Local curlers entertain many rinks during the Annual Spring Bonspiel

The 12th Annual Spring Bonspiel at the Lachute Curling Rink is now well under way and is proving to be as successful as usual. This major event of the season began on Friday, March 25, and will terminate on Saturday, April 9. There are about 150 entries from clubs from a wide area.

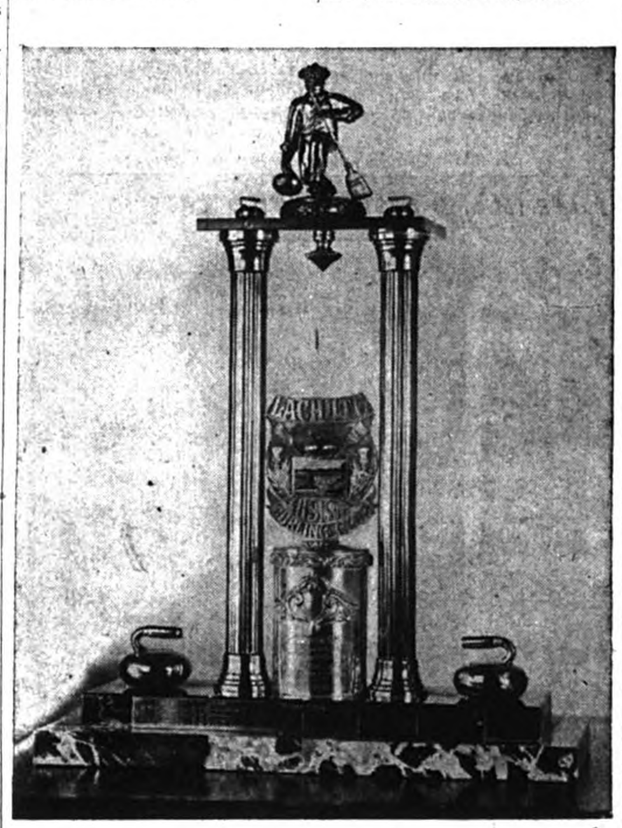

A minor innovation this year was the fact that the draw was divided into eight sections. The rink winning with the highest percentage in each section will enter the playdowns on Saturday, on which date there will be a knock-out competition for the main event and the consolation. The winning rink in the first section was skipped by B. Fuger, of Pointe Claire; the second section by R. Gall, of Lachine; the third by L. Lalonde, of Ottawa; the fourth by G. Anderson, of the Thistle Rink in Montreal and the fifth by Doug McEwan, of the Outremont Rink. These are all strong rinks, with the result that it is expected there will be some first class curling to be seen on Saturday.

It is interesting to note that a large majority of rinks consist of players who regularly attend this bonspiel year after year and despite the fact that the number of bonspiels is increasing each year, the Lachute Club continues to be one of the most popular in the district. Linton Armstrong, as Chairman of the Bonspiel Committee, reports that there are always ten or twelve entries from the neighboring rinks of Hawkesbury and Vankleek Hill. However, there are also twelve rinks from Lachine, seven from Ottawa and the same number from Rosemere and Pointe Claire. There are also rinks from as far away as Lennoxville, Morrisburg and Russel, Ont.

The local lady members make a major contribution towards the success of this event by providing full course dinners each evening. A large number of the visitors always maintain that this is one of the main attractions at the bonspiel and hasten to congratulate the ladies on their culinary efforts.

The Bonspiel Committee would like to encourage as many of the club members and their friends as possible to attend the remainder of the games in this bonspiel, particularly to assist in helping make the visitors welcome.

In addition to attractive prizes, the winners of this bonspiel will hold in their possession for one year, the trophy pictured below, donated by Mr. Quentin Miller, of Montreal, to the Lachute Curling Club, for annual competition.

Award for the winning rink

The Quent Miller Trophy, coveted prize of the 12th Annual Spring Bonspiel now underway at the Lachute Curling Club. A record number of rinks are presently competing for the winning honors.

Easter Seals fund will give you that "In the Pink" look

Mail those pink envelopes today. The majority of pink envelopes are now in the mail and already response has been gratifying. However many think it is too early or too late to forward their donations. Do it now, but should your envelope get tucked away, please remember that it is never too late. If anyone has been overlooked and would like to contribute, please get in touch with Colonel E. Emmett, LO 2-5746, or The Watchman office, LO 2-2494. Next week we will be in a better position to give you an overall picture of receipts and the names of our larger contributors will be published.

Morin H. students attend session of Cdn. Parliament

(Our District Correspondent)

On Wednesday of last week, the Grade Ten students of Morin Heights School visited the Canadian Parliament in Ottawa, and were entertained to lunch by J. Octave Latour, M.P. for Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, who then took them on a guided tour of the Parliament Buildings, including the public gallery, where they sat in on the question period in the House of Commons.

Reports of the trip indicated it was both educational and worthwhile, as it is felt the students will be able to make use of the knowledge gained in their course on Canadian History.

Appreciation was expressed to Mr. Latour for his arranging the visit and providing the opportunity for the students to meet both the Postmaster General and the Minister of Health, and to the School Board for making the trip possible. The group was accompanied by G. MacPherson.

A look at the local unemployment picture and sound advice for high school students

In order to keep our readers informed on the condition of the local labor market, G. A. Downing, Manager of the local labor National Employment Office at Lachute, has given us a resumé of the situation, and in addition, has offered some sound advice to local students.

At the end of March, 1,178 persons were registered as seeking employment as compared to 1,111 at the same date last year.

The difference in figures as shown above does not reveal the exact picture, if we take into account the considerable number of persons who have moved into the district since last fall and also include those who have entered the local labor market such as self-employed farmers and small business owners who have temporarily ceased operating their holdings in order to work on the construction of the Hydro project at Carillon, thereby increasing their income as well as increasing the total working force.

The state of the local industry's work force is better than it was last year, in that production is somewhat higher and a smaller number of its workers are seeking employment. Because of this, retail trade in general is enjoying a better volume of business and this should continue for some time.

Mr. Downing wishes to thank each and every person who helped to make the Winter Employment campaign a success, either by having created employment for workers who otherwise would have been unemployed or by having kept workers on the job during a period when they might have been laid off.

The manager of the Unemployment Insurance office took time out to make a few statements regarding the need for education for those who seek employment and this is the opportune time to draw the students' attention to the fact as well as that of the parents'.

A fairly recent survey showed that two out of three of those unemployed had not completed more than their eighth grade at school as compared to a higher average level of education among people who were working at the time of the survey. It is easily understandable that those who have only eighth grade education are unemployed more often than those who have a higher level of education to their credit. Those who have only acquired two years of high school are nearly as liable to suffer from unemployment as those who have only eighth grade.

One who has but eighth grade level or less will be forced to enter employment in jobs which are not specialized and require little or no training. There are few occupations available for those with little education and furthermore, competition for these jobs is high.

If the present day pupil intends to give of his best in his future working days, he must start now, Mr. Downing stated. The pupil must profit as much as possible from his studies. He must not overlook the chances he has of learning as much as possible. The day will come when being part of the business world, he will realize that he is using everything which has been taught him. There is no limit to what can be done if he has a good education.

We are aware of the temptations which induce youngsters to leave school. Their belief is that earning money makes them adults and that this is more important than acquiring an education. They believe that school discipline is superfluous and that what they are learning will be of no use to them in future years. Lack of interest in school work leads to failure, and failure leads to discouragement. Other factors are also responsible.

It is however, necessary for their own good, that pupils come to realize that even though school discipline seems superfluous, industry and business also have a discipline to which everyone must submit and if we do not abide by it, it does not mean only the failing of an exam but loss of employment. Earning a living might seem to be perfect liberty to the youngster of 15 or 16 years of age. We must help these youngsters to think of what they will be two years hence. Will the young man or young lady of 25 or 26 year old be satisfied with his or her lot? Will the salary, which they are able to then earn, seem so fabulous?

It takes much effort to convince youngsters to stay in school even though this is for their own good. Schools, social services and the National Employment Service have vocational guidance officers who are available for youth guidance. It might be warranted, in certain individual cases, to draw the attention of some students to the advantages of technical schooling, business courses, apprenticeship, and trades training or other practical courses available. The choice of such courses is widespread for those who need them and wish to avail themselves of their advantages. If necessary, seek the advice of counsellors to determine the nature of the course best suited to your son or daughter.

Encouraging youngsters to build their future by profiting from their talents is a responsibility of each citizen, as unused talent is an unrecoverable loss to the nation.

Awarded studentship to continue course at a Canadian university

Miss Rosemary Legg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Legg, of Lakefield, was among 53 students from the Greater Montreal area attending Canadian universities who will share in 486 scholarships valued at $1,040,000 granted by the National Research Council for 1960-61. Miss Legg is the recipient of a studentship worth $2,200 and is one of Quebec students included in the list.

The majority of the scholarships — 423 — are for graduates in Canadian universities. These include 140 bursaries worth $1,800 each and 283 studentships worth $2,200.

Last year Miss Legg was the top student in the graduating class at Bishop's University, when in addition to her Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics and physics, she received the Governor-General's Medal, the Lieutenant-Governor's Medal for Science, and two other prizes — the George H. Montgomery Memorial prize for Science and the A. V. Richardson Memorial prize for Mathematics.

She was an outstanding student at Lachute High School. Graduating here in 1955, she won a scholarship to Bishop's University.

In addition to her awards and honors at Bishop's she received a $1,800 bursary enabling her to continue her studies at McMaster University, Hamilton. She left here June 15 last to start intensive study, aiming at her Master's degree a two-year course she hopes to complete in one year.

Bombers win championship defeating Thurso in six games

By Mander Gardiner

The Bombers completed their season in fine style by defeating Thurso four games to two in the Quebec-Ontario Hockey League finals. Playing before almost 600 fans, the Bombers came to life after a slow first period to beat the Lumber Kings 4-2 in last Wednesday night's game at Brownsburg.

Bombers' best

Jacques Racine, top scorer of the Brownsburg Bombers, who ended the season with 49 goals and 46 assists for a total of 95 points, placing second in the Quebec-Ontario League scoring race.

Larry Pressault, President of the League, and Rene Lafleur, Mayor of Brownsburg, were on hand to present the cup to Willis MacAdam, the Bomber's captain. Following the presentation, the cup was taken to the Flamingo Grill, where it was filled with champagne and passed around to all the players and other team officials. Bill Brown, president of the Brownsburg Hockey Organization, in his victory speech, thanked all the players for their hard work on the ice and paid special tribute to Paul Emile Hebert, not only for his coaching, but also for the time he spent making pools and arranging special games, etc.

Getting back to the final game, Leduc gave Thurso a 1-0 lead midway through the first period when he beat Racine with a hard drive from the corner. Minutes later, little Billie Robitaille beat Potvin to a loose puck and went in alone to slide the rubber under the Thurso goaler.

Leduc again tallied early in the middle stanza, but Robitaille again came back to tie the score 2-2. At 14.22 Racine passed the puck to Ouellette, who was in front of the net, and André made no mistake as he slapped it in.

At 3.10 of the final period, Keatley intercepted a pass at the 'Burg blue line and he went in alone to beat Richer with a hard shot. This was the straw that broke the camel's back as far as Thurso was concerned. From this point on, the Bombers played defensively and kept Thurso off the score sheet.

Buddy Racine made some fantastic catches, especially in the first period, and kept up his high standard for the series.

After the first period, which appeared to fans as being more of a warm-up, the Bombers smartened up and played good hockey.

The team would like to take this opportunity to thank all of their loyal fans for their support during the season.

No warning lights for Hamford crossing as Ayersville Council lacks funds

All members of the Ayersville Council were in attendance at the regular meeting held Monday evening under the chairmanship of Mayor Gaetan Paquette. Building permits were granted Rheo Lavergne, for the construction of a house on Ayers Street; and Albert Richer for additions to his house on Alexandre Street. On a motion made by Councillor Maurice Dumas, a donation of $25 was given the Lachute Lions Club Easter Seal campaign. It was suggested that in future, this request be forwarded to the County Council.

A letter from the Department of Transport, informing the Council that the C.P.R. officials and the Lachute Town Council had approved payment of their portion of warning signals for the Hamford Street crossing was tabled. The signals cannot be installed without the approval of the three parties and the Ayersville Council decided to wait another year as the project was not included in the 1960 budget.

Council received an estimate for the construction of water and sewer lines on Duvernay Street from the engineering firm of Desjardins and Sauriol. Total estimate for the project is in the vicinity of $11,000, a little more than half being for the sewers. This work is to be completed under the winter work plan sponsored by the federal government.

Coucillor Wilfrid Durocher was named pro-mayor for the next three months and accounts totaling $5,080.20 were approved for payment, after which the meeting was adjourned.

'Burg residents donate $525 to Boy Scout group

A. W. Lapp, chairman of the Brownsburg group Boy Scouts Association Financial Campaign, recently announced that $525. had been received from Brownsburg residents during the annual campaign for funds. The Committee would like to thank all residents for their donations and all canvassers who helped to make the campaign a success.

'Burg Social Club elects John Duncan for fifth term

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Brownsburg Social and Athletic Club was held on Tuesday evening of last week when John Duncan was elected by acclamation for his fifth consecutive term as club president.

It was pointed out by the nominating committee that John's work as president had been well appreciated by all associated with the organization, and his many years of experience, both on the executive and as an active participant in club activities, has been evident in the excellent manner in which he performs his duties as president.

Ken Stewart, also re-elected by acclamation, becomes the club's vice-president for the second consecutive year, and Sidney Stilwell was returned to his position as secretary-treasurer, a post which he has held by acclamation for 32 years. It was pointed out that Mr. Stilwell had done an excellent job in the past and it was the unanimous wish of the meeting that he continue in the position for some time to come.

The elected board of directors is as follows:

Red Cross "Blitz" is successful in local communities

Gordon Tabrett, Chairman of the Lachute Red Cross Financial Campaign, reports Monday evening's "Blitz" as being up to expectations, despite unfavorable weather. Total returns, including some business donations and special names, were reported as being $3,333.69.

Results to date indicate the campaign may fall a little under the quota set, but organizers are hopeful of reaching the goal when all returns have been received.

J. Doris Lepine, Chairman of the Brownsburg campaign, reported he felt the Brownsburg objective would be met if returns continue as they did during the "Blitz". "Reports to date indicate a favorable response to the appeal", he said, adding that no definite figures would be available until next week.

Wanton destruction at Fair Grounds reported to manager and police

Ken Riley, secretary-manager of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, reports the discovery of several hundred dollars damage to buildings and contents at the local Fair Grounds. The damage, obviously the work of vandals, is under investigation by Ayersville Police Chief Marcel Therrien and Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen.

Mr. Riley reports several dozen windows broken in the Main Building, where chairs, tables, kitchen equipment and everything else imaginable were found strewn about.

The office building was also broken into and Fair records and stationery were scattered over the floor. The stables were reported as likely being damaged, the doors being open. Deep snow prevented a closer examination of these outbuildings.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Crows by the dozen are showing up around us. Anyone who has the energy to take a crack at them now would have a lot of fun. I do know of a couple of the boys who have been out; one crow was the score, but a darn good time was had getting it. This is going to be very hard to believe at this time, but yesterday afternoon, March 31, three of us were out and observed a Great Blue Heron feeding in the open patches of water. We weren't able to watch it too long, but did manage to get enough of a look at it to know what it was. The Partridge are showing up all over the place and from everything seen, the winter sure didn't do them too much harm. There are great concentrations of birds all over.

The New York State Conservationist has an article on pollution that makes you stop and think of things that have been forgotten. For instance, how many of us ever stop and think of the damage all these soap detergents will do to any organism in water. Thousands of gallons of these types are run into the rivers and lakes every day, with very drastic results. Take a look at what these things do to hands, etc., and then what they will do to the fish populations. Doesn't sound too good does it? Rather strange, but it is one of the problems that most of us just forget about. Such is progress.

The reports on the Lynx and Panthers around Montreal are still making reading. Why there should be so much writing on the Panthers is one of those things. After all, they are not totally wiped out. As a matter of fact these animals have been caught, seen, shot and chased all over the Maritimes, for a good number of years. They do travel, so why not up this way? The habitat around this district is excellent for them and with the increase in the Deer herds, there is the feed for them.

Let's not get into a lather about how many deer they will kill either. From everything I have been able to read up on them, the average kill for these animals is two deer a month. True, that would be a real problem if there were hundreds of them around, but this is not the case. Also the ones that will be killed first are the starving ones, so maybe a lot of good is done by them. Certainly not enough damage will be done to warrant the indiscriminate killing of them. There will be those that want them killed as dangerous pests, but let's look at this situation with a little more knowledge on them than we posses at present. It would be a job to find out all about them, but surely worth it. Right now these animals won't do any great damage; the big predator now is the dog. I'll bet the percentage of animals killed by dogs will be very high. Unfortunately not enough publicity is given this type of killing, instead, wolves, bobcats, lynx, etc., get the blame.

As most of the river rats are keeping an eye cocked at the North, a little dope on it that might cause the fishing tackle to get a work-out. Spots are starting to show through the snow that will be breaking up very soon. We haven't had the chance to fish the river in two years, and believe me it's going to be whipped to a froth this summer. I'm still dreaming of the world record Northern that will eventually come out of this water. Some of the boys told me of the catches last year, some very good, others very bad. That's the way with fishing though. When we can start to think like fish, then we'll be able to get them anytime. One of these days someone will find a way to decipher their talk and then we'll be away to the races.

For a couple of callers, yes we still have our canary. Right now he is walking on stilts and his nails need clipping again. Just to dispel any fears for him, not on your life am I going to clip them. He's too big a bully anyway. This winter has been very busy for him though. What with all the birds around outside, he has been keeping himself in fighting form, cackling at them. Ever let one of the wild birds get at him and he'd probably be Canary Hash in short time, but he does cackle a good fight. One thing I will never forget happened on the Island last summer, when he got real mad and wanted to take on a Blue Heron; another time he got smoke poisoning from wood burning and was fed brandy to get him back in shape. He was an eagle for a time then—until he couldn't stand any more, really stewed.

Various reports on the Sportsman's Exhibition in Montreal don't tell you very much. From some of the Lachute visitors, "It's punk", and the big point was that it seemed to be too commercial. Not enough time to look around at the exhibits, without being bothered by salesmen. Of course they are only doing a job, but I think we have all felt this peeve at being nailed as soon as we start to look at something. At least the Ex collected more admissions this year, so for them it must have been a success. Some good displays were on hand, but these seemed to be spoiled at times by the over-anxious salesmen. Too bad!

A phone call last night that may interest someone. Reg Dunnage told me of a deer that had been disabled. From what cause, was not known. Anyway this deer had part of its left leg off just below the knee. It was an old wound from the appearance of it as it did not appear to have any trouble in getting around, even in the heavy snow. Nature has wonderful ways of keeping everything in order. I have seen things like this, but not with deer. It makes me remember a goose that had been blinded which I saw on the lakes a couple of years ago. With the help of its mate, it managed to get around okay. Also a duck that had run into a snapper and lost its foot, was almost as active on land as the others. The way it balanced itself with its wing in getting around taught you something.

With the opening of the trout season being April 20, thoughts on the lakes are naturally, when will they be open. Not for a good long time I'm afraid. The ice we looked at was 24" thick and that is going to take a while to melt. Maybe by the middle of May they will be right for fishing. But the streams will be open and although dirty and high, they still will manage to give some good sport. This is where the crayfish I spoke of a couple of weeks ago will pay off. For the spinning man, a small silver spinner with a small sinker ahead of it should be good. The fly man will have to use either nymphs or big sinking streamers. No matter though, we will still be out fishing, and to me, catching anything or not doesn't seem to matter. Just seeing the countryside coming to life again, the new birds, insects, etc., make you realize we are living once more.

RESCUED DUCK

Port Lambton, Ont. (CP) — Two Chatham men rescued a wild duck here recently. Wounded in one wing by an out-of-season hunter, the duck was trapped with the injured wing frozen to the ice on which it fell.

Anglican bowlers start play-offs

The finalists in the Anglican bowling play-off series were the Beavers and the Rockets.

These two teams were evenly matched and at the end of twelve ends were tied. This forced an extra end to be played and the Beavers finally emerged the winners.

Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Plans were then discussed with a view to purchasing new sets of bowls for next season and the necessary financial arrangements completed.

Harold Maslin gave a most interesting resume of the Club's activities, including the addition of a teenagers team, skipped by Miss Margaret Silverson, which group he complimented on the creditable showing they made.

Rev. C. R. Lang spoke briefly on the value of social gatherings, filling a need as a part of the Church's activities.

A special vote of thanks was tendered Harold Maslin, in charge of the Match Committee, for his untiring efforts in arranging the schedule of play and successfully overcoming the problems which invariably arise.

The regular season of play concluded as follows:

League champions during the regular season of play, play-offs excluded — The first team place does not participate in the play-offs —

RANGERS (League champions) — H. Maslin (skip), Mrs. W. Shearsmith, Mrs. A. Neill and Miss R. Chapman vs

BEAVERS (play-off series) — J. Sewell, (skip), Mrs. A. Elliott, Mrs. G. Silverson and Miss Sioui.

United Ch. bowlers play-offs underway

The first games of the 1960 play-offs of the Lachute United Church Bowling League were held on Monday evening and eight teams are now left for competition. In Series A, two-games total points contests, the All Stars (Mrs. M. McFaul) earned a three point lead with an 8-5 win over the league champion Redwings (Grace Rosser), and St. Georges (Owen Todd) had the same lead with a 10-7 score against St. Pats (Gladys Davis).

The Series B were sudden-death games, and the scores were: Teenagers 8 and Maple Leafs 7; East Settlement 13 and Bluebirds 5; St. Davids 8 and Beavers 6; Thistles 9 and St. Andrews 8. The last game was the most thrilling of all. At the regular 10-end game the teams were tied 8-8, and in the extra end, the Thistles won by only one-eighth of an inch.

There will be no bowling next week. On Monday, April 18, the teams will line up as follows: Series A: All Stars vs. Redwings; St. Georges vs. St. Pats at 7 p.m. In Series B East Settlement vs. Thistles; Teenagers vs. St. Davids at 8 p.m. Please note earlier starting time. This will enable winners of Section A to play against Section B in the semi-finals on the same night.

The final will be played on banquet night, April 24, when a barbecue dinner will be served. The President, Mrs. Wilson Bridge, requests that all members register with the secretary regarding banquet night, so that catering may be planned.

Local scout troops plan on camporee during May

By Barry Downing

On May 28 and 29 a Camporee will be held when the Lachute and Brownsburg Troops will move out to a campsite for the week-end. Many tests will be given and if possible, some proficiency badges will be awarded. The scouts are looking forward to this event.

Each patrol in the 1st Lachute Troop has been given a project to complete for the troop. The Buffalo Patrol is to make a stand for the honor patrol staff. The Panther Patrol is to make a frame for the Lord Baden-Powell portrait which will be hung in the hall, and the Lion Patrol also will make a frame for an individual record chart which also will be placed in the hall. All must make stands for their patrol staff.

There was a good attendance at the parade on March 19, which was followed by a feast of hot dogs and soft drinks, served by the St. Patrick's Society of Lachute. The boys reportedly enjoyed the event and were proud to take part.

Tenderfoot tests were passed by: Edward Sewell, Keith Brown, Peter Holt and Arthur McElroy.

Second Class badges were awarded to James Bydal and Gerry Bignell upon completion of their tests.

The triangular bandage test was passed by Louis Marion and Edward Sewell. The latter also passed his compass and lashing and hitches tests.

RESIDENTS OF PELEE ISLAND DESTROY WILD CATS

Residents of Pelee Island can start shooting at the wild cats that have been killing pheasants on the island. Pelee Island has some 600 cats, 550 people and 10,000 pheasants. Cat traps have been set up on the island to catch the cats but so far they have proven too smart for the man-made traps. Janine Hunter and Queenie the cat demonstrate one of the traps used to capture the wild cats.

FOR MOVING DAY

IF you are going to move on May 1st, or plan to go to a summer cottage this year, we hope you will get in touch with our office nearest you in plenty of time, so that we will know when you want your power on.

IF you are a landlord renting a summer cottage, we'd like to know who your tenants are, so we can circularize them. Those who wait too long run the risk of being disappointed because, with more than 5,000 special connections to be made, last minute orders upset schedules and lead to delays.

Canadian Library Week now in Progress

CANADA IS OFTEN regarded as a country of non-readers. Recent surveys have shown that we stand 14th among the world's nations in the number of bookstores per capita.

We have an unfortunate reputation in this connection it seems. The well-known author Nicholas Monsarrat has said: "I find Canada the worst reading country in the world. The per capita book consumption here is lower than anywhere else."

We could reply that Canada is much too busy growing to be interested in reading at the moment. We could point to the United States which has even fewer bookstores per capita than we have. We might say these things, but we would be doing ourselves an injustice. What are the facts?

The Canadian Library Week Council reports that more people are borrowing from libraries than ever before. In many sections of the country library circulation has risen by as much as 50 per cent since 1945. The number of borrowers from libraries has increased by almost 60 per cent in many areas.

A large number of our libraries are finding it impossible to keep up with the ever-increasing demands being made on them. As a result, Canada is now undergoing the greatest library building program since the days of Andrew Carnegie.

It would appear, then, that we are not a nation of non-readers Recent surveys indicate that there is even a trend toward more reading of non-fiction, and bookstores are generally busier than ever before.

We have relatively few bookstores, however, and only 80 per cent of our total population is served, often inadequately, by a library. Increasing interest in reading, and a growing population, make it vitally important that we provide for more adequate distribution of books.

The prospect is not a bleak one, but we still have far to go before we can call ourselves a well-informed nation.

Canadian Library Week, April 3 to 9, is the second program of its kind to be held in Canada. It points up the continuing improtance of information and understanding in a complex modern world. We should remember that a better-read, better-informed Canada is vitally necessary if we are to retain our enviable position among the world's great nations.

Century of achievement

THE MOST important single development of the past 100 years is surely the accelerating momentum of change, for the simple fact is that within this brief space of time the condition of mankind has undergone greater change than in the previous 1,000 years.

It is hard for us to realize that, as recently as the 1860's, most people — even in the advanced countries of the world — lived out their all-too-short lives in much the same way as their forefathers had done for hundreds of years before them.

Hard, too, to grasp the fact that even at so late a date in history basic services we now take for granted — tap water, proper drainage and plumbing, paved streets and street lighting, to mention but a few — were virtually non-existent even inside the big cities. And harder still, perhaps, to think in terms of it taking a minimum of three solid months to get from Halifax to Vancouver!

These points were made by Mr. W. H. Evans, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in the course of an address before the sixth annual Couchiching winter conference, held recently under the auspices of the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs.

Mr. Evans went on to consider the nature of the changes which have taken place since the end of the American Civil War in 1865, almost all of which are rooted in the coming of industrialization as we know it and the technological revolution which has followed application of the mass production techniques originated by such men of genius as Colt, Whitney and Ford. He continued:

"In the course of these past few decades invention and research have spawned the means to a whole new way of life — an immeasurably richer life, not for the few but for the great mass of the people. The locomotive for harnessing of electricity, the telephone, the automobile, radio and movies, plastics and synthetics, electronics and miracle drugs, computers and jet aircraft — merely to enumerate these things is to realize the enormity of the changes that have taken place since he birth of the industrial era.

"And, of course, what must not be forgotten is that this is an accelerating process; the luxuries of yesterday are tending ever more rapidly to become the commonplaces of today. Witness television, an electronic wonder ten years ago, an accepted piece of household equipment today.

The budget has its good points

THE DICTIONARY defines tradition as the handing down of customs from ancestors to posterity.

In a democratic nation such as ours, tradition provides a sort of continuity between one generation and the next; a feeling of assurance that we recognize the importance of maintaining the foundations of our society.

It doesn't mean we're opposed to change. It's simply that as long as we have respect for tradition, progress will be based on a sound footing.

Parliamentary procedure is one of the more ancient examples of tradition.

Thus when Finance Minister Donald Fleming rose in the Commons on the night of March 31 to deliver his budget address,, he was doing what dozens of finance ministers had done before him.

It's an annual ritual that usually marks the peak of excitement during each session of Parliament and it's one that seems unlikely to change, at least in the foreseeable future.

As had happened in preceeding years, Mr. Fleming was greeted with a round of desk-thumping applause as he prepared to speak. The galleries, as usual, were filled with spectators and just about every member was at his desk.

As he proceeded to outline government financial plans for the coming year, the excitement gradually built up because the finance minister traditionally saves the tax changes for the last part of his speech.

As it turned out, this year there were no changes in income taxes but there were salary increases for civil servants and increased tariff protection for Canada's textile industry; a prediction of a balanced budget for 1960-61 and a forecast that the old age pension fund would become self supporting for the first time.

It wasn't the most exciting budget ever heard but that didn't mean it wasn't of interest, for even the absence of important tax changes affects us — at least there weren't any increases.

On Freedom

THE WRITER of a letter to a newspaper waxes indignant about a recent magazine advertisement which includes "the right to compete for business" in a list of those human freedoms which we should all value.

"This ad," he fulminates, "is sheer political polemics. The right to compete for business is not in any way a comparable human right to that of free expression, trial by jury, etc. . . ."

Well, he is entitled to his opinion. But we can't help but wonder just how long he would be free to say and do a whole lot of things, writing letters to newspapers among them, once the right to compete for business was gone.

If human experience in the twentieth century has shown anything at all, it is surely that political freedom does not long survive the loss of economic freedom. And, that, we suppose, is not the least of the reasons why the great majority of Canadians have through successive general elections emphatically declined to vote into power those who, by one means or another, would have taken away the right to compete for business.

The truth, of course, is that any state in which men and women are forbidden to compete for business, or in which there is no business to compete for, is a slave state, call it what you will.

There are quite a few countries in the world today whose inhabitans can testify to the truth of this.

Need we name them?

Earthquake and War

— By Lewis Milligan —

This old planet was subjected to immense upheavals in its making, compared with which all the recorded earthquaqes of history were but as the mere settling of the foundation of a building. The worst of these was the earthquake at Lisbon. The greater part of that city was reduced instantly to a heap of ruins, about twenty thousand people lost their lives and a great tidal wave from the ocean swept over the land completing the destruction. The disaster so profoundly shocked the people of the world at the time that many believed it to be an act of God in judgment and forewarning of a universal cataclysm.

The recent earthquake at Agadir was not on so large a scale, but it was terrible enough for the inhabitants, thousands of whom were buried alive in the rubble to which the whole city was reduced. The rest of the world received the news of the catastrophe with deep sympathy for the victims, and help of every kind was rushed to the survivors. But there was no general consternation at the earth's latest convulsion. Science had confirmed the Scripture, that "The Lord was not in the earthquake." And as for the loss of life and the destruction at Agadir, the modern world had witnessed far greater and more terrible earthquakes in the last World War.

"Stop — for thy tread is on an Empire's dust!

An earthquake's spoil is sepulchred below!"

So wrote Lord Byron after the Napoleonic wars, and it can be applied today with more tragic truth to the devastations in Europe and Britain of recent memory.

Man seems to be endowed with exhaustless reserves for recovery. He has survived the Ice Age and ages of unknown struggles for existence since his arrival on this planet. The earthquakes at Lisbon left the people of Portugal undespaired; the city was rebuilt and the disaster forgotten. Agadir is rising again from the rubble. In our own time we have seen nations rise from the debris of war and resume their ways of peace as though nothing had happened. London endured the infernal bombing of the Blitz and carried on stoically and often humorously amid the ruins. Douglas Jerrold, a hundred years before, described the unconquerable spirit of the English people when he wrote: "If an earthquake were to engulf England tomorrow, the English would manage to meet and dine somewhere among the rubbish, just to celebrate the event."

An earthquake is a natural phenomenon, an upheaval of subterranean forces, which man can neither prevent or control. But the forces wielded by man in war are voluntary — they are wilful. The mechanical powers acquired by the developments of science impose an awful responsibility upon the free will of mankind. Those powers are placed in the hands of man as a trust, and unless their use is controlled and directed by humanitarian principles they will devastate civilization as surely as the blind forces of nature laid waste the cities of Lisbon and Agadir.

"The highest proof of virtue is to possess boundless power without abusing it." That saying by Lord Macaulay contains the principle upon which all scientific, political, national and international progress must proceed. Otherwise . . . .

Who was Touchstone?

This was a pen-name used extensively by Hector W. Charlesworth, longtime editor of Toronto's Saturday Night and first chairman of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission, predecessor of the CBC. Charlesworth was born in Hamilton in 1872 and in 1891 became a newspaper and magazine writer, serving as a reporter, drama and music critic and editor. From 1904 to 1910 he was city editor of the old Toronto Mail and Empire. He then became associate editor of Saturday Night and remained with it in that capacity and as editor-in-chief until his four-year appointment to the radio commission in 1932. He wrote verse and a number of books, including Candid Chronicles (1929) and I'm Telling You (1937). Charlesworth died in Toronto in 1945.

What is Permafrost?

Permafrost is a familiar contraction of the phrase "permanent frost" and is widely used to describe the condition of the soil in most parts of the Canadian Arctic. While a surface layer of a few feet may thaw out during summer in a permafrost area, the soil below may remain frozen to a depth of a thousand feet or more. The area of continuous permafrost in Canada includes the tip of Ungava and the land north of a line extending from the western shore of Hudson Bay in Ontario to the southern part of the Yukon. Farther south there are patches of permafrost in certain types of soil. The line that marks the limits of permafrost is believed to be receding to the north a few hundred yards each year.

Where is Canada's Elevator Town?

Champion, Alta, a village on the Canadian Pacific Railway 82 miles southeast of Calgary, is often called the Elevator Town. It's numerous grain elevators have a capacity of almost a million bushels. As might be expected, it is situated in the centre of a large wheat-growing area. The village, incorporated in 1911, was at first known as Cleverville, but was renamed to honor H. T. Champion of the Winnipeg banking firm, Alloway and Champion.

Where is Rogers Pass?

It is the route through the Selkirk Mountains of British Columbia that was adopted by the C.P.R. for its main line. Snowslides and the difficulty of maintaining the road in the winter led to the building of the five-mile Connaught Tunnel. The pass lies between the Hermit and Sir Donald ranges of the Selkirks, north of Glacier station in Glacier Park. It was named after Major A. B. Rogers who explored it in 1881. In 1956 it was decided to adopt the Rogers Pass route for the Trans-Canada Highway.

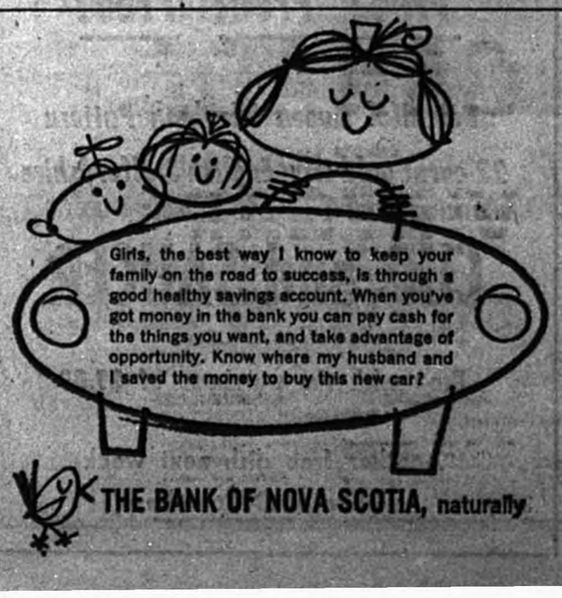

Where is The Village of Bridges?

This is the name sometimes given to the village of Paisley, Ont., which has six bridges within its boundaries and three others close by. The village, in Bruce County 15 miles northwest of Walkerton, is situated at the confluence of four streams; the Teeswater and Lockerby Rivers and Willow Creek join the Saugeen River here. Paisley was named for the city of Renfrewshire, Scotland, famed for its shawl production.

Alcohol definitely not a stimulant

Alcoholic beverages are not stimulants, as many people believe. And so, if you find yourself tiring while driving, do not think or believe that one or two "shots" will revive you. The Provincial Highway Safety Committee, (Prundentia), urges motorists to refrain from drinking at all times while driving, and especially when one is tired. If you drive, then don't drink. The advice is a safeguard against possible accident and death.

POWER TO AGREE

At a time when every single job is important, it is shocking that unions, which are the first to complain about unemployment, seem reluctant to seek labour-management peace.

Failure of the Joint Conference Ontario construction industry is an example.

Last month the Conference met in a second attempt to make some progress — but none was made. None could be made, because the union representatives at the meeting admitted they had no authority to reach an agreement. The five thousand member firms of the Federation of Construction Associations gave their representatives power to commit them to any decisions made at the Conference.

Here was still another case where management was prepared to take an enlightened stand, make agreements and stick with them. They were prepared to have such agreements binding on all parties. What's the use of making an agreement when it is quite clear that you will abide by it but the other party is not bound?

Next time there is an upheaval in the construction industry in Ontraio and work comes to a standstill, the first holler will come from union bosses. They will run to the government with all guns firing. This seems to be the chief purpose of so many union leaders today — to refuse agreements so that government coercion can be brought into the picture. This suits the career socialists in the labour unions just fine — but it is mighty tough on the rank-and-file members. Every time a career socialist gains power in the union, he seems to forget the real interests of the members and strives instead to damage the free-enterprise system.

Unions have, in the past, done a great service to the working man. They have improved his wages and his working conditions—not singlehanded, as they like to claim, but to a considerable degree. Collective bargaining put power in the hands of the worker to meet his employer on an equal footing. No enlightened person will deny that. But, today, many union bosses have forgotten the original purpose of collective bargaining, and they use their vast union power for political purposes. Their goal is to thwart private industry and make government intervention essential — for the more government intervention we require, the closer we come to complete socialism.

Is the rank-and-file worker too blind to see this? Does he think socialist labor bosses sincerely want labor-management agreement and prosperity within an industry? Isn't it time dues-paying members insisted that their leaders concentrate on wages and working conditions and leave politics to the politicians?

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

We are fouling the earth and sea with "atomic garbage" from nuclear power plants.

Walter Schneir sounds the alarm in the current issue of the Reporter magazine.

Barrels of radioactive wastes are being dumped in the sea. Nobody knows how many of the barrels burst and spill their contents on the way down. Even those that reach the ocean floor safely are expected to corrode in 10 years.

Britain is piping quantities of atomic wastes into the Irish Sea. A British scientist has found levels of radioactivity at the water's edge more than 100 times the level of shore sand.

Shellfish and plankton soak up radioactivity and concentrate it thousands and millions of times.

So-called low-level atomic wastes are being dumped in American lakes and rivers.

Scientist Louis A. Krumbolz checked Oak Lake, where "partially purified" atomic wastes are discharged. He found that fish grew more slowly, died younger than was normal for the species. Strontium-90 had been absorbed into the bones of blugills and crappies in concentrations 20,000 to 30,000 times that found in the waters of the lake.

A formerly common species, the white crappie, had died out. Another, the redhorse, had nearly disappeared. Only 50 individuals were found, all three or four years old.

A muskrat that had been feeding on water plants near Oak Ridge had a huge amount of radioactivity in its bones. Much radioactivity was concentrated in the muskrat's cancerous right hind leg.

As more nuclear power stations and nuclear ships are built, more wastes will be discharged into the earth and the water.

That's the picture. Soothing talk from America's Atomic Energy Commission won't stop the damage. And if AEC finally admits being wrong, apologies won't sweeten a polluted world.

In a few years we may have power from nuclear fusion, instead of nuclear fission. Fusion gives off no poisonous wastes. Meanwhile must we go on building nuclear fission power plants? This is the question that Walter Schneir poses.

It is a question of world importance. It is too big a thing to be waffled away by press-agentry, as the AEC has tried to do.

If radioactive wastes are as grave a problem as the Reporter magazine's survey would indicate, the building of nuclear power plants should be stopped now.

Canada and other countries should launch a protest in the United Nations General Assembly. They should work for a world-wide anti-pollution authority, with arms that could reach across international boundaries.

Other power sources besides fission can be found. And if there were no other power sources, we would be wiser to return to candles and horse-drawn trollies, rather than clog our globe with nuclear filth.

Canadian Quiz

1. Of Canada's 13 Prime Ministers, have more Liberals or more Conservatives held the office?

2. Are there more people employed by the federal government, or by the ten provincial governments combined?

3. When and where was the first agricultural fair held in Canada?

4. In 1959 Canadians spent an estimated $16 billion in retail stores. What was the 1949 total?

5. Through the sales tax on manufactured goods do Canadians pay the federal government a weekly average of $2 million, $8 million, $15 million?

ANSWERS: 5. About $15 million a week. 3. On the grounds of a British fort at Windsor, N.S., in 1765. 1. Each party has won 12 federal elections but there have been 9 Conservative to only 4 Liberal prime ministers. 4. About half the 1959 total, $8.5 billion. 2. The federal government employs about 200,000, the ten provinces combined about 140,000.

Former jail pastor laid to rest at Arundel

The late Rev. G. W. Phillips

Funeral for the Rev. Gordon W. Phillips, former chaplain of St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary and Bordeaux Jail, who died Saturday, was held from St. John the Evangelist Church Tuesday at 11 a.m., with interment at Arundel.

The Rev. Phillips was a former pastor of Grace Anglican Church, Arundel, where he served for a number of years, and following his retirement two years ago, returned there to live.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Phillips, he was born in Montreal in 1899. He attended Montreal Diocesan Theological College from 1920 to 1922, later entering Bishop's College, Prince Albert, Sask., where he remained for five years.

Re-entering the Diocesan College here in 1927, he studied until his ordination in 1929 when he obtained the Voluntary Preliminary to the Bachelor of Divinity Degree. He was ordained to the deaconate at St. Stephen's, Lachine, and to the priesthood at St. Mark's, Longueuil.

While studying, he served as assistant chaplain at Bordeaux from 1919 to 1921 when he was transferred to the Prince Albert, Sask., Penitentiary as assistant chaplain. Returning to Eastern Canada, he served in St. Jerome, Hull and Campbell's Bay prison institutions. In 1944, he was appointed chaplain of Bordeaux Jail, and, 10 years later, chaplain of St. Vincent de Paul.

"My experience at the penitentiary was very enjoyable," Mr. Phillips said in an interview in 1957, "in that I received so much assistance from the staff. At least 95 per cent of the guards conscientiously helped in the rehabilitation of inmates." In 1957, he was forced by ill health to return to the post of chaplain at Bordeaux Jail, a post he held until his retirement less than two years ago.

Mr. Phillips was a past district grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, A.F. and A.M., a member of Nelson No. 9 Lodge, St. Armand, and a member and trustee of the Loyal Orange Association, L.O.L. Campbell's Bay No. 13. He was also active in several other organizations.

He is survived by his wife, the former Bluebell Stewart, authoress and composer; two sons, Robert and Stewart; two daughters, Gordona and Kathleen (Mrs. A. W. Reusing); and by three grandsons, Terry, Phillip and Jeffrey.

Brownsburg Scouts

By Sandy Welburn

The Brownsburg Troop played its last hockey game of the season in the home-town Arena against the Lachute Legion Bantams, on April 2. The final score was 3-2 in favor of the scouts. Harold Ross scored two goals for the 'Burg while Wayne Seary attained the other. Bantam goals were made by Richard Evans and Joey Berniquer. Preceding the game, the members of the Boy Scout team had their pictures taken both individually and as a group.

Meeting planned for A.A.A.A.

The monthly meeting of the Arundel Amateur Athletic Association was held in the school auditorium on Tuesday of last week, there being a good turn-out of members. General business was discussed and it was decided to hold a dance on July 1, to raise funds for Juvenile Sports during the summer months.

Thanks were expressed to the local correspondent, Mrs. E. A. Bulley and The Watchman for publicity received, also to Ray Heilrich and Bob Allen, for the time spent every Tuesday evening supervising the sports activities for both adults and children.

Another meeting will be held Tuesday of next week, April 12, in the School Auditorium at 8 p.m. All are welcome.

