Scouting in spotlight, active season; Scout-Cub fund campaign on Feb. 9th appeared in St. Luke's Hospital, Scout and Wolf Cub organization will hold their annual financial canvass on Tuesday evening, February 9, 1960. Ernest Gordon, the chairman of the campaign, states the objective this year is $1,300.

Approximately 100 boys and leaders are enjoying the best year's activities for a long time, due to the fact that they have their own Scout and Cub Hall. This is an appreciable boost to local Scouting.

Forthcoming activities include the following events:

February 6 — Round-robin Hockey Jamboree at Brownsburg, between Grenville, Brownsburg and Lachute Wolf Cub Packs. Over 100 boys will participate in ½-hour games, after which a meal will be served to all participants.

February 7 — Annual church parade to the Anglican and Presbyterian churches. The Girl Guides and Brownies will join the Scouts and Cubs for this parade.

February 16 — 1st Lachute Cub Pack Parents' Night in the Scout Hall, 7 to 8.30 p.m. All parents are invited to attend and see the boys at work.

February 20 — Presentation and dedication of new Colors for both Scout Troops and both Cub Packs, at the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall. This, just before the anniversary of the late Lord Baden-Powell, will be the big event of the year. Branch 70 of the Canadian Legion has generously purchased all the flags necessary for the two Scout Troops and the two Cub Packs. The Canadian Legion is going all out to make this a most impressive service. The Dominion president of the Canadian Legion will make the presentation, following which a local clergyman will perform the dedication of the flags. Many local dignitaries will be invited to attend this Presentation and Dedication ceremony.

Don't forget the financial canvass, Tuesday, February 9. "Be Prepared" — receive the canvasser with a welcome. Scouting is everybody's responsibility. If it happens that no canvasser contacts you and you wish to have a part in this work, please send your contribution to Mr. Ernest Gordon, Campaign Chairman, 578 Bedard Blvd., Lachute, Que.

Suspect refuses operation; arrested leaving hospital

Maurice Raymond, 43, and Gerard Valade, 36, both of Montreal, have been arrested and charged with breaking and entering following an attempted robbery at the Hotel Villa Howard, St. Adolphe d'Howard, late Sunday of last week.

The arrests followed a week-long investigation by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen along with Provincial Police officers working out of Montreal. According to Sgt.-Det. Allen, two men were surprised by a night watchman after they had gained entry to the hotel, and while attempting a get-away, were met and chased by Chief Hector Lariviere, who had been summoned to the scene. The Chief fired one shot into the air as the two reached their car, and when they failed to halt, fired two shots into the rear of the departing vehicle.

Early Monday morning, Raymond appeared in St. Luke's Hospital Montreal, claiming he had been struck by a bullet while walking in the city of Montreal. The investigation followed and Raymond was arrested on his release from hospital, after having refused to have the bullet removed.

New Police Chief assumes duties

A. J. Whiteway, 32 year-old newly appointed Police Chief of the Town of Lachute, on Monday of this week commenced duties; Chief Whiteway is married with two children, and previous to his being appointed to the local office, was Chief at Morin Heights for a two year period. Previous to that time, he was with the Westmount Police Department for more than seven years.

Police Chief A. J. Whiteway

While nothing definite has been decided as to the new police department, it is expected that Council will continue to engage officers from Phillips Investigation Bureau for the present, or until such time as a definite decision is reached.

Gen. Rockingham to visit Militia here Thursday

Major-General J. M. Rockingham, the G. O. C. Quebec Command, will honor the local 131 Battery, 37th Field Regiment R. C. A. (M), with an official visit on Thursday evening, February 4, during a regular training parade.

At the time of the General's arrival the Battery will be engaged in a written exam to qualify as trained Militia men. The affiliated Highland Cadet Company will also be on hand from the General's inspection, receiving instruction on the Bren light machine gun.

Caisse Populaire assets exceed million dollars

For the first time in its 12 years of operation, the Caisse Populaire has accrued assets of over $1-million — the exact figure being $1,113,000, an increase of approximately $160,000 over last year's total. This was the highlight of a very encouraging report given by the manager at the 12th annual meeting, held recently in the council chamber of the city hall. The meeting was chaired by Germain Fillon, vice-president, in the absence of the president, Robt. Marcil, through illness.

The annual report, now circulated in booklet form, enumerates the services presently made available by this institution. It is noted that shares are limited to $500 to any single investor; interest rate on savings is 3½% — a special savings system put into effect February 1 earning interest of 4% for depositors; personal loans up to $1,500, with or without endorsement; borrowers' life insurance; and other features.

Elected to the directorate was Fernand Berthiaume, who replaces Donat Saulnier, retiring. Raymond Beaulieu was re-elected manager, L. J. Dumais re-elected on the credit committee and the directorate, and Lucien Savard re-elected councillor.

Council newcomer elected with 46 vote majority

East Ward electors turned out in full force Monday of this week to stretch considerably what was expected to be an extremely close majority in the election between retiring Alderman Mozart Carrière and a newcomer to civic politics in the person of Alphonse Thibodeau.

Alphonse Thibodeau

According to Returning Officer, Mrs. Yvette Raymond, a total of 207 voters exercised their franchise, out of the 265 eligible. Mr. Thibodeau polled 126 votes as compared to 80 for Mr. Carrière, and one ballot was rejected.

Mr. Thibodeau is starting his first term on the Lachute Town Council, but he is not lacking experience, having served both as municipal coucillor and Chairman of the Catholic School Commission in St. Scholastique. He has lived in Lachute for some ten years.

On Monday of last week, following the close of nominations, Stanley Holt was re-elected by acclamation to his East Ward seat, while Horace Lamarche and Réal Morrissette were elected by acclamation, replacing Dr. Jean Paul Dorion and Ludger Gibeault respectively for Centre and West Ward seats.

The Municipal Council is now comprised of Mayor James W. McGibbon and Aldermen Gerard Lefebvre, Edgar O. Pollock, Stanley Church, Nelson Lepage, Lauréat Laurin, Stanley Holt, Réal Morrissette, Horace Lamarche and Alphonse Thibodeau. Mrs. Yvette Raymond is secretary-treasurer.

Blood donor clinic at Brownsburg

The Watchman was informed late Tuesday afternoon that a Blood Donor Clinic would be held in Brownsburg on Monday, February 29.

It was pointed out that this was the second clinic in Brownsburg in less than a year, but it was considered necessary due to the dire need for blood, the Red Cross being in extremely short supply.

Additional information will be made available to all interested persons as soon as it is available.

Thought-provoking talks given at Brownsburg Home and School

Following are highlights of two addresses delivered at the Brownsburg Home and School Association meeting, reported in last issue. Speakers on the two main topics were Mr. Wes Freeland and Mr. Ted Nelson, from the Hawkesbury branch of Toastmasters International (of which Mr. Freeland is branch president this year).

Diamonds

(By W. W. Freeland)

Diamonds as they come from the earth are dull, shapeless, ordinary-looking stones, of little apparent value. It is only when they are carefully cut and polished to reveal their perfection and brilliance, that value emerges. Cutting and grinding is done to a plan to suit each particular stone.

Cutting and polishing a diamond adds nothing to the stone, it merely reveals its wealth of brilliance and color.

Our children, too, are usually ordinary individuals and sometimes quite dull until they are polished — formed and developed by parents and teachers. If you were to find diamonds on your property, you would be excited beyond words. You would work day and night to develop your discovery.

You have on your porperty a treasure that, if developed, may produce a brilliance and inspiration to you and the world beyond your most fanciful expectations. Our children are Canada's greatest natural resources.

Diamonds will never bring peace to the world, or remove darkness due to greed and intolerance, and will never bring sympathy to an aching heart. Well brought-up children can bring peace, tolerance and sympathy.

As parents and teachers we are vitally interested in developing these resources.

What are you doing to develop children? What specifically are your aims? — We must have aims for development.

We must develop respect for knowledge, and respect for those who teach it. We must develop respect for people who try to help and inspire quality workmanship, individual thinking, and sincere effort. We must develop respect for those who help individuals to grow in body, mind and spirit.

Good example and honest effort, with patience by parents and teachers, can and will produce Educational Diamonds of which you and I and the world will be proud!

A Challenge in Education

(By Ted Nelson)

We cannot afford to argue over quantity or quality in education.

Carillon development is realization of 30 years' planning and counter-planning

The latest issue of "Entre-Nous", monthly employee magazine published by Quebec Hydro, carries an article on the Carillon project, with photographs of models constructed by hydraulics engineers. The story, presenting facts and figures not hitherto appearing in the news releases, is here reproduced for the interest of local readers.

The history of the Carillon Rapids is an eventful one, the initial plans for their development having touched off a rather involved controversy. Newspaper clippings . . . trace this history back to 1927, revealing that a concern was about to commence harnessing operations in the spring of that year. Attending difficulties were far from being solved, though, since the situation was still under survey at a federal-provincial conference held the following fall.

Another false alarm was sounded in January, 1930. The Carillon development was to be undertaken jointly by Ontario and Quebec. Dailies gave the news big headline treatment. Mention was made of a 300,000-horsepower plant.

Today — 30 years later — Hydro-Quebec is going it alone, with plans calling for a generating plant of 840,000-horsepower installed capacity.

Preliminary work has been initiated under the immediate supervision of Assistant Chief Engineer René Gauthier, Project Manager appointed by Francois Rousseau, Chief Engineer of Power Development.

Production Seen by 1962

Although the second half of the twin Bersimis development, on the North Shore of the St. Lawrence, and the third section of the Beauharnois project are in partial operation already, increasing demands for power make it imperative to begin developing new sources. It is estimated that the Carillon plant will be brought into operation towards the end of 1962 and should cope with increase in demand through 1965.

The plant's 14 generating units of 60,000 horsepower apiece will feature propellor turbines with adjustable blades. They will operate under a 62-foot head.

The Installations

The Ottawa River is 2,200 feet wide at the site of the proposed plant and Hydro-Quebec plans the construction of a building more than 1,300 feet long and 65 feet wide. Its height from the roof to the floor supporting the alternators will be 55 feet. The 785-foot spillway, located hard-by the powerhouse, will incorporate 12 gates of 50-foot length and 32-foot width, permitting passage of 380,000 cubic feet of water per second.

Two dykes of 30-foot average height will be constructed to complete damming of the river. The dyke on the north side of the river will be 16,000 feet long — slightly more than three miles — and its companion on the Ontario side will be some 2,407 feet in length. These dykes will be a combination of water-tight clay and gravel.

Present indications are that the construction will require some 850,000 cubic yards of concrete and 1,500,000 cubic yards of clay, gravel, etc.

Work on the Carillon project will be pushed through regardless of season and it is anticipated that the payroll will vary between 1,500 and 1,800 employees. On the south shore — the Ontario side — a coffer dam will be built to permit realization of the spillway. Subsequently, the powerhouse will be built on a site nearer the north shore.

Added to the output of Bersimis I (1,200,000 horsepower), Bersemis II (900,000) and Beauharnois (2,250,000) the production from the Carillon site will guarantee that metropolitan Montreal and other areas served by the Quebec Hydro's far-flung system are fed all the power they require.

Legal advice on Ayersv'l dues for fire protection

Following a report in The Watchman and L'Argenteuil that the Town of Lachute had decided to take the necessary proceedings to collect around $8,000 from the Village of Ayersville on a contract for fire protection, the Ayersville authorities thereupon consulted their legal counsel, Philippe Valois, for advice on the matter. Following is the abridged translation of a reply received by the Ayersville administration:

Mr. Jacques Poitras,
Secretary-Treasurer,
Municipality of Ayersville.

"Please present to your Council this letter relative to the claim of Lachute Town.

"Considering the sum of roughly $1,700 paid on the Lachute claim to date, I am convinced that the demand from Lachute Town Corporation is devoid of all legal rights, and should consequently be rejected by your Council. I would go still further, in asserting that your Council would be exceeding its authority in paying this claim without legal protest.

"I am convinced that, if this case were placed before judicial hearing, Ayersville would be relieved of all obligation."

(Signed) Philippe Valois

The Watchman in the Arctic

The only member identified in this trio is Ben Eli (right), an Eskimo who visited Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Green in Morin Heights about a year ago. His name made the news in this paper at the time, and his interest in The Watchman is apparent in this picture, taken at his haunts somewhere in Baffin Island.

The picture at the right shows another interesting exhibit from the DEW-Line, where Bazil Green of Morin Heights, and his friend Ben, are seen atop a snowmobile holding a polar bear skin taken in an Arctic hunting expedition. The size of the animal, here outlined, may be judged by comparison with the men and vehicle in this snapshot.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

I received a phone call this week that had me, to say the least, pretty excited. . . Lynx — not just one of them but at least three — had been sighted. These are right around Lakefield, and have been seen a number of times. I thought it was the greatest news to get in a long time. A few reports of these species were heard a couple of years ago, but not one was seen last winter. I was surprised to think that any number of these shy night hunters should make their appearance. I have not actually seen them, but I have seen the prints of them. . . Now one more thing, for any one thinking of taking a crack at them. Be smart and don't.

I would think that the great increase in rabbits, the hunting, and the available feed has resulted in their staying around. It really is great to see the increase of all the game hereabouts.

The fishing is just about as good as it will ever be. Up to now the perch have not been of any great size, but as the winter goes on, the channel type will be in. One of the pike taken out near Carillon was just a little over 12 lbs. There have been some very good catches. Not many have been caught around St. Andrews or St. Placide. Last Sunday there were about 500 cars out on the ice, and to say that people were having a good time, sure is an understatement. Another thing that made everyone happy — no shortage of minnows. As most of you recall, Sunday was a perfect day to be outdoors, and plenty took advantage of this. More and more people are discovering the swell time they can have with winter fishing. This sport isn't only for men either; there were just as many ladies fishing as men.

The panthers have been seen once more, and as usual, there will be denials all along the line that these animals really exist. It would appear they are showing up around the Townships, and let's hope that people in these parts take a little different outlook on them than was seen around Montreal last winter. I, for one, would not doubt that these animals are all over this area. It may be remembered that they were reported near Lake Hughes and various other places about three years ago, so it would seem natural they would eventually roam into the Montreal area. At any rate there will be lots of feed for them, with the number of rabbits about this year.

I know there are a lot of bird feeding stations about town and more seem to be springing up every day. It is great to see the little birds being taken care of during the winter. . . Now here's a little story on some of their antics. We have a station right in front of one of our windows. Naturally we have visitors all and every day. There is also a red squirrel that keeps showing up to get a free meal. Some of the birds resent this, especially the jays. The other day Red climbed up into the feeder and chased out all the birds, including the two jays. They sat up on a limb for a few minutes before doing anything, but when they did start, it was really funny. One bird flew a short distance away, the other one did a power dive on Red. He was eating some hickory nuts and sure didn't like this business one bit. He was really cussing this one bird when the other went into action. Same thing, but seemingly much closer. From then on it was just a succession of dives. The noise was something! This kept up for about five minutes before Red figured there was no headway trying to eat with the furred fighters pestering him. Filling his mouth with a couple of the nuts, he headed down the tree. The poor guy made it but minus the hickories. Just as he started down, one of the birds really gave him the business; he squacked so loud that — bingo went the nuts, and he didn't even stop to pick them up. I think the jays must have chased him 50 feet before they left him alone. Then all was peace and quiet again — for awhile. . . It sure was a show to watch. I'm sure everyone who has feeders out will be able to tell you of other instances just like this. With the weather being so comparatively mild, the birds that are around make you grateful for the opportunity of being able to do something for them.

Now this may sound very queer at this time of the year. More fishing tackle was sold for gifts during the past holidays (Christmas and New Year's), according to some of the Montreal stores, than ever before. It's strange to think of a summer sport being so firmly set as to sell in the winter. One gent I was talking to stated that as many new reels were sold at this time as were sold in the spring. To the merchants in Lachute, this would seem to be worth remembering.

Last week I mentioned a "sport" who was killing rabbits just for the sake of killing. It seems I have to defend myself in this statement, from some of the "sports" (used advisedly).

To begin with, to leave any game just lying dead, and going on to something else, is to me a waste of good meat. It has occurred to me at different times, to wonder how a human would like someone else to take shots at him just for the fun of it. I don't think they would be very happy about it. Another thing, there are a great many people who would welcome a free feed of rabbit or, for that matter, anything else. I don't mean the type who say they will eat it, then because of it not being cleaned, throw it in the garbage. Another point to be considered, is the time when even the rabbit will be a memory. I know this may not happen, but the way they are being killed by everyone, it certainly could happen. Just take a look at some of the States to the south, and see what I mean. Rabbits, to them, are a game animal and now are being protected. It took laws and the people to uphold them, to get the rabbit back.

To think of this state of affairs developing in our district, is not so pleasant. It means, if they go, everything else will have been wiped out before them. Think it over, and maybe you'll agree.

In line with our recent subscrip- campaign, we take great pleasure in publishing the following letter received with a donation. It is really gratifying to learn how some people appreciate the work we are doing for our youth, and while we sincerely wish to thank our correspondent, we also wish to extend the same thought to all those who, although they have not expressed their feelings to us, nevertheless share the following sentiments:

"And so the Lions have found me While they haven't roared at me, they very gently made known to me the wonderful work being done to provide suitable recreation for the young people!

"I am deeply interested in any doings for young people, especially children, as I am a retired teacher. My great regret is that I cannot send you a big fat cheque to help in this worthwhile work. I am on pension, and you can readily understand that it takes some close figuring to meet present-day expenses.

"I loved skating, but my skating days are over and I still have my memories. I remember a skating party — 7 couples, M.A.A.A. rink, with music and refreshments later at a nearby café (Montreal).

"May I ask you to accept the enclosed dollar in memory of the skating girl I used to be, and with very best wishes that you will reach your objective."

Brownsburg and Thurso tied for lead as local Bombers lose two encounters

BROWNSBURG BOMBERS HOCKEY NEWS
By Mander Gardiner

With the schedule of the Quebec-Ontario Hockey League entering its last third, the standings show Brownsburg and Thurso deadlocked in first place, followed closely by Hawkesbury, with Lachute trailing. The official standings after Sunday's action are as follows:

	Pl.	W.	L.	Pts.
Brownsburg	24	15	9	30
Thurso	24	15	9	30
Hawkesbury	25	13	12	26
Lachute	25	6	19	12

An official league scoring list is being compiled and will be given next week. The "Big-Five" for the 'Burg are:

	G.	A.	Pts
Racine	30	27	57
Ouellette	15	31	46
Keatley	14	7	21
Pilon	11	8	19
MacGibbon	7	10	17

Thurso at Brownsburg
((Thursday, January 28)

The Bombers played their poorest game of the season and lost 8-3 to the Thurso Lumber Kings. The crowd of over 200 fans had little to cheer about as the 'Burg could do nothing right. The only players not playing below their regular standards were Menard and Buddy Racine.

Legresley, Chenier and Leduc tallied for Thurso in the first period, while Stewart picked up the Bombers' only goal assisted by Willis MacAdam. Before the second period was half finished, the Lumber Kings had taken a 6-1 lead on goals by Pagé, Lefebvre and Desforges. Gary Keatley gave the fans a chance to shout when he took a pass from Stewart and beat the Thurso goaler with a nice shot. Gilles Menard made the score 6-3 early in the third stanza after taking a pass from Lamoureux and Ouellette. Thurso soon bounced back, however, and Leduc scored twice to give the Lumber Kings the 8-3 victory.

Had it not been for brilliant net-minding by Buddy Racine, it is likely that the score would have been much higher. His counterpart at the other end of the ice also made a fine showing as he stopped many difficult shots. This was the first game in recent weeks where coach Paul Hebert had 15 players dressed and it appeared as if he would have been better off without them all. Stewart Vary left the game in the third period after injuring his ankle.

Brownsburg at Hawkesbury
(Sunday, January 31)

An enthusiastic crowd of almost 600 fans watched the Hawkesbury squad beat the Bombers 4-3 in a gruelling game in Hawkesbury. The encounter was fast and hard-hitting and really crowd pleasing.

Pilon picked up the first goal of the game when he shot and goaler Paul misjudged the shot letting the puck drop into the net. Before the period was over, however, St. James and Parisien tallied to give the Royals a 2-1 lead. Lamoureux tied the game early in the second stanza after taking a pass from Cruise and Ouellette. R. Villeneuve put the Royals in front on one of his booming slapshots. Jean Larocque made the score 4-2 early in the final period and the 'Burg could not seem to score. Finally at 19:48 Ouellette made it 4-3 but with only 12 seconds left in the game, the Bombers had no chance of trying it.

Almost every Bomber missed at least one scoring opportunity with Ouellette, Ball and Charlebois having the best chances. Buddy Racine played another splendid game in nets and was kept very busy. On defence, Menard played another good game. Top scorer, Jacques Racine, fell heavily to the ice in the second period and did not play any further.

What the Bombers seem to lack is finish on their plays. Perhaps the odd practice and more effective coaching would be especially helpful to the team. Rather than bawling the players out all the time, they should be told what to do and encouraged.

The schedule for the following week is as follows:

Thursday, February 4 — Lachute at Hawkesbury
Friday, February 5 — Brownsburg at Thurso
Sunday, February 7 — Hawkesbury at Thurso, Lachute at Brownsburg
Tuesday, February 9 — Brownsburg at Hawkesbury, Thurso at Lachute
Thursday, February 11 — Hawkesbury at Brownsburg, Lachute at Thurso

If Hawkesbury can get 600 fans out to their game, why can't Brownsburg do the same? Certainly the Bombers can put up as good a showing as the Royals and play a bit more cleanly.

Let's turn off the TV set and get out to the games!

SWING THAT STONE FORWARD AND AWAY

Arnold Richardson shows effective delivery

The new curler is often afflicted with two menacing phobias when he tries to look nonchalant in the hack during his initial deliveries. First, he looks askance at the shining, glistening ice surface while he gathers himself together for a swing because he pictures horrible images of compound fractures if he slips and falls. Secondly, he knows he must give the handle a turn before he disengages himself from the heavy granite and this adds considerably to his fear of the physical consequences without even thinking about the glances of his playmates if he succeeds in making a complete fool of himself.

The consequence of these hallucinations can be fatal to a player's subsequent delivery style. Instinctively he seeks safety of limb and body by getting the rock down to the ice as soon as he can after he has completed the backswing. Thus there is no arc to his swing at all and therefore no swing. His rock hits the surface just in front of the hack without any momentum so the old heave-ho push is in order.

The forward delivery motion must produce a real swing with a low trajectory so that the stone first touches the ice well in front of the hack. Most of the top-notch curlers hit the ice one to two feet behind the twelve-foot ring. This means that they are swinging forward and out towards the skip's broom in an arc that flattens out at the end of the swing so that the stone hits the ice smoothly. The converse is the case with the curler who unceremoniously dumps his rock just in front of the hack and leaves a splintered hole in the ice as testimony to his inadequate swing.

Examine the relative position of the stone and the left foot of Skip Arnie Richardson shortly after completion of his forward swing and you will see evidence of excellent synchronization. The left foot is directly behind the rock and rightly so for an effective delivery. With the curler who drops his stone to the ice without a forward reach you will find usually that the left foot strikes the ice alongside the stone with both foot and rock side by side. Then the trouble starts. The stone, because it has not been swung, must be given a push with the hand, wrist or arm to give it sufficient weight to do the job called for. To make matters worse the handle is usually unwound by the time the rock strikes the ice and the player must try to impart a turn as well. The result of this agonizing last second push and twist sends the stone off on an erratic course wide or narrow of the broom.

Next time you swing a rock check these points: (1) Where does the stone first touch the ice? (2) Where is the left foot at this juncture? (3) Is the right foot still in the hack to help push on the handle after the rock is on the ice?

STANDING

The leading All Stars team (Mrs. M. McFaul) lost its first game on Monday evening against St. Pats (Gladys Davis), who are now within hailing distance of the league leadership, by a close score of 6-5. The tail-enders, Thistles (Foster Campbell) won their first game of the season, and now that the ice is broken possibly they will go on to greater things. Nearly all the games this week were very close contests, and only two minor changes in the standing resulted.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Health is wealth!

"Talk health. The dreary, never-ending tale Of mortal maladies is more than stale."

This quotation from Ella Wheeler Wilcox is selected by the Health League of Canada in promoting its 16th annual National Health Week, January 31 to February 6.

But as the League says, it is impossible merely to talk health without considering the "mortal maladies" against which this voluntary organization has been battling since it was founded.

In its campaign for better health across the country, the Health League has the support of federal and provincial health departments, the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Medical Association. During this one week in the year it especially invites general support in its aim to promote public health in Canada.

As a guide it asks you to consider the following questions about your community. If the replies are not satisfactory, the League suggests public action toward their betterment. Here are some of the prominent questions:

Have you high maternal or infant mortality rates?

Is absenteeism in industry excessive?

Is your water supply safe and fluoridated?

Is venereal disease increasing?

Have you adequate immunization facilities for both children and adults?

Could food handling in your restaurants be improved?

Are methods of artificial respiration taught?

Is alcoholism increasing?

Have you mental health problems?

It was because of the problems these questions pose that the League came into being; and because some of the problems remain, it continues to sponsor National Health Week.

Scouting takes the spotlight

THERE ARE FEW appeals we are more pleased to endorse than the annual fund campaign of the Boy Scouts, for which canvassers will be out collecting one week from now, Tuesday, February 9.

During Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13, Scouts across Canada will be "at home" to the folks of their home communities. Boy Scout Week is meant to help the Canadian people to better understand Scouting — to help parents appreciate more fully what Scouting is and the possible values it holds for their sons — to help institutions which sponsor Scout Groups to learn the real value of the Scouting program — and, last, but far from least, to make each boy's membership in Scouting more colorful and meaningful to him.

That the Boy Scouts and their juniors, the Wolf Cubs, are now in a flourishing and active condition here, is a gratifying fact. Parents are familiar, of course, with the character-forming influence of this movement. But for others less convinced, there is no lack of evidence that Scout training is effective in steering boisterous young citizens away from mischievous and delinquent pastimes. Quoting from Nancy Cleaver, in her "Parents" column only last week: "Juveniles who are in trouble with the law are very seldom from Scout groups or Sunday School classes."

That the Scout and Cub movement — similarly the Guide and Brownie companies — are now thriving in Lachute, is also a tribute to the few untiring leaders who give their time to train these youngsters along wholesome and constructive lines. It is a tribute to the Group Committee, a few serious-minded, altruistic citizens who stand behind these leaders as a corporate body, to manage their affairs and to co-ordinate local Scouting with the Divisional groups and the broader concepts of the national organization. To these citizens — men and women too — the community owes a debt of gratitude.

True, the debt cannot be paid in monetary terms, but a contribution towards the financing of this Scout work may prove a fitting token of support. It will signify the people's appreciation, yours and mine, in a practical manner. . . The Watchman solicits a generous public response to this appeal.

A champion of servicemen

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that His Excellency the Governor General, Major-General George Vanier, D.S.O., M.C., C.D., will officially open the Canadian Legion's 18th Dominion Convention at Windsor, Ont., on May 29 next, is of unusual interest. It calls to mind a record warmly cherished by one of Canada's most colorful and celebrated regiments — a record in which Canada at large shares pardonable pride.

Canada's distinguished soldier-statesman, as Major-General George Vanier, has long been familiar with the problems of servicemen in peace and in war.

During the first world war he was a founder of the 22nd Batallion of Quebec. As an officer on the Western front, he led a party of Van Doos against a German machine-gun post. Although wounded, he destroyed the post and brought his men back to the trenches. He was awarded the Military Cross for this action.

Later, he led his company in the capture of an important village, was wounded and received the Distinguished Service Order.

On a third occasion, he rallied his battalion in a key attack. He was again wounded and lost his right leg. For his leadership and gallantry in this engagement, he was awarded the bar to his Military Cross and also the French Legion of Honor.

During the second world war, he commanded the Quebec Military District. Later he served in London as Canadian representative to General Charles de Gaulle's French committe of Liberation. He also served as Canadian Minister to the allied governments in the U.K.

The Governor General's opening of the Legion convention will also mark the 35th year of Legion growth. The largest of Canada's veterans' organizations, it now has a membership of some 240,000.

Origin of the Olympics

THE OLYMPIC GAMES, part of which are being held in Squaw Valley, Calif., in February, were so important to the ancient Greeks that they were used to measure time. In the 300's B.C. it became customary to mark time in "Olympiads," the periods of four years between celebrations of the Olympic Games. All events were dated from 776 B.C., the date of the first recorded race. The custom disappeared about A.D. 440, after the 304th Olympiad.

World Book Encyclopedia explains that the original games were foot races in honor of Zeus, king of the Greek gods.

The Olympic festivals were originated by the people of Elis, a Greek city-state on the plains of Olympia. Gradually, all the Greek city-states joined in the Olympics. Other contests, such as jumping, discus-throwing and chariot-racing, were added.

As the city-states declined, athletes from other lands began to participate in the games.

In about A.D. 60, the Roman emperor Nero entered the contests. One of the purposes of the games was to glorify the individual, his skill and his sportsmanship. But Nero was a poor athlete, and by competing he lowered the standards. The games deteriorated and by A.D. 394 they had become so corrupt that Emperor Theodosius abolished them.

Centuries passed, while earthquakes and floods buried the plain under 20 feet of gravel and soil. When excavators found the ruins of the ancient stadium in 1878, interest in the games was revived. In 1896 eight nations took part in the first Olympics of the modern age.

The Winter Olympic Games were initiated in 1924, in France. The contests consist of skiing, skating, ice hockey and bobsledding.

CIVILIZATION has a long way to go yet toward maturity when, in supposedly advanced countries, the hate-mongers can get away with Ku Klux Klan activities, smearing swastikas on synagogues or any of the other evidences of unreasoning, poisonous prejudice.

NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK —

A message from the Minister of National Health and Welfare

Did you know that the average Canadian today lives twenty years longer than he would have at the turn of the century? This is a fact and no doubt a startling one to many of us.

How has it come about? New weapons against disease have had a good deal to do with it. But man's own knowledge of the enemies of health and of the resources to resist them have played an equally important part. He has not only learned how to add years to his life — he has learned how to enjoy them.

The Health League of Canada, through its annual sponsorship of National Health Week, has done much to focus attention on the facts and facilities for good health and to stimulate their personal application. On behalf of the Dominion Government, I am happy to lend my wholehearted support to the observance of these important seven days. Physical and mental well-being make for sound citizenship and for a sound and progressive nation.

Nuclear Armageddon ?

— By Lewis Milligan —

Mr. Khruschchev recently announced that the Soviet had achieved nuclear power supremacy with the production of a "fantastic" missile of destruction. When I read that I was reminded of Handel's Hallelujah Chorus which rises in crescendo to the final positive and joyful assertion, "The Lord God Omnipotent Reigneth!"

The way things are moving internationally in this world makes one wonder whether that assertion is true. The competition for all-destructive nuclear power between the East and West is a defiant challenge to the Almighty. The very fact that we of the West have entered into that competition and are fearful of its outcome is evidence that we do not believe or are doubtful of the truth of the Hallelujah Chorus.

We claim, of course, that we are preparing to defend ourselves — against what and whom? There is no defence against certain annihilation. And there is no justification or consolation in the foreknowledge that our enemies would be wiped out along with us.

The present competition for nuclear power is nothing less than a joint conspiracy to destroy each other and probably all life on the planet. In that case this Earth would be as desolate and dead as the moon.

Some astronomers believe the moon is not merely a satellite, but that it is a twin planet with the Earth. If that be true, then it is possible that the moon was once a fertile world and populated with human beings like ourselves. And it would be no stretch of imagination to assume that the Lunians preceded us in scientific inventions and became so lunatic as to think they could settle their ideological differences by a competition for nuclear power.

Before we go any further in the preparations to destroy ourselves, we should speed up our efforts to land a party — preferably of scientists and politicians — on the moon. There they may discover the dusty relics of an atomic age and the ruins of cities that were laid waste in a nuclear Armageddon.

New plan would reduce flooding in Hawkesbury

Following a petition from local residents, Ontario Hydro has placed before the Hawkesbury municipal council a plan to protect the town's business district against flooding from Hydro Quebec's Carillon project.

Harry Hustler, Director of Property for Ontario Hydro, said the plan would reduce by 65 per cent the number of commercial and residential properties in the town scheduled for expropriation. The plan must be ratified by Hydro Quebec before it can be undertaken.

Under a 1943 interprovincial agreement, Ontario Hydro is acquiring land which will be affected by the creation of a headpond for the power project, 12 miles downstream at Carillon.

The plan outlined to the council by Mr. Hustler would include construction of a 2,500-foot earth-fill dyke paralleling Hawkesbury's Main Street between the C.N.R. tracks and a point just east of John Street. Requiring an estimated 50,000 cubic yards of material, the proposed dyke would have an average height of seven feet above existing ground levels.

The dyke may be supplemented by fill placed on some sections of land fronting on the river, to eliminate any interference with parts of the town's business district and a number of residential properties between Main Street and the river bank.

Mr. Hustler said Ontario Hydro engineers would immediately begin feasibility studies to determine the best methods of undertaking this project.

