried away by the wind stream as you drive.

LESS MAINTENANCE—Corvair's air-cooled engine never needs antifreeze, never boils in the hottest weather. It warms up quicker in cold weather, so there's much less cold-start wear.

BETTER HANDLING—Corvair's "flat" engine and lower floor gets the centre of gravity 'way down; it rides rock-solid through the tightest turns. Steering is light as a feather, will never need power assistance.

LESS NEEDLESS WEIGHT — Corvair's power plant is mostly aluminum. And it's air-cooled — no need for a radiator, water pump, hoses or even the weight of the water itself. And there's an added plus here; we designed a gas-fired car heater* that gives warmth almost instantly.

Engine, transmission, and rear axle are all bolted together into one solid power unit. We save literally hundreds of pounds, and that makes a whopping big difference in performance and in gasoline economy.

THE RIGHT ANSWER — It took a terrific amount of engineering and Chevrolet's tremendous resources to design, test and set up production on a precedent-shattering car like Corvair. But the first time you get behind the wheel—you'll agree it was worth every penny and every hour!

Vacation in Arctic offers adventure but high prices

By Don Attfield, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Frobisher Bay, N.W.T. (CP) — Arctic vacation? You bet. The Arctic is a wonderful — though still costly — holiday land where crisp summer air is invigorating, and game and fish are big and abundant.

For rest or stimulation it's hard to beat the peace and quiet of the North. Some who know the Eskimos venture that the tranquilizing effect of the great treeless wastes is a factor in the Eskimo character so often described as contented, honest and friendly.

Just 10 miles from this booming Baffin Island community — 150 miles south of the Arctic Circle — is the first Arctic venture into the tourist industry. Rex Clibbery operates Charctic Lodge, where visitors, mostly Americans, pay as much as $1,500 a week to fish for char, the hard-fighting relative of the salmon and lake trout, which is a delicious table fare.

An exciting moment for some of the party accompanying Transport Minister Hees on a 10,000-mile northern inspection tour last summer was to catch char below beautiful waterfalls in a stream only a short walk from Frobisher.

Big Game

An Eskimo or Indian guide can always be found for hunting or fishing. The big game includes caribou and Polar bears. Seals, walrus and even whales can be caught. World-record mountain sheep and moose have been taken in the Yukon. Grouse, duck and wild geese are plentiful in many areas.

The northern vacation needn't be so expensive if a man — this isn't a family vacationland — goes about it the right way and doesn't mind roughing it a little.

There is an Eskimo-operated hotel in the Northern Affairs Department's rehabilitation centre here. The vacationer can put up there or at transport department quarters if there's room, for about $20 a day including meals.

If the vacationer wants true Arctic life, he can go to an Eskimo settlement anywhere in the North and live with the hospitable natives — but this is really roughing it.

Guests Welcome

There are more than 100 white settlements, almost all government or military stations, throughout the North where guests usually will find themselves welcomed in small numbers.

Commercial airlines have scheduled flights into Frobisher and many other northern points. Remote spots can be reached by bush planes for $100 or $200, and often a man can hitch a ride in government, RCAF or RCMP aircraft in this friendly country.

Hotels are available at reasonable rates in such major centres as Churchill, Man., Yellowknife, N.W.T., and Whitehorse and Dawson, Yukon. Another sportsmen's lodge is being established at George River, Que., on Ungava Bay.

About 50 tourists visited Frobisher this year. Visitors are just as scarce in other centres of the provincial boundaries, except in the Yukon where there has been a noticeable rise in tourist traffic along the Alaska Highway since Alaska attained statehood earlier this year.

CLERGYMAN WEDS NIGHT CLUB SINGER

Rev. Robert Rolls, 39, a Niagara Falls Anglican minister and his bride the former Barbara Alcorn, 27, a night club singer are shown leaving the church after their marriage. Barbara was a finalist in the 1955 Miss Canada pageant. The couple met only a month ago when Barbara attended a Sunday service at Mr. Rolls church. The following evening he appeared at the hotel where she was working, and ten days later he proposed. Barbara admits it will be a change from singing to pouring tea at the womens' association.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

WHITE DEATH ON THE FARM

White scours is the most notorious calf-killer in the country. Quick and deadly, the disease causes heavy losses in newborn stock wherever it strikes.