IMPORT TRAILERS

Burnaby, B.C. — (CP) — Pacific Coast Trailers Ltd. closed its "mobile-home" manufacturing plant here, cutting off jobs for about 30 persons. The company is importing the manufactured units from eastern Canada.

Brownsb'g United month's activities

Flowers placed on the altar on March 20 were in memory of the late Doris Williams, from her husband and two sons; also flowers from her sisters.

On March 27, at the morning service, eleven persons joined the church, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson, M. Thieboud, Gerald Maitland, John Maitland, Joyce Purdy, Sandra Silverson, Nancy Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Tomalty, and James Tomalty.

The flowers at the altar on April 3 were in memory of the late David Black, from his wife and the family; also flowers from his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. Murphy, of Port Credit, Ont.

"YOUR WILL BE DONE ON EARTH".
This new book is dedicated to Man's loving Creator who has willed a perfect government of Righteousness over the Earth.
Doubt and fear rule the world around us. Only true faith, based on God's Word can shield us from their penetrating influence and build up our hopes for the future. Such conviction is rewarding but it must have that sure foundation. Are you convinced when you pray that 'God's will be done on earth'? You can be. Obtain and read the handsome and inspiring bound book "Your Will Be Done on Earth." Send only 50c.
Write: Watchtower, 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19, or ask any Jehovah's Witness you may happen to meet, anywhere.

CORRECTION

Your correspondent wishes to make a correction re the Ronalds fire which took place some weeks ago. In our report, we stated that most all the contents of the house were saved but on being contacted by the interested parties, find that most of the house contents were destroyed, together with a lot of personal effects. We take this opportunity of rectifying this error.

New coats made from Ayers Limited fabrics

Two designs featuring fabrics manufactured in Lachute by Ayers Limited have been released from the Canadian Fabrics Foundation Inc. Appearing above, the two column photograph features sleeves set from the hipline to emphasize the new width of the wrap coat of wool basketweave. The single column photograph features the new collarless neckline and deep patch pockets which highlight the elegant lines of a reversible coat of wool broadcloth and wool tweed. Both coats are from a series of Canadian-manufactured couturier designs by Mario Di Nardo and Angelina respectively.

Morin Heights

The Hon. W. M. Cottingham spent last Friday in this community. While here he met with the members of the Morin Heights Council and members of the Protestant School Board, to discuss various problems which have presented themselves in this area. Members of both boards wish to express their appreciation and gratitude to Mr. Cottingham for the keen interest he has always shown in this vicinity.

The Young Adult Group of Morin Heights United Church held a Rummage Sale in the Church Hall on Thursday last. The response from members of the community in donating articles for this sale was most generous; thus providing a good variety of merchandise. To spite the weather the event was well attended and most successful. The group realized over eighty dollars for their efforts and are most gratetful to all who assisted.

Vancouver (CP) — Police Chief George Archer has ordered a crackdown on jaywalking in a block adjacent to police headquarters. He said some members of his own force are among offenders.

Lachute C.W.L. elects officers

The sixth annual meeting of the Lachute Catholic Women's League was held on April 3, 1960, with the director, Rev. Father Harold Conway in attendance.

New officers were elected as follows:

Past president, Mrs. C. Robinson; President, Mrs. L. Bedard; 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. Lowe; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. F. Harlon; secretary, Mrs. O. Stevens; treasurer, Mrs. Irene Oswald; councillors, Mrs. G. Lowe, Mrs. J. Lunny and Mrs. M. Peters.

In a few words, Mrs. Bedard expressed her thanks and stated she feels confident of getting the full support and co-operation of the members.

The director, Father Coonway, offered congratulations to the newly appointed members and wished the League continued success in their future undertakings.

On behalf of the members, Mrs. T. E. Dwyer presented the outgoing president, Mrs. C. Robinson, with a Missal in appreciation of the many services rendered during her term of office. In acknowledgment Mrs. Robinson expressed thanks to each and every member.

The meeting closed with the League prayer and the director's blessing, followed by a social tea.

Refugees good topic

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

If there are school age children in your family, have you ever discussed with them the challenge of World Refugee Year which began last summer?

Sixteen million refugees are scattered around Europe and in the Second World War some 300,000 have come from Europe to Canada and the great majority are contributing as useful, happy residents.

Perhaps you have been neighborly to a refugee family in your neighborhood or whom you met through church or some other way.

School is a wonderful place for children from different backgrounds to get to know and respect each other. Teachers make extra effort to make the stranger from another land, who feels shy and confused, feel welcome.

The speed with which many of these young New Canadians learned to speak English has amazed Canadians. Before long some of the scholarships and top positions in various classrooms were won by these newcomers with ability and the willingness to study longer hours and with greater concentration than many native Canadians.

We have known a family which fled from Hungary and also a Latvian family which escaped the Russian troops and lived several years in Displaced Persons camps in Germany.

The Latvian mother and her daughters lived for a couple of weeks with our family at our summer cottage. It was an enriching experience for all. Once she said to me, "It is not good for a child to live on and on in a camp with other refugees. I am so thankful we found a sponsor in Canada."

One purpose of World Refugee Year is to clear the camps which have been used for more than 10 years. Canada has joined with 60 other countries in a pledge to help 2,500,000 refugees find homes.

Parents can help focus attention of their older children on the problem by discussing it in the family. A boy or girl could clip information about refugees from newspapers. There are a number of excellent short films, such as "We Very Much Regret," and "The Fountain of Jubalia" available for groups from film libraries.

Canada is a land of great abundance. As Canadians learn more about the conditions under which refugees live — crowded, cold huts, meager, monotonous food, insufficient clothing, they might well echo Longfellow's lines.

"O suffering, sad humanity!
O ye afflicted ones who lie

and resolve to alleviate some of this distress.

Chocolate Vienna Torte

Here's your answer to your dessert problems when you want something really delicious, yet easy to make. The foundation for Chocolate Vienna Torte is a simple butter sponge, angel or chiffon cake that can be bought or made. The cake is cut into three layers, then filled and frosted with a rich chocolate butter cream. Few people will be able to guess that the filling can be assembled in next to no time, thanks to a chocolate flavored instant pudding mix. Butter and icing sugar added to the mix give it a truly home-made touch. Before serving the torte can be decorated with shaved chocolate and chilled thoroughly.

This delectible torte should bring the hostess lots of compliments when it's served at an Easter tea or spring bridal shower. And it should prove to be an exceedingly popular dessert with the family, throughout the spring and summer months. As a change, the flavor of the pudding mix and the decorative effects can be varied. One idea might be to use strawberry instant pudding mix with pieces of fresh strawberries sprinkled on top of the cake, or a vanilla mix topped with orange slices.

Chocolate Vienna Torte

Yield — 12 to 16 servings

1 Sponge, angel or chiffon cake ring, 8 or 9 inches in diameter, 1 cup soft butter, 1¼ cups sifted icing sugar, 1 package (approx. 4½ ozs.) chocolate-flavored instant pudding mix, ¼ cup cold milk, ¼ cup of boiling water and ½ teaspoon of rum flavoring.

Purchase or make up and cool the cake ring. Split cake horizontally into 3 layers.

Cream butter thoroughly; blend in icing sugar and instant pudding. Add milk and beat with hand rotary beater or electric mixer until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in boiling water and continue to beat with hand rotary beater or electric mixer until smooth and creamy; mix in rum flavoring. Fill and frost the cake layers with this cream mixture. Decorate with shaved unsweetened chocolate, and chill.

Satisfying dinner for Easter season

Looking for a satisfying main course which is easy to prepare for Easter dinner? Then try Braised Turkey. It can be cooked on low heat on top of the stove or in the oven while you are at church and in no time at all vegetable can be cooked and dinner on the table when you return.

For the small family use turkey legs (sold in many centres) or turkey quarters or a small turkey cut up. This recipe, from the Poultry Products Institute, is based on six pounds of turkey, but can easily be adjusted to larger or smaller quantities. Allow about ¾ pound per serving. Left-over turkey and gravy may be frozen and reheated for use later.

Wipe turkey legs, quarters or pieces with clean damp cloth or rinse under running water and then dry. Singe if necessary. Coat well with seasoned flour (allow about ¼ cup flour, ½ teaspoon each of salt and paprika and dash of pepper per pound of turkey) . .

Brown turkey slowly on all sides in ¼ inch layer of hot fat.

Drain excess fat from pan and add 2 cups of liquid such as water, tomato juice or stewed or canned tomatoes, or part water and part orange juice.

Cover and simmer 1½ to 2 hours or until fork tender, adding more liquid if necessary or place in slow oven (325° F.) for 2 to 2½ hours or until tender.

One cup of mushrooms (sliced or button) may be added last 15 minutes.

Thicken gravy if desired with additional flour and season to taste.

Serve braised turkey with mashed potatoes and combined cooked sliced carrots and celery.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman
By Edna Blakely,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hot cross buns, which have become related with the entire Lenten season, actually began as a pagan custom.

Ancient Egyptians offered the buns to their moon-goddess and the Greeks offered the sacred cakes to the goddess Astarte. The round cakes were imprinted with a pair of horns, symbolic of the ox as a sacrifice. The cakes were called bous, the word for ox. The word bun is believed to be derived from the accusative form of bous, which is boun.

The Greeks marked the buns with a cross. Opinion on the reason is divided. Some say the cross alluded to the four quarters of the moon. Others say the marks made it easy to break as a sacrifice.

It was the Romans who brought the buns into their temples. But, Saxons, Mexicans and Peruvians all had customs associated with cross-bread. The pagan practice became so widespread the Christian Church embraced the practice.

In medieval days, buns were made from the dough for the consecrated Host and were distributed to communicants after Easter Mass.

English bakers realized the buns were good sellers and began producing them as far back as 1252. A royal proclamation forbidding the practice was not effective and the sales continued.

Street vendors aided their sales by calling out the familiar "One a penny, buns. Two a penny, buns. One a penny, two a penny, hot cross buns."

King George III reputedly called in person for his hot cross buns at a small shop in Chelsea.

Although associated with Good Friday, the buns are now sold throughout the Lenten season.

Now, Instant Tea

Latest thing on the market is instant tea. It comes in a jar similar to containers for instant coffee and is suitable for either hot or iced tea.

The advantage, say the producers, is that there are no leaves to clog the sink.

During the years, tea leaves have been chewed, boiled, stewed and brewed. In 1660, an advertising handbill distributed in England told of an amazing beverage that "removeth lassitude, vanquisheth heavy dreams, easeth the frame and strengtheneth the memory." The beverage was tea.

A lesson in loins

Loin of pork extends from the shoulder to the leg of the carcass and contains the backbone and part of the ribs. There are, of course, two loins on each carcass.

For sale to consumers, the pork loin is divided into three main parts — leg end, centre cut and rib end. Each of these cuts is sold as a roast or may be cut up and sold as chops. The tenderloin, long, tapering, tender piece of lean meat nestled in the curve of the ribs, is either left in place or removed and sold as a separate cut.

The leg end of the loin is the meatiest of the three main parts. It contains most of the tenderloin (if left in place) and some back bone which makes it a bit difficult to carve. The carving problem can be remedied very easily by removing the bone and replacing it with a well-seasoned bread stuffing before roasting. When it is cooked you'll have easy-to-carve, broad slices of flavorful, lean meat and stuffing — wonderful for serving cold, too.

The choicest of the loin cuts is the centre cut and consequently it usually costs more than the leg or rib ends. On this cut there is little or no tenderloin and the bone is T-shaped making the roast easier to carve especially if your buthcher has loosened the back bone from the ribs. If the back bone has been sawed vertically (in line with the ribs) in several places you can cut right through to give each person a complete "pork chop".

The rib end, or shoulder end of the loin, contains rib bones, a portion of the blade bone and no tenderloin. Of the three roasts, this one is probably the least meaty and the most difficult to carve.

No matter which of the three loin roasts you choose when you shop this week, for best flavor and juiciness roast it in a 325°F. oven, allowing 40 to 45 minutes a pound. (If you buy one of the new boneless loin roasts, allow 45 to 50 minutes per pound). For special flavor interest, before cooking sprinkle one of the following seasonings over the roast: sage, thyme, oregano, mayoram, dry mustard or garlic powder.

The Rev. Mr. Toller took a number of the younger members of the Baptist Church to Montreal on Friday evening, to attend a special service.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd and Miss Marjory Vaillancourt, all of Montreal, spent the week-end at Mrs. E. G. Young's.

We are glad to report that Mr. Evan Bates is making steady progress towards recovery.

The sincere sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. John MacRae, of Bell Falls, in the loss of his wife; also to Mrs. Ernie MacLeod, Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Melvin MacLeod, all daughters of the deceased, and all the other members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Mahon and son, Allan, of Vankleek Hill called on friends Sunday afternoon.

Please remember your donation to the Red Cross.

Miss Maureen Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eileen Ball, of Montreal, and a friend have left for a trip to England and Ireland and expect to be away six weeks. Miss Ball is a grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacLeod, of Avoca.

PUREBRED STOCK

Red Deer, Alta. (CP) — Dr. F. J. Leslie, chief registration officed of the federal agriculture department, says registration of purebred animals in Canada was a record 189,425 in 1959, compared with 186,811 in 1958 and 165,806 five years ago.

Mrs. Maude Leroy has returned from Ormstown, where she spent the winter months with her son, Mr. Walter Leroy.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of the late James Brown, Sr.

Mrs. Stanley Dodd, of Kilmar was the Sunday guest of Miss Geraldine Owens.

Miss Neta Dupuis, of Hawkesbury spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. T. Dupuis.

TELEVISION SHOWS TOO TOUGH FOR CHILDREN?

Here is the kind of television fare your children may see between 3:30 in the afternoon and 7:00 at night. At any time during this period youngsters may witness violence as shown in the above photographs. Experts are divided on whether sex and violence as seen on television is harmful to juvenile viewers. Some say that it is the seed of juvenile delinquency while others say the sight of brutal acts as portrayed on the screen may purge children of similar feelings. Most violent shows appear on U.S. networks while children's programing on CBC is kept strictly on the light side with locally produced educational shows and network cartoons.

Says serious books are library's need

Winnipeg Man., (CP) — Winnipeg's chief librarian says that too much attention is being paid to popular appeal in books. A reader can buy "popular" books at many places, while the library should supply his more serious reading material.

"It is my impression that in recent years our program has paid too much attention to popular appeal," H. S. Easton noted in his annual report. "It is no great tragedy if a reader cannot find a mystery which he has not read, or a copy of the current best seller. At small expense he can meet these needs at the corner drug store, or the nearest supermarket."

A library's failure to provide books required by the serious student or researcher is a serious matter, Mr. Easton said.

County native dies while vacationing at Niagara Falls

The late James Brown, Sr.

Friends and relatives were grieved when informed of the death of a well known Argenteuil resident in the person of James Brown. Mr. Brown was the youngest son of the late Edward Brown and his wife, Charlotte MacKay. He was born and educated in Calumet and had spent his entire life on the old homestead. He was in his 77th year.

Mr. Brown had in the past few years retired from farming, due to ill health and in January, accompanied by his wife, had gone to Niagara Falls to spend the remainder of the winter with his only daughter, (Lila) Mrs. Vern Bennett and Mr. Bennett, where he succumbed to his illness early Thursday morning, March 31.

The late Mr. Brown was a devout member of the Pentecostal faith and of the Loyal Orange Lodge. Members of L.O.L. 58 Grenville conducted the last rites of the Order at the Desforges Funeral Parlors Friday evening, with members of Harrington L.O.L., including Bro. Scott MacLean, County Master and Avoca brethren in attendance.

The funeral service held Saturday afternoon was conducted by Rev. D. Minor, local Pentecostal pastor.

Requested hymns sung were 'Leaning on the Everlasting Arms', and 'Safe in the Arms of Jesus', also a solo 'On Zions Hill', by Rev. Minor.

Left to mourn his passing, besides his loving wife (the former Ellen Stewart) and his daughter, Mrs. V. Bennett, are three sons, Norman, of Eden, N.Y., James, of Calumet and Walter, of Hawkesbury; seven grandchildren and one brother, Allan, of Pte. au Chêne, the only surviving member of a family of nine. A son, Gerald, predeceased him in 1948.

The beautiful floral tributes showed the high esteem and affection of relatives and friends.

Pall-bearers were Messrs Herbert Brown, Melvin Rayson, Dougal Trineer, Edward Trineer, Sterling Loughren and Duncan MacLean.

Relatives from a distance in attendance at the funeral included: Mr. and Mrs. Vern Bennett and son, James, of Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brown, of Eden, N.Y., and Mr. Melvin Rayson, of Montreal.

Cushing

Mr. and Mrs. F. Pitt, also Mr. and Mrs. D. Taylor and small daughter, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Elliott on Sunday. Other callers at the Elliott home were Mrs. Dr. Marjorie Harbert and little daughters, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dougall and son, Graham of Cote St. Luc were Sunday guests at Bayside Farm. Miss E. M. Graham who had spent the week-end with her mother and brother, returned to the city with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fuller spent Sunday in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil R. Graham, of Lachute, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bradford on Tuesday evening.

Calumet

The many friends of Mrs. Isaac Young wish her a speedy recovery and hope she will soon return home.

Miss Lily Hall has returned home after spending some time with her sister, Mrs. John Carrière, in St. Thérèse.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Nixon were Mr. and Mrs. R. Bessner and family, of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bessner and Gerald, of Fournier; also Mr. Montresse and Bernie, of Montreal.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the Brown family in the death of their father, Mr. James Brown, who passed away in Port Colborne on March 31. Burial was in Calumet on April 2.

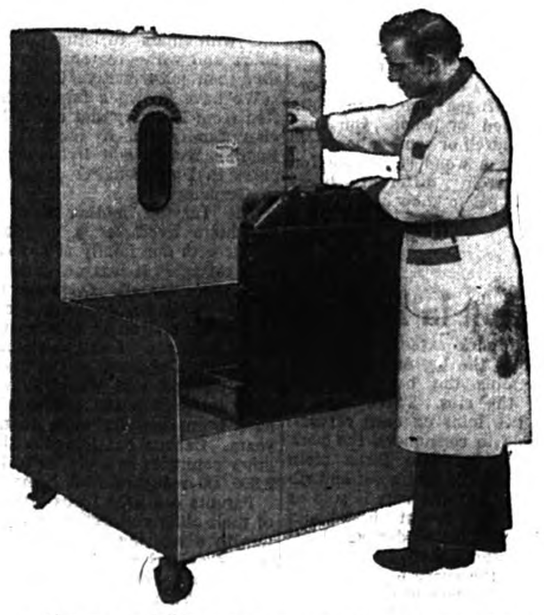

Residents hope Mrs. Thomas McHardy, who is in the Smith Clinic, will soon recover and be able to return home.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Nixon on Friday were Mrs. Florence Wheeler, son Bert and daughter Mabel, all of White River Junction, Vermont.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

The tight skin on his forehead appeared like two small white wings where his hairline receded at his temples. This gave his rather cherubic face the boyish expression of a six-year-old school boy surprised at life. Yet, I figured, he must have been at least ten years away from his last scholastic struggle. He pushed a forkful of peas on his plate toward a mound of mashed potatoes to ensure a safe landing in his mouth for the elusive blobal pellets as the train swayed in its rapid transit. Vehemently he expressed his views of today's educational methods for all to hear within the range of his rather attractive male voice.

I had been fascinated while watching him manipulate his knife and fork, for this was the first time in my life I had ever seen an honest to gosh ambidextrous person in action. Yet this achievement, shall I call it, was the reason for his sounding off. His companion remarked this trait at about the same time I noticed something unusual regarding his eating habits.

"When I was six," he commenced, "my first teacher discovered I was left-handed. For the rest of my school life I was in misery. She insisted on changing my natural inclination to use my left hand to the awkward torture of writing, drawing and cutting up scraps with my right hand. Her first report followed me from room to room. I was rated as stupid because I tried to read from right to left and add columns of figures from left to right. Nobody, until I was fifteen, tried to figure out what was wrong with me."

His story was a fascinating one and progressed from his own student troubles to those of his eight year old son. . . Ever since the Russians put Sputnik into orbit our educators have been trying to produce little geniuses in one generation," his narrative continued. My own mashed potatoes were by then stone cold, and the peas on my plate sat in a little pool of congealed gravy while I listened. Was I evesdropping? Hardly, for his voice boomed on in indignation.

He bemoaned the frustration of his youngster whose homework the night before had been 'write six copybook pages on Japan'. "Why, the little gaffer can't even write easily, and he was in tears because he didn't know where to begin about Japan." The vociferous father admited that the teacher had probably taken the subject up in class but, he contended, at eight, no youngster was capable of writing six pages on any subject before his bedtime.

"You'd think they were cramming them into one big meat grinder along with their text books and out they expect them to come, like these sausages, all stuffed with knowledge." Those were the last words I heard as he paid his check and his voice trailed back from the long corridor separating the dinette from the VIP coach ahead.

It's the old argument of the gifted child setting the pace for the more normal one who develops at a much slower pace. I expect the reason I have been asked to act on several panels on this subject before Home and School groups, is because we had just this mixture of scholastic ability in our own family. One son was an easy learner, could grasp almost any challenge his teachers experimented with and went through grammar, secondary schools and University more or less in a breeze. He was as intolerant of his brother's struggle with mathematics and the correction that had to be made in his mirror mind reading habits, as were the smaller lad's teachers times. Children of the same parents and same environment, they are as different in their selection of careers and the contribution they are at present making to today's business world as they were in their choice of amusements as children.

There will always be parents who grumble at what they consider a too advanced educational system and those who belittle it and think it inadequate. I'd like to lay a bet on the fact the ambitextrous gentleman's son may never become our ambassador to Japan, but that there'll come a day when he'll pound a desk and contend that the Board of Education in the new subdivision in which he lives, should establish separate classes for the above average student and give his son a break. It's an inevitable as day following night, or one generation following another.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

LIQUID WONDER DRUG

Persuading children to take medicine is often a difficult proposition. If the child is seriously ill, and has suffered the usual loss of appetite that accompanies such illnesses, it may be a battle to get him to take the very capsules needed to save his life.

Similarly nobody likes injections, and children seem to like them least of all. After the child's experiences with the necessary inoculations of his early school life, he has no love of needles — and the approach of a hypodermic containing a vital antibiotic during an illness may be the signal for loud protests or silent terror.

The pharmaceutical industry with its usual ingenuity has found a way out of this dilemma. It is offering its wonder drugs in pleasant, flavored liquids that go down more like dessert than medicine. The new broad-range antibiotic tetracycline, for instance, is now available in a fruit-flavored liquid form. Recent reports by physicians show that it is not only well accepted by children, but that their parents like it too.

Doctors issue one small word of caution, however. When giving pleasant-tasting but powerful medicine to children, it's not a good idea to tell them that it's candy! They might believe you and take more than they should, on their own initiative.

To Raise Battleship

The German battleship Blucher, sunk by Norwegians early in World War II in Oslo harbor, may be raised by a Scarboro, Ont., man. Eric Myers, 37, is giving up a prosperous business to undertake the project this summer. The project will be aided by both the West German and Norwegian governments. Norwegian-born Myers has been in Canada for 10 years.

A mathematical formula for curling strategy

Modern curling strategy as practiced by Canada's topnotch competitors has taken a lot of color out of the game.

As compared with the style of play in vogue a quarter of a century ago, today's version of the ancient Scottish pastime has reduced it to an exact science or a simple mathematical formula when it comes to two strong rinks fighting it out for provincial or Dominion laurels.

Gone is the era of in-wicks, out-wicks, raises, guards and draws through a narrow port that were the credentials of a champion a few decades back. Seldom do the armchair skips behind the glass see a cluster of stones in the rings and a barrage of guards out front when the name rinks clash, and rarely are the players called upon to do more than hit or draw. Long guards are drilled unceremoniously out of the way; short guards are buffeted to one side; crucial ends are deliberately blanked to pulverize an opponents's attempt to come from behind and equalize the score. Stones are purposely thrown through the rings to dash the last smouldering fires of hope in the minds of an opposing rink.

Championship curling today, particularly among Western teams, is ruthless, relentless and as hard and unyielding as steel. No quarter is asked and none given. But with all these modern manoeuvers a lot of glamor has been lost.

The spectator gets his thrill because the stakes are high and the prize is great rather than from the excitement of witnessing a difficult hit-and-roll behind a covey of guards, a breathtaking draw through a narrow port, or a scintillating raise from the front ring to the button. All these and many more stories of the feats of long-ago greats in the curling world will seldom be repeated. Their modern counterparts play the law of averages and dictate a strategy that rules out the possibility of an opponent making a shot that cannot be followed with comparative ease.

This was a startling revelation that struck me last March when the young Canadian Champions from Regina — the Richardson rink — relentlessly pounded Willie Young's Scottish champions into submission in the five-game International Series in their own back yard.

Here were two styles of play 30 to 40 years apart suddenly and dramatically both drawn together. There was no transition allowed the Scots who had practiced their own style without interference until the miracle of modern air transportation imposed the dynamic play of the Canadian curling world on them.

With all the invincible qualities the modern game has produced, curling has lost much of the finesse of the old days when greater versatility was demanded on its shotsmiths. This is the price that curling is paying for its present popularity with its accent on winning. But is it worth it?

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

A little attention to proper steering can eliminate one of the major causes of driving fatigue on a trip. It's amazing how many people make this simple operation difficult.

There's the stiff-arm driver who sits too far from the wheel; the low-slung driver whose face barely peers over the wheel; and the crushed-chest driver who tucks the wheel into his or her midriff. All these these people have assumed uncomfortable and improper driving positions.

For best driving control and comfort, first adjust the seat so that your forearms are about parallel with the plane of the wheel and you are able to operate the foot pedals easily. If you haven't a clear view of the road, prop yourself up with a car cushion.

Incidentally, pretty gloves have no place on a steering wheel if they're made of Jersey, nylon or smooth suede since these materials may have a slippery grip. Capeskin or pigskin protect the hands without sacrificing safety or appearance.

More than three inches of "play" in the steering mechanism may impair your control of the car. It also may contribute to misalignment of the wheels — and consequently, extra tire wear. Reputable garages can easily correct this.

Steering is the simplest driving operation when you've been steered right to start with!

Fowl consumption responds to grading and marking regulations in trading

Per capita consumption of poultry in Canada shot from 18.3 pounds in 1943 to 26.6 pounds in 1958 following application of grading and marketing regulations at the retail level, E. D. Bonnyman of the Poultry Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, told the United States turkey industry.

Mr. Bonnyman took part in a panel at the National Turkey Federation convention at Minneapolis last month. Over 6,000 attended.

He told the Americans that while the regulations could not be credited with all the increase in consumption, they were a big contributing factor. Consumers reacted favorably to purchasing poultry on a graded basis, he said, and the policy had a standardizing effect on overall merchandising.

Per capita consumption of turkey rose from 2.2 pounds to 5.9 pounds in the same five-year period.

Regulations had no upsetting effect on trading, Mr. Bonnyman said, due largely to carefully laid groundwork. An advance program included (1) individual grade marking of birds at registered grading stations, (2) meetings with wholesalers, retailers, consumers and producers, (3) extensive display work at the retail level.

"Application of these regulations requires checking at registered stations and at the retail level, but on the whole there is no particular difficulty with respect to enforcement, with the producer and consumer being the program's greatest boosters," said the Canadian official.

The results of selling poultry by grade have included:

— Greater demand for the top grade, with a wider spread in price between grades.

— A higher percentage of Grade A birds due to price incentive.

— Trading between wholesaler, retailer and registered station facilitated.

— More attractive birds on display and increased per capita consumption.

Summed up Mr. Bonnyman: "Canadian consumers like to buy graded and grade marked poultry, and good producers like to see the grade of poultry they produce carried through to the consumer".

Rear pullets in pole barn

Want to get the most out of your pole barn? Then consider this:

At the Nappan, N.S., federal experimental farm, it was found that large, pole-type loafing barns used for cattle in winter make excellent shelters for rearing pullets in confinement during spring and summer.

T. M. MacIntyre reports that 2,000 White Leghorns were reared from eight to 20 weeks in a pole barn 40 by 100 feet. Five doors, three in front and one at each end, were wired so that they could be left open or closed depending on the weather.

Feed hoppers and water fonts were arranged so as to leave a central alley wide enough for a truck. Tubular-type feeders held sufficient feed for one week. Movable roosts, four feet high, left floor space for the birds during the day.

This method of rearing pullets eliminated losses from predatory animals, reduced feeding time, and cut down on late evening and early morning attention.

Milk fat kept from rubberware

A new treatment for milking machine rubberware that eliminates troublesome boiling is recommended by the Dairy Technology Research Institute, Canada Department of Agriculture.

The treatment requires two sets of rubberware alternated weekly, one set soaking in five per cent lye solution at room temperature for a week at a time.

This method keeps the rubberware relatively free from fat, and the length of service of both sets is more than double that of one set when used continuously, states J. A. Elliott.

The concentration of lye is important. Solutions stronger than five per cent by weight cause some types of rubber to harden and weaker solutions do not remove all the fat. Soft water should be used for making lye solutions, as the minerals from hard water may form a scale, or milkstone, on the rubber.

Container Types

Iron, steel or plastic containers with close-fitting covers are suitable for the lye solution. Aluminum and earthenware containers are damaged by lye. A perforated plastic pail makes a convenient container for putting the rubberware into the lye solution and transferring it to the rinse water.

To avoid burns, rubber gloves or metal tongs should be used and care exercised to prevent clothes from being damaged.

The five per cent lye solution may be used continuously for three months. The initial cost of a second set of rubberware and containers is compensated for by convenience, saving in lye, and longer life for rubberware.

A supplement to Publication 627 of the Canada Department of Agriculture describes the procedure and is available at Ottawa on request.

New use for apple is discovered

Apple sauce, traditionally served with pork, may now accompany other meats to the dinner table in the form of canned jellied apple sauce.

The jellied sauce was developed at the Canada Department of Agriculture Research Station at Summerland, B.C., as one of a series of products intended to utilize surplus apples of dessert varieties.

"Though normal fruit jellies must contain more than 65 per cent sugar in order to set, use of a special pectin permits a gel to be formed from sweetened apple sauce containing not more than 30 per cent sugar. Fruit acid is added to impart a good tart flavor to jellied sauce made from low-acid dessert varieties.

The set of the jelly is controlled by varying the proportions of pectin, sugar, and acid so that the product will be firm enough to slice, yet not too stiff to spread.

Addition of red food coloring gives an attractive product for serving with turkey or chicken, and a nutmeg-flavored jelly is good with ham or pork.

Forecast 1960 milk output will be less

Canada's milk production this year is expected to be about 200 million pounds less than the 18 billion pound output of 1959, according to Dr. H. A. Derby, director of the Dairy Products Division, Canada Department of Agriculture.

He told the Dairy Farmers of Canada that a downward trend in cow numbers, which started in 1957, will continue and, with an appreciable increase in milk per cow unlikely, total production will be lower.

Dr. Derby pointed out that a 1959 world shortage of dairy products, due to drought in the United Kingdom and western Europe, opened export channels and allowed Canada to reduce its holdings of butter, cheese and dry skimmed milk to a level more in balance with domestic requirements.

He said if predictions for improved economic conditions in 1960 prove true, and with a normal increase in population, the country can look forward to greater sales of fluid milk, cream, cheese, ice-cream and concentrated milk products.

Dr. Derby, in a sweeping review of Canadian dairying, noted that in 1959 butter production was 324 million pounds less than that of the preceding year. "And," he added, "if there is a further reduction this year, the result should be a better balance with consumption than in the past few years".

Cheddar cheese production last year was estimated at 105 million pounds. Domestic disappearance was about 82 million pounds, with exports amounting to between 17 and 18 million pounds. Stocks at the beginning of 1960 were 52½ million pounds.

Production of evaporated whole milk last year was about 317 million pounds and the industry entered 1960 with lower stocks than a year ago. Probable domestic market this year will be about 320 million pounds, with prospects of exports for an additional three million pounds. This year's production, predicted Dr. Derby, may be a record output of between 320 and 325 million pounds.

About 125 million pounds of dry skimmed milk will be manufactured this year, he estimated, which will represent a considerable drop from the quantities produced in 1958 and 1959.

A record amount of over 40 million gallons of ice cream was manufactured last year, a 15 per cent increase over the previous year.

Dr. Derby also discussed the condition of the dairy industry in other exporting countries, particularly Australia and New Zealand, and speculated on Canada's export prospects.

"Prospects for exporting cheddar cheese and possibly butter to the United Kingdom during the coming season will be governed by two factors — supply and demand," he said. "At the moment it appears that there will be a demand for cheddar cheese, but the supply position is not likely to be so acute as to force price to the high level of last season.

More Additives For Steers

A cartoonist some years ago pictured two fat steers eating out of a well-filled bunk, asking themselves this question: "What would our ancestors think of us, seeing us eat these modern scientific rations?" And then in a blurb overhead a lean Texas Longhorn disgustedly looking down upon the steers, saying "Sissies!"

Dr. Bohstedt

What indeed would that tough ancestor have thought of corn and oil meal in the first place, let alone stilbestrol, antibiotics, tapazole, hydroxyzine, and what not.

Some of these additives have stood up in long continued and repeated tests, others are still in the experimental stage.

At the University of Illinois in a 322-day feeding test, Synovex hormone implants in steers averaged 2.18 pounds daily gain, stilbestrol hormone implants averaged 2.13 pounds and steers with no implants averaged 1.90 pounds daily gain. The slaughter grades were stated to be equally good, and the test as a whole agreed in outcome with previous work.

While somewhat more expensive, the administration of stilbestrol through the feed instead of through implants seems to have compensating advantages and is extensively used in feed lot trials.

Naturally cattle out on pasture would need to be implanted, if they were to be benefited at all by this growth-stimulating hormone.

The Illinois work further included the use of thyroid-depressing Tapazole, the tranquilizer, hydroxyzine, and a chemobiotic. So far the results showed no response on the part of the steers to any of these additives, whether they were fed to hormone-implanted or non-implanted steers.

Tapazole for that matter has not yet been approved by the Food and Drug Administration, and is all the more in an experimental phase.

All this is a far cry indeed to the way of life of that disgusted Texas Longhorn.

Question: Do weed seeds as present in screenings or some kinds of grain have any feed value?

Answer: While we do not want seeds in grain or screenings, we must admit that they have feed value comparable to small grain like oats. However, some small weed seeds if present in large amounts may not be palatable and may be otherwise objectionable. In any event it is difficult to grind them, and they would not likely be well digested.

The Bible today

As a result of the international Bible Society Youth Camp held in Austria in 1958, a Youth Group has met periodically in Vienna to promote Bible Society work in Austria. From contributions they have financed the distribution of over 1,800 New Testaments to young young army recruits. Each volume bears the signature of the chap who presented it.

Half the amount of money needed to print the New Testament in Ilamba (the first edition for the mission field sponsored by the Austrian Bible Committee) has already been raised, four months after the launching of the appeal.

The youth group has also been responsible for articles on Bible Society work included in a number of youth periodicals.

Liberal candidate chosen

Delegates to the Liberal county convention chose their standard-bearer for the next provincial election, in the person of Rodrigue Durocher, who is seen here receiving congratulations from his only opponent, Gaetan Paquette. Rodrigue Durocher elected Argenteuil Liberal candidate

Official candidate of the Liberal party in Argenteuil is Rodrigue Durocher, who was elected Saturday at a convention held in Lachute Auditorium. Runner-up for the honors of representation was Gaetan Paquette, who was the only opponent to Mr. Durocher and lost by only 9 votes.

The assembly was chaired by Hector Caron, member of the executive council of the Central Liberal Association in Montreal, who was accompanied by Dr. Aimé Fauteux, director, and Laurent Lajeunesse, secretary, of the same organization. Also on the platform were Antoine Paré, president of the County association; the mayors of Lachute, Carillon, Ayersville, St. Andrews Parish and St. Andrews Village; also Bernard Gosselin, ex-candidate and ex-president of the County organization; Glen Brown, deputy for Brome, and Paul Gérin Lajoie, guest speakers.

"The citizens of Argenteuil have put up with the Union Nationale because the present representatives, both in Quebec and in Ottawa, say nothing in the Commons about our County. I pledge myself as a candidate of the poor and humble, to voice the needs of our County. I promise to work for the development of our tourist trade, to attract new industries, and to improve the agricultural class," said the candidate-elect . . . Mr. Durocher, a resident of Montreal and St. Andrews East, is a member of the Chamber of Commerce in that community and well known in the surroundings.

Glen Brown, M.P.P.

Mr. Glen Brown, M.P.P., in the opening discourse, termed the Union Nationale regime as a government of deception. He cited facts and figures, claimed that the U.N. was deceiving the agricultural and working classes, and continually increasing taxes. In conclusion he offered to speak at a contradictory meeting with the Hon. Mr. Cottingham.

Gerin Lajoie

"I bring you greetings from the party chief, Mr. Lesage, who is counting on Argenteuil to augment the liberation of this province from the Union Nationale regime," said Mr. Gérin Lajoie. The speaker attacked Premier Barrette for his negative policies, and Mr. Cottingham for neglect of Argenteuil labor needs on the Carillon site. He promised, in conclusion, that the Liberal party — the "liberationist" party — would do justice to the workers, the farmers and all classes of society. The Liberal campaign in the next election will be a fight for liberty on behalf of all citizens in this province, he asserted.

Fine patronage for Art Show here April 24-30

An impressive group of artists have entered the exhibition to be held during the last week of April in the studio of "le Centre Dramatique d'Argenteuil," 354 Main Street, Lachute, starting Sunday, April 24, at 1 p.m.

This exhibition will be open to the public from 1 to 9 p.m. and will include paintings by Janine Leroux, Don Titman, Jean-Guy Lévesque and Tex Lecor, of Lachute; Odette Sylvestre and Marion Nancekivell, of St. Andrews East; Simone Blais, from Brownsburg; Mrs. F. Godmer, of Ste.-Scholastique, Vivian Walker, of Carillon and Montreal; André Patry, of Brownsburg, Maurice Domingue and Dioconi, from Montreal, and J. P. A. Laforest, from Quebec.

$1,500 Council grant towards libraries; Permits suggest Spring building boom

Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon and all members were present for the regular Council session last week.

A building permit was granted to Henri Legault for construction on Main Street in accordance with by-laws 218 and 219 and under supervision of the roads committee.

Ald. Gerard Lefebvre, seconded by Ald. Horace Lamarche, moved that a grant of $1,000 be accorded to the "Carrefour du Livre" and a similar grant of $500 to the Lachute Women's Institute library. A donation of $25 was voted to the Red Cross, on motion of Ald. Stanley Church.

It was voted to allow the Bell Telephone to lay a submerged cable under town land near the city hall, and also to permit Gatineau Power Company to erect a distribution line along Princess, Robert, Gilbert and Main Streets.

On the subject of fire services to Ayersville, Ald. Lefebvre, seconded by Ald. Lamarche, moved that the resolution passed by Ayersville on March 7 be not accepted, as this does not conform with the resolution of Lachute Council dated February 16; and that Lachute should agree temporarily to respond to fire calls at the usual rate of $75 an hour — this in accordance with legal advice procured by the municipality.

Dance hall permits were granted to Henri St. Onge, Pierre Soumis, Rodrigue Chevrier and Albert Campeau — on proposal of Ald. Horace Lamarche, seconded by Ald. S. Church.

Mrs. E. K. Wilson was given permit to demolish a building, while numerous others were given approval to erect, change or renovate — including, Rosaire Legault, Grace Street; Mrs. Anna McOuat, Main Street; Farmers' Supply Co., Foundry Street; C. R. Cunningham, Grace Street; Dr. John C. MacKimmie, Main Street; Irenee Cayer, Main Street; and Jean Matte, Ray Street.

Accounts totalling $22,533.59 were passed for payment.

Ald. S. Church, seconded by Ald. L. Laurin, moved that Gatineau Power be authorized to pay Westinghouse Electric for three mercury lamps and to make changes as recommended by the lighting committee in various localities.

The police chief submitted a report of activities for his department. The chief was authorized to represent Lachute at the Police and Fire Chiefs' convention in St. Jerome next June.

Ald. Church and S. Holt, together with the police chief, were authorized to hire a temporary constable at $60 a week.

Anti-polio clinics, Legion-sponsored, for Arundel, Brownsburg and Lachute

Argenteuil Branch 70 and Brownsburg Branch 71, Canadian Legion, have joined forces to sponsor a new series of free Adult Anti-Polio Clinics. It is expected that the first two "shots" in the new series of clinics will be completed by the middle of June. The first two shots are spaced by a maximum of six weeks and provide about 70% immunization. The third and final shot may be taken up to 18 months thereafter. However, it must be remembered that the immunization is not considered effective unless all three shots have been received within the maximum schedule.

There will be no charge to those persons receiving these shots. This program is designed to reach all persons from working teenagers to adults in the 40-year group, although recent years' experience has proved that persons beyond 40 years of age are not immune to this crippling disease, and they are just as welcome as younger persons.

This Salk Vaccine is supplied free of charge by the Provincial Health Department; the mobile equipment and technicians by the Quebec Chapter of the March-of-Dimes. The whole project is sponsored by the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion.

The Lachute Branch will also sponsor a clinic in Arundel through the co-operation of the Arundel Women's Institute. This clinic will provide serum for the citizenry of Arundel, Weir, Huberdeau, Barkmere and districts. Persons in the districts around Kilmar, Calumet, Grenville, Cushing, Carillon, St. Andrews, Mille Isles, Lakefield, Dunany, and Louisa, may register for the Brownsburg-Lachute clinics.

Persons wishing shots should register before April 23. Actual clinic dates will be announced later.

Arundel: Mrs. Alvin J. Graham, Mrs. Leslie Gibbons, Graham's Store.

Brownsburg: R. R. Summers, J. W. Humphries, Hec. Steele, R. Sugden.

Lachute: J. Martel, B. A. Jenkins, T. Smith.

Late Geo. Y. Deacon esteemed as noted citizen and public figure

With the passing of George Y. Deacon, this community mourns one of its best known businessmen and public figures. Mr. Deacon, who had been in poor health over the past few years, died in the Montreal General Hospital last Sunday morning at the age of 72.

Establishing here as a tinsmith with his uncle, the late Robert McArthur, in the early years of the century, he later developed a very extensive business in roofing, hardware and car dealership. Over the years he became known throughout Argenteuil County not only in his business associations but through his role of public service. Mr. Deacon was Lachute's first fire chief and guided the destinies and progress of the volunteer fire brigade for 38 years until his retirement only four years ago.

At that time he was honored by Town Council with the title of life-time honorary fire chief, and a testimonial dinner was held in tribute to his fine record. In November 1957, he was made an honorary life member of the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs.

He was also keenly interested in education, tireless in promoting the central school system which prevailed through this area for a number of years. He was a member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education until the time of his death. He supported and attended the opening of many new schools, both in this County and elsewhere, and served several terms on the Lachute board. Also he gave constructive service on the Group Committee of Lachute Boy Scouts.

The Late Geo. Y. Deacon

The late George Y. Deacon was a loyal member of the United Church, a member and past officer of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows for 52 years, and an honored member of the Lions Club, in which he gave stalwart service as a committeeman on Christmas cheer for children. He was a willing supporter of all charitable works, and chaired the Salvation Army Red Shield Campaign year after year.

Left to mourn are his wife, the former Ethel Anderson of Stanbridge East; two sons, Harold and George, of Lachute; a daughter, (Helen) Mrs. Thomas Stewart, of Montreal; also several grandchildren, nephews, nieces and other relatives. He is survived also by his brother, William J. Deacon, of Lachute, and a half-sister, Mrs. Hester Hunt, also of Lachute.

Sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the MacKimmie Funeral Home to the Lachute United Church, and was largely attended. Pall-bearers were men of the volunteer fire brigade who served under Mr. Deacon. The Rev. Wilson Bridge conducted the service, assisted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough. A delegation of town councillors and officials was in attendance to pay their last respects, also representatives of various church and social organizations to which the late Mr. Deacon had belonged.