Ontario Hydro announced in November that it had begun the acquisition of approximately 2,600 acres of land in Ontario to make way for the Carillon project At that time it was estimated 207 lots in the town of Hawkesbury, made up of 30 commercial and 177 residential properties, would be affected.

Ontario Hydro began further engineering studies after receipt of a petition signed by 190 Hawkesbury property owners urging that steps be taken to protect their homes and businesses. The results of these investigations indicated the construction of a dyke and other remedial measures would substantially reduce the number of properties to be affected in the town.

Under the new Hydro plan, only 73 lots within the town limits, involving two commercial and 71 residential properties, would have to be acquired. This total includes 56 properties on Chenail (Snye) Island in the Ottawa River.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

WHAT IS SOCIALISM ?

There are about as many definitions of socialism as there are followers of the CCF party in Canada, and perhaps that is the reason for the failure of that group and the decision to form a new party.

Socialism, traditionally means the ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange by the State. Capitalism means the possession of capital by private individuals or companies.

Capitalists readily accept the traditional definition of the term; but socialists continually modify or argue about the definition of socialism. They will tell you that it does not mean this or it does not mean that, but they avoid telling what it actually does mean, except in vague generalities.

There is good reason for their vagueness. They are caught on the horns of a dilemma. If they admit that socialism is the ownership of the means of production by the State, then they must socialize the farms — and few farmers would stand still for it. If they claim that capitalism brings out the worst in people, why has it not made farmers into greedy, profiteering people? This logic dismays the socialist so he tries to avoid talking government ownership, and merely points to the inequities in the world. He says socialism will cure them but doesn't say how.

This nimbleness in avoiding a definite statement of what socialism is and what it would do may be useful in argument, but does not attract a large following. Canadians refuse to join a party until they know what it would do if elected. In other words, they want to know what, precisely, is socialism?

I have been reading back through the speeches of Mr. Woodsworth and of the Fabian socialists when they drew up their Co-operative Commonwealth of Tomorrow constitution. These men knew what they meant, and made no bones about it. Beatrice and Sydney Webb did not hesitate to urge state ownership. In Canada, Mr. Woodsworth and Mr. Winch used no weasel words about their intentions. If elected, they said, everyone would have to fall in line to make socialism work. Compulsion did not scare them.

Today's socialist is afraid to talk socialism!

The lovable rogue has always been a favorite character in North America.

He has taken many forms: The medicine show man who peddled syrup and water with a dash of alcohol for $1 a bottle; the trader who unloaded a lame horse on the parson; the Yankee who sold wooden nutmegs; the Robin Hood politician who made big money in graft but gave away most of it to the poor.

That was alright when the peddler sold his wares from a barrow, and the crooked political boss ruled a small town; and when government exerted relatively little pressure on people's lives.

Nowadays, however, thanks to television and rapid transit, the huckster can stand on his barrow and sell his wares to 40,000,000 people. The unscrupulous politician, controlling a state or a province, perhaps a nation, can dip his hand in every pocket.

Some highly respected people last year confessed that they lied for pay on television. Several television sponsors were proven to have lied in their commercial messages. Just now, a number of Chicago policemen stand charged with burglary.

It's nothing new for people in responsible jobs to lie and cheat. However, I suspect that this kind of behavior has gained widespread approval, and that many people believe that the only real sin is getting caught.

I suspect that a Kinsey-type enquiry into people's ethics would produce results that would shock the world.

All of a sudden the lovable, comic rogue has become a monster whose shadow falls across thousands of miles.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q.- I have just received a letter saying that a statement I had made about having a dependent was not correct. The letter said I was disqualified to the extent of $28, and it mentioned Section 65 of the Unemployment Insurance Act. I got a letter before that, asking me to pay back the $28 which I was not entitled to, and I have already arranged to do this. Why did I get this second letter?

A.- The letter was about the overpayment, and it required that you make arrangements at once to begin paying back that amount. The second letter concerned a further disqualification imposed as a penalty for having made a statement which did not agree with facts on record. Your case happened to be one where the prescribed penalty is a dollar for each dollar of the overpayment. You were not asked to pay this penalty, for it cannot be paid in cash. The Commission will collect it by withholding future benefits to which you would otherwise be entitled; these will be withheld until the total amount held back reaches $28, the amount of your penalty. This is the only way the penalty can be paid.

Q.- My benefits are being held back to pay a penalty under Section 65. I am not working. I have been told I should continue to report at the local UIC office each week. Why should I do this, when I am not getting my benefits?

A.- Unless you complete the usual report form for a week in which you were out of work, the benefit amount for that week cannot be deducted from your penalty. You would then have been without either work or benefit, and yet you would still owe the same amount of penalty.

I stood by an open grave,
And watched them lower a loved one
I would have given my life to save;
But I knew that my tears could not waken
The soul in that mound of clay,
So I laid my heart down beside him
And sadly walked away;
But away in the beautiful hills of God
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day, I know not when
I will meet my loved one there;
Every hour I dearly miss him
Sadly do I feel his loss,
Lonely is the home without him
Help me Lord, to bear the cross"

MacINTYRE — In loving memory of Dad, who died accidentally on February 9, 1959. — Ever remembered by daughter, Eileen, son-in-law Garry, and children.

So dearly loved by one and all;
He was so good, unselfish and kind,
Few on this earth his equal we find.
Nothing can ever take away,
The love our hearts hold dearly
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near,
We do not need a special day,
To bring him to our mind;
For the days we do not think of him,
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes and more;
To see the face of daddy dear,
Come smiling through the door."

MacINTYRE — In loving memory of Dad, who died accidentally on February 9, 1959. — Always remembered by his son, Leonard, and daughter-in-law, Joyce.

The sorrow of parting without farewell."

MacLEOD (Mrs. William) — In loving memory of our dear mother and sister who passed away Feb. 5, 1953. Lovingly remembered and missed by her daughter, Flora, and sister, Ellen.

And they help us keep you near,
We will cherish them forever,
For they make the past more near."

Late Mrs. William Doig

Mrs. William Doig, a long-time resident of this community, succumbed Thursday last, following a lengthy illness. Born in Gorrie, Ont., she married in 1891 and came to Lachute in 1907, moving to Winnipeg, Man., five years later.

Following Mr. Doig's return from overseas duty in World War I, they returned to Lachute, Mrs. Doig having resided here since that time. She was an active member of the United Church and the W.M.S. in earlier years, but of late had been confined to bed.

She is survived by her son, Guy, of Saskatoon, Sask., and Gladys (Mrs. H. Picard), of Oxbow, Sask.

Her other daughter Marion (Mrs. J. Worth Baker), predeceased her.

Funeral service was held on Saturday, January 30, from the J. P. MacKimmie Funeral Home, the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiating. Interment was in the Lachute Protestant.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, from the Lachute United Church, on Friday, January 29, at 2.30 p.m.

Pall-bearers were Erving Cleland, Norman MacRae, Melville Smith, George Sutton, Erskine Rodgers and Lester Thompson.

Many beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony to the esteem in which she was held. Interment was made in Lachute Cemetery.

Start rehearsing for cantata "Holy City"; singers invited

The combined choirs from Lachute and Brownsburg, under the direction of Lowell B. Hopkins, started rehearsing last week on the cantata, "The Holy City" by Gaul. It is hoped that at least 60 voices will be in this musical project.

The practices are held each Thursday evening from 8.30 to 9.30 at the Lachute United Church, and at 2 o'clock each Sunday afternoon. Additional voices are needed in all sections, and a cordial invitation is extended to any interested person to join the choir.

Impelling Gospel

Many years ago a young Sufi — a member of a Muslim sect of holy men — was handed a copy of one of the Gospels. Indignantly he tore it to shreds, for he had been taught that this book was false and blasphemous. Later, however, a copy of this same Gospel came to his attention again, and he felt impelled to read it. The reading revolutionized his life. Without ever having seen a Christian minister or missionary, he said, "It is sufficient, I want to become a Christian." Thus, John Sulshan began a pilgrimage of faith that was to take him far. Today he is Bishop of the Methodist Church in India.

Annual meeting held at Lachute United

The annual meeting of the Lachute United Church was held last Wednesday evening, when reports were received from the various organizations connected with the church and Sunday School.

The church had experienced another year of steady progress in all departments, with a continuously growing Sunday School, and an increase in church membership.

It was stated that the session had placed on record their sincere and heartfelt thanks to the Rev. Wilson Bridge for the wonderful service he had given to the church since coming to Lachute in 1953, and they extended to him and his family their very best wishes for the year ahead.

The Rev. Wilson Bridge in acknowledging the thanks of the Session said it was a matter of encouragement for everyone to know of the progress being made, and of the challenge that was set before them in the matter of providing new accommodation for the growing number of scholars. . . . The building committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. Herb Graves reported on the progress made with regard to the plans of the proposed new hall. It was also requested that an approximate price be obtained for same, and that the proposal be further discussed later.

Refreshments were provided by wives of the elders, arrangements being in the hands of Mrs. Herb Graves and her helpers.

Three new stewards were elected, namely, Messrs. J. William Davis, Brian Girling and M. G. McCaskill.

Bible in Japan

The annual report of the Japanese Bible Society records that from 1946 to 1958 a total of 23,282,002 Scriptures were circulated in Japan. The increase in 1958 distribution of 134,027 volumes made the total for that year, 1,901,737.

The new Kogotai (coloquial) version accounted for 1,737,630 Bibles, Testaments and Gospels, thus demonstrating the increasing use of this Japanese version in popular speech. It has been recently said by a prominent Japanese Christian, "I am not so optimistic as to suppose that Japan will be Christianized in the near future. Japanese traditional ideas and customs that have been preserved for more than ten centuries will not yield to new ideas so easily; but I can say with assurance that amidst changing circumstances the Bible has been read by many Japanese, and has been changing the minds of the people."

(Ontario Department of Lands and Forests

How do people live when the temperature hits 60 below zero — as it frequently does in White River, 750 miles north of Toronto?

"Same as you do," was the reply of District Forester Aubrey L. Dunne of the Department of Lands and Forests. His reply was echoed by other staff members who stroll to and from the office when the smoke is rising straight and white from the chimneys. "No change," reported Conservation Officer E. A. Pozzit whose winter duties require him to make frequent patrols of the bushlands.

Most White River-ites claim that it's colder in downtown Toronto or Montreal when the temperature is near zero and there's a wind blowing than it is during White River's 50 or 60 below Automobile radiators are filled with a 50-50 mixture of antifreeze and water, oil is diluted with kerosene and where facilities are available, block heaters installed. There is at least one car in town which has an air-cooled motor and the owner claims he has little starting trouble.

What about children? They enjoy the climate and appear as if the cold doesn't affect them nearly as much as it does some of the adults. "Mothers dress them for cold weather, but have the same troubles as mothers in the south with lost mittens, scarves and knitted caps. But the kids seem to keep warm with their playing or maybe nature provides them with some sort of protective "covering," residents say.

The old story book yarns about children being lost in blizzards certainly do not apply to White River, according to the residents, who claim (and the claim is borne out by the official Dominion government weathermen there) that there are seldom high winds and snowstorms at extremely low temperatures. White River doesn't get nearly as much snow as does Niagara Falls or Owen Sound.

White River folks are quite proud of the fact that their town is reputed to be the coldest spot in Canada. Their first snow came — but didn't last — on September 15 and soon ice was forming on the lakes and rivers. The only disgruntled resident encountered recently was an employee of the Department. He was being transferred to southern Ontario after eight years there. He doesn't like the idea of living in "the Banana Belt." Too warm!

National Health Week —

Health advice from QWI convener

Mrs. W. B. Holmes, Provincial Convener of Welfare and Health for the Quebec Women's Institutes, gives us some good advice for Health at this time.

"Apathy is our Greatest Killer: Strong words, I assure you, but unfortunately true. In a pamphlet issued by the Health League of Canada seven different classifications of health problems are listed with notes which do not reflect credit on the health of the average Canadian, and concluding with the remark, 'All these can be avoided — How?' Anyone reading these words can do something.

" 'But,' you may ask, 'What can I do about it? In almost every community today there is some kind of a health organization to which you can turn for help. If you should happen to live in an area where there is no organized health committee, here is your golden opportunity for action in sponsoring one.

"Do be alert to conditions in your community, and avoid the regrets which come when you have to say, 'I wish I had known'. This unfortunately was the case with the recent Polio epidemic. The 1959 epidemic is past history about which we can now do nothing. Do not let it happen again."

APPRECIATION

Our grateful thanks to all blood doners, St. Simeon's bowling Club, and friends, for flowers, gifts, cards, prayers and good wishes while in hospital.

Lachute C.W.L. holds meeting; accepts members

The general meeting of the Lachute Catholic Women's League was held on Monday, February 1, with many members in attendance.

The members were honored to have Mr. Ouelette, an active member of the Social Service for the Diocese of St. Jerome, as guest speaker who thoroughly outlined the rules and regulations for the adoption of children in foster homes. The social service is presently the only organization dealing with such problems. The president thanked the speaker.

Three new members were welcomed by the league, and canvassers for the March of Dimes were thanked by the president.

Miss Lydia Lowe was requested to explain in brief what "St. Anthony's Bread Bank" was — She handed out small money banks to the members, contents of which will be forwarded to the Shrine for the need of their community.

A motion was passed to exercise the new procedure for collecting membership fees as well as the fee for the League Magazine.

It was noted that director Father Harold Conway, of St. Patrick's College, was named Chaplain of a Pilgrimage to Lourdes in August.

Mrs. Proulx was called upon to convene the Nomination Committee.

The meeting closed with prayer after which refreshments were served.

Bible goes to fairs

One of the special concerns of the Action Biblique of Geneva, Switzerland, is to sponsor Bible witness at International and Regional Fairs, and towards this end it maintains a Bible House at Genoa, Italy.

The first time the Action Biblique participated in the Fair at Rome, 539 Bibles and over 800 Portions were sold. Other fairs were attended at Reggio Emilia, Bari, Cagliari in Sardinia, Rome, Milan, Turin, Via Po, Piazza Vittorio, San Agata, Montrea, Ferrara, Leghorn, Legnano, and others; and about 2,500 Scriptures were sold. The Bible has been mentioned in radio broadcasts and newspapers in the North of Italy. Witness has been given, and Scriptures sold in Padua, Como, Bologna and Palermo.

Through the Bible House at Genoa and the Bible Society Agency in Rome, 218,300 Scriptures were distributed in 1958.

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Branch 70 Correspondent

It is the general opinion that a very good bonspiel came to a close at the Lachute Curling Club last Saturday evening. Stewart Jones as the chairman of the entire proceedings is to be congratulated for an excellent job.

The team of Geo. Kirby skip, Jerry Boyd 3rd, Art Phillips 2nd, and Doug Hay lead, became the district representatives, winning out in a very close game over Stewart Jones skip, Dee Graham 3rd, Jack MacKimmie 2nd, and Bill Bradshaw, lead.

In the consolation event Roy Fraser, skip, Geo. Calder 3rd, Fred Stein 2nd and Dick MacLean lead defeated Hec Steele's rink (from Brownsburg) of Jim Ross, Rocky Baccerdax and Harry Miller.

Thanks to the Montebello Legion and the Montebello Club de Gran-te, the bonspiel got off to a roaring start. Our comrades from that area were excellent hosts, and some very good games were played.

Our thanks also to the Lachute Curling Club for the use of their ice and club facilities for the finals. The buffet supper that was enjoyed by so many, was under convenership of Mrs. Fred Stein. With her on the committee were Mrs. Jack MacKimmie, Mrs. Roy Fraser, Mrs. Stewart Jones, Mrs. Dick MacLean and Mrs. Doug. MacKimmie.

Congratulations are due to Rene Paulsen, Doug Kettyle, Joe Martel and Bud Langille for the great showing that they put up. This is the spirit that makes the Legion click and the comradeship stronger.

Forums differ on Farmers' pensions and job insurance

Canada's Farm Forums discussed at a recent date the matter of Pension Plans and Unemployment Insurance. Opinions varied widely from province to province on both issues.

All provinces but Ontario favor compulsory Unemployment Insurance for farm help. Their approval of the mandatory plan ranged from Saskatchewan's 72% in favor, to Manitoba's borderline 50%. In Ontario only 27% want to bring in the compulsory plan.

A voluntary plan, which hasn't yet been considered seriously by the Federal Government, would be acceptable to 45% of the groups in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and to 37% of those in Ontario. The other provinces; preferring the compulsory scheme, did not think so highly of any voluntary program.

Pension plans for farmers were approved of by all provinces but Alberta and Ontario. These two felt that it either ought to be a matter of individual choice or else the farmer could do better by investing his money in his own farm business.

Those in favor of pension plans were Saskatchewan (58%), Manitoba (75%), Quebec (61%) and the Maritimes (80%).

New Brunswick — "We are in favor of a pension plan for farmers, because we feel that perhaps the older farmers would be more willing to give over the reins to a younger man."

Alberta — "We are not in favor of a pension plan for farmers, as most of us depend on our farms to give us some profit towards our support when we retire. If some of us want additional protection, we can always get a retirement income plan insurance policy with the life insurance companies. Most of us farmers are an independent lot. Instead of paying premiums toward a pension plan, we would rather use this premium money to invest in farm property or for improvements on our farms."

National Health Week —

Dental Health seen largely as community affair

Most people think of dental health as something which the dentist does for them, according to a National Health Week release from the Canadian Dental Association.

To many, it will come as a surprise that the dental profession states in its public health policy that the most important care people can receive is that which they, as individuals and communities render to themselves without even going into a dentist's office. There are certain things that only individuals and families can do for themselves. The dentist can give advice on these services but he cannot perform them for you.

Tooth decay, the key dental disease, can be almost entirely controlled by avoiding sweet, sticky foods, especially between meals and before going to bed, and by brushing the teeth or rinsing the mouth just after eating. What could be simpler?

Water fluoridation, the greatest recent scientific health measure, is available to all communities who wish to make an important contribution to the dental health of their children and future citizens. The Canadian Dental Association urges the parents of young children to assume leadership in educating their communities in the value of this measure to protect the general health of their children through better dental health. Witholding fluoride from children is equivalent to inflicting upon them tooth decay, jaw abcesses, crooked teeth and gum disease, and may seriously affect their general health, appearance and future employment and social prospects.

How in the light of these facts can anyone oppose water fluoridation? The records show that opponents are seldom found among parents of young children. However, more aggressive and co-operative action towards obtaining fluoridation is required of the parents and young children.

The dental profession, with the help of the medical profession and health authorities in general, can provide the scientific information.

Action to obtain the fruitful use depends upon the people, and more particularly upon the parents of young children.

(Quotation, on informed authority.)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

In her diary, written when she was 13, Louisa Alcott, the author of Little Women, wrote: "I have at last got the little room I have wanted so long, and am very happy about it. Mother has made it very pretty and neat for me. . . It does me good to be alone."

In a home where there is a large family, it is often difficult to arrange, if not a room, a place which belongs exclusively to each child. Here prized possessions can be kept, without danger of their being touched. Here a boy or girl can retreat, away from other people, to read or think or day dream.

Extra space can sometimes be found by making a room in an attic or a basement. Do-it-yourself projects are very popular because they cut greatly the cost of re-modelling if properly carried out. Advice on how best to spend money on wall board, ceiling or floor covering will be gladly given by experts employed by various commercial firms selling materials needed to build a new room.

Many magazines and newspapers carry features from time to time, giving definite instructions and approximate costs on remodelling. In one family, two girls shared a large bedroom in an older home. They both greatly appreciated a partition dividing the room into two rooms, one for each sister. An older boy who had to share his bedroom with a much younger brother, fixed up his own bedroom in the basement, at the time the recreation room was being built there, while another boy, with his Dad's help, made a room and hobby corner in the attic.

It is a sad reflection on an adult's upbringing, if a man or woman cannot be happy in his or her own company. Great emphasis has been placed on "togetherness", but is enough thought given to enjoyment of a solitary time? Each person has different tastes and abilities, and it is the wise parent who encourages a child's enjoyment in handcraft, reading, music and other activities which can be carried out alone.

Even the very small child should be left to play alone with his favorite toys for short periods of time, so that he will not become too dependent on his mother's company. She should be able to keep an eye on him. Good play equipment is sturdy and challenges a child's ingenuity. Blocks and a sandbox are both fascinating material for the child who is playing by himself.

It is a good plan to encourage a young child to enjoy picture books, story and nursery rhyme books, not only when he is read to, but also when he turns over the pages and looks at the pictures himself. Teach him to handle a book with care, not tearing or soiling the pages. An old record cabinet makes an excellent container for large sized books which often are too big for an ordinary bookcase. Colòring books or better still, large sheets of blank paper for drawing can be kept on one shelf with a box of large crayons of assorted colors. Few older individuals who enjoy reading or "making pictures" find time hanging heavy on their hands when they are alone.

When a child enters adolescence, his urge to be alone comes, in part, from his need to grow into greater independence of adult direction. He is impatient of mother's or father's too insistent probing into his private affairs. The answers he gives to their questions about where he has been, what he has done, whom he was with, may be very brief and indefinite to his parents —— but his reaction often is, "Why don't they let me alone?"

Privacy to him is essential when he is phoning, especially a friend who is a girl. An adolescent expects his letters to be unopened and not read and this is a courtesy which must be observed. A diary is a sort of confidant for many teen age girls, and woe betide the person who tries to find it and discover the secrets on its pages. Privacy and having one's own friends and thoughts are all essential parts of a happy home atmosphere, especially in a family where children are in the higher grades at school.

BOOST RHUBARB

A bigger market for the lowly rhubarb? Delegates to a recent convention of International Hothouse Rhubarb Growers laid plans to win Canadian shoppers back to a fruit that was once a leading off-season delicacy, reports The Financial Post.

They will do it through public education program, shooting especially for converts among young people.

Winter-grown rhubarb once shared with apples and position of sole fresh fruit available to Canadians in winter months.

NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK —

National Health Week family nutrition rules

Good nutrition is one of the most basic reasons for having good health, according to a National Health Week release. Here are some rules which, if followed implicitly, will go a long way to making Mr. and Mrs. Canada and their families feel a lot better than they probably do now:

The best foods for Health are outlined in "Canada's Food Rules". These foods are good to eat. Eat them every day. Have at least three meals a day.

1. MILK. — Children (up to about 12 years) at least 1 pint.
Adolescents: at least 1¼ pints.
Adults: at least ½ pint.
Nothing can take the place of milk: Apart from milk and firm cheese little calcium can be obtained in our meals. Calcium is needed for strong bones and teeth. Milk is also rich in Vitamin B-2 or Riboflavin which is needed for the utilization of food. It also supplies considerable protein, for body building and repair. Pasteurized, evaporated or dried milk, whether whole, homogenized, skimmed or buttermilk, contains equal amounts of these three substances. Cooking milk does not reduce its food value.

2. FRUITS. — One serving of citrous fruits or tomatoes or their juices and one serving of another fruit.
Citrous fruits and tomatoes, or their juices, fresh, frozen or canned, are our most important sources of Vitamin C. This vitamin is needed for the prevention of scurvy, maintenance of healthy gums anad bloodvessels and resistance to infection. Fresh strawberries, respberries and cantaloupe are good sources of Vitamin C in summer. Other fruits add variety to meals, aid in preventing constipation, and provide small amounts of minerals (such as iron) and other vitamins. The orange-fleshed ones, especially cantaloupe and apricots, have high Vitamin A value.

3. VEGETABLES. — At least one serving of potatoes, at least two servings of other vegetables, preferably leafy, green or yellow and frequently raw.
Cabbage, turnips and new potatoes cooked in their jackets can provide considerable amounts of Vitamin C. Raw vegetables, cut with a sharp knife, provide more Vitamin C than cooked vegetables. Poor cooking of vegetables can lead to the total loss of their Vitamin C. Cook unpeeled (if possible) in a small amount of boiling water until just done. Avoid mashing and keeping them warm whenever possible. (Do not add soda).

4. CEREALS, BREAD — One serving of whole grain cereal, and at least four slices of bread (with butter or fortified margarine).
Whole grain cereals or breads and enriched bread provide starch, "B"vitamins, iron and some protein. Whole grain dark cereals such as rolled oats, rolled or cracked wheat, or the ready-to-eat ones containing whole grain, e.g., the shredded wheat types, or bran flakes, are good sources of the "B" vitamins, especially Thiamine, Iron and Cellulose. Cereals made of rice or corn and the puffed varieties have little food value.
The most nutritious breads are 100% whole wheat, Hovis, dark rye and vitamin enriched white.
Thiamine helps to maintain appetite and normal digestive activity, promotes growth and is necessary for the proper utilization of starches and sugars. Iron is needed to keep blood rich and red.

5. MEAT AND FISH. — One serving of meat, fish, poultry, or meat alternates such as dried beans, eggs and cheese. Use liver frequently. During periods of rapid growth pregnancy and lactation, two servings of the above should be eaten daily.
Meat and meat alternates supply excellent protein for growth and repair. Meats (especially liver, kidney, heart and pork) are important sources of "B" vitamins especially Thiamine. Liver, heart and other meats are excellent sources of iron, required by the blood.

6. EGGS, CHEESE — at least three times a week each. Beans and peas can be used occasionally as economical meat substitutes.
Eggs are good sources of protein, Vitamin A, "B" vitamins and iron. Cheese is a more concentrated form of milk so it contains protein, calcium and riboflavin. One ounce of firm cheese (Cheddar, processed, etc.) is equal to a medium glass (7 ounces) of milk. Cottage or cream cheese have far less calcium than the firm cheeses.

7. VITAMIN D. — At least 400 International Units daily for all growing persons and expectant and nursing mothers. Little of this vitamin is found in our common foods. Fish, such as salmon, sardines, tuna and herring, are about the only ones that provide much of it. However, Vitamin D is manufactured by the body when the summer sun shines on our skin. Probably everyone in Canada would be wise to take 400 units each day from the middle of September to the middle of May. (This comes in capsule, tablet or liquid form such as fish liver oil or similar more palatable preparations.)
Vitamin D helps to build and maintain strong bones and teeth, by making the utilization of calcium and phosphorous more efficient.
All other vitamins and minerals that we require can be obtained from our ordinary food, provided we are well. There is no need to buy them in expensive medical forms.

An apple dish that's different

For an apple dish that's different, try this recipe for Ham-and-Apple Scallop. Old-fashioned goodness with the modern touch is the secret of this easy-to-make low-calorie luncheon dish. Serve it in a big casserole or in individual bakers.

Ingredients

4 or 5 Quebec McIntosh apples, 2 centre slices of ham (½ inch thick), brown sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Preparation

Pare, core and slice apples in rings. Trim off part of fat from ham and cut into serving-size pieces. Into a baking dish put a layer of ham. Cover with apple rings and sprinkle lightly with brown sugar — 1 to 2 tablespoonsful for each layer. Repeat until ingredients are used, having apples and a piece of ham as top layer.
Sprinkle lemon juice over top, cover, bake in a moderate oven (375°F) for about 25 minutes or until apples are tender. Remove cover and bake 20-25 minutes longer until apples brown slightly and juice thickens somewhat. Serves 4-6.

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Every time you mash potatoes and turnips they lose 20 percent of their vitamin C content. And if they stand on the back of the stove for half an hour or so they lose four times that much, say the experts in the home economics branch of the Ontario agriculture department.

Since vitamin C is most perishable, and is comparatively scarce in many Canadian foods, it is important to serve fruits and vegetables containing it as often as possible.

To retain utmost food value in potatoes, they should be boiled in their skins or baked in their skins in the oven.

An excellent vitamin source is raw turnip, which can be served in sticks. Raw cauliflower also is excellent, and bite-size pieces add a tasty touch to tossed salads.

Raw cabbage, prepared properly, contains valuable vitamin C. For salads, cut just before mealtime with a sharp knife, then add the dressing right away. The acid in the vinegar or lemon juice helps to seal in the food value.

Golden Jubilee

January marked the 50th year of Guiding in Canada. In Toronto provincial leaders joined the chief commissioner, Mrs. Rankine Nesbitt, for a huge birthday party. Smaller parties are being held from coast to coast. At every party cake was served, all made from the same recipe.

Guiding began in 1909 when a group of determined girls almost broke up a Boy Scout rally in London's Crystal Palace.

Lord Robert Baden-Powell, found-of the Scouting movement, worked out a plan suitable for the girls. Girl Guides were soon sprouting up in England and a year later spread to Canada, Australia, South Africa and Finland.

The first Canadian company was founded iin St. Catharines, Ont. There are now more than 175,000 Brownies, Girl Guides and Rangers and 25,000 leaders in Guiding in Canada.

Guides' Cake

Here is the recipe for the Girl Guides' anniversary cake (makes 3¼ pounds):

½ Cup shortening and butter combined;1 cup brown sugar; 3 egg yolks; ½ cup molasses, 3 egg whites; 2 cups all-purpose flour; 1 tsp. allspice; 1 tsp. cinnamon; ½ tsp. nutmeg; ½ tsp. mace; ½ tsp. ground cloves; ¾ cup currants; 1 cup citron peel; 2 cups raisins; ½ cup chopped orange peel; ½ cup candied cherries; ½ cup pineapple; ½ cup grape juice or orange juice; 1/16 tsp. of baking soda (pinch); 1 tsp. hot water.

Cream together shortening, butter and brown sugar. Add egg yolks beaten lightly with molasses. Fold into mixture 3 egg whites beaten stiff. Sift together 1½ cup all-purpose flour and spices. Add to mixture. Dust fruit with remaining ½ cup of flour and stir into mixture. Add grape or orange juice. Dissolve soda in water and add. Bake at 300 in loaf tin 10 by 5 by 3½ inches for two-and-one-half hours.

This week is a good time to reflect on the many wonders that electricity performs at the flick of a switch. It's also a good time to add to your staff of electrical servants . . . a good time to see the bargains at your appliance store. Modern living is so much easier, happier, healthier and relaxing.

It is appropriate that National Electrical Week should be observed at the time of Thomas Edison's birthday. His contributions to modern living are well known. NOW—during National Electrical Week—is the time to visit your appliance dealer for a demonstration of the new electric dishwashers, ranges, freezers—you'll be glad you did.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Prosser, of Longueuil, spent part of last week with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Prosser.

Crows in Evidence

"Speed — speed — speed" might well be the motto of the world today. — Even the lowly crow must have heard this and decided to come North early. On Sunday morning, January 31, two crows were seen flying over the town. In bygone days an early return of the crows indicated that Spring was just around the corner. It is hoped this still proves true.

Cancer Work Meeting

About eighty women of Brownsburg met in the Legion hall last Wednesday and Thursday afternoon to work for the Canadian Cancer Society. During that time about 675 bed-pads were made. Those in charge wish to thank all who helped to make this effort such a success. It is indeed a pleasure to find such a cooperative and public-spirited group, who are always willing to give of their time to help any worthy cause.

Youth Week

Youth Week is being observed in many churches from January 31 to February 7. A "Fireside Rally" will be held in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church following the regular service next Sunday evening, when young people from different denominations will gather for a time of fellowship; a suitable film will be shown.

Education must develop to the maximum, the individual potentialities of our children. The most difficult problem is to identify and use efficiently our intellectual resources. The fate of our society rests on the solution of that problem. An undiscovered talent, a wasted skill, a misapplied human ability, are all threats to our capacity to servive.

The argument over quantity or quality in education is no longer valid, because it relies on the assumption that we may choose one or the other, but not both. We have no choice today; we must do both, because education is our basic instrument in realizing democracy and freedom.

Our entire school system needs an unsparing re-examination of current practices, organization and aims.

What kind of a system do we need?

We need a system which provides for differential development of the students. That is, those who are intellectually capable are encouraged to proceed to the highest degree of learning, while those of lesser ability are not frustrated by unsuitable training but are guided into a field appropriate to the individual. This is the only way we can make the educational machine efficient enough to cope with future demands.

A university education should not be merely a step on the social ladder. It should be a privilege awarded to those intellectually capable of making use of it.

A program which allows for advancement based on ability rather than whimsical desire, is not an encroachment on democratic liberties. Rather, it should be thought of as a measure to insure our free way of life. Now is the time to benefit from mistakes of the past and apply our new way of thinking. Not only is it a question of providing the best for our children, but it is a matter of the very survival on this globe of free and democratic philosophy.

Brownsburg Legion Branch 71 officers

On Saturday, January 30, Comrade E. Struthers, Provincial Command President, installed the officers of both the Brownsburg Branch No. 71 of the Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary, some of whom are shown in the above photograph.

Seated in the same order are Mrs. Sid. Seary, Sgt.-at-Arms; Mrs. Jim Ross, treasurer; Mrs. Reg. Bell, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Bill Mann, president; Mrs. Grant Tomalty, 2nd vice-president and Mrs. George Gates, secretary.

Accused again turns down medical aid

Maurice Raymond, 44 pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking, entering and attempted theft at his arraignment in St. Jerome on Tuesday of last week, and refused once more to submit to an operation to remove a bullet from his head.

Judge Omer Coté remanded Raymond, also known as Leo Paul Tremblay, to this Friday, Feb. 12, without bail.

The charges stem from an attempted break-in at the Villa Howard Hotel in St. Adolphe de Howard.