The infected calf is usually short-lived, suffering from fever, listlessness, white, watery diarrhea, and rapid breathing within hours of its birth . . . and dying soon after. Scientists believe that the disease is caused by specific kinds of bacteria, transmitted to the calf by the dam before birth, during early feeding, or from association with infected animals.

In days gone by raw eggs were fed to young calves and ashes were rubbed under their tails in hopes of preventing scours. Cattle growers and dairymen now know that good rations for the dam before freshening, separate facilities for each calf, and warm, clean quarters all serve to reduce the chances of white scours.

Veterinarians recommend that calf stalls be disinfected and furnished with clean bedding and that the calf's navel be disinfected as well. At the 800-acre Pfizer Experimental Farm in Terre Haute, Indiana, scientists have found that the surest preventative for the deadly disease is found with antibiotics.

Most calves receiving a terramycin tablet a few hours after birth were protected from the disease. Nearly every animal already infected recovered when one tablet a day was used.

Veterinarian Hellmut Kafka reported that on one farm where eight newborn calves had just died from white scours, fifteen infected calves recovered in a few hours after terramycin treatment.

Elmvale, Ont. (CP) — A 50-year-old self-propelled steam traction threshing machine revived memories when it was demonstrated in action recently, threshing oats on a farm in this community 15 miles north of Barrie.

In good working condition, the wood-burning engine was belted to an old separator and coupled with a grain elevator and blower for the straw, with self-feeder to regulate the sheaves.

Owner Jim McNeil of nearby Wasaga Beach, a steam-pressure boiler operator, was kept busy feeding pine roots into the firebox to keep the pressure up to at least 85 pounds. Water was near at hand as a constant supply was needed.

The demonstration attracted many old-timers who recalled the days when they threshed with just such an outfit. Joe Fowler, 83, said he had seen his first steam-driven threshing engine in 1886.

It was an upright boiler mounted on wheels and drawn by horses. Previous to steam engines local farmers had used machines powered by horses hitched to the arms and circling around.

Many remembered the early steam traction engines which went from farm to farm hauling their separators behind them. The steering of these machines involved spinning the steering wheel several times to take in the slack of the cable.

Athlete's Foot a fungus disease

Athlete's foot is certainly not confined to any one group of people, but is a widespread skin infection occurring throughout the world, particularly in the hot and in the temperate regions, according to an article in Health Magazine.

The article, which was written by Drs. Gibson E. Craig, and F. Blank, points out that epidermophytosis, the medical name for athlete's foot, is not even restricted to the feet, but may affect any part of the smooth skin.

Fungi thrive best in warm environment. It is no surprise, then, that athlete's foot most often starts between the fourth and fifth toe, where moisture and heat produce softening and macerating of the skin. These conditions not only create an ideal climate for the growth of the fungi, but also allow the entrance of bacteria.

The early symptoms of athlete's foot are only burning and itching. People who have normally cool feet can develop athlete's foot in a few days by wearing socks and shoes which produce sweating.

During the past two decades, drugs have been discovered for the successful treatment of the worst bacterial infections of man. Unfortunately, little progress has been made in finding specific remedies for the treatment of fungus infections.

1. The feet should be washed frequently and dried with care, particularly between the toes.

2. Dusting powder used after the bath will help to prevent maceration.

3. Loose or open weave shoes are valuable for those who perspire heavily or are on their feet for long periods, especially during the hot weather.

It is not wise to use strong remedies on feet which are suspected of being infected by fungi. Most serious cases are produced by over treatment, especially if there is a secondary infection due to bacteria.

The article concludes by stating that medical advice will often reduce treatment time and suffering.

Tips on Touring

Women's Travel Authority

If you can't find Christmas gifts for your car-owning friends, you may find an idea among these useful items. (Prices may vary.)

A wind silencer. This chrome-plated gadget fits easily on the side ventilating windows of any car and stops the roaring noise made by the wind. A pair costs about $2.

For the family who likes to picnic en route, a welcome gift is a collapsible table. It is big enough to seat six people, and it folds small enough to fit in the luggage compartment. Approximately $10.