Date set for Cancer blitz Monday, April 25

The Canadian Cancer Society campaign (through the Argenteuil Section in this community) will be promoted with a blitz canvass on the evening of Monday, April 25. Under the chairmanship of Mr. Royal Carriere, the campaign committee has been appointed, many public spirited residents having accepted responsibility for the various phases of the campaign.

It remains for the public to respond in their usual generous manner, in order to promote the increasing fight against cancer and assistance to its victims, both on the national and local levels. This is a steadily expanding enterprise involving costly research, personnel, equipment and organization — and ultimate conquest of the disease depends largely on the consciousness and support of everyday citizens.

Campaign Officers

Following are the executive officers of the local campaign:

Honorary Presidents — Hon. W. M. Cottingham and Mr. J. O. Latour, M.P.

Campaign Chairman — Royal Carriere.

Vice-President — J. Campbell.

Secretary — Roger Guimond.

Treasurer — Donald M. Hay.

Publicity — T. D. Titman, F. Berthiaume, Mrs. H. Watson, Mrs. M. Walker.

Special Names — Mrs. G. Tattersfield, Mozart Carriere.

Stores and Industries — Mr. A. Cuerrier, Mr. D. R. McRae.

Canvassing Committees

Lachute — Garth S. Boyd, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, Mrs. Jas. MacKimmie, Mrs. D. Schwartz, Mrs. C. L. Duncan, Mrs. R. Beaulieu.

Ayersville — Lachute Mills — Mrs. Gilbert E. Ayers, P. E. Barbeau.

Brownsburg — Larry Presseault.

Surrounding Districts — W. M. Steeves, Colin McOuat, Col. E. Emmett.

It is understood that the Brownsburg committee has been formed and its progress is reported elsewhere in this issue.

Resuscitation film viewed by Lions Club and lady visitors

The Lions Club and a number of lady visitors witnessed a film presentation on the direct method of artificial respiration, which is gaining increasing attention in life-saving emergencies. The film, "That They May Live", was shown on the instigation of Lion A. Gordon McOuat, as a sequel to the last regular meeting of the club. It showed the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation as a procedure easier to apply, and more efficient, than the Holger-Neilson and Schafer systems more commonly used in drowning, shock and asphyxiation cases; also the use of the Brook inhalator tube, replacing actual mouth-to-mouth contact with the victim.

The topic provoked a series of questions from the audience, with Dr. F. W. FitzGerald as consultant. It was felt that this film should have a wider circulation among local audiences; it was later shown before senior High School pupils, and arrangements made for its presentation before Ayers Ltd. employees. . . Vice-President Gerard Lefebvre thanked Mr. McOuat, also Mr. Roger Gravel, the projectionist.

In the absence of President Lorne E. Duncan through bereavement, the club meeting was chaired by Gerard Lefebvre.

Among numerous items of club business, Royal Carrière spoke on the grand prize drawing to be held June 11 at an anniversary dance; this affair marking the club's 25th birthday, is in charge of Bob Dixon as committeeman.

Dr. Eric Mongeon reported on the public speaking contest, in which Lachute was sending three participants for the district semi-finals (last Saturday) to St. Lambert, Que.

Horace Lamarche noted the closing of a very successful season at the Lions' Rink, and suggested that the pee-wee league champions, a team sponsored by Lowe Bros., be guests of the club at their next supper.

Bob Haydon made mention that his Ottawa Grand Opera Association would be rehearsing for another opera, "Il Trovatore", and hoped it might be possible to bring this to Lachute under Lions' sponsorship, following last year's successful venture.

Altogether this was a successful meeting. The public are reminded that the current Easter Seals campaign is another Lions Club enterprise, through which much charitable effort is made possible in this district.

Newsmen view site of new N. Quebec mineral workings

"The discovery of what is believed to be the largest known zinc deposit in Canada will bring an estimated $50,000,000 investment along with a 5,000 person town," according to a statement by the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines and M.P.P. for Argenteuil, at a press conference held in Northern Quebec's Mattagami Lake district on Thursday of last week. Mr. Cottingham credited the 25 million ton deposit of zinc, copper, gold and silver to a Department of Mines survey showing the presence of metallic substances below the surface. The size of the deposit has been proved by diamond drilling, the assays of which give an average of 13 per cent zinc, one per cent copper, and smaller quantities of gold and silver. "The importance of this find can be seen readily as some mines in this province mill ore that yields less than one per cent copper and no other minerals," he added.

When questioned as to the investments being made, Mr. Cottingham stated, "The capital is mainly Canadian although not necessarily all from Quebec and all capital being invested in Quebec stays here with our province reaping the benefit."

"Some 75 persons are presently employed by Mattagami Lake Mines Ltd., the parent company," he added, stating this concern expects to employ in excess of 600 persons in the not too distant future. The Lake Mattagami district is located about half way between Amos and James Bay and previous mining development of the area was hampered due to the isolated location. A temporary winter road was constructed by the provincial government and permitted the moving-in of heavy mining equipment. At present, a 118-mile permanent road is more than half completed and according to both Mr. Cottingham, and Lands and Forests Minister Jacques Miquelon, who accompanied him on the trip, "this will open yet another section of Quebec's vast northland to increased mining, lumbering, and tourists, fishermen and hunters." The ministers were accompanied on the trip by a group of newspapermen, including Fernand Berthiaume, editor of L'Argenteuil and Bob Giles Jr., of The Watchman.

A representative of Simard & Freres, the construction company building the road, has promised the provincial government that the project will be finished by the spring of 1961. Approximately 65 miles of the 118-mile road are now completed, the total estimated cost being about $4,000,000 of which the mining companies are paying a substantial part.

The group saw the start of a Mattagami Lake Mines Ltd. project that will cost $20,000,000 and were informed of plans for a smelter to be constructed at a later date at an estimated cost of $30,000,000. Other companies presently operating in the area are New Hosco Mines and Orchan Mines, both of which plan large financial investments.

"With such a development the need for living quarters goes without saying," Mr. Cottingham stated, adding this aspect has not been forgotten. He announced the plans for the construction of a mining town to accommodate at least 5,000 per-

High School ushers in Spring with concert

The annual Spring Concert of Lachute High School was held on Friday evening last, when a capacity audience was thoroughly captivated by a colorful musical and dramatical entertainment. Though the program was very lengthy, it was most interesting from beginning to end, and a great deal of credit goes to Mrs. G. R. Rigby, teacher of music at Lachute High School. The m.c. was Mr. L. Rossaert, of the school staff.

The Junior Choir led off the program with several selections of changing rhythms, and featuring many young soloists in a creditable performance. Miss Juliette Rodrigue was then called on to introduce seven of her pianoforte pupils from Grades II to VII, all of whom performed in a most talented way.

Easter Seals public response needs impetus

Reports show that the Easter Seals campaign is not measuring up to previous achievement at this stage. Firms and corporations have responded in fair number, but not to the full extent of requirements, by any means. The individual response is also lagging, and readers are urged to return their pink envelopes and enclosures, and thus experience that "in the pink" feeling through having aided a worthy cause.

The Lachute Lions Club, as sponsors of Easter Seals in this area, have been privileged to administer the local fund on behalf of many crippled and handicapped residents. Meanwhile, a portion of the proceeds which reverts to the Quebec Easter Seals Association, is strategically used for orthopedic needs, hospital treatments, rehabilitation, and research.

A dollar spared towards this effort will be well and gratifyingly spent where it is needed. — Do your part now!

Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Last week I wrote about a deer that had been seen around the district with only one hind leg. I happened to see this animal this past week; true to reports, it seems to be in very good condition. It looks as though it had been fed on the very best of everything during the winter. Being minus the rear leg doesn't seem to cause it any discomfort, either; it is able to get around quite well.

This past week has given an opportunity to observe all the different types of birds that are going to be with us. Red-wing blackbirds are the most predominant just now, and it is nice to be able to hear their "O-Kee-Lee" call, and to see the flashes of scarlet from their wings. A couple of Gosh-Hawks were also seen. These birds will have it tough feeding for a while. I don't think any harm will come to them though; the field mice are popping up all over, so watchful eyes will get them. The crows are really with us in force — and, as soon as the bush cleans up, the .22 will do yeoman duty.

I just heard that we now have wild bird seed in town — to be a little more specific, at Farmers' Supply Co. It seems they have had it for a few weeks, but I only found out about it this past week. Even though the summer is easier on the birds, this doesn't mean you can stop feeding them. Getting them to come around all summer is a wonderful way to learn about them. Besides, the winter birds will probably stay with you right along. This in itself is worth having them.

A couple of lakes have been looked at, and I'm sorry to say will be out of fishing for the opening day. The ice is pretty thick just now, even though some of the spots look to be honeycombed. At any rate I don't think fishing will be worth while until around the middle of May, for the lakes. Of course, just a small patch of open water will give us a little pleasure. The small streams should be the best for the early fishing, and these will pay off with either small spinners fished slow and deep or medium-sized nymphs for the fly man. These will also have to be fished deep. For the natural baits, I think crayfish will pay dividends. Don't forget to tie them on the hook, they stay alive much longer than the hooked-through method. Big sinkers should be forgotten about; the free-drift method of fishing will be the best. Also, another good point to remember — use a long leader. From the calls received about this fly fishing, there appear to be a lot of sportsmen going to try it this year. I hope so; anything I can do to help in getting you started would give me a big kick. You see, to me fly fishing is a good form of conservation. At any rate give me a call; we'll make a date, come up and in 15 minutes you will have mastered the rod and line work. From then on it will be up to you. The more you fish the better you will become. I personally do not think you'll ever regret it; and this includes the ladies too.

Special to the "river rats". It won't be too long before the North River is fished. The river is open from St. Jerome right to the bridge at Colford's and all the way from there it is honey-combed, with open spots every couple of feet along the shore. It is also exceptionally free from garbage; this is in itself a great thing. I know the past few years during the winter the ice has become clearer and almost free from this trash. But this spring it has outdone itself — or rather, the citizens have done it. To them, from all us sports, a very heartfelt thanks. I think before too long that something will pop with the North River, and it will be due to these good people who are starting to think of it. Naturally there will always be the deadheads who think of nothing but the bank book. There comes the day though, and it won't be too long now.

Reports indicate that the fur-bearing animals have had a good winter. I do know this area has been free of a lot of the hazards to deer this past winter (snow, freezing, etc.). The food has been plentiful for them also, and wolves have not been of much consequence. The only bad thing they had to worry about has been the dogs, and with the warmer weather melting the snow, I don't think these will be much of a problem much longer.

Partridge are plentiful, along with a number of pheasants, seen these past few days. You know even seeing the bugs come out of hibernation is a big help in getting over the winter We'll probably be cussing them, come the summer, but right now they are more than welcome. Even the wild-flowers are starting to break through. Some Violets and a bunch of Snow Drops, and these are only the first.

The tourist bureau, mentioned a couple of weeks ago, has turned up some interesting queries. What has or is being done by the said office? What publicity is given to our district by same? . . . I don't think anything more need be asked. One thing that would help — a sign of some kind that could be seen. After all, if it can't be seen or found, what then?

With all the new tackle being put on show, it's getting harder to decide what is worth having. As you all know, I keep saying a reel should be as free of gadgets as possible. This particularly in the spinning. As you also know, these darn things are getting more and more junk on them. One I had a look at has a line-measuring guide on it. True, there has been one with this on it for a good long time, but this one is supposed to be the ultra of its kind. It seems the manufacturers are going to make them as cumbersome as possible for the fisherman. Pretty soon there will be so many things on the rods, it will be almost impossible to fish.

Thistle rink wins annual invitation curling bonspiel

Glen Anderson, of the Thistle Curling Club in Montreal, and his rink of young curlers emerged as victors last Saturday to win the Quentin Miller Trophy at the twelfth annual bonspiel at the Lachute Curling Rink. Glen, a former resident of Ottawa, is well-known among Lachute curlers as this was the fifth time he has participated in this event. On most other occasions he played third stone for another popular curler from Ottawa, Arnie Butterworth, who won this beautiful trophy both last year and the year before. The Anderson rink consisted of Ian Smith, third, Ross MacKay, second, and Jack Ritchie, lead.

Eight strong rinks entered the playdowns which began at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. In the first round R. Gall of Lachine defeated F. Kenny of Pointe Claire, and Jacques Dugas of Joliette won against the Buckingham rink skipped by Charlie Kenny. In the second games at 12.30, Glen Anderson knocked out Brock Fuger of Pointe Claire, and Lucien Lalonde of Ottawa defeated Doug McEwan of Outremont. In the second round at 3.30 in the afternoon Bob Gall emerged the winner over the Joliette foursome, and Glenn Anderson won against the Lalonde rink in a very close game which went to an extra end and was possibly the most exciting encounter in the series. Glenn brought most of the large crowd of spectators to their feet when, with the last rock, in an attempt to remove the shot rock, he got a little wide of the broom and for a few seconds it looked as if he might miss. As it turned out he hit the side of his opponent's stone and rolled out himself. All that saved the end was his first rock, which was still counting far out to the side of the house. If that rock had not been there, they would have had to play a second extra end.

A large crowd was on hand to watch the finals in the evening, with the Lachine and Thistle rinks in the main event and the Ottawa and Joliette rinks in the consolation. In the first few ends of the former game the score was close, but from there on Anderson began to widen the margin, and when he took a three on the ninth end of the ten-end game, Gall conceded the match. On the other ice, Lalonde took an early lead which he was able to maintain to the end.

Following the curling, Linton Armstrong as chairman of the Bonspiel Committee acted as m.c. for the presentation of prizes. Mayor James McGibbon was introduced and welcomed all visiting curlers on behalf of the town. Vice-President Leopold Carriere then extended a welcome on behalf of the local club, and congratulated all the curlers on their efforts during the day. He then presented the Quentin Miller Trophy to Mr. Anderson of the Thistle Club, following which this rink had the privilege of first choice of the prizes on display . . . This skip then congratulated the Lachute Curling Club on their successful bonspiel and stated that he always enjoyed coming to Lachute. The other rinks were then introduced and selected their prizes. Each skip in turn thanked their Lachute hosts for their hospitality.

Linton Armstrong expressed the thanks of the Bonspiel committee to all who had helped to make the event a success, especially the Reception Committee consisting of Dick Richardson, Frank Brennian and Willard Steeves, who had worked faithfully each day during the two weeks of the bonspiel in receiving the visitors and arranging details. He also thanked the Lachute rinks for their splendid cooperation in filling in at such dates and times as were necessary to complete the draw. He then called upon the vice-president to thank the local ladies for their major contribution in providing dinners each evening. Mr. Carriere explained that it was this splendid cooperation on the part of all the lady members which helped make this one of the most popular bonspiels in the area. Mrs. Muriel Giles, as president of the Ladies' Club, then expressed her thanks to her fellow members, and especially the conveners, for their loyal support throughout the bonspiel.

Prov. champion gymnastics at L.H.S., April 23

The 1960 Open Provincial Gymnastics Championship will be held at Lachute High School on Saturday, April 23.

This is the first time a Provincial Championship has been held at Lachute, and between 75 and 80 gymnasts are expected to participate in three different divisions, novice, juniors and seniors. A novice gymnast is under 16 years; juniors are gymnasts under 20 years of age, senior classes are open to all gymnasts. Also, as this is an open championship, any gymnast in the world may compete, and some top performers from Canada and U.S.A. are expected for the championship.

Lachute High School will enter a team of two youths, Reg Stansfield and Ron Cairns; both are Grade XI students and it will be their last year of competition for Lachute. It is hoped they will both do well in this very tough competition.

The Championship will be held in three sections, novices will compete from 10 a.m. to 12.30 p.m., seniors from 2 p.m. to 5.30 p.m., and juniors at night from 7.30 to 10 p.m. Tickets good for all competitions are for sale now for $1 and it is hoped that all lovers of good sport will keep this day open for the Gymnastics Championship event.

DISTRICT NEWS FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Morin Heights

Miss Joan Green, of Montreal, was the week-end guest of her parents Col. and Mrs. J. W. Green — Mr. Basil Green having returned to his duties at Baffin Land after a month's visit here with his parents and friends.

Entertained

Those who have entertained in honor of Miss Doris Watchorn and Mr. Roy Williams prior to their marriage on Saturday, April 16, in Morin Heights United Church, are as follows: Mr. Nixon Knowlton, at a dinner party at "The Bridge Inn" Hawkesbury; Mr. Robert Telfer, a dinner party, at the Royal Embassy Hotel, Montreal; Mrs. James Taggart, a luncheon and presentation; Mrs. L. N. Buzzell, a luncheon and presentation; the United Church Young Adult Group, a tea and presentation; Mrs. M. M. Sims, a tea and presentation; Mrs. George Manthorp, a china shower; Mrs. Willis Seale, a kitchen shower; Mrs. George Gardner and Mrs. Keith Seale, a bathroom shower and breakfast set of china. Presentations were made by the pupils of Morin Heights Intermediate School and by the teaching staff of the school. On Saturday last Mrs. William Watchorn, the bride's mother, entertained at a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter.

Approaching Marriage

Mrs. William Watchorn, of Morin Heights, announces that the marriage of her daughter, Doris Margaret, to Mr. Roy Williams, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams, of London, England, will take place at Morin Heights United Church on Saturday, April 16, 1960.

Week-end guests at Watchorn's Farm were Mr. and Mrs. David Masterson, Mrs. Bert Ireland, Miss Dora Pauley, Miss Mary MacConomy, Mr. and Mrs. James Taggart and Mrs. Norman Taggart, all of Montreal.

Mrs. Jack MacKimmie, of Lachute, who has been a patient in the Montreal General Hospital, was a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. Kneeland. Her many friends in this community are pleased to see her looking so well, and extend best wishes for continued improvement in health.

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Kennedy were Mr. and Mrs. John Riegert and Mrs. F. D. Carter, of Montreal.

Friends of Mr. G. MacPherson were sorry to learn of his mishap en route from Montreal, and take this opportunity to wish him a speedy recovery. Mr. MacPherson, who is still confined to hospital, expects to be released early in the week.

Sympathy

Sympathy of the community is extended to the family and friends of the late Mr. George Y. Deacon, of Lachute, who passed away this week. Mr. Deacon was well known in this community, both as a friend and through business associations with many residents of this area.

Weir

Mrs. W. D. Morrison left Sunday to spend a few days in Montreal visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Bowie with their daughter, Carole, of Montreal, spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Craig.

We are pleased to see Mr. Sherman Beaven home from hospital at Ste. Anne's, where he has been a patient for the past year. Mr. and Mrs. Beaven are spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Owen.

Mrs. A. J. Kerr spent the past week in Montreal as the guest of her sister, Mrs. G. Heneault and Mr. Heneault.

We welcome back Mr. and Mrs. Willard Dubeau and family, who have spent the past two years in Montreal.

Mr. Huntly Schippel spent the week-end in Montreal, visiting friends.

Please remember the three-hour service in the Church of the Redeemer, from 12 to 3 p.m. on Good Friday; also the service of Holy Communion on Easter Sunday, at 9.30 a.m. The Rev. F. K. Bussell will officiate at both services. Visitors are cordially welcome.

Northern Grenville

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Moore, Miss Linda Moore, Mr. Rickey Moore and Mrs. E. O. Bennett, all of Ottawa, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Owens.

Mr. L. S. Campbell, of Montreal, spent the week-end visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Cook, of Ottawa, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. Champagne.

Mrs. Roy Nixon and little son, Stephen, spent last Tuesday in Ottawa.

Mrs. B. McCart is spending this week with her daughter, Mrs. Cahill, at Calumet Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Nixon and family, of Lachute, visited Mr. and Mrs. Dick Young on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Reg Bennett visited her aunt, Mrs. Walter Gauley, in Chatboro last Thursday.

Recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. John Arthurs' were Mr. and Mrs. Harold McRae, of Quyon, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fox, of Calumet.

Women's Inst. at Brownsburg

Brownsburg Branch of the Women's Institute held their April meeting in the school cafeteria. The president, Mrs. C. Stephens, was in the chair, and a good attendance of members and visitors were present.

Installation of officers and conveners was conducted by Mrs. N. E. Smillie, followed by the regular business.

The guest speaker, Mr. E. J. McCarthy, of C-I-L, Montreal, was introduced by Mr. Wes Freeland. Mr. McCarthy's topic was "The Power of Advertising," which proved both interesting and instructive, indicating how much advertising means to our way of life. Members and visitors enjoyed the topic.

The meeting was in charge of the Publicity convener, Mrs. Harold Mason.

IN MEMORIAM

With the passing of the LATE GEO. Y. DEACON
former Fire Chief of Lachute, the population of our town loses an eminent citizen and a loyal servant who, for approximately 40 years, has served the community — often without remuneration or for mere token payment.
His memory will remain with us as a symbol of devotion to duty.

Season of renewed hope

THERE IS PROBABLY no other holiday, or holy day, which causes such an upsurging of hope in the minds of those who call themselves Christians, than this season of Easter. All the hopes of that holy season had been built on the coming of a Saviour who had, in the course of a short lifetime, suffered injury and insult and eventual death. But in spite of all this, He had promised his resurrection and it had happened, and all the promise which began with the birth of a Christ Child was fulfilled.

This holy time has been called Easter and is observed on the first Sunday following the paschal full moon and this word "paschal" links up the old with the new testament in that it is derived from the Chaldee word Pascha. That name recalls the act of the Destroying Angel in passing over "the households of the Hebrews when he smote the Egyptians." So that this Easter festival commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ and the Hebrew celebration of the original "Passover".

That it falls in the spring of the year, makes Easter fundamentally a season of hope. All the trivial bits of ceremony which we have come to associate with Easter have, in their way, a significance. The baby animals, the first spring flowers, the candy Easter eggs, even Easter finery, are marks of a new and happier season. The winter snow and ice are going; new life is breaking through the cold earth on every side; the gardens and buds are straining to burst their bonds. Easter is a happy and a hopeful time.

National Wild Life Week

LITTLE DID THE parents of the late Jack Miner realize some 93 years ago, April 10, 1865, when Jack Miner, the Canadian naturalist, was born in the suburbs of Cleveland, Ohio, that not only Canada and the United States, but England and the civilized world would honor and pay tribute to the man who for the last 13 years of his life was Canada's best known citizen whom Eddie Guest, the Detroit poet, refers to as 'the best loved Christian in America'. When he died he ranked fifth in fame on the continent. The ones preceding him were Edison, Ford, Lindbergh and Rickenbacker.

In London, England, Sir Herbert Brent Grotian, Bart D.L., K.C., in paying tribute to Jack Miner, said "If you wish to see Jack Miner's monument or memorial, look around you."

On April 17, 1947, some three years after the death of the late Jack Miner, the Canadian Government by an act of Parliament created by a unanimous vote what is know as National Wild Life Week to always fall on the birthday of the late Jack Miner which is April 10th.

Senator Joseph Bradette, paying tribute to Jack Miner in the Canadian Senate, said "The European countries gave the world great artists, great sculptors, great philosophers and great musicians, but Canada gave the world one of its great naturalists."

Since Jack Miner's death a quiz program was held in the United States over a national radio hook up and by a vote of four to one Jack Miner was voted the greatest naturalist that ever lived.

The books of knowledge carry a biography of Jack Miner alongside such great men as Edison, Ford, Burbank and Churchill and even in 1926 Professor W. S. Milner, Professor of Greek and Roman History in the University of Toronto, in his examination paper for students trying for their B.A. degree compared the philosophy of Jack Miner to that of Aristotle.

Today, the 7th and 8th grade school books of the United States carry an eight page biography of Jack Miner, whose life was considered by the U.S. educators so important that they wanted every school child in their 48 states and Alaska acquainted with the facts about his life and his contribution to his generation.

Senator T. A. Crerar, who was Canada's first Federal minister of the Canadian Wild Life Service and now one of the senior members in the Canadian Senate, said, "I doubt if there is in any field of work in Canada anyone who has contributed more and has rendered Canada a greater service than Jack Miner."

At the time of Jack Miner's death tributes were paid him by Kings, Queen, Presidents and Prime Ministers and as high as 10,800 people have visited his grave in one day.

During the week of April 10 the people of Canada pay tribute to him by observing National Wild Life Week in the schools, in the churches, in the service clubs and in the open fields of our great Dominion.

Premier's good example

THE INSISTENCE of Premier Barrette of Quebec that his children learn English recalls the decision of the father of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that his son live for two years with an English-speaking family in order that he should be truly bilingual — notes the bulletin "Industry", published in Toronto.

It also serves to remind any who would forget that this country has two official languages, and that in the future even more than in the past it is eminently desirable that Canadians should be conversant in both.

We have quite a way to go. The 1951 census revealed that only 12 Canadians in every 100 could speak both English and French, as against 67 who could speak only English and 20 only French. (The remaining one per cent, apparently, could speak neither language.)

We should certainly aim to have at least half the population bilingual by the end of the century, if not before.

Premier Barrette is providing an admirable example, one which we hope will be followed by other French-speaking parents in Quebec and elsewhere across Canada.

English-speaking Canadians, for their part, should wish to have their children learn French not only because their lives will be that much richer, but also because it, no less than English, is an integral part of the Canadian heritage and culture and as such should belong to us all.

Parliamentary perseverance

MOST MEMBERS of Parliament, including Prime Minister Diefenbaker, stand foursquare against the idea of meeting twice a year at Ottawa. They prefer gathering in mid-January and slogging on until the heat of an Ottawa summer has wrung the last word from the 265 Commons members.

The principle, of course, is that Parliament's work thus is tidied up neatly in one swoop and then everybody relaxes more or less, preferably back home among the voters. Somehow it never works quite that simply.

The good ship Parliament begins its cruise leisurely amid a sea of topics, anchoring at will to let loose general broadsides about wheat, coal, codfish, divorce, broken promises, interest rates and business. As the weather warms up, the crew's tempers rise and they abandon their offices in numbers for the air-conditioned Commons chamber.

Great haste is made slowly until Parliament finally reaches port in a convulsive round-the-clock effort by all hands.

This usual trend is displayed by the current session and Mr. Diefenbaker was moved to forecast the other day that — much as he disliked two sessions a year — he might be forced to invoke the practice. There has been NO appreciable quickening in Commons business.

It is, it seems, still too cool to rush things.

One suggestion heard over the years, although never sanctified by official recognition, is for the removal of the air conditioning within the Commons chamber.

It's argued that this would do more to encourage swift consideration of the nation's business than any other device.

Here is one case where a retrograde step in creature comforts might work wonders, but who can imagine Parliamentary approval for it?

Viewpoints and perspectives

IN EDUCATION we are for the most part accustomed to thinking in terms of the pupil and the teacher. Education reaches much further — the home, church and community, as well as school. The parents' job is a big one. It's a job that many parents seem unwilling to accept.

sons to be put into effect when the permanent road is completed.

"As we have done in other mining areas, the lots will be sold publicly to the highest bidder and the proceeds will be used to pay for the installation of sewers, water mains and similar public conveniences," Mr. Cottingham said, pointing out the development of the area opens a complete new area of the province in a repitition of what happened earlier in Chibougamau and other mining areas.

"The mining is not the only industry here and the construction of the road will help the development of the forest industry as well. With only the winter road, this year's cut has reached the 12,000,000 cubic feet mark, the average over the past years never exceeded 4,000,000 cubic feet."

Lands and Forests Minister Miquelon stated that a lot had been done in this vast territory which had been colonized only in the last quarter century, and a lot more remains to be done. "The important thing is that progress is being made year after year."

For several years, Mines Minister W. M. Cottingham has been saying "Go North young man." changing the direction of a common expression. Last week, representatives of The Watchman and L'Argenteuil were fortunate in seeing only a small section of our province's vast northland and a section containing rich mining deposits which is being developed by the provincial department headed by Argenteuil's representative in Quebec.

It was at 7.30 a.m. on Wednesday of last week that Fernand Berthiaume, editor of L'Argenteuil, Sid Patterson, personal secretary to Mr. Cottingham, and Bob Giles Jr., left Lachute for Montreal's Dorval airport where we joined a group of newspaper, radio and television representatives from various organizations in the province. Many had flown from Quebec and we all joined for the Quebecair flight to Senneterre. The group were the guests of Simard & Freres, general construction contractors; the Abitibi district Chamber of Commerce; a group of mining companies, located in the area and of the Ministries of Mines and Lands and Forests.

We landed in Senneterre just before noon on Wednesday, less than two hours after take-off. We travelled in a DC-3 and were accompanied by Lands and Forests Minister Jacques Miquelon, the Hon. Mr. Cottingham joining us there. We then travelled several miles to the city hall where short addresses were heard from both the district and visiting dignitaries. Following dinner, we left by automobile for the Amos district and saw the equipment of Simard & Freres at work constructing the road. We were fortunate in driving with Jacques Martel, roads superintendent for the district, and must admit we were surprised with the continued good roads. We ate at the construction camp, our hosts mistaking us for the construction men according to the feast they placed before us. Following dinner, a press conference was held with both Ministers in attendance answering questions fired at them from all directions. Then it was a return trip to Amos and early to bed for most.

At 9.45 a.m. Tuesday, the first of five flights took off from the Fecteau Transport Co. winter base located on a lake. There were two Otters, two Beavers and a Cessna 180, all equipped with skiis. We flew to the mine site, 110 miles by road, in 40 minutes, and landed on a hard-packed snow landing strip. Here, we were met by officials of Mattagami Lake Mines Ltd., New Hosco Mines and Orchan Mines, and a tour of the development was followed by a reception and another construction camp dinner.

We took-off around 3 p.m. for Amos and leaving several passengers at that location, continued on to Val d'Or. The winter strip at the mines was anything but hard-packed when leaving, mild weather having set-in early in the morning. No major incidents resulted however, the bush pilots being experts.

Following our arrival in Val d'Or, we attended a reception at Lamaque Lodge, the staff house of Lamaque Mining Company Ltd.; were then treated to a steak dinner in one of Val d'Or's better restaurants and headed for the airport where the Hon. Mr. Cottingham, Sid Patterson, Fernand Berthiaume and myself boarded the Simard & Frere's company plane and travelled directly to Lachute, arriving at the local airport shortly before midnight. The Quebecair DC-3 left a few moments later, taking all other members of the tour to their respective homes in the Montreal and Quebec districts.

All in all, it was a trip worth remembering and it made us realize the reason the Hon. Bill has for several years said "Go north, young man, go north." There is no doubt that due to the mining discoveries and other industries in that locality it will be the place in the not too distant future.

"I am the master . . ."

By C. J. Harris

It may only be memory playing tricks but it seems as though there was a time when any schoolboy could quote those lines from Invictus, "I am the master of my fate; I am the captain of my soul." And not only quote William Ernest Henley's words, but repeat them with understanding and conviction. Nowadays — perhaps not as much by the school-age generation as by its parents — the belief seems to be that society as a whole is the master and captain of fate's craft, and the individual is something like third mate, or perhaps even a passenger.

In the House of Commons debate on corporal punishment the point was touched on by Grant Campbell, Government member for the Ontario riding of Stormont. His statement has a wider application than to just the subject of that debate.

"We are," said Mr. Campbell, "uncritically swallowing whole the half-baked ideas of the psychologists and sociologists that anyone who commits a murder must be sick — that the action of such people is due entirely to their heredity and environment and that, therefore, they are not responsible.

"There is a certain truth in the notion of corporate guilt, and society must share part of the blame for any anti-social actions. We are all the victims of our heredity and our environment while we dwell in time and space. Many inherit recessive genes, resulting in a weak mind or a weak will. Many suffer a squalid environment.

"Despite these factors, there must remain some residue of free will or there is no responsibility. If we have no responsibility, we are not men but automatons."

Whether man is a free-will creature was for centuries a theological problem and a scientific problem; it remains an ethical problem and a juridical problem, even a political problem. In the Middle Ages the claim that man had some freedom of choice in his actions seemed to conflict with belief in the omniscience of God and with scientific theory that since the course of all bodies in the universe could be exactly predicted, man's course too must be subject to forces beyond his control. But later scientific discoveries established that nowhere in nature is the fate of any object completely controlled by outside factors, and it has been long accepted that the individual is mainly in control of his own destiny.

But recently there is the new factor — the trend to shift responsibility from the individual to society as a whole, to the state. Not only is the individual less inclined to champion his own self-reliance, but the belief that each is his brother's keeper is giving way to the belief that the state is everybody's keeper.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

John, aged seven, padded into the bedroom with a small white thing compressed between finger and thumb. "I just pushed and it came out," he said gleefully.

The gap in his grin told the story: First tooth gone. It was a moment of triumph for the boy, who had been feeling ill-used because he had been the only member of his class equipped with a complete set of baby teeth.

The teacher would be pleased too. She used to complain that the boy had spent over-much time fidgeting with the loose tooth and dribbling over his book, rather than reading.

For a father, the sight of his gap-toothed child was a reminder of years passing too rapidly. This little living calendar, standing beside the bed with an air of fiendish satisfaction, was here to serve notice of a new stage of growth.

"I've dropped it," the child wailed, and began fumbling on the floor among slippers, magazines and fallen bedclothes. "I have to find it and put it under my pillow, and the tooth fairy will leave 25 cents for it," he said anxiously.

"It's 25 cents for the first tooth, if there's no decay in it," he announced. He found the tooth, and held it up in finger and thumb again. His wicked smile looked as though it belonged on a magazine cover.

"I don't know who leaves the money for the tooth," he said with a doubting grimace. "I think it's only you, not the tooth fairy".

He left the tooth under his pillow anyway. Next morning he clumped into the bedroom, crying out that his 25 cents had come in the night. He was in two minds about the source of the money, being at the magical age when a boy can be wholly sceptical and wholly believing at once. A state deplored by psychologists and cherished by sentimental parents.

Now the crumb of flawless ivory rests in a plastic box — a mawkish little souvenir and reproach to a father whose next, long-postponed visit to the dentist will probably leave him without a single fang of his own.

Small brother Michael, aged five, feels underprivileged because he still has all his teeth. For compensation, he compels his father to puff out both cheeks, and then finds it amusing to punch both cheeks simultaneously, driving the air out with a sound like a Bronx cheer.

He also asks for lessons in wiggling his ears — a request his father is pleased to grant, since wiggling his ears is one of his few talents.

Michael copies the feat, after a fashion. What he does is more of a whole-scalp wiggle, in which the ears perform only a minor twitch. But it gives Michael a sense of achievement. He is happy, because John can't do it.

Michael feels that a boy who can wiggle ears is just as good as a boy who has lost a tooth. There is no doubt that he is right.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

I've phid plenty to the unemployment insurance fund over the years and have always hoped I would never have to collect any. In the same way, I have paid a good deal of hospital and medical insurance, hoping never to need it. At the same time, I feel better knowing I have paid for protection. Today, however, I am convinced that the Unemployment Insurance Fund is hornswoggling me and thousands of others who put their money and faith in it.

Instead of being used for its right and proper purpose — insurance against unemployment — it has become a sort of annuity deal. According to Senator Crerar, there is a terrific drain on the fund in this way. Those who count on the fund to insure them against hardship when they lose a job are entitled to be worried. If it is true that thousands of men who retire on pension are picking up unemployment insurance at the same time, there is something very unsound about the system.

Not that I blame these men. Many of them may be in the same position that I am — having paid in plenty, and never having had to use the fund, they feel they ought to get their money back. That's a human enough feeling — but it makes no actuarial sense at all. The money paid to Unemployment Insurance is not an investment or pension fund — it is protection against risk. If is is going to be used for pension or annuity purposes, it is just not going to be in the kitty to cover risk. If we had a sudden bad recession, what would happen?

I suggest the situation would be tragic. At the very time when the fund would be counted on to relieve hardship, it would have a bare cupboard.

Will the government rectify this situation and get the fund back on the tracks? Let us hope so. But remember that it will be a difficult task, because it is always tempting for governments to use such instruments for all sorts of social purposes, right or wrong. Governments do not want to offend any voters. Governments often abandon business sense in an effort to be popular.

Such popularity could prove short-term indeed if these unemployment insurance monies which we have paid in are not there when we really require them.

Special thanks to Mrs. Mina Bourne, who tenderly cared for Mrs. Mattson during her sickness here.

Late Edward Boyd one of B'burg's oldest residents

The death of Mr. Edward Boyd occurred suddenly on Monday norning, April 4, at his home in Brownsburg, where he resided with his son, Ivan. He was in his 91st year and enjoyed fairly good health up to the time of his death.

He was the second and last remaining member of a family of seven born to the late John Maxwell Boyd and Ann Jane McCrea, who formerly owned and lived on the property where the Notre Dame de Lourdes Shrine (Oblate Fathers) now stands, on the Brownsburg Road. A man of cheerful disposition, he was respected by his many friends; with the exception of one year, he had spent his entire lifetime in the community.

The late Mr. Boyd was predeceased by his wife in 1948 and by a son, Donald, in 1935.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Wilson Bridge at the home of the deceased, and was attended by many sympathizing relatives and friends. The remains were borne to their last resting place in Lachute Cemetery.

Left to mourn his loss are his daughter, (Hazel) Mrs. Clayton Boyd, of Elliott Lake, Ont., and his son, Ivan, at home.

Pall-bearers were — John MacVicar, Heber Boyd, Alton Boyd, Stanley Boyd, Gordon Hay and Norman McRae.

Late Mrs. John MacRae

The death of Mrs. John MacRae occurred at her home at Bell Falls on March 29, after a long illness.

Born at St. Amedée on April 18, 1884, she was the youngest daughter of Henry Riley and his wife, Sarah MacCuaig.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, Mr. John MacRae, three daughters, one step-daughter and one step-son — Mrs. Edmond Nixon (Ruth) of Calumet, Mrs. Ernest MacLeod (Christina), of Bell Falls, Mrs. Melvin MacLeod (Freda), of Harrington, Mrs. Gordon Smith (Beatrice), of Vankleek Hill, Lauder MacRae, of Port Colborne, Ont; and also two sisters, Mrs. Edmond Kelly (Susie), of Hammond, B.C., and Mrs. Sid Whiller, of White River Junction, Vt.

The late Mrs. MacRae was a devoted member of the L.O.B.A., Avoca. This order held a service at the Desforges Funeral Home Thursday evening.

Beautiful floral tributes showed the high affection of relatives and friends. The funeral service was held in the Harrington United Church, conducted by the Rev. Wm. Toller, assisted by Mr. Ken Brown.

Pall-bearers were — Lauder MacRae, Ian MacRae, Ernest MacRae, Alvin McAndrew, Philip MacLeod and Ernest MacLoed, Jr.

Late Mrs. R. P. Mattson

Mrs. R. P. Mattson, of Winnipeg, formerly Norma Helen Dewar, passed away Sunday, April 10, at the home of her father, Mr. Walter Dewar, Brownsburg, following a lengthy illness borne with patience and Christian fortitude.

Born in Montreal on August 4, 1927, Norma moved with her parents to Grenville, Que., in 1928. She was married to Mr. R. P. Mattson, of Winnipeg, on July 21, 1945. From this union were born six children, Sharron, Frederick, Allan, Deborrah, Edward and Michael.

Deceased lady was taken ill in 1956, and following tender care and medical attention for upwards of four years, returned on February 21 to spend the last few weeks with her loved ones in this district.

Besides her husband, father and children, there remain two brothers, Rodney and Allan, and one sister, Caroline Dewar, all of Brownsburg.

Mrs. Mattson was a member of the Anglican Church, and the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. C. R. Lang, in the MacKimmie Funeral Home, on Wednesday afternoon. Interment was made in the Lachute Cemetery.

Argent'l native dies suddenly in United States

Late Lloyd J. Larose

Lloyd J. Larose, a native of Weir, Que., where he was born June 11, 1908, died suddenly March 14 in Lakewood Hospital, Cleveland, following a heart attack. Mr. Larose held both road and yard seniority rights on Canadian National Railways. He began employment with the C.N.R. in 1928 as a brakeman in Montreal and was promoted to conductor in 1941. As chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for many years, he was a tireless worker for its cause and had occupied many prominent positions in BRT activities.

His last assignment before assuming his office on the Board of Trustees was as a passenger conductor on the Montreal-Chicoutimi run. He also had been a yard foreman and a yardmaster during his rail career.

Besides his wife, Elsie Lillian, Mr. Larose is survived by two sons, Lloyd George, a former BRTer in Lodge 802 and now a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Hearst, Ont., and Keith Philip at home; a daughter, Elinor June, at home; a grandson, Hal Larose, Hearst; his mother, Mrs. Philip Larose, Weir, Que.; two brothers, Clifford, a CNR engineer, Montreal, and Lyall, a CNR conductor, Montreal; two sisters, Mrs. E. D. Beaven, Ottawa, Ont., and Mrs. Albert Turmel, Weir, Que.

Funeral services were held in Montreal March 18 from the William Ray Funeral Home, with burial in Memorial Park Cemetery.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. Walter Wert would like to thank her many friends for the gifts, flowers and cards sent to her during her recent stay in hospital.

I wish to thank my relatives, friends and neighbors for gifts and cards received during my recent stay in hospital.

—John Connelly, Brownsburg.

I wish to offer my sincere thanks to all my friends for their cards, gifts, visits and prayers, during my recent stay in hospital.

—Robert Robinson

Mrs. Leonie Bedard, St. Andrews, wishes to thank all who assisted at the fire at her house, the people who organized a collection, and also those who so generously donated.

Palm Sunday observances at Lach. United Church

The Palm Sunday Communion service drew a large attendance to Lachute United Church, the overflow congregation having to be accommodated in the gallery. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, organist and choir director, gave a very effective rendering of "Ride On! Ride On in Majesty!" by Graham George. Twenty-three new members were received, 19 on profession of faith, and four by transfer from other United churches.

A special feature of the service was an address by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, on the responsibilities of church membership, which was followed by the prayer of dedication, and reception of the new members. Mr. Gordon Dobbie and Mr. Stewart Jones, elders of the church, assisted the minister in extending the right hand of fellowship.

Now 1,500 books in W.I. library

Library Week was celebrated by the Women's Institute Library by hearing a most interesting talk on current literature. The speaker, Miss J. Grace Gardner, B.A., well-known in educational circles of Montreal, delivered an entertaining and witty address to a large group of members and friends of the Institute.

The W.I. library is a going concern, with, at present, more than 1,500 books. Among these are many of the latest novels, mysteries and biographies. These may be enjoyed by all who like to read. Anyone can become a life member of the library by paying a fee of $1. A rental of 10 cents per week per book is charged. New members, French or English, will be welcomed.

At present the library is housed in the basement of the Lachute High School. It is hoped that better quarters may be obtained when the addition is made to the school.

The library is open each Thursday from 3 to 4 p.m.

Our Saviour's Prayer

In that far-off Eastern garden
What a solemn silence there,
As the perfume of the flowers
Rose like incense, on the air.

There little birds expectant,
Sat tense, on leafing boughs,
On that glorious Easter morning,
When Our Saviour, Christ, arose.

There silent, guardian angels
Their watchful vigil kept,
As o'er the dim, old landscape
The dawn of morning crept.

The bees had ceased their humming,
And Nature held her breath,
Our Lord was awake, and coming
From out the jaws of death.

As that silent, white-clad figure
Emerged from out the tomb,
His face wore a smile so tender,
That the lilies burst in bloom.

And the birds, forgetting silence,
Poured anthems, note by note,
In peons of adoration
From out their joy-filled throats.

With arms outstretched in blessing,
He stood a moment, there,
His eyes, the world caressing,
His heart, a silent prayer.

T'was wafted up to Heaven,
To that great white throne above
This plea, that all His children
Might know, that God is Love.

High School spring concert

A young vocalist, Douglas Jenkins then sang "Christopher Robin is Saying His Prayers", accompanied by Mrs. Rigby, a feature that brought forth an enthusiastic applause.