The town's police chief, Hector Lariviere, told the court he had surprised two men attempting to break into the hotel. When they fled in a car, said the chief, he fired one shot through the car window. He said the car had veered off the road, then continued as the passengers switched places.

The court was told that Raymond had presented himself at St. Luke Hospital in Montreal, later that morning, and said he had been shot in the head by unknown assailants while he walked on St. Catherine street.

Since then Raymond has consistently refused any operation to remove the bullet, which is lodged in his skull behind his left ear.

In court at St. Jerome, Judge Coté asked him once again to submit to an operation. Raymond refused.

Carillon talks still continue

Ottawa (CP) — Details are still under discussion concerning a Federal-Quebec agreement to develop 840,000 horsepower at Carillon on the Ottawa River, Works Minister Walker said early last week.

In a Commons reply to Lionel Chevrier (L — Montreal Laurier), he said navigation will be as good or better on the river after the power dam is built. A lock will be built to circumnavigate the dam.

Council discusses routine business as new aldermen assume duties

The regular monthly meeting of the Lachute Town Council was held in the Council Chambers on Wednesday of last week, a full Council in attendance. Newly elected Aldermen Stanley Holt, Horace Lamarche, Réal Morrissette and Alphonse Thibodeau were sworn into office after which Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon presented the list of committees found elsewhere on this page. Ald. Stanley Church was named pro-mayor for the next three months, and the Mayor, or Ald. Gérard Lefebvre, Chairman of the Finance Committee, in the absence of the Mayor, were authorized to sign all documents in the name of the corporation, along with the secretary-treasurer.

Emmanuel Normand, proprietor on Ray Street, requested water and sewer facilities, asking that the work be done just as soon as the weather permitted. Marcel Lalonde, a representative of Northern Electric, was in attendance at the meeting, along with other employees of this company, and offered to answer any questions Council might have relative to the proposed changes in the lighting system in certain sections of Lachute. There being no questions from Council, Mayor McGibbon suggested the representatives contact Ald. Church and the members of his committee.

In accordance with a request from the Minister of Transport, Daylight Saving Time will become effective at midnight, April 24.

A refund of $27.20 was authorized to be paid to Geo. Y. Deacon. In a letter to Council, Mr. Deacon pointed out that the sum had been paid for the construction of a sidewalk on Grace Street, but according to a 1947 contract signed by himself and the Town, he was not liable for the charge.

Mrs. Yvette Raymond, secretary-treasurer, was requested to write the C.P.R. authorities informing them of the Lachute Council's acceptance of the proposed installation of warning lights at the Hamford Street crossing, on condition that the municipality of Ayersville pay its share.

Permission was granted the Bell Telephone Company to move several of their poles, under the supervision of the Roads Committee.

A copy of a letter from Notary J. O. Latour, M.P., addressed to the Postmaster General, and requesting door to door delivery of mail for riseidents of the Brownsburg Road and Providence Ave., was read and recorded in the minutes, along with a letter of thanks from Raymond Beaulieu, manager of the Caisse Populaire de Lachute, for the use of the Council Chambers for their recent annual meeting.

Following a request from the Parish of St. Jerusalem Council, permission was granted ARC Supply Ltd. to install a burglar alarm in the Lachute Police Station.

Council unanimously ratified the action of the Mayor in his hiring of policemen from the Phillips Investigation Bureau and thus averting a state of emergency.

A letter from a gas company in Hull asking for a franchise to install a natural gas main in Lachute was tabled for study.

In accordance with the recently adopted by-laws on construction and zoning, all necessary inspection was left to the Roads Committee. The town legal advisor, Fernand Legault, was instructed to prepare a form for building permit requests. The annual financial statement presented by the auditors was tabled for study.

A letter from Albert Malacket requesting a grant in favor of the Spitfires Hockey Club was tabled for study as was a damage claim of $1,000 presented by Murray Lister for alleged damage to his field in the lifting of the old water main near White's Bridge.

Accounts for the month totalling $19,712.88 were approved for payment, after which Council adjourned to a closed session in the Mayor's office.

Re-organization of Association for Retarded Children

A well attended meeting of the Lachute Association for Retarded Children was held on Thursday evening last in the Legion Memorial Hall.

The gathering was ably chaired by Mrs. A. F. Hanley, who has had considerable experience with handicapped children and who in her opening remarks gave assistance in proposing numerous ways in which interest could be maintained and further stimulated in order that the school in this connection could be kept beneficial and helpful. Up to the present splendid work has been accomplished, a lot by volunteer help, and it is hoped that further progress can be made.

A complete re-organization of the Association is taking place and a committee has been formed for the purpose of lining up a slate of new officers and various working committees, to be brought before the next general meeting on Monday, February 15, also to be held in the Legion Hall.

At the Thursday meeting, numerous suggestion were put forward which will no doubt be acted upon later. The resignation of Col. E. Emmett as president was accepted and a vote of thanks expressed for his splendid work.

The next meeting on February 15 will be an open one and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance of those interested in this worthy project.

Ayersville buys traffic timer

All members were in attendance at the regular session of the Ayersville Council, held last week under the chairmanship of Mayor Gaetan Paquette, at which time it was agreed to purchase a Traffic Timer similar to the one owned by the Lachute Police Department.

The Council engaged Miss Francine Dumas as assistant secretary at a salary of $40 per week and authorized an increase in salary for Police Chief Marcel Therrien, to make his weekly wage $65, with an additional $5 per week for car expenses. The increase was made retroactive to January 15 last.

Local Chamber of Commerce re-elects president

A general meeting of the members of the Lachute Chamber of Commerce was held in Lachute on Monday of last week at which time four new directors were elected to office. Chairman of the meeting was Gaetan Leclair, one of six directors remaining in office.

Newly elected directors are J. E. Leonard, André Lefebvre, a former president and secretary of the organization, Roger Lamarche and Yves Gratton. Immediately following the results, the Board of Directors met to choose their executive for the year, re-electing Adhemar Cuerrier as president. The vice-presidents elected are Gaetan Leclair and Antoine Malaket. Marcel Grondin remains as secretary and Gabriel Valois was elected as treasurer. Miville Trickey retains his seat on the executive as past-president.

Mr. Cuerrier presented a detailed report on 1959 activities and expressed optimism for the new year; a financial report was also presented, this to be studied and adopted at the next meeting.

Police Committee clarifies aspects of re-organisation under Chief Whiteway

Horace Lamarche, newly elected Alderman for Centre Ward and Chairman of the Police and Fire Committee, on Friday last extended an invitation to representatives of The Watchman and L'Argenteuil for an "Interview", in order that the general public might, through the columns of these two local papers be informed of events taking place in the re-organized Police Department. Mr. Lamarche and Chief A. J. Whiteway answered all questions put to them although some difficulty arose in several instances due to the fact that both men had been on the job for less than a week.

Following is a resumé of the interview, conducted on a question and answer basis:

Police Chief A. J. Whiteway reported Tuesday morning that Lachute's recently purchased Traffic timer, an electrical speed testing device, would be in operation starting Friday of this week. He would like all motorists to take note of the plans to 'enforce the law' and to govern themselves accordingly.

In opening, Chief Whiteway assured those present that he was entirely satisfied with the position to date. He stated "for good police protection and to be ready for any emergency, I feel the department should be comprised of at least a Chief, four permanent men, two part-time men and two office clerks. I feel this will be sufficient for 24 hour a day protection, with two men on patrol the majority of the time."

Chief Whiteway was then questioned on the $1,000 figure for fines that was in the budget as "anticipated revenue". He stated that he felt this estimate was extremely low, adding that while it was difficult to estimate a definite figure, the sum of $323 had been collected from 22 complaints laid over a period of ten days. "The revenue depends on the number and types of infractions committed", he added. In closing, Chief Whiteway stated that any interference or attempted interference would be handled by the Police Committee, under whom he works.

Police Committee Chairman Horace Lamarche was then questioned on the budget for the Police and Fire Department. Mr. Lamarche stated that he was studying last year's expenses so he would have some idea of just where he was, as far as the inherited budget was concerned.

He stated he was in favor of the separation of the Police and Fire Departments, mainly as it left the Police Department free to look after traffic during fires. He added "despite the internal separation, I am sure both departments will be able to count on the co-operation of the other."

"It is my intention that the Police Department will enforce the law and maintain order. I feel that the Police Department warrants the confidence of the population and I know it needs their support."

When questioned on the Police Department salaries, Mr. Lamarche stated that "at a meeting of the Police Committee held earlier in the week, it was decided that a $5 per week increase would be paid all constables."

Mr. Lamarche pointed out that as far as he was concerned, Chief Whiteway would have all the authority possible, adding that his committee would not interfere unless something of a serious nature came up. When asked if there would be any favoritism shown by the Department he headed, he replied "all people walk on the same ground, so why should there be? All infractions will be treated in the same manner and the Mayor or any Alderman, (and this includes members of the Police Committee), cannot change or cancel a ticket or any decision taken by the Police Department. In the event of a mistake or error, the case in question will be taken before the Council at large, who will decide what change, if any, is to be made."

Mr. Lamarche added that René Labrosse, hired as assistant chief several weeks ago, had informed Council that he had decided to decline the position.

Both Chief Whiteway and Mr. Lamarche requested that the public be informed that they intend to enforce all municipal by-laws. Chief Whiteway stated he had not as yet had sufficient time to read all the by-laws, but that he would attend to it immediately, paying special attention to the one concerning Dance Halls.

Transport Commission denies bid to end area rail service

The Transport Commission on Friday of last week denied an application of the Canadian National Railways to discontinue passenger service between St. Eustache, St. Andrews East and Hawkesbury, the continuation of the Montreal - St. Eustache run. The proposal also included the return trip from Hawkesbury to St. Eustache.

The Commission reported that it felt the loss of service would cause considerable hardship and it was felt a bus service would not fill the needs of the population.

The decision was seen as a win for the St. Andrews East Chamber of Commerce along with Hawkesbury's Chamber, both having opposed the scheduled end of service. Notary J. O. Latour, M.P. for Argenteuil assisted in the appeal.

Gen. Rockingham inspects Militia during training

The Lacute Militia and the affiliated Highland Cadet Company were honored to have Major-General J. M. Rockingham, the G.O.C., Quebec Command, on an official visit Thursday evening last.

No special program was arranged for the General's visit, and he expressed great pleasure at the opportunity given him to visit the Battery during a normal training parade. He said that before long he hoped to have the opportunity to make another visit.

When he arrived, he found the cadets receiving an introductory lecture on the Bren light machine gun, given by Lieut. J. P. Merryweather. Later he inspected the Militia, who were in the midst of writing an exam, supervised by Capt. Ralph Watson, the Battery Chaplain.

Concluding his inspection, General Rockingham said that the Battery would have an important role to play in the event of an emergency in Montreal, and he urged the N.C.O's and men to encourage their friends to associate themselves with the unit to provide a strong, effective mobile column.

Local McGill student awarded scholarship to study abroad

A Scott Taylor, 21 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Taylor, Main Street, Lachute, was announced as being one of the five Montreal district winners of this year's Athlone Fellowships, which enable Canadian engineering students to study in Great Britain. The results were anounced Thursday of last week at McGill University and Ecole Polytechnique.

A. Scott Taylor

A 1955 graduate of Lachute High School, Scott is in his final year of studies in his civil engineering course at McGill University. Three of the winners were from McGill, the other two being students at Ecole Polytechnique. He will do post-graduate work at Birmingham University in the field of structural design, followed by a year in industry in the structional field.

The Montreal universities are among 14 across Canada that will send 41 Canadians to the United Kingdom in September to spend two years in post-graduate work in industrial establishments or universities under the Athlone Fellowship scheme.

Brownsburg Scouts appeal for funds and leaders

The Boy Scouts Association, Brownsburg Group Committee, are asking all citizens to support Scouting by giving when a canvasser calls at their home during the period of February 13 to 20.

The Scout movement needs your support to pay the bill for boy-hood fun and adventure and also citizenship training and character development of boys. For many years Brownsburg has had an active Boy Scout Troop and Wolf Cub Pack because of the time, effort, interest and loyalty given freely by individuals for the youth in the community. To continue to operate successfully, the movement needs people who will become leaders; it needs an active Group Committee and it needs the financial support of everyone to carry out its program.

If you are not contacted by any canvasser and you want to support Scouting, please send your donation to A. W. Lapp, Chairman of the Campaign.

Argenteuil Choral Society solicits new members

For the past two years, singers from Lachute and Brownsburg have combined their efforts in the presentation of pre-Easter cantatas, which have been appreciated by enthusiastic audiences. This year, this combined choir, now operating as the Argenteuil Choral Society, is at work with Gaul's "Holy City", under the direction of Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, of Lachute.

At the Sunday afternoon practice, Mr. Hopkins emphasized the fact that the choir was not limited to Lachute and Brownsburg, but to all singers in surrounding communities such as St. Andrews, Grenville, Lakefield or any other convenient locality. The choir is strictly non-denominational, and a cordial invitation goes out to any singer in Argenteuil to participate with the choral group.

Due to the availability of the pipe organ, practices are held at the Lachute United Church each Thursday evening at 8.30 o'clock, and on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. "The Holy City" is a cantata that demands a large choir if the presentation is to be worthy of its fine composition. There are several two-choir parts, so it is hoped to have at least sixty voices participating.

Information may be had from Mrs. Chas. Stephens and Mrs. Cedrick Wheeler, of Brownsburg, or from Mrs. Angus Taylor, Mrs. E. Callicott (librarian), Lowell B. Hopkins, Bernard Hewitt (treasurer) or Jack Gorman, all of Lachute.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

News for the trapshooting fraternity around the district. The two gunners to be selected for the Olympic Games will be in competition this July 28 to August 3 at Hamilton, Ont. The Canadian Civilian Association of Marksmen have been given the job of getting all shooters together and making the selections. The trials are going to be held in conjunction with the Canadian Trapshooting Association event at Hamilton at this time. Any shooters in our area going to try their hands at this event? If so, good luck to them.

Going towards Kilmar last week, I was surprised at the number of rabbits I saw. It seemed at every turn, rabbits were all over the road. A couple of Partridge were also seen along with one Fox that sure wasn't in any hurry to get away. Right around town though, the number of Partridge seen seems to be on the increase if that is possible. They are probably at the top of their cycle right now.

A few more enquiries about snakes; I don't know too much about these creatures, but I sure am going to learn if possible. I believe there are some 125 types on the continent and of these there are only about 25 of them poisonous. Only three or four of them are natural to Canada though, and not this far north. One thing that most people think is, snakes are slimy. This is a great injustice to the snake. They are dry and very clean. Anyone having the opportunity of watching them would soon get over fear of snakes. To see them sunning themselves is sure a very nice way of watching them. When disturbed, they can move like lightning. The color of some of them is beyond belief, running from orange, yellow, slate gray and blue. Nature sure does let us know just how poor we are in the making of such things, and the knowledge we have on them is so small maybe it will never be known.

Another million dollars has been set aside by the U.S. Government for the control of the Lamphrey's. True, they have just about got the menace beaten for the time being, but it could break out again. To me though, the big thing to control is pollution and its effects on not only the water-living creatures but the human element too. One thing that doesn't seem to be too well known is that the Lamprey will latch onto humans just as readily as fish. I know during the Wrigley Marathon Swims at Toronto back in the 1930's, the swimmers used to have a lot of trouble with them. Believe me, it is not a pleasant feeling to find there is one of them hanging on to you.

Last year an article was written on the cross-breeding of different species of trout, such as Rainbows, Browns, etc., that were crossed with other species to bring out the Benbow, Splake and Brownbow, but not too much luck was had with this experiment. Now the Japanese have crossed eggs from a Pacific salmon with one of their fresh water trout and have had some fair success with it. Of 3,000 eggs fertilized, over 1500 hatched; now they are thinking of mass production of this fish and in this way helping out their food problem. Good luck to them!

Another point that most people are curious about is how far do fish travel? Just read a piece about a rainbow trout that was planted last April in a lake bordering on Pennsylvania. It was just caught in a gill net in the Bay of Quinte, near Picton, Ontario. During this time it had travelled down the Niagara river, over the Falls and finally ended up in the net. Over 200 miles of travel to end up like this. Makes you wonder, doesn't it?

Also another report of wolves in and around Buckingham. So many of them that hunts are being organized. From planes spotting them, packs of 25 have been seen. Let's hope they don't get chased out and into our district. It's a long way but these animals sure can cover a lot of ground when necessary. There is also another outbreak of Rabies farther north, so I imagine we will be getting it sooner or later.

From some of the reports around Lachute we are getting more than our share of feathered friends. There certainly seems to be a slew of Grossbeaks around. The Chicks as usual are giving everyone something to look at and as for the Jays, they are still as noisy and bold as ever. Our squirrel, "Red", is very cagy now as regards them. All he has to do is see one and away he goes. I guess a lesson was learned last time he tangled with them and I'm wondering just how long this will last. We still have the winter crows around too. I hadn't seen them for some time but with this wonderful weather they were over the river the other day.

More of the sporting goods being sold for the coming Spring — All kinds of new type reels, right from the casting to the spinning. A lot of them are just about useless as fishing reels, but they can be used as winches for moving stoves, etc. Kidding aside, there are so many gadgets on some of them that it would be a must to have an engineer's certificate to own one. The good reels have not been changed in any serious mechanical way though, and we can be thankful for that. A number of new lines for spinning have also been worked on, and are now up for sale. One I am interested in is the braided spinning line. At the first opportunity, I will try it out. (Any open water around the river?)

United Church Bowling League

Two-thirds of the regular schedule is now complete for the United Church Bowling League. The All Stars are still in the lead, but after a second consecutive defeat, are being threatened by several teams for the league championship. Teams at the bottom of the standing are now beginning to win games, so the last part of the schedule should be quite interesting.

Next week the teams have a purely social evening and the annual round-robin contest. It is important that all teams be at the church hall before their first game, so that the busy schedule can be kept on time. The first games played are as follows:

7.00 p.m. —

St. David's vs. Thistles
St. George's vs. All Stars
Beavers vs. St. Andrews

7.20 p.m. —

East Settlement vs. St. Pat's
Bluebirds vs. Redwings
Maple Leafs vs. Teenagers

Thurso at Brownsburg

(Tuesday, February 2)

A sparce crowd of 180 fans saw the Bombers come out of their losing slump to score a 7-2 victory over the Thurso Lumber Kings in a thrilling game at Brownsburg. The Lumber Kings, minus the services of Paquin, their first star defenceman, and with only 11 players dressed; were not as well organized as usual, and could not seem to get underway.

Legault was the first to hit the score sheet when he beat the Thurso goaler with a hard drive from the blue line after taking a pass from Ouellette and Racine. Within two minutes, Pagé tied the score with Legault in the penalty box, but Keatley took a pass from Charlebois and Robitaille at 18:54 to score and give the Bombers a 2-1 lead. High-scoring J. P. Meloche, of Thurso, got the only goal of the second stanza, making the score 2-2. The last period belonged to the Bombers with Racine picking up three goals and Keatley and Menard one each. Keatley's goal was scored on a breakway which was nicely set up by Red Charlebois.

Early in the first period, Roy Cruise was hit in the face by Biron's slap shot and the gash over his left eye required four stitches. Mel Stewart played his best game of the season and was one of the outstanding players on the ice. Another standout for the Bombers was Gary Keatley, whose fast skating and accurate shooting were a treat. The poorest showing was made by the "Kid-Line" as they could get nowhere against the experienced Thurso squad. Buddy Racine turned in another fine game while his counterpart at the other end of the rink appeared shaky and made many lucky saves.

Brownsburg at Thurso

(Friday, February 5))

The Bombers continued their losing streak in Thurso where they dropped their game to the Lumber Kings by a score of 6-1.

The Thurso squad took the lead in the first period on goals by Leduc, Meloche and Chenier. In the second period each team tallied with Stewart getting the Bombers' goal, assisted by Pilon and Charlebois. Richer and Chenier scored in the final stanza to give Thurso the 6-1 victory.

The Bombers had 12 players dressed for the game and were without the services of Jacques Racine, the leading scorer.

Lachute at Brownsburg

(Sunday, February 7)

The largest crowd of the season (almost 300) saw one of the fastest games of the year in the 'Burg with the Bombers edging out the Spitfires 3-2.

Lachute opened the scoring in the first period as Ray Gionet took a pass from Lalande and St. André to beat Buddy Racine while Lachute was short-handed. Racine tied the score early in the second period, assisted by Ouellette and Robitaille. At 12:57, Dumais again put Lachute ahead. Pilon made it 2-2 with Desjardins in the penalty box and early in the third period Racine took a pass from Robitaille to set up Ouellette who beat Church with a nice shot.

The game was extremely fast and hard-hitting and only six penalties were called. Several Lachute players were injured during the game; Provost could not make the turn behind the net and fell heavily into the boards; Ray Gionet was hit at centre ice and went off with a twisted leg; Dumais hit his head in front of the net and Belley dislocated his shoulder as he tried to board Bill Robitaille.

The entire Bomber squad appeared in top form for the game and provided one of the most pleasing games of the season. The return game next Sunday is expected to draw an even larger gate as word of the game spreads.

The schedule for the following week is as follows:

Thursday February 11 —
Hawkesbury at Brownsburg
Lachute at Thurso

Sunday, February 14 —
Thurso at Hawkesbury
Brownsburg at Lachute

Tuesday, February 16 —
Hawkesbury at Lachute

Thursday, February 18 —
Lachute at Hawkesbury
Thurso at Brownsburg

Friday, February 19 —
Brownsburg at Thurso

The games are becoming more keenly fought with the schedule fast drawing to a close, and extremely good hockey is the result.

Why not bundle up the family and take them out to see some good local hockey? Don't forget that Sunday games start at 2.30 p.m. and all others at 8.30 p.m.

Boy Scout News

By Barry Downing

There is keen competition for inspection points between the Lion and Panther patrols. These two patrols have had an even number of points for some time,, but the Panthers succeeded in gaining more points last meeting. The Lions are preparing themselves for next week when they hope to make up for lost points.

This is "Boy Scout Week". As previously advised, all scouts are to wear their uniforms in public at all times this week.

The Lachute Scouts are preparing for the next hockey game to be played against Brownsburg. All scouts who played at the last game should arrange to be at Brownsburg arena at 8.30 a.m. this coming Saturday.

On February 27, the Patrol Leaders and Seconds will take a hike on skis and snowshoes leaving from Lakefield. It is possible that this will be an occasion to pass some tests. After the hike, a lecture on "Forest Survival" will be given by Mr. Lawrence Belleau. All invited participants are looking forward to this outing.

Scout James Bydal is working hard to pass 2nd class tests. He has recently succeeded in passing Highway Safety rules, Compass, Health rules and Axe and Knife safety.

Scout Gerry Bignell has passed Signalling and First Aid tests.

Scout Bert Elliott passed Signalling and Compass tests.

Scouts Terry Swail, Lou Marion and Robt. Gain respectively passed Signalling, Compass and Lashing.

The next meeting is an important one as special instructions are to be given each scout.

Be sure to attend this meeting.

Combine methods in weed control

Saskatoon (CP) — T. V. Beck, weed control specialist for the Saskatchewan agriculture department, says a combination of chemical and cultural methods is the newest trend in weed control.

Before 1945, Mr. Beck told the Saskatchewan Branch of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association recently, cultivation was almost exclusively used in weed control. In the next 10 years, the accent was on chemicals.

Today however, the sudden enthusiasm for chemical controls is subsiding and there is a trend toward a chemical-cultural balance, he said.

Preliminary tests at Regina have shown, he said, that in the case of Canada thistle, though fall tillage and chemicals were both effective, a combination of the two was more effective still.

Brownsburg athlete suffers injury playing for U. S. college team

Potsdam, N.Y. — The recent injury to Mel Tomalty, first line center, of the Clarkson Tech hockey team, may be a serious blow to the team for the remainder of the season and has already shown its effects in the games he has missed. However, its effects on Mel himself are also a matter for serious consideration.

Tomalty, a Clarkson junior from Brownsburg, was hailed at the beginning of the season as one of the top collegiate skaters and centers in the East, and despite his injury, there is little doubt that this is true. The affable Golden Knight flash had racked up some 11 goals in nine games before the leg injury on the Boston trip, and was well on his way to the best season of his career as a skater.

People in-the-know at the Clarkson arena say that it is more than

Mel Tomalty

Mel's scoring that makes him the attraction he is to Potsdam fans. It is skillful puck-handling and skating which leaves an electrifying thrill in the air after he has skated through the opposing defense to score. He is certainly one of the most colorful skaters in college hockey today.

Now the big question is what effect will the injury have on the remainder of this, his last season of collegiate hockey. Well, if his performance in the St. Lawrence contest recently was any indication — none. Despite the fact that he could hardly walk and was extremely handicapped on skates, the Clarkson center scored the first of three exciting goals in that first period when Clarkson fans saw 'victory' at the doorstep, but it never quite materialized.

The fact remains, however, that not even the greatest athlete can perform at his best unless his physical condition is tops and his injuries are healed. So it's off to bed for Mel Tomalty for one week! That's the word from Pinky Ryan, Clarkson trainer, who says that Tomalty's injury involves a cartilege in his knee which requires at least a week of staying off the leg in which to heal. Then with a solid week of stiff practice sessions, it is expected the Clarkson ace would be ready for action in the important R.P.I. contest early in February.

The son of Mrs. Bernice Tomalty, of Brownsburg, Mel is one of those unusual people who is tops in all he endeavors. Not only is the 5' 11" 170 lb. junior an excellent hockey player, but he is a top student, possessing a straight A average in all his subjects. Actually, this is Mel's fourth year at Clarkson, but he switched majors this year from electrical engineering to industrial distribution, therefore, requiring two more years of schooling. In any case, he still gets almost perfect marks in all his subjects.

A 1955 graduate of Brownsburg High School, Tomalty was on the hockey, basketball, and softball teams and was one of the top students scholastically in his class. He earned two letters in each of the sports in which he participated. However, he has no doubt that his favorite sport is hockey.

As early as last year, Coach Len Ceglarski tabbed Tomalty as "the work horse of the squad". "Mel possesses a great deal of hockey 'know-how' and is an excellent playmaker. He has a good shot and can pick his corner's well," Ceglarski declares.

As a sophomore, Tomalty was third high scorer on the team with 11 goals and 19 assists for 30 points, and last season he led the team in scoring with 24 goals and 24 assists for 48 points. With just six games remaining, Mel will have to double his figure now to tie the last year's mark. However, even if he doesn't equal or surpass that, he will still be known as one of Clarkson's greatest for his ability and determination, and he is still available for All-East honors this spring.

District cub teams hold hockey games

Despite the snow storm Saturday morning, over 100 cubs attended a round-robin Hockey event at the Brownsburg arena. Some boys, big and small, skated with expert proficiency. Others lacked some of the skills but played with abundant enthusiasm. Nevertheless, the puck was delivered into the net with a professional air.

Mr. Jess Humphries, the District Cub Master, organized the event, in which the Brownsburg Senior Team appeared to have the edge with 10 goals in their 2 matches. The games resulted as follows:

Lachute Jr. 1	Grenville Jr. 2
Brownsb'g Sr. 6	Lachute Sr. 0
Lachute Sr. 1	Grenville Sr. 4
Brownsb'g Jr. 1	Lachute Jr. 0
Brownsb'g Sr. 4	Grenville Sr. 0
Brownsb'g Jr. 0	Grenville Jr. 0

After the games, the boys sat down to a meal in the Legion Hall, and judging by the applause that greeted the reading of the score sheet, win or lose, they all had a good time.

Police Department is re-organized

REPRESENTATIVES OF The Watchman and L'Argenteuil met with the new Police Committee Chairman, Alderman Horace Lamarche, and Police Chief A. J. Whiteway on Friday of last week, and left the interview with the impression that the Police and Fire Department heads will be given a free hand to operate as they see fit.

The interview, reported on Page One of this issue, indicates that all persons will be treated in the same manner and that no member of the Police Committee, the Mayor, or any member of Council will be able to fix or cancel a ticket, or in any other manner, interfere with the department. In the event of any serious complaint, the matter is to be taken before a regular session of Council and discussed there.

We feel this is a wise and sound decision and we are sure the general population will feel the same way about the matter. The Police Department is to be given a free hand and we feel sure there will be close co-operation between the Department and the Committee concerned. With such co-operation continuing as exists now, and by Council having a monthly check on all Police Department activities, we can be assured the present Chief and any men he engages will be here for some time.

Thus, Lachute should no longer be a "training school" for neighboring municipalities looking for a Chief of Police. The set-up looks good, and there is no reason why it cannot remain that way.

Safe driving starts early

AS INCREASED vehicle congestion on our highways results in an alarming number of fatalities (we kill about nine people per day, every day in Canada) it becomes apparent that driving a car under today's traffic conditions requires a high degree of skill and an acute awareness of the rules of the road.

It seems logical that the earlier in life one absorbs and adopts good driving habits, the better the chance of survival among the hazards created by modern motoring.

Thus, it was surprising to hear during a safety education panel discussion, held at the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association, there is considerable opposition among Canadian school administrators to the inclusion of driver-education courses in the curriculum of secondary schools.

Apparently, the theory held by these educators is that study courses are now already overcrowded, and that to add safe-driving courses would mean dropping some more important facet of education from the curriculum.

In this we cannot agree, and can only concur with the view expressed by W. Arch Bryce, Executive Director of the Canadian Highway Safety Conference. Mr. Bryce said, during the panel discussion, that he could not see that any irreparable damage could be done to over-all effect of a student's education by the inclusion of safe-driving courses.

It is hard to believe that scholastic standings would be greatly affected, or that our schools would turn out inferior graduates, if a student were to sacrifice a half hour or so a week from dramatic classes, music appreciation periods, sports, or a number of other commendable but fringe educational benefits in order to learn how to master the art of careful and courteous driving.

More importantly, the few minutes spent each week might be the means of saving the student's life when he takes his place among Canada's motoring public, reports the Heavy Construction News.

No heroes here?

WHETHER IT IS because Canada has a relatively short history, and that, mainly peaceful, or because of the country's colonial heritage, there is a dearth of Canadian heroes. The Americans celebrate the birthdays of Lincoln and Washington. How many Canadian could give the dates of Macdonald's or Laurier's birthdays without recourse to a book of reference?

There are plenty of anecdotes about Canadian historical figures, but it is difficult to think of one that would be generally known. Yet the apocryphal legend of George Washington and the cherry tree, with the moral that it is better to tell the truth than to be the winner on a television quiz program, is part of Canadian folklore as much as it is of American.

There does not seem to be much reason for one birthday still recognized here, although it is now a movable feast, namely that of Queen Victoria. One would not advocate abolishing the celebration, for May is a good time for a holiday. But Queen Victoria really had very little interest in Canada. There would be more logic in remembering the birthday of King Charles II, whose grant of the Hudson Bay Company' charter to his cousin, Prince Rupert, had a direct bearing on Canadian history. King Henry VII, who authorized the voyages of John and Sebastian Cabot, is another British ruler who deserves Canadian remembrance as much as Queen Victoria. King Charles I might merit some passing mention for his money-raising manoeuvre of creating baronets of Nova Scotia.

There have been Canadians, some still living, who would be recognized as great men in any country. If they have been taken for granted in their own, the fault is not theirs, but arises from a temperamental disinclination of their countrymen for hero-worship.

Wilderness asset

RT. HON. VINCENT MASSEY, when he was governor-general, once dramatized the story of Canada's growth and development in a single telling phrase: "We have exploded the wilderness."

He was referring — without complacency but perhaps with a certain amount of pride — to the taming of a hostile environment and the achievement of a tolerable standard of living. With Canada's meagre population, it had not been an easy thing.

Recently, Canadians have had some poignant reminders that although the wilderness may have been penetrated — or exploded, if you will — it is still very much with us. But these reminders are not in the least distressing.

For what would Canada be without its wilderness areas — mountains, canyons, forests, mighty rivers and swift streams? Canada without a wilderness? Perish the thought.

One reminder of its continued presence was a news item from nearby Buckingham, that hunters in that Ottawa Valley district were planning a wolf hunt. The packs had become so nurmerous northwest of Buckingham that they were a threat to livestock and deer.

The other was a declaration by members of the Territorial Council, meeting in Ottawa, that big game and fur-bearing animals are coming back, and have been for some time, in the Northwest Territories.

The council heard of one large area — and apparently there are others — where mink run around with impunity because there is nobody to catch them. The point is that if they are not trapped, over-population will develop and they will die off anyway.

The administration received the council's unanimous support for proposals to make more hunting-trapping licences available.

One councillor, J. W. Goodall, of Fort Simpson, told of a game warden travelling for 100 miles in one direction from there and not sighting so much as a snare, let alone a human habitation.

Well, the fur trade is a valuable asset to Canada, and few people would complain about pushing back the frontier. But it's comforting to think there are some places yet unspoiled.

Obesity and the sense of well-being

DR. ROSAIRE Robillard of Sacred Heart Hospital and the University of Montreal, claimed a fat automobile driver was more likely to be involved in a traffic accident than a slim driver. He told a Montreal audience that a fat person's accident rate was directly proportional to his degree of overweight.