When porters are scarce, a collapsible aluminum luggage carrier is helpful for carrying heavy suitcases to and from the car. It sells for about $9.

Women drivers will appreciate the foam rubber pad that fits on the accelerator. Besides keeping high heels from becoming scuffed, the pad protects the floor mat from wear and tear, and brings the gas pedal closer to the driver. The price is about $1.

Your do-it-yourself friends will like the electric trunk opening kit. Install it, press the button inside the car, and the rear luggage compartment opens. It costs about $7.

FALSE ALARMS

Quebec (CP) — Fire Chief Albert Talbot reported 555 false alarms were turned in during the first nine months of this year. Last year there were 726, costing the city about $25,000.

DUKE OF BEDFORD MAY BUY CASA LOMA

The Duke of Bedford in Toronto on a lecture tour inspected the famous Casa Loma from top to bottom. He would buy the castle provided the price was right, suitable financing could be arranged and the city of Toronto wanted to sell it. If he did buy it he would turn it into a tourist attraction as he did with his own castle in England. The Duke found the view from the castle's tower "incredible." The castle is presently run by the Kiwanis club as a tourist attraction.

Speculation sparked by archaeological find

Marathon, Ont. (CP) — The discovery of a copper point by archaeologists in this area may cause great speculation as to who constructed the mysterious stone pits of the Puckasaw.

Dr. Norman Emerson, associate professor of anthropology and director of archaeological studies at the University of Toronto, estimated that the pits were more than 4,000 years old.

The pits, first investigated by the professor in 1956, were discovered on the raised beaches of Lake Superior from Red Sucker Point west of Marathon to Ganley Harbor on the east.

The copper point, indicative of the copper culture of the Ojibway Indians, was found by James Wright of the University of Wisconsin, who, with Richard Pearson of the National Museum and Dr. Emerson, has been excavating a number of pits at Red Sucker Point.

Pit Digging Theory

Dr. Emerson said the copper point was found 100 feet above the beach level of Lake Superior. Originally, it was theorized, the pits were dug by ancestors of the present-day Eskimos and Indians as they made their way from Asia. "But we've concluded they are of later origin," Dr. Emerson said.

More than 70 pits, elliptical in form and ranging from about seven by five feet with walls two feet or more high, have been found at Red Sucker Point.

Dr. Emerson said there was every indication that this was a sacred or religious ground. Clamshells, pieces of bone and other artifacts were found indicating they were built by young Indians who, as part of their tribal religious training, were sent out into the wilds without food, clothing or shelter to remain until they saw visions on which they reported when they returned home.

It was common custom among the Indians of that day to report such visions.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

In the area of Hastings and Pender Streets in Vancouver, B.C., is the third largest Chinatown on the North American Continent. Here 15,000 Chinese reside and expand their commercial talents, some to great fortunes, while others earn as good a living as any average Canadian citizen.

Vancouver's Chinatown is recognized as one of the country's outstanding tourist attractions. It has all of the atmosphere of its Asiatic counterpart, yet its inhabitants have conformed to Canadian laws and regulations. They are rated on the coast as excellent citizens.

I decided after I had visited this colorful district, so close to the shores of the Pacific Ocean, that all one needed to enjoy the experience was a strong stomach and an open mind.

When I first voiced my intention of visiting Chinatown, a member of the staff of the railway Public Relations department in Vancouver volunteered to be my guide. I have since wondered whether he thought I looked like a push over for a session in an opium den, or the type that might spend her bottom dollar on a pseudo Ming vase (there are almost as many Japanese imitations in the Chinese gift shops as there are real Chinese wares) for he piloted me with the solicitude of a patronizing father from shop to shop.

But before I got the shopping urge I visited the office of the weekly newspaper "The Chinese Times". A round-faced Chinese boy volunteered some information, but not much. He fondled the dime I had paid for the current issue, all printed in the hieroglyphics of his native tongue, and beamed like a Cheshire cat when I congratulated his people on having been influential in electing a young Chinese, Douglas Jung, as a member of our Federal Parliament.