Before the intermission, there were two highlights of the evening. Grades IIIA and IIIB performed a song and dance to "The Polka," which was both colorful and pleasing, in fact, deserved an encore. The other 'high' was stolen by Grades IA and IB, in a really enjoyable and humorous portrayal of "Lavender's Blue," a song and sketch of nursery rhymes. A truly delightful number.

After the intermission, a French play put on by Grade IX gave the impression that more coaching was needed in the presentation, both in staging and delivery. Most of the dialogue was lost to the audience. This was followed by two songs by Miss Bonnie Gain, who sang "The Holy City", a suitable rendition for the Easter season, and "A Prayer for Canada", which were well responded to.

Again Miss Rodrigue introduced more of her pianoforte pupils, from the higher grades, featuring two solos and a duet. The always popular Matthew Sisters, accompanied by the guitar, sang three numbers to the delight of their audience.

A scene from Act Two of "Quality Street" by Sir James Barrie, was very well presented by High School students. An introduction was read by Mr. Rossaert giving a synopsis of the story leading up to the second act. A note of interest was that Miss Leona Welden had been quite ill just prior to the performance, and she did a very creditable job, along with Miss Susan Pride and Robin Fraser, who had the leading parts. This was a colorful bit of staging, and no little credit must go to Mrs. Gordon Tabrett, Mrs. Jim Menzies, Mrs. Sid Patterson, Mrs. O. Bates and Mrs. Doug Ogilvie, the committee who made the fine costumes in "Quality Street", as well as in other presentations. Mrs. K. Fraser was co-producer with Mrs. Rigby in this playlet.

The three Grades V then sang "My Spanish Guitar" and "Chipanecas", two delightful rhythmic compositions, that again pleased the audience.

A change of pace was then introduced, when Miss Grace Donaldson, the recent winner in the Public Speaking contest, gave her talk on "The Carillon Dam", a topic of current and local interest. Miss Donaldson gave a very pleasing and thoughtful discourse, and well deserves to be complimented. The last item was the senior choir, which sang five selections, one of which featured Miss Joyce Plummer as soloist. The popular "Going Home" theme of Dvorak's brought the concert to a close. Miss Heather Menzies then presented flowers on behalf of the students to Mrs. Rigby, who very graciously accepted the bouquet. There was a tremendous amount of work and thought in presenting a program of such variety, and the parents of the high school pupils may feel a justifiable pride in the accomplishment, and also a feeling of appreciation to Mrs. Rigby, who made the concert possible.

The stage was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, a generous gesture of Mr. Anders Paulsen, local florist.

Fine report on annual meeting of Red Cross

The April meeting of the Red Cross, Lachute branch, held last Wednesday, was highlighted by an interesting and informative report given by Mrs. F. W. FitzGerald.

As delegate to the annual meeting of the Quebec Branch, Mrs. FitzGerald said she was particularly impressed by the large number of men, as well as women, representing the 152 branches in the province — an increase of 13 branches over 1958.

A brief review of points of interest to the local branch and to all those who have recently given so generously to Red Cross, was given as follows:

First of all, Finances: Campaign subscriptions (1959) amounted to more than a million dollars from the 64 campaign districts. This enables the Quebec Branch to assist in all the varied work of the Society, both at home and abroad.

Approximately $59,000 was spent on Veterans' Welfare Work, Guest Lodge and Hospital Visiting (veterans).

Each year the procurement of sufficient Blood Donors to meet the demands of the hospitals becomes more difficult. There are now 115 hospitals serviced by the Montreal depot and there was an increase of 10,000 bottles over 1958. This service cost the Society $110,534 last year. It should be remembered that it is not the Red Cross that benefits from the collection of blood but patients in hospitals whose very life may depend on the generosity of the Blood Donors.

Disaster Service — $74,183.53 — an increase of about $20,000 over the previous year. Much credit is due to the most efficient work done by Red Cross Branch in the Gaspé area. Within 20 minutes of the report of the disaster, the President of the Red Cross had taken action.

Women's Work — The Lachute Branch are recognized for their untiring efforts and high quality of the work they send in regularly. Workroom supplies and expenses for the Province amounted to $36,533.15. From these supplies over 915,122 articles were made — an increase of 99,976 over 1958.

Water Safety — a vital service in this land of lakes and rivers — Over 24,000 students were taught — of these 14,713 earned Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety Certificates — an increase of 26% and a cost of $23,859.36.

Loan Cupboard and Sick Room Supplies — more than 13,000 sick room articles were loaned to 6,427 individuals. This service cost $23,371.69.

Mobile Medical and Dental Clinics, Outpost Nursing Services and Home Nursing Classes, Enquiry Bureau — these services cost $101,865.73 during 1959 and brought help and comfort to many.

The cost of operating Red Cross vehicles, campaign expenses, maintenance of buildings, warehousing and general publicity were all discussed.

Junior Red Cross — this group merits tremendous admiration, Mrs. FitzGerald concluded, and "I would like to suggest we continue to give it our very strong support and encouragement," she added.

Literature topic at Lachute W.I.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held on April 5 at the Legion Hall, with the president, Mrs. Linton Armstrong, presiding. The speaker for the afternoon was Miss Grace Gardner, former principal of the Montreal Girls' High School. Her subject, "Current Literature", presented in light-hearted style, and sparkling with wit, proved most interesting.

Mrs. F. W. FitzGerald thanked the speaker and tea was served. Copies of a questionnaire entitled "Eat to Live", a study of nutrition in Canada, were distributed by Mrs. R. Davidson, convener of Home Economics.

TRIBUTE

The Members of the Lachute School Board and the Staff of Lachute High School express their deepest regret in the recent death of a well-known educationalist, MR. G. Y. DEACON.

For many years Mr. Deacon served this district as a school commissioner. He worked tirelessly to improve educational standards and facilities. He was a member of the Lachute School Board when consolidation was introduced and when the first extension to the Lachute High School was built.

All school pupils were familiar with Mr. Deacon in his position as Fire Chief for the town. Each year, in this capacity, he visited the school, watched a fire-drill, and spoke to the pupils on fire safety.

Mr. Deacon's greatest contribution to education was as a member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education for this province. He was outstanding in his foresighted efforts to further consolidation and to improve transportation facilities for pupils. He spent much time visiting school boards throughout the province to explain to them the advantages of consolidation.

His many years of devotion to education and to the Town of Lachute made him well-known throughout Quebec. We deeply and sincerely mourn his passing.

BELL LINES

your telephone manager

Spring activities around town are bound to include a certain amount of outside work — and this could endanger the telephone, radio and television services essential to you and your friends. A great many miles of cable run under streets and lawns, sidewalks and fields in Lachute. If you are planning to dig — for any purpose whatsoever — please dial 1-1-4, "Telephone Repair Service". This call will get an experienced telephone man like Bill Poley, out to locate and mark buried cable for you, clearing the way for you to dig or excavate without worry. There is no charge for this service, of course.

The 'Telephone Hour' music shows, appearing on CBC television quite regularly these days are sponsored, as you no doubt know, by the Trans-Canada Telephone System. In case you have wondered, the Trans-Canada Telephone System is made up of Canada's eight major telephone organizations — The Avalon Telephone Co. Ltd., Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd., New Brunswick Telephone Co. Ltd., Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, Manitoba Telephone System, Saskatchewan Government Telephones, Alberta Government Telephones, and the British Columbia Telephone Company. The Trans-Canada system was established in 1932, mainly to provide and maintain satisfactory long distance facilities across Canada, and to make uniform operating procedures to speed the handling of long distance traffic. . .

Stolen telephone wires ended up as guitar strings not so long ago, but police 'got the message'. . . . According to a wire service report from Jakarta, Indonesia, a duo from a place called Solo was alleged to have cut the telephone wires between Solo and Jogjakarat. The two men turned over the wires to a music shop. Police later raided the shop and seized 19 guitars which, they said, were strung with stolen telephone wire. . . It's reasonable to assume that these two 'Soloists' had to 'face the music'?

If you saw last month's edition of 'Telephone News', the insert that arrived with your telephone bill, then you'll have a pretty clear idea as to how a colored extension telephone can fit into your home. 'An extension telephone where you work, sleep, or play, will help you enjoy a better day'. That's so true. Give us a call and we'll install for you an extension telephone in the color of your choice.

Appreciation

Concerning the accident of David Underwood of Morin Heights, we would like to thank all the people who offered their help and best wishes; and a very special thank-you to Dr. Robertson. We feel that his instructions and his decision, reached after examining our son, were the determining factors in the boy's recovery. We are all very grateful.

— Mr. and Mrs. Austin Underwood, Morin Heights.

Arundel

Mr. and Mrs. Haylock, of Montreal, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Gray.

Miss Judy Cooke spend the week-end at her home.

Mrs. K. Higginbotham will spend the Easter holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Bulley.

Women's Institute

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute took place April 5 in the Arundel School. The president, Mrs. Gibbons, presided. Highlights of the meeting included — plans made to hold a door-to-door campaign after the May meeting for the World Refugee Year. The president distributed the prizes to the winning pupil in each grade based on their last year's work during Education Week. At the close of the business, the president turned the meeting over to Mrs. Douglas Cooke, who introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. T. C. Stuart. The latter presented colored slides on Scotland, the Maritimes, and British Columbia, which were very much enjoyed. At the conclusion of the program the speaker was thanked by Mrs. Gordon Cooke. The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Forbell spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cooke.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Labelle occupied their cottage at Beven Lake over the week-end.

Don't be an Accident Statistic!

Traffic safety is everybody's job and part of the job is seeing that your car is safety-checked.

It has been found that a good percentage of vehicles involved in fatal highway accidents were mechanically defective. Chief causes of mishaps are faulty tires, brakes, steering apparatus and lights.

As a service to the community, we will safety-check your car at no charge or obligation to you. We'll give you a report on the condition of your car's —

Brakes — front and rear lights — tires — steering windshield wipers — rear mirror and horn exhaust system.

Easter Customs

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Whatever is the weather for Easter, if there are little folk in the home, they will be full of questions about Easter Customs. Mother will explain to them that the date of Easter changes each year because it depends on the movements of the moon. Easter Sunday is the first Sunday after the full moon of the Spring Equinox.

The egg is symbolic of life and to the Early Christians it represented the Resurrection, or Jesus rising from the dead. People of many lands, Egyptians, Romans, Persians and Greeks for centuries have enjoyed coloring egg shells. When boys and girls use their paint boxes or buy dye powder to paint Easter Eggs and decorate them with pretty designs, they are following an old, old custom.

The legend of the Easter Rabbit may be traced to an old German superstition that White Hares laid eggs on Easter Eve, and from that has come the hope that the Easter Rabbits may leave colored eggs and candies at the homes of good children.

New clothes for Easter is another custom which goes back to the reign of Emperor Constantine in Rome. He declared that at Easter everyone should join in the religious processions and should dress in new garments. With the high cost of living, and the amount of money which must be spent to buy even a small child's outfit, this "new clothes for Easter" custom is an embarrassing one in many homes.

Parents do well to be frank with their children and tell them honestly that there is only a certain amount for clothes in the family budget and this must be spread over the whole family as fairly as possible. If a son or daughter can catch a glimpse of the necessary planning for clothes for everyone in the family, they are not so likely to be so demanding about new things — and they will be more willing, when they are able, to help with this expenditure.

Many people joke about a child's "Sunday best," but a child should be encouraged to take pride in his appearance especially when he attends church. Sunday should be a special day — and good clothes are part of the "day set apart" feeling. Every child in the family should have the privilege of attending church with his parents on Easter Sunday, "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh upon the heart."

Easter is the time when the heart rejoices at the return of Spring and the glad certainty that even as Christ rose again from the dead on that first Easter morning, we too and those we love, will live on after this life on earth is over.

W.I. and internt'l cultural venture

Mrs. W. E. Rempel, of Nipawin, Sask., convener of United Nations and International Exchanges for the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, will represent this organization on the Unesco's Cultural Mission to the Carribean, April 16-24.

This mission will provide first-hand opportunity to learn about Canada's nearest Commonwealth neighbor. The West Indies are working out a policy of integration between racial and religious groups in the matters of education, employment, accommodation, civil rights, marriage and family life. The new Federation is trying to solve the problems of federation, self-government and communications. These are the same trials which beset our Canadian leaders before 1867.

Canada has already provided advice and assistance to the West Indies in the development of co-operatives, labor unions, welfare agencies, public health services and adult education.

It is in the Unesco Gift Coupon Plan 400, that the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada have accepted responsibility. This is an adult education program, in aid of the Extra-Mural Department of the University of the West Indies, whose program will greatly assist the work of rural women's groups in that area.

Mrs. Rempel hopes to make contacts with existing groups of Women's Institutes in the Federation and is assisting Dr. Nancy Adams, ACWW Area Vice-President for the Caribbean, earlier in April but will be joining the Mission when it arrives in Jamaica.

Stringing along with salmon

Although they weren't absorbed into North American gastronomical life until about a century ago, spaghetti and other pasta have deep roots in Italian history. The term spaghetti originates from an Italian word "spago" meaning "string", and the literal translation is "little strings". That's indeed an apt description for the pasta we now consider kitchen staple. Spaghetti is substantial yet economical and the background for many enticing sauces. The Italians use tomatoes as a base, and usually add onions and garlic plus a deft touch of spices. The tantalizing sauce is then enhanced with other ingredients appealing to the cook's fancy. Sometimes it's veal or chicken, vegetables, chicken livers, clams or oysters. Many types of fish have long been popular additions to spaghetti sauces in the coastal regions of Italy. Salmon Spaghetti Sauce is an adaptation designed to appeal to Canadian palates and pocketbooks.

Spaghetti with Salmon Sauce

1 Cup canned salmon (1½-pound can), 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 medium onion chopped, ½ clove garlic minced, 1 cup condensed tomato soup, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon oregano, ½ teaspoon sweet basil or thyme, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 8-oz. package spaghetti and ½ cup chopped celery.

Drain and flake salmon, reserving liquid. In butter or margarine, sauté onion until soft. Add salmon liquid and all remaining ingredients, except spaghetti. Cover; bring to boil, simmer 30 minutes. Add salmon to sauce, simmir another 10 minutes. Meanwhile cook spaghetti according to package directions. Drain; place on heated serving dish. Pour salmon sauce on top. Makes 4 servings. (Serve with grated parmesan or sharp cheddar cheese, if desired).

FISH SALES

Rimouski, Que. (CP) — Sales of fish dropped in the lower St. Lawrence region, says Gaston Drolet of the Gaspe Fish Company, because of deep snow hampering door-to-door sales and relaxed Lenten regulations.

Teamed to tempt

Coffee is such a popular beverage in America it's only natural that it has come to be used as a flavor ingredient in ice-cream, gravies, home baking, etc. However, it wasn't always regarded with such favor. Like all novelties there were numerous objections to this beverage when it was first introduced in England. But sensible Englishmen welcomed the use of coffee in their country for a curious reason. In 1659 an English writer summed up many people's feelings when he observed that "this coffee-drink had caused a great sobriety among all nations; formerly apprentices, clerks, etc., used to take their morning drinks of ale, beer or wine, which often made them unfit for business. Now they play the goodfellows with this wakeful and civil drink".

Today's recipe for Chocolate-Frosted Coffee Buns is a delightful dessert, or quite naturally, a snack for the coffee break. The yeast-raised buns are light and moist with a small amount of instant coffee added to give them an unusual and very pleasant flavor. The Chocolate Frosting on the buns adds the crowning touch in both appearance and flavor. The combination of a not-too-sweet dough with a sweet frosting, and the pairing of two favorite flavors should make this recipe one that appeals to everyone's taste.

Chocolate-frosted Coffee Buns

Yield — 2 dozen buns

½ Cup milk, ½ cup granulated sugar, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon of instant coffee, ½ cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, 2 envelopes active dry yeast, 4½ cups (about) of once-sifted all-purpose flour, ½ cup butter or margarine, 3 well-beaten eggs, 1½ cups sifted icing sugar, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 2 tablespoons (about) boiling water and ½ teaspoon of vanilla.

Scald milk; stir in the ½ cup of granulated sugar, salt and instant coffee. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime measure lukewarm water into a small bowl. Stir in the 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Sift 2½ cups of the flour into a large bowl. Cut in the ½ cup butter or margarine until the mixture resembles corn meal. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, dissolved yeast and well-beaten eggs. Beat until smooth and elastic. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 2½ cups more. Turn out dough onto floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 3 equal portions and shape into balls. Cover with a tea towel. Let rest 10 minutes. Form each ball into a roll 8-inches long and cut each roll into eight 1-inch pieces.

Shape each piece into a smooth ball and place, about 2 inches apart, on greased cookie sheets. Grease tops. Cover with tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 45 minutes. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes. While buns are baking, sift icing sugar and cocoa together in a bowl; blend in sufficient boiling water to make an icing of spreading consistency; mix in vanilla. Top buns, while they are hot, with this chocolate icing.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Really effortless touring depends on good driving habits becoming so ingrained that they are as automatic as breathing.

But before your driving habits are formed, try to eliminate those common everyday faults which experts say are among the most frequent causes of accidents. Here they are:

☐ 1. Failure to reduce speed on streets lined with parked cars.

☐ 2 Entering an intersection the instant the light turns green, without looking.

☐ 3 Depending on the driver ahead to signal what he intends to do.

☐ 4 "Tailing" the car ahead too closely.

☐ 5 Relying on just the rear-view mirror when making a turn.

☐ 6 Turning up the bright lights to "get even" with an approaching driver who has his headlights on full.

To be a skilled motorist, concentrate on a mental list of driving do's and don'ts — until they actually become "second nature".

Here's an adjustable recipe for turkey — with or without an oven.

If you're yearning for turkey but have no oven, the recipe is based on six pounds of turkey but can be proportioned to your needs by allowing three-quarter pound for each serving.

Get a small turkey, turkey quarters or turkey legs. Wipe with a clean damp cloth or rinse under running water, then dry. Singe if necessary. Coat well with seasoned flour allowing about ¼ cup flour, ½ tsp. each of salt, paprika and a dash of pepper for each pound of turkey.

Brown the turkey slowly on all sides in ¼ inch layer of hot fat. Drain excessive fat from pan and add two cups of liquid such as water, tomato juice, stewed or canned tomatoes, or part water and part orange juice.

Cover pan and simmer for 1½ to 2 hours. Add more liquid if necessary.

If you are equipped with an oven, the turkey can be placed in a slow oven (325) for two to 2½ hours or until tender. One cup of sliced or button mushrooms can be added for the last 15 minutes.

For gravy, thicken with additional flour and season.

Handle with Care

Blasting caps, an essential tool for construction work, can be the cause of accidents if handled by children. That's why the manufacturers ask parents to take a close look at objects their children bring home for their inspection.

Blasting caps are slim metal cylindrical objects. The police or fire department should be notified if any are found.

Before the authorities arrive, adults can help reduce the danger by placing the cap in a large wet cloth such as a blanket, towel or piece of flannel. Put the cap where it can't be reached by children and remember not to smoke while handling it.

Children should be well warned against throwing stones at them, lighting matches nearby or throwing them into a bonfire. A serious accident could take place.

Third Doctor

Dr. Susan Grant, who began her medical career 60 years ago, marked her 89th birthday recently in Toronto.

She is happily anticipating the graduation of the third generation of women doctors in her family. Her daughter, Dr. Mary Grant Attack, is on the staff of Women's College Hospital and her granddaughter, Susan Attack, is studying medicine at the University of Toronto.

On her birthday, Dr. Grant recalled the time when she attended university. In those days the women students took their lectures separately in the Ontario Medical College for Women. One of the lecturers was Dr. Augusta Stowe Gullen, the first woman graduate in medicine in Canada.

As a medical missionary Dr. Grant served in China for 35 years.

Fashions

Pure silk chiffon combines with silk linen for an evening dress in dark coffee beige or black, which becomes a theatre suit or late day suit when the jacket is added. The deftly draped bodice is of the chiffon; the rest of the dress, of the silk linen. The broad neckline is graceful. The wide, fitted midriff is here again, noted in many of the dress-up clothes. The well cut jacket has good sleeve interest.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

There was a whir in the air like the soft swoosh of a taffeta petticoat under a party dress. I gazed heavenward and saw the first spring migration, in our part of the country, of Canada Geese on the wing northward. Then a crow came into sight flapping and cawing across the sky, apparently announcing it was time to hunt pussy willows in the swamp. Great drifts of snow were disintegrating rapidly into little rivulets and hurrying across fields to join the spring-fed creek on the edge of our eight acres. As I watched from my picture window, buds on the apple trees seemed to grow fatter and fatter in the warmth of the sun's rays.

It happens this way every spring. I get soaked hip high wading through melting drifts to cut the first bright red dogwood twigs and yellow willow stems in our low lands. These I gaily add to the forsythia I have already forced along with the branches of apple blossoms in the old butter crock by the living-room fireplace. I can never wait for spring to happen; I must always go but to meet it coming along our country road.

This season of the year quite often presents a hazard in our house. It shows up all the defects in walls and furniture and too often inspires me to tackle jobs that exceed my strength or capability. I never seem to learn my lesson; I just go on being a sucker for punishment year after year.

This time it was the wide crack in the ceiling where the February blizzard leaked persistently for hours, that caused my stiff neck, twisted shoulder ligaments, ten broken finger nails and a bruised spirit. I was nothing but a bundle of strained muscles merely hours after I decided to stucco the ceiling to cover up the damage.

Some chap in a gray flannel suit had written such convincing advertising copy I was easily sold on the simplicity of mixing an innocuous looking white powder with sufficient water to make a smooth paste and "then apply to the clean surface with a sponge". There was nothing in these directions about first taking Judo lessons to prepare one for wrestling with step ladder and implements, or mention made of the fact that doing a Michelangelo stunt could tie one in a knot like a pretzel.

Actually, I got so adept after the first struggle to attach mush to plaster and make it stick, that I could cover the odd square foot without having a single gob splat on my forehead, or obliterate my eyesight entirely with a wet poultice. The worst part of the operation was the anticipation that, after the stucco hardened, the ceiling still had to have a coat of paint. It was then I literally threw in the sponge. I could wipe off a glob of crack filler, but my dignity really suffered when a steady stream of white paint started slithering from brush down my forearm to elbow and my right shoulder seemed permanently separated from its socket.

I have a wonderful panacea for this type of self-inflicted torture. I closed the front door behind me, dropped the key in my pocket and headed for our railway station. I had a sudden yen to ride a commuter train and see how Canada's publicly owned railroad, the CNR, takes care of literally thousands of people who ride the rails every business work day.

When my train pulled into the Union Station in Toronto I queued up before heavy steel gates with several hundred kerchiefed young girls. There were also executive types with brief cases dangling from their right hands, while they tried to read headlines in carefully folded newspapers. My enthusiasm for a 40-mile ride west, close to the shores of Lake Ontario, was very real to me, but obviously routine to these blasé humans. If Canadians are as gregarious as they are purported to be, you'd never guess it from watching a trainload of commuters. Not a word was spoken, nor a friendly note exchanged among these people who see each other five days a week.

Surely the railroad must count noses in the nightly queues for, to my surprise, there was a seat for everyone as the 5.20 was quickly packed to capacity. And at most stations, as we rolled to a stop, there seemed to be a car for each passenger. Adjacent parking lots were crammed with vehicles awaiting smart drivers. I say smart, because evidently these commuters have discovered what good sense it is to fight traffic only as far as their hometown station and then let a diesel engineer take over the responsibility of getting them safely to and from work.

FASTER LOADING

Port Moody, B.C. (CP) — A new $2,000,000 bulk-loading dock at the end of Burrard Inlet here, 12 miles east of Vancouver, has been completed and can load a freighter in about 15 hours.

HER JOB IS PRETTYING UP POODLES

When Susan Radley graduated from university with her arts degree she decided to spend her time doing what she likes—clipping poodles. No stuffy office job for her. For more than a year now she has had her own studio in Toronto. Even as a child Susan clipped the neighbor's dogs and her family had two poodles for her to practice on. She likes her work because so many dogs come in looking like ragbags and go out looking like Parisian models. Above left, Susan is shown with Candy all lathered up while at right she gets a brushing.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

END TO DIZZINESS

The familiar sensation of dizziness is a by-product of one of the many senses we have in addition to the traditional five — the sense of balance.

The body's position in space is reported to the brain by a delicate apparatus called the inner ear. Rapid changes in position — such as being whirled around and around — disturb the inner ear, causing it to misreport. The result is the false sensation that the room is in motion around you, usually coupled with a falling sensation. Damage to the inner ear can make dizziness more or less permanent. Doctors refer to this highly unpleasant situation as Meniere's syndrome.

Sufferers from this disease, and people usually prone to dizziness, no longer have to suffer in silence, however. A new combination drug, called Antivert, goes right to the source of the trouble. It contains meclizine, which calms down the agitated inner ear, and nicotinic acid (one of the B vitamins) which increases the flow of blood through the brain.

Up to now there has been no single, simple treatment for dizziness. Physicians have tried a number of remedies without consistent success.

PROTESTS HANGING

CBC news editor Peter Churchill, above, told the government that he won't file an income tax return until capital punishment is abolished. He outlined his "act of disobedience" in letters to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Justice Minister Fulton and Finance Minister Fleming. Mr. Churchill said the income tax department owed him money so he is not evading taxes, just refusing to file a return.

USEFUL WORK

Smiths Falls, Ont. (CP) — The Boy Scouts and Cubs of the 1st Ontario school group raised $350 for the new National Boy Scout headquarters at Ottawa. The boys earned by the livingroom fireplace. I can work.

(Canada's "Mr. Curling", Ken Watson of Winnipeg, is covering the Canadian curling scene for The Lachute Watchman.

Simple strategy beats the pebble!

One day some ingenious ice-maker will devise a method of applying a pre-game pebble that will not cause a variance of 20 to 40 feet in draw weight between the first and final ends.

The present spot pebble applied via sprinkler provides a never-ending source of annoyance to new curlers who find that it is troublesome enough to fathom the intricacies of the in-turn and out-turn without having to unravel the mystery of drawing to the rings on ice that is constantly changing the weight requirements as the pebble is worn down.

To make matters worse the five-inch cup on which the stone rides blazes a very narrow trail over the pin-points of frozen moisture so that it may take several ends to provide keen ice on all parts of the sheet. Side ice particularly is seldom if ever ground into submission. It takes a pretty smart skip with a photographic memory to recall the smooth as well as the rough areas of the ice as the game grinds on. What chance has a novice then to gauge the exact amount of weight for any given draw, guard or raise that his skip signals?

This winter at my own club the executive decided to purchase a brand new set of granites to replace the old faithfuls whose running surfaces had worn smooth with wear after many years of ungrudging service. The freshly honed cups of these smart, polished stones, not long off the lathes of Mauchline, Scotland, accentuated the differential in draw weight and during the early ends of a game an unusual number of rocks ran out of gas and stalled short of the rings.

The strategy employed by a skip with any sense of self-preservation during these early ends is vitally important. May I offer a few suggestions to help the skipper preserve his sanity and his players their self-confidence?

For a team of average or even better-than-average rock-tossers it is imperative that the skip keep the strategy simple during this breaking-in period.

Forget about fancy draws behind an opponent's stone. Even if by some miracle a draw is made and is still exposed you will set up a hit and roll behind short for your adversary. Hitting is much easier on early ice when draws are of the "guess and by golly" variety. Keep your draws in the open to one side of the rings in such cases. If they fall short the centre ice may still be open for other attempts. And for John's sake, never ask for a lay-up shot or a guard from any but a proven curler at this point. Call for a removal with light hack weight and at worst you should get a draw.

If by chance the fortunate flip of the coin gives you last rock on the first end and your opponents manage to get shot and guarded, go for the front and let the air in so that you will at least have a ghost of a chance with your last stone.

Play both turns during the first two ends, not only to study the topography of the surface but to beat the pebble into submission on both sides of the ice. Too many skips stick to one turn and wear down one side of the sheet to easy draw weight then find themselves suddenly confronted with a delicate shot on the other half where accurate weight is a matter of a prayer or a promise. A skip does not have to be a student of psychology to know that if he wants to inspire confidence in his team-mates and get a creditable performance from them, they must make a fair percentage of their shots during the crucial early ends.

Common sense alone suggests that simplicity in strategy and play during the first stanza or so will avert the demoralization that can set in when you and your team get off to a bad start.

A speedy recovery is extended to Mrs. J. O'Brien, who has been quite ill for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Coney and son, Raymond, visited friends in Strathmore on Sunday.

Appreciation

I wish to thank my friends and relatives, also the Frontier W.I., for cards and acts of kindness during my illness.—Mrs. J. A. O'Brien

Good condition is better than tidy

After a hard winter's driving a car must certainly need a spring cleaning. But the most important thing of all is that the car is in good condition. The Provincial Highway Safety Committee, (Prudentia), warns motorists never to drive a car which they are not certain of being in top condition. It is much better to have good brakes, good tires, and well-functioning headlights than for the car to be highly polished and clean. Be sure of the condition of the car, and then have it polished and cleaned.

CURLING PLAY-OFF

Canada's top female curlers arrived to compete in the first national women's curling championship to be held in Oshawa, Ontario. The Eastern winner will meet Joyce McKee's Saskatoon rink in the final. Next year it is hoped that all 10 provinces will send rinks to the competition. Above, top, are Pauline Burden, PEI, Marg Harris, N.S., bottom, Gerry Comeau, N.B., and Elsie Forsythe, Ont.

What was Ontario's first standard-gauge railway?

The Bytown and Prescott Railway, opened for traffic in 1854. Prior to that time, railways in Canada West (Ontario) used the old narrow gauge. The Bytown and Prescott had been incorporated in 1850 and the first sod was turned in Bytown (Ottawa) in October 1851. Although the roadbed was ready, the financial condition of the company did not provide rails until they were secured from a Welsh foundry in 1853 in exchange for mortgage bonds. In 1855 Ottawa was substituted for Bytown in the name and in the year of Confederation, when the line was taken over by the bondholders, it was again renamed, becoming the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Railway. In 1884 it was leased to the Canadian Pacific Railway and has since been operated by that company.

The Bible today

The translation of the Bible into new languages is always a live subject. Recently the British and Foreign Bibly Society reported that a first Bible in Lushai for Assam had been issued. There are also two first New Testaments in Gangte for Burma and Quechua-Ayacucho for Peru; the latter in conjunction with the American Bible Society. Two first productions of any part of the Bible in Deisan for Borneo and Riang for India have also been made. Altogether, at present, 319 languages are being worked on in the translations department.

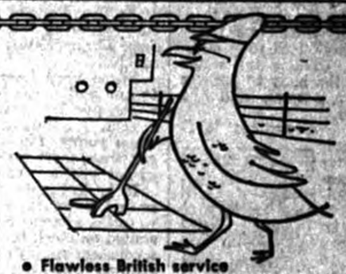

The effect of having the Scriptures in a man's own language is illustrated by the comment from an Aymara village in South America when they received the fully revised translation of the Scriptures in their own tongue. One of the translators said: "Since the Good News came to us, it is as though Jesus Christ were living in our village."

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Recommend "Watered Stock"

Fed and watered both, that is. Water is the most important and also the cheapest feed. Actually, livestock would live longer without feed than without water. Reduce the water content of the body to ten per cent below normal, and the animal dies.

During cold weather it is more difficult to have water readily accessible to animals, and to have it in wholesome condition to be consumed in large quantities, as needed.

Dr. Bohstedt

If the water is too cold, particularly if cows are watered only once a day, they reduce their milk production for the simple reason that it takes from four to five pounds of water for every pound of milk produced. So it is especially important with high producers to take care of their water requirement.

The state of Maine would seem to have a sufficiently severe climate for a good test in this respect. On some 500 farms there it was found that cows watered from drinking cups produced 19 per cent more milk than cows watered outdoors, and 9 per cent more milk than cows watered from a tub in the barn.

But even in states with much milder temperatures than Maine it has paid to have drinking bowls from which the cows can drink at will. Cows usually drink about ten times during a 24 hour period, one-third of the water being drunk during the night.

Dairy cows of about average production drink from 10 to 15 gallons a day, but water consumption may go up to twice that much for high producers.

Beef cattle and horses, depending on size, will need from 10 to 12 gallons or more daily. Sheep need at least a gallon a day, nursing ewes twice that much.

Swine need from about one to one and one-half gallons of water per 100 pounds of live weight, the larger proportion when young. For all livestock, of course, more water is needed in hot weather than cold.

It is fortunate that during recent years more and more watering systems have been installed on stock farms whereby a constant supply of water in a sanitary condition is being delivered to bowls that can be heated to keep water from freezing during cold weather.

Question: We keep losing lambs that we have on feed, and post-mortem examinations show urinary calculi as the cause of death. Reading of possible causes and preventives of this trouble we recently learned that salt is used as a preventive. How should the salt be fed?

Answer: The cause of urinary calculi in the bladder or kidney has been variously ascribed to feeds high in silicates, as present in some forages, or high in other minerals, while low in vitamin A. Insufficient water consumption is sometimes blamed for urinary calculi.

The various causes given are not always consistent, but Dr. T. D. Bell of Kansas State College observed that after having lost lambs from urinary calculi, he included 5 per cent salt in their rations and thereafter lost no more lambs. State College of Washington workers found that 10 per cent salt in the rations of experimental wethers prevented calculi, but think that 5 per cent salt might be as beneficial as the larger amount.

Keeping accounts on the farm

"A farm without records is like a clock without hands", writes Nazaire Parent, assistant director of the Field Crops Service of the Quebec Department of Agriculture. Mr. Parent is convinced there are far too many farmers who work the whole year round without finding out what their farm is producing. This is a mistake which only good bookkeeping can correct. A great many farmers, by keeping accounts, have discovered and eliminated losses and put their farms on a paying basis.

Furthermore, one of the conditions for obtaining credit is the keeping of accounts based on a complete annual inventory. For credit is extended largely on the basis of a farm's productivity, and the applicant must be in a position to produce figures to show what this actually is.

The word "inventory" means a list of possessions with their estimated values. These include real estate, implements and horses, livestock, crops and other farm produce, cash on hand or in the bank and accounts receivable. In general, the inventory is the compass which tells the owner of the property where he stands and in which direction he is heading from one year to the next. Without an inventory it is impossible to understand the financial statement of a business.

There are different ways of going about it but, for the purpose of keeping accounts on the farm, property may be listed under the following headings:

Real estate; under this heading should be listed separately; land, buildings, woodlots, sugar bush and, in brief, all improvements of a permanent nature which would remain on the farm in the event of sale;

Implements and horses; the majority of the items to be listed will come under this heading because of the wide variety of equipment called for by the system of mixed farming now in vogue on most Quebec farms. It is important to take considerable care in making this first inventory: after that it will only be necessary to make a few simple alterations at the end of each year to bring it up to date. This annual stock-taking will also serve as a reminder of any machine or tool borrowed or lent, which has not yet been returned to its rightful owner. Since horses cannot work without harness and implements, they are entered under this heading. This category includes the more important fixed expenses which help towards production but do not bring in any direct income;

Livestock; a complete list of cattle with their working equipment and utensils, specifying the name and age of each so that annual changes will be easily noted, is entered here. In the case of poultry, pigs and sheep, it is enough to record their number and value only;

Crops and other produce; some farm yields are difficult to estimate, for example, the number of tons of hay, turnips, silage, etc. Experience and good judgment, however, will enable the farmer to overcome this difficulty and arrive at a satisfactory figure since the error will be of about the same kind and size each year;

Financial assets; these include cash in the bank and on hand and sums of money not yet received.

The five categories here mentioned represent the assets of the farm. Mortgages, bills and notes payable make up the liabilities. The total assets minus the liabilities gives the net worth to property of the farmer at the time of the inventory.

In drawing up an inventory, it is always necessary to remember that there is much more likelihood of overestimating (and more danger in doing so) than of underestimating.

SEVENTH STRAIGHT SAFETY WIN

Racking up the best accident prevention score among 19 Ontario logging operations, Abitibi Power and Paper's Sault Ste. Marie woods division for the seventh straight year is the winner of the trophy presented by the Ontario Pulp and Paper Makers Safety association. D. B. Chant, secretary-manager of the safety group, left, and E. E. Grainger, Abitibi general manager of woodlands, admire the award with "Miss Woods Safety," Inga Britt. The division had only nine lost time injuries in the year 1959.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. — I worked for a hotelkeeper who had 15 persons in his employ. I did his laundry at home. Am I entitled to unemployment insurance?

A. — As you did the hotel laundry at your home you are not entitled to unemployment insurance stamps.

Q. — What penalties are imposed by a court when prosecution proceedings are taken against a claimant?

A — The Unemployment Insurance Act provides that every person who is guilty of an offence under the Act is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $500 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both fine and imprisonment.

Q. — Why should people who are drawing benefits have to answer personal questions on the forms and then again when an inspector comes around? For instance, if my wife is not living with me, I think it's my own business.

A — The question on the form is not whether you have a wife, but whether you have a dependent. A dependent may be your wife, your child, or some other relative. Your booklet 501D, "Direction to Report and Information for Claimants", tells you what family relationships are recognized under the Unemployment Insurance Regulations. If you have a dependent, your benefit rate is higher. If you are not supporting your wife, then you simply do not name her as a dependent, and the matter ends there. If you do name her as a dependent, then you must answer further questions to enable the office to decide whether she is actually dependent on you. The same applies if you name a child or other relative. If your claim happens to be investigated by an inspector, then you are likely to be questioned again regarding your dependent. The checking done by the Commission's offices and inspectors is for the protection of the unemployment insurance fund, and it safeguards future benefits — including your own.

RAINS, THAWS SET RIVER ON RAMPAGE

Rain and melting snows in the watershed of the North River caused a sudden rise in level during Sunday night, with consequent flooding of basements in town, and of low-lying lands along the valley, including spots on Route 41. The route was closed to traffic on Monday, with water four feet deep over stretches of the road near St. Canut.

In certain dwellings in the Hill Foot settlement bordering the river bank, water rose over the floor level after Sunday night's deluge of rain. Some residents propped their furniture out of harm's way, took their pets and personal effects, and evacuated their homes in the night.

Laurentian streams meanwhile gained torrential proportions. The West River at Pine Hill was at its highest level in years, with water flooding the highway and threatening to undermine the paving and bridges. The highway was obstructed at Dalesville, where a culvert was washed out.

Flood conditions were reported also along parts of Route 8 to Montreal.

Properties Damaged in Lachute

In Lachute Town, the Filion development north of Main Street, scene of memorable floods seven years ago, was again the hardest hit. A foundation caved in beneath a house on Filion Street, undermined by the swirling waters. The riverbank thoroughfares were completely flooded and homes inaccessible, many dwellings having been vacated by their occupants.

Police and Firemen Busy

Chief A. J. Whiteway reports his department started evacuating families around Monday noon, and a constant flood patrol with truck and boat has been maintained since the crisis threatened. (This was precipitated, according to Chief Whiteway, with a sudden rise of two feet in water level at St. Jerome between 5 p.m. and 9.30 p.m. Monday, with the opening of a dam at Mont Rolland.)

Two volunteer firemen and a citizen aided the police crew during Monday night. Up to 9 o'clock Tuesday morning six families had been removed from their homes, five in the Filion Street area and one on Main Street West, at the rear of the business properties near the hotel. Of the six families, one was lodged in the motel and the others sought shelter with relatives.

The police helped two youngsters from their home Tuesday morning to attend school.

Chief Whiteway notes that the greatest danger now is to inquisitive children who may approach too near the water, topple into a hole or drain-sump, or get caught in the swift current of the flooded river. Parents are urged to keep an eye on venturesome children, to avert this danger.

Police Vacated Own Premises

Shortly after imparting the above information, Chief Whiteway and the police force were obliged to move out of their basement quarters in city hall, where there was several inches of water covering the floor. The police were installed temporarily in the fire station.

Operations at the Lachute Creamery plant were considerably disorganized when water seeped to floor level in this extensive building.

Situation at Pine Hill

Adjacent to the West River at Pine Hill, a number of residents were forced to evacuate their homes. Claude Gagné's house was a foot deep in water, his family moved out during Sunday night or Monday, and attempts were made to remove furniture with a boat. Cecil Gagné, who keeps a garage, moved out of his home as the water rose higher. The grill at Pine Hill Inn was inundated, and with water high in the basement, no heat was available from the furnace.

Several summer camps in this section were flooded and a private bridge was washed out Monday morning, in conditions worse than residents had remembered in the past 50 years.

Tower Collapsed

A steel tower carrying Gatineau Power's transmission line from Carillon to Pointe Fortune was undermined by the surge of water down the Ottawa River, and the tower tilted early Tuesday afternoon. The tower was situated near the first lock at Carillon. Power was interrupted in the area for approximately 40 minutes, the interruption affecting Lachute for only three minutes. When crewmen cut the guy wires to avert further danger the entire 65 ft. tower collapsed and was sucked into the current.

It was reported a bridge was washed out in Calumet Village, and that flood waters were causing consternation at the Carillon Dam workings.

Brownsburg re-issues dictum against wrong-way parking on thoroughfare

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — After calling off the regular monthly meeting on the Monday evening and subsequently scheduling it for Monday, one week hence, due to illness of the town secretary — the Brownsburg Council convened on the following Wednesday after ensuring that the official minute books, etc., would be on hand. (Confusing, to say the least.)

Two Council Vacancies

Probably the most important item to come out of the session was that concerning the "stepping down" of Councillors Keith Graham and Ernest Legault. When the mayor and six councillors were elected to office last year, it was for a three-year term, with the understanding that two councilmen would retire each year. Both are eligible to contest the offices again. The names of Councillors Graham and Legault were pulled from a hat, thus paving the way for nomination day, which was set for Wednesday, May 11, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Elections, if required, will be held on Monday, May 16, with the voting hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Draw lots to vacate two seats on Council

To Engage Town Foreman

Among its other accomplishments, the present council may finally chalk up the decision to hire a town foreman. Such a move will certainly produce increased efficiency and effectiveness on the part of the corps of civic employees, provided the job goes to the right man. Tenders are presently being called for, and submissions will be examined at the May 2 meeting of the assembly.

Street Names

Another decision which will also be looked upon by many as an accomplishment, concerned the decision to revert to the use of old street names. Apparently the numbering system, while ideal theoretically, does not work well enough in actual practice to eliminate the fondness for the old street names which were popular for so many years.

Parking

Councillor George Therrien was the instigator of a heated debate concerning the habit some local residents have formed of parking on the correct side of a street but facing the wrong way. A great deal of time was consumed last summer in clarifying this particular point after Council had erred in revising the original by-law. At that time the decision was subsequently made to adhere to the original regulation, which stated that cars must not face the "wrong way" when parked on a street on which parking is allowed on one side only. Councillor Therrien was particularly adamant in his insistence that the law apply to all residents — including public officials. Interviewed some time after the meeting, Mr. Therrien expressed the belief that, "while the actual offence in itself may not appear to be of any consequence to some, it is important for two reasons. Firstly, wrong-way parking is a safety hazard — that is why the law was passed in the first place. Secondly, since it is a town by-law, it must be obeyed by all residents."

Recent observation of the street in question reveals that Mr. Therrien's stand has had some effect. One of the offenders had parked his car properly and another, who had not, was the recipient of a parking ticket. This was one day's observation; it will be interesting to note the duration of the "reform."

Since Councillor Therrien has exhibited some influence on this count, perhaps he might go farther afield and cast an eye on other regulations!

Six fire calls, 18 car mishaps, month of March

Report of the fire department, submitted by Donald P. MacCullough, fire chief, showed that six calls were answered by the department during March. Five were of a minor nature, and one of more serious proportions. One call, for a stove-pipe fire, was beyond the town limits, in Chatham Township.

Chief A. J. Whiteway's report of police activities listed 285 service calls. There were 18 automobile mishaps; 12 persons lodged under protection; 12 persons arrested and 131 court hearings; 150 traffic tickets issued; 3 persons injured; 5 animals distroyed; 73 licenses sold.

Cases investigated included 2 stolen cars, 4 instances of breaking and entering, and 7 thefts.