The effect of obesity on traffic accidents was often overlooked, said Dr. Robillard. He said overweight people were involved in traffic accidents at a rate of 85 per 1,000 compared with 60 per thousand for people of normal weight. He listed among the factors involved: lack of bodily agility, and euphoria (exaggerated sense of well-being).

CANADA'S INDIANS

On the way to my country cottage I travel through an Indian reservation. One week-end, crossing a wooden bridge in the Indian village, I saw two or three fishermen. A young Indian lad watched them. I "stopped the car beside him and said, "How's the fishing?"

He looked shy.

"Are there any fish in there?" The young boy nodded, but never a word. I wondered if a cat had his tongue or, if he understood English very well.

It happened that I had some crackerjack in the back of the car. So I said quietly, "Would you like a box of crackerjack?"

The little Indian boy was off that bridge rail in a flash. "Sure would, Mister," he said. And then, "Gee . . . thanks. Thanks a lot."

Crackerjack, I suppose, is part of a universal language. Little Indian boys, like my own youngsters, get very polite when crackerjack is handed out even by nosey fellows trying to find good fishing spots.

That evening, I was in the nearby town of Beausejour. It was Saturday night, and there were quite a few people in the local beer parlor. Near closing time, I was waiting outside for a friend whom I suspected was in the parlor.

An Indian youth, about 22, was also waiting for someone. We stood for quite a time on the curb, listening to the high babble of voices from within. "Waiting for someone?" I asked.

He nodded. Indians don't blab much.

I passed him a cigarette, but he shook his head.

I think he appreciated the gesture, however, for he said, "I'm waiting for my boss. I work for his fishing fleet."

"Is he Indian?"

"No, but — we can go in there now, you know. They fixed up the law."

I could tell he was eager to let me know he wasn't kept out by law. Manitoba liquor laws have been liberalized for the Indian as well as the white man, and it is a point of honor with most Indians to behave as well as or better than others.

"Do you drink as much . . . now that the law lets you?" I asked.

He shook his head. He even smiled, slowly, so that his white teeth gleamed against his dark skin. "Ain't had one drink since they fixed the law," he said. "You watch when them people come out. There won't be many Indians. . ."

I thought of the young lad and the crackerjack. Responses of all races are very similar. I hope the response of Canadian Indians to the challenge of freedom under the law and the right to vote will win them the respect and admiratioon they deserve.

A new federal ministry

By C. J. Harris

The creation of the first new federal government department in some years, a Department of Forests, has been forecast in the Speech from the Throne. The 21st department, it will deal with matters relating to forests previously handled by the Resources and Agriculture departments.

While ownership of virtually all of the productive forested area in Canada is still vested in the Crown in the right of the provincial governments, the federal government has been conducting forest research since 1917—in recent years through a head office in Ottawa and district offices in Calgary, Winnipeg, Valcartier, Fredericton and St. John's. It is reported that functions of the new department will be to co-operate with provincial governments and industry in research and coordination of forest utilization and conservation efforts. Another reported aim will be to offer information on where forest products industries could locate, and to direct them to market.

It does not seem an unsound move to create a separate federal department to aid in further development of forest resources, and it suggests the thought that a new department might reasonably be created to aid the development of another of our industries—the one that has in recent years become the largest of all in Canada, manufacturing. Manufacturing accounts for 65 per cent of Canada's net value of production. All the primary industries combined—agriculture, forestry, fishing, trapping, mining and electric power — account for only half of this, 28 per cent. Construction produces the remaining 17 per cent.

In terms of employment, manufacturing provides jobs for one out of four Canadians—as many as find work in construction, mining, fishing, forestry and farming combined. Manufacturing directly supports nearly a third of the population; indirectly it contributes to the employment of most other Canadians through purchases by manufacturing companies, their employees and dependents, of raw materials, foods, form products and transportation and other services.

With the labor force increasing by more than 100,000 persons a year, more and more jobs will have to be found in manufacturing. Another need is expansion of manufacturing in parts of Canada other than Ontario and Quebec, where it is now mainly concentrated. There are export and import problems facing Canadian manufacturers, problems intimately related to federal government trade policies and agreements. A federal department to aid the further growth of what has become our principal industry seems not at all unreasonable.

DEALING WITH DEPRESSION

The effects of science in our lives may take many forms: to one family, a letter represented a medical miracle.

For 14 years, one of the family had lived in a world of her own, unreached by the best efforts of psychiatrists. Recently, following treatment with a new drug, Niamid, for the first time she asked about her family, wanted to see them, and wrote them a letter.

Her case was only one of the hopeful histories reported at the Eastern Psychiatric Research Association meeting in New York, where 350 physicians discussed the effects of the new drug on people suffering from a variety of depressed mental states.

Listless patients become active, they reported. Some took a renewed interest in life around them; others made a gratifying effort to join in social activities. A brightening mood and a renewal of energy seemed to be characteristic of the drug's effect.

One theory to account for depression was suggested by Dr. Theodore R. Noble, president of the EPRA. Victims of depression may be suffering a shortage of a body chemical called serotonin, he said. When, from everyday usage or repeated emotional shocks the controlling mechanism of this recently discovered hormone "just plain wears out," depression may result.

Drugs such as Niamid, or psychotherapy, or both may help restore the regulating mechanism and bring serotonin levels back to normal.

A lawyer friend of mine says that motor vehicle testing stations are just an expensive nuisance.

Many regions are lucky enough to be without testing stations. Don't let anyone foist a station on you unawares, my friend warns.

He points out that only about four per cent of vehicles involved in accidents (according to statistics) had anything wrong with them.

Ninety-six per cent of cars involved in accidents were in apparently good mechanical condition.

There is no proof that the mechanical defects — such as they were — actually caused the accidents. Many of thise accidents undoubtedly were caused by something else.

Furthermore, accident records show that some of the mechanical faults were not of a kind that could have been prevented by vehicle inspection. A big percentage of "faulty" vehicles had such defects as "No chains . . . slippery road," or "puncture or blow-outs".

Probably the accidents in which preventable mechanical failure played a part were some 2 per cent of all accidents.

Compulsory mechanical tests twice a year cost hundreds of thousands of dollars in fees, garage bills and lost working time for car owners. Why spend all that money in the hope of preventing such a tiny number of accidents?

The only people who benefit by vehicle testing stations are garagemen, who have a surge of new business.

It might be argued that if only one life were saved, the money would be well spent. But has proof been offered that vehicle testing has saved even one life?

More lives might be saved if the government made it compulsory for every man, woman and child to report to a human testing station once a year, to be examined for criminal and and psychotic tendencies.

Dangerous people discovered by these tests would have a "Rejected" sticker pasted on them, and would be locked up.

Which Communities were named for Newspapers?

L'Avenir, Que., and Mirror, Alta. — The village of Mirror, a divisional point on the CPR line between Edmonton and Calgary, was named after the London Daily Mirror, a newspaper that had expressed interest in the development of the area and had given it publicity, resulting in considerable immigration from England. The village was incorporated in the year 1912. L'Avenir, a village in the Eastern Townships a few miles southeast of Drummondville, was named in honor of the famous newspaper established in 1848 by Jean Baptiste Eric Dorion. The paper was the organ of the Parti Rouge, the radical party in Lower Canada at that time. Sir Wilfrid Laurier lived in L'Avenir before he opened a law office in Arthabaska.

When did Queen Victoria watch a Lacrosse Game?

In 1876 the first Canadian lacrosse team to appear in Britain toured the British Isles and played before the Queen at Windsor. Touring with this team was William George Beers, Montreal dentist and sportsman, who was instrumental in framing the first laws of the modern game of lacrosse in 1867 and who founded Canada's first dental journal, the Canada Journal of Dental Science, in 1868. Beers toured the British Isles again in 1883 with a lacrosse team that included 13 Caughnawaga Indians. He was born in Montreal in 1843 and died there in 1900.

What is a Grackle?

It is a long-tailed, blackish bird with metallic reflections, especially on the head and neck, and straw-colored eyes, belonging to the family Icteridae. It nests commonly in southern Canada east of the Rocky Mountains. It is also widely known as the crow blackbird.

Lachute W.I. holds regular meeting

The monthly meeting of the Lachute Branch, Women's Institute, was held in the Legion Hall, with Mrs. A. Gordon presiding.

A report on National Health week was given by Mrs. E. Rogers.

The sum of five dollars was voted towards the High School publication, "Lampada". Arrangements are being made to hold a Dessert Bridge party at the Legion Hall on Thursday, February 18. Please note the Library will be closed on that date.

Mrs. Linton Armstrong introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Victor Barré, Q.C., who spoke on laws concerning the rights of women. This address proved to be most interesting and Mrs. G. Leggett moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Barré.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting.

Radio broadcast from local church

The Sunday evening service presented each week over C.J.A.D. at 10.30 o'clock this week originates from the Church of Saint Francis, St. Sauveur, conducted by the Rector, the Rev. H. G. Baugh.

Former gangster to speak locally this Friday

George Mensik, a Chicago gangster who turned his back on the underworld to become an evangelist will speak this Friday evening at eight o'clock at the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

One time employed by big-time

gangster Danny Stanton, Mensik's crime record had started when he was nine, and until he was 18 he had been in and out of reform schools. During the prohibition days he drove a truck for a notorious bootlegger.

Later burglaries became routine, and in between, he and his gang stole cars to break the monotony. Smart lawyers got them off when police picked them up. And there were incidents of gun play with rival underworld characters, all part of his everyday life until he left the underworld 20 years ago after a Chicago preacher counseled with him and helped him find a new life through Jesus Christ. Since then the ex-hood has told his story in hundreds of church gatherings, and has preached in prisons and rescue missions.

Skiers service at St. Sauveur Church

An estimated 300 visiting skiers jammed the Church of St. Francis of the Birds, St. Sauveur, recently, to hear Dr. Alan Ross, Montreal Children's Hospital, speak on the roles of church and science.

"The present concept of science and religion is not antagonistic, it is not incompatible — they work together," he said. Dr. G. A. Holland, Montreal General Hospital, also participated in the service, which marked Medical Sunday.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. David Girling were pleasantly surprised by a group of friends and neighbors who gathered at their home on Saturday evening, February 6, in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

The "bride and groom" were presented with a gift box wrapped in Black velvet and silver, containing a sum of money befitting the occasion.

Miss Eileen O'Brien presented the "bride" with a large bouquet of white snapdragons and red tulips. Later refreshments were served to complete an enjoyable evening.

Violinist Roman Totenberg acclaimed at Community Concerts presentation

In past years, the Lachute Community Concert Association has presented several violinists to its members, but none have been more warmly acclaimed than Roman Totenberg, who last Wednesday was at Lachute High School. The large audience was deeply stirred from the first rendition on the program, Bach's "Air on the G. String", to the last of several encores that were generously given by Mr. Totenberg.

The choice of program to be presented to the average audience is important to the contributors of Community Concert Association, and last Friday's selection was one of tremendous audience appeal; though there were a few classical compositions of the great music masters, many of the selections played had a familiarity that pleased the listeners.

The aforementioned "Air on the G. String" was a wonderful start, for the immediate response warmed the performer to his appreciative audience. Two presentations on the first part of the program were executed as only a true artist can render. A Sonata by Beethoven, which was given in the form of a duet with a gifted piano accompanist in the person of Raymond Hanson, was one of continual beauty. The music by Beethoven, was interpreted with a complete synchronization by both violinist and pianist, and both artists were equally applauded for their fine rendition.

The second piece was Max Bruch's Concerto in G Minor, a composition that requires all the skills and dexterities of a master performer; this grand piece of music of the romantic period, though not too well known to the ordinary listener, completely won the interest of those present.

After the intermission, Mr. Totenberg made one change on the arranged program, by playing Paganini's "Caprice" Opus 54, instead of the "Witches Dance" by the same composer. This number was for violin solo and the full tone of the beautiful Stradivarius was a tremendous thrill to Mr. Totenberg's hearers.

The second half of the program was more than pleasing. The music of Chopin, of Fritz Kreisler and Debussy, emphasized the wisdom of the selections played. The Nocturne in E flat Major, Caprice Viennois and La Fille aux cheveux de lin (The Maiden with the Flaxen Hair) all had that familiar musical appeal that won more acclaim from the audience.

Totenberg's last rendition, Zapateado by Sarasate, the great Spanish composer, gave a wonderful interpretation of the arranagement by Heifetz. This number was followed by several encores, which included The Guitar by Mussorgsky, and the always acceptable Traumerei by Schumann.

Gideon speaker at Brownsburg

George Snudden, of Moncton, N.B., representing Gideon International, was the guest speaker at the Brownsburg Pentecostal Assembly on Sunday evening of last week.

Mr. Snudden gave a brief history of the Gideon organization and told how it had developed to include thousands of men from all denominations. He also stated that some 750 copies of the New Testament were handed out last year in the Laurentian area schools.

In his message, Mr. Snudden spoke on the text "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His son to be a propitiation for our sins". From this text he explained propitiation as being a sacrifice or atonement for our sins stating that many had found this truth through the Gideon Bible placed in familiar places.

There was a special offering taken and donated to this worthwhile work.

Mr. Snudden also addressed the congregations of the Regular Baptist Church and the Brownsburg Presbyterian Church while in this locality.

W.I. Activities

The Brownsburg W.I. meeting which was held last Thursday evening was largely attended. The Toastmaster's Club presented a "demonstration" meeting on parlimentary procedure which proved very informative. Mrs. George McGibbon was also present and gave a report on the recent Provincial Board meeting.

The course on Party Ideas, sponsored by the W.I. proved very interesting to many women of the community. Miss Janet McOuat, the W.I. demonstrator, was presented with a pair of gloves and a scarf as a token of appreciation for giving such helpful ideas and recipes.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Tomalty were in Montreal last week.

Mrs. M. Reid spent part of last week with relatives in Montreal and Beaconsfield.

Mrs. Matt Carruthers spent part of last week in Montreal visiting her husband who is a patient in the General Hospital. His friends wish him an early recovery.

Morin Heights

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hulley and daughters, Linda, Debbie and Brenda, of Hudson, spent a long week-end here visiting Mrs. Hulley's mother, Mrs. E. H. Graves, and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. St. Jacques.

Sympathy of this community is extended to the family of the late Mrs. Jack Balharrie, of Ottawa, who died recently. The Balharrie family have been well-known in this district for some sixty years.

Mr. and Mrs. Clive Riddell and children, Elaine and Kevin, of Cartierville, spent the week-end here as guests of the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Seale, of Lake Echo.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. David Girling on the occasion of their 25th anniversary.

Sign of Spring

It was nice to hear of crows in Brownsburg, but nicer still to see the robins in Cushing West. They seem to have made an early return from the south — or maybe — we're far enough south to have them all winter. These particular robins have been seen at the farm of Mr. C. F. Watson.

Arundel

The Rev. and Mrs. Bussell wish to thank all children from the school, and their parents, who so kindly sent get-well cards to their daughter, Debbie, who is confined to hospital in Montreal.

A joint service of the Grace Anglican and United Churches was held Sunday in the United Church. The guest preacher was the Rev. Dr. Johnson, Principal of the United Theological College. The weather was not of the best, but a good attendance was rewarded by an inspiring address. The choir rendered the anthem "Send out Thy light" (Gounod).

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cooke have returned home after motoring to Montreal during the week to visit with friends.

Mrs. Homer Cooke, who is still confined to hospital, is progressing favorably. We all send our best wishes for a soon return home.

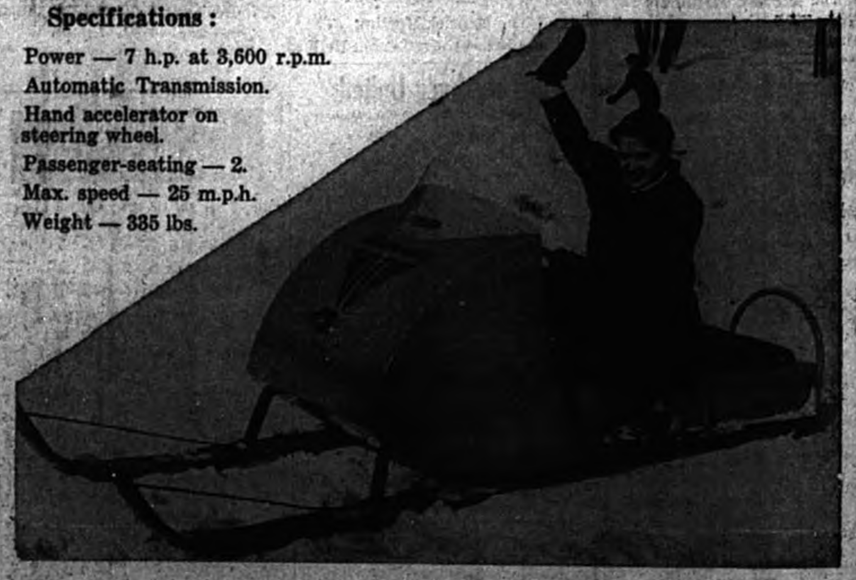

It is with sincere regret we heard of the mishap to our popular Dickie Moore, in Saturday's game. Last reports today are that he is still confined to hospital with a concussion, but we trust he will soon be well. We all send him our warmest wishes for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. George Champagne motored to Montreal this week to spend the week with her daughter, Shirley.

St. Valentine's Day

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Boys and girls of all ages love February 14th! If there are younger children in the family perhaps they could plan with mother for a family gathering to celebrate it and help her to prepare it.

Making invitations and place cards for the table is great fun. White and red cardboard and red-lead pencils or crayons, blunt pointed scissors and paste are needed. Pretty colored pictures can be found in old magazines and the week-end picture section of daily newspapers, and old seed catalogues are useful with their gay pictures of flowers. If you ask the merchant from whom you buy paint or wallpaper, if he could give you an out-of-date sample book, he will likely oblige. This is a wonderful play material book for Valentines and other handicraft.

A red heart pasted on a slightly larger white heart gives a Valentine a smart border. A paper lace edging made from a doily for a plate is even more ornate. This can be pasted on the back, with small pleats, making a frilly edge, or on a large Valentine; a stapler could be used to fasten the paper lace edging.

"Roses are red, violets are blue,
Honey is sweet — and so are you!"

How many home-made valentines have shown these words. The little boy or girl who has just learned to block print letters will take real pride in neatly copying a quotation like this. The older youngster might enjoy composing an original short rhyme or a remark especially suitable for the picture on the valentine. A post box, made by covering with red crepe paper a shoe box or carton, with a slit in the top for envelopes, is popular at school and can add to the fun at home. Let the children draw lots for the coveted role of postman and deliver the Valentines to each person after the meal is over.

Both boys and girls enjoy having a share in getting the food ready for a party. Nothing could be much simpler than making jelly from red jelly powder, and a tin of fruit salad makes this especially tasty and nutritious. A heart-shaped cookie cutter is inexpensive, and Junior will love to have the job of cutting out cookies and placing them on a cookie sheet given to him. The many easy cookie and cake mixes can be used by quite a young cook who can read and follow directions, and do use white icing with icing colored with red vegetable coloring fluid for this festive occasion.

St. Valentine's Day, according to ancient tradition, was February 14 when the birds chose their mates for the year. In the fourth century, Chaucer referred to it and in Midsummer Night's Dream Shakespeare wrote:

"Good morrow, friends! St. Valentine is past;
Begin these wood-birds but to couple now?"

In olden times in England it was the custom to draw lots for lovers on this day. The person drawn became the Valentine of the drawer and received a gift, which was often a pair of gloves.

A card in the form of a gift may seem to the very practical a foolish thing . . . but what would life be like without a little nonsense? One of the deepest cravings of everyone is to know affection. Sir Edwin Arnold reminded his readers:

"Not a face below the sun
But is precious — unto one!
Not an eye, however dull,
But seems, somewhere, beautiful."

Thus Valentines, which we receive at a time in the year when the Winter with its cold and snow may seem endless, serve a real purpose . . . they warm our hearts and make us smile. Celebrations in the home strengthen the family bond and give children happy memories.

Four-acre greenhouse for tomato growers

Ruthven, Ont. (CP) — What is said to be Canada's largest greenhouse, with an area of four acres, has just been completed at Sunniland Farms in this community near Windsor.

The three owners, William and Domenic Ingratta and Sam Shostack, began erecting the huge glass structure in 1954 and have added to it ever since.

The greenhouse comprises 21 separate units, each measuring 250 by 32½ feet. An estimated 115,000 tiles were used in their construction.

The owners feel confident that this acreage under glass will prove a sound investment once it is planted with spring tomatoes. Eight units of tomatoes were grown by them successfully last year.

Most greenhouses in the area contain cucumbers, but the Sunniland growers feel this market is saturated, especially as many cukes are imported as well.

Hot-house tomatoes have one drawback, William Ingratta admitted; they are susceptible to wilt and virus. But he plans to combat this by steam treatment, using steam passed through a trench along the plants.

To dig a trench 15 inches deep and eight inches wide, an automatic trench digger was used which could dig a 150-foot trench in 45 minutes.

The three also plan to grow lettuce in the greenhouses to keep the ground active when it is cleared of tomatoes.

Sewing threads keep in step

The home sewer choosing a spool of thread today must look at more than the color. Just as fabrics have changed with the coming of man-made fibres, sewing threads having been keeping up with the times.

Cotton thread, the long-time favorite for most home sewing, is still best for cotton or linen fabrics. But since home dressmakers are now using more and more fabrics of synthetic fibres and their blends, manufacturers have developed new thread to stitch these new materials.

It is important that the sewing thread used in garment should have the same characteristics as the fabric itself. There's no use making a dress in a shrink-resistant fabric, as if the thread shrinks, seams will pucker! And it is foolish to sew a long-wearing material with a thread which is not every bit as strong. The seams will give way long before the fabric is worn out.

The thread most favored for synthetics is one made of "Terylene". It is exceedingly strong and at the same time it stretches very little. If a thread behaves like elastic as it passes through the sewing machine, it springs back to its original length as soon as the tension is released. This makes an ugly puckered seam.

When sewing with all types of thread, the same machine tension as used for cotton should be satisfactory. If not, loosen both the needle and bobbin tension slightly. Use a new, sharp needle, one without any roughness either at the tip or in the eye. A jagged bit of metal will break the fine fibres and cause the thread to fray as it passes through the needle. Since this type of thread is a bit slippery, knots may not hold, so the seams should be back-stitched at the beginning and the end.

When sewing by hand, use a fairly short piece of thread to keep it from becoming tangled. And always cut thread with scissors — it's too strong to make a clean break.

For wash and wear performance, the thread which holds clothes together is just as important as the fabric itself. If the thread shrinks, the seams pucker and an otherwise immaculate garment looks messy. It's such a small thing — the spool on the sewing machine — but without the right thread the new man-made fibres cannot possibly live up to their reputation for long wear and easy care.

Lighten burden of blind citizens is message of White Cane Week

Grant Staniforth, president of the Argenteuil White Cane Club, sends a message concerning White Cane Week, February 7-14. Sponsored by the Canadian Council of the Blind and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, the gesture, not associated with fund raising, reminds Canadians of the use of the White Cane and the role each citizen plays in the care of the eyes.

"Help prevent blindness," urges Grant Staniforth, "help cure it and help improve the lives of those already blind."

You can help prevent blindness by observing these suggestions.

Always wear protective goggles when working with abrasives or chemicals.

Get plenty of exercise and sleep. Good health means good sight. Take your children to the doctor when they develop headaches and listlessness. They may have poor vision.

More than 2,000 people lose their sight every year and doctors agree that over 50 per cent of this blindness is completely unnecessary. "Realize that Blindness is YOUR Business," he urged, "and take steps to combat eye disease in its early stages. Encourage others with poor vision to have their eyes examined. Sometimes people are afraid of the doctor and put off a visit to the eye specialist until it is too late. Don't let indifference be a cause of blindness.

Help cure blindness by supporting well-established projects in eye research, but as Mr. Staniforth warned, "Watch out for 'phonies."

A wealth of talent often remains undeveloped through blindness. Many artistic people have their talents imprisoned because they cannot see or must substitute a second-rate career for a lucrative one. During White Cane Week study the frustrations that arise from these causes, and help make life easier for your blind neighbors. Do not avoid the use of the word "see" in your conversation. Talk about the news of the day and expect the blind person to answer questions. Remember that blindness is your business, and do what you can to lighten its burden all year round.

Paint kitchens with 'sunshine'

Singing the blues in your kitchen? With color you can chase away that wintry feeling, and with a small outlay of time and money make your kitchen a warm and welcoming place.

The housewife can brighten her kitchen and surprise her husband by doing over drawers, cupboards, stools and small articles such as canisters. With a few hours work she can change the color scheme, and give herself and her family a tonic.

If the appliances and walls are white there is a choice of color schemes, only limited by the color of the floor covering. A popular color scheme this season is white, coral and yellow. Drawers and cupboard doors could be painted coral and kitchen chairs could be re-covered with a coral color fabric. Bright yellow accents could be provided by curtains and painted canisters.

A good enamel is most suitable for use on kitchen cupboards, drawers and other small articles, as it is easily kept clean with a wipe of a damp cloth. On new cupboards an undercoat must be used before the enamel is applied. For kitchens containing four cupboards one quart of the enamel should be ample. The most convenient size brush is from two to two and a half inches.

Here are a few hints to bear in mind for your decorating spree.

Surface of cupboard doors and drawers must be prepared first. They should be washed with a mild with warm water. Sandpapering the surface lightly cannot be omitted, even when an undercoat is used. Door handles should be removed, or covered with vaseline, before painting.

Paint should be stirred from the bottom of the can with a flat spatula or even the handle of an old wooden spoon.

After painting, the brush should be immersed in turpentine or varsol, and stored in a polythene bag until it is required for the next time you want to surprise your husband with a new look in your kitchen.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Simple to make, delicious and low cost is a quick ham and egg scallop that is most appropriate for St. Valentine's Day. The dinner menu for this special occasion can be topical with this colorful casserole.

It's a complete meal-in-one and an excellent means of using up leftover ham. But even if ham is especially purchased, the cost per serving is only about 30 cents, according to home economics of Canada's agricultural department.

Quick Ham and Egg Scallop: 2 cups diced cooked potatoes (two medium); 1½ cups diced cooked ham (about ¾ pounds); 1 cup drained, canned or cooked frozen peas; 1 cup diced hard-cooked eggs (3 eggs); one 10-ounce can cream of celery soup; ½ cup milk; 3 tbsps. grated cheddar cheese.

In a greased six-cup casserole arrange in single layers all the potatoes, then ham, peas and eggs. Combine soup and milk and pour over top. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350) until heated through, about 30 minutes. Makes four to five servings.

Nothing but Nutrition

The most recent Canadian Association of Consumers' bulletin rejoices in a new breakfast cereal which is guaranteed to contain no premiums, no whistles, missiles, rockets or ruckus. No beanies, b-b-'s, heebies or jeebies. No ball, bat, hat or gat in any package of this crunchable, munchable wholewheat cereal."

The item further enthuses that the cereal is "made so the fun is in the flavor — the only cereal made on purpose for grown-ups and above-average children. You get taste instead of toys, and nutrition instead of noise." It's a cereal with "no strings, rings or things attached."

Easy to Grow

If you are one of those people who just doesn't seem to have a green thumb you may be interested in cacti. They require little attention, are slow-growing, long-living and need re-potting only every two or three years, according to horticulturists with Ontario's department of agriculture.

The plants may be bought fully grown, or grown from seed or cuttings.

To sow from seed, fill five-inch pot to within ½ inch from the top with potting mixture, drop in the seeds, then cover lightly with a fine soil mixture. Keep the seedling covered with a glass to keep the surface moist. When the plants are large enough, transplant.

Cacti require little water, but plenty of light.

February Frolic!

Come To A "Soup 'n Cracker" Party

INFORMAL PARTY FARE

February is the month for parties! Whether you are celebrating a birthday or anniversary . . . or paying tribute to Cupid, it's fun to have a party during this month. It gives a lift to that mid-winter slump.

Let the affair be very informal. Bedeck your table with mugs or bowls of hot hearty soup. Just open a can or two of your favourite canned condensed soup and heat. Try mixing soups, too. It's fun to create your own specialties by mixing or matching any twosome from your pantry shelf.

Soup and crackers are natural go-togethers. Arrange a selection of crisp crackers, tasty dips and spreads for a help-yourself tray. As easy as mixing soups, with canned soups, are dips and spreads with pantry shelf items like canned boned chicken, deviled ham, and seafood.

What could be easier for party fare . . . what could taste better?

MUSHROOM AND VEGETABLE CHOWDER

1 can (10 fluid ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1½ soup cans water
1 can (10¾ fluid ounces) condensed vegetable beef soup

CHEESE 'N CRAB SPREAD

1 can (7½ ounces) flaked crab
2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated onion dash salt
dash black pepper

Drain crab; blend 2 tablespoons liquid from crab with cream cheese and lemon juice until smooth. Stir in grated onion, salt and pepper. Carefully mix crab into cheese. Chill if desired. Use as a spread on crackers or bread. Makes 1¼ cups.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Branch 70 Correspondent

Comrade Ken Riley reports that despite unfavorable weather, the March of Dimes was quite successful. Owing to a scarcity of canvassers there were several districts in the town that were not covered. These will be covered on Monday February 15. Mrs. H. Simpson, co-chairman of the Polio Campaign, is organizing the St. Andrews East and the Carillon districts for the same evening. The proceeds from the buffet supper served at the Lachute Curling Club, the night of the Legion finals, was turned over to Com. Riley by the conveyer, Mrs. Fred Stein. This was $83.00 and this fine gesture by the ladies is much appreciated. Anyone wishing to donate to this very worthy cause can send their contribution to Branch 70, The Canadian Legion, Foundry Street, or contact K. P. Riley. A full report of this drive will be forthcoming in the near future.

The provincial winners will be competing on a national basis at Summerside, P.E.I., March 14 to 17. A team from east of the Lakehead has yet to score a win. Curlers from Kamloops, Saskatchewan and Winnipeg have won in the past but the competition is tightening up each year.

Mutual Insurance St. Jerusalem annual report

The annual report of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the Parish of St. Jerusalem was presented at the meeting of shareholders held this week, indicating a $198.56 surplus for the year. The assessment for the year totalled 45 cents per $100, which was reported to be slightly higher than in recent years.

Insurance limits have been increased to $6,000 limited to $3,000 (building and contents) on each risk such as a farm house or a farm building. A total of $3,632.75 was paid in claims during the year.

Felling trees 'against the lean'

Trees close to buildings or other valuable structures often lean the wrong way for felling. The sledge and wedge is often dangerous to both the chain end of a chainsaw and to the operator, and may result in too little lift to force felling the tree in the proper direction.

A 12-ton house jack can be safely used for directional felling of trees with sharp lean. In use, the tree is undercut in the conventional manner and felling cut is started. A horizontal step for the jack is cut as close to the ground as possible, with a similar cut being made above the felling cut. This block is then sawed out by boring with the end of the chainsaw. The jack is set into the step so made, a strain is taken on the jack, the saw is re-inserted and the felling cut completed. With the felling cut completed and the saw in a safe place, the tree can then be jacked over without shock or vibration.

The University of Connecticut has experimented with this method of felling trees and has felled white pine up to 30 inches in diameter and 90 feet high against the lean. In felling softwoods it is necessary to use a plate on top of the jack to distribute the pressure over the wood.

Keep body in line with broom

Before we leave the forward swing let's take a good look at all parts of the curler's body, at the precise second he reaches forward with his stone, to see how the movements of the head, torso, arms and legs are integrated.

One of the skips greatest delights is to see his player come out of the hack like an arrow behind his rock with both body and stone pointing "right up his broom handle". Yet this is a treat he seldom experiences because the average player has some part of his anatomy protruding where it shouldn't be. The left arm, of course, is an exception because it must be thrust sideways to aid the body balance and symmetry of motion.

Sometimes the right knee is buckled up under the hips to support the buttocks and cushion the body's collapse to the ice before release of the stone. This action is peculiar to those unconscious members of the knee-pad fraternity who ride out then administer a last minute push. Keep your right leg stretched full length behind the body during the forward swing. As you swing from the hack the body weight switches from the right to the left foot. Those who ride on their knees do not make this shift in weight as they are over-balanced to the right. From the top of the backswing the left foot, then extended to the side, slides forward and in behind the stone. In other words, the two converge on the line of delivery not simultaneously but one slightly behind the other.

The right leg acts as an anchor or tow rope during this movement. Keep the toe pointed back at the hack and try not to allow the leg to straddle out to the right side for it will tend to act as a swivel and pull the body off line. The right leg functions as a rudder for the delivery. If it is allowed to wander it acts the same way as if you were to take your hand off the tiller on a sailboat when tacking into a stiff crosswind.

Arnold Richardson, the mate of the Saskatchewan champs, is at the helm today demonstrating perfect rudder control in keeping his ship on course. Copy his effective "on the broom" swing and you'll never list to port or starboard.

This concludes our articles on the Fundamentals of Curling. Next we'll compare Curling in Scotland and Canada.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

You can pack your hubby's bag as efficiently as your own — and do him a welcome favor — if you'll remember these suggestions: —

Make a check list of everything he needs to take along so that you don't forget anything.