From the newspaper office we made the rounds of native market shops and those designed to lure the tourist dollar right out of any purse. I think the shops that fascinated me the most were the smelly ones where barbecue ducks and geese, highly glazed and complete with heads and feet, hung over boxes of dried and salted fish, heads, fins and all. On an adjacent table were piled manufactured wares at ridiculous prices. I later found that if I had been able to hold my breath long enough to make my purchases in these shops that cater to native trade, I could have saved myself several dollars. I found to my great astonishment that there are no standard prices in Chinatown. Each shopkeeper has his own scale and evaluation of how much the tourist is worth while browsing in his store.

I observed that men evidently do all the shopping for the Chinese domestic tables. Where there were baskets of weird vegetables displayed openly on the street you could be sure the patriarch of one of the Ling, Chun or Foo families would be carefully pawing over every green bean to select the crispest and plumpest. Into a very Canadian shopping bag he would pop a cucumber with whiskers, or a vegetable that looked as though its broccoli mother had had an affair with a mustard plant, for it was all abloom on its firm green head with gay yellow flowers.

Trailing me with his pockets and arms loaded with my purchases, my escort with a very tolerant air suggested we stop for luncheon at "The World's Most Famous Chinese Restaurant", or so its proprietors liked to boast. We sipped our weak green tea with our mouths upside down and chewed at pieces of sweet and sour spare ribs heaped on a platter almost as large as the table at which we sat. Serving us was a smiley waiter whose crisp, wire-like Chinese hair had been permanently waved into an Elvis Presley "duck back."

This is the sort of concession the young Canadian born Asiatics are making to our North American way of life. They aspire to the rock and roll fashion exteriorly, but will forever remain loyal to the customs and foods of their forefathers. So will I. I still prefer my tea black and my spare ribs roasted with sage dressing.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to your

Q. Is it true that one needs more than twenty-four contributions this year to be entitled to regular benefits?

A. To qualify for regular benefit you are required to have 30 contributions in the 104 week period immediately preceding your claim, eight of which must be since the commencement of your last regular benefit period or in the last 52 weeks, whichever is the shorter period. In addition, if you had a previous regular or seasonal benefit period in the last 104 weeks, 24 of the 30 contributions referred to above must be since the commencement of that benefit or in the last 52 weeks, whichever is the longer period.

Q. For the past two years I had been working in the fall for the .... company. I am now working at ... for the .... company. If I worked three days for the former company it was a full contribution week. At ...., however, I have to work a full week to be entitled to contributions. I would like to know how many days we must work to be entitled to a full week.

A. You are entitled to a full weekly contribution if you earn $9.00 or more in insurable employment during a week, no matter how many days in the week you work. In other words, if you can earn $9.00 or more in only one day, you are entitled to a full weekly contribution. It is the amount of money earned in the week, not the number of days worked, that determines whether a full week's contribution is payable and determines the amount of the contribution to be paid.

• • •

Q. Are there unemployment insurance stamps for farmers and for farm workers? How many contributions are required?

A. Unemployment insurance does not apply to employment as a farmer of a farmhand.

• • •

Q. Can I hire my 16-year-old daughter as a store clerk and buy stamps for her?

A. This question is too involved for a yes or no answer. Your daughter can be insured only if the arrangement between you and your daughter is that of master and servant. Consult your local NES office for a precise ruling in any individual case.

4-H enrolments hit record level

The Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs reports that in spite of a declining farm population, 4-H project enrolment continues to grow and reached a new high in 1959, with 75,854 young people participating, an increase of some 1,973 over the 1958 figure. During the same period there was a corresponding increase in the number of organized clubs in Canada, from 5,092 to 5,271.

Girls exceeded boys in project enrolment by 5,088. Of the projects in agriculture and home economics, clothing leads in numbers with some 16,329 members, followed by dairy calf clubs with 13,888, beef calf clubs with 13,472, and garden clubs, 6,831. The average age of these young people was 13½ years, and the average number of members per club was around 14.

Stimulate interest in white pine lumber

Over 100 fine examples of pioneer pine homes have been uncovered in Eastern Canada as a result of a concentrated search being conducted by the White Pine Bureau of the Canadian Lumberman's Association. Letters describing outstanding pine buildings have poured into the Bureau's offices from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

"The purpose of our search is to make a photographic exhibit of these fine homes to help increase the awareness of Canadians everywhere of our very real links with the past," said Mr. Earl Jacques of the White Pine Bureau, who has visited many of these pioneer homes. "At the same time, we hope to illustrate the important role White Pine has played in our Canadian way of life from earliest days.