Mileage on the patrol car for the month of March was 3,980.

Staff Overtaxed

In a plea for the hiring of an extra constable (to which Council acceded on hearing the recommendations) Chief Whiteway submitted the following facts:

"Recent trouble with teen-age groups has thrown extra work on the department, and is continuing to do so.

"I find it very difficult to supply proper protection to the school zones, as for the most part we have only one Constable on the day shift.

"The control of parking on Main Street is proving difficult as we have no one on foot during the day, and the car is usually occupied, with either investigation or calls of one kind or another. We have tried to enforce the parking regulations about the town, but find in order to have the parking autos marked and ticketed for overtime parking, we definitely need a man on foot during the day.

"With the summer season rapidly approaching, it appears obvious that another man will be needed, as there will be an increase in traffic, as well as in populace, and subsequently an increase in calls, investigations, reports, etc.

"There is another point, which I may mention, and that is the fact that if one of the Constables falls sick, we have no one to replace him, unless we draw from another shift, which would leave us shorthanded on two shifts."

Robbery attempt at local store

Local police report an attempted robbery at the I.G.A. Foodliner sometime during the night of Friday to Saturday. Lachute Town police checked the building around 3 a.m. and found everything in order. A local resident reported seeing three men in the vicinity around 6 a.m., but did not report this to police until after the robbery attempt had been discovered.

The would-be thieves gained entry by means of a rear door and, using a large crowbar, smashed open the outer door of the safe. They failed to gain access to the actual safe, however, and left the scene empty-handed.

Lachute Town Police, headed by Chief A. J. Whiteway, investigated, turning the matter over to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen and the provincial police hold-up squad from Montreal.

Engineering course

Jacques Lefebvre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lefebvre, Lachute, is now completing his classical studies at the Ste. Therese Seminary, and intends to enter the course in Engineering at l'Ecole Polytechnique next September.

Reports given, officers named at Home and School meet

A very busy meeting of parents and teachers in the High School April 13 elected a slate of officers for 1960-61, heard reports from the various committees, and listened to a very interesting talk from Mr. Arne Petersen, physical education instructor in the High School.

The officers for next year include Mr. G. M. Pride, president; Mrs. John Thorpe, vice-president; Mrs. Sam Milnes, recording secretary; Mrs. G. Tabrett, corresponding secretary; Mr. Robt. McElroy, treasurer; Mrs. Thorpe, publicity; Mr. Ernest Gow, program chairman, with a committee made up of Mrs. I. W. Jones, Mr. F. Jeffery, Mr. A. M. Vessie and Mr. B. Jenkins. The membership committee includes Mr. Geo. Rodger, chairman, and Mrs. Murray Lister, Mrs. K. I. Gordon, and Mrs. J. Hadley; Hospitality, Mrs. Douglas Rodger, and Mrs. Jas. Menzies. The teachers' representatives are Mr. F. Royal, Mr. A. Petersen, and Miss Helen Kenney; Traffic Safety, Mr. E. Gow; Education committee, Mrs. George Rodger, and Mrs. Gordon Dobbie; Scholarship committee, Mr. F. Royal as chairman, with Mr. R. Bailly, Mr. H. Graves, Miss E. Stanton, and Mrs. G. Dobbie. Clothing Bank, Mrs. Gordon Higginson chairman, with Mrs. M. E. Walker. Liaison representatives, Mrs. A. M. Vessie, Mrs. S. G. Patterson, and Mrs. J. D. McOuat. Costume committee, Mrs. G. Tabrett, Mrs. S. G. Patterson, Mrs. Jas. Menzies, Mrs. A. Bates. Class Mothers, Mrs. Gordon McOuat.

The treasurer, Mr. R. McElroy, reported an amount of $250 in the Scholarship Fund, which is a satisfying increase over last year's amount of $125. There is a balance of some $50 in the general fund, and the Association voted to donate $40 of this to be given to Miss E. Stanton, English teacher in the High School, to buy books for the school library.

Mr. P. B. Aitken, program chairman, listed the programs for the past year, with observations on each. Of these programs, it was strongly recommended by Mr. Aitken that "Meet the Teacher Night" and the School Board Night should be repeated each year.

"The biggest problem of the program committee is in deciding the purpose of the programs. The general purpose which this year's programs have attempted to achieve is to inform parents on what goes on in the school, and to some extent, why.

"If Home and School is to have more than a casual interest in education, then it seems that a different approach is needed to the present monthly meetings. If, for instance, Home and School wants to discuss whether Latin should be taught, then it must first find out the facts — why it was dropped from the curriculum, whether it is taught in other schools, and so on. For this purpose a committee would be required to do this — possibly the Education Committee," Mr. Aitken reported.

Physical Education

Mr. Arne Petersen, speaker for the evening, outlined the reason behind training in physical education, a course that follows a definite pattern from Grade 3 to Grade 9. It is designed to develop the mind as well as the body. This means, to train the mind to change from reacting to thinking movements to reacting to non-thinking movements — thinking movements being deliberate ones, non-thinking ones being instinctive. The games taught in the course also have a definite purpose, so that the children will have pleasure out of them now, and in adult years will be able to enjoy games together as man and wife — both being able to understand them. As Mr. Petersen stated so truthfully, a wife will be much more tolerant of her husband watching hockey or football by the hour, if she too knows what the game is about. There is the same reasoning behind teaching ballroom dancing, in the earlier grades. Emphasis on rhythm in calisthenics and sports is because rhythm is so essential to full enjoyment of most activities in life . . . It was regretted that so little time was left after the business meeting to listen to Mr. Petersen's most interesting talk.

President's Report

"During the 1959-60 season, the third of its existence, the Association has done well in many respects, as can be noted from the various Committee reports," the president, Mr. Garnet Pride, noted in his address. "Membership this year was 113, with an average attendance of 71. This was largely due to the excellent organization of our Membership Committee.

"A Safety Committee was formed this year under the chairmanship of Ernest Gow. A great deal of spadework has been done on this important subject, and it is to be hoped that it will continue to have the support of the Association and the general public.

"Fund raising activities this year were highlighted by the first Military Whist which was a huge success and resulted in a Scholarship Fund more than double that of last year.

"During the summer months, the Association was approached by Mr. Royal to secure housing accommodation for student teachers coming to Lachute for a week in September. Mrs. Thorpe did a wonderful job of billeting this group, and several of the hostesses turned over the money received to the Scholarship Fund.

"Another activity was a group organized to assist Mrs. Rigby in the making of costumes for students taking part in concerts and plays. This has helped the students enormously in their efforts.

"A point that should be noted is the fact that unkind criticism is too often directed at those who offer their services and suggestions to further the work of your Association, sometimes by those who have not attended a single meeting and who have not the faintest knowledge of the aims and accomplishments of the Association. This sort of thing discourages many who would be willing to do so from serving on the Home and School executive, or on the various committees.

"Other successful contributions have been a Skate Sale, which was held in November, a Scholarship Fund, which greatly assisted in sending a very deserving student to college this year, and the Clothing Bank, without whose aid some students would not have been able to attend school, particularly in the winter."

Next month's meeting will be on May 11, and there will be reports on the conference of Quebec Federation of Home and School which will be held May 6-7.

Cancer 'blitz' here Monday, April 25; Objective for Lachute set at $4,200

Plans are well laid for a complete coverage in the Canadian Cancer Society Campaign now under way for Argenteuil. Monday, April 25, is specifically planned as "Blitz Day" in Lachute, and householders will be contacted throughout the town area that evening. The event will start off with a parade at 6 o'clock.

At a meeting of the captains of the canvassers held last Monday evening in the Legion Hall, Royal Carrière, chairman of the Campaign, gave each captain the required kits for their volunteer canvassers. Assisting were — Jim Campbell, Garth Boyd and Roger Guimond. An educational film on door-to-door canvassing for Cancer was shown by Mr. E. Lajoie, of Ayers Limited.

Captains of the House-to-House Canvass are as follows:

Lachute and East End

District 1 — Mrs. T. Dwyer, Mrs. R. Carrière.
District 2 — Mrs. R. Carreau, Mrs. L. Chevrier.
District 3 — Mrs. W. White, Mrs. J. McOuat.
District 4 — Mrs. F. Barlowe, Mrs. P. Guenette.
District 5 — Miss L. Millar, Miss M. Guilbault.
District 6 — Mrs. G. Filion, Miss E. Lavigne.
District 7 — Miss D. Laroque, Mrs. E. McFaul.
District 8 — Mrs. F. Barnes, Mrs. R. Valois.
District 9 — Mrs. I. Cayer.

Ayersville and Lachute Mills

Districts 1, 2 & 3 — Mme. P. Barbeau, Mme. A. Gauthier, Mr. M. Dumas, Mme. Onil l'Heureux, Mlle Gilberte Darisse.
District 4 — Mrs. J. Dixon, Mrs. M. Scott.
District 5 — Mr. R. Robertson.
District 6 — Mme. Lionel Danis.
District 7 — Mrs. G. Leggett.
District 8 — Mme. Antonio Patry.

Organizers for this section are — Mrs. G. Ayers and Mr. P. Barbeau. There is no special names section. All canvassing will be done at the door.

This campaign has a two-fold objective, Mr. Carrière said. The first is to save lives by teaching people, through the Society's education program, the importance of regular check-ups. The second is to save countless lives in the future by providing required funds for medical research.

The largest grant ever made in support of cancer research in Quebec was announced recently by Maurice Forget, president of the Quebec Division of the Canadian Cancer Society. This grant totals $362,403 and goes to support 25 cancer research projects in Quebec universities and hospitals. It amounts to nearly one-third of the total sum of $1,111,898 being spent this year by the Canadian Cancer Society on research work throughout Canada.

The National objective is $2,967,500 and the quota for Quebec is $505,000. The target for Lachute is $4,200. This is an appreciable amount, but we can all contribute towards this great health-finding cause.

Reggie Stansfield among favorites at Prov'l Open Gymnastics Championship

The Provincial Open Gymnastics Championship to be held this coming Saturday at Lachute High School looks like the most outstanding competition ever to be held in Lachute, or for that matter, anywhere else in the province.

More than 20 Novice gymnasts under 16 years of age will compete in the morning from 10 to 12 noon, and it is fantastic what these boys can do. Some of them are only 12 to 13 years old and the acrobatic stunts these boys perform might put many a professional artist to shame.

A minor change has been made as a result of the large number of entries in the Junior division. This will start in the afternoon, continuing from 2.30 to 6 p.m.

Some really top gymnasts will compete in the Junior division, which is for men under 20 years of age. These gymnasts, as well as the Novice class, will compete in all the Olympic events — High Bar, Parellel Bar, Long Horse, Pommel Horse, Free-Hand Calisthenics, and on the High Bar and Parallel Bar, some very good routines are expected, with some very close competition between the gymnasts from Montreal and Quebec City. Seven Junior teams will compete for the team championships.

The Senior competition will commence at 7.30 p.m. and will finish by 9.30 with presentations of trophies and awards to the individual champions and the team champions.

For the first time Lachute High School is represented with a Senior Men's team. The two students, Reg Stanfield and Ronald Cairns, who have competed in gymnastics for the past four years in the Novice and Junior competitions, will for the first time unite as a team in the Senior division. Both of them are only of Junior age, but as both are among the top gymnasts in Canada it was decided to have them compete as Seniors. Also it is their last year as representatives of Lachute High School, and both of them would like to finish by winning the team championship. However, they will be meeting stiff competition, especially from a three-man team from Montreal.

Also, both these youths are trying for the individual championship. Reg should not place lower than second or third, and with a little luck he might win it all.

Ron Cairns has improved a lot, and will maybe surprise onlookers by placing among the top three. Not very many gymnasts get close to him on the Pommel Horse and on the Long Horse, where this young athlete should be able to get the highest score of the championship, with 9.7 or 9.8 out of a possible 10.

Both local gymnasts have worked five to six hours a day and are in top form for the championship, and it is hoped that a large crowd will come and cheer these young men. It is promised, this will be a gymnastics championship long to be remembered. Tickets are on sale now — if any are left, they will be sold at the door on the night of the meet.

Final reminder to register for Polio clinics

Any adult who has not to date received anti-polio shots is urged to register immediately for the next series, to be sponsored shortly by Brownsburg and Lachute branches of the Canadian Legion.

In addition, the Lachute branch will sponsor a clinic at Arundel, in co-operation with the Arundel Women's Institute.

Any adult or employed 'teen-ager within travelling distance of these three centres should register now, to insure that they will receive this free immunization. This province-wide program is sponsored by the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion in co-operation with the Quebec Chapter of the March-of-Dimes.

Persons wishing shots should register before April 23. Actual clinic dates will be announced later.

Arundel — Mrs. Alvin J. Graham, Mrs. Leslie Gibbons, Graham's Store.

Brownsburg — R. R. Summers, J. W. Humphries, Hec. Steele, R. Sugden.

Lachute — J. Martel, B. A. Jenkins, T. Smith.

Daylight Saving, Saturday midnight

Life's daily round next Sunday will be scheduled on Advanced Time, and readers are reminded once again to set their timepieces ahead one hour when retiring Saturday night.

Railway timetables will be changed, and any intending to travel by rail are advised to consult the new train times then in effect.

Fire damaged restaurant

A Sunday evening fire severely damaged the kitchen and a portion of the Tino Restaurant, located on Hamford Street. The call was answered by a crew of volunteer firemen from Lachute, who managed to extinguish the blaze before it gutted the building.

Réal Labonté, the proprietor, was on the premises when the boiling fat ignited from his potato-chip frier, and he immediately sounded the alarm. Firemen were hampered by intense smoke on their arrival, one man narrowly escaping injury from an exploding television set.

Art show opens Sunday, continues all next week

The art display at the "Centre Dramatique" (Rio Theatre Building, Main Street) will be open to the public commencing next Sunday (daily 1 to 9 p.m.) and continuing to April 30 (Saturday 2 to 9 p.m.).

There will be about 30 pictures on display, mostly oil paintings by local artists, and others in Montreal associated with art activities here.

All persons interested in fine art should take the opportunity to see these products of amateur and professional talent. The public are cordially invited.

Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

We read a lot about cooperation between different government authorities. The latest is between the State of New York and the Ontario Provincial Government. Two poachers of duck, had been under surveillance for some time, eventually ending up in their arrest with 95 ducks shot during the spring flights. The birds were killed in Lake Ontario, right near Belleville, intended for the American market. Along with this, the State of Minnesota are checking all fish catches from Ontario, and any not having a shipping tag, or out of season and over the limit, are ending up in a big fine for the offenders. Some of the fines have been very heavy. This should put a big deterrent on trying to get out-of-season and over-the-limit catches through the U.S. This sure is a far cry from a few years ago, when the limits or types didn't seem to matter.

For something much more pleasant, the first flight of Canada Geese seen around here passed over last Tuesday on their northerly migration, 24 of them; these are the scouts, or advance guard. It shouldn't take too long before the main flights start to pass over. Within the week, anyway. Anyone hearing these birds (and hear them you will, long before they can be seen) should take a couple of minutes to watch them pass over. To me this is a sight never to be forgotten.

This morning, April 14, a flight of ducks came and settled down on the North River. Not too far from home, they could be seen very clearly. These were Blacks and Mallards, about 100 of them. From now on the ducks will be showing up more and more. I was also told of the return of the Morning Doves in the district. These birds used to be around in good number a few years ago; they left, and for the past couple of years have been scarce. It's to be hoped they are going to come back in numbers. A fine bird, making excellent eating for those who do upland shooting. Why they left, is one of those things; maybe they were being gunned out, or the feed wasn't too good. They are tough birds to hold in any district if the feed is scarce, this may have been the reason for it.

Being able to get around our country for the past few weeks and observe, has really been an eye-opener. The district can feel very proud of itself in the dumping of garbage! It must have been a great effort to have taken the time and trouble to do such a thorough job of messing up the countryside. This must give someone a great deal of satisfaction, and for their trouble I think all the good citizens who dislike this should show our appreciation by awarding a Litter Cup for such a good job!

As mentioned before, the number taking up fly-fishing is certainly on the increase. I'm really pleased at this, and the offer to teach anyone interested in learning, still needs only a phone call. It certainly won't be very good at the beginning of the season, due to the very high water. It's worth a try though. Trying the big eddies may give a catch with either big streamers or nymphs. If the artificial lures don't work, look for some crayfish, and these nearly always bring results. Of course, any of the grubs you can find under old logs should bring results. One thing is sure, there will be no fly hatch around the waters for some time. This doesn't mean you can't fish with flies. As a matter of fact, one form of fishing that is always good is nymphs. Most fishermen don't realize underwater life and the hatching of it is not a fast affair. Some of this species take two years to hatch, and in doing so they live as a winged insect for a matter of hours only. A wonderful thing to think of years to develop into an adult insect, only to be a corpse in a very short time!

Learning a little about these lavae helps a lot in the catching of fish. As most fishermen know, underwater insects are the main course in the fish diet. It's also worth noting that when most people see what they think is a fish rising for a fly, 75 per cent of the time the fish are after nymphs — either on their way up to the top to become insects or shedding their cases as they advance into a further stage. There will naturally be a lot of comment about this, but to be a good nymph man requires a lot more skill than even the dry fly expert.

The crows are taking a beating; a lot of fun is being had with them right now. They are not too hard to decoy, and it's a good opportunity for anyone to go out and try their calls. Even if you can't fool any of them, at least you will have had the practice. I did hear of a group that were good enough to shoot five for themselves. The more that are got rid of now, the less to bother the other birds later on. A few king fishers can be seen around. True, their feed will not be plentiful at this time, but I'm sure they can manage to get by for a short while. New birds are appearing, and more will be coming all the time. The warblers will be in very soon, along with the meadow larks.

For anyone complaining about not seeing the birds around their feeders, the reason is that, with the snow just about all gone the feed on the ground is a little better for their taste. Don't think you have lost your birds; they will be back as soon as they are satisfied. I guess the odd grub they can find in some rotten log will taste a lot better than their winter fare.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Although your reporter has been on the "loose" for the past two weeks, the balance of the members of Branch 70 have been very active.

Com. Rene Paulsen, chairman of the Sports and Entertainment Committee, and the big gun in the Legion junior hockey teams, brings an excellent season to a close in a spectacular manner on April 30. The local branch are sponsoring a father-and-son hockey banquet for the Pee-Wee and Bantam hockey teams. Thanks to Leonard Bedard, local Molson agent, Doug Harvey will join the group! Com. Joe Martel, the branch secretary, is getting in touch with all the fathers who had sons playing in the leagues this past winter. It looks as if this gala night will fill the hall with about 80 dads and their future NHL stars.

The Lachute Spring Fair is in the offing and the local branch are once more sponsoring the Horse Draw. This popular event is being organized by Comrades MacLean, Ogilvy and Pring. Entry forms have already been sent out to all those who participated last year, and indications are that it will be bigger and better than ever.

The Legion raffle this year is on a brown-and-white Shetland pony. This little beauty will be drawn for on the last day of the Fair. The saddle and bridle are also part of the loot. We are hoping that this draw will prove popular. Incidentally, the winner may have the pony or $200 in cash.

The last week's issue of The Watchman carried the report of the Legion-sponsored Polio Clinic. The dates have now been confirmed — Lachute and Brownsburg on May 19 and the Arundel district on the 20th. Attention is drawn to the fact that this is the start of a new series. Number one of three shots in May, the others to follow later in the year.

Plans are now being formed for the repeat of a popular event, the Legion District Golf Tournament. The Comrades, knowing a good thing when they see it, have asked Jim Duncan to chair the committee again this year.

* * *

Com. Pres. Bernie Jenkins and all the members of Branch 70 feel that there are many veterans in the district who could and should join with us in the Legion. Forget the old days, men, this is one thing that you can safely volunteer for, despite any past experience with various branches of His or Her Majesty's Canadian Forces. Any member of the branch will be glad to fill you in on any questions that you may want answered, and will gladly supply the application forms. All qualified veterans are invited to join.

Finalists decided in United Church bowling league

The finals were decided in the Lachute United Church bowling league on Monday evening, when the All Stars defeated St. Georges, 8-6, and East Settlement won 6-3 against the Teenagers . . . These two teams will meet in the final next Monday, following the annual banquet.

In the preliminary play-offs, the All Stars (Mrs. M. McFaul) defeated the league champion Redwings (Grace Rosser) 18-9, while the St. Georges (Owen Todd) won 23-13 against St. Pat's (Gladys Davis). In the other games the scores were Teenagers 14, St. Davids 2, and East Settlement 9 with Thistles 6.

The banquet will be next Monday at 6.30 p.m., followed by the final game between All Stars (Mrs. M. McFaul) and East Settlement (Les Gordon) teams.

Youthful trio found at Hwksb'y after night trek

Three schoolboys in search of adventure were found huddled in the straw-filled corner of a barn one morning last week, signalling the end of a night-long search in a driving rainstorm by police and volunteer firemen in Hawkesbury.

The boys — Pierre Seguin, Michel Filion and Raymond Lalonde — were cold and damp but felt no ill effects from their spring wanderlust trek that took them four miles into the country.

The boys, all 11-year-old pupils of the Christ School at Hawkesbury, were missing for eight-and-one-half hours and fears were felt that they had drowned in the river.

Search was organized at 6 p.m. and 20 members of the police and fire departments fanned out in every direction concentrating on the Ottawa River banks. They were found on the farm of the Lalonde boy's grandfather, Zothique Lalonde, four miles south of the town.

Portrait subject — She's related here

A date of interest to Argenteuil Art Association members and friends is the exhibition of paintings by Ruth Tomlinson Wilson, opening Sunday, April 24, at the Arts Club, Montreal (2027 Victoria Street) and continuing until May 13 (3 to 6 p.m. daily). Mrs. Wilson is remembered for her fine display at the St. Andrews municipal hall, in the Art Association exhibition series last year.

An example of this artist's work to be on display is the above portrait, of local interest. The subject is "Jeannie", the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Calder, of Arvida, who has numerous near and distant relatives in The Watchman's readership.

New officers for Toastmasters

The new officers of the Toastmasters Club, Hawkesbury, started the season with a special dinner meeting and ladies' night, at the Abenaki Golf Club, Hawkesbury, on Monday of last week.

President Don Hart, of Kilmar, voicing the thanks of the club for outstanding work, presented Wes Freeland of Brownsburg, the retiring president, with a special Toastmasters' lapel button.

After dinner the meeting proceeded with impromptu speeches, followed by others prepared for the occasion. Most were in a light vein, though Toastmaster William Bray, mine manager at Kilmar, gave a thought-provoking address on the subject, "Conserving our Resources". Dance music completed a very successful evening.

Other newly elected officers include Vice-Presidents Raoul Merits and Walter Ivany, of Brownsburg, Secretary Ted Nelson, Kilmar, Treasurer Jan Wilkamp, Hawkesbury, and Sergeant-at-Arms John DeFeyter, Dalesville.

Hawkesbury Centre mixed bonspiel playdowns staged on Lachute ice

The playdowns in the Centre Mixed Bonspiel were held at the Lachute Curling Club last Saturday afternoon and evening, and were won by a local rink skipped by George Kirby, with Mrs. Leona MacKimmie playing third, Jack MacKimmie, second, and Mrs. Janet Wilson, lead. The runners-up were also from Lachute and consisted of a rink skipped by Lawrence Cruise, with Miss Mary Preece third, Bill Hamilton second, and Mrs. L. Cruise lead.

The winners of the Consolation event were another Lachute rink skipped by Stewart Jones, with Mrs. Edgar Pollock third, Edgar Pollock second, and Mrs. S. Jones lead. The runners-up were members of the Montebello Curling Club, with Dave Moon as skip, Mrs. Irwin third, Dave Campbell second, and Miss Lebrecque lead.

This bonspiel was one of the first of its kind ever held in this area. The Hawkesbury Centre of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club consists of the clubs at Lachute, Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill, Alexandria, and the three clubs in Montebello, the Club de Granit, the Montebello Curling Club and the Seigniory Curling Club. Linton Armstrong, as Umpire of the Centre, organized the bonspiel and issued invitations to all these clubs to participate. Play got under way last Tuesday evening with 30 entries at Hawkesbury, Club de Granit, Seigniory Club and Lachute. This was continued on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, with the semi-finals and finals at the local rink on Saturday.

Temporary difficulties were encountered Saturday afternoon in the second half of the semi-finals, when something went wrong with the freezing equipment and the ice became unfit to play. As Mr. Jack Young, president of the Hawkesbury Club, happened to be present at the time, he offered the use of the ice at his club; the four rinks involved took advantage of this offer, and played their games at the neighboring club.

President Lorne Duncan welcomed the visitors and presented the prizes to the winning rinks later in the evening. Linton Armstrong, as m.c., thanked everyone for their splendid co-operation and stated that all reports indicated this had turned out to be a most popular event, so that it was likely it would be repeated early next season.

Help fight Cancer!

THEMES used by the Canadian Cancer Society Crusade which opens this week, are "Guard Your Family" and "Fight Cancer with a Check-up and a Check."

These themes are based on the fact that two out of every three families in this community, as well as every other town in the country, will eventually experience cancer's heavy burden. The slogans also effectively express the Society's determined effort to save more lives from cancer.

As in previous years, the Society's April "Cancer Crusade" seeks to raise funds to continue its three-pronged program of research, education and service to cancer patients. "While research offers the best hope for victory over cancer, the nation's No. 2 disease killer, the crusade is not limited to raising funds. It is a top priority educational effort, on a national scale, to stimulate regular health among all adults for early detection of cancer. Cancer in its early stages can be cured.

Free literature about the disease is being distributed by Canadian Cancer Society volunteers throughout the Crusade Week.

The police and traffic complaints

FROM VARIOUS offenders who have been "ticketed" by our police force, we have heard complaints that the town cops are too severe in local traffic cases.

This is perhaps a time for self-scrutiny. Are we seriously interested in sane traffic behaviour — safe speeds, stopping at intersections, extra care in school zones, etc.? Or is our interest mere lip-service to an ideal which we decline to put in effect? Apathetic through long lack of police supervision, are we guilty of personally contributing to the minor offences by our neglect?

Those minor infractions add up to constant hazards on the road — injury to pedestrians, danger to children, frustration to fellow drivers, damaged fenders, etc. Let us, each one, re-examine our driving habits, then quit damning the police, who are with us to do a job and are only endeavoring to do that job efficiently. We have been lulled too long by lax supervision, and our habits have grown indolent.

Let us remember, too, that out-of-towners and passing tourists cannot be expected to observe a law which they see flagrantly ignored by the local townspeople.

There are by-laws for the maintenance of orderly circulation. It behooves us drivers to acquaint ourselves with these regulations. The clauses against double parking, parking on the wrong side of the road, obstructing lanes and intersections, speeding, and hampering firefighters, also on observance of stop signs and parking notices — these are all elementary; and no driver need plead ignorance or complain if he is apprehended on such fundamental counts.

Contentment aids health

IN THE HUSTLE of our modern world, this disturbing morsel of news may have eluded your attention: An apple a day doesn't really keep the doctor away.

A study of the medical histories of 660 doctors indicates that hard work doesn't cause illness, it's whether or not you like your job.

Dr. A. M. Ostfeld, assistant professor of preventive medicine at the University of Illinois, told of the survey in a paper delivered at a recent meeting of doctors in Montreal.

The doctors were examined when they were medical students and again 10 years later.

There was no relationship between the amount of work put in by the doctors and illness. Nor was there any connection between sickness and where the doctors lived, their marital status, the number of their children or the amount of post-graduate study they had done.

But Dr. Ostfeld declared, there was a significant connection between how well they enjoyed their work.

At first glance the eminent doctor's conclusions seem sound but there could be a number of other basic causes.

No one works at his job 24 hours a day. You could be happy in your work but annoyances in your off-hours could build up to give you ulcers — like the neighbor's dog that persists each spring in digging where you've planted an expensive new type of begonia.

Or those long traffic tie-ups in the summer when it seems everyone else had the same idea of getting out into the country for a Sunday picnic.

Or that frustrated feeling on a fishing trip when the other fellows catch their limit and you end up with narry a bite — besides losing two or three of your most prized lures.

You may like your job, Dr. Ostfeld, and still be unhappy. Maybe you should have said: "It's not what you eat that gives you ulcers, but what's eating you."

Labor Code and the individual

ARE INDIVIDUAL liberties adequately protected under the present federal labor code? Those Canadians who think so may be interested in the following extract from a recent editorial cited by the bulletin "Industry":

"The Seafarers International Union forced a company to discharge four men because they tried to exercise their rights as Canadian citizens and join a trade union of their choice. As shocking as it appears, it was legal, according to a ruling of the British Columbia Supreme Court. Although Mr. Justice Wilson, in giving reasons for judgment, seemed reluctant to absolve an organization that would deprive family men of their livelihood, he had no alternative in the interpretation of the Industrial Disputes and Investigation Act, the federal labor code.

"The S.I.U. tried the men in absentia, when they were working in a ship at sea. They were accused by the S.I.U. of giving 'aid and comfort' to another union. According to a clause in the working agreement, the men had to be members of the S.I.U. in good standing to obtain, or hold their jobs. They were tried and convicted by the S.I.U. court, deprived of their membership and the company was instructed to fire them.

Most significant and hopeful thing about this particular editorial is that it appeared in the publication "Canadian Transport," organ of one of the nation's leading unions—the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees and Other Transport Workers.

And now the question is asked, once again, to unionists and non-unionists alike: Are individual liberties adequately protected under the present federal labor code?

REPORT CARDS — Some parents regard the report as a status symbol — something to show off or hide, depending on whether little Johnnie's record is good or bad. But the experts can't agree whether the card stimulates or arrests the desire to learn. What educators are really searching for is a kind of measurement that will encourage that lovely combination of wonderment and shrewd inquiry, which is the real point of school training.

Union Cards for Artists?

By C. J. Harris

The right to join a union is one of the freedoms any Canadian can exercise. An incident in Toronto indicates it is not so easy to exercise the right not to join a union.

For some months the well known Canadian artist R. York Wilson has been at work on a mural of Toronto's new centre for the performing arts. It is a 100-foot mural, probably the biggest in Canada, and to get the job done Mr. Wilson employed two associate painters. About two months ago the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America decided that the three would have to join their union. The artists disagreed.

Apart from the question of whether the painters and paperhangers union had the right to claim jurisdiction over fine artists, it certainly had the power. A union picket line could have halted all construction on the project. So the artists' opinion did not decide the issue. After two weeks of argument the union accepted a compromise: the two assistants were laid off and Mr. Wilson carried on alone, refusing the union's offer of an honorary membership.

Fortunately, that was not the end of it. Four artists' groups — the Ontario Society of Artists, the Royal Canadian Academy, the Sculpture Society of Canada, and the Canadian Group of Painters — joined the fray and retained a lawyer. It has not been announced whether counsel argued the issue from a point of law or just common sense, but the three artists went back to work, without union cards. The joint statement announcing settlement of the dispute noted, "It is assumed that as a result of the agreement between the two parties there will be no further misunderstandings of any kind which would interrupt completion of the mural".

There is one other interesting point in the matter. Early on in the dispute a union representative said he could not understand why the three muralists were not anxious to accept membership since the union could get them higher pay. That is the standard claim of union organizers, but at least in this case it must be questioned. A fee set by a union contract would more likely be a minimum rather than a maximum. A union contract cannot allow for degrees of excellence in a man's work. Acting on his own, the more proficient worker could bargain for a rate of pay that acknowledged his greater proficiency. That acknowledgment and its higher pay would be very hard to achieve once a union contract had set a rate.

The factor of a union contract denying the individual better pay for better work possibly is less important in the industrial unions, as compared to the craft unions. But any union contract is likely to over-pay the poor worker and to under-pay the good worker.

Who were the first medical men in British Columbia?

The first medical men of note in the Pacific province were Archibald Menzies, William F. Tolmie and John S. Helmcken. Menzies was a graduate of Edinburgh and served as naturalist with Captain Vancouver in 1791. Tolmie arrived in 1833 as surgeon in the Hudson's Bay Company. It was he who discovered coal on the Pacific coast. Helmcken (1825-1920) was the most notable of the three. At one time he described himself as "the leading practitioner from San Francisco to the North Pole; and from Asia to the Red River of the north". This was accurate enough as he was the only practitioner within those limits at the time. He was a delegate from the province to Ottawa in 1870 to support terms of federation. His house in Victoria is preserved as a museum.

What reporter covered the Northwest Rebellion?

Ernest John Chambers, a native of England who was brought to Canada as a child and was educated at the Montreal High School. He became a journalist and at the age of 23 was chief correspondent of the Montreal Star during the Northwest Rebellion of 1885. In 1888-89 he edited the Calgary Herald and from 1904 until his death in 1925 he held the appointment of gentleman usher of the black rod at Ottawa. During the First World War he also served as chief press censor for Canada and for many years he edited the Canadian Parliamentary Guide.

What is the Golden Dog?

It is the title of an early Canadian novel that achieved such success that it has run through more than 30 editions. Written by William Kirby, who died at Niagara in 1906, and first published in 1877, the Golden Dog is based on a legend of old Quebec in the days of Louis XV. The plot is good and the characters convincing, and the book succeeds admirably in recreating the feudal atmosphere of New France in the days of Intendant Bigot. Kirby was born in England in 1817, emigrated to the United States with his parents in 1832 and, in an anti-republican mood, to Canada in 1839. He lived in Quebec City, Montreal, and finally Niagara, where he edited a newspaper and did a great deal of writing — poems, histories and novels. His reputation rests, however, on the Golden Dog.

THOSE EASTER BONNETS — IT HAPPENED AGAIN

A sure sign of Spring! Those hats that do bring
Great joy to the milliners' hearts.
New shapes and new shades for the matrons and maids
As soon as the nice weather starts.

If you think that your wife would wear one hat for life
She would soon let you know you were wrong,
And you soon would be told that a hat two months old
Has lasted a whole month too long.

When the lady next door gets a new one, she's sore
And starts on a long shopping spree —
Comes home at 6.30 all tired out out and dirty
Not only with one hat but three!

You give her advice like: "Your old one's still nice —
I don't like the new ones at all.
The old one's becoming."
(While mentally summing the price of the three in the hall.)

"See that there new bonnet" (the price tag's still on it)
"Would make you look twenty years older.
And then those two others look like your gradmother's"
(She looks at you colder and colder.)

"A year from now, Honey, those hats will look funny.
In fact, they look funny right now.
I'll grab them and burn them if you don't return them,
Or feed the whole lot to the cow."

But on Easter morning (she gives you no warning)
In spite of the threatening weather —
She has a new bonnet (the price tag's still on it)
Worth more than the three put together!

These dames! You can't beat 'em and if you ill treat 'em
They're apt to put tacks in your stew.
So just sign the check and say,
"What the heck!"
"Dunno what I'd do without you!"

Be seeing ya!

— Uncle Walt

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Americans often accuse Englishmen of having no sense of humor. Englishmen reply that Americans are thick-skinned dolts. Canadians, standing in the middle, can see that both sides are wrong.

Recently I came across the myth of the humorless Briton in a pamphlet called "The UPI Reporter," which is circulated to newspaper telegraph editors by United Press International news service.

An Ohio editor wrote to UPI asking why so many quaint stories come out of England. "For a country that's supposed to be almost completely devoid of a sense of humor, it seems to be a riot of laughs," he observed.

To this earnest question, Harry Ferguson, general European manager of UPI, gave an earnest answer.

He said that Britain cherished things that were individual and eccentric, and set a high value on useless tradition.

For instance: The man in Winchelsea who paid $3.15 a year to go to the top of a hill occasionally and see if a French invasion fleet is coming.

"This job was created in the 11th century after Winchelsea had been invaded seven times by the French. No Briton thinks it's funny because the job still exists and there is no agitation to abolish it. . . ."

Outworn British customs, he indicated, were rich raw material for the small light stories which UPI retails as "Chuckles."

"Such things are going on all the time all over the British Isles. The fact that the British regard them seriously only adds to the hilarity as far as an American is concerned.

"All our U.S. staffers here need to do is keep their eyes and ears open and we have a steady stream of Chuckles."

We can't let Mr. Ferguson of UPI get away with this. Humor is a serious matter. It isn't peculiar to any nation. People of all languages share the ability to laugh at things that are ill-assorted or oddly surprising.

Some individuals are mentally brighter or more subtle than others. But in every nation there are things that seem to be taken seriously by the natives, yet are looked upon as absurd by foreigners.

Many non-Americans have been vastly amused by such American institutions as flagpole-sitting, flag-waving, high-pressure commercial religion, the election of judges and dog-catchers and advertisements urging readers to smoke a thinking man's cigarette or protect their loved ones from seepage.

Many Americans find these things funny too. Many Englishmen are tickled by the solemnly ludicrous things in their own country.

Englishmen tend more to understatement, irony and the dead pan. Americans lean towards the loud and extroverted. However, both kinds of fun exist in both countries.

I suspect that many an earnest Yank, taking notes of a quaint English custom that he thinks he has discovered, is truly the victim of a joke by malicious Englishmen who like baiting Americans.

It is saddening, however, to hear responsible Americans talk about people of other lands as though they belonged to a separate and inferior species. That kind of talk really isn't funny, because it shows what difficulties lie in the way of nations understanding each other.

GATINEAU POWER COMPANY

Died recently in Michigan

Late Mrs. Robert Sutton

It was with deep regret that the relatives and friends of Mrs. Robert Sutton learned of her sudden passing at the Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey, Mich., on Thursday, April 7.

The late Mrs. Sutton was born in Pembroke, Ont., and has lived in Dafter, Mich., since her marriage to Robert Sutton on June 24, 1908.

Surviving besides her husband, Robert, are her daughter, Mrs. Russell (Isabelle) Brown, of the Sault, four sons, John, of Mackinac Island, William, of Dafter, and Percy and Earl, of Brimley. She is also survived by 10 grandsons, a granddaughter, and a great-granddaughter, as well as three sisters and two brothers.

The funeral was from the Hovie Funeral Home on Monday, April 11, at 2 p.m., the Rev. Wesley Howland officiating. Burial was in the Donaldson Cemetery.

Six grandsons were pall-bearers, and honorary pall-bearers were Wm. Armstrong, John Smith, Otto Donnelly, George Raynard, Ed Ranson, and Robert Atkinson.

Relatives attending the funeral from this district were Mrs. E. D. Cooke, of Verdun, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sutton and Verda, of Brownsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith and Connie, and Mrs. A. Neil, of Lachute.

Lady resident was widow of former mayor

Late Mrs. Hector Lamarche

The death of Mrs. Hector Lamarche, the former Delia Fortier, occurred Sunday night at the age of 74. She was the widow of the late Mayor Hector Lamarche (1941-43), also mother of the present Ald. Horace Lamarche and of a large family well-known hereabouts.

She is mourned by five sons and three daughters — Horace, Laurent, Felicien, Gaetan and Claude Lamarche, all of Lachute; Mrs. Rodrique Chevrier (Bella), Mrs. Georges Clermont (Therese) and Mrs. L. G. Bertrand (Jeanne d'Arc), also of Lachute. She is survived also by 37 grandchildren and one great-grandchild; also a brother, Josaphat Fortier, at Ste. Scholastique, and two sisters, Mrs. Emile Leger, Lachute, and Mrs. Alphonse Legault, Montreal.

The remains are resting at her home, 188 Bethany Street, and funeral rites will be held at the nearby Ste. Anastasie Church on Thursday at 10 a.m.

CLELAND — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and father-in-law, George, who passed away April 21, 1959. — Sadly missed and always remembered by his wife, Alice, daughter, Audrey, and son-in-law, Bill.

"In tears we watched you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
You fought so hard to stay.
But when we saw you sleeping
So peacefully, free from pain,
We could not wish you back
To suffer that again."

CLELAND — In memory of a dear father and grandfather, George, who passed away April 21, 1959. — Sadly missed by his daughter, Lila, son-in-law, Leon, and grandchildren.

"God bless you, dear Dad, You'll never be forgotten."

Avoca

Mrs. Edward C. Young, who spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Scott, of Falconbridge, Ont., and Mrs. Gunn, of Ironbridge, Ont., has now returned home and is visiting other members of her family.

Visitors in Avoca during the Easter holiday were Mrs. Wm. H. Kelly and daughters, of Aylmer, Que., Mr. and Mrs. Dona Currie and sons, Mr. Tom Kelly, Miss Flora McLeod, all of Montreal; Mr. Elden Bates and sons, of Eganville, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacLean and daughters, of Port Colborne, Ont., the Misses Joan and Marjory Vaillancourt, of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Nixon and son, David, Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson, all of Montreal, and Mr. Edward Smith, of Ottawa.

90th Birthday

We would like to extend birthday greetings to Mrs. David R. Bates, of Sudbury, Mass., who reached her 90th birthday on Sunday, April 17.

We are very pleased to report that Mr. Jos. Bates, of Hawkesbury, who has been seriously ill, is now improving, although slowly. His brother, Evan, we are glad to say, is regaining his health once again.

Mrs. Neil McCallum spent the Easter holiday in Montreal with her son, Dr. Leslie McCallum and Mrs. McCallum.

The Bible today

In the East the opportunities for Christian service are many and Mr. I. Morrison, Bible Secretary for Malaya, reports that two well attended Bible rallies were held in Kuala Lumpur by the local auxiliary; one of these was in English and the other in Chinese.

Churches of various denominations took part and in spite of the rainy weather, which usually keeps people at home in Malaya in the evening, a large hall was well packed on two successive evenings and the interest created was quite out of the ordinary.

A most important part of such rallies is getting the various churches of different language media to make a contribution to the cause of spreading the knowledge of the Word of God in Malaya and South East Asia.

Auxiliary tea initial event for bursary fund

Mrs. George Leggett and Mrs. Roy Fraser have graciously consented to pour tea at the anniversary tea and home cooking sale sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary, Legion Branch 70, to be held Friday afternoon, April 22, at the Legion Hall.

The ladies of the Auxiliary are sponsoring this tea for the sole purpose of helping to raise funds which will be used as a bursary to financially assist a deserving veteran's child wishing to continue his or her education. . . It is hoped that, through this tea and other activities, several hundred dollars will be raised for this bursary.

To further raise the funds, a drawing is being held on May 25, and the ladies would like to thank the following stores for their donations:

1st prize, jewelry set, value $15 — Dansereau Stores.

2nd prize, hassock, value $11 — Lamarche Furniture Store.

3rd prize, $5 voucher — Malaket Furniture Stores.

4th prize, 8 glasses, value $4 — Walker-Kingbury Inc.

Tickets (10c each, 3 for 25c, or $1 for a book of 12) may be purchased from any Auxiliary member.

By supporting the Auxiliary in these indeavors you are helping a boy or girl to improve their education.

Rehearsals for cantata "The Holy City" near completion

The Argenteuil Choral Society now enters the last week of preparation of Gaul's cantata, "The Holy City". The Society is composed of a group of Lachute, Brownsburg and district singers, who have been directed by Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, organist of Lachute United Church.

The cantata was first presented in the nineteenth century for the City of Birmingham Fair, and has enjoyed popularity ever since. The performance will take about one hour and a half, and will feature solos, trios, a two-choir chorus, ladies' chorus and junior choir. The leading solos are taken by the tenor (Robert Haydon) and bass (Lundy Pearson), while contralto parts will be sung by Mrs. L. Armstrong and Mrs. J. Armour. A soprano composition is sung by Mrs. D. Barbour, while a ladies' trio will be taken by Mrs. D. Barbour, Mrs. Wm. Armstrong and Mrs. E. Callicott. The junior choir will take their place in the balcony, and will present the angelic host voices, which will join the massed choir in the final number.

The performance will commence at 8 o'clock in the evening, May 1, at Lachute United Church. A collection will be taken to defray expenses of music and organization.

