At the same ceremony, Mrs. Wilson enrolled Mrs. J. McNair as Guide Lieutenant, and three new Guides — Lucille Dionne, Margaret McRae and Elizabeth Hodge. The Guides served refreshments to friends and parents after the ceremony. Guide Captain Kay Ogilvie thanked the guests for attending. Among those present was Mrs. E. Morrow, who recently retired after being Guide Captain for many years.

2-Day conference here – American Society of Golf Course Architects

The first summer meeting, and first Canadian meeting, of the "American Society of Golf Course Architects" was held at the Lachute Golf Club two days last week, June 27-29. The group gathered to prepare material for general distribution acquainting the public with the character of the services offered by the members. Proper planning of golf courses, from selection of site to the final stage of development, is essential not only to the creation of courses of character but to an efficient economical operation.

The Golf Course Architects also considered the proper integration of other specialized services — such as those of agronomists and engineers who, without due regulation, defeat the creation of sound golf courses and often increase construction costs materially.

Members of the Society have spent a lifetime in the acquisition of their experience and skills, without which a golf course of merit cannot be economically created. The retention of designers who are not completely qualified is certain to result in unnecessary expense, poor layouts and general dissatisfaction.

Contest, two seats in Protestant school board

With two vacancies occurring in the Lachute Protestant School Commission, there were four candidates named at the nomination proceedings on Monday, and an election contest will be held accordingly.

Retiring commissioners are Lorne R. Duncan and Ernest W. McOuat. These were both nominated for a return to office, with two other contenders however — Dr. John C. MacKimmie and Kenneth P. Riley — making four contenders for the two seats.

Elections will be held next Monday, July 11, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. D.S.T. in the Lachute High School. Those eligible to vote are property taxpayers whose taxes are duly paid, within Lachute and adjacent areas embraced by the school municipality. Mr. Frank A. Brennian is returning officer for the election.

Lachute airman, at Oldenburg jet technician,

Ottawa — Sergeant Stanley J. Cleland, a 40-year-old aero-engine technician from Lachute, is one of a number of Canadians who are helping the new German Air Force to spread its wings for peace.

Born and educated at Lachute, Sgt. Cleland (son of Albert Cleland, R.R. 1, Lachute) joined the RCAF in 1941 and served throughout most of the war years as an aero-engine mechanic in the Maritime provinces and Newfoundland. He is married to the former Eva Leroux, of Brownsburg.

He left the service after the war but rejoined in 1946 and served as an aero-engine technician at RCAF Station Trenton, Rockcliffe, Ottawa, and St. Hubert until 1957 when he was transferred to No. 2 Fighter Wing, Grostenquin, France, within the RCAF's NATO Air Division. He served there until April 1958, when he was selected to join the special advisory group being sent from the Air Division to aid the German Air Force at their Oldenburg base.

The primary job of the Canadians at Oldenburg is to show the Germans how the RCAF does things with regard to the Canadian-built Sabre jets that are being used for training the young officers of the growing Luftwaffe. These Sabres are Mk 5's, given to Germany by Canada under mutual aid arrangements, and Mk 6's, purchased by the Germans from Canadair.

Another task of the Canadian group is to assist the Germans in maintaining the aircraft. In fact the Canadian pilots, because of their experience, have been handling most of the airborne instruction since they arrived.

For his part, Sgt. Cleland works in an advisory capacity on the maintenance and servicing of aircraft at the base.

Provision of the Oldenburg advisory group, of which Sgt. Cleland is an integral part, is but one of the many ways in which Canada has been working in the common NATO cause by helping her partners in peace to become strong.

Premier Lesage to abolish 'public plague' of patronage

QUEBEC THIS WEEK

By Laurent Chaisson, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec (CP)— Liberal Leader Jean Lesage made it clear last week his party plans to abolish the practice of patronage in provincial politics.

Speaking to reporters following his party's first general caucus since winning the June 22 provincial election, Mr. Lesage described patronage as "a public plague".

He did not indicate what methods his government would employ to curb patronage. But he did say there was not a dissenting voice at the caucus when measures planned at the department and local riding levels were outlined to the members.

The party had promised during the election campaign to eliminate patronage tactics. Mr. Lesage said at the press conference he will act if the name of any person who has engaged in this kind of activity is reported to him.

Patronage has been a well-known adjunct of political life in Quebec. This is the system under which friends of the party in power obtain government contracts and party supporters get preferential treatment.

Outlines Immediate Program

Mr. Lesage also announced this week that his government will probably not call a session of the new legislature in September, because the legislative program was so heavy it might not be ready by that time.

He said the Liberals intend to propose at the next session — some time in the autumn — adoption of the social security benefits promised during the election campaign.

Mr. Lesage made a series of other announcements:

1. The Liberal administration will examine the entire financial picture of the provincial treasury. The finance department alone had a total of $31,800,000 in unpaid bills, he said.

2. A Royal Commission of inquiry into the 16-year administration of the Union Nationale party will be established.

3. A royal commission of inquiry into the sale of the Montreal gas facilities owned by the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission to the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation will be set up.

4. Hospital insurance will be put into effect in Quebec by January 1, 1961, if at all possible.

5. The legislature's committee on privileges and elections would be summoned during the legislature session for a full-scale inquiry into election procedures and tactics.

6. Legislation dealing with the Montreal municipal system of administration would be decided upon after the first report of a commission into the matter becomes available after August 30.

Concert bookings announced for next season

Following a recent meeting of the Community Concerts executive with the representative of Columbia Artists Management, the following programs have been booked for concerts in the coming season:

Saturday, October 1, 1960 — Les Grands Ballets Canadiens. — A company of 20 young dancers with piano accompanist, who perform "Canadian folk-lore dancing and vivid adaptations of the great classics."

Monday, December 5, 1960 — Louis Quilico, baritone (tentative date, to be confirmed).

Tuesday, March 21, 1961 — Charles Rosen, pianist.

Concert-goers will note that this schedule circumvents the stormy season of the Quebec winter —hoping to ensure easier travelling conditions for those attending from out-of-town.

It may be recalled the Community Concerts Association had hoped to book the Ottawa Symphony Orchestra for this coming season. The hope has not materialized, since it was announced this orchestra had temporarily suspended activities due to administrative problems. However, the pièce-de-resistance in the season's recitals, Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, will bring an organization of high triumph and repute, which should meet approval of the great majority of subscribers.

Wonder who's missing 'er now!

Sgt. Gilles Poirier, stationed in East Ward with his electric timer, had good results for a while — then suddenly, all westbound traffic became strictly law-abiding. . . . The Watchman's photographer had meanwhile been tipped off to this sign, which apparently some victim of the speed-trap had posted to warn other motorists. Seeing the potentialities of a good photograph, the camera-man approached Sgt. Poirier some distance down the street, and asked him to pose. Here's the police officer, no longer perplexed over the motorists' good behaviour! — Photo, Syd Drew

Richelieu Club Park, picnic spot and playground, to open July 11

The extensive grounds bordering on Paquin Ave., in the East Ward, acquired recently by the Richelieu Club for a picnic spot and playgrounds, will be opened to the young folk next Monday, July 11.

The playground will be supervised by an experienced monitor, and the hours for public use will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday to Friday, inclusive.

By co-operation of the Ste. Anastasie "Loisiers" committee, playground equipment has already been erected, including children's teeter-totters, backstop for soft-ball, badminton, volleyball, etc. Fencing of the grounds is also in progress, to ensure the safety of young habitués. Other equipment, also picnic tables and benches, will be added later.

There will be an official ceremony to mark the opening of the Richelieu Park later in the season.

Three victims of heart seizures at summer cottages

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen reports that three investigations were carried out during the long week-end into fatalities which were all declared natural deaths. Death in each case resulted from a heart seizure, the victims having been treated for this ailment for some time, and all had been working at their summer cottages.

Dead are Jean Charles Cedilotte, 49, of Green Ave., Montreal, who had a summer cottage at Farmer's Lake; his death occurred at 7 p.m. Saturday evening.

Henri Menard, 60, of Hawkesbury, who died while eating supper with his family at his Pte.-au-Chene summer cottage.

Isador Goldberg, of Van Horne Ave., Montreal, who succumbed to a heart attack at 7 a.m. Saturday morning while at his 16 Island Lake cottage.

All deaths were declared due to natural causes, and no inquests will be held.

Boat capsized, at St. Placide 2 girls drowned

Two Montreal girls were drowned Sunday in the Ottawa River, Quebec Provincial Police reported Geraldine Elizabeth Mullins, 20, Montreal, and Diana Lawrence, 20, Verdun, drowned at 6.30 p.m. near St. Placide.

The girls were returning to Hudson Heights in an outboard motor boat with two companions, John Brown, 33, of Pointe Claire, and Westley Gray, 34, of Hudson Heights.

Brown and Gray clung to the boat for two hours after it capsized in a high wind. They were rescued by a boat-owner who spotted them opposite Pointe-aux-Anglais.

The toll of violent deaths in Western Quebec over the Dominion Day week-end totalled 16.

Service Clubs' field day July 20, Dunany Golf Club

No blood bills for travellers

Canadians travelling in the United States who become hospitalized and require blood transfusion therapy may receive free blood transfusions, just as they do across Canada. Hospitalized Americans in Canada also receive free blood through the reciprocal arrangement between the Blood Transfusion Services of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the American National Red Cross.

The plan should be reassuring to visitors who may require blood transfusions during illness or accident while far from home. No blood actually crosses either way over the border, but a system of "credits" is maintained in records of the two humanitarian organizations of the two nations.

Canadians who receive blood transfusions in American hospitals should advise their local Canadian Red Cross Branch at home as soon as possible after the transfusion is recommended. If the Canadian patient cannot do this, the notice can be readily effected by the doctor or the hospital in a very routine manner.

The teeth of many saws

George Jackson, chain saw specialist on the staff of Lachute Auto Electric, Berry Street, has been using this stump for a long time, testing the customers' saws — but to all appearances, it's had its day, and will not last much longer. The veteran stump is from an ancient elm, felled in the making of a parking lot at the rear of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Tenders opened for High School addition

At the Lachute Protestant School Commission's regular meeting last week, tenders were considered for work on the building extension to Lachute High School.

Under chairmanship of Commissioner Jas. W. McGibbon, numerous bids were studied for various phases of construction — for the general contract, for plumbing and heating, and for the electric installations. In each case, the lowest tender was selected, and the three were submitted for detailed consideration of the architect, Grattan L. Thompson. (It is understood the architect was requested to report back to the commissioners at a special meeting last evening, Tuesday.)

With regard to the disposal of the Presbyterian manse, situated on the site acquired for the school extension, there had been no specific offers, inasmuch as no one interested had land reasonably nearby on which to place the building. After due thought and discussion, the Commission decided to make available a part of the lot north of the Curling Club, to any prospective purchaser. In this way it is hoped to attract more definite bidders for purchase of the building.

Representatives of the Lachute Home and School Association have been attending recent school board meetings in a liaison capacity, and the commissioners signified their appreciation of this public interest and the help of their opinions.

3 Commissioners returned in Catholic school boards

Retiring school commissioners in the Lachute and Ayersville Catholic School Boards were re-elected, at nominations last Monday morning.

Those returned to office in Lachute were Fernand Legault, Q.C., and Gaetan Leclair, both for three-year terms. Mr. Legault has been chairman of the board for several years.

In Ayersville, Gaetan Desrosiers received a renewal of mandate when no new candidate was nominated to contest the seat.

Bomb shelter at Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury — A civil defence shelter built by town council was officially opened at Hawkesbury last Monday evening. Officials say that it is the first nuclear war shelter built in Canada.

Council paid for $200 of materials and the shelter was built under supervision of Jean-Maurice Demers, local CD co-ordinator.

Present for the opening were Mayor Rosaire Gascon, Ontario Health and Welfare Minister J. Cecile, MLA for Prescott riding; Reeve Victor Bruneau, chairman of Prescott and Russell CD committee, W. J. Mullin, Hawkesbury CD chairman, and C. B. C. Broadbent, zone co-ordinator.

Argent'l historian seen as prophet

The following comment is sent in by Mr. S. Wyman MacGibbon, who is still a keen reader and observer of the local scene:

Cyrus Thomas in his "History of Argenteuil and Prescott" (1896) wrote concerning the County of Argenteuil (on page 62) as follows:

"The marvellous beauty of her inland lakes, the picturesqueness of her mountains, the wild gorges and waterfalls of her rivers, are but in the infancy of their attraction. When they are better known and the facilities for reaching them are improved, they will form a perfect magnet for visitors, the mountains will be dotted with villas and the lakes with yachts."

The above quotation should be entitled "Prophecy", as demonstrated by what has developed at Lake Louisa, Lake Sir John, West River Lake, Reardon Lake, Clear Lake, two Long Lakes, Silver Lake, two Half-Moon Lakes, and the North, West, McOuat and McFaul Rivers — writes Mr. McGibbon.

Boy cyclist hurt struck by taxi

A 15-year-old boy, Jeannot Gagné, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gagné, Ayersville, sustained injuries while riding his bicycle, when he was struck by an automobile at the Princess-Millway intersection last Saturday.

According to Cst. Romeo Gagné, of the Lachute police, the youth was hit by a taxi driven by Roger Thibault; hurled to the pavement, he suffered a broken leg and cuts about the face. The victim was later taken to the Cartierville hospital by ambulance.

Garage owner dies of burns in recent fire

An unusually large funeral was witnessed last Saturday at Carillon-St. Andrews, when friends and fellow-residents paid their last tribute to a respected St. Andrews businessman, Léon Rossignol, who succumbed to burns suffered in an explosion at his garage. The funeral was held from the Ladouceur Parlors to Carillon parish church, with burial in the Catholic Cemetery, St. Andrews.

The blaze occurred on the evening of June 22. Mr. Rossignol, 35, was badly burned and was removed to the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury. His brother-in-law and co-worker, Cyr Pelletier, was also injured in the blast and taken to hospital, but was released later in the week. The proprietor died last Wednesday. . . .

At his garage on Main St., South, Mr. Rossignol was well-liked by his customers as a conscientious and genial worker. Born in New Brunswick, he had resided here for the past six years. He was a municipal councillor and member of the Chamber of Commerce at St. Andrews.

He is mourned by his wife, the former Marie Pelletier of New Brunswick, and five children, from 2 to 13 years of age.

Old resident, familiar citizen laid to rest

The Late William Heatlie

A well-known Main Street resident in the person of Mr. William Heatlie passed away suddenly at his home on Saturday evening, July 2. A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Heatlie, he was born July 4, 1884, and was in his 76th year.

Left to mourn his passing are his beloved wife, the former Edith May Murdoch, and four daughters, Pearl (Mrs. Geo. MacKenzie), of Lachute, Helen (Mrs. Stanley Smith), of Lachute, Margaret (Mrs. Gordon Anderson), of Brownsburg, and Evelyn (Mrs. Gordon Garrioch), of San Mateo, Calif. Two daughters predeceased him, and there remain 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. A brother, John, of Ogdensburg, and sister, Mabel, of Billings, Montana, also remain.

Mr. Heatlie farmed in the Ogdensburg and Mabel community until he took up residence at 669 Main Street, Lachute, several years ago.

He was a member of the Grenville Baptist Church and of Argenteuil Masonic Lodge No. 67 — the latter organization having held a memorial service at his residence on Sunday evening.

The Rev. R. L. McPhee conducted the funeral service in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church, Brownsburg, on Monday at 3 p.m. Interment was made in the Ogdensburg Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were his six nephews — Messrs. Perley, Stanley and Clinton Murdoch, Fred Murray, Alvin and John Heatlie, Jr.

Three local wrestlers were on the program. . . . Luc Beauregard, of Ayersville, defeated Réal Carriere, of St. Jerome. Claude Labrecque, of St. Jerome, pinned André "Blondie" Laurin, of Lachute. Robt. Robinson, Ayersville, vanquished "Killer" Labrosse in 19 minutes.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

More about the loons. It sure has been a treat this past week watching these birds. To begin with they have had young; the nest was hidden so well that I didn't even know there were young around until I spotted them one morning trying out their swimming. About the size of overgrown puff-balls, all ten of them; they sure keep the parents on the go. When the mother gets an idea of danger the goings-on are very special to watch. The hen gives a peculiar call, and in no time at all these little chicks hop onto her back and away she goes.

To see all these little birds riding on the mother's back is a real joy. Once in awhile a chick will fall off and then the fun starts. Naturally the mother keeps on going with the others, all the time though she is giving her little calls, the youngster gets going in high gear and really tries to keep up. Of course, it slowly falls behind. By the time the mother is about 50 feet ahead the wee one is blatting his little heart out. This keeps up for a short time, then the mother turns around and comes back to scoop it up on the run. . . . I have never seen just how this was done before, but having seen it now a dozen times, I consider myself fortunate. The mother seems to pick this wayward bird up with her bill, and in a wink she has it right there on her back. Then off she goes; it looks as though she is going to fly, her feet and wings work so hard — she never does get into the air though.

Anyone taking a drive around this part of the country (Lake Hughes) may be lucky enough to see the antics.

The fishing is very spotty, some lakes have been producing very nice catches, others not a thing. We have personally been giving all the creeks a workout this past while. It's strange about one creek in particular, the one from Lake Sir John. Every trout we have taken out of this creek, the stomachs have been empty of solid foods. There are lots of minnows and crawlers in the stream, but none in the trout! We have caught some very nice brookies in this creek, and they haven't hesitated in hitting a fly. The creek near Dunany hasn't been as good, but nevertheless, still enough excitement can be had in a few hours.

The bass are hitting in Lake Sir John, the best part of the lake is east of the bridge among the lily pads. Some perch are being taken, but of no size. The old river is the best for these, and the small lake down near Black's Bridge is the best. Ste. Margerite is still giving up some very good browns, none of course as good as the whopper reported in The Watchman a couple of weeks ago, but any fish over a pound is nice to take.

Louisa is right up with the producers, with the whole works — bass, trout and what-have-you. Barron Lake has given up the very odd trout, but of no consequence. The perch are of good size though. Half Moon is not too good, but for the man with patience, it's worth while.

The moose are back in the news again. This time they have been seen near Sir John, two of them, feeding on the lily pads and roots which are plentiful in this district. I would like to know just how many of them are around this area now; at least a dozen, I would think. Remember the three-legged deer I mentioned awhile back? It is still around, and doing very well. As a matter of fact there are a good number of deer.

This is for the fly fisherman. A number of you have called and asked why not form a club for the fly men in the district. It's a good idea and one that should be considered. We have to find out just how many there would be, so give me a call and I'll try and keep you posted on events. So much can be done with a group well organized, but it will take work among all of us. Anyway, it's worth a try. This should be of interest to all fishermen, but — ?

As most of you know, having bought them in most cases, the supposed unsinkable fly-lines are just not what they are cracked up to be. This is likely due to the finish cracking and soaking up the water. When this does happen, boy do they sink! Just like a rock. To me and a lot of other fly men, nothing can beat the old-type lines, made up with silk, cotton, etc. With the proper finish they will be top lines indefinitely. The nylon, etc., does crack after a lot of use.

The spinning man is coming into his own right now, also. I have noticed more and more anglers are getting away from the extra heavy lines and fishing more for sport. As you know, some of the newer lines are terrific. I managed to pick up a few spools of a line made in France by Racine. It is 2 lb. test and one of the nicest lines it has been my privilege to use. Very soft and pliable, it is a real pleasure to handle. The American manufacturers have made great strides in their lines, but still they are a long way behind the foreign makers. Especially when the lines start to get into the lower tests. Of course, the use of very light tackle has not been very brisk on the North American continent, whereas it is more popularly used in the European countries.

Now for some beefs. What is happening to the supposed action to be taken on spring flooding? Nothing very much seems to be in the air (except a lot of it hot). Also, how about the Tourist Bureau? It's still as hard to find as ever. Sure, I know where it is, but how about the visitors? (Great minds think alike. We wrote about this in our last issue.—Editor.) Are we a bunch of dead-heads, to let things like this continue to exist?

It is to the advantage of all of us to see what is happening to our community. There sure doesn't seem to be any pride in accomplishments that may be made by the town.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."

Why drown?

A NEW TECHNIQUE developed within the past 25 years can prevent death in the water — says the current issue of Reader's Digest. It's called Drownproofing, and is aimed at freeing the potential drowning victim from panic and exhaustion, the principal causes of drowning.

The theory beind Drownproofing is that muscle and bone sink; fat and air float. The proportions of each in the human body are such that, with lungs fully inflated 98 out of 100 men and practically all women will float against the surface of the water if they don't try to hold their heads up.

In Drownproofing there are two strokes — one to stay afloat, one to get to shore without tiring. In the stay-afloat stroke, you hang relaxed in a near-vertical position in the water, letting your head dangle, face down. Every few seconds you raise your head for a change of air. The other stroke, the "travel stroke", will enable you to travel at least a mile without fatigue.

With practice, anyone over the age of four can learn the technique with ease. Advanced age and poor physical condition are no obstacle — says the article here quoted.

The nation's health

THE COMMONS discussed the nation's health in a recent debate — and bounded far beyond the usual boundaries of anatomy.

Larded in the discussion on spending estimates of the Health Department were water fluoridation, a call for a Canada sports council, drug costs, the results of the Saskatchewan and Quebec provincial elections, civil defence and alleged peonage pay to student nurses.

CCF speeches were garnished with lavish references to plans by the Saskatchewan government to implement a compulsory pre-paid medical plan, a major plank in the party's successful Saskatchewan election campaign. The CCF speakers urged the federal government to follow the new lead of a province which had instituted the first hospital insurance program in Canada.

A Progressive-Conservative M.P. from Quebec said during the health debate that he hopes the newly-elected Liberal government in Quebec will carry on the Union Nationale study of the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan. Quebec is the only province still outside the hospital insurance plan.