To keep his shirt collars from mussing, pack his socks and extra handkerchiefs inside the collars. Old socks slipped over his shoes will keep them from soiling other items.

If your husband uses an electric razor, don't forget to pack a safety razor, shaving cream and brush too. Some hotels don't have the proper current or lack electric outlets in the bathrooms.

Other items which may come in handy are:—

Extra book matches, a knife-corkscrew-bottle opener combination, miniature whisk broom, nail clipper and fingernail file, small sewing kit complete with extra buttons for his shirts, talcum powder and aspirin.

A little surprise such as a new pocket novel, pack of cards or the latest family snapshots will make him think of you while he's away.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

In a small town such as the one in which I reside, any excuse for a party is always welcome. Babies and brides-to-be are well showered and visitors royally entertained. However, especially right after the holiday season when party giving has been in high gear for weeks, there comes a lull.

It is at this time a hostess will seize with glee almost any good reason for trying out a new recipe or showing off her gift coffee table. I didn't realize, when I mentioned that it had been just a year since I hung up my editorial cap and dreamed up the Diary of a Vagabond, that I would be an excuse for a celebration. During the course of the conversation at a previous party that had set off a minor display of gastronomic delights, I happened to mention that the one thing I really missed was my old swivel chair. My stenographer's bulge had become considerably flattened, I complained, by being parked on the hard seat of an ordinary straight backed chair, as I typed the weekly entry in this diary.

I love surprises and when I was blindfolded during the course of an evening affair, I had premonition something very unexpected was about to happen. It did. I was seated on a plastic cushion that felt like a greatly enlarged mixmaster and propelled from one end of my hostess's living room to the other. Amid shouts of "Now you'll really have to produce" the blindfold was removed and I found a huge card hung over the back of a brand-new swivel chair: "To the Vagabond, may she travel far. From her envious home-bound friends."

Have you ever noticed, there's one at every party. You know, the type of person who wears her diplomacy near the zero mark most of the time. In the midst of the hilarity as my new, coral plastic, foam rubber and chrome chariot was being pushed about on its brand new ballbearing casters, a squeaky little voice piped up, "I can't see why we don't give Canada's railroad to the Indians. What good is it? I never use it." She knew my travels had been largely by rail and that I waxed enthusiastic most of the time about the service and the ground I cover in each year in search of the material for this column. She was smart enough to know she would probably cause a flurry by her first remark, but obviously she was not ready for the information I fired at her.

"Ah, but you do use the railroad. Every hour of the day, of every week in every year," I replied.

Starting with her shoes, I asked her where she thought the dyes and chemicals came from that cured the hide of the calf that had produced the leather. This, I said, went for her stockings, lingerie, dress, hat, bag and coat. How did she think the steel in the car she drove arrived at the manufacturer's factory, or the groceries she consumed could finally be served at her table. Somewhere along the line, the railroad had been reponsible for the safe shipping and arrival of goods that contribute to most of our creature comforts, either in their raw state or the completed form. If it weren't for the railroad, I contended, our standard of living could be greatly curtailed. I also maintained that costs would soar if the only mode of shipment was limited to vehicular or air transportation.

This set off a clatter of conversation that sounded like a travelogue. The generous little lady who would present the Indians with the CNR, after offering me a lift home, ended up by carrying the chair to her car. As we rolled along on rubber (or could it be nylon) that had probably coasted in its raw state many a mile on steel, she asked me about the comforts of rail travel, its cost and relative advantages. I know one thing, she'll never slip her toes into those blue shoes that could poke the eyes out of a snake without remembering their pigment undoubtedly was transported across our land by rail most likely from a ship that docked in Vancouver after a voyage from India where, I am told, indigo dye is perfected.

To repeat 4-H U.S.-Canada exchange

The United States-Canada 4-H exchange, inaugurated in 1958-59, will be continued in 1960. Details of the arrangement were completed by 4-H officials of the two countries during the recent National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Sponsored by the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs organized in cooperation with the provincial departments of agriculture, a delegation of ten 4-H members will represent Canada at this year's National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C., April 23-29. In return, arrangements are being made for eight 4-H delegates — a boy and girl from each of the four 4-H regions — to represent the United States at the 29th National 4-H Club Week in Toronto and Ottawa next November.

The main purpose of this exchange is to further understanding and friendly relations and to share ideas for improvements in the 4-H program. The delegates, chosen on the basis of their records in club work, also gain a broader insight and appreciation of problems common to both countries.

4-H extension officials from the U.S. and Canada will accompany the respective delegations.

TO MAKE A FORTUNE

Four "fastest-growing consumer products" of the last 12 years have been: air conditioners, TV sets, clothes dryers and boats.

Now to make a fortune in the next 12 years, explains The Financial Post, all you have to do is select early one of the now-rare products which is going to catch the public fancy, get on the market with it at a price that leaves you a fair profit, and then let your competitors worry about catching up.

New development in paper-making

Highlight at recent sessions of the Technical Section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association was a lecture given by L. A. Lawrence, of St. Anne's Board Mill, Bristol, Eng., describing a radically new paper machine designed and built by his company. This is considered by many to be the first major development in paper manufacturing machinery since about 1800 when Henry Fourdrinier developed the principle in use today on the many paper machines that bear his name.

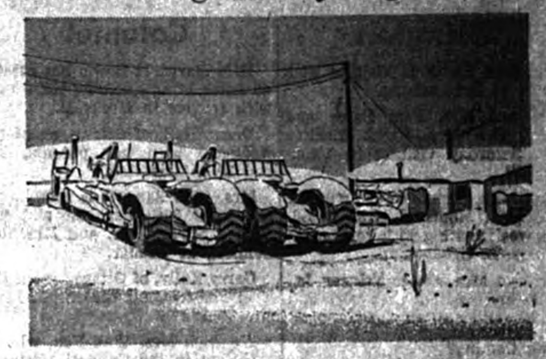

On Fourdrinier-type machines, the sheet is formed as a watery pulp mixture flows on to a moving wire belt. Most of the water drains through the belt and the pulp fibres mat together to form a sheet. The sheet is subsequently pressed and dried.

In the "Inverform" machine described by Lawrence, the wet sheet may be formed as a single ply or built up in layers as pulp flows onto the moving belt at intervals along its length. Where it differs from conventional machines is that an upper belt holds the wet sheet down as the speed of the machine drives water upwards and from the sheet.

When making a single ply sheet, or the first layer of a multi-ply sheet, a quantity of water moves downward, but after the first ply most of the water is driven upwards through an opening from which the water is pumped away. It is this upward removal of water under the influence of its own momentum that sets the machine apart from conventional methods.

The result of the experimental work described by Lawrence is an operating machine producing paperboard at increased speed and of improved quality. Also in operation, in pilot-plant or laboratory scale, are machines capable of speeds ten to fifteen times greater than comparable paperboard machines.

BELL LINES

by Bill Flanigan

your telephone manager

This is the season for fires — life-taking, property-destroying fires. Practically every week you can read in your newspaper one or more accounts of how fire has struck with tragic results. . . Many of the lives lost are those of children. Children are curious: they must discover for themselves how matches light, how a gas stove "makes flames", how a cigarette lighter works. Leave them alone, even for two minutes, and they'll endeavor to find out — to our everlasting sorrow perhaps. . . Don't leave children at home alone, not even for a couple of minutes. Don't dress your children in flimsy, easily ignited clothing. Teach your youngsters the danger of playing with fire in any shape or form. If you employ babysitters, ensure that they're level headed, and that they know the location of doors, stairways and fire escape. . . And most important for the sake of the children and yourselves, be sure your fire department's telephone number is handy. Write the number clearly in the front of your telephone directory. In the event of fire, the phone and seconds count.

Possibly the main item of telephone news this month is that you now have two additional colors from which to choose when it comes to extension telephones — and this brings to nine the number of colors available. Last November, pink and blue were added. This month we introduced grey and yellow. . . So the complete range of color now consists of red, green, beige, ivory, white, pink, blue, grey and yellow. These colors apply to both table and wall-type sets with the exception of blue, which is limited to table models. . . . We've mentioned before that an extension set in the bedroom affords you convenience, privacy, and a sense of security; in the kitchen, which is the 'control point', an extension set can be the most used phone in your home; and in workshops, dens, or recreation rooms, extension sets prevent unnecessary interruptions. All or any of these rooms can be made to look that much more attractive if you choose an extension phone in color.

Just about 31 years ago, this item of news appeared in print in a medium-sized Canadian centre: "Residents now are enjoying the advantages of sound picture entertainment, but there are some perhaps who are unaware that the Movietone is an off-spring of the Telephone. It was through the achievement of Bell Telephone Laboratories experts that these talking pictures came into being. . . .'

This being my first opportunity to contact many of you, I would like to say how pleased I am to be here, and how much I appreciate the courteous welcome I have received from those I have already met.

My family and I are looking forward to our stay in Lachute, which judging from what I have seen in my short time in this community, I feel sure will be most enjoyable. I anticipate meeting many of you personally in the near future.

PERMIT CHINESE TEACHER TO STAY

A Chinese teacher in an Ontario school who has been in danger of being deported now is being given a chance to remain in Canada. Humphrey Chi How Law, 27, a native of Hong Kong was informed he would have to leave the country. Fellow teachers at Merriton, Ontario high school rallied behind him. He came here in 1953 on a student visa and renewed it each year. Immigration Minister Fairclough wired Mr. Law saying she had decided to defer deportation and have immigration officials take action to allow him to stay.

Local sportman sends panther to Montreal sports columnist

A long-time reader of Izaak Hunter's "Rod and Gun" column in the Montreal Gazette, we have followed with interest his comments on panthers and their return to the Montreal locality. We feel a number of local persons will be interested in the following, reproduced from last Wednesday's column.

"Well, at long last I have a panther — right here in the apartment with me, a niee black one and no mistaking the species. But alas, Bruce Wright down in Fredericton, this isn't going to add much to your lore on the Eastern panther. For, you see, my panther is a sleek, shiney ceramic one. For it I am indebted to Larry Pressault, Brownsburg watchmaker and jeweller. A note accompanying the package in whiich the young panther came read in part as follows:

From a "puzzled" Reader

"I have been a fervent reader of the 'Rod and Gun' column for many, many years.

"I think I am a very good conservationist and outdoor type in the County of Argenteuil, and the story of the panther puzzles me.

"Seeing that there is no panther in my county and maybe none in yours, I would like to present this one as a memory.

"I am not trying to offend you, but just to place it on your desk so that your readers may be convinced one day or another that there is such an animal in your vicinity."

Don't Believe Everybody

Well, Larry, I'm certainly not offended. As a matter of fact, in your note I seem to detect a feeling of friendship to which I react with a bit of a glow. I would take it that you're a little sorry for me for my credulity in believing some people who tell me they've seen one of this rare (for this part of the country) and mysterious animals. Mark you, I say "some" people, and I have yet to report a sighting by other than a responsible intelligent person who show me they could recognize a panther if and when they saw one.

Skeptics Have Closed Minds

When you say you are "puzzled", Larry, that means you have an open mind. And this is a very good thing to have. Having a closed mind on almost any proposition is a serious handicap to acquiring knowledge. It has been people with closed minds who have almost invariably sprung up to refute and ridicule any story of the presence of panthers in Quebec in these days. In taking the trouble to investigate reports of "sightings" and appraise the qualifications of those who make the reports, I think I have much more evidence that that there are panthers than do the vocal skeptics who insist to the contrary without making any such investigation.

We Just Do Not See 'Em

Larry, you are a sportsman. You live in a county that, from time to time has been overrun by wolves. You get out in the bush a good deal but how many wolves have you ever seen in the free, wild state? And how many lynx or bobcats have you thus seen? I anticipate your answer which I belive would be somewhat similar to my own answer to such a question. And I have never seen a wild, free bobcat or lynx, only three or four wolves, and one mountain lion (in the Southwest) in more than 60 years in the bush. Is it strange then that I have never seen here in the Northeast, an animal of a species even more furtive than the plentiful wolves, bobcats and lynx, and one only beginning to re-establish itself in its ranges of 100 years ago?

Better Not Bet On It

You say, Larry that you have no panther in your county. Don't bet on it. You probably will remember that several years before we had our Montreal panther visitation last spring, I published a report of a sighting of one of these animals up in back of your own Lake Louisa. The report was made by a responsible businessman who, in South Africa had become familiar with the big cat family. Panthers didn't mean as much to me then as now and I've lost that man's name and address. If he's still reading I wish he'd communicate with me. Anyway, thanks, Larry for the panther. I shall cherish it.

Spruce trees baffle scientists

University of Toronto scientists are baffled over a mystery concerning the growing pattern of spruce trees. Professor J. L. Farrar, forest biologist who is working on the project at Glendon Hall Laboratories, says "there just doesn't seem to be any good reason why spruce trees behave the way they do."

Experiments have shown that a spruce tree grows upward until the last week of June, then rests for a year to start the cycle all over again next spring. Meanwhile, diameter growth continues. He points out that the sun is just as warm in July and August and the soil is just as moist.

Scientists are radically disturbing the spruce growth cycle by raising trees in pots and moving some into greenhouses each month so that they have little or no winter. Dr. Farrar says if some way could be found to stimulate the growth and break the cycle there would be excellent cash returns per acre from increased growth.

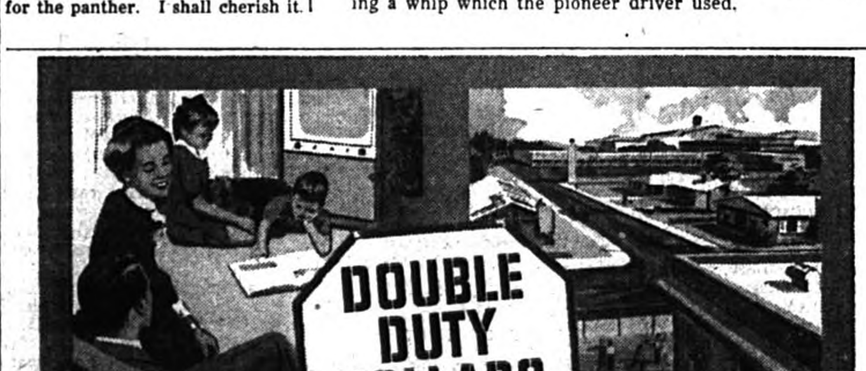

E. R. Wood, a Toronto financier, bequeathed Glendon Hall, an 80-acre estate in north Toronto, to the university for botanical purposes.

"The welcome results of industrial mechanization which permit a superior product, can never completely replace the human element necessary to operate the machinery. Equally as important as the manpower, is protection against sickness and accidents by a good program of preventing industrial accidents", according to Paul Cook, a representative of the Province of Quebec Accident Prevention League, who addressed a gathering of some 150 persons at a dinner-meeting at the Windsor Hotel on Wednesday evening of last week.

The meeting was presided over by Ian Gordon, Manager of the J. C. Wilson plant. Seated at the head table were Gaetan St. Jacques, president of L. St. Jacques Ltée.; Clayton Robinson, General Manager of Boyd's Express Ltd.; Mansel R. Wilson, Woods Manager, C.I.P., Grenville; Georges Clermont, Dominion Ayers Wood Products; Roger Regimbal, assistant Manager of Ayers Ltd.; Adhemar Cuerrier, president of the Lachute Chamber of Commerce; Paul Cook, the guest speaker; Ian Gordon, Chairman; Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon; A. O. Phillips, of Canadian Refractories Ltd.; Clarence Ambeault, Lachute Lumber and Millwork Ltd.; Jacques Whissell, Whissell Cement Products; Georges Defosses, Farmers' Supply Co.; also Harold Smith and Bill Duke, both of the Accident Prevention League.

Following Mr. Cook's talk, Mr. Duke presented a skit illustrating how easily accidents happen. This was followed by the screening of a film.

During the meeting certificates were presented to the firms of J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, and L'Heureux Dry Cleaners.

In the course of his address, Mr. Cook pointed out to his audience that safety was a question of constant education, adding the words, "The prevention of industrial accidents has to be preached all the time by all administration levels".

Mayor McGibbon welcomed all in attendance, particularly those from surrounding municipalities and the members of the Accident Prevention League.

Local Militia men pass examinations in survival course

C.N.I.B. Advisory Board makes plans for increased "workshop" activity

The regular meeting of the Argenteuil Advisory Board of Canadian National Institute of the Blind was held in the C.N.I.B. headquarters at 145 Drew Street on Thursday, February 4, with 14 members of the committee in attendance.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read together with the treasurer's report. Bills totalling $138.66 were passed for payment.

The chairman read the Field Secretary's report, a portion of which follows:

Workshp : Due to the fact that extra work had to be done on the workshop to keep the place warm enough for the person or persons to do their work, the shop has been idle since the end of November. However, the shop is now ready and it is hoped to begin the work on publicity, to encourage the public to bring in their badminton and tennis racquets and bicycles for repair.

The field secretary would like to place the following suggestion before the Advisory Board. In order to make the workshop a permanent feasible working project, it is suggested that a committee be appointed to study and maintain cost accounting and administration of the shop.

Women's Auxiliary: On December 10, the Women's Auxiliary for Lachute held their annual dinner for the sightless people from this district. Turkeys were provided by a number of local citizens and the gifts by the Institute.

Case Calls and Contacts: Since the last meeting, 90 case calls and contacts were made by the field secretary. This included the presentation of Christmas gifts, train and bus passes and a talking book machine that was loaned to a new registered case. Since the last meeting, one registered case passed away and the Institute registered two new cases, one in Arundel and one in Lachute.

Mr. L. Carrière complimented the Women's Auxiliary on the fine work they had done, particularly in connection with the Christmas Party. Mr. Zaplaski added that the tea and the handicraft sale

School Board Chairman addresses local Home and School Association meeting

Members of the Lachute and District Home and School Association heard James W. McGibbon, Chairman of the Protestant School Board, give a most constructive criticism of the local association at the monthly meeting held February 10. Members of the Protestant School Board, including E. J. McOuat, R. O. MacLean, and J. Douglas were guests of the Association, and answered several questions of interest concerning taxes, school grants, the position of the School Board with respect to the curriculum, and buses and transportation.

Mr. McGibbon compared the cost of operating the school at the time he was first elected to the School Board in 1946, with present day costs. For a school of 452 pupils with 19 teachers, $55,000. was spent in 1946, of which $22,000 was taxes. This year, for 733 pupils and 32 teachers, the budget is $163,000., of which $75,000. is made up of taxes. The remainder comes from Provincial grants.

Further in his talk Mr. McGibbon expressed surprise and disappointment at the lack of suggestions or criticism from the Home and School Association. "In an effort to avoid stepping on toes, the Association has swung in the opposite direction, and has become most ineffectual", he said. He mentioned several things the Association could do, stated below, reminding the members at the same time that these were his own suggestions and ideas, and not necessarily those of the Board as a whole:

1. The Association could elect a committee to attend School Board meetings. Together, the two groups could suggest ways of improving the running of the school.
2. The Association could appoint a Transport Committee to help look after the running of the school buses.
3. There could be a useful committee to help utilize the school facilities to better advantage — for example to assist in the operation of the skating rink, in organizing skating parties, in using the gymnasium for social functions, and many other things.
4. A committee could be formed to assist the School Board in planning the new wing of the school, things like furniture, colors used, etc.

These suggestions met with a mixed reception. However, Mr. McGibbon put voice to thoughts of many members of the Association, in that the local Home and School was "becoming a monthly social gathering apart from the school, rather than an integral part of the school system having in mind the welfare of the school children, and the betterment of their education."

The members of the School Board seemed to agree that they could function more successfully with a closer contact with the parents, and that everyone is entitled, and encouraged to attend the meetings which are held in the High School the second Tuesday of every month.

In the questions put to the School Board by the members of the Association, two topics appeared to occupy the prominent positions in most parents' minds, that of the school curriculum — how it is decided and by whom, and that of safety. High School principal Fred Royal answered questions about the first topic, stating that the curriculum is set by the staff to fit the needs of the students as nearly as time, and budget will allow. "If the choice of subjects seems limited (pertaining to a high school), it is a lack of demand and time, and a shortage of staff.

With respect to safety, Mr. MacLean reported that a Provincial Police car was supposed to follow each school bus once a week. "Bus drivers or anyone seeing a traffic violation with respect to the school buses, can report same to Mr. MacLean, who in turn will report it to the Provincial Police.

Morin Heights resident killed in freak automobile accident

Gordon (Teddy) Seale, a 47 year old Morin Heights resident, was instantly killed early Saturday morning in what has been described as a freak accident, which occurred on Route 41, at the junction of the old and new sections of the highway. Death was declared accidental by district coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur.

According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated the fatality along with Traffic Officer Albert Legault, it appears as if Gerald Boyd, 43, of Morin Heights and driver of the vehicle, took the old road instead of remaining on the recently constructed highway. The car apparently slid, hitting a snowbank, when the victim and another occupant of the car were thrown out onto the road. The car then swung on the ice, the rear bumper striking the victim on the back of the head. He suffered a fractured skull and broken neck.

Mr. Seale was seated in the front with the driver, both their wives being in the back seat of the 1948 model car which was owned by a Montreal garage. Mrs. Boyd was also thrown from the car, but was not seriously injured; both women were treated for shock and minor cuts and bruises. They were taken by ambulance to the Providence Hospital and released later in the day. The car was not damaged in the mishap.

Youth released in theft case

A 16 year-old Lachute youth was picked up by Lachute police late last week, following an investigation into the theft of a wallet containing $38.

The majority of the money was recovered, the youth's father making good the remainder. The young lad, who is mentally retarded, was released in the custody of his parents.

Brownsburg with his parents and attended l'école Bouchard and l'école Superieure de Lachute, later being graduated from Sir George Williams College with a B.Sc. degree. He also holds a diploma from the Institute of Senior Aircraft Designing, and is now taking a course in Management and Business Administration at McGill University.

Married to the former Anna Legault, of St. Hermas, he has been employed with the Aluminum Company since 1955. They are the parents of one child.

Linton Armstrong new president of Association of Retarded Children

A meeting of the Lachute Association for Retarded Children was held in the Legion Memorial Hall on Monday, February 15, when a slate of new officers was presented and unanimously accepted.

Bernard Jenkins, chairman of the nominating committee read the names, and outlined the duties pertaining to the various offices, following which the meeting was turned over to the newly elected president, Mr. Linton Armstrong.

In accepting this office Mr. Armstrong thanked the gathering for the confidence placed in him, assuring all that he would do his utmost in furthering such a worthy cause. He felt sure that the committees named would be really active and that good results would be forthcoming.

Mrs. K. E. Campbell gave a brief outline of the organization's work since its inception in 1954, at which time Mrs. Geo. Leggett and numerous parents had started the School, Mrs. Campbell was the teacher, with volunteer helpers, and she enlarged on the progress that had been made and how important it was that the school should continue. In her remarks she mentioned that these children, though retarded, were full of fun and keen to learn. "They try hard and it is surprising what they can learn," she said. They do however need a place of their own.

The resignation of Mr. Forman as secretary, was accepted.

A donation of $10 from the Cushing Women's Auxiliary, in lieu of flowers for the late Mr. S. H. Beecher, and a donation of $20 from Pioneer Women's Institute are hereby acknowledged with thanks.

A motion passed unanimously that a letter of appreciation be sent to Col. E. Emmett thanking him for his splendid work on behalf of the organization.

Matters pertaining to the welfare and advancement of the organization were freely discussed and it was agreed that the next general meeting would be held in the Legion Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening, March 23, at 8 p.m. sharp, when there would be a special speaker and all interested would be cordially invited.

Canadian Refractories operations have 365 day accident-free record

"Canadian Refractories Limited employees can be proud of the safety record they made in 1959. Both the mine and plant No. 1 have completed 365 days — a year — of working without time lost by accidents," reports the CRL News.

The mine completed its 365th day, December 3. Kilmar employees, after having achieved their year, went on the complete the calendar year, 1959, without accident. This record made the plant eligible to compete in the safety trophy awarded each year by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association (Quebec.)

Unfortunately, on December 30, an employee of the mine had an accident which caused the mine to miss the calendar year record by two days. The total accident-free days worked stood at 391 days.

The best previous record for the mine was 322 days in 1953. Plant No. 1 has received the trophy twice before — in 1956 and in 1957.

CRL safety director, Charlie Brown, expressed great satisfaction with both records. "I would like to congratulate all employees at the mine and Kilmar for their co-operation in making this such a successful year. Each employee can have a feeling of pride in this achievement, since a record such as this can be made only by the constant vigilance of every one of us. I hope 1960 will be such another year: I am sure we will all try to make it so."

Local residents believed victims of same thief

Lachute and Provincial Police have under investigation two robberies believed to have been committed by the same man. On Saturday evening, shortly after six o'clock, Eddy Mansour, proprietor of Bazar d'Argenteuil, reports a man entered his establishment on the pretext of making a purchase. Once inside, he examined a considerable amount of merchandise and attempted to make off with it. He was stopped by the proprietor and immediately put his hand in his pocket, as if he had a concealed weapon, and demanded money. He was given a box containing some $15.

Local taxi-driver Armand Baudin, 23, reported picking up a man answering to the same description, and being paid in advance, drove to Ste. Therese. He was then told to continue on to St. Eustache and near the town, was ordered to stop and he was here robbed of some $22 at knife point. The taxi-driver reported following the man to Montreal, where he lost him in a night club.

Motorists get end of month license warning

The annual warning by police authorities that the last date for 1959 license plates is Feb. 29, came recently from Provincial Police Director Hilaire Beauregard.

"There has been a slowdown this year in the number of people buying their new plates as compared with other years," Director Beauregard stated.

"Warning tickets have been printed and we will be placing them on cars parked in public places between now and the deadline," the director said.

He emphasized the deadline would not be extended and pointed out that motorists should purchase their plates at Provincial License Bureau offices as soon as possible.

"There is less than two weeks left. Those motorists without 1959 plates on March 1 will run the risk of having their cars impounded if they are found on provincial roads," the director concluded.

B'burg tax rate remains at $1.40; Fire Chief reports on activities

By M. E. Cowley

Good news for Brownsburg tax-payers came out of the February session of the Town Council as it was announced that the tax-rate would remain at $1.40. This was a pleasant surprise, since the Council had run into some heavy expenditure with the purchase of snow-removal equipment. The budget as presented by Secretary Vincent Charbonneau was basically the same as last year and was adopted with little change. The budget sheet as adopted appears below.

Increased valuation was reported as being directly responsible, for no tax increase since 1958, the municipal valuation being $3,329,750., compared to $2,947,675 last year. The budget for 1960 was set at $54,339.95, the anticipated revenues of which are as follows:

General tax, $46,610.50; Business tax, $3,295; amusement tax, $1,930.78; dog and bicycle licenses, $443.25; fines, $2,027.46; interest, $73.96; grant for winter roads, $459.

Expenses total an equal amount, the sum of $14,581.82 being derived from payments on the newly purchased tractor and snow-blower, and the salaries of the secretary-treasurer and town foreman. The budget for the police department has been set at $6,136.20 and the fire department at $2,178.47; other expenses of $31,942.46 make up the total. These include general expenses, garbage collection, road maintenance, electricity, heating, public assistance, machinery maintenance, insurance, County tax, administration and legal advice, preparation of by-laws, repairs to sidewalks etc.

Fire Chief Arthur Robbins reported that three fires had occurred, during the month, one of which turned out to be a costly $3,000 blaze in St. Philippe. The other two were of a minor nature but one of them pointed out the importance of accurately reporting the location of a fire. A small outbreak in a home in the general vicinity of the Catholic Church was erroneously reported as being in the Church. Chief Robbins advised those concerned with controlling the water pressure that personnel should be ready to make preparations for supplying extra pressure for the hose lines, since a fire of any magnitude in a building of this size would require numerous water lines to bring it under control and arrangements made prior to the arrival of the fire truck would naturally save valuable minutes.

"Had the location of the fire been accurately reported, the confusion which resulted from the provision of the added presence could have been prevented along with the mental strain suffered by the firemen as they raced toward what they believed might be a catastrophic blaze," reported Chief Robbins.

He also suggested that whenever a fire is being reported the nearest hydrant number be given along with the actual identification of the house as to location (street) and name of occupants.

On the routine side, Council approved payment of monthly vouchers amounting to $3,325.00 and additional expenses of $5,778.86, a part payment for the new snow-removal equipment and finally agreed to purchase a new revolver for Constable R. Lepine.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Some nice pike have been taken around St. Placide and the bay above Carillon. The largest I have heard of was 12 lbs, but a number ranged from 5 to 8 lbs. The perch were very small, just a few of decent size being reported. Lots of the small ones you don't want to keep early in the day, but after they have been put back a few times it isn't a question of wanting. You have to, or you won't have any minnows left. One of these little things was marked and put back seven times. The last time he was out of luck. Anyway they do make a good feed.

I was fortunate in seeing and handling one of the new .22 magnum rifles. This certainly takes some cartridge; power plus, and lots more to rave about. Due to the wind, the weather wasn't so hot for trying out anything, especially a rifle. Despite this, the shot was placed into the inner ring at 100 yards in seven out of ten shots, and if the handler of the gun had been any good at all the full ten would have been there. It sure wasn't the wind or rifle that caused the misses, (just me). Believe it or not, this shell seems to have more power at 100 or 150 yeards than the ordinary .22 at the muzzle. At least I took my standard along and the difference was so pronounced it wasn't funny. An air rifle and an ordinary .22 would be a good comparison, at least that is the way I feel. One thing sure, it's next on the list for me. I can just imagine hitting a crow at 100 yards, -- no crow for sure.

In the past couple of weeks, quite a number of comments have been heard on the Argenteuil Fish and Game Association. Some of the comments have been funny. As usual, the Association is being blamed for not having a working organization, not enough meetings and so on. There is even a little talk of forming another group. The only comment I can make on this, and I would think even the people asking about it will agree, no association can do anything without the co-operation of its members, and this doesn't mean talking about it on the streets. There has to be an attendance at regular meetings, to give the board authority to go ahead with planing. It's pretty disheartening for all concerned to have the attendance so small that it's just a lost evening.

Was up toward the old sand pit recently, and we were fortunate in finding another Deer yard. I am unable to say just how many animals there are around, but from the condition of the snow there are a few. Another thing that made us happy is that in some parts of the bush there is little snow. A couple of these spots even showed the deer had been pawing around for food. There were also a few Partridge spotted, not as many as we have been seeing, but still sufficient to make anyone happy at the fall hunting. A few more squirrels were seen and these seem to be getting a new lease on life. One good thing around town is the number of people who have got some sort of Bird-feeder out. The only drawback is the lack of the stores in town keeping wild bird seed. How about it?

Heard of some gent or gents wha have been ice-fishing in Lake Louisa. Hardly likey they don't know that fishing through the ice on lakes is illegal, or maybe they do and just don't care a d ——. They are no doubt "Good Sports", just like the joker who shot the Moose. There sure isn't much help given to our Game Wardens in this area. I know a tip like this should be dealt with in the shortest possible time, so let's try and give them a hand with a dirty job.

I've been trying to get a new pair of snowshoes around the district, but there are none to be had. It sure is funny to think that these necessary things can't be bought right around our own town. Maybe they can and I haven't just hit the right spot. If that's the case, a call to me would be greatly appreciated. It sure is funny the way things change. Remember when nearly every store carried this type of conveyance. Nothing but skis now, and these don't make for good travelling in the bush. I can remember this area years ago, and the number of snowshoers out would have done credit to the rally just recently held in Montreal. Even the kids got into the act. Too bad to see things like this disappear, especially when snowshoes discovered this country. Maybe people don't realize just how much fun can be had travelling in the bush for the day.

How about you fishermen? Looked over your tackle lately? I saw one the other night that had not been taken care of. A fibreglass one that had just been shoved into a corner cupboard; the most beautiful curve you ever saw. This can be staightened out, but not to my satisfaction. All you can do with a job like this is to use steam from a kettle and try to fix it before it cools off. The idea though is, not to let any rod get into this condition. All that is necessary to keep them right, is to tie a bit of string through the tip eye and hang it up in a cupboard so that it's not resting on an angle. You can start cleaning up your spinners, etc. — thaat should help pass the winter evenings, and before you know it fishing will be here.

One last word for this week. I've written a lot about the road-side garbage. With the snow melting during this past little while, the amount of junk uncovered sure is wonderful. By the look of things everybody and his brother have been throwing things out of cars. It sure is rotten to see the countryside being spoiled like this. I'm afraid we just haven't any countryside pride. I know it is just a few who do this, but they make everyone suffer.

The most recent figures on the top scorers in the League are as follows:

Brownsburg at Hawkesbury

Tuesday, February 9

The Bombers picked up their 18th victory of the season and their sixth against Hawkesbury by downing the Royals 4-2 in the new Hawkesbury arena.

St. James gave the Hawkesbury squad a 1-0 lead late in the first period when he knocked in Chamillard's rebound. Both teams appeared quite disorganized in this stanza and there was little to cheer about. Late in the second period, Gary Keatley took a pass from Stewart and Ouellette to beat Paul and tie the score. Before the third 20 minutes was half over, Ouellette scored twice to give the 'Burg a 3-1 lead. Keatley and Racine assisted on both these goals. At the 12 minute mark, Dicaire and Villeneuve set up Parisien who made the score 3-2. With only a minute left in the game and with the Royals almost ready to pull out their goaler, Ouellette broke up a Hawkesbury rush and went in along to beat Paul and end the scoring at 4-2.