Easter Services at Maple Ave. Baptist

Brownsburg — Large congregations attended all the Easter services at Maple Avenue Baptist Church, commencing with the Sunrise Service at 6.30 a.m., sponsored by the B.Y.P.U. The president, Mr. Dale MacAdam presided, assisted by Mr. Wayne Petley and Miss Kathryn Stephens. Misses Judith Petley and Myrna Crosby sang a duet. The guest speaker was the Rev. W. Lorne Hisey, pastor of Dalesville and Lachute Baptist churches. His text was, "He is not here, He is Risen."

The Rev. R. L. McPhee spoke at both morning and evening services. Titles of his sermons were, "What Easter can mean for us," and "The Limitless Saviour." The choir, under the capable leadership of Mr. Keith Graham, rendered an anthem, "Our Living Lord", at the evening service. Those taking solo parts were — Mrs. R. H. Morrison and Messrs. M. E. Cowley, R. L. Tomalty and Keith Graham.

Flowers were placed in the church by the Stewart family in memory of their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart.

Woman's Association and other activities at Brownsburg United Brownsburg — On Wednesday evening, April 13, the United Church Woman's Association members met in the church hall, with Mrs. Howard Elliott, president, conducting the meeting, and Mrs. H. Smith, 1st vice-president, Mrs. P. MacDougall, secretary, and Miss S. McOuat, treasurer, assisting. Mrs. D. Jackson acted as pianist.

Mrs. D. Clarke also gave information regarding the various discussions and suggestions by her group.

Invitations were gratefully received to attend the Lachute W.A. meeting on May 4, and the Brownsburg United Explorers' Group exercises, of which Mrs. Bruce and Mrs. Smith are councillors, on May 6.

Plans were made for a Mothers' Day tea for May 14.

A history of the United Church W.A., from the time that the first United report went out in 1927 to the present year of 1960, was written and read at the meeting by Mrs. F. Kettyle. (A copy had formerly been sent to the Secretary of the Presbytery.) A list of names was also read by Mrs. H. Smith.

It was pleasing to see Miss McOuat present again, after having been indisposed for some time.

Beautiful spring flowers were placed at the altar on Easter Sunday, as was fitting for the morning service. The church was filled to capacity and the music and service were most inspirational.

"Fellowship Get-together" will be held in the church hall at 2.30 p.m. on April 28.

Jehovah's Witnesses — Who are they, and what do they believe?

"Jehovah's witnesses are Christians forming an international society of ministers engaged in preaching the gospel of God's kingdom in more than 175 countries and territories of the earth in obedience to the commands of Jesus Christ. (Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah is the name of the Almighty God (see Exodus 6:3, in the Amharic Bible) and we are His witnesses, even as His son Christ Jesus was when on earth. (Isaiah 43: 9-12; Revelation 3:14) Being witnesses for God, we give testimony to all who will listen. (Revelation 22:17) We feel both privileged and obligated to help lift up people morally and spiritually and to comfort them with the message of God's established kingdom for which Jesus taught all Christians to pray. (Ezekiel 3:17-21; Isaiah 61:1, 2; Matthew 6:9, 10) Jehovah's witnesses are wholeheartedly devoted to God and His kingdom and their Christian conduct recommends them to all honest men. They are a peaceful, law-abiding people who are never involved in the instigation of race riots or any form of political uprisings or revolutions. Their peaceful and charitable activities plus their high moral standards make them a credit to any community, and never would there be any foundation for charging them with being 'dangerous to the security of a country.'

"As to doctrines, Jehovah's witnesses teach that Jehovah is the Almighty God (Psalm 83:18); that He is the Creator of the heavens and earth (Genesis 1:1); that His creation is perfect (Deuteronomy 32:4); that sin and death entered the world through the rebellion of Adam and Eve and the one now called Satan (Romans 5:12; Genesis 3: 1-5); that the punishment for sin was and is death (Romans 6:23); that God sent His son, Jesus Christ, into the world to die and pay the ransom for obedient humans (Matthew 20:28); that Christ's one sacrifice was sufficient (Romans 6:10; Hebrews 10:12); that Christ was raised from the dead as an immortal spirit (1 Peter 3:18); that there is only one road to everlasting life, and that through Christ (Matthew 7:13; 1 Timothy 2:5); that Christ's second presence is in spirit (John 14:19; Matthew 24:3; 2 Corinthians 5:16); that we are now in the world's time of the end (Matthew 24:3-14; 2 Timothy 3:1-5); that the earth will never be destroyed or depopulated (Ecclesiastes 1:4; Isaiah 45:18); that God will destroy this present wicked system of things at the battle of Armageddon (Revelation 16: 14-16; Zephaniah 3:8; Daniel 2:44; Isaiah 34:2); that Armageddon will come within this present generation (Matthew 24:34); that all the wicked who do not take their stand for His kingdom will be eternally destroyed (Psalm 37: 10; 145:20; Proverbs 10:24; Isaiah 26:14) that the kingdom under Christ will rule the earth in righteousness and peace (Isaiah 9:6, 7; 11:1-5; Psalm 46:8, 9; Matthew 6: 10); that the hope for the dead is the resurrection (1 Corinthians 15: 20-22); that only a little flock is chosen to rule in Heaven with Christ Jesus (Luke 12:32; Revelation 14:1, 3; 1 Corinthians 15:40-53; Revelation 20:4, 6); that a great multitude of others will live on earth under Christ's Kingdom rule (Matthew 5:3, 5; 6:9, 10; Proverbs 2: 21, 22; 10: 29, 30; Malachi 4: 1-3); that the Kingdom will bring ideal living conditions to earth (Isaiah 11:6-9; 32:16, 18; 33:24; 65:17-25); that His kingdom will be everlasting (Isaiah 9:6, 7); that death and all form of human misery will be destroyed forever (Isaiah 25:6-8; Revelation 21:4); and that wickedness and affliction will never rise a second time (Nahum 1:9).

FURTHER PROOF OF VAUXHALL VALUE!

Timmins, Ontario,
February 19, 1960.

General Motors Products of Canada Limited,
Oshawa, Ontario.

Dear Sir:

I am so pleased with my Vauxhall, which I purchased from your dealer in Timmins, Ontario, I thought I would drop you a line.

I have approximately 9,000 miles on my car now and I am average no starting troubles in our Northern Ontario sub zero temperatures. (My wife and I find the styling, interior roominess and ride all to be outstanding features in your Vauxhall.)

I am particularly pleased with ride and handling since I do [illegible] and cannot be let down.

I would not hesitate to recommend "Vauxhall" to anyone.

Yours very truly,

So do most people, Mr. Tremblay,
Vauxhall is the car that shows you don't have to sacrifice style for economy!

It looks modern, carries five adults and handles superbly — even on country roads. This is the secret of Vauxhall's outstanding success. It gives you the "feel" and comfort of a big car plus the economy of a small car. Save in style. Test-drive a Vauxhall soon.

For Parents Only . . .

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Will Junior pass or fail?

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Will Junior pass or fail?" Parents wonder a bit uneasily from time to time. An unsatisfactory term report, a note from the teacher, Junior's own complete lack of enthusiasm for school, his resistance to doing homework regularly and thoroughly may all be danger signals, warnings of the possibility that Junior may have to repeat his school year.

Children in one classroom can vary greatly in their ability. This intellectual ability is rated by IQ (intelligence quotient) tests. If a child is emotionally upset or in poor health his standing may be lower than it normally would be.

Parents should also consider the close relation between a child's mental health and his school standing and do what they can to improve conditions in this field. Sometimes a severe emotional upset will adversely affect a pupil's powers of concentration. Worriers are inefficient workers at anything including school work.

Not infrequently there is a physical cause for low marks. The child may have poor hearing or only partial eyesight. He may be undernourished, or growing too quickly for his strength. A thorough physical examination by a competent doctor is one of the first things parents should plan for. The doctor's suggestions should be followed faithfully.

Colds and other illnesses keep children at home, and if they are ill that is the place for them. Part of a mother's job is to try to keep the family well. She knows that regular attendance at school is an important factor in keeping up with the work and passing into another grade.

Pupils who come from a home where the parents constantly bicker or are threatening to separate are poor "scholarship material." A mother's critical ill health, a father losing his job or becoming a heavy drinker — family situations like these are likely to pull down a child's school standing.

A child's school work is bound to improve if home conditions become more satisfactory. He needs to go off to school, happy and secure in the knowledge that "things with Mum and Dad are O.K."

A child must have the desire within himself to study. Supervision of homework by parents, coaching in after school hours, may all be factors improving a child's school labors. But the drive to apply himself must come from within.

Not infrequently an adolescent boy or girl suddenly sees a direct connection between his class work and what he wants to do to earn his living. Sometimes under the enthusiastic direction of a really fine teacher, his interest in a certain subject may be kindled. Then to his parents' delight, his failure at school may gradually turn into success, because his attitutde to his work has altered. If a student gives complete attention to the teacher when a lesson is being taught and really concentrates during study periods, even if he has very average mental equipment, he is likely to pass.

Praise by parents of work well done is always worthwhile. Mothers and fathers must not be over-concerned about the child's rating at school. His low grades may just be a passing phase. He may "find himself" in time. Even if he is never a brilliant success at school it is quite possible that he may grow into a competent, happy successful adult working at the particular type of work for which he is best suited.

At the same time fathers and mothers want their child to receive as much education as possible. So many occupations are closed to workers because they have had too little schooling. Increased earning power accompanies higher education. All too often boys and girls fail at school who should be able to pass, become discouraged and stop school at an early stage. This is a great pity which both parents and teachers want to prevent.

Rolled oats add flavor

Consumer Section

If your family likes pie (and who doesn't) you'll be interested in trying this recipe, recently tested in the Consumer Section. The pastry, filling and top "crust" are all a little different from the ordinary and make a fine dessert. Of course, you could make your apple pie in the usual way and just use the crumb mixture instead of a crust on top. Dates may be replaced by raisins or omitted altogether.

Apple-Date Crumble Pie

Pastry (for deep 9" pie plate) — ½ cup rolled oats, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup shortening, 3 to 4 tablespoons water.

Combine rolled oats, flour and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add water gradually until mixture holds together. Form into a ball, and roll out to a circle about 12 inches in diameter to fit a deep 9" pie plate. Trim off ragged edges, turn under and flute.

Filling — 6 cups sliced apples, ½ cup chopped dates, ½ cup brown sugar (packed), ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Toss together apples, dates, sugar and cinnamon. Turn into unbaked pie shell.

Topping — ½ cup butter, ½ cup brown sugar (packed), ½ cup sifted all-purpose flour, ½ cup rolled oats, ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream butter, add sugar and cinnamon and cream well together. Add flour and rolled oats and blend together with pastry blender. Crumble over top of pie, covering apples completely.

Place pie in a hot oven (425°F.) and continue baking until apples in centre of pie are just tender when tested with a skewer.

Serve Cottage Roll with salads

For a touch of summer in spring meals, serve cottage roll and potato salad with fresh, young leaf lettuce lightly tossed with vinegar and oil in the French manner.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Housewives should have fewer ironing chores this summer, according to reports from Canada's textile mills.

A new wash-and-wear fabric is a lustrous broadcloth which looks like a fine cotton, but which will "hardly ever need ironing," say the manufacturers. The material, 63 percent terylene and 35 per cent cotton, is being used in beautifully-draped summer dresses which would be impossible to launder if made entirely of cotton.

Terylene batiste, introduced last summer, will appear again, but this time in beautiful patterns. Combinations of dark shades such as blue with green, or brown with burnt orange, promise to be most popular.

Children's clothing will turn up in sophisticated colors. Little girls will go off to parties wearing mossy shades of green or white. Their bathing suits will have pert pleats which the manufacturers say will "dry in a flash with pleats sharp as new."

Even the babies will be outfitted in sets that can be machine-washed without ironing.

Best Peaches

A Canadian sample of freestone peaches won top honors over 19 other brands in a flavor test conducted by a British journal of consumer reports.

Professional food specialists and housewives made up the group of 12 who tested the canned fruit.

The Ontario- grown sample won out over brands from South Africa, Australia, Japan and the United States.

Freestone peaches are the only variety grown commercially in Canada. The stone and flesh of the fruit are easily separated.

Cling peaches available in Canada are imported. The stone of this variety clings to the fruit.

Magnetic Magic

Newest earrings on the market require no clips, wires or screws to remain firmly on the earlobe. It's not magic but magnets that does the trick.

The earrings are made in two separate parts.

A tiny magnetic disc slips behind the earlobe holding the attractive front piece in place. Several attempts at vigorous headshaking failed to shake loose a pair.

Happy Hospital Visits

Short, warm and happy was the description of a successful hospital visit at a recent workshop for church visitors at London, Ont.

Mrs. Stewart McDonald of Appin urged the women to obey hospital regulations during their visits. Warmth and happiness are important and it is also necessary to assure the patient that you are happy to spend the time there, she said.

Gifts for the patients should not be routine but can be given as an occasional treat. The visitors were told not to accept presents from the people they visit.

Sandwich-style fish cakes

Necessity has been responsible for many unusual discoveries, including enticing culinary creations which evolved when it was essential to make a little of something good go a long way. Stuffings fall into this category. Yet we seldom think of them as "stretchers" any more. For example, a baked stuffed fish is a delicacy to remember. And this taste treat needn't be limited to a whole fish. Fish fillets and steaks baked sandwich-style with a piquantly flavored stuffing are attractive and delicious. When using fish steaks choose ones about the same size so they will cook evenly and can be cut into equal portions for serving. Baked Stuffed Halibut Steaks are as tasty as they are attractive and are particularly tempting when served with a sour cream sauce.

Baked Stuffed Halibut Steaks

1½ to 2 pounds halibut steaks, ½ cup finely chopped onion, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, ½ cup sliced mushrooms, ½ cup dry enriched bread crumbs, ½ cup finely chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, ½ teaspoon thyme, heavy cream, top milk or evaporated milk.

Sauté onion in butter or margarine. Add the mushrooms, bread crumbs, parsley, salt, pepper and thyme. Blend thoroughly and moisten with a little heavy cream. Grease a baking dish and place half of the halibut steaks in the bottom. Arrange stuffing on top and cover with remaining steaks. Secure with toothpicks. Brush with salad oil or melted butter, season with salt and pepper. Bake in preheated very hot oven (450 deg. F.) allowing ten minutes per inch thickness of steaks, i.e. two steaks plus filling, until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

(Measurements are level; recipes for six.)

Asparagus-Macaroni Escallop from Fresh or Frozen Asparagus: Half-cook 2 lbs. peeled asparagus (tough ends removed), or use 2 (10½ oz.) pkgs. frozen asparagus.

Save cooking liquid.

Cut asparagus in 1" pieces.

Cook and drain ½ lb. high-protein elbow macaroni.

Make sauce by melting 2 tbsp. butter or margarine; stir in 2 tbsp. flour, ½ tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Gradually add ¾ c. each milk (or light cream), and asparagus liquid. Cook until boiling.

Butter 3-pt. baking dish.

In it arrange layer of 1½ c. of cooked macaroni, then layer of asparagus.

Dust with ¼ c. grated Cheddar cheese. Spread over half of the sauce.

Continue with second layers of macaroni, asparagus, sauce and cheese.

Top with ¾ c. bread crumbs mixed with ¼ c. melted butter and 2 tbsp. grated cheese.

Bake 35 minutes in moderate oven, 350 deg. F., or until golden brown.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Poets have written inspired stanzas describing it, composers have become lyrical and natives have exaggerated about springtime in the Rockies. They needn't have, for Vancouver in April needs no exaggeration to sell tourists the idea that they can gain a weather bonus to add to summer's short season by planning to visit the west coast at this time of the year.

Sure it will rain. It did the day I quickly unpacked my train case to hurry makeup repair before embarking on my first jaunt to West Vancouver. It beat a tatoo on my plastic raincape and big fat drops trickled off the edge of the hood and down the bridge of my nose. I was oblivious of this discomfort for I was enchanted with my surroundings. I watched the bus that had brought me across Lions bridge disappear around a bend in the road as I started a slow climb on foot to the home of a friend.

The smell of wet earth was hauntingly familiar. I paused just for a moment to watch the red mud slither from the roots of a huge pine tree a bulldozer had recently uprooted to make room for another home. This was one of the most beautiful residential developments in all Canada. I was told British capital had been poured in the project and month after month, new homes climb higher and ever higher up Grouse Mountain.

Flowers everywhere reminded me of a quilt I once made with my grandmother's help. When the sun peeped through a wandering cloud, their bright colors were even more intense. Unbelievable yellows and blues blended with strong purples and pinks in a massive spectrum.

For an untrained mountaineer, the climb left me slightly breathless and I pauseed a moment to perch on a huge chip off the old mountain.

It was then I noticed the little cripple boy poking at a clump of flowers with the end of one of his crutches. At first I wanted to chastise him and then I noticed he was trying to firm the earth around their roots.

"Let me help", I said as I approached the youngster, my green thumbs itching.

"Thanks, but they come popping out every time we have a heavy rain, like last night. Then my mother lets me come out of doors when it stops a little and push them back underground again", he said.

I asked him what the small flowers were and he replied in some surprise, as if all adults should know every flower that blooms, that they were Job's Tears.

When we had patted the little bulbs safely back in their bed of good earth he asked me if I knew the story of how the flowers got their name. He was so eager to tell me that I forgot my luncheon engagement and settled down with the brace on his little leg perched on the rock beside me.

In dramatic hushed tones only a child can use when enthralled with the story he is telling, my newly found friend recalled the entire Book of Job. He told of Job's wealth and large family which were all taken from him at the height of his power. "When Job had lost everything he held dear, his faith in God was sorely tried", related the child precociously in phraseology far beyond his years. His round eyes fairly popped as he related Job's struggle and how, when the Lord blessed him for his sustained faith, Job put his head in his hands and cried with joy. "His tears fell on the earth and flowers grew where they were. My granny says that for centuries Job's Tears have multiplied in anyone's garden who believes in God", said the boy.

The tale was finished and the little lad hopped down from the rock and started to hobble toward his house. Then he turned and came back to where I was standing. "I think you should have some of Job's Tears. I am sure they will grow for you." With the tip of his crutch he pried out a little clump and I wrapped them carefully in a tissue from my pocket. Will they grow in my garden? I am sure they will, for the faith of a little child renewed mine and gave it more meaning at this resurrection season.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

You may have perfect vision—yet fail to "see" traffic situations that can lead to accidents.

The trouble? — Faulty perception.

A new technique for testing drivers' perceptive ability and helping to improve it, is a strip film prepared by New York University's Center for Safety Education.

Each of the 30 slides making up the strip-film shows simulated traffic hazards. Each frame is individually flashed on a screen. It's up to the viewer to spot the hazards and then discuss how he would avoid becoming involved in an accident.

The strip-film can be used in high school driver training courses, corrective driving clinics, and in other similar programs.

The driver perception program at New York University is part of a three-year project launched by the Center for Safety Education to find what personal traits lead drivers to have automobile accidents, and to develop tests for driver licensing.

The strip-film can be obtained free of charge by writing to Shell Oil Company of Canada Limited, Box 400, Terminal "A", Toronto.

Ken Watson's CURLING

EVEN I HAVE TRIED THE ALUMNUS PLAY!

There comes a time in every curling game when a skip is tempted to gamble by asking for or playing a shot where the odds are prohibitive.

Some strategists are by birth and temperament confirmed optimists who drool over the prospect of making a scintillating double kill or negotiating a dangerous port to eliminate an opposing stone that stands between them and a big end. These characters are a menace to the brotherhood of the ice lanes for they can demoralize in a few short seconds the team morale they are supposed to nourish.

In 1936 Brier play at the Toronto Granite Club I was guilty of trying an Alumnus Play in an important game against the Northern Ontario entry skipped by Emmett Smith of Haileybury. The decision could well have cost us our first Canadian curling title.

Two down playing the tenth with last rock in our favor, we had succeeded for the first time in building a good end. Five well-placed Manitoba granites faced Emmett when he played his last stone. Smith tried a freeze to our number one shot inside the four foot and his rock stopped a couple of inches short cutting out four of our counters.

It had taken ten hard played ends to build up this big one as the Northern Ontario crew had out curled us up to this point. The temptation was too great. I wanted three or four points badly and a running shot to kill the opposing stone even if it meant sacrificing one or two of our own. Result! My runner grazed by the Ontario stone nicked out our shot and presto — they were three up!

Granted that hindsight is better than foresight, but a draw to the four-foot for two would have tied the game if I had managed to curb my impulsiveness. An even score after the tenth end is a good tactical position. Fortunately, Reg Schives' New Brunswick team lost a game as well and we were lucky to nose them out in the last round.

The greater the stakes, the later the end, the more imperative it is to abstain from the gambling instinct. This also applies to the skip on the 12th or last end in a tie game when the opponent has the final stone. Don't make the mistake of dreaming up a fancy shot for yourself so as to make it difficult for Mr. Opposition to win the game.

In so doing you are only increasing the possibility of looking like a donkey with your own attempt. The inevitable result is that His Nibbs will not even have to play his last rock. If that happens you will go home in a very remorseful frame of mind. Keep your last shot within the realm of reality and put it up to the other skip to make his if he wants to chalk up a win.

When the gods have looked favorably on your efforts and you boast a four or more point margin, beware of the Alumnus Play. This is no time to gamble. Let the other skip take the chances for he is not in the driver's seat and so has no alternative. Let him try the desperation passes that often lead to interceptions, then you can run the clock out during the dying ends.

In curling the old axiom, "Offence is the best defence," holds true. Constantly resist the temptation to change your game at least until the last end. If you find yourself ahead keep drawing, for a draw is an offensive manoeuvre in the roaring game. If behind, mix your draws with opposing shots.

Use short guards, raises, freezes, and wait for a break. Matt Baldwin is a brilliant strategist in this respect. He can dare to be different and by so doing confuse and confound his opponents. But he reserves his Alumnus Play only for such occasions.

SKINDIVING FAST BECOMING POPULAR SPORT

Skindiving has grown up as a sport. It is now a recreation the entire family can enjoy in safety providing they follow the safety rules laid own. Age doesn't seem to make any differnce. At left, skindivers show the different types of lungs in use. David Stoyan employs a single hose while his father, Anthony, wears the new full face mask. The young man at right, John Nelson, demonstrates the correct way to enter a pool. The diver doesn't jump in but rolls backwards while holding on to the mask and bottom of the tank straps.

DIFFERENT?
No other car has springs like these!

Volkswagen rides like a big car—with springs you can't even see! Sealed in tubes, they're protected from rust, dust and dirt. These torsion bars give independent springing to each of the four wheels—unlike any other family car. You get the same remarkable riding comfort front seat or back.

Volkswagen wheels are different, too. They are larger than normal with larger tires for a softer, more comfortable ride. And oversize brakes give you maximum safety.

Volkswagen's unique suspension, large wheels, luxurious contoured seats—these are the important things when it comes to riding comfort—not size. Volkswagen's ride on any road is unmatched, even by big cars.

That Volkswagen's famous engine is different, is a well known fact. It's in the rear, of course. It's air-cooled. In fact, it has set a new trend in motor design. You get up to 40 miles per gallon and can drive at top speed all day long—if you wish.

All this makes Volkswagen different. When you drive it you'll find—it pays to be different.

No wonder, then, that Volkswagen is the largest selling imported car in North America—by far!

Wedding ceremony at United Church in Morin Hts.

Williams-Watchorn

In Morin Heights United Church on Saturday, April 16, the wedding took place of Miss Doris Margaret Watchorn, daughter of Mrs. William Watchorn and the late Mr. Watchorn, to Mr. Roy Walter Williams, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams of London, England, the Rev. C. G. Westhaver, B.A., officiating. American Beauty roses and Easter lilies were used to decorate the church, the guest pews being marked with white ribbons and red carnations.

Mrs. George Watchorn presided at the organ, and the soloist was Mrs. M. M. Sims.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. George Watchorn, wore a ballerina-length gown with a basque bodice of Chantilly lace, the portrait neckline being outlined in diamante, a bouffant skirt of net with Chantilly appliqués, the long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her tulle illusion veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and aurora borealis, and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses and white feathered carnations.

Miss Eileen Watchorn, niece of the bride, wore a gown of white flowered organza over yellow taffeta, with yellow taffeta cumberbund, matching headdress, and carried a crescent bouquet of Shasta daisies.

Mr. Nixon Knowlton, of Hawkesbury, Ont., was the best man, and the ushers were Mr. Robert Telfer, of Montreal, and Mr. Keith Seale, of Morin Heights.

Mrs. William Watchorn, the bride's mother, wore a peau-de-soie gown of forest green, with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the Alpino Lodge, where multi-colored sweet peas were used to decorate.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams later left for a motor trip to Washington, D.C., the bride travelling in a rose beige chiffon and lace gown, with green accessories, a brown squirrel jacket and an orchid corsage.

Upon their return the couple will reside in Morin Heights.

Native of Lachute held distinguished War I record

Lt.-Col. T. W. MacDowell, VC

Lieut.-Col. Thain Wendell MacDowell, VC, DSO, Canadian World War I hero, died recently in Nassau, Bahamas, in his 70th year.

Born in Lachute, Que., a son of the late Rev. J. V. and Eleanor MacDowell, he was educated at Brockville and the University of Toronto, and after distinguished service in World War I returned there to obtain his M.A. degree in 1919.

On the outbreak of war, Col. MacDowell went overseas as a member of the 38th Battalion. He won the Distinguished Service Order in 1916 for bravery in the field and in 1917 was awarded the Victoria Cross for capturing a German machine gun post during the Battle of Vimy Ridge.

His Victoria Cross citation, describes how he won the highest award for bravery his nation could bestow.

It read: "For most conspicuous bravery and indomitable resolution in face of heavy machine gun and shell fire. . .

"By his initiative and courage this officer, with the assistance of two runners, was enabled, in the face of great difficulties, to capture two machine guns, besides two officers and 75 men.

"Although wounded in the hand, he continued for five days to hold the position gained, in spite of heavy shell fire, until eventually relieved by his battalion.

"By his bravery and prompt action he undoubtedly succeeded in rounding up a very strong enemy machine gun post."

A captain at the time, Colonel MacDowell rose to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel before receiving his honorable discharge at the end of the war.

On his return to civilian life, Colonel MacDowell became interested in mining and was director of various mining companies at the time of his death. From 1923 to 1928 he was private secretary to the Minister of National Defence.

He is survived by his wife, the former Norah Jean Hodgson of Westmount, and two sons, Thain and Angus.

The funeral service was held in Brockville, Ont.

It wouldn't be practical for Imperial to divide its income dollar the way the people in our picture are doing. A more exact division is required, as you can see from the figures below.

Here's how Imperial's income dollar is divided

Last year, out of every dollar Imperial took in:

55 cents was spent for raw materials—mostly crude oil—and for freight, a big item in a big country.

25 cents went for costs of operating the company. This included wages and salaries for our 13,000 employees.

9 cents was for depreciation, money set aside to help pay for replacing worn-out equipment.

5 cents went to various taxes (not including provincial road taxes ranging from 10 to 18½ cents per gallon).

6 cents was left. But two of these had to be set aside for equipment to make new products and for expansion of things like refineries and service stations to meet the public needs.

4 cents was left for the shareholders—whose investment made the company possible.

A New Season Bursts Forth

Warm balmy days . . . signs of green grass and peeping flowers mean spring is here. It's a delightful time of year . . . a welcome change after the long dreary days of winter. Appetites, too, are ready for a change!

Surprise your family with a new season treat . . . Chicken Pinwheels. They'll love the tender rolls of biscuit dough filled with chicken and sauced with smooth, golden canned chicken gravy.

Here's a perfect menu for a perfect time of year!

V-8
Chicken Pinwheels
Green Beans with Slivered Almonds
Tossed Salad
Frozen Individual Peach Pies
Coffee

CHICKEN PINWHEELS

1 tablespoon minced onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (10¼ fluid ounces) chicken gravy
1 cup finely chopped cooked chicken
Dash salt
Dash pepper
1 cup packaged biscuit mix
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon minced parsley

In skillet, lightly brown onion and garlic in butter; remove from heat and stir in 2 tablespoons gravy, chicken, and seasonings. In bowl, blend biscuit mix, milk, and parsley to form a soft dough; roll out on a lightly floured board to form a rectangle about ⅛ inch thick. Spread chicken mixture on dough; roll as for a jelly roll; cut into 6 slices. Place slices, cut side down, on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in a very hot oven (450° F.) about 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Meanwhile, in saucepan, heat remaining gravy; serve over pinwheels. Makes 3 generous servings.

Sausage Rolls easy to make

(Consumer Section)

Some people call them Pigs in Blankets, others say Sausage Snacks, but the ordinary name of Sausage Rolls is probably most often used and most appropriate.

Results of recent taste panels in the Consumer Section indicated that it's best to cook the sausages and cool them before making up the rolls. Pre-cooking ensures that the meat will be well done and improves the flavor, as well. It also eliminates the possibility of greasiness in the sausage rolls, since any excess fat is rendered out of the sausages into the pan and can be discarded.

This recipe starts with fresh sausages — but you could use left over cooked sausages. In fact what you might do is buy 2 or 3 pounds of sausages, cook them all at once in the broiler, 8 to 10 minutes, turning once) or in the over (30 to 35 minutes in 325°F. oven), serve sausages for dinner and then make up sausage rolls from those that remain.

Sausage Rolls

1 Pound Sausages (18-20 small), pastry (using 2 cups flour), prepared mustard (optional), milk.

Panfry, broil or bake sausages until lightly browned, then chill. Meanwhile, prepare pastry and roll out into a rectangle to a thickness of not more than ¼". Lay a cooked sausage at edge of rectangle and cut pastry into strips as wide as the sausage is long. Then cut strips into rectangles long enough to wrap sausages in. If desired, spread each rectangle with a thin layer of prepared mustard.

Roll up sausage, moisten edge of pastry and seal. Place on lightly greased baking sheet, sealed edge down. Brush with milk and bake in a very hot oven (450°F.) until lightly browned, 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 18 to 20 rolls.

Small Sausage Rolls for Tidbit Tray

Cut fried sausages in half and proceed as above. Bake for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 36 small rolls.

Bread Sausage Rolls

Trim crusts from ¼" slices of sandwich bread. Roll sausage in bread and fasten end with toothpick. If desired, brush lightly with butter. Place under broiler so that tops of rolls are 6" from broiling unit. Broil until lightly browned, about 2 minutes. Then turn over and broil another 2 minutes.

After the Easter dinner, leftover ham can be packaged and refrigerated for future use. Large pieces can be sliced just before cooking as steaks, for frying with eggs for breakfast or for sandwiches.

For an unusual breakfast treat, line the bottom and sides of lightly greased custard cups or muffin pans with thin slices of cooked ham, making sure they overlap the edges. Break an egg into each cup and bake in a 325-degree oven for 20-25 minutes or until the egg is set. Serve on toast.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

A plain six-inch ruler can save you many dollars in costly brake or clutch repairs if you know how to use it.

Now that fair weather is luring us to longer trips, it's a good idea to get that ruler out immediately. And here's what to do, according to the automotive experts.

Press down on your brake pedal. With your ruler, measure the distance your brake goes down before it takes effect. It should be at about two inches. If the measurement is less, your brakes are too tight and need adjusting. If it is appreciably more, your brake lining has probably worn a bit, so brakes need adjusting again. If your foot goes right down to the floor board before you feel results, chances are your brakes need fluid or relining.

Under any circumstances, it's wise to have the brake fluid in your master cylinder checked every thousand miles and replenished if necessary. Lack of the correct amount of fluid is likely to impair seriously your brake's effectiveness.

The clutch pedal should go down about one inch on the ruler before it disengages. Less "play" can create a high rate of clutch wear.

You may save yards of money by measuring those inches now.

PRAIRIE FRUIT

Morden, Man. (CP) — A new variety of raspberry, Boyne, has been developed at the federal experimental station here and will be made available through commercial nurseries on the Prairies this year. The Boyne is said to have a higher yield than other varieties recommended for growth on the Prairies.

Canadian summer fabric

Eyelet embroidered shirtwaist is in a new Canadian fabric for summer 1960 — a silky broadcloth in an intimate blend of 65 per cent "Terylene" and 35 per cent cotton. The fabric looks like a fine cotton yet it will keep its freshness all summer long and it will seldom if ever need the touch of an iron.

The Bible today

The extension of Bible distribution in Mexico has required the building of a new Bible House in Mexico City.

Plans are well advanced and a suitable site in the central portion of the city and easy of access has been secured. An appeal is being made to the Protestant constituency of the country for assistance in this necessary project. The committee in charge report good progress in the planning and a ready response to the appeal.

Unless the rate of distribution is increased it has been estimated that it would take 600 years for every inhabitant to receive a Bible or a New Testament.

In the last 20 years 877,000 Bibles and Testaments have been circulated in a country with a population of 23 million. In the same period seven and a quarter million gospels were distributed. The increase of population points to the fact that the number of those for whom no Bible or New Testament will be available is increasing.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

CAVITY CURES

Photographs of the typical Canadian boy or girl usually show a healthy, handsome set of teeth. Unfortunately, perfect teeth are far from typical. Next to the common cold, the most widespread disease is tooth decay, which strikes nine out of ten Canadians. Most of this tooth decay can be stopped in its tracks or prevented altogether by regular visits to the dentist, more frequent and more thorough brushing, and avoidance of between-meal snacks and sweets.

New equipment and modern techniques enable dentists to do more than plug cavities or pull teeth. Today's dentist constructs more, extracts less. With new plastics, a skilled dentist can often transform mere stumps into well-shaped teeth. Dentists can make big, horsey teeth look smaller by shading the edges for optical illusion. Poor positioning of teeth can be corrected in adults as well as children. Sometimes a mere dab of cement teases the tongue into pushing a displaced tooth back into line.

You not only have more to gain, you have less to dread from a visit to your dentist these days. New high speed drills cooled by a spray of air or water do necessary drilling in jig time with little discomfort. Yet dentists still find that some patients go rigid with fear merely approaching the office. Many patients suffer more from their fear of anticipated pain than from any actual pain encountered. Some dentists see hypnotism as a possible solution to these fears, but more are using tranquilizers, taken by the patient in the waiting room. These tranquilizers do a truly effective job of relaxing the patient and bring a trip to the dentist into proper perspective.

Teeth can affect the appearance, health and even personality, yet less than one-third of the people in Canada receive adequate dental care. Regular visits to your dentist can improve your social and job opportunities and will certainly lead to good healthy teeth and more smiles of self-assurance.

CANADA HOUSE ONLY 10 P.C. CANADIAN

The controversial Canada House in New York, a 26-storey prestige office building, expects to be fully occupied this month, but not with Canadians. A brain child of Ray Lawson, former Canadian consul, the building was built two years ago. Officials say that 14 million out-of-town visitors and 17 million New Yorkers pass through the doors in a year. Many seek information at the travel bureau about vacation spots and business and labor opportunities. High rents have discouraged Canadians from leasing space. The travel bureau above at left costs Canada $35,000 a year in rent.

Special studies are live topic for college men

Vancouver, B.C. (CP) — The old complaint of university professors and students that undergraduates specialize too much to get a good general knowledge is giving way to a new line of thought at the University of British Columbia.

Student leaders and professors now are complaining that too few students specialize enough to become expert in one field.

Dr. C A. McDowell, head of the university's chemistry department, explains it this way:

"Intensive penetration in a special field will tend to encourage a more active, imaginative approach to anything else that is undertaken.

"This may not produce the well-rounded citizen immediately after graduation, but it will produce a person who — five, 10 or 20 years later — will be much more useful."

Urge Campaign

Dr. McDowell, classics scholar William Eliot and other students and faculty members advocate a campaign to encourage students to take honor courses by the end of their second year if they clearly see a field of interest.

The problem was one of several raised at the university's fourth annual academic symposium at Parksville, on Vancouver Island.

The symposium, attended by 100 students and 50 faculty members, is the university's annual critical analysis of itself.

These were some of the other points made at the conference:

1. There isn't enough time for scholarly reflection by students or faculty.

2. Too many people go to the university because it's the thing to do — not to get an education.

3. Students think of individual subjects as segments of learning, not as part of a pattern in their education.

The most unusual suggestion at the conference was greeted by cheers from the delegates. Gail Harvey, third-year arts student, suggested that a channel be dug across the campus for punting. This would give ample opportunity for scholarly reflection.

OIL SEEDS

Lethbridge, Alta. (CP) — Agricultural scientists at the dominion experimental station near here say experiments show such plants as love-in-a-mist and safflowers might be profitably grown for their oil content when weed control problems are solved.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Where was Fort des Prairies?

In a number of places. This was a name that was loosely applied to several of the fur-trading posts of the North West Company on the North Saskatchewan River, although it was never actually the correct name of any of them. The North Saskatchewan region was frequently referred to in company documents as the Forts des Prairies district — and the fort that for the moment was most important in the district was called Fort des Prairies. Fort Augustus (Edmonton), Fort George and Fort Vermilion were among the posts referred to in this way.

When was Canada's great Reindeer trek?

In 1929, in an effort to give the native peoples of the Far North a new source of livelihood, a herd of 3000 reindeer — an animal not native to Canada — was selected in Alaska by A. E. Porsild. The drive to Canada, under a Lapp herder from Norway, assisted by several other Lapps and Eskimo, began immediately. They reached Canadian territory in 1933 and arrived at their destination on the east side of the Mackenzie River delta in March 1935. There were 2370 animals in the herd after the six-year trek. An area of 6600 square miles was set aside as a reserve and buildings were erected for the station staff and equipment. Less than 20 years after its arrival, when the herd had increased to 7600, although more than this number had been used for meat and skins, the reserve was enlarged to 17,900 square miles.

Who is Alcartra Gerben?

Alcartra Gerben is a Holstein cow — the official Canadian champion yearly butterfat producer over all breeds, with a total of 1409 pounds. Holsteins are noted for their extremely high production of milk; many have produced 40 quarts of milk in one day and many too have given 10,000 quarts in a year. Canadian dairy cattle have reached a high degree of efficiency in milk production and have achieved a uniformity of type envied by breeders from other lands.

What is the Canadian Shield?

This is a term used to describe a vast V-shaped area around Hudson Bay. A hummocky area with rocks of great age, it extends from Labrador west to the plains of the Prairie Provinces and includes the greater part of Quebec and Ontario. Only in a few places, except in Labrador, do altitudes exceed 1500 or 2000 feet. Numerous lakes and rivers characterize the area and it is the source of a large part of Canada's mineral and forest wealth. Other terms used for the area include Laurentian Upland and Precambrian Shield.

What is the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies?

Mount Robson, on the continental divide at about 53 degrees north latitude, is the highest peak in the Canadian Rockey Mountains. It has an altitude of 12,972 feet. The C.N.R. main line passes close to the mountain. The surrounding Mount Robson National Park is named after the Mountain, but the origin of the name is in doubt.

Where was Port La Joie?

This was the early name of Charlottetown, capital of Prince Edward Island. The name was retained until the island fell into British hands during the Seven Years' War. Then it was changed to honor Queen Charlotte, the wife of George III. The site of Charlottetown had been a French fortified post for a few years before 1720 when a party of 300 colonists under Robert David Gotteville arrived. They presumably gave it the name of Port La Joie to express their joy at safe arrival.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

How To Use Molasses As A Feed

Molasses, a popular feed for many years, is essentially sugar. This is true whether it is cane, beet, corn, citrus, or wood molasses. It contains considerable ash or mineral matter, especially potash, but also calcium and even very minor amounts of phosphorous and nitrogen or protein. Still, about 50 per cent of the weight of molasses is sugar.

Dr. Bohstedt

The appetizing effect of molasses has been its greatest asset. However, the sugar in it serves also as a source of energy for the animal either directly or by way of the bacteria of the paunch in ruminants. These bacteria then are better able to digest fiber and to synthesize vitamins and protein. In Wisconsin experiments, however, it was found that the starch of corn or oats served every bit as well in this respect as the sugar of molasses.

What, then, is the relative value of molasses as compared with corn or oats? It depends!

In general, it may be stated that when fed in relatively small amounts in the ration—say 1 or 1.5 pounds of molasses daily per steer or cow, which would amount to about 10 or 15 per cent of the grain mixture—molasses may be fully as valuable as corn, even though its "total digestible nutrients" may be only 75 per cent as high as that of corn.

The principle of high value also applies when molasses is used to make low-grade feed more palatable, such as where diluted molasses is sometimes sprinkled over stemmy and discolored hay to improve its consumption.

However, when fed in greater amounts—say from 30 to 60 per cent of the grain part of the ration—molasses has been found worth only 50 to 70 per cent of the value of corn on an equivalent weight basis.

Molasses will continue to enjoy popularity but we should follow the above guides on how best to use it for greater efficiency and economy.

Question: We purchase less than one ton of stock salt a year. Is this enough for an average general livestock farm?

Answer: To be able to compute the annual salt requirement rather easily, the following are the approximate daily salt intakes of mature livestock where horses, beef cattle and sheep are fed salt free choice, and the dairy cattle and swine are fed salt both free choice and mixed with their grain: Beef cattle and light horses, 1½ ounces of salt; dairy cattle, 2 ounces; sheep, ⅗ of an ounce; and for swine the same amount, ⅗ of an ounce for each 100 pounds liveweight. Young stock require roughly half as much.

Spring run may affect evergreens

When ol' sol turns his benevolent countenance on Mother Earth in the spring, the result is usually welcomed by all.

Not so with evergreen trees.

Bright sunshine in March and April can cause surprisingly high temperatures within the needles, evaporating moisture, while the roots cannot absorb a replenishing supply of water from the frozen soil.

If the moisture content of the needles is reduced below a certain point, the leaves are unable to recover. The resulting "browning" begins at the top of the needles and progresses toward the base.

This drying process seldom causes permanent injury, says C. G. Riley of the Canada Department of Agriculture's Saskatoon Research Station. The buds, tightly encased in their protective scales, are usually able to withstand the drying action of the sun.

When the growing season arrives, they open up and give way to new green shoots and foliage, which quickly hide the defoliated older twigs. In exceptional seasons, the drying action of early spring sunshine and dry winds may kill buds and twigs in addition to foliage.

Small trees can be protected by burying them with snow.

Generous watering in the fall increases the water content of the whole tree before winter begins, reducing the risk of winter drying. Mulching to conserve soil moisture in windbreaks is recommended.

"KEEP THE CHANGE"

With these words Miss Flo Speering of Toronto, Ontario handed surprised restaurateur George Pavlovich a cheque for 10 cents to pay for her morning cup of coffee. She received the cheque as a refund on her 1959 income tax. "What else could I spend it on?" she asks.

High milk record not only thing to consider

The Department of Rural Economy of Ontario states that, during the last five years, the average farm income in the province has fallen by $300. During the same period, the average income of members of the herd improvement association (D.H.I.A.) has increased by $1,276; and a study of the reports of Quebec farmers who participate in farm competitions would probably reveal a similar financial superiority.

The cost of what the farmer has to buy is continually rising, while the prices he receives for his produce tend to fall. Only better farm management can enable him to lower the costs of production. Philippe Granger, of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, says that the first two steps to good management are good book-keeping and regular milk testing. Milk testing does not consist merely in weighing the cows' milk yield, it also helps us to plan the breeding program.

In view of the fact that a good dairy farm now maintains its milk production throughout the year, calving dates are very important. The dairy farmer has to consider not only the amount of milk produced altogether, but also the spacing of the calving dates. In order to maintain a constant level of milk-production, it must be possible to arrange for the cows to freshen, on the average, every 13 months.

There are many cows of only average production which are nevertheless more profitable to the dairy farmer than some others which have achieved high records. The cow which won the milk production championship, open to all breeds, at the Quebec Exhibition this year, has never produced more than 12,253 pounds of milk in one year, but she has calved 15 times.

Fire prevention in poultry houses

Constant precaution is the basis of fire prevention. A poultryman may be ruined and the profits of many years of toil may disappear in smoke as the result of a slight neglect. The commonest starting point of fire is the brooder and, if brooding is carried on in the poultry-house or in a neighboring building, the risk of fire from this source extends to the whole establishment.