Weakness in Job Insurance

THOUSANDS upon thousands of people drawing unemployment relief either do not need the relief, or are getting it under claims of dubious validity and are not actively seeking work — says the Fort Erie Letter-Review, which we respect for a usually fair scrutiny of facts.

The appointment of a Senate Committee to study the cause of unemployment is to be welcomed. In the past, Senate committees in finance and other fields have shown realism and objectivity.

Among the first tasks the Senate Committee will have to set itself (according to this commentary) is to find out just how much unemployment in Canada is real, and how much is the result of the shortcomings of existing unemployment insurance legislation. . . .

Worth recalling in this connection is the statement made in a report some months ago by Unemployment Insurance Commission chairman J. G. Bisson. Mr. Bisson points out that it is not unusual for members of his staff to interview nine or ten people before finding one suited for a particular job opening. . . . Choosiness about jobs is actually encouraged by existing unemployment insurance legislation, the writer concludes. Probably that same legislation actually encourages a fair amount of voluntary idleness at the taxpayers' expense.

Hazards high in under-40 age group

ACCIDENTS and violence are the cause of more deaths among life insurance policy-holders under age 40 than any other cause — according to statistics.

Of a total of 44,000 death claims paid in 1959, accidents and violence accounted for 39 per cent of the deaths. Biggest toll-taker was automobile accidents.

Heart disease proved to be the number two killer in this age group, taking nearly 14 per cent. Cancer was listed as the third cause, accounting for 12 per cent, and other diseases made up the remainder.

In the 40-to-59 age group, heart disease emerged as the leading factor, causing nearly 45 per cent of the deaths. Cancer was the cause of 20 per cent of the deaths, while diseases of the circulatory system took 10 per cent. Accidents and violence were the cause of nearly nine per cent.

In the group 60-years-and-older, heart disease accounted for 44 per cent of the deaths. Diseases of the circulatory system and cancer each caused 18 per cent of the deaths.

Personal and confidential

LETTERS FROM the postmaster-general marked "personal and confidential" were the subject of an attack in parliament led by H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West), who gave a flowery description of the added work Postmaster-General William Hamilton caused by the restrictions he imposed.

Mr. Herridge said he was forced to make great efforts to compose letters to his constituents that did not break the confidential seal. This is the sort of letter he has to write, he said:

The Hon. Algernon Claude Hamilton,
Re: dereliction of duty, postmaster,
Old Cove, B.C.
My Dear Algernon:
I have discussed the contents of your letter of March 1 last with the appropriate person. However, it would not be what is played at Lords to divulge his name . . .

The letter I have received from the appropriate person is marked "personal and confidential". Therefore I find it necessary to write allegorically and all I can say is that with my knowledge of that appropriate person's ability to smell a rat when he sees it hovering in the air, and later to nip it in the bud, I am certain that the administrative 'dry rot' you brought to my attention will be lopped off in due course, to your complete satisfaction. . . .

Trusting I have made the situation quite clear in a personal and confidential kind of way, I remain

New motive for strike

A STRANGE KIND of strike has been called in Virginia by the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union. Closed by strike are four plants of the Kenrose Manufacturing Company, all because the union is upset at news that the company plans to build a garment factory in Ireland.

The North American wage-cost spiral has already forced a number of industries on this continent to establish production facilities in countries where the threat of inflation and rising costs is less than it is here. This strike, however, far from halting the emigration of industry from North America, will probably only speed the process. For the strike is, in essence, an attack on management's right to run its business in the most efficient and economical manner possible.

SCHOOL PATROLS. — The superintendent of schools and other trustees rightly expressed their horror at the very idea of small children being allowed to direct highway traffic. To place such grave responsibility in the hands of children, even teen-agers, is unthinkable.

Warns gardeners on greedy rabbits

TO THE EDITOR

Dunany, Que., June 29, '60

Editor, The Watchman.
Dear Sir:

There seems to be an abundance of wild rabbits in the country these days. They seem to be multiplying in great numbers. This is doubtless due to the fact that foxes are fewer in number. The rabbit is a cute little animal. It is nice to see him hopping along, but at the same time, it can become a great nuisance, and if they continue to increase something will need to be done. Yesterday I went out to water my flower garden, and when I came to the place where my sweet pea plants should have been, I found to my surprise and great disappointment that every one had disappeared. They made nice eating for the bunny who lives around our house. I am told that they will eat flowers; so my object in writing, is that you will be good enough to put a little note of warning to your readers in country places, to watch their flowers and vegetables in the coming days, especially if there are rabbits around. . . .

Thanking you —

Yours truly,
George R. Bale

Of Many Things

HOSPITAL SERVICES PLAN

Here in Manitoba, where I reside, premiums for Manitoba Hospital Services Plan have been raised. We all knew it was coming, because the Minister of Health and Welfare has been hinting at it for some time. Furthermore, the cost of hospital services, wages, new forms of treatment, etc., had been going up and more and more beds were being added.

All this didn't make the increased premiums any easier to take. Everybody said "Ouch." On the other hand, instead of being sore at the Manitoba government for raising the premiums, most citizens gave them marks for doing it the honest way, rather than hiding the cost by dipping into the general fund or slapping a sales tax on us.

Furthermore, as a married man with six children, I still pay less for a six-month protection period than it would cost me if any member of my family spent two days in hospital; and, according to the papers, a single man pays less for the protection period than he would pay for one day in a Winnipeg hospital. If we are going to have such Plans, they have to be paid for, and the only honest procedure is to let us know the actual cost.

Saskatchewan is about to launch a prepaid, compulsory Medical Services Plan. They expect it to cost about $35 per family per year. If they haven't estimated the cost any more accurately than they estimated the cost of their Hospital plan, it will pretty soon be costing the people of Saskatchewan more like $200 per family per year. When their hospital plan began, they thought it would cost about $5 per family per year, or $5 millions a year. It was half as much as that again in the very first year and it soon shot up to $33 millions per year, but very few citizens know it. And, of course, the Federal Government came to the rescue eventually.

Whatever such Plans are launched in the future, I doubt very much if the government in Ottawa will again come to the rescue. I think the people in each province are going to have to pay for whatever Plans they want. I do not believe the pre-paid, compulsory Medical Plan, to be inaugurated in Saskatchewan, will spread across Canada. Instead, it may well prove so costly to that province that no other province will want to touch it!

Some people offer thanks for public washroom and playground equipment by breaking and carving pieces off it!

In wild beauty spots, you can find tokens of respect left by those who have been there before you: old stoves, car bodies, cans and broken bottles.

What makes people smash things and strew junk around? Dumb selfishness, I suppose, and pent-up anger and frustration. It is the primitive violence of nature — a useful force in the days when men had to hunt their own meat, but an embarrassment in a closely-packed society.

You might expect the twisted and violent people to be restrained a little by fear of punishment and by respect for the rights of others. However, some people are not bright enough to see that they are making trouble.

They don't understand that their fellow-citizens have rights. Nobody ever told them. They go through their lives as babies, grown in body but infantile in mind.

Brought up to worship the Almighty Self, they gleefully scatter trash through the woods, because they don't expect to be back that way again.

They break up benches with hammers, and smash bottles where people go swimming. They like the pretty sound of things breaking. The act of destruction soothes the blind anger against the world that is boiling in them.

What can be done? Ask a doctor, a sociologist and a policeman, and you will get three different answers. I don't suppose any of the answers will work. There is no way to make louts into decent citizens.

657 Que. students apply for B of M scholarship awards

Montreal, July 4 — Six-hundred-and-fifty-seven young Quebec students are in the running for the 13 Bank of Montreal Canada Centennial Scholarships which are to be awarded in this province in 1960, the bank has announced. Applications for the scholarships — each worth $750 in the first year — have now closed.

The Quebec boys and girls are among 2,208 of this year's high-school graduates across Canada competing for the first year's 50 scholarships for the study of arts and sciences at Canadian universities. Every application had to be accompanied by the recommendation of the student's principal, so that there has already been considerable "pre-selection" in the high schools.

Final selection will be made in August by the ten provincial selection committees, each composed of leading educationalists from universities in the provinces concerned.

The scholarships to be awarded this year are the first step in a seven-year plan announced by the B of M in May to provide bank-aided university study. The program will culminate in 1967, the year of the centennial of Canadian Confederation and the bank's 150th anniversary, when two final B of M Canada centennial awards will be made. One award will be in arts and one in science — each in the amount of $5,000 for study anywhere in the world.

The scheme provides for a total of 124 awards in the years 1960-67, ranging from $750 to $5,000. When the plan was announced, G. Arnold Hart, president of the B of M, said the bank hoped the scholarships would provide "a tangible and worthwhile observance of the national centennial to the future national advantage."

TO THE POINT

As a part of a test in a ninth-grade English class, the students were to write a letter that some well-known person might have written during his life. Time was limited, but the teacher was hardly prepared for one boy's brief note: "Dear Josephine, I am sorry to inform you that I did not make out so well at Waterloo. Yours truly, Napoleon." — Reader's Digest

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

THE SCRATCHING SEASON

Summer is here, the vacation season is at hand — and poison ivy is growing in woods and back yards all over the country. So is poison oak and sumac.

Summer is the scratching season for all too many vacationers, particularly city people who have never been taught — or haven't bothered to learn — the characteristic signs of the nuisance plants. It pays to be informed, however, for poison ivy irritation can be dangerous as well as unpleasant. It is particularly unpleasant when it covers a large area of the body, and when over-enthusiastic scratching transforms the irritation into an outright infection.

Luckily, the affliction is easier to treat than it used to be. If you are so unfortunate as to blunder up against a poison ivy vine, your doctor may prescribe a soothing ointment containing the hormone hydrocortizone to reduce the inflammation — plus an antibiotic to knock out any infection which may develop.

Nevertheless, knowing how to avoid the plants is an excellent idea. Poison ivy, oak or sumac are closely related and you need not learn to tell them apart. Generally, it is wise to steer clear of any low-lying shrub or vine that has leaves in groups of three, especially if the leaves are dark green in color and have a glossy appearance.

If you are clearing a camping area and find plants which you suspect belong to this family, do not under any circumstances burn them. The irritating oil is volatile, and rises with the smoke, breathing it can have grave consequences. Poison ivy should be buried, not burned.

Do You Know Your Bible?

Often you hear quizzes asking, "Who was Moses' wife?" "What were the names of the twelve apostles?" or similar Bible questions. While these test your knowledge of the Bible story, what do you know about its meaning?

Do you know where it tells why the world faces oppression and inequality, why war clouds are rising and morals sinking, why world troubles are more urgent now than ever before? Do you know how it shows the outcome, and what it says about endless peace and eternal life on a paradise earth? Do you know why it is to this present generation that Jesus' words apply: "As these things start to occur, raise yourselves erect and lift your heads up, because your deliverance is getting near"! — Luke 21: 28.

Do you know how the Bible gives comfort, hope, joy, understanding, how it foretold the exact conditions earth now faces and provides just what the world needs today? Do you know what proves that this book is a reliable life guide? Do you know what wholesome good news it contains, how its principles apply to your life and what it says about the very information that is most needed today? Readers of the Watchtower magazine know these things. This journal gives you not only a knowledge of the Bible story, but, even more important, an understanding of its real meaning.

Twenty-four issues of this valuable journal (a one-year subscription) are yours at a cost of only $1. — Write The Watch Tower, 150 Bridgeland Avenue, Toronto 10, Ont., or ask any of Jehovah's Witnesses you might happen to meet, anywhere.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Swim Time

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Swim time should have an important place in every child's vacation. This is a skill which every one should acquire. How many never learn how to swim is shown in the large number of drowning accidents where non-swimmers lose their lives. Each year around one thousand Canadians are drowned. The fact is that only one Canadian in ten can swim.

It is true that sometimes a good swimmer is seized with a cramp or gets into a panic if his boat capsizes, and he loses his life by trying to swim to shore instead of hanging onto the boat until rescued. But the great majority of water tragedies take their toll of life from the ranks of non-swimmers.

Service clubs and communities who provide instruction classes in swimming are to be warmly commended. This is a fine and constructive thing to do. Boys and girls have the thrill of working in a group under a competent teacher. They are eager to learn to swim and their own keen desire makes them ready students.

Parents can help by encouraging their child to be on time for each session and faithful in their attendance. They can also show an interest in their child's progress. It is only courteous for mothers and fathers to express their appreciation for a good swimming class. Let both the instructor and the sponsoring group know that you think this project worth while.

What can parents do whose children have not the privilege of attending a swimming class? In some cases, a boy or girl can go to camp. There, time to learn to swim is given an important place in each day's program. Hundreds of Canadian children learn to swim at summer camps. Even at the shorter camps a large number of boys and girls make their first real start in becoming proficient in the water.

Sometimes it is possible to persuade an older, responsible boy or girl who is an expert swimmer to help three or four youngsters around the same age, who are chums, to learn to swim. A parent would provide the necessary transportation to a swimming spot and supervision of the little group. A simple picnic meal after the swimming class was over, would make this a real treat for each child. The parents could each contribute a fixed amount to pay the young instructor.

If mother or dad, or both parents, can swim, and love the water, their children can quickly learn to swim if only they will take time to teach them. Plan for a number of "Swim Trips" on father's half day or during the week-end. Families who go to summer cottages usually have a definite time for swimming in the late morning and in mid-afternoon each day. Children playing on a beach or in the water must always be watched. The faster they learn to swim well, the less is the danger from drowning.

Praise and encouragement must be expressed by any swimming teacher. Never frighten a child or shame him in your eagerness to have him learn to swim. Fear of the water and timidity will only retard his progress. He needs to master how to breathe properly in the water. This can be practised at home by a child holding his breath and putting his face under water in a basin or tub. He can also learn to open his eyes under water. Teach him to "Be a Jelly Fish" — take a deep breath and clasp both ankles with both hands in the water. To his surprise he will discover how easy it is to float.

Once he has gained self-confidence in his ability to stay up in the water, let him use the "dog paddle". He will soon get a wonderful thrill from going through the water "on his own steam."

The swimming periods should never be so long that a child becomes "sick and tired" of swimming or gets a chill. Keep the swim time brief except in very hot weather. Have a play in the water with small boys and girls separate from practising their strokes. Swim Time should always be a happy occasion — whatever the age of the would-be swimmer!

Salad season

It's salad time again. Kitchen artists can set to work to make tempting salads that are also pretty as pictures. Here's a salad named Babel Towers that is both attractive and good.

For each serving allow one tomato cut in three slices. The bottom slice should be about twice as thick as the others. Hollow the bottom slice out and fill with a thoroughly-chilled mixture of flaked crab meat, celery and mayonnaise. Top with a second slice of tomato. Add more crab meat mixture and follow with a third slice of tomato. Top with a spoonful of salad mixture and a blob of mayonnaise topped with a ripe olive. Set the tower in a nest of crisp lettuce and garnish with egg slices and green stuffed olives.

Tuna fish or shrimp may be substituted for crab meat.

The salad mixture is one 7-oz. can crab meat, ½ cup diced celery, mayonnaise to moisten, salt and pepper, ½ tsp. celery salt.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Strawberries, says the consumer section of Canada's department of agriculture, are here today and gone tomorrow.

They're here now. The best berries are bright and glossy with bright red caps. Touches of white indicate berries were picked before they were thoroughly ripened and the flavor of these may not be as good as luscious red berries.

Berries won't keep for more than two or three days, even in the refrigerator, so count the number of servings needed before rushing off to buy huge quantities. One point to remember is that a basket of small berries will give more servings than the same size basket of big berries.

If they are to be stored, the berries should be spread from their box onto a plate or tray. Don't wash or hull until ready for use.

Drip Dry

Like many of the new fabrics, berries should drip dry. If berries are soaked, they'll lose flavor and vitamins. Dip gently and quickly into cold water then lift out with fingers allowing the sand and dirt to sink to the bottom of the pan. Remove the caps when the berries have dried.

Strawberry Torte

For a special dessert during the strawberry season try this strawberry torte made with one quart of strawberries.

Ingredients: ¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs; 3 egg whites, ¼ cup sugar; 3 egg whites, ¼ tsp. salt; ¼ cup sugar; ½ tsp. vanilla or ½ tsp. lemon rind and 2 tsps. lemon juice; 1 quart strawberries; ¼ to ½ cup sugar, ¾ cup whipping cream, whipped; 2 tsps. sugar.

Measure bread crumbs onto a piece of waxed paper and divide into four portions. Make a meringue of the egg whites and ¼ cup sugar and beat thoroughly. Stir in the flavoring. Spread egg yolk mixture over meringue and sprinkle with ¼ of the crumbs. Fold in gently until partially combined. Repeat with each remaining portion of the crumbs until mixture is just blended. Do not overmix.

Turn batter into a greased nine-inch round cake pan. Bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees, for 25 minutes or until top springs back when pressed lightly. Allow torte to cool in pan for 15 minutes. Loosen sides and turn out onto a cooling rack.

Reserve a few berries for garnish, then slice remaining berries. Sprinkle with sugar and let stand for ½ hour. Spread over torte, top with whipped cream sweetened with 2 tsps. sugar and garnish with whole berries. Serves six.

New Products

A new instant skim milk chocolate drink is handy for picnics or camping. The milk, readily re-constituted in cold water, somewhat resembles two percent milk introduced a few months ago.

Ontario dairy specialists have noted improvements in evaporated milk. The color has improved and the product has a less cooked flavor, according to the experts.

Premier Barrette and Hon. W. Cottingham issued stern protests last week

Declaration by Mr. Cottingham

There is no one, I believe, who has not undergone a disagreeable surprise on hearing the news that the party recently elected, but which had not yet taken over power, had given orders to hold up the work at Carillon.

As member for the County of Argenteuil, I protest strongly against this uncomprehensible attitude of supposed Liberals; they have attacked the families of the hundreds of men employed at the Carillon dam, the wives and the children.

The dam at Carillon was not a political venture. It is an enterprise destined to raise the production of electrical energy in the province, for the needs of industries attracted these past years by the favorable economic climate in this province under the National Union government. And those persons who were working there had obtained their employ without any recourse to their political allegiance.

The citizens of the county, of which this enterprise was of particular importance, will not easily forget that, the day following the elections, certain persons stopped the work and provoked, through caprice and by a unique thought of party, considerable unemployment.

In the name of all residents of the County of Argenteuil, I demand that the work commence immediately.

Statement by Ex-Premier

Quebec, June 28 — In all countries of the Commonwealth, the Crown is the source of authority. Just as long as a government does not resign or has not been replaced, it is the legally constituted authority. Thus a cloud hovers over a great part of the population of Quebec following the election of the Liberal party, though this party does not yet hold authority.

Already, thousands of workers have been given their release, without any other reason than that they were employed in the execution of projects granted or organized by the National Union government.

I protest against this injustice, which has struck thousands of families.

Also, it has been proven that ministers have had difficulty in crossing police cordons, placed at the entry to parliament buildings on orders of persons who have no authority whatsoever to give such instructions.

Two cases have been brought to my knowledge this morning, where ministers have had difficulty to cross a police cordon because they were transporting personal documents.

The aim of such tactics is simple, namely, to place suspicion on these ministers of the Crown, who have given the best years of their lives to the service of the province.

I also wish to protest against the fact that feminine employees have been forced to open their handbags, and, once again, these procedures are unworthy of persons who pretend to inspire democratic principles to govern.

I have asked my colleagues to refuse absolutely to submit to these orders emanating from persons who do not have the authority to impose them.

The act of releasing thousands of workers; holding up payment of all accounts, even payment for the purchase of food for fire-wardens, the searching of ministers' briefcases, establishing police guards around the buildings, and forcing feminine employees to open their handbags — indicates a dangerous state of mind, because it proves either a desire for vengeance, a lack of maturity, or the application of dictatorial measures which the people of Quebec will not accept.

— (Signed) Antonio Barrette

$30,000 loan by-law in offing for snow-removal equipment

Street paving, evaluators, office help among details for Council consideration; Ch. Commerce plans information booth

At the regular Council meeting, with all members present and Mayor Jas. McGibbon presiding, Roger Legault voiced a request — on behalf of himself, Aldège Filion and Mme H. Filfe — for the paving of a stretch on Foundry Street measuring 118 feet in length. To provide for this, Mme Filfe and Mr. Legault would cede a width of five feet from their properties to give the required 50 feet width of road. Aldermen H. Lamarche and R. Morrissette proposed and seconded the motion — Aldermen S. Church and E. O. Pollock dissenting.

Jos. Senecal, foreman, was instructed to check the height of a sidewalk on Robert Street, on request of Firmin Chénier.

Ald. L. Laurin moved, and Ald. R. Morrissette seconded, that a 7-foot width, 180 feet long, be paved on Grace Street, from Bethany eastward. Ald. Thibodeau supported the motion, which however was defeated, 6 votes to 3.

Decision was taken to pave 55 feet joining Burroughs and Francis Streets — Ald. Pollock sponsored this motion, with Ald. S. Holt as seconder.

On the withdrawal of Messrs. Maurice Coulombe and Réal Urbain as valuators, the Mayor suggested the names of Henri St. Onge and Dr. J. P. Dorion, in addition to Linton W. Armstrong. Ald. Laurin was the only councillor in disagreement.

A corporation, "La Société de Publicité Sanita," was authorized to place 10 waste-disposal bins at various spots in town, for a period of two years.

Two communications were tabled for consideration — a quotation from Municipal Signal & Supply for a traffic light at Chatham Street and Brownsburg Road, also a request for a grant from the trustees of the Recreation Centre now under re-construction.

A damage claim from Mrs. Annie Burk for breakage of a fence and fence-post last winter, was referred to the town foreman for investigation.

Tax exemption was granted for the C.N.I.B. property on Drew Street.