Ouellette played one of his best games of the season, scoring three goals and assisting on the other. Both goalers turned in good performances. On defence, Mel Stewart was a standout with Legault and Menard playing their regular, steady game.

George Ball was boarded in the first period and he sat out the remainder of the game with a sore knee. Keatley had several good chances, but his shots were wide of the nets.

Hawkesbury at Brownsburg

Thursday, February 11

A small crowd braved through the rough weather to see the Bombers lose to Hawkesbury by a score of 5-3.

The Royals took a 2-0 lead early in the first period on goals by J. Larocque and L. Villeneuve, but the Bombers bounced back to score two goals in less than a minute — Keatley from Racine and Menard and Racine from Menard.

Ouellette put the Bombers ahead at 7.43 of the second stanza after taking a pass from Keatley and Racine. Less than a minute later, however, Parisien tied it up.

Ronald Proulx made it 4-3 for the Royals at the eight second mark of the final period and with a minute to go in the game, Chamillard ended the scoring at 5-3.

With only 10 players dressed for the game, the Bombers finally weakened in the last period and Hawkesbury took the advantage.

Keatley again missed several scoring chances as did Pilon. Among those missing from the lineup were W. MacAdam, Charlebois, Robitaille and Lamoureux.

Brownsburg at Lachute

Sunday, February 14

A crowd of over 250 fans turned out to see the short-handed Lachute team suffer an 8-0 defeat to the Bombers. Although the game was not exactly what one would call a good hockey game, it did have its exciting moments and at times was quite hilarious.

Stewart opened the scoring in the first period after taking a pass from MacGibbon and Charlebois. At 7.04 Robitaille made it 2-0 as he knocked in a pass from Lamoureux and Racine. It was not until the 15 minute mark of the second stanza that Legault and Racine set up Robitaille again and he made no mistake. Racine picked up his first goal, assisted by W. MacAdam, with a minute left in the period. At the two minute mark of the third period, Racine snared a pass from Lamoureux and Robitaille to beat Church with a hard drive. Two minutes later, Pilon and Legault set up Charlebois, who made it 6-0. Racine picked up his "hat-trick" by scoring his third goal, assisted by Lamoureux and Robitaille, and with only three seconds left in the game, Lamoureux took a pass from Racine and MacAdam to make it 8-0.

Although Menard did not hit the score sheet, he made a fine showing as he led many Bomber rushes. His speed and rubber legs kept the crowd alive. Jacques Racine played his usual steady game picking up three goals and three assists. The "Kid-Line" did not stand out and seemed disorganized.

The schedule for next week is as follows :

Thursday, February 18
Lachute at Hawkesbury
Thurso at Brownsburg

Friday, February 19

Sunday, February 21
Hawkesbury at Brownsburg

Mines Minister Cottingham speaker at Montreal Real Estate Board dinner

"Market demand is slowly but surely giving birth to our own steel industry", according to the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines, who recently addressed the Montreal Real Estate Board at a dinner meeting, choosing as his subject "Our Underground Real Estate".

Canada ranks fourth with Sweden, the United Kingdom and West Germany, and shares 4½ per cent of the world market, he said. The United States, Russia and France are in the lead.

Actual world reserves amount to 35,240,000,000 with a potential six times as much, he said. An official survey by the Canadian Iron Ore Industry indicates that the country's resources are tremendous.

"It does not matter much, I think, whether the reserves of this province amount to 1,000,000,000 or 10,000,000,000 tons.

"We know, even if some people choose to ignore it, that we are far from being alone in that business. We know that the prosperity of that business depends mostly on factors that must be considered not on a provincial or even national level, but on a global scale."

Low grade ore deposits in the Saguenay area, near Lake Jeannine, are being exploited at a cost of $200,000,000 by Quebec Cartier Mining, he said.

"But this new development also means, obviously, that those countries where low grade ore is even more plentiful than high grade ore, will be in a position from now on to open a second front against us in a business that is already crowded," noted Mr. Cottingham.

Although home consumption of ore has remained stable over the past 12 years, exports have jumped, he said. In 1948, less than 1,000,000 tons left the country. By 1958, the figure had risen to 14,000,000 with peaks of nearly 20,000,000 in 1956-57.

"Obviously the great bulk of our market lies outside of the country. We are mostly exporting to the United States, but the United Kingdom takes about 25 per cent of what our neighbors to the south buy from us, with West Germany, the Netherlands, Japan and Belgium taking a very small volume.

"If our market, at least for the time being, lies outside of the country, that is because the big market for steel also lies outside the country."

1960 Sports review gives prediction of this week's Winter Olympics

Since most people like to look into the future, here are a few sports predictions for the present year, the first in a new decade.

First, the Winter Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif. Canada will again be an also-ran, but will produce a few individual standouts. Figure skater Don Jackson of Oshawa, Ont., may become the first Canadian to win the men's singles. Toronto's Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul will capture the pairs championship. Ottawa skier Anne Heggtveit will be a medal-winner. Russia's hockey team will win the title unless the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen receive some top player help — and then it will still be a toss-up.

The summer Olympics in Rome. Canada is no match, especially in track and field and swimming. We may, just may, produce medal winners in rifle shooting and rowing.

Montreal's power-packed Canadiens will skate off with the fifth consecutive Stanley Cup, defeating Detroit Red Wings in the final.

Brave Prediction

Ottawa Rough Riders will win the Grey Cup in a ding-dong final with Winnipeg Blue Bombers. This reporter sees the East-West all-star game becoming sidelined for another year, and Toronto Argonauts reaching the Big Four playoffs for the first time in five seasons.

Western rinks will sweep men's and women's curling honors and the national high school curling championship.

Ingemar Johansson will retain his world heavyweight boxing title by knocking out Floyd Patterson in a summer rematch. Johansson, in the crystal ball, is seen then making a successful defence against Britain's Henry Cooper before retiring. The Canadian heavyweight George Chuvalo of Toronto signs for title defence against Bob Cleroux of Montreal.

Australia will regain the Davis Cup, and open tennis tournaments matching professionals against amateurs will become a reality.

The San Francisco Giants, strengthened in the off-season, romp to the National League pennant and beat Chicago White Sox in the World Series. Baseball's proposed third major circuit, the Continental League, will officially announce that it will not begin operations until 1962.

Could Happen

This corner also sees for 1960: More voices raised for federal government financial aid to amateur athletics in Canada.

Maurice Richard, after 18 seasons in pro hockey, will announce his retirement and state his intention of becoming an NHL referee.

British speedboat driver Donald Campbell will break his world speed record.

Red Schoendiest will make a successful return to second base for Milwaukee, but Braves finish second to San Francisco.

Toronto's E. P. Taylor will enter Victoria Park in the Kentucky Derby and the colt will finish third in the run for the roses.

Local player back in action after injury received during holidays

Potsdam, N.Y. — Bob Campbell, star wing of the Clarkson College of Technology hockey team, was skating at his full potential for the first time in over a month last Friday when the Golden Knights met R.P.I. of Troy, N.Y. in an important league battle.

Campbell, a 5-8, 155 lb. junior from Lachute, was injured over the Christmas vacation and missed action over a crutial period for the northern New York state hockey team. However, he skated some in both the St. Lawrence and Providence College hockey contests here in January and is now reported ready for full-time action.

Bob Campbell

This is good news to Coach Len Ceglarski, for his problems just began when Bob hurt himself in an unofficial practice session on the ice. Unable to make the Boston trip with the team, Bob's absence hindered the Clarkson attack greatly, and then when ace center, Mel Tomalty, of Brownsburg, was injured in Boston, Ceglarski found himself without enough men for three lines.

Upon returning, both Campbell and Tomalty were able to play somewhat against St. Lawrence and Providence College, but were not at their best. Both, however, did score against St. Lawrence.

Bob started the season as second line wing for the Knights, and was then shifted to the first line after a few games to balance the strength on the first two lines as much as possible. Campbell, who is very popular with the students and fans here, has nine points so far this season with three goals and six assists. His work in the assist department has been excellent. Last year Bob had ten points for the season with five goals and five assists.

The son of Mrs. J. K. Campbell of 445 Main St., Lachute, Bob was one of the best athletes at Lachute High School. Besides hockey, he played softball, basketball, badminton, and was on the curling team. He was also president of the Student's Council. A major in industrial distribution, Bob is a member of Lambda Iota Fraternity at Clarkson.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

A word, or a way of life?

WHAT IS TRUE Brotherhood? This is a timely question, for next week is National Brotherhood Week, and for this short period of seven days the word will be used freely, in speeches, in editorials and in general conversation.

If it is to mean anything to us and throughout the world, the Brotherhood of men must be more than a word. It must come from the heart, not from the lips; it must not be a topic of conversation for a brief week, but a way of life for generations.

The essence of true Brotherhood lies not in its origin so much as in its final effect upon the lives of others. What does one do for his blood brother? A man defends his brother against all enemies; he helps a brother who is in trouble; he makes allowances for a brother's errors and shortcomings. But most of all, he loves his brother.

The fundamental concept of true brotherhood was given us centuries ago in the simple commandment: Love one another.

If Brotherhood is to be more than an empty word, we must obey this commandment in all our dealings with our fellow men. If the Brotherhood of man is to spread throughout the nation and the world, we must begin with ourselves, in our homes, teaching the children to respect and to honor all others, without regard for differences in race, religion or social status.

Infants in a nursery are true brothers. They know no difference in color of skin or creed until they are taught discrimination by adults. All the hatred and bigotry that plagues our lives could be eliminated if older generations were to stop transmitting these afflictions to their children.

Brotherhood will come alive in our homes and communities only if it is a living force within ourselves.

When we can ask ourselves, "Would I do this to my brother?" and "Would I permit this to be done to my brother?" and let the answers guide our actions, only then will we know the meaning of the word and make it live.

Blessed winter

ONE REASON why winter has not been praised adequately is that most of the world's great literature has so far been produced in areas where they have no worthwhile winter. Homer had no chance to know the glories of a Canadian winter with the snow shining brighter than his goddesses. Dante had as splendid an imagination, but a northern Italian winter was sleety mud. Shakespeare, peer of both, might reasonably have been expected to imagine how wonderful winter could be, but he was stuck with that terrible thing, the English winter.

There is obviously fine opportunity for Canadian to take winter over and make something of it. Experience is not lacking, most writers being too poor to escape. Besides, there is the spur of competition. Among all the other things the Russians possess, winter they have aplenty. And it is unlikely that any restrictions are placed on USSR writers who can get their fingers thawed out long enough to praise the Russian winter.

The Canada Council might well stipulate, in passing out expense money for travel, that, instead of heading away from this country, Canadians should travel in their own land, especially afoot and especially in the mornings and early afternoons of winter days, when there is about fifteen degrees of frost and the sun is darting around from every direction through gently blowing snow among the Homer and Dante and Shakespeare would have instantly appreciated that the Canadian winter was one of the most wonderful experiences available to humans.

Farmers' dilemma

FARMERS THESE days say their industry is facing crisis. That's what the Canadian Federation of Agriculture was told at its recent annual meeting by Dr. H. H. Hannam, CFA president and a leader of organized farmers for more than 30 years.

But Dr. Hannam also said "no single formula will solve the farm problem."

Many observers believe that a major reason why so much is heard about the farm crisis is because farm spokesmen do not always agree about how to resolve their problems. What is good for one segment of agriculture is not always good for another. And what is good for agriculture as a whole is not always good for other segments of the whole economy.

At the recent CFA convention Agriculture Minister Harkness said:

"There's no question that farm cash income is not good enough. But the farmer's real position is much better than prices indicate."

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture says its main goal is to achieve a fair share of the national income for farmers. It says costs of agricultural production are rising, as are costs for most industries, but that cash returns to the farmer for what he produces are not keeping pace and in some instances are actually falling.

But on this subject, Mr. Harkness claimed the position of the farmers "is not nearly as bad as many people have been trying to make out." He said the capital position of farmers has been improving steadily and suggested that was an important factor in judging the present position of Canadian agriculture.

As to agriculture's specific problems, Mr. Harkness said the government was trying to help by pressing for expansion of world parkets for farm produce and by supporting their prices at home.

Dr. Hannam told the convention, often critical of government programs, that he wanted to emphasize that these programs and policies were good "in spite of their shortcomings and omissions."

Mighty mite

A DIME looks pretty small stuff these days. But that humble coin plays a vital role in the daily life of the average man.

For instance, he drives his car into town and hunts for a parking space alongside a meter. He feeds 10 cents into the meter and goes about his business. His car is legally parked, usually for an hour.

If he has telephone calls to make, the pay telephone will handle them, provided he has a supply of dimes.

When he wants a coffee break, there is usually a coffee machine handy to dispense a cup of the brew — for a dime.

Perhaps he needs a pack of cigarettes. Again the dime is necessary — plus a quarter or more.

The man on the street who is out of work and stops the passer-by with the well-worn phrase "Brother, can you spare a dime for a cup of coffee" is giving way to the man on the street beside a parked car, imploring the passer-by to make change so he can put a dime in the meter.

The progress of automation could mean new uses for the 10-cent piece or the 25-cent piece before long. They do their jobs now for dispensers of cigarettes, soft drinks, tea, coffee, soup and other low-cost items.

Who knows? The day may be approaching when they will yield a modest amount of gasoline at a do-it-yourself service station.

Pay-as-you-go television, available at the drop of a quarter already is being introduced.

The next step required, if this trend is to continue, is introduction of automatic change-makers. You pop in a dollar bill and receive 10 dimes or four quarters or a combination of both.

That should take care of one normal day's activities.

Now if some inventor will just produce such a gadget, we can go forward into the new era.

Viewpoints and perspectives

FATAL APATHY. — Studies of accidents across Canada have come up with the finding that apathy is shaping up as one of Canada's greatest killers. On the highway, say the experts, it's the apathetic driver who gets it in the neck. He's the driver who doesn't much care about traffic rules, who drives not as though he owned the road but as though it were owned by a very good friend.

What is a Calumet?

This is the name, of French origin, commonly used for the hollow shaft through which tobacco smoke was blown during Indian ceremonies. Calumets are frequently spoken of as pipes and, in fact, no rigid division can be drawn between the two. Ceremonial smoking took place frequently in connection with agreements between tribes, especially peace treaties. From this fact comes the well-known expression "pipe of peace," symbolizing the mutual ceremonial smoking of tobacco. Tobacco was cultivated by the Indians of southern Ontario and parts of the prairies and from these two areas it was traded for a considerable distance, so that the area of tobacco smoking was considerably wider than that of tobacco growing. Generally speaking, the Indians thought of the burning of tobacco as a sacrifice of one of the products of Mother Nature. Thus, smoking was not a mere indulgence but had elements of religious significance.

Where is Graham Island?

There are two fair-sized islands of this name in Canada. One is the largest and most northerly of the Queen Charlotte Islands off the coast of British Columbia. The other is one of the smaller of the Queen Elizabeth Islands in the Arctic, lying west of the southern portion of Ellesmere Island, with maximum dimensions of 30 miles by 20 miles.

Which bay is famed for its Ghost Ship?

The Bay of Chaleur, the inlet of the Gulf of St. Lawrence that separates Quebec from New Brunswick. The bay has received much notoriety for its Ghost Ship or Phantom Ship, described as a burning ship racing across the waters. The phenomenon, which occurs usually on sultry evenings, is perhaps best explained as a sphere of ignited marsh gas moving above the water's surface; in other words, a large will-o'-the-wisp blown seaward. Jacques Cartier gave the bay its name in July 1534 because he and his men suffered from the heat — chaleur is French for heat — while exploring its shores. Unwittingly, the bay was appropriately named for its water are unusually warm.

Where was the Honeymoon Bridge?

The Honeymoon Bridge linked Canada and the United States at Niagara Falls for 40 years until its destruction in 1938. It had been built to replace the Clifton suspension bridge, constructed in 1853 with a span of 1268 feet, longest suspension bridge span until the completion of the famed Brooklyn Bridge, with a span of 1595 feet, in 1883. For almost 20 years after its completion in 1898, the Honeymoon Bridge held the record for arch spans, 840 feet. In 1938 it collapsed under the pressure of ice. Three years later the Rainbow Bridge, with an arch span of 950 feet, fifth longest in the world and longest of the hingeless type, was built at Niagara Falls to replace the Honeymoon Bridge.

Power and corruption

By C. J. Harris

Having studied various countries, in Europe, Asia and North and South America, Professor Walter A. Lunden, of Iowa State University has concluded that rulers and bosses are generally smarter than the people they rule, but less ethical. And the professor went on to say, in a paper prepared for the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that the greater the power of rulers, political leaders and big executives, the more corrupt and criminal they tend to be, but as their power becomes limited, "criminality of rulers and executives tends to decrease qualitatively and quantitatively."

The professor leans to the opinion, and in some instances supporting evidence would not be lacking, that rulers become rulers because they are less ethical. Another view, in support of which there is a good deal more evidence, is that rulers become less ethical when they become rulers. This latter idea was well summed up about 75 years ago by the British historian Lord Acton: "Power tends to corrupt; absolute power corrupts absolutely.

But whether rulers are rulers because they are less ethical or whether they are less ethical because they are rulers, it is generally recognized that when people as a group assign power they must also establish checks and counter-checks. In the field of voluntary association there has been the recent example in some labor unions of the corruption that can grow when too much power is left in too few hands. In the field of business the one-man rule has generally given way to a pattern of authority shared by boards of directors, chairmen of boards, presidents and vice-presidents, all answerable to shareholders at open meetings.

But of course it is in the field of government where we must be particularly aware of the hazards of surrendering too much authority. The vast evils perpetrated under fascist and communist dictatorship are examples of the extreme. But there is hazard, too, in the fare less extreme course of socialism—and the semi-socialism that, too many Canadians seem willing to accept.

The support for the planned economy, the demands for cradle-to-grave welfarism, the acceptance of government's setting up in business through Crown corporations, the seeking for state-guaranteed security — all these require the delegation of authority from the public to the state.

Indeed we still need to mark well Lord Acton's warning: "Power tends to corrupt; absolute power corrupts absolutely."

The Editor,
The Lachute Watchman,

Dear Sir:

Last Friday word came from Ottawa that the Board of Transport Commissioners had refused the C.N.R. permission to discontinue its passenger service to Hawkesbury.

This shows what can be done when public spirited people refuse to be pushed around. The way both male and female citizens helped the Chamber present its case to the Board at Hawkesbury last November will never be forgotten by those present.

One person who did a splendid job was our Member Mr. J. O. Latour. Without his work it might have had a different ending.

Yours very truly,

F. W. F. Whitehead,
Secretary.

The poor victims of tobacco try all kinds of tricks to cut down the pollution of their lungs.

A friend told me recently that the people in his office have quit carrying cigarettes. They appoint one man to be the cigarette porter. When they feel the urgent need of a smoke, they buy fags from him at two for five cents.

They feel this device slows down consumption.

"You're kidding yourselves," I said, looking down from the vast height of three years' non-smoking. "The only way to quit smoking is to quit."

I used to hate that kind of talk in my smoking days. Smug, boastful. But it is true.

I'm not referring to people who play at smoking, and fidget with two or three cigarettes a day. They are not real tobacco addicts, and it doesn't matter whether they quit or go on.

But the people who are hooked, so that they frantically cast around for a tobacco store when the package is half empty, or roll cigarettes ahead as they smoke — these true slaves of the weed have no hope of becoming moderate smokers . . They needn't imagine that they will get away with just one cigarette at coffee-time. Very soon they will be back to 30 or 40.

Such people are chronic worry warts. They have the illusion that a cigarette calms them. But in fact the smoke pulls the strings tighter.

The more anxious a man gets, the more he smokes. And the more he smokes, the more anxious he gets. There is no way out, but to throw the cigarettes in the ash can, with their thousands of tiny filters and all the other gimmicks designed by advertising men to convince suckers that tobacco is good medicine.

Of Many Things

THOSE DIRTY THIRTIES

Those who finished school just in time to hit the depression had a tough time.

Most of us took a hard look at the economic system and a mighty sympathetic look at alternate systems. This bitter appraisal took place all over the world., in Italy, England, Germany, Canada and the States.

We were ripe for some new system. Several systems were proposed.

Mr. Aberhart launched a Social Credit movement. The Webbs and others preached socialism. Democratic Socialism was offered to the Germans, and the same sort of thing was suggested in Italy.

In Canada, Socialism never did catch on strongly. To those for whom it held attraction it seems odd indeed that the rest of us who rode the rails or did odd jobs outside our regular line of work to survive did not go for it too. "What freedom did you have that you wanted to keep?" they ask. "How could you continue to favor a capitalist system which denied you work?"

Partly it was a strong feeling that the depression hurt everybody, and no system deliberately imposed it. We knew there were many things wrong but we felt they could be corrected without leaping into something much worse.

Furthermore, few of us had faith in the men who were promising that if they were given power we would all do better. We watched socialism in Russia, Germany, and Italy, all starting with the same high goals. We heard the Webbs and the English socialists praising Russia. We didn't like the looks of it, and history has proved us right.

Few of us thought Canadian socialists would abuse the power Socialism gives to the State as much as the Kremlin does. But in all systems, aggressive and power-hungry personalities rise to the top. The power of wealth is tremendous; but add to it the power of government, backed by the army at its disposal, and it is frightening.

So we said to heck with Socialism, and most of us still say it. This the Socialists cannot for the life of them understand.

Strange pets

Most men are ready to admit and often tell of the pets they had in boyhood days, including rabbits, squirrels, turtles, etc. We feel none have had more unusual ones than Master Glen Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Graham, who found four deer-mice in the bush last fall and decided to bring them home and keep them as pets; to date they are hale and hearty" and enjoying life in captivity. On Saturday last, he added another "pet" to his collection, when a small green snake was found in the basement of his home, probably moving in on account of the heavy rains earlier in the week.

Mrs. George Donaldson left for Winnipeg last week owing to the death of her father; sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. Donaldson and other relatives.

Sympathy is extended to the relatives of the late Mr. Alphonse Leroux, Jr., and the late Mr. H. Tilsley, who passed away on Sunday; both were employees of C-I-L and well-know in the community.

Local appeal being made on behalf of Heart Fund

As 66,490 deaths were attributed to heart disease last year, in Canada alone, the urgency of additional research is being driven home much more dramatically to Canadians every year. Citizens in all walks of life, businesses, big and small, are asked to rally their support behind the hundreds of scientists who are investigating every prase of the dreaded ailment. Efforts are being made to reduce recurrences of heart attacks, to perfect drugs which retard blood clotting, to control most cases of higher blood pressure, to correct congenital defects through heart surgery, to prevent rheumatic fever, to develop heart lung machines, to repair damaged heart valves.

In the current Canadian Heart Fund campaign, the Laurentian region has been entrusted to Mr. Vernon Cardy, of St. Jovite, who called upon Mr. Gilbert Ayers to organize Lachute and vicinity. Mr. Ayers informed The Watchman and L'Argenteuil in an interview this week, that he is hopeful that a campaign by mail should be sufficient to raise funds locally.

Regional residents are therefore requested to watch their mail in days to come, and to give all their generosity can afford, or to send their donations to the Canadian Heart Fund, % Mr. Gilbert E. Ayers, Lachute, Que.

HOMEMAKER TIP

Here's a way to keep a ball of string in the kitchen handy but attractively out of sight. Put it in a small gaily-colored, hanging flower pot, so that the end of the string comes through the hole. Press a circle of cardboard into the pot and snugly over the string, leaving room for the ball to turn. Before hanging it up, complete the camouflage by fastening artificial greenery to the cardboard so that it spills out over the edge.

Annual meeting of Brownsb'g United congregation held

The annual Congregational Meeting took place at the Brownsburg United Church on Monday evening, February 8, with the annual reports being read by the officers and heads of the various committees and organizations.

It was observed that 1959 had proved to be a most successful year, under the pastorate of the Rev. G. Bruce, and with the help of all involved in the work of the church.

Visits to homes connected with the church by the Rev. Bruce, the ladies' organizations, the elders and others, totalled 1,170.

The installation of officers of all organizations, Youth Leaders, Christian Education Officers, Stewards and Sunday School teachers took place, and the additional elections resulted as follows: — Organist, Mrs. C. J. Wheeler; Choir Master, Mr. K. Amos; Flower convener, Miss W. White; Press Correspondent, Mrs. F. Kettyle; Congregational Secretary, Mr. H. Smith; Auditors, Mr. D. Cochrane and Mr. F. W. Armstrong.

Mention was made of the gratitude felt by all for the kindly act of the Messrs. McVicar and Messrs. Graham, in the donating of a lot near the church, in commemoration of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. McVicar and Mrs. R. Graham.

Refreshments were served by the W.A. ladies at the conclusion of the meeting.

Note from abroad

It is interesting to hear that a great many former residents, now stationed with the armed forces overseas, still look forward to receiving their local papers. Friends of LAC Otis Stewart and Mrs. Stewart (nee Marielle St. Denis) will be glad to hear that they are thoroughly enjoying living in Belgium, just across the border from France, where LAC Stewart is stationed. During their three weeks vacation, they toured Barcelona, Spain, Nice, Monaco and Monte Carlo. Unlike Lachute, they have had the pleasure of only three inches of snow which lasted four days.

Carillon flooding to isolate church

Some 20 members of the congregation of the Point Fortune United Church, 12 miles east of Hawkesbury, will be "cut off" from the church when the Hydro Quebec project is completed, it was reported at a meeting of the Ottawa Presbytery of the United Church on Wednesday last.

About 2,600 acres of land will be flooded during construction of the $200,000,000 Carillon project at Point Fortune by 1962.

The flooding, which will displace approximately 375 persons on the 71 properties to be expropriated, will not directly affect the hilltop church at Point Fortune.

However, the bay created on the Ottawa river will separate congregation members on another height of land, from the Point Fortune Church.

A United Church committee has indicated that the church will be torn down and a new one built further inland from the river.

CNIB financial campaign for Chatham district

The financial campaign of the Chatham area for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind will be held from Monday next, February 22 until March 7, under the joint chairmanship of Messrs W. Robert and T. Weir.

Last year the Institute realized $933. and it is hoped this goal will again be reached. The activities for the sightless have been made possible by the help that comes from those who have financed the C.N.I.B. programs. A volunteer canvasser will call on you and it is hoped the local population will be as generous as they have been in the past. If the canvasser is not known to you, call the Institute, LO 2-2686 or contact your chairmen.

The sightless need your support, in order to carry out the excellent program that has been established by the Institute. The goal includes money to help many who may be threatened with blindness.

WHAT'S NEXT?

Frozen flowers, to be sold through supermarkets are being tested in both the U.S. and U.K., reports The Financial Post. Snapdragons, heather and roses would be cut in season, coated, and quick frozen. Research indicates they would last five days after leaving store's freezing counter.

C.N.I.B. Board plans increased shop activity held on December 2 was a great success and that the Women's Auxiliary were to be highly commended for it. The Field Secretary's Report was unanimously accepted.

Mr. Zaplaski reported on the operation of the workshop and asked that a Committee be established to round out the organization and operation of the workshop, following which the Chairman proposed that Messrs. T. Ponech, Paul Emile Barbeau, J. B. Chalmers along with the Field Secretary and the Chairman be appointed to constitute such a Committee.

The Chairman reported that a legacy of $1,500 from the Estate of the late Miss Mary Miller was to be paid to the C.N.I.B. and asked that a resolution be passed to enable the Board to apply this money to the Building Fund's obligation arising out of the purchase of the property at 145 Drew Street.

Accordingly, it was resolved that "the $1,500 Legacy to be received by the C.N.I.B. from the Estate of the late Miss Mary Miller be placed in the Building Fund and that the Board be authorized to transfer this amount to the C.N.I.B. at Montreal toward the repayment of the $15,000 loan which had been made to enable the purchase of the Drew Street Headquarters.

Mt. Laurier air base delayed

Ottawa (CP) — Work on the planned Bomarc missile launching site near Mont Laurier, Que., is behind that for a similar base near North Bay, Ont., because missiles for the Quebec site will arrive later. Defence Minister Pearkes said last week.

Replying to questions in the Commons from Lionel Chevrier (L — Montreal Laurier) and Guy Rouleau (L — Montreal Dollard), Mr. Pearkes said work is being timed with delivery of the weapons for the sites. The North Bay weapons are to arrive earlier.

Only survey work has been carried out at Mont Laurier, he said.

The Bible today

Celebrating the 150th year of its life in 1959, the National Bible Society of Scotland reviewed its work all over the world. A story of the work of this Society in Indonesia tells how some German missionaries obtained permission, grudgingly given, to teach a remote tribe. Two years were spent teaching the principles of right and wrong largely from the Old Testament. The chief of the tribe ordered the missionaries to depart as they had not taught the people anything they did not already know. They were thunderstruck and pleaded to be allowed to stay another six months. They concentrated entirely on the New Testament and the stories of Jesus and His love. The chief told them at the end of the six months that they could stay as long as they liked because this was really new. So the Gospels distributed by the Society speak new truth to all people.

Scots find Canadian curling curious

When Willie Young, the personable skip of the Scottish Champions, tossed his "duster" to the ice to signal the first shot of the series between Canada and Scotland last March, he unwittingly inaugurated the grand game of curling at the International level. United States and Canada now declare National Champions and last year for the first time the Royal Club in Scotland arranged a special playoff to determine a champion to represent the Land of the Heather in a series of matches with the Canadian titleholders, Ernie Richardson and his Regina team, who had won a convincing victory at the Briar in Quebec City.

The Edinburgh Ice Rink provided the backdrop for the test and the spectators, clad in their inevitable tweed coats and peaked caps, watched every shot with a typical Scottish reservation that belied their inner anxiety. The Canadian youngsters held their fire at first in respectful examination of the apposing Scots' ability. They kept strictly to the quiet game while sizing up the ice and the strength of their opponents, but their play was effective, and when the Scots' came to bat the Canadians were lying three shot stones with quite a mixture of granite in the rings. Willie Young found the situation to his liking and equal to the occasion played brilliantly through a narrow opening to nudge the Canadian shot rock back and roll into hiding. The Scots spectators buzzed with conversation, "Willie's too smart for these boys". Then Ernie Richardson laid out his ice for vice-skip Arnold and made his way in long strides down to the hack. His resulting shot executed a perfect raise on one of the Canadian rocks to push it back onto Willie Young's stone and nudge it enough to count a prace. This was the shot that turned the tide and swung the talk of the Scots lining the rails to open admiration, then sudden applause. The Canadian kids had played the Scots at their own game and were none the worse for wear. From then on the Richardsons assumed confidence and never looked back. Once you give an aggressive, striking team of this calibre a few points lead, you've had the full treatment. In the succeeding ends the Regina firing line eliminated any Scot stone within shouting distance of the house.

During the course of the five matched, the Scottish players and spectators were given a glimpse of several resourceful Canadian curling stratagems that the land that gave birth to curling had never before seen. On at least one occasion Ernie Richardson deliberately blanked an end to have the advantage of last stone on the final end. This caused quite a conversational stir. But when the Canadian skip ordered lead Wes Richardson to put his first stone through the rings on the final end of the third match at Perth, the sage Scots' heads really began to wag. Such recourse had never been heard of in the annals of curling in Auld Scotia. Oldtimers present, who viewed these antics and were startled by the robust take-out shots of the Regina lads, shook their heads and vehemently declared to their friends beside them, "That's nae curling!"

It was useless for me to suggest to those within earshot that the overweight game of the Regina team was not typical of the style of play of most Canadian champions but my Scottish friends were not inclined to believe other than what their inquisitive eyes had seen.

The real value of such International competition cannot be fully gauged but several spects are glaringly apparent. First, the hospitable Scots were truly astounded at the youth of the Canadian team and willingly admitted that the game in Scotland needed the infusion of fresh, young blood in its membership rosters. Several officials of the Royal Club showed some consternation about the liberal attitude of Canadian rule makers to the long slide delivery. Arnold Richardson, the mate on the Regina team, had a particularly beautiful long slide. This was the envy of some of the younger Scots curlers and we had rumours before leaving of secret practice sessions. Finally, the old controversy of the effectiveness of the Scotch brushes and the Canadian brooms was aired in full view and the Richardsons certainly convinced the spectators that the broom is an effective weapon in the hands of those who wield it with authority. Their pounding brooms working in unison pulled their draws into exact position and a healthy respect for Canadian sweeping was visibly apparent on the faces of the onlookers.

Ernie, Arnold, Garnet and Wes Richardson were truly great ambassadors of Canada's thousands of curlers. Not only did they gain the respect of the Scots for their brilliant play on the ice, but more important, they made countless friends by their gentlemanly deportment when curling was done. Like true champions, they were gracious to their opponents and modest in victory.

Next: How we dismayed the Scots.

Love of the truth

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"George" said his father, "do you know who killed that beautiful little cherry tree yonder in the garden?" . . . Looking at his father, he bravely cried out, "I can't tell a lie. I did cut it with my hatchet."