Camille Guertin, of the Poultry Division, Quebec Department of Agriculture, recommends that brooder stoves be carefully set up in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions. Oil and gas brooders should be set level with the floor and without any leaks in the pipes, and they should be cleaned often. Infra-red lamps should be suspended at least 12 inches above the litter. Lamp sockets made of porcelain are preferable to those made of plastic or metal.

The electric wiring must be adequate for the number of appliances to be connected to any one circuit. Fan motors should be provided with an automatic circuit breaker so as to guard against overloading. The services of a licensed electrician should be obtained for all installation work.

Mr. Guertin advises poultrymen to keep a portable fire-extinguisher handy and a water hose connected, ready to nip fires in the bud.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q. — Can I qualify for unemployment insurance benefits? I have 26 weekly contributions as against the 30 required, but I worked for six weeks in Massena, N.Y., and have contributed to the New York State Unemployment Insurance scheme.

A. — The contributions you made to the New York State unemployment insurance scheme will not assist you to qualify for benefit under our plan. You may, however, be entitled to an extension of your qualifying period by reason of the six weeks you were employed in the U.S.A. You should contact your local office to obtain information on this point.

Q. — I cut logs last fall before I received benefits. I want to know if I can transport these logs for construction purposes and continue to receive my benefits.

A. — If you are selling the logs, you should declare your earnings from this source for the week or weeks in which the sales take place, unless, of course, you are fully employed in this activity and not, therefore, entitled to any benefit while so engaged.

ELM BEETLES

Ottawa (CP) — Don't worry if tiny beetles swarm around the fireplace when old elm logs are burned. W. J. Brown, an agriculture department entomologist, says they won't harm woodwork or living trees. They are interested only in old elm or hickory logs.

"It's the Bank of Montreal Farm Account Book. Shows me where my money goes . . . right down to the last penny or thereabouts.

"Ever since I started spending a few minutes each day with this handy record of my operations I've known exactly where I stand — what's paying off for me and what's a bust. And any farmer will tell you how valuable that information is. Frankly, the B of M Farm Account Book is as useful to me as an extra hand — especially around income-tax time."

This farmer's experience has been duplicated all over the country. You see, the B of M's Farm Account Book offers farmers a simple yet comprehensive book-keeping system designed for their special needs by experts in farm-financial matters. It puts your farm accounts on a completely business-like basis and gives you at a glance the over-all financial position of your farm at all times.

Put the B of M's Farm Account Book to work on your farm. This extra hand won't cost you a cent, but it will help you get the most profit out of your farm operations. Simply ask at your nearest B of M branch for your complimentary copy.

Lively interest displayed in Art Show

Art exhibits show variety of techniques

Artists and patrons of the arts gathered Saturday at a pleasant affair at the Centre Dramatique d'Argenteuil in the Rio Building — the opening of a week-long exhibition of paintings produced by local talent.

The display was officially opened by Jean Laforest, whose wife, Mme. Jean Lebrun-Laforest, is instructress in diction to groups of enthusiastic young pupils at this institution. Mr. Laforest welcomed the guests, while describing this display as a gesture to encourage art and culture in the community . . . (It was, indeed, a gesture appreciated by the art fraternity of this neighborhood, whose group activities are otherwise largely confined to the summer season.)

The exhibits appearing in this show, between 30 and 40 in number, are varied. Although the collection is submitted largely by amateurs, it includes a few representative works by established professionals. Conventional works in various treatments are interspersed with abstract engravings and oils, just sufficient to indicate that local artists are conscious of, if not keenly addicted to, the present non-objective trend. There are snow scenes, landscapes from Quebec and Ontario, coastal scenes from Gaspé, the Maritimes and Florida, and at least one impressive portrait.

The premises remain open this week, daily from 1 to 9 p.m. (Saturday 3 to 9 p.m.), and art lovers will be well repaid to visit and inspect this show. The public are cordially welcome.

Police officers ask co-operation

All district municipal police departments, in addition to the local Provincial Police officers, would like to appeal to the general public to notify them immediately if any suspicious incident attracts their attention. A number of robberies have been reported recently which, it is felt, could have been stopped if witnesses had immediately reported their suspicions rather than waiting until the robbery had been reported the following day.

Promoted

John (Jack) Maidens, R.C.A.F., stationed at Lincoln Park, Alberta, has recently been promoted to the rank of corporal . . . Cpl. Maidens, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Chris Maidens, attended Lachute High School and the Technical School in Montreal. His wife and children reside in married quarters at Lincoln Park.

Pee-Wee hockey team feted at Lions Club supper meeting

There was a father-and-son flavor to the Lions Club meeting last week, when the youngsters of the Pee-Wee League champion team were principal guests and a number of their fathers were invited individually by the members. The occasion highlighted one of the club's most successful efforts in the past two years, namely Youth Recreation — in which the Lions' artificial ice rink has played an important part for two successive winter seasons.

Lion Fred Jeffery introduced the 14 members of the team, all in smart crested windbreakers. These are the Lowe Bros. Shamrocks, all under 12 years of age. Others present, who received honorable mention for their support and active interest in this team, were Clifford Lowe and his brothers in that sport-minded, music-minded firm of Lowe Bros.; Sgt. Det. Ralph Allen; Asst. Coach Don Neill; and Jacques Bourgoing, the loyal and efficient rink manager this past season.

Young Stephen Lowe (son of Emmett Lowe), then presented "Uncle Cliff" with an engraved lighter from the team. Stephen, incidentally, entertained with a few lively numbers at the piano.

Lions Paid Tribute

President Lorne Duncan was in the chair, and during the proceedings the members observed one minute's silence in tribute to the late Lion Geo. Y. Deacon, the late Mrs. Hector Lamarche, and former Lion, Eric Hibbard, esteemed members of this community who had latterly passed away.

In the absence of a guest speaker, Lorne Duncan gave some interesting impressions of his recent visit to the Canadian Northwest.

Col. Ernest Emmett reported on the progress of the Easter Seals campaign, and Royal Carriere spoke on the prize drawing to be held in lieu of an annual car raffle.

Folk Dancing Attraction

As a public attraction for the Lions' Night (Friday, June 17) at Lachute Spring Fair, the Club has engaged the "Feux Follets", a noted group of 16 costumed dancers under Michel Cartier, who perform not only Canadian traditional dances but the folk-dances of all countries in the world. This talented Quebec group deserves tribute for its devotion to the study of folk rhythm. Says Mr. Cartier: "They follow a thorough and complete training, including rhythm, ethnology, geographic origin, history and native costume. The members devote all their spare time to this study. Many New Canadians have displayed their interest and given their knowledge and assistance — contributing thus to better national understanding".

The Lions are looking forward to presenting this group for public entertainment at the Fair.

CHAIRMAN SEEKS RECORD RESULT —

Favorable returns as 'blitzers' report on Cancer Campaign

At a "post-blitz" reporting of workers in the Cancer drive, Monday evening in the Legion Hall, returns of the door-to-door canvass warranted high optimism. The 1960 Cancer Campaign is off to a good start. From Lachute East, Lachute Mills and Ayersville, the returns were all encouraging, and if the same trend continues in the rural areas under Lachute district, there is indication of fine results.

Mr. Royal Carrière, chairman of the Campaign, was on hand to welcome the returning workers. He expressed satisfaction and sincere appreciation to the captains and the 210 individual canvassers in Greater Lachute.

Returns from business firms and industries, together with the rural collections, were still unreported at press time. It is hoped that, by next week's Watchman, a more complete coverage will be ready.

Mr. Carrière expressed appreciation to the Legion for hospitality in the use of the Memorial Hall, and to the ladies of the Legion Auxiliary, who kindly provided refreshments to returning workers and organizers of the blitz canvass. He also said, "It is impossible to name all the volunteers in this campaign. Their splendid, selfless efforts are doing a wonderful job." While speaking of volunteers he continued, "We would like to mention the faithful 160 workers of the Cancer Dressing Service in Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East and Kilmar, who work continually during the year to provide dressings for cancer patients in seven counties. In March 1960 alone, 12,058 dressings, which cost the Canadian Cancer Society $309, were issued. These, as you know, are given out free to those suffering with cancer.

"When so many people join together to solve a problem in this selfless way, we know the problem will be solved, given time and money. May we appeal to everyone to do his generous best to finish this campaign with a record we can be proud of — well over the objective!"

Two injured in car accident

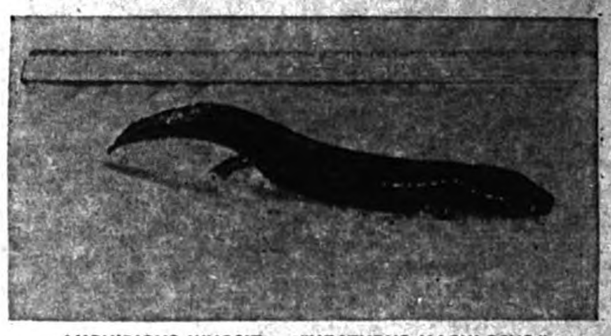

Melvin Thompson, 49-year-old Brownsburg resident, suffered severe facial cuts and lacerations early Sunday evening when the car he was driving was struck from the rear, on Route 8 near Marelan. Carl Barton, 20, of Vankleek Hill, was the driver of the other car. A passenger, Ken Nixon, 30, of Vankleek Hill, also received facial cuts. Both were treated at the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury.

The accident occurred at 8.45 p.m. Sunday during a downpour of rain, when, according to Barton, he came upon the Thompson car stopped on the highway. He was unable to stop and, as a result, both recent-model cars were demolished. The accident was investigated by Traffic Officer Albert Legault.

Paper canvass by Boy Scouts this Saturday

The Lachute Boy Scouts will hold their waste paper collection this Saturday, April 30. Householders and businessmen are asked to have waste newspapers, wrapping and cardboard conveniently tied and placed within view of the truck drivers when they call.

Paper salvage is converted into funds sorely needed in the Scout Troop activities, which have entailed added expense with the acquision of their new hall in Lachute. If bundles have not been picked up by 3 p.m., please phone LO 2-6035.

AMPHIBIOUS WHOSIT — "NECTURUS MACULOSUS."

River rodents, reptiles come inland with flood

When Ole Man River comes lapping at the door, as the North River did last week in many downtown sections of Lachute, it is not surprising to find fish and underwater species moving casually around one's backyard.

A queer specimen was caught by the young son of Henri Larche, C.P.R. operator, near his home in the flooded stretch of Robert Street last week. The reptile, one of two which were seen at the time, is about 10 inches long, an amphibian type resembling a lizard or salamander, with a red ruffle around its neck. Its mate was subsequently caught by the McRaes on their property next door to Henri Larche.

Identity of these creatures perplexed the county health officer, a well-known fish expert at Dalesville, and others. Nor was there any fitting definition in the encyclopedias . . .

Mr. Bob Wyse, Biology teacher at L.H.S., finally came up with the answer — identifying the reptile as "Necturus maculosus, commonly known as a Mud Puppy or Water Dog". It grows up to 12-17 inches long, takes six years to reach full growth, and is fairly common in North America.

At the police headquarters on Monday, days after the flood had passed its peak and receded from the neighborhood, a dead muskrat was found in the cell room. Col. Ernest Emmett, health inspector, also reported that a few "sewer rats" had been found at some distance from the river.

Two robberies at local business establishments

Approximately $15 was reported stolen from the cash box at Lachute Auto Electric, Berry Street, early Monday morning, only an hour and a half after the building was checked by a town police patrol.

Chief A. J. Whiteway reports his men made their routine investigation of the building at 6.30 a.m. and found everything in order. At 7.55 a.m., the theft report was received by the local department. Entry to the establishment, owned and operated by Burrill Todd, was made by the rear of the building, where several planks were pulled from an adjoining shed. They then broke the locks into the office and cash drawer, and apparently made good their escape through the rear of the building.

During the night of Tuesday to Wednesday of last week, thieves entered the premises of Lachute Market Reg'd., the former Hadley butcher shop now owned by Gilles Poirier, and made off with an estimated $750 in meats, beer, cigarets and other supplies.

Entry to the store was made by breaking the lock on the rear door, after which the meat refrigerator was cleaned out and considerable other merchandise stolen.

Both incidents were investigated by Cst. R. Boutet, of the Lachute Police Department.

Cookie sale for 50th anniversary of Girl Guides

Girl Guides in Lachute and Brownsburg will be selling cookies on Saturday, April 30. Please give them your support when they call at your door. A Jubilee Year Cookie Box has been specially designed to mark the 50th birthday of Canadian Girl Guiding, and April 30 to May 7 is National Cookie Week for Girl Guides all across Canada.

Pedestrian hurt in tree-cutting mishap in town

An unfortunate mishap occurred Monday afternoon on Bethany Street when a pedestrian, a well-known townslady, was struck by a limb from a maple tree and suffered severe shock. The victim was Miss Juliette Rodrigue, who was walking downtown from her home on Sydney Street.

A resident at the Robert and Bethany corner was trimming a large tree outside his property, and quite unexpectedly, Miss Rodrigue heard the limb crashing above her. She stepped or leaned back, endeavoring to ward off the tree with her hands, but caught the impact of a heavy blow on her body.

Dr. Jules Lafleur was summoned immediately from his home nearby, and Miss Rodrigue was taken by Menard ambulance to the Providence Hospital. She was X-rayed and kept in hospital under observation, with bruises and shock. Friends were pleased to learn on Tuesday that she was considerably better.

Chief A. J. Whiteway and Cst. G. Poirier responded to the police call and assisted at the scene of the accident.

Argenteuil Choral Society to present cantata

Shut-in pupil attends school by telephone

A pupil of Mrs. Ethel Smillie (the former Ethel Doig of Lachute) attends school by telephone at Fort Covington, N.Y.

Donna Wallace, 9, has rheumatic fever and is confined to her home — but she is keeping up her schoolwork through the use of an Executone, furnished by the telephone company, which brings the school to her.

Donna is in the fifth grade at Salmon River Central. Her teacher is Mrs. Smillie.

The shut-in child is provided with an electronic intercommunication unit similar to those used in offices but specially engineered for use with telephone lines; Donna speaks through the home unit by pressing a talk switch. Her voice carries over private telephone lines linked to an amplifier and is received by a unit located in Mrs. Smillie's classroom at school.

The homebound child can hear discussions in the classroom between her class teacher and the other students. When called upon to recite or to participate in a discussion, the patient presses a switch and talks as if she were in the classroom.

It is the first time the method has been employed in the vicinity, and is working very well.

Mrs. Smillie will visit her shut-in pupil periodically as a part of the teaching by telephone program. It is not claimed that the method is a substitute for actual attendance in a classroom — but it is helpful.

Fire truck in parade is diverted to nearby blaze

Lachute volunteer firemen were summoned to battle a stubborn blaze at 138 Princess Street at 6.28 Monday evening, and remained on the scene for almost two hours. The building, owned by Laurier Carrière, was occupied by Rolland "Johnny" Mallette.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in the walls, and spread to a portion of the second storey of the wooden structure before it was extinguished.

The police car and one of the fire trucks, driven by Chief Don McCullouch, was in the immediate vicinity of the fire, which was reported to them via the shortwave radio. Both vehicles were leading the parade for the Cancer Blitz Campaign held on Monday evening.

A section of one wall had to be ripped apart to extinguish the flames, dense smoke hampering the work of the firemen.

Women's Institute activities and branch meetings, month of April

Arundel Women's Institute enjoyed colored slides of Scotland. During Education Week prizes were distributed to a pupil in every grade attaining the highest marks for the previous year's work.

Storekeeper victim of robbery attempt at Morin Heights

Amedée Vaillancourt, 73-year-old Morin Heights storekeeper, was treated for a blow on the head received early Sunday morning when he discovered several unidentified men in the living quarters at the rear of the general store.

The incident occurred at 3.30 a.m., when Mr. Vaillancourt was awakened by a moving light. As he reached for an electric light switch, he was struck on the head with a flashlight. He was not knocked unconscious, however, and reported the incident to police.

The men, believed to be three in number, gained entry to the building by the kitchen door. Mr. Vaillancourt was not seriously injured. The case is under investigation by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, of the local Provincial Police detachment.

A guest from C-I-L, Montreal, spoke to the Brownsburg W.I. on "The Power of Advertising". The members are planning to cater for the local graduation banquet.

Dalesville group heard a talk on Africa by their president, Mrs. J. P. Merriweather.

Topic of the Frontier branch meeting was "All-Canadian", from the roll-call of Members of Parliament, to the talk on Madame Vanier and Mrs. Diefenbaker, given by Mrs. A. Graham.

Jerusalem-Bethany branch was given a sewing demonstration by Mrs. G. Todd. The members are planning a card party.

Miss Grace Gardner, former principal of the Montreal High School for Girls, presented a most entertaining talk on Current Literature, to Lachute W.I. Copies of a questionnaire entitled "Eat to Live" were passed out to the members.

Morin Heights heared a talk on Nutrition. Pamplets were given out on "Guide to the Noon-Day Meal".

Mr. Tony Zaplaski, of the C.N.I.B., gave a very informative talk on the proposed Eye Bank. Mrs. Douglas Rodger was presented with her life membership certificate pin.

Upper Lachute-East End branch were given two quilts by members. One is to be forwarded to the Red Cross and the other is to be raffled later in the year.

All branches heard reports of the County board meeting, held in Lachute. The annual convention will be held in Brownsburg High School on May 7, 1960. Most branches reported the selling of W.I. seals.

Choral recital set for Sunday evening

After over two months of rehearsals, the Argenteuil Choral Society is now ready for the presentation of Gaul's cantata, "The Holy City", to be sung in Lachute United Church next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The choir is under the direction of Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, who will preside at the organ.

In the past two years, the choir has been well supported, and it is hoped that a full church will be present to encourage the participants. Considerable expense has been involved in the production, so an offering will be taken to defray these outlays.

The 50-voice choir will be augmented by a junior group in the final number of the cantata, while solos, a trio, double choir and chorus works, together make this presentation, "The Holy City", an interesting composition from the hearer's viewpoint.

District 12 Legion representatives held meeting at Shawbridge, Que.

Canadian Legion District No. 12, comprising branches from Brownsburg, Lachute, Montebello, Morin Heights, Shawbridge, Ste. Agathe, St. Jerome and St. Sauveur, held its regular meeting on Sunday afternoon last at Shawbridge.

Comrade Cliff Awcock, president of Shawbridge Branch 230, welcomed the delegates and visitors after the opening ceremony. He then vacated the chair in favor of District Commander R. O. MacLean. District Secretary Carl Demerse read the minutes of the last meeting, held January 10, 1960, at Ste. Agathe, and new correspondence.

Com. MacLean commented on the passing, since the last meeting, of Com. Henry Elias, of Morin Heights Branch 171, and the fine work he did as District Secretary.

Highlight of the meeting was the formal welcome into District 12 of the Shawbridge branch and St. Jerome Branch 190. District Representative Com. Marcel Lalonde and Com. President Dr. Tremblay, were in attendance from St. Jerome.

In addition to arrangements completed for financing District Council activities, the meeting discussed proposed golf and curling meets and heard excellent reports on the activities of the various branches. From these reports it is evident that at least six of the eight District branches are extremely active, all contributing largely to the welfare of their respective communities. In addition to the many visitors present were Branch Delegates R. R. Summers (Br. 71 Brownsburg); Douglas Kettyle (70, Lachute); E. Kneeland, (171, Morin Heights); Cliff Awcock, (230, Shawbridge); Marc Stein, Q.C., (9, Ste. Agathe); and Marcel Tremblay (190, St. Jerome). Com. District Deputy Commander Hec. Steele assisted. Various branch presidents in attendance included Marc Stein, B. A. Jenkins, Hec. Steele, George Payne, Cliff Awcock and Dr. Tremblay.

A very tasty buffet lunch was served by the ladies from Branch 230, after the business session.

The next regular District meeting is scheduled to be held in the fall at the new Legion building in St. Jerome.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

With the opening of the trout season last week — as could be expected, a number of the boys were out teasing themselves at the one they expected to get, but didn't. I have heard of a couple of ardent anglers who were not disappointed. One of these has been hard at work learning all about fly fishing, and is a sold fly-man now. Out with a couple of others (bait fishermen) he was the only one to land any fish. They were caught on the Black Ghost streamer fished "drift" method. Needless to say this fly is now the only type there is to Clint (Clint MacGill). Anyone wanting information on the only way to fish now, had better see him!

This story bears repeating. The supposed record for muskies is just a shade better than 73 lbs. Naturally this was caught on rod and line. But the one I'm going to tell you about was not caught on any line. As a matter of fact it was stranded during the floods. Found dead, it was weighed just for the fun of it — 99 lbs.; 83 inches, and 17 inches across the head. This sure is some fish. Too bad it hadn't been caught in season on a rod and line, that would have been the come-on for every fisherman in the North American Continent.

With the floods prevailing, the geese have been having a wonderful time of it. Numbers of them have been seen in the fields around us. To date, none have been shot at, so far as I have heard. It sure is nice to see them, and if we are lucky they will be back this fall. The ducks are around in goodly numbers, though some of them have been the target for some shots. As a matter of fact one youngster seen was carrying one on his bike, along with a .22.

Now for the birds. Better put some feed out for them just now. A lot of the natural food has been spoilt and it will take a couple of weeks to catch up on it. One of our feeders is perched on a tree, surrounded by water, suet is still hanging on it, and the numbers of Chicks having a feed this past couple of days, makes it look like winter. There isn't much we can feed the Kingfishers with, and maybe they don't need any at present. Everywhere you look around the river, they can be seen and heard. I mentioned the Morning Doves last week and the numbers of them around. A terrific flock of them has been hanging around between Lachute and St. Hermas, right near the highway. Keep a look out for them if you are driving to Montreal.

Some of the shooters have been taking a toll of the crows in the district. More and more gunmen are finding out that rather than leave the arsenal alone until next fall, a lot of fun can be had with the crows. Not only do they keep their eyes in trim, but they're helping to get rid of a real pest. There isn't much compunction about killing them. There are a few pests other than crows that can be taken care of, for anyone so desiring. A few foxes have been seen around, so why not try them for good targets!

Young driver making name on harness track

Young Duncan MacTavish is showing a lot of promise as a driver at the current Blue Bonnets meeting. The 21-year-old son of veteran reinsman Del MacTavish, of Lachute, drove four winners over the week-end. He made three trips to the winner's circle on Saturday night and posted a fourth victory Sunday — as reported in the metropolitan sport pages.

"On Saturday night, young Duncan MacTavish was a driving standout," reports The Star, "winning all three of the races he entered. MacTavish clicked with Sandy Dares in the third race, Taytoe in the fifth and Kokomo Joe in the ninth.

"Sandy Dares, the highly-regarded three-year-old pacer, won his second straight in a class D event. At the wire, MacTavish had Sandy Dares four lengths ahead of the runner-up, Waydale."

LYNX PROWLING

Waterloo, Que. (CP) — The Yamaska conservation association offered a $3 bounty on lynx after an unusually high number were spotted in the district. Lynx destroyed at least 20 deer in the Mount Orford area.

Banquet and concluding game of church bowling

The final phase of the 1959-60 season of Lachute United Church Bowling League took place Monday evening, when 70-odd persons sat down to the annual banquet, and enjoyed a barbecued chicken dinner. At the head table were Mrs. Wilson Bridge, president and m.c., and her husband, the Rev. Mr. Bridge, the Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Lang, the Rev. and Mrs. Jas. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. W. Shearsmith, president of St. Simeon's group, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gordon, president of the Presbyterian league. Upon invitation of Mrs. Bridge, the gentlemen expressed their pleasure at being present.

Summing up the activities of the season, Mrs. Bridge expressed her own appreciation, as well as that of members of the United Church League, to various persons who had helped to make the season a good one, and spoke of the fine fellowship evident in the society.

After the dinner, a large number of those present stayed to witness the final game between the All-Stars and the East Settlement teams. Mrs. Milton McFaul skipped the All-Stars, and her team included Stan Boyd, Mrs. W. Zimmer, Mrs. K. Boa (subbing for Lebert Hume), while Herb Gordon, John Douglas (subbing for Mrs. W. Wilson) and Linda McFaul were on the East Settlement team.

The latter team went ahead 4-0 in the first four ends, and had a commanding lead of 6-1 at the end of the sixth. In the next four ends, the All-Strs lived up to their name and tied the score 7-7 with a three-ender in the last end. An extra end was necessary, and the final score was 8-7 for Mrs. McFaul's team.

Mrs. Bridge congratulated the teams and presented the prizes. The league leaders, the Redwings, skipped by Grace Rosser, along with Mr. and Mrs. K. Boa and Simon Wilson, also received prizes.

Cairns places third in provincial senior gymnastics championships

The 1960 Provincial Men's Open Gymnastics Championships were held last Saturday at Lachute High School.

Some 50 gymnasts from Ontario and Quebec competed in the three different championship classes — the Novice class for boys under 16, the Junior for men under 20 years, and the Senior class.

Very good exhibitions were given, and Ronnie Cairns, of the Lachute High School entrants, should especially be commended. This young gymnast, still only of Junior age, together with Reg Stansfield, also of Junior age, participated as a team in the Senior division. Ron Cairns won the Pommel Horse championship and came second in the Long Horse. He also placed third in the all-round standing and in general, turned in a very good performance.

Reg Stansfield was somewhat nervous, and never came close to his usual high standard. However, he never gave up, and placed a creditable fourth in the all-round aggregate.

The results of this championship meet were as follows:

Novice — First All-Round, S. Rowell, Lachine.

Novice — Team Champions, Lachine Gymnastics Club.

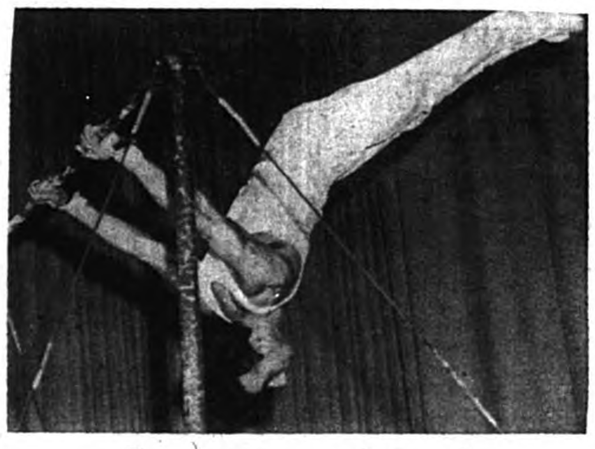

Junior — All-Round champion, E. Smith, Verdun.

Junior — Team champions, Quebec City.

Senior — All-Round champion, R. Dion, Quebec City.

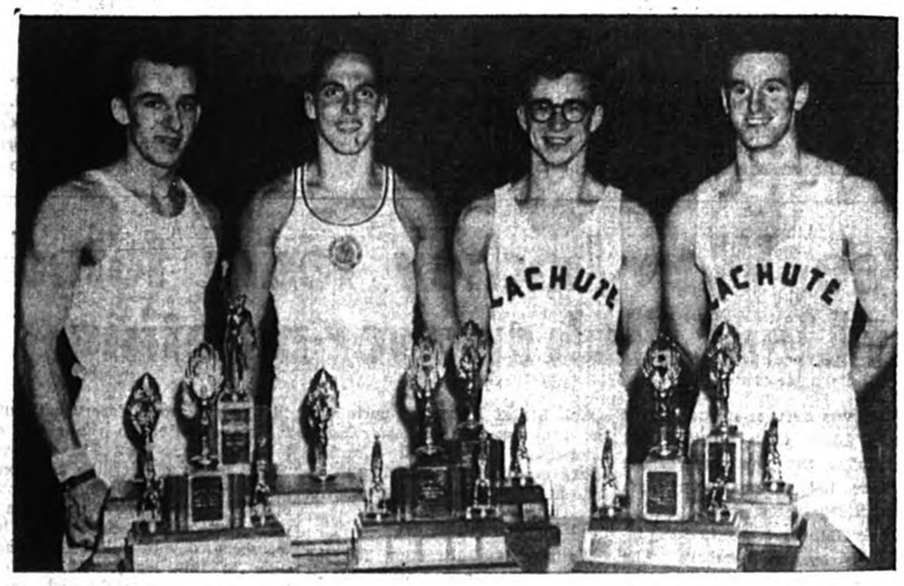

Senior — Team champions, Y.M.C.A., Montreal.

The boys from Lachute are now working hard for the Central Canadian Championships, to be held in Montreal, and for the Dominion Championships, at Toronto. However, their chances of going to Toronto do not look too bright right now, as the meet at Lachute was not a great financial succes, and it was hoped to raise money from this event to send the boys to Toronto. This is specially unfortunate, since this is the last year the two boys will be representing Lachute.

Plethora of national "weeks"

IT SEEMS that almost anyone can sponsor a new "week" for some cause or other. There is no restraint, restriction or monopoly on this practice. All one needs is a humanitarian idea or, more often, a commercial motive, a typewriter, a multigraph, a few reams of duplicating paper and — let's go. Bombard the newspapers! They are the easiest suckers to approach (if not always the most gullible), and let "free publicity" do the rest.

Mind you, we are not opposed — in fact, we heartily commend some of the motives for these "weeks". Many are charitable, altruistic and thoroughly deserving. Others are so obviously sales-promotional and commercial that they discredit human intelligence.

The fact is, we are fed up with this plethora of "weeks", and want no more of them foisted on our editorial endurance. Just in the past few days, three new "national weeks" have been brought to our attention in the overburdened mail (new to us, at least). Only one of these is humanitarian and without commercial interest; but the super-abundance of "weeks" has crowded-out the merit of its appeal. In truth, there are only 52 weeks in the year, and most of these have been already "nationalized", with several of them duplicated and overlapping.

We now crave a week to end all "weeks", and to get back to the old, unregimented Gregorian calendar, with religious and statutory holidays as sole digression from the necessary facts. Meanwhile, we'll go on supporting the old established "weeks" now worthy of public support, but will accord no sympathy to new ones clamoring to complicate our already-complex timetable.

Community Concerts bring benefits

A WORD ON Community Concert organization is timely — since the campaign for local membership will be promoted by the executive of the local Association, just two weeks hence.

Community Concerts provides a plan that is the result of 30 years of experiment and development. The plan starts with the local organization, goes through the membership campaign, and is completed with the proper selection and presentation of the concerts.

Community Concerts, Inc., makes the proper organization possible, to begin with, with professional assistance in which all local groups may have complete confidence. The parent organization then guides the local association through a membership campaign in which all strong appeals to the public in behalf of good music are competently utilized.

Community Concerts than makes available to the local association the most comprehensive roster of the world's artists, orchestras and ensembles that has ever been known. This is only possible in a large organization that can arrange for these world-famous attractions to tour the whole country economically.

Thus, from the original organization to the final concert, Community Concerts, Inc., provides the most efficient service to music lovers that a quarter century of experience has been able to devlop . . . And the benefits of this vast experience accrue to such communities as Lachute, where renowned musicians and singers have been heard in person, for an admission fee that is surprisingly inexpensive.

We have no hesitation in urging, once again, the widest local support to Community Concerts membership campaign next month.

The follow-through

THIS IS A GOOD TIME of year for young Canadians, who in their thousands will be graduating from high school and university, to take a look at what they need to do if they are to follow through to success and happiness in life — says the Royal Bank of Canada bulletin this month.

Merely to step upon the stage does not make a great actor or actress. To be given a chair at a desk does not make an expert business man. To be given a place at a factory bench does not make a skilful mechanic. A person may have had an impressive array of "Excellent" grades on his compositions in school, but when he sits down to write his first business letter he is still a novice. He may have majored in bricklaying at a technical school, but he still must serve his apprenticeship.

This introduces the follow-through. Graduation symbolizes the end of preparation: now is the time for energetic doing, if one is to make life worth living. The machinery of theory and the stock of knowledge gained hitherto must terminate in the cutting-edge of direct action.

How does one go about the business of reaching the desired objective? There are five things to do: fix your purpose, make sure that it is the right one for you, search out the ways by which you may reach it, study the details about those ways, and — get busy!

Canadian materials first

ARE ALL Canadian architects loyal to Canada? asks the Fort Erie Letter-Review. This question arises from an article recently appearing in the Oshawa "Times". It was reported at the Oshawa Trades and Labor Council that brick used in an Oshawa collegiate building was all imported because the architect decided that it was of a more original appearance than anything that at that time could be procured from a Canadian brickyard.

It was admitted that the imported brick cost more money than the domestic brick would have cost. It also is a well-known fact that architects' fees are based on the total expenditure on a project.

The Oshawa incident is not by any means an isolated one. Canadians endeavoring to promote the use of Canadian materials where available, feasible and reasonable in price are continually having difficulty with architects who promote aestheticism on a commission — concludes the Letter-Review.

Two sides to history

HAS THE writing of Canadian history been too one-sided?

Perhaps much Canadian history will have to be rewritten to give the other side of battles and wars.

In the past, French-speaking Canadians have complained that in English textbooks in Canada the stories of the battle of Quebec have not given enough attention to the French side. They have pointed out that, after all, the descendants of the defeated French of 1759 are also Canadians.

So strong was this feeling last year that it caused a split among members of the St. Jean Baptiste Society when the celebration took place of the 200th anniversary of the battle of the Plains of Abraham, when the English under Wolfe defeated the French led by Montcalm.

One of the speakers was Gabriel Pelletier, who resigned as president of the Quebec section of the society when it decided not to participate in the ceremony. Critics said it would not be proper for French-speaking Canadians to celebrate a defeat.

Now the Indians are speaking up! The post office department announced recently that a five-cent commemorative stamp will be issued May 19 to mark the 300th anniversary of the Battle of Long Sault, in which Dollard des Ormeaux and his party of 16 other French and 44 Indians were wiped out after a long siege by 300 Onondaga Indians.

Commenting on the stamp issue, William Smith, assistant secretary of the hereditary council of chiefs of the Six Nations Indians, said at Brantford that the stamp showed Dollard in a "noble light."

Said Mr. Smith: "I wonder if the government now would put out a stamp with a picture of a noble Indian on it, inasmuch as the 300 Indians who attacked Dollard were only protecting their trapping grounds?" He agreed that Dollard put up a heroic fight. "No doubt about that, but he was cornered and had to fight . . ."

In Quebec this may sound like rank sacrilege; but the two incidents suggest that historical records have not always thrown the light of impartiality on epics of our past.

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, April 10, 1885 —

Mr. Gall, of the firm of Meikle & Gall, who formerly was agent for the Grand Trunk here, has now been appointed agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway including Chicago and all points West.

Mr. Palliser has been highly complimented for the literary and legal make-up of Lachute's new incorporation bill, which has now passed second reading. The bill is being adopted as a model document for town incorporations by the Legislature.

On April 2 a great snow storm started, continuing for four days. Roads in many places were impassable, and trains were blocked by snow 8 to 12 feet in the gullies. Several houses were enveloped in the Morin Flats district.

There is a rush for houses in the West End. Not half of the people who are house hunting can find places to live in.

Lachute Mills have been exceptionally busy. Fish & Ireland have been grinding 100 bushels of grain a day for making foods, while the Grist Mill is handling about 1,000 bushels a day.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, April 8, 1910 —

We are pleased to note that in the cheese contest for this province, Mr. Peter Garland of Calumet (a former Lachute Academy student) was awarded the medal and diploma.

Mr. Perley, M.P., has exacted a promise from the responsible authorities for the opening of our new post-office.

Several granite cutters from the Old Country have recently joined the Laurentian Granite Company at Brownsburg.

Mr. John Neill, who met with a distressing accident at Lachute Station last December in which both his legs were taken off below the knee, has now returned home to Louisa.

The following will be Lachute Academy's teaching staff next year, on decision of the School Commissioners this week — Principal Chas. McBurney, Mr. Hogg, the Misses Plaisted, Wilson, Banford, McIntyre, Forbes and Patton.

The Dominion Government has voted $50,000 for the proposed Hawkesbury-Grenville bridge.

An old landmark is being demolished, in the former Ayers home near the Mills offices. The residence of Mr. and Mrs Thomas Ayers, this house was the birthplace of the Ayers brothers, Messrs. Harry, Ernest, and the late John T. Ayers.

The Rev. W. B. Rosborough was special preacher at the Mount Royal United Church for its 48th anniversary. In the pastor's absence, the United Church service here was conducted by the Rev. Robt. Strange.

Mr. John Mason, dealer, accompanied by Mr. Legault, was in Oshawa this week attending to a consignment of new Chevrolet cars.

William Powell and Myrna Loy, stars of "The Thin Man", appear together in "Evelyn Prentice" at the Rex Theatre this week.

Building Communism

— By Lewis Milligan —

We were well aware that universities in Moscow were thrown open free to students from the Western World, and that the education consisted mainly of brainwashing; the elimination of religious and political ideas that were opposed to communism. Leading communists in Canada, including Mr. Tim Buck, were all brainwashed in Moscow and trained in the maggoty arts of subversion. But some of us were not aware that this free education was extended to students in the Eastern World.

This news was brought to me by Mr. Larry Henderson, former CBC television news-caster, in an interesting article appearing in the Star Weekly of Toronto. Mr. Henderson recently returned from a tour of the Soviet Union and he tells of what he saw in that "Land of Mystery". From his description of conditions in some quarters it would be more correctly called a Land of Misery. But I was particularly interested in his description of the University of Central Asia in Tashkent, the capital of one of the eastern Soviet republics. "At this University," he says, "I saw the process of educating for communism in action. A musty, old, yellow-brick building of czarist times (apart from a few show places, it is remarkable how much of the day-to-day life of the country is carried on in the decaying survivals of the 'capitalist' era) the university accommodates over 4,000 students. They come not only from Central Asia but from 13 different countries: China, Korea, Viet Nam, Indonesia, Burma, Iraq and others."

Mingling with these vari-colored students, Mr. Henderson says he was "impressed by their serious, unsmiling look". They all receive their education, books and lodging free, plus a salary in conformity with their marks. All of them study Marxism-Leninism, which is obligatory. "These," says Mr. Henderson, "are the young people who are going out into the world to 'build communism', as they say — and not only inside the Soviet bloc, but outside in all the underdeveloped countries".

In an interview with the lady-manager of one of the factories, who had taken the course of Marxism-Leninism, Mr. Henderson asked her what use it was in her work, and she explained that it helped her to give more workers leadership in "right thinking". An example of this kind of thinking was given by a young Soviet leader when he told Mr. Henderson that both his father and grandfather had been slaves and sold in the market for 180 roubles. "And that is why we hate capitalism", he added.

"This appalling simplification explains much of the Soviet success in Asia," says Mr. Henderson. "By associating capitalism with the feudal past and by representing communism as the only possible liberating force, the Soviets have undoubtedly been able to enlist the support of great numbers of people in this area".

It was Hitler who said, "The bigger the lie, the better." And he got away with it for a little while. But murder of the truth will out, and Larry Henderson has helped to bring it into the daylight. It is an historical fact that capitalism abolished feudalism in Britain. The emancipation started in the Elizabethan era with overseas exploration, which was undertaken by private enterprise. Frobisher's expedition to Canada was financed by a private company, which issued shares for the development of what was believed to be a gold mine, but which turned out to be a deposit of iron pyrites—"fool's gold." Frobisher put his wife's money into the prospect; but it proved a profitable speculation in the subsequent discovery and development of the vast resources of the Dominion of Canada. That is right thinking.

HONORED CHIEF

Cowansville, Que. (CP) — Police Chief Leo Deragon was honored by the Quebec Safety League for saving the lives of three young students in the path of a car. He ran out into the street and was struck by the vehicle himself.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

TAX TIME

Unless you failed to earn anything this year, you will have been puzzled by the income tax forms. The harder you worked the more you'll pay. I feel sorry for you, so here are some words of cheer.

First — you must know that this income tax thing is only temporary. When income tax was first introduced, the politicians promised it would only be a temporary thing. Doesn't that make you feel better?

Second — the tax you send in after filling out your income tax form is only the beginning. There are thousands of other taxes. You pay them almost every time you spend a dime. Some price tags have tucked into them as many as 100 taxes on a single item! You don't know they're there, so it doesn't pain you quite so much. Just imagine how you'd feel if you had to fill out a form and could see just how much it was costing you to run the country.

Third — if you work for an employer, he has probably taken your tax out of your pay cheque already, and you might even have a rebate coming to you. You'd better be thankful he didn't have to send your whole cheque in to Ottawa. The way things are going, with taxes getting bigger all the time and governments spending money as if it grew on trees, the day may come when your whole darn weekly cheque goes straight to the tax collector!

Fourth — maybe you don't make much money. You can gloat over how much the other guy is paying — some of them as high as 90% I think. So see how lucky we clods are?

Fifth — it is all done for your own good. The politicians figure they can spend your money for you much better than you can spend it yourself. For example, would you personally pay thousands of dollars so that General Motors can have a one-hour dramatic TV show every week on CBC? You are probably far too dumb to do that — so the government does it for you. See the value of income taxes now?

I hope that makes you feel better.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of Encyclopedia Canadiana

Which City has the largest Police Force?

Montreal, Canada's largest city, also has the largest municipal police force in the country. Its force numbers about 2,400. Toronto is in second place with some 1,500 on its force. Other cities with more than 200 members on their police forces include Vancouver, Winnipeg, Hamilton, Ottawa, Quebec, Edmonton, Windsor and Calgary. There are approximately 12,000 men and women on municipal police forces in Canada. In addition to municipal forces, Canada has a federal body, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and two provincial police organizations, one in Ontario and the other in Quebec.

What is Popularly known as Balm of Gilead?

The balsam poplar, P. balsamifera L., a medium-sized tree usually 50 to 60 feet in height, is popularly known as balm of Gilead. In some river valleys northwest of the prairies this tree reaches 100 feet in height. Its range is very wide and it can be found growing in most areas of Canada south of the treeline, except on the coast of British Columbia. The buds of the balsam poplar are large and reddish-brown with scented resin. Its leaves are oval to heart-shaped and are pale below with rusty patches. Like the trembling aspen, another member of the poplar family, it is valuable for lumber and firewood.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

The government is always wrong. When it jumps at the taxpayers like a big tousled dog, anxious to please, someone kicks it in the jaw and someone else steps on its feet.

Early this year the government promised a change in the law that would allow old-age pensioners to stay aboard as long as they wished without losing their pensions. (They haven't done it yet, but they promised.)

Most of the people who had clamored for this measure remained silent, while opponents began a chorus of ill-tempered grumbling.

Then it was the vote for Indians. Did the Indians thank the government? From some of the comments you might have thought that the government had offered them typhoid.

Of course, the Indians were scarcely to be blamed for this response. Many of the white man's previous gifts turned out to be loaded. It was natural that the Indians held this one up to the ear to find out whether it ticked, and then dunked it in the pond to be double-certain.

But I think the time has come for someone to pat the government on its shaggy head and give it a word of praise for meaning well about those things.

Letting pensioners go abroad and stay with relatives, and granting the unconditional vote to Indians, are good and kindly actions.

Furthermore, they aren't likely to grow a harvest of Tory votes. The pensioners who go to Britain or the United States to stay with sons, daughters, brothers or sisters won't be voting here. And so many Indians are hostile about the vote, fearing to lose their rights, that the government has probably gained little political strength from that measure.

Personally, I feel that the government might have been wise to attach a plebiscite clause to the Indian vote, allowing tribes to refuse the vote en bloc if they had strong feelings about it.

In the long run, though, the granting of the vote with no sly restrictions attached should increase feelings of brotherhood between Indian and non-Indian.

Good for the government. In this case they did right, even though they didn't have to.

Here's another field where they could show generosity: Immigration. Every now and then some poor soul makes headlines when he is bounced from the country and has the door slammed in his face.

The government usually has good reasons for its actions. However, it doesn't confide the reasons to the deportee, who leaves Canada with a feeling of injustice.

This is not peculiar to Canada. Other countries treat immigrants far more harshly than we do. However, we are supposed to be among the enlightened countries.

Perhaps we could set an example to the world by creating an immigration court where people could get a hearing before a judge — either in public or private — and an "accused" immigrant could be confronted with specific charges made by real people.