Aldermen Laurin and Morrissette proposed that the discarded police-radio equipment be sold to Brownsburg for $200.

Accounts totalling $22,620.43 were passed for payment.

A tender for parking meters on Main Street was filed for future reference.

Permission was accorded to the Chamber of Commerce to set up a booth near the City Hall for tourist information.

Maurice Daoust, of Brownsburg, was engaged as assistant in the town office, at $45 a week. There had been a dozen or so applications for this position, but they were narrowed down to four, before final selection.

Ald. Laurèat Laurin gave notice of motion that, at next meeting, he will present a by-law to borrow $30,000 for the purchase of snow-removal equipment.

A bid was accepted from Adélard Mallette for $50 to paint one side of the civic auditorium — the town to supply the paint.

The meeting was adjourned until July 14.

Two vacancies filled by election to School Board

Results of the Lachute Protestant School Commissioners election Monday, for two vacancies, resulted as follows:

Dr. J. C. MacKimmie (elected)	87
Lorne R. Duncan (re-elected)	77
Ernest McOuat	57
Kenneth P. Riley	57

The vacancies occurred with expiry of the terms of Messrs. Duncan and McOuat, both of whom stood for re-election. Mr. Duncan was returned to office, and Dr. John MacKimmie is a newcomer to the board.

The total vote was 139, plus one spoiled ballot — representing a desultory interest among almost 1,000 taxpayers eligible to vote. Mr. F. A. Brennian was returning officer for the election, held at the High School.

Asphyxiated by monoxide fumes

Hawkesbury — A 46-year-old farmer, Bertyl Lodge Bradley, was asphyxiated Saturday when he dozed off in his closed barn near Fournierville, 15 miles south of Hawkesbury.

Police said Mr. Bradley was killed by carbon monoxide fumes from his tractor. Coronor Dr. Arcade Perrier of Hawkesbury ruled the death accidental.

The body was found shortly before eight o'clock Saturday night in a haystack inside the small barn by the victim's two brothers, who live on the adjacent farm. The victim was last seen working in the fields about 10 a.m. Saturday. A bachelor, he lived alone.

Masons honored

At a recent meeting of Grand Lodge of the Masonic Order, honors were conferred on Wor. Bro. W. J. Graham, of Brownsburg, and V. Wor. Bro. J. S. Dixon, of Dalesville, both members receiving their 50-year jewels. Wor. Bro. H. Graves was also recognized and given the title of Very Worshipful, being installed as Grand Steward of Grand Lodge.

Former resident injured by blast at Maniwaki

Lewis Strong, a former resident of this community and long-time Maniwaki businessman, was critically injured by a dynamite blast on Thursday afternoon last. The incident occurred close to Mr. Strong's lumber mill.

According to reports, Mr. Strong was working in the vicinity of the mill and is reported to have moved from cover too soon after the explosion. He was struck by a flying object and is reported to have suffered two broken arms, a broken leg, fractured ribs and a punctured lung. He was rushed to Maniwaki hospital and later transferred to hospital in Ottawa, where on Tuesday he was still reported to be on the critical list.

Air Cadets in summer camp at R.C.A.F. St. Jean

R.C.A.F. Station St. Jean, host to some 1,000 Air Cadets during the summer of 1959, once again finds its facilities taxed to the utmost with the arrival of the first group representing squadrons from provinces as widely separated as Nova Scotia and Manitoba.

Four camps, each of two weeks duration, will provide training and recreation for lads chosen from their home squadrons. In all, well over 2,000 Cadets will be stationed at St. Jean for the months of July and August. Each camp of about 550 boys will be billeted and fed on this station which is normally organized to serve as a training centre for trainees in the R.C.A.F.

During his stay at camp each cadet will have the opportunity to make a familiarization flight. The Cadets staying at St. Jean will not be without a taste of Air Force procedure. From the moment he sets foot on the base, the boy is made to adhere to rules and regulations. From early morning reveille until lights out at 10.30, every part of his day will be devoted to training, and recreation will follow a strict schedule, and in addition, planned tours to points of interest — affording a complete program designed to give the Cadet a most profitable and enjoyable stay in camp.

In order to provide trained personnel for home squadrons, a special NCO course will be held for boys specially chosen.

The spiritual part of the Cadets' stay is not overlooked. For many of these boys who are making their first long trip away from home, there is need for comfort and guidance. Additional members have therefore been added to the regular station padre staff.

Two found dead at Arundel, Que.; suicide verdict

The bodies of Linda Bennett, 34, and Borden Staniforth, 54, were discovered on the kitchen floor of the Staniforth home by Guy Langevin, a Huberdeau baker, on Friday afternoon last. The home is on the Rouge River road at Arundel.

According to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated, the baker reported having left bread and change in a shed on Wednesday of last week, as was his custom. He returned on Friday and found the items exactly as he had left them. Upon checking the house and looking in the kitchen door, he noticed the legs and feet of the two persons. He believed them to be asleep, and left the premises — returning later in the afternoon, the incident having caused him some wonderment and concern.

Upon his return, he entered the kitchen and found the two bodies in the same position. He immediately notified Game Warden Gordon Cook and the local detachment of Provincial Police.

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen went to the scene accompanied by Sgt. Albert Legault and District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur, who declared the deaths to be suicidal, caused by an overdose of sleeping pills.

Relatives and friends of both persons report the victims had appeared depressed since the spring, but could give no other explanation.

Chairman, police chief rapped for stepping on toes of commission

A report on police affairs presented by Ald. Horace Lamarche, committee chairman, at the Council meeting last week provoked discussion and some lively argument among the councillors.

Police Radio

At the meeting in June the police commission had been requested to investigate the rental or purchase of a radio communication system. Ald. Lamarche now reported that four different companies had submitted prices, and the offer of Canadian Marconi appeared the most acceptable. Ald. Lamarche met with disapproval from some of the councillors in the manner of presenting his resolution, however; they felt there was doubt in some of the clauses, and that the procedure of payment was not clearly defined.

It appears that the rental of radio equipment would cost the municipality $107.10 a month, plus $60 for the first month as charge for installation — with a six-month option to purchase. If the municipality decided to purchase the equipment in this period, the rental payments would be deducted from the price, which is $3,000.

Aldermen Laurèat Laurin and Réal Morrissette pressed for more information, on offers from the other companies, and asked why other members of the committee had not been informed on the negotiations. Ald. Lamarche insisted this had been an emergency situation, and he had gone ahead in all sincerity for the best interests of the town. The mayor had been advised of all proceedings and had apparently approved. . . . Other aldermen had been invited to test the equipment in the police patrol car, but they were not under the impression that the purchase was agreed upon.

Finally it was proposed by Ald. Lamarche and seconded by Ald. Gerard Lafebvre, that the equipment be rented from Canadian Marconi on a monthly basis until purchase or cancellation up to January 1 next. Aldermen Laurin and Morrissette voted against the motion.

New Constable

The resignation of Cst. Roger Boutet to become police chief at Brownsburg, and the temporary engagement of Cst. Gaëtan Thériault of Valleyfield by Chief Whiteway — also aroused controversy between the same three aldermen. Ald. Lamarche involuntarily sparked the argument in seeking to ratify or annul this engagement.

Ald. Morrissette first enquired by what authority Chief Whiteway could employ men without a word to the police committee. Ald. Lamarche replied that this was again an emergent situation, since Cst. Boutet had quit the force without notice.

Ald. Nelson Lepage agreed with Ald. Laurin, that it was strange the customary week's notice had not been given; and Ald. S. Holt also added his disapproval of this manner of procedure. He declared the committee should be summoned if any similar situation occurred in the future.

Making the disapproval more emphatic, Ald. Morrissette stated he would resign from the police commission if things were to continue this way.

In defence of the Chief, Ald. Lamarche said he (the chief) took the responsibility upon himself, and now asked the Council to ratify or reject the decision. . . . After a mild uproar, all voted in favor.

A bill for $96 for the services of two special constables during Fair Week was also passed for payment.

Ayersv'l to act on anti-noise complaints

With the mayor and two councillors absent, the Ayersville Council meeting last week was chaired by Maurice Dumas, pro-mayor.

A number of taxpayers were present, to lodge a protest on non-observance of the anti-noise by-law No. 37. Councillor Dumas informed the complainants that Council had conferred with Philippe Valois, legal advisor, and that proceedings would be taken against offenders in this matter.

Accounts totalling $13,661,74 were passed for payment. Held over were two others — one from Hotel Hebert, $201.70, for a reception following a sod-turning ceremony at the site of the proposed town hall; the other, $627.40, from H. Y. Maranda, for a traffic speed-detector which had not yet been delivered.

Disagreement on Committees

Councillor Douglas Simon invoked Article 65 of the Municipal Code to rescind his vote at the June meeting supporting the formation of committees. The article in question states that the "council shall appoint committees", it is not the prerogative of the mayor, and any councillor is free to accept or refuse participation on any committee.

The matter referred in particular to the mayor having transferred Maurice Dumas from the Public Assistance committee, on which he served last year, to the Water and Sewer committee, and replaced him on Public Assistance by Gérard Gauthier, a newcomer to the council. Councillor Dumas had objected, and Councillor Gauthier was agreeable to change to the other committee. . . . The whole business of committees will therefore be re-studied and submitted again for approval of the councillors.

A tender from Municipal Signal Co. for installation of a warning light on the police car, gave a quotation of $91; this was held over for study.

Building Permits

Building permits were granted on behalf of Roland Lacroix, Alexander Street; Georges Brisebois and Antonio Giroux, Chatham Street; Ovila Brunette, Durocher Street; Emile Racine, Bradford Street; Fernand Giroux and Jean-Marie Larocque, Chatham Street; also to Robert Legault for Ernest Leblanc, Georges Legault and Réal Allaire, all three on Hamford Street near the new hospital.

By-Law on Resolutions

Notice of motion was given for the adoption of By-law 43, to decree that future resolutions and by-laws of the municipality be recorded in each case with the name of the sponsor and the seconder. . . . This is the second time a resolution of this kind has been presented; it was rejected by a one-vote minority at the meeting in June.

The session was then adjourned until July 20.

Report for June proves police force wide-awake

Police Department revenues in the month of June brought $1,154 to the town coffers, according to a report submitted by Chief A. J. Whiteway. The report was presented to Town Council by the committee chairman, Ald. Horace Lamarche.

The amount comprises — $751.90 in collection of fines; $248.75 for bicycle licenses; $117 for dog licenses; $12 for taxi permits; $12 for identification cards; and $21.35 in other miscellaneous receipts.

The police force answered 281 service calls, investigated 28 car accidents, gave protection to 12 persons, made 8 arrests, brought 63 cases to court, issued 170 "tickets" for infractions, and performed various services outside their routine patrol.

The report of the Fire Department showed five fires responded to during the month.

Many contributed to C.N.I.B. picnic

The annual C.N.I.B. picnic was held at the Brownsburg Rotary Park on Wednesday, July 6. Some 70 sightless people and their friends were transported to the picnic grounds by members of the Lachute Lions Club. The luncheon and recreational activities were in charge of the C.N.I.B. Women's Auxiliary.

Those who contributed were as follows — Mr. W. Younkie, J. P. MacKimmie & Sons, Dominion Store, Wishing Well Soft Drinks, A&P Store, Chevrier Frères, Lowe's Dairy, Emilien Laurin, Fernand Larocque, E. Gilbert, Cousineau Reg. and Courtien Bakery.

Two subdivision areas to provide room for expansion in Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — At the conclusion of the July 4 session of the town council, Brownsburg was still without a replacement for Fire Chief Arthur Robbins who had handed in his resignation just prior to this month's regular meeting. In assisting Council to find a successor, Chief Robbins listed a number of highly desirable qualifications which he believed a fire chief should have. However, as in all appointments, the ideal is very difficult to attain. The Chief suggested that Council should consider their choice carefully, keeping in mind that the man they select will be required to bear heavy burdens, among them the responsibility for lives of the firemen whom he leads. A special meeting was slated for a later date, so that the councillors might thoroughly investigate the matter before making their decision.

On the routine side, Chief Robbins reported that the fire department had been summoned to one fire during the month; this was a chimney blaze of a minor nature. He then advised Council to carry out any planned waterworks repairs either prior to or subsequent to the C-I-L shutdown period, since the dam will be opened for repairs during this period, thus eliminating it as a source of water in case of fire.

Police Report

Police Chief Roger Boutet presented his first report, and left a rather good impression with his comments and suggestions concerning a variety of subjects, ranging from inhalator equipment to two-way radio. With regard to the latter, a good communication or signal system of one type or another could certainly be used to advantage at times.

Chief Boutet reported that a total of 45 speeders had been apprehended during the month. This is an all-time high, and if the monthly figures continue at this level perhaps some of those who flagrantly break the speed limit will eventually get the idea that this is a town where speeding is not recommended.

When a driver is fined for travelling at 63 m.p.h. down Maple Avenue North, it makes a few people think, "We should have a reason or justification for everything we do, but how could such a driver justify his speed, even to himself, if he struck a child?"

Councillor Gerald Vowles requested that regular police patrols be made to the Rotary swimming pool, to ensure that no one remains in the park after closing time. No doubt the Rotarians, who provide time and money for this project, will appreciate the protection provided for their buildings and equipment.

Subdivisions

Woodbine Avenue took a step closer to completion at this meeting, as Council passed approval on the subdivision plan presented by Arthur Lafrance on behalf of Frank Vowles. Now, a road, meeting town specifications, must be constructed before the council will accept the treet as municipal property. Across Main Street, the MacVicar subdivision is presently awaiting council approval. These two areas will provide sufficient room for long-awaited expansion in Brownsburg.

The paved road and new cement sidewalk have greatly improved the appearance and usefulness of Bank Street, but Council showed some concern over the appearance of a number of cracks across the width of the newly-laid cement slab. The foundation was apparently well prepaired, so the cause of the defect is unknown. Council announced that attempts will be made to repair the fractures.

Lions International is best known for its many youth programs, community service projects, sight conservation activities and aid to the blind. Last year Lions Clubs around the globe completed more than 192,000 individual community service projects.

Hold-up at bank in St. Eugene, Ont.

Three bandits held up the Bank of Montreal at St. Eugene on Tuesday of last week and escaped with some $3,000.

Ontario Provincial Police at Cornwall say the get-away car, a two-tone blue and white sedan, was found in the bushes just off the road to St. Justine late the day after the robbery.

They reasoned the bandits had transferred their booty to another car and continued on into Quebec. All road blocks in Ontario were lifted shortly after.

Bank manager Francois Brien, who described the thieves as "obviously professional", said "the most they could possibly have taken was $3,000, but it was unlikely they even got that much."

Mr. Brien said it was a miracle the robbers escaped at all as his wife, who thought something unusual was going on, phoned the police while the robbery was taking place. The Briens have an apartment above the bank.

The police arrived at about the same time the robbers disappeared.

Citizen honored by friends, associates on his departure

About 60 friends and fellow citizens gathered last Thursday evening at the Golf Club to bid farewell to an esteemed and valued townsman, Mr. Gérard Lefebvre.

Alderman Gerard Lefebvre

Tokens of appreciation were offered in recognition of his sterling service to the populace of this town in various roles.

Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon spoke on behalf of the civic authorities; Fernand Legault, Q.C., on behalf of the Catholic School Commission; Adhémar Cuerrier presented a token from the Chamber of Commerce; Roger Lagarde spoke on behalf of the social services; Lorne E. Duncan, on behalf of the Lions Club; Roger Regimbal, in the name of Ayers Limited and Dominion Ayers Wood Products. — In all these corporations, groups and organizations Mr. Lefebvre has filled an important niche and shouldered a full share of duties with energy and good will during his 10 years of residence here. . . . Horace Lamarche spoke feelingly on his departure from this community, on behalf of Mr. Lefebvre's many personal friends.

Master of ceremonies for this occasion was Philippe Tremblay.

Mr. Lefebvre, professional engineer, leaves Lachute and his many constructive interests here, to assume a vice-presidential position with Slater Shoe Company in Montreal.

Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

To make it short and not very sweet, the fishing has been poor. A couple of the lakes have been giving a little sport and a few fish, but they are in the minority. Even the private waters have been unproductive. A lot of reasons could be given, but as usual, how true they will be is "one of those things". About the only fish being caught are the bass, and not very many of these. The very heavy rains this past while have done a lot toward the slow-down; naturally, they will get all the feed they want.

My bosses (pardon me) are getting along very well. First of all I reported 10, and now it's 12. It's getting hard to keep track of them. Seeing them riding on the mother's back is sure funny. She looks like a bagatelleboard, when she is carrying them. It's wonderful watching her get them onto her back — a sort of co-operative manoeuvre. When the mother is frightened, a few chicks and the little ones are getting ready to scram. When the pressure is really on, she virtually skips along the surface of the lake with them on her back. Her feet just churn up the water as she goes by.

This is another little anecdote on birds . . . Watching a crow on the river bank the other day. You know how the shrubs and trees hang over the edges of the banks. Well, this crow was walking right under them. Naturally, I wondered why, but as soon as the crow hit a clearing I found out. There must have been a dozen birds of all kinds just waiting for it to come out. I have never seen any bird take a beating like this crow did! Why there were so many pestering it I cannot guess, but by the time he got away he was minus a lot of feathers!

Last year the different game departments in Canada and the U.S. started a new system of checking wildlife. Notably Ontario in this field. The different species are caught unharmed and a small transistor radio is placed somewhere on the animal. This way a signal is transmitting out by the wildlife, and picked up by a receiver, this gives some guide to the habits of the animal. This is one more reliable way to keep track of the game. Electronics sure are helping in the study of wildlife. I remember last year on the island watching the Ontario Department of Fisheries checking on possible whereabouts of schools of fish through the use of sonar, and what's more, finding them.

Camp fires are the next thing on the agenda. I heard of a fire which fortunately was found and put out by some of the boys from this district. In the Maple Lake area a campfire had been started and supposedly extinguished. Through luck, the gents finding it burning knew just what to do. As I mentioned the fire had apparently been put out, but not the underneath part. This was the part causing the trouble. It was burning under the ground, and even at a distance of 25 feet from the original fire, was going strong.

Right here we have one of the reasons why we fishermen are not given permission to fish certain lakes. The next thing I expect to hear is that Maple lands have been posted. Why? Just because someone didn't want to get their hands dirty from feeling the supposedly dead embers to see if they were really out. Fire is one of man's best friends when under control — but plain hell when not!

A lot of bird watchers in Lachute have phoned telling me of different species they have seen. In some cases they have been identified, but not always. According to biologists, southern birds we have never had around this part of the country are starting to make their homes here. I know of one kind that is usually seen only in the southern climates, which is now very prevalent in Lachute district. This is the Cardinal. There are very few pure red birds but this is one of them. Even the bill is red, so there shouldn't be too much trouble identifying them. They are common in the southern part of New York State, but I have never seen any up this way. Let's hope they are going to keep right on coming back.

This should interest the duck shooters: A family of Canada Geese are making their home not too far from town. Just amateurs, as they only have four young this time. This is another case of birds upsetting the applecart. Usually these game birds are not too frequent around this part of the country. If they are left alone, they probably will be back next year. This also applies to a lot of the ducks that may be seen around — Blue-winged, Teal, Mallards, Blacks, Ring necked, Scaups and Mergansers can be seen all over the place.

How about this for something: A certain gent managed to get himself 140 trout, from a lake in these parts. I don't know anything at all about this, but from reports they were all caught illegally. True sportsmanship! I think the game wardens are taking a holiday just now. One of these days they will be back in action, maybe.

Getting a fishing club together is not going to be an easy job. A lot of callers have all pointed out, and quite true, that summer is the time for fishing and not fooling around with an organization. This is sound and common sense. I'm not sensible though, as I will try and demonstrate:

To begin with, sure it's summer and the time for fishing — but also it's the time to do something for our streams and lakes. During the winter months these can't be cleaned up or built up. Another thing, you can't get at the causes of course fish — their spawning beds. Even dragging up a bottom of some stream along the edges will kill a lot of the spawn of unwanted fish. Trout, as we all know, like gravel beds, but other fish are not so particular. As a matter of fact, the carp minnows are all hatched in mud, so that all the mud in a stream or lake is a good spot to start. Sure, it's going to take a long time this way to get rid of them; but this is the point — they can be got rid of this way.

Taking out a lot of the obstructions in any place will improve the habitat of all game fish, if it is done properly. . . . And this is something that can only be done during the summer. Even a little clearing up of the banks can help a lot. A bunch of workers can do a lot of good work toward conservation in this way. It would be a worthwhile deal; what do you say?

Tragic losses

HOW CAN THE lesson of highway safety, of carefulness in swimming and boating, be drummed into the heads of Canadians and visitors to Canada?

The highway departments and the safety associations would dearly like to know the answer.

The total of accidental fatalities continues inexorably despite safety pleas issued by every known means. People now seem to take for granted the daily reports of traffic fatalities and the regular week-end toll of swimming and boating fatalities.

On the highways, at least, it seems to be a case of "the other fellow's fault" every time.

Any driver is familiar with the speed demon who darts into and out of a long line of traffic, getting back into line in the face of an approaching car at the last minute — by the grace of God and the willingness of a steady driver to slow down and let him get back in.

Any driver also knows the frustration caused by the slowpoke who dawdles along on a busy highway. Back in the jammed line of cars, if there's a dip ahead in the road, you can spot the cause of the tie-up. You can also spot those among the cars behind him which are impatiently edging out to get past.

Sometimes the hurry-hurry fellow gets back in line in time, and sometimes he doesn't. Sometimes the slow driver is safely passed, and sometimes not.

This same "me first" attitude causes a lot of the boating mishaps, especially when someone in a powerboat or outboard is tearing around, avoiding slower craft of course — but careless of what the big swells raised by his speed are doing to the rowboats and canoes in his wake.