"Many an interesting story has been uncovered in my visits," Mr. Jacques said. "In the Niagara Peninsula, for instance, the stories of these houses are interwoven with the War of 1812, the Butler Rangers, William Lyon MacKenzie and the Fenian Raids.

"One house, near Georgetown, Ontario, was MacKenzie's headquarters in the Scotch Block and it was from here that he was smuggled, in the dead of a winter's night, across the border into the United States, to save him from possible assassination by the Irish."

The White Pine Bureau intends to select the 10 most outstanding pine structures, photograph them and incorporate them into a travelling exhibit to create more interest in White Pine.

No temperamental storm window can defeat this family minister of labour. Leaving the difficult jobs to the professionals, he looks after smaller repair jobs in his home, himself. He's a determined fellow who aims at keeping his family expenditures well within his income at all times.

The Minister of Labour at Ottawa requires millions of dollars to meet departmental expenditures, each year ... and his department is only one of many.

Money for all departments of government comes through the Minister of Finance who gets it largely in taxes from Canadians such as you. When more money is spent than is collected in taxes, government must borrow from you ... or else create new money. The creation of new money is one factor that leads to inflation ... which means your dollar buys less and less.

The government has been spending more than you have been paying in taxes. To narrow the gap between income and expenditures, new taxes have been imposed.

The next step should be to reduce expenditures, or at least hold the line. Undertaking new commitments — adding new welfare or other services — will only make it that much more difficult to pay our way. Tell your M.P. at Ottawa that since you are trying to save, you expect government to do the same.

You also help when you save more by means of life insurance, savings deposits, and the purchase of government bonds. Your savings help to create a SOUND dollar; and this, in turn, helps to create job security for you and more jobs for other Canadians.

Good legume for hay or pasture

(Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa)

Ottawa — Birdsfoot trefoil may be the answer to the farmer's prayer for a legume that doesn't cause bloat, can withstand grazing and maintains good growth over a long period.

Dr. J. E. R. Greenshields of the Genetics and Plant Breeding Institute, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, says that Broadleaved Birdsfoot Trefoil appears to be the most promising of all the new pasture species introduced into Eastern Canada during the last 25 years.

The legume persists longer than alfalfa on most soils and grows very well on wet, heavy soils that fail to maintain stands of alfalfa.

In a pasture test at Ottawa involving mixtures of trefoil and brome, and alfalfa and brome, the trefoil maintained its original stand over three years while the alfalfa thinned from a 75% to a 25% stand.

The varieties of trefoil available are either of the pasture types, which are shorter and slower growing, or the hay type, which grow taller and faster. Of the pasture type, Empire is slow growing and very hardy. Some stands of this variety are more than ten years old and are still producing well. Recommended for long-term pasture is a mixture of 5 lbs. each of Climax timothy and Empire trefoil. Brome and Meadow fescue also do well with Empire.

Viking, which grows upright like alfalfa and is earlier than the other types, is the best hay mixture with Empire. Viking often yields better than Empire but is not so persistent and winter hardy. When the latter characteristics are needed Empire can be grown for hay.

Imported European seed of Empire is available but some lots, probably grown in southern European countries, lack winter hardiness in Canada, a hazard which the buyer of imported seeds has to accept.

Land drainage before freeze-up

(Quebec Dept. of Agriculture)

On the farm, the need for proper drainage of the land is apt to make itself felt at more than one season of the year. But no matter whether it is spring, summer or autumn, the problem of removing excess water from the soil is one which requires the farmer's closest attention. Drainage has a far-reaching effect on the way in which the soil is tilled and on the kind of crops which can be grown in it; on manure and fertilizer treatments; on liming and other efforts to improve its condition, all of which are likely to be seriously affected if the soil suffers from inadequate drainage. The havoc wrought by frost, both in the fall and during the course of the winter, to the roots of plants growing on waterlogged and poorly-drained land, is familiar to everybody.