This is from "The Life of George Washington with Curious Anecdotes. Equally honorable to Him- and Exemplary to His Young Countrymen" written by Mason Loche Weems (1759-1825).

Modern parents often feel that their child appears to have much less regard for the truth than this famous American. Why is the road to a real love of truth such a long one? How is it that so many youngsters have lapses of small dishonesties even petty thieving and then lying to cover up their wrong doing?

Some parents try to encourage truthfulness by punishing lightly or not at all the child who "fesses up," and punishing heavily if he deceives them. This system often seems to work for a time, but there is a wiser method. A child can be helped to accept the fact that truth may cause immediate trouble, but in the long run it pays. He who loves the truth can bear temporary inconvenience or even suffer for truth's sake.

Parents must also be careful that their standards of behavior are within the reach of the child at each stage of his growth. Then he will not be tempted to lie from fear of punishment, or fear of disappointing his parents. Too high standards of honesty or in any other department may lead to trouble. Do not leave a cookie tin within reach of a hungry child, forbid him to help himself, and then leave him alone with temptation!

There is the story of a boy who handed in an essay which had been largely copied from a book. The teacher had said if anyone in the class could cheat and live with himself, she could do nothing about it. The boy sadly remarked, "To cheat and live with myself is tough, but to fail and live with mother is impossible."

The child who is not straining to meet out-of-reach standards or unattainable goals is not tempted to deceive either himself or others to prove that he is far better than he actually is. Safe in his parents' love and appreciation he can be objective and honest about his failures or misdeeds.

As children grow up parents find opportunities for positive training in truthfulness. Small children need repeated lessons in distinguishing fact from fancy, repeated satisfying experiences in telling the truth. Older children can be encouraged to enjoy the dictionary habit to develop accuracy in observing and reporting. Both at home and at school children should receive constant training in clear logical thinking. Idealistic teenagers can be encouraged in hero worship of men and women who told the truth in spite of difficulties.

A general disregard for truth will undermine any social structure We would have fewer divorces and a brighter international outlook today if the majority of men and women were convinced that this business of having a love for the truth is fundamental to the foundations of the home, of society, of the United Nations. The building of a brave new world is impossible without trust between classes and nations who have faith in each other's work.

LOVE LETTERS IN THE SNOW

A note to Judy, whoever you are: Your boyfriend must be Toronto's most earnest and resourceful suitor. He missed a step and "most" came up "must."

Quebec Women's Institute holds Semi-Annual meeting in Montreal

January 29 and 30 saw busy sessions at the Y.M.C.A. in Montreal when the Quebec Women's Institutes met for their Semi-Annual Board Meeting. Nearly all of the 20 counties of the QWI sent representatives. These counties stretch from Pontiac on the West to Gaspé in the East and work pertaining not only to Quebec, but also to the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada (FWIC) and the Associated Country-women of the World (ACWW) was discussed.

Opposition to trading stamps and 'extras' in packages was re-affirmed. A course in Nutrition has been requested by Indian women at Maniwaki and will be given by Miss Janet McOuat in April. Requests for courses in handicrafts, home decorating, sewing, etc., are being scheduled. It was reported with relief that the new highway through Ste. Anne's would not go through the Morgan Arboretum at Macdonald College. The Arboretum is of special interest to the Q.W.I. as it was through their urging that the Arboretum was first established on hitherto unused land.

A few years ago the QWI undertook a survey on radio programs which was commended by the CBC. A new evaluation of TV and radio is being carried out, this time under the directive of the FWIC.

Mrs. Ellard reported on the ACWW Conference in Edinburg which she attended as QWI delegate. Mingling and working with women from North America, Europe and Asia, she found an inspiring, rewarding experience. A project of ACWW is a scholarship in Household Science named in honor of Lady Aberdeen, one of the founders of ACWW. The object of the scholarship is to train girls of underdeveloped countries who will go back to their own countries to give their countrywomen the benefit of their knowledge. East-West cultural study is stresed by ACWW and the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada are working on a Gift Coupon Scheme to assist extension work in the West Indies on the lines of the Gift Coupon Scheme for Ceylon for which the Women's Institute of Canada received such recommendation from the UN.

A project of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada is the purchase of the Adelaide Hoodless birthplace near St. George, Ont. It will be furnished according to the period when Adelaide Hoodless lived in it, and used it as a museum. Bilingualism is also on the FWIC program, and an encouraging start has been made.

Altogether another busy year ahead for Institutes at home and around the world.

Frozen dinners now boiled in ready-made pack

Need a nourishing meal in a hurry? The bachelor girl or the forlorn male can now prepare one in 12 minutes flat. And the secret lies in the bag it comes in.

"We call it a wonder bag because it really is," said Frank Nash, proprietor in Montreal's popular little Vienna Restaurant. "For three years we've been searching for the right packaging for our frozen dinners. We needed something that would stand boiling water, could be completely sealed and be light and attractive. We've found the ideal in a transparent bag made of a laminatte of polyester film and polythene."

One of the Little Vienna specialties is beef goulash. Thanks to the new package customers can enjoy this delicious dish at home. "It's made from the same recipe that we use in the restaurant," said Mr. Nash. "Indeed, all our frozen dinners are prepared in the same way as the dinners we serve every day."

The bag is simply dropped unopened into a saucepan of boiling water. After five minutes it is taken out, and the corner clipped. There are no dirty utensils to be washed, no cooking odors, and no time wasted in heating up the oven.

"It's a boon for the single person," Mr. Nash pointed out. "Each bag contains one serving. As we have seven frozen dinners on the market, even the most conscientious wife can leave her husband for a week. With these tasty meals in the freezing compartment, he should be happy and well-fed."

Good news for souffle lovers

Souffles are considered the temperamental prima donnas of the cook book. They are believed to be unpredictable, hard to handle and apt to collapse at the crucial moment. Actually according to the Poultry Products Institute this reputation is unjustified.

Souffles, says the P.P.I.'s Home Economist, depend upon eggs to give them that light-as-air, delicate texture. Because of this it is necessary to cook the souffle until the air which has been beaten into the egg whites has expanded to its full extent and the egg which surrounds it has cooked until it is firm enough to stand up itself, as the souffle cools on being taken from the oven. So never undercook a souffle or it will sink before your eyes as you carry it from stove to dinner table. Once properly cooked any of the left-over Tuna Souffle below may be served cold the next day as part of a salad plate, and will still be light.

Large souffles will require 1 to 1½ hours to cook, depending upon size and individual casseroles will take about 25 to 30 minutes. Always set baking dish or dishes in a pan of hot water to cook since "oven poaching" keeps the heat more uniform around casserole and prevents the eggs from toughening in the high temperature.

Tuna Souffle — ¼ cup butter, 2 teaspoons grated onion, ½ cup of sifted flour, 1½ cups milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, ½ cup soft bread crumbs, 4 egg yolks, beaten, 1 (7-oz.) can flaked tuna fish or drained solid pack tuna, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and 4 egg whites.

Melt butter in saucepan, add onion and cook one minute. Stir in flour, salt and pepper and continue blending until smooth. Gradually add 1 cup of the milk and cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Soak bread crumbs in remaining ¼ cup milk. Add some of cream sauce to well beaten egg yolks, then stir it back into rest of sauce. Remove from heat and add soaked crumbs, tuna and parsley. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Carefully fold tuna mixture into whites. Pour into casserole which has been greased on bottom only. (Souffle can climb more easily up ungreased sides). Set in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven 350°F. about 1 hour or until top is browned and knife inserted into centre comes out clean. Yields 4 to 5 servings.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

"He and She" ski races have become popular in Switzerland this winter.

Beginners and near professionals sometimes find themselves mated since couples are paired off by drawing slips from a hat.

Novice girl skiers are delighted with the help of crack men skiers, but the male beginners take less kindly to the help of a sure-footed woman skier.

The winners have to cross the finish line together.

February for ferns

This is the month to re-pot ferns, advise the horticulturists with Ontario's department of agriculture. Take the plant from the pot then cut off the fronds close to the crown.

The roots should be loosened and the plants separated. All may be returned to one pot or separated if desired. The crown should be almost covered with soil. A good mixture is one part sand, one part leafmould or peat and one part of well-rotted manure.

The temperature and humidity of a room will affect the amount of water the plant requires. Some need daily care, others need water every three or four days.

A medium light is best so an east, west or north window makes a good location. Be sure the plant is out of draughts and the path of possible damage. Ferns are easily damaged by brushing against the tip of the fronds.

Win Acclaim

Two of Canada's best known singers who have won acclaim before, are doing it again. Lois Marshall, the Toronto soprano, is receiving rave notices during her second Russian tour. Miss Marshall and her Toronto accompanist, Weldon Kilburn, will spend six months on tour.

In New York City, contralto Maureen Forrester of Montreal was triumphant in her recent appearance with the Cleveland orchestra in Carnegie Hall. In private life, she's Mrs. Eugene Kash whose husband was conductor of the Ottawa Symphony for seven years. They have three children, Paula, Gina and Joshua, jokingly known as Opus Three.

The 28-year-old blonde beauty became a soprano soloist for a Montreal church when she was 17. Since then she has appeared many times in New York and has completed three European tours.

Between engagements she keeps house in Montreal. Miss Forrester confesses great interest in clothes and says she loves to dress up for concerts.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."

New constables hired by Council as general business is discussed

Lachute Town Council ratified the engagement of Cst. Gilles Poirier and Cst. George Taylor, the latter on a part-time basis, at a special meeting held on Tuesday evening of last week. Two new men were hired as police constables in the persons of Germain Girard and Felix L'Allier. The meeting was held under chairmanship of Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon and a full council was in attendance.

The engagement of Cst. L'Allier was the basis of considerable discussion when Ald. Nelson Lepage proposed an amendment in favor of re-engaging ex-constable Laurent Foucault. Put to a vote, Ald Lepage received the support of Aldermen Real Morrissette, Laureat Laurin and H. S. Church. Aldermen Horace Lamarche, Alphonse Thibodeau, Edgar Pollock, Stanley Holt and Gerard Lefebvre voted against the amendment, defeating it by a one-vote majority.

The main motion proposed by Police and Fire Committee chairman Horace Lamarche was then put to the vote, Aldermen Lamarche, Lefebvre, Holt, Church, Pollock and Thibodeau voting in favor and Aldermen Laurin, Lepage and Morrissette voting contra. The main motion was carried by six votes to three.

The salary of Cst. Poirier was set at $65 per week, while that of Constables Girard and L'Allier will be $60; part-time Cst. Taylor will receive $25 per week. The salary of office clerk Yvon Larocque, was increased to $45 per week and Council then proceeded with the engagement of another clerk, J. Charles Menard, starting at a salary of $40 per week.

Police Chief A. J. Whiteway was authorized to live outside the limits of the town due to the shortage of houses, and to consult with Town Legal advisor Fernand Legault, concerning any municipal by-laws.

Ald. Horace Lamarche gave notice of motion that at the next session of Council, he would present for adoption a traffic by-law or amendments to the present by-law. He also proposed, seconded by Ald. Holt, that Stop signs be erected on the streets crossing Bedard Blvd. and Sydney Streets, east of Bethany Road. Alterations to the fire trucks amounting to the sum of an estimated $254 were authorized, these being lockers for the uniforms.

Raymond Brunet, president of La Societe Gazifere de Hull, accompanied by several members of this organization, was in attendance at the meeting and requested a natural gas franchise for Lachute and Brownsburg, Mayor Rene Lafleur of the latter community, along with members of his council, being in attendance. The Lachute Council tabled the request for further study.

The auditors report for the year ending December 31, 1959, was accepted on a motion of Ald Gerard Lefebvre, seconded by Ald. Laureat Laurin; the report was presented at the previous meeting. A letter from Rosaire Legault, requesting the cancellation of a traffic ticket received by him was turned over to the Police Committee for study, a report to be made to Council at the next meeting.

It was proposed by Ald. Real Morrissette and seconded by Ald. H. S. Church, that with the receipt of a letter from the Council of Ayersville, authorizing payment of fire department charges, the Lachute Department be authorized to answer calls from all citizens of the adjacent municipality.

It was moved by Ald. Laureat Laurin, seconded by Ald. Nelson Lepage, and unanimously resolved that the Police and Fire Committee, together with Finance Committee Chairman Gerard Lefebvre, study the position and duties of Camille Couvrette, town mechanic, and present their report at the next meeting.

A representative of the Westinghouse company explained different lighting systems for streets and on the request of the mayor, agreed to present a study of the costs in accordance with the recommendations made by Ald H. S. Church, Chairman of the Lighting Committee.

Montrealers sent to trial following court hearing

Judge O. Coté on Monday of last week, set bail at $2,000 for two men accused of attempted burglary in a St. Adolphe de Howard hotel.

One of the accused was Maurice Raymond, 44, of Montreal who has a bullet wound in the head for which he has repeatedly refused to undergo surgery. The other is Girard Dalade, alias Mondeau, also of Montreal. Both were committed for trial at the next session of the Court of Queen's Bench of Argenteuil county.

At the preliminary hearing, Raymond was positively identified by Miss Pauline Milot, manager of the Villa Howard Hotel, as one of the two men she saw attempting to break into the hotel on the night of January 24.

The other accused, Dalade was identified by Johnny Coletti, hotel clerk, who said that Dalade was accompanied by another man whom he did not recognize at the time of the attempted burglary.

Police Chief Hector Lariviere of St. Adolphe de Howard testified that upon being called to the hotel, he saw two men inside the establishment flee to the rear upon seeing him. When he heard a car motor start, he dashed out into the street and ordered the driver to stop or he would shoot. He said he fired a warning shot into the air and when the car advanced in his direction he fired two shots at it from a distance of 10 to 15 feet.

Miss Milot, Mr. Coletti and the police chief also testified that the hotel premises had been broken into and that the cashier's till and a souvenir showcase had been forced open but nothing was stolen.

Legion presents flags to Scouts and Cubs; Meritorious Service award to C. L. Duncan

David L. Burgess, Dominion President of the Canadian Legion, accompanied by E. Struthers, President, Quebec Command, visited Argenteuil Branch 70, Lachute, on Saturday, February 20. The occasion of this visit was a 'Recognition Ceremony and Flag Presentation' organized by Branch 70.

Prior to the ceremony, Mr. Burgess and Mr. Struthers, accompanied by District Commander R. O. MacLean and Mrs. MacLean; Branch President B. A. Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins, with other executives of Branch 70 and their wives, visited the Lachute Town Hall where, at Mayor McGibbon's request, they signed the Golden Book and met Council members and their wives. From the Town Hall the party proceeded to the Cenotaph where Mr. Burgess and Mr. Struthers deposited a wreath to the fallen Legion Comrades. The group then moved on to Branch 71, Brownsburg, where after meeting Com. Pres. H. Steele and his officers, a buffet supper was served. They then returned to Lachute, where at 8.00 p.m. the ceremonies took place.

After the welcoming remarks by Branch President B. A. Jenkins, the colors and flags donated by Branch 70 were dedicated by the Rev. C. R. Lang and presented to the 1st and 2nd Lachute Boy Scout Troops and the 1st and 2nd Wolf Cub Packs by Mr. Jenkins. The Cub color bearers were Arthur McElroy, Tommy Billingham, Douglas Jenkins and Gordon Noble, while Barry Downing and Richard Evans did the honors for the Scouts. W. Stewart Jones, chairman of the Boy Scouts Group Committee, thanked the Legion for their interest in the local movement and gave a brief summary of their activities. The Scouts and Cubs expressed their thanks with three rousing cheers and then retired from the hall with their flags. To the comment that 'there go the citizens of tomorrow', the capacity house broke into hearty applause.

District Commander R. O. MacLean then introduced the Quebec Command President E. Struthers, who after a brief address, in turn introduced Dominion President D. L. Burgess. Mr. Burgess pointed out the great social and community work that the Legion was doing throughout the country, such as the colors and flags that the branch had donated. He also gave the history of the first set of Legion colors presented and used in Canada at the Yorktown, Sask., branch.

Comrade Duncan's citation, read by R. O. MacLean, traced his early days, his war service record and his work in the Canadian Legion (which started in the Pas, Man., in 1919). It pointed out his many community efforts and his intense interest in the Boy Scout movement.

Comrade Charles L. Duncan was then invested with the highest Legion honor "The Meritorious Service Medal by Comrade Dom. Pres. David L. Burgess. Mr. Duncan graciously expressed his thanks for the honor bestowed on him by the Branch, the Quebec and Dominion Commands.

Mrs. Bradshaw, President of the Ladies' Auxiliary Branch 70, presented a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Duncan, as a momento of the occasion. First vice-president Ken Riley presented Ayers blankets to Mr. Burgess and Mr. Struthers as an expression of thanks on behalf of the local branch.

Among the distinguished guests present were: Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, wife of the Minister of Mines; Mayor and Mrs. Jas. W. McGibbon; Lt. Col. Arthur T. Field, Ottawa; Lt. Col. James (Hon. Col in Chief of the R.H.R.) Montreal; Stirling Pollock, President, Remembrance Branch 75, Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Atkins, Brownsburg, President of Long Sault Division, Boy Scouts Association, and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Humphries, Brownsburg District Cub Master, Long Sault Boy Scouts Association.

Receives Legion's highest award

Charles L. Duncan, Charter Member of Legion Branch No. 70 and a well-known Lachute resident, shown here receiving the Canadian Legion's highest honor, the "Meritorious Service Medal", from Dominion President David L. Burgess. The presentation took place at a ceremony held in the Lachute Legion Hall on Saturday evening last.

$1,500,000 Fire destroys plant at nearby Gatineau

Gatineau, Que., CP — Loss has been estimated at $1,500,000 in a Saturday night fire that destroyed the plant of International Fibre Board Company. Boyd's Express also reported the loss of a trailer, in one of the warehouses at the time of the blaze.

Four employees of the company — a subsidiary of Canadian International Paper Company — suffered burns fighting the fire. Two were in hospital with second-degree burns; one later reported to have died. The others were treated on the scene.

Cause of the outbreak has not been established, although fire officials said that from appearances it may have started from spontaneous combustion.

The outbreak was followed by an explosion that sent flames climbing into the sky and engulfing the whole plant.

Forty-mile-an-hour winds fanned the fire as it spread quickly through the sprawling one-storey brick structure, which covered an area of about three city blocks.

The plant employed 450 men. A company spokesman said most of these will have to be laid off for several months until the plant is rebuilt.

The plant itself was valued at about $1,000,000, the spokesman said, but also lost was $500,000 of new machinery that had recently been delivered to the plant but was not yet installed.

A large quantity of Ten-Test, trade name of the wall board produced by the plant, was lost.

Bell directory due on May 24 to have accents

All telephone directories published by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada in Quebec, after February 23, will carry all the proper accents on the listings of French-speaking customers. The local directory is scheduled for distribution May 24.

This news was announced in a letter sent by the company to Richard Rioux, president of the Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies of the Province of Quebec.

Signed by Marcel Vincent, vice-president and general manager for Bell Telephone's eastern area, the letter noted that the addition of all the accents will improve the quality of the French in the directories.

The letter also stated that in every case where a listing is changed, either because of an accent or for any other reason, the street names will be spelled out entirely, and all other necessary corrections will be made.

It is expected that by March 1961 all Bell Telephone directories for Quebec will contain the proper accents.

Dial cutover in St. Andrews East to eliminate long distance calls

All projects associated with the conversion of the St. Andrews East telephone system to dial operation are proceeding on schedule, and the changeover will take place on Sunday, March 6, H. W. Flanigan, Bell Telephone Manager for this region, announced this week.

Simultaneously with the changeover to dial, all St. Andrews East customers will get completely new telephone numbers consisting of the exchange name LEcture 7, followed by four figures.

At the same time, local calling will go into effect between St. St. Andrews East and Lachute, and calls between the two communities will become free of long distance charges.

One of the projects involved in the changeover is a telephone survey of all St. Andrews East customers. The survey, which is now under way, is designed to make certain telephone users are familiar with the dial system before it goes into operation.

In addition to answering any questions customers may have, the specially trained employees conducting the survey enable telephone users to listen to the various "tones" of the dial telephone — the "dial tone", which indicates the equipment is ready to handle the call; the "ringing signal", which says the number called is ringing; and the "busy signal", which indicates the number called is engaged.

To make certain that the customer has mastered the technique of using the dial telephone, he is asked to place a test call. By means of special equipment, the Bell employee can tell at a glance whether the number was dialed correctly.

The survey, Mr. Flanigan explained, is part of the Bell company's over-all, highly integrated program designed to make the changeover a successful one.

Muskrat winters in local granary

(Our District Correspondent)

Mabel — Resident of the district have been surprised at the presence of muskrats in stables and other out-buildings during this winter.

George Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bazil Clark, Staynerville, reports finding one of these animals in the granary, which is on the floor above the machine-shed It is believed to be quite unusual for a muskrat to climb the stairs and take up residence in an oat-bin, where he has been since January; he still appears to be in the pink of condition.

Preparing for St. Andrews cutover

Residents of St. Andrews East can expect a telephone call from this Bell Telephone operator any day now. Miss Helene Dupuis, a specially trained Bell Operator, is making a survey of all customers in St. Andrews East to make certain they are familiar with the dial system before dial service goes into operation there on Sunday March 6. Each customer will be asked to make a test call. By means of the special equipment seen here, the operator can tell at a glance whether the number was dialed correctly.

B'burg Red Cross organization holding Blood Donor Clinic in Legion Hall

A blood donor clinic will be held in the Brownsburg Legion Hall on Monday, February 29, from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9.30 p.m.

Five months have elapsed since the last clinic and efforts to help maintain this necessary portion of the Red Cross service are being renewed. An appeal is being made to those generous donors who have given faithfully in the past and the committee are confident they will again respond in this time of need.

The district covers all of Brownsburg to the outlying areas of St. Philippe, Cushing, Ogdensburg, Dalesville, Pine Hill and St. Michel. Lachute residents are also cordially invited to participate in this clinic.

Thousands of lives are saved each year in Canada through the free blood transfusion service inaugurated in 1948, said Dr. J. Marc Fortin, Medical Director of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service. No substitute has been found for blood yet and each drop generously given by a volunteer donor is precious and is treated as such, said Dr. Fortin.

From the time the donor is selected until the transfusion is completed, the pint of blood is handled by well-trained personnel. The blood itself is carefully grouped, typed, and tested serologically.

After the blood has been collected, it is immediately refrigerated and stored at from 30 to 40° F. until transfused. Before blood is given to the patient, a sample of the donor's blood is carefully cross-matched with a sample of the recipient's blood to make sure that they are compatible. The crossmatching is done by highly trained technicians at the hospital's laboratory and for this all important test and for the administration of the blood the hospital charges a fee which does not exceed $5.00. The blood itself, however, is supplied free of charge by the Red Cross.

Careful administration ensures the best use of the blood. Thus, the recipient is protected from start to finish. It is for the patient's welfare that the blood is collected, and every effort is made to see that it reaches him safely.

"The donation of a pint of blood is not a painful or uncomfortable experience," Dr. Fortin said. "Most donors feel no sensation at all during the time the pint of blood is being withdrawn, and only a very small percentage of them have any sensation afterward. Perhaps four or five donors out of every hundred have a slight feeling of weakness after the donation, but this is quickly allevisted by 10 to 15 minutes' rest and some refreshments."

A minimum of 3,000 pints of blood are necessary to fill the weekly requirements of the hospitals in the Province of Quebec.

Smoke and water damage stock at Brownsburg clothing establishment

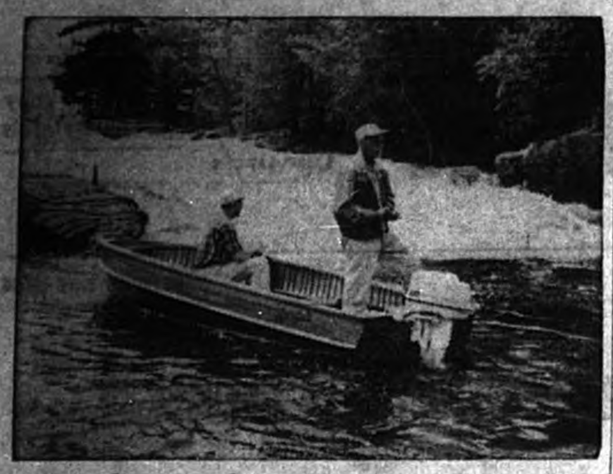

Fire that could have developed calamitous block-long blaze on Brownsburg's Bank Street was brought under control early last Wednesday evening after causing extensive smoke damage to the stock in Robert Matte's clothing store.

The alarm was turned in at 4.50 p.m. by a gas distribution company employee, who reported the outbreak to Armond Charron, of the Brownsurg Fire Department. Deputy Chief Charron left immediately to take the fire truck to the scene. The remainder of the fire crew arrived in short order and set to work to extinguish the blaze which was located in the basement of the building. Capt. Fern Brisson was called up to enter the smoke-filled building with special breathing apparatus, in order to open a door and provide needed ventilation.

Mr. Matte had been out of town for the latter part of the day and and arrived back at his place of business just as the fire was being brought under control. Interviewed some time after the fire, he stated that as far as he was concerned, his stock would be "virtually a total loss due to smoke damage". He also declared that his furniture and personal effects in the apartment had suffered severe smoke and water damage.

Chief Robbins has estimated that actual fire damage in the basement amounted to $600. A number of floor joists had been almost burned through and consequently Chief Robbins had suggested that heavy equipment be moved from that area on the floor above.

This is the second misfortune to befall Mr. Matte in a short time. His establishment was broken into and looted by thieves on August 17 of last year and the loss at that time was reported to be $10,000.

Boy Scout News

By Sandy Welburn

Lately, several boys of the Brownsburg Troop won their Second Class badges. They are Scouts Andrew Izzard, Brian Richardson, David Villard and Robin Hazel. There are 16 tests involved in this badge.

On Saturday, February 20, the Patrol Leaders of Brownsburg attended a banquet in the Royal Montreal Regiment Armoury. There were about 950 people in all with 44 guests at the head table. Guest of honor was Paul Provencher, woodsman, author, and archer. Other items on the program were a film and "sing song". The Patrol Leaders were driven by Scoutmaster Kenneth Ball.

Last week's meeting of the 1st Lachute Pack was replaced by a Parent's Night. The boys did an excellent job of presenting a program, prepared by Akela Bignel, which pointed out the highlights of the Cubs' training.

There was a good attendance by the parents, who according to reports, enjoyed the program and joined in the camp fire songs.

This evening showed the number of people interested in Cubing and was a tremendous lift to the boys.

United Ch. bowlers hold social event

A pleasant social evening was spent last Monday by the Lachute United Church Bowling League, when the annual round-robin was held. The aggregate winners were the Beavers team of Miss M. Gordon, and the St. David's foursome won the low score prizes. After the refreshments Mrs. Wilson Bridge, the president, thanked all who had contributed towards the success of the evening, and presented the prizes.

The regular schedule resumes next Monday, with the teams lined up as follows:

All Stars vs. Redwings
Teenagers vs. St. Davids
Bluebirds vs. Thistles

8.15 p.m. —
St. Pats vs. St. Georges
East Settlement vs. Beavers
St. Andrews vs. Maple Leafs.

JOHNSON MOTORS PETERBOROUGH, CANADA
a division of OUTBOARD MARINE Corporation of Canada Ltd.
CANADA'S LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF OUTBOARD MOTORS

Lounging luxury . . . higher speed . . . portability . . . convenience and fun — these are all being built into watercraft designs today, giving outboard boating quite a face lifting, as can be seen at the "All-Family Boat Show at Deacon Motor Sales Ltd., Lachute, starting Friday of this week.

One of the intriguing aspects of outboarding is the versatility and variety of craft built to be powered by an outboard motor. Boat designers must attempt to keep one jump ahead of the consumer — trying to anticipate his desires and build craft with special appeal to various groups of potential skippers.

Outboard Marine Corporation has been one of the more spectacular proponents of unusual boat design, developing futuristic watercraft as displays for major boat shows to inspire free thought among the boat designers.

All boats, whatever their special capabilities, must have practical usage in order to be commercially successful. Some unusual designs may become a brief fad, fading out almost as quickly as they gain popularity. However, there are a number of craft of somewhat unusual design and application that have found a purpose and attained a steady appeal.

Several boat companies have begun making tiny boats, usually 10 feet and under, for use by the small fry.

By Mander Gardiner

With only one week left in the regular Quebec-Ontario Hockey League season, the Thurso Lumber Kings have taken a four point lead in the standings. The Bombers, in second place, have a six point lead over Hawkesbury. These two teams still have one game to play against each other since the encounter scheduled to take place in Thurso last Friday, was cancelled due to the severe storm. The standings now are:

	Pl.	W.	L.	Pts.
Thurso	32	22	10	44
Brownsburg	32	20	12	40
Hawkesbury	33	17	16	34
Lachute	33	6	27	12

The scoring leadership is also close with Racine still out in front. The line-up is as follows:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Racine (B)	39	38	77
Ron Gionet (L)	30	35	65
Leduc (T)	30	35	65
J.P. Meloche (T)	23	41	64
Ouellette (B)	20	38	58
St. James (H)	26	26	52

Thurso at Brownsburg

Thursday, February 18

The Bombers suffered their worst defeat of the season as they were trounced 10-2 by the Thurso Lumber Kings. A small crowd of 150 watched the game which saw the 'Burg having the best of the play for the first 30 minutes, but tiring as the game progressed.

Richer opened the scoring at 11:39 of the first period after stealing the puck from Menard at the Brownsburg blue-line. At 13.11 Keatley took a pass from Pilon and MacGibbon to score on a hard shot from ten feet out. Seconds later, Legresley gave Thurso a 2-1 lead at the end of the first 20 minutes. In the second stanza, all went well for the Bombers until the 10 minute mark, then goals by Legresley (2), Richer, Meloche and Bergeron gave Thurso a 7-1 lead. In the third period Leduc and Richer both scored before Lamoureux finally beat the Thurso goaler to make it 9-2. Legresley scored the final goal, his fourth of the night, at 15:35.

The Bomber defence was particularly weak with only Mel Stewart showing any great desire. Keatley was one of the outstanding forwards on the ice; twice he went in and skirted the defence to shoot into the goaler's pads.

Hawkesbury at Brownsburg

Sunday, February 21

A crowd of over 225 fans saw the Bombers assure themselves of second spot in the League standings as they defeated the Hawkesbury Royals 6-3 in a thrilling game at Brownsburg.

Mel Stewart got things going early in the first period when he beat Paul after taking a pass from Robitaille and Cruise. At the 13 minute mark, Cruise shot the puck to Racine in the corner who quickly relayed it to Lamoureux who was alone in front of the net and made no mistake as he dented the twine. Lamoureux picked-up his second goal midway in the second stanza when he knocked in Menard's drive. Stewart and Robitaille set up Charlebois who picked-up the 'Burg's fourth goal. St. James also scored twice to make the score 4-2 after 40 minutes of play. Racine's hard shot early in the third period found the corner of the net with the Royals shorthanded. Hawkesbury's third goal was off the stick of Villeneuve, but minutes later Pilon took a pass from W. MacAdam and Charlebois to end the scoring at 6-3 in favour of the Brownsburg squad.

The fans were treated to a much better showing in this game than the previous one with the Bombers having 14 players in uniform. Although 17 penalties were handed out, the game was very fast and exciting.

The 'Burg's first line of Racine, Ouellette and Lamoureux played well picking up three goals; Ouellette was also a standout when the Bombers were short-handed. On defence, the team of W. MacAdam and Menard made the best showing. Pilon, the lone survivor of the "Kid-Line", picked-up one nice goal but his passes could have been more accurate.

The schedule for the following week is as follows:

Thursday, February 25 —
Hawkesbury at Thurso
Lachute at Brownsburg

Sunday, February 28 —
Thurso at Hawkesbury
Brownsburg at Lachute

Tuesday, March 1 —
St. Eustache at Brownsburg

Bomber officials are hoping for a full house in the St.Eustache vs Bombers game and fans are asked to buy their tickets now; they are available from all players and team officials. A good turn-out would get the team out of the "red" after an injury filled season. Don't forget "Rocket" Richard will be the referee along with Mr. "X". You will be there, won't you?

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

A difficult job well done

LAST WEEK, WE experienced two "old-fashioned" snow storms, with some 12 inches of snow falling in Lachute and surroundings during Friday alone. We did not see too much evidence of our snow-clearing equipment during the day, as it was impossible to do anything more than keep the main thoroughfares open.

Saturday morning, however, it was a different story. The main streets were clear of snow, sidewalks were plowed, and things in general looked as if there had been no major storm, with blocked highways. Lachute does not have an over abundance of snow-removal equipment and we feel sure the blower that was here on demonstration two weeks ago, would have improved things even more. But Town Foreman Jos. Senecal and his men did an excellent job with the equipment they had. They worked throughout the night and were still on the job Saturday. They deserve the congratulations and thanks of the citizens at large.

Brotherly relations

THIS IS Brotherhood Week in Canada — a good time to take stock of our relations with our fellow men.

Brotherhood has a special significance in a country such as ours with its broad diversity of national and religious backgrounds.