In swimming, it's generally over-confidence or sheer bravado that gets a person in trouble. And there's not always an experienced swimmer handy enough to prevent disaster.

On the last Dominion Day holiday week-end, 112 persons accidentally lost their lives, a record total compared with 111 in 1958. Mishaps on the water claimed 41 lives. Traffic fatalities totalled 57, compared with the Canadian Highway Safety Council's prediction of 50 dead.

The latter body can predict fairly closely how many will die on the highways each holiday week-end.

But if everyone just exercised carfulness and courtesy, on highway or water, the figures would drop.

Corny commercials

LET'S FACE the facts . . . some of the commercials on our Canadian television are tiresome and terrible. In short, they're lousy. . . . A mere editor may be pardoned for expressing himself thus candidly; not so, of course, an educationalist. We leave it to one of these (Dr. Claude T. Bissell, President of the University of Toronto) to politely paraphrase the public sentiment:

"Advertising is a form of artistic presentation which attempts to be as close as possible to mass tastes; its mistake is that the tastes of the masses are not nearly as primitive and vulgar as some of the professional engineers of opinion seem to think they are.

"It is ironical that some advertising, expensively designed to appeal to the viewer, has become so obnoxious that devices for 'jamming' the ads are on the market, and that an increasing number of people are happy to pay by the hour for the privilege of adlessness.

"I am not, of course, unmindful of or ungrateful for the free society in which the individual has the right to ignore offensive advertising, with or without the aid of mechanical devices. I would prefer bad advertising to autocratic control and propaganda; but I would prefer good advertising to either."

Labor costs threaten industry

THE AVERAGE rate for production workers in the American machine tool industry, exclusive of fringe benefits, is $2.40 an hour. . . . Walter J. Campbell, editor of "Steel", drew a comparison recently with labor costs elsewhere. The $2.40 an hour compares with Western European rates as follows: England, 85 cents an hour; Germany, 60 cents an hour; Italy 35 cents an hour.

America's labor costs in the machine tool industry are four times greater than those in Germany, seven times greater than those in Italy. This means that in a machine tool costing $10,000 in the United States, the labor cost is $5,000. The labor cost on the same machine in Germany is only $1,250. . . . The narrowing margin of American technological superiority can no longer overcome so enormous a cost disadvantage, said Mr. Campbell.

It is significant to note, from the same source of information, that automobiles are being shipped or flown from the United Kingdom at the rate of three every two minutes. During the first three months of 1960 more than 220,000 motor vehicles were sent abroad, about 100,000 more than in the same period of 1959. The average weekly output this year was 30,000 cars and 9,000 commercial vehicles, a new record in that field.

Viewpoints and perspectives

BEWARE — With the daffodils and crocuses come the rackets that also bloom in the spring, warned The Financial Post recently.

There's the "expert" who can spot a crumbling brick in your chimney a block away.

The nursery stock salesman from a nameless company who can offer foundation plantings at what seem to be bargain rates.

A tree surgeon who can put your droopy maple back in shape.

There are plenty of legitimate door-to-door salesmen, but there are also the shady operators whose specialty is flim-flaming the public.

SPY PLANES. — It is a good thing the United States had the common sense to think up and act on such plans as spy planes. What are we supposed to do — let the enemy do all the spying and patiently sit back, wholly unprepared, to await the time they choose to attack us? —Campbellton (N.B.) Tribune

NEED MORE IMMIGRANTS — Canada's intake of immigrants last year was only 106,928, the lowest figure since 1949. We must realize in Canada that we have a big job to do if this country is to be opened up and developed. Too many of us are prone to think of immigrants as persons to fill jobs. In reality immigrants create as many jobs as they fill.
— Stanstead (Que.) Journal

SMALL TOWN — A small town's a place where everyone knows what everyone else is doing but still reads the local paper to see if they've been caught at it.
— Grand Falls (Nfld.) Advertiser

CRUCIAL QUESTION.—Canada's troubles in trade and manufacturing are cause for very deep concern, says The Financial Post.

Other countries are now able to turn out goods which were the virtual postwar monopoly of this continent. The impact of foreign competition on markets at home and abroad is now painful.

The crucial questions for Ottawa are:

"Should Canada have a growing or a diminishing secondary manufacturing industry as it is today? Should we go on — as we have under GATT assuming that the world is made up of angels who will do 'the right thing' about commercial policy? Or should we face the fact we are as far away from that utoplan day as we were a decade ago?

"The old clichés about free trade and protectionism have no relevance to Canada's problems today. There is no area more challenging to the statesmanship of our leaders. The results of a policy of drift will be irretrievable."

GOOD APPEARANCES. — The visitor to a municipality who sees well-ordered lawns and property will know the town is thriving and is a good place in which to live.
—Gananoque (Ont.) Reporter

GOVERNMENT EXAMPLE. — What every consumer knows, without reference to any index, is that it is costing him more this year than last for the things he wants to buy, and that he probably will have to pay still more next year. . . . No matter how much the economic pundits may preach the need for more saving, the consumer will pay little heed — at least until governments at all levels set him an example to follow.

SOCIALISM COSTS MONEY

A friend of mine told me the other day that I waste my time writing about socialism.

"Socialism cannot exist for very long," said he. "Little by little, the people begin to see that socialism is expensive. When payments for social services start to really pinch, they will come to realize that a dollar sent to Ottawa comes back badly shrunk. The day is getting closer when politicians will hesitate to promise more socialist schemes because the voters are getting wise to the fact that they must be paid for."

He may be right. However, governments — all governments — are inclined to hide the cost of social services. They take the money out of the good old General Fund. The people don't know what they are paying for — they only know they don't have much money of their own left for spending of their own choice. A few provincial governments have the courage to let the people know what various social plans are costing, and such rare government courage ought to be applauded.

Business, too, is inclined to pay up for welfare costs, without telling people about it. Businessmen ought to make it very clear that they pick up the check for a large portion of the handouts, and when business doesn't make money, social services are going to suffer.

Socialists get away with the most ridiculous claims from time to time. They will talk about the success of some state-owned enterprise, never once admitting that it had access to free capital, or that past failures weren't charged up against it.

The New Party, financed by union members who fail to "contract out," will have a fortune at its disposal for propaganda purposes. The socialist war chest will be full to overflowing. With such funds, it would be foolish indeed to think that socialism is going to pass out of the picture in a hurry.

The need to write about the dangers of socialism is, in my opinion, greater than ever. Socialists have attained influential positions in almost every important organization in Canada, and they are thus able to wield power far in excess of their numbers.

Inflation a Disease

— By Lewis Milligan —

If I am not mistaken, someone has suggested that the best way to cure a disease is to give the patient an extra dose of it. That, on the face of it, to say the least, is illogical. And yet it is being prescribed and applied as a cure for a disease that is debilitating the individual and corporate life of the nation — namely, inflation.

Is inflation really a disease? Economists generally say it is, and a bad one; although a few of them and many people who know or care nothing about economics claim that inflation is a good thing. Assuming that it is a bad thing and a virulent disease, which could prove fatal, the first thing for the doctors to do is to diagnose the complaint and discover the cause of it.

What, then, is the cause of inflation? Arthur Bryant, the historian, replied to that question in a long article appearing in The Illustrated London News of April 23. He reviews the symptoms of the patient and points out that he has been ailing here and there, due chiefly to over-indulgence on the one hand, and laziness or ignorance on the other. Organized labor has been demanding higher and higher wages for less and less work; more and more social security socialism from the government, with less taxes.

Taxes, ay, there's the rub. Mr. Bryant contends that the direct cause of inflation is high taxation. But high taxation is the reflection of the high demands on the government's treasury, which has no other means of sustenance. "No large sum of money on a national scale," says Mr. Bryant, "can any longer be raised except by taxing the industrial wage-earner. Any budget that involves substantial increases in the money raised by taxation is, therefore, almost certain now to result in further inflation. There are, thus, only two alternatives before any modern British government; to let organized Labor, with its irresistible power, force industry to raise prices to counteract increased taxation and so institute a new inflationary cycle, or, alternatively, to reduce expenditure in the public field so as to avoid the necessity for increased taxation."

What is a government to do in that situation? It cannot control wage-rates or prevent the consequent rise in prices. If it were to cut down its expenditures on "free" public services, taxes could be reduced or kept from rising. But, in that case, Labor would be justified in protesting that the loss of those services meant a serious rise in the cost of living, and to make up for it would demand higher wages to make up for the deficiency. In other words, they would be fighting inflation with further inflation, and the end of that battle would be industrial and social deflation.

"Once begun, as in the past, inflation is difficult to stop," says Mr. Bryant. "Nor can I see any end to our rulers' unhappy dilemma until they are strong enough or courageous enough, or both, to repudiate socialism and drastically reduce public expenditure. When the day comes when the British wage-earner realizes that the only alternatives before him are either a smaller effective wage-packet or a less lavish scale of expenditure on Public Services, the nemesis of socialism will have come. It may, of course, come too late, for the working man, like his better-to-do fellow taxpayer, may by then have become the helpless helot of the 'Servile State' and be unable to shake off its bonds. That is how the Roman Empire collapsed and Roman civilization with it." These are the words of a historian.

Cunard Line's 120th anniversary

Montreal, July 4 — The Cunard Steamship Company Limited marks its 120th year of carrying passengers, mail and cargo across the Atlantic Ocean.

Cunard, first steamship company to operate regular transatlantic passenger and mail services, was initiated on July 4, 1840, when the first ship of the line, the Britannia, sailed from Liverpool, England, for Halifax and Boston.

The 207-foot-long wooden paddle steamer carried 63 passengers. One of these was Samuel Cunard of Halifax, N.S., Canadian shipowner whose foresight and sound principles led to the development of the largest passenger fleet on the Atlantic.

Chief's advice for safe driving in holiday season

By driving at reasonable speed and by being courteous and attentive while driving, motorists will avoid a good number of accidents during the coming holiday periods. As it is, accidents will result despite all the control police officers can exercise over traffic.

This is the statement given by Police Chief A. J. Whiteway in warning against the increased traffic hazards motorists will face over the summer holidays.

Chief Whiteway gives the following advice to those undertaking long motor trips:

1. Watch out for pedestrians; don't forget to slow down at the approach to towns and villages.

2. Avoid overloading your car with passengers or with household effects; your line of vision in front, as well as at the rear, should be clear at all times.

3. Don't drive for more than two hours at a stretch; it is better to stop for a cup of coffee, than to become drowsy and fall asleep at the wheel.

4. Before passing another car, be sure you have enough time and room for safe clearance.

"If your trip takes you to sparsely populated regions," said Chief Whiteway, "you would do well to provide yourself with the necessary tools for minor repairs, and you should have a thermos of coffee, some sandwhiches and other food."

The Chief reminds every car driver that "highway safety makes driving fun," and urges drivers to behave accordingly at all times.

DUPED CUSTOMER

Vancouver (CP)— Police said they had a complaint from a man who took his $500 savings out of the bank and gave the money to a fortune teller, who said she could get much more money for it after she took it to the church for a blessing. When he returned, money and fortune teller had vanished.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Younger people won't remember this, but there used to be a time when there was no such thing as a portable radio.

Even in that era, a pair of lovers on a moving-picture screen could always conjure up music from somewhere. It was a stock joke among cynical movie fans, the way music followed couples around.

The boy and the girl could be floating downstream in a canoe or walking along a jungle path. It didn't matter where they were. As soon as they showed any interest in each other, the band struck up "Moonlight and Roses."

Sometimes the band started a little earlier than they did, to encourage them. You'd think they would be shy of making love, with a whole orchestra watching from behind the bushes. But they never seemed to worry about that.

Times have changed. Not only in the movies, but in real life, music is likely to burst from anywhere.

It no longer seems absurd to hear a Strauss waltz suddenly in the forest, a blues song at the bottom of a cave or a rock-and-roll number on a mountain top.

A small boy can carry a military band on his bicycle. A girl can carry a love song in her handbag.

"Wherever you go, there's radio." And wherever you go, there is noise in general. Wherever you go, there is a jet plane overhead.

Canada is a big country, with lots of empty space. But the space is filling up. In a future age, there will be no such thing as solitude. Wherever you go there will be people.

Pulp mills are being built in many parts of Canada. Some of the mills have a sulphurous odor that floats across the country for miles. There may come a day when there is no place free from pulp mill fumes.

Wherever you go, a smell of rotten eggs will follow you around until — maybe — you get used to it, and rotten eggs begin to smell like roses.

If we act in time, however, we may be able to save our sanity, by setting up smell-free, silent parks.

In these sanctuaries, radios and airplanes will be forbidden. No pulp mill will be allowed within 1,000 miles. People will be admitted only in small patrols.

And any creature that breaks the rule of quiet — even a blue-jay that utters a needless squawk — will be jailed in a padded cage until he learns manners.

MODERN AIRPART WAS COW PASTURE

Winnipeg (CP)— Veteran pilot Deke DeLong remembers that Winnipeg had a "nice, peaceful cow pasture" for a landing strip when he flew into the city 28 years ago with a commercial aircraft.

A modern airport greeted him when he returned to take part in the annual Manitoba Aviation Dinner. A Minneapolis resident, Mr. DeLong retired last year at 65 as the oldest active airline pilot in North America.

In the early days, it was easy.

"All you had to do was look at the ground to see how high you were. The early night guides were feeble beacon lights placed 15 miles apart along a given route. If you couldn't find the next light, you were lost."

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

To make it short and not very sweet, the fishing has been poor. A couple of the lakes have been giving a little sport and a few fish, but they are in the minority. Even the private waters have been non-producers. A lot of reasons could be given, but as usual, how true they will be is "one of those things". About the only fish being caught are the bass, and not very many of these. The very heavy rains this past while have done a lot toward the slow-down; naturally, they will get all the feed they want.

My loons (pardon me) are getting along very well. First of all I reported 10, and now it's 12. It's getting hard to keep track of them. Seeing them riding on the mother's back is sure funny. She looks like a hunchback, when she is carrying them. It's wonderful watching her get them onto her back — a sort of co-operative manoeuvre. When the mother is frightened, a few clucks and the little ones are getting ready to scram. When the pressure is really on, she virtually skips along the surface of the lake with them on her back. Her feet just churn up the water as she goes by.

This is another little anecdote on birds . . . Watching a crow on the river-bank the other day. You know how the shrubs and trees hang over the edges of the banks. Well, this crow was walking right under them. Naturally, I wondered why, but as soon as the crow hit a clearing I found out. There must have been a dozen birds of all kinds just waiting for it to come out. I have never seen any bird take a beating like this crow did! Why there were so many pestering it I cannot guess, but by the time he got away he was minus a lot of feathers!

Last year the different game departments in Canada and the U.S. started a new system of checking wildlife. Notably Ontario in this field. The different species are caught unharmed and a small transistor radio is placed somewhere on the animal. This way a signal is transmitted out by the wildlife, and picked up by a receiver, this gives some guide to the habits of the animal. This is one more reliable way to keep track of the game. Electronics sure are helping in the study of wildlife. I remember last year on the Island watching the Ontario Department of Fisheries checking on possible whereabouts of schools of fish through the use of sonar, and what's more, finding them.

Camp fires are the next thing on the agenda. I heard of a fire which fortunately was found and put out by some of the boys from this district. In the Maple Lake area, a campfire had been started and supposedly extinguished. Through luck, the gents finding it burning knew just what to do. As I mentioned the fire had apparently been put out, but not the underneath part. This was the part causing the trouble. It was burning under the ground, and even at a distance of 15 feet from the original fire, was going strong.

Right here we have one of the reasons why we fishermen are not given permission to fish certain lakes. The next thing I expect to hear is that Maple lands have been posted. Why? Just because someone didn't want to get their hands dirty from feeling the supposedly dead embers to see if they were really out. Fire is one of man's best friends when under control — but plain hell when not!

A lot of bird watchers in Lachute have phoned telling me of different species they have seen. In some cases they have been identified, but not always. According to biologists, southern birds we have never had around this part of the country are starting to make their homes here. I know of one kind that is usually seen only in the southern climates, which is now very prevalent in Lachute district. This is the Cardinal. There are very few pured birds but this is one of them. Even the bill is red, so there shouldn't be too much trouble identifying them. They are common in the southern part of New York State, but I have never seen any up this way. Let's hope they are going to keep right on coming back.

This should interest the duck shooters: A family of Canada Geese are making their home not too far from town. Just amateurs, as they only have four young this time. This is another case of birds upsetting the applecart. Usually these game birds are not too frequent around this part of the country. If they are left alone, they probably will be back next year. This also applies to a lot of the ducks that may be seen around — Blue-winged, Teal, Mallards, Blacks, Ring-necked, Scaups and Mergansers can be seen all over the place.

How about this for something: A certain gent managed to get himself 140 trout, from a lake in these parts. I don't know anything at all about this, but from reports they were all caught illegally. True sportsmanship! I think the game wardens are taking a holiday just now. One of these days they will be back in action, maybe.

Getting a fishing club together is not going to be an easy job. A lot of callers have all pointed out, and quite true, that summer is the time for fishing and not fooling around with an organization. This is sound and common sense. I'm not sensible though, as I will try and demonstrate:

To begin with, sure it's summer and the time for fishing — but also it's the time to do something for our streams and lakes. During the winter months these can't be cleaned up or built up. Another thing, you can't get at the causes of coarse fish — their spawning beds. Even dragging up a bottom of some stream along the edges will kill a lot of the spawn of unwanted fish. Trout, as we all know, like gravel beds, but other fish are not so particular. As a matter of fact, the carp minnows are all hatched in mud, so that all the mud in a stream or lake is a good spot to start. Sure, it's going to take a long time this way to get rid of them; but this is the point — they can be got rid of this way.

Taking out a lot of the obstructions in any place will improve the habitat of all game fish, if it is done properly. . . . And this is something that can only be done during the summer. Even a little clearing up of the banks can help a lot. A bunch of workers can do a lot of good work toward conservation in this way. It would be a worthwhile deal; what do you say?

Friend, admirer receives letter from world champion

Last week, Pierre Lafortune received a letter from the heavyweight champion of the world, Floyd Patterson, who recently regained his title by defeating Ingemar Johansson in five rounds. In this letter Floyd wishes to thank his fans, and declares:

"May I say to my good friends in and around Lachute, that I appreciate their prayers and moral support, as I do the warm friendship shown to me by my friends all over the world. I appreciate their never-failing confidence in me, and the fact that they were with me, win or lose. My best wishes to all of you.

— Sincerely,

Floyd Patterson."

Tragic losses

HOW CAN THE lesson of highway safety, of carefulness in swimming and boating, be drummed into the heads of Canadians and visitors to Canada?

The highway departments and the safety associations would dearly like to know the answer.

The total of accidental fatalities continues inexorably despite safety pleas issued by every known means. People now seem to take for granted the daily reports of traffic fatalities and the regular week-end toll of swimming and boating fatalities.

On the highways, at least, it seems to be a case of "the other fellow's fault" every time.

Any driver is familiar with the speed demon who darts into and out of a long line of traffic, getting back into line in the face of an approaching car at the last minute — by the grace of God and the willingness of a steady driver to slow down and let him get back in.

Any driver also knows the frustration caused by the slowpoke who dawdles along on a busy highway. Back in the jammed line of cars, if there's a dip ahead in the road, you can spot the cause of the tie-up. You can also spot those among the cars behind him which are impatiently edging out to get past.

Sometimes the hurry-hurry fellow gets back in line in time, and sometimes he doesn't. Sometimes the slow driver is safely passed, and sometimes not.

This same "me first" attitude causes a lot of the boating mishaps, especially when someone in a powerboat or outboard is tearing around, avoiding slower craft of course — but careless of what the big swells raised by his speed are doing to the rowboats and canoes in his wake.

In swimming, it's generally over-confidence or sheer bravado that gets a person in trouble. And there's not always an experienced swimmer handy enough to prevent disaster.

On the last Dominion Day holiday week-end, 112 persons accidentally lost their lives, a record total compared with 111 in 1959. Mishaps on the water claimed 41 lives. Traffic fatalities totalled 57, compared with the Canadian Highway Safety Council's prediction of 50 dead.

The latter body can predict fairly closely how many will die on the highways each holiday week-end.

But if everyone just exercised carfulness and courtesy, on highway or water, the figures would drop.

Corny commercials

LET'S FACE the facts . . . some of the commercials on our Canadian television are tiresome and terrible. In short, they're lousy. . . . A mere editor may be pardoned for expressing himself thus candidly; not so, of course, an educationalist. We leave it to one of these (Dr. Claude T. Bissell, President of the University of Toronto) to politely paraphrase the public sentiment:

"Advertising is a form of artistic presentation which attempts to be as close as possible to mass tastes; its mistake is that the tastes of the masses are not nearly as primitive and vulgar as some of the professional engineers of opinion seem to think they are.

"It is ironical that some advertising, expensively designed to appeal to the viewer, has become so obnoxious that devices for 'jamming' the ads are on the market, and that an increasing number of people are happy to pay by the hour for the privilege of adlessness.

"I am not, of course, unmindful of or ungrateful for the free society in which the individual has the right to ignore offensive advertising, with or without the aid of mechanical devices. I would prefer bad advertising to autocratic control and propaganda; but I would prefer good advertising to either."

Labor costs threaten industry

THE AVERAGE rate for production workers in the American machine tool industry, exclusive of fringe benefits, is $2.40 an hour. . . . Walter J. Campbell, editor of "Steel", drew a comparison recently with labor costs elsewhere. The $2.40 an hour compares with Western European rates as follows: England, 85 cents an hour; Germany, 60 cents an hour; Italy 35 cents an hour.

America's labor costs in the machine tool industry are four times greater than those in Germany, seven times greater than those in Italy. This means that in a machine tool costing $10,000 in the United States, the labor cost is $5,000. The labor cost on the same machine in Germany is only $1,250. . . . The narrowing margin of American technological superiority can no longer overcome so enormous a cost disadvantage, said Mr. Campbell.