Many a hayfield and pasture is doomed to failure in the coming year because silted-up or clogged dead-furrows, water courses and drainage ditches have not been cleaned out sufficiently to allow at least the flood of surface water to find its way to the main drainage outlets.

A comparatively dry soil is not only less easily penetrated by the frost in winter but it is likely to warm up much earlier in spring. Besides this, many plant foods in the soil, before they can be used by plants, must first be changed by chemical and bacterial agents. These forces are helped tremendously in a well-drained soil, thanks to ventilation, warmth, good tilth and well-regulated moisture supply and, as a result, the nutrients are made available to the growing crops when they are needed.

The foregoing according to J. R. Cloutier of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, are only a few of the more important reasons why we should keep a careful watch at this time of the year for water collecting on the surface of the soil, whether in hayfields, pastures or on plowed land and, if necessary, take steps to remedy the situation.

The provision of the soil with the means of getting rid, completely and easily, of excess surface water is one of the best ways available to the farmer, of ensuring the success of his future harvests.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Beware of Moldy Feed

As we go into the winter feeding season, we are apt to meet a problem that we hardly think of when cattle and other livestock are on pasture. This is moldy feed—whether silage, hay, or grain.

In the case of silage, we may find pink, white or green molds, and the question is, are they poisonous?

Dr. Bohstedt

Tests made with cows and guinea pigs, feeding each of these molds, have shown that while moldy silage of this sort lowered the palatability and nutritional value of the silage, it was not poisonous. Whether this is true under all circumstances, is still a question. We do know that some investigations have revealed certain species of mold that have proved toxic.

Sheep and horses are more susceptable to bad effects from moldy and musty feed than are cattle and hogs. One particular mold or fungus is scab, as we have it in scabbed barley, also in oats and corn. This fungus, Gibberella Saubinettii, causes vomiting in single stomached animals such as hogs and even in horses. For some reason scabbed grain does not affect ruminants or chickens, animals with a compound digestive tract.

"Corn-stalk poisoning" is something that worries a good many farmers using cattle to clean up a corn field after the ears have been harvested. This poisoning may occur after a prolonged dry spell, especially after a field planted to corn has been heavily nitrogen fertilized. The rapid nitrification in the soil and, subsequently, in the corn plant can produce cases of poisoning.

One thing should be kept in mind—the danger from different forms of poisoning, whether molds, prussic acid, or nitrates and the like, can be reduced by supplementary feeding in the barn, or in suitable racks in the field. Supplementing pasture with good quality silage or hay keeps cattle from getting too hungry and eager to fill up on forage of questionable quality.

Close observation of the livestock is also in order. Symptoms of "corn-stalk poisoning" are: unsteady gait, difficulty in breathing, trembling, and muscular spasms.

Answer: It is safer not to use such seed at all for feed. At times repeated washing of the grain has been done in an attempt to remove the poison of ethyl mercury phosphate or other fungicide. But washings cannot be depended on to remove all of the impregnated poison in treated seed. Years ago some Dane County, Wisconsin, cows were poisoned merely by re-using the bags of such treated seed for handling feed.

HIGH YIELD

Elmstead, Ont (CP) — Sugar beet with the high yield of 14 to 15 tons an acre has been harvested in this area near Windsor. The warm October weather however hindered storage.

CNR OPENS NEW RAIL LINE IN QUEBEC

Continuing its historic development role, Canadian National Railways marked another transportation milestone October 28 when the first train from Chibougamau in northern Quebec rumbled into St. Felicien in the Lake St. John area, 133 miles to the southwest. Welcoming scene, shown below, drew hundreds of residents of the region to the St. Felicien station as President Donald Gordon, waving from the engine cab, inched the diesel-hauled train to a stop. Among the dignitaries on hand, shown at left, above, were, left to right: Quebec Minister of Roads Antonio Talbot, Mr. Gordon, Mayor Rodolphe Lefebvre of St. Felicien, Federal Transport Minister George Hees, and Jean-Noel Tremblay, MP for Roberval. Chibougamau, rich in mineral resources, was linked by rail with CNR system two years ago. Opening of the new link brings Chibougamau 200 miles closer to Montreal; opens up the heavily forested area northwest of St. Felicien. New section cost $16,500,000 to build.