Entering a country is a privilege, not a right. Even on that basis, however, it would be fair to notify an immigrant of the reasons why we don't want him — and give him an opportunity to answer back.

E. Hibbard, banker, was well-known in community

The death of Mr. Eric Hibbard, former Bank of Montreal manager, occurred April 19 at his home, 643 Main Street, following a long illness.

Born in Ottawa, Mr. Hibbard was educated in Berthierville, Cowansville, and Fredericton. He began his banking career in 1916 in Cowansville, subsequently gaining considerable experience in B. of M. branches throughout the Eastern Townships, including Bedford, Richmond and Sherbrooke. He was appointed manager of the B. of M.'s Grand'Mere branch in 1941, which position he held until his transfer here 15 years ago.

Until his retirement in 1949, Mr. Hibbard took a keen inteerest in community affairs. He acted as chairman of the Salvation Army appeals, was a member of the Golf and Country Club, the Lions Club, the Chamber of Commerce, and was honorary treasurer of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society.

The funeral service was held at St. Simeon's Anglican Church on Thursday, April 21, the Rev. C. R. Lang officiating.

The pall-bearers were — Mac Walker, Dr. Willis Hooper, Dave Schwartz, Bert Mitchell, Arnold Scott, and Willard M. Steeves.

A committal service was held at the Mount Royal Crematorium.

Mr. Hibbard is survived by his wife, the former Cathleen Sheltus, a son, Dale, a grandson, Dean; two sisters, Miss Mabel Hibbard, of Lachute, and Mrs. Frank (Marjorie) Dana, of Rochester, N.Y., two brothers, Frank, of Ottawa, and Ashley, of Montreal.

An elder son, Arnold, was killed on active service in 1944.

Mr. Hibbard will be sorely missed by his many friends. Sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved relatives.

APPRECIATION

I wish to thank all my kind friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness to me, in sending cards, flowers and gifts to me, both while in the hospital and at home.
1c —Mrs. John Kettyle

"Death of a Bank Manager"

(Anonymous)

"A man must do something . . .
This is the proclamation of dreams . . .
The road must close before the horizon of hell . . .
The river must cease before the dam of damnation . . .
The sky must bow before the scourge of the sun."
— Last Chapter, "Inevitabilis."

A man took the ride, took the cruise, and made the flight . .
And then one day he tripped on a town and fell on the steps of a building . .
The man decided to do something . .
The door was hard to open . .
(Happy days when a bank has a revolving door, he thought.)
His collateral was the look in his eyes . .
His security was a belief in himself . .
On the way out, the door was easier to open . .
Suddenly the road was tutored by trees,
The river was wooed by waves,
And the air was confirmed by colors . .
And the man remained in the town
For many, many years . .
One day the man was heard to say,
"He was a good man . .
He made the road turn into my heart . .
He made the river flood into my flow . .
He made the air breathe my breath . .
His occupation? A banker who was sometimes a manager.
His profession? A person who was always human."

'A man must do something . . .
The distance of dreams is life . . .
The home of truth is love . . .'
— First Chapter, "Inevitabilis."

Gala performance three-act comedy by Frontier W.I.

Those who attended the play, "Here Comes Charlie," presented at the Lachute High School on Friday evening last, thoroughly enjoyed the entire presentation.

This performance, sponsored by Frontier W.I., was arranged as its contribution to the County W.I. project, namely, the "Home for Senior Citizens."

Five of the branch members played the roles of the female characters, namely Mrs. Doris Heatlie, Mrs. Sybil Plummer, Mrs. Dorothy Bailey, Mrs. Doreen Holmes and Mrs. Ivy Dewar. The male parts were taken by five enthusiastic volunteers, Messrs. Roy Dobbie, Ernest Morrison, Nelson Tomalty, James Coney and John Heatlie, Jr. A great deal of credit goes to these people, who gave many hours of their time during the past months to prepare such a well performed play. The players and the entire Frontier W.I. are extremely grateful to Capt. Ernest Johnson, the director. Mr. Johnson, who is over 80 years young, very generously gave of his time, energy and talent to make the play possible. A tremendous amount of work was required to present such an excellent dramatic entertainment, and without a capable director, this could not have been accomplished.

During intermission Capt. Johnson, in his usual jovial manner, rendered a couple of vocal numbers, which were heartily applauded. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hopkins.

Mr. C. Meservy also contributed to the evening's entertainment with a monologue, which was also keenly appreciated.

Several door prizes were drawn for between the acts. These articles had been kindly donated by the following merchants — Esquire Shop, Jos. Malaket & Sons, John McFaul & Son Ltd., Yvon Cadieux, Bedard Ltée. The flowers were donated by A. Paulsen, florist, and the furniture loaned by J. Roger Lamarche. The programs were printed through the courtesy of Riverside Diner.

Following the performance, flowers were presented to Mr. Johnson for his wife, who was unable to attend, and to Mrs. Alvin Heatlie, who had so generously given the use of her house for rehearsals.

In closing, the president, Mrs. M. Wilson, thanked all those who had contributed in any way to the success of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Jones feted by friends on 25th anniversary

A surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Jones on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary, was held last Saturday evening at the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

Over 150 relatives and friends sat down to a tasty meal (prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion Branch) on arrival of the guest couple, who were completely taken by surprise.

Master of ceremonies was Gerry Dunbar, of Montreal, who in paying tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Jones, interminglied his address with numerous witty stories, to the delight of his audience.

As a token of the high esteem in which this couple are held, they were presented with a dainty silver tea service.

Mr. Jones, in thanking the gathering for this happy gesture and their beautiful gift, expressed his pleasure at the many friendships both he and his wife enjoyed, and passed some valuable suggestions to both young and old on "How to be happily married," as he and his partner were. Kindly reference was made to their two daughters, Heather and Lynda, and young son, Randy, to members of the family on both sides, and to relatives and friends.

Numerous acquaintances were unable to attend, but Mr. and Mrs. E. Fisher, of Shawinigan Falls, Mr. and Mrs. King, of Pointe Claire, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Walsh and Miss Susan of Dorval, Mr. and Mrs. G. Drysdale, of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Acott, of Montreal, Mrs. Fogherty (the former Margaret Jones) of Galt, Ont., and a number of summer residents of Half-Moon Lake were among those present.

Dancing and renewing of friendships was enjoyed during the evening, and appreciation was expressed to those who had sponsored and arranged the party so successfully.

(Intended for last issue)

Morin Heights — At Trinity Church the Good Friday service brought many worshippers to join in the "Meditations on the Cross", conducted by the rector. On Holy Saturday over 100 children participated in the Children's Service, taken by Capt. Joan Perry of the Salvation Army, Montreal.

Easter Day, the church was decorated with many floral memorials, and special music was under the direction of the organist, Mr. Carl Elder. Guest soloist was Mr. H. T. Davies, who sang "Alleluia" and a Welsh melody (in Welsh), "In Heavenly Love Abiding."

Church of Saint Francis

Hundreds of Laurentian visitors crowded the Church of Saint Francis for the two Easter services, despite unfavorable weather. Banked behind the altar was a huge pine cross, imbedded with lilies, with potted lilies forming a triangle on the sanctuary wall. Colorful spring flowers decorated the rest of the log building.

Easter breakfast was served throughout the morning in the church hall.

Christening

At Trinity Church on Easter Sunday the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Maurice Martin, of St. Margaret's, Que., received the names Catherine Laura. Godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald White, and Mrs. N. Brumby. A reception was held afterwards, at the home of the parents.

Impressions from delegate at Jehovah Witnesses' circuit convention

Among delegates who attended the three-day circuit convention of Jehovah's Witnesses held in Montreal over the week-end were Mr. Bryce Miller and family.

Mr. Miller, who is the presiding minister of the local congregation, reported, "The baptism service highlighted the Saturday program, when eight candidates were immersed, symbolizing their wholehearted dedication to God and their sincere desire to 'seek peace and pursue it'."

"Amazing to those attending for the first time was our cafeteria arrangement. This method was used on a much larger scale at our 1958 international assembly in New York City, when 1,000 meals a minute were served to the 253,922 delegates attending from 127 nations."

"The District Supervisor, Mr. Laurier Saumur, pointed out to the crowd of 673 that improper education will cost the world its life at the battle of Armageddon."

"It is not the failure of their schools to produce scientists and engineers in sufficient numbers that is the threat to their lasting security. It is their failure to teach men to fear God that will bring their downfall."

"However," Mr. Miller continued, "the speaker struck a note of optimism, pointing out that because men have failed to find the way to lasting peace does not mean that it is impossible to find a remedy that will provide permanent peace."

"Mr. Saumur concluded his talk by assuring the audience that 'just as sure as tomorrow's sunrise, the Kingdom of God will establish peace on earth, in our generation'."

"Stimulated by the refreshing three-day program, our congregation is eagerly looking forward to sharing this vital information with the people of our community," said Mr. Miller.

APPRECIATION

I would like to thank all my friends, neighbors and the Upper Lachute W.I., for cards, flowers and gifts sent to me during my three-month stay in Montreal General Hospital.

2 Queen's Scouts from Brownsburg invested at Quebec

By Sandy Welburn

Brownsburg — On Saturday, April 23, Gary Helmer and Ralph Atkins, of the 1st Brownsburg Scout Troop, went to Quebec City to attend the Queen's Scout investiture. The boys were awarded their certificates in the Legislative Council Chamber by the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, the Hon. Onésime Gagnon. There were altogether 114 Queen's Scouts attending the ceremony.

The Brownsburg Scout paper drive proved very successful and quite a substantial amount of paper was collected. The boys wish to express their gratitude to the people of Brownsburg for donating the paper, and also to C-I-L, Boyd's Express, and Canadian Safety Fuse, for supplying the trucks and drivers for the occasion.

To collect for rebuilding of Recreation Centre

To promote funds for the early re-building of the west-end Recreation Centre, destroyed by fire last December, members of the J.O.C. (Jeunesse Ouvrière Catholique) in Lachute, are making a door-to-door appeal next Monday evening, to receive donations from the citizenry.

These collectors have been authorized to seek assistance on behalf of the proprietor in his determination to rebuild. The canvassers will be identified by armbands, and will carry receptacles in which householders may deposit their contributions.

Annual meeting of Art Assocn. Saturday, May 7

The Argenteuil Art Association is preparing for another active year. The notices for an annual meeting are being sent out to all those known to have been interested in the past, and new members are being sought who have an interest either as artists in any medium, as exhibitors or as beginners who desire coaching.

Arrangements are being made for the annual meeting to be held in the St. Andrews Town Hall, at 3 p.m. on Saturday, May 7. Reports of the president and secretary will review the past year. The main item on the agenda, however, is the election of officers who will lead in the program during 1960. Miss L. Wales, as chairman of the Nominating Committee appointed at the last meeting of the 1959 season, will submit the list of nominations for the various officers and committees, which will be open to further nominations from any member present. Changes occur in every organization with re-location of members, and efforts are being made to bring into the membership any person interested in this delightful hobby.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

MAKE USE OF CLOCK IN CHILD'S TRAINING

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Use a clock in your child's training to fit him for modern life. Primitive people have little sense of time, but in civilized society this is imperative. It is acquired gradually. Clocks placed in different rooms in the house, and a child's own clock or watch as a gift on a special occasion, are useful.

The habit of punctuality helps a child to live efficiently and happily. The person who is always late, is most provoking. Shakespeare once said, "The clock upbraids me with the waste of time." However we use our own time, we have no right to waste other people's by keeping them waiting on account of our tardiness!

"The clock does not strike for the happy," the German writer Schiller once observed. There is an old saying from the Latin, "The happier the time, the more quickly it passes." It does us good to look back on our own childhood and recall our happy hours of play. We can remember how we were always amazed how swiftly the minutes passed on school days between four o'clock and the instant our mother called "Come, and get ready for supper!"

A small child lives in the present. He has little memory of the past or concern for the future. But he is intensely aware of "the lovely now." Because he becomes so engrossed in his play, he hates to be interrupted. His dawdling, when called, often irritates his mother. But a gentle warning, "In five minutes, I'll call you to come in the house and get ready for dinner," helps to prepare him to leave the activity which is such fun.

How eager children are to learn new things and be "like grown-ups!" Long before they can tell time by the clock's hands at any position they can recognize that the two hands together at twelve noon means, "Dinner Time" and that the little hand at seven and the big hand straight up means, "Bed Time."

The clock, because it fascinates a child and because its directions are impersonal, is a real help in getting the child's co-operation in fitting into a schedule. When he is at the negative, "No! No!" stage he may resist a direct command, "Come to bed now!" But, spurred by curiosity, he may run eagerly to find out, "What does the clock say about the minutes left before bed time?"

Many children and adults suffer from continual fatigue. The habit of observing a rest period after the noon meal is invaluable. An alarm clock, set beside the child's bed at eleven o'clock, so that he knows that when the hands are together at twelve he can get up and play, dispenses with his calling out, "It my rest hour over?"

A busy mother needs this time when she is free from the supervision of her child's active play. If she will discipline herself to fit a period of complete relaxation for herself this will be very worth while. Grown-ups get not only physically, but nervously exhausted, too! Fatigue usually spells irritability and time wasted on friction.

In a home run on schedule, which is flexible when necessary, a child sees his parents planning the wise use of time. The French have a saying "All the treasures of the earth cannot bring back one lost moment," and there is a Greek proverb, "The procrastinating man is ever struggling with ruin." Parents help equip their child for life as they impress on them that time is precious and that "by and by" may never come.

A tasty team for Spring

Eggs and Lobster come out of their shy shells to combine in this handsome soufflé which is flavor-rich, light as a feather, and delicately browned. —Department of Fisheries of Canada photo.

The scarlet lobster is a delicacy which all too often is reserved for special occasions. True it is a luxury food. However, if placed on the menu occasionally, it will make the family feel important. Moreover it need not stretch the budget. Combined with the frugal egg, now in good supply, it makes a variety of moderately priced luncheon or supper dishes. Here are a few suggestions.

One cup of cooked or canned lobster, prepared in a soufflé, can be counted on to serve four. With the help of a trustworthy recipe, such as the following one supplied by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries, you can make a puff-perfect one which comes from the oven almost doubled in size, its golden crust quivering over a soft, richly-flavored interior.

Lobster Soufflé

1 can (5 ounces) lobster (or 1 cup cooked lobster meat), 3 tablespoons butter (melted), 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 3 eggs (separated), 1 tablespoon snipped parsley, 1 tablespoon sherry or lemon juice.

Drain canned lobster. Break lobster meat into bite-sized chunks, removing the cartilage from the meat of the claws. Melt butter; blend in flour and salt. Add milk gradually and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Remove sauce. Add lobster, parsley, and sherry or lemon juice. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold sauce into egg whites until all patches of white disappear. Turn mixture into an ungreased 1 or 1½-quart baking dish and set dish in a shallow pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 45 minutes, or until set, puffed, and lightly browned. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Some Sunday for brunch try a Lobster Scramble served on toast points. It's colorful, delicious, and different.

Lobster Scramble

1 can (5 ounces) lobster (or 1 cup cooked lobster), 2 tablespoons butter, 6 eggs, ¼ cup milk or cream, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, toast points, parsley.

Drain canned lobster. Break lobster into chunks, removing any cartilage in claw meat. Melt butter in skillet and heat lobster in it. Mix eggs, milk and seasonings; add to heated lobster. Cook slowly, lifting from sides as mixture thickens to allow thin, uncooked part to flow to bottom. Avoid constant stirring. Cook until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist. This will take 5 to 8 minutes. Serve on toast points garnished with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Another quick and easy lobster dish, but one which calls for a little more dexterity of the wrist than Lobster Scramble, is this French omelet with a flavorful lobster filling.

Lobster Omelet

1 can (2½ ounces) lobster, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon butter (melted), 1 tablespoon butter (additional), 3 eggs, 1 tablespoon cold water, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper.

Drain lobster and break into bite-sized chunks, removing any cartilage in meat of claws. Sprinkle lobster with lemon juice. Sauté in 1 tablespoon of butter until well heated. Set aside to keep warm.

Heat additional tablespoon of butter in a skillet (approx. 8 inches in diameter) until it will sizzle a drop of water. Mix eggs, water, and seasonings; pour into pan. Stirr lightly with a fork. As mixture thickens, lift edges and tilt pan so uncooked portions flow to bottom. Shake pan occasionally to keep omelet from sticking. When eggs are set and surface still moist, increase heat to delicately brown the bottom. Spread one-half of omelet with lobster and fold other half over it. Slip onto heated serving plate. Serve immediately. Makes 2 servings.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Plan your vacation trip now — and it will be easier, more fun and less expensive.

Maybe you are puzzled about the kind of vacation you want — or where you want it. Read newspaper and magazine travel sections. Clip out the information you need. Send for the brochures advertised. Check your public library or local book store for publications on "where to go".

Would you like to try boating, fishing or camping? Visit a sportsman's show for ideas and free folders about where to go, what to take, and how much it will cost.

Need help in planning your route? Automobile clubs and some of the oil companies are glad to help. And don't forget your travel agent. You don't have to be going to Europe or South America to seek his advice.

Is the family divided on vacation goals? Have a conference. Chances are you can work out a compromise — a trip with something to please everybody. If you choose a spot near home, take off one week-end to "scout" the area. This can save precious time later on.

And finally, make sure right now that your car has come through the winter O.K. and is in topnotch condition for vacation motoring. Your service station can give you the go-ahead.

Assorted Canapes
Choice of:
Aperitifs or Tomato Juice
Tournedos on Sauteed Bread
Parisian Potato Balls
White Asparagus Tips
Lorette Salad
Strawberry Shortcake
Coffee Tea Milk
Measurements are level; recipes for 6

Tournedos: These smallest of steaks are cut from the narrow part of beef tenderloin. They should be sliced 1" thick and neatly trimmed to an approximate round shape. Two tournedos are served to a portion.

Panfry in butter, allowing 8 min. for medium well-done. Season with 1 tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper to a pound.

Garnish with small slices of liver pate, broiled "carved" mushrooms or drained small canned artichoke bottoms heated in butter and centred with a cut-out of canned red pimiento.

Place each tournedos on a round of butter-sauteed decrusted white bread cut a scant ½" thick.

Note: Small steaks, tenderized if necessary and cut symmetrically, are a good facsimile for home service prepared the same way.

Lorette Salad: Arrange stalks of crisp washed Belgian endive and wedges of peeled, seeded, fresh tomato in leaves of Romaine.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Mrs. Harry Roberts, wife of a doctor at St. John's, has been named queen of Newfoundland cooks.

She had never entered a baking contest before, but Mrs. Roberts entered — and won — a province-wide contest with her recipe for Perfect Pound Cake.

The five finalists were also required to bake a mystery recipe, chosen by the judges. It happened to be bread, and despite the fact she had never made it before, Mrs. Roberts turned out a delicious loaf.

A native of Truro, N.S., she moved to Newfoundland 22 years ago following her marriage. A graduate of Dalhousie University, Mrs. Roberts taught school at Cobourg, Ont., for two years.

Keeps Active

Most of Mrs. Roberts' spare time is devoted to voluntary work with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. She also finds time to help in the work of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, and the Canadian Federation of University Women.

"Anyone who can read can be a good cook," she said on her prize-winning trip to Toronto.

Her recipe for pound cake is not only a favorite with her neighbors, but is often made by male acquaintances of the couple. It's the method of cooking that is most important, she says.

Perfect Pound Cake

Here is Mrs. Roberts' recipe: 3 cups sifted flour; 1 tsp. baking powder; 2 cups butter or margarine; 1 tsp. each of vanilla, almond and lemon extract; 2 cups white sugar; 9 eggs.

Start oven at 325 degrees and grease a 10-inch tube pan. Separate eggs and beat egg whites until they stand in frothy peaks, then add three-quarters of a cup of sugar gradually, beating hard until you have a smooth, satiny meringue. Set aside.

Sift flour and baking powder together several times. Cream butter with extracts until creamy, then add 1¼ cups sugar gradually. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating hard after each addition. Sift flour mixture over creamed mixture and mix in gently but thoroughly. Then mix meringue mixture into creamed batter very gently but enough to hide all egg white patches. Pour into pan. Bake 70 minutes, then remove from pan and cool on rack.

Seal Meals

This is the time of year for a seasonal treat in Newfoundland, Mrs. Roberts explained.

Seal flipper pie, made with lots of onions and fresh lemon juice, is a special treat when Newfoundlanders entertain. Seal liver is also considered a great delicacy.

(Canada's "Mr. Curling", Ken Watson of Winnipeg, is covering the Canadian curling scene for The Lachute Watchman.

As I stood at one end of the ice at the Falkirk Ice Rink, flanked by many Scots watching the Canadian Curling champions crush the Scottish draw game with their aggressive hitting style of play, I could not help but feel sorry for Willie Young of Airth and his team.

The Scots champions did not know how to cope with this Canuck cannon ball attack and after three setbacks at Edinburgh and Perth, gave up the ghost and tried playing the Regina boys at their own game by trading rock for rock.

With the Scotch Cup and the International Series in the bag, there was a strange feeling of compassion welling up within me and a strong urge to cry out to Willie, "You can beat this running game!"

It took a good deal of control to subdue these emotions because as an exponent of the quiet chap and lie game over 30 years of competition the Watson rink had been involved in numerous clashes with outstanding teams who favored the robust striking game.

Jimmy and Alex Walsh of the Winnipeg Deer Lodge Club gave us some many-splendored lessons over the years in the World's Largest Bonspiel and we learned through their merciless pounding at our granites. Johnny Franklin of Rosetown, Sask., treated us to a display of rock-busting in the 1942 Brier that almost deprived us of our second Canadian title.

In that memorable game Franklin ordered everything blasted that we put in the playing area between the hog and the back ring. Johnny laid his broom on the offending stone and his men reared back and blistered a 40-pound bullet at it. When the game was over the ice-makers collected two pails full of ice chips as a result of these blockbusters ricocheting off the scantlings after they pounded our stones out of the way.

For those of you who are exposed to a good hitting team may I offer these sedatives:

—Never let a team using an effective running game get a big jump in the early ends for you may as well call a cab and go home. These ends are important. If you can get a few points ahead, they will be forced to quieten their weight and play your game to save their stones. Incidentally, the second time we played Johnny Franklin in an exhibition game in Regina we were lucky enough to score a five on the first end.

—If your opponents do get a point or two ahead you have no recourse but to play long guards then try to draw in behind them. You may have to try five or six times during an end until they hit one of your rocks on the nose, then you can sneak in behind for cover. To be more explicit — put your guards in front first, then draw for shot behind them later. Keep doing this all night if you have to.

—Now let's assume that you have shot rock guarded and the guard is rammed through without molesting the stone in the rings — draw for second shot — but be careful to sweep it into position exactly opposite Number One boy so that a double kill is impossible. If you find it cannot be swept to that point let it die in the front rings so that the angle is too sharp for the twin execution.

—The trickier or swingier the ice the more difficult it is to play the running game accurately. Study the runs or fallbacks carefully during the first few ends then be courageous enough to draw to that portion of the house most inaccessible to fast hitting tactics.

—Watch opposing deliveries for any weaknesses in throwing in-turns and out-turns. If your opposition is deadly on out-turns switch to the other side of the ice.

—Be careful not to use too much of the "soft stuff" and forget about asking your players for freezes and lay-ups against this type of attack. Resort to such manoeuvres only if you are well in arrears and the hour is late. The game may blow up in your face if you employ this type of brinkmanship too soon.

A sound draw game based on the principles of common sense and a dram of ingenuity will still beat a good running game. Two important ingredients, the patience of Job and refusal to push the panic button, are required by the team that wants to prove it.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Bennett and daughter, Linda, of Sudbury, Ont., were guests of Mrs. Hugh Cooke.

Mrs. Gordon Phillips is in Montreal this week as guest speaker to the young people of St. James United Church; her subject, "Prison Work and Capital Punishment." She is also attending a tea at the home of Mrs. Mappin, Westmount.

Church Supper

A successful Easter supper was held in the United Church hall under auspices of the Woman's Association. The large attendance did justice to the home-cooked meal, and congratulations are extended to the committee for their efforts in making this function a great success.

Easter Services

A large attendance was observed at both the Anglican and the United Churches on Easter Sunday. Both churches were beautifully decorated with flowers, some of which were placed in memory of loved ones who had passed on. The Rev. Mr. Bussell conducted the services in the Anglican and Mr. Greenough conducted service in the the United Church.

Mrs. J. Fosberry and Miss Ethel Cooke spent the week-end in Arundel.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cooke occupied their cottage for the holidays; Mr. and Mrs. T. Sevigny and son were their guests.

W. A. Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Association of the United Church took place in the church hall, with the president, Mrs. H. Johnston, in charge. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Stuart Cooke and Mrs. Walter McMahon. A group of the young people rendered "The Old Rugged Cross" as a chorus, in keeping with the Easter season. Routine business was dealt with, and it was decided to hold a rummage sale the latter part of May. Refreshments brought the evening to a close, the hostesses being Mrs. Earl Gray, Mrs. Gibbons and Mrs. T. Brisco.

Model illustrated: Corvair 700 4-door Sedan

A General Motors Value

proved PERFORMANCE proved

Corvair was unanimously named "Car of the Year" by the editors of Motor Trend—world's largest general automotive magazine. And it's easy to understand why . . . "the most significant engineering advance" of 1960 . . . "four-wheel independent suspension totally unlike any other North American-built car" . . . a rear engine and transaxle "allowing a flatter floor and lower roofline"—these are some of the praises the experts heaped upon Corvair in announcing the auto industry's most coveted award!

proved ECONOMY! proved

The results of two major economy tests run by independent organizations* prove beyond a doubt that your Corvair will deliver 25 to 40% more miles on a gallon of regular gas than you can get in a conventional car. Add to this, the inherent dependability of an air-cooled engine, the savings on anti-freezes and anti-corrosives, and the fact that Corvair is easily and speedily serviced, and you'll know for sure that Corvair is your best bet for economical transportation.

*Pure Oil Economy Trials and Mobilgas Economy Run.

Here are the things Corvair gives that no other car can touch:

Practically flat floor . . . front and rear. Room for your feet, even if you're sitting in the middle. Who but Corvair remembers your feet?

No fussing with anti-freeze . . . or water or radiator repairs or water pumps. Corvair's air-cooled engine has nothing to do with 'em.

4-wheel independent suspension . . . that gives each wheel its own coil spring and its own knee action. RESULT: a smoother, flatter ride.

Almost instant heat . . . from an airplane-type heater. You don't have to wait for the engine to warm up — Corvair's heater warms up in 30 seconds.

Fold-down rear seat . . . that opens 17.6 cubic feet of storage space besides what's in the trunk. Standard in every model, two and four-door.

Rear engine traction . . . that comes with the engine's weight bearing down on the rear wheels. Why be a stick in the mud (or snow or slush) with anything else when you can dig in and go with Corvair?

Come see it! Come drive it! Come price it!

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

A good-sized group turned out last Wednesday evening to the monthly meeting of Branch 70. The members, under chairmanship of Com. President Jenkins, heard reports from the heads of all the active committees.

Com. Rene Paulsen, chairman of the Sports and Entertainment committee, reported that things were well under control for the Father and Son Hockey Banquet on April 30. As mentioned last week, thanks to Leonard Bedard, local Molsons agent, Doug Harvey — and we hope, his son — will be in attendance. There will be a question-and-answer period held after the supper, which should prove very interesting. The local youth will keep our famous guest busy and without a doubt some of the fathers will also have some questions they would like answered.

The chairman also reported that the cribbage tournament between Lachute and Brownsburg was won by Lachute. This has proved a very popular event, and over the year's matches (which have been played monthly) Branch 70 won by only two games. The Molson Trophy (thanks again to Leonard Bedard) rests in the Lachute clubroom for the time being. Two of the Brownsburg members, Sylvester Hall and Don Graham, winning the largest number of games throughout the year's play, were awarded special trophies, also donated by Molsons.

There are two social events coming up that should be marked on the calendars of all Legion members and their friends. Two dances, to be held in the Legion Hall, one on May 7 and the other May 14. Proceeds from the dance of the 14th will be donated to Vetville. Admission in both cases will be one dollar per person; there will also be a door prize on both nights, and of couree an orchestra. A group of Comrades from Remembrance Branch 75, Montreal, are coming up for the evening of the 14th, to assist us in this fund-raising effort. At the request of Com. E. J. Struthers, president of the Quebec Provincial Command, every branch is asked to contribute what they can to keep Vetville in our possession. This will be our first effort for this fund, and we hope to be able to make a sizeable donation.

Com. R. A. Giles, chairman of the Sick and Relief Committee, reported several calls to ill comrades, and of the study of some requests for relief. He also mentioned that some of the hospital equipment was available. Anyone requiring the use of this type of equipment should not hesitate in contacting either Com. R. A. Giles, Com. S. Jones, or Com. R. O. MacLean.

Com. Demerse announced that the tickets for the pony raffle will be out and in circulation this week. Tickets are also available for the Legion Dollar Club. Rene Turpin, of Brownsburg, is the most recent winner.

The Lachute High School has been notified that the Canadian Legion Dominion scholarship or bursary is again available. Any child of a Legion member or a deceased veteran is eligible. Last year Branch 70 were fortunate in having one of the eight winners in the province. We would like to see this repeated again this year.

Please do not forget to register in advance for the Polio Clinic of May 19. It is necessary to have a fairly close estimate as to the number who wish to attend. While there is no maximum set, there is a minimum number of applicants required before a clinic can be operated. We feel sure that the community on the whole are interested and wish to take advantage of this free Polio Vaccine. However, we must have proof.

Chairman Rene Paulsen and Comrades Ernie Evans, Frank Maidens, Joe Martel, Doug Ogilvy and Art Philipps, of the Sports and Entertainment Committee, have several irons in the fire, and the coming season should prove very interesting. More on these events as the details are finalized.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."

When was Margarine developed?

As long ago as 1869, by Hyppolite Mege-Mouriez, a French chemist. He set out to develop a substitute for butter and patented his process in that year. His object was to derive butter-fat from beef suet by a process resembling the natural formation of milk. He called the resultant fatty body oleomargarine. He believed that milk fat was a derivative of body fat and subjected the suet to a synthetic digestive process. Later the digestive process was abandoned and vegetable oils, treated so as to remain solid at room temperatures, were substituted for body fats. Further improvements in the quality of the product have resulted from the progressive purification of vegetable oils used in the manufacturing process and from the use of such additives as milk solids, emulsifying agents and vitamins. Canada first passed regulatory legislation, making it illegal to manufacture or sell any substitute for butter manufactured from any animal substance other than milk, in 1886. Between 1917 and 1923 the sale of margarine was legalized because of butter shortages. A ban was again imposed in the latter year and not lifted until 1948 when the Supreme Court ruled that the manufacture and sale, but not the importation, of margarine was legal in Canada. In several provinces, however, it remained illegal to colour margarine to resemble butter, and in Quebec it has remained illegal to manufacture or sell margarine in any form.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you:

Q.- I want to know if I can pay unemployment insurance stamps to employees working at my home. I will hire three men. Can I also pay stamps to my husband?

A.- Work done for householders is most commonly done on the basis of an independent contract, i.e., there is no contract of service. Unless employment is under a contract of service it is not insurable. You should consult your local office, giving details about the hiring arrangements regarding the three men, and get a ruling from the local office about their insurability. You cannot insure your husband in any case. This employment is specifically excepted by the Act, as is employment of a wife by her husband.

Q.- I receive $28 a week in benefits and someone told me I should receive $30 because all my stamps are of the $1.20 denomination. Can you give me some information about this?

A.- If all your stamps for the past 30 weeks within 104 weeks prior to your claim were of the $1.30 denomination, you would be entitled to the dependency benefit rate of $30 weekly, or to the single benefit rate of $23 weekly. The benefit rate is based on the average of the last 30 weekly contributions, so that if one or more of the 30 are at a lower rate, the average may be depressed to result in less than the $30 or $23 weekly benefit rate.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

The ideal driver — like the ideal anything — doesn't exist. If he did, he would earn his title with motoring practices like these:

He stays alert at every intersection — even if he has the right of way — and slows down if necessary.

He dims his headlights for oncoming cars — and when he follows another car.

He fits speed to road conditions, knowing that the greater the speed the greater the risk.

He never day-dreams at the wheel,, knowing that driving requires 100 percent concentration.

He keeps his car a safe distance behind the one ahead. This means one car length for every ten miles an hour of speed.

He turns corners correctly, finishing every turn in the lane in which he has been driving.

He signals before turning or pulling out of his lane to pass. He always checks his rear — or side-view mirror before passing and when getting back into the right lane.

Finally, he maintains an adult attitude about driving, realizing that competition is for the ball park, not the highway.

Aim for the ideal. The closer you get, the safer — and happier — your driving will be.

BATTLING BLINDNESS

In a play by the famous English poet John Milton, the Biblical hero Samson mourns his blindness for condemning him "to live a life half dead, a living death." Milton wrote feelingly with real knowledge — for he too was blinded when he was still in the prime of life.

Men in every age have shared Milton's horror of blindness. The affliction is particularly tragic today, however, for in this time of increased medical knowledge, it is all too often an unnecessary one.

"One-half of the nation's total sightless persons might be able to see if they or their parents had taken proper precautions." states the U.S. National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Eye infections should always be treated with care for they can, if unattended, cause blindness. A particularly dangerous period, medical experts inform us, is infancy, when the eyes are most delicate and susceptible to infections. Such infections, according to U.S. statistician Louis Dublin, rank among the chief causes of blindness in the U.S. Fortunataely, science has made vast strides both in preventing and treating infections in the eyes of new-born babies.

One of the more recent advances has been the use of a broad-range antibiotic for this purpose.

Medical specialists have found this antibiotic free from the side-effects of silver nitrate, hitherto routinely applied to a newborn baby's eyes to prevent infection.

The drug, tested on 1,700 infants at Maimonides Hospital in Brooklyn, saved two out of three babies from "pink-eye" or conjunctivitis, according to a medical report.

Its laboratory tests have also proved more effective than others in killing the microorganisms that are the commonest cause of eye infection in the new-born.

Makes a man feel ten feet tall! What does? Why, having money in the bank, of course! When you've got a nice pad of savings behind you, you can take advantage of sale prices. And when you spot something you want, you can pay cash for it. Or, if someone in the family gets sick, it's nice to know the money is right there to look after him. The fact is, everything in life looks better when you've got cash in the bank. And it doesn't take long to run up a nice sum when you make small but regular deposits. Yes sir, money in the bank really does give a man that ten-feet tall feeling. Do you know where I save my money?

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

I am not as a rule a wagering woman, but being female I found it hard to resist betting recently on what I considered a sure thing. John Pinckney, editor of the Rosetown (Saskatchewan) weekly newspaper, and I couldn't agree on the power of the press and the worth of a press agent. John contended that Elvis Presley would have a Gold Record within six months after his discharge from the United States Army. My reasoning was that nothing is deader than a forgotten idol. Not even a powerful press could resurrect his popularity in my opinion.

Now I quiver in my boots, for evidently Col. Tom Parker, the lad's agent and part owner, has done a perfect job of keeping the gyrating, guitar-playing crooner on his rock 'n roll pedestal, despite his two years of service in Germany. And what is more alarming to me, it isn't the teenagers who are clamouring and screaming every time Presley puts in a public appearance. It is women in a much older age bracket.

I saw my wager taking wings when I tuned in a radio program in my hotel room while awaiting train connections en route home from the east coast recently. In the background I could hear a baby cooing while the Emcee of a program called "Ladies' Choice" received a telephone call in response to his query, "Do you think Elvis Presley can make a comeback?" Mother of the infant, probably a former swooning teenager when Elvis was at the height of his popularity, was confident he could. She evidently hadn't lost her allegiance to his appeal, even though romance had bloomed and motherhood had come into her life while he booted it out in compulsory military service.

The program fascinated me. Within an hour and a half ten women called the radio station. They ranged in age, judging from their voices, between their early twenties to, let's guess, the late sixties. If their answers are any criterion of the popularity the young man will again attain, I might as well begin saving pennies in my piggy bank to pay off my wager

I still think my argument was sound. I don't for one moment disparage the might of publicity of any kind, or the value of a column of print. My editorial awareness of its ability to sway public opinion and parlay causes and people into astronomical heights of success is as strong as ever it was. I guess I had seen too many 'has beens' try for a comeback to worry much about risking a bet on Presley.

My intuition should have warned me though, that I hadn't taken into account the constant suggestion Parker had made in his press releases. He played up the fact, that this young man, at the height of his career had been forced to serve his country. He played the compulsion up for all it was worth over the entire two years. He knew female emotional mechanism better than I do apparently, for he was banking on building an image of great sacrifice and staggering nobility, so that when his human gold mine was discharged, it would start producing immediately.

What ails women anyway? You never see pictures of men or boys pushing and hollering, such as the one printed of London Bobbies holding back a surge of femininity when Tony Armstrong-Jones escorted his fiancée, Princess Margaret, to the ballet a week after the announcement of their engagement. Surely whole nations of women can't be so maladjusted biologically that they seek emotional release in such idiotic behavior. Is it mass hysteria, or just plain exhibitionism? Is it sex or sensationalism?

I haven't been too worried when this almost animalistic instinct has made itself evident at rock and roll sessions, where youth has been in the majority among spectators. They are notorious hero worshippers. But, good heavens, the grandmothers are swooning now!

I'm sending what's left of my bank roll west. I want to buy space in Pinckney's esteemed weekly to raise funds for a home for the few of us females who haven't succumbed. There must be something wrong with us. Who knows, we may soon be in need of institutional care.

B.C. snail farm discouraged

A snail farm? . . . Federal authorities have said "no" to a request to establish a snail farm near Kitimat in British Columbia — not from a lack of appreciation of fine foods, but because snails are regarded as a potential menace to agriculture.

On a number of occasions snails of different species have been imported into Canada by restaurateurs for satisfying epicurean appetites, but this one had wanted to go into the production business on a large scale.

The applicant planned to import the snails from West Germany.

Plant Protection Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, used the Destructive Insect and Pest Act regulations to reject the scheme after seeking the advice of Arthur H. Clarke, Jr., Assistant Curator of Invertebrates, National Museum of Canada.

Mr. Clarke said that the group of snails that are commonly raised for food in western Europe have become an agricultural pest in areas in California and Michigan. They seriously damage tomatoes, lettuce, cabbage and strawberries.

"And", he notes, "radishes are eaten so avidly that it is now impossible to grow them at all in these ares."

He suggested restrictions against importation of living mollusks into Canada, except for scientific investigations and projects conducted by accredited individuals.

Mr. Clarke's opinions were accepted by the Destructive Insect and Pest Advisory Board as a guide for dealing with future requests of this nature.

Corn borer still a problem

Ottawa — The European corn borer is still a problem in eastern Canada even though control methods are now more generally practised than formerly.

H. B. Wressell, of the Chatham entomology laboratory, says outbreaks occurred in eastern Ontario and in the vicinity of Montreal in 1959. The first generation caused only minor damage in the husking-corn counties of Kent and Essex, where it is usually a serious pest but the second generation was more destructive in some areas of Essex County.

Evidence shows that weather is highly important in survival of the eggs of this insect. If both rainfall and temperature are high when moths emerge and begin laying eggs, the chances are that the borer infestation will be severe.

Another example of the effect of high temperature and plenty of rainfall occurred near the town of Essex. A cloudburst flooded fields over an area some 10 miles in diameter shortly before the emergence of second-generation moths in late July. Infestation by second-generation borers, especially in late canning corn, was very severe in this area and much less severe elsewhere in the county.

Further, as a result of heavy rains, control operations have to be suspended and the young borers become established in the plants. It was for this reason, and the fact that most growers had inadequate spraying equipment, that damage in eastern Ontario was more severe than usual in 1959.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Pasture Management Pays

A first preparation for good spring pasture is to rest the pasture or meadow for at least a few weeks in the fall. This simple matter of resting the pasture pays dividends by reducing winter killing to a minimum.

The first sprouts of green on the pasture in the spring come from the root reserves of the particular grass or legume. These stores of primarily carbohydrates and protein are laid down during the resting period in the fall before the onset of winter and must be protected during the first stages of spring growth.

Dr. Bohstedt

To get the most out of the pasture still further precautions are necessary. If through the early spring the stock should keep chewing the young vegetation right down to the ground, the root reserves would be soon exhausted. There could be no regrowth, and the pasture would become a mere paddock or exercise ground.

Only when the pasture plants are at least six inches tall and have enough leaf surface, can they make good use of sunlight and by means of it manufacture—photosynthesize—food of their own accord.

At this stage soil water, minerals and nitrogen are brought up through the roots, and under the alchemy of direct sunlight the carbon dioxide of the air is combined with the other materials. Together they produce starch, fiber, protein, fat, minerals and vitamins that nourish the grazing animals. With this in mind it is recommended livestock be kept off the pasture until it is at least six inches tall.

Good pasture management also requires care thereafter so that the pasture plants have a chance to recuperate periodically from grazing. Rather than have cattle on a pasture continuously from start to finish of the season, it is preferable to divide the pasture and let an alternate half rest and grow on one side for a few weeks while pasturing the other side.

An even better plan is to strip graze smaller areas, sufficient for only a day or two at a time. This can be done through the use of electric fences that are advanced (alternated) progressively the length of the field.

These practices recognize that continuous tramping and grazing is hard on pasture plants and that they need periodic resting for satisfactory regrowth.

Another thing to keep in mind is that spring pasture, while washy, is very rich in protein, and that when changing from winter feeding to pasture, for a few weeks little or no protein supplement need be fed.

Question: I want to avoid rather than treat cases of milk fever in my herd. What is an approved prevention treatment?

Answer: The Ohio Experiment Station has found, and field experiments have confirmed, that significant reductions in cases of milk fever can be accomplished by feeding 20 million units of vitamin D per day per cow. This begins five days before predicted calving time. Half of the dosage is fed in the morning and half in the evening. Continue the feeding until the day after the cow calves or for seven days, whichever comes first. In no case should this amount of vitamin D be fed longer than seven days.

Avoid menace of seed-borne crop diseases

Most farmers get their seed grain cleaned shortly before seeding time in spring and so, about this time of year, we can expect to see the seed-cleaning centres in full swing once again.

Most people would agree that weeds are enemy number one of our field crops. It is therefore no longer necessary to emphasize the importance of ridding oats and barley seed of the weed seeds they contain. But there is another enemy of seeds, which is hardly less menacing, namely, disease germs.

These invisible germs, instead of being simply mixed with the seeds of grain, are actually attached to them, usually inside, and are consequently more dangerous and more difficult to destroy. They are not removed when the grain is cleaned; hence some other method must be used to deal with them. This method is called seed disinfection, and its aim is to kill germs by poisoning them.

Those of us who are not quite as young as we used to be will certainly remember the days when this was done by the time-honored formalin treatment. In the meantime, however, there has been considerable change in methods of seed treatment: formalin has been replaced by mercurial dusts and these in turn, more recently, by liquid solutions which are as effective as the powders without sharing their disadvantages. On the other hand, solutions are not as suitable as dusts for treating seed by hand, either with the help of a shovel or of a mixing cylinder.

Since the introduction of seed disinfection, home treatment on the farm has never been a popular practice. It was because of this that the idea arose of extending co-operative methods such as are used in the cleaning of grain, to include seed treatments also, by attaching to the fanning mill an automatic apparatus capable, like the latter, of dealing with hundreds of bushels of seed an hour and specially designed for use with the new liquid disinfectants.

David Leblond, plant pathologist of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, says that a considerable number of co-operatives now possess equipment of this kind and that members who take advantage of it are very satisfied. Many farmers however, still remain unconvinced of the benefits which this system has to offer them. Only of a couple of hundred farmers who had their grain cleaned, only 30 wanted it disinfected as well.

There are no two ways about it: If one foregoes seed disinfection, one simply accepts the damage that seed-borne smuts and blights can do to cereal crops, which is, to say the least, unwise.