It is significant to note, from the same source of information, that automobiles are being shipped or flown from the United Kingdom at the rate of three every two minutes. During the first three months of 1960 more than 220,000 motor vehicles were sent abroad, about 100,000 more than in the same period of 1959. The average weekly output this year was 30,000 cars and 9,000 commercial vehicles, a new record in that field.

Viewpoints and perspectives

BEWARE — With the daffodils and crocuses come the rackets that also bloom in the spring, warned The Financial Post recently.

There's the "expert" who can spot a crumbling brick in your chimney a block away.

The nursery stock salesman from a nameless company who can offer foundation plantings at what seem to be bargain rates.

A tree surgeon who can put your droopy maple back in shape.

There are plenty of legitimate door-to-door salesmen, but there are also the shady operators whose specialty is flim-flaming the public.

SPY PLANES. — It is a good thing the United States had the common sense to think up and act on such plans as spy planes. What are we supposed to do — let the enemy do all the spying and patiently sit back, wholly unprepared, to await the time they choose to attack us? —Campbellton (N.B.) Tribune

NEED MORE IMMIGRANTS — Canada's intake of immigrants last year was only 106,928, the lowest figure since 1949. We must realize in Canada that we have a big job to do if this country is to be opened up and developed. Too many of us are prone to think of immigrants as persons to fill jobs. In reality immigrants create as many jobs as they fill.

— Stanstead (Que.) Journal

SMALL TOWN — A small town's a place where everyone knows what everyone else is doing but still reads the local paper to see if they've been caught at it.

— Grand Falls (Nfld.) Advertiser

CRUCIAL QUESTION.—Canada's troubles in trade and manufacturing are cause for very deep concern, says The Financial Post.

Other countries are now able to turn out goods which were the virtual postwar monopoly of this continent. The impact of foreign competition on markets at home and abroad is now painful.

The crucial questions for Ottawa are:

"Should Canada have a growing or a diminishing secondary manufacturing industry as it is today? Should we go on — as we have under GATT assuming that the world is made up of angels who will do 'the right thing' about commercial policy? Or should we face the fact we are as far away from that utoplan day as we were a decade ago?

"The old clichés about free trade and protectionism have no relevance to Canada's problems today. There is no area more challenging to the statesmanship of our leaders. The results of a policy of drift will be irretrievable."

GOOD APPEARANCES. — The visitor to a municipality who sees well-ordered lawns and property will know the town is thriving and is a good place in which to live.

—Gananoque (Ont.) Reporter

GOVERNMENT EXAMPLE. — What every consumer knows, without reference to any index, is that it is costing him more this year than last for the things he wants to buy, and that he probably will have to pay still more next year. . . . No matter how much the economic pundits may preach the need for more saving, the consumer will pay little heed — at least until governments at all levels set him an example to follow.

SOCIALISM COSTS MONEY

A friend of mine told me the other day that I waste my time writing about socialism.

"Socialism cannot exist for very long," said he. "Little by little, the people begin to see that socialism is expensive. When payments for social services start to really pinch, they will come to realize that a dollar sent to Ottawa comes back badly shrunk. The day is getting closer when politicians will hesitate to promise more socialist schemes because the voters are getting wise to the fact that they must be paid for."

He may be right. However, governments — all governments — are inclined to hide the cost of social services. They take the money out of the good old General Fund. The people don't know what they are paying for — they only know they don't have much money of their own left for spending of their own choice. A few provincial governments have the courage to let the people know what various social plans are costing, and such rare government courage ought to be applauded.

Business, too, is inclined to pay up for welfare costs, without telling people about it. Businessmen ought to make it very clear that they pick up the check for a large portion of the handouts, and when business doesn't make money, social services are going to suffer.

Socialists get away with the most ridiculous claims from time to time. They will talk about the success of some state-owned enterprise, never once admitting that it had access to free capital, or that past failures weren't charged up against it.

The New Party, financed by union members who fail to "contract out," will have a fortune at its disposal for propaganda purposes. The socialist war chest will be full to overflowing. With such funds, it would be foolish indeed to think that socialism is going to pass out of the picture in a hurry.

The need to write about the dangers of socialism is, in my opinion, greater than ever. Socialists have attained influential positions in almost every important organization in Canada, and they are thus able to wield power far in excess of their numbers.

Inflation a Disease

— By Lewis Milligan —

If I am not mistaken, someone has suggested that the best way to cure a disease is to give the patient an extra dose of it. That, on the face of it, to say the least, is illogical. And yet it is being prescribed and applied as a cure for a disease that is debilitating the individual and corporate life of the nation — namely, inflation.

Is inflation really a disease? Economists generally say it is, and a bad one; although a few of them and many people who know or care nothing about economics claim that inflation is a good thing. Assuming that it is a bad thing and a virulent disease, which could prove fatal, the first thing for the doctors to do is to diagnose the complaint and discover the cause of it.

What, then, is the cause of inflation? Arthur Bryant, the historian, replied to that question in a long article appearing in The Illustrated London News of April 23. He reviews the symptoms of the patient and points out that he has been ailing here and there, due chiefly to over-indulgence on the one hand, and laziness or ignorance on the other. Organized labor has been demanding higher and higher wages for less and less work; more and more social security socialism from the government, with less taxes.

Taxes, ay, there's the rub. Mr. Bryant contends that the direct cause of inflation is high taxation. But high taxation is the reflection of the high demands on the government's treasury, which has no other means of sustenahce. "No large sum of money on a national scale," says Mr. Bryant, "can any longer be raised except by taxing the industrial wage-earner. Any budget that involves substantial increases in the money raised by taxation is, therefore, almost certain now to result in further inflation. There are, thus, only two alternatives before any modern British government: to let organized Labor, with its irresistible power, force industry to raise prices to counteract increased taxation and so institute a new inflationary cycle, or, alternatively, to reduce expenditure in the public field so as to avoid the necessity for increased taxation."

What is a government to do in that situation? It cannot control wage-rates or prevent the consequent rise in prices. If it were to cut down its expenditures on "free" public services, taxes could be reduced or kept from rising. But, in that case, Labor would be justified in protesting that the loss of those services meant a serious rise in the cost of living, and to make up for it would demand higher wages to make up for the deficiency. In other words, they would be fighting inflation with further inflation, and the end of that battle would be industrial and social deflation.

"Once begun, as in the past, inflation is difficult to stop," says Mr. Bryant. "Nor can I see any end to our rulers' unhappy dilemma until they are strong enough or courageous enough, or both, to repudiate socialism and drastically reduce public expenditure. When the day comes when the British wage-earner realizes that the only alternatives before him are either a smaller effective wage-packet or a less lavish scale of expenditure on Public Services, the nemesis of socialism will have come. It may, of course, come too late, for the working man, like his better-to-do fellow taxpayer, may by then have become the helpless helot of the 'Servile State' and be unable to shake off its bonds. That is how the Roman Empire collapsed and Roman civilization with it." These are the words of a historian.

Cunard Line's 120th anniversary

Montreal, July 4 — The Cunard Steamship Company Limited marks its 120th year of carrying passengers, mail and cargo across the Atlantic Ocean.

Cunard, first steamship company to operate regular transatlantic passenger and mail services, was initiated on July 4, 1840, when the first ship of the line, the Britannia, sailed from Liverpool, England, for Halifax and Boston.

The 207-foot-long wooden paddle steamer carried 63 passengers. One of these was Samuel Cunard of Halifax, N.S., Canadian shipowner whose foresight and sound principles led to the development of the largest passenger fleet on the Atlantic.

Chief's advice for safe driving in holiday season

By driving at reasonable speed and by being courteous and attentive while driving, motorists will avoid a good number of accidents during the coming holiday periods. As it is, accidents will result despite all the control police officers can exercise over traffic.

This is the statement given by Police Chief A. J. Whiteway in warning against the increased traffic hazards motorists will face over the summer holidays.

Chief Whiteway gives the following advice to those undertaking long motor trips:

1. Watch out for pedestrians; don't forget to slow down at the approach to towns and villages.
2. Avoid overloading your car with passengers or with household effects; your line of vision in front, as well as at the rear, should be clear at all times.
3. Don't drive for more than two hours at a stretch; it is better to stop for a cup of coffee, than to become drowsy and fall asleep at the wheel.
4. Before passing another car, be sure you have enough time and room for safe clearance.

"If your trip takes you to sparsely populated regions," said Chief Whiteway, "you would do well to provide yourself with the necessary tools for minor repairs, and you should have a thermos of coffee, some sandwiches and other food."

The Chief reminds every car driver that "highway safety makes driving fun," and urges drivers to behave accordingly at all times.

DUPED CUSTOMER

Vancouver (CP)— Police said they had a complaint from a man who took his $500 savings out of the bank and gave the money to a fortune teller, who said she could get much more money for it after she took it to the church for a blessing. When he returned, money and fortune teller had vanished.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Younger people won't remember this, but there used to be a time when there was no such thing as a portable radio.

Even in that era, a pair of lovers on a moving-picture screen could always conjure up music from somewhere. It was a stock joke among cynical movie fans, the way music followed couples around.

The boy and the girl could be floating downstream in a canoe or walking along a jungle path. It didn't matter where they were. As soon as they showed any interest in each other, the band struck up "Moonlight and Roses."

Sometimes the band started a little earlier than they did, to encourage them. You'd think they would be shy of making love, with a whole orchestra watching from behind the bushes. But they never seemed to worry about that.

Times have changed. Not only in the movies, but in real life, music is likely to burst from anywhere.

It no longer seems absurd to hear a Strauss waltz suddenly in the forest, a blues song at the bottom of a cave or a rock-and-roll number on a mountain top.

A small boy can carry a military band on his bicycle. A girl can carry a love song in her handbag.

"Wherever you go, there's radio." And wherever you go, there is noise in general. Wherever you go, there is a jet plane overhead.

Canada is a big country, with lots of empty space. But the space is filling up. In a future age, there will be no such thing as solitude. Wherever you go there will be people.

Pulp mills are being built in many parts of Canada. Some of the mills have a sulphurous odor that floats across the country for miles. There may come a day when there is no place free from pulp mill fumes.

Wherever you go, a smell of rotten eggs will follow you around until — maybe — you get used to it, and rotten eggs begin to smell like roses.

If we act in time, however, we may be able to save our sanity, by setting up smell-free, silent parks.

In these sanctuaries, radios and airplanes will be forbidden. No pulp mill will be allowed within 1,000 miles. People will be admitted only in small patrols.

And any creature that breaks the rule of quiet — even a blue-jay that utters a needless squawk — will be jailed in a padded cage until he learns manners.

MODERN AIRPART WAS COW PASTURE

Winnipeg (CP)— Veteran pilot Deke DeLong remembers that Winnipeg had a "nice, peaceful cow pasture" for a landing strip when he flew into the city 28 years ago with a commercial aircraft.

A modern airport greeted him when he returned to take part in the annual Manitoba Aviation Dinner. A Minneapolis resident, Mr. DeLong retired last year at 65 as the oldest active airline pilot in North America.

In the early days, it was easy.

"All you had to do was look at the ground to see how high you were. The early night guides were feeble beacon lights placed 15 miles apart along a given route. If you couldn't find the next light, you were lost."

Mr. Robert Carpenter, of Buffalo, N.Y., was a recent guest of Mr. Harold Mason; these friends had not met for over 40 years.

The Brownsburg W.I. meeting was held Thursday last in the High School, when Mrs. C. L. Stephens gave an interesting report of the recent convention.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Morrison have returned home after spending the past week with their daughter, Mrs. John Wilson, Mr. Wilson and family, in Bancroft, Ont.

86th Birthday

Congratulations to Mr. Harry Gardiner, who will celebrate his 86th birthday on Sunday, July 17.

Recent wedding at Avoca, Que., of wide interest

Dobbie-Vaillancourt

Avoca — Standards of gladioli and shasta daisies adorned St. Andrew's United Church at Avoca on Saturday, July 2, for the marriage of Margaret Joan, eldest daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Vaillancourt, to Robert Bates Dobbie, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dobbie, of Harrington, Que.

The Rev. Geo. Clifford officiated, assisted by Mr. Kenneth Brown, student pastor. Mrs. Russell Owens played the Wedding March.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Clarence MacLeod, the bride chose a white floor-length gown of silk organza with Chantilly lace madallions detailing the full skirt. The bodice was fashioned with a low scalloped neckline encrusted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The long sleeves extended in points over the hands. Her short veil of silk organza was detailed with lace; the head coronet was of sequins and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchid, yellow roses and stephanotis.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marjory Vaillancourt, as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Fay Dobbie, Mrs. Thos. Kelly, Miss Ann Perrigo and little Shirley Joan Bates as flower girl.

The maid of honor wore yellow organza, and the bridesmaids similar frocks in aqua organza, with matching Juliet caps outlined with sequins, seed pearls and streamers. They carried semi-cascade bouquets of yellow roses and shasta daisies.

Mr. Allan McGrath was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Charles Bates, John Prophet, and Earl MacLeod.

Mrs. Vaillancourt, the bride's mother, wore blue organza over flowered taffeta, with white accessories and a corsage of pink Delight roses. Mrs. Dobbie, the groom's mother, was wearing a Déja gown in gold pure silk mikado, a beige petalled hat, beige accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

The reception was held in Harrington Intermediate School, where gladioli and shasta daisies were used in decorating. For travelling the bride chose a yellow batiste voile gown with a bouffant skirt; she wore a white petalled whimsie, white accessories and a white hybrid orchid. The couple will reside in Belleville, Ont.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Enid Bates, Mr. Duncan Angus, Mrs. Lily Burns and grandson Dwayne, Mr. and Mrs. Allan MacLeod, all of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. David Mitchell and family, Mr. Chas. Mitchell, Miss Eva Mitchell and Mr. Chas. BRIGHTEN CHILDREN'S HOMES

The bonds of international friendship were tied a little tighter recently when the Canadian Travel Bureau in Ottawa mailed a large box of Canadian publications to each of the 26 Children's Homes overseas sponsored by the Unitarian Service Committee. Cries of delight will soon ring out in a variety of foreign tongues as over 1,000 children in Asia and Europe receive maps of Canada, posters, and booklets bedecked with things Canadian from Mounties to mountains, and from traffic signs to totem poles. The Children's Homes are part of over 62 relief projects conducted by the non-denominational USC, with Headquarters at 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

McLeod-Stewart wedding in Mont'l

The marriage took place in St. Andrew's Church, St. Laurent, of Miss Joan Patricia Norah Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, to Mr. Ronald Gilmour MacLeod, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward MacLeod, of St. Laurent, the Rev. J. A. Hockin officiating.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a white bouquet taffeta and Chantilly lace gown styled with an empire lace bodice, scoop neckline and long sleeves. Her full length taffeta skirt, cut on princess lines, had lace panels on the back which fell into a chapel train. Her bouffant veil was held by a coronet of matching lace and seed pearls. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white gardenias and white carnations.

Miss Diana Stewart, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a sateen printed cotton frock with sprays of blue flowers on white background styled with a fitted bodice, full skirt and matching blue cummerbund which formed a bow at the back, matching blue shoes and white mesh hat. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and white stephanotis.

Miss Marilyn MacLeod, the groom's sister, was bridesmaid. She wore a similarly styled dress to that of the maid of honor.

Mr. Robert F. Giles was best man, and the ushers were Mr. James Donnan and Mr. Raymond Jones.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the Elizabeth Salon, Town of Mount Royal. Later the couple left for a trip to the Pocono Mountains, Pennsylvania. BELL LINES

by Bill Flanigan
your telephone manager

It could be true: Stormy rains ripped away part of the paper on a large billboard advertising some of the telephone company services. Beneath the torn outer paper was an old Christmas message, sponsored by a local mortuary. The result was this heartening message: "Peace on Earth . . . Find it Fast in the Yellow Pages."

* * *

Phone ahead and you'll get ahead . . . Do we appear to be harping on the same old subject? Well, we feel that to remember this is to save yourself possible grief, especially at this time of year. Phone ahead for reservations, phone ahead for reassurance. And if you're off on vacation shortly (you lucky people!) have a wonderful time and we'll look forward to seeing you on your return.

* * *

More people than ever before are boating and swimming this season. The last thing we want to do is appear pessimistic; but if we face facts, well, it's very worthwhile to have a knowledge of water safety. The Bell Company, a Canadian pioneer in first aid training, has a great number of employees experienced in first aid. Here in Lachute, Bell people like Jim Menzies, fall into this category. Our employees are being strongly encouraged to learn all that they can about water safety this season. If we can keep ourselves out of "troubled waters," well, that's the important thing; and if we can help others out of difficulty, then that's doubly important. . . .

* * *

We'd like to put in a little plug here for careful dialing. You've probably been pestered time and again by callers who tell you they have the wrong number or, worse, who hang up the moment you answer the phone, without saying a word. We can set a good example if we, (1) Make sure we have the correct number; (2) Jot the number down; (3) Listen for the dial tone; (4) Dial carefully; (5) Refer to the number while dialing. And if, by chance, we should happen to get a wrong number through no real fault of our own, the least we can do is apologize for the inconvenience we've caused — don't you think?

Spiced days, quiet nights — recharging one's batteries for the suburban winter

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

Here we are back at the old farm, and are we (as the English girls say) ever glad to be here! Today, the rain taps smartly on the porch roof, while I tap less agilely on the typewriter. The man of the house is doing something with putty at the sink, which prompted me to relate the poor TV joke of the wife who said her husband was a do-it-yourself man. Every time she asked him to do something around the house, he said, "Do it yourself!" The cat of the house has just arisen from a 14-hour sleep and gone to bask in the warmth of the kitchen stove. Such delights are unknown in the city. He is being especially good, with the bland smugness of a spoiled child, for we left the other, younger cat (his tolerated rival) in the city, with the daughter. It seemed a fair division. She, of course, could not leave her bugs.

As was remarked above, it rains. . . . Let us think about rain. It is wet, it patters on available objects, it makes the robins chirp happily, and the earth-worms emerge thirstily, it blesses the gardens and the crops, and maddens the week-enders. We feel it is a nice facet of weather, so soothing after the brazen golden days. . . . Come to think of it, it rains every week-end.

We remember last week-end when it poured in the Townships, much to the disgust of our hostesses at Bolton Centre and Brome Centre, two enlarged crossroads, one beyond Bolton Pass. We had not been in those parts for lo, these many years, and had forgotten how beautiful, in the English manner, is the countryside. Bolton Pass, of course, is not English, merely British, as it is very like the district near Loch Lomond called the Trossachs. At Brome Centre, the rolling land looking toward the hills is reminiscent of the Surrey Downs. It is beautiful country, and still familiar to the writer, so that coming to one of the innumerable four corners, we have no hesitation in taking the correct turn. . . .

We wonder at our hardness of heart, for we still prefer the Laurentians. Here there are few springs bubbling up with cool wetness, brooks are an event, the summers are hot and the winters hard, the people are not forthcoming — but my heart rejects the Townships and cleaves to the Laurentians. My lungs like it here, not that there is anything wrong with them, but they do appreciate this sweet, thin air spiced with pine and balsam. We like the knowledge that just six to ten inches below our feet are the oldest rocks in the world, even though they make sinking a well, a major financial gamble! We adore the clear mountain lakes, at least until they are surrounded by people, then we avoid them. We like the slow soft-spoken people, not quick to welcome, but steadfast in their affection once they have done so. . . . And we like the silence. Oh, blessed silence. In our new suburban home, although the children are quieter than in the other suburb, belonging to a different type of home, yet the trains still shriek, the traffic buzzes, the lawn-mowers practise moose-calls, and the occasional plane rumbles overhead. Here is peace, even the motor-boats are too far away to bother one.

To return to the Townships, where several of our friends have lately bought property, two of them abandoned farms. . . . In one of them lives an elderly couple, whose married daughters share the place with them during the summer. The owner is now 88, a native of Bedfordshire, whence he fled when he was 16. Between those two ages, he has seen a good share of the world, beginning with South Africa, and ending in Canada, with Germany, Holland, France, England in between. In his extreme youth he was apprenticed to a gardener on the estate of Gilbert of the renowned pair, Gilbert and Sullivan. He has been master-farmer on a C.P.R. farm, has managed the estate of one of our tobacco baronets, has sat on the council of one of our Montreal suburbs, and now, except for failing eyesight, is enjoying his latter years in his garden. The wife has splendid eyesight, but can walk little due to arthritic trouble. But with his legs and her eyes, they make a remarkable pair — good-looking, alert and keenly interested in world affairs as well as their own, something not too common in people half their age.

The other place where we visited, is, like this one, a refuge. Its owner, a female doctor, flees to it to lick her wounds, after a week of chronic complainers, of screaming children, of patients who pay no attention to medical advice, of young mothers who call doctors only late at night and on Sundays, of old people who fall downstairs and young ones that break their legs on skis. It would seem to the writer that doctors must inevitably take a cynical view of life in general and people in particular. In this farm set on the edge of a swamp, but with a wonderful view of the hills at Orford and Bolton, the doctor finds seclusion and peace. She has a Franklin stove, which pretends to be a hearth. As our night there was a cool one, we all sat around the open stove in great enjoyment, each with a book; three dogs were coiled up in various spots. No radio, no TV, little talk. How dull, you will exclaim! I always think this kind of remark tells of a mind occupied only by trivial things, so that, the trivialities being withdrawn, the mind is empty, and scuttles frantically about looking for further distractions. Anyway, with a dull book, one can change it.

And now, with visits and election over, one looks forward to a long, dull, rewarding summer. Right now, one is fighting weeds in the garden, next will be picking strawberries, followed by a succession of small fruits. There will be warm, spiced days, and clear, cool, quiet nights. We shall recharge our batteries for the assaults of another suburban winter.