The purpose of Brotherhood Week is:

1. To give people an opportunity to rededicate themselves as individuals to the basic ideals of respect for people and human rights which are essential to our way of life.

2. To dramatize the practical things which people can do to promote an understanding and realization of these ideals.

3. To enlist the support of a larger number of people in year-round activities to build the Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God.

The list of Canadians chosen to deliver addresses at rallies across the country is a good index of the makeup of the Canadian community.

Among the 200 prominent speakers are political leaders, clergymen, educationists, business executives, entertainers and athletes.

They include Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews, Negroes, Indians and Chinese, and foreign-and-native-born Canadians.

The honorary chairman of Brotherhood week is Prime Minister Diefenbaker, a Baptist. The national co-chairmen are Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman of Winnipeg, a Jew, and Gaspard Fauteux of Montreal, former lieutenant-governor of Quebec, a Catholic.

Perhaps the best test of our dedication to the spirit of the week lies in our attitude toward those who differ from us in race or religion.

It doesn't mean that we have to like everyone. But if we can satisfy ourselves that unfounded bias and stereotyped images of other creeds do not govern our relations with them, then we have passed the test.

Ignorance is often the germ of racial and religious intolerance. And it may be that this can best be overcome by making a special effort to withhold judgment of others until we know them as individuals.

War Amps key tag service

DID YOU EVER lose your car key? Then you know something about the lost car key service of the War Amps of Canada.

For 13 years the War Amputations Association of Canada have been operating a vast Dominion-wide service of finding lost car keys for car owners. To do this, they sell little car key tags to motorists.

This is the third year the car key tag service has been operating in Quebec Province. Last year the War Amps distributed 1,589,400 key tags to motorists in this province. Purchase of the tags is of course voluntary, but over 40 per cent of those who received the tags in the mail acknowledged and paid for them.

In the next three or four weeks more than 1,747,000 car key tags will be mailed to Quebec motorists, Quebec's share of a Canada-wide mailing of 7½ million tags.

All the key tags are manufactured by war amps. Not only does the key tag service keep these men gainfully employed, but all the profits go toward the benevolent work of the War Amputations Association of Canada. In Quebec province there are two branches of the War Amps, one in Montreal and the other in Quebec City.

Allan David Piper, who wears two iron hooks in place of the hands he lost in a grenade explosion in 1942, is General Manager of the War Amps Tag Service. Piper said today that the system of sending out duplicate key tags in the same mailing is paying off real dividends, because many Canadians have two cars, and in most homes both husband and wife have car keys.

The key tags are sent out gratis. The recipient is expected to mail back to the War Amps 60 cents for duplicate car key tags; 35 cents if only on key tag is required.

An old-fashioned winter

JUST WHAT IS an old-fashioned winter? In the first place we should like to know how many years you go back before the winters become old fashioned. The reason we raise the question is because so many people today like to refer to winters such as the one we are having this year as "old fashioned".

If thirty years can be considered old fashioned, and we can remember winters as they were at that time, then this 1960 season is old fashioned. If people refer to 50 or 75 years ago, then we haven't got the foggiest idea whether this or any winter is old fashioned.

There may have been more snow in the days gone by, but a lot of people will find it hard to believe. In thinking of past winters, and we mean 20 or 30 years ago, we must remember that roads were narrower, that plows were fewer, and not so many roads were being kept open. Today, the plows work round the clock in an effort to keep transportation moving. In the towns and cities municipal snow removal crews do a good job in getting rid of the snow as soon as possible. Thus, today's living is not as hampered by snow as much as in 1930, although there may be more inches of snow fall this year than in the big snow of 1925.

Winters today, although beautiful and enticing to the younger set, cost much money. Keeping our roads cleared, the effect on the health of some individuals, are only two of the many reasons why many people dislike the winter, and often head for the warmer climates at this time of year.

On the other hand, the snow is still a good thing to have around for sleighing, and there is still some of this done on our farms and in our lumber camps. The cold weather also makes possible natural ice arenas which are generally well patronized. And the tourist industry is given a shot in the arm when the ski slopes are opened after the snow comes. Winter weather also creates unemployment as well as big fuel bills.

For the most part, however, we think that most Canadians admire our winters, but would very likely appreciate having it a bit shorter. As an eminent humorist once remarked: "There is no use grumbling about it, because no one can do anything much about the weather.

DEFINITIONS

I defined socialism, in a debate with a CCF-er, as "ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange by the State," William Irvine, Alberta CCF president, says that, "His definition of socialism is not only false, it makes him a laughing stock." Well, if it makes me a laughing stock, it does the same for the Encyclopedia Britannica, Webster's Dictionary, Mr. Bevan of the Socialist party in the U.K., and countless others.

Mr. Irvine went on to say that, "The fact is socialism means extending to every individual the maximum of private property." Oh, brother, what twistings and turnings the socialist mind is going through these days! I venture to say that Mr. Irvine smacked his lips over that new-coined definition of his, but if it doesn't make him a laughing stock it at least puts him on a par with the communists at twisting the meanings of words.

Mr. Irvine then goes on to define the "State". He says that properly speaking it is the people — all of them. That is an instrument of the people and should be freely used by them. He then says, "But the power of the state can be and often has been usurped by tyrants and used as an instrument of oppression'.' I believe that! It is for that very reason that I like to see the power of the state limited and not increased. I prefer to have the means of production in the hands of private persons rather than in the hands of the state, even if the state purports to act for all individuals. In fact, the state is run by the government, and government officials can get pretty dictatorial even now. Just imagine what it would be like if every job depended on political pull! Mr. Irvine went on to say that Capitalism uses the power of the state now just as tyrants do. I don't believe it.

But we started out by talking about definitions. I do think there is a good deal of confusion about the meaning of words. Most of that confusion is in the ranks of the CCF-ers who are trying to sell the people the idea that they really aren't very socialistic after all. They are the ones who need to get things straightened out with the dictionary folk.

Bell Telephone announces change in distance rates

Montreal, February 5 — Changes in long distance telephone charges, based on a new system of measuring distances between called and calling points, and a new schedule of rates for calls between Canada and the United States have been approved by the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada, The Bell Telephone Company of Canada has announced.

The new rates, which became effective February 7, 1960, involve decreases in charges on some calls and increases in others. In all cases the changes are small, usually five cents, and in the vast majority of cases there is no change at all. Purpose of the revised system of measurement is to simplify numerous operations in the rating of long distance calls. With the revised method, the location of each rate centre is based on its latitude and longitude.

To take a few examples on three-minute calls within Canada, the new method of measurement means reductions of 10 cents on both day and night station-to-station calls between Montreal and Victoria, and of 15 cents on both day and night person-to-person calls. Between Montreal and Ottawa, there are reductions of five cents on station-to-station calls, of five cents on day person-to-person calls, and of 10 cents on night person-to-person calls. There is no change on calls between Montreal and Toronto.

On international calls, there is a change of schedule as well as a change in the system of measurement. This is the first revision in Canada-U.S. rates in more than 13 years.

The new international schedule means reductions of 10 cents on station-to-station calls placed during the day between Montreal and New York or Chicago. On person-to-person day calls between Montreal and New York there is no change, and between Montreal and Chicago there is a reduction of five cents.

Night rates for station-to-station calls between Montreal and New York or Chicago increase by five cents. Person-to-person night calls between Montreal and New York are up 15 cents, and between Montreal and Chicago, 10 cents.

SEEK FISH GLUE WITH LESS ODOR

Halifax (CP) — The technological station of the fisheries research board is trying to find a fish glue which does not smell "fishy."

Experiments have been made on a variety of fresh fish skins, and the final result is a honey-colored, practically odorless product, with the same strength as commercial fish glues, the scientists say.

The researchers here produced the new glue in both liquid and solid form. The new method of extracting the glue leaves several useful by-products behind, and the dried skin is said to make good garden fritilizer.

Blood donor clinic Monday next to be held at B'burg Legion Hall

Need for blood plainly evident

Sixty-six bottles of plasma were needed for treatment of this 7-year-old haemophiliac, Jean-Maurice Michauld, who was admitted in mid-December to the Montreal Children's Hospital suffering from a brain haemorrhage. Red Cross officials made a special appeal to the public for him by press and radio, to which 700 persons responded. This is just one of the cases in Quebec hospitals requiring blood in large quantities. So, come and save a life. A clinic will be held Monday, February 29, from 2 to 5 p.m. and in the evening from 7 to 9.30 o'clock, at the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

Canadians are getting younger

By C. J. Harris

On some date during 1960 the total of Canadians under 15 years of age will pass the six million mark. The Dominion Bureau of 1958 total in that age group as 5,649,300, compared to 5,431,100 in 1957 and 5,214,210 in 1956.

Since World War Two the under-15-years group, as a proportion of the total population, has increased from 27.6 per cent in 1945 to 33.2 per cent in 1958. So in 1960 something more than one-third of Canadians will be in this age category.

Canada's continuing high birth rate has been a surprise to the prognosticators. In the late thirties the rate stood at about 20 per 1,000 population. In 1947 it hit a record high of 28.9, not unexpected in the wake of war. But since then it has continued to hover around 28 per 1,000 population. Canada's birth rate, in fact, is one of the highest among the more industrialized countries of the world.

Such a high birth rate is an advantage to a country that needs more people, as Canada does. Natural increase, the excess of births over deaths, has accounted for the greater part of our post-war addition to about five and a half million people. And the high proportion of younger persons in the population is a forecast that our growth through natural increase is going to continue at a good clip.

However, there is one point that should not be lost to sight in our satisfaction with the fact that this is getting to be a younger country. This is the point that as we increase the proportion of the population not in the working force, those who are actual producers have to work harder to provide for those who are not. And the same factor applies in the case of those at the other end of the age scale, the over-70's, of whom there are now nearly a million.

One measure of the increased public burden on the working force — entirely apart from the private responsibility — is the increase in the cost of family allowances. Back in 1946 the cost of this welfare service was $240 million; this year it will exceed $480 million. And at the end of the age scale, the universal old age pension will cost about $580 million this year.

Courteous smile claims victory

There are many people who are charming, affable and have wonderful personalities anywhere else but when they are behind the wheel of a car. The Provincial Highway Safety Committee, (Prudentia), urges this type of person to beware, because their attitude behind the wheel can create much more serious consequences than their charm in meeting people. The impatient and discourteous driver is the one found responsible in many accidents. Employ a courteous smile and attitude while driving and claim the victory of no accident.

Pay day should be the happiest day of the week. But the average man looks thoroughly miserable when he picks up his money.

Go into an office, store or industrial shop and watch the employees opening their pay packets. Nine out of 10 examine the cheques with a scowl, or they squint at the envelope as if a bad smell had isssued from it.

The cheque always seems to be smaller than they had expected.

Why the sour looks? Inflation? The working man's greed? The Boss's greed? It depends on your economic and political views.

But if you stand near enough to hear the muttering and snarling of the wage-earners, one word crops up again and again: Deductions. It is usually prefaced by other words. "Those!—?? deductions" is the most commonly heard phrase.

People are annoyed, not merely by what they feel to be the small size of the cheque, but by the fact that so many hands have already cut slices from it.

They have no logical reason to be shocked by the deductions, since they know all about them in advance. They know about income tax, union dues and the pension fund. They signed up (perhaps under protest) to buy government bonds by installments, or to contribute to the Community Chest.

Since they knew about it, why are they disgruntled? Because hole in the cheque is so big? It It is such a size that they never can get used to it.

The wage-earner might be happier if he had all his pay in his hands for a minute, so that he could feel the texture of the banknotes, and enjoy the sense of ownership.

But when about one third of his wage is filched away before he even cashes the cheque, he gets the notion that he never earned the money at all; that he is being beaten around by impersonal forces beyond his control.

He is right. The nibbled-down cheque is a symbol of our machine civilization.

Sometimes the wage earner wishes that he had lived in the days when the pay was always in cash. It might have been a small sum. But as he walked down the street toward home (or the tavern) he knew at least that the coins jingling in his pocket were his to spend.

How did Kirkland Lake get its Name?

Kirkland Lake, Ont., one of the largest unincorporated communities in Canada as well as one of the largest gold-mining centres in the country, was named after Winnie Kirkland, an employee of the provincial Department of Lands and Forests at the time of the gold rush. The lake around which the community developed has long since been filled in. It was in July 1911 that a solitary prospector skirted the east shore of this then unnamed lake, panned rock and discovered gold. He was Bill Wright, who, with his brother-in-law, founded the Wright-Hargreaves mine. Six months later, Harry Oakes, with a packsack and a cash balance of $2.56 trudged to stake a claim on the south shore of the same lake. His grub stake, the Lake Shore mine, developed the deepest mining shaft on the continent. The first producing mine was the Tough Oakes. The bonanza years for Kirkland Lake were 1927 and 1928.

Does wheat lead the cereal grains in Canada?

Yes, wheat comprises about 42 per cent of the cereal grains produced in this country. Oats make up about 37 per cent of the production, barley 18 per cent, rye and corn about one per cent each and buckwheat about half of one per cent. Some 95 per cent of the wheat and barley and 70 per cent of the oats are produced in Western Canada.

Lifelong resident of Lachute passes in hospital

The Late Mrs. J. R. Charron

The death occurred on Wednesday, February 17, of Mrs. J. R. Charron, who for the past few weeks had been a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital.

A life-long resident of Lachute, the former Miss Gladys McOuat, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McOuat, and was born here, later graduating from Lachute Academy and attending the Ladies' College in Ottawa.

In 1934 she was married to Mr. J. R. Charron, who with many friends remains to mourn her passing. Her only sister, Mrs. Rutherford (Edna), of Hawkesbury, predeceased her in 1954.

Mrs. Charron was a devoted member of Lachute United Church and had taken active part in its numerous activities. She was keenly interested in Red Cross work and had received a 25 year Service Pin.

In sports, she took pleasure in Curling and Golfing.

Of a quiet and unassuming manner, she was loved by all who knew her, and will be greatly missed.

The funeral service was held on Saturday from the MacKimmie Funeral Home, conducted by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, assisted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough.

Skiers' Church draws many to mountains

"Religion and Nature" was the sermon subject of Rev. Horace G. Baugh, rector of the Church of St. Francis of the birds, St. Sauveur, at the 9.30 a.m. service Sunday last.

Rev. Baugh stated he felt nature was deeply significant as a part of religious life, and that the location of his little log church in the Laurentians can help develop a religious sense.

His church is known as the "Skiers' Church". Those who attend come from many parts of Canada and the United States.

"But although they have come for a week-end of recreation, they also come with their problems, and much of my work is taken up with counselling, both in emotional problems and in giving vocational advice." "Naturally," he added, "many of the people who go to the mountains for skiing are young, and I am glad that they come to see me."

He said although most of his visitors were strangers "they seem to open up" in the relaxed atmosphere of the mountains. The new auto route had increased the number of skiers, and consequently the size of his congregation.

"We hope they will keep coming, and we hope to be able to expand our services for them in the years ahead."

Information for blood donors and volunteers

The following information to readers and prospective volunteers is published in order to answer various questions which might have arisen and prevented them from becoming donors in the past:

Questions and Answers

What is the Blood Transfusion Service?

A service operated by the Red Cross to supply whole blood free to any patient in any hospital participating in the service. All blood is provided by volunteer donors.

Will I be tested before donating?

Yes, every donor is first given a haemoglobin test.

How often may blood be given?

A man may donate every three months. A woman, under normal circumstances, every four months

How long will it take to give my donation?

The actual giving of blood only takes approximately 4 to 5 minutes. However, donors are given a haemoglobin test; a blood group test is also made and each donor is registered. Following the giving of their donation they rest for a few minutes, after which they are served refreshments. Approximately 30 to 45 minutes should be allowed for the entire procedure.

Is a doctor's certificate necessary?

Only in special cases of high blood pressure. Your blood will be tested when you call to donate and will not be taken if you are anemic.

Who may donate?

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 65 in average health.

Are there any diet restrictions?

No.

Is the donating of blood painless?

Yes! There is no discomfort experienced in the giving of blood.

Will blood be accepted from a donor who has had malaria?

Yes, provided one year has elapsed since the last attack.

Can I give blood if I have had jaundice (infectious hepatitis)?

No! Because there is a possibility that a patient receiving the blood may be adversely affected.

Does anyone have to pay?

No! Your gift and the transfusion equipment are supplied without charge to the patients.

Will I be able to donate blood even though I have just received inoculations against polio?

Yes! Salk Vaccine shots will not prevent donors from giving blood.

How much blood is there in the body?

How much blood will be taken?

380 c.c. or 13 ounces.

Why is whole blood needed?

Whole blood is vital for haemorrhages in childbirth, for many operations, accidents and other illnesses.

Is any blood wasted?

No! If it is not used as whole blood, it is processed into blood fractions which keep indefinitely.

Is this service endorsed by the proper authorities?

Yes, by Church and Civic Authorities, by Provincial and Municipal Departments of Health, Collège des Médecins et Chirurgiens de la Province de Québec, the Canadian Medical Association and similar bodies.

Who benefits by my gift?

Some man, woman or child who is in need of a transfusion because of accident or illness.

Our aim is to render a greater service to the people of our community. Especially do we wish to help them in their present day search for peace and stability. To extend such help to our neighbors is a basic Christian principle, the application of which is greatly needed to day when humanity is faced with the increase of crime and other peace-disturbing factors. IT'S A TOUGH WINTER

Old timers declare this is really a tough one!

THANK GOODNESS FOR REDDY KILOWATT

He will stay on the job overtime to make you comfortable

Count up the jobs electricity does for you, winter or summer. Surprising, isn't it, that you receive so much value for so little money

For instance:

- Short winter days mean lights at 5 instead of 9 p.m. Lights at 6 a.m., too. Keeps Reddy especially busy if you have learned to appreciate good lighting and use high wattage bulbs
- Long winter evenings encourage long hours of TV — plus lights
- Holidays like Christmas mean extra lights — extra cooking
- Electric motors on furnace operate oftener
- Water to be heated is colder — takes more current to do it. Then, too, pipes carrying hot water from furnace or electric water heater to taps lose heat by radiation and cause more current to be consumed to offset losses

Rotary observes anniversary as world-wide service group

Rotarians of the local Brownsburg Lachute organization wil tomorrow join fellow Rotarians o six continents as they commem orate the 55th anniversary of the founding of Rotary. The birthday of this world-wide fellowship o business and professional execu tives will be celebrated by the local Rotary club at its meeting ir the Brownsburg Legion Hall, to morrow evening.

In commenting on the program of Rotary, Barry Bourne, president of the local Rotary Club said:

"Rotary activities throughout the world are based on the same general objectives as those of our own club — the development of fellowship among business and professional men, the betterment of communities, leading boys and girls into good citizenship, the promotion of high standards in businesses and professions, and the advancement of international understanding, good will and peace.

"The one basic objective of Rotary," he continued, "is its ideal of service, which is to be thoughtful of and helpful to others. To attain this objective, Rotary seeks all that which brings people together and avo ds all which separates them. This is the reason why Rotary has become a world-wide institution, whose ideals have been accepted by men differing widely in language, customs, and historical backgrounds."

Continuous Growth

In tracing the growth of Rotary, President Bourne said:

The first Rotary club was organized in Chicago, U.S.A., on Feb. 23, 1905, by Paul P. Harris, a young lawyer, who suggested the idea to a group of his friends. The name 'Rotary' was selected because the first meetings of the club were held in rotation, in the offices of its members. The Rotary ideals of fellowship and service to others soon spread from city to city in the U.S.A. and Canada and then crossed the oceans to every continent.

"For more than half a century, Rotary has grown in numbers and strength. In 1959, for example, nearly 400 new Rotary clubs were organized in some 50 countries, nd four regions were added to lotary's membership roster —Brit sh Guiana in South America, French Polynesia and New Guinea in the Pacific Ocean, and Nepal in Asia.

"Today, Rotary is a world-wide service organization of nearly 500,000 business and professional executives who are members of 10,408 Rotary clubs in 115 countries on six continents."

Rotary Fellowships

Referring to one of the projects in which the majority of Rotary clubs around the world are participating, President Bourne said that the Rotary Foundation Fellowships program was inaugurated as a memorial to the founder of Rotary, Paul P. Harris. "These Rotary Fellowships enable outstanding graduate students to live and study for one year in a country other than their own, as ambassadors of good will, on grants averaging $2,600," he said.

"More than 1,300 Rotary Fellowships have been awarded to students from 68 countries in the past 13 years for study in 45 countries, and Rotary International's grants in this field of international understanding have amounted to more than $3,300,000. Through this program of other-country student fellowships, Rotary is endeavoring to foster better international relations by increasing the personal contacts which the nations of the world have with each other."

Com. Ken Riley reported the returns were not complete from the March of Dimes Campaign, but that the receipts were higher than last year. He also expressed his thanks to all volunteer helpers.

It was reported by the Investigating Committee that the two field artillery pieces in the town park were salvagable and that the town would attend to their re-conditioning. A World War II field piece will be mounted in the park at a later date. This project will be covered by reports in this column as it progresses.

After some discussion, it was agreed that the executive committee study and rewrite the by-law pertaining to social members. Participation by Branch No. 70 in the Lachute Spring Fair was also approved.

Com. Joe. Martel was the winner in the Legion Dollar Club drawing. Or should this be called the One Hundred Dollar Club? Any townspeople or Legionaires who are interested in this effort should contact Comrades Rene Paulson, Doug Kettyle or Bernie Jenkins who can supply all details. Just one thing, the membership is limited to 200 members per month.

Children's quarrels

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

What do you do about the quarrels between the children in your home?

Suppression of any disagreement by force may seem to "work" in the present. An apparent harmony may seem to reign, but at the same time, tension, perhaps resentment and antagonism may develop between members of the household. Taking the long view, and thinking of the importance of the family living as a preparation for life at school and in the outside world, suppressing all quarrels certainly does not "work."!

A certain amount of conflict is healthy in a family. It is a necessary part of the clash of interests when brothers and sisters are growing up together. Children need to learn, not the avoiding of all discussion, but peaceful and fair ways of settling their differences. Mothers soon discover the wisdom of non-interference in brother-sister squabbles unless one child is likely to be harmed or property is in danger of being destroyed.

Of course, a home where there is continual bickering is a most unpleasant place — and not a suitable atmosphere for growing children. Sons and daughters learn more from example than by direct teaching. If mother and father get along agreeably with few "tiffs" the children are likely to follow their lead. Parents cannot be too careful to have a "united front" and not take sides in children's quarrels against each other.

Mother and father will likely realize that there are certain situations which seem to provoke fights between their children The ownership of toys, the possession of clothes, following a schedule, the relationship with other people, are all "hot spots".

Parents can avoid many minor wars between their children if certain rules are recognized and followed by all members of the family. Each child should have his own playthings, and another child has no right to touch them without the owner's permission. Respect for ownership of articles of clothing is also important. The younger child should not always be clothed in "hand-me-downs". He needs new shoes, a new coat or dress or suit occasionally to encourage pride in his own appearance.

In the family routine, the younger child must accept the rule that an earlier bed time for him than for an older brother or sister is quite fair. Each boy or girl has a right to some playtime with his own special chums, without a smaller brother or sister tagging along.

It is also essential to family harmony, for each child to feel secure of his own place in his father's and mother's affection. If parents can plan to spend some leisure or some work time with each child each day, this is one of the surest ways to reduce the number of brother-sister squabbles. Jealousy is the hidden underlying reason for many children's quarrels.

If a child is certain of his parents' love, he feels no necessity to fight with a brother or a sister to prove his importance in the family circle. The "chip on the shoulder", the angry, argumentative child often can be led to more peaceful ways, not by punishment, but by more affectionate attention from mother and dad. Love is the best medium for the fever of fighting!

Soup to warm a winter day

This is the time when that winter-weary feeling is likely to descend on Canadians, particularly the housewife responsible for the eternal round of meals. And when spirits need lifting that's when it is time for a change of cooking pace.

Piping hot French Onion Soup is one suggestion for a hearty winter cook-in. And few people will be able to guess the ease with which this recipe can be prepared. The secret lies in using canned consommé as a base and allowing the soup to simmer and absorb the onion flavor. Just before serving time, crusty slices of French bread are generously sprinkled with cheese and toasted under the broiler until the cheese is partially melted. The cheese-topped bread is then placed in heated soup bowls and the soup poured over it.

French Onion Soup

Yield — 3 servings

2 Medium-sized onions, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon corn starch, 1 can (approx. 10 ounces consomé, 1¾ cups water, 3 slices crisp-crusted French bread, shredded cheese.

Peel onions; cut each onion in half lengthwise; then slice thinly.

Heat butter or margarine in a saucepan; add onions. Cover and cook slowly, stirring occasionally, until onions are tender and delicately golden. Stir in corn starch, consommé and water. Cover and simmer ½ hour.

Meantime, toast the 3 slices of French bread on one side only. Heap shredded cheese on each untoasted side of bread.

Close to serving time, toast the cheese-topped bread slices under the broiler until the cheese is partially melted. Place one piece in each of 3 heated soup bowls and pour in the soup, distributing the onion evenly. Serve at once.

Apple Sauerkraut is easily prepared supper dish

Here's an easily prepared supper dish that has long been a favorite in Europe. It's a traditional winter recipe over there and provides the ideal meal-in-a-hurry when you're looking for something more substantial than a snack.

Apple Sauerkraut

1 lb. Sauerkraut, 2 oz. pork fat, 3 apples, 2 bay leaves, 2 onions (sliced), 4 Frankfurt sausages (or Chipolatas), 2 slices of bacon and Caraway seeds (optional).

Put sauerkraut in an ovenproof casserole with pork fat or dripping. Core and quarter but do not peel apples, and add them to sauerkraut. Add onions, sausages, bacon, bay leaves and a little water.

Bake in a preheated oven at 400° F. Add a little salt, pepper and a sprinkling of caraway seed, to taste. Cook in a moderate oven for a few minutes longer.

Cannon-ball curling dismays Scots

The cannon ball curling of the Richardsons against their opponents in the International matches in March '59 brought disbelief, then dismay to their Scottish adversaries. An aggressive, striking game with such deadly effectiveness had never been seen before by the hundreds of spectators who gathered to watch the opening match at Edinburgh Ice Rink.

For centuries the Scots had curled as their forefathers had taught them. All stones were drawn to the centre of the rings and even in the games that I saw on a visit preceding the arrival of the Canadian Champions it was not uncommon to find ten to fourteen of the possible sixteen stones in play. For many years it was considered an unsportsmanlike maneuver to strike an opposing rock to remove it from the rings. Such an act was a contravention of the spirit of the game and it was construed as a borish and petulant attempt to offset the superior skill of an opponent. This attitude is not quite as prevalent in the Scots' game today, but seldom do their skips resort to brisk weight and then only when they want a barricade of opposing guards in front of the rings stirred up to create daylight for one of their own shots.

The Richardsons, favored with solid footing provided by rubber hacks which we carefully included in our luggage on the flight from Montreal, shocked the Scots with their aggressive Saskatchewan power play. Their overweight hitting, astonishingly perfected after 120 games that took them through Provincial competition and Brier play, was devastatingly accurate and the precision of their shot-making drew gasps of amazement from the spectators. Skip Ernie, sensing good ice for his favorite game, steadfastly refused to give Willie Young's Scots champions anything to hide behind. Even when Lead Bob Young drew a Scottish stone to the left or right of centre and a few feet in front of the twelve-foot, the Richardsons unceremoniously smacked it into the backboards and rolled clear themselves. When the Scottish skip tried guarding one of his stones after a miss by his opponents, the Canucks rammed the guard onto the shot rock and got rid of them both. Cannily Skipper Young tried drawing to the opposite side of the rings instead of guarding, but the Richardson rifle shots struck and careened across the rings to score a perfect double take-out. By the time the third match of the five game series had been played the valiant wee Willie must have been completely frustrated standing in a stark naked house bereft of rocks and nary a comforting granite out in front. This type of game was completely foreign to the veteran Scotch skip who was a master at the draw and whose prowess in promoting his own stones, in-wicking, guarding and drawing through narrow ports had won him dozens of trophies and the unquestioned reputation of being Scotland's canniest curler and most outstanding skip in the past decade. In their wildest dreams the Scots had never thought that the Royal and Ancient Game would be practised or played after the fashion of these youngsters from Canada.

Lest the reader get the wrong impression, there were occasions during these International matches when the census-taker would have been able to count a cluster of stones in the rings. The first end of the initial match in Edinburgh was a good example. Several hundred spectators were on hand to witness this first battle of National champions. All knew of Willie Young's supremacy in Scottish competition and all were eager to see Canada's best in action. For yours truly, as one of the initiators of this event, the excitement and suspense of this first end was an emotional experience never to be forgotten. Both teams were keyed up and tense, for they fully realized that a measure of national pride was at stake.

A toss of the coin favored Canada and a hush fell over the spectators as Willie placed his duster a foot or two in front of the side rings and signalled his brother Bob with his brush to play the first Scot stone.

Next: The skip's dilemma.

SERVED ITS DAY

Peterborough, Ont. (CP) — A 100-year-old schoolhouse at nearby Franklin was officially closed because of a lack of pupils. Two of the six pupils that started the term remained after Christmas.

Fashions

The old-age, ever attractive sartorial color combination of black and white is beautifully illustrated in this evening costume. The top is a black crepe sweater blouse which, when it is not worn tucked in, shows a ribbed hem band. The evening skirt is of white satin composed of unpressed box pleats. A suede belt unites blouse and skirt.

Teatime Topics

Written Specially for The Lachute Watchman By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian women have been too careful and cautious in choosing their clothes. Those were the words of Dora Burke, a clothing specialist with Ontario's home economics service, in a recent interview in Kitchener.

"It was a virtue to buy something that would last," she said. However this attitude is changing and instead women are buying a few good clothes and wearing them.

If clothing hangs in a cupboard forgotten for six months, it's an indication "you should give it away".

Miss Burke's advice for good taste is the classic rule of 14, originated, she says, in 1849 by a famous Parisian dressmaker. The rule: no lady should own a street costume which is comprised of more than 14 eye-arresting elements.

To make a quick count of your own costume, here is how the point system works:

Count one point for a dress, two points for a suit, one extra point for buttons. The basic frame of a hat is one point and add one point for feather or veil and one point for each color.

Watches, rings, glasses and jewelry count one point each. A plain purse is one point but contrasting color adds another; plain shoes count one but bows and ties are an extra point.

Swing to Sweaters

Simple dressmaker styles are the trend for women's sweaters, says Clifford Downing, deputy chairman and sales director of a large Scottish manufacturing firm.

During a six-week tour of the North American market, he has found that women of all ages wear sweaters at all times.

The interest in cashmere sweaters, and their price, have both increased.

Cashmere wool, he explained, comes from the Tibetan side of the Himalayas. One sweater takes a whole year's supply of the soft fleece of a special mountain goat.

Attempts to introduce the Tibetan and Bokhara goats into Europe and the United States have failed. Although the wool comes through Russia, Mr. Downing says he does not believe many Russian women own cashmere sweaters, due to the relatively high price.

Hails Youth Groups

Because cosmetics were frowned in in their day, many Canadian mothers learned to apply their makeup "between the time they closed the front door and arrived at the sidewalk to meet their dates".

That's why Montreal beauty expert Patricia Norman praises youth clubs which teach teen-age girls the rudiments of makeup.

When speaking to youth clubs, Mrs. Norman urges the girls to take advantage of their youthfulness rather than imitate movie and television stars and models.

Colorful birds — reported here

F. W. Hooper, a year-round Curran's Lake resident, on Monday morning reported seeing some 20-odd Scarlet Tanagers, a colorful bird usually seen in this part of the country during the late Spring.
The birds were feeding on bread left by Mr. Hooper and were seen throughout the day.

Large addition for Thurso Pulp and Paper plant

Announcement was made recently by Paul B. Bourget, president of the Thurso Pulp and Paper Co., that the company has approved an expansion program of $4,000,000. Construction will begin immediately and provide work for some 300 to 400 men.
Employment at the Thurso mill will stand at approximately 300 men when the expansion program is completed late in 1960.
"This additional investment in plant and equipment reflects the company's confidence in the future and will result in an increase of more than 50 per cent in the mill's capacity to produce high quality bleached hardwood and softwood pulp", Mr. Bourget said.
Thurso Pulp and Paper Company which started operations in March, 1958, is located some 30 miles east of Ottawa and half a mile west of The Singer Manufacturing Company's sawmill and sewing machine cabinet plant.
Pulpwood is supplied by Singer from a 500,000-acre tract adjacent to Thurso on which it has timber rights, and in the form of waste from Singer's sawmill and sewing machine cabinet operations.
Perkins-Goodwin Company, which owns a 30 per cent interest in the company, are sole distributors for the mill's products.

Mountain aerial bid is refused

Quebec-Hydro's application to install a microwave antenna on Cotes-des-Neiges Cemetery ground near the Camilien Houde Parkway was turned down by the Montreal City Executive Committee Wednesday of last week.
Purpose of the aerial, Executive members were told, was to establish direct communications with the new hydro-electric plant which Quebec-Hydro is building on the Ottawa River at Carillon.