For Parents Only . . .

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Happy Times Outdoors

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"We had such happy times outdoors when I was a child in our big shady yard. But we have so little room for play material for our boy!" Mrs. Stuart sighed.

"But a small child must have something to play with or he will wander off!" her friend replied.

"Our sand box is small, but the children have a heap of fun in it!"

Every child is different. The size of a backyard, the location and climate vary. But if parents have money for only one piece of play equipment, a sandbox is usually a good choice. Keep it filled with clean sand with sufficient digging utensils within a child's reach. A sand-pile is a never failing source of enjoyment and a well-built box will not wear out or fall apart. It can be ordered from a large sports shop or a department store. Almost any father who is handy at tools can get specifications and construct one. A large box can be converted into a sand container with small seats and an easily adjusted cover to keep out the rain, as well as stray animals who might visit it at night.

Simple sand playthings, shovels, wooden spoons, old sifters or cooking equipment such as a funnel or sieve, and a can with holes punched in the bottom, should all be kept in a box or on a shelf nearby. It is confusing for a small child to sit down in a sandbox amidst a clutter of yesterday's toys. It is good training for small children to be encouraged to put away their play things at the end of play time. The sandbox should be placed, if possible, where it will be in the shade during the hot hours in the late morning, but will have sunshine either early or late in the day. An adjustable awning shade is very useful.

An old fashioned hammock and a sturdy swing, or a teeter-totter are all grand fun. So is a jungle gym, which is a simply constructed climbing apparatus with four posts and eight rounded cross bars forming a sort of double gates. It is a marvellous place to climb and balance! A child can scramble up it shortly after he starts to walk. Later a small ladder at one end and a slide at the other greatly increases its fun possibilities. Even a short home-made ladder is a splendid piece of outdoor equipment. Sometimes a child will tumble a short distance. But small children have a knack of "falling limply" and avoiding grave injuries.

If a jungle gym seems a rather ambitious piece of play equipment, be sure you do erect a swing. If there is a large tree with a strong lower limb, all you need is a stout rope and a wooden seat. But if you have no suitable tree, you can dig holes, sink two strong posts into it and then add rocks and cement to make them firm. A strong cross-bar can form the support for one or two swings.

Perhaps a parent might consider a small play-house, something only for little girls. But little boys soon claim it as a "club-house" for their gang. Occasionally, three or four children can have a picnic supper all by themselves in the play-house as a special treat.

To a small girl, a playhouse is a place of enchantment where she can "keep house", sweeping, dusting, setting the table, arranging the furniture, just like mother. She loves to have a place in it for her dolly's clothes. In quite a different way from her brother, she considers a play-house one of the best things a child can own.

One of the least expensive pieces of play equipment is a large covered box in which are kept large and small blocks of all kinds and shapes which may be obtained from a lumber yard where they are sold as kindling. This rather odd, unpainted collection of wood is much more popular as building material for the little boys than the neat "store" set of painted blocks all the same size.

A little wagon, a tricycle or a wheelbarrow, are wheel toys which never lose their charm for the "small fry". An enclosed play space is the ideal thing for small children. So many of them get hurt in tragic traffic accidents. A tiny child runs out on the highway after a ball and he may be knocked down by even a careful driver. But mothers must warn their children to keep off the road. If they are old enough to be trusted on a sidewalk, they must be on the lookout for a car or truck backing out of a driveway.

Otter Lake music festivals opened Saturday

Otter Lake Music Centre is now in its eighth year of holiday music-making at Round Lake Inn, Weir, from July 3 through July 31.

As in previous years, members are attending from every age group and from a wide variety of professions and occupations, to take part in musical activity designed for all levels of skill and experience, from beginners to advanced musicians. An interesting new feature this summer is the introduction of the Carl Orff Method for children.

Students are allowed special rates, which also apply to children who accompany their parents.

A grant from the Adult Education Division of the Province of Quebec Youth and Social Welfare Department assists materially in the operation of the Centre's activities. Also a number of scholarships have been awarded to deserving applicants, by music and intrument companies, and by anonymous donors.

Program

The program for Friday evenings provides for member-participation in Bach Cantata performances.

The Saturday evening public concerts, patronized by people from these parts, are listed as follows:

July 9 — The Montreal Bach Choir; George Little, Director.

July 16 — The Rowland Pack Chamber Singers.

July 23 — Le petit ensemble vocal — Claire Masella (soprano), Marcelle Dumontet (mezzo-soprano), René Lacourse (tenor), Claude Letourneau (baritone).

July 30 — Jan Simons, baritone; Mario Duschenes, flutist; Otto Joachim, violist; Carl Little, pianist.

This year there is space for camping close to the Centre for those who wish to provide their own tents and equipment, and take part in the activities of the Centre.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary, P.O. Box 195, Outremont (CR 9-1987).

KINDNESS REPLACES OLD STRAIT-JACKET

Selkirk, Man. (CP)— The Manitoba Hospital for Mental Diseases "doesn't want strait-jackets," says Dr. R. H. Tavener, medical superintendent. "They only serve to further frustrate the patient."

Dr. Tavener said modern methods of handling a violent patient consist of personal attention and kindness, with a nurse always present.

LHS girl taking Red Cross course

The Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean, St. Johns, Que., one of the three Canadian Services Colleges, is the site of the 1960 Junior Red Cross Leadership Training Centre for teenage delegates from the five eastern provinces of Canada. From July 12 to 21, some 85 girls and boys, 15-18 years of age, from Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, are meeting at St. Johns. Sponsored by their own high schools they have been selected to study both Junior and Senior Red Cross services, in order that they may be leaders in the promotion of their program for Health, Service to Others and International Friendship in their respective schools, thereby encouraging good citizenship amongst all students.

The daily schedule includes talks, discussions, panels, films and many activities. Water Safety demonstrations will be featured each afternoon.

Raspberry Cup Pudding

For the Raspberry season

Fresh, juicy-sweet raspberries are a summer delight. Even if one served them in a different dish every day, the number of recipes that could be made with this delicately flavored berry wouldn't be exhausted. In this recipe for Raspberry Cup Puddings the flavors of raspberries and lemon are combined, and the result is a delectable dessert that's an ideal antidote to sun-wilted appetites.

The puddings are made in individual little baking dishes. A delicate batter is spooned over a layer of fresh raspberries and then topped with a tasty lemon sauce. As the puddings bake the sauce runs under the batter and mingles with the berries. Before serving, turn the puddings "bottoms up" onto plates with a raised rim, then pass the pouring cream.

Raspberries Cup Puddings
(Self-sauced)

— Yield, 6 servings —

For the sauce — 2 teaspoons corn starch, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

For the pudding — 1 cup ripe raspberries, ¾ cup once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 1 cup once-sifted pastry flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind, ¼ cup milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Grease 6 custard cups. Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate).

For the sauce, combine the corn starch and sugar in a small saucepan; stir in boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly, until the syrup comes to the boil. Stir in lemon juice. Cool.

For the pudding, pick over, wash and thoroughly drain the raspberries, then divide them among the 6 prepared dishes. Sift together the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening; gradually blend in sugar. Add egg and beat it in well; stir in lemon rind. Combine milk and vanilla. Add sifted ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with milk, combining after each addition. Spoon batter over berries, making dishes not more than two-thirds full. Pour lemon syrup over batter. Place the puddings on a baking sheet and bake in preheated oven 40 to 45 minutes. Carefully turn out onto plates for serving. Pass pouring-cream.

The most beautiful cake in the world can be a flop if it falls apart when served.

Here are a few hints to assist in making neat slices of cake and pie.

The batter type of loaf and layer cake should be cut with a sharp, straight-edged, thin-bladed knife. For perfect slices, keep the blade free from frosting and cake crumbs by dipping it in warm water before each cut is made.

Foam cakes such as angel and chiffon cakes should be cut with a serrated blade using a slow sawing motion. If a serrated knife is not available two forks can be successfully substituted. Separate the pieces by lightly pulling the forks away from each other as the cake is broken.

Fruit cake will slice easily when chilled. Use a sharp, straight-edged thin-bladed knife and a light touch. The knife should be dipped into hot water before each cut. Slice with a slow sawing motion.

A clean heavy thread is the tool used to slice jelly or cake roll. Place a 15-inch piece of thread under the cake roll where you want it sliced. Bring the ends of the thread up on each side of the roll and cross them over the top. Pull the ends of the thread quickly down to cut completely through the cake roll.

Meringue-topped pies can be sliced easily if the blade of the pie knife is buttered before using.

Cutting pie into equal slices for a family of five is easy if you follow this pointer from the Bakery Foundation of Canada. First cut a "Y" the width of one serving, then make two more cuts — one on each side — dividing each of the two larger pieces. The result is five similar slices of pie.

Brownsburg couple's "15 of a family"

From C-I-L Contact, Issue of July 4

Brownsburg — When Emile Hébert, stores clerk at Brownsburg Ammunition Works, gets home at night, he finds the house very quiet in comparison to what it was a few years ago.

The Héberts have 15 children. His daughter Andrée, 16 years old, who attends high school in Brownsburg, is the only one at home.

Mrs. Hébert finds that she has time on her hands in her brand-new bungalow. She remembers her two-storey house on St. André Street where boys and girls were constantly coming and going. Now most of the family are married and away from home.

Louis is a teacher in Dorion; Jean-Claude works in the engineering department of the Northern Electric Company in Montreal.

Germain practices dentistry in Rosemere; Jacques, an accounting student at Sir George Williams University, works at the Brownsburg plant during the summer. Yvon, a brother in the Clercs de St. Viateur order, teaches in St. Lambert.

Four brothers still live near their parents. René is a customs officer in Lachute. Paul Emile owns a restaurant in Brownsburg, and Ronald is in the hotel business in Ayersville. Rolland has been an operator in the detonator section of Brownsburg Works since 1951.

Five of the daughters are married. Reine-Ange, Jacqueline, Rollande, Arlette and Raymonde live in Lachute, Thurso, St. Johns (all in Quebec) and Cool Lake, Alberta, respectively.

Emile has been working for the company for 42 years and plans to retire next year.

Mrs. Hébert fills her days with her housework and such hobbies as crocheting, weaving and gardening. A beautiful collection of bedspreads, rugs, tablecloths and napkins which she made at the Cercle des Fermières in Brownsburg brightens every room in her house.

She gives some of her time to the Red Cross and other social work, but the high point of the week is Sunday — visiting day for her children — when the house once again is full of the sound of many voices.

Weaving "catalogne", the distinctive French-Canadian handicraft, is one of the rewarding pastimes of Mrs. Emile Hébert, Brownsburg. Her daughter, Andrée, looks on.

Aged man found dead at Huberdeau

Thomas Johnson, an 82-year-old Huberdeau resident, on Wednesday of last week was found dead in his bed, with a shotgun in the immediate vicinity.

An active outdoorsman in his lifetime, Mr. Johnson suffered a stroke in the early spring, and was partially paralyzed in recent months.

He is survived by his wife and two sons. A verdict of suicide was rendered by District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur. Sgt.-Det. R. Allen investigated the incident.

Freda Pemberton Smith artist featured in next A.A.A. exhibit

The coming exhibition of the Argenteuil Art Association, featuring oil paintings by Freda Pemberton Smith, is arousing interest among the art fraternity and picture-lovers in the district. . . . Open to the public free of charge, the display will be on view from 2 to 5 p.m. daily, Saturday, July 30, to Sunday, August 7, at the municipal hall, St. Andrews East.

Freda Pemberton Smith, born in Montreal, 1902, received her art training chiefly in Montreal as a pupil of E. Dyonnet, R.C.A. She received several awards during her years of study, and notably, for school-girl work, a gold medal from the Royal Drawing Society of London, England.

Her work was interrupted by the Second World War, during which she served as a Red Cross V.A.D. in Canada and England; and following the war, by a period of Art teaching.

Her painting has been represented in exhibitions of the Royal Canadian Academy, the Ontario Society of Artists, the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, in travelling exhibitions and in private collections.

The paintings to be shown in the coming exhibition are culled from sketching trips of the last four years in regions as far as Alert Bay, B.C., and Ferryland, Nfld., as well as many points between. . . .

Miss Pemberton Smith is residing at Cushing for the summer season.

Dorothy Pfeiffer, in a Montreal Gazette appraisal of works by this artist at an exhibition last February, stated:

"The Newfoundland scenes are painted with vigorous and observant spontaneity which sometimes is lacking in careful organization.

"Miss Pemberton-Smith is successful in her invigorating and expressive smaller sketches, hastily painted with passionate intensity.

"In other paintings, various gem-like nuances of sunlight on schooners, shore and water, combine authoritative interpretation of nature with impulsive technique.

"Study of Miss Pemberton-Smith's painting shows that she is keenly alive to certain aspects of today's art-trends. Portions of her varied works could be described as being in tentative agreement with abstract-expressionism."

Federation of Agriculture stresses Farm Safety Week, July 24th-30th

"A recent national survey of farm accidents in Canada indicated that one in every four farm families is involved in a farm accident annually, and one in every 50 such accidents is fatal," says Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. "This, in itself, is justification for the C.F.A.'s endorsation of Farm Safety Week, July 24 to July 30.

"We know that July is the worst month for farm accidents," said Dr. Hannam, "as 13 per cent of last year's accidents occurred during July. We think then, that this is an ideal time to conduct such a safety program. More and more of our farmers are turning to machines and mechanical devices to replace the dwindling supply of farm workers, with the inevitable result, more accidents."

While expressing the desire that farm people would practice farm safety 52 weeks of the year, the C.F.A. president called upon farmers to actively participate in Farm Safety Week, and to encourage their neighbors to do likewise.

Every person who realizes the tremendous losses incurred by Canadian agriculture through farm accidents, becomes immediately aware of the need for an effective accident prevention program. By participating in this program you are alerting yourself to the dangers, and preventing painful and costly accidents to others. Wholeheartedly, this newspaper endorses Farm Safety Week, July 24 to July 30, and encourages active participation.

Photos published with weddings and engagements

Readers submitting photographs in connection with wedding reports and engagement announcements, are reminded that engravings are required in order to print from such photographs. In the case of a reproduction the same size, it takes The Watchman 24 hours or more to procure the engraving or printing-plate; therefore such pictures must be received by The Watchman on Monday morning at the latest. . . . In the case of 8x10 pictures or photos to be reduced in size, these take considerably longer, and should be received by this newspaper the previous Thursday.

The Watchman makes no charge for this service except the actual cost of the printing-plate.

2 local lawyers appointed as crown attorneys

According to advice received yesterday from the Attorney General of the Province, two local barristers — Fernand Legault, Q.C., and Roger Lagarde — have been appointed joint crown prosecutors for this County. The two lawyers are also appointed Quebec Liquor Commission attorneys for the area.

Weir resident drowned when car plunged in river

Earl Tomalty, a 48-year-old Weir district resident, was accidentally killed early Saturday morning when the car he was driving went out of control and plunged into a small river on the Beaven Lake Road, near his home. He was accompanied by his 15-year-old son, Bruce, who managed to escape from the submerged car.

The accident occurred around 1.30 a.m. Saturday, and according to Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen, who investigated, every effort had been made to revive the victim. His son was unable to free him from the car and went for help. The body was recovered a short time later and nearby residents practised artificial respiration, but to no avail. Dr. R. B. Henry, of Arundel, directed operations and later pronounced the victim dead.

District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur declared the death accidental, due to drowning.

4-H Club selects judging team

At a meeting of the Lachute 4-H Calf Club held recently at the farm of Arnold Parker, Ronald Bain, Lloyd Elder and Edward Nicoll were chosen to represent the club at the Montreal District Judging Competition.

The competition is to be held on Thursday, July 28, at Macdonald College. The two top judges of this competition compete in the Provincial Contest held at Sherbrooke, the last week of August.

The Lachute team is being trained at several farms around Lachute by Donat Martin, local agronome, and Ross Oswald, club leader, with the assistance of Donald Parker and Davis MacVicar, who are assistant leaders. A special note of appreciation goes to the local breeders who have graciously given their time and the use of their herds in the training of the team.

Orders to enforce age requirement in movie theatres

Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen reports having received orders from the Department of the Attorney-General of the Province, to the effect that the age requirement on persons attending movie theatres is to be strictly enforced.

In explaining the law, the detective pointed out that no children under the age of 16 years were to be admitted to moving picture theatres, and added that all such establishments in the County had been advised of the intention to enforce this law.

Massed bands at Glengarry annual highland games

There will be 100 pipers and more marching in the massed bands at Maxville, Saturday, July 30, as Glengarry entertains at its big day of the summer. A record number of pipe bands is expected at this year's Glengarry Highland Games, according to Games' Secretary John Jamieson.

Fourteen bands, including at least three from the U.S., have intimated they will be competing for the valuable trophies and prize money, as well as playing en masse in the Games' most colorful spectacle.

More than 100 Highland dancers, among them North America's best, will be competing in the dance events which get underway in the morning.

Official opening will be at 1:30 p.m., when the massed bands parade and the Games will be opened by King Gordon of New York City, son of the late Ralph Connor, author of Glengarry novels.

Piping competitions, caber tossing, track and field events, will round out a full day of colorful activity in old Glengarry.

2 Natural deaths, summer cottagers

Two summer residents succumbed to heart attacks during the past week, both deaths being declared due to natural causes, by District Coroner Dr. Jules Lafleur. The investigations were carried out by Sgt.-Det. Ralph Allen.

Frederick White, a 58-year-old N.D.G. resident, was found dead in a living room chair by his 15-year-old daughter, Beverley, early Sunday evening. The Whites were vacationing at their cottage on Barron Lake, Lakefield, and Mr. White was reported to have been sitting up waiting for his daughter to return from an early evening outing in that area.

Another Montreal resident, J. C. Aubé, 55, dropped dead early last week at his summer residence at the Bourbonniere Camps, St. Jerome Road. Mr. Aubé is reported to have lain down after supper, complaining of indigestion, and was later found dead in the living room.

$30,000 loan by-law passed, taxpayers called to approve

After three readings by Council last Thursday evening a by-law was formally adopted to provide for the borrowing of a sum not exceeding $35,000. The amount is earmarked for snowcleaning machinery for roads and sidewalks, and other road maintenance equipment . . .

Specifically included is a Sicard junior-type snow blower or equivalent; tractors for sidewalk snow-removal; a hydraulic wing-blade for the snow truck; an asphalt roller and other items.

The by-law, No. 221, was piloted through Council formalities by Ald. Lauréat Laurin, who had given due notice of motion on July 6 last.

The term of the loan is seven years, with $5,000 and interest repayable each year.

To give public authorization of this loan, a meeting of the taxpayers was called for Wednesday, July 20, at 7.30 p.m. In the event of opposition from more than 20 taxpayers, the law requires the calling of a referendum; if less than 20 voice dissent, the by-law becomes automatically adopted.

Police Radio and Other Business

Ald. Horace Lamarche, chairman of the police commission, presented comparative quotations for different makes of radio-communication sets, from tenders submitted to the committee for study. It was apparent, as mentioned by Ald. Lamarche at the previous meeting, that the offer from Canadian Marconi was the most advantageous, and the police committee were authorized to retain this on a rental basis until the end of the year. . . . The police committee, with Mayor McGibbon and Police Chief A. J. Whiteway, held caucus prior to the Council assembly.

Council also decided unanimously to invite tenders for a new patrol car or station wagon.

On recommendation of Ald. R. Morrissette tenders will be requested also for the erection of a fire escape from the east side of the Council hall in the civic building.

This special assembly was chaired by Mayor Jas. W. McGibbon, with Aldermen Horace Lamarche, A. Thibodeau, L. Laurin, S. Holt, Réal Morrissette and Stanley Church in attendance.

Fr. Baptists seek Council's blessing on broadcasting

On behalf of the French Evangelical Baptists, the minister of the local congregation, Mr. Jean-Marc Methot, appeared at the special Council meeting last week to ask approval to a plan for street broadcasting around Lachute. Mr. Methot and his colleagues were asked by Mayor McGibbon to submit the request in writing.

A letter has been sent accordingly to each of the councillors. From this communication we reproduce the following extracts (broadly translated):

Ayersville, July 15, 1960

To whom it may concern:

The present request of the French-speaking Baptists seeks approval for spreading of the Gospel by loudspeaker on the town streets in the following manner:

(1) Inviting the people to read the Word of God and giving them the opportunity to procure free copies of the Gospel (Roman Catholic version, as approved by the clergy).

(2) Presenting, in brief messages, God's promise of free salvation through repentance and belief in Christ.

(3) Announcing our own evangelical meetings.

As the purpose of this request is purely religious, not commercial, we are confident the Lachute councillors will give willing approval.

Articles 18-19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights give every man the liberty of thought, conviction, opinion and expression, in private and in public, by any means whatever.

Besides which, the Code des Fabriques (Parochial Law) by Judge Gérard Denis (p. 140) submits that preaching is a matter essentially religious.

Moreover, Ch. 307, Art. 2, of the Quebec Revised Statutes, 1941, gives freedom to exercise religion of all faiths without discrimination.

The Catholic Church itself uses loudspeakers; and more, it blocks entire streets and slows traffic (sometimes to a complete stop) with its religious processions.

On what grounds therefore can the Baptists be forbidden to use loudspeakers to spread the Word of God, so long as such practice does not interfere with the movement of traffic?

The Scriptures say: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that falleth from the mouth of God." . . . We, Baptists, wish to place the Scriptures in the hands of the public. . . . And we sincerely trust that you will support us in our endeavors.

Thanking you in anticipation of your kind co-operation,

(Signed)
Jean-Marc Methot,
Minister, Ayersville.

Saved friend's life atop hydro pole

Maniwaki, Que. — Clifford Langevin, a Gatineau Power Company lineman, saved the life of colleague Romeo Brunet last week by administering mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration from the top of a hydro pole.

The men were working near Messines, when Brunet was knocked unconscious by electrical shock. Langevin climbed to his rescue and managed to restore the man's breathing as they both hung from the pole.

Ann FitzGerald led Junior field, district clubs

Twenty-eight eager Junior girl golfers from six district clubs attended the Lachute Golf and Country Club's Junior Invitation Event held on Tuesday, July 12.

Sparkling golf was played by the girls who ranged in ages from 11 to 18 years. Four each played from the following clubs . . . Cornwall, Abernaki (Hawkesbury), St. Andrews, Dunany, Whitlock (Hudson), and Lachute.

Ann FitzGerald, Lachute, led the field with a sizzling low gross of 86 — 13 strokes better than her score of 99 which won the same tournament last year.

Judy Ritchie, Dunany, was runner-up with a second low gross of 94.

Patsy McLeod, Hawkesbury, won the first low net of 70.

Joy Ritchie, of Dunany, and Nancy MacQuistan, of Whitclock, shared low net honors with a tie of 72, but Joy was declared the winner of the 2nd place with the best back nine, and Nancy took the 3rd low net prize.

Jane Andrews, of Cornwall, was awarded the prize for the "most honest golfer."

Both the Ritchie twins improved their scores over last year's performance, when they were also among the winners.

This inter-club play is part of Lachute club's contribution to the Quebec Branch CLGU Junior development program. The girls are entertained at the club for lunch and afterwards are guests of Leda and Jane Ayers at their swimming pool.

On July 11, after having attended the Golf Clinic at Whitlock, Ann FitzGerald, Ian Cairns and Earl McCaskill played in the Whitlock 18-hole Junior Mixed tournament. This trio managed to come back to Lachute in time to participate in another 18 holes in the Lachute Junior Mixed tournament held in the afternoon. The winners of this local event were:

Girls — Ann FitzGerald with a gross of 86; runner-up — Ann Cunningham.

Boys — Michel Midjley, gross 83; runner-up Ernie Ayers.

The young golfers enjoyed dancing and refreshments in the evening.

July 6-7 — Ann FitzGerald was among the competitors for the Junior Provincial Championships held for two days at the Royal Montreal Golf Club.

July 2 — Mrs. Victor Whitehead, Junior Development chairman for the province, helped the local juniors to herald their golf season by inviting them to a rally at her home in Dorval. Those attending were — Karen de Breyne, Ann Cunningham, Leda Ayers, Jane Ayers, Patsy Lafleur, Sissy Middleton, Johanne Perrier, Chantal Lavigne and Ann FitzGerald.

The highlight of the day for the Juniors was a demonstration on the use of clubs by Judy Darling, who succeeded in imparting some of her own enthusiasm as well as some aspects of her technique.

"The Sixties – Decade for planning"; Forum topics outlined for season

"The Sixties — Decade for Planning." That title provides the theme for the 1960-61 National Farm Radio Forum season and sets the stage for some extremely controversial and interesting broadcasts and Forum Gides.

The first broadcast of the season will be a pre-discussion program, presented on Hallowe'en night. Rallies and get-togethers to organize the Farm Forum for the new year will be in order.

Then, on November 7, the topic will be: "Essential Rural Services: Who Should Pay?" This subject will plunge the Forums into an examination of the tax structure which presently leans heavily on a few remaining farmers to support the rural economy.

Also in November, "Our On-Farm Business," and "Cost of a College Education."

Such hard-hitting subjects lead directly into the three-part series planned for January: "The Business of Farming." The parts will be entitled respectively; "On the Farm," "In the Marketplace," and "A National Price Policy."

Later in the season, local auctions, inflation, the two-price system, disease control, and the high cost of farm equipment will all be examined.

This list of topics, suggested by the Forums last year and developed at the recent National Farm Radio Forum Conference in Prince Edward Island, may well be the most timely in years.

Mobile test unit for driving permits

The mobile unit of the Provincial Auto License Bureau will be stationed at the Court House, Lachute, on Friday, July 29, from 9 a.m. Any wishing to qualify for driver's permits are requested to apply on this date.

Robbery at garage, St. Jerome highway

Murdoch's Garage, located at the junction of Route 41 and the Vide Sac Road, was robbed one night early last week, the thieves escaping with a considerable sum of money, tires, a typewriter, an adding machine and other office equipment.

Entry to the building was gained by breaking through the wall from the washroom into the garage. Sgt.-Det. Allen investigated the break-in.

Commons reference to Carillon locks, navigation depth

Ottawa — The key to construction of deep-water navigation facilities of the Ottawa River, is a high-level bridge at Ste. Anne de Bellevue near where the Ottawa enters the St. Lawrence — Transport Minister Hees said in the Commons last week.

Navigation on the Ottawa was urged in the Commons by Osie Villeneuve (C—Glengarry - Prescott) during study of transport department spending estimates.

Mr. Villeneuve said he brought up the question because of the power dam being built at Carillon, about halfway between Ottawa and Montreal. He said if the Ottawa River is to be used for deep-water navigation the lock at the dam should be of sufficient depth to meet present-day navigation requirements.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

This may make some of you laugh. It seems one of our better-known 'trollers, copper line and all, was out last Sunday. Trolling with a couple of other fellows, there was not much luck until late in the afternoon. This particular gentleman got himself a strike; naturally the old grab-and-heave system comes into play. It was a good one and it headed down for the bottom, taking the line out very slowly but steadily. Sulking on the bottom, the fish just stayed right there until some furious pumping got it on the way up. By this time the angler was really hot under the collar. Don't forget the line was out for hundreds of feet. After a terrific fight of about 10 minutes it finally broke water. . . . Guess what? A nice little stump, waterlogged of course, with a few limbs sticking out of it; naturally this swinging in the water had given the impression of a fish fighting. . . . Oh yes, there was a fish on his gang spinner. A grey of about 10 inches, the poor thing was dead; drowned, naturally. . . . By the way, at the finish of this the gang razzed the angler so much that he went home.

As we can expect, the fishing is starting to drop off in the trout species. The other types of fish are making up for this shortage though. Bass are hitting very well, both on spinners and the fly, while the perch are really making things interesting for the worm-dunkers. The North River is giving up plenty of these gourmet types, and will continue to do so for a good long time yet. You can all have your lakes, but it still takes the Old River to produce all the time.

As mentioned, bass are being caught in ever increasing numbers. For the fly man, this is one the best ways of catching them: Just at dusk use a small popper on, instead of a fly; this is a surface lure, very small and light. Flipping into some lily pads, waiting for a short time, and then twitching it, will almost always bring results. This is a terrific way of fishing, and one of the most prolific for the bass. Another way is to use a small floating lure, and I do mean small. Keep lifting this on the surface so that it will make a lot of noise, then watch the results.

For the perch, they will take almost anything. Last week-end we were out on a lake supposedly for the odd trout. After catching some bass and lots of perch, the trout were forgotten. Catching the perch became a certain thing after a while — two flies and you had two perch. These were all put back as they were not up to the ¾ or 1 lb. class, but it won't be too long before they are. Then watch out.

Believe it or not, someone has finally got out of a sound sleep, and at last is doing something about the Tourist Bureau. Let's hope some of this "Let's get something done" will rub off on some of the other projects. At least this is a start, and one that should earn the appreciation of all of us. Because, strange as it may seem, we all benefit in some way or other. One more good deed would be getting something done about the junk being dumped on the roadsides. It is not very nice for anyone who may pass through our district to see some of the mounds of refuse. I know most people don't think of this much, but as a stopper of revenue to a town or city, this is a sure way of doing it. Even throwing a cigarette box out of your car window is helping to dirty our highways. It's just as easy to carry a bag in your cars, dumping anything into it that may accumulate on your trips. Of course, the throwing of empty bottles and cans out of any vehicle is plain stupid, and persons caught doing this should be treated as such (stupid people). It does seem strange that anyone should treat their homes in this manner — and the outdoors is our "home", if we only stop and consider it.

The number of Partridge that can be seen around this area bodes well for the upland hunters this fall. Even the Pheasants promise some sport of a sort. I do know of one brood that have hatched, six young that I know of, and possibly many more, will make it very interesting for the fall. Even the deer seem to be getting into the spirit of it all; a good number of them have been reported and seen all around. I haven't heard anything of the moose for awhile, but no doubt they are holed up somewhere out of sight. The rabbits are in abundance; the numbers of young that can be seen around the roads makes you wonder just how they all get fed. The gardens in some spots sure have taken a beating this year!

A lady phoned me the other night to tell me of the Scarlet Tanagers up around Dunany. This year these birds are not rare hereabouts, and let's hope they will continue to keep coming back. They are a beautiful bird, and one well worth the watching. As I mentioned last week, the different birds in evidence have put everyone out on a limb regarding their habits. It's an idea to try and get yourself a small bird book at one of the local stores. These are not expensive, and they give information on the better-known birds. There are a lot that are not in this book, of course, but for the price you could hardly expect it. At any rate, they are well worth having with you on your walks in the bush. It's surprising how many different bird varieties you can identify after a short while. This book also gives their history, and this too makes it well worth the price. (I'll bet there are no more in stock — will my face be red, and not from giggle-juice either!)

Makes a man feel ten feet tall! What does? Why, having money in the bank, of course! When you've got a nice pad of savings behind you, you can take advantage of sale prices. And when you spot something you want, you can pay cash for it. Or, if someone in the family gets sick, it's nice to know the money is right there to look after him. The fact is, everything in life looks better when you've got cash in the bank. And it doesn't take long to run up a nice sum when you make small but regular deposits. Yes sir, money in the bank really does give a man that ten-feet tall feeling. Do you know where I save my money?

Umpiring the baseball umpire

SPORTS CAMERA

By Jim Bastable,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The picture of a squat, broad-shouldered gentleman standing his ground behind home plate, barking at enraged players or managers, has tickled fans down through the years.

His decisive calls of "Stee-rike . . . " or "ball . . . " have incensed many folks. And his air of infallibility can be annoying, to say the least.

Now, in this age of guided missiles and moon strikes, comes a machine that could eliminate those arguments that spice any game.

Lloyd K. Knight of Glen Cove, N.Y., has been granted a patent on an automatic device with an eye so true on balls and strikes, that the plate umpire could sit in the stands and make the calls by watching a monitor.

This is how it would work; Balls and strikes would be determined by using three television cameras — one on each side of the batter and the third as close overhead as rules permit. Only two cameras would be used at one time, the overhead camera to determine whether the ball went over the plate and one of the side cameras to determine its height. Which side camera is used would be governed by whether the batter was right or left handed.

On Record

On any disputed call, the umpire could re-run the tape record to settle the argument.

By setting three cameras in the stands at different angles the accuracy of calls on base runners could be verified.

Knight, from a baseball family and former pitcher in the United States Air Force, says his intent is not to do away with umpires, but to make their decisions infallible.

For those who relish the human touch, do not fear. Such an innovation is a long way off. The equipment is not yet in production, although parts have been tested.

It is questionable whether the idea will catch on. After all, the umpire is an institution.

B-A to sponsor football on TV

Montreal — British American Oil will repeat its television sponsorship of major league Canadian professional football in 1960.

The CBC television network will carry 21 Big Four games and 11 Western Interprovincial Football Union games, plus playoffs in both leagues and the Grey Cup final. B-A will sponsor half of each league and playoff game. Sponsorship of the remaining half has not yet been announced.

Eastern league games will be carried on both English and French connected networks from St. John's Newfoundland, through to the Lakehead. Western games will be seen from Winnipeg to Victoria, B.C.

Normal local blackout restrictions will apply to all games with the exception of the Grey Cup game, which will be carried live on all stations across the country. Vancouver will be the site of this year's Grey Cup final, on Saturday, November 26.

Trapshoot annual championships

Montreal — The boom of 12 gauge shot guns will shatter the traditionally quiet countryside of Ste. Barbe, Que., on Saturday and Sunday, July 23-24, when the province's top trapshooters gather at the Huntingdon Shooting Club to compete in the sixth annual Quebec trapshooting championships.

The club is just west of Ste. Barbe off Highway No. 3 six miles out of Valleyfield.

Defending champion is Paul Lemlin of Montreal, who last year took the high overall and handicap by smashing a record 187 clay targets out of 200.

Some 100 trapshooters representing 16 clubs will be shooting for prizes totalling $1,000.

Main Street congestion

THE BREADTH of our Main Street, a conversation-piece among tourist strangers and an asset enjoyed by few centres of this size, does not seem to ease the congestion of peak-hour traffic — notably in the busy shopping periods of Thursday, Friday and Saturday. These peaks are more especially notable in the summer season, when the influx of cottagers brings added business to our stores.

It is even possible that the width of this street is now contributing to its periodical bottle-necks. Traffic flow is impeded by parkers edging or backing into the east and west lines of traffic from four parking strips, two in the centre and one at each sidewalk.

Many "Saturday Night" towns have this experience — cars backing up from angle parking-slots to get into the line of traffic. But only from two sides; in no case, except on a public square, can we recall parking in four lanes such as on Lachute's main thoroughfare.

This may not be the prime cause of our problem, however, but only one of many. Others have been stressed previously in this column: double parking (or "idling") by taxis, delivery trucks and private cars awaiting shoppers; the insistence of several merchants on maintaining their rights, leaving their cars all day on the street and occupying valuable shopper space; and the use of Main Street as a thoroughfare for long-haul travellers and a hundred-odd transports. . . . . This bugbear may be blamed to some extent on the merchants themselves. Some years ago, when the discarded C.N.R. right-of-way was mooted as a by-pass route, the merchants protested against this move, fearing they would lose business. (East End and Centre Town residents have sadly rued this lack of foresight.)

There are efforts, on the other hand, to improve this situation. More and more through-traffic is using the back streets. This is to the good, providing Stop Signs are observed and the back streets are not used as speedways.

Another recent help is the "No U-Turn" order posted almost opposite the A&P Supermarket. Cars turning at this spot, which is not a cross-street intersection, have invariably had to back up in order to complete the turn.

Another improvement could be achieved by greater use of three free commercial parking lots provided in this area — all accessible from back streets and within a few paces of the stores — at Beaton's Pharmacy, the Bank of Montreal, and the Bank of Nova Scotia. This would save many a motorist aggravating the problem by circling up and down Main Street in search of an opening.

The police force is also doing its best with the personnel available — posting, at strategic hours, a patrol officer at busy intersections and at the post-office, where traffic merges from three approaches.

There are other solutions to this congestion. The Council, and The Watchman, would appreciate public opinions — excluding, of course, suggestions that shoppers should patronize another store, or other ideas of ulterior motive! The solution may be traffic lights, parking meters (to induce more off-street parking), or that commodity cheaper in price than either of these — plain common sense. . . . We would like to hear the views of traffic experts, pseudo-experts or of any observers less highly (?) qualified.

Some people offer thanks . . .

WITH ALL credit to our columnist in Victoria, we transplant a rebuke from G. E. Mortimore's "All Aboard", appearing on this page in a recent issue. We do so without apology, for his sentiments deserve repetition. Those who missed this particular column may read it here; and those who read it once, may read it again . . .

Some people offer thanks for public washroom and playground equipment by breaking and carving pieces off it!

In wild beauty spots, you can find tokens of respect left by those who have been there before you: old stoves, car bodies, cans and broken bottles.

What makes people smash things and strew junk around? Dumb selfishness, I suppose, and pent-up anger and frustration. It is the primitive violence of nature — a useful force in the days when men had to hunt their own meat, but an embarrassment in a closely-packed society.

You might expect the twisted and violent people to be restrained a little by fear of punishment and by respect for the rights of others. However, some people are not bright enough to see that they are making trouble.

They don't understand that their fellow-citizens have rights. Nobody ever told them. They go through their lives as babies, grown in body but infantile in mind.

Brought up to worship the Almighty Self, they gleefully scatter trash through the woods, because they don't expect to be back that way again.

They break up benches with hammers, and smash bottles where people go swimming. They like the pretty sound of things breaking. The act of destruction soothes the blind anger against the world that is boiling in them.

What can be done? Ask a doctor, a sociologist and a policeman, and you will get three different answers. I don't suppose any of the answers will work. There is no way to make louts into decent citizens.

The Canadian Bill of Rights

FROM THE recent record of Commons debates, it seems questionable in the minds of our lawmakers whether the Canadian Bill of Rights was designed as a guarantee of the sanctity of citizenship, or as a model of oratory to recite from rostrums and platforms.

The Prime Minister's text considered both these angles, but with lighter emphasis on verbiage than on material essentials, which is what the bill intended. In the meantime, while we have lost a potential gem in the literary heritage of the nation, we may be grateful that the document is not couched in legal phraseology, far over the heads and beyond the understanding of the masses.

Press reporters have compensated in some measure for the literary shortcomings. Unconsciously they have waxed most lyrical. . . . Read the following (by Canadian Press):

There were some snarls and hisses before the Canadian Bill of Rights reached the sleek contentment of approval before the House of Commons. There were purrs from the Conservative benches as Prime Minister Diefenbaker stroked his parliamentary pet into second reading.

The Liberals and the CCF found fault in the proposed bill's limitations and lack of literary merit, but "they seem to forget we are writing a statute, not a poem," said Justice Minister Fulton in reply to this criticism.

The Prime Minister was more mellow. He said he has no objection to a "decorative" preamble being added, although the day of preambles was pretty well past.

Some of the Liberal speakers compared the bill caustically with the American Declaration of Independence and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, and suggested that it looked pale by comparison.

Said Opposition Leader Pearson, a bill of rights should not only be broad and deep in its meaning, but in addition: "Should be inspiring in its language; something that should stir the pulse, stimulate our national patriotism, something that could be read and would be remembered by school children on July 1 as one of the charters of our growing nation; something reaffirming our dedication to freedom and to great ideals. . . ."

Lazy drivers

SOME PEOPLE believe they are indifferent, others call them careless, but a Victoria, B.C., man thinks the drivers who cut corners, ride white centre lines and dawdle along at slow speeds are lazy drivers.

It's a good term. Lazy drivers. They either neglect to signal a turn or make the signal after the turn has started. They swing slightly left to make a right hand turn. They spurt into a moving traffic line then hold their speed down to an exasperating low. They park so a space beside them is untenable. They blind others with high-beam headlights either approaching or following. In general, they aggravate other drivers and pedestrians. In fact, it seems they go out of their way to be aggravating.

Not much can be done to help these afflicted people except to keep constantly before them a list of their failings. It does no good, and may do harm, to get angry with them. Reprisals are too dangerous in themselves. They laugh at legal authority and since their infractions are usually minor, their penalties are small.

One thing motorists can do — avoid the lazy drivers. Let them go their way and they will hurt only themselves — we hope.

DARLING . . .

This year, I opened up the Summer Cottage.

As I headed off, I was handed a little note. When I arrived at the cottage, I opened it. It was quite a note. So filled with solicitude. I beamed as I began to read.

"Darling . . . " it began, and I should have been suspicious at once. "Please be careful not to overdo. After all, we have the whole summer to putter around in. When you cut the grass, just use the grass whip in the corners and along the hedge — it doesn't have to be perfect, just so long as the larger, middle stretch where the youngsters play is well mowed . . "

(I hadn't figured on cutting the grass at all, but it was nice to know a perfect job wasn't necessary!)

"I don't think you should attempt to top those trees, though they do seem to stop the chimney draft. Wait until some weekend when Bill can be there to help. If you chop down the big tree by the kitchen window, that should help and it should be sawed fireplace length.

"You can use the ashes from the fireplace for your garden if you like, but there's no need to clean the fireplace chimney . . . unless it smokes when you light a fire. We didn't do it last fall, you remember, and I'd rather you didn't bother unless you do decide to top these trees and are up on the roof anyhow.

"You should try to get as much rest and sunshine as you can and not make a big job out of opening up. When you set out the Laurentian chairs and put up the hammock, the verandah may need a bit of cleaning up if you want to sleep out there. The mop is back of the kitchen stove, and there is wax in the kitchen cupboard . . . you'll find the wax when you take out the plastic hose for your soft water pump.

"If driftwood has piled up on the shore, just leave it there for now . . . I don't want you doing too much heavy lifting. Putting the pier out good and solidly should be enough for one week-end, especially if you add a section as you said you intended to do.

"And for Heaven's sake, don't bother with the TV antenna on that steep roof — unless you want to watch the Ed Sullivan show just because your favorite Four Aces are going to sing on it."

There was a lot more . . . but with all that relaxing to do, I didn't get time to read it!

Can a Totem Pole be read?

A totem pole, the term commonly applied to the carved wooden posts formerly erected by the Indians of the Northwest Coast from Alaska to the State of Washington, consisted of a number of independent figures, one above the other, each referring to some incident in the past of the chief for whom it was erected. The figures were shown according to a series of accepted stylisms. For example, the raven had a long straight beak, the owl a curved one, and the beaver had a cross-hatched tail and a stick in its mouth. A totem pole could thus be "read," that is, the individual figures were recognized, but the implication of each was entirely different since each depended upon some incident connected with the ancestral records of the family. Actually, therefore, the full meaning of a totem pole could be understood only when the figures upon it were correlated with the incidents of the relevant myth or myths. The peak of totem pole construction was from 1860 to 1880. During that period some poles were erected that were more than 90 feet in height.

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Peggy stared in disapproval at a news picture of Sabrina, a girl with a big chest.

"Hnph," she said. "Forty-two, 18, 36. A few years ago she could have gone on exhibition in a circus, as a freak."

"Sure," I answered. "They could build a show around her and call it Sabrina Fair."

Peggy rummaged among debris in a cupboard and found a tape measure, which she held in a circlet around herself for comparison.

"See," she pointed out, "room for two of me."

"Aha yes," I observed. "Certainly is. Certainly is."

"Why, she wouldn't be able to see her feet."

"Look, you're not holding the tape at the 42-inch mark," I said. "That's 45 inches, where you have it pinched together."

Peggy adjusted the measure. It still encircled her like a hula hoop.

"It's a deformity, just like people with too big a nose."

"Not quite like. But tell me, what are your own measurements?"

"You know. Thirty-five, 24, 36."

True," I said. "You did tell me. It comes to mind now."

"Models are supposed to have waists 10 inches smaller."

"I've heard that said," I acknowledged. "But I thought I saw just a shade of malice on your face, as you pored over that picture in the paper. Weren't you a little . . . er, just a little . . . "

"No, I wasn't."

" . . . Jealous?" I insisted.

"Pah!" Peggy snapped. "Before they started this bosom worship, she would have been a circus freak."

"I'm not one of the wild enthusiasts," I said, "but you will have to admit there is a big following."

"Sabrina is old stuff," Peggy said. "Two years ago they were all talking about her. That was when Alex used to call his wife to the television and say: 'Quick, Taff, come and look. Here's Sabrina.'"

"It's old stuff," I admitted, "but it's right up to date too."

Geography lesson

A short story by Nicholas Monsarrat, an English author who has lived for some time in Canada, generously presents a large slice of the province of Quebec to the United States. The scene of the tale is laid at Lac St. Louis, part of the St. Lawrence River near Montreal, and one sentence begins: "Away from the watching boat, it was a lazy June afternoon; the American bank of the river was almost lost in the heat-haze; on the Canadian side, there was only the activity at the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club . . . "

A note by the author informs the reader: "The story was written specifically for the Saturday Evening Post, who just as specifically turned it down." However, it did appear in the English paper, John Bull, and also in periodicals in Australia, Norway, Denmark and Finland. Presumably the editors of those papers did not bother to consult their atlases.

It is not only foreign authors who are prone to err in matters of Canadian geography. A Canadian author, T. B. Costain, now domiciled in the United States, in a novel published a few years ago, had the Richelieu River running uphill out of the St. Lawrence River into Lake Champlain.

—The Printed Word

Good rear view is necessary

Adjust your rear view mirror to a correct angle so that you can constantly check on the movement of traffic behind you, the Provincial Highway Safety Committee (Prudentia) advises motorists. The need to have a clear picture of traffic from the rear is just as great as having clear vision up ahead. To by-pass another vehicle or to turn, one must know what is coming behind. And the method to check is through your rear view mirror.

Artist in glass

At the Canadian section of a recent London, England, furniture exhibition, guests passed through an entrance of two large panels.

The artist who made up the colorful panels was Mrs. Lauretta Rix of Willowdale, Ont.

The panels were made with little pieces of colored glass and lots of ingenuity. The final product resembled stained glass windows.

The work was set in a metal frame which had bars of metal criss-crossing in an irregular modernistic pattern. The panels of glass fitted into the sections of the frame.

Mrs. Rix started the work on clear glass. Fishing line was strung in loops and whirls across the glass into what she describes as "nice squiggly lines." The line was allowed to extend over the edge in neat little loops. The loops could then be hung from hooks on the steel framework. This was the method used to assemble the mural.

After the nylon fishing line was taped into place, the job of fitting the glass pieces into a pattern began. Pieces of colored glass were placed on both sides of the sheet of clear glass so that they often overlapped, producing a wide range of bright colors.

The glass was in chunks, crushed and some pulverized to a sugar-like powder. The job, commissioned by the federal government, took Mrs. Rix and an assistant about a month.

Native of Chatboro, lifelong resident, dies in 86th year

Late Mrs. Jas. O'Brien

There passed away on July 11 one of the oldest residents of this district, in the person of Mrs. Jas. O'Brien.

Although confined to her room for four months, she took active interest in all the daily duties about the farm and home.

The deceased lady, before her marriage to Jas. O'Brien, was Ella MacAdam, and she had lived in these parts all her life. She was the daughter of the late David MacAdam and his wife, Matilda Blair.

Mrs. O'Brien was the last surviving member of a large family, her brother, Mr. Wm. MacAdam, having passed away only last August, 1959.

She leaves to mourn her passing one daughter, Ruby, and three sons, Warren, Percy and Wendell, also several nieces and nephews. To these the community extends deepest sympathy, especially to her immediate family who so devotedly cared for her.

The funeral was conducted by a former pastor, the Rev. Guy Case, on Wednesday, July 13, from her late home to St. Mungo's Church, Cushing, where a large number of friends gathered to pay their last respects. Hymns sung were, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "Abide With Me".

The remains were interred in the family plot in Ogdensburg Cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony of love and esteem.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Donald Nichols, Lawson O'Brien, Geo. McKinnon and Elmer Gauley, nephews, Stanley Donaldson, and Percy McAdam, a cousin.

Devotional exercises were taken by Mrs. Stuart Cooke and Mrs. Walter McMahon. Highlight of the business was the planning of a home-cooking sale which will take place next month. The meeting was brought to a close with the serving of refreshments, the hostesses being Mrs. H. Johnston, Mrs. Amsden and Mrs. A. Evans.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of Mr. Earl Tomalty, whose tragic death occurred last week.

During the closing minutes of the sale the two patchwork quilts were drawn for — Miss Nonie Stuart drawing the winning tickets. — Jehovah's Witnesses —

Finding the T-R-U-T-H that makes men free.

Jesus said: "You will know the truth, and the truth will set you free." But the world today is not free. That is because the people of the world have not learned what it means to do God's will. Yet millions pray daily: "Let your kingdom come. Let your will come to pass, as in heaven, also upon earth." Do you know how God will answer the prayer he taught us to offer to him? Your future and the future of all honest-hearted persons in our generation is wrapped up in that answer. Send for and read:

"Your Will Be Done on Earth"
"Let God Be True"

Plus two booklets . . . Send $1 today!

Morin Heights—Teen-age dances are being held every Friday evening in Trinity Church hall, and are proving fairly successful. These affairs are held on a non-profit basis. It is hoped many more of the young people will participate.

At Saint Sauveur, several hundred persons attended the annual Lac des Chats District Association service on Sunday morning at the Church of Saint Francis, conducted by the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, assisted by Rev. Lydon K. McKeown and Mr. Lionel Brittle.

Guest speaker was Rev. Callum Thompson, of Montreal, who urged the congregation to "apply themselves to one thing at a time, and do it with all their ability." With reference to many living examples, he showed how people could be successful in life.

The service was arranged by the president, Mr. Arthur Carter.

At Christ Church, Mille Isles, the Sunday morning service was conducted by the Rev. H. G. Baugh, and the large congregation enjoyed the assistance of a newly formed choir. The rector welcomed a group of Scout leaders to the service, from Camp Tamaracouta, where regular Anglican communions are celebrated.

Anglican Relief Fund aiding refugees

Toronto — $140,000 has been allocated for work among refugees and world relief by the Primate's Committee for World Relief of the Anglican Church of Canada.

As World Refugee Year draws to a close officially, initial grants were made from the Primate's Fund for refugee work in Hong Kong, India, Pakistan, Germany, Austria, the Middle East.

Over $80,000 has been distributed through the World Council of Churches and $25,000 through the United Nations. Grants were made to Chile and Mauritius for disaster relief, to the Archbishop of South Africa for his assistance fund, and $18,000 is to be sent to Hong Kong to help Bishop Hall establish a children's meal centre among refugee families.

The Primate's Fund has been established on a continuing basis to receive contributions from church people for disaster relief and for the rehabilitation and resettlement of those refugees whose needs were not met in World Refugee Year.

Dalesville family leaves for U.S.

(Contributed)

Dalesville — It seems but yesterday that friends and neighbors held a house-warming when Mr. and Mrs. P. Merryweather and twins, Jane and Mark, moved into the lovely new home they built in Dalesville.

Emerson said, "The only way to have a friend is to be one."

We think this was their philosophy, for in a very short time they had taken their place in the community. Pat, as he was better known, worked for the Canadian Safety Fuse Company, in Brownsburg. He took an active part in the militia and also in the training of the Cadets. He was an outstanding worker in the Lachute Baptist Church. Apart from church work, in which Mrs. Merryweather was very active, she was a member of the Argenteuil Art Association and has shown some of her paintings on different occasions. She was interested in Women's Institute work and was partly responsible for organizing a branch in Dalesville.

The Merryweathers came here from the gold mines of Ghana, Africa, and now Mr. Merryweather will have a chance to further his work in engineering with the American Cyanamid Co. of New Castle, Pennsylvania.

Apart from being feted by many friends, presentations were made to the Merryweathers by — Lachute Baptist Church, neighbors and friends; to Mr. Merryweather by the Canadian Safety Fuse Co.; to Mrs. Merryweather by the Dalesville, W.I. and Lachute Baptist W.M.S.

They will be missed in the vicinity. . . . Our best wishes go with them.

MORE PROOF... IT PAYS TO FEED PURINA

Purina-Grown Heifers Make Heavy Milkers

Homer Schwindt's Herd Averages 34% Above "BCA"

Homer Schwindt does not carry a "big" herd on his 200 acres near Elmira, Ont., but he ships a lot of milk. His R.O.P. records for the 1958-59 year show that 22 milkers, all ages, averaged 14,002 lbs. milk and 502 fat in 305 days. Compared with Breed Class Average, this works out at 134 for milk, 131 for fat.

"Our two-year-old records have never been so good," says Mr. Schwindt. "Some heifers have hit over 17,000 lbs. in their first lactation." And all his records are made on 2X.

These big, well developed heifers are built to "take it", but a glance at the snapshot above will show that they are sharp, clean-cut, dairy-like. They were grown for size, early breeding, early calving, but not coarsened in the process.

Obviously, Mr. Schwindt is a good breeder and a good feeder. For 12 years he has based his feeding on the Purina Programme. He starts his calves on Nursing Chow and Calf Startena, grows them on D & F Special and his own grain, feeds his milkers a Purina-balanced ration. "I'm glad I stuck with it," he tells us.

Start your next few calves on the Purina Plan, and see how they develop. Ask us for directions. They're simple. O-15

Magic in Water Play

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Children delight in the simple gifts of nature and at an early age they find water a wonderful play material. It has great charm, especially during the warm days of summer but can be enjoyed any time of the year.

Bath time is a jolly time and an older brother or sister can often make attractive floating toys of soap, wood or sponge rubber, for the very little child. Pre-school children will enjoy converting some empty walnut half-shells into a fleet of boats. First glue a toothpick for masts in an upright position, and use a tiny triangle of white paper for a sail. If two children are playing they can color their masts with crayons two different shades, and have a race to see who can blow all the sailing boats in their navy across the bath first.

Play with water can often occupy a young son or daughter while parents are busy with other tasks. If dad has a painting job underway outdoors, Junior can be handed a pail of water and a big paint brush and he will be quite happy "painting" a fence or back steps with water. On wash morning, mother can suggest dolls' clothes may be dirty too and she can provide her small daughter with a basin, warm soapy water and a little scrub board. A low line of heavy string and miniature doll clothes pins will delight a little girl who wants to hang up her dolls' wash.

Blowing bubbles has amused children for many years. A drop of glycerine helps the process, and if no bubble-pipes are available, drinking straws can be used. On a warm day a group of children can have a lot of fun in the back yard with a bubble blowing competition. The equipment is inexpensive, a bowl of soapy water and a drinking straw for each child — the plastic kind last longer than the waxed paper, but must be sterilized each time after they are used.

On a very hot day children will beg to be allowed to run through the falling drops from a spray hose set up in the yard. If they are in their bathing suits and there is a time limit on this activity it can be refreshing. Some mothers keep this as an occasional treat just before meal times and combine washing hands and face with changing out of bathing suits into clothes.

Back yard wading pools made of plastic for tiny tots have become quite popular. Some ambitious fathers have constructed a shallow concrete wading pool for their pre-school child by adapting instructions for a back-yard swimming pool or ornamental pool. But care must be taken that it is not too deep and provision must be made for the water being changed regularly and if necessary chemicals added to keep it fresh.

One family made a tiny gold fish pool in a shady spot under some bushes by sinking a sturdy deep preserving kettle in the ground. Stones and sand were placed in the bottom of the kettle and a few water plants anchored there. Half a dozen small snails and four small goldfish were the occupants of this pool.

An outdoor tap for a hose was in the wall above it and thus it was easy to add a little fresh water as the water evaporated. The water plants and snails kept the water from becoming tainted. The little son and daughter in this family loved to watch the goldfish and were allowed to feed them twice a week.—

Water is precious in many parts of the world. Even if it is abundant where we live, let's not take it for granted. It has wonderful play possibilities for a little child. There's magic in water play!

HARD-COOKED EGGS

Eggs are an asset in a luncheon, along on a picnic or with popular summer salads. To avoid dark rings around the yolks, cool promptly. This also prevents over-cooking and makes it easier to remove the shell.

PROGRESS THROUGH RESEARCH

OVERCOMING OBESITY

There are few comforts left for the fat man. Research has stripped him of easy explanations of his avoirdupois: "It runs in the family," or "Everything I eat turns to fat."

"Overweight," science tells him sternly, "is the result of overeating. Excessive food intake in conjunction with small energy output is the ultimate cause of all obesity."

The fat man — or woman — is left facing the cold fact that he pays for his appetite with his health. Insurance records reveal that the death rate for overweight middle-aged men is 52 per cent higher than for their trim brothers.

If it's not glands and it's not heredity, why does the fat man continue to overeat? The answer to this question is the key to helping him overcome his weight problem. Anxiety and tension may be literally driving him to eat, much as an alcoholic is driven to drink. He finds comfort in calories and his weight soars.

A clinical study by Dr. M. Lancy in "La Semaine des Hôpitaux de Paris," suggests that a tranquilizer in combination with an appetite depressant aids in eliminating emotional stress, allowing the patient to adhere more strictly to his diet and treatment.

United States scientists adopted this formula in a new slim capsule and then added vitamins and minerals to help safeguard against possible nutrition deficiencies due to a restricted diet. The new drug depresses appetite without provoking nervousness and other side effects sometimes encountered in weight-reducing aids.

Dieting may never be fun, but science makes it easier all the time.

All-green salad

(Consumer Section)

When buying greens, make sure they are young, fresh and crisp. When you get home, wash them thoroughly under cold running water. A wire basket is ideal for washing greens as it permits every bit of dirt and sand to escape. Just shake it gently and any excess water will drain away. Now your greens are ready to store until time to appear on the table. Put them in a covered container or plastic bag in the refrigerator to crisp.

Green salads are generally not made too far ahead of time as the greens should be young and fresh. Drain and shake the greens dry in a clean towel before using them. Green leaves are afraid of knives, so keep them happy by tearing them apart rather than cutting them. For a good looking salad bowl use lettuce alone or a combination of several greens of varying shades, e.g., lettuce, curly endive, escarole, watercress, spinach, etc.

Add a "piquant" touch to a green salad with chopped chives, or onion. Herbs, if they are not already present in the dressing, go well with green salads. Try one or two of the following: basil, crevil, dill, marjoram, rosemary or tarragon.

Almost any kind of dressing can be served with a green salad. Make it at home, buy a packaged mix to which oil, water and vinegar are added or choose from many prepared salad dressings available on the market. Add the dressing just before serving the salad and toss it with a couple of forks. Make sure you don't drown the salad; add just enough dressing to moisten it. Now put it on the table. It will taste and look delicious! And . . . before your very eyes . . . it will disappear.

Huge "tulips" may soon be towering over Canadian towns.

The "tulips" are actually old eyesores, water towers, gaily painted. The tulip is one of five designs. Hugh Campbell of an industrial color studio in Toronto says some are in stripes of different shades and all can become an emblem for the town. Fort Erie, Ont., is the first to adopt the plan.

The tulip design is painted in green stone, turquoise and buttercup yellow.

Mothers at Home

Mrs. Mel Walters of London, first vice-president of the Ontario council of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, says that women today are faced with the great challenge of returning the mother to her rightful place, the home.

Speaking to delegates at the Hamilton diocese, Mrs. Walters said the problem could be overcome by securing special legislation which would ensure substantial wages to the husband so that he can support his family without the need of the wife working outside the home.

The department of labor listed 43.5 per cent married women among women workers in all industries during 1958.

Plants and Holidays

Most house plants can be moved successfully from living room to the outdoors when the family leaves for its summer vacation.

The two exceptions, warn horticulturists with Ontario's agricultural department, are the African violet and gloxinia. They can't stand strong outdoor light.

A shaded spot in the garden, the north side of the house or the porch are suitable spots where the plants will get enough light.

Before leaving, give the plants a deep watering. Plan to prune too The neat trim will make the plant bushier for fall.

If the plants are left in the garden it's a good idea to treat for insects and disease.

This brings a word of warning regarding children. Chronic nibblers, they'll put almost anything in their mouths including flowers. It can be dangerous if children eat flowers sprayed with insecticide.

Most containers of chemicals list instructions for relief in case of this happening, so be sure to read the fine print.

All garden sprays and dusts should be stored well out of children's reach.

Better Brides

In the editor's corner of the Canadian Association of Consumers' bulletin, the association points out that June was the month that one of the country's most valuable crops was harvested — brides.

The editorial says that "as soon as the wedding vows are exchanged the bride is at one stroke a homemaker, the potential mother of future citizens, guide and director of physical health, moral tone, spiritual insight and economic stability of one of the country's integral units which will determine the ultimate character of the nation itself."

The CAC plea is for a well-rounded course to prepare women for their role as homemakers.

"Because this new homemaker was born a woman she was not magically endowed with all the insight, foresight, virtues and graces, plus good sound knowledge of the jobs of cook, nutritionist, child psychologist, husband psychologist, economist, judge, mentor, teacher, nurse, interior decorator, hostess and manager required of her."

The CAC urges the nation's educationalists not to overlook the importance of universal training for future homemakers and consumers.

Good-tasting kabob sandwiches

By Carolyn Campbell

What could taste better on a "steamy" July day, than a colourful sandwich . . . a kabob sandwich, tangy with a sauce of canned beef gravy, horseradish and mustard.

This sandwich creation is bright with ingredients too . . . beef cubes, tiny white onions, cubes of red, red tomato, all nestled in a toasted frankfurter roll. It's hearty eating, tuned to July!

The recipe calls for oven broiling the kabobs for 15 to 20 minutes. If desired, do them over an outdoor fire. While the kabobs brown, heat the sauce ingredients together . . . canned beef gravy, ketchup, horseradish and mustard . . . in a small saucepan over the same fire.

For indoor or outdoor glamour, and good eating, serve a small fruit flavoured gelatine salad on crisp lettuce, with the kabobs.

LUSCIOUS KABOB SANDWICHES

1 pound boneless sirloin, cut in 1-inch cubes
1 can (8 ounces) small white onions, drained
1 large tomato (or 2 small), cut in cubes
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 can (10½ fluid ounces) beef gravy
2 tablespoons ketchup
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
6 frankfurter rolls, split and toasted

On long skewers, arrange alternately beef cubes, onion, and pieces of tomato. Brush with oil. Broil 15 to 20 minutes, turning often. Meanwhile, combine beef gravy, ketchup, horseradish and mustard. Heat; stir now and then. Slide kabobs from skewers onto toasted rolls; spoon gravy over. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Salad time . . . bean time . . . a bean salad is perfect for July eating especially when you combine a 15 ounce can of beans and pork with tomato sauce with about ½ cup celery, a bit of minced onion, and a tablespoon of thick French dressing; chill and fill salted tomato cups.

Sauce your hamburgers with a combination of canned condensed cream of mushroom soup and beef gravy which have been heated together over a low flame.

Canadian W.I.'s aim for $3,000 scholarship fund

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada have contributed 1,000 to an International Scholarship Fund, the Lady Aberdeen Memorial. The Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario have made a similar donation, and it is hoped the full amount of $3,000, one scholarship, may be reached by the Women's Institutes in Canada.

This Fund was established at the Ninth Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, held last year in Edinburgh, Scotland. Here it was decided to adopt this practical project to aid in the never-ending struggle against the world's hunger and misery, the lot of more than half its people. The purpose is to provide scholarships to train voluntary and qualified leaders in the field of Home Economics and Rural Community Welfare in countries which need such help and, to quote from the resolution presented at the Conference, "To teach women in those countries both to understand better what they and their families need and to use what resources they have to the best advantage."

This project also ties in with the Freedom-from-Hunger Campaign of the Food and Agriculture Organization. The ACWW is participating in the Campaign, with the president, Mrs. Van Beekhoff serving on the FAO steering committee, its only woman member.

Lady Aberdeen, the wife of a former Governor-General of Canada, after whom the Fund is named, was one of the founders of the ACWW and until her death in 1939 always retained her keen interest in its work and expansion. Constituent societies joined in commending this Scholarship Fund as a most fitting form in which to perpetuate her memory.

Best Buy In Fenders—Volkswagen

Volkswagen makes sense for you in many ways. Everything was designed with your pocket book in mind—nothing has been changed to please a passing fad. Take spare parts, for example: Volkswagen's fenders are bolted to the body for quick replacement. (A rear fender costs $16.10). Or a complete engine can be exchanged in 90 minutes. Only two examples of what a soundly engineered car means for you.

Or think of the low initial cost: Volkswagen has maintained the same price ever since it was introduced in Canada eight years ago. The secret? Volkswagen has increased production year by year, from 8,000 cars in 1948 to more than 700,000 in 1959, making it the largest-selling small car in the world—by far.

The logical result of maintaining and improving a sound basic design is a standard of quality which has made Volkswagen famous throughout the world. 1,526 Canadian Volkswagen owners have received the Gold Watch Award and Diploma for driving their cars 60,000 miles without major repair.

Over 300 dealers, coast to coast, invite you to join this happy family soon.
